Record Exports Help Shrink U.S. Trade Deficit

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The nation's merchandise trade deficit shrank nearly $2 billion to $10.5 billion in September as exports hit a record high, the government said today.

The 15 percent improvement came from an August deficit revised upward from $12.18 billion to $12.3 billion. Imports declined slightly in September from the record high $39.8 billion posted the previous month, the Commerce Department said.

Analysts had anticipated the narrowing of the U.S. trade gap in September following a large widening in August in what has been a month-to-month seesaw pattern most of this year.

Many analysts, however, had hoped for a greater narrowing of the gap to prevent a new raid on the dollar, which fell last week on currency markets over concerns about President-elect George Bush's ability to bring down the trade and budget deficits.

The dollar drifted lower on European and Canadian foreign exchange markets in response to the trade report but trading was thin because West German markets were closed for a national holiday. Stock and bond prices on New York markets also edged lower in early trading.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said the new numbers show that the trade gap is continuing to narrow but added that the deficit is still too high.

"Continued strong progress will not be easy, but it can be accomplished if we keep on the right course ... following non-protectorial, growth-oriented trade policies," Yeutter said. "The alternative would cost American jobs without bringing a permanent reduction."

Including the September figures, the trade deficit the first nine months of this year is running at an annual rate of $137.2 billion, compared with a record $170.3 billion last year and $155.1 billion in 1986.

The 2.2 percent, or $700 million, September export increase to a record $28.2 billion was led almost entirely by higher sales of American autos, data processing and office equipment and chemicals, the Commerce Department said.

Sales of U.S. airplanes, telephone equipment and electrical machinery abroad declined from August.

Americans, meanwhile, bought $600 million less in manufactured goods — including fewer apparel products and shoes plus less iron and steel — and $400 million less oil from foreign producers in September.

Altogether, U.S. imports dropped by $1.1 billion to $38.7 billion in September, the government said. But imports of foreign made autos and auto parts climbed by 8 percent to an $8 billion monthly high for the year.

Oil imports fell from an average 7.9 million barrels per day in August to 7.5 million barrels a day in September. The price also dropped an average 45 cents per barrel to $14.60. The combination reduced the nation's oil bill to foreign producers from $3.7 billion in August to $3.3 billion the following month.

As usual, the United States suffered its biggest deficit with Japan. At $4.1 billion, however, the gap was $700 million less than it had been in August and was at its lowest since January.

Wind-Pushed Cotton Fire Chars Town

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALTUS, Okla. — Burning bits of newly harvested cotton carried by swirling winds spread a fire through this city, destroying at least 29 houses and businesses, injuring 18 people and keeping 400 people from their homes today.

The winds that had gusted to 65 mph and spread the fire Tuesday were tame today as police and firefighters conducted a house-to-house search of the charred commercial and residential area. No bodies were found, officials said.

"I can't imagine anyone thinking up a scenario like this where there would be a fire break out in a field of cotton modules when the wind is blowing 60 miles per hour. It sounds like a scene out of a horror movie," said Gov. Henry Bellmon after a tour of the area this morning.

The fire, whose cause was unknown, spread to the city from giant bundles of cotton stored in an open field.

The fire skipped like a tornado through the residential area, burning some houses and leaving others unscathed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

The destroyed cotton was probably worth about $3 million Police Chief Jim Hughes said. He said 25 homes and four businesses were destroyed and about 100 homes damaged by smoke, but he was unable to estimate the cost of the damage.

The blaze also destroyed a radio station transmitter and forced the evacuation of two elementary schools and of about 400 residents of this southwest Oklahoma city of 23,000. Evacuees were not expected to be able to return home before noon today, Civil Defense volunteer Keith Holbrook said.

Eighteen people were treated Tuesday for smoke inhalation, with six or seven held for observation, officials at Jackson County Memorial Hospital said.

The smoke, along with winds gusting from 50 mph to 65 mph, made firefighting difficult and could be seen from 30 miles away.

Planning Board Approves Arlington Boulevard Route

By Greg Laudick
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission on Tuesday recommended that the City Council approve a request to revise the city's Thoroughfare Plan to relocate Arlington Boulevard south of Red Banks Road to connect with County Home Road (State Route 1725) south of Bells Fork.

Also recommended as part of the request was a second revision of the plan, calling for the realignment of Fire Tower Road (SR 1708).

The Thoroughfare Plan calls for Arlington Boulevard to continue from its dead end south of Red Banks Road to the intersection of 14th Street extension and SR 1725, intersecting Charles Boulevard north of Bells Fork.

The request to relocate SR 1708 would involve a minor rerouting north of its proposed northeasterly route west of Bells Fork.

The request, submitted by Bells Fork Associates, has been considered as part of an update study on the Thoroughfare Plan and has received support by both the state Department of Transportation and the city development department, said City Engineer Glen Whisler.

"For several reasons there is a significant traffic problem at the Bells Fork intersection and there are some additional traffic problems introduced by terminating Arlington Boulevard at 14th and State Route 1725," Whisler said.

"The rerouting of Arlington Boulevard will alleviate a lot of the congestion at Bells Fork," he said.

Gerald England, DOT division traffic engineer, told commission members that in addition to alleviating traffic at Bells Fork, the revision would supply a needed additional southern transportation route for the city.

Dr. Wallace Woole, commission chairman, said, "I'm in favor of this relocation. I think it's an excellent idea and we do need an extra southern route."

"We have an opportunity here to solve a very bad problem and I move that we recommend approval (of the request)," said commission member Burney Warren.

The request will next be considered by the City Council and if approved, will be forwarded to the state transportation board for final adoption.

In other action Tuesday, the commission recommended that the council deny a request by the Medical Center Baptist Church Mission to amend the Zoning Ordinance to allow churches as a permitted use in the MD-4 (medical district-shopping center) district.

City Planner Jack Simoneau told the board that a representative of the church had expressed interest to temporarily locate a church in the Stanton Square Shopping Center, located on U.S. 246 just west of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Simoneau said the city planning

City Balks At Road Signs To Direct Motorists On 264

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority has hit a roadblock in its efforts to erect signs along the new stretch of U.S. 264 to direct motorists to lodging, food and gas.

At the authority's monthly meeting Tuesday, Executive Director Al Nichols said the city's planning staff had notified him that it would not recommend the project to the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

The authority has been working since May to develop the informational signs in response to concern from motel owners that the new stretch of highway guides motorists past most of the city's lodging facilities.

Nichols said he feels between 10 and 30 people a day either cannot find the motel they are looking for or loop around Greenville and stay in another town because they do not see signs for area motels.

Because the county's billboard ordinance bans virtually all signs along U.S. 264 — which takes motorists past Pitt County Memorial Hospital instead of along motel-laden Greenville Boulevard — the authority must have the backing of the City Council in order to erect the signs off of the state-owned right of way.

Nichols has said others have supported the sign idea, including a state Department of Transportation official and county planner Jeff Ulma.

He said he was told as late as Monday that the planning staff had only one reservation about the signs: it might set a bad precedent.

"But today (Tuesday) I have a whole laundry list of objections," Nichols told the authority.

After the authority's meeting, Nichols, authority Chairman Rudy

Alexander and a representative from the city's motel association spoke at a Planning and Zoning

Thatcher Lavishes Praise On Reagan

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, paying a farewell call on President Reagan, today praised his administration as "one of the greatest in American history" and said the Western allies were "very fortunate" to have George Bush as his successor.

With Reagan by her side at a White House welcoming ceremony filled with expressions of mutual admiration, Mrs. Thatcher said the Reagan years "have restored faith in the American dream."

"Thanks to your courage and your leadership, the fire of individual freedom burns more brightly, not just in America, not just in the West, but right across the world," she said.

Reagan, in turn, praised Mrs. Thatcher as a leader of "courage, resolve and vision" and said she has contributed to a "remarkable change" in her country through policies that encourage individual creativity.

Alluding to the common front forged by the United States and Great Britain during the 1980s on security issues, Reagan said, "At the critical hour, Margaret Thatcher and the people of Great Britain stood fast in freedom's defense."

Mrs. Thatcher warmly greeted Vice President Bush and his wife, Barbara, at the welcoming ceremonies. Bush did not take part in the Oval Office meeting.

Telescope Collapses

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREEN BANK, W.Va. — One of the world's biggest radio telescopes collapsed in what an astronomer lamented as a "major blow" to science.

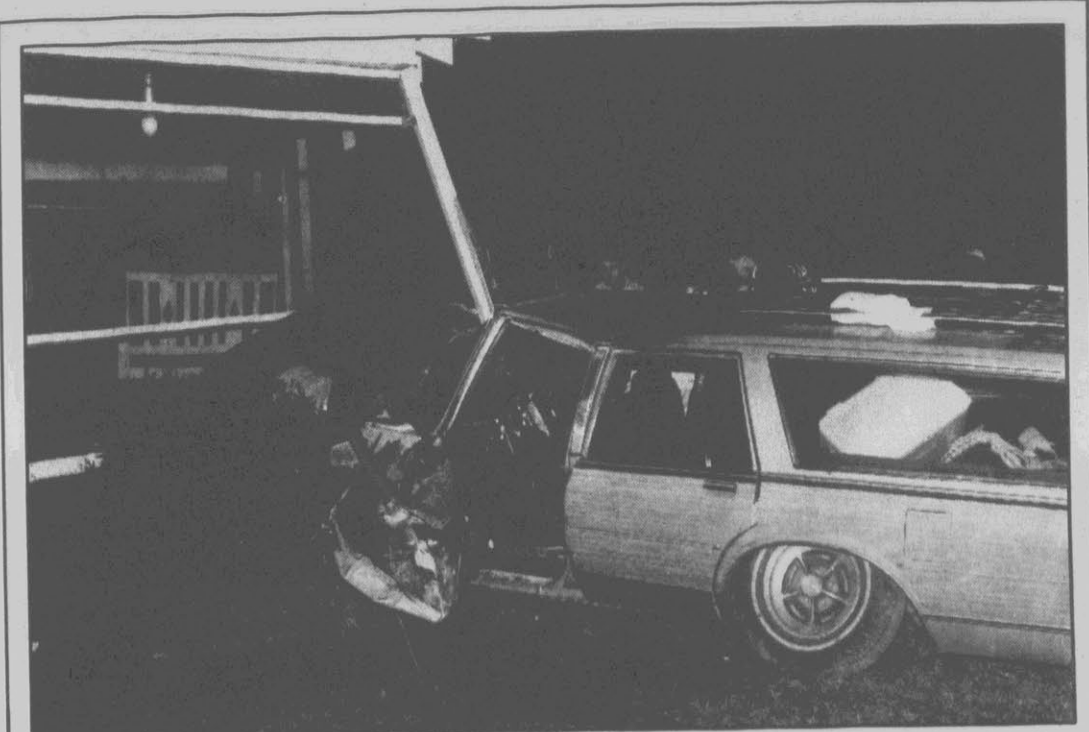

The 26-year-old instrument, a dish the length of a football field in diameter, gave way late Tuesday, said George Seielstad, assistant director for Green Bank operations at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory.

"Absolutely nobody was hurt, but the telescope itself is beyond repair and there was damage to the control room where the telescope is operated from," Seielstad said today.

The cause of the collapse was under investigation. "We know it was not weather-related because last night was a beautiful evening," Seielstad said.

The 300-foot telescope, which resembles a TV satellite dish, was used to pick up naturally emitted radio signals from space from distances as great as 10 billion light years.

Car Strikes Rural House

A Chocowinity woman was injured Tuesday night when the car she was driving hit a house near Black Jack, according to the Highway Patrol. A spokesman said Jo Ellen Mayo of Route 1, Chocowinity, lost control of her car as she drove east on rural paved road 1774 and ran off the road in a curve, striking a house owned by Guy Dixon Jr. The spokesman said Mrs. Mayo was charged with careless and reckless driving, while her husband, Joey Mayo, who was following her in another vehicle, also was charged with careless and reckless driving. Damage to the house was listed as $2,000 and the car received about $3,000 damage, the spokesman said.

Four Women Arrested

Greenville police arrested four people Tuesday in connection with three thefts.

Officer B.W. Lewis said Barbara Garris Forrest, 27, of 50 Oakwood Acres was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of $700 from a second floor guest room at the Ramada Inn on Greenville Boulevard about 12:54 a.m.

Lewis said Ms. Forrest allegedly took the money from a man's wallet after accompanying the victim to his room.

Officer J.A. Felton said Barbara K. Anderson, 37, of Wilson, was arrested on larceny charges in connection with the theft of a $45 bottle of perfume from Brody's at The Plaza mall in an incident reported at 3:27 p.m.

Officer A.T. Parrish said Mary Hollowell-Collins, 19, of Apartment 12, 3030 Adams Blvd. and Virginia Anita Staples, 19, of 404 White Dorm, were taken into custody on shoplifting charges in connection with the theft of a package of pork chops, a package of hamburger and a package of taco shells from the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard which was reported at 7:15 p.m.

Ms. Joyner Arrested

Lenois Marie Joyner, 28, of Apartment 4, 209 Moore St. was arrested by Greenville police Tuesday night on drug charges.

Officers assigned to the department's special investigations section said Ms. Joyner was charged with possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine and with possession of drug paraphernalia after 3 grams of cocaine and other drug-related material were found in her home about 11:45 p.m.

Farm Loans Available

The North Carolina Agricultural Finance Authority has introduced Series I farm real estate loans, which are structured to meet the credit needs of new and established farmers.

The General Assembly created the finance authority to provide affordable credit to North Carolina farmers and agribusinesses.

A Series I loan can be obtained to buy, improve or enlarge farms. The loans are made at an interest rate of prime plus 1.75 percent. The rate is variable and may change quarterly.

The terms for payment will be 15 years and the maximum loan is $300,000.

For more information, contact the North Carolina Agricultural Finance Authority in Raleigh at 733-0635.

"Kids" discuss disabilities with Grifton School students with the help of puppeteers

Puppet Show Helps Pupils Learn About Disabilities

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It doesn't matter how an old saying tells it. "Sticks and stones may break my bones but names really hurt."

That's what an overweight puppet, Brenda Dubrowski, told third-through fifth-grade students Tuesday at Grifton School during a "Kids on the Block" puppet show.

An educational program presented by the Association for Retarded Citizens-Pitt County, it provides information about various disabilities, helps individuals become more sensitive to and accepting of their peers with disabilities, shows things that individuals with disabilities can do, and assists with the mainstreaming process in schools and other groups, according to Pauline Odegard-Johnson, executive director.

"The target audience is elementary school children," she said. "However, the program has been enjoyed by corporate executives, college students, civic organizations, school board members and administrators. It is appropriate for individuals with and without disabilities."

Grifton students met several puppets or "kids" in the show Tuesday. Renaldo Rodriguez is blind, but he demonstrated how he can walk to different places, read, hit a baseball and tell time. "I feel the dots (on my watch), and I know what time it is," he said with the help of Ms. Johnson. Towanda Coley, a psychology senior at East Carolina University, also is a puppeteer.

Ellen Jane Peterson is mentally retarded, but she showed students how she works in "Doc Roger's" animal hospital, while Mark Reilly has cerebral palsy and demonstrated how he can do a "wheelie" in his wheelchair.

Other puppet kids are Jennifer Hauser, who has a learning disability, and Melody James, who wears glasses.

A typical program lasts 50 minutes and usually five skits are presented. At the end of the skit, viewers can ask the puppet questions.

"Because the puppets are large (about the size of a 3-year-old) and because they wear real children's clothes and children's shoes, they are very lifelike and children relate well to them and feel comfortable asking them questions," Ms. Johnson said.

Nationally, the "Kids On The Block" program has appeared, with its creator Barbara Aiello, on several talk shows and before the president of the United States.

Locally, the program may be requested by calling Ms. Johnson at ARC, 757-3084.

ECU Ranks Fourth In Family Medicine

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The school of medicine at East Carolina University ranked fourth nationally in the percentage of its medical students who chose family medicine as a specialty, according to a survey of residency choices for the class of 1987.

The study, carried in the September-October issue of the Journal of Family Medicine, examined the medical specialty choices of 15,872 physicians who entered their first year of residency training in the 1987-88 academic year. Most of the physicians graduated from medical schools in the spring of 1987.

Nationally, about 12 percent of the graduates chose to specialize in family medicine. At ECU, 21 of 67 graduates, or 31 percent, chose family medicine.

The figure positioned ECU behind

The winner of a solar-powered car race from Darwin to Adelaide, Australia, averaged 41.6 miles an hour over 1,950 miles.

only three of the other 125 medical schools in the country. Oral Roberts University placed 43.5 percent of its graduates in family medicine programs, while Southern Illinois University placed 43.3 percent, and Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, 33 percent.

Dr. Rafael C. Sanchez, vice chairman of the ECU Department of Family Medicine, described ECU's performance as "a notable accomplishment."

"It speaks well on behalf of our school fulfilling its mission for the training of family doctors," said Sanchez.

As a rule, about 25 percent of ECU medical graduates go on to residencies in family medicine each year — double the national average.

None of the top four schools produced as many family doctors as the University of Minnesota, which sent 68 graduates into family medicine. But they represented only about 25 percent of the school's 266-member class.

Albert Kirby Jr. Joins D.A.'s Staff

Pitt County District Attorney Tom Haigwood has appointed Albert D. Kirby Jr. as assistant district attorney.

Kirby, 30, fills a vacancy created when Assistant District Attorney Rosa Shearin-White left the Greenville office for a similar position in Northampton County.

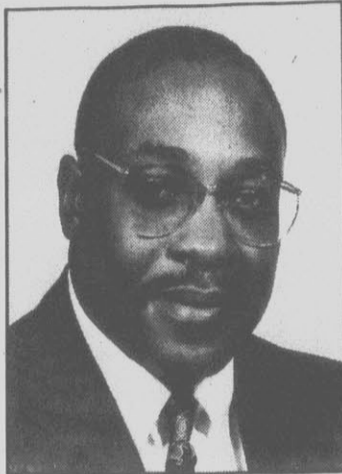

District Court Judge H. Horton Rountree of Greenville swore Kirby in Tuesday morning. Kirby's first day on the job.

A Clinton native, Kirby received a bachelor's degree in history from Wake Forest University in 1980 and a law degree from Campbell University School of Law in 1986.

Previously, Kirby has worked as an assistant district attorney in the 12th Prosecutorial District, which includes Cumberland and Hoke counties, and he has clerked for the Clinton law firm of Warrick, Johnson and Parsons and for the Administrative-Hearings Division of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

A four-year football player at Wake Forest, Kirby played on the school's 1979 Tangerine Bowl team and had a brief stay with the Oakland Raiders before suffering a knee injury.

Tattoo Parlor Up For Study

A request for a special use permit to operate a dermagraphic studio in the downtown area will again be considered by the Greenville Board of Adjustment at its monthly meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall.

The petitioner, Gary Nobles, was granted a continuance in October on his request for a permit to operate the studio at 106 E. Fourth St.

The request has drawn negative reaction from the Downtown Greenville Association which approved a resolution of opposition in regards to the request in October.

DGA President Lawrence Behr said after the resolution was approved that it was the majority opinion of the board that a tattoo parlor was not in keeping with the present and future development plans of the downtown area.

Also in opposition to the request is the city's development department. In other matters Thursday, the board will consider granting a special use permit to Eddie Yarrell to operate a trucking company on the north side of William Tingen Road (State Road 1420) approximately 230 feet east of the intersection of William Tingen Road and SR 1441. The property is zoned RA-20 (residential/agriculture).

Also to be considered is a request by Hostetler's Tennis Shop to obtain a variance from the Zoning Ordnance to allow the placement of a free-standing sign at 218-C Arlington Boulevard, and a request by Newton Storms to obtain a variance from the Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance to exempt the first-floor elevation of a storage building at 1011 E. 10th St.

In addition, the board will consider a request by Chet Stanley to obtain a special use permit to expand a light-manufacturing use (clothing manufacturing facility) located at the northeast corner of N.C. 11 and Chapman Road.

A public hearing will be held regarding both matters before the board.

House Funds Available

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The city of Greenville on Tuesday received checks totaling $20,000 to help provide for the relocation of the Patrick-Arthur House from its site on the corner of 14th Street and Charles Boulevard.

City officials are making arrangements with several groups to ensure the house is moved Tuesday according to schedule.

Jonathan R. Day, a representative for the previous property owners, said the presentation of $20,000 to the city followed the successful sale on Monday of the property to Charles Boulevard Associates Limited Partnership.

Day, who had been involved in negotiations for several months to save the historic structure from demolition, said the developer intends to build a shopping center on the corner lot following the removal of the house.

Of the $20,000 provided to the city, the house's previous owners, James F. Arthur and Louis C. Arthur contributed $5,000, the developer contributed $10,000, and Collice C. Moore and Associates contributed $5,000.

The city has agreed to pay the remainder of the cost, up to $5,000, to relocate the house.

City Planner Andy Harris said today the city plans to move the Victorian-style farm house to a section of city-owned lots on the north side of 14th Street between Pitt and Greene Streets.

"The contractor is currently in the process of preparing the house for the move," Harris said.

Also being prepared is the site on which the house will be relocated. Harris said the planned location has a slight hill and public works department workers had to cut the hill down four feet.

"Unfortunately we had to remove three trees to be able to get the house on the site," he said. Harris said.

He also indicated the kitchen section of the house will not be moved. "The underside of that portion had rotted out and the seals had all deteriorated," he said.

Harris said the house's relocation is being coordinated with DOT, Greenville Cable TV, Carolina Telephone and Greenville Utilities.

He said when the house is moved on Tuesday traffic will be interrupted all day on 14th Street from Charles Boulevard to Pitt Street.

"There will be some detour signs put up during the move, and the police department will be involved to help direct traffic," he said.

Harris said following the relocation of the house, it will be appraised and put up for sale.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Take A Look

The Proof Is In The Package

Sending back a package without unwrapping it wouldn't be smart. The paper might not look attractive, but what's inside could be.

That analogy applies to the $25 million school bond referendum now before the Pitt County Commission. The first reaction to a proposal involving the "b" word is often "send it back."

But before viscerally rejecting the proposal that board should remove the trimmings and look carefully to see what's really inside. Then it can either soundly support the proposal on its merits or reject it for its faults.

And there is ample reason to take either option.

First, consider why a school bond referendum might help.

It's not hard to see that Pitt's school system has millions of dollars in construction needs. Two-thirds of the facilities are near 30 years old. Ninety mobile units must be moved annually at an expense of $42,000. Sewer system in six schools cannot meet Environmental Protection Agency standards. If current student growth continues, the system will need a new school every three years. North Carolina's Basic Education Program has exacerbated Pitt County's classroom space problems by, appropriately, requiring that all schools offer the same classes — even dance, theater and chorus. Many schools don't have the instructional areas required to house this curriculum.

A bond referendum is a highly effective means of paying for large scale construction. Low interest rates have made the late 1980s a financially feasible time for counties and municipalities to bid bonds and use the money to get ahead.

For a school system, bond issues allow immediate progress on building needs. A pay-as-you-go approach keeps schools playing catch — by the time the money at hand is applied to needs, growth has made the funds inadequate. In addition, $25 million in 1988 won't buy the same poundage in 1998.

Now, consider the drawbacks to financing capital projects with bonds.

Bonds mortgage the community's future — and that's an ominous prospect. The proposal before commissioners stipulates the bonds would be repaid over a 10-year period. While this is preferable to a 20- or 30-year debt, 10 years is a considerable amount of time to obligate resources. If the economy failed, the county would be left with a large liability.

Already taxpayers are paying 10 cents per $100 in property value to raise $3 million per year supposedly earmarked for school construction. Has this money reached the schools intact and has it been spent as prudently as possible?

What the school board is asking the County Commission is whether Pitt can afford to meet these needs — or whether it can afford not to address them.

That is a pertinent question and one that should be thoroughly and openly debated before a decision is reached. There are reasons to pursue a school bond, but the proof — or disproof — is in the package.

And that's where the commissioners must look.

Big Business

The World Of Farming On Display

It's big and it draws farmers from a broad area. It is the Mid-Atlantic Farm Show which opened Tuesday at Farmers' Warehouse.

The event is expected to draw 35,000 visitors here this week to see the latest in farm equipment innovation. Fortunately for eastern North Carolina this has been a good farming year. While some farmers may be in financial trouble it is nothing like the Midwest where drought conditions have wiped out profits and the farmers' ability to pay off their loans.

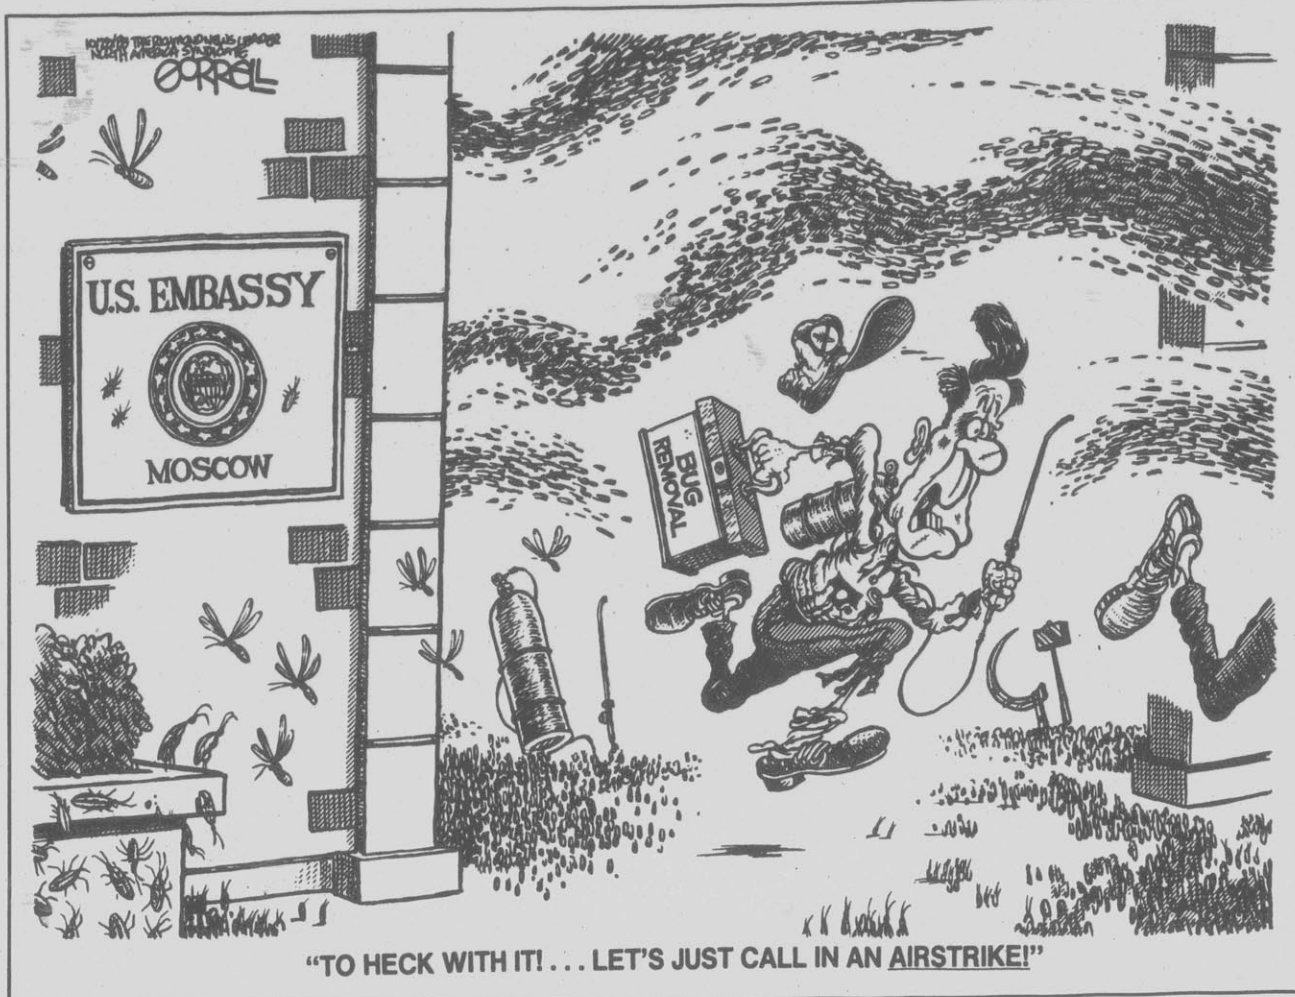

Thus farm operators who visit the show will be in a buying mood.

There is also a greater diversification of crops in area farms these days. While tobacco is still the prime cash crop, farmers are turning to other products to boost farm income. Egg production is a prime example in Pitt County.

New crops mean new equipment and new technology to get the maximum profit.

Now, more than ever, farming is a business. It must be operated efficiently and adequate bookkeeping is necessary so that the farm operator will know what he is doing. As with any business a profit is the bottom line and farmers spend time and money to attend the Mid-Atlantic Farm Show to learn about ways to improve efficiency.

There is much to see at the exhibits and much to do in the Greenville area. Welcome, visitors, to the Mid-Atlantic Farm Show.

First The Gipper, Then Quayle

Art Buchwald

There have been many telephone calls in the last few days asking what the election outcome means to those of us who live in Washington.

Nothing much will change. Construction has now begun on an underground bunker at the Burning Tree Country Club for Vice President-elect Dan Quayle. Bush handlers told me that this was being done to emphasize the important role the administration has in store for Quayle.

"Unlike the treatment of past vice presidents," one staffer said, "we intend to make full use of all of Dan Quayle's qualifications, which means we are finally going to get this country out of a lot of sand traps."

As far as we know, neither Mrs. Bush nor President-elect Bush has an astrologer. The Reagans have offered to turn over their own stargazer, but Bush's people feel that the President-elect should appoint the astrologer of his choice, to show the country that he is his own man.

There is no major decoration work to be done in the White House. The only question is, will Nancy Reagan leave behind the china she bought during her first term, or will she say, "I paid for these dishes and they are mine"?

Since George Bush claims to hail from both Texas and Connecticut, there is some question about what style of food they will be serving in the White House. The word around Washington is that it will most likely be barbecued quiche.

Domestic help could be a problem. During the last six weeks of the campaign, Bush kept yelling at his cooks, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen" — and they all left.

There will obviously be many differences between President Reagan and the President-elect. Reagan always kept asking the American people to win one for the Gipper. Bush has no Gipper and will probably urge everyone to win one for Dan Quayle, who needs the country's prayers a lot more than the Gipper did.

George Bush has a larger family than Ronald Reagan, and he sees them frequently. This means lots of photo opportunities as each grandchild will insist on sitting in Bush's lap. Therefore we can expect to see more People magazine covers featuring Bush children than Princess Diana's and Fergie's babies combined.

Social life will remain about the same as it was under the Reagans. Rich people will still be welcome at the White House and treated just like you and me.

In the sports department, Bush is an ardent tennis player and Quayle is a devoted golfer. The good news is that if Mr. Bush travels abroad, Mr. Quayle, who is also an excellent tennis player, can fill in a foursome for him so that presidential business will not be interrupted.

The in university under Bush will be Yale; the out school will be the hated "H" word, which stands for Harvard. Anything coming out of Boston for the next four years will be viewed with the same seriousness as press communiqués from the Sandinistas.

It's hard for George Bush to follow Ronald Reagan's performance, because only President Reagan could get away with it. For example, for eight years the President cupped his ear to pretend he was hard of hearing each time he got on or off a helicopter or plane. No matter what the reporters asked, Mr. Reagan just shrugged his shoulders indicating he had no idea what they were saying. Every once in a while he would shout back, "Yes," "No" and "So's your uncle."

But Bush can't do this, because if he pretends to be hard of hearing, Dan Quayle will offer to take over the Presidency.

Not all people are happy about President Bush winning the election. I met one Democrat who said, "Everybody is concerned that something might happen to George Bush and then Dan Quayle will become President. But no one is worried about the effect of something happening to Dan Quayle and George Bush becoming President."

New Rule: Familiarity Breeds Fear

WASHINGTON — Rules of thumb simplify the understanding of American politics: Jews vote Democratic; Southern white males are conservative. Those are some rules of thumb and, obviously, they are gross generalizations. With that caveat in mind, I have a new one for you: The fewer blacks in a given state, the more likely whites were to vote for Michael Dukakis.

Ponder that for a moment. This rule of thumb is different from the one saying blacks overwhelmingly vote Democratic in national elections. Indeed, in the most recent one, George Bush got only 12 percent of the black vote. In state after state, blacks voted for Dukakis in proportions approaching 90 percent. In political terms, we are still two nations — one white, the other black.

But what I am saying is a bit different and it can be best illustrated by looking at Oregon. Not only was it one of only 10 states that went for Dukakis — 53 to 47 percent — but it was one of the few where Dukakis got the majority of the white vote, 54 percent. Like all but one of the other states he carried (the exception was New York, a Democratic bastion), Oregon also happens to have few blacks. Blacks comprise 12.4 percent of the national population, but only 2.4 percent of Oregon's.

All the other states carried by Dukakis have a similar demographic pattern. Iowa, Minnesota, West Virginia, Hawaii, Washington, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and even Dukakis' home base of Massachusetts are states where the black percentage of the population is far below the national average — sometimes far below the regional average as well. Take West Virginia. Not only did Dukakis get 53 percent of the white vote, but Bush even got 29 percent of the black vote, according to ABC exit polls. The implication is clear: Where there are few blacks, race is not an issue and whites as well as blacks are more likely to vote along other lines.

In contrast, look at Texas, a state where 12 percent of the population is black. Bush got 62 percent of the white vote and only 6 percent of the black vote. In Mississippi (35.6 percent black), Bush got 78 percent of the white vote, but only 7 percent of the black vote. With only two exceptions (Utah and Arizona), the pattern holds. Where there are large numbers of blacks, whites voted Republican. Where there are few blacks, whites were more likely to vote Democratic. (In the primaries, incidentally, Jesse Jackson ran best among whites in states where there are few blacks.)

There is an old saying that there are lies, damned lies and statistics. The numbers alone may not prove anything. The states where Dukakis carried the white vote, aside from having few blacks, have unique and differing cultural, political and economic histories. West Virginia, for instance, is economically impoverished.

But still, the figures tell a story — and a sad one it is. The word that jumps out of the numbers is "race." Where there are large numbers of blacks, race becomes an issue — sometimes unstated — for both blacks and whites. And where race becomes an issue, it favors the Republicans and hurts the Democrats. If you agree that the Democratic Party has been liberal and therefore in favor of civil-rights legislation, that Democrats in general and liberals in particular are felt to favor devices such as affirmative-action programs, then it is not too much to presume that for many voters a vote against the Democratic candidate is a vote against blacks.

Similarly, the Republican Party under Ronald Reagan (and George Bush) has taken positions that most blacks consider hostile and many whites consider favorable. Early on, for instance, the Reagan Justice Department took the side of Bob Jones University in a segregation case. It has been hostile to affirmative-action programs. It has reduced all sorts of welfare programs — many of whose recipients are black either in fact or in the public imagination. These actions have sent a message to both the white and black communities. Little wonder they vote the way they do.

Furthermore, we know that for many people, the face of the criminal is black. Indeed, crime statistics bear this out. Young black males commit more crime than their white counterparts. Is it any wonder then that the face of Willie Horton, furloughed by Massachusetts, had such a powerful impact on the voter?

The election figures suggest that in most of America race is an important factor — a divisive factor — and that, for many whites, familiarity does not breed contempt, but fear. In the last campaign, George Bush in particular did nothing to bring the two races closer together. In fact, by exploiting racially charged issues he probably exacerbated the division. As President, he can begin to make amends. The figures suggest he cannot start too soon.

Court Ruling Muddies Law On Civil Penalties

By F. Alan Boyce
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH— State agencies could be stripped of the power to set civil fines for polluters and other violators under a ruling by a panel of the state Court of Appeals, which cited a precedent set 20 years ago in the state Supreme Court.

But the court majority said it saw no reason why state agencies should not have that power, with limits and guidelines, and suggested that the Supreme Court re-examine its precedent.

The panel, divided 2-1, said Tuesday that under the high court's ruling in 1968, the state Constitution does not permit an administrative agency any discretion in setting civil penalties. That is a judicial determination, the court said.

Lawyers in the state Attorney General's Office said they would give the state Supreme Court a chance to look again at the 1968 case by appealing Tuesday's decision, which contradicted a decision last year by another Appeals Court panel.

"We have a conflict between two cases that needs to be resolved," said Assistant Attorney General Frank Crawley, who represents the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

"It is pretty important because all of our commissions, state agencies, have this enforcement mechanism of civil penalties," Crawley told The News and Observer of Raleigh.

If the decision stands, he said, "there can't be any civil penalty decision by the agency because of the discretion involved. All that would have to go over to the court system somehow."

The only alternative would be for the General Assembly to set a penalty for every conceivable type of violation, which would be nearly impossible, he said.

The ruling came in an appeal by developers of a Caldwell County subdivision who were assessed a $4,200 civil penalty by the Natural Resources and Community Development Department for violating the Sedimentation Pollution Control Act.

A state Superior Court judge threw out the fine, citing the 1968 ruling, known as Lanier vs. Vines. The state Attorney General's Office then appealed to the Court of Appeals.

The Appeals Court upheld the trial judge, ruling that under Lanier's interpretation of the state constitution, the legislature may not grant state agencies the judicial authority to determine fines.

In another ruling Tuesday, the appeals court ordered a new sentencing hearing for a Guilford County youth, saying the trial judge erred in handing down the maximum sentence for taking indecent liberties with a minor because the defendant had laughed.

Johnny Ray Parker, who was 16 when he was charged with taking indecent liberties with a 10-year-old girl, received a 10-year sentence after the court found "the defendant exhibited a casual, indifferent and manifestly unremorseful attitude toward the entire proceedings by laughing visibly within the view and observation of the court..."

The trial record says Parker laughed when the prosecutor was reading the police report. When the judge asked why he was laughing, Parker replied, "Because most of this is lies."

The appeals court said there was no proof this constituted lack of remorse.

"While this evidence warrants the reprimand that the court administered it does not support the court's conclusion that the defendant was without remorse; the only finding that it could support is that he laughed because some of the statements were false," the court said in its opinion. "If he did not laugh for that reason, why he laughed is entirely speculative so far as the evidence goes."

The appeals court upheld a $70,000 award to a Wake County woman who said she permanently lost her hair because of the negligence of her beauticians.

Frances Alston sued Ray Monk, Rovetta Allen and Grady Perkins of the Raleigh Institute of Cosmetology after losing her hair following hair coloring and styling in March 1985.

Showers Resigning

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

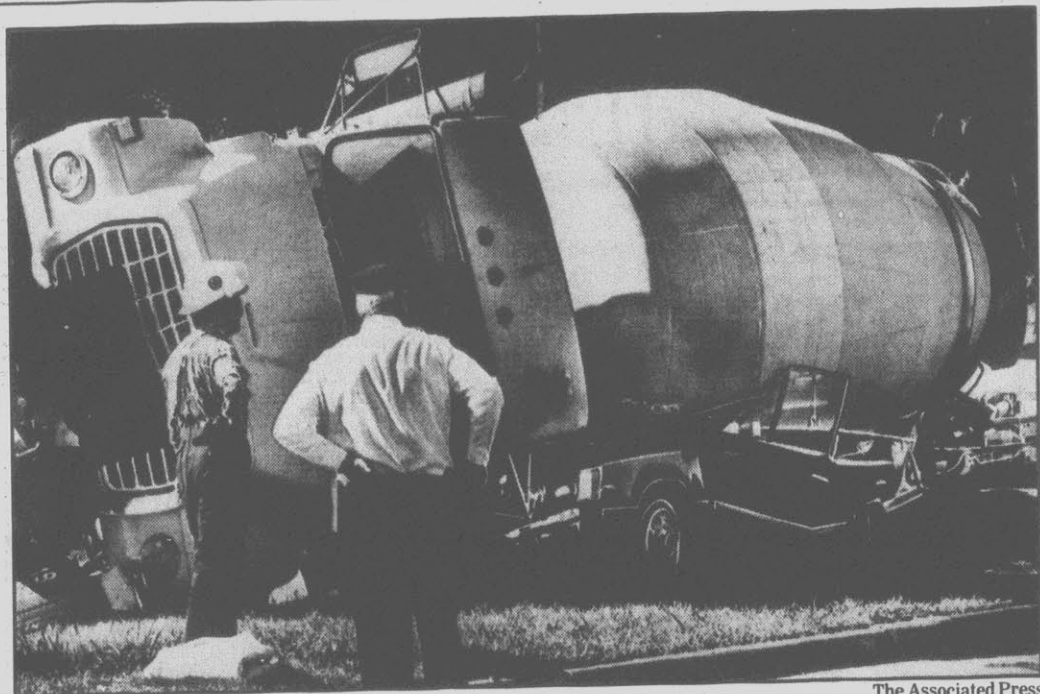

H. Robert Showers, a former federal prosecutor in Raleigh, says he has been cleared of allegations that he tried to destroy an internal memo, but soon will resign as chief pornography investigator at the U.S. Justice Department.

John K. Russell, a spokesman for the Justice Department, said Tuesday that the department's Office of Professional Responsibility had found there was no evidence of criminal wrongdoing.

Stephen Galebach, Showers' attorney, said his client would resign, along with other political appointees of the Reagan administration.

Showers said in an interview with The New York Times, "I'm a political appointee and they've called for all our resignations. I had planned on resigning at the end of the administration anyway. I want to go back to private law practice either in the Washington area or in North Carolina."

Showers, 33, was placed on administrative leave with pay in September, pending an investigation into allegations that he had sought the destruction of a memo dealing with Justice Department strategy in a case involving a Connecticut businessman whose company sells sexually oriented materials. The businessman had been under investigation by federal grand juries in four states.

Broyhill Promoted For Cabinet Post

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Former North Carolina Sen. Jim Broyhill doubts he will be named to a top administration post, even though North Carolina politicians are urging President-elect George Bush to make the appointment.

Gov. Jim Martin, who served in the House with Broyhill, is "strongly supportive of Sen. Broyhill for secretary of commerce," Phil Kirk, Martin's chief of staff, said Monday. "He planned to make some calls."

Broyhill is also getting the backing of Rep. Cass Ballenger, R-N.C., who replaced Broyhill when he moved from the House to the Senate in 1986.

"Jim has maintained close ties with Capitol Hill, which undoubtedly would contribute to the Bush administration's goal of developing a close working relationship with Congress," Ballenger wrote in a letter to his his N.C. colleagues in which he asked them to back Broyhill for the commerce job.

S.C. Gov. Carroll Campbell, another Republican who served with Broyhill in the House, also is making calls on his behalf. But a spokesman for the governor said Campbell was not specifying that Broyhill be named to the commerce post.

From his home in Lenoir, Broyhill said he was flattered.

Prisoner Walks

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A man arrested on charges of assaulting a Winston-Salem woman walked out of the Forsyth County Jail after giving jailers an alias, but the mistake wasn't discovered until four days later, authorities said.

Timothy Dockery was being held by the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department on a fugitive warrant from Philadelphia after being arrested in Winston-Salem Nov. 4. Dockery was being held with bond set at $250,000, after being charged with assault with a deadly weapon, inflicting serious injury.

Dockery, 24, walked out of the jail Nov. 10 after telling the jailer that his name was "Anthony Walid."

Plane Crash

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — The pilot of a small airplane was in critical condition today after the plane crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off Cape Lookout, authorities said.

"A small boat that was in the area at the time picked him up and transported him to Harkers Island, where he was picked up by rescue squad and transported to Carteret General Hospital," said Ensign Gary Bracken of the U.S. Coast Guard station at Fort Macon.

The pilot was identified as James McMullen, 27, of Smyrna. The plane crashed Tuesday afternoon about a mile east-northeast of Cape Lookout, Bracken said.

McMullen told rescuers that he was the only person on the aircraft, Bracken said.

Motorist Killed

GREENSBORO (AP) — Police are searching for two young men who hitched a ride early Monday with a Florida businessman who was found slain in his Greensboro motel room later that night.

Charles Clayton Davenport, 43, of Maitland, Fla., was found bound and beaten to death about 8:25 p.m. Monday at the Coliseum Motel. His car was missing.

Davenport, owner of the Que King Pool Club in Maitland, was in Greensboro to visit his ailing mother, police and relatives said. He arrived with the two men about 5 a.m. Monday at the Coliseum Motel, checked in, then met his mother and grandmother for lunch at mid-day, said Greensboro Det. L.H. Scott.

Davenport returned to the motel about 2:30 p.m., telling his mother he needed to see if his riders were ready to go home.

When Davenport's mother, Irene Lashley, could not reach him by phone throughout the evening, she called the motel's manager, who went to the room and found Davenport's body, Scott said.

Town Fined

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — The town of Raeford has been fined $6,000 for violating its sewage treatment permit just as the town is completing improvements to its treatment plant.

The fine was imposed by the Environmental Management Division of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The penalty came as a $1.4 million improvement project at the town's sewage treatment plant was nearing completion. The improvements will put the town in full compliance with state regulations, said City Manager Tom Phillips.

Contracts for the improvements were awarded at the end of March, with work beginning in early April and completion expected in early December.

Hepatitis

GREENSBORO (AP) — Six more cases of hepatitis A, two linked to Greensboro restaurants, have been reported to health officials, bringing to 61 the number of people infected with the virus in the last six weeks.

One case is linked to the outbreak a month ago at Big Daddy's Kitchen and the other is linked to Nathanael's restaurant, said Carmine Rocco, a spokesman for the Guilford County Health Department.

Rocco said health officials have still not pinpointed the source of a recent outbreak that has claimed one life and sent more than 2,500 people to get gamma globulin shots to ward off possible infection.

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. — The layoff of about 200 mid-level managers by Northern Telecom Inc. in Research Triangle Park is the latest in a series of moves the company has made to become more efficient, an industry analyst says.

"It's probably what they've been doing for the last couple of years, making them more efficient," says Robert D. Thorburn, an analyst for Nesbitt Thomson Deacon Inc. in Toronto, where Northern Telecom's parent company is based.

"I don't think it represents a problem with any one product," Thorburn said of the company, which makes telephone-switching equipment.

The layoffs will affect managers at Northern Telecom facilities throughout the Triangle, where the company's Integrated Network Systems Group division employs about 7,000 people, said John J. Callahan, a company spokesman.

Northern Telecom, a subsidiary of Northern Telecom Ltd. in Mississauga, Ontario, also is laying off about 50 other managers in sites scattered throughout the United States, Callahan said.

Detainee Released

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Raleigh man held by the Liberian government for four months has been released and is expected to leave the West African nation Thursday, the State Department says.

"We're pleased that this matter that has been of concern to both governments appears to be close to resolution," Frances T. Jones, a State Department representative in Washington, said Tuesday.

Liberian President Samuel Doe said he ordered the release of James Henry Bush of Raleigh and Curtis Hayes Williams of Jersey City, N.J., as a "manifestation of good will to the U.S. President-elect George Bush."

Bush, Williams and a Liberian were arrested in mid-July. They were indicted in September on charges of treason. Liberian officials contended they were part of a thwarted coup attempt.

In his statement, Doe said his action also was "based upon the longstanding and cordial relationship between the government and the people of Liberia and the government and people of the United States of America."

Bush and Williams may have to appear in court Wednesday, after being released from detention Tuesday, but they were expected to leave Liberia Thursday, Mrs. Jones said.

Justine Finch Bush, who had traveled to Liberia in September in an attempt to secure her husband's release, said Tuesday that her husband had been cleared.

"All charges had been dropped, as I had expected," Mrs. Bush said.

Garbage Control Bills Proposed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A legislative panel has proposed a sweeping set of bills aimed at reducing the state's garbage and promoting recycling in North Carolina.

The Solid Waste Management Study Committee proposed eight bills Tuesday that it intends to recommend to the General Assembly next year. The legislation would tackle one of the state's top environmental problems: How to dispose safely of the 25 million pounds of garbage generated in the state each day.

"People throughout the state are realizing that solid waste is a serious problem," said Sen. James Speed, D-Franklin, co-chairman of the committee.

"I feel like the chances are going to be real good to pass legislation to address some of the problems," Speed said.

Committee members generally agreed on the recommendations, but will not formally vote on them until next month.

The most comprehensive bill would establish a hierarchy of methods for managing solid waste. In order of preference, the bill would encourage: waste reduction at the source; recycling and reuse; composting; incineration with energy production; incineration for volume reduction; and disposal in landfills.

To further that policy, the bill would set a goal of recycling one-fourth of the state's solid waste by Jan. 1, 1993. It would require the state to prepare a comprehensive waste management program by Jan. 1, 1991, and to require each county to develop local programs by Jan. 1, 1992.

The proposed bills would give counties and cities the clear authority to regulate solid waste by restricting the amount of garbage they accept at their landfills and to require separation of garbage before collection. Counties also could require residents and businesses to participate in recycling programs.

Moderates Retain Control Of Baptist Convention

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — Moderate Southern Baptists are maintaining their control of the North Carolina convention, re-electing Goldsboro minister Leon Smith as president and throwing out a proposal to deny participation in the state convention to churches that don't baptize all new members by immersion.

Turning back an unusual midterm challenge from conservative minister Joe Brown of Charlotte, Smith garnered 61 percent of the vote Tuesday, or 2,535 votes, to Brown's 39 percent, or 1,626. In a speech Monday, Smith had urged delegates to hold fast to their heritage of tolerance.

Using a parliamentary maneuver, the moderates also threw out Tuesday the controversial immersion proposal, made by the Rev. M.O. Owens of Gastonia.

And the delegates, or messengers, narrowly approved Smith's proposal to "depoliticize" the state convention by reducing the power of the president. The measure squeaked to victory by only four votes.

Conservatives acknowledged disappointment with the results of what they called a "watershed" convention. But they said they would be back next year to claim power in an organization they say is dominated by moderates and not representative of the average Baptist.

"We're not mad, we're not angry, we just want to be heard," Brown said as he clutched a batch of computer ballots. "We just didn't have a concerted political machine to get out the vote."

Conservatives called the immersion issue fundamental to Baptists, while moderates dubbed it a "Mom and apple pie" conservative rallying cry.

At issue was the question of whether all churches in the state convention should be required to baptize by immersion new members who were baptized by a different method in another denomination.

Neither side got the chance to vote on that proposed change to the bylaws because Smith pointed out that the measure was out of order according to the rules of the convention.

He said the change would have superseded the existing guides for baptism in the convention's constitution. Since that was not permissible, according to the convention's rules of order, Owens' proposal was ruled out of order.

Scoffing at the parliamentary ruling as "just semantics," Owens called it a power play on the part the moderates. "This was just the easiest way to defeat it," he said.

Moderates scored their third victory when messengers narrowly approved Dr. Smith's proposal to reduce the power of the president of the state convention. The measure would prevent extreme factions from taking control of the convention through the office of the president, moderates said.

The delegates amended the bylaws to make the 110-member General Board, the convention's board of directors, responsible for overseeing appointments of trustees to the various Baptist state agencies. The president formerly held that power.

Conservatives currently control the national convention and have appointed like-minded trustees to the institutions it controls, such as Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest.

Acknowledging that the four-vote victory was not a mandate, Dr. Smith said, "We're not looking for a mandate, we're looking for a bylaw change."

But the Conservative Carolina

Baptists, a newly formed coalition, opposed the measure as unnecessary.

The measure will not keep conservatives from controlling the convention because they can still use the General Board to gain influence, said the Rev. C. Mark Cortis, a member of the conservative group.

In other business Tuesday, the delegates re-elected two moderates as officers. The Rev. Gene Watterson of Shelby and Helen Moon Cashwell of Raleigh were re-elected first and second vice president, respectively.

Environmentalists Opposing Company

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The parent company of one of the two businesses that wants to operate a low-level radioactive waste facility in North Carolina has been fined more than $30 million for environmental violations, a state environmental coalition says.

"A proven history of non-compliance with environmental regulations and disregard for public health should disqualify any applicant," Lou Zeller, a spokesman for the N.C. Radioactive Waste Roundtable, said in a letter to the North Carolina Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority.

Zeller said Waste Management Inc., the parent company of Chem-Nuclear, was fined more than $30 million from 1982 to mid-1987. He said a Greenpeace report showed 18 WMI sites have been found out of compliance with federal and state environmental regulations, while 10 have contaminated groundwater and five have been ordered to close.

Zeller said future fines, lawsuits and cleanup costs could imperil WMI's corporate financial stability, possibly threatening the safety of a North Carolina facility.

The criticisms came Tuesday during a meeting of the low-level radioactive waste management panel, which is seeking a site for the facility and a contractor to operate it. A report on potential sites was expected Nov. 30 and a contractor was to be chosen by Jan. 31.

North Carolina was chosen by an eight-state Southeast compact to handle the region's low-level waste when the facility in Barnwell, S.C., closes in 1992.

Environmentalist John Runkle said opponents of Chem-Nuclear were not necessarily endorsing Westinghouse Electric Corp., the only other bidder. But he said, "So far, their record is better."

Jesse Riley, a Charlotte chemist, said in a letter to the authority that Westinghouse's proposal was technically superior to Chem-Nuclear and appeared better suited to protecting workers.

Bob Reincke, a spokesman for WMI in Illinois, said the fine figures were inflated and that none of the problems were related to low-level radioactive waste handling.

Dave Ebenhack of Chem-Nuclear, which runs the radioactive-waste landfill in Barnwell, S.C., also objected to the criticisms.

"We're separate," he said. "We don't deal with them (WMI) at all. And none of those violations are against us."

President-elect Bush stands with Nicholas Brady after announcing Brady will join Cabinet

Bush Will Keep Brady As Treasury Secretary

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — George Bush, promising to bring both continuity and change to the White House, is keeping Nicholas Brady on board as treasury secretary, while sources say the president-elect has tapped feisty New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu as chief of staff.

Bush was meeting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the White House today while his transition co-chairmen, Craig Fuller and Robert Teeter, were expected to announce a raft of additions to the transition team.

Among those slated to be named deputy transition directors is Fred Fielding, the former Reagan White House counsel now advising Dan Quayle, the vice president-elect.

On Tuesday, after flying home from a four-day Florida vacation with Sununu in tow, Bush met with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and announced Brady as the second occupant of his Cabinet. He said he was not prepared to announce his chief of staff, "but it might be fairly soon."

Sources close to Bush who insisted on anonymity said the choice was already made, with the nod going to the 49-year-old lame duck New Hampshire governor who helped Bush bounce back from a defeat in the Iowa caucuses last February.

The blunt-spoken Sununu, a one-time engineering professor, was an indefatigable Bush campaigner, often employed as a surrogate to attack Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee, and his claims of a "Massachusetts miracle."

The Sununu choice should cheer conservatives worried that the pivotal White House job would fall to Fuller, chief of Bush's vice presidential staff for the past four years and regarded as more of a moderate and pragmatist. Fuller may be in line for a Cabinet post, possibly Transportation. He is expected to disband working under Sununu at the White House.

But Sununu's selection would leave Bush with a right-hand aide with no Washington experience. Sununu's government experience consists of six years as chief executive of one of the smallest states in the union. A father of eight, Sununu decided against seeking a fourth term this fall, largely for financial reasons.

Brady, 58, former chairman of the investment banking house of Dillon, Read & Co., joins James A. Baker III, the secretary of state-designate, as a cornerstone member of the Bush Cabinet. Brady took over the Treasury Department post in August when Baker quit to run Bush's campaign.

Bush said Brady "will be the chief economic spokesman for my administration."

"He knows that our most important priority is to keep our economy growing with low inflation and ... that we must resist the policies that will impede that effort, such as raising taxes or resorting to protection."

Bush added that Brady also "knows we've got to sit down with the Congress and hammer out a budget deficit reduction agreement and that we have to do it soon."

"I'm putting together a good team here. ... " said Bush. "You'll see some continuity and you'll see some change."

Sununu flew to Florida Monday for a private dinner with Bush at a friend's beach home where the Bushes took their post-election respite.

At a dinner Tuesday night honoring his wife Barbara for her crusade against illiteracy, Bush joked that he had not quite been able to escape the media on his vacation.

"The slogan was not, given these telephoto lenses, 'Read our lips,' but 'Read our hips' as we were in the surf," he said.

Both Bushes were visibly moved by the salute at the National Literacy Honors dinner, where Mrs. Bush and 18 adults who recently learned to read received gold medallions. Opera star Sherrill Milnes, singers Loretta Lynn and Pearl Bailey, Govs. Thomas Kean of New Jersey and Bill Clinton of Arkansas, and the Naval Academy Glee Club joined in the festivities.

U.S. Calls For 2-Year Freeze On Farm Supports, Subsidies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new U.S. proposal for overhauling world agricultural trade policies calls for a two-year freeze on all farm price supports, subsidies and trade barriers.

Some basic price supports for U.S. farmers could be affected by the freeze, but it would exempt direct income benefits and "safety net" subsidies paid in case of drought and other natural disasters.

The proposal, dated Nov. 7, was made as part of the current Uruguay Round of trade talks under the 96-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Those talks were launched in Uruguay in 1986 and are scheduled to conclude in 1990.

Earlier, the United States proposed the elimination of farm subsidies by the year 2000, but the plan was strongly resisted by the European Economic Community and Japan.

Under the latest proposal, which was released Tuesday by the office of U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter, the United States would agree to the freeze in 1989 and 1990 in return for a commitment from other countries to "eliminate all measures that directly or indirectly affect trade" and to write new rules that are based on free trade principles.

The new U.S. plan is scheduled to be taken up during a mid-term negotiating session beginning Dec. 5 in Montreal.

According to the proposal, the United States also is seeking "a commitment to undertake specific reforms that would bring all agricultural trade into compliance" with new GATT rules within a period of time agreed upon by the negotiators.

No deadline, such as the year 2000 in the previous U.S. plan, was mentioned in the new version.

Yeutter said in October that a short-term or interim agreement for 1989 and 1990 would be desirable for all of the GATT countries and get the reform process in motion. But Yeutter added that the United States "is not about to embark on this proposition unless we also receive a satisfactory commitment to long-term reform."

In seeking the full liberalization of agricultural trade, the U.S. proposal called upon trade ministers meeting in Montreal next month to undertake "fundamental policy reforms, within an agreed upon period of time, that would bring all countries into compliance" with free-trade principles.

Those principles, the proposal said, include the elimination of "all market access barriers and thereby provide treatment for imports no less favorable than the treatment accorded domestic commodities and products."

Further, it said, the objective would be "to eliminate all direct and indirect subsidies that directly or indirectly affect trade."

According to the U.S. plan, once the GATT trade ministers agree to the proposed reforms, the freeze on agricultural "support, subsidies and protection" could be worked out for 1989 and 1990.

The freeze would entail surveillance to ensure compliance by each country. Also, GATT members would pledge "not to introduce or undertake any new measures nor any other measures that would circumvent the objectives of the freeze."

Grain Program To Remain Intact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says no change will be made in the announced requirement that farmers will have to idle 10 percent of their feed grain base acreage to qualify for price supports and other benefits next year.

Deputy Secretary Peter C. Myers said Tuesday the 10 percent acreage reduction program, or ARP, for 1989 was announced on Sept. 30. But the law also authorizes further adjustments by Nov. 15 if the prospective total supply of corn and other feed grains changes significantly.

The 10 percent reduction applies to 1989 crops of corn, sorghum and barley, which carried a 20 percent ARP this year. The ARP for oats will be 5 percent, unchanged from 1988.

Tornadoes Kill 7 In Sweep Through Five States

By Bart Ziegler
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 35 tornadoes churned a trail of destruction through five states, killing seven people and injuring dozens, while the same storm system left three people dead in road accidents in the season's first major snowfall.

The twisters took their worst toll in Arkansas, where six people were killed and many others injured on Tuesday as the tornadoes damaged buildings and overturned cars.

"I can't even tell what street I'm on because the trees are uprooted," said Police Chief Darnell Scott of the central Arkansas town of Lonoke. "Damage is so bad. I think we were very lucky it wasn't more tragic than it was."

Tornadoes also struck Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Iowa, while in Oklahoma high winds caused damage and fanned the flames of a cotton fire that destroyed 20 homes and businesses and injured 18 people in Tulsa.

One person died in Missouri when a tornado threw a trailer home into the air, authorities said. A woman in Illinois was electrocuted by a power line downed by high wind.

"It may be a little unusual for this time of year to have a tornado outbreak like this, because they normally occur in spring," said meteorologist Brian Smith from the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City. The twisters and their accompanying thunderstorms were created by an intense area of low pressure over the upper Mississippi Valley and a cold front trailing south from the low, Smith said this morning.

The same low pressure system produced up to a foot of snow over most of Colorado and Western Kansas on Tuesday, and the snow moved today into the eastern Dakotas.

Minnesota, northwest Iowa and eastern Nebraska, he said. The storm closed schools in Colorado and caused three traffic fatalities in there.

In Arkansas, as many as 10 tornadoes touched down Tuesday night, toppling trees, downing power lines and crumpling mobile homes, houses and businesses.

Two people were killed on Interstate 40 near Lonoke when high winds overturned their vehicle.

A Wal-Mart store and an attached grocery in Lonoke were demolished by a tornado. A janitor suffered a minor shoulder injury, police said.

Three other people were killed when a tornado ripped through the town of Scott in west-central Arkansas, and a man injured when a twister struck north-central Arkansas later died at a hospital, authorities said.

More than a half-dozen people were treated at a Clarksville, Ark., hospital for injuries from high winds, Johnson County Sheriff Eddie King said.

"We had several homes demolished, six to 10 homes destroyed — roofs blown out, trailer homes flipped over," King said.

In southwest Missouri, officials searched beneath overturned trailers for victims of a tornado that hit Butterfield. The Barry County Sheriff's Department said a 69-year-old woman died when the twister flung her double-wide mobile home into the air.

Deputy Sheriff Mike Cooper said 24 houses and trailers were damaged or destroyed, leaving 15 people injured, 11 requiring hospitalization.

In Topeka, Kan., a tornado descended without warning, crashing into Topeka West High School shortly before 2 p.m.

"Everyone's ears started popping and the teacher told us to get down," said student Jennifer Stanley. "All the windows started popping out."

Six students suffered minor cuts from broken glass, said Superintendent Gary Livingston.

The tornado skipped through the city, causing more than $3.5 million in damage as it battered about 50 homes and destroyed as many as 20 others, Mayor Doug Wright said. About 15 businesses were damaged or destroyed.

Donna Clark was in her house when the tornado peeled off its roof. Then she saw her car fly past her into the yard.

"I thought, 'My God, I'm gone,'" she said.

Clark said she grabbed at a stuffed chair in her living room but couldn't hang on and was briefly picked up by the wind, but she managed to hold onto a dining room chair that prevented her from being sucked through a window.

Seven people were taken to hospitals in Topeka for treatment of injuries.

At least three tornadoes swept through Illinois, overturning mobile homes near Springfield, where at least eight people were injured.

In Rockford, the driver of a van was electrocuted when she was forced into a ditch by a power line downed by wind. She stepped on the line when exiting the van, authorities said.

A tornado in southeast Iowa's Monroe County caused minor injuries to a woman and three children when it hit their mobile home, one of four trailers destroyed.

$41 Million Settlement Announced

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — A judge said he hoped a $41 million settlement in the L'Ambiance Plaza collapse would help the survivors and, with the building's reconstruction, "some good will rise from where so many tragically fell."

Families of the 28 men killed in the Bridgeport building collapse and the 16 men who were injured will share $30 million under a tentative $41 million settlement of all lawsuits, U.S. District Judge Robert C. Zampano said Tuesday.

Zampano said he and a state Superior Court judge, who together mediated talks leading to the settlement, scheduled a hearing for final approval of the agreement for Dec. 1.

If all parties sign, it would end all litigation from the collapse of the half-finished apartment building in Bridgeport on April 23, 1987.

"All 40 defendants and potential defendants contributed (to the settlement), which speaks of extraordinary cooperation," Zampano said.

The proposed settlement didn't resolve the question of who was to blame, although federal investigators placed the primary blame for the accident on three contractors.

Zampano added in a report released Monday, "It is hoped that the termination of the L'Ambiance litigation will ease the survivors' distress and, with the reconstruction of the building ... some good will rise from where so many tragically fell."

Bridgeport Common Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to contribute $3 million to the settlement. The agreement, said Alderman Christopher L. Caruso, "puts behind us a very sad chapter for the city of Bridgeport."

The Bridgeport council agreed to pay $1 million into the $30 million fund. In addition, the council approved a tax abatement of $2 million on the project site if the building is rebuilt.

Landlady Sought In Yard Deaths

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Autopsies were begun on seven unidentified bodies found buried in shallow graves in a rooming house yard as authorities searched for the landlady suspected of killing her tenants.

Workers with shovels and tractors Tuesday finished digging up the yard where the bodies have been found since Friday, and began excavating adjacent land where the landlady reportedly gardened.

Police Sgt. Bob Burns said no additional bodies were unearthed, nor were any bodies found during a search of the rooming house Tuesday.

Burns said police suspect the victims, all believed to be elderly, were killed for their Social Security checks. The first of the autopsies, to determine the cause of death and identities, are under way at the coroner's office, he added.

The FBI has joined the search for the 59-year-old landlady, Dorothea Montalvo Puente, which has focused on Las Vegas, Burns said. An arrest warrant charging her with murder was issued Monday.

"She may have gone to see a relative in Las Vegas. We are investigating that. The Las Vegas police have not completed their investigation," he said.

A Sacramento television station KCRA reported that Puente's nephew, Michael Montalvo, told Las Vegas police he picked up Puente at the airport Monday morning.

Both Burns and Las Vegas police declined comment on that report, but Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Detective Augie Knudson said his department had issued an all-points bulletin for Puente.

There is no Michael Montalvo listed in Las Vegas telephone directories, and calls to listings for other Montalvos were unsuccessful. Police in Las Vegas refuse to say whether they have talked with him.

Authorities believe Mexico City, where Puente reportedly has relatives, may be her intended destination.

Police on Tuesday searched Puente's baby-blue Victorian house and took 10 paper bags of items, a drawer filled with bric-a-brac and a carpet.

Burns said a decision on whether to dig in another location — a nearby home formerly operated by Puente in the 1970s — had not been made.

Puente disappeared after police interviewed her for several hours after the discovery of the first body. She was released for lack of evidence.

Authorities were led to the house by neighbors and a social worker, who said that some tenants of the home had been missing for weeks.

Puente has earlier convictions for state and federal crimes. In 1978, she was convicted of forging a U.S. Treasury check and was sentenced to seven years probation. In 1982, she was convicted of robbing and drugging three men she met in Sacramento taverns and served 2½ years at the state prison.

According to police statements filed to obtain the warrant, Puente twice denied killing her missing tenants. "Sir, I have never killed anybody," she said.

Pro-Choice Groups Say Call For Study Of Abortion Ruling Is 'War' Declaration

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is "declaring war on the women of this country" by asking the Supreme Court to reconsider its 1973 ruling that women have a constitutional right to an abortion, pro-choice and feminist groups said.

Leaders of the groups also said Tuesday that the Justice action last week means there will be "no honeymoon on the issue of abortion" for President-elect George Bush.

"We are determined that not one woman in America will die or be maimed from a back alley abortion because George Bush was elected president of the United States," said a visibly angered Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women.

"Mr. Bush may intend to make abortion illegal again, but he has to understand that if he tries, he will be awakening a 'sleeping giant' — the millions of women who have had abortions, both before and after the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, Yard told a news conference Tuesday.

"There aren't enough jails in America to hold the women who will defy a law that takes away their right to abortion," Yard said. "Neither will they stand by and see their doctors jailed as Bush suggested in his campaign."

Outlining an action plan culminating in a march for women's rights in April 1989, Yard said Tuesday's session was called in response to a Justice Department brief filed last week urging the Supreme Court to hear a Missouri case that could overturn the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion.

Yard characterized the Justice Department action, which was filed just 48 hours after the presidential election and on the last day a brief would be accepted, as "a cynical, despicable trick."

"The action just taken by the Justice Department drew a line in the sand, a line we cannot, and will not ignore," said Yard adding, "that is declaring war on the women of this country."

"There will be no honeymoon period," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the Fund for the Feminist Majority.

Smeal said more direct action was now necessary to move forward on key issues of the feminist agenda because the re-election of 98.5 percent of congressional incumbents on Nov. 8 indicates "both political parties continue to lock women and minorities out."

The French explorer La Salle was murdered in 1687 by mutineers in what is now Texas.

Airline Will Base Fares On Mileage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A revamped "MaxSaver" program announced by Continental Airlines is expected to boost the majority of the airline's remaining cut-rate fares and could lead to similar hikes throughout the industry.

Continental said Tuesday that its MaxSaver fares — which are used by most vacation travelers — would be based on the length of a flight under the new formula.

Competition on individual routes, not mileage, had determined MaxSaver rates in the past. MaxSaver tickets must be purchased seven to 14 days in advance and require a Saturday night stay.

The change came just days after Continental initiated an industry move to drop discounts aimed at business travelers.

"You will see some MaxSavers going up and some MaxSavers going down," Walker said. "We are returning air fares to a more rational level."

He said fares for longer flights generally would be raised somewhat while those for shorter hauls mostly would be reduced.

For example, between Newark and Los Angeles, the current $159 one-way off-peak fare would be increased to $179; the current $184 peak fare would be increased to $199. But between Phoenix and Tampa, Fla., the off-peak fare of $174 would be reduced to $159, the $204 peak reduced to $179. Off-peak includes all day Saturday, Sunday morning and some designated weekday flights.

It was not immediately clear whether other big carriers would follow Continental's latest move, but the airline has been a fare pacesetter in recent years.

The airline planned to notify travel agents about the new fares Tuesday night and today, spokesman Ned Walker said in a telephone interview Tuesday from Continental's headquarters in Houston. He said the new MaxSaver fares would take effect next Wednesday.

Some travel agents told about the changes said they appeared to have the effect of raising roughly two-thirds of Continental's MaxSaver fares and cutting the remaining third or so.

"They're going to raise it to the level that it should have been in the first place," said Jack Bloch, owner of JB's World Travel in New York.

Air fare structures have become geographically "out of whack" as a result of airlines frequently matching each other's fare increases in recent months, said Robert Decker, an airline analyst for Duff & Phelps Inc. in Chicago.

In The Area

Meeting Is Called

The Pitt-Greenville Chapter of the GI-CM Eppes Alumni Association will have a call meeting for all Harvest Ball ticket sales. All members are asked to report to the secretary from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Friday at 6 Vance St.

Police Issue Permit

Greenville police have issued a solicitation permit to the Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi to conduct Santa visits from Saturday through Nov. 30 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Westhaven, Belvedere, Lyndale and Grayleigh.

Falkland Has Activities

Mary Alsentzer of the League of Women Voters and Gigi Walter of The Daily Reflector visited Jane Reel's fifth grade class at Falkland Elementary School to share information on the election process.

Vicky Coggins' second grade class at the school won the Parent Teacher Organization membership drive by having the largest number of parents join the PTO. Mary Worrell, chairman of the drive, presented the class with certificates and a popcorn party.

All students at the school attended the performance of "Hans Christian Andersen, the Dreamer, the Man," at H.B. Sugg School where the actors featured excerpts from five of Andersen's fairy tales. The Farmville Arts Council sponsored the performance by the Peel and Smith acting company.

Student Officers Elected

Pactolus Elementary School recently elected its first student government with Rico Hines, president; Heather Warren, vice president, and Kristin Crandall, secretary. Proposed committees and projects are the Menu Committee, the Lost and Found Committee, Pride Week and Special Delivery.

Linda Whitehurst, school counselor, presented "The Counselor's Bag" to each homeroom to introduce the school counselor's responsibilities.

Jane Powers' second graders concluded an animal unit by fossiling at Green Springs Park. All children found at least one shark tooth, and students measured three dinosaurs in the hallway of the school.

Fourth and fifth graders will celebrate Children's Book Week by having a reading round-up, and Melvin Atkinson, a blacksmith, will demonstrate how to show a horse. Second and third graders will learn the facts and legends about Johnny Appleseed, while Charles Wainwright from Little's Nursery will present a program on apple trees. Frankie Coburn will share circus magic with kindergarten and first grade students, and there will be several activities organized around books including "Reading Jogs Your Mind Day," and "Wish Upon A Book."

Thefts Investigated

Greenville police said seven thefts, including an armed robbery at the Trade Station on North Greene Street, were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer K.L. Jones said a man armed with a pistol took an undetermined amount of cash from the service station on North Greene Street in a robbery reported at 8:57 p.m., while Officer J.A. Felton said a gold necklace valued at $400 was taken from 950 E. 10th St. in an incident reported at 11:58 a.m.

Officer R.G. Mendenhall said a wallet containing $2 was taken from a shopping cart at the Food Lion store at University Square Shopping Center on E. 10th Street in an incident reported at 12:32 p.m. and a wallet containing $30 was taken from a shopping cart at the Winn Dixie store at Rivergate Shopping Center on E. 10th Street in an incident reported at 12:58 p.m., while Officer R.C. Allbrook said a purse was taken from the offices of Federal Judge Malcolm Howard in the Federal Building on Evans Street in an incident reported at 2:15 p.m.

Officer A.T. Parrish said $600 was taken from Bojangles restaurant at 911 Memorial Dr. in an incident reported at 4:25 p.m., while Sgt. T.V. Woolard said a purse was snatched from the hands of a woman in the parking lot at the U.S. Post Office on West Second Street in an incident reported at 7:46 p.m.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU SMELL GAS.

Call Greenville Utilities immediately. Anytime day or night. We'll get a serviceman to your home or location to correct the problem. While you're waiting for him to get there, open a window, make sure you use no electrical switches. Extinguish any open flames and evacuate the area. If you don't know what natural gas smells like, stop by our office and pick up a scratch and sniff leaflet. Because even though natural gas contains no poisonous ingredients, a leak can become hazardous if combustible gas pockets are allowed to form, which makes it important for you to know what natural gas smells like.

*Note: If the leak is located in the customers piping or appliances, a service charge will be billed on the following monthly utility bill.

Musical Mom Ginny Reilly Harmonizes With Babies And B-Flats

By Jerry Schwartz
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Ginny Reilly has been both mommy and musician for seven years, but mostly she's kept her babies and her B-flats separate.

No more. In her new album, "Doodle Lee Do'in," Reilly follows the course of motherhood, from a woman's yearning for a child to her pregnancy to the joys and frustrations of being a parent.

In a crystal-clear soprano, she sings a lullaby to the fetus locked inside her womb, imploring the child not to be afraid to be born:

"There'll be stars above
And warm soft woolen gloves
And someone new to love
When you come out and play."

She criticizes an infant's manners: "I feed you all the night and day. You throw it back right into my face." But years later she misses the travails of caring for a baby: "There's nobody playing with the knobs and dials, nobody giving me a toothless smile...."

Reilly has always found her inspiration in her own life. In her 20s and early 30s, she says, "I wrote a lot about sad love affairs. I kind of ran out of ideas there, so I got married."

Then came her children — Emily, 7, and Charlie, 5 — the inspiration for "Doodle Lee Do'in." The album cover shows a pregnant, seated Reilly with a Coke cup balanced on her distended belly.

Although there is a sweet sunniness to the album, Reilly does not suggest that motherhood has been as easy as apple pie.

"In reality, motherhood has been a real challenge to me. It's been hard," says the 42-year-old, Seattle-based singer.

Between making beds, vacuuming the floors and picking up the kids, her energy and creativity flagged. She had no time to write music; the song "Emily" was composed entirely in her head, because she "just didn't have a second" to sit down with a guitar.

Nor did she sing to her babies. "Charlie actually would begin to cry when I sang to him," she said.

Charlie may be adorable — like his mother and sister, he has a crop of orange hair — but his taste in music is questionable. His mother has been singing professionally since 1968, and has sung with David Maloney since 1970.

The duo, billed as Reilly & Maloney, has put out seven albums on their own Freckle Records label, which is run by Reilly's husband, Jack Burg. Though they have toured widely, they're most popular on the West Coast.

Reilly has made one other solo album, but had never considered a collection of the motherhood songs she had written over the years. On tour, she would sing one or two of the songs at each show.

"The nightclub people aren't too excited to hear all your baby songs back to back," she says.

Then, three years ago, she was asked to sing at a regional convention of the International Childbirth Education Association. She put together a program of appropriate songs, and they were well received. Afterwards, members of the audience lined up to buy tapes of her performance.

"First, I freaked out because they weren't supposed to be selling my music. Then I thought, 'Maybe there's some interest in this,' she said.

It took a while to put the album together. Emily and Charlie listened as she practiced songs about them, and they kept a close tally of how many songs were about each child.

Her album complete, Reilly thinks she knows why women have produced few songs about pregnancy and motherhood: "They've been too busy doing it."

Even given the time, she says, such songs may not draw any attention.

"The only real women's music you see these days is by lesbians," she says. "I sometimes say I'm going to do an album called 'Songs for Neurotic, Heterosexual Women.' You have to be different and weird to get any attention nowadays."

She will sing some of the songs when she and Maloney tour, as they do about 100 days a year. Touring is tough, but not necessarily because she is separated from her children.

"The hard thing is to make the switch between working and being a housewife," she said. "I get back into staying up late at night to work, sleeping late in the morning, talking to adults all day, reading — that old life I used to live when I was younger."

"I get back here and wham, I walk into the house and there's this whole other universe. It takes days to get used to it. I've been back seven days now and I just today got around to vacuuming the house."

Fight Stress With Exercise

NEW YORK (AP) — Regular aerobic workouts may significantly reduce the cardiovascular effects of stress, even helping to prevent high blood pressure and heart attacks, says the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

A University of North Carolina study split 174 men into three groups based on their aerobic activity levels: low, medium and high. Each man took a reaction-time test after being told that he would receive an electric shock if his score was not high enough.

Arts Council Awards Funds To Projects

The Pitt-Greenville Arts Council (P-GAC) has awarded $5,000 for local arts project support. A grant awarded the local agency by the North Carolina Arts Council's Grassroots Program provided $2,500 of this money; matching funds are provided by the P-GAC from local sources such as the annual membership fund drive.

All member organizations of the P-GAC qualify to apply for allocations or subgrants. Subgrants for 1988-89 have been awarded to:

- Ayden Theatre Workshop, a theatrical troupe which presents an opportunity for area citizens to participate in the dramatic arts by presenting plays.

- Eastern Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Association, an established youth orchestra which provides workshops, clinics, master classes, guest performances and summer camp activities.

- The Greenville Choral Society, an organization which gives area citizens opportunities to perform different mediums of choral music.

- The Greenville Boy's Choir, a choral group which encourages technical musical training for boys from grades 3-8 through study and performance.

- The Greenville Orchestra Boosters Association, a group which helps support the public school orchestral program for the Rose High attendance area.

- The Greenville Suzuki Association, an organization which presents concerts by its students, conducts workshops and renders scholarships for violinists and pianists.

- The Tar River Community Band, a community group which participates in community and area performances.

Holiday Benefits Aid Conservancy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The Nature Conservancy, a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving rare and endangered plants and animals, will benefit from two Christmas holiday endeavors.

The Conservancy is selling its first tree ornament, a 24-karat gold-finished wreath encircling three cranes and inscribed "Christmas 1988."

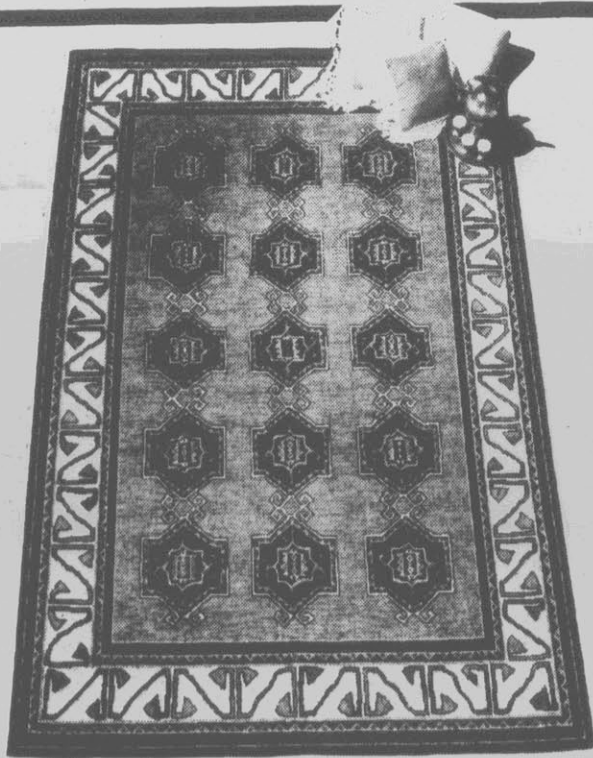

In addition, Orvis, the mail-order catalog company, says it will donate all profits from sales of a specially designed sweater to the Nature Conservancy. The Nature Conservancy, headquartered in Washington, works with local, state and federal governments to identify and protect important natural areas. It has preserves in all 50 states with 968 sanctuaries under conservancy management. Project acres total more than 3 million in the United States, Canada, Latin America and the Caribbean and include forests, swamps, marshes, prairies, mountains, beaches and islands.

The ornament is available for $11.45 including gift box, shipping and handling, from Nature Conservancy Ornament, P.O. Box 627, Gibbstown, NJ 08027.

Thursday Marks 12th Great American Smokeout

Dear Readers: Tomorrow will mark the 12th Annual Great American Smokeout, a one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours, just to prove they can do it. The idea, conceived by Lynn R. Smith, editor of the Monticello (Minn.) Times, has now spread to Canada, Great Britain, France, Ireland, Australia, South Africa, Norway, Finland and Sweden.

Last year, more than 19.5 million smokers tried to quit for the day. This represents more than 39 percent of the nation's 50 million smokers.

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

cause of death among women and men today is lung cancer. An estimated 92,000 men and 44,000 women will die of lung cancer in 1988.

And now, a word about smoking-related diseases — emphysema, chronic bronchitis and heart disease: This year an estimated 320,000 will die from one of these. This total exceeds the number of U.S. battle deaths in World War II; it is eight times as many people who die in automobile accidents every year!

A congressional study has reported that health costs from the adverse effects of smoking have reached a new high of $100 billion a year in increased medical bills and lost productivity. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured. (And how does one measure the amount of heartache, remorse and guilt suffered as a result of a preventable, self-induced tragedy?)

What about "secondhand" smoke? Is it actually damaging to non-smokers to be in the presence of those who are smoking? Yes! Furthermore, studies reveal that the children of smokers are more prone to lung problems and allergies than are children of non-smokers.

For years I have begged my young readers, "If you smoke, quit now. If you don't smoke, don't start!" Yet an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 kids light up for the first time every day. Why? Peer pressure, no doubt.

Quitting "cold turkey" is the hardest way to quit, but my readers have told me it's the most effective, and in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking just one, two or three cigarettes a day.

Those who are heavily addicted may require help to break the habit. Call your local chapter of the American Cancer Society for information.

So if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I'm going to quit," why not start tomorrow?

It won't be easy, but it will be the best Thanksgiving present you can give yourself — and those who love you.

P.S. A favor, please? If you quit tomorrow, even for 24 hours, I want to hear from you. Then write again and let me know how long you were able to stay clean. Good luck. Keep me posted.

P.S.S. Apropos "Thanks for Not Smoking" signs some folks have in their homes: I once saw a sign that read: "If you smoke on these premises, we will assume that you are on fire, and you will be treated accordingly."

Holley-Myers Couple Wed

The wedding vows of Janet Patrice Myers and Dr. William Keith Holley were exchanged in St. James United Methodist Church in Greenville at 2 p.m. Nov. 5.

The Rev. Caswell E. Shaw conducted the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, George Taylor Myers, the bride had her mother, Patricia B. Myers as her matron of honor. The Myers are from Clayton, Ga.

The bridegroom's father was his best man. Dr. and Mrs. William Hampton Holley of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Jay Holley of Greenville and David Holley of Burlington, both brothers of the bridegroom.

Music was provided by Francis Cain, organist.

The bride wore a floor-length ivory satin gown with a chapel-length train. It had a scooped neckline and an empire waist sashed with a satin ribbon. The hem of the gown and the train were decorated with appliques of ivory daisies.

A reception followed the wedding. A pre-nuptial pig-pickin' was held at Cherry Oaks Club House. A miscellaneous shower was given.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Florida at Gainesville. She is a chemist at Glaxo in Zebulon and he is a visiting professor in the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry.

After a wedding trip to the Florida Keys, the couple will live in Wilson.

Toasters Holding Their Own, Despite The Microwave Age

PITTSBURG, Tex. (AP) — The toaster may be old, but it isn't obsolete, even in the age of microwave ovens.

A survey conducted by Pilgrim's Pride Corporation found that 89 percent of U.S. households own either toasters or toaster ovens, and more than 60 percent own microwaves.

In households that own both types of appliances, 84 percent say that while they use microwaves more frequently than toasters, 81 percent continue to use their toasters as much as or more often than they did a year ago.

According to the survey, a typical toaster user tends to be older, with more than half of the 50-plus age group reporting usage at least once a day.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today after Tuesday's mild rally faded.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 2.85 to 2,074.32 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 9 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 312 up, 567 down and 529 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19.31 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Before the market opened the Commerce Department reported that the U.S. trade deficit narrowed to $10.46 billion in September from $12.27 billion the month before.

Among actively traded blue chips, American Telephone & Telegraph dropped 1/8 to 28 1/8; Exxon 3/8 to 42 1/2; International Business Machines 3/8 to 116 3/8, and Eastman Kodak 1/8 to 44 3/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell 33 to 151.00. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .06 at 289.53.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 12.09 to 2,077.17, snapping a four-session losing streak.

Advancing and declining issues were nearly even in nationwide trading of NYSE-listed stocks, with 715 up, 709 down and 534 unchanged.

Volume on the NYSE floor totaled 115.17 million shares, down from 142.90 million in the previous session.

Arlington Relocation Proposed

staff opposes the request, saying it would violate the purpose of the MD-4 zone, which provides for the sale of retail goods and service-oriented operations in the Medical District.

The commission voted to approve recommendation of a request by Collice C. Moore to rezone a 30-acre tract located off the northern right of way of Dickinson Avenue extension (U.S. 13) and east of Westwood subdivision from RA-20 (residential/agricultural) and R-9 (residential) to nine acres of O&I-II (office and institutional) and 21 acres of CS (shopping center).

If zoning of the tract is approved by the council, approximately 250 feet of O&I-II and 696 feet of CS would front Dickenson Avenue.

In other matters Tuesday, the commission recommended the council approve a request by Myles Carrette to annex .46 acres located off the western right of way of SR 1700 (Evans Street Extension), being the back portion of Brookfield Apartments, section II; a request by David Evans, David Evans Jr. and Anne Brewer to close a portion of 14th Street, being that area of the old right of way located outside the new alignment, and a request by the development department to amend the Zoning Ordinance to allow one menu-reader board per each restaurant drive-through facility. The amendment stipulates the reader boards must be located at the rear of the facility.

The commission also approved two preliminary plats.

The commission did not make any comment on the sign plan. It is scheduled to take up the issue at its December meeting; then the City Council is to act on the plan.

In the list of objections the planning staff sent Nichols, it stated the proposed signs were designed for interstate highways, not urbanized areas.

The staff also stated that there are approximately 95 restaurants, 14 motels and 35 businesses selling gasoline and it would be difficult to place the signs in a location that would be fair to all businesses. The staff also raised questions about what type of facilities would be considered restaurant and gas stations.

The authority has proposed erecting one sign along U.S. 264 near ABC Moving and Storage, where the state's right of way varies from 18 feet to 30 feet from the curb. The sign would instruct motorists to use the right lane to reach lodging facilities.

Under the proposal, the second sign would be located near the Holiday Inn, where the state's right of way is about eight to 10 feet from the curb. The sign would instruct motorists to turn right for food, lodging and gas and left for food and gas.

The planning staff also questioned whether the signs are needed at all, pointing out there are three motels, six restaurants and two gas stations within sight of the proposed signs.

Nichols said he disagreed with each objection the planning staff cited, but he told the authority the recommendation does not kill the project.

"Even if we don't get a positive recommendation (from the Planning and Zoning Commission), it will go to the City Council, and the City Council will vote," he said. "I think we can show a very valid reason for the signs."

Endorsed was a preliminary plat of Sheraton Village Townhomes, section 5, phase I, located on Haven Drive north of Westhaven subdivision section 8, involving 31 residential townhouse units on a 6.13-acre tract, and a preliminary plat of Summerfield Gardens, section II, located south of Peed Drive, east of Summerfield subdivision phase II and consisting of seven multi-family development tracts and 600 lineal feet of public street on a 9.16-acre tract.

Commission members also listened to the city staff's recommendation that 70 feet be adopted as the maximum-height limit for buildings in the non-residential zones of the medical district.

Simoneau said 70 feet was selected after considering local fire protection capabilities, the overall character and appearance of the area, and air space required by Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The discussion originated following a request by East Group Inc. to increase the maximum-height limit from 35 to 80 feet in the MD-6 (commercial) zoning district.

The commission, after initially considering the matter July 19, voted then to recommend that the City Council deny the request. However at its Aug. 11 meeting, the council referred the matter back to the planning commission for further consideration while directing the staff to study maximum-height limitations in all medical-district zoning classifications.

The commission will consider the staff's recommendation on height limitations at its December meeting. Consideration of an amendment to the Bufferyard Ordinance was also continued until December.

The amendment would reduce from 500 feet to 250 feet the minimum spacing requirements between improved areas and adjoining property lines that exempts developments from bufferyard regulations and reduce bufferyard requirements where land being developed adjoins vacant RA-20 (residential/agricultural) property that Greenville's Comprehensive Plan recommends to be used for non-residential purposes.

Western Steer Restaurant will display 24 pieces of art work from fourth and fifth graders during November. The students were treated to lunch at the restaurant.

Six to eight pieces of art from kindergarten through fifth graders will be displayed Thursday in the Brody Building.

For National Children's Book Week, with the theme "Wish Upon a Book," classroom doors have been decorated with the name of each class's favorite book. Also, the students are participating in a read-in program, and there will be a book parade of favorite book characters. A slide presentation, produced by parents, will be presented.

The highlight of the week will be a visit by storyteller Louise Anderson.

Classes Complete Unit

The sixth grade accelerated science classes at Greenville Middle School have completed a unit of study of vertebrates. Students of Freda Dawson and Sylvia Jones did Gyo-taku, a Japanese method of fish printing, and identified external and internal organs.

Sea mullet, hog fish, croaker and drum were donated by Jay Nichols of Evans Seafood. Other unit activities included building mazes to test the learning behavior of Wilma and Harvey, the class guinea pigs.

Students Visit Coast

Second graders at South Greenville School recently visited Atlantic Beach and Pine Knoll Shores to culminate a study of ocean life. They visited the Marine Resource Center and viewed ocean animals and learned about the octopus.

Western Steer Restaurant will display 24 pieces of art work from fourth and fifth graders during November. The students were treated to lunch at the restaurant.

Nets, Carroll Top Hornets

Brian Rowsom Lost To Charlotte With Foot Fracture

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Joe Barry Carroll's wrist was bruised or worse, and his sore ankle was drenched in ice water.

"But we won, so it doesn't matter," Carroll shrugged after scoring 25 points and grabbing 10 rebounds in a 106-99 New Jersey Nets victory over the Charlotte Hornets.

"It's tough sometimes," Carroll, the Nets' center, said. "It gets ugly out there."

The Hornets know it. Charlotte lost its fifth game in six starts and the Hornets' best young inside prospect, power forward Brian Rowsom, to a foot fracture.

Rowsom broke the fifth toe of his left foot in the first quarter Tuesday and will miss six to eight weeks. The Hornets lost their third game in a row in the fourth quarter, allowing Carroll 10 points in that period on a shower of jumpshots.

In the first half, Carroll had an almost silent four points and one rebound.

"We let him get exactly the position he wanted," said Hornets center Dave Hoppen. "We shut him down the whole first half. Then, we just let him drive down the middle and take that hook shot."

"You let him do that and the guy is going to make a shot or get fouled," Hoppen said.

Hornets coach Dick Harter said Carroll's points reflected on the entire team's defense, particularly point guard Tyrone Bogues's inability to cut off Nets guard Lester Conner.

"Muggsy's man (Conner) was able to throw pinpoint passes to Carroll. We've got to get an answer to that," Harter said. "If you can't stop (Carroll) with ball pressure, you're in trouble unless you've got a 7-footer to block shots. And we don't."

When the Nets weren't pounding the ball inside to Carroll, they were feeding Mike McGee with breakaway layups for 26 points.

New Jersey erased the Hornets' six-point halftime lead in 3½ minutes, also canceling what had been the Hornets' best defensive half of the season. The Hornets held the Nets to two points in five minutes of the second quarter, turning a nine-point deficit into a five-point lead.

The Hornets scored 14 straight points, concluding with Kelly Tripucka's three-pointer, for a 39-34 lead with five minutes 13 seconds left in the half. Tripucka finished with 25 points, the highest total by a Hornet this season.

After New Jersey cut the margin to two with 54 seconds left in the half on John Bagley's free throw, Hornets power forward Earl Cureton came up strong with two post-up moves for a 51-45 halftime lead.

"The first half was the best we've played defensively," Harter said. "We were handling people one-on-one, we were very aggressive on the boards and we had our hands up in people's faces."

Then 7-1 Joe Barry Carroll took center stage.

"We let him get all he wanted," Hoppen said.

Boston 85, Miami 64
Miami has a new vice — its basketball team.

The pastel city's team was putrid Tuesday night, losing to the Boston Celtics 85-64, the third-fewest points scored by an NBA team since 1955.

Miami scored 26 points in the second half, one more than the record low. The expansion Heat missed 16 of its first 17 shots in the fourth quarter and scored nine points.

"Well, we escaped the record books," Miami coach Ron Rothstein said. "It's tough when you're on defense all the time. They come down and score quickly — it's like a dagger in your heart."

"We had our usual lapse," Rothstein said. "We did some good things, but we stopped. Who knows why? The guy who figures that out will sell it across the country and become a multimillionaire."

Miami made just 29 of 92 shots, 32 percent. Pearl Washington was 4-for-20. But at least one Miami player thought coming close to the Celtics was positive.

"This is a sign we're getting better," center Rony Seikaly said. "Teams are not running all over us, and the ball is going to start falling for us."

Only Buffalo with 63 points on Oct. 21, 1972, and Indiana with 64 on Dec. 10, 1985, scored fewer than Miami in the last 33 years. The record is 57 by Milwaukee on Feb. 27, 1955, the first season of the NBA's 24-second shot clock.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Denver 148-146 in double overtime, Atlanta beat Cleveland 97-95, Portland beat the Los Angeles Clippers 125-103, New Jersey beat Charlotte 106-99, New York beat Houston 126-121, Chicago beat Philadelphia 120-107, Detroit beat Dallas 108-99, Utah beat Indiana 108-96 and Phoenix beat Sacramento 119-89.

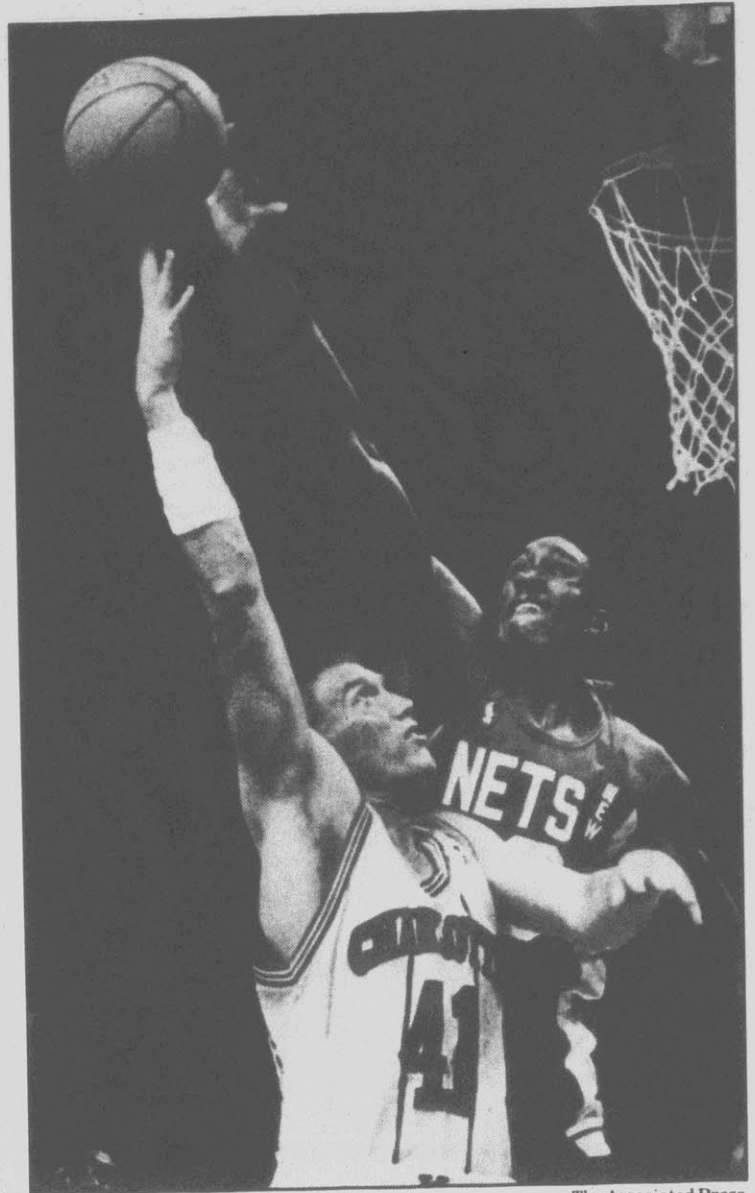

Kevin McHale scored 17 points for Boston, which ended a four-game losing streak, its longest in five years. The Celtics scored their fewest points since a 107-83 loss at Cleveland on April 7, 1983.

"We've got to win a few games. There has been a sense of adversity lately," Celtics coach Jim Rodgers said. "We were in a tough ballgame. I didn't feel confident until we got a run in the fourth quarter."

Larry Bird, bothered by tendinitis in his right Achilles tendon, played 16 minutes and scored six points.

Jayhawks Won't Defend Crown

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Last season, the Kansas Jayhawks won the national title despite 11 losses, more than any champion in NCAA history. This year, they won't win it even if they go undefeated.

The reason is as simple as NCAA — the Jayhawks are on probation for the next three years due to recruiting violations.

The penalty bars the Jayhawks from post-season play this year, while also stripping them of one scholarship in 1989 and disallowing paid campus recruiting visits during that period.

"We're facing an uphill fight, but we did last year, too," said Kansas guard Scooter Berry. "We still have goals, and Coach Williams has shown us he's not the kind of guy who will give up."

That's Ray Williams, a former assistant at North Carolina who was named coach after Larry Brown left for the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA.

Not only will Williams have to carry the burden of probation in his first year, he'll have to do it without 1987 player of the year Danny Manning, the first player picked in the NBA draft.

"I've looked for him. I've even called out his name," said Williams. "But I'm afraid he's never coming back."

Neither are four other first-round picks from the Big Eight Conference, which placed three teams among the final eight in 1987 and saw two of its own — Kansas and Oklahoma — play in the championship game. Derrick Chievous of Missouri, Mitch Richmond of Kansas State, Jeff Grayer of Iowa State and Harvey Grant of Oklahoma have taken their talents to the pros.

The league hasn't been stripped clean, though. Stacey King of Oklahoma, for example, is considered one of the premier centers in the nation and is a big reason the Sooners again have their sights on the Final Four.

"We got a taste of the honey, but we didn't get the whole ball of wax," says the 6-foot-10 King, who averaged 22 points and eight rebounds per game as Oklahoma went 35-4. "We're strictly business now. We've got some unfinished business."

The Sooners also have a terrific guard in senior Mookie Blaylock, who led the nation in steals with 150 and averaged six assists per game.

The only starter missing from Missouri's lineup is Chievous, but the biggest impact player could be freshman Anthony Peeler, a 6-4 guard from Kansas City, Mo., who is considered one of the top newcomers in the nation.

A top newcomer in the Big Eight a year ago was freshman forward Richard Dumas of Oklahoma State. This year he's the only returning starter, but the Cowboys have several young newcomers with talent, including 6-10 Thomas Jordan and 7-foot Johnny Pittman.

In the Big Ten, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa are favorites for the league title and would surprise no one by going a long way at tournament time.

Illinois, 23-10 last year, has no player taller than 6-8. But 6-5 Nick Anderson and 6-6 Kenny Battle make up a powerful frontcourt, and the Illini are hoping for big things from 6-8 Marcus Liberty, a Proposition 48 casualty last year.

At Michigan, Bill Frieder is worried about who will take over for four-year starter Gary Grant at point guard. It's a valid concern, although junior Rumeal Robinson is a great talent. In the front court, forwards Glen Rice and Terry Mills can hold their own with anyone.

Iowa has three starters back, and they're all dandies — guard B.J. Armstrong, forward Roy Marble and center Ed Horton.

Defending champion Purdue, which reached the final eight of the NCAA tournament last year, was hard hit by graduation. Indiana is without four starters from a year ago, and freshman standout Jay Edwards dropped out of school in September to enter a chemical dependency program.

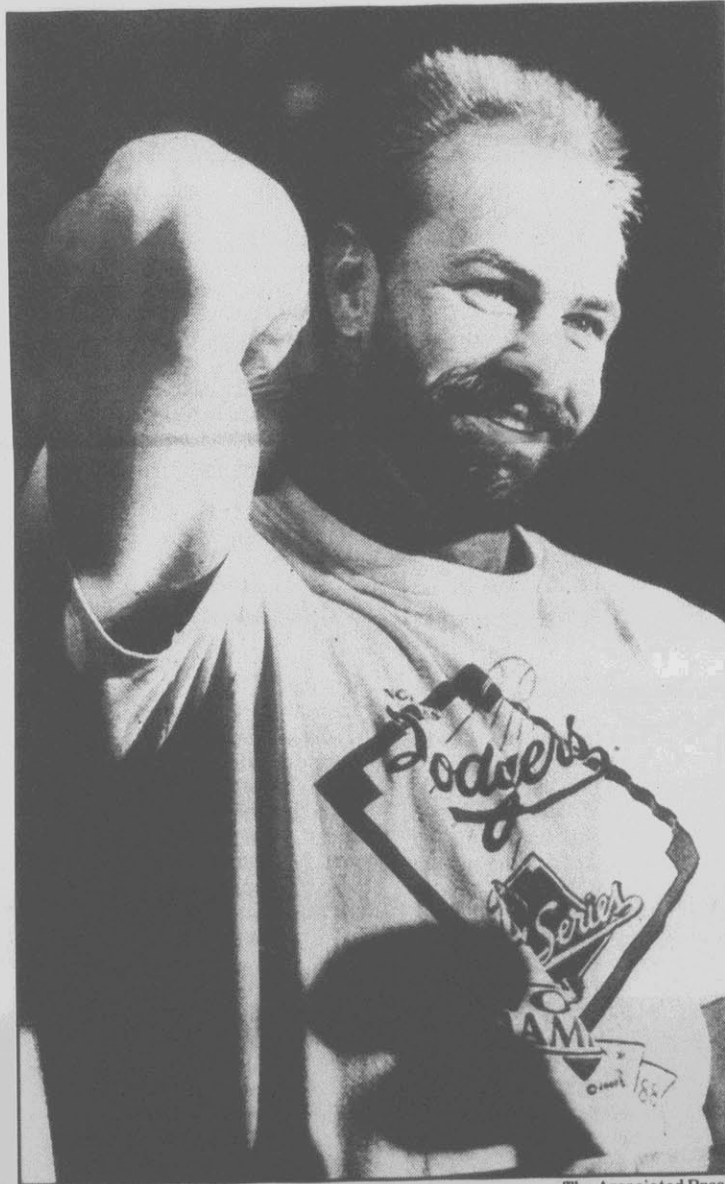

Bradley of the Missouri Valley Conference not only lost Hersey Hawkins, who led the nation with a 36-point average, but also two other starters. So Stan Albeck's team isn't expected to win the regular-season title as it did last year.

Instead, the favorite's tag goes to Wichita State, which went 20-10 last season. The Shockers returned seven of their top eight players including 6-10 center Sasha Radunovich, who led the team in scoring and rebounding.

Byron Larkin and his 25 points per game are now history at Xavier, Ohio, but the Musketeers should be strong again in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference. Others that appear strong are Loyola of Chicago, St. Louis and Dayton.

In the Mid-Continent Conference, Charlie Spoonhour figures to receive a third straight NCAA tournament bid. His Southwest Missouri State team was 22-7 a year ago. Cleveland State, 22-8 last year, also figures to be strong again behind senior guard Ken McFadden.

In the Mid-American Conference, Ohio figures to improve on its 16-14 record of a year ago. Four starters return, led by forward Paul Graham and guard Dave Jamerson. Eastern Michigan, Ball State and Western Michigan also are strong.

Pirates To Host Marathon Squad

East Carolina University's basketball Pirates take on Marathon Oil Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the newly revitalized Minges Coliseum, and Coach Mike Steele and company are looking forward to it.

"I really am," Steele said. "Last year, we didn't get a lot out of the game we played. The Czechs played a different type of ball; they were slow. This is a good team. All of them have been through college basketball. Nobody we play will have more experience."

The Pirates, who have played three public scrimmages thus far, are anxious to face someone other than themselves, and Marathon brings in a tough challenge.

"There's no question that they are not a good team," Steele said. "They beat Wake Forest by 12, beat N.C. State and played (North) Carolina tough. They haven't lost many games and I think they'll give us a good indication of where we stand. The kids have worked hard and we need a game against somebody else."

Marathon, in its latest game Tuesday night, bowed to Georgia, 88-74, scoring only 12 points in the final 13 minutes of play. Kevin Sprewer of Loyola-Chicago led Marathon with 21 points and Barry Mungar of St. Bonaventure added 17.

Steele said that the Pirates would approach the game as they would a regular game. "We'll try to win so everyone is not going to get equal minutes."

Steele also said he had not decided on his starting five for the game. "Blue (Edwards) and Murph (Kenny Murphy) will start, and Stanley Love will definitely start. Then, we'll either go with Jimmy (Hinton) or Jeff (Kelly) at the point, and we'll be looking at Reed (Lose), Gus (Hill) or Kevin Staples inside."

The coach said he was pleased with the effort of the newcomers to the team thus far. "They're working very hard."

East Carolina will officially open the season on Nov. 26 against North Carolina Wesleyan at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Kirk Gibson Is National's MVP

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Forget the three digits that represent the batting average. Disregard the numbers in the RBI and homer columns.

Some accomplishments don't lend themselves to impersonal, precise measurement.

Kirk Gibson's numbers weren't all that impressive this season. Then he had only one — very memorable — at-bat in the entire World Series. But his contributions to the world champions Los Angeles Dodgers were unmistakable.

Those contributions were recognized Tuesday when Gibson was named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1988.

"He helped turn the team around and played a leadership role," the New York Mets' Kevin McReynolds, third in the MVP voting, said of Gibson.

"Winning the MVP was never my goal," Gibson said from his home in Michigan. "But I'm happy that so many people had the opinion that I had that much impact on our winning. My goal was for us to become world champs. That's what makes this that much sweeter ..."

"I'm not a numbers person. I never set goals to hit this number or get so many RBIs. The intangibles obviously were taken into consideration and that makes me feel good."

Gibson had just 76 RBI, the lowest total for a league MVP since Pete Rose won the award in 1973. Gibson's batting average was .290 and he had 25 homers.

The four hitters who finished behind him in the MVP voting — the Mets' Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds, Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke and San Francisco's Will Clark — had better statistics.

Deacons Seeking Independence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WINSTON-SALEM — Independence Bowl officials say they will invite Wake Forest to play Southern Mississippi if the Deacons beat Appalachian State on Saturday.

"The Independence Bowl people definitely will extend an invitation to Wake Forest if we defeat Appalachian State," Coach Bill Dooley said Tuesday. "But it's contingent upon us winning. I'm proud of the football team for being in a position to be invited."

The 13th annual Independence Bowl is scheduled for Dec. 23, in Shreveport, La.

It would mark the fourth bowl appearance in Wake Forest's history and its first since the 1979 Tangerine Bowl.

Mike Collier, chairman of the Independence Bowl's selection committee, notified officials at Wake of the contingent bid, and Dooley told his players in a team meeting Tuesday morning.

Wake Forest, 6-4, was not in anyone's bowl picture two weeks ago. The Deacons were 4-4 and riding a two-game losing streak. But a 35-16 win over Duke, a 28-24 win over Georgia Tech in front of Independence Bowl scouts last week, and a series of behind-the-scenes moves put Wake into consideration.

Southern Miss, 9-2, apparently was going to face Texas-El Paso, also 9-2, before Wake entered the picture. UTEP will now be left out altogether if Wake beats Appalachian.

Collier said that Wake Forest was chosen over Texas-El Paso, despite having a lesser record, for several reasons.

"I could give you all the standard stuff," he said. "If they win, they'll be 7-4 and they've played three bowl teams close, including Michigan. They've got a quarterback (Mike Elkins) who's a great prospect, and they've got a great coach. They've had their first back-to-back winning seasons. They give us the eastern angle. They've got better TV appeal than UTEP. They took 13,000 to the Tangerine Bowl in 1979 ... all those factors."

There were other factors. The Winston-Salem Journal reported.

Dooley apparently not only had the support of members of the Independence Bowl's selection committee, he had strong support from Southern Mississippi. Bill McLellan, the athletic director at Southern Mississippi, has been a friend of Dooley's since McLellan's days at Clemson. Whitey Jordan, Wake Forest's offensive coordinator, coached at USM, and Jeff Bower, the offensive coordinator at USM, was Dooley's quarterback coach last year.

Wake Forest has also agreed to buy more than 10,000 tickets at $29 apiece, regardless of the number of fans it brings.

The Independence Bowl is required by the NCAA to make a payoff of $500,000 to each team, but without a major corporate sponsor it has been financially strapped in recent years.

The Independence Bowl "lost a little" according to Collier, when it drew 41,683 last year for the Washington-Tulane game, and has made money only "seven, eight or nine times" in its 12 years.

"It gets tougher and tougher and tougher," Collier said. The game will be televised on the Mizlou network to about 92 percent of the nation.

Chowan Crushes Pitt By 105-45

MURFREESBORO — Chowan Junior College placed six players in double figures Tuesday night as the Braves buried Pitt Community College, 105-45, in a college basketball game.

"We were never in the game," Pitt coach Charles Coburn said. "We didn't score until 14:10 and that made it 14-2. With 4:35 left in the half, we were down 38-5. That was pretty much the game."

Pitt trailed 47-17 by the end of the half and was then outscored 58-28 in the second half of play.

Tabarris Hamilton led Chowan with 21 points while Roger Tabb had 17, Dean Houpe had 15, Terry Massy had 14, Robert Parks, 13, and Taro Knight, 11.

Anthony Johnson led Pitt with 11 while Ricky Farrow added 10.

Pitt, now 0-3, travels to Petersburg, Va., on Friday, to participate in the Richard Bland Community College Tipoff Classic. The Paladins will face Patrick Henry in the opening round at 7 p.m.

Georgia Tops Marathon Oil, 88-74

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Alec Kessler scored 17 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, leading Georgia to an 88-74 exhibition college basketball victory over Marathon Oil Tuesday night.

Georgia led 47-41 at the half and held the squad of former college players to 12 points over the final 12:59 as the Bulldogs geared up for their regular season opener on Friday.

Pat Hamilton added 15 points for Georgia, Sebastian Neal scored 12 and Elmore Spencer and Litterial Green each had 10.

Kevin Sprewer of Loyola-Chicago led Marathon with 21 points, and Barry Mungar of St. Bonaventure had 17.

Brown Gives Emotional Edge To Duke

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The absence of coach Steve Spurrier could give Duke an "emotional edge" when the Blue Devils play North Carolina on Saturday, Tar Heel coach Mack Brown says.

"Duke's got a good football team; it will probably be an emotional edge for them," Brown said Tuesday at his weekly press conference. "They'll be playing for the coach."

Spurrier was handed a one-game suspension by the Atlantic Coast Conference Monday for criticizing the officials after Duke's 43-43 tie with North Carolina State on Saturday.

"It might help us if I wasn't on the sidelines, the way things have gone for us this year," Brown joked.

North Carolina will take a 1-9 and 1-5 ACC record into the game against the Blue Devils, 6-3-1 and 2-3-1 in the league.

Cavs' Fisher Earns ACC Rookie Honor

GREENSBORO (AP) — Virginia tailback Nikki Fisher, who averaged six yards per carry in the Cavaliers' 27-24 victory over North Carolina, has been selected as the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

Fisher, a 5-foot-11, 206-pound freshman, rushed for a career-high 139 yards on 23 carries as the Cavaliers won their fourth straight game and their first victory in Chapel Hill since 1968.

Earlier, Clemson noseguard Mark Drag and Wake Forest defensive back A.J. Greene were named defensive players of the week in the league after helping their teams post victories on Saturday.

Tech Honors Coles For Olympic Efforts

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bimbo Coles, whose participation on the U.S. Olympic basketball team made him the first athlete in Virginia Tech history to compete in the Olympics, was honored in a dinner Tuesday night at the school.

More than 300 people attended a Hokie Club dinner for Coles, a junior from Lewisburg, W. Va., who was a guard on the U.S. bronze medal-winning squad in Seoul, South Korea.

In a question-and-answer session, Coles praised the Russian team that beat the U.S. in the semifinals and spoke in support of the coaching strategy of Georgetown's John Thompson, who directed the U.S. team.

Coles, the co-player of the year in the Metro Conference last season, was presented citations by various Hokie Clubs, and the Roanoke Valley Hokie Club gave the school a color painting of the player.

Crenshaw Set For Second Golf Season

KAPALUA, Hawaii (AP) — The PGA Tour had its last official event last weekend in the Nabisco Championships, but Ben Crenshaw is just now entering the busiest part of his schedule.

"It's a 12-month season now," Crenshaw said before a practice round for the $600,000 Kapalua International, the first of a four-tournament Pacific tour for him.

After the Kapalua event, which was to begin today, Crenshaw will play in two tournaments in Australia, the Bicentennial and World Cup.

He'll then return to Kapalua as a member of the American team that will play six-man squads from Europe, Japan and Australia in the Kirin Cup.

After that, there will be a one-week break before the 1989 tour begins at the Tournament of Champions.

"This is a busy time of the year for me, but I wouldn't miss Kapalua for anything. It's a very special place to me," said Crenshaw, who married wife Julie at this tournament two years ago.

Johnson Says Expectations Are Too High

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Coach Jimmy Johnson says the success of his Miami Hurricanes has created expectations that are irritating.

Johnson complained Tuesday that the media regard anything less than a national championship as a disappointment for this year's Hurricanes.

"People become spoiled," Johnson said. "People take things for granted."

The coach made his comments when reporters asked if Miami was forced to settle for an Orange Bowl berth this week. No. 1 Notre Dame declined a rematch with the No. 3 Hurricanes in the Fiesta Bowl, and Miami will play Nebraska or Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 2.

Bucs' Redus Signs; 2 Free Agents Remain

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Outfielder Gary Redus has been signed by Pittsburgh to a two-year contract, leaving the Pirates with two unsigned free agents, pitchers Bob Walk and Dave LaPoint.

Redus, 32, was acquired from the Chicago White Sox on Aug. 19 for outfielder-first baseman Mike Diaz. He hit .197 with two homers and four runs batted in with Pittsburgh after batting .263 with six homers, 34 RBI and 26 stolen bases in Chicago.

Redus played three seasons with the Cincinnati Reds before being traded to the Philadelphia Phillies in 1986. He has a lifetime average of .246 with 62 homers, 227 RBI and 254 stolen bases.

"Gary is a veteran who can play all three outfield positions, pinch hit, pinch run, steal a base and display power," Pirates General Manager Larry Doughty said Tuesday. "These qualities enable him to be a valuable player to a contending club."

Spiders Will Still Be Competitive

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(This is one of a series of articles on prospects for Colonial Athletic Association basketball teams.)

Dick Tarrant, the head basketball coach at the University of Richmond, is a realist. He admits that there would seem to be no way that the Spiders could match their 1987-88 season.

In that year, the Spiders rolled through the Colonial Athletic Association with an 11-3 record, winning both the regular season and tournament titles. That sent them into the NCAA where they pulled off upsets of defending champion Indiana and Georgia Tech in the first two rounds to reach the Sweet 16. There, however, they lost to then-number one ranked Temple, 69-47, to end the season with a 26-7 record.

"I don't want to sound like a coach who is down and out," Tarrant said, "but with the loss of three key kids — about 42 points and 21 rebounds — it will be difficult to match last year."

Gone from the starting lineup is forward Peter Woolfolk, Rodney Rice and Steve Kratzer. Woolfolk, a first team All-CAA and an honorable mention All-America pick, averaged 18.1 points and 9.2 rebounds a game, third and second in the conference, respectively. Rice, a guard picked to the All-CAA second team, averaged 14 points and game and dished out 12 assists. Kratzer, a center who was one of the league's top defensive players, averaged 8.1 points and 6 rebounds a game and blocked 32 shots on the year.

That leaves a big hole for Tarrant to fill. "Things are not as dismal as they may seem. We had a good recruiting year and we look for good improvement from our returning players," Tarrant said. "We should be respectable by the end of the year."

In other words, watch out in the tournament.

The top returning people for the Spiders give them a good nucleus. Key among them is 6-0 junior guard Ken Atkinson, a former Rookie of the Year in the CAA, who averaged nine points a game last year and handed out 165 assists. Also back are Scott Stapleton, a 6-4 forward/guard with a 7.8 scoring and 3.5 rebound average, and Mike Winiecki, a 6-8 forward who averaged 6.7 points and 3.8 rebounds last year.

"It's difficult to give an outlook for us right now," Tarrant said. "I can't even pick our starting five."

Tarrant also took issue with the NCAA rule against allowing coaches from watching his players prior to the Oct. 15. "We can't see them from the time they get on campus in mid-August until mid-October. I don't see why we can't evaluate them by watching and not coaching. That would help everyone. Right now, I'm just trying to figure out which kids can help us."

"Right now, my priorities are things like which hand to dribble with and the like. Until they approach any kind of consistency, it's hard to evaluate them."

Returning to the Spiders this year, in addition to the three previously mentioned are Eric English, a 6-2 senior guard who averaged 2.5

points a game last year; Benji Taylor, a 6-2 senior guard, 1.7 ppg; Gary Rich, a 7-0 junior center, 0.7; Hank Dudek, a 6-7 sophomore forward, 1.4; and Paul Webb, a 6-9 sophomore forward/center, 0.0.

Tarrant also brought in six freshmen. They include Jason Bishop, a 6-5 forward who averaged 11.5 points as a high school senior; Curtis Blair, a 6-3 guard, 17.2; Joe Jon Bryant, a 6-7 center/forward, 17.5; Gravelle Craig, a 5-8 guard, 21.8; Williams Herndon, a 6-4 forward, 17.0; and Jim Shields, a 6-9 forward, 12.0.

"The kids are good, but they're still kids. They haven't played in college," Tarrant said. "Right now, they don't understand the way I want them to play. Until they do, it will be a struggle for them."

But that doesn't mean that the Spiders will drop out of sight. "We'll win some games, but I don't think we'll win 26 again. Repeating as champions and going to the Sweet 16 again — that's only a pipe dream."

Nevertheless, Tarrant, 137-76 in his seven years at Richmond, usually has then ready come tournament time.

Still, Gibson was an easy winner in the MVP balloting, receiving 13 first-place votes and 272 points. Strawberry had seven first-place votes and 236, followed by McReynolds with the other four first-place votes and 162.

Van Slyke was fourth with 160 points, Clark got 135 and Gibson's Dodger teammate, NL playoffs and World Series MVP Orel Hershiser had 111.

Two members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in each NL city did the voting prior to the postseason.

Strawberry led the league with 39 home runs, was second with 101 RBI and batted .269. McReynolds hit .288 with 27 homers and 99 RBI. Van Slyke hit .288 with 25 homers and 100 RBI and Clark led the NL with 109 RBI and hit 29 home runs.

"There are always going to be critics, people who don't feel I'm worthy of this award," Gibson said. "Too bad it has to be only one person. I can make an argument for Orel, for Darryl, for Kevin. Things were just on the Dodgers' and my side."

Gibson helped the Dodgers bounce back from their first consecutive sub-.500 finishes in two decades. They had gone 73-89 for two straight years before going 94-67 this season.

While Gibson, who left the Detroit Tigers as a free agent and signed with Los Angeles on Feb. 1, won the MVP Award with his regular-season showing, his year will probably be most remembered by his one trip to the plate during the World Series. Flinching from pain caused by hamstring and knee injuries, he limped to the plate as a pinch-hitter and hit a two-run homer off Oakland's Dennis Eckersley with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Dodgers the win in Game 1.

Although Gibson didn't play again in the Series, the fired-up Dodgers went on to beat the heavily favored A's in five games.

"Although I had just one at-bat, I still feel I had an impact on the Series," Gibson said. "I was fortunate enough to be up in the right situation, and I think it helped point us in the right direction."

Gibson's contributions have been realized, and the runner-up in the voting, Strawberry, said he patiently awaits his turn.

"Eventually one day I'm going to be appreciated," Strawberry said. "I have no reason to feel down about anything. I was important to my team. I'll always believe in that."

"Kirk Gibson meant a lot to the Dodgers, and me and McReynolds meant a lot to the Mets," Strawberry said. "At a time when the New York Mets were struggling and no one was hitting, I was the only one hitting for two months."

overtime, giving the Lakers their fourth consecutive victory.

Danny Schayes' layup with three seconds left put Denver ahead 146-145 and the Lakers called timeout. The Nuggets sagged to prevent Johnson from driving, and he lofted a shot from beyond the top of the key for the game winner.

"I think he should change his name from Magic to Mystifying," Mychal Thompson said. "He is so mentally in-game that even sitting out most of the first half doesn't get him out of his game."

Johnson scored three points down the stretch of the first overtime to tie the score at 137. He finished the game with 21 and Byron Scott had 29.

Alex English scored 29 points for the Nuggets.

Hawks 97, Cavaliers 95
Moses Malone scored 21 points, including Atlanta's final field goal with seven minutes left. The Hawks nearly blew a 94-76 lead.

The loss was the first in five games for Cleveland, which matched its best start in 10 years.

Malone's short jump shot with seven minutes left gave the Hawks the 18-point lead and Atlanta scored only three points after that. The Cavaliers' rally fell short when when Mark Price and Ron Harper missed badly on 3-point shots in the final 30 seconds.

Trail Blazers 125, Clippers 103
Clyde Drexler scored 26 points and Steve Johnson 20 as Portland ended a three-game losing streak.

Danny Manning led the Clippers with 20 points in his second NBA game. Manning, the No. 1 pick in draft, had 12 points in his debut Saturday night against Phoenix.

Drexler scored 17 points in the first half as Portland took a 55-46 lead. Johnson had 18 in the second half as the Trail Blazers pulled away.

Knicks 126, Rockets 121
Gerald Wilkins scored 30 points, including the go-ahead basket with 1:15 left, giving the Knicks their fifth consecutive victory and snapping Houston's four-game winning streak.

Johnny Newman scored 20 points and Trent Tucker added 13, including three of New York's seven 3-pointers. Akeem Olatunju led the Rockets with 28 points and 16 rebounds and Mike Woodson had 26 points.

Bulls 120, 76ers 107
John Paxson and Bill Cartwright combined for 13 points during a 15-7 Chicago run to start the fourth quarter.

Michael Jordan scored 33 points for the Bulls, including a jumper that broke a 70-70 tie late in the third quarter and gave Chicago the lead for good.

Pistons 108, Mavericks 99
Bill Laimbeer had 23 points and 21 rebounds as Detroit improved to 6-0.

Mark Aguirre scored 37 points to lead the Dallas, which rallied in the fourth quarter to cut a 15-point deficit to 101-96 on Aguirre's 3-pointer with 2:36 left.

Jazz 108, Pacers 96
Karl Malone scored 26 of his 36 points in the second half after missing most of the first half because of foul trouble.

Malone started the second half and played until there were two minutes left. He made 10 of 15 shots for the game and 16 of 17 free throws, matching a career high. He had 11 rebounds. Thurl Bailey scored 29 points for Utah. Rik Smits scored 20 points to lead Indiana and Herb Williams scored 18.

Suns 119, Kings 89
Eddie Johnson scored 27 points as Phoenix won on the road for the first time in four games.

Kevin Johnson added 25 points and Armon Gilliam 18 points for the Suns. Reserves Dan Majerle and Tim Perry scored 10 points apiece.

Sacramento, 0-6, was led by Kenny Smith with 23 and Derek Smith with 22.

Syracuse Kicking Streak Comes To End

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dave Jacobs kicked some of the longest field goals in Syracuse football history.

But Jacobs is best remembered for one of his shortest kicks. One he didn't make.

It was a muffed extra point against Boston College on Nov. 18, 1978. At that time, the conversion seemed insignificant, Syracuse winning 37-23 that day.

But Jacobs' bad boot is now a piece of Syracuse trivia — it was the last conversion kick missed by the Orangemen.

For 10 consecutive years, through 101 games and 257 attempts, the Orangemen have not missed an extra point following a touchdown. Their accomplishment — referred to around here simply as "The Streak" — is an NCAA record.

"It's an amazing streak, not just the numbers but the length of time, too," said Pittsburgh Steelers placekicker Gary Anderson, a former Orangeman who contributed the most to the record with 72 conversion kicks from 1979 through 1981.

"When you think about it, you'd say it was virtually an impossible record. The different kickers. The different holders. That number of kicks, and not one blocked, not one bad snap. Those things happen weekly to teams. It's amazing," said Anderson, who is amazing in his own right, having kicked 196 consecutive extra points with the Steelers, the fourth-highest total in NFL history.

Anderson was followed by Russ Carpentieri, who made 17 straight in 1982. Don McAulay was perfect on 62 attempts from 1983 to 1985, when Tim Vesling took over and added another 71, breaking the record of 199 set by Alabama kickers.

For the record, the Orangemen have missed seven of 17 two-point conversion attempts during "The Streak."

Alabama's record ended in a game last season against Penn State. Ironically, it was against Penn State several weeks later that Vesling booted the record-breaker.

Current Orangeman Kevin J.

Greene has extended Syracuse's record with 34 extra points.

Jacobs is part of the streak, too.

He redeemed himself later in that Boston College game with a successful kick. It was to be the only extra point in the streak made by Jacobs, whose only other miss in 77 point-after attempts came during his freshman year.

"I've got records for the longest field goals made, the most field goals in a career, the most game-winning field goals, and that missed extra point is the story of my life," said Jacobs, grinning about the way history has treated him.

Sometimes, Jacobs said, he feels like the guy who ran the wrong way for a touchdown.

"I only made one, but it's the one that got it started," said Jacobs, who kicked the four longest field goals in school history, including a 58-yarder in 1978 that remains the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference record.

Jacobs, who now owns a T-shirt printing business in Syracuse, can still describe the kick that wasn't.

"Yeah, I still picture it in my mind. There was a lot of wind that day. Funny thing was, I hit the heck out of it. It might have been an 80-yard field goal. It went straight over one upright and the refs said it was wide. It seemed like a questionable call. It was my greatest kick," Jacobs said.

Jacobs and Anderson agreed that a strong tradition of placekickers at Syracuse has helped keep the streak going. Four of the six kickers involved in the record — Jacobs, McAulay, Anderson and Vesling — are among the top five kickers in school history.

Jacobs also believes kicking inside the Carrier Dome has been a factor.

Not having to worry about muddy fields, driving rains or freezing temperatures has removed some of the elements of chance from kicking, said Jacobs, whose playing career at Syracuse was over before the Dome was opened in 1980.

But Anderson, who played one year in the Dome, didn't think playing inside was that much of a factor.

"It is only to a small extent. It's a much greater factor with field goals. Extra points are kicked at such close range that the wind and elements aren't that important," said Anderson, the most accurate extra-point kicker in NFL history.

The key to not missing extra points is concentration, Anderson said.

"A natural tendency is to get a little careless. For a good kicker, it's a give-me that should never be missed. Yet, every weekend, there are tons of them missed in college and pro ball," Anderson said. "You can run into problems anytime. If things go wrong and you're concentrating, perhaps you'll get through."

Blue's Dunk Goes Nationwide

Blue Edwards' much talked about backboard-shattering dunk last Saturday in the East Carolina basketball team's purple-gold scrimmage has now gone nationwide.

Footage of the dunk, which took place during a halftime dunking contest, has been shown in Los Angeles, San Diego, South Bend, Ind., Jacksonville, Fla., and Harrisburg, Pa., to date, according to WNCT-TV Sports Director Brian Bailey.

Edwards attempted the same dunk Monday night at the Pirates' final scrimmage game of the preseason at Greene Central High School. Edwards, a 6-5, 200-pound senior who hails from Walstonburg, came in from the side for the one-handed jam, however, the rim and backboard remained intact on that attempt.

Ostrander Shows Dedication To Football

No one can doubt Dave Ostrander's dedication to coaching football. Ostrander, an assistant coach for North Pitt High School's football team was put in a precarious situation when the Panthers topped Edenton-Holmes 28-7 last Friday and advanced to the second round of the state 2-A playoffs. He is set to get married Saturday and his wedding rehearsal and dinner were slated to start at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

That made it nearly impossible for Ostrander to get to the 8 p.m. start of the Panther's game against top-ranked Hertford County.

His solution? Ostrander moved the rehearsal up to 5 p.m. against the wishes of some of his in-laws in order to make the game on time. Now that's dedication.

Blount Praised By Mack Brown

Freshman Eric Blount was named by North Carolina head football coach Mack Brown as the team's top special teams player last Saturday in the Tar Heels' 27-24 loss to Virginia.

Blount, a former Ayden-Grifton High School standout, returned five kicks in the game for 100 yards, including a 32-yard punt return at the end of the game to set up one last scoring opportunity for the Tar Heels.

"We got a big punt return from Eric when we needed it most at the end of the game," Brown said.

Although Blount fared well on the special teams, he didn't start at wide receiver as he had since the Tar Heels' second game of the season against Oklahoma. Kurt Green got the starting nod at the position, while Blount was used in a reserve role.

Freddie Farkel Still Picking Fearlessly

Arnold Solomon, known to people in the sports world as Freddie Farkel, continued his accurate prognostication of high school football games last week in the first round of the state playoffs.

Solomon's first week predictions of the playoff winners wasn't too bad as he correctly chose 78.13 percent of all the games played. That's pretty good when you consider that heavily-favored teams such as Greenville Rose, Forest Hills, Bath, Swansboro and Southwest Onslow all went down to defeat. Not only did Bath, Rose and Forest Hills lose their first game of the year; West Mecklenburg and West Montgomery also tasted defeat for the first time this year.

Solomon had several standout picks last week. He picked Garner by 27 points over Hillside and the final score was 27-0. He also picked Greensboro Grimsley to win by three over East Mecklenburg. The final score in that game was 12-10. Brevard, who topped East Rutherford 19-7 was picked to win by 13 and Hendersonville, who took a 51-18 victory over East Wilkes was picked to win by 35.

Solomon's picks for area teams this week are Ayden-Grifton by nine over Clayton and Hertford County by nine over North Pitt.

If Solomon's picks this week hold true, Garner and Richmond County may be heading for a much talked about clash. Garner, 11-0, is favored by a touchdown over Cap-Nine Conference foe Raleigh Millbrook and Richmond County, also 11-0, is being picked to top Northern Durham by 10.

Only Six Remain Unbeaten

With the numerous upsets last week, the ranks of the unbeaten high school teams in the state has dwindled to six.

Three of those unbeaten teams are on the 4-A level. They include Garner, Richmond County and Asheville A.C. Reynolds. Reynolds will square off against East Burke Friday in the second round of the state playoffs.

The only 3-A team in the state with an unblemished record is Burlington Cummings. Cummings will be challenged by Jamestown Ragsdale Friday in a game in which it will be heavily-favored.

And everyone at North Pitt High School is very aware of who the only 2-A team in the state with an unbeaten record is — Hertford County. The Panthers will try to knock Hertford off Friday at home.

On the 1-A ranks, Midway is the only unbeaten team. Midway will be playing at Richlands this Friday in the second round.

Lost Ring Of Petty Is Found, Returned

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEVEL CROSS — A 16-year-old Burke County girl who found a Winston Cup championship ring on the railroad tracks says she didn't know what to think when she saw "Richard Petty" engraved into it, but she knew what to do — hand it over.

"When I looked at his name, I didn't know what to think," said Teena Martin, who lives at Southmountain Inc., a children's home near Morgantown.

"But when I saw NASCAR, Inc. on it, I said 'Hey, this belongs to him.'" She turned the ring over to officials at Southmountain, who placed a telephone call to Petty Enterprises.

"We thought there might not be many honest people left out there, but I guess we were wrong," Petty Enterprises spokeswoman Martha Bonkemeyer said Tuesday.

The 1967 ring, which had a 1-carat diamond, slipped from Petty's finger Oct. 24 as he rode on Gov. Jim Martin's whistlestop campaign train. He said he figured someone would find it, but he never thought he'd get it back.

"I thought probably some of those railroad boys on one of those pedal cars would eventually find it," Petty said.

Kirk Awaiting His Sentencing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Fired by Memphis State two years ago after building a nationally ranked basketball program, former Coach Dana Kirk now awaits sentencing for tax evasion and obstruction of justice.

"I never thought it would come to this," Kirk said Tuesday after a U.S. District Court jury found him guilty of cheating on his taxes and trying to intimidate a grand jury witness.

Kirk, 53, said he would talk with his lawyers before deciding whether to appeal.

He faces a maximum sentence of 24 years in prison and fines of $275,000. A sentencing hearing is expected in about a month after a routine investigation by the federal probation office.

Kirk was convicted of evading taxes in 1982 when the government said he intentionally hid income totaling more than $45,000. He was acquitted of a companion charge that he failed to report $116,800 in income in 1983.

Kirk argued through his lawyers that any problems with his taxes were caused by honest mistakes. He did not testify at his trial.

"I have never shot, raped or robbed. I am not a criminal and I was never given the opportunity to look at my taxes and say, 'Pay this and pay that,'" Kirk said.

Kirk was convicted of trying to silence a grand jury witness who bought basketball tickets from him. He also was convicted on three counts of filing false tax statements on his income from summer basketball camps at Memphis State.

In addition to the acquittal on one tax evasion charge, Kirk also was acquitted on two obstruction of justice charges and one count of filing false tax statements.

Kirk took over Memphis State's struggling basketball program in 1979 and led the Tigers to the NCAA Tournament Final Four in 1985. He was fired in September 1986, shortly before his indictment by a federal grand jury.

"I'm thoroughly, thoroughly disappointed," he said.

During the trial, which began Sept. 12, Kirk was accused by witnesses of accepting money collected for his athletes, of selling basketball tickets for up to five times their face value and of seeking personal payments from promoters of college basketball tournaments.

Keith Lee, an All-American under Kirk who now plays for the NBA's New Jersey Nets, said Kirk paid him $400-$600 a month for four years. Lee said he also got $500 a month for a year from Tiger boosters and that his mother got $6,200 from Kirk.

Kirk had numerous promotional deals and other business arrangements that pushed his annual income to near $300,000, witnesses said. His coaching salary at Memphis State ranged from $35,000 to $62,500 a year.

U.S. Attorney Hickman Ewing Jr. said the amount of money Kirk owes in back taxes will be assessed by the Internal Revenue Service and will be unaffected by his conviction.

Kirk said the jury was confused by the complexity of the government's case, but Ewing disagreed.

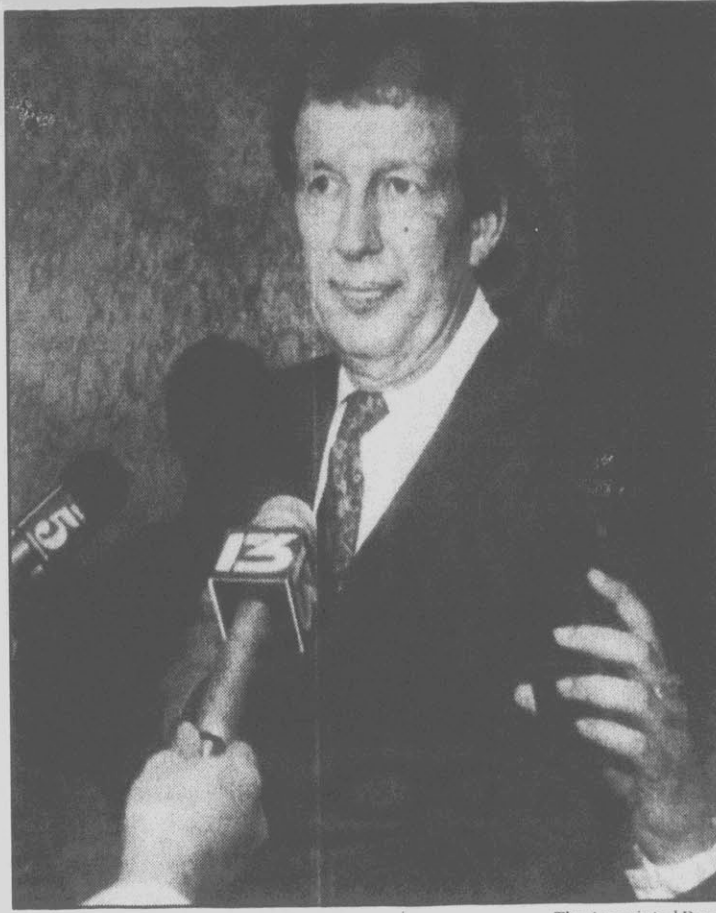

"The jury thoroughly understood the case. They gave him the benefit of the doubt. They gave him more than he deserved on some of the counts," Ewing said.

Kirk was indicted by a grand jury investigating sports bookmaking in the Memphis area, but the charges eventually lodged against him were unrelated to gambling.

Ewing said the grand jury investigation led to an examination of Kirk's finances and investigators were surprised to find he had more than $550,000 in certificates of deposit at a Memphis bank.

Kirk declined to discuss the current condition of his finances.

"That's none of your business," he said.

Dana Kirk addresses the media following the court's decision

Union Not Buying NFL's New Proposal

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The NFL owners have come up with a new concept for free agency based on playing time, but it's not clear to what union chief Gene Upshaw wanted.

"The only players who would be true free agents under that concept would be those who are dead, and they must die under a full moon on a Tuesday," Upshaw said. "That's how bad it is."

Upshaw, in an interview, said Tuesday that the concept, presented last Oct. 4 by Management Council executive director Jack Donlan, is "not a step forward, but a step backward."

The NFLPA and the owners have been at odds since last year, when the union went on strike for 24 days to get a better contract. The heart of the negotiations was the issue of free agency, a subject that still has not been straightened out to the satisfaction of either side.

Currently, there is no form of free agency in the NFL without compensation. Under the new plan, anyone who plays less than 50 percent of the time could become an unrestricted free agent, although several restrictions apply.

Upshaw said Donlan wouldn't specify what "50 percent of the time" meant, but the union chief indicated that he thought it meant eight games a season, as opposed to 30 minutes per contest.

Any player who didn't play half the time would become an unrestricted free agent unless he is under contract; a quarterback or kicker; or in his first, second or third year in the league.

Also, a player who receives a salary in line with his value to the team and playing time is not eligible for free agency.

And, Upshaw said Donlan told him that teams would be able to protect a predetermined amount of players not included in those categories.

According to Upshaw, Donlan admitted that such a plan might not get enough players into the open market. If such is the case, each team would be asked to freeze 50 players, and the remainder would become free agents — unless they went from a losing team to a winning team, in which case the losing team would have the right of first refusal.

"That's not even close to being acceptable," said Upshaw, who claimed that the NFLPA would have to sign a 10-year contract with a two-year transition period if they agreed to management's proposal.

Upshaw said the owners also insisted that the NFLPA accept an entry wage scale that would limit rookies to between $60,000 and $70,000 a year.

"I told Donlan that we'll stay in court and take our chances there, because the owners are not serious about their position," Upshaw said. "They're not addressing our major concerns ... what they want us to do is sell the players out."

Hagan The First Wildcat Ousted

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Cliff Hagan has become the first casualty of an NCAA investigation of the University of Kentucky's basketball program, tendering his resignation as athletic director less than a week after saying he was being used as a scapegoat in the probe.

University lawyer Joseph Burch was named acting athletic director, Bernie Vonderheide, a UK spokesman, said during a news conference Tuesday.

Neither Hagan, who had held the job for 13 years, nor UK president David Roselle attended the news conference. Burch scheduled a news conference of his own today.

When reports surfaced last week that Roselle was unhappy with Hagan's performance during the investigation, the former UK basketball great said: "If someone wants to use the athletics director as a scapegoat, that's fine."

The NCAA has criticized the university's control and monitoring of the basketball program, which faces 18 allegations of wrongdoing.

"It is unfortunate that circumstances sometimes create a need for change that is regretful for all," Roselle said in a prepared statement. "In this case, the circumstances dictate the need for a different management style and philosophy."

"I have taken this action with a sense of regret over the circumstances which created for me and my institution a very difficult problem," Hagan said in his prepared statement.

"But I have always tried to do what was right and best for the university, and I believe that what I have done today was the right thing to do. It was also the right thing for me and my family."

Vonderheide said it was Hagan's decision to resign.

Hagan will remain an employee of the university to assist in the transition and to bring the investigation to a conclusion, Vonderheide said.

"It is important for everyone to know and understand that no person inside or outside the university believes, or has any reason to believe, that Cliff Hagan has engaged in any way in improper activities," Roselle said in the statement.

"In every respect, and at all times past and present, he has conducted himself with honesty and integrity, a fact that needs and deserves to be broadcast far and wide."

Kentucky football coach Jerry Claiborne and basketball coach Eddie Sutton issued statements in support of Hagan.

"Cliff Hagan has always been very supportive of our football program as long as I've been here," Claiborne said. "I'm very sorry to hear of Cliff's resignation. He devoted most of his life to University of Kentucky athletics."

"Cliff Hagan has been a great friend to the University of Kentucky and to me personally," Sutton said. "I am saddened by his resignation, but I am happy that he will remain with the university."

Vonderheide also announced that the "overall responsibility and accountability for the athletics program" had been delegated by Roselle to Ed Carter, vice president for administration.

The school also announced that a screening committee would be appointed soon to conduct a search for a permanent replacement for Hagan.

Hagan, a native of Owensboro, was a two-time All-American basketball player at Kentucky, playing for Adolph Rupp's national championship team in 1951 and for the undefeated 1954 team.

He played 10 seasons for the NBA's St. Louis Hawks, a stretch that included a world championship in 1958. He was named All-Pro from 1957-62.

Hagan also was player-coach of the Dallas Chaparrals in the old American Basketball Association before becoming assistant athletic director at UK in 1972.

He is a member of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame and the National High School Sports Hall of Fame.

Under Hagan's command, UK established a highly regarded tutorial program for athletes, raised unprecedented amounts of private money and provided UK with more than $11 million in the past three years for scholarships, facilities and faculty salaries.

Burch, 50, has been at UK since 1964, with most of his career spent dealing with students. He was named deputy general counsel in the school's legal office in 1987.

He was acting associate director of the UK Tobacco Health Research Institute and university representative in the investigation of alleged NCAA violations.

Twins Are Confusing Shockers' Duo Cause Doubletake

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WICHITA, Kan. — Opposing players assigned to cover Wichita State's Dwight or Dwayne Praylow learn quickly to concentrate on jersey numbers, not faces.

The Praylows, senior co-captains of this year's Shocker squad, are 21-year-old identical twins. Dwight is a returning starter at shooting guard. Dwayne, a defensive specialist, is a forward.

They look enough alike that third-year WSU coach Eddie Fogler started his Shocker tenure by pointing and hollering, "Hey, Twin," when addressing one of them during practice.

There are differences. Dwayne is quieter and more laid back.

"They say I'm mean, but I don't talk much," Dwayne said, referring to his aggressive defense.

Dwight smiles more, is more outgoing and relies on finesse as a player rather than the brute force his brother employs.

The one distinguishing mark Dwight bears resulted from an injury Dwayne inflicted when they were 3-year-olds engaged in a pretend sword fight. Dwayne picked up a razor and cut Dwight at the hairline on the left side of his head leaving a scar still apparent today.

"I remember seeing blood and getting a beating," Dwayne said.

Both are 6-foot-5, but Dwayne is about eight pounds heavier at 180. He is also a bit more muscular. Their faces have a slightly different shape and if you listen carefully, their voices are distinctive.

"Sometimes we're talking and we can't see any similarities," Dwight said. "We think we look like two totally different people. Every day we see different attitudes and different personalities."

The two live together in an off-campus apartment.

Israel and the PLO's Declaration

Incidents in Israel since the PLO declared independence.

- Underground Palestinian leaders called a general strike in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

- Army extended a curfew over the Gaza Strip for a fourth day and sealed off the West Bank.

- Bethlehem is under curfew for the first time since 1967.

- Extra police officers were deployed to prevent pro-PLO demonstrations in east Jerusalem.

- In Israel, a Palestinian prisoner from Gaza was strangled to death in his cell, and police suspect he was slain by an Arab cellmate for allegedly collaborating with Israeli authorities.

Israelis Confine Arabs To Homes For Sixth Day

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — Israel confined 865,000 Palestinians to their homes today and kept West Bank telephone lines cut for a sixth day after Arabs celebrated the Palestinian declaration of independence in the streets with songs and fireworks.

In the West Bank town of Bethlehem, fireworks continued into early today and dozens of illegal Palestinian flags were hung on walls and utility poles. Graffiti read "Congratulations to our people — the state is born."

The army kept increased patrols in the occupied territories to curb demonstrations and celebrations lauding the PLO's Tuesday declaration of Palestinian statehood.

"The Israel Defense Force will keep as many troops in the area as is needed," Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron told Israeli radio. "We will continue to keep the quiet by keeping people under curfew as necessary."

At dawn today, army jeeps drove through the occupied Gaza Strip and broadcast loudspeaker announcements warning residents to stay inside or face punishment, an Arab reporter said.

All the southern coastal strip's 650,000 residents were confined to their homes for a fifth day today. Israel radio said it was the longest curfew Gazans have faced since the 1967 Middle East War, when Israel captured the narrow strip from Egypt and the West Bank from Jordan.

Some 120,000 residents of Nablus, the largest city in the West Bank, and 95,000 residents of six other West Bank towns, including Tulkarm and Qalqilya, also were under curfew, the army spokesman said.

At least 312 Arabs and 11 Israelis have been killed in the 11-month Palestinian uprising against Israeli rule. There are 1.5 million Palestinians in the occupied areas.

Also today, the army extended until December orders closing schools and universities in the West Bank.

The area's 318,000 students have been out of school since February, except for a few weeks last summer. Authorities charge the schools are focal points for demonstrations.

In Israeli-annexed East Jerusalem, Arab schools with about 16,000 students were closed for one day.

Telephone lines to the West Bank have been cut for six days to prevent coordination of celebrations and anti-Israeli activities. Electricity was cut for several hours Tuesday night in large areas in the territories, apparently to prevent people watching televised news reports of the Algiers meeting where the Palestine National Council adopted the independence declaration.

"We certainly intend to prevent mass communications to disseminate information and coordinate activities," said West Bank commander, Maj. Gen. Amram Mizna.

"I think we will get across the message to Arab residents that this is not the way," he said on Israeli radio. "People will understand that decisions made outside will have no effect on changing the situation here."

State television and radio in Israel temporarily limited coverage of the Algiers meeting because of concerns the speeches in Algiers could spark riots in the occupied territories, television news director Yair Stern said today.

Broadcast journalists denounced the decision as "political censorship" and threatened to go on strike in protest, Israeli newspapers reported.

Arab States Recognize Palestinian Nation; Others Delay Acceptance

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Most of the Arab world formally recognized the independent state declared by the PLO's parliament-in-exile, but only a handful of states outside the region extended diplomatic ties today.

The United States and many European countries, while ruling out recognition, said the declaration by the Palestine National Council on Tuesday was a positive step in trying to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The Soviet Union also said it would try to help find a solution in the Middle East, but held off recognizing the state, saying the PLO had not asked it to do so.

The 15 states that recognized the Palestinian homeland were Algeria, Bahrain, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, North and South Yemen, Bangladesh, Madagascar, Malaysia, Mauritania, Turkey and Indonesia.

Egypt, the United Arab Emirates and Morocco stopped short of diplomatic recognition, but said they fully support the move.

Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, announced the decision of the 450-member parliament-in-exile on Tuesday in Algiers, saying it declared "the establishment of a Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital, which will be for all Palestinians wherever they are."

The declaration did not define the boundaries of the new state, which moderate Palestinians say should be determined in future negotiations, but it focused on the West Bank and Gaza strip. The areas have been under Israeli military occupation since 1967.

The PNC also voted to accept United Nations Resolution 242, which implicitly recognizes Israel by referring to the right of all states in the region to live in peace within secure and recognized borders. The resolution also calls for Israel's withdrawal from lands it occupied in 1967.

Israel rejected the PLO move, saying it was an exercise in "ambiguity and double talk."

The declaration was greeted with joy by many of the world's 5.5 million Palestinians, especially those living in refugee camps in Jordan and southern Lebanon. Some were wary of recognizing Israel, though.

In Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp in southern Lebanon, Palestinians marched through the streets in a rare nighttime demonstration and celebraton late Tuesday. They decorated the streets with Palestinian flags, small torches and signs.

"The independent Palestinian state symbolizes our national dignity," one sign read.

"The Palestinian state is the fruit of the popular intefadeh," said a huge sign at the camp's entrance, referring to the 11-month Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories.

A Lebanese police spokesman, who cannot be named under standing regulations, expressed fear that the declaration of the independent Palestinian state would lead to "clashes among the rival Palestinian factions in Lebanon."

"Lebanese parties will certainly be involved in any major clash between Arafat's Palestinian supporters and opponents in Sidon," he warned.

Syria and Damascus-based Palestinian guerrilla factions have rejected the independent state.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov welcomed the council's acceptance of U.N. Resolutions 242 and 338, which set out conditions for a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement.

He said the Soviet Union regards the resolutions as "very good grounds for a Middle East settlement, along with the need for the recognition of the legitimate national rights of the Arab people of Palestine to self-determination."

Israel has refused to recognize such Palestinian rights.

Gerasimov said the positions adopted Tuesday by the PLO's legislature were "realistic."

But "as far as the establishment of a Palestine state and its recognition by the Soviet Union," the spokesman said, "the Palestinian side has not requested us to do so."

West German Jew Resigns In Uproar

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFURT, West Germany — A Jewish leader who defended last week's controversial Kristallnacht speech by the president of Parliament quit today after being strongly criticized by other Jews, officials said.

Michael Fuerst, deputy chairman of the national Jewish council, had been harshly criticized for comments he made following Thursday's speech of then-Parliament President Philipp Jenninger.

Jenninger reminded his audience that many Germans initially welcomed Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler and recalled that many people thought the Jews deserved being "put back in their place."

Jenninger also called the early Nazi years a "triumphal procession."

Hours later, Fuerst told a nationally televised panel discussion: "I welcome the fact that the Parliament president described in full clarity what was happening in Germany between 1933 and 1938 ... especially the fact that everything Hitler did was strongly supported by the masses of all Germans."

Anger over the speech mounted at home and abroad, and Jenninger quit the next day. He said he had been misunderstood but also told nationwide television, "You can't call everything by its name in Germany."

Jenninger, 56, gave the speech on the 50th anniversary of Kristallnacht, the night of terror against the Jews that signaled the coming Holocaust.

Fuerst, 41, told The Associated Press on Monday he fully supported what he said last week. He said he had received numerous telephone calls of approval.

"I've been confirmed in that opinion by the many people who have called me since then," he told the AP. He acknowledged, however, that a "majority" of West Germany's Jewish community felt differently.

Council chairman Heinz Galinski, who had led the criticism against his own deputy, today made the announcement of Fuerst's resignation.

"He gave as a reason the long-standing lack of agreement between me and himself," Galinski, a 75-year-old Auschwitz survivor, told the AP at a council meeting in Frankfurt.

Galinski said the rest of the national council leadership stood behind him "100 percent." He has been at the forefront of condemning Jenninger's speech.

Fuerst was at the meeting but not immediately available for comment.

The Jenninger dispute has intensified West Germany's debate over the haunting legacy of the Third Reich.

Many people, like Fuerst, have cautiously approved of the Christian Democratic politician's reminders of how the Germans initially greeted Hitler.

Smiling Gunman Kills Six Blacks

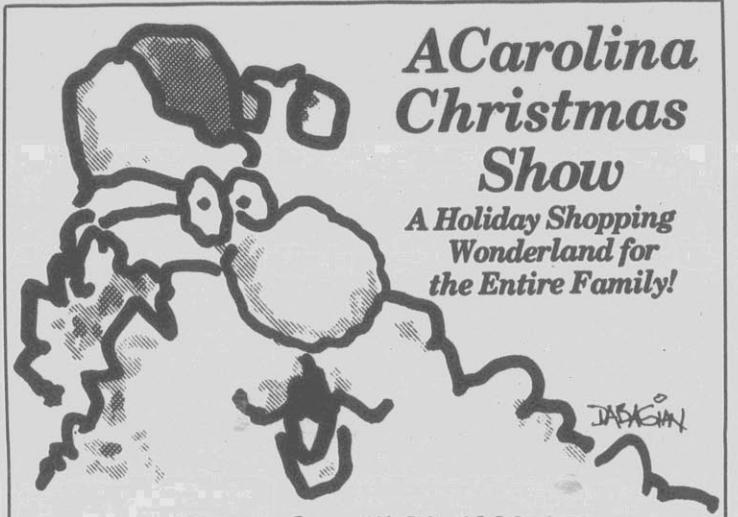

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A former white policeman smiled and laughed as he walked along a downtown Pretoria street, casually shooting to death six blacks and wounding 16, witnesses said today.

The man, who police identified as 23-year-old named Barend Strydom, surrendered to two black policemen after Tuesday's shootings.

Police said he had resigned in February after an internal investigation found him guilty of "improper behavior" that included "possession of racial right-wing documents." Minister of Law and Order Adriaan Vlok said Strydom is a member of the neo-Nazi Afrikaner Resistance Movement.

Vlok said in a statement that during the shooting, the suspect claimed he was the leader of a shadowy right-wing vigilante group called the White Wolves.

Pakistan Holds First Free Election In Decade

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Pakistanis voted today in their first free elections in more than a decade, deciding whether the charismatic populist Benazir Bhutto will become the first woman to lead this Moslem nation.

About 30 political parties ran for 217 seats in the National Assembly, but the two heavyweights were Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party and the conservative Islamic Democratic Alliance, which is dominated by supporters of the late military ruler Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq.

There were no reports of major violence or fraud when the polls closed at 5 p.m. (7 a.m. EST).

K.M. Dilshad, spokesman for the Federal Election Commission, said unofficial reports indicated a little more than 50 percent of the nation's 48 million eligible voters cast ballots.

Troops manned sandbagged bunkers and cruised the streets in armored personnel carriers in the southern cities of Hyderabad and Karachi, where nearly 300 people died in ethnic strife in September. Elsewhere, police patrolled streets to keep order.

Today's was the first National Assembly vote open to political parties since 1977. Final results were not expected until midday Thursday at the earliest.

Ms. Bhutto voted in her family hometown of Nau Dhero in southern Sind province. "Overall, it's going very well and I feel great," she said as she toured polling stations to talk to members of her party who were monitoring the voting.

Under the election rules, representatives of all parties contesting any given district can act as watchdogs against fraud.

In an interview today on CBS' This Morning, Ms. Bhutto said she believed she would win even a corrupt election. "Let me put it that way to you, because the margin of our support is so wide," she said.

A 25-member delegation sponsored by the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, a U.S. Democratic Party affiliate, also monitored the 33,500 polling stations for signs of cheating.

Alliance leaders include former Prime Minister Mohammad Khan Junejo, 56, and Nawaz Sharif, 40, the acting chief minister of Punjab, the country's most populous province.

The campaign primarily focused on the political personalities. Both sides have pledged to continue close ties with the United States and support of anti-communist Afghan guerrillas.

Both groups favor Pakistan's nuclear research program for peaceful purpose and pay lip service to Islamization, although Ms. Bhutto has vowed not to allow the religious program to harm women's rights.

Acting President Ghulam Ishaq Khan will choose a member of the assembly, presumably the leader of the strongest party, to become prime minister and form a government. But he is under no deadline to do so and, under the constitution, could wait beyond the 30-day limit set for convening the new assembly.

Zia, who overthrew the civilian government led by Ms. Bhutto's father in 1977 and two years later had him hanged, called the elections before he died Aug. 17 in a mysterious plane crash.

The campaign was marked by colorful processions, mass rallies and only sporadic violence, which typically involved stone-throwing.

A vendor was killed Tuesday when an explosive device went off in Rawalpindi, the city adjacent to Islamabad, but officials said they did not know if the incident was related to the campaign.

Ishaq Khan appeared on nationwide television Tuesday to urge Pakistanis to vote and peacefully accept the outcome.

"The government is fully determined to fulfill all its responsibilities to hold a free, fair and impartial election," he said.

"Gratitude and humbleness for the winners and patience and tolerance for the defeated ones should be the hallmark of their behavior after the polls," he said.

The last open elections in this Moslem country of 107 million people were held in 1977 under Ms. Bhutto's father, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. Zia toppled the government within months, however, alleging the vote was rigged.

The general ruled under martial law for eight years before holding national elections in 1985 on a non-party basis. Ms. Bhutto's party and other opposition parties boycotted the polls.

Hanoi Wants U.S. To Set Up Offices In Vietnam For MIA Information

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BANGKOK, Thailand — Hanoi has proposed the United States open American-staffed offices throughout Vietnam to resolve the divisive issue of Americans missing in action in the Indochina war, a senior Vietnamese official said today.

"We need to get to the bottom of this matter and I think this is the only way. We let this go on too long for anyone's good," government advisor Nguyen Xuan Oanh told reporters.

He said he received an "enthusiastic" response when he conveyed the proposal from Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach to the State Department and U.S. congressmen during his recent trip to the United States.

"The ball is now in your (American) court. You play it," Oanh said when asked whether the MIA offices would be opened.

Oanh, an economic advisor to Vietnamese leader Nguyen van Linh, said the offices — set up and manned by Americans — would gather information on the fates of U.S. servicemen still unaccounted for from the war.

In recent months, stepped up cooperation between Vietnam and the United States on the MIA issue has included a joint search in northern Vietnam and the handover by Hanoi Nov. 3 of 23 remains believed to be those of American war dead.

More than 2,300 Americans still are listed missing from the wars in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Washington has cited this issue and the Vietnamese military presence in Cambodia as key impediments to regularizing relations between the one-time foes.

Hoping to broaden international contacts and shore up its crippled economy, Hanoi has been seeking diplomatic ties and the lifting of a U.S. trade embargo.

Oanh said Hanoi would not ask for any representation in the United States in exchange for the opening of the MIA offices, but noted that prospects for normalized U.S.-Vietnamese relations were improving.

"Things should move in the right direction once the new administration of is installed," he said. "(President-elect George) Bush is good for Vietnam."

"There's been a change in the hearts and minds of the American public. Thirteen years is a long time," Oanh said, referring to the communist victory and end to the Vietnam war in 1975. He also cited generally improved East-West relations as contributing to better U.S.-Vietnamese relations.

Oanh, who was educated at Harvard University and served in the fallen South Vietnamese government, said he met with American businessmen, lawmakers, government officials and officials of private institutions last month during his trip to the United States.

He has made several trips abroad promoting Vietnam's new foreign investment code, and explaining reforms.

Oanh admitted that Vietnam has been "slow and clumsy" in trying to tackle an inflation rate he said was raging at 700-1,000 percent a year.

This and other problems had made foreign investors "hesitant" and prevented needed loans from the International Monetary Fund which has been advising Hanoi on economic matters, he said.

But Oanh said some reforms were taking effect and some foreign countries, including Thailand and Singapore, had finalized investment plans in Vietnam. He said American businessmen he met, especially those in oil companies, were "highly interested" in future investments.

South Korean Police Clash With Students

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — Hundreds of riot police used shields today to block about 700 protesters who tried to march into the National Assembly building to demand the arrest of former President Chun Doo-hwan.

The government was pressing Chun to apologize for alleged corruption and human rights abuses during his seven-year term.

Government officials indicated Chun was willing to apologize to the nation but was balking at admitting he had benefited personally from corruption. The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the former president was resisting demands he retire to the countryside in disgrace.

"Arrest Chun Doo-hwan!" protesters yelled as they tried to march into the assembly building. Demonstrators with clubs battled police and at least two protesters were hospitalized with injuries.

Police did not use tear gas and no arrests were reported during the 30 minute clash. Thousands of riot police stood guard in various parts of downtown Seoul to block possible anti-government protests, but no other incidents were reported.

The protesters burned effigies of Chun and his successor, Roh Tae-woo, and carried a black coffin commemorating the deaths of 15 slum dwellers allegedly killed in political confrontations under the Chun government.

Dissidents said more anti-Chun rallies would be held in Seoul and 18 other cities on Saturday.

NO PARKING AT GUC!

Sorry, but it's true. Greenville Utilities' parking lot will be completely closed through Nov. 28 while the parking area is being expanded. Even the dropoff/pickup area will be out of commission while construction is underway.

During that time, it will be inconvenient for you to do business at the main office. So, please pay your utility bill, by mail, by automatic bank draft or at one of the following local banks:

- *Barclays of N.C.
- *Branch Banking & Trust Co.
- *ECU Student Bank
- *First Citizens Bank & Trust Co.
- *First Federal Savings & Loan
- *Peoples Bank & Trust Co.
- *Planters National Bank & Trust Co.

After Nov. 28, we'll be able to serve you better with an expanded parking lot, completely remodeled offices, and a new drive-thru window.

If you have any questions, please call GUC at 752-7166.

★ JOBS ★
U.S. POSTAL SERVICE

Official Announcement... November 28th—December 2nd Greenville Area Post Office Will Accept Applications—For The Clerk Carrier Exam.

A recent issue of Newsweek magazine noted that the average Postal worker earns $27,500 in salary and benefits. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. Courses to help you prepare for the above exams will be offered by Postal Exam Workshops. Instructors Larry Herman and Bill Harold are considered by many to be the most qualified on how to gain employment with the Postal Service. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam score. The easy-to-learn techniques taught in these courses were designed by Mr. Harold. He is a former Postal employee, the author of three postal exam guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal tests.

3 HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95-100%

GUARANTEE: The time-saving and accuracy-increasing methods taught in this course are so powerful that we will enter into a written agreement. *You will score 95% or higher or your money will be refunded. *If you do not receive a job application/interview within 90 days of your score, your money will be refunded.

WORKSHOP TUITION is $35 and includes the guaranteed workshop, workbook, interview hints study guide with 25 complete take-home exams, follow-up consultation privileges with free information phone number, home study program and kit, personal notification of future application dates, and more... WANT TO RELOCATE? We offer the Postal Alert Bulletin giving you postal exam dates nationwide. You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal review.

Call for a workshop reservation... toll free PHONE 1-800-654-5996

Difference Manpower is big on it.

At Manpower, we pride ourselves on doing things differently from other temporary help services. We offer free word processing/PC training with our unique Skillware®. It's hands-on. Fun. And available only at Manpower.

And Manpower's comprehensive system of interviewing, testing and evaluating your skills — and your job preferences — helps us match you to jobs that you'll not only be able to do well, but that you'll like doing.

As a Manpower Temporary, you'll get good weekly pay. Life/health insurance. Paid holidays and vacations. And, whenever you move to a new city, you're likely to find Manpower there. We'll transfer your test results and work experience and put you right to work.

It's all just a small part of the big difference you'll find when you work for Manpower.

Triad Health Care Center Of Greenville

We know the kind of special people it takes to work in a Long Term Care/Geriatric Setting. Long Term Care Nurses give of themselves to the patients and work hard. They deal with aging and confused patients, elderly people who are frustrated at being unable to care for themselves and patients who are so ill they are unaware of the care they need. The special people that work in this environment are rewarded in a much grander way than the competitive wages & benefits we offer. If you are that special person (RN, LPN, NA) that can give of yourself, then you are the person we are looking for to compliment our staff.

Give us a call at 758-7100 or send resume to DNS-Triad Health Care Center of Greenville, Rt. 1, Box 21, Greenville, N.C.

Conference Takes Aim At New Age

By Bob Sipchen
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

CHICAGO — The first lady reportedly consults astrologers in planning the president's travel schedule. Californians flee their state like lemmings because Nostradamus predicted an earthquake, and thousands of average folks converge at sacred sites to chant and sing and help the world reverberate at a harmonic frequency that will compel extraterrestrials to intervene in our affairs.

In the past year or so, more people have taken these signs of the times to mean that a New Age of enlightenment is upon us. Others, however, see such events as evidence that the Age of Reason was all for naught.

It was a group of the latter who decided the time was right for a convergence of a different sort.

Right off the bat at this first critical conference on the New Age, moderate members of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal urged their colleagues to refrain from ridicule and name-calling.

"Vicious and hysterical attacks" against the amorphous New Age movement would brand the scientists, philosophers, and lay skeptics themselves as "religious bigots," a few members warned.

The 600 or so people attending the conference this month considered that point of view. And responded with a collective "naaaahh."

So for the rest of the three-day affair, which was co-sponsored by the Department of Behavioral Sciences at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois Department of Psychology, learned speeches and casual conversations were riddled with such esoteric terminology as: bunk, rubbish, idiocy, and nonsensical drivel.

If the conference's often-sneering approach seemed defensive, it was not without good cause, members said. Rational inquiry is besieged by forces of silliness and superstition, and Americans seem only too eager to abandon the scientific revolution of the past 350 years and stampede back to the Dark Ages.

"Symptoms of the distemper of our culture" abound, said Paul Kurtz, a professor of philosophy at State University of New York at Buffalo, who created CSICOP (pronounced sci-cop, as in science police) in 1976.

Since its inception, CSICOP members have conducted studies scrutinizing — and usually debunking — every sort of alleged paranormal activity from fire-walking and numerology to Eric Von Daniken's "Chariots of the Gods" claims.

The organization's quarterly Skeptical Inquirer journal regularly publishes these studies, including, in 1980, one of the first critical analyses of the Shroud of Turin, the cloth the Vatican only recently concluded could not bear the actual imprint of Christ's body, Kurtz said.

But the goal of the committee — whose fellows include astronomer Carl Sagan, psychologist B.F. Skinner, and physicist Murray Gell-Mann — is not "to kill Santa Claus," but to encourage the testing and analysis of scientific claims and to inform the public that such scrutiny is the basis of all accepted scientific knowledge, Kurtz said.

Defining the New Age is tricky, for skeptics and believers alike.

"Like Jell-O, it's very difficult to nail it to a tree," said Kurtz who, while conceding that he accepts New Age tenets such as positive thinking and self-improvement, labels most New Age-isms "half-baked ideas smothered in emotional goo."

A lot of what passes for New Age is just age-old spiritualism and trance medium fads repackaged, several speakers said. But many also pointed to New Age catalogs, advertisements and publishing lists that lump in practices and beliefs as disparate as holistic health therapies, faith healing, UFOlogy, positive thinking, Tarot card reading, breathing exercises, various types of meditation, crystals, Rolling, New Age real estate, New Age travel, and New Age diets.

Expressing a decidedly minority viewpoint, Gordon Melton, director of the Institute for the Study of Religion and visiting professor of Religion at University of California, Santa Barbara, said that the New Age "must be seen as a vital part of the new religious world that is flourishing in America."

The concept of personal and social transformation, and the notion that people create their own reality are the keystones of the amorphous "religious social movement" some call the New Age, he said.

Like most speakers at the conference, Jay Rosen, a media critic and assistant professor of journalism and communications at New

Oldest Artist Colony Thriving

By Charles Hillinger
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

PETERBOROUGH, N.H. — For 81 years writers, composers and visual artists have been coming to MacDowell Colony to spend a few weeks alone concentrating on their craft.

The 450-acre wooded haven is the oldest and largest artist colony in the United States. Nearly 3,000 men and women, famous and unknown, have visited the colony since its founding in 1907. It is here that Thornton Wilder wrote "Our Town," Aaron Copland composed parts of "Appalachian Spring" and Leonard Bernstein completed his "Mass."

The slice of wilderness was purchased in 1896 by composer Edward MacDowell, who said that his creative activity tripled while working at the colony.

It was MacDowell's hope that his estate would someday be opened to other artists, and his wife, pianist Marian Nevins MacDowell, carried out her husband's wish in 1907. She played an active role in the colony's

Charles Hillinger/Los Angeles Times

Authors and artists have visited MacDowell for 81 years operation until her death in 1956 at the age of 99.

Forty-five Pulitzer Prize winners have been writers- or composers-in-residence here, including Wilder, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Stephen Vincent Benet, Barbara Tuchman, Nan Robertson, Alice Walker, Studs

Terkel and Jules Feiffer.

"This is the third time I have been accepted as a colonist at MacDowell," said New York City novelist Peter Cameron as he sat on the stoop of his studio in a forest alive with deer, woodchucks, porcupines, chipmunks, skunks, squirrels and songbirds.

Cameron, 28, here for seven weeks, also visited the colony in the winter of 1984 and spring of 1986. Many colonists, as the artists and writers call themselves, visit again and again. Writer Alec Waugh visited eight times. The average stay lasts five or six weeks.

His rustic studio is simply furnished with worn carpeting, a table, a desk topped with his word processor and a cot. There are 31 studios scattered in the woods, no one within sight of another. Each has a mantelpiece with wooden boards or "tombstones" bearing the names of the artists who have occupied the studios and when.

Poor Fitness A Problem For Women

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — More than 80 percent of adult American women don't exercise regularly, and a researcher says they are three times more likely to die prematurely of a heart attack than women who are physically fit.

"Being unfit is more of a problem for females than males because less than 20 percent of the females in the United States report regular physical activity in contrast to 33 to 35 percent in males," said Dr. Lars Ekelund, research associate professor of medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Ekelund said he and his colleagues found in a study that the medical risk of being out of shape is comparable to the risks of smoking and high blood pressure.

"This work clearly indicates that women need to become more active," Ekelund said. "Even if a woman doesn't want to jog, swim or ride a bicycle, she can increase her fitness level significantly by walking three or more times a week."

Ekelund presented his findings Monday during the 61st Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association in Washington.

He said the study is the most compelling evidence yet linking inactivity in women to heart attacks. The study population involved 2,802 healthy women selected at random, given thorough medical examinations at 10 clinics across the United States and followed for more than 10 years.

"There have been very few studies of the protective effect of physical activity in women because they have a lower incidence of cardiovascular disease than men do," he said. "The few that have been done were flawed in some important way."

The study, sponsored by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and based at UNC's Department of Biostatistics, involved analyzing the medical records of the women who had been given medical examinations and asked to walk on a treadmill so that their heart rates could be measured.

People who are physically fit have lower heart rates at rest and during exercise than those who are unfit.

During mild exercise, for example, the heart rates of the most fit group of women averaged 107 beats per minute, while the heart rates of the least fit group averaged 152 beats per minute, Ekelund said.

Researchers kept up with the women, who ranged in age from 30 to 69, for 10½ years and then reviewed death certificates to find 40 subjects who had died of cardiovascular disease.

The study found that women in the least fit group were three times more likely to have died from heart attacks than the most fit group.

"Using statistical techniques, we took into consideration other risk factors like blood pressure, smoking habits, cholesterol values and still found a strong protective effect for exercise," Ekelund said.

Reggae, Pop Combine For Success Of UB40

By Mary Anne O'Callaghan THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We've never done anything by design. It's as if a bunch of angels are saying, 'Yeah, that's okay — go ahead and do it,'" says James Brown, the drummer for the melodic reggae band UB40.

Those angels have good instincts. UB40 is the largest selling reggae act in music. The band comes from Birmingham, England. Most of the members were on the dole when they got together. They borrowed their name from the unemployment form used in Great Britain.

That was eight years and nine top 10 albums ago. They've had 18 top 20 singles. Their latest record, "UB40," on A&M Records, was 54 on the Cashbox magazine Nov. 5 pop chart.

The release of the first single from the album has been delayed because "Red Red Wine," a song from their 1984 album, "Labour of Love," entered the pop chart. It hit No. 1 on Oct. 15, was 18 on Nov. 5. A disc jockey in Phoenix, Ariz., began playing the song and other radio stations picked it up.

That also didn't happen by design. What has made this integrated English band so successful at reggae?

"We are geared to a pop audience," says Brown. "We listened to reggae and to pop. Some of that has drifted into our music. We've learned to adapt for the public something we're still learning. There could be some criticism that we aren't pure reggae but we are as pure as we can be. We are using all of our musical influences."

That blend of musical influences was responsible for their collaboration with Chrissie Hynde of the Pretenders. They first worked together on a reworking of the old Sonny and Cher tune, "I've Got You Babe," which became a hit in 1985. The single from the new album is another collaboration, "Breakfast in Bed."

Brown said, "'Breakfast in Bed' is actually an old reggae tune by someone called Lauren Benton. The song might be older than that. It's the only remake on the album."

"I think this record is more upbeat in tempo and beat. The others were a bit more contemplative. In this one we aren't contemplating our navels."

Except for the single, the songs on the album were written by the entire band. "We all sit around with our instruments and play until we hear something we like. We work on that bit until everybody has a piece of it. Then Ali Campbell does the lyrics. We only have as many words as are absolutely necessary. Ali goes through the songs and picks out what suits the music. That's his territory and none of us would know how to do it.

"I guess it would be easier if we had set people who wrote the songs but that's not the way we operate," Brownsays.

The eight-man band also doesn't have one dominant voice that's heard above the others. "We don't have a front man simply because we don't have one," Brown says. "It wasn't by choice, really, although we do periodically kid ourselves that we were very clever to not have one."

The lack of a front man has enabled the group to live a somewhat normal life in their native Birmingham, although some members of the band, like Astro and Ali Campbell, are easily identifiable.

"At first I was bothered that I wasn't recognized because other people in the band were," Brown laughs. "But now I'm not. I'm a bit embarrassed by all that. I mean, what do you say to someone after they have said, 'Aren't you so and so?'"

"I'm not sitting around talking about my job unless I'm doing interviews. It's my job. I enjoy it but it's not the answer to life."

In addition to the music, the band — collectively and individually — has branched out to do other projects. That includes a film, "UB40 CCCP," an account of the band's tour of the Soviet Union. As a band, they have attempted to help other artists gain recognition. The cover for the new album is the work of Steve Masterson.

"His work is about anonymity and we thought that the whole collection would make an interesting cover. We fell across him accidentally," Brownsays.

The previous album, "Labour of Love," was a collection of old reggae songs that had influenced the band.

The band's interest in reggae came from the surroundings in Birmingham.

"Reggae chose me, really," Brown says. "I lived in an area that had a high immigration population — a lot of West Indians. They were always around and so was their music."

When UB40 formed, none of the members had any formal music training. They learned fast and well.

"I've only begun to feel comfortable now playing in front of an audience. Until a while ago, I felt like I was doing everything by the seat of my pants," Brown says.

He laughs, "Maybe the panic gave us an extra edge. It was hell to be up there not knowing how to play. Now, this tour we're playing Madison Square Garden. I think that's something to be proud of."

Brown thinks reggae will branch out and become mainstream.

"The problem with reggae is twofold: There are the bands that are popular in the dance halls and have a quick turnaround. Then there are the bands that are established and have had long careers. I'd like to see more artists with careers that extend over a long time and can get onto the charts."

"I'm not precious about reggae. I don't think it's the answer to the world's problems. I'd like it to be just another branch of popular music that is regularly on the charts."

The band didn't envision the extent of their success when they started.

"There was no way we could've predicted our success. There are some things we would probably change if we went back and did it over again. We made mistakes. Some were big mistakes musically and in other things but the band's success is a result of those mistakes. We wouldn't be the same band if we didn't make them."

'Jake' Muscles His Way Into 'Infotainment' Show

By RICHARD DE ATLEY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Jake Steinfeld, the high-energy exercise instructor and motivator has muscled into the "infotainment" TV market, but is playing what he calls that game's "right field" this season.

You have to get up at 5:30 a.m. in most areas of the country to catch the 30-year-old Steinfeld's "Body By Jake," his entry in the crowded "infotainment" market. Steinfeld and show co-owner Samuel Goldwyn Co. are hoping the show's format will put it ahead of other shows for advancement to better time slots.

"It's like saying, 'Put on a uniform. You're on the team, and you can play right field for now.' So I'm in the game now. A lot of balls aren't going to come to me, but I'm out here in right field."

Steinfeld, a popular figure through his "Fitness Breaks" on Cable News Network, three exercise videos, a book and coaching of such Hollywood luminaries as Steven Spielberg, Harrison Ford, Michael J. Fox and Madonna, said in a recent interview that he has been approached several times to do a television show.

"They've offered me to do exercise shows all over the place," Steinfeld said. "The reason I refused was because I asked myself, 'Where is a show like that going to go? What are you going to say? Tune in tomorrow and I'll count to 60?'"

The answer is a show that mixes exercise, tips, pep talks and unscripted chats with celebrity guests who talk about health or personal care. The syndicated show currently is in 115 markets, or about 86 percent of the country.

"The main thing is I don't take myself seriously in the show," Steinfeld said. "I don't walk around saying 'well, this is how things are going to be done.' In the past, exercise people have done that and there's a stereotype of that, with them jumping up and down and screaming at people."

"The idea of the show is lifestyle. It's family. You don't want to make health training and nutrition a second job," said Steinfeld, who peppers his language with invented words such as "buttissimo" for buttocks and "abadab" for abdominal muscles.

The show has a seven-minute "energizer" exercise segment along with the tips and talk. But there's a twist. Instead of featuring a few good-looking models working out with Jake, the show has a shapely "advanced" workout model and a guest exerciser who is decidedly unfit. And that is the person Steinfeld and the camera give the most attention to.

"When you watch these shows, everyone looks gorgeous," Steinfeld said. "Here we are in L.A. We're very jaded here. Very jaded. It's a very vain community. Everybody seems gorgeous here, whether by naturalness or doctorness."

"But if you see a regular person working with Jake, you'll say, 'Hey, I can do that,'" he said.

'Channeling' Is Popular With One Group Of New Age Followers

 York University, agreed that the New Age was fueled by vague anxieties. But rather than infuse meaning into people's lives, the New Age subtly promoted those anxieties, he said. "The New Age is just another name by which the hollowness of modernity has been known."
 "People want instant and total change," he said, and "New Age scams" — from psychics to astrologers — flourish by letting people believe they can change themselves without effort or discipline.
 They "tell people what they want to hear ... and give them vague advice they're already predisposed to follow," he said. "Capitalism has nothing to fear from the New Age."
 Maureen O'Hara, a professor of women's studies at San Diego State University, said that a shakedown of sports was occurring within the movement. Many of the "1,001 sillinesses and grandiosities," into which it has splintered are getting tossed aside as the core of consciousness-raising ideas continue to transform society in important and positive ways.

 Rather than focus on fringe elements of the movement, Melton suggested that skeptics would be better served examining the ideas of central figures such as former Harvard-professor-turned-mystical-author Ram Dass, "New Age Conspiracy" author Marilyn Ferguson, and Willis Harman, author of "Global Mindshift."
 Instead, the conference offered detailed seminars on topics such as "crystal healing," "the Shirley MacLaine Phenomenon," "Cryptozology," and "Psychics in the Legal System."

One complete session, for instance, was devoted to "channeling," a New Age phenomenon shoved into the media spotlight by MacLaine's book "Out on a Limb."
 Modern channels, such as Jach Purcell, a financial adviser who channels "Lazarus," J.Z. Knight (a.k.a. "Ramtha") and Penny Torres, who brings us "Mafu," claim to be the vehicles through which voices from the past, or in some cases, from other planets or dimensions address the modern world.
 This sort of spirit-realm communication has been around since the days of soothsayers and was particularly popular in the 19th century, when mediums such as the Fox sisters, through whom the spirit world communicated with rapping sounds, reached celebrity status, speakers said.
 Although the Fox sisters later confessed that the rapping was a fraud secretly done with elbows and feet, there are still people who refuse to believe their confessions. The difference is that modern channels seldom claim to be talking to dead ancestors, and thus are not as easily tripped up on simple historical details, said the Amazing Randi, a magician born Randall James Hamilton Zwingi, whose debunking of alleged faith healers, psychic surgeons and psychokinetic spoon-benders has earned him celebrity of his own — as well as the MacArthur foundation's prestigious "genius" grant.

 Which is not to say that the modern channels are any more believable.
 For instance, many if not most of the "entities" allegedly speaking through channels assume an accent. But "most channelers are naive about language and don't realize how much information they reveal with their voices," said Sarah Thomason, a professor of linguistics at the University of Pittsburgh, who analyzed tape recordings of 11 channels representing 12 or 13 "linguistically inept entities speaking strange dialects."

 There are, however, linguistic tests that easily demonstrate whether the sound patterns of a dialect are consistent with a time period and geographical location, and whether they conform to universally consistent patterns of human speech.
 Many entities, for instance, use lofty, archaic dialects, "but people who would talk that way would not make the gross dialectical or grammatical mistakes the channels make," she said.
 When one entity gets excited, for instance, he begins dropping the trilled Rs and reverts to an American accent. Another 3,500-year-old entity speaks in a British accent that couldn't have occurred before AD 500, and another uses words like "rapsallion," which, while archaic, was unknown in the era from which the entity claims to come, she said.

 "These things are all easy to explain if the person is faking it. They're very hard to explain if he is not," Thomason said. "Oftentimes the evidence is so strong, it takes a truly determined believer to overlook it."
 Speaking in tongues "is a bit lower on the strata" of cognitive processing than channeling — but only a bit, said Graham Reed, professor of psychology at York University in Toronto. "... Sit down and try to write something Ramtha-like or Seth-like and you'll be amazed at how easy it is."

MacDowell Colony Is 81 Years Old

 "The vibes and stimulation just from those who used this studio in the past is unbelievable. Thornton Wilder used this very same room when nothing of his had yet been published," Cameron said.
 Of the tombstones, Waugh once said: "I think of all the writers who have sat here before me, of all the dreams that have been dreamt, of all the books that have been written here."
 Nearby, in another studio, Paloma Ceruda is working on a series of charcoal-on-paper drawings called "Images of the Crimes of Deforestation in the Amazon." She is an artist-in-residence for seven weeks.
 "This is an opportunity to get totally lost in my work," said Ceruda, 40, who attended California State University, Long Beach, and now makes her home in New York. "It's pretty awesome to be here for an artist like me who hasn't managed to survive on artwork alone. Office work supports me, yet, someday my fondest dream is to devote full time to art."
 Brooklyn writer Joel Agee, 48, also is here for seven weeks. The son of the late James Agee, who wrote "A Death in the Family," he is in the middle of writing a novel that has so far taken him five years.

 "This is total immersion, absolutely nothing to distract me, an incredible atmosphere," said Agee, who authored "An American Boyhood in East Germany," published in 1981 by Farrar, Straus & Giroux.
 At least one artist gets his creative juices flowing during a favorite season. Leonard Bernstein recalls: "I was here three times, mostly in winter when the snow was higher than you are; it's wonderful here in winter."
 Of the 1,200 to 1,300 applications received each year, about 200 are accepted, said Christopher Barnes, 52, resident director of MacDowell Colony.
 Applications are judged on a single criterion — talent — and reviewed by a panel of peers, Barnes said.
 "Many who come have achieved success and many have not. Can you imagine the frustration of writing a play and never seeing it performed, writing a symphony and never hearing it played, writing a book and never seeing it published, an artist with paintings never sold? We get talented artists, writers and composers like that as well," Barnes said.

 "It costs the colony about $90 a day for artists. Colonists contribute an average of 10 percent of that. They pay what they can."
 Each is provided a bedroom in one of the four residence halls, meals and the use of the studio.
 Until 1955, MacDowell was strictly a summer colony. Since then it has operated year-round with 31 artists in summer, 25 in both spring and fall, and 19 in winter.
 With a staff of 13, it costs about $750,000 a year to operate the colony, which has a small endowment and depends gifts, grants and bequests to meet its annual operating budget. Last year donors contributed $550,000.
 One "fellow," as colonists are known after they leave, pledged 10 percent of his arts earnings to the colony, Barnes said. "Often we get a bequest from an estate of someone who had been here. It is a lifetime thing. Once you have been here, MacDowell Colony is always a part of you."

People Think Faster Standing Up

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 LOS ANGELES — People think faster standing up, especially doing difficult tasks or if they are elderly or physically unfit, say University of Southern California researchers.
 "A person's information-processing speed accelerates 5 percent to 20 percent, for several tasks involving rapid decision-making, when he's standing as compared with when he's sitting," said Max Verduyn, an assistant professor of human factors.

 "This suggests that many persons would derive special benefit from 'stand-up and stretch' workbreaks," he added.

 Verduyn and his colleagues observed how quickly information was handled by 30 college-age men and women and 30 people aged 60 to 80.

The Wall

By Kim Whitfield

I was standing in front of the wall. All I could see were the names of people who were in peace, away from the killing, suffering and the scared feeling of the unknown. Most of them were not even 25 years old. They went in as boys and died as men, as soldiers. When they left their families they had no idea that they would not be coming back. They were fighting an unknown enemy and a losing battle.

I finally got up the nerve to search for the name that was all too familiar to me. I stopped dead in my tracks when I came upon his name. My heart slowed down as a tear rolled down my cheek. I touched his name many times and asked why it had to be him.

He had meant so much to me and he did not deserve to die the way he had, even if it meant standing up for what he had believed in. He, like the others, had fought for his pride and the pride of his country. Goodbye my friend. You will rest in peace forever.

My Way Home

By Kelly Brown

It was Halloween. The moon was very bright and it was almost midnight. I realized I had to pass the graveyard on my way home. So I went in the graveyard because I wasn't old enough to cross the road yet. I saw some ghosts flying around. I was scared.

My baby sister was home alone. A ghost heard my baby sister crying. He flew toward her as she cried. I chased after him. But he went into the house. I went in and looked around the whole house but still couldn't find her. Dad came home and went in her room. I warned him but he wouldn't listen. He opened the door. Boo! She said. She flew to him and bit him. He became a ghost and kept biting people for 500 more years.

A Spooky Witch

By Denise Hardy

Once upon a time there was a spooky witch who scared everybody. She even scared her mother. She had a green face. She had a long nose. One night she went to the haunted house. She scared everybody in the haunted house even the ghosts! She made the pumpkin hop away. She scared the goblins, too. They went up to a basement and hid. All the scared ghosts, and pumpkins and goblins scared the witch by kicking her out of the basement. They got some water and poured it on her and she died. They put her in a basket and put her in the river.

Denise Hardy, 6, a student at Third Street School receives special mention.

Federal Facts Senate

The United States Senate is often called the "upper house" of Congress. When the early Senates first met in Philadelphia they met on the second or upper floor of the building. The Senate is one of two parts of the Legislative (law making) Branch of the U.S. government. The other branch of Congress is the House of Representatives.

Article I or part of the Constitution gives the requirements and duties of those who hold Senate seats. Senators must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for 9 years and must be a legal resident of the state he/she represents. Each state regardless of size or population is to have 2 Senators in Congress.

Senators are elected for terms of 6 years, and have no limit on numbers of times which they can be reelected. Their salary is over $75,000 a year, plus they have an allowance for staff and expenses, free office space and free health care. Senators also have legal immunity. They cannot be sued for anything they say or write while they serve in Congress. This allows them to feel free to be critical without fear of legal suits.

The duties of members of the Senate are primarily to introduce bills and to pass laws with the House of Representatives. Serving on committees is where the most important work is actually done by the Senators. It is the committee which can promote a bill or kill it. Being selected for the most powerful committees is very important to a member of the Senate.

The vice-president of the U.S. serves as the president of the Senate. He or she cannot vote unless there is a tie in the Senate. In addition, the president pro tempore of the Senate is 4th in line after the Speaker of the House to become president in case of an emergency. The president pro tempore conducts business when the VP is not in the Senate.

Senators approve or reject certain appointments made by the president. They approve or reject treaties made with foreign nations. The Senate also tries impeachment cases brought from the House of Representatives.

New Van Nortwick Cookbook Contains More Than Recipes

By Cherie Evans

The large print helps the vision impaired read the recipes; the "practical" recipes help the chefs who'll use it and Ms. Van Nortwick's personal adages not only give good advice but also give a glimpse of the author.

Printed under the Amaretto Cake recipe Ms. Van Nortwick credits to Lois Brown, for example, is one of her general philosophies about life.

"What God takes away from you is not important; it's what you do with what is left."

"Five years ago, when I started losing my vision, there were no large-print cookbooks which interested me," she says in the preface of the book. "I thought, 'Yuk,' to opening cans and dumping mixes. Since I'd been collecting tried and true recipes from family and friends for so long with pleasure, I thought, 'Why not share with all the other sight-impaired people out there who enjoy cooking as much as I do?'"

The recipes include appetizers, salads, soups, breads, vegetables, seafoods, poultry, meats, desserts, cookies, pies, cakes and a miscellaneous section that includes Brandied Applesauce, Freezing Peaches, Caramel Corn and Bloody Marys.

"It's a real good, practical cookbook," Ms. Van Nortwick said. "You don't have to go out and buy several different things to use in the recipes."

sion impaired, specifically, and seeing chefs generally.

For example, if a kernel of popcorn pops in oil, the oil is ready for frying; all spices are put in wide-mouth jars so they may be spooned out; an unbeaten white of egg rolled on an unbaked crust keeps the crust from getting soggy in a fruit pie, and a little vegetable oil to butter keeps the butter from browning.

The first 1,500 copies of the cookbook, printed by The McMurray Co. in Brookville, Pa., have been available about a month. They sell for $16.95 each and are available locally at the Kitchen Cupboard, Jefferson's Florist and Lynn's Hallmark Cards.

"I think that trying to market the book, for a while, will be a challenge for me," she said. Williamston, Greensboro, Nags Head and Manteo are other locations where the book will be available, while Virginia and South Carolina are other targets for marketing, Ms. Van Nortwick said.

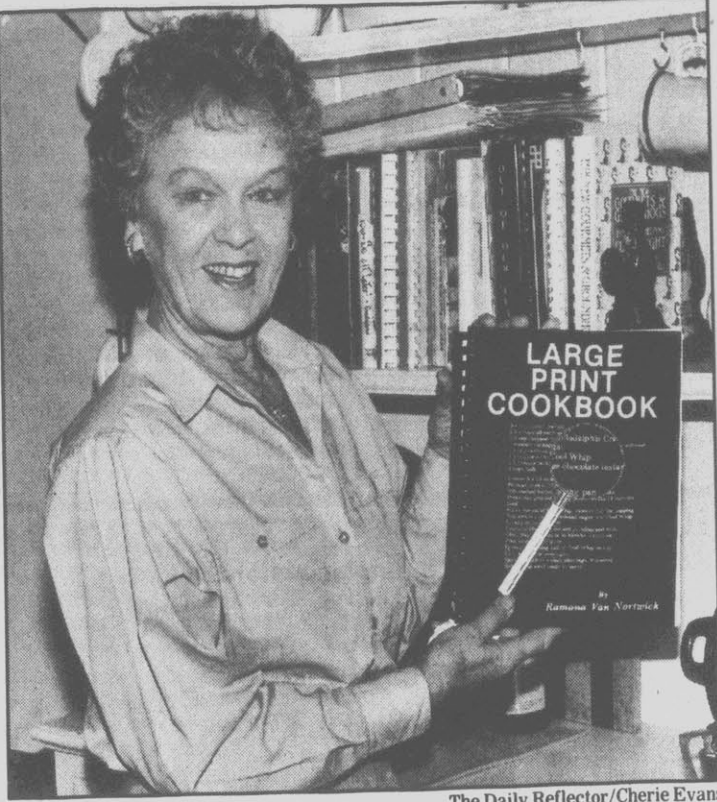

The Kitchen Cupboard is hosting an autograph party Sunday afternoon for Ms. Van Nortwick.

"I think the greatest frustration that I have with this eye problem is not being able to drive," she said. "If it wasn't for my friends, I don't know what I'd do."

Sue Ludwig of Brookfield, Pa., and her neighbors, Chuck and Cecilia Bocklage, were essentials in getting the book printed, she said. "They were just my right-hand men in getting it into shape to get it to the printer."

Also Lib Duncan and Betty Grossnickle provided support to the project, Ms. Van Nortwick said. "I've been taking cooking classes from Betty prac-

The Effects Of Eating Oats: No Guarantees

By Carole Sugarman
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

There are no hard-and-fast rules or guarantees when it comes to lowering blood cholesterol by eating oats. Researchers can conclude only that they seem to work, but making sweeping predictions for the entire population is difficult, since everybody reacts differently.

Studies that have been made are difficult to compare to each other, because they were each based on a different number of subjects, with varying ages and cholesterol levels, who were fed oat products in different amounts and forms.

Also, the results of each study represent averages. Some individuals, researchers report, do not respond to oat bran at all.

There are still a lot of questions to be answered. Do individuals with higher cholesterol levels benefit more from oats? There is some evidence that they do.

Can you eat bacon and eggs with your oat-bran muffin and still get the cholesterol-lowering effects? "The good news is that oat bran does work when people eat a typical American diet," said Dr. James

Anderson, whose studies at the University of Kentucky have shown an average 19 percent drop in cholesterol levels when people on "typical American diets" (37 percent of calories from fat) consumed 3½ ounces or a little over a cup of oat bran a day. (Anderson's most recent studies have shown the same reduction with half the amount of oat bran.)

But Anderson still believes that it's counterproductive to eat high-fat, high-cholesterol foods along with oat bran. "All the epidemiological evidence suggests that eating low-fat, low-cholesterol diets are protective (against) heart disease."

Dr. Kurt Gold, of the University of California at Irvine, believes that even though most test subjects have not officially been on fat-modified diets, that in fact they were. Anytime something like an oat-bran muffin is added to the diet, something else, like a doughnut, is removed, Gold said.

Is oatmeal just as good as oat bran? Both Anderson and Gold believe that you have to eat about twice as much oatmeal as oat bran

Enjoy a "light and luxurious" beef dish sautéed in minutes by combining beef and vegetables in a delicious marinade

Beef — An After-Holiday Alternative

The first few days after Thanksgiving, many observers of the holiday are looking for low-calorie alternatives to turkey. Consider beef.

New breeding and feeding techniques and closer trimming at the butcher counter have made today's beef lower in calories and fat than ever before.

The beef purchased today has only about 192 calories and nine grams of fat per 3-ounce portion. It contains no more cholesterol than roast chicken without the skin, and it is one of the best sources for essential nutrients such as iron, zinc, B vitamins and protein.

One thing beef hasn't lost, however, is its taste. Here's an easy-to-prepare, low calorie beef recipe that's rich in texture and flavor.

LIGHT & LUXURIOUS 10 MINUTE BEEF SAUTE

- 2 beef tenderloin steaks, cut 3/4 to 1 inch thick (about 4 ounces)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon cracked black pepper
- 3/4 cup beef broth
- 2 tablespoons Madeira wine or sweet vermouth
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 2 small heads Belgian endive, halved lengthwise*
- 2 plum tomatoes, cut into wedges
- 1 teaspoon grated Parmesan cheese

Combine garlic and pepper. Rub into surface of steaks. In medium skillet, bring broth, wine and olive oil to a boil; add endive, cut side down, in single layer. Reduce heat and cook until tender-crisp, about seven minutes. Add tomatoes, heat through.

Meanwhile, panbroil steaks in non-stick skillet over medium-high heat six to eight minutes, turning once. Remove vegetables and steak to platter. Quickly reduce liquid by half; pour sauce over all. Top vegetables with cheese.

(2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced celery or 1 cup whole fresh green beans may be substituted.)

For Casual Dining, Try A 'Tower Of Turkey'

People rarely "entertain" at home today; they simply "have a few friends over" ... to play Trivial Pursuit, watch a football game or celebrate a promotion.

These casual moods call for casual food, like this "Tower of Turkey" sandwich. Sandwiches eliminate the fuss of hot foods, allowing friends to eat when they're hungry and there's no need to reheat a sandwich that isn't finished right away.

The "Tower of Turkey" sandwich offers another advantage: easy preparation. Instead of tediously assembling eight separate sandwiches, create this one, impressive sandwich-for-a-crowd.

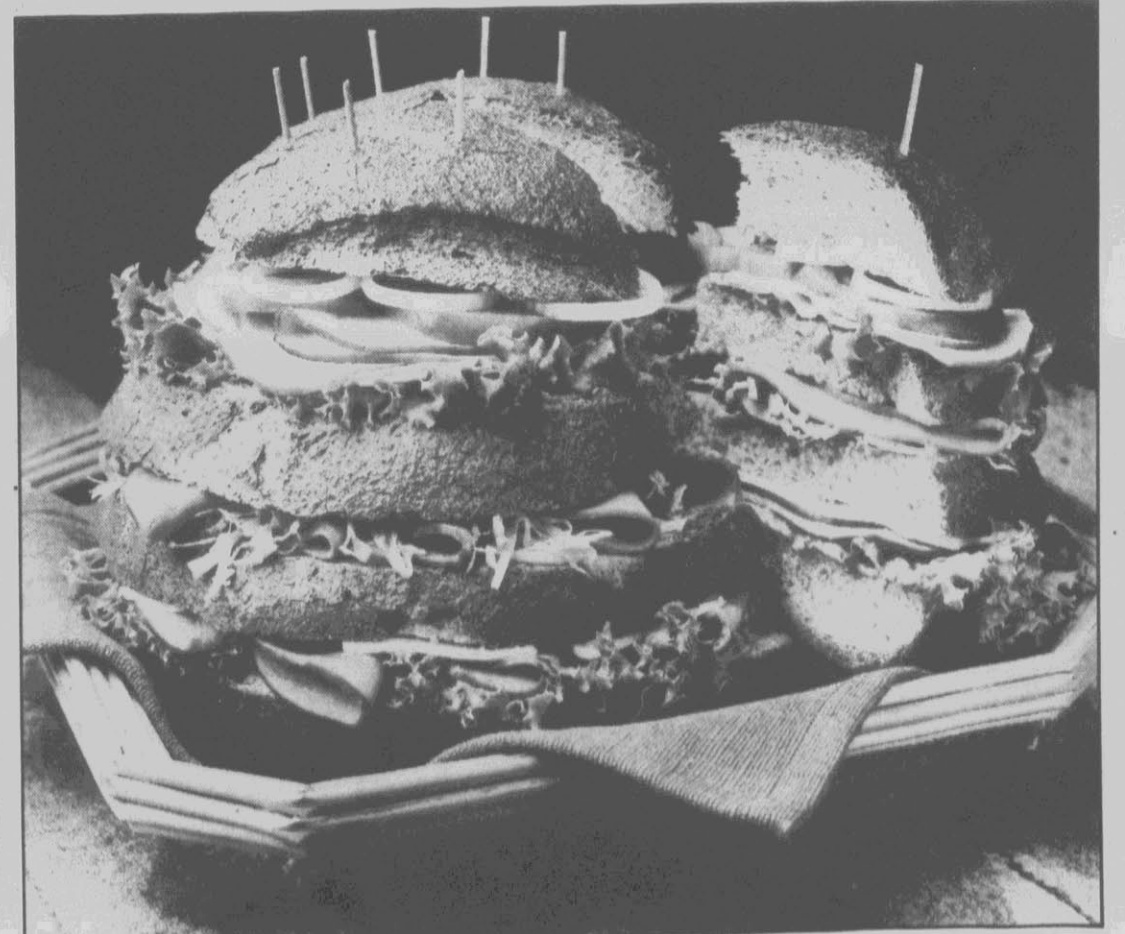

Begin by slicing a round, unsliced loaf of wheat or rye bread into four horizontal layers. Lavish each layer with mustard, then stack with combinations of cheese, tomatoes, lettuce, coleslaw and an assortment of turkey coldcuts.

Once the upper crust crowns the tower, insert a circle of long skewers to hold the layers in place. When the gang's hungry, cut the sandwich into wedges and eat like a watermelon.

Instead of purchasing several separate packs of cold cuts, choose a variety pack or ask someone at your local deli to create one for you.

With one-third of all Americans watching their weight, friends will appreciate your choice of turkey coldcuts. They have the same flavor as their beef and pork counterparts, but they contain less fat and fewer

Q. Would you review the new book from the American Cancer Society called "The Good Book of Nutrition"? Ann Appel, Greenville.

Cherie Evans did a nice review of this book (11-09) already. But here are some thoughts on diet and cancer prevention. We have all heard about food and food preparation techniques that might increase your risk of having certain cancers. The caution in this book says it again. Studies have shown an important relationship between diet and risks of developing cancer, but following the recipes and guidelines in the book will not guarantee that you will prevent cancer.

We have talked lots about nutrition guidelines for preventing heart disease in this column. The basic principles are the same for cancer prevention. First and foremost, reduce fat in the diet. The recipes throughout this cookbook vary in their fat content, but they are all low to moderate in fat. The cookbook has an excellent description of how to read food labels and an especially helpful example on how to avoid being misled by products identified as 90 percent fat free.

Cancer prevention guidelines encourage us to eat more dietary fiber. For heart disease, we have been suggesting soluble fibers like oat bran, pectin in fruits and fibers in dried beans. For cancer prevention, we are suggesting eating more total fiber. It is the non-soluble dietary fiber like those in wheat bran and whole wheat bread that seems to reduce risks. If you put both heart and cancer recommendations together, then you would try to eat about 25-30 grams of dietary fiber a day with about 1/3 of that from soluble fibers. Most eastern North Carolinians are eating only about 7 to 9 grams of fiber.

For both cancer and heart disease prevention, we recommend that you maintain realistic body weight and if you are overweight, to lose weight. Cancer guidelines put special emphasis on one vitamin — vitamin A. Ads for some vitamin makers focus on beta carotene, a form of vitamin A, which currently is thought to be the protector. But, cancer guidelines stress that with the knowledge we have today, it is best to get your vitamin A from foods that are deep green and leafy or yellow like kale, carrots, turnip greens, spinach, cantaloupes and tomatoes. There are some humorous quips in the cookbook. It tells us that people who like to cheat on diets still cannot classify carrot cake as a vegetable.

Cancer prevention guidelines also encourage us to eat less smoked, salted and charcoal broiled foods to prevent stomach cancers. I encourage efforts to use these types of foods and food preparation techniques in moderation ... like all foods and food prep techniques. But, many scientists agree that concern about charcoal grilling has been exaggerated.

The recipes each have calories per serving, amount of fat and percent of the calories from fat and notes if it is high in vitamin A or fiber.

It is a fun cookbook to read. If, for example, you have been to a trendy restaurant lately, you may have seen Crudites in the appetizers and didn't know what they were. You can read the sentence on page 19 introducing the recipe for Crudites with Creamy Dill Dip and learn it is a colorful selection of raw vegetables. This recipe calls for cauliflower, carrots, red, yellow and purple peppers, snow peas, baby corn, zucchini, Belgian endive, green and yellow beans, fennel and celery all cut into sizes and shapes suitable for dipping.

I am pleased to see this book in Harris Teeters supermarkets and also being sold by our local chapter of the Cancer Society as a fund-raising activity. You can call them at 752-2574 to obtain a copy. The price is very reasonable for the quality of this book, less than $10. It is a bargain for the nutrition tips and good recipes.

Helpful New Diet Tips From The Stone Age

By Toni Tipton
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

Genetically, human beings have not changed very much for thousands of years. That is scientific fact. What has changed for many of us is the environment we live in and the amount of daily activity. For instance, most office duties are performed at a desk. Then we grab fast food on the way home, pick up a video at the corner rental outlet and "cocoon" on the living room sofa. The days of hunting and foraging for daily food are gone.

As a result, we are fatter and increasingly less healthy than our ancestors, whose diet consisted mostly of wild vegetation and game. Yet, even with the high amount of animal protein they consumed, they suffered from relatively few of the cardiovascular ills we experience today. Their calcium intake was double that of modern man.

The idea of increasing life expectancies by returning to a Stone Age diet was first presented in an article in the New England Journal of Medicine of Jan. 13, 1985. The recommendations have now been included in a new book that describes ancient eating habits and living patterns and suggests how these can be incorporated into contemporary lifestyles.

In spite of its title, there are no recipes in "The Paleolithic Prescription, A Program of Diet and Exercise and a Design for Living," by S. Boyd Eaton, Marjorie Shostak and Melvin Konner (Harper & Row; $17.95, hardcover, 306 pages, not illustrated). What the book offers instead is an entertaining look at some scientific reports of prehistoric life. The data support the notion that the diet and exercise regimens of Stone Age man might be beneficial in the fight against disease. But it is not a diet book.

Eaton is associate clinical professor of radiology at Emory University School of Medicine in Atlanta. His colleagues are also from Emory: Shostak is adjunct assistant professor of anthropology; Konner is a medical doctor and anthropologist. The three analyzed dozens of primitive tribes from around the world and gathered fossil evidence to support their theory.

They hypothesize that while cave dwellers ate diets that contained substantial amounts of animal protein and cholesterol, our ancestors demonstrated a definite lack of cardiovascular complications, which the authors attribute to the exhaustive energy required for foraging for food. Furthermore, the consumption of wild vegetation, which tends to contain more calcium than do cultivated plants, contributed to the absence of osteoporosis in prehistoric man. And, they got 10 times the dietary fiber people do today.

These data support a plan for a lifestyle based on genetic inheritance but stressing a return to a low-fat, low-sugar, high-calcium, high-fiber regimen — one that avoids the harmful ingredients common in a typical 20th-century diet.

"Prehistoric life was not a bed of roses," Eaton said. "Child mortality was 50 percent and few people lived to be 60. But most early humans died from falling off cliffs, infectious disease or battles, not poor health. Those who survived, by virtue of a balanced diet and a vigorous lifestyle, appear to have escaped most of the chronic diseases of civilization such as heart disease, diabetes, osteoporosis, cancer and hypertension."

Eaton also cited evidence that Cro-Magnon humans were taller and more muscular than modern Americans. They had better teeth and stronger bones, he said.

"Today, our bodies and lives are out of step with each other. We have genes that quite literally belong to the Stone Age. But we have drastically altered the way we live and our biology hasn't had a chance to catch up. We're living longer than our ancestors, but we're dying from diseases they never knew."

Some statistics given by the authors show that:
—The Paleolithic diet contained about half as much fat as does the typical American diet today.

—Our ancestors ate food with more polyunsaturated than saturated fats.

—They had no dairy products after weaning, yet their calcium intake was twice that today.

—The sodium content of the Paleolithic diet was about one-fourth of today's. They also consumed more potassium than sodium, which safeguarded their blood pressure.

—They ate 5 to 10 times the dietary fiber.

—Physical exertion was a constant feature of Paleolithic existence, with every aspect of life requiring considerable muscular effort.

—They had very little refined carbohydrate — far less sugar than we do and no finely ground flour.

—They probably had little or no alcohol and, in any case, could never have consistently obtained 7 percent to 10 percent of their calories from it, as average American adults today do.

These characteristics provide a generalized profile of the Paleolithic diet: low in saturated fat and salt; water as the major and usually only beverage; sugar, primarily as honey, available only seasonally; roughage or dietary fiber consumed in large quantities from wild, non-cultivated plant foods; meat prominent in the form of wild game, which is considerably less fatty than what we eat today; and probably very little alcohol consumption.

One major criticism of the book is that it makes some recommendations for nutrient intake that are yet to be supported by the rest of the scientific community. These include increasing carbohydrate intake to 60 percent (from its current level of 55 percent) of daily total calories; protein jumps from the recommended daily amount of 15 percent to 20 percent; fat to constitute the remaining 20 percent (30 percent is the current intake level). Dietary cholesterol could be as much as 600 mg per day, providing the fat intake does not exceed 20 percent and that poly-saturated fat outweighs saturated in the diet (The American Heart Association suggests that cholesterol not exceed 300 mg per day).

There is no recommended level for dietary fiber. However, nutrition experts believe 25 percent of the day's total calories is a safe figure. Calcium intake is increased to 1,500 mg, provided there is no family history of kidney stones. Some vitamin supplementation is allowed.

The book also offers meal plans and gives preferred cooking techniques in a chapter titled "Hunting and Gathering in the Supermarket." Roasting, baking and steaming are considered "relatively healthful," with steaming being the most widely acceptable because it minimizes vitamin loss. None of the techniques listed require added fat. Deep-fat frying, grilling and barbecuing at high temperatures are avoided because of their carcinogenic effect.

As an example, breakfast emphasizes juices, fresh fruit, whole grains without added sugar and skim milk. Fruit is suggested as a natural sweetener. Unsweetened applesauce or fruit conserves are alternatives to butters and syrups.

For lunch, homemade sandwiches are the authors' preference. Use whole-grain breads, tuna and turkey. Or, substitute with a container of salad or low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt with fruit. Sliced raw vegetables add extra fiber and vitamins. For dessert, choose fresh fruit and drink unsweetened ice tea or coffee.

Nutrition: The Recipe For Healthful Meals

By Toni Tipton
LAT/WP NEWS SERVICE

When the more than 13,000 members of the American Dietetic Association converged at Moscone Convention Center in San Francisco recently for their 71st annual convention, restaurateurs faced one of their toughest audiences.

While scientists lectured on a wide assortment of nutrition-related topics — the most pervasive of which were diet, cholesterol, fat and obesity — dozens of the city's finest chefs translated the scientific data into daily menus. They prepared entrees for the group, in a lavish tasting, designed to demonstrate that healthful food can indeed taste good.

With the help of a registered dietitian, the chefs, representing restaurants from the trendy to the posh, served up dishes that met the U.S. Dietary Guidelines for low-fat, cholesterol, salt and sugar. They proved that it is possible to convert the typically rich restaurant cuisine into healthful meals that are equally as delicious and eye appealing.

It is believed that by having recipes such as these available to them, some dieters will avoid harmful weight-loss tactics such as binge-purge cycles and very low-calorie fad diets and opt instead for good-tasting, fancy fare that is healthful — especially today when the desire to become "abnormally skinny" has reached the level of obsession.

The American preoccupation with being thin can lead to serious health risks, according to Kelly D. Brownell, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Philadelphia, who cited metabolic and physical complications that can occur in people who perpetually diet. This is especially true if they have a genetic predisposition to being overweight.

"There is some evidence that weight gain has negative effects and that weight loss produces beneficial effects, but there also are studies with findings in the opposite direction," Brownell said. "So far, our findings are provocative in each of these areas. There's some evidence that the more dieting one does, the harder it is to lose weight."

He explained that it is possible that the "yo-yo" cycle of gaining and losing weight appears to redistribute body fat and can decrease the metabolic rate so that the body requires fewer calories to survive. There also may be "psychological and social factors that impede attempts to lose weight," he said. Among these Brownell described preoccupation with food and body image, depression, anxiety and compulsive and binge eating.

Thus, the physical and psychological aspects of unsuccessful dieting frequently are more hazardous to health than the complications of excess fat. This is particularly true if the fat is located in the lower body, the part of the body scientists have confirmed is less dangerous.

The first consideration when going on a diet should be to justify the need to lose weight — only implementing diet therapy when a person is in danger, Brownell said.

"We assume that all overweight people are at increased risk (for health troubles) and that weight loss lowers risk," Brownell said. "This assumption may not apply to all individuals, and unsuccessful maintenance of weight loss (yo-yo dieting) may actually increase risk."

He added that, "Obesity treatments are ineffective ... and instead we should be dealing with the metabolic confusion, malnutrition, obsession, children of fat parents, discrimination against the obese, peer pressure and pressure on kids by professionals to be thin."

"You need an honest assessment of your motivation," Brownell added. "On a scale of zero and 100, 15 is not good enough. You have to go on a good program, which I think is one that teaches you to integrate good eating habits and to maintain the loss. Just as important is relapse prevention. You've got to ensure that a lapse doesn't become a relapse."

An example of a sensible approach to eating would be a varied diet that includes foods from all four food groups, such as those prepared by the chefs. All of these achieve the requirement that total fat content not exceed 30 percent.

These and other chef recipes are available in a booklet titled, "New Ventures in Good Eating in San Francisco." The booklet features all the foods sampled at the tasting and provides their nutrient data — calories, protein, carbohydrate, fat, sodium and cholesterol.

BRASSERIE CHAMBORD WARM TUNA WITH SAUCE NICOISE

- 1 zucchini, sliced
- 1 small eggplant, chopped
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon minced fresh thyme leaves
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
- 1/3 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 15 ounces fresh tuna
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon minced fresh basil leaves

Saute zucchini and eggplant in 1 tablespoon olive oil. Add garlic, thyme, cumin, tomatoes and half of salt and pepper. Bring to boil. Then bake at 375 degrees 25 minutes. Let sauce cool to room temperature.

Meanwhile, slice tuna into two 1/2-inch thick slices and marinate in lemon juice, basil, remaining salt, pepper and remaining olive oil 10 minutes. Grill or broil until medium rare. Cool and arrange on serving plate over nicoise sauce. Makes 2 servings.

BIG FOUR POACHED HALIBUT WITH PAPAYA-MINT RELISH AND GOLDEN PEPPER COULIS

- 2 cups water
- 1 cup white wine
- 1 cup lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon oil
- Salt
- White pepper
- 31/2 pounds fresh halibut fillet, cut into eight portions
- Golden Pepper Coulis
- 4 heads colorful baby lettuce
- 2 heads Belgian endive
- Papaya-Mint Relish
- 1 bunch chives
- Combine water, wine, lemon juice, oil, salt and pepper to taste in shallow baking dish. Place fish pieces 2 inches apart in mixture, rubbing top of fish with mixture. Cover fish with parchment or wax paper and bake at 350 degrees 10 to 15 minutes, depending upon thickness of fish. Chill until ready to serve.

To serve, spread individual serving plates with thin layer Golden Pepper Coulis. Place 1/2 head baby lettuce on either side of plate and top with endive spears. Place halibut in middle of plate and top with Papaya-Mint Relish. Garnish with long snipped chives. Makes 8 servings.

Golden Pepper Coulis
2 large sweet yellow peppers, split and seeded
1 onion, coarsely chopped
1 medium potato, peeled and cut into 1-inch cubes
1/2 ounce freshly grated ginger root
Salt, pepper
2 ounces Champagne, optional
Combine peppers, onion, potato, ginger and salt and pepper to taste in saucepan. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Puree in blender until completely smooth. Add Champagne and adjust seasoning. Chill.

Papaya-Mint Relish

- 1 ounce fresh ginger root, grated, peeled and juice strained through cheesecloth
- 2 papayas, peeled, seeded and diced
- 2 tablespoons dry Champagne
- 1 tablespoon Champagne vinegar
- Juice of 1 lime
- 1/2 sweet red pepper, diced
- 1/2 red onion, diced
- 1 green onion, diced
- 4 mint sprigs, minced
- Salt
- Cayenne pepper

Combine ginger, papayas, Champagne, Champagne vinegar, lime juice, red pepper, onions, mint and salt and cayenne pepper to taste. Let stand 1 hour before using.

calories — perfect for today's "lite style" of eating.

Another time, prepare "Turkey Pocket Sandwiches" — slices of smoked turkey breast with lettuce, tomatoes and alfalfa sprouts, all tucked in pita bread. Drizzle with homemade garden herb sauce inside each healthy "pocket."

This low-calorie pita bread sandwich travels easily to school of work, too. Carry the sauce in a small plastic container, then pour on just before eating.

TOWER OF TURKEY

- 1 round loaf unsliced bread
- 2 Tbsp. brown mustard
- 8 lettuce leaves
- 12 oz. sliced turkey (choose a variety of flavors from your deli or a variety pack of coldcuts)
- 1/2 lb. sliced Monterey Jack cheese

- 1 cup coleslaw
- 2 medium tomatoes, sliced
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 8 long wood or plastic skewers

Cut bread horizontally into four layers. Spread each with mustard. To assemble, layer bread, lettuce, turkey ham and cheese; bread, turkey salami, coleslaw and turkey bologna; bread lettuce, smoked turkey breast, tomato and onion. Close sandwich with top bread crust. Insert skewers through top crust to bottom of sandwich. Garnish each skewer with cherry tomatoes, olives, pickles or cocktail onions. Cut sandwich into 8 wedges between skewers. Eat like a watermelon. 8 servings.

TURKEY POCKET SANDWICH

- 1 pkg. or 6 oz. smoked turkey breast
- 4 leaves of lettuce
- 8 tomato slices
- 2 pita bread pockets (about 6-in. diameter), cut in half
- 1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts, optional

GARDEN HERB SAUCE

- 8 oz. plain yogurt
 - 1 small carrot, shredded
 - 1/2 small cucumber, thinly sliced
 - 2 Tbsp. finely chopped onion
 - 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- For each sandwich, place 2 slices turkey, a lettuce leaf, 2 tomato slices and 2 Tbsp. sprouts in a "pocket" half. Combine sauce ingredients. Serve 1/3 cup sauce with each "pocket." Makes 4 sandwiches.

Vegetables That Can Safeguard Our Health

The benefits of plant foods -- vegetables, fruits and whole grains -- in maintaining good health is rarely disputed. Yet scientists have found that certain foods may go beyond health maintenance to provide special protection from chronic diseases.

One good example is cruciferous vegetables -- those of the cabbage and mustard families, including broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, turnips and kale. Researchers have found that cruciferous vegetables contain a variety of naturally occurring compounds that may provide protection against the development of several different kinds of cancer.

How these compounds inhibit cancer development is not completely understood, but studies funded by the American Institute of Cancer Research and other organizations have shown that the protective effects occur with the compounds as they are found naturally in food. That's why it's important to include cruciferous vegetables as part of a balance diet, rather than relying on vitamin and mineral supplements to protect your health. Depending in which cruciferous vegetable you choose, you'll also be getting a lowfat source of vitamin C, beta-carotene (a form of vitamin A) and fiber, all of which are associated with lower cancer risk. So add variety to your menu planning by including these healthful vegetables on a regular basis.

Brussels sprouts are one type of cruciferous vegetable that provides many of these nutrients. Choose Brussels sprouts that are firm, bright green and tightly closed, and without wilted or yellow outer leaves. A key to good flavor is not to overcook.

Brussels sprouts are delicious simply steamed and served plain with a bit of lemon. For something just a bit different, try them with this tasty sauce.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS IN CREAMY GARLIC SAUCE

- 1 1/4 lbs. Brussels sprouts (30-35 medium)
- 1 1/2 Tbsp. margarine
- 3/4 medium garlic cloves, minced
- 1/2 cup evaporated skim milk
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg (optional)
- Fresh ground pepper to taste

To prepare Brussels sprouts, trim their base, and remove any damaged outer leaves; cut a shallow cross in the core to allow for even cooking. Put the sprouts in a bowl of lukewarm water, and swirl them around to briefly clean.

Cook them in a large saucepan of boiling water, uncovered, until crisp-tender, about 8-10 minutes (small sprouts need only 5-8 minutes). Drain the sprouts, and rinse then briefly in cold water. Drain well.

Melt the margarine in a large skillet over medium heat. Add the garlic, and cook until soft but not browned, about 4 to 5 minutes. Reduce the heat to medium-low, and add the Brussels sprouts, evaporated milk, nutmeg and pepper. Cook the mixture until the sauce thickens enough to coat the sprouts a bit (about 15 minutes), stirring occasionally. Serve hot. Yields 4 servings, with about 108 calories and 5 grams of fat per serving.

Microwave Cooking

BETTER HOMES/GARDENS

Bottled salsa makes a quick sauce for golden squash cubes. For even cooking, cut cubes uniform in size.

SPICY SQUASH

1 pound of banana squash or butternut squash, peeled and cut into 3/4-inch cubes

- 2 tablespoons water
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 1/2 cup salsa
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (2 ounces)
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

In a microwave-safe 1 1/2-quart casserole combine squash cubes and water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 6 to 8 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Drain. In the casserole cook onion, garlic and margarine, uncovered, on high 1 to 2 minutes or until onion is tender.

Stir salsa, half the cheese and pepper into onion mixture. Gently fold in squash. Cook, uncovered, on high 2 to 3 minutes or until heated through. Top with remaining cheese. Let stand, covered, 1 to 2 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes 4 servings.

The Kitchen Is Becoming A Place For Entertaining

By Minnie Bernardino
LAT WP NEWS SERVICE

As more and more homeowners admit that the heart of the home is the kitchen, many are converting this vital space from a work room into a showcase for entertaining.

"The market is exploding. I've never seen it this strong since I started the business in 1972," said Kenneth Rohl, president and chief executive officer of Western States Manufacturing Co., a kitchen and bath appliance distributor in Santa Ana, Calif. "In the last year we've seen a rapid escalation of remodeled home kitchens, and we expect to see over 5 million kitchens remodeled through 1989."

With property values increasing, the option to renovate over that of moving to a more expensive home seems more attractive to many. As a consequence, the field is increasingly attractive to designers, contractors and even those from other professions. At a National Kitchen and Bath Association-sponsored kitchen specialist training seminar held in Los Angeles recently, one former schoolteacher interested in kitchen design said, "I want to go where the money is."

Stewart Fair, president of the kitchen and bath association's Southern California chapter, foresees extensive growth in the industry and in consumer interest. "What excites me is the trend to do an upscale kitchen," the former master cabinetmaker said. "The kitchen is a party room now, a place for social gatherings. We have to make kitchens big enough for guests, the majority of whom flock to this room. We're also doing a lot of kitchens with butler or service pantries so caterers don't have to be seen."

An influx of new gourmet appliances continues to replace old ones in kitchen showrooms, with luxury items now being treated as necessary. "Keeping up with new products is a job in itself," Fair said. "Among these are the halogen cooktops (electric halogen elements that let you cook with the instant on-and-off response of gas) and GE's Monogram appliances. Also, more and more people are going for solid countertops such as granite and Corian."

"There's a lot more interest today in upgrading sinks and faucets," Rohl said. These finishing touches, he added, are usually overlooked in the planning stage of the project, yet are among the most conspicuous and most often used pieces of equipment in the kitchen.

Designers are choosing faucets with pull-out spray features and sinks in single, double or triple bowl configurations. "The KWC faucet, for example, has four feet of hose extension with both aerated and needle spray," Rohl said. "Now you can bring the water to the pot rather than bringing the pot to the sink."

Rohl described Euro-design sinks that are made of stainless steel, cast iron or newer space age materials, which are heat and stain resistant. He was referring to the Blanco, which is made of a pure silicate quartz called Silacron.

Popcorn Sales Continue Hot

$552 million dollars! This figure isn't that of the national debt but rather 1987 popcorn sales. That figure represents a popping 51 percent increase since 1984.

Today, more and more consumers are turning to popcorn for its health and nutritional benefits. So, along with spiraling sales goes an explosive consumption figure. Americans munched more than 741 million pounds of unpopped corn in 1987, or 48 quarts for every man, woman and child.

Popcorn's "pop"ularity comes as no surprise. It's a good source of essential fiber, contains no salt, artificial additives or preservatives and is low in calories. Unpopped popcorn is composed of 71 percent carbohydrate, 10.5 percent protein, 3 percent fat and 13.5 percent water. And, popcorn is recommended by a number of health organizations: the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute recommend it for its fiber content; the American Dental Association recommends it as a snack alternative; and the American Dietetic Association permits it as a bread exchange on weight control diets.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, one cup of plain popcorn popped in a hot air contains only about 27 calories; popped in oil and salted, it's about 33. Microwave popcorn has only slightly more calories.

From the calorie conscious to those watching their sodium intake, to those concerned with fat and cholesterol, to those who simply enjoy it any way, it's obvious that popcorn can have a place in everyone's diet.

Teens Should Smarten Up On Trips To Marketplace

By Rose Dosti
LAT WP NEWS SERVICE

The average supermarket contains about 20,000 items from which the consumer must choose. Is the consumer confused by the array? Are consumers making the right choices for the health and welfare of the family?

Bettye Nowlin, representative of the American Dietetic Association in Los Angeles, said that there is reason for concern.

"With seven out of 10 mothers — more than 50 percent of all married women with children — working outside the home, teen-agers have stepped in to shop for the family groceries," Nowlin said. "This concerns us because the supermarket is a confusing place to shop if you don't know what you are doing."

While teen-agers are doing a fairly decent job of shopping, knowledge and expertise are required to make nutritionally wise food choices that affect the entire family, Nowlin said. "Since many teen-agers are doing most of the family grocery shopping, they do need advice," she said.

A study conducted by the Teenage Research Unlimited in Lake Forest, Ill., indicates that in 1988 teen-agers, the prime family shopper today, will be spending $47.7 billion of the family funds for groceries and other household items, most of it in the grocery store. The study showed that teen-agers spend 1.38 hours a week shopping for the family, about 1.05 for males and 1.72 for females. The teen shoppers purchase just about every item a family might need at a grocery store, the study showed. But they may or may not be purchasing Mom's favorite brand products and they are making independent product choices.

Peter Zollo, executive vice president of Teenage Research Unlimited, said that "The studies are showing that more and more young shoppers are making major independent decisions in the supermarket and the numbers are on the increase. And they are showing a sense of responsibility. When they go to shop, they go with a generic list prepared by mothers. However, 56 percent of the shoppers are splitting their decisions between brands Mom buys and those they themselves decide upon. Only 11 percent follow Mom's shopping list exclusively."

"We're still exploring the group who does not ever purchase their parent's brand choices," Zollo said.

Teen-agers wield extraordinary influence on what is purchased, whether or not they do the shopping, the study showed. About 28 percent of the females studied have some influence over what brand detergent a parent will come home with. About 47 percent influence their parent's purchase of cookies, 32 percent of salty snacks, 55 percent of cereal, 44 percent of juice, 20 percent of soup, 72 percent of soft drinks, 26 percent of frozen dinners, 28 percent of salad dressing, 11 percent of canned pasta and 38 percent of cheese.

"The marketers need to reach teens through advertising in teen media, and develop advertising executions that appeal to teens and very few are doing it," Zollo said.

"These numbers will only get higher each year. Because of mothers working outside the home we can expect more and more teens spending the family grocery budget, whether we like it or not. After all, teen-agers have the time to spend waiting in a grocery line. It's a responsibility that is being forced upon them." Also interesting, Zollo said, is that the teen population is rapidly declining, so per capital expenditure is actually higher than before. "That gives stronger meaning to the $47.7 billion they spend in the market," Zollo said.

"The teen-age population is expected to continue to decrease until 1992, at which time there will be an increase until the turn-of-the-century," Zollo said.

Teen-agers, Zollo said, are far more sophisticated shoppers than is often believed. "Our studies are showing that their attitudes toward health and important nutritional issues such as sodium intake, are as much a concern to them as their parents."

"They worry about what ingredients go into their bodies these days," he said. In fact, about one-third of the kids are more concerned in 1988 than they were last year as to whether the cereal they eat is good for them.

About 42 percent also purchased frozen meals. About 39 percent brought home salad dressing, 42 percent cheese and yogurt, 51 percent cereal and 28 percent rice.

Even though teen-oriented groceries are high on the list, they also are becoming good label shoppers.

Among the teen-oriented products strictly for their own use, the study indicated the following: 32 percent purchase cookies for themselves; 35 percent purchase potato chips; 22 percent tortilla chips; 33 percent ice cream; 5 percent buy salad dressings for their own use and 7 percent buy frozen dinners for themselves.

In an effort to help the consumer learn how to make nutritious food selections from the vast number of items in markets day, the California Dietetic Association came up with pointers for healthful "supermarket survival."

"Shopping the outer limits of the grocery store is one way to assure selecting a variety of nutritious foods from the four food groups (fruits-vegetables, grains, meats and dairy products), and avoid foods too high in fat, salt, sugar and calories," Nowlin said.

The usual layout of the supermarket places produce, meat, bakery and dairy products in the outer limits, making it easy to shop the periphery of the market for the basic four food groups before entering the inner zones, where much of the impulse buying can take place.

One way to avoid the pitfalls of impulse grocery shopping within the danger zones, is to become a label reader. "Labels will tell you which foods are high in fat, salt, sugar and calories," Nowlin said.

Here are Nowlin's tips for wise supermarket shopping:

—Shop at one or two stores to save time. "You can get in and out of a store faster if you know the layout," Nowlin said.

—Have a shopping list and save up to 20 percent on the grocery bill, Nowlin said. "Use coupons only if you would normally buy the product and know it is a saving."

—Try the less expensive generic items, Nowlin said. "Many such items are just as nutritious as the more costly brand-name products."

—Never shop when you are hungry. And if a sale item is sold out, ask for a rain check. Most reputable grocery stores will honor a rain check.

—Buy fresh produce during the peak season, when they are lowest in price and highest in quality. —Shop for bright-colored fruits and vegetables. They are highest in vitamins A and C.

—Store any perishable items immediately upon returning home to avoid deterioration.

SPECIALISTS

2-wheel front end alignment . . . Check and set adjustable angles to manufacturer's specifications. Most cars.

4-wheel thrust alignment. Every car has an imaginary centerline. When either the front or rear wheels are not parallel to this centerline, you will have poor handling and increased tire and suspension wear.

34⁹⁹

Total 4-wheel alignment. The ultimate wheel alignment. For cars and light trucks on which all 4 wheels can be adjusted. Shims and wedges as required, extra.
