The Ghoulies Come ... And Go

Greg Laudick
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Ghoulies and monsters were among those taking over the streets of Greenville Monday night as the city marked the annual end-of-October celebration in typical Halloween fashion.

And although crowd numbers were down compared to last year, Greenville police reported an increase in the number of law infractions during the evening.

Braving the damp and chilly conditions, thousands of partygoers crowded into the downtown district following nightfall, showing off an unbelievable assortment of outrageous costumes.

All the usual Halloween fare was accounted for — Frankensteins, vampires, ghosts and devils.

A man dressed as the pope walked around blessing the crowd in Latin.

The election year brought out plenty of political get-ups with several Ronald Reagans, Michael Dukakises, and a few Richard Nixons seen among the crowd.

Spuds McKenzie was a hit with the college women, many of whom came dressed as "ladies of the evening."

Several "terrorists" of unknown affiliation were spotted at a carry-out wielding plastic weapons while arguing which downtown nightclub would be their next target of occupation.

Many of those among the congregation agreed that Monday's crowd was not as large as last year. Some speculated it was because of the threat of rain. Others felt that many who would have normally participated in the festivities chose not to attend because of work or school commitments Tuesday morning. Last year's festivities were conducted on a Saturday night.

To help ensure an orderly celebration, Greenville police situated several barricades which rerouted traffic away from the downtown area.

"It worked very well. It was an excellent strategy," commented Greenville Police Chief Jerry Tesmond today.

In addition, police manned a series of checkpoints to help guard against people bringing glass containers into the crowd.

But Tesmond said this year's event was significantly more unruly than last year with approximately 50 arrests and over 100 separate incidents of fighting.

Tesmond said police today would compile an overview of Monday night's activities. Among the infractions were persons being arrested for being intoxicated and disruptive, damage to real property, assaulting an officer, and various drug possession arrests.

Tesmond said after police compile all the arrest information from Monday, the results will be analyzed

Israelis Casting Ballots

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — In an emotionally electric climate of Arab firebomb attacks and reprisal air raids, Israelis today cast ballots in watershed elections expected to determine the future of the occupied lands.

More than 300 Arabs and 10 Jews have been killed in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip in the nearly 11-month-old Palestinian uprising against 21 years of Israeli rule.

Election officials reported a heavy voter turnout under clear skies. A massive security force protected polling places. The army sealed off the occupied lands, where a Palestinian general strike was taking place.

Political observers said the slaying of four Israelis in a firebomb attack Sunday would tilt undecided voters to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc, which opposes Israeli withdrawal from the occupied lands.

Labor, led by Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, has offered such a withdrawal in return for peace.

As its citizens voted, Israel raided Arab guerrilla targets in Lebanon in apparent retaliation for a firebomb attack Sunday. Lebanese police said four people were killed and 15 wounded.

In Arab east Jerusalem, assailants today threw a firebomb at a car, injuring three people, police said. Witnesses said the car was plastered with stickers for the Likud bloc and was being used to transport voters.

By midafternoon, 41 percent of the electorate, or about 1,090,000 voters, had cast ballots. Results were to be announced after polls closed at 10 p.m. (3 p.m. EST).

Neither Labor or Likud has succeeded in gaining a majority in the 120-member Parliament since the Jewish state was established in 1948.

Governor's Race Tops In Spending

By John Flesher
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The 1988 gubernatorial race is the most expensive in history, as Republican Gov. Jim Martin and Democratic challenger Bob Jordan together have raised almost $10 million, in nearly equal amounts, records show.

Four years ago, the governor's race was a $7.6 million campaign, with Democrat Rufus Edmisten spending $4.4 million in his unsuccessful effort against Martin, who spent $3.2 million.

One week before the election, the gubernatorial nominees and candidates for other offices listed their donations and expenditures with the North Carolina Campaign Reporting Office. The reports were due Monday, although they can arrive later if postmarked Monday.

Martin, whom polls consistently have shown running ahead of Jordan, reported raising $2,749,726.96 between April 17, when the previous report was submitted, and Oct. 22.

He spent $3,106,808.74 during the period, but is not running a deficit because the campaign had a surplus beforehand, said campaign spokesman Tim Pittman.

Between January and April 16, Martin raised $816,570 and spent $801,239. In 1987, he raised $1.4 million and spent about $1 million, Pittman said.

Altogether, Martin has raised $4,966,296 and spent $4,908,047, the reports showed.

"You're looking at basically a $4 to $5 million race as we predicted," Pittman said. "Our goal all along was $5 million. We wanted to raise enough to offset any personal loans that Jordan would give his campaign. He has a personal fortune he can dip into."

According to the 1988 finance reports, there have been no loans taken to support Martin's campaign effort, while Jordan, a lumber company president, lent his campaign $300,000 about two weeks ago.

Jordan said the loan was made so the campaign could buy television time for the final days of the campaign. Jordan said he intends to have the loan repaid from campaign contributions.

Aside from the loan, Jordan raised

Pitt Food Services Postponed

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Surplus Food Distribution Program in Pitt County will be delayed until mid-December as the county Department of Social Services searches for a location for the service.

During the department's monthly meeting Monday, eligibility director Debbie Ryals told the board the decision by the county Board of Commissioners to convert the basement of the Pitt County Office Building into a jail has temporarily left the food distribution program homeless.

The department is looking for donated space that can accommodate a forklift for the next distribution scheduled Dec. 13-15. Items available will include butter, flour, cornmeal and perhaps some dry milk, Ms. Ryals said.

In other matters, Director Ed Garrison told the board that "interim and temporary solutions" are being sought for space needs within the department.

He said the department is out of compliance with state building and space requirements for conducting interviews. It has 30 days to respond to the state Department of Social

White Trial Set Nov. 14

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Sandra Faye Haddock White, 46, of Grimesland is scheduled to stand trial Nov. 14 in Pitt County Superior Court on a charge of soliciting someone to kill her husband, Bobby Charles White.

She is also charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the March 19 stabbing death of her husband. The murder trial is set for later this month.

Prosecutors set the court date Monday, after Mrs. White pleaded innocent to a new bill of indictment that states she tried to hire someone to murder her husband sometime before Christmas in December of 1987. She had previously been indicted on the solicitation charge, but that indictment did not specify the time of the crime, Pitt District Attorney Tom Haigwood said.

Solicitation to commit murder is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison, a fine, or both.

The arrest warrants state she tried to hire someone to kill her husband, but investigators say that person refused. Mrs. White is being held without bond in the Pitt County Jail.

Haigwood agreed at a motions hearing in September not to try Mrs. White on the solicitation charge and the murder charge at the same time. The murder trial, in which there is one other defendant, has been set for Nov. 28 in Pitt Superior Court.

James Alton Mobley, 22, of Lot 18, Country Estates in Greenville, who has also been charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder, is scheduled to stand trial Nov. 28 along with Mrs. White. He is being held without bond in the custody of the state Department of Corrections.

Court records show Pitt Sheriff's Detective Ivan Harris said Mobley told him that Mrs. White offered him $35,000 to kill her husband, and he agreed to the plan. Investigators have said they do not believe any money changed hands.

Court Broadens Police Powers

By David G. Savage
 LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that police may question suspected drunk drivers on the roadside without warning them of their rights to remain silent or to have a lawyer.

On a 7-2 vote, the justices said that during "ordinary traffic stops" a motorist is not in police custody and therefore "is not entitled to a recitation of his constitutional rights prior to arrest."

The ruling, in an unsigned three-page opinion, reverses a Pennsylvania court decision that said a motorist is in police custody when he is ordered to get out of his car and recite the alphabet. The Supreme Court decision upholds the status quo in most states.

Typically, a police officer will question a motorist and observe his behavior if he believes that the driver is drunk. Once the officer has enough information to arrest the driver, he will warn him of his right to remain silent and that any statements he makes may be used against him in court.

In the 1965 case of Miranda vs. Arizona, the high court sought to prevent coerced confessions in jailhouses by requiring police to tell a suspect that he could refuse to answer all questions and could have a lawyer present before making any statement.

In recent years, the more conservative court majority has carefully limited the Miranda rule to instances in which a suspect is clearly in police custody and not situations in which police briefly question a potential suspect. But the court also acknowledged Monday that it has not set a "an absolute rule" to distinguish when a person is "in custody" and when he is simply being questioned by a policeman.

The Pennsylvania court had con-

Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today that its main forecasting gauge of future economic activity edged down 0.1 percent in September, its second decline in the last three months.

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators rose 0.5 percent in August and 1.5 percent in June but fell 0.7 percent in July.

Economists believe this roller-coaster performance is a signal that the economy, which was expanding at a robust pace in the first six months of 1988, is slowing down.

The 0.1 percent decline in the leading index was a bit weaker than expected.

cluded that the motorist in this case, Thomas Bruder Jr. of suburban Philadelphia, was in custody because he was not free to leave. In the early morning of Jan. 19, 1985, Bruder had been stopped for driving erratically. An officer, smelling alcohol on his breath, asked Bruder to walk a straight line and then recite the alphabet. When Bruder stumbled through both tests, the officer placed him under arrest, took him to his squad car and gave him the standard Miranda warnings.

A judge found Bruder guilty of drunk driving, leading to a jail term

Hearing Date Set

An East Carolina student accused of detonating a tear gas canister in downtown Greenville early Sunday morning is scheduled to appear in Pitt District Court on Nov. 18 for a probable cause hearing.

Cameron Case Maxwell, 20, of Kinston, was arrested this weekend and charged with malicious injury by explosive device.

Several hundred people along Cotanche Street, between Fifth and Fourth street intersections, were affected by the tear gas, which was set off about 1 a.m., according to police. Several were treated at the scene by Greenville Fire-Rescue Department personnel.

At Maxwell's first appearance Monday, Judge Charles Guy of Fayetteville reduced his secured bond from $10,000 to $5,000. The offense is a felony punishable by up to 30 years in prison.

Break-In Reported

Greenville police said hundreds of dollars worth of property was taken from an E. 11th Street home in a break-in reported early today.

Investigators said a television, a video-cassette recorder, two cameras, several watches, a ruby ring, a radio, a cassette player and three gold chains were among items taken from 312 E. 11th St. in a break-in reported at 12:57 a.m.

Johnson Arrested

Kenneth Earl Johnson, 27, of 421 W. Roundtree Dr. was arrested by Greenville police Monday on breaking and entering charges.

Officer L.C. Overby said the charge stemmed from a 7:42 p.m. incident at 500 Elizabeth St.

Jackson Arrested

Greenville police arrested Paul Telson Jackson, 20, of 304A Scott Dorm on shoplifting charges Monday.

Officer W.S. Heath said Jackson was charged in connection with the theft of $4.76 worth of cigarettes from Kroger Sav-On on Greenville Boulevard about 10:20 p.m.

Mayor Proclaims Month

Greenville Mayor Edward E. Carter proclaimed November as "Epilepsy Month" and asks all Greenville citizens to join with the Coastal Plains Local Organization of Volunteers to educate the public about epilepsy.

"More than two million Americans, including people in Greenville, North Carolina suffer from epilepsy and approximately 100,000 new cases of this disorder develop each year in this country, primarily among young people," Carter said.

"Epilepsy is tragically shrouded in myth, ignorance and fear which often works to deprive those with epilepsy the opportunity that will enable them to achieve a normal active and productive life, thus causing undue suffering," he said.

Request Approved

The Greenville Board of Adjustment on Monday approved a request by Autumnfield of Pitt County for a special use permit to operate a rest home on the west side of Williams Road (SR 1135), approximately 368 feet south of the Dickinson Avenue Extension.

The property is zoned R-6 (high-density residential).

Pitt Drug Case May Go To Federal Court

A Greenville couple is scheduled to appear in Pitt County District Court on Nov. 18 for a probable cause hearing on three drug violations, but the case may end up in federal court.

Marvin Daniel Davis, 43, and his wife, Joyce P. Davis, 35, both of Route 5, Box 289-A Greenville, made their first appearances in court Monday. The two were arrested at their home Friday after a month-long investigation by State Bureau of Investigation agents.

Greenville police and Pitt sheriff's investigators assisted in the arrest, SBI Agent Malcolm McLeod Jr. said, and officers seized 310 marijuana plants from the Davis' garage, which had been converted to a hothouse. The plants were worth nearly $500,000.

Richard Griggs, 31, of Route 1, Plymouth, and William Felton Allen Jr., 35, and Norma Price Allen, 35, both of Route 1, Pantego, were also arrested Friday in connection with the investigation.

Arrests in Madison County and Pitt County led to the raids in Washington County, said Washington Sheriff Jim Whitehurst. McLeod said federal authorities in western North Carolina have agreed to take over the portion of the case in the western district, and local investigators have asked federal authorities to consider taking the Pitt case.

Marvin and Joyce Davis were each charged with manufacturing a controlled substance, maintaining a dwelling for the purpose of selling marijuana and possession of marijuana.

Each charge carries a maximum 10-year penalty under state law, McLeod said, but each carries a 20-year maximum under federal law. Federal law also does not allow for early parole as does state law.

Mrs. Davis was released Saturday on a $50,000 secured bond. Her husband is still being held on a $50,000 secured bond.

Thefts Investigated

Investigators said 10 thefts, including money, chickens and beer from an Albemarle Avenue cafe, were reported to Greenville police Monday.

Officer K.L. Jones said $20 in change (including $8 from a coin operated drink machine), a watch, 15 chickens and five cases of beer were taken from Roundtree's Restaurant, 605 Albemarle Ave., in a break-in reported at 8:18 a.m.

Jones said a license plate was taken from a car at Georgetown Apartments in an incident reported at 1:06 p.m., while Officer E.L. Butts said an undetermined amount of money was taken from a coin operated drink machine at One Hour Koretizing, 2105 Charles Blvd., in a break-in reported at 6:53 a.m.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said a cement mixer engine valued at $450 was taken from a building site in Eastwood subdivision in an incident reported at 7:38 a.m., while an air compressor valued at $650 and 30 gallons of paint were taken from a construction site at 929 Bremerton Road in an incident reported at 10:47 a.m.

Officer M.E. Hayes said a television set was taken from 404B Tyson St. in a break-in reported at 8:04 a.m., while two amplifiers with a value of $1,500 were taken from a car parked at 409 S. Ash St. in an incident reported at 2:13 p.m.

Officer H.D. Hines said $15 in change was taken from a coin operated drink machine at Plaza Gulf at 701 E. Greenville Blvd. in a break-in reported at 9:58 a.m., while Officer S.C. Locke said a $300 soft top was taken from a vehicle at Toyota East in an incident reported at 11:10 a.m.

According to Officer M.R. Benton, two speakers and an equalizer were taken from a vehicle parked at the intersection of Reade Circle and Dickinson Avenue in an incident reported at 11:06 p.m.

Nov. 16 Trial Dates Set For 12 Charged In SBI Drug Sweep

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Twelve Greenville people arrested in an eight-month State Bureau of Investigation drug sweep are scheduled to stand trial Nov. 16 in Pitt Superior Court, and more cases are likely to be set for that week.

Pitt District Attorney Tom Haigwood set the trial dates Monday in Pitt Superior Court, where those arrested in the drug bust were arraigned. All defendants pleaded innocent.

A Pitt Grand Jury returned indictments against 31 people on Sept. 26, and authorities have arrested 22 of those indicted. The 117 bills allege more than 350 drug violations, nearly all involving heroin and cocaine-based crack.

Local authorities began arresting people the weekend of Sept. 24, and they are continuing to serve warrants as they locate more defendants. Twenty of the 22 people arrested were scheduled to be in court Monday, but only 13 were arraigned. All trials but one were set for Nov. 16, another was set for Dec. 12. Arraignments are set to continue this week.

Several times Pitt County Public Defender Robert L. Shoffner, who represents numerous defendants arrested in the sting operation, asked for bond reductions, saying many of the people have been held outside Pitt County and have not had the opportunity for a bond hearing.

Judge J. Herbert Small reduced some bonds. But a few defendants also had bonds set in unrelated cases, and Small told Shoffner to gather information about all existing bonds before asking for a bond hearing.

One person arrested Sept. 23, Terrence Christopher Harris, 16, of 904 W. Fourth St., pleaded guilty to drug charges last week. He was in court to face drug charges stemming from a separate incident and chose to also enter guilty pleas to the September charges.

Harris, charged with six cocaine violations, pleaded guilty to two charges as part of a plea agreement. Judge James C. Davis of Concord sentenced him to six years in prison for conspiring to sell cocaine and for felonious sale of cocaine and ordered him placed on probation for five years after being released.

Charlie Lee Jenkins, 41, of 1802 McLellan St., who faces 36 drug violations and a charge of operating a continuing criminal enterprise, was not arraigned Monday.

Jenkins is the first person in Pitt County to ever be indicted on a charge of operating a continuing criminal enterprise, a felony that is punishable by life imprisonment. He is accused of being the organizer of an enterprise where at least five people worked for him in a drug operation.

Greenville attorney Charles Vincent said he is representing Jenkins on an unrelated misdemeanor and negotiating with him on an arrangement to represent him on the drug charges. Jenkins has been in the custody of the state Department of Corrections for some time, Vincent said, and he has not been able to talk with him.

Vincent asked Small to order Jenkins to be held in the Pitt jail until the next arraignment date this month, but Small said that would put a strain on an already overcrowded jail and Vincent should not need that much time to confer with Jenkins. Small continued to arraignment to Wednesday morning, saying Vincent should be able to know by then whether Jenkins plans to hire him.

Vincent said he may also represent Jenkins' brother, James Earl Jenkins, 42, of 102 Glenwood, who was arrested in the drug bust and charged with six heroin violations. He was not in Greenville for the arraignment Monday, but is to be brought in some time this week.

Small reduced the bond of Laura Ruth Vines Daniel, 38, of 512 Davis St., from $700,000 to $150,000. She is charged with 12 heroin violations and 15 cocaine violations stemming from at least six incidents from April to June, Haigwood said. She is accused of making several drug sales to undercover SBI agents, the largest of which was eight vials of crack and 10 bags of heroin.

"She is a known drug dealer in this community, to me, and she and a number of other people ... have been selling drugs in the community, on the street," Haigwood said.

Small also reduced the bond of Beatrice Louise Dupree, 28, of 504 Ford St., from $50,000 to $30,000 and reduced the bond of David Earl Tripp, 37, of 102-B W. Fifth St. from $300,000 to $200,000.

Small refused to reduce the bond for Dennis Ray Suggs, 33, of 1917-B Kennedy Circle and for Henry Andrew Tyson, 37, of 1406-B Colonial Avenue. Both men have pending bonds in unrelated matters, and Small would not allow a bond hearing until Shoffner could present information on all existing bonds.

Recent figures from the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina show that 90 counties had September unemployment rates at or below 5 percent. Pitt County's rating was 2.7 percent.

This is the second consecutive month all N.C. counties experienced unemployment rates of less than 10 percent.

Dadswell To Speak

Dr. Michael Dadswell of Wolfville, Nova Scotia, will speak in Greenville at 7 p.m. Nov. 15 on "Tidal Power: The Dream and the Reality."

Dadswell is associate professor of biology at Acadia University in Wolfville. He will make his presentation before the East Carolina University chapter of Sigma Xi Scientific Research Society in Room 1028 of the ECU General Classroom Building.

He will discuss a planned large hydroelectrical tidal power project on the Bay of Fundy, showing how discharge through the turbines of such a facility could result in significant killing of commercial species of migratory fish. Those fish spend the summer in the Bay of Fundy but are caught as far south as Florida.

He will also talk about ongoing student exchange program between ECU and Acadia University.

Ed Harper, the board's attorney, said a proposed draft of legislation has been developed to require parents who abuse and neglect their children to participate in treatment as a condition of having custody of their children.

Harper said he needs to reschedule an appointment in Raleigh with state Rep. Walter Jones Jr. and Jennie Dorsett, a staff attorney with the N.C. General Assembly, to discuss legal aspects of the proposed legislation.

Garrison outlined the significance of the Family Support Act of 1988 or the "Welfare Reform Bill" to the board, saying the emphasis will move away from public assistance

The name of one of two East Carolina University policemen credited with alerting residents of a Cotanche Street apartment house to a fire early Saturday morning was incorrectly listed in a news article in Monday's Daily Reflector.

A university spokesman said this morning that Lawrence Watson was one of the officers involved in the incident. Monday's article identified the policeman as Barnes Watson.

Taft Says East Carolina Needs To Upgrade Status

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University should be upgraded to a Doctoral I university because "the benefits ... will ultimately be as great as that of the med school," state Sen. Tom Taft said at a news conference Monday afternoon.

"I am holding this press conference ... to talk about my commitment to the future of this university," Taft told news reporters gathered at ECU's Wright Building.

A Democrat, Taft is seeking reelection to the 9th Senatorial District seat.

Saying East Carolina "has been and continues to be one of the most positive forces for change in eastern North Carolina," Taft suggested that "perhaps no other teaching, research and service unit (of the university) more fully symbolizes the commitment" to the east than the School of Medicine.

"It must never be forgotten that the med school is a product of legislative and administrative partnership," Taft said. "The legislators of this region are determined and united in their stand to keep ECU in the forefront of North Carolina health, medical and academic affairs.

"We can not sit on the laurels of past leadership nor be complacent about our present position and successes. It is time that we look ahead into the 21st Century and chart major new goals and initiatives."

According to Taft, "It is imperative that ECU be seen by the ultimate decision makers ... as a mature university with special needs which are uniquely regional and historical." And, Taft suggested, it is even more important that capital funding for ECU be in line with its standing as the third largest university in North Carolina.

"One of the goals that I propose today is as epic as that of our med school," Taft said.

"This is my challenge," Taft said, that the ECU administration, Board of Trustees, faculty and alumni begin "to build a strong case for reclassifying our university as a Doctoral I university rather than a comprehensive I university."

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and N.C. State University in Raleigh, Taft said, "are rightfully classified as research institutions or universities" and are therefore "entitled to the highest level of funding by the state.

"But it is curious that UNC-Greensboro is the only university at the next highest level of classification (Doctoral I), especially when it does not have a medical school or sponsored research that even begins to approach the level achieved by East Carolina University," Taft said.

"It is now time for us to begin to build the case, sound the cry to battle and persuade the general administration (of the University of North Carolina system) and the Board of Governors that ECU must become a Doctoral I university.

"To fail to do so," Taft said, "ultimately sentences us to being a regional university of limited stature and self-limiting mission. To demand less is to fail to understand the meaning of academic excellence and the mission of learning, research, and teaching.

"We cannot be satisfied to accept complacently the role as a Comprehensive I university," Taft said. "The east deserves more. Now is the time to lay the plan, build the case and make the sale.

Moye Challenges Jones' House Attendance Record

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Howard Moye, Republican candidate for the 1st District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, on Monday challenged the congressional attendance record of his Democratic opponent, incumbent Walter B. Jones.

With a week of campaigning remaining before the Nov. 8 elections, Moye called Jones' attendance record at congressional roll calls "deplorable."

"We can say that Walter Jones, with exception to three others, has the worst attendance record in the U.S. Congress without an official excuse or legitimate reason," Moye said at a Greenville press conference.

"Out of the 435 members of Congress, only three without an excuse showed up for roll call votes less frequently than Walter Jones. Of those others with low ratings, two were running for president, two were running for governor, and four had official health excuses from the speaker," Moye said.

Citing statistics culled from the Congressional Quarterly, Moye said that Jones was present for 80 percent of recorded roll calls in 1987, while the average attendance for the rest of North Carolina's congressional delegation was 95 percent.

"We ask the question, how many of us could keep our jobs if we laid out of work 20 percent of the time? Why should Walter Jones keep his job if he's not there more than 80 percent of the time?"

Moye told reporters that the press conference was necessary because of Jones' refusal to participate in a debate.

"He refused to debate me on the issues, citing his uncertain schedule and obligations to be in Washington D.C.," Moye said. "Yet for the last month, he has missed virtually every role call vote that's been held in the Congress."

Moye said that Jones' absence was especially notable during the recent week Congress debated and voted on anti-drug legislation.

"The people of this twenty-one-county district deserve an active congressman who shows up regularly to vote in Congress and one who is accessible to hear the people's concerns," Moye said.

Jones could not be reached for comment this morning.

Would You Eat This Diseased Crab from the Pamlico?

If You Leave Tom Taft in the North Carolina Senate, You May Have To.

After years in the North Carolina Senate, Tom Taft, through inaction, leaves dead fish floating on the Pamlico and diseased shellfish and crabs beneath the surface. He flip-flopped his position on the Phosphate Ban, while his appropriations committee refused to approve funds for a much-needed coastal environmental study.

Don't let this record of tragic neglect continue.

This year, send a man to Raleigh who will clean up our environment and has the clout to get things done. Bill Dansey pledges to:

- Create a state-level Department of Health and Environment to coordinate all environmental regulatory activities.
- Develop cost-effective alternatives to solid-waste disposal landfills.
- Appropriate funds for much needed coastal projects.
- Work closely with industry for a cleaner environment.
- Impose tighter controls on disposal of hospital/medical wastes.
- Adopt state-wide standards for watershed protection.
- Improve programs for protecting coastal waters and the fishing industry.

Elect Bill Dansey to the North Carolina Senate.

Pitt's Future

The Best Candidates For The Job

Think about the things that are important to Pitt County. Think about education, zoning, waste disposal, highways and capital needs.

These issues represent the future of the county. How well it handles them will determine the community's fate. They are worth pondering long and hard.

Now consider, with these issues in mind, the options voters have Nov. 8 for the Pitt County Commission. Weigh the influences of the future against the choices of the present and the correct direction is clear. Three seats on that board are contested and in those races voters should mark their ballots for incumbents Charles Gaskins and Eugene James and newcomer Farney Moore.

Gaskins deserves the support of voters in Consolidated District B based on his 21-year record on the County Commission. He is a strong proponent of the county's public school system, as evidenced by his support of consolidation for Pitt County and Greenville schools in 1984 and his advocacy of capital outlay funding for the school system.

Gaskins should also be applauded for the role he played in revising Pitt County's election method in 1987, a change that will bring the commission its first minority members in November. He vigorously backed a balanced combination of at-large and district-only voting conducive to providing the board with both broad perspective and better minority voice.

In addition, he has balanced the urban and rural interests of his district well. His empathy for the Pitt County farmer is evident in his support for tax reassessment of cropland in the face of falling land prices. Yet he has been responsive to the demands of a burgeoning urban population by backing county planning, recycling and expanded county office facilities.

Gaskins, a Democrat, is a Greenville farmer and businessman his fellow commissioners have come to depend on for leadership on tough issues. His constituents should give him an unhesitating vote of confidence Nov. 8.

Eugene James should be the choice of voters in District 2, based on his experience and the balance his vote would provide on the County Commission. While James has taken government on crucial issues counter to progressive government — notably opposing school consolidation — the rural interests he represents need a vigorous voice on the County Commission. The board should correctly reflect the makeup of the county, and James' seat is key to that balance.

His district might be better served, however, if James would apply his experience as a retired educator to stronger, more enlightened support of the county's public schools.

James, a farmer from Belvoir, has served four years on the County Commission. He has an unimpeachable record of community involvement and should receive the support of his constituents Nov. 8.

Those in District 1 would be well-served by electing Farney Moore as their representative on the County Commission. This is Moore's first venture into public political service, and although he has no record to examine, his qualifications make him the best candidate.

Moore holds bachelor's and master's degrees in education and, as a retired teacher and principal, has a lifetime of service to public schools. This expertise puts him in an excellent position to understand the problem's of Pitt County's number one asset and business — education. The county cannot afford to fall behind on the needs of its booming school system and community college. Neither can it fail to capitalize on the advantages of hosting East Carolina University. A successful, financially flexible school system will depend on creatively blending these public resources with private support. Moore's experience is compatible with strong leadership on this issue.

Moore is a minister whose community reputation is one of honesty, integrity and service. He is the choice for voters in District 1.

In addition, voters in Consolidated District A should give D.D. Garrett, running unopposed, a well-deserved vote of confidence. Linwood Mercer and Wilton Duke, running unopposed in District 4 and Consolidated District C respectively, should also receive the support of their constituents.

Pitt County can respond to the challenge of growth and diversity only as well as the leaders its citizens elect. Charles Gaskins, Eugene James and Farney Moore — along with the unopposed candidates above — have the ability to do the job.

To the editor:

Gov. Dukakis has called the SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative) an expensive pipe dream and says if he is elected President, he will scrap the project. According to an article in Human Accents, March 26, 1987, Fossedral and Lehrman state there is a possibility that some of the scientists who have declared "Star Wars" an impossibility may have been motivated more by political prejudice than scientific fact. There are experts who believe that total negative assessments of SDI made by such groups as the Union of Concerned Scientists have exaggerated both the problems and the cost of such a program.

The aim of SDI is to provide a way of destroying enemy missiles before they can hit their American targets. This program was America's first substantial move away from the doctrine of "Mutual Assured Destruction" or M.A.D. and toward the idea of "mutual assured survival."

According to the joint chiefs of staff who head our military establishment (as published by the Department of Defense this year), "... The Soviets have continued to develop strategic offensive and defensive capabilities in an effort to reduce the credibility of the U.S. deterrent, increase the options available to the Soviet leaders, and diminish the options open to the United States and its allies."

Let us always keep in mind that the aims of the Communist party have not changed. They plan to take over the world. SDI presently is our only hope of a successful defense program, one that will save and not destroy lives.

To the editor:

In response to Julia Bloodworth's letter to the editor on Friday, Oct. 28, 1988:

We as concerned parents feel she misinterpreted our concern over the date of the state writing test. Our main concern is for the education of our children and not Halloween. The children and their teachers have been working since the first day of school on increasing the children's vocabulary and writing skills to prepare them for the test. We do not feel it is in our children's best educational interest to take the writing test at 8:15 a.m. the morning following such excitement and activity.

Evidently we are not alone in our concern since the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, Bob Etheridge (candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction of North Carolina), teachers and parents across the state have voiced their concern and feel the date should be changed.

Even though the testing date could not be changed this year, we wanted parents to be aware the writing test would be given the morning after Halloween so they could act accordingly.

We hope the future testing dates will be changed in order to provide the optimum circumstances for all children to do their best.

Working In Clown-Sized Wing Tips

BOSTON — The woman beside me is, by any measure, a success story. The business she started three years ago already has shown more than a respectable profit. She has a dozen people working for her now.

She talks eagerly about the advantages of being her own boss, the excitement of running her own show. She tells me her plans for the future.

But when I ask why she left the corporation, some of the sheen of optimism dulls. It's hard to explain, she says. She had been there for years. They were pretty good to her.

Then, she sighs uncomfortably, as if reluctant to complain or even to remember. For many years, she had been "the only woman" in one meeting after another.

"One day I was sitting there while the men were talking about the game Saturday. One of the guys made his usual crack about cheerleaders. Suddenly I was just so tired of it. I was tired of having to fit in, tired of being an outsider. I felt like I was wasting so much energy."

It was like trying to work, she said, in clown-sized wing-tipped shoes. They slowed her professional pace.

This entrepreneur from Tennessee doesn't know the businesswoman I met last spring in Michigan. But her success story had a similar subtext. Why did this Midwestern woman leave a major bank to set up her own business? After a decade, she was told that she would never become vice president unless she made some changes in her style. Not her management style, her personal style.

The powers that be thought her hair was too red, her car too flashy, her presence too, uh, feminine. She was also a kind of misfit.

The third "misfit" I met last month was in Florida. Her story was even more common. The corporation she left had no room for mothers. She had not been able to be manager and mother in the same schedule. There was no room in their business structure for change and so she went into partnership with another young mother. Their financial and family planning are now in a profitable sync.

These are not the only management "misfits" that I have met. Not by a long shot. But sooner or later, all three of these women will pop up in some puff piece, some personality profile praising the new wave of women entrepreneurs. And it is clear to me that their success is in many ways a corporate loss.

Women-owned small businesses are the fastest growing part of the economy. Something to brag about. Nearly four times as many women as men have gone into business for themselves in the past decade.

We don't keep records on how many of these women are refugees or deserters or escapees (choose one of the above) from larger corporations. We don't have data on how many of these women left because they got tired of adapting to the corporate style or lifestyle.

Indeed their former bosses and colleagues might be surprised, because these were not the kind of women to cry sexism at the meeting. Nor are they the kind to sign their letter of resignation, "Your former misfit." The best and the brightest are also, by my sample, the most likely to just pack up their energy and leave. But anyone who talks to these successes hears the same set of stories.

There are similar tales, I am sure, from male entrepreneurs. There are bluejeaned men who feel trapped in three-piece corporations. There are men who feel they can't push through the ceiling, men who want to make their own rules and hours. They, too, choose to be on their own.

But women are still, almost by definition, aliens in most corporate cultures. Those who were once satisfied, even pleased just to be allowed in to this male world, are increasingly restless in the place.

The new breed are among the liveliest, most exciting businesspeople I meet. I don't want to read failure into their personal success. But few are starting the next IBM. Few will become the employers of hundreds and thousands.

And as they leave larger firms, those work places are diminished. They lose another agent for change. More to point, as these entrepreneurs walk out the door, one by one, American corporations lose another source of ideas, of innovation, of energy.

And sometimes, after I have heard these success stories, I wonder how many of their old colleagues and bosses ever realize the gap left by another "misfit" who dropped a pair of old floppy wing tips beside the exit door.

A Big Bank Dedicated To Something Even Bigger: The Individual.

Today, in financial institutions all over America, people walk in as individuals and walk out as numbers.

Probably because it's more efficient to treat their customers in "bulk," and offer "bulk-rate" services. All very easy for the bank, but very hard on the individual.

A Big Bank Dedicated To More Than Just Getting Bigger.

But, for three million people who bank at NCNB, things are different.

We work to help each one of our customers reach their full potential.

So we've been training—and re-training—our people to find out exactly what you want and what you need before we ever start talking about what we've got.

Banking Services Designed For The Individual, Not The Institution.

We're introducing new services based on your needs—not ours.

For example, we feel that if you're good enough to do your banking with us, you should get something in return.

So we developed a package of services we call Deluxe® Banking: all the services you're likely to need at special rates or no charge.

We have all kinds of ways to help you borrow money. And we give you more than a brochure and application form.

Our people give you what we call "loan advice that's right on the money."

High Tech That Keeps In Touch With People.

Our people behind the scenes have developed a system that works so well, we'll give you $10 if we make a mistake on your personal checking statement.

High technology helps us offer you same-day loan answers, 24-hour banking coast-to-coast, 800 numbers with up-to-the-minute information on all your accounts with us.

Finally, you don't just get a bank account from us. You also get a connection to insurance, to investing and to buying a home.

The Customer Comes First, Even When A Bank Has Three Million Of Them.

That's a lot of business. So it pays us to see that you get more for your money.

The kind of personal attention, financial advice and service that will help you get ahead and stay ahead in the business of life.

If that last part sounds a bit like a small bank, that's the idea. And if the rest of it sounds like the things that only a big bank can offer, that's the idea, too.

If all of it sounds like the right bank for you, that's even better. After all, you're who we're dedicated to.

Computer 'Virus' Found Lodged In Disks At Two UNC Campuses

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Computer center officials at UNC-Greensboro and UNC Charlotte are working to eradicate a computer virus — believed to have originated in Pakistan — that has been detected in disks at the two schools.

The schools join dozens of universities and businesses across the nation that have been hit in the past few years with computer viruses — programming bugs intentionally placed in computer programs to cause damage.

UNC officials have found more than a dozen infected disks.

"I teach a class, and I would say out of 35 students who handed in a project in the last week, seven of the diskettes had a virus on it," said UNCC academic computing consultant Steve Sonderman.

The virus has fouled up some disks, and UNCC officials are urging their microcomputer users to take precautions to prevent its spread. "We've taken enough precautions that it shouldn't spread much," Sonderman said.

At UNCG, computer officials found infections in most of the disks in two of the university's 12 computer labs.

They plan to check disks of all students and faculty members. "We're going to have to go through and check everything on campus,"

UNCG computer center official Chuck Curry told The Charlotte Observer. "So it's not going to be pretty."

Both schools believe their computers have been infected with a computer bug known as the "Pakistani virus."

At both schools, computer experts used diagnostic programs to detect the viruses. The programs found this message: "Welcome to the dungeon. ... Beware of this virus. Contact us for vaccination."

In a recent article on computer viruses, Time magazine described the Pakistani virus's origin.

According to Time, the bug originated at Brain Computer Services, a computer shop in Lahore, Pakistan, run by brothers Amjad and Basit Farooq Alvi.

In 1986 and 1987, the store sold bootleg brand-name computer programs — which can cost several hundred dollars — for as little as $1.50. Dozens of American tourists stocked up.

But there was a catch: They'd added the virus to the programs. Later, they explained they wanted to punish tourists for buying bootleg programs.

UNC business Professor Kevin Gorman discovered the bug 12 days ago when he checked a student's malfunctioning computer disk.

Gorman said the virus apparently lodges in the memory of a machine when a computer user starts a computer using an infected disk. If the machine is turned off before a clean disk is inserted, the virus won't spread. But if the machine is left on, the virus spreads.

UNCC and UNCG officials aren't sure how the virus works or what damage it could cause. "What we've seen," Gorman said, "is some of the files on the diskettes that were infected lost their data."

Curry at UNCG said he's only seen the virus spread itself. "If it's doing nothing except multiplying itself, it's not that bad," he said. "But the danger is you never know for sure what it's doing." For instance, he said, it could be programmed to destroy data after multiplying a certain number of times.

IBM officials are working with UNCC to study the virus, Gorman said. At least one Charlotte company, Duke Power Co., also is working with UNCC officials to identify which employees are students at the university.

"We want to make them aware of the virus, how to check to see if they have a disk that has the virus on it," said Duke spokesman Joe Maher.

Duke wants to warn employees not to use suspicious software so the virus doesn't spread to the Charlotte-based utility's computers.

To guard against viruses, computer experts suggest making backup copies and only using programs from reputable sources.

They also recommend using "write protect tabs," which prevent anything from being added to a disk.

Gorman warns that anyone deliberately using a virus to destroy UNCC's computer disks could be charged with destroying state property.

Martin, Democrats Claim Credit As I-40 Link Opens

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. — The final 4.2-mile stretch of Interstate 40 in Orange County is open for business, and both political parties are taking credit for it.

"I only made one promise for highway construction, and that was to get I-40, the missing link from Raleigh down to Wilmington, under construction in four years," Gov. Jim Martin said.

"We made that in 3 1/2 years, with time to spare," Martin said after snipping an orange-and-black ribbon to officially open the stretch that allows non-stop travel between Raleigh and cities along the I-85 corridor.

But Ken Eudy, executive director of the state Democratic Party, who also attended the ribbon-cutting, said the accolades should go to the Democrats.

"Jim Martin taking credit for I-40 is like the janitor at Cape Canaveral taking credit for the space shuttle," Eudy said in a written statement.

The right of way for 91.4 miles of the I-40 construction project was acquired during earlier Democratic administrations, Eudy said. He also said that Hunt had set aside $116.9 million for the project, about half the overall construction cost.

Martin acknowledged that Hunt was in office when the Department of Transportation acquired right-of-way for the link dedicated Monday.

"But we're pleased that in this administration we were able to get it moving forward at a faster pace," Martin said.

The opening conveniently took place a week before Martin stands for re-election, thanks to a Columbus, Ga., construction company, which finished the project a month ahead of schedule. Hardaway Constructors was awarded $2,000 per day in incentive bonuses for finishing early, according to Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington.

Martin said the timing was coincidental, though he said his administration pushed to have the road opened as soon as possible.

"We want to move all our projects forward as fast as we can get 'em," he said.

Every section of the Raleigh-to-Wilmington portion is finished or being paved except a 13-mile stretch for which the paving contract will be let in December, Martin said.

Highway construction has emerged as a key issue in the gubernatorial race. During their debate Saturday, Jordan said if elected he would seek $5 billion in 1989 for a massive road-building program. He dodged questions about whether a tax increase would be part of the equation.

Martin said Monday the state Board of Transportation, consisting mostly of his appointees, already had committed $1.5 billion to his "Strategic Corridors" program. It calls for constructing new highways and widening existing two-lane roads to put 90 percent of the state's population within 10 miles of a four-lane highway.

A record $500 million in highway construction will take place next year, he said.

The governor said he would propose raising another $1.5 billion over 12 years. Tax increases might be needed at some point, he said, but none will be needed in 1989 if the General Assembly approves the $450 bond issue he unsuccessfully pushed this year.

"My view is you don't propose a tax increase when you don't need to," he said.

Eudy said Martin "stole" the Strategic Corridors concept from a legislative study panel. He also said Jordan was responsible for the Legislature's approval of Martin's a $220 million road financing bill in 1986 and that the Republican administration had made the highway system "a political candy store for cronies."

Tourists' Pollution Hurts West

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEVILLE — Pollution is a growing threat to the travel industry in western North Carolina, harming mountain forests and even historic buildings like the Biltmore House, tourism officials say.

"We are going to stop this problem someday, somehow, or else we will not be in business in the travel industry," said Tony Seamon, president of the Travel Council of North Carolina.

"So we have to roll our sleeves up and go to work," Seamon told officials gathered at the Travel Council of North Carolina's annual convention on Monday. "This is a problem everywhere we go, from the atmosphere right on in to the soil."

Acid rain is killing the trees on mountain peaks and the fish in rivers and lakes, speakers said. Discarded plastics, sewage and medical debris is washing up on beaches. And air pollution creates a thick haze that obscures the view.

The group planned to travel to Mount Mitchell later in the day to see the effects of acid rain firsthand. Scientists blame acid rain for the death of many trees there over the past several years.

Jordan Wants Debate Rerun

By Dennis Patterson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. — Both candidates, claiming victory in the only televised debate between Gov. Jim Martin and Democratic challenger Bob Jordan, say they're interested in rebroadcasting the contest.

Jordan said Monday he would pay half the cost for the rebroadcast on the eve of the election, but Martin said any rebroadcast should also include the lieutenant governor's debate.

In another matter, Jordan also said the state should spend twice as much as it does on highway construction, with drivers footing the bill.

Jim Gardner, the GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, has asked state Sen. Tony Rand, his Democratic opponent, to rebroadcast their debate on commercial television. Many observers from both parties said Gardner outperformed Rand in the Oct. 2 debate on public television. Rand has rejected Gardner's proposal.

"We'd be happy to rebroadcast that debate," campaign spokesman Tim Pittman said Monday. "If Jordan's campaign will draw up the numbers and let us look at them, we'll see if that's the best way to spend our money. That would be a lot of money right at the end, but we'll give that some serious thought."

At stops in Wilmington and Jacksonville Monday, Jordan said he believed he had outperformed Martin in the debate, which was broadcast statewide on public television and several commercial stations.

"The debate Saturday night was a tremendous boost for us," Jordan said. "In a sense, I was debating against myself and I was disappointed I didn't get some of the things out that we wanted."

"But I thought about it over the weekend, and realized we did a heck of a job," he said. "For the first time, the people had the chance to see Jim Martin not answer the Jimmy Green question, the education question and the environment question."

Jordan has accused Martin of hiring Green as a consultant as a payoff for Green's tacit support in the 1984 gubernatorial campaign. Green, a former lieutenant governor, was an unsuccessful candidate in the Democratic primary and has served as a consultant to Martin on legislation.

Jordan also has attacked Martin for allegedly taking credit for education and environmental programs — the Republican governor did not support when they were debated in the legislature.

But Pittman said Jordan appeared

"tense, combative, shrill and negative" during the debate.

"I think both of us did what we wanted to do," Martin said. "His strategy was to spend his time attacking me and he was able to do it ... as if I were the worst guy that ever came around."

"What I wanted to do was, first of all, talk about what we've done for the first four years and then at the end — in my closing statement — talk about what we're going to do the next four years," Martin said. "In between I wanted to do the best I could to show you how I feel or think about issues that would be raised."

"On the roads issue, Jordan elaborated Monday on comments he made during the debate, saying he would seek $5 billion more in state funds for road building through the end of the century if he is elected governor.

He said during stump speeches in southeastern North Carolina and in an interview with The News and Observer of Raleigh that he would recommend a package to the General Assembly next year that included $1 billion in bonds "up front" to purchase land for crucial highway corridors.

The legislature also would be asked to approve another $400 million a year for construction to be underwritten by highway users. Currently, state funds pay for about $380 million of nearly $1 billion spent annually on highways.

"It may take more money from the gasoline tax, it may take more money from licenses and fees," he said later during a speech before Onslow County Democrats. "It may even take a toll road or even a toll bridge."

In an interview, he said he would await recommendations from a legislative study commission before advocating specific revenue sources.

Hatcher Turns In Shooting Report

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Pembroke police said Monday that they investigated a report from Indian activist Eddie Hatcher that someone shot at his mother's house over the weekend, but said they found no evidence of a shooting.

No damage to the dwelling was found during an investigation Sunday by Pembroke police officers, according to Pembroke Police Chief Larry Roberts.

"We sent two officers to check out the place, and they found nothing,"

Roberts said Monday. "If he heard anything, it was probably a firecracker."

Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs, both of Pembroke, were recently acquitted of charges that followed the Feb. 1 takeover of The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton. A U.S. District Court judge dismissed hostage-taking charges against Jacobs and a federal jury acquitted Hatcher of taking 20 people hostage at the newspaper and both of weapons violations.

IN THE STATE

Ground-Breaking

DURHAM (AP) — Glaxo Inc. in the Research Triangle Park held a ground-breaking ceremony Monday for its new $300 million drug research and development complex.

The 1.5 million-square-foot complex is intended to house more than 800 scientists representing a wide range of therapeutic and research disciplines.

The company currently employs 350 to 400 researchers in temporary laboratories throughout the Triangle. It expects to add about 400 others through recruitment efforts worldwide.

The research center will include a research administration building, four laboratories, buildings for pharmaceutical development and drug safety evaluation, and three support buildings. The complex is expected to be completed by late 1991.

Censure

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The state Judicial Standards Commission has recommended that Cumberland County District Court Judge Lacy S. Hair be censured for alleged improper conduct on the bench.

In a recommendation Monday to the state Supreme Court, the commission charged that Hair acted improperly in five incidents between 1981 and 1987. Among the charges are an allegation that Hair offered to help a convicted prostitute with her probation if she would meet him for a "sexual encounter."

The commission charged that Hair's actions violated five sections of the state's code of judicial conduct.

Hair, 62, a District Court judge for 10 years, retired effective Tuesday, but his retirement benefits likely will not be affected if he is censured, said Debbie Carrington, the commission's executive censure.

House Burns

RALEIGH (AP) — Fire gutted a Raleigh town house and caused minor damage to two others, firefighters say.

No one was injured in the blaze Sunday, said fire Capt. C.B. Bunn. Residents of the wood-frame building's four other units evacuated their property when the fire was discovered shortly after 10 a.m.

The town house's owner, Ellen Michele Mosely, smelled smoke and found flames coming out of a utility room when she went to investigate. Firefighters estimated the damage at $105,000. The units on both sides were slightly damaged by water, smoke and fire, Bunn said.

The fire apparently started when ashes removed from the fireplace were stored near combustible materials, said fire investigator R.A. Averette.

Sheriff's Plea

CAMDEN, N.C. (AP) — Former Camden County Sheriff Robert F. Berry received a suspended sentence Monday after pleading no contest to keeping money paid to his department for security work.

Berry, 42, who resigned last month after serving as sheriff for 11 years, entered the plea in Camden County District Court to a misdemeanor charge of failing to deliver money to the proper person or authority. A no contest plea means the defendant does not admit guilt but chooses not to fight the charge, which is handled by the court like a guilty plea.

Judge J. Richard Parker of Manteo gave Berry a six-month sentence, suspended it for two years, and ordered him to pay $5,260 in restitution to the county. There were no witnesses during the brief hearing, and Berry made no statement to the judge.

Arsenic Death

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Lawyers for a High Point furniture executive charged in the arsenic-poisoning death of his wife asked Monday that his murder trial be moved to Durham County because that is where the death occurred.

Rob Coulthard's lawyers also asked that the trial be moved out of Guilford County because of pretrial publicity and community gossip that has made it "a main topic of discussion on the streets and in the homes of High Point residents."

Such publicity, they contend, would prevent Coulthard from receiving a fair trial in Guilford County.

The requests were part of 44 pretrial motions filed in Guilford County Superior Court by lawyers Tom Manning and Joe Cheshire. They were retained last week to represent Coulthard, who could receive the death penalty if convicted of first-degree murder.

Coulthard appeared in court Monday with Manning. He did not speak.

Coulthard was scheduled to be arraigned, but Superior Court Judge William H. Helms of Monroe postponed the arraignment until Nov. 28, to allow prosecutors time to review the motions.

Baby Kidnapping

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point woman pleaded innocent Monday to abducting a 2-day-old baby from High Point Regional Hospital, and was given until Nov. 28 to decide whether she will use an insanity defense.

Brenda Joyce Nobles, through her attorney, Guilford Public Defender Wally Harrelson, waived her formal arraignment hearing Monday in Guilford County Superior Court and entered her innocent plea to the felony charge. She is scheduled to be tried Dec. 12.

Ms. Nobles, 38, is charged with the June 20 abduction of Jason Ray McClure. She faces up to 15 years in prison if convicted. She was released from jail Oct. 7 on a $100,000 bond pending her trial.

NCAB Officers

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Jan Caddell of WSKS-AM in West Jefferson was voted president-elect of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters Monday.

The election came as Jack McCarthy of Voyager Communications of Raleigh succeeded John Greene of Capitol Broadcasting of Raleigh as president of the NCAB.

Weyher Dawson of WFNC-WQSM in Fayetteville was elected vice president for radio, while Cullie Tarleton of WBTV in Charlotte was elected vice president for television.

Wharton Winstead of WRXO-WKRX in Roxboro was elected secretary-treasurer.

Sentenced

RALEIGH (AP) — A former Raleigh Sunday school teacher was sentenced in Wake County Superior Court to life plus 24 years in prison Monday for sexual misconduct with two young boys.

The sentence was the minimum that could be imposed against David Voyles Ellis Jr., 63, who was charged with engaging in a sexual act with one of the boys and taking nude photographs of them both.

Ellis had taught Sunday school at the Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Raleigh until his arrest April 19.

Study Says Summer School Falls Short

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina's elementary students are failing to make enough academic gains in summer school to keep them from slipping farther behind, a state study shows.

"They still are all below average," said William J. Brown, assistant state superintendent for research and testing. Summer school "didn't even keep them from getting farther behind, but it kept them in the game."

The summer school study — as well as test results that show high school students making no gains in algebra but advancing in biology — will be presented to members of the state Board of Education Wednesday.

The study compared the California Achievement Test scores of 400 third and sixth graders just before their entering summer school in 1986 with their scores in the spring of 1987.

The third graders advanced their achievement level by four months, to the equivalent of an average student in the ninth month of second grade.

The sixth graders advanced by nine months, to the equivalent of an average fourth grade student in his eighth month.

Though neither group kept pace with the 10-month gains of average students, according to test results from the CAT, they outdistanced comparison groups that did not attend summer school. The comparison groups, selected from low-achieving third- and sixth-graders in 1984-85 before the state started offering summer school, advanced their grade level by one month over an entire school year.

"The comparison kids are not in the game by the fifth grade," Brown said. "They are just waiting to drop out."

Despite their gains, the students who attended summer school saw their grades in reading, language arts and mathematics slip slightly in the next year.

"These results suggest that teacher grades may not accurately assess student performance, at least as performance was measured by the CAT," said the report by Brown's office.

Barbara Chapman, elementary education specialist for the Department of Public Instruction, said summer schools give students a significant boost that needs to be carried into the regular school year.

The state's summer schools are proving that smaller classes, individual instruction and personal education plans can help students make significant academic strides in school, Ms. Chapman said.

"Teachers have reported to me that they are doing some different kinds of things during summer school program that we would very much encourage them to do throughout the school year," she said.

Bond Set In Slaying Of S.C. Trooper

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DILLON, S.C. — Bond was set at $500,000 for a Latta man who's accused of beating and shooting to death a state trooper who had given him a warning ticket for a defective headlight.

Circuit Judge C. Anthony Harris set the bond during a hearing Monday morning for Warren Douglas Manning, who's charged with murder in the death of Trooper 1st Class George Tillman Radford.

Dillon County Sheriff Harold Grice said Manning, 30, was unable to meet the bond and remained at the Dillon County Jail.

Manning was also charged with kidnapping, armed robbery and driving with a suspended license, authorities said.

Radford stopped Manning at about 11 p.m. Saturday, Grice said. Sunday morning, a passing motorist spotted Radford's patrol car partially submerged in a pond near the Dothan community.

Radford's body, badly beaten and with gunshot wounds to the head and neck, was inside.

Manning was interviewed by authorities at a command post they had set up behind the Dillon County courthouse and was arrested Sunday night, Grice said.

Authorities have not determined the exact time of Radford's death. Patrol Capt. J.C. Garrison said investigators do not know if the slaying occurred in the trooper's car or if Radford was placed back in the car and pushed into the pond after his death.

The preliminary autopsy indicated that Radford was shot with a .25-caliber handgun in his neck and a .38-caliber handgun behind his right ear, State Law Enforcement Division spokesman Hugh Munn said.

Munn said the shot from the .38-caliber gun, which he said was Radford's service revolver, probably killed the trooper.

Both guns were recovered Sunday night at the Dillon home of one of Manning's relatives, Grice said.

Radford is the first state trooper killed in the line of duty since the September 1985 death of Bruce K. Smalls, who was shot in Jasper County.

Radford, a 41-year-old Bennettsville native and the father of a 15-year-old girl, was a decorated Vietnam War veteran who had worked for the patrol since Sept. 24, 1972.

Hospitalized

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Kitty Dukakis, wife of Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, was in a hospital today for observation and tests after complaining of fever and chills, a spokesman said.

The symptoms occurred after Mrs. Dukakis, 51, had dinner Monday night with her staff and Secret Service guards at the St. Paul hotel where she was staying while on a campaign trip for her husband, said Paul Costello, her press secretary.

Mrs. Dukakis was admitted to the University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis shortly before 10 p.m., he said.

Earlier in the day, University of Minnesota Hospital doctors tested her after she admitted herself about 7 a.m. They prescribed antibiotics for a viral infection and she returned to the hotel, where she rested all day, Costello said.

Costello said early today that Mrs. Dukakis's fever, which was 102 degrees Monday night, had gone down. Mrs. Dukakis had been suffering from a sinus infection, Costello said, and had difficulty sleeping Sunday night because of the discomfort.

JFK's Legacy Echoes On Political Trail

By Walter R. Mears
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — In Republican as well as Democratic accents, the name and the policies of John F. Kennedy are echoing in the waning days of the campaign for the White House.

And to hear the Republican ticket tell it, Democrat Michael Dukakis is no Jack Kennedy.

George Bush claims that on such issues as taxes and defense, he has more in common with JFK than Dukakis does.

Dukakis has been invoking the Kennedy political legacy all campaign long.

On Sunday, after shrinking from the liberal label all season, Dukakis declared that he is one, and said Kennedy was, too.

"Yes, I am a liberal in the tradition of Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman and John Kennedy," the Massachusetts governor said.

That's not the Kennedy legacy

Bush cites. "How much the national Democratic Party has changed since the days of John Kennedy," Bush said. "How far it has moved from those policies of lower taxes and a stronger defense."

A Dukakis campaign commercial recalls the narrow 1960 victory that put Kennedy in the White House. "My friends, they won that election by a margin of 112,000 votes out of nearly 70 million cast," he says. "And remember what a difference John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson made in the lives of millions and millions of people."

The Kennedy issue first was unleashed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee and unlikely enforcer of claims on the JFK legacy.

In debate with Sen. Dan Quayle, Bush's running mate, Bentsen dismissed his rival's claim to congressional experience matching Kennedy's with a stinging: "Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

Kennedy's brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, was gentler and kinder to Quayle. Kennedy said that while they disagree on issues, he thinks the Indiana senator was treated unfairly in news accounts that questioned his record and abilities.

Quayle used Bentsen's belittling line Monday to dispute Dukakis' claim to the venerable liberal tradition of Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy.

"I didn't know Jack Kennedy and I didn't serve with Jack Kennedy, but Michael Dukakis is no Jack Kennedy," Quayle told a crowd in Michigan.

When he chose Bentsen as his running mate, Dukakis said he was reassembling a Boston-Austin partnership that would win the White House as Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson did in 1960. He says that was "a strong ticket, one of our best tickets," and that he and Bentsen are out to match it.

Bush has taken to reciting lines from Kennedy speeches, notably on a 1963 tax cut proposal.

In Santa Clara, Calif., last Thursday, Bush said Dukakis' election would mean higher taxes, smothering economic growth, and that it would then become virtually impossible to cut the budget deficit.

"The reason for this was perhaps best explained by a previous Democratic president, none other than John F. Kennedy, back in 1962. 'It is a paradoxical truth that tax rates are too high today and tax revenues are too low, and the soundest way to raise the revenues in the long run is to cut the rates now,'" Bush said quoting the late president.

In Detroit, insisting that his proposal for a reduction in the tax on capital gains would spur the economy and create new jobs, Bush said Kennedy endorsed just such a plan. Dukakis has denounced the Bush proposal as a tax break for the rich.

In Waterbury, Conn., Bush recalled a memorable Kennedy campaign rally shortly before his 1960 victory, when thousands of people waited long into a rainy night to see the young candidate from Boston.

"If we succeed here, then the cause of freedom is strengthened," Kennedy told them.

"It's important to remember how President John F. Kennedy went about strengthening the cause of freedom," Bush said. "He signed one of the most important tax cuts in our history. He rapidly rebuilt America's national defense. And from that position of strength he was able to negotiate a test ban treaty with the Soviets."

Kennedy did not live to sign the tax cut he proposed. President Johnson signed it into law on Feb. 26, 1964.

There's sometimes a Kennedy flavor in Dukakis' campaign speeches, more often in the six weeks or so since Theodore C. Sorensen, Kennedy's friend, aide and speechwriter, began traveling with the Democratic nominee.

Dukakis tells people that "we can do better," promises to "get this country moving again," sometimes speaks of conquering new frontiers.

Republicans Quick To Exploit Dukakis' Liberal Tag

By William M. Welch
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Michael Dukakis has embraced the "L word" after weeks of avoiding it, and Republicans moved swiftly to exploit what they say is a misstep.

"After months of denying he was a liberal, Dukakis conceded that he is one," George Bush's campaign manager Lee Atwater said. "This is worse than a flip-flop. This is a gaffe bigger than putting himself in that tank."

"Miracle of miracles," Bush sarcastically said.

With a week to go and facing long odds, Dukakis on Sunday said: "I'm a liberal, in the tradition of Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman and John Kennedy."

It was a statement some had been urging Dukakis to make, a defense of values as well as a political point of view long associated with Democratic Party successes of old — and Democratic failures of late.

But it was also viewed by Democrats themselves as a high-risk move by a candidate who trails nearly everywhere and has little choice but to roll the dice.

Dukakis spokesman Mark Gearan said Dukakis made no mistake. He was advancing his "I'm on your side" argument, Gearan said, and asserting that it is he and not Bush who is in the tradition of those popular Democratic presidents.

Dukakis had seemed to shy away from the word previously.

In his second debate with Bush, Dukakis quipped: "If I had a dollar, George, for every time you used that label, I'd qualify for one of those tax breaks for the rich that you want to give away."

After one debate statement by Bush, Dukakis told the vice president: "I didn't hear the word 'liberal' or 'left' one time. I thank you for that."

Dukakis has repeatedly asserted that such labels are meaningless and said he has conservative instincts as well. He points to his balanced budgets in Massachusetts as proof.

In his interview on ABC's "Nightline" last week, Dukakis said, "Bush is trying to misuse that label in a way which suggests that I'm somebody who doesn't have a set of values."

Any reluctance to embrace the word "liberal" can be understood with a glance at recent polls, which suggest it's no longer fashionable. Only 15 percent or so of the electorate accept that label to describe themselves — even though many more may take "liberal" positions on specific issues.

A CBS-New York Times poll conducted Oct. 8-10 was typical. It found 17 percent saying they were liberal, 34 percent saying they were conservative, and 43 percent identifying themselves as moderate.

President Reagan, whose eight years in office have seen a growth in voter identification with conservatives, has been hammering Dukakis with the liberal cudgel. In three speeches in Ohio one day recently, he used the word 50 times.

The Republicans have used a handful of assertions to give a negative connotation to liberalism and Dukakis. They depict him as weak on defense, permissive toward crime, likely to raise taxes.

"George Bush succeeded in defining what a liberal is, in the most unflattering light possible," said Mark Mellman, a pollster for Democratic candidates. "Unfortunately to a lot of people right now to be a liberal means to be in favor of furloughs and in favor of higher taxes and so on.

"Those of us who call ourselves liberals, I think, would suggest that has nothing whatever to do with being a liberal and that's very much a distortion of what that ideological perspective is all about," Mellman added.

Dukakis on Sunday offered his own definition. He said liberalism means "standing up for average Americans" — while also balancing budgets and recognizing fiscal constraints.

As a three-term governor of Massachusetts, Dukakis in fact was not known as a liberal. He was a moderate and a reformer in a state with a long liberal tradition.

Liberals there assailed him for not doing enough on welfare, social services and the homeless. As governor, he faced Democratic primary challengers from the left as well as the right.

Former House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., once the leader of liberal Democratic politics, last month disputed Bush's charge that Dukakis was liberal.

"Absolutely not," O'Neill said. "He's progressive."

But Massachusetts politics is not the standard for politics elsewhere, and even Massachusetts liberals acknowledge that.

"Being a centrist in Massachusetts makes him a liberal in general," said Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., who often opposed Dukakis from the left in their own state.

Frank said Dukakis is a liberal in the "broad sense" — that he sees a role for "a vigorous public sector" to help attain social goals.

Atwater suggested Dukakis might have had an easier time of it if he had accepted the liberal label earlier, and then spent time defining it in more favorable terms.

"He's made a tough task for himself — to come in here at the end and try to redefine what liberal means," Atwater said.

Democratic national chairman Paul Kirk said liberalism means "a prudent, positive, practical role for government, helping people." He suggested Dukakis might have moved sooner to defuse the issue.

"I'm one who happens to believe that as soon as the opening pitch is thrown you take a crack at it," Kirk said. "... He might have done it earlier, but it's not too late."

Sears Changing To Discount Pricing In Bid To Lure More Retail Shoppers

By B.H. Lawrence
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Battered by competition and frustrated by a string of unsuccessful efforts to dazzle customers, Sears, Roebuck and Co. has decided to appeal to that thing most important to today's American shopper: the pocketbook.

For Sears, the world's largest retailer, the new strategy — announced Monday as part of a major corporate restructuring — is a bid to recapture the traditional family customers that have drifted away in recent years to more exciting specialty retailers like Toys R Us or Foot Locker.

Sears said it would attempt to win those shoppers back with "everyday low pricing," moving the 825-store chain away from its longtime competition with higher-priced department stores and putting it into the discount arena with the Bradlees, K mart and Walmarts of the world. "This is a very, very major change for Sears," said Monroe Greenstein, securities analyst with Bear, Stearns. "Not only are they going to have to re-educate their employees, they're going to have to re-educate their customers — all of America."

Sears' new approach to pricing, which has been tested for a year in Wichita, Kan., would move the retailer closer to upscale discount chains like Caldor and Bradlees, with frequent sales promotions being replaced by lower regular prices.

Sears Chairman Edward R. Brennan said he believed shoppers are too smart to be fooled by artificial "sales." Besides, he said, frequent sales promotions create inventory and warehousing headaches for stores.

"Retailers have relied increasingly on frequent sales events in recent years," Brennan said. "Our customers have told us that they would prefer outstanding values every day instead of waiting for sales."

Brennan's comments echoed those of other retailers, who believe abuse of sales promotions designed to build traffic have taught customers to wait for the "on-sale" sign before buying. For giant retailers like Sears, that habit has created "unpredictable inventory flows, warehousing needs, excessive price marking and other promotional costs," Brennan said. Because the stores will operate more efficiently under the new plan, cost savings will be passed on to the shoppers every day, Sears executives said.

Sears is planning what executives call the "biggest promotional event in our history" to get word of the pricing strategy to consumers. Sears is not yet saying what items will carry lower price tags, and Sears executives said the quality of the merchandise will not change.

"We're hesitant to give a general percentage of decrease," said Philo Holland, a Sears spokesman. "The decrease could be a penny on some items, $10 on some items, maybe even $100 reduction on some items. But whatever the price, our customers can be assured it's the lowest every day price." The pricing change will go into effect early next year, Holland said.

The discount-pricing gamble is not the first attempt in recent years by Sears to become more appealing to customers — although it is perhaps the most revolutionary. In the past few years it has experimented with new store designs, lines of designer clothing named for celebrities and such in-store services as banks, optical departments and restaurants. While some of these gimmicks have been successful, none has stopped the company's share of the national retail market from eroding.

Man Robs To Save 'Face' With Family

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A man has been sentenced to 12 years in prison after he told a judge he tried to rob nine banks because he didn't want his family to know he was unemployed.

David W. Sampson, 26, of Independence said he concealed his 11 months of unemployment from his wife by leaving home each morning and returning each evening as if he still was working.

He told U.S. District Judge Elmo B. Hunter he turned to bank robbery after he lost his job in spring 1987. Sampson said he usually got about $2,000 to $4,000 from robberies of banks and savings associations in Missouri and Kansas and that he robbed the banks only when he was running out of money and needed funds to make it appear he had been paid on the job.

Sampson said his wife found out about his illegal activities on May 18 when she saw his picture, taken by a bank surveillance camera, on television. He said he surrendered the next day.

Hunter sentenced Sampson to 12 years in prison for two Kansas City area bank robberies in which nearly $11,000 was taken. He also fined Sampson $5,000 and ordered him to pay $7,500 in restitution.

Judge Orders $5 Million Bond For Imelda Marcos

NEW YORK — Wearing a regal gown, former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos was fingerprinted, photographed and ordered to remain here until she can come up with $5 million bail to face a racketeering trial.

"I'm not going to let the lady go back to the Hawaiian Islands until I'm certain the bail is set," U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan said after Mrs. Marcos pleaded innocent at an arraignment Monday.

Mrs. Marcos, who lives in exile in Honolulu with her husband, former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, brushed away tears.

Keenan ordered her to return to court Thursday with her attorneys if the lawyers have not worked out a bail agreement with prosecutors by then.

Mrs. Marcos, 59, was then fingerprinted and had her mug shot taken by federal marshals before being released temporarily without bail. Keenan instructed her not to leave the New York area.

She blew a kiss to a crowd outside the federal courthouse before departing for her midtown Manhattan hotel.

The Marcoses were indicted Oct. 21 on charges they plundered the Philippine treasury of $103 million, spirited the money out of their country and into foreign bank accounts, and used it to buy prime Manhattan real estate and art.

Mrs. Marcos' arrival at the courthouse for her arraignment was dramatic. A seven-car caravan, including two stretch limousines, pulled up to the courthouse.

The waiting crowd was momentarily stunned when the former first lady stepped out of her limo. She wore a bright aquamarine, chiffon gown with traditional Filipino butterfly sleeves and pearl earrings. Mrs. Marcos, who gained notoriety for the thousands of pairs of shoes found in the presidential palace after her husband's ouster in February 1986, wore simple black, high-heeled pumps.

"She doesn't look like she's going to court, she looks like she's going to a dance ball," said Ziyad Barq, a designer who stopped at the courthouse to see what all the fuss was about.

Mrs. Marcos' attorneys originally wanted her released without any bond, but had agreed to a package in which the couple would put up $1.2 million in Philippine pesos and jewelry they brought to Hawaii in 1986.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles LaBella balked, noting that the jewelry is subject to subpoena in a grand jury investigation and that the current Philippine government has laid claim to the Marcoses' Philippine currency.

Restructuring May Head Off Takeover

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, is selling the world's largest building and a real estate unit, shuffling jobs and buying its stock in a move seen by some as a defense against a possible takeover.

Edward A. Brennan, chairman of the 102-year-old company, said the plan is designed to enhance stock value and put its resources on consumer-oriented businesses — retailing, insurance, real estate and financial services.

Brennan said the timing of the announcement may have been affected by the recent wave of takeovers.

"Sears has not been untouched by the rumor and speculation that thrives in these conditions," he said.

"But make no mistake," he added, "this strategy is not solely a reaction to that environment."

The announcement was greeted wearily on Wall Street, as Sears stock slid $1.875 Monday to close at $41.75 on the New York Stock Exchange.

"The market's perception seems to be that they labored mightily and brought forth a mouse," William N. Smith, a retail analyst with Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., told The New York Times.

Sears had been expected to take some action to improve the value of its stock after announcing last week that third-quarter profits fell 16 percent — the third consecutive period Sears' income has declined.

Net income for the quarter was $344.2 million, or 90 cents per share, for the three months that ended Sept. 30, compared with $409 million, or $1.08 a share, for third-quarter 1987.

"This makes a takeover more difficult in the near term. It doesn't make it impossible," said Monroe Greenstein, an analyst with Bear, Stearns & Co. "This will satisfy the pressure (on Sears) for the short term."

The Sears Tower, a stunning black skyscraper that rises 110 stories — 1,450 feet — from the downtown Loop business district, was built in 1974 and has been valued at $1.8 billion.

Besides selling the building, Sears said it would:

- Buy back 10 percent of its stock.
- Sell the commercial real estate division of its Coldwell Banker Real Estate Group, a move that analyst Walter F. Loeb of Morgan Stanley & Co. said would raise $500 million.
- Continue to trim jobs from retail support activities like stockrooms and distribution centers and add people to the sales force.

"Overall, there will be job reductions," said Brennan, whose company employs 526,000 worldwide.

— Adopt "everyday low pricing" at its 825 retail stores, instead of sales.

— Take a one-time, after-tax charge of $425 million in the fourth quarter to cover expenses for new merchandise assortments, liquidation of old merchandise and other organizational changes.

Man Charged In Church Fire

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The pastor of a black church hit twice by arson fires in six months said worshippers could "breathe a little easier" after a young man was arrested in the more recent blaze.

"We're elated. It's hallelujah time," the Rev. Steven Jackson of New Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church of Rock Fork said following the arrest Monday of 19-year-old John Russell Calvin.

Calvin, who was charged with one count of arson, was being held in the Madison County Jail in this southwest Illinois city today on $100,000 bond, Sheriff Bob Churchich said.

Authorities refused to give Calvin's race.

Calvin told authorities he set the church in Godfrey on fire Oct. 19 because he believed it would be used by devil worshippers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported today, citing unidentified sources.

Asked about the report, sheriff's Lt. Richard Beasley said, "First I've heard of that."

So, I took their word for it.

Cmdr. Mariner is the first woman to lead a flight squadron

Women Pilots Test The Limits, Hit Limitations

By Jane Fritsch
LAT-AP NEWS SERVICE

SAN DIEGO — At 35, Cmdr. Rosemary Mariner has spent nearly half her life learning to fly jets, working her way up in the elite society of Navy pilots from whose ranks will emerge future ship captains and admirals.

By all reports, her performance has been stellar, her dedication unquestioned. Self-assured and eloquent, she has been selected by top Navy brass to be the commanding officer of a flight squadron, a position never before held by a woman.

For the female fliers still working their way up in the overwhelmingly male world of Navy aviation, Mariner's rise is at once reassuring and unsettling. She has achieved what only a few years ago seemed impossible, but she is also approaching a limit beyond which women simply cannot go.

"You cannot get there from here," Mariner said. "You cannot, theoretically, reach the top of this profession because you cannot participate in its fundamental business. In the Navy, the world revolves around going to sea. That's what we're all about."

Neither Mariner nor any other woman is permitted to serve a tour

Lt. Gear, a T-39 pilot on medical evacuation and transport missions, disagrees with those who say she may see combat of duty aboard aircraft carriers, the centerpieces of naval defense that serve as floating bases for Top Gun fighter pilots. Technically, a woman can advance to any rank in the Navy — a woman has been selected for promotion to two-star admiral — but the reality of Navy life is that many top officers were jet pilots who worked their way into command of aircraft carriers. Women must find a different path to the top.

"I have never gone on a cruise," Mariner said in a recent interview. "I don't have any night carrier landings. I've been around fleet pilots enough to know how much I don't know."

"I want the opportunity to prove or disprove my ability, just like anyone else, but I have not done what men like my husband do. I haven't paid my dues in carrier aviation like my male peers, and I understand that."

Fiercely loyal to the Navy, Mariner, who is assigned to Lemoore Naval Air Station, plans to remain in the service and take over a shore-based squadron that specializes in electronic warfare training. Under her command will be several hundred enlisted personnel and about 50 officers. Meanwhile, her male counterparts will be earning the flight hours and experience at sea that are a prerequisite for many top Navy jobs.

"I look at the young women entering the program today who are being told that they can't do many things, as I was told I can't do many things," she said, "and there's no doubt in my mind that they may well find themselves leading men and women into combat."

If Mariner's assessment is correct, one of those women may be Lt. Sali Gear, 27, a pilot at North Island Naval Air Station here who trained under Mariner. Gear flies a T-39, which is similar to a small executive jet, and does emergency medical evacuations and transport runs.

She envisions a lifelong career in the Navy, but now thinks that it may be behind a desk somewhere in Washington. It is unrealistic, Gear said, to hope to advance to command of an aircraft carrier.

"It's not happening," Gear said. "You have to punch the right tickets to do that."

Kids Polish Manners At Tiffany's

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Food fights are a faux pas at the elegant tables of Tiffany's, where moppets sip instead of slurp from the finest crystal and china.

"At first, they have looks on their faces like, 'My mother made me do this,'" said Annie Cater, who runs table manners classes for Tiffany & Co. in seven cities. "But by the time the class is over, the little boys are seating everybody at the graduation party and the kids are toasting one another."

In the past two years, Ms. Cater has helped polish the table manners of more than 900 children and adults, including executives concerned about which fork to use at important business lunches. It all started with the kids.

teach my Brownie class some etiquette.' So I got the (Tiffany's etiquette) book, the silver, crystal and china. I had 28 8-year-olds in my face. I almost died," she recalled.

She succeeded, though, and went on to convince Tiffany's that it could market the concept. Now, there are 109 kids, ages 8 to 16, on the waiting list in Houston, and classes are springing up in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco and Costa Mesa, Calif.

"They learn not to shout across the table, to pass the salt over their arm — things they'll remember," said Ms. Cater. "I think it's (successful) because I'm not their mother. There's no peer pressure. I make it very comfortable for them."

"It's just such fun. Children are fascinating," she added.

And unpredictable.

"I was on live TV with a little boy.

I said, 'Jason tell everybody what this is.'"

"He said, 'It's a finger bowl.'"

"I said, 'Do you have those at home?'"

"He said, 'Yes. My father drinks margaritas out of those.'"

Most kids first guess the bowl holds lemonade or soup. But soon, they're dunking their pinkies like pros.

"We do use Tiffany china, crystal and silver," said Ms. Cater. "We've had a couple of things spilled, but nothing broken. I think they know when they come in here that it's special and precious. Once they hold it, they're going to like it."

After learning the basics in a class of 12 during two hour-long sessions at the store, the students dress up for a graduation meal at a hotel.

Afterward, Ms. Cater often gets thank-you notes. One boy wrote:

McNeese-Davis Duo United In Marriage

Bonita Carole Davis and Henry Calvin McNeese of Greenville were married Saturday in the First Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Ronnie V. Hobgood performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joshua Herbert Coltrain of Williamston and the late Mr. Coltrain. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Henry McNeese of Siler City.

The bride was presented in marriage by her son, Christopher McLean Davis. She wore an antique chiffon floor-length gown accented with re-embroidered alencon and silk Venise lace with seed pearls. The fitted bodice had a basque waist and sweetheart neckline. Her headpiece was a Camelot cap with a short illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Honor attendants were her sisters, Linda Thomas of Greenville and Minnie Hoggard of Windsor. Bridal attendants were Robbin Blake of Ozark, Ala., niece of the bride, Carolyn Jordan of Windsor, and sisters of the bridegroom, Janet Faulk of Southern Pines and Margie Rogers of Siler City.

Each wore identical paper-white dresses accented with antique satin and carried a single-long stemmed white rose.

Flower girls were Debra Glyn Coltrain of Virginia Beach and Elizabeth Thomas of Greenville, nieces of the bride. Ring bearer was Justin Thomas of Greenville, nephew of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsmen were Larry Edwin Coltrain of Williamston, brother of the bride, L.D. Thomas of Greenville, Michael McNeese, brother of the bridegroom, Richard Henderson and Danny Oldham, cousins of the bridegroom, all of Siler City.

Organist Mitzi Hobgood and soloist Bryant Hines, both of Greenville, presented music. Betty Jean Coltrain of Williamston directed the wedding.

Avis Coltrain presided at the guest register. Programs were given out by Tonya Coltrain, niece of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Linda Thomas, in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Hardbarger's Business School in Raleigh and is employed at the East Carolina University School of Medicine. The bridegroom is a graduate of Louisburg College and is employed as manager of Tri County Homes in Chocowinity.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

Pre-nuptial parties given for the couple included a champagne wedding brunch, after-rehearsal buffet, several dinners, miscellaneous showers and, for the bride, a lingerie shower.

Mom Needs To Get Counseling

Dear Abby: As I was leaving the second floor of a major department store yesterday, I saw a little boy around 3 or 4 years old screaming hysterically as he ran blindly and all alone across the floor and onto the escalator right behind me.

Halfway down the escalator, he was still alone and screaming. His little face was contorted and purple. That was bad enough, but a woman ahead of me — all the way down at the bottom of the escalator — turned around and yelled, "No, I don't want you! You're a bad boy!"

Abby, I am a mother, too. I can't begin to describe how much I hurt for that boy. I might have given him a tongue lashing, or threatened to spank him, but never would I say, "I don't want you," and I surely would never have taken my eyes off that kid in a large department store, never mind turning my back and leaving him!

Later I was sorry I didn't give that woman a royal blasting. What would you have done? — Human, Too, In Boston

Dear Human: I would not have given her a "royal blasting" — that would only embarrass and humiliate

Dear Abby

her, and she'd probably take it out on the child at home.

I would have approached inconspicuously and quietly told her that I knew she was upset ("I'm a mother, too, I know how you feel"), then suggested that she seek counseling to help her with the difficult job of parenting.

Of course, you would risk being told in no uncertain terms to mind your own business. But it would be a small price to pay if it would cause an out-of-control mother to seek the help she needs.

Dear Abby: A while back someone wrote to you complaining because she got too much attention while shopping in a department store. (She said she wanted to just "look" without having a salesperson pounce on her and stick to her like glue.)

Abby, what planet does this person live on? The last time a salesperson "stuck to me like glue" was 20 years ago. If I'm lucky enough to find someone to wait on me, I stick to her (or him) like glue!

Last winter I was looking for a flannel shirt, and when I asked the salesperson, she asked me what "flannel" was!

Last month, my favorite department store eliminated two cashiers' counters, and one woman was frantically trying to help the line of customers waiting.

So, dear "Too Much Attention," the next time a salesperson sticks to you, give 'em a big kiss for me and count your blessings. — Margaret Morrison, Los Angeles

Dear Margaret: I'm glad you wrote. In response to that letter, I suggested that the salesperson approach the customer who appeared to be looking, and say, "Take your time, and if you find something you want, let me know — my name is Maggie."

Well, management in retail instruct their salespeople never to turn their backs on a customer who appears interested in any piece of merchandise he or she can touch. The millions of dollars worth of merchandise shoplifters steal would blow your mind!

I was also informed that if a store manager saw a salesperson ignore a "shopper" who was handling merchandise, that salesperson would be in for a reprimand.

High-Fashion Guccis Tangle In Family Feud

By Mary Beth Sheridan
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FLORENCE, Italy — Aldo went to jail. Maurizio became a fugitive. Paolo claimed his relatives beat him.

The Guccis, creators of some of fashion's best-known status symbols, have known constant trouble as a result of family feuds.

Now, there are signs that peace is returning to the luxury goods company. But as a result of the turmoil, the company held tightly by generations of male Guccis now is half-owned by Arabs, run by a team of MBAs and headed by a woman.

The woman is Maria Martellini, a 48-year-old former professor of economics at Milan's Bocconi school, one of Italy's leading business institutions.

"Of the Guccis, only ashes remain," laments Giorgio Gucci, the firm's honorary president.

Gucci was one of the pioneers of the international Italian fashion boom, combining centuries-old Florentine artisanship with modern snob appeal.

That recipe won it a following among such stylesetters as actress Audrey Hepburn, Princess Grace of Monaco and Jacqueline Onassis.

Money has been no object to customers who have snapped up everything from a $11 bar of soap to a $50,000 hand-sewn alligator trunk.

"The people in the market want Gucci," notes Enrico Cucchiani, the company's managing director. "Unfortunately, there's this Gucci 'Dynasty' side to the story."

The company was founded in 1922 by Guccio Gucci, a leather goods salesman who emphasized Florentine quality and tight family control of the business.

It was with some reluctance that he watched his son Aldo expand overseas — a drive that has resulted in 180 stores and about 82 percent of the parent company's sales today.

Aldo nonetheless maintained many of his father's principles, bringing his sons Giorgio, Paolo and Roberto and his nephew Maurizio into the executive ranks.

The well-heeled Gucci image suffered its first jolt when Paolo proposed more inexpensive products and licensing and his relatives opposed the plans.

The disagreement exploded into an argument at a 1982 board meeting and, according to a suit filed by Paolo, his relatives smashed a tape recorder over his head.

They denied the charge and the case was eventually dismissed.

In a subsequent lawsuit by Paolo, charging that his family had blocked his efforts to trade under his own name, produced documents alleging that his father, 81-year-old Aldo, evaded taxes in the United States. The suit was dismissed, but the U.S. Internal Revenue Service picked up on the documents and in January 1986, Aldo pleaded guilty to tax evasion charges in a federal court in New York City. He was sentenced to a year in prison but was allowed to serve part of his sentence at a halfway house in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Gucci relatives were aghast at the war threatening to tear apart the family and the firm it had built.

"The company was a part of my life," says Giorgio, Paolo's older brother. "I had always smelled the perfume of leather, had always watched my grandfather in the shop in Florence, working with so much energy."

In 1984, Maurizio used his 50 percent of the company to seize control and oust Aldo. The young, bespectacled Maurizio brought in a new team of managers.

The new managers, however, insist the company will continue to reflect the vision of Guccio Gucci.

"There is a tremendous strength that goes beyond the fights and feuds," says Cucchiani. "The strength is the consumer who wants this brand."

Statue Of Justice Is Her Role Model

I'd like to talk to you about this country's symbol of justice.

To be honest with you, I never really looked at her statue perched atop the Montgomery County courthouse back in Ohio until one day when I was in my 30s. As I came out of the courthouse one afternoon after buying a dog license, I glanced up at her and my heart skipped a beat.

Here was a woman wearing a caftan, sporting upper arms that could fan Brazil, and looking like she had eaten every pigeon that came within arm's length. I figured her for about 40.

At that moment, the statue of justice became my role model.

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

I began to fantasize about how great it would be when I reached her age. I would ride in on my longevity wearing a blindfold when I was near a scale I didn't want to see.

However, something happened to me on the way to 40 and 50. Linda Evans came along. So did Joan Collins and Linda Gray, older women who defied the very fiber of justice, not to mention gravity.

Oh, I didn't mind the mother-daughter hand comparison tests where you tried to guess who had done the most dishes, or the Oil of Olay ads where the ages on their T-shirts were the same as my thigh measurements. But when I saw a rear view of Raquel Welch at age 41 in a swimsuit on the cover of Life magazine, I quit lying to myself.

There is no justice hovering over courthouses or the Supreme Court or anywhere else. She's a myth, like her twin sister, the Statue of Liberty. Here's a woman wearing the same nightgown, with a 35-foot waist, a 3-foot mouth, and an arm that holds seven tourists on a curved stairway. When was the last time you met a Miss America with those measurements?

The Statue of Liberty — mother of exiles. They got that part right!

I paid a visit to my original role model a couple of weeks ago. She is still there on top of the Montgomery County courthouse, holding the scale and beckoning me to follow in her righteous footsteps. As I stood there, I felt a splatter on my cheek from a pigeon. I wasn't surprised.

I think they're right about women. We're our own worst enemies.

Powder Returns

NEW YORK (AP) — Antique powder boxes could become all the rage now that loose powder is back in vogue. But forget the puffs.

The new translucent powders should be applied with a big, soft brush, according to Kathleen Walas, national beauty director at Avon.

"Dip brush into powder, tap off excess," she says. "Brush lightly over the entire face; dust off excess in a downward and outward motion."

Correction

An engagement announcement in Thursday's edition of The Daily Reflector incorrectly identified Mr. and Mrs. Hardie McMillon Sr. as former Greenville residents. Alvin Ray Atkinson, the groom-to-be is a former resident of the area.

Counting finances from the two previous years, Jordan altogether has raised $4,632,643, including the loan. He has spent $4,473,262.

"We're going to come in somewhere between $4.8 million and $5 million," said Randy Johnson, finance director of the Jordan campaign. He voiced pleasure and surprise that Martin had not raised more. "I thought they'd be way ahead of us."

Meanwhile, Democratic lieutenant gubernatorial nominee Tony Rand has raised more than $1.8 million, while Republican nominee Jim Gardner has topped $1 million.

Rand reported raising $957,144.24 in the latest period and spending $985,032.95. The campaign has another $330,000 in bank certificates.

Earlier, Rand raised $847,702.19 and spent $792,687.43. His totals include $1,804,846.43 raised and $1,777,720.38 spent. Rand has loaned his campaign $11,697.40.

"It is continuing to come in pretty well," said spokeswoman Stephanie Bass. "We've been gratified at the response across the board, including backers of our primary opponents."

Gardner reported $758,623.23 in contributions and $768,120.46 in expenditures between April and October. Earlier, Gardner raised $302,202.56 and spent $271,645.85. Altogether, he has raised $1,060,825.79 and spent $1,039,766.31.

He borrowed $50,000 before the May 3 primary and has repaid $25,000, according to campaign manager Paul Richardson.

"Obviously no one reaches their goals, but we feel real good ... considering the Martin campaign is like a vacuum cleaner," Richardson

 James Earl Manning, 24, of Route 2, Box 174, Grimesland, was also charged with conspiracy to commit murder, but he pleaded guilty Sept. 12 to several charges, including second-degree murder and aiding and abetting solicitation to commit murder.

Manning is being held in an undisclosed location in the custody of the Department of Corrections. Haigwood said Manning pleaded guilty as part of a plea arrangement in exchange for his testimony, and he will not be sentenced until after Mrs. White and Mobley stand trial.

He could face up to life plus 20 years.

 Without bothering to hear arguments in the case of Pennsylvania vs. Bruder, 88-161, the Supreme Court ruled for the state and the police officer. The Miranda rule was intended to apply to suspects undergoing "a prolonged station house interrogation," not to "persons temporarily detained" to answer a few questions, the court said.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented, saying that Bruder was in the control of the police when ordered out of his car.

Baker's Resignation Came Reluctantly

Lack Of Commitment From Administration Brought About Baker's Announcement

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Art Baker let it be known that he really didn't want to step down when he announced that he would resign at the end of the 1988 football season. But he also acknowledged that without a commitment from the East Carolina athletic department, that it was fruitless to continue.

"My only regret," Baker said, "was in not asking for six years (on his contract) instead of four years." Baker said last week that he now realized that the job he thought would take four years to accomplish would take five or six years.

And he said Monday that he thought the program was about to turn the corner, thanks to a lessening in schedule and the return of a number of players.

Baker said that he and Athletic Director Dave Hart met Sunday night in Baker's office. The decision was made at that time. "My contract ends in January of 1989 and in my conversations (with ECU officials), I have received no assurances that my contract will be renewed," Baker said. He added that he and Hart agreed on announcing the resignation on Monday at Baker's weekly press conference.

Baker said he would have liked to have had another year as head coach, but "winning is the bottom line."

There were three reasons for his resignation, Baker said, to allow his staff the opportunity to begin searching for new jobs; to "clear the air" in the presence of many rumors about his future at East Carolina; and to allow Hart to begin the search for a new head coach.

Asked if he would recommend any of his present assistants for the job, Baker said that he felt he had an outstanding group of aides, but that he would not recommend any one of them over another.

Hart announced that he was appointing Baker to a newly created post in the athletic program, that of director of the Personal Development Program. Baker said that he was excited about the new position, but would not close the door to other opportunities which might arise.

Rumors, unconfirmed, popped up that both Bobby Bowden of Florida State and Dick Sheridan of N.C. State, had told Baker they would welcome him to their staffs. Also rumored was a report that King Dixon, the newly appointed athletic director at South Carolina, was considering Baker for an assistant's job on his staff. Baker had been considered a top candidate for the AD job at South Carolina when Dick Bestwick got the job six months ago. Bestwick resigned recently for health reasons.

The new program at East Carolina is one Hart has been seeking to implement since he became athletic director last year. Such a program would seek, as its aim, to make sure that each student-athlete going through the ECU program would be given the tools to be a success when his education is completed.

"Success by our teams is not measured solely by the numbers our teams put on the scoreboard, but more by the quality of the student-athletes we educate," Hart said.

"We work to develop that all-around person who contributes to society in a positive manner, rather than becoming a burden to society."

The program, Hart said, would seek to help the athletes through guidance related to specific educational needs; assistance in the development of a system of values emphasizing goal setting and attainment; and information related to the development and enhancement of overall social and communication skills.

Each student-athletes will be carefully tests, evaluated and given

Lalonde Ready To End Journey

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Donny Lalonde left home at 15. By then the beatings by his stepfather had been going on for four years.

To finance his voyage into the world, Lalonde stole $5 from a sister's piggy bank.

Monday night, Donny Lalonde will make about $5 million for fighting Sugar Ray Leonard.

It's been a 13-year journey from battered child to millionaire. On the way he has become a double champion — the World Boxing Council light heavyweight champion and a champion for the cause of abused children.

The 28-year-old bachelor began the Donny Lalonde Child Abuse Foundation in his native Canada, which distributes funds to various child abuse organizations.

He also is a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"The trouble is, many people who have gone through it are too embarrassed or ashamed to discuss it," Lalonde said of child abuse.

"I figure that if I can talk about it as a world champion, maybe it will encourage other people to do the same."

A question Lalonde often is asked is, why would a battered child turn to boxing?

"Two reasons, I think," he said. "First as a child, I had a very negative sense of self-worth. I wanted to prove I was tough, that I could take it. But I also wanted pain. I was so insecure that when I'd get hit, I'd flash back to the beatings by my stepfather, which, maybe, for awhile, I subconsciously thought I deserved."

Pain has long been Lalonde's companion.

In 1980 and 1982, he had surgery on his left shoulder, which he first separated while playing hockey, and he has a pin in the shoulder.

He also broke his right hand in 1981 and 1985 and has had an assortment of other injuries.

Coaches, Players Stand By Coach

Baker's Expected Resignation Still Surprises Some

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

For East Carolina University's football players and assistant coaches, the inevitable resignation of head coach Art Baker was like a time bomb waiting to explode.

Everyone knew it was going to happen, and everyone thought they were braced for it. But when the announcement came Monday, a state of shock set in.

"It's like sitting in the hospital with a relative you know is about to die," offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride said. "You think you're ready for it, then all of a sudden it happens. Then you've got to deal with the shock of the actual occurrence. That's kind of the mood we're all in now."

Reaction was the same throughout the team Monday as players were told of the resignation by Baker in a Monday afternoon team meeting.

"I hate to see the man that brought me in leave," said junior defensive end Mike Applewhite, who transferred to ECU from North Carolina in 1986. "I came to East Carolina because I believed in Art Baker and in his philosophy. I can't hardly breathe now I'm so disappointed. He's done so many things for this football program; that the public will never know about."

"For example, when I first got here we had sorry practices and the attitudes were bad. He worked to bring in assistant coaches that really cared about the program and wanted to see it grow."

"The way he went about resigning lets you know how much he cares," senior wingback Jarrod Moody said. "He knew what his situation was and I think he did the best for everybody concerned. He wanted to get the pressure off of us (players) early in the week so we could concentrate on our game against Temple Saturday and he wanted to give his assistants a chance to get a head start on looking for a new job."

The question left unanswered in the minds of the players and assistant coaches was whose fault was the resignation.

"Who's to blame?" Moody said. "With the schedule he had to compete against, nobody could have done any better."

"What he (Baker) did with what he had to work with at the time is a tribute," assistant head coach Don Powers said. "He developed class, courage and valor among the players. He brought together a staff of coaches that had many plusses. I've never seen a group of coaches that had more care and concern for the people they are working with."

"Just maintaining his staff was a tribute," Powers said. "It's easy to maintain a staff at Oklahoma where they pay $85,000-$90,000 a year or at Florida State where Bobby Bowden has long-term contracts."

"I think the university has made one of the biggest mistakes they'll ever make," said one player who asked not to be identified. "The chemistry between the coaches and players can't be

Dickerson Leads Colts Past Broncos

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Eric Dickerson celebrated his anniversary with the Indianapolis Colts, and the NFL's leading rusher provided the treats.

Performing before a record Hoosier Dome crowd of 60,628, Dickerson scored a career-high four touchdowns and rushed for 159 yards, going over 1,000 yards for an NFL record-tying sixth consecutive season despite carrying the ball only three times in the second half.

Indianapolis was ahead 45-10 at halftime en route to a 55-23 triumph in the first Monday night football game played in Indianapolis. Dickerson did all his scoring in the first half on runs of 12, 11, 1 and 41 yards, sparking Indianapolis to a 31-0 lead.

Dickerson and Coach Ron Meyer, who was reunited with the running back he coached at Southern Methodist on Halloween Night last year in a blockbuster three-team trade that brought him from the Los Angeles Rams, talked about his play at halftime.

"He asked me if I wanted to play more," Dickerson said. "I said I can sit out and let Albert (Bentley) play. I don't like to run scores up on people. We have to play another game this week (Sunday against the visiting New York Jets). It was no big deal."

"I felt I had a chance to run for 200 yards, but it may come another day."

The Colts totaled 244 yards on the ground against the worst rushing defense in the league.

"The offensive line did play a marvelous game," Meyer said. "I think it's noteworthy that for the third game in a row we allowed no sacks. As for Eric, he is just special."

"We could do nothing to stop Dickerson. He was outstanding," said Denver coach Dan Reeves after the two-time defending AFC champions fell to 4-5, the same record Indianapolis has in defense of its AFC Eastern Division title.

The Colts scored on seven of their nine first-half possessions, forced four fumbles, sacked Denver quarterback John Elway three times and didn't let Denver cross midfield until its seventh possession, five minutes into the second quarter.

By then, Indianapolis had its 31-0 lead on Dickerson's four touchdowns and the first of two field goals by Dean Biasucci. The Colts built the margin to 45-10 at halftime, breaking the franchise's record of 42 points in a half and falling only four points short of the NFL mark set by Chicago against Philadelphia in 1941 and matched by Green Bay in 1983 against Tampa Bay.

"Our defense really played well early in the ball game to create the turnovers, and the offense executed to take advantage of those turnovers," Meyer said.

Meyer also used the wishbone formation, with Dickerson, Bentley and George Wonsley lining up as running backs behind backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom, for the second consecutive week. Hogeboom, who replaced starter Chris Chandler whenever the Colts went to the wishbone, threw a 53-yard touchdown pass to Bill Brooks in the second quarter.

"The offensive mix was good, the combination of Chandler and Hogeboom in the game and the use of the wishbone," Meyer said.

"It gives the defense a different look," Dickerson said of the formation.

Rose's Rebound Keys Season

Rampant Soccer Team Prepares For Playoffs

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It was a season that didn't start out all that great, but Rose High turned it around and came back to win its fifth-straight Big East Conference soccer title.

And with the regular season out of the way, first-year Rose coach Charlie Harvey leads his team into the first round of the playoffs against Wilmington New Hannover Wednesday.

The Rampants, 13-5, are riding a seven-game winning streak that includes a 2-1 win over Northeastern Oct. 27 that clinched the conference.

"Obviously there was a pretty good deal of pressure," Harvey said. "They had a four year streak of conference championships. My main emphasis was just teach basics and go with it and let it fall where it fell."

"We only had four returning starters from last year. It was definitely a challenge for me and the team. It was a tricky year."

Especially at first.

Rose started out 0-3, but two of those losses were to traditionally strong Raleigh Millbrook (5-0) and Jacksonville (7-0). The defeat that hurt, though, was a 1-0 decision to New Bern.

"After the first two games I made some changes in the lineup," Harvey said. "I took David Leisten off the back line and stuck him on the front line. I put Jason Bizarro at stopper. John Bolen was a midfielder and I put him on defense. Pat Joyner was on defense and I put him in midfield. Those were the key changes. From that point on, we were able to stabilize."

Harvey said the teams' first game against Northeastern Oct. 10 was perhaps the biggest indication of the turnaround. At the time, Rose was 6-5 overall and 5-2 in the conference.

"The game that showed us we could win conference was the first Northeastern matchup," Harvey said. "They were undefeated at that point. So they had the number one spot. We outshot them and beat them 6-0."

"It was that game that showed them they could get ready mentally to play anybody. From that point on we've been doing well."

But it was the early season changes that got Rose's offense going. The personnel moves spread the offensive burden around to a number of players and in effect took some of the pressure.

"I got a little fired up because where I was seeing frustration build was when we got the ball," he said. "There was no transition from defense to offense. So I changed things around."

"They handled it well and really came together as a team, not just the starters, but the supporting crew and the bench."

Leisten leads the team with 12 goals and six assists. Marty Measmer has eight goals and four assists. Patrick Joyner has six goals and eight assists. Jason Bizarro has nine goals and two assists.

But on the other end of the field, Harvey said one player set the tone for the team's defense.

"To me a key player in a lot of our games has been John Bolen," he said. "He plays in the defense and has 10 assists and two goals. Defensively he doesn't let anybody by him."

Michael Jordan will be pictured on a Wheaties box soon

Jordan Is On Wheaties Box

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Soon you'll be able to gaze at Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan at your breakfast table.

General Mills Inc. announced Monday that Jordan will be pictured on the front of packages of Wheaties, a breakfast cereal marketed as "The Breakfast of Champions."

Jim Nuckols, a General Mills product manager, called Jordan "a man of real character and integrity," fitting for the positive image the product tries to promote.

"He truly is a champion in every sense of the word," Nuckols said at a news conference.

"I'm very happy to be part of the Wheaties organization," said Jordan, clad in his No. 23 Bulls jersey and black sweat pants. "A lot of people would love to be in my shoes."

While Jordan said Monday's honor was "up there" with being chosen as pro basketball's Most Valuable Player last season, he admitted that as a child he hadn't even heard of the cereal.

"We had a big family," said the 25-year-old North Carolina native. "We used to eat wheat puffs — remember those in the big bags that could last ... through five or six kids? That's what we had."

Terms of the Wheaties agreement were not disclosed by Jordan or General Mills. But they did disclose that Jordan's picture would be printed on at least 12 million boxes of the cereal.

Daughtry Wins Football Contest

Janice Daughtry of 2007 Elizabeth St., Tarboro, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest. Daughtry correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed in last week's contest. Her victory came on the basis of her point total guess, however. Daughtry's guess of 83 was closest to the actual total of 87 scored in Alabama's 53-34 win over Mississippi State. The win was Daughtry's second of the year. Second place went to Charles Coburn of P.O. Box 550, Grifton. Coburn also had 26 games correctly picked, but was further off in his point total guess with 82. Two other people also had 26 games right but were further off in their point total guesses. They were Jason Clark of Rt. 6, Box 189, Greenville, with a guess of 81, and Paula Braxton of 3027 Adams Blvd., No. 12, Greenville, with 75. The two tie games were counted as wrong for those listing a team since it is possible to pick a tie. The final contest in this year's series appears in today's edition of The Daily Reflector.

Kansas To Announce NCAA Decision

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The University of Kansas called a news conference for 9 a.m. CST today and was expected to announce the NCAA decision regarding allegations against the Jayhawks' national championship basketball program. Sources said the result of the lengthy probe would be announced during the news conference at the school's athletic center. No other details were available. Kansas beat Oklahoma 83-79 in Kansas City last spring for a national title. On June 20, the NCAA informed the school that it was probing 14 allegations of violations, most of them between June 1986 and April 1987. The charges all had to do with recruiting and most involved illegal "extra benefits." Kansas officials spent all day Sept. 30 in a closed-door meeting with the Infractions Committee. The Jayhawks are the fourth-winningest basketball program in NCAA history. The violations would have occurred while Larry Brown was head coach. Brown resigned shortly after winning the national title to accept a lucrative offer from the NBA's San Antonio Spurs. Brown and several of his former assistant coaches at Kansas appeared before the committee along with other Kansas officials. The Kansas football program was served a two-year probation in 1983-85 for numerous violations.

L.A.'s Griffin Files For Free Agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Alfredo Griffin, the shortstop of the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers, was among 11 players who filed for free agency on Monday, raising the total to 50, the Major League Baseball Players Association said. Griffin batted .199 this season with one home run and 27 runs batted in. He hit .160 with three RBI in the National League playoffs and .188 in the World Series. Griffin is a career .256 hitter in 10 major-league seasons. He drove in a career-high 60 runs for Oakland in 1987. Pitchers filing on Monday were Charlie Lea and Dan Schatzeder of the Minnesota Twins, Mike Flanagan of the Toronto Blue Jays, Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros, Lary Sorenson of the San Francisco Giants and Odell Jones of the Milwaukee Brewers. Others filing were designated hitter Darrell Evans of the Detroit Tigers, third baseman Jim Morrison of the Atlanta Braves, catcher Alex Trevino of the Houston Astros and outfielder Greg Gross of the Philadelphia Phillies. Eligible players have until Friday to file.

Howell, D'Amico Garner ACC Honors

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — John Howell of Duke and Matt D'Amico, linebackers who turned in outstanding performances as their teams claimed conference victories, have been named defensive players of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Howell, a 6-foot-2, 236-pound junior, was in on 14 tackles, had two quarterback hurries and caused a fumble as the Blue Devils defeated Georgia Tech 31-21. With the victory, Duke, 6-2, clinched its first winning season since 1982. D'Amico, a 6-foot-2, 235-pound senior, was in on seven tackles as the Terrapins defeated North Carolina 41-38. His interception with 41 seconds left to play set up Dan Plocki's game-winning 41-yard field goal and enabled the Terrapins to move into a three-way tie for first place in the ACC. Earlier, Maryland quarterback Neil O'Donnell and Clemson center Jeff Bak were named offensive players of the week in the ACC. O'Donnell, a 6-foot-3, 221-pound junior from Madison, N.J., completed 17 of 28 passes for a season-high 259 yards and three touchdowns in Maryland's 41-38 come-from-behind victory over North Carolina. O'Donnell also ran for 18 yards on four carries as Maryland moved into a three-way tie for the ACC lead at 4-1 with Clemson and North Carolina State. Bak, a 6-2, 265-pound senior from Darien, Conn., anchored the offensive line in the 15th-ranked Tigers' 38-21 victory over Wake Forest. Bak graded out at 87 percent on game films and his blocking was a key as Clemson rolled up 349 yards rushing. The selections were made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Pack Can't Worry About A Bowl Bid Yet

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State coach Dick Sheridan says the Wolfpack must keep a focus on the game at hand, not on whether they will be going to a bowl game. The Wolfpack, 6-2 and tied with Maryland and Clemson for the Atlantic Coast Conference lead at 4-1, has lost its last two games to Virginia. "And they're stronger this season," Sheridan said Monday at his weekly news conference. "They've lost three games by a total of nine points. That's how close they are to having a great record." The Cavaliers, though a two-point underdog against N.C. State, have won consecutive games over Wake Forest and Virginia Tech since slipping to a disappointing 2-4 record at midseason. Much of the improvement can be traced to the emergence of sophomore quarterback Shawn Moore as a dual threat as a runner and a passer. "He's just an excellent athlete," Sheridan said. "There are no easy solutions for stopping or containing him." Saturday's 23-7 loss to South Carolina last Saturday dimmed the Wolfpack's hopes of landing the host berth for the Jan. 2 Citrus Bowl. But All-American Bowl director Bill Oakley said Monday that N.C. State is high on the Birmingham, Ala., game list. "We see State as a very attractive team," Oakley said. "They could fit into our plans from either side — as a potential 'host' team or as a 'visitor' against a team from the Southeastern Conference area." Oakley said the All-American, scheduled for Dec. 29 at 8 p.m. Eastern time, would scout N.C. State's game at Virginia Saturday.

Spurrier Wants More Than Six Wins

DURHAM (AP) — Duke is assured of its first winning season in six years, but Blue Devil coach Steve Spurrier is aiming higher for the rest of the season. "We want to win more than six," Spurrier said Monday at his weekly press conference. Duke is 6-2 following a 31-21 win at Georgia Tech Saturday, a victory that evened its ACC record to 2-2. Not since 1962, when the Blue Devils were 8-2 under Bill Murray, have they won more than six games in a season. Duke hasn't earned a trip to a post-season bowl since 1960. Scouts from the Peach and All-American bowls will be on hand to see Duke Saturday when the Blue Devils host Wake Forest. "I think we've got a renewed spirit around here," he said. "We realize we weren't playing with as much emotion."

Cowboys Are Aware Of Chances

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

STILLWATER, Okla. — Oklahoma State coach Pat Jones knows his 12th-ranked football team has a legitimate chance to knock off No. 8 Oklahoma when the teams meet this week. However, Jones says, that doesn't mean the talent level at the schools is the same. "I think they've got us outmanned," Jones said Monday. "We're in the ballpark with them, but their 95 are better than our 95. From a manpower standpoint, I don't think it's an even matchup. I don't think it ever has been." What gives Oklahoma State the most hope this year is its offense. The Cowboys lead the nation in scoring and are sixth nationally with an average of 491 yards per game. Barry Sanders' 210 yards rushing is the heart of the ground game, and quarterback Mike Gundy has completed 65 percent of his passes for about 210 yards per game. Oklahoma, meanwhile, isn't as strong defensively as it has been in recent years. The Sooners are giving up 300 yards per game, 193 of that through the air. "We've got to be able to rush the ball. There's no doubt about it," Gundy said. "People say Miami gives Oklahoma trouble because they throw so well, but when you look, Miami gets a lot of yards rushing. But we've got to be able to attack them with balanced running and passing." Oklahoma State's glaring weakness is its defense. The Cowboys gave up nearly 500 yards to winless Kansas State on Saturday, and for the year they are allowing an average of 445 yards per game. Oklahoma has stumbled a bit on offense lately, but is always explosive. "It's not any great revelation that people are moving the ball on us," Jones said. Then, he pointed out a window toward the field and said, "If we go out and stand around like we did this week, they'll run down that ramp and out to the street every time they get the ball." Oklahoma State comes into the game with a 6-1 record, 3-1 in the Big Eight, while Oklahoma is 7-1 and 4-0. This game will go a long way toward deciding who wins the league title.

"We're into a one-game elimination as far as the Big Eight race is concerned," Jones said. "I've been telling them that since we lost to Nebraska." Jones praised the Oklahoma coaching staff, which has had to play musical chairs at several positions due to injuries. "They are doing one of the better coaching jobs they have done in recent history," he said. "With all the injuries they have had ... to keep that continuity speaks very well for their coaches." "Offensively, even with all the injuries, they're still one of the top rushing teams in the country. I have to give them credit. Defensively, they have sustained themselves as far as getting better as the season progresses."

Green Looking For Fun In New Job

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — George M. Steinbrenner III runs the New York Yankees in a style that matches the numerals at the end of the owner's name: "I, I, I." This view of baseball does not coincide with that of his new manager, Dallas Green. "I had a slogan in Philadelphia, 'We, not I,'" Green said Monday. "I think that's the way it should be done." As Green said Monday, "We're gonna have a lot of fun." George Dallas Green Jr., the 17th manager in the reign of Steinbrenner, was introduced to New York on Monday. He has the reputation of a tough guy and sounded like it. "I'm coming in here as a new guy because everybody who was supposed to know about these guys didn't get the job done," he said. Green is the first Yankees manager to join the organization from the outside since Billy Martin came to New York in 1975 for Billy I. And Green has his views on how things should be done. "I really believe in some disciplines that are really necessary to bring a team together," he said. Talk like that is what convinced Steinbrenner to bring Green to Yankee Stadium. But Steinbrenner also is not known as a supporter of pluralism. After all, there have been 11 general managers, 17 managers, 30 pitching coaches and nine spokesmen since he purchased the team on Jan. 3, 1973. He banishes all who disagree with his decrees.

"I think the understanding George and I have is that we're men and we're going to talk together as men," Green said. "We recognize there's going to be difficult times along the line." A difficult time in Yankee Stadium is any period in which the home team is not in first place — comfortably. When the Yankees fall behind, Steinbrenner makes suggestions. "I'm confident I can handle those kinds of confrontations," Green said. "I think the respect factor — I respect him and, I think, right now he respects me." Steinbrenner and Green have much in common, from their desire to be in first place to their tempers. "I don't think George Steinbrenner's worse than anybody else in baseball, and he's better than most of them," Green said. "I want to win today. I want to win tomorrow. I want to win next week and certainly in 1989." He doesn't believe he's always as tough as his reputation suggests. "I can be as hard as I have to be," Green said. "I'm not the ogre some people make me out to be. I like to think I'm as compassionate as the next guy." He seems to prefer the baseball of his era, when teams were more stable. He said the relationship between players and managers was different when he played in the 1960s. "I think a lot of ballplayers don't have the fear for the manager I had when I was growing up," Green said.

Dickerson Gave Broncos Nightmares

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eric Dickerson took a nap, but it was the Denver Broncos who had the nightmares. "I sat around most of the day, kind of nervous. And I never get nervous before a game," said Dickerson, who couldn't explain his pre-game jitters before the Indianapolis Colts' first Monday night football game in the Hoosier Dome. "I went to sleep about 4 o'clock, and when I got up at 6 o'clock I wasn't nervous. That's when I thought we would have a good game. I didn't know how good, but I thought it would be good." He found out in a hurry. The Colts scored on six of their first seven possessions, forced four Denver fumbles and burned the Broncos 55-23 before a record Hoosier Dome crowd of 60,544. Dickerson, the NFL rushing leader, carried 21 times for 159 yards and a career-high four touchdowns. He went into the game with only five touchdowns all season. Dickerson scored on first-quarter runs of 12 yards, 11 yards and 1 yard. His fourth touchdown, 41 yards in the early minutes of the second period, pushed the Colts' lead to 31-0. He easily could have had more, but after the huge lead went to 45-10 at halftime and 55-10 early in the final period, Dickerson saw no need to keep rushing just to add to his totals. "He asked me if I wanted to play more," Dickerson said of Coach Ron Meyer. "I said, 'No.' I don't like to run scores up on people. I could have had 200 yards. Maybe it'll come another game." "I'm a good football player. I don't need to prove it to anyone." Dickerson gained 124 yards in the first half and rushed the ball only three times in the final two periods as the Colts went with backups Albert Bentley and George Wonsley, often in a wishbone formation Meyer installed the week before. "It really confused the Broncos,"

Dickerson said of the formation used by college teams. "It's something we'll keep in our offense the rest of the year." Dickerson's 159 yards raised his season total to 1,038 yards as he joined Franco Harris and Walter Payton as the only NFL players to top 1,000 yards in six straight seasons. Dickerson, however, became the first to do it in his first six years in the league. Dickerson, who came to Indianapolis in a trade with the Los Angeles Rams on Halloween a year earlier, also broke the Colts' record of three rushing touchdowns in a game he previously shared with Alan Ameche, Lenny Moore, Tom Matte, Don McCauley and Randy McMillan.

ECU-Future?

(Continued From B-1) professional guidance toward giving them a successful career after college. "Every measure will be taken to insure that the finished product, the East Carolina graduate, is the best he or she can be," Hart said. Areas which will be covered by the program are reading, goal-setting, career planning, study habits, time management, nutrition and health, drugs and alcohol, and speech and diction. Baker would head up a program which would work through the assistant athletic director for academic counseling and the director of sports medicine. Baker said that a more realistic schedule would help the program in the future. "Winning affects recruiting, attendance and support. You have to have a good balance between teams that you have a chance to beat and teams that would be favored over you." Baker also said that recruiting has been difficult in North Carolina for the Pirate program. "With five Division I-A schools in the state, you have to ask what East Carolina's chances are of beating the other four. Proposition 48 has also had a big impact on recruiting. In 1983, about one in 30 would have met Proposition 48. This year, everyone we brought in met Proposition 48," Baker said. Baker added that he felt that the only way East Carolina would be successful in recruiting in the area would be to get several Big Four teams back on the ECU schedule. Meanwhile, the best recruiting areas for the Pirates will probably continue to be out-of-state. Now the processes begins to find a new coach for the Pirates. A committee to handle the search will be announced this week. Names which have already been mentioned as possible candidates include Frank Orgel, a former ECU aide now at South Carolina; Jim Donnan, offensive coordinator at Oklahoma; Al Groh, former Wake Forest coach, now on the South Carolina staff; Gary Stevens, offensive coordinator at Miami; Wayne Hall, a former ECU aide now at Auburn; Sparky Woods, head coach at Appalachian State; Jimmy Laycock, head coach at William & Mary; and George Champ, head coach at Marshall. A spokesman for the athletic department said Hart was aiming for a Dec. 1 deadline for naming the new coach.

Colts Roll Over The Broncos

(Continued From B-1) tion which has had little use in the NFL. "I know it confused Denver. They didn't know who was going to get the ball." Dickerson, seeking a fourth NFL rushing title in six years, raised his season total to 1,038 yards, joining Franco Harris and Walter Payton for the most consecutive 1,000-yard seasons with his 50th regular-season 100-yard game. The first back to run for 1,000 yards in his first six years in the NFL boosted his career-rushing total to 9,294 — the eighth highest in league history and just 113 yards short of No. 7 Earl Campbell. Dickerson broke the Colts' record of three rushing touchdowns in a game he shared with Alan Ameche, Lenny Moore, Tom Matte, Don McCauley and Randy McMillan.

His first touchdown came on a 12-yard run early in the first quarter. Chris Goode's recovery of a fumble after a pass reception by Pat Kelly and a personal foul on Denver's Clarence Kay gave the Colts possession at the Broncos' 10-yard line. After a 5-yard penalty, Dickerson ran twice and scored from the 11 to give Indianapolis a 14-0 lead before Denver recorded its first first down. Denver's next two possessions also ended in fumbles, once by Mark Jackson after a pass reception and another by Elway on a bobbled snap from center. After Jackson's fumble, it took Indianapolis five plays to score, all on runs by Dickerson. His one-yard dive put the Colts ahead 21-0 with 16 seconds left in the first quarter. Biasucci kicked a 31-yard field goal three plays after Elway's fumble, and it took only one play for the Colts to score again after consecutive sacks of Elway forced Denver to punt from its own end zone. Dickerson, matching his longest run of the season, raced 41 yards through the middle on the first play for his fourth touchdown. Denver scored on the next series, with passes of 23 yards to Vance Johnson and 45 to Jackson taking the Broncos to the Indianapolis 2. Elway hit Steve Sewell on the next play for the touchdown, but Denver was never able to mount a serious challenge. Trailing 38-10 with one minute left in the first half, Bentley returned a kickoff 40 yards to the 45. Chandler then passed 15 yards to Matt Bouza and 40 yards to Clarence Verdin for a touchdown. Denver's last two touchdowns came in the final six minutes on passes from backup quarterback Gary Kubiak of seven yards to Johnson and 48 yards to Sewell.

1987 Kentucky Derby winner Alysheba hits the back stretch

Breeder's Cup Makes Move To Churchill Downs For 88

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Breeders' Cup — which organizers call "The World Series of Racing" — makes its first trip to Louisville this week after having been staged three times in the Los Angeles area and once in New York.

"Our objective is, at a minimum, to be included in that rotation," Gerald Lawrence, general manager of Churchill Downs, said. "At a median, it is to be in that rotation more than anybody else, and our maximum goal is that it stops rotating and stays right here."

The Breeders' Cup was tentatively scheduled for Louisville last year but was withdrawn in favor of Hollywood Park in Southern California, where it drew nearly 58,000 people who bet more than $10 million.

But this year, the Breeders' Cup — with its $10 million in purses — is in Louisville for sure, and Churchill Downs officials and civic boosters hope to put on such a show that Lexington-based Breeders' Cup Ltd. won't doubt the wisdom of its choice.

Under the Breeders' Cup's organization's contract with Churchill Downs, most of the day's proceeds, including the bulk of the betting money, will go to Breeders' Cup.

Lawrence said the event offers an opportunity for Churchill Downs to win national publicity and demonstrate that it remains among the nation's top tracks. He said track officials also hope a successful event will persuade owners and trainers to send their best horses during the regular racing season.

Louisville Mayor Jerry Abramson estimated that a successful Breeders' Cup could yield $15 million to $25 million in income for hotels, motels, restaurants and other businesses. He based the estimate on standard formulas in the convention and special-event industry.

Churchill Downs officials said about 50,000 tickets have been sold, including every seat in the stands and 3,000 bleacher seats in the infield.

Lawrence said that if all goes well, Churchill Downs hopes for a crowd of 75,000 Saturday, a record exceeding the 69,155 at Santa Anita near Los Angeles in 1986.

Kentuckians are traditionally tighter-fisted at the betting windows than city folks on the coasts, so the handle isn't expected to approach the $15.4 million at Santa Anita, which set what was then the North American betting record.

But Lawrence said the handle could reach $8 million even if there's only a moderate crowd Saturday and each person bets $130 — the average for the fall meet.

"That's a reasonable projection," said D.G. Van Clief Jr., executive director of Breeders' Cup Ltd.

He said the group expects to earn more from off-track betting in other states and from the 70 other tracks where the races will be simulcast than through Churchill's betting windows.

"Based on attendance already, financial disaster is not in the cards," Van Clief said. "A lesser crowd will not be a disaster."

The Breeders' Cup no doubt offers a challenge, but Churchill has been running races for a long time, Lawrence noted.

"Can we handle 75,000 people, can we do $8 million in mutuel handle, can we put seven races on in less than four hours and meet the television commitment?" he said. "We think we can."

Flutie Got The Best Of The Bears

By Scott Ostler
LAT-WP News Service

The NFL Insider ...
Flutie Expose. Now, at last, the world knows why the Chicago Bears hate Doug Flutie, why they ran him out of Chicago, the City of Big Shoulders With Big Chips.

On a TV show Sunday, several Bears showed the true character of Flutie, the devious and diabolical midget. Seems that the sawed-off signal caller tried to weasel his way into the Bears' starting lineup by accepting dinner invitations from Coach Mike Ditka.

As one Bear told, Flutie and Ditka actually dined together once at Ditka's restaurant! (Excited emphasis mine!) And they didn't even stop at Jim McMahon's restaurant for an after-dinner hot chocolate!

Obviously Flutie, the stylish enfant, never made an attempt to be one of the Bear boys. Never once asked McMahon to teach him how to sneer, mumble, bang helmets with linemen or drop his pants for photographers. No, Flutie was too busy going to Thanksgiving dinner at Ditka's actual house!

The National Enquirer, I've heard, has photos.

Fortunately, the players saw right through Flutie the Cutie, saw that he was nothing more than a football version of Robin Givens.

Sure, Flutie flung four touchdown passes over and through the Bears Sunday in a 30-7 Patriot victory. But at least the Bears could hold their heads high, knowing that they had been too sharp to be sucked in by the half-pint's half-baked high jinks.

End-Zone Atrocities. Have you noticed how much more sophisticated pro football has become since the National Football League outlawed touchdown celebrations?

Sunday, Miami penalized 5 yards when wide receiver Mark Clayton, after catching a touchdown pass, leaped and dunked the ball over the crossbar.

It's stuff like this that was ruining the game.

Of course, a 5-foot 9-inch midget in full football gear dunking over a crossbar that's the same height as a basketball rim was one of the amazing athletic feats of the day. But, obviously, we can't let players get away with this type of behavior.

If we did, NFL football would sink to the level of major league baseball, in which every time a guy pitches a gem to win the World Series or hits a ninth-inning pinch-hit home run, he jumps up and down or smiles or pumps his fist. What kind of role-modeling is that?

So what if the NFL's officials are so preoccupied trying to determine whether a touchdown celebration is spontaneous or choreographed that they sometimes blow other calls? But you can bet we won't have to put up with Clayton's shenanigans anymore.

Maul Ball. Los Angeles Rams kicker Mike Lansford is a peach of a guy, and I was happy for him when he single-footedly beat the New Orleans Saints Sunday. His job requires incredible nerve and skill.

Still, shouldn't a football team be required to do something more than kick the ball four times to be proclaimed the winner of a game?

The league should eliminate those penalties for "roughing the kicker," "running into the kicker" and "yelling mean things about the kicker's mother."

If we allowed defensive players to sack the kicker or punter, as they are allowed to sack the quarterback, kicking plays would at least become mildly exciting.

The wimp element would argue that kickers need to be protected because with one leg high in the air they are vulnerable to crippling injuries.

That's stupid. The kicker is no more vulnerable to injury in his follow-through than is the passing quarterback. Explain to me why a vicious, steroid-crazed defender is allowed carte blanche against the quarterback, but cannot so much as graze the shoulder pad of a kicker.

If we allowed kicker sacks, it would result in an epidemic of busted legs, concussions, skinned kidneys, ruptured spleens, and knee cartilage and ligaments turned to confetti and spaghetti.

Just like quarterbacks. Isn't that what the game is all about?

Eric the Eloquent. At least Eric Dickerson isn't bitter and vindictive.

A year after the Rams gave him his wish and traded him to a team that would pay him what he is worth, Dickerson, in a TV interview, said:

—Jim Everett was never his pal. —Greg Bell is a "little dwarf."

—If Eric ever comes upon John Robinson in the act of drowning, "John's on his own."

—The greatest running back in NFL history is — the envelope, please! — guess who!

Hint: It's not John Robinson running 47-Yard.

I was in Dickerson's corner when he purposely acted like a colossal jerk to force the Rams to trade him. It was an effective strategy. I didn't realize that the condition would become permanent.

I guess it's like when you're a kid and you make a crazy face and your mom warns you that the expression might freeze on your face.

All Robinson ever did for Dickerson was make a risky trade to get him, sending the proven Wendell Tyler to the San Francisco 49ers; give Dickerson a full-time job, something he didn't have in college; design an entire offense around him; overlook devastating fumbles, and talk Eric up to the media like a latter-day Zeus.

For all that, Eric bids John to sleep with the fishes.

In retrospect, in terms of building team character and morale, the Rams' trading of Dickerson ranks right up there with the Los Angeles Dodgers' trading of Pedro Guerrero.

There is hope for Dickerson. If he carries a grudge the way he carries a football, he will, at an opportune moment, drop it.

Patriots Unexpectedly Showed They Had A Dominant Defense

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — One defense, as expected, was dominant. That defense, unexpectedly, belonged to the New England Patriots.

It shouldn't be so surprising, though, that the Patriots stifled Chicago's attack Sunday. It's just that the Bears had the NFL's top-ranked defense and had allowed just 32 points in its previous five games, and they were supposed to get all the attention.

But New England's defense, beset by injuries and inexperience, has been outstanding in its last three games, all against division rivals, and executed the defensive game plan that we wanted to," rookie inside linebacker Vincent Brown said after the 30-7 upset of the Bears.

The offensive game plan helped the defenders do that.

It began with Doug Flutie's 80-yard touchdown pass to Irving Fryar on the first play from scrimmage. It continued with Flutie's two second-quarter touchdown passes to Lin Dawson that gave New England, 4-5, a 20-7 halftime lead and forced Chicago to abandon its running game and play catchup.

The Bears began the game with a 7-1 record and the NFL's third-ranked rushing attack. They were rated just 21st in passing but were forced to throw. Of their 21 second-half plays Sunday, 14 were passes. None of their nine throws in the final 25 minutes was complete.

Flutie finished with four touchdown passes and rookie John Stephens ran for 124 yards against the NFL's top run defense that had allowed 66.3 yards per game on the ground.

"We felt we had to stop their running game. Neal Anderson is a great running back and they have a great offensive line," Patriots' defensive end Brent Williams said. "I have to give a lot of credit to our offense for putting them in a situation where they (the Bears) had to throw the ball."

One of those throws, on Chicago's first possession, was intercepted by Ronnie Lippett at the Patriots' 1-yard line as potential touchdown drive was stopped.

"I was fortunate to be in the area," the cornerback said. "We had our guys in the right positions today to make the plays."

The Patriots came up with three turnovers Sunday and gave the ball away just once. In their last three games against Cincinnati, Buffalo and Chicago, they have 13 takeaways and just one giveaway. In their first six games, they had 10 takeaways and 23 giveaways.

The New England defense had several of its season lows against Chicago — 11 first downs, seven completions, 74 passing yards, 49 offensive plays and a 21:09 time of possession. Chicago's 208 net yards were the fewest the Patriots have allowed since giving up 179 in the season opener against the New York Jets.

"They played inspired defense,"

Chicago center Jay Hilgenberg said. "They hurt us on slants and stunts and they shut us down."

"We fell so far behind, it's tough to justify running the ball."

Chicago's offense was ranked only 12th in the league but did have Anderson, quarterback Jim McMahon and a powerful offensive line.

Anderson ran 12 times for 71 yards in the first half but was held to 16 yards on six carries in the second. After McMahon left the game with a knee injury early in the second quarter, backups Mike Tomczak and Jim Harbaugh played poorly.

Baker Is Gone

found anywhere. And now we're gonna be asked to learn a whole new system at a time when we are finally becoming comfortable with what we're doing."

ECU Athletic Director Dave Hart said Monday that there was never a magic number of wins needed by Baker this year to renew his contract, but coaches and players alike felt a few more wins this season would have made a difference.

"I would have had a good argument for myself had I won six games this year," said Baker. "I was never told of a set number but I would have felt very good about my situation with six wins."

"The bottom line is we knew we had to win more games," Gilbride said. "We had four or five games that were so-called tossups when the season started but we ran into some teams that are having banner years. Southwestern (Louisiana) and Southern Mississippi have lost only three games between them this year."

"When you look at our schedule for this year we had five games (South Carolina, West Virginia, Florida State, Syracuse and Miami) where it would have taken a Herculean effort on our part and a letdown on their part for us to garner a win," Gilbride said. "Then you've got your tossup games with Virginia Tech, Southwest and Southern Miss. Those are teams that East Carolina can compete with but people can't just mark them down as wins before the season."

"But when your schedule gets balanced off with more tossup games like it is next season, then you've got a chance to be successful."

The 1989 Pirate schedule lists two NCAA Division I-AA opponents, Louisiana Tech and Illinois State, and not quite as many powerhouses. South Carolina, Syracuse and Miami remain on the schedule and are joined by Pittsburgh.

The opening five games of next season are against Southern Mississippi, Bowling Green, Cincinnati, Illinois State and Louisiana Tech.

"I felt like I deserved a chance to coach against that schedule after what I've been through," Baker said. "I asked for an extension because I feel we are close to accomplishing our goal here. But I was told I had no guarantees and I had to think about my staff."

"It comes down to a decision of wins and losses and dollars and cents," Powers said. "I just hope Art and this staff will be remembered for the hard work and long hours put in to lay the ground work for what is going to be a successful program."

DUNKEL INDEX
COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Waitz Plans To Continue To Run Despite The Adversity

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Injuries, age and major disappointments in the past year will not prevent Grete Waitz from keeping her appointed date with running.

Waitz, 35, one of the elder stateswomen of the sport, said Monday she had no intention of retiring in the foreseeable future.

It was in direction opposition to her thoughts a year ago.

At this time in 1987, Waitz was recovering from a stress fracture of the right foot and unable to compete in the New York City Marathon, a race she had won for five consecutive years and a record eight times overall. It also kept her out of the World Track and Field Championships at Rome.

"Last year, when I took three months off because of injuries, I was seriously thinking of quitting or retiring," she said at a news conference for Sunday's New York marathon. "It was the longest I had ever been off."

"When I was in New York, watching the race, I wasn't even walking... I was limping."

In addition to casting self-doubt on her career, Waitz was worried by many people to quit while she still was on top.

Her husband and coach, Jack Waitz, however, was not among them. He eased her through her discouragement.

"He said to give it time, to be patient," Waitz said.

Buoyed by her husband's pep talk and the realization of how much she enjoyed running when she was healthy, Waitz decided to keep going.

"When you're not doing it, you miss it," she said. "I missed the daily training... because when you're training, you always have a race to look forward to to motivate you."

"It's been my life for the last 10 or 15 years."

She said that being unable to run "told me I'm not ready for retirement. When I retire, I want to be healthy and in good shape. I want to do it when I want to — not because I'm injured."

An injury again struck Waitz this year and brought about her biggest disappointment — not being able to run well in the Olympic Games.

The injury forced her to undergo arthroscopic surgery on her right knee in mid-August and hampered her preparation for the Games. Instead of running, she could only do things like riding a stationary bike, running in water with a vest and working on a Nordic ski machine until about a week before the Olympics.

It wasn't enough. After about 18½ miles, she dropped out, "because I felt my preparations hadn't been the way I had hoped," she said.

"I had done a lot of alternate training and I felt good," Waitz said. "I felt if I didn't try, I would always wonder how I would have done."

"I could have finished. But it was not my goal to finish sixth or seventh. I wanted to be competitive for one of the three medals," said Waitz, the silver medalist in the first women's Olympic marathon in 1984, behind Joan Benoit Samuelson of the United States.

"I realized you have to go on the roads and do the miles."

Since the Games, Waitz has been doing the proper mileage training for a marathon and said she is ready to run well Sunday. If she wins again, she would be the first marathoner — man or woman — to win the same long-distance race nine times.

Waitz shares the record of eight victories with Johnny Kelley, winner of the Yonkers Marathon eight times.

Winning, however, will not be easy. Her opposition will include Samuelson, defending champion Priscilla Welsh of Britain, and Olympians Tatyana Polovinskaya of the Soviet Union, the fourth-place finisher at Seoul, and Laura Fogli of Italy, who was sixth.

This will be the first marathon Waitz and Samuelson have run together since the Los Angeles Games, and the Norwegian said she was looking forward to the confrontation because of the competitive aspect and the challenge of running a complete race again.

"Joan doesn't run that often," Waitz said, "but when she enters a big race, she's always prepared. She's one of the best. Running against her again has nothing to do with her win over me in L.A. It's just that she's a good runner and I like to run against her."

The 1984 Olympic marathon was the only 26-mile, 385-yard race which Waitz finished and did not win. Otherwise, she has 12 victories and three races she did not finish.

"Not being able to do well (at Seoul), it will be nice to come here and do well," Waitz said. "I don't feel I have anything to prove."

"I don't care what other people say. I want to do well for my sake. I've been in the game too long to care what others say."

And she intends to be in the game for a lot longer... longer than figured a year ago.

Valenzuela, Howell Agree On Contract Terms With Dodgers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Fernando Valenzuela and reliever Jay Howell have agreed to contract terms with the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers, and executive vice president Fred Claire says he's set a midnight Friday deadline to sign the seven players who remain eligible for free agency.

The Dodgers agreed to terms Monday with Valenzuela on a one-year contract and with Howell for a three-year deal.

The remaining players eligible for free agency are Steve Sax, Mike Marshall, Alfredo Griffin, Alejandro Pena, Mickey Hatcher and pitchers Mario Soto and Jesse Orosco.

Two other potential free agents, Mike Scioscia and John Shelby, had their 1989 options picked up by the Dodgers the day after they won the World Series over the Oakland Athletics.

After Friday, those players who have filed for free agency can begin accepting bids from all clubs. Until then, they are limited to negotiations with their own club.

Claire said his deadline is designed to avoid bidding wars. "There's some risk involved," he said. "But if we can't accomplish this by the time they start receiving bids from other clubs, then our chances don't improve anyway." Claire said. "We've been very direct on this with all the agents."

Claire added that although he will terminate negotiations as of his deadline, he will offer arbitration to any of the Dodger free agents who remain unsigned in December.

Valenzuela came to terms with the Dodgers for $1.85 million after just one negotiating session, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions. That is a drop from his $2.05 million salary, but not the maximum 20 percent pay cut the Dodgers could have asked for.

Valenzuela has been a Dodger mainstay since his phenomenal rookie season of 1981, which he capped by becoming the first player to win both the Cy Young and Rookie of the Year awards in the same season.

But the left-hander stretched the anterior capsule in his left shoulder on July 31 and was put on the 21-day disabled list. That forced him to miss his turn in the rotation after making 255 consecutive starts dating to opening day of 1981.

Valenzuela, who turned 28 today, was activated Sept. 26 and made two appearances. He earned a save against the San Francisco Giants on Oct. 1, only the second of his career. The other was against San Diego on Sept. 27, 1980.

He did not play in the postseason. Valenzuela was 5-8 in 1988 and had the highest ERA of his career, 4.24. He is 118-90 in his career.

Howell's contract calls for two years with an option on the 1991 season. He is guaranteed $2.25 million over two years and $3 million if the club picks up an option on 1991, the Times reported. That includes a $250,000 signing bonus.

The right-handed Howell led the Dodgers with 21 saves and had a career-best 2.08 ERA in his first season with Los Angeles. He and shortstop Alfredo Griffin were traded from Oakland to the Dodgers last Dec. 11 for pitchers Bob Welch, Matt Young and Jack Savage.

After a controversial National League playoffs with the New York Mets, Howell served up a game-winning home run to Oakland's Mark McGwire in Game 3 of the World Series. He redeemed himself the next night, though, by saving Tim Lincecum's victory. Howell got McGwire to pop out with the bases loaded in the seventh and struck out Jose Canseco with the tying run on base in the ninth.

During the league playoffs, Mets pitcher David Cone, writing in a guest column in a New York newspaper, said Howell had the curveball of a high school pitcher. Then, when the series moved to New York, Howell was ejected from Game 3 and suspended for three days after pine tar was found smudged on his glove.

The suspension was later cut to two days.

Irish Move To Top Of Poll For First Time Since 1981

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Notre Dame has reclaimed the top spot in the college football rankings for the first time in seven years. Lou Holtz is wary of the position.

"My motto's always been, first we'll be best, and then we'll be first," the Notre Dame coach said Monday. "Right now I'm not sure we're the best."

The latest AP poll of sports writers and broadcasters put the Fighting Irish on top for the first time since early in the 1981 season.

The Fighting Irish, coming off a sluggish 22-7 victory over Navy, will take the top ranking into Saturday's game against winless Rice.

"Here we are number one and I'm scared to death of a team that hasn't won a game all year," Holtz said. "We can't go the cash window yet and cash our tickets in. I just hope our players don't get all excited about being number one."

That position had been held for two weeks by UCLA, which lost to Washington State 34-30 on Saturday and fell to sixth.

Southern Cal, a 41-20 winner over Oregon State, moved from third to second, while Miami, Fla. moved up one place to third. West Virginia and Florida State rounded out the first five.

Notre Dame became the fourth team to be ranked No. 1 this season. Florida State was tops in the preseason poll but lost its opener to Miami 31-0. Miami then became No. 1 for six weeks before losing at Notre Dame 31-30. UCLA then stepped in for its two weeks on top of the college football world.

"It wasn't very good luck for Florida State," Holtz said. "It wasn't good luck for Miami and it wasn't for UCLA. It's nice that it creates an awful lot of interest. But what we have to understand is, we're not defending a number one ranking. What we're doing is fighting for a national championship."

Since the AP poll began in 1936, Notre Dame has won seven national championships, more than any other school. But the Irish haven't won a national championship since 1977 and were last ranked No. 1 after opening the 1981 season and the Gerry Faust era with a 27-9 victory over Louisiana State. Notre Dame lost to Michigan 25-7 the following week and haven't been higher than fourth until beating Miami two weeks ago.

"We're not an indestructible team," said offensive tackle and co-captain Andy Heck. "We could just as easily fold as we go on and have a great season."

After Rice, the Irish face Penn State before ending the season at Southern Cal, setting up a possible meeting between the two top-ranked teams Nov. 26 in Los Angeles. Southern Cal, 7-0, would have to beat California, Arizona State and UCLA.

"It gets tougher now, because we're on top, and people are making stabs at us, trying to knock us off," Notre Dame tailback Mark Green said.

"This team has done an incredible job this year but it's like building a house — it looks good and it hasn't fallen down yet, but it hasn't had a big storm yet, either," Holtz said.

Although the Top Ten teams in this week's poll are the same as last week, there was considerable shuffling.

West Virginia leaped from seventh to fourth by routing Penn State 51-30. The Mountaineers, 8-0 for the first time in their 97-year football history, was as high as No. 4 twice during the 1983 season.

Florida State was idle but rose from sixth to fifth followed by UCLA, Nebraska, which dropped from fifth to seventh, and Oklahoma, Auburn and Wyoming, Nos. 8, 9 and 10 last week.

The Second Ten consists of Arkansas, Oklahoma State, LSU, Michigan, South Carolina, Syracuse, Clemson, Alabama, Georgia and a tie for 20th between Brigham Young and Indiana.

Last week it was Arkansas, Oklahoma State, LSU, Michigan, Clemson, Syracuse, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Oregon.

Oregon fell out of the rankings by losing to Arizona State 21-20. BYU, 7-1, made it for the first time this season by crushing New Mexico 65-0 and Indiana, which dropped out after losing to Michigan last week, moved back in with a 45-34 victory over Iowa. The Hoosiers are 6-2-1.

The Top Twenty teams in the Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season record through games of Oct. 29, total points based on 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 and previous ranking:

Campbell Beginning To Make Changes In Falcons' Defense

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUWANE, Ga. — Coach Marion Campbell of the Atlanta Falcons is beginning to add a few wrinkles to his defense as rookie linebackers Aundray Bruce and Marcus Cotton and third year linebacker Tim Green gain more experience.

"I try to add something each week to it," Campbell said of the defense. "I intended to do this earlier, but when you've got young guys you can't race with it."

What Campbell did was to get away from the basic three-man front and use either Cotton or Green as a defensive end, giving the defense a four-man front look.

The Falcons used it to disguise blitzes and coverages in Sunday's 27-24 comeback victory over the Philadelphia, a triumph that left Campbell particularly pleased.

"Nice to win, and nice to win in Philly," Campbell said. Campbell played at Philadelphia during his NFL career and coached the Eagles for three years before being fired in 1985.

Campbell said during his weekly news conference on Monday that Atlanta's defense will get better because of speed.

"Utilizing personnel is the key to it," he said.

The victory over the Eagles lifted Atlanta to 2-7 at the start of the second half of the NFL season and sends the Falcons into Sunday's home game with the Green Bay Packers as a favorite. The Falcons won only three games all of last year.

"We finally came back and won one like everybody's been doing on us," he said.

Campbell said he had been telling his team that "somewhere it'll fall in line for you and yesterday it did. We won it like we've been losing."

"This was a big-time win for us," he said. "I'm happy to see our players get that win after the way they've been fighting."

The victory came on a big play after the Falcons had blown a 20-17 lead in the final quarter — a 49-yard touchdown pass from Chris Miller to Michael Haynes with 5:58 to play.

"Hopefully mentally it will help us, and I'm sure it will," Campbell said of the comeback.

The Falcons had blown a late lead against the New York Giants one week earlier and also had been the victim of big plays or turnovers in most of their earlier losses this season.

Campbell said his team came out of the game with a lot of nicks and bruises, including Cotton, who he said likely would miss some practice time with a sprained right knee.

Gerald Riggs, sidelined for five weeks with a sprained left knee, is expected to be in practice this week but Campbell says he isn't sure he'll be ready for Sunday's home game with the Green Bay Packers.

Sylvester Stamps, who has also missed five games with a pulled right hamstring, and center Wayne Radloff, sidelined for two games with a knee injury, will likely miss the Green Bay game.

Campbell said he was most pleased about the team's attitude after the Eagles, a team he once coached, took the lead in the final period.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Nov. 2

11-1

Copyright 1988 Cowles Syndicate Inc.

"Just don't flaunt them. Daddy's on a diet."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Temporary financial setbacks will clear shortly. You feel robust and ready to meet a challenge. Make a new beginning with a friend.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): The stage is set for personal expansion, social activities and a desire to be with nature. Nurture relationships at a place you hold dear.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Take creative appraisal of your talents to determine on what and where to concentrate your energy. Avoid frills that interfere.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Attitude is important to increase your income. Your stress will soar if you let it. Anxious worry can destroy a good disposition.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Positive change comes if you accept a challenge. Signs of progress are everywhere. Avoid hyperactive responses to feelings.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Partnership quarrels need to be mediated. Make your true desires known. Be convinced if you expect to win a point. Keep promises.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Playing hard-to-get will not bring you the love you seek. Romance will blossom if you take action. Restlessness comes from boredom.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Take action now to take advantage of a long sought after goal. Stay firmly in control of planned strategies. Use your intuition.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Stormy relationships are smothering a loving union. Working on long-range plans that include personal security solves problems.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Parallel problems have you torn between home and career. A close alliance could be at stake. Control your feelings and be diplomatic.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Stay close to home and complete tasks and chores. The physical energy used can have a positive effect on leveling emotions.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Something new crosses your path. After a short-lived period of trial, it will be discarded. A romantic involvement heats up.

 Conventions come and conventions go. Some years ago, the Gambling Three No Trump Convention was very much in vogue with tournament bridge players, but today, in its original form, it has fallen on lean times. However, it still crops up from time to time and, unless the defense is on its toes, it can wreak havoc.

 South's opening bid was typical of the Gambling Three No Trump, which shows a hand with a solid seven-card minor suit and not much in the side suits. Partner can gamble it out with a smattering of cards, or he can bail out in four of the minor. Here, there's no question that he would have been wiser to run to four diamonds, but he was afraid that, if he showed weakness, he might invite the opponents into the auction.
 West made his normal lead of fourth-best from his longest suit. Declarer had to decide whether to take his eight fast tricks and settle for down one, or whether to try for his contract at the risk of going down about six tricks.
 Since the difference between down 50 and down 300 was not calamitous, declarer decided to go for broke. He called for a low spade from dummy, and when East did not produce the king, nine tricks were there.

 When an opponent opens with a gambling three no trump, you cannot afford to make a normal lead. You know that he can run at least seven tricks against you, so you have to take your tricks quickly. If you have one, you should select an ace for your opening lead, so that you could get a look at dummy.

Had West led his ace of hearts, the club shift would have been apparent. That would have permitted the defenders, rather than declarer, to collect the first nine tricks.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes in the closing days of the 100th Congress.

TO BAN LAWN DARTS — By a vote of 304 for and 51 against, the House passed a bill (HR 5552) requiring the Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban sales of the game lawn darts "and other similar sharp-pointed toys." The Senate then passed the bill on a non-record vote and sent it to President Reagan.

Members voting yes wanted to prohibit sales of lawn darts.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Tim Valentine, D-2, Martin Lancaster, D-3, David Price, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Howard Coble, R-6, Charlie Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, Alex McMillan, R-9, Cass Ballenger, R-10.

Members not voting were Walter Jones, D-1, James Clarke, D-11.

TO BLOCK SPENDING BILL — By a vote of 131 for and 256 against, the House refused to consider a bill (HR 4585) to spend $59 million on 19 projects pushed by various lawmakers for educational institutions and ventures in their districts.

Members voting no wanted to kill the legislation.

Voting yes was Rose.

Voting no were Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Coble, Hefner, McMillan, Ballenger and Clarke.

Not voting were Jones and Neal.

ETHICS IN GOVERNMENT — By a vote of 347 for and 7 against, the House approved legislation (HR 5043) subjecting former members of Congress to the 1978 Ethics in Government Act's curb on lobbying by high-level officials who have left the federal payroll.

The Senate later sent the bill to the White House on a non-record vote.

Members voting yes favored the bill.

Voting yes were Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Coble, Rose, Hefner, McMillan and Ballenger.

Not voting were Jones and Clarke.

DRUG BILL — By a vote of 346 for and 11 against, the House gave its final approval of legislation (HR 5210) waging a multiple attack on the nation's drug problem. The Senate later sent the bill to the White House on a non-record vote.

Members voting yes supported the drug bill.

Voting yes were Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Coble, Rose, Hefner, McMillan and Ballenger.

Not voting were Jones and Clarke.

'Head Of The Class' Tapes TV Show In Soviet Union

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The backdrops were Gorky Park, Lenin's tomb and Red Square when ABC's "Head of the Class" taped an episode in the Soviet Union, but the focus — at least briefly — was on cast member Robin Givens and hubby Mike Tyson, the boxing champ.

"The Russians knew who Mike was. No one knew who we were," said actor-comedian Dan Frischman. "The waiters were all over him, bringing caviar, flowers and vodka. Kids showed up with boxing gloves. At dinner one night, Mike said it was cold. The waiter told him, 'Dress warm.'"

For himself, Frischman said he was delighted by the opportunity to meet face-to-face with Russian youngsters.

"It was important that we got to talk to the students," said Frischman, who plays Arvid Engen, the nerdy mathematics whiz on the show. "They're highly educated. They know more about America than we know about Russia."

"Their education still includes a lot of our negative aspect, such as strikes and the homeless, but they seem envious of our freedom. They said they hoped to have a people's democracy within the communist system."

The results of the almost two-week Russian visit, made in September, will be shown in a special one-hour episode of "Head of the Class" on Wednesday.

It was the first time an episode from a regular series has been made in the Soviet Union.

"It started last year when we had a story about our class competing against a Russian academic team," said Frischman.

Rich Eustis and Michael Elias, the executive producers and creators, came up with the idea of going to the Soviet Union for a re-match. In the show, Howard Hesseman plays the teacher of a class of young geniuses at Manhattan's Millard Fillmore High School.

One part of the story calls for Arvid and Dennis (Dan Schneider) to get lost just before the competition.

"We're trying to get back and we split up on the Metro subway. The Metro stops are really beautiful. Some have chandeliers, some have cathedral ceilings," said Frischman.

"It was a chance to experience another culture completely different from our own. We had a chance to work with the Soviets and experience the same kind of problems they experience. I got to talk to a lot of young people, who are much more optimistic about their future than their elders. I did some stand-up comedy at Moscow University and saw that humor is a universal language. It was good to know my act works in Moscow."

Givens and Tyson have since filed for divorce, but the Moscow trip was apparently a contented time.

"I had trouble believing all the headlines about marital problems," Frischman said. "What I saw was a happy couple. Mike was very polite. No one was jealous of all the publicity they got."

"But if the marriage had worked out, I was considering getting married myself. I was thinking of Mount Fiji, the world's women wrestling champion."

Frischman was in his dressing room outside Stage 5 at the Burbank Studios, where "Head of the Class" is taped before an audience. The show scheduled to tape that night featured his character in a story in which Arvid's father comes to the school.

Innocent Plea

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cher's boyfriend dodged the press and entered an early innocent plea to charges stemming from an alleged attempt to run down a photographer in the actress's Ferrari.

Robert Camilletti, 24, was due in court Monday for arraignment on one count of reckless driving and two counts of malicious mischief. He had his lawyers enter innocent pleas to the misdemeanor charges Thursday, said city attorney's spokesman Mike Qualls. Camilletti's next court appearance is Nov. 14.

Camilletti, who has lived with the pop singer-actress in her Benedict Canyon home, maintained that he was upset by pesky photographers when he lost control of the black sports car outside the driveway and smashed into a photographer's parked car.

Fan Fare
Lionel Richie, left, and actor Tom Hanks pause during Hanks' last day of filming for his upcoming Universal movie, "The Burbs." Richie, a self-described Hanks' fan, stopped by the set in Los Angeles for a congratulatory visit.

Actor John Houseman, 86, Dies From Spinal Cancer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MALIBU, Calif. — John Houseman was remembered upon his death at age 86 as a gentleman actor-producer who taught young actors, not the autocratic law professor in "The Paper Chase," for which he won an Oscar.

Houseman brought a magnetic eloquence to the role of the curmudgeon as Professor Charles W. Kingsfield Jr.

He parlayed his fame from "The Paper Chase" movie and television series and his distinctive speaking style into a lucrative series of commercial endorsements, including advertisements for the investment firm Smith, Barney in which he growled, "They make money the old-fashioned way — they EARN it."

"Behind that austere public posture was the warmest, most generous man in the world — with his time, his remarkable intelligence, his insight," said writer David Rintels, who collaborated with Houseman on the movie "Gideon's Trumpet" and the play "Clarence Darrow."

Houseman died at his seaside home before dawn Monday, said Ivan Goff, a family friend and scriptwriter. Margo Harley, a longtime friend and colleague, said he had spinal cancer.

Houseman's most significant contribution was his role advancing the work of young actors, Ms. Harley said. They included Kevin Kline, Robin Williams, Christopher Reeve, Patti LuPone and David Ogden Stiers, with whom Houseman appears in the new Woody Allen movie, "Another Woman."

"He was really the last of the Renaissance men," she said. "He was somebody who has been responsible, probably, for more people's careers in American theater than any single person."

Robert Ginty, an actor who worked with Houseman in "The Paper Chase" television series, agreed. "He was without question the No. 1 creative influence on my life."

"He was a gentleman of the old school, polite and courtly," said Kirk Douglas, who starred in the Houseman-produced movie "Two Weeks in Another Town."

While best known for his work on screen, Houseman was a reluctant actor. His strongest affections were reserved for theater and opera production, book writing and the teaching of acting.

Houseman achieved what he told friends was his ultimate goal: the establishment of the Acting Company, a touring ensemble of the nation's brightest theatrical talents.

Born Jacques Haussmann in Bucharest, Romania, to an Alsatian father and a British mother, he began his career in 1934 as the director of a Broadway production of the Gertrude Stein-Virgil Thomson opera "Four Saints in Three Acts." He founded New York's Mercury Theatre with Orson Welles in 1937.

Houseman produced the "War of the Worlds" radio broadcast for Welles, a panic-inducing account of an imagined Martian invasion of Groves Mill, N.J., broadcast 50 years ago last Sunday. Though uncredited, Houseman was instrumental in making Welles' legendary film "Citizen Kane" in 1941.

The Steak Difference.

Nobody serves a better steak than Western Steer. That's because we start with a better cut of meat than most other steakhouses. Then we individually inspect each steak and cut away all the gristle and unneeded fat. We use only USDA Choice meat, packaged under the label "Mor-Lean[™]" Beef. "Mor-Lean" Beef is better for you because it is 8-10% leaner than traditional beef. And Western Steer steaks are cooked-to-order, so that you can see the difference . . . and taste the difference!

Western Steer Ranked #1

Readers of Consumer Magazine rated Western Steer Family Steakhouse[®] as the #1 choice for overall quality in the category of economy steakhouses on a five-point scale ranging from excellent to poor. The various attributes considered in rating the restaurants were: Taste, Selection, Service, Atmosphere, Cleanliness, Kids Menu and Value.
