Atlantis Shuttle Tests Successful

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The five Atlantis astronauts completed a practice countdown aboard the space shuttle today, a major step toward launching the craft this month on a classified military mission.

The countdown clock stopped as planned at 20 seconds before zero to give the launch team and crew practice in handling a last-moment hold, NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said. The two-day simulation concluded at 11:16 a.m.

While aboard, the astronauts tested communications and ran through checklists and other launch day procedures.

The successful rehearsal cleared the way for shuttle managers to meet Tuesday and Wednesday for a flight readiness review intended to set a firm launch date. The target is Nov. 30, but that could change as a result of the assessment.

Most details about the flight won't be released because Atlantis will be carrying a Defense Department payload, which sources report is a military spy satellite intended to fly over 80 percent of the Soviet Union.

The exact launch time and length of the mission will not be disclosed in advance. Once Atlantis reaches orbit, there will be a blackout on public information until the end of the flight, except for a notice aler-ting news media 24 hours before a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The astronauts flew to Cape Canaveral on Saturday from the Johnson Space Center in Houston for three days of special training. On Sunday they went to the launch pad to be briefed on emergency procedures in case of a fire, fuel leak or some other problem on launch day.

The crew members are commander Robert Gibson, pilot Guy Gardner and mission specialists Mike Mullane, Jerry Ross and William Shepherd.

ECU Says Lower SATs 'Normal'

By Stuart Savage
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University officials said today that the drop in SAT scores for entering freshmen this year is a normal fluctuation rather than a trend.

Figures released last week by University of North Carolina officials show that the system's freshmen posted higher scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test than their counterparts did last year.

The average score on the SAT for North Carolina residents this year was 935, compared with 922 a year ago. The system's out-of-state students averaged 998 on the SAT, compared with 972 a year ago.

But East Carolina University was the only school in the UNC system to show a drop in the test scores among both in-state and out-of-state students.

According to the figures, North Carolina residents entering ECU this fall averaged 850 this year, compared with 856 a year ago, while out-of-state students averaged 894, down from 921 in 1987.

Bill Bloodworth, ECU's acting vice chancellor for academic affairs, described the drop in the test scores as "a slight fluctuation, rather than a trend."

So did ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin.

"I think Bill characterized it nicely," Eakin said. I see it as sort of a fluctuation that, in my mind, is not a trend.

"I would think (the average scores) would turn around this year and continue to go back up."

Why did the scores on the standardized test drop this year?

"It's a statistical phenomenon," Eakin said. "Any year could fluctuate up or down. If you changed nothing," the average SAT score for entering freshmen "could fluctuate several points."

"It's dependent upon the students who apply and accept admission in any given year," he added. "We admit students based on predicted grade-point average." And that depends on several factors. "... SAT score, high school grades ... rank in class" among them. Eakin said.

PLO Document Accepts Israel

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALGIERS, Algeria — PLO leaders today drafted a historic declaration to be presented to the group's parliament-in-exile that implicitly recognizes Israel's right to exist.

Several conference sources said they expected up to 85 percent of the 450 members of the Palestine National Council to endorse the document.

The council's political committee met behind closed doors to debate the wording of another part of the declaration, a commitment distancing the Palestine Liberation Organization from terrorism, conference sources said.

The source, who are on the drafting committee, said they did not expect any differences over the draft, but would not elaborate. They spoke on condition of anonymity.

The declaration sets out a new political strategy by endorsing U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 — which recognizes Israel's right to exist — thus satisfying one of Washington's key conditions for dealing with the PLO. The resolution also calls for Israel's withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

On Tuesday, the council is expected to end its extraordinary four-day meeting with a declaration of independence for the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where Palestinians have for 11 months been revolting against Israel's 21-year occupation.

In a radio interview today, PLO chief Yasser Arafat called the council meeting a "turning point in the course of the Palestinian struggle that will also influence events and developments in the Arab world."

Soviets To Try Again

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Hundreds of spotlights illuminated the Soviet space shuttle today as experts made final preparations for the second attempt to launch the Buran, the Tass news agency said.

The Soviet shuttle was scheduled to blast off on its first, unmanned flight at 6 a.m. Moscow time Tuesday (10 p.m. tonight EST) from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Soviet Central Asia.

Workers labored overnight under nearly 700 spotlights to prepare the Buran, meaning Snowstorm, the official Tass news agency said. Liquid fuels were to be added to its giant booster rocket 14 hours before the flight, Tass said.

The Buran is to make two orbits on fully automatic control and then return to a 2.7-mile-long concrete runway a few miles away from the launch site.

The first launch was scrubbed on Oct. 29, when an access arm did not pull far enough away from the spaceship in the final minute before blast-off.

Corpses Found Buried In Yard

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A landlady suspected of killing at least five people and burying them in the yard of her Victorian boardinghouse was on parole for drugging three elderly people, police say.

Detectives were seeking the manager of the rooming house, Dorothea Montalvo Puente, 59, for investigation of murder, said Homicide Lt. Joe Enloe.

Investigators said they believe seven or eight bodies may have been buried in the yard, based on the number of residents who are missing, Enloe said.

The woman apparently had been cashing some of the victims' Social Security checks for several months, he said. The motive in the deaths was believed to be robbery, he said.

Digging crews, directed by forensic anthropologists, would continue searching the front yard of the home today where neighbors reported a hole had been dug, Enloe said.

Puente was interviewed Friday by police after the first body was discovered but was released for lack of evidence.

Puente was convicted in 1982 of grand theft and imprisoned for drugging three elderly people and taking their possessions after meeting them in bars, police said. She served 2½ years of a five-year sentence before being paroled, officials said.

The boardinghouse is not a nursing home and did not require a license.

Husband Loses Fight To Halt Abortion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today refused to give husbands the legal power to prevent their wives from having abortions.

The justices, without comment, let stand an Indiana Supreme Court decision that a husband has no right to interfere with his wife's constitutional right to abort her pregnancy.

The state court's ruling last July was based directly on past rulings by the nation's highest court.

Erin Andrew Conn of Elkhart,

Ind., went to court early last summer in an attempt to prevent his estranged wife, Jennifer, from having an abortion. She was about six weeks pregnant at the time.

A state trial judge issued a temporary order barring Mrs. Conn from having the operation performed, but a state appeals court threw out that order.

"Erin has no right to veto Jennifer's decision ... as such decision concerns only her," the appeals court ruled.

The Indiana Supreme Court, acting on Conn's subsequent appeal, then adopted the appeals court ruling as its own.

The state courts said Conn's attempt to block his wife's abortion was prohibited by prior Supreme Court rulings dating back to 1973, when a landmark decision by the justices legalized abortion.

In 1976, the court struck down a Missouri law requiring spousal consent before a woman could obtain an abortion during the first 12 weeks of her pregnancy.

After the state Supreme Court ruling, Conn sought emergency help from Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justice John Paul Stevens. Both denied his request, and the injunction prohibiting Mrs. Conn's abortion was lifted last July 22.

She subsequently obtained an abortion.

In the appeal acted on today, Conn said the 1973 and 1976 rulings did not preclude state courts from taking a husband's rights into consideration

Bush May Have Chance To Reshape Court

By Rita Cioli
 LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

In George Bush's first term as president, he may get what has eluded Ronald Reagan for eight years — the opportunity to entrench a conservative majority on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Although Reagan appointed three new justices who solidified the court's conservative bloc, the court never made the sharp turn to the right that he had envisioned. That's because three of the oldest and most liberal justices — William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun — were determined to deny him that goal.

But now infirmity and political circumstance may work to weaken the cornerstones of the court's liberal wing, thereby determining the now-divided court's direction on such issues as abortion, affirmative action, capital punishment and separation of church and state.

Saturday, Blackmun celebrated his 80th birthday, joining Brennan, 82, and Marshall, 80, as the third octogenarian on the court. The average age of the court's four most conservative members is 60 years. The last time the court was even close to having such elderly members was in the mid-1920s, when it had two octogenarians: Oliver Wendell Holmes and Joseph McKenna. Holmes stayed on the bench until he was 90.

Much of the court's direction depends on who is replaced, and the most likely to retire is Byron White. White, 71, who is in good health and a solid member of the conservative bloc, was named by President Kennedy. He has privately told associates that he was bored and restless, but has stayed on because of his dislike of Reagan.

By replacing Brennan, Marshall or Blackmun, Bush can complete what Reagan started. Or he can replace the liberals with more traditional, moderate justices who will keep the balance of the court close to the center and be reluctant to overturn precedents.

"In this whole area, Bush is an enigma," said Arthur Kropp, president of People for the American Way, a liberal lobbying group that worked strenuously to defeat Robert Bork's appointment to the Supreme Court.

History has shown that although presidents usually appoint justices whose thinking is in harmony with theirs, they have no guarantees.

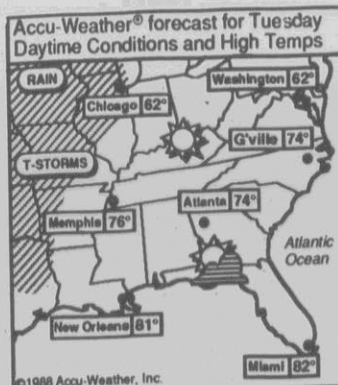

It was President Nixon, for example, who sought a "strict constructionist" and a law-and-order jurist when he appointed Blackmun in 1970. What the court got, however, was an appeals court judge who evolved into a defender of civil liberties and civil rights.

Reagan's first appointment, Sandra Day O'Connor, has already taken a few steps into the moderate camp, but his two other nominees, Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy, are not likely to disappoint him — as evidenced by their votes so far supporting his political agenda. Reagan also elevated William Rehnquist, an aggressive conservative named by Nixon, to the position of chief justice.

However, predictions have already started about the judicial philosophy of a Bush nominee and whether a Democrat-controlled Senate would be again willing to re-

More Flags Stolen

Greenville police said two more flags were reported stolen on Sunday, adding to the other local flag thefts that occurred earlier in the weekend. Three flags were reported stolen on Saturday.

Officer E.L. Butts said an American Flag and a North Carolina flag were taken from a yard at the intersection of fourth and Pitt Streets in an incident reported at 10:37 a.m. Sunday. That theft was one of six reported to the department.

Officer W.E. Davis said a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro was taken from a Courtney Square Apartments parking lot in an incident reported at 7:15 p.m., while Officer J.G. Bridges said a gold necklace was taken — by a man armed with a pistol — from the neck of a passenger in a car parked at 1404 W. Fourth St. in an incident reported at 2 a.m.

Officer R.G. Mendenhall said a tar kettle was taken from Overton's Super Market on Jarvis Street in an incident reported at 9:57 a.m.

Officer R.C. Allsbrook said a coat and hat were taken from the New Deli restaurant at 513 Cotanche St. in an incident reported at 1:35 p.m., while Officer L.E. White said a purse was taken from 602A W. 14th St. in an incident reported at 6:25 p.m.

Ms. Congleton Arrested

Betsy Boyd Congleton, 32, of Route 2, Greenville, was arrested by Greenville police on charges of altering a prescription Sunday.

Officer W.E. Davis said the charge stemmed from a 4:16 p.m. incident at the Farm Fresh which involved the altering of a prescription for valium.

McCorkle Arrested

Donald Rollin McCorkle, 31, of 1112 Dickinson Ave. was arrested and charged with armed robbery by Greenville police this morning in connection with an incident at the Fresh Way Food Store on Airport Road.

Sgt. D.C. Johnson said McCorkle was taken into custody about 3:23 a.m., after a man armed with a knife took an undetermined amount of cash from the Fresh Way store about 2:50 a.m.

Two Are Arrested

Greenville police arrested two people on larceny charges over the weekend.

Officer E.A. Tyson said Tommy Louis Teel, 40, of Route 4, Greenville, was charged in connection with the theft of a package of ham from the Fresh Way Food Store at 1401 Dickinson Ave. about 5:39 p.m. Saturday.

Officer W.S. Heath said Robert Allan Rose, 18, of 216A Belk Dorm, was arrested — with the assistance of East Carolina University police officers — in connection with the theft of 12 beers from the Fresh Way store on E. 10th Street about 3:25 a.m. Sunday.

Applications Sought

Summer Ventures, a statewide program to provide science and mathematics enrichment opportunities to academically gifted high school students, is seeking applications for 1989.

Offered by the University of North Carolina and the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics in Durham, Summer Ventures includes five-week programs at six campus sites during June, July and August for rising juniors and seniors with talent or special interest in science or mathematics. Dates and sites for the programs are: June 25-July 28 at East Carolina University, N.C. Central University in Durham, Western Carolina University in Cullowhee and the University of North Carolina at Wilmington; and July 9-August 11 at Appalachian State University in Boone and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Admission is limited to current sophomores and juniors whose parents are North Carolina residents. Students are selected on the basis of their academic ability, interest in science and math and emotional maturity. Approximately 720 students, who are not required to be identified as gifted and talented, will be selected to participate in 1989 program.

Summer Ventures application forms are available from high school counselors and department heads of science and mathematics. The deadline is Jan. 31, 1989. For more information, write Summer Ventures, P.O. Box 2976, Durham, N.C. 27705, or call 286-3366.

Medical District Zoning On Agenda

Two requests to amend sections of the city's Zoning Ordinance relating to the Medical District are among the items to be considered by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission at its monthly meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the council chambers of City Hall.

Commission members will consider for the second time a request by East Group Inc. to increase the maximum-height limit from 35 to 80 feet in the MD-6 (commercial) zoning district.

The commission, after initially considering the matter July 19, voted to recommend that the City Council deny the request, however at its Aug. 11 meeting, the council referred the matter back to the planning commission for consideration while directing city staff to study maximum-height limitations in every medical-district zoning classification.

The commission will also consider a request by the Medical Center Baptist Church Mission to amend the Zoning Ordinance to allow churches as a permitted use in the MD-4 (shopping center) district.

In other matters Tuesday, the commission will consider a request by the Bells Fork Association to revise the city's Thoroughfare Plan to relocate Arlington Boulevard south of Red Banks Road and connect it to County Home Road (SR 1725) south of Bells Fork.

Also to be considered is whether to recommend an amendment to the Bufferyard Ordinance reducing from 500 feet to 250 feet the minimum spacing requirements between improved areas and adjoining property lines that exempts developments from bufferyard regulations and reducing bufferyard requirements where land being developed adjoins vacant RA-20 (residential/agricultural) property that Greenville's Comprehensive Plan recommends to be used for non-residential purposes.

The commission will also consider whether to recommend that the City Council approve a request by Collice C. Moore to rezone a 30-acre tract off the northern right-of-way of Dickenson Avenue Extension (U.S. 13) and east of Westwood Subdivision from RA-20 (residential/agricultural) and R-9 (residential) to O&I (office and institutional) and CS (shopping center); a request by Myles Cartrette to annex .46 acres off the western right-of-way of SR 1700 (Evans Street Extension), being the back portion of Brookfield Apartments, Section II; a request by David Evans, David Evans Jr. and Anne Brewer to close a portion of 14th Street, being that area of the old right-of-way outside the new alignment, and a request by the Development Department to amend the Zoning Ordinance to allow one menu-reader board per each restaurant drive-through facility.

Also to be considered for approval are a preliminary plat of Sheraton Village Townhomes, Section 5, Phase I, on Haven Drive north of Westhaven Subdivision Section 8. The plat involves 31 residential townhouse units on a 6.13-acre tract.

A preliminary plat of Summerfield Gardens, Section II, south of Peed Drive, east of Summerfield Subdivision Phase II will also be considered for approval. The plat involves seven multi-family development tracts and 600 lineal feet of public street on a 9.16-acre tract.

Also planned for Tuesday is a discussion of a request by the Greenville-Pitt County Convention and Visitors Bureau to amend the sign ordinance to allow placement of travelers information signs for food, gas and lodging, subject to council authorization, and a discussion by the city engineer regarding the current surety requirements for subdivision improvements.

Ex-POW Says Laos Trip Harmed Cause

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A former POW says two North Carolinians released from detention in Laos may have done more harm than good for their cause.

Retired Brig. Gen. Norman Gaddis, who was a POW for almost six years in Vietnam, said Donna Long and Jim Copp had impeded the Reagan administration's efforts regarding POWs in Southeast Asia.

"I'm confident that the U.S. government is doing everything it can to secure information concerning those who are still missing in action," said Gaddis, who lives in Davie County. He said efforts of private organizations raise false hopes.

"It is very tragic that they do that to these families," he said.

Too Slow Pitt Needs Better Equipment

Now that the 1988 election is over and the results are tabulated and analyzed, it is time to scrutinize the machinery Pitt County uses to conduct its balloting.

The problems with the voting equipment which the county purchased several years ago continued with Tuesday's election. Those difficulties made Pitt County one of the last in the state to determine winners. That's not acceptable. This election proves it's time to improve the county's voting equipment.

The equipment, which reads paper ballots as they are fed through sensors, failed in several instances and election officials were kept busy shuttling replacement machines to various polling places.

In an era when the public wants to quickly know the results of the election, Pitt County's totals trickled in too slowly. In fact it was 6 a.m. before the final precinct was received and the unofficial results for the county transmitted to News Election Service. By then the winners in the presidential race, the North Carolina governor's race and a number of other races were projected. It was virtually the same four years ago when voting equipment problems caused the counting to go on until 5:30 a.m.

The unnecessarily long tabulating process is costly to the county in time and manpower. It is frustrating to those who work the polls and makes it more difficult to obtain the workers the county needs for this job.

The situation is bad enough to convince us that the county is simply going to have to bite the bullet and purchase the equipment that is needed to adequately handle the growing number of voters in Pitt County.

Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee has suggested electronic equipment which eliminates the paper ballot. The machines would be programmed for the races that each individual voter is eligible to participate in. Then the voter would press buttons for the candidates of his or her choice. Following that procedure, another button would be pressed to cast the entire ballot. The equipment is heavily loaded with safety provisions to prevent unauthorized changes or deletions.

It is up to the experts to determine what type of equipment is best for Pitt County voting. It is obvious, however, that improvements need to be made to provide the best voting and tabulation procedures. Effective voting equipment can reduce the amount of time that poll workers spend at the polls. Electronic voting can eliminate the cost of printing ballots. And making election night totals available to the public as rapidly as possible is a service to the public.

The County Commission needs to consider the replacement of present voting equipment before the public faces another election.

Fulfillment

United Way Touches Everyone

It was one of the more satisfying occasions for this or any community.

Pitt County United Way campaign officials gathered last week to note the fulfillment of the 1988 goal.

Not only was the goal met but it was exceeded. At that point contributions totaled $1,153,283. The goal for this year was $1,104,071. The amount raised is a record for the Pitt County United Way and it is an 11 percent increase over the previous year.

Campaign Chairman Mac McCarley expressed appreciation to the public for the support of United Way and the agencies it serves.

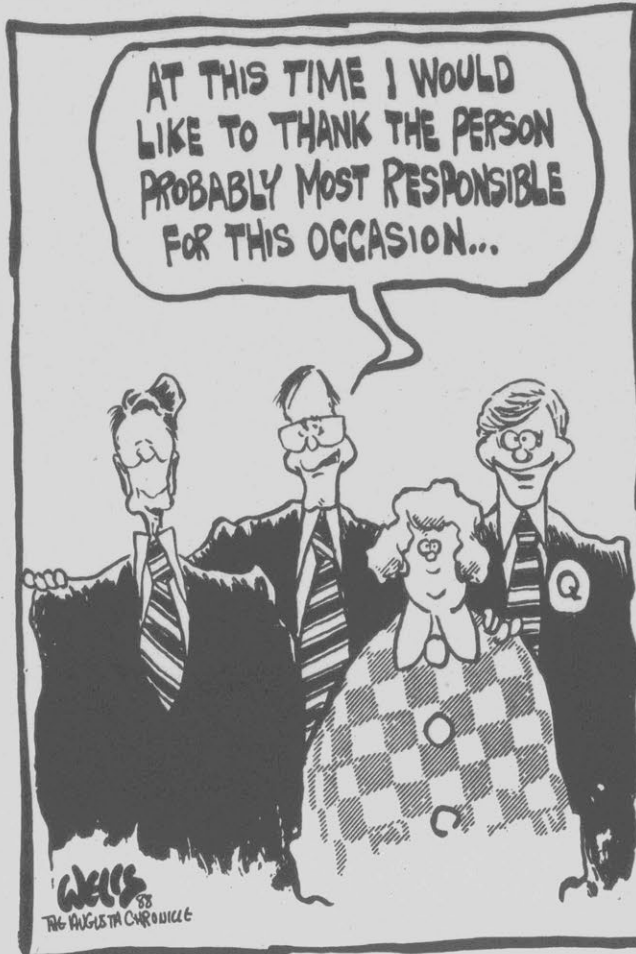

It is difficult to imagine how a community could get more for its contributed dollars than through United Way. The funds raised go to the support of 35 agencies involved in health and human care. They range from literacy work to severe childhood diseases to domestic violence victims. It is a rare Pitt Countian who won't be touched by one of the participating agencies at some time in life.

Mostly the agencies provide services which are not in the province of government. Yet they are greatly needed services which help individuals and, in doing so, help the community as a whole.

Early on, United Way struggled in Pitt County. For several years it did not meet its goal and when it did the campaign dragged on for months.

It is a tribute to our citizens that the campaign is now carried out with such efficiency. It tells us that the public fully understands what a great community value the agencies supported by United Way provide.

Certainly Chairman McCarley and all volunteers who participated in this year's campaign are to be congratulated for meeting the goal and doing so in a timely fashion. And perhaps all who contributed should give themselves a pat on the back for generously supporting this important community resource.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Patricia Anderson's Nov. 1 letter in support of SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative) engages in the same groundless speculation that allowed Reagan to squander $16.7 billion of taxpayers' money for the project. Deterrence of any kind seems obsolete when it comes to nuclear war. In a Cornell University survey of members of the National Academy of Sciences, most scientists concluded that any space-based anti-missile system would have to destroy 99 percent of incoming nuclear warheads to adequately protect the U.S. in a nuclear war. Only 10 out of 500 scientists surveyed thought SDI could achieve those results in the next 25 years — if ever.

A more recent survey of SDI experts concluded it would take at least 10 years of intensive research to determine if the project could work at all. The report issued by the American Physical Society didn't even analyze probability of computer error and false warning, the most problematic aspect of SDI.

The Pentagon has usually managed to get all the research support it needs by offering lucrative military contracts to elite university labs, but concerning SDI, few scientists are so easily bought. Strong scientific opposition to SDI is undermining the Reagan-Bush administration's attempts to sell its Star Wars programs to U.S. taxpayers. Over 60 percent of faculty at the top 20 physics departments in the country have pledged not to accept SDI research money. MIT opponents outnumber proponents 10-1.

The most recent finding: cruise missiles fly too low to be tracked and would thereby elude Reagan's Star Wars defense system. Advances in ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile) and anti-satellite weapons technologies could further degrade SDI's performance.

By refusing funds for SDI, our physicists are foregoing their traditionally "scientific neutrality" to take a political stand on an issue that threatens global survival. Anderson's "experts" are a minority whose fiscal interests have blinded them from scientific reality.

To the editor:

Thanks to the Greenville City Council and congratulations on a job well done to Evergreen Inc., the Downtown Revitalization Company. If you haven't driven down Dickinson Avenue lately, you should. The Brown Building, the burned structure near the intersection of Dickinson and Greene streets, has been an eyesore in our community for years. The property is now being renovated and will become a showplace at the west entrance of our downtown shortly. This project is an example of how public and private sector cooperation can make things happen.

The city recently had a need to relocate some of its offices due to a lack of space at City Hall. Evergreen was contacted and the wheels of progress was placed into motion. The Evergreen staff was instrumental in identifying a developer, Flowers and Associates, and assisted him in negotiating the purchase of the property. Once this was accomplished, Evergreen worked with the developer to locate another tenant which made the project a viable venture and also helped arrange financing with a local institution. The end result will be a property which will increase in value by approximately 500 percent over the next 90 days. This means increased tax revenues for the city as well as the erasing of a blemish in our downtown. Congratulations, Evergreen for your efforts and thanks to the city for its willingness to assist the revitalization process along.

What's the next cooperative venture?

America's Drug Of Choice

WASHINGTON — The reason so many inner-city youngsters are tempted into the high-risk, high-profit drug racket, a Washington police official ventured the other day, is that they are fundamentally fatalists, neither demanding nor expecting more from life than short-term gain.

The rest of us may think about "marriage, families, planning for retirement, owning a home," said Assistant Chief Isaac Fulwood. "But these kids don't think about that. They think their lives are going to be short, so they figure they're going to have some fun while they're here. They live only for today."

If you wonder where these desperate and dangerous youngsters ever got such a short-sighted notion, just look at the news.

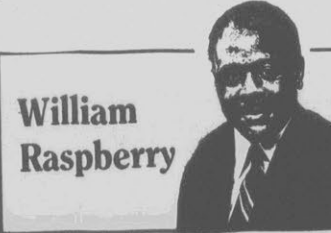

I've just seen a story about an investment group that wants to take over the Zenith Electronics Corp. and sell off its consumer-electronics unit.

No matter that Zenith is America's sole surviving manufacturer of television sets, or that the move to take it out of television manufacturing comes at precisely the time when the introduction of high-definition TV promises to revolutionize the industry, perhaps spawning a huge range of new electronics products.

The short-term profit is in divestiture, even though in the long term it will mean conceding the new technology to Japan, with serious implications for the American economy.

Is this financial wizardry really so different from the fatalism that keeps inner-city youngsters from seeing beyond the transient pleasures of next weekend?

We're at the end of a presidential campaign notable (aside from its dirtiness) for its avoidance of the issue of the federal deficit. Both candidates know that the only way to deal with the problem is some combination of increased revenues and decreased spending. But instead of realistic talk about those difficult choices, what we have been hearing are proposals for better tax collection, "flexible freezes" and other narcotizing nonsense.

America is addicted to the short term. Our business executives, in dismayed contrast to their Japanese counterparts, refuse to look beyond next quarter's profit statements.

There is hardly a member of Congress who will propose long-term solutions to our pressing problems. They are running for re-election almost from the time they arrive here, and while they may understand that America's long-term health requires major attention to today's at-risk youngsters, they also understand that their political careers turn on short-term voter pleasure.

Are the young people who eschew the future-oriented sacrifice of education and hard work at entry-level jobs, who, in Chief Fulwood's description, "live only for today," really so different?

Isn't just a question of individual decisions. One of the reasons the Japanese — and increasingly the European Economic Community — are able to engage in long-term planning is that their governments underwrite the sacrifices it entails.

Attempts to involve the U.S. government in underwriting consumer-goods research are put down as un-American notions of a planned economy. The genius of America, we are told again and again, is its profit-driven free-enterprise system. And there is no question that, for most of this country's existence, it has worked very well.

But it has worked best when it has focused on present-day investment for long-term institutional health. The financial news of today is more about new acquisitions and divestitures than about new products; more about arbitrage and other financial manipulations than about invention.

The result is that a few people become enormously rich while the long-term economic health of the country suffers.

Chief Fulwood sees clearly that the short-sightedness of money-mad drug merchants is luring them into premature death. Shouldn't it be just as clear that our focus on the short-term pay-off — in business, politics and in government — threatens to produce the same result for America?

The View From Abroad

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — Every election year, the U.S. State brings hundreds of foreign officials and journalists to this country to witness American democracy in action. While our campaign, and our campaign coverage, may be old hat to us, it's always entertaining to hear how these visitors respond to what they see.

Several days before last week's votes, the North Carolina Press Association hosted a luncheon for about three dozen of these State Department visitors. At this reporter's table, the conversation immediately moved to the negative tone of the campaign.

A political reporter from Barbados was curious about the American practice of objective political reporting. In his country, each party has its own newspaper to express its viewpoints. Political reporters such as himself are tied to the party line.

In the U.S., newspapers began that way, and many of our papers still bear the name of the party which founded them. But the prevailing practice is for objective reporting. Political reports which appear on the news pages are supposed to be impartial. Political reports which appear on the editorial page should be fair, but should also express a viewpoint.

The seven were all amazed at the nastiness of this campaign. They were astonished to learn that American candidates can say almost anything about each other without fear of legal ramifications, and that it is nearly impossible for a political figure to successfully sue a paper or TV station for libel.

The 1964 U.S. Supreme Court case of N.Y. Times versus Sullivan paved the way for a tight libel standard in this country. The message is clear. If you run for a political office, almost anything can be said about you, and you have little recourse through the courts. Tony Rand should keep that in mind if he presses his lawsuit against Jim Gardner.

That led to the next question, from a young man from the island of Dominica. (It's near Grenada.) If the politicians can't restrain what reporters say about them, and if they can't successfully sue reporters, do they then shoot them or have them beaten?

"Not once in my career have I feared for my safety," I said. Then I hedged, "Well, there was once when I was working in Robeson County, but I was probably being a bit paranoid."

From there, the discussion centered on the lack of substance in the campaign, on how little was being said about international affairs. Five of the seven were from the Caribbean and one from Mexico. They felt that Americans had the wrong impression of their efforts to fight drugs. They were also concerned about our national deficit, and its effects on them.

They couldn't believe that with problems like that, that the pledge of allegiance had been such a major issue this year. Nor could I.

Double Candidacy Sends Wife To State House

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MADISON, N.C. — As they cuddled close, scrunching shoulders swathed in blue-plaid shirts so similar they inspired images of twins, Peggy and Larry "Woody" Wilson didn't look like a couple weighed down with marriage woes.

But some thought the spouses who do most everything together — from cooking to choir singing to campaigning — might come unglued when their double candidacy landed only one seat in the N.C. House of Representatives.

Come January, Peggy Wilson, 43, will be leaving her husband of 15 years at home while she goes to Raleigh as the first Republican anyone can recall serving their 25th House District in Alamance, Rockingham and Stokes counties.

And though their signs, stances and stump stops seemed as similar as their matching shirts, the Wilsons said they knew the victory might go solo.

"We knew if one of us would win, it would be me," Peggy said last week from the living room of their Victorian home in Madison. "We talked about it numerous times. We said, 'What if this happens? Can we handle this? Can our marriage handle this?'"

They expected their spouse stunt to create some interest among voters. And they expected females to back Peggy and incumbent Democrat Bertha "B" Holt over the six male candidates in the four-seat district.

Despite the predictions, Peggy Wilson admits the outcome worried her. "On election night, I was concerned," said Ms. Wilson, a registered nurse who will keep her job with Western Rockingham City Schools. "I kept saying, 'Are you OK?'"

That night Woody, 42, explained his partner's win by saying, "It helps to be blond and 110 pounds."

But Friday, after spending a sunny afternoon with his wife taking down their red "Woody and Peggy Wilson" campaign signs, he dismissed such talk as a joke.

"I have a tendency to be a smart aleck," said Woody Wilson, director of the exceptional children's program and maintenance at Western Rockingham Schools. He insists he's proud to be part of his wife's team.

"It's not like we lost," he told The Greensboro News & Record. "It's just like we didn't win as big as we wanted to."

This year marked their second campaign for the state House as a couple and his third attempt. Woody Wilson admits he'd like to be joining his wife in the capital, but says he still believes they can accomplish their objectives through her.

Though Peggy admits the lopsided win could maul some marriages, they recalled harsher tests they'd faced together: Three years during which they were too poor to go out to eat — even to McDonald's. Or the tiring days after Woody married Peggy and adopted her three children. She worked late almost every night as a nurse only to double his teachers' pay of about $6,000 a year.

But the tough times seem to have strengthened their ties. They communicate with intimate comfortableness, interrupting sentences and anticipating the other's thoughts.

Plane Crash

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A Lumberton woman was injured when the single-engine plane in which she was riding crashed Sunday on approach to the Lumberton Municipal Airport, a Lumberton Police Department spokesman said.

Wilma Edwards, 43, was held for observation at Southeastern General Hospital after the 5:30 p.m. crash, officials said.

Ms. Edwards was a passenger in the Cessna 172-G piloted by 54-year-old Olin Johnson of Orum when the plane crashed in a plowed field near the end of an airport runway and flipped over, officials said.

Johnson was not injured in the crash.

Charlotte Pastor Likely To Challenge Moderate Baptist Leader

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A presidential power struggle and a discussion of controversial baptism practices are expected to dominate the annual meeting of the N.C. Baptist State Convention, which opens in Fayetteville tonight.

The 158-year-old convention, which claims 1.2 million members in 3,500 churches, is far and away the state's largest religious body. It may be the most contentious as well.

A new conservative group is planning to nominate the Rev. Joe Brown of Charlotte to challenge the moderate president, the Rev. Leon Smith of Goldsboro. For years, incumbent presidents ran unopposed, as a courtesy, for a second one-year term.

With twists on old arguments between fundamentalists and moderates, the three-day meeting also promises clashes over presidential power and the issue of whether churches can accept transfer members who have been baptized by sprinkling, not immersion.

"We are facing some very critical issues," says the Rev. M.O. Owens of Gastonia, who helped launch the new group, Conservative Carolina Baptists, earlier this year.

"We felt something needed to be done to coordinate and focus the energies of conservatives in one direction," Owens told The Charlotte Observer.

Owens, 75, said his group was formed in response to several organizations — including N.C. Friends of Missions and the Southern Baptist Alliance — that represent the moderate point of view.

Fundamentalists, who believe the Bible is literally true, control the 14.7 million-member Southern Baptist Convention. But the N.C. convention's leadership has been dominated for many years by moderates, who say the Bible is authoritative but open to scholarly interpretation.

Owens, a retired Gastonia pastor, said Conservative Carolina Baptists does not involve such longtime fundamentalist leaders as the Rev. Robert Tenery of Morganton, the Rev. Ned Mathews of Gastonia and the Rev. Steve Sells of Greensboro. He plans a different approach.

"We felt we wanted to deal more with issues rather than personalities," Owens said.

The group has been publishing a newsletter with a monthly circulation of about 750. One of the group's members is expected to nominate Brown for the presidency Tuesday.

Brown, 40, is pastor of Hickory Grove Baptist Church, a 4,500-member congregation in a new, $6 million sanctuary in east Charlotte. Recognized as one of the most successful young pastors in the SBC, he has stayed out of denominational politics at the state and national levels.

Brown says an interest in unity prompted him to accept the nomination.

"There are basically three groups of Southern Baptists in North Carolina," he said. "Those who consider themselves moderates, those who consider themselves fundamentalists and this new group of conservative men who are just not pleased with what is going on."

"We as Southern Baptists need to get back to the basics of winning people to Christ," Brown said.

Smith, who will be nominated for a second one-year term, said he was not surprised to learn of plans for Brown's entry in the race.

"There doesn't seem to be any way we can get through a convention without right much controversy these days," said Smith, 48. "This is an effort at the last minute to create some divisiveness within the convention, and I fully predict mainstream Baptists will see it as that."

More than 3,500 people are expected to attend the meeting at the Charlie Rose Agri-Expo Center. The baptism issue will be dealt with Tuesday.

Cousins: Marilyn Monroe, George Bush, Abraham Lincoln and Dan Quayle? Genealogist says there is a relationship

Genealogist Says Bush And Quayle Are Cousins, And So Is Honest Abe

By Dana Kennedy
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — President-elect George Bush and Vice President-elect Dan Quayle may be more than just running mates. A genealogist who specializes in the lineage of presidents says Bush and Quayle are 10th cousins once removed.

The two are also related to Abraham Lincoln, and the man thought to be Marilyn Monroe's father, said Gary Boyd Roberts, a genealogist at the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston.

Bush, a Yankee, and Quayle, from a wealthy Indiana newspaper publishing family, both have 17th century roots in New England, Roberts said.

Roberts has spent almost a decade researching Bush's ancestry, which will be included in his upcoming book on presidential lineage, timed to coincide with the 200th anniversary of George Washington's inauguration April 30.

Roberts is director of publications at the genealogical society, the nation's oldest and second largest.

"Part of my mission is to show how one goes out from one's self to one's family to the community and to various groups around the nation," Roberts said. "If you look at pedigree, you can tell about patterns in culture."

Bush, he said, is only the third of what he calls "Social Register" presidents. The first two, Republican Theodore Roosevelt and Democrat Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who were distant cousins, were closely connected to New York society.

Both Bush and Quayle are WASPs — white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestants

— with a twist. They both have strong ancestral ties to the South as well as New England, Roberts said.

According to Roberts, Bush is distantly related to 10 American presidents, including Franklin Pierce, the nearest relation (fifth cousins four times removed); Lincoln; Ulysses S. Grant; Rutherford B. Hayes; Grover Cleveland; William Howard Taft; Calvin Coolidge; Franklin Roosevelt; Richard Nixon; and Gerald Ford, the most distant relation (11th cousins once removed.)

Bush also is descended from British royalty going as far back as 12th century King Henry I, the son of William the Conqueror, said Roberts.

Quayle "almost certainly" has some royal ancestry but Roberts has not thoroughly researched his family tree. And he had ancestors on the Mayflower, including Miles Standish and John Alden. Quayle's father is a member of the Mayflower Society.

But that honor, as Roberts explains it, is not uncommon. There are an estimated 20 million to 30 million people descended from the 23 families who survived passage on the Mayflower, Roberts said.

Bush's and Quayle's common ancestor was James Hamlin, who died in Barnstable in 1690. Bush and Nixon, as well as former presidents Hayes and Taft, are descended from Robert Foote, of Shalford, in the English county of Essex, who died in 1608.

Bush and Franklin Delano Roosevelt share an ancestor in Anne Marbury, the noted religious reformer, heretic and a founder of Rhode Island, who was killed by Indians on Long Island in 1643.

Roberts discovered one of both Bush's and Quayle's more celebrated relatives — Marilyn Monroe — through another genealogist affiliated with the society, Richard Brenneman. Brenneman has documentation to show that Bush and Quayle share a common ancestor with Monroe's supposed father, Charles Stanley Gifford, who was born in Rhode Island in 1888 and died in California in 1965.

Most Monroe biographies cite Gifford as the man Monroe's mother claimed was her father. Monroe's mother never married Gifford but Monroe and Gifford made contact with each other over the years.

L.A. Drug Gangs Remain At Large

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Drug-dealing gang members are killing in record numbers this year with no end to the deadly violence in sight, despite police claims that they are not losing a street war waged against the gangs.

The battle is being won in target areas such as south-central Los Angeles, police said, but those successes are not reflected in the numbers.

"We aren't losing the war, we just aren't winning in the data," department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth said Friday. But he conceded, "The data does tell us we are a long way from winning the war."

Police Department figures show gang-related homicides rose threefold in October compared with the same month last year, from 11 to 33. For the year through Oct. 31, they were up nearly 25 percent, from 166 in 1987 to 207.

That total already surpasses the record 205 gang killings for all of 1987.

And during the weekend, four more people were slain in gang-style attacks.

In Los Angeles County areas where the sheriff enforces the law, 79 gang-related murders were recorded by late October, matching the total for all of 1987.

Meanwhile, the crack-dealing gangs called the Crips and Bloods, the deadliest gangs in the nation's second-largest city, continue to surface in towns and cities across the western United States.

In April, Mayor Tom Bradley, a former police lieutenant, vowed during the first 1,000-officer gang task force sweep, "We are going to take these terrorists off the streets of Los Angeles."

More than 21,000 people, 12,000 of them gang members, have been arrested by the department's gang task force since February, most of them during the highly publicized sweeps, including one Saturday night that netted more than 175 people. Police said they do not know at this point how many arrests resulted in convictions.

In late October, gang violence took an especially heavy toll. A football star at California State University, Long Beach, had a kidney removed after using his body to shield a child from a bullet at a Halloween party, and 10 people were wounded outside a birthday party the same weekend, including a 15-month-old child who later died.

Booth said that despite the rising gang murder rate, it's too early to call those sweeps ineffective.

"You can't jump to conclusions that nothing is working," Booth said. "I think we're making some impact overall, and we're going to make more impact."

In south-central Los Angeles, where the gangs are worst and task force sweeps most frequent, homicide is down 17 percent, robbery down 4 percent and rape down 5 percent in October compared with a year ago, the police figures show.

Gangs, however, are simply moving into other areas of the city to ply their drug trade, Booth conceded.

On the city's west side, for instance, there have been 20 murders through October compared with 17 for the same period last year. In the San Fernando Valley, there have been 26 deaths compared with eight through October 1987.

Haywood Shooting

MAGGIE VALLEY, N.C. (AP) — A Haywood County woman was shot and killed over the weekend, and a woman described as her friend has been charged with involuntary manslaughter, authorities said Sunday.

Kristine Ann Smith Ulrich, 38, of Maggie Valley, was fatally shot at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at her home, according to Haywood County Sheriff's Det. John Russ.

Charged with involuntary manslaughter is Jayne Bradley Cartategui, 41, of Maggie Valley, Russ said. Ms. Cartategui was released from the Haywood County Jail after posting $2,500 bond.

Voter Totals Down In All But 2 States

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Voter turnout fell in all but two states in this year's presidential election from four years ago and voters in 12 states cast more ballots in statewide races for senator and governor than in the race for president, a research group says.

Overall, 91.3 million Americans — half of those eligible to vote — cast ballots in the presidential race. Turnout declined in 48 states and the District of Columbia from the 1984 election, said the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

The turnout was the lowest since 1924, when an estimated 48.9 percent of eligible Americans voted, the nonpartisan research group said.

Except for a slight increase in 1984, national turnout has declined steadily since 1960, when 62.8 percent of eligible voters cast ballots, according to the committee's study. This year's turnout was down from 92.7 million, or 53.1 percent of eligible voters who cast ballots in 1984.

Continuation of the trend "will pose a serious threat to the political health of the American nation," Curtis Gans, director of the committee, said Sunday.

Turnout dropped from 1984 by more than 1 percentage point in 46 states and the District of Columbia, and by 0.9 percent in Colorado and 0.5 percent in Nebraska. It rose in two states — Nevada by 1.9 percentage points and New Hampshire by 0.7 percentage points.

Some political analysts blame the declining turnout on registration procedures that present barriers to voting, but Gans said the study found registration was not the problem.

In North Dakota, which does not require voters to register, turnout has declined 17.4 percentage points since 1960, compared with a national decline of 12.8 percentage points during the same period, according to the study.

In Wisconsin and Minnesota, both of which established election day registration in 1976, turnout has dropped below what it was in 1972 before the same-day registration began.

Automation Ends Morse Code At Sea

LONDON (AP) — World shipping leaders have given the go-ahead for the introduction of new, automatic communications that will mean the end of the Morse code for ships at sea.

The Global Maritime Distress and Safety System transmits and receives automatically, so Morse will no longer be a requirement for ships. Shipowners are expected to phase out radio operators when the new equipment is installed in ships, starting in 1993.

Some parts of the new technology, which includes satellite communications, are already in use on British ships and from 1999 they will be compulsory on ships worldwide.

The decision was taken during a two-week London conference of the International Maritime Organization, a United Nations agency for the safety of shipping and preventing ships polluting the seas.

The 66 countries represented accounted for about 97 percent of the world's ships, said spokesman Roger Kohn.

A statement afterward called the decision "one of the biggest advances in maritime communications since the introduction of radio." The new system allows the crew to send a distress signal by pushing a button, which should prevent ships disappearing without a trace when messages cannot be sent in time.

Ships will also carry a radio beacon, which will give the ship's position and must be able to float free if the ship sinks suddenly.

Kohn said: "Morse has great romantic connotations with the gallant radio operator sending off distress calls as the ship sinks. But we are bringing in something that will be much better and which should save even more lives."

The Morse code, invented by American Samuel Morse and first used in 1844, has been the foundation of ship's distress and safety messages since the turn of the century. It is a series of long and short electronic "dots and dashes" representing letters of the alphabet.

Morse code was used to inform an incredulous world that the supposedly unsinkable oceanliner Titanic was sinking in the North Atlantic in 1912. The Titanic sank swiftly and 1,500 people perished.

Shamir Asked To Form Cabinet

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — President Chaim Herzog today asked Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's hardline Likud bloc to form Israel's next government, Israel radio said.

However, dissension broke out in Shamir's party over Cabinet posts and concessions granted small religious parties to gain their support and with it a governing coalition.

Part of the price of the ultra-Orthodox parties' endorsement, secured late Sunday, was a promise to amend Israel's controversial "Who is a Jew" law so Orthodox rabbis have exclusive rights to approve conversions to Judaism.

Most American Jews, who like most Israelis are not Orthodox, fiercely oppose the amendment.

Because of the nearly even split between Likud and its left-leaning rival, the Labor Party, the religious parties had found themselves holding the balance of power in an overwhelmingly secular society.

By law, Shamir has three days to respond to Herzog's call to form a new government, then 21 days to put the government in place. If necessary, he can request an extension of 21 days.

Likud and Labor have governed Israel since deadlocked 1984 elections. Inconclusive Nov. 1 elections gave Likud 40 seats in the 120-member parliament and Labor 39. But with its new ultra-Orthodox partners, Likud and its allies on the far right would control 63 seats.

Rafi Edri, who headed a Labor delegation that met with Herzog earlier today, conceded the left-leaning party's defeat.

"This morning it's clear that Shamir will form the next government. We did what we could and we did not succeed, but we did not compromise our principles," he told reporters. "If we must sit in opposition, we'll do it with strength, responsibility and sense."

Labor Party leader Shimon Peres said the party had "done what it could and these are the results. I've never promised anything else."

Even though Shamir seemed assured of being able to muster a majority in parliament, the battle over posts in the 25-member Cabinet could at least delay, and possibly sabotage, his efforts to form a government.

The agreements with one religious party, Agudat Israel, also remained to be finalized.

Likud legislator David Levy angrily denounced the agreement with two key religious parties, Shas and Agudat Israel, that yielded crucial Cabinet portfolios to the ultra-Orthodox in exchange for their support.

Soldiers Leave As Death Squad Rages

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEGOVIA, Colombia — Thirty-seven people were slain by a death squad shortly after soldiers and police officers left this northern gold mining town, local authorities say. Among the dead were six children and eight women.

Thirty-five others were wounded in the submachine-gun and hand-grenade attack, which occurred Friday night in this town 180 miles north of Bogota, Mayor Rita Ivon told The Associated Press on Sunday.

Miss Ivon, of the leftist Patriotic Union Party, said the gunmen criss-crossed through this town of 16,000 during the massacre.

The Patriotic Union Party has long claimed government security forces operate right-wing death squads. Colombia's Human Rights Commission says death squads have killed 600 members of the party in the last three years.

On Saturday, Mayor Carlos Rojo of nearby Remedios said the attack on Segovia was carried out by a right-wing death squad that has been active in the area. Rojo is also a member of the Patriotic Union Party.

Army Gen. Raul Rojas Cubillos on Saturday blamed the Segovia massacre on leftist guerrillas who have been fighting for 25 years to overthrow Colombia's government and establish a Marxist state.

During a funeral service Sunday for the victims, pallbearers dropped one coffin in the town square and it caused a noise that sounded like a gunshot. Believing the killers were returning, many mourners fled and several were injured in the panic.

At an army base a half-mile from Segovia where 600 troops are based, guards told the AP no officers were available to be interviewed about the massacre.

U.S. Backs Thai General For President Of Interpol

By George Lardner Jr.
LAT-TP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The United States, brushing aside complaints from the French, is backing a Thai police general for the presidency of Interpol, the international criminal police organization.

"It's going to be a donnybrook," one Justice Department official said of the politicking by the world's top police and their superiors that is expected at Interpol's annual general assembly in Thailand later this month.

The French, who dominated Interpol for decades after World War II, had been hoping the United States would back their candidate, Ivan Barbot, director general of the French national police.

But U.S. officials said they decided it was time to support a Third World candidate, Gen. Pow Sarasin, head of the Royal Thai police department.

Law enforcement officials here said the French have been hinting that the United States indicated it would back Barbot and then reneged. They deny the charge.

Associate Attorney General Francis A. Keating, who will head the U.S. Interpol delegation to Bangkok, said the French asked months ago for U.S. support of Barbot but got a noncommittal response from then-Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

"Subsequent to that, we elected to support General Sarasin," Keating said. "He's been a very good friend of the world police community and a very good friend to us in law enforcement. The French have dominated Interpol until recently. To have the Thai presidency go to a Third World country made sense, so when the Thais approached us, we agreed to support them."

The 29,000-member Thai police force, which is charged with enforcing all criminal laws in the country, has long had pockets of corruption, according to knowledgeable sources, but U.S. officials are convinced Sarasin is a man of integrity.

"He used to be chief of detectives over there," said a Drug Enforcement Administration official familiar with Sarasin's career. "He and the other top two officials in the department were, in my opinion, impeccably honest. Narcotics trafficking was a primary concern of his."

Barbot is more of an administrator while Sarasin is a professional police officer, said Richard C. Stienen, chief of the Justice Department's National Central Bureau, the U.S. arm of Interpol. He said this was the basic reason for the U.S. choice.

Underlying the politicking for the four-year term, now held by U.S. Secret Service Director John R. Simpson, are French attempts to reassert themselves in the organization's hierarchy and what some law-enforcement experts here described as lingering annoyance with lax French attitudes towards international terrorism.

"France harbors a lot of international terrorists," said a Justice Department official. "They (the French) just don't like to answer questions (from other countries) of a political nature."

Interpol is primarily a worldwide records and communications network, with headquarters in France, that links the police forces of 146 countries in pursuing international criminal cases.

First established in 1923 with headquarters in Vienna, it was seized by the Nazis in 1938 and used to track down individuals for political reasons. It was reorganized after World War II and moved to Paris under a constitution stating that "it is strictly prohibited for the organization to undertake any intervention or activities of a political, military, religious or racial character."

The rule was rigorously interpreted for decades, hampering the exchange of information about terrorist crimes on the grounds they were politically motivated.

In 1980, Stienen confirmed, Interpol refused to issue a "red notice" — in effect, a provisional arrest warrant — for convicted spy Christopher Boyce after his escape from a federal prison in California.

Stienen said the refusal was justified under Interpol's rules, because Boyce had been convicted of espionage, "clearly a political-type offense." Stienen also said the difficulties in such cases was "an organizational problem rather than a French problem." But the incident appears to have rankled some U.S. law-enforcement officials.

In 1984-85, at the behest of the United States and a growing number of developing countries, Interpol's members approved a new set of resolutions allowing the exchange of information about terrorism and decreeing that crimes against innocent victims could not be regarded as political acts.

The French, meanwhile, had been losing clout in the organizational structure. In 1985 the post of secretary general, the day-to-day head of Interpol's 300-member staff, went to a Briton, Cmdr. Ray Kendall of Scotland Yard. He was the first non-Frenchman selected for the job since it was reestablished in 1946.

"Over the last 10 years, there has been a real internationalization taking place," Stienen said. Interpol's general counsel is Austrian; the head of the police division is Japanese; the heads of the drug and terrorism units are Americans, and the head of the fraud unit is Uruguayan. Of the three most senior jobs, the only Frenchman is the man charge of administration.

Now, Stienen said, "the French are trying to make a comeback" with Barbot's candidacy for president, a sort of chairman of the board.

But Keating, who will cast the U.S. vote when the balloting takes place in Bangkok Nov. 23, said the United States is firmly committed to Sarasin, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and scion of a wealthy Thai family.

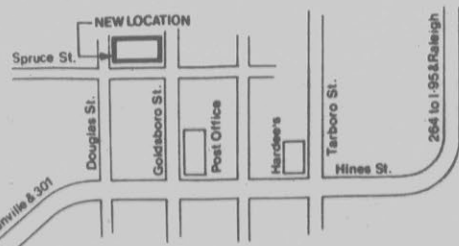

"I would say it'll be a horse race," Keating predicted. "The French are a persistent lot. And they have a lot of friends."

RIPPLES?!
BLAME THE CLEANER?..

Here's the scene. I just cleaned your carpet—did a great job too (of course!) A few hours later you notice lots of ripples developing, especially in the traffic areas.

Naturally, I get a frantic phone call (occasionally, even with a few unprintable names) demanding an immediate response to correct the problem.

Now, if I can talk you into waiting a day or so before I come running out, I usually get a timid call the next day informing me that the ripples "mysteriously" disappeared (sometimes even an apology if you were one of the name-callers!).

What Happened?... Really there's no mystery. Here's what happened... Styrene, a chemical preservative in the carpet backing's adhesive, attracts humidity, causing the adhesive to swell dramatically (similar to a dry sponge getting wet) when subjected to moisture during cleaning. Thus ripples develop. Upon drying to normal household humidity, ripples disappear... Mystery solved!

Any way to prevent the problem? Perhaps. Be sure to specify (and pay for!) a truly professional installation job when you purchase carpet from a quality retailer. The installer's knowledge and stretching procedures enable you to avoid this frustrating problem for the most part. Even with this precaution, ripples may still occur (especially with all-synthetic backings); but knowing why may save us both a battle with high blood pressure!

Don't know about you, but I could do with a lot less of that!

Doctor Says Some Young May Need Ritalin

By Mary Jo Kochakian
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Medication is not enough for these children.

For most children with Attention-Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, the drug Ritalin is essential, Dr. William Nathan says. But diagnosing the child's condition and determining the correct medication is only one aspect of successful treatment. Both the children and their families need psychotherapy, Nathan says.

"There's clear evidence from many, many studies that just giving medication alone does not give an adequate result, and therapy alone does not give an adequate result," says Nathan, who recently presented a paper on the topic at a convention of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry in Seattle.

ADHD occurs in as many as 3 percent of children, according to the academy. Its symptoms include distractibility, impulsiveness, hyperactivity and aggression. Nearly all the children with the condition are boys.

Because of their difficult behavior, children with ADHD alienate parents, peers and teachers. By the time their condition is diagnosed they have a long history 'of bad interactions with other people, and have a frustrated, hostile view of the world.'

— Dr. William Nathan

The use of Ritalin is controversial, Nathan says, but the essential issue is appropriate use. Children should be medicated only if they have the disorder, and if there are adverse reactions, it should be discontinued. It should be given on a trial basis, and definitely coupled with other therapies, he says.

"People should not just be refilling prescriptions."

Medication is needed "not just to affect behavior, not just to deal with the primary symptoms," says Nathan, who is director of children's psychiatric services at Menninger Medical Park Clinic in Topeka, Kan.

It is needed "to make these youngsters accessible to parents' interventions, to what their peers are saying," he says.

Without it, it's "tremendously difficult" to talk to a child with ADHD,

Nathan says. "They miss the boat on social feedback."

The medication is necessary to allow the child's behavior to "be tolerable enough for other people, so they will want to work with him. And that's when the hard work begins," Nathan says.

Because of their difficult behavior, children with ADHD alienate parents, peers and teachers. By the time their condition is diagnosed, they have a long history "of bad interactions with other people, and have a frustrated, hostile view of the world," Nathan says.

By using psychotherapy, doctors "are not only attempting to correct and unravel that, but also teach the child or adolescent how to listen, how to attend, how to pay closer attention to what other people are trying to tell them," Nathan says.

Because ADHD makes children so difficult, "there's a perception that's built up in parents, teachers and other kids that the child 'just doesn't care,' is mean, hateful or stubborn."

In therapy, parents learn to understand that the child "has an emotional life, and when you get through the frenzy of hyperactivity, is very lonely, very confused." These children typically do not understand how their behavior is affecting others.

"At times, therapists make use of medication without making enough attempts to engage the child and family in therapy," Nathan says. "And therapists sometimes despair a bit at being able to deal with these kids — they get into what the parents get into — that the kid is moving so fast he doesn't seem to care, is bland, inaccessible."

The therapist should "spend a lot of time untangling the distorted views parent and child have about each other," Nathan says. It is often difficult for a family to enter therapy, and realizing that in some cases it will be needed for years can be painful.

"A lot of times parents feel very guilty about having yelled at the kid, not having known how to deal with him, even though parents have made really heroic efforts," he says.

Mr. Nelson, Miss Hudson Are Wed Sunday Afternoon

Shelby Barber Hudson and Roy Benjamin Nelson were united in marriage at 3 p.m. Sunday in Grace Church in Greenville. The Rev. Ed Walker conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride's mother is Minnie Smith Barber of Route 8, Greenville; the bridegroom's father, Robert Burton Nelson of Robersonville.

The bride was given in marriage by Clyn Barber, her uncle. She wore an ivory formal gown of organza and schiffli embroidered lace. It was designed with a bateau neckline trimmed with lace, sequins and pearls and English net off the shoulders. The yoke was accented with schiffli lace. The Elizabethan embroidered alenon lace sleeves were trimmed with satin ribbon, pearls and sequins. The embroidered lace bodice was accented with sequins and pearls. The A-line skirt had a ruffled flounce hemline and was trimmed with lace cascading ruffles accenting the semi-cathedral train. She wore an imported ivory bridal hat overlaid in stimulated chantilly lace etched with pearls and a side turned-up brim accented with silk flowers. A Dior bow and streamers accented the back of the hat. She carried a bouquet of roses, blushed carnations and astromelias.

The best man was Fred Nelson of Robersonville, brother of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor was Nicole Dale Briley, daughter of the bride. She wore a daphne rose taffeta gown with gathered shirred sleeves. The close-fitting bodice had a scooped neckline. The back was scooped low and accented with a bow. It had a basque waist and a full skirt. She wore a spray of daphne rose flowers and pearls in her hair. She carried a bouquet of soft sprays of heather, blushing lilies and pink carnations tied with lace and satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Lois Garrison, Jean Savage and Rose Skinner, all of Greenville. They were dressed similarly to the maid of honor.

The flower girl was Laura Hagwood, niece of the bridegroom, of Williamston. She wore a sheer daphne rose gown styled with a jewel neckline and an attached lace capelet. It had a slightly raised waist with a satin bow trim, long sheer sleeves, and a full skirt with a ruffled lace hem. She wore a wreath of daphne rose flowers in her hair. She carried a basket of pink flower petals.

The ring bearer was Justin Hagwood, nephew of the bridegroom, also of Williamston.

Ushers were Joe Nelson of Salisbury, brother of the bridegroom; Jimmy Hagwood, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and R.S. Brown of Oak City.

Music was provided by Susan Forlines, organist and vocalist, and Jon Forlines, Nikki Briley and Denise Relford, vocalists. Peggy Peaden directed the wedding. Sandra Pittman presided at the register.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Linda Messer greeted guests.

An after-rehearsal lunch was given by the bridegroom's brothers and sisters at the First Baptist Church in Robersonville. After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will live in Greenville.

MRS. NELSON

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Pitt Community College and East Carolina University. She is employed by the Greenville Utilities Commission. The bridegroom is a graduate of Robersonville High School and Martin Community College. He is employed by Rivers and Associates of Greenville.

Pack-Rat Mother Breeds Filth, Bugs In Her Home

Dear Abby: Please help me. My mother loves to sew, and she has enough fabric stored in her house to open a fabric store. She cannot resist a bargain. She could sew 24 hours a day for the next 100 years and not run out of fabric. She has a three-bedroom home, but sleeps on the living room couch because every bed in the house is piled high with fabric. Her attic is full, there is fabric behind the couch and in bags in the basement!

The house she lives in is owned by her elderly mother who also lives there. Two years ago, Grandma became ill, so Mom had to set up a bedroom for her in the dining room. I went over there last week and I was shocked. Now they have cockroaches! Grandma says they crawl on her while she is sleeping. (I saw them crawling around the laundry room.) Mom used to have an exterminator come regularly, but he doesn't come anymore. I think he told Mom there was nothing he could do until she cleaned up the mess. Abby, I've tried to help her clean up; I've built shelves in every room for her to store things on, and I've tried to reason with her to stop buying things she doesn't need, but she doesn't listen.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

I can't stand seeing Grandma living like this. I don't have room to take her in myself, and I couldn't care for her during the day because I work. My sister now cares for Grandma during the day and gets her on the van for dialysis three times a week. Abby, you are our last resort! — Bugged in Allentown, PA.

Dear Bugged: Your mother's compulsive buying is bad enough, but nonchalantly living in a roach-infested house could indicate a more serious problem. Please consider having your mother physically and psychiatrically examined — for her sake as well as Grandma's.

Meanwhile, telephone your local fire department and/or department of public health, tell them your problem and ask them to send an inspector over to "investigate" the suspected violations of safety and health. They will act on it and give your mother a warning and citation and a short period of time to clean up her act.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HOGS: Market 25 to 50 cents higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 35.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadborn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 35.25; Wilson 35.50. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 25.00; Wallace 26.00; Spivey's Corner 26.50; Rowland 26.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 51.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds, 98 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a final weighted average of 52.90 cents. The market is about steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate to mostly good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 2,028,000, compared to 2,024,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 4 to 5 cents lower at mostly 2.75-2.88 in East and mostly 2.90-3.00 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 10 to 12 cents lower at mostly 7.38-7.56 1/2 in East and mostly 7.35-7.38 in the Piedmont; wheat 3.72-3.81. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 96 to 98 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today, steady after last week's slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 6.05 to 2,073.08 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers slightly outnumbered losers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 461 up, 424 down and 517 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19.19 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

"Our hope is," Eakin said, "to continue to provide access" for as many North Carolina residents as possible, and "at the same time, be sure we provide opportunity to the most able students as we look at the admissions process."

Bloodworth said "the only thing that anyone can say is that our preliminary analysis of SAT scores over the past several years suggests that the decline this year is not a significant trend."

"We've been stable for the past two years," Bloodworth said. Before that there was an increase.

Even with "this small decline," according to Bloodworth, the average is higher than 3 years ago.

"It moves up and down and up..."

According to the figures released Friday, freshmen at UNC-Chapel Hill posted the highest SAT average, with in-state students averaging 1,084 (1,083 last year) and out-of-state students averaging 1,198 (1,179 in 1987). Students at N.C. State University in Raleigh had the second highest average system-wide, with in-state students averaging 1,047 (1,042 in 1987) and out-of-state students averaging 1,075 (1,056 a year ago).

The best possible score on the SAT is 1,600.

ject a nominee, as it did last year with Bork.

"I think the heavy betting is that he is going to appoint some moderate Republican with virtually impeccable credentials," said David O'Brien, a University of Virginia professor of government and a Supreme Court expert.

Such a moderate is unlikely to provoke the outrage that undercut the Bork nomination, according to Senate aides. Bush, in making his first appointment, may choose to avoid controversy. Otherwise, Kropp said, "He is going to get hammered from the left and the right."

Some conservatives say they are prepared to be disappointed by Bush, while others are confident that he will continue Reagan's mandate, especially in the 200 seats in lower federal courts he is expected to fill.

"Giving right-wing Republicans a judge is a very easy way to placate them, to pay them back, especially if his government picks are not pleasing to them," said Nan Aron, executive director of the Alliance for Justice, a research and lobbying group that has been strongly critical of Reagan's appointments.

"Bush has, without any reservations, endorsed Reagan's judicial appointments," said Charles Cooper, a former top Department of Justice official. Cooper, who was involved in the selection of Reagan judges, said they would be prime candidates for Bush to choose from.

There are no vacancies on the nine-member court, where appointments are for life. And barring any sudden health crisis, no justice is likely to retire before late June when the current term ends.

The three oldest justices have voting patterns and fragile health in common. All three were hospitalized in the summer of 1987. Brennan had a mild stroke in 1979 and a year later had a cancerous growth removed from his vocal cords. Last year, he was treated for an enlarged prostate. In June, he suffered a head injury when he fell at home and took several months to recover his usual vigor. Brennan works out each morning on his exercise bike. Among those who know Brennan, he is considered likely to retire if he becomes unable to do his job.

Blackmun recovered from prostate cancer surgery 11 years ago and was treated for a recurrence in 1987. He has said that he was concerned that a Bush justice would vote to vitiate Roe vs. Wade, the decision legalizing abortion that he authored in 1973. Because of that, he is considered unlikely to resign.

Marshall, who had a heart attack in 1978 and uses a pacemaker, is likely to stay on the court until he dies, or at least until the White House is occupied by a president more sympathetic to his views. Marshall has said that he will "quit at the end of his term." That, the aging justice says with a smile, "is life."

Parolee Suspected

The first body was discovered Friday and was followed by the unearthing of two more bodies Saturday and two others Sunday.

After uncovering the fifth body, police arrested John McCauley, 59, on suspicion of being an accessory to the homicides. McCauley, a resident at the boardinghouse, was arrested after he gave conflicting information, Enloe said.

"We do not believe that this could have been done solely by herself," Enloe said. "We know she's had people help her dig the holes."

Police were unable to determine the identities of the victims or how they died because four of the bodies were wrapped in cloth or plastic, investigators said. They were able to determine the sex of only the first body, "wrapped like a mummy" and described as a gray-haired woman.

The bodies, all found in the fetal position, showed no signs of trauma, according to police, who said autopsies would be performed.

Enloe said evidence was discovered in the graves linking Puento to the deaths, but he declined to elaborate.

PLO Draft Prepared

He praised the council for what he called its "democratic spirit" and criticized opponents of the latest Palestinian moves towards peace without mentioning any specific names or groups as "swimmers against the current of history." The Radio Monte Carlo interview was monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

The independence declaration, PLO spokesman Ahmed Abdul-Rahman and other officials said, already has been drafted. Another draft document proposes the formation of a provisional government to negotiate peace.

In closed-door committee meetings, there had been strong opposition to Resolution 242 from the PLO's Marxist-oriented groups, particularly George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

But Habash's faction, the second-largest of the eight groups comprising the PLO, agreed Sunday to go "with the rule of the majority," a spokesman said.

Omar Koteish, a member of the Marxist front's politburo, said: "We will voice reservations. Resolution 242 is inadequate and does not fulfill our aspirations for an independent state. But we will not withdraw from the conference if the majority votes for it."

Arafat had hoped for a consensus on Resolution 242 to avert further splits within his guerrilla movement and in the national council, which first assembled in 1964.

President Reagan, asked if he was pleased with the PLO leaders' action, said Sunday in Washington, "We're still looking at that; that's all I can say."

In another development, Abul Abbas, the Palestinian who masterminded the 1985 hijacking of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro, made light of the killing of New Yorker Leon Klinghoffer during the ordeal, the New York Times reported in today's editions.

Klinghoffer, a 69-year-old wheelchair-bound passenger, was shot and pushed overboard.

"Maybe he was trying to swim for it," the Times quoted Abbas as telling reporters outside the hall where the council is meeting. Abbas compared the hijacking to driving a car and said "You have an accident on the way. Accidents happen."

Arafat is hoping political moderation coupled with increasing sympathy for the Palestinian cause brought on by the Palestinian uprising will eventually lead to an international peace conference on the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The conflict in the occupied territories has left at least 311 Palestinians and 11 Israelis dead since it began Dec. 8.

The national council's acceptance of Resolution 242 would meet one of the conditions for U.S. recognition of the PLO.

Previously, the PLO had explicitly rejected Resolution 242, which calls for Israel's withdrawal from territories occupied in 1967 and for the right of all states in the region to live in peace within secure and recognized borders — an implicit recognition of Israel.

Escapee

HAZELWOOD, N.C. (AP) — A Swannanoa man who pleaded guilty last year to fatally stabbing a Buncombe County man escaped from the Haywood Correctional Center on Sunday, authorities say.

Cecil Ray Surret, 27, left the prison unit about 9 a.m. Sunday on a six-hour community volunteer pass, but did not return as promised, according to Sgt. Matthew Jones of the Haywood Correctional Center.

Surret was charged with murder in connection with the death of Howard Edward Effler on March 1, 1987.

"on a case-by-case basis."

"The father has fundamental rights and interests in his unborn child which should be judicially considered, on the facts of this case, along with the rights and interests of his wife in aborting their child," lawyers for Conn argued.

The appeal, which did not directly attack the court's previous abortion decisions, said consideration of a husband's objections is justified by "the traditional balancing approved by this court where competing rights collide."

Lawyers for Mrs. Conn called the appeal "entirely without merit."

"Every appellate court to consider the issue has held that a man does not have the right to a court order enjoining a woman from exercising her abortion right," they said. "This has been true in cases where the man seeking the court order was the woman's husband."

The case is Conn vs. Conn, 88-347.

Fiesta Hoping For Top Matchup

Bowl Hoping To Get Undefeated Foes Notre Dame And West Virginia Together

By Herschel Nissenson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the second time in three years, the Fiesta Bowl has lined up what it hopes will be a national championship game.

On Jan. 2, No. 1 Notre Dame will play No. 4 West Virginia at Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, Ariz.

"It's done," a high-ranking member of the Fiesta Bowl selection committee told the Associated Press.

That scenario, of course, is just what the other bowls are hoping for.

Like the Rose Bowl, which will have the winner of next Saturday's Pac-10 showdown between Southern Cal and No. 6 UCLA against No. 13 Michigan, the Big Ten champion.

Or the Orange Bowl, which will pair third-ranked Miami with the winner of Saturday's Big Eight shootout between No. 7 Nebraska and No. 8 Oklahoma. Miami won the 1987 national championship by defeating Oklahoma 20-14 in the Orange Bowl.

Or the Sugar and Cotton Bowls, one of which will have No. 5 Florida State, depending on the USC-UCLA game. If USC wins, UCLA will play No. 11 Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl. If UCLA wins, USC will meet the Southeastern Conference champion, either No. 9 Auburn or No. 12 LSU, in the Sugar Bowl. Florida State will go to whichever of those bowls does not get the Pac-10 runner-up.

There was a rumor on Sunday which proved to be unfounded that West Virginia had to beat Syracuse to get a Fiesta Bowl bid.

West Virginia athletic director Fred Schaus said Saturday following the Mountaineers' 35-25 victory over Rutgers that "we want a definite commitment."

The Fiesta Bowl decided to give him one, even though the official invitation can not be extended until next Saturday.

Course Strikes Back At Nabisco

New Twist On An Old Adage

Monday Notes:

Sometimes, time flies even when you're not having fun. This football season has been a mixed bag for sports fans in the area. There hasn't been much for the Pirate and Tar Heel fans to cheer about, while the Blue Devil, Wolfpack and Deacon fans have had quite a bit to boost their morale.

On the high school scene, Rose High's fans were rolling right along until Friday night when Pine Forest threw another monkey wrench into the cog.

Ayden-Grifton and North Pitt both are coming back to fight another day, but with the competition getting tougher and injuries telling their tale, one must wonder how long they can keep going.

North Pitt, of course, has the unenviable task (coaches prefer to call it a challenge) of facing unbeaten and top-ranked Hertford County, a 3-A team disguised as a 2-A this year. The Bears will field twice as many numbers as do the Panthers, but (as coaches are wont to say) they can only put 11 at a time on the field.

Ayden-Grifton, after blitzing Wake Forest-Rolesville last Friday, must go against strong Clayton, a team which only to 4-A powerhouse Garner. Both teams are perennial powers in their respective conferences, and, if Ayden-Grifton can continue to get the type of performances it got this past Friday, it could be a whale of a game.

For the other four high school teams that made the playoffs, Friday proved to be the final stop. Rose, Washington, Greene Central and Jamesville all made early exits from the playoffs.

Rose and Washington both met similar fates. Both took early two touchdown leads in their games, only to allow their opposition, Pine Forest and Southern Durham, respectively, to rally and pull out the victories. Greene Central and Jamesville, up against stronger teams, were simply overwhelmed.

Still, nothing can be taken away from any of these teams. They all had good seasons. Rose, for the second straight year, had a perfect regular season. The Rampants will carry a 21-regular season winning streak into their opener next year.

Next year is a banner year among the high schools, also. It's the new realignment year, with teams moving hither and yon. In our area, several conference changes will be noted.

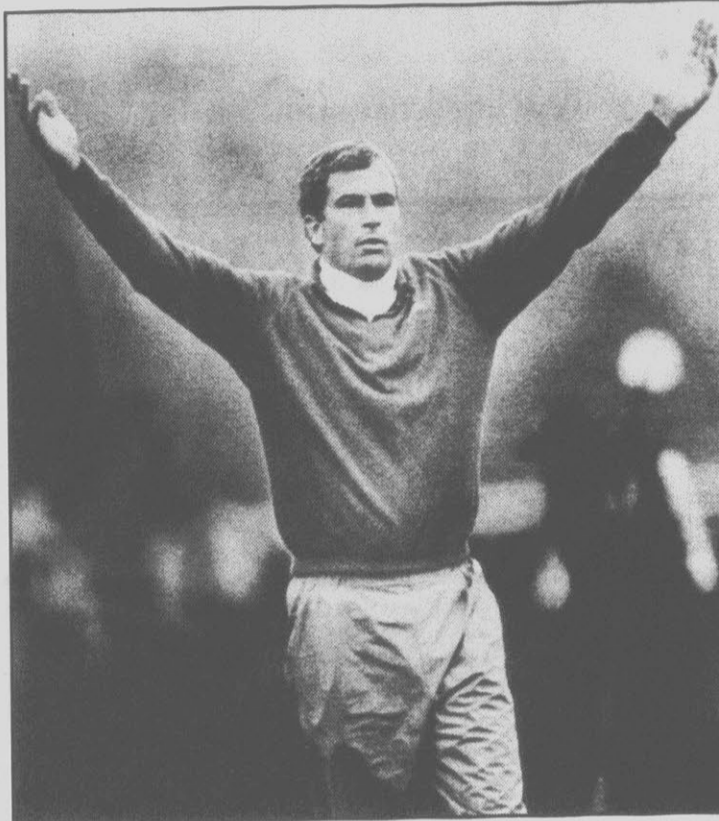

In the Big East 4-A, the league will shrink from eight to seven as Wilson Beddingfield moves down to 3-A and joins the Capital Area conference. In the Coastal 3-A, East Carteret drops to 2-A and Washington has been reassigned to the Tar Roanoke 3-A. Pender County and White Oak will replace them. (Washington is still appealing its move, wishing to remain in the Coastal. That decision will come in early December.)

Other changes will affect the Eastern Plains and Northeastern 2-As, and the Tobacco Belt 1-A.

For the first time in ages, also, the Big East is moving around its schedule. Rose will no longer open with both Northern Nash and Rocky Mount. Instead, the Rocky Mount game will be the season-ender. With the rivalry that has come about between the two schools, this could be the biggest game of the year for both — especially if both are still in the hunt for the league title — as they usually are.

There will be changes on the college level too. Already known is the fact

Curtis Strange seeks a ruling on ball placement

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — After three days of playing paty to the world's finest golfers, the real Pebble Beach took its revenge.

The famed old course on the Monterey Peninsula extracted its toll in wind and rain and cold and delays. The top 30 money-winners for the year could produce only one score as good as par and none better.

And, with the dreadful conditions so often encountered in the tournament still called, incorrectly, "the Crosby," the Pebble Beach Golf Links and "Crosby weather" set up a day-late finish to golf's richest event.

Tom Kite and Curtis Strange, after waiting out a one hour, 27 minute delay, wound up the regulation 72 holes of the Nabisco Championships in a tie for the top. The delay pushed the tournament finish back to near-darkness and a Sunday playoff was not possible.

So they were scheduled to start a sudden death playoff at 9 a.m., PST, today in the season-ending event on the PGA Tour.

"I don't think it will last long," Strange said of the most expensive playoff in golf's history.

The winner will receive a total of $535,000. If Strange loses, he collects $322,000. If Kite loses, he'll receive $256,000. The difference involves a bonus pool which is paid on their final position on the money-winning list.

No matter which one wins, he'll be the year's leading money-winner and the first man to surpass $1 million in single-season earnings on the PGA Tour. For Kite, it could be $1,039,405. For Strange, it could be $1,147,644.

And there's another, different incentive for each of them in the event that offered a total of $3 million in individual prize money.

For Strange, the current U.S. Open champion, a victory would gain him Player of the Year honors. If he does not win, Sandy Lyle of Scotland takes it.

For Kite, there's a last-gasp chance to extend his string of at least one victory in each of the last seven seasons, the longest active winning streak on the Tour.

He gave himself a chance to lengthen it with a 6-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole Sunday, finishing off a round of par-72 that ranked as the best of the day.

Lions' Owner Axes Darryl Rogers

Darryl Rogers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PONTIAC, Mich. — Detroit Lions owner William Clay Ford has fired Coach Darryl Rogers, who led the team to a 2-9 record this season and a tie for last place in the NFC Central Division, sources said today.

Rogers, 53, was fired after the Lions' 23-20 loss Sunday to the visiting Tampa Bay Buccaneers and was replaced temporarily by defensive coordinator Wayne Fontes, said the sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Rogers, in his fourth season with the Lions, has a record of 18-40.

Reached at his home late Sunday, Rogers denied he had been fired. "Not that I know of," he said.

Bill Keenist, the Lions public relations director, said he couldn't confirm the report.

But the sources said formal announcement of the move would be made at the team's regular weekly news conference at noon Monday.

Fontes, 48, is in his fourth year with the Lions and 13th in the NFL. He spent nine years with Tampa Bay under John McKay.

This marks only the second time that Ford, an heir to the Ford Motor Co. fortune, has fired a head coach before the end of a season since assuming sole control of the team in 1963.

In 1976, Ford axed Rick Forzano after a 1-3 start and replaced him with Tommy Hudspeth. The team finished that season 6-8 and was 6-8 in 1977. That was enough to get Hudspeth fired and bring on Monte Clark who lasted until Rogers was hired.

Miami To Test Buffalo

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — The Buffalo Bills, with the best record in the NFL and a cushy lead in the AFC East, may need football's favorite cliché to motivate them tonight against the Miami Dolphins.

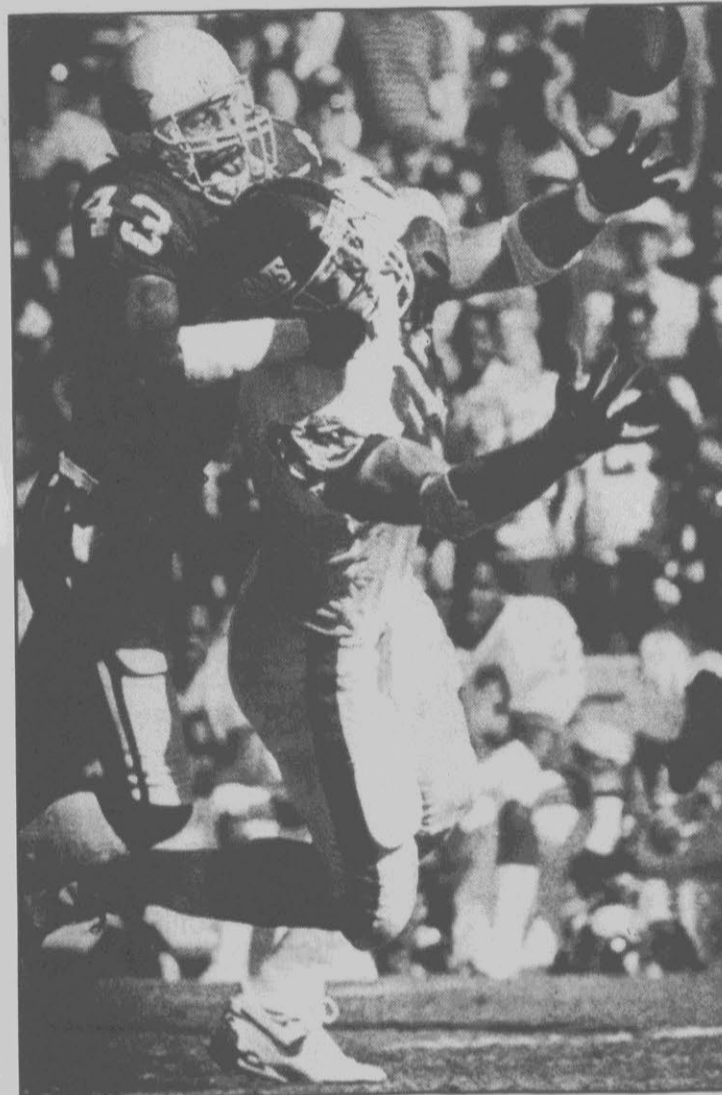

"I know there are a million ways to say, 'Play 'em one at a time,' and you get tired of hearing that," Buffalo coach Marv Levy said. "But it's easy to say and hard to do."

The Bills have done it lately, winning five straight to improve their record to 9-1. They lead the division by 3½ games over second place Indianapolis and New England.

"They're playing the best football in the National Football League right now," Miami coach Don Shula said.

The Dolphins, who lost early this season at Buffalo, 9-6, are 0-4 against AFC East rivals and 5-5 overall. They're in danger of missing the playoffs for the third straight year. But they're 34-10-1 against the Bills.

The Dolphins' fortunes have risen and fallen with their defense, which provided key turnovers and sacks when the team won three straight earlier this season. But there have been few big plays lately, and Miami has given up 107 points in its last four games.

Lomax Keys The Win, But Leaves With Late Injury

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Phoenix reached the top of the NFC East, but if the Cardinals stay there, it probably will be without Neil Lomax.

Lomax threw for 353 yards and two touchdowns Sunday but injured his left knee in the fourth quarter as Phoenix beat New York 24-17 Sunday and tied the Giants for first place.

"The doctors tell me it's a partial tear of the ligament," Lomax said. "I've been told to keep the knee elevated for the next 10 days and I might be out anywhere from three to four weeks."

Lomax, who already has had problems this season with an arthritic left hip, twisted his knee on a 44-yard touchdown pass to Roy Green with 13:16 left that put Phoenix ahead 21-7.

Cliff Stoudt came in for Phoenix, 7-4, which won its third straight.

"Cliff can do the job if I'm not in there," said Lomax, who completed 23 of 35 passes. "We deserve to be in first place. We've beaten a lot of good football teams. We beat a great team today."

In other games, Chicago beat Washington 34-14, Kansas City beat Cincinnati 31-28, Indianapolis beat Green Bay 20-13, New England beat the New York Jets 14-13, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 27-26, San Diego beat Atlanta 10-7, Tampa Bay beat Detroit 23-20, the Los Angeles Raiders beat San Francisco 9-3, New Orleans beat the Los Angeles Rams 14-10, Denver beat Cleveland 30-7, Seattle beat Houston 27-24 and Minnesota beat Dallas 43-3. Buffalo is at Miami tonight.

Cardinals 24, Giants 17

New York closed to within 21-14 on Ottis Anderson's 1-yard run with 8:15 remaining, but Al Del Greco kicked a 28-yard field goal with 4:03 left.

(See Cards, B-3)

"They made the plays they had to," Giants coach Bill Parcells said. "Green hurt us. He's their biggest weapon. He's a game-breaker."

Paul McFadden's 40-yard field goal with 1:50 to play cut the deficit to a touchdown but New York couldn't get the ball back.

Bears 31, Redskins 14

Mike Tomczak and Matt Suhay ran for first-half touchdowns as Chicago, 9-2, took a 20-0 halftime lead in coach Mike Ditka's return to the sidelines following a heart attack 11 days ago.

"I admit I got a little tired in the first half. I think it was the sun and the sweater," said Ditka, who left the actual coaching to Vince Tobin. "I felt terrific in the second half."

"He doesn't have to stand up and coach — he has a tremendous presence," Bears safety Dave Duerson said.

Doug Williams completed 6 of 19 passes for 68 yards for Washington, 6-5, before leaving early in the third quarter. Mark Rypien came in and threw two touchdown passes but was intercepted four times.

Chiefs 31, Bengals 28

Albert Lewis blocked a punt and recovered a fumble in the final six minutes as Kansas City, 2-9-1, overcame a 28-19 deficit. The Chiefs won on Nick Lowery's fifth field goal, a 39-yarder with two seconds left.

Lewis blocked a punt out of the end zone to pull the Chiefs to within 28-21 with 6:06 remaining. After Christian Okoye's 1-yard run tied the score 28-28, Lewis recovered a fumble by Cincinnati's Marc Logan on the kickoff at the Bengals' 28.

Cincinnati, 8-3, took a 28-16 lead in the third quarter on Stanford Jennings' club record 98-yard kickoff return.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Pitt Community College's Paladins went down to their second straight basketball loss in a row Saturday night, bowing to Lawson State Community College, 83-68.

Pitt gained an early lead in the game, taking a 6-2 edge, but Lawson came back to score the next six and take an 8-6 lead. Pitt hung with them and tied the game at 15-15 with 11:55 to play, but the Cougars pulled back out and Pitt never caught up again.

Lawson built its lead to 42-31 by halftime and never fell below 10 the rest of the way. The Cougars took a 48-31 lead before Pitt could get going again, and the two played evenly after that.

In addition to Congleton's 20, Ricky Farrow added 17, Otis Barnes, 11, and Johnson, 10, for the Paladins. Herbert Noland added 10 for Lawson State. Pitt, now 0-2, travels to Chowan on Tuesday.

ECU Lady Pirates Finish Sixth

WASHINGTON, D.C. — East Carolina's Lady Pirates finished sixth in the Colonial Athletic Association Volleyball Tournament for the fourth consecutive year this weekend.

The Lady Pirates lost out in the first round to third-seeded George Mason. ECU won the opening game of the match, 15-12, breaking an 11-game losing streak, but then fell in the next three games, 15-13, 15-2, 15-6.

Then, in the game for fifth place, the Lady Pirates bowed to American in a hard-fought match, 15-13, 15-13, 13-15, 8-15, 15-8.

"This was the best play we've seen in our players all year long," Coach Judy Kirkpatrick said. "Everyone was really doing their job and they were playing as a team. It was a tough loss because we wanted to come up in the conference standings and to accomplish something this year."

"I have said all year that the bottom four teams of the CAA were basically equal, and I think with our play here this weekend that it's still true," the coach said. "Our team played great and I'm really proud of them."

Scott's 3-Pointer Lifts Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Sophomore Dennis Scott hit a 3-point goal with one second remaining Sunday night to lift Georgia Tech to a 77-74 exhibition basketball victory over the Yugoslavian national team.

The Yugoslavians, who won the Silver Medal at the 1988 Olympic Games, had tied it at 74-74 on a 3-point goal by Arijan Komazec with 37 seconds left.

Scott led Tech with 23 points, hitting seven of 12 3-point goals. Tom Hammonds added 21 points and Brian Oliver had 12.

Dzevad Alihodzic led the Yugoslavians with 16 points. Nebojsa Ilic had 12.

Marathon Oil Tops Demon Deacons, 86-72

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Todd May scored 18 points and lead four players in double figures as Marathon Oil defeated Wake Forest 86-72 in exhibition basketball on Saturday night.

Manning Greeted With Boos, Cheers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Danny Manning was welcomed to the NBA with mixed boos and cheers — and $10.5 million over five years from the Los Angeles Clippers.

The 6-foot-10 forward officially ended his holdout Saturday when he signed his contract, then scored 12 points in a 138-127 overtime victory over the Phoenix Suns in the Clippers' home opener.

Manning, the NBA's top draft pick who missed the entire preseason and four regular-season road games, entered Saturday's contest with 4:35 left in the first quarter and the Clippers leading 15-14. About a minute and half later, they led 23-16 after Manning assisted on a fast-break slam dunk by Ken Norman.

Manning scored 12 points in 27 minutes on 6-of-10 shooting. He missed his three free throws, had four rebounds, two assists, two turnovers and one blocked shot.

"I wasn't too pleased with my offense, I think I missed some shots I usually hit," Manning said Sunday. "I was kind of frustrated with that, but I felt I came out and played some good defense."

His first NBA points came on a 12-footer in the lane with 37 seconds left in the second quarter toward the end of a 17-6 run that gave the Clippers a 54-44 halftime lead.

"I was just happy to come in and contribute. It feels good to be out there playing again," Manning said. "Naturally nobody likes to just sit and watch, especially when it is that close."

The crowd of 13,826 at the Sports Arena greeted him with mixed boos and cheers when he was introduced before the game.

Manning said the partially sour response didn't bother him. "Everyone is entitled to their own opinion, and I have to do what's best for Danny Manning."

Manning had not played since he was held scoreless against the Soviet Union in the semifinals of the Olymppics in September. He led Kansas to the NCAA title with a 20.1 average last spring and was named the College Player of the Year.

In a pre-game press conference, Manning admitted he was nervous about beginning his NBA career.

"I haven't felt like this since I was a freshman getting ready to play my first (college) game," Manning said.

When asked if he was nervous, Manning, dressed in a Clippers warmup suit, said: "Yes, that's why my hands are in my pockets. My hands are clammy."

He might have thought he was back at the Kansas, though, when he said: "Hopefully we can go out and play 40 minutes of good basketball for you." College games are 40 minutes long while NBA games are 48 minutes.

"Coach (Gene) Shue is going to take his time and be patient with me ... and hopefully I can move along a little faster than people expect," Manning said.

The Clippers and Manning's agent, Ron Grinker of Cincinnati, negotiated by telephone Friday and agreed in principle to the contract.

Manning had been staying with Grinker, but said he went to visit a friend in Toledo, Ohio, and didn't find out about the deal until late Friday night. He missed his flight to Cincinnati Saturday morning and had to catch up with Grinker in Los Angeles.

The agreement was reached after the Clippers, who had wanted to defer 30 percent of Manning's salary, agreed to an all-cash deal.

"There was a lot of stubbornness on both sides," said Manning, who will make $1.5 million this year. But both Manning and Clippers general manager Elgin Baylor said there were no bad feelings.

Player Of The Week

Ayden-Grifton High School fullback Aaron Harper is awarded player of the week honors this week for his performance in the Chargers' 33-7 win over Wake Forest-Rolesville in the first round of the state 2-A football playoffs.

Harper, who was nursing an injured toe, scored three touchdowns and ran for 131 yards on 20 carries.

Harper, who had rushed for 713 yards during the regular season, took control of the Charger backfield in the game in the absence of injured tailback Tony Reeves, who led the team in rushing in the regular season with 1,179 yards.

After falling behind Wake Forest 7-0, Harper recorded touchdown runs of 1 and 4 yards to put the Chargers in the lead for good. He also added a 10-yard scoring run later.

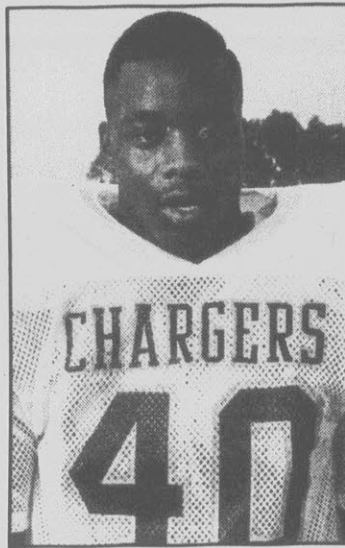

Prep Honor Roll

- North Pitt High School quarterback Billy Hardison was in on all four North Pitt touchdowns in the Panthers' 28-7 win over Edenton-Holmes in the first round of the state 2-A playoffs. Hardison rushed for a pair of scores and passed for more.

- Hardison's two touchdown passes came in the final 1:10 of the first half as he hit William Moring with a 21-yard scoring pass and, on the final play of the half, and also connected with Michael Daniels for a 27-yard touchdown.

- Ayden-Grifton halfback Ricardo Gamble, filling in for injured starter Tony Reeves, rushed for 110 yards on 17 carries to help guide the Chargers to a 33-7 win over Wake Forest-Rolesville Friday night.

- North Pitt linebacker Freddie Best recorded three sacks, recovered a fumble and caused a fumble in the Panthers' 28-7 win over Edenton-Holmes Friday night. The fumble Best caused led to a Panther touchdown, while one of his sacks came on a fourth-down play and helped set up another score.

- Rose High School tailback Tim Moore rushed for 109 yards and two touchdowns on 30 carries in the Rampants' 21-13 loss to Fayetteville Pine Forest in the state 4-A playoffs Friday night. Moore finished the season with 1,240 yards rushing and 15 touchdowns.

- Greene Central quarterback Kris Radford completed 10-19 passes for 186 yards and two touchdowns in the Rams' 55-30 loss to Hertford County in a 2-A playoff action Friday night. Radford's had TD passes of 62 and 43 yards respectively.

- Greene Central fullback John Dixon rushed for 133 yards on 13 carries Friday in the Rams' 55-30 loss to top-ranked Hertford County in the state 2-A playoffs.

that Art Baker will not be returning as East Carolina's head coach. The new coach at ECU is expected to be named around Dec. 1, about three weeks from now.

There are recurring rumors that Steve Spurrier may be gone from Duke, too. The rumor mill in Florida has Galen Hall out at the University of Florida, and Spurrier, a Florida graduate, replacing him. Only time will tell.

Cards Tied For 1st Place After Beating Giants

Colts 20, Packers 13
Chris Chandler threw touchdown passes of 24 yards to Mark Boyer and four yards to Matt Bouza, both after Green Bay fumbles, and Harvey Armstrong batted down Don Majkowski's pass on the final play as the Colts won their fifth straight.

Green Bay, 2-9, pulled to within 20-13 with 42 seconds left on Majkowski's 3-yard pass to Aubrey Matthews, the Packers' first touchdown in 13 quarters. Green Bay then recovered an onside kick at the Colts' 49 and moved to the 4.

Indianapolis is 6-5.

Patriots 14, Jets 13
Doug Flutie threw a 19-yard touchdown to Stanley Morgan on the second play of the second half to give New England a 7-3 lead after Larry McGrew intercepted a Ken O'Brien pass.

John Stephens made it 14-6 when he scored on a 3-yard sweep with 6:48 remaining to cap a 58-yard, 10-play drive. New York, 5-5-1, made it close on Freeman McNeil's 6-yard touchdown run with 2:06 left. New England, 6-5, won its first road game this year in five tries.

Eagles 27, Steelers 26
Philadelphia's Luis Zendejas kicked an 18-yard field goal with 1:15 left as Pittsburgh, 2-9, lost for the ninth time in 10 games.

Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham ran 12 and 7 yards for touchdowns on broken plays, then passed 41 yards to Cris Carter to set up the game-winning field goal.

Chargers 10, Falcons 7
Rod Bernstine ran 57 yards with a short pass from Mark Vlasic to set up Barry Redden's 5-yard touchdown run with 4:32 to play that gave the Chargers a 10-point lead.

San Diego, 3-8, snapped a six-game losing streak. Atlanta, 3-8, had won two straight.

Bucs 23, Lions 20
Donald Igbewuikie kicked a 52-yard field goal with 10 seconds remaining as Tampa Bay, 3-8, crawled out of the NFC Central basement. Detroit and Green Bay, each 2-9, replaced the Bucs.

Lars Tate scored on a 5-yard run and Igbewuikie, who also had a 23-yarder in the second quarter, kicked a 22-yard field goal, putting the Bucs ahead 20-13 with 2:10 remaining. The Lions went 70 yards in seven plays and tied the score 20-20 on a 19-yard pass from Rusty Hilger to Garry James with 45 seconds remaining.

Raiders 9, 49ers 3
Chris Bahr kicked field goals of 45, 50 and 19 yards as Los Angeles, 6-5, kept pace with Denver and Seattle in the battle for first in the AFC West.

San Francisco, also 6-5, trails New Orleans by two games and the Los Angeles Rams by a game in the NFC West. Mike Cofer kicked a 44-yard field goal in the second quarter for the 49ers' only points.

Saints 14, Rams 10
Bobby Hebert completed 22 of 37 passes for 249 yards as New Orleans, 8-3, took over first in the NFC West. Gene Atkins sealed the victory when he intercepted Jim Everett's pass in the end zone with 50 seconds remaining.

Broncos 30, Browns 7
John Elway threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Orson Mobley and a 5-yarder to Steve Sewell as Denver, 6-5, took a 30-0 halftime lead and beat Cleveland for the 10th straight time.

Gerald Willhite ran for a 1-yard touchdown and Rich Karlis kicked three field goals. Earnest Byner scored on a 2-yard run for Cleveland, 6-5, which turned the ball over four times in the first half.

Seahawks 27, Oilers 24
Norm Johnson kicked a 46-yard field goal with one second left and Dave Krieg, who had missed seven weeks with a separated shoulder, completed 14 of 26 passes for 188 yards for Seattle.

Vikings 43, Cowboys 3
Wade Wilson threw three touchdown passes as Dallas, 2-9, lost its seventh straight and suffered the fourth-biggest defeat in its 29-year history.

Free Agent Info Bank Is Set Up

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Major League baseball teams are exchanging information on offers to free agents through an "information bank" set up by the owners' Player Relations Committee.

The PRC established guidelines for the information bank in a 14-page memorandum distributed to clubs in the final week of the season. The information bank is an attempt to allow teams to voluntarily exchange information in a manner allowed by baseball's collective bargaining agreement.

Clubs were found guilty of collusion by arbitrator George Nicolau after exchanging information directly between the 1986 and 1987 seasons. "The position of the clubs is that we have a right to share information," said Louis Melendez, associate counsel of the PRC. "Just like the agents share information, we feel we have the same right."

Arbitrator Thomas Roberts found clubs guilty in the Collusion I case, covering 1985 free agents, and Nicolau found clubs guilty in the Collusion II case, covering 1986 free agents. Nicolau currently is hearing the Collusion III case, which covers 1987 free agents.

"We operated the information bank last year and it is probably the core issue in the third free-agent matter," Melendez said Saturday. "The guidelines are basically an effort by the PRC to memorialize how the information bank would operate."

Under the information bank, a team making a deposit tells the PRC what offers it has made. A team making a withdrawal finds out what teams have made offers to players. Participation in voluntary and Melendez estimated that 12 to 15 teams were using it.

The Major League Baseball Players Association said it learned of the information bank last month and asked Nicolau to stop it. On Wednesday, the arbitrator refused, saying he would not rule on the matter until he rules in the Collusion III, which probably will be decided late in 1989. But he did say the union had the right to all information on file with the information bank.

Donald Fehr, executive director of the union, said he had not decided whether the union would claim the information bank is collusive. "What we said was that given the conduct of the clubs in 1985 and 1986, in order to restore a competitive marketplace, they should not be allowed to exchange information," he said.

Fehr then compared the situation to that of two people trying to buy a house and telling each other what they were offering. "Your job is to close the deal," he said, "not to give somebody else the opportunity."

Ditka Makes His Return 11 Days After Heart Attack

WASHINGTON — With Mike Ditka defying medical odds by returning to the sidelines just 11 days after a mild heart attack, the Bears decided it was best not to make the odds any greater for their coach.

For the most part they did, playing their best game of the season, a 34-14 rout of the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins Sunday that allowed Ditka to spend most of the day standing calmly on the sidelines with his arms folded.

"It was one of those times you don't want him screaming," said Mike Singletary, Chicago's defensive captain. "You know that getting him excited was the last thing he wanted."

In fact, Ditka's first day back was relatively uneventful.

Rogers Out

Fontes, whose brother, Len, is the defensive backfield coach for the New York Giants, pleaded guilty to drunken driving charges earlier this year.

Fontes got his first coaching job directing the freshman team at Michigan State in 1965 while working on his Masters degree in administration. He coached at Visitation High School in Bay City in 1966-67, winning the Class B state championship in 1967 with a team that went 10-0.

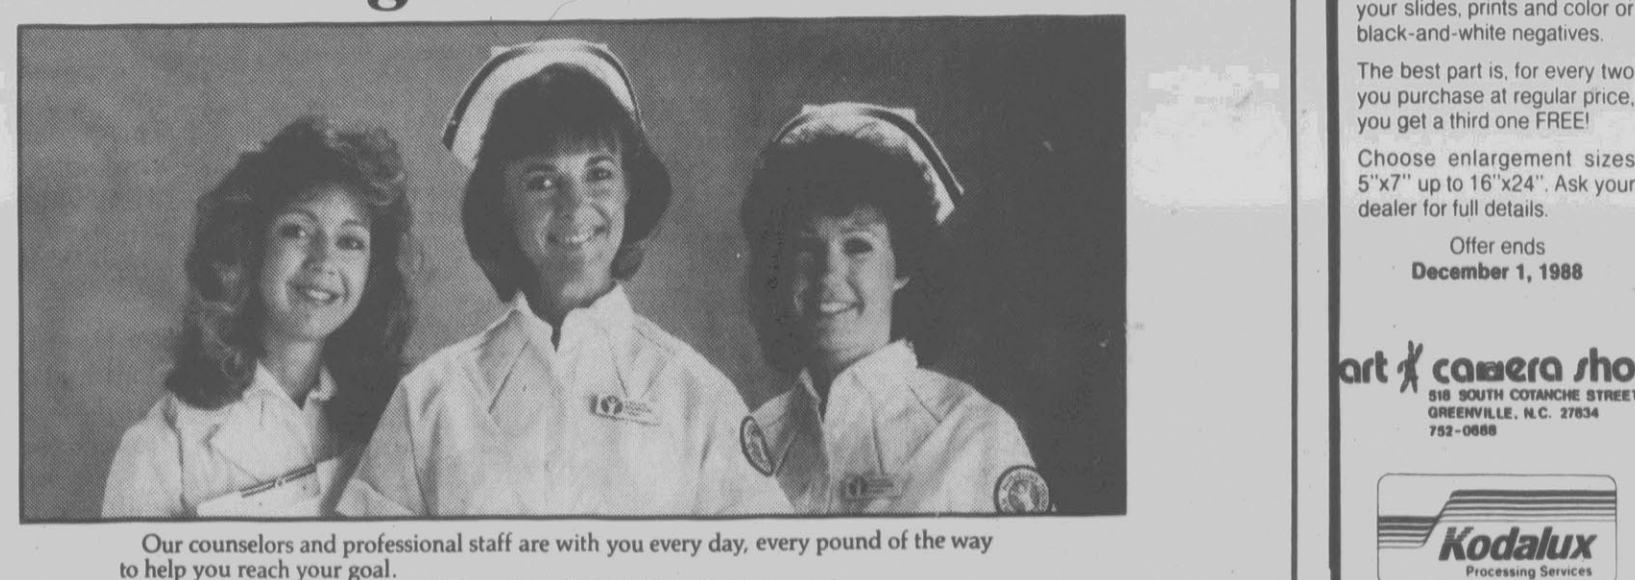

Fontes then served as an assistant at three universities, including Southern California where he began a 13-year association with McKay.

There has been speculation over the past month that Rogers would be fired if the team didn't turn things around. The Lions' loss to Tampa Bay dropped them into a tie with the Green Bay Packers at the bottom of the NFC Central.

While Rogers denied that he had been fired, it was apparent after Sunday's game that he knew something could happen.

"I'm sure if you ask the players, you'll find the same frustrations as anyone in the organization has," Rogers said.

Nuggets Sparked By The Little Men

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Denver Nuggets are getting big performances from their little guys.

Guard Michael Adams scored a team-high 25 points and running mate Lafayette Lever had 23 as the Nuggets scored a 143-132 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Sunday night.

Another Denver guard, Walter Davis, added 16.

Adams, one of the NBA's smallest players at 5-foot-10, had 17 points in the second half, including a key 3-point shot with 2:54 remaining in the game.

Adams' shot came after Portland had cut an 11-point Denver lead to 127-124. The Blazers never recovered.

"He's the biggest factor for us coming back," Denver coach Doug Moe said of Adams. "When Portland got to within three, I turned to (Denver assistant coach) Allan Bristow and said, 'We needed just that...a 3-pointer.'"

"Portland is offensively talented and they got off to a good start but didn't leave us in the dust," Moe said.

In Sunday's only other NBA game, Houston rallied to beat winless Sacramento 129-127.

Portland led by as many as 13 in the third period, but Denver outscored the Blazers 27-14 over the next 6:52, tying the game at 99 on a pair of free throws by Elston Turner.

Adams had 10 points in the period, including a 3-pointer, which ended with Denver leading 110-103.

"Fat Lever and Michael Adams stuck some real crucial shots and Walter Davis has been giving us a lift," Moe said. "I think we're a deeper team than we've been and we have a lot more weapons than we had last year."

"We had them down early but didn't keep up the intensity," said

Portland guard Clyde Drexler, who had a game-high 32 points.

"It was a team effort of breaking down and there was no reason for us to panic," Drexler said.

Portland's biggest lead was 85-72 early in the third period as Jerome Kersey, who had 25 points, scored six consecutive points and Kevin Duckworth hit a 10-foot jumper.

The Nuggets went ahead for good 104-103 with 1:15 remaining in the period on a pair of free throws by Danny Schayes.

Adams had a season-high 29 points Thursday in a 135-115 victory over the Blazers at Denver.

"We didn't have a commitment to guard them and the same thing happened at their place," Portland coach Mike Schuler said.

"Michael Adams can absolutely wear you out," Schuler said. "He would penetrate and our guys would rotate when they didn't have to."

Alex English had 23 points and Wayne Cooper 20 for the Nuggets. Terry Porter had 25 points and 14 assists and Duckworth had 20 for the Blazers.

Denver made 42 of 48 free throws while the Blazers hit just 27 of 41.

Denver, which played its fourth game in the last five nights, improved to 4-2. The Blazers, 2-3, took their third straight loss. Rockets 129, Kings 127.

Houston's Akeem Oluajun scored 34 points and Mike Woodson blocked Vinny Del Negro's short baseline jumper as time expired, sending the winless Kings to their fifth straight defeat.

With Houston leading 124-123, Oluajun sank a pair of free throws with 44 seconds left and then completed a 3-point play with 12 seconds left to give the Rockets a 129-123 lead.

Woodson added 26 points, ex-King Otis Thorpe had 18 points and 18 rebounds, Sleepy Floyd scored 18 points and had 15 assists, and Derrick Chievous added 21 points.

Sacramento, which led by 17 points early in the second quarter, was led by former Rocket Rodney McCray, who had 29 points and 12 rebounds in his first game since being traded. LaSalle Thompson had 24 points and 11 rebounds for the Kings, while Derek Smith contributed 22 and Kenny Smith 21.

Saturday's Hornets' Game

ATLANTA — Reggie Theus scored 27 points and Moses Malone added 20 as the Atlanta Hawks outscored Charlotte by 15 points in the fourth quarter Saturday night and beat the Hornets 132-111.

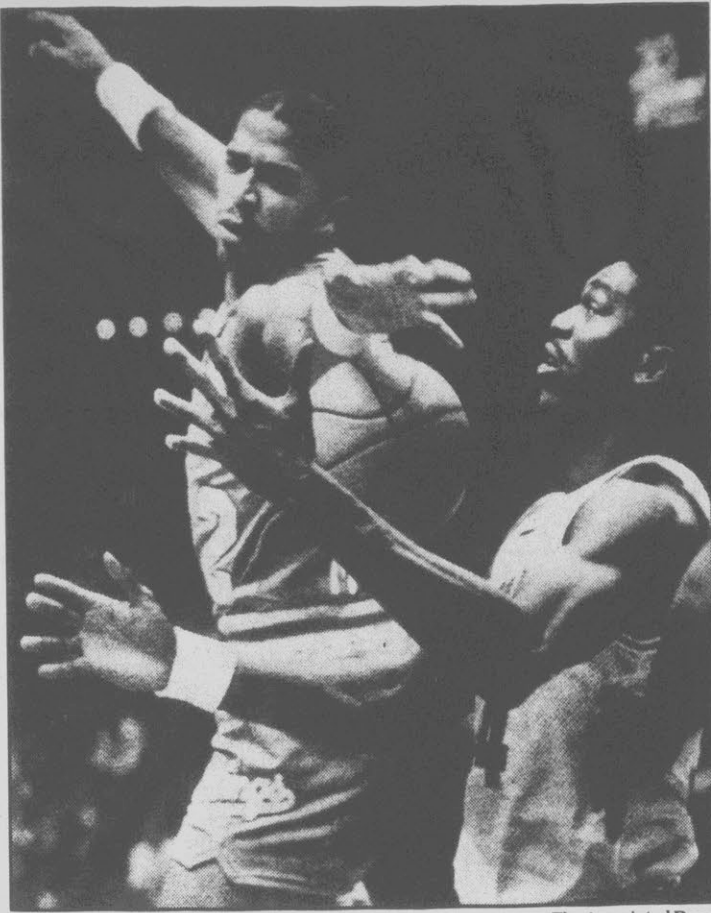

Charlotte, which has lost four of its first five, pulled to 96-93 with 10:31 left on a Kelly Tripucka 3-pointer. The Hawks, who snapped a two-game losing streak, outscored them 36-18 the rest of the way.

Cliff Levingston had 8 points, Malone 6, Theus 4 and Dominique Wilkins 4 in the final 10 minutes.

Levingston scored 20 points overall, Wilkins 19 and Glenn Rivers 14 for the Hawks.

Soviets Begin Tour Of U.S. With Victory

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — If it's Tuesday, this must be Columbus. Or Stillwater.

The Soviet national men's basketball team is getting such a quick tour of the United States you would think people are trying to snatch their gold medals.

Nine games in 11 days. Five games in five days in five different time zones.

Congratulations, guys. Welcome to the land of the bronze medal.

Actually, the crammed schedule is the Soviets' own fault. ABAUSA, the governing body for the sports in this country and the team's sponsor while it's here, had it spread out over a much longer period but local competition at home prevented the Soviets from reaching this country until Friday.

"It is a 20-hour flight from Moscow to North Carolina and we get here yesterday," Soviet coach Yuri Salikov said Saturday after his team opened the frequent flyer dream week with a 104-93 victory over the Tar Heels. "We have traveled a lot. We are tired."

Wait a few days.

The Soviets only had to travel 20 miles for tonight's game with North Carolina State.

Then it's off to Ohio State on Tuesday, a day off, Vanderbilt on Thursday and the final day off.

Saturday is Lawrence, Kansas, Sunday is Las Vegas, Monday is Knoxville, Tennessee, Tuesday is Stillwater, Oklahoma and everything wraps up next Wednesday in Seattle for the Huskies of Washington.

"Playing these teams is good practice," said Soviet forward Alexander Volkov who had 23 points and eight rebounds against North Carolina.

When asked if it was exciting to play against these U.S. college teams Volkov just shrugged and smiled.

Salikov was an assistant to Alexander Gomelsky on the team that won the gold medal in Seoul. The team that beat the United States 82-76 in the semifinals, the second loss in Olympic competition ever for American men.

Ten of the players on the Soviet Olympic team are on this tour and Salikov is using this an audition as the Soviet Sports Committee meets in December to name a new national coach.

It really doesn't seem fair to judge Salikov considering the conditions his team will be playing under.

"We have not seen any of these teams and tonight North Carolina showed us a quality press and double team we were not ready for," Salikov said. "That is why we will practice against things I think most good U.S. teams will do — press, zone press, double team and good offensive rebounding."

There won't be much free time while the team is following a route looks like it was designed on a telestrator by John Madden. Guard Sharunas Marchulionis said the team is used to it.

"Since the Olympics I have seen my family just one week," he said. "There was no holiday. We had two free days from practice and then we had to practice for my club team, Statiba."

"I played three nights ago against Leningrad. Three days after we get back we have club games."

Salikov made it sound like Sunday's practice would be more than a shootaround.

Navy Hopes To Sail To Top Of CAA

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(This is one of a series of articles on the outlook for Colonial Athletic Association basketball teams.)

The U.S. Naval Academy showed good improvement over the latter part of the 1987-88 basketball season, and that gave third-year coach Pete Herrmann high hopes for the 1988-89 year.

But things haven't worked out quite the way Herrmann envisioned them.

The Midshipmen lost only one senior off last year's team — guard Cliff Rees, a second-team All-Colonial Athletic Association selection. Rees led the Middies in scoring last year with a 13.9 average and became only the 12th player in Navy history to score 1,000 points in his career.

Then, the two-year decision time cropped up for a couple of stars. Both Matt Nordmann and Byron Hopkins, who were the two leading returning scorers with 11.3 and 11.1 scoring averages, respectively, left school. The would-be juniors had to make the decision to commit to the Navy following graduation, and elected to transfer elsewhere.

Nordmann averaged 5.9 rebounds a game while Hopkins blocked 3.1 shots per game for the Midshipmen.

Add to that the mid-season loss last year of center Darren Morningstar, who averaged 12.2 points in his five games, and you have wiped out much of Navy's scoring punch and all of their double figure scorers.

But all it not that bleak. Back are Eddie Reddick, the leading rebounder with a 6.8 average, and Derric Turner, who averaged 9.1 points a game and missed much of the season with a knee injury. Turner averaged eight rebounds a game during the time he was available.

"Last year, we improved a lot and became competitive at the end of the year," Herrmann said of his 12-16 Middies, who were fifth in the CAA at 6-8. Navy won nine of its last 12 games after a 3-13 start.

Turner, a 6-7 power forward, will be the man about whom Navy will build the team this year. He played in only 13 games last year after suffering a dislocated kneecap, but Herrmann says he appears fully recovered from that.

A starter as a sophomore, Turner had three 15-plus rebound efforts in the first five games of last season. "Derric should be one of the top rebounders in the league, if not in the East," Herrmann said. "He was there before the injury and hopefully he'll return to that form where he was grabbing every ball from the boards."

With Nordmann and Hopkins gone, Turner may be called upon to play some at the strong forward position and at center, too.

Reddick, 6-6, moved into the starting lineup last year after Turner was injured and helped spark the turnaround. He led the team 11 times in rebounding and was named to the all-rookie team of the CAA. He is one of six sophomores who are expected to make major contributions to the team.

Others who are expected to battle for front court time are senior Craig Prather (6-5), a three-year letterman; Doug Fee (6-5), a sophomore, and freshmen Matt Attar (6-7), Sam Cook (6-8) and Nick Marusich (6-9). Fee may be the best outside shooter of the bunch.

Joe Gottschalk, a 6-2 sophomore, was also an all-rookie selection last year, averaging 8.3 points a game while playing only an average of 13 minutes a game. A fine outside shooter (46.5 average in 3-pointers), he should replace Rees at the off-guard slot. Despite missing several games with a broken thumb, he led the Middies in scoring on four occasions.

Bobby Jones, a 6-2 senior, and Djuan Graham, a 6-4 sophomore, provide back-up roles.

Two sophomores will battle for the point guard duty. Mel Davis, 6-2, handled the duties much of last year while Erik Harris, 6-1, is the better shooter of the two.

"To be successful, we've got to have a lot of contribution from eight or nine players," Herrmann said. "We can't afford to rely on one or two players all of the time to score. The freshmen will be counted on to play. They're talented, probably as talented as we've had up front."

Still, Navy is picked for the second division in the conference. But if Turner and Reddick can get them moving early and get some help, the Midshipmen could turn a few heads before the year is out.

Sanders' Gaining Unwanted Attention With Performances

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

STILLWATER, Okla. — Barry Sanders thinks the attention being generated by his record-breaking performances is great for his offensive line and the rest of his Oklahoma State teammates.

But not for him.

"The game is fun, and I've been playing it for a long time," the junior tailback said after rushing for 312 yards and five touchdowns against Kansas on Saturday. "It's something I like to do."

"As far as fame and everything, you can give it to someone else. I really don't care about it. I just want to be happy, to do well in school."

"Football could end so fast," Sanders said. "If I was to get hurt, people would think I was just another person and really wouldn't care about me. If I do good, so what? If I do bad, so what? Take it in stride."

Sanders has done a great job of that. His coaches and teammates say he is the same person he has always been — quiet, polite and almost unbelievably humble.

"He makes a run, comes back and says 'It's all us,'" says offensive tackle Mike Wolfe. "That's not true by a long shot, but that's the way he is."

The 5-foot-8, 195-pound Sanders clearly is as talented as he is humble. His 312 yards Saturday gave him 2,003 for the year, making him only the third player in NCAA history to reach 2,000. Marcus Allen of Southern Cal and Mike Rozier of Nebraska were the others.

Through nine games, Sanders is averaging 222 yards per game. He could shatter the record of 211 yards per game, set by Allen in his Heisman Trophy season of 1981.

Allen holds the NCAA single-season rushing record with 2,342 yards. Sanders, who has 2,003, can break that by averaging 170 yards in the Cowboys' final two games. He has only been held below that figure twice.

He has gone over 300 yards in a game three times this season. No NCAA player has ever had more than one 300-yard game in his career.

Sanders has scored at least two touchdowns in an NCAA-record nine straight games. He is on a pace that would allow him to set NCAA records for all-purpose yardage and points per game, and he is 145 yards shy of Rozier's Big Eight single-season rushing record of 2,148.

"The numbers are staggering, and we've still got two games to go," said Coach Pat Jones.

Some might scoff at Sanders' most recent effort in light of the fact Kansas came in with the nation's worst rushing defense. However, Jones counters with this argument: no one else has done it.

And while Oklahoma State has played its share of softies, with Iowa State and Texas Tech still on the schedule, Sanders has rolled up huge numbers against Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas A&M and Missouri, four teams that give up rushing yardage grudgingly.

"I think the people here probably witnessed the finest player in college football today," Jones said Saturday. "I don't know who could be better."

He scored on runs of 4, 8, 20 and 21 yards in the first half as the Cowboys took a 28-17 halftime lead. He added a 3-yarder in the third quarter and now has 31 touchdowns. That betters the NCAA single-season record of 29 shared by Rozier and Lydell Mitchell of Penn State.

Rozier and Mitchell used to own the single-season points record as well, with 174.

Candice Bergen Takes On Comedy In 'Murphy Brown'

By Diane Haithman
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

HOLLYWOOD — When Candice Bergen read the pilot script for "Murphy Brown," she decided she was finally ready to do a television series.

Television, however, was not quite ready for her.

The 42-year-old film star had never entertained the idea of doing a situation comedy until her agent coaxed her to read the "Murphy Brown" script, the story of a famous Washington TV personality, which debuted Monday night on CBS.

She decided after reading the script on a flight to New York that if she was going to do a television series, she would never find a better role — and she made her first telephone call from an airplane to let executive producers Diane English and Joel Shukovsky know she desperately wanted the part.

To her surprise, however, Bergen discovered that CBS did not share the producers' enthusiasm for casting her as Murphy Brown.

"I didn't think she could do it," Kim LeMasters, president of CBS Entertainment, has since confessed.

Nibbling lunch in her trailer near the set of the series, the ever-poised Bergen discussed her initial rejection by the network with a raised eyebrow, as if describing a vaguely amusing faux pas committed by a distant acquaintance.

"From the network I got steadfast resistance and, (when I completed) the pilot, navel oranges and Velveeta cheese," she sniffed. "They've been terrifically nice since — but I did expect quite a different reaction. It was actually a humbling experience, because I thought the network would be beside themselves that I would actually consider doing a series. But if it hadn't been for Diane English, I never would have been cast."

"Other networks have been so gracious about things," she added calmly, the eyebrow rising a tad higher. "Well, it's clearly a network of cutbacks in all areas, I guess."

In a separate conversation, English and husband Shukovsky said that CBS executives had "a case of cold feet" when it came to casting the role. "If God had walked into the room at that moment, it wouldn't have been good enough," English said.

According to Bergen, LeMasters doubted Bergen's comic ability because Bergen had starred in two somewhat gloomy movies on CBS — "Mayflower Madam," about a society blueblood who ran a brothel, and "By Reason of Insanity," in which she portrayed a Polish woman who was stabbed by her psychotic husband. "God knows I tried, but they didn't really want any laughs," she cracked about the two projects.

This is not the first time Bergen has had to fight for the right to be funny; not until the 1981 feature film "Rich and Famous," she said, did casting directors begin to see the comedian behind her ice-queen veneer. In the tradition of her father, the late ventriloquist-comedian Edgar Bergen, Bergen is described by English as a woman who, despite her regal appearance, will sink to pratfalls and whoopee cushions just to get a laugh.

"Yeah, I love that stuff," Bergen said. "I really love physical humor, and I think it's doubly unexpected coming from someone like me. My father was such a great influence in my life, and he always thought I had flair for comedy and encouraged me to do it."

Along with the chance to do comedy, Bergen acknowledges that she also took the "Murphy Brown" role to take advantage of TV's regular work hours to accommodate life with her husband, French film director Louis Malle, and their 3-year-old daughter.

"Features and TV movies seem to come up overnight — they say, 'OK, you have to be in Burma by Thursday,'" she said. "That's just unacceptable if you're going to raise a family."

"I never had a negative opinion of television," she added. "Of course, I think 70, maybe 75, maybe 80 percent of it is swill, but I don't know what people in the entertainment industry would do without television — there just aren't enough feature films to go around. I think it hasn't been since 'Rich and Famous' that I've been offered comedy of ('Murphy Brown') caliber in a feature."

Bergen loves the blunt, compulsive, not-always-polite Murphy Brown, co-host of a "60 Minutes"-style information program called "FYI." In the pilot episode, Brown is back at work fresh from the Betty Ford Center, where she kicked her longstanding cigarette and alcohol habits in favor of chewing No. 2 pencils.

English and Shukovsky noted that CBS at first had misgivings about portraying Brown as a recovered alcoholic in today's conservative political climate, but ended up asking the producers to do even more with that concept after test audiences responded favorably to Murphy's strength in overcoming her vices.

Although the producers expect to be compared with "Broadway News," English said that "Murphy Brown" differs from the feature film because it is about a 40-year-old woman at the top of her profession, rather than a 30-ish woman clawing her way to the top. They hope the movie piqued the public's interest in journalism and politics; English and Shukovsky plan to enlist Washington personalities from both fields for guest appearances.

Kenny Rogers' Weekend Bash Provides TV Special

By Tom Saladino
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLBERT, Ga. — Entertainer Kenny Rogers had this idea to invite a few famous friends to his lush, 900-acre farm for a weekend of golf, tennis, basketball and fishing and wound up with tonight's prime-time special on ABC.

"One thing just led to another and we sort of stumbled into the format," said Rogers, who played host and took part in the three-day "Kenny Rogers Classic Weekend."

Rogers and 15 other big-name celebrities from show business and sports split into teams and competed in the four events for $400,000 in prize money.

The guests include singer-actor Kris Kristofferson, actors James Caan and Lorenzo Lamas, NBA basketball stars Larry Bird, Michael Jordan, Dominique Wilkins and Isiah Thomas, tennis stars John McEnroe, Kevin Curren, Mikael Pernfors and John Lloyd, and golfers Ray Floyd, Lanny Wadkins, Payne Stewart and Hubert Green.

The special will include the sports competition as well as a party that included entertainment by Gladys Knight, the Smothers Brothers and comedian Byron Allen.

The festivities were held Sept. 16-18 at Rogers' Beaver Dam Farms about 75 miles east of Atlanta where there's an 18-hole, par 72, 6,200-yard golf course designed by Rogers, two tennis courts, an indoor basketball court and two lakes stocked with fish.

"All my life I've participated in sports," Rogers said. "I love basketball and tennis, and I've become obsessed with golf the last few years. I play every day. That's why I built the golf course. And everybody is a young kid when you play sports."

So Rogers began to formulate his idea.

"We had just completed the course last July (1987) and I thought I sure how good it was, so I thought I would invite a couple of pro golfers to play here," said Rogers. "That was in March or April, and the concept was born."

Rogers said he then thought about tennis, and "John McEnroe came to mind, and I knew he liked to play basketball. That's when one thing just led to another, we got the idea, and so we said, 'Why not?'"

Another factor, he said, was that the event could be used to raise money for charities, which Rogers is involved in year-round.

Celebrities, he said, "can attract a lot of attention with very little effort. It's almost selfish not to do it."

He said a percentage of the money raised through ticket sales would go to United Cerebral Palsy and the Homeless of Atlanta and Athens, Ga.

"I'm not sure how much we'll raise for charity this year, but I'm sure we can generate a lot of money for charity for this event in future years," he said, adding he plans to hold the event annually.

The event, which drew about 3,000 spectators for the three days in cloudy, rainy weather, was the first time Rogers had opened his farm to the public.

"At first I didn't think I wanted a whole lot of folks — as much as I love 'em all — stomping around down there on the farm," he said.

"But we talked it over and decided, 'What the heck ... let the people come see it ... they'll probably really enjoy it.'"

Tournament Chairman Kelly Jukerman said the first three players contacted were Bird, Jordan and McEnroe.

King Becomes The Closing Act

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — B.B. King, honored for keeping the blues alive in radio, capped a night of electrifying music with "The Thrill is Gone" during the ninth annual Blues Awards.

King, sporting his familiar guitar Lucille, was scheduled to emcee Sunday's award show at the Peabody Hotel, but a late flight delayed his arrival and made him the closing act.

"All of my life living here in Memphis I've never seen so many talented people in one place at one time," King said.

Anson Funderburgh & the Rockets with Sam Myers were the big winners, grabbing honors as Blues Band of the Year, Contemporary Blues Album of the Year for "Sins" and Song of the Year for "Changing Neighborhoods." Myers was chosen as Instrumentalist of the Year.

All performers received a Handy Award, a golden statuette in the likeness of W.C. Handy, father of the blues.

Annual Award

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — A local arts center plans to establish an annual award for classical singers in honor of Marian Anderson, the first major black artist signed by the Metropolitan Opera.

Soprano Jessie Norman and violinist Isaac Stern will present a benefit concert next Aug. 12 to raise some of the $500,000 needed for the award.

Horoscope

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY Nov. 15

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Money is burning a hole in your pocket. Foolish spending will affect future plans. Control a financial problem by tallying expenses.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Your own sweat and hard work are paying off. Reward yourself prudently, and include the family. Take care of your pets.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Today you call the shots. Trust your intuition on a project that is a gamble. Contact your parents. They are waiting to hear from you.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You may get called on the carpet, so be prepared. Temper your responses, and consider the importance of the matter.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Carrying a torch for someone who is so far removed and out of reach can cause you to miss out on a good thing. It's time to let go of the past.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You're so sleepy, you could nap in a falling building today. Take a moment to collect your thoughts, and let slow motion take its course.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Castles in the air, daydreams and fantasy are the seeds of creativity. To apply them to daily rituals may produce an unfulfilling day.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Today is a festive day. Keep it within familiar and secure limits. Avoid bizarre and unconventional activities, but have fun.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): A new romantic involvement may not be what it seems. Keep your financial statement private until true love blossoms.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): It's catch-as-catch-can on the financial scene. Take care of your health with the usual rest, diet, etc. If you are a smoker, give it up.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): The silent treatment over a squabble may have no results. Trying to be the winner of an argument is fruitless. Mediate the problems.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Clock watching may have the boss frowning. Exciting plans keep your mind drifting. Time stands still in the face of anticipation.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ42 ♥75432 ♦KJ5 ♣7
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
 What action do you take?
 A.—If ever you want to get into the auction, now is the time. You have a near opening bid with support for all unbid suits. Double for takeout.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ1032 ♥A32 ♦Q ♣10832
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ 2 ♥
 What action do you take?
 A.—Unless you have something special to communicate, the way to show a minimum opening in this situation is to pass. But here it could be vital to tell your partner about your four-card support for his suit,

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A762 ♥AQ93 ♦AK98 ♣K
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 2 ♣* Dbl Pass 4 ♥
 Pass ?
 *—weak
 What action do you take?
 A.—For his jump to four hearts, partner can hardly have less than the king of hearts, ace of clubs and a minor-suit queen. A small slam, therefore, seems assured, and a grand depends on partner holding a singleton spade. To explore the possibilities, start a cue-bidding sequence with four spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KQ63 ♥3 ♦KJ83 ♣AJ108
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♣ 2 ♥

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KQ107 ♥Q943 ♦AJ1097 ♣Void
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Dbl
 What action do you take?
 A.—This problem is akin to the previous one. Here, a redouble would show a good hand. Therefore, a jump to three spades is freed to describe a raise based on four-card trump support and distributional values, and that's the bid you should make.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠9 ♥Q87632 ♦Q54 ♣983
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ 1 ♣ Pass Pass
 3 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Who invited you into this auction? Had partner wanted to hear you bid hearts, he could have doubled one spade for takeout. Expect partner to hold a spade stopper, a long, solid club suit and a smattering of cards in the unbid suits.

Farm Scene

By Sam Uzell

For years horticulturalists have recommended the incorporation of organic matter into the backfill soil when planting individual trees and shrubs. This recommendation, because of recent university research results, has been slightly changed.

Several factors will determine whether or not to add organic matter. Much information is available now on water movement in various soil structures and water relationships in soil and backfill medias. Everyone is aware of problems caused by too little or too much water and that either condition can cause plant stress and decline. The key to whether or not to amend soils with organic matter is generally determined on how the plant was grown and what type of soil is at the planting site.

Most field-grown trees are dug, sold and planted as B&B (balled and burlapped). The old recommendation of digging a large hole and adding organic matter provided good results because of the large planting pit site and not the addition of addition of organic matter. By disturbing and improving the soil structure in compacted soils, the roots are able to establish quicker.

Additions of fertilizers low in nitrogen and high in phosphorus and potash to the backfill will also aid root growth. Both materials are not easily leached to the roots when applied to the soil surface while nitrogen is. By slightly raising the planting height, drainage is also improved. Moisture relationships are very important in the first growing season of a newly planted tree or shrub.

Most container grown ornamentals are produced in a loose, porous, soilless media. These mixtures where 100 percent of the roots are located, dry out very quickly. (Nurserymen find it necessary to water on a daily basis.) After being planted in the landscape, it is necessary to keep the roots from becoming too dry during the long, hot summer days.

The surrounding soil in a bed could become completely saturated following irrigation and could remain wet for several days. Meanwhile the media — as it loses moisture faster than soil — could dry out. Research indicates the lack of water movement from one bulk density (soil) to another bulk density (media). That's why it is necessary to get the roots in contact with soil when planting. I.e., be sure to disturb the root system when locating the plant in the hole. Don't be misled to water only when the soil dries out — the media probably was dry long before!

Mounding a ring around the stem and root system is a good practice which will allow water to move downward to the roots and not become runoff. Azaleas are extremely sensitive to this problem of drying out during the establishment period. An appropriate watering schedule would be one which provides water often during the early establishment and growing period, thus directing the roots out into the surrounding backfill and soil. This schedule should change to allow less frequent applications as the plant becomes established.

Summary:

1. Good drainage is essential for plant growth and development, therefore always provide adequate drainage.
2. When planting B&B material where soil is in the rootball, dig a large hole, backfill with native soil and mulch well. (In grey or white "plastic type" soils organic matter has proven to aid in aeration and in sandy soils organic matter helps hold moisture.)
3. When planting container-grown plants, disturb the root system, add organic matter in the backfill, thus creating a homogeneous mix between roots and surrounding area.
4. A three or four inch layer of organic mulch can be applied to any newly planted tree or shrub bed area.

Eight Couples Trade 'I Do's' As Housing Project Shoos Live-Ins

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — It was the only alternative, make that altar-native, for 16 residents at a public housing project after police told the eight live-in boyfriends to get married or get moving.

So on Sunday, eight brides, dressed in pink gowns donated by a local dressmaker, and eight grooms, wearing black tuxedos provided by a formal wear store, tied the knot.

After a Sept. 20 police raid to combat gang violence in the Rockwell Gardens housing project, overnight guests were banned, meaning the boyfriends were forced to choose between walking down the aisle or walking out the door.

The blunt dictum became a big impetus for some couples.

"I just love it," said the former Tammy Grigsby, 20, who married Eugene Young, 54. "We had been planning to get married, but since they went on and pressed the issue, we was all for it."

The couples beamed as the Rev.

Louise Reed pronounced them husbands and wives at a makeshift altar at the nearby Malcolm X College auditorium.

"I love it," said Theoauthor Bower, 36, who married Linda Jackson, 31. "It came out real beautiful — mighty fine."

Robert Johnson, 26, and Linda Hardy, 28, are the parents of seven children, but their wedding day was no less a cause for celebration.

"When they raided my house, that was wrong," said Johnson. "But today is the best day of my life. ... I'm ready to party."

Chicago Housing Authority Chairman Vincent Lane, whose agency arranged the wedding, said the nuptials represent a step in the right direction for the residents involved.

The agency also will work with the husbands, all unemployed, to help them find jobs, he said.

"These people are models and I have high hope for them," said Lane, who attended the brief ceremony. "I think a great deal of what happens in public housing in Chicago is riding on their shoulders."

"People will say the only reason they're getting married is because of (the raids)," he said. "I don't think that's true."

But if nothing else, the marriages mean a number of the men won't have to violate a police order to visit their children.

"I was really upset because (Cedric) couldn't come see the kids and I couldn't see him for a couple weeks," said Marie Woods, 24, about her new husband, Cedric Smith.

"We were taking our time," she said. "But all this came up with the gangs, so we decided we was going to get married."

Smith, 25, said the gang situation has improved since the raids.

"I was glad they did it," he said. "The situation that was over there with the gangs — you was running for your life."

And if the newlyweds were pleased, their parents were ecstatic.

"I think it's great," said Jesse Hardy, father of the new Mrs. Johnson. "I tried to get her to marry a long time ago."

Charles Turns 40

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BIRMINGHAM, England — Prince Charles today celebrated his 40th birthday with a trip to Birmingham for an inner-city "street party", and the Defense Ministry promoted him to Royal Air Force colonel and Navy captain.

As he crosses into middle age, the heir to the British throne, who has no constitutionally defined job, has carved his own role — as crusader for the underprivileged and protector of the environment.

On the eve of the prince's birthday, one of his close associates, Tom Shebbeare, said Charles is irritated by the news media's obsession with peddling what he called "tittle-tattle" and fiction about Charles' private life, which he said distracts from the prince's serious work.

Hundreds of well-wishers cheered and sang "Happy Birthday, Dear Charlie" when the heir to the British throne arrived in Birmingham.

Smiling, he received flowers and two birthday kisses, then met with about 20 young people who have established their own businesses with the help of his Prince's Youth Business Trust.

He also announced a new $72 million trust that will provide grants, loans and business advice to young entrepreneurs. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government has agreed to match donations up to that level.

Later today, he was to attend a glittering Buckingham Palace ball.

As Charles was en route to Birmingham, the Defense Ministry awarded him the double promotion. The ranks are ceremonial; the prince ended his active career with Britain's armed services in 1976.

Fired Man Shoots Four, Kills Himself

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUGUSTA, Maine — A man who gunned down one man and wounded three other people before killing himself wanted revenge for his firing as an administrator of a home for the retarded, state police say.

"He knew his victims by their first names and asked for them specifically when he came to their home," state police spokesman Steve McCausland said of Alan Matterson, 36, of Cumberland.

"He was broken man" as a result of the investigation that prompted the state to seize control of the group home and which led to Matterson's dismissal in 1987, McCausland said Sunday night.

Matterson was fired from his job at the former Androscoggin Community Home in Mechanic Falls, a home for 14 mentally handicapped adults. It is now called Main Street Mechanic Falls and is under new management.

Police said Matterson shot the home's former bookkeeper, two state officials who had been involved in regulating such homes and one of their relatives. One victim remains hospitalized in serious condition.

The series of shootings spanned about 100 miles in New Hampshire and Maine in less than four hours Saturday night and early Sunday, McCausland said.

Matterson posed as a police officer during at least one of the shootings, he said. A police hat, handcuffs, flashlight and other items, along with two pistols, were recovered from Matterson's car.

The shootings began in Milton Mills, N.H., where the former bookkeeper, Howard Hedegard, 43, and his sister-in-law, Patricia Collins, 27, of Derry, N.H., were shot at Hedegard's home.
