It's almost Thanksgiving Day — the traditional day for turkeys with all the trimmings to grace dining room tables. But these turkeys, say owners Kathleen and Taylor Mosier of Greenville, will be among those still around — alive — on Friday.

Widow Leaves $7 Million Trust For 'Good Of Pitt'

Her Will Establishes Perkins Memorial Fund

By Stuart Savage
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Greenville woman has left most of her estate — estimated at $6.83 million — to a charitable trust "to provide educational, charitable, spiritual, recreational and other assistance for the good of Pitt County," according to her will on file with the clerk of court.

Mamie Latham Richardson Perkins, 88, died Nov. 3. A native of Washington, N.C., she had been a resident of Greenville for more than 50 years. Mrs. Perkins and her husband, James Jacob "J.J." Perkins, who died Oct. 30, 1982, had no children.

In her will, signed in June 1987, Mrs. Perkins said, "It has been my long cherished aim and purpose, and that of my late husband, to provide educational, charitable, spiritual, recreational and other assistance for the good of Pitt County."

"To that end," Mrs. Perkins called for the establishment of a trust "to be known as the James J. and Mamie Richardson Perkins Memorial Fund."

According to the will a "Distribution Committee," composed of attorney Louis Gaylord, accountant Wesley Measamer Jr., Lawrence P. Houston Jr., the senior rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and Carl Joyner of the trust department of NCB National Bank are to oversee the distribution of the proceeds from the trust.

Gaylord, who has been named chairman of the distribution committee, said Monday that the will calls for 10 percent of the net income each year to go to St. Paul's

Mulroney Wins Majority As Canada Backs Trade

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO (AP) — A victorious Prime Minister Brian Mulroney today said Canada had chosen the road to free trade with the United States and claimed a mandate to enact a controversial U.S.-Canada trade pact.

"Conservative Majority: Voters Back Trade Deal," the Globe and Mail, which calls itself Canada's national newspaper and had endorsed Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party, said in its banner headline.

The Toronto Star, which had bitterly criticized the trade agreement, said in an editorial that the "people of Canada have spoken convincingly."

"With this historic mandate, Mulroney assumes an awesome responsibility: Canadians have put their future and that of their children in his hands."

Voters returned Mulroney to office with 169 seats in the 295-seat House of Commons. He said he would call legislators promptly into session to pass the bill.

Mulroney told a midnight rally in Quebec that Canadians have "indicated the road they wish to follow. Now it is a time for healing in the land."

He defeated two rivals who based their campaign on opposition to the trade pact Mulroney signed with President Reagan. They claimed Mulroney's free trade program would subordinate Canada to the United States and ultimately rob Canada of its sovereignty.

Official figures with 95 percent of the vote counted showed the opposition Liberal Party led by John Turner with 82 seats, more than double its 40 of four years ago, and the socialist New Democratic Party of Ed Broadbent with 44 seats, up from 30.

The popular vote broke down to about 43 percent for the Conservatives, 32 percent for the Liberals and 20 percent for the New Democrats, with the turnout at about 75 percent of the 17.5 million eligible voters.

Consumer Prices Rise

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A second straight sharp increase in clothing prices associated with the new fall lines sent consumer prices up 0.4 percent in October, the government said today.

The 1.8 percent gain in apparel costs was accompanied by a moderation in price gains for food, which had posted steep, drought-related increases over the summer.

The jump in clothing prices was virtually as steep as the 2.0 percent increase posted in September. Over the last three months, apparel costs have replaced hospital costs and food prices as the greatest stimulant of inflation, the Labor Department said in releasing today's report.

The 0.4 overall October increase would amount to an annual inflation rate of 5.1 percent if it persisted for 12 months. The annualized rate had declined to 4.1 percent in September on a large drop in gasoline costs.

Gasoline prices fell an additional 1.0 percent in October following a 1.7 percent drop in the preceding month. But the decrease was not big enough to offset a 1.4 percent increase in electricity and natural gas costs, which raised consumer energy prices for the month by 0.1 percent.

Food prices rose just 0.2 percent, one-fourth the 0.8 percent jump of September, on large decreases in prices for fruits and vegetables, poultry and pork.

Fruit and vegetable prices actually fell 1.1 percent in October after rising a total of 12.9 percent the preceding three months because of drought-related shortages. Prices for beef, pork and poultry last month fell 0.3 percent, 0.8 percent and 3.0 percent, respectively.

Tobacco Quota May Be Increased Again

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another increase in the tobacco quota appears likely next year, but officials are hesitating to speculate on the amount.

The quota, the amount farmers are permitted to grow, is determined by manufacturers' buying intentions, export volume and the reserve supply desired. Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng will announce the quota by Dec. 15.

The increase in the quota this year was the first significant one in 12 years.

Export volume, computed as a three-year average, will be the same as this year, at 388.1 million pounds, says Robert H. Miller, an economist with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Miller wouldn't speculate on manufacturers' buying intentions, but in

Super Con

NEW YORK (AP) — The ultimate con — selling the Brooklyn Bridge — is no joke to city authorities who accused two men of prying off pieces of the historic span and selling them to a scrap metal dealer.

Damage was estimated at $37,000. The theft severely weakened the walkway and catwalk of the bridge, and both were closed temporarily for repairs.

"People joke about selling the Brooklyn Bridge, but what these guys did is not funny, it's dangerous," Samuel Schwartz, city Department of Transportation chief engineer, said Monday.

Ruffino Saucio and John Berisi were caught dismantling aluminum pieces of the 105-year-old suspension bridge's pedestrian walkway Saturday, said Officer Joseph Gallagher, a police spokesman.

The material was apparently sold as scrap, Gallagher said.

Transportation officials had been watching the walkway after they found large pieces missing earlier this month.

Auditor Gives City 'Excellent' Rating

By Greg Laudick
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The 1987-88 audit study of the city shows Greenville to be in "excellent financial shape, according to the firm involved in the annual examination."

Members of the City Council received the good news Monday at City Hall from representatives of Lowrimore, Warwick & Co.

"Overall, the city of Greenville is in excellent financial condition," said Stephen Locke, a partner in charge of the firm's Greenville office.

Locke said a primary indicator to identify the financial state of a municipality is to measure within the equity section the undesignated fund balance. That figure represents a portion of the city's equity which has not been committed for expenditures.

"As a rule of thumb, we look for that number to be at least equal to, or greater than, at least two months of budgeted expenditures," Locke said. "This year's undesignated fund balance represents a total which exceeds that rule of thumb measurement."

The 144-page, 1987-88 financial report was prepared for the first time almost entirely by the city's finance department. In addition, the report was supplemented with colorful graphs produced by the data processing and finance departments.

Bernita Demery, director of finance, said the finance department put forth extensive effort to produce a clear and readable document in an effort to apply for the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting.

The certificate is presented by the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada to approximately the top 2 percent of municipalities conforming to specific accounting standards.

"During the City Council orientation meetings in December of 1987, the Certificate of Achievement was established as a short-term, high-priority goal for the city," Ms. Demery said.

"The award will bring substantial positive benefits and results to the city through increased bond ratings. It will also increase public confidence and status statewide," she said.

Locke said although the submitted report will undergo extreme scrutiny by a panel of experts in municipal accounting, he believes the city has an excellent chance of receiving the certificate.

He said municipalities should be notified if they are to receive the certificate in May or June.

In other matters Monday, the council approved a resolution of support to the West Greenville Community Development Corporation in regard to an application being submitted to the N.C. Rural Center for Economic Development to initiate a home-ownership program primarily in the West Greenville neighborhood for affordable, low-to-moderate income housing.

Relocation Delayed

The relocation of the Patrick-Arthur house, previously scheduled for today, has been delayed until next week.

The historic farm house, situated at the corner of 14th Street and Charles Boulevard, will be moved west to a site on 14th Street near the railroad tracks on Nov. 29.

City Planner Andy Harris said rain caused the mover's schedule to be set back a day and a half and any subsequent delays in the moving process would have pushed relocation efforts into the Thanksgiving holiday.

Traffic on 14th Street between Charles Boulevard and Pitt Street will not be detoured today as was previously scheduled.

Judge Dismisses FCX Judgment

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A federal judge has dismissed a judgment against former officers of the Carolinas' largest farm cooperative, saying they are not liable for losses that might be incurred by investors of now bankrupt FCX Inc.

The judgment stemmed from a class action complaint on behalf of 1,500 investors, mostly North Carolina farmers, that alleged FCX officers did not properly disclose information about the cooperative's financial problems.

About 1,500 investors bought up to $7.2 million in bonds that financed FCX's operations before it filed for bankruptcy three years ago.

In September, a jury in federal court ruled in favor of the investors and ordered FCX officers to repay investors even though they were not insured by FCX and had few assets to sell in order to make the payments.

But U.S. District Judge Earl Britt Friday reversed the decision, saying the officers were acting on the advice of their lawyer, William H. McCullough of Raleigh, in disclosing information about FCX's troubles. Britt said the officers did not try to mislead investors.

In his 18-page order, Britt said there had been an apparent misunderstanding between McCullough and the officers. The lawyer had thought FCX's financial condition was being disclosed at the time investors bought the bonds in farm cooperative stores across the Carolinas, the judge said.

But the disclosures actually were being made only in the cooperative's annual reports and during periodic meetings with investors held during the same periods when bonds were sold, the judge said.

"These officers were never made aware of the disclosure requirements," said Raleigh lawyer Lacy Presnell III, who represented one of the officers. "These officers are really honest business people, and they have done their best. The court said there was no wrongdoing on their part."

The FCX officers named in the complaint were Jack R. Taylor, president, and Robert H. Lyford, vice president, both of whom took office in 1984; and their predecessors, Marvin McClam, former FCX president and the late Cliff E. Smith, a vice president. Smith's estate was represented in the case.

The investors are expected to appeal Britt's order to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, said Raleigh lawyer L. Bruce McDaniel, who represented the investors.

Study Panel Backs Tougher Discipline

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Alarmed by reports of weapons on school property, a legislative study committee has endorsed a dozen proposals for toughening discipline in public schools.

"The adults of North Carolina and their General Assembly must not allow our public schools to become armed camps," said state Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe.

"Without discipline in the schools, in the classrooms, nothing happens," Mavretic said. "The question is, how do we take those first, halting steps in a new direction."

On Monday, members discussed a rash of incidents involving gun- and knife-wielding students. Dozens of students across the state have been suspended in recent months for taking weapons to school.

The situation in some schools is becoming "chaotic," Mavretic said, creating a climate of "real fear" that leads otherwise well-behaved youngsters to arm themselves for self-protection despite warnings that if caught they'll be suspended.

Among the panel's proposals are ones improving teacher and administrator training for dealing with rowdy students, hiring specialists to advise teachers and develop programs, increasing the number of alternative schools for "chronically disruptive students" and continuing to reduce class sizes.

The 11-member Legislative Research Committee on Unruly Students crafted the blueprint, but gave it no price tag. It will be considered by the 1989 General Assembly, which convenes Jan. 11.

Democrats Agree To Program Merger

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development would be abolished under a plan in which the state's environmental and health programs would be consolidated, officials say.

Most of the plan, designed by Republican Gov. Jim Martin, was endorsed Monday by a legislative study committee dominated by Democrats.

Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, the committee co-chairman, said the consolidation should enhance environmental protection while streamlining the process of approving or rejecting industry's requests for environmental permits.

"It should not be that, for instance, those who dispose wastes into streams are (covered by) one department and those whose dispose of it in the earth, in septic tanks, are in another one," Hackney said. "Those kinds of distinctions just don't make any sense."

Regulators of similar environmental hazards should work together and keep tabs on what each other are doing but sometimes don't under the current arrangement, he said.

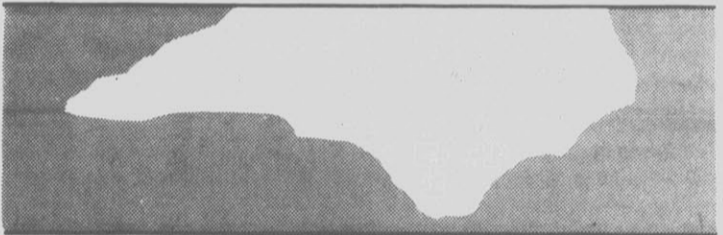

The panel will issue a report to the 1989 General Assembly, which convenes Jan. 11.

The new department would be called the Department of the Environment, Health and Natural Resources. Martin had suggested the Department of Health and Environment.

A consensus for consolidating the programs has developed over the past year among environmentalists, industry and others, although the committee has been studying the matter since October 1986. The Martin administration originally opposed consolidation, but changed its mind last fall.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who made the environment a major issue in his unsuccessful campaign to unseat Martin, also supports consolidation.

IN THE STATE

Dog Deaths

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Eight hunting dogs have died in recent weeks in Bladen County, and authorities are trying to determine whether poisoned deer meat may be responsible, officials say.

A veterinarian who is treating two surviving hounds said the suspected poison is either an insecticide, pesticide or antifreeze. Dr. Norman G. Baird of Lumberton said he is awaiting an answer from a laboratory in Raleigh where specimens are being analyzed.

Infant Mortality

RALEIGH (AP) — Expanding Medicaid services to pregnant women and infants so that the income cut-off for a family of four would be $20,350 has been recommended by a statewide task force in an effort to curb the state's rising infant mortality rate.

"Financial barriers prevent many women from seeking early and continuous prenatal care for themselves and their unborn child, as well as for their children during the first year of life," said a report prepared by the Infant Mortality Task Force.

Pregnant women and children up to age 3 now qualify for Medicaid if they are at or below the federal poverty level, which for a family of four is $11,000. The proposed expansion would provide services for those with incomes of up to 185 percent of the poverty level.

Tax Bite

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The Cumberland County board of commissioners has ordered Kelly Springfield Tire Company to pay more than $1.19 million in back taxes and penalties for taxable personal property and machinery the company never listed for taxes.

But company officials said after the meeting Monday that they plan to appeal the decision to the N.C. Property Tax Commission. The board voted 3-2 to enforce the fines and tax levied by County Assessor William "Pete" Rodda in January after an on-site audit last fall turned up an estimated $13 million to $16 million in unlisted taxable property.

Waste Plant

WELDON, N.C. (AP) — A Canadian company's proposal to build a commercial waste disposal plant in Halifax County has drawn criticism from nearby industries because it would be too close to businesses and homes.

Volcano Inc. of Ottawa has applied for state permits for a $6 million facility that would use two incinerators to burn 100 tons of medical waste, confiscated drugs, plastic, wood and paper a day. The plant, which would be built in an industrial park between Weldon and Roanoke Rapids, would not handle radioactive material, hazardous waste or household garbage, they said.

Only A Guess

JFK: The Impact Of The Unknown

America knows only half of what it lost 25 years ago today. The other half is only a guess.

Yes, it lost a president to an assassin's bullet and it lost a charismatic leader with a flair for words and a love of politics. The nation lost an illuminating vision of a tomorrow bright with promise; a shining America brimming with expectation and riding a crest of invincibility.

But the nation really can't know what the death of John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, took from it politically. Neither those who adored him nor those who despised him have any idea what potential, what programs, what failures and what triumphs lay ahead under Kennedy's leadership. The young man, in his two years, 10 months and two days in the White House, showed signs of being both an excellent and an abysmal president. And the tragedy of his death is that the nation he led will never know which path might have been traveled.

Only from the impact of his ideas can America speculate about Kennedy's life.

Kennedy's Peace Corps, his notion of a force of volunteers devoting a period of their lives to overcoming hunger and poverty around the world, remains a strong program that does immeasurable good. It has not, however, persuaded Third World countries to embrace democracy, repel Communism and respect human rights. In fact, many of the countries the Peace Corps helps have turned full force against America.

Many of the civil rights reforms his administration supported are now reality. Black men and women are infinitely better off in America now than before Kennedy set the stage for reform. Threats to the civil rights of citizens persist, and covert prejudice remains, but there can no longer be legal overt racism — no more signs saying "No Negroes Allowed" and no more schools with doors closed to minorities.

But while his support of civil rights laid the groundwork for progressive social change, Kennedy's failure to end American involvement in Vietnam firmly bricked the foundation for America's greatest military failure. He did not act on what he must have seen as the reality of that conflict — the futility of further involvement. Removing advisors and troops would have ended the conflict before it ripped apart the nation's social fabric.

Finally, America can know from the words Kennedy never spoke on the last day of his life that he was a leader of vision and shrewd deduction. The speech he was to make shortly before his death spoke of national debt, of defense spending and of illusory doctrines — all issues with 1988 relevance.

Kennedy was to speak of "voices preaching doctrines wholly unrelated to reality ... doctrines which apparently assume that words will suffice without weapons, that vituperation is as good as victory and that peace is a sign of weakness."

Could he have foreseen the military quagmire the United States wandered into in the 1970s and 1980s? Could he have anticipated the deterioration of leadership and the rise of "feel good" patriotism in a nation built on much tougher tenets? His words say he did. How he would have utilized this vision is mere conjecture. Whether he would, or could, have steered the country toward clear solutions to the storms building for the 1960s is an unknown entity.

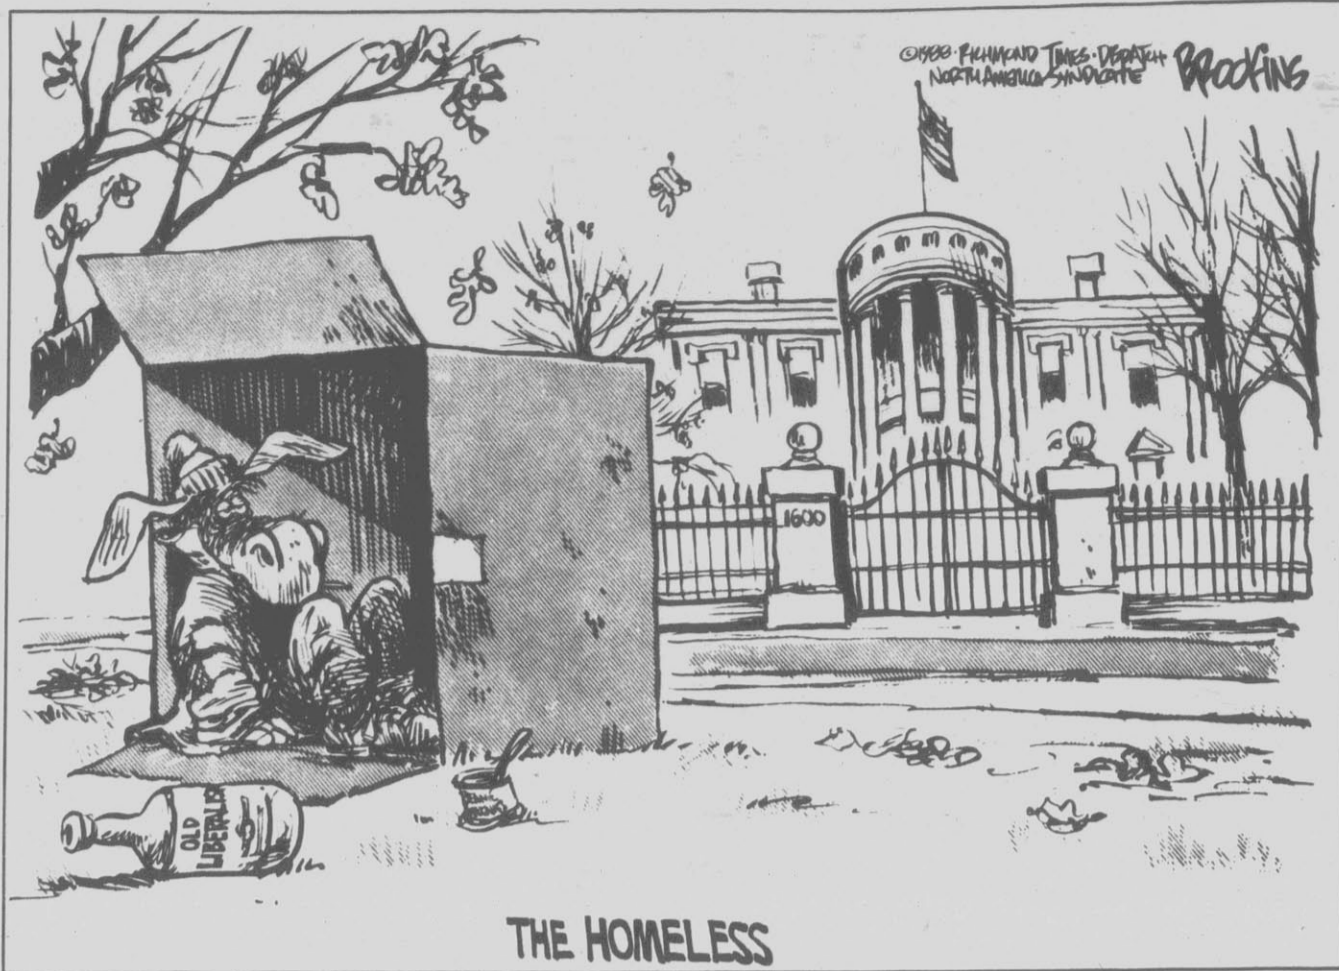

While America can never know the impact of Kennedy's life, it is painfully aware of the effect of his death. That event forever devastated the psyche of a country that had never known defeat.

In an instant of ugliness, violence overcame hope and forever bloodied, then buried, a nation's self-image. For the first time, America watched its best destroyed by something it could neither understand nor solve. Suddenly, idealism was no longer mightier than the sword. A warrior for hope fell victim to the forces he sought to battle. And in the next five years, the nation was to watch this spectacle recur twice — with Bobby Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

What America can be certain of is that Kennedy's death was the symbolic end of an era in which the nation was, in its own mind, unbeatable. Forget Camelot, America was Eden, before the apple was bitten — at least that's what Kennedy's enthusiasm made people believe.

Poet Robert Frost, who read at Kennedy's inauguration, wrote of the downfall of man in a piece titled "Nothing Gold Can Stay." His words describe the fragility of paradise on earth, where purity, by its nature, is transitory. His message defines the Kennedy experience for America. Perfection, even in the mind of the beholder, cannot live on earth.

In 1963, America was an Eden in the minds of Americans. But that ideal, politically, can't exist. Metaphorically, Kennedy's death proved that to America.

Will It Ever Come Again?

The memory of 25 years ago will not go away.

The memory of a neighbor coming out the front door; the look a shock on her face lingers. "They've shot the President," she said, then hurried back inside to watch.

For everyone who is old enough to remember that day, the next four days are deeply burned into memory. For four days, the world stood still and paid homage to the man whose life had been blown away by an assassin's bullet in Dallas.

It was not just a country that mourned, it was the entire world.

In many ways, it was the death of innocence. The innocence that the world could be a better place, that one man leading one country could have an impact on the world to make it a better place.

Already, the fruits of the Peace Corps were having their effect. Soon, the president hoped, a new civil rights bill would bring this country out of the shadows and into the sunlight where every man was equal and had an equal chance to be what he wanted to be.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

The Kennedy Assassination

25 Years Ago

Today

Reflector Commentary

By Woody Peele

was the last politician the nation has had who commanded such an aura of accomplishment. People talk of Ronald Reagan as the "Great Communicator," yet it was John Kennedy who communicated at an earlier time to a more hopeful generation.

For those who grew up during the Second World War and the Korean War, the election of a younger man to the presidency meant a true passing of the torch. No politician, with the possible exception of Franklin Roosevelt, gave a generation coming to its fruition more hope for the future.

Certainly, John Kennedy

was not perfect. He had his faults, and his feet of clay. But he also had ideas and ideals that began to move the country in a direction it had never before traveled.

He had setbacks. The Bay of Pigs was perhaps the greatest tragedy of his 1,000 days in office. And even he saw, in retrospect, that he had made a mistake by following bad advice. He learned from that mistake, and there are many who believe that had he lived, America would never have become embroiled in Vietnam as it was.

There are those who say his administration accomplished little. But it got the country moving in the right direction.

Unfortunately, those who followed could not keep it going that way. The war in Vietnam tore the country apart just a few years later, and the wounds from that era have still not fully healed.

When life left John Kennedy that day in Dallas, the light promised by him seemed to go out with it. The country has become fractionalized in a way it never was before.

What would have happened had Lee Harvey Oswald missed with those fateful shots? We cannot tell. Perhaps we still would have spiraled into Vietnam and the other problems which plague us today.

But for those 1,000 days, there was the hope that America could solve those problems, could make the world a better place.

In the four days that followed Nov. 22, 1963, John Kennedy's tenure in office was compared to Camelot, a time of splendor and grace and hope, unequalled before or after.

"One brief shining hour," it was called.

Will it ever come again?

The Large Impact Of A Little Act

WASHINGTON — Did Fidel Castro order the assassination of John F. Kennedy? That's just one of the questions asked by those who are convinced we have yet to get the full story of Kennedy's death on this day 25 years ago.

The Castro theory appeals to me — not because I especially believe it, but because it symbolizes why that awful day in Dallas was a turning point for the United States. The end of a President's life marked the beginning of a new era for his country.

The Castro theory asserts that Kennedy was killed either in retaliation for CIA attempts on the Cuban leader's life, or to put an end to them. There is no longer much doubt that the CIA was intent on killing Castro. And there is no longer much doubt that Castro knew of the CIA's intentions and possibly of Kennedy's approval. The question is whether the Cuban leader did anything about it.

The CIA's attempts to kill Castro reflected more than Kennedy's infatuation with Ian Fleming's James Bond books. It also reflected an American delusion — the conviction that we were so strong, so invincible, that no nation, particularly one as small as Cuba, could ever retaliate. The entire CIA operation was predicated on an American conceit: Latin America was ours and the Caribbean was an American lake. The Monroe Doctrine said so, our history said so and, anyway, our power said so. We could get our way.

No longer do we think so. Since 1963, a host of small countries has bedeviled us. We lost a war in Vietnam. We have failed to topple a leftist regime in Nicaragua. We sent Marines into Lebanon to help maintain order and had to take them out in body bags. Iran, our ally and the beneficiary of American aid, turned into an implacable enemy. A Middle East peace remains beyond our reach and bands of religious fanatics hold our citizens hostage, somehow impervious to American might.

At the moment, Germans and Japanese — two erstwhile enemies — determine the value of the dollar. The cars we buy, the stereos we listen to, the VCRs we watch are made abroad. Foreigners control one-time American firms and skyscrapers, once the very symbol of American dynamism have leases written in Japanese. The government is financed on money borrowed from abroad and, when it comes to oil, like Tennessee Williams' Blanche DuBois, we have to rely on the kindness of strangers.

In short, around the time Lee Harvey Oswald squeezed the trigger, the world was changing on America. It was becoming less manageable, more contemptuous of an American power that for a variety of reasons could not be applied. The American Century of Henry Luce's phrase — 100 years of American predominance — came up nearly 50 years short. An American mentality, formed in the post-World War II era when this country alone possessed the atomic bomb and was the world's preeminent commercial and industrial power, needed revision.

Kennedy personified a self-deluded and self-intoxicated America. He entered the Senate around the time Americans were asking who lost China — as if a nation of a billion people on the other side of the world was ours to lose. Kennedy's very rhetoric, his incessant call to battle ("pay any price") exemplified an America heady on the stunning achievements of World War II. His words could only resonate in an America that felt it was master of its fate.

A Peace Corps of bright and idealistic Dale Carnegies could, by good deeds, win friends and influence people in the Third World. A closing of the (non-existent) missile gap could intimidate the Soviets. The Green Berets could set things right in Vietnam and, at home, war could be declared against poverty itself and it would, like all America's enemies, be defeated.

All that ended with Oswald's bullets. It took some time for the realization to sink in — time for Vietnam (the war Kennedy began) to become a disaster, for the ghettos to burn, for Peace Corps volunteers to come home from countries that turned, inexplicably, anti-American. America's supreme and bountiful self-confidence was shaken. We had come to realize that our reach exceeded our grasp.

A bullet that kills a President leaves a wound as large as the nation itself. The act proves that random acts by little people can change history — that a world we thought manageable cannot be brought to order. It suggests that power and wealth have their limitations — that even a President, surrounded by the Secret Service and outwardly brimming with good health, can be struck down.

The assassination was a microcosm of what would happen to America. Lee Harvey Oswald both represented and still represents a loss of control. Little wonder we still grieve. When John Kennedy died so did our view of ourselves. The act of a little man diminished us all.

Today, in financial institutions all over America, people walk in as individuals and walk out as numbers.

Keith Hovers In Gulf

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Tropical Storm Keith churned over the Gulf of Mexico toward a possible Florida landfall tonight after drenching a stretch from Mexico to the Florida Keys and forcing the evacuation of 2,500 people in Cuba.

At 5 a.m., the storm packing 65 mph winds was centered near 24.5 north latitude and 86.5 west longitude, 325 miles southwest of Fort Myers and moving northeast at nearly 15 mph.

It was expected to cross Florida's west coast tonight, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said.

Strong high-altitude winds in the northern gulf were expected to tear at the spiraling storm and discourage growth beyond minimal hurricane force of 74 mph winds, said Martin Nelson of the center in Coral Gables.

"Right now it looks like there's not much chance of Keith becoming a hurricane," he said. "It's probably going to be just a lot of rain."

If Keith's winds reach more than 74 mph, it would be the sixth hurricane of the six-month Atlantic season, which ends Nov. 30.

Monday's rains didn't do major damage to Yucatan Peninsula resort of Cancun, Mexico, which was among the areas hardest hit in September by Hurricane Gilbert.

On Cuba, civil defense authorities reported at least 2,500 people were evacuated from low-lying areas in the island's westernmost province of Pinar del Rio.

Keith is the season's 11th named storm. Since 1980, there have been four November hurricanes.

Bomber Unveiled

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALMDALE, Calif. — The Air Force is bringing the B-2 stealth bomber, the crown jewel of its super secret "black inventory," out from behind the veil of secrecy that has shrouded it for a decade.

The high-technology flying-wing aircraft, designed to penetrate enemy radar defense and drop nuclear bombs, was being unveiled today by Northrop Corp. at a rollout ceremony — although at a secure distance of 200 feet.

"It is simply not comparable to anything ever done before. It is the first real computer-age aircraft," Northrop spokesman Les Daly said Monday in one of the aerospace company's first public pronouncements about the B-2.

Daly referred to an aircraft that has not yet flown and which the General Accounting Office estimates could cost taxpayers up to $68.5 billion if the Pentagon builds the 132 aircraft-fleet sought by the Air Force.

The B-1B, the Air Force's most current operational nuclear bomber, came in around $250 million apiece, before modifications. Stealth bombers could cost twice that.

Drug Traffickers Sought In Sniping

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAJITAS, Texas — Mexican police believe that snipers who fired on a three-member Rio Grande rafting party, killing one, were drug traffickers who resented the Americans' unwitting intrusion into a drug deal.

U.S. and Chihuahua state police searched the rugged area Monday and enlisted a top tracker to find the attackers who killed Michael Heffley, 40, as he tried to drag his wounded wife, Jamie, 32, to safety.

Police have not identified suspects or made any arrests in the attack, which occurred Saturday during a rafting excursion outside Big Bend National Park on the southwestern Texas border between the United States and Mexico.

Authorities later combed the area on horseback and discovered tracks that indicated the assailants fled on horses toward Mulato, a Mexican town about 15 miles from the shooting scene.

Heffley was shot in the back with a .30-caliber rifle as he tried to help his wife from the raft under a barrage of gunfire, authorities said. She had been wounded in the left side and left shoulder.

The couple's guide, Jim Burr, 36, an employee of Terlingua-based Far Flung Adventures, was shot in the right thigh with a .22-caliber rifle, said Jesus Porras Vega of Mexico's Chihuahua state judicial police.

Mexican police theorize the snipers, who fired from atop 300-foot-high bluffs in Mexico overlooking the Rio Grande, were drug traffickers who resented the boaters' unwitting intrusion into an illegal drug transaction.

Rep. Garcia Indicted In Wedtech Probe

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — U.S. Rep. Robert Garcia, indicted with his wife in the Wedtech scandal two weeks after his re-election to a sixth term, vowed to fight the corruption charges "with all of my God-given strength."

The indictments against the 55-year-old Democrat and his wife, Jane Lee Garcia, 48, were issued three days after Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., was sentenced to eight years in prison for extorting cash and stock valued at up to $3 million from the Wedtech Corp.

At least 19 people, including former White House aide Lyn Nofziger, have been convicted in the case. Nofziger was found guilty of illegal lobbying.

In Monday's federal grand jury indictments, the Garcias were accused of extorting $76,000 from Wedtech plus a $20,000 interest-free loan from one-time Wedtech vice chairman Mario Moreno in exchange for obtaining "favorable, lucrative defense contracts for Wedtech," said James Fox, head of the FBI office here.

They also were accused of receiving $77,500 and a diamond and emerald necklace from Wedtech founder John Mariotta and his wife, Jennie, in 1985.

Wedtech was a tiny machine shop in Garcia's South Bronx congressional district that became a huge defense contractor through a Small Business Administration program that allowed minority-owned firms to obtain government contracts without competitive bidding.

But allegations of bribery, influence-peddling and other wrongdoing enmeshed Wedtech in a series of federal and state investigations that forced it into bankruptcy proceedings in December 1986.

'Flashlight' A Ray Of Sunshine At UNLV

By Charles Hillinger
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — When Claes Oldenburg's 38-foot-tall, 74,000-pound, black, steel fluted "Flashlight" was erected on the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, campus seven years ago it was an object of instant controversy. Many thought the Pop Art sculpture of a giant flashlight was a put-on. But faculty, students, staff and Las Vegas residents have rallied behind the "Flashlight," which since has become a landmark, symbol and logo of UNLV, the university in the shadows of the resort city's famous Strip.

UNLV, one of two campuses of the University of Nevada (the other is at Reno), has an enrollment of 15,000 students.

"I have a strong feeling for the 'Flashlight,' as do most of us on campus," said Thomas C. Wright, 46, the university's dean of arts and letters. His office is in John S. Wright Hall, named after his father, a retired history professor at the school.

"The 'Flashlight' symbolizes a torch of learning, a shining light, a symbol of what this school is all about," Wright said.

Tom Holder, 48, director of the Nevada Institute for Contemporary Art on the UNLV campus, was chairman of the university's art department when the "Flashlight" was placed on the Performing Arts Plaza at the northern end of the Academic Mall between the Artemus W. Ham Concert Hall and the Judy Bayley Theatre.

"Yes, it was very controversial at first," Holder recalled. "Some claimed it looked like a toy. Others described it as a utilitarian object, not a work of art. Students and visitors who come here the first time still are shocked and amazed by it. Controversy is what you want in a piece of art. Great art is always controversial. That doesn't mean, of course, controversial art is always great.

"We're very proud of the 'Flashlight.' It is Nevada's first work of monumental art."

Oldenburg, the Chicago sculptor, has giant New Realism and Neo-Dada three-dimensional objects scattered across two continents: a colossal ashtray in Paris; a 40-foot trowel stuck in the ground in the Netherlands; a 24-foot lipstick on the Yale campus; the 100-foot-tall Bat-column, an open-mesh giant baseball bat in Chicago; a 53-foot clothespin across from the City Hall in Philadelphia; three giant pool balls in a park in Munster, West Germany, to name a few.

The sculptor remembers flying over Las Vegas when he planned his work for the UNLV campus. "Las Vegas was a small patch of light in a vast desert darkness," Oldenburg said. "A flashlight seemed to be the proper symbol for that beacon of light in the desert."

Poem Reflects Outrage Over Death Of Kennedy

Dear Abby: News reports indicate that there will be more than the usual annual publicity on the 25th anniversary of the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Shortly after that unforgettable day, I wrote a poem about the death of President Kennedy and submitted it for publication to the Pacific Telephone Co. where I was employed. It was published in the in-house publication. (I retired from the telephone company 15 years ago.)

This poem was never copyrighted, so anyone who wishes to use it may do so. Abby, I have enjoyed your column for many years and would be honored if you chose to print it.

This poem is not intended to be any kind of political statement. I voted for Kennedy, but I also voted for Eisenhower, Nixon and Reagan.

On The Death Of President Kennedy I felt the shock and rage and grief And gloom and utter disbelief! I heard the news; somehow it seemed

That it was only something dreamed.

The president was shot, they said A sniper's bullet through the head. He'd fallen, and a red blood stain Spread on the spot his head was laid.

There cradled by his young wife's arm,

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Unable now to stop the harm.
My God, what sort of troubled brain
Would plot a deed of such disdain?

We ought by law to burn in flame
Such seekers of ignoble fame;
Yes, burn and torture publicly
To quell such thoughts of infamy!

Or am I giving vent to hate
Like that which brewed this tragic fate?

If Kennedy could speak, I'm sure,
He'd want us only to endure

His passing just as we have done;
Then work to make this country one

Which really gives equality
To those who strive to keep it free;

A nation that will now unite
More strongly for his goals of right.

This land, this world will better be Because of John F. Kennedy.

— Fred Grobee, Garden Grove, Calif.

Dear Readers: Where were you when you heard "the news"? My husband and I were in Tokyo, traveling with then-California Attorney

General Stanley Mosk and his wife. (He is now associate justice of the California State Supreme Court.)

Mosk was awakened about 5 a.m. by a telephone call from the United States, relating the terrible news. We all turned on the TV and saw Jack Ruby kill Oswald! Our reaction? Shock, horror and disbelief.

We were enormously touched by the sympathy extended by the Japanese people. Wherever we went — in the elevator, in the lobby of our hotel and on the streets of Tokyo — Japanese strangers bowed their heads and said softly, "So sorry about your president."

We were in no mood to continue our vacation, so we cut our trip short and returned home.

Confidential To Hurting: Cry your eyes out. Let yourself go, and let the tears flow. Give your grief a chance to express itself. It's healthy. Don't try to put on a "brave" show. It takes honesty, strength and courage for a man to express his emotions. That is real manliness. The weak man hides his feelings.

Dear Abby: What do you do with a 28-year-old man who rarely showers, never washes his hair, and doesn't even own a toothbrush? — Anonymous In Knoxville

Dear Anonymous: Nothing.

School Board Concerned Over Way To Keep Track Of New Construction

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County Board of Education questioned the feasibility of "keeping track" of construction projects proposed in a three-year schedule during its workshop meeting Monday night.

Deputy Superintendent John McKnight, who has organized the construction process for the school system, told the board he would want to start the projects in Priority 1 in the 1989-90 year with the completion date being 14 to 18 months later.

"My personal opinion is we cannot do this in 18 months," board member Frank Grooms said. "How do you keep track of all that?"

Construction projects in Priority 1 include adding classrooms and other instructional areas in schools throughout the county, finding a site and constructing a new elementary school in the North Pitt attendance area (to replace Stokes Elementary) and converting Greenville Middle School into a high school.

The initial projected total for projects in the first priority was $15.3 million, but McKnight told the board Monday that converting the middle school would take about $10 million instead of $6.5 million, which raises the total to $18.9 million for the first priority.

"I think whatever is agreed upon would take a little creativity," McKnight said, referring to the management of the projects. "The technology must be there but of course you're going to pay for that" through construction management fees, he said, citing a $200 million construction plan being implemented in the Wake County schools.

"I'm going to ask for the most amount of time that you'll let me have" for the construction, McKnight said. Alternative ways of packaging the projects would be explored, plus multiple architects and construction managers would be used, he said. In addition, construction projects in Priorities 1 and 2 would be "linked" together whenever possible at the individual schools.

Grooms suggested that a construction management firm that does not have an "invested interest" in the county schools be asked for advice on how to package the projects.

Board member Walter Morehead questioned whether consulting the firm would reduce or increase costs, while board chairman George Williams said the emphasis should be getting the most out of money to be used on the projects.

The board asked the school system's administration to consult a management firm with no "invested interest" in the projects for alternate ways of managing and packaging them.

McKnight said the school system is also trying to keep track of possible growth areas through permits granted through the Greenville and county planning and zoning boards. He said the completed construction projects would not eliminate the 90 mobile units, but possibly would cut the number needed to half.

Projects in Priorities 2 and 3 total $2.9 million and $8.7 million, respectively, for a total of $28.4 million.

Most of the money for the projects would come from a $25.7 million bond program and the sell of the J.H. Rose High School facility at $3.5 million for a total of $29.3 million.

Quota Hike Likely

An interview published today in the Wilmington Morning Star, he said cigarette exports are expected to rise from 100 billion cigarettes last year to 115 billion this year, based on the latest forecast. A 15 billion increase in the number of cigarettes exported means about 10 million more pounds of flue-cured tobacco used to manufacture the cigarettes, he said.

Cigarette companies must announce their purchase intentions by Dec. 1. Manufacturers increased their purchase intentions from 355 million pounds in 1987 to 441.4 million this year, a jump of more than 24 percent.

The basic quota this year was 755 million pounds, and the effective quota — which includes the shortfall from the previous year — was set at 805 million pounds.

Another factor that could cause a quota increase is a reduction in the amount of tobacco held by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., Miller said. Last year, the grower-owned co-op held about 51 million pounds more than the desired surplus. The final quota was reduced by that much to keep supply in line with demand.

Stabilization stocks as of Nov. 1 were only 20 million pounds above the desired reserve supply, Miller said.

By the time the quota is determined, the surplus may drop by another 5 million pounds, said Fred Bond, general manager of Stabilization.

Even including the 15 million pounds the co-op bought during auction sales this year, Bond said, Stabilization's inventory will be at its lowest point since 1974.

He said the quota increase could be as low as 5 percent or as high as 10 percent.

According to Gaylor, the committee has not established guidelines for the distribution of profits from the trust.

Preliminary probate papers on file with the clerk of court estimate that bank deposits, certificates of deposits and treasury bonds account for some $1.33 million, while stocks and bonds total some $5.3 million. The papers also estimate the value of real estate left by Mrs. Perkins at $200,000.

But Measamer, who has been selected director of the distribution committee, said this morning that the estimates, especially of the value of the real estate, are "conservative."

Measamer said Mrs. Perkins owned 33 residential rental properties in addition to her 1020 W. Rock Springs Road home.

Measamer and Gaylor estimated that the net income from the trust would be in the neighborhood of $500,000 a year.

According to Measamer, the trust "very well may be one of the best things that ever happened to Pitt County and the residents of Pitt County."

The accountant said "a very minor" part of the estate was left by Mrs. Perkins for distribution among 11 individuals and two churches, a college and the Salvation Army.

According to the will, Mrs. Perkins' Rock Spring Road home is

Gilbride Enters Race For ECU Post

Kevin Gilbride

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A new name entered the picture as a candidate for the head coaching position at East Carolina University Monday when current Pirate offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride officially applied for the job.

Gilbride's candidacy had been rumored since Oct. 31, when Art Baker announced he would be stepping down at the end of the season.

Gilbride, according to ECU Athletic Director Dave Hart, is the "in-house" candidate for the position.

Earlier, Baker had said he would recommend Gilbride for the job. Also, a group of ECU players has formed a committee to lobby for Gilbride and they are scheduled to meet with Hart this afternoon.

"His record speaks for itself," Baker said. "He's proven his ability. He has a great knowledge of the passing and running game. He is the former head coach at Southern Connecticut State, which used to be a graveyard for coaches. They hadn't had a winning season in about five years before he went there and he turned it (the program) around."

In the three years prior to Gilbride's arrival at Southern Connecticut the Owls had posted records of 4-6, 3-7 and 3-7. Once Gilbride took over, the Owls put together a 35-14 record from 1980-1984 and were nationally ranked on the Division II level for two of his last three seasons.

Gilbride also has coaching experience on the professional ranks. He served as offensive coordinator for both the Ottawa Rough Riders and the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. He joined the Pirate coaching staff in the fall of 1987 after the Montreal club folded.

Other experience on the collegiate level for Gilbride includes stints at Idaho State (1974-1975), Rhode Island (1976) and American International (1977-1979).

"I've been in a situation like this (ECU's) before," Gilbride said. "It's very similar. They (Southern Connecticut) had the history of being successful in the past and had fallen on some hard times."

"I'm very confident in my ability to take over in a situation that isn't successful, one where people feel it is under-resourced, and still be able to come out on top."

Hart said he and the search committee are now in the process of picking out the most qualified applicants for the position. He also added that the naming of a new coach could come as early as the first week in December.

"That's what we're still shooting for," Hart said. "We are in the process now of choosing the most qualified for interviews."

"And we've got some excellent coaches to choose from. I really think that we've been talking to the cream of the crop."

Being the in-house candidate for the job means Gilbride already knows the players on the team and is aware of their capabilities.

"I have a great deal of confidence that the players returning next year have the ability and commitment necessary to win," Gilbride said. "And if I didn't feel that way I wouldn't be interested in the job and I wouldn't have applied."

Gilbride also points to the upgrading of facilities on the ECU campus as a plus.

"I really believe that the school is committed to having a winning team," he said. "Dave Hart and the athletic department are behind it all the way. They want to see a successful program and they are willing to do what they can to make it successful."

"The new (Sports Medicine/Physical Education) building is going to make it easier for East Carolina to attract the higher-grade athlete," Gilbride said. "And I'm really impressed with the support the community at-large has for the football program here. The enthusiasm is very exciting and that is necessary to have a consistent program over a long period."

Washington May Miss Playoffs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — The Washington Redskins have had a hard time hanging onto the ball all season. Now their playoff chances are slipping through their grasp.

The Redskins, averaging nearly three turnovers per game, made four Monday night in a 37-21 loss to San Francisco that all but dethroned the defending Super Bowl champions. John Taylor's 95-yard punt return and Joe Montana's two touchdown passes and scoring run for the 49ers did the other critical damage.

Coach Joe Gibbs figures Washington, which blew a chance to move into a four-way tie for first place in the NFC East, still can earn a wild-card berth by sweeping its four remaining games.

But that's a tall order for a team that has given up 71 points in two games and was able to coax only 56 yards out of its sputtering running game in Candlestick Park.

Not since the 1979 Pittsburgh Steelers has a team successfully defended the NFL title. After Washington dropped to 6-6, there were no brash predictions from the most prominent Redskins that the no-repeat streak is in danger.

"We are hating life right now, but it will pass," defensive end Dexter Manley said. "As long as we hang in together and play hard, even if things don't work out, you just have to go along with it."

Quarterback Doug Williams, who completed 27 of 41 passes for 271 yards and three touchdowns but suffered two interceptions, was similarly glum.

"We've got to continue to believe in each other," Williams said. "I don't think we've got the kind of guys who are going to say, 'Let's start up our car and get ready for the Christmas holidays.'"

Shrine Team Set

No Area Players Chosen To Squad

From Staff And Wire Reports

CHARLOTTE — Rosters for the 52nd annual Shrine Bowl of the Carolinas, matching top high school seniors from North Carolina against their counterparts from South Carolina, were announced Monday by the athletic associations of the two states.

Wide receiver Robert Hinton of defending state 4-A champion Garner heads the North Carolina team, which also has a pair of players from Burlington Cummings — quarterback Charles Burnette and back Ray Griffin.

Greenville Rose, which finished 10-1 on the year, placed no one on the team, including tight end/defensive end Carlester Crumpler and tailback Timmy Moore, who rushed for 1,240 yards this season.

Rose Coach Chip Williams was disappointed in the selections. "I think Timmy had a great career at Rose. He's been the Big East Player of the Year two years in a row. He not only plays well at running back, where he can catch and block and run the ball, all you could ask from an offensive player. He plays defense where he's blocked punts, intercepted passes and made some great hits, all you could ask of a defensive player."

"He is coming off arthroscopic surgery," Williams continued, "and I'd say he was only about 85 percent against Pine Forest, but he's been running hard every afternoon in anticipation of making the Shrine Bowl and is improving. It's been my experience that I'd take him at 85 or 90 percent over others at 100. And he would have been up around 100 by then."

"Florida State (baseball) timed him from home to first and the only person in their program who was faster was Deion Sanders (an All-American football player who also plays minor league baseball in the summer). That tells you something of the capabilities he has."

"I have some questions about the success of North Carolina in the Shrine Bowl and I think some of it is involved in the way we select our team although I would hate to have that job (selecting the team)."

Hawkeyes Are Hoping For Repeat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Iowa Coach Hayden Fry hopes Atlanta is just as inviting the second time around.

The Hawkeyes will make their second trip to the Georgia capital in this decade when they head south next month to play North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl.

The first visit was in 1982, when Iowa defeated Tennessee 26-22 in the Peach Bowl.

"Atlanta was just super the last time we were there," Fry said. "We played a great game against a tremendous team from Tennessee and won the game. So everything looks real positive about the game if we can keep people healthy."

Fry's team finished the regular season 6-3-3 after defeating Minnesota 31-22 last Saturday night. The Hawkeyes had been expected to contend for the Big Ten Conference title, but were ravaged by injuries all season and didn't beat a team with a winning record.

However, Fry said that with a top-notch quarterback and loyal fans, Iowa deserves to go to a bowl game as much as anyone.

"Every year they have teams go that don't have great won-loss records," he said. "I think the hidden stat on ours is that we have impressed people nationally with those three ties with Michigan, Michigan State and Ohio State, because of the prestige of those programs."

"We didn't lose to them, plus we have the six victories. In the eyes of other people, those ties look good."

Mullins Linked To Kentucky Job

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina-Charlotte basketball coach Jeff Mullins isn't ruling out a move to Kentucky if he's offered the head coaching job there, but he said he has not been contacted by anyone connected with the school.

"Kentucky has a coach — Eddie Sutton — and he has outstanding credentials," Mullins told The Charlotte Observer.

The newspaper said Mullins' success at UNCC and his "Mr. Clean" image make him attractive to the Wildcats, whose basketball program is currently under NCAA investigation. And Mullins, Kentucky's prep Mr.

Basketball in 1960, in turn would be attracted by Kentucky's great tradition and the fact that Lexington, Ky., is home to wife Candy's parents.

The rumors have been so persistent that Mullins recently received a call from Sports Illustrated concerning them.

"They just told me that everywhere they call on the Kentucky situation, they hear my name mentioned," Mullins said Monday. "I told them that frankly, I'm embarrassed by that."

The Kentucky job isn't vacant yet, but last week athletic director Cliff Hagan resigned under pressure with Joe Burch becoming interim athletic director.

Bowls' Significance Hinging On One Game

The Gipper Remembered

By Scott Ostler

The most famous speech in U.S. history?

—Abe Lincoln's "Fourscore and seven years ago..."

—Nate Hale's "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

—Pat Henry's "Give me liberty, or give me death."

All fine nominees, you bet, but the choice here has to be Knute Rockne's "Win one for the Gipper."

Sixty years ago last Thursday, the Notre Dame coach gathered his football team in a cold locker room at Yankee Stadium and delivered what was, depending on one's point of view, either the most moving and inspirational pep talk ever, or the classic example of athletic hokum and bunkum, rivaled only by Tom Lasorda urging the Los Angeles Dodgers to win one for Bob Costas.

Notre Dame Vs. USC Contest Will Impact On Other Bowls

By Sally Jenkins
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — Fourth-ranked West Virginia took an emotional victory lap to commemorate its first 11-0 season, and No. 7 Nebraska finally dispelled what one player called "all that nonsense" about not being able to beat Oklahoma. But work remains for other teams, like No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 2 Southern California, which have one regular season game remaining, fittingly against each other for everything.

The postseason bowl game pairings were established on a Saturday that began with shrill suspense around the country but ended with several decisive victories by teams among the top 10. The bowls' national championship status will not be determined until next Saturday, however, when the Fighting Irish and Trojans converge at the Los Angeles Coliseum, both with 10-0 rerecords. With that in mind, the Trojans' 31-22 victory over No. 6 UCLA on Saturday for the Pacific-10 championship, and the Irish's 21-3 dispatching of Penn State to remain No. 1, were already forgotten, merely preludes to the latest game of the century.

If the Trojans can emerge unscathed again next week, they would make themselves No. 1 going into the Rose Bowl against Big 10 champion, No. 11 Michigan (8-2-1). If the Irish are the victors, they will hurtle into a meeting with West Virginia in the Sunbelt Fiesta Bowl.

"We've got one big, big game left," USC Coach Larry Smith said. "There's no turning back now. It's full speed ahead."

USC was grateful to have endured a measles outbreak that hospitalized quarterback Rodney Peete for two days. The Heisman Trophy candidate threw for one touchdown and ran for another to lead the Trojans

Floyd Is Finally Settling In At New Houston Home

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — This season, Houston point guard Sleepy Floyd is finding things a lot smoother while directing the Rockets' floor game.

Floyd contributed a team-high 20 points and 12 assists in the Rockets' 117-113 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in one of two NBA games Monday night. Utah beat the Los Angeles Clippers 117-98 in the other.

With Golden State, Floyd had seasons of 746 assists and then a career-high 848 before he was traded to Houston on Dec. 12, 1987. Adjusting to new surroundings wasn't easy, and Floyd's assists fell to 366 in 59 games.

Currently, Floyd has 10 straight games of seven assists or more and has scored in double figures in six of the last seven contests.

"I think the guys understand my game now," Floyd said. "They know I'll get the ball to them. It just takes time to get to know the guys. I feel very comfortable in my role now."

Floyd's playmaking helped place six Rockets in double figures, including 14 points in 19 minutes from seldom-used guard Tony Brown. Coming into the game, Brown had logged only 11 minutes and two points.

Houston received a sub-par scoring effort from center Akeem Olajuwon, who still managed 18 points, 14 rebounds, six blocks and three steals although he was down considerably from his 29.9 scoring average.

"We have a lot of talent on this team," Olajuwon said. "If I get the rebounds and the blocks I don't have to score."

For the second time in three nights, Houston, 7-3, defeated tough opponents. The Rockets defeated previously unbeaten Detroit on Saturday.

"These two wins will keep our confidence level up," Olajuwon said. "We can compete with anybody in the NBA as long as we play to our potential. And I think we know the potential on this team now."

Atlanta, 6-4, never led in the game, but tied the Rockets four times, only to see Houston pull away and lead by as much as 11 on three different occasions.

Dominique Wilkins paced Atlanta with 29 points and Reggie Theus had nine of his 26 points in the last two minutes.

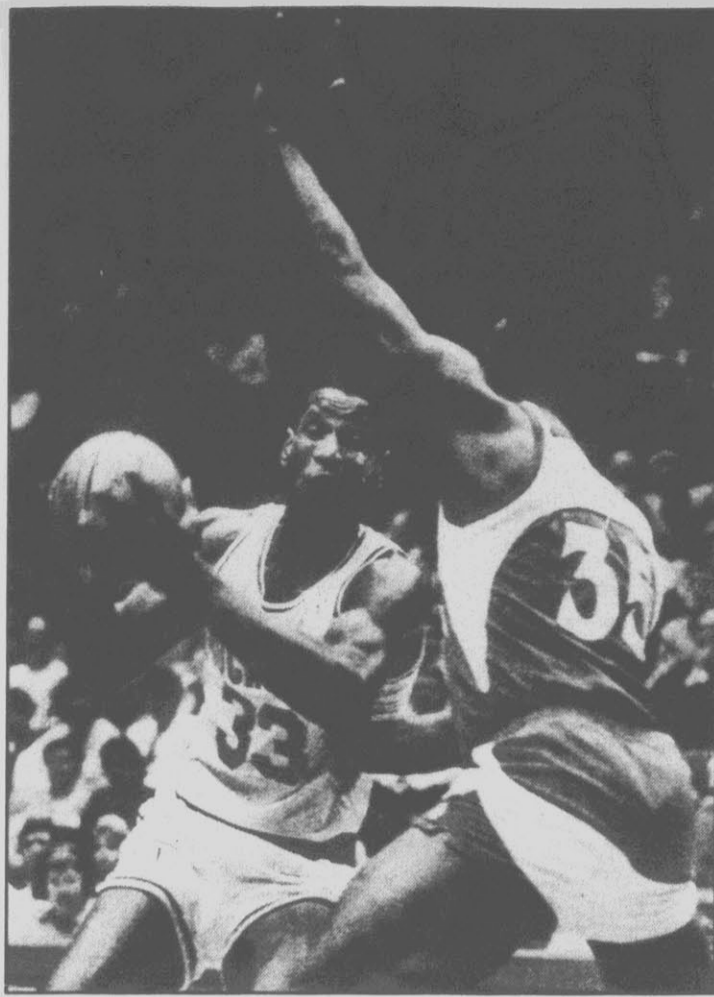

Jazz 117, Clippers 98

John Stockton scored 22 points, had 15 assists and four steals to lead Utah over the Clippers. Three other Utah players hit the 20-point level, with Darrell Griffith's 25 leading the group.

Rookies Danny Manning and Charles Smith led the Clippers with 21 and 19 points, respectively.

San Diego's Reggie Williams left the game with 6:48 remaining in the second period after taking a finger in the right eye. He never returned and the team later announced he had a scratched cornea. He was the Clippers' leading scorer with nine points when he was injured.

A basket by Tom Garrick made the score 63-50 early in the third period. But Karl Malone, Griffith and Stockton sparked a 21-4 run by the Jazz and, with 5:14 remaining in the period, Utah led 84-54.

fumbles and interceptions than Washington.

San Francisco's strong defense, somewhat overlooked in the team's seven-game offensive drought, didn't sack Williams but stuffed the Redskins' running game. Tim Smith, starting in place of the injured Kelvin Bryant, gained six yards on 12 carries and fumbled twice on hard hits, losing one.

Jeff Fuller recovered one fumble and had an interception for the 49ers. Ronnie Lott picked off another pass on the San Francisco 4.

"Defensively we showed a lot of character," 49ers coach Bill Walsh said. "It wasn't an awful game, but we did beat a quality team."

The victory enabled San Francisco to stay two games behind New Orleans in the NFC West and move into a tie with Philadelphia, Phoenix, the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams at 7-5 in the crowded playoff scramble.

"Every win now is really big. There will be some teams caving in. We just have to take advantage of our opportunities," Walsh said.

Montana threw two TD passes for the first time since September. He connected on an 18-yarder to Brent Jones on the 49ers' first possession and an 80-yard tipped bomb to Jerry Rice on their next-to-last series of the night, matching the longest pass play of the quarterback's career.

But he complained afterward of a stiff left knee that he sprained when he tripped over offensive tackle Steve Wallace in the second quarter.

It was Montana's 32-year-old legs, not his arm, that put an end to Washington's mild second-half comeback bid.

The Redskins, given a bonus first down on the San Francisco 4 when Darryl Pollard roughed placekicker Chip Lohmiller, had closed a 23-7 halftime deficit to 23-14 on Williams' 4-yard pass to Ricky Sanders.

Washington quickly got the ball back on a punt to open the fourth period, but returner Gary Clark muffed it and Bill Romanowski recovered on the Redskins' 44.

Montana personally finished off the six-play drive by scrambling to his right for 16 yards and then four more for the score, diving hard into defenders both times.

"I think Joe Montana showed his courage and competitiveness when he ran the ball twice" after being hurt, Walsh said.

Taylor showed an ability to escape trouble on his punt return, which keyed a 17-point second-period run that proved the difference in the game.

Seemingly trapped on his own 5, the second-year wide receiver slipped a tackle by Clarence Vaughn, burst two more Redskins and jumped over Coleman en route to the end zone and a 17-7 49er lead. It was the longest punt return in the team's history and the longest in the NFL this year.

"When I got to the end zone I was so exhausted I just wanted to sit down and take a rest," Taylor said.

Gibbs is just tired of the crucial mistakes that have plagued his team in losing three of four games.

"Right now, the Redskins are hurting," he said.

"We're not the kind of team that can make mistakes and win. We have to play an error-free game," the coach said.

The last five Super Bowl winners haven't won a single playoff game since their title days, and the Redskins might not even get a chance now. But Gibbs doesn't want to hear about any trends.

"I don't think there's a Super Bowl jinx," he said. "There's no excuse for losing — at least not that one."

Hubbell Remembered For His Five Little Strikeouts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Carl Hubbell's 253 lifetime victories weren't nearly as memorable as five little strikeouts.

Hubbell, a Hall of Famer and the National League's dominant pitcher of the 1930s, was 85 when he died Monday, 54 years after fanning five of baseball's greatest hitters in the 1934 All-Star Game.

The left-handed screwballer, a 20-game winner five times for the New York Giants, was the starting pitcher for the National League All-Stars and faced a lineup of nine future Hall of Famers, including Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig.

Hubbell had pitched two scoreless innings in the 1933 All-Star Game, the first year it was played, but in 1934 he started slowly.

Charlie Gehring opened the game with a single and advanced to second on an error. Heinie Manush walked.

Ruth, Gehrig and Jimmie Foxx, who combined for 127 homers that season and 1,741 lifetime, were the next three batters. Hubbell began throwing his famous screwball, which curved away from right-handed batters.

Hubbell once described the pitch as "unnatural" and certainly none of the American League sluggers were accustomed to it. He threw it so often that after several years his left arm hung at a strange angle from his shoulder.

Ruth, nearing the end of his great career, took a called third strike on the outside corner and looked "decidedly puzzled," according to one observer. Gehrig, who would go on to win the Triple Crown that season, then went down swinging, with Gehring and Manush pulling off a double steal on the third strike.

A frustrated Gehrig informed Foxx, "You might as well cut it, it won't get any higher," but the Philadelphia Athletics' star fared no better, going down on strikes.

Frankie Frisch's homer gave the National League a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first and Hubbell resumed his mastery the next inning, striking out Al Simmons and Joe Cronin to lead off the second.

After Bill Dickey broke the string with a single, Gehring remarked, "I was happy to see that. It was starting to get embarrassing."

When opposing pitcher Lefty Gomez came to the plate, the umpire reportedly snarled at him, "Are you trying to insult Hubbell, coming up here with a bat?" Gomez struck out.

Hubbell set down the American League in the third on two fly balls and a grounder. He left with a 4-0 lead to a thunderous ovation from the 48,363 fans at the Polo Grounds. Their appreciation of Hubbell's performance was hardly dampened by the fact that the American League went on to win 9-7.

"I guess I won't ever forget that '34 game," Hubbell recalled years later. "I've often been asked what I was throwing Ruth and Gehrig and Simmons and those fellows. Well, it's a little complicated."

"I was throwing everything I knew how, including fastballs and curves, but the only thing they got a chance to hit was the screwball. I saw to that very carefully. It was the only thing they hadn't seen, and I knew what they could do with the other stuff if I ever got it within range."

Nicknamed "King Carl" and "The Meal Ticket," Hubbell earned the Most Valuable Player Award with a 26-6 record in 1936 and set a then-record of 46 1-3 consecutive scoreless innings from July 13 to Aug. 1, 1933.

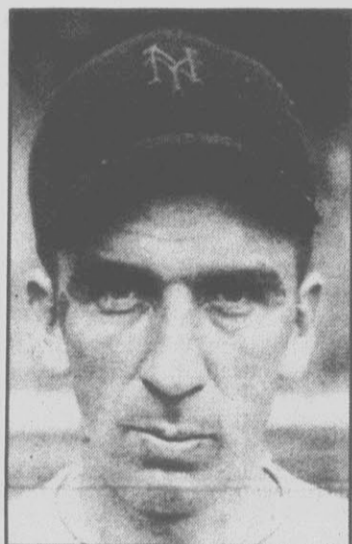

"Young left-handers still look on Hubbell as one of the legends of the game," Giants spokesman Duffy Jennings said from San Francisco.

Hubbell's control was so superb that he admitted he would often deliberately throw his first two pitches out of the strike zone. If the batter didn't swing, Hubbell said, the pitcher believed he still had the batter "set up for something with some stuff on it."

Hubbell, elected to the Hall of Fame in 1947, threw a no-hitter for the Giants, against the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1929, but some who saw him pitch said his most remarkable game was on July 2, 1933 at the Polo Grounds against the St. Louis Cardinals.

With 50,000 people in the stands, the slim left-hander with the baggy pants shut out the Cardinals for 18 innings before the Giants finally scored in the bottom of the 18th to win 1-0.

USC Is Still Top Ranked

As the 1988 football season begins to wind down — and the meeting of Southern California and Notre Dame draws near — there were few changes among the members of the Daily Reflector Computer Rankings' Top 20 teams this past week.

Southern California, with its victory over UCLA, increased its lead over the rest of the pack while the Bruins managed to cling to second place.

Wyoming vaulted into third place while Notre Dame held to fourth, but is only a blink behind the other two.

Southern California, 10-0, built its lead to over 600 points, amassing a total of 3,468 on the year. That, however, still leaves them within reach of the Fighting Irish, who are also 10-0 with 2,780 points.

UCLA, 9-2, has 2,844 points while Wyoming has moved to the number three spot with an 11-1 record and 2,800 points.

Nebraska, 11-1, used its victory over Oklahoma to move into a fifth place tie with Florida State, 9-1. Both had 2,646 points.

The remaining members of the second five include West Virginia, Washington State, Clemson and Auburn and Michigan, tied for 10th, in that order.

Only one member of the Top 20, Ball State, does not have a holiday bowl date this year. Only Washington, ranked 23rd, is also absent among the top 25 teams.

The lowest ranked team at this point to earn a bowl game is Fresno State, ranked 56th at 9-2. Fresno won its way into the California Bowl by winning its league championship.

The rankings reflect a team's success against the strength of its schedule. Scheduled are analyzed to the third level of competition.

Shrine Teams

Williams said Crumpler had done well all year long too, retiring one interception for a touchdown. "He's a qualify player and I'm surprised about him."

"I know you can't have three but Raleigh Fuller had done an outstanding job too. I don't know if there are many guards better than him."

Of the quarterbacks selected, Burnette is the mostly highly recruited. Prior to the second round of the playoffs, Burnette had passed for 2,410 yards and 17 touchdowns. Griffis had 52 catches for 806 yards and one touchdown and had also returned two interceptions for touchdowns as a defensive back.

Shawn Graves of Marion High School will lead the South Carolina team, which also includes tackle Jerry Wright of Lancaster High School on defense.

The Shrine Bowl will be played Saturday, Dec. 10 at 1:30 p.m. at Charlotte's Memorial Stadium. The rosters were selected Sunday during a meeting of both teams' coaches and were approved by the athletic associations Monday.

There could be changes pending which players on the roster are still involved in the high school playoffs during the same week the game is played.

Gilbride Applies

The concern over the possible length of a contract is not something Gilbride says he would worry about if he should be selected for the coaching post.

"Those type details can always be worked out," Gilbride said. "If they consider me to be right for the job — and hopefully they will — I'm sure that (the length of the contract) is something that we could easily arrive at."

Although the Pirates finished 3-8 this past season, the offense set two school records and tied another one.

The 1988 squad set the school record for most passing yards in a season with 1,644 yards, topping the old mark of 1,612 set during the 1970 campaign. The team also bested the old mark of 146.5 yards passing per game this season averaging 149.5.

Gilbride's troops also tied the record for most touchdown passes in a season with 14. That record was set back in 1965.

The team finished second overall in first downs with 242, third in total offense per game with 390.4 yards a contest and fifth in points per game with 25.5

Throw out the five top 20 teams the Pirates played this season and Gilbride's record looks even better.

Against unranked teams, the ECU offense amassed 453.7 yards per game and tallied 38.1 points per contest.

Those figures have made Gilbride the choice among current ECU players.

"There are around seven or eight of us (players)," said one Pirate offensive player, who asked that his name not be used. "It's not that we're the only ones that want him. I think just about everybody from the freshmen on up want him to get the job. People keep coming up to me and telling me that they want him."

"I just think that what he accomplished offensively with the team says a lot," the player said. "He has shown great leadership. We had lost eight games in a row this year but he never lost faith in us and he kept pushing us and we wound up closing the year on a positive note."

"If you bring someone else in that the players aren't familiar with then the progress that the program has made is going to be set back."

"From the times I've witnessed his speeches, I've seen that he's an excellent motivator," a defensive player said. "He believes in what he says. He leads by experience."

Spurrier Honored By ACC Sportswriters

GREENBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke coach Steve Spurrier has been named Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year by the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association.

In his second season at Duke, Spurrier led the Blue Devils to a 7-3-1 mark, including a 3-3-1 record in the ACC. The seven victories are the most by a Duke team since 1962, when Duke went 8-2.

"It's a great honor for Duke University and our football program," Spurrier said. "I'm happy to share it with the assistant coaches and our team."

Spurrier was selected on 30 of the 78 ballots cast, nipping runner-up Joe Krivak of Maryland by seven votes. Clemson's Danny Ford was picked on 14 ballots, North Carolina State's Dick Sheridan was named on six ballots, Wake Forest's Bill Dooley received four votes and Virginia's George Welsh received one vote.

The Blue Devils averaged 464.4 yards per game, including 351.6 in the air, in Spurrier's system.

Spurrier was a two-time all-America quarterback at Florida and won the Heisman Trophy in 1966.

After a 10-year professional career with the San Francisco 49ers and Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Spurrier returned to Florida as an assistant coach in 1978. He was Duke's offensive coordinator from 1980 through 1982, then served three seasons as head coach of the Tampa Bay Bandits in the USFL.

USC's Peete Now Has Laryngitis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Rodney Peete, who led second-ranked Southern Cal to a 31-22 victory over crosstown rival UCLA last Saturday despite being weakened by the measles, now has laryngitis, it was announced Monday.

Peete, who will guide the Trojans against top-ranked Notre Dame this Saturday at the Los Angeles Coliseum, has been ordered by the Trojans' medical staff to refrain from talking until Thursday.

Tim Tesselone, the school's sports information director, said Peete couldn't speak above a whisper Monday morning.

Peete, who completed 16 of 28 passes for 189 yards and one touchdown in Southern Cal's win over UCLA, is practicing this week, but freshman quarterback Todd Marinovich stands behind him and calls out the snap count.

"Rodney is feeling much, much better after his bout with the measles, but now he can't talk at all," Southern Cal coach Larry Smith said. "We feel he'll get his voice back by Thursday or so, but in the interim he's out there practicing and someone else barks out the signals."

"I know it's an unusual way of practicing, but at least Rodney is out there this week, unlike last week when he missed all but one day of workouts."

The Trojans and Fighting Irish both have 10-0 records. Saturday's game, which has already been sold out, will be televised nationally.

Southern Cal will face Michigan in the Rose Bowl game on Jan. 2, while Notre Dame will meet West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl on the same day.

Pack Gets Five Players On Team

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State placed five players, including four from its nationally-ranked defense, on the 1988 all-Atlantic Coast Conference team announced Monday by the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association.

League champion Clemson and Duke each placed four players on the team, while North Carolina had three and Wake Forest, Maryland, Virginia and Georgia Tech had two apiece.

Clemson running back Terry Allen was named on 78 of the 79 ballots to lead the voting. Allen, a sophomore, was joined by senior teammates Jeff Nunamacher, an offensive tackle, Donnell Woolford, a defensive back, and Mark Drag, a defensive lineman. The Tigers finished 9-2 and 6-1 in the league in winning their third straight conference championship and a berth in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

The Peach Bowl-bound Wolfpack, 7-3-1 and 4-2-1 in the ACC, placed seniors Fred Stone and Scott Auer, junior Ray Agnew and freshman Jesse Campbell on the defensive unit. Agnew and Campbell were the only underclassmen named to the defensive team.

Senior wide receiver Nasrallah Worthen was the Wolfpack's lone player on the offensive team.

Duke's four players were all on offense, including record-setting quarterback Anthony Dilweg. Wide receiver Clarkston Hines, tight end Dave Colonna and tackle Chris Port, all juniors, were named to the team.

North Carolina's three selections were also on offense — sophomore running back Kennard Martin, senior center Jeff Garnica and junior guard Pat Crowley.

Rounding out the defense were Georgia Tech's Willis Crockett and Cedric Stallworth, Virginia's Jeff Lageman, Maryland's Warren Powers and Wake Forest's A.J. Greene. Virginia also placed junior guard Roy Brown on the offensive team.

Placekicker Dan Plocki of Maryland and punter Martin Bailey of Wake Forest, both seniors, were picked as specialists.

Martin And Boone Honored By The ACC

GREENBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Kennard Martin, Duke's Roger Boone and Clemson's Jeff Bak have been named Atlantic Coast Conference offensive players of the week.

Martin, a sophomore tailback from Winston-Salem, rushed 39 times for 291 yards in the Tar Heels' 35-29 loss to Duke. In the same game, Boone ran for a career-high 157 yards and scored two touchdowns, including the game-winning touchdown with 23 seconds left, and caught 11 passes for 138 yards.

Bak, a 6-foot-2, 265-pound senior center, graded out at 85 percent in leading Clemson to 417 yards in total offense in a 29-10 victory over South Carolina.

Heels Hope Up Tempo Works

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

(This is the last of a series of articles previewing the basketball teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference.)

North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith promised an up-tempo style this season and he's delivered that in two early victories, but the real test lies ahead.

The Tar Heels are 2-0 so far with victories over Tennessee-Chatanooga (11-84) and Georgia (88-81). Those wins came without the services of 6-9 All-American J.R. Reid who is out until January with a stress fracture in his foot.

Last year, UNC had a typical Tar Heel year, going 27-7, and finishing first in the ACC. They won three games in the NCAA Tournament before falling to Arizona.

But the team had flaws, not the least of which was turnovers — an average of 17.9 per game.

"We will shoot it up a little more quickly," Smith said. "Each year, we say here's our personnel for this year. Let's try to hide this weakness and use this strength. This year it will be more noticeable."

The idea is less passing, less chance of losing the ball.

"The type of basketball we're going to play this year is a little more up-tempo," said junior center Scott Williams. "We're going to force things on defense and press the ball up and down the court. Offensively, we're going to move as fast as we can, move the ball out of bounds and try to save seconds on the clock. Doing this over 40 minutes is going to give us more possessions."

"A lot of our turnovers were unforced (last year), just trying to make too fancy a pass or something like that. We're just trying to make the easy pass now and get the ball into the hands of Jeff (Lebo) or King (Rice)."

The change is evident. In the win over UTC, junior swingman Kevin Madden (6-5), playing both up front and in the backcourt due to Reid's injury, scored a career-high 31 points. Point guard Jeff Lebo had a team-record 17 assists in the win. Scott Williams then tossed in a career-high 25 points to help the Heels get by Georgia.

So far, the Tar Heels have made due just fine without Reid. Madden, who started in the backcourt a year ago, is playing up front with Williams (6-11) and Steve Bucknall (6-7). 6-8 Pete Chilcutt and Fox (6-7, sophomore) lend depth.

Rice, Lebo and Fox figure to get most of the playing time in the backcourt, with 6-4 junior Jeff Deny and 6-4 freshman Hubert Davis lending depth. When Reid returns, Madden should move back into a guard spot.

From those, any number of combinations are possible.

"We're not quite as deep as we would have liked," Smith said. "I've never been concerned with who starts. I don't know who will start."

Smith scoffs at the idea that Reid's injury could be a blessing in disguise, but the reality of the situation is that it has forced others, notably Williams and Madden, to take larger roles offensively.

This year figures to be a big test for both of them. As juniors, they need to improve and make an impact if the Tar Heels want to return to the final four for the first time since 1982.

If Williams, who has had foul problems in the past, and Madden establish themselves during December, the Tar Heels should be the better for it once Reid returns to the lineup in January.

"If we have to have an injury, you'd rather have in December than in our usual time in March. Those things happen," Smith said.

"That's the only way to look at it, a silver lining or something. It really could if we were struggling in January, which we could be, (and) I'm talking about a 4-12 beginning. Then he comes in and gets started then he could be helpful. If we were 12-4 then you have to worry about Chemistry."

The Tar Heels, though, have a tendency to play better under early-season adversity (witness last year's 96-93 overtime win over then top-ranked Syracuse in the season opener).

"We're competitive I think that's the biggest thing," Williams said. "We obviously suffered adversity this year losing J.R. this early in the season."

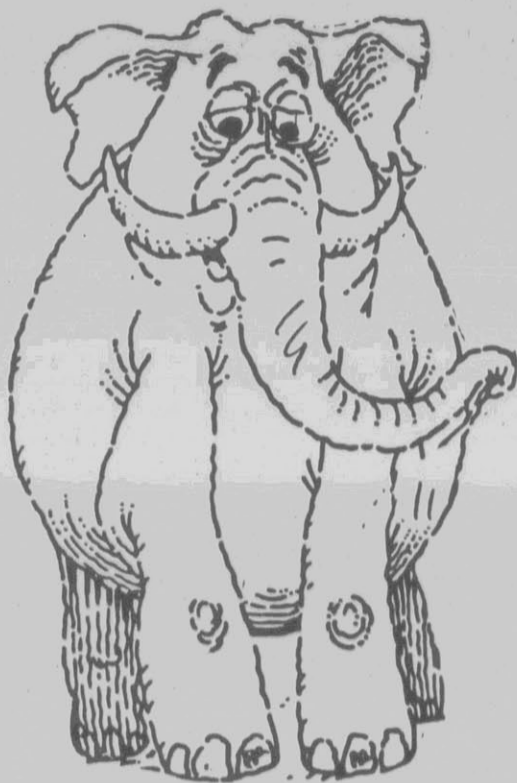

"We are competitors and we're going to go out there and play to the best of our abilities. I think we play best under adversity. That's when we're dangerous. It puts a little more fuel under the fire."

Judge Suggests Reagan Review Options To Holding North Trial

the question when asked whether he would pardon North.

"No, and I don't think it's time for that while it's in the courts," Reagan said at a ground-breaking ceremony for his presidential library at Simi Valley, Calif.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "The president believes the legal process should take its course. The president is not considering a pardon."

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said, "We are fully aware that some documents and evidence in the case pose significant security risks." When a reporter suggested the White House was attempting to throw the decision back to Gesell, the official did not disagree.

WASHINGTON — The judge in the Iran-Contra case says President Reagan should consider the "various courses of action he may take" to stop the trial of Oliver L. North to prevent national security secrets from being disclosed.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell did not say that Reagan should consider pardoning the four Iran-Contra defendants but suggested other means by which the trial could be stopped.

He said that under the Classified Information Procedures Act, Reagan could declare that the danger of disclosing highly sensitive government secrets was so great that the charges must be dropped. The president, as the nation's chief law enforcement officer, could either directly order the case dropped or he could invoke secrecy laws to prevent disclosure of classified information, which could have the same effect.

"The Constitution does not permit the court to take this testimony in secret, as did the Congress. It must be public," Gesell said, adding he would have "very little control over the content of the testimony."

"Accordingly, if on analysis this imminent prospect gives ground for presidential action to protect any perceived threat to the foreign policy obligations which the president has or the intelligence needs of the country, the Constitution and the statutes provide various courses of action he may take," the judge said.

Reagan, meanwhile, reiterated previous statements he had made on

No 'Midget'

WASHINGTON — Dan Quayle is not the "intellectual midget" portrayed by the news media, says former President Richard M. Nixon.

When the vice president-elect and the man who also was vice president for eight years talked for the first time on Monday, they discussed U.S.-Soviet relations, arms control negotiations between the two superpowers and the role of the vice presidency.

After the meeting, Nixon pronounced Quayle a man of intelligence and dedication and said he'll be "an excellent vice president."

"I was very surprised. He is a very different man from the intellectual midget who has been portrayed among the media," Nixon told reporters at an impromptu news conference.

He said the two had met before but "this is the first time I had a chance to have a talk with Senator Quayle."

"This is a man who has strong views. He's highly intelligent. He's highly dedicated," Nixon said.

 Terence wrote in praise of the man who can make wrong seem right. He would have been proud of one of our Easts on this hand from a high-level team game.

 There is great dispute among experts about whether and when to open one spade or one club with five cards in each suit. Here, both Norths chose to open one club, and both North-South pairs arrived in six spades via the most direct route.
 Both Wests led the ten of clubs. At each table declarer rose with dummy's ace. One East followed suit with the four. Since declarer was solid everywhere except for trumps, he elected to make a safety play to insure his contract. He led a low spade from dummy and, when East produced the two, he inserted the three. A bemused declarer scooped in the first trump trick with the four, and as a result he had only one trump loser.
 At the other table, East dropped the queen of clubs under the ace! Declarer realized that it was possibly an attempt to pull the wool over his eyes, but he decided that he didn't want to risk a safety play and find East ruffing the second club to defeat his slam. Since he was safe with any 2-1 trump distribution or a 3-0 split where West held the long trumps, he elected to play a spade to the ace. Now East had to score two trump tricks for down one.

 The hand has an interesting point. While a club ruff might well beat the slam if trumps were 2-1, sometimes even the threat of a ruff can sway declarer from his appointed line onto a losing tack.

Mourners Flock To Dallas Square Where Kennedy Was Shot In 1963

By Mark Godich
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Some were too young to remember. Others recalled the moments the fatal shots rang out as President John F. Kennedy rode through downtown Dallas in a motorcade 25 years ago today.

The city planned no official ceremony to mark the passing of a quarter century since Kennedy's assassination, but on Monday hundreds flocked to Dealey Plaza, where he was mortally wounded at 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 22, 1963.

Other organizations planned remembrances today at Parkland Memorial Hospital, where Kennedy was taken after being shot, and the Texas Theater, where Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested hours after the assassination.

On Monday, the focus was the memorial that marks the tragic location: a stone slab inscribed with Kennedy's name and surrounded by partial walls.

Ernest Saucedo, 20, of Dallas, hadn't been born when Kennedy died, but he visited the memorial anyway.

"I just made it my business to come by," Saucedo said. "I just feel I needed to come by. This is history."

Raul Miranda, 40, was in Dallas for a convention when he remembered the anniversary, and decided to visit the memorial before returning to Los Angeles.

"It's something that I can tell my kids what happened," he said. "I'm going to tell them that 25 years ago this event changed the history of the United States, the history of the world."

At Parkland, five doctors and nurses who were at the hospital when the president arrived were to participate in a roundtable discussion today.

At the Texas Theater, Dallas-area artists, poets and musicians planned a series of exhibits and live performances.

On Sunday, 30 former Green Berets and 150 onlookers gathered at the Dealey Plaza memorial to remember Kennedy. The members of the U.S. Army Special Forces wore their berets — authorized by Kennedy in 1961 — as they saluted four wreaths at the memorial.

In front of a plaque at the plaza lay a small American flag with a bouquet of flowers, about 200 yards from the memorial and across the street from the Texas School Book Depository Building. Authorities say Oswald opened fire from a sixth-floor window there into Kennedy's motorcade.

The attention given the 25th anniversary has roused more interest than usual in the site, said Gary Mead, who drove one of several tour buses that stopped at the memorial Monday.

"They're very much aware of it," Mead said. "They don't want to miss this part of the tour."

Dallas native Darrell Jordan, making his first visit to Dealey Plaza, spent about an hour Monday touring the area.

"I've been watching all of the (television) specials the past several months and trying to formalize my own opinions" about what happened, he said. "I've been walking all over the place."

Jordan said he was disappointed the city and county planned no formal anniversary ceremonies, but said he thought he understood why.

"They (local officials) worked 25 years to try to get the nation to forget it," he said.

The Dallas County Democratic Party, which had been in charge of the official observance, last marked the anniversary five years ago. Since then, it has sponsored ceremonies each May in honor of Kennedy's birthday.

"We got the impression that the family preferred we remember the happier moment celebrating his birth," county party Chairman Sandy Kress said. "We think the family was right, and we feel good about what we're doing."

But Bob Boynton, a visitor from St. Ignace, Mich., said he was surprised an official ceremony was not planned, but added, "I also don't think Dallas should share a guilt complex over this."

Jean Weir said she had been in Texas the month before Kennedy was assassinated, and found it hard to believe the tragic news 25 years ago.

"The people were all so friendly," she said. "I loved the state. I was shocked to hear it happened there."

Mrs. Weir returned with her husband to the assassination site Monday.

"I actually wanted to come say a prayer," she said.

Peace Corps Grads Mark JFK Slaying

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — One by one, former Peace Corps volunteers from across the nation stood in the vaulted Capitol Rotunda and reflected on how John F. Kennedy — slain 25 years ago today — had changed their lives with his summons to serve the needy overseas.

During a 24-hour vigil in the same great hall where the president's body lay in state for a desolate day and night in November 1963, about 500 volunteers paid tribute to Kennedy's memory with brief speeches, songs and readings from their journals and letters written from strange lands.

Ruth Pearsall of Frankfort, Mich., led three generations of Peace Corps volunteers in her family to take part in the vigil — herself, daughter Virginia Kirkwood and grandnephew Craig Hendricks.

Helen Clarke of Honolulu and Linda Frye of Pensburg, Pa., both 77, swapped stories about their adventures as widows embarking on new lives in India and Venezuela in the mid-1960s.

One of the most emotionally charged moments of the vigil came when John F. Murphy Jr., a Hartford, Conn., lawyer, read a letter he wrote in July 1969 to the mother of a former Peace Corps buddy who was killed the Vietnam War.

Murphy recalled that after he and John Morascini had built a schoolhouse together in Gabon, in West Africa, in the early 1960s, Morascini built a playground and planned a carnival where villagers could celebrate.

"Do not remember John for the medal which they may send, or even for the flag which they have given you," Murphy wrote Morascini's mother.

"I will remember John as one who really did bring some peace to the world. He brought peace not as a sergeant in the U.S. Army but as a young boy who once had an idea that it might be a good thing to build a playground."

Said Katy Hansen of Orange City, Iowa, who taught in a Nigerian high school in 1967-68: "We are here to rejoice in a life well-lived, and not to mourn a life that has passed away. This is a celebration of life."

Today, Ms. Hansen is president of the National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers and vice chairman of the Sioux County Democratic Party. She says she tries to keep the Kennedy spirit alive by helping save Iowa's family farmers from ruin.

The vigil is ending at noon today with remarks by Sens. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., himself a former volunteer in the Dominican Republic in 1966-68, and television commentator Bill Moyers, the agency's first deputy director.

A commemorative service will be held afterward at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, where Kennedy's funeral service was held on Nov. 25, 1963. Officiating will be the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, who was first chairman of the Peace Corps advisory committee.

Altogether, an estimated 130,000 former volunteers and staff have served in 95 countries since Kennedy founded the Peace Corps in March 1961 as his first major initiative as president. Today, 6,000 volunteers are working in 65 countries, and the agency says it expects to have 10,000 abroad by the early 1990s.

Rep. Tom Petri, R-Wis., one of six House members who are former volunteers, said Kennedy taught him that "Americans should be involved with the world, not just as diplomats or the military, but as citizens."

Fresh out of law school, Petri went to Somalia in 1966 to help the post-colonial government codify its laws. Other former volunteers in the House are Reps. Christopher Shays, R-Conn.; Jim Courter, R-N.J.; Paul Henry, R-Mich.; Tony Hall, D-Ohio, and Jim Moody, D-Wis.

Record Smugglers

Customs agents at London's Heathrow Airport display one of 80 long playing records that were used to smuggle cocaine into England. Each of the records had six grams of cocaine sealed between the halves of the record. Five people were convicted this week of operating the smuggling ring.

North Korea Calls For Talks With U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Korea called today on the United States to agree to direct talks on improved relations between the two countries.

"It is impossible to ease the tensions and remove the danger of war in Korea and to create a peaceful condition for national reunification without holding (North Korea-U.S.) talks to solve the matter," the official Workers' Party newspaper Rodong Sinmun said.

In an article translated by the official Korean Central News Agency and monitored in Tokyo, the newspaper said the United States shared responsibility for reunification of North and South Korea because of its involvement in the Korean War and its continuing military presence in the South.

It quoted North Korean President Kim Il Sung as saying the United States "must approach (North Korea-U.S.) negotiations with a sincere attitude to settle the question substantially in keeping with the trend of the times."

Earlier this year, the United States imposed sanctions on North Korea after accusing it of causing the disappearance of a South Korean passenger jet last November with 115 people on board. The sanctions, which included a ban on contacts between diplomats of the two countries, were recently eased.

"It is preposterous, indeed, that the U.S. imperialists are insisting on giving priority to 'talks between North-South authorities,' turning their back on our proposal for negotiations," the article said.

"If the United States truly wants a peaceful solution of the Korean question and the improvement of (North Korea-U.S.) relations, it should not shut the door to or turn their face away from our repeated proposals for negotiation," it said.

The Korean peninsula was divided into the communist North and capitalist South at the end of World War II in 1945, and the two sides have remained bitter enemies. They fought the 1950-53 Korean War, with the United States fighting on South Korea's side.

The war technically has not ended because the 1953 armistice was never followed by a formal peace treaty.

FDA Approves Drug To Fight AIDS Cancer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Alpha interferon, a natural disease fighter already used to treat leukemia, can now be used to battle Kaposi's sarcoma, a cancer that primarily attacks AIDS patients.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Monday that alpha interferon was shown in tests to be effective against Kaposi's and now is approved for treatment of the cancer that has become common among AIDS victims.

Alpha interferon is a disease-fighter that is present in the body naturally in small amounts, but has been artificially produced in large quantities in recent years through the use of gene-splicing techniques. It previously had been approved for treatment of hairy-cell leukemia and for genital warts.

Frank E. Young, FDA commissioner, said approval of the man-made alpha interferon "shows biotechnology's emerging role in helping modern medicine fight some of the most serious diseases which plague mankind."

Kaposi's sarcoma, named for a European doctor who first described it more than 100 years ago, was a rare cancer until the appearance early in this decade of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The cancer causes purple or brown lesions on the skin and can attack the lungs, brain and gastrointestinal tract. Kaposi's can cause death when it attacks the lungs or other vital organs, although most AIDS patients die of other causes.

Alpha interferon was used experimentally to treat Kaposi's in a number of studies, including some conducted at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, part of the National Institutes of Health.

As of Nov. 7, AIDS had been diagnosed in 77,994 Americans, of whom more than half, or 43,888, have died since June 1, 1981, according to the government.

Jackson Will Release Video

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Moon-walker," a 94-minute video celebration of the weird and wonderful world of Michael Jackson, is being released early next year.

The video will be an amalgam of Jackson's musical performances, his reflections on media pressures and a narrative film in which he transforms himself into a robot and then a spaceship to battle a drug pusher named Mr. Big, said CBS Music Video Enterprises.

The release of the video on Jan. 10 comes at the end of Jackson's 15-month world tour, which was seen by 4 million fans in 15 countries.

Songs on the video include Jackson's "Man in the Mirror," his redo of the Beatles' hit "Come Together," and "The Moon is Walking," a song written and performed by the South African vocal group Ladysmith Black Mombazo.

One-Time TV Maid Honored

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Pauline Collins, who played the saucy maid on TV's "Upstairs, Downstairs," has been named best actress on the London stage for her one-woman comedy "Shirley Valentine."

Alex Jennings and Tom Wilkinson tied for best actor in awards presented by Drama magazine.

David Hare's "The Secret Rapture," due off-Broadway in May, was named best play for 1988, and a revival of the musical "South Pacific" was honored as best musical.

Vanessa Redgrave was best supporting actress for her performance as Nora Melody in a revival of Eugene O'Neill's "A Touch of the Poet." Best supporting actor went to Peter Lindford, who played Mephistopheles in a west London production of Goethe's epic "Faust."

Jennings won for his starring role in the Russian satire "Too Clever By Half" and Wilkinson for Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People."

The quarterly published by the British Theater Association recently announced the winners, which were decided by a committee of theater critics and journalists.

Humbled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tony Danza, the former professional boxer who stars in TV's "Who's The Boss?" comedy series, says he was humbled by getting a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

"I don't deserve this, when I see all the talented people out there who don't have one," Danza told fans Monday. "But being a kid from New York, I couldn't resist my name in the sidewalk."

Danza gained fame as an aspiring boxer moonlighting as a cabbie in the TV series "Taxi."

Baryshnikov Makes Debut

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Ballet dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov is making his theatrical debut at Duke University as a man who turns into an insect in Franz Kafka's horrific novella, "The Metamorphosis."

Ron Kumin, Duke's drama administrative director, said he was approached by producers of the pre-Broadway production because Baryshnikov wanted a "less traditional, more relaxed" setting for his dramatic debut.

Baryshnikov, whose film credits include "The Turning Point" and "White Nights," will make his stage debut Feb. 3. Performances of the play, co-produced by Roger Stevens and Lars Schmidt, will run through Feb. 25, Kumin said this week.

Van Dyke, Moore Shows Likely To Feel Ax As Ratings Suffer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Sentiment and old time's sake probably won't cut any ice at CBS when it comes to Dick Van Dyke's and Mary Tyler Moore's new shows.

CBS, after all, is the network that dumped "Frank's Place," one of the most critically praised series in recent years.

Ratings did in "Frank's Place" and probably will be the undoing of "The Van Dyke Show" and Moore's "Annie McGuire." The shows, which play back-to-back on Wednesday night, were in the bottom 10 in the Nielsen last week.

The only ratings hits so far this fall season are ABC's "Roseanne" and NBC's "Empty Nest" and "Dear John." All three have been in the top 10.

"Roseanne," starring Roseanne Barr and John Goodman as a blue-collar husband and wife, is already pressing NBC's "The Cosby Show" for the top spot.

CBS' "Murphy Brown," starring Candice Bergen in her series debut as a star reporter on a TV newsmagazine, got a middling 14.7 rating for its premiere last week, about half what "Cosby" usually gets, but respectable enough.

The "Murphy Brown" rating was a considerable improvement over its lead-in, "Coming of Age," which got an 11.5 rating that same night. But it wasn't as high as "Designing Women," which got to 15.3.

Each rating point represents 904,000 homes with televisions.

"Murphy Brown" is funny, and Bergen has a flair for comedy. She plays a mega-talent on the cusp of burnout. The show takes some satiric swipes at television, such as its penchant for turning glamorous airheads into reporters and giving executive positions to people who only recently stopped sleeping in pajamas with feet in them.

But Van Dyke and Moore got off to slow starts, not only in the ratings but with the critics as well.

Van Dyke teams with son Barry in "The Van Dyke Show" as a famous hooper who comes to the rescue of his son's ailing theater in a small Pennsylvania town. The show combines domestic comedy in the son's home with the doings at the theater.
