High Winds Rip Through County

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Violent winds and funnel clouds ripped through portions of Pitt County about 1 p.m. Tuesday, flinging a mobile home with two occupants into the air and forcing several people out of their homes.

"Supposedly, there were three trailers totally destroyed, and two trailers (near Fountain and Dupree Crossroads) with roof damage and minor damage," said Raquel Zimmerman, executive director of the Pitt County Red Cross. "And there was one house at Noble's Crossroads with roof damage.

"If five tornadoes were confirmed to have touched down in Pitt County (as we have heard), we were very very lucky," Ms. Zimmerman said. "Supposedly ... we were to be contacted if anyone needed shelter, so they must have gone with friends or family."

Alton Brown, who lived with his mother in a trailer on Flat Swamp Road east of the Bethel town limits, said he was away from the home when strong winds ripped through the area and tossed the mobile home about 75 feet toward the road. His mother, Daisy Ella Brown, 51, and his 6-month-old niece were inside the trailer the entire time but suffered only minor injuries.

Both were taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment. Sam Keel of the Bethel Rescue Squad said Mrs. Brown suffered cuts on her legs, while the baby suffered abrasions on her nose and forehead.

A barn behind the trailer was also crushed, one tree was uprooted and

Tokyo On Alert For Terrorism

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — Security checks intensified today after the discovery of two projectiles on launchers aimed at the runway of a Tokyo airport where dignitaries have begun arriving for Emperor Hirohito's funeral, officials said.

An unprecedented number of foreign dignitaries are streaming into Japan for Friday's state funeral for Hirohito, which radical groups have threatened to disrupt.

On Tuesday, police discovered timers set on two mortar-like projectiles on explosive-charged launchers aimed at the runway at Narita airport. Police would not disclose when the projectiles were set for launching.

As a result, authorities stepped up security at Narita and Haneda airports, where 71 foreign delegations were to arrive today.

Storm Wipes Out Need For Drill

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Students in the Pitt County schools spent most of Tuesday afternoon with their knees bent, derrieres in the air and heads covered with their hands as severe thunderstorms and tornado-like winds in the area caused them to practice tornado drills a day early.

Disaster officials across the state had planned a tornado drill for today, but Pitt students have already put in their practice time, reacting to the severe weather that attacked parts of eastern North Carolina on Tuesday, said Barry Gaskins, public information officer with the Pitt County schools.

"Because of the events of yesterday we feel very comfortable with our drill and everyone did what they were suppose to do," he said. "It went like clockwork."

As the storms and high winds approached the Pitt area Tuesday afternoon, students were ushered into the halls and other designated areas of the schools to wait out the storm, Gaskins said.

"We kept them in (school) a little longer — 45 minutes to an hour — because we were under a tornado drill and we ascertained that it would be safer for the children to remain in school until the weather front had passed by," he said.

"Really, that affected the elementary schools more than high schools," Gaskins said. "Usually, they get out about 2:10 and we didn't let them out until about 3."

Students in the county schools review the different drills, such as tornado and fire, early in the school year, but were beginning to brush up on the procedures in observance of Severe Weather Awareness Week this week when the storms hit, school officials said.

"I think this emphasizes why it's important to have drills," Janie Manning, principal at Bethel Elementary School, said.

Fire drills are conducted monthly, while the tornado drills are conducted once a year, she said.

Students have been discussing the weather in the classrooms, "and we're doing more with it today," she said.

"We've had all kinds of weather. We've had all kinds of experiences

Bush And Barbara En Route To Tokyo

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush set out today on a hectic five-day trip to Japan, China and South Korea to demonstrate that "the United States is an Asian power."

Bush and his wife, Barbara, departed before sunrise in a light drizzle aboard Air Force One, heading for a refueling stop in Anchorage, Alaska, en route to Tokyo. In Anchorage, Bush will give a speech outlining themes of his trip.

The overseas trip comes with Bush barely in office for a month, and with most aspects of the new administration's foreign policy still officially under review.

But Brent Scowcroft, the president's national security adviser, on Tuesday disputed suggestions that Bush is making the journey before he has a cohesive foreign policy in place.

"The president is not trying to make quick headlines," Scowcroft said. He said Bush wants to develop policies that "will aid us in where we think we'd like to be at the end of the century."

Over the next five days, Bush will travel 18,095 miles. He'll spend 36 hours on his plane before returning to Washington on Monday night.

Because of the 14-hour time difference with Washington, Bush will arrive in Tokyo at about 1 p.m. local time on Thursday with much of the work day ahead of him. However, his body clock will tell him that it's 11 p.m. Wednesday at home.

Court Says State Not Liable For Child Abuse

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled today that public officials may not be sued when their alleged gross negligence permits a child to be abused by a parent.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices said a state does not have a constitutional duty to protect people, including abused children, who are not in the state's custody.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, writing for the court, said, "As a general matter ... we conclude that a state's failure to protect an individual against private violence simply does not constitute a violation of the (Constitution's) due process clause."

The court rejected an appeal on behalf of a Wisconsin boy, Joshua DeShaney, who since age 4 has been seriously and permanently brain damaged from beatings by his father.

In an unusual emotional dissent, Justice Harry A. Blackmun exclaimed, "Poor Joshua! It is a sad commentary upon American life and constitutional principles ... that this child, Joshua DeShaney, now is assigned to live out the remainder of his life profoundly retarded" and without an opportunity to sue the state.

Social workers were accused of violating Joshua's constitutional rights by failing to come to his rescue after they had repeated evidence he was being beaten.

But Rehnquist said the state's awareness of the boy's plight does not mean it has a duty to protect him.

Only "when the state takes a person into its custody and holds him there against his will" does the Constitution require officials to take responsibility for the individual's safety and well-being, Rehnquist said.

"While the state may have been aware of the dangers that Joshua faced in the free world, it played no part in their creation nor did it do anything to render him any more vulnerable to them," he said.

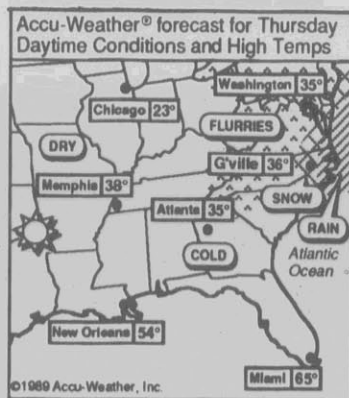

Nor does the fact that the boy was once in the state's custody change the situation, the chief justice added. "The state does not become the permanent guarantor of an individual's safety by having once offered him shelter," he said.

Joining Rehnquist were Justices Byron R. White, John Paul Stevens, Sandra Day O'Connor, Antonin Scalia and Anthony M. Kennedy. Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall joined Blackmun in dissent.

A suit in Joshua's behalf was filed against the Winnebago County, Wis., Department of Social Services and two of its employees.

Planning Board Backs Move Toward Multifamily Housing

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission voted Tuesday to recommend that the city council adopt a series of proposed regulation amendments designed to promote multifamily housing developments downtown.

Included in the regulations are increasing unit density downtown to 44 units per acre. Existing city standards allow a maximum of 18 units per acre.

City Planner Jack Simoneau said another significant aspect of the regulations is providing developers with "density bonuses" should the developer provide various public amenities in the downtown area.

He said such amenities might include providing off-street parking for downtown commercial uses and providing pedestrian circulation improvements, such as an arcade or plaza.

"If the developer opts to include these amenities, they would be able to increase the density up to 58 units per acre," he said.

Other proposed regulations provide for greater flexibility with respect to off-site parking.

"We felt that in the downtown area, we needed to be as flexible as possible in providing off-site parking. So instead of having a 400-foot spacing requirement, that is, having parking within 400 feet to the building that it's supposed to serve, we recommend 800 feet," Simoneau said.

"What we're shooting for is removing the barriers for residential uses downtown," Simoneau said. "The city's Comprehensive Plan and the Heart of the City Plan both recommend residential uses in the downtown area."

The proposals were formulated by representatives of the planning commission, the city's development staff, Evergreen of Greenville Inc. and the Greenville Parking Authority.

The regulations, along with the commission's recommendation, will be considered for adoption by the Greenville City Council at its next monthly meeting.

Meanwhile, the commission approved the recommendation of extending the Extraterritorial Planning and Zoning Jurisdiction one mile southeast of the city limits.

The proposed ETJ area includes 1,600 acres southeast of SR 1725 between N.C. 33 and N.C. 43. The commission recommended all property be brought into the city's ETJ zoned RA-20 (residential/agriculture).

Also approved was a recommendation of a request by Park West Properties to rezone a 29-acre tract located south of U.S. 264 and north of SR 1200 from MD-7 (low-density residential) to MD-3 (office and institutional).

Dr. West Named

The forum, established in 1986, is a partnership of business, government and education leaders that helps conceive and implement ideas to improve public education.

Jurors Selected

RALEIGH — Jury selection in the federal court trial of two Pitt County men charged with burning the Liberty Warehouse in Wilson was completed in Raleigh on Tuesday and testimony was expected to begin sometime today.

The men, John Thomas Worthington, an owner of the warehouse that was destroyed by fire in October 1986, and his son John Thomas "Tommy" Worthington Jr., the manager of the facility, face conspiracy, arson and fraud charges.

Jury selection in the trial began Monday and was completed Tuesday. Opening statements by the prosecution and defense began this morning and it was expected that testimony in the trial would begin this afternoon.

A federal grand jury last year returned a 66-count indictment against the two in connection with a scheme to defraud insurance companies.

Lloyd's of New York Insurance Co. paid a total of $2.3 million to cover the loss of tobacco in the warehouse and the owners have attempted to collect additional insurance, according to the indictment.

The fraud charges include numerous counts of mail and wire fraud and allegations that the two made false financial statements to obtain bank loans.

If convicted, the younger Worthington faces up to 284 years in prison and $9.5 million in fines, while his father faces up to 174 years in jail and more than $8.7 million in fines, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Kieran J. Shanahan.

Another owner of the warehouse, Robert D. Oldham of Nashville, Tenn., has been charged with making false statements on loan applications to banks.

Two other Pitt County men — Edmund Wayne Hart, 42, and Ronnie Lee Stocks — have pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the warehouse fire and are expected to testify for the government.

Advisory Health Councils Proposed

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees Tuesday night heard a description of the East Carolina Health Services component of the hospital's plan to establish two advisory councils to provide communication between PCMH and each of the other hospitals in the eastern region.

Jack Richardson, newly named hospital president-emeritus who heads the ECHS group, said one of the councils will be composed of hospitals with between 50 and 130 beds, while the other advisory panel will involve hospitals with from 130 to 300 beds.

Each hospital which agrees to participate is being asked to appoint three representatives to its council — one trustee, one administrator and one member of its medical staff, Richardson said. The first meeting of the council composed of larger hospitals will be held March 14 in Greenville, with the second set for March 27 in Greenville.

"We want to see how we might network for the benefit of using all the health care resources we have in the East," Richardson said. "We think, with better coordination, we can have a better health delivery system in eastern North Carolina."

Dr. Howard G. Dawkins presented the annual quality assurance report. He said the hospital quality assurance committee has gone on record as expecting that every health care procedure done for every patient be done at a 100 percent quality level.

"For instance," Dawkins said, "if a patient's blood pressure is supposed to be taken a certain number of times a day, we expect it to be taken that many times and documented that many times. We recognize that there are some things in medical care, like infection onset, that cannot be predicted, but the things that can, we expect to be done at a predictable and high level. We don't consider this a departure of our past level of care. We're just putting it into words."

Following a presentation by Kathy Barger, vice president for finance, the board approved the hospital's joining in a group appeal process regarding Medicare denial of payment for helicopter transports in the Southeastern United States. Trustees authorized the spending of up to $10,000 for the appeals process subject to sufficient participation by other hospitals in the region which also have air ambulance programs. The board approved a trustees bylaw amendment. The amended bylaw states that, in order to be eligible for reappointment to a committee of the board that meets monthly, a committee member must have attended at least 75 percent of that committee's meetings within the previous year. However, the committee chairman may excuse a member for extenuating circumstances.

A resolution of respect for Dr. Leo Jenkins, recently deceased former chancellor of East Carolina University, was read by board chairman Bob Harrington. The resolution will be hand carried to Jenkins' family.

Organ Recipients Form Support Unit

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Donor organ recipients will share their experiences with others in a campaign to increase organ donation among eastern North Carolinians.

A support group being established under the auspices of the transplant surgery division at the East Carolina University School of Medicine will serve both as a public education tool and a support network among organ recipients and patients waiting to receive an organ. Elder Donald Solomon, a Kinston minister and three-time kidney recipient, will help coordinate the support group.

Though the support group will focus mainly on educating those who are contemplating an organ transplant, Solomon says he hopes to also launch a mass public education program using organ recipients as witnesses to the value of organ transplants.

Organ recipients interested in becoming a part of the support group can contact Larry McClinton, Department of Surgery, Transplantation Surgery section, East Carolina University School of Medicine, at 551-2620, or Solomon at 527-4794.

Not Immune

Farming Must Do Its Part, Too

Farmers ought to know better than to bite the hand that feeds them. They ought to know better than to blindly oppose measures protecting the very resources that make their income grow.

A bill repealing the Hardison amendments is making its way through the N.C. General Assembly. It is a long overdue piece of legislation that gives the state the power it needs to adequately protect the environment.

The Hardison amendments, the bequest of former Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, prohibit North Carolina from enacting pollution regulations stricter than the federal government. That measure makes the state powerless to address problems that occur in special environments unanticipated by federal guidelines — such as estuaries and wetlands. Under the Hardison amendments, polluters can continue harmful dumping into the water and air — quite legally.

The bill repealing this outdated measure introduced by Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, and co-sponsored by Pitt's Sen. Tom Taft, has gained broad support in the Senate. Business and industry interests — those primarily affected by tougher environmental guidelines — support Winner's bill. They like it because it requires the state's environmental agencies to prove, when adopting regulations, that the economic benefits of the rules outweigh the burden on industry. That's bending over backwards to accommodate business interests, but it's better than remaining tied to lax federal rules.

Environmentalists even agree that the bill, while not ideal, represents needed progress.

But strong opposition is coming from the state's farmers, who say stricter regulations on air and water quality may curb use of pesticides and fertilizers.

These fears are likely unfounded, but even if they weren't, don't farmers have a responsibility to the environment too? The chemicals used in cultivation — especially the amounts used by large agribusinesses — can damage the environment. After all, agriculture is an industry and is not immune to regulation. It requires guidelines just like other industries.

Besides, tougher standards would keep polluters from harming the very resources on which agriculture depends. Without satisfactorily pure water and air free from noxious substances, quality crops can't be cultivated. Ignoring these realities would cut off the farmer's economic lifeline.

The Hardison amendments chain the wrists of those who safeguard North Carolina's resources. Sen. Winner's bill repealing them offers the state an needed opportunity to slip these shackles and forge a cleaner future. Farming — as well as other industries — must do its part.

If You Eat Chocolate, Don't Drink

If you're going to munch candy, don't drink.

And you won't in North Carolina. A bill which would allow increased amounts of alcohol in candy was withdrawn by its sponsor Rep. Bob Brawley, R-Iredell.

Brawley ran into a buzzsaw of opposition to the bill with opponents most frequently arguing that bonbons containing liquor would make drinking appealing to children.

The bill called for allowing up to 5 percent by weight alcohol in candy and proponents argued that a person would have to consume 49 pieces of such candy to register even the lowest reading on a Breathalyzer test.

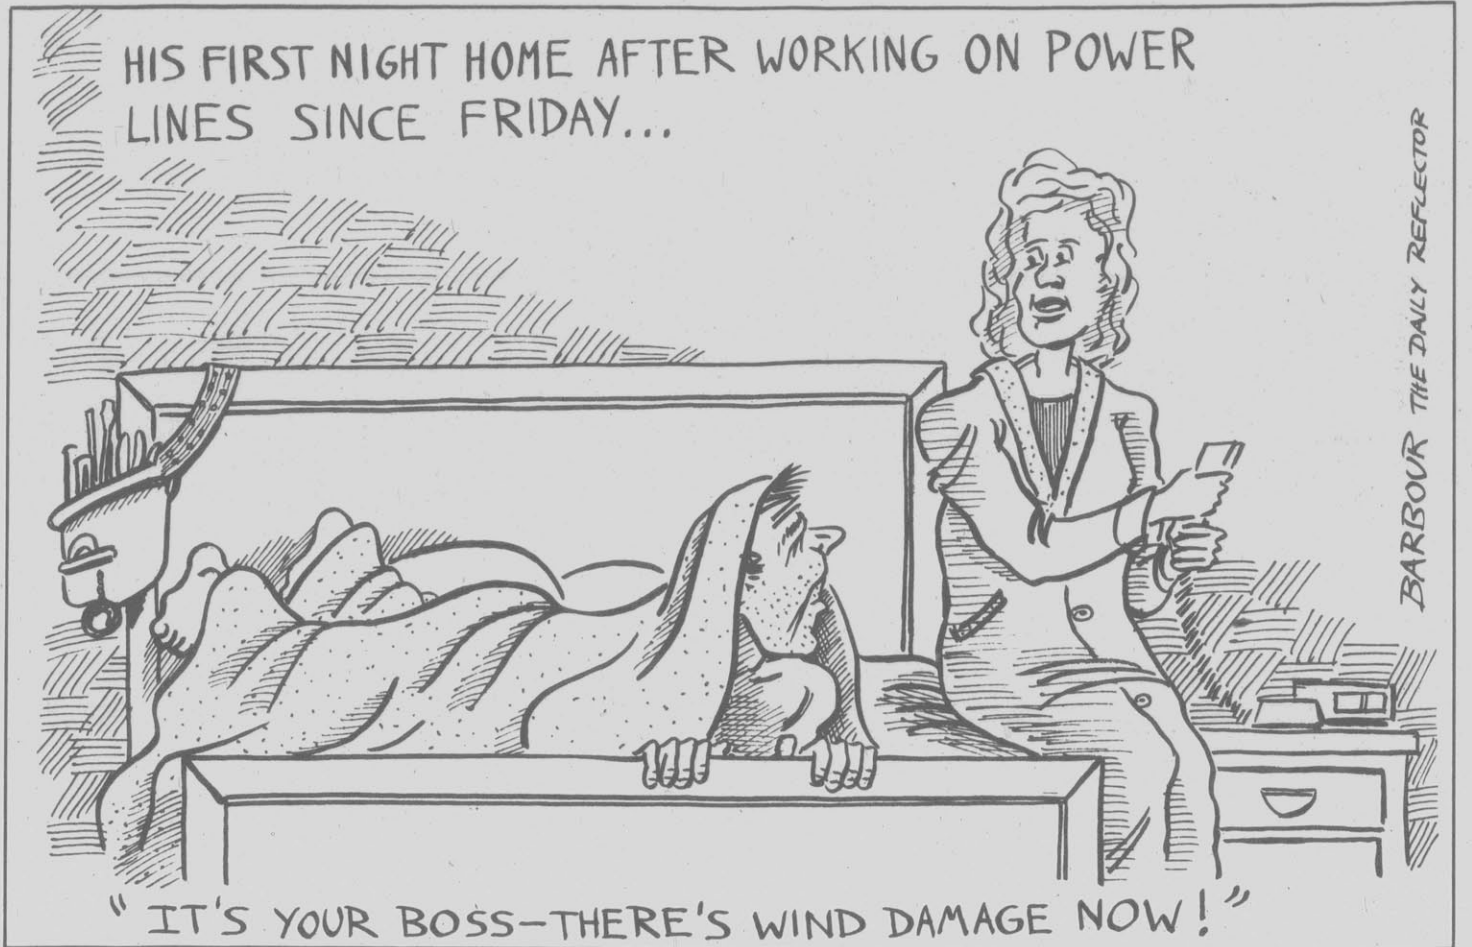

Brawley felt that his bill had been misinterpreted by opponents and he pointed to rum-raisin ice cream, rum-soaked cakes and rum balls as examples of what's available in our society today.

He might have mentioned also that wine is often used in cooking although gourmets say the alcohol disappears in the cooking process and only the flavor remains.

Maybe that is the way to go in North Carolina. The flavor of rum or bourbon or anything else can be instilled in a chocolate. The taste will be there but without the alcohol.

At any rate, in North Carolina booze in candy can only be had by purchasing the chocolates and the alcohol separately. How to combine them is left up to the individual's ingenuity.

Treasury Policy On Mexico Flawed

Rudiger Dornbusch

At a critical juncture in Mexico's precarious effort at economic and political consolidation, our Treasury's debt strategy amounts to nothing short of a U.S. foreign-policy disaster in our relationship with Mexico. The Treasury clings to a strategy of recovering maximum interest payments. For now, Mexico ought to hang on to every penny that it has in reserve. Yet our Treasury proposes a depletion of Mexican coffers to muster debt service on a scale and timetable that are bound to set off another wave of capital flight. This policy, in effect, is provoking a bank run on Mexico.

Over the past few years Mexico has implemented a draconian adjustment plan. Unlike the United States, it has balanced its budget. The non-interest budget has been shifted from a deficit of 6 percent in 1980-82 to a surplus of 6 percent today. Taxes are up, and subsidies are down. Inflation has been reduced from nearly 300 percent to only 20 percent. Restructuring of state enterprises has led to the sale or closing of more than 400 companies, and more are to come. There was a lot of fat and meat, but now Mexico is coming close to the bone.

Of course, the immediate price of all these adjustments has been awesome: The real wage is only half what it was in the early 1980s, and per-capita income has fallen 15 percent. Public-sector infrastructure investment has fallen to half the level of the early '80s. And, with no growth in the economy, the rapidly rising labor force has not found legitimate employment; in consequence, the underground economy and migration to the United States have mushroomed.

All of this adjusting has been the down payment on a return to stability and high growth that Mexico has known in the past, before oil made the country rich too fast. Mexican policy-makers have been at work trying to bring back these conditions by budget cutting and modernization. They are doing pretty unusual things, from import liberalization and deregulation to putting rich people into jail for not paying taxes.

Unfortunately, major adjustment programs like the one that Mexico has been pursuing are extremely vulnerable to populism. Austerity is pervasive, and the recovery of employment is painfully slow. All the costs are up front, and the benefits — growth, financial stability, confidence — come only in time. Hence the outcry for public-sector spending programs and a reversal of reforms. The opposition has an easy time calling on the government to roll back austerity and modernization and to pursue growth the old way by public spending and increased real wages. Populism has added appeal because Mexico collaborated with the creditors and demonstrated its continued willingness to make large interest payments abroad. This lays the government open to the charge of destroying living standards at home for the benefit of bankers abroad — not an inconsequential charge against a government that is trying to establish political legitimacy in the aftermath of hotly contested elections.

At issue now is the extent of Mexican debt service this year and in the near future, not unconditional debt forgiveness. Mexico has asked to reduce debt service to one-third, with the remainder deferred or reduced under one of the widely discussed schemes of debt reduction or credit enhancement. The Treasury wants Mexico to pay on a scale no longer feasible. The fall in oil prices and the dramatic import liberalization have eaten up a $10 billion trade surplus that used to cover interest payments.

Rather than giving Mexico time to consolidate, our Treasury is recommending even more adjustment. Mexico is told to devalue the peso again, in the middle of a stabilization program of wage agreements centered on a policy of no further devaluation and real wage cutting. Devaluation would be an open provocation to labor, forcing them to break the agreements and support opposition leader Cuauhtemoc Cardenas in a general strike. Our Treasury also advises Mexico to finance interest payments by attracting back flight capital through a policy of high interest rates above the 40 percent real interest already in place. The money might come back, but investment and growth would certainly not return.

The Mexico issue today has nothing to do with pervasive Third World debt relief or doing good for the poor. This is hard-nosed self-interest, because Mexico today is a U.S. national-security issue. Our bungling on Mexico is rapidly reversing the good will created by the early meeting of George Bush and Carlos Salinas de Gortari in Houston last fall. President Bush must take over before our insensitivity destabilizes Mexico's economic program, and with it political stability on our frontier.

A Different Shade Of Conservatism

WASHINGTON — Of the newcomers to President Bush's Cabinet — those who didn't hold a Cabinet post during the Reagan years — the smoothest takeoffs have been made by two men of strikingly opposite styles.

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack Kemp hit the ground running and has been in the news every day, vowing to channel his overflowing energy into the revitalization of blighted cities and the rescue of homeless people.

Secretary of Transportation Sam Skinner has made a quieter start, but one which promises substantial achievement. The two men, though very different in temperament, are clearly both results-oriented activists who make it instantly clear they have taken their jobs to get things done, not just to pad their resumes.

Kemp is far better known, thanks to 14 years in the House, a prominent role in the supply-side tax cuts of the Reagan years and a 1988 presidential nomination campaign which won him more friends than delegates.

David Broder

Skinner is new to Washington, but not to the political big leagues. He is a former federal prosecutor, the campaign strategist for Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson, his predecessor and boss in the U.S. attorney's office. Skinner was the man Thompson picked to go in and straighten out the nearly bankrupt Chicago regional transit agency, which he did in a fashion that won bipartisan praise.

Skinner is a tough, no-nonsense manager, with a ready wit that he employs with deadly accuracy against the pomp and pretentiousness he has already encountered in Washington. He's strikingly similar in temperament to Drew Lewis, the surprise star of the first Reagan Cabinet.

He told me, for example, that when President Bush called him "a visionary, it was the highest compliment I've received — except, of course, for Sen. Metzenbaum's vote for confirmation." Howard Metzenbaum, the irascible Democrat from Ohio, had done a rare about-face by first raising and then absolving Skinner of charges of squishiness toward a big drug firm in his prosecutorial days. Skinner knows the game well enough to know what that kind of bow from Metzenbaum means.

Transportation is a department that has chronically suffered from the fiefdom jealousies of such component parts as the Federal Aviation Agency. But if anyone can make the whole greater than the sum of its quarreling parts, Skinner may be the man.

What Kemp brings to HUD is not managerial skills but a missionary zeal to demonstrate that his free-enterprise ideas can make life better in America's worst neighborhoods. He told reporters that he wants to manage the department "from the bottom up," serving as the catalyst and collecting point for a lot of other people's ideas.

That means that somebody other than the old quarterback is going to have to try to manage it the old-fashioned way, because Kemp isn't going to be around much to sign papers or run meetings.

Within hours of his swearing-in, he took off for Atlanta to spend two days, mostly in the company of black Democratic elected officials and their constituents, looking at working models of housing rehabilitation, social-service delivery and business development in the blighted parts of that city.

At breakfast the next morning, he was almost hyperventilating. "A thrilling experience," he said. "I don't believe the problems are intractable, and they don't either."

Budget realities will limit Kemp's actions, but nothing will shut down his enthusiasm. As a Republican in a Democratic-controlled Congress, Kemp learned to form alliances across party lines and to negotiate legislative deals. But his most notable skill was his advocacy. Like Ronald Reagan, he is effective at selling others because he has first sold himself. And Kemp believes that through such schemes as "enterprise zones," he can give transfusions of entrepreneurial energy to blighted center cities.

It's an idea many others view with skepticism. But what I admire about both these men is their willingness to lay down markers by which they can be judged.

Sam Skinner says that his commitment to Bush and Congress is this: "We're going to have a strategic plan for transportation in this country before I leave office or there will be dead bodies all over this building. Both our defense and our economy demand that we start now to meet the needs of the first half of the 21st century. We have a tremendous amount of work to do to repair, to replace, to expand our infrastructure, but we have to know where we're going before we make those decisions. I'm determined we're going to find out."

Kemp is equally emphatic: "We ought to double or triple the number of minority-owned businesses in the next four years. We ought to make a significant dent in the homeless problem. No one should go without shelter, unless by personal choice. We ought to put an end to 'redlining' and all other forms of discrimination in housing. At the end of four years, I'd like a Coretta Scott King to say, 'Jack Kemp has made a difference.' I'd like LULAC (a leading Hispanic organization) to say the Bush administration has made a difference."

Too often, conservatism has been equated with passivity toward America's problems. These two Cabinet members see it in very different terms.

Martin Says He's Developing New School Plan

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin says he is putting together a public school initiative that would implement the career-ladder program statewide and untangle the teachers' salary schedule, which he called "a horrible mess."

The governor told reporters about his budding plan Tuesday but provided few details, saying it's still in the planning stage. He said it will be ready to submit to the General Assembly in a week or two.

The blueprint will include funding proposals, Martin said. He would not rule out a tax increase, although some lawmakers say they'd oppose a school tax on top of a gasoline tax for highway construction that has broad legislative backing.

"I would not be inclined to support a tax increase every time we need some money," said Senate President Pro Tem Henson Barnes, D-Wayne. "We should try to find the money in other savings and programs."

A 5.4 cents-per-gallon increase in the gasoline levy is a key component of the highway package.

"I do not believe that this (highway plan) should pre-empt consideration of a tax package or any other means of paying for school improvements that would be needed," Martin said. "But before I'm in a position to say how that should unfold, I've got some more homework to do."

Martin called a news conference to embrace the $8.6 billion highway construction program pending in the Legislature. But he said he did not want publicity generated by a study commission's approval of the road package to deflect attention from needed school improvements.

He said he wanted to "assure the people of this state ... that improvements in our public schools remain among my highest priorities (and) will be the top priority in this legislative year."

"I don't have the kind of coalition or consensus (for a school package) that we have here (for highways)," Martin said. "I hope that I will have

But in order to do that, I'm going to have to put forward a proposal."

Among its components will be statewide implementation of the career-ladder incentive program for teachers, now under way in 16 school systems, and lifting the seven-year freeze on the teacher pay schedule.

Additionally, he said it would include "a proposal ... as to how to pay for it, where the necessary money would come from and how much it would take."

Barnes said he was curious to see what Martin would offer.

"If he is going to take the career ladder statewide and set up a new salary schedule ... then you're talking big dollars," Barnes said.

The teacher compensation issue forced its way to center stage earlier this month when more than 5,000 teachers marched on Raleigh to protest Martin's budget, which calls for delaying a 5.7 percent raise until April 1990 because of slow state revenue growth.

The day before the rally, Martin said he would submit a revised spending plan that would give teachers a 4.5 percent raise beginning in October or earlier. That plan calls for a one-year slowdown in implementation of the $800 million Basic Education Program to allow more spending on teacher pay.

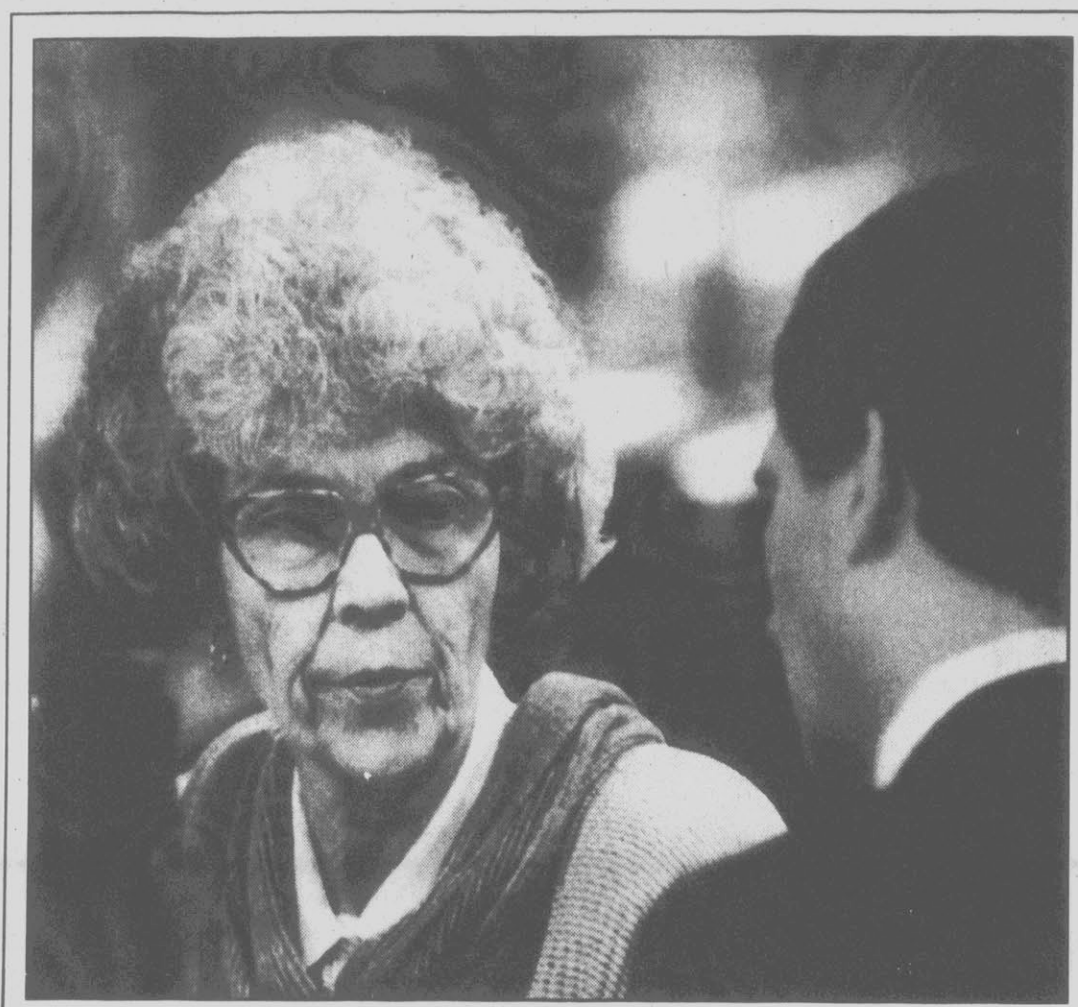

Martin said Tuesday he remains committed to a statewide career ladder, despite opposition from the North Carolina Association of Educators. He said he will suggest ways to make the program more flexible as recommended by the State Board of Education.

He said he has become more supportive of overhauling the teacher pay schedule, an NCAE priority.

Teachers say the schedule has been frozen for so long that veteran teachers make only a little more than newcomers, which hurts morale.

"It is worse than I ever thought it would be," Martin said. "I was able to see over the last two days how that actually works, and it doesn't. It is a horrible mess, and I'm going to submit a proposal to solve that."

Governor Backs 12-Year Highway Construction Plan

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The $8.6 billion, 12-year highway construction program pending in the General Assembly is "a phenomenal piece of work" that would give North Carolina's economy a big boost, Gov. Jim Martin says.

"It will strengthen our ability to bring manufacturing jobs into any area of the state," Martin said Tuesday. "It will strengthen the ability to get our goods to market. It will strengthen the ability of travelers and tourists ... to travel where they want to go in North Carolina."

Martin officially endorsed the package at a news conference, although he had said for months he expected to support the recommendations of the Highway Study Commission. He appointed five of the commission's 15 members and his administration worked with the panel in developing the plan.

It is "the boldest highway construction program in the history of North Carolina ... a phenomenal piece of work," Martin said. "It will help bring jobs to the people, it will help get the people to the jobs."

Democratic legislative leaders have said Martin's stamp of approval was crucial to the program's enactment. They said the General Assembly would not raise taxes over the Republican governor's opposition.

The package seeks an increase of 5.4 cents per gallon in the state motor fuels tax, including a 3-cent boost in the flat per-gallon rate and an increase from 3 percent to 7 percent in the tax at the wholesale level. It also would levy a 2 percent fee on automobile title transfers.

The governor was briefed on the study group's plan Tuesday morning at an Executive Mansion meeting with Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington, House Speaker Joe Mavretic, Senate President Pro Tem Henson Barnes, Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner and others.

The package is expected to be introduced in the House and Senate this week. It will be scrutinized by more than half a dozen committees and subcommittees, but sponsors say they will resist major changes that could endanger the coalition of support it enjoys.

Rep. John Church, D-Vance, chairman of the House Infrastructure Subcommittee on Highways, said he already had been approached by someone wanting to add a road project to the list of those promised funding under the study commission plan. "I said 'absolutely not,'" Church said.

"If we start tampering with it too much, it'll come unraveled," Infrastructure Committee Chairman Sam Hunt, D-Alamance, said.

Legislators and administration officials said they knew of no significant opposition to the program's major components, despite lingering questions about what combination of taxes and fees should be levied.

"I haven't heard from any opponents," Harrington said. "How can you be against God, motherhood and highways?" Gardner said in an interview he also backed the package, despite the aversion to higher taxes that conservative Republicans traditionally espouse.

"You're basically talking about a user's tax," Gardner said. "If we're going to have economic development in this state, you've got to have roads. That's the key to it."

The program would establish a trust fund that would pay for an "intra-state highway system" that would put 95 percent of the state's residents within 10 miles of at least one four-lane highway. It also would fund "loop" highways around major urban centers and pave all state-maintained secondary roads within 16 years.

One piece of unfinished business is developing an "equitable distribution formula" to ensure that every region of the state gets a fair share of the construction money.

Harrington is considering a plan that would combine the state's 14 highway divisions into seven regions to which money would be distributed, Martin said. "That's a good concept, one that I'm prepared to support," he said.

Some legislators have voiced reservations about the title transfer fee, saying it would hurt the poor and small car dealers.

Van Hecke, Hyde Reported Locked In Tight Race For UNC Board Seats

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Former state Democratic Chairman Jim Van Hecke and veteran Democratic fund-raiser Wallace Hyde are locked in a tight race for a seat on the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, lawmakers said.

Candidates for seats on the prestigious board appeared before legislative committees to ask for support and answer questions. The Senate will choose one female, one person of a minority race and two at-large members, while the House will elect three at-large members and one Republican. The election will be held Tuesday.

In the Senate, the most visible race is for the two at-large seats being sought by incumbent Walter Davis, Van Hecke and Hyde. A fourth candidate, Dorothy B. Lockey, is not mounting a serious campaign but was put in nomination because state law requires at least two candidates for each seat.

Davis, a Texas oilman with close ties to North Carolina who spends much of his time in Dare County, is a heavy favorite to retain his seat, according to Sen. Wendell Murphy, D-Duplin. Murphy is chairman of the Senate Higher Education Committee.

That leaves Hyde and Van Hecke in competition for the other at-large post. Both men have been making the rounds of senators' offices in recent days trying to line up votes.

"It's a horse race, but it's not over yet," Van Hecke said in an interview.

In remarks to the Senate committee, Hyde said he had served on the commission whose work resulted in establishment of the board of governors. He said that experience taught him the importance of treating all UNC campuses with equal respect.

"We must deal with all 16 fairly and help each grow in its own chosen field," said Hyde, of Raleigh.

He said he favored re-examining the tenure system and improving curriculum.

Panel Approves Lottery Proposal

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Efforts to bring a statewide lottery to North Carolina will likely meet more resistance as time goes on, the House sponsor says.

"I expect the debate will increase as we go up each step of the process," said Rep. David Redwine, D-Brunswick, after his bill received only muted opposition in the House Finance Subcommittee on Ways and Means Tuesday.

Redwine predicted the subcommittee would recommend the bill to the full Finance Committee, possibly by next week. The bill would let the voters decide in a statewide referendum whether to have a lottery.

Redwine's main argument for the lottery was two-fold: it would bring in an estimated $180 million to $200 million a year and it would eliminate the estimated $12 million a year that North Carolinians spend in Virginia playing that state's lottery.

"We could be using this money for our needs rather than seeing it exported to other states," he said.

Rep. Steve Wood, R-Guilford, raised most of the questions in the subcommittee. He was particularly worried about the placement of lottery outlets if the bill should be approved, saying that in other states, there has been a concentration in the poorest neighborhoods.

Redwine, however, said lottery commission would make such decisions. And he pointed out later that his bill would funnel money to the poor as well as to education and water and sewer needs.

"The argument from anti-lottery folks is that the poor are going to be the folks that play it and they should be using their money for something else," he said. "If you take their argument as the truth, then what my bill does is to send some of the money from the lottery back to those folks."

In fact, 25 percent of the proceeds would go to the poor, with another 25 percent aiding state sewer and water needs and 50 percent going to education.

Wood suggested that if Redwine's bill is approved along with another measure to legalize possession of out-of-state lottery tickets in North Carolina, people could keep playing in both states.

But Redwine countered, "I would expect ... that most people in North Carolina, if they could do it down the street, would rather do that than drive 10 or 15 miles to Virginia."

Wood also asked why Redwine's bill doesn't call for taxes on lottery winnings.

"If you take a chance, I guess you ought to reap the benefits of all the winnings," replied Redwine.

Court Says Officers Blameless

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Law enforcement officers cannot be held liable for the deaths of two Greensboro boys who were poisoned and then shot before the van in which they were riding exploded during a police chase, the state Court of Appeals said.

Tuesday's ruling stemmed from the 1985 deaths of murder suspect Fritz Klenner, his cousin, Susie Lynch, and Mrs. Lynch's two sons, John, 10, and Jim, 9.

The van exploded north of Greensboro in June 1985 as police were chasing Klenner, who was suspected of five slayings connected to a custody battle over the children.

Thomas J. Lynch, the boys' father, filed a wrongful death suit arguing that police were negligent in trying to arrest Klenner and their negligence led to the death of his sons. The suit was dismissed by a lower court and that ruling was upheld by the appeals court.

Plaintiff's argument that the children's presence required defendants to delay Klenner's arrest until the children were elsewhere is incompatible with the duty that the law has long placed on law enforcement personnel to make the safety of the public their first concern; for permitting dangerous criminal to go unapprehended lest particular individuals be injured or killed would inevitably and necessarily endanger the public at large, a policy that the law cannot tolerate, much less foster," Judge Eugene Phillips wrote in the three-judge panel's ruling.

Phillips quoted an earlier case, which held that "no one has a constitutional right to be protected by the state against being murdered by criminals or madmen."

ASU Students Say Condom Sales Valid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOONE, N.C. — Appalachian State University students hope their latest safe sex campaign — condom-dispensing machines in residence halls — will catch on this year at other campuses in the University of North Carolina system.

Since January, an outside vendor has supplied some 20 coin-operated machines to offer students convenient access to condoms, a leading AIDS prevention device. The ASU campus was the first in the 16-campus system to install the machines.

Gary Greene, ASU student body president, will offer his campus' approach Saturday to the University of North Carolina Association of Student Governments in Raleigh. He wants the body, meeting on the N.C. State University campus, to adopt a resolution supporting the placing of condom machines in all UNC system campus residence halls.

"We want to tell them how it was done and why they may want to consider doing it," Greene said. "We think the students want it."

With plans in hand, other campus leaders could then approach their campus administrators as Appalachian students did. Appalachian Chancellor John Thomas approved the machines last December.

"We want to send the resolution to UNC system President (C.D.) Spangler (Jr.) so all the other 15 campuses can consider it," Greene said.

Although health clinics on the UNC campuses have been distributing free condoms for years, ASU students thought the machines would make it easier and more convenient to get condoms from coin-operated machines.

"The second best way to prevent AIDS is with the condom," Greene said. "And we have to take this seriously. We have had one case on this campus and it is estimated that three of every 1,000 people in the UNC system may be carriers."

Smoke Detectors

KINSTON N.C. (AP) — Civic leaders in Kinston, hoping to give residents of a fire-plagued neighborhood an added measure of protection, say they plan to put smoke detectors in as many as 2,000 homes of the poor.

Their plan combines city labor with private funds to install — free of charge — smoke detectors inside homes scattered across southeast Kinston, according to Kinston Fire Chief Tony D. Kelly.

Arsonists have been blamed for about 10 of 14 fires that have pockmarked the area since Dec. 30.

Last week, a Kinston man died when fire heavily damaged a house that had been divided into apartments. Kelly said police and State Bureau of Investigation agents were handling that case but they have not yet determined the cause of the blaze.

Speakers

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Actress Eva Marie Saint, television producer Jeffrey Hayden, journalist Charlie Peters and visual artist Julia Demaree will be among the speakers featured during "Flashback: The '60s," the biennial fine arts festival at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Miss Saint, an academy award-winning actress, will speak in the Hanes Art Center auditorium on Sunday. Her movies from the 1960s include "On the Waterfront," Alfred Hitchcock's "North by Northwest," the comedy "The Russians are Coming, the Russians are Coming," and "Exodus."

Hayden, an award-winning producer and director who graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1946, will speak Monday at Gerald Hall. Peters is scheduled to speak March 1 at Gerrard Hall, and Ms. Demaree, a 1971 UNC graduate, will speak and give a workshop at Hanes Art Center on Feb. 28 and March 1.

Tapestries

DURHAM (AP) — Duke Chapel is offering a $500 reward for the return of three 55-year-old handwoven silk tapestries stolen from the back of the chapel's chancel area last November.

The Duke Chapel staff had hoped that Durham police would be able to recover the ornate red and gold tapestries which have adorned the walls of the chapel since the early 1930s.

As time passed, Mary Parkerson, the chapel director of development began looking into the possibility of having new tapestries crafted for the empty space behind the altar.

She found out that they would be practically impossible to replace because they were handcrafted from fine silk. They were made especially for the chapel.

Motion Granted

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge William H. Freeman has granted a murder defendant's motion to serve as his own defense lawyer in a trial in which prosecutors are seeking the death penalty.

Freeman instructed George Franklin Heatwole III, 31, at length about the seriousness of the charges before allowing the Peachtree, Ga., man's motion to represent himself. Heatwole is accused is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the February 1988 deaths of his stepmother, Alta Jane Hamilton Heatwole, 58, of Vass, and Edgar John Garrison, 40, of Fayetteville, a security guard at the Woodlake Country Club where Heatwole lived.

"I'm not able to find a case in North Carolina where a man represented himself on the death penalty," said Freeman in an interview after court Tuesday. "To my knowledge there has not been one."

Convention

GREENSBORO (AP) — A bipartisan study group has called for a state constitutional convention to consider at least 14 proposed amendments to the state's constitution pending in the General Assembly.

The Committee on Constitutional Integrity, whose members include political scientists, lawyers and former officeholders, voted to call for a constitutional convention "for the limited purpose of addressing division of authority and powers" in state government.

Witnesses Report Molestation Widespread On Reservations

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Child molesters look for jobs on Indian reservation schools because background checks are lax and there are no laws requiring officials to report suspected cases of sex abuse, an FBI agent contends.

David Small, supervisory special agent in Phoenix, told a special Senate committee Tuesday that molesters also seek teaching jobs on reservations because they "usually are in remote areas, making it easy to prey on children."

Earlier Tuesday, a former teacher testified in a video tape that he molested boys at the Cherokee Elementary School in western North Carolina for 14 years before being caught.

The teacher, Paul Wade Price, is serving a 10-year sentence at Butner Federal Correctional Institution after pleading guilty in 1986 to one count of child molestation. In the taped interview, he said he molested at least 25 boys, ages 8 to 12.

Congress in 1974 passed a law saying states would lose federal funds if they did not enact statutes making it a crime to withhold information about suspected child sex abuse in schools. But state law does not apply to Indian reservations, where BIA schools are totally federally financed. The federal government lacks such a law.

Child sex abuse on reservations is the topic of hearings this week by a special unit of the Senate Select Committee on Indian Affairs, which also has been looking into corruption in Indian contracting procedures and organized crime involvement in gaming operations on reservations.

After hearing from Price and two mothers whose sons were molested by him, the committee listened to eight witnesses from law enforcement agencies and the Indian Affairs bureau who all said the federal government should pass a law requiring that cases of suspected child sex abuse be reported.

Witnesses from the BIA said that despite a new policy requiring school personnel to report cases of sex abuse, the BIA does not get much information. William Mehojah, BIA branch chief for Indian elementary and secondary school programs, said no disciplinary action has ever been taken for failure to report.

Witnesses included Keneitha Haigler of Birdtown, N.C., the parent of an abused child, and Elizabeth Shiek of Bryson City, a psychologist at the Smoky Mountain Mental Health Clinic.

Robert Haley, general chairman of the Indian law enforcement section of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said investigation of child abuse cases are sometimes hampered by the refusal of tribes to let the children off the reservation to testify.

He said U.S. attorneys should be given the power to get the testimony.

Mehojah said many teachers have gone to work before background checks were complete because of paperwork delays.

Other testimony indicated that even when schools are warned about the history of a potential teacher, that teacher may get hired anyway.

Arthur Justice, dean of education at the University of South Carolina-Spartanburg, testified that he had been instrumental in removing Price as a seventh grade teacher in 1972 from another school and had warned the Cherokee school officials about him, but 14 years passed before Price was removed.

Ollie Locust, a teacher's aide at Cherokee elementary, said she saw Price fondling a boy in the hallway and told the school principal, but nothing was done.

Teacher Betty Brintnall and Ms. Locust said it was common knowledge around the school that Price had a penchant for young boys.

SBI Probe Finds 'No Wrongdoing'

RALEIGH — The State Bureau of Investigation has found no indication that Charles M. Shelton violated state law for his role in three road projects in Forsyth and Stokes counties, the Wake County district attorney said.

C. Colon Willoughby Jr., the prosecutor, said that a preliminary review of Shelton's position as a member of the N.C. Board of Transportation shows no sign of criminal wrongdoing in the $6.6 million in road projects, each of which is near property that Shelton owns.

"It looks to me like he was benefiting from the projects, but other people may have been the primary beneficiaries and his was secondary," Willoughby said of Shelton, a Winston-Salem developer.

"Based on that, I don't see that it warrants a criminal investigation."

Willoughby, whose jurisdiction includes state boards and agencies, had asked the SBI to review transportation records two weeks ago after questions were raised about Shelton's role in three projects.

State law forbids members of the Board of Transportation to participate in the awarding of any contracts in which they have a direct or indirect personal or financial interest.

Man Gets 35th DWI Conviction

DURHAM — A Raleigh man was sentenced to four years in prison after being found guilty of at least his 35th driving while impaired charge, but an anti-drunken driving group said the prison term — the maximum allowed by law — wasn't enough.

Otis Donald Wadford, 52, was sentenced Tuesday to two years for DWI and two years for driving while his license was permanently revoked by Durham County District Court by Judge Samuel Tate.

Tate also found Wadford guilty of obstructing police, transporting a liquor bottle with a broken seal, driving with no liability insurance and displaying a fictitious license tag. Wadford, who received no additional penalties for those offenses, was found "not responsible" for only one of numerous charges against him: driving left of center.

"It doesn't seem like a stiff sentence at all," Susan Teer, vice president of the Durham chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said. "He'll be out driving again ... I guess it'll take a crash to get him in jail longer than these puny sentences."

In sentencing Wadford to four years in prison, Tate recommended that he receive "intensive, ongoing treatment" for alcohol abuse while he is incarcerated. Tate denied a defense request to recommend work-release for Wadford.

Construction Worker Dies As House Collapses

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORVEN, N.C. — Just two days after sleet and snow blanketed most of the state, a series of possible tornadoes and severe thunderstorms swept across a 280-mile line of North Carolina, killing one and injuring more than a dozen.

A construction worker was killed and three others were injured when a house under construction near Lillington collapsed in the high winds Tuesday, authorities said.

Will Roger Arnold, 30, died of chest and abdomen injuries, said Robert Martin, administrator at Good Hope Hospital. His father and two other workers were injured in the accident.

Al Warlick, a spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said storms swept through 27 counties, injuring 14 people. He said 80 homes were damaged, and 21 of those homes were destroyed. It destroyed seven businesses and damaged two others, he said.

In Moore County, four people were injured when the winds hit mobile homes, authorities said.

But the National Weather Service said today it had not verified any of the reported tornadoes.

"There little doubt that there was some tornado activity," said Joe Pelissier, a meteorologist with the NWS office at Raleigh-Durham Airport. "But to say there was a tornado in Lee County and straight-line wind in Cumberland, it's just too early for that. All indications are there were some tornadoes that occurred."

He said the weather service would have to study damage at the sites to determine where tornadoes struck.

Tom Ditt, a spokesman for the state Division of Emergency Management, also said it wasn't clear where tornadoes struck. But he said possible tornadoes hit Moore, Harnett, Hoke, Anson, Montgomery, Johnston and Wayne counties.

The storms were caused by a warm front that moved inland from the coast Tuesday morning, bringing warm, moist air into eastern North Carolina.

Coastal temperatures were in the 60s, while inland temperatures were in the 30s and 40s. Shortly after 8 a.m., it was 39 degrees in Greensboro and 59 degrees in Raleigh, about 60 miles apart.

"Basically, the warm front became a focus for the thunderstorms to develop along," said meteorologist Michael E. Sabones of the National Weather Service station at Raleigh-Durham International Airport.

"It helped bring enough warm, moist air together to produce thunderstorms, essentially, east of Charlotte. It started developing in South Carolina, and moved into North Carolina in the Anson County area and built up into the northeast and swept across the state."

The first storm struck Anson County about 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Lt. Robert Usrey of the Anson County Sheriff's office said severe winds had torn the part of the roof from a building at Morven Elementary School nine miles south of Wadesboro. Some 227 students are enrolled in the school.

About mile from the Morven school, a cable television business owned by Fletcher Lee was destroyed. A 40-foot trailer was sitting atop two trucks and several other vehicles were pushed on their sides. Lee said a large shed built to house four cable trucks was destroyed. Cable, satellite dishes and large pieces of aluminum were strewn over a 200-yard area.

"I'm just happy it wasn't my home," Lee said. "You can't do anything about these things, but my wife was at home at the time and I'm glad she's all right."

Near the school, a fallen tree had smashed through the roof of a house and about a block away the storm ripped the tin roof off a service station.

"It happened so fast we didn't have time to huddle," said Ed Gatewood, owner of Ed's Exxon at the intersection of U.S. 52 and N.C. 145.

Directly across the street, Marcelle Brown — owner of the Morven Drive In restaurant — said her small restaurant was not touched. During the storm, she said, torrential rain obscured her vision of the shop only 75 feet from her home. "All I could see was things going that way," she said, pointing north. "Garbage cans, pieces of wood, signs, everything. It was like bullets. There was no time to get scared."

Tornado sightings were reported across the state in rapid succession as the storm system swept through. "Several trailers overturned in northwestern Moore County near Eagle Springs, Zions Grove," said a dispatcher in the Moore County sheriff's department said. "We've had trees and wires down in the northern part of the county near Robbins. Some trees were blown over near Vass and some trees and buildings are down between Carthage and Cameron."

The four injured were treated at Moore Regional Hospital in Pinehurst for minor injuries, said Gary Green, a hospital spokesman. "One man, one woman and two children, three from the same family."

Dispatcher Elaine Lear at the Anson County Sheriff's Department said two airplanes were blown over at the Anson County Airport.

In Richmond County, high winds tore half the roof off the Sandman Motel in Rockingham and knocked down several trees and power lines in the Cordova community, said Frank McKay, Richmond County Emergency Services coordinator.

Dispatcher Robert Godwin at the Johnston County Sheriff's Department said winds ripped the metal awnings off the White Swan Barbecue on U.S. 301 south of Smithfield. In the same area, part of a building was blown into the highway, but the road was cleared quickly, he said.

Carolina Power & Light Co. said 1,600 customers were without power just after the storm battered the state Tuesday afternoon. CP&L spokesman David McNeill said crews got power restored to most areas during the afternoon.

In Wayne County, an aluminum melting building at N.C. Salvage Co. Inc. off U.S. 117 south of Goldsboro sustained substantial damage as a tornado ripped steel girders and caused the roof to collapse. There were no reports of injuries.

The 80-by-160-foot building was valued at about $150,000, said Charles Daniels, owner of N.C. Salvage. He said employees were at lunch when the storm hit.

Billboard bent in half shows the effect of high winds

High Winds Smash Pitt Homes

another large tree was broken off 25 feet up its trunk. Also, some heavy item — probably part of a tree, Brown said — landed on the hood of his car and cut a sharp V-shaped dent more than a foot deep.

"The wind and everything picked up just once and went wild, because the lights went out on the corner (in the town of Bethel). That's what let you know then (that there was trouble)," Brown said late Tuesday evening as he walked around the scattered debris. "We came on out here, and we saw a fire truck come on out here, and we looked and we didn't see the trailer."

"I said, 'Where's the trailer, where's the barn?'"

"They were lucky to come out of there," he said, standing amidst chairs, hair curlers, cookie tins and swatches of pink insulation. "She said it blew the baby right out of her lap. She ran through the trailer and picked the baby up again. She said when it finally did stop they were out here somewhere."

Brown said his mother owned the trailer but rented the lot. While he said she had insurance, he did not know if the family had any place to go now that their home was demolished.

"I don't know. We've just gotten things under control so we could see what's going on, and they're all right. And I don't know (of a place to go). You got any ideas?" Brown said.

Ms. Zimmerman said anyone needing assistance should call the local Red Cross chapter at 752-4022 or 757-0270.

Another man in the Bethel area said he heard the whistle of the wind as it ripped the roof off a structure covering bulk barns. Sheets of metal and wooden beams landed on N.C. 11, but highway patrolmen began clearing the area within minutes, said Ashley Pettaway, 71, who lives beside the barns just south of Bethel.

"All I could hear was wind whistling. That's all I could hear. It lasted, I'd say, about five seconds. Then it was gone," he said. "I was scared to go to the window to look out. I knew I wasn't going out there."

Many Pitt County residents not hit by the wind were temporarily without power Tuesday afternoon.

"When that wind hit, out circuits were popping out like popcorn," said Haywood Outland, superintendent of the electric department for Greenville Utilities.

Tornado-like winds also cut through two other mobile homes — on a dirt road off the Old Creek Road behind Agri Supply Co. on the eastern bypass and at State Road 1700 near Cox Crossing southeast of Greenville.

"It won't a twister, but it had the train sound to it," said D.T. Jones of Greenville who was sitting in his truck on the eastern bypass when wind damaged a mobile home nearby. "The truck was just shaking ... The clouds were low, and they were just boiling. It sounded just like a train, too."

Caroline Edwards, who lives in a house about 50 yards from the mobile home that was hit off the Old Creek Road, said the wind shattered her back window.

"I didn't see it. I mean I felt it. I was in (the kitchen). It went quiet ... and it blew in this window," she said.

"And it came in the house, the winds came in the house. I ran and hopped in the bathtub, and the wind was carrying everything around in the kitchen. I had left my front door open, and it just blew through the front storm door. I think that's what saved most of the stuff in my house," she said. "I couldn't believe I was seeing it."

Lois Beaman, head cashier at Agri Supply on the eastern bypass, said wind blew in a glass window at the building, knocked a garage-type door of its rollers and scattered large fiberglass water barrels into fields behind the building.

"Most of the damage occurred outside," she said. "We had outside merchandise just flying around everywhere."

Alton Baldree of Route 2, Greenville, owned the mobile home on SR 1700 where his daughter, Kim Baldree, and a friend, Karen Tripp, lived. High winds tore the roof and a wall off the trailer, causing about $7,000 in damages, Baldree said. He said he could probably salvage about half of the items inside the home, and insurance should cover most of the losses.

His daughter left the trailer just before the wind hit, Baldree said. She was driving to his house located about a half-mile away just before 1 p.m., he said, and a neighbor phoned to tell him the trailer had been hit before she arrived.

"The neighbor right across the road here ... he was standing at the front door looking at it. He said he saw it come over here, said it looked like just a funnel," said Baldree, who moves mobile homes for a living. "It wasn't a big one, like a wind funnel ... It looked like a dust storm. It got right along here and lifted up just a little bit and just caught the top of (the trailer). When everything started flying toward his house, he started running then."

Real Thing Replaces Drill In Pitt Schools

during this time," Mrs. Manning said.

"I thought our students did just a beautiful job" during the drill, Richard Cutler, principal of Farmville Middle School, said. "They really took it very seriously and did not get very excited."

The students had participated in practice drills, but their brush-up on procedures was limited to Tuesday morning because the school was closed Monday due to a power shortage from the weekend ice storm, he said.

During the first period of the class Tuesday, the Severe Weather Awareness Week was discussed, Cutler said. "We talked about that early in the morning when things were still nice."

Althea Weathington, principal at W.H. Robinson School, said she was impressed with the reactions of the staff and students during the drill.

"We had to remove children from the serving line and eating places in the cafeteria so they knew there possibly could be danger," she said. But, the students remained calm.

"My custodians and my assistant and I went around and unplugged electrical (equipment). Even though the current was off we still did that," she said.

According to the Associated Press, the annual drills paid off for other schools in the state.

When a twister tore the roof off an Anson County elementary school Tuesday, teachers had already herded their pupils into hallways in the center of the building.

"We are tickled to know schools knew what to do," said Tom Ditt, public information officer for the state's division of emergency management.

"Mother Nature has a way of re-educating us to the threats," Ditt told The Associated Press.

Late Tuesday, officials were considering postponing today's drill until Friday. "We try not to hold a drill on a day with bad weather, when it could confuse people," Ditt said.

"This is a test, once a year, where we turn on everything we've got."

Radio and television stations, ham radio operators and state and local officials were to participate in the drill, which started with a phantom tornado watch about 9 a.m., followed by a tornado warning about an hour later. Schools across the state were invited to conduct drills, as were some businesses and industries.

The weather service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City issues watches for severe thunderstorms and tornadoes. Watches identify a broad geographic area with the potential for bad weather.

"Conditions are ripe," Ditt said. "People should stop and think, 'What will I do if the warning were issued?'"

The area weather service office issue warnings based on what they see on radar, combined with information from a network of informed weather spotters.

"A warning is when we feel this type of severe weather event is occurring or imminent," said Dennis M. Decker, warning and preparedness meteorologist for the weather service at Raleigh-Durham International Airport.

North Carolina normally has about a dozen tornadoes each year. But in 1988, 19 were reported, Decker told The Associated Press.

The prime tornado season is March through June, but twisters can — and do — strike at any time atmospheric conditions are right.

A tornado Nov. 28 left four people dead and an 84-mile path of destruction from Raleigh to Northampton County. It was the strongest in 1988. While the weather service did not issue any warnings for Raleigh, many people took precautionary measures because of the tremendous amount of lightning and thunder, Decker said.

The reality of tornado destruction hit the Tar Heel state in March 1984, when storms swept across the eastern part of the state and killed 44 people.

The 1984 storms killed nine people in Pitt County and injured 148. The storms left 92 houses and 88 mobile homes destroyed, with many sustaining major damage.

"I think there was a unique opportunity after the '84 outbreak when people were anxious to learn weather safety rules," Decker said. "When the 1988 tornado struck, many people acted correctly."

Sometimes straight-line thunderstorms with high winds are mistaken for tornadoes. "People don't realize winds can be in the 50- to 100-mile-per-hour range without it being a tornado," Decker said in the interview with the news service.

Across the state there are between 200 and 250 incidents of severe weather with high winds in a given year.

The current radar system cannot always detect a tornado within a line of thunderstorms. "The technology now is very subjective," Decker said. But in the early 1990s, a system that would provide more specific information should be installed.

The weather service relies on a network of weather spotters — including about 3,000 ham radio operators as well as police and fire officials — who can provide "ground truth" as to high winds and hail.

"What they are after is what they can't get from radar," said W. Reed Whitten, section manager for the American Radio Relay League.

About 75 operators from Moore County to Halifax County made reports Tuesday, as the storm developed, many calling in from their vehicles. "I was writing as fast as I could," said Christopher G. Lassiter, president of the N.C. State University Amateur Radio Club, who served as the network control.

According to The Associated Press, in case of severe weather, the National Weather Service will broadcast bulletins through several networks:

— The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration weather radio operates on a channel restricted for weather bulletins.

— The Emergency Broadcast Network of radio and television stations is divided into 13 areas across the state. The weather service contacts designated stations in each area.

— Police information networks and the National Warning System are used to alert local officials.

Split Porno Vote Prolongs Doubt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Supreme Court ruling permitting states to use anti-racketeering laws against adult bookstores could have a silver lining for supporters of freedom of expression, says an expert on First Amendment issues.

"I'm quite encouraged," said Bruce Ennis, a lawyer who has argued many high court cases involving freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, said states may use anti-racketeering laws to crack down on adult bookstores.

But they also barred states from employing such tough crime-fighting statutes to shut down the stores before trials are held to determine whether any of the material sold is obscene.

Left unanswered is whether the anti-racketeering laws permit confiscation of bookstore inventories — including non-pornographic material — after there is a judgment that the stores sold obscene items.

Ennis said he is heartened that the three dissenters Tuesday would prohibit such post-trial seizures. He said he is confident at least two other justices would join in barring such blanket confiscation of property when the high court addresses that issue.

"I think we'll pick up at least two votes," he said.

But law enforcement officials said Tuesday's court ruling upholding an Indiana anti-racketeering statute is a big victory for them.

"We won the war," said Stephen M. Sims, an Indiana prosecutor who conceded that bookstore owners won some "sub-battles."

Indiana Attorney General Linley E. Pearson said, "I think the real reason that you have the crackdown in these kinds of cases is because the people do not want adult bookstores in their neighborhood."

The law that was upheld Tuesday, Indiana's Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO), is patterned after a federal statute aimed primarily at organized crime. Most states have similar anti-racketeering laws, and in 19 states besides Indiana the law can be used to battle pornography.

A presidential commission on pornography, appointed during Ronald Reagan's administration, urged all states to take similar steps to limit the spread of sexually explicit material.

In a dissenting opinion, Justice John Paul Stevens said the Indiana law violates freedom of expression by allowing authorities to seize the contents of a bookstore and padlock its doors after a trial in which two books, films or magazines sold there have been judged obscene.

The law arms "prosecutors not with scalpels to excise obscene portions of an adult bookstore's inventory but with sickles to mow down the entire undesired use," Stevens said.

Noting that the court's majority did not decide whether post-trial seizures of property are constitutional, he said the justices should have resolved that issue by ruling that such confiscation of property in obscenity cases is unlawful.

Stevens was joined by Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall.

Indiana's RICO law provides for up to eight years in prison and a $10,000 fine for each offense.

A second related law provides civil penalties that permit authorities to seize property owned by anyone convicted of a RICO offense.

Agents Seize 800 Pounds Of Heroin

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — In the largest heroin raid in U.S. history, police and federal agents tracked $1 billion worth of the drug from Southeast Asia to two homes in New York City, where it was hidden inside hundreds of tires.

The 800-pound seizure made the notorious "French Connection" case seem modest by comparison, and showcased the rise of Asian drug smugglers, authorities said Tuesday.

U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney said "Operation White Mare" and some other recent cases provide "clear proof that the Chinese are responsible for 70 to 80 percent of the heroin that is smuggled into New York."

Since 1985, the supply of heroin from Asia has increased, and Asian drug rings have supplanted heroin operations run by traditional American organized crime families, the prosecutor said at a news conference held to announce the seizure.

The 800 pounds, with a street value estimated at more than $1 billion, "would supply 40 to 50 percent of all the heroin needed for some 200,000 addicts on an annual basis in New York City," he said.

Authorities say investigators set out 18 months ago to identify major Chinese heroin distribution and import networks operating in the metropolitan area. Working on a tip from an informant, an Asian-American FBI undercover agent infiltrated the ring.

The investigation culminated in raids Monday night and Tuesday morning, when 17 people were arrested and $3 million in cash was seized in addition to the drugs.

Another nine people were arrested in Hong Kong today, authorities said.

Officials said the 800 pounds originated — as much of the U.S. heroin supply does — in the "Golden Triangle," the rugged borderlands of Burma, Thailand and Laos.

From there the heroin was tracked to Hong Kong, where it was packed inside small hollow rubber tires designed for carts. The 264 boxes of tires were smuggled into Los Angeles and trucked to New York, where they were found in rented trucks outside two homes in Queens, according to James M. Fox, an assistant FBI director.

However, Hong Kong officials believed the heroin was shipped directly from Thailand to the United States, said Chris Cantley, acting chief staff officer of the police narcotics bureau in Hong Kong.

"Basically, in this whole affair, the organizational brains were in Hong Kong," he said.

Charges are expected to be filed Thursday against some or all of the nine Hong Kong Chinese arrested in a pre-dawn sweep today, Cantley said. He said U.S. authorities may seek extradition of some of the suspects.

Thirty-one people from New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, San Francisco, Hong Kong, Singapore, Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver were named in a criminal complaint filed with the U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

Of those, 14 were already jailed in Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto and Hong Kong, and the other 17 were arrested here during the three raids.

Consumer Prices Score Highest Jump In 2 Years

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices, propelled by higher costs for food, fuel and a variety of other items, rose 0.6 percent last month for the biggest jump in two years, the government reported today.

The rise in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index followed moderate increases of 0.3 percent in both November and December.

The January price increase, which is seasonally adjusted, would amount to an annual inflation rate of 7.2 percent if the pace for the first month of 1989 held throughout the year.

Higher prices for gasoline, poultry, fish and eggs, coupled with a sharp advance in tobacco prices, accounted for nearly all of the acceleration.

Consumer prices advanced 4.4 percent last year, the same rate as in 1987, but analysts are expecting the pace to quicken this year.

Worries about spiraling inflation intensified earlier this month after the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices shot up an unexpected 1 percent in January, largely due to rising food and energy prices.

Today's report showed that at the consumer level, food costs jumped 0.7 percent in January after rising 0.3 percent in December. Energy costs overall rose 0.8 percent after a 0.3 percent decline in December.

Excluding those two volatile categories, other consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in January.

Last month's advance left the price index at 121.1 percent of its 1982-84 base, meaning that a hypothetical selection of goods costing $100 during the base period would have cost $121.10 in January, 60 cents more than in December.

Unlike other figures in the report, the overall index is not adjusted for seasonal fluctuations.

January's 0.6 percent increase in consumer prices was the biggest jump since a 0.7 percent rise in January 1987.

One of the biggest increases came in costs for tobacco and other smoking products, which jumped 4.7 percent.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell today, weighed down by a government report that consumer prices rose in January at the highest rate in two years.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 7.14 to 2,319.29 in the first half-hour of trading.

Declining issues led advancers 9 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 337 higher, 604 lower and 514 unchanged.

Big Board volume came to 22.98 million as of 10 a.m. EST.

The Labor Department said the 0.6 percent rise in consumer prices in January was propelled by higher costs for gasoline, poultry, fish, eggs and tobacco. It followed moderate increases of 0.3 percent in both November and December.

DOE Choice Says Nuclear Weapons Are Top Priority

WASHINGTON — Retired Adm. James D. Watkins, the energy secretary-designate, told his Senate confirmation hearing today his first priority would be to seek major changes in the way the government runs its troubled nuclear weapons complex.

Watkins said the Energy Department's defense program "has not brought itself into line with nearly all other public and private nuclear ventures that have now capitalized on lessons learned" since the 1979 reactor accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania.

"There is an urgent need to effect a significant change in its deeply embedded 35-year culture," Watkins told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, adding that he would seek to make the department's nuclear operations better run and more open.

Watkins also said he would seek to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil and to promote greater use of renewable energy sources such as solar power.

Congressional debate focused in the final five months of the Reagan administration on the once-secret nuclear facilities was on determining how bad the safety, technical and managerial problems are at the 17-site complex.

Recently, however, the spotlight has begun moving toward the more complex and politically sensitive question of how to clean up an environmental mess that the government acknowledges was caused in part by too much focus on production goals.

The Energy Department's facilities develop, build and test nuclear warheads for the Pentagon.

Tar Heels Rip Nev.-Reno

Carolina Erases Early 12-3 Deficit For 109-86 Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina coach Dean Smith predicted that Nevada-Reno would give the fifth-ranked Tar Heels a difficult game, and he was half right.

Nevada-Reno gave North Carolina a difficult first half.

The Wolf Pack took a 12-3 lead in the first three minutes as all five starters scored. But North Carolina tied the score at 17 and went on to beat the Nevada-Reno 109-86 on Tuesday. The Tar Heels, 23-5, have won five straight.

"I was very concerned coming into this game because everyone was saying this was our Harvard or UNC-Asheville game, but you saw some talent out there for Nevada-Reno," Smith said. "I honestly didn't think it would be like that. We had too much inside strength."

Kevin Madden scored 21 points and J.R. Reid and Rick Fox added 19 each. The Tar Heels took the lead for good when Fox, who scored 15 of his points in the first half, made two free throws with 13:04 remaining.

North Carolina's lead grew to 36-21 midway through the half when the Wolf Pack, 14-10, threw away the ball eight times in a six-minute span and managed only one field goal.

"I was disappointed in our play in the first half," Smith said. "It seems we have one game every year where we come out and play for our scoring averages. But in the second half, we did a much better job."

Later in the half, Fox keyed a 10-0 spurt with six points, including back-to-back dunks, as the Tar Heels went ahead 46-27. The Wolf Pack closed to 16 points early in the second half after trailing 60-39 at halftime, but could pull no closer.

"The size factor obviously hurt us," Nevada-Reno coach Len Stevens said. "We are going against giants with a front line that is 6-3, 6-6 and 6-7. When you go against a mismatch like that, sometimes you can't negate size. But not when a team like Carolina has size and athletic ability.

"Our plan was to get certain shooters a certain amount of shots and we did that. The problem was that we did not get the percentage we needed to be in the game."

Nevada-Reno made 33 of 88 shots for 38 percent, and was 8-for-29 on 3-pointers.

Scott Williams scored 11 points for North Carolina. Steve Bucknall and King Rice scored 10 each.

Darryl Owens scored 28 points for Nevada-Reno and Gabriel Parizza 18.

Sparky One To Hold The Rope

By Rick Scoppe
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Johnny Wike goes way back with Sparky Woods — back to Carson-Newman when Woods played for him at the NAIA school.

Wike liked him then — and now.

Wike, now an assistant at Western Carolina, said Woods is still the same person he's always been — a rope holder.

"If you were going to be hanging out a 20-story building on a rope, he'd be the one you'd want holding the other end," Wike said, laughing. "I would let Sparky Woods hold the other end any time. It's not because he's so strong. It's because he wouldn't let go."

"Being a rope holder, that's a big job."

Woods faces an equally big task now as head coach at South Carolina. The school said Tuesday that Woods would succeed Joe Morrison, who died of a heart attack on Feb. 5. Wike said Woods will be up to the task.

"I don't think there's any question about that," he said. "I'm sure he can do the job."

Woods comes to South Carolina from Appalachian State, where in five years he built the Mountaineers into one of the best teams in not only the Southern Conference but I-AA football.

"Appalachian State's been the dominant team in our conference until this past year," Citadel coach Charlie Taaffe said. "He's done a great job. He's got a great record. He's done things right."

"He's run a classy program at Appalachian State, and I think Sparky will prove as he goes on that South Carolina made a good choice. But I don't think Sparky Woods has to prove anything. He's established himself."

Woods, 35, was successful at the

I-AA level: he compiled a 38-19-2 career record at the Boone, N.C., school and guided the Mountaineers to back-to-back conference titles. But he was 0-8-1 against Division I-A teams, the tie coming this past season against Wake Forest.

Southern Conference commissioner Dave Hart said Woods should not have any problems adjusting to the I-AA ranks.

"I think you've got to hire the person, not the name. I know guys at the I-AA level I wouldn't have in a minute," he said. "But I know people at I-AA and Division II who I'd hire in a minute."

The conference is considered one of the toughest in the I-AA ranks in the country. Since 1983, four league teams have advanced to the I-AA finals, with Furman winning the title this past season.

Two other conference coaches — Furman's Jimmy Satterfield and Marshall's George Champ — were also among the candidates in the running for the job at South Carolina.

"We're a training ground for the I-As," Hart said. "Sparky's paid his dues. He's worthy of this opportunity. I'm certain he'll justify his selection, but he doesn't have an easy task. But he's ready."

Taaffe said he gets "upset" when people question a I-AA coach's ability to coach at the I-AA level.

"The game's still the same obviously," he said. "I guess everything is in bigger dimensions — the outside pressures are greater, the demands on your time are more. We have that at our level, but just on a smaller dimension."

"But as far as the coaching aspect, I don't think there's that much that is different."

Wike agreed and predicted Woods would be successful at South Carolina.

"Football is football, especially at the level he's been at," Wike said during a telephone interview. "He's going to have better athletes, but he is going to be competing against better people."

"All they've got to do is give Sparky some time," Wike said. "He'll be patient, and the people need to be patient with him."

"He'll have a solid football team. But he is not going to take any short cuts."

Wike said Woods is more than just a good coach.

"He is a class individual," he said. "He had that written all over him the first time I met him. He's straight with you. If he says something, he is going to do that. You can count on him, count on what he says."

'Cats Want To Question Writer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The University of Kentucky wants to question a newspaper reporter about who leaked confidential information regarding the school's response to NCAA allegations against the basketball program.

The school's notice of intent to take a deposition from the reporter was made part of a suit filed in Fayette Circuit Court by the Lexington Herald-Leader and The (Louisville) Courier-Journal to make the response a public record, university spokesman Bernie Vonderheide said Tuesday.

The Courier-Journal reported Sunday that Kentucky's response indicated head basketball coach Eddie Sutton may have wanted a high school basketball coach "to give false and misleading information to the NCAA" about the transportation of Kentucky basketball players Eric Manuel and Sean Sutton to a college entrance exam in Lexington in June 1987.

The allegation concerning Sutton was not part of the NCAA's 18 allegations against the program, and Sutton has denied any improper conduct.

The story, written by Richard Wilson, quoted directly from Kentucky's response. The university will seek the deposition from Wilson about March 1, Vonderheide said.

Sutton declined to comment about the story Tuesday at practice.

The leak prompted two members of the university's board of trustees to call Monday for an investigation.

David Hawpe, editor of The Courier-Journal, on Tuesday said, "I'm surprised and disappointed that UK would pursue this. It appears to be an effort to intimidate and harass our reporter. If they want this information, why don't they ask the people who have the report? UK knows, or ought to know, that attempts to force our reporter to break the confidentiality of his sources would clearly violate Kentucky law and the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution."

Vonderheide said that the lawyers for Manuel, assistant Kentucky coach Dwane Casey, Lexington Lafayette High School basketball coach Donnie Harville and Sutton also have copies of at least parts of the response.

Vonderheide, however, said the attorneys would not be under restrictions facing the university to withhold the response from the public.

"They're pretty much on their own," he said. "But any person with the response could incur the same problems that the university is concerned about and that's privacy of the individuals named."

"There's no legal impediment to their doing what they want, but they could face the same liability."

Terry McBrayer, Eddie Sutton's attorney, had charged that a university official leaked part of the response in an effort to promote the firing of Sutton at the end of the season.

The university maintained Monday that it was not responsible for the leaks.

The only two people with copies of the response were questioned and assured the university's legal counsel that they had not released any portion of the document to the newspaper, Vonderheide said.

Kentucky's response to the 18 NCAA allegations of wrongdoing against its basketball program was completed earlier this month after a nine-month internal investigation.

Rampants Hold Off Hunt, 60-53

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Rose High School's Rampants took a big step toward earning an upper division finish in the Big East Conference Tuesday night, holding off last place Wilson Hunt for a 60-53 basketball victory.

The game was tight all the way to the end with Rose holding only a one-point lead inside a minute to go in the game.

But a couple of turnovers and some inopportune fouls by Hunt allowed the Rampants to ease away and take the seven point lead at the end.

"This score's not the way this game went," Hunt's Reggie Flythe said. "But it's been like this all year for us. We play good in spurts, but turnovers and fouls hurt us at the wrong time."

Hunt, with the loss, dropped to 2-10 in the conference and 4-16 overall.

For Rose, the win boosted the Rampants to 8-5 in the league and 15-7 overall. Depending on the outcome of other games — and some make-up games — Rose could finish as high as second in the league standings. That's important, not only in the conference tournament, but for a potential home seeding in the sectional tournament the next week.

Neither team was ever able to get much of a lead in the game, which saw 19 lead changes and nine ties. Hunt led by no more than three on any one occasion, while Rose held no more than a three-point lead going into the final period.

Hunt scored first, but Rose came back to take the lead at 4-2 and built a 9-6 advantage on a three-point play by Johnny Ebron. But Hunt scored six straight points to move into a 12-9 lead, two of the baskets by Danny Allen. Hunt maintained the lead the rest of the period, holding a 16-15 advantage.

Rose tied it up at 17-17 on a jumper by Maurice Hines, then took the lead on an Ebron baseline jumper, 19-17. A three-point basket by Donald Barnes put the Warriors back up, 22-21 and the Warriors again held on for a 25-23 halftime lead.

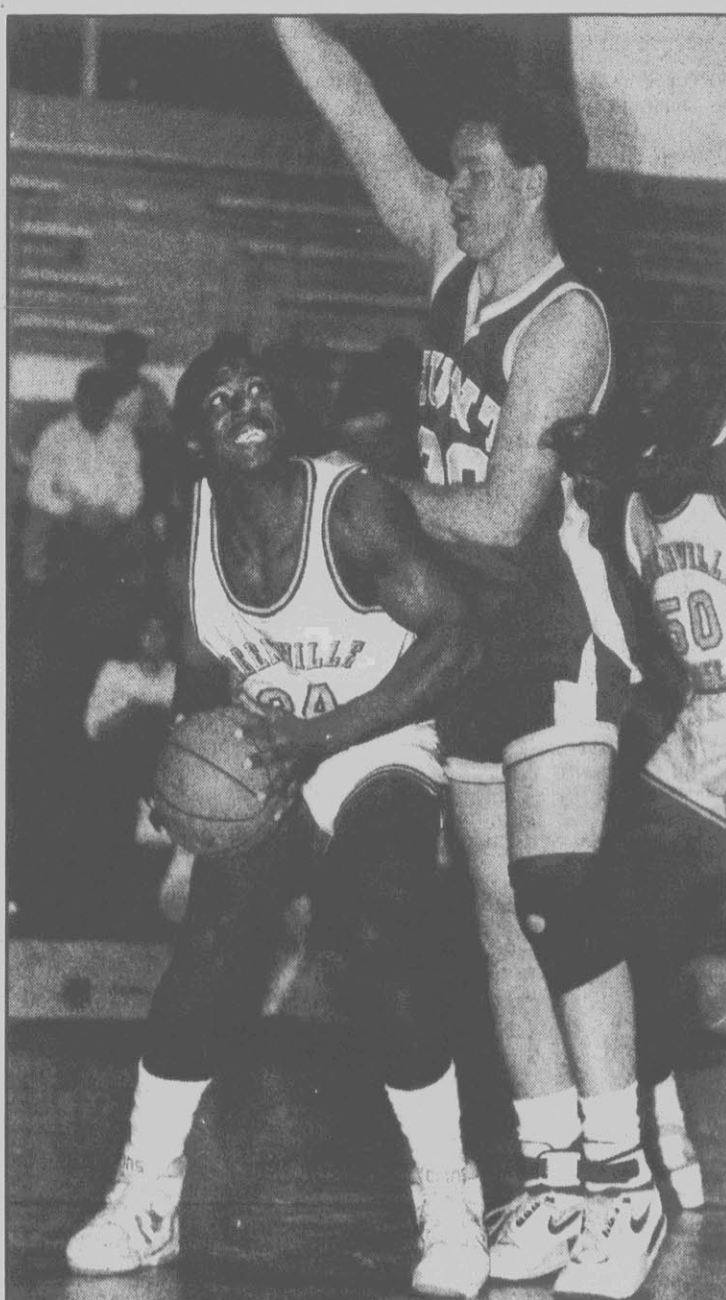

The third period was the busiest as the lead changed on nearly every score — a total of 11 changes. Rose finally gained an advantage on a turnaround jumper by Shawn Moore for a 39-38 lead. Hines then tossed back his own missed shot for a 41-38 lead and Rose held a 43-40 edge going into the final period.

Hunt got two baskets from Angelo Cox to open the final period, taking a 44-43 lead, but Hines scored on a steal and James Teel hit a three-pointer for a 48-44 lead — the biggest of the night.

Hunt made one last run at the Rampants, scoring on a free throw by Willie Parker, a basket by Barnes, who tossed back the missed second free throw, and a pair of charity shots by Parker for a 51-50 lead with 3:04 to play.

Rose, however, regained the lead on two free throws by Moore with 2:39 left and Jamie Brewington came up with a steal and a slam

Eastern Plains Games Postponed

All three Eastern Plains Conference basketball games were postponed because of bad weather conditions Tuesday and have been rescheduled for tonight.

Also washed out was a game between Trinity Christian and Wayne Christian. That game will not be rescheduled.

Platt Resigns Post As Guilford AD

GREENSBORO (AP) — Guilford College Athletic Director Alan Platt has resigned to accept a similar position at West Chester (Pa.) University.

Platt will remain at Guilford until he assumes the position at West Chester University on June 1.

"I am grateful for the opportunity that Guilford College afforded me," Platt said. "I think that our association with the college has been mutually beneficial.

"I believe that the athletic program has received a boost from an expanded and energized Quaker Club, a more involved faculty and staff and closer ties with the Greensboro community," he said.

Platt has been at Guilford since August 1987. He helped lift Quaker Club memberships from 85 to over 450 and his emphasis on academic standards help boost the average SAT scores of incoming recruits more than 110 points over the class of the previous year.

"Alan's philosophy of academic and athletic goals has been exemplary," said Guilford College president William Rogers. "We are very proud that one of his most important goals, of getting over 30 percent of student athletes over a 3.0 grade point average, has been met."

Hammonds Ready To Return To Action

ATLANTA (AP) — Senior forward Tom Hammonds, who has missed two Georgia Tech games with a knee injury, will play in the Yellow Jackets' game Wednesday against Virginia, the school announced.

The 6-foot-9 Hammonds, Georgia Tech's leading scorer with 21.5 points per game and rebounder at 7.8 a game, sat out losses to North Carolina State and Duke after suffering a slight tear of a ligament in his right knee Feb. 14.

Georgia Tech trainer Crandall Woodson said Hammonds practiced with the team Tuesday and did not experience any pain in the knee.

"He pushed off it and jumped off it well," Woodson said. "He went pretty close to game conditions and there were no problems."

Georgia Tech, 17-9 overall and 6-5 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, plays Virginia at home Wednesday night.

Cox Says Murphy Will Not Be Traded

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Dale Murphy apparently will not be traded this spring, Atlanta Braves General Manager Bobby Cox said Tuesday.

After a brief meeting with Murphy, Cox said: "Right now we're assuming that Dale will be here this year. Some clubs may be willing to make a deal, but there's nothing happening right now."

Despite the San Francisco Giants' recent expression of interest in Murphy, Braves Manager Russ Nixon also said he does not believe Murphy will be traded.

Dallas Deals Schrempf To Pacers

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks, still waiting for Adrian Dantley to end his holdout, traded 6-foot-10 forward Detlef Schrempf to the Indiana Pacers on Tuesday for 6-11 forward Herb Williams and a second-round draft pick. The Associated Press has learned.

The Mavericks would not confirm that the trade had been made.

Pacers spokesman Dale Ratermann said, "There may be something forthcoming but there's no trade yet. As of now, no, we have not had a trade."

However, a source close to the Mavs' organization told the AP that the deal was completed although official notification was being withheld until all the principals could be notified.

The 31-year-old Williams, a first-round draft pick in 1981, was averaging 12 points and eight rebounds a game.

Schrempf, 26, a first-round draft pick in 1985, was averaging nine points and four rebounds.

It was the second trade in a week for Dallas. The Mavs traded forward Mark Aguirre to Detroit for Dantley last week.

Despite a face-to-face meeting with owner Donald Carter in Washington, Dantley has missed two games at the cost of $30,487.80 salary.

Muncie Sentenced To 2½ Years In Prison

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Former Chargers football star Chuck Muncie was sentenced to 2½ years in federal prison for perjury and dealing cocaine as a judge ignored pleas for leniency from a former Chargers coach and others.

Defense attorney Cindy Aaron submitted eight letters, including one from ex-Chargers coach Don Coryell, supporting a request that Muncie be released to undergo drug rehabilitation.

U.S. District Judge J. Lawrence Irving sentenced Muncie to 18 months in prison on his Dec. 12 guilty plea to dealing two ounces of cocaine to an undercover federal agent, and then added another year for perjury.

The judge also imposed a period of three years' supervised release for Muncie after he gets out of prison, meaning that any law violation during that time could send him back to prison to serve the remainder of the three years.

Walker Released After His Arrest

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP) — Former Miami Dolphins cornerback Fulton L. Walker was released on $3,500 bond after being charged with possession of marijuana and eluding a police officer.

Walker, 30, of Martinsburg, W.Va., was arrested Monday afternoon when he allegedly tried to escape from a police officer who sought to give him a ticket for speeding on U.S. 48 in Allegany County, just east of Cumberland in Western Maryland.

Washington 50 West Craven 49

VANCEBORO — Washington High School scored the only point in overtime to nip West Craven, 50-49, in a Coastal Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

Washington held a slim 10-9 lead after one period, but West Craven reversed that for a 25-24 lead at intermission. Washington then forged into the lead, taking a 40-33 lead into the final quarter.

In that, the Eagles fought back and West Craven's Tony Jenkins tied it up with 43 seconds left, hitting a three-point basket. Both teams had chances after that and the Eagles missed two free throws with no time on the clock that could have won it.

In the overtime, both teams again missed their chances. Late in the game, Steve Holley stole the ball for the Pam Pack and Nico Hines was fouled with 20 seconds left, hitting the second of two free throws for a 50-49 lead. Washington then stole the ball to run out the clock and preserve the win.

Hines led Washington with 21 points while Holley added 15. Jenkins had 31 and Johnny Gatlin, 11, for the Eagles.

Washington is now 8-3 in conference play and 14-7 overall. West Craven goes to 3-8, 6-16. The Pam Pack winds up the regular season on Friday, hosting West Carteret.

dunk for a 54-51 lead with 2:10 left.

Parker scored from underneath with 53 seconds to play to cut the lead to one again, 54-53, but the Warriors never got another chance.

They suffered several turnovers and Rose got a basket from Hines on a drive down the lane and added free throws by Teel and Brewington to cap it.

Ebron led Rose with 15 while Moore had 12 and Hines added 10.

Barnes had 18 and Parker, 13, for Hunt.

"This puts us in great position," Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "Our juniors have been really playing well in practice and they played well tonight (Hines and Moore)."

Brewington said he feels this team, which travels to Elizabeth City Northeastern for its final regular season game on Friday, has a good chance to win the Big East Tournament.

"There's nobody in the conference we can't beat," he said. "Having to play only two games this week will help us. Everyone else has to play three (except Wilson Fike). So we just have to wait and see who knocks off who."

Wilson Hunt took advantage of a technical foul against Rose in the final seconds of the game to pull out a 41-37 decision in the girls' game.

Rose shot out to a 12-6 lead in the first quarter of the game, but Hunt came back to trim the lead to 23-19 by the end of the half. Hunt continued to nip at the Rampettes' heels, cutting the margin back to 29-28 as the final period opened.

With the game tied at 37-37, Hunt played for the final shot, holding the ball outside as the clock ticked down. Then, with 15 seconds to go, Rose was called for a technical foul for not pressing the action on defense. Malisha Woodard hit the first of the two free throws for a 38-37 lead.

Rose's Tina Smith stole the ball on the inbounds, but walked trying to gain control of the ball, turning it back. Jennifer Rowley was then fouled with seven seconds left, making the first for a 39-37 lead. She missed the second shot, but Woodard rebounded and was fouled with five seconds to go, making both shots for the final 41-37 margin.

Rowley led Hunt with 15 points while Jenny Stoneham had 19 and Tina Smith had 15 for Rose.

The Rose girls drops to 6-7 in the league, 8-11 overall. Hunt improves to 7-5, 9-11.

Morton Leads Seton Hall Past St. John's

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — As the season has progressed, so has John Morton's medical chart. It started early in the season with a badly sprained left ankle which still isn't 100 percent. That was followed by a cut on his left hand requiring 13 stitches earlier this month and finally a sprained tendon on his shooting hand, the right, last weekend. The injuries had limited Morton's contributions for No. 15 Seton Hall until Tuesday night when he shook them off and scored all 22 of his points in the second half to help the Pirates defeat St. John's 63-60. The victory assured Seton Hall, 22-5, of its first winning season in the Big East, now 9-5 with two games to go, and hurt St. John's chances of making the NCAA tournament. The Redmen are 14-10 overall and 5-8 in the league after dropping their second game this season to The Hall. In other games Tuesday involving ranked teams, New Orleans upset No. 12 Florida State 83-77 and No. 5 North Carolina crushed Nevada-Reno 109-86. "I was just fed up in the first half with my performance and decided I had to go out and play hard, play my game," Morton said. "I decided to go back to my old style, penetrating, dishing off, taking the shot. I was quicker than my man, so I felt I could get by him." Morton had come into the game having hit on just 13 of 39 shots in his past four games, and he was 13 for 43 after the first 20 minutes. Included in those four misses was a 15-footer he threw up while on a one-on-four break. The questionable attempt had Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo screaming at Morton. The words that most sideline observers heard were, "Don't shoot, and pass the ball." "Morton has had a sprained ankle, stitches in his hand and now a strained tendon," Carlesimo said. "Basically, he's shot the ball well all year, so it's tough to tell somebody not to shoot because they had a few tough games." The words that got Morton focused at halftime seemed to come from trainer John Levitt. "I think John has been pressing," Levitt said. "His shot hasn't been falling lately and he's felt the weight of the team. He had a long face at halftime and I just told him to relax and go out and have some fun, the way he used to." That's exactly what Morton did, relying on penetration to get some easy baskets and also open up his jumper. In the final 20 minutes, Morton hit two driving layups, three short jumpers, seven of nine foul shots and two longer shots, including a 3-pointer to give the Pirates a five-point lead with 11 seconds to go. "If that's a bad hand, thank God," St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca said when told of Morton's problems. Andrew Gaze, who added 20 points, supplied the go-ahead points by hitting two free throws with 2:17 to play to break the sixth and final tie of the half and give Seton Hall a 60-58 lead. Jayson Williams, who led the Redmen with 25 points, missed a short jumper on the next possession, but St. John's got the ball back when Malik Sealy blocked a Morton shot with 1:24 to play. Senior Matt Brust missed a 3-point shot with 54 seconds left and Seton Hall put the game away when Morton hit a 3-pointer from the right corner. Jason Buchanan scored for St. John's seven seconds later, but Seton Hall controlled the ball the rest of the way. Ramon Ramos added 15 points for Seton Hall. Robert Werdann had 10 points and Sealy nine for St. John's, which led by 11 in the early going. "I look at the stats and I say how the hell could we lose the ballgame?" Carnesecca said. "At the end of the season, I'll look back at this game and say: 'We should've won that one.'" The victory moved Seton Hall a half-game ahead of Syracuse in the battle for second place in the Big East.

New Orleans 83, Florida St. 77 Robert Hokett hit three 3-pointers in the final eight minutes and Tony Harris made four free throws in the last 40 seconds to lead New Orleans to its upset victory over Florida State. It was the third straight loss for the Seminoles, 19-5, and their second road loss of the season. New Orleans, 16-9, snapped a 67-67 tie and took the lead for good on Hokett's third 3-pointer of the half with 3:27 remaining. Florida State missed a chance to tie the score at 74 on a 3-point attempt before Harris and Willie Richardson hit free throws to close out the victory. Harris led New Orleans with 22 points, while George McCloud paced Florida State with 27.

Lady Pam Pack Tops West Craven

in some trouble," he said of the British challenger. Bruno earlier had expressed hope that Tyson's problems, especially his split from trainer Kevin Rooney, would take something away from the champion inside the ring. But Tyson said he felt less turmoil than he felt last June when he knocked Michael Spinks out only 91 seconds into their title fight. "It seems like there was more than there is now," he said. "Then, there were constant lies being fed to the press. Even people inside my camp were feeding things." Spinks, in Las Vegas for a civil trial brought against him and manager Butch Lewis by the Las Vegas Hilton, said Bruno should hope Tyson means it when he says he's without problems. "It just pumps him up," says Spinks, adding ruefully, "Ask me, I know." Spinks said he wasn't looking for Tyson to have an off-night against him because of his problems, but didn't expect that they would add to his fury inside the ring. "People just get him angrier by getting into his personal life," Spinks said. "Boxing is the best job in the world to let off steam. And people are in trouble when he (Tyson) wants to let off steam." Most think Bruno, a hulking Englishman who hasn't fought in 16 months, will indeed be in trouble when he meets Tyson in the scheduled 12-round fight, which will be televised by HBO. Oddsmakers have made the unbeaten champion a prohibitive 7 1/2-1 favorite to win the fight, and it's even money the scheduled 12-round fight won't last four rounds.

Tyson At Peace, Ready For Bruno

LAS VEGAS — Just days before his eighth title defense, Mike Tyson says he's at peace with himself — and ready to go to war with Frank Bruno. "Things are a lot clearer now," Tyson said Tuesday. "There are no problems. I'm very happy at this particular moment in my life." The heavyweight champion declared himself free of personal turmoil as he and promoter Don King met the press at the Las Vegas Hilton. He then issued a warning to Bruno, who he will meet Saturday night with his undisputed heavyweight title on the line. "I'm not going to give him any chance," the 22-year-old Tyson said. "This is where I dominate. I dominate in the ring. That's what I do best." Tyson, who had ballooned to about 260 pounds before beginning training for Bruno, appeared fit and in fine spirits during the impromptu news conference, laughing frequently and joking with the assembled reporters. Tyson spoke easily about his personal troubles, which included a Valentine's Day divorce from his wife, actress Robin Givens, his squabbles with his estranged manager Bill Cayton, and his manhandling of a television camera during a January visit to his ex-wife. "I made a lot mistakes," Tyson said. "But I'm not going to commit suicide. I'm not going to kill myself over it." Tyson said he weighed 217 or 218 pounds and planned to come in at 218 for the fight. "I'm not a hostile person, but he's

Celts Getting Paid Back For All Of Their Success

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's payback time for many of those teams who spent most of the decade being thrashed by the Boston Celtics.
 On Tuesday night, it was Seattle's turn as the SuperSonics swept the season series from the Celtics for the first time since 1981-82 with a 96-91 victory.
 "To beat Boston twice in the same season is a premium," said point guard Nate McMillan, who had 13 assists. "To beat them in the Garden was the biggest game for a lot of our careers."
 Seattle, which won 89-87 at Boston Garden on Feb. 5, held the Celtics to 19 points in the fourth quarter, while Derrick McKey scored 12 in the period, half of the Sonics' total.
 "The opportunities were there in the second half," said McKey, who was scoreless in the first half but finished with 19 points. "The shots weren't falling in the first half, so I made up my mind to take what the defense gave me in the second half."
 "Right now we're a part-time basketball team," Boston coach Jimmy Rodgers said. "In spurts we played very well, but not the whole game. What happened to us tonight has lost us a couple of games."
 In other NBA games, it was New York 120, Houston 115; Washington 123, Los Angeles Clippers 109; Milwaukee 116, Indiana 90, and Phoenix 139, Golden State 121.
 McKey's eight-foot jumper with 10 seconds left gave Seattle a 94-91 edge before Boston's Reggie Lewis missed a potential game-tying 3-point. Ellis' two free throws with two seconds remaining ended the scoring.

The Celtics tied the game for the final time at 86-all on a jump shot by Kevin McHale with 5:12 remaining, but a jump shot by McKey put Seattle ahead for good at 88-86 with 4:55 left.
 Boston center Robert Parish said the Celtics' poor rebounding, especially in the fourth quarter, was the difference in the game. Seattle had a 24-9 advantage in offensive rebounding in the game and outrebounded the Celtics 17-6 in the fourth quarter.
 "We didn't do a good job of boxing out and they got a lot of second shots," said Parish, who had 17 points and 13 rebounds, but only one in the final period. "They did a good job of sending five guys to the boards. When we did get to the rebound, it was like we had gloves on. Balls kept slipping out of our hands."
 Lewis led the Celtics with 23 points while McHale added 22.
 Knicks 120, Rockets 115
 New York won its 19th consecutive game at Madison Square Garden, one shy of the franchise record, despite 29 points and 25 rebounds by Houston's Akeem Olajuwon.
 The Rockets, whose 30-10 run in the second quarter wiped out an 18-point deficit, used a 20-9 spur in the fourth period to turn a 105-96 deficit into a 115-115 tie with 42 seconds left.
 But Patrick Ewing's basket and free throw with 23 seconds remaining broke the tie, and Olajuwon and Sleepy Floyd missed 3-pointers in the final seconds to preserve the outcome.
 The Knicks, now 22-1 at Madison Square Garden this season, got 23 points and 15 assists from Mark Jackson, 22 points from Trent Tucker and 20 points from Ewing. Otis Thorpe scored 24 points for Houston.

Suns 139, Warriors 121
 Tom Chambers scored 19 of his 37 points in the fourth quarter and Jeff Hornacek finished with a career-high 32 as the Suns beat Golden State for the sixth consecutive time at Phoenix.
 The Warriors cut a 12-point deficit to 105-101 by scoring the first eight points of the fourth period. Chambers took over in the final minutes and the Suns turned the game into a rout despite a career-high 36 points by Golden State's Terry Teagle.
 Mitch Richmond finished with 26 points and became the first Warriors rookie to reach 1,000 points since Joe Barry Carroll in 1980-81. Kevin Johnson had 22 points and Tyrone Corbin tied his season-high with 21 for the Suns.
 Bullets 123, Clippers 109
 Washington handed Los Angeles its sixth straight defeat and 25th in 26 games as Bernard King scored 33 points and Jeff Malone 27.
 The Clippers, who haven't won at the Capital Centre since December 1979, led 44-33 in the second quarter before a 20-8 spurt put the Bullets ahead 53-52.
 Bucks 116, Pacers 90
 Indiana lost its 11th straight game and 25th in 26 road outings this season as Paul Pressey keyed two second-half runs for Milwaukee.
 Pressey had four points and an assist as the Bucks began the second half with a 12-2 spurt for a 70-61 lead. The Pacers trailed only 82-76 entering the fourth quarter, but Pressey had five points during an 11-0 streak that clinched the victory.

Children Get Narcotic-Laced Lollipops Before Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — A health research group today asked the Food and Drug Administration to stop experiments in which children facing painful medical procedures are given lollipops laced with a powerful narcotic.

Public Citizen Health Research Group, in a letter to the FDA, said the drug in the form of a lollipop sends children "a dangerous message" about drugs being candy and is of "dubious clinical need or safety."

However, both the FDA and the Anesta Corp. of Salt Lake City, established by anesthesiologists and the University of Utah to test and develop an oral form of the drug, defended the study and discounted the potential for drug abuse.

been approved by the FDA as an injectable drug. In the FDA-approved study, it is mixed with sweeteners, mounted on a stick like a lollipop and administered orally to children before they are given general anesthesia or undergo a painful diagnostic procedure.

The FDA has not approved the oral form of the drug except for use in the controlled experiments. Anesta said the study was started 3 1/2 years ago and would continue for a year or two more before the company seeks approval to market oral fentanyl commercially.

Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the health research group, said: "Giving lollipops laced with a powerful narcotic to children who, in the words of one research group, 'visibly enjoyed the premedication experience,' as one might expect children sucking lollipops to do, is a major step in the wrong direction."

Wolfe also said approving oral use of the drug, which is far stronger than morphine and a favorite drug of abuse among anesthesiologists and "street" users, would likely increase drug abuse. "This situation would only worsen if the more easily-used lollipop dosage form were approved for marketing," he said.

Wolfe maintained that other medicines for sedating children before anesthesia are often preferable to narcotics, as well as some non-medical methods such as hypnosis, play therapy and having parents accompany the child.

However, William Moeller, president of Anesta, said the oral form of the drug has two main advantages over the use of premedication sedatives delivered by needle.

It reduces stress in children who are about to undergo anesthesia — instead of fearing an injection, the child simply sucks on the lollipop and dozes off and a calm patient is delivered for anesthesia. Also, the drug's analgesic properties reduce trauma in the patient by reducing the heart rate and blood pressure during the surgical or diagnostic procedure, he said.

Also, delivering the drug in a lollipop gives the doctor greater control over dosage, Moeller said, because if the drug is having a rapid effect the doctor can remove the rest of the dose before it is consumed.

Bush S&L Plan Goes Before Congress

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady delivered President Bush's plan for cleaning up the savings and loan industry to Congress today and asked that it be swiftly approved.

Noting the president's Feb. 9 challenge to Congress to pass the funding and reform package in 45 days, Brady said, "Once Congress acts, we will be ready to move to stem the hemorrhaging" by closing insolvent S&Ls that pay high interest rates to attract depositors.

"Fast action ... will help reduce the industry's cost of funds by getting the insolvent institutions resolved, out of the marketplace and out of the business of needlessly bidding up the cost of funds," Brady said in testimony prepared for the Senate Banking Committee. "... The time to act is now."

Bush's plan calls for spending $126 billion through 1999 to shut down about 350 insolvent institutions and meet commitments from last year's rescue of 205 others.

The president also wants changes in the regulatory structure, including one strongly opposed by the S&L industry: placing the S&L regulatory agency, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, in the Treasury Department.

Brady told the committee, "We do not intend to micro-manage the revitalized Federal Home Loan Bank System." But, he added, "Treasury oversight is essential to ensure that these problems do not occur again."

The Treasury secretary also outlined two new refinements of the plan.

S&L owners are being required to put up more of their own money, or capital, but Brady said they would have 10 years to take "goodwill" off their books. Goodwill is the value an institution has as a going concern, but many analysts say it shouldn't be included in capital because it disappears once an institution is liquidated.

Brady also said the maximum insurance premium for banks and S&Ls would be $3.50 per $1,000 in deposits. The administration previously said the maximum would be $7.50. Currently, banks pay 83 cents and S&Ls, $2.00.

Brady's testimony, the first hearing on the plan since Bush proposed it two weeks ago, came amid criticism that it provides too little money and is based on rosy economic projections.

The White House Office of Management and Budget released figures Tuesday showing that the administration is assuming long-term interest rates will fall 3 percent in two years to the lowest point in 20 years, and that savings and loan deposits will grow at an annual rate of 7.2 percent even as the government will be curbing high-flying, fast-growing institutions.

"These assumptions are highly optimistic, exceedingly optimistic," said Bert Ely, a financial institutions analyst in Alexandria, Va. "They're just not realistic."

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee was to hear from Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Chairman L. William Seidman, who under Bush's plan would oversee deposit insurance for both commercial banks and S&Ls.

Analysts are warning that if the administration's interest rate projections are off, as they believe, the government will have to spend hundreds of millions of dollars more per year to finance the rescue program.

Competition Heavy For Peace Monument

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Organizers predict more than 2,000 entries for design of a National Peace Garden — a monument dreamed up by a California teacher, approved by Congress and signed into law by former President Reagan.

The competition, open to any U.S. citizen or resident alien, offers a $20,000 prize for the selected design, with up to 12 other prizes.

The $4 million to $6 million cost is to be covered by public contributions and private grants that organizers hope to raise. They have so far collected about $150,000 in grants and are beginning an appeal for public contributions.

Washington architect Paul Spreiregen, principal adviser for the competition, said the monument is intended to stand "as a simple, universal, and beautiful reminder that peace — the absence of war and the personal freedom to develop the talents with which we each are created — is our highest priority."

Spreiregen directed competition for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, which attracted a record 1,422 entries and has become Washington's most-visited monument.

Christine Cestello, competition project manager, said project offices in Berkeley, Calif., and Washington already have received more than 500 inquiries about the competition. She said organizers hope to get about 5,000 designers registered and more than 2,000 entries.

Ms. Cestello said designs for the garden can use small or large plants, trees, waterways, structures, sculptures or anything the designer considers appropriate for expressing the national goal of peace.

The site, southeast of the Jefferson Memorial on Hains Point at the confluence of the Potomac and Anacostia rivers, is essentially clear except for a sculpture called "The Awakening," which Ms. Cestello said is on loan from the artist and will be moved. The sculpture depicts a giant-sized human form coming out of the earth.

The National Park Service designated the site for the memorial last July. The project was envisioned by California teacher Elizabeth Ratcliff, who pushed for congressional approval and is president and founder of the National Peace Garden Project.

"I just looked around and saw all the great monuments to the past and all the wars we've been involved in," Mrs. Ratcliff said. "It just suddenly came into my mind that what we needed in our capital is a living monument to peace."

Eight judges will select the winners. They include an art museum director, a sculptor, two landscape architects, two architects, and two authors.

In addition to the winning entry, judges will award $10,000 for second place, $5,000 for third place and up to 10 honorable mention awards of $500 each. Entrants have until May 31 to register and Aug. 31 to submit designs. The law says construction is to begin by June 30, 1992.

Literary Figures Join Public Outrage Over Iran's Call For Author's Death

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Outrage at Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's call for Moslems to kill novelist Salman Rushdie spread with authors, an international press institute and President Bush all declaring it an insult to the civilized world.

Today, in an indication of possible domestic objection to Khomeini's order, the 88-year-old fundamentalist patriarch vowed not to let the Islamic Republic's government "fall into the hands of the liberals."

Iranian leaders who have begun courting the West are "not totally with us in ideology," Tehran Radio quoted him as saying. Khomeini did not name names.

Literary figures including American authors Norman Mailer, Susan Sontag and William Styron expressed indignation at Khomeini's threat and at decisions not to publish or sell Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses."

"It isn't censorship we're taking about. It's fear and terrorism. It's the example that was set," Mailer said Tuesday night. "I think it was shameful for a major book chain to pull a book because of succumbing to threats."

Major U.S. bookselling chains such as Waldenbooks, B. Dalton and Barnes & Noble and booksellers in Japan have withdrawn the book from their shelves, citing threats.

That has left only independent bookstores to continue to stock the novel that many Moslems consider sacrilegious.

Despite the controversy, the book will debut as No. 2 on The New York Times Book Review's best-selling hardcover fiction list in the March 5 issue, the Times said today.

The paper ran a full-page ad today by the Association of American Publishers, the American Booksellers Association and the American Library Association that says: "Free people write books, free people publish books, free people buy books, free people read books."

Many Moslems say "The Satanic Verses" is sacrilegious because it casts doubt on central tenets of the Islamic faith. The book, for example, portrays the prophet Mohammed's wives as prostitutes and suggests he wrote the Koran, the holy book of Islam, rather than receiving it from God.

"I think the best form of protest is to patronize those who are selling the book and to remember the places that have failed to make accessible to us the works that are forbidden by terrorists," said historian Daniel Boorstin, a former Librarian of Congress. He and Mailer spoke on ABC-TV's Nightline show.

Publishers in France, West Germany, Greece and Turkey have canceled plans to publish the book, whose author was born a Moslem in India and is a naturalized British citizen. "The Satanic Verses" has been banned by at least seven countries, including India, Pakistan and Egypt.

No matter how offensive Rushdie's book may be to Moslems, "inciting murder and offering rewards for its perpetration are deeply offensive to the norms of civilized behavior," Bush said Tuesday.

Khomeini issued the death decree — which also applies to the book's publishers — eight days ago and Iranian clerics offered up to $5.2 million in bounties for Rushdie's death.

In London, the 2,000-member International Press Institute deplored the threats as "a gross violation of civilized standards on the right of life and the right to freedom of expression."

In Ottawa, Foreign Minister Joe Clark said Tuesday that Canada was withdrawing its charge d'affaires from Tehran for consultations.

Revenue Minister Otto Jelinek, who made the decision not to ban "The Satanic Verses" in Canada, said he was under police guard after receiving death threats.

Iran recalled its ambassadors from European Common Market nations on Tuesday in response to Monday's decision by the 12-member European Economic Community to withdraw their envoys from Tehran for consultations.

Sweden and Norway followed suit, recalling their ambassadors.

Bomb Hits City Hall In Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A bomb ripped through City Hall, injuring nine people and damaging about 40 percent of the three-story building, police said. One person was critically injured.

No one claimed responsibility for Tuesday night's attack and police said they did not have any suspects.

Police said the blast destroyed the city's computer, treasury and finance departments. Mayor Rodimiro Zelaya estimated the damage at $1.2 million.

Eight of the injured were women and the ninth, identified as Ivan Cabrera, was hospitalized in grave condition, police said.

City Hall worker Gloria Cruz, who received minor injuries, told reporters "I saw an explosion... and later I was in the hospital. I don't remember anything that happened."

It was the third bombing since Saturday in Honduras, which has experienced an increase in violence this year.

A bomb exploded Monday night one floor below offices of the Department of the Interior. No injuries were reported.

On Saturday, a crudely made explosive device thrown at the rear of a bus carrying U.S. servicemen north of Tegucigalpa injuring three soldiers and two Honduran civilians.

No one has claimed responsibility for either attack.

Last month, three prominent figures were killed in or near the capital.

Nicaraguan Contra rebel commander Manuel Rugama was shot to death by unidentified assailants as he drove alone on a road just outside Tegucigalpa and Carlos Diaz Lorenzana, attorney for alleged Honduran drug trafficker Juan Ramon Matta, was gunned down in his home.

Former Honduran Armed Forces Gustavo Alvarez Martinez was fatally shot by an unidentified group of gunmen outside his home on Jan. 25.

Clubs Celebrate 50 Years Of Service

Community Issues Move The Jaycees

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

"Service to humanity is the best work of life."
That phrase is the last line of the Jaycee Creed, and for half a century, the local chapter of that organization has been working to reflect that belief.

This week, the Greenville Jaycees are celebrating their 50th anniversary. On Saturday, present and past members of the leadership training organization will gather at a special anniversary celebration at the Greenville Country Club to renew acquaintances and remember past deeds and accomplishments.

And there certainly won't be a lack of conversation.

Members of few local groups can boast of the numerous achievements and amount of goodwill brought to the community as members of the group.

The Greenville Jaycees was originally formed in 1939 when two Jaycee members from Rocky Mount contacted David Mosier and asked if he would be interested in organizing a junior Chamber of Commerce in Greenville.

Mosier, who at the time was editor and publisher of the Greenville News Leader, spent about five weeks contacting friends and associates. He came up with a core group of 34 young men interested in participating in the new club.

The organization was intended at conception to be similar to the existing merchant's association, except it was to be geared toward young men, with 36 established as the maximum age limit, Mosier said.

Mosier was the group's first president, filling that office for two years.

The Jaycees at first met with some resistance. The existing merchants' organization felt a bit threatened by a group which would be competing for both manpower and the community's attention, Mosier said.

But by the end of that first year, the Jaycees had grown into an organization of 53 members and quickly became involved in projects geared toward the civic betterment of Greenville.

One of its first was the dedication of Guy Smith Stadium, which featured a baseball game with Duke University playing against Wake Forest.

Other early projects included the optioning of the land on which Pitt-Greenville Airport is located; sponsoring an air show to dedicate the airport; raising scholarship funds for East Carolina Teachers College, and sponsoring annual clean-up campaigns around town.

Mosier recalls membership dropped during the second World War, but picked up again in the early 50's.

During that period the Jaycees participated in several efforts which significantly affected local government.

At that time the Greenville Board of Education was appointed by the City Council, rather than being elected by the public. The board was appointed from a list of names submitted to the council by the existing board of education.

The Jaycees adopted a resolution and members campaigned on the local speaker's circuit, supporting a change to have an elected board.

Charles Horne, who served as Jaycees president in 1952-1953, recalls there was no opportunity for change of membership on the board as long as that policy existed.

"We took a real active interest in those kinds of affairs," he said. "It came from a sense that something needed to be done to make our community grow and prosper — there was a job to be done and we said 'let's do it.'"

Another governmental affairs project involving Jaycees was changing city government to a city manager-council arrangement. The city had been run by a board of aldermen.

The Jaycees brought speakers to Greenville to explain the pros and cons of the different government arrangements, then helped formulate a petition endorsing the eventual change.

"The city simply could not function any longer with the alderman form of government," Horne said.

"To change that required the kind of effort which took a lot of energy — the kind that young people have."

"It was young men simply standing up and saying 'there needs to be some changes made and doing the legwork to see that those changes were brought about,'" he said.

Another major community project for which the Jaycees contributed was helping bring Burroughs-Wellcome Company to Greenville from upstate New York.

Gene Prescott, who served as president in 1968-1969, recalls when Jaycees members obtained options on the parcel of land which turned out to be the tract on which the pharmaceutical company ultimately located.

"The Jaycees sold stock in Greenville Industries which helped raise the money to extend water and sewer service to that property," he said. "That eliminated the last obstacle that Burroughs Wellcome had in making their relocation decision."

The Greenville Jaycees goodwill often was expressed through sporting events designed as fund-raisers.

Starting in 1963, the local chapter participated in the annual High School All-Star Football Game for the benefit of the Boy's Home in Lake Waccamaw.

Lions Club Is A Servant Of The Needy

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The motto of the Lions Club is "We serve," and the Greenville Host Lions Club has been serving the community for 50 years. Since their inception on Feb. 27, 1939, the Greenville Lions have been working hard to make others' lives better.

They will celebrate their golden anniversary Monday at the Hilton Inn. George Brown and George Wilkerson, the club's only two charter members, and Withers Harvey, who joined about three months after the club was started, will be honored with 50-year lapel pins.

The club was originally sponsored by the Washington, N.C., Lions Club. The first meeting as an official Lions Club was held in the old Proctor Hotel on March 6, 1939. Louis Skinner was the first president of the organization and Jay Vance Perkins was the first secretary. The guest speaker was A.B. Bracey who spoke on a safety program.

For one-half of a century the Greenville Host Club has met on Monday nights to eat, talk and discuss ways of helping others.

"It's rare that an organization stayed together for 50 years," said Ed Garrison, current secretary. "That in itself is worth celebrating."

In 1939 the membership dues were $12 per quarter. This year they are $52 per quarter. But Wilkerson said there haven't been many other changes in the club over the last 50 years.

"The main change that I've noticed is the age of the members," he joked. "We used to be a young group, but we seem to have to have gotten older."

The Lions' main project over the years has been helping the visually impaired through financial help with doctor bills and items such as eyeglasses. Recently, the club has expanded to other causes, such as Lions Quest, a drug program for young people, and projects to help the hearing impaired. They even support Little League baseball.

The Lions also sponsor a glaucoma screening clinic at the Pitt County Health Department, and each Christmas, they present packages to 30 needy, visually impaired children.

The club also donates a substantial amount of money to various organizations. They support the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. They also give funds to East Carolina University to support a sign language program and they award a music scholarship each year.

The Lions work hard throughout the year to raise funds to support their causes. The biggest fund-raiser is the food booth at the Pitt County Fair each year. They also hold a broom sale, candy day and, of course, they take care of the gum ball machines, which, according to George Pollock, have been around since 1942.

Talk to any Lion and he will stress that the club is a service organization not a social organization.

Saturday Is Awareness Of Breast Cancer Day

By Rosalie Trotman
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Belinda Williams (not her real name) and several girlfriends planned a day out last year to participate in Awareness of Breast Cancer Day.

"We stopped for breakfast and I felt good about going," she said. "It was a free service and a fun day with my friends. We were each looking for reassurance."

The group arrived at the Hematology Oncology Clinic and were assigned different doctors. "I was to see Dr. Thomas Chaplinski. In the presence of a nurse, he examined my left breast and then moved to my right. He had shown me how to my own exam and as he led my fingers, he stopped at one spot and asked me if I felt that, and I did."

"It was a knot. It was hard and small, but it a knot nevertheless."

"He said it was about the size of a pea, and he felt it needed to be removed," she said. "Last year at my yearly exam, there was nothing — this year a knot."

Awareness of Breast Cancer Day returns on Saturday to the Hematology and Oncology Center of the East Carolina University School of Medicine. The day, sponsored by cancer specialists at the medical school and the Pitt County unit of the American Cancer Society, begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 5 p.m.

Women who attend will receive a reduced-rate certificate for a mammogram, along with the encouragement to use it if they fall within American Cancer Society guidelines.

"Woman may attend the breast screening without going for a mammogram, but cannot obtain a reduced rate," said Ann Appel, program coordinator.

Last year, ABCD provided breast screenings and educational programs using volunteers, who provided 188 hours of time during that day.

Its success, Mrs. Appel said, rested with volunteers who provided 188 hours of work: 20 nurses, 14 doctors, five technicians, 15 secretaries and others.

In 1988, ABCD attracted 160 Eastern N.C. women. Mrs. Williams was one of them.

After Dr. Chaplinski found the lump in her breast, he made an appointment for her to see her family physician the following Monday.

"In this room there were 'dummy' breasts for women to feel the different knots," she said. "I thought I was doing OK until the point where I had to feel the knots. All of a sudden, it just hit me that the knot I was feeling was just like the one I felt in my breast. I started to cry."

"Dr. Mary Raab came into the room and gave me wonderful support. I told her that I just couldn't wait until Monday to see if the knot was cancerous."

Dr. Raab talked to Mrs. Williams and assured her that she would call Dr. Jan Silverman for further examination. "All the people were so loving and caring while I just went to pieces. Dr. Silverman was there in no time and explained a fluid-taking procedure and that it wouldn't hurt."

Mrs. Williams went through the procedure, and Dr. Silverman returned to say he saw no indication of breast cancer. But he told her to have the lump checked further.

"My husband, family and friends were so supportive, but that weekend was the worst weekend of my life," she said. "All these thoughts kept coming to mind — 'If it is cancer and I should die, who would raise my children?' Oh, God, please don't let it be."

"No matter how hard I tried, tears kept coming to my eyes all weekend." Mrs. Williams went to Dr. Jack Wilkerson that Monday. He called Dr. Walter Pories and Mrs. Williams was scheduled for surgery after work. "Dr. Pories kept telling me that it didn't look like cancer," she said. "After surgery, he asked if I want to wait for the pathology report."

The news finally came and the most beautiful sounding work in our dictionary — benign. I remember hugging my husband and even Dr. Pories."

Stand By Your Man? Not Them

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Three firebrand sisters say two-timing men need this advice: Get lost. Stand by your man? Not these singing siblings.

The Burch Sisters are a trio of feisty Georgians who give the term southern belle a more combative connotation.

Discussing the shrinking violet lyrics that women in country music often sing, Cathy Burch says: "I'm sick to death of, 'You have left me so alone.' It's about time somebody said, 'Look buddy. I don't have to put up with this. There are too many fishes in the sea.'"

Mirroring this assertive attitude was their first single release last fall, "Everytime You Go Outside, I Hope It Rains."

The song is about a broken-hearted woman and her sentiments toward her former lover. Some of the lyrics:

"I'm not going to wish you all the best.
"I hope you'll be lonesome, stay worried and depressed."
In their current record, "I Don't Want to Mention Any Names," they make intimidating remarks at an aggressive woman eyeing their man. Among the lyrics:
"She's asked him to slow dance way too often.
"She's made suggestions I don't like at all."
Finally, they warn:
"If she don't back up, there's going to be some trouble."
This blunt approach comes from Cathy, Charlene and Cindy Burch, who offer fresh perspectives on men-women relationships in their first album, "New Fire."
"There are a lot of girl groups out there," says Charlene, who has worked as a licensed practical nurse. "The Forester Sisters are fine. Then you've got the McCarters. And the Judds. But there's room.

The Forester Sisters sing mostly about home and families. The McCarters are mostly about love and then ours is "look buddy, get out of my hair."
Their road to a recording contract is the grist for a country song itself. The three pooled hard-earned wages of $17,000 to go into a studio in Atlanta and make a demonstration record. Their producer brought it to the attention of Mercury-Polygram Records which signed them to a contract in late 1987.
"It was a nice Christmas present," said Cindy, at age 24 the youngest, who has worked as a radiology technician for five years.
She said she had little reservation about risking the money.
"I wanted to be able to say we did everything possible, we tried, so now we can get married and have our babies," she said.
Added Cathy, "If we hadn't tried, we'd have been 60 years old sitting on the front porch, wondering."

Grammy Awards Aired Tonight

By Richard De Atley
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, which annually bestows the industry's highest honor, has been reshaped over the past year to pay more attention to artists' needs and to educate the public about the music industry.

But while this year's Grammy awards show is a far cry from the days of Andy Williams, as it recognizes new formats of music including rap and heavy metal, academy president Michael Greene still wants to retain the integrity of contemporary American music.

"Our challenge has always been to remain true to why we are an academy and what the entire scope of music is all about, and not worry about the rest of it," he said.

The three-hour presentation of the 31st annual Grammy awards is scheduled for broadcast on from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. today on CBS-TV from the stage of the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. The show was telecast from Radio City Music Hall in New York last year. It will alternate between the two cities.

For the first time in Grammy history, a heavy metal group will perform. Metallica, whose sound is slightly more melodic than other hard-core metal groups, has anti-war themes running through its music. The group's popularity has soared without major radio airplay and few videos. Metallica has been nominated in the Hard Rock-Metal Vocal or Instrumental for ".... And Justice for All."

Another first on the telecast is a Latin music performance. However, the academy isn't presenting a mainstream Latin group or artist such as Tito Puente but pop artist Linda Ronstadt. She will sing "La Charreada," from her album, "Canciones de mi Padre," which has been nominated in the best Mexican-American performance category.

Meanwhile, some rap artists feel snubbed because the rap music award isn't set for the televised portion of the show. And Greene said the network is uneasy because he's delivering a short state-of-the-profession speech, a move destined to send home audiences running to the refrigerator for refills.

"CBS hates it, they truly hate it, when we get out and spend even two minutes (talking about issues)," Greene said. "But it would be a real failing on the part of the academy not to. What we are really about is the representation of the creative and technical community all the other 364 days of the year."

Greene, the first full-time president of NARAS, has been busy restructuring the 6,000-member organization since he arrived here last March. Included in his plans are a museum, an archive and research center, and a permanent office building for the academy.

But the primary product of the organization is the annual Grammy ceremony, which includes 76 categories this year, 17 of which will be presented during the broadcast produced by Pierre Cossette with Billy Crystal as host. The rest of the awards are handed out during a fast-paced non-televised ceremony before the show.

Top nominees for the best music of 1988 include singer-songwriter Tracy

Chapman with six nominations for her surprise debut album, and jazz stylist Bobby McFerrin with five nominations, most of them for his "Don't Worry, Be Happy" single and the "Simple Pleasures" LP from which it came.

Unlike the American Music Awards show, which was designed for television consumption and based on consumer popularity, the Grammys is an awards presentation that wound up being televised. It also carries prestige, and guarantees to any artist or group chosen to perform, exposure to millions of potential record buyers.

So rarely is everyone happy with how the show turns out. One year, jazz artists said they were snubbed and threatened to form their own academy. Classical and gospel artists also have complained of being shortchanged.

This year, with their foot just in the door, rap artists are already "dissing the Gram-dogs" (speaking badly about the academy) and threatening a "major chill-out" (boycott).

Two Sweaters For Him, Her

If one is good, two must be better. Identical his and her vests are featured today — the same design sized differently for men and women. Both have the deep texture and handsome good looks typical of Irish fisherman knits, long cherished by both sexes.

The woman's vest is offered in a luxurious wool and mohair blend yarn, and the man's is available in a soft, easy-care acrylic yarn.

Two types of cable stitch adorn the front and back of the V-neck cardigan, bordered with a decorative vinelike stitch. Each of the pattern stitch panels stands out against a background of reverse stockinette stitch. The bands are a twisted rib. Worst-weight yarn is recommended for this classic unisex fashion.

The gauge is 4½ stitches to the inch, and easy-to-follow directors are written for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36, 38 and 40 inches for women and 38, 42 and 46 inches for men.

To obtain directions for knitting His and Her Aran Vests, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-021989 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-021989 by sending a check or money order for $17.95 to the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of burgundy, light navy, teal and cream for the woman's and the man's is available in gray heather.

In case you don't know, reverse stockinette is no different from the usual version except that you knit on the wrong side and purl on the right side. But wouldn't you like to try some of the other pattern stitches used in the Aran vests?

First, there is the twisted rib. Cast on an even number of stitches and knit 1, purl 1 all across the row, working the purl stitches as usual, but knitting into the back of each knit stitch. Many experienced knitters always replace the usual knit 1, purl 1 ribbing with this version, as it is very attractive and has more elasticity.

Then there are the lacy, mock-cable panels, which are deceptively simple to work. To try this pattern, cast on 11 stitches and work a couple of rows of garter stitch as a foundation for this sample swatch. The garter stitch is not used in the actual pattern, but it will keep your lower edge from curling up.

Row 1: (right side) Purl 4 stitches; then with yarn held in back of your work, slip 1 stitch, knit 2 stitches; pass the slipped stitch off the needle over the two knitted stitches; purl 4. This will leave you with 10 stitches on the needle.

Row 2: Knit 4, purl 1, yarnover, purl 1, knit 4. The yarnover adds a stitch, so you are back to 11 stitches. To make a yarnover before a purl stitch, take the yarn over the top of your needle from front to back and return it to the front of your work before working the purl stitch.

Row 3: Purl 4, knit 3, purl 4.

Row 4: Knit 4, purl 3, knit 4. Repeat these 4 rows in sequence several times to see the effect. The actual pattern stitch is worked on 7 stitches with just 2 stitches before and after the mock cable, but I have added 2 extra stitches at each end to give you a better idea of the way this will look when worked on a larger piece. Using stitch markers to set off the pattern panels makes your knitting easier and much faster.

Her One-Night Stand Was Costly

Dear Abby: During my college days, I was a very popular girl — "promiscuous" would be more accurate. If you were to put a gun to my head and demand that I name every guy I'd ever gone to bed with, I couldn't do it.

I am now middle-aged, happily married and have children I am proud of. (I am avoiding specific numbers because I live in a small town where everybody reads Dear Abby, and I don't want to be identified.)

Not long ago, I went back to my hometown to spend a little time with one of my parents because the other parent was seriously ill. I saw some of my old friends, and among them was a fellow I had had a hot and heavy romance with before I married my husband. Well, I went to bed with him again. It wasn't a "love"

Dear Abby

thing — it just happened. I used a diaphragm, which protected me against pregnancy but not from sexually transmitted diseases.

Yesterday, I received a telephone call from this fellow informing me that his wife just told him that she had had a one-night stand with an IV drug abuser who informed her that he tested positive for AIDS. This means that I am at risk, and so is my husband!

Abby, please warn your readers that if they engage in extramarital sex to have the decency to protect themselves and their spouses. I wish I had. — Tears On My Pillow

Dear Tears: Your letter may save more lives than you know. I hope you are one of the lucky ones.

Readers: As I have pointed out in previous columns, sexually active people should always use a condom, but because condoms sometimes break or slip off, one should also use a jelly lubricant containing Non-Oxynol-9, which will kill both the sperm and the AIDS virus. The active ingredients in a lubricant are listed on the outside of every package, so read before you buy.

According to the American Foundation for AIDS Research, of which I am a director, the AIDS virus may lie dormant in the body for years before causing the disease, so take no chances. This column isn't exactly an upper, but it is one of the most important columns I've ever written. (Would I lie to you on George Washington's birthday?) Please pass this on to a sexually active friend.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Visiting Artists Are At Kennedy Center

RALEIGH — Visiting artists from across North Carolina are scheduled to appear Sunday evening in a special program at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The presentation will include over 40 performing and visual artists from the North Carolina Arts Council/Department of Community Colleges' Visiting Artist program.

Among the artists represented is Pitt Community College, Indian artist Ken Marsh. He will have two sculptures there. Chosen for showing by the N.C. Arts Council, one is of a hawk, while the other is of a legendary turtle, representing the beginning of Indian life forms.

Planned in conjunction with the Community College System's 25th anniversary celebration, "Night of the Arts" is sponsored by the American Express Company.

The first such state program in the nation, North Carolina's Visiting Artist program was initiated in 1971. It offers artists in all fields full-time, one and two-year residences at the state's 58 community colleges.

"These gifted artists are arts resources within our communities," said Mary Regan, the North Carolina Arts Council's executive director. "They conduct workshops, lectures, demonstrations, exhibitions, readings, concerts, and community group productions, and help enhance North Carolina's cultural and artistic climate. We're particularly proud that these artists have been invited to exhibit their talents at Kennedy Center."

Sunday's event is open by invitation only.

However, to give state people an opportunity to view the presentation, a dress rehearsal will be held at Wake Technical Community College in Raleigh at 7:30 p.m. Friday. It's free.

For more details, interested persons can call 733-5722.

Museum Sets Textile Class

KENLY — The Tobacco Museum of North Carolina will sponsor a seminar, "Home Care of Antique Textiles," on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the theater of the museum in Kenly.

The seminar will be presented by Anne M. Tyrell, textile conservator for the North Carolina Museum of History, Raleigh.

The seminar is designed for individuals who own or collect textiles of historic, artistic, or sentimental value. These may include quilts, embroidered items, samplers, old clothing items, laces and household linens.

The seminar will focus on cleaning, display, and storage of textiles found in the home.

To register for the free seminar, call 284-3431 by Friday.

Jaycees Take Pride In 50 Years Of Service To The Community

 tion was one of Boys Home All-Star Games, Prescott said.
 "During this period the Jaycees experienced lots of growth," Prescott said. "It took a lot of manpower to do that project and it involved soliciting the help of Jaycees chapters from all over the state."
 The Greenville Jaycees also took to the links in their fund-raising efforts, sponsoring a golf tournament.
 Julian Vainright, who served as president in 1967-1968, said the Jaycees were one of the groups instrumental in bringing the Boys Club to Pitt County.
 "After talking to people with the National Boys Clubs, we decided that Greenville needed a Boys Club very badly and so we pursued it," he said.
 Vainright said the Jaycees worked along with several other groups in the community to get the financial resources from private sources to make the Boys Club in Pitt County a reality.
 For a period of time the state Jaycees hosted the Miss North Carolina Pageant in Raleigh while the local chapters conducted the preliminary pageants on a local level.
 Other activities which the Jaycees participated in through the years included light bulb sales; assisting in the polio vaccination distribution, and raising money to buy cigarettes for American soldiers serving in Vietnam.

Besides participating in charitable functions, the Jaycees placed heavy emphasis on leadership training. Members were taught how to make presentations, how to speak in public, how to plan and organize, and how to motivate people to participate in projects.
 "I always viewed the Jaycees as a sort of two-part thing," Prescott said.
 "We did things that were for the overall good of the community, but the overall process was for the good of the participating members. That dual-purpose has been a theme that has made it sort of a unique, different and vibrant organization," Prescott said.
 David Gordon, who served as president from 1971-72, said the Jaycees provided him growth of his leadership abilities and a way to work within the community and help do charitable things he may not have otherwise been involved in.
 Gordon said that during his tenure as president, the Jaycees grew to an organization of approximately 150 members.

 "There was a very strong feeling of enthusiasm that existed with the group at that time," he said. "It seems like we were always involved in doing something."
 "I spent about twice as much time with the Jaycees as I did with my job. There were a lot of guys like that," he said.

Gordon remembers the Jay-C-Ettes, an extension of the organization primarily for women, was also very successful during that period.

The Jaycees suffered a setback in the early 1980s when their image was tarnished as a result of a widely publicized scandal.

Michael Joyner, who was president in 1980-1981, recalls that the state organization, in an effort to pad the membership numbers, inappropriately borrowed funds which were used as dues for fictional members.
 Because the money was derived from the sale of jelly, the scandal became known as "Jamscam."
 "There was a real sense of disappointment that we had some people who let their priorities get so misplaced," Joyner remembers.
 Membership in Jaycees chapters throughout the state subsequently fell.

"It was an incident which took a long time for the Jaycees to overcome, although we had a lot of good support from the local community in light of that," he said.

The Jaycees were to rebound from the negative public relations while the Greenville chapter in the last few years has grown in size and its influence in the community.

Annually the local chapter recognizes outstanding members of the community who have made contributions and volunteered efforts beyond that of the average person at the Greenville Jaycees Distinguished Service Awards Banquet.

They also honor five local citizens for their service to the community at the chapter's Community Awards and Spouse Appreciation Night.

Current President Michie Faulconer says the Jaycees still maintain their commitment to individual leadership training, conducting personal programs on time management, handling stress, and financial management — all the while acting in a support role for local human service organizations and national charities.

"We're particularly active in children's and family health organizations," he said.

Faulconer said that through a variety of Jaycee fund-raising projects, including the Fourth of July celebration, the Jaycees Haunted House and the Fairy Tale Theater, the organization targets several worthwhile charities to assist.

That list includes the Duke Cancer Center, the Boys Home and The Jaycee Burn center at Chapel Hill, which Faulconer describes as "Probably one of the few state-of-the-art burn centers on the East Coast."

While the Jaycees are an organization very steep in tradition, Faulconer says the current group of approximately 60 members has new ideas and a fresh attitude.

"We are a new, young and aggressive group. There's no question we're going to play a vital role in civic and national affairs. As long as there are social ills, there will be Jaycees out there to be part of the solution," he said.

Another change — The Greenville Jaycees have had the first women enter its ranks this year, he added.

"The Jaycees of today are the community leaders of tomorrow," commented the Greenville Jaycees' first President Dave Mosier on the chapter's 50th anniversary. "That was the basic concept then and it still holds true today."

Lions

 "I enjoy the fellowship," said Henry VanSant, club president, "but helping others is what it's all about."
 The colors of the Lions Club are purple and gold. To the Lions, purple represents loyalty to country, friends, one's self and the integrity of mind and heart. It is the color of strength, courage and dedication to a cause. Gold represents sincerity of purpose, liberality in judgment, purity in life and generosity in mind, heart and purse toward mankind.
 All of the members recognize the fact that young people seem to be uninterested in the Lions Club or any other service organization. O.E. Dowd, a former district governor, said that the club once had about 85 members. The Host Club sponsored two other local Lions Clubs, which cut their own membership a bit, but Dowd said the membership should have built up over the years.
 Instead, he pointed out, the membership has remained fairly constant.
 Officially known as "The International Association of Lions Clubs," the organization is the world's largest service group. There are Lions Clubs in 162 countries, with a total membership of more than 13.5 million.

The Greenville Host Lions Club has had four district governors: David, 1950-1951; Larry Averett, 1962-1963; Charles Waller, 1976-1977; and Pollock, 1986-1987. The district governors presided over 51 counties in North Carolina.

Being district governor provides a great opportunity to see how other clubs function. Pollock said that he has visited Lions Clubs all over the United States, in England, Korea, Canada and Taiwan. "The clubs everywhere accept you with open arms," he said. "The goals are the same. It transcends geographical and political boundaries."

Dowd has attended a meeting in Mexico City at the largest Lions Club in the World. It has more than 20 members.

Howard Stallings, a former district governor and council chairman, is scheduled to be the speaker at the anniversary banquet Monday, Wallace West of Wilmington, a former international president, will also speak. Harvey said they are expecting about 100 people to attend. The two charter members as well as the Washington Lions Club will receive plaques.

The Lions will continue to work hard in their mission of helping others. "We have reached the conclusion that life has been good for us," said Garrison, "and we feel an obligation to give back to those who are less fortunate." Garrison said that the feeling is not unique to the Lions but is the same in all other service organizations. "Any person who is a Lion will eventually make a difference," he said.

Researchers Say It Is OK To Count On Fingers

In Fact, They Say, Teachers Should Help

By Cassandra Burrell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH — Schoolteachers have scolded children for counting with their fingers for decades, but some researchers say finger-counting can keep good students good and help not-so-good students become better.

Robert Siegler and Dennis Kerkman, Carnegie Mellon University psychology professors, say their studies show there's nothing wrong with finger-counting, and teachers probably should show their students how to do it correctly.

"They're going to do it anyway. Every teacher we've talked about this with has told us that telling children not to use their fingers doesn't work... We think children are right to do this because if you don't know the answer very well, then it's better to be right than to be wrong," Siegler said.

Good students rely on their memories more than not-so-good students or perfectionists to solve math and reading problems, according to a study of 80 children at an elementary school in suburban Monroeville.

When they couldn't remember an answer good students turn to backup methods, including sounding out words, using a dictionary, counting up from a number to add or down from a number to subtract — or using their fingers. Perfectionists used backup methods even when they could remember the answer, frequently taking longer to solve problems as a result, Siegler and Kerkman discovered.

Not-so-good students gave the most incorrect answers, as expected, but also displayed poor finger-counting skills. Poor students may do poor work because they are bad at backup strategies, including finger-counting, Siegler said.

"It's inefficient to be wrong, because you don't learn from it. If you do a problem and generate a wrong answer in arithmetic, there's nothing much to be learned. All that can happen is that you're going to connect that wrong answer to a problem, and that will harm the process of learning the right ones.

"The good students are the most efficient of the groups because they are able to proceed accurately and quickly. That's more efficient than performing accurately but slowly or inaccurately," Siegler said. "Perfectionists have to be very sure that an answer or data retrieved from memory is correct before they'll actually state it."

Siegler has not studied why perfectionists don't have as much trust in their memories, but said anxiety may be a factor. There's nothing wrong with being a perfectionist, however.

"There are a lot of good purposes to which it can be put. These children are doing well in school — their achievement test scores were very good and their IQ test scores were very high," he said. "Really, being a perfectionist and being a good student are two different ways of being smart." For the study, researchers videotaped 6- and 7-year-old students solving arithmetic and reading problems outside their regular classrooms. They also asked students which methods they used.

Most of the students were white, but a study of 80 black children in Pittsburgh late last year yielded similar results, Siegler said. "Very similar groups also emerged in that group. We found perfectionists, good students, and not-so-good students. These groups were not unique to the particular middle-class or upper-middle-class population that we originally studied."

The children in Pittsburgh did a little poorer on the achievement tests overall, scoring about 10 percent behind the first group, he said. "I have to caution that the tests weren't the same and you never know whether that makes a difference. There were differences, but not huge ones."

The minority students generally possessed less basic factual knowledge than the predominantly white group, however, Siegler said. "It's impossible to say whose fault it is, but it does indicate that the way to go in teaching these children is to work on their speed and accuracy of retrieval of facts."

Siegler hopes to develop ways to teach not-so-good students how to use backup strategies and to determine whether this kind of teaching can help them learn more quickly. He said he is convinced it's OK to count on your fingers.

"Teachers often discourage children from counting on their fingers and this is probably, particularly for not-so-good students, a very bad piece of advice."

Opening lead: King of ♦
 We first encountered this theme in a hand declared by one of the world's great players, Ira Rubin of Paramus, N.J. He made his contract. See if you can do the same, even looking at all four hands.

Six hearts can be reached on a straight power auction such as the above. When North shows four-card heart support and a hand worth 13-15 points, South has enough to jump to slam because he has first or second-round control of all suits and a hand just a little short of a demand bid.

West led the king of diamonds, and the first impression of the possibilities is that the slam depends either on bringing down the queen of hearts or, if her majesty does not drop, getting a 3-3 club break or felling the jack of clubs in the short-trump hand. So declarer took his ace of diamonds and cashed the ace of trumps, to learn the bad news—West held all four missing trumps.

Now declarer needed to get rid of both diamonds before losing a trump trick. One would go on a high spade, and the other would have to go on the fourth round of clubs. However, a 3-3 club break would no longer do—West would ruff the fourth club and still have the queen of hearts for the setting trick.

The only way declarer could accomplish his goal is if West started with specifically four clubs and three spades. Declarer cashed the queen and king of clubs in case East started with a doubleton jack. When that chance failed to materialize, declarer boldly finessed the ten. When East showed out, South's card-reading was rewarded. He got rid of both losing diamonds as West followed helplessly, then surrendered a trick to the queen of hearts. His three remaining trumps scored the last three tricks.

Animals

By Nicky Phillips

Bears are big and boisterous when walking in the woods. Deer are gifted with sight, sense and smell. Rabbits are fast, furry and hard to find creatures. Squirrels are swift tree-swinging squeelers and Quail are quiet and quite swift critters.

The Snowman

By Paul Patrone

Paul made a big snowman. He drew a mouth on it. His eyes and buttons were coal. His nose was a peach. Paul went inside for the night.

During the night, the snowman came to life. In the morning, Paul met the snowman. They played all day.

Paul Patrone, 5, a student at Third Street School receives special mention.

How To Make A Snowman

If it snows you go out and roll a big ball of snow. Roll another one and put it on top. You put a carrot on for the nose. You go and get some charcoal for the mouth and buttons. You put a hat on it. Then put a broom in his hand. I hope the sun doesn't come out. He will melt and then we wouldn't have a snowman.

First, you'll get dressed. Then you'll have to hope it will snow. Then you go outside and start to do your snowman. First, you roll up some snow and then you do it again and again and again until you have three sizes.

You are supposed to have sizes. The sizes are big, medium and little. Then get ten pieces of black coal for his eyes and his buttons and his mouth. Get a carrot for his nose and you'll need a pipe. You have to find four sticks for his legs and arms and hope the sun does not come out.

Health and Human Services

The Department of Health and Human Services is a part of the executive branch of government. The director or secretary is 12th in line to serve as president of the United States. The secretary of the department is appointed by the president but must be approved by the Senate. The secretary of Health and Human Services is also a member of the president's Cabinet. The department was established in 1953 and at that time included education as part of its area of concern. Education became a separate department in 1979.

Today the Department of Health and Human Services has various responsibilities. Included are disease prevention, research, smoking and health, and international health. Included under its department is the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) which enforces safety laws for consumers concerning pure and safe drugs. In addition, the FDA watches for truthful labeling of drugs, cosmetics and food. It also inspects the production and shipping of all of these.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta work as part of the Health and Human Services Department to prevent the spread of contagious diseases. Other parts of the department are the Social Security Administration, the Head Start Program for children and a section which handles the prevention of alcoholism and drug addiction.

The health insurance programs called Medicare for those over 65 years old and Medicaid for the disadvantaged are also parts of the Health and Human Services Department.

Goodbye Jelly Beans, Hello Pork Skins

Greensboro Firm Wants Bush To Buy Its Skins

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — Now that George Bush has made it safe for pork rind lovers to come out of the closet, a North Carolina company wants to be the skin of choice in the White House.

"Pork rinds have a new upscale image thanks to President Bush," said Craig Bair, a co-owner of Carolina Fine Snacks. "People who used to turn their noses up at the very thought of eating pork skins are now giving them a try."

At the height of the 1988 presidential campaign, Bush tried to dispel a perceived wimp image by telling reporters his favorite munchie was pork skins with a dash of Tabasco sauce.

"I like pork rinds, but that doesn't fit the mold," candidate Bush said back in August.

It didn't take long for Bair's company to capitalize on the Republican nominee's penchant for the Southern-fried snack food.

Working together with Goodmark Foods of Raleigh, Carolina Fine Snacks shipped 13,000 bags of "Grand Old Porkrinds" to the GOP convention in New Orleans.

Ronald Reagan had his jelly beans. Jimmy Carter had his peanuts. Now Carolina Fine Snacks is hoping Bush will do the same for the once lowly fried pork rind.

"There's always been a lot of closet pork rind eaters," Bair said as he showed a visitor how the snacks are made at the company's plant in Greensboro. "It took an Ivy Leaguer to tell them it was safe to come out."

After the election, Bair shipped two crates of pork rinds to the White House. A thank you letter from the new president arrived several weeks later.

"We'll keep him supplied," Bair said. "I just hope that's our pork skins in that jar on the president's desk."

Pork skins are actually the dehydrated skins of the pig, which

The Associated Press

Blair, sampling his 'Porkins,' says he'll stock the White House during Bush's administration are cooked in oil. When the pieces come out of the fryer they expand rapidly and pop.

Each ounce of pork rinds contains about 160 calories. Unlike other munchie delicacies like potato chips and pretzels, pork rinds are high in protein. But they also contain fat, cholesterol and salt.

"The thing that's different about them is that pork rinds are very filling," Bair said. "They bulk up in the stomach."

Pork skins have always been in demand south of the Mason-Dixon line, where about three out of ever four pork skin lovers reside.

Carolina Fine Snacks is anticipating as much as a 30 percent increase in sales this year. The 6-year-old firm now employs 40 people, who work on two shifts.

Bair said it was too early to tell what how sales have been influenced by Bush's remarks.

"He's doing a lot for us," he said. "People in the Midwest and up north are trying them for the first time.

But it hasn't been a big landslide for us. With all of this exposure, more people are just becoming aware of pork skins."

According to the Snack Food Association, the industry's trade group, pork rind producers expect sales to surpass the $195 million in U.S. sales reported in 1987, the most recent year available.

Bair estimated that there are 50 companies in the U.S. that produce fried pork rinds under hundreds of brand names.

Nutritionists Aghast At The President's Favorite Snack Food

By Linda Guica
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Dentists will rejoice that the crystal jar of jelly beans left the White House with Ronald Reagan.

But nutritionists will cringe at the latest snack to get the presidential nod. Pork skins — crunchy, puffy nibbles fried in lard and heavily salted — appeared on the table at President Bush's first Cabinet meeting.

Bush's penchant for the porcine product was documented during the campaign, and pork rind manufacturers picked up on his craving.

Evans Food Products Co. in Chicago sent 3,000 pounds of the crispy snack to various inaugural parties.

The Evans company is a major player in the business of producing pork-skin snacks for the chips-and-dip set. The manufacturer handles 30 million to 50 million pounds of pork hide a year.

The company starts with de-haired hog skin shipped from slaughterhouses in Iowa and Nebraska and cuts the "raw material" into small squares, says Bill Connor, Evans sales manager.

Those bits of skin are fried — 3,000 pounds at a time — in lard for 1½ hours. The result is a "semi-processed pork rind that resembles fiberglass," Connor says. This dehydrated pork skin, now called a pellet, is stored for about 30 days and then shipped to pork-skin poppers — snack-food companies such as Dallas-based Frito-Lay Inc. — which turn the pellet into the snack.

These manufacturers, Connor says, fry the pellets in fat at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for 60 seconds. "The pellet explodes like popcorn," he says. "It expands 10 to 20 times its size."

Frito-Lay's plain or hot and spicy Baken-Ets are a small part of the company's snack-food line. The fried rinds account for only 1 percent of the company's $3.7 billion sales of snack foods. The chip-and-dip set munch $1 billion worth of Frito-Lay's Doritos a year.

Evans also continues the process, turning out pork rinds plain or seasoned for private-label customers. (Bush, by the way, likes his pork skins with Tabasco sauce.)

Connor says that fried pork skins originated in China, where cooks rarely waste any kind of edible ingredient. "The only thing they don't use is the squeal," he says.

In the United States, farm cooks have also fried the cleaned hide in fat and eaten the crispy bits as a treat, Connor says.

Sales of the fried hide are biggest in the Southwest and Southeast, according to Connor. Those areas are followed by the West Coast and the Northwest, says Beverly Holmes, media-relations manager for Frito-Lay. "Eighty-three (percent) to 84 percent (of our sales) come from those four areas," she says.

Sales are not exactly booming in the Northeast, where pork rinds are less well-known, Holmes says.

The Snack Food Association says that pork-rind sales totaled $195 million in 1987, a figure dwarfed by sales of potato chips, which enjoyed $3.8 billion in sales in the $8 billion salty snack-food market.

Bush does not exactly fit the typical fried pork rind enthusiast as painted by Frito-Lay's market research. Holmes says demographics show that buyers tend to be either teen-age or older (55 to 65 years old), and that the typical eaters are blue-collar workers who live in rural areas.

Frito-Lay has not yet seen a noticeable increase in the demand for its Baken-Ets, "but awareness of the product has gone up," Holmes says.

Meanwhile, Evans' Connor is positively glowing at the publicity generated by Bush's preference for the snack.

"The response has been incredible," he says. Until now, "the biggest thing that happens around here is a big order once in a while."

"We never figured it would go this far, publicitywise," Connor says. "We figured we'd send pork rinds to the inaugural parties, and that would be that."

But interest just exploded, Connor says — sort of like a pork-rind pellet meeting hot fat.

Slow Cooker Is A Big Help To Busy Cook

Slow cooking is an ancient cooking method, but with today's electric crockery cookers, slow cooking makes a lot of sense in our busy lifestyles. These handy kitchen appliances allow you to prepare food ahead of time and cook it without any attention. Instead of worrying all day about what to make for dinner, you know a hot meal will be ready when you get home.

A slow cooker can be a great help in preparing wholesome dishes, such as vegetable-rich soups, stews and casseroles. It can also help reduce dietary fat, since it lets you use leaner cuts of meat. Long cooking on low heat tenderizes meat, so it's an excellent way to cook those cuts of meat that have less fat content and that may be less tender than the higher fat, more expensive cuts. Reducing dietary fat is one of the most important recommendations of the American Institute for Cancer Research as a step in reducing cancer risk.

The following guidelines can help

Potato and Lentil Soup was made in slow cooker adapt many favorite recipes to slow cooking.

— Uncooked meat and vegetable combinations require eight to 10 hours on low (200 degrees F) or four to five hours on high (300 degrees F).

— One hour of simmering on a range or baking at 350 degrees F in the oven is equivalent to eight to ten hours on low or four to five hours on high.

— Reduce the liquid in your recipe to about one cup, since the slow cooking method saves all the food's natural juices.

— Use canned soups, broths, wine or water as the liquid in your slow cooker.

— Add dairy products only during the final 30 minutes of cooking.

Limit Your Caffeine Intake

Q. I have fibrocystic breast disease. I read that I should avoid all caffeine. Can you tell me what has caffeine in it? P.W., Greenville.

A. Before you make dietary changes on your own, you may want to talk with your doctor. The research that showed caffeine and other compounds called methylxanthines, (found in chocolate) aggravated the pain and swelling of breasts, was done in the late 1970s. Newer studies have had very mixed results. Some women do find relief of their symptoms when they reduce or eliminate caffeine, others do not find that it helps. The same is true for women who suffer PMS. Scientists are studying breast cancers. While scientists are quite sure that a high fat diet can be linked to breast cancer, there is not the same evidence for caffeine.

Caffeine is a stimulant. Small doses (50 to 200 milligrams) can give you increased alertness, less drowsiness and less fatigue. Larger doses (200 to 500 milligrams) give some people headaches, tremors, nervousness and irritability. So, there is no doubt that very large doses of caffeine can have negative health effects. But, like so many other things we eat and drink, moderate amounts do not appear to harm healthy adults. Talk to your family doctor about your problem. You will need to weigh the risks and benefits. For example, if a cup of coffee or a caffeinated soft drink keeps you alert on an evening drive from Greenville to Raleigh, you may lower your risk of a traffic accident. A recent report in the journal Cancer could not support a link between caffeine intake and later development of breast cancer.

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

If you do cut back on caffeine, remember that if you go "cold turkey," you are likely to experience headache. So taper off.

Dear Readers: Breast cancer is a killer of North Carolina women if not detected early. I haven't talked about breast cancer in this column. There are food habits that seem to increase the risk of breast cancer, especially eating a high fat diet. A special awareness of Breast Cancer Day is happening Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Breast cancer, the most common type of cancer in women, can be cured if detected early. The day's activities include free breast exam, discussion of self-exam, mammograms, and reduced rate on mammograms. For full information on the special event, see the story on Page C-1.

Bran Is Great, But So Are Fruits And Vegetables

By Kasey Jones
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

If I hear the words "oat bran" one more time, I'll scream.

That grain is being touted as the miracle food of the late '80s. "The Low Cholesterol Oat Bran Plan," (by Barbara Earnest and Sarah Schlesinger; Hearst Books; $17.95) says that the water-soluble fibers in oat bran have the ability to reduce cholesterol levels by increasing the loss of cholesterol products from the body and decreasing cholesterol production in the liver. Because cholesterol is implicated in heart disease, the millions of Americans with elevated cholesterol levels have found a new weapon in the battle against cardio-vascular disease.

This has not escaped the notice of America's food manufacturers. Oatmeal is now the miracle breakfast food. Cheerios is making sure consumers notice this old standby was "always a great source of oat bran." Oat bran cereals now crowd the Froot Loops and Lucky Charms off the grocery shelves. Plain oat bran sells for around $2.89 at stores, and once you've got it, you still have to do something with it — make muffins or breads, add it to casseroles, substitute bread crumbs with it. You can't just eat it out of the bag, even if horses do.

Enough, already!

I am not suggesting that any of this is unwarranted. Anything that can help reduce cholesterol levels is a good thing in a country in which heart disease remains the leading cause of death — more than cancer, AIDS or traffic accidents. Anything that encourages people to think about what they are eating, to take an active role in maintaining their health, to understand why some foods are heart-healthy and some foods aren't, is a giant step in the right direction.

However, it is not true that in a total dietary effort to lower cholesterol, that one must consume a pound of oat bran a week. Lost in all the hoopla is the fact that there are several foods that have the same cholesterol-lowering properties as oat bran. These are foods that have been around for centuries, are less expensive than the now-chic oat bran, taste good and are easy to buy and prepare.

So before you whip up another batch of oat bran muffins, before you dish out another bowl of oat bran cereal, consider these foods, with recipes to get you started.

Apples: Once again, the proud apple proves worthy of the adage about keeping the doctor away. Apples are high in pectin, a fiber that can help reduce cholesterol in much the same way oat bran does. One apple can supply you with nearly a gram of the magical water-soluble fiber. One-third cup of oat bran, by contrast, supplies 2 grams of the fiber.

An apple or two a day is probably the most convenient, inexpensive and tasty way of adding cholesterol-lowering fiber to one's diet. After all, who doesn't like apples? They are available in endless varieties year round. Even with the pricey brands, you can get a week's supply for less than $3. And apples are available everywhere. The most in-corrugible greasy spoon will often have apples at the counter or in the fridge for customers. Apples are even showing up in some vending machines. Or just slip an apple into your purse, pocket or briefcase and eat it anywhere, anytime you wish. Now that's a miracle food!

Beans: The child's vulgar rhyme about beans being good for the heart is true. The endless variety of dried beans available for less than 75 cents a pound also have cholesterol-lowering properties. One-half cup cooked black-eyed peas supplies a heart-healthy 3.7 grams of fiber, more than 1½ times that found in one-third cup of oat bran. Plus, when combined with foods that complement their amino acids (such as rice) bean dishes can provide complete protein with a fraction of the calories and none of the fat of beef or pork.

Who wouldn't like a big steaming bowl of homemade bean soup to ward off winter's chill? (And what could be easier to make? Soak the beans, cook with carrots, onions, celery and your favorite spices and voila!) In the summer, who can turn away from homemade baked beans? Much ethnic cuisine features dried beans — cassoulet, chili, red beans and rice.

Dark Bread Pans Best

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

You don't need much equipment to begin baking bread. In fact, odds are your kitchen already has what you need — at least for starters. The list is simple:

—A large bowl, preferably ceramic, because it retains the heat better and more evenly in the dough-rising process.

—A large wooden spoon.

—Bread pans or a baking sheet (many breads can be formed into loaves and baked directly on sheets without pans).

—A cooling rack.

—A serrated bread knife.

That's not to say that there's not a lot of fancy equipment you can buy to make bread just to your liking.

A variety of different baking pans is available, including new models that have little holes in the bottom to provide more air circulation and produce a crustier loaf.

While fancy pans are fun, bread-baker Betsy Oppeneer says that the key is to buy heavy-weight dark pans. The light pans reflect the heat and produce a pale, weak crust.

The darker pans, on the other hand, absorb the heat and thereby produce a richer, darker crust. The thinner pans also tend to cook the bread unevenly.

If bakers get tired of hand kneading, there is always the mixer or food processor. Many of the latest-model heavy-duty mixers include a dough hook, which produces top-notch bread without much of the hard handwork. These range in price from about $200 to $400, depending on the size of the model, its power and color and where you buy it.

For serious bread-bakers who make many loaves a week, there is an even stronger — and more expensive — machine, the Bosch Universal Kitchen Center, which can knead up to 10 pounds of bread dough at a time, compared to the usual 3 pounds done by a more conventional mixer. The machine, which does other kitchen tasks as well, sells for about $419.

The Bosch needs to be ordered through a local dealer, while most other mixers can be purchased at any kitchen-equipment store or many department stores and catalog showrooms.

Enthusiastic bread-makers who want to grind their own grains for the freshest of breads can also buy a variety of mills, from the relatively inexpensive hand grinders (ranging from about $40 to $115) to the electric stainless steel mills (from $259 to over $400).

For the serious miller, there are also electric stone mills, with prices that range $579 to $739. Most of these mills can be ordered from local kitchen-equipment or health-food stores.

For other bread-baking equipment and ingredients — from baking pans to yeast-storage containers to a variety of flours — get the Breadbasket catalog. Send $1 to Breadbasket, 1420 NW Gilman Blvd., Suite 2126WP, Issaquah, Wash. 98027-2507. Telephone: (206) 488-2507.

Two Make Great Combo In Very Deep Dish Pizza

By Linda Lowe Morris
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Amy Bernstein loves lasagna and she loves pizza, so one day in the kitchen she began to wonder what would happen if you put the two together.

The result was her very deep dish pastry pizza. In a prepared pastry crust, mozzarella cheese, pepperoni and tomato sauce are layered with the ricotta-egg mixture that makes lasagna so delectable.

"It just messes up one bowl and one pot and one souffle dish," she says. "And you can put anything in it, any vegetables, like spinach or zucchini, or meat. Or it could be vegetarian. What I put into it depends on what I have in the house."

Ms. Bernstein, a catering chef in Maryland, originally trained to be a biologist and did cancer research for two years, but then she decided, in 1985, to switch careers.

"Cooking is sort of like lab work, but you can eat your mistakes, you don't have to throw them out," she says.

Here is her recipe:

VERY DEEP DISH PASTRY PIZZA

- 6 eggs
- 15 oz. ricotta cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 tbsps. chopped parsley
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 tbsps. olive oil
- 6 oz. tomato paste
- 10 oz. tomato puree
- 1/4 tsp. dried basil
- 1/2 tsp. dried oregano
- 1/4 tsp. dried marjoram
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1 medium green pepper, sliced
- 1/2 lb. sliced mozzarella
- 6 oz. sliced pepperoni
- 1 pkg. Pillsbury ready-to-bake pie dough

Beat eggs in a medium-sized bowl. Add ricotta cheese, onion, Parmesan cheese, parsley, salt and pepper and mix together. Set aside.

In a large saute pan, saute garlic in olive oil until translucent. Add tomato paste, tomato puree, the herbs, mushrooms and green pepper. Let simmer for 5 minutes.

Line a souffle dish with one piece of pie dough (Leave enough dough to lay over the top of the dish).

Add a layer of ricotta mixture. Cover with a layer of sliced mozzarella cheese. Next add a layer of sliced pepperoni. Then add a later of tomato mixture. Repeat filling layers one time.

Top with a layer of mozzarella cheese. Place second piece of pie dough over top of dish. Pinch dough together at rim of dish and flute edges. Cut slits in the top of the dough. Use extra dough to make a pastry rose in the center, if desired.

Bake at 425 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Let stand 30 minutes. Serves 6 people.

Experts Rate Olive Oils After Giving Taste Test To Each

By Caroline E. Mayer
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Two hundred years ago Thomas Jefferson tried valiantly to grow olive trees in the United States.

As an ambassador to France, Jefferson fell in love with the taste of olive oil and shipped hundreds of trees to South Carolina, hoping that ultimately a similarly delicious product could be made here.

Jefferson failed in his efforts after the climate proved too harsh. But if he were alive today, he would certainly be pleased at the wide variety of imported olive oil now available to Americans.

To test the assortment of different brands now on store shelves, The Washington Post invited eight olive-oil experts to a blind taste test.

The experts — Italian chefs and olive-oil importers — had the daunting task of tasting 17 different oils (and early in the morning, no less) that ranged in color from a dark cloudy green to bright yellow to a clear, colorless liquid.

Some tasted by spoon; others used bread. Still others, including Valerio Calcagno of the Italian specialty store Vace Inc. in Washington, D.C., put drops of oil in their hands, rubbed them together and then smelled to get the full aroma of the oil.

Calcagno knew what he was doing; when he was young, he used to make olive oil in his native Italy, he said. Smelling the oil on the hand is a ritual as important as smelling the cork of a wine bottle.

The chefs and importers were not easily fooled. All readily discovered Bertolli's Extra Light olive oil — an intentionally colorless, odorless and tasteless oil designed for Americans who want to eat olive oil for health reasons but dislike the taste.

"Is this really olive oil?" one after another asked.

As a result, these hardy souls — with strong taste buds as well — gave Extra Light a unanimously unacceptable rating. True fans of extra-virgin oil, they also gave the only other oil that was not an extra-virgin — Bertolli's "100 percent Pure" oil — a relatively low rating, although several did acknowledge it would be a good oil for cooking.

(The two non-virgin oils were included in the test primarily for comparison.)

Of the 15 extra-virgin brands, the experts centered their praise on three Italian oils, which interestingly enough varied widely in price — a sign that you don't have to spend $20 or more a bottle for a good oil.

The least expensive was Alessi from Italy, which sells at a super-market chain in Washington for $4.09 for 17 ounces.

"It is tasty but leaves no after-taste," said Mimmette LoMonte, an Italian cookbook author who admits that she dislikes many extra-virgin oils because they have strong after-tastes. Other olive-oil aficionados, however, say they like a sharp, peppery aftertaste.

coca — an unacceptable rating. "Might as well use water," one taster commented. (The bottle, with a wax top, also was very difficult to open.)

Receiving a fair rating was La Tavola Di Medici, the brand promoted by the well-known Italian cook Lorenza de Medici. "Very acid," commented Donna.

Donna cautioned consumers to be careful when reading olive-oil labels. Although the oil may say "product of Italy," it may not be Italian olive oil. Rather, he noted, it may be oil that has been shipped from other Mediterranean countries — especially Spain, the world's largest producer — to Italy, where it is mixed and/or packaged to be shipped abroad.

Most olive-oil aficionados prefer the oil made of Italian-grown olives, which are generally heavy and robust. Spanish olive oil is considered harsher in taste, according to chef Jenifer Harvey Lang. In her book "Tastings," she also notes that pure French olive oil has a more subtle and often fruity taste.

With more olive oil coming into the country, many importers are concerned that some of the bottles may be mislabeled — with some pure oil selling as extra virgin and some olive oil containing other types of oil as well.

Although the product is not regulated by the U.S. government, Food and Drug Administration officials are now periodically sampling imports to see if the product is indeed what the label says. In 1987 one importer was cited for mixing soybean oil with olive oil, but no citations were issued last year.

So what is the best way to pick an extra virgin olive oil that you know to be the real thing and at the same time agrees with you? Lang suggests you go about it much the same way you select a favorite wine.

Our experts, who also included Francois Dionot, owner of L'Academie de Cuisine cooking school in Bethesda, Md.; importer Maria Di Pietri; Sidney Moore, owner of Mayflower Liquors, which sells imported olive oil; and Danny Miranda, chef at the Italian Embassy, ranked the following extra-virgin olive oils:

Stand-Outs: Alessi, Fini and Poggio Sole unfiltered.

Honey And Apples Flavor Rutabaga

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

RUTABAGA WITH HONEY AND APPLES

- 3/4 lb. rutabagas, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes (about 2 cups)
- 2 tbsps. water
- 2 small apples, cored and cut into thin wedges
- 2 tbsps. honey
- 2 tbsps. margarine or butter
- 1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
- Dash salt

Place rutabagas in a 1 1/2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Add water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 12 to 15 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Drain well in a colander. In the same casserole combine apples, honey, margarine, cinnamon and salt. Cook, covered, on high for 1 to 2 minutes or until apples are just tender, stirring once. Add rutabagas. Cook, covered, on high for 1 minute more or until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

"Excellent," said Calcagno, who also ranked Alessi and Fini as high. "Good color, good taste, good for salad oil," added Giorgio Di Pietri, from Enotria International, an importing company.

The testers were not so generous to two other brands with big-name backers. They gave the expensive Villa Nicola — a $24 17-ounce bottle touted by the indefatigable chairman of Chrysler Motor Co., Lee Iac-

Fruits And Vegetables Great Foods For Those High-Fiber Diets

And if you don't want the trouble of fixing dried beans, canned beans are available. Be sure to get the vegetarian (no salt pork) and no-salt-added varieties.

Peas: Dried or canned, these little guys also pack a fiber punch — 2.7 grams in a half-cup, cooked. Peas are showing up more and more at salad bars, so you can boost your already high-fiber salad (all those fresh crunchy veggies provide some fiber). Just don't load up on the high-fat salad dressings.

Sprouts: Who would have thought these fragile-looking creatures would be so fiber-full? Unfortunately, there is not a lot you can do with them, other than sprinkle them on your salad. A tasty alternative is the Powerhouse Sandwich (recipe below).

Sweet Potatoes: Another surprise. These tasty potatoes are just bursting with fiber — 1.3 grams per potato. Substitute a baked sweet potato (add a little diet margarine and sprinkle on some pumpkin pie spice) for rice with dinner. Or make sweet potato muffins instead of the oat bran kind for a different taste.

Other Fruits and Vegetables: You can't go wrong by eating raw fruits and veggies. Consider having an orange or grapefruit rather than juice with breakfast. You'll still get all the Vitamin C and will have the added benefit of the fruit's fiber.

Munching carrot sticks as snacks will also boost your fiber intake, give you extra beta carotene, and cost a lot less than potato chips or pretzels. Air-popped popcorn is low in calories (learn to like it without margarine, and sprinkle it with salt substitute or no-salt spices), high in fiber and fun to eat.

Other cooked vegetables that are high in fiber include corn, zucchini, cauliflower and broccoli. Fruits that are especially fiber-rich include pears, bananas and oranges.

BLACK BEANS WITH RICE

- 1 cup dried black beans
- 2 medium tomatoes, cored and halved
- 1 large onion, halved, plus 1 large onion, thinly sliced
- Juice from 1 clove garlic
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1 tsp. Italian spice
- 1/2 cups raw rice
- 1/2 cup dry sherry
- 1 green pepper, thinly sliced
- 1 sweet red pepper, thinly sliced

Soak the beans in water to cover, overnight.

Transfer the soaked beans, along with the water, to a kettle. Add enough additional water to cover the beans by two inches. Add the tomatoes, onion halves and garlic juice and simmer, covered, for 1 hour. Drain the beans and reserve both beans and liquid.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In another pan, heat 1/4 cup of oil, add the seasoning and the rice, and stir to coat the rice. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes.

Transfer the rice to a 3-quart baking dish and add the beans, stirring to mix with the rice. Bake, covered, in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes. When finished, allow to stand for 10 minutes.

While the rice is baking, saute the peppers and remaining onion in the remaining oil until the vegetables are wilted. Spread this mixture over the baked rice and beans and serve. Serves four to six.

APPLE CAKE

- 1/2 cup sunflower oil
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- Egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg
- 3/4 cup unbleached white flour

Cooker

According to label directions and add to slow cooker toward the end of cooking.

Thaw frozen vegetables and frozen fish slightly and add only during the last hour of cooking.

Don't remove the cover of the cooker unless necessary for stirring (most recipes don't require stirring); you lose the equivalent of 30 minutes cooking time each time the cover is removed.

The following soup is a breeze to prepare and has a warm, hearty flavor that reminds you of stew. This soup can be pureed for a thick consistency, or can be served straight from the pot for a broth-with-vegetables type of soup.

POTATO AND LENTIL SOUP

- 3 onions, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic
- 3 ribs celery, cut in 1-in. pieces
- 3 carrots, cut in 1-in. pieces
- 1 potatoes, diced
- 1 cup lentils (rinsed)
- Tamari soy sauce, to taste
- 1/2 tsp. paprika
- 1/4 cup wine vinegar

Place the lentils and vegetables in crock pot type slow cooker with six cups of water. Cook on the low setting for eight to ten hours or on the high setting for four to five hours.

If a thick, pureed soup is desired, mash the cooked soup through a sieve, or use a blender to puree it in several batches.

Prior to serving, season with the tamari soy sauce, paprika and wine vinegar.

This recipe yields four bowls of 1 1/2 cups each, with 280 calories and a fat content of 1 gram per serving.

'Chardonnay Boom' Replaces 'White Wine Boom'

By Randall Murray
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Chardonnay. It is a mellifluous name; soft, inviting, easy to say. That is part of the reason why the "white wine boom" of the late '70s has been replaced by the "Chardonnay boom" of the mid-'80s. But just what is Chardonnay?

To be technically accurate, as opposed to being aesthetic, Chardonnay is the name of a white (actually green) grape — and the name of the wine made from it. The grape came to prominence in the Burgundy region of France where, in the northern and north-central parts of that elongated wine-producing area, the Chardonnay grape produces some of the world's best and most expensive white wines. The wines from Chablis, the northern-most corner of Burgundy, are Chardonnays, although the labels will not tell you that. Naming the wine after the grape is an American characteristic — and it is with American Chardonnay in mind that we will go tromping off through the vineyard.

It may be a natural progression for the American wine drinker to graduate from the inexpensive white wines that fueled the rapid growth in interest and consumption of table wines little more than 10 years ago. Back then it was a glass of (American) Chablis or even Sauterne at the bar, rather than a mixed drink. Today, many of those sippers have moved up to Chardonnay.

The wine named Chardonnay is a fickle charmer. During the "monster" years of wine making in California, chards had to be oaky — from fermentation and aging barrels — to the point of putting splinters into your tongue; high in alcohol, and bursting with excessive fruitiness and oiliness. Those were the days of barrel-busting Cabernet Sauvignons and Chardonnays and some of us lament the passing of those days. But alas, we move on. Today's Chardonnays for the most part are far more restrained and elegant; lower in alcohol and bringing a more subdued taste of fruit and oak to the palate.

Styles of Chardonnay vary from winery to winery and from growing region to growing region. Chards from California's Central Coast, Monterey and Santa Cruz counties, will by virtue of climate and soils taste different from wines from the same grape produced in, say, Sonoma or Napa counties. And, by the way, if the wine label says "Pinot Chardonnay," it is the same thing. Even tradition-bound Beaulieu Vineyard finally succumbed to accuracy and changed its timeless label from "Pinot Chardonnay" to "Chardonnay" — and rightfully so. The Chardonnay grape is not a member of the pinot family, although some wine makers cling to a tradition and throw the extra word on.

But what does Chardonnay taste like? Each one is distinctive, each wine has a different set of nuances. In general terms, it is a dry, full-bodied wine to be consumed with food. To quote from the "Frank Schoonmaker Encyclopedia of Wine":

"They have an unmistakable class and an appealing balance of fruit, acidity and texture; some tasters associate Chardonnay with apples, ripe figs or melon, while others describe the wines as creamy or buttery." The buttery sensation is most notable in the "finish" of the wine, or the final taste and texture sensation as you swallow. The aroma — sometimes strong, sometimes not — of crisp green apples is an oft-noted indication of good Chardonnay. The color is typically green-gold, with the green tinge showing itself as the wine is swirled.

Chardonnay is one of the few white wines that, in many cases, improves with some bottle aging. You would not, for example, want to stash away a case of 1987 Chenin Blanc for two or three years. That light, fruity white would emerge from the cellar a superannuated and not very pleasant commodity after that time. Good Chardonnays, however, benefit from a little maturation.

Chardonnay is generally a food wine, not a cocktail wine. So crack a bottle of Chard, nicely chilled, with just about any seafoods, shellfish, light chicken dishes, pork and mild Oriental dishes. This is a strong-willed wine and it will stand up to some spices — curried chicken, for example, or lobster tail dunked in a cajun-style butter.

So, having said all that, what are some good Chardonnays?

For the money, perhaps the most memorable Chardonnays come from the Sonoma-Cutrer Vineyard. Wine maker Bill Bonetti produces three superb wines; the top-ranked being the Les Pierres, a monument to what Chardonnay is all about. His other two offspring are no slouches, either; Russian River Valley and Sonoma. But the Les Pierres is wonderful, and, sadly, about as easy to find as tax breaks for the middle class.

Recently I was fortunate to sample some '83 and '86 Chateau Montelena Chardonnays. They are marvelous wines, although you would be hard-pressed to find the older one in supply. Great wines come from Chateau Montelena. Another terrific chard comes from Rutherford Hill in Napa. "The Hill" produces two variations; the Jaeger Vineyard, a reserve-style release, and their "regular" bottling. Both are excellent. Robert Mondavi Chardonnays possess an elegance that makes them very Chablislike, and super food wines. Other excellent Chardonnays include those from Acacia, Kenwood, Chateau St. Jean (also several different bottlings, try the Robert Young Vineyard or Gauer Ranch).

In the middle range, $12-$16, look for the always-good Inglenook — and the 1985 Inglenook Reserve Chardonnay. This is a blockbuster of a wine, one you could cellar age for another two years or consume it now. John Shafer and his hard-working family at Napa Valley's Shafer Vineyards relentlessly produce fine varietal wines, and their '85 and '86 Chardonnays are no exception. Simi Winery's '86 Chard offers a blend of grapes from Sonoma and Mendocino counties and its oak-aging gives it a good balance. And from one of the best Chardonnay-producing areas, the Carneros region, comes Buena Vista's '87 Carneros Chardonnay, a very good, fruity, yet crisp, wine.

Bargain hunters, look no farther than the Fetzer Sundial Chardonnay. This is a consistently fine wine and is a very good buy. And for slightly less, the Glen Ellen is a tasty, well-balanced Chardonnay. Christian Brothers, a winery on its way back up from a period of hard times and less-than-brilliant wines, has given birth to a quite nice Chardonnay. Clos Robert has entered the low-priced wars with a Chardonnay that has garnered a number of medals and humbled a number of higher-priced wines. And do not overlook the Gallo Chardonnay, either. This low-budget white has won a number of medals, too. It is not a "big" chard, but it is a good example of well-made wine.

Chardonnays to avoid? All preferences are subjective and nobody likes — or dislikes — everything that someone else might. But fight off the temptation to pick up a bottle of Three Oaks Chardonnay (or the Cabernet Sauvignon). It is pretty foul stuff. Also, in recent years I have not favored the Almaden San Benito Chardonnay; it is just a flat, undistinguished wine with an unpleasant, vegetal aftertaste. And Louis Martini should stick to making red wine. I really find his Chardonnay nothing to crow about. It is not bad, it is just not all that good. So that is your crash course in America's most popular white varietal wine. And here is a helpful hint on how to enliven the deadly dull days of January. Pick out a number of bottles of different Chardonnays, from the various price groups, and have yourself a comparative blind tasting with some friends. Make a list of the wines and assign each bottle a number; cover the bottles with foil and pour samples of each wine for your friends. Ask them to evaluate each wine on color, aroma, flavor and overall impression.

Some folks are very surprised when the foil comes off the bottles. Enjoy.

Expert Calls For Fine-Tuned Nutrition Guide

By Toni Tipton
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Lack of time and confusion over how to implement new information are seen as two major obstacles to eating better in the '80s, in spite of increased public awareness of the importance of good nutrition. At least that is how a consumer trend analyst who spoke on the subject at a nutrition conference sponsored by the Dairy Council of California sees what is happening currently to consumer attitudes toward good nutrition.

As a result, a host of nutrients — including major and minor minerals — are being lost in the translation between better health and decreasing fat and cholesterol in the diet. Far too many Americans, especially women who are consumed by the desire to lose weight, are suffering from malnutrition.

"Consumers understand that diet has short- and long-term health effects, including looking and feeling healthier," said Amy Barr a registered dietitian who is executive editor-at-large of McCall's Magazine. They "understand the basics of nutrition, but they don't know how to use the principles and standards that will help balance their total diets."

Furthermore, despite contemporary woman's increasingly demanding work schedule, her historic role as "keeper of the medicine and food cabinets," has not changed, according to Ms. Barr. So, while she may be acutely interested in fitness, diet and health and seems to have a good understanding of how they relate to one another, she just does not have enough time to do something about it.

The solution: Fine-tuned nutrition, Ms. Barr explained.

Not that nutrition has changed so much over the past few years; the four food groups, balance, variety and moderation are still stressed. But today's nutrition is defined in terms of how it can be incorporated into the family lifestyle. This helps streamline the number of choices a woman needs to make regarding health.

But it is the way women streamline their choices regarding health that troubles dietitians. Recently, women have begun to develop a type of "food system," Ms. Barr claims. Here, instead of a balanced diet system they make food decisions based on what works for them in terms of scheduling — a form of trade-offs of one thing for another whether that thing is better health, better looks or more time.

"Even though they are worried about health and how it may help their longevity, their biggest concern is their obesity. And it is not even obesity, it's how they look. ... You can talk health all you want, but it is how you look. ... Our readers are living in a paradox. And, nutrition is a paradox," Ms. Barr said.

The problem with this, according to Ms. Barr, is that in the interest of time, fine-tuned nutrition usually means one-issue nutrition and the issue is typically one of calories. For example, dietary supplements continue to be popular alternatives to food as sources of vitamins and minerals. They are perceived, Ms. Barr said, as "a shortcut to better health."

Most people understand that dairy products are high in calcium, but "we haven't gotten across to them that one of the reasons (dairy products) is better than the supplements is that it is also higher in riboflavin and D vitamins." Likewise, "They would rather eat a fish oil tablet than eat fish. Meanwhile, they are eating butter on their rolls and are drinking whole milk. But if they take this pill, they are OK."

"People are looking for painless, good nutrition," Ms. Barr said. "If it is hard to do or if they really have to think about it beyond two seconds, they don't want it. Again, it is food system vs. diet. It has got to be painless, good nutrition."

To help women meet their goal of "painless good nutrition" here are some simple-to-prepare recipes. They avoid high-fat and cholesterol-containing foods. But, they offer nutrients that promote good health.

One such nutrient is zinc. Although no deficiency of zinc is reported in the United States, vegetarians and people avoiding red meat are among those who tend to suffer from zinc shortage.

Zinc is important for normal growth, for normal cellular immune functions, for taste-bud sensitivity and for Vitamin A absorption (Diets rich in Vitamin A may lower risk for some types of cancer). It is found in high-protein foods such as oysters and beef liver. Whole-grain cereals also are a good source. Beef, lamb and pork contain three to four times as much zinc as fish. Legumes, peanuts and peanut butter are better sources than fruits and vegetables, which are poor sources.

While skinned chicken breast meat has been applauded as a low-fat source of dietary protein, its counterpart, dark meat has been overlooked. It's true that a 3-ounce serving of roasted chicken breast without skin contains about 50 fewer calories (142) and almost three times less fat (3.07 grams) than dark meat, 198 and 11.4 grams, respectively, but the dark meat offers three times the zinc.

CONTAINER OF BRAND NEW SEWING MACHINES

— FREE ARM MODELS —

A container load of sewing machines from one of the Nation's Largest Manufacturers scheduled to be shipped to an overseas dealer was cancelled. These machines must be sold!!

All sewing machines offered are new, in original cartons. These machines are MADE WITH METAL PARTS and sew on all fabrics. Levis, canvas upholstery, nylon stretch, vinyl, silk, EVEN SEW ON LEATHER! These machines are new with a 25 year warranty. With these new 1989 automatic sewing machines, you just set the color-coded dial and see magic happen; sewing zig-zag, buttonholes (any size), invisible blind hem, monogram, satin stitch embroidery, applique, sew on buttons and snaps, top stitch, professional serging, straight stretch stitch . . . all of this and more without the need of old-fashion cams or programmers.
