Federal Super Collider Project Goes To Texas

By Jennifer Dixon
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Energy Department will build its $4.4 billion super collider project in Texas, Sen. Phil Gramm said today hours before the department was to make its official announcement.

Seven states had vied for the project because of the economic benefits tied to the construction of the giant atom smasher.

Gramm said the super collider, a 53-mile underground ring of magnets capable of whipping proton beams together with 20 times the force of the world's most powerful existing accelerator, would be built near Waxahachie in Ellis County, south of Dallas.

He called the super collider "the most important scientific project that will be built anywhere in the world in the last quarter of the 20th century."

The project is expected to create thousands of construction and scientific jobs and an annual budget of $270 million.

The six other contenders were Illinois, Arizona, Colorado, Michigan, North Carolina and Tennessee. They were chosen from a field of 25 bidding states by an independent panel appointed by the Energy Department.

Scientists hope to learn more about the nature of matter from studying the subatomic particles created by the proton collisions.

The project is viewed as a plum for its host state because of the economie benefits it will provide: thousands of construction jobs, permanent employment for as many as 3,000 people and an annual budget of $270 million.

The contending states spent years and millions of dollars trying to persuade the Energy Department to put the project on their turf. Lobbying continued right up to the last minute.

In an effort to attract the project, Texas voters approved a $1.1 billion bond package that would reduce the federal cost of building the atom smasher south of Dallas.

Illinois officials have spent two years and $8 million on their campaign, said Stan Yonkausk, general counsel for the state Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

The Illinois General Assembly agreed to spend $140 million for land acquisition and authorized the sale of $395 million in bonds to cover other costs such as tunnelling. Yonkausk said $8 million already had been spent, mainly for environmental and engineering studies.

Illinois recommended building the collider beside Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory and using its Tevatron accelerator, now the world's most powerful accelerator, as part of the super collider, saving the government more than $500 million in construction costs.

Congress has appropriated $205 million for the collider so far, including $100 million for research and development in fiscal 1989, but has not authorized its construction.

Air Force Admitting 'Stealth' Jet Does Exist

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Air Force has been given permission to acknowledge publicly the existence of a "Stealth" jet fighter that has been ready for years to slip behind enemy lines in the event of war, defense sources said today.

The sources, who insisted on anonymity, said the plane would be discussed at a Pentagon briefing later today. They said some pictures of the plane probably would be released then.

The existence of the plane, formally designated the F-117A but also known as the F-19, has been one of the poorest kept secrets in Washington for several years.

However, neither the Pentagon nor Air Force has ever publicly acknowledged existence of the aircraft before.

The Pentagon had planned to disclose details of the Stealth fighter last month, but pulled back at the last minute because of objections on Capitol Hill.

House and Senate leaders argued against disclosure before the presidential election, saying a program that has been supported by Democrats and Republicans alike in the classified part of the Pentagon's budget should not be politicized.

According to military and industry sources, the United States secretly began building Stealth — or radar-evading — jet fighters in the mid-1970s and now maintains more than 50 of the single-seat planes at a tightly guarded facility in Nevada.

According to the sources, the planes are flown only at night and are kept at a high state of readiness for use as "aerial shock troops," capable of slipping behind enemy lines without being detected and creating confusion with unexpected bombing runs.

The decision to unveil the plane was prompted in part by Air Force plans to display publicly its new B-2 Stealth bomber on Nov. 22, said defense officials who asked not to be named.

Liberian Oil Tanker Breaks Up In Stormy North Atlantic

Fiery Accident Leaves 27 Crewmen On Missing List

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — A Liberian oil tanker broke in half in stormy weather in the north Atlantic today, burst into flames and sank, spreading fire over the ocean and leaving the 27 crewmen missing, coast guard officials said.

A Canadian military aircraft flew over the scene about nine hours after the tanker sent a distress signal, and it reported spotting an empty life raft, said a spokesman for the British coast guard in Falmouth.

The plane's crew said sections of the 65,700-ton Odyssey had sunk and that the oil on the ocean surface had burned itself out, said the spokesman.

Earlier, the Soviet ship Passat rushed from 26 miles away to help the Odyssey but was unable to get closer than a mile to the stricken vessel because of the fire, authorities said.

The Passat, which monitors weather on the ocean, told rescue officials it found no sign of the crew and was searching the area, Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit said.

"It doesn't sound very good at all," said a spokesman for the British coast guard in Falmouth, England. "The Soviet vessel has lost radio contact with the tanker."

Capt. Pat Phelan of the Canadian Rescue Coordination Center in Halifax, Nova Scotia, said the tanker was about 700 miles east-northeast of Newfoundland. British officials said it was about 1,200 miles west of England.

The official in Falmouth, who spoke on condition of anonymity in keeping with British custom, quoted pilots of aircraft flying above the tanker as saying the surface of the sea was on fire, apparently from leaking oil.

Polempros Shipping Ltd. of London, operators of the Odyssey, said half the crew was Greek, including the captain and all the officers, and the other half was Honduran.

"We haven't heard any news at all about them," said a spokeswoman, commenting on condition she was not identified. She said the tanker is owned by Diamond Port Shipping Corp. of Monrovia, Liberia.

Bush Gets Start On Priority List

By Terence Hunt
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President-elect George Bush, vowing to revitalize government with "a brand new team of people," has instructed key figures from his campaign to first 100 days of his coming administration.

Even before Bush won the presidency, job applications were pouring into his standby transition office. The stream of resumes is expected to turn into a flood now at newly opened Bush transition headquarters.

Just hours after claiming victory, Bush took the first steps Wednesday toward assembling his presidency.

The president-elect, at a news conference in his adopted home of Houston before flying back to Washington, named James A. Baker III, his campaign chairman and longtime trusted adviser, to be secretary of state. It could be the most important post in a Bush presidency, given the vice president's emphasis on foreign affairs and his interest in pursuing progress with Moscow.

Baker, while preparing for his diplomatic duties, also will play a major role in the transfer of power to Bush from Ronald Reagan.

Craig Fuller, Bush's vice presidential chief of staff, and campaign pollster Robert Teeter will share authority as co-chairmen of the transition team.

GUC Approves 4.5% Pay Hike

By Stuart Savage
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A 4.5 percent pay hike for employees and a 3 percent tracking rate increase for firm natural gas customers were approved by the Greenville Utilities Commission board Wednesday night.

In approving the across-the-board pay increase, the board agreed to make the salary hike effective Dec. 21, which would mean employees will receive more money in their Jan. 4 checks.

While approving the 3 percent increase in natural gas rates — which GUC received Nov. 1 from its wholesale supplier, North Carolina Natural Gas — the board agreed to delay passing the increase on to customers until Dec. 1.

GUC General Manager Malcolm Green, who said the delay in passing the increase on to customers represents about $18,000 in lost revenue for November, said the loss will be offset from savings realized through the purchase of well-head gas during the summer months.

Roger Jones, who heads GUC's electric systems, reported that load management operations saved some $159,300 in wholesale power costs

Pitt United Way Exceeds '88 Goal

By Greg Laudick
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Leaders of the 1988 Pitt County United Way campaign gathered Wednesday at the Greenville Country Club to celebrate the achievement of exceeding this year's contribution goal of $1,104,071.

Campaign Chairman Mac McCarley presented Mike Renn, United Way president, a check for $1,153,283 raised in the 1988 effort. The amount, which represented an 11 percent increase over last year, was the largest ever raised by the Pitt County United Way in a single campaign, McCarley said.

"I'm gratified that the people of Pitt County showed such strong support for the needs of their friends and neighbors who are served by the agencies funded with United Way dollars," he said.

The United Way helps support 35 health and human care agencies in Pitt County.

The agencies perform various services such as providing support for children with cancer and blood disease, addressing illiteracy in the community and helping assist victims of domestic violence.

McCarley cited several factors that contributed to reaching this year's goal, including the introduction of a Loaned Executive Program, headed by Jordan Whichard, and the implementation of a successful training program.

"One of the proven facts about United Way is that one of the ways to do well is to have well-trained volunteers," McCarley said.

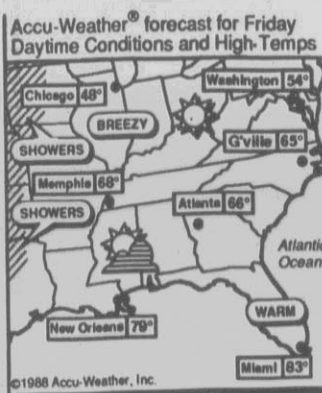

"Jim Phillips agreed to do the training program this year and did one of the best programs we ever had," he said.

McCarley also recognized the efforts of Joe Gantz, who helped increase membership in the Dr. Ray D. Minges Society, and John West, campaign vice chairman, who has volunteered to chair next year's campaign.

Four campaigns receiving special recognition this year were Pitt County Memorial Hospital, which raised more than $100,000 and 110 percent of its goal; Pitt County schools and Pitt County employees, both of which raised nearly twice their goals, and Greenville Utilities Commission, which raised 117 percent of its goal.

Also singled out for recognition were Yale Materials Handling Corp., for having 76 percent of its employees designated as "Fair Share" contributors, and Simpson Industries, which more than doubled the amount of contributions it raised last year.

Chamber Taps Copeland As Pitt's Officer Of Year

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

All the rhetoric heard during the political campaigning before Tuesday's general election should now be turned into "work, action and progress," N.C. Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said at a law enforcement appreciation dinner.

Thornburg was the principal speaker at Wednesday's Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event, which saw Pitt County Deputy Sheriff Tim Copeland named Officer of the Year.

"During the election season, law enforcement and criminal justice issues were at the forefront of virtually every political campaign," Thornburg told the gathering. "With the elections now behind us ... it is my hope that all of the political candidates who beat the drum about law enforcement issues will now make good on their promises and turn their words into work, action and progress."

"If that occurs," Thornburg said, "you will have ample help in performing your duties."

According to the attorney general, "law enforcement is doing an outstanding job ... all over North Carolina ... because of support from the business community, law abiding citizens and a responsible and responsible legislature."

But Thornburg suggested that as campaign rhetoric fades, "we have to realize that our state faces great challenges to maintain and improve law enforcement and the entire criminal justice system."

Suggesting that the entire criminal justice system — law enforcement officers, the courts and prisons — must work together, Thornburg likened the system to a balloon. "It can stretch but so far. Squeeze that balloon on one end, and it will bulge out on another," he said.

"Today in North Carolina, the most serious bulge is in our prisons, which stay filled to capacity," Thornburg said. "I ... believe that accommodations in the prison system should be available for everyone who needs to be there. Whatever the cost, those who constitute a danger to society must be housed behind bars."

And, Thornburg said, "I believe that criminals should serve the sentences which are given."

Suggesting that taxpayers are reluctant to see their money being spent to house and feed prisoners, Thornburg said, "Let me suggest ... that there are ways to pay for prisons that will not put the total burden on the taxpayers, and that is to let the criminals themselves pay the cost. To me it is justice in its purest form to see criminals paying the costs of their own arrest and prosecution."

"One way to do that, a way which is working well in several other states, is to expand the use of prison labor." In one state, Thornburg said, prisoners "do all the state's laundry, manufacture paint, soap, concrete blocks, fertilizer and asphalt, manufacture furniture for use in state-run facilities, and refurbish school buses. Some prisons also use inmate labor in data processing. All that is in addition to the more traditional inmate work activities such as prison farming and stamping out license plates."

"I'm suggesting that inmates can help pay the cost of their own imprisonment by performing services and manufacturing goods for use by the prisons and government institutions. My goal is to explore ways to let the criminals pay."

"It seems to me that to make our prison system as close to self-supporting as possible," Thornburg said, "the ... logical step is to put the inmates to work behind the prison walls."

Roy Hardee, chairman of the chamber's community safety committee, acted as master of ceremonies for the appreciation dinner, while Steve Bigelow, director of the Crime Prevention Division of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, presented a number of special awards during the program.

The Pitt County Farm Bureau held its membership meeting and elected officers last week. John I. Brown was named president.

New directors are Marion T. Peaden, Arthur township; Robert Halstead Jr., Chicod; Wiley C. Stancill, Swift Creek; Ernest R. Briley, Pactolus, and Will B. Congleton, Carolina.

Delegates were named and commodity resolutions approved for presentation at the state convention Dec. 4-7 in Charlotte.

Residents Disagree On Parking For Neighborhood Park

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission members reached a consensus to let the city engineer and city planner present to the City Council a final recommendation between two contending plans applicable to Westhaven Park.

Boyd Lee, the department's executive director, explained Wednesday night that residents of the neighborhood are far from being unanimous regarding parking arrangements for the small neighborhood park.

One contingent wants a parking lot installed in the park property and on-street parking banned in the immediate park area. The other contingent feels the park as it now exists with on-street parking permitted is more feasible.

Lee told commissioners that traffic in the area is light, that the park is fenced in and that the installation of a parking facility within the small, three-lot sized facility would seriously lessen the actual usage space.

"For one thing it would mean the removal of the picnic area with its picnic table," Lee said. "Also, a regulation denying on-street parking at the area would in turn make the street off-limits for parking to residents living there."

Lee said the department's budget cannot fund a project to install a paved parking lot at the park. "The main consideration, however, is that any physical change of the nature proposed by some users would seriously lessen the available recreational space available for the park which is used by something like 700 residents."

After studying architectural drawings for renovation plans at Guy Smith Stadium and hearing a report from commissioner J.B. Surles, members asked Lee to give their opinion on the renovation concept to the renovators.

Their suggestions include concepts applicable to the flow space beneath the structure and ideas relative to parking spaces. These include a recommendation that dressing rooms for players not be installed. Instead, they agreed that a more practical solution is to install bathrooms at each end of the space beneath the stadium, one for each team. They could be economically constructed by installing them adjacent to the existing public bathrooms.

Also, without using space for dressing rooms, there would be room for a concession stand.

Another idea endorsed by commissioners include the placement of an area for handicapped viewers at one lower-level location. Commissioners favor revamping the parking to increase parking spaces with funds allocated for the renovation work. The revamping will also include paved walkways and an access point for parents to deliver and pick up the young players.

The annual financial report of the Greenville Little League was presented and approved. The report shows that for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, total league income, including public donations, was $29,622 and total expenses were $28,722, resulting in a net profit for the year of $899. The net profit, added to the beginning of the year balance of $10,983, gives the league a year-end balance of $11,882.

Included in the report is the league's proposed budget for the 1989 season. Figures include $33,810 in anticipated income with anti-pated expenses of $38,086. This would give the league a projected 1989 fiscal year-end balance of $7,606.

A contingent of 23 Greenville and Pitt County residents who took part in the recent N.C. Senior Games state finals were recognized at the meeting. Seventeen of the participants were medal winners, including three who were multiple-winners.

In his monthly report, Lee said that visitation at the Science and Nature Center at River Park North has far exceeded expectations. For the first month of operation, more than 2,200 visited the museum during its afternoon hours. Morning hours, reserved for student groups utilizing the center, have already been booked through the remainder of the calendar year.

In executive session, commissioners discussed the possibility of purchasing a tract of land for use by the Greenville Little League.

Sentenced On Assault Charge

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A D.H. Conley student, accused of possessing a loaded sawed-off shotgun at Rose High during summer school, was placed on supervised probation for two years and ordered to perform 75 hours of community service in connection with a separate assault conviction.

Judge James E. Ragan of Oriental sentenced Ehyin Mohamad Youssef, 17, of 2106 S. Charles St. in Pitt County District Court on Wednesday.

Ragan found Youssef guilty of three counts of assault with a deadly weapon on Oct. 27, but he delayed sentencing until this week in order to consult a presentencing report on Youssef. Each charge carried a maximum penalty of two years in prison.

The assault convictions stem from an incident in which Youssef was accused of trying to run over two teen-agers and a small child while driving an automobile through a Farmville neighborhood.

On Wednesday, Ragan said he decided to find Youssef guilty of simple assault — a lesser offense with a maximum penalty of 30 days in jail — and he consolidated all three charges for judgment.

"I'm going to find him guilty of simple assault, as opposed to assault with a deadly weapon," Ragan said as Youssef stood beside his attorney, Milton Williamson of Greenville.

The presentencing report, Ragan said, produced differing accounts of Youssef's history of behavior.

"I got mixed reports, quite frankly. People said he's a good kid. ... Other reports weren't so good. It's almost like there are two kids. I don't know which one is standing before me," Ragan said.

In addition to the supervised probation and community service, which must be completed within 90 days, Ragan suspended a 30-day jail term for two years and ordered Youssef not to make any contact with the victims or be suspended from school.

In the case of the weapons charges, Greenville police arrested Youssef on Aug. 2, the last day of a countywide session of summer school, after finding a loaded sawed-off shotgun in his gym bag.

He is charged with possessing a weapon of mass destruction — a felony punishable by up to five years in prison — and possession of a weapon on school grounds. The case was continued two weeks ago in Pitt Superior Court, and prosecutors have not set a new trial date.

Because the incident occurred on the final day of summer school, Youssef was not suspended.

Martin's Popularity An Asset

Can a former articulate and imposing college professor find happiness in the governor's mansion?

You can bet he can if that person is Gov. Jim Martin. The Republican governor had no trouble in turning back the challenge of Democratic nominee Bob Jordan. With most of the ballots counted, Martin had 56 percent of the votes to easily claim a second term in office. He is only the second GOP governor of North Carolina in this century. He is the first to claim a second term after the state constitution was amended to allow two consecutive terms. While the Democrats who engineered the change must now be wishing they had left things as they were, Martin is rejoicing in the knowledge that the voters clearly approve of him and his activities in office.

And, even though he is a capable administrator, the legislature hasn't left a Republican governor much room to participate in lawmaking affairs. North Carolina's governors do not have a veto and Democratic governors have exerted control over the legislature only through their vast appointment powers.

There are those who say President Ronald Reagan has been most effective in putting the blame on the Democrats for the problems his administration has caused. Gov. Martin didn't have to do that. With little control over the legislature there was no reason for him to take blame for what the lawmakers did over the past four years, although he did, in his campaign for re-election, take credit for the progress.

Thus it was the best of all worlds for the governor. He is impressive and likable. Whatever the Democratic legislature does or does not do, he can appear blameless — unless he wants credit.

As he did at the start of his first term, Martin has pledged to work with the state legislature — and he may have some help with a Republican lieutenant governor preparing to take office.

Of course, what Martin would like most is the veto power, and many Democrats are beginning to agree that this must come if any governor is to deal with the Legislature effectively. Will it come during the next four years? Not likely, not unless the governor can make a trade of something the Democratic-controlled legislature wants very badly.

At any rate it is easy to predict that Gov. Jim Martin will remain popular during the next four years. He won't have to make the difficult decisions about tax increases and such and the Democrats in the legislature will. While that might be frustrating to the governor it is not a bad situation for him. It portends future political vigor for him.

The Way Out

Complete Withdrawal Only Solution

The Soviet Union won world praise for its decision to pull troops out of Afghanistan and leave that nation to solve its own problems.

It came across as a civilized move to end a futile war in a poor nation. It could mean the end of hostilities in Afghanistan and the opportunity for that underdeveloped society to target its resources for improving the life of its rank and file citizens.

That was the way it appeared to the world when the Soviet troop withdrawal announcement was made.

No more. A Soviet foreign ministry spokesman has said the troop withdrawal has been suspended. Claiming heavy attacks by the rebel forces the spokesman said the objective of completing the pullout by Feb. 15 might not be met.

First Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh said, "The Soviet troops are being withdrawn due to the goodwill of the Soviet government. They will be withdrawn in honorable conditions."

He claimed the strong attacks do not "provide conditions for such a withdrawal of Soviet troops."

The Soviets blame United States' and other countries' weapons aid to the rebels for the situation.

Reagan administration spokesmen said the Soviets were increasing tensions in Afghanistan and causing uncertainty about the progress of the troop withdrawal.

It would appear that withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan would be a simple maneuver. Either they leave or they do not. Since half have already been withdrawn, bringing out the rest of the military should not be a difficult decision.

The Soviet Union must have recognized that it could not control Afghanistan's fate once its troops left. And staying there meant a protracted war which would drain the Soviet wealth and spirit, just as Vietnam did the United States.

There is only one acceptable solution for Afghanistan and for the Soviet people. That is the continued withdrawal of troops and an end of Soviet military activities in Afghanistan.

Dukakis Played Dewey, Not Truman

WASHINGTON — 'Tis said that two things cannot be hidden: love and a cough. There is a third thing — the Democratic Party's continuing difficulty competing as a national party for the great national office.

After the 1984 election, Democrats could say: The electorate, its palate accustomed to Ronald Reagan's savory personality, would accept no substitute. But in 1988, the Democrats have lost a European-style election: The result reflects less an enthusiasm for the winning candidate than a preference for his party. The Democratic Party's record is becoming monotonous — if train wrecks can be monotonous.

George Will

'However, he was Dewey, the chilly, cocksure candidate of a party convinced that its hour had come 'round at last. Like Dewey, Dukakis underestimated his opponent's teeth and claws.'

didate than a preference for his party.

The Democratic Party's record is becoming monotonous — if train wrecks can be monotonous.

There have been seven "open" (no incumbent President running) elections in this century. Republicans have won seven. Since mid-century, Republicans have won seven of ten elections. They can lose the next three and still have "won" the 1950-2000 era. In their seven losses since 1950, the Democrats have gone down with six different candidates — four Midwesterners, a Southerner, and now a New Englander (Stevenson twice, Humphrey, McGovern, Carter, Mondale, Dukakis).

candidates, have an even better average: 91 percent.

Before the first Democratic delegate was chosen, Peter Hart, the Democratic pollster, said the Democratic nominee should be "a combination of Horace Greeley and Ulysses Grant — someone who can both go West and capture the South." So Democrats nominated a Northeastern liberal.

In the 11 states of the old Confederacy, the Democrats record in five of the last six elections (1968, 1972, 1980, 1984, 1988) is: 2 wins, 53 losses. Dukakis won none on Tuesday, which was the third time since 1972 that a Democratic candidate has been shut out in the South. West of the Mississippi there are (not counting Hawaii and Alaska) 24 states. The Democrats' record in the last five elections is: 12 wins, 108 losses.

The approach of the 25th anniversary of the assassination of President Kennedy has the country thinking about how much has changed. Here are two things that have changed, as noted by Hart. The adult population is 50 percent larger than it was when Kennedy won in 1960, and the portion that is college-educated has nearly doubled. The more educated the electorate, the more it feels socially competent, and the less it looks to government for help. To the extent — and it is a considerable extent — that social programs enacted by the Democratic Party fostered this improvement, to that extent the Democratic Party has eroded its own base.

For Dukakis, who wanted to play Truman, this was 1948 redux, all right. However, he was Dewey, the chilly, cocksure candidate of a party convinced that its hour had come 'round at last. Like Dewey, Dukakis underestimated his opponent's teeth and claws.

After the Republicans lost in 1948, they did two things. They slouched into collaboration with a scoundrel (McCarthy) and they went looking for a likable hero (Lke). Heroes are thin on the ground these days (a small price to pay for the scarcity of big hero-making wars). But Democrats have a mischief-maker in their midst.

Actually, it might be more accurate to say that Jesse Jackson is at their head. For him it will be tempting now to say "I told you so," and resisting temptation is not his vocation. He will say: We tried tepidness, "me-too-ism," courting Reagan Democrats. Now let's try high-octane liberalism.

For four years, the Republican Party is going to be what it has not recently been: boring. The Democratic Party will be what the Republican Party was when, with the conservative insurgency, it began to scale the commanding heights of government. It will be in interesting ferment.

Meanwhile, Americans, ever optimistic, are again thinking about the Harry Truman Paradigm. Truman is America's favorite vindication of the hope that "the office will make the man." This hope responds to the mundaneness that is a strength as well as an exasperating aspect of mass democracy. This hope was understood by a novelist who wrote when such democracy was just emerging.

"It is said," mused a character in Trollope's "The Way We Live Now," "that if you were to take a man of moderate parts and make him prime minister out of hand, he might probably do as well as other prime ministers, the greatness of the work elevating the man to its own level." That is the way we live now — with men of moderate parts, and with immoderate hope.

Brookline Got Mugged In '88

BROOKLINE, Mass. —

It was one of those sunny election days that poll workers pray for when they begin a 13-hour shift in the great outdoors. At 7:30 a.m. on Perry St., a single Secret Service man was standing on the sidewalk sipping coffee, keeping an eye out and waiting for the candidate.

For Mike Dukakis, a man rooted in this community, it was time to come home. The marathon that had ended in a sleepless blur of campaigning was over. The reporters who'd flown through these last nights had already been awarded T-shirts that read: "I Slept With Mike Dukakis. Nov. 5, Nov. 6, Nov. 7."

Across the country, the enthusiasm was low for this hologram of a presidential campaign. But at Precinct 3, in the Theresa Morse Apartments for the elderly, the friends and neighbors of the governor were lined up to vote as if it were Sunday morning at Kupel's Bakery. Take a number.

Brookline is not big on self-deception. The conversation at the polls went along these lines. "What do you think? Any chance?" "Hey, you never know." "Yes, you do." One woman said to another, with only a glint of humor, that she had already been through five stages of mourning and was hoping soon to hit the one called "acceptance."

At 9:30, ahead of schedule, the motorcade came up to Precinct 3. The pool reporters raced ahead to the booth, and then the Dukakis family, looking slightly the worse for their all-nighter, came to vote: Mike, Kitty, John, Andrea. Nearing the doorway, the candidate stopped, smiled and delivered the last official baby kiss of the 1988 campaign.

The recipient was Zoe Jick, the daughter of the Duke's next-door neighbors. Her father Todd had been standing there to greet his friend, and Todd was quick to tell the cameraman that this wasn't just photo-op affection. How do you explain, he said later, that the guy next door, this "iceman" who ran for President, is really warm.

As a town, Brookline got mugged this year, along with the hometown boy who had been its state rep and its governor. Brookline too was dubbed as "way out there," not part of Bush's "mainstream," an ultra-L-kind of place.

Bill Bennett trashed a town that has public schools he should have cloned. George Bush made it sound like a breeding ground for the sneering un-American elitism rather than a streetcar suburb with a history of intense public interest. The birthplace of Jack

Ellen Goodman

Kennedy, the urban suburb where the streets get plowed and kids can walk home without passing a crack den.

If a town could sue for slander, this one had a right. It had a right as well to feel disappointed that their guy didn't defend himself, didn't defend them, didn't make the case for their values as well as he should have. Or as early as he should have.

So, around Brookline, some of the folks hanging out, watching the national media come and go, said what all the analysts would say. Mike's reactions were too slow. He didn't believe the Bush attacks would stick. If only...

Those who know him best could tell you about the candidate's irrational belief in reason. Some worried that he'd have trouble understanding the emotional forces sweeping through the world. They were thinking of the Ayatollah. But it turned out that the whole Bush campaign — from Willie Horton to the Pledge of Allegiance — was the irrational force of 1988.

Those who know him best have seen both his stubbornness and his integrity. The grit they admire, the stiff neck they sometimes want to wring. So they know that the flaws of the campaign were his, not just his staff's. Those who believed he would have made a better President than candidate said to each other Tuesday: "That's Mike. What're you gonna do?"

By mid-morning, Perry St. was filled with kids bused over from the Brookline schools, some from Mike's old grammar school, some from Kitty's. The candidate, dressed in his telegenic red sweater although the cameras were gone, came out and teased them for cutting class. He said he hoped they'd think of public service when they grew up. Then he went back inside.

His neighbors began waiting, but not with much suspense. The Jicks talked about what they should say to Mike and Kitty in the morning. An old friend came by with a note, handed it to a Secret Service guy and asked him to deliver it.

For Mike Dukakis it was 557 days and half-a-million miles in the air. In the end he lost. It's lousy to lose. But it's good to know you can go home again.

Gardner Faces Uneasy Fate In Democratic Senate

By John Fleisher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Jim Gardner's ability to get along with Democrats in the legislature will be tested in coming weeks as the lieutenant governor-elect tries to negotiate a settlement on his role and powers.

Gardner scored a historic victory Tuesday, becoming the first Republican elected to the post in North Carolina this century. With all 2,891 precincts reporting, Gardner had 1,071,458 votes or 51 percent to Democrat Tony Rand's 1,040,804 votes or 49 percent.

"I have no way of knowing what went wrong," Rand said at a news conference Wednesday. "It appears it was just a tide going the other way. Obviously, the governor's coattails had some impact."

Presiding over the Senate is the only duty prescribed to the lieutenant governor by the state Constitution. Traditionally, Senate Democrats have made the lieutenant governor their de facto leader by allowing him to pick committee chairmen, appoint members of other influential panels and refer bills.

But speculation is rampant that with Republicans occupying only 13 of the 50 seats, Gardner's powers will be substantially curbed — possibly to the point of making him a figurehead. In that case, the president pro tempore or majority leader would become the Senate's top official.

Gardner told reporters he did not expect that.

"The people ... have made it very clear that they want a two-party state," he said. "If the Senate would ignore that and start any type of stripping bills, basically that would tell the people of North Carolina,

"your vote really doesn't count with us." And remember, they have to run for re-election in 1990."

Democratic senators interviewed Wednesday were noncommittal on Gardner's role.

"I expect things would pretty much be normal," said Sen. Richard Conder, D-Rockingham. "I don't expect any drastic changes."

But he said Gardner probably wouldn't be as effective as the outgoing lieutenant governor, Democrat Bob Jordan.

Sen. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth, said he expected wounds opened by the campaign would take time to heal. "He (Gardner) took pleasure in going around the state attacking us in the Legislature," Kaplan said.

Senate GOP leader Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, who frequently has clashed with the Democratic leadership, said he hoped for a cooperative relationship. "It's not going to help the state or the Senate for us to get into a bloodletting," he said.

Gardner, a former one-term congressman, quickly began an effort to mend fences, calling on Democrats to put the campaign behind them and look to the future. But some said wounds from the bitter battle would be slow to heal.

The results will remain unofficial until certified by the State Board of Elections on Nov. 29. Gardner will take office in early January.

Gardner, regarded as a rising GOP star in the 1960s only to disappear from politics after his second unsuccessful bid for governor in 1972, savored his only victory in a statewide election with dozens of joyful supporters at Raleigh's Brownstone Hotel.

He appeared at a news conference with Republican Gov. Jim Martin, to whose re-election coattails Gardner attributed his narrow victory.

"It was a hard-fought campaign," he said. "The people have spoken. We need to set partisan politics aside, work together, Democrats and Republicans, for the best interests of the people..."

He said he sent letters to each of the 50 newly elected senators requesting meetings to discuss the General Assembly session that gets under way in January. The lieutenant governor is the Senate's presiding officer.

At the state Democratic headquarters, Rand told reporters he was not conceding, but he acknowledged that "it appears he's won."

Rand, majority leader of the state Senate, said he would press ahead with the libel suit he filed against Gardner on Monday. Rand, a defense lawyer who said he'd resume his practice after his term expires in December, said in the suit that Gardner's commercials implied Rand had broken the law in his work with a client charged with trafficking in drugs.

Asked why he had not telephoned Gardner to congratulate him, Rand said, "You don't normally talk to the opposing party in a lawsuit." Asked about his feelings toward his foe, Rand drily replied, "I don't anticipate I'll be playing any golf with him."

Rand said the top of the GOP ticket's strength was a major factor in his loss and defended his own campaign, which some critics said lacked direction and energy. "Any inference that I didn't work hard enough is absurd," he said.

Other Democrats continued to accuse Gardner of hitting below the belt.

"Jim Gardner is a con artist to the highest degree and I'm embarrassed he's our lieutenant governor," state party chairman Jim Van Hecke said.

But House Speaker Liston Ramsey, a fiercely partisan Democrat with whom Gardner will need to develop a working relationship, said both campaigns were too negative.

"Frankly, I don't think he (Gardner) or Tony ran much of a campaign," Ramsey said. "Gardner won, so you'd have to say his was more successful. It was just a dirty campaign."

A Rocky Mount businessman who founded the Hardee's hamburger restaurant chain, Gardner served in the U.S. House from 1966-68 and ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1968 and 1972.

Leadership Open

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — With the defeat of the Democratic candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, the leadership of the state party is "wide open," party Chairman Jim Van Hecke says.

"I wish I were standing here with a full complement of elected leadership behind me," Van Hecke said Wednesday. "We've been through a tough election — a tough night. We don't like much of what we see. But there are some bright spots."

The state Democratic Executive Committee will decide who will serve as titular head of the party, he said.

Republicans Pick Up 13 New Legislative Seats

By F. Alan Boyce
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Aided by incumbent Gov. Jim Martin, who overwhelmed Democrat Bob Jordan, Republicans picked up 10 state House seats and three Senate seats in making their greatest gains ever in the state Legislature.

"We targeted districts carefully this year ... recruited candidates carefully in those districts, and we had candidates that worked really hard," said party Chairman Jack Hawke. "We had the best on-the-ground organization for candidates that we've ever had."

The party spent about $150,000 on legislative races, "which for us is a lot," Hawke said Wednesday, adding that the party spent only $60,000 on Council of State races, all of which the party lost.

He credited the popularity of Gov. Jim Martin — who overwhelmed Democrat Bob Jordan — with helping legislative candidates. Martin, plus Republican registration exceeding one million voters for the first time, contributed to straight ticket voting.

The GOP gained House seats in the 20th, 25th, 28th, 34th, 40th, 44th, 53rd, 61st and 62nd districts as Republicans put George Bush in the White House and returned Martin to the governor's mansion.

The GOP ousted Sen. Bob Warren in the 15th Senatorial District and knocked off Sen. Mary Seymour in the 32nd. Democrats defeated Sen. Jim McDuffie in the 34th District to cut their Senate losses, but veteran Sens. R.P. "Bo" Thomas and Charles Hipps were knocked off in the 29th District by Republican opponents.

The Democratic advantage in the unofficial returns was whittled from 84-36 to 75-45 in the House, while the GOP deficit in the Senate changed from 40-10 to 37-13.

Former GOP Rep. Richard Chalk defeated Seymour, D-Guilford, 18,848 to 17,542 in the 32nd District with all 36 precincts reporting. Republican Leo Daughtry beat Warren, D-Johnston, 21,280 to 19,610 or 52 percent to 48 percent in the 15th District.

Democrats took over the 34th Senatorial District as former Mecklenburg County Commissioner Fountain Odum beat McDuffie 24,223 to 21,383 with all 36 precincts counted. McDuffie had served in 1975, 1977, 1981, 1985 and 1987.

Hipps, D-Haywood, lost a fourth term. With all 158 precincts reporting, he was fourth in the race for two seats with 47,081 votes. Thomas, D-Henderson, had 48,615 votes. Republican winner C.W. Hardin had 49,102, followed by fellow Republican Bob Carpenter with 48,950. Hipps was ranked ninth in effectiveness in the Senate last year.

TEAM PAC, a political action committee working on behalf of incumbent Republicans, claimed credit for many of the GOP gains.

"We really feel like we have something to crow about," said David Landers, executive director of the group. "We've kept it quiet while we were targeting these districts, but we've been successful in nearly every one."

In the 20th House District, Rep. George Brannan, D-Johnston, failed in a bid for a fifth term when he came in third behind Republican Billy Creech and Rep. Barney Woodard, a Democrat. Creech had 19,113 votes in the race for two seats while Woodard polled 17,537 and Brannan had 15,314. Republican Philip Taylor had 13,188.

In the 25th House District, Rep. Bob McAlister, D-Rockingham, failed to be re-elected to a sixth term,

Jail Camera

WILMINGTON (AP) — Two suicides in the Brunswick County jail during the past year have prompted the sheriff to install a closed-circuit camera in the maximum-security cell.

Rayford Clayton Piver, 43, hanged himself in the cell with a bedsheet the morning of Oct. 26, hours before he was to be sentenced to life in prison or death by a Superior Court jury.

On Oct. 22, 1987, 17-year-old Riley Bradford Ridgeway also hanged himself with a bedsheet. He was not being held in the jail's maximum-security cell.

placing fifth in a four-vacancy district behind Democratic incumbents Bertha Holt, Fred Bowman, and R. Samuel Hunt III and Republican challenger Peggy Wilson.

Democratic Rep. Mary Jarrell, D-Guilford, lost her seat in the 28th House District. With all 33 precincts reporting, Republican Steve Arnold had 16,337 in the race for two seats while former GOP Rep. Steve Wood had 15,648, Ms. Jarrell had 13,069 and former Sen. Rachel Gray had 12,371.

The 34th District became all-Republican as Reps. Tim Tallent, Bobby Barbee and Coy Privette won re-election and Clayton Loflin took the fourth place over Democratic Rep. Bill Alexander.

Republican Gene Wilson moved into the 40th District with Democratic Reps. Dave Diamond and Judy Hunt, replacing Democratic Rep. Wade Wilmoth.

Rep. Dave Bumgardner, D-Gaston, was denied a 12th term in the 44th District, placing sixth in a race for four seats. Republican Doris Lail joined GOP Reps. Vernon Abernethy, Jonathan Rhyne and Walt Windley there.

Rep. Jeff Enloe, D-Macon, lost his bid for an eighth term to GOP challenger Marty Kimsey 10,927 to 9,378 with all 42 precincts counted in the 53rd District.

Incumbent Democrat Casper Holdroyd, D-Wake, lost a close race to Republican James Pope, 52 percent to 48 percent in the 61st District with all 25 precincts reporting.

In Wake County's District 62, Republican Paul Stam beat incumbent Rep. Bill Freeman 11,605 to 10,348 with all of the precincts counted.

Nearly a third of the General Assembly races were foregone conclusions Tuesday as 30 House Democrats, led by House Speaker Liston Ramsey, and eight Republicans faced no opposition. In the Senate, 12 Democrats swept in without opposition along with one uncontested Republican, Sen. Larry Cobb of Mecklenburg County.

One Republican Judge Wins, Another May Be On Way Out

RALEIGH (AP) — A Republican judge has become the first member of the GOP to win a statewide election in this century, but it appears that a second GOP judge lost to a Democratic challenger by a narrow margin.

Appeals Court Judges Donald L. Smith and Robert F. Orr were appointed by Gov. Jim Martin to fill vacancies, and Orr won his first statewide election Tuesday. A winner has yet to be declared in the race between Appeals Court Judge Donald L. Smith and his Democratic challenger, John B. Lewis.

With 100 percent of the precincts reporting Wednesday, unofficial returns showed Lewis with 983,301 votes to Smith's 966,495, making the race too close to call.

"We've been steadily cutting away at the lead all night," Smith said. "Boy, it's close."

With 2,338 of 2,391 precincts reporting, or 98 percent, Orr had 988,450 votes, or 52 percent, to 924,452 votes, or 48 percent, for Democrat John R. Friday.

Republican candidates contested only three of the 17 Superior Court races, and two of the three races were still too close to call early Wednesday afternoon.

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, James D. Riddick III trailed Democrat Cy A. Grant Sr. in District 6-B, 954,144 votes to 974,104.

Carlton E. Fellers lost to Democrat George R. Greene in District 10-A, 52 percent to 48 percent, with 97 percent of the precincts reporting.

GOP contender Howard Manning Jr. continued to hold a slight lead over incumbent Democrat Narley L. Cashwell in District 10-C, 947,081 votes to 914,755, with 97 percent of the precincts reporting.

Superior Court judge candidates facing no opposition were: Ernest Fullwood in District 5, G.K. Butterfield in 7-B, Donald Stephens in Wake's 10-D, Gregory Weeks in Cumberland County's 12-B, Orlando F. Hudson in Durham's 14-A, Shirley Fulton in Mecklenburg's 26-A and Joe Freeman Britt in Robeson County's 16-B. In Guilford County, Steve Allen in 18-A, Howard Greeson Jr. in 18-B, Thomas Ross in 18-D and Joseph John in 18-E faced no challengers. Also unopposed were Joseph Deramus in 21-B and James Beaty Jr. in 21-D — both in Forsyth County.

However, the GOP could benefit from a lawsuit filed by Martin challenging the constitutionality of some judicial districts drawn by the Democrat-controlled General Assembly in 1987.

The governor, who also won re-election Tuesday over Democrat Bob Jordan, claims changes in 14 of the 17 judgeships on the ballot were not required by the 1965 Voting Rights Act, which was passed to ensure minority representation in government.

Tiny Banks

CHARLOTTE (AP) — NCNB Corp., the largest banking firm in the southeast, has earmarked $2 million to start a tiny bank in Raleigh with locations at two supermarkets.

NCNB received preliminary approval a week ago from the Comptroller of the Currency, the banking industry's principal regulator to start the institution, to be called Market Center Bank.

The bank plans to open by February 1989 at two Kroger supermarkets in Raleigh, said Mollie Brugh, vice president with NCNB National Bank of North Carolina. If the test of the supermarket concept is successful, NCNB plans an expansion of the bank, she said.

Market Center Bank will operate with a separate name and logo from NCNB so it can have the flexibility to offer more favorable interest rates on loans and deposits to its supermarket customers, Ms. Brugh said.

Hepatitis Study

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The health directors of Forsyth, Guilford and Davidson counties say they will work together to try to find the source of a recent outbreak of hepatitis A that killed one Guilford County resident and left at least 50 others ill.

Thomas Duman, Forsyth County's health director, reported two new cases over the weekend, bringing the total reported cases in that county to 23 since August.

Duman said some hepatitis cases in Guilford County were traced to restaurants, but not all of them.

Blackwell Dies

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP) — Hoyt Blackwell, president of Mars Hill College from 1938 until 1966, died Tuesday in a Mars Hill nursing home. He was 98.

During his 38-year career as a teacher and administrator at the Baptist college, Blackwell helped erect half the buildings on the campus, but left the school debt free when he retired.

Blackwell enrolled at Mars Hill after returning from World War I. He transferred to Wake Forest College in 1922, but returned to Mars Hill in 1923 and was ordained to the ministry by Mars Hill Baptist Church.

The school converted from a junior college to a four-year institution under Blackwell's leadership. That transition occurred during 1962-64. The junior year was added in 1962-63, the senior year in 1963-64, and the first baccalaureate degrees were awarded in May 1964.

Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Friday in Mars Hill Baptist Church. In lieu of flowers, gifts may be made to a memorial scholarship fund at Mars Hill College.

Assault Charges

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Caldwell County sheriff's deputies Tuesday charged two Lenoir men with assaulting a jailer.

Monroe Bradley Zion, 26, and Lynn Allen Tester, 19, were charged with assault on a custodial officer and escape from jail.

Caldwell Sheriff's Maj. Ed Lynch said two men assaulted jailer Ken Huss Monday morning when he was returning from the courthouse with another prisoner.

Huss was treated Monday at Caldwell Memorial Hospital for injuries to his eyes, nose and mouth. He is scheduled to return to work Thursday.

Zion was being held at the jail on a fugitive warrant from Pennsylvania, where he is wanted on charges of robbery and escape from jail.

Tester was awaiting trial in Caldwell County on charges of felonious larceny, larceny and breaking and entering.

Murder Charge

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A man who police say had been shooting randomly in a westside neighborhood remained jailed without bond after being charged in the shooting death of another man.

Charlotte police charge Marty Lee Rorie, 30, with murder in the death of Donald Ray McDowell, 37, on Tuesday.

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh-Durham International Airport will get its second international flight Feb. 15 when American Airlines begins a non-stop flight to the Mexican resort of Cancun.

American had announced that it planned to begin the flight Nov. 1 but postponed starting the service after Hurricane Gilbert devastated both

Martin Seeks Smoother Journey

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin, basking in the satisfaction of a landslide re-election, says he immediately will begin contacting Democratic legislators in hopes of cultivating a smoother relationship than they had during the last four years.

"I'm satisfied that there are a number of (Democratic) members of the House and Senate ... who understand that it would not be good for North Carolina or for any of us to go through what we did in 1985 again in 1989," said Martin, a Republican.

At a news conference Wednesday, Martin said he was willing to negotiate on such matters as gubernatorial veto power, but did not say what concessions he might make in pursuit of compromise.

Despite his conciliatory tone, Martin continued to blame the Democrats for their rocky first-term relationship and hinted they could continue to suffer at the polls if their attitudes do not change.

"They know that in their polls as well as ours, the General Assembly has not been perceived very well by the people," he said. "If they will let us, we will be prepared to work with them to rebuild" their image.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey said in an interview he was prepared to work with Martin and Gardner, but refused to accept responsibility for previous clashes.

"I haven't been out there calling Mr. Martin mean names like arrogant and repulsive," Ramsey said, referring to Martin's 1985 description of a Senate committee's quick defeat of a gubernatorial veto bill.

"I can work with Governor Martin and Lieutenant Governor Gardner, so long as I think they have the best interests of the entire state at heart," Ramsey said. "Of course I'll cooperate."

Martin vowed to press forward with his unfinished policy agenda, which includes statewide implementation of the career ladder program for teachers, continued funding of the Basic Education Program, completion of the "strategic corridors" highway system and a network of "connector" roads and gubernatorial veto power.

With all 2,391 precincts reporting unofficial returns, Martin had 1,218,864 votes or 56 percent in the election Tuesday. Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan had 954,696 votes or 44 percent.

Martin and Gardner appeared together at a crowded news conference at the Brownstone Hotel. Cheered by dozens of bleary-eyed but jubilant Republicans.

SBI Renews Probe Of Lumberton Hostage-Taking

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

State officials say they are looking beyond Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs to determine if anyone else was involved in a conspiracy to take hostages at a Lumberton newspaper office last February.

"The basic inquiry is to look at the takeover of The Robesonian to see whether state charges are appropriate," Robeson County District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt said Wednesday.

"There are a number of complex legal issues involved in that," Britt said. "This latest move has simply been to expand that inquiry to possibly include other people. The intent there is to look beyond Hatcher and Jacobs."

Hatcher said he welcomed the conspiracy investigation, but denied that anyone other than he and Jacobs were involved in the siege. The two said they took over The Robesonian in order to spotlight what they said was corruption in the county's law enforcement community.

"I'm just itching to see them in the courthouse," Hatcher said Wednesday. "I'm not going to be intimidated by Joe Freeman Britt. He doesn't frighten me. I welcome it. But I don't see how they can talk about a conspiracy. I would have liked to have found about 10 more people to help me."

Ray M. Davis, supervisor of the State Bureau of Investigation's southeastern district, said an SBI task force is looking into the possibility that Hatcher and Jacobs may have conspired with others.

Davis said agents had been working in the county since the takeover, but that the SBI investigation had intensified recently to determine whether conspiracy charges would be appropriate in the case.

"We are responding to a request from Joe Freeman Britt and we have supplied a number of agents," Davis told The News and Observer of Raleigh. "We will report back to him. We're just trying to compile the facts. I don't want to be more specific than that."

Hatcher and Jacobs were cleared last month of federal weapons and hostage-taking charges stemming from the newspaper incident, in which about 20 people were taken hostage.

Britt, who will become a Superior Court judge Jan. 1, said no charges would be filed until he had an opportunity to review a transcript of the federal hostage-taking trial, which he had not received yet from Raleigh. Also, he said, he would wait until Gov. Jim Martin had appointed his replacement as district attorney.

"I don't want to make any moves until the person who is going to try the case — if any charges are brought — is named," he said.

James Sughrue, spokesman for Martin, said the governor expected to meet with his legal counsel within the next 10 days or so to discuss possible appointments to the district attorney's position.

Lewis Pitts, one of Jacobs' attorneys, said any new charges in the case, whether against Jacobs and Hatcher or against anyone else in the county, would be a waste of time.

"It would be a terrible misallocation of resources, in light of the clear federal jury verdict and in light of the many other priorities for prosecution in Robeson County, such as corruption and violence," said Pitts of the Christie Institute-South, a legal advocacy group based in Carrboro.

"It's so out of bounds for them to be considering bringing charges that I really don't know what to say. I just hope it's not a bad faith prosecution being brought to cover up and silence the allegations about corruption and violence in Robeson County."

Connee Brayboy, editor of the Carolina Indian Voice, a Pembroke-based newspaper, said an SBI investigation into conspiracy charges amounted to harassment of the people of Robeson County. She was critical of Britt's decision to pursue the case after Hatcher and Jacobs' acquittal.

"According to the jury, there was no crime committed, so what's the conspiracy?" she said. "We're dealing trainloads of cocaine through this county and Joe Freeman Britt's got nothing better to do than harass people with the SBI. I just find it ludicrous."

Duke Power Lays Off 850 Employees

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — About 850 Duke Power employees in North Carolina will be laid off and another 350 will be let go in South Carolina, and the dismissals appeared to reach deep into management ranks.

One engineer, who asked not to be identified, said several managers in his department were given 24 hours to accept demotions or resign. As they deliberated Wednesday, tension mounted among lower-level employees who would be displaced if the managers accepted the demotions, the engineer said.

Officials at the Charlotte-based utility said the 6 percent staff cut, which began Wednesday, will occur through layoffs or mandatory early retirement as part of Duke's first companywide job reductions.

Company officials announced Sept. 7 that Duke, the nation's seventh-largest investor-owned electric utility and Mecklenburg County's largest employer, would immediately freeze hiring and reduce the work force by no more than 2,000 employees, or 10, to cut costs.

Still, news of the layoffs astonished some employees and staggered their families because it marked a sharp departure from past job reductions, which typically have been among construction workers.

Employees who are laid off will receive full pay and benefits through January, severance pay based on length of service, and other services like job fairs, resume writing, interviewing skills and financial management, Duke Power chairman Bill Lee said.

"These are all good people and we want to help them through a difficult transition," Lee said. "We have already received inquiries from more than 100 companies across the nation that are interested in interviewing our affected employees," he said.

The savings are needed, Lee and President Doug Booth said, to avoid seeking higher electric rates for Duke's customers and to meet the company's challenges as the industry moves toward diversification and deregulation. They also said Duke is "not meeting the important cost and profitability goals" set in the company's five-year plan developed last year.

"With a continuing emphasis on cost control and efficient service to our customers, we hope to be able to keep electric rates stable into the early 1990s and meet the challenges of increased competition in our industry," Lee said.

The company Wednesday refused to provide a specific breakdown of the latest layoffs, but confirmed that a two-month review of company operations assessed staffing in all departments and Duke's subsidiaries, Crescent Land & Timber Corp., Mill-Power Supply Co. and Duke Engineering & Services Inc.

Indians Want PTL Sale Delayed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The Catawba Indians say the land on which PTL built Heritage USA is part of their heritage and they want to block the sale until a federal court rules on their claim to 144,000 acres in the area.

Attorneys for the Catawba Indian tribe, in papers filed Wednesday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Columbia, asked Judge Rufus Reynolds to withhold approval of the sale.

If Reynolds does not, the attorneys said he should have the money held for the tribe until its claim to that property — and another 142,000 more acres in the Upstate — is settled by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Catawba Indian Tribe has been trying since 1980 to reclaim land given to them by the British in 1763. The land, valued at $2 billion, includes the cities of Rock Hill and Fort Mill. Lawyers for the landholders say the Indians lost their right to it when they sold it to the state for $21,000 in 1840 and did not take action within 10 years to get it back.

Election Over, Bush And Dukakis Go Own Ways

By Donald M. Rothberg
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Bush and Michael Dukakis, locked together in political combat for so many months, are going their separate ways: the Republican vice president to plan the next administration, his vanquished Democratic opponent to resume his duties as governor of Massachusetts.

After taking the first steps toward the transfer of power next January, Bush was leaving today on a brief vacation fishing off the coast of Florida.

The president-elect returned to Washington Wednesday and received a tumultuous welcome at Andrews Air Force Base from supporters that included his vice president-elect, Dan Quayle.

"He's going to be one of the great vice presidents," Bush said of the Indiana senator who stood smiling behind him on the platform. "You watch him closely, America."

Back at the Massachusetts Statehouse, Dukakis told a news conference he was looking forward to resuming his duties as governor "vigorously and fully."

"I gave it my best shot," he said of the losing campaign.

Many of his fellow Democrats were complaining that his best shot was not good enough.

"The Dukakis campaign ran the worst campaign of this century," said Robert Slagle, chairman of the Texas Democratic Party. Slagle complained particularly about Dukakis' failure to respond quickly to attacks from the Bush campaign.

"You just don't let people do that sort of thing to you," said the Texas Democrat.

"This race was winnable," said James Ruvalo, the Ohio Democratic Party chairman. "Michael Dukakis will get a lot of blame, deserved and not deserved."

In the presidential race, Bush won 40 states with 426 electoral votes, while Dukakis carried 10 states and the District of Columbia for a total of 112 electoral votes.

But the new president will have to deal with a solidly Democratic Congress when he takes office on Jan. 20, a fact Bush obviously had in mind when he told the airport crowd that "I'm going to do everything I can to have a good and open and friendly relationship with the United States Congress."

With the outcome certain from all but one race, the Democrats stood to gain one and possibly two Senate seats. The unsettled race was the contest between Republican Rep. Connie Mack III and Democratic Rep. Buddy MacKay for the seat being vacated by Florida Sen. Lawton Chiles.

Mack had a slight lead as officials counted 100,000 absentee ballots.

If Mack wins that race, the Democratic majority in the Senate would be 55 to 45. If MacKay pulls it out, the Democrats would have a 56-44 margin.

Despite the Bush victory, Democrats were also adding to the House majority. With three races still too close to call, the Democrats had won 259 seats compared to 173 for the GOP. The Democratic candidates held narrow leads in the three unsettled races.

Only about half the eligible voters bothered to cast ballots in the 1988 election, according to Curtis Gans, director of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, the lowest turnout percentage since 1924.

"We had an unprecedented number of voters who said they didn't like either candidate," said Gans.

In his valedictory press conference, Dukakis touched once again on the negative tone of the long campaign.

The Republican attacks "had an impact on me," said Dukakis. When asked whether he thought the success of those attacks would result in more negative campaigning in the future, he replied, "I fear that this will be a signal at the national level that this kind of campaigning is effective campaigning. I certainly hope not."

Bush moved quickly to set the transition in motion.

He announced Wednesday morning that he would name old friend and campaign chairman James A. Baker III his secretary of State. Baker served the Reagan administration as White House chief of staff and then Treasury secretary.

Mrs. Quayle May Succeed Him

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Vice president-elect Dan Quayle is getting ready to settle into his new job in January, while his wife apparently is mulling what to do if offered her husband's vacant Senate seat.

As Sen. Quayle, R-Ind., headed toward his transition headquarters near the White House Wednesday, Mrs. Quayle was asked by reporters if she was interested in succeeding her husband.

"You'll have to ask the governor," she replied. "That's an answer I'll give him. You'll be the second to know."

Quayle has refused to say when he would officially notify Indiana Gov. Robert Orr of his resignation from the Senate.

He has signaled several times in recent days that he would submit his resignation before Orr's term ends in January so that the Republican governor, rather than Democratic Gov.-elect Evan Bayh, can appoint someone to fill the Senate seat.

Quayle also said he had no specific timetable for making staff appointments and said his tour of the four-story, white-brick townhouse off Lafayette Park was aimed at "assembling thoughts, conversing with people, nothing specific."

"When we have specific things, believe me, you'll be the first to know," the senator said, a day after he and Vice President George Bush scored a lopsided electoral triumph over Democrats Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen.

Quayle had no public events on his schedule today, and aides said he would continue to make telephone calls and contacts as he works on the transition.

There has been widespread speculation that Marilyn Quayle, a licensed lawyer in addition to being a housewife, is among those under consideration to take her husband's Senate seat. Among other names mentioned in Indiana Republican political circles are Rep. Dan Coats and Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut, and possibly Lt. Gov. John Mutz, who lost to Bayh on Tuesday.

The Quayles have sought to minimize speculation that Mrs.

Quayle is interested in succeeding her husband.

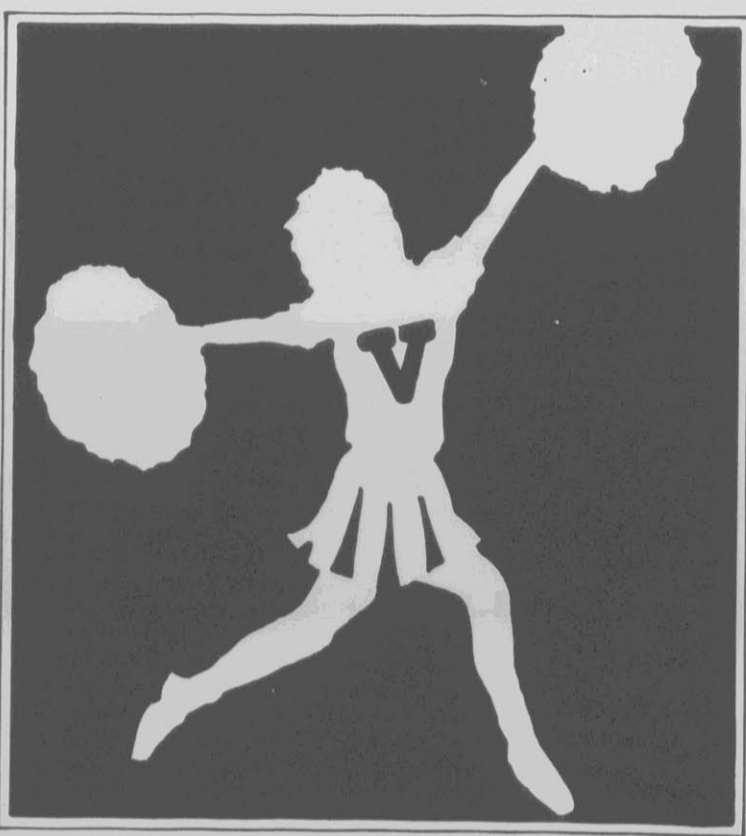

The couple have three children — Tucker, 14, Benjamin, 12 and Corinne, 9 — and it is believed that one obstacle to Mrs. Quayle's taking on a Senate seat is their concern about both parents being involved in extremely demanding jobs.

On Wednesday afternoon, Quayle rode out to Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland to greet Bush on the vice president's return from Texas.

Bush praised Quayle, saying "he's going to be one of the great vice presidents. You watch him closely."

Bush and his wife, Barbara, and Quayle and his wife drove to the White House, where they exchanged tributes with President Reagan.

"As one who came to the Senate in 1980, thank you for all you have done for America," Quayle said. "... The American people overwhelmingly placed their trust and their confidence in your leadership, and I'm delighted to be a part of that team and am ready to go to work and change America and make it even greater."

Bush Eyes Gorbachev Meeting, Aid For Contras

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A productive summit meeting with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and a resumption of U.S. aid to Contra rebels in Nicaragua have high priority with President-elect George Bush as he prepares to move into the White House.

At a Houston news conference Wednesday in which he named James A. Baker III as his choice for secretary of state, Bush provided more of an insight into his foreign policy views than he had throughout the election campaign.

Bush ruled out a meeting with Gorbachev just to get to know the Soviet leader. "I am acquainted with him," Bush said. "What I want to see is progress. I've never supported meetings just for the sake of having meetings."

But he defined progress in a way that was far short of a demand that a summit produce cosmic results. Bush said there were a number of areas — arms control, human rights, regional disputes — in which the superpowers could make headway.

By offering a range of categories, the president-elect took a positive but cautious stance on summitry with Gorbachev. He said, for instance, that a summit would not have to produce a treaty to cut long-range nuclear weapons.

President Reagan, on the other hand, entered the White House in January 1981 extremely reluctant to hold a summit. But after Gorbachev took over in 1985 the two leaders met annually — four times, in all.

Bush said that before he would meet with Gorbachev he would have Baker confer with the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and then with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

"But I don't think that will start before I become president," he said.

Asked about the Contras, whose surreptitious receipt of millions of dollars from U.S. secret arms sales to Iran rocked the Reagan administration, Bush explicitly supported a resumption of aid.

Congress cut off all military assistance last February. Humanitarian aid, in the form of food, clothing and shelter, is due to expire in March.

But Bush said aid to the rebels, who are at war with the government in Nicaragua, "will have a high priority because freedom and democracy in this hemisphere have a high priority."

He said he intended "to keep the pressure on the Sandinistas."

In a third area, Bush said he believed the Soviets would adhere to their commitment to complete the withdrawal of their military forces from Afghanistan by Feb. 15.

If the Soviets do not pull out, Bush said, "that will throw a complicating factor over the whole relationship."

In responding to reporters' questions, the president-elect neither condemned the Soviet Union on any issue nor lobbed any tough rhetoric at Moscow. His overall tone on foreign policy was measured.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, meanwhile, hailed Baker's selection as a "welcome and heartening event."

In a news conference here, Shultz said Bush had telephoned him before announcing the selection. "He will hit the ground running," Shultz said of Baker, a Cabinet colleague and partner at international economic summit meetings.

"His close, warm and productive relationship with president-elect Bush makes him just the guy to serve as the president's chief foreign policy adviser, and as chief spokesman for the president and for our nation's interests," Shultz said.

Shultz and Baker both are considered moderate to conservative in their political views and are internationally minded. Together, they tried without much success to reduce the U.S. trade deficit.

Insurers Will Cancel After Voter Revolt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Nearly 50 insurance companies have swiftly answered a voter revolt against skyrocketing rates by announcing they will stop writing certain policies in California, an industry spokesman says.

At least six other insurance companies, including Aetna Life & Casualty and Fireman's Fund Insurance Cos., said they have withdrawn or intend to withdraw from the auto insurance business in California as a result of the passage of Proposition 103, which was backed by consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

On Wall Street, stocks of several companies handling large amounts of insurance in California were down Wednesday.

"We're finding exactly what we feared, and that is that there's no marketplace left as a result of the passage of Proposition 103," says Don Stewart, executive director of the Pasadena-based American Agents Alliance, a 600-member association of independent insurance brokers and agents.

Under Proposition 103, insurers must lower almost all insurance rates, including those on auto, home and business policies, by 20 percent below November 1987 levels. The reductions must be offered when policies come due.

It also requires an additional 20 percent cut in auto rates for drivers with good records, gives control over most rate increases to an elected insurance commissioner, strictly limits the use of territorial rating to set auto rates, and subjects the industry to state antitrust and unfair business practice laws.

Proposition 103 was approved by a narrow margin Tuesday despite the insurance industry's $60 million campaign seeking its defeat. It was the nation's most costly state ballot question battle ever.

State Department of Insurance officials said consumers need not panic about whether they will be able to renew policies or obtain new ones.

"It's premature to say what is going to happen because there are 650 or 700 firms writing property-casualty business in California," said Insurance Commissioner Roxani Gillespie, who is appointed by the governor.

She added that a half-dozen or so companies withdrawing "will not kill the market."

Insurance lawyers waited at dawn Wednesday at the doors of the state Supreme Court in San Francisco, where they filed legal challenges to the initiative.

The industry offered voters four of its own reform initiatives, all of which failed. They included no-fault insurance and a measure to cut fees charged by trial lawyers representing people suing insurers.

Absentee Votes To Decide Race

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Republican Connie Mack held a slim lead over Democrat Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay in the U.S. Senate race this morning with key absentee ballots to be counted.

"I feel quite confident we're going to be declaring victory. The question is when," Mack said Wednesday in Tampa before heading home to await the final count.

As 3.9 million votes filtered in election night, exit polls were enough for the three major television networks to declare MacKay the winner.

But Mack squeezed ahead Wednesday as partial results from 134,000 absentee ballots came in.

With all precincts in and some absentee ballots counted, Mack had 1,982,760 votes and MacKay had 1,977,824 votes — a margin of 4,936.

Air Force Grounds B-1 Bombers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Air Force is inspecting all of its B-1B bombers for electrical, hydraulic and fuel line problems following the crash of one of the costly new planes in Texas.

The inspections were prompted by Tuesday's crash during a routine training flight out of Dyess Air Force Base in west Texas. The four men aboard ejected safely after steering the flaming aircraft away from homes where it crashed west of Abilene.

Pentagon officials said Wednesday that the remaining B-1Bs, long-range bombers designed to be capable of carrying out nuclear strikes against the Soviet Union, would be grounded until the inspections were completed.

Col. Albert Jensen, wing commander at Dyess, said television footage of Tuesday's crash led Air Force officials to believe the plane was downed by a fire in or around its two left-wing engines.

Some training flights had resumed at Dyess by Wednesday afternoon. Officials said the planes flying had passed the inspection ordered by the Strategic Air Command.

The inspections take two to three hours per plane, according to the Air Force.

An Air Force official at the Pentagon, who asked not to be named, said the inspections generally focus on electrical, hydraulic and fuel lines. The official declined to be more specific, as did Lt. Col. George H. Peck, a spokesman at SAC headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

SAC, which is responsible for land-based nuclear bomber and missile forces, said the grounding and inspection order was issued Wednesday as a "normal precaution" in the wake of a major accident.

Peck said the order would not affect the B-1B's current standing alert to be ready for immediate takeoff in the event of nuclear war.

In Texas, the Air Force set up a roadblock to seal off the crash site Wednesday and sent in military investigators, who spent the day mapping the area and searching through debris.

The wreckage was scattered over an area seven miles by two miles, said Al Dostal, an Air Force spokesman.

Tuesday's crash was the second involving a production-model B-1B in 14 months, leaving the Air Force with 98 of its original 100 planes.

California Quivers

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A moderate earthquake shook a wide section of northern California, knocking items off grocery shelves but causing no injuries or major damage.

The quake Wednesday night had a magnitude of 4.7 on Richter scale, according to the University of California at Berkeley Seismographic Stations. The U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park gave a preliminary reading of 4.5, with an epicenter 11 miles northeast of San Jose on the Calaveras Fault.

Most who felt the quake described it as two sharp jolts, but said it was not frightening.

At the Alpha Beta supermarket in San Jose, kitchen items, jar lids and a can fell off the shelves, said clerk Mike Depiro.

"It was shaking, rattling and rumbling," he said. "I was bagging groceries and I heard things start rumbling and falling, so I paid attention. I just enjoyed it."

The 9:08 p.m. tremor occurred at about the same location as did a magnitude 5.0 quake June 12. That quake caused slight damage.

Wednesday's quake was felt in an area stretching at least 200 miles to the north of San Francisco in Eureka, 120 miles to the south in Seaside in Monterey County, and 120 miles to the east in Modesto.

Former Attorney General John Mitchell Dies At 75

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — John Newton Mitchell, the gruff former attorney general who went to prison for conspiring to cover up the Watergate scandal in his friend Richard Nixon's White House, is dead at 75 after collapsing on a Washington street.

Mitchell was the highest ranking of the government officials who served time for the political scandal that brought about Nixon's resignation from the presidency in August 1974.

"I considered John Mitchell to be one of my few close personal friends," Nixon wrote in his memoirs. "I believed that I owed my election as president in 1968 largely to his strength as a counselor and his skill as a manager."

An ambulance crew, alerted by a 10-year-old boy who was skateboarding, found Mitchell unconscious on a street in the Georgetown section of Washington in early evening Wednesday. Mitchell had suffered a heart attack.

He stopped breathing as he was being taken to the hospital, and died despite cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Mitchell was convicted on Jan. 1, 1975, of conspiring with Nixon's chief lieutenants, chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and domestic counselor John D. Ehrlichman, to cover up White House involvement in the Watergate affair, of the cover-up itself and of perjury. He fought the conviction in vain to the Supreme Court.

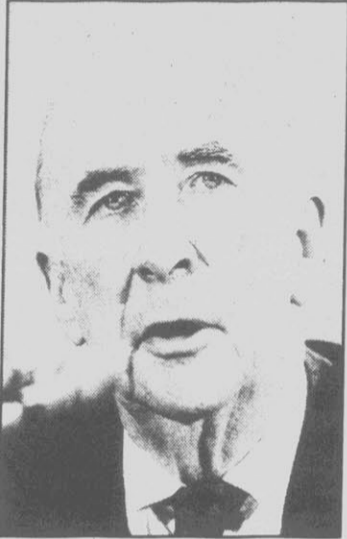

All three were sentenced after a three-month trial to terms of 2 1/2-to-8 years.

There was testimony at the Senate Watergate hearings, at the cover-up trial and in various published first-person accounts that Mitchell twice rejected plans for spying on Democrats because they were too expensive but that he accepted a third, less expensive, version. Mitchell always denied the allegation.

But in a March 22, 1973, taped Oval Office conversation, Ehrlichman said "John says he's sorry he sent those burglars in there" to which Nixon replied: "That's right."

Mitchell chimed in at that point and said "You are very welcome, sir," and the transcript shows laughter.

The tapes also showed that Nixon once wanted Mitchell to take the rap for the entire Watergate cover-up. But Mitchell never said a harsh word about his former New York law partner and would not permit his defense lawyer to do so. By all accounts they remained friends.

"He was very loyal to the president and the president was not very loyal to him," the late Sen. Sam Ervin, who presided over the Watergate hearings in the Senate, once said.

Mitchell was the first former attorney general to be convicted of a crime. He was disbarred and served a 19-month prison term, which included five months of medical furloughs.

When he was done with prison number 24171-157 at the minimum-security facility at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, he told reporters, "Henceforth, don't call me. I'll call you."

After his release, Mitchell went into the international consulting business with Jack Brennan, who was Nixon's chief aide in the early post-presidential years at San Clemente, Calif.

"I never heard him be really cross about any of the things that happened to him or any of the people who had hurt him, intentionally or not," Brennan said Wednesday. "He has been, even at my age, my inspiration and has taught me how to forgive, how to be caring and how not to hold grudges."

As attorney general, Mitchell was known for his credo that "when the going gets tough, the tough get going." And in Senate testimony he referred to Watergate as "White House horrors."

The former attorney general's second wife, the flamboyant and peppery Martha Mitchell, gained a measure of fame for her late-night telephone calls to reporters in which she offered shrill, shoot-from-the-hip opinions on controversial issues of all sorts, including her husband's problems.

She called reporters in 1973 to announce that she and Mitchell had split up.

After he was sentenced for conspiracy, Mitchell said: "It could have been a hell of a lot worse. They could have sentenced me to spend the rest of my life with Martha Mitchell."

Mrs. Mitchell died alone in a New York City hospital on May 31, 1976, after suffering from cancer of the bone marrow.

The two had one daughter, Marti, who lives in Washington. Mitchell had a son and daughter from his first marriage and there are five grandchildren. The son, Jack Mitchell Jr., died several years ago.

In recent years, the former attorney general had a relationship with Washington socialite Mary Gore Dean, but Brennan said the two were not married.

Brennan said Mitchell paid his way through Fordham Law School by playing hockey for the New York Rangers. He was highly decorated in World War II, receiving two purple hearts, and commanded the Navy PT boat unit in which John F. Kennedy served.

President Reagan and his wife Nancy issued a statement saying they were saddened by the death.

Job Stuart Magruder, a Nixon reelection committee official who served eight months in prison for Watergate crimes, recalled Mitchell as "a great mentor and friend of mine and I just loved that man."

James F. Neal, the chief counsel in the Watergate coverup trial, called Mitchell "an easy man to know and associate with."

"He committed offenses, and I prosecuted him," Neal said, but he added, "There never was any bitterness."

Mitchell was a municipal bond specialist and senior partner in Nixon's old Manhattan law firm when he became chairman of Nixon's 1968 election campaign. He resigned as attorney general to run Nixon's reelection campaign in 1972, but quit that post as the Watergate scandal began unfolding.

Mitchell's release from prison was considered the final page in the long Watergate saga.

"Watergate is now a closed issue," said Attorney General Griffin Bell at the time.

Dance Ban Goes Down

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PURDY, Mo. — The Purdy school board reluctantly agreed to break its century-old ban on school dances in time for a December homecoming, but members are still hoping an appeals court will reinstate the prohibition.

Carolyn Flummerfelt, a parent who has been fighting for students trying to stage their first school dance, said she has waited a long time to hear the board grant approval.

"It's finally happened," she said. "It's nice that our high school students get to do what other high school students do."

The six board members unanimously voted Wednesday to suspend the ban until an appeals court makes a ruling on U.S. District Judge Russell Clark's order.

In his ruling in August, Clark said the district must stop enforcing the dance ban because it unconstitutionally promoted the values of Purdy residents who opposed dancing for religious reasons.

Board members appealed Clark's order, but last week the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals denied their request that the order not be enforced until the appeal was settled.

"We must obey the order of Judge Clark, even though we disagree with it," schools Superintendent Sheldon Buxton told the board members.

Ransom Ellis III, the attorney representing the school board, stressed that the suspension was temporary.

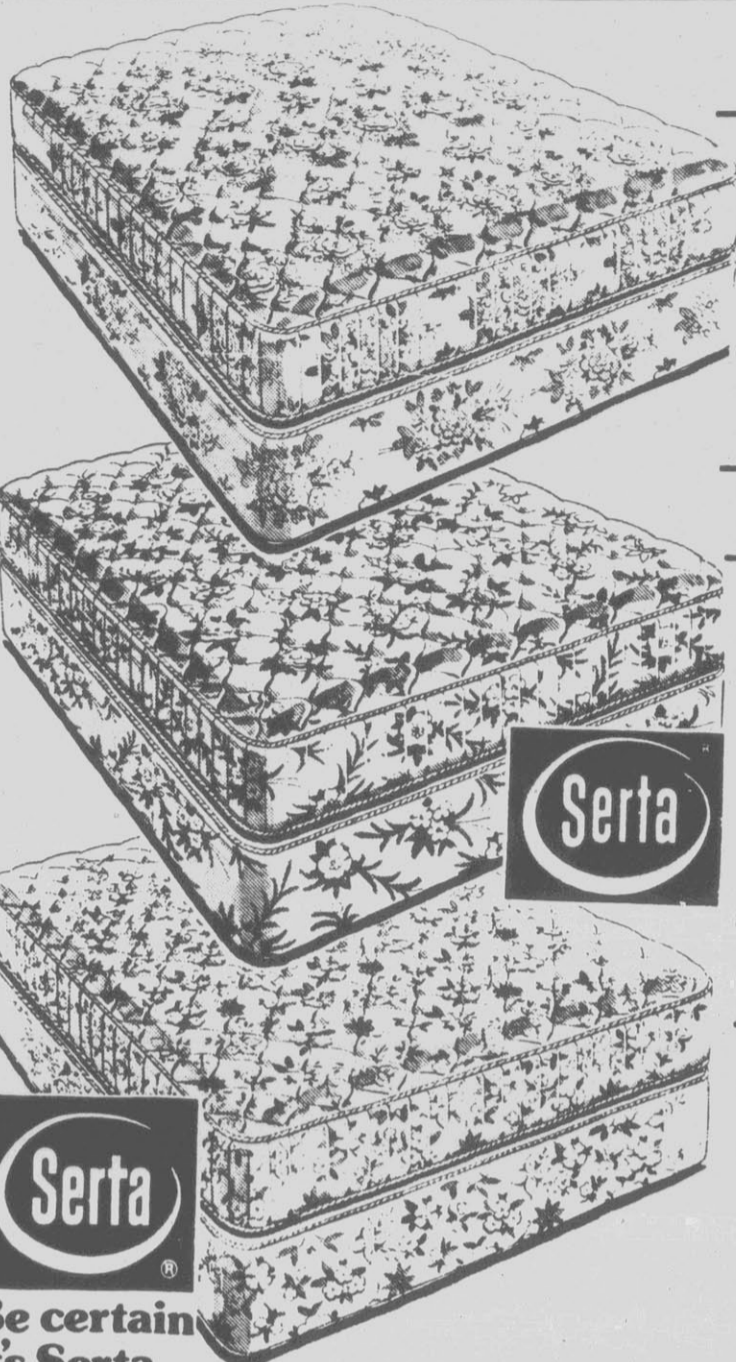

"The rule is really still on the books, but the application and enforcement are suspended," he said.

Only one student, Purdy High School student body president Nancy Fox, attended the brief meeting at which the dance ban was suspended. Miss Fox said school administrators had cooperated as she and other students planned a Dec. 10 homecoming dance.

"Our administration has been very willing to help and work with us," she said.

The Purdy school system, centered in a town of about 900 people 50 miles southwest of Springfield, has about 160 students in its high school.

Shakers Close Final Curtain On Their Sect

By Charles Hillinger
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

CANTERBURY CENTER, N.H. — The Shakers are dying out, not that it's any big surprise. After all, their founder predicted it 200 years ago, and this is a religion that is sworn to celibacy.

Today, the religious group that once numbered more than 6,000 is down to just a handful — seven women who have all signed the Shaker Covenant, the sect's official roll book.

"It is very sad for our community to die after all these years, but it fulfills a prophecy of Mother Ann, our founder," said Eldress Bertha Lindsay, the sect's 91-year-old leader who lives here in Canterbury Village with Sister Ethel Hudson, 92. Five other sisters in their 80s and 90s reside at the Shaker village in Sabbathday Lake, Maine, both established in 1792 and the only two active Shaker communities left.

Having banned sexual relations, Shakerism seemed doomed to run out of members. At its height, from 1840 to 1860, it boasted 21 communities from Maine to Florida and west to Ohio and Kentucky.

Prosperous farm and manufacturing centers, the villages were populated by inventive people who have left a legacy of distinctive architecture, furniture and crafts.

It was the Shakers who invented the clothespin, the flat broom, the threshing machine, turbine water wheel, circular saw, the pea sheller, a line of furniture, washing machines and mangles. They were also the first to package and market seeds, and the first manufacturing pharmacists in the United States.

And they were far ahead of other groups when it came to women's suffrage in this country. From the beginning, each Shaker community was governed by equal authority, two elders and two eldresses.

"The Shaker communities were one of the few places in America that took in orphans, unwanted children and the homeless in the late 18th century and first half of the 19th century," said Charles Thompson, 66, who for 30 years has been a liaison for the Shakers and the outside world. "Once orphanages were established elsewhere this pool of potential members fell way off."

"It was a combination of many things, the Industrial Revolution, celibacy and changing social conditions, that brought the curtain down on this utopian community," he said.

The sect was founded in 1767 by 32-year-old Ann Lee in Manchester, England. In 1774 Lee, the daughter of an illiterate blacksmith, and her eight followers sailed to America to launch the Shaker faith in New York.

Convinced by what she termed a series of mystical revelations, Mother Ann believed that she was the Messiah. She claimed to be the second incarnation of Christ returned to Earth to show mankind the way to heavenly salvation through abstinence, good works and industry.

In Mother Ann's view, unguided natural impulses — greed, pride and sex — caused most of the problems on Earth. Self-denial could bring better ecstasy than self-indulgence, she said. Asked to confess their sins and give up all their worldly possessions, Shakers withdrew into one of the ascetical communes and vowed never to engage in sexual relations.

Dissidents from the English Quaker Church, the group was called the United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing. Mother Ann and her followers were termed "Shaking Quakers" because they trembled with emotion, shaking, shouting and dancing during religious services. In time they became known simply as Shakers, a name they readily adopted.

shire since 1905, when she was orphaned at 8.

"I will never forget my first day," said Eldress Bertha, now partially blind, a tiny, fragile woman dressed in a traditional gray Shaker dress and lace bonnet. "My sister, Mae, left me here with tears streaming down my face. I did not know what to expect. Two Shaker girls ran over and hugged me. 'We'll take care of you,' they said comforting me."

It was Apple Blossom Sunday in Canterbury Village, she recalled. "Everyone was singing and marching and they swept me right along to the apple orchards on the Shaker farm where they gave praise and thanks to God.

"Birds were singing, the trees were filled with apple blossoms. It was beautiful. I began feeling the love and warmth of the people here. This has been my home ever since."

Orphans like Eldress Bertha would grow up in the community and, at 21, decide whether or not to join the covenant. When a Shaker man and woman fell in love and wanted to get married, they would leave the community with a blessing, a sack of flour, a horse and $100.

"When I was about 17, I thought of leaving but soon decided against it because I felt I should return to this family what had been given me," she said. "I have never regretted the decision."

Marching and singing were important components of the Shaker lifestyle. During Sunday services they sang hymns and songs, swaying their bodies, keeping time with their feet, the men on one side of the church, the women on the other.

By the time Eldress Bertha arrived at the Canterbury Shaker Village, the sect was already in decline. Many communities had closed. There were 100 Shakers here in 1905, down from the peak of 400. Not more than 1,000 remained in the entire religious group.

The last male member of the Canterbury community, Brother Irving Greenwood, died in 1939. By 1950 there were 16 sisters here between the ages of 46 and 83. In 1957, after months of prayer, the three Eldresses — Gertrude, Emma and Ida — decided to close the covenant to membership.

In the past 10 years, three men and a woman in their 20s and 30s have become residents of the community at Sabbath Day Lake, but Eldress Bertha does not recognize them as members.

"To become a Shaker you have to sign a legal document taking the necessary vows and that document, the official covenant, is locked up in our safe," she said. "Membership is closed forever."

"We must live true to our faith and must follow what our leaders say. Our leaders decided it was over, done with. It is sad, but Mother Ann predicted that in time you would be able to count the members on the fingers of your two hands and then the Shakers would be no more. This is where we are now...."

Today the Shaker village at Canterbury Center is a living museum supported by entrance fees, a restaurant featuring old-time Shaker food and the gift shop.

Pattern Provides Vest Or Sweater

Talk about versatile. Knit this simple side-to-side pattern as a vest or, if you prefer, as a long-sleeved sweater. The sleeves can be knit and easily stitched to the completed vest. Whichever you choose, appealing details of diamond-motif panels, a flattering collar and buttoned placket add to the charm of this design.

Harmonious shadings in a variegated mohair-acrylic-blend yarn create an effect you'll love. Soft, cuddly and beautifully designed, this is a sweater to enjoy for years to come. Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with approximate finished bust measurements of 37, 39½ and 42 inches respectively. The gauge is 4 stitches to the inch.

To obtain directions for making the Escapade Sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-110688 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Knit No. K-110688 by sending a check of money order for $22.95 for the sweater or $16.95 for the vest to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in rose-gray-ombre or charcoal-teal ombre.

For those knitters who delight in pattern stitchery, here are directions for working two lovely open-work pattern stitches. Before starting the instructions, I will clarify a few of the terms you may not be familiar with.

To slip a stitch knitwise, insert the tip of the right-hand needle into a stitch on the left-hand needle as if you were going to knit it, but pass the stitch from that needle to the other without working it. To slip one purlwise, do the same thing, except insert the needle tip into the stitch as if you were going to purl it.

To make a "yarnover" before a knit stitch, bring your yarn to the front of your work as you do when purling, but knit the next stitch. If the yarnover is to be made just before a purl stitch, bring the yarn to the front of the work and wrap it once completely around the needle; return it to the front before making the purl stitch.

To try the first pattern, cast on 31 stitches (a multiple of 6 plus 1). Row 1 and all the other odd-numbered rows are worked by simply purling all stitches including yarnovers (if any) on the previous row. This will be the wrong side of your work. Where parentheses appear in the following, repeat the steps within the parentheses to the end of the row or, in the case of Row 8, until 5 stitches remain on right needle.

Row 2: Knit 1, (yarnover, slip-slip-knit, knit 1, knit 2 together, yarnover, knit 1). Row 4: Knit, (yarnover, knit 1, slip 1 purlwise, knit 2 together, pass the slipped stitch over the last stitch, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1).

Row 6: Knit 1, (knit 2 together, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, slip-slip-knit, knit 1). Row 8: Knit 2 together, (knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, slip 1, knit 2 together, pass the slipped stitch over the last stitch worked). On last 5 stitches, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, slip-slip-knit.

For the second lacy pattern stitch, cast on 20 stitches (a multiple of 6 plus 2). As before, purl all odd-numbered rows. For the 2nd, 4th and 6th rows: (slip-slip-knit, knit 2, yarnover, knit 2), ending with knit 1. For the 8th, 10th and 12th rows: Knit 1 (knit 2, yarnover, knit 2, knit 2 together) ending with knit 1.

For both pattern stitches, repeat the rows in sequence over and over for desired length.

Gift-Giving Deserves 'Thank You'

Dear Abby: Please comment on a new idea about gift giving that my mother-in-law just came up with.

On her grandchildren's birthdays, Christmas, etc., she is planning to send money to one of her favorite charities and notify the grandchildren that a gift was made in their name in the amount of $100, rather than sending a personal gift to each of them as she has done in the past. It seems the reason for this new plan is because she has not received thank-you notes from them in the past, and hopes this "will teach them a lesson."

Abby, I agree that children should write thank-you notes for gifts, and I am all for giving money to charities, but I question her decision. What will this teach her grandchildren about giving? What is her motive for giving gifts in the first place? Whatever happened to the joy of Christian giving, and expecting nothing in return? And what about the golden rule?

I probably should have expressed my opinion about her decision at the time it was made, but I was so surprised that I didn't know what to say. — Disappointed Daughter-In-Law

Dear Disappointed: Children cannot be expected to know what they have not been taught. Parents should teach children early that they may not play with, wear, eat or otherwise enjoy a gift until they have thanked the giver. I do not recommend continuing to give gifts to a child of any age who has not acknowledged previous gifts. Say what you will about "the golden rule" and the joy of "Christian giving," if Grandma chooses to teach thankless grandchildren "a lesson" by sending money to her favorite charity in their name rather than giving them gifts, I'm on her side.

True, one should give for the joy of giving, but when the receiver lacks the courtesy to say "thank you," the giving loses much of its joy.

Dear Abby: I am presently pregnant and unmarried. I tried to tell the man responsible (he lives in another state), but he refuses to see me. Because of his behavior, I have decided not to tell him. I do not want to share my child with someone who doesn't have the time of day for us now. At the same time, I do not want to deny my child a father, although I am not sure he would be a good father. (Maybe no father is better than a lousy one.)

I would like to hear the opinions of people who never knew who their fathers were. I would also like to hear from men who have fathered children out of wedlock. Would any prefer not knowing they were fathers? — Alone In Minnesota ther of your child has certain legal responsibilities to face. He may even deny paternity, so be prepared for a legal battle.

Every child has the right to know who his or her father is. One's medical history is vital if there's a hereditary disease in the family. My advice: The father-to-be should be informed either by you or an attorney. It's also a man's right to know that he has fathered a child.

Dear Abby: Your recent article deploring the ignorance of most people concerning geography reminded me of an incident that occurred in my parish a few years ago.

The church had sponsored a trip to Hawaii. One of the parishioners who had signed up telephoned and asked, "What time does the bus leave for Hawaii?"

I explained that the bus left for the airport at such and such a time. Then the would-be traveler screamed, "You mean I have to fly? Cancel me out!" — Anonymous Monsignor

Won't Squirt Or Squish? They Won't Eat It

For the last eight working days, my secretary has brought the same lunch, pasta salad. This is not one of those new trendy diets, nor is she crazy for pasta salad. She is a mother who is paying the price for daring to serve her family something "different." She either dumps the excess in herself or the disposer.

I don't want to be dramatic, but I was responsible for getting my children shots against diphtheria, polio, tetanus, whooping cough, measles and mumps. I made their fevers subside, cured their upset stomachs and rushed them to the hospital to mend broken bones. Yet, I put a casserole in front of them that they've never seen before and they turn on me like a stranger offering them a candy bar to get in the car.

"What is this stuff?"
"It's called 'Seafood Fiesta,'" I said, "and you'll love it."
"Are you sure?"
"Trust me."

Minutes later, their tongues will ease out of their mouths and touch the contents ever so slightly. Then they will spit, gag, grab their throats, drink an extra pitcher of water and stage the biggest dying scene since Ali MacGraw in "Love Story."

At Wits End Erma Bombeck

Every child is born wanting his own food taster. And parents comply. A baby who can't even focus will refuse to open his mouth until you are smiling reassuringly with strained lamb on your teeth. Even then, he might taste it and then blow it back in your face.

Generally, children do not like anything you have to eat with a fork or a spoon. If it doesn't squirt, spray or squish to the touch, stain the tablecloth or excite the dog when dropped on the floor, it is boring.

Children do not like white food. When it is served, they tend to make comments about it like, "This looks like the time Ronnie Stonslag had a cold." It is wise to stop them.

Children refuse to eat cereal that offers free African violets or pantyhose with each label. They're "into" plastic toys. They never eat anything cheap or in season. They may bring school lunches home where the seal has never been broken. In a restaurant, however, they can eat twice their body weight and still want dessert.

A mother will dish out more than a thousand meals a year. If it isn't hamburger, hot dogs or pizza, it will be eaten only if there is a threat that it will eat them first.

Bush Orders List

 tions with Congress and foreign governments, Bush said, "I will have a game plan."
 "Part of what the transition is about is to spell out the priorities. I spelled them out (during the campaign) in broad terms, in terms of keeping the economic expansion going and in terms of world peace. But the election ended yesterday," Bush said.

GUC

 during October. Load management switches on water heaters and central air conditioning units accounted for $76,600 in savings, while voltage adjustments added about $73,500 to the total, according to Jones.
 Since January 1985, the load management program has saved more than $6.15 million in wholesale power costs, according to Jones' report.
 The board also selected Rivers and Associates of Greenville to provide administration and inspection services on the Brook Valley sewer project. In selecting the Rivers firm, the board authorized GUC administrators to negotiate a price for the services.

"We will now have (73) days ... to formulate a game plan, the first 100 day priorities, if you will, and they'll be specific."
 In an announcement sure to send shivers through the ranks of the 5,000 political appointees happily at work in the Reagan administration, Bush said, "I will for the most part bring in a brand new team of people from across the country."
 "And in my view that will reinvigorate the process," Bush said.
 He deliberately left room for some Reagan holdovers and veterans to join his administration. "There will be ... a major turnover but some people at various levels may be asked to remain."
 On the flight back to Washington, Bush said he wanted to announce the rest of his Cabinet "sooner rather than way late" and would think about the possible choices during a Florida vacation this weekend.
 It has been widely assumed Bush will ask Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos to stay on. All three joined the Reagan administration in recent months.
 Thornburgh said Wednesday he had been given no indication of whether Bush wanted him to remain "nor have I sought" any information on the question.

Hart, Group Set Coach's Profile

Won't Announce Names Of Prospective Candidates

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Dave Hart, athletic director at East Carolina University, listed the profile he was looking for in a new head football coach at the school at an informal press conference Wednesday night.

But he didn't really get into the specifics of the hunt for the new coach.

"We won't be discussing names at any time," Hart said. "I don't think it does either party any good to discuss names. Of course I understand that the media will list a number of prospects and I expect that."

Hart, who has already been known to have contacted at least two schools for permission to talk to coaches there — William & Mary head coach Jimmie Laycock and Miami assistant Gary Stevens — said that just because permission is granted doesn't mean that ECU will contact those coaches.

"Right now, we want to do the best job we can in gathering information on our candidates," Hart said. That will include, the AD added, a check through the NCAA of the final candidates for the job to make sure that their records are clear.

"Having been a part of a school that has been in trouble with the NCAA won't help a candidate," Hart said. "Having actually taken part in activities which have been condemned by the NCAA will eliminate any candidate."

Hart said that at the first meeting of the search committee, of which he is the chairman, each member was asked for characteristics he would be looking for. Those, he said, included: being a good motivator, having a high energy level, aggressiveness, high integrity, confidence and the ability to spread this confidence to his staff and players, being a good disciplinarian, an outstanding recruiter and a proven producer, a decision-maker, one who can relate well to the students, faculty and staff of the university and to the community at large.

"To me, it's also important that, if he is an offensive coach, that he know the passing game," Hart said. "Or, if he is a defensive coach, that he have an aggressive defense."

Hart said he was not limiting the search to those currently in Division I-A. "It won't hurt the candidate to have had head coaching experience," he said.

(Laycock, for example, is the head coach at a Division I-AA school.)

Hart also said the field will not be limited to only those who have applied for the job, but that the committee will seek out certain candidates.

Hart said that he hoped that the committee will be weeding out the candidates in the next week or so, and is aiming at an announcement during the first week in December — no more than four weeks away.

"But we won't be bound by this. We don't want to name a coach then simply for the sake of naming a coach," Hart said. "We want to get the best person available."

Another factor in the situation will be the candidates' availability. Most schools will wrap up their season in another week or so, but others, involved in playoffs and bowl games, will continue working for some time.

Hart said that there were a couple of misconceptions in the media today that bore comment on. First was the salary of the coach and his staff. "Coaches today are not mainly concerned with their own salary, but in facilities, the people in the program, etc."

The other factor was the Pirate schedule. "People think that just because we've played several top

Viola Captures AL's Cy Young

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS — Frank Viola, the American League's most honored pitcher over the last 13 months, is thrilled with his latest award. But not thrilled enough to bring a Cy Young Viola or Cynthia Young Viola into the world.

"Sorry," the Minnesota Twins' ace left-hander says. "If it's a boy it's Steven Paul. If it's a girl it's Kalie Marie."

Viola, who on Wednesday was named a near-unanimous winner of 1988 AL Cy Young Award, is on a roll.

He was most valuable player in the Twins' seven-game triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1987 World Series. He started and won the 1988 All-Star Game. He joined Jim Perry as the only Twins to win the Cy Young. And any day now, he and his wife, Kathy, will become parents for the third time.

"This is the most incredible year-plus anyone could even dream of, let alone have happen," Viola said in a telephone interview from Orlando, Fla.

Viola has always been confident. Still, he was a bundle of nerves until the Baseball Writers Association of America finally notified him late Wednesday afternoon that he had won the Cy Young in a landslide.

"Today was the first day that, I have to say, I was really nervous," he said. "Today, I knew it was the day. I was a little itchy."

So, to relax, he played golf with ex-teammates Butch Wynegar, Sal Butera and Jack O'Connor and former Harlem Globetrotter Curly Neal.

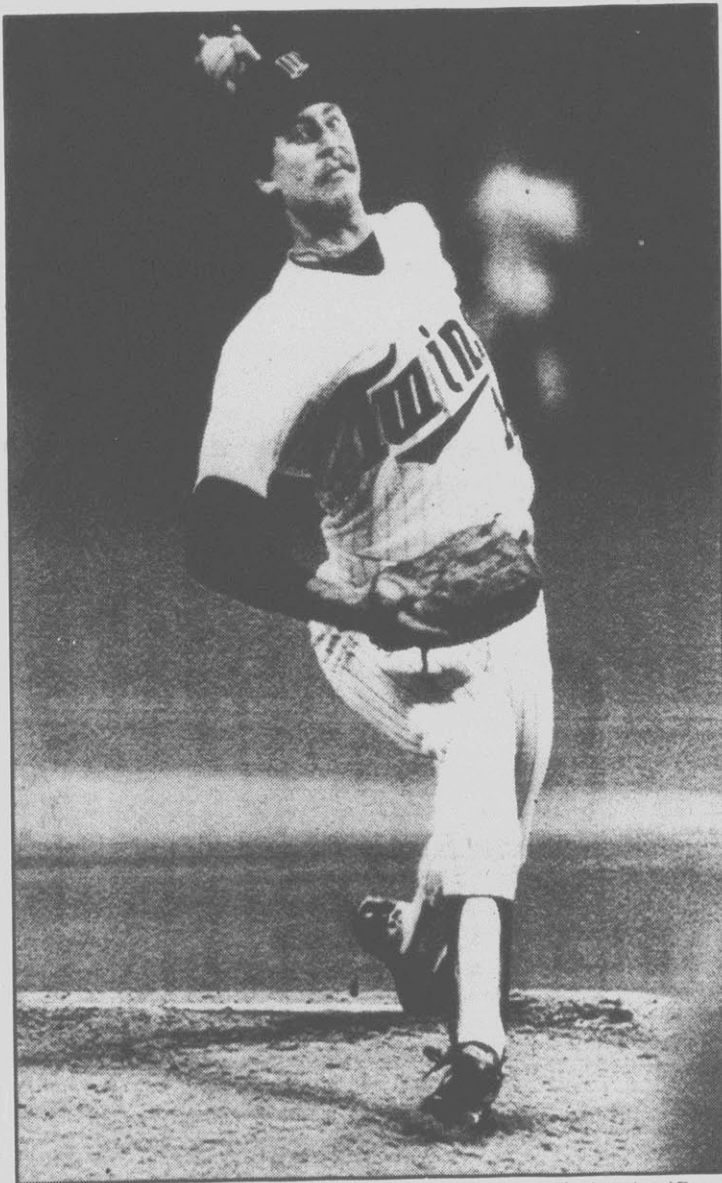

"I got the camera crew out of my face finally after the first nine holes and was able to play better," Viola said. "I can pitch in front of 50,000."

Perry Brothers' Father Is Dead

WILLIAMSTON — Evan Perry, the father of former major league baseball pitchers Gaylord and Jim Perry and a Williamston farmer, died Wednesday in a boating accident. He was 71.

Perry was fishing with a neighbor in a small boat in the Albemarle Sound near Swan Quarter when the accident occurred. According to reports, Perry was attempting to start the motor on the boat to move to another location and somehow fell into the water.

He was recovered from the water quickly, and it was reported that he was still breathing when medical help arrived on the scene but died shortly thereafter.

Dr. Page Hudson, regional medical examiner, said death was caused by coronary heart disease.

Until the summer of 1987, Gaylord and Jim Perry held the major league record for the most wins by brothers at 529 victories — 314 for Gaylord and 215 for Jim. The record was broken by Joe and Phil Niekro.

Jim Perry of Edina, Minn., is now chairman of the board of a long-distance telephone service. Gaylord Perry is the coach of the Limestone College baseball team in Gaffney, S.C.

The funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Maple Grove Christian Church. Burial will be in Roberson Cemetery.

Biggs Funeral Home is handling the arrangements.

The tragedy is the second in the Perry family in a little over a year. Gaylord Perry's wife, Blanche, was killed in an automobile accident last fall in Florida.

Injuries Plague Chargers, Panthers Set For Edenton

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Numbers were never that big a concern for Ayden-Grifton as it rolled along to the Eastern Plains Conference championship, but they are now.

As the Chargers get ready to take on Wake Forest-Rolesville in the first round of the state playoffs, Coach B.T. Chappell is wondering if he's going to have enough healthy bodies just to send out on the field.

Actually, the Chargers overcame a big loss early in the season when they lost fullback-tight end-linebacker Ronnell Peterson Sept. 9 to a knee injury. But they overcame that, as well as nagging injuries to a number of other starters in the middle of the season.

But the losses pale to the holes Ayden-Grifton must fill before taking on the Cougars Friday.

Halfback Tony Reeves, who rushed for 1,179 yards this season, suffered a season-ending knee injury last Friday in a 35-8 win over Charles B. Aycock that completed a 9-1 season for the Chargers.

The week before, halfback-linebacker James Woodard went out with a deep thigh bruise that will keep him idle this Friday also.

In addition, fullback Aaron Harper, who has 713 yards on the year, is hobbled with a toe injury and a virus has affected a number of team members, most notable among them end-defensive end Kelvin Ellison. But that's not it. Punter and backup quarterback Jay Tripp has a turned ankle and is doubtful for the game while quarterback Darryl Moye had an accident which hurt the thumb on his passing hand.

"When you start talking about your starters on offense, we had four senior running backs and three of the four are out and unable to play," Chappell said.

"Aaron has a hurt toe and he's the only running back I've got back. We've got to the point right now where even if we had everyone healthy it's going to be tough ballgame."

The Cougars, 7-3, are the number three team from the Capital Area 2-A. They boast a strong passing attack led by quarterback Reggie Lucas (5-9, 155), who has passed for over 1,000 yards for three straight seasons out of pro-set I-formation attack.

His main targets are split end Jason Buffaloe (5-10, 145) and tight end Jay Hinton (6-3, 210). But Wake Forest-Rolesville likes to utilize running backs Milton Dunn (5-9, 210) and Demarcus Jones (5-8, 180) heavily in its passing game.

"They like to throw to the backs," Chappell said. "They like to pass the ball to the tailback. They like to run play action passes."

The Chargers haven't faced many strong passing attacks this season, which puts pressure on their secondary of David Dixon, Darryl Moye and Rashid Williams. Of those, Williams is a new starter due to the injury to Reeves.

"Hopefully we're going to be able to put some pressure on them," Chappell said. "Hopefully our defensive backs will respond and do a good job."

With Woodard gone, linebacking is

Moore Is Back For Rose Clash With Pine Forest

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

J.H. Rose High School will enter Friday's playoff matchup against Fayetteville Pine Forest at full strength, but head coach Chip Williams is still concerned about his team.

Back from injuries are tailback Tim Moore and fullback Tony Williams. Moore is expected to get the start at the tailback spot, while backup fullback Maurice Hines will get the nod over Williams.

"Timmy (Moore) probably had his best practice day ever today," Williams said following the Rampants' Wednesday practice. "I don't know how much he's back (percentage wise) but he's back and that means a lot to our team."

The Trojans enter the game carrying a 7-3 record. They finished in third place in the Mid-South Conference, but Williams says that is misleading.

"Pine Forest is a tough, good football team," Williams said. "They might even be better than we are."

Pine Forest's losses came to unbeaten Richmond County, 22-7, Fayetteville E.E. Smith 41-26, and Mid-South champion Fayetteville 71st, 14-12.

"They (Pine Forest) lost the game to E.E. Smith because of fumbles and a blocked punt," Williams said. "They played the better game, they just put the ball on the ground and had that blocked punt."

"In Friday's loss to 71st, they missed a field goal right at the end of the first half and couldn't make a 2-point conversion. That was the difference in the game."

Williams is also concerned about his squad's level of play when game time comes against Pine Forest.

"That (the intensity level of the team) is something nobody can answer until Friday night," Williams said. "In practice our intensity level isn't picking up to what I think it should be. In the playoffs your level needs to be a step above the regular season and I'm not sure if we're there yet."

Offensively, the Trojans have shown they can put points on the board this season, averaging over 23 points per game, while the defense has allowed just over 12 points.

Leading the way for the Pine Forest offense is senior quarterback Kevin Davenport. He and his sophomore brother, Brian, a tailback on the team, combine to give the Trojans a good running and passing attack, according to Williams.

"We're going to have to put some points on the board against Pine Forest," Williams said. "They're a finesse team. They're not going to knock you off the ball like an Elizabeth City (Northeastern), but they can score a lot of points."

Defensively, the Trojans may present the toughest secondary the Rampants have faced all year, according to Williams.

"I think we're going to have to have a good, consistent rushing attack," Williams said. "If we can get the running game going then we'll be able to have more success with our passing game."

Greene Central

Greene Central head coach Spence Grantham knows his team is facing a stiff task Friday in Hertford County, but he likes his team's chances.

The Rams enter the contest as the third-place team from the Eastern Plains Conference. Currently they have a 5-5 record. On the other hand, the Bears are ranked atop the state 2-A polls after rolling through the Northeastern Conference with a 10-0 overall record.

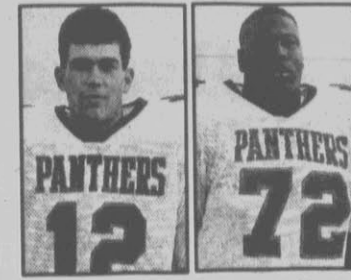

"Hertford County is pretty impressive," Grantham said. "I think

Local Youth Finalist For Soccer Team

Stephen Boyette, sweeperback for the '77 Greenville Stars soccer team, has advanced to the final tryouts for the North Carolina Youth Soccer Association Olympic Development team for boys born after Aug. 1, 1976. An 11-year-old sixth grader at A.G. The final tryouts will be held in Kernersville on Dec. 10. If selected, Boyette will play with the state team in regional competition next year. He is the son of Bruce and Lanell Boyette of Greenville.

Smith Named To State Games Board

Ken Smith, executive director of North Carolina Amateur Sports, has been elected to the seven-member board of directors of the National Congress On State Games, and as treasurer of that organization. His election came during a recent meeting of the group in Billings, Mont. The organization brings together all states holding the Olympic-like state games. Smith, a former sports information director at East Carolina University, heads the group that sponsors North Carolina's State Games. That event featured 24 sports and over 7,000 participants this past year and will include 27 sports this coming year with an expected 10,000 participants. North Carolina Amateur Sports has again been given an "A" certificate from the National Congress, meaning that the State Games of North Carolina is recognized as one of 18 state programs that meet the highest criteria for state games competition. North Carolina will host to 1989 meeting of the national organization next year.

Former Packer Hinkle Is Dead

STUEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Former Green Bay Packers fullback Clarke Hinkle, a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, died Wednesday after a long illness. He was 79. Hinkle anchored the Packers' backfield from 1932 to 1941. He was an All-Pro selection from 1936-38 and in 1941, and is the Packers' fourth-leading career rusher with 3,860 yards on 1,171 carries. Hinkle also played linebacker and often served as a placekicker. In 1940, he led the NFL with nine field goals. "He was one of the best football players I ever played with," said Tony Canadeo, a fellow Hall of Famer who was a rookie halfback with the Packers in 1941. "He helped me quite a bit. He gave me a lot of tips — not by word but by example," said Canadeo, now vice president of the Packers Executive Committee. Don Hutson, a Hall of Fame end and former teammate, said Hinkle was liked by everyone but was tough on the field. Hutson said he remembers a collision between Hinkle and Chicago's Bronko Nagurski that "shook the whole stands." Hinkle worked as a sales representative for an industrial supply company in Steubenville until his retirement. He also worked as a local television sportscaster.

Shinn Expected To Make Full Recovery

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte Hornets principal owner George Shinn is expected to recover completely from a slight stroke, but doctors say he will need up to four weeks of rest. Shinn was resting comfortably at Charlotte Memorial Hospital on Wednesday after being hospitalized one day earlier, just hours before his team won its first regular-season game. Although Shinn's doctor described him Tuesday as "alert and talkative," Spencer Stolpen, Shinn's attorney, was more cautious Wednesday. "To describe him as alert, I don't think, is the right word. ... He is responsive to conversation, but talkative is not a word I would use." Stolpen said Shinn is "extremely tired" but responsive to his wife, Carolyn, and his surroundings. Most of the team's players heard of Shinn's stroke only minutes before Tuesday night's game against the Los Angeles Clippers. The crowd of 18,865 at the Charlotte Coliseum was asked to observe a moment of silence. Shinn learned about the Hornets' first regular-season victory from nurses Wednesday morning, Stolpen said. His response was "That's great." Tests to determine the cause of Shinn's stroke have been postponed for about four days, Stolpen said, because Shinn's condition is not critical. For now, Shinn needs rest to allow the blood in his brain to dissipate naturally, he said. Van Der Veer said Shinn suffered no paralysis and did not need medication. Shinn became ill after giving a luncheon speech to the Charlotte Area Radio Managers on Tuesday. "He was fine, sharp as a tack, while he was addressing the group," said Tony Renaud, vice president and general manager of WBT-AM in Charlotte. Renaud said Shinn became disoriented and started rambling about marketing plans and the team and the Charlotte Coliseum. He said he reminded Shinn of a 1 p.m. appointment at least five or six times, but Shinn didn't respond. Shinn reportedly went to the hospital early Tuesday afternoon, after lying down in his office to rest after a meeting. Hornets General Manager Carl Scheer said Shinn complained of not feeling well during the meeting, and he later found Shinn in a disoriented state.

Tigers Have 'Excitement'

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(This is one of a series of articles previewing the basketball teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference.)

Jerry Pryor said there was one main element missing from Clemson basketball last season — excitement.

But with a sharp-shooting front court returning along with a crop of highly-touted junior college players, Pryor and his Clemson teammates are hoping to improve on last year's 14-15 (4-11 in the Atlantic Coast Conference) record.

"Anytime you have a season where you finish .500 you're disappointed," said Pryor, a 6-7 senior from Brooklet, Ga. "Everybody wants to finish above .500. Everybody was disappointed. I was."

"We put it behind us. We signed five new kids and they are coming in hungry. They're bringing in the excitement."

The Tigers lost only one starter from last year in point guard Grayson Marshall, the ACC career assist leader. But Pryor insists that junior college transfer point guard Marion Cash could be even better than Marshall.

"He's going to be very important to us," Pryor said. "Right now he's doing the things we need. Where Grayson left the offense, he has taken over for us. He's given us a little more excitement. He's from New York and has more of a playground game where he comes in and does the fancy stuff through your legs, behind the back, the alley oop. He's doing it all.

"There were a lot of times where Grayson did not want to throw the alley oops because he was looking out to make sure he got the assist. This year Cash, he don't care. He comes down floor and if you point up at the air at he is going to throw it up at the basket. Get ready. All he asks is that you catch it and dunk it. That's all. Ever since he got on campus we've been balling together. Throw it up. I'm going to get it."

Clemson coach Cliff Ellis is a little bit guarded in his assessment of Cash and the other junior college players brought in to shore up a weak outside shooting game.

"Our biggest concern is going to be inexperience that these newcomers will have," Ellis said. "There is something to be said for experience in the Atlantic Coast Conference experience. That is my biggest concern. I think we have quality players."

"I think our outside shooting will be bolstered. We do lose our point guard in Grayson Marshall. But we replace him probably with a junior college player, Marion Cash. Right now he is the leading candidate."

While concern may exist in the backcourt, Ellis has nothing but confidence in a front court that returns Pryor, 6-10 center Elden Campbell (18.8 points per game) and power forward Dale Davis (7.7 rebounds per game).

"Our front line is back intact. We have Davis, Pryor and Campbell inside. That's our strength of our ball club."

Campbell, though, is the hub of the team's offense. He played with the U.S. Select Olympic team this summer, gaining valuable experience against the likes of David Robinson and Danny Manning.

"He had a pretty good summer. He's a guy we pretty much went to exclusively inside last year for the most part," Ellis said.

"He has a lot of capabilities, but he's not where I think that he going to be. He's come a long way. He came into the program a finesse player. In this league there a lot of power players. It's been an adjustment for him. He tried to carry a ball club that had its deficiencies."

"His leadership will be vital as will Pryor's. For us to be good their backs are going to have to be to the basket and the perimeter people have to get the ball up the floor and they have to shoot the ball and get it inside."

Guard play could play a key role in whether the Tigers improve this year. Last year, Clemson shot only 39 percent from three-point land and that allowed defenses to sag in on the Tigers big man. To that end, Ellis brought in as many hot-shooting recruits as he could.

"For us to be a better ball club we have to shoot the ball better. Hopefully we'll do that," Ellis said.

"Tim Kincaid has been a backup point guard for us but he won the second guard position last year and is still the leading candidate at the two-guard but also will back up Cash.

"At the wing spot, I think we're going to be able to do a variety of things. We can always go with the power of playing Pryor at the small forward. But we're going to be looking at the new wing player who can get the ball up the floor."

The leading candidate there is Kirkland Howling, a 6-4 junior college player. Other possibilities include Derrick Forrest, a 6-3 junior college player and 6-4 freshman David Young.

Sure the Tigers had their problems with outside shooting last year. But Pryor said more than anything the team needs to just turn it up a notch and that Cash is just the player to do it.

"We played too stiff last year," he said. "We weren't doing well and weren't playing like we wanted to. This year we're going to go out and have fun."

"Get a little excitement in the game. We're looking for him (Cash) to do some things. His nickname is Cash Money. He'll come down on a three on one he'll bounce it off the glass and expect you to dunk it. They work. The guard will be right behind him and I'll be behind the guard running. He'll bounce it hard off the floor and just catch it and put it through."

"He's got Larry Bird fakes and look away passes. The man will turn his head completely around and he'll still have the ball. Just watch" Marion Cash. He's got a game everybody is going to love."

Hart Talks About Coaching Job...

teams in the last two years, that we've been playing them for some time. Actually, most of the teams we've played over the past five or so years have had records of 6-5 or worse. There have been only a few to be ranked, but these last two years, there have been a number of them.

"But when these games were scheduled, a lot of those teams were struggling," he continued. "Miami was just getting by when they came on the schedule. Syracuse was having losing seasons when we signed them. South Carolina had a long history of problems before we signed with them."

Things change — and Hart would like to see the fortunes of the Pirates change also, for the better.

Hart pointed to West Virginia as an example of scheduling. "They're being criticized for the schedule they're playing. But they're playing virtually the same schedule they've played for years. It just so happens that a lot of their teams are on the low swing of the pendulum."

"We are looking for a base of five to six teams that we will play every year, teams that we are on par with. Then, we're looking for five or six that we can play on a home and home basis on shorter terms."

Hart said the upcoming series with Pittsburgh is like that, with the Panthers coming here for a game in the future. (ECU plays there next fall.) He added that the Pirate schedule includes Tulane coming on in 1991, and that with the return of some signed contracts he expects in the next few months, the schedule will be complete through 1992.

Efforts are continuing to get members of the North Carolina Big Four, along with other teams from the Atlantic Coast Conference and other regional teams onto the schedule. There has been nothing firm yet, Hart said, but talks are continuing.

Hart also indicated that East Carolina hopes to renew its schedule with N.C. State, a game that was among the most popular in the state for years. Again, there has been nothing firm, and Hart said any resumption of the series would have to include games in Greenville.

In addition to Laycock and Stevens, others believed to be on the Pirate list, or who have indicated that they were interested in the job include Sparky Woods of Appalachian State and George Chaump of Marshall, currently head coaches; and assistants Wayne Hall of Auburn, Jim Donnan of Oklahoma, Jerry Sandusky of Penn State, Frank Orgel of South Carolina, and Carl Reese of Missouri.

our kids are pretty confident now though. We're in a good situation. We're in a situation where we've got nothing to lose and everything to gain. If we lose to Hertford County then people are going to say that we were supposed to and if we win it makes us look that much better."

Grantham remembers being in a similar situation last year in the playoffs.

"Last year we played Edenton-Holmes in the playoffs and they were ranked second or third in the state," Grantham said. "Nobody gave us a chance when we went up there to play them, but we wound up winning the game 14-13. I want to approach the game this week the same way we approached that one last year. We went in relaxed and then left it all out on the field. After the game we were completely exhausted."

The Bears will send a triple-threat wishbone attack at the Rams offensively Friday. And, according to Grantham, the offense is deadly as Hertford County is stocked with speed and quickness. In their regular season games, the Rams averaged 34.6 points offensively.

"I think we've got to try and prevent the big score and the big run that they've shown they are capable of," Grantham said. "They've got three players in the backfield that are capable of breaking the long run every time they touch the ball. We've got to play a controlled defense and hope that they make some mistakes when they are threatening."

The two key members of the Bears' backfield are fullback Keith Roberson and quarterback Tyrone Joyner. Roberson rushed for 1,078 yards and 14 touchdowns this year, while Joyner totaled 355 yards rushing and 13 TD's. Joyner passed for 688 yards and six touchdowns this season also.

One thing going for the Rams may be their passing game. Quarterback Kris Radford has proven in the past this season he was capable of directing a passing attack and if the Bears have a flaw defensively, according to Grantham, it is with their pass defense.

"A good passing game could give them trouble," Grantham said. "I don't think they've seen much passing this year. But their front eight is so quick it could give us trouble in getting the ball off."

But it's an attack the Rams must use if they hope to win the game.

"We've got to throw the ball to win," Grantham said. "We're not going to wait to third down to throw. We'll throw early to get Kris loose. He'll need some early completions to get some confidence and to keep them on their heels defensively."

Ditka Goes Home

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka has gone home from the hospital one week after suffering a heart attack and may be allowed back on the sidelines in two weeks.

The 49-year-old coach was released from Lutheran General Hospital in this Chicago suburb Wednesday evening, hospital spokeswoman Carol Knutsen said.

Cardiologist Dr. Jay Alexander said Ditka underwent a stress test and angiogram, an X-ray picture of the blood vessels, and was judged to be recovering well enough to be released.

For the tests, Ditka had been transferred early Wednesday to Lutheran General from a hospital in suburban Lake Forest, where the Bears' training camp is located and where he had been taken originally.

Alexander said the blood-thinning drug Ditka has received since suffering the heart attack had sufficiently reduced blockage in the right artery of his heart.

But even while pronouncing the coach healthy, Alexander said he extracted a promise from Ditka to go on a low-cholesterol diet, modify his exercise regimen, quit smoking cigars and resume his coaching duties gradually.

If all goes well over the next two weeks, Alexander said Ditka could travel with the Bears for the Nov. 20 National Football League contest at Tampa Bay and relay instructions from the press box.

When Green Bay visits Chicago the following week, Alexander said Ditka could resume coaching from the sidelines, though he urged the coach to leave sparring with the media and a host of similar matters to assistants.

Pirates Finish With Four Early Signees

East Carolina University's men's and women's basketball teams added more players yesterday during the NCAA early signing period.

The men's program signed two more players, bringing to four their early signees, while the women's program signed one player.

The two newest signees for the Pirates are Paul Childress, a 5-10 guard from Albemarle High School in Misenheimer, and Jon Hardin a 6-6 post man from North Greenville Junior College and is from Rock Hill, S.C.

Childress averaged 14 points a game and five assists as a junior, shooting 80 percent from the foul line. A three-year starter thus far, he was the team's most valuable player last season and was selected to the all-conference team.

He also won his team's top defensive award and was a member of the North Carolina state Amateur Athletic Union team. Albemarle was 22-8 last year and advanced to the final eight in Class AA. His brother, Brad, is a two-year starter for Campbell University.

Hardin averaged 14 points and 8.5 rebounds as a freshman for North Greenville last season, shooting 56 percent from the field and 68 percent from the foul line. He was selected as the Western Carolinas Conference Player of the Year last season and was first team All-Region X after leading the team to a 24-6 record.

As a high school player at Northwestern in Rock Hill, Hardin was a two-time MVP and averaged 18 points and 10 rebounds a game as a senior. He was named to the All-State team and played in the North-South All-Star game.

Announced earlier were the signings of D.J. Morgan, 6-6, from Athens Drive High School in Raleigh, and Darrell Overton, a 6-6 junior college player at Craven Community College from Edenton.

Meanwhile, the Lady Pirate program announced the signing of Toni Lynn Thurman of Hallsboro.

Thurman, a 5-11 forward, is expected to be the only early signee for the women, according to Coach Pat Pierson.

Thurman averaged 25 points and 15 rebounds for Hallsboro as a junior last season. She was named all-East, all-Conference and all-Columbus County. She also was named her team's most valuable player.

Bills Suspend Third Drug Offender

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Drug abuse is not rampant among the Buffalo Bills, General Manager Bill Polian insists in the wake of the team's third player suspension this season.

The Bills, owners of the NFL's best record, lost linebacker Hal Garner for 30 days after the league announced Wednesday that he had violated its substance-abuse policy.

"If you're intimating that there is rampant drug abuse on this football team, the best evidence that we can glean is that there is not," Polian said.

He called the latest suspension "another isolated incident. It is not indicative of a quote-unquote drug problem on the Buffalo Bills."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who hoped the early spate of substance-abuse penalties was reducing the league's drug problem, also suspended Houston's Doug Smith for 30 days.

That brought to 22 the number set down this year. All but one player — Indianapolis running back Tony Collins — got 30 days as second-time violators. Collins was suspended for at least a year for a third offense.

In keeping with the league's policy, spokesman Joe Browne did not disclose the substance involved or go beyond the three-paragraph announcement that has accompanied the others. During their suspensions, the players will be placed on the reserve, non-football injury list, required to undergo treatment and not be allowed into their teams' training facilities.

The Bills said Garner began treatment immediately after being suspended.

Polian said Garner, a third-year player from Utah State, "is in complete cooperation" with the NFL's policy concerning reinstatement for players who have been suspended. Garner was not available for comment.

Polian said Garner would not contest the suspension.

A third-round draft pick in 1985, Garner started one game for the Bills in 1986 but spent all of last year on injured reserve with a knee injury.

Both defensive end Bruce Smith and running back Robb Riddick were given 30-day suspensions earlier in the season. They have returned and made key contributions to the Bills, who stand 9-1.

The suspensions come two weeks after Rozelle said he hoped the problem had slackened off following the suspension of 14 players in August and September. The most recent was Mike Bell of the Kansas City Chiefs, suspended Oct. 21.

"I think the suspensions are having an important impact on players who might be tempted to do something with drugs," Rozelle said at an NFL meeting in Chicago. "Because there has been a slack period, I would hopefully assume there will be fewer cases the rest of the season."

Doug Smith, the starting nose tackle for the 7-3 Oilers, has been having the best season of his career.

But he missed two practices in September, then was sent home by Coach Jerry Glanville when he finally showed up. A day later, after a meeting with General Manager Ladd Herzog, Smith returned to practice and said he had passed a league-administered drug test.

Under the NFL's drug policy, players can be tested at the start of training camp or for reasonable cause, such as a first-time failure or erratic behavior. First-time violators may continue to play; second-timers get 30 days and third-timers are suspended indefinitely with the right to apply for reinstatement after a year.

Most suspensions this year have involved cocaine or marijuana use although one player, Charles White of the Los Angeles Rams, was suspended for excessive alcohol use. White had previously had a history of drug use.

Two weeks ago, Rozelle announced that next year, the policy will be extended to steroid use.

Sportline

To The Sports Editor:

"They threw bottles, chicken bones, golf balls, rocks..." Since this statement was a description of a recent scene at a North Carolina State football game, I assumed that somehow East Carolina had managed to sneak back onto N.C. State's schedule. I was indeed "shocked" to discover that the above quote was attributed to Todd Ellis, the quarterback of the South Carolina football team. Ellis was describing the N.C. State's fans behavior at a recent South Carolina football game at N.C. State. The point behind this letter is the reaction of Jim Valvano, the athletic director at N.C. State, to this outbreak of fan violence.

Valvano slated about the recent incidents that "sometimes it's not students." The last time fan violence occurred at an N.C. State game, however, Valvano was quick to blame East Carolina students and supporters for all the incidents that happened at that football game. Valvano claimed that he has no simple solution to the problem of fan violence, yet he discontinued the East Carolina-N.C. State series to solve the problem of riots at sporting events. Obviously, this solution has done nothing to calm down N.C. State fans.

N.C. State takes great pride in having some of the rowdiest fans in the country at its home basketball games, but when an incident occurs at a football game, the administration seems to deny that N.C. State students and supporters are capable of any wrongdoing. Until Valvano accepts that N.C. State students and supporters were at least partially to blame for the incidents both at the East Carolina and South Carolina football games, and starts to curb behavior at the N.C. State basketball games, some of the blame for the incidents that occur at N.C. State sporting events must be attributed to the N.C. State athletic department.

Robert Landry
Former N.C. State Student

To The Sports Editor:

While names are being thrown around for head football coach at East Carolina University, consider this possibility. Instead of hiring an unproven outsider who knows nothing of the history of ECU football, why not bring back a proven winner with a proven track record at ECU — Sonny Randle!

Now a student at East Carolina, I can remember as a youngster sitting in the stands at Ficklen Stadium with my dad. One game in particular the Pirates were down at halftime and I recall looking up at him and saying they will never come back. Dad said don't worry, Sonny Randle will have those boys motivated and fired up and they did come back and win that game. ECU won many, many more while Sonny Randle was here.

I would like to suggest to Dave Hart and the search committee to at least give consideration to Sonny. I guarantee if he is the head coach, win or lose, there will be excitement that hasn't been seen in the ECU football program in the last 10 years.

also a potential trouble spot. The linebackers have to cover the flats to prevent the backs from coming out of the backfield to catch passes.

"That's a big question mark there," Chappell said. "Ronnell was one and James Woodard was the other and both of them aren't going to play. I'm using Scott Cannon there, he's been doing a pretty good job. I'm looking at James Williams and Erskine Lyons at the other spot."

But despite all the trouble, Ayden-Grifton still has an offensive line, led by tackle George Fuller and guard James Collins, that had a big part in the numbers posted by Reeves and Harper. Williams will fill in for Reeves and Dixon could also see a lot of action in the backfield.

North Pitt

North Pitt coach Stuart Ennis wasn't always sure if his team would show up ready to play earlier this season, but he's hopeful those problems are a thing of the past.

The Panthers closed out the regular season on a three-game winning streak that earned them the number-two playoff spot in the Eastern Plains Conference.

"It's been quite an up and down season," Ennis said. "I feel confident that this football team can play with any football team that we've faced or any in the East. Again, if the right team shows up."

"We've talked a whole lot about being consistent. We've played pretty dudgeon good since the Farmville game. We've been much more consistent on offense and defense. Even on defense against Farmville we played good defensively."

The Aces, 7-3, lost a lot to graduation last year but still managed to finish high in the NEAC.

Edenton, a traditional Eastern power, uses an option offense and multiple-formation even front defense.

"They're pretty big and physical," Ennis said. "They've got a good looking football team. Probably their most talented player is their quarterback Melvin Nixon (6-2, 195) who also plays outside linebacker."

"They run the option both from the I-formation and from the split-back team. They are pretty diversified. They do a lot of things well."

Ennis said its important that his defensive ends, Tony Hopkins and Danny Wilkins, and his outside linebackers, Freddie Best and Malcom Wiggins, make the correct defensive reads.

"We are just going to have to play our regular defense," Ennis said. "I wouldn't be surprised if we don't want the Nixon to pitch the ball. In our defense, the defensive end had the quarterback and the outside linebacker has the pitch man."

"Plus you have to stop the dive man. The inside linebackers and the defensive guards, that's their responsibility."

The Panthers, too, utilize an option offense. Halfback Michael Daniels had 705 yards and nine touchdowns. Fellow halfback Michael Blow has 544 yards and quarterback Billy Hardison chips in with 469.

"We're going to go out with our regular game plan, try to establish the option," Ennis said. "Hopefully we can out-quick them. I don't know if we can. Their linebackers are especially big."

One man the Panthers will have to block is Johnnie Rankins, a 6-2 280-pound defensive guard. Linebackers Kelvin Bonner (5-8 190) and Travis Lilly (5-10, 150) are also defensive leaders for the Aces.

Hardison, in his first year at quarterback, has made the adjustment to quarterback and twice came up with 100 yard rushing games during the last four games of the regular season.

Hardison had only 266 yards passing during the season but of his 22 completions, five were for touchdowns.

Edenton opened up the season 0-2 but rebounded to win seven straight before falling to top-ranked and undefeated Hertford County, 21-7. For the season, the Aces are averaging 13.6 points a game while giving up 12.0.

Irish Say They Won't Play In Sugar Bowl

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — Top-ranked Notre Dame has told Sugar Bowl officials the Fighting Irish won't play in the Jan. 2 contest in the Louisiana Superdome, opting instead for possible bids to the Orange Bowl or the Fiesta Bowl.

"Their concern as related to us was there is the possibility of playing a lesser-ranked team with more than one loss," Sugar Bowl executive director Mickey Holmes said Wednesday.

"They say that whoever is in the Orange Bowl (Nebraska or Oklahoma) will only have one loss. If not, they said, that situation certainly would exist in the Fiesta Bowl," Holmes said.

"They wanted to turn us loose instead of keeping us hanging. I respect them for that and appreciate it."

By NCAA rules, bowl invitations cannot be issued until Nov. 19. However, schools and bowls often communicate their holiday wishes ahead of time.

The Gator Bowl on Wednesday made Notre Dame a $3 million dollar offer to play unbeaten West Virginia on New Year's night.

"We have gotten the money together and we are going to explain our scenario to them," Gator spokesman Charles Callaghan told The Associated Press.

Irish officials said there could be no announcement before Nov. 19.

However, this is how the Irish have listed their options: Orange Bowl vs. the winner of the Nebraska-Oklahoma matchup Nov. 19, which will decide the Big Eight title; Fiesta Bowl vs. undefeated West Virginia or Florida State.

Holmes said the Sugar Bowl has a number of options left as well.

"We have everything that was open yesterday and the day before," Holmes said. "We can have an exciting game if things break right, like Notre Dame losing one. Then this whole thing is up for grabs."

The Sugar's host team will be either Louisiana State, Auburn or Georgia. Holmes said he will continue to look to the Pacific 10 conference, Florida State, West Virginia and Miami for a potential visiting team.

Kansas Basketball Once Again Under Investigation By NCAA

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The University of Kansas, already on probation, was faced with the possibility that the NCAA would again investigate its basketball program after Danny Manning's agent confirmed that the All-American received small loans from a former KU player.

"It is possible to reconsider matters if there is new information that is developed that increases the significance of the case or the nature of the violation," David Berst, NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement, said Wednesday.

Ron Grinker, the agent representing Manning in his contract negotiations with the Los Angeles Clippers of the NBA, confirmed Wednesday that Mike Marshall gave Manning "numerous" small loans while Manning was at Kansas.

Cedric Hunter, another former KU player, said in a telephone interview Wednesday from Tulsa, Okla., that Marshall also lent him money during the summer of 1986 while Marshall was living in Kansas and working at former KU coach Larry Brown's basketball camp.

Berst said the alleged loans were not considered as a possible violation by the Committee on Infractions but that it would be reasonable to assume the NCAA would look into this new information.

A key issue would be when the loans were made, Berst said, adding that Marshall was identified as a representative of KU's athletic interests only after he worked as an employee at Brown's camp.

"For us that was the summer of 1986," Berst said. "I would assume this occurred after that, but I want to look at it first."

Marshall, 26, played one season at Kansas in 1983-84, then transferred to McNeese State, which also is on NCAA probation. Marshall said he received money from McNeese State boosters during his year there. Sports Illustrated said in its Nov. 14 issue, helping put that school on probation.

Marshall said the money used for the loans were part of the money he received at McNeese plus payments of $20 to $200 he received from Brown for running errands or watching Brown's house while the coach was out of town.

"He was my roommate, so I borrowed money from him," said Hunter.

er, who is playing with the Tulsa Fastbreakers of the Continental Basketball Association. "But it was never more than a few dollars, nothing substantial."

Grinker made his comments after Marshall, identified last week as having a role in the KU program being placed on three years' probation, was quoted in the Sports Illustrated story as saying he made loans to KU players, including Manning.

Kansas, which won the NCAA championship last season, received a three-year probation that included other sanctions last week after the NCAA turned up what it called "major" violations in the recruiting of former Memphis State player Vincent Askew in the summer of 1986. NCAA rules would allow its Committee on Infractions to strengthen the sanctions if it determines that additional violations have been committed.

Berst said it was not yet clear if the NCAA would act on the developments.

"The question is, 'Is it something that would warrant our doing something else in the case?' That isn't something I feel I can discuss right now. I want to see what we have," he said.

Tigers Shooting For Title Against Terps On Saturday

By Tom Foreman Jr.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clemson has a shot at its third successive Atlantic Coast Conference championship, its fifth title of the decade and the league's official bowl berth this weekend when the Tigers travel north to face Maryland.

Thanks to Virginia's victory over North Carolina State, the Tigers moved into sole possession of first place in the ACC with a 5-1 mark, one game ahead of the Wolfpack, but a half-game up on the Terrapins. It also left the Tigers in position to make their second straight trip to the Florida Citrus Bowl, but this time as the ACC's official representative under the league's agreement with the game.

"Bowl games are a reward," Clemson coach Danny Ford says. "To get a reward, you have to do something to get there. This is the kind of football game that makes you have that opportunity."

"If you don't have these kinds of football games and aren't successful in them, you don't get no bowl game," Ford said.

Clemson has an 8-6 bowl record, having won four of its last six appearances. In last year's Florida Citrus Bowl, the Tigers whipped Penn State 35-10.

Maryland has not been in a bowl game since 1985, when it whipped Syracuse 35-18 in the ill-fated Cherry Bowl in Pontiac, Mich. The Terrapins are 6-9-1 in post-season play.

As for the challenge from the Terrapins, Ford said he's not the one to ask.

"You have to credit (Maryland coach) Joe Krivak," he said. "They've been playing really hard."

The Terrapins were picked to finish near the bottom of the ACC in a preseason poll.

"The only thing I told the kids was that in the beginning, nobody thought we'd be here, nobody gave us a chance to do anything," Krivak said. "All of a sudden, the 10th game of the season, we're playing for the conference championship... which is a tremendous credit to our coaching staff and especially to our football players."

Maryland got a scare in its 17-10 loss to Penn State when quarterback Neil O'Donnell suffered an injury to his passing arm. But the problem was diagnosed as a bruise and he is expected to play against the Tigers.

"We're going to give it our best shot," Krivak said.

As for the rest of the league, Duke is at N.C. State, Virginia is at North Carolina and Wake Forest is at Georgia Tech.

Two teams enduring a period of frustrating will try to keep their postseason hopes alive. The Wolfpack has lost its last two games, at home to South Carolina and on the road at Virginia, its third straight loss to the Cavaliers under coach Dick Sheridan.

"We were at the proper level for North Carolina, Clemson and South Carolina," Sheridan said. "For whatever reason, we were not against Virginia."

"Our job as coaches is to prepare them properly. Somehow, the right preparation wasn't made. There was almost a tenseness there," he said.

Duke has lost three of its last four as it tries to maintain its chances for a seven-victory season, which would be the first since 1961. That was also the last time the Blue Devils have been to a bowl game.

"The whole bunch, the whole crew was terrible against Wake Forest," Duke coach Steve Spurrier said of the 35-16 loss to the Demon Deacons.

"We figured out watching film that only six out of our top 25 guys played with enough intensity for us to win the game."

Virginia is still trying to secure a winning season, but expects to face a little of the old North Carolina style in Chapel Hill on Saturday.

"It's a tailback offense again, more so early in the season."

Cavalier coach George Welsh said. "They're using more pitches and handoffs than options. They've evolved into a power offense."

But the offense is bruised and battered, as is the defense, after the loss at Clemson last weekend.

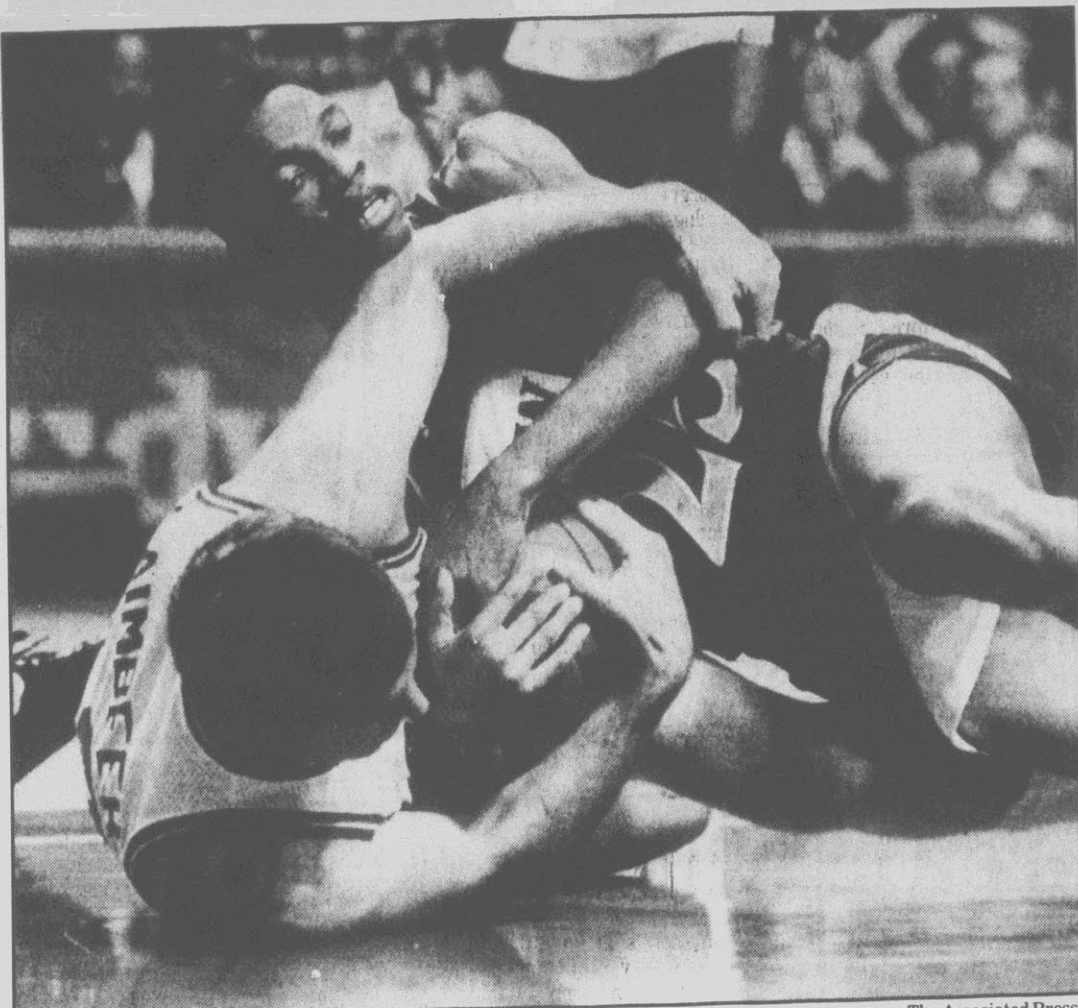

"We're in worse shape than we've been all year," North Carolina coach Mack Brown says. "We don't say a lot about it because people think it's an excuse. It's not. It's reality."

Wake Forest snapped a two-game losing streak by beating the Blue Devils. It was a response to coach Bill Dooley and his assistants.

"We were in a tough position, being 4-4. We had our backs to the wall if we wanted to reach our goals — to have a winning season, a shot at a bowl and a record equal to last year," quarterback Mike Elkins said.

Georgia Tech is still trying to win a conference game after losing its last 13. Coach Bobby Ross is worried about trying to find a flaw in the Demon Deacon defense.

"They're experienced. They're all good athletes," he said. "They run well and they're very tough and aggressive. They can really play the pass exceptionally well."

Irish Are Getting Offers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Top-ranked Notre Dame has been offered about $3 million to meet fourth-ranked West Virginia in the Gator Bowl in a game that could determine the national championship, a bowl spokesman says.

"We have gotten the money together and we are going to explain our scenario to them," Charles Callaghan, a Gator Bowl spokesman, said Wednesday.

He said the same offer of between $2.8 million and $3 million was presented to West Virginia officials Wednesday.

But Notre Dame athletic director Dick Rosenthal was quoted today as saying the Irish will not go to the Gator Bowl.

"Notre Dame officials told Gator Bowl officials that Notre Dame is not interested in the Gator Bowl this year," the Chicago Tribune reported. "We felt we should be honest with them and tell them that this particular year they were not one of the bowls we were considering."

Sources familiar with bowl negotiations say Notre Dame already has struck a different deal and will play in either the Fiesta Bowl or the Orange Bowl.

Celtics No Match For Michael Jordan

By Hillel Italie
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtic tradition of team play was no match for Michael Jordan's one-man show.

"We have to establish offense other than myself, but I got off to a good start and my jumper started falling," Jordan said after his 52 points led Chicago to a 110-104 victory Wednesday night, snapping the Bulls' 12-game losing streak at Boston Garden.

Jordan, last year's MVP, scoring champion and defensive player of the year, did it all again Wednesday night, blocking two shots and falling two short of the NBA record with nine steals.

"The guy is sensational," Chicago coach Doug Collins said. "I don't think people understand the energy he expends on defense. Forget offense, just watch him on defense. I feel like we're more diversified, but tonight Michael was the man."

against Central Division teams since 1986.

"Michael played a great game, but you shouldn't let one person beat you and that's what we did," Boston's Kevin McHale said.

Knicks 117, Bullets 110

Kenny Walker and Gerald Wilkins had six points apiece in a 14-4 third-quarter surge as New York won its second straight game.

The Bullets, who have lost three in a row, trailed 68-67 with 8:26 left in the third before Walker and Wilkins helped New York build an 11-point lead.

Patrick Ewing was the top scorer for the Knicks, finishing with 27 points, 22 in the first half.

The Bullets did stage a comeback at the start of the final quarter, trimming the margin to 94-89 but never got closer than four points.

Larry Nance scored 27 points and Cleveland used a strong defensive effort to build a 15-point halftime and win its home opener.

The Cavaliers' 3-0 start is their best since they won four straight to start the 1978-79 season. They have won their last nine regular-season home games, including an eight-game home winning streak to close last season.

They also went 8-0 during the preseason.

Cleveland, which never trailed, limited Los Angeles to 15 points in the first quarter.

Pistons 101, Hawks 95

Isiah Thomas and Dennis Rodman scored four points each in overtime as Detroit stayed unbeaten after four games.

Rodman gave the Pistons the lead for good, 97-95, after taking a pass from Thomas and sinking a short baseline jumper with 1:13 left in overtime.

Atlanta led 77-65 entering the fourth quarter, but the Pistons went on a 13-2 run to start the period and eventually tied it at 83 on two free throws by Rodman with 1:59 left.

Thomas made two free throws with 24 seconds left to tie it at 89 and force overtime.

Spurs 117, Heat 93

Rookie Willie Anderson scored 29 points and led a third-quarter surge as San Antonio beat Miami.

Anderson scored 14 points in the third quarter when San Antonio outscored Miami 34-16 to put the game away. The Heat stayed close throughout the first half, trailing 57-50.

San Antonio guard Johnny Dawkins, who finished with 21 points, dished out five assists in the third quarter while guard Alvin Robertson added four.

Viola Wins...

but I can't play golf in front of a camera."

Fortunately for Viola, the Twins pay him handsomely to pitch in front of big crowds. Including a $100,000 incentive for winning the Cy Young, Viola made $1.6 million in 1988. He'll get a $1.55 million base salary next year.

Viola rewarded the Twins with a major-league-leading 24-7 record in 1988. His 2.64 earned-run average and 193 strikeouts ranked third in the AL. The Twins didn't repeat as champions, but they did win 91 games — six more than they won during the 1987 regular season.

Viola was especially valuable in 1988 because one-time star Bert Blyleven had a poor year and has since been traded. Viola also served as mentor to young lefty Allan Anderson, who began the season in the minors. Anderson was called up, gradually mastered Viola's pet pitch — the changeup — and went on to win 16 games and lead the league in ERA.

In the Cy Young balloting, Viola captured 27 of a possible 28 first-place votes and 138 of a possible 140 points.

Dennis Eckersley of the Oakland Athletics got the other first-place vote and was second with 52 points.

Mark Gubicza of Kansas City was third with 26 points, Dave Stewart of Oakland had 16, Bruce Hurst of Boston had 12 and his teammate Roger Clemens, the Cy Young winner in 1986 and 1987, had eight.

"I've always known I had the ability. I think I'm just reaching my prime. I think I can be better," Viola said. "Roger Clemens — as far as natural gifts, there's no question he has it all, but I think I'm in the same category, and I feel a few other people are, too."

Viola was disappointed that Twins reliever Jeff Reardon didn't get any votes. Reardon had 42 saves in 50 chances for a team that won 91 games compared to Eckersley's 45 saves in 54 chances for a team that won 104.

"Jeff took the heat off me and allowed me to stay with Eckersley (in Cy Young contention)," Viola said. "In a two-year period, I didn't see anyone in baseball better than Jeff Reardon."

Viola, 35-2 at the break, earned his 20th victory on Aug. 30. It also was the 100th victory of his career. He won 19 consecutive games in the Metrodome over 25 starts between May 22, 1987, and July 27, 1988. He also won both home starts during the 1987 World Series.

"The World Series, I think, helped build the confidence that might not have been there before," Viola said. "This was something I wanted to prove, not only to everybody else, but to myself. This was an important year."

Next year is important, too. He will be a free agent after the season. A native New Yorker who attended St. John's University, Viola said he is happy in Minnesota, but added that he wouldn't rule out pitching in New York — or anywhere else — in 1990.

"My contract runs out and I hope to put out a good year," Viola said.

Georgia Tech Has Big Recruiting Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After going through last year without signing a high school player, Georgia Tech's basketball program is about to reap three seniors, including the nation's top guard, on the first day of the early signing period.

Six-foot-one point guard Kenny Anderson of Queens, N.Y., considered the No. 1 prospect in the nation, had been linked to North Carolina since early in his high school career. But he canceled his official visit to Chapel Hill scheduled for this weekend and was to officially announce his intention to attend Georgia Tech at a news conference Wednesday.

Wednesday was the first day of the week-long early signing period, during which high school seniors may sign national letters of intent.

Anderson's announcement is arguably the most important since Bobby Cremins took over the Georgia Tech program, giving the Yellow Jackets an outstanding point guard. It also means Cremins beat Dean Smith in a head-to-head recruiting battle.

North Carolina was thought to be in good position with Anderson, because he comes from the same high school, Archbishop Malloy, that recruited former Tar Heel star Kenny Smith.

Anderson's commitment gives Georgia Tech three players considered among the top 20 recruits. Over the weekend, 6-9 center Malcolm Mackey of Chattanooga, Tenn., committed. One week ago, Darryl Barnes, a 6-7 forward from Bronx, N.Y., chose Georgia Tech.

Mackey averaged 16 points and 11 rebounds while leading Brainerd High to a 35-6 record and the state 3-A title. He grabbed a school record 22 rebounds in one game.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has a potential 19 recruits committed, including four each at North Carolina State and Maryland, three at Georgia Tech and Duke, two at North Carolina and one each at Clemson, Virginia and Wake Forest.

Duke and Georgia Tech likely have finished recruiting for the year and can now concentrate on next year's juniors.

A couple of guards remaining on North Carolina's list are 6-2 Randy Reid of Spanish Fork, Utah and 6-3 Shaun Golden of Greer, S.C. Golden, a top 50 player, said he would wait to make a decision after Anderson. Georgia is considered the leader, with Clemson, Vanderbilt and Syracuse still on his list.

As of Tuesday afternoon, North Carolina had not contacted Golden, according to his father, Louie, who is also his coach at Riverside High.

"Shaun has one more visit to make this week end," Golden told the Greensboro News & Record. "He's going to Georgia and plans to sign Monday. We haven't heard from North Carolina, but I think Shaun probably would be happy if they called."

Golden is an outstanding athlete, who played quarterback in football until dropping the sport this year. According to his coach-father, "he can do it all."

The Tar Heels have received commitments from Henrik Rodl, a 6-foot-7 West German player who spend one year as an exchange student in Chapel Hill and led the high school to the state 4-A basketball title. North Carolina has also received a commitment from 7-1 Matt Wenstrom of Katy, Tex.

Other players the Tar Heels are recruiting include 6-8 Douglas Edwards of Miami, 6-7 Cornell Parker of Richmond, 6-8 Lawrence Funder-burke of Columbus, Ohio and 6-6 George Lynch of Falls Church, Va. Edwards, Funderburke, Parker and Lynch may not sign until April.

The Tar Heels and N.C. State lost out on Shaquille O'Neal, a 6-9 center from San Antonio, Texas. As expected, O'Neal announced for LSU. O'Neal, a 250-pounder, made his decision after visiting those three schools, Louisville and Illinois. He was to sign Wednesday.

Wayne Buckingham, a 6-9 center from Atlanta, became Clemson's first commitment over the weekend. He chose the Tigers after visiting Oklahoma and Louisville. That could set up another commitment for the Tigers from 6-7 Orlando Lightfoot of Chattanooga, who is to decide between Clemson, N.C. State, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

Clemson is also looking at 6-10 Larry McCloud from Anderson, S.C. Junior College and 6-9 Edmund Wilson of Elliott, S.C.

Still on Virginia's list are Cornell Parker, 6-2 Kenny Harris of Petersburg, Va., 6-7 Chris McNeal of Oak Hill Academy in Mouth of Wilson, Va., 6-10 Shawn Wilson of Nashville and George Lynch. Its lone commitment is 6-8 Ted Jeffries of Fork Union Military Academy.

Wake Forest has one scholarship, but isn't expected to sign anyone during the early signing period.

N.C. State, already with four commitments, may take only one more player. A couple still being considered are 6-9 Pancho Hodges of Hyattsville, Md. DeMatha and 6-7 Jerry Walker of Jersey City, N.J. Walker is not expected to make a decision until April.

Maryland has four commitments as well, but three of them may be shaky. Michael Tate, 6-6 and a top 50 prospect from Oxon Hill, Md., gave a verbal commitment in September, but has since scheduled a visit to James Madison where ex-Maryland coach Lefty Driesell now resides. James Bryson, 6-10 from Largo, Md., may also back out in favor of Villanova and 6-1 guard Trent Forbes may as well.

The Terps are recruiting 6-3 Sam Cassell, who committed to DePaul last year but could not qualify academically. He is attending prep school in Maine.

Strange's Only Thoughts Are On Nabisco Tourney

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Curtis Strange doesn't want to hear about the Player of the Year Award.

Or think about it. And he certainly doesn't want to talk about it.

"I got all caught up in that last year and it got me," said Strange, among those teeing off today in the first round of the season-ending Nabisco Championship, golf's richest event.

Last year, Strange came into this tournament, the last official-money event on the PGA Tour schedule, as the leading money-winner and the leader of the Player of the Year standings.

He finished dead last in the elite, 30-man field and saw Paul Azinger take Player of the Year honors.

This year, Strange is the challenger, the only man with a chance to overtake Sandy Lyle of Scotland in the Player of the Year race.

"I haven't thought that much about it," insisted Strange, the U.S. Open champ and, like Lyle, a three-time winner on the American tour.

His chances are slim. Under the complicated point system used to determine the Player of the Year, Strange would have to win the tournament and take over the money-winning lead.

Both are possible. Strange is seventh in the money standings with $612,644 coming into the last official event of the season.

This tournament, however, offers $2 million in prize money, with $360,000 going to the winner. In addition, there's another $1 million in bonus money, from the season-long Nabisco Grand Prix, with $175,000 going to the leading money-winner.

And that, more than anything, is Strange's goal.

"I would dearly love to win a third Arnold Palmer Trophy," which goes to the year's leading money-winner, Strange said. "It's a great honor, and having Arnold's name on it makes it just that much more special."

But he also has to win the tournament to do it.

"I'm ready to go," he said. "I'm excited about playing, and that's an important thing in my game."

"You don't stand on the first tee saying, 'I've got to win.' You can't do that. It puts too much pressure on you when you've got all those guys to beat. You just try to play the best you can. And I'm ready to do that, ready to go."

Lyle, who has scored five worldwide victories this year including the Masters, also set more importance on the money-winning list than the Player of the Year title.

"It's your position on the money-winning list, rather than the money, that is important," he said.

"If you win tournaments and money, all the other things come along with it," said Lyle, third on the money-winning list with $653,334. He trails only Chip Beck, with $776,018, and Joey Sindelar, with $708,532.

"I think the odds are quite good that I can win the money title," Lyle said. "I came in (from Europe) on Sunday so I've had time to recuperate from the jet lag. Now it's just a matter of getting some breaks and making some puts.

"If I play well, Beck and Sindelar are the only ones I have to keep an eye on. Someone else might win, but if I play well, they're the ones I have to beat."

Other leading contenders include Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kite, Lanny Wadkins and Mark O'Meara, all former winners on the Pebble Beach Golf Links, Australian Greg Norman and South African David Frost, a winner last week in Tucson.

The tournament will be televised nationally by ESPN.

Bird Hopes To Delay Surgery For Tendons

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird is suffering from a recurrence of tendinitis in his Achilles tendons and surgery is a possibility — one that the Boston Celtics star would rather put off till the end of the NBA season.

"It's a matter of getting something done now or later," Bird said Wednesday prior to the Celtics meeting with the Chicago Bulls. "Mentally, I know I can't handle sitting out 20-25 games. I can't sit around the house watching someone else do my job."

"People are saying, 'What's the difference if you are back by Jan. 1 or Jan. 15?' I'm not afraid of the knife. I know after the season I'm going to have it done. But I don't want to miss the games. I've never been out for a long period of time, and I just don't want to do it."

"We don't want to do anything unnecessary," said Celtics General Manager Jan Volk, "but there won't be any procrastination. We don't want to wait until February or March to make a decision."

Dr. Arnie Scheller, the Celtics' physician, said Bird aggravated the condition in games on consecutive nights against the New York Knicks and the Philadelphia 76ers last Friday and Saturday.

Scheller said Bird's therapy and medication were modified and his condition would be reassessed today.

"Some treatments we would consider would be an injection to relieve the swelling," he said.

He added that surgery is a possibility, but a decision on that is not likely for "the next two or three weeks."

The doctor confirmed earlier reports that if surgery is necessary Bird would be sidelined for 10-12 weeks.

'Golden Pond' Author Turns To Age Gaps For New Movie

By Hillel Italie
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — In "On Golden Pond," Ernest Thompson wrote about the differences among three generations. In "1969," he deals with just two, but deepens the gap. "1969," which the Academy Award-winner wrote and directed, takes place, not surprisingly, in 1969 and centers on the friendship of two college freshmen. With the Vietnam War and the draft looming in the background, the students are caught up in many of the issues of the time: sex, drugs, rock 'n' roll, politics. "I do get into the battle of generations and the misunderstandings, but there were different dynamics in this movie and the generations are closer," he said in an interview. "I think it's an effort on my part to scrunch it together."

Thompson, a sophomore at American University in 1969, readily admits that the film is based on his own experiences. "It was a fulcrum time for me. I didn't have any illusions that I was going to be saying something definitive about a whole era. It was very personal."

"It's about a handful of characters trying to develop some emotional conscience even if it's on a limited scale."

Robert Downey Jr. and Kiefer Sutherland star. While Downey's rebellion comes in the form of promiscuity and drugs — he has an acid trip during the film — Sutherland is more intellectual, concerned with the fate of the world.

Thompson had to bridge a generation gap of his own while working with Sutherland on a scene eventually cut from the film.

"He was to wake up in the morning in the van and when we were about to shoot it, I told Kiefer, 'We'll just have the doors open and we'll zoom the camera in on you.'"

"And Sutherland said, 'I won't have the doors open.' I said, 'Yeah, it's easier to have the doors open.' He said, 'I wouldn't sleep with the doors open in the city.' I said in 1969 you would. It was an open door spirit. There wasn't that fear there is now."

Thompson no longer feels the sense of community that existed for him as a student. "I always had a feeling that I'd go back and the '60s would still be there waiting for me, but they weren't. There was a real feeling of fraternity — just something as seemingly trivial as giving the peace sign and having someone give it back."

Thompson was born in Vermont, but grew up in Maryland, which serves as the setting for "1969." He studied theater arts at American and Catholic University and achieved minor recognition during the 1970s when he starred in the Broadway revival of "Picnic."

In 1981, he won an Academy Award for the adaptation of his play, "On Golden Pond." Henry Fonda starred as Norman Thayer, an outspoken old man who fears his imminent death. Fonda, who won his only Oscar for the role, died soon after.

With Katharine Hepburn, who won her fourth Oscar, and Jane Fonda also starring as Thayer's wife and daughter, "On Golden Pond" grossed over $120 million. It was Thompson's first experience working on the set of a feature film, and understandably, a memorable one.

"It was a very warm and supportive environment," Thompson said, adding that the atmosphere of the recent "Sweetheart's Dance," for which he wrote the screenplay, was far more difficult.

"I think largely because (co-stars) Don Johnson and Susan Sarandon came from a school where you don't nurture and you don't respect the writer and the script. It was a free-for-all."

Not so with Fonda and Hepburn. "I came in with two giants as artists but real ladies and gentlemen of the theater," he said. "Their background was the theater and they treated text and their fellow workers with tremendous generosity and affection. With '1969,' I tried to recreate that warm bath that 'On Golden Pond' had."

Thompson had little interest in cashing in on his overnight success, and didn't start working on the screenplay of "1969" until four years ago.

Producer-Director Devotes 9 Years To Developing Miniseries For ABC

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — It's not over yet for producer-director Dan Curtis, and despite nine years spent on the ABC miniseries "The Winds of War" and its sequel, "War and Remembrance," he's not ready to give it up.

The first half of "War and Remembrance" begins Sunday. He hasn't even started editing the second half, which probably won't air until May. In all, the miniseries is expected to run 30 hours.

"I'm lucky this time," said Curtis. "With 'Winds of War' it went on the air, and then it became yesterday's news. If you miss it, that's it. It's not like a movie in a theater that keeps running. But this time the other part's still coming."

Curtis spent more time re-creating World War II in the two miniseries than the six years the real war lasted, 1939-45. "The Winds of War" ran in 1983 at 18 hours and cost $40 million. "War and Remembrance" cost $110 million, making it not only the longest but the most expensive film project ever.

The first 18 hours of "War and Remembrance" will be aired in seven parts over a span of 11 nights.

"I don't like skipping all those days, but there's nothing I can do about it," said Curtis. "I understand ABC's problem, but I still don't like it. I'd rather see it run every night. I've cut it after 18 hours at the only possible breaking point. Any other break would be a disaster."

The long break between the first and second parts bothers me. ABC would like it earlier and I'd love to give it to them. But there's no way to get it ready before May."

A big "if" is the ratings. "The Winds of War" got a 38.6 rating and 53 share, making it the third highest-rated miniseries after "Roots" and "The Thorn Birds." Although the television audience has grown in the past five years, the networks' share of the audience has shrunk due to increased competition from cable, independent stations and videocassettes.

"I think people will stick with it," Curtis said. "Each show seems to get better than the one that precedes it. When I shoot, the look is almost more important than the dialogue, or equally important. You focus on the reaction of people to what's being said. Television gives it an intimacy.

"Most people don't know the difference between good shooting and bad shooting. In fact, most directors don't understand it either. But if you shoot it the right way and your camera angles are right, it will heighten it because you're telling the story visually. I think with 'War and Remembrance' people will actually feel they're inside the picture rather than just being an outside observer."

The two miniseries, adapted from Wouk's two novels, follow naval officer Pug Henry (Robert Mitchum) and show how the war affects him, his wife, daughter, two sons and other members of the family.

Pug participates in the Battle of Midway. His son Byron (Hart Bochner) is a submarine commander in the Pacific. Byron's Jewish wife, Natalie (Jane Seymour), is trapped in Europe with their child and her uncle, author Aaron Jastrow (Sir John Gielgud).

The sea battles look authentic. When Natalie and her uncle finally end up at Auschwitz, Curtis filmed at the former Nazi death camp and many of the extras were survivors of the Holocaust. In one scene, Reichsfuehrer-SS Heinrich Himmler visits Auschwitz to watch a demonstration of a new method to kill large numbers of Jews.

"I told the extras I didn't know how they would react," Curtis said. "You probably don't expect to die, but you know subconsciously something is going to happen. What a tough thing to put them through. The people began to cling to each other. I was destroyed by what I was watching. When they came running out with no clothes on it was so real."

"You can sense what it must have been like. If the audience can feel that then I will have accomplished what I set out to accomplish. If we can do that it will all have been worth it."

Whoopi Goldberg Bounces Back As Downtrodden Jamaican Maid

By Bob Thomas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — After three dubious comedies, Whoopi Goldberg has returned to drama in a new film that is being hailed as recapturing the magic of her debut in "The Color Purple."

In "Clara's Heart," she again portrays a downtrodden figure, a Jamaican domestic with a tragic past who tries to help a troubled rich boy neglected by his parents.

movies — "Jumpin' Jack Flash," "Burglar" and "Fatal Beauty" — not that she is ashamed of the comedies.

"I'm not sure they were comedies," she said, laughing loudly.

"I wasn't completely satisfied with them, but I was not embarrassed. I discovered on my (concert) tour, that people responded to the films. They liked 'Jumpin' Jack Flash.' I might have to go and watch it again. Because I was living in this microcosm of criticism: 'It wasn't as good as you could do,' etc."

"I gave my best to every film I did; I'm not embarrassed by any of them. Even the ones I really didn't like, I knew that my performance in them was as good as it could be. How a studio or a producer or a director chose to edit it and how the marketing people said it was supposed to be sold — that's a different story. That has little to do with the script I performed."

"No one said that I was bad. They just said they weren't pleased with my choices."

She reserved special scorn for "Fatal Beauty," in which she and Sam Elliott played big-city crime busters: "It was a tough, gritty script that would have had a great message about dope. Instead, they turned it into a kind of 'Rambette.'"

How does she manage to shift gears between comedy and drama?

"I don't know," she admitted. "I guess it's what I've always been told actors are supposed to do. That's the idea, that you're supposed to be able to go in and out of these 'emotional bedrooms' at a drop, which I like."

"I'm an actor who on occasion is funny. Sometimes sad. I cannot now take on the responsibility of 'comedian' because it's too much. You have to be too on top of it all the time. I need places to take rest. So I tell stories where I can find a little ledge to sit down with time to think about what I'm doing."

"My stories will have those moments of humor, moments of sadness, moments of triumph, lull moments which comics are not allowed to have. You get a lull moment with a comic and it's a killer. A lull in my act and you get to go to the bathroom."

Ms. Goldberg, 32, started out early as an actress, beginning as an 8-year-old in a Manhattan housing project. She joined a settlement house drama group and acted in neighborhood children's productions. After a period on drugs and a broken marriage that left her with a daughter, she landed in San Diego in 1974. In theater companies there and later in Berkeley, she began honing her comedic skills. Along the way she jokingly took a Jewish surname and added Whoopi as a given name to replace her own, Caryn Johnson.

"I had no idea, truly, that people thought I was funny, except from doing all this bizarre street theater," she said. "Suddenly, when I started putting together my own work, people would laugh and I'd go, 'Wow!' then I'd try something else, and they'd laugh. Intervals of laughter were wonderful."

With no immediate movies on tap, she is headed for outer space. She has signed on the USS Enterprise for a series of appearances on "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

"Why not?" she reasoned. "First of all, it's a job; I love to work. I've been on the road for five months. I don't think I've been home during the past five years for more than a month. I want to be home. I want to wait for a good film to come along, but I also want to work."

"So why not get on a show that has good actors and fun writing and a potential for anything — future, past, present? For instance, you can change your being, change the way you look. Why not?"

Besides, Ms. Goldberg is a longtime, registered Trekkie.

 North-South bid well to a fair slam. After an artificial and forcing two-club opening bid and a two-diamond waiting response, the rest of the auction was natural.
 West made a normal opening lead. Declarer won the king of spades and led a diamond to the queen and ace. He won the spade return, cashed the king of clubs and tried to ruff a spade in dummy. East overruffed and returned a trump, and declarer was stranded with a spade loser. Down two!
 Rather unfortunate, but declarer had mis-timed the hand. After winning the opening lead he should have cashed the king of clubs. When the queen appeared, declarer should assume it is an honest card and abandon trumps in favor of cashing the ace-king of hearts and remaining high spade before leading a diamond to the queen.

 If West has the ace, declarer will have to rely on a spade ruff for an entry to the table. If East has the ace, he is endplayed in four suits! A red-suit return gives declarer two discards; a club will be run to dummy's eight; and a spade provides an entry to the table via a ruff.
 What if West dropped the queen of trumps from Q-9 and East returns a trump after winning the ace of diamonds? If you finesse, you are going down in a cold contract.

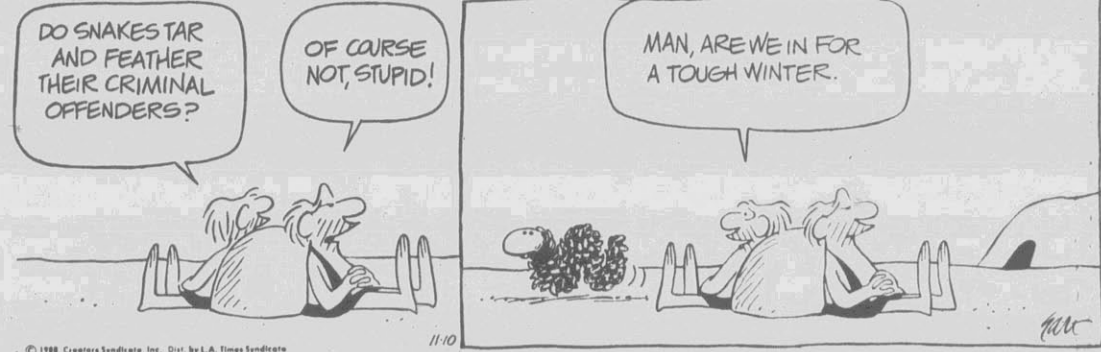

Against defenders who are that good, we suggest you cut out of the rubber as soon as possible! If you don't, it will cost you a ton of money in the long run.

Memory Haunts GIs Who Were At My Lai

Some Veterans See Viet Village As A Curse, A Jinx That Lead To Drinking, Drugs And Long Nightmares

By George Esper
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — You've never heard of Jim Berghold. Transformed into an angry bully, he's punched his wife and threatened everyone in sight, including his bosses. It was either leave his last job or risk jail for hurting someone. He hasn't worked since.

You have heard, almost certainly, of Robert T'Souvas. Two months ago, he died the most pitiable of deaths, shot in the head under a Pittsburgh bridge after arguing with his girlfriend over a bottle of vodka. He was 39, and a bum.

Twenty years ago, Berghold and T'Souvas were among thousands of young Americans sent halfway around the world to fight a war. Berghold was a 21-year-old laborer from Niagara Falls, T'Souvas a 19-year-old high school dropout from San Jose, Calif.

Chance propelled them into the Vietnamese village of My Lai with Charlie Company on March 16, 1968. There they took part in the frenzy that resulted in the slayings of more than 400 Vietnamese men, women and children. Berghold and T'Souvas were among 25 men originally charged in the barbaric attack, although only six stood trial and only one, Lt. William L. Calley Jr., was convicted.

The massacre, when exposed a year later, brought home to Americans the horrors of the distant war and gave a surge to rising sentiment against it. Berghold, T'Souvas and other veterans in My Lai that day were damned and doomed forever.

Official Army records list only one American casualty at My Lai, a man wounded by his own rifle. But many more suffered emotional wounds in the aftermath of a raid made in the mistaken belief that a Viet Cong battalion was lying in wait.

Some, like Berghold, now 41, came home walking wounded — drunks and addicts for whom the booze, acid, hash, grass and speed couldn't blot out the shame and guilt. Shunned by the public, they took refuge within themselves, becoming suspicious and secretive.

The memory that most haunts Berghold is of the Vietnamese woman he shot point-blank. She was already wounded and lay bleeding and moaning.

"I put her out of her misery," Berghold said. "I can see her lift up off the ground after I shot her. It bothers me, knowing what I did and then have kids of my own. ... You ask did the government train me to kill people?"

Berghold has not worked since August 1985 because of post traumatic stress disorder, the delayed shock of combat. "Nothing seems to help," he said. "I can't concentrate. I have no respect for authority. Little things set me off."

He and his wife, Nancy, and two daughters, 16 and 13, live in a run-down rented house on $698 a month from disability and Social Security checks. A 20-year-old son lives on his own.

He has stopped the drugs and drinking. Now tranquilizers keep his rage in check. The last time he threatened his wife was seven years ago when he had a flashback and fired a shotgun at her. The pellets hit the wall.

"He kept calling me his enemy," she recalled. "He yelled to some of the guys in his platoon to look out when he shot at me."

Six months later, he tried to stab his son, Tim, then 12. A big man at 257 pounds, Berghold has awakened in the middle of the night, showing his wife out of bed. "He was screaming at the guys to hide," Mrs. Berghold said.

Life had been downhill for T'Souvas ever since he was charged with killing two children at My Lai. The children were already wounded and T'Souvas wanted to end their suffering, according to the attorney for the hearings.

While awaiting a court-martial, he lived in an Atlanta commune and married. He then drifted, working fitfully as a cook, baker, painter and laborer. He spent eight months in a Birmingham, Ala., jail for marijuana possession. His wife and son, now 13, left him seven years ago because of his drug and alcohol abuse.

After that, T'Souvas hooked up with a carnival worker named Kathlynn, who uses his last name and has been charged with his murder. Police say the couple arrived in Pittsburgh late in the summer of 1987, with T'Souvas hoping for construction work. But the offer fell through, and he and Kathlynn lived under a bridge, fished in the rivers, sold their blood for spending money and worked part time in a food kitchen for the homeless.

Some veterans saw My Lai as a curse, a jinx. "I got a permanent reminder," said Paul Meadlo of Terre Haute, Ind. "I got my foot blowed off the very next morning (by a mine). It must have been God's plan."

The 41-year-old Meadlo, who testified under immunity at Calley's court-martial that he helped Calley shoot villagers because he considered them Viet Cong, is bitter. When he left the Army, he says his missing foot made him unemployable. He eventually found work in a factory that makes plastic film but was recently laid off.

Four My Lai veterans, all officers, came home in coffins. Even in death, they were dishonored. Accusations in an Army report ranged from supervising the systematic killing of civilians to allowing their men to rape Vietnamese women.

For some who survived, the My Lai horror crushed careers, even though they were acquitted or never tried.

Ernest Medina, commander of Charlie Company, was acquitted of murder and having overall responsibility for the massacre yet was forced to resign his commission after 16½ years' service. Now 52, Medina owns a real estate company in Marinette, Wis.

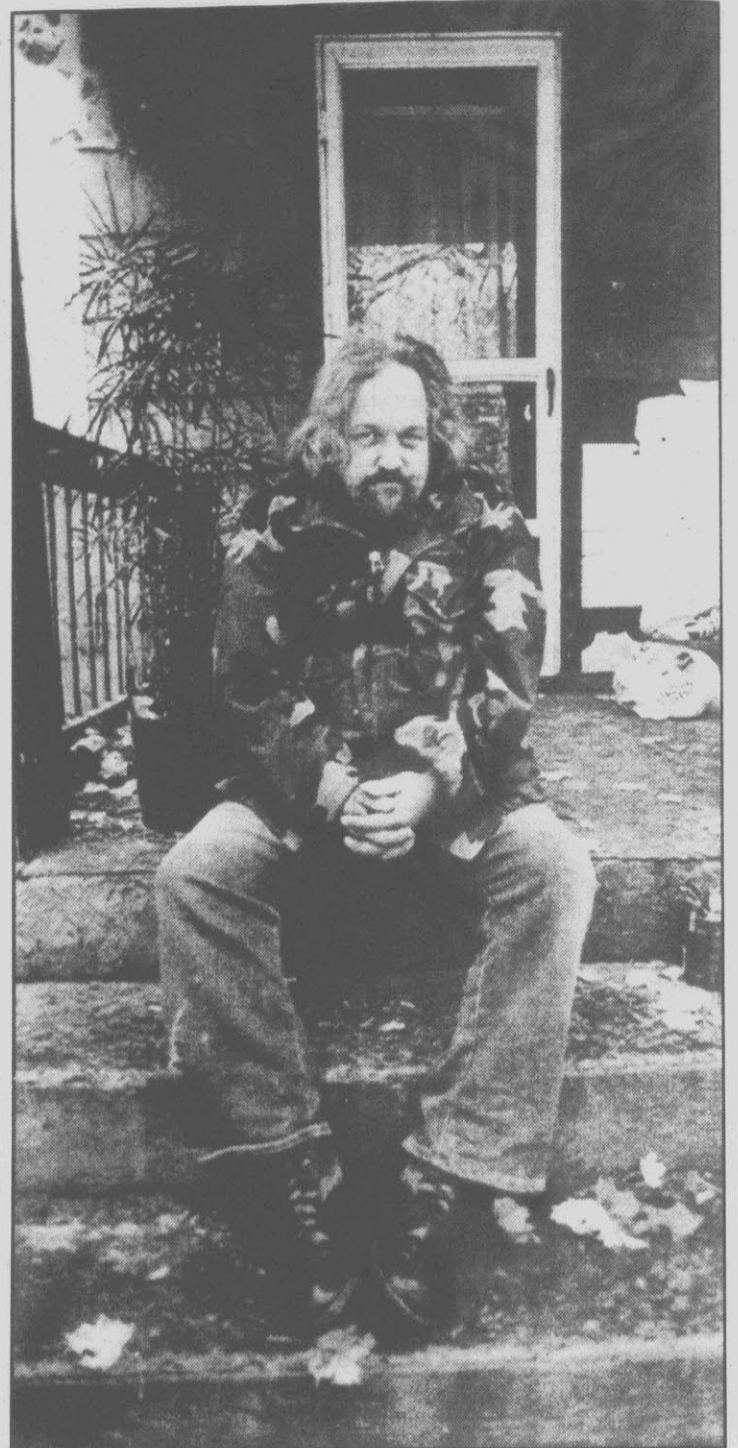

Kenneth Schiel, 41, given an honorable discharge under the conditions that he not reenlist or join the reserves, says he probably would have made the Army a career. He is a patrolman in Corunna, Mich.

The stigma of My Lai made a drinking problem worse for Kenneth Hodges, a squad leader who had 10 years' service before he was forced out. Unskilled and alcoholic, Hodges said he had to fight just to get a driver's job with the Veterans Administration in his hometown, Dublin, Ga. Alcoholism led to two divorces; he has married a third time and says he has been sober since 1985.

Charles Hutto, now 39, says he also overcame a drinking problem that developed as he struggled with the burden of My Lai. He repairs televisions in Monroe, La.

Berghold, T'Souvas, Meadlo, Medina, Schiel, Hodges and Hutto were among the 25 soldiers first charged with My Lai crimes, ranging from premeditated murder to assault and rape. Six were eventually tried, including Medina and Hutto.

Calley, the one man convicted, was a platoon leader. He served three years under house arrest for the first degree murder of at least 22 villagers, including a boy he tossed into a ditch and shot. Now 45, he works in his father-in-law's jewelry store in Columbus, Ga. He will not talk about My Lai.

Strike Organizers Fired In Poland

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GDANSK, Poland — Signaling a tough stance on work stoppages, Communist authorities announced that they have fired the organizers of a one-day shipyard strike which did not have the blessing of Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa.

The announcement by the state-run PAP news agency came Wednesday after workers at two small yards in this Baltic port ended strikes they called to protest government plans to close the nearby Lenin Shipyard, birthplace of Solidarity.

The young workers had quit their occupation strikes at the behest of Walesa, who told them there was "no other path than reconciliation."

Hours later, PAP said the director of the Repair Shipyard "sacked the inspirators of the strike action" at the 4,500-worker yard. It did not mention firings at the other affected yard, the 1,000-worker Wisla Shipyard.

The agency said all employees at the Repair yard would be admitted to work today "with the exception of those who have been given notice." It did not say how many workers were dismissed.

The immediate publicity given the firings seemed an attempt to undercut the credibility of Walesa, who had been urging moderation, among supporters of the banned Solidarity free trade union movement.

In early September, Walesa persuaded strikers to end Poland's worst labor unrest in seven years in exchange for a government promise to hold talks on ending the country's economic and political crisis and reinstating Solidarity.

But the talks have been repeatedly delayed, with each side refusing conditions set by the other. One Solidarity demand is that about 100 coal miners fired for striking in August be rehired.

The Wisla and Repair shipyard workers went on strike on a day Walesa had said he might call a nationwide strike alert over the government's announced intention to close the 10,000-worker Lenin Shipyard on Dec. 1.

But no strike alert was issued, and Walesa later said shipyard managers told him that liquidation of the huge complex would take several years.

Soon after hearing Wednesday of the end of the second strike, Walesa thanked the workers for heeding his request.

"I hope in the future, if there is such a necessity, we will fight together," he said at St. Brygida's church, a Solidarity headquarters.

He argued that striking was counterproductive at the moment, and attention should be focused on starting the blocked talks with Communist authorities.

"For Poland there is no other path than reconciliation, meeting halfway to solve our problems, including social, political and economic pluralism," he told reporters.

But he added: "We will fight for the shipyard sooner or later, and we will regain it."

Solidarity was born in the yard, where Walesa workers as an electrician, in August 1980 during nationwide strikes. It was crushed 15 months later in a military crackdown.

An undetermined number of workers gave up a strike Wednesday morning at Wisla Shipyard, which makes yachts and small river craft, after being promised that those who took part in the strike would not be fired, the yard's strike leader Jan Stanecki said. He said several hundred workers supported the strike.

At the Repair Shipyard, 200 workers who rallied Wednesday morning ended their strike at around 1 p.m., one hour after management said they must leave or be fired, said Krzysztof Kamolak, one of the strike committee members.

Walesa continues to face resistance from young workers who are impatient for promised round-table talks to begin.

"I can't complain about the youth, who are fed up with the conditions in which they live," he said Wednesday.

The talks have also stalled over Walesa's refusal to purge from Solidarity's proposed delegation two people the government has deemed extremist, longtime advisers Adam Michnik and Jacek Kuron.

U.S. Gives Afghan Rebels Green Light

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Afghan rebels have the apparent endorsement of the Reagan administration in their latest drive against Soviet troops and government forces.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said after reviewing the situation Wednesday with a top rebel leader: "We see it eye to eye."

There were no U.S. calls for restraint as Burhanuddin Rabbani held back-to-back meetings with President Reagan and Shultz.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said "we will continue to provide support for the Mujahedeen as long as the Soviet Union is providing support for the Kabul regime. And we would not intervene to direct their activities beyond that."

About 50,000 Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan. They are due to leave by Feb. 15. But last Friday, citing rebel attacks, the Soviets announced a suspension.

In the meantime, the Soviets brought in new missiles and fighter planes, and used the weapons against the rebels, who are armed by the United States.

Rabbani said "we are ready to talk to the Russians directly, to know what their worries are about the withdrawal of their troops."

But he said the guerrilla attacks would continue as long as the Soviets remained.

Last week, State Department officials urged both the rebels and the Soviets to show restraint. The aim was to maintain the Red Army's exodus from Afghanistan after nearly nine years of fighting.

Rabbani, in his meetings here, evidently got a green light to keep up the pressure. Both Shultz and Fitzwater left that impression.

Referring to the rebels, Shultz said "they are being attacked. The Soviets should not have troops in Afghanistan in the first place. So they should leave as they agreed to."

Rabbani declared, meanwhile, that the guerrillas had decided to close the main road used by Soviet troops to leave Afghanistan.

"It is true," he said. However, he left open whether the rebels would launch a military operation against the Red Army in the Kabul area.

"It would depend on the military situation," Rabbani said. "Our aim is peace. But if the Russians intensify the war, we have no choice."

Arafat Likely To Get Visa For U.N. Talk

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNITED NATIONS — Over the objections of Secretary of State George P. Shultz, PLO Chairman

Yasser Arafat is expected to visit the United States later this month to address the U.N. General Assembly.

Arab diplomats say Arafat, who along with two PLO diplomats applied Tuesday for a visa to come to the United Nations, is expected to announce formation of an independent Palestinian state on about Nov. 30 and request U.N. observer status for the new PLO government.

The Israeli government and Jewish groups already have protested a visit by the Palestine Liberation Organization chief.
