Black's Death Sets Off 6-Hour Riot In Miami

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — A police officer shot a fleeing black motorcyclist in the predominantly black Overtown neighborhood, touching off a six-hour riot that left cars and a store ablaze. Sporadic gunfire and looting continued today.

Mayor Xavier Suarez declared the situation under control early today and called for an investigation.

The riot occurred on the night of the federal holiday for slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. and as national attention was focused on the city as the host of Sunday's Super Bowl. It also rekindled memories of Miami riots in the early 1980s. "It just exploded," said City

Commissioner Rosario Kennedy as she prepared to enter the 1 1/2-square-mile area with a police escort. "People have been celebrating Martin Luther King's birthday all day. Maybe they were drunk. We just don't know."

The riot was triggered by the motorcyclist's death Monday night as he was chased for an alleged traffic violation, said Sgt. Michael Mazur, a police spokesman.

At least two officers were pursuing the motorcycle, and one of the officers fired a shot, hitting the 21-year-old driver in the head, said Assistant Police Chief Don March. The motorcycle crashed into a moving car, March said.

March said on NBC's "Today" show that he believed the shot killed the motorcyclist, but said police could not be certain until an autopsy was conducted.

Police refused to give the officer's race.

The motorcyclist's 24-year-old brother, who was a passenger, was in critical condition today, said Jackson Memorial Hospital officials.

Within minutes of the shooting, at least 100 blacks began throwing rocks and bottles at police, who called for reinforcements. About 125 officers cordoned off the area.

Four people, including one police officer, were treated for cuts and minor injuries, said Jackson Hospital spokesman Tony Fallon.

D.D. Garrett Presented King Award For His Service To Local Community

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

D.D. Garrett Sr., a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, was named the recipient of the 1989 Dr. Martin Luther King Community Service Award presented Monday night by the Eta Nu chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity.

Garrett was named during the chapter's fifth annual program that was held to commemorate the birthday of the slain civil rights leader.

Sheila Gardner, president of the Minority Student Organization at East Carolina University, was presented the 1989 Dr. Martin Luther King Student Leadership Award.

Dr. Clarence Gray, a minister and the principal of Wintergreen Elementary School, was the speaker for the program. He told the audience of more than 100 people gathered in the Mendenhall Student Center at ECU that "these are marching times" as he presented his message from King.

"Martin, Martin, what do you want me to tell these people about you?" he asked. "You've been dead 39 years ... things are not much better."

Racism, poor housing, injustice and poor working conditions still plague society, Gray said.

"Martin, what do you want me to say about you?"

King's response would be to "tell them to march on 'til victory is won," Gray said. "Tell them they killed the dreamer but they didn't kill the dream. Tell them dreamers must have courage, run the risk of being hated, will stand out like a sore thumb." Gray said.

"They called me a troublemaker because I wanted bread for the hungry; they called me a troublemaker because I wanted clothes for the naked," he said. Citing the "troublemakers" of the Bible who marched, Gray said, "Jesus was called the No. 1 troublemaker. Everywhere he went he caused trouble."

King also would say, "tell them I have a dream." Gray said. "Tell them dreams don't have legs. Take

Shultz Condemns Eastern Bloc Acts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA, Austria — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today insisted that East bloc nations implement human rights accords and cease repression.

In a speech to a 35-nation human rights conference, he said that while "we are entering a period in which respect for human rights is gaining ground," there were remaining "dark areas" in Eastern Europe.

He condemned Czechoslovakia for forcibly suppressing demonstrators in Prague on Sunday and detaining scores of them.

Shultz departed from his text and added criticism of East Germany where, he noted, scores of human rights demonstrators were arrested in Leipzig on Sunday.

As in Prague, Shultz said, most of the East Germans have not yet been freed. He said the arrests stood "in glaring contradiction to the solemn international commitment" given by the communist governments.

Later, at a news conference, Shultz criticized Romania for declaring it would not be obliged to comply with all provisions of the new human rights declaration adopted here Sunday.

"You have to keep calling these things as you see them," Shultz said. He underscored U.S. demands that all of Eastern Europe follow the pace set by Moscow.

Shultz, in his speech to the human rights conference, said riot police, using rubber truncheons, tear gas and water cannon on peaceful participants, directly violated the Czech government's commitment to the 1975 Helsinki accords.

And he deplored what he called "the timidity" of the governments of East Germany, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia in not granting greater freedom of expression and assembly to their people.

He said their reluctance contrasted with "welcome progress" in the Soviet Union and two of its Eastern allies, Hungary and Poland.

But even in the Soviet Union, Shultz said, the release of more than 600 political prisoners left others "unjustly imprisoned." He pledged: "We cannot forget them."

Shultz, who leaves office with the Reagan administration on Friday, spoke at ceremonies near the end of a 27-month review of compliance with the 1975 Helsinki Final Act, which sought to ease East-West tensions while promoting a freer exchange of people and ideas between East and West.

He said the Helsinki promise has served as a "positive force for change," but that Europe still lives with "a legacy of the Cold War."

Martin Says Pay Hikes To Be Late

By John Flesher
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin today endorsed pay increases of 5.7 percent for teachers and 4.5 percent for other state employees but said the raises probably would have to be deferred until April 1990 because of slow revenue growth.

In his biennial State of the State address, Martin also proposed for the first time that parents and students be given more freedom to choose which schools their children will attend. He said he will ask the State Board of Education to study how "schools of choice" could improve education quality.

Martin laid out a broad program for the 1989 General Assembly session but warned that the fiscal picture would allow only the most urgent spending increases in fiscal 1989-90. He said the situation would improve, allowing more new programs and expansions, next year.

"I hope you will agree that in one irregular year for which modest revenue growth is expected, if we cannot have the luxury of a lot more money to spend on new and expanded programs, then our challenge will be to do better with what we have."

Martin said in a prepared text of his speech, which he was to deliver to a joint legislative session.

"Rather than applying our energies toward starting up so many new operations, we can direct our attentions toward polishing up the existing ones and making them work better," said the Republican governor, who was re-elected to his second term Nov. 8.

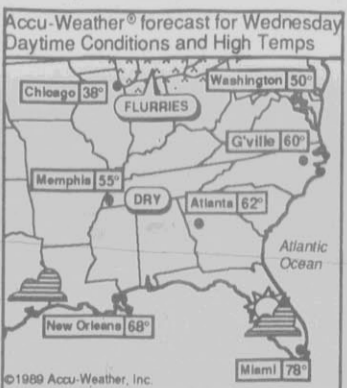

Martin's speech was devoted largely to the 1989-91 budget, which he is expected to submit to the Legislature this week.

He requested full funding of the fifth- and sixth-year installments of the Basic Education Program — $113 million in 1989-90 and $212 million the next year, doubling participation in the Teaching Fellows Program; increased funding of dropout prevention; and $2 million for a pre-kindergarten program for "at-risk" 4-year-olds.

Martin described North Carolina's economic growth as "robust" but acknowledged that lagging state tax collections were expected to generate only $233 million for permanent additions to the budget.

He ruled out an increase in taxes for the general fund, which covers all state spending except for transportation programs.

Easterners Issue Ultimatum On Roads

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Eastern North Carolina legislators have delivered somewhat of an ultimatum to members of the General Assembly: "Include the East in any new highway package or we won't support the proposal."

"I'm highly optimistic ...," Sen. Tom Taft of Greenville said today in a telephone interview. "I think the general feeling is they want to make certain the East is not ignored in this undertaking."

"It's more of an effort to send a very strong message that we've got to get our share in the East, or we don't want to play ball. I think the feeling is very widely held," Taft said.

The group of about 25 eastern legislators gathers about twice a month to monitor bills, to discuss pending legislation and to maintain unity among eastern lawmakers, said Rep. Daniel Lilley, D-Lenoir, who was elected co-chairman of the caucus when the lawmakers met Monday.

"It seems every time we turn around, the main thing we come up short in, is adequate four-lane roads," said Lilley, who is beginning his 11th term in the House.

"I think we all understand, particularly down East, (that eastern North Carolina has long been neglected). We just need to let one another know what's going on and strengthen our position," Lilley said today in a telephone interview from his Raleigh office.

On Monday, the lawmakers put together a package calling for the completion of four-lane highways along all sections of U.S. 17 from Virginia to South Carolina; along U.S. 158 from I-95 to the Outer Banks; along U.S. 64 from I-95 to the Outer Banks, and along U.S. 264 from I-95 to east of Washington, N.C., Lilley said.

Randy Doub of Greenville, a member of the State Department of Transportation, said the requests by the eastern legislators are in line with plans Gov. Jim Martin announced in 1987 in his strategic highway corridor program, which is designed to bring four-lane highways to within 10 miles of 90 percent of the state's population.

"It's not really new news," Doub said. "I think it's really a confirmation of Gov. Martin's program ... We would certainly welcome their support."

Martin's plan has already targeted U.S. 17, U.S. 264 and N.C. 64, Doub said, and the DOT would like to improve U.S. 158.

Lilley said he does not believe the statement from eastern legislators will cause lawmakers from other areas of the state to reject the proposals.

"I don't see that ... If it's best for the east, then it must be best for North Carolina, and that's the bottom line for all of us," he said.

Visitors stand at the edge of Fort Fisher's shore as waves wash on the eroded beach

Fort Fisher Faces Threat By Encroaching Shoreline

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT FISHER, N.C. — A group called Friends of Fort Fisher is working to save the Confederacy's largest earthworks stronghold, urging state officials to pledge half the cost of a $7 million effort to salvage what remains.

Most of the towering, seaside man-made knolls at the historic New Hanover County fort have been swallowed by the Atlantic.

But the means of salvation proposed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers — a 3,000-foot seawall — has been outlawed under North Carolina's coastal regulations because the structures aggravate erosion problems around them. The state would have to exempt itself from a policy that has put seawalls strictly off-limits for private property owners.

"The most distressing thing to me by far is the idea of the state protecting its own property and then not allowing citizens to protect theirs," said Orrin H. Pilkey Jr., a Duke University geology professor. "That would be the end of our very enlightened coastal policy. If our barrier island processes are going to take away the earthworks, so be it."

Pilkey is North Carolina's most outspoken critic of attempts to hold the sea back by using man-made structures. If a seawall is built, the fort will eventually "stick out like a cape," as the unprotected beach erodes around it, he said.

Fort Fisher supporters think a seawall justifies itself. Unless one is built, and built soon, supporters are afraid they will lose not only an important piece of history but a draw to Pleasure Island, where the economy depends largely on tourism.

"It's pitiful," said Dr. Robert M. Fales, 81, of Wilmington, a retired physician who remembers the fort before its six-story batteries disappeared. "I'm ashamed of my generation because we've done nothing to preserve it."

The ocean has been gulping up large chunks of the seaweed face of Fort Fisher for the past 60 years. Nearly three-fourths of the L-shaped earthworks have been lost. More slips away with every storm.

"We're restoring on one end and it's washing away on the other," said E. Gehrig Spencer, manager of the Fort Fisher State Historic Site since 1966. The site staff has reconstructed much of the westernmost battery that fronts the river.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

was authorized to devise a way to protect the fort in 1976, but the state has yet to agree to fund its share of the cost. The authorization will die in 1992 if the state makes no commitment by then.

The bite out of the shoreline at Fort Fisher is threatening to cut through U.S. 421, the highway that leads south to the N.C. Aquarium and the Southport Ferry.

"If something isn't done soon, it's going to be a has-been, or a wish-we-had," said Frank E. Link, mayor of nearby Kure Beach, the town just north of the fort.

Sen. Franklin L. Block, D-New Hanover, said he planned to sponsor legislation this session asking for the state funds.

"A lot of the history of our country was changed because of what happened here," Mr. Block said. "We should not allow a site that was such an important part of our heritage to be eroded away."

Falwell Says End To Abortion Near

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SNELLVILLE, Ga. — As protesters chanted outside, the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Lynchburg, Va., told 2,000 people at a church service that the U.S. Supreme Court's plan to review a Missouri law that limits access to abortions might signal the beginning of the end for pro-choice forces.

"There's no question that abortion will be done away with," the evangelist and spokesman for the religious right said. "The trend is clearly toward life and away from death. The abortionists are losing, and that is why they are becoming so frantic."

Before Monday night's meeting, 15 protesters marched in front of the First Baptist Church of Snellville chanting slogans, such as "Jerry Falwell, go to hell! N-A-Z-I can you spell?"

"Today is the 60th birthday of Martin Luther King and we have this white supremacist leader preaching here who's anti-women-and-black and anti-gay," said protester Jack Pelham, leader of a group called the Coalition Opposing Operation Rescue.

"We want to let Jerry Falwell know that whenever he's in town we'll be there to protest because he endorses and finances Operation Rescue and its agenda to suppress women's rights," said Pelham.

Operation Rescue is a New York-based group that staged a series of anti-abortion demonstrations in nearby Atlanta last year.

During his speech, Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, only briefly mentioned the abortion issue and the protesters outside, whom he called "clowns."

"We're glad they're out there," he said. "It's an indication that something good is going on inside."

Falwell did not acknowledge that Monday was the birthday of King, the slain civil rights leader, but after the service he said abortion opponents are fighting for the civil rights of the unborn.

"There's no question it's a civil rights issue," he said, adding that unborn children constitute "the largest disenfranchised minority in our society today."

But Falwell said the final goal of anti-abortion activists is not to overturn Roe vs. Wade, the Supreme Court decision that made abortions legal.

"Our ultimate goal is a constitutional amendment. A Supreme Court reversal or modification of Roe v. Wade would be a good step in the right direction, but it is not the answer we're seeking," he said.

"That would simply send it back to the states, and then we'd have to go through all 50 states. You're talking about New York, Massachusetts. We might as well be dealing with Moscow."

The high court announced Jan. 9 it will consider the Missouri case, which involves a 1986 state law including bans on the involvement of public hospitals, employees and money in abortions. The law was struck down by lower courts and now is on appeal.

Falwell spoke at the church as part of its month-long celebration marking the culmination of a $3.8 million building expansion project.

Supreme Court Allows Smoking Foes To Use Firm's Research

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today allowed anti-smoking groups to see and publicize a cigarette company's research that the groups say may link smoking to health hazards.

Museum Attendance

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Museum of Art set an attendance record in 1987-88 with more than 250,000 visitors.

By the end of June, membership at the museum had nearly doubled from the previous year to more than 8,000 households, according to the museum's newly released annual report. And among the record 43,000 schoolchildren shuffling through the building was an 8-year-old boy who became its millionth visitor.

The 251,919 visitors to the museum in 1987-88 broke the previous year's record of 223,300.

The Robes of Elegance exhibit between March and June drew 70,000 visitors, museum Director Richard S. Schneiderman said. It was the world's only display of its kind with four centuries of Japanese kimonos.

The court, without comment, let stand a ruling in a case from Boston that allows public access to material compiled for Liggett Group Inc.

The case stems from a lawsuit by the widow and daughter of Joseph C. Palmer. The suit alleged that Palmer's death from lung cancer in 1980 was caused by cigarette smoking, and accused Liggett of failing to warn adequately of the consequences of smoking.

A federal judge in Boston ruled against the Palmer family. But in 1987 anti-smoking groups asked the judge to release research conducted for Liggett that the groups said may show cigarette smoking causes disease.

The groups are Public Citizen, the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, the American Lung Association and the American Public Health Association.

The judge, who kept the material secret while the suit was pending, permitted the groups access to the documents after he dismissed the case. His ruling on disclosure of the documents was upheld last September by the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The appeals court said that under federal court rules "the public has a presumptive right of access to (such) materials unless good cause for confidentiality is shown, and ... no good cause exists here" for secrecy.

Cigarette manufacturers have been successful generally in winning lawsuits accusing them of contributing to lung cancer and other diseases.

But in June 1988 a federal jury in New Jersey ruled against Liggett and awarded a smoker's widower $400,000, the first time damages were ordered for a disease said to be caused by smoking.

Faulty Wiring Found On 7 Airliners

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Engineers found errors in emergency system wiring of two Delta Air Lines Boeing 757s, an airline spokesman said today. Similar problems have been reported in five other planes belonging to four carriers.

Jim Lundy, a Delta spokesman in Atlanta, said the airline immediately notified the Federal Aviation Administration and corrected the problems, which would have prevented sprinklers from working properly in the event of a baggage hold fire.

Similar problems were earlier reported in another Delta-operated 757, one belonging to Royal Brunei Airlines, two owned by Air Holland and one operated by the British airline Air 2000. One of the Air Holland planes was being used by a charter company in Canada.

Discovery of the crossed-wiring by Delta engineers in one of its 41 new 757s led to an FAA "airworthiness directive" last Friday. Airlines using the planes had until this morning to complete the inspections.

Officials of Eastern, which operates 25 of the 757s, and Northwest, which has 33, said today they found no problems with any of their planes.

Lundy said all other Delta planes also passed the inspection.

He said one plane had cross-wiring into the cargo area, which would have resulted in the wrong sprinkler system going off. The other had a wiring error that would have flashed a warning light in the cockpit, but the fire extinguisher would not have worked, he said.

FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said the agency had not yet received complete results of the testing of either the 757s or of testing under an earlier order involving engine fire warnings systems of Boeing 737s. In checks with several of the 10 airlines involved with the 737 inspections during the weekend, none reported a problem.

Regular airline service was not affected by any of the inspections, officials said.

The directive for 737s came as the result of speculation that cross-wiring might have misled the pilot of a British Midland 737 to shut down his good right engine after the left one caught fire. Officials have yet to determine cause of the crash that killed 44 people Jan. 8.

The two FAA directives were not related, except that both involved possible cross-wiring.

The 757 inspection was for cross-wiring of warning systems from the cargo holds, done either on the Boeing assembly line in Seattle where the planes were built less than a year ago or during maintenance.

"We are looking into the technical aspects of it to see what the miswiring was or is, how they relate to each other, and what might have happened so we can correct it," Boeing spokesman Tom Cole said Monday after problems with five aircraft had been reported.

Cole said three of the first five planes affected were manufactured at the same time, but the one owned Royal Brunei and the first one from Delta were not.

"The Boeing Co. will examine what happened and study the way the (fire extinguisher) bottles are put in there. We'll see if something can be done to make them less fallible," he said.

Inaugural Goodies Can Please Anyone

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — There's something for everyone who wants a memento of the 41st president's inauguration, ranging from a $1,200 crystal eagle for high-rollers to commemorative buttons for a buck.

The official sales booths don't open until later this week, but souvenir stands along the Mall already are hawking sweatshirts and buttons with pictures of President-elect Bush and Vice President-elect Dan Quayle.

Tourists can get a sweatshirt for $12 or pay $5 for a "Republican Integrity" button with pictures of Bush and Presidents Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Reagan. Two dollars will buy a gaudy button with Bush's and Quayle's faces atop a color photo of the last inaugural ceremony, while smaller buttons go for $1.

Sales have been slow thus far, according to one souvenir salesman who said he hopes more people will be in the mood to buy trinkets as Friday's inaugural approaches.

People bought many more souvenirs when President Reagan took office, another salesman said.

"When he was first elected eight years ago it was — boom — big market," said the salesman, who declined to give his name. "Now (sales are) not even one-third of that."

Bush's inaugural committee hopes to rake in the cash through a souvenir sales catalogue it mailed to 1.5 million Republicans, historians and collectors.

People with a lot to spend can pay $1.95 for a Steuben crystal eagle "depicting courage, splendor and freedom in many lands," according to the catalogue. A crystal ice bucket with the official inaugural seal goes for $175.

The catalogue also offers commemorative coins, key rings, golf caps, umbrellas and playing cards. For $75, folks can wrap up in a terrycloth bathrobe with the inaugural seal. Spices for Texas chili, barbecue and gumbo sell for $2.50 each.

T-shirts and sweatshirts celebrating the bicentennial inaugural's "George to George" theme — Washington to Bush — sell for $10 to $44.95. And, people can pay up to $60 for a red, white and blue inaugural auto license plate that is good until March 31.

The inaugural committee also has contracted with Creative Photo

Crafts of Toledo, Ohio, to operate 21 sales booths along the inaugural parade route to sell items including mittens, chocolate bars and pen-nants.

The first booth opens Tuesday, while two more open Thursday and the rest will operate only on inaugural day.

"It all depends on the weather," said Tony Baltes, president of Creative Photo Crafts. Four years ago, the inaugural parade was canceled as temperatures dived toward zero.

"We're betting that the weather's going to be nice," Baltes said.

His company will be selling more expensive items at some of the official inaugural events, including a $60 embroidered sweatshirt.

The U.S. Postal Service is offering a different kind of souvenir — inaugural stamp cancellations from several cities, such as Kennebunkport, Maine, and Huntington, Ind., associated with Bush and Quayle. For $4.95, post offices across the country are selling a Bicentennial Inaugural Memento with envelopes bearing the special inaugural cancellations.

Otherwise, people who don't get to come to Washington this week must rely on the mail-order catalogue for their souvenirs.

But Bush's honeymoon with Congress may be over by the time the merchandise arrives — delivery on many items is expected to take up to 90 days.

Business Stocks Up

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Business inventories rose 0.4 percent in November, the biggest rise since September, and sales jumped by 0.4 percent as well, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said inventories held on shelves and backlogs rose to a seasonally adjusted $753.6 billion, while sales reached $503.8 billion.

The November increase in inventories followed virtually no rise during October and a 0.9 percent jump in September. It was the 23rd straight month in which inventories had risen.

The matching 0.4 percent gains in both inventories and sales produced no change in the ratio of inventories to sales, which stood at 1.50, meaning it would take 1.5 months to exhaust inventories at the November sales pace.

The monthly increase in sales was down from a 1.3 percent increase in October and virtually unchanged sales activity in September.

The November sales gain was led by a 0.9 percent rise at the retail level, followed by a 0.5 percent increase at the manufacturing level. These two gains offset a 0.4 percent decline in sales at the wholesale level.

The government last week reported that retail sales in December rose a lackluster 0.2 percent.

Court Lets Conviction Of Florida Killer Stand

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today refused to set aside serial killer Theodore Bundy's conviction and death sentence for murdering a 12-year-old girl in Florida 11 years ago.

The justices, by a 7-2 vote, let stand rulings that Bundy was mentally competent when he stood trial in 1980 for the slaying in Lake City, Fla., of Kimberly Leach.

Bundy, 42, also received death sentences for the 1978 killings of two Florida State University sorority sisters who were beaten and strangled just three weeks before the Leach murder.

He has been linked to as many as 36 sex murders or disappearances of young women, most of them in Utah, Colorado and Washington state.

A federal court hearing in Fort Lauderdale is scheduled for next Monday to determine whether Bundy was mentally competent when he stood trial for the sorority house killings.

But Florida Gov. Bob Martinez is under no legal obligation to postpone signing a death warrant and setting a date for Bundy's death in the state's electric chair for the Leach murder.

Bundy, whose case won national attention even before it was depicted in a television miniseries "The Deliberate Stranger," previously has come within hours of being executed only to win postponement.

Today's action marks the fourth time the Supreme Court has considered a formal appeal filed in Bundy's behalf. One, rejected by the justices in 1986, was a 34-page document filed by Bundy, a Utah law school dropout, in his own handwriting.

In the appeal acted on today, lawyers for Bundy argued that lower courts wrongly determined at a much later date that he had been competent to stand trial in 1980.

Referring to numerous incidents in which Bundy exhibited bizarre behavior during his trial for the Leach murder, the appeal said Bundy was mentally incompetent at the time.

"This court has never addressed the issue of when, if ever, a (post-trial) hearing would be adequate to remedy a violation of a defendant's right ... to a contemporary determination of his competency when sufficient indicia arise at trial," the appeal said.

The Supreme Court in 1966 said defendants have a right to such a "contemporary" competency hearing.

After the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in 1987 that Bundy was entitled to a hearing to determine whether he had been mentally competent in 1980, a federal judge ruled that Bundy had been.

The judge called Bundy "the most competent serial killer in the country at this time ... a diabolical genius."

The 11th Circuit court then upheld the competency ruling, sparking the appeal acted on today.

The appeal also argued that Bundy's conviction for the Lake City murder was tainted by the "uncorroborated, hypnotically developed testimony of an alleged eyewitness" to the young girl's abduction and by ineffective legal help at trial.

"It is left to this court," the appeal said, "to apply the Constitution to protect this unpopular petitioner to the same degree it protects all other criminal defendants."

Kimberly Leach disappeared from a junior high school on Feb. 9, 1978. Her body was found in an abandoned pigsty.

Prosecutors said that on the night of Jan. 15, 1978, Bundy entered a Chi Omega sorority house on the FSU campus and attacked four coeds, killing two and seriously injuring two.

Margaret Bowman and Lisa Levy, attacked as they slept, were killed.

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall, who oppose capital punishment under all circumstances, voted to overturn Bundy's death sentence.

The case is Bundy vs. Dugger, 88-5881.

Soviet Wheat Crop Worst In 3 Years

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union's 1988 grain harvest was estimated at 195 million tons, 40 million tons short of the target and the worst harvest in three years.

The 1988 result, blamed on the worldwide drought, is hardly good news for Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Consumers have voiced unhappiness with empty shelves, particularly in food stores. Although bread is plentiful, the grain shortage is reflected in skinny chickens and a lack of red meat.

The harvest figure's importance is reduced by Gorbachev's admission that 25 percent of Soviet agricultural production is lost on the way to the store due to waste, rot and mismanagement.

The Soviet Union had said earlier that it did not expect to match its record years of 1986 and 1987, when it harvested 210 million tons of grain. No estimate was given for 1988 until Monday's news conference by Stepan Sitaryan, state planning committee vice-chairman.

Still, the 195 million ton figure announced by Sitaryan was better than 185 million tons averaged in the first half of the 1980s.

The Soviet Union uses about 220 million to 230 million tons of grain a year and must import what it cannot produce.

Declining world prices for oil, the Soviet Union's primary export, have limited its ability to buy grain. Still, the Soviets recently extended an agreement with the United States calling for purchase of more than 9 million tons a year.

Afghans Crowd Soviet Fuel Supply

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Government soldiers today pushed back with clubs and tree branches a crowd that thronged Soviet troops as they doled out emergency fuel rations in an impoverished section of Kabul.

Less than a month before the scheduled Red Army withdrawal, the besieged capital is plagued by severe food and fuel shortages.

One woman was knocked to the ground as the crowd, ignoring repeated shouts from megaphone-toting Soviet soldiers to back away, surged around the three armored personnel vehicles distributing fuel in the Khairkhana section.

People banged on empty gasoline cans as the Afghan soldiers shoved back the crowd. One soldier, a rifle under his arm, kicked and punched several teen-agers.

First signs of the latest shortages came after more Soviet troops pulled out early this month.

Nursing Woes

Renewed Interest Raises Hopes

In the nursing profession, right now more is better. And that "more" refers to more potential nurses entering the field. Locally, statewide and nationally there is a shortage of nurses. Therefore it is positive that the numbers of students interested in nursing is edging up.

Pitt Community College reports there are more nursing applicants this year and the East Carolina University School of Nursing reports there have been more inquiries concerning the nursing program from general college students this year.

Nationally a survey by Nursingworld Journal shows an 11 percent increase in students entering nursing school. There were 15,494 freshmen in 1988 compared to 13,970 in 1987. And at PCC it was reported there are far more than enough applicants to fill the 75 slots open in the nursing program.

Experts see the increase as partially due to publicity about the shortage of nurses. Higher salaries are also likely attracting students into nursing. Nationally starting salaries range from $22,000 to $28,000 per year. At Pitt County Memorial Hospital salaries for starting registered nurses are $23,400 a year.

Nursing offers young people seeking a rewarding career the opportunity to be of service. It is not easy work, however, and hospital nurses are subject to duty at all hours. In addition, those who choose the career are called upon to assume immense responsibility — the responsibility for others lives. That's a big request.

Nevertheless the evidence is that better pay and the knowledge that jobs will be available are beginning to draw interest among students. That is good news at a time when dependence on the career is increasing — and will likely escalate sharply as the huge baby boom generation ages into maturity. When that occurs, demand for medical care — meaning skilled nurses — will mushroom. The thought of a woefully inadequate supply is unacceptable.

If the increased interest in the profession continues among students, that fact should ease a shortage in a very critical area of health care.

Not The End

What Now For Michael Dukakis?

The ultimate in the careers of politicians on the national level is a run for the presidency. Once that is over — if they lose — there is not much left to accomplish.

Thus it is for Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis. He came through they grueling state primaries, overcoming several formidable Democratic candidates to obtain the party's vaulted nomination as it presidential candidate.

Then there was more exhausting campaigning running against the Republican nominee Vice President George Bush. Suddenly it was over in November. When the votes were counted Bush was the winner and the next president of the United States.

It meant a clouded future for Dukakis. He is still governor of Massachusetts, but had to make a decision on seeking re-election, and that decision was "no." Dukakis will not be a candidate for re-election in 1990. Even though that is two years away he chose to make his announcement now which will allow the political process in Massachusetts to bring forth potential candidates.

For Dukakis it will be a major change in life and career. He no doubt will be sought by the private sector and can have a bright personal future. An elder statesmen role is probably out because of his age and the fact that he has not served as president as Jimmy Carter did.

Dukakis can draw on the careers of Thomas Dewey, Adele Stevenson, George McGovern and Barry Goldwater all of whom lost in their bids for the presidency.

He probably can't duplicate the amazingly resilient Richard Nixon, who lost to John Kennedy, later won the presidency and finally brought himself down. Nor can he relate to Jimmy Carter who served a four year term and lost his bid for re-election.

It is too bad under our system that the losing candidates for president are so excluded from government. They have much to offer or they would have not been nominated in the first place. For most presidential losers, however, there is little political future.

The Dukakis name probably won't be a household word in the next few years, but, as with most defeated presidential candidates, this move won't likely be the end of his personal accomplishments. He will develop his future in his own way.

Bennett's War Has Already Been Lost

WASHINGTON — If generals always fight the last war, then the selection of William Bennett to be the nation's field marshal in the war on drugs is no break with tradition. A neo-conservative who has espoused programs that have already failed (use of the military to interdict drug supply routes, for instance), Bennett will likely train his guns backward on the pot-smoking 1960s. The challenges of the 1990s are almost bound to escape his attention.

Drugs may continue to scare the wits out of the middle class, but that is not where the problem lies. Cocaine and its derivative, crack, are now lower-class infestations. As with heroin before it, cocaine has lost its social cachet. The dangers are known. Where coke and crack flourish is in the ghetto. History suggested this would happen. Recent statistics now confirm it.

That being the case, the nation faces a severe problem: a kind of class warfare on drugs. The drug problem, always complex, is now even more so. But Bennett, like others in the Reagan administration where he served as secretary of education, has always taken an unsophisticated approach to the problem.

The real sophistication about drugs resides with the user and the potential user. They are the ones who know the difference between use and abuse — and between one drug and another. The government seizure of a yacht that contains a trace of marijuana sends a message that all drugs are equal. They are not, and everyone on the street knows it.

For too long, the government has played the role of rube. When it speaks of drugs, it sounds like a hyperventilating fool and Bennett himself has made no small contribution. As education secretary, he issued a pamphlet that declared drugs the greatest threat to American youth. Nonsense. It's car accidents. The same pamphlet links drugs to teen-age suicides. The numbers cited have left researchers puzzled.

Up to now, the War on Drugs has been a Rube Goldberg contraption, combining the worst aspects of both liberal and conservative thought. The liberal prescription to a problem is to create a social-welfare program. The conservative prescription is to call the cops. Liberals find it hard to accept that for some problems government has no solutions. Conservatives cannot understand how an infinite number of cops cannot control crime or, in this case, drugs. Is this not why God created the death penalty?

Bennett has been given a liberal apparatus — a program and some money. But from what he has said in the past, his approach will be conservative. In a memo to the Justice Department, he suggested that the American military should do to foreign drug traffickers "what our forces in the Persian Gulf did to Iran's navy." At other times, Bennett has put similar emphasis on the use of the military. There are innumerable problems with that approach, not the least of them being that countries, such as Colombia, are sovereign nations. What we call a war on drugs they are likely to just call a war. Even in little Vietnam, search-and-destroy missions had only limited success.

Bennett is not likely to do so, but it is time to lower both our voices and our expectations when it comes to drugs. Like other phenomena, drug usage seems to rise and fall of its own accord. Since the 1880s, drug epidemics have come and gone, abating for reasons not clearly understood. Of course, the government has an obligation to enforce the law, but we ought to understand that by themselves cops will not solve the drug problem. Education will help and so will rehabilitation — two areas where the Reagan administration has been stingy — but even then the problem will remain.

The challenge for Bennett is to de-politicize the drug problem, to purge the anti-drug effort of conservative cant and face up to reality. Here's reality: Should the government supply cocaine and heroin addicts with clean needles? Is AIDS a greater menace than drug addiction and, really, can the two be separated anymore?

To deal with the changed nature of the drug problem, the government will have to re-examine its programs — and, of course, its rhetoric. To people who know about drugs (or think they do), it will have to speak candidly. One social class cannot seem to be lecturing to another. Nancy Reagan, for all her good intention, was no role model in the inner-city.

For each Cabinet selection, George Bush stepped forward to extol his nominee's credentials and, in some cases, they were awesome. But when it came to coordinating the war on drugs, hyperbolically called the nation's number one threat, he has picked someone whose expertise has been regurgitating the past to misapply it to the present.

The war William Bennett is likely to wage on drugs has already been fought. We lost it.

What's Missing Is Leadership

WASHINGTON — Those who think white America has grown callous and indifferent to the unfulfilled aspirations of blacks are wrong. Americans still care about racial disparities and are ready to help eliminate them. What is missing is leadership.

That, at least, is how executives of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund (LDF) read the results of a survey conducted recently by the Louis Harris organization.

LDF commissioned the study "to track the attitudes over time about racial issues in the United States" and to help fashion an agenda for moving toward racial equality.

Among the findings: Whites, who ten years ago opposed busing

William Raspberry

for racial balance by 78 percent, now oppose it by "only" 57 percent. Some three-fourths of all Americans believe that hiring, pay and promotion are based on considerations other than merit. And 53 percent feel that more should be done to help disadvantaged blacks in the next decade.

That last finding in particular is the basis of the LDF's conclusion that white America is ready for a major push toward racial equality.

Julius Chambers, the LDF's director-counsel, called it "compelling evidence that the public is ready to get on with the business of attending to many of the race-relations issues that have not been addressed during the past eight years."

Elaine Jones, Chambers' deputy, agrees. It is her view that the apparent white impatience with black demands is the result of the failure of white leadership. An earlier surge of black progress occurred when the American leadership included the likes of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and Earl Warren, she said. The absence of such leadership today, in her view, accounts for the disparity between the willingness of Americans to move forward in terms of racial progress and their failure of America to do it.

It is an interesting interpretation, but is it correct? Perhaps the most striking finding of the survey is the tremendous gulf between the black and white views of the extent of racial discrimination. Most whites believe (and most blacks disagree) that blacks already receive roughly equal pay for equal work, are treated fairly by the criminal-justice system, and that the next administration should do more than the Reagan administration to help disadvantaged blacks.

In other words, whites may be willing to do some tinkering at the edges of racial disparities, but they believe that the major work already has been accomplished.

If there is ground for optimism in the survey, it is in the response of whites to specific proposals for alleviating the plight of the black underclass. Ninety percent of the whites surveyed would favor the creation of youth camps where underclass youth could learn basic skills; and similarly large proportions would support special school programs for underclass children, expanded drug rehabilitation programs and increased incentives for businesses to attract underclass employees.

It is undoubtedly true that even well-educated blacks are denied equal treatment when it comes to hiring and promotion, particularly at the top levels. But it is also true that the most pressing problems facing blacks are in those communities where drug abuse, school-leaving, drug-related crime and joblessness threaten to create a permanent underclass.

The willingness of whites to address that entrenched problem may suggest a useful direction for national policy. It will, as the LDF's Elaine Jones noted, take a different kind of leadership from the national administration. But it will also require a new kind of leadership from blacks.

Suppose the black leadership could bring itself to soft-pedal those issues on which the black-white disagreement is greatest and devote its major effort to rescuing the black underclass. The survey suggests — and I believe — that white America would join in the effort. With the help of the national government, we just might find a way to help those who are most in need of help.

It would be very good for black Americans, whose tenuous progress is threatened by the growth of the underclass. And it would be good for America, whose economic survival depends on our ability to transform members of the underclass into productive workers.

IN THE STATE

Public Defender

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Starting a new year with a revamped court system will give tri-racial Robeson County the chance to improve its image, the county's first public defender said.

"I want the whole criminal justice system — at least the perception of it, the fear of it — to improve. We're much better coming out of 1988 than we were going in," said Angus B. Thompson II, 36, a native of the county, in an interview. "We've had our tragedies. We've had our embarrassments. But we've made great progress."

He said he's optimistic that the county's revamped court system, with a new district attorney, new judges and public defender, will work.

"Maybe the fact that there's a lot of newness, this could be the time to make changes," Thompson said. "I just think it's a prime opportunity for us to do some things."

Thompson said putting blacks and Indians in positions of leadership will help the county's young minorities grow up with a better sense of self-worth and a better feeling for their race.

Thompson heads an office that eventually will include four assistant defenders, a private investigator and two secretaries. The office, after Thompson gets all of his staff hired, will be in charge of defending anyone charged with a crime in Robeson County who cannot afford to hire a private lawyer.

Occupancy Tax

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — The South Brunswick Island Chamber of Commerce is lobbying three southeastern North Carolina beach towns to pool part of their occupancy taxes to promote tourism.

"Tourism is the No. 1 industry in our county but a lot of people haven't heard of Brunswick County, they've heard of Myrtle Beach," said chamber past-President David Batten.

"They say, 'We went to Myrtle Beach.' Then you mention Sunset Beach or Holden Beach and they say, 'Oh, that's where we stayed.'"

Last fall, Sunset Beach and Holden Beach officials voted to establish a 3 percent occupancy tax, joining Ocean Isle Beach and about 20 other North Carolina municipalities and about 46 North Carolina counties. Sunset Beach started collecting the tax Jan. 1 and Holden Beach will begin March 1.

The chamber wants Sunset Beach and Holden Beach to pool 12 percent of their proceeds from the tax with those of Ocean Isle Beach to promote the three southwestern Brunswick island communities. The chamber is projecting that the pool would include at least $75,000 — $15,000 from Sunset Beach, $36,000 for Ocean Isle Beach and $24,000 from Holden Beach — in the first year.

Career Ladder

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — As Gov. Jim Martin calls for expanding North Carolina's career-ladder merit pay plan statewide, education officials from Alexander and Burke counties gave high marks to the controversial program they've been testing in their schools since 1985.

About 130 superintendents, principals, teachers and other school officials from 18 northwest N.C. school systems — including those in Caldwell, Catawba and Iredell counties — attended an all-day conference Monday at East Alexander Junior High School near Taylorsville.

"The bottom line is kids are learning more, our teachers are more motivated, more fully trained and making better use of their time," said Wayne Trogdon, superintendent of Alexander County schools.

With 16 counties in their fourth year as pilots for the career ladder, the General Assembly is considering spending as much as $450 million a year to apply the program statewide.

Bomb Charge

DURHAM (AP) — A U.S. Navy seaman who works part-time at Research Triangle Institute has been charged with making and exploding pipe bombs, the Durham County Sheriff's Department reported.

Robert Allen Newsome, 20, of Angier, who is stationed on the U.S.S. George Bancroft in Charleston, S.C., was charged Sunday after Deputy F. DeLong, following up a report of explosions in Southern Durham County, confiscated two pipe bombs, authorities said.

Also charged was Ernest Archie Dallur, 18, of Durham, who was in the car with Newsome and who initially told deputies he had made the bombs, officials said.

Both men were charged with making a weapon of mass death and destruction and exploding a bomb.

Newsome was placed in Durham County Jail in lieu of $12,000 bond. Dallur, whose bond was set at $10,000, was not in jail Monday morning, a jailer said.

Measles Outbreak Brings Quarantine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALISBURY, N.C. — A limited quarantine banning athletic and social activities among school-age children continues in Cabarrus and Rowan counties, where 170 measles cases have been reported since last month.

"We're encouraging people to keep their children at home as much as possible, to limit their exposure to large groups," said Bert Hawley, director of the Rowan County Health Department. "It takes the vaccine about two weeks for it to really become effective. People still need to exercise caution."

Two more cases of red measles were reported Monday in Cabarrus County, and two new cases have been reported in Rowan County.

The two Cabarrus cases were a man in his 20s and a Wolf Meadow Elementary School student, said Dennis Joyner, a health educator with the Cabarrus County Health Department. The cases bring the county's total to 20 since the outbreak began Dec. 30.

In Rowan County, where the outbreak began in early December, Health Department Director Bert Hawley said Monday that two new cases brought the total number of confirmed and suspected cases to 150.

He said the Rowan County Health Department gave more than 100 vaccinations Monday, bringing the number of people reimmunized to more than 8,000.

The Cabarrus County Health Department gave 304 vaccinations during a clinic Sunday afternoon, bringing the total there to more than 5,000 since the outbreak began.

"The only thing that's safe is talking on the phone, and that gets boring after a while," said Chris Pierce, a senior at East Rowan High School.

It's the first major measles outbreak in nine years. Possible cases also have been reported in 14 nearby counties.

Officials have issued a statewide warning advising people born after 1956 who have not been vaccinated to get the vaccination.

Tar Heels Balk At Waste Storage Facility

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Davie County officials and environmentalists from North Carolina plan to tell a federal panel in Atlanta that a proposed storage site for waste from nuclear plants poses an unacceptable and unnecessary health risk.

At stake is a 1,200-acre tract in eastern Davie County that borders the Yadkin River and is regarded by the U.S. Department of Energy as one of 11 potential sites in the Southeast for a temporary storage site for spent nuclear fuel rods.

County officials say they're opposed to the prospect of the land, owned by Duke Power Co., being considered for what the government calls a monitored retrievable storage facility — an enclosed storage site that will hold up to 15,000 metric tons of high-level nuclear waste.

R.C. Smith, the chairman of the Davie County Board of Commissioners, said Monday that the commissioners plan to speak against the proposal and expect to do so with the support of Gov. Jim Martin.

"We feel sure there will be somebody there for the state," Smith said. "We certainly hope so. We would be extremely disappointed if the governor did not support us on this."

But an advance agenda of the two-day public meeting today and Wednesday by the Monitored Retrievable Storage Review Commission lists no spokesman for the state. And Earl R. Mac Cormac, the governor's science adviser, said Monday he knows of no plans for anyone to speak for Martin.

Auditor Questions Pentagon's Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imagine going off to combat only to find the civilian technician who keeps your sophisticated weapons working isn't interested in sticking around. The Pentagon's inspector general is warning of such a potential problem.

The independent inspector general, in a 24-page audit that recently became available, says the Pentagon's procedures for designating and staffing "emergency-essential" civilian jobs overseas need to be overhauled.

Those are jobs critical to making sure military equipment functions at the battlefield. Many of the jobs have been described previously as involving the maintenance of highly sophisticated electronic and computer gear.

"Our audit showed that implementation of DoD's programs to retain emergency-essential civilians did not afford a high degree of assurance that civilian or contractor employees would continue to perform functions and services overseas that are essential to the support of combat forces during mobilization or hostilities," the audit states.

The people now holding the jobs "were not informed fully of their commitment or about their benefits," the audit continues.

Moreover, of 228 civilian DoD employees who were personally interviewed by auditors, "28 had not volunteered to remain on the job during crises or hostilities because of family responsibilities, and there was no evidence of contingency plans to replace these incumbents."

"We also found that two of the 228 emergency-essential positions (in this group) were occupied by persons not physically fit to serve in a war zone."

The audit states that Defense Department civilians assigned to emergency-essential jobs since 1985 are supposed to be volunteers who understand that if fighting breaks out, they'll be expected to remain at their post.

"And historically, DoD civilian employees and contractors have served in hostile areas in time of need," the inspector general said. "However, there are no absolute assurances that a DoD civilian employee or a contractor's employee would honor a commitment to voluntarily remain on the job during hostilities."

Senate Committee To Begin Baker Confirmation Hearings

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — James A. Baker III may have few concrete answers on the incoming Bush administration's foreign policy plans when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee begins confirmation hearings today on his appointment to be the nation's 61st secretary of state.

Relations with the Soviet Union, arms control, the Middle East, Central America, and trade are all issues on which senators will attempt to learn where the new administration stands and where it intends to go.

A principal concern will be in what areas of foreign policy the Bush administration will differ from the often ideologically rigid positions pursued by the Reagan administration for two presidential terms.

But Baker, a friend of the President elect and pragmatic political ally of long standing, may be hindered in his responses by his lack of direct foreign policy experience. President Reagan's former chief of staff, Baker did obtain experience dealing with the world's financial leaders as Secretary of Treasury.

He drew up the Baker plan to deal with Latin American debt. The plan calls for increased lending by commercial banks to Latin America in return for economic restructuring.

Some expect Bush, who served as U.S. liaison officer to China and director of the Central Intelligence Agency, will seek to set his administration's foreign policy direction himself, leaving Baker to manage it.

President Had Planned Regan Ouster

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying he's bitter about former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan's "kiss and tell" book, has disclosed that he quietly prepared for his former aide's departure for months before he left.

The president, in an interview broadcast on Cable News Network on Monday, insisted, "There was no firing at all."

However, the president added that he planned to use a letter of resignation Regan had submitted months before. "I set out at the same time, then, to start quietly, and hoping, leakproof, to have a successor on hand for when he announced the time he was going to go," Reagan said.

Reagan acknowledged in the interview that Regan had been having problems with Nancy Reagan, the first lady, and that one of his weaknesses as president is that "I know that I have a soft heart."

Regan, who had been Treasury secretary, and then-White House chief of staff James A. Baker III told the president they wanted to switch jobs in early 1985, and he approved the request.

Regan left at the end of February 1987, at the height of the Iran-Contra scandal, and was replaced by former Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

Four Die In Fumes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Edward Zarnow Jr. came from Australia to plan his father's funeral. Now other relatives must plan funerals for the son and two other family members who authorities say died from fumes from the same faulty furnace.

"It was a tremendous and gross loss of lives," Milwaukee County Medical Examiner Jeffrey Jentzen said Monday. "I think it makes everyone humble to see this type of disaster happen."

After the 89-year-old Zarnow died Wednesday, autopsy results revealed extensive heart disease and cirrhosis of the liver. The death was attributed to natural causes, and no toxicological exams were believed necessary, Jentzen said.

"There's not a medical examiner's office in this country that would have handled this case any differently," he said.

Jentzen confirmed Monday that carbon monoxide poisoning killed Edward Zarnow Jr., 57, of New South Wales, Australia; Zarnow Jr.'s 37-year-old niece, Karen S. Martin of Marshfield and her husband Michael, 38.

Zarnow Jr.'s wife, Rebecca, 56, was in critical condition Monday night after treatment in a hyperbaric chamber, according to a nursing supervisor at St. Luke's Hospital.

Jentzen said further tests on the elder Zarnow's body showed he too died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The overburning caused incomplete combustion that filled the house with carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless and lethal gas, he said.

The coroner's report said five burners in the furnace were clogged, causing improper burning, although Brennan said the unit had annual inspections.

Arafat Accepts Bid To Speak

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — Yasser Arafat has accepted an invitation to address Arab-Americans in Washington, says a Detroit attorney who met with the PLO leader in Tunisia, but such a visit could pose a dilemma for the Bush administration.

Attorney and American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee President Abdeen Jabara, who met with Arafat last weekend, said the Palestine Liberation Organization leader has agreed to address the group April 13 at its convention in Washington.

However, the State Department on Monday refused to say whether Arafat would be allowed to enter the United States.

Denying Arafat a visa could anger Arab leaders who consider the PLO a key part of the push for peace in the Middle East. Issuing the visa could anger Israel and its supporters.

"There is a dilemma," said Sol Lachman, a former president of the Detroit chapter of the American Zionist Federation. "Even as a supporter of Israel, I can understand why the U.S. would want to talk to the PLO, and why it's completely appropriate to serve as an intermediary in the cause of peace."

Loss Of Outside Income Will Hurt Congressmen

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The big winners in Congress under its planned 50 percent pay raise would be members who already refuse to accept outside money, while the losers will be those who in the past earned the most in outside fees.

The reason is simple mathematics. Those who declined outside income would receive the proposed $45,500 raise — from $89,500 to $135,000 — without giving up anything in the tradeoff.

But those who have been collecting outside fees would lose that income, offsetting a large chunk of the raise.

President Reagan has proposed the 50 percent increase for 2,498 people — members of Congress, top federal executives and Cabinet members. The proposal would become effective automatically unless both houses of Congress vote it down by Feb. 8 — something not likely to happen.

Lawmakers favoring the increase, however, have said they would give up their outside fees if the raise goes through.

To illustrate the winners and losers, consider the case of three-term Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. The chairman of the Senate Energy Committee received $47,625 in outside fees in 1987 and kept $34,940, near the maximum he could retain under Senate rules.

Johnston would receive a $45,500 raise, but after taking into account the loss of his outside fees, he would be ahead by only $10,560.

On the other hand, two-term Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., who takes no outside fees, would be $45,500 richer before taxes.

Senators are permitted to keep outside fees totaling up to 40 percent of salary, a current cap of $35,800.

Amelia May Have Run Out Of Fuel

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — An air historian says he has unearthed evidence suggesting U.S. aviator Amelia Earhart ran out of fuel and crashed about 30 miles short of a Pacific island on her round-the-world flight a half-century ago.

Roy Nesbit, a former British air force navigator, said Monday he discovered a letter Earhart wrote to Britain's aviation authority saying she intended to carry 1,000 gallons of fuel aboard her Lockheed Electra on the flight over the Pacific, some of which crossed over British Commonwealth territory.

The record-setting pilot never arrived on Howland Island, disappearing near the end of a 2,550-mile flight over water on July 2, 1937.

Report Says Meese Conduct Improper

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — An internal Justice Department report on former attorney general Edwin Meese III concludes that he engaged in "conduct which should not be tolerated of any government employee, especially not the attorney general," and that disciplinary action by the president would be warranted if Meese were still in office.

The strongly worded 61-page report pointedly contradicts assertions by Meese in July that he had been "completely vindicated" by the decision of independent counsel James C. McKay not to seek an indictment against him. McKay found that Meese had probably violated federal conflict-of-interest and tax laws, but said that prosecution was not appropriate.

The Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility found that Meese, who left office in August, had committed numerous violations of both departmental regulations and a 1965 executive order setting out ethical standards for government employees. Its report cites Meese's relationship with San Francisco lawyer E. Bob Wallach; his handling of telecommunications matters at a time he owned stock in regional telephone companies, and his failure to pay full taxes on time.

"We trust that this analysis will lay to rest the claims by Mr. Meese that the appropriate standard for official behavior is whether an independent counsel seeks an official's indictment," said the report, which is expected to be released Tuesday. "We found that the independent counsel's report far from vindicates Mr. Meese; rather, it details conduct which should not be tolerated of any government employee, especially not the attorney general of the United States."

Chiropractors treat people from all walks of life — older people — children, laborers — office workers, professional athletes — weekend sports enthusiasts, business people — and other health care professionals go to chiropractors. The reason, chiropractic is an approach to health which utilizes the body's inherent and natural recuperative powers. And often, chiropractic has been successful where other treatment has failed.

King's Words Have Endured Over 22 Years

Dear Abby: This week we pay tribute to a great American, Martin Luther King Jr. His words of wisdom are even more meaningful today than they were 22 years ago, when he said: "One day somebody should remind us that even though there may be political and ideological differences between us, the Vietnamese are our brothers, the Russians are our brothers, the Chinese are our brothers; and one day we've got to sit down together at the table of brotherhood."

Dear Abby: Last week we attended two movies and a play at a theater. Throughout the performances (movies and the play) we were disturbed by people around us explaining the plot to their companion. We also had a child kicking the back of our seats!

I find this very rude and would like to know how this should be handled without making a scene. We moved (in the movie) twice, but the new seats were no better than the first.

I love going out for entertainment, but for what it costs, I'd like to be able to enjoy myself without interruptions. Any suggestions? -- Nameless, Please

Dear Nameless: Since not all strangers respond to courteous requests to please be quiet, or to kindly ask their child to quit kicking the seat, I recommend asking an usher -- or the manager (if you can find him or her) -- to handle the situation.

For Social Kisses, Play By The Rules

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

I agree with Miss Manners. Social kissing is getting out of hand in this country.

What started out as an emotional embrace between families who had not seen one another in 20 years now has all the tenderness of a farsighted eagle feeding her young.

Everyone puckers and pecks these days. Starlets from the green room present their cheek to the talk show host whom they have just seen five minutes before. People at lunch hurriedly wipe crumbs from their mouths and bury their faces in your hair. Visitors to the sick in hospitals lean over long, white, lifeless forms in short dresses, and God knows what they're embracing.

From sheer habit, the other day I nearly busied a man who came to change the thermostat in my oven.

The problem of kissing hello is twofold: First, either we all do it or no one does it. Second, if we decide to do it, there have to be some rules.

There is a bloc of diehard kissers who refuse to exchange lips with anyone but their mother and their dog. My husband is one of these. If someone wanted to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, he would refuse until he had been formally introduced.

He regards kissing as a clearing-house for germs and wants no part of it. When he is confronted by a social kisser, he stands with his arms hanging limply to his side and his body erect. It's like making a pass at a food blender.

There are a lot of people like my husband who must be converted if kissing is to continue. I am shocked that kissing has continued so long without rules. This has created a lot of problems, such as stepping on feet, bumping noses, getting hair caught in braces, having glasses lock, lipstick in strange places and general confusion.

There is no need for this. If ships can pass in the night without radar, people can kiss without hurting each other. When you approach the kissee, give a quick appraisal of things that puncture -- pens, credit cards with sharp edges, key rings, packages, etc. -- and mumble, "You look wonderful."

This is your standard greeting for someone you've never met before and probably will never see again. If the kissee is someone you really care about, you'll know what to do.

Israeli Soldiers Dynamite Homes Of Suspected Arab Stone-Throwers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — Soldiers today dynamited the homes of three Palestinians suspected of injuring three Israelis with stones, marking a new get-tough policy against rock throwers in the occupied territories.

In the occupied West Bank, a 17-year-old Palestinian was fatally shot in the stomach during a clash with soldiers, and a second teen-ager died of a gunshot wound to the heart suffered in a clash Jan. 7, Arab news reports and hospital officials said.

The army confirmed one death and said it was checking the second report.

Ten Palestinians were wounded today in confrontations in the West Bank, occupied Gaza Strip and Arab east Jerusalem, the reports said.

Gen. Amram Mitzna, head of Central Command, said the housing demolitions in the West Bank town of Kalkilya were part of a crackdown to stem an upsurge in violence. The army said two other houses in the town were sealed up.

After the demolitions, soldiers dropped leaflets on the town from a helicopter. The leaflets said troops would destroy the homes of anyone caught stoning Israeli targets, Arab news reports said.

The demolitions drew immediate protests from left-wing Israeli groups. Five opposition parties filed a motion of no-confidence in the government to be debated by Parliament on Wednesday, Israel radio reported.

The army said more Palestinians were wounded in the past month than in any other during the 13-month uprising, as soldiers responded to increased attacks and rioting. It said 26 Palestinians were killed and 492 wounded in the month ending Jan. 9.

At least 361 Palestinians and 15 Israelis have died in the revolt against Israel's 21-year rule of the West Bank and Gaza.

The latest victim was Ibrahim Abu Syam of Faraa Refugee Camp near the West Bank's largest city of Nablus. He was shot during a confrontation with troops, Arab reports said.

An army spokesman confirmed there was a clash in Faraa but said he had no reports of casualties.

Today's other victim was Issa Taka Manasra, 19, of Bani Naim near the West Bank city of Hebron, who died at Mukassed Hospital in Jerusalem, a hospital official said. The army confirmed the death.

Among those wounded today was a 16-year-old boy who suffered a serious head wound when he fled from a wall in east Jerusalem as he fled police after a stone-throwing incident, police and hospital officials said.

Mitzna said troops now will be allowed to fire rubber and plastic bullets more liberally to quell riots, despite controversy over the ammunition following the recent deaths of four Arab youths hit by rubber bullets.

"Since stone-throwings have become a major nuisance we will use all the means at our disposal and everywhere — strict punishments and deterrents — so that the rebels, who consider these attacks to be legitimate, will understand that we will not tolerate them," Mitzna said on Army radio.

"Lately we have widened our measures, including among other things, the use of plastic and rubber bullets," said Mitzna, adding that they have been "effective in confronting violence."

The radio also quoted Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin as saying soldiers below the rank of officer would now be allowed to fire plastic bullets.

Col. Renaan Gissin, deputy army spokesman, said house demolitions would apply only to severe cases of rock-throwing that cause serious injury or damage.

He said Rabin had authorized the destruction of the houses today on Mitzna's recommendation.

"We are trying to signal that those throwing rocks and causing harm will pay a higher price," Gissin said.

In recent weeks, he said, rocks were being used in deliberate ambushes of soldiers and cited several cases in which Palestinians dropped bricks on the heads of soldiers.

The new crackdown will also involve heavier fines — more than $1,000 — on the parents of stone-throwers under age 14, Gissin said.

An army spokesman said the homes destroyed today belonged to a group of Palestinians suspected in several recent stoning attacks, including an assault on a vehicle Dec. 17 that injured three people.

Army radio said 15 people in the group were arrested, and the army said the suspects belonged to Yasser Arafat's Fatah movement.

The assaults were the first the army has blamed on Palestinians linked to Arafat since the PLO chief renounced terrorism last month, a move that led Washington to break a 13-year-old ban on official contacts with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Taft said legislators from other parts of the state have long realized the East was neglected.

"I think they've always known that," he said. "I think they've recognized the East is going to rattle its sword more and more until some of our needs are met."

Though House committee assignments have not been announced, Lilley said it is obvious eastern legislators have gained a strong hold on important positions in state government. Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner, a Republican, is from Rocky Mount, and there are high-ranking Democrats in important posts, such as newly elected House Speaker Joe Mavretic of Edgecombe County, Senate President Pro Tem Henson Barnes of Goldsboro and Senate Base Budget Chairman Marc Basnight of Dare County.

"I think those are good signs, wouldn't you," Lilley said. "I hope so, anyway."

Mavretic, who ousted longtime House Speaker Liston Ramsey of Madison County last week, will help bring funding to the east, Taft said.

"I'm very positive about trying to work with Joe Mavretic, and he has certainly been positive about trying to work with eastern legislators," Taft said.

Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. of Farmville, who voted with a block of Democrats and House Republicans to defeat Ramsey, also said eastern North Carolina should benefit from Mavretic's administration.

"That's one of the reasons I supported Joe. It's about time we got a fair share of the money," Jones said.

Jones stopped short of calling the group's request an ultimatum, saying the group of lawmakers is very committed to improving the quality of life in eastern counties.

"We have an agenda to be sure that eastern North Carolina gets treated fairly. This has been an ongoing thing. We've talked about roads, education, tourism matters and things like that," Jones said.

Hostility And Anger Bad For The Heart

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTEREY, Calif. — New studies on Type A behavior indicate that being an impatient workaholic doesn't necessarily hurt your heart, but distrusting others and having a low boiling point does.

The term "Type A" probably has outlived its usefulness, and people should concentrate on understanding anger's poisonous effects on the heart, Dr. Redford B. Williams Jr. of Duke University Medical Center my dream and give it legs and march on until victory is won.

"Martin, we're going to march on," he said. "We're going to keep on marching until victory is won — march on for these are marching times."

Also speaking were Dr. Andrew Best and Greenville Mayor Ed Carter.

"Dr. Martin Luther King left to us a legacy of love," Best said. King would want it said that "here is a man who tried to love somebody," he said.

"Love is not love on this earth until it reaches out and touches your fellow man. Be ambassadors of love."

Carter said victory has not been won as poverty, the high black male prison population, drugs in the streets, exploitation of black athletes, the increasing number of those who do not vote and corrupt politicians still exists.

"Let us march on 'til victory is won," Carter said.

The minority students with the highest grade point average in their classes also were recognized by the fraternity in addition to presidents of the other minority organizations at ECU.

The East Carolina University Gospel Choir presented the musical selections for the program, and Dr. Dennis Chestnut, a psychology professor at ECU, presented the faculty tribute. Chapter members Tyrone Cox and Anthony Rook also presented a tribute to King.

said at a meeting of the American Heart Association.

"Being a workaholic, being in a hurry, interrupting people, are not necessarily bad for your heart," Williams said Monday. "What is bad is if you have high levels of hostility and anger, and you don't bother to hide it when dealing with other people."

Experts for many years had thought classic Type A's — aggressive, rush-rush people — were setting themselves up for heart attacks.

"Many of us had thought that the definition of Type A was too broad," said Dr. Wayne J. Katon of the University of Washington. "Dr. Williams is narrowing it down."

In a study to be published soon in Psychosomatic Medicine, Williams and colleagues described a follow-up study of 118 students who took a personality test during law school. Twenty-five years later, 20 percent of those who scored in the highest quarter on the hostility scale had died, compared with 5 percent of those who scored lowest.

The research showed that being paranoid or neurotic or avoiding social contact were not associated with heart attacks. Instead, those at high risk tend to harbor a cynical mistrust of other people's motives. They get angry often and openly express their displeasure, rather than holding it in.

Williams said this makeup could be a problem for perhaps 20 percent of the population, and they probably have these tendencies from birth.

Such people tend to get furious, for instance, in slow-moving bank lines. They complain to themselves about why other customers haven't filled out their deposit slips ahead of time and may show their unhappiness by making sour faces or even surly comments to those ahead of them.

"I'm not talking about anxiety waiting in line," Williams said. "I'm talking about anger."

There is no evidence to support the common belief that people are better off expressing their anger rather than keeping it to themselves, Williams said.

Whether people can help themselves by trying to control their feelings of rage is still not clear, but Williams said that such attempts at behavior change are harmless and may help.

The mob set two cars and an auto parts store on fire.

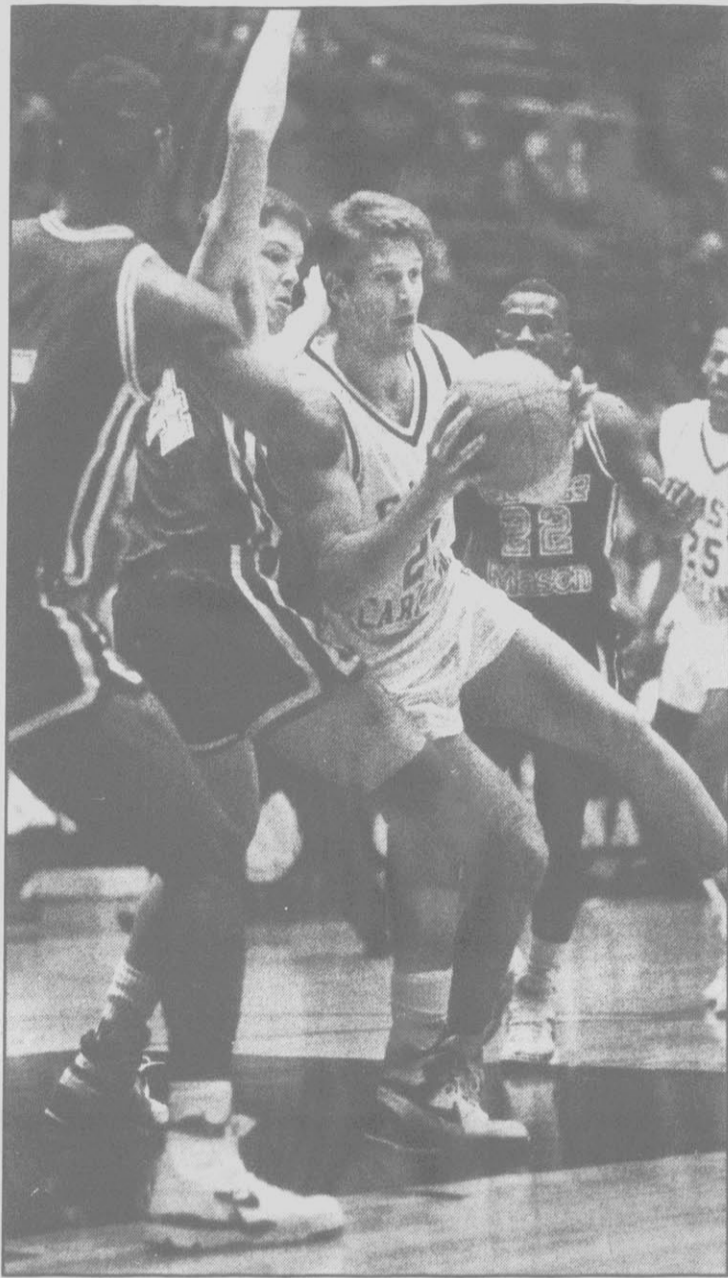

The store burned to the ground after firefighters were shot at and had to leave the area, said Mazur.

WCIX-TV reporter Lourdes Ruiz-Toledo, who had gotten out of her car earlier, said she feared for her life.

"All of a sudden they threw a big huge rock right on the side of the driver. I blocked it with my elbow. They were yelling 'Get that white woman out of the car!'" the 27-year-old reporter said.

Miss Ruiz-Toledo, who had stayed in her car while two colleagues got out, said she drove a block and was rescued by an officer who led her from the car behind a plastic riot shield. The car was later burned.

George Mason's Changes Bring 86-74 Win

ECU's Reed Lose works the ball against Kevin McNamara

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

George Mason basketball coach Ernie Nestor made a change and it paid off for the Patriots as they took an 86-74 Colonial Athletic Association victory over East Carolina Monday night.

Nestor changed two members of his starting lineup and it shook up the ECU game plan. As a result, the Pirates never were able to stop the Patriots.

Pirate coach Mike Steele said that the ECU game plan was built around stopping a lineup which included Henri Abrams at center and Steve Moran at forward. However, Nestor moved last year's CAA Player of the Year Kenny Sanders up front, brought in Danny Deane at the other forward spot, switched Robert Dykes to center and — the key — put Mike Hargett at the point.

Hargett, who bombed the Pirates for 19 points, including four of six in three-point range, made the difference.

The Pirates, who shot a fine 64.3 percent in the first half, lost the range at intermission and made good on just 33.3 percent in the second period. Blue Edwards, who still scored 27 points, was only 10 of 23 from the floor including a three for 14 performance in the second half. At one point, while Mason was outscoring the Pirates 25-8 to take a 14-point lead, Edwards missed seven shots in a row.

"It's an understatement to say that I'm pleased to win," Nestor said. "It means a lot and we beat an excellent basketball team tonight."

"I hope we're able to set our course forward now. We seem to be the type of team that gets our teeth kicked in before we play," Nestor said in reference to a 77-66 loss to UNC-Wilmington on Saturday.

"Michael Hargett's ability to play basketball at the level he did tonight picked up the back-court slack, and I thought Kenny Sanders did an excellent job."

Nestor pointed to one play that let him know that the Patriots had the chance to win the game. That came in the first half, when Sanders dove for a loose ball on the floor, slapped it into the backcourt where it was picked by Hargett for a layup.

"It made our kids know that here's a pretty good player who was willing to put his body on the line and make a team-oriented play," Nestor said.

Steele said he could not fault the effort of the Pirates, but that the ECU defense was never able to stop Mason. "We tried different things and nothing worked," he said. "Sanders was scoring inside and Smith outside, Hargett in the first half. In the second half, they shot 60 percent and we shot 30 and we're not good enough to do that and win. They are talented. They have inside players and perimeter players. And the lineup changes they made were really effective. If that's the way they go the rest of the year, they're really going to be good," Steele said.

He felt that the Pirates didn't get the ball inside enough in the second half. Most of the shots missed by Edwards, for example, were outside shots. "One of the things that hurt us was we got only five offensive rebounds (GMU got 10). And we didn't get any transition baskets in the second half. Every basket we got was a hard-earned one."

Steele also noted that the Pirates were badly beaten on the boards, 36-25. "We can't do that and expect to win."

He added that Hargett's ability was a big surprise. "He gives them

Mote's Role Takes Drastic Change

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In the best of all possible worlds, East Carolina basketball player Casey Mote wouldn't have seen a minute of playing time this season.

But reality dictated a different plan and Mote has gone from being a redshirt to a starter in one week.

ECU coach Mike Steele had hoped to have Mote, a 6-7, 178-pound freshman from Demorest, Ga., sit out this year in hopes of adding some bulk to his slender frame for the future.

Kevin Staples, a 6-5 junior college transfer, was expected to lend immediate help to the frontcourt this season, but he was suspended from the team Jan. 11 after being arrested on breaking and entering and larceny charges.

Depth up front was already thin due to a knee injury to 6-9 freshman center Brooks Bryant.

"We lost Kevin and they just decided they needed some height inside," Mote said. "They felt like they might need me. They brought me in the first game (against James Madison in a 62-57 win Saturday)."

"I was confused about it and everything like that, but I wanted to really come in and play and help the team out. I was nervous. Looking from my perspective, I think I did okay the first game."

The Pirate coaching staff began thinking about redshirting Mote early in the season when it became apparent that he was neither strong enough nor heavy enough to hold his own.

"It was maybe (after) the third game, they talked to me about redshirting," Mote said. "At first I really didn't want to. As time went on I wasn't getting any playing time. I began to realize that I had a bunch of people playing in front of me. There was nothing I could do. I didn't think I was doing the team or myself any good sitting on the bench."

"Plus the extra year of school started to sound good to me so I

Walsh May Leave 49er Owner Expects Announcement

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI, Fla. — Bill Walsh is not expected to return next season as coach of the San Francisco 49ers, according to published reports quoting team owner Edward DeBartolo.

DeBartolo, in separate interviews published today, said he didn't think the outcome of the 49ers' Super Bowl showdown Sunday with Cincinnati would have any bearing on such a decision.

"He just wants to wait till after the season's over," DeBartolo said in interviews published in the San Francisco Chronicle and Santa Rosa Press Democrat. "I assume this is his (Walsh's) last game."

"He's told me that. Basically, he's told (the media), too. I really believe that Monday, probably, or maybe Tuesday, at the latest, he'll (make an announcement)," DeBartolo told the Chronicle on Monday.

DeBartolo told the Chronicle he put at no better than 20 percent the odds that Walsh would coach the 49ers again in 1989.

"I wouldn't say it's etched in stone that he's not going to coach," DeBartolo said. "I think 80-20. I can't unequivocally say that, but I don't think he's going to coach."

He told the Press Democrat he is almost certain that Walsh, who has led the 49ers to two Super Bowl victories, will resign.

"He's the best coach in football, but sometimes people lose their desire," the newspaper quoted DeBartolo as saying.

As recently as Jan. 1, after the 49ers beat the Minnesota Vikings 34-9 in a divisional playoff game, DeBartolo said he expected Walsh to "do his thing" and coach again next season.

But on Monday, DeBartolo said "a gut feeling" now tells him Walsh will be stepping out.

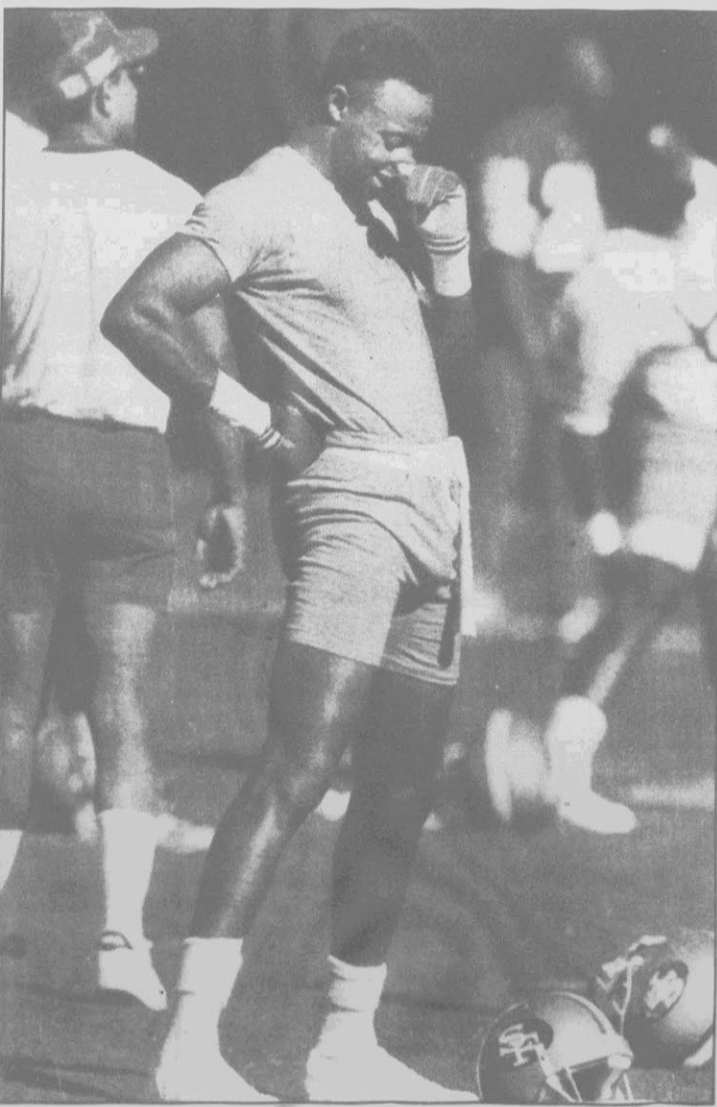

"If I had to guess right now, I would guess that Bill's made his mind up," DeBartolo said. "If I had to guess again, I'd think that Bill would want to take some time off (from coaching), win or lose."

"Bill seems very at peace with himself. He's just enjoying what he's doing. That makes me think that he's made up his mind."

Interviewed while playing golf at the Doral Country Club, Walsh refused to discuss the report, the Press Democrat said.

But Walsh, who has posted a 101-63-1 record since becoming 49ers coach in 1979, seemed to hint Sunday night that changes might be in the offing.

"I can say that I'm going to be back with the 49ers next year in some capacity," he said. "I have one year left on my contract, so I'll certainly be back."

Jerry Rice injured his ankle after practice began Monday

Rice Twists Ankle Should Be Ready For Super Bowl

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — It was, according to quarterback Joe Montana, a routine pass pattern, not unlike many that the San Francisco 49ers run in practice every day.

Montana dropped back and threw the football. Jerry Rice went out and caught it. Routine.

"He was running a comeback," the quarterback said. "I threw the ball to him and he caught it and it looked like nothing happened."

And then, it was no longer routine. "He just limped off," Montana said. "I guess it just flared up a little bit."

The diagnosis was a twisted right ankle that will keep Rice out of practice through Thursday and, the 49ers said, make him questionable for Sunday's Super Bowl against Cincinnati.

Others may have questions. Montana, however, does not.

"He'll play," the quarterback said. "If he can't walk, he'll play. Believe me, he'll play. I'll drag him out there."

That's how important the All-Pro wide receiver is in San Francisco's scheme of things. He caught 64 passes this season for a team-leading 1,306 yards. He also caught 10 passes, five for touchdowns, in the playoff victories against Minnesota and Chicago.

"He's the best receiver in the league," said defensive back Ronnie Lott, who works against Rice in practice. "I've seen a lot of good ones in Pro Bowls and he's the best. He comes to work every day. He makes everybody better. His attitude is, 'If you play with me, you'll play hard or I'll beat you.'"

Coach Bill Walsh said Rice was injured when he tried to change directions. He called the twisted ankle "haunting," because it is a recurrence of an injury the wide receiver suffered earlier in the season.

"He went through much of the season with problems," Walsh said. "The last six or eight games, he played well but not great. Prior to that, he was limited and more of a decoy than anything else."

San Francisco trainer Lindsay McLean said the pain was in the tendon area of the ankle. "So it's more tendinitis than anything else," he said. "We feel like with a couple of days' rest, he'll be all right."

The injury originally occurred Oct. 16 against the Los Angeles Rams, a game in which Rice caught four passes. He caught four more the next week against Chicago, but just one the following week against Minnesota and then three the next week at Phoenix.

After that, Rice's production went back up and only once in the last six weeks, including the playoffs, has he

132 Baseball Players Now Seeking Salary Increases

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Orel Hershiser, Roger Clemens and Dwight Gooden are beginning their quests for the big bucks.

The three pitchers were among 132 players who filed for salary arbitration on Monday. In all, 136 players filed for arbitration this year, the second-highest total ever. After 1986, when 159 filed, rules were changed so that players needed three years, instead of two, of major-league experience to file.

Hershiser, Clemens and Gooden could top the record arbitration-awarded salary of $1.975 million won by first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees in 1981.

Hershiser, the National League Cy Young Award winner and the Most Valuable Player of the playoffs and World Series for Los Angeles, was 23-8 with a 2.26 earned-run average and ended the season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings. He made $1.1 million last year.

Clemens, winner of the American League Cy Young Award in 1986 and 1987, was 18-12 with a 2.93 ERA and league-leading 291 strikeouts in 264 innings. He made $1.5 million in 1988 and recently rejected offers of $6.6 million for three years and $2.2 million for one year.

Gooden, who lost in arbitration last season at $1.4 million, was 18-9 with a 3.19 ERA. The Mets have offered a two-year contract with an option but Gooden wants three years at around $6 million.

Jose Canseco, the AL's MVP in 1988, was the top non-pitcher to file. He made $355,000 with Oakland last season and probably will seek a raise of more than $1 million. Players and clubs exchange figures on Thursday.

The New York Mets and California Angels each had nine players file, while Seattle, Montreal and Pittsburgh had eight each. At the other end was Baltimore, which had only pitcher Mark Thurmond file. He won in arbitration last year.

Tom Henke of Toronto, John Franco of Cincinnati and Tim Burke of Montreal, relievers who lost their cases last year in their first test of arbitration, filed again.

Most players who filed will settle before hearings are heard from Feb. 1 to Feb. 20. Of 108 players who filed last year, 90 settled. Of the 18 that went to hearings, owners won 11 and players seven, the seventh consecutive year owners held the majority.

Outfielder Tony Armas of the Angels and pitcher Scott Bailes of Cleveland filed on Monday and agreed to one-year contracts later in the day. Armas will get the same $425,000 he made last year. Bailes will get $300,000, double his salary of last season.

George Mason Tops Lady Pirates, 67-56

FAIRFAX, Va. — George Mason jumped out to an early lead and rolled up a 67-56 Colonial Athletic Association women's basketball victory over East Carolina Monday night.

The Lady Pirates, for the second straight game, suffered through a horrible first half and as a result were never in the game.

In the first half, the Lady Pirates shot only 28 percent as watched Mason run up a 31-17 lead by intermission. Against James Madison on Saturday, ECU scored but 20 first half points.

In the second half, the Lady Pirates warmed and made good on over 50 percent of their shots, but they were too far back. East Carolina did managed to close within seven, but got no closer.

Greeta Savage led the second half effort, scoring all seven of her field goals in the period and all seven shots in a row. She led the Pirates with a total of 17 points. Sarah Gray added 14, scoring in

Spiders' Winecki Named Top CAA Player

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Mike Winecki and American's Felicia Young were named the Colonial Athletic Association players of the week, the conference announced Monday.

Winecki, a senior forward, led the Spiders to three CAA victories last week, scoring 67 points, grabbing 36 rebounds and blocking seven shots. Winecki is averaging 19.5 points per game, third in the conference.

His shooting percentage is 55.3 percent, also third in the conference. Young, a freshman guard from Pittsburg, Pa., scored 49 points in the Eagles two games last week. She had 12 rebounds and seven steals for the week, as the Eagles lost 80-69 to James Madison and defeated William & Mary 70-66.

Wake Forest's King Honored By ACC

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest forward Chris King, who scored 40 points as the Demon Deacons broke even in two games last week, has been selected the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball rookie of the week.

The Newton Grove native started the week with a 16-point performance in an 84-73 victory on the road at Stetson. Later in the week, in a 75-71 home loss to Clemson, King scored a career-high 24 points. In the two games, he made 15 of 25 field goal attempts, 10 of 13 from the free throw line and pulled down 14 rebounds.

King ranks 16th among the ACC's scoring leaders with 173 points for a 13.3 average. He also ranks fifth in the conference in field goal percentage at 56 percent, making 75 of 134 attempts. He's averaging 5.8 rebounds per contest.

It is the second time this season King has been chosen for the weekly honors.

Earlier, Virginia guard Richard Morgan, who scored a career-high 39 points in the Cavaliers' 106-83 victory over eighth-ranked North Carolina on Sunday, was named the ACC player of the week.

Morgan, a 6-foot-3 senior from Salem, Va., also grabbed six rebounds, handed out two assists and had two steals in leading Virginia to its first ACC victory of the season. The victory snapped a five-game losing streak.

Morgan hit 13 of 25 field goals, including eight of 14 from 3-point range, a Virginia school record.

Morgan leads the Cavaliers in scoring and ranks fourth in the conference with a 20.3 point average. He is the ACC's top free throw shooter at 90.5 percent.

The selections were made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association.

St. Pauls Hands St. Peters A 56-33 Defeat

NEW BERN — St. Pauls of New Bern handed St. Peters a 56-33 defeat Saturday in parochial league basketball action.

Ryan Williams led St. Peters with 10 points while Michael Lambe had eight. The loss dropped St. Peters to 4-2 on the year.

In girls' basketball action, St. Pauls handed St. Peters a 33-9 loss.

Clemson Forward To Have Knee Surgery

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson forward Kirkland Howling will undergo arthroscopic knee surgery Tuesday and will miss at least three games, coach Cliff Ellis said.

Howling first injured his right knee in Clemson's game against Maryland on Jan. 7. Ellis said he had problems with swelling in the knee and the decision was made Monday to have the surgery at Oconee Memorial Hospital in Seneca.

Howling, who was averaging 7.4 points and 2.8 rebounds in 13 games, will miss the Tigers' games against Youngstown State on Wednesday, Western Carolina on Saturday and Georgia Tech on Jan. 25.

His status will be reviewed after the Georgia Tech game to see if he can play against Duke on Jan. 29, said Tim Bourret, associate sports information director.

Howling was Clemson's leading scorer with 18 points in last Saturday's 75-71 victory over Wake Forest.

Lebo Will Miss Game Against Duke

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina starting guard Jeff Lebo will definitely miss Wednesday's game against top-ranked Duke, team officials said Monday.

Lebo, who twisted his left ankle Sunday in the second half of North Carolina's 103-86 loss to Virginia, may also sit out Saturday's game against No. 15 North Carolina State, said team trainer Marc Davis.

The senior from Carlisle, Pa., is North Carolina's second-leading scorer with a 14.7 average. The 13th-ranked Tar Heels are 14-3 and 1-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

USC Name Gregory As Assistant Coach

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Roy Gregory, assistant head coach and running back coach at Mississippi State, was named Monday as an assistant coach at South Carolina.

Gregory's specific duties will be outlined at a later date, said South Carolina sports information director Kerry Sharp.

Also on Monday, Purdue hired Jim Washburn, defensive line coach at South Carolina, as an assistant coach.

South Carolina coach Joe Morrison still must fill the coaching vacancy left by the departure of linebacker coach Frank Orgel, who took a coaching job at Georgia.

Gregory, 42, worked at Mississippi State for three seasons. His ties to Morrison date back to 1976, when he was hired by Morrison at Tennessee-Chattanooga. Gregory also has coached at Memphis State, New Mexico and Vanderbilt.

Akers will announce Washburn's coaching responsibilities after naming one more assistant, Purdue sports information director Mark Adams said.

Washburn, 39, joined Morrison at New Mexico in 1980 and followed him to South Carolina in 1983.

"At this stage of my career, this was an opportunity which I couldn't turn down," Washburn said.

Washburn came into the public eye in October following an article in Sports Illustrated in which former South Carolina football player Tommy Chaiken said he took steroids for three years while at the school.

Chaiken said half of the 1986 football team used steroids as well and other players used drugs such as cocaine and LSD.

Washburn said he knew Chaiken was having problems when he was at South Carolina. But Washburn said he wasn't aware Chaiken's problems stemmed from steroid use.

In his article, Chaiken, who was at South Carolina from 1983 to 1987, said that while coaches didn't officially sanction steroid use, there was tacit approval if a player built himself up with drugs.

Chaiken said Washburn told him, "Do what you have to do, take what you have to take."

Washburn said he may have said something like that, but he said he wasn't implying Chaiken should take steroids.

Waters Will Continue At Western Carolina

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Bob Waters has left no doubt he will continue as Western Carolina's football coach as long as he is able, despite his battle with Lou Gehrig's Disease.

"There is no indecision on my part as to whether or not I can direct this football program," said Waters, who is confined to a wheelchair. "I was never wavering."

WCU Chancellor Myron Coulter also remains behind Waters.

"I've had people ask me how long this is going to continue and I've said, 'as long as that man can coach football,'" said Coulter.

"I know we're doing the right thing," he added. "I know we're doing what needs to be done, what must be done. We're talking about a human being, a man with a family, a coach who has been here for 20 years. All of those things are very important to me."

Tripuka Sparks Hornets To Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — It was a long time between road wins for the Charlotte Hornets.

Kelly Tripuka scored 40 points, including nine in overtime, as the Hornets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 127-122 Monday to snap an 11-game road losing streak.

It was only the second road win for the Charlotte expansion team in their first season in the NBA, and their tenth win overall. The first was a 107-105 triumph over San Antonio on Nov. 19.

Hornets' Coach Dick Harter said his team "richly deserved" the win against the 76ers, who saw their five-game winning streak end.

"It's so important that we have some success for our effort. We've played hard all year and had some tough losses," Harter said. "Kelly and Rex (Chapman) were magnificent."

A basket by Chapman, who scored 25 points, gave the Hornets the lead at 120-118 with 1:21 left in overtime. Tripuka and Tyrone Bogue scored baskets to make it 124-118 with 50 seconds remaining, putting the game out of reach.

Philadelphia took a 110-107 lead with 32 seconds left in regulation on a basket by Charles Barkley, but Chapman made a 3-point shot to tie it with 15 seconds left and send the game into overtime.

"We drew up a play," said Chapman of his game-tying shot. "They doubled Kelly and Bogue found me. I just let it go. I wasn't sure it was going in."

Philadelphia Coach Jimmy Lynam said Chapman never should have had the chance to make the tying shot.

"We broke down defensively to give Chapman a chance to shoot three at the end," Lynam said. "We didn't shadow him."

Mike Gminski scored 25 and Hersey Hawkins 19 for the 76ers.

Barkley scored 16 points, but didn't play in the third period because of back spasms.

Lakers 124, Rockets 113
In a town where 10 is considered perfect, the Los Angeles Lakers are a perfect 15.

Okay, so the Lakers actually play in Inglewood, not Hollywood. Regardless, they remained the only NBA team with a perfect home record — 15-0 — by defeating the Houston Rockets 124-113 Monday.

The Lakers have won 22 straight regular-season home games dating back to last season, but are only 10-12 on the road this season. They went ahead for good by outscoring the Rockets 17-2 over a 4:07 of the first quarter and put the game away by making 15 of 17 shots in the third quarter for a 95-75 lead.

Los Angeles has won three in a row and has played "a lot better offensively and defensively," according to Magic Johnson, who had 17 points, 13 rebounds and 18 assists for his eighth triple-double of the season.

Byron Scott added 24 points and Thompson had 21. Mike Woodson had 24 points, Purvis Short 23 and Otis Thorpe 20 for the Rockets, who lost despite committing a season-low six turnovers. They shot only 43.7 percent — 45-for-103.

Knicks 116, Spurs 106
Jackson's triple-double was the third of his two-year career, but it was only the third time in the Knicks' 43-year history that they have won 14 straight at home.

The Knicks, who led by as many as 23 points in the second half, have won five in a row overall and are 17-1 at home this season. The Spurs have lost five straight and 10 of their last 11 road games.

Cavaliers 126, Suns 110
Cleveland won for the 16th time in its last 19 games and improved its NBA-leading record to 27-7 — but it wasn't easy. The Cavaliers saw all of a 38-20 first-quarter lead erased when Kevin Johnson hit consecutive baskets to put Phoenix ahead for the first time, 70-69 early in the third quarter.

The Suns led 74-73 when Cleveland's Ron Harper made a fast-break layup to start a 10-0 run that gave the Cavaliers the lead for good.

Pistons 96, Celtics 87

At Auburn Hills, Mich., Isiah Thomas scored six of his 16 points during a 13-3 fourth-quarter run that keyed a second-half Detroit comeback.

After trailing by 11 points at halftime, Detroit outscored Boston 29-16 in the third quarter — including 17 of 19 free throws — to take a 71-69 lead into the final period. Boston's Reggie Lewis tied the score but Detroit got baskets from Thomas, Bill Laimbeer, Thomas again and Dennis Rodman for a 79-71 lead. Boston never got closer than four points thereafter.

Hawks 117, Bullets 106
At Landover, Md., Dominique Wilkins scored 28 points and grabbed a season-high 16 rebounds as Atlanta snapped a three-game losing streak. Cliff Levingston and Moses Malone led a fourth-quarter Atlanta comeback that erased an 11-point deficit in less than four minutes.

Levingston had seven points, including the tying basket with 8:06 left in the game, and Malone six in a 15-4 run. Atlanta eventually built its lead to as many as 11 points.

Nuggets 116, Kings 110
At Denver, Walter Davis scored four of his 27 points in a 30-second span late in the fourth quarter to help end the Nuggets' four-game losing streak.

With the game tied for the 13th time, at 104-104, Davis triggered an 8-0 run by stealing the ball from Harold Pressley, making a layup and then hitting a driving shot.

Alex English led the Nuggets with 29 points and Danny Schayes added 21. Sacramento, whose road record is 2-17, was led by Ed Pinckney's 21 points.

Warriors 146, SuperSonics 117
At Oakland, Chris Mullin scored nine of his 31 points to spark a 26-10 run at the start of the third quarter as the undersized Warriors won their fifth straight and seventh in nine games since losing 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson for at least a month because of a knee injury.

Mitch Richmond scored 27 points and Terry Teagle, making his first start since Dec. 19, 1987, added a season-high 22 as Golden State achieved its highest point total of the season. Dale Ellis scored 26 points and Sedale Threatt added 21 for Seattle.

UNLV Wins, Syracuse Loses Again

By Bob Greene

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The timing would have done a Las Vegas nightclub comic proud. It was good enough to keep the Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels from defeat.

Greg Anthony's only 3-pointer of the night came with three seconds to go and gave the 10th-ranked Rebels a 66-63 victory over lightly regarded Fullerton State.

Anthony, a sophomore guard who scored just five points in the game, launched his desperation 25-footer after Fullerton's Cedric Ceballos had tied the game at 63 with 11 seconds left when he hit a 3-point jumper.

Anthony's game-winner overshadowed the performance by Ceballos, who scored 31 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and was 10-of-10 from the free throw line in the Big West contest.

Connecticut 68, No. 11 Syracuse 62
Cliff Robinson scored 24 points and Phil Gamble 21 as Connecticut handed Syracuse its third straight loss and fourth in its last five games — all in Big East Conference competition. The Orangemen are now in last place with a 1-4 conference mark.

Syracuse led for the last time at 39-35 with 15:07 left. But Gamble hit a 3-point basket and a three-point play to put the Huskies back in front for good. Connecticut then hit 14 of 15 free throws in the final 5:31 to seal the victory.

No. 6 Michigan 99, No. 16 Ohio St. 73
Glen Rice hit five 3-pointers and scored 23 points in Michigan's victory over Ohio State. Terry Mills also scored 23 points and Loy Vaught had 22 for the Wolverines.

Michigan, 15-2 overall and 3-1 in the conference, never trailed, although the Buckeyes, 12-4 and 2-2, cut the deficit to 27-26 with 8:22 left in the first half. Michigan then had a 14-2 spurt to put the game away.

No. 8 Missouri 104, Virginia Tech 99
In Blacksburg, Va., Byron Irvin scored 35 points and Missouri held off a late Virginia Tech rally to defeat the Hokies.

Missouri, 15-3, extended its winning streak to six games. Virginia Tech, which got 36 points from Wally Lancaster, including five 3-pointers, suffered its fifth straight loss.

No. 12 Seton Hall 78, Villanova 61
Seton Hall center Ramon Ramos scored 10 points in a decisive run to lead the Pirates over turnover-plagued Villanova and into first place in the Big East.

The Pirates forced the Wildcats into 17 first-half turnovers and took control with a 23-11 spurt that began late in the first half and continued at the start of the second half. Ramos finished with 12 points.

UNC-Wilmington 59, James Madison 57

Senior center Larry Houzer scored 16 points and North Carolina-Wilmington rallied from a 12-point first-half deficit to defeat James Madison 59-57 in a Colonial Athletic Association contest on Monday night.

The Seahawks improved to 7-7 overall and 3-1 in the league, while the Dukes fell to 9-7 and 2-2.

The Seahawks took their first lead on Greg Bender's 3-pointer with 14:32 left. Late in the contest, Bender hit two free throws to give the Seahawks a 57-50 cushion.

Rice Injured

caught fewer than five passes in a game.

Walsh called the injury "moderate, not severe. He'll be with us all week, but he'll stay off the ankle."

How effective Rice could be on game day without practicing all week is open to speculation.

"Certainly, we'd prefer that he practice to get his timing down with Joe Montana," Walsh said. "So much of our offense is related to getting the ball to Rice."

What would the 49ers do without him?

Walsh said he would use Mike Wilson, who caught 33 passes for 405 yards during the season, as a split end and Pro Bowl return specialist John Taylor (14-325) as a flanker.

"We still have other weapons," the coach said. "We will carry on."

Rice's speed was the catalyst for his lines in the recently released 49er rap song:

"Hello, my name is Jerry Rice;
"Please don't try to cover me
"Cause you'll pay the price.
"I move so fast;
"I'll give you a buzz;

"You'll be thinking that you're next to me,

"Thought you was, Cuz."

With Rice running on a lame ankle, Cuz just might be.

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Jan. 18

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Avoid getting caught in the middle of an argument that is not your concern. Good things start happening later in the day.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Although you start with a sensible plan for the day, revisions may be necessary. Your memory may not be up to snuff. Write things down.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may be ready for anything today. Don't be too over-confident, yet be prepared for a pleasant surprise.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Togetherness may not feel comfortable today. Remember, the center stage is not always the model to try to follow.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Letting home chores slide now may come to haunt you later when you need free time. Get a second opinion on a legal matter.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): There are benefits staying with things that are tried and true. Study budget requirements and keep estimates within reason.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Someone who asks you for advice may have more on his mind than that. Use caution with this person, and just say no.

 At rubber bridge, the play largely revolves around safety plays and daring defense in an attempt to beat the contract. At duplicate, the key features are overtricks and undertricks, major suits and minors.

On this hand from a pair tournament, those Norths who became too mesmerized by the extra points earned in a major suit were justly penalized for electing to play six spades rather than six clubs. The spade break meant that they had an unavoidable loser in each major.

Six clubs was often reached on an auction such as the one above. Note that, despite his excellent offensive potential, South never made a jump bid. He devalued his hand because of his spade void, but that did not prevent the percentage slam from being reached.

After the lead of the ace of diamonds, most declarers made only 12 tricks. The diamond lead was ruffed in dummy and the outstanding trumps were drawn. Declarer crossed to the ten of clubs and cashed the high spades, taking four heart discards. When the suit did not break, he could set up a long spade with a ruff, but the club spots prevented him from getting back to the table to enjoy it.

At one table declarer had no trouble making all the tricks. After ruffing the diamond in dummy, he immediately ruffed a spade in hand. Now after drawing trumps with a high trump in hand, he had no problem getting back to the board with the ten of clubs to cash five spades and get rid of all his hearts.

Soviets May Pay Up On Old Debt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A sudden Soviet willingness to consider making good on bonds issued by Russia's czarist government is spurring interest in the obscure securities, which long ranked as the financial world's equivalent of a deed to the Brooklyn Bridge.

Like the worthless deeds offered by hucksters to unwary immigrants, the Russian bonds were considered for years to be worth little more than the paper they were printed on, of interest only to collectors.

But on Monday, the State Department said U.S. and Soviet officials have started talks on repayment of the Russian debt, which was owed by the czarist government but repudiated after the Soviet revolution of 1917.

Similar talks with Britain produced an agreement two years ago that brought a nearly $68 million windfall to investors there who had hung onto or acquired Russian bonds, often for mere pennies apiece.

U.S.-Soviet talks began in London Nov. 28, said Nyoka White, public affairs officer for the State Department's bureau of European and Canadian affairs. She said the two sides plan to continue the talks in hopes of reaching an agreement, although the time of the next session is indefinite.

Czechs Hold 14 Activists After Prague Protests

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fourteen Czech human rights activists were still in custody today after their arrests during demonstrations to commemorate a student who burned himself alive to protest the 1968 Soviet-led invasion.

The group included banned playwright Vaclav Havel and Jana Sternova, a former spokeswoman for the Charter 77 human rights group who last year had an audience with President Reagan in Washington.

Also among the 14 identified by Czechoslovak state-run media as being in custody were Alexander Vondra and Dana Nemcova, Charter 77 spokespersons.

The arrests Monday came as hundreds of riot police and water cannons moved into Prague's central Wenceslav Square for a second straight day to disperse demonstrators, some of whom attempted to lay flowers in memory of Jan Palach, who set himself alight there on Jan. 16, 1969 and died three days later.

Palach was protesting the August 1968 invasion that crushed "Prague Spring" liberal reforms.

On Sunday, 5,000 protesters had rallied throughout Prague, and an official report said 91 were arrested as police crushed the demonstration with clubs, dogs and water cannon.

About 500 people attended a

Roman Catholic memorial Mass for Palach in the city of Brno on Monday, and the priest referred repeatedly to "Jan the martyr" without mentioning Palach's name, participants said.

The demonstrations have coincided with a meeting of 35 North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Warsaw Pact countries in Vienna to mark a comprehensive human rights accord between East and West.

Report Says Latin American Debt May Lead To Military Coups

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A group of experts on hemispheric affairs said today that Latin America's $420 billion debt crisis could lead to military takeovers in some countries and recommended five "priority tasks" to restore economic and political stability.

One key recommendation was for debt reduction agreements to be negotiated between individual debtor countries and commercial bank creditors.

"Six years after the debt crisis began, Latin America remains mired in depression," said a report by the Inter-American Dialogue, a grouping of 66 prominent citizens from the United States, Canada, Latin America and the Caribbean.

Unemployment and underemployment are at record levels," it said. "Wages have declined sharply — by as much as 50 percent in some places. Average income per capita has fallen back to the level of 1978 and is not recovering."

Soap Moves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's daytime soap opera "General Hospital" is now back at ABC Television Center in Hollywood after 11 years of production at another studio.

The show began April 1, 1963, at the ABC studio, but in 1978 moved to the Sunset-Gower Studio and stayed there until its move in December. The show was out of production for two weeks and resumed taping in January.

"General Hospital" is now in a newly constructed state-of-the-art, five-story sound stage with 20,000 square feet. It has 40 dressing rooms, classrooms for child performers, wardrobe and makeup rooms and offices.

The Eastman Dry Plate and Film Company of Rochester, N.Y., manufactured the first commercial motion-picture film in 1885.

Jackson Goes Back To Postponed Tour

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Thousands of fans howled as superstar Michael Jackson took center stage adorned in silver chains, resuming a concert tour curtailed in November when he suffered swollen vocal chords.

Jackson's manager, Frank Dileo, had announced that this would be Jackson's final concert tour.

The 30-year-old pop phenomenon was clad in black when he opened Monday night's show to about 17,500 people at the Sports Arena. He hit the stage at 8:45 p.m. complete with synchronized light show and heart-thumping choreography.

Diehard Jackson fans didn't seem to care too much about his cancellation of several concert dates, the first of which was Nov. 14.

"We figure it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Glenn Busse, a 26-year-old San Diego resident who made the long trip with his wife, Nancy.

The reclusive pop star embarked on a 16-month solo tour to promote his best-selling "Bad" album. At least 19 million copies of the record have been sold.

"Bad," which produced five No. 1 hits, will be recognized Jan. 30 with the "American Music Award of Achievement." Some hits from the album include "Man in the Mirror," a Grammy nominee for Record of the Year; "Dirty Diana," "The Way You Make Me Feel," and "I Just Can't Stop Loving You."

Jackson performed an ensemble of songs from the album Monday, plus hits from earlier days.

Only ticket holders who bought seats for the canceled Nov. 14 to Nov. 22 dates were allowed at the performance. However, there were many scaplers. One man who refused to give his name said he was selling seats for $75 each.

Jackson performed in only one of his six scheduled Los Angeles performances before his physician urged him to cancel the rest of his dates.

Jackson will finish out his shows at the Sports Arena on Jan. 26 and Jan. 27.

Actress Says 'Big Family' Show In Tune With Times

By Jerry Buck THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Deborah Harmon, who has enough kids on ABC's "Just the Ten of Us" to populate several comedy series, says the show's big family is in tune with the times.

"We get a lot of mail from people who say, 'I'm from a big family and you're just like my mom,'" said Ms. Harmon.

"I think families are becoming chi-chi again. Every mall you see now has a child shop. Families are coming back in style. So, in that way, I think our show is pertinent and a product of the '80s. We also get a lot of attention from Catholic groups, since the family is Catholic."

Ms. Harmon stars as Elizabeth Lubbock, whose husband, Coach Graham Lubbock, teaches at an all-boys Catholic school in Eureka, Calif. Comedian Bill Kirchenbauer plays her husband in the Friday comedy series. The show is a spinoff from ABC's "Growing Pains," in which Coach was the favorite teacher of Mike Seaver (Kirk Cameron).

In "Just the Ten of Us," Coach has taken his seven children and pregnant wife to a new job in Eureka.

In the first shows last season, Elizabeth was pregnant. In the new season, the Lubbocks have eight children. No episode was devoted to the birth of the new baby, Harvey, since the focus is on the whole family.

"One of the first names they thought of for the show was 'Eureka,'" Ms. Harmon said as she ate a salad at the table in the Lubbock kitchen during the lunch break. "But the fear was people would think the show was about a vacuum cleaner. Another title was 'Yo, Coach,' but ABC had promised another show it could use 'Coach.' I don't care what it's called as long as we're on the air."

"One of the producers suggested we call it 'Stay Away From Me,' because of all the kids. Maggie on 'Growing Pains' and I are both new mothers. She's worried about whether the child's going to accept her because she's a working mother."

My worry is how I'm going to make the chicken stretch that far."

The kitchen set reflected the Lubbocks' economic outlook. It was warm and comfortable, with a dated look. It's an old house the family is trying to make livable. The wallpapered walls are actually from scenery flats that date back to the 1920s.

"I think a lot of people in our economic strata can relate to this," said Ms. Harmon. "I'm allowed four outfits. That's all. The costume department suggested designer sports clothes. I said, no way, this woman shops at K mart. It's the same with the kids. They only have a few outfits, but they do a lot of things with socks."

The show also deals with religion and the daughters' awakening sexuality. In one show, Marie (Heather Langenkamp) thinks she's diverted a boyfriend from the priesthood. "I find her kneeling and praying in front of the TV set," said Ms. Harmon. "I say, 'Marie, don't pray there. That's Satan's altar.' We do some gentle Catholic humor."

Ms. Harmon, a former member of Chicago's Second City troupe, had earlier auditioned for the role of Maggie in "Growing Pains."

She has been in other series, most recently CBS' "Leo and Liz in Beverly Hills," in which she played a neighbor. She also starred in "The Ted Knight Show" and has been a guest on many series, such as "M-A-S-H," "St. Elsewhere" and "Married With Children." She's also been in a number of TV movies, including "Baby Girl Scott," "My Wicked, Wicked Ways: The Errol Flynn Story" and "Prince of Bel Air."

"Three years ago I had a lot of problems," said Ms. Harmon. "I was not happy. I'm so happy now. I'm engaged to marry the most wonderful man. He doesn't live here and he's not in show business. The only thing worse than marrying an actor is marrying a musician."

Actor Due In Court On Probation Charge

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Actor Griffin O'Neal is due to appear in court Friday for allegedly violating his probation by failing to perform 400 hours of community service.

The 25-year-old son of actor Ryan O'Neal was ordered to perform the community service as part of his sentence for a boating accident that killed a friend, Gian-Carlo Coppola, 23, the son of film director and producer Francis Ford Coppola.

O'Neal and Coppola were boating on the South River on Memorial Day 1986 when their 14-foot runabout struck a towline connecting two larger vessels. Coppola died of head injuries. O'Neal suffered minor injuries.

The two were on a break from filming "Gardens of Stone" in Virginia.

O'Neal, who was acquitted of manslaughter but convicted on a negligent boating charge in his 1987 trial, received a 30-day suspended jail term, 1 1/2 years probation and was ordered to perform 400 hours of community service in California, where he lives.

Prosecutor Gerald Anders said O'Neal had carried out "only a fraction" of the community service requirement.

He could face 30 days in jail for probation violation.

Reagan Debuts

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Michael Reagan made his debut as a news announcer for a radio station, and his dad marked the occasion with a congratulatory phone call.

"Good morning, Mike. This is your old man," President Reagan kiddingly told his eldest son in a call from the White House on Monday.

"I'm a little far away to hear your first program but I just wanted to congratulate you on the first day and wish you well," said the president, who was a radio sports announcer in Iowa in the 1930s.

Michael Reagan was hired by KSDO to deliver news and information during morning rush hour. He worked for the station for a month last summer on a temporary basis as a talk show host.
