Eastern Teachers Say War Over Pay Still On

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Teachers from across eastern North Carolina met in Greenville on Thursday evening to celebrate winning a battle against a pay raise postponement and to build support so they can finish their fight for better salaries.

"We've won the battle but we haven't won the war," Karen Garr, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, said to the hundreds of teachers who met at D.H. Conley High School for the organization's "Big East" rally.

The teachers came by the busloads and carloads from as far north as Gates County and as far south as Carteret County. The group was so large it had to be moved from the school's auditorium to the gym, where it filled the bleachers on one side.

The battle was won when Gov. Jim Martin recently decided to raise teachers' salaries this year after initially proposing to delay an increase until 1990, Ms. Garr said.

Martin also has said that overhauling the public school teachers' salary schedule must take priority over his longtime goal of implementing the career ladder program statewide.

But the war continues because Martin wants to add strings to his new proposals, Ms. Garr said. "We're going to start saying no to the career ladder program. We're going to say no to giving up programs for kids and smaller class sizes. We're going to say no to giving up tenure" to get what teachers want, she told the gathering.

"The answer is absolutely no," Ms. Garr said.

Teachers will say yes to the NCAE salary proposal that is now in the form of a bill in the state House of Representatives, she said. "We'll say yes to the legislators who have signed the bill. We'll say yes to annual leave on students days. We'll say yes for the amazing work that we do everyday," Ms. Garr said.

"Knowing what we stand for in this war" is half of winning the battle, she said. "The other half is unity."

The NCAE proposes a three-year phase-in of a new 30-step salary schedule that would make teachers' salaries more competitive with salaries in private industries. Its salary proposal is based on comparisons of training and degrees made by the Southeastern Educational Improvement Lab in Research Triangle Park.

After the salary schedule is fully implemented in three years, the beginning teacher in the state with a bachelor's degree would make $20,000, and the 30-year veteran would make $42,500. The beginning teacher with a master's degree would make $22,076 and the 30-year veteran would make $46,957.

Currently, the state salary for beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree is $18,330, and the top salary is $27,650. For teachers with a master's degree the beginning salary is $20,030 and the top salary is $30,430.

Cities and counties in the state create their own pay schedule for supplementing the state base salary for teachers working in their school districts. Supplementary schedules

Computer Spy Ring Glitched

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BONN, West Germany — The government said today it dealt a "major blow" to the KGB by cracking a spy ring that news reports said gave the Soviets direct access to key military and research computers in the West.

A West German television network on Thursday said the spy ring acquired passwords, codes and other information from computers in the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

West German prosecutors said three people were arrested and five others were under investigation. A second TV network in West Germany reported that at least 10 computer hackers were involved in the spying.

The Norddeutsche Rundfunk broadcasting network said the ring gained access to the U.S. Defense Department's general databank, known as Optimus; a NASA and a "Star Wars" research computer; and computers tied to nuclear weapons and energy research at the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico and the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Illinois.

The network said attempts were made to gain access to the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory at the University of California, which it called a key link in efforts to break into other U.S. computers.

Clifford Stoll, an astrophysicist who did research at the laboratory, said up to 50 military computers were broken into through an astronomy computer but that the hacker did not have passwords for classified information.

"We were amazed! Here's some guy breaking into an astronomy computer in Berkeley, reaching out into military computers trying to search for information about SDI (the Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars"), about nuclear warheads," Stoll said in a telephone interview Thursday from his home in Cambridge, Mass.

Stoll, who works at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Harvard University, said he and

Machinists Get Holiday

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Eastern Airlines and machinists union negotiators bargained today over a new contract as President Bush called in his labor and transportation secretaries to discuss whether to prevent a threatened midnight strike.

Eastern, meanwhile, sent its machinists home this morning, citing "significant amounts of vandalism," and saying the action was intended to prevent sabotage in the hours before the strike deadline. A federal court order allowed the action.

Federal mediators, who were meeting with the negotiators at an undisclosed Washington location, said the Eastern offer Thursday brought hope of a settlement in the 17-month-old dispute.

"They likely will meet pretty much all day," said National Mediation Board spokesman David Bushnell. "I expect it will go right up to the deadline if necessary."

Eastern's chief operating officer in Miami, Joe Leonard, said machinists were given a paid holiday and told to return to work for shifts starting at 12:01 a.m. EST Saturday, after the strike deadline.

"This is not a lockout and is not an attempt to affect the bargaining," Leonard said at a news conference.

He said management personnel would handle maintenance and other ground duties for the rest of the day.

Eastern pilots, rejecting an unusual videotaped offer by airline owner Frank Lorenzo in separate contract negotiations, said Thursday they would refuse to cross machinist picket lines.

Jurors Rule For Former Bank Executive

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A Greenville bank teller who charged that her supervisor sexually harassed her failed to present enough evidence of those claims, said the foreman of a jury that decided in favor of the manager.

"We felt there was not enough evidence given," foreman Pat Crist of Apex said Thursday as other jurors nodded in agreement. "No one saw it."

Ms. Crist said jurors believed that Mary Denise Haughn had failed to present sufficient evidence to prove that William Glidewell, formerly a senior vice president for First Citizens Bank in Greenville, repeatedly fondled her breasts and buttocks at work and, on one occasion, tried to kiss her in the bank's vault.

Jurors said they had been influenced by Mrs. Haughn's attorneys' failure to call to the stand two bank employees whom Mrs. Haughn claimed could corroborate her story.

Annie Kennedy, an attorney for Mrs. Haughn, said, "We talked to a lot of people and felt we presented a complete case. Obviously, the jury felt otherwise."

Mrs. Kennedy said it was too early to decide whether to appeal.

The all-female Wake County Superior Court jury deliberated 1½ hours before deciding in favor of Glidewell, 56, of Winterville.

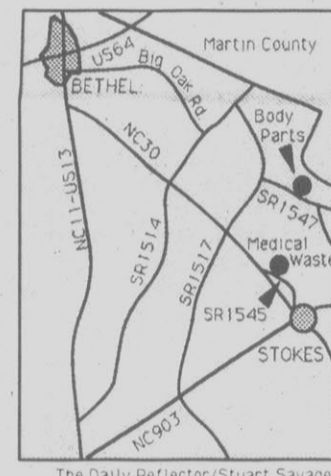

"I'm just delighted that the truth came out and that the jury saw it," Glidewell said afterward.

The verdict was also a victory for First Citizens, a co-defendant in the case. The bank was accused by Mrs. Haughn of having condoned Glidewell's behavior by not firing him after learning of the allegations.

Mrs. Haughn, 33, left the courtroom in tears and declined to comment on the decision.

When the verdict was announced, Glidewell stared straight ahead for a moment and then turned in his chair

State Says Gray To Aid In Probe

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Bethel funeral home owner John M. Gray of Raleigh has met with state health officials and agreed to cooperate with an investigation into medical waste and human body parts he has stored in Pitt County, a spokesman said today.

"We told him we need him to open the barns up and let our folks in," said Stephen Reid, spokesman for the solid waste management section of the state Division of Health Services. "Once they inventory and catalog the material and determine a method of proper disposal, we would advise him on contractors able to handle it."

Gray also has agreed to supply agents with a list of where and when he obtained the material, and attorneys were to begin today drawing up a consent agreement for the inspection, Reid said.

Gray, who owns Ayers-Gray Funeral Home in Bethel and Gray Funeral Home and Crematorium in Raleigh, apparently has stored medical waste, human ashes and body parts in at least four facilities in northern Pitt County near Stokes, said W.L. Meyer, head of the solid waste section.

Meyer said Gray will accompany state agents to the sites, and officials will also investigate other property owned by Gray.

Though Gray owns a crematorium in Raleigh, he is not licensed deal with medical waste such as syringes, blood bags or laboratory packs, Reid said. He is licensed only to dispose of dead bodies and body parts.

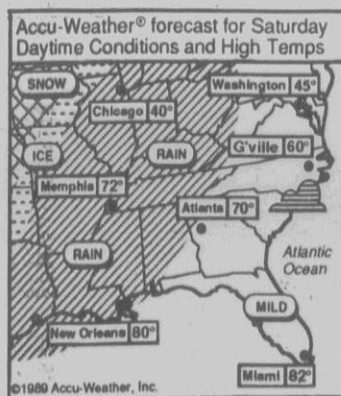

Gray claimed he did not know that he needed a permit to handle the material, Reid said.

"He said he went to these places originally knowing he was licensed to do bodies and body parts. These various agencies asked him if he could take this 'x' and 'y' waste additionally because they didn't know what to do with it, and he did (take it)," Reid said.

The explanation is plausible, he said, because others have often been confused about what licenses are

Former Robersonville Child Awaits Bone Marrow Transplant

By Carol Tyer
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A 3-year-old girl whose parents are Robersonville natives is in Cincinnati Children's Hospital as a bone marrow transplant candidate.

Cinnamon Brown, daughter of Robert Brown Jr. and Belinda White Brown, entered the hospital Sunday and is undergoing tests for determination as to whether she can benefit best from a bone marrow transplant from her mother or from the marrow from her own body being removed, irradiated and put back.

Doctors have said a transplant seems the only hope for Cinnamon's continuing to live. She has been first a lymphoma and then a lymphoma-leukemia patient since July 1987.

Her parents, both of whom are on leave of absence from their civilian jobs at Robins Air Force Base, Warner Robins, Ga., are with their daughter in Cincinnati. They are staying at the Ronald McDonald House near the hospital.

Being with Cinnamon in hospitals, most often in Georgia Memorial Hospital in Atlanta 200 miles from their home, has been the Browns' way of life for more than a year and a half. It was midsummer of 1987 when they first noticed a growth above one of her eyelids. They were soon told that she had cancer of the lymph glands and she has since developed a leukemic blood disorder.

Friends at home in Warner Robins are caring for the Browns' two older children, Candi, 6, and Antonius, 8.

"We'll never leave Cinnamon up here without at least one of us," her father said in a telephone interview. "But as soon as she either has the transplant or we know for sure the date it's to be done, my wife and I will start taking turns going home to be with our other children. It's hard for them as well as for Cinnamon and her mother and me."

Both the Browns grew up in Robersonville. His father, Robert Brown Sr., still lives there as do her parents, J.D. and Myrtle White. Both Robert and Belinda graduated from Robersonville High School and Robert graduated from N.C. A&T State University in 1975. After service in the U.S. Air Force which ended in 1980, he moved his family back to Robersonville for a while and then located a job at the Georgia air base and moved them there in

CINNAMON BROWN

1982. He is now employed as an inventory management specialist on the base, while his wife works as a security clerk.

"The people at work have been really good to us — our co-workers and our supervisors," he said. "We have been able to get off from work as much as we've needed to (in order) to be with Cinnamon. And people have helped us out a lot with child care and other needs."

Cinnamon has had 10 operations since she was first diagnosed. "In between surgeries and when she's not on heavy medication, she's a normal 3-year-old with lots of energy," her father said. "Of course, she feels pretty bad after each treatment or operation."

"My brother and his whole family are under a lot of stress," Robersonville resident Essie Mae Spruill said. She said she has asked her church, St. Mark's Church of Christ, Disciples of Christ, of Everetts to appeal for donations on Cinnamon's and her family's behalf. This is the church in which Robert Brown grew up and the church pastor, Bishop A.E. Brooks, said the church invites the eastern North Carolina community to join his congregation in assisting the family.

Belinda Brown said during the telephone interview that she understands the transplant and the related two to three months of care in the Ohio hospital will cost about $215,000. So far, she said, Cinnamon's care has cost about $100,000, with about 85 percent of the expenses the insurer considers allowable paid for.

"We have good health insurance," she said. "And I'm thankful for what's already been paid. We just don't know how much will be paid on the transplant care."

Anyone who would like to help the Browns financially or otherwise should contact Essie Mae Spruill, Route 1, Box 202, Robersonville, N.C., 27871. Her telephone number is 795-4861.

Donations may be sent to the Cinnamon Brown Assistance Fund, Robins Federal Credit Union, P.O. Box 2368, Warner Robins, Ga., 31093.

System Renovation

A major renovation to the Carolina Telephone system is under way on Greenville Boulevard west of Evans Street and will be extended to N.C. 11 before it is completed next week. CT&T engineering manager Roy Thompson said.

Thompson said workmen are pulling a fiber-optic cable through a conduit system under Greenville Boulevard and will take it to where it joins an AT&T cable near Chapman Street off N.C. 11.

"We apologize for the inconvenience to the motoring public," Thompson said. "This is work that has to be done to make our telephone system as good as possible. The manholes that we're using used to be off the highway, but since the highway's been widened, they're in it and we have to work right under it. We know it creates traffic problems and we're moving along just as quickly as we can."

Arsonist Says He Feared For His Life

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — An admitted arsonist testified that he feared he would be killed if a man who had hired him to burn a Wilson tobacco warehouse found out that he had become a government informant.

Ronnie Lee Stocks of Black Jack told a U.S. District Court jury on Thursday that he if had gone to jail after he was arrested, the man who hired him, identified by Stocks as Harvey Bowen of Ayden, "would get me out one way or the other: out of jail or out of the world."

Bowen, who died last year, "had said that if anybody set him up, it would take the National Guard to keep him from getting 'em," Stocks testified.

Because he had agreed to cooperate in an investigation of the fire, he was not jailed immediately.

Stocks, a key prosecution witness in the arson trial of the general manager and an owner of Liberty Warehouse, said he helped authorities for more than a year after his arrest in early 1987.

Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms attached a tape recorder to Stocks' back and sent him to secretly record conversations with Bowen, a target of the investigation. The agents wanted to obtain a recording of Bowen implicating warehouse manager J.T. "Tommy" Worthington Jr. of Greenville and his father, an owner of the warehouse.

The prosecution maintains that Bowen hired Stocks on behalf of the Worthingtons. Bowen was a major customer of the warehouse and, the prosecution says, a close friend of Tommy Worthington's.

The jury heard one of those tape recordings and was scheduled to listen to other tapes today.

Stocks, awaiting sentencing on a charge relating to the warehouse fire, testified that he was "a torch," or paid arsonist, who had been involved in other burnings for Bowen.

Boat Show Attracts 2,000 Spectators To First Day

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Over 2,000 people attended the opening day of the Eastern North Carolina Boat Show on Thursday and boat merchants say local consumers are responding favorably to what is being described as a 1980s "boating boom."

And, officials of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the show's sponsor, are predicting the project's success will result in it becoming an annual Greenville exhibition.

Continuing today through Sunday at the New Greenville Warehouse on the Pactolus Highway, the show features various sea-going craft including fresh and salt water fishing boats, ski boats, and cruisers.

Also on display is a variety of boating accessories such as fishing equipment, electronics and jet skis.

Chamber President Ed Walker said the show, which features over 50 dealers, is bringing visitors from throughout the region to Greenville.

"We had a real good day yesterday. There were a lot of sales reported and the dealers were happy. People attended all the way from Henderson, Kinston and Wilmington," he said. Walker said the initial positive response Thursday has chamber officials planning for another event in 1990. "The boat dealers here were very excited yesterday. We have some who are already asking us to reserve places for them next year," he said.

"One boat dealer, Carl deAndrade, owner of White Lake Marina, said Thursday's turnout was probably the largest first-day crowd at any show that he has participated in this year.

"We usually do three shows, Raleigh, Fayetteville and Myrtle Beach," deAndrade said. "But this year we opted to select the Greenville show over Myrtle Beach because I think this will be a much more successful show," he said.

According to deAndrade, the number of vessels zooming across the nation's lakes and waterways has increased dramatically over the past few years.

The inboard motor boat in particular has really skyrocketed. It is the fastest growing of the boats on the market right now," he said.

Contributing to that increase, he said, are consumers with more disposable income, and better financing terms available, with up to 144-month payment plans in some cases.

"Most boat buyers have a budget in mind for a boat and the magic number seems to be something between $200 to $300 per month. No matter what the price of the boat may be, if the financing is such that you can get them in there for that budgeted amount, they'll buy a boat," he said.

Carl Mayo, sales manager at Park Boat Co. of Washington, N.C., stood next to a 17-foot runabout as he offered his observations. "For the consumer, a boat is a very affordable luxury," he said.

"Boats selling for $8,000 to $9,000 can be financed for as long as 84 months, while boats selling for $11,000 to $12,000 can be financed for as long as 120 months.

"Because of that long-term financing, your payments can be brought down to a very affordable range," he said.

Mayo, who said his dealership participates in about 10 shows per year, says he has "high hopes" for the Eastern North Carolina Boat Show.

"This area is in dire need of a show of this magnitude and size and I think it will become more and more successful every year. If a larger facility becomes available, they'll fill that, too," he said.

Mayo said that typically, a dealer will not know the sales success of a show until Friday evening or until Saturday of an event. "The first part of the week you have a lot of people who are just looking, trying to make up their minds. They don't actually make up their mind until toward the weekend," he said.

Mayo added, "We think that boat shows are essential to our business and I think it's also an excellent opportunity for the customer."

One of the 2,000 people who attended the boat show on Thursday was Richard Lamotte of Greenville.

"This is one of the best shows I've seen, they've got everything," he said, while looking over a 19-foot ski boat.

Lamotte, who thinks he might attend the show again over the weekend, said boat shows offer people an opportunity to examine a variety of craft.

"You get a choice, you get to look at everything and see just what you like and what everybody has to offer," he said.

Boat owner James Stallings of Ayden said he attended the show primarily to examine the latest innovations in accessories.

"I'm here to look at items like depth gauges," Stallings said.

Hours for the boat show are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today through Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Court Backs Green Appeal

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The state Supreme Court has ruled that a Bethel man sentenced to death by a Pitt County jury in 1984 should be allowed to present evidence that prosecutors were racially motivated in their jury selection.

Harvey Lee Green Jr. of Bethel, 28, pleaded guilty to two counts of first-degree murder after killing two people during a robbery at a Bethel dry cleaner, and a jury sentenced him to two death sentences.

Green questioned whether the prosecution was racially motivated in its peremptory challenges to jurors.

In a death case, both the prosecution and defense may excuse up to 14 jurors with peremptory challenges, and they do not have to state any reason for the dismissals.

If either side believes a potential juror cannot be objective in deciding the case, attorneys may also challenge the juror for cause, and a judge will decide whether to dismiss the juror.

The state Supreme Court had already sent the Green case back to Pitt Superior Court one time to decide whether the prosecution's peremptory challenges were racial, but a judge refused to allow Green to present any evidence.

But, the Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the lower court should have allowed Green to present evidence.

The state Appellate Defender's Office handled Green's appeal, and the Supreme Court heard arguments in the case in February of 1988, as well as last summer when the high court looked at a number of cases in a review of the state's death penalty law.

Other researchers helped break the spy ring by providing false information. He said someone linked to East bloc groups wrote the laboratory asking for related information, leading authorities to crack the ring. He did not elaborate.

Alexander Prechtel, spokesman for the Federal Prosecutor's Office in Karlsruhe, said police in Hanover arrested two computer hackers on "suspicion of espionage activities for an eastern European intelligence agency." Another suspect was arrested in West Berlin, he said.

He said five others were under investigation.

He said investigators are trying to assess how much damage was caused to Western security interests.

Farm Sludge

RALEIGH (AP) — Thousands of tons of treated sewage sludge that formerly went into city and county landfills will soon be spread across farmland in North Carolina.

To ensure that neighboring residents can rely on more than just their noses to tell them when the tanker trucks roll in, a House committee approved a bill Thursday that would require public notice of plans for any such land application.

The bill would require that notice be given for public comment 45 days before the Division of Environmental Management considers issuing a permit.

Veto Bill Would Exclude Martin

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Weeks of non-partisan debate in a Senate subcommittee over the issue of gubernatorial veto ended Thursday with claims of "blackmail" and "political pettiness" when the full Senate approved a version that would not give the power to Gov. Jim Martin if enacted.

Sen. Bob Martin of Bethel said this morning, "I voted for it (the original veto bill)."

But Martin said he did not agree with an amendment that calls for the veto power to take effect in 1993 rather than in 1991. "I believe it was a mistake not to include the present governor's term," he said. "I voted against (the amendment) excluding him (Gov. Martin)."

As for the general question of gubernatorial veto, Martin said, "I think it's good that we've gotten around to it. We should have had it some time ago as far as I'm concerned.

"I just think it's good legislation. It's just another check and balance in our system," Martin suggested.

Sen. Tom Taft of Greenville could not be reached for comment this morning.

Rep. Ed Warren of Greenville said, "I'm supportive of veto power for the governor." But, he said, "I can not address the amendments until they get on the floor of the House. There will probably be other amendments, but I'm in favor of the veto."

Rep. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville, chairman of the House's subcommittee on election laws and constitutional amendments, said the Senate bill, as well as four House bills already introduced, would be assigned to his committee.

"My position on the veto," Jones said today, "has been for a number of years that I think the people of North Carolina should have the opportunity to vote on giving the governor veto power. And that's exactly what, in my opinion, will happen."

Jones said that, "We will look at the House bills before we look at the Senate bill. But I do believe that when the 1989 session ends, a bill will be passed to give the people an opportunity to vote on veto for the governor."

According to Jones, his committee will begin considering the House veto bills on March 14 and March 15. He said a hearing will be held on each of the four House measures before any vote is taken.

The final 41-6 vote Thursday to approve a proposed constitutional amendment on gubernatorial veto belied the sometimes bitter debate waged over the issue.

According to The Associated Press, Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, denounced Majority Leader Ted Kaplan for proposing an amendment to have the veto take effect after Martin's term expires.

Teachers Object To Strings On Pay Plan

vary from system to system.

The association also is lobbying against Martin's career development plan.

Area legislators attending the rally Thursday said they feel the heat from teachers to increase salaries for public educators, and they encouraged the teachers to continue their efforts to get a better pay scale.

"In 1982, the freeze helped create some of the problems we're now facing — not all of the problems but some of the problems," Rep. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville said.

Bills introduced in the House and Senate will put salary and other education issues on the table, Jones said.

The new House speaker, Joe Mavretic, "is dedicated to education and the investment of teaching in North Carolina," the legislator said. Mavretic also is aware of the weaknesses and strengths of the Basic Education and Career Ladder programs and has promised that they will be re-evaluated, Jones said.

"Continue to be politically aware and to organize and to know what's going on in Raleigh" through NCAE representatives, Jones said to the teachers. "I will not be satisfied until you're at the top of the list in this nation."

Sen. Tom Taft of Greenville told the group he is opposed to a salary freeze this year and is opposed to the career ladder program. He said he favors looking at modifications in the BEP. "I'm in favor of every item in the NCAE package."

He told the teachers they need not apologize or relent for going after what they want, but "that doesn't mean you'll get everything that you want but look at what you've already done."

Taft said that if Martin had listened to constituents and representatives two years ago when he proposed and received tax cuts in the state, the money would be available to give teachers a 10 percent salary increase. State teachers would not have dropped from ranking 28th in the nation on teachers' salaries to ranking 29th.

"I share that responsibility. All of us in the Legislature share some of that responsibility," Taft said.

Rep. Ed Warren of Greenville said the Legislature needed to make the commitment for raising teachers' salaries as it did in improving the state's highways.

"We need to do the same thing for better schools," he said. "What good are highways if we don't have people who can read the signs."

Sen. Bob Martin of Bethel said he is willing to accept a challenge put forth to him by a classroom teacher. "She said, 'I'm willing to do my part in the classroom if you're willing to do your part in the Senate.'"

Martin said, "I accept that challenge."

Beaufort County Rep. Howard Chapin, having been an educator for more than 30 years, said he understood the teachers' issues and they have his support.

Others participating in the rally included Donna Mills, a classroom teacher who is working a second job to make ends meet. She recited her poem titled "Lament," which expressed the conditions of her needing a second job and the hardship it creates.

Cameron Cox III, a senior at Conley, said he wanted to become a classroom teacher because he wanted to touch someone's life and to become a sculpture who molds the future.

He told the teachers, "You do a lot for us, and I'd like to do the same for someone else. I think it's time we gave back to the teachers what they gave to us."

and exchanged a broad smile with his wife, Judy. Friends and family members then rushed to embrace him.

First Citizens' spokesman Alex MacFadyen Jr. said the jury's decision "supports and upholds the (personnel) procedures that the bank has in place and which were applied in this particular instance."

Harvey L. Kennedy III, another attorney for Mrs. Haughn, had asked the jury to award $15.6 million to his client. The request included $900,000 to compensate Mrs. Haughn for her "severe emotional distress" and punitive damages of $13.7 million against the bank and $1 million against Glidewell.

Mrs. Haughn claimed that Glidewell had fondled her breasts and buttocks on several occasions over three years while she worked as a teller at the bank.

Mrs. Haughn's most serious claim was that Glidewell grabbed her in the bank's vault Feb. 26, 1987, and twice tried to force his tongue in her mouth. She said she had left the vault in tears and quickly went home.

Glidewell was transferred to Kinston and relieved of his supervisory powers shortly after Mrs. Haughn filed a harassment charge with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission in March 1987.

He denied ever harassing female employees or using sexually suggestive language.

Second-graders at Falkland Elementary School recently experimented with magnets under the direction of Jerry Everhart, a science resource teacher in the Pitt County schools.

Centers were set up using an electro-magnet, a fishing pole, iron shavings, a balance, a shuffle board and magnets.

Educator Spoke

Ebbie Hatton, dental health educator, recently spoke to Betsy Smith's kindergarten and first-grade classes at Falkland Elementary School.

She demonstrated proper brushing and flossing techniques, snack foods to avoid, the right kind of toothbrush and the causes of cavities. A slide show was presented featuring "Richard's Mouth," which demonstrated the use of disclosing tablets.

Shelly Harrington, a freshman at Peace College, has been initiated into the national honor society for college freshmen and sophomores studying Spanish.

Ms. Harrington was accepted by Sigma Delta Mu, Beta Chapter of North Carolina, for maintaining a "B" average, ranking in the upper 35 percent of her class and demonstrating interest in Hispanic studies.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Harrington of Greenville.

High Stakes

Too Much Doubt, Too Much Risk

When in doubt, do nothing. That's the axiom North Carolina should abide by when it comes to exploratory drilling for natural gas off its coast.

There's too much doubt, too much uncertainty, too many unanswerable questions. The stakes are too high, both in dollars and resources, to allow Mobil Oil to conduct what could be a wild goose chase for gas — at the expense of North Carolina's coast.

What Mobil wants to do is drill into the ocean bottom 47 miles off Dare County on a geologic formation known as the Norfolk arch. In that area, the ocean currents are strong because of the Gulf Stream and the sea bottom is uneven. Wind is often fierce, waves are powerful and weather conditions unpredictable. It is a most fickle environment for a process where one mishap could produce inestimable ecological damage — and accompanying economic damage.

Mobil admits this ambiguity. The company plainly says it has never drilled in these conditions. It admits the statements about safety and estimates on potential risks are just guesses. That's not sufficient information to warrant a green light for drilling.

When answering the questions of fishermen and leaders in public hearings, Mobil has shown only a faint knowledge of the history of these treacherous waters. Hundreds of ships lie on the ocean bottom near Cape Hatteras, victims of erratic, dangerous seas. For this peril the coast has been dubbed "Graveyard of the Atlantic." When asked by the public if it knew what that nickname meant, Mobil attributed the moniker to numerous pirate attacks in the previous century.

Now let's talk a bit about the stakes involved in this gamble. North Carolina's coast means food, shelter and a productive life to many people. Fishing and tourism — industries dependent on resources — dominate the economies of coastal counties.

Revenue from those interests are no small potatoes, either to the counties or the state.

Dare County ranked fourth in the state in 1987 in revenue from tourism, behind urban Mecklenburg, Wake and Guilford counties. According to the N.C. Department of Travel and Tourism, Dare County netted $399 million in that year — seven percent of the state share — in travel-related income.

Up and down North Carolina's northern coast, that story is repeated: Currituck County, $2.8 million; Hyde County, $15.6 million.

People come to North Carolina's beaches to swim, relax and enjoy the beauty. Take the away the recreational resources and you take away this income — and the tax revenue it brings to the state.

In addition, commercial fishing was a $65.7 million industry in 1987. That may not sound like big bait, but it lured a big catch for the economies of coastal counties.

Ocean drilling poses distinct risks for each of these industries. In petroleum exploration, the drill used becomes extremely hot from the friction of penetrating rock. It is cooled with a "mud" that is discharged into the water. That mud is toxic to marine life. Mobil says that substance will kill all shrimp within a five mile radius of the drilling rig, although the company admits the damage could extend into a larger area — 10 or 15 miles, depending on wind and water conditions.

This mud might also be pushed up onshore by strong northeast winds common to the Outer Banks. An attractive proposition for beaches lined with swimmers, sunseekers and fishermen.

Besides, Dare County wouldn't even get any financial benefit from the threat to its resources. Mobil has placed its North Carolina office in Morehead City, far from the area made vulnerable by drilling.

There are also strong conservation considerations. Cape Hatteras National Seashore, located in Dare County, is an undeveloped, unspoiled coastal wilderness. Its pristine environment is one-of-a-kind. The nation has a large financial investment in this area and a huge responsibility to protect both this investment and the resources it contains.

There are far too many unknowns surrounding exploratory drilling off North Carolina's coast. The company doesn't know the environmental impact; it doesn't know how safe or dangerous such a project would be. Nobody knows how harsh weather conditions and volatile currents and eddies will impair the drilling process. Nobody knows if the gas is really underneath the ocean bottom.

Unless these questions can be answered with more assurance, no drilling should occur. When in doubt, do nothing.

'The stakes are too high, both in dollars and resources, to allow Mobil Oil to conduct what could be a wild goose chase for gas ...'

Low Marks In Civics For Taft

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — If Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, had been graded on the answer he gave teachers recently, he'd probably have been required to do some extra studying.

Taft was called out of the Senate chamber to meet Pitt County teachers during the teachers march on the legislature. As he stood among about 100 teachers outside the chamber's main door, one asked him how he felt about the freeze on the teacher salary pay scale.

"That's an executive act," Taft replied. "The governor can lift the freeze."

Most of the teachers were stunned by the response, unsure if they misunderstood the situation, or if Taft did. But the topic was dropped.

Because the legislature has to agree with Gov. Jim Hunt to freeze salary steps back in 1982, this reporter asked Taft about his answer the next day. He said that he thought the action had been taken by Gov. Jim Martin, "and that's why I told them to do see the man who had taken the action."

But a few days later Taft was back, saying he has been mistaken. No, the governor did not freeze the salary schedules, no it wasn't an executive action. In North Carolina, the legislature passes a budget, and the governor does not even have the authority to veto it.

That's a basic civics lesson Sen. Taft must have missed.

Legislators must often neglect their business to serve in Raleigh. But at least one House member is making the best of the time he spends away from the Beaufort hotel he owns.

Rep. Bruce Ethridge, D-Carteret, is parking his van on the corner of Wilmington and Lane streets almost every day. It's one of the busiest intersections in the city and it gives his van — which sports an advertisement for the Beaufort Inn across the back window — great visibility.

"Wherever I go, I park in the most visible place I can find," Ethridge said. It's just good business.

Sen. Richard Chalk, R-Guilford, a senator for two months, appears to be quickly forgetting his roots in the state House, where he served two terms.

During a Senate committee debate on longer legislative terms, Chalk kiddingly suggested that senators serve four-year terms, while House members continue to serve only two-year terms.

The next day, in a joint appropriations committee meeting, he took another job at his former colleagues.

With the House members on the committee taking a separate vote on a motion, Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, quipped that the two houses had to vote separately on the motion because "it was too darned complicated for these House people." To which Sen. Chalk replied, "I wonder if we should help them now, or fix (the bill) up later?"

On the day that legislators traded their temporary offices for those they'll use for the rest of the session, Rep. Doris Huffman, R-Catawba, was stranded. She'd moved out of her office but found her new office still occupied.

As she wandered the legislative hallways with no place to sit, she ran into Don Saunders, a legal aid lobbyist who specializes in housing issues and in helping the homeless.

"You just let me know," Saunders said to Mrs. Huffman. "If there is anything I can do, I'll happy."

A Marketplace For Ideas, Not Products

BOSTON — Let me begin by saying that I do not think Chris Whittle is a capitalist pig. Honest, Chris. Some of my best friends are entrepreneurs.

If I were to characterize the genial and creative head of Whittle Communications (and after our several conversations, I think I am entitled to), I would describe him as one of those people who want to do well by doing good. Like the pop business manuals say, he thinks of a crisis as an opportunity.

The crisis at hand is the miserable state of education. To talk to Whittle is to hear the word "cultural illiteracy" sprinkled like crumbs along a path of reasoning he wants you to follow. He talks earnestly about teen-agers who think the Holocaust is a Jewish holiday and Geraldine Ferraro is a talk-show host.

The opportunity, as he sees it, is to produce and beam a national news program right into the schools. He would provide color TV monitors, VCRs, satellite dishes and ten minutes of fairly zippy daily news. In return, the schools would provide a guaranteed teen-age audience for two minutes of commercials.

The test run of this trade-off is a program called Channel One that will begin on Monday in schools in Kansas City, Detroit, Knoxville, Cerritos, Calif., Billerica, Mass., and Cincinnati. If all goes well, Whittle hopes that Channel One will be broadcast in 8,000 high schools, which means that more teen-agers would see this than any other program except the Super Bowl. Commercial heaven.

Whittle likes to talk about this — indeed likes to think about this — as "an enlightened partnership between the business community and the educational community." It's an entrepreneur trying to take some of those juicy advertising dollars and transfer them into schools while making a profit along the way.

All of which makes it harder for him to understand the opposition. Peggy Charren, head of Action for Children's Television (ACT), calls this a "Great Big Gorgeous Trojan Horse." If the schools go for this trade-off, she says, "they might as well auction off the school day to the highest bidder."

Arnold Fege of the National PTA also calls this a "pernicious trade-off." Imagine, he says, students being required by the schools to watch Pizza Hut commercials. "The prime intent is to use the public schools to sell a product."

This classic standoff makes Channel One look more like a wrestling match than a news show. The entrepreneur describes his work as an example of the "private sector getting involved in the public sector." It's private enterprise creating (profitable) solutions for public problems.

Ellen Goodman

Public-interest advocates point to this as a blatant example of the "privatization of the public world." The school day, like a national park, is being leased, minute by minute, acre by acre, to private industry.

If the schools allow advertising on television, says Charren, in high dudgeon, what's to stop them from having advertising in a textbook? If those ads mean that the schools could afford twice as many books, says Whittle, let's hear it for the ads.

This argument about values is likely to be replayed throughout the 1990s as strapped communities try to get more bang for their diminished tax bucks. The schools want business involved in partnership. The business community has a vested interest in an educated work force and citizenry.

'Channel One — at least in its prototype — is a slick if rather lightweight daily news hit. It will sorely tempt any school principal to trade a captive student audience for some video equipment. But schools are expected to teach students values rather than deals. How does a principal explain this commercial exchange? That he sold his students, literally? Must the teachers enforce required viewing of messages from Nike or McDonald's?'

But it is one thing when business is interested in young people as students. Quite another when they are interested in students as consumers. It is one thing when the marketplace supports the schools. Quite another when the schools become a marketplace.

Channel One — at least in its prototype — is a slick if rather lightweight daily news hit. It will sorely tempt any school principal to trade a captive student audience for some video equipment.

But schools are expected to teach students values rather than deals. How does a principal explain this commercial exchange? That he sold his students, literally? Must the teachers enforce required viewing of messages from Nike or McDonald's?

At the very minimum, the schools become the sponsors of commercials. This is a deal they can refuse. The schools are not commercial turf. They are the marketplace for ideas.

Legislators Push Waste Site Plans

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — As Gov. Jim Martin worked to get South Carolina officials to keep taking North Carolina's hazardous waste, legislative efforts to site a waste site went into high gear.

Sen. Lura Tally, D-Cumberland, told the Senate Environment and Natural Resources Committee to shoot for Senate approval by March 15. She said Martin has been working with South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell to determine what would constitute a "good faith" effort to locate a North Carolina waste site.

"He (Martin) has some pretty good assurances that we may be able to open up a (South Carolina) site if we continue moving ahead," Mrs. Tally said.

Campbell issued an executive order to prohibit importation of hazardous waste into a disposal facility in Pinewood, S.C., hoping to spur North Carolina to revive its own work on a facility.

Much of the initial committee debate centered on how much power to give Martin, who has said he is willing to take the political heat for a siting decision.

Sen. J.K. Sherron, D-Wake, questioned whether the governor should be allowed to choose a site from those proposed by a newly created Industrial Waste Management Commission.

"There is no agency in North Carolina ... that can acquire title to any property unless it is approved by the governor and council of state," he said. "If you take this power and give it to the governor, you're doing something that has never been done before in the history of this state."

Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, said it would take some extraordinary powers to expedite the bill and the siting process.

"Otherwise, we're going to be caught up in the not-in-my-backyard philosophy," he said. "Our whole economy is going to come to a screeching halt in our state if we don't do something about this ... immediately."

Sen. Fountain Odom, D-Mecklenburg, worried that the new commission would not be able to use information collected by the Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission that failed to find a site in the face of heavy public opposition.

However, George Givens, committee counsel, said much of the data collected could be reused, as long as it followed new objective siting criteria designed to defuse opposition.

The committee heard horror stories of the previous effort to find a waste site. The old commission narrowed a list of hundreds of sites to two western sites in the fall of 1987. A public hearing on a Davidson County site drew 15,000 people.

"As a result of that, the treatment commission began holding meetings in executive session," Givens said. The panel decided it needed a larger site and chose a 2,500-acre plot in Lee County.

In the face of more opposition, the General Assembly put the search on hold and started a study of the issue last year.

Martin's call for responsibility and the findings of the study commission were rolled into the bill facing the Senate.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, president pro tem of the Senate, warned senators on the floor Thursday that the bill would be coming on a strict timetable.

Martin Orders Firms To Reduce Wastes

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Drawing praise from environmentalists, Gov. Jim Martin has ordered that businesses demonstrate a commitment to reducing the amount of waste they produce before receiving permits to discharge wastes.

The governor's executive order "really reorients our focus in North Carolina to look first to waste reduction and only to treatment after we have done everything that we can to reduce waste," said Steve Levitas, director of the Environmental Defense Fund.

The order "may very well be his (Martin's) most important environmental protection initiative to date," said Levitas, who appeared with Martin at a news conference Thursday.

Martin also urged the state Environmental Management Commission to expedite development and implementation of rules to control emissions of toxic air pollutants and to set ambient air standards for toxic pollutants.

"The environment is obviously ailing and we need to take some medicine," Martin said. "Responsible leadership demands that we take our heads out of the sand and look at this."

The Republican governor, whose record on pollution issues has drawn some criticism from environmentalists, developed his executive order Wednesday at a meeting with several environmental protection groups.

It directs state agencies to: — Require applicants for permits for wastewater discharge or waste incineration to prove they have reduced the volume, pollutant level or toxicity as much as technologically and economically feasible.

— Certify that each facility generating, treating, storing, recycling or disposing of hazardous waste has a waste minimization program as required by federal law.

— In the case of the EMC, quicken its development of rules to control emissions of toxic air pollutants from incinerators and require any permits issued from now on to provide "adequate control of toxic air emissions" under EMC standards.

The EMC also was ordered to develop ambient air standards for toxic air pollutants as soon as possible. Ambient air is free-flowing in the atmosphere as opposed to air discharged from a smokestack or other container.

Some industries might view his order as "a possible threat to their security and competitiveness in the marketplace," Martin said. But he said in the long run, the new policy will be a business asset. The state Solid and Hazardous Waste Section will continue to provide technical assistance to North Carolina industries as they develop waste reduction plans, Martin said.

"With the help of these agencies, North Carolina industries can continue to be good environmental citizens and gain a head start on their competitors in other states," he said.

The governor said his order is designed to complement a bill pending in the state Senate that would revive the effort to find a location for a hazardous waste treatment facility.

Error Is Found In Cleanup Cost

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEVILLE — The discovery of a misplaced decimal point that inflated the apparent level of a groundwater contaminant 1,000 times has changed the method and cost of cleanup planned at the Chemtronics Superfund site in Swannanoa.

The change will save the companies responsible for the pollution nearly $3 million, officials said.

In tests two years ago to determine how to contain the contamination at the various chemical dumps scattered around the site, one of the worst dumps was found to have a byproduct of the powerful hallucinogen BZ at a level of 470 parts per million.

But later tests confirmed a suspicion that a hired laboratory made a transcription error and the actual level was 470 parts per billion, said Jon Bornholm of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

With the revision, the cost of the cleanup will drop from about $8 million to about $5 million, Schultheis said.

Whiskey Boycott Sponsors Retreat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — What might be called a warning shot across the bows of Tennessee was withdrawn when sponsors dropped support of a bill to boycott whiskey made in the neighboring state.

Sen. Bob Swain and Dennis Winer, both Buncombe County Democrats, had filed the bill after Tennessee reneged on an environmental agreement that would have let a Champion paper mill remain in business in Canton.

Swain told the Senate Judiciary I Committee Thursday the bill had "served whatever useful purpose it was meant to serve."

Winner implied there might be some concessions made over the color of wastewater the Champion mill would be allowed to discharge into the Pigeon River that flows into Tennessee.

"We're hoping to get them back to the negotiating table," he said.

Swain, however, refused to give any inkling of what might be afoot.

"If there is anything in the wind, I'm certainly not going to jeopardize it by letting people guess about it," he said.

The decision to drop the bill drew some tongue-in-cheek comments from committee members.

Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, said he had heard from Swain's mountain constituents that they might take advantage of the bill to market more moonshine.

Sen. George Daniel, D-Caswell, expressed relief that, since he was presiding over the committee, he wouldn't have to "do anything against my family name."

Sen. Jim Ezzell, D-Nash, jokingly proposed the bill be approved, saying, "You might could still get a lot of mileage out of this thing."

Swain finally grew tired of the ribbing, saying, "I'm feeling like the wildcat that tried to make love to the skunk. I've enjoyed about all of this I can stand."

Moderates Authorize Seminary

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENVILLE, S.C. — In a defiant move against the theological conservatives who run the Southern Baptist Convention, a coalition of moderate Baptists has voted to create its own independent seminary.

Members of the moderate Southern Baptist Alliance voted 462-42 on Thursday to create a seminary in Richmond, Va., that would reach out to all nine Baptist denominations as well as people of different ethnic backgrounds.

The new seminary would be located on or near the campus of the predominantly black Virginia Union University, which has a Baptist School of Theology. Leaders of the Southern Baptist Alliance said they hope to open the new seminary as soon as they can raise the necessary $500,000 and finalize plans.

"It's a very risky, bold step and a lot of things have to be worked out before it's truly a reality," said the Rev. M. Mahan Siler of Pullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh, N.C. Pullen is one of 23 North Carolina churches that belong to the Alliance.

The Alliance also supports proposals for a divinity school at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C., and a program of Baptist studies at Duke University in Durham, N.C.

The Rev. Tom Graves of Charlotte, N.C., said there are enough Southern Baptists seeking a moderate theological education to fill all of the programs.

The proposed seminary will be Baptist in character but will strive to be ecumenical and inclusive of women and minorities, said Graves, who resigned from the faculty of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C., after conservatives took over the board of trustees.

Southeastern has educated a large percentage of Southern Baptists in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia for the past three decades but some faculty and students have become alarmed by its increasing conservative drift.

Siler and other supporters of the proposed new seminary hailed it as a step toward revitalization for the historically white denomination.

Zoo Gorilla Has Youngster

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hope, a rare lowland gorilla, has given birth at the North Carolina Zoological Park, but the proud keepers said Thursday they don't know yet whether to send out notices in pink or blue.

"Hope is holding the infant in the proper position and clutching it close to her body, which is a very good sign. The baby has also been seen to be moving and clutching Hope as well," said Rod Hackney, a spokesman for the zoo.

As long as mother does her duty, the pair will be observed from a distance so the gorillas' bonding process is not disturbed, officials said.

Hope gave birth in her night holding quarters at 10:40 p.m. Wednesday, Hackney said. The area is next to the gorilla habitat in the zoo's African Pavilion, which is home to a number of exotic cats, birds and primates.

Because Hope was raised with other gorillas in a zoo in New Iberia, La., zoo officials say she may have no problem taking care of her baby.

Jessica Visits Heritage USA

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Jessica Hahn, visiting Heritage USA for the first time since her tryst with former PTL leader Jim Bakker was revealed, said she was saddened that the ministry had fallen on hard times.

Of Jim and Tammy Bakker, she said: "I used to love them too. They started out small. But then people started worshipping them. Money and power entered the picture and it all fell apart."

"Jim Bakker to me was an incredible preacher," Ms. Hahn told a caller to a radio station Thursday. "But then he took money and said, 'One for me and one for God.'"

Ms. Hahn, here for a two-day promotional tour, rode in a white stretch limousine to the Heritage Grand Hotel, then spent about an hour touring the grounds and signing autographs. She stopped at the Heritage Village Church and stood at the pulpit where Bakker had gained much of his fame.

"Look how lonely this place is," she said as she walked through the empty shops of a mall on the grounds of the 2,300-acre complex. "There's only one lady in there. That shouldn't be."

At one point, two young girls who were walking with their father caught Ms. Hahn's attention.

"See that little girl — that's who should be here," Hahn said. "This place should be here for the kids."

Ruth Dennis, a PTL "partner" from Pennsylvania, was at the hotel when Hahn arrived.

"I don't think this is necessary," Ms. Dennis said about Ms. Hahn's visit. "This all happened in the past. It's time to rebuild and do the Lord's work."

Governor Rules Out Effort To Increase Cigarette Tax

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Protesting teachers might have persuaded Gov. Jim Martin to look for new revenue to raise their salaries, but not at risk of offending the state's powerful tobacco industry.

Martin quickly ruled out a higher tax on cigarettes Thursday, saying it would harm the North Carolina economy and send a bad signal to other states that are less hesitant about taxing smokers.

"You'd serve notice on a lot of people that if you do business in North Carolina, you're going to be put at a competitive disadvantage," he said. "That would not be good for our state."

An increase in the excise tax, he said, "would immediately lead to other states going up a comparable amount."

On another issue, Martin defended the state's withdrawal of a contract from Massachusetts-based Data General and said the move did not result from complaints by IBM, which unsuccessfully bid on the contract, or from intervention by a Martin political supporter.

Rep. David Redwine, D-

Brunswick, said Thursday he might seek a 2-cents-per-pack tax on all cigarettes manufactured in North Carolina. The tax would generate $350 million per year and would replace the current 2-cent cigarette excise tax, which produces $16 million.

"That would provide raises for a lot of state employees and teachers," Redwine said, adding that he was undecided on introducing the bill. "I'm a pragmatic enough politician to know that you don't fall on a sword if there's no chance of winning."

Word of his proposal has provoked an outcry from the tobacco industry.

Redwine said the bulk of his tax would be paid by people in other states and nations, since most cigarettes made in North Carolina are shipped elsewhere.

"As domestic consumption decreases ... you have had an increase in foreign consumption," he Buzz Wetzel, of Zanesville, Ohio, disagreed.

"I think it's her privilege to be here," he said.

As Ms. Hahn was viewing one of the park's religious attractions, the father of the two young girls approached her and said: "Their daddy was a TV cameraman for more than four years until he got laid off."

Ms. Hahn responded, "Oh God, I'm so sorry to hear that."

"I'm just glad the truth came out," he told her.

Afterwards, Ms. Hahn admitted she was deeply affected by the brief conversation.

"It hurts," she said. "These are the people who got hurt."

Earlier, Ms. Hahn, wearing a black shirt, tight blue jeans and cowboy boots, answered about 20 calls during a call-in segment of a show at rock station WRFX. All of the callers were supportive and station officials insisted they were not screened.

"To me, Jim Bakker was like God," Ms. Hahn said in response to a caller's question during a three-hour appearance at the station. "Now I know he's a wimp."

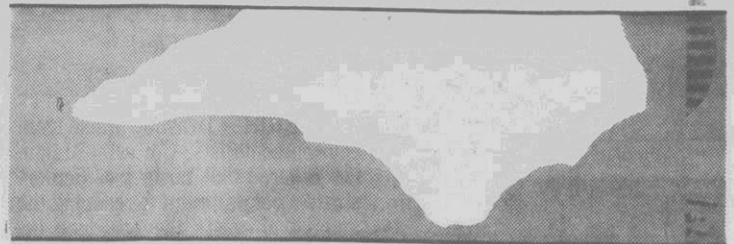

"For me not to get a single negative call, especially in Charlotte, meant a lot to me," she said. "I didn't know what to expect. I appreciate that people understand, that they have an open mind."

During the show, the new managers of Heritage USA called to offer her a guided tour. The facility was recently sold in bankruptcy proceedings to Canadian businessman Stephen Mernick.

In an interview, Ms. Hahn said she was paid less than $10,000 for the promotional appearance but declined to be more specific.

She last visited Charlotte in September 1987 to testify before a federal grand jury investigating PTL.

IN THE STATE

TV Charges

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The owners of two Chapel Hill bars have been charged with theft of cable television service after the bars showed the Mike Tyson-Frank Bruno heavyweight title fight last weekend without paying for the program, authorities said.

Carolina Cable lodged charges against Cynthia Shaffer, the owner of Bub O'Malley's Pub, and Hugh Donohue Sr., the owner of The Four Corners Restaurant. Carolina Cable offers cable television service to the Chapel Hill area through a franchise with the Chapel Hill Town Council.

Theft of cable television service is a misdemeanor. The maximum punishment is a $500 fine or 30 days in prison, according to Orange County District Attorney Carl Fox.

Conviction

GREENSBORO (AP) — An Atlanta man has been found guilty on federal charges of helping Greensboro chiropractor Russell Cobb fraudulently obtain $5.7 million in loans from credit and leasing companies.

David A. Hargas was convicted in U.S. District Court in Winston-Salem on 24 counts of aiding Cobb with the interstate transportation of $3.7 million that prosecutors said was obtained by fraud.

U.S. District Judge Richard Erwin set sentencing for April 19 and allowed Hargas to be released on a $200,000 bond until then. Each count carries up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Concrete Rescue

JONESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Adrenaline and divine intervention enabled two women to lift a 1,000-pound ring of concrete off the broken legs of a man pinned beneath it Wednesday morning, the women said.

"We tried to lift it, and the man said, 'Please, get it off me,' so we just got our hands under it and just surged. That's all I know," said Hilda Harker, 47, of Arlington.

C.L. Payne, 27, of Dobson and another employee of Landform Construction Co. were installing a pre-cast concrete manhole when the manhole slipped off a front-end loader and fell on his legs.

Ms. Harker and Barbara Childress, 34, of Jonesville were working nearby at the Jonesville Child Development Center when they heard the accident. The two women ran the 50 yards to where Payne was pinned.

When the other construction worker used the front-end loader to raise one edge of the concrete ring, they worked with their hands until the concrete slipped.

Woman Elected

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 30-year-old woman has been elected president of the Greensboro Jaycees, the state's largest Jaycee chapter and the third largest in the United States.

Mary Schott is the first female president in the chapter's 52-year history. The national Jaycee organization began accepting women in 1985 after a U.S. Supreme Court ruling requiring it.

Ms. Schott was elected Wednesday night.

The Jaycees sponsor projects throughout the year in Greensboro, the best known being the $1 million K mart Greater Greensboro Open.

Testimony Ordered

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. Skip Stam, R-Wake, has been ordered to testify whether he advised a member of a Cary church to reveal to the congregation the content of diaries kept by the church's former youth minister.

Stam, an Apex lawyer who was elected to the General Assembly last fall, had refused to answer questions concerning conversations he had with client David Martin, a member of First Baptist Church of Cary. Stam had argued that any advice he had given Martin was protected by the lawyer-client privilege.

But Superior Court Judge J. Milton Read of Durham ruled that Stam must reveal the advice he gave to Martin. The ruling was made public in a court document filed this week.

BILL & DELORES WINDER

Bill and Delores are laypersons who travel full time in a teaching, healing, evangelistic ministry. Wherever they go, they minister God's healing power with a warm, gentle love and with real authority. Their aim is to restore the healing ministry to the church and to equip clergy and laypeople to minister within their own congregation.

Delores personally knows what it means to be healed by God. She spent 19 years in constant pain eased only by a tight fitting bodycast and by surgery to sever the nerves in her spinal cord. Near death in 1975, she was completely healed at a Kathryn Kuhlman service of the osteoporosis of the spine, and her severed spinal cord was restored. It was soon after her healing that God called her and Bill into the healing ministry.

The Winders have a testimony book, Jesus Set Me Free, and teaching tapes available.

Orchestras Playing For Time And Money

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH — Crescendoing costs and tapering revenue are forcing many of the nation's major orchestras to bow to financial pressure by playing more crowd-pleasing music and jazzing up their image to lure new fans.

"We've been doing the same concerts for 200 years now. It's a fixed animal. It hasn't changed. Not even the dress has changed," said Gideon Toeplitz, managing director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. "But what has changed is what attracts the audiences."

"You have to make it an exciting event, no matter what it takes," agreed Joanna Broussard, spokeswoman for the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra. "We're competing for the same leisure dollar that goes to the movies on Saturday night."

The problem, once pianissimo, is now fortissimo:

— In New Orleans, symphony concerts are scheduled to resume Wednesday after more than a year of silence due to a local recession that crippled orchestral funding. The comeback is due to a debt reduction plan that includes the sale of the Orpheum Theater, the orchestra's home.

— In Nashville, Tenn., the symphony has emerged from bankruptcy and is back in operation following a seven-month moratorium, thanks to contributions from corporations, foundations and individuals. Salaries have been slashed across the board, though, and staff has been reduced.

— And in Pittsburgh, symphony administrators are struggling to erase a $1.5 million deficit, the first major loss in the orchestra's 93-year history due in large part to lost hall rentals. In an unprecedented move, musicians announced Feb. 15 they will contribute $1,000 each as part of a fund-raising challenge. The orchestra stands to gain nearly $1 million.

Catherine French, chief executive officer of the American Symphony Orchestra League, said it is difficult to generalize about financial affairs among the nation's orchestras.

"The financial condition of an orchestra sometimes reflects simply the economic state of its community," she said. "There are places, especially in the Southwest, that have had serious economic setbacks. Consequently, the ability of people to give money, the ability of people to buy tickets, all of that is limited."

In addition, many small orchestras in mid-sized cities have boosted salaries and hired top talent in an attempt to become strong, French said.

"Sometimes growth and expense have outstripped the ability to generate income, particularly where (orchestral) history and tradition are not there. It takes time," she said.

The United States currently boasts 1,572 orchestras, including professional, amateur and community ensembles, but not school groups. That's several hundred more orchestras than a decade ago, most of them spawned during a time when arts education has been pretty grim, French said.

More than 80 of those orchestras have annual budgets of at least $1 million a year, according to Lew Waldeck, symphony department administrator for the American Federation of Musicians. Heading the list in 1987-88 was the Boston

Pittsburgh's Gideon Toeplitz: 'Nothing has changed'

Symphony Orchestra with a budget of $27 million.

One reason for the swelling budgets is salary increases. Musicians are being paid more than ever before, at least in the top major orchestras where players earn $50,000 a year and up.

"I think if there's any national trend, it is a healthy one," said Henry Fogel, executive director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. "There are more orchestras today paying a living wage to musicians than there were 10 or 15 years ago."

To Fogel, music and not money is what ultimately matters: "People always talk about the state of orchestras in America in terms of deficits and bottom lines. You hardly hear anybody talk about music being made, which is what I always thought an orchestra was about."

"The goal, the bottom line, is the music the orchestra makes."

Kentucky Hires State Folklorist

By Mike Embry
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Whether it's in Appalachia or Bluegrass Country, Robert Gates believes there are stories to be found.

And, as Kentucky's first official folklorist, he's going to spend a good bit of his time listening for them.

"I'll try to encourage the research, conservation and interpretation of folklife in the state," says Gates, 38. "We won't try to change it, just document it."

Gates, who has a master's degree in folk studies from Western Kentucky, has the blessing of the Kentucky Humanities Council, Kentucky Arts Council and Berea College, where he will be headquartered.

"They all felt so much work is being done in folk studies that it was time to get some programs and projects going," says Gates.

He plans to coordinate efforts and offer technical assistance to individuals and groups studying and promoting folklife.

Gates says it is a misconception that folklife relates only to rural areas.

"Folklorists are anthropologists or historians of common people who study the traditional culture of a group," he says. "Anything that's passed down by word of mouth by a group is folklore."

One of his first tasks in Kentucky will be the "Always a River" project sponsored by the humanities councils of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, helping with folklife surveys in counties along the Ohio River.

He plans to set up folklife festivals in various communities so "people can go to these things and see other cultures and how these people have their own lives."

He will also be working with schools, introducing people who can discuss topics relating to folklife.

"We want to understand groups and their history," says Gates. "It will help break down walls and lead to an understanding of people."

Parents See Miscarriage As Losing Child

Pownall-Brown

Anna L. Pownall of Kill Devil Hills announces the engagement of her daughter, Michelle Hope Pownall, to Charles Everette Brown IV, son of Mary M. and Charles E. Brown III of Elizabeth City. An April 29 wedding is planned.

Dear Abby: My husband and I wanted so much to have this child, and we almost made it, but I miscarried a baby boy in my sixth month and he couldn't be saved. This tragedy was heartbreaking enough, but some of the "comforting" comments from well-meaning friends made it even worse.

Abby, will you please ask your readers never to try to comfort a woman who has lost a premature baby with any of the following comments — and if you can add anything, please do:

- "Cheer up, you're still young. You can try again."
- "You have one child already. Be thankful for what you have."
- "It was God's will. Praise the Lord."
- "You could have been lucky; it might not have been normal."
- "Don't be so downhearted — it isn't as though you lost a child." — Grieving

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Dear Grieving: To the above well-intentioned but inappropriate comments, I can repeat some advice I have frequently offered: To the parents, a miscarriage is the loss of a child. They have anticipated, planned for and prepared for this child, which they will never have. (Regardless of how many other children they may have, one child will never replace the one that was lost.)

If a friend loses a child through miscarriage, express your feelings of sorrow as though she had lost a "living" child. Because she has.

Dear Abby: To "Concerned N.J. Parent" you said: "Serving teenagers beer or any other kind of alcoholic beverage in one's home because 'they would party somewhere else' is, in my view, both a feeble and unacceptable excuse."

Abby, isn't that the same kind of logic behind providing school children with sex education because they are going to do it anyway, so this way they'll be safe rather than sorry?

I love your column, but I'm curious about one thing. Why do you promote abstinence from teen-age drinking, but not from illicit sex? — Dawn In Blytheville, Ark.

Dear Dawn: I do not condone illicit sex, but I would not withhold sex education from anyone who asked for it. These days what teenagers don't know can not only "hurt" them — it can kill them.

Dear Abby: I'm female — 68 years young — and want to share my recent experience.

While visiting my son and his family, my daughter-in-law asked me to pick up her birth control prescription at a local pharmacy. When the gentleman at the counter gave it to me, he hesitated for a moment, then asked, "Are these for you, madam?"

I said, "Yes." Then he told me I was entitled to a senior citizen's discount — so he changed the price!

Now, how many 68-year-old women get a senior citizen's discount for birth control pills? He made my day.

What a country! — Ida In Kent, Wash.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Wastes

needed to handle certain wastes.

Presently, the state Department of Human Resources, which includes health services, cannot levy fines against entities that violate state regulations because the state Supreme Court is reviewing the constitutionality of that power, Reid said.

In two separate matters, the state issued a notice of violation against Gray last December after receiving a complaint that he was illegally incinerating medical and infectious waste at his Raleigh crematorium.

Also, Gray faces a March 14 hearing before the state Board of Mortuary Science in connection with an incident last December in which Wake County deputies found six dead bodies that Gray left in a van overnight instead of moving inside. There was no criminal violation.

Reid said he learned Thursday that Gray has medical waste and ashes stored in two tobacco barns on property he leases from a cousin. The barns are situated off rural unpaved road 1545 just outside Stokes, and Gray leases the 85 acres of land from Harry T. Gray, Box 1136, Robersonville.

Pitt County deputies also discovered last Sunday that John Gray has medical waste and human body parts stored in a packhouse on rural paved road 1545 near Stokes. The land is owned by Gray Farms Inc., according to county records, and Gray formed the corporation in August 1980.

Meyer could not identify the location of the fourth storage facility.

There are no criminal violations at either site, authorities have determined this week, and sheriff's investigators have ended their inquiry.

However, Reid said agents intend to investigate the storage facilities for possible violations of state regulations concerning acceptance, storage and disposal of medical waste.

Until officials learn what exactly is stored at the sites, Reid said they do not know what regulations John Gray may have violated.

"We're still in a evidence-gathering sort of mode. We're still trying to find out what's there, and until we're able to determine what is actually in there, we won't really have any direction to take."

"Once we are able to establish what the materials are, then we will have several lines of investigation we can pursue."

The State Bureau of Investigation has been contacted about the situation, and the bureau could send in agents if it suspects criminal wrongdoing, he said.

When medical waste is stored, Reid said it usually is kept at medical facilities. Such waste is rarely found in barns or packhouses, he said, and that storage practice alone could be a violation.

"First of all, it's not customary to store that material, period. That type of material, normally — if it is stored at all — it is stored in some sort of secure, contained area at a medical institution. So we've not really had that much of a precedent of dealing with stored medical wastes like this, or what appears to be stored medical waste."

There is a home about 100 feet away from the two tobacco barns where material is stored, and doors to the barn were open Thursday. Inside one barn, disposable razors and syringes were scattered about, and several cylindrical cardboard containers were stacked on top of each other. On one container, the words "hazardous waste" were written in red ink.

In the second barn, a container was damaged and gray ashes had poured out. Another container labeled "hazardous waste" had an inscription on the side indicating it had been sealed Sept. 3, 1986.

Harry Gray said he purchased the land in July 1988 and that he has not even seen the site. His cousin leases the land and has been using it for years, he said. After learning waste may be stored on his land, Harry Gray said he contacted his cousin and told him to correct the problem. He said John Gray would continue to lease the land, but any violations should be corrected.

"I had nothing to do with it," Harry Gray said.

At the packhouse discovered Sunday, Pitt investigators said John Gray had stored medical waste and internal organs, and some of the material appeared to be three years old.

John Gray has not been available for comment, and he has not returned telephone calls from a reporter this week.

State officials met with Gray for the first time on Thursday, and they opted to work toward an agreement instead of obtaining a warrant to search the packhouse. Gray said he would cooperate fully, Reid said.

Corrine J. Culbreth, executive secretary of the Board of Mortuary Science, said the storage practice does not violate the regulations of the board because no dead human bodies are involved.

The board has no control over crematoriums or how ashes are stored, she said, but a committee is drafting legislation to present to the General Assembly concerning the practice.

Venezuela Distributes Food As Shortages Spread

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CARACAS, Venezuela — The government began setting up food distribution centers today to relieve shortages caused by four days of rioting. A newspaper reported more than 300 people died and 1,500 were injured in the clashes.

Buses and cars circulated in Caracas today as the capital began to return to normal, with early morning traffic jams and honking horns replacing some of the tensions of this week's unrest.

The rioting, in which mobs looted stores and clashed with authorities in Caracas and 11 other cities, was caused by Monday's bus fare increases, which appeared to release pent up frustration over the nation's austerity program.

On Thursday evening, soldiers hunting snipers and seeking looters conducted house-to-house searches in downtown Caracas and the western slums.

Shooting was heard early today as soldiers fired into the air and at buildings to flush out snipers. It appeared the gunfire also was meant to enforce the government's dusk-to-dawn curfew by keeping people off the streets.

Venezuelans, unaccustomed to the rigors of a state of emergency after three decades of political stability, have tended to remain on the streets despite the curfew, making soldiers nervous.

Looters emptied the shelves of supermarkets and neighborhood grocery stores in the first days of rioting. Since then, part of the 22,000 police and soldiers ordered on alert in Caracas have guarded stores, where people have been waiting hours in line to buy such staples as eggs, bread and cheese.

President Carlos Andres Perez, who has been in office for just one month, blamed leftist "remnants" for prolonging Venezuela's worst unrest in 31 years of democratic rule.

On Wednesday, Gabriel Puerta, a former guerrilla leader, accused the government of inventing political motives for the disturbances, which he blamed on the failure of the government's economic policies.

The bus fare increases, which ranged from 30 percent to 50 percent, were part of a government austerity plan approved by the International Monetary Fund as a requirement for granting $4.3 billion in loans over the next three years.

Venezuela, affluent during the 1970s thanks to its rich oil reserves, saw its fortunes slide along with petroleum prices in 1981.

Real wages have since then fallen by a third, inflation is expected to double this year to 70 percent, and the foreign debt is $33 billion — fourth largest in Latin America after Brazil, Mexico and Argentina.

El Nacional, a leading independent daily, said in today's edition that more than 300 people had been killed and 1,500 injured in four days of violence — the bloodiest in Venezuela's history.

The newspaper said its reporters counted 237 bodies at the Caracas central morgue and said there were other bodies in hospitals across the city.

NOTES: This will be the first tournament meeting for the two teams... American holds a 7-4 lead in the series with ECU... The two teams split this year's meetings, American winning on its home court, 82-68, and the Pirates winning in Minges, 66-60... In the last game, the Pirates held Ron Draper, one of the nation's top rebounders, to just five and a total of 11 points... Blue Edwards scored 22 points in the ECU loss and 32 in the victory... Kenny Murphy added 12 and Gus Hill, 15, in the loss, while Hill was the only other Pirate in double figures in the win with 10... East Carolina has never won a tournament game in the CAA, and only won once under the old ECAC-South banner... Draper led American in the first game with 21 points while Brock Wortman had 12 and Mike Sumner had 10... In the ECU win, Chuck West had 15 and Dale Spears had 11... If ECU wins and clinches a winning season, it will be the first since 1982-83, and only the fourth in the last 15 seasons... A break-even year would be the first since 1972-73 when the Pirates went 13-13 under Tom Quinn... A winning year would be the first for a non-first year coach at ECU since Quinn's 1971-72 team, his seventh, went 15-14... The winner of the game will face the winner of the George Mason-William & Mary game at 2 p.m. Sunday...

Pirates Set For CAA Tournament

East Carolina Faces American In First Round Contest At Hampton

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University's basketball Pirates will be out to do what they've never done before Saturday afternoon when they take on American University in a 2 p.m. game at the Hampton (Va.) Coliseum in the first round of the Colonial Athletic Association.

In the previous three CAA tournaments, East Carolina lost out in the first round, losing last year to Richmond, 67-41, and the two previous years to UNC-Wilmington, 59-58 and 75-54.

In four ECAC-South tournaments, which preceded the independent formation of the CAA with most of the same teams, the Pirates recorded only one victory, a 68-65 upset of George Mason during Charlie Harrison's first year directing the Pirates back in 1982-83.

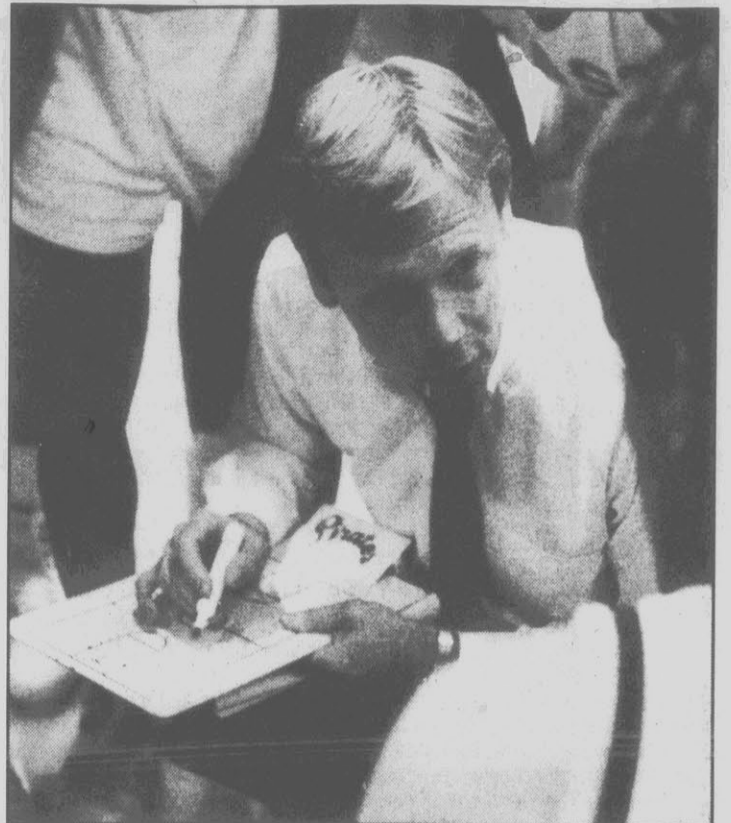

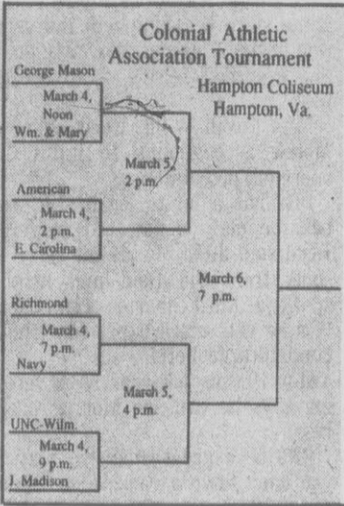

Overall, the Pirates are 1-7 in ECAC/CAA tournament action. And one must go all the way back to the 1971-72 season to find the Pirates earning a conference championship. That year, the Pirates upset Furman, 77-75, in the Southern Conference finals and gained the only ECU NCAA tournament berth.

The Pirates lost to Villanova that year, 85-70, in the first round of the tournament.

The only other post-season action for the Pirates came in 1974-75 when, under first-year coach Dave Patton, the Pirates were 19-9 and earned a berth in the Conference Commissioners Association tournament, falling to Arizona, 94-78.

This year, ECU finished the regular season with a 6-8 conference record, tying James Madison for fifth

Edwards Named All-Conference

HAMPTON, Va. — East Carolina's Blue Edwards was named to the first-team all-Colonial Athletic Association basketball team, announced this morning, while teammate Jeff Kelly was named to the all-Academic and all-Defensive teams.

Edwards, a 6-5, 200-pound senior, led the conference in scoring with a 26.3 points per game average. He also averaged 6.8 rebounds a game to lead his team in that category. Edwards is considered a prime candidate to be named the Player of the Year tonight at the awards banquet.

Richmond landed two players on the first team and added another on the second team. Picked for the first team were Ken Atkinson and Mike Winecki. Atkinson, a 6-0, 170-pound junior guard, averaged 16.6 points a game and had 76 assists on the year. Winecki, a 6-8, 230-pound senior center, averaged 18.1 points and 8.3 rebounds a game.

Joining them are Ron Draper of American and Kenny Sanders of George Mason. Draper, a 6-8, 215-pound junior center, averaged 16.6

points a game and 12.0 rebounds. Sanders, a 6-5, 210-pound senior forward, scored 23.3 points and pulled 11.0 rebounds a game.

Second team members included Larry Houzer and Antonio Howard of UNC-Wilmington; Eddie Reddick of Navy; William Davis of James Madison; Eric English of Richmond, and Tom Bock of William & Mary.

The all-Rookie team includes Troy Bostic and Davis of JMU, Joe Cherry and Brian Withers of UNCW, Mike Hargett of GMU, and Scott Smith of William & Mary.

Named to the all-defensive team were Draper and Chuck West of American; Richmond's Scott Stapleton; JMU's Barry Brown; William & Mary's Curtis Pride and East Carolina's Kelly.

The all-Academic team includes Greg Bender and Howard of UNCW, Joe Gottschalk of Navy, Kelly of ECU, Doug Lowery of JMU and Kevin McNamara of GMU.

Chargers Top Rams

Peterson Scores 29 Points In Win

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton bent, but it didn't break.

The second-seeded Chargers flitted with defeat nearly all night before holding on to knock off third-seeded Greene Central, 64-54, in the semifinals of the Eastern Plains Basketball Tournament Thursday.

"We couldn't get it (the Ayden-Grifton lead) under five (points) tonight," Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin said. "Last year's team would have probably been able to do it, but this year we just don't have that character or maturity you need, it seems, to win games like this."

The win lifts Ayden-Grifton to 20-4 on the year and into the finals tonight against top-seeded Farmville Central. The Rams slipped to 13-10 for the season.

For Charger forward Ronnell Peterson, the game was a showcase of his talents. The 6-1 senior poured in 29 points and hauled in 22 rebounds to lead Ayden-Grifton. James Woodard, who scored 11 fourth quarter points, was the only other Charger in double figures with 20.

Yet it was poor free throw shooting that may have cost the Rams a chance at the win. For the night, Greene Central made only 6-15 attempts from the free throw line.

The Rams also missed on three key one-and-one opportunities in the second half.

"That's the ball game right there, I think," Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey said. "Greene Central missed a lot of free throw opportunities and it was fortunate for us that they shot as poorly as they did from the line."

"I thought Peterson did a good job for us on both ends of the court. His play along with Greene Central's free throw shooting were probably the difference in the game."

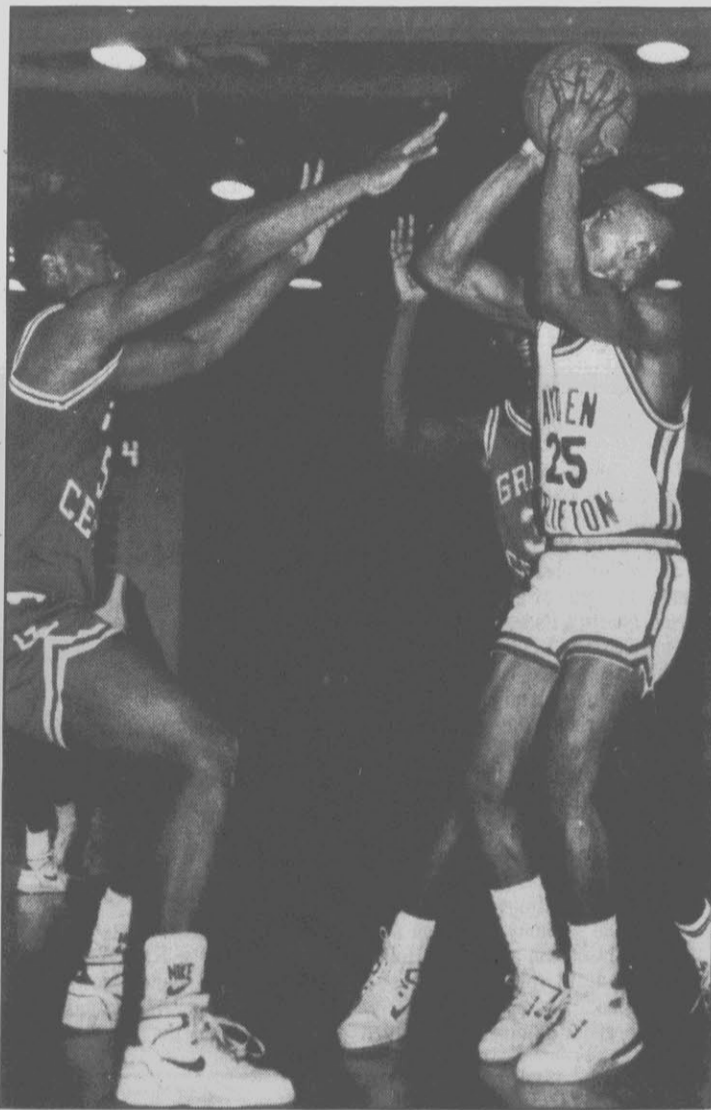

Even with Peterson putting on an offensive show, the Rams managed to mount a serious rally in the second half.

Trailing 39-28 heading into the third period, Greene Central went on a 8-2 run to pull within five 41-36 with 5:58 left in the quarter. An aid to the Rams' rally came early on in the period when Ayden-Grifton center Leon Dixon picked up his fourth foul with 7:38 left on the clock. Dixon, who entered the game averaging over 18 points, was held to only five.

"That was our game plan," Godwin said. "We wanted to take the ball inside and either get them in foul trouble or score on some easy shots."

Tyrone Streeter, who finished with 12 points, got the Rams off on the right foot in the period scoring two

Lady Jags Advance

Farmville Rolls Past C.B. Aycock

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

BETHEL — After having a disastrous first half shooting, Farmville Central's girls' basketball team warmed up in the second half and salvaged a victory.

The Lady Jaguars, 17-7, fought past a stubborn South Lenoir team, 39-30, and advanced to the finals to face top-seeded North Pitt tonight. The third-seeded Lady Blue Devils slipped to 16-8 with the loss.

"That was the worst shooting half that I can remember a team of mine having in many years," Farmville coach Hilda Worthington said of the first half. "I thought we weren't taking the ball low enough on the court to run our offense."

South Lenoir's game plan was evident from the start. The slower Lady Blue Devils had decided to use a spread offense to control the tempo of the game.

The move paid dividends in the first half as they took a 16-11 lead in at intermission thanks to eight points from Susan Riggsbee, who led the team with 10 points for the game.

The Lady Jaguars scored only two field goals in the first half and they were separated by 15:03 of the clock.

The first field goal by Farmville came when Vickie Best scored on a layup off of a steal with 7:35 remaining in the first quarter. That was the last field goal the Lady Jaguars would score until Wanda Bullock hit a jumper in the lane with 22 seconds to play in the second quarter.

"Our game plan was to force them out on us on offense and keep them from running on offense with our defense," South Lenoir coach Jimmy Smith said. "We knew we couldn't run up and down the court with them. We have lost two starters over the course of the season."

Farmville wasted little time getting into the flow in the second half as it scored six points in the first minute to grab a 17-16 lead.

After a pair of free throws by Monica Brown, Best and Felicia Barrett, who finished with 12 points, scored on layups off of steals.

"I told them at halftime that we had to go fullcourt man-to-man on defense and outplay them until we caught up," Worthington said.

The Lady Blue Devils fought back into the lead, 19-17, off of a free throw from Beth Blizzard and a layup by Tracy Salter.

The Lady Jaguars then got cranked up from the outside as Bullock buried a 3-pointer with 5:32 left to take a 20-19 lead.

After Blizzard countered with a layup for South Lenoir, Barrett hit a 3-pointer to give Farmville a 23-21 lead with 5:00 to play in the period.

Brown, State Down Maryland

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH, N.C. — Chucky Brown took control from the start and sparked an important second-half rally as No. 20 North Carolina State beat Maryland 94-77 to take the Atlantic Coast Conference lead.

Brown scored 23 points and Rodney Monroe added 22 Thursday night as the Wolfpack improved to 19-7 and 9-4. Brown scored on a reverse dunk with 16:30 left to spark the crowd and the Wolfpack used three straight steals to go up 60-3 with 15 minutes left.

Chucky came out from the opening tip with a lot of bounce," said N.C. State Coach Jim Valvano. "He was really ready to play."

The lead expanded to 24 points at 71-47 when Mickey Hinnant scored with 11:10 to go. Maryland, 8-18 and 1-12, pulled within 14 points on two occasions but could draw no closer.

Valvano credited the defense with a lot of easy baskets. The Wolfpack had 12 steals while Maryland had two.

"We felt we needed to pressure Maryland tonight," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "With their big team, the pressure worked well with

Wallace Claims Pole Position

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Rusty Wallace rallied from a disappointing Daytona 500 and rolled to the pole at record speed for the Goodwrench 500 stock car race.

Wallace, driving a Pontiac, posted a lap of 148.793 mph on Thursday at North Carolina Motor Speedway, where the second event of the NASCAR Winston Cup Series season is scheduled Sunday.

It was the fastest lap in the history of the 1.017-mile track. The previous record was Bill Elliott's 148.359, logged in a Ford last October prior to the AC-Delco 500.

It's the fourth pole of Wallace's career.

Darrell Waltrip, winner of the season-opening Daytona 500 in which Wallace finished 18th, put his Chevrolet in the other front-row spot for Sunday's start at 148.353.

Qualifying three through five were Ken Schrader in a Chevrolet, Mark Martin in a Ford and Rick Wilson in an Oldsmobile. Taking positions six

Morosco Takes Goodwrench 200 Pole

ROCKINGHAM (AP) — Robbie Morosco gained a half-second when it counted Thursday and took the first superspeedway pole of his career in qualifying for the Goodwrench 200.
Morosco, 20, was timed at 144.918 mph in his Oldsmobile and will start first Saturday in the NASCAR Busch Series stock car race, set for N.C. Motor Speedway at 2 p.m.
"The fastest I was able to run in practice was 25.60 (seconds)," said Morosco. "Before qualifying we put sticker tires on the car and supertuned the engine. Still, I didn't think I had a chance at the pole."
"But running against the clock my time came down about a half second (to 25.264) and here we are. I'm very pleasantly surprised."
Morosco, going on the 1.017-mile track late in the session, edged Pontiac-driving Dale Jarrett for the No. 1 spot. Jarrett clocked 25.311 seconds, or 144.649 mph.
Qualifying 3-10 were Harry Gant, Bobby Hillin, Rick Wilson, Mark Martin, Greg Sacks, Jimmy Spencer, Phil Parsons and Dale Earnhardt.
Martin is the 200's defending champion.
"It took a perfect lap, and we came close to getting it," said Morosco. "I knew I had to go into Turn 1 real hard. I turned the wheel hard left, hoping the car would stick and stay down there. It did."

Two N.C. State Players Are Suspended

RALEIGH (AP) — Two North Carolina State freshman football players were dismissed from the team after an incident that involved a gun, according to the mother of one of the players.
School officials confirmed that a scholarship player and a walk-on player were dismissed from the team last week for undisclosed violations of team conduct policy. Mark Bockelman, N.C. State sports information director, would not identify the players or elaborate on the reasons for the action.
However, The News and Observer of Raleigh said friends and relatives identified the players as James Bullock and Derek Newton.
Bullock, a defensive tackle, was a scholarship player, said Tim Kilpatrick, who said he coached with Bullock at the College Inn until Bullock was told by head football coach Dick Sheridan to move out.
Newton was a walk-on player, his mother, Gloria Newton, said in a telephone interview from her home in Randallstown, Md. He had been invited to move into the College Inn in late January and then, on Feb. 22, was told to move out the following day, she said.
Sheridan was out of town and could not be reached for comment. N.C. State athletic director Jim Valvano declined comment.
The dismissals came in the wake of a Feb. 18 argument outside the College Inn during which a gun was shown, but not fired, Mrs. Newton said. She also said her son had witnessed the incident but was not directly involved.
Newton went to see Sheridan several days later, after he heard his name being "floated" in connection with the incident, Mrs. Newton said. "He (Sheridan) told Derek he was off the team."
Mrs. Newton said Jeff Compher, an assistant athletic director, told her late last week that her son was dismissed because he had known before the incident that one of the players had a gun.
Mrs. Newton said "half the football team" knew the player had a gun.

NCAA Set To Investigate Terps, Archer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The NCAA is expected to begin a preliminary investigation of the Rudy Archer case as soon as the University of Maryland completes its own inquiry, a published report said.
Friday's edition of The Washington Post says NCAA enforcement chief David Berst refused to talk about allegations against Maryland, but said if a case has conflicting information, the NCAA usually takes investigations.
"In situations where you have conflicting information on a matter, one has an inclination to take an objective look," Berst said.
Maryland coach Bob Wade said he had no knowledge of his assistants providing transportation to Archer after the 1987-88 starting point guard flunked out of school last summer. However, the newspaper cites unnamed sources who say the coach also gave Archer rides from his Baltimore home to Prince George's Community College and to University College, which is Maryland's school for continuing education, this semester.
Archer is still considered recruitable because he has one year of eligibility left.
"One of the provisions in the (coaches') contract is that they live up to the rules and regulations of the NCAA," University of Maryland-College Park president William E. Kirwan.
However, Kirwan said Maryland coaches have contractual clauses which prevent them from being fired without pay for the remainder of a semester if they do violate NCAA rules.
Berst said if the NCAA preliminary inquiry at Maryland revealed that there was a violation, it would be considered a secondary one and would be referred to the Infractions Committee. A secondary violation is an "isolated, inadvertent... that that involves no recruiting or competitive edge," he said.
In contrast, a major infraction is one that is an "intentional violation of a fundamental rule," Berst said.
Officials said the NCAA must decide "What did Wade know and when did he know it?"
An NCAA representative interviewed Archer at his Baltimore home over the weekend, but officials agreed to wait for the university to finish its internal review before proceeding.
Kirwan said he expects to have the report in the next seven to 10 days.

Dorrance Named To New Post At UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Anson Dorrance was promoted to Director of Soccer at the University of North Carolina on Thursday and Elmar Bolowich was named the men's head coach, Tar Heel Director of Athletics John Swofford said.
Dorrance had served as the men's coach since 1977 and the women's coach since 1979. Bolowich had been a full-time assistant with the men's team since 1986.
"I think this will be a real plus for both our men's and women's programs," Swofford said. "Anson has done an excellent job of providing leadership to both programs over the past decade."
Dorrance has compiled a 172-65-21 record as the men's coach. He has led the women's team to a 182-7-7 record and six NCAA titles.

High Earns Suspension From Woods

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A South Carolina football player charged with possession of drugs has been temporarily suspended from the team, according to coach Sparky Woods.
Woods said Thursday sophomore nose guard Tim High, 21, probably will not participate in spring practices. High also has a 9 p.m. curfew and must attend all of his classes, Woods said.
Woods said he will wait until authorities finish their investigation before he makes a final decision on High.
Richland County authorities charged High with two counts of drug possession after he and three other people were arrested in a drug sweep of a home near Owens Field Airport on Tuesday.
Richland County drug agents said the three men arrested with High lived in the house and have been charged with drug possession.
Agents said a search of High's car turned up a thermos containing hallucinogenic mushrooms and a small amount of MDA, a type of amphetamine or stimulant.
High, who wears No. 51, was a 6-foot-2, 250 pound contender for a starting position on this year's Gamecock defensive squad. He was released on bond Wednesday.
Richland County Drug Squad Capt. Leon Lott said two other players showed up at the house while the arrests were in progress Tuesday night.
"Some people did come to the residence that were athletes. At that time we couldn't make any arrests, but the investigation is going to continue," Lott said.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — New Jersey's Chris Morris is starting to exhibit the trademarks of a consistent scorer, one of the qualities that usually separates the stars from the journeymen in the NBA.

Morris, the Nets first-round selection and fourth player picked overall in last year's draft, scored a career-high 31 points Thursday and teammate Lester Conner added a triple-double as New Jersey rallied for a 114-103 win over the Charlotte Hornets.
"I feel like I'm on schedule," said Morris, who scored 30 points and had 13 rebounds Wednesday in a loss at Washington. "I'm starting to feel comfortable in my role."
"I'm satisfied with my play but I'm not consistently at the level I want to be at yet," said Morris, who has averaged 17.4 points per game since breaking into the starting lineup 26 games ago. "My goal, like everybody else's, is to be the best."

Nets Coach Willis Reed believes Morris is beginning to fulfill his enormous potential.
"He has a lot to learn still, but he's definitely a talented player," Reed said after Morris hit 11 of 17 shots from the field and helped spark a third quarter comeback. "As he gets more experience, he'll continue to get better."

Roy Hinson, a 6-year NBA veteran, says he can see Morris' progress.

"To be a great offensive player, you can't have a conscience," Hinson said, after scoring 21 points and grabbing 10 rebounds as the Nets snapped a 3-game losing streak. "You can see that Chris is beginning to learn that."

New Jersey began to fight back early in the third quarter after the Hornets had taken a 74-59 lead on Kelly Tripucka's 3-point play.

With Morris scoring 11 points, the Nets put together a 21-6 spurt, finally taking the lead at 82-80 on a jumper by Dennis Hopson. The Hornets, who have won just three of 27 on the road, rallied to open a 93-89 lead early in the fourth quarter on baskets by Rex Chapman and Robert Reid.

But momentum swung back to the Nets, who scored 14 of the next 17 points to open a 103-96 edge with about three minutes remaining.

Conner, who had 13 points, 11 assists, 13 rebounds and 6 steals, triggered the late run with three baskets. Joe Barry Carroll added 26 points for the Nets while Roy Hinson had 21 points and 10 rebounds.

Chapman led the Hornets, who have lost six straight on the road, with 27 points and Tripucka had 26.

Pacers 132, Warriors 123
Indiana, which had a 12-game losing streak a week before, won their fourth consecutive game Reggie Miller scored a career-high 36 points with six 3-point goals and Chuck Person added 32 points with four 3-pointers.

Schrempf scored nine of his 15 points in overtime for the Pacers, who forced the extra period on a 3-pointer by Miller with seven seconds left, tying the score 115-115.

Knicks 132, Heat 123
New York won its 22nd consecutive game at home and matched its victory total for all of last season as newly acquired Kiki Vandeweghe scored 16 of his 23 points in the first half against Miami.

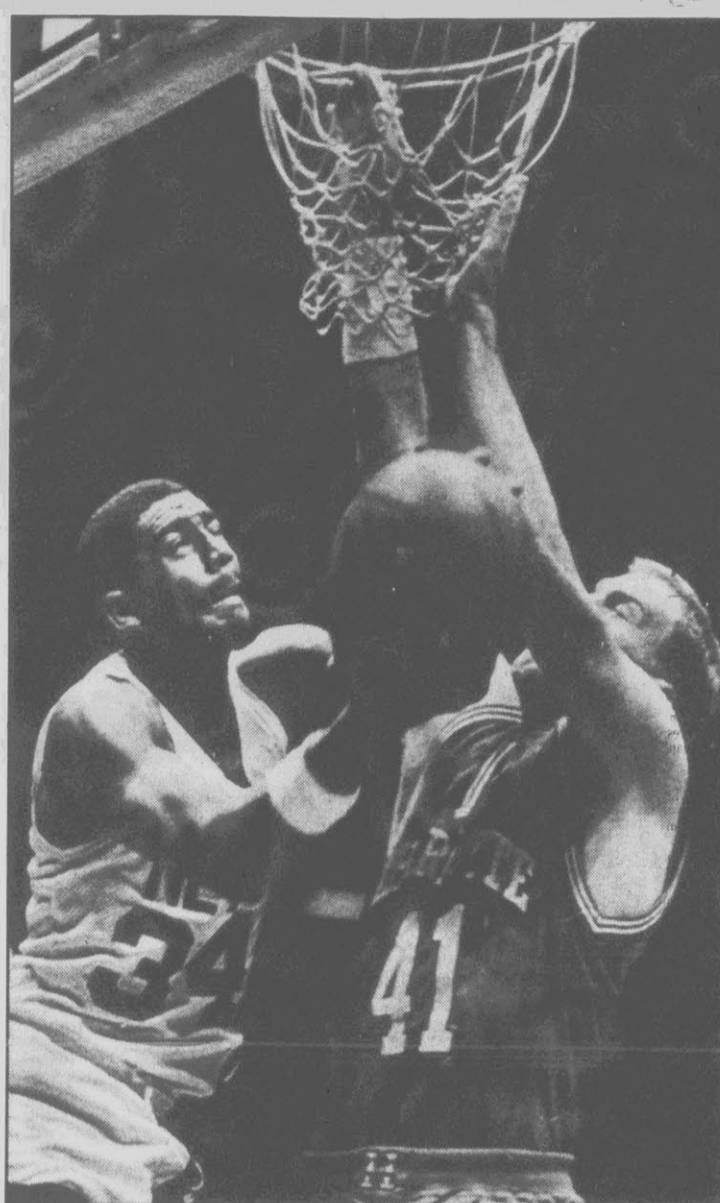

The Knicks, who fell behind by eight points in the first quarter and saw a 23-point lead trimmed to seven in the fourth period, held on to improve their home record to 25-1. Miami fell to 1-25 on the road, including 16 consecutive losses.

Cavaliers 112, Spurs 84
Cleveland also won its 22nd consecutive game at home and handed San Antonio its 13th straight defeat.

John "Hot Rod" Williams scored 16 of his 22 points in the first half, including eight during a 22-5 run that put the Cavaliers ahead 41-24 in the second quarter.

Williams came off the bench late in the first quarter and hit a short baseline jumper to break a 19-19 tie and start a 12-1 spurt that put the Cavaliers ahead 31-20. Cleveland continued with a 10-4 run at the start of the second period, capped by Williams' dunk.

Suns 110, Kings 90
Phoenix stayed unbeaten at home against Western Conference opponents as Tom Chambers scored 32 points and tied a career high with 18 rebounds against Sacramento.
The Suns, now 20-0 at home against the West, won despite playing without Kevin Johnson (flu) and Eddie Johnson (bruised left calf).

The Kings had Rodney McCray and Ricky Berry on the sidelines with sprained ankles.

periods, outscoring the Rockets by 25 points and extending its lead to 94-71 early in the fourth period.

Nuggets 113, Rockets 103
Denver extended Houston's losing streak to six games as Alex English scored 26 points and Fat Lever had his sixth triple double of the season.

The Rockets led most of the first period, with Akeem Olatunji scoring 10 of his 16 points, but the Nuggets took the lead for good midway through the second. Denver dominated both the second and third

Trail Blazers 119, Clippers 113
Portland beat Los Angeles for the 17th consecutive time as Clyde Drexler scored 17 of his 31 points in the third quarter.

Terry Porter added 24 points for the Blazers, who have won three straight games after six consecutive losses. The Clippers, losers of 11 straight and 30 of their last 31 games, were led by Quintin Dailey with 29 points.

Coastal Championship Games Set

HAVELOCK — Washington's boys and girls, seeded second in the Coastal Conference tournament pairings, were both knocked out of action Thursday night in semifinal action.

Washington's boys fell to the homestanding Havelock Rams, 55-53, while West Craven's girls ousted the Lady Pam Pack, 38-35.

That set the stage for tonight's championship games. Conley's boys will take on Havelock for the title at 8 p.m. while Conley's girls will face West Craven for their crown at 6:30 p.m.

The loss by Washington also ensured the Conley girls of the number one seed in the sectionals next week.

In the boys' game, Washington held an 11-8 lead after one period, but Havelock rebounded and outscored the Pack, 18-12, to gain a 26-23 halftime lead. Havelock continued to pull away in the third period, boosting its lead to 45-38.

But in the final quarter, Washington rallied and trailed by only one point with nine seconds left. Vincent Norris hit the front end of a one-and-one to put Havelock up by two, but Washington missed on its shot to tie the game up and the Rams' Ledell George snatched the rebound and Havelock ran out the clock.

George led Havelock with 24 points while Anthony Robinson added 13. Rod Gorham and Steve Holley each had 14 points to lead Washington.

In the girls' game, West Craven held only a 7-6 lead after one quarter but the Lady Eagles inched that out to 18-14 by the end of the half.

Washington rallied in the third period, 13-9, and tied it up at 27-27. But they were unable to keep it up. Washington was 0-6 from the floor in the final minute of play, also missing the front end of a one-and-one and suffering two turnovers to give West Craven all the room it needed to win it.

No one for either team scored in double figures.

baskets in the first minute of play.
After Peterson scored on a driving layup, Reggie Hill, who led the Rams with 16 points, went along the baseline for a layup and Reggie Atkinson added a jumper from the corner to make the score 41-36.

From there, the lead see-sawed back and forth the rest of the quarter with the Chargers taking a 51-44 lead into the final quarter after Peterson scored on a layup after a steal with 59 ticks left on the clock.

The Charger lead was still only seven points until Woodard buried a 3-pointer with 6:21 left in the game to put the lead at 10, 56-46.

Johnnie Joyner then nailed a jumper from the corner to trim the lead to eight. Peterson, however, answered at the other end with a 15-footer to make the score 58-48 with 4:48 to play.

Joyner then scored on a layup with 4:29 left and Hill added a pair of free throws with 3:50 to play to cut the Charger lead to 58-52.

But that's when Woodard took over. The senior guard buried six of seven free throws the rest of the way in to put the game away for Ayden-Grifton.

The Chargers, who will be without the services of starting guard David Dixon and sixth-man Darryl Move the rest of the year due to disciplinary suspensions now must try and find a way to matchup with Farmville tonight.

"We're mighty thin right now as far as experienced players go," Murphrey said. "We've kind of lost our chemistry in our halfcourt offense and that takes a while to develop."

CAA Cage Tournament

1989 CAA Tournament

Richmond (No. 1 seed) vs. Navy (No. 8 seed)
The Spiders were a surprise as the dominant team in the CAA this year. Most people thought Dick Tarrant's club would finish around the middle of the pack after losing three starters off last year's 26-7 team that recorded upset wins over Indiana and Georgia Tech in the NCAA Tournament.

But 6-8 senior Mike Winiecki, a reserve last year, stepped into a starting role and averaged 17.3 points per game while leading the Spiders to a 19-8 mark overall and a 13-1 CAA record. Junior point guard Ken Atkinson (13.6 points per game) also took a bigger role offensively as did junior guard Eric English (43 percent from three-point range) and junior forward Scott Stapleton.

Navy, 8-21 overall and 1-13, had two starters from last year transfer and has struggled through the year. The Middies, though, played Richmond tough at home, losing by two points in overtime, before being blown out, 69-42, in Richmond.

Navy's biggest weapon is forward Eddie Reddick (14.6 ppg and 8.1 rpg). Guards Erik Harris and Bobby Jones are young and have struggled while Reddick has received little help up front from senior forward Derrick Turner.

The Middies will need a perfect game to compete and must control the tempo if they hope to stay with the Spiders.

UNC-Wilmington (No. 4 seed) vs. James Madison (No. 5 seed)

The Seahawks have struggled out of conference but have done well within the league.

Senior center Larry Houzer (16.4 ppg) and guard Antonio Howard (17.0 ppg, 3.6 apg) have been the mainstays for UNCW. 14-13 overall and 9-5 in the CAA, James Madison has been one of the surprises of the league, finishing in a tie for fifth place after being picked to end up at the bottom of the league.

The Dukes will be at a height disadvantage against the Seahawks, but this could be one of the best opening round games in the tournament. William Davis (15.8 ppg) is JMU's leading scorer but does not start. 6-5 Troy Bostic and 6-6 Anthony Cooley have been tough on the boards as both average just under seven a game.

In their first year under new coach Lefty Driesell, the Dukes, 15-13 and 6-8, have been a much improved and competitive team. If they can keep Houzer off the boards, they have a chance since they match up pretty evenly throughout the rest of the lineup. If not, it could be a quick end to the season.

George Mason (No. 2 seed) vs. William and Mary (No. 7 seed)

GMU started slow but the Patriots started coming together in late January and have been one of the best teams in the league since then.

Kenny Sanders, a 6-5 senior forward averaging 22.0 ppg and 11.0 rpg, has been the mainstay for the Dukes, but he has been helped by the strong play of 6-7 center Robert Dykes (7.9 rpg). First-year point guard Mike Hargett has been among the leaders in the conference in assists (4.3 per game) and three-point field goal percentage (40 percent).

William and Mary, 5-22 and 2-12, struggled all year, but the Tribe showed some potential in a 62-58 win over UNCW Feb. 4 in Wilmington. That was probably their only flash though, as they have finished near the bottom in just about every statistical category in the conference.

Center Tom Bock (16.1 ppg) has been the Tribes' leading scorer but has gotten little support from his teammates offensively.

This game will be won or lost in the front court. The Indians must keep Sanders and Dykes off the boards, both offensively and defensively, just to have a chance.

place. A coin flip paired James Madison fourth and East Carolina sixth for the tournament.

American and UNC-Wilmington tied for third place in the final standings, but American took third by beating UNCW in both of their meetings.

Richmond, the defending conference champion, was a surprise winner of the regular season crown again, rolling through the league with a 13-1 record to take top seeding in the tournament field. The Spiders, 19-8 overall, will face last place Navy, 1-13, 6-21, in the 7 p.m. game Saturday.

Second place George Mason, 10-4 in the league, will meet number seven William & Mary, 2-12, in the Pirates' first round game, they must play the Richmond-Navy winner at 2 p.m. Sunday.

East Carolina and American split their two meetings of the 1988-89 season. American won the first game, in Washington, 82-68, but the Pirates rallied for a 66-60 win in the second game in Greenville.

The tournament meeting will be the first for the two teams.

American got off to an early start in Hampton, playing Old Dominion there Wednesday night in the Eagles' final game of the regular season. The Monarchs took that contest, 77-69, dropping American to 16-10 on the regular season.

East Carolina coach Mike Steele said he didn't see much advantage for American in having played at Hampton already.

"There are two ways to look at it," he said. "Some might say that they've been there and that's an advantage. But (being on the road) is tiring, and they've been down there since Tuesday, just laying around and they'll basically be there for a week and some might say that's a disadvantage."

could have picked an easier opponent, but I thought a tougher opponent playing on the coliseum floor would help us. Maybe it's a disadvantage being here this long, but I hope not. We've tried to organize their day to include some practice and some kind of activity and a study hall so they'll feel at home.

"You take a risk, and you just hope your kids respond," Tapscott said.

East Carolina, at 14-13, must win at least one game in the tournament to be assured of a winning season. A loss in the first round would give the Pirates a break-even season.

To win, Steele thinks the Pirates must keep Draper out of the action again. "I think we did as good a job on him as anyone has done," he said. "Reed (Lose) and Stanley (Love) did a fine job, but he also helped us by getting into foul trouble. We'll have to keep him off the boards, get back on defense and not give up the easy basket and we'll have to handle their full court pressure."

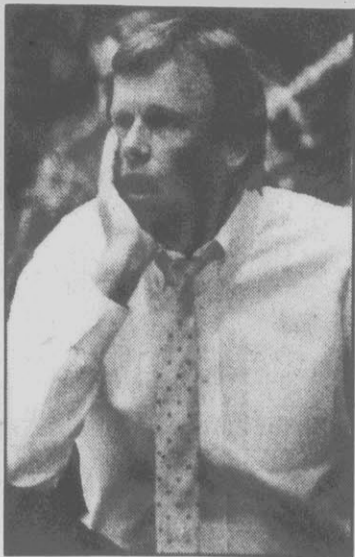

Steele feels that the Pirates have no added pressure on them after losing to UNC-Wilmington in their final regular season game, nor by having never won a CAA tournament game.

"I told them yesterday, we played really well in the last three weeks. The only thing we didn't do well against Wilmington was shoot the ball well. We need to continue to work like we have been and do the things we can do to be successful."

Tapscott said he hoped to get a better game from Draper this time around. "I was not impressed by his mental preparation for the (game in Greenville). Nor, for that matter, the team's preparation. I just hope that that will be remedied by their being in the tournament. And hopefully, he won't get the cheap fouls that diminish playing time."

Tapscott said he was planning on one thing different this time. "I'm planning on winning."

"At the tournament, it's more to do with the players' preparation than with the coaches. There are very few things that we don't know about each other at this point. The key is to get the team ready to give their best effort. You have to prepare and do the things that you've been doing all year long."

Mike Steele

American coach Ed Tapscott said he hopes that the early arrival at Hampton will be a help. "When Old Dominion offered us the game, I

Michigan State Upsets Iowa, 83-81

By Barry Wilner
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jud Heathcote lost a pair of Michigan high school stars and paid for it on the court for nearly four years. Finally, he has gotten back at Roy Marble and B.J. Armstrong.

Heathcote, whose Michigan State team had lost to Iowa five straight times, might be a Big Ten power if Marble, of Flint, Mich., and Armstrong, from Detroit, had stayed in-state and become Spartans. Instead, Armstrong became the all-time assist leader at Iowa and Marble is the Hawkeyes' career scoring leader.

Neither did much leading Thursday night as the 11th-ranked Hawkeyes fell to Michigan State 83-81.

"I'm just so happy to finally beat what I call the 'Michigan Connection,'" Heathcote said. "I look at those Michigan kids that have just beaten us like a drum. We tried to recruit both players very hard."

Thursday night, the Spartans pressed Iowa very hard. The tough defense was the key element in the upset.

"We thought coming in here tonight that one of the keys was for us to get as many points off the press as Iowa did. I think we did that," Heathcote said.

"They looked quicker than we did. I thought they were quicker and more aggressive to the ball. They did a better job defensively than we did," Iowa coach Tom Davis said.

In other Top 20 games, No. 1 Arizona clinched the Pacific-10 crown with a 74-48 romp past Washington State, No. 6 Syracuse was stunned by Boston College 90-87, No. 8 Illinois took Minnesota 63-58, No. 13 Stanford beat Southern California 74-65, 18th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas outlasted Pacific 81-71 and No. 20 North Carolina State stopped Maryland 93-77.

Kirk Manns scored 22 points, making five 3-point shots, and Steve Smith had 21 points for Michigan State.

"I thought our kids hung in there," Heathcote said. "We won the game and ended up beating a very good team. I said before the game that Iowa could be a surprise team in the NCAA tournament.

"Well, we beat them tonight and I still say that."

Smith's two free throws with 1:45 to play gave the Spartans an 81-80 lead. Armstrong, an 82-percent free throw shooter, had a chance to tie the game at 81, but he missed the front end of a one-and-one. Mark Montgomery converted two foul shots with 33 seconds to play to give Michigan State an 83-80 lead.

Armstrong, who finished with 10 points, nearly half his average, made one free throw with seven seconds to play. But Iowa failed to score after grabbing the rebound on his intentional miss on the second shot.

No. 1 Arizona 74, Washington St. 48
The Wildcats were snowed in at Seattle on Wednesday and didn't get to Pullman, Wash., until Thursday afternoon, forcing a one-hour delay in the start of the game. It didn't help Washington State once Arizona woke up in the second half after not scoring in the final three minutes of the first.

Anthony Cook's 28 points, nine rebounds and three blocked shots paced the conference-clinching victory. The Cougars hit just 29 percent of their shots in the second half, while Arizona hit 54 percent.

"Washington State did a great job against us defensively in the first half," Arizona coach Lute Olson said. "They made it difficult for us to shoot from outside, particularly (Sean) Elliott, and made it difficult for him to drive and create opportunities for the other guys."

Elliott, the all-time leading scorer in the Pac-10, was held to 15 points.

Boston College 90, No. 6 Syracuse 87
The tailenders in the Big East had a big surprise for the Orangemen. Dana Barros scored 31 points, including two free throws with 1:41 left that gave Boston College the lead for good. Barros' foul shots came during a 10-0 spurt.

Doug Able had a career-high 22 points for BC, 11-15 overall and 3-12 in the conference. Syracuse slipped to 24-6 and 9-6.

No. 8 Illinois 63, Minnesota 58

Minnesota controlled the ball and the tempo. It wasn't enough as Illinois hit its last eight points from the foul line and got 19 points from Nick Anderson.

Illinois, 24-4 overall, 11-4 in the Big Ten, avenged an earlier loss to the Gophers, 14-11, 6-9.

"Offensively, you're never going to look good in a slowdown ... game," Illinois coach Lou Henson said. "Execution-wise, it was a pretty good game for us. It just didn't look good."

No. 13 Stanford 74, Southern Cal 65

The Cardinal capped its first perfect homecourt record in 27 years as Todd Lichti scored 28 points and Howard Wright added 19 and 10 rebounds. Stanford outrebounded USC 46-24.

Stanford finished 13-0 at home, clinching the latest victory by holding the Trojans scoreless for nearly 10 minutes during a 22-0 run.

Lichti, Stanford's all-time leading scorer, and five other seniors played their final home game before a packed house of 7,500 at Maples Pavilion.

No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas 81, Pacific 71

The Rebels went with their subs for most of the game and got 21 points from Anderson Hunt and 13 rebounds from Moses Scurry.

UNLV scored the first nine points of the game and led by as many as 21 points in the first half. But Pacific put together a 40-20 run and moved ahead 67-65 with 5:13 remaining.

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian then inserted starters David Butler and Stacey Augmon and the Rebels quickly regained the lead on a 10-0 run.

Tony Massenburg led Maryland

The teams traded leads early in the first half, with Maryland's last advantage coming on a Johnson jumper with 7:45 left to make it 27-26. N.C. State outscored the Terrapins 12-3 over the next three minutes, going up 39-29 with 4:23 left on two Monroe free throws.

Mustaf scored back-to-back baskets to whittle the lead, but the Wolfpack came back to match the 10-point margin when Brian D'Amico hit two free throws and scored on a breakaway dunk to end the half at 47-37.

'Day One' Trudges Through History Of A-Bomb Project

By Kathryn Baker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — This reviewer was under the impression, during the interminable hours it took to slog through "Day One," that it must be a three-part miniseries.

What a surprise to realize it's only three hours long. "Day One" airs on one day, Sunday, on CBS.

Certainly, a movie about the development of the A-bomb, the Manhattan Project as it was called, sounded like it had a lot of potential — the race against time, the dangerous testing, and most importantly, the deep moral questions about developing so destructive a weapon.

Unfortunately, the script by producer David Rintels, based on Peter Wyden's book, "Day One: Before Hiroshima and After," is deadly dull.

To his credit, Rintels avoids pat answers and explores complex questions — was it really necessary to bomb Japan to end World War II, or did Congress just want to see the bang that $2 billion worth of taxpayers' bucks had bought?

And Rintels refuses to junk up an inherently dramatic true story with a lot of phony made-for-TV love interests and subplots.

It's just that it takes extremely good writing to turn historical accuracy into drama, especially when the story is mostly talk and little action.

It's also difficult following all the characters. Much of the story winds through the Washington bureaucracy. A narration might have helped, eliminating the need for awkward, unlikely dialogue to explain identities, such as, "You're the supreme commander of the Allied forces that won the war. Of course, he'll care what you think."

bluntness. Michael Tucker is admirably sympathetic as Leo Szilard, the German scientist who turned against the bomb that he was instrumental in creating.

But pair Rintels' script with Joseph Sargent's unimaginative direction, and no acting can save scene after plodding scene of talking heads spouting platitudes.

"It's about our responsibility for the development of this most terrible weapon by which modern civilization could be completely wiped out," Secretary of War Henry Stimson (Hughes) explains to President Harry Truman (Richard Dysart). "But on the other hand, if the problem of proper use of this weapon can be solved, we'll have the opportunity to save world peace and our civilization."

Groves talks to Oppenheimer. Szilard talks to the secretary of state. Oppenheimer talks to Szilard. Oppenheimer and Groves talk to the Cabinet.

The movie does boast an impressive cast, including Hume Cronyn and Bernard Hughes in supporting roles. Brian Dennehy and David Strathairn do their level best with the two leads.

Dennehy plays Gen. Leslie Groves, a military disciplinarian in charge of the Manhattan Project, who had little use for scientists standing around all day kibbitzing about fission and implosion.

There is an interesting relationship between Groves and his seeming opposite, the intellectual Dr. Robert Oppenheimer (Strathairn), who impresses the general with his

When the first mushroom cloud ever ignites the desert sky, one of the scientists exclaims, "It's brighter than a star!" "It's brighter than two stars!" Groves adds.

Mother Wins Pledge From Sponsors To Cut Backing Of TV Sex, Violence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — Terry Rakolta unexpectedly won a skirmish and now she wants to start a battle against what she says are sexually oriented and violent programs that cut into the network television fare her children can watch.

The 40-year-old mother of four, offended by the off-color humor on the prime-time series "Married... With Children," conveyed her distaste to the show's major advertisers in a flurry of letters starting in January.

Much to Mrs. Rakolta's surprise, the letters prompted two of the nation's largest advertisers, Procter & Gamble Co. and McDonald's Corp., and several others to pull their commercials from the series, the top-rated program on the fledgling Fox Broadcasting Co. network.

"The American family is being painted into a corner. It's an invasion of my privacy at this point," Mrs. Rakolta said Thursday.

spokesman Brad Turell in Los Angeles.

"The show is completely sold out," he said, adding that reports of Mrs. Rakolta's campaign have rallied support behind the show.

"We have received literally hundreds of telephone calls today from across the country from viewers saying that this one woman's opinion is getting too much attention and hoping that we won't change the show," Turell said.

Mrs. Rakolta, who lives in the affluent suburb of Bloomfield Hills and has three daughters, ages 18, 10 and 9, and a son, 8, said she intends to start a group, or join existing ones, to organize national boycotts of advertisers.

Her writing campaign began one Sunday night in January when she and her children watched "Married... With Children" and she ended up shoeing the children out of the room.

The situation comedy, which began in 1987, is about a blue-collar family headed by shoe-store clerk Al Bundy.

Mrs. Rakolta said the first show she saw featured a man's visit to a lingerie store. "In the store, one woman removed her bra for strangers, asking how she looked. It showed a man that worked there, an older man, walking around in a garter belt. They mentioned vibrators on the show," Mrs. Rakolta said.

"I was thinking it was a family program because it was prime time, 8:30 p.m. I was horrified. I wanted to know what kind of sponsors would sponsor a show like this," she said.

Mrs. Rakolta said she watched other episodes to see who advertised, then stayed up to 4 a.m. writing letters.

Since she wrote to them, Procter & Gamble, McDonald's, Kimberly-Clark Corp. and Tambrands Inc. have told their advertising agencies not to buy time on the program.

"We felt that the whole theme of the show is basically one we do not want to be associated with. We were concerned about the negative portrayal of American family life," said Procter & Gamble spokeswoman Kelly Gillespie.

The president of Coca-Cola USA, Ira Herbert, said his company will screen future episodes more closely.

Don R. Bay, a Fox vice president, defended the Bundy family as "a comedic counterpoint to other fictional television families who enjoy above average incomes, greater opportunities and have more refined tastes."

Hal Katz, executive vice president of Vitt Media International Inc., a New York ad buyer, said the amount of sex depicted on television is rising dramatically, adding, "As it increases, advertisers become more sensitive to it."

But Paul Isaacson, vice president of Young & Rubicam, a New York advertising company, said complaints about shows' content appear no more frequently than before.

The American Civil Liberties Union said those who seek to influence television content through pressure on advertisers are attempting censorship.

"If you don't want to watch it then don't watch it," said Carol Sobel, an ACLU attorney. "I think what is inappropriate is to force your views on anyone else."

Liz Confirms Stay At Clinic

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor has confirmed she spent time in the Betty Ford Clinic after suffering a back injury, the first time the actress has publicly acknowledged her stay at the California rehabilitation center.

"It has taken a long time to heal and even longer to learn to live with it," Taylor said in a two-paragraph statement issued Thursday. "During this time I was in the Betty Ford Clinic for a brief time ... and I am fine now!"

Taylor, 57, said she suffered a compression fracture of the first lumbar vertebra. But neither she nor her publicist would say if prescription drugs for that injury put Taylor into the drug and alcohol rehabilitation clinic.

Tabloids had reported that Taylor had gone to the center last year, but this was the actress' first public statement about it, said publicist Lucinda Marshall.

Drummer Fired

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Kenny Rogers has fired veteran drummer Bobby Daniels, who is charged with murdering his ex-wife.

Daniels, 41, accused of fatally shooting Sylvia Coakley on Aug. 16, told Criminal Court Judge Randall Wyatt that Rogers fired him effective Sept. 30. Daniels was Rogers' drummer about 12 years.

Daniels, co-producer of the 1986 music video, "Superbowl Shuffle" featuring members of the Chicago Bears, is to go on trial April 24.

A woman at Warner Bros. Records, Rogers' label, had no comment and said no publicists were available.

Leaves Band

LXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Lead singer J.P. Pennington has left the popular country band Exile to spend more time with his family and write music.

Pennington, the last original member of the group, officially left Dec. 31, according to band members. Exile started as a rock band in the mid-1960s.

Sweeps Show ABC Still Struggles As NBC, CBS Rebound

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The so-called February ratings sweep indicate NBC and CBS have rebounded from last year's writers' strike, but network executives say the September-April "season" used to track the ratings race should be yearlong.

"I know you guys love races," said David Poltrack, CBS vice president for marketing, "but any discussion of full-season results is a historical curiosity and not a marketing issue, and a disservice to us."

Alan Wurtzel, ABC's senior vice president for marketing and research, said the season race is now "a spectator sport" and means nothing except for bragging rights.

"In 1989, to say there is a 'season' is so antiquated," said Wurtzel. "That means we would be abdicating the audience five months of the year, and that's not something we can afford to do."

NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff has long held that the ratings race season should be year-round, too, but such talk didn't come up at Thursday's NBC briefing on the February sweep rating period — one of four months a year when local TV ratings are measured to determine advertising rates.

But then, NBC is winning another season hands-down.

Ten years ago when the average viewer had few channels available, the networks didn't have to worry about losing their audience to competition from cable or videocassettes over the summer, but times have changed. The audience that has access to an average of 25 channels will go elsewhere if the networks fail to offer them what they want to watch.

In February, the networks did.

The CBS miniseries "Lonesome Dove" and the heated competition it encouraged boosted the networks' aggregate rating after a more than yearlong decline.

The four-night "Lonesome Dove" boosted third-place CBS above ABC in the February sweep and makes second place for the season a tossup.

NBC won the sweep with an average A.C. Nielsen Co. rating of 16.3. CBS had a 14.7 and ABC a 12.4. The rating is a percentage of 90.4 million U.S. homes with televisions.

Actors Reunited For New Film

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — James Garner and James Woods say their television movie "Promise" will be a tough act to follow, but they believe they have found the right project for a successful return to the small screen.

"My Name is Bill W.," a story about the founder of Alcoholics Anonymous, went into production Monday and is the first pairing of the two since "Promise."

Woods won an Emmy for his performance in "Promise," the story of a man who cares for his mentally retarded younger brother after their mother's death. He says the toughest part of the new movie will be illustrating the spiritual aspect of an alcoholic's recovery.

Woods is cast as Bill Wilson, a failed stockbroker who founded Alcoholics Anonymous in the 1930s. Garner makes a guest appearance as the co-founder.

Meetings Canceled

PARIS (AP) — Tom Cruise canceled meetings with the French press to promote his new movie, "Rain Man," after falling ill and deciding to fly home for care.

Cruise, who plays opposite Dustin Hoffman in the film, came down with a bad cold early this week, an unidentified spokesman for the actor told the French news agency Agence France-Press.

Mortality Rates For Heart Disease, Strokes Drop; Cancer Deaths Rise

By Robert Byrd
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — U.S. mortality rates for two of the three leading causes of death — heart disease and stroke — are headed downward, but cancer is on the increase as unhealthy habits of yesteryear catch up with the older population.

The Centers for Disease Control said Thursday that the U.S. death rate from heart disease in 1987 was 313 per 100,000 people, down from 318 the year before. For stroke, or cerebrovascular disease, the rate was 61 per 100,000, down from 62.

But the mortality rate from cancer, the nation's No. 2 killer, has been going up in recent years, the CDC said. There were 196 cancer deaths in 1987 for every 100,000 Americans, up from 195 the year before.

"What we are seeing ... is the continuation of some long-term trends," said Dr. Harry Rosenberg, a researcher with the National Center for Health Statistics.

Heart disease, cancer and stroke account for about two-thirds of the 2 million deaths that occur in the United States every year, the Atlanta-based CDC said in its weekly report.

Health professionals closely analyze the CDC's statistics on the three leading causes of death for use in determining public health programs.

"They're used to monitor the health of the nation," Rosenberg said.

He said the cancer rate has been rising as Americans who had unhealthy lifestyles in their youth get older. But the rate should fall in coming years because of changing lifestyles among the young.

For example, among 45- to 54-year-olds the cancer rate dropped to 166 per 100,000 in 1986 from 181 per 100,000 in 1979, Rosenberg said. He attributed preventative measures of the past two decades such as improved diet and less smoking as contributing to the drop.

The decline in deaths from heart disease and stroke has been a decadelong trend, said Thomas Thom, an epidemiologist with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

Most experts believe that the decline can be attributed to improvements in personal health, greater prevention of disease, improvement in medical care for heart or stroke patients, or all of those factors, Thom said.

"The decline is ... very real, and very consistent," he said.

Thom cited trends toward quitting smoking, controlling high blood pressure and lowering cholesterol levels, as well as "increased physical activity and, generally, health consciousness" as factors in the decrease. At the same time, cardiac intensive care units have come into widespread use in hospitals, and heart surgery has become commonplace.

"There are plenty of reasons to think all those reasons contributed," he said.

Heart disease killed 762,820 of the 2.2 million Americans who died in 1987. Cancer killed 477,190, and stroke killed 149,220. A year earlier, 2.1 million Americans died, including 765,490 from heart disease, 469,376 from cancer and 149,643 from stroke, Rosenberg said.

Complete mortality figures from 1988 are not yet available, Rosenberg said.

The mortality rate from heart disease was showing a slight increase from 1987 levels in the 12 months from October 1987 to September 1988, he said. But that might be traced, in part, to an influenza epidemic last winter which preyed upon those at increased risk of problems from flu — such as patients with chronic heart disease, he said.

Kidnappers Arrested After Trying To Swap Baby Boy For Money

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Two men who tried to rob a man and woman instead stole the couple's 5-month-old son when the scared parents fled through a second-story window, police said. The robbers then tried to trade the baby for ransom.

The child, Mikhail Grant, was found uninjured when the suspects were arrested at a subway station 16 hours later as they tried to sell the baby back to the couple, police Inspector Richard Mayronne said Thursday.

"The baby appears to be in excellent shape," he said. "They're obviously not professional kidnapers. I consider them very low on the food chain, someone who would take a 5-month-old baby."

Mikhail's ordeal began early Thursday, when his father, Fynlass Grant, 27, returned home from his job as a livery driver.

Two men with automatic weapons pushed Grant into his Queens apartment, demanding cash and jewelry, police said.

When the men burst in, the baby's mother, Yvonne Grant, 26, who is pregnant, jumped out the second-story window, police said. She was treated for a broken ankle.

Grant leaped out the same window, and one of the gunmen scooped up the baby, said Mayronne.

The Grants three other children, ages 6, 7, and 8, were left at home unharmed.

The abductors called the Grant's house three times, demanding money and jewelry they believed was in a safe.

A drop was negotiated, and Grant, accompanied by a plainclothes police officer, exchanged the baby for a bag of ransom.

Wayne Johnson, 21, and a 17-year-old man were arrested at the station and will be charged with kidnapping, police said.

Administration Set To Propose Minimum Wage Boost To $4.25

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration will propose increasing the federal minimum wage to $4.25 over the next three years and creating a universal "training wage" of nearly a dollar less for all new hires, government officials said Thursday.

The decision to boost the wage from the $3.35 it has been for nearly a decade was reached Thursday after more than a week of White House debate over both the size of the proposed increase and the scope of a training wage.

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole is scheduled to present the administration proposal this afternoon in testimony before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Labor Department officials said the administration would insist on a training wage as part of any minimum-wage legislation. Under the proposal, every minimum-wage job could pay new workers as little as $3.35 an hour for the first six months as they are trained.

"Under this proposal, no one will get the minimum wage," a congressional official said Thursday night, arguing that the high turnover in low-wage jobs would keep workers perpetually at the training-wage level. He predicted Dole would come under heavy questioning about the proposed sub-minimum.

Sources said congressional Democrats, who have proposed increasing the minimum wage to $4.65 an hour over the next three years with no training wage, are expected to insist that any training wage be limited. Rather than having the training wage apply to every new job, Democrats have appeared willing to consider a brief training wage for the first job the worker has held.

But congressional sources close to the key labor committees handling the legislation conceded that there will have to be some form of training wage to win final approval of an overall increase.

Business lobbyists have predicted that with the proper training wage, a proposal to increase the minimum wage begins to attract a majority in both the Senate and House at about the $4.25-an-hour level.

Oil Tanker Runs Aground

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONOLULU — A tanker carrying 90,000 barrels of crude oil ran aground in stormy seas about 15 miles from Hawaii's most popular tourist area, possibly spilling as much as 8,400 gallons, officials said.

Coast Guard spokesman Keith Spangler said the 800-foot tanker Exxon Houston sent a distress call at 8:20 p.m. Thursday off the Hawaiian island of Oahu.

The captain of the tanker reported the ship was "hard aground" three-tenths of a mile northwest of Barbers Point on Oahu's southwest coast, about 15 miles west of the island's densely populated area containing Honolulu and its Waikiki Beach, Hawaii's most popular tourist area, Spangler said.

Rough seas appeared to be dissipating the oil, the Coast Guard said.

Dorman Says More S&Ls Will Fail

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — White House Budget Director Richard Darman, giving a preview of a drastically altered savings and loan industry, said Thursday that the Bush administration expects 200 currently solvent S&Ls to fail within the next two years, in addition to the 345 insolvent institutions already slated for shutdown or sale.

Another 400 thrifts face likely extinction if they cannot raise additional capital to meet the tough new financial standards proposed by the administration as part of its S&L rescue package, Darman told the Senate Banking Committee.

Industry analysts have been predicting a drastic shrinkage of the troubled S&L industry, which totaled about 3,000 institutions as of mid-1988, before the closure or merger of 223 of them.

But Darman is the first administration official to offer such a forecast, and independent analysts said he might be underestimating the potential industry shakeout. Bert Ely, a consultant in Alexandria, Va., predicted that as many as 800 to 900 more S&Ls could be wiped out.

Darman also warned that the ultimate costs of the Bush program to dispose of insolvent S&Ls and guarantee deposits up to $100,000 could balloon beyond the current estimate — $94 billion from the taxpayers during the full 33-year period of paying off the bonds that would finance the rescue.

Senate May Close Door On Tower Debate

WASHINGTON — The Senate debate over John Tower's troubled nomination as defense secretary is producing its share of partisan sparks after only one day, with one key senator holding out the possibility of airing sensitive information in a closed-door session.

"I don't suggest it and I want to avoid it, (but) it may be necessary to have a closed session," Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn said Thursday in the midst of a flare-up over material damaging to Tower that has been leaked from an FBI report.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., said Tower had been "trashed" by material that was leaked, and said those responsible never mentioned exculpatory material that also appeared in the FBI report. "A closed session of the Senate would not repair the damage that's been done," he said.

Several senators called for releasing some of the FBI material in sanitized form to give the public a better idea of what it contains. But when Nunn, D-Ga., raised the possibility of making the transcripts of closed committee sessions public, no Republican followed up.

Despite GOP expressions of outrage over the leaks, Tower's chances of confirmation dimmed further as three additional Democrats joined the opposition and the White House conceded that President Bush has failed to persuade any Democrat to support the nomination.

With a second day of debate set for today, an Associated Press survey of senators showed 44 Democrats and Republican Larry Pressler of South Dakota either solidly against the nomination or leaning against, and 40 Republicans either solidly committed or leaning toward confirmation. The Democrats hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate.

Republicans said they hoped to use the debate to marshal public support and the White House insisted it would fight to the end.

North might do the same thing this year.

North Korean and South Korean delegates failed to make progress Thursday on setting terms for talks between their prime ministers after the North said "Team Spirit" must be called off before the opening of substantive negotiations. The two sides agreed to meet again April 12.

U.S. and South Korean officials said "Team Spirit" was being held for the 14th consecutive year as a purely defensive exercise that poses no threat to the North.

"The purpose is to train American and South Korean forces to defend Korea.

One Child Is Killed, Second Hurt By Dogs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 5-year-old Michigan child was killed by neighborhood dogs in a mauling so grisly a doctor likened it to a shark attack, and a Florida infant had four fingers chewed off by the family pet.

The body of the Ishpeming, Mich., child was discovered by neighbors outside the family's home.

"It appears she had been chewed upon, right down to the bone," said Sgt. Greg Tait of the Michigan State Police. "Based on what the doctor saw, he says it resembles a shark attack."

Tait said residents pointed out two of three neighborhood dogs suspected in the attack, and officers killed the animals, identified as a huskie and a German shepherd. Police were searching for the third dog Thursday afternoon, he said.

The child's name was withheld until her parents were notified, Tait said.

"People let their dogs run loose during the day and there have been as many as 25 in a pack," said Annie Trudell, whose store is across the street from where the attack took place. "People don't understand how quickly a family pet can become vicious."

In Ocala, Fla., a mixed-breed puppy gnawed four fingers off a 22-year-old girl's right hand.

The 7-week-old dog was described as three-quarters pit bull and one-quarter husky.

Shaye Lynne Emminger was in fair condition at Munroe Regional Medical Center following the attack Wednesday morning. Her four fingers were recovered from the puppy's stomach, but doctors could not reattach them, said Jennifer Fanzlaw of the Marion County Sheriff's Department.

The child's parents, Michael Douglas Emminger, 19, and Deborah Lawson Emminger, 16, awoke to find their child bleeding profusely in her crib, Fanzlaw said. She said the dog also was in the crib.

The dog was taken to the pound and killed.

Investigators said they don't know what prompted the puppy to bite the child, but they don't believe the dog attacked her viciously, adding that the child might have had milk or formula on her fingers.

"All puppies chew," Fanzlaw said.

U.S., South Korea To Hold Joint Exercise

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — The United States and South Korea today announced plans for large-scale joint military exercises despite warnings from communist North Korea that the maneuvers could wreck prospects for peace talks.

The U.S. Eighth Army said about 200,000 U.S. and South Korean troops, along with air force and navy units, would participate in the annual "Team Spirit" exercises beginning March 14. About 70,000 U.S. troops are to take part.

North Korea warned Thursday during talks with South Korean delegates that "Team Spirit" must be abandoned if the two sides are to make progress on easing tension across the divided peninsula. North Korean officials charged "Team Spirit" was preparation for a nuclear attack on the North.

North Korea has been demanding a halt to "Team Spirit" for several months and today's announcement in Seoul could be used by the North to end all talks with the capitalist South. There was no immediate reaction from the North today.

South Korean officials said they hoped North Korea would continue talks on improving relations, but that the exercises are vital to the South's defenses. The North maintains far larger military forces than the South and seriously threatens South Korea's safety, they said.

North Korea keeps armed forces estimated at 840,000 troops; South Korea has about 600,000 of its own forces in addition to U.S. forces.

North Korea and China will be invited to send observers to the exercises to show there was no hostile intention, U.S. officials said. The North has rejected similar offers in the past.

North Korea pulled out of peace talks with South Korea in 1986 after Seoul refused to end "Team Spirit" that year. U.S. officials said the
