Council To Consider Planning Boundary

Thefts Reported

Greenville police said three thefts were reported to the department Tuesday.

Officer J.A. Felton said a set of golf clubs and a pair of golf shoes, with a combined value of $800, were taken from F43 Langston Park Apartments in an incident reported at 7:11 p.m., while Officer R.C. Allbrook said a lace weaving valued at $400 and a poster advertising the university student art show which the weaving was a part of, were taken from the Ramada Inn in an incident reported at 4:16 p.m.

Officer R.C. Broadway said a gold chain and two charms with a combined value of $450 were taken from a woman at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets on Halloween night in an incident reported at 3:45 p.m.

Three Arrested

Greenville police said three people were arrested on theft-related charges Tuesday.

Officer M.R. Benton said Raymond Earl Dawson, 50, of 207 Myrtle Ave. was arrested on charges of obtaining property by false pretenses about 8:45 a.m. in connection with an incident reported to the department Monday. Benton said Dawson allegedly charged $94 worth of merchandise at a local store to the Community Shelter without authorization.

Officer N.B. Rise said Darryl Lee Robinson, 22, of Route 2, Ayden, was arrested on larceny charges in connection with the theft of a package of dip from the Fool Lion store on Red Banks Road in an incident reported at 12:25 p.m.

Officer E.L. Butts said Henry Thomas Harward, 21, of 11 Wilson Acres was charged with concealment of merchandise in connection with the theft of a ribeye steak from the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard that was reported to the department about 6:33 p.m.

Bullard Arrested

David Alton Bullard, 17, of 509 Crestline Blvd. was arrested by Greenville police Monday on breaking and entering charges.

Detective G.W. Williams said the charge stemmed from an Oct. 17 break-in at 1088 Cheyenne Court where a set of golf clubs was reported taken.

Co-Op Meets Thursday

The Pitt and Greene Electrical Membership Corporation will meet on Thursday at Farmville Central High School, with registration starting at 6:45 p.m.

Those nominated for directorship are: Gordon Owens and F.H. Adams from district 3; Rom Beaman Jr. and Wayne Lane from district 4; and Hilton Webb and William Lewis from district 8.

Entertainment is planned.

Post Office Holiday

The Greenville Post Office, ECU Station and Kroger Contract Station Post Office will close Friday to observe Veterans Day.

No deliveries will be made by rural or city carriers. No window service will be provided. Mail will be delivered to post office boxes and express and special delivery mail will be delivered.

A special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all boxes with 5 p.m. collection times. This collection of mail will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m. The self-service postal unit located in the lobby of the main post office will supply customers with most postal supplies and permit them to mail parcels.

A planning boundary agreement between Pitt County, Winterville, Greenville Utilities and the city will be considered by the Greenville City Council at Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting at City Hall.

Ron Kimble, assistant city manager, said the proposed agreement is the culmination of discussions with Winterville over the past nine months analyzing where both cities' growth will occur in the near future.

"Since we are growing so quickly toward one another, and our ETJ (extraterritorial jurisdictional planning) areas were beginning to overlap, we felt it was imperative that we determine a mutually agreeable boundary line for future growth areas," Kimble said.

"The agreement in the works is an attempt to define that line as well as determine water and sewer service guidelines on either side of that line," he said.

As proposed, White Road (SR 1708) would serve as the planning boundary from N.C. 11 to the Tar Road (SR 1700), with Greenville serving the area to the north and Winterville serving the area south.

The boundary then moves south along Tar Road (with Winterville having all rights for planning and providing utility service to areas west of the boundary) to a creek flowing into Fork Swamp, then east along the creek to Fork Swamp and south along Fork Swamp to a point 100 feet south of Worthington Road (SR 1711).

Greenville's southern planning boundary then continues east paralleling Worthington Road to a point east of County Home Road (SR 1725). The boundary then turns north and runs 2,000 feet east of the County Home Road to N.C. 43.

The agreement requires the formal adoption of the council, the Winterville Town Board, Pitt County Commissioners, and the board of the GUC.

The county commissioners approved the agreement Monday.

$955 as part of a series of grants for the state's Community-Based Alternatives programs according to Gov. Jim Martin.

3 Attend Conference

Three Boys Club of Pitt County members and a staff representative attended the Southeastern Keystone Conference in Knoxville, Tenn.

Kirk Dominick, gamesroom director and keystone advisor at the Boys Club of Pitt County, went with members Jack Holloway, Miguel Sutton and Malcolm Gray.

Forum Closes Thursday

A free public forum focusing on the folklore of eastern North Carolina will be held in the Willis Building auditorium, First and Reade streets at 7:45 p.m. Thursday. This is the fourth and final session in the "Enlightenment in the East" series.

Featured speakers are Michael Luster, folklorist with the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, and Dr. Karen Baldwin of the East Carolina University English Department. Luster will discuss "Understanding the Folkways of the Carolina Coast;" Dr. Baldwin will speak on "The Role of Folk Medicine in Eastern North Carolina Life."

The forums are sponsored by the Historic Hope Foundation and ECU's Joyner Library. The Historic Hope exhibit of rare books, maps and historic prints in the library is open Thursday between 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. for those planning to attend the forum.

For more details, call 757-6671.

Ms. Henry To Speak

Sheila Henry of Maggie Valley to the Women's Aglow Fellowship at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Evangelistic Tabernacle on U.S. 264 West Bypass. A breakfast being held in conjunction with the meeting will begin at 8:45 a.m. A nursery is available.

SHEILA HENRY

Ms. Henry will tell of being instantly healed from symptoms of multiple sclerosis in 1985, having previously been bedridden at times from the disease. She now owns and operates a lingerie shop in Maggie Valley.

Dinner Is Tuesday

The annual Pitt County gift support dinner for Mount Olive College is Tuesday at D.H. Conley High School.

The program features entertainment by the Mount Olive Singers and a report by the college president on the progress of the college's "Road to Excellence" program. Tim Tyndall of Greenville is chairman of the dinner.

Tickets are not being sold, but those who attend are asked to make a gift to the college in an amount of their choice.

Club Has Luncheon

Greenville Christian Women's Club #1 will have a luncheon Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. at the Greenville Country Club. Helen Pope of the Snooty Fox will present a fashion show featuring new holiday fashions. Sandra Fagan of Bethel will provide music.

For reservations, call Faye Barber at 756-3610/756-3633 or Irene Turnage at 756-1179. A free nursery is provided.

20th Anniversary

Lewis Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Farmville, will observe its pastor's 20th anniversary on Thursday, Friday and Sunday.

The schedule of services is:

Thursday, the Rev. William Whitehead and Antioch Baptist Church of Wilson; Friday, the Rev. Larome Davis and choir from Pinetops; Sunday, the Rev. E.L. Lawton and Faith Temple Holiness Church of Wilson. All services begin at 7:30 p.m.

Authors To Speak

Bill and Delores Winder, authors of the testimony book, "Jesus Set Me Free," will speak at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church on Nov. 25 and Nov. 27 at 7 p.m. and Nov. 26 at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The Winders are laypersons who travel full time in a teaching, healing and evangelistic ministry with an aim to restore the healing ministry to the church and to equip clergy and laypeople to minister within their own congregation.

Sierra Club Meets

The Cypress Group of the Sierra Club meets at 8 p.m. Monday at First Presbyterian Church. Guest speakers from East Carolina University are: Mutatu Wubneh of the Department of Geology and Planning, and Barney Kane, Department of Environmental Health. They will discuss the advantages of preserving wetlands in the area. Allen Lewis of the North Carolina Department of Transportation will discuss the Adopt-a-Highway program.

For more information, call Dave Lawrence at 757-6016 (days) or Carol Collins at 756-2066 (evenings).

Association To Meet

The Greenville-Pitt International Reading Association will have its second annual meeting Monday at Riverside Oyster Bar.

Dr. Allan Glatthorn, director of the cooperative doctoral program of East Carolina and North Carolina State universities will speak on "Integrating the Curriculum."

Dinner begins at 5:45 p.m., while the business meeting and presentation begin at 6:30.

Permit Issued

Greenville police have issued a solicitation permit to the Optimist Club of Greenville to raise funds for youth work in Pitt County from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. through Dec. 2 at 301 Evans Street.

Chicod Students Active

The Beta Club at Chicod Elementary School recently held a car wash and netted $92 for a scholarship which will be awarded to a Conley graduate in June.

Winners in the second through eighth grade October writing contest, with the theme, "North Carolina - A Great Place to Live," were Tammy Williams, Demico Artis, Kimberly Nobles, Wave Phelps, Quenelle Edwards, Jamie Evans, Lucretia Stokes, Misty Jones, Reggie Roach, John Carden, Patti Loftin, Mindy Sawyer, Jennifer McAllister and Joretta Mills.

Frank Harper, a local physical therapist, recently spoke to second graders at the school about physical therapy and the physical therapist's job. His visit correlated with National Physical Therapy Week.

Second graders participated in a Halloween parade dressed as their favorite Halloween characters. The students visited other classrooms and sang "Pumpkin Bells." Several primary classes also were visited by a witch, who passed out Halloween treats and discussed Halloween safety rules with students.

Arts Extravaganza

Students from Chicod, A.G. Cox, D.H. Conley, W.H. Robinson, G.R. Whitfield and Wintergreen schools will present an Arts Extravaganza in the Conley auditorium Thursday.

The program features choruses, ensembles, strings, dancers, recorders and singers from the different schools.

Admission is $10. Tickets are available through the school offices or the Advisory Committee members. All funds will be used for mini-grants.

The event is sponsored by the Pitt County Educational Foundation. Donations are tax exempt.

Yarbrough Speaks

Dr. Tinsley Yarbrough with the Political Science Department at East Carolina University spoke to Kathy Carson's fourth period social studies class about the 1988 elections. The class has studied various election issues, such as the popular and electoral votes, primaries and caucuses and platforms of candidates. It also had daily projects that included posters, slogans, personal interviews, public opinion poll and dress like a candidate contest.

In closing a unit on Orville and Wilbur Wright, fourth graders were visited by Carroll Vann, a flight instructor at the Greenville-Pitt Airport. He also discussed crop dusting services and discussed ways aviation has changed.

Helen Thurston's third graders held a mock debate and election, and they chose teams to represent two candidates of the Student Government Association. Team representatives were Lori Tripp, Jason Health, Josh Purvis and Amanda Wynne. Panel members were Jessica Carroll, Ben Manning, Nikki Whitfield, Donte Moore and Stephanie Batchelor.

Gigi Walter of The Daily Reflector recently visited Ms. Thurston's third graders to discuss the importance of good citizens reading newspapers. She helped the students make paper cut-out good citizens.

Denise Moore's first grade class culminated a study on community helpers by having neighborhood leaders such as Greenville Mayor Ed Carter, and police officer Jeff Graham and mail carrier Sam Keel speak to the class.

Career Day Held

Nearly 100 Pitt County high school students recently attended a career day at Pitt County Memorial Hospital that provided a firsthand look at health care professions.

Students visited and met with employees in several areas of the hospital. Representatives from each of the five county high schools participated in a version of "What's My Line" with hospital employees.

Following the tours, the students met with recruitment representatives from Pitt Community College, PCMH, East Carolina University and the nursing education division of the Eastern Area Health Center.

Presentation Set

Charles Anderson, a representative from the Duffy Group, a design firm in Minneapolis, Minn., will present a slide show program at 7 p.m. Thursday in room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus. A reception follows the free program.

Chapter Meets Saturday

The Coastal Plains Chapter of the Antique Automobile Club of America is scheduled to hold its fall meeting Saturday on the lot of Toyota East, one block from U.S. 264 bypass and N.C. 11. Registration will be conducted from 8 a.m. to noon and transportation to Carolina East Mall and flea market spaces will be available.

Funding Awarded

Martin County Community Action Inc. will receive a $95,900 grant from the North Carolina Energy Division to weatherize homes of low income, elderly and handicapped citizens in Martin, Pitt and Beaufort Counties, according to state Commerce Secretary Claude E. Pope.

The funds are part of the Federal Weatherization Assistance Program administered by the Energy Division of the North Carolina Department of Commerce.

Meeting Is Wednesday

The North Carolina Division of Aging will hold a public meeting on its revised "intrastate funding formula" at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Willis Building of East Carolina University on the corner of First and Reade streets.

There will also be a review of state funding for services to older adults.

Groups Receive Grants

The Pitt Partners Program will receive $34,731.68 and the Pitt Active Parenting organization will receive

CHRISTMAS IN APRIL HERE?

I have heard of a practice that began in Midland, Texas, and is now being carried out in several American cities. It's called Christmas in April. On one day in April each year, a community blitz to repair the homes of low-income elderly and handicapped persons is carried out. People of all ages, many of them skilled craftspeople, renovate homes with donated materials and money.

If persons or groups in the Greenville area want to spearhead such an effort, they can contact Patty Johnson, executive director, 3318 Fessenden St. NW, Washington, D.C., 20008, or call 202-362-1611.

Lewis To Speak

Randall Lewis of the Grace Fellowship of Tulsa, Okla., will minister at Community Christian Church at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Lewis has traveled across the nation ministering, conducting pastor's seminars, camp meetings, marriage retreats and Bible schools.

The church is three miles south of Pitt Community College.

Law Office

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Jim Holshouser has joined the Washington-based law firm of Patton, Boggs & Blow and will open a new office here.

Holshouser will serve in "of counsel" to the firm, which means he does not share in company profits like a partner would, but is paid a salary based on his work and contributions to the firm.

Earlier this year, Patton, Boggs & Blow merged with the Greensboro and Raleigh firm of Foster Conner Robson and Gumbiner. The combined firm has offices in Washington, Baltimore, Greensboro, Raleigh and Tampa, Fla., with 143 lawyers.

Holshouser, who was governor from January 1973 to January 1977, will work in real estate, environmental, financial and international business law for the firm.

Warrant Issued

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A warrant has been issued for the sales manager of a Statesville automobile dealership, charging him with embezzlement for allegedly leaving town with $21,516 of the dealership's money.

Statesville police Lt. Ken Shawver said James William Brinsfield, 33, left Watkins Oldsmobile-Cadillac Inc. on Oct. 31 and did not return.

A Nov. 2 audit by the dealership revealed that one car was missing from the business' inventory.

"They started digging around to find out what happened to that car and found out that (Brinsfield) had sold eight (used) cars to City Motors" in Statesville, Shawver said.

He said cash was collected for the cars, and a notary public's signature was forged on the title transfer papers to make it appear the sale was legitimate.

Shawver said Brinsfield also bought a 1979 Cadillac El Dorado from his employer Oct. 31 before he left.

Alumni Group Gathers

The Pitt-Greenville Chapter of the GIHS-CM Eppes Alumni Association meets at 6 p.m. Saturday at the home of Barbara Evans, 356 Gardner Circle, Winterville. An executive board meeting begins one hour earlier.

Ellis Is On Task Force

Charles Ellis, an attorney with the law offices of Marvin Blount Jr. of Greenville has been selected a member of a task force to "fine tune" North Carolina's statute dealing with uninsured and under-insured motorists. The nine-member group includes civil plaintiffs and defense attorneys as well as insurance-industry representatives. The group will submit proposed changes in the current law to Insurance Commissioner Jim Long and the North Carolina General Assembly for approval.

Local Operators Answer

Since Saturday, people in the Bethel, Farmville and Fountain exchanges who dial 0 for assistance with a telephone call will be talking to a Carolina Telephone operator.

The conversion does not affect customers' calling habits. Customers still dial 0 to reach an operator for help in emergencies, to get other assistance and rate information on long-distance calls.

There is no change in placing calls to directory assistance. Bethel customers are still dialing 411, while those in Fountain and Farmville dial 1 plus 411 for directory assistance.

Student A Runner-Up

Amanda Paige Polland, a kindergartener at Greenville Christian Academy, recently was a runner-up in the "Zipmart Cares About Kids" anti-drug essay contest.

Her essay read: "Drugs can make you sick and sometimes go to the hospital and you can die. Jesus don't like it when you hurt yourself."

Zipmart's drug education program was held in cooperation with school systems in Lenoir, Wilson, Nash, Edgecombe, Wake, Durham and Franklin counties. Each child who entered the contest received a educational coloring book "It's O.K. To Say No To Drugs." More than 5,000 youngsters ages 12 and under participated in the essay contest.

Jennifer Lynn Girton of Louisburg won the contest; Jamie Harrison of Tarboro also was a runner-up.

Taft Wins Third Term In State Senate

According to traditional North Carolina politics, Gardner, as lieutenant governor, would serve as president of the Senate and appoint chairmen to powerful state budget committees, something Democratic lieutenant governors have done since the 1890s.

Rand headed the Senate's Base Budget Committee, and he said if he was elected he would consider appointing Taft to chair one of the top two Senate budget committees.

But with Gardner in office, there will probably be no chairmanship for Taft.

"Rand's loss short-circuited a certain appropriations chairmanship," Taft said. "And that's a substantial loss for my district."

Gardner's win may also spur the Senate to depart from traditional state politics.

Taft said the 1989 session of the state Senate is almost certain to consider whether or not to grant Gardner the power to make appointments, as lieutenant governors have in the past.

"It's not a matter of taking it away. It's a matter of whether they give it," he said. "That power is given based on the relative confidence and working relationships that Senate members ... have with the newly elected lieutenant governor."

"Most states organize their senates like the United States, where the lieutenant governor does not appoint committees or play a major role in legislative affairs."

Taft attributed the win to a broad base of support in Pitt, Beaufort and Martin counties.

"I sense there's a broad recognition now that I'm being effective in the Senate," he said. "I'm showing maturity and real promise for an increasingly important role in the legislative process."

Dansey claimed Taft held onto his Senate seat by unswerving minority support, but Taft said his supporters are traditional Southern Democrats, conservative on fiscal issues and crime and progressive on human rights and education. Taft said he spent about $63,000 on the campaign.

Dansey's aggressive television ads generated lots of attention, but Dansey said he lost because Pitt voters shy away from Republicans, not because of his TV ads aimed at Taft.

"I don't think they had anything to do with it," Dansey said in a telephone interview Tuesday night. "I ran a textbook campaign. I wouldn't change a thing that I've done."

"It's a local issue. I'm going to be real frank with you. I lost, and Tom Taft won and the people of eastern North Carolina lost. I think (the people have) spoken, and I'll go along with it. I just think it's very unfortunate."

Dansey had predicted a large voter turnout would help him, but he said Tuesday night he had guessed wrong.

"The big turnout didn't help us as much as we thought it would. And we had a big one," he said. "In the black precincts we didn't score. We had to do that, and we knew that from the outset. ... There aren't enough people (in Pitt County) willing to vote for a Republican."

Final figures from the Pitt County Board of Elections are not yet available, but unofficial vote totals indicate about 66 percent of the county's 50,571 registered voters went to the polls Tuesday. There are about 11,000 registered Republicans in the county.

The 66 percent turnout would be down from 1984, when 74 percent of Pitt voters went to the polls, but some precincts were swamped Tuesday. There were lines of voters at polls across the county and several of the precincts did not report final tallies until after 3 a.m. today.

first Republican lieutenant governor in this century.

In local races, Walker said he feels that Bill Dansey, though defeated, made a good showing in his race against incumbent Democratic state Sen. Tom Taft. "We knew all the local races would be tough," he said. "But I believe that people should be challenged. When you let someone run unopposed, you're telling them what they're doing is fine."

"People like (losing House Republican candidates) Joe Sturz and Marshall Helms took on the job of challenging the Democrats and we're proud of them. We feel we entered this election year with the most unified effort ever and it paid off."

County Democratic Party Chairman J.B. Spilman Jr. congratulated the Republicans and praised the overall voter turnout in the county. He said he was pleased that Democrats in Congress and at the local level did as well as they did.

South. Bush forces likewise gave North Carolina special attention to offset the Democrats' emphasis.

The state received more than its usual share of visits from candidates: Dukakis, Lloyd Bentsen and Dan Quayle campaigned in North Carolina twice, while Bush visited once. Ronald Reagan paid his final visit to the state as president to stump for Bush.

But the hard-fought gubernatorial battle dominated the state campaign stage, as Martin touted the state's progress in education and economic growth and Jordan called for more aggressive, visionary leadership.

The campaign to succeed Jordan as lieutenant governor started slowly but finished with a bang, as Gardner and Rand bitterly challenged each other's fitness to serve. On Monday, Rand filed a libel suit against Gardner and Gardner responded with a call for an eleventh-hour debate, calling his opponent a "wimp."

Road Bonds

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte voters decided Tuesday to tackle traffic themselves, overwhelmingly approving a record $182.8 million bond package, the largest in North Carolina local government history.

In complete but unofficial totals, the $100.8 million in bonds for roads and sidewalks won 67 percent of the vote, 79,002 to 39,175.

Five other bond issues passed with at least 61 of the vote.

The five others were $32.4 million for water improvements, $24.7 million for sewer improvements, $9.5 million for parks, $9 million for Discovery Place and $6.4 million for storm drainage.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

The Challenge

Bush Must Overcome Campaign

George Bush can be an effective president — but first he must overcome the campaign that put him in office.

His quest to lead the nation was often belly-crawling low and barnyard dirty. Through his victory Tuesday, he proved a campaign based on demagoguery, not issues, can elect a president. But the same tactics won't guarantee him success in the oval office.

Bush's campaign methods prompt questions about ability and substance, and to be effective, he must quell notions about his political emptiness by moving quickly to set an agenda for his presidency.

In addition, he must work to overcome the selection of Dan Quayle as his vice president. The young senator from Indiana has shown no evidence he is qualified for the office he will hold. His selection remains questionable, and has raised deep doubts about Bush's judgment. For a Bush-Quayle administration to gain confidence, both men must validate the choice with a show of substance.

Bush, especially, will have to prove himself by promptly naming a solid cabinet. His choices will be watched carefully by those keenly aware of Quayle's shaky record. Bush can help himself greatly with his leadership decisions. Naming James Baker as secretary of state is an excellent start.

Bush must also remove the political barbed wire he erected during the campaign. He pierced deeply with harsh campaign rhetoric, making some enemies in the Democrat-dominated U.S. Senate and House. He will have to overcome the side effects of this criticism to be an effective president.

Only if he lays his political freight to rest can Bush sufficiently address the issues awaiting his leadership.

Bush's first and foremost charge will be reducing the nation's budget deficit. The consequences of not doing so are unthinkable. The nation simply cannot continue to spend nearly one-fourth of its tax dollars for debt service. It cannot remain globally vigorous if it owes, to other nations, far more money than it can repay.

His next challenge will be restoring integrity to the White House. The record of the Reagan-Bush administration has been marred by misbehavior. Bush must put his connections to those actions behind. His charge is to clear the murky waters of propriety with high standards and high caliber leaders.

Next, he must illuminate his 1,000 points of light for the American people. Bush, as the next president, must focus on the citizens bypassed by the false prosperity of the Reagan years. He must make his campaign image of a "kinder, gentler America" a reality for the economically disadvantaged, the homeless, the illiterate, the communities diseased by drugs. These ills are pits of darkness ignored by the Reagan legacy. They await attention.

Bush has the experience to be an effective president if he can surmount his past, if he resists the temptation to be an ideologue and if he can set an aggressive agenda for his term. On Tuesday he proved he has the support to get the job.

Now he must prove he possesses the substance and leadership to get that job done.

Compensation

Red Tide Brought Bounty To Coast

Remember the toxic red tide? It meant millions of dollars in damage along our coast and rendered shell fish useless for human consumption.

Well, nature has a way of compensating. Some observers now say that the red tide developed nutrients which could have increased shrimp and hardshell clam growth.

Since the red tide is an algae those who work with clams see nothing else to attribute the clam rebound to.

The shrimp increase was not so dramatic but shrimpers say the harvest is better. Of course no one can be certain that the algae Ptychodiscus (red tide) is responsible for the shell fish increase. Because of red tide the season was closed to shell fish. They stored toxins and became not safe for human consumption. Some say the year's layoff would cause the shell fish supply to improve.

Either way it was nature's doing. Whether red tide provided nutrients or not its presence meant a year's harvesting layoff. That way the shell fish had time to improve their supply.

At any rate the succulent delicacies of the deep are once again available for human consumption from off North Carolina's coast. There is no red tide this year and some species have made a comeback ... and that's news we like to hear.

The Choices: Stagnation Or Progress

North Carolina's state senators may feel like they're wedged between rocks and surrounded by a hard place for the next four years if Republican Jim Gardner's win in the lieutenant governor's race holds up.

Gov. Jim Martin's hearty victory over Democratic challenger Bob Jordan Tuesday was no surprise, but Gardner's sluggish success over Democrat Tony Rand may make the N.C. Senate a tedious channel for progress-minded legislators to navigate.

Or, it could create a first-ever opportunity for the leadership of the executive and legislative branches of state government to effectively work together on issues.

After the 1984 and 1988 elections, there's little doubt North Carolina is a strong two-party state at the gubernatorial level. Martin, in his first four years, enjoyed good economic times and stepped on few toes. His second term in office, because he faces a Democratic-controlled legislature, will likely yield little more progress than his first. Martin's victory in itself didn't portend any big changes for the state.

Reflector Analysis

But Gardner's apparent win is more politically meaningful. Gardner, who led Rand at mid-morning by 30,000 votes, could make a sharp difference in that office. As lieutenant governor, Gardner will preside over the N.C. Senate. A GOP presence there could mean leadership changes in that democratic-dominated body that could either sharply change its direction — or shut it down.

The Senate has the power to tell the lieutenant governor what to do. It can empower him to make appointments or it can leave him powerless. Either option could keep meaningful legislation from occurring during Gardner's tenure.

The power base in the N.C. General Assembly lies in committee chairs and vice-chairs. If the Senate gives Gardner the authority to appoint and he places its leadership in Republican hands, the Democrats can, and likely will, kill any bills the GOP committees support on the Senate floor. In addition, the Democratic-controlled N.C. House can stifle any activity from its Senate counterparts. This would keep the Democratic majority in control but effectively stonewall the state's legislative progress for four years.

The Senate can also deny Gardner any power, a move which could result in an equally stagnant body by creating a leadership standoff.

Inertia in the Senate will put additional pressure on the House Speaker Liston Ramsey to assert Democratic control. Ramsey, by affecting an impasse with Gardner, could jeopardize his image and his reputation for effectiveness.

Under these conditions, the only way the General Assembly could restart its engine would be if Democrats lost enough key seats to Republicans to give the GOP majority control. And that's not likely to happen in the next four years. Witness the fact that Tuesday's election results likely put only two more Republicans in the Senate.

The GOP ousted Sen. Bob Warren in the 15th Senatorial District and knocked off Sen. Mary Seymour in the 32nd. But Democrats defeated Sen. Jim McDuffie in the 34th District to cut their Senate losses, reducing the GOP deficit in the Senate from 40-10 to 39-11.

If the state's leaders put factionalism aside and strive for cooperation instead of stalemate, the partisan blend can work for progress, not against it.

But if lawmakers choose a power play, the GOP may be the political winners of the 1988 election but the citizens of North Carolina — those who must endure the effects of stagnation — will suffer the spoils of victory.

The Innovations Of Campaign '88

WASHINGTON — Grousing is the favorite national sport, and there's been a ton of it about the just-completed presidential campaign. If there is a network commentator or newspaper columnist who has not pronounced the Bush-Dukakis exercise the pits — the absolute lowest — it's escaped my notice.

Negative, nasty, uninformative, disturbing, degrading, demagogic are some of the milder words applied to the onslaught of ads and sound-bites which dominated the airwaves from September until Election Day. And you're not going to see me stand up to defend this spectacle, which clearly outlasted almost everyone's patience.

Is there anything to be done to make the next campaign any better, or are we doomed to choose our Presidents this way? There are three or four practical things we might do between now and the start of the 1992 campaign to ensure that improvements are made, building on some of the few virtues of this past year.

Ask almost any voter what part of the campaign he found useful, and the answer is likely to be the debates. On those three evenings, for 90 minutes at a crack, most of those who went to the polls had the invaluable experience of watching the presidential and vice presidential candidates engage each other — and panels of journalists — on their television screens.

Sure, some of the questions were strange. Yes, it would be better to eliminate the rigidities of the news-conference format and let the principals debate, with just a moderator to keep time and shift topics.

But I know of no one watching who did not gain insights from each of the encounters, no matter how much or how little exposure they'd previously had to the candidates.

The debates were arranged by a commission representing the two political parties. That device, tried for the first time in 1988, ought to be continued. If there's any reluctance on the part of the new President to commit himself to participate in the party-sponsored debates, Congress might well require each party to guarantee that its nominee will show up for the debates as a condition for receiving the federal payment for the cost of the 1992 conventions. These debates are too important — and positive — an element of the campaign to risk losing.

The second healthy innovation of 1988 was the decision of several network news organizations to do lengthy interviews with the candidates in their prime-time evening news shows and their early morning or late-night programs. The 90 minutes of Michael Dukakis with Ted Koppel and the 15-minute or half-hour interviews both Dukakis and George Bush had with other correspondents were opportunities to see and hear them go beyond the standard rhetoric of their stump speeches and communicate something substantive about themselves and their views.

Most of these interviews came very late in the campaign. If the network news organizations could be persuaded to offer similar blocks of time — 10 or 15 minutes at a crack, maybe one evening a week for the nine or ten weeks of the campaign — the candidates would have the chance, and the need, to go beyond their sound-bite simplicities.

What we saw this year is that the tone of the campaign will rise above the level of many of the negative ads when voters regularly see the candidates in longer than 60-second slices. It's a reverse Gresham's Law: Good television can cleanse the mind of cheap and negative television.

The potential of the tube was displayed most vividly in 1988 by the Sherry Jones-Garry Wills documentary on the lives of Bush and Dukakis, aired on Public Television's "Frontline" program. It was a superb double character study, critical but balanced, and extraordinarily insightful. A worthwhile project for some foundation would be to see that the comparable product for 1992 is aired early and often, and distributed as widely as possible in cassette form for people to see and discuss in their homes.

If the commercial networks have any pride, each of them will clear the time and find the money to produce its own documentary biography of the candidates, just as major newspapers and magazines already do. These journalistic profiles were better than ever this year, and a contribution to public understanding.

What about the negative ads? I'm not for censorship, but it galls me — as it does you — that taxpayer-supplied funds are used to produce this destructive, distorted stuff.

Without infringing on the candidates' free speech, I'd like to see the requirement written into law that any candidate who accepts the $40-million-plus of public money to finance his campaign must certify that ads produced and aired with that money have been personally approved by him. Second, within 24 hours of each ad's appearance, a campaign official designated by the candidate as his authorized representative should be required to hold a news conference and be ready to provide evidence supporting all assertions in the ad and answer all questions arising from it.

Such accountability requirements might make the candidates think twice about what they're putting on the air — and maybe clear the air of the worst political pollution. At the very least, they would prompt the press to examine those ads more carefully and expose exaggeration and distortion more promptly than was the case this year.

Dukakis' Defeat Reflects Weaknesses In Democratic Party

Robert Shogan

WASHINGTON — When a Democratic competitor congratulated senior Bush strategist Paul Manafort on running a "great campaign," Manafort shrugged off the compliment. "Basically, we ran unopposed," he said. It was easy to find professionals in both parties who agreed with Manafort: Democratic standard-bearer Michael S. Dukakis missed and mishandled so many opportunities as a candidate that, for many of his fellow politicians at least, he made a mockery of his promise to give the nation competency as president.

But a closer look at the way the 1988 presidential campaign developed suggests that blaming everything on Dukakis is too easy on Democrats as a whole. The flaws in the Dukakis candidacy were to a large extent symptomatic of fundamental weaknesses in the party that nominated him.

Simply put, the Democrats concentrated hard — and successfully — on not making the same mistakes they had made in 1984. But they did not correct the underlying causes of those earlier mistakes: the party's failure to develop a new political creed and thus an appealing message for voters to replace the time-worn liberalism of the New Deal.

"It seems to me that, in my lifetime, our party has lost the intellectual initiative," said 43-year-old Chris Scott, president of the North Carolina AFL-CIO. "Since the New Deal, we haven't really had a good explanation to give the public of what it is we're trying to do with the government."

Tuesday's returns demonstrated the shortcomings of the effort to win the presidency without any ideology at all. Said Democratic pollster Mark Mellman: "This campaign is an indictment of the notion that there is a value-free, ideology-free, passionless politics based solely on pragmatism that will get you elected."

To be sure, Republican George Bush made some mistakes. His choice of Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle as a running mate raised so many questions about Bush's judgment and so many doubts about Quayle's fitness that — by the reckoning of one Bush campaign strategist — it cost the GOP ticket as much as 4 percentage points in the GOP victory margin.

Then, too, some political professionals believe that Bush's unrelenting attacks on Dukakis' record as Massachusetts governor might have backfired to some extent, making Bush vulnerable to the charge of negativism and helping fuel Dukakis' late surge in the campaign.

But those miscalculations, mere aberrations in the otherwise masterly execution of the Republican battle plan, offered small consolation to Democrats as they contemplated their fifth defeat in the last six presidential elections.

Of course no one could reasonably have expected success to come easy for the Democrats in 1988 — not with the nation at peace and the economy for the most part relatively healthy.

Still, 1988 presented the Democrats with certain inherent advantages. One was that they would not have to run against Ronald Reagan, by far the most popular Republican leader since Dwight D. Eisenhower. Another was the historical cycle: Not since 1948 had any party maintained its grip on the White House for more than two consecutive terms.

Mindful of those realities, Democrats convinced themselves early that 1988 was their year of opportunity. As they geared up for the campaign, however, instead of finding fresh ideas to face the future, they seemed trapped by the specter of their past defeats — particularly Walter Mondale's landslide loss in 1984.

Specifically, the Democrats — not just Dukakis but the party as a whole — took a series of steps to prevent another 1984 debacle, steps that ultimately did not help and in some cases even hurt their chances in 1988:

•The platform. The move to make the platform briefer, vaguer and less controversial was led by Democratic National Chairman Paul Kirk. It was part of an overall effort by the party to steer away from ideological disputes.

"A document which Republicans quote to attack Democratic candidate more frequently than Democratic candidates do to promote themselves is neither a unifying nor a winning national party platform," Kirk said in December 1987.

Democrats, including nominee Dukakis, took Kirk's advice to heart and produced a document about one-tenth the size of past manifestoes and almost devoid of specific solutions for such problems as the budget deficit.

For all of that, the Republicans once again hung the Democratic platform around the party's neck. This time they attacked it not for what it said but for what it left out. The platform's vagueness, and its all-too-apparent flight from past Democratic positions, gave Bush ammunition to launch his decisive counterattack against Dukakis. He labeled him "the stealth candidate," and then proceeded to define the Democrat as outside the American "mainstream."

•Super Tuesday. Resentful of what they regarded as the excessive influence of the Iowa caucuses and the New Hampshire primary on the outcome of their nominating contest, Southern Democrats persuaded legislatures in 14 border and Southern states to hold their primaries on the same date.

According to the blueprint of its sponsors, the mega-contest in the conservative South would counter the liberal thrust of the Democratic electorates in the early Northern contests, particularly Iowa. It would force contenders for the nomination to pay more attention to Dixie and help foster the selection of a more conservative standard-bearer, so the argument went.

But what happened on Super Tuesday was almost exactly the opposite of what its planners intended. Lacking the time or money for full-scale campaigns in so many Southern states, most of the candidates lavished more time and money on Iowa and New Hampshire than ever before, hoping to gain prominence that could translate into strength on the Super Tuesday battlefield.

Southern pollster Claibourne H. Darden Jr. pointed out, is that in their concern for manipulating the mechanics of the primary system, Super Tuesday's sponsors neglected the ideological and racial elements in the voting.

Neither the Southern Democrats who established the massive primary, nor the presidential contenders developed a message that would encourage conservative and moderate Southerners to participate in the Democratic nominating process.

•Interest groups. Mondale's endorsement by the AFL-CIO and a number of other powerful liberal interest groups early in the 1984 campaign aided his drive for the nomination but later, party leaders became convinced, made him vulnerable to the charge that he would be overly influenced by such groups as president.

To shield their 1988 standard-bearer from the stigma of interest group liberalism, chairman Kirk and other party leaders urged interest groups to avoid pre-convention endorsements. The groups did not endorse until after the Democratic convention and Dukakis and other contenders made a show of being independent of the so-called litmus tests established by the groups as criteria for their support.

Nevertheless, Dukakis, was successfully tagged as a liberal by Bush and the Republicans. "Even though he avoided the interest group endorsements, we were able to define him as a liberal because he did not have any overall theme or identity of his own," said Bush strategist Manafort.

"The 1988 results show that the labor endorsements weren't what beat Mondale in 1984," said North Carolina union leader Scott.

Until Democrats can find a new ideological anthem, Scott said, the party's supporters will be limited to choosing between on one hand candidates like Jesse Jackson, who are good at articulating the old ideological message, and on the other hand, candidates like Dukakis, who shy away from ideology completely.

Barring a Depression or some other calamity, Scott argues, neither type of candidate has much chance of success. "The problem is not that we had the wrong messenger," he said. "The problem is that we need a new message."

Quayle

 judgment in selecting him. Quayle planned to visit his transition office today to make telephone calls and talk to Republican officials there, and to greet Bush later on when the vice president arrived at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. The pair was expected to meet with President Reagan at the White House.

Quayle said he hoped Americans would "give me a chance" to prove himself, but said he could not let himself be preoccupied with people's perceptions of him. "If, in fact, I was concerned about shaping or reshaping my image, I'm going into probably the worst office to do that, and that's being the vice president of the country," he said. "The vice president submerges himself and implements the policies of the president. That becomes your sole goal and your challenge in your job."

During an informal chat before the polls closed, Quayle said he had not given any thought to whom he would name as his transition director. He said he felt that would be "putting us ahead of ourselves."

But at least two of Quayle's key campaign lieutenants — former White House political director Mitchell Daniels and issues adviser Jim Cicconi — are leaving to return to private law practice.

Chief spokesman David Proseri said he did not know whether he would remain in the new administration. Two other aides, speechwriter Kenneth Khachigian of California and scheduler Lanny Wiles, were brought in from California and Florida, respectively, and are believed ready to go back.

Other questions hover over the new vice president-elect. Quayle must resign his Senate seat, and the senator has indicated he will do that well before Indiana Democratic Gov.-elect Evan Bayh is sworn in next January. Quayle has not said precisely when he would step down, however.

Quayle and his wife, Marilyn, also have been questioned repeatedly about reports that Mrs. Quayle would accept an appointment to serve out the unfilled term of her husband. Neither has been willing to discuss a prospect that has Indiana political leaders engaging in rampant speculation, although Quayle said last week that "it's (Gov.) Bob Orr's decision to make."

Quayle's triumphant appearance in the chandeliered ballroom of the Washington Hilton hotel climaxed a checkered campaign for the vice presidency, which started the day after the Republican National Convention with an extraordinary, no-holds-barred question-and-answer session with reporters covering his homecoming appearance in Huntington, Ind.

The senator was questioned repeatedly about indications he may have used family influences to get into the Indiana National Guard and avoid combat at the height of the Vietnam War. Quayle also faced questions about his academic performance at DePauw University and the circumstances under which he was admitted to law school with an undergraduate grade average of "C."

Democrats Dominate House

WASHINGTON — Voters threw out a pair of congressmen entangled in ethics problems, but returned a hauntingly familiar House of Representatives that for the 35th straight year will be dominated by Democrats.

As the last votes were being counted early today, the same voters who chose Republican presidential candidate George Bush padded a Democratic margin in the House that had stood at 255-177 in the 100th Congress with three vacancies.

Fourteen-term Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., chairman of the House Banking Committee, was beaten by GOP attorney Ronald Machtley. Just two weeks before Election Day, a 5-month-old Justice Department letter had been unsealed, referring to "substantial evidence of serious and sustained misconduct" by St Germain for allegedly accepting favors from lobbyists.

The department has referred its findings to the House ethics committee, which has yet to say what it will do.

In suburban Atlanta, Ben Jones, a Democrat who portrayed Cooter on television's "The Dukes of Hazzard," ousted two-term Republican Rep. Pat Swindall in one of the country's most bitter campaigns.

The campaign centered on Jones' past arrests and alcohol problems, and Swindall's election-eve perjury indictment in a drug money laundering case. Swindall took his defeat with a smile, while Jones led his supporters in a rendition of "Amazing Grace."

It was the first time in 28 years that the party losing the presidency still managed to gain ground in the House. By early today, Democrats had won 258 seats and led for four others, compared to 173 Republican victories.

The enormous financial and other advantages that incumbents possess proved the key dynamic in Tuesday's voting. Ninety-nine percent of the 408 representatives seeking new terms were on their way to re-election early today, surpassing the 1986 high-water mark for electoral success by House officeholders of 98 percent.

Democrats claimed the results proved that voters preferred their policies, with Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee chairman Rep. Beryl Anthony, D-Ark., saying, "They gave us their vote of confidence."

Republicans contested that House Minority Leader Bob Michel said the amount of money incumbents raise has become "incredible."

Whatever caused the incumbent tide, it was not enough to pull at least three legislators to victory.

Democrats had much to smile about in Texas. On the Gulf Coast, Republican Rep. Mac Sweeney, a two-term incumbent, lost to Democratic lawyer Greg Laughlin, and state Sen. Bill Sarpalis beat GOP hopeful Larry Milner for the Panhandle seat vacated by Republican Beau Boulter, who lost his bid for the Senate.

Democrats also scooped up a vacant seat previously held by a Republican in Nebraska when former state Sen. Peter Hoagland defeated Jerry Schenken, a doctor, in one of the country's most expensive House races.

Bush Wins Fight

 president to win the presidency since Democrat Martin Van Buren in 1836. An ominous note for Bush: Van Buren was defeated for re-election.

According to surveys of voters as they left polling places, a big factor working for Bush was the continued popularity of his boss.

Dukakis closed out his campaign with an exhausting 48-hour race from state to state with no break for sleep. All the same, he was out power-walking on Election Day and when he appeared before supporters for his concession speech they chanted, "92, 92, 92, 92."

The weary candidate looked not quite ready to plunge into the next presidential campaign.

The man he beat for the Democratic nomination, Jesse Jackson, said today, "Our next political season really does begin today." But Jackson, appearing on "CBS This Morning," quickly added, "It's much too early to talk about 1992 politics."

In the popular vote, with 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Bush had 47,224,050 or 54 percent. Dukakis had 40,443,610 or 46 percent.

In the critical tally of electoral votes, Bush won 40 states for 426 electoral votes. Dukakis won 10 states and the District of Columbia for 112 electoral votes.

But Democrats padded their advantages in both houses of Congress. They picked up at least one seat in the Senate and were leading for another — in Florida — which would give them a 56-44 edge. They had a likely pickup of five in the House for a 262-173 advantage there.

Not all the storm clouds for the 41st president formed in the opposition ranks.

Republican Senate leader Bob Dole of Kansas lost no time chiding Bush for not campaigning more for GOP Senate candidates.

"We could have used a little help from the vice president in some of those states," said Dole, who waged a bitter fight with Bush last winter for the Republican presidential nomination.

George Bush Jr., the president-elect's son, responded on NBC's "Today" program: "My reaction is George Bush needed to sprint across the finish line as hard as he possibly could. He was worried about his own hide."

Two veteran senators lost their seats — Republican Lowell Weicker Jr. of Connecticut and Democrat John Melcher of Montana.

Weicker, a maverick to the end, refused to concede to Democrat Joseph Lieberman and a recount appeared likely. Lieberman's margin in the unofficial count was 4,897 votes out of more than 1.3 million cast.

Melcher was defeated by Republican Conrad Burns, a former farm broadcaster.

Bush and Dukakis ended their campaign, noteworthy for its bitterness, with words of conciliation and cooperation.

Bush said he had received a call from Dukakis "and I want you to know he was most gracious. His call was personal, it was genuinely friendly and it was in the great tradition of American politics."

Dukakis also referred to the conversation and told his supporters, "This nation faces major challenges ahead and we must work together."

Dukakis returns to the Massachusetts statehouse, where he has two years remaining on his term as governor. His running mate, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, easily won re-election to his Senate seat from the Lone Star state.

Bentsen said he and Dukakis "waged a campaign that's worthy of the American people. ... We fought fair and we never quit."

Vice President-elect Dan Quayle told supporters in Washington that "you need never question the devotion and dedication I will bring to this job."

Bush's selection of the Indiana senator as his running mate was one of the most controversial acts of the campaign and one that many observers thought would cost the Republicans votes. But polls showed the Quayle factor had little impact on the results.

Pollsters said voters cited their belief that the economy was doing well as the major reason they opted to continue Republican control of the White House.

Democrats Oust Weicker, Build Senate Lead

By Lawrence L. Knutson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats bolstered their majority control of the Senate by ousting three-term GOP maverick Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, who refused to concede defeat, and by capturing Republican seats in Virginia, Nevada and Nebraska.

Democrats won four seats previously held by Republicans and the GOP captured two seats held by Democrats, raising the Democratic margin of control to 56-44, a two-seat gain if Democrats hold on to Florida.

Several races were decided by narrow tallies, and the contest in ing up the seat of retiring Democrat Lawton Chiles.

The race was so tight that a decision might rest in the counting of an estimated 100,000 absentee ballots. The Mack campaign said they expected to do better than MacKay since traditionally a large number of such ballots are cast by military personnel, a group that Mack considers among his constituency.

Mack's strategists said they would request an automatic recount of the ballots, a process to which they are entitled under Florida law if the winner and loser are separated by half a percentage point or less.

Dole, who lost to George Bush in the party's presidential primaries, was critical of the Republican winner for doing too little to help GOP Senate candidates.

"We could have used a little help from the vice president in some of the states — Florida," Dole said. "We pleaded with them to go to Florida."

In Washington, former Republican Sen. Slade Gorton succeeded in his comeback try despite strong opposition from Rep. Mike Lowry, a liberal Democrat. Gorton will succeed Sen. Daniel Evans, who is retiring.

Wyoming Republican Sen. Malcolm Wallop, one of the chamber's most conservative members, withstood an unexpected strong challenge from state Sen.

John Vinich, a populist Democrat. With 99 percent of the vote counted, Wallop led 89,388 to 88,504 — easily the closest outcome of the year's 33 Senate races.

Vinich had accused Wallop of being out of touch with Wyoming's economic problems.

Millionaire Wisconsin businessman Herb Kohl, who spent millions of dollars on his own race and declared his money gave him an independence few could claim, defeated Susan Engeleiter, the GOP leader in the state senate. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., had held the seat since 1957.

In New Jersey, Democratic incumbent Frank Lautenberg

withstood a determined challenge by Republican Pete Dawkins, beating the former Rhodes scholar, football star and Army brigadier general in what many described as the nation's most negative campaign.

Brushing aside the issues of his age and health, 80-year-old Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., who underwent surgery in August for colon cancer, defeated state House Republican leader Earl Strinden, 56, to keep the seat he has held since 1960.

In Virginia, former Democratic Gov. Charles Robb, the son-in-law of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, crushed black GOP candidate Maurice Dawkins for the seat of retiring Republican Paul Trible. Robb's reaction: "How sweet it is."

In Nebraska, Republican Sen. David Karnes, who was appointed to the job, was defeated by former Democratic Gov. Bob Kerrey who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Vietnam War. Kerrey reacted to victory by bursting into song, singing a rendition of Australia's "Waltzing Matilda" with its poignant words about a wounded soldier.

"Let's waltz tonight and begin work tomorrow," Kerrey said.

Florida remained extremely tight and too close to call. By midmorning, Democratic Rep. Buddy MacKay's 8,000-vote lead over conservative Republican Rep. Connie Mack had dropped to about 5,300 with 100,000 absentee ballots to be counted later in the day.

"We might have a couple of recounts before we're done," said Tom Mason, a spokesman for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

The GOP's wins came in Montana where former farm broadcaster Conrad Burns edged out Democratic Sen. John Melcher, who was seeking a third term, and in Mississippi, where Rep. Trent Lott, the deputy House Republican leader, defeated Rep. Wayne Dowdy for the seat being vacated by Sen. John Stennis, the Senate's senior Democrat.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who went down to defeat with Michael Dukakis as the Democratic vice presidential candidate, did not end Election Day empty-handed. He won re-election to a fourth Senate term.

The election decisions give President-elect George Bush the prospect of opening his administration with Congress solidly in Democratic hands.

"It's going to be tougher," said Senate Minority leader Bob Dole of Kansas, conceding that the GOP's numbers in the Senate would be shaved in the 101st Congress. "We're going to have fewer than we had last year."

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he believes that Bush will find a cooperative spirit on Capitol Hill because "the problems are too important for Congress not to work with the president."

Connecticut Attorney General Joseph Lieberman edged Weicker by a paper-thin margin after a hard-fought campaign in which he accused the senator of pursuing his own brand of liberal politics while ignoring home state concerns.

Weicker, who first gained national attention as a gruff, outspoken member of the Senate Watergate Committee and who became one of the Senate's most liberal and independent members, refused to concede.

"I wish I were here to declare a victory or defeat," Weicker told supporters. "Unfortunately, I'm not in a position to do either right now."

But he added: "No matter how all this turns out, I don't have one single gripe."

Lieberman portrayed him in television commercials as a sleeping bear who missed important votes. The attack undermined Weicker's winning coalition of moderate Republicans and Democrats.

The Senate race in Florida remained too close to call, and Republicans had high hopes of pick-

Democrats Pick Up One State Office

By Pete Brown
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters ended 20-year control over the governor's office by Republicans in Indiana and by Democrats in Montana, rejected GOP Gov. Arch Moore's bid for a fourth term in West Virginia and narrowly re-elected embattled Republicans in Utah and Rhode Island.

The bottom line Tuesday: the Democrats registered a net gain of one seat and hold 28 of the 50 governorships.

Indiana's Evan Bayh was elected the nation's youngest governor at age 32, and Moore was the only incumbent unseated as 12 states elected governors. The Republicans retook only Montana, a seat being vacated by a Democrat.

Gov. Edward DiPrete overcame allegations of unethical conduct in Rhode Island to defeat a Democratic businessman for the second time in two years, while fellow Republican Norm Bangerter was re-elected in Utah after trailing by wide margins in public opinion polls for most of the campaign.

GOP incumbents won more easily in Delaware, Missouri and North Carolina; Democratic incumbents were returned by wide margins in North Dakota, Vermont and Washington, and a new Republican replaced an old one in New Hampshire.

The governor's results in some cases seemed to bear little relation to the presidential outcome. Bayh won despite a GOP landslide for George Bush and Sen. Richard Lugar in vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle's home state. A Republican won in Rhode Island, where Democrat Michael Dukakis prevailed.

The son of former Sen. Birch E. Bayh became Indiana's first Democratic governor in 20 years by defeating Lt. Gov. John M. Mutz. With 99 percent of the vote reported, Bayh received 1,107,327 votes or 53 percent to Mutz's 989,699 votes or 47 percent.

Bayh, Indiana's secretary of state, called his victory "the honor of a lifetime."

The youngest governor in office is John R. McKernan Jr. of Maine, who was not up for re-election. He is 40.

In financially ailing West Virginia, Democratic newcomer Gaston Caperton, an insurance executive, denied Moore an unprecedented fourth term. Caperton called the outcome "a great victory for those of us who want change."

With all precincts reporting, Caperton won with 382,639 votes or 59 percent to 267,943 votes or 41 percent for Moore.

"The people of West Virginia have been very kind over the years to the Moore family in our public service. We believe as a family we gave them our heart and soul and all the years of our service," Moore said in conceding.

In Montana, former GOP state Sen. Stan Stephens wrecked a comeback attempt by one-time Gov. Thomas Judge. With 98 percent of the precincts reporting, Stephens received 183,893 votes or 53 percent to Judge's 163,175 or 47 percent.

Nine incumbents — six Republicans and three Democrats — were on the ballot. Indiana's Robert D. Orr was barred by law from a third term; Montana Democrat Ted Schwinden and New Hampshire Republican John Sununu are retiring.

In Rhode Island, communications executive Bruce Sundlun had raised questions about DiPrete's private business deals, alleged favoritism in awarding of contracts and the hiring of the ex-wife of a reputed mobster for a state job.

With 99 percent of the vote counted, DiPrete received 195,283 votes or 51 percent to Sundlun's 188,984 votes or 49 percent.

"I know this has been a tough campaign on all of us, especially on our families," the governor said. "These past few months have given me a renewed appreciation for your basic sense of fairness, and you are a fair people."

The Sundlun campaign said it would seek a recount; approximately 16,000 absentee ballots remained to be counted.

Tar Heel Democrats Say National Ticket Hurt

By Martha Waggoner
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina Democrats resurrected their complaint of four years ago and blamed the presidential candidate for the outcome of state contests at the top of the ticket.

"We need to go back to the drawing board to present a platform to the voters that's compelling," said John Crumpler, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan's campaign manager.

A popular Republican incumbent governor, Jim Martin, combined with the weak presidential ticket of Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen to hurt Democrats running for statewide office, party officials said.

Martin defeated Jordan, the Democratic nominee, by a margin of 56 percent to 44 percent with 98 percent of the precincts reporting, in an unofficial tally. Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, and Rocky Mount businessman Jim Gardner were locked in a close race for lieutenant governor with Gardner leading, 51 percent to 49 percent, with 98 percent of precincts counted.

Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis waited too long to respond to charges from George Bush on gun control and furloughs for prisoners, said Ken Eudy, Democratic Party spokesman.

"We in the South learned the hard way from Jesse Helms and the Congressional Club that you have to respond to that garbage and kick it up and throw it back at them," Eudy said Tuesday.

Crumpler said the national Democratic ticket did not help in state offices in 1984, when Walter Mondale lost to Ronald Reagan, or 1988.

But some of the Democratic Party faithful said they were Democrats because of the party's platform.

Jacqueline Brown of Wake Forest, a Dukakis volunteer, said she was a Democrat because she believed the party was interested "in the individual, the middle-class common people and their needs."

There's "something for everyone in the Democratic Party," said Mrs. Brown, a substitute teacher.

Even with Dukakis' loss, she said, "I feel I am still on the side of a winner. I can be proud."

Sara Stohler of Raleigh said she had been a Democrat all her life because she believed it's a party "concerned about a broad range of issues. ... Republicans are interested in much more limited issues."

Of particular interest, she said, are college loans because she and her husband will have two children in college next year.

"We're seeing what's happened since they cut the loans, and it's going to make it difficult," Mrs. Stohler said.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, also criticized the Democratic presidential ticket.

To win an election, he said, "you've got to knock your opponent out." Dukakis was unable to do that, he said. "Dukakis projected an image of Mr. Sweet Guy," Rauch said.

But he said Jordan had an image problem of his own — that of "capable, intelligent gentleman. It's hard to win with that kind of headline."

In addition to problems with the national ticket, Martin is "articulate, smart and good-looking and he hasn't done anything good or bad," said Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union.

"He's just been an existing governor."

Plyler also said Jordan may have hurt himself by being too honest. Jordan "talked at times when he would have been better off not to answer some questions," Plyler said.

Eudy agreed that Martin was a tough opponent because he was a popular incumbent.

"He's an incumbent governor with a lot of hair and teeth and one-liners," Eudy said.

Crumpler praised both Jordan and Martin for sticking to the issues in campaign — something he said didn't happen in the lieutenant governor's race.

Martin, he said, has "not come up with something that's patently false and put it on the air."

The lieutenant governor's race was close because Gardner "is a glib, slick huckster," Eudy said. "We let him get by with too much of the lies and distortions for too long without hitting him between the eyes."

And Rauch issued a warning of what was in store if Gardner won. "The Senate gives power they choose to give," he said of the lieutenant governor position as presiding over the Senate. "When we adjourn sine die there are no rules."

Wade Smith, former chairman of the state Democratic Party and a Raleigh lawyer, said there was nothing else Jordan could have done to win the race.

"I think they did everything that they could do," Smith said. "We had a very, very fine candidate who worked very, very hard. It wasn't a night for Democrats to win that race."

Despite the two losses at the top of the ticket, Crumpler said all was not doom and gloom for Democrats.

"In fact, the Democratic Party has been, and I think will continue to be, strong at the state level, strong at the congressional level," Crumpler said.

And Smith said everything could change in the next election, and urged Democrats to stay with the party. "Politics is incredibly fluid," he said.

Republicans Basking In Victories

By David Droschak
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina Republicans were basking in top-of-the-ticket glory today with the landslide election of George Bush and the historic re-election of Gov. Jim Martin.

"Their election means a future — that we can all buy houses," said 24-year-old Rose Plum, a 1986 graduate of East Carolina University. "The interest rates won't go up. Maybe capital punishment will come back in North Carolina. We've got 79 on death row, they don't need to be there."

Bush downed Democratic rival Michael Dukakis by about 16 percent in North Carolina, while Martin became the state's first two-term GOP governor with a 12 percent margin over former Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan.

"We stuck with our plan," said Steve Schwartz, executive director of the Bush campaign in North Carolina. "Everybody called us doing negative campaigning; we called it comparative campaigning. A Northeast liberal does not do well in the South, and that's a fact."

With 99 percent of precincts reporting, Republican businessman Jim Gardner had 1,045,948 votes in the lieutenant governor's race, while Democrat Tony Rand trailed with 1,019,492.

All this means, some political observers say, that North Carolina is finally moving toward a two-party system.

"We need to build a stronger base one year to the next," Martin said.

"I think the message is that just as the Democrats have to learn to accept the vote of the people for some Republicans today, some Republicans must also learn to accept the vote for many Democrats," Martin added.

With one million Republicans registered in North Carolina for the first time, GOP state chairman Jack Hawke said the party is on the move.

"We have a stronger party," Hawke said. "We have also had a great governor that has shown that a Republican can govern the state and be very popular doing it. With a victory at lieutenant governor, that's going to have to be a big mark, a big star in the crown for Jim Martin because his leadership led to it."

With Republicans picking up more legislative seats, the most often asked question Tuesday night was what, if any, bipartisan effect will be felt in the General Assembly?

"It's going to be a big test of Jim Gardner's leadership ability and his ability to form coalitions. It's going to be a tough job," Hawke said.

Edmisten Overcomes Bid By Carrington

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Rufus Edmisten overcame a tight race to defeat Republican John Carrington for secretary of state, leading yet another Democratic sweep into Council of State offices.

Edmisten, who will take over an office held by Thad Eure for 52 years, was ahead of Carrington 1,034,433 to 967,866 with 2,318 of 2,391 precincts reporting, or 97 percent.

The last possibility for the GOP was the auditor's race, but Democrat Ed Renfrow, seeking a third term as auditor, defeated Republican Edward Garner Jr., an assistant secretary of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, 52 percent to 48 percent in late returns. With 97 percent of the precincts counted, Renfrow had 1,001,860 votes to 927,449 for the challenger.

Democratic Attorney General Lacy Thornburg beat Sam Wilson, a conservative Republican who has campaigned alongside Oliver North. With 97 percent of the precincts in, Thornburg had 1,099,593 votes to Wilson's 849,559 votes.

State Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett, beat Republican Tom Rogers 54 percent to 46 percent and will succeed retiring Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips. Etheridge had 1,033,505 votes to 878,569 votes for Rogers.

Democratic Insurance Commissioner Jim Long beat Hermon L. "Pete" Rednour, owner and operator of a machine parts manufacturing company in Gastonia. He had 1,100,138 votes or 57 percent to 830,567 votes or 43 percent for Rednour with 97 percent of the precincts in.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, a six-term Democrat, came back from an early deficit to beat Republican Leo Tew, a retired airline pilot and Sampson County farmer. Graham had 1,132,045 votes to 802,094 for Tew, a margin of 59 percent to 41 percent.

Turnout Reported Heavy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elections officials in some counties imposed crowd control measures and a Wilkes County precinct called for more voting booths as North Carolina voters flocked to the polls in unusually high numbers.

"We think it's doing about as any general election would go," said Marva Whittington with the Wake County Board of Elections. "We're getting lots of calls. We're having lines ... but they're getting them through real good. We haven't had any complaints."

Ms. Whittington said she expected about 70 percent of the county's registered voters to show up at the polls Tuesday.

So did many other elections officials. In Guilford County, polls were kept open an extra hour — until 8:30 p.m. — to accommodate long lines.

"I think they're really voting," said Ann Barbour, Cumberland County elections supervisor. "It should be about equal to 1984, which was 70 percent."

"It's not usually this busy, even in a presidential election year," said Barbara Pendergraft, a registrar at Northern High School in Durham. "I've never seen this many people here this early and I've been working elections for 20 years."

There are 3,432,042 registered voters in North Carolina: 2.2 million Democrats and 1 million Republicans. In 1984, the statewide voter turnout was 68.4 percent, compared with 66.9 percent in 1980.

Voter registration figures for this year compare favorably with 1984, said state elections board director Alex Brock. Between April and October of this year, 240,540 new voters registered, compared with 309,214 in the same period in 1984.

Democrat John Brooks won a fourth term as labor commissioner by defeating Richard Levy, a Greensboro businessman. Brooks led the challenger 54 percent to 46 percent, tallying 1,022,593 votes to 882,094 for Levy.

Democratic Treasurer Harlan Boyles, with Republican opposition for the first time since he first ran in 1976, beat Nancy L. Coward. Boyles compiled 1,011,206 votes while Ms. Coward had 897,270.

Bladen County voter watches his step as he enters a horse trailer used as polling place

Horse Trailer Becomes Polling Place

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABBOTTSBURG, N.C. — When Bladen County elections supervisor Jim Giles found his designated polling place was missing, he had to use some horse sense.

Giles, who raises show horses, raced home and got a 6-foot-by-16-foot horse trailer, and that is what voters in the precinct found when they came to cast their ballots.

"As much bull as we have had to listen to during the campaign commercials on television, it's only fitting that we vote in animal trailer," said one voter, who asked that his name not be used.

A gas station leased by the county as a polling place in the rural community of Abbottsburg was destroyed by fire this summer. Another gas station and convenience store — the only other public building in the community — was not suitable as a polling place because its owners refused to open a half-hour early at 6:30 a.m., the time polling places are legally required to open.

Giles posted a large "Vote Here" sign outside the trailer, which has no door and only half-walls. He then ran an extension cord to the gas station for an electric heater and the voting machine.

"Sometimes, you just have to do what you have to do," said precinct registrar Cora Lee Clark, who was wedged behind a table in the trailer.

The precinct has 511 registered voters and normally draws about 100 to the polls, election officials said.

Republicans Pick Up Nine More Seats In State House

By F. Alan Boyce
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Republicans, buoyed by GOP victories in the presidential and gubernatorial races, topped nine incumbent House Democrats and picked up at least one seat in the North Carolina Senate on Election Day.

The GOP gained House seats in the 20th, 25th, 28th, 34th, 40th, 44th, 53rd, 61st and 62nd districts as Republicans put George Bush in the White House and returned Gov. Jim Martin to the governor's mansion.

The GOP ousted Sen. Bob Warren in the 15th Senatorial District and knocked off Sen. Mary Seymour in the 32nd. Democrats defeated Sen. Jim McDuffie in the 34th District to cut their Senate losses, but Sens. R.P. "Bo" Thomas and Charles Hipps were close to being knocked off in the 29th District.

If the figures held up, the Democratic advantage in the House would be whittled from 84-36 to 75-45, while the GOP deficit in the Senate would change from 40-10 to 39-11 — 37-13 if Hipps and Thomas lose.

Former GOP Rep. Richard Chalk defeated Sen. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, 18,848 to 17,542 in the 32nd District with all 36 precincts reporting. Republican Leo Daughtry beat Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, 21,280 to 19,610 or 52 percent to 48 percent in the 15th District.

Democrats took over the 34th Senatorial District as former Mecklenburg County Commissioner Fountain Odom beat Sen. Jim McDuffie 24,223 to 21,383 with all 36 precincts counted. McDuffie had served in 1975, 1977, 1981, 1985 and 1987.

Hipps, D-Haywood, and Thomas, D-Henderson, were in a virtual deadlock with Republicans Bob Carpenter and C.W. Hardin with 96 percent of the precincts counted.

TEAM PAC, a political action committee working on behalf of incumbent Republicans, claimed credit for many of the GOP gains.

In the 20th House District, Rep. George Brannan, D-Johnston, failed in a bid for a fifth term when he came in third behind Republican Billy Creech and Rep. Barney Woodard. Creech had 18,380 votes in the race for two seats while Woodard polled 16,388 and Brannan had 14,098. Republican Philip Taylor had 12,664.

In the 25th House District, Rep. Bob McAlister, D-Rockingham, failed to be re-elected to a sixth term, placing fifth by less than 500 votes in a four-vacancy district behind Reps. Bertha Holt, and Fred Bowman, D-Alamance, and Republican John Patterson.

Democratic Rep. Mary Jarrell, D-Guilford, lost her seat in the 28th House District. With all 33 precincts reporting, Republican Steve Arnold had 16,337 in the race for two seats while former GOP Rep. Steve Wood had 15,648. Ms. Jarrell had 13,069 and former Sen. Rachel Gray had 12,371.

The 34th District became all-Republican as Reps. Tim Tallent, Bobby Barbee and Coy Privette won re-election and Clayton Loflin took the fourth place over Democratic Rep. Bill Alexander.

Republican Gene Wilson moved into the 40th District with Democratic Reps. Dave Diamond and Judy Hunt, replacing Democratic Rep. Wade Wilmoth.

Rep. Dave Bumgardner, D-Gaston, was denied a 12th term in the 44th District, placing sixth in a race for four seats. Republican Doris Lail joined GOP Reps. Vernon Abernethy, Jonathan Rhyne and Walt Windley there.

Rep. Jeff Enloe, D-Macon, lost his bid for an eighth term to GOP challenger Marty Kinsey 10,927 to 9,378 with all 42 precincts counted in the 53rd District.

Incumbent Democrat Casper Holdroyd, D-Wake, lost a close race to Republican James Pope, 52 percent to 48 percent in the 61st District with all 25 precincts reporting.

In Wake County's District 62, Republican Paul Stam beat incumbent Rep. Bill Freeman 11,605 to 10,348 with all of the precincts counted.

Nearly a third of the General Assembly races were foregone conclusions Tuesday as 30 House Democrats, led by House Speaker Liston Ramsey, and eight Republicans faced no opposition. In the Senate, 12 Democrats swept in without opposition along with one uncontested Republican, Sen. Larry Cobb of Mecklenburg County.

Other Democrats re-elected to the House without opposition were Thomas Hardaway of Halifax County, Joe Mavretic of Edgecombe County, John Kerr and John Tart of Wayne County, Ed Bowen of Sampson County, and Edd Nye of Bladen County. C.R. Edwards, Luther Jeralds, Don Beard and Alex Warner of Cumberland County, Dan Blue of Wake County, John Church of Vance County, Jim Crawford and Billy Watkins of Granville County, H.M. "Mickey" Michaux, George Miller and Sharon Thompson of Durham County, Anne Barnes and Joe Hackney of Orange County, Don Dawkins of Richmond County, Charles Beall of Haywood County, Jo Graham Foster, Ruth Easterling, Pete Cunningham and Howard Barnhill of Mecklenburg County, Annie Kennedy and Logan Burke of Forsyth County and Toby Fitch of Wilson County.

Democratic newcomers who were unopposed were John Hurley in the 18th House District seat vacated by Joe Raynor and Pryor Gibson, who beat Rep. Foyle Hightower in the 33rd District primary.

Incumbent Republicans returning without opposition were Lois Walker and Bob Brawley of Iredell County, Doris Huffman and Stine Isenhower of Catawba County, Charles Buchanan of Mitchell County and Harry Grimmer of Mecklenburg County.

Former Rep. George Robinson returned to the House unopposed in the 46th House District along with David Flaherty Jr. They replaced Reps. Jim Hughes and Edgar Starnes.

Senate Democrats running unopposed were former Rep. Frank Ballance of Warren County in the seat vacated by J.J. "Monk" Harrington, Bob Martin of Pitt County, Henson Barnes of Wayne County, Jim Ezzell of Nash County, Jim Speed of Franklin County, Ralph Hunt and Ken Royall of Durham County, Ollie Harris of Cleveland County, Helen Marvin and Marshall Rauch of Gaston County, Bill Martin of Guilford County and Jim Richardson of Mecklenburg County.

Pleasure Stitchers Put Mend In Sewing

By Linda Williams
LAT/ WP NEWS SERVICE

While the other girls in her New York City junior high sewing class were making aprons, Daphne Maxwell Reid was stitching a tailored wool suit — complete with lining. Reid, taught to sew at age 9 by her mother, by then was helping to stretch her father's small salary by making clothes for the entire family.

"My brothers had suits and hats, and I had organza dresses. My mother and I always matched for the Easter Parade. And I matched my dolls," Reid said recently. Unlike most of her peers across the nation, Reid didn't stop sewing when economic necessity was no longer a factor. Today the 40-year-old actress sews to show off her considerable skill and to give a unique look to a wardrobe that is 85 percent homemade.

She makes dresses and suits from cotton, silk, linen and wool gabardine. There are jaunty hats made from molds purchased in New York's garment district. For Hollywood parties, she makes evening gowns of taffeta and lace. Though she mostly sews for herself, her godchildren often sport outfits fashioned in the large sewing room of Reid's Los Angeles home. Her husband, actor Tim Reid, who recently starred with her in CBS-TV's "Frank's Place," was the recent beneficiary of a homemade leather jacket with cashmere collar. It has taken a while, but the American home sewing industry now recognizes that women like Reid are the key to its future prosperity.

Unlike the legions of housewives of the past who sewed for the entire family to save money, the typical home seamstress today most likely has a career and is motivated mostly by pride and personal artistic expression. Most are women between 24 and 44 years old, are well educated and relatively well off. They use their skills to decorate their homes and sew garments primarily for themselves.

After 15 years of decline, the home sewing industry is showing signs of revival as it caters to these women's taste for high fashion and their demand for home decorating and craft ideas. (Surveys have found, however, that men have not yet joined the renewed interest in home sewing.)

The industry is vigorously promoting new, technologically advanced machinery and offering classes for the uninitiated. Sewing machine sales increased 8 percent in 1987 after being essentially flat for about a dozen years. The National Sewing Guild, a group for those who sew, has since 1985 increased membership to 72 chapters in 35 states from 11 chapters in 10 states.

It doesn't amount to a boom as yet, said Leonard Ennis, executive vice president of the American Home Sewing Association, the New York-based trade group for the $3.5 billion-per-year industry. "But we have hit bottom and started a turnaround."

For years, the industry thrived on a philosophy supported by mothers and schools alike that every female — the nimble-fingered as well as the clumsy — should have basic sewing skills. In those days, men usually brought home the cash and women usually made it go further with their labor at the sewing machine and other household skills.

The women's movement and acceptance of blue jeans as the basic wardrobe in the 1960s started the erosion of the market. Still, the industry continued to grow until about 1970, when millions of women working away from home began to see no economic incentive in taking precious time to sew when cheap, ready-to-wear retail clothing was increasingly available.

The American market was flooded with cheap imported clothing, and stores such as K mart offered an ever-increasing variety of inexpensive garments. "If you are looking to recreate something (at home) on the K mart level, you are not going to save money," said Madeline H. Guyon, a spokeswoman for the Sewing Fashion Council, the promotional arm of the industry association.

The largest proportion of women who stopped sewing at home were lower-income mothers and housewives, according to industry executives, leaving a relatively small group of women who sew just for pleasure. The sewing industry, however, didn't seem to appreciate or cultivate those dedicated customers until the mid-1980s, acknowledged Robin Rose, a spokeswoman for Simplicity Pattern Co. "These are people who are starting to spend more on better fabrics because they know they will get a better garment."

A recent survey by Sew News, a Peoria, Ill., magazine for those who sew at home, discovered that its readers had an average annual household income of $41,600. About 37 percent work full time outside the home, and another 20 percent are part-time workers. Readers also reported that they spend an average of $457 a year on fabric, notions and patterns.

A greater percentage of highly educated women are likely to sew than those who are less educated, according to demographer Margaret Ambry, who recently wrote about changes in the market for American Demographics magazine. Some in the home sewing industry speculate that well-educated women may be more aware of the staggering markups included in most ready-to-wear retail prices.

Candlelight Wedding Conducted Saturday

The candlelight wedding ceremony of Zandra Relender Holton and Michael Thomas Best, both of Ayden, took place Saturday at 2 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents.

The double-ring ceremony was conducted by Elder C.R. Parker. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Holton and Vergie Ward, all of Ayden.

Organist Marsha Edwards and vocalist Owen Forbes presented wedding music.

The bride's brothers, Deleno Holton of Greensboro and Derander Holton of Greenville, lighted candles prior to the ceremony.

Gwendolyn Joyce Fields was matron of honor for her sister. Eddie Roberson was best man.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore an ankle-length lace dress fashioned with a round neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a satin hat with seed pearls and lace veil and carried a bouquet of burgundy and white silk carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a teal satin dress. The mother of the bridegroom wore a burgundy and white dress. Both wore white corsages.

A reception was given after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Edna H. Bailey of Hillside, N.J., sister of the bride, was hostess.

The couple will reside in Winterville.

The bride is a graduate of Fayetteville State University and is employed at Telamon Corp. The bridegroom is employed at Collins and Aikman in Farmville.

Historic Georgetown House Opens As A Museum

By Sarah Booth Conroy
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The teenyboppers and their boomboxes, the college students full of brass and beer, the candy wrapper droppers and the T-shirted tourists cavort down the avenues of Georgetown, often straying into quiet side streets where the houses seem to huddle against the '80s.

Above them all, still safe on a gently sloping hill, sits the proud and pristine Tudor Place, fortunate above all early great houses of the Republic.

Tudor Place, at 1644 31st St. NW, is now open as a house museum. For the first time in its long history, the public (by appointment to be sure and on their best behavior) is welcome to come, to admire, to row against the flow in time's river, back through eight generations of people who loved their house and their history.

The 5½ acres of pristine park still keep the calm edge-of-the-country air as on the day Tudor Place's architect, William Thornton, looked at his inspired neoclassical design with his client, Martha Parke Custis Peter — George Washington's stepgranddaughter — and they saw it was good. For 178 years, the estate in all its architectural glory and historical importance was guarded by the same family as a sacred trust, a family honor and a patriotic duty.

Over the mantelpiece in the drawing room is a figure of a sleeping Time, holding a broken scythe. Armistead Peter 3rd, the last of his line to stand guard, liked to think that time slept for those who lived at Tudor Place.

"The fact that a family lived in a certain place and that members of that family could be found there generation after generation gave a stability to life for which no substitute will ever be found," Peter once wrote in a marvelous book, "Tudor Place," about his house and family.

In the book's introduction, Walter

Muir Whitehill writes that Tudor Place was fortunate because most city houses of the early Republic have been "converted into institutions, offices or apartments or, in some instances, fitted out as museums for tourists to gaze at." His preference and Peter's was for houses "lived in, as their builders intended them to be."

But time moves, if not forward, at least to a different place, and as real estate taxes, weeds, the population and the pressures of Georgetown grew, Peter changed his mind. He and his first wife, Caroline, established the Tudor Place Foundation Inc., a nonprofit organization, in 1965, before her death in the same year. In 1966, Peter gave a scenic easement on the property to the government, the first in the country under the terms of the 1935 Historic Sites Act, so the property couldn't be desecrated after he was gone. And before his death in 1983, at 87, he set aside a sum of money for its maintenance.

"He left the trust everything — his socks in the chests, the pincushions, the vases," said Osborne Phinizy Mackie, the house museum director.

The house, after almost five years of painstaking study and restoration, looks all freshly done up. Mackie oversaw the restoration, beginning with a paint analysis to discover the colors chosen by Thornton and the new owners. Workmen repainted the parlors yellow and the dining room in an eggplant shade chosen from a scrap of the original paper, cleaned the elaborate plaster cornices of old paint that had obscured the three-dimensional detail, at long last insulated the garrets, and installed modern fire and security systems. For a whole year the furniture restoration services of conservator Jorge Aguirre were engaged.

Mackie spent most of two years going through masses of papers and objects — 75 trunks in the garrets alone, as well as crates and crates in a warehouse, plus the contents of drawers, boxes and shelves.

He discovered objects and documents everywhere. A letter beyond price — from Washington to his wife Martha Washington, one of only two known — was in a cardboard box. From the 20th century, Mackie found checks, bills, party menus and receipts. The painting of John Custis IV of Williamsburg, father-in-law to Martha Washington, which once hung at Arlington House, was discovered to be all overpaint, but when it was cleaned, Mackie found a wonderful early 18th-century portrait of Custis, Martha Washington's petit point shell cushion and her wrapper, a loose housecoat, also turned up.

Peter wrote "Tudor Place" in 1969 and printed it privately on heavy vellum.

Loving Wife Treasures His Head

Dear Abby: My husband and I have been married for three years. He's a wonderful man and I love him dearly, but here's the problem: He wears a hairpiece and he's very secretive about it. He knows that I know he wears a hairpiece, but I have never seen him without it, and I feel as though he is almost hiding something from me. He doesn't sleep in it, but he insists on having our bedroom pitch-dark at night.

I would never ask him to let me see him without his hairpiece because I know how sensitive he is about it, but I'm sure he would be just as handsome without it.

Lately he has talked more openly about it, telling me how a hairpiece is made, fitted, etc. Wearing a hairpiece can be an inconvenience at times. Do you think I should tell him that if he's wearing it for me, he doesn't have to? — Loving Wife

Dear Wife: Don't hit him with it between the grapefruit and the cornflakes, but when he mentions his hairpiece again, tell him how you feel about it. A man who wears one wears it because he thinks he looks better with it — and many do, if it's styled and fitted properly. But the more openness and less "hiding," the better the relationship.

Dear Abby: I hired a young man to do some work in my home (painting). Two painters showed up. One of them had his 3 1/2-year-old son with him, and informed me that his wife "had to work," so he had to look after the little boy. Well, Abby, this man also had to "work," and I am not a baby sitter!

I think this is a lot of nerve to bring a child along on a job. In the first place, a painter can't do a proper job when he has to keep one eye on his child. Also, it's unfair to the child.

This has taught me a lesson. When I hire work done in the future, I will specify that the workers may not bring their children. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. — Imposed Upon

Dear Imposed Upon: You can't be imposed upon without your cooperation. It should not be necessary to specify "no children." And if a working person shows up with a child in tow, he (or she) should be set straight. And promptly.

Dear Abby: You recently published a poem titled "Equality Day," sent to you by Kris Cavosie, who had found it in a newsletter published by the Nebraska Coalition of Women. You stated that the author was unknown.

Well, I am the author. I wrote that poem in 1973 when I first became aware of the need for women's liberation. However, I've always felt that the quest for women's liberation is not anti-men — that men as well as women have much to gain.

I am happy to allow non-profit organizations to use my poem. All I ask is that I be credited as the author. Over the years, this poem has surfaced in many publications. It's been fascinating and rewarding to see the distance this "child" of mine has traveled, and now it's made "Dear Abby"! — Nancy R. Smith, Mansfield, Mass.

Dear Nancy Smith: Thank you for coming forward to claim the credit you deserve. You are unquestionably the author.

German Chancellor Draws Jeers During Kristallnacht Ceremonies

By Kevin Costelloe
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFURT, West Germany — West German Jews today led their fellow citizens in a day of atonement on the 50th anniversary of Kristallnacht, and hecklers jeered Chancellor Helmut Kohl during a solemn ceremony.

In Austria, Parliament observed a minute of silence for Kristallnacht victims, and American Jewish activists re-enacted the Nazi practice of forcing Vienna Jews to wash city streets with toothbrushes.

Israel's president, Chaim Herzog, said Kristallnacht laid the groundwork for "the tragedy of the Jewish people," and he urged Israelis to work together to avoid a repeat of the tragedy.

On the night of Nov. 9-10, 1938, Nazi thugs beat and murdered Jews, ransacked their homes and businesses, and destroyed synagogues. The rampage left city streets littered with glass — hence the name Kristallnacht, which means Crystal Night in German.

On the eve of Kristallnacht ceremonies, right-wing extremists spray-painted swastikas and pro-Nazi slogans on a synagogue in a small Bavarian village, police said. The incident occurred early Tuesday in Binswangen, in southern West Germany.

Jews objected to Kohl's presence at the Frankfurt ceremony, citing his 1985 visit to the Bitburg cemetery where 49 Nazi SS officers are buried, and his alleged insensitivity to Jewish concerns.

"Mr. Chancellor, what about Bitburg!" one of two hecklers on the balcony of Frankfurt's West End synagogue shouted as Kohl spoke.

"Mr. Chancellor, why are you lying? We want our rights!" both men shouted.

"Let me finish," Kohl interjected. Other voices were heard from the main floor of the synagogue, but it was not clear what they were shouting.

"Even today, the wounds of this conflagration are not fully healed," said West Germany's Jewish community leader, Heinz Galinski.

Galinski, a 75-year-old survivor of the Auschwitz death camp, delivered the main address in a service televised nationwide from West End, the only synagogue in Frankfurt that was not destroyed on Kristallnacht.

The synagogue was badly damaged but has been completely refurbished, with its stone walls, majestic pillars and sweeping arches returned to their former splendor.

West German police surrounded the building to guard against possible attacks on the politicians, church representatives and other guests inside.

"The younger generation — just as we ourselves — are always on guard against a return of the indescribable," Galinski said.

"Remembering — not forgetting — must be our command, the command for all," he said.

An estimated 6 million Jews died during the Nazi Holocaust.

Vienna's Parliament president, Leopold Gratz, said ordinary Austrians who were "rapacious anti-Semites" or obsessed with the "evil spirit of Nazism" joined Nazis in the fearsome pogrom 50 years ago.

In the shadow of Vienna's landmark St. Stephen's Cathedral, Rabbi Avi Weiss, Glenn Richter and Bernie Glickman of the New York-based "Coalition of Concern" donned yellow stars like those the Nazis forced Jews to wear.

The three used a giant yellow toothbrush to rub away a "Nazi Waldheim" slogan they scrawled on the sidewalk. Weiss said any commemoration of Kristallnacht in Austria was "false" and "form without substance" as long as Kurt Waldheim is president.

Waldheim has been accused of participating in war crimes when he served with the German army in the Balkans in World War II. He denies the allegations.

Israel's president, during a ceremony at Jerusalem's Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial, urged Israelis to maintain unity despite sharp political disputes.

"We have to work together so this dark period will never return, and that those who today follow in the path of the Nazis will not reach their goal," he told about 200 people in Yad Vashem's Hall of Remembrance, a bare room with an eternal flame and the names of death camps imbedded in the floor.

West German Justice Minister Hans Engelhard said 91 Jews were murdered during the Kristallnacht program, while 267 synagogues were destroyed. Generally accepted figures say about 7,500 Jewish businesses were ransacked and 30,000 Jews were sent to concentration camps.

Communist East Germans also were marking Kristallnacht, with the main ceremony scheduled in East Berlin, but President Horst Sintermann has rejected responsibility for the Nazis' murder of the Jews.

For years, the East German government has argued that because it only came into existence as a nation in 1949, it did not have a legal responsibility for the atrocities of the Nazi regime.

U.S. Recalls Nazi Rampage

Children still learning their history and adults who lived through the worst of it gathered today on the 50th anniversary of Kristallnacht, the night when Nazi thugs attacked Jews and their property throughout Germany and Austria.

The violence that ushered in the Holocaust, the Nazi slaughter of 6 million Jews, was remembered in New York City at candlelight vigils, memorial services, commemorative poetry readings by schoolchildren and panel discussions focusing on discrimination. Many Jews planned to burn memorial candles at their homes.

Kristallnacht is German for

"crystal night," evoking the shards of glass from windows smashed by the Nazis.

One of the scheduled speakers at a service at Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, a major training center for rabbis, was the school's president, Alfred Gottschalk, who was 8 at the time and living in Oberwesel, Germany.

Gottschalk remembers Nazis tearing up holy Torah scrolls and prayer books and members of his family wading into a stream to fish out pieces of parchment and paper.

"Here, hold these, we're going to try to put them back together again," his grandfather told him.

In New York City, a special service at the Union of American Hebrew Congregations included a procession of worshippers bearing Torahs into the chapel and the ark, where the Torah — the first five books of the Bible that contain the basic tenets of Jewish law — is kept.

Organizers said this symbolizes the hope for the future of the Jewish people.

An eight-block candlelight vigil was scheduled by children from The Ramaz School in Manhattan to the Congregation Kehilath Jeshurun.

"By carrying a candle — symbol of the flames that burned that night in every city and village — each child is a link from the horror of the past to the hope of a different future," organizers said in a statement.

Crash Site To Be Excavated

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BANGKOK, Thailand — A team of Laotian and U.S. experts will excavate a U.S. warplane crash site next month to search for remains of missing American servicemen, a U.S. official said today.

The search will take place Dec. 10 in Nong district of the central Laotian province of Savannakhet, the official Laotian news agency KPL said Tuesday. It gave no more details on the crash site.

The report, seen in Bangkok today, quoted a news release from Laos' Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It would be the fourth joint excavation in the communist nation and the second this year. The U.S. official, who requested anonymity, said Laos has pledged to conduct three joint excavations this year.

In May, U.S. and Laotian soldiers searched a remote hillside in Savannakhet but failed to find the remains of two fliers missing after their plane was shot down in 1966.

The United States is seeking to account for 2,387 American servicemen and civilians missing in action, or MIA, from the war in Vietnam, which also spilled over into neighboring Laos and Cambodia. Most of those unaccounted for are airmen who crashed.

The war that cost 58,000 American lives ended with communist victories in all three countries in 1975.

Officials have made good progress on the MIA issue this year.

On Nov. 3, Vietnam returned what it believes to be the remains of 23 Americans. That brought to 100 the number of suspected remains Vietnam has repatriated since agreeing in August 1987 to hasten cooperation on the issue.

Also this month, U.S.-Vietnamese teams completed the second joint field investigations in the countryside to find out the fates of American airmen shot down over northern Vietnam.

The teams found no remains, but an informed source said today that they retrieved some personal effects that may have belonged to missing Americans, including a helmet that villagers had been using to grind rice.

He said the teams surveyed a crash site and otherwise investigated a few cases in mountainous areas of Ha Son Binh, Hai Hung and Son La provinces.

Arabs Stage Strike In Occupied Lands

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — Palestinians blocked roads with burning tires, unfurled outlawed national flags and shut businesses today in a general strike marking the start of the 12th month of their uprising against Israel.

Soldiers shot and wounded three Arab teen-agers in clashes in the occupied Gaza Strip, Arab hospital officials said.

In Gaza City's Mograbi Quarter, soldiers who were being stoned responded with a favorite weapon of Palestinian youths, the slingshot, before opening fire with guns, an Arab witness said.

A 17-year-old Palestinian boy later was wounded in the hip with a plastic bullet in that incident, said an official at Ahli Arab hospital, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Another youth, also 17, suffered a serious chest wound from a plastic bullet in the Nozeirat refugee camp, the official added. A third youth was reported grazed in the head in a clash in Gaza City.

Jewish settlers in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, meanwhile, published demands that the government take tougher action against Palestinian rioters. The demands came after a 52-year-old woman settler was injured in the head by a stone.

The stoning attack occurred Tuesday while the victim was in a car just inside Israel that had come from the West Bank, Israeli news reports said.

The victim, Margaret Rosner, was in serious condition today in Beilinson Hospital near Tel Aviv, a hospital official said.

Public transportation was halted and shops closed in the latest strike against the Israeli occupation of the territories captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

In the West Bank city of Bethlehem, activists sprayed walls with slogans praising the PLO's plans to declare Palestinian independence at a meeting of the Palestine National Council which begins Nov. 12.

Reece Regrets Early Career Decision

Would Like Another Chance To Be Considered For ECU's Coaching Position

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Missouri defensive coordinator Carl Reece said he made a mistake in 1974 that he'd like a opportunity to make up for.

Back in 1973, Sonny Randle guided East Carolina to a 9-2 record, thanks in large part to Reece, who was the defensive coordinator of a squad that finished among the best in the nation statistically.

Following that year, Randle decided to move on to Virginia and Reece, now 44, was chosen as his successor.

But his stay didn't even last long enough for a press conference.

"At one time I was offered the job, took the darn thing for a couple of hours and basically got talked out of the job by Sonny Randle," Reece said. "I've regretted that since."

With the head coaching position at ECU open once again following the resignation of Art Baker effective at the end of the season, Reece would like another chance.

"I'm working like crazy just to get in on the thing," the coach said. "Just to the point where I'd be considered for the job. I'd like to get involved in this thing."

"I know they are making plans to change. They are competing on a national level. I'm excited about getting in the hunt with them."

"We've got two games left here, so I can't go all out (for the ECU job). But when the season is over with, I want to be in a position to push for this thing because I want the job."

Originally, Reece came to ECU to coach under Mike McGee and then hooked on with Randle's staff for three seasons.

After Reece went on to Virginia with Randle, Pat Dye took over the Pirates and went on to six consecutive winning seasons with an overall record of 48-18-1.

Reece moved on to coaching stints in both collegiate and professional football. He interviewed for the ECU job when Dye left, but Ed Emory, an ECU alumnus, was named.

Reece said he was too young to know any better when he decided not to take the ECU job in 1974.

"As much as anything, Sonny ended up offering me a little more money than I would have made as a head coach," he said. "But when you are young you don't think. Sonny was a little bit of a fighter. He was at arms with coach (Clarence) Stasavich (then the school's athletic director) and a couple of other things. I was always a liaison. At that time the program had a lot of growing pains. Coach Stasavich's job was to keep the budget in line."

Reece said he felt ECU's program could be turned around and pointed to two examples in Colorado, under Bill McCartney, and the University of Texas at El Paso, under Bob Stull, which have risen from the ashes this year to post winning seasons.

"This day and time in major college football, and any level, some-

Warriors Top Rose

Early Start Keys Playoff Win

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Coming into a game against Eastern Wayne, Rose coach Charlie Harvey anticipated a fast start by the Warriors, but he didn't expect a slow one from his own team.

But that's exactly what happened as Eastern Wayne broke a 1-1 halftime tie with two second half goals en route to a 3-2 win over Rose in the second round of the state 4-A playoffs Tuesday at Percy Daniels Field.

"I knew that was the way they were going to play," Harvey said. "I was anticipating that. I wasn't anticipating how flat our midfield would play."

"The first five yards we were slow getting to the ball. With the defensive effort we had against (Wilmington) New Hanover (in a 1-0 Rose win in the first round of the playoffs) it could have been a different game."

It was, however, a close game as Rose had numerous chances in the final 10 minutes but couldn't come up with the tying goal.

The loss closed out the season for Rose at 14-6. The Rampants had won eight straight en route to a fifth-straight Big East Title.

Eastern Wayne outshot Rose 14-6 in the first half, including a flurry in the first five minutes to open the game.

"That's the way we've been playing all season," said Eastern Wayne coach Dave McAlduff. "I can tell in the first 10 minutes what the tempo will be, if we can move the ball around then it's just a matter of time before we connect on it."

But it wasn't until the 27:52 mark that the Warriors got on the board.

Forward Byron Adkins went down the right side and fired a shot at Rose goalie Stephen Higdon, who stopped the kick, but failed to keep hold of the ball. Mark Rasmussen came in and kicked it past Higdon to open the scoring.

Four minutes later, Rose came back to tie it as Marty Measomer got the ball from a pack just near the middle of the field and passed it to John Bolen on the left wing. Bolen then knocked it past Mike Heston for the goal at the 31:38 mark.

Shinn Hospitalized

Hornet Owner Suffers Mild Stroke

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charlotte Hornets' owner George Shinn will undergo hospital tests for the next several days after suffering a slight stroke, but doctors say he should make a complete recovery.

Shinn, 47, became ill after giving a luncheon speech to the Charlotte Area Radio Managers. He was stricken hours before his team won its first regular-season game, a 117-105 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

Dr. Craig Van Der Veer, a neurologist at Presbyterian Hospital, said Shinn has undergone a CAT scan which revealed that a small blood vessel burst in the right frontal lobe of Shinn's brain, just above his right eye.

"It could be considered a very mild stroke," Van Der Veer said. "It's unusual to occur at his age."

Tony Renaud, vice president and general manager of WBT-AM in Charlotte, said Shinn appeared fine as he addressed the managers meeting.

"He was fine, sharp as a tack, while he was addressing the group,"

Renaud said. "About 15 or 20 minutes later, he just sat down. He looked disoriented, he was kind of rambling about his marketing plans and the team and the Coliseum in general."

ECU Hoping To Use Options

Situation This Season A Far Cry From Last Season

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Last season, East Carolina's basketball team was a squad with few personnel options, but times have changed as the Pirates get ready to open the season Nov. 17 against Marathon Oil.

All five of last year's starters return this year. In addition, senior Blue Edwards, who sat out last year for disciplinary reasons, is returning along with junior college transfer Kevin Staples and a number of freshmen.

"Last year it was frustrating to see guys not play very well but still be able to stay on the purple (first) team in practice," Steele said at his pre-season press conference. "We couldn't move them down."

"One of the ways that our teams have been competitive is that when guys don't play well they move down. When you play well you move up. I'm looking forward to being able to coach this team like I've coached my other teams in the past. I don't worry about what guys think about moving up or down."

Despite the added numbers, the Pirates still have little height and no-one taller than 6-6 in their starting lineup.

"We are small and quick and we have to utilize that," Edwards said. "I think that (an up-tempo style) will help. Most of the teams we play have a lot of big people. If we can get out on the break and establish a running game I think that will help us tremendously. We've got some guys that can play in the open court. The up tempo game is going to help those guys."

One key for the Pirates could be the play of Staples, who likely will be the tallest starter on the floor when the season opens.

"He's a good inside player and can shoot outside," swingman Kenny Murphy said. "He can shoot from 18-20 feet. Last year, we had players in the post that if you threw them a pass it would go out of bounds or they would drop it. Nobody would get it but Gus. He's not afraid to get the ball."

With such strong inside players in the CAA as UNCW's 6-9 Larry Houzer and George Mason's 6-7 Kenny Sanders returning, ECU will have to play well inside despite its size disadvantage.

"In the first public scrimmage, he (Staples) had a real good game," Edwards said. "He did good work around the basket. He scored well. If he can give that effort all season, we'll be a much-improved team. He's a tough kid. He's got good moves around the basket."

"Right now he's not as physical as he needs to be. You look around the conference and the bigger people that are there, he needs to play stronger."

The return of Edwards, who averaged 14.4 points per game in 1987, gives ECU a another badly-needed scoring threat.

Pirates Sign Players

Bucs Get Two Early Commitments

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University's basketball team announced the signing of a pair of basketball prospects for the 1989-90 season today, as the early-signing period began.

The two are Darrell Overton, a 6-6, 190-pound, junior college transfer from Craven Community College and D.J. Morgan, a 6-6, 200-pounder from Raleigh Athens Drive High School.

"Both of these players are 6-6 and will really help out our team without a doubt," ECU assistant basketball coach Chris Benetti said. "Darrell has played junior college basketball and that will enable him to bring a lot of experience to us. He could very easily make an immediate contribution to the team."

"And I think D.J. is going to be a real sleeper," Benetti said. "By the end of this season he's gonna be far and away the best prospect in Raleigh and maybe the best in North Carolina. The potential is there for him to be as good as any player in the state. At the end of this year you'll probably hear people asking how we ever got him."

Benetti said that the Pirates are hopeful of signing two more prospects today also.

"I'm fairly confident that we'll sign two more, but to avoid the red tape we're going to wait until they've actually signed before we announce them," Benetti said.

As a three-year starter for Edenton-Holmes High School, Overton averaged 15 points and 15 rebounds per game.

Morgan chipped in an average of 13 points per game and hauled down eight rebounds per contest as Athens Drive went 21-4 for the year and made it to the 4-A East semi-finals.

ECU golf coach Hal Morrison watches former student J.C. Snead on the practice tee

Morrison, Snead Reunite On Course

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University head golf coach Hal Morrison and professional golfer J.C. Snead turned the Second Annual Pirate Pro-Am Golf Tournament into a homecoming.

Snead, a 21-year veteran on the PGA Tour, took part in the event to raise money for the Pirate golf program Tuesday at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Snead was joined in the event by fellow professionals Mike Hubert and Clarence Rose.

Morrison's acquaintance with Snead dates back to the early 60's when Morrison was the head coach at East Tennessee State University and Snead was a member of the Buccaneers golf team.

"It's always good to see your old friends," Snead said. "He's (Morrison) the only reason I came here. I did it just for him."

"It's good to have him (Snead) here," Morrison said. "I've always thought that he's got one of the best swings you'll ever see in golf."

Snead is an eight-time winner on the PGA Tour dating back to his initial win in the 1971 Tucson Open. His last win came last year in the Manufactures Hanover Westchester Classic.

This year Snead totaled just under $100,000 and finished in the top 10 on two separate occasions.

"I wasn't at all satisfied with my play this year," Snead said. "I hit the ball all right, but I putted bad all year. It was probably my worst year ever putting. I don't remember hitting a good putt all year long."

Rose, a Goldsboro native, also credited Morrison with his appearance.

"I think it (the tournament) is a great idea," Rose said. "This is the first one (fundraiser) I've participated in this year, but when coach called me up and asked me to come I was looking forward to it."

Fulp Gets Elected To Carolinas' PGA

Gordon Fulp has been chosen to represent Eastern North Carolina of the Carolina's Professional Golf Association for the upcoming year, officials announced.

Fulp will be involved in the decision making for all matters pertaining to the PGA in terms of rules, tournaments and other tour events. He'll also be on the junior committee and the tournament committee for the group. Gary Shaw, an East Carolina graduate, has been elected the national secretary for PGA.

UNC Rolls Past ECU In Volleyball Action

North Carolina handed East Carolina a clean sweep, taking three games over East Carolina in volleyball action Tuesday night. UNC won 15-2, 15-5 and 15-1.

That closed out the regular season for ECU which ends up 7-17 and 0-5 in the Colonial Athletic Association. ECU plays Friday in the CAA Tournament in Washington, D.C.

UNC is 24-8 overall and in second place in the ACC with a 5-1 mark.

Vikings Pick Up Cade Off Waivers

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Former Green Bay Packers defensive back Mossy Cade, who served 15 months in prison for sexual assault, has been claimed on NFL waivers by the Minnesota Vikings.

The Vikings on Tuesday placed Cade, who was paroled last month, on the reserve list and will not ask the NFL to reinstate him for the 1988 season. Cade, 26, had asked the NFL for the right to play this season, but the league didn't honor his request. He last played in 1986.

The Packers offered Cade around the league earlier this season but found no takers among the 27 other teams. Once Green Bay released Cade last Friday, however, Minnesota decided that the price was right.

"This is a situation where there's no guarantee it's going to work out," Vikings general manager Mike Lynn said. "But we believe this player deserves a second chance."

"He's paid his dues to society by his incarceration. Sure, we gave thought to the public's reaction, but we would hope that the public believes as we do that a person who has made a mistake deserves a second chance."

This isn't the first time the Vikings have given a player "a second chance."

In 1985, they signed Chuck Muncie but released the running back early in preseason. Muncie, who had problems with drugs and alcohol, has since been charged with more drug-related crimes.

Minnesota drafted Buster Rhymes in 1985, but the wide receiver never latched his drug problem and was cut last year.

Quarterback Tommy Kramer and cornerback Ike Holt have spent time in alcoholism treatment centers.

And seven players currently on the Vikings' roster have been charged with driving while intoxicated during the last two years.

Cade was originally sentenced to two years in prison for second-degree sexual assault in one of Wisconsin's most highly publicized cases this decade.

Brown Would Like To See A Strong Finish

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina is looking for a strong finish to the football season, but it must find a way to beat Virginia, which has won three straight games, Tar Heel coach Mack Brown says.

"Many people gave them up for dead," Brown said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "It's a credit to coach (George) Welsh that he's been able to keep his team up after what they went through. Now, they have the bowl carrot dangling in their face."

The Cavaliers are led by quarterback Shawn Moore, who has rebounded from a slow start to push his passing totals to 1,760 yards and 12 touchdowns. "Shawn Moore is the key to their football team," Brown said. "As he's gotten better, they've gotten better. Virginia is one of the better football teams in our league right now. They're a very young football team and they're very good."

Brown said it was important for the Tar Heels to finish strong in their final two games against Virginia, and the following week against Duke. "We need to end up well for a lot of reasons. I know my house will be a lot more joyful and comfortable and Saturday nights will be better if we do," Brown said.

North Carolina hobbles into the game with an injury problem after Saturday's 37-14 loss to Clemson which dropped the Tar Heels to 1-8.

The Clemson loss left several Tar Heels listed as doubtful for the Cavaliers, including linebacker John Reed with an ankle injury and cornerback Skeet Baldwin with a hamstring injury.

They join defensive back Brad Sullivan and tailback Torin Dorn, who sat out last week's game. "We're in worse shape than we've been all year," Brown said. "We don't say a lot about it because people think it's an excuse. It's not. It's reality."

Wake Hoping For Winning Season Saturday

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A victory over Georgia Tech Saturday would give Wake Forest its second successive winning season in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but Demon Deacon coach Bill Dooley says the Yellow Jackets are hungry for their first conference victory.

"Every game is important to Wake Forest," Dooley said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "We're trying to accomplish our second straight winning season, something that hasn't been done since 1970 and 1971."

"No Wake team has ever had a winning conference record for two straight years and we're striving to accomplish that," he said.

To do that, the Deacons can't afford to make turnovers, Dooley said. "We must do a good job of avoiding the turnovers that cost us the Virginia and Clemson games," Dooley said.

"Georgia Tech truly has one of the most outstanding defensive teams in the country," Dooley said. "They play hard and they swarm around the ball. The defensive line is big and tough. They've had 21 sacks. They put tremendous pressure on the quarterback."

Tribe Looking To Move Outside

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series on CAA basketball prospects for the coming season.)

Last year, William & Mary's Indians relied, for the most part on a strong inside game, led by Tim Trout and Mark Batzel.

This year, however, the power of the Tribe will move outside and the three-point basket will gain primary attention when the Indians go on the warpath.

Trout, a 6-7 forward who earned All-Virginia honors, was the Tribe's most valuable player last season, averaging 16.9 points and game and 9.2 rebounds.

His performance also earned him All-Colonial Athletic Association tournament first team, and All-CAA second team regular season honors.

Batzel, the second leading scorer on the team, pushed through 12.6 points and pulled 7.2 rebounds a game to add to Trout's totals, making the two one of the strongest combinations in the conference.

Still, however, the Indians managed only a 10-19 overall mark and a 6-10 league record, good enough to finish seventh in the eight team league.

This year, the Indians have been picked in the media pre-season poll to finish in that same spot.

"This year's team is going to be entirely different," second year coach Chuck Swenson said. "Last year, when we needed a basket or a rebound, we knew we could count on Trout. This year we can't."

However, Swenson can count on some long distance shooting from two players, senior Greg Burzell and sophomore Jimmy Apple, whom Swenson calls two of the best three-point shooters in the league.

Last year, Burzell averaged 10.9 points a game, hitting 75 of 170 three-point tries. He scored 20 or more in three of the final four games of the season last year.

Apple, who was the top back-up at guard, is the leading returning scorer with an 11.7 average. He scored 51 three-point goals during the year.

Joining them as candidates in the backcourt will be juniors Curtis Pride, 6-0, and Matt O'Reilly, 6-0. Pride, who plays professional basketball during the summer, was a member of the All-CAA defensive team last year and was the Tribe chief playmaker with 102 assists on the year. He averaged 8.2 points himself.

O'Reilly, with 88 assists, averaged 2.8 points a game. But if it's what's up front that counts, the Indians may be in a heap of trouble. "We're trying to replace Trout and Batzel with six freshmen and sophomores," Swenson said. "Hopefully, our depth will make up for the lack of experience."

Still, Swenson feels the Indians have made improvements. "We're better. We're more athletic. We have more quickness. Last year, it was basically the starting five and Apple. This year, we feel like we can get immediate help from three of our freshmen. We have a solid nucleus, but we are young and inexperienced. We'll make a lot of mistakes, but someday, this team will be older and when that happens, we will contend."

Swenson is counting on the quickness to help overcome some of the other deficiencies. "We're not the old, slow William & Mary," he said. "We may play slow at times, but we are quicker and next year, with a couple of good recruits, we may be the quickest in the league."

Meanwhile, Swenson has to shore up the front court. Senior Tom Bock, 6-9, has the ability to play both inside and outside. Casey Potts, a 6-5 sophomore, could fill the shoes inside. John Leone, a 6-9 sophomore, and Andrew Emory, a 6-10 sophomore, could also come through for the Tribe.

Three freshmen could have an immediate impact, however. They are Ben Blocker, 6-6, who averaged 15.2 rebounds in high school, Eric Wakefield, 6-5, and Scott Smith, 6-8.

Adding depth in the backcourt will be Brian Jernigan, a 6-1 freshman, and Greg Taylor, a 6-3 junior, who has been hampered by back problems since arriving in Williamsburg.

"Right now we may be shooting too quickly," Swenson said of his team's progress. "We need to be more patient. I expect our perimeter people to carry us until the other kids round out. And this could cause us some problems when it comes to matching up with people like (George Mason's Kenny) Sanders (CAA Player of the Year)."

"We're further along than we were a year ago. We have 10-12 who were here last year, and they're helping teach the freshmen. And we have stability in the back court."

As usual, the Tribe will be aggressive on defense. But whether that, and the outside shooting, will be enough to replace the two departed stars will remain to be seen.

Shinn

... He was taking long pauses. There were long periods of silence." Renaud reminded Shinn of a 1 p.m. appointment at least five or six times, but Shinn didn't respond.

Shinn reportedly went to the hospital early Tuesday afternoon, after lying down in his office to rest after a meeting. Hornets General Manager Carl Scheer said Shinn complained of not feeling well during the meeting, and he later found Shinn in a disoriented state.

Stolpen said he noticed Shinn "appeared not to be well" as they talked about noon Tuesday. Attorney Stephen Stolpen said Shinn looked "wobbly on his feet" and was perspiring.

Shinn lay down and Hornets general manager Carl Scheer and the team trainer stopped by to persuade him to see a doctor. About 2:30 p.m., Stolpen, Scheer and the trainer drove Shinn to Presbyterian Hospital, where Shinn walked into the emergency room.

Officials at Charlotte Memorial Hospital declined to update Shinn's condition this morning.

Stolpen said Shinn has regular medical checkups and is in good health. At his last checkup just a few weeks ago, Shinn's blood pressure was normal, Stolpen said.

"His heart is in perfectly fine shape." There is no family history of stroke, said Stolpen. Shinn's father and mother died of heart attacks.

Doctors said Shinn will need two to four weeks of rest.

Until more tests are done, Van Der Veer said, he won't know what caused the hemorrhage. He said it does not appear to be stress-related, because Shinn does not have a history of problems with stress.

Shinn was "alert and talkative," Van Der Veer said. He said Shinn suffered no paralysis and did not need medication.

Bowl Scenarios Are Forming Some Interesting Matchups

By Herschel Nissenson

On Nov. 26, No. 1 Notre Dame beats No. 2 Southern Cal — assuming the Trojans are still No. 2 after playing UCLA on Nov. 19.

Meanwhile, No. 3 Miami wins its last three regular-season games — which also may be assuming too much because the Hurricanes play LSU, Arkansas and Brigham Young.

You're NBC. You've just lost the rich, glamorous Rose Bowl to ABC. But you now have the Fiesta Bowl in the same time slot.

If you've shelled out $300 million for the Summer Olympics and the right to televise such spine-tingling, audience-grabbing events as rhythmic gymnastics and synchronized swimming, surely you can come up with another few million for a Notre Dame-Miami rematch which, given Notre Dame, given Miami and given the ill will between the two schools, would blow the Rose Bowl right out of the TV ratings box.

Forget it. It won't happen. As of Tuesday evening, Notre Dame apparently had not made up its mind which bowl to grace with its presence, even though the Irish have more suitors than Zsa Zsa Gabor had husbands.

"Anybody that plays Notre Dame ... is going to fill the stands and the airwaves from Rome to Tokyo," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "Especially Rome."

The most popular scenario has Notre Dame playing No. 4 West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl. Both the Fiesta Bowl's executive director and president will be in East Rutherford, N.J., on Saturday to see West Virginia play Rutgers. Remember, this is the weekend when bowl invitations become semi-official, one week ahead of the Nov. 19 "official" selection date.

Notre Dame is idle on Saturday, which means there should be seats on flights in and out of South Bend if the Fiesta Bowl is inclined to send someone in that direction.

But, says Fiesta Bowl bigwig Bill Shover, "There's no deal. We've talked very seriously to both of them, they've talked to each other, but there's no deal."

Pirate Golf Classic

Rose said the Pro-Am gave him a chance to get back to practicing his game after a vacation from the tour.

"I haven't played in an event for over a month," Rose said. "As a matter of fact, I haven't played any golf in the last month. When I'm at home I don't touch the clubs."

Rose is currently listed in the 48th position on the PGA money earnings list for this season with $228,976. He finished in the top 10 on four separate occasions this year, including a second-place placing in the Byron Nelson Classic. Although Rose has yet to claim a tournament title, he has five second-place showings to his credit, including a finish in the number two spot in the 1987 Greater Greensboro Open.

"I've done well the last two or three years and I'm really looking forward to the next couple of years," Rose said. "I've come close to winning and I think a win isn't far away, but when there can only be one winner it makes it hard."

Hulbert also played his collegiate golf at East Tennessee State under the direction of Morrison. For the year, he ranks 89th on the money list with $127,752. Hulbert's best finish this year was a sixth-place showing in the Southern Open. His last win came in the 1986 Federal Express Classic.

The amateurs in the event each paid $500 apiece to participate. The format for the event was best-ball.

Bucs Have Options

"About the only time I get upset with Blue Edwards since practice started is that he's too unselfish," Steele said. "Blue has a chance to make other people better, but he's got to shoot the basketball for us to be as good as we can be this year."

With added numbers, competition for playing time has been intense.

In fact, both of last year's leading scorers, forward Gus Hill (19.3 points a game) and guard Reed Lose (15.0), could start the season on the bench. Both Hill, who was an All-Colonial Athletic Association pick, and Lose need to play their way into the lineup, Steele said.

Senior point guard Jeff Kelly has just returned to the floor after suffering an ankle injury two days before pre-season practice began Oct. 15.

And how have last year's leading scorers reacted to not being on the first team?

"I don't know. I don't care," Steele said. "By Marathon Oil (Nov. 17), they both could be starting, the same with Jeff Kelly. We change our top seven after every scrimmage. It's nice to be able to change."

Freshman walkon Robin House (6-1) from Greenville Christian Academy has worked his way into the top seven and should be one of the first guards off the bench. Other options for Steele include 6-9 Brooks Bryant, 6-7 Casey Mote and 6-2 guards Jay Sherer and Jeff Perlich, all freshmen.

Edwards has been an under-sized forward most of his career, but he said ECU's offense allows for a lot of position movement.

"That's the position I've played all my life. I'm used to it," he said. "The kind of offense we run, it doesn't matter whether I play inside or out. In this system, I'm not going to be have to play just inside. I'm going to have ample opportunity to play inside and out."

Overall, Steele is hopeful that a team with options will be a team with an ability to challenge in the conference.

"Last year after we played them the first time around, people guarded Reed and they guarded Gus and that was basically all they did. This year, they're not going to be able to do that. Our guards are going to be able to shoot the basketball."

Hornets Top Clippers For First Win

By Hillel Itale
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On Election Night in North Carolina, no one had more popular support than the Charlotte Hornets.

"A great crowd witnessed a great win," said forward Kelly Tripucka, whose 24 points led the expansion Hornets to their first NBA victory, 117-105, over the Los Angeles Clippers.

The Hornets had lost their first two games by a combined 49 points, but led 90-79 after three quarters Tuesday night and held on the rest of the way.

Charlotte coach Dick Harter intentionally shielded his players from the news of Shinn's stroke before the game, explaining afterward, "we knew there wasn't anything we could do for George."

Most of the players heard Shinn's stroke only minutes before the game during a general announcement to the crowd of 18,865 at the Charlotte Coliseum. The Hornets responded by playing their hearts out.

The Hornets took control in the third quarter, and Robert Reid finished the job, scoring 10 of his 16 second-half points in the fourth period.

Tripucka led the scoring and veteran forward Kurt Rambis added 17 points and pulled down 14 of Charlotte's 62 rebounds.

"Before the game," Tripucka said, "Dick came over and said 'Twenty-five points tonight! I won't accept anything less!' And he was serious as hell. Correct that: Serious as heck."

Rex Chapman scored 18 points. Bogues navigated through full-court pressure for 14 points and three assists. Michael Holton made two third-quarter steals to build an 11-point lead.

Reid, the 33-year-old veteran who played for 10 seasons with Houston, scored seven points in the last two minutes 14 seconds to secure the victory.

Grant Gondrezick's layup with 41 seconds left pulled the Clippers within 57-55 at halftime, but Charlotte gradually pulled away in the third quarter on a 15-9 run to take a 72-64 lead with 7:04 left in the period.

The advantage grew to 90-79 by the end of the third quarter.

Norm Nixon's free throw with 1:43 left pulled Los Angeles within 106-100, but Reid scored the next six points for Charlotte.

Quenton Dailey paced Clippers with 18 points, while Benoit Benjamin added 17. Reggie Williams scored 15 points, and Ken Norman had 15 points and 15 rebounds.

"A great crowd witnessed a great win," said Tripucka, who scored six of his points during a decisive third quarter run.

"This gives a message to the NBA that when you come into our place, we are going to scrap and hustle and play you hard," Reid said.

"It felt really good and I was very happy for the players," said Harter. "I'm happy for the fans. The building wasn't full, but it sure sounded like it was."

Pistons 116, 76ers 109

Joe Dumars scored 30 points and Detroit held off a late Philadelphia rally.

The Pistons led 110-100 with 2:30 left to play, but Philadelphia scored six straight points with Mike Ginksi's two free throws closing the gap to 110-106 at the 1:25 mark. Dumars then hit two free throws and Dennis Rodman scored on a layup to give the undefeated Pistons their third straight victory.

Hawks 112, Pacers 107

Dominique Wilkins scored 32 points and Moses Malone added 18 points and 22 rebounds as Atlanta held off a late surge by Indiana to win its home opener.

Nets 109, Bullets 101
Joe Barry Carroll had 19 points and New Jersey outscored Washington 20-2 to end the game.

Mavericks 92, Heat 88
Brad Davis scored eight consecutive fourth-period points, including a four-point play, and Rolando Blackman hit a pair of free throws with 10 seconds left to lead Dallas.

Rockets 120, Spurs 102
Houston's Mike Woodson scored 27 points, including three straight baskets that bruted a late San Antonio comeback.
The Rockets, who lost halftime leads in losing their first two games of the season, held a 25-point halftime lead but had to fight off the Spurs in the closing minutes.

Knicks 126, Bulls 117

Johnny Newman scored a career-high 35 points, including 13 during a decisive 22-6 spurt, to spark New York.

New York began the second half with a 15-4 spurt to lead 84-68. Newman scored eight points in the run, including a three-point play and a 3-pointer.

Lakers 114, Warriors 102
Byron Scott scored 23 points and Magic Johnson added 22 points and 18 assists as Los Angeles beat Golden State for its 10th straight regular-season victory over the Warriors.

Chris Mullin had a game-high 26 points, 20 in the first half, for the Warriors.

SuperSonics 97, Kings 75
Dale Ellis scored 28 points and Seattle spoiled Sacramento's regular-season debut at the new Arco Arena.

A crowd of 16,517 marked the 128th consecutive NBA sellout in Sacramento.

Canseco's Power Earns AP Honor

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — While Oakland right fielder Jose Canseco doesn't consider himself a part of baseball history, he already has some historic numbers.

Canseco, the first major leaguer to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in one season, was selected The Associated Press Player of the Year on Tuesday.

In a landslide result, Canseco received 141½ votes from a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. Los Angeles right-hander Orel Hershiser was runner-up with 13 votes followed by Minnesota's Kirby Puckett with five votes and Boston's Mike Greenwell with 4½. The balloting was conducted after the World Series.

On Aug. 6, Canseco stole his 30th base to become the 11th player to reach the 30-30 club, joining such all-time greats as Willie Mays and Hank Aaron. On Sept. 23, Canseco took his place alone in baseball history when he stole his 40th base.

"I don't think I'm going to be a person to fit in (baseball history)," Canseco said. "I think the fans and the press will put it in some kind of category."

The fans put Canseco in the All-Star game at Cincinnati by naming him on more ballots than any other player in the American League.

"It means a lot because it shows the improvement I've made between 1986 and 1988," said Canseco, who was married earlier this month.

Canseco hit .240 in 1986 with 33 homers and 117 runs batted in en route to the American League Rookie of the Year award. In 1987, he had 31 homers and 113 RBI.

This season, it all came together as he led the majors with 42 homers and 124 RBI while hitting .307.

"I don't think I had a bad drought except for an 0-for-20. And even when I was 0-for-20, I was hitting the ball well, so the key was staying consistent," said Canseco, who led the Athletics to their first AL pennant since 1974.

ECU-Coach?

times it takes five or six years to turn around or get it where you have some continuity," he said. "You have to have time so when you start setting ideals and philosophies in place you do it slow and with confidence. It takes time. You can't go in and recruit a lot of junior college players and win overnight. To have success, you have to have confidence that you'll have the time to do it."

Missouri's defense was recently cited in Sports Illustrated for its performance against seventh-ranked Nebraska. Missouri lost the game, 26-18, but held Nebraska to 116 yards rushing. In addition, the Cornhuskers' total of nine first downs was its lowest since picking up seven during a 47-0 loss to Oklahoma in 1968.

"We had a good scheme and it worked," Reece said. "You wouldn't want to do that against Nebraska every day. It makes them mad. We brought a lot of pressure and it gave them a lot of problems."

Reece is just one of a handful of possible candidates. Among assistant coaches, others who have said they were interested in the job include Miami offensive coordinator Gary Stevens, South Carolina linebacker coach Frank Orgel and Penn State defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky.

Former North Carolina State standout and professional football star Roman Gabriel, whose last coaching job was in the United States Football League, has said he would be interested in talking to ECU officials about the job.

Gabriel, who is presently working in management for the Charlotte Knights minor league baseball team, said he had not been contacted officially by anyone from ECU yet.

"I had come down to watch the Miami game and had a chance to talk to a lot of people and we were talking about the situation up there and some just sort of brought it up to me would I be interested," Gabriel said in a phone interview Tuesday afternoon.

"One of the goals I had when I came back was to maybe be a head coach in North Carolina and settle into an area. I mentioned that I would entertain the idea if East Carolina was interested in me."

Following his playing days, Gabriel coached in the junior colleges as a volunteer assistant and then as an offensive coordinator in the United States Football League under Dick Coury at Boston and George Allen in Arizona.

"It's a challenge that I haven't had the opportunity to have here in North Carolina. A lot of that has to do with the direction East Carolina wants to go. It's not a question of money as much as solidly and commitment. That means more to me than outright bucks."

But Gabriel maintained that it was all speculation until he is contacted by ECU officials.

"That's the way I look at it," Gabriel said. "I have a lot of interest. I just can't come out publicly unless there is a good chance I can get an interview. I've had that opportunity where people come out (and talk about me) and then I don't get an interview."

Other candidates said to have some interest in the position include Oklahoma offensive coordinator Jim Donnan and Auburn assistant coach Wayne Hall. Both have been mentioned as candidates but have not returned calls to comment on the situation.

Division I-AA coaches George Chaump of Marshall, Sparky Woods of Appalachian State and Jimmy Laycock of William and Mary are also possibilities.

All three, however, have refused comment while their current teams are still playing.

"I don't make any comment on any other jobs during the season," Laycock said.

William and Mary officials, though, have given Laycock permission to talk to ECU officials, according to a report in the Raleigh News and Observer Wednesday.

2 New Managers But The Same Old Question

By Scott Ostler
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

It was just a hunch, that Frank Robinson might have a reaction to the baseball news in the Tuesday morning papers.

The news was that Jim Lefebvre had been hired to manage the Seattle Mariners and Art Howe had been hired to manage the Houston Astros. Lefebvre and Howe are white.

So of the 26 major league teams,

24 have white managers.

The Baltimore Horribles have a black manager, Frank Robinson.

The California Angels don't have a manager at the moment, but of the several candidates, none has even a decent suntan. One rumor is that the Angels are considering Bob Costas, because he has demonstrated an uncanny knack for motivating a ballclub.

As Robinson figures it, one out of 25 — soon to be 26 — is a lousy average, even if the one is himself.

"It doesn't bother me that they didn't hire minorities for these positions," Robinson said from his home in Los Angeles. "What bothers me is that it's business as usual. What I mean is, there were five (managerial) jobs open this winter. The only minority person named, as being interviewed or considered for those jobs, was Bill Robinson.

"You have to know the odds against one person. That's what disturbs me. Not that Dallas (Green) or Jeff (Torborg) got hired. What bothers me is that no progress has been made as far as hiring minorities for decision-making positions.

"(Baseball owners and top executives) are thumbing their nose at people, saying, 'Hey, we're gonna do it the way we've always done it.'"

Robinson, history class, was baseball's first black manager, with the Cleveland Indians in 1975. although he preserved his amateur standing that season by managing for nothing. He was playing for the Indians when the team offered him the manager's job, and they refused to sweeten his salary by a dime.

And this is a sport in which players won't throw their dirty socks into the clubhouse laundry cart unless it's covered by a bonus clause.

Robinson managed the Indians for three seasons, he managed in the minors one year, and he skipped the San Francisco Giants from '82 to '85. And now the Horribles.

Thirteen seasons since he broke the managerial color barrier, Robinson remains the only black manager. He sees this as a lack of progress, although at least now he is paid to manage.

"It's the same situation as when I was being considered for jobs," Robinson said. "Every time a job opened up it was always, 'Frank Robinson, Frank Robinson.' What I'm trying to say is, there were other qualified people worthy of being considered.

"This time around (for the five teams hiring managers) there were other qualified people out there who should have been considered."

Give us some names, Frank.

"Willie Stargell, Bob Watson, Elrod Hendricks, Chris Chambliss. These are just off the top of my head. Bobby Tolan should be considered. Vada Pinson is certainly interested in managing and is well deserving. Tolan interviewed with Houston, but not with (John) McMullen (chairman of the board). McMullen talked to four other candidates, but not Tolan."

I asked Robinson if some teams interview or mention a man like Bill Robinson as a smoke screen, as if to say, "See, we're considering blacks."

"No doubt about it," Robinson said.

"The thing that disturbs me, is, although I know major change doesn't take place overnight, minorities have not been hired in decision-making positions. Farm directors, heads of scouting..."

Baseball's traditional argument—excuse, as eloquently expressed by Al Campanis, is that such decision-makers are hired after they have paid dues, and blacks who aspire to such jobs tend to be unwilling to spend time working up the ladder.

"St. Louis hired Ted Simmons 'as farm director,'" Robinson said. "He did not work his way up. Dal Maxvill, St. Louis general manager, did not work his way up. He was taken off the coaching lines at Atlanta. Minorities have to work their way up, not whites."

It's almost eerie. When teams hire managers, no man's qualifications are too laughable to rule him out. Many guys get big league managing jobs with no prior experience.

Bath Tied By Swain In Final Poll

By David Droschak
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Swain County has tied Bath in the final Associated Press poll for the top-ranked 1-A high school team in North Carolina after defeating rival Murphy in their annual mountain shootout.

The Maroon Devils, 9-1, received five of a possible nine first-place votes for 82 points from a statewide panel of prep sportswriters. Bath, 10-0, got the other four top

Pirates Have Happy Flight

East Carolina University's football team had a new experience late Saturday when they left Philadelphia — getting on an airplane as winners. The 34-17 win by the Pirates over Temple marked the first time since Art Baker has been the head coach of the Pirates that the squad has won a road game in which they flew on a chartered plane. Two of Baker's other three road wins in his four years at the Pirate helm have come at Raleigh against N.C. State, while the other one came at Virginia Tech. Both of those trips were made by bus. "It felt very good," Baker said of the trip. "I didn't think about it (being the first) until (quarterback) Travis (Hunter) said something about it."

Jesse Campbell's Record

Former West Craven standout and current N.C. State defensive back Jesse Campbell is stacking some pretty good numbers on his side in an attempt to garner both Atlantic Coast Conference Rookie-of-the-Year honors and an All-Conference selection.

Some arguments to support Campbell's cause:

To date, no one in the ACC has more interceptions than Campbell. He is currently tied for the conference lead with five pickoffs in the Wolfpack's nine games. That total ranks him 11th nationally.

Campbell is one of only two freshmen in the NCAA's list of the top 50 individual leaders, the other is tied for 29th.

All five of his interceptions have come against ACC foes. And two of them, against Georgia Tech and Wake Forest, saved Wolfpack victories. Campbell made a diving interception in the endzone near the end of the game to preserve the 14-6 win over the Demon Deacons and he returned an interception 64 yards for a touchdown in the 14-6 win over the Yellow Jackets.

No one in the ACC has more tackles behind the line of scrimmage on running plays than Campbell. He is tied for the ACC lead in tackles for losses, not including sacks, with 10.

Campbell is N.C. State's leading active tackler with 71 stops, a figure that ranks as the fourth highest among conference defensive backs.

Jones Also Pushing For Honors

Duke wide receiver Walter Jones, a former standout at Roanoke Rapids High School, is also trying to make a bid for the ACC Rookie-of-the-Year award.

The freshman starter had four catches for 84 yards and a touchdown last Saturday in a 35-16 loss to Wake Forest. That pushed his totals for the year to 33 catches for 536 yards and a trio of TD's.

Jones' touchdown in the Wake Forest game came on a hail mary pass by the Blue Devils at the end of the first half. He emerged from a crowd of defenders in the endzone with a 49-yard scoring reception as time expired on the first half clock.

Jones' brother Cedric is a wide receiver in the NFL with the New England Patriots and was a standout at Duke in the early 1980s.

Dilweg Rewriting Record Books

Duke quarterback Anthony Dilweg established several individual records in the Blue Devils' 35-16 loss to Wake Forest last week:

- His 475 passing yards set a new school record for most passing yardage in one game. The old record was 469 set by Ben Bennett against Wake Forest in 1980. Dilweg's 475 total is the second highest single-game output in ACC history.

- His 476 yards of total offense set a new ACC and school record for most total offense in one game. The old mark (school and conference) was 454 yards by Steve Slayden in a game against N.C. State last season.

- Dilweg pushed his passing yardage total for the season to 3,105 yards. That is also a new ACC and school record. The old record was 3,086 yards held by Ben Bennett in 1983.

- Dilweg's total offense figure for the season is now 3,036 yards, another school and ACC record. The previous best was 2,968 yards by Slayden last year.

Martin Shooting For 1,000

North Carolina, which has produced more 1,000-yard rushers than any school in the country, could have another if Kennard Martin has a big finish to his season.

Martin, a 5-10, 201-pound sophomore from Winston-Salem, has pushed his season total of yardage to 757 for the year, with 720 yards coming in the last seven games.

Thus, Martin needs a combined total of 243 yards on the ground in the final two games against Virginia and Duke.

When Martin rushed for 116 yards on 16 carries last Saturday in a 37-14 loss at Clemson, he became the first opposing player all season to rush for over 100 yards against the Tiger defense.

The last North Carolina tailback to accomplish the feat of gaining 1,000 yards in a season was Derrick Fenner in 1986.

Tar Heel tailbacks have rushed for 1,000 yards on 18 occasions, topping Southern California's mark of 17, which ranks second.

Before the lull of the past three seasons, North Carolina had at least one 1,000-yard back for 12 straight seasons.

To The Sports Editor:

I congratulate Coach Art Baker for his coaching job at East Carolina University and say it was a harder job always at losing than in winning.

I don't feel as though any team is especially blessed with a super power in winning a ball game. It may give incentive but it is pure unadulterated luck when the score is shown for any winner, in my opinion. I would not undergo the mental torture or physical stress that goes with any coaching athletic position. If it does not show up today, I believe it will come tomorrow, from my observations.

The decision Mr. Baker has made shows the real man and it may prolong his life many years and his family will benefit.

Losers often play a much better game. Losers get nothing for these efforts. If Baker had a running streak of luck and had a no losing team and was offered a tremendous cash outlay to go some place else, he would be severely criticized if he tried to break a contract. I think he is due the same consideration, as one who had to bear the burden of fate, for whatever reason.

Mr. Baker always smiled and was a gentleman. He looked for the University, from any angle, showing his love for his job and participation. Art Baker, I admire you and in my book you are a real winner and may God bless you and your family and keep you just the way you are.

Ralph Shell

To The Sports Editor:

In response to Lucy Reid's letter of Nov. 4, I would like to present the following:

Fact 1: One reason ECU currently schedules the nation's elite is because your so-called superior teams refuse to play the Pirates. In an advance response to Valvano's concern over "one-sided" fan incidents, I refer you to this paper's fine accounts of Wolfpack fans hurling liquor bottles at victorious Gamecock players and coaches.

Fact 2: ECU has whipped the Pack twice in their last three meetings, and three times in their last five contests.

Fact 3: ECU is the last team from this state to finish the football season in the Top 20 (see 1983 in your history book).

Fact 4: Regarding your slight "comparison" of N.C. State and UNC to such programs as Oklahoma's: I've been to Oklahoma, I've seen Oklahoma, I know Oklahoma; N.C. State and UNC are no Oklahomas!

Nicklaus Is At A Crossroads

A Degenerative Back Problem May Put An End To His Storied Career

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Jack Nicklaus faces a decision that will determine the course of his golfing career — indeed, whether there will even be a future career.

"I can't play the way I am. I've got to make up my mind what I'm going to do," Nicklaus said after a Magnetic Resonance Imaging examination confirmed a disc problem in his lower back.

Now, he said, he will seek further medical consultations to determine if "surgical procedures are advisable at this time."

"I want to get three different opinions from three different specialists," Nicklaus said by telephone from his home in Florida. "Then I'll weigh the risks and rewards and see where we go from there."

It may or may not involve surgery. "It may be that they can fix it easily," he said. Or it may be that his back problem cannot be solved. At best, he said, "I'll be able to play like Jack Nicklaus used to play."

At worst, he said, "I'm done."

"That's possible. That's always the worst-case scenario."

"But I don't expect that. I don't think that's what they're going to say. "The worst thing the doctors could say to me is that they can't operate and can't fix it. If they do that, they'll tell me to lose 10 pounds and go through an exercise program and make it as strong as possible, and see what we can do with that."

"But I don't expect that. I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing if I didn't expect to play golf again," Nicklaus said.

For the moment, however, his playing schedule is on hold. The result of the consultations with specialists — an orthopedic surgeon, a neurosurgeon and a specialist in arthroscopic surgery — will determine whether he will be able to fulfill commitments to play in the Skins Game later this month, and in two tournaments in December.

No timetable has been set for the consultations but they should require several days, said Larry O'Brien, a spokesman for Nicklaus' Golden Bear International Inc.

Nicklaus, whose last victory was a dramatic triumph in the 1986 Masters, has a history of back problems dating back at least 10 years.

Bank Support Of Takeovers Upsetting Regulators

By Dave Skidmore
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators are growing increasingly concerned about the vulnerability of banks participating in "leveraged buyouts," or corporate takeovers in which the buyer uses mostly borrowed funds to make the acquisition.

A spokeswoman for the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which regulates 4,450 nationally chartered banks, said Tuesday that the agency's examiners will receive new guidelines within the next several weeks requiring them to evaluate financial institutions' risk from making loans in leveraged buyouts.

"We want to make sure banks are doing a very careful analysis of exactly what the risks are," spokeswoman Lee Cross said.

Leveraged buyouts have become increasingly common in recent years amid an explosion of corporate takeovers.

Two weeks ago, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan, whose agency regulates bank holding companies, told the Senate Banking Committee he has warned banks making leveraged buyout loans to consider borrowers' prospects "in a range of economic and financial circumstances."

L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures commercial bank deposits, has said the proliferation of leveraged buyouts is increasing the risk to the financial system.

In a leveraged buyout, such as Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.'s $20.6 billion bid for RJR Nabisco Inc., an investment group uses mostly borrowed money to purchase a company. The debt is repaid either with the acquired company's cash flow or with money raised by the sale of some of its assets.

Often the investors are the target company's managers, who are acting to thwart a threatened takeover by outsiders.

The popularity of such deals and the resulting mushrooming of debt has led to concern about the ability of debt-burdened companies to withstand an economic downturn.

Critics of the financing trend say most of the deals have been put together since 1982, when the economy began expanding, and have not been tested by a recession.

If a highly capitalized company suffers a downturn, the value of its stock falls. However, a highly leveraged company could be forced into bankruptcy after a setback to pay creditors.

According to Loan Pricing Corp.,

a New York company which monitors large bank loans to corporations, banks have lent $70 billion to highly-leveraged transactions since mid-1987. Leveraged buyout and takeover lending comprised 59 percent of the banks big corporate loans in the July-September quarter.

Ms. Cross said the comptroller's office began revising its leveraged buyout guidelines after surveying the practices of 11 large money center banks and five regional institutions in late spring and early summer.

"We found that so far the banks that have been involved seem to have taken a pretty reasonable approach. ... No bank was perfect ...

but we did not see any really substantial problems," Ms. Cross said.

But, she said, "Our concern now is going forward as competition in this area heats up."

The new examination guidelines will not impose limits on leveraged buyout lending, but Ms. Cross said they will direct examiners to determine if a banks' policies include limits on such lending as a whole and limits for single deals.

One problem in developing the guidelines is that banks have widely varying definitions for what they consider highly leveraged lending, she said.

Court Takes Up Old Blue Laws

By Leslie H. Dreyfous
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — It started quietly with a few cans of sweet corn illegally sold on Sunday. But before long, the contraband bought from Cape Cod retailers grew to include carrots and green beans, and the case wound up in Massachusetts' highest court.

"I knew which items to buy because I checked with the D.A.," state Trooper James Palth said with a wink.

The case went before the Massachusetts Supreme Court on Tuesday. Several plainclothes officers, including Palth, caught a number of retail stores in the act of violating the state's blue laws, which were imposed by the Puritans about 1650 and restrict retail sales on Sunday, the legislated day of rest.

"In some towns we found no violations, but some stores chose to stay open and were taken to court," Palth said. Most violators resolved the issue in District Court by paying a $40 fine, he said.

But the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., whose A&P stores allegedly violated the blue laws, took exception to the code.

"A lot of people might want to buy their canned carrots on Sunday and that's fine," said Thomas Yonce, assistant district attorney in the Cape Cod city of Barnstable. "Prosecutors in the case were basically just looking for guidance from the highest court in the state as to the meaning of the particular clause in question."

At issue is the interpretation of a blue laws amendment, which was adopted in 1982 and, A&P attorneys argue, liberalized restrictions placed on Sunday retail sales.

Attorneys for the supermarket chain maintain stores that are authorized to sell one exempt item, such as a newspaper or film, are authorized to sell any and all items without restriction.

"If that's the case, then anyone that sells film is now exempt," Associate Justice Paul Liacos on Tuesday told attorney Evan T. Lawson, who presented the defendants' briefs. "Do you think that's what the Legislature had in mind?"

Attorneys agree the amendment is vague. It specifies only that "any store or shop which qualifies for exemption under this clause but does not qualify for exemption under any other clause in this section shall not open for business on Sunday prior to the hour of noon."

The Supreme Court took the matter under advisement, and plans to issue a ruling later.

U.S. Amnesty Program Beginning Citizenship Phase For Immigrants

By Zita Arocha
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The second step of an amnesty program that could lead to U.S. citizenship for up to 1.7 million immigrants is beginning this week amid concerns that many will not know what they must do to qualify.

And even if the applicants do get the word, immigration advocates say, they may not be able to enroll in one of the English, history and civics courses the Immigration and Naturalization Service requires them to take during this second phase.

The INS has begun mailing applications directly to the immigrants who qualified during the first part of the amnesty process. The immigrants must fill out the applications and return them to regional processing centers.

Cecilia Munoz, a senior policy analyst with the National Council of La Raza, an advocacy organization, said her group fears that the immigrants, who tend to move often, will not receive the notices in the mail and will not know it's time to apply.

Terrance O'Reilly, the deputy assistant commissioner for legalization for the INS, said the agency will deal with that problem by allowing its district directors to launch their own public outreach efforts to inform immigrants about the second step.

Immigrants who are approved in the second step of the program become permanent legal residents of the United States. Five years later, they qualify for citizenship.

To qualify for permanent resident status, the immigrants must show a basic knowledge of English and of U.S. history and government. They will be allowed to fulfill the requirement by either taking one of several tests or enrolling in a course of instruction, federal officials said.

The amnesty program is part of a 1986 immigration law intended to curtail the growing number of immigrants who enter the country illegally every year.

Immigrant advocates said they are concerned about a potential shortage of English and civics classes for immigrants, possibly causing some of them to miss the deadline for applying.

"We're predicting there will be shortages, and the problem could escalate to a crisis because if these people aren't able to adjust (their status) they will revert back to being illegal immigrants," said Munoz.

To deal with a potential shortage of classes, the district directors also are authorized to approve community programs that offer English and civics instruction as the need arises, O'Reilly said.

During the first phase of the program, which ran from May 1987 to May of 1988, 1.7 million illegal immigrants signed up for amnesty.

Lewis Files For Bankruptcy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Rock pioneer Jerry Lee Lewis filed a personal bankruptcy petition listing more than $3 million in debts, including $2 million owed to the Internal Revenue Service, court records show.

Lewis filed the petition in U.S. Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday. It lists 22 creditors seeking more than $3 million, including hospital fees.

The 53-year-old rock pianist and singer has had his ups and downs with the IRS and health problems for more than 10 years.

Lewis listed his address as being in Nesbit, Miss., which is nearly 10 miles south of Memphis.

The performer's life is the subject of the movie "Great Balls of Fire" starring Dennis Quaid as Lewis. The movie, which is being shot in Memphis, deals with a 1½-year period of the entertainer's life from late 1956 to late 1958. It does not deal with the lawsuits and health problems of the last few years of his life.

Sakharov Gets Medical Checkup Of His Heart

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Following his wife's example, Soviet human rights activist Andrei Sakharov underwent a heart examination as part of his first trip to the West.

The 67-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner, who was examined Tuesday, might receive a pacemaker to regulate his heartbeat before returning to Moscow, a family member said. Sakharov suffers from chronic angina, or chest pain.

His wife, Yelena Bonner, came to the same hospital, Massachusetts General, for heart bypass surgery in 1986.

The hospital said it would not release test results or provide any other medical information for the next 10 to 14 days, at the request of Sakharov's family.

His son-in-law, Efrem Yankelevich, says if doctors decide a pacemaker is needed, Sakharov will undergo surgery before returning to the Soviet Union later this month.

The physicist is scheduled to fly home Nov. 18, but relatives and colleagues have said his visa is flexible and could be extended.

Yankelevich said last week that pacemakers, which are implanted under the skin, are not generally available in the Soviet Union.

Though frail, Sakharov has maintained a demanding schedule and appears to be in generally good health.

He is believed to have suffered a minor stroke when Soviet authorities force-fed him during a 1985 hunger strike.

That fast, which lasted several weeks, prompted the Soviet authorities to allow his wife to come to Boston for heart surgery. She had suffered two heart attacks.

Sakharov was also weakened by a hunger strike in 1981, said Joshua Rubenstein, an Amnesty International specialist on Soviet dissidents. That 18-day fast forced the Soviets to allow a young woman, Elizaveta Alekseyeva, to emigrate to the United States to marry Sakharov's stepson, Alexei Semyonov.

"But it wasn't just the hunger strikes themselves that caused the damage," Rubenstein said. "It was the psychological pressure, the isolation, being force-fed, the stroke. Being force-fed is a form of torture, after all."

Sakharov has commented little on his physical condition. Asked at a news conference Monday about his health, he said only that "it hasn't changed either way" recently.

On Friday, he is scheduled to travel to New York City for a luncheon given by the Union of Concerned Scientists. From New York, he plans to go to Washington for a board meeting of the International Foundation for the Survival and Development of Humanity, of which he is a director.

On Monday, Sakharov plans to visit President Reagan at the White House.

Walesa Convinces Workers To End Strikes At Two Polish Shipyards

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GDANSK, Poland — Employees at two small shipyards in Gdansk called off strikes today after Solidarity leader Lech Walesa urged workers to end protests against a government plan to close the Lenin Shipyard.

Several hundred workers gave up their strike and took down banners at the Wisla Shipyard after receiving assurances that some workers fired after a strike in August would be rehired, a strike leader said.

At the Repair Shipyard, workers held a morning rally, then ended their strike after several appeals by Walesa, strike participants said.

The strikes began Tuesday at the Wisla and Repair yards in this Baltic port to protest the government's plan to close the nearby Lenn Shipyard, birthplace of Solidarity, the outlawed free trade union movement.

On Tuesday night, workers at both yards defied an earlier appeal by Walesa to end their strikes and stayed put overnight in near-freezing weather.

Last week, communist authorities said they were closing the Lenin Shipyard Dec. 1 because it is losing money. Solidarity leaders said the plan to close the shipyard was an attempt to cripple Solidarity at a time the government says it wants to negotiate.

Walesa, after meeting with the Lenin Shipyard management on Tuesday, indicated he would not insist on an immediate reversal of the closure plan before talks open with the government. He said he was told at the meeting it could take two years or more to close the yard.

"At first we had one month. Now we have two years," said Walesa, an electrician at the yard and winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize.

"We will fight for it (the Lenin Shipyard) and we will save it," he said. "But the blade is not at our throats... We have time and we can talk about the shipyard later."

Strike leaders said Tuesday that they were protesting both the closure order and the delay of government-opposition talks on Solidarity's future. Leaders of the movement are demanding its legal reinstatement.

"This is a warning to the authorities that we want the government to set about talks right away," said Jan Stanecki, a protest leader at the Wisla yard, which has about 1,000 workers who make yachts and river craft.

He said 400 to 500 Wisla workers supported the strike. Some of the strikers at the plant's gates huddled over fires roasting sausages Tuesday night as police vans were posted at the entrances.

About 150 strikers at the 4,500-worker Repair Shipyard, which renovates ships, also vowed Tuesday night to stay off the job "to the end," according to one worker in a group standing at the gate.

Through emissaries, Walesa urged the strikers to end the protests. He said there was time to solve the Lenin Shipyard dispute and strikes could hinder resolution of the issue of talks with the government.

But he also said that to improve the climate for the talks officials must reinstate 100 coal miners in southern Poland fired after strikes in August.

The government promised the negotiations in exchange for Walesa's help in ending those strikes, Poland's worst labor unrest in seven years.

But both sides have since disagreed on the agenda and the government objects to longtime Solidarity advisers Adam Michnik and Jacek Kuron as members of the opposition's delegations.

Authorities told Walesa in August that Solidarity's future would be on the agenda, along with broader issues of political and economic reform.

Poland's centrally planned economy is in disarray, with inflation at 60 percent so far this year.

Solidarity, the only free trade union movement ever allowed in the Soviet bloc, was chartered by the government in 1980. It was crushed in a December 1981 military crackdown and later outlawed.

Hirohito Sends 'Best Regards'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — Emperor Hirohito's condition stabilized and he appeared to be feeling better today despite another discharge of blood, palace doctors said.

On Tuesday, the 87-year-old monarch suffered his worst crisis since Sept. 19, when he was bedridden with internal hemorrhaging. Officials quoted Grand Steward Shoichi Fujimori as saying Hirohito appeared to be feeling better today. Fujimori said the emperor asked him to express his "best regards to all the people who have come to pay their respects."

A steady stream of well-wishers has visited the Imperial Palace in central Tokyo daily since Hirohito fell ill.

Kenji Maeda, spokesman for the Imperial Household Agency, said Hirohito discharged some blood Tuesday night, and that doctors gave him 0.42 pints of blood in a transfusion.

This morning, the emperor's blood pressure was 118 over 58, a sharp improvement from Tuesday evening's 68 over 30 reading. A normal blood pressure reading is 120 over 80. Hirohito's fever, which rose to 103.2 degrees on Tuesday, was 99.7 this morning, Maeda added.

Doctors said the emperor slept well Tuesday night, contributing to his stabilizing condition. Physicians have been on emergency standby since Sunday, with three doctors staying overnight at the palace.

Palace sources say it's become difficult to continue bloody transfusions because doctors are having difficulty finding suitable veins to administer the transfusions.

Hirohito, the world's longest-reigning monarch, has received 41.56 pints of blood since Sept. 19. Doctors say he is bleeding internally in the upper intestinal area.

Palace officials have refused to confirm reports that Hirohito has cancer.

Sandinistas Receive Lukewarm Response To Plea For Storm Aid

By Julia Preston

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Sandinista government has received a lukewarm response to its calls for international aid to repair the ravages of Hurricane Joan, increasing the prospects of a dire financial crisis that many officials and economists expect here in coming months as a result of the storm.

The hurricane that tore up towns and croplands in a swath across central Nicaragua Oct. 22 has underlined the predicament of the Sandinistas in the 10th year of their revolution: neither the West nor the Soviet Bloc is willing to adopt and underwrite their experiment in revolutionary socialism, even in the wake of a bruising natural disaster.

"The world is beginning to get tired of Nicaragua," commented a European diplomat.

Damage reports continued to trickle in all week from crippled government agencies and villages that were cut off from the capital by washed out roads and communications. The electric company alone suffered $2.5 million in losses, officials said, including 620 miles of downed lines. A multimillion-dollar port under construction at El Bluff, a massive Bulgarian project on the east coast, was damaged substantially, according to reports reaching diplomats in Managua.

More than 80,000 people remain homeless, and losses in coffee, bananas and other export crops are valued at as much as $50 million, economists said. Nicaragua may earn less than $200 million from all its exports this year, a sum that will cover only about a quarter of its already severely restricted import needs.

Reynaldo Tefel, head of the National Emergency Committee that handles the international hurricane aid, described it as "really insufficient" for the scope of the problem.

Cuba, Mexico and pro-Sandinista community and church organizations in the United States led the list of donors of food, medicines and other emergency items, totaling about 2,500 tons. Canada, Sweden, West Germany, Spain and the Netherlands have promised to support small reconstruction projects with about $2 million each. The U.S. government provided no aid.

Soviet Ambassador Valeri Nikolayenko said there will be "some increase" in the Soviet Union's planned economic assistance for 1988, now equal to about $300 million. The Soviet Union, battling its own economic hard times, has sought to avoid rises in its aid commitments here.

Since 1985, as Nicaragua's political isolation has grown, worldwide foreign aid has declined from $700 million to about $500 million this year.

The storm caught the Marxist-led government just when it had undercut its own position for more foreign help, Western diplomats said. The 38 opposition activists arrested July 10 amid violence at a demonstration in the town of Nandaime remain in jail. Many European governments view the Nandaime arrests as open defiance by the Sandinistas of the regional peace process championed by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias.

In July, the government further defied the peace process by closing the news program of Catholic Radio. Last Tuesday it shut down another news hour, "Six on the Dot," one of Nicaragua's most widely heard independent news broadcasts.

"I don't think even the tremendous impact of the hurricane will alter the current displeasure in Europe with the Sandinistas," one diplomat from that region said. Spain, West Germany and other European nations are waiting for the peace process to culminate in a formal accord between the government and the Contra rebels before considering aid increases or investments.

In addition, in mid-October the Sandinista-controlled National Assembly raised doubts about aid delivery when it passed a law barring humanitarian groups here from receiving any U.S. aid from nonlethal assistance being sent to the Contras. This year's Contra aid bills included $22.5 million for medicines and care for child victims of the war.

Only days before the storm, the government ordered Catholic Relief Services in New York to take back a shipment of medicines it sent to Managua. The Sandinistas launched a campaign of insults against Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo because he received part of $10 million in U.S. funds earmarked to assist him as an observer in peace talks between the government and the Contras.

After Joan, Nicaraguan Sandinista officials called on the Catholic Church to provide medicines and other relief items.

The government's urgent appeals for hurricane recovery aid were "like the letters little children write to God," one Nicaraguan businessman observed.

The effect of Joan's destruction is increased because Nicaragua's economy was already a disaster, diplomats and economists said. "They don't have any kind of cushion," said a diplomat.

"You can't design a policy for economic recuperation because you don't really have an economy," said an ambassador from an industrialized nation. Inflation is running around 10,000 percent a year. A fierce recession has caused the output of Nicaragua's few industries to drop by an estimated 30 percent since February.

Basic wages cover only about a third of what a poor family needs just to eat, according to government figures. For the first time in Nicaraguan history, poor people who were supposed to be the main beneficiaries of the Sandinista revolution are going hungry.

Richard Stahler-Sholk, an American economist at a progovernment think-tank here, said, "Most of the world seems to think this was just another average natural tragedy in some remote corner of the globe. But it was a very serious economic blow to Nicaragua."

China Using Soldiers To Aid Quake Areas

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BEIJING — China deployed hundreds of soldiers in relief operations as the death toll from the earthquake that struck southwest China on Sunday rose to nearly 1,000 Tuesday.

An official in China's Civil Affairs Ministry in Beijing said the death toll had reached 938, but it was clear that the government's information on casualties was still far from complete.

Reached by telephone Tuesday night, an official at the National Seismological Center in Beijing said that it was still impossible to know the full extent of the casualties because roads and communications to some affected areas were still cut.

China's national television network, giving its viewers details of the earthquake for the first time since the quake struck two days ago, showed pictures of Chinese army trucks loaded with soldiers rolling through damaged towns in Yunnan Province.

The 30-second television report also showed relief workers carrying the body of an earthquake victim against a background of shattered houses.

The television report said the death toll was 600, with 578 injured but added that these figures came from one county alone. Earlier official reports said that the earthquake destroyed most of the houses in two counties and damaged buildings in 14 others.

A local newspaper in Kunming, the capital of Yunnan Province, said that the government had deployed

1,000 soldiers in 50 trucks to aid civilian relief workers.

The troops appeared to be carrying food, medicine and other relief supplies and helping to evacuate victims of the quake.

Officials reached by telephone Tuesday night at the provincial government headquarters in Kunming said they could provide no information on either the casualties or the relief effort.

The epicenter of the earthquake was located about 240 miles southwest of Kunming.

The People's Daily, the leading Communist Party newspaper, carried a report on the earthquake on its front page today but made no mention of casualties.

This has been a difficult year for China, which has been grappling with inflation, charges of corruption among officials, and complaints from the public about the country's overcrowded railroads. Two major airplane crashes and four railroad accidents have occurred, leading to speculation that the government is not on top of things.

The government, apparently eager to show that it is in control, has tended to withhold information about natural disasters or accidents until it can demonstrate success in dealing with them.

China's state-run radio made an extraordinary disclosure Tuesday. In discussing Sunday's earthquake, it said that in 1970 another earthquake struck the same southern part of Yunnan Province and killed 40,000 people. That huge loss of life went unreported by the government-controlled press at the time.

Refugees Trapped In Mines

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BANGKOK, Thailand — Fanatical guerrillas of the communist Khmer Rouge have forcibly relocated thousands of Cambodian refugees, trapping them in a heavily mined, malarial jungle, Western relief officials said today.

They said that since June, the guerrillas have moved all but 1,000 of 9,500 refugees from the U.N.-aided camp of Ta Luan in Thailand's eastern Trat province to a new camp on the Cambodian frontier several miles away.

Several thousand other refugees were moved to the border from the O'Trao-Natrao camp in northeast Surin province.

In front of aid officials, guerrillas transferred everything from Ta Luan in Chinese-supplied trucks — entire houses, even papaya trees.

They left behind a ghost village of "the crippled, the blind, the amputees," said one Western official, who like other sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

Aid officials on Aug. 27 declared a medical emergency at Ta Luan upon finding, one source said, "160 patients, 45 of them seriously ill, and a 15-year-old medic in charge."

The Khmer Rouge has barred relief officials from the new site, saying it is "too dangerous." But one official said a Thai military officer who visited it a few days ago "was shocked. Conditions were desperate. They had no medical facilities and it was in a very malarious area."

Refugees who managed to flee say the area is mined toward the Thai border to prevent escape.

B-1 Pilot Guides Burning Jet To Pasture

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABILENE, Texas — An Air Force bomber pilot was hailed as a hero for maneuvering his burning B-1B away from houses and trailer parks and into the cow pasture where it crashed after all four crewmen bailed out.

The crash in west Texas on Tuesday afternoon was the third since B-1 aircraft began flying four years ago as America's first long-range bomber in more than 25 years. Four crewmen died in the earlier accidents.

The $204 million aircraft crashed shortly after takeoff for a routine training flight from Dyess Air Force Base, where 29 B-1Bs are based, Air Force officials said.

Three crewmen bailed out, then Capt. George M. Gover turned the smoking four-engine aircraft toward an unpopulated area and flew about a half-mile before ejecting, said Walter Gilstrap, who drove a pickup truck through fields to rescue the men.

"In my mind, what that pilot did was not only save the lives of his crew but the lives of civilians in the area," Gilstrap said.

The pilot avoided a sparsely populated area of farm houses and trailer parks eight miles west of Abilene.

"He rode it out for as long as he could and set it down where no one would be hurt," said Gilstrap. "They ought to give that man a Distinguished Flying Cross."

The Air Force set up a roadblock to seal off the site and would not speculate on the cause of the crash. Military investigators intended to examine the wreckage today, said Air Force spokeswoman Beverly Foster.

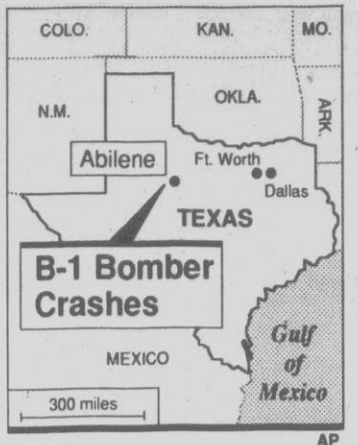

The wreckage was scattered over an area seven miles by two miles, said Al Dostal, another Air Force spokesman.

Gover and his crewmates — Capt. Michael E. Waters, aircraft commander; Capt. Charles M. Zarza, ofensive systems operator; and 1st Lt. Anton Eret Jr., defensive systems operator — were all in good condition today at the base hospital, said Air Force spokeswoman Linda Gellnere.

The plane was flying about two miles north of Interstate 20 near Tye when smoke spewed from its left engine, said witness Lou Paulsen.

"At first there was just a puff of smoke, then fire," Paulsen said. "It looked like it started to go out, then it flared up big."

FCIC Instructed To Tighten Rules

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Federal Crop Insurance Corp. has made progress in safeguarding itself against a recurrence of huge overpayments but needs to make an even greater effort, according to a congressional watchdog agency.

The government-owned corporation must tighten its procedures considerably or risk further losses, according to a report from the General Accounting Office, an investigative arm of Congress.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corp. is owned by the Agriculture Department and supported by the taxpayers.

It acts as a partner with private companies in insuring farmers against crop losses from such natural disasters as drought, flood, hail and insects.

The program is designed to take the place of costly disaster aid legislation that often is hurried through in election years.

Last year, the General Accounting Office made a study of how crop losses were settled by adjustors from the private companies. The GAO concluded there was a problem.

It found that 95 percent of the 134 claims that it examined were adjusted incorrectly by adjustors for the private companies. It said these errors resulted in overpayments of nearly $3 million.

And the GAO's small sampling only scratched the surface.

Since 1980, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. has paid losses of almost $2 billion on policies written and adjusted by these private companies, which are known in insurance industry terminology as "reinsured companies."

Deficit Control Plan Will Be Late

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The high-level advisory commission on the federal budget deficit probably will miss its self-imposed deadline for producing a plan to reduce the government's red ink, one of the panel's co-chairmen says.

Democrat Robert Strauss says the recommendations from the National Economic Commission may not be delivered to the Bush administration and Congress until March 1 or even later.

The commission will hold a full day of hearings on Nov. 16, with Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan heading up a list of big names expected to testify.

This hearing had been billed as a showcase that would launch the panel into a month of intensive deliberations aimed at coming up with a deficit reduction plan by Dec. 21, in time to influence the next administration's first budget submission to Congress.

But Strauss said Tuesday those plans will likely be scrapped in favor of a more leisurely approach to the budget deliberations, if that meets the wishes of President-elect George Bush.

The 12-member commission, created by Congress last December, was viewed by many as offering the best hope of breaking through the seven-year political deadlock over reducing the federal budget deficit.

Supporters hoped the commission would be able to come up with a package of spending cuts and tax increases that would be acceptable to Congress and the next president.

But Bush has already said he will ignore any recommendations for higher taxes to reduce the deficit.

At its first meeting last May, the commission announced it had agreed to an accelerated schedule that would have a final report completed by Dec. 21 so the panel's recommendations could help shape the Bush administration's first budget package. The law set a March 1 deadline while giving the president the option of extending the deadline to Sept. 1.

Strauss' comments Tuesday at a conference sponsored by the American Stock Exchange were the first public confirmation of reports that the commission would not meet its self-imposed deadline. He conceded the panel was "going to have a hard time" coming up with an acceptable package.

Two Republican members of the panel, former defense secretaries Caspar Weinberger and Donald Rumsfeld, want faster growth in military spending but at the same time oppose higher taxes.

Another panelist, Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has said he will work to block recommendations for tax increases.

In comments to reporters after his speech, Strauss said he was not totally ruling out an attempt by the commission to complete its work before Christmas, but he said such an effort would not be launched without approval from Bush, who will appoint the final two members of the panel.

"Whatever he wants, he can have," Strauss said of the president-elect.

Judge Rules Against Drug, Alcohol Tests

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS — An administrative law judge ruled that the Star Tribune engaged in an unfair labor practice by imposing drug and alcohol testing policies without bargaining with the newspaper's union.

The company's refusal to provide information about the policy's enforcement at the union's request also constituted an unfair labor practice, the judge, Wallace Nations, said in his ruling last week in Washington.

Such testing meets legal definitions of issues that must be negotiated between employers and unions, the judge said.

Nations recommended the newspaper offer a job to any applicant rejected under the policy since it was imposed in January 1987 and to pay the applicant for related losses. He also recommended that the company rescind any punishment that might have been imposed on employees under the policy and compensate them for their losses.

Diane Williams, assistant director of the National Labor Relations Board's information division, said the ruling may set a national precedent because the board has not ruled on appeals of such matters.

The Star Tribune's policy requires a medical exam, including drug and alcohol screening, for applicants to whom the company offers a job. If applicants test positive for drug use, the company will withdraw the job offer.

Under the policy, current employees also may be asked to undergo screening when management believes job performance or conduct is impaired by alcohol or drug abuse.

John Dennison, vice president of labor relations for the newspaper, said Monday that no employee has been tested under the policy since it took effect Jan. 1, 1987, and that he knew of one job applicant who had withdrawn after learning about the policy.

The newspaper also was urged by the judge to revoke its drug and alcohol testing policies covering applicants and employees in guild jobs and to negotiate future policies with The Newspaper Guild of the Twin Cities. The guild's Local 2 represents about 350 newsroom and circulation employees of the Star Tribune.

Dennison said the company was disappointed by the ruling but had not decided whether to appeal to the full NLRB.

Joe Moore, the board's deputy executive secretary, said that if the company does not appeal Nations' ruling by Dec. 1, the board will adopt it, probably in early December, and the recommendations will take effect. If the company does appeal, a panel or the full board will consider it.

Toymaker Donating Toys To Poor Kids

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO — A Japanese toymaker is donating more than $250,000 in toys to poor children in San Francisco as an apology for selling Little Black Sambo dolls in Japan.

Sanrio Toy Co., whose U.S. operations are based here, also has stopped making the Sambo character and two similar black-faced toys.

Sanrio came under attack in July when The Washington Post carried a story describing the popularity in Japan of black caricatures based on Little Black Sambo, a children's book figure created by British author Helen Bannerman in 1898.

Sanrio executives apologized immediately and yanked $15 million worth of the offending Sambo, Hanna, and Bibinba characters from the company's 3,000 boutiques throughout Japan.

Sanrio executives met with members of the Congressional Black Caucus last week to propose a $257,000 toy distribution to poor children, a Japan-U.S. children's exchange and the development of multiracial characters for a monthly magazine the company publishes for its millions of young Japanese customers.

Kurt Yonezawa, vice president of Sanrio America Inc., said apologies, while appropriate, are not enough.

Law Office

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Jim Holshouser has joined the Washington-based law firm of Patton, Boggs & Blow and will open a new office here.

Holshouser will serve in "of counsel" to the firm, which means he does not share in company profits like a partner would, but is paid a salary based on his work and contributions to the firm.

Earlier this year, Patton, Boggs & Blow merged with the Greensboro and Raleigh firm of Foster Conner Robson and Gumbiner. The combined firm has offices in Washington, Baltimore, Greensboro, Raleigh and Tampa, Fla., with 143 lawyers.

Holshouser, who was governor from January 1973 to January 1977, will work in real estate, environmental, financial and international business law for the firm.

Magazine Rates Top 50 Employers Of Working Moms

More Companies Make The List

By Sherrie Clinton
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Two computer companies, an ad agency and two prescription drug companies are the top five U.S. companies for working mothers to work for, says a newly released study in Working Mother magazine.

Working Mother's study, published in its October issue, listed the top 50 companies for women to work for, but did not rank them. It did, however, identify the top five companies as Apple Computer and International Business Machines; the advertising agency of Hill, Holiday, Connors, Cosmopolos and two drug companies, Hoffman-La Roche and Merck.

It was the third year that the magazine has published a list of the top companies in the United States for working mothers, but the first time 50 companies made the list. In the first year, only 30 companies were on the list. Last year there were 40.

"The list is a way of recognizing the companies that are providing at least some of the services working mothers need," said a spokeswoman for magazine. But it is also a way of showing how few companies provide these services, she said.

There are more than 20 million working mothers in the United States, yet only 2 percent of the 1.2 million companies employing 10 or more people offer employer-sponsored child care, the magazine noted.

Working Mother, which is published by Working Mother-McCall's

Group, commissioned the study by Milton Moskowitz, co-author of "The 100 Best Companies to Work for in America."

The top 50 were selected and ranked within categories on the basis of the following criteria: how pay compared to other companies in the same industry, opportunities for advancement, support for child care such as financial, referrals and actual care, and benefits.

The benefits included maternity leave, parental leave, adoption aid, and flexible employment policies that allow part-time work, job-sharing and flextime. A worker who chooses flextime, for example, can schedule the work day to begin or end earlier or later than usual.

IBM offers a wide series of family benefits, according to a public relations spokesman. He said that the company had found the benefits improve morale and loyalty and make employees more productive.

"It also helps us attract the best and brightest employees. We have one of the lowest turnovers in the nation, less than 3 percent annually," he said.

IBM announced some additional family benefits for its 228,000 U.S. employees last week. IBM said that its employees can take leaves of absence of up to three years, with benefits, upon approval of their manager. Formerly, IBM granted a one-year personal leave of absence. Employees who leave must be available to work part-time the second and third years of their leave and are not guaranteed a job at the Good employee benefits put Procter & Gamble and Du Pont among the top 50 companies in the United States for working women to be employed, local representatives of the companies said.

A Working Mother's magazine study, published in its October issue, listed the top 50 companies for women to work for, but did not rank them. It did, however, identify the top five companies as Apple Computer and International Business Machines; the advertising agency of Hill, Holiday, Connors, Cosmopolos, and two drug companies, Hoffman-La Roche and Merck.

Greg DeVoe, personnel manager of the Procter & Gamble plant in Greenville, said the company has several employee benefits that may be especially useful to its 132 women employees.

"We do provide child care leave for up to a year following the birth of a child," he said.

In addition, employees receive a number of personal holidays a year in addition to vacation, and the company's health, medical and dental benefits "provide security for the family."

In the management ranks, the company tries to transfer employees with their spouses who may find employment in another area where a Procter & Gamble facility is located.

The company also has an "employee assistance program that deals with drug and alcohol, mental health issues and family counsel-

Green Bar Bill: A Living Legend In Scouting

By Clay Deanhardt
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

He is standing on a porch overlooking Blount's Bay off the Pamlico River, speaking quickly in a clipped, European accent about his days as a boy. The men gathered around him are quiet, listening carefully to what the older Danish man has to say.

It looks kind of like an old TV commercial for E.F. Hutton.

But in this real-life situation, the older man is dressed in olive drab shorts with matching socks and an olive, short-sleeve shirt. He wears a kerchief around his neck, and his shirt is dotted with sewn-on patches with names like "Gilwell" on them. A small patch on his right arm stands out most clearly: It's a simple design of two green bars with the name Bill inscribed diagonally across them.

Green Bar Bill is the only man that can wear that patch, because it was designed for him. He is the world's most famous living Boy Scout, the author of the Boy Scout Handbook (second in circulation only to the Bible) and the definitive book on the founder of the Boy Scouts, Lord Baden-Powell.

To the men and the boys gathered for the weekend at the Herbert C. Bonner Scouting Reservation, Green Bar Bill, born William Hillcourt, is a living legend. When he talks, they listen.

And he likes to talk.

"I got involved with Scouting when I got the Danish translation of Baden-Powell's handbook about Scouting for boys," Hillcourt says.

"In those days there was a simple way of getting into Scouting because all you needed to do was to get together with a few of your friends and form a patrol — and you just went out and did Scouting."

Hillcourt got that book, a gift from his mother, at Christmas in 1911 when he was 10 years old. He hasn't stopped Scouting yet.

Hillcourt's father was a carpenter, and he moved around Denmark quite a bit looking for work. Hillcourt bounced around with his father, and it wasn't until he was 16 that he was able to stay involved with a troop and become what would today be called a Senior Patrol Leader, the youth leader of a troop.

By 1920, the Scouting movement was gaining momentum around the world, and Baden-Powell decided it was time to call together the world's Scouts for a jamboree. Hillcourt was still working with the troop he had joined four years earlier.

"Denmark had decided that every troop should send a representative to the jamboree, so that's how I managed to get to the first world jamboree in 1920," he says. "And because the Danish competition team won the world championship, the second world jamboree came to Denmark."

"By then I had written three Danish boys' books and ... (earned) a master's of science in pharmacy." The second world jamboree was held in 1924.

Hillcourt took his credentials and walked into a Copenhagen newspaper office, asking to be its correspondent for the jamboree. He got the job, dropped his pharmaceutical career, and never looked back.

"In 1925 I got restless. I was getting too old. I had better get out," he says, laughing.

Denmark's loss became a United States legend.

Hillcourt came to New York City in 1926 and began working in the supply division of the Boy Scouts of America. Again, fate took over when Hillcourt was forced to use the elevator in the building he worked in after he broke a leg.

"We had to wait just as long for elevators in those days as we do today," he says. While he was waiting, Hillcourt struck up a conversation with the man next to him.

"His name was James E. West (first chief Scout executive for the United States) and we got to talk about American Scouting. I got to explain about something that I thought should be improved about it."

"The result was that he asked me to put it in writing. I wrote an 18-page memorandum and he called me into the office and said that, 'We've been talking about the patrol method and that's lacking in Ameri-

Mexico's Cervantes Festival Fills Streets For Two Weeks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GUANAJUATO, Mexico — Mid-night street theater, Cuban jazz, flamenco dance, roving street clowns and mimes: It's all part of the International Cervantes Festival, a two-week celebration staged each fall in this charming colonial city.

The 16th annual edition of Mexico's cultural event features about 150 dance, theater and music repertory groups from 57 countries and Mexico.

It also draws countless "unofficial" folk bands, clowns and mimes to the twisting cobblestoned streets and hidden alleys of Guanajuato, a 16th century silver mining town about 225 miles northwest of Mexico City.

"The festival is an expression of friendship between peoples," says Lourdes Gomez, a spokeswoman for the Cervantino, as the event is known in Spanish. "People forget about their troubles, and culture overcomes crisis."

Each year, thousands of visitors from Mexico and abroad enjoy near-continuous performances staged in streets, theaters, parks and open-air stages throughout the city.

The sounds of Andean flute music give way to brass, reggae and rock 'n' roll. Strollers always seem to be gathered on some street or plaza enjoying an impromptu mime act or a play sandwiched between the festival's headline events.

Among them was the stirring performance last week by Mario Maya's flamenco dance company, the Andalusian Gypsy Theater. The sharp, clipped vibrations of the troupe's exaggerated handclapping and foot-stepping were felt throughout the four-tiered Juarez Theater.

The choreographer, born into a Gypsy family that lived in a cave in Granada, Spain, says he began experimenting with forms of flamenco dance theater in the 1960s as a way to fight the marginalization of Gypsy culture under the Franco regime.

"For me, it was a necessity. Flamenco was a way of expression, of spreading the culture through theater," Maya says, describing his efforts as the "folklorization" of flamenco.

The troupe's sharp dance score, complemented by an encore of individual performances, elicited bravos and a standing ovation in the theater.

The smell of roasted corn husks filled the air as Jose Maria Vitier's nine-piece jazz band from Cuba torched the open-air stage at Guanajuato's downtown granary, the site of bloody fighting during Mexico's fight for independence from Spain.

With Vitier hammering on a Steinway and electric pianos, and Lazaro Gonzalez on violin, the ensemble sped through 12 numbers that included a percussion-driven rendition of Keith Jarrett's "My Song."

Those who weren't at the granary were on the street in front of the Juarez Theater, surrounding Indian saxophonist Kandri Gopalnath as he knelt on a 7-foot square Persian rug and wailed on the instrument.

Fusing the Western sax with Eastern musical strands, Gopalnath's free-form instrumental at times differed little from the sounds of sitar.

Prince's Singing Sister Debuts Her First Album, 'Royal Blue'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Tyka Nelson's songs come from a very private world.

"I kind of locked my mind away in a bubble. There's a place where nobody can touch me," said Ms. Nelson, 28, whose debut album is called "Royal Blue."

"The drunks on the street, the killings, the kids with no homes — there's a place I can go. The songs come out of that," she said.

Her first single is called "Marc Anthony's Song."

"Marc Anthony lives in that world, Paris lives there. I imagine that it's true that they are there."

Ms. Nelson's romantic streak dates back to her childhood in northern Minneapolis, when she would watch Shirley Temple and Barbra Streisand movies. Music runs in the family. Her father, John Nelson, was a pianist and composer while Mattie Nelson, her mother, was a singer.

Then, of course, there was her older brother: Prince.

"Mom was singing and daddy playing," she recalled. "My mother would play her music. I got to listen to lots of different things. Dionne Warwick and Nancy Wilson. Daddy would listen to Top 40 songs on the radio. He would have to learn those songs."

Ms. Nelson recalled seeing her brother's first feature movie, "Purple Rain."

"I cried through the whole movie," she said. "It was him on film, like Elvis Presley. It was one of the first times it hit home that he was really doing something. I just saw his face and tears started running down my face."

Ms. Nelson has settled down a bit since "Purple Rain." When "Sign O' the Times," Prince's latest film, was released, she didn't even see it.

"I don't want to be influenced. He sent me the tape and I decided I was going to wait," she said.

Ms. Nelson also declined to make use of "Paisley Park," Prince's $10 million recording studio outside of Minneapolis. In fact, she wouldn't even let Prince help at all.

"Prince didn't hear the album until it was finished. They look and have an idea, then you start doubting yourself."

Given her obvious connections, some resentment might have been expected among the studio personnel. But Ms. Nelson said she had no problems.

"Everybody's been very receptive," she said. "I did it away from him and that was intentional. I've got a lot of pride. I wanted to know I could do it on my own."

CASH BACK

How Did Over 200 of Your Friends and Neighbors Receive Cash for Saying "Good-bye" to High Heating and Cooling Bills?

They did it by replacing that old inefficient heating/cooling equipment with high-efficient equipment that qualified for Greenville Utilities CASH BACK rebates.

Whether you are remodeling or building a new home, you can get a CASH BACK Rebate ranging from $75.00 to $400.00 per piece of equipment. The amount depends on the type and efficiency of the equipment you select.

Time is running out. The program ends January 15, 1989, so call today!

If you'd like a free information packet on a CASH BACK Rebate, call Greenville Utilities Energy Services Office at 752-7166.

This program is funded by the North Carolina Department of Commerce, Energy Division, from money made available through Exxon Oil overcharges.

etry is still revered in Ireland and Scotland, Ossian performs traditional folk music from both those lands with a contemporary flavor.

Group members Tony Cuffe, John Martin, George Jackson and Iain MacDonald create a fluid, multilayered tapestry of sounds that fuse winds (flute, tinwhistle, Highland bagpipes) and strings (fiddle, cello, guitar, cittern, tiple) with the driving beat of a bodhran (a one-sided Irish goatskin drum).

Ossian's varied instrumental repertoire includes lively jigs and reels, stately strathspeys and marches, and haunting airs and laments. Their vocal numbers encompass a wide range of heroic epics, comic ditties, and songs of love, emigration, and politics — each providing a vivid, insightful glimpse of Celtic life and culture over the last 300 years.

Writers' Network Plans Meeting

GREENSBORO — Members of the nation's largest statewide organization of writers will gather Friday through Sunday in Greensboro for the fall conference of the North Carolina Writers' Network.

The meeting at the Greensboro Sheraton Inn will include a keynote address by book critic Jonathan Yardley, winner of the 1981 Pulitzer Prize for distinguished criticism. Yardley, a columnist for The Washington Post, is among 24 writers and editors on the fall conference program.

Other scheduled participants include: poet Fred Chappell, professor of English at UNC-Greensboro; Novelist Ellen Douglas, author of seven novels and writer-in-residence at the University of Mississippi; North Carolina writer Jerry Bledsoe, author of "Bitter Blood;" Margaret Jane Oman, editor of USAIR Magazine, and Jane Bernstein, a member of the editorial staff of The New Yorker Magazine.

The $95 conference fee ($85 for NCWN members) includes three days of workshops, writing clinics, readings, meals, and social activities, including Florida playwright Terry Galloway's solo performance of her play, "Out All Night and Lost My Shoes."

Detailed information and reservation on conference programs can be obtained by calling 967-9540.

Gwinnett Art On Exhibit At PCMH

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Volunteer Auxiliary November Art Show features the work of Kathleen Gwinnett. Ms. Gwinnett, a native of New York City, is a graduate of Parsons School of Design, where she majored in fashion design.

With her husband and three children, she moved from New Jersey to Burlington in 1976. She has been an instructor for the Technical College of Alamance in watercolors, oil paintings and fashion illustration.

The show will be on display in the main corridor of Pitt County Memorial Hospital through the month of November. Proceeds from sales made in the show support the Auxiliary Art Collection and program.

Madrigal Dinner Tickets On Sale

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Tickets for the Dec. 3 Madrigal Dinner have gone on sale at the Beaufort County Arts Council downtown Washington. The evening will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Center and will feature a five-course dinner. Entertainment will consist of jugglers and magicians, a Mummer's Play and other events.

Tickets are $30 per person ($25 for council members). For details and reservations, call 975-6993.

ECU Calendar Now Available

ECU NEWS BUREAU

People and events in East Carolina University's history appear on the "1989 ECU Historical Calendar," published in its second limited edition by the Friends of the ECU Library.

Illustrating the calendar's cover and 12 pages are photographs from the ECU Archives. East Carolina's first president, Robert Wright, is shown at his rollout desk and again in an Old Austin Building classroom.

Other historical glimpses include a 1932 tree planting commemorating the 200th birthday of George Washington, a half-dozen pre-World War II students at archery practice, a September 1960 campus visit by John F. Kennedy — then a presidential candidate — and a 1953 "Sadie Hawkins Day" race.

Each month lists events — some significant, some trivial — in the eight decades of ECU's history. The August page notes when the 1918 influenza epidemic reached the East Carolina Teachers Training School campus. The May page tells that the last living local Confederate veteran attended a campus memorial service in 1931. Other entries mark the dates of ECU's name changes, major sports victories and memorable dramatic performances.

The calendar was assembled by Morgan Barclay, director of the ECU Archives, and his staff.

Copies of the calendar are $5 each and may be purchased in the Archives-Manuscript area of Joyner Library. Calendars ordered by mail (address orders to Archives and Manuscripts, Joyner Library, ECU, Greenville, N. C. 27858) are $6 postpaid.

Fishing For Credit

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Scores of novice anglers are attracted to a course at Valdosta State College that allows students to earn college credit while fishing.

Titled Freshwater Fishing 315, the course is filled to capacity each quarter with students who want to bait hooks and reel in catfish, bluegill, perch and bass.

"It's a fun course," said instructor Lindy Evans, 45. "The homework is excellent — meaning go fishing."

Evans covers all the basics of the sport, from matching rods with reels to selecting appropriate fishing lines, lures, hooks and bait. His classes also focus on techniques for catching fish.

Before graduating from the course, students make one or two visits to fishponds in the area to test their skills.

Danish Scout Sets The Tone For American Youngsters To Come

can Scouting. We've been saying that we should have an American Boy Scout handbook, what should it contain?"

"And that's the way I got into the Boy Scouts."
Hillcourt wrote the handbook, the first book he ever wrote in a foreign language, and 2 million copies were printed. By his own admission, Hillcourt was stuck. He later wrote the first Boy Scout Fieldbook, the Scoutmaster's Handbook and most of the other books Scouts use today. He also began writing a column for Boy's Life magazine, a column which he still pens monthly.

The patrol system Hillcourt talked to West about was put into place and is still the foundation of American Scouting. That's also where Hillcourt got his nickname. He designed the original patrol leader patch, two parallel green bars worn on the sleeve, so it was only natural that the man who has become the patrol leader for the world was nicknamed Green Bar Bill.

And when officials couldn't find enough cooks in 1950 to service the American National Jamboree, they came to Green Bar Bill, who implemented a patrol cooking method that is also still used today.

More than any other person, Green Bar Bill has shaped the workings of the American Scouting movement.

And more than anything else, Scouting has shaped William Hillcourt.

"Boy Scouting is tied in in a peculiar fashion with the three women in my life," he says.

"My mother was the one who recognized the value of it and encouraged me because I was a very timid child.

"The next was Grace (his wife). We didn't have any children because we were supposed to help other people's children. She was completely dedicated to Scouting with me and whatever I did in Scouting was fine with her. She actually joined me for six world jamborees before she died.

"And the third was Lady Baden-Powell."

Hillcourt says he had a peculiar relationship with Lady Baden-Powell, who always had him and his wife stay with her when the Hillcourts were in London. And Lady Baden-Powell trusted only Hillcourt to write about Lord Baden-Powell, who was a British war hero in South Africa before he began the Scouting movement.

"A Britisher could have never have gotten permission to touch Baden-Powell's books," he says proudly, raising his voice to emphasize the point. "But she trusted me to do it as an outsider who could throw out the British-naval-hero Mr. Nelson and throw out the good old Queen Elizabeth and all of these other ones and make it a completely international edition."

The result was "Baden-Powell: The Two Lives Of A Hero" which has been translated into editions around the world.

Hillcourt somewhat downplays his past accomplishments — "I'm just Green Bar Bill who wrote the Boy Scout Handbook," he says — because he has a new, personal mission with the Boy Scouts.

In the early '70s, Scout executives decided to change the course of Boy Scouting. Most people were moving to the urban centers of the country, so they decided the BSA should shift its focus from the great outdoors to the city.

It's a move that almost killed American Scouting. With the inroduction of the 1972 Boy Scout Handbook, rewritten and stripped of most of the material included in earlier editions, boys began to drop out of the program by the hundreds of thousands.

By the late '70s, BSA executives realized they needed to do something to bring boys back, so they once again turned to Green Bar Bill for help. Hillcourt came out of retirement and re-wrote the handbook. He gave the BSA a year of his life for free, and they give him six handbooks every time they print 300,000.

There are now four million copies of Hillcourt's book in print, but he is still working to get boys interested in Scouting again.

"I'm still in there fighting, somehow," he says.

"Every Scouting activity should be the best show in town. That's one of my best slogans, because you have to be better in order to hold the boys.

"They are up against Little League, and football and hockey and volleyball and everything. And I've been insisting that those were all games developed for men," he says.

"Scouting is the only program that was ever specifically developed for boys — and we have to see to it that the boys are getting the program."

ing," DeVoe said. "That's part of our benefit package."

The magazine also recognized Du Pont, which has a plant in Kinston, for its salaries and benefits, spokesman Thomas Mallison said.

Thirteen percent of the company's employees nationwide are women, while women at the Kinston plant make up about 20 percent of its employees, he said.

The company provides maternity leave, parental leave and part-time jobs for employees, and it offers them a personal safety course.

The course is an eight-hour workshop with pay that discusses rape prevention and sensitivity and support toward rape victims. About 436 people in the Kinston plant have participated in the program, Mallison said.

Also, the company's Health Horizons program offers weight control and aerobics classes and classes to help smokers. "It's aimed at helping people have better health and body," he said.

This is the third year the magazine has published a list of the top companies in the United States for working mothers, but the first time 50 companies made the list. In the first year, only 30 companies were on the list. Last year there were 40.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Nov. 10

"Can we 'God bless' dogs, too, or just people?"

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Ignoring health matters, nutrition and exercise will rob you of the strength needed for an exciting new cycle. Look for romance.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Legal matters need close scrutiny. Read all the fine print and consult professionals about complicated matters. Keep spending down.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You are on a roll at work. Recognition is coming. Recent input has solved a pressing organizational problem. Stay on course.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): An associate fosters a clever plan. Check that the outcome can meet expectations. Put disorganized business plans in order.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Someone has an immature attitude toward spending and finances. Establish peace by arbitrating future family plans. Spend time with children.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Baseless rumors have you upset, and they are zapping your emotional energy. This is not the time to respond or clear the air.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Analyze a business affair that has the potential of sending you on a wild goose chase. Move about, and associate with light-hearted friends.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Slow down to avoid careless actions. Get some rest. Answer a message from someone who is trying to reach you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): A flashy acquaintance tempts your better judgment. Take a few steps back to assess the situation. Stick to your original plans.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Aggravation tests your patience at work. A cagey co-worker bears watching. Self-confidence is at a high point. Don't push yourself.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Time is wasted on fruitless tasks. Relaxation and rest are important for fast-moving events coming up. Spend time with your mate.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Today will be an effortless day. Someone stirs your romantic interests. Stay away from strangers, and leave well enough alone.

The bidding:
 East 1♥ South 1NT West 3NT North 3NT
 Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Three of ♣ Even looking at all four hands, it is not easy to see how, after a spade lead, South can fulfill his contract of three no trump. Yet the solution was found at the table. The bidding was direct and to the point. South's no trump overall showed the equivalent of a no trump opening bid, and North had enough to raise to game. West gave some thought to the opening lead. With a four-card spade suit, South might have doubled one heart rather than bid one no trump. And North, with four or more spades, would have probed for a major-suit game. So he chose to lead a low spade rather than his singleton heart, and struck gold. Since his weakness was exposed right from the start, declarer had to take nine tricks without giving up the lead. Therefore, he could not try for even one trick from diamonds. With four club tricks and only one spade on top, he would have to develop four heart tricks to succeed. That could be accomplished only if West held specifically either a singleton eight or nine. In addition, the club suit would have to furnish three entries to dummy. Declarer won the opening lead, cashed the king of clubs and overtook the jack of clubs with the queen. The fact that East showed out on the second club made no difference. The ten of hearts was led from the table, and East did as well as he could by covering. Declarer won the ace, took the marked finesse of the nine of clubs and ran the seven of hearts. When that won, it was a simple matter to clear the heart ace, cross to the ace of clubs and take the king of hearts for nine tricks.

About The Beach

By Chris Parker

On the very first day at the beach it was raining and we never got on the beach that day. The next day it was sunny and I went fishing. I caught a bunch of seaweed and saw a lot of ghost crabs, seashells and sandbugs. On the pier a lot of people were fishing. The kind of fish they caught were called croaker, angelfish and pompano. When I was at the pier they had big crabpots with a lot of crabs. I saw some porpoises. They would dive under water and come back up. They were real close to the shore. My cousin was the only one who caught a fish. He caught a sea mullet. There were a lot of minnows in the ocean. When we were walking back from the pier, we saw a dead shark on the beach. It was real big and had sharp teeth. Later we went swimming in the ocean. It was a great weekend at the beach.

When Fall Begins

By LeAnn Spain

When fall begins many things change. Birds are always chirping. Leaves are always falling. G.C.A. has a Fall Festival. Everything turns into fun! Squirrels are running back and forth with acorns in their mouths. It starts to turn cool. People start wearing sweaters, jeans and warmer stuff. But the thing about fall is....you have to go to school instead of playing outside!

LeAnn Spain, 8, a student at Greenville Christian Academy receives special mention.

Earthquakes

By Brooke Spivey

I was playing outside and mother yelled, "Time to eat!" So I ran in the house and went to go wash my hands. The pictures rattled. The walls swayed. The floor vibrated! Everything seemed to be moving. I was sure that I heard mom's pans shaking in the kitchen. My dog was barking. The fish were swimming rapidly around the tank. I did not know what was happening so I ran into the kitchen. Mom was not there. I ran in the livingroom and there she was. All of a sudden everything stopped! The pictures stopped rattling. The floor was not vibrating. Then everything was fine. But a week later, we moved away.

Brooke Spivey, 10, a student at W.H. Robinson School receives special mention.

Brown And Red Chipmunk

One fall morning I saw a chipmunk, brown and red. As I watched, it came up to me and said, "Would you like to come to my house and have tea?"

I said, "Yes." When we got to his house, which was not too small at all, we went inside and had the tea and cake. We sat and talked all day. He asked me if I would stay and I said, "Yes." And so I did.

PUZZLE CORNER

November 11, Veteran's Day, is the day we honor those men and women who have served in our armed forces. Try to find the picture below which is different from the others.

Federal Facts Electors

Most voters do not know that when they vote for president and vice-president of the United States they are NOT voting directly for those people. Instead voters are casting a ballot for electors. Why are these electors necessary and who are they.

When the Constitution was being written one group of people did not want Congress to elect the president and VP. Another group did not want the people to directly elect the chief executive. Some of the leaders felt that most voters were not educated enough to know how to vote. Thus a compromise was worked out. There would be an indirect election of the president and VP.

After political parties were established, electors were chosen by their state political parties by either a committee vote or in conventions. The number of electors is set as the same number of Senators and Congressman each state has. North Carolina has 2 Senators and 11 Congressman, thus N.C. has 13 electors. Remember our Senators and Congressman are NOT our electors. In fact most people never even learn the names of their state's electors.

Electors are bound by a pledge that they will vote for their party's candidates, but they could break their pledge if they wanted to. Electors usually meet in their state capital in December following the November election and cast their votes. In January, the U.S. Senate and House meet together and count the votes.

Most Americans believe that when they place a check beside a person's name for president their vote goes directly for the person. Instead they have cast a vote for an elector to vote for the person. Some people in our country have tried to get the Electoral College changed, but no one has been able to do so yet!

Book Says Diet A Key In Cancer Prevention

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

"The next time you stand in the checkout line at the supermarket, look at the persons in front of and behind you. Statistically, one of the three of you will get cancer," according to "The Good Book of Nutrition" provided by the North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society.

The "Eating and Health" chapter of the recipe collection and guide to healthful eating also says the chances of developing cancer are rising each year.

"The likelihood that an American would develop cancer was 30 percent in 1970. It had risen to 35 percent in 1985 and it will rise to 40 percent in the year 2000," it says.

But, Americans don't have to get cancer, the book says. "It is estimated that 75 percent of all cancers are potentially preventable. This information is based on the fact that people in other parts of the world have much lower cancer rates than the cancer rates in the United States."

For example, the breast cancer rate is six times lower in Japan than in the United States; the prostate cancer rate is 125 times lower in Shanghai, and the uterine or womb cancer rate is 40 times lower in Japan, the publication says.

"When the Japanese moved to the United States at the turn of the century, they developed the same incidence of cancer that was prevailing in the U.S. Therefore, the cancers were not due to differences in genes or heredity."

A main factor that affects whether a person develops cancer or suffers from a heart attack or stroke is diet, which is responsible for about 35 percent of all cancers, the book says. Other factors thought to cause cancer are smoking, 30 percent; infection, 10 percent; sunlight, 8 percent; alcohol, 5 percent; family history, 2 percent; pollution, 2 percent; radiation, 2 percent, and food additives, 1 percent.

In addition to reporting these findings from the research on cancer, the book also discusses obstacles that prevent people from changing their lifestyles to reduce cancer; motivating change; carcinogenesis, or converting a normal cell to a cancer; preventing cancer; obesity and fad diets; making sense of calories; the daily calorie and fat intake for the average man and woman; reading a food label; simple ways to cut calories and fat; increasing dietary vitamin A intake, and increasing fiber intake.

"The Good Book of Nutrition" is $8.95 plus $1.50 postage and handling, and may be obtained by writing the American Cancer Society, Pitt County Unit, P.O. Box 377, 112 S. Pitt St., Greenville, N.C., 27835-0377 or by calling 752-2574.

FETTUCINE WITH FRESH TOMATOES AND BASIL

1 tablespoon olive oil
4 tomatoes, diced
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 teaspoons fresh basil, chopped or 1/2 teaspoon dried basil
Pinch of granulated sugar
1/4 cup fresh parsley, chopped
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese, grated

In a large pan of boiling salted water cook fettuccine al dente; drain. In a heavy skillet heat oil over medium heat. Add tomatoes, garlic, basil and sugar. Cook for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add parsley, salt and pepper. Add to tomato mixture with cheese; toss to mix. Makes 2 main-course or 4 appetizer or side-dish servings.

OYSTERS ROCKEFELLER

Rock salt
36 fresh oysters on the half shell
4 medium onions, chopped
8 ounces spinach, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
3 sprigs of parsley

1/4 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. In 2 shallow baking dishes spread a bed of rock salt. On the bed of rock salt arrange oysters in shells. In a blender container place onions, spinach, celery, parsley, cream, salt and black and cayenne peppers. Process until pureed. Over oysters spoon puree. Bake for 4 minutes. Serve oysters on the bed of rock salt to retain heat. Makes 36 oysters.

CHICKEN-CABBAGE SOUP

3 cups chicken broth, either homemade or canned
3 cups water
2 cups fresh tomatoes, chopped
1 potato, peeled and chopped
1/2 cup carrot, shredded
1/2 cup celery, chopped

1/2 cup onion, chopped
4 peppercorns
1 bay leaf
1 cup cabbage, shredded
1 cup cooked boneless, skinless chicken, chopped
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon granulated sugar

Poultry Recipes Help Solve Mom's Dilemma

The list goes on and on — school sporting events and practice sessions, dance lessons, baton lessons, piano lessons, church choir practice and mission study groups, PTA meetings, homecoming events, cheerleading practice

Fall seems to bring an endless list of family-oriented activities that keep calendars full, schedules busy, and Mom on the go ... with less time to spend in the kitchen. When things get hectic, what is needed is a full lineup of fast, flavorful, nutritious main-dish recipes that will satisfy healthy appetites and simplify mealtimes.

These poultry recipes from the North Carolina Poultry Federation are great solution to the "no time to cook" dilemma. All are quick and easy to assemble (some simple enough for the kids to prepare), and contain nutritious, protein-packed chicken, turkey and egg products to help fortify busy families with active schedules. With these recipes on hand and plenty of poultry products in the refrigerator or freezer, you won't have to sacrifice good nutrition to enjoy a full schedule of family activities this fall ... or any time of the year.

LIGHTHEARTED TURKEY LASAGNE

1 lb. ground raw turkey
1 jar (32 oz.) spaghetti sauce
1/2 cup red wine

1 tsp. fennel or anise seeds (optional)
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
16 oz. cottage cheese
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 tsp. dried basil
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
8 uncooked lasagne noodles
8 oz. low-fat Mozzarella cheese, sliced

1/4 cup sliced black olives
Crumble turkey into a 2-quart glass container. Stir in 1/2 cup spaghetti sauce. Microwave on HIGH 4 to 5 minutes, stirring midway through cooking. Stir in remaining sauce. Shake wine in sauce jar to loosen remaining sauce. Pour into meat mixture. Add fennel seeds and garlic powder. Cover container with lid or plastic wrap and microwave on HIGH 7 to 8 minutes or until bubbly.

Combine cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese, basil and parsley in a bowl; set aside. To assemble lasagne, pour 1/3 meat mixture into a 2-quart rectangular dish. Press 3 noodles into sauce. Break off part of another noodle to fit across end of dish. Spread 1/2 of cottage cheese mixture on noodles. Arrange half of sliced Mozzarella cheese on top. Repeat layers, ending with sauce as final layer. Distribute olives over top layer.

Cover dish with heavy plastic wrap or two layers of regular plastic

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q. Can you spend some time talking about diet and diabetes? Concerned Diabetes Educators, Greenville.

A. I am pleased to have Sue Daughtry, registered dietician in the Department of Medicine, be a guest columnist today. November is Diabetes Month and although many people in our area know they have diabetes, there are many who are unaware of their disease. Diet can help many control their disease so side effects and complications, like heart disease, won't happen. I've asked Sue to write about fiber and diabetes since we all seem so interested in fiber, especially oat bran, these days. Here are Sue's thoughts:

More people with diabetes are now aware that weight control and good nutrition are essential in controlling blood glucose levels (often called blood sugar) and reducing the risk of complications. Many have been interested in the studies which show that some types of dietary fiber may slow the rise in blood glucose which happens after a person eats. Some studies using very high fiber, low fats diets dramatically reduce the needs for insulin or other medications for patients with diabetes. So, a diet high in fiber could help a diabetic control his or her disease. However, only certain types of fiber seem to work. They are soluble fibers. Those fibers are mainly gums and pectins. They are found in dried beans and peas, oatbran, citrus fruits, strawberries, apples, squash, cauliflower, cabbage, carrots, green beans and potatoes with the skin. Psyllium is also a fiber that works and is found in laxatives like Metamucil and Correctol. Read the ingredient label. It's interesting and fortunate that these are the same fibers that are also good for lowering cholesterol. That's important since diabetes puts a person at risk to heart disease. So, diabetics need to keep their blood cholesterol level low, too.

The effect of the fiber on blood glucose varies substantially from person to person. It also varies depending upon the method of preparation, other foods eaten at the same meal, the foods eaten at previous meals, and the time of day.

Fibers are not, though, relied on to control blood glucose. The variability of the effects of fiber from person to person is high. For most people in eastern North Carolina eating a diet high enough in fiber to work would require a major change in food habits. High fiber diet also may cause gas production or bloating, at least for awhile. If you are a diabetic and want to try using more fiber for controlling your diabetes, talk with your doctor about it.

But, every diabetic can use high fiber foods in their diet. The foods high in soluble fiber are recommended as good choices within the guidelines of the menu plan for many people who have diabetes. There are some diabetics who develop a problem called automatic neuropathy which may slow the emptying of the stomach and cause symptoms such as a bloated feeling, frequent indigestion or vomiting. High fiber foods may make this problem worse, so it's important to discuss your diet with your doctor.

Those who increase the fiber in their diet should do so slowly to reduce gas production and that bloated feeling. The foods which are high in fiber may help to improve blood glucose control if used as part of a calorie controlled, low fat meal plan. Talk with your doctor about your diet.

U.S. Senators Cast Their Ballots For The All-American Sandwich

The votes are in and the winning "deli-gate" is the roast beef sandwich. According to a new survey conducted by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, roast beef on wheat bread, topped with Cheddar cheese, lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, Dijon mustard and onions was chosen as the top deli-meat sandwich by 22 percent of U.S. Senators surveyed.

The next in line for the throne was the ham sandwich, ranked second by 17 percent of the 57 U.S. Senators responding, followed by pastrami and bacon, lettuce and tomato (BLT), both with a 14 percent share. The submarine of ham, salami and bologna place fifth with 12 percent of the votes, followed by corned beef with a five percent vote and salami with 2 percent of the senatorial vote.

The popularity of deli-meat sandwiches among U.S. Senators is evident as one third of the respondents eat deli-meat sandwiches two to three times a week. Nearly half of the surveyed senators said they eat deli-meat sandwiches both at home and at the office.

When it comes to stacking up their favorite deli-meat sandwich, 48 percent of the senators sandwich their meat between two slices of wheat bread, followed by rye (17 percent), sourdough (11 percent), pumpernickel (7 percent) and white and kaiser roll which both netted a five percent share of the votes. And four percent of the senators said "yea" to croissants, followed by bagels and Italian/French bread with two percent of the votes.

There was a definite Senate majority when it came to condiments.

When asked how they top off their favorite deli-meat sandwich, 79 percent of the Senators said cheese, please. What kind of cheese? Swiss cheese was the favorite according to 39 percent of the cheese lovers, with American ranked second by 14 percent of the respondents. In addition, Cheddar cheese was the favorite topping for 12 percent of the senators, while Muenster received 11 percent of the votes and Edam.

It takes only minutes to prepare a new sauce for asparagus or for a main-dish pasta entree

Flavorful, Versatile Asparagus Is A Snap

Although most people prepare the same food the same way time and time again, adding variety — and nutritional balance — can be as simple as incorporating a new vegetable into the menu.

Asparagus Hollandaise offers a foolproof version of the traditional sauce, while Asparagus Dijon is a rich, flavorful sauce alternative for the green vegetable.

Vegetables don't have to be limited to side dishes, however. In Creamy Asparagus Pasta, the vegetable is pureed to create a sauce for pasta that is served as a main-dish entree.

Each of the recipes uses easy-to-find ingredients and takes only minutes to prepare.

ASPARAGUS HOLLANDAISE
1 can (15 oz.) asparagus spears
1/4 cup red pepper strips
3 egg yolks
4 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tsp. Dijon mustard
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted

In small skillet, heat asparagus with red pepper. Combine egg yolks, lemon juice and mustard in blender container. Cover and blend on high speed for 3 seconds. Heat butter until just bubbly, but not brown. Gradually add butter to blender in a thin stream; continue to blend until sauce is smooth. Drain asparagus and place on serving platter. Top with sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

(See ASPARAGUS, D-2)

Senators Cast Votes For Their Favorite Deli-Meat Sandwiches

 Provolone and Havarti trailed with two percent each.
 There was no debate when it came to choosing the second most popular sandwich topping. According to the survey, 72 percent of the respondents voted for lettuce. However, it was a close race for third place as mayonaise (66 percent) edged out tomato (64 percent). With referendum for added flavor, 42 percent of the respondents include Dijon mustard on their deli-meat sandwich, while 39 percent enjoy the taste of onions. And what would a deli-meat sandwich be without a dill pickle? Eighteen percent of the respondents topped their sandwich off with a dill pickle, followed closely by yellow mustard with 16 percent of the votes. The race for eighth place was up for debate as two toppings collected 12 percent of the votes -- hot peppers and alfalfa sprouts. The condiment issue also brought in ballots for the following toppings: coarse grain mustard (11 percent), sauerkraut and avocados (9 percent), ketchup (7 percent), mushrooms and sweet peppers (5 percent), slaw (4 percent) and horseradish (2 percent).

 As demonstrated by this survey, the deli-meat sandwich is truly an All-American favorite.

CALIFORNIA COBB SALAD SANDWICH

As a favorite sandwich of Sen. Pete Wilson of California, this easy-to-make-and-eat sandwich provides all the flavor of the traditional Cobb Salad.

- 1 Tbsp. mayonaise or salad dressing
- 1 loaf Vienna-style bread, cut diagonally into 1-inch slices
- 2 lettuce leaves
- 1 oz. sliced Swiss or American cheese cut into 1/2-inch strips

 2 Tbsp. chopped hard cooked egg
 2 slices bacon, crisp-cooked and crumbled
 1 slice tomato, chopped
 2 slices avocado, chopped
 2 Tbsp. crumbled blue cheese
 Blue cheese dressing, optional
 Spread mayonaise on top of one slice of bread. Top with lettuce. Arrange ham, cheese, egg, bacon, avocado, tomato, and blue cheese in rows on top of lettuce. Drizzle with blue cheese dressing, if desired. Makes 1 serving.

Note: If you're brown-bagging it, pack this sandwich in an insulated lunch box with a frozen ice pack.

FRENCH QUARTER MUFFULETTA SANDWICH

As a favorite of Sen. John Breaux of Louisiana, this regional delight will jazz up your lunchtime menu New Orleans style.

- 4 oz. each sliced Genoa salami and

ham
 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
 1/4 cup green pimiento-stuffed olive pieces, chopped and drained
 2 Tbsp. Pepperoncini*, chopped and drained
 2 Tbsp. olive oil
 1 clove garlic, minced
 4 slices Provolone cheese (3/4 oz. each)
 4 Kaiser rolls, split
 Combine celery, olives, pepperoncini, olive oil and garlic. Spread bottom half of each roll with equal amounts of olive mixture. To assemble sandwiches, layer with equal amounts of cheese, salami and ham. Top each with equal amounts of remaining olive mixture. Close sandwiches with roll tops. 4 servings.

*Pepperoncini is available in the condiment (pickle) section of the supermarket.

OLD SOUTH HAM SANDWICH

North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms cast his vote for a traditional southern favorite with a twist.

- 4 oz. thinly sliced ham
 - 4 oz. cole slaw, creamy style
 - 4 Kaiser rolls, split
- To assemble sandwiches, place equal portions of ham on bottom half Kaiser roll and then top with 1 oz. of creamy style cole slaw. Close sandwiches with roll tops.

ZEP
 In the Northeast, they're called everything from hoagies to subs to heroes to grinders. But in Senator John Heinz's home state of Pennsylvania they're called "zeps."
 4 Tbsp. Italian dressing
 4 oz. each Genoa salami and Capicola
 4 oz. Provolone cheese
 6 cups shredded iceberg lettuce
 8 thick tomato slices
 4 hard-crusted Italian rolls, split
 Oregano, optional
 Scoop out a small portion of the inside bread of each Italian roll. Sprinkle both halves of the rolls with Italian dressing. Layer equal portions of salami, Capicola and cheese on bottom half of each roll and top with equal amounts of lettuce and tomato slices. Sprinkle each generously with oregano, if desired, before closing sandwich. Makes 4 servings.

CITRUS AND SHERRY MARINADE

- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup light soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry Sherry
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 green onion, finely minced
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger

Combine orange juice, soy sauce, sherry, oil, green onion, garlic and ginger. Use as marinade for all steaks and roasts. Remove excess marinade from meat before cooking. Makes about 1 cup.

Fall Is The Season For Sweet Potato Muffins, Apple Bread

The cool weather has put many North Carolinians in the mood to bake. The following recipes for Sweet Potato Muffins and Apple Bread are delicious and feature North Carolina products, say extension foods and nutrition specialists at North Carolina State University.

The batter for Sweet Potato Muffins may be made ahead and stored in the refrigerator for three or four days, allowing you to bake a couple fresh muffins each morning without starting from scratch.

SWEET POTATO MUFFINS

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 1/4 cups sweet potatoes, mashed
 - 1 1/2 cups flour
 - 2 tsp. baking powder
 - 1/4 tsp. salt
 - 1 tsp. cinnamon
 - 1/4 tsp. nutmeg
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/4 cup chopped pecans
 - 1/4 cup raisins
- Preheat oven to 400 degrees and grease the muffin pan. Cream the butter and sugar; add eggs and mix well. Blend in sweet potatoes. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and spices together. Add to other mixture alternately with milk. Do not overmix. Fold in nuts and raisins. Fill each muffin cup half full. Bake 25 minutes.

APPLE BREAD

- 1/3 cup shortening
 - 3/4 cup sugar
 - 1 tsp. vanilla
 - 2 cups self-rising flour
 - 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
 - 1 1/2 cups peeled, chopped apples
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 Tbsp. buttermilk
 - 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
 - 1 Tbsp. sugar
- Heat oven to 350 degrees and grease a loaf pan. Cream shortening, sugar and vanilla together until fluffy. Blend in flour, lemon rind, apples, eggs and buttermilk. Pour into prepared pan and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Bake one hour.

Asparagus

ASPARGUS DIJON

- 1 can (15 oz.) asparagus spears
 - 1/4 cup red pepper strips
 - 1/2 cup whipping cream
 - 1 egg, beaten
 - 1 Tbsp. Dijon mustard
 - 1 Tbsp. tarragon flavored white wine vinegar
- In small skillet, heat asparagus with red pepper. Combine remaining ingredients in small saucepan; mix well. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. DO NOT BOIL. Drain asparagus and place on serving platter. Top with sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings (2 1/2 cups sauce).

CREAMY ASPARGUS PASTA

- 1 can (15 oz.) asparagus
 - 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
 - 2 Tbsp. flour
 - 1/2 tsp. basil
 - 1 cup heavy cream or half-and-half or milk
 - 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1/8 tsp. white pepper
 - 8 oz. fettucine noodles, cooked
- Drain asparagus and reserve liquid; set aside. Puree asparagus in food processor or blender. In medium saucepan, melt butter. Blend in flour and basil; cook 1 minutes. Add cream; bring to a boil. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add asparagus, cheese, pepper and 1/2 cup reserved liquid. Heat through. Toss with hot cooked pasta. Makes 4 to 6 servings (2 1/2 cups sauce).

Poultry

wrap. Microwave on HIGH 6 minutes; then microwave on 70 percent (medium-high) for 20 minutes. So not remove cover. Let stand 20 to 30 minutes before serving so noodles can finish cooking. Serves 8.

FRITTATA

- 3 cherry tomatoes, cut in small pieces
- 1/4 to 1/3 cup scallion, thinly sliced
- 1/2 tsp. Dijon mustard
- 1 Tbsp. unsalted butter
- 1/4 cup bell pepper, finely chopped
- 2 extra large eggs, beaten with 1 Tbsp water
- 1/4 to 1/3 cup sharp cheddar cheese, grated
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Mix tomatoes and scallions with mustard and salt and pepper to taste. Reserve. Place butter and bell pepper in 8-inch glass pie pan. Microwave on full power for 2 minutes, or until pepper in somewhat softened. Beat eggs and water until frothy, add grated cheese, and pour into pie pan. Stir to mix well. Microwave on high (full power) for 60 seconds, stir again, microwave on high for 1 minute more, and wait 15-20 seconds before making decision to microwave further, as eggs will firm up during residual cooking time. Spread reserved topping evenly over surface, and serve at once. Makes 2 servings. Ideal for brunch or lunch.

rot, celery and onion. Add pepper-corns and bay leaf. Simmer for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Add cabbage. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add chicken, lemon juice and sugar. Heat to serving temperature. Remove bay leaf. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PASTA BROCCOLI SALAD

2 cups cooked whole wheat fusilli or shell pasta, drained
1 large red bell pepper, seeded and sliced
2 stalks celery, chopped
1 medium yellow squash, chopped
1/2 cup scallions, chopped
1/2 cup cherry tomato halves
Divide broccoli into florets; peel and slice stems. In a large bowl combine pasta, broccoli, red pepper, celery, squash, scallions and cherry tomatoes. Add dressing; toss until mixed. Chill salad slightly.

DRESSING:

1/3 cup white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons fresh parsley, minced
1 tablespoon fresh basil, chopped or 1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 clove garlic, pressed
In a small bowl combine vinegar, olive oil, lemon juice, parsley, basil, dry mustard and garlic; whisk until blended. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RED BEANS AND RICE

3/4 pound ham hocks, washed
1 quart water
1 pound dried red beans, sorted and washed
1 1/2 cups onions, chopped
1 cup fresh parsley, chopped
1 cup green bell pepper, chopped
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 cup green onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon red pepper
1/2 teaspoon fresh oregano or 1/4 teaspoon dried oregano 1/2 teaspoon fresh thyme or 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
3 dashes of hot sauce
5 cups hot cooked rice
In large saucepan place ham hocks and water. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat; cover. Reduce heat to medium-low. Simmer for 30 minutes or until tender. Remove and discard ham hocks. Strain broth. Chill overnight. Remove surface fat. Set broth aside. Into a stockpot place beans and water to cover. Let stand overnight. Drain. Add ham broth. Cover. Cook over low heat for 45 minutes.

Add onions, parsley, green pepper, tomato sauce, green onions, garlic Worcestershire sauce, black and red peppers, oregano, thyme and hot sauce. Cover. Cook over low heat for 2 to 2 1/2 hours, stirring occasionally and adding additional water if desired. Serve over rice. Makes 10 servings.

CHINESE BEEF FRY

1 pound flank steak, fat trimmed
1/2 cup water
1/4 cup lite soy sauce
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 1/2 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 medium onion
3 stalks celery, diagonally sliced
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup water chestnuts, sliced
1/2 pound fresh snow peas
3 cups hot cooked rice
Partially freeze steak. Slice cross grain into 1/4x2-inch strips; set aside. In a small bowl combine water, soy sauce, cornstarch and sugar; set aside. Peel onion, slice 1/4-inch thick and cut each slice into quarters; set aside. Spray a wok with vegetable cooking spray. Heat over medium-high heat for 2 minutes. Add steak to wok. Stir fry for 3 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove steak; set aside. Add onion, celery, mushrooms and water chestnuts to wok. Stir-fry for 2 to 3 minutes. Add steak and snow peas; cover. Reduce heat to medium. Simmer for 2 to 3 minutes. Strain in soy sauce mixture. Cook over medium-high heat until thickened and bubbly, stirring constantly. Serve over rice. Makes 6 servings.

ORANGE CHICKEN

1 chicken, skinned and cut up
Salt and pepper to taste
All-purpose flour
2 tablespoons corn oil or safflower oil
1 large onion, sliced
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Coat with flour. In a large skillet heat oil over medium heat. Add chicken. Cook over medium heat until brown. In a 9x13-inch baking dish arrange chicken. In the skillet saute onion in the pan drippings until tender. Spoon onion over chicken. Spread orange juice concentrate over chicken. Bake for 1 hour. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

SALMON-STUFFED POTATOES

2 tablespoons corn oil margarine
1 1/2 cups fresh mushrooms, chopped
1 tablespoon fresh parsley, chopped
1 can (16 ounces) red salmon, drained
2/3 cup 1 percent low-fat milk
1 medium onion, chopped

Salt and pepper to taste
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Slice tops of potatoes, scoop out pulp, reserving shells. Into a mixer bowl place potato pulp. In a skillet over medium heat melt margarine. Add mushrooms. Saute until moisture evaporates. Add parsley. Into potato shells spoon mushroom mixture. To potato pulp add salmon and milk. Beat until smooth. Add onion and salt and pepper. Spoon into potato shells. On baking sheet place stuffed potatoes. Bake until heated through. Garnish with fluted mushrooms. Makes 6 servings.

RASPBERRY GEMS

1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/4 cup wheat germ
1/4 cup granulated sugar

1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup fresh or frozen (without sugar) raspberries
3/4 cup 1 percent low-fat milk
1/3 cup corn oil margarine, melted and cooled
1 egg, well beaten, or egg substitute
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease 12 muffin cups or line with paper baking cups. In a bowl combine flour, wheat germ, sugar, baking powder and salt; mix well. Add raspberries; mix well. In a small bowl combine milk, margarine and egg; mix well. Add to raspberry mixture; stir just until moistened. Fill prepared muffin cups 2/3 full. Bake for 25 minutes. Make 12 muffins.

CABBAGE AND ZUCCHINI
4 teaspoons corn oil or safflower oil
1 clove garlic, chopped
6 to 7 cups cabbage, sliced
2 medium zucchini, thinly sliced
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
Salt to taste
In a skillet heat oil over high heat. Add garlic. Stir-fry for 1 minute. Add cabbage and zucchini. Stir-fry for 2 minutes. Reduce heat to medium. Add sugar and salt. Stir-fry for 7 to 8 minutes or until tender-crisp. Into a serving dish spoon vegetables. Makes 8 servings.

GINGER CARROTS

1/2 cup granulated sugar

1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1/4 cup chicken broth, either homemade or canned
1 teaspoon corn oil margarine
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 teaspoon ginger, ground
5 whole cloves
1 bunch baby carrots, trimmed and peeled
In a saucepan combine sugar, orange juice, broth, margarine, lemon rind, ginger and cloves. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add carrots. Simmer until tender-crisp. Makes 4 servings.

APPLE AND CRANBERRY ACORN SQUASH

4 small acorn squash
2 medium apples, unpeeled, chopped

1/2 cup fresh cranberries
1/4 cup paked light brown sugar
2 tablespoons almonds, chopped
1 tablespoon Grand Marnier or fresh orange juice
1 tablespoon corn oil margarine, melted
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cut squash lengthwise in to halves; discard seed. In a baking dish arrange squash cut side down. Add 1/2-inch water to dish. Bake for 40 minutes. In a bowl combine apples, cranberries, brown sugar, almonds, Grand Marnier and margarine; mix well. Turn the squash cut side up. Spoon the apple mixture into the squash cavities. Bake for 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.
