U.S. Jets Down 2 Libyan Fighters

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. Navy planes today shot down two Libyan jet fighters over the Mediterranean Sea, according to White House officials who said the American aircraft were "threatened while conducting routine operations in international airspace."

The air battle was the first fighting between the United States and Libya since American jets bombed Tripoli in 1986 and came amid rising tension between the two countries over Libya's construction of a plant the United States says is intended to produce chemical weapons.

At the State Department, spokesman Charles Redman told The Associated Press there was no link between the plant and the warplane incident. "There is absolutely no connection to any other story or concern you may have," he said. "It may be ironic, but the two things are not related."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Roman Popadiuk, in Los Angeles with vacationing President Reagan, said two F-14 aircraft from the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy returned safely to the ship after the confrontation. Reagan was awakened to be told of the incident, White House officials said.

Two parachutes from the downed Libyan aircraft, reported as Soviet-built MiG-23s, were sighted. "There were no reported U.S. injuries," he said.

"The Libyan aircraft approached the U.S. aircraft in a hostile manner over international waters and the U.S. aircraft, acting in self-defense, fired air-to-air missiles, downing both of the Libyan aircraft," Popadiuk said.

He said they "were threatened while conducting routine operations in international airspace north of Tobruk," a Libyan port.

Libya's Foreign Ministry called the incident a "premeditated attack" by U.S. forces and said it would seek an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

Pentagon sources who demanded anonymity said the Kennedy task force was cruising in the Mediterra-

Forum Chat

Forum Points Up Links For Education, Economy

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Summarizing activity at East Carolina University's first Chancellor's Forum, George Autry said "economic development and education are synonymous."

Autry, the president of MDC Inc. in Chapel Hill, said discussions at the forum led to the development of a "series of partnerships" in recognition of the link between economic development and education.

Forum participants said partnerships need to be established through the three branches of education — the public school, the community college and the university systems. There needs to be a partnership between the state and local governments, and there needs to be a partnership between businesses and all of education.

"Without it, the state is not going to make the commitment of resources needed from the General Assembly," he said.

Other issues brought out during the forum included the right of businesses to expect accountability beyond merit pay and the testing of students. And educators, Autry said, had no problems accepting that right during the forum. But, "in turn for accountability, teachers need less paperwork, more career opportunities and incentives and respect as professionals."

Problems that hinder eastern North Carolina in achieving its educational goals include those of poverty and illiteracy, racial isolation, geography isolation and public ignorance of the problem, Autry said.

Suggestions made during the forum for dealing with those problems included early remediation for children and programs that provide educational opportunities for the preschoolers and their parents.

Biracial strategic planning needs to take place so that blacks, whites and other minorities "join and demand excellence for all children," Autry said.

Teleconferences and other technology-linked programs can help bring the rural areas out of the corners of their geographical locations, he said.

Several state educators responded to issues discussed during the forum.

Bob Etheridge, superintendent-elect of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction, said that "the public schools of North Carolina and the public schools of this nation are our salvation."

Teachers are expected to turn out products of the 21st century with largely the same technology, equipment and buildings used to

Pigeon Loft Dispute Goes Back To Court In Martin

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

ROBERSONVILLE — A two-year-old case involving a dispute between neighbors in Robersonville over a pigeon loft is being returned to Superior Court in Martin County following a ruling by the N.C. Court of Appeals.

In the spring of 1986, Robersonville resident E.B. Whichard claimed that a pigeon loft in the back yard of his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Leggett, created disturbing noise, smell and the presence of pigeon feathers on his property.

The complaint by Whichard was heard before the Robersonville Board of Adjustment, which ruled that the existence of the pigeon loft within the Robersonville city limits constituted a violation of the town's ordinance relative to public nuisances.

The Leggetts appealed the case to Martin County Superior Court and it was then sent to the state Court of Appeals.

After reviewing the case, the appeals panel, on discovering that a member of the adjustment board was kin to the Leggett family, has ruled that members of municipal boards of adjustment are subject to the same standards that apply to judges in handling cases involving relatives.

Pitt Escapes Major Wind Damage

Although strong winds gusting to up to 43 mph were recorded Tuesday night in Pitt County, the area apparently escaped with relatively few weather-related problems, officials reported.

Wind speed in Winterville at 11:30 p.m. was clocked at 43 mph, according to unofficial data compiled by a weather watcher.

The data indicated wind speeds steadily increased from 6 p.m. on with three mph winds and gusts of nine mph reported at 6: 10 mph winds with gusts of 21 mph at 10 p.m., and 15 mph winds with gusts of 43 at 11:30 p.m.

The Greenville Utilities weather station recorded gusts of up to 40 mph around midnight in Greenville.

No damage anywhere in the county was reported to the office of Bobby Joyner, Pitt County Emergency Services coordinator.

Mayo Allen, director of the Greenville Public Works Department, said the only damage reported to his office was to the traffic light at Farmville Boulevard and 14th Street. At 10:30 a.m. today, the light was still being repaired and traffic was restricted to two lanes, he said.

Rainfall, which began in about 3:30 p.m., was recorded at two-tenths of an inch during the evening. The temperature was in the 40s throughout Tuesday, with a high of 49 degrees at 11 a.m. and a low of 41 degrees at 11:30 p.m.

Lewis Sworn As Judge For Court Of Appeals

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — More than 220 people squeezed into the courtroom in Farmville's new Municipal Building on Tuesday. But there was no defendant and no trial, only ceremony.

Mayor Edna Baker presided over a special meeting of the Farmville Board of Commissioners at 10:45 a.m. After John T. Watson seconded Marvin Speight's ceremonial motion to make the courtroom available to the county for business, Mrs. Baker pounded her gavel and declared the new courtroom officially open.

"The first official use of this courtroom will be for the swearing in of John B. Lewis Jr., as judge for the Court of Appeals," she said as the crowd applauded and the commissioners adjourned.

The county is scheduled to hold District Court in the courtroom for the first time on Thursday.

Brooks Oakley of Farmville, chief deputy for Pitt County, acted as bailiff and called court to order as a four-member panel of the Court of Appeals took seats behind the judge's bench.

"This court has set in the past outside of Raleigh very few times," said Judge Gerald Arnold, acting chief judge for the session. "Today (we are sitting) in this ceremonial session in Farmville, N.C. We are very pleased we could come here today to swear in our new judge, Jack Lewis.

"This is a very happy occasion. It's also a very serious occasion. When a person takes an oath of office ... (it is) a solemn and honest promise that he or she will do what they say they will do."

Court of Appeals Judges Charles L. Becton, Sarah Parker and Sidney S. Eagles Jr. — who administered the oath to Lewis — joined Arnold on the bench.

Lewis, 52, a lifelong resident of Farmville, begins work at his new job today and is to start reading over cases and writing opinions.

He narrowly defeated Republican incumbent Donald Smith of Raleigh in the November general election for a seat on the appeals court, and he was certified the winner last month after a statewide recount. His term as a special Superior Court judge ended Dec. 31, and he will join the appeals court Jan. 10 in Raleigh to begin hearing cases.

Lewis, his wife, Kelly, and his two sons, Ben, 18, and Thomas, 15, sat Tuesday in the front-left portion of the courtroom, where a defendant would usually be seated during a criminal proceeding.

David E. Reid Jr. of Greenville, Pitt County resident Superior Court judge, and other friends of Lewis sat across the courtroom at what would usually serve as the prosecutor's desk.

"This is indeed an auspicious — I might say historic — day in Pitt County. (Lewis is) the first person in Pitt County to reach that lofty perch (as a judge on the Court of Appeals)," Reid said.

Several of the dignitaries in attendance, including state Supreme Court justices, Superior Court judges and state lawmakers sat in the jury box.

Lewis thanked everyone for attending, and he poked fun at his narrow margin of victory, which allowed Smith to call for a recount and delay the official result for more than a month.

He said folks have dubbed him Landslide Lewis, but he prefers another name. "I don't want to be called Landslide Lewis. I want to be known as Avalanche Jack," he said.

Arnold also joked with Lewis. "Judge Eagles observed that once you see the work waiting for you, you might ask for a recount," Arnold said, laughing.

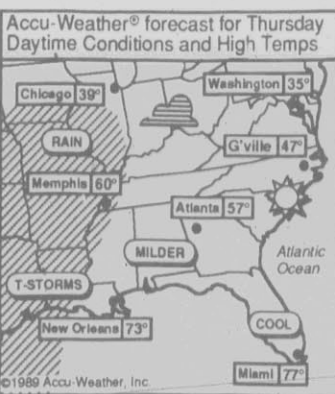

Former Superior Court Judge Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Greenville, who practiced law with Lewis and Lewis' father, spoke to the crowd.

"This is indeed a very historic occasion for Pitt County and for the town of Farmville," Rouse said. "I feel especially privileged to be able to participate in the ceremony today."

"It became fairly obvious early in Judge Lewis' life that such an occasion as today's would be inevitable," Rouse said, recounting a time when Lewis was a grade-schooler and

School Reform Expert Says Local Boards Need Authority

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Schools for the 21st century need to be invented through a shared vision of what they are to accomplish, and schools need to be deregulated but accountable so that more decisions rest with local boards of education and the community.

Those were the messages brought to the Pitt County Board of Education, the Pitt County Educational Foundation, East Carolina University and business representatives, and legislators during a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Pitt County Office Building.

"Why in the world is everybody getting concerned about school reform now," Phil Schlechty, executive director of the Center of Leadership and School Reform in Jefferson County, Ky., said to the group.

In 1940, only about 40 percent of the students stayed in school compared to about 90 percent in some areas today, Schlechty said. And, "we have as much parental support as we've always had."

But, students today are educated at a different level, Schlechty said. Years ago, there were jobs that did not require literate employees, and illiterate people actually made it through careers without being discovered.

"Nowadays that's pretty hard," he said.

There is a different set of expectations, so "schools are different in kind, not just degrees. We're rationally reforming and restructuring schools for something schools have never done."

So a goal of inventing schools for the 21st century must be set and the steps toward meeting that goal must be outlined, he said.

Slechty said 75 percent of those who will be teaching in the year 2000 have not been hired, Schlechty said. "They are yet to be employed. We're going to be competing for a really scarce talent pool."

Potential teachers are being lost to business and industry because of the opportunities offered, he said. "We've got to start thinking about careers."

Also, there must be investment in training, Schlechty said.

Deregulation of schools in three counties — Granville, Stanley and Haywood — has been the result of taking suggestions and putting them into practice, said John Dornan, executive director of the N.C. Public School Forum.

The changing and adding of programs is based on one criteria — that students learn more and are doing better, he said.

The result in one elementary school, where 79 percent of the students are minorities and 76 percent are in poverty, has been about a 10 percent increase in reading scores and higher attendance. In addition, about 20 parents are attending classes at night to improve their reading and writing skills.

The old-fashioned method used: "The teachers all visited the homes of the students they had in class," Dornan said.

Technological ways of networking within the school in administrative duties, such as keeping a record of attendance, and in teaching are being studied, he said.

"We don't believe that technology is the answer alone," Dornan said. Other factors include the organization within the building, how people work together, etc.

Elements of deregulation and accountability are innovative and confident teachers and administrators, legislative support for the schools, the cooperation of nearby universities and colleges and a concerned and cooperative business community.

"Here, (in Pitt County) I think you have all the right elements."

Dornan also discussed three major programs of the forum — Teaching Fellows, which tries to attract talented young people into teaching; Project Teach, which attempts to attract talented minority high school seniors into teaching, and a "clearing house for foundations," which gives advice on how to begin and operate a foundation.

Pitt School Superintendent Eddie West facilitated the program, and George Williams, board of education chairman, and Ken Dews, foundation chairman, presented remarks of welcome.

Bus Driver Cited

The driver of a Pitt County school bus was cited after an early-morning traffic accident Tuesday at the intersection of rural paved road 1149 and Allen Drive.

N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper J.D. Heath said Monty Carlos Brown was issued a citation for failure to yield for a stop sign after the bus he was driving collided with a 1981 model vehicle driven by Betty Coley Allen of Ayden.

Heath said the accident occurred at 8:10 a.m. when Brown, on his route to Ayden-Grifton High School, pulled from Route 1149 onto Allen Drive in front of Ms. Allen's vehicle.

Ms. Allen was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Heath said no other injuries were reported.

Heath estimated damage to the bus at approximately $2,000, while damage to Ms. Allen's vehicle was set at $1,000.

Pitt Commissioners Approve Radio For Fire-Rescue Truck

Pitt County commissioners Tuesday approved the purchase of a two-way radio for a Greenville Fire-Rescue Department rescue truck.

Bobby Joyner, the county's emergency services coordinator, told the board that the city has been operating two rescue units on a full-time basis, but has recently placed a third rescue truck in operation full time.

Joyner told commissioners that a new radio for the third front-line vehicle would cost $2,965. He said the city's fourth truck, a back-up unit, is equipped with a radio "that can be used if needed."

According to Joyner, Greenville rescue units answer "as many calls as all the other rescue squads in the county." In the past year, Joyner said, Greenville rescue units averaged responding to 291 calls a month.

Commissioners also reappointed Mitchell Steppe to a four-year term on the Farmville Planning and Zoning Board. Steppe has served on the board for the past two years.

Following an executive session to discuss the purchase of land, commissioners heard Jim Turcotte, manager of the Pitt-Greenville Airport, say that commuter airline boardings at the flight facility in 1988 totaled 46,417, "up about 15 percent" from the 40,455 passengers that were boarded in 1987.

Piedmont Commuter accounted for 39,532 passenger boardings last year, according to Turcotte, while 6,939 passengers boarded American Eagle flights at Pitt-Greenville in 1988.

Turcotte told the commissioners that boardings at Pitt-Greenville for 1988 would be only about 25 percent less than the number of passengers boarding commercial flights in Kinston, which he estimated would total "60,000 or a little less." Kinston, according to Turcotte, is served by four Piedmont jet flights each day as well as commuter service.

The airport manager reported that the equipment for an instrument landing system is scheduled to be delivered by the middle of January. He said the installation, testing and inspection of the equipment should be completed so the $400,000 ILS system will be "on the air by April."

Turcotte also reported that bids for an 11,000-square-foot addition to the terminal building at Pitt-Greenville Airport should be received in February, with the completion of the expansion project expected by February 1990.

The cost of the project to expand the present 5,000-square-foot commuter airline terminal has been estimated at about $1.2 million, Turcotte said, with the Federal Aviation Administration paying "most" of the cost.

Commissioners will meet Monday at noon with members of the Pitt County Board of Education to discuss a proposed $25 million bond issue for school construction.

Unemployment Low

County unemployment rates continued at a low level in November, with only three counties experiencing unemployment rates of more than 10 percent.

The Employment Security Commission of North Carolina (ESC) released figures showing that 79 counties had November unemployment rates at or below 5 percent, a figure ESC analysts regard as near full-employment. The county with the lowest rate was Orange at 1.9 percent. The county with the highest rate was Graham at 13.4 percent.

In November 1987, 64 counties had rates of 5 percent or less. Four counties experienced rates over 10 percent.

Farmville To Dedicate Town Building Feb. 12

In The Area

By CAROL TYER
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — Town commissioners Tuesday night set Feb. 12 as the date for a dedication of Farmville's new municipal building.

Invitations to the Sunday afternoon dedication and catered reception will be published in local newspapers, Mayor Edna Earle Baker said.

The town offices were moved into the building Dec. 19-20 and all departments except the fire department and public works are now housed in the facility in the 200 block of North Walnut Street.

Commissioners discussed the Frank Bradham, town ad-reserving of parking places in the municipal building parking lot and agreed to keep it to a minimum. Commissioner John Turner Walston expressed his dislike of parking being restricted for the public who he said own and pay the bills for any public building.

Commissioners decided that only five places for police cars, some temporary ones for court officials on court days and one place for town trucks needing to pick up assignments would be reserved. The rest of the 60 spaces will be open for the public, with town employees encouraged to park on the outer fringes.

ministrator, said he believes the only time there will be a parking problem will be on court days. He said this will probably be true, even though the town now has 60 more spaces in that section of town than it did before the municipal building was completed.

Board members granted a petition by A.P. Mewborn and the Primitive Baptist Church, both of whose properties are in the 600 block of West Wilson Street, to rezone the properties from general business to R-5 residential. Mewborn, who appeared before the board, said he thought the measure was a good idea in the event his house or the church ever burned or was otherwise destroyed they could be rebuilt for the same purpose without difficulty. During a public hearing, there was no objection to the rezoning.

An amendment to the town's traffic ordinance reduced the speed limit for the U.S. 264 Bypass from the railroad tracks near the Collins & Aikman plant to Marlboro (its intersection with Main Street extension) from 50 to 45 mph. The Farmville Area Chamber of Commerce requested the change.

The fire department slate of officers was approved. Officers are John Baker, chief; Lyman Craft and Ralph Cash, assistant chiefs; Ben Cotton, Beasley Everette and Milton Elks, captains; James Blalock, Richard Tripp, Sam Summerlin and Ray Mewborn, lieutenants, and W.E. Wooten, secretary-treasurer.

A budget amendment was enacted to transfer money from the capital reserve fund of fiscal year 1988 to this fiscal year to buy for the utilities department $120,000 worth of waste water treatment plant siphon pipes, $8,186 for a filter medium at the waste water treatment plant, and $46,000 worth of load management switches.

The mayor's advisory board appointments were approved. Bill Flowers was reappointed to the board of adjustment. Ann McGaughey and Frank Styers were named to the planning board, and Vanisha Jones and Dorothy Winstead were appointed to the Community Development advisory board.

Projects Chosen For Pitt Educational Minigrants

Minigrant selection committees from five attendance areas have met and selected projects to be funded by the Pitt County Educational Foundation during the spring. Eighty-four projects were funded or partially funded from 150 minigrant applications.

The grants are cash awards offered to teachers to encourage them to develop innovative and creative educational projects.

Betty Speir, coordinator of the foundation, said that the grants are awarded on a competitive basis for projects that show promise of benefiting students and they may serve as model programs for replication in other schools. Grants average about $200 and may be used for materials, equipment and other items needed for the project.

Funds for the minigrants this year have been provided by a series of student variety shows in the fall and by spring solicitation for funds in one attendance area. Funds raised within the attendance area are retained in the area for minigrant use. Parents and civic leaders involved in the fund-raising events also are involved in the selection of projects to be funded and later in monitoring the projects. Teachers writing the grants are provided the funds to initiate their classroom projects directly from the foundation.

This year's projects include "Project Space," "Surviving the Middle School Years: A Parent Guide," "Me Gusta Espanol," and "I Can Read It by Myself." All disciplines, all schools and all grade levels are represented, according to Ms. Speir.

Projects funded in the Ayden-Grifton attendance area, followed by the name of the teacher writing the application, are: "Project Space" by Dorothy A. Craig; "Ocean Quest" by Rheta R. Russell; "Motivating Reading While Improving Self-Concept" by Lois J. Garrison; "Computer Based Reading and Writing Instruction" by Jamie Kirby and Peg Burnett; "We Thought You'd Like to Know" by Linda Roberson; "Equipment Search" by Maria J. 'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

The Target

Keep Knowledge, Not Drugs, Flowing

A youngster can't learn if he's stoned. Alcohol and drugs have no place in Pitt County's classrooms. The learning process is too important, too fragile, to place under the influence of mind-altering substances.

That's why comments by the county's school principals that drug use appeared to decline in schools in the past two years caught the public's ear. When they heard it, parents, taxpayers and law enforcement officers sure hoped that statement was accurate. But there are reasons to doubt it.

These same principals think drug trafficking has increased at schools. Although fewer kids are actually getting high between reading and writing and arithmetic, more students are making the deadly contact at school that puts drugs in their hands.

An image of the schoolyard as a place where poison is available to kids for the asking place a disturbing vision in the mind of the community. That is an intolerable setting for education. A public school must be a safe place, a place where kids feel secure and the focus is on learning.

But parents and educators shouldn't throw up their hands in despair. There are ways to combat the rise of trafficking. Pitt's schools track record on drugs is good — the school system has devoted resources to the fight to keep dangerous, illegal substances out of halls, classrooms, bathrooms and away from playgrounds.

If heightened vigilance has decreased the amount of drug use at school, it can also reduce the trafficking.

Blinking will not make the problem go away. And Pitt County is fortunate its principals appear willing to face drug problems head-on. In fact, they discussed it vigorously and candidly in a school board meeting Monday. That kind of openness creates an awareness that prompts results.

It is with that frankness, that outspokenness, that the county's schools can most effectively battle the sale, possession and use of mind-altering substances on campuses. One board member reported 5 to 10 percent of the students in school use drugs at Monday's meeting. Data like that means drug education in the primary and elementary grades must continue; teaching the dangers of abuse is important preventive medicine. But only active intervention can arrest the flow of narcotics into classrooms. And that interposition begins with open-mindedness and plain speaking about the problem — the same kind of openness principals displayed when questioned by board members about drugs at schools.

The battle to place knowledge, not drugs, in youngsters' minds is an mandatory struggle. Schools should be places of learning, not warfare. But when an enemy invades this environment of enlightenment — as drugs have attacked schools — a call to arms is imperative. And because the future is at stake, this campaign must be successful.

Barry Is The People's Problem

WASHINGTON — The problem for Mayor Marion Barry is how to avoid being chased out of office, his reputation in shambles.

The problem for the residents of Washington, D.C., is what to do about a mayor who has that kind of problem.

His problem is easier than ours. We're not exactly sighing with relief over his explanation of his repeated visits to the hotel room of a friend, Charles Lewis, who reportedly had offered drugs to a hotel maid — and who disappeared before police could investigate the complaint.

But in the absence of either physical evidence or a statement by someone involved, the mayor has to be considered innocent as he stoutly insists he is. The problem is that, given the reports to date and the mayor's own nonexplanation, a lot of us find it hard to believe, and those of us who had hoped that the mayor would answer at least some of the more obvious questions growing out of the affair were disappointed with Thursday afternoon's news conference.

Why was he at the Ramada Inn to start with? Isn't it more usual for a visitor to a major city to go calling on the mayor rather than the other way around? Why was Lewis, who does not work for the city and has been fired from his most recent post with the government of the Virgin Islands, at the hotel, at government rates, using the credit card of a D.C. government aide and giving the hotel a D.C. government phone number? Why did the mayor make several calls on Lewis, in whose room investigators later found traces of cocaine (though they could not say how long they had been there)?

The mayor apparently was in Lewis' room when undercover detectives in the hotel were on their way there to attempt a drug buy. Who called them off?

Interesting questions all, and the mayor answered none of them and refused to take questions afterwards. The gist of his statement was that he has never used drugs and that the whole affair was somehow cooked up by the Washington Post.

The fact that most of us don't believe him is our problem, not his. He doesn't have to convince us. Even if our worst suspicions are correct, all he has to do is to avoid getting caught. And that's easier for a mayor than for an ordinary Joe who might find himself under police surveillance or be trapped into making a buy from an undercover agent or have his car searched for contraband.

Mayors are immune from such indignities, and I'm not saying they shouldn't be. All I'm saying is that the odds of catching him redhanded — assuming, of course, that our suspicions are nearer to the truth than is his explanation — are not encouraging. A somewhat less remote possibility would be to get someone else to finger the mayor as part of a plea bargain.

William Raspberry

But all this speaks to what I imagine to be the mayor's problem. The tougher question is what to do about ours.

Most suggestions I've heard so far are based on the hope that Barry can be persuaded to do what is best for the city. But the reason we have a problem is that we believe he has placed his own interests above ours.

There are suggestions that he should resign to allow the city to recover its good name or to keep from tarnishing the image of black politicians nationally, that influential political and civic leaders should pressure him into resigning, or that he should confess addiction and check himself into a treatment center.

All of it strikes me as wishful thinking. Assuming he has a drug problem — which he emphatically denies — why would he choose to abandon the sanctuary of his office and become a vulnerable and jobless civilian?

The truth is, if our problem is to be resolved, there are only two ways to do it. The first is for him to get caught doing something he shouldn't be doing — unlikely for the reasons already stated. The second is for the citizens to mount a recall campaign. Don't hold your breath.

'The truth is, if our problem is to be resolved, there are only two ways to do it. The first is for him to get caught doing something he shouldn't be doing — unlikely for the reasons already stated. The second is for the citizens to mount a recall campaign. Don't hold your breath.'

If we didn't do it when we suspected him of buying drugs from another friend, Karen Johnson, or when we suspected his friends of paying her hush money or when several members of his administration were convicted of corruption, why would anyone expect us to do it now?

The likelihood is that Barry, no matter how politically crippled he may be and no matter what harm that does to the city, will serve out the remaining two years of his term — and perhaps even seek re-election in 1990.

What do we do about our embarrassment of a mayor? The first thing to do is to recognize that it is our problem, not his. And if his news conference made anything clear, it is that he is not going to solve it for us.

To the editor:

Now that the election is over and our President-elect has selected his cabinet, it appears that Congress and the State Department are finally going to try to solve the greatest problem facing the nation — the huge budget deficit. None of the candidates dealt with this issue during the campaign, a failure for which we voters are largely to blame because polls indicated that the public was more concerned with expenditures for drug enforcement and government housing. But now that the campaign hoopla is over, we're hearing serious discussions about balancing the budget. Can somebody tell me how a 50 percent pay raise for 2,500 government officials can be justified at this time? I'm not suggesting that many of these bureaucrats don't deserve a raise. But when a corporation is on the verge of bankruptcy, it's not considered good economic policy to give all the employees a bonus.

Included in the proposed pay increase plan is an amendment that would ban officials from receiving honorariums. In other words, it would be illegal for Jesse Helms or Walter B. Jones to receive money for speaking at privately sponsored functions, but it would be acceptable for the public to pick up the tab for the difference. My question is simply this: What is wrong with elected officials being free to share their knowledgeable opinions with private-sector groups as long as their appearances do not interfere with elective responsibilities? I'm more concerned about any added burden to the American taxpayer than I am about Terry Sanford's receiving money for speaking at Duke University.

In summation, I agree that many of our officials are deserving of a reasonable salary increase. So members of Congress, go to work and balance the budget. Make our economy strong again and then we'll talk pay raise.

A few years ago, a reader wrote to you about the spelling, or more correctly, the misspelling of the word "heroin" as it appeared in a front-page headline of your newspaper. The word "heroin" was used and applied in an article about the drug heroin. One does not have to be an expert in the field of English grammar to know that there is a world of difference in the meaning of the two words. Yet in a feverish attempt at self-indication, someone on your staff hauled out what was purported to be a dictionary that stated that the spelling of heroine for heroin was indeed acceptable. Now what I would like to know is this. Can someone once again pull this same dictionary from its journalistic mothballs; and if so, does it accept the spelling of the word "Guarantee" as "Quarantee," as it appeared in a headline on page 1, in Sunday's edition?

I once began a compilation of the errors in spelling that appeared over a period of time in your newspaper, but I had to abandon the effort. The task was just too demanding. Why not tighten the reins of your journalism, Mr. Newspaperman? You are insulting the reading public!

Ellen Goodman's Dec. 8 article "Did Nussbaum have a place to go?" and other recent articles of this particular case continue to ask, "Why didn't she just leave?"

Maybe fear was a primary reason for her not leaving; she had no other place to go. This story has made the headlines. Hedda lives to educate us further on family violence in understanding and sharing her trauma.

Victims in these situations often have no place to go. Our community is fortunate: we have a shelter. Family violence lives in our community: a victim could be your neighbor or a friend. We are responsible to these victims in sharing with them available resources. Lisa, Hedda's daughter, never got the chance to seek shelter, but Ms. Nussbaum has that now, and victims in Greenville do, too.

Shelters are in need of funding in order to continue to serve victims of family violence.

Paul Harvey stated on radio that Ronald Reagan should not leave the presidency before giving Ollie North a complete presidential pardon. He also said there was a similarity to when President Richard Nixon was railroaded out of office by Congress and the press, something I have emphatically believed and written and been on television about to state my views.

I hope President Reagan was listening. I hope he concurs. I cannot see advantages to America to further crucify this man. I cannot see any reason for this much-to-do-about-nothing to feed the press and hurt our image at a time when the ice is breaking and the sun is coming out for peaceful pursuits.

I noted with some interest that beginning Jan. 1 R.J. Reynolds Corporation of Winston-Salem will begin mandatory urine testing on prospective employees. The reason for this is purportedly to screen for "substance abusers."

How hypocritical can you get? RJR makes over one half of its profits by pushing one of the most toxic drugs known to science! An injection of pure nicotine the size of a pin head will kill you. Serious poison.

Tell me how a company can screen for substance abusers while addicting million with their major line of products? Things just keep getting curiouseer and curiouseer.

Hurricane-Force Winds Rake State As Cold Moves In

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

High winds downed power lines and trees across North Carolina as warm air was replaced by colder temperatures that were expected to fall into the teens this week.

Wind gusts of 70 mph were reported on the University of North Carolina at Asheville campus Tuesday evening, and a gust of 97 mph was reported on Flat Top Mountain near Asheville.

The winds forced an ambulance helicopter en route from Asheville to C.J. Harris Community Hospital to land at the Dayco plant in Waynesville, where it was met by an ambulance from the Sylva hospital, emergency officials reported. It even interrupted a basketball game between Swain County and Smoky Mountain high schools in Bryson City when the power went out briefly.

Winds gusted to 47 mph at the Asheville Airport about 8:30 p.m., and winds reached 52 mph at Smith-Reynolds Airport in Winston-Salem. Nearby, at the Piedmont Triad International Airport in Greensboro, wind gusts of up to 40 mph were reported.

The high winds were reported as far east as Durham, where a tree limb fell on a power line, knocking out electricity to 1,500 customers.

Guy Rader, a meteorologist intern for the National Weather Service at the Piedmont Triad International Airport, said the winds were caused by a strong low pressure system off the N.C. coast.

The strength of the winds surprised forecasters.

"We knew at 4 p.m. that winds could be 25-30 mph and gusty, but we didn't anticipate them to get as high as they are here," Rader said.

In the meantime, Rader was having problems of his own: The high winds had caused his computer to fail, making it difficult for him to issue reports on the weather.

Rutherford County was hard hit by the winds, with at least 3,150 households without power Tuesday night, officials with Duke Power and Rutherford Electric Membership Corp. estimated.

"We've got trees down everywhere," said a Rutherford County dispatcher. "Cars are plowing into them, but nobody's injured."

Almost all of the 10 counties in Rutherford Electric's service area — including McDowell, Mitchell and Burke counties — had reported outages as well, spokesman Joe Joplin said.

A tree fell on a car between Asheville and Skyland, trapping one person inside briefly.

Between 5,000 and 7,000 Duke Power Co. customers in north Durham were without electrical power late Tuesday, said company spokesman Connie D. Kirby.

In Chapel Hill, winds blew down a tree and power lines on University Drive, causing a brush fire that was quickly extinguished, police said. Fewer than 200 Duke Power customers lost electrical service in Chapel Hill, said spokesman Michael A. Mullen.

He said scattered outages were reported in a "pretty widespread" area across the Piedmont. "What we have is limbs being blown onto power lines," he said.

Mullen said about 2,000 Winston-Salem homes were left without power Tuesday night after high winds hit the county about 7:30 p.m. Scattered power outages were reported throughout Forsyth County, he said.

Fewer than 2,000 homes in the Charlotte area without power, Mullen said. He expected service to be restored by this morning.

Between 200 and 300 Carolina Power & Light Co. customers each in Cary, Garner and Zebulon also were without power late Tuesday night, said CP&L spokesman Elizabeth Bean. In Raleigh, an estimated 50 customers near Western Boulevard and "a few scattered here and there" were without power, she said.

In Charlotte, a fallen tree smashed the roof and broke windows in a 1979 Mercury parked at the Busy Bee Market. "It messed it up pretty bad," said Charles McClure, who

GOP Legislators Discuss Speakership

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Republican legislators said there was no chance they could defeat House Speaker Liston Ramsey and that a series of regional caucuses are being held only to help the GOP get organized before the start of the legislative session.

Rep. Johnathan Rhyne, R-Lincoln, who said he plans a symbolic candidacy for Ramsey's office, said rumors that he was hatching a plot with dissident Democrats to defeat Ramsey was ruining his efforts to develop any kind of working relationship with Ramsey.

"If I thought that something could be done on that, I wouldn't be here behind my desk in Lincolnton," he said in a telephone interview.

"It would be nice if we could do something," he said. "There's no hope in unseating Liston Ramsey; and I'm not going to waste any more of my time even discussing it."

In the upcoming legislative session, Democrats will outnumber Republicans in the House of Representatives 74-46. For Republicans to elect a speaker, they would have to form a coalition with at least 14 Democrats.

The Republican Party meetings are set for today in High Point and Lincolnton and Thursday in Raleigh, the Greensboro News and Record reported in today's editions. Personnel with the Radisson Hotel in High Point confirmed that space was reserved Wednesday night for a Republican Party caucus.

State Rep.-elect Steve Arnold, a Republican from High Point, said Tuesday he was invited to the meeting in High Point by Rep.

Charles Cromer, R-Davidson. Cromer is the House minority whip. He said Cromer told him the meeting would be about "electing a speaker and what we should do as the Republican Party."

Cromer, contacted Tuesday at his law office in Lexington, said, "I don't know anything about a meeting to discuss the speaker's race."

He then said it was a simple meeting to help Republicans get organized before the start of the legislative session.

He said the only plan was to put the name of Rhyne, the House minority leader, in nomination for speaker and his own name in nomination for speaker pro-tem. He then said he didn't want to discuss the matter further.

Rhyne would neither confirm nor deny anything about the meetings.

However, he did say he has informed Grace Collins, the clerk of the state House of Representatives who will preside over the opening of the Jan. 11 opening session, that he intends to run for speaker and Cromer intends to run for speaker pro-tem.

He said his challenge would be symbolic. "Since we've had a different point of view on things, it wasn't true to vote for people we didn't agree with," he said.

Two years ago, in the election of the speaker, the House Republicans nominated and voted for then House Minority Leader Betsy Cochrane, R-Davie, against Ramsey, who has been speaker since 1981.

Last month the Democratic caucus nominated Ramsey, 68, a Madison County legislator, to a fifth term. That nomination should be tantamount to election.

Air Force Says Wind Caused Bragg Death

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — No charges have been filed as the result of a second Air Force investigation that shows air turbulence apparently caused an airplane to veer off course during a September jump at Fort Bragg and hit the parachutes of three soldiers, killing one of them.

"The pilots are still flying," said Capt. Brian Irving, a spokesman for Pope Air Force Base. "They're back doing their jobs."

The report states that "Fort Bragg Pfc. Joseph H. Kutzler became entangled with his partially deployed reserve parachute and was fatally injured" in the 9:43 p.m. jump at Sicily Drop Zone on Sept. 26.

Kutzler, 20, was a native of Dodge Center, Minn.

First Lt. David Koltermann testified that he initially hit some rough turbulence but was able to control his C-130, the report released Tuesday said. But only four paratroopers left the plane before copilot Capt. Raymond G. Miller stopped the jump.

"Then our left wing just dropped. It was just a sudden drop," Koltermann told Col. Phillip E. Jackey Jr., the investigating officer. "It seemed like the left wing just fell out of the sky, and immediately I applied

Koltermann said the airplane did not respond and he applied maximum power to regain control.

Koltermann's testimony was corroborated by other members of the crew and by observers who saw the airplane's flight path.

No one on the airplane realized it had hit the paratroopers, who had jumped out a plane ahead of the out-of-control aircraft.

"The crew realized that they were crossing beneath and behind their element lead aircraft; however, they did not observe any paratroopers in their immediate vicinity," the report said.

The investigation was ordered by the commander of the 21st Air Force, the higher headquarters for Pope Air Force Base and the 317th Tactical Airlift Wing based there.

An earlier investigation by the Air Force Inspection and Safety Center at Norton Air Force Base, Calif., confirmed that the airplane collided with the parachutes of three paratroopers. But that report did not say why the aircraft hit the parachutes.

The two surviving paratroopers, PFCs Jerry A. Blackwell and William J. Laek, both members of the 2nd Battalion, 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment, were able to pull their reserve parachutes.

Martin Comes Under Fire Again Over BEP

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin, who was criticized last month when he suggested halving the next installment on the Basic Education Program, came under fire again when he proposed eliminating 505 vacant state jobs to make the full payment on the BEP.

"My concern is that everything in the state budget ought to be put on the table. I don't think there's any more of an excuse to let education waste money than the state auditor. I don't condone anybody given a free rein or being sacrosanct," State Auditor Ed Renfrow said Tuesday after a meeting of the Council of State, which consists of 10 elected state officials, including the governor.

Also, Martin's budget chief, C.C. Cameron, said that many worthwhile government programs were being shortchanged because the education budget was considered "hands-off" while other areas faced cutbacks.

"But you know what's happened to the governor every time he says that — the media clobbers him, saying he's against education," Cameron said.

The discussion stemmed from a memo Martin wrote last week asking state government department heads to identify 505 jobs that could be eliminated and user fees that could be increased to generate money for the fiscal 1989-90 budget.

The plan would not require layoffs because the administration last month ordered that 1,700 vacancies go unfilled temporarily, Cameron said.

Martin's request stems from an unexpected slowdown in tax collections that has led analysts to predict that only $232 million will be available for permanent additions to next year's budget — far below the $3.4 billion in new spending being sought.

Last month, Martin proposed halving the fifth-year installment of the Basic Education Program, an $800 million blueprint for upgrading North Carolina's schools. He said the program, which is being implemented over eight years, could be put back on track in 1990-91, when the revenue picture is expected to improve.

But his plan drew criticism from the Advisory Budget Commission, a group dominated by Democratic legislative leaders. Aides to the governor said last week Martin had withdrawn the plan and would request the full $113 million BEP installment.

Added to other spending priorities — Medicare benefit increases ordered by Congress, prison improvements required in a lawsuit settlement, funds for state employees' health insurance — almost no money is left for other spending increases.

During Tuesday's meeting, Renfrow and State Treasurer Harlan Boyles asked Martin why relatively small departments such as theirs should sacrifice personnel.

The governor's memo "is asking us to give up something when maybe we don't have to give up," Boyles said. "It really bothers me that we're taking this tack. ... I can understand when you say we don't have any new money, but let me take my fair chances with the General Assembly" on funding for existing positions and programs.

The process of developing the budget is flawed when agencies and interest groups request billions of dollars more than the state takes in, he said.

"Every time the revenue gets tight, we come around and bleed everybody a certain amount," Renfrow said. "That means you bleed your efficient operations and you bleed the fat operations where cuts probably should be made."

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said his programs were as important as any, including education.

"If you cut the agriculture budget you'll hurt the people of this state," Graham said. "If you want to cut off your throat, go to 'E' — education, energy, environment and all that. But remember, the top of the alphabet is 'A' — agriculture."

Insurance Commissioner Jim Long also expressed unhappiness with the requested job eliminations, but said in an interview he had no quarrel with keeping the BEP on schedule.

"I don't think any item should be a sacred cow," Long said. "Everything should be reviewed carefully. But the BEP has probably been reviewed more carefully than other programs of state government because it's a newer program."

Plant Closing?

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin returned home from a one-day trip to Champion International headquarters here convinced that the papermaker will close its Canton, N.C., mill if forced to live by stricter discharge limits into the Pigeon River.

Martin neither asked for nor received a request to intervene in the stalemate between Champion and Tennessee, which 10 days ago refused to relax water quality standards for the company.

"I'm frankly not optimistic about the long term future of the Canton plant ...," Martin said. "Champion cannot justify making major investments at Canton to modernize and improve the efficiency of the plant without a permit that generates confidence in the future."

Trial Shifted

DURHAM (AP) — A woman charged in the fatal shooting of her husband, a Durham High School baseball coach, will be tried in Lee County because of publicity about the case, a judge ruled.

Superior Court Judge Anthony M. Brannon ordered the change in venue Tuesday for Barbara T. Stager, 39, at the request of her attorneys, who said publicity made a fair trial impossible in Durham County.

Mrs. Stager is charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Allison Russell "Russ" Stager III on Feb. 1.

Gasoline Spill

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A road grader engaged in routine fire break maintenance on Fort Bragg pierced a pipeline, spilling an estimated 2,000 gallons of premium gasoline before the rupture was brought under control, officials said.

The spill was in the northeast training area of the military reservation and about eight-tenths of a mile from the nearest inhabitants, said Maj. Baxter Ennis of the 18th Airborne Corps public affairs office.

Ennis said a mound of dirt was constructed around the spill area to contain it. The pipeline belonged to Colonial Pipeline Co. Ennis said the accident was reported between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Tuesday.

"We're not expecting a significant environmental impact," Ennis said. "The ground was very wet, so the gasoline did not soak in very rapidly."

Choppers Cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said Tuesday it has inspected its fleet of CH-47D Chinook helicopters without finding any faulty transmissions and returned them to flight status.

It grounded its 234 medium-lift Chinooks on Dec. 23 in what it termed a precautionary move after the manufacturer, the Boeing Co., reported that "certain transmissions may have been improperly assembled."

Inspections of the aircraft, however, failed to uncover any such problem, Army spokeswoman Paige Eversole said Tuesday.

Back In Court

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A Wilson man released from a state prison in September after serving less than two years on a second-degree rape conviction appeared in court Tuesday after being charged with three sexual offenses.

Wilson Police detective J.L. Bass said Kenneth Ray Ellis, 25, was charged Saturday with attempted first-degree rape, second-degree forcible rape and second-degree forcible sexual offense.

Bass said Ellis was arrested after a report came in that an 8-year-old youth had been attacked near her home. The other charges stemmed from a Thursday night sexual assault case involving a 15-year-old girl, Bass said.

Teen-Ager Held

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A High Point teen-ager arrested Sunday night in Georgia in connection with the shooting death of a Moped driver here has been charged, along with his mother and two others, in the robbery and beating of a Thomasville man.

Jeffrey Lynn Tucker's co-defendants in the Thomasville case are his mother, 48-year-old Patricia Robinette Tucker; Jeffrey Lynn Spivey, 20; and Bobbi Hill, 19.

The four are charged in the Nov. 30 robbery and beating of Worth Thomas, 64, who was threatened with a gun, beaten with a frying pan and robbed of $426, police said.

Spivey also faces a murder charge in Davidson County in the beating death of Travis Coleman, police said.

High Point police had sought Tucker in the Dec. 20 shooting of Donald Ray Logan, 32, who was robbed and shot and his Moped stolen and wrecked.

in the weekend shooting death of an 18-year-old man.

Officials say John Johnson and Jonathan Hough, both 18, were being held in the Guilford County Jail without bond in the death of Darryl Leroy Leach.

Leach was shot once in head Saturday when shots were fired through his bedroom window.

Deputy Killed

GREENSBORO (AP) — An off-duty Lee County deputy sheriff was killed early Tuesday in a shooting that police said stemmed from a domestic quarrel.

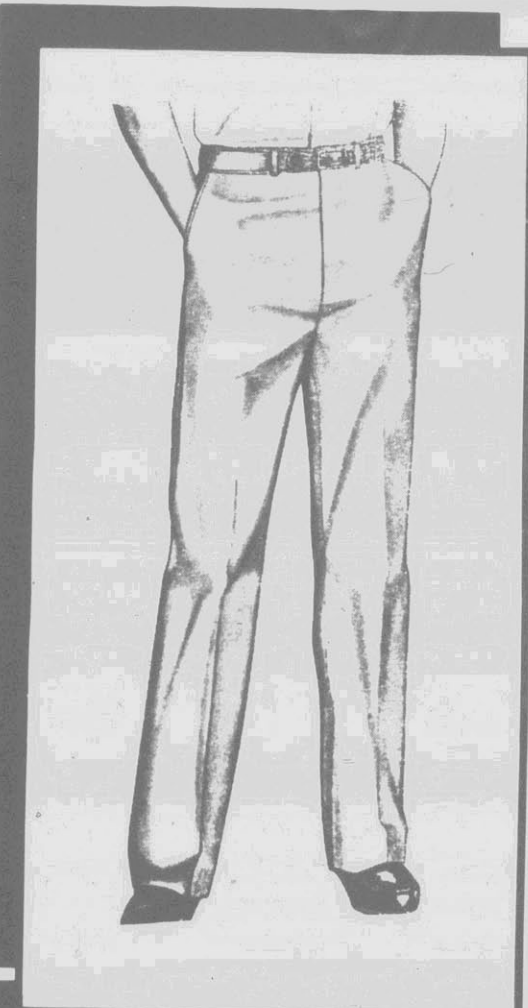

William Doyle Turner III, 22, of Sanford died about 2 a.m. after being shot in the neck and chest with a shotgun.

James Douglas Smith Jr., 28, of Greensboro, was charged with first-degree murder and was being held in the Guilford County Jail without bond, said Lt. Jim Hightower of the Greensboro Police Department.

Democratic-Controlled Congress Opens With Wave Of Optimism, Eyes On Pay

By Steven Komarow
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Leaders of the newly convened 101st Congress are speaking kindly of President-elect Bush, and they're talking about cleaning up Capitol Hill's image of corruption — especially if they can get a pay raise, too.

The ceremonial start of the new session on Tuesday gushed with optimism about what could be accomplished in the next two years, with the Congress more firmly in Democratic control and with a new Republican in the White House.

"By working together, we can help our new president fulfill his beautiful promise of a kinder, gentler America," said Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, upon his re-election Tuesday as Speaker of the House.

On the other side of the Capitol, Bush, in his role of vice president, administered the oath of office to new and re-elected senators. Former Majority leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., was elected president pro tempore of the Senate, as George Mitchell, D-Maine, took the floor in Byrd's old role.

In a sign of cooperation, Senate leaders are arranging to speed up work on confirming Bush's appointments. Hearings on Secretary of State-designate James A. Baker III are scheduled to start Jan. 17 — three days before Bush becomes president and can send the nomination to Congress.

Today, Bush leads a joint session of Congress to count the electoral votes that will make him president on Jan. 20.

Wright pledged "the earnest and unstinting cooperation of the leadership of this House" in helping Bush with his foreign policy goals, and the speaker even thanked his outgoing adversary, President Reagan, for his international successes and "encouraging the growth and sustenance of political freedom in countries throughout the world."

The speaker listed the federal budget and trade deficits and a myriad of social needs as requiring bipartisan cooperation.

And he announced that he and Republican leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., will soon appoint a bipartisan panel to review the House's ethics code.

Wright himself is at the center of an ethics storm in the Congress. The House ethics committee is investigating allegations that Wright misused his office for personal gain, and that he revealed government secrets.

Concurrent with the ethics controversy is a new proposal to give lawmakers a pay raise of up to 50 percent, and the two issues have become intertwined.

A presidential advisory board has recommended increasing pay for lawmakers from the current $89,500 to $135,000, but it said at the same time House and Senate members should be banned from accepting fees for their speeches. Critics contend that allowing members to pocket up to $2,000 for their speeches — often to lobbying groups — reinforces the public's low opinion of Capitol Hill ethics.

Reagan is expected to propose soon a pay raise smaller than the commission recommended, and that raise would take effect March 1 unless both houses of Congress first vote it down.

"If the president goes ahead and proposes a pay raise we're prepared to go ahead and eliminate the honorariums," said Rep. Tony Coelho of California, the third-ranking Democrat in the House.

Democratic leaders hope to avoid making members vote on the pay raise, but Republican Rep. Tom Tauke of Iowa announced Tuesday that he was introducing legislation, with the support of three dozen lawmakers from both parties, to prevent any sidestepping.

The bill would prevent Congress from taking a pay raise without voting on it first, and would delay the boost until after the next election.

"This legislation not only prevents members from voting for a pay increase for themselves during their current term of office, it would also require each member to take a public stand on this issue," he said. "At the very least, we owe this to our constituents."

Talk of a tax increase — something Bush has vowed to fight — also cropped up as Congress launched another year of battling the federal budget deficit. But leaders refused to let such seriousness interfere with the pomp of the first day.

As the top Republican and Democratic officers from both chambers gathered to receive a ceremonial phone call from Reagan, reporters asked about the chances for a tax boost this year.

The leaders just laughed.

ERA Backers Say States Will Be Battleground For Adoption

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment made it the first order of business for the new Congress but say the real battleground for its adoption is in the state legislatures where it died in 1982.

"Our foremothers never gave up on the right to vote until we won, and we will never give up on the Equal Rights Amendment until we have won," Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women, told a Capitol Hill news conference.

"We are certainly not giving up," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who was joined by 128 other House members in co-sponsoring the ERA as House Joint Resolution 1 before the new Congress as it convened on Tuesday.

Yard said the campaign for passage would concentrate on state legislatures, where she said women would need to control one-third of the seats, about twice the share they now hold, to ensure the measure's ratification.

"It's shocking to me that on the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, women are still not in it," Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said.

The nation celebrated the bicentennial of the signing and ratification of the Constitution in 1987 and 1988.

The Equal Rights Amendment, which would prohibit sex discrimination, came closest to passage nearly seven years ago, having been approved by Congress and 35 state legislatures. The proposed amendment still needed approval by three more state legislatures when time for its ratification expired on June 30, 1982.

It was re-introduced in Congress in 1983, 1985 and 1987 but did not win the two-thirds support needed to be submitted to the states again. The Republican Party has withdrawn its support for the proposed amendment. And President-elect Bush, who once supported the ERA, also has changed his mind.

But Yard said she remained hopeful that such a proposal would be adopted before the end of the century.

Edwards said he was encouraged by the number of co-sponsors of the proposal, but said he did not know whether it would make it through Congress this time.

Reagan Facing Surgery On Crippled Ring Finger

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan will undergo surgery in Washington Saturday for a long-standing and worsening condition that causes the ring finger of his left hand to bend inward and resist straightening.

The president will enter Walter Reed Army Hospital on Friday and is expected to return to the White House on Sunday. Dr. John Hutton, the White House physician, announced Tuesday.

Hutton said the president will be operated on for a disease known as Dupuytren's contracture. "This procedure should not interrupt his normal schedule, other than the obvious presence of a dressing on the left hand," the doctor said.

"The president's contracture was minimal but present when he took office in 1981, and has been followed over the past eight years," he said. "Within the past year, it has progressed to the degree that surgical therapy is now necessary."

He said the surgery is expected to take two to three hours. The president's arm will be put to sleep, but no general anaesthetic is planned, he said.

Dr. Charles Lane, a hand specialist in private practice in Beverly Hills, said the cause of Dupuytren's contracture is not known.

The disease is named for a French surgeon and anatomist who described it in 1833.

It strikes men more often than women, but as many as one in every five people over age 60 are likely to be afflicted with it, according to information provided by the hand surgery section of the orthopedic department at Walter Reed. Reagan is 77.

"It pulls the finger down so the finger can't be straightened," Lane said. "So the finger gets in the way, particularly for such things — which might be a problem for Mr. Reagan — as shaking hands."

"Also, it's hard when you shave and try to get your hand in your pockets," he said.

The curving of the fingers is caused by thickening of the gristle below the skin, Lane said.

He said the operation, although delicate, is not particularly risky.

The president and first lady are to fly to the White House on Thursday after two weeks of relaxing at their new Bel Air home in Los Angeles and visiting friends in Palm Springs.

It will be Reagan's first surgery since he had an operation for an enlarged prostate in January 1987. He also underwent surgery in July 1985 for cancer of the colon and has been operated on for skin cancer.

In the past, Reagan has gone to Bethesda Naval Hospital, in the Maryland suburbs just outside Washington.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Roman Popadiuk said Walter Reed was chosen because the doctors who would do the operation were located there.

The procedure is scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m. EST. Hutton said the president is expected to be walking around by afternoon.

Two Killed In Hostage Crisis

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOVELAND, Colo. — A prison parolee demanding a plane to Libya grabbed about 20 hostages in a restaurant, killing one before he was fatally shot by police, who accidentally killed another hostage, officials said today.

Wayne Strozzi of Larimer County also wounded two officers before he died at McKee Medical Center of gunshot wounds to the head and abdomen late Tuesday, authorities said.

Strozzi, recently paroled from the state prison in Canon City, first assaulted his girlfriend at her apartment here and then went to his nearby house, where police followed him and chased him on foot to the Riverhouse Restaurant on U.S. Highway 34, said police Sgt. Ray Miller.

At the restaurant, Strozzi held about 20 of the patrons and staff at gunpoint for about an hour, demanding a plane to Libya, Miller said.

Strozzi, in his early 30s, was apparently angered that his girlfriend had begun dating another man while he was in prison, police said. He had served 2½ years on cocaine charges.

Sally Mills, a waitress at the restaurant, and Fenton Croakshank, a customer, were killed, said Larimer County District Attorney Stu VanMeveren.

Mills, in her 40s, was shot by Strozzi as snipers fired on the gunman, VanMeveren said. She died later at the hospital. Croakshank, 31, was killed at the scene by a Loveland police officer as the patron dove through a restaurant window fleeing, he said.

VanMeveren refused to name the officer who shot Croakshank.

Another female hostage was treated and released for lacerations on her foot caused by shattered glass, authorities said.

Police Officer Joe Berdin and Larimer County Sheriff's Deputy J. Hirokawa were being treated at the hospital for gunshot wounds to the arms, said Carol Matheis-Kraft, assistant hospital administrator. Berdin was in good condition and Hirokawa was treated and released.

Female Cop Goes In Transit Undercover

The Associated Press

Nancy Gardner and Roger Fanti, watch for robberies

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Gardner hangs out on the subway platform defiantly chain-smoking, a tough customer in leather and denim. Other commuters give her wide berth.

Anybody can see she's looking for trouble.

And when it arrives — often in groups of teen-age thugs who victimize people in and around subway stations — Gardner wants nothing more than to get in the thick of it.

For the last three months, that's been her job.

As part of an elite, 23-officer plainclothes unit of the transit police known as the Repeat Offender Robbery Strike Force, Gardner and her partner, Officer Roger Fanti, spend hours loitering around subway stations, waiting for crime to happen and trying to ensure that the subway offers no escape.

So far, the unit has chalked up 42 arrests, and Gardner is responsible for eight of those.

"I especially get satisfaction out of robbery arrests," said Gardner.

26, who at 5-foot-4 and 110 pounds, has had to push around perpetrators twice her size. "A lot of bad guys show no remorse and don't think twice about taking people's property and leaving them injured and bleeding. We try to get the best possible case so they do time."

One evening during the busy Christmas shopping season, Gardner and Fanti spent hours following a group of teen-agers as they tried to rob a shopper at Macy's, wandered in and out of the subway and nearby stores and finally made a grab for racks of clothes from one shop.

Four of the would-be shoplifters ended up in handcuffs, and Gardner suffered a bruised knee in the struggle. She knows that violence comes with the job, but it is a job she always has wanted to do.

"When I was growing up, I always thought cops were heroes," said Gardner, a 3 1/2-year veteran of the transit police who hopes to become a detective. "Now I want to make a difference for my son. Every little bit counts."

Friend Needs Dressing Tips

Dear Abby: Every year for the last several years I have asked my friend "Zelda" to join my family and a few close friends for Thanksgiving dinner. Zelda is a kind, considerate, unmarried woman who is treated rather coolly by the women and is ogled by their husbands. She doesn't understand the problem — but I do. As my husband puts it, "She dresses like a streetwalker." Her clothes are too tight and her necklines are too low. I have seen her in more modest attire — but not often.

Abby, what do you make of her behavior? She is quite defensive when advice is proffered (on any subject). She is a wonderful friend and I don't want to hurt her feelings, but I wish I could tell her how others perceive her manner of dress.

Do you have any ideas? Maybe one of your readers has had this problem and knows how to handle it. — Stumped In Texas

Dear Stumped: There is nothing quite so risky as telling a friend something "for her own good," but since you have seen Zelda in more modest attire, when you next invite her, ask her to wear "that little black dress" she looks so great in. And if she shows up again looking like a hooker — well, at least you tried.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I would like to respond to the church organist in Cincinnati who said, "Applauding in a house of worship is disrespectful and unacceptable behavior."

I would question a society that applauds vigorously for a hard tackle in a football game, but thinks it's inappropriate to applaud a minister's sermon, a choir's inspirational hymn or a couple's first kiss after a marriage ceremony.

I am sure I am not the only person who has had the desire to clap or cheer after a touching moment in church. Why should it be considered disrespectful? The Bible states: "Make a joyful sound to the Lord ... break forth into joyous song and sing praises ... Let the floods clap their hands; let the hills sing for joy together before the Lord." (Psalms 98:4-9)

As for me, I applaud people who are willing to commit themselves to someone they love in this day and age of cohabitation. — Clap-Happy In Richmond

Dear Clap-Happy: I'm with you. Applause indicates appreciation, and what better place to make a joyful sound than in a house of worship?

Dear Abby: The Holy Family School in Redmond, Wash., presented a drug-alcohol educational program, after which each student was asked to write an evaluation of the program.

I am enclosing one written by a 10-year-old student. His thinking is much better than his spelling. I wish more parents thought the way this boy thinks.

I hope you can find space for it in your column, Abby. — Florence C.

Dear Florence: Find space? I'll MAKE space!

"My evaluation of the Drug-Alcohol Education program: I don't think that I learned anything new. The way I think the program should work is that you should learn from your parents. After all, there the ones you go home to every night. There the ones that put the roof over your head and besides if somebody has a drug problem, it is the family who is in charge of it."

"The whole school isn't your family physically, is it? No! If you have a problem, you would usually go to your parents, right? Yes!

"And I am pretty mad that you have to learn it from your teacher rather than from your parents." — Nathan

Bomber Jacket Is Perfect Project

Pat's Pointers
Pat Trexler

Reasonably priced, easy and fast, this is the perfect project to start 1989. Sleeves with soft fullness at the top and an easy crocheted edging make this a truly versatile jacket.

The gauge is just two stitches to the inch, and easy-to-follow directions are written for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36", 39" and 42", inches respectively.

To obtain directions for knitting the Bomber Jacket, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-010189 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-010189 by sending a check or money order for $29.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of gray, bone or colonial blue.

My New Year's resolution was to bring to my readers more pattern stitches to help bring more excitement and interest to your knitting and crocheting. Let's start with some of the simplest — those that are just a combination of knits and purls.

Beginners who realize they are working pattern stitches when they are doing garter stitch (knit every row), stockinette (knit right-side rows and purl wrong-side rows) and a basic ribbing (alternating knits and purls), are more willing to try other pattern stitches.

With many pattern stitches, you will be given a "multiple of stitches" — a term that is confusing to many people. This simply means that to have the pattern work out as planned, it must be worked on a specific number of stitches, which is the knitting definition of "multiple."

For example, a multiple of four stitches means you must work with a number of stitches evenly divisible by four, such as eight, 12, 16 and so on. The following patterns simply call for an odd or even number of stitches, but clip and save this paragraph to refresh your memory in case you forget this definition of "multiple."

There is an interesting tale about the pattern known as Wager, or All Fool's Welt. It seems that in jolly old England, those in the know used to bet others that they could not guess how many rows were purled in this pattern and seldom lost the wager.

BOMBER JACKET

For this pattern, which can be worked on any number of stitches, knit all stitches on the first row, purl all on the second and knit all stitches on rows 3 through 8. A sample swatch will show you why so few people would guess correctly.

Next try the seed stitch, on an odd number of stitches. Knit the first stitch, then (1) purl 1, (2) knit 1 and repeat steps 1 and 2 across the row. Work every row in this manner. On an even number of stitches, Row 1 is worked the same except that it ends with a purl instead of a knit stitch. For Row 2, start with a purl across in the same way, ending with a knit stitch.

The double seed stitch is a variation with a very different effect. On an odd number of stitches, Row 1 is worked the same as for seed stitch; on Row 2, start and end the row with a purl stitch, alternating knits and purls across the row. At this point, your work will look like a knit 1, purl 1 ribbing. The difference becomes apparent when you work the third and fourth rows as follows: Row 3, repeat Row 2, and for Row 4, repeat Row 1. Repeat these four rows in this sequence for desired length.

Issues Discussed

"Folks in 1988, we're at the crossroads again. We'll either educate or incarcerate," he said, noting that about 80 percent of those in state prisons were school dropouts.

Karen Garr, president of the N.C. Association of Educators, said, "We must have an educable and educated population."

In order to meet that goal, the curriculum needs to be revised to permit higher thinking, analyses and imagination in the classroom, and success must be measured through outcomes beyond those of a test, she said.

"Teachers are leaders. I believe that's the way it should be, but I don't think that's the way it is in North Carolina."

The forum is evidence of that, Ms. Garr said, questioning how many teachers were invited and how many chose not to attend because they do view themselves as leaders.

Also, there needs to be school-based decision-making that allows all

Navy Fighters Down Two Libyan Jets

(Continued from A-1) near south-southwest of the Greek island of Crete, 120 to 130 miles north of Libya when the incident occurred about 5 a.m. EST (noon local time).

The sources said the dogfight occurred between 40 and 50 miles off the Libyan coast and that the "missile engagement" began when the U.S. and Libyan jets were about 15 miles apart.

The two MiG-23s were spotted by radar taking off from the Al Bumba airfield in eastern Libya, climbing to 9,000 feet and then accelerating and closing in on the F-14s, which were at 15,000 feet, the sources said.

"They came out and headed directly for the F-14s," said one source. "The F-14s maneuvered to determine the intent of the Libyan aircraft, but every time they turned the Libyans followed," one source said.

"The F-14 pilots made the decision to shoot after the Libyan aircraft turned on their targeting radar. That decision you have to make in the cockpit."

Sources said there were no indications that the Libyans fired before the two American jets downed them with three radar-guided Sparrow missiles and one heat-seeking Sidewinder missile.

Pentagon officials said U.S. ships had not been involved in any rescue operation for the two Libyan pilots but that Libyan ships had been spotted in the area, apparently conducting search-and-rescue operations.

Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said, "Indications are that Libya violated what we call the rules of engagement ... They maneuvered themselves into a position to be able to shoot down American planes. The rules of engagement permit self-defense in those circumstances."

"Under those circumstances, ... clearly it was Libya that took the provocative action," Nunn, D-Ga., told Atlanta radio station WGST.

In Rome, Libya's ambassador to Italy, Abdel Rahman Shalgam, called today's incident "a unilateral act" and a "dangerous" action. He declined to say how Libya would respond.

The Libyan Foreign Ministry said that as "Libyan reconnaissance aircraft were carrying out a patrol over international waters, U.S. aircraft carried out a premeditated attack on them and shot them down."

Libya's official JANA news agency said the Foreign Ministry ordered its United Nations representative to "present an urgent complaint to the Security Council concerning the aggression perpetrated by the U.S.A. against two Libyan reconnaissance planes ... and to demand the holding of an urgent Security Council meeting on this subject."

President Reagan was awakened and informed of the aerial confrontation about an hour after it occurred, Popadiuk said. He said national security adviser Colin L. Powell telephoned the president after speaking with White House chief of staff Kenneth Duberstein about the incident.

The awakening of Reagan contrasted with an incident in August 1981 in which White House aides ran into criticism for not awakening the president after a similar encounter between U.S. and Libyan jets.

Popadiuk said he had no information on how far off the coast the U.S. planes were or the nature of the operations they were conducting when they were threatened.

The incident came amid rising tensions and concern over what the United States says is a newly constructed plant to make chemical weapons about 35 miles southwest of the Libyan capital, Tripoli.

On Tuesday, U.S. officials said for the first time they had evidence the plant had started producing limited quantities of chemical weapons and has conducted trial runs of its production equipment.

Libya has claimed the plant will make pharmaceuticals and offered to let international experts inspect the plant. The United States claimed the offer was inadequate.

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi has claimed that the United States is using the allegations as a pretext to attack his North African country.

The Pentagon sources denied that the U.S. jets had been airborne as part of an attack on the plant. Popadiuk said he did not know whether the circumstances were related.

Reagan pointedly refused to rule out a military strike at the plant, and the United States was scheduled to discuss the plant at a conference of allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris beginning Saturday.

Lewis Takes Oath

"It demonstrated rather early on a rather remarkable capacity Judge Lewis has ... to see the extraordinary in the commonplace," Rouse said.

In the paper, Rouse said Lewis described several functions a tobacco stick could serve, such as a baseball bat, a disciplinary tool, an anchor for tomato plants or a post for a chicken coop.

"(But) the thing that I remember most was his description of a tobacco stick for use as a pony," Rouse said, describing how a child can tie a rope to one end of the stick and hip-hop around as if riding a pony.

Rouse also spoke more seriously of Lewis and the qualifications he brings to the appeals court. Lewis' father served as mayor of Farmville and his uncle was once a Pitt County commissioner, and Lewis is a certified military judge and has achieved the rank of captain in the Naval Reserves.

"He brings to the Court of Appeals a tradition of service," Rouse said. "Judge Lewis justly earned a good reputation among those members of the bar that appeared before him, for fairness and the willingness to listen."

Lewis' cousin, W.H. "Bill" Lewis Jr., a Farmville attorney, also spoke to the crowd. As children, he said he and his cousin learned of politics and the importance of public service from their parents.

State Supreme Court justices in attendance were Louis B. Meyer, Burley B. Mitchell Jr., John Webb and Willis P. Whichard.

Superior Court Judges Herbert O. Phillips III of Morehead City, Charles C. Lamm Jr. of Boone and Richard B. Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids were also in attendance, as were state Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. of Farmville, state Sen. Ed Warren of Greenville, state Sen. R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel and members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Franklin Freeman Jr., director of the state Administrative Office of the Courts in Raleigh, and Dallas Cameron, assistant director, also attended.

Court

The North Carolina Code of Judicial Conduct says a judge must remove himself from a case when he or she is related within the third degree of kinship to someone involved in the proceedings.

In the Robersonville pigeon case, one member of the adjustment board, Maggie Plateel, is a niece of the defendants, Mr. and Mrs. Leggett. Based on the judicial guideline of kinship, it has been ruled that Ms. Plateel should have disqualified herself from taking part in the board of adjustment proceedings.

Because she did not disqualify herself, the N.C. Court of Appeals this week returned the case to Martin County Superior Court.

Because the case was on appeal, the Leggett couple has continued to keep the pigeon loft in their back yard.

Duke, Carolina Post Wins Blue Devils Top Washington; Heels Pop Pepperdine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEATTLE — The top-ranked Duke Blue Devils may be back in Seattle for the Final Four in April, but coach Mike Krzyzewski says it's too soon to make hotel reservations.

The Blue Devils were impressive Tuesday night in an 87-61 victory over Washington, but they weren't that impressive.

"We've been to the Final Four before," Krzyzewski said. "We know what it takes to get there, but we're not there yet."

Duke guard Quin Snyder, returning to old home town, was in foul trouble most of the night and finished with two points and 10 assists.

"We're having some problems right now," said Snyder. "We played below par, especially with all the turnovers."

"Quin did a good job," said Krzyzewski. "He wasn't as bothered by the hometown crowd as he was with his foul trouble."

The ninth-year Duke coach was upset by the team's 17 turnovers in the first half and 23 in the game.

"We can't commit 17 turnovers in the first half and compete for a championship in our league," he said.

The Blue Devils were led by John Smith with 17 points, 15 in the second half, and Danny Ferry with 16, nine points below his average for the first nine games this season.

"I don't think we can necessarily be happy with our play tonight even though we won," said Ferry. "We had so many fouls on defense and, offensively, we had too many turnovers."

Duke, 10-0, plays Davidson in a non-conference game in Durham, N.C., Thursday night before resuming Atlantic Coast Conference play Saturday at Virginia. The Blue Devils are 1-0 in ACC play.

Washington, 3-7 overall and 0-2 in Pacific-10 Conference play, is at Washington State in a league game Saturday afternoon.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Huskies.

"Duke is a very good team," said Washington's Dion Brown. "They don't run as well as Arizona. They basically get their points in the half-court offense."

Washington lost 116-61 to eighth-ranked Arizona in Tucson on Dec.

20, the worst defeat in the Huskies' basketball history.

"I think Mike (Krzyzewski) would agree that we caught them on an off night," said Washington Coach Andy Russo. "but we couldn't take advantage of that."

Smith, a 6-foot-7 reserve forward, hit a pair of three-pointers early in the second half to help put the game out of reach.

"Smith's role off the bench was critical," said Krzyzewski. "His two three-pointers in the second half were very important."

Washington trailed 40-32 at intermission and 51-44 after a pair of Mark West free throws 5:15 into the second half. Smith sank his first three-pointer with 14:30 left in the game, then canned another after a free throw by Eldridge Recasner for a 57-45 Duke lead with 12:25 left.

"We had more patience and cared for the ball a lot better in the second half," Krzyzewski said.

Chris Laettner added 13 for Duke, while Washington was led by Recasner and Brown with 15 each and West with 13.

"We're kind of playing like an all-star team rather than together as a unit," said Washington's Mike Hayward. "The light at the end of the tunnel is knowing that we have good athletes. We just don't have the chemistry or intensity that Duke has right now."

"We definitely have the potential to be as good or better than them."

Russo said the only solution was to keep working hard in practice.

"We've tried all the psychological tricks," he said. "Maybe when it finally comes back, it will last longer."

North Carolina.....102 Pepperdine 80

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dean Smith received a pleasant surprise and reached a milestone when his Tar Heels faced Pepperdine.

"I didn't expect anything like this," Smith said after his sixth-ranked Tar Heels defeated the Waves 102-80 Tuesday night. "I read in today's USA Today that they were 46th in the country. I expected them to play like they did against UC Irvine (a 26-point Pepperdine victory)."

The victory was the 650th in Smith's 28 seasons at North Carolina and the 10th straight for the Tar Heels, who never trailed.

Jeff Lebo's six points helped North Carolina to a 16-6 lead after a little more than four minutes to play.

The Tar Heels expanded their lead to 35-17 midway through the first half with Rick Fox scoring five points during a 17-5 run, and were on top 55-31 at halftime.

North Carolina hit 21 of 37 shots during the first half while Pepperdine made just 12 of 30.

"Maybe they were trying too hard too early, and we played very well," Smith said. "Its pleasing to be on the road, look up and you're leading by 20. We showed more patience than we did against San Diego State."

"But we play DePaul on Thursday, and there'll be 18,000 people in the stands and we'll know more about ourselves."

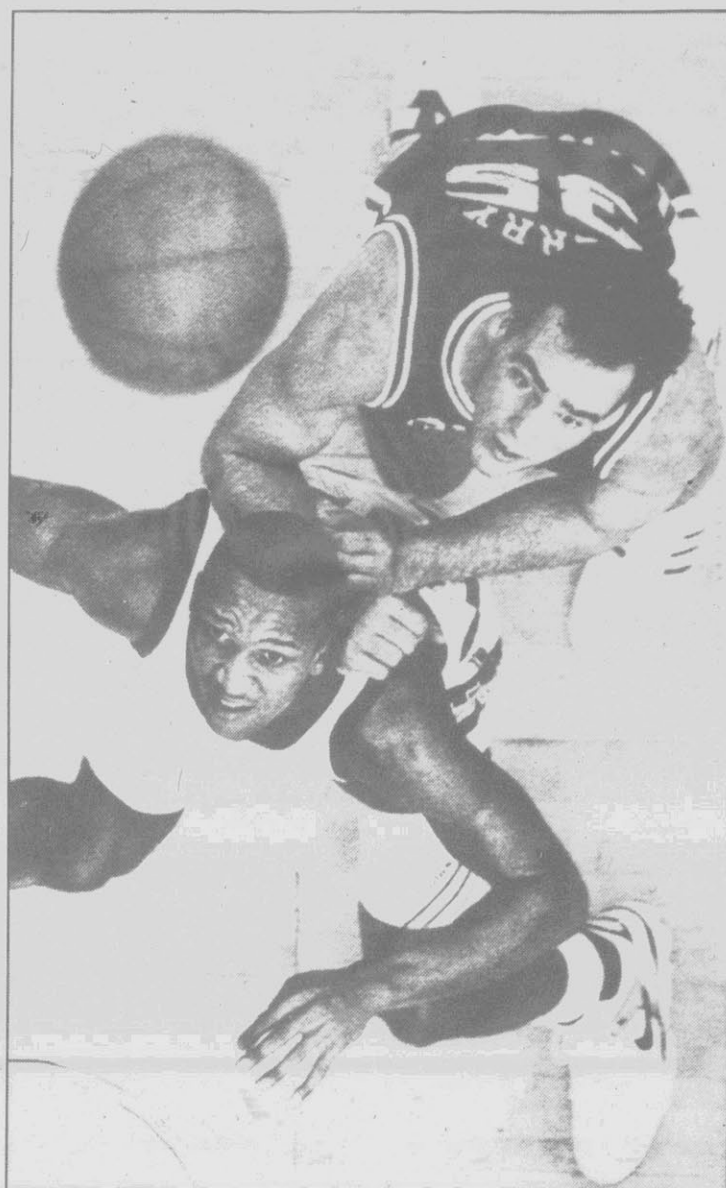

Pepperdine made its only charge at the start of the second half. Tom Lewis hit a 3-pointer, and Casey Crawford added consecutive baskets. After North Carolina's Steve Chilcutt hit a 10-footer, both Craig Davis and Lewis each hit 3-pointers, making it 57-44.

But Kevin Madden and Hubert Davis scored four points each during an 11-3 spurt and North Carolina would lead by at least 15 points and as many as 28 the rest of the way.

"We should have played defense for all 40 minutes," Fox said. "Other than that, I thought we played pretty well."

Lady Pirates Host Campbell

East Carolina's Lady Pirates return to the hardwood of Minges Coliseum Thursday night, playing their first basketball game nearly three weeks.

East Carolina will entertain Campbell University in a game scheduled for 7 p.m.

The game will be the first in nearly three weeks for the Lady Pirates, who last played on Dec. 19. In that game, they took a lopsided 88-39 victory over Tennessee State to bring their record to 3-4 on the year.

The Lady Pirates are led by Sarah Gray, averaging 17.0 points a game. She is also the leading rebounder with a 7.7 average.

Pam Williams is the only other Lady Pirate in double figures with an 11.9 average.

Campbell comes into the game with a 3-4 record.

Tammy Brown, a 6-0 sophomore center, leads the Lady Camels with a 15.1 scoring average. Denise Ford, a 5-9 senior forward, is hitting 15.0 points and 10.6 rebounds a game. Cyndi Hicks, a 5-8 senior guard, has a 10.9 average. Hicks is a former Greene Central player.

The Lady Camels had lost three in a row coming into the game, which is the first of four straight home games for the Lady Pirates.

East Carolina will open its Colonial Athletic Association schedule on Saturday, hosting William & Mary. The University of Richmond visits Minges on Monday, while North Carolina A&T will be in on Jan. 12 to close out the home stand.

Farmville Races Past Conley, 75-49

Holiday Tourney Champions Bow In First Outing After Taking Title

By Woody Peele
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FARMVILLE — Success proved too much for D.H. Conley's Vikings to handle Friday night as they came off their Pitt County Holiday Tournament Championship.

Farmville Central, which grabbed third place in the event, spanked the Vikings, 75-49, Tuesday night as the two teams resumed regular season play.

For both, it was the final warmup before entering their respective conference battles next time out.

Conley, which defeated Rose High School in the championship game of the tournament this past Friday, found little success against Farmville. The Vikings shot much better, outscored the Vikings when it counted, and had fewer turnovers.

Conley finished the game shooting only 42.9 percent while Farmville pushed through an even 50 percent of its shots. Conley was just 12 of 23 at the stripe while Farmville was a more impressive 18 of 24.

Conley had more turnovers, 23-16, and many of Farmville's came after the game was in the bag. Conley did end up with a 36-33 rebounding edge, but again, it was only after the issue was no longer in doubt that the Vikings pulled ahead.

"We simply got our tails kicked," Viking coach Cobby Deans said. "We played timid, non-aggressive basketball. We had no leadership and we were killed on the boards," he added.

"That's all I've got to say about it."

Across the court, Farmville's Mike Terrell was very impressed with his team's effort. "I thought we played extremely well," Terrell said. "We had good intensity, we played hard on defense and we executed our offense well. The shots fell for us and we hit our free throws."

"I think (Conley was) a little flat," Terrell continued. "It was a combination of our being ready to play and them just coming off their win in the Christmas tournament. Obviously (the tournament) took more out of them than it did us."

Terrell added that he believed that is harder to come back off a big win. "That's something we're going to have to guard against Friday. If we can take this in a positive direction, it can be a great help. Conley has a good team; we didn't meet the real Conley tonight. We caught them at the right time."

The Jaguars pushed into the early lead, scoring the first four points of the game. Conley came back, however, and grabbed the lead on a fast break basket by Bershawn Thompson at 8-7 with 3:40 left.

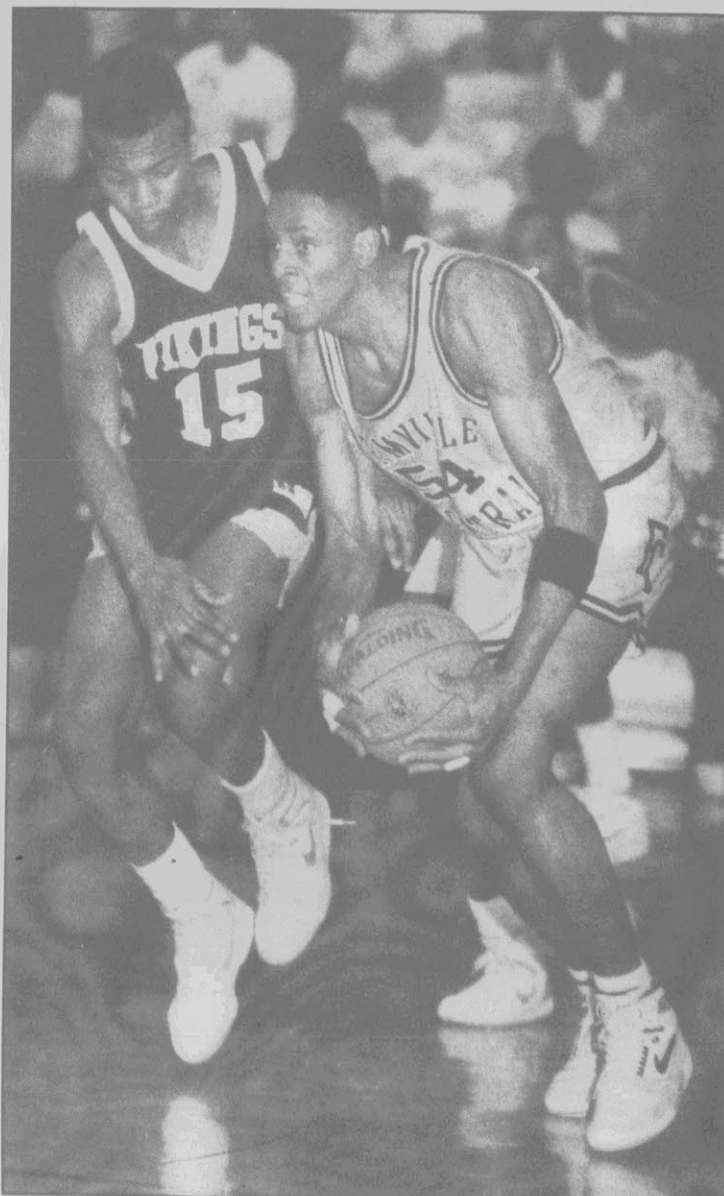

The two exchanged baskets again before William Carr hit the first of two straight baskets powering Farmville back into a 13-10 lead with 2:29 left.

Conley never caught up again after that.

From a 16-13 lead at the start of the second period, Conley began to inch away. They built the lead to seven, 24-17, and after a free throw by Terry Williams with 5:04 left, held Conley to just one more point the rest of the half.

Meanwhile, Farmville was scoring 12 points, five by George Burnette, four by Reggie Barrett and three by Jarvis Lang. That ran the Jaguar lead out to 36-19 at the end of the half.

Northeastern Leads Big East Cup Race

Elizabeth City Northeastern heads the race for the Big East Conference's Wachovia Trophy, while Washington and West Carteret share the lead in the Coastal Conference following the fall season.

Northeastern, which finished first in volleyball, earned 41 points during the fall season to hold a slim lead over Rose High School. The Rampants are in second place with 40½ points.

They are followed by Northern Nash with 34, Wilson Hunt with 24, Wilson Fike with 22½, Kinston with 19, and Rocky Mount and Wilson Beddingfield with 11½ each.

In the Coastal, Washington and West Carteret lead the way with 70 points. Washington was paced by a state championship in girls' cross country while West Carteret won the state championship in volleyball.

Havelock was third with 47½ points, followed by Conley and East Carteret, tied for fourth with 20. North Lenoir and West Craven were tied with 10 points each.

The Trophy is presented annually to the school in each of the state's conferences which has the best overall athletic program. Each conference decides its own criteria for awarding points.

Point standings for the Tobacco Belt, the Eastern Plains and the Northeastern were announced earlier.

Cox Wrestlers Down McDonald

WINTERVILLE — A.G. Cox Middle School defeated H.J. McDonald of New Bern, 44-39, in a junior high school wrestling match Tuesday.

Pins for Cox were recorded by Torrence Smith, Danny Via, Demetrius Lynch, Kendrick Ruffin, Terry Turnage and Neal Woolard. Winning by decisions were Shondiel Ruffin and Robbie Wilson.

Cox is now 7-0 and travels to Williamston on Thursday.

Measles Cancel Sports Activities

CONCORD (AP) — Cabarrus County officials on Tuesday sent almost 250 students home until they are immunized for measles and suspended athletic competition with Rowan County schools.

Officials in Rowan County have reported more than 88 cases of measles. The outbreak prompted officials to halt play last week in a holiday high school basketball tournament in Salisbury. Two Cabarrus-area schools — Northwest Cabarrus High School, part of the Cabarrus County Schools system, and A.L. Brown High School, part of the Kannapolis City Schools system — participated in the tournament.

"We're doing this on the advice of our health director," said Jesse Register, superintendent of the Cabarrus County Schools. "We have only seen three cases in the schools, but all of them came through contact with Rowan County schools. For that reason, our folks are recommending that we not participate in athletic events with Rowan County schools."

Register and Donald Martin, superintendent of Rowan County Schools, are expected to meet Friday to discuss whether athletic competition between the two school systems will be allowed to resume next week.

On Tuesday, Fred Pilkington, director of the Cabarrus County Health Department, said four cases of measles had been confirmed in Cabarrus County — one more than had been reported by Saturday.

So many students had to be sent home, Pilkington said, because scores had never been vaccinated, even though state law requires immunization against measles and other childhood diseases before a student can be enrolled.

"They just slipped through the cracks," Pilkington said Tuesday.

Duke's Laettner Named Top ACC Rookie

GREENSBORO (AP) — Duke center Christian Laettner has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

The 6-foot-10, Angola, N.Y., native made his first start in a 94-59 victory over Cornell. He scored 20 points, grabbed seven rebounds and made five steals for the top-ranked Blue Devils.

Laettner made seven of 10 field goals and six of seven free throws. He is averaging 6.5 points and 3.6 rebounds.

Laettner was picked for the honor by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association.

Shuck Ready For Problems At VMI

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Jim Shuck says his head coaching job at Virginia Military Institute will pose problems similar to those he helped turn around over the last six years in the Army football program.

"At West Point, you don't get the blue chip, superstar players, and I would say we're not going to get them here," Shuck said Tuesday as he was appointed to the $52,000-a-year post with a five-year contract. "It's not going to be a rose garden, and I'm aware of that because I had a chance to live that."

Shuck, 34, succeeds Eddie Williamson, who resigned in December after his four losing seasons left the Keydets with a streak of seven bad years in a row.

Shuck, who played for Indiana in the 1970s and began his coaching career as an assistant there, was offensive coordinator under Coach Jim Young at Army. The wishbone offense has worked for the Army Cadets, and Shuck plans to transplant it to the Keydets, perhaps along with one or two staff members from Army whom he would not identify during a news conference.

"The first thing I'm going to do tomorrow is interview the present assistants," Shuck said Tuesday afternoon. "I'm hoping to bring a couple from the Army staff."

Shuck hopes to have a staff named next week, before players return to campus in mid January.

Shuck had no prior military experience before he went to Army but says he understands the difficulties military students have in balancing their rigorous education with sports. He will try to recruit players who will stay at VMI by letting them know up front how tough life will be as an underclassman at VMI.

"First of all, in recruiting athletes, you have to be honest with them when you bring them in," Shuck said. "When you bring an individual in on the weekend, you have to have someone who is interested in VMI and knows what to expect. That weeds out a great number of recruits, but also you have to give them the horror stories ... make sure they see what happens in the rat system."

Shuck also hopes to persuade school officials to look for ways to ensure his staff gets more time with players.

"In some schools, they miss classes or whatever," Shuck said. "At an academy or military institution, in the day, they're at class. At night, they're studying."

Another worry on Shuck's mind is getting enough food for his players. He said that in military academies, underclassmen are often monitored at meal times by upperclassmen who tell them how many bites of food they can take and what size bites must be taken.

"If you don't, upperclassmen would be yelling at you," Shuck said. Such an arrangement does not accommodate the high caloric intake required by college football players, he said.

Before accepting the job, Shuck discussed those concerns with VMI officials. He would not comment on any changes that might be made.

After playing as offensive tackle, guard and center with the Hoosiers, Shuck graduated in 1976 and signed as a free agent with the Dallas Cowboys. He played five exhibition games before being released by the NFL team and returning to his alma mater.

To The Sports Editor:

This refers to the article in your paper Sunday, Dec. 11, 1988, by Tom Morris.

In his write-up, Mr. Morris was attempting to establish the importance of signing a good majority of "blue chip" football prospects from the great State of North Carolina by our new head coach, Bill Lewis. To prove the overriding importance of in-state recruiting, Mr. Morris cited various players on this year's team from North Carolina who had contributed in a major way to our Pirates' success. The players mentioned were: Ernie Logan, Brian McPhatter, Grant Lowe, Junior Robinson, Billy Michel, Bryan Haywood, Richard Wright, Donald Porch, Luke Fisher and Joe Bright.

I would like to point out to Mr. Morris that while Grant Lowe, Billy Michel and Bryan Haywood are North Carolina natives, none were signed as true freshmen. Each either attended a junior college or prep school. Luke Fisher is from Medford, N.J., and Joe Bright, Chesapeake, Va. Sorry, Luke and Joe for calling you "Tar Heels."

What about the contributions of non-North Carolina athletes? Just to mention a few on offense: Travis Hunter, Tim James, Willie Lewis, Walter Wilson, Al Whiting, Stewart Southall, Todd Drugac and Matt McLaughlin (all offensive starters). How about a few on defense? Shane Hubble, Chris Hall, Greg Gardill, Charles Freeman, Robert Jones, Ed Brogdon. How about a few more just for kicks? Charlie Libretto, Denell Harper, Terry Bennett, Chad Martin, and Tim Orr.

The point is, Mr. Morris, Pirate fans appreciate good football players, regardless of their native state. Here's hoping Coach Lewis can bring in the best from wherever. Please attempt to be a bit more responsible in your coverage. Give credit where credit is due.

W.L. DeBruhl
Elizabeth City

(Editor's Note: The point of Tom Morris' column was not the importance of in-state recruiting, but rather how difficult it was, considering the Pirates go up against the Big Four teams. He listed those from North Carolina to show that while numbers have been slim from the state, they have usually contributed.)

Fourth Quarter Run Dooms Hornets

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Joe Barry Carroll and Roy Hinson scored 22 points each as the New Jersey Nets used a fourth-period spurt to defeat the Charlotte Hornets 109-106 Tuesday night.

The Nets' winning effort overshadowed a new NBA single-season attendance mark for an expansion franchise, set as Charlotte recorded its 10th sellout in 15 home games. The Hornets broke the record of 319,347 set by Dallas in 41 home games in the 1980-81 season. Charlotte's total is now 341,818 after 15 home games.

The Nets snapped an 80-80 tie by opening the fourth period with a 15-7 run. A jumper by Chris Morris gave New Jersey a 95-87 lead with 7:40 left before Charlotte staged a 10-4 rally, a tip by Kurt Rambis giving the Hornets a 99-97 edge with 3:42 remaining.

But New Jersey rallied again, and guard Lester Conner's 3-point jumper clinched the Nets' victory.

New Jersey led 55-48 at halftime.

Charlotte's Rex Chapman scored 18 of his team-leading 21 points in the second half.

Kings 123, Mavericks 96

The last time the two teams met, Sacramento lost by its biggest margin this year. This time, the 27-point defeat prompted Dallas coach John MacLeod to cancel a rest day scheduled for today.

Jim Petersen scored 15 of his season-high 25 points in the third quarter to lead Sacramento, while LaSalle Thompson had 19 points and 13 rebounds for the Kings.

Rolando Blackman led Dallas with 20 points.

Dallas trailed by 17 points in the first half before cutting the deficit to 64-56 on a 3-pointer by Sam Perkins with 9:12 left in the third quarter. Petersen then scored his 15 points in the final 8:53 as Sacramento ended the period ahead 91-75.

Trail Blazers 119, Heat 95

Clyde Drexler led a balanced Portland attack with 21 points as the Trail Blazers won for the eighth time in 10 games while handing Miami its fourth straight defeat.

Grant Long paced the Heat with 19 points.

Vandeweghe played 22 minutes and said he was surprised to see that much playing time in his first game back.

Knicks 109, Celtics 107 OT

Patrick Ewing's 10-foot bank shot with 25 seconds left in overtime snapped a tie and led New York. The Knicks broke a three-game losing streak, their longest of the season, and extended their winning streak at home to 10.

Ewing's shot gave the Knicks a 108-106 lead. Kevin McHale and Gerald Wilkins traded free throws before McHale was called for an offensive foul, giving the ball to the Knicks, who ran out the clock.

Charles Oakley led New York with 21 points and 18 rebounds, while Reggie Lewis topped the Celtics with 28 points.

In the fourth quarter, the Knicks held the Celtics to 13 points and scored 21 to tie the score at 99 at the end of regulation.

Sonics 116, Lakers 106

Xavier McDaniel scored six points in the final four minutes and Dale Ellis scored 42 points as Seattle handed the Los Angeles Lakers their seventh straight road loss. The Lakers' road streak is the second longest since they moved to Los Angeles in 1960. They lost eight straight during the 1974-75 season.

The Sonics never trailed after a 9-0 run in the second period gave them a 39-32 advantage. Seattle converted three steals into fast-break baskets during that spurt.

A.C. Green led the Lakers with 27 points.

Hawks 123, Pistons 104

Moses Malone scored 28 points, grabbed 22 rebounds and was the catalyst in a 35-17 third-quarter run as Atlanta defeated Detroit. Malone scored 12 points, had six rebounds and made two steals in the third quarter as the Hawks broke from a 65-64 halftime lead to take a 100-81 edge.

Isiah Thomas scored nine of his 28 points in the fourth period, but the Pistons could get no closer than 11 points.

Cavaliers 119, Pacers 98

Brad Daugherty scored 29 points and Cleveland's defense allowed only four fourth-quarter field goals as the Cavaliers ran their winning streak to nine games by defeating Indiana.

The Pacers have lost nine straight, matching their longest skid of the season. They are 0-15 on the road, the NBA's only winless visitor.

Scott Skiles led Indiana with 19 points.

Rockets 104, Jazz 102

Akeem Olajuwon scored 26 points and blocked five shots to lead Houston over Utah. A key block by Olajuwon came when he batted back a shot by Thurl Bailey that could have tied the game at 102.

The Rockets used a 22-8 surge in taking a 91-78 lead with 8:25 to play, but the Jazz rallied behind Bailey, who had 10 points in the last six minutes.

Utah's John Stockton had a season-high 24 assists and scored 26 points.

Spurs 129, Nuggets 105

Willie Anderson scored 24 points and David Greenwood had a season-high 23 points and 17 rebounds as San Antonio snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Denver.

Alex English led Denver with 19 points and Dan Schayes had 17.

Denver guard Michael Adams, who finished with 16 points, kept his streak of 3-point baskets alive with one in the second period. He has made at least one 3-pointer in each of the last 72 games, dating back to last season.

Bulls 126, Clippers 121 OT

Michael Jordan had 41 points, 11 assists, 10 rebounds and six steals as Chicago nipped the Los Angeles Clippers in overtime. The win was Chicago's sixth in its last eight contests, while the Clippers' road record dropped to 2-15.

The Bulls' Scottie Pippen also had a triple double with 15 points, 12 assists and 10 rebounds. It's the first time in the Bulls' 23-year history that two players had triple doubles in the same game.

Quintin Dailey led the Clippers with 33 points.

18th-Ranked Jayhawks Roll Past Brown, 115-45

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Either Milt Newton has a warped view of college basketball or Kansas coach Roy Williams has his players totally snowed.

"We didn't think we were going to cream them," Newton said after scoring 23 points Tuesday night as 18th-ranked Kansas ripped Brown 115-45. "We were just trying to execute the things we need to do to beat the good teams."

Kansas set a school record for victory margin, beating by 10 points the margin set in a 68-8 rout of Washington University of St. Louis in 1913.

The Jayhawks led 50-17 at halftime, but Williams berated his players for sloppy play.

"We were turning the ball over unnecessarily," Newton said. "Coach told us to stop trying to do the fancy passing."

Kansas, 11-1, made 45 of 74 shots. Brown, 4-6, made 18 of 67 and committed 33 turnovers.

Brown coach Mike Cingiser is getting used to this. The Bruins lost to No. 9 Iowa 109-61 earlier this season.

"Iowa is tougher inside than Kansas is," Cingiser said. "But I can tell you that Kansas will play a hell of a game against a team like Iowa."

In other Top Twenty games Tuesday, No. 1 Duke beat Washington

87-61, No. 4 Oklahoma beat Sam Houston State 111-66, No. 6 North Carolina beat Pepperdine 102-80, No. 10 Seton Hall beat Georgetown 94-86 and No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas beat Long Beach State 97-76.

Kansas, which set a school record with 65 points in the second half, led by as much as 106-32 on Freeman West's jumper with 3:47 left. West had 16 points and seven rebounds.

Newton led the Jayhawks, making 9 of 12 shots, including all four of his 3-point attempts.

Rick Lloyd scored 10 points to lead the Bruins.

Oklahoma 111, Sam Houston St. 66

Tony Martin scored a career-high 40 points as the Sooners topped 100 points for the ninth consecutive game.

Martin, whose previous high was 19 last week against Texas, also had 17 rebounds. He made 17 of 24 shots and was 6-for-8 on free throws.

Stacey King missed his third straight game for the Sooners, 11-1. He has an injured finger.

Tracy Pearson scored 18 points for Sam Houston, 6-5.

Seton Hall 94, Georgetown 86

Gerald Greene's 3-pointer ignited a 19-9 burst as Seton Hall, 13-0, rallied from a nine-point deficit in the second half. Georgetown lost for the first time in 10 games.

Reserve forwards Frantz Volcy and Michael Cooper scored 10 straight points to get Seton Hall close.

Greene's 3-pointer with 10:31 left got Seton Hall within 67-66 and Andrew Gaze gave the Pirates their first lead since the first half with a layup. A 3-pointer by Dwayne Bryant put Georgetown ahead 70-68, but Volcy tied it after rebounding Gaze's missed layup.

Seton Hall went ahead for good on Greene's free throw with 8:45 left. Ramon Ramos followed with two more free throws and a layup off a power move inside.

Greene and Darryl Walker scored 20 points each for Seton Hall. Alonzo Mourning had 18 points, eight rebounds and eight blocked shots for Georgetown.

UNLV 97, Long Beach St. 76

Anderson Hunt made five consecutive 3-pointers and scored 21 points.

Hunt made four of his 3-pointers during a 20-5 Nevada-Las Vegas run which began midway through the second half and boosted the Runnin' Rebels to an 83-58 lead.

Nevada-Las Vegas coach Jerry Tarkanian improved his career Big West record to 100-9 as the Rebels raised their season record to 8-3 and their conference mark to 3-0.

John Hatten scored 17 points for Long Beach State, 3-7 and 0-1.

Other Games

Richard Dumas scored 15 points to lead Oklahoma State past Central Connecticut State 81-38.

Central Connecticut's 38 points was the fewest allowed by Oklahoma State since the California-Santa Barbara scored 37 against the Cowboys in the 1964-65 season.

Oklahoma State, which led 46-13 at halftime, won by its widest margin

Miami To Be Better

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — The Miami Hurricanes, who came within a two-point conversion of repeating as national champions, will be better next season, Coach Jimmy Johnson says.

The Hurricanes concluded an 11-1 season Monday by beating Nebraska 23-3 in the Orange Bowl. Their only loss was 31-30 at Notre Dame last October, and Miami finished as runner-up to the Fighting Irish in the final college football poll.

"I think next year's team will be more experienced," Johnson said. "We won't have to replace as many players as we did this year. We can use the disappointment of being number two as a motivating factor for next season."

A Miami team better than the 1988 squad is a scary thought for opponents. The Hurricanes' victims this season included champions of the Big Eight, Big Ten, Southwest and Southeastern conferences, as well as No. 3 Florida State.

But the list of Miami's top 46 players — two at each position, plus the place-kicker and punter — includes only nine seniors.

"We should have a strong team next year. This was a transition year," Johnson said. "We've got so much youth on this team right now. When you play that kind of schedule and have total inexperience on your team, it should be called a transition year."

Casting a shadow over next season's bright prospects is the possibility of Johnson or quarterback Steve Walsh leaving for the NFL. Walsh, who finished fourth in the Heisman Trophy voting, receives his diploma in May but has a year of eligibility remaining.

"I still haven't made up my mind," Walsh said. "It's going to be tempting to come back and try to win a second championship after being so close this year, though."

The same challenge might bring Johnson back for a sixth season at Miami.

"I have less thoughts about going with the NFL than I did in past years," he said. "I'd like to make another drive at the championship myself. I don't anticipate leaving."

just his fourth game of the season added 18.

"J.R.'s coming on," Smith said. "He's cutting down the errors. The doctors allow him to be on the court for 12 minutes of running time, and I'd like to get that up to 30 pretty soon."

Davis had 16 for Pepperdine, 8-6, while Lewis contributed 15. The Waves are 0-5 against Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

"We got off to a bad start," Pepperdine coach Tom Asbury said. "We took some real bad shots at the start of the game."

"North Carolina is a Final Four team. I'm not saying that they're going to get there because there are so many good teams, but they pass the ball well, move well and can put on so much pressure on defense."

Thatcher Joins Memorial Service For Victims Of Pan Am Jet Crash

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOCKERBIE, Scotland — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher flew to Scotland to attend a memorial service today for victims of the Pan Am Flight 103 crash in the small town that bore the brunt of the disaster.

Tight security measures were imposed in devastated Lockerbie after Mrs. Thatcher's London office confirmed she and her husband, Denis, would join mourners at the service.

Mrs. Thatcher, who visited the crash site the morning after the disaster, has counseled publicly against "eye for an eye" retaliation for the bombing that destroyed the Boeing 747 and killed 270 people.

That sentiment was echoed by the Right Rev. James Whyte, moderator of the Church of Scotland, who told mourners that justice, not retaliation, must be the response to the "act of human wickedness" that caused the crash.

"We may be tempted, indeed urged by some, to flex our muscles in response, to show that we are men," Whyte said.

"To show that we are what? To show that we are prepared to let more young and more innocent die, to let more rescue workers labor in more wreckage to find the grisly proof, not of our virility, but of our inhumanity.

"That is what retaliation means. I, for one, will have none of it, and I hope you will not either."

Police searched Dryfesdale Parish Church where government leaders, church heads, townspeople and relatives of the dead were gathered for the nationally televised service.

Search helicopters were ordered grounded during the service, giving Lockerbie quiet daytime skies for the first time since Dec. 21 when the jumbo jet with 259 people aboard plummeted to the ground during a London-New York flight. All on board and 11 people on the ground died.

About 100 relatives of victims were flown to Lockerbie by Pan Am for the service. More than 100 Pan Am employees and Pan American World Airways President Thomas Plaskett also planned to attend.

The three churches of Lockerbie, each touched by death in Britain's worst air disaster, joined to hold the memorial.

Prayers were offered by the Rev. James Annand, minister of the Dryfesdale Church; the Rev. Patrick Keegans of Holy Trinity Roman Catholic Church; and the Rev. Alan Neal of the Anglican All Saints parish church.

Members of all three parishes were among the dead in Lockerbie, and Keegans' rectory was destroyed.

Also at the service, but not speaking, were Lord Jakobovits, chief rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Commonwealth; the Most Rev. Edward Luscombe, primate of the Scottish Episcopal Church; and the Most Rev. Thomas Winning, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Glasgow.

The church has only 700 seats, so the service was being relayed to the nearby church hall, a local cinema and a British Legion hall as well as on two national TV networks.

The Boeing 747 was torn apart by a bomb while cruising at 31,000 feet.

Pieces of the shattered aircraft hit homes in Lockerbie, and the fuel-jaden wings exploded in a deadly pillar of fire.

As search teams continued to hunt for wreckage and victims, police said 126 of the 242 bodies recovered from the crash had been released to relatives.

But police said Tuesday they saw little chance of finding the missing bodies of 20 passengers and eight local residents.

They are believed to have died in the Sherwood Crescent area of Lockerbie, where parts of the plane's fuselage and wings crashed, forming a 30-foot-deep crater.

Eighty to 90 percent of the plane has been found, but only 20 percent of it has been picked up, police said. Much of it is in inaccessible countryside.

In London, T. Allen McArtor, head of the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration, met with representatives of U.S. airlines operating at Gatwick Airport and called for "a heightened level of security on all American flights operating out of European and Middle Eastern airports."

The body of Capt. James MacQuarrie, the pilot of Flight 103, was cremated at Carlisle 25 miles southeast of Lockerbie on Friday without publicity, said a Pan Am spokesman.

The pilot's ashes were carried back to the United States by another Pan Am captain, the spokesman said.

Reagan Accepts Soviet Session On Human Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has decided to accept the Soviet Union's proposal for hosting an international conference on human rights in 1991, sources said.

U.S. agreement to participate in the conference signals American support for Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's internal reforms and sets the stage for the opening of new East-West negotiations on cutting troops and arms in Europe.

The human rights conference and the European arms negotiations are linked, and Secretary of State George P. Shultz has recommended they proceed based on Soviet advances in human rights, a U.S. official told The Associated Press on Tuesday.

President Reagan, on vacation in California, decided Tuesday to accept Shultz's advice, said another official, who also spoke on condition he not be identified.

Shultz on Sunday is to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze in Paris, where they will be attending a conference of more than 100 nations on ways to halt the proliferation of chemical weapons.

The start of conventional arm reduction talks between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact has been awaiting completion of a 35-nation review in Vienna of human rights in the Soviet Union and in Eastern Europe.

Evidently, Reagan has seen enough progress in the Soviet record to close the conference in Vienna and move on.

"It's not a perfect scorecard, but they've done a lot," said one U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "They've come amazingly far."

The State Department last Friday credited the Soviets with "significant progress" in its treatment of political prisoners and Jewish citizens who are refused permission to emigrate.

The Soviets have released more than 600 political prisoners in the last two years, including all the monitors of the 1975 Helsinki agreement, which held out the promise of an improvement in the human rights situation, Phyllis Oakley, the State Department spokeswoman, said last Friday.

All prisoners charged with violating political or religious constraints are now free.

Soviets Sending Troubleshooter To Kabul

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Six weeks before the promised withdrawal of the last Soviet troops from Afghanistan, a senior Soviet envoy is on a mission to prevent a bloodbath from accompanying the final pullout.

The Soviets have already begun withdrawing troops from the western Afghan cities of Shindand and Herat, Western diplomats said Tuesday, speaking on condition of anonymity.

They said Soviet civilian advisers are leaving the Afghan capital of Kabul en masse and quoted Afghan officials as saying the main Red Army exodus will begin Jan. 15.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Pakistan-based Afghan resistance announced a last-minute attempt to form a transitional government.

Sibghatullah Mojaddidi said Tuesday that a 400-member consultative council would convene within three weeks. Half its members would be drawn from guerrilla commanders fighting Soviet and Afghan government troops, the rest would include well-known intellectuals, tribal leaders and "good Moslems."

Mojaddidi rejected the participation of any officials of the current Soviet-style Kabul government.

But it will be difficult to select and convene such a council, and the resistance movement has scant time to maneuver.

Under U.N.-mediated accords, half the 115,000 Soviet troops that had been in Afghanistan left by Aug.

15. The balance are to be out by Feb. 15.

The Soviet Union's first deputy foreign minister and ambassador to Kabul, Yuli Vorontsov, was to arrive in Islamabad today and meet Mojaddidi this week. It will be his second session with the insurgents.

The initial meeting last month in Saudi Arabia was the Kremlin's first official recognition of the Moslem guerrillas it has been fighting since sending troops into Afghanistan in December 1979 to replace one pro-Moscow regime with another.

The contacts are tacit acknowledgment that Moscow is exploring a non-communist alternative to President Najib, head of the embattled Kabul government. Moslem insurgents began their struggle after a communist coup in April 1978.

Vorontsov was in Tehran on Tuesday meeting Iranian-based leaders of Shiite Moslem Afghan guerrillas, who operate separately from and have occasionally been at odds with the Sunni Moslem groups based in the Pakistani border city of Peshawar.

The Peshawar group is the main guerrilla alliance. It consists of seven squabbling parties and calls itself the Islamic Unity of Afghan Mujahedeen.

Vorontsov is searching for political arrangements that will enable the Soviets to get all their troops out on schedule and without being attacked along the way.

Foreign Ministry sources said he would spend four days in Pakistan, meeting with government officials and Afghan insurgent leaders.

Anti-Black Violence Spreading In China

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Chinese students in a central city beat a Sri Lankan student, threw rocks at Africans and put up anti-black posters as racial tensions spread to a fourth Chinese city, foreigners said today.

The violence occurred Saturday at the Central China Polytechnical College in Wuhan, 680 miles south of Beijing, said a student from Gabon and an American teacher.

In Beijing, meanwhile, African students boycotted classes at the Beijing Languages Institute today, one day after Chinese demonstrated against an alleged attack by a black student on a Chinese woman.

"Brothers, let us unite and fight for dignity," said a leaflet distributed by Africans at the institute. "Black is beauty."

In Wuhan, Chinese students put up posters saying "Black devil, go home" on the walls of the foreign dormitory at the college, according to a student from Gabon.

He also quoted a Sri Lankan student as saying he had been attacked and beaten by Chinese. The Gabonese said he did not think the Sri Lankan had been seriously injured.

About 300 Chinese students also roamed the campus on Saturday, throwing rocks at the African students' dormitory, said the Gabonese, who was at the college visiting friends when the attack occurred.

School authorities responded Sunday by suddenly taking the college's 12 African students on a trip to the interior of Hubei province, where Wuhan is located, said the Gabonese, a student from Hubei Medical College.

As of today, he said the students had yet to return.

Other schools responded by canceling African parties and urging dark-skinned students not to leave campus, said the Gabonese and an American teacher.

The incident in Wuhan began Tuesday when Chinese students from the polytechnical institute wrote a letter to the school's director saying they didn't want Africans in their university because African were "polluting Chinese society with their relations with Chinese women," the student said.

Doctors Asked To Fight Abuse

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Physicians who treat women are being enlisted in a nationwide effort to aid battered women and help break a generational cycle that has caught some American families in a web of violence.

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists is sending information to its 28,000 members to heighten their awareness of the problem of domestic violence and better enable them to help abused women.

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, who joined the group for its announcement of the campaign Tuesday, said stopping violence against women is a major part of the effort to end family violence, a cycle that often begins when someone is the victim of abuse and then grows up to become an abuser.

"It's obvious that if you're going to break that chain ... you've got to start with child abuse," Koop said. "But you can't just wait for the three generations to work themselves out. You've got to take care of the elderly abused and you've got to take care of the battered women."

The physicians' campaign is aimed at the estimated 15 million women who have been beaten, raped or suffered other forms of physical and sexual assault, a total that Koop says grows by 1 million a year.

"It is an overwhelming moral, economic and public health burden that our society can no longer bear," Koop said. "In this country, no man has a license to beat, and get away with it. And no woman is obliged to accept a beating, and suffer because of it.

Koop noted that help is available from state and national coalitions and social service organizations, law enforcement agencies and the courts, and he encouraged doctors to become part of the crusade against violence.

"We say we are a civilized society," Koop said. "All right, let's act like one and let's stop the violence in our families and let's end the battering of women in this country."

Koop said, however, he did not advocate mandatory reporting by doctors of abused women. Such reporting, he said, could further harm a woman by prompting retaliation against her or her children at a time when she may not have the financial means to leave her home.

The pamphlets and bulletins the group is sending to its members outline the physical signs of abuse and suggest to doctors how to discuss the problem with women who have been abused. The written material includes information about women's legal rights, social services that are available to women and strategies for helping women escape from abusive situations.

"We are providing physicians with the tools they can use to help women escape from such a relationship," said Luella Klein, a former president of the physicians' association.

"We don't expect ob-gyns always to treat the pathology of battering, but we expect them to tell women what their rights are under the law and advise a woman how to plan for dealing with her abusive partner."

Dukakis Keeps National Options Open

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Michael Dukakis says his decision to forgo a chance for a record fourth term has nothing to do with his prospects in national politics, but admitted it's "exceedingly difficult" to run for president as governor.

With two years remaining in his term, Dukakis unexpectedly announced Tuesday he would not seek re-election in 1990. He parried questions about his political future, however, saying only he intended to be active in national affairs and would not rule out another run for the White House.

"Public policy and public service is what I'm all about, it's what I love," Dukakis, 55, told a crowded news conference. "I've loved this office, and I still do."

The defeated Democratic presidential candidate said his decision not to seek an unprecedented fourth term as Massachusetts' governor was not related to the 1988 presidential campaign or to a possible 1992 rematch against President-elect Bush.

He acknowledged, however, that it was "exceedingly difficult" to mount a national political campaign while exercising executive authority and defending his long record as governor.

"I think the deliberate distortions about Massachusetts ... were increasingly difficult to defend," said Dukakis, whose initially strong campaign withered under Republican attacks on his gubernatorial record on crime, the environment and other issues.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the last sitting governor to win the White House in 1932.

When asked whether he intends to run for president in 1992, Dukakis said, "I've learned — occasionally painfully — never to say 'never' in politics."

However, the governor, who has ruled out a run for Congress, said it was "much too early" to discuss 1992.

Political analyst William Schneider of the American Enterprise Institute, a Democratic think tank in Washington, said Dukakis' decision was consistent with another run for the presidency.

"But it is regarded with some dismay, among Democrats, because the conventional wisdom is that he was a poor candidate who ran a poor campaign," Schneider said. "He's got to change that perception, to let people know that he has changed, that he learned something."

Yogurt Laced With Poison

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TRENTON, N.J. — Breyers Yogurt is being withdrawn from stores in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware because of cyanide found in a container eaten by a teen-ager left critically ill today, authorities said.

Investigators in Camden County, however, called Tuesday's incident an isolated case of tampering because tests on more than 100 similar yogurt containers turned up no sign of cyanide, which can be fatal if taken in small doses.

Tests by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Philadelphia confirmed the presence of cyanide in the container of Breyers yogurt late Tuesday. Federal officials informed the state Health Department.

Secrecy Issues Threaten Delay For North's Iran-Contra Trial

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The massive amount of classified information pervading the Iran-Contra case is threatening again to delay this month's scheduled start of former presidential aide Oliver L. North's criminal trial.

A federal appeals court Tuesday temporarily stayed pre-trial review of North's plans to divulge classified information when his lawyers question high government officials in open court.

And the federal judge in the case, Gerhard A. Gesell, on Tuesday turned down a request to further censor classified documents prosecutors want to use as evidence to accommodate objections of intelligence agencies.

The decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here to consider North's motion to permanently bar Gesell from giving prosecutors a summary of the proposed defense testimony could force a delay in the trial, now set for Jan. 31.

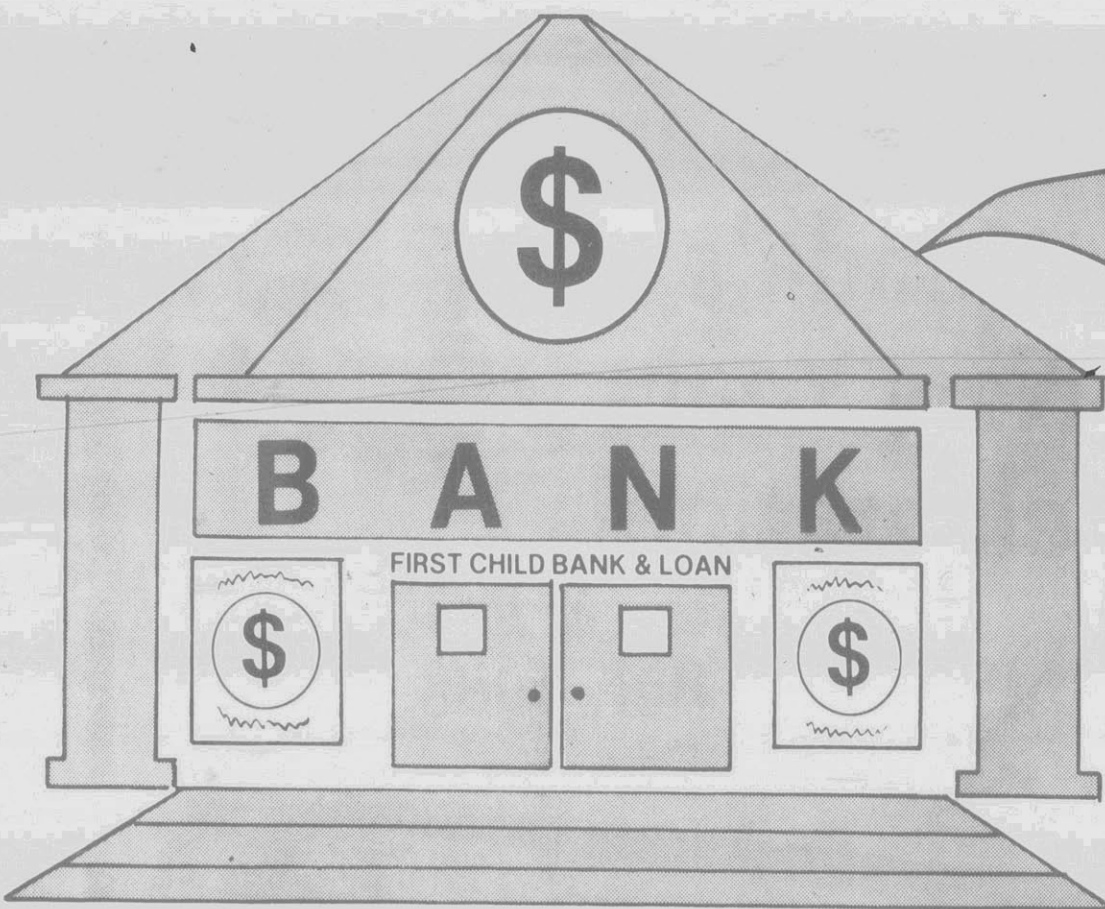

North is charged along with former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and arms dealers Albert Hakim and Richard V. Secord with conspiring to illegally divert more than $14 million in U.S.-Iran arms-sale profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

The three-judge appeals panel issued an indefinite "administrative stay" of Gesell's plan to give independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh the 162-page defense summary while it considers what the defense called "grave constitutional issues" involving North's right to a fair trial.

Gesell, meanwhile, refused Walsh's request to make more editing changes in the 300 prosecution exhibits.

U.S. intelligence agencies are concerned that sensitive references in the documents that cover some 3,000 pages could disclose covert operations or secret dealings with foreign nations.

Biographer Wrestled Richard Wright's 'Daemons'

Author Says She Was Forced To Write Book

By Jacqueline Trescott
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

JACKSON, Miss. — This is the Mississippi of William Faulkner and Eudora Welty, of Margaret Walker and Richard Wright.

Here for nearly two decades Walker, now 73, has been wrestling with a biography of Wright, whose Native Son and Black Boy, published in the 1940s, were the nation's first best-selling novels by a black writer and landmarks in the literature of social protest.

Richard Wright: Daemonic Genius was published in mid-November, nearly a generation after people began telling Walker an interpretive study of Wright was her responsibility. After all, they said, she was one of the few surviving writers who knew him during the formative years of the 1930s.

"Nobody believes me when I say I didn't plan to write this book, I didn't want to write this book. I found myself forced to write this book," says Walker.

Hours before a celebration of her book began — a salute by city and state officials, scholars of Wright and Walker, and friends from Jackson State University where she taught for 30 years — Walker was in her kitchen, spiritedly buttering up a turkey and mixing plum pudding, and discussing various roadblocks to the book's completion and how they had been surmounted.

First, she had to find a perspective different from that of Wright's previous biographers. She found it here, 80 miles from Wright's birthplace in painful poverty on a plantation outside Natchez, Miss. It was the trauma of his early life, Walker writes, that led her to describe him as "daemonic."

"This anger or rage drove him to create and to achieve," she writes. "The wellsprings of his creativity were deep welters and dark pools of realistic and neurotic anger, which he sublimated into imaginative writing. His tortured consciousness bespoke an even more tumultuous unconscious, out of which his daemonic genius spoke."

She found herself repeatedly distracted from her work on Wright, however, by outside events. One was the enormous success of Alex Haley's Roots, which Walker claims was partially plagiarized from her 1966 novel Jubilee. She sued Haley for damages, but without success.

Then, when the Wright book was first announced in a publishing trade magazine, a long legal debate ensued with the writer's widow, Ellen, who attempted to prevent Walker from quoting any of Wright's letters and journals until the widow herself had reviewed Walker's manuscript.

So far that effort has failed, but there were other hurdles. Her editor changed publishing houses three times. Her husband of 37 years died of cancer. She herself has chronic problems with diabetes.

But perhaps the most difficult part of the task was sorting out just how she felt about Wright nearly 50 years after their friendship ended. One day, she says, he just refused to see her.

"The ending of that relationship was very painful and very harsh. I suffered for many years wondering why the man acted the way he did. I had no intention of writing about the relationship or the man, who for so many people is an icon, says Walker.

But the more people urged her, the more she thought she could contribute a valuable perspective. "I had his letters, I had kept journals and I had taught his work for 35 years," says Walker.

Over the years some have said Walker, then 21, was in love with Wright, then 28, and that her biography of the man she pictures as seriously flawed is the work of a scorned woman.

What Walker describes in her kitchen-table interview and in her Wright biography is an intense literary friendship. The relationship with Wright "was never a romance," she said. "If I wished it to be, it never was. How could you be in love with a man you never kissed? ... It was a marriage of minds and minds only."

Bound by a shared love of literature and the common experiences of race, Walker and Wright couldn't have been more different. She was the daughter of a Methodist minister in Birmingham, raised at a series of small black colleges where her mother and father taught.

She had just finished Northwestern University and already had her first poem published when she met Wright, whose formal schooling had ended with high school, whose father had deserted his family and whose early lessons were the ones of hunger and poverty.

In 1927 Wright had moved to Chicago from Memphis, held a series of odd jobs, and by 1933 was a member of a prominent Chicago literary club. He had also started his 12-year membership in the Communist Party. His first published works were poems that appeared in leftist magazines in 1934.

The man of hard times and the lady of the campuses met in 1936, both by this time working for divisions of the New Deal's Works Progress Administration. Both were strong-willed and creative, living through exciting times for politics and literature.

They helped each other with their work, talked about writers living and dead. "One day," she writes, "as Wright and I walked together to the elevated station, he turned to me and said, 'Margaret, if a voice speaks within you, you can live. And the voice spoke. A daemonic spirit within him found literary expression ... It was this world within that made him accustomed to solitude, made people unnecessary and family and friends expendable. His inner world was neither mystical nor hedonist but deeply contemplative and rational.'"

When Wright moved to New York in 1937 to be the Harlem editor of the Daily Worker, the pair corresponded. In those letters, Walker says, Wright asked for newspaper clippings about the case of Robert Nixon, a killer and rapist, on whose life he would later model that of Bigger, the protagonist of Native Son.

"I feel I had a part in the conception, organization and realization of Wright's most successful long work of fiction," Walker writes. Wright's gratitude was expressed in a letter, which Walker cites: "I feel guilty as all hell for not writing to you, in as much as you had

In The Kitchen

Margaret Walker, biographer of novelist Richard Wright, worked in her kitchen just moments before being honored by her hometown for the book she felt forced to write. She says she faced many roadblocks in completing the biography of Wright, who is famous for novels such as 'Black Boy' and 'Native Son.'

done more than anyone I know to help me with my book ... Each and every time I sat down to write I wondered what I could say to let you know how deeply grateful I felt."

But he was never at ease with her comfortable background, she writes, and once told her: "I know where you come from. I have seen through those lighted windows in those houses where people like you live."

Now, opening up the telegrams congratulating her on the book, Walker says, "I learned a lot from Wright and he got a lot from me." But the end of their friendship was unexpected and shocking to Walker. In an incident engineered by an acquaintance, Walker arrived at an apartment and Wright wouldn't see her. Whether or not she knows the reason, she won't discuss it.

The incident remains so painful to her that Walker used the excerpt from her journal of the time to describe it for the book instead of recasting it with the benefit of 50 years of hindsight. "It wouldn't be as powerful and as honest as it is" any other way, she says. "That is how the 23-year-old girl was thinking."

Afterward she heard twice from Wright. E. Franklin Frazier, the noted sociologist, invited her on behalf of Wright to attend a writer's conference in Paris in 1956. She declined, primarily because of cost but also, she says, because "I didn't think Wright and I had anything much more in common. The friendship was over. I had not yet published Jubilee. I wasn't anxious to get out and mingle and say I was a writer."

The next year, she received a letter from Wright asking permission to use her famous poem "For My People" in a book. She didn't answer. "I knew that was just an excuse to send me a little note, let me know that he was thinking about me and he wished me well. That's all that was for. And he didn't expect me to answer."

Biographer Believes Author Would Say Struggle Isn't Over

 From 1937 to 1947 Wright lived in New York, where in 1940 Native Son was published. It became a Book of the Month Club selection that for the first time opened up modern writing by blacks to a mass, national audience. In 1945 Black Boy, another bestseller, was published. In the late 1940s Wright moved to France, where he lived in self-imposed exile until his death at age 52 in November, 1960. His later works were not critical successes and he spent much of the last two years writing record reviews and album notes.

For years Walker had a dream about Wright. "I would see Wright laughing and talking and he would be skipping along on the grass," she says, smiling at the thought, an expression that lights up her long face. "I finished the book and exorcised my own demon. When he was dead, I realized something that (writer James) Baldwin had said was true: 'The son can't come up as long as the father is there'... The day Wright died I felt absolutely I had been unchained..."

In 1942 Walker received the Yale Younger Poet Award for For My People, and in 1966 she published Jubilee, the story of her maternal great-grandmother, which has sold over one million copies.

Part of the reason for writing the Wright book, Walker says, was not only to share her memoirs and criticism but to set the record straight. One Wright biographer, she says, has claimed that Richard Wright "introduced" Walker to literature. "When I first saw Richard Wright I had majored in literature" at college, she says. "It wasn't likely he introduced me." The same writer, she says, mentions five black women, including Walker, as girlfriends of Wright's. "That was ludicrous. I knew all the women and none of those women were girlfriends," she says.

In fact, Walker says, Wright's personal turmoil about race was such that he once told her he disliked all black women. Both times he married it was to white women. His dilemma became Walker's burden. "At first I had great conflict. How do you write about a man who was a great writer but an awful person, who was filled with self-hate and wished he had never been born black," says Walker.

Walker has written a portrait of a man haunted by anger, ambivalence, alienation and aberration; a portrait layered over with a dizzy spectrum of interpretations, from the influence of Karl Marx, Sigmund Freud, Soren Kierkegaard, Albert Einstein and W.E.B. Du Bois on his 16 books to how western he felt in Africa.

Yet her story of his life itself is straightforward, at times even dry. Wright's great achievement in his novels, she writes, "is his application of modern psychology and philosophy to black and white racial patterns and human personality, particularly the inner turmoil of black personality, and to the black male, who is seen as an outcast, criminal, or marginal man... Violence in the form of rape and murder appear in all his fiction, but this is more than the strength and source of his power and passion; it is also the problem of resolution, which is seen as always moving into the death decision."

Though she had first discussed doing the book in 1969, received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities for the research in the early 1970s, and signed the first contract in 1974, she didn't start the actual writing until 1979. She finished the first draft in October 1980 two weeks before her husband, Firnist James Alexander Sr., died.

Lee Smith Uses Letters To Tell Story In Novel

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLESTON, W.Va. Appalachian author Lee Smith says she was doing nothing unusual when she used a series of letters to tell the story in her new novel, Fair and Tender Ladies.

The single-person narrative is nothing new to the women of West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky, said Smith, a faculty member at North Carolina State University. Many Appalachian women, although uneducated, wrote throughout their lives, she said.

"Several years back, when I was teaching a creative writing class, I ran into a woman from the mountains called Lou Crabtree," Smith said. "I asked her if she had any other work, and she turned up with a suitcase full of stories."

Louisiana State University went on to publish some of those stories in a volume titled Stories From Sweet Holler.

Smith also tells of paying 75 cents for a large packet of letters she found while rummaging through a garage sale.

"They were letters one woman had written to her sister over a lifetime," she said. "Writing for yourself was a very feminine thing. These women were interested in the process rather than the end product."

In Fair and Tender Ladies, Smith uses a series of letters from protagonist Ivy Rowe to tell the story of a woman born in rural Virginia at the turn of the century. Rowe writes letters, throughout her long, eventful life, to those closest to her — her siblings, her recently dead father, her "crazy" sister Silvaney.

For Smith, using the epistolary form was both a literary and academic challenge.

"I'm fascinated by the first person narrative and was anxious to explore it," she said.

In the end, Smith said, the book appeared to write itself.

"Ivy took over," she said. "I was never conscious of writing the novel. It was the easiest thing I've ever done."

During the two years she spent writing the book, her own life was changing dramatically. Her mother was dying and there were what she referred to as other midlife family problems.

She acknowledged a strong autobiographical element in the novel, coupled with whole-hearted sympathy for Appalachia and its people. Yet she said she understands why people often leave Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky.

"These states have nothing to entice people to stay," she said. "If they stay and do well, they put their money elsewhere."

But she noted that diehard mountain people refuse to leave the land. A scene near the end of Fair and Tender Ladies in which Ivy prevents a businessman from mining her land is based on a true story, Smith said.

"A man in Kentucky did the same thing; he said he was saving the land for his grandson in Vietnam," she said.

Smith, who teaches literature at North Carolina State, was born in Grundy, Va., and her other novels include The Last Day the Dogbushes Bloomed, Something in the Wind, and Family Linen. She also has short story collection, Cakewalk.

Smith, who lives in Chapel Hill, N.C., has lived in much of the South, and critics have compared her writing to that of Flannery O'Connor and Eudora Welty.

She downplays such praise but says she is thrilled that readers see her characters as authentic. She said she would like to broaden the public's image of what real Appalachians are like, and she expressed some annoyance with the stereotype of the "stupid hillbilly."

"I wish people had more open minds," she said. "The worst images are propagated by television with shows like 'The Beverly Hillbillies' and cartoons like 'Lil Abner'."

"My Appalachia is a beautiful place with a history and music all its own. It's really another country."

Church Sings Fa-So-La Music, Keeping Early America Alive

By Charles Hillinger
 LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BOWDEN JUNCTION, Ga. — Inside the century-old white clapboard Holly Springs Primitive Baptist Church deep in the backwoods, the fa-so-la singers of the Sacred Harp are singing James Denson's 1844 Christmas anthem: "Strike, strike, strike their notes at our Redeemer's birth..."

Seated on oak benches arranged in a hollow square, they are singing at the top of their lungs in four-part harmony, without musical accompaniment or an audience. Like their leader, each is holding a Sacred Harp song book in one hand and keeping time with the other.

After finishing the Christmas anthem, silver-haired Hugh McGraw, 58, the best-known fa-so-la singer in America, enters the hollow square and announces: "We will now sing one of our favorites, 'Mt. Vernon, No. 110.'"

Flipping through the pages of the Sacred Harp to song No. 110, they proceed to sing the 1799 hymn mourning the death of George Washington — twice — first in the time-honored tradition of fa-so-la, then word for word: "The father of his country dies. Where shall our nation turn its eyes? What help remains beneath the sky? Our friend, protector, strength and trust lies low and mould'ring in the dust."

Sacred Harp, or fa-so-la, is church music sung with four notes. Brought to the New World by Pilgrims and Puritans from England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, it cannot be compared to any other American music. Though little known, fa-so-la was sung at the birth of the nation, in the New England colonies and carried to the Southeastern states of Georgia and Alabama where it continues to thrive in rural communities.

In recent years, small groups of Sacred Harp singers have formed throughout the nation. But Georgia and Alabama are the heart of this unique folk music.

"It's a dying art," McGraw said. "At the turn of the century, there were thousands of Sacred Harp singers in Georgia alone. Today there are, at the most, 4,000 to 5,000 fa-so-la singers left in America. We aim to preserve it."

McGraw, manager of a trouser factory in Bremen, Ga., is credited with doing more than anyone to promote the survival of fa-so-la singing. He also serves as director of the Sacred Harp Publishing Co., headquartered in Bremen.

The non-profit publishing company prints the original Sacred Harp song book, first published in Hamilton, Ga., in 1844 with songs compiled by Benjamin Franklin White. The 1987 edition is the eighth revised printing in 144 years. All editions have included this note: "The best collection of sacred songs, hymns, odes, and anthems ever offered the singing public for general use." Since 1935, the hard-back song book has sold for $10. When first published in 1844, it sold for 40 cents.

McGraw knows all 547 songs in the book by heart. Contained in it are the only hymns sung by the fa-so-la singers, also known as the Sacred Harp singers or shape-note singers.

Each note in the song book is a different shape: fa is a triangle, la is a square, so is a circle and mi is a diamond.

During the late 1700s and early 1800s, there were 43 shape-note sacred music song books, all called Harp Hymnals. The Original Sacred Harp is the only one that survived.

Although the Original Sacred Harp song book was never adopted by any denomination, a few selections from it are found in church hymnals.

Among those in the Sacred Harp are: "Weeping Pilgrims," "We'll Soon Be There," "The Last Words of Copernicus," "Evening Shade," "A Few More Years," "Blooming Youth," "Panting for Heaven," "The Dying Boy" and "Bound for Canaan."

Sacred Harp singers participate in a number of all-day singings each year. They meet at a church on Saturday or Sunday, sing in the morning, break for lunch, and sing again in the afternoon.

Part of the tradition is "dinner on the ground," for which participants are asked to bring covered dishes for a pot luck that always includes salads, fried chicken, country ham, black-eyed peas, okra, turnip greens and cakes.

The most well-attended recitals take place twice a year at the Holly Springs Primitive Baptist Church in Bowden Junction. As many as 1,000 singers from across the country turn out for these meetings in June and November.

Most of the all-day singings are at Primitive Baptist churches, because this small denomination holds services only once a month and sings the same old songs as the fa-so-la singers, also without accompaniment.

It was at the Holly Springs Church on Nov. 25 that Myron House, 37, special collections librarian at West Georgia College in Carrollton, Ga., and Jan Rohde, 35, a medical records secretary, were married at a ceremony featuring 25 Sacred Harp singers, including the bride and groom.

"We have chosen Holly Springs Church because it is a gathering place for those who love Sacred Harp music," wrote Jan Rohde in her wedding invitation.

 Silence can be golden at the bridge table. A careless word here and there can help declarer draw an inference that might enable him to make his contract.

 North's decision to cue-bid hearts is the correct way to show a powerful two-suiter. When South confirmed fair values by jumping in spades (he was well prepared to correct to diamonds had North held a minor two-suiter), North used the Grand Slam Force to find out whether his partner held the missing two of the three top honors. East's decision to double was sheer cupidity. Since North had expressed interest in a grand slam, it was improbable that the contract would go down more than one trick.
 West's king of diamonds was won in the closed hand, as a club was discarded from dummy. Since East could only be doubling on trumps, declarer crossed to the table with the ace of hearts and led a low spade. East could not afford to rise with the king, so the queen won.

 Declarer took dummy's three top clubs, then ruffed a club in hand. A diamond ruff was followed by the queen of hearts, overtaken with the king as an entry for another diamond ruff. East was now down to nothing but three trumps, while dummy held the ace-jack of trumps and a club. Declarer led the club. East was forced to ruff and lead away from his king of trumps into dummy's ace-jack tenace. Making six-odd.
 Had East not doubled, it's unlikely that declarer would have unearthed the trump reduction play that allowed him to get home. East would almost surely have scored two trump tricks for a one-trick set.

Yes, Billy, Santa Is Real

By Heather Sword

Dear Billy,

Yes, there is a real Santa Claus. I know this because I know about the Spirit of Christmas. Can't you feel the excitement of Christmas or the love and caring that comes from your friends and family?

Another way I know is because who else eats the cookies and drinks the milk that you put out for him? Who else fills the stockings and puts more presents under the tree? What about the mysterious handwriting? These are reasons why I say Santa is real.

One time I wrote Santa and he wrote me back. One year I heard his sleigh bells ringing and the next year I saw him. I believe in Santa Claus and if you believe in the Spirit of Christmas, you can find out for yourself. It is all up to you. If you don't believe in Santa Claus, then he isn't real; but if you do, then he is.

Your friend,

Christmas Eve

By Tamara Council

One morning Santa was putting the toys in a bag. Santa was getting ready to deliver the toys that night.

Night came, Santa was ready to pass out the toys but Santa sneezed and Santa had a very bad, hot, fever and had a red nose. Santa was sick.

All the elves said what will we do? One of the elves said some of us will help give out the toys. Everybody thought that was a brilliant idea. So they got in the sled and they tried to get the reindeer to move but the reindeer would not move. One elf unhooked Rudolph and carried him to Santa's window. Santa talked to Rudolph. They went back to the sled and up, up and away it went—Christmas is coming!

The Mouse And Santa

By Shaun Cates

One cold and snowy Christmas Eve night Santa Claus was sick and he did not have any one to deliver his presents. He scratched his head and thought, what about Christmas? All of a sudden a tiny gray and white mouse that lived in Santa's workshop scampered across the floor. Santa saw the mouse and said, "Can you deliver all my presents to the boys and girls that are asleep in their houses?"

The mouse said, "Well, I guess I can if you will let me ride in your sleigh every time you deliver your presents."

Santa agreed. So that night the little mouse delivered goodies to every house. The mouse tiptoed into one house and saw the boys and girls snoozing. They were comfortable in their beds and all snuggled up. Beside the tree was a plate full of candy, cookies and carrots for Santa's reindeer. The mouse nibbled on a chocolate chip cookie and licked a candy cane. The rest he wrapped up to take to Santa. The mouse closed his sack and pushed it up the chimney. He fed the carrots to the reindeer and put the sack of toys in the sleigh. Like a flash they headed to the North Pole.

When they got to the North Pole, Santa was sitting in a chair in his workshop waiting for the tiny gray mouse to come. The mouse gave Santa Claus his goodies and went to climb in bed. What a Christmas!

Dear Santa

By Melissa McKeel

Dear Santa,

I think I should get Christmas presents this year because I've been improving in school and at home.

For a fact, I did cut up and never did my homework. Now I'm serious and trying hard. My grades are really improving and I'm doing my homework. Instead of watching TV and going out, I stay home and study and do my homework.

I'm also improving at home. I do as I'm told at home. I'm making my bed and cleaning my room. I also wash the dinner dishes every night. I help my Daddy while he is sick. I also help cook for my mother and that really helps her. I help my sister with her baby while she has to work.

These are my reasons why I think I deserve a Christmas present.

Sincerely,
Melissa McKeel

The Day Santa Slept In

By Nicole Parker

Santa was going to college during the day. His teacher gave him some homework to do the night before Christmas. Santa stayed up late working on his papers. When he got tired, he fell asleep. He didn't finish his homework. He was so tired that he overslept.

The children tried to wake him up but they couldn't. They had a plan. The children went in the bathroom and got some water. Then they poured it on Santa. Santa jumped out of bed and said, "Thank you for getting me up because I wouldn't have been able to deliver presents."

Nicole Parker, 7, a student at Third Street School receives special mention.

A Messy Tree

By Lokia Hope

It was Christmas morning. It was cold outside. The children woke up and they saw the snow falling down. They asked their mother if they were going to put the Christmas tree up. She said yes.

We bought ornaments and some lights to go on the tree. As we decorated the tree, its branches started to get heavy. Ornaments began to fall off and some broke on the floor. The tree lights began to blink and make crazy sounds. The children saw the mess on the floor.

They got a broom and swept the mess up and then they took the tree outside. The tree was lonely but it was glad it didn't have the ornaments on its branches. Later that night Santa found the tree and took it to his workshop at the North Pole. The elves helped make the tree beautiful again and planted it in a forest near the North Pole. The tree lived happily ever after.

These recipes for Pasta Salad with Fresh Tomato Pesto and Napa Bluecheese Coleslaw are reproduced from Easy Entertaining with Marlene Sorosky (Harper & Row). These creative salads are a great addition to any party.

Magic Package Chicken from Rosalea Murphy's The Pink Adobe Cookbook (Dell) is not only easier to serve and cook than fried chicken, the recipe eliminates the nuisance of greasy cleanup!

NAPA BLUE-CHEESE COLESLAW

1 head Napa or Chinese cabbage (about 2 lbs.)
6 oz. blue cheese, or to taste, crumbled (1 1/2 cups)

2 cloves garlic, peeled
1/4 cup coarsely chopped onion
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1/4 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 tsp. celery seed
1/4 tsp. salt, or to taste
1/2 tsp. white pepper
2 tbsps. sugar
3/4 cup vegetable oil

In a food processor fitted with the thin slicing blade or with a sharp knife, slice the cabbage into thin shreds. Place in a large bowl, toss with blue cheese, cover and refrigerate until chilled. The cabbage may be refrigerated overnight, if desired.

To make the dressing, in a food processor fitted with the metal blade, mince garlic. Add onion and chop fine. Add vinegar, mustard, celery seed, salt, pepper and sugar; process until combined. With the motor running, slowly pour oil through the feed tube.

Just before serving, toss cabbage and blue cheese with the dressing. Serves 8.

PASTA SALAD WITH FRESH TOMATO PESTO

1 lbs. pasta, such as penne, rotelle or small shells
3/4 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped carrot
3/4 cup chopped, peeled and seeded cucumber
1 can (15 oz.) artichoke hearts, drained and chopped
1 can (4 1/2 oz.) sliced black olives, drained
Fresh Tomato Pesto (see below):
6 large tomatoes (about 2 3/4 pounds)
4 cloves garlic, peeled
2 cups packed fresh basil leaves (about 2 ounces)

6 tbsps. pine nuts or walnuts
1 cup grated parmesan cheese (about 4 ounces)
1/2 cup olive oil
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/4 tsp. cayenne pepper
Salt and pepper to taste

To make the Fresh Tomato Pesto, cut tomatoes in half, crosswise, squeeze out seeds and chop coarse. In a food processor fitted with a metal blade, mince garlic. Add basil, nuts and parmesan cheese; process until ground. Add olive and vegetable oils, process until blended. Season with cayenne and salt and pepper to taste. Add tomatoes and pulse 3 or 4 times until finely chopped, but not pureed.

To make the salad, cook the pasta until tender to the bite (al dente). Drain, rinse with cold water and place in salad bowl. Stir in celery, carrot, cucumber, artichoke heart and olives. Pour pesto over and toss well. Refrigerate at least 1 hour for flavors to blend. Refrigerate at room temperature. Serves 10 to 12 as a side dish.

MAGIC PACKAGE CHICKEN

4 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. flour
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup white wine or dry vermouth
1/2 cup chicken broth

Never Confuse Mutton With Fine Tasting Lamb

By Stephanie Shapiro
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Americans do not know lamb from mutton, says Elise Pascoe. That is why they don't think they like lamb, she says. Recently, Pascoe, considered the Australian Julia Child, toured the United States touting the passive beast on behalf of the Australian Meat & Live-Stock Corporation, which represents about 170 million sheep Down Under. And in the land Down Under it is currently springtime, which means that Australian lamb will soon be available in America.

The difference between lamb and mutton? About 12 months, Pascoe says. Lamb is a baby sheep with no teeth; mutton is a grown sheep with four teeth.

"A lot of people who think they don't like lamb have tasted mutton dressed as lamb. It should be pale, light red, with very fine grain. There should be no woolly smell or flavor," Pascoe says.

Lamb lends itself to all kinds of cooking, Pascoe says. Cooked fast-broiled, barbecued, stir fried or roasted, lamb is low in calories and convenient for busy families, she says.

When using these methods, "I always leave the fat on," Pascoe says. "It flavors and protects the meat while it is cooking and then, it will burn off."

If you are roasting lamb, set the oven at 400 degrees, and "Cook it quickly," she says. "Trim the visible fat and serve it. It's always fair to let it rest first, since you've exposed it to such hectic heat. It should be gorgeous and tender."

In addition, Pascoe says, "Never let the heat reach the center. The meat loses its color, loses juices, changes texture from tender and moist to dry and firm. It also loses flavor and nutrition."

Lamb should be cooked until it's medium or pink medium, she says. For diners who cannot eat pink meat, return sliced lamb to the same heat source for just a matter of seconds, Pascoe says.

Lamb can be prepared in many other ways, Pascoe says. Ask the butcher to butterfly a leg, removing the bone, then it can be steeped in a marinade made with bay, thyme, garlic, wine and oil and cooked in the grill. Lamb can also be ground into burgers, braised, cooked in casseroles, curries, stews, moussaka, sausages, chili. "Lamb chili is to die for," Pascoe says.

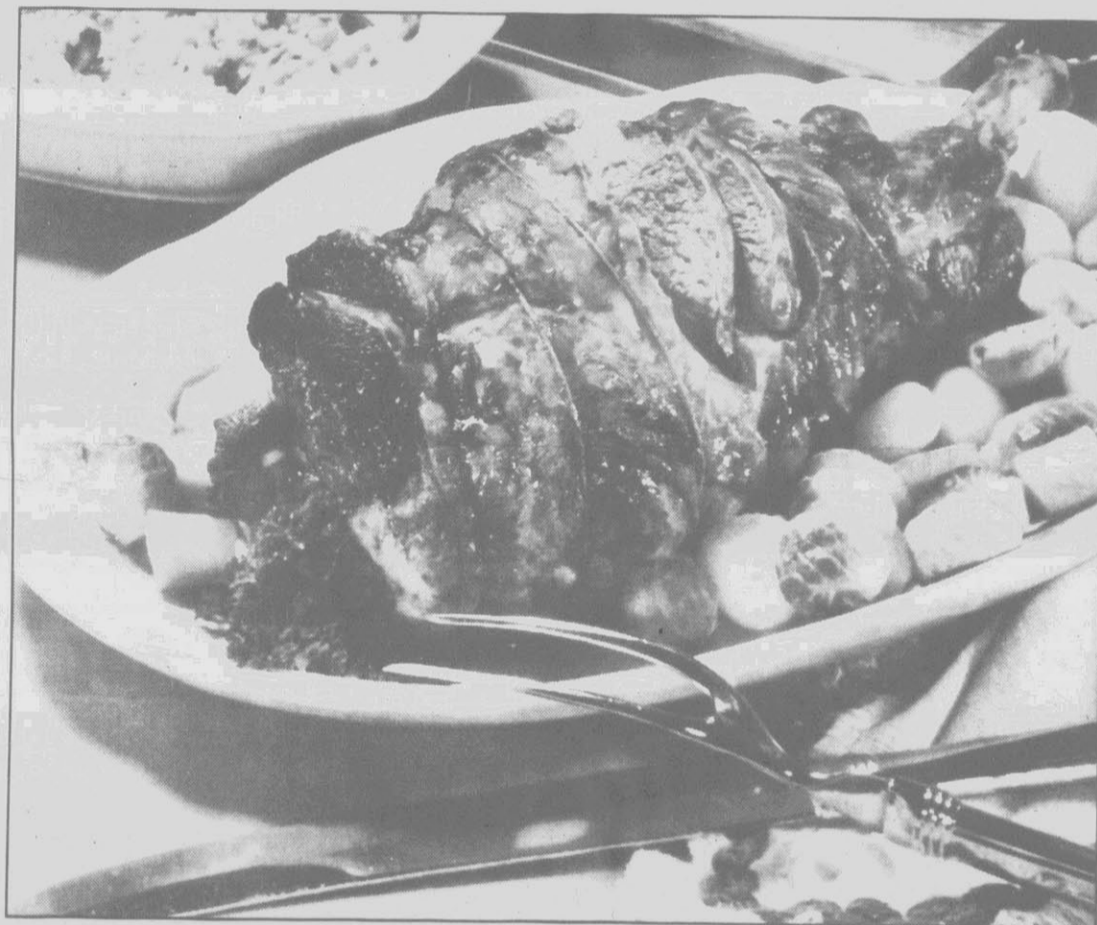

When using slow cooking methods with ground meat, "choose the less expensive cuts. The shoulder's the cheapest and sweetest and highly neglected," Pascoe says.

Chilies and stews should be allowed to settle over night in order to remove the fat.

And don't worry, mint jelly is no longer a staple with lamb. More savory and appealing are Mediterranean flavorings, like lemon, oregano, thyme, garlic, orange rind, black olives and anchovies, Pascoe says. "I use red currant jelly. You can use cranberry for a little bit of sweetness. It really compliments the lamb."

In Australia, lamb is also being cut into "roasts, thick steaks and strip steaks," Pascoe says.

Most importantly, "Lamb should be allowed to make its own statement. Keep it fresh, lightly cooked. Cook it lovingly. Lamb's not cheap, don't spoil it. Cook it intelligently. Present it beautifully. Don't trick it up."

Roasted lamb should be cooked quickly in a hot oven

LAMB MARINADE

2 cups dry red wine
1/2 to 1 cup lemon juice
2 cups diced celery, leeks and carrots, mixed together
2 to 4 cloves of garlic, crushed unskinned
1 tsp. each dried thyme, dried tarragon and salt
1/4 tsp. each oregano, basil, rosemary and black pepper

Stir the ingredients together in a saucepan and boil gently for a few minutes. Place the lamb in a pan suitable for marinating the meat. Pour over the hot marinade. Turn every 30 minutes for four to five hours.

RACK OF LAMB

2 eight-chop racks of lamb, well trimmed
1 tbsps. virgin olive oil
3 scallions, sliced
Salt and pepper, to taste
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 each: bay leaf, sprig of fresh thyme, clove of garlic
1 tbsps. red currant cordial
2/3 cup chicken broth
6 oz. blueberries

Q. How do I figure out how many grams of fat I can eat daily? The labels are confusing, M.V., Washington.

A. I will agree that food labels, while generally helpful, can be confusing when you try to calculate your fat intake. It feels like you are trying to break a coded message. You need to do some math work to find out how many grams of fat you can eat in a day. Then, you will look for the number of grams in a serving of food. You find that information on labels and in food composition books. When you reach your total grams of fat, you have had enough fat.

Now, to find out how much fat you can eat in a day, multiply the number of calories you eat times .30. We recommend you use .30 because a healthy diet has 30 percent of its calories from fat (the rest comes from carbohydrate and protein). Then you divide the number by 9 calories.

So, if you eat 2,000 calories each day, multiply 2,000 x .30 which equals 600. Then divide 600 by 9 which equals 66 grams of fat. If you want to use a rule of thumb, women generally need 50-66 grams of fat daily and men need 66-80 grams of fat. About 1/3 should be polyunsaturated, 1/3 saturated fat and 1/3 monounsaturated. Yes, you do need some saturated fat in your diet. Most eastern North Carolinians have too much, though.

It's tricky reading labels because nutrition labeling and ingredient labeling are not the same thing. Some products like luncheon meat have labels that read: "87 percent fat free." That does not mean that only 13 percent is fat. The 87 percent is based on the weight of the bologna or lunch meat. To find out what percent of the product is fat, you again have to do some math. Look on the label for the number of grams of fat. Multiply that times 9 to get the total calories coming from fat. So, if the product has 10 grams of fat, multiply 10 grams times 9 to learn that a serving has 90 calories coming from fat.

FDA Considers Letting Manufacturers Include Health Claims On Food Labels

By Carole Sugarman
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Like an ad writer laboring over a new jingle, the government is stuck on some hot copy. It's about what kinds of health claims can appear on food labels.

Many food labels contain statements such as "fortified with calcium" or "high in fiber," and now the government is considering allowing manufacturers to take the next step. They would be able to say that their products may reduce the risk of a specific disease. Such statements have been prohibited by the government since 1906.

The first version of the Food and Drug Administration's health-message plan, a proposal that was largely regarded as vague and solicitous to industry, appeared last year.

Under that proposal, manufacturers would be allowed to say that a component in their products might reduce the risk of certain diseases so long as the statement was truthful and not misleading. The messages, which could only be used if a package included nutrition labeling, would have to be based on valid and reliable scientific evidence as determined by the manufacturer.

FDA's final rule, in which the determination would be made by the government, is really not final until OMB signs off on it. OMB and some industry representatives view the new version as too restrained, but consumer groups still view it as too lax.

An FDA official said that the agency has heard informally from OMB staffers that "we don't like it, it's too restrictive." OMB had no comment.

Edward Dunkelberger, an attorney who represents the National Food Processors Association, said that "the FDA final rule is much more restrictive than the initial proposal... the intent seems to be to cut back on particular claims as well as what the claims say." Dunkelberger added that NFPA has not yet taken a formal position on the rule.

The major elements of the unpublished document are:

—FDA would review scientific findings to decide whether there's enough evidence that a food might reduce the risk of a specific disease. To start, FDA would study and summarize five diet-and-health relationships: calcium and osteoporosis; sodium and hypertension; lipids and heart disease; lipids and cancer, and fiber and cancer.

—Model label statements based on these summaries could be used by manufacturers on their food labels if evidence indicates there is a link.

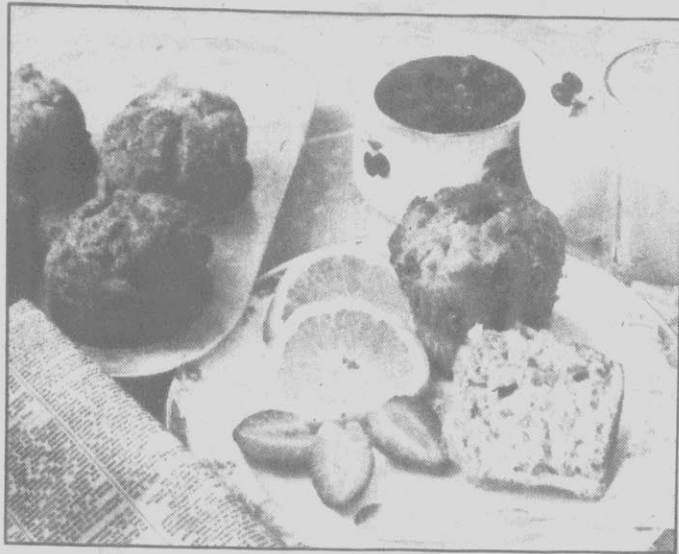

According to an FDA official, an example might be something like "there is credible scientific evidence that increasing intake of fiber may decrease the risk of cancer." The statement would have to indicate how much fiber the product contains and direct the consumer's attention to the nutrition label for more information. A statement would also tell consumers how to get a copy of a "consumer health message summary."

Manufacturers would be urged to use these model statements, but wouldn't be required to. Statements devised by the manufacturers would have to be consistent with the conclusions of the scientific summaries. Companies that made label claims that weren't consistent would be subject to regulatory action.

—Consumer-health-message summaries written in lay language would describe the supporting scientific evidence (e.g. the fiber and cancer connection). They would also include recommendations on the role of the food component in the total diet, information on other sources of the component and, if applicable, how much is recommended daily.

Because there's not a lot of room on a food label, these summaries would be available by writing to the government, or through food companies.

Breakfast Can Be Easy, Healthy And Delicious

While a good breakfast can make or break your morning, planning and preparing one doesn't have to be a daily chore.

The ideal breakfast features complex carbohydrates, providing some protein for energy and dietary fiber to make it "stick to your ribs." Add some citrus or other fruit for vitamin C, and limit high fat items (such as bacon, whole milk, or butter). Voila! A breakfast guaranteed to provide steady energy throughout the morning, while helping you meet the American Institute for Cancer Research's Dietary Guidelines to Lower Cancer Risk.

Complex carbohydrates (once called starches) contain very little fat and, if they're whole grain, lots of fiber as well. Grains such as wheat, oats and corn are complex carbohydrates which, when served with a dairy product such as skim milk or lowfat yogurt, can be valuable sources of protein.

While hot cereal has lots of appeal on wintry days, there are many not-so-healthy varieties on today's grocery shelves. Some types of "instant" hot cereals (though not instant oatmeal) may have much of the fiber removed, and many brands add lots of sugar and sodium. Learn to check nutritional labels.

These whole grain muffins feature oat bran, which has a smoother consistency than wheat bran when cooked. Their delicious and distinctive flavor is sure to start the day off right.

OAT BRAN MUFFINS

- 2 1/2 cups oat bran
- 1/4 cup raisins (optional)
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt (optional)
- 3/4 cup skim milk
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup maple syrup or honey
- 2 tsp. vegetable oil

Combine all the dry ingredients, mixing them together well. Beat the liquids together and add them to the dry ingredients, stirring until they are just moistened.

Oil muffin tins or use paper cupcake liners. Fill 2/3 full, and bake at 425° for 12 to 15 minutes or until the muffins are done. This recipe makes 12 muffins.

aluminum foil large enough to make an envelope for each chicken breast. Butter the foil with half (2 tablespoons) of butter. Make a paste with the remaining butter and the flour and set aside. Mix the milk, wine and chicken broth together in a 1-quart saucepan and bring to a boil. Add the paste and stir until smooth. Reduce the heat to low; when boiling has stopped, gently stir in the egg yolk, being careful not to let the mixture boil. Remove from heat and add cayenne, nutmeg, cloves, mushrooms and chives. Lay each chicken breast on a square of buttered foil. Divide the sauce evenly over the breasts. Fold edges and seal together, but do not wrap too tightly around chicken. Bake for 10 minutes. Serve wrapped in the foil; guests open their own.

Cranberry-Pear Cobbler with its tart red cranberries and sweet pears makes a warm winter dessert. Served with a warm beverage, it's the perfect conclusion to a cosy indoor tailgate party! This recipe is also take from Easy Entertaining with Marlene Sorosky.

CRANBERRY-PEAR COBBLER

- Pastry:
- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 tsp. salt, or to taste
 - 1/2 cup vegetable shortening, chilled in freezer until firm
 - 5 tbsps. butter or margarine, cold and cut into 5 pieces
 - 4 tbsps. ice water
- Filling:
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
 - 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
 - 1/4 tsp. ground allspice
 - 1/8 tsp. ground cardamom, optional
 - 1 bag (12 oz.) cranberries (3 1/2 cups berries)
 - 4 medium pears, peeled, halved, cored and sliced 1/4-inch thick
 - 1 tbsps. butter or margarine, cut into small pieces

Vanilla ice cream for serving, if desired
To make pastry, in a food processor fitted with a metal blade or in a medium bowl with a pastry blender or finger tips, combine flour and salt. Add shortening and butter or margarine; pulse or mix until the mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle ice water over and mix just until the pastry holds together when pinched between your fingers. Do not form into ball. Flatten into a disk, wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate while preparing the filling or overnight, if desired.

To make the filling, in a medium bowl stir together sugar, flour, allspice and cardamom, if using. Add cranberries and pears; toss until combined. Pour into butter 7x11-inch glass baking dish or 4- to 5-cup gratin dish. Sprinkle butter or margarine over fruit.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. On a lightly floured board, roll out pastry about 1 inch larger than the baking dish and about 1/3 inch thick. Place over fruit; press against sides of the dish to form a border and seal the edges. Cut three 2-inch slits in top to allow steam to escape. Bake for 35 to 45 minutes or until the pastry is lightly browned and fruit is bubbling. The pastry will shrink from the sides. Cool 15 to 20 minutes before serving. Serve warm with ice cream, if desired. Serves 6 to 8.

Lamb Can Be Cooked In Variety Of Ways

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. Pour oil and scallions onto baking pan and add the racks meat side up. Cook 10 minutes, season meat side with cracked salt and pepper to taste. Flip racks and cook 10 minutes more. Season flip side and cook five more minutes (rare) or 10 (medium). Remove and let stand for 10 minutes.

Skim fat off pan juices and re-heat liquid, scraping pan. Stir in white wine and reduce by half. Add herbs and broth and simmer (don't boil) for five minutes. Remove herbs and stir in berries and the cordial.

Cut the racks into chops. Stir lamb juices from cutting platter into sauce, spoon onto warm dishes and arrange lamb on top.

LAMB CHOPS

- 4 1 1/2-inch thick lamb chops, boned, trimmed and butterflied
 - 1 tsp. Dijon mustard
 - 2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
 - 2 tbsps. fresh, chopped mint
 - 4 toast points
- "Butterfly" filets by cutting horizontally 3/4 way through and spread open. Score with a sharp knife and spread on half the mixture of mint, sauce and mustard. Place under broiler for five minutes (rare) or seven (medium). Flip, score and spread with remaining mixture. Cook additional five to seven minutes. Place on toast points (day old bread lightly fried in oil and thoroughly drained).

Mousse Cake One of His Specialties

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Ettore Minutillo worked as a baker for more than 40 years in New York before he retired in 1985. But nearly four years later, Minutillo is again hard at work — this time in Hartford — baking the Italian cookies, cakes and pastries that are his specialty.

"I'm not here for the paycheck at the end of the week," says Minutillo, who single-handedly bakes everything for the pastry cases.

Besides the dozens of cookies and biscuits he makes regularly for the bakery department, he makes pastries with such exotic names as Divina d'Amore and Mostaccioli Baresi.

The Divina d'Amore cookies — translated as "divine love" — are similar to macaroons; the Pasta Reale cookies are more candylike. The Reale dough is a mixture of sugar and almond paste that requires no baking. The Mostaccioli Baresi, covered in chocolate, are studded with nuts and fruit.

The following recipe for Roman Mousse Cake is one of Minutillo's specialties. Although he normally makes 10 of these cakes at a time, he adapted the recipe for home use to make one.

ROMAN MOUSSE CAKE

- 1 10-inch layer of chocolate or devil's food cake
- 1 lb. bittersweet chocolate
- 1 cup plus 3 tbsps. confectioners' sugar
- 4 tbsps. granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 oz. coffee-flavored liqueur
- 2 qts. heavy cream, whipped

Split cake into two layers. Place one layer in the bottom of a 10-inch springform pan; reserve the remaining layer.

Melt chocolate in a double boiler. In a separate bowl, place confec-tioners' sugar. Stir granulated sugar into milk, then mix into confectioners' sugar. Stir in melted chocolate and liqueur.

Fold half of the whipped cream into the chocolate mixture until well blended. Pour chocolate mixture into springform pan, and top with remaining cake layer. Refrigerate overnight (Cake also may be frozen). Remove sides of springform pan, and garnish with remaining whipped cream.

Informal Buffet Supper Menu Will Warm Guests

By Rose Dosti
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Buffet supper parties can be fun during the cold winter months, as long as you use a strategy that will free you to enjoy the supper as much as the guests.

That means a simple menu — two or three items — that can, except for a quick reheat in the oven or stove, be completely prepared ahead.

Chef and restaurant-owner Mark Carter came up with an imaginative sandwich supper to fit the bill.

"Sandwiches are easy to handle and give the guests something to do that also helps," he said.

He starts out with a do-ahead Squash and Garlic Soup.

Open-Faced Pork Sandwiches are served with their own natural juices, for something like a Vienna roll idea. A refreshing Bitter Green and Pineapple Salad that you can assemble ahead but dress at the last moment, makes a colorful and interesting salad course. And for dessert, a Walnut Cake that can be made as far in advance as a week, provided you store it properly in the refrigerator or freezer.

Carter suggests serving the sandwiches open-faced and allowing the guests to sop juices over their own sandwiches. Having an attendant to do the honors is a nice touch, if you can afford the luxury.

Recipes follow for your late supper.

MARK CARTER'S LATE SUPPER MENU

Squash and Garlic Soup
Open-Faced Pork Sandwiches
Bitter Green and Pineapple Salad
Walnut Cake

Prepare squash soup, roast pork and bake Walnut Cake ahead. Prepare salad ahead and add dressing at last moment.

SQUASH AND GARLIC SOUP

1 bay leaf

1 sprig thyme

1 sprig parsley

Tie bay leaf, thyme, parsley, peppercorns and coriander seeds in cheesecloth. Bring stock mixture to boil, add bouquet garni and simmer 30 to 45 minutes or until squash is very tender. Remove bouquet garni, puree and strain squash mixture.

Heat remaining 5 tablespoons oil and saute chopped garlic until crisp and brown. Do not overcook. Drain.

Reheat soup, check seasonings and garnish each serving with toasted bread slice. Sprinkle fried garlic over bread slices. Makes 8 servings.
