Quake Devastates Soviet State

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — A devastating earthquake in Armenia leveled cities and wiped out villages, and Soviet officials said today that thousands of people were killed. Other reports said tens of thousands died.

Soviet officials said at least 50 children were buried by rubble when their school collapsed. They announced a massive relief effort in the mountainous southern republic of 3.3 million residents.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev cut short his visit to the United States, and his aides said he was flying to Armenia to take command of the rescue operation.

Soviet officials reported thousands killed but provided no detailed casualty count.

Archbishop Mesrob Ashjian, prelate of the Armenian Apostolic Church of America in New York, quoted sources in Armenia as saying the death toll could reach 70,000.

Japan's Kyodo News Service quoted Armenian officials as saying 50,000 people were killed. None of the reports could be confirmed.

The official Soviet news agency

Tass reported destruction in neighboring Soviet republics of Georgia and Azerbaijan in the northern Caucasus. A massive relief effort was organized that included Red Army troops, Tass said.

The earthquake wiped out Spitak, a town of 16,000 near the epicenter, a government newspaper said. Izvestia said just one of the town's eight schools remained standing. The quake struck northwestern Armenia at midmorning, when schools were in session and factories operating.

The U.S. Geological Survey said it measured 6.9 on the Richter scale.

State television showed film of crumbled buildings in Spitak and Kirovakan, Armenia's third-largest city. In one shot, a man put his hands over his head in grief as he stood amid a collapsed building.

"Practically all apartment buildings of nine floors or higher are destroyed," the official newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said. "There is significant damage in five-story apartment buildings. Only individual one-story and two-three

Soviet Leader Ends N.Y. Visit To Go Back Home

By Terence Hunt
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mikhail S. Gorbachev was heading for home today to deal with the aftermath of a devastating earthquake, breaking off a New York visit highlighted by his dramatic announcement of a major reduction in Soviet troop strength and his summit with President Reagan and President-elect Bush.

Soviet officials said Gorbachev was returning home to direct relief efforts after the quake in Armenia that produced casualties numbering in the thousands. That meant junking an elaborately planned day of sightseeing in New York, as well as trips to Cuba and England that had been on the schedule for later in the week.

A steady parade of cars and vans loaded with luggage left the Soviet mission for the airport throughout the morning in advance of Gorbachev's departure.

At least one event planned for the Soviet leader went on without him. A Soviet trade show opened, with goods ranging from vodka to furs and to fruits on display. Viktor Kamentsev, a deputy Soviet premier, opened the show along with C. William Verity, the U.S. secretary of commerce.

Reports from Armenia said casualties and damage were extensive, and John Matlock, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, said the United States stood ready to "aid if there is an effective way we can, and I think they've indicated they'll let us know if they need some."

Four Armenian clergy were admitted to the Soviet mission during the morning, but Soviet officials said they did not see Gorbachev.

Gorbachev opened his superpower relationship with George Bush on a warm note and won President Reagan's praise Wednesday for a major reduction in Soviet troops before deciding to cut short his New York visit and return home to cope with the earthquake.

ECU Successfully Carries Out Bone Marrow Transplant

By E. Ramona Brown
 ECU MEDICAL WRITER

An East Carolina University School of Medicine physician has successfully eliminated cancerous tumors in a breast cancer patient by removing her healthy bone marrow prior to chemotherapy, then purifying, freezing and restoring it during the medical center's first autologous bone marrow transplant.

ECU has joined Duke University as the second medical center in the state to offer the transplant that allows patients to fight off cancer using their own bone marrow.

The recipient, a 42-year-old woman, had experienced a recurrence of cancer after four years in remission.

"The autologous bone marrow transplant provides the best means of reducing tumor size, and in some cases, eliminating cancer in certain categories of patients," said Dr. Lawrence Lewkow, a hematologist-oncologist and director of the ECU bone marrow transplant program.

Using the transplant, oncologists are able to administer higher doses of chemotherapy to destroy cancerous tumors in patients with advanced breast cancer, small-cell lung cancer, ovarian cancer, Hodgkin's Disease and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

Two-thirds of cancer patients nationwide who have received the transplant have experienced partial or complete disappearance of tumors, Lewkow said.

The ECU program initially will focus on treatment of advanced breast cancer and within the next six months Lewkow plans to expand the program to include treatment of other types of cancer.

"The addition of the new transplant program at ECU is our attempt to provide long-term remissions and, with hope, cures. We also expect to pioneer new chemotherapy treatments that will produce the best results with the least side effects."

U.S. Jet Crashes In German City

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

REMSCHIED, West Germany — A U.S. Air Force jet slammed into a residential area of this city in central West Germany today, killing at least three people, injuring dozens and setting houses on fire, officials said.

Rescue officials said the death toll could rise. Authorities were fighting flames as they tried to reach the scene of the crash.

West Germany's ARD television network said several buildings collapsed as the inferno engulfed the area.

Reinhard Fleischmann, a spokesman for Remscheid, said three bodies had been pulled out of the burning rubble.

He said between 40 to 50 people were injured, many of them seriously.

"We haven't even reached the aircraft. It's still wedged into a burning house," Fleischmann said.

An eyewitness, quoted on local radio station WDR said: "A bright orange fireball went up. The aircraft slammed into a house about 50 meters (55 yards) in front of me."

Recount Starts

The recount is on, and probably will continue through Friday.

Pitt County election officials today began sorting through piles of ballots from the Nov. 8 general election to find all of the ballots cast in the N.C. Court of Appeals race between John B. Lewis of Farmville and Donald Smith in Raleigh.

Pitt County Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee said there had been no problems today, but the process is very time-consuming and officials will most likely need to complete the recount Friday.

All 100 county election board's in the state are to participate in the recount, and the state Board of Elections allowed the county boards to conduct the recounts either today or Friday.

Lewis, a Democrat, led Smith by about 15,000 votes in the election, but the narrow margin of victory allowed Smith to call for a recount after the state Board of Elections certified the vote totals last week.

Lewis' term as a special Superior Court judge ends Dec. 31. Smith, a Republican, was appointed to the Court of Appeals by Gov. Jim Martin.

Search On For Man Missing Nearly 3 Weeks

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County sheriff's investigators searched again today for a Grimesland man who has been missing for nearly three weeks.

Reuben Wiggins, 50, of Route 1, Box 312, Grimesland, left his home the morning of Nov. 20 after receiving a telephone call about 10:30 a.m., Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said. His family has not seen him since.

Wiggins' sister said her brother did not say who telephoned him, but he left the house immediately after the call and headed toward Washington, N.C.

"He's never stayed out of work and he's never spent a night out when he had to go to work the next day," said Wiggins' sister, Faye. He worked as a forklift operator for Georgia Pacific in Bridgeton, she said, and missed just 10 days of work in 30 years.

"He takes care of everything. He's never been in any trouble that I know anything about," Miss Wiggins said.

He lives with Miss Wiggins, another sister, a brother and his mother and provides for the family, she said.

"We're doing fine," she said. "We've got plenty of food in the freezer, but we still want him to come back home."

She said she has no idea who could have called or where he could have gone. And the situation is especially troubling because Wiggins would never stay out without calling to tell his family where he was, she said.

He often carried lots of cash, she said, but he did not carry an unusually large amount. She does not know whether or not Wiggins had money with him the day he disappeared.

Wiggins is still classified as a missing person, Oakley said, but the longer the search goes on the grimmer it looks. "The longer it is, the more it worries us," he said.

Investigators from the Craven County Sheriff's Department are cooperating in the search effort, which has been going on for several days in the southern portion of the county. Today's search team worked near Calico.

Craven County Sheriff Pete Bland said Craven investigators found Wiggins' 1976 Oldsmobile on a wooded path off River Road in the Jackson's Footway section of Craven County.

The path leads to a trash pile, Bland said, and the car was backed into the path and all doors were locked. There was no sign of any trouble or foul play.

Craven investigators searched the woods and dragged portions of the nearby Neuse River, but they have not found any clues.

Frank Manning of Beaufort County grew up with Wiggins in Pitt County. He said he has contacted everyone who knows Wiggins and looked in every possible nook of the county. Still, there is no sign of Wiggins.

"I can't get up with anybody who's

Engel Joins Staff

Dr. Jeffrey P. Engel has joined the East Carolina University School of Medicine as assistant professor in the department of medicine's Section of Infectious Diseases.

Engel has special research interests in the herpes simplex virus, which causes cold sores and other viral infections.

Preceding his ECU appointment, he was a fellow in the infectious diseases clinical fellowship program at the University of Minnesota Hospital and Clinic in Minneapolis.

He received his bachelor's and medical degrees from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and completed an internal medicine residency at the University of Minnesota. During his training, he was chief medical resident at the Minneapolis Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Pitt Schools Gear Up To Fight Drugs, Alcohol

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

What do movies, a television commercial, a club and a rap have in common? They'll all be used in the fight against drugs and alcohol.

Each of these projects has been designed by schools in Pitt County to meet the needs of the school and the community in this "attack on drugs" effort, said Gretchen Allen, health education coordinator.

The schools created the projects and competed for funds provided in a $5,000 grant to the school system from the Alcohol Drug Defense Program.

"We came up with the idea to let each of the schools apply to us, and we called it Attack On Drugs," she said. "We wanted it to be something that the schools chose — make it a grassroots effort."

The programs designed were to provide alcohol and drug education to students in a new and innovative manner that could be replicated; to increase parental knowledge about alcohol and other drug use and abuse; to identify high-risk students that are more likely to have drug-related problems and to provide intervention services to those students; to provide students with alternate activities, and to provide workshop training for teachers and staff in the areas of substance abuse prevention and intervention.

Each of the projects will receive $1,000, while non-awarded funds will be available to other schools on request and will be used as matching funds to host "Give Yourself A Chance — Reach for the Stars," a program to be presented at Farmville Central High School Friday at 2 p.m. It's sponsored by Pepsi-Cola and Burger King.

Designed by G.R. Whitfield School, the movie program will provide the showing of current films in a movie-theater atmosphere. Refreshments of popcorn and drinks will be provided.

Following each film or during intermission, an activity dealing with drug prevention, intervention and education will be conducted.

Farmville Central High School will produce a television commercial where students and parents will assemble on the football field and form the phrase "Say No." Also a miniskit featuring students involved in drugs who reconsider their actions will be in the commercial.

The Students Against Substance Abuse club will be formed at Bethel Elementary School. The club, which will meet at least once a month, will have T-shirts for club members, and will develop other related activities.

The SPINAL rap, which represents approaches to discussing social pressures and providing information and alternatives, will be conducted at Agnes Fullilove School. Social skills training will be provided for all students, while a weeklong symposium on substance abuse will be conducted. Also, about 24 high-risk students will participate in group counseling sessions to be conducted by East Carolina University psychology graduate students.

All of the programs will be monitored and evaluated for their effectiveness, Ms. Allen said.

Drought Relief Given

Area tree growers affected by the summer drought may be eligible to receive aid through the federal Drought Relief Act.

Under the act, growers could receive funds to cover up to 65 percent of their re-establishment costs, with a maximum payment of $25,000 to a single person.

To qualify, growers must own between one acre and 1,000 acres of timberland and drought losses must exceed 35 percent of normal losses. The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service in Raleigh will determine what a normal loss is.

To obtain aid, contact the county ASCS office by June 30, 1989.

12 People Charged In Deer Firelighting

N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission enforcement officers have arrested a dozen people on firelighting deer charges in the past two weeks and one man has been charged with killing a black bear.

Sgt. Kay Dunn said Allen Stokesberry and Jimmy Stokesberry, both of Washington, N.C., and Daniel Alligood of Vanceboro were arrested on firelighting deer charges in connection with a 12:30 a.m. incident on Nov. 26 in the Calico area. Dunn also said that James Meeks, Pamela Meeks and Charles Peoples Jr., all of Greenville, and Bobby Elks of Vanceboro were charged with firelighting in connection with a 7:45 p.m. incident on Nov. 26 in the Calico area.

According to Dunn, Jim Tart and Charles King, both of Princeton, and Edward Raynor of Clayton were charged with firelighting in connection with a 9 p.m. incident Friday in the Calico area, while Dewey Collins of Ayden and Daniel Osborne of Winterville were charged in connection with a 12:15 a.m. incident Sunday in the Calico area.

Dunn said Edgar G. Griffin, 54, of Bethel was charged with killing a black bear in closed season about two miles southwest of Bethel on Monday.

Dunn, who said Griffin was deer hunting when the 330-pound male bear was shot, said there is no open season for bear in Pitt County.

Pepsi-Cola Gives Money

The Crime Stoppers program in Pitt County is $2,000 richer thanks to the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Greenville. Greenville police Sgt. D.A. Jackson said the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. has donated $1,000 to Crime Stoppers. As a result of this local donation, the Pepsi-Cola Co., the franchiser in Somers, N.Y., for all Pepsi-Cola bottlers, has also given Crime Stoppers $1,000.

In addition, Jackson said, PepsiCo — again in recognition of the local bottler's community services — has donated $1,000 to the Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse.

Crime Stoppers pays up to $1,000 to callers, who do not have to give their names, for information on crimes. The Crime Stoppers telephone number is 758-7777.

Christmas Gifts Needed

The number of Christmas gifts donated for clients of area mental health programs through Operation Santa Claus is considerably less than that of any recent year, according to Sallie Shelton, executive director of the Mental Health Association of Pitt County.

Because of this shortage, the donation time has been extended through Dec. 16. People are asked to bring gifts to 123 W. Third Street Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or arrange for pick-up by calling 752-7448.

Ms. Shelton said cash donations are welcome. Gifts for clients ages 1-13 of the local mental health center are especially needed, as well as gifts for residents of Cherry Hospital and Caswell Center.

Six Thefts Reported

Six thefts, including an armed robbery at Bailey's Convenient Mart on Watauga Avenue, were reported Wednesday to Greenville police.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a man armed with a single-barreled, .12-gauge shotgun entered the store, demanded money and left with about $180 in the 11:25 p.m. incident.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a wallet was taken from a shopper's purse at K-Mart at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 2:50 p.m.

Officer L.E. White said a wallet containing $120 in cash was taken from a car parked at 505 E. Fifth St. in an incident reported at 3:56 p.m., while Officer W.E. Davis said a $350 camera, a $150 lens and a $450 diamond ring were taken from D4 Kingston Place in an incident reported at 6:09 p.m.

Davis, who said a warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Greensboro man in connection with the theft from the Fifth Street home, also said a purse was taken from an apartment at 1803 E. Sixth St. in an incident reported at 9:17 p.m.

According to Officer K.P. Woods, a television set valued at $1,268 was taken from 417-2 Hudson St. in an incident reported at 6:29 p.m.

Wellcome PTO to Meet

Fatal Shooting

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — An 18-year-old Deep Gap man was shot to death during the weekend, authorities say.

The body of Morris Allen Ward was found dead late Sunday night in a secluded area in the Pattons Ridge area of Wilkes County, which is located about a mile from the Watauga County border.

Watauga County Sheriff James Lyons said the shooting apparently took place Saturday night. An investigation by Watauga and Wilkes County sheriff's departments and the SBI is continuing into Ward's death which Wilkes County coroner John Blackburn said was caused by a gunshot wound to the head.

No arrests have been made. Ward had recently moved to the Deep Gap area from Sugar Grove, Lyons said.

Compromise

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The town of Chapel Hill has apparently reached a compromise with the beavers that had been damming Bolin Creek.

"I think the beavers decided that we want the area for ourselves and have given it back to us," said Pat Sanford, executive director of the Orange County Animal Protection Society.

Town officials have been trying to remove beavers from the creek on the eastern fringe of town across U.S. 15-501 because of fears that standing water would overflow sewage manholes along the creek, cause a drowning hazard, and cause stagnant water conditions.

Robber Chased

GREENSBORO (AP) — A robber with a small-caliber pistol and a short sense of history might be wishing he had skipped the Higgins Curb Market on Monday night.

He fled the scene with $60, but also with five bullets from a .357-caliber Magnum chasing him.

Larry Higgins, who operates the store, told police he grabbed his gun and fired at the fleeing bandit after being robbed at gunpoint.

Poverty Panel To Give Report

ECU NEWS BUREAU

After completing a study of poverty in a 41-county area of eastern North Carolina, a task force of the North Carolina Poverty Project Inc. is preparing to present its findings and recommendations in a formal report.

Keyed to findings on root causes of poverty during two years of study, the report attempts to identify unmet needs of the poor and to recommend remedial action, according to the co-chairs of the committee.

Studies show that more than 40 percent of North Carolina's poor — an estimated 12 percent of the state's population — live in eastern North Carolina.

Titled "Poverty in the East: Shared Ownership in the Problems and Solutions," the report will be presented at forums Jan. 5 in Fayetteville and Jan. 6 at the Carol G. Belk Building, East Carolina University, in Greenville.

Bank Wants Branch

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Hyde County-based bank has filed an application with the N.C. Commissioner of Banks and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. for authority to open a branch in Greenville.

The East Carolina Bank, headquartered in Engelhard, applied to the state Banking Commission to operate a proposed "Arlington Office" on the corner of Arlington Boulevard and Red Banks Road.

The bank's application entered a two-week period Monday in which members of the regulating agencies receive and consider comments from the public including requests for a public meeting or formal hearing on the application.

Ruth Britt, a N.C. Bank Commission processor, said following the end of the comment period on Dec. 19, the application will enter into a two-week appeal period. The commission may then grant the bank approval to operate the new branch and the bank is permitted a one-year period to begin branch operations.

Ms. Britt said the bank must also receive FDIC approval, which is granted no earlier than 15 days following that agency's acknowledgment of receiving the bank's application.

The East Carolina Bank currently employs 120 people in 11 branch offices, six of which are situated on the Outer Banks, said E. Royden Clarke, bank president.

Clarke said the bank, which opened in 1920, has assets in excess of $116 million.

In compliance with regulations, the branch would operate five days per week, closing on Saturday. Proposed hours would be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday.

Currently operating in Greenville are approximately 13 banks and savings and loan institutions, many of which have several branches located throughout the community.

More Effective

One Works Better Than Two

One old axiom bites the dust when it is applied to downtown Greenville.

In the case of support groups for growth of that area, the saying "two is better than one" just doesn't hold true. One unified force representing the interests in downtown can better guide the effort to revitalize the area.

And two groups important to downtown Greenville's economic future will form such an effective force when they consolidate. The Downtown Greenville Association and Evergreen of Greenville, Inc. announced their decision to merge as of Jan. 1.

The consolidated operation should give new strength to efforts to pump new life into the downtown Greenville area and make it a positive economic element of Greenville and Pitt County.

Evergreen has been a private non-profit organization with a goal of providing economic development. While downtown is a major part of its efforts, Evergreen also took a citywide outlook.

The merged group will look for memberships of businesses, property owners and individuals who are interested in downtown revitalization.

That should be inclusive of all segments of the community, since improvements to downtown, once the retail center of the city, will mean a better economy for the city and county, as well as an increased tax base for both city and county governments.

There remain a number of retail establishments in the area. Thoroughfare access to downtown, while not ideal, is improving with renovations planned for Evans Street. The residential areas near downtown provide growth potential. The county's court and legal systems are expanding rapidly and can draw professionals into the district. And the proximity of East Carolina University is perhaps the area's greatest asset.

Downtown Greenville seems to be an area which is just waiting for the right combination of events that will restore its vitality.

Obviously it needs a strong support group and the merged Downtown Greenville Association and Evergreen of Greenville, Inc. should provide just such support.

The Original

A Rockabilly Pioneer Silenced

A piece of rock'n'roll died Tuesday.

He crooned in three octaves, turned a throaty, sexy cat call into music and wore a black pompadour and sunglasses. His name was Roy Orbison, and he was the pioneer of rockabilly, a hybrid of rock'n'roll and hillbilly music unique for its poignant but peppy sound.

Orbison's voice and pen were stilled by a heart attack that took his life. But he leaves a legacy of the likes of Bruce Springsteen, Bob Dylan, Jackson Browne, Tom Waits, J.D. Souther and Bonnie Rait. And he leaves to mourn all those who clapped and danced to his beat.

Orbison, with his standout black hairdo, permanent sunglasses and long sideburns, was not exactly teen idol material. But many a "Pretty Woman" took a liking to the performer because his gift as a songwriter was considerable, and his talent for interpreting melodies and lyrics was distinct.

When Orbison began his career two decades ago, rock'n'roll and country music (then called hillbilly music) were as far apart as Los Angeles and Nashville. But his brand of musical arrangement brought them together in a way that influenced the direction and appeal of popular music.

During his heyday in the 1960s Orbison had 27 straight records on the charts. But by mid-decade his output and popularity slipped until it revived in the mid-1980s.

Orbison, like most entertainers, had his share of pain. His wife died in a motorcycle accident in 1966. Two of his three sons, ages 10 and 6, died in a fire that destroyed his home. But the singer, like his career, rebounded from these tragedies. He remarried and had two sons from that marriage.

Now his fans, along with the admirers of the entertainers he influenced, can watch Orbison perform, in the words of one of his song titles, only "In Dreams." And many of them will be "Cryin'" over the loss of an original rock'n'roller.

An Epidemic Of Complacency

WASHINGTON — Non sequiturs can be as illuminating as epigrams, and Vernon Walters, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, offers a dandy in an interview in Life magazine. With Mikhail Gorbachev in our midst, Walters' statement bears scrutiny because it is symptomatic of something worrisome — an epidemic of complacency.

Life asked Walters, "Because nations have become so economically interdependent, aren't there powerful disincentives against war?" Walters' answer began: "Yes. War is going out of style. There hasn't been a successful war since we stopped the communists from overrunning South Korea."

The last sentence is murky but certainly false. The Vietnam War was a success for North Vietnam, which won it. Walters' statement reflects our national solipsism: Nothing is real except American preoccupations.

But even if it were true that there had been no successful wars since Korea, that thought would not validate Walters' first thought, about war going out of style. Consider the rest of Walters' answer to Life:

"Nations don't go to war just to get a lot of people killed, and the economic cost of war is absolutely incredible. All the hurly-burly of Irangate was about $31 million worth of arms that was supposed to have been given to the Iranians. That amount would sustain an artillery bombardment for maybe 15 or 20 minutes."

Now that communists know that events have refuted Marx, Americans, especially conservatives, are the last economic determinists. Imbued with commercial values, and convinced that man is homo economicus — a rational, calculating creature — many Americans base foreign policy on one idea. It is the one falsified in 1914: the idea that commerce conduces to peace because economic self-interest governs human conduct.

Yes, war is expensive and nations do not undertake it to get people killed. But nations pay the price in treasure and death because economic considerations rarely are controlling. No nation goes to war with a gun in one hand and a calculator in the other.

Economic determinism is a soothing way of ascribing to the Soviets familiar motives that make them seem predictable, manipulable and moderate. In the 1970s, the days of detente and Soviet adventurism, the West hoped economic forces would produce "Gulliverization." Trade and credits would bind down the Soviets with a thousand little threads, cumulatively immobilizing, like Gulliver among the Lilliputians.

In the late 1980s, the Soviet magazine New Times calls glasnost and perestroika "marvelous keys to American hearts." At the current summit, they will be keys to the coffers of American capitalism.

Today's theory is that Gorbachev wants to move the Soviet economy away from militarism. But before he can build Trump Tower on the banks of the

George Will

Moscow River (2 bdms., river view, 10 million rubles), he needs Western help (money) lest the "conservatives" (they are the problem everywhere) overthrow him. But 45 months into the Gorbachev era, there is this continuity with the Brezhnev era: There is, at most, only slight moderation of military spending within the supposedly "strapped" Soviet economy.

Angelo Codevilla of the Hoover Institution, writing in Commentary, argues convincingly that the Soviet Union, judged not by rhetoric of intentions but by its military power relative to that of the United States, "is as much of a threat as ever, maybe more." We are, he says, guilty of solipsism, in this sense: Many American arguments about what is happening in the Soviet Union are actually not about events there. The arguments are attempts to vindicate various American policy preferences.

'After nearly four years of Gorbachev, the overwhelming preponderance of evidence still is that the Soviet Union is seeking politically decisive superiority ...'

After "eight years of near total administration confusion about ICBM vulnerability" (the words of Brent Scowcroft, soon to be George Bush's national security adviser), the situation is as Codevilla describes it. In the last decade, the Soviets have moved from approximately two ICBM warheads for each U.S. target (missile silos, bomber bases, submarine ports, command-and-control centers) to approximately three warheads per target. A decade ago, the Carter administration thought we needed 200 mobile MX missiles (2,000 warheads) to survive a first strike and threaten Soviet ICBMs held in reserve in fixed silos. Now we are down to 50 MX, vulnerable in fixed locations, while the new Soviet ICBMs are mobile.

Suppose the argument that was made a thousand wars ago — the argument made even before the invention of guns — is true. Suppose war is so expensive it is going out of style. Deterrence, too, is expensive. And the alternative to deterrence need not be war. It can be politically decisive military superiority for one side.

Gorbachev's announced intention ("magnanimous," rhapsodized an anchorman) to reduce Soviet armed forces, by amounts not nearly large enough to eliminate the substantial Soviet theater and overall superiorities, does not alter this fact: After nearly four years of Gorbachev, the overwhelming preponderance of evidence still is that the Soviet Union is seeking politically decisive superiority, expects us to subsidize its efforts and will not be disappointed.

Scrooge & Marley Or Japan

Spreading Christmas Cheer Takes A Lot Of Cash

Art Buchwald

Scrooge & Marley, the Wall Street investment bankers, have just announced that they plan to make a serious attempt to take over the Christmas Holiday for $100 billion.

"This could be the largest unfriendly buy-out in history," Scrooge cackled at a press conference. "We are offering $10 a share to every man, woman and child who has an interest in Christmas, provided they sell by Dec. 25. Since we have almost total control of the stock right now, it makes no sense for anyone to hold out and refuse our offer."

Scrooge said that he had been secretly buying up Christmas stock for more than a year because he felt it was grossly undervalued.

"Its parts are worth far more than the whole. What we intend to do is spin off the unprofitable enterprises such as the egg-nog division and the reindeer transportation company, and hold on to the big money-makers which are Christmas cards and fake snowflakes."

"How about Christmas mail-order catalogues?"

"We're going to keep them, but we may dump the Christmas tree business because it has such a low profit potential. If we make this deal, we're going to be up to our ears in debt and so every dollar counts."

"But without trees you won't have a market for Christmas decorations," a reporter pointed out.

"That's probably true, but we were planning to get rid of the decoration business anyway because we needed the cash to buy Del Monte Catsup from Nabisco."

"Where are you going to get the money to pay for Christmas?" someone else asked.

"Bob Cratchit, my accountant, has advised me to issue junk bonds. We'll offer the bonds to the public at 20 percent interest, which is junkier than Drexel Burnham. If we can't dispose of enough of those we will sell off the world rights to Santa Claus."

'Scrooge said that he had been secretly buying up Christmas stock for more than a year because he felt was grossly undervalued.'

"Santa Claus is sacred. You can't unload the rights to him and still call yourself a Christmas Company."

Scrooge said, "Bah, people can do anything they want in an unfriendly take-over. Cratchit has discovered that the old Christmas management tolerated unbelievable waste in their operations. They even gave free shopping mall space to high school choirs who wanted to sing 'Jingle Bells.' Believe me, if Scrooge & Marley succeed in this buy-out, we're going to run a lean and tough holiday ship."

"But," said a reporter, "Christmas excess is essential to a happy holiday season."

"If it's so essential, then we ought to make people pay for it. Spreading Christmas cheer doesn't come cheap."

"Sir, why did you decide on an unfriendly take-over rather than a friendly one?"

"Because the Scrooge & Marley company never gets involved in friendly bids. When we made noises about our plans, the present Christmas Board of Directors told us to butt out. So we decided to go for it on our own. At the beginning we never thought Christmas was much of an investment. But then we realized that everyone on Wall Street would treat us with new respect when they saw how much debt we were in."

"Do you believe the present Christmas stockholders will go for your bid?"

"Of course, Christmas has been a losing proposition for most people and Scrooge & Marley are offering them a way to bail out."

"Suppose present management says that Christmas is not for sale."

"My answer to them is, 'Humbug'. Somebody is going to acquire the holiday sooner or later, and better Scrooge & Marley than the people who bombed Pearl Harbor."

Judge Reduces Hatcher's Bond; Jacobs Still Loose

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUMBERTON, N.C. — Indian activist Eddie Hatcher is expected to post bond on state kidnapping charges today, but codefendant Timothy Jacobs, who failed to turn himself after the state charges, is still on the lam.

"The test of a democracy is not how the rich are treated but how the poor are treated," Superior Court Judge Robert Hobgood said Wednesday in lowering Hatcher's bond from $140,000 to $25,000.

Hobgood also stipulated that Hatcher remain in Robeson County until his case is tried. No trial date has been set.

As he was escorted to jail Wednesday, Hatcher said he was confident he would be freed and working on minority rights issues today. "We'll win it," he said of his kidnapping case.

Jacobs, in a telephone call to a Raleigh television station Tuesday night, said he was hiding in New York and would not return to North Carolina. He and Hatcher each were indicted Tuesday on 14 state kidnapping charges in connection with the takeover of a newspaper office last February.

"We are continuing to try to locate him," said Cuyler Windham, assistant director for the State Bureau of Investigation. "Hopefully, he will turn himself in, or we'll hear from him or his attorneys."

"I'm really upset about it. I'm sick upset about it," Jacobs told WRAL-TV. "I was tried before in federal court for the same charges except they were different wording. I was tried for hostage taking; that didn't apply. So the people down there that were behind these charges... they were upset."

"They lost the battle," Jacobs said. "The war's not over with yet. That's the way I look at it."

A federal jury Oct. 14 acquitted the two Tuscarora Indians of federal hostage-taking and firearms charges, despite their admissions that they sawed off two shotguns and held up to 20 people hostage at The Robesonian in Lumberton for 10 hours.

The siege ended after Gov. Jim Martin agreed to form a state task force to investigate their charges of official corruption and law enforcement involvement in drug trafficking. Hatcher, 31, and Jacobs, 20, met only once with the task force, which said there was little evidence to substantiate their charges.

Hatcher disappeared for several weeks before his federal trial when an appeals court revoked his bond. He surfaced at Raleigh-Durham Airport with an attorney on a flight from New York.

Federal officials said after the trial they were still interested in where Hatcher was hiding, but Windham said no decision had been made yet on involving federal investigators in the search for Jacobs.

"At this point, the sheriff's office down there (Robeson County) is trying to locate him," Windham said. "We don't know if federal officials will join us in the future or not. It's something we'll have to consider later on, but we're still hoping he will turn himself in."

A spokeswoman at Christie Institute South in Carrboro, which represented Jacobs in his federal trial, said the law firm had not heard from Jacobs since the indictments were returned.

Civil rights attorney William Kunstler, who represented Hatcher but was not present during the federal trial, said the state charges were "an ugly, vindictive prosecution designed to punish them for being acquitted."

"Ridiculous," District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt responded Wednesday. Britt, who will become a Superior Court Judge in January, refused further comment, but said the investigation is not over.

"There is an intense investigation under way looking at a conspiracy before Feb. 1 and possible obstruction of justice charges after Feb. 1," Britt said.

Migrant Upset Over Inability To Win U.S. Approval Kills Self

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EDENTON, N.C. — A Mexican migrant worker found hanged in Chowan County last week apparently killed himself after becoming worried that he would not be able to remain in the United States, investigators say.

The body of Armando Ramirez-Andrade, 20, was found dangling from a small holly tree in a wooded area north of Edenton last Friday by other migrants. Fellow workers said he had been trying to become a permanent resident through a federal program.

Dr. Lawrence "Stan" Harris, a regional medical examiner in Greenville who performed the autopsy, said Ramirez-Andrade died Nov. 27. He said an investigation indicated that the man had been agitated and depressed when he did not receive the documentation he needed for the amnesty program offered by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"It's particularly poignant because he was trying to get the registration," Harris told The News and Observer of Raleigh.

Some documents from Mexico arrived in his mail the day Ramirez-Andrade's body was found, two days after the Nov. 30 deadline for the amnesty program. A spokesman for the state Medical Examiner's Office in Chapel Hill said authorities in Mexico had apparently requested additional information from Ramirez-Andrade.

Under the federal program, illegal residents including migrants could apply for permanent resident status by the end of November. If the application was approved, the applicant would be allowed to work legally anywhere in the United States and to apply for citizenship. If it was not approved, the individual could be deported.

A native of the Mexican state of Durango, Ramirez-Andrade was one of about 60 migrants hired to work in cotton and vegetable fields in the county during the summer and fall. Many of the nomadic workers have since left the fields, officials said, although some remain to harvest col-lards.

Edna McNabb, a relative of the crew leader who supervised the Chowan County workers, said in an interview Tuesday that Ramirez-Andrade had told some people he was born in the United States, but that he also said he was trying to obtain a birth certificate from Mexico. She said he was a loner and that he became even quieter as the deadline for the amnesty program approached.

"He got awfully quiet and wouldn't talk to anyone," Ms. McNabb said. "He would just come in from work and go to bed."

She said there was no search when he didn't show up for work last week because some of the workers often leave unexpectedly. He had left without notice previously, she said.

Chowan County Deputy Sheriff Harry Ward said the young man apparently stood on a five-gallon bucket, tied a finger-sized rope to the tree and looped it around his neck. There was no indication of foul play, he said.

IN THE STATE

Room Reserved

PINEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The term of the federal grand jury that indicted PTL founder Jim Bakker does not end until next month, and the federal courtroom room is still reserved for the grand jury next week, officials say.

"All I can say is they haven't finished their business," a federal law enforcement officer who requested anonymity said Wednesday. Asked if the 23-member panel would reconvene Monday, the source said: "I don't know."

Bakker and Richard Dortch, a former senior executive vice president at PTL, are accused in 24 indictments each of diverting more than $4 million of PTL money to their own benefit and of conspiring to defraud the public in raising millions of dollars to support "lavish and extravagant" lifestyles.

Federal prosecutors have refused comment on the investigation since it began 17 months ago.

Autopsies

MARION, N.C. (AP) — Autopsies on two women who fell from a Blue Ridge Parkway overlook do not indicate whether they fell accidentally or were pushed, Chief Medical Examiner John Butts says.

James Clifton Gibbs of Fayetteville has been charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of his wife, Helen Marie, and her friend, Susan White Haire of Ladson, S.C. The bodies of the two women were discovered Oct. 17 in a gorge below Chestoa View Overlook.

Butts said the bodies of the two women were exhumed Monday and autopsies showed injuries consistent with a fall.

Northern Telecom

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Northern Telecom Inc. will transfer about 100 managers to the Research Triangle Park when it moves a Concord, N.H., operation here early next year.

The move is part of a $200 million restructuring announced by the company Tuesday. The revamping will mean layoffs of 2,500 Northern Telecom employees throughout the United States and Canada.

Three weeks ago, Northern Telecom announced it was laying off 250 workers from its Triangle-area operations. Company officials estimated the total work force at Northern Telecom would be reduced by 5 percent.

The transfers from Concord to the park will not affect those employees already laid off in the Durham area, Kelleher said.

Red Measles

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Two cases of red measles reported last week have multiplied into a county-wide outbreak of the highly contagious disease, officials said.

Twenty-five to 30 suspected cases of red measles have been reported to the Rowan County Health Department. Health officials are waiting for blood tests to confirm their suspicions, but assume they have an epidemic on their hands, according to Charles Philbeck, a field consultant with the state's immunization program.

The rubeola outbreak is the first in North Carolina since 1980, when 40 toddlers and elementary school children in Orange County became ill, according to Wayne Raynor, assistant immunization program coordinator of the state Department of Human Resources.

Only four cases of red measles had been reported this year in North Carolina through October.

Discharge Halted

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the Army to halt discharge procedures against an Army private accused of marijuana use because he was not given the chance to defend himself before an administrative panel.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt ordered the Army to stop discharge procedures against PFC James Wesley May Jr., 34, until he has been provided with sufficient information to allow him to respond to allegations against him.

May sued the Army and his commander, Col. Robert E. Gray, in June after the Army attempted to discharge him under non-honorable conditions.

May in April allegedly tested positive for marijuana when his unit underwent urinalysis testing. May denied he had used marijuana and asked for a court-martial or similar hearing to determine his guilt, but Army officials began proceedings to give him a general discharge, citing misconduct and use of an illegal drug.

Bank Robberies Decrease In N.C. As Capture Rate Hits 70 Percent

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — While about 40 percent to 50 percent of bank robbers are caught across the country, the rate in North Carolina for 1987 was 70 percent, officials say.

"Of all the violent crimes you can talk about, robbery of financial institutions has the highest conviction rate," said Paul Daly, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina.

"We'd like to send that message. ... It's the only violent crime, generally speaking, that the federal, state and local (law enforcement agencies) work on together," Daly said Wednesday.

Robberies of North Carolina financial institutions have decreased this year from record-setting 1987, but the problem persists as drug users seek quick cash to support their habit, officials said at a news conference.

Eighty-six robberies of banks, savings and loans and other institutions have been reported this year, Daly said. More than half involved visible weapons.

In 1987, a record 120 robberies occurred.

Daly and Thad Woodard, president of the North Carolina League of Savings Institutions, a trade group representing 134 savings and loans and banks, called for additional help in nabbing bank robbers. The league pays up to $2,000 for information that leads to an arrest and indictment.

The amount of each award is based on the FBI's assessment of the degree of the informant's help, Woodard said. The league has made two payments this year, one for $2,000 and the other $1,000.

The maximum award was paid to a "confidential source" who helped apprehend the robber of Home Federal Savings Bank in Salisbury within five hours, Woodard said.

The league solicits public assistance quickly after a robbery, notifying radio and television stations and newspapers.

"With the cooperation of the media ... the description of a robber can be made available to the public quickly, hopefully prompting individuals who may know something about the robbery to call the FBI with information," Woodard said.

The names of informants and witnesses are kept confidential, he said.

UNC Advisers Check School Of Arts Facts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WINSTON-SALEM — Jane Milley, the chancellor of the N.C. School of the Arts, says she will cooperate fully with two fact-finding advisers appointed by the university system's president to investigate problems at the school.

The problems apparently center on Ms. Milley, who has been chancellor at the school for four years. Eight of the nine top administrators at the school sent her a letter last month about problems at the school, and, last week, the faculty overwhelmingly voted no confidence in Ms. Milley's leadership.

"I will do everything that I can to help the consultants get their job done and to move forward," Ms. Milley said Wednesday. "It's a very complicated situation, and my concern is for the school."

The two advisers are John T. Caldwell, a former chancellor at N.C. State University, and Everett Pittman, a professor and former dean of the music department at East Carolina University. The president of the university system, C.D. Spangler Jr., asked them to talk to Ms. Milley, administrators, faculty and students.

Ms. Milley met with the men Wednesday. She declined to comment on the discussion, but said that she supports Spangler's efforts.

John A. Sneden Jr., the dean of the school of design and production, met with the two men for about 1½ hours.

"It was a very cordial meeting," he said. "They certainly were attentive and listening."

Sneden declined to comment on the discussion.

Joshua S. Mark, the president of the Student Advisory Council, and other members of the council had an 80-minute meeting with Caldwell and Pittman. Mark said that he couldn't say what they discussed, but said he felt that the students' concerns were heard.

Caldwell also said that he couldn't comment on the discussions.

"We're just in a listening posture," he said.

Eviction Standoff Ends Peacefully

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONONGAHELA, Pa. — Three family members who barricaded themselves inside their foreclosed house surrendered today after a 15-hour standoff that began when someone fired shots at police trying to serve an eviction notice.

Before dawn, officers finally coaxed Raymond Baumiller, his mother, Katherine, and his 24-year-old sister from the house, police said.

Baumiller, 38, was arraigned before a Cannonsburg magistrate on charges of attempted homicide, aggravated assault and recklessly endangering another person. He was held in lieu of $10,000 bond. The women were not charged.

No one was hurt in the standoff, which ended about 5:30 a.m. "They're very quiet people and just kept to themselves," said Kelly Roth, 33, who lives across the street. "They're very private people."

Sgt. Sam Secreet of the Washington County sheriff's office said he and two other deputies knocked at the front door of Baumiller's house about 2 p.m. Wednesday but received no response. Authorities tried unsuccessfully to reach the occupants by phone and through loudspeakers.

The deputies and Carroll Township police Chief Howard Springer knocked at the door again and four shots were fired at them from inside the house, Secreet said. No one was injured.

"Thank God. It was close, but no one was hurt," he said. "We ran for cover as fast as we could."

Secreet said authorities repeatedly tried calling the house, but someone hung up on them each time.

Sheriff's deputies, police officers and firefighters were posted outside the 2½-story, white aluminum-sided house in Carroll Township, about 15 miles south of Pittsburgh. A special emergency response team from the state police headquarters in Harrisburg arrived late Wednesday.

Power to the house was cut off, but the building just outside Monongahela was illuminated overnight by portable lights erected outside by authorities.

Washington Federal Savings & Loan Association, which foreclosed on the property in July, granted a 30-day extension Wednesday night in an attempt to end the standoff, authorities said.

Some Farm Notices Were On Paid Loans

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Some of the 83,480 loan delinquencies targeted last month for official collection already had been settled by the time notices were sent out, the Farmers Home Administration says.

Moreover, many state FmHA offices have been reporting far fewer delinquencies than the Agriculture Department agency listed on Nov. 25 when it finished sending out the notices.

Agency spokesman Joe O'Neill said the 83,480 loan delinquencies reported last month represented "everybody who owed money" and were behind in their payments to FmHA.

In all, more than $8 billion in overdue loans is involved. The notices give a delinquent borrower 45 days to fill out forms showing how the debt will be settled.

O'Neill said in an interview that lists of 83,490 delinquent loans were sent to county FmHA offices so local officials could weed out those who had already made arrangements to settle their debt, or for some other reason were not slated to get the notices.

As a result, several thousand borrowers were pared from the tally, he said. Those remaining were sent notices by certified mail over a 10-day period beginning Nov. 15.

"No, indeed, we did not sent out that many," O'Neill said. "It's probably closer to 80,000, somewhere in there."

Congress ordered FmHA in the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to revise its lending practices and to come up with ways of handling long-overdue debt owed by thousands of farmers. One of the important features is a debt write-down or forgiveness provision, which took effect last month.

The purpose of the notices is to give tardy payers an opportunity to let FmHA know how they want to handle their debt under the new law.

Gorbachevs Become Big Apple Tourists

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — East Side, West Side, and all around the town, Mikhail Gorbachev sampled the sights of this "unique city," twice stepping out of his limousine to the delight of cheering New Yorkers and the dismay of his security detail.

"Nobody booed at all; everybody cheered," said Mark Johansen, 30, after the Soviet president and his wife, Raisa, emerged from their motorcade briefly Wednesday in the middle of Broadway in Manhattan's Theater District.

The Gorbachevs watched dusk spread over the twinkling city from the top of the city's tallest building, the 110-story World Trade Center, then sped up town to the gaudy lights of Times Square as crowds lining the streets cheered and applauded.

The Gorbachevs did it again minutes later uptown, when they greeted on-lookers outside that consumer cornucopia — Bloomingdale's department store.

But after only one day of diplomacy and sightseeing, they cut their visit short. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze announced late Wednesday that the Soviet leader would leave New York a day early because of a catastrophic earthquake in three Soviet republics.

The cancelled plans today included a Soviet trade show and a stroll through Central Park and the Metropolitan Museum of Art with his wife.

The Gorbachevs — and their 45-car motorcade — toured Manhattan on Wednesday after he addressed the United Nations General Assembly and attended a luncheon with President Reagan and Vice President George Bush on Governors Island.

Following a short ferry voyage to Manhattan, the Communist Party leader sped through the heart of U.S. capitalism to Wall Street and the World Trade Center.

The motorcade did not cause the massive gridlock feared by officials and commuters, and provided normally unimpressed New Yorkers and tourists with a novel diversion.

Gorbachev and Reagan are all smiles at last official meeting

Shultz Says More Cutbacks Needed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Secretary of State George P. Shultz met today with NATO allies to try to persuade them to insist on further cutbacks in Soviet troops in Europe beyond the 50,000 Mikhail S. Gorbachev has offered to withdraw from East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

In his farewell meeting with the 15 foreign ministers, Shultz hoped to keep the allies focused on the 2-to-1 manpower edge U.S. officials say the Warsaw Pact still enjoys.

"I'm not trying to suggest this decision should be sniffed at," a senior aide to Shultz said of the unilateral cutback offer Gorbachev made Wednesday in a U.N. speech in New York.

But the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, contrasted the Soviet leader's decision to withdraw six tank divisions from the three East European countries with the 20 divisions stationed in East Germany alone. And, the official said, the 500,000 troops Gorbachev offered to demobilize are only a fraction of the 5.5 million-man Red Army.

Shultz called the proposal a "welcome and significant step." But Gorbachev's appeal for "certain steps soon" by the West in return apparently will not be answered.

The Reagan administration, which has only 6½ weeks left in office, does not intend to bring home any of the 335,000 U.S. troops in Western Europe in response to the Soviet leader's move, U.S. officials said.

Military Cutbacks Greeted Cautiously

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — West European leaders have welcomed Mikhail S. Gorbachev's pledge to cut conventional forces unilaterally, but some are warning that even after such a move the Soviets would still remain militarily superior to NATO.

China's leaders said today that they welcome the Soviet president's pledge in a speech at the United Nations in New York on Wednesday to cut the Red Army by 500,000 troops and scrap 10,000 tanks and other armaments within two years.

Gorbachev said that as part of the initiative to reduce the Soviet army to about 5 million soldiers the Kremlin would cut "a major portion of Soviet troops temporarily stationed (in Mongolia) will return home."

"This is a positive development," Foreign Ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing said in Beijing.

Most news media in Eastern Europe's Warsaw Pact states reported without comment Gorbachev's promise, which included a pledge to remove 5,000 tanks and 50,000 troops from East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

But the Czechoslovak Communist daily Rude Pravo said the meaning of the troop cut "is to give conventional disarmament a vital shot in the arm."

"The point is literally to force Western partners to stop giving speeches ... about the need for disarmament, about their concern about the buildup of troops and military technology in Europe, and to start acting," the paper said in a brief comment by its foreign editor Milan Jelinek.

In Communist Poland, state TV carried without comment footage of Gorbachev announcing he will reduce troop levels.

In Warsaw, Jacek Czaputowicz, co-founder of Poland's pacifist group Peace and Freedom, said it could be the "first step" in the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Poland.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called the move "a very positive step forward," and "just exactly what we wanted."

In Brussels, NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner said the move "seems to be a step in the right direction," but warned that big imbalances would remain.

Wright Probe Will Continue In New Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The House ethics committee is unlikely to conclude its investigation of Speaker Jim Wright until early next year, members of the panel say.

While most witnesses relevant to the case have been interviewed, the special counsel handling the case, Richard J. Phelan, still has not written a final report, the lawmakers said after a 30-minute status session Wednesday.

"It will be next year" before the case is wrapped up, said Rep. Thomas Petri, R-Wis. "We've still got some loose ends to tie up."

Asked whether the investigation will extend into 1989, Rep. John T. Myers, R-Ind., replied: "I think you can make book on that."

Myers said the six GOP members of the 12-member committee all were reappointed Wednesday to new terms to provide continuity at least until the Wright inquiry is completed.

No committee members would comment on results of the investigation thus far. The panel could dismiss the charges or it could issue a statement of alleged violations, the congressional equivalent of an indictment. That would trigger a disciplinary hearing and possible sanctions.

Wright, D-Texas, has been under investigation since June on allegations he improperly used his office for financial gain and wrongly used his position to lobby federal officials on behalf of Texas interests.

Ethics committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said Phelan still has to review mounds of information collected in the investigation and write a final report. The panel then can vote to release the report, or use parts of it in writing its own conclusions, Dixon said.

Phelan would not speculate as to when the report would be completed, but added: "I don't think it's going to take months."

Pickering Helped Get Donation

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Thomas R. Pickering, President-elect George Bush's choice to be U.N. ambassador, assisted in arranging a secret donation of more than $1 million worth of military equipment to the Nicaraguan contras through Oliver L. North at a time when the government was prohibited by Congress from aiding the rebels, according to testimony Pickering gave the congressional Iran-Contra committees.

Pickering, then U.S. ambassador in El Salvador, said that in December 1984 or early 1985 he was given a list of weapons and support equipment from an individual representing a private group of Nicaraguan exiles and others who had a problem arranging delivery to the Contras because the arms were located in an unnamed country and had to be shipped by sea.

Instead of reporting the situation to the State Department, Pickering testified that he carried the document on his next trip to Washington, called North and had it delivered to him.

He said he chose North as the person he contacted in Washington because "I had heard ... that Ollie was actively engaged in either supporting or encouraging private support, and perhaps foreign government support for the Contras in the absence of being able to support them directly under the Boland amendment, and that somewhere along the line I had the impression that people believed this was a legal activity on the part of the (National Security Council)."

Pickering also told the committees during his July 1987 testimony that he did not report his actions to the State Department, which "he normally would have done." At one point he said he was not sure whom he would have talked to in the department and "it was not the kind of thing that I would normally put in a cable ... because it involved a sensitive private operation and not a public one."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told the Iran-Contra committees in his public testimony that he had "no direct knowledge" of North's assistance to the Contras during the time when the Boland amendment prohibited government assistance. Shultz added, however, that he had been told that North "worked very hard to keep up the morale and work with the leaders of the Nicaraguan resistance during the period when they weren't getting any support from the United States."

Bush Inauguration Mixes Metal Detectors, Tradition

By Jill Lawrence
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Some of the trappings of George Bush's inauguration ceremony would look familiar to George Washington: 13-star flags, red bunting and the First Great Seal, which was the newborn nation's emblem from 1782 to 1841.

But metal detectors and 140,000-plus spectators surely would have startled the first president.

Bush's bicentennial inauguration ceremony combines the old and the new, with the most dramatic change the introduction of security precautions for the first time.

The West Front of the Capitol, the site of the Jan. 20 oath-taking, will be accessible only through four gates equipped with metal detectors. All guests will be screened before the ceremony — a prospect that strikes terror in the heart of a key organizer.

"My worst nightmare is that 50,000 people will show up at 11:20 a.m. for a ceremony that starts at 11:30," said Michael Ruehling, executive director of the Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies.

Hoping to attract early arrivals, the congressional committee will open the gates at 9 a.m. and has scheduled a musical interlude by the U.S. Marine Band at 10:30 a.m. "The only thing we're not providing is popcorn," Ruehling said. "I don't know what else we can do, but it does scare me."

The Constitution stipulates that the oath of office must be taken at noon, so latecomers will be out of luck.

Bush will be sworn in against a backdrop of five flags — two from 1789, with stars representing the 13 original states; two from 1889, with 38 stars, and one flag with the current 50 stars.

He'll step onto the platform through an archway festooned with red bunting similar to the bunting draped over the door of Federal Hall in New York when Washington was sworn in for his first term in 1789. The plan is for Bush to take the oath on the same 1767 Bible that Washington used. And all inaugural materials will bear the First Great Seal.

As has become custom, Bush's inauguration ceremony will be more elaborate than the first one 200 years ago. At Federal Hall, Washington simply bowed to his audience, repeated the 35-word oath of office and added, "I swear, so help me God."

This year, music will be provided by the U.S. Marine and Army bands and the Harlan (Ky.) Boys Choir. The Rev. Billy Graham will deliver the invocation and the benediction. Chief Justice William Rehnquist will administer the oath of office to Bush, while Justice Sandra Day O'Connor will swear in the vice president, the congressional committee said.

Inaugural planners are working "to make it a little extra special" in light of the bicentennial, Ruehling said.

The expanded program is designed as a souvenir, with four pages of inaugural history in addition to the schedule of events. In addition, for the first time, the program will name the president and vice president instead of referring to them by their offices, as has always been the case previously.

Hunters Find More Than Deer In The Woods

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Deer hunters found more than whitetails in the woods this season: They "bagged" a murder suspect and found a human skull, a crashing helicopter and a bazooka, officials say.

"We always seem to come up with lots of things during deer week that we aren't really looking for," Allan McGroary, head of the state's environmental police, said Wednesday as the 10-day shotgun deer season ended.

The season began Nov. 28. On the second day, a hunter in northwest Massachusetts found the body of Mark Branch, the suspect in the killing of Greenfield Community College student Sharon Gregory, hanging in a tree a few miles from where his car was found abandoned Oct. 25, said Greenfield Police Chief David McCarthy.

"I was only surprised they didn't find it opening day," McCarthy said. "That area was just saturated with hunters."

He said authorities had searched for Branch's body, "but we just didn't have the manpower."

The helicopter, which otherwise might have taken hours or days to locate, went down Friday over a Boy Scout camp in an isolated section of Russell in southwest Massachusetts, killing the pilot, as four stunned hunters dived for cover.

The skull was turned up by a hunter in the Beartown State Forest in Great Barrington in the state's southwest corner. Judging from its size, the skull was believed to be that of a woman or a child, police Officer Nancy Porter said today, adding that tests on the skull were still being conducted.

The bazooka, which police described as a one-shot disposable model apparently abandoned by Army Reserve or National Guard troops on summer maneuvers, was bagged in the nearby October Mountain State Forest.

Shuttle Damaged But Labeled OK

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The Atlantis returned from its four-day secret space mission more bruised than normal, but the damage is not severe enough to delay its next scheduled launch, NASA says.

Up to 175 thermal tiles were heavily damaged, apparently during lift-off, possibly by something loose hitting the orbiter, said Conrad Nagel, Atlantis' processing director.

"The damage comparatively is significant, but it's not a major concern," he said Wednesday. "We have to understand why we had this damage and keep it from happening again."

Nagel said the damage would be easy to fix and that it would not affect Atlantis' next flight, scheduled for launch April 28 with a spacecraft that is to be dispatched to the planet Venus. Overall, he said, Atlantis returned from its classified military mission on Tuesday in "very clean" shape.

There were only a few minor technical problems during the flight, he said. One entailed a minor malfunction in the shuttle's air conditioning system, causing about a gallon of water to leak into the cabin. The astronauts used a vacuum cleaner to clean it up, Nagel said.

During the flight, the five astronauts inspected and assessed the battered tiles, using a television camera on the end of the ship's 50-foot robot arm, Nagel said.

The shuttle is covered with about 28,000 tiles made of various materials designed to protect it from atmospheric re-entry heat. He said the tile damage posed no threat to the shuttle's return to Earth.

Nagel said the heaviest damage was concentrated in a strip 3-to-4 feet long "down the right hand side, along the line of the fuselage."

One tile in the nose was missing and "it looked like it was popped off by the impact of something," he said.

There was speculation here that a part from the solid fuel booster rockets, the external tank or the orbiter might have fallen off and hit the craft. Nagel said he did not want to speculate.

A small fiberglass panel was missing from one of Atlantis' maneuvering engines, but this probably did not cause the problem, officials said.

Nagel made his comments in an interview from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where he leads a team that is inspecting Atlantis and preparing it for return to the Kennedy Space Center here Tuesday atop a Boeing 747 airliner.

Visitors Receive Personal Gifts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONOLULU — Visitors to the USS Arizona Memorial received a very personal reminder of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor: a single flower and the name of one person killed on that fateful morning 47 years ago.

"We wanted to personalize it for them, so they could think of the loss in terms of one human life, rather than just the huge total number," National Park Service spokesman Mike Stuckey said Wednesday, the anniversary of the attack.

More than 2,400 people were killed and 1,200 wounded on Dec. 7, 1941, the day President Franklin D. Roosevelt said would "live in infamy." The USS Arizona suffered the heaviest losses, with 1,177 fatalities.

"History was to prove these men did not die in vain. ... We have become a symbol of freedom, of democracy and of world leadership," Adm. David E. Jeremiah, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, said at a private Navy service aboard the Arizona memorial.

About 150 people, including survivors, military officials and Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, attended the ceremony aboard the memorial, which spans the sunken hull of the ship.

A minute of silence was observed at 7:55 a.m., the moment the first bombs fell. The silence was broken as National Guard jets roared overhead in "missing man" formation. The ceremony ended with prayers, a 21-gun salute and Marine Corps buglers playing taps.

The Park Service said about 3,000 people attended a simultaneous on-shore ceremony to commemorate the assault that plunged the United States into World War II. About 5,000 others attended programs and lectures throughout the day at the memorial and visitor center.

Government Levies Fines On 29 Airlines

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Security at airport passenger checkpoints is improving, but the government has found enough lapses to levy $1.6 million in fines against 29 airlines.

The Federal Aviation Administration announced the civil penalties Tuesday and also said the detection rate for hidden weapons at the checkpoints has improved significantly during the past year.

The civil penalties ranged from $1,000 against a handful of commuter carriers — the minimum for a single violation — to more than $200,000 apiece against American Airlines, Northwest Airlines and United Airlines for each having more than two dozen violations.

The airlines are responsible for the screening by metal detectors and X-ray machines is normally done by a separate security firm under contract to the air carriers using the airport.

weapons through the checkpoints and were successful 236 times, according to the agency.

As part of a stepped up effort to improve passenger screening at airports, the government began to levy fines against the airlines earlier this year. In September, 32 airlines were fined about $1 million for security lapses in late 1987 and early 1988. Those fines were separate from the penalties announced Wednesday.

Shortcomings at the airport checkpoints came to light in 1987 when during congressional testimony it was learned that more than one in five phony weapons planted by FAA officials failed to be detected at major airports. Then on Dec. 7, 1987 a disgruntled USAir employee smuggled a revolver aboard a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet and began shooting during flight. The plane crashed, killing all 43 aboard.

According to FAA figures, the airlines in 1987 detected only 78.9 percent of the mock weapons being passed through checkpoints by FAA undercover agents. During the first six months of this year the success rate increased to 85.6 percent and during the July-September period it improved to 88.9 percent, the FAA said.

The penalties stemmed from security lapses discovered mostly between April and September of this year when undercover FAA officials attempted to smuggle mock

Cancer

The transplant is conducted in three stages. First, physicians extract approximately a quart of the patient's healthy bone marrow from the pelvic area, the body's largest reservoir of marrow. In some cases, additional marrow is needed depending upon the size of the patient. The hour-long harvesting performed under general anesthesia requires a two-night hospital stay.

Second, the collected marrow is purified and later frozen. The cleansing process makes it possible to separate the marrow's chief components: red and white blood cells, plasma, platelets and fat. After the separation, only white blood cells are saved because they are the key components needed for quick replenishment of the marrow once it is returned to the patient, Lewkow explained.

The white blood cells are placed in a specially-designed bag which looks similar to an ordinary donor blood bag. The bag is stored in a special freezer at a temperature of -320.8 degrees Fahrenheit until ready for return to the patient about 10 days later.

During the interim between the marrow harvest and transplant, the patient receives large doses of chemotherapy to kill cancerous cells and shrink tumors. The treatment, which also kills any bone marrow remaining after the harvest, is given for five consecutive days followed by a two-day respite before the stored marrow is transplanted.

Finally, the stored marrow is returned to the patient during a 30-minute procedure which involves transfusing it through an intravenous passage placed under the collar bone. The procedure is similar to a blood transfusion, Lewkow explained.

Approximately 17 days after the transplant, the bone marrow has almost completely replenished itself, Lewkow said. Within a month after the transplant, oncologists are able to measure the benefit of the high-dose chemotherapy on the cancer.

Lewkow noted that because of the intensity of the chemical therapy, candidates for the transplant must meet specific criteria. They must be younger than age 62, show no signs of severe organ failure, and have exhausted all forms of conventional treatments such as mastectomy, and chemical and radiation therapies.

said they've seen him. It's a mess," Manning said.

Most likely, Wiggins is not OK, Manning said. "I don't think so. If he was, he'd get in touch with somebody. He's just not that type of person."

"When you grow up with somebody and run around with them nearly a lifetime, you just about know what to expect of them," Manning said.

Wiggins had no reason to be in Craven County where his car was found, Manning said, and probably has never been to that area before.

Miss Wiggins cannot get a handle on the mystery, either. "He got a phone call and left, and we haven't seen him since," she said.

Then there were explosions."

The witness, who was not identified by name, said flames engulfed nearby houses and motor vehicles. The witness said he spotted the pilot's parachute hanging from a tree about 30 yards away from the scene.

The crash was likely to increase public opposition to low-level military training flights over West Germany. That opposition grew in August when Italian stunt planes collided and crashed into a crowd of spectators at an air show at the U.S. Air Force Base in Ramstein, killing 70 people.

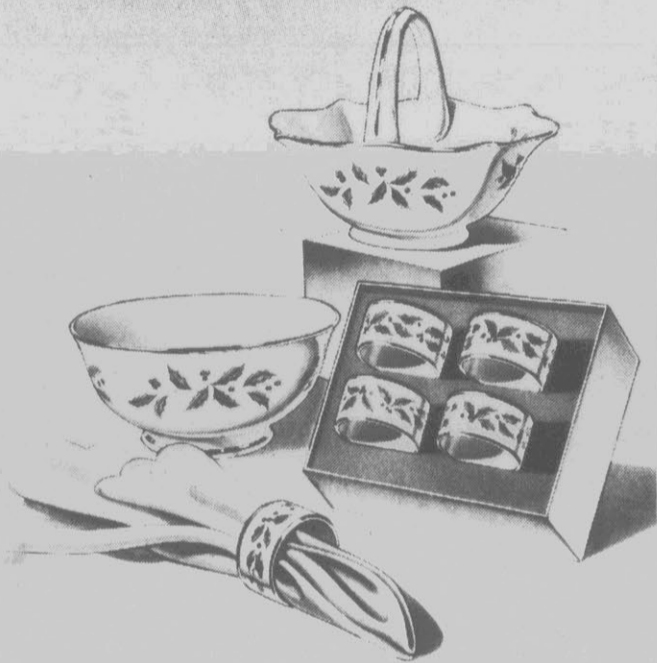

Since March 31, there have been 12 military air crashes in West Germany.

Hundreds of rescue workers rushed to the scene of panic and chaos in Remscheid, located near Duesseldorf in the densely populated industrial area. Local officials said they believed ammunition on the jet exploded on impact.

The state government of North Rhine-Westphalia said the aircraft was loaded with ammunition, which exploded on impact.

Deny Hearing, Put Off Aging

That Philosophy Costs Many A Fuller, More Youthful Life

By David Larsen
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — The elderly woman at the coffee shop counter ordered a roll.

"Would you like me to heat it for you?" the waiter asked. And then wondered at the puzzled look he got in return.

What the customer thought she had heard, relates Dr. John W. House, was: "Would you like me to eat it for you?"

House, president of the nationally recognized House Ear Institute here, is accustomed to such stories. He doesn't find them funny because, he said, they are indicative of a sad fact in the United States: Loss of hearing is America's largest, yet least recognized, physical ailment in people of all ages — but most particularly among the elderly.

"About one in three people age 60 or older have some degree of hearing impairment," House estimated.

And, he pointed out, while most elderly people don't think twice about taking medication to regulate blood pressure or getting glasses to improve their eyesight, many will head for their graves in a state of deafness rather than be seen wearing a hearing aid.

"It may boil down to the feeling that as long as one can practice denial of hearing loss, one can deny aging," House said.

This false preservation of pride, however, can result in devastating isolation and withdrawal for some elderly. "The person, for example, may stop going to church because he or she can't hear the sermon, or can't talk with fellow churchgoers," the otologist said. "The person may stop going to social activities."

Such a reaction isn't new. When the 19th-Century Spanish painter Goya found himself going deaf at age 70, he retired to his villa, where he executed somber paintings of macabre subjects on his walls.

President Reagan, however, faced the problem a different way. House's most famous patient agreed five years ago, at the age of 72, to begin wearing a hearing aid for a loss triggered by a work-related accident.

Once, during the making of a film, a .38-caliber blank was fired near actor Reagan's right ear, resulting in a gradual deterioration in his hearing.

When the president was seen in public wearing a hearing aid, "sales nationally for that year went up 75 percent over the previous year," House said.

And two years later, this time because of hearing loss in the other ear from what House said was related to aging, Reagan agreed to wear another hearing aid in his other ear to achieve balance.

The trend over the last five years or so, House said, is to have a hearing aid in each ear, rather than just in one: "You don't see too many people wearing just one eyeglass. You need two hearing aids not only to help determine the direction of sound, but also because a pair of them helps tremendously in filtering out unwanted sounds."

So, given the fact that such other notables as Surgeon General C. Everett Koop and actors Richard Thomas, Jimmy Stewart and Eddie Albert are among the estimated 4 million Americans who wear hearing aids, why the not-me attitude among so many, especially the elderly?

One answer came from Washington, at Gallaudet University, the only liberal arts university in the world for the hearing-impaired.

Carol S. Cober, the coordinator of the National Academy there, said by phone that the resistance to admitting to having a hearing problem may result from the fact that, in the United States, there is a stigma about growing older.

"Some say they might as well get a rocking chair and sit on the front porch, because they would assuredly be certified as old," House added. "You hear someone 80 years old say, 'I'm not old enough for a hearing aid.'"

"And because hearing loss affects communication, there may be an implication that it is a disability which also affects intelligence," Cober said. "In other words, deaf and dumb is sometimes interpreted as deaf and stupid."

"With the elderly, hearing loss is usually progressive — it grows over time, as opposed to sudden deafness which may have been caused by an accident, high fever, medications."

"Therefore, since the change occurs subtly, the person often will blame others — perhaps feel someone is mumbling too much. And frequently that other person is the spouse."

Cober is ELDERHOSTEL coordinator at the Gallaudet site. This is a program for people age 60 or older, many of them hearing-impaired, who spend a week living on a campus, taking courses such as "Adjustment to Hearing Loss."

"Many people in these programs mention the marital stress that the resultant communication problem can cause," Cober said. "The wife, for instance, may be in the kitchen, wanting to know if her husband wants potatoes with the meal. But to find out, she has to walk to the living room and get into his visual field. He can't hear her question."

An elderly person's stubborn refusal to admit to the problem also may be because "to some, a hearing aid isn't an acceptable prosthesis," said Dr. William McFarland, audiologist with the House Institute. "Eyeglasses are acceptable because they can be stylish. A hearing aid has no cosmetic appeal."

One increasingly popular but little-publicized solution — even being used as a supplementary help by some who already wear hearing aids — is rooted in the 16th Century. But only now has it become trendy to say: Read my lips.

For more than a quarter of a century now, at the Pasadena, Calif., Senior Center, Francine Hokin Katz has held forth on the fine art of being able to determine what a person is saying by watching the mouth, then figuring out what words are being formed.

On this particular Wednesday morning at the center, 30 students, mostly seniors, some wearing hearing aids, were seated on folding chairs.

Katz began the two-hour drill by taking them through an eye ball that involved writing down their guesses on the order in which she silently mouthed the words "fun-bun-sun" and "those-chose-rose."

"During a conversation, a lot of it is a guessing game," 72-year-old Florence Everett of Pasadena said during a break. "And if you guess wrong, your answer can draw a strange look."

Another student, 74-year-old Hal Cleworth of Temple City, graded television personalities on the readability of their lips: "Barbara Walters is difficult — a wonderful interviewer, but she hardly ever moves her lips. Mary Hart of 'Entertainment Tonight' is better than anyone."

Also, of course, the speaker must be facing the other person, and be in a lighted area.

But while lip reading can have difficulties, other solutions for the hearing impaired have drawbacks of their own:

Sign language, though most commonly used by the congenitally deaf or those who became deaf before developing a language, can be an alternative. But, as Gallaudet points out in a booklet, "many deafened adults reject using sign language because their relatives, friends and colleagues do not use it. But sign language provides the opportunity for richer, easier communication with those who do use it."

Added Katz: "Also, if you have been trained to use it, as you get older it may be harder to form your fingers into signs, because of arthritis."

Another alternative is for the hearing-impaired person to get a hearing dog. A program developed by the San Francisco SPCA, provides dogs trained to alert an individual to specific sounds, such as a door bell, a baby's cry, a smoke alarm. The program has been highly successful — but obviously is only useful for a hearing-impaired person living in a dwelling where a dog is permitted.

Reading Lips

Francine Katz, right, teaches lip reading to older people such as Helen Shaw, 91. Loss of hearing is America's largest, yet least recognized physical ailment in people of all ages.

All of the above also have things going for them. As one lip reader said: "At least I can go to the theater now — I just have to make sure I sit up front enough so that I can make out the actor's lips."

He and his fellow practitioners sometimes say they can't hear a thing without their glasses.

Double-Ring Ceremony Joins Piner-Lilley Pair

Harriet Ann Lilley and Rexford Eugene Piner Jr., both of Greenville, were united in marriage Nov. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Macedonia Christian Church. The Rev. Delbert D. Garrison performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John W. Lilley and the late Mr. Lilley, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Revels, all of Williamston. The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Rexford Eugene Piner Sr. of Greenville and the late Dr. Piner.

Mavis Revels Benson of Richmond, Va., aunt of the bride, was pianist and Claudia Lilley, Laurence E. Lilley Jr. and Sara Margaret Lilley were vocalists.

Escorted by her uncle, Billy S. Revels, the bride wore an ivory floor-length gown accented with re-embroidered alencon lace, pearls, sequins and bugle beads. The fitted bodice featured a Victorian neckline with an illusion yoke, leg o' mutton sleeves and basque waistline. A butterfly bow with streamers adorned the back. The bouffant skirt flowed into a cathedral train edged with garlands of scalloped alencon lace. Her waltz-length veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of silk flowers interspersed with pearl sprays and leaves. She carried a bouquet of silk ivory roses, orchids and lilacs with sprays of pearls and iridescents.

The maid of honor was Nancy J. Lilley of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Martha Brown Lilley of Spring Hope, sister-in-law of the bride, and Annel West of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, John Kevin Piner of Greenville. Ushers included Eason Lilley of Spring Hope, brother of the bride, Pete West of Winterville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Randy Hyman and Philip Spring, both of Greenville.

Mrs. Billy Revels of Williamston directed the wedding. Celia Singleton and Patti Andrews presided at the register.

Honorary attendants were Cynthia Williams, Elena Carazo, Anna Winn Beaman, Becky Piner and Kim Burgess.

MRS. PINER

The bride attended East Carolina University and Pitt Community College. She is employed by Hollis and Watson Eye Care Center in Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is employed by Bland and Newsome, Inc.

The couple is living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Washington, D.C.

A reception was given in the church fellowship hall by the bride's family. An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's mother.

Say Goodbye To Shirley And Hello To Counselor

Dear Abby: I have been married to "Bob" for eight years. We have had our ups and downs like most married couples, but generally speaking we have a strong marriage with very good communication.

Last summer I got reacquainted with a longtime girlfriend of mine — I'll call her Shirley. She had recently divorced and was depressed. We started inviting her to our place for weekends. She snapped out of her depression and we enjoyed her company. Now the problem: Bob recently confessed to me that he has fallen deeply in love with Shirley. Shirley told me she feels terrible about it and she does not return his feelings.

Bob wants to continue inviting Shirley to our place. At first I thought I could do it, but the truth is it hurts too much. Bob says he still loves me, but if I deny him the opportunity to see Shirley, he will be miserable. So what do I do? Invite her and tolerate the pain? Or stop inviting her and have to deal with a miserable husband? Or should I tell him to leave me and the kids until he's over her? — Upset And Confused

Dear Upset: Don't invite Shirley anymore. But do invite your husband to join you in a visit to a marriage counselor. He is behaving like a lovesick high school boy. You are not his mother, you are his wife, and if you want your marriage to survive, you will insist that he go for counseling. If you tell him to "leave until he is over Shirley," your marriage may be over first.

Dear Abby: My wife, age 70 and 65 pounds overweight, has just been diagnosed as a borderline diabetic, and she is delighted! It seems that she either read somewhere or overheard that diabetics have to eat whatever they feel like eating or they risk going into a diabetic coma. What a bonanza for the cake and doughnut market!

I asked her doctor about this, and he wagged his finger in my face and said sternly: "You had better not interfere with your wife's diet. She knows what she has to do!"

It's always puzzled me that certain individuals are able to rationalize carrying a dangerous load of weight, but this diabetic thing is a real "doozie." — Heavy Problem In Santa Ana

Dear Heavy: Either your wife's physician didn't hear you or he didn't understand you when you told him that your wife was of the opinion that she could eat whatever she felt like eating to prevent going into a diabetic coma.

According to the American Diabetic Association, if a diabetic allows his blood sugar to fall below a certain level, he should eat something (preferably something high in carbohydrates) to prevent having a low blood sugar reaction — but that is a far cry from eating "whatever they want" and it does not give diabetics permission to stuff themselves with sweets. Should a low blood sugar reaction occur, a diabetic will need a small amount of concentrated sugar — a 4- to 6-ounce glass of orange juice will do.

Confidential To You: Of all the empty phrases uttered, my vote for the emptiest is, "If there is anything I can do for you, please let me know."

The Secret To Stars' Successful Dieting Is Found In Motivation

All of us who worship at the Shrine of Perpetual Lettuce have new role models: Dolly, Liz and Oprah. All three superstars have shrunk to their birth weight right before our eyes.

Never has there been such a non-feeding frenzy as there has been over the past few weeks. Rummaging through my closet, I discovered a pair of shorts that I wore in gym class when I was 15. I told myself that by Easter, I would be wearing those gym shorts again.

I am lying. If I ever use those gym shorts for anything again, it will be to dust the piano legs. What is the secret to dieting success? Simple. Motivation.

All three of these women were

At Wits End

highly motivated. Dolly Parton had a million-dollar TV show to launch. Liz Taylor was saying "no" to everything and added food to her list, and Oprah Winfrey had sweeps coming up and lusted for a 44 percent share.

I looked on my calendar. The only thing I have coming up is a dental appointment in February. Ordinary people just don't have their kind of motivation.

Give me an award that isn't given over the phone or posthumously, and we'll talk. Tell me I'm going to meet an old boyfriend at a college reunion, and I'll make plans to starve. Invite me to sing at the White House where a camera may take me from the side, and solid food will never touch my lips.

When I go on a diet, the world is not watching. Columnists do not breathlessly report my losses. The stock market does not get nervous when I add a pound, and the tabloids don't stalk me. For me, dieting is between the bowl of mixed greens with no dressing and me! It's lonely.

I'm not taking anything away from the sheer discipline these women share. They suffer the same hunger pangs, the same dieters' breath, the same slings and arrows from jealous people around them. (I'd pay someone to tell me, "You've gone too far. You look terrible!")

I just have to believe in my heart that all three have discovered a secret elixir that will melt the pounds as they sleep or that Italian ice will trigger some chemical reaction that will reduce bulges.

Here's something I read the other day: "Reduce your intake of food and you will reduce your weight. Unless you do this, you stay right where you are. No dope, medicine or chemical can do it. Benefits from exercise must be kept up continuously year in and year out."

It was a story appearing in a journal published 56 years ago.

Motivation! Maybe if Robert Redford came to Phoenix to run a 2K, I'd get out the old gym shorts.

Ribbons, Wrapping Please Baby Most

NEW YORK (AP) — Families should splurge on the wrappings and skimp on the gifts for a baby's first Christmas or Hanukkah, says Annette Axtmann, an expert on infants.

"Babies are more interested in ribbons and bows and pretty paper than what is actually in most packages," says Axtmann, director of the Center for Infants and Parents at Teachers College, Columbia University. "What is important for a baby is participation in the joy of holiday giving."

Babies should be included in unwrapping presents for themselves and other family members. "Let them tear the paper and drag the ribbons on the floor," Axtmann says.

"While the 5-month-old will enjoy simply watching the lights on a tree or a twirling ornament, many 8-month-olds can use a large gift box as support when trying to stand," the professor says.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned downward today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 8.18 to 2,145.45 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 5 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 427 up, 697 down and 532 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 17.40 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

American Telephone & Telegraph rose 1/8 to 29 1/2 and United Telecommunications climbed 1/2 to 45 1/4. The federal government awarded large contracts for a new telephone system to AT&T and U.S. Sprint, which is partly owned by Unitel.

Texaco gained 3/8 to 52 amid continuing speculation that financier Carl Icahn might be planning to lead a new bid to gain control of the company.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .52 to 155.62. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .50 at 297.27.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.27 to 2,153.63, bringing its gain since the start of the week to 61.35 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 4 to 3 on the NYSE, with 818 up, 613 down and 533 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 148.36 million shares, against 158.34 million in the previous session.

Thousands Killed

Army Gen. V.M. Arkhipov told the official news agency Tass that soldiers were setting up tent cities today for evacuees.

Komsomolskaya Pravda reported from Leninakan, a city of 250,000 about 30 miles from the epicenter, that preliminary reports indicated "tens of thousands of people became victims of the earthquake."

Albert Khachatryan of the Armenian Ministry of Health said in a telephone interview that 2,000 injured people had been brought to the Armenian capital of Yerevan from Leninakan, Kirovakan and Spitak, and more were expected.

Nora Milikyan, an editor of the official Armenian news agency Armenpress, said in a telephone interview from Yerevan that "all the injured are being brought to Yerevan. The hospitals are completely full."

"The worst place was Spitak. The entire town was destroyed — the hospitals and the schools and the factories. All the houses were destroyed. There is nothing left there," she said.

The area's population has risen markedly in recent weeks as settlers flee ethnic strife between Armenians and Azerbaijanis, the government newspaper Izvestia said.

About 180,000 refugees reportedly have fled across the border between their two republics the last three weeks.

The official Komsomolskaya Pravda newspaper said today that soldiers working under spotlights pulled the bodies of more than 50 children from a school in Leninakan, which is on the Soviet-Turkish border.

Gennady I. Gerasimov, the Foreign Ministry spokesman, said in New York: "A small village has practically disappeared from the face of the earth." He did not identify it.

A commission of the ruling Communist Party Politburo, led by Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov and Defense Minister Dmitri T. Yazov, arrived in Yerevan this morning to supervise rescue operations.

Komsomolskaya Pravda said dozens of surgeons were on their way to the city to help with the injured.

Crowds without a place to live huddled around bonfires throughout the city to keep warm.

Gamecocks Hold Off Pirates' Rally

The Associated Press

South Carolina's Jeff Roulston gets past ECU's Jeff Kelly and Gus Hill Wednesday night.

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Trailing by as much as 14 points, East Carolina's Pirates battled back, tied the game up and then ran out of gas as South Carolina held on for a 75-67 basketball victory Wednesday night.

The Pirates, down 39-25, with 4:27 left in the first half, rallied to within three by halftime and kept the battle close throughout much of the second half thanks to the play of Blue Edwards.

Edwards, who finished with a game-high 31 points, closed the gap to two with 7:57 left to play and Kenny Murphy added two free throws at the 7:34 mark to knot the game at 63-63.

But from there on out, the Pirates failed to connect on a field goal and made only four of six free throw attempts while South Carolina was pulling back out to as much as an eight-point lead.

From the point of the tie, East Carolina saw the Gamecocks score eight in a row over a 5:30 period while the Pirates were going scoreless. After Murphy's shot, South Carolina's Barry Manning hit two straight jumpers from about 15 feet to push the Gamecocks back into the lead, 67-63.

John Hudson and Terry Dozier each added two free throws to run the lead out to 71-63 with 1:52 remaining.

Over that time period, the Pirates couldn't buy a point. Edwards had two baskets in a row spin out of the nets and Murphy launched a three-pointer that also went in and came back out. Overall, the Pirates missed six straight shots and suffered four turnovers before Brooks Bryant broke the ice with 1:31 left, hitting the first of two free throws.

Edwards, meanwhile, drew three quick fouls to leave the game with his fifth with 1:52 to go, and Murphy, who stayed in foul trouble all night, left with 20 seconds to go.

Foul trouble kept the Pirates off balance much of the evening. Murphy got only 19 minutes of playing time while Gus Hill had but 14. Bryant, a freshman, played a total of 22 minutes, by far his longest time of the year.

South Carolina, in return, used mainly its starting five. The Gamecocks used but nine players overall and three of them played less than 10 minutes each.

"It wasn't the prettiest game, but we did a good job," said South Carolina coach George Felton, who once served as an ECU assistant. "We let it trickle away from us but held on. I have to compliment East Carolina; they played hard and they're well-coached."

"We knew it would be a tough game and I'm glad it was. It will help us get ready for some of our upcoming games."

Felton said that he found areas in which the Gamecocks could improve upon. "We did the things we had to do. When we move the ball, we're as good as anyone in the country," he said.

East Carolina's Mike Steele said his team played hard, but missed out on an opportunity to pull off an upset.

"We caught South Carolina at a great time," he said. "They'd just beaten Clemson and Maryland and have tough games with Tennessee and Ohio State ahead of them. There was no way that they were looking at us."

"The last eight or nine minutes, we had a lot of baskets that went in and came back out. Our plan was to keep close until the last 10 minutes and then have a chance to win, and we did just that."

Steele said that when Edwards began to warm up, the Pirates switched their defenses several times and that helped to throw the Gamecocks off balance and allowed ECU to rally.

"He had 31 points and had several shots that should have gone in for him," Steele said. "He was aggressive and he took it to them. He played a solid game and is getting better every game."

Steele was also pleased with the Pirates' board work. South Carolina held a 39-34 advantage, but generally had a five-inch advantage in the forecourt. "With the size advantage they had, I thought it would be worse," Steele added.

As to the final seven and a half minute drought in field goals, Steele

Lebo, Madden Pace Heels Past Stubborn Vanderbilt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina coach Dean Smith said his eighth-ranked Tar Heels could become unstoppable when injured star J.R. Reid returns.

"I'm ecstatic about our record," said Smith after Jeff Lebo scored 25 points and Kevin Madden added 20 to lead North Carolina to an 89-77 victory over Vanderbilt on Wednesday night. "I never dreamed it would be this way even with J.R."

North Carolina recorded its seventh victory in eight tries, while Vanderbilt fell to 2-4.

Smith said Reid, who underwent surgery for a stress fracture in his foot, has started some half-speed running and should be back to join his streaking team by Christmas.

Lebo scored 19 of his points in the first half, hitting four 3-pointers in the first nine minutes, as the Tar Heels scored the game's first 15 points and led by as many as 23.

Many of North Carolina's points came off of 14 first-half turnovers by Vanderbilt.

"They were very confused," Lebo said. "I'm sure they scouted us and worked against the press in practice, but we were able to force them into turnovers."

"That's coaching," said Vanderbilt coach C.M. Newton. "My team wasn't prepared for what they saw and we didn't do a good job of looking at the press. We scouted them and knew what to expect but we just didn't execute."

But Vanderbilt rallied behind center Frank Kornet to cut the lead to 46-39 at intermission.

North Carolina started slow in the second half and Vanderbilt pulled to 55-50 on a Barry Booker steal and slam. But a King Rice bank shot and a three-point play by Steve Bucknall gave North Carolina a 10-point lead.

The Tar Heels stretched that margin to 14 points on several occasions before Vanderbilt pulled to 72-64 at the 7:55 mark on a pair of Booker free throws.

"Certainly I didn't expect our early onslaught to continue against a well-coached Vanderbilt team. But I was disappointed we didn't handle it (the big lead) better," Smith said.

Madden, who hit 15 second-half points, scored four to key a late 9-0 North Carolina run that put the Tar Heels ahead 81-64 with 4:25 left to put the contest out of reach.

Vanderbilt defeated North Carolina last season, but Newton said this year's Tar Heel team is much different.

"Last year, they just didn't have the experience at this stage of the season. Rice, Madden have been through the wars now. There are no rookies out there," Newton said.

Scott Williams added 13 points and 10 rebounds for North Carolina. Eric Reid scored 17 points to lead Vanderbilt, while Kornet had 16.

Reid's Foot Progressing On Schedule

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — X-rays taken Tuesday indicate that J.R. Reid's recovery from foot surgery remains on schedule, the orthopedic surgeon for the North Carolina basketball team says.

"Everything looks fine," said Dr. Timothy Taft. "J.R. is progressing along as we expected him to."

After performing surgery to correct a stress fracture in Reid's left foot Oct. 28, Taft said Reid, an All-American forward, would be out of action for eight weeks. "This is one of those situations that's more determined by the clock than anything else," Taft said after viewing the X-rays. "Basically, we're on schedule."

Taft would not speculate on exactly when Reid would return to the team.

North Carolina has won six of seven games without Reid, losing only to Missouri, 91-81, in the semifinals of the Big Apple NIT.

Rocker Awarded Outland Trophy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Now it can be told — Auburn defensive tackle Tracy Rocker played football illegally. But not to worry — this violation won't mean an NCAA investigation.

The NCAA has no jurisdiction over youth football and that's where Rocker played in an Atlanta YMCA league for 10- and 11-year-olds when he was only 9.

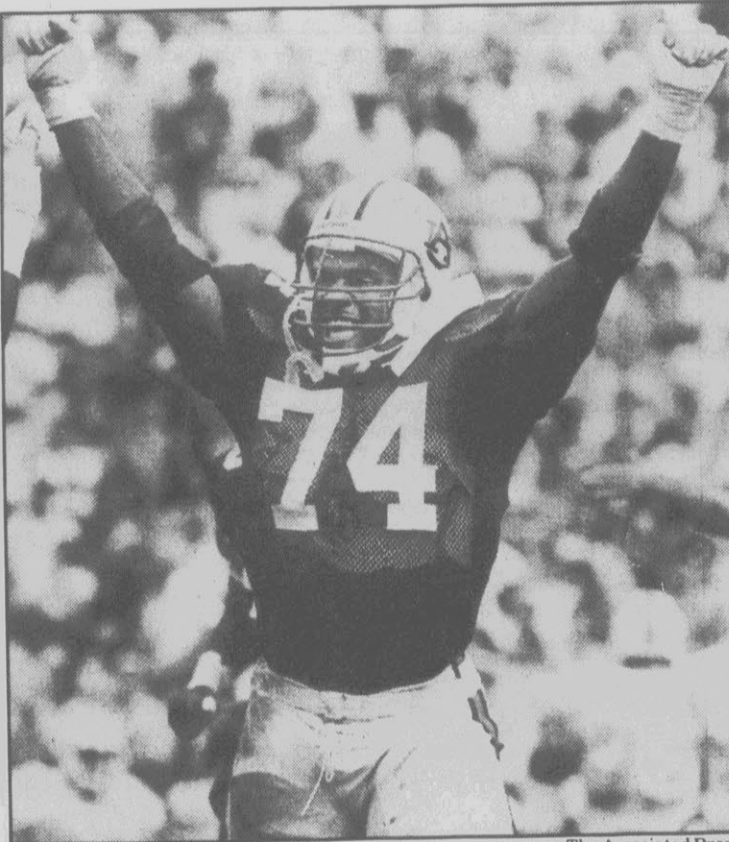

"The only reason they let me play was because of my size," Rocker disclosed Wednesday after he was named winner of the 43rd Outland Trophy, awarded annually by the Football Writers Association of America to the nation's top interior lineman.

These days, Rocker goes 6-foot-3 and 278 pounds, and he is the leader of the nation's best defensive team. He will, as the song goes, rock you.

"My name usually speaks for my play, and that's just the way it's always been," he said. "I've been very consistent and I've been a leader, although it's never been pushed upon me. Everybody looks

Trio Heads Field All-American Squad Is Announced

By Herschel Nissenson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders of Oklahoma State, Outland Trophy winner Tracy Rocker of Auburn and Butkus Award recipient Derrick Thomas of Alabama were named today to a record-breaking Associated Press All-America college football team for 1988.

Sanders, Oklahoma State's junior tailback, is joined in the backfield by quarterback Steve Walsh of Miami, Fla., and Texas A&M running back Darren Lewis, both of whom shattered records this season.

The wide receivers are two more record-breakers — Jason Phillips of Houston and Hart Lee Dykes, Sanders' Oklahoma State teammate.

Top-ranked Notre Dame placed three players on the All-America team — offensive tackle Andy Heck, defensive end Frank Stams and linebacker Mike Stonebreaker.

Oklahoma State, Nebraska and Arkansas were the only other schools to be represented by more than one player. Nebraska placed center Jake Young and defensive end Broderick Thomas on the squad while Arkansas had placekicker Kendall Trainor and defensive lineman Wayne Martin.

The rest of the offensive unit consists of tight end Wesley Walls of Mississippi, tackle Tony Mandarich of Michigan State and guards Anthony Phillips of Oklahoma and Mike Utley of Washington State.

Rounding out the defense are down linemen Rocker — selected as the nation's best interior lineman by the Football Writers Association of America — and Mark Messner of Michigan, linebackers Derrick

Lombardi Finalists Await Presentation

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Opponents have spent the season trying to avoid the four Lombardi Award finalists, Nebraska linebacker Broderick Thomas says.

"It's rough on the four players that will be there tonight," Thomas said. "Everyone tries to stay away from these four players."

Linebacker Derrick Thomas of Alabama and defensive tackles Mark Messner of Michigan or Tracy Rocker of Auburn are the other finalists. The award will be presented tonight.

Rocker already has earned the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman and Derrick Thomas earlier won the Dick Butkus Award as the nation's top linebacker.

"These four players have to be disciplined because we're going to be double and triple teams and the ball is going to the other side," Broderick Thomas said. "I've been successful at making plays from the backside."

Rocker was a finalist last year when Ohio State linebacker Chris Spielman won the award.

The trophy is named in honor of Vince Lombardi, the former coach of the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins who died of cancer in 1970.

Lombardi was a member of the Fordham line that was called the "Seven Blocks of Granite." The

Cox Improves Wrestling Record to 4-0

WASHINGTON — A.G. Cox ran its wrestling record to 4-0 for the year with a 70-18 win over P.S. Jones.

Of the 12 matches won by Cox, nine were by pins. Cox pins were recorded by Torrence Smith, Demetrius Lynch, Carter Chapman, Kenrick Ruffin, Matt Leggett, Dexter Moore, Robbie Wilson, Neil Woolard and Brian Harper.

Cox will host West Craven Monday.

Rose' Is 3rd; Dorney Takes 1st Place

RALEIGH — Freshman Diane Dorney took first place in a high school gymnastics meet that saw J.H. Rose finish third in the three-way meet Wednesday.

Dorney, who competes for the Rose gymnastics team although a student at E.B. Aycock Junior High School, won the all-around competition with a 25.15 score. The score was for three events instead of the usual four, however. There was no competition on the uneven bars due to equipment failure.

Dorney won the vault with an 8.95 score and was second in the floor exercises with an 8.7. She finished fifth on the balance beam with a 7.5.

Mary Kegel, a junior, finished fourth in the all-around with a 24.2. She finished fourth in the floor exercises with an 8.3, and was tied for fourth in the vault with an 8.7.

Millbrook, which hosted the meet finished first with a 117.9 score while Broughton was second with a 109.2. Rose was third with a 105.8.

Gill-Merriman Win Carolina's PGA Event

PAWLEYS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hugh Gill of North Myrtle Beach and Jim Merriman of Calabash, N.C., teamed up to shoot a final-round 5-under-par 67 Wednesday to win the 27th annual Carolinas PGA Pro-Pro Championship.

Gill and Merriman finished the three-day tournament with a 17-under-par 199, beating out three teams by 3 strokes. Gill and Merriman pocketed $2,250 each.

Tied for second at 202 were Steve Behr and Terry Florence, both of Isle of Palms, Tommy Price of Hickory, N.C., and David Thore of Greensboro, N.C., and Bob Boyle of Columbia and Bill Lewis of Florence.

Boyle and Lewis had a 67 Wednesday, while Behr and Florence and Price and Thore shot 68s on the par-72, 7,020-yard Heritage Club on Pawleys Island. All three teams earned $1,400 apiece.

A field of 144 teams began the best-ball tournament was cut to 46 after two rounds.

The team of Randy Few of Hartsville and John Cain of Sumter had the best round of the day, firing a 66 to finish 11th.

Shinn Really Is Trying To Take It Easy

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte Hornets principal owner George Shinn, who suffered a mild stroke Nov. 8, is apparently finding it hard to follow his doctor's advice when it comes to taking it easy.

"Doctors told me to take it one step at a time," Shinn said Tuesday, one day after returning to work. "But I'm known to take two steps at a time."

For example, doctors told him to work four hours Monday. He worked six.

"Health-wise, I feel great," said Shinn, 46, at a press conference following a tennis exhibition between Andre Agassi and Ivan Lendl. "Mainly, I just can't do everything I want to yet."

Shinn, an avid jogger, said he was still perplexed about his stroke.

"When you think of a stroke, you think of a heart attack," he said. "For a guy who took care of himself..." he trailed off, shaking his head.

Shinn said he remembers little about his Election Day lapse, except for his lawyer suggesting he go to the hospital.

"I said, 'This is crazy.' I couldn't understand what he meant. Nobody beat me up in the parking garage or anything. I just remember getting weak and feeling a little dizzy."

When he woke up at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, Shinn said he had to ask nurses what had happened.

He learned a small blood vessel had burst in his brain.

"They told me that if it had happened an inch either side, I could have been paralyzed," Shinn said.

The 15-day hospital stay and enforced inactivity at home have been hard on Shinn, who had never been hospitalized and had never missed two straight days of work.

"I hoped that when I went back to work, everything would be in disarray and they wouldn't be able to get by without me," said Shinn. "But they did."

NCHSAA Discusses New Tennis Format

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Flighted state tennis tournaments for men and women and a dual-meet wrestling championship have been approved by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's board of directors.

The tennis format will include individual champions in the No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 singles flights and doubles winners in the No. 1 and No. 2 flights beginning next fall.

A dual-meet wrestling tournament also will be held in 1989-90. A 32-team field will begin the playoffs, which will be held separately from the traditional individual championships.

The team winner in each classification of the individual competition will be the state tournament champion. The winner of the state dual-meet tourney in each classification will be the state champion.

The NCHSAA board, at its winter meeting Wednesday, also approved the realignment of the state's schools into 48 conferences for the 1989-90 school year. The board heard appeals from Murphy and Lee County on Tuesday but did not alter the recommendation of the realignment committee.

The NCHSAA board also voted to lift some restrictions on football scrimmages and to allow North Carolina teams to compete out of the state if no instruction time was missed.

A chemical awareness film, "This Game Is For Keeps," is being sent to every member school, and the NCHSAA is sponsoring a Chemical Awareness Conference next summer.

Jeffries Is Looking To The Present

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler wide receiver Haywood Jeffries would like to get out of the team's future file.

"They call me the future here, and I tell everybody I'm not the future. I'm the present, so I'd like to get off the future stuff," Jeffries said.

Jeffries, a former North Carolina State standout, will get his chance Sunday when he returns to the active roster against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Jeffries suffered through his rookie season last year with a thumb injury and after an outstanding training camp this season has missed all 14 games with an ankle injury.

When wide receiver-punt returner Willie Drewrey suffered a dislocated elbow in Sunday's 37-34 loss to Pittsburgh, Jeffries got his chance to get back on the roster.

"I'm willing and ready to play," said Jeffries.

Congleton Gets PCC Honors

Ricky Congleton has been named as the Player of the Month for Pitt Community College's basketball team.

Congleton hit on 52.6 percent of his shots from the floor and 74.2 percent from the line during the month, averaging 20.4 points a game and 9.6 rebounds.

Michigan Blasts Central Michigan

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charlie Coles, the Central Michigan coach, sounded happy that his team lost to No. 2 Michigan by 46 points.

"I thought Michigan tried to be very, very lenient with us," he said. "They probably could have scored 200 points if they wanted to. Tonight was just a nightmare."

Glen Rice scored 21 points Wednesday night as the No. 2 Wolverines beat Central Michigan 108-62 and increased their record to 7-0.

Michigan coach Bill Frieder sounded even happier than Coles.

"I'm really pleased with this team's play," Frieder said. "It was a credit to our team that they came in here ready to play. It is a sign of character, and the sign of a good team. (Michigan) wants to win every game, and do it right."

Michigan took a 9-0 lead and stretched it to 15-2. After the Chippewas closed to within nine, Michigan went on a 17-2 run for a 34-10 lead with 5:22 remaining in the first half.

In other Top Twenty games, No. 4 Georgetown beat St. Leo 95-62 and No. 11 Missouri beat Tulsa 73-61.

Six players scored in double figures for Michigan. Terry Mills had 19, Loy Vaught 16, Sean Higgins 13, Kirk Taylor 11 and Rumeal Robinson 10.

"I was surprised we won by so much," Frieder said. "But kids learn from this."

"This is not an ordinary Michigan team," Coles said. "You are looking at the best collection of players, other than a great big man, ever assembled on a team."

Jeff Majerle scored 17 points for Central Michigan, 3-2.

No. 4 Georgetown 95, St. Leo 62

Charles Smith scored 13 points and had a school-record 16 assists. Freshman Alonzo Mourning had 11 points, 10 rebounds and a school-record 11 blocked shots, breaking Patrick Ewing's record.

"He's amazing. A heckuva player," Hoyas guard Charles Smith said of Mourning. "He's so good, he may break his own record in the next game."

The Hoyas, 3-0 (all against non-Division I teams), never trailed after wiping out a 5-2 deficit with a 16-0 run in which Mourning blocked four shots. Dwayne Bryant scored six points in the surge and Jaren Jackson had four.

St. Leo, 2-4, cut the margin to 29-21, but Mourning made a 10-foot jumper that started a 23-11 spurt.

Carl Green 26 points for St. Leo.

No. 11 Missouri 73, Tulsa 61

Byron Irvin scored 23 points for the Tigers, 6-2, including 15 in the second half.

Tulsa, 1-3, trailed by 18 points midway through the second half. The Golden Hurricane went on an 11-1 run and closed to within eight. With 5:48 remaining, Irvin scored Missouri's next eight points, all on free throws.

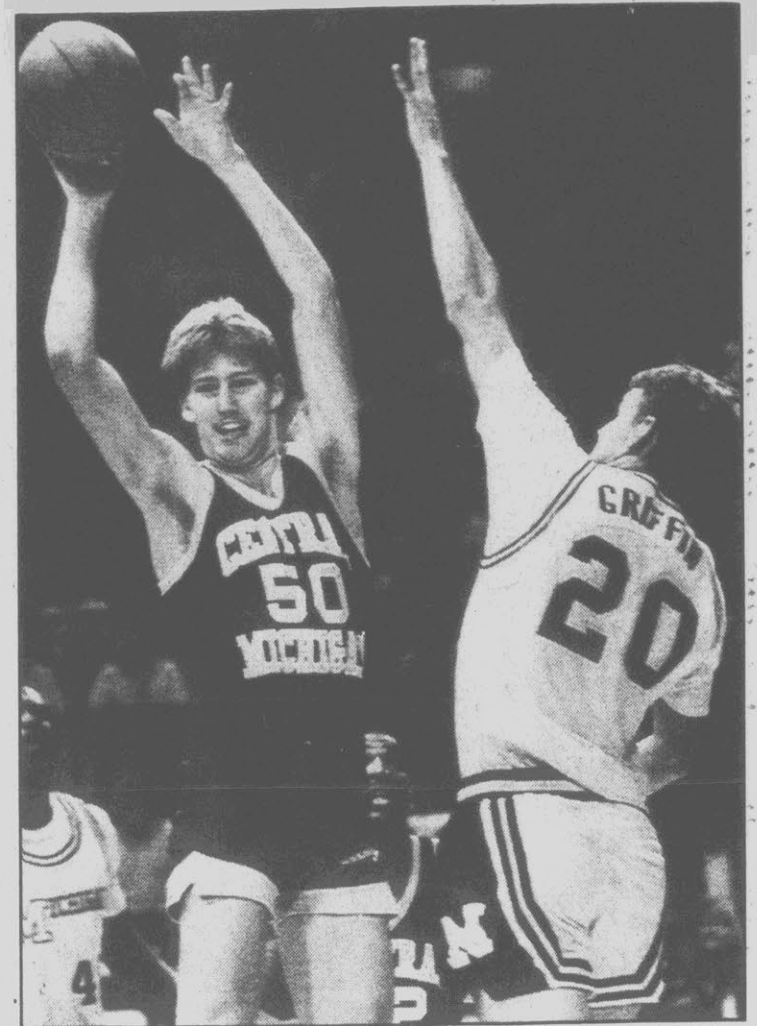

"They were just a little too big for us," Tulsa coach J.D. Barnett said. "We just weren't able to stay with them offensively."

Missouri coach Norm Stewart wasn't happy.

"We didn't seem to have quite the enthusiasm or concentration that we've had, but we played very well in spurts," he said.

Lamont Randolph scored 16 points for Tulsa.

Ryan Set To Change Texas Locales

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Free agent Nolan Ryan, major league baseball's career strikeout king, has abandoned the Houston Astros, but will stay in his beloved Texas.

It'll be a longer commute to work, but the 41-year-old right-hander should be able to afford it. Ryan, who was with the Astros for nine of his 22 major league seasons, signed a one-year contract plus an option year with the Texas Rangers during baseball's annual winter meetings.

Terms of the contract, signed Wednesday, include a $200,000 signing bonus, a $1.6-million salary the first year and $1.4 million in the second. Ryan also has a $200,000-buyout option should Texas decides it doesn't want his services in 1990.

Ryan could receive an additional $350,000 in bonuses in 1989 — $150,000 for winning the Cy Young Award, $50,000 for selection to the All-Star team, $75,000 for winning the playoff Most Valuable Player award, and $50,000 for being the World Series MVP.

With the bonuses, Ryan could earn $3.55 million over two years.

"I'm a die-hard Texan," Ryan said during a news conference at the meetings. "I think the overriding factor was what I felt was best for me and my family."

Ryan's home is at Alvin, Texas, 30 miles south of Houston, where he lives with his wife and two teen-aged sons. He said he would maintain his home there.

Arlington, where the Rangers play, is about 300 miles from Alvin.

"It didn't come down to a monetary decision," said Ryan, who was offered a $1.9-million, one-year deal with an option by the California Angels and $1.7 million for a similar contract with the San Francisco Giants.

"The Rangers showed here at these meetings that they are doing the best they can do to build a good ballclub," Ryan said.

The Rangers, who finished 33½ games behind American League West champion Oakland last season, traded 10 players and received five in return in three separate deals this week. In addition to Ryan, the Rangers picked up Rafael Palmiero, the No. 2 hitter in the National League for the Chicago Cubs last season, and second baseman Julio Franco from the Cleveland Indians.

Ryan, paid $1 million last season when he was 12-11 with a 3.52 earned run average, was offered $1.2 million in a one-year deal by Houston, which basically dropped out when the bidding got higher.

"I'm not surprised by the Astros' position," Ryan said. "I can understand how they do business."

Ryan led the National League in strikeouts in 1988 with 228, the ninth time in his career he has led his league. He has 4,775 in his career, as well as 273-253 record and 3.15 ERA.

Ryan, who will be 42 on Jan. 31, holds or shares 38 major league records, including five no-hitters.

"This is probably one of the greatest days in the history of our franchise," Texas general manager Tom Grieve said. "He's a Texan and we're proud he chose us over the other organizations that were bidding for him."

Originally signed by the New York Mets in 1965, Ryan was traded to California in December 1971. He signed as a free agent with Houston in November 1979.

He had a 106-94 record and a club-record 1,866 strikeouts for Houston.

Houston will receive Texas' second-round selection in the 1989 June amateur draft and a supplemental selection at the end of the first round because Ryan is a Type A free agent.

Japanese Invasion Baseball Meetings Attract Guests

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — In every nook and cranny at baseball's winter meetings, someone from Japan is watching.

There are representatives from all 12 Japanese pro teams following the major leaguers. And they're being followed by five network television crews from Japan and two dozen reporters.

All to see which Americans might soon be turning Japanese.

"This is very interesting," said Kazuo Ito of the Pacific League. There are no winter meetings there and Ito was asked by the Japanese baseball commissioner to see how the Americans do it.

"Our commissioner intends to have winter meetings in a few years," Ito said.

So far, this has been a productive week for the Japanese. Willie Upshaw, Cecil Fielder and minor leaguer Todd Brown have been lured overseas and Mike Diaz and Lee Tunnell might get the yen to go.

Bill Gullickson, who pitched in Japan last season, is leaning toward returning and there is speculation that Franklin Stubbs might go, too.

"I think it's becoming a little of a concern over here," said former major leaguer Leon Lee, who played in Japan for several years and now helps the Yakult Swallows identify potential players.

The Japanese teams always paid a lot of attention to American affairs, but that interest has reached an all-time high this year with bigger delegations than ever.

"It used to be that Japan was a last option for major league players," said former big leaguer Chris Arnold, who negotiated a two-year, $2.5 million contract for Upshaw. "Now, it's a viable alternative."

The monetary situation is making Japan even more attractive.

"The currency is very strong now against the dollar and big salaries can be offered," Lee said. "The Japanese teams are owned by big companies who don't mind paying a lot of money. They want to brag about spending $22 million for someone."

It used to be that only old, washed-up major leaguers went to Japan. Reggie Smith and Joe Pepitone were among them, but the moves by Bob Horner and Gullickson to go over signaled a new era.

Now, the Japanese teams have upped the stakes and they think nothing of pursuing big stars in their prime, such as Orel Hershiser.

But the Japanese cannot get everyone they want. Many times, they can't even talk to them.

Roanoke Takes Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School held off a second-half Chocowinity rally to claim a 63-55 basketball victory Wednesday night.

Roanoke gained a 16-12 lead in the first period and expanded that to 40-21 by intermission. The Indians rallied in the third quarter, cutting the lead back to 52-43, but were unable to carry through.

Eric Williams led Roanoke with 26 points while Demetrius Crandall added 10. Chocowinity was led by Dail Garrett with 26 and John Perry with 12.

In the girls' game, Chocowinity inched past Roanoke, 44-40. Roanoke held a 13-11 lead after the first quarter and held on for a 25-23 halftime lead. Chocowinity rallied in the third period to push ahead, 36-31 and held off Roanoke in the final quarter.

Chrylene Myers led Chocowinity with 19 while Kim Coffey had 10. Joyce Outlaw led Roanoke with 21.

Chocowinity travels to Jamesville on Friday while Roanoke is idle until Dec. 16 when it travels to North Pitt.

Detroit Continues To Dominate Bulls

By Bill Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michael Jordan's list of teams he would rather not face has to include the Detroit Pistons.

The Pistons eliminated Jordan and the Chicago Bulls by winning four of five games in the Eastern Conference playoffs last spring, and Detroit has continued that dominance so far this season.

On Wednesday night, the Pistons beat Chicago 102-89, their second easy victory over the Bulls this season, and held Jordan to 18 points on 4-for-16 shooting. That broke his string of consecutive games with at least 20 points at 72, the third-longest such streak in NBA history.

"I can't get down about myself. I know I can't be perfect," said Jordan, who was averaging 36.4. "I've been shooting the ball so well. I'm entitled to a bad night, I hope."

Joe Dumars, who guarded the taller Jordan most of the game, said it took a team effort to keep Jordan from getting his usual quota.

"I had a lot of help," Dumars said. "Every team tries to deny Jordan the ball."

"We all understand what we are going to face when we go against Michael Jordan," Detroit's Isiah Thomas said.

Wilt Chamberlain has the NBA's longest streaks of 126 and 92 consecutive 20-point games. The last time Jordan scored under 20 points was a 17-point performance against Indiana on Dec. 26, 1987.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Atlanta 106, Boston 103; Philadelphia 134, Denver 109; Sacramento 96, Miami 94; Indiana 129, Portland 120; Dallas 102, Seattle 98; Utah 111, Washington 94, and Los Angeles Lakers 125, Phoenix 111.

Adrian Dantley scored 31 points for Detroit against Chicago, but it was the Pistons' defense on Jordan that decided the game.

But Jordan said the Pistons didn't do anything special to stop him.

"They played me the same way they always have, nothing really different, nothing spectacular," he said.

Dantley scored 14 points in the final period, including a three-point play during a 6-0 spurt that pushed the Pistons' lead to 96-83 with three minutes left.

"We cannot be on our heels playing Dantley," Chicago coach Doug Collins said. "Until we can step up and meet that challenge, we are going to have a rough time beating this team because their money play is to go to him in isolation and force you to double-team."

Detroit never trailed after a 3-point basket by Thomas gave the Pistons a 49-46 lead with 20 seconds left until halftime.

Thomas scored 25 points for Detroit, while Sam Vincent scored 20 to lead the Bulls.

Kings 96, Heat 94
Miami's record fell to 0-14, one short of the record at the start of an NBA season, and Sacramento won its first road game in seven tries.

Kenny Smith made three straight breakaway layups to cap a Kings comeback from an 11-point deficit with less than 10 minutes remaining and then hit two free throws with four seconds left.

The Heat's Jon Sundvold hit a shot from the corner that he released just after the buzzer, negating an overtime. Sundvold led Miami with 15 points and Derek Smith had 22 for Sacramento.

The Heat's losing streak is the fourth-longest ever at the start of a season. Denver in 1949, the expansion Cleveland Cavaliers in 1970 and Philadelphia in 1972 lost their first 15 games. Miami's next game is Friday at home against Denver.

Lakers 125, Suns 111

Los Angeles won its sixth straight and handed Phoenix its first loss in five games as Magic Johnson recorded his fourth "triple-double" of the season and Byron Scott scored 27 points on 12-for-17 shooting.

Johnson had 19 points, 12 rebounds and 18 assists without playing any of the fourth quarter, which started with the Lakers ahead 105-80.

After Phoenix Dan Majerle's layup pulled rookie within one point with 6:35 left in the first half, Johnson scored seven points during a 16-4 spurt that put the Lakers ahead 62-49. A 23-8 spurt in the final minutes of the third quarter iced the game for the Lakers.

Tom Chambers, who had 19 first-half points for Phoenix, finished with 25, while Kevin Johnson had 17 assists for the Suns.

76ers 134, Nuggets 109
Philadelphia took over first place in the Atlantic Division as Charles Barkley had 29 points and 14 rebounds against Denver.

The 76ers held a 65-53 lead at halftime, despite 20 points by the Nuggets' Michael Adams. After Adams opened the second half with a 3-pointer, the Sixers followed with a 12-0 spurt for a 77-56 lead.

Denver got no closer than 14 after that.

Adams had 23 points and made three 3-point shots, extending his NBA record to 61 consecutive games in which he has hit at least one.

Philadelphia set a club record with 45 assists, with David Wingate collecting a career-high 15.

Hawks 106, Celtics 103
Atlanta extended its winning streak to six and snapped an eight-game losing streak at Boston Garden behind Moses Malone's season-high 27 points and 14 rebounds.

The Hawks erupted from an 83-83 tie with a 20-9 run, giving them a 103-92 lead with 2:43 left.

But Boston battled back by scoring the next eight points, cutting the margin to 103-100 on Kevin McHale's free throw with 24 seconds left. Malone's three free throws in the last 10 seconds kept Atlanta in front.

The Celtics were led by Robert Parish with a season-high 29 points and 18 rebounds, and McHale had 23 points.

Mavericks 102, SuperSonics 98

Dallas, which had lost three straight at home, ended a seven-game homestand with a victory over Seattle as Derek Harper scored 31 points, including a go-ahead 3-pointer with 1:48 remaining.

Harper's 3-point shot boosted the Mavericks into a 98-96 advantage, keying a 9-0 Dallas run.

He added a layup with 30 seconds left to give Dallas a 100-96 lead before Derrick McKey's basket with 26 seconds to play got Seattle within two. The SuperSonics went 3:39 without scoring before McKey's field goal.

Detlef Schrempf's free throw gave the Mavericks a 101-98 lead, but Seattle's Russ Schoene stepped out of bounds with 15 seconds to play.

Rolando Blackman added 27 points for Dallas and Dale Ellis finished with 26 points for the Sonics.

Jazz 111, Bullets 94

Karl Malone scored 34 points, including nine during a 12-2 spurt early in the second half, lifting Utah past Washington.

Malone, held to 13 points in the first half, took control in the final two quarters. He gave the Jazz its biggest lead, 105-82, on a three-point play with 3:47 left.

John Stockton had 18 points and 20 assists for Utah. Bernard King led the Bullets with 23 points and John Williams finished with 21.

Pacers 129, Trail Blazers 120
Indiana outscored Portland 37-14 from the free-throw line and got 27 points from Chuck Person.

Wayman Tisdale added 24 points and 14 rebounds for the Pacers, who broke a nine-game losing streak against the Trail Blazers.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 35 points and Kevin Duckworth added 32.

AP All-Americans

Thomas — winner of the Butkus as the nation's best linebacker — and Keith DeLong of Tennessee, defensive backs Louis Oliver of Florida, Markus Paul of Syracuse and Deion Sanders of Florida State and punter Keith English of Colorado. Sanders is the only repeater from the 1987 team.

The return specialist is Texas Tech's 5-foot-3, 130-pound Tyrone Thurman.

Lewis is the only sophomore on the team while Barry Sanders, Walsh, Stonebreaker and Young are juniors.

The All-America team was selected by the AP's sports editor, college football editor and regional sports editors. A player must make his all-conference or all-sectional team to be considered for the All-America first team.

The AP All-America team will be featured on Bob Hope's annual Christmas special entitled "Bob Hope's Jolly Christmas Show With the All-American Champs" (Monday, Dec. 19, NBC, 8-9 p.m. EST).

Barry Sanders was so good that he gained 75 yards on a day he didn't even play. When Texas Tech reviewed the films of his 257-yard effort in Oklahoma State's 45-42 victory in Tokyo on Sunday, it was decided that two swing passes on which Sanders gained 75 yards actually were backward passes and therefore counted as rushes.

That gave Sanders his fourth 300-yard game of the season and pushed his total to 2,628 yards, easily erasing the mark of 2,342 by Southern Cal's Marcus Allen in 1981. Sanders' numerous records also included a single-season mark of 39 touchdowns.

Walsh completed 233 of 390 passes for 3,115 yards and a school record 29 touchdowns, breaking the mark of 26 by Heisman Trophy winner Vinny Testaverde in 1986. Miami is 21-1 with Walsh as its quarterback.

Lewis finished second nationally in rushing to Sanders. His 1,692 yards was a school record and second best in Southwest Conference history. He tied Earl Campbell's 1977 mark of 10 consecutive 100-yard games and was voted the SWC's Offensive Player of the Year.

Each of the wide receivers scored 15 touchdowns. Phillips caught 108 passes for 1,444 yards and led the nation in receiving for the second year in a row. He became the fifth receiver in NCAA history to catch 100 passes in a season and the fourth to lead the nation two years in a row.

Dykes' 1,278 yards was second to Phillips and his 74 receptions was fourth nationally. He holds most Big Eight reception records.

Walls was converted from outside linebacker to tight end last spring. His 36 receptions was the most by a tight end in the Southeastern Conference and he also saw action on defense in numerous pass-rush situations.

"Had he been playing tight end his entire collegiate career, he would be a first-round NFL draft pick," Coach Billy Brewer said.

After missing three of his first four field goal attempts, Trainor connected on 23 in a row, including a 59-yarder against Miami. English, in his first season as Colorado's punter after sitting on the bench behind All-American Barry Helton, led the nation with a 45.04 average on 51 kicks. He had two punts of more than 70 yards, six of 60 yards or more and 19 that went more than 50 yards.

Thurman returned 27 punts for 280 yards and 23 kickoffs for 535 yards. He holds three SWC career punt returns records.

Terps Hold On For Win

Wake Forest.....79
Evansville.....73

WINSTON-SALEM — Sam Ivy scored 16 points and Wake Forest erased an 11-point halftime deficit with 59 percent shooting in the second half to edge Evansville 79-73 on Wednesday night.

Wake Forest raised its record to 3-1, while Evansville dropped to 2-2.

Ivy's layup with 3:17 left gave the Demon Deacons the lead for good at 69-68. The basket came during the middle of a 14-0 Wake Forest run.

Free throws also played a key part of Wake Forest's comeback.

After Ivy's layup, he hit two free throws, followed by four straight from Robert Siler as Wake Forest sank 26 of 30.

Evansville, which hit only 10 of 19 free throws, led 41-30 at halftime.

Freshman Chris King added 13 points for Wake Forest, while fellow freshman Derrick McQueen had 11.

Scott Haffner led Evansville with 28 points, hitting five of 15 3-pointers. Reed Crafton added 16 points, while Dan Godfred had 12.

Maryland.....73
Morgan State.....61

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Tony Massenburg scored 11 of his 17 points in the second half Wednesday night as Maryland held off Morgan State 73-61.

The Terrapins made six consecutive free throws — four by Dave Dickerson and two by Jerrod Mustaf — in the final minute, outscoring the Bears 8-0 during that span, to improve their record to 4-1.

Damone Williams scored 21 points to lead Morgan State, which fell to 2-2. The Bears, which made 13 of 27 three-pointers in the first four games, were 0-5 on three-point shots against the Terps.

Morgan State got within four points three times in the final 5:27, the last time at 65-61 with 1:07 to play, but did not score the rest of the way.

Pirates Couldn't Finish Comeback

said that the Pirates had their best people shooting the ball. "I think we got tired. They wore us down. Reed (Lose) and Blue couldn't get the ball to go down for them those last few minutes.

ECU held an early lead in the game, tying it at 2-2 on an Edwards' follow shot and taking the lead on a three-point basket by Hill at 5-2.

But Manning and Dozier each hit jumpers to put the Gamecocks ahead at 6-5 and the Pirates never led again.

Jeff Roulston scored a basket and Brent Price, brother of former Georgia Tech star Mark Price, added a three-point play for an 11-5 lead before the Pirates scored again.

South Carolina continued to inch away, however, reaching a 10-point lead at 29-19 with 7:54 left in the half. Edwards scored six straight to pull back within four, but Price led a 10-point spurt by the Gamecocks, scoring eight of them, for a 39-25 edge, the biggest lead of the night.

But Edwards, Jimmy Hinton and Stanley Love sparked the Pirates in a rally over the final three minutes that outscored the Gamecocks 12-1 and chopped the halftime lead to 39-42.

Edwards missed two free throws to open the second half that could have cut it to one, but he and Bryant added baskets minutes later to trim the lead to 46-45.

But South Carolina again pulled away, scoring eight straight to open the lead to 54-45. Edwards followed that with seven in a row to again cut the lead to two, 54-52, but the Gamecocks stretched it to seven, 63-56 on a three-pointer by Price with 9:03 left.

Love made two free throws and Edwards popped in a three-pointer to cut it to two with 7:57 left. It was to be the final basket of the game for the Pirates.

Murphy then made the two free throws that tied it up, but the Pirate hopes were crushed there as the ball just refused to go down after that.

Edwards was the only Pirate in double figures as Murphy was next in the scoring with nine points.

Hudson led South Carolina with 21 while Dozier and Price each had 18 and Manning had 10.

South Carolina improves its record to 4-0 with the win while East Carolina drops to 3-2.

East Carolina will return to Minges Coliseum in Greenville, N.C., Saturday night, hosting Radford.

THE DIFFERENCE
FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — There is an ocean of difference between playing pro football and coaching it.

Ask Don Blackmon, an assistant coach of the New England Patriots and a seven-year player in a linebacking role.

"It came as a considerable surprise to me to find out how much time the coaches spend preparing for a game," Blackmon admitted.

Nebraska Toughest Miami Foe

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Coach Jimmy Johnson thinks his second-ranked University of Miami football team is the best in the nation, but he's not so sure the Hurricanes can beat No. 6 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

"Nebraska matches up against our football team as well as any team in the country and if I was to say the toughest team in the country for us to play it would be Nebraska," Johnson said Wednesday during an Orange Bowl news conference.

"I really believe that of all the teams in the country, Nebraska gives us more problems than anyone. Because of their power running attack and because of the way they play defense, we really don't have an advantage."

Although the Fiesta Bowl is touting its game between No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 3 West Virginia, the country's only unbeaten teams, as a national championship contest, Johnson has his own opinion.

"In Nebraska and Miami you have two of the best football teams in the country and, in my opinion, the national champion could very well come out of this ballgame," he said, leading into yet another pitch for his defending national champions.

"I've made some statements in the past that if we are fortunate enough to beat Nebraska — and I think that may be the most difficult chore that we'll have all season — and if Notre Dame was to lose, I think that our team would be deserving of the national championship," Johnson said.

Miami's only loss was a 31-30 decision against Notre Dame in South Bend when a two-point conversion pass failed with 45 seconds left to play. The setback cost the Hurricanes their No. 1 ranking and Johnson declined to speculate which team would be No. 1 had he chosen to kick the extra point and settle for a tie.

"I'd hate to see our team penalized simply for the reason that I decided not to go for the tie and not kick the extra point," he said. "Instead, being the defending national champions, I tried to go for the win with a two-point conversion. I wouldn't have been able to face them if we'd have just kicked the extra point and took the tie."

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, speaking by phone from Lincoln, said that the final Associated Press poll "depends so much on the orientation of the voters."

"If their thought is simply to vote for what they think is the best team in college football, I think that there's a chance that the Orange Bowl could produce the national champion," he said.

"But if their orientation is primarily who has the best record, then obviously we don't have a great chance (Notre Dame and West Virginia are 11-0, Nebraska 11-1, Miami 10-1). From a personal standpoint, I would hope that people would look a little bit at the question of who has played a tough schedule, who has the best team."

"I think many people believe that Miami has the best team in the country. They have a great team and they certainly should be considered for the national championship."

Osborne also issued a warning of sorts when he said: "I still don't feel like we've put it all together, and that's a strange thing to say after you've played 12 games. We've played well enough to get by ... and we probably will have to put it all together against Miami to have a chance."

Johnson and West Virginia's Don Nehlen have been conducting a friendly war of words over the national championship scenario.

"I visited with Don Nehlen last night (Tuesday night's Hall of Fame banquet) and I kind of had a smile on my face and I said, 'I hope you have an ugly win,'" Johnson said. He also conceded that "a tie would be nice."

"I hear so much conversation from various coaches around the country and various media people who say, 'We believe that you're the best team in the country.' They might believe it, but evidently they don't vote it."

"I'm not saying that people should vote us number one. I'm just saying, after the bowl games, vote for whoever you think is the best team in the country. If Notre Dame wins, they should be the national champion. Right now, we're number two, we're ranked above West Virginia. Why should that change if we beat Nebraska?"

Jets Renew Walton's Pact

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Joe Walton is the future of the New York Jets.

Despite not making the playoffs for the second straight year, and eight consecutive losses in December, club president Steve

Gutman said enough progress was made to warrant owner Leon Hess extending Walton's contract for the third time since he was named head coach in 1983.

Gutman said the deal was worked out last Friday, but media speculation of Walton's future prompted him to make the announcement Wednesday, something he normally wouldn't do until the offseason.

Walton, who was earning a reported $350,000, is believed to have signed through the 1991 season. He received extensions after the 1984 and 1986 seasons.

"The act speaks for itself," Gutman said. "This was done as a reflection of the confidence the club has in Joe, and it's a very accurate reflection of the progress the club made. Few people expected this club to achieve progress in 1988, and at the same time, win as many as six games."

"Progress isn't exclusively measured by the record. Sometimes, it was made with great pleasure, as it was down in Miami. Sometimes it was made with great pain, as it was in Buffalo."

Walton, whose 47-45-1 record makes him the second winningest Jet coach behind Weeb Ewbank (Walton is the only Jet coach with a winning percentage), said the extension vindicates his rebuilding plan.

"I was very surprised," said Walton, who'll be 53 next Thursday. "It's pleasing because it re-confirms our program. I'm pleased for the coaching staff because they've worked very hard. It's a big undertaking to rebuild a team and to teach young people."

trophy is in the form of a 40-pound block of granite.

Broderick Thomas, 6-foot-3 and 250 pounds, leads the Nebraska defense in nine categories including 98 tackles, 10 quarterback sacks and 17 tackles for losses.

Rocker, 6-3, 278, finished with 342 career tackles and 20 quarterback sacks for the Tigers, who will play Florida State in the Sugar Bowl.

"Auburn has had more outstanding defensive linemen than any other team in the country the last eight years and Tracy Rocker may be the very best," Tennessee Coach John Majors said.

Rocker's tackle production is off this season because of the Tigers' efficient offense. Rocker played only eight plays in a 56-7 victory over Kansas.

Derrick Thomas helped the Alabama Crimson Tide earn a spot in the Sun Bowl against Army on Christmas Eve.

He'd like to play for the Los Angeles Raiders as a pro.

"I just like their approach to football," Derrick Thomas said. "They do everything in somewhat of a violent way. It's not really nasty. It's just their perspective."

Messner, 6-3, 244, is Michigan's all-time leader with 69 tackles for losses of 375 yards. He has 36 sacks for 273 yards in losses.

Messner approaches the award dinner humbly.

"As far as deserving to win this award, I guess I always underestimate myself and I underestimate my ability to win this award," Messner said. "I'm surprised to be here."

Ohio State's Jim Stillwagon won the first award in 1970.

Other winners were: Walt Patulski, Notre Dame, 1971; Rich Glover, Nebraska, 1972; John Hicks, Ohio State, 1973; Randy White, Maryland, 1974; Lee Roy Selmon, Oklahoma, 1975; Wilson Whitley, Houston, 1976, and Ross Browner, Notre Dame, 1977.

Also, Bruce Clark, Penn State, 1978; Brad Budde, Southern California, 1979; Hugh Green, Pittsburgh, 1980; Kenneth Sims, Texas, 1981; Dave Rimington, Nebraska, 1982; Dean Steinkuhler, Nebraska, 1983; Tony Degrate, Texas, 1984; Tony Casillas, Oklahoma, 1985, and Cornelius Bennett, Alabama, 1986.

Rocker Awarded Outland

toward me, and I did a good job at it."

Don't get the idea that Rocker is tooting his own horn. He is quick to tell you that "I don't feel that I'm the best. I figure that every year someone is always going to come out and be the best lineman. But I feel that I'm probably the most consistent lineman in the country as far as being ready to play, and I enjoy playing the game of football."

Rocker won the Outland over two offensive linemen — Michigan State tackle Tony Mandarich and Pitt guard Mark Stepnoski. The selection was made by an eight-member panel and the voting was not disclosed although Bob Pille, president of the FWAA, said it was "a very close vote and a fight to the end."

Auburn led the nation this season in scoring defense, total defense and rushing defense, allowing only 7.2 points and 218.1 and 63.2 yards a game. Rocker made 101 tackles, including 13 behind the line plus five quarterback sacks. Rocker's 354 career tackles are the most by any lineman in Auburn history.

"I would think he's probably the best that's ever played at Auburn — period! — because I would think that we've probably had better defensive linemen in the last eight years than they've ever had," Coach Pat Dye said.

"When you get to this level, it's the inner strength that makes the difference between being good or great, and then being the best. Tracy has those qualities that set him apart from other people."

"He got hurt as a freshman and went through a very traumatic experience dealing with the injury and not playing and homesick."

"Any time you've got an individual as strong spiritually and mentally tough as Tracy is, sometimes it's tougher for those guys to allow themselves to be coached and trained to be team players. A lot of them want to free-lance, and know that they've got that talent."

"But Tracy's allowed himself to be trained and to become a team player and has played the game within our schemes. We could have done some things with him that would have him a lot higher up on total stats — sacks and so forth. But he's played within the team concept and made us a much better football team."

"I don't know that he is a devastating pass-rusher, but he is a complete defensive lineman. I don't think anybody could block him and keep him out of a play. You're going to have to figure out a way to fool him or double-team him. You're not going to run the ball at him, and it's very difficult to run away from him."

"I think when he gets into pro football, he will utilize his abilities to be a great pass-rusher, also."

Mandarich and Stepnoski were gracious losers.

"He's a great one from a great university," the 6-6, 315-pound Mandarich said. "He's going to make his mark as a pro, and he deserves it."

The 6-3, 268-pound Stepnoski said he was "disappointed that I didn't win; that's just human nature. The best thing about the scenario this year, any one of the three was deserving. Tracy plays on the number-one-ranked defense in the country and he's the premier player on that defense."

Rocker is Auburn's second Outland winner. Guard Zeke Smith won it in 1958.

S. Africa Moves Mandela To House On Prison Farm

NELSON MANDELA

the largest guerrilla organization fighting the government and apartheid.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Nelson Mandela, leader of the outlawed African National Congress and jailed since 1962, has been transferred from a clinic to a house on a prison farm outside Cape Town. The government has been under intense domestic and international pressure to unconditionally release the 70-year-old Mandela, South Africa's most famous black leader. But officials indicated after Wednesday's transfer that Mandela's outright release is not imminent and restraints on him will be eased in stages so the government can assess the political impact of his possible freedom.

Prison officials said Mandela's wife, Winnie, children and grandchildren would have unlimited access to Mandela at his new quarters in a staff house on prison property. The one-story house has a patio, flower garden and swimming pool. Mrs. Mandela, however, rejected the offer and said she will continue to make the standard 40-minute visits to her husband until he is freed, according to the family's lawyer, Ismail Ayob. Dullah Omar, a human rights lawyer who leads the banned United Democratic Front, called the move "utterly disgraceful and callous." "What we were looking forward to was his release, not a transfer from a clinic back to prison," he said.

Zach de Beer, leader of the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party, welcomed the transfer on humanitarian grounds but added: "Unless Mr. Mandela is given the freedom to participate in the political process of the country, he is denied the opportunity of making his contribution towards the future." The transfer was announced by Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee, who said Mandela was moved to "a suitable, comfortable and properly secured home" at the Victor Verster Prison in Paarl. Mandela is serving a life sentence for plotting a sabotage campaign against the white-controlled government. The African National Congress is

European Community Blocking U.S. Effort To End Farm Trade Subsidies

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE
MONTREAL — With negotiators working against a Thursday deadline, global trade talks remained stalemated Wednesday night as the 12-nation European Community blocked U.S. efforts to end farm trade subsidies. After three days of meetings, the EC continued to insist that it could not bow to U.S. demands for a commitment to eliminate farm subsidies, which U.S. officials contend distort world trade. Common market negotiators said this would dislocate millions of small European farmers who now receive supports as high as 300 percent above world prices. Agreements in other key areas of the talks to expand and strengthen the compact that polices world trade, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), appeared to hinge Wednesday night on a settlement in the farm sector. Other countries, seeking to pressure the United States and the EC to move from their positions, said they would block deals in areas important to them even though those talks were close to agreement. The sectors include setting rules against barriers to trade in services and enacting regulations against piracy of patented products. U.S. Trade Representative Clayton K. Yeutler, fortified by a mandate from President Reagan to return without a deal if he did not win approval for an end to farm subsidies, was so intent on breaking the agricultural deadlock that he resorted to a borrowed thesaurus during the evening discussions. Aides said he was seeking a synonym for the word "eliminate," which EC negotiators said they cannot accept in any final statement. "It has to be a synonym. We are not looking for ambiguity here," said Ambassador Daniel Amstutz, the chief U.S. agricultural trade negotiator. But EC officials were not amused by Yeutler's move. "I'm interested in substance, not words," said EC Vice President Frans Andriessen as he strode from a meeting of the Council of Ministers, a Common Market decision-making body. Deputy U.S. Trade Representative Alan F. Holmer said there was "a significant amount of progress" in a number of non-farm areas that could lead to full agreements if they were not linked to a settlement of the farm trade deadlock. These including lowering tariff levels, increasing the authority of GATT and speeding its system of settling trade disputes. Although the GATT round still has two years to run, decisions made at this half-time review are needed to chart the course for the continuing negotiations. Without clear political direction coming from the trade ministers of the world, specialists feared the talks would founder. Nonetheless, the Reagan administration went into this meeting clearly prepared to return home without agreements in the all-important area of farm trade, and officials continued that hard line throughout the day. At one point Wednesday morning, Amstutz refused to discuss other elements of agriculture trade package until a settlement was reached on the sticking point — the American push for a total elimination of subsidies that distort trade. By paying farmers more than the market price for their goods, U.S. officials contend, subsidies cause a global glut of many farm products. Malaysian delegates tried to persuade Amstutz to compromise, to no avail, and EC officials threw up their hands as the talks recessed.

U.S. Ships Will Scale Back Escort Duties

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE
CAIRO, Egypt — Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci, ending a farewell tour of Persian Gulf states with a visit to Kuwait, said Wednesday that U.S. naval forces will scale back their escort duties in the gulf further this month, but that overall U.S. force levels will remain the same until there is some progress in the Iran-Iraq peace talks. Speaking at a news conference, Carlucci said that U.S. vessels "have shifted from escorting to accompanying, and this month they will go to monitoring," which he said means that "they don't have to go with every ship. They can just keep track of the ships and be prepared to respond as necessary." The decision reflects the absence of any hostile activity in the strategic waterway by either belligerent in the Persian Gulf war since a United Nations-supervised cease-fire began Aug. 20. Carlucci said Kuwaiti officials had not yet decided whether to continue operating half their tanker fleet under the American flag, but Minister of Information Sheik Jabir Mubarek Sabah told the Associated Press Tuesday that the oil-rich northern gulf sheikdom was considering it. "The reflagging was strictly a commercial deal," Sabah said, "and I see no reason why we should not return the Kuwaiti flag to the masts now that the reasons for reflagging are no longer there." He added that "Kuwait will seek to reduce the foreign military presence in the Gulf water." Carlucci told reporters Wednesday that a likely deadline for a Kuwaiti decision on reflagging would come Feb. 1.

Prosecutor Says Some Acts Legal

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh acknowledged Wednesday that former White House aide Oliver L. North "engaged in many wholly legitimate" efforts to win release of Americans held hostage in Lebanon. Walsh made the concession, and a similar one Tuesday, in an effort to reduce the volume of classified documents that North wants to disclose at his trial in the Iran-Contra case. North, meanwhile, withdrew his request for some 10,000 pages of monthly Central Intelligence Agency cables concerning Nicaragua from 1984 to 1986. The White House, on the advice of the U.S. intelligence community, has warned that there are some categories of information at stake in the pre-trial skirmishing that can "never" be made public. But if U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell rules such details essential, the impasse could force dismissal of some counts in the indictment. In an attachment submitted to Gesell Wednesday, associate independent counsel Louise R. Radin offered a six-page account of North's legitimate hostage-related activities in the course of the Reagan administration's arms-for-hostages program. After President Reagan signed a Jan. 17, 1986, finding authorizing shipment of arms to Iran to secure "a more moderate" government there and to foster hostage-release efforts, the summary said, North "legitimately undertook certain activities, including meeting with Iranian representatives, coordinating the gathering of intelligence and supervising logistical arrangements for the reception and debriefings of freed hostages." Radin then listed a series of meetings, here and overseas, in which North participated. They ranged from a Jan. 21, 1986, session in London with Iranian intermediary Manucher Ghorbanifar to a final get-together with Iranian representatives in Geneva on Nov. 6, 1986. The diversion of arms-sales profits to the Nicaraguan Contras was disclosed in late November 1986. If Gesell accepts the summary as establishing that the meetings took place, Walsh and his prosecutors would be relieved of introducing classified documents that might chronicle not only the time, place and participants, but many other details the government wants kept secret. Walsh told Gesell in a second memorandum filed Wednesday that the court has "broad authority" under the Classified Information Procedures Act to order the use of unclassified summaries at trial, in place of more classified records, "even over the defendant's objection."

'Cheers' Star Is New Dad

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The stork has left a special-delivery bundle at the home of actor John Ratzenberger, who plays letter carrier Cliff Clavin on NBC's "Cheers," and his wife, Georgia.

Nina Katherine Ratzenberger was born Dec. 1 at Valley Presbyterian Hospital, weighing 7 pounds and 6 ounces.

It was the second child for the Ratzenbergers, who have an 18-month-old son, James John.

Ratzenberger's character on "Cheers" is a regular at the Boston bar depicted in the show and a know-it-all loudmouth who sees delivering the mail as only slightly less important than signing the Declaration of Independence.

Guild Will Honor Dancer Gene Kelly

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Actor Gene Kelly, the dancing star of "Anchors Aweigh," "Singin' in the Rain," and "An American in Paris," will be honored with the 25th annual Screen Actors Guild Award, the union says.

Kelly, 76, will be given the award Sunday at the guild's annual membership meeting in Universal City "for fostering the finest ideals of the acting profession," the organization announced Wednesday.

The award is the only one presented by the guild.

Kelly's 40 films have included the classic musicals "Anchors Aweigh," for which he received an Academy Award nomination for best actor; "Singin' in the Rain"; "An American in Paris"; "Brigadoon," and "That's Entertainment."

He was given a special Academy Award in 1951 "in appreciation of his versatility as an actor, singer, director and dancer, and especially for his brilliant achievements in the art of choreography on film."

Robin Givens, Tyson Dating?

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson and his estranged wife, actress Robin Givens, may start dating again, a newspaper reported today.

Tyson wants to reconcile with Ms. Givens, according to friends of the champion quoted in the Daily News.

The News said Tyson on Sunday met with Ms. Givens and her mother, Ruth Roper. Ms. Givens has sued Tyson for divorce and for a $125 million libel judgment.

Tyson's trainer, Kevin Rooney, thinks they want to see each other.

"I wouldn't be surprised if they started dating again," Rooney said.

Rooney said Ms. Roper is the cause of friction in the marriage. "The mother has got to stay away," Rooney said.

After Sunday's meeting, according to the News, Ms. Givens got in a taxi and headed toward Kennedy Airport for her flight back to California. Tyson didn't want her to leave, the News said, and he pursued her down a New York street in his Rolls-Royce until he lost the taxi.

Jump Planned

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel's son, Robbie, says he plans to try to accomplish the feat that put his father in a coma — jump a motorcycle 160 feet over the fountains at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

"This has been a dream of mine since I was a kid and would sit and watch the film of my father's jump," Robbie Knievel, 26, said at a news conference announcing his jump April 14.

Evel Knievel fell off his motorcycle as it hit the ramp when he attempted the jump more than 20 years ago, and was in a coma for most of the next month.

Improving

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Salvador Dali continues to improve and may be able to come home from the hospital in a few days, say doctors treating the surrealist painter for a serious heart condition.

Dali, 84, has been in the Quiron Clinic since Nov. 28, when he was taken there from a hospital in his hometown of Figueras suffering from severe heart trouble aggravated by blood clots in his left lung. He had been admitted to the hospital the day before with pneumonia.

He was transferred Monday from the clinic's intensive care unit to a regular room and was visited by King Juan Carlos, who said Dali told him he hoped to improve enough to resume painting.

Cathy Podewell Plays Bride Of J.R. On 'Dallas' Friday

By Jerry Buck THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — After sticking it to everyone else for the past 10 years, J.R. Ewing has finally gotten a taste of his own medicine on CBS' "Dallas."

First, J.R. (Larry Hagman) landed in jail on a rape charge. Then he was put on a chain gang. Now, he's guest of honor at a shotgun wedding.

J.R. gets hitched to "purty little thing" Cally Harper, played by Cathy Podewell. The wedding, catered by Smith & Wesson, takes place Friday.

"I'm a waitress at a hunting lodge in Arkansas where J.R. and Bobby Ewing take rooms on a hunting trip," said Podewell. "When I come to their table, J.R. sets his sights on me with a vengeance."

"We have a rendezvous, and he says, 'She's too beautiful to stay in a small town.' He sweet talks me into bed. Then my two older brothers come in and stick a shotgun under his nose."

"Dallas" has always been outrageous, but this year with Hagman serving as executive producer, the show is seeking new directions. For one thing, Hagman is taking the show about an oil family out of the boardroom. George Kennedy has joined the cast as the foe in an old-fashioned range war with the Ewings.

The show, of course, has never taken itself seriously. That has enabled it to get away with such stunts as dismissing Bobby's death — and an entire season — as a dream of his wife, Pamela.

J.R. has been wounded — by the shot heard 'round the world in 1980, then by wife Sue Ellen at the close of last season — but he's never had his comeuppance. In the current sequence, he's on the receiving end of some rough, rural justice.

Caught under the covers with Cally, he tries to fend off her brothers by telling them he's J.R. Ewing. But it doesn't work because the bucolic brethren have never heard of the famous Texas oil millionaire. The brothers are played by Cliff Potts and Sherman Howard.

"I don't bat an eyelash when he says who he is," said Podewell. "Yet, I've never encountered anyone like him before. He's so full of confidence."

CATHY PODEWELL

The sheriff puts J.R. in jail, but Cally agrees to help break him out after he promises to marry her. The escape attempt goes awry, and he's caught and sentenced to 10 years on the chain gang.

"My brothers break him out of prison so they can kill him," said Podewell. "I tell them I'm pregnant and he has to marry me."

Which brings us to Friday's episode and the shotgun wedding. No help is on the way. Bobby is back in Dallas, unaware of his brother's plight.

J.R. does escape after the wedding

First Woman To Lead Philadelphia Orchestra

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — Catherine Comet will become the first woman to conduct the Philadelphia Orchestra in an entire program at its home at the Academy of Music when she takes the stage tonight.

Filling in for ailing East German guest conductor Hans Vonk, Ms. Comet also will lead the orchestra in concerts Friday, Saturday and Tuesday.

Ms. Comet follows four other women who have conducted the orchestra in partial programs at the academy — Nadia Boulanger, Thea Musgrave, Elaine Brown and Dalia Atlas.

Boston conductor and opera director Sarah Caldwell has conducted two full programs with the orchestra in its summer home at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Born in Paris, but living in Philadelphia, Ms. Comet is in her third season as music director of the Grand Rapids Symphony Orchestra in Michigan. She previously worked with the Baltimore Symphony and the St. Louis Symphony.

Ms. Comet will conduct "Fantasia Concertante for Viola, Cello, and Orchestra" by Pulitzer Prize-winning composer William Bolcom.

Other works will be Georges Bizet's "Symphony No. 1 in C Major," Claude Debussy's "Prelude to The Afternoon of a Faun," and the 1919 version of Igor Stravinsky's "Firebird."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY Dec. 9

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You feel unloved when you don't get your own way. Nagging stands in the way of clearing up problems. Control negative thinking.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Pressures at work increase. Someone may try to use emotion as a weapon. Ignore such tactics. Tonight promises to be enjoyable.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may engage in a lively night out on the town with your mate. Your playful mood and communication ideas captivate others.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A social engagement you have been yearning for may be on tap. Physically attractive people enter your social circle.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Turn the other cheek if necessary today. Confrontations have no winners. Give others close to you the freedom to make their own choices.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Efforts to converse and clear up a problem fail. A show of respect and confidentiality will help solve it. Take a conservative approach.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Avoid someone who criticizes and runs down others. Romance and love are keynoted later in the day. Make worthwhile decisions.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You appreciate and benefit through your family. Your love is growing and becoming bolder. The veil lifts from a cloudy financial picture.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Excitement, combined with tension, has you ready to walk away from things. Resist an urge to do so. Relax with family and friends.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): The time is right for romantic proposals. You can express yourself favorably. Money advances are at the top of the list today.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Avoid harboring resentment over money hassles. Take advantage of your freedom to do what you want. Invite a companion to a new place.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): The fast pace of life leaves you little time for yourself. Creative expression is needed to bring out talents. Schedule your time to include fun.

 Timing is usually associated with physical sports. However, it is also vital in what the Dutch call "denksports,"—mind sports such as bridge and chess. Study this hand.

 Minor suits are the orphans of the bridge world—in duplicate bridge, they are all but forgot. Here, however, there is no doubt that five of either minor is a better contract than three no trump.
 Against five diamonds, West led the top of his broken spade sequence. As long as East can be kept off lead until the club suit is set up, declarer is safe. But what if the club king is offside?
 If the club finesse is going to win, the contract is declarer-proof. If it doesn't and declarer takes the opening spade lead, draws trumps and then takes the club finesse, he will go down as the cards lie. East will win the king and revert to spades, and the defenders can score two spade tricks for down one.

Declarer can correct the timing by allowing West to hold the first trick. This maneuver, known as the Bath Coup for the English resort where it was first utilized, forces West to shift his attack or else allow declarer to win two spade tricks.
 Best is to shift to a club. The safest play for declarer is to rise with the ace (to finesse risks a club ruff), draw trumps in three rounds and then force out the king of clubs.
 Declarer wins the spade return with the ace and discards his remaining spade on dummy's long club. In all, declarer wins two major-suit aces, five diamond tricks and four clubs, losing only a trick in each black suit.
