Labor Rallies Boost Strikers; Shuttle A Big Hit

By Sandra Walewski
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Labor rallies boosted the spirits of striking Eastern Airlines workers Saturday while the struggling carrier attracted travelers "like gangbusters" to its bargain Northeast shuttle and worked to restore routes.

Aircraft were again reported flying near capacity on the second day of $12 fares on the Northeast shuttle linking New York with Washington and Boston, once Eastern's most profitable service. The pre-strike fare was $99.

"The shuttle's going like gangbusters," said Eastern spokesman Robin Matell. "This ($12 fare) has just created a tremendous groundswell of interest in traveling between the cities."

Joe Scott, an Eastern spokesman in New York, said the shuttle remained popular Saturday, but ticket lines at LaGuardia Airport were not as long as they were Friday.

Many flights were crowded with college students heading home for spring break. Because the hourly shuttle works on a first-come, first-serve basis, many passengers waited for hours before getting on a flight.

Matell suggested the solidarity of pilots honoring Machinists union picket lines might be cracking. "We have more than 200 pilots now, and yesterday we had inquiries from about 300 pilots inquiring about procedures for returning to work," he said.

But Air Line Pilots Association spokesman Jim Bost, an Eastern pilot for four years, discounted that report, saying: "So far they are still hanging tight with us. As far as we can tell the line is still holding solid."

Machinists leader Frank Ortis said the pickets' resolve was unwavering, despite urgings from Eastern to return to work.

"Management is calling people to go to work, saying it's all over," Ortis said. "This is company rhetoric, and we're telling members disregard that — we're still on strike."

Meanwhile, corporate shuffling by Eastern parent Texas Air Corp. continued as Eastern Express, a non-union commuter carrier that fed Eastern flights, was renamed Continental Express. Non-union Continental Airlines, another Texas Air company, has picked up some Eastern routes since the strike began March 4.

Picketing continued at airports in Miami, New York, Washington and other cities.

At Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson joined machinists, pilots and flight attendants on picket lines for about 10 minutes, donning pilots' caps, shaking hands and kissing babies. About 1,000 people attended a related rally.

"I intend to march until victory is won," said Jackson, who got a rousing reaction Thursday from Eastern strikers in Miami. "I don't know of any airplanes that fly in reverse."

Ed Weiss, an Eastern pilot for 10 years, was among about 200 people who linked hands along the main service road at the Greater Buffalo (N.Y.) In-

Blended Leaf Exported As U.S. Tobacco, Official Says

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Tobacco dealers have routinely been adding foreign leaf to U.S. tobacco and selling it through government export programs as 100 percent American leaf, a federal investigation has revealed.

"My staff has met with tobacco industry representatives. They were told that it is a routine practice for tobacco exporters to mix foreign tobacco with U.S. tobacco in filling orders for unmanufactured flue-cured tobacco," Allan I. Mendelowitz, director of International Trade, Energy and Finance Issues for the U.S. General Accounting Office, said reeently in a hearing before a House subcommittee in Washington, D.C.

"They added (that) in many cases, this tobacco has been represented as U.S. tobacco and covered under the export credit guarantee program," he said.

The Foreign Agriculture Service oversees the credit program, in which countries may borrow funds from U.S. financial institutions in order to purchase a variety of American products. The Commodity Credit Corp. guarantees that the bank will be repaid.

However, a nationwide check of tobacco company records indicates that nearly half of those participating in the federal loan programs have blended foreign and U.S. leaf, and illegally sold the product, according to Mendelowitz.

"Our latest statistics show that a total of 66 companies received (government) guarantees on 127 million pounds of tobacco valued at $214 million during the period October 1985 through Sept. 30, 1988," James R. Ebbitt, assistant inspector general for audit, Office of Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said in House testimony.

"We have now visited 63 of these companies and found that 28 of them blended foreign tobacco with domestic and shipped it under (government) guarantees. These 28 companies shipped approximately 65 percent of the total tobacco shipped under (government) guarantees during this period.

"As mentioned in our prior testimony, the percentage of foreign tobacco included in (government) guarantees for these companies ranged from 25-80 percent," Ebbitt said.

The two men testified before the House Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, which is chaired by North Carolina Democrat Charlie Rose. The inquiries into tobacco companies should be completed next month.

Medical Program Offers Hands-On Science Course

Dose-volume effects in radiation oncology or molecular biology of drug resistance in human tumors usually are not topics high school students study, unless, of course, they're in the Senior Honors Medical School program in the Pitt County schools.

The school system and East Carolina University initiated the program in 1983, said Mary Alice Yarbrough, coordinator of special projects for the Pitt schools.

"Dr. Delma Blinson met with Dean William Laupus and worked out a joint venture for the medical school and the school system," she said. Blinson was superintendent of the Greenville city schools and Laupus was dean of the ECU School of Medicine.

The program allows high school students, high school science teachers and the medical school faculty to work cooperatively in medical research and education, she said.

The students receive in-depth experience in a clinical or basic science area by participating in problem-solving skills using scientific methods, and science teachers are exposed to topics common to all areas of medical science, Ms. Yarbrough said.

Paying For Those Days Off

Christy Newsome and Chad Taylor, first-graders at Sam Bundy School in Farmville, were among the Farmville area students attending school on a makeup day Saturday. Barry Gaskins, public information officers for Pitt County schools, said class attendance was light for the extra day, which was scheduled because of power problems experienced during the recent bad weather. H.B. Sugg, Sam Bundy, Farmville Middle, Falkland and Farmville Central High schools were all open Saturday for classes.

Coastal Damage Over $4 Million

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KITTY HAWK — A gusting storm that battered the Outer Banks for four days moved quietly away from North Carolina Saturday, leaving at least $4.5 million in damages in its wake.

"It's pretty much over with," Ron Jones of the National Weather Service office at Cape Hatteras said Saturday. "The problems are over, but now begins the recovery.

"This is the third winter storm we've had along the coast in three weeks, or is it four weeks? No, it's three weeks," Jones said. "They've all started merging together in my mind. Now comes the fun part — writing up all the reports."

Jones said a cottage in Kitty Hawk that had been seriously damaged in earlier tides washed into the sea Friday night. But Saturday's high tide brought only shallow overwash on N.C. 12 and no more reports of cottages or motels damaged.

Losses were estimated Friday at $4.5 million, with more than 150 buildings, including cottages and motels, damaged.

Kitty Hawk planner Dave Monroe said at least 10 buildings were destroyed, 18 more were condemned because their foundations were undermined, and an additional 16 had sustained less serious damage such as destruction of decks or walkways. He estimated the town's damage at $2 million.

At south Nags Head, seven structures had been destroyed, 49 condemned and 51 slightly damaged.

Rival Diverges On Farm Reform

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Just four days before Communist Party leaders are to revamp agricultural policy, Mikhail Gorbachev's strongest rival on the Politburo on Saturday publicly broke with the president's call for more individual farming.

Yegor Ligachev, the head of the Communist Party's commission on agriculture, characterized his preference for collective farming as a group decision without identifying who supports him.

Ligachev, the former ideology chief of the Communist Party who was shifted to agriculture last fall in what was widely regarded as a demotion, was interviewed on Soviet television during a trip to view agriculture in Czechoslovakia.

"We have become convinced one more time that the basis for any progress in food programs is actually development of collective forms of management, such as collective farms and state farms, along with a steady development of self-financing," or accounting for profits and losses, Ligachev said.

Such accounting is a major part of Gorbachev's reform program. However, Ligachev did not mention Gorbachev's repeated praise for experiments in leasing state farm land to families and small groups.

Just last week, Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov told a news conference that the Kremlin leaders intended to significantly expand family farming through leasing of land.

Although Ligachev was appointed by Gorbachev, he has differed with the Soviet leader on a number of occasions.

Crash Kills 5

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANASSAS, Va. — A twin-engine plane crashed in a field just north of the Manassas Airport shortly after takeoff Saturday, killing all five people aboard, state police said.

"Somebody heard like a backfire in the engine, and that's all we know. After that, the plane lost altitude and it crashed," police Sgt. R.S. Keevill said.

The plane, a 1973 Beechcraft, had left Claymont, Del., earlier in the day to be shown to prospective buyers in Manassas, Keevill said. The plane was refueled at Manassas Airport and had just taken off at 2:25 p.m. when it crashed in a field between the airport and the city of Manassas.

"I think it was pretty much intact until it hit. All we know right now is when it hit the ground, it exploded," he said. "Everything's pretty much close together."

The names of the victims were withheld until their families were notified. According to Keevill, three were from Somerset, Pa., one was from Toughkenamon, also in southeast Pennsylvania, and one was from Delaware.

U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones Sr., a Farmville Democrat, is also a member of the subcommittee, and his legislative assistant said officials at the hearing did not mention any specific tobacco companies under investigation.

"It was really never stated whether or not the companies, by name, would be listed. It may not be until after the investigation," Bob Peele of Jones' office said in an interview.

The alleged export practices are in violation of the current government loan regulations, and guilty companies could be barred from participating in the programs in the future, according to House testimony. Tobacco dealers allegedly made millions by substituting foreign leaf in U.S. shipments sold under the government's export credit guarantee program.

Until September of last year, it was not clear what conditions exporters needed to meet to qualify for the export program, Mendelowitz said. Thus it is not clear whether dealers who improperly blended U.S. and foreign leaf should be prohibited from participating loan program.

"A number of companies identified ... as having exported large quantities of tobacco under the programs as U.S. tobacco during fiscal years 1986 through 1988 were allowed to participate in the programs in fiscal year 1989," he said.

However, the Foreign Agricultural Service has canceled a $1.9 million tobacco contract and a $2.6 million seed contract because it was discovered that the two companies had previously included foreign commodities in their shipments under the export credit guaranteed program. The exporters will be liable for any money that the Commodity Credit Corporation was to pay, Ebbitt said, and attorneys are considering banning the dealers from the loan programs.

The actions may also be criminal, Mendelowitz said, and the U.S. Attorney's Office is currently conducting an investigation into the export practices.

Mendelowitz made two recommendations: have the Foreign Agriculture Service clarify the loan program regulations by defining exactly what products are commodities, and have the group design and implement internal controls to ensure accurate accounting and to test shipments for verification.

It may appear cumbersome for a tobacco company to import foreign tobacco and then turn around and export the same leaf as U.S. tobacco, but a tobacco export official said the practice has potential benefits.

For example, foreign customers usually request a specific type of tobacco in their contracts, but there may not be enough of that kind available on the market to fill the order. In 1988 — a prosperous year — many companies could not purchase as much leaf as they wanted, thus the quota was raised for 1989.

"Many of the foreign orders specify what quality and kind of tobacco. For whatever reason, those supplies may not be available that year," J.T. "Tommy" Bunn, executive vice president of Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, told The Daily Reflector.

"Some countries want a product that is ready for manufacturing. Some are required to put their own tobacco in. Each customer has his own specifications. That's part of the service the dealers do, arranging the tobacco (and making sure it) meets certain specifications."

The Associated Press reported last week that eight of 10 tobacco dealers who had contracts to supply U.S. flue-cured leaf to Taiwan last year could not fill their orders.

Five of the dealers, including A.C. Monk & Co. Inc., of Farmville, wrote letters to Taiwanese officials asking if they could substitute 25 percent foreign leaf. Taiwanese officials were reportedly surprised at the request, and they rejected the proposals for blended shipments.

No one has been available at Monk to comment on the situation, and officials at the company did not return phone calls from a reporter.

The Taiwanese contracts did not fall under the export credit guarantee program, but the letters — all five of which were dated Nov. 14, 1988 — were uncovered by federal investigators in their inquiry.

Though there was not enough supply to meet all the demand last year, Bunn said the growers did a good job of providing top-quality leaf.

"They are doing a good job, yes. We produce the best tobacco in the world," he said. "We always have room for improvement, but, yes, the growers are doing a good job."

In private contracts between tobacco companies and buyers, it is OK to set up an arrangement where foreign tobacco is included. But, since Feb. 15, the government has banned any foreign leaf in any shipments under the export credit guarantee loan program, and exporters must certify their commodity is 100 percent U.S.

Last September, the federal government set up a temporary system in which 25 percent of the value of the shipment could be foreign leaf. The amount had to be certified for the Federal Agriculture Service, and the Commodity Credit Corporation only insured payment for the 75 percent of the cost.

But, because foreign leaf may cost substantially less that U.S. tobacco, there was an interesting twist. Companies were able to include much more than 25 percent of foreign leaf by volume, and the amount still constituted one-fourth of the dollar value.

In checks last fall of exports leaving from Newport News, Va., Norfolk, Va., and Richmond, Va., investigators sampled seven shipments of tobacco.

U.S. Customs officials estimated that one shipment sold under the Foreign Agriculture Service's 75-25 percent plant actually contained about 80 percent foreign leaf by volume, Mendelowitz said.

"We're out to show the public that we are firm and standing strong and we will prevail," Weiss said.

The AFL-CIO announced Saturday in Washington the establishment of a relief fund to help union members at Eastern and said it reached $250,000 almost immediately. It started with an AFL-CIO contribution of $100,000, followed by $50,000 from the United Auto Workers and $100,000 from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland sent a letter to other affiliated unions and state and local federations seeking contributions to what was named the Fairness at Eastern fund.

In Miami, striking employees were joined by their families for picket duty at Eastern headquarters, and a food drive was organized for union members who are ineligible for unemployment under Florida law because they went on strike rather than agree to contract concessions.

"I know some people are really hurting as far as paychecks, but we all knew this was going to happen," said mechanic Les Davison, picketing with his 6-year-old daughter Christina, who sported an anti-Frank Lorenzo sticker targeting Texas Air's chairman on her frilly pink dress.

Horse Killed By Car

A two-car accident Friday on State Road 1149 that resulted in $4,000 damage was caused by a horse that had strayed from his pasture, State Trooper J.R. Letchworth said Saturday.

Letchworth said Samuel King of Grifton was driving south at about 8:30 p.m. when his car struck and killed a horse owned by Allan Wade Stancill of Ayden.

King had pulled to the side of the road when a car driven north by Ronald Dean Staton hit the horse, which was lying in the middle of the road, and flipped over, skidding to a stop on its roof, Letchworth said. Letchworth said he was in the car following Staton.

Both cars suffered $2,000 damage, Letchworth said, and Staton was treated at the scene for minor cuts and bruises. The horse was valued at $700.

Pitt Students Participating In Honors Medical School Program

Preceptors from the medical school faculty support the teaching of science in the community by establishing personal contact between students and science teachers, she said.

"The program originated as a result of sort of a volunteer situation that was going on," said Dr. Sam Pennington, a professor in the medical school and the school's liaison to the school system for the program.

Several high school students had approached professors wanting to participate in science projects, he said. The honors program formalizes that relationship.

"What the students experience with their faculty preceptor is one extraordinary experience for students at that age," he said. "They get in-depth exposure and hands-on experience on some aspect of science.

"The experience is really the unique thing. In the seminars we present to them, I think the value the student gains is that we have authorities in the field who present the topics. They hear experts in a wide area of disciplines," he said.

Seminars are presented by the medical school faculty to students and teachers. An array of topics such as fraud in science, creative thinking, AIDS, eating disorders and computers in medicine are scheduled to be discussed this year.

"Our faculty has been very, very generous with their time to take high school students and work with them to the point where the high school student can function in a research lab. The preceptors volunteer and the seminar presenters volunteer (their time), and we always have more than we need," Pennington said.

Science teachers participating in the program say it's a unique opportunity for the students and for themselves.

"I think it is one of the most wonderful things that can happen," Nancy Wynn, a teacher at J.H. Rose High School, said. "The seminars are informative, and they help us stay up to date. Also, we have found some real friends among the medical school faculty.

"This is a most unsual program. As I've gone throughout the state I have found that other schools do not have access to a program of this type, and I think that makes us very special," she said.

The students participating in the program "are learning so much about research skills and all the things involved in a science career," she said. "They're learning it first hand."

Nancy Evans, a teacher at D.H. Conley High School, said the program has taught the students lessons beyond the scientific principles.

"The students learn problem solving, (and) how to budget their time," she said. "The students get caught up with the excitment of seeing a difficult job through from beginning to end. Some students show a dedication to their project, resulting in interesting data which has been written as manuscript for publication in a peer-reviewed scientific research journal," Ms. Evans said.

Many of the students publish articles with their preceptors based on the research they've participated in, said Dr. Brian McMillen, a faculty member and preceptor who has published with four students.

"For these students, most of them are interested in science and medicine as potential careers. It gives them a chance to see modern laboratories. They get to see and work with the faculty members in the various departments," he said.

The research the students participate in vary from working with mice and rats to reviewing courthouse records for information on divorces and cutstody disputes, McMillen said.

"I assume that they are very bright and eager but that they are a blank slate," he said. "You take nothing for granted — the analytical balances, the equipment. A lot of things you normally take for granted you can't with them, but they learn very quickly," McMillen said.

The students generally work on a specific research topic during the year, Pennington said. Faculty members participating in the program propose the projects that are reviewed and accepted by the students.

"The preceptor makes an offer, then the student goes and talks to the preceptor about what the topic involves and then they work from that point," he said. "Generally speaking, (the project) is something ongoing in preceptor's lab that the student can become a part of."

Katrina Layton of D.H. Conley, said she meets with her preceptor, Dr. Robert Fisher, about everyday to work on the project.

"Basically, I do experiments just like a lab technician would except Dr. Fisher helps me," she said. Blood drawn from various patients is used with different stimili which cause various reactions that may be observed.

Beyond the research experience the program has offered her, Ms. Layton said the program has boosted her self-confidence.

"Before I started this, I was very shy," she said. "Working in a lab, you get a lot of interactions with a lot of people. You learn very quickly not to be afraid to asks questions."

After graduating from high school, Ms. Layton said she plans to major in medical technology at N.C. State University.

Jonathan Li, a student at J.H. Rose, is working on a project that would create successful defibrillation using low-energy shocks. His preceptor is Dr. Peng-Wie Hsia.

"The main goal is to try to use the lowest energy to get the heart pumping," he said. The lower the energy the less likely healthy tissues would be destroyed.

Li said he is considering studying electrical engineering at the university level and knowledge gained through the medical program will help him in that field.

"Because of this program, I am seeing lots of ways to approach a project to find the parameters and protocols in the approach to prove a theory," he said.

Seniors in the five Pitt County high schools compete for the 12 annual slots allocated by the medical school. Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, grade point averages, teacher recommendations, communication abilities and motivation are weighed in the selection process.

In addition, the top 16 finalists are interviewed by faculty members and central office personnel in the school system before the final 12 are selected.

Student participants spend a minimum of 10 hours each week with their medical school preceptors, and they receive one unit of high school credit through the program, Ms. Yarbrough said. Nine Pitt County students are participating in the program this year.

The students present their projects twice a year. In the first presentation, usually made in February, they explain the project and the research they will conduct. Their conclusions are presented in the final presentation in May.

"This kind of research for the high school student is really phenomenal," Ms. Yarbrough said. "There are a lot of intangible rewards for the students," such as being treated as a researcher, being able to use information gained on college entrance exams and courses and developing a relationship with professionals in the medical field.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for a hands-on science course," she said. "We are really fortunate to have such an opportunity here at Pitt County schools."

Other Pitt County students participating in the honors medical program are Laura Barnes, Jeff Likosar and Anjali Kataria, all of J.H. Rose, and Steve Cobb, Jamie Durham, Sean Campbell and Ken Tursam, all of Farmville Central.

totaling about $1.9 million in losses.

In Kill Devil Hills — located between the two towns hardest hit — one building was destroyed, and the end unit of a motel broke apart when its foundation was undermined. An additional 27 houses were damaged, said town manager Alvin Hoggard. The town's losses were put at $430,000.

Elsewhere in Dare County, which has been under flood warnings since Tuesday night because of excessive tides, 75 feet of a pier were sawed off by the storm and tons of sand were swept out to sea, causing at least $200,000 in damage in the towns of Rodanthe and Buxton, said county finance officer Donnie Hux. Plank walkways to the beach at Duck were reported damaged and there was erosion at Sanderling, but damage to those areas had not been assessed.

State Department of Transportation crews moved sand to the shoulder of N.C. 12 in hopes of slowing down the sea at high tide.

Similar work was going on along a stretch of the beachfront road in Kitty Hawk, where Friday's high tide had sent waves crashing against a steep bank of sand within a few feet of the pavement. The road was in the middle of a half-mile-long area where most of the 10 homes had been lost.

Eakin Names Panel To Probe Campus Incident

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University Chancellor Richard Eakin has appointed a committee to investigate an incident that involved black and white students on the Greenville campus last year.

"I have formed a committee of eight persons — four faculty members, two staff members and two students — to be a fact-finding panel to determine what occurred April 3 and to study the records that are available, and to talk to individuals (involved), if they please," Eakin said Friday.

Once the committee has completed its investigation, it will report its findings to Eakin, he said.

Chaired by Dr. Jasper Register of the department of sociology and anthropology, "the committee is racially balanced," Eakin said. "It has four blacks and four whites.

"They will meet next week for the first time. I will meet with them first to essentially give them their charge," he said. "I'm hoping they'll report in about a month."

After a meeting with several black community and state leaders in February, Eakin agreed to review evidence in an April 3, 1988, incident when several white students allegedly shouted racial slurs to several black students. The interaction spurred a fight that resulted in the suspension of a black student for two years.

The incident caught the attention of the state NAACP and local black leaders who met with Eakin to discuss their concerns in the university's handling of the case.

The meeting between university officials and the black leaders was spurred by a letter sent to Eakin in January by Dennis Schatzman, executive director of the state NAACP.

Schatzman's letter accused the university of handling the April 1988 incident improperly. He called for the suspended student to be readmitted to ECU or that equal punishment be given to the whites students involved. He claimed the suspended student did not get a fair trial, according to evidence given to the NAACP that he said indicated all of the students were guilty.

In Eakin's response to Schatzman's letter, he said the actions taken by university to settle the incident were appropriate. But after meeting with Schatzman and local black leaders, Eakin agreed to consider forming a university committee to determine what happened in the incident.

Local black leaders said Friday that they thought the formation of the committee was a positive step toward resolving the issue, but Schatzman said he still has some concerns.

"What concerns me is the committee will have access to all university records regarding the incident. Will is a strong word. May is not. The committee may interview any persons believed to have knowledge of relevant facts," Schatzman said.

"I think it should be mandatory that the committee interview all the people that were there," he said.

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter said he believes Eakin is fair and will appropriately gauge what actions are necessary to resolve the issue.

"Dr. Eakin is a very fair individual," he said. "The incident happened early in his tenure, and he didn't initially get involved but eventually he saw the need to open it up and investigate and get down to the root of the matter.

"I find him to be a very fair individual, and I feel that if the investigation is thoroughly conducted and the facts are revealed to reflect what actually happened, if other actions are necessary, I feel he will act (accordingly).

"I think this will go a long ways in building minority confidence in university and it will have a significant impact at the institution and in our community in the future," Carter said.

Gaston Monk, president of the Pitt County branch of the NAACP, said he was pleased with the establishment of the committee.

"At least the witnesses will be heard and that's what we're asking. That's what he promised to do," he said.

The Rev. Farney Moore, a Pitt County commissioner, said he hopes the committee's investigation will provide a more equitable view of incident.

"Having it balanced with equal number of blacks and whites on that committee gives more leverage that would call for more fairness," he said. "It is a positive step."

Other members on the committee appointed by Eakin are Dr. Judy Rollins of the School of Home Economics, Dr. Velma Speight of the School of Education, Dr. Charles Sullivan of the English department, Nancy Mize of the intramural recreation services department, Marcus Jeannette of the office of radiation safety, and students Jarrod Moody and Kelly Jones.

Rape Trial Ends In Deadlock

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Greenville man is facing a third trial on charges of raping his stepdaughter, after his second trial ended Friday with a hung jury.

Charlie James Jones, 40, had been found guilty in 1986 of two counts of first-degree rape and three counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor, and he was sentenced to life in prison. But his case was heard again in Pitt County Superior Court last week, after the state Supreme Court ordered a new trial last July.

A jury of nine men and three women deliberated six hours Friday before announcing at 4:30 p.m. it was deadlocked. The jury was split 10-2, but the group did not state whether they were leaning to a verdict of innocent or guilty.

After Judge G.K. Butterfield of Wilson declared a mistrial and recessed court, several jurors declined to comment on the case.

"It was just a hard-fought trial on both sides," said Jones' attorney, Charles Vincent of Greenville. "Because of the evidence and nature of the case, I felt it would be very hard for the jury to reach a unanimous verdict one way or the other."

Pitt County District Attorney Tom Haigwood declined to comment on the case.

Jones, who will remain free on bond pending a new trial, was accused of sexually assaulting his stepdaughter while her mother was working and the girl was left in his custody. The alleged offenses occurred from December of 1982, when the girl was 11 years old, through October of 1985.

He allegedly threatened her with a handgun to make her consent to sex, and a 1986 search warrant stated that she claimed Jones also used duct tape, rope and a butcher knife to threaten her.

In testimony last week, she could not identify which gun was first used, and she could not pinpoint any exact date when the sexual assaults occurred. However, she repeated her claims that she was threatened and forced to consent to sex.

"I know those guns were pointed to my head numerous times," she said.

Of another instance when there was no sexual contact, she testified: "He had the knife on one hand and he choked me with the other."

The abuse has forced her to seek psychological treatment, she said.

"I got to the point I couldn't go to sleep," she said. "If I did go to sleep, I would have real bad dreams."

Vincent questioned why she had not told a family member about the sexual assaults during the three years they allegedly occurred, and she said she feared no one was trustworthy and her stepfather might harm the person she told.

She said her mother did not believe her reports of the sexual contact in 1982, and she eventually told her father in early 1986.

Though she was not living with her mother and stepfather in December of 1982, she testified that he picked her up some days and said he needed her to help with some things around the house. Once or twice that month he had sex with her, she said.

By early 1986, when there was a custody battle between the parents, she said that she vowed never to return to her stepfather's home.

"They couldn't make me go back," she said. "I'd rather be dead than be in that situation again."

To rebut the state's evidence, Vincent called Jones to the stand, in addition to his mother, grandmother and other friends and relatives.

After Jones was first convicted of the charges, the Supreme Court ruled that the lower court had inappropriately allowed testimony from another woman who claimed Jones raped her several times between 1970 and 1975.

The prior acts were not relevant because they occurred so long ago, and the testimony was prejudicial to Jones' right to a fair trial, the high court ruled.

That evidence was not introduced last week.

Saturday Incidents

Seven incidents, including a $1,700 theft, were reported in the area by late afternoon Saturday, according to Greenville police.

Officer L.T. Gray said the theft of $1,781.88 from the National Finance Co. at 300-A Plaza Drive was reported at 7:47 a.m. Gray said entrance was gained after a rear door was broken, causing $1,500 damage in the theft.

Gray said rocks were thrown through window panes at 508 E. 11th St., causing $35 damage, in an incident reported at 11:26 a.m.

Officer R.C. Stroud said the theft of a pocketbook, a wallet, a coat, a checkbook and a credit card, with a total value of $200, from a car parked at the Wachovia Bank on Tenth Street was reported at midnight.

Officer L.E. White said the larceny of a set of keys from Happy's Pool Hall was reported at 2:10 a.m., while Officer K.P. Woods said the side of a car at 509-A Watauga Ave. was spray painted causing $200 damage in an incident reported at 5 a.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said the theft of $520 from 1115 Douglas Ave. was reported at 7:19 a.m.

Wilson Warehouse Arson Case Goes To Jury Monday

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The arson case involving an owner of a Wilson tobacco warehouse and his son will go to a federal jury in Raleigh on Monday after defense attorneys offered no evidence.

Instead, they attacked the prosecution's evidence.

Until Friday's surprise announcement that there would be no defense witnesses, lawyers for J.T. Worthington, an owner of Liberty Tobacco Warehouse, and his son, warehouse manager J.T. "Tommy" Worthington Jr., had indicated they would present evidence to rebut the charges.

The Worthingtons have been on trial for three weeks in U.S. District Court on arson, conspiracy and fraud charges relating to a fire that destroyed the five-acre warehouse in October 1986.

The defense lawyers contended in final arguments that the prosecution had failed to meet its burden of proving guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. They derided key informants as felons and drug dealers, and they argued that it made no sense to believe that the Worthingtons arranged the fire.

"It's compelling to say we've got to find somebody guilty just because of the magnitude of the case," argued Tommy Worthington's lawyer, James Van Camp of Pinehurst. "The court will tell you it's the quality, not the quantity."

Addressing the jury, the prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney Kieran Shanahan, portrayed Tommy Worthington as a desperate man beset by failed investments. He arranged the fire to collect insurance to cover a cash-flow problem caused by his thefts of cash from the warehouse, the prosecutor said. J.T. Worthington, he maintained, went along with the fire to help his son.

"I submit candidly — and it's a sad thing to say — the motive of J.T. Worthington Sr. was the love he had for his son," Shanahan said.

The fire originally was planned for the spring of 1986, about five months after a bank turned down Tommy Worthington's application for a $550,000 loan, the prosecutor contended. "This ... was the beginning of the end for Tommy Worthington," he said.

The warehouse manager turned to his close friend Harvey Bowen of Ayden, a tobacco grower and car dealer, he said. A key witness, Ronnie Lee Stocks of Black Jack, testified that Bowen, who died last year, paid him $8,000 to set the fire. In turn, Stocks said, he hired Edmund Wayne Hart of Ayden, who told jurors he set the fire for $2,500.

The prosecutor said that J.T. Worthington built up an inventory of warehouse-owned tobacco to take advantage of the insurance payments. That buildup, and a misrepresentation of the amount of tobacco in the warehouse, reduced the size of insurance payments to farmers who also lost tobacco in the fire, Shanahan said.

J.T. Worthington's lawyer, Trawick H. Stubbs Jr. of New Bern, reminded jurors that the fire did not destroy financial records, which were recovered from a vault. It was "crazy" to suggest that Tommy Worthington would plan the fire but not destroy records showing his debt, he said.

Health Fair Set

A Health Fair will be offered to the public Saturday at Washington Square Mall in Washington, N.C..

Included will be free blood pressure measurement by nursing students and faculty from Beaufort County Community College, cholesterol screening, dental-oral cancer checks, and height and weight measurements.

Hours will be from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Friday Arrests

Greenville police said two arrests were made in the area Friday.

Officer C.A. Sharpe said James Rodgers, 47, of 414 Arbor St. was arrested at 5 p.m. and charged with first degree rape and taking indecent liberties in connection with a 1988 incident.

Officer J.A. Felton said Clennell Streeter, 32, of 603-F McKinley Ave. was arrested at 10 p.m. and charged with simple posession of cocaine and felony maintaining a dwelling.

FHA Club Project

The Future Homemakers of America Club at J.H. Rose High School recently participated in the national project, "Kids Baking for Kids."

The students prepared cookies in class and sold them, with profits benefiting the Easter Seal Society of North Carolina. A total of $200 was raised.

Task Force Findings

The multicounty regional waste management task force created last summer to study the impact of siting a low-level radioactive waste management facility in eastern North Carolina will release its findings to the public Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the Willis Building.

The task force set up three subcommittees to investigate the impact of site selection on the environment, the economy and the quality of life.

The task force was created at the urging of Pitt County Commissioners in response to an offer from Edgcombe County to host a waste management park in exchange for economic incentives from the state. Although the offer was later withdrawn, Pitt, Edgecombe, Halifax, Martin, Nash and Wilson counties each named three people to the task force to study the issue.

Apartment Blaze

Greenville firemen work to extinguish a fire late Friday night at an apartment duplex on Roundtree Drive. Assistant Fire Chief Raymond Carney said the fire began in a closet at 400-A Roundtree Drive where a child was playing with matches. There were no injuries during the blaze, Carney said, but both units suffered extensive smoke and fire damage.

Two Are Charged

Greenville police made two arrests in the area Saturday.

Officer C.M. Credle said George King McNair, 22, of Plymouth was arrested at 1:40 a.m. and charged with simple possession of marijuana at Eastbrook Drive.

Detective G.W. Williams said Natalie Denise Osborne, 19, of G-2 Cannon Court was arrested at 2:15 p.m. and charged with nine counts of credit card fraud and one count of financial transaction card theft following an investigation of fraud incidents since Thursday.

Foreign Lanquage Week

North Pitt High School observed Foreign Language Week recently. French and Spanish students put on skits during an assembly and chorus and dance classes presented ethnic songs and dances.

Students did handicraft work and sampled ethnic foods. A display of foreign items was shown in the Media Center. Faculty members participated in a voluntary questionaire to test their knowledge of foreign languages and the Spanish Club hosted a reception for the faculty.

Poster Contest Winner

The Beaufort County Soil and Water Conservation board of directors recently held a "Soil and Water Conservation in North Carolina" poster contest. Marcus Jones, a student at John Cotton Tayloe School, won first place in the fourth-grade competition.

Posters were judged on creativity, originality, presentation of theme and artistic abilities.

Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones of Greenville.

Students Honored

Julia Best, a student at H.B. Sugg School, and Richard Elmarko Carmen, a student at Ayden-Grifton High School, recently received the student awards given by the Council for Exceptional Children for their "outstanding, positive attitudes and consistent hard work" in their schools' programs.

Others receiving awards were principals Edith Warren of Sam Bundy and Charles Long of Farmville Central High School; parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hodge of Farmville Central and Mr. and Mrs. William Wall of Wintergreen, and teachers Debbie Bissette of Farmville Central and Debbie Metcalf of Sam Bundy.

High Utility Bills

March utility bills will be higher than February bills because of the severe weather in recent weeks, said George Reel, Greenville Utilities Commission's customer assistance supervisor.

Reel said in some cases, the March bills will be as high as January bills.

Reel said customers generally watched more television, used more appliances and used more heat while being housebound during periods of inclement weather.

'Potato Project'

St. James United Methodist Church, with the assistance of other local churches and businesses, is sponsoring the "potato project." Bags of potatoes will be distributed to 3,300 needy participants.

The distribution is being coordinated with a giveaway by the Department of Social Services. The distribution will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the National Guard Armory.

Activities Key Red Cross Month

By Constance Ward
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

March is Red Cross Month in the United States and the Pitt County Chapter is undertaking several activities to help area residents learn more about the organization.

Raquel Zimmerman, executive director of the Pitt Red Cross, said the chapter will begin its membership drive on Monday to raise funds toward a goal of $3,600. She said that when someone obtains membership, that person is asked to make a donation to the chapter. But, she said the person isn't pressured to give unless he or she wants to.

Ms. Zimmerman said the donations will help provide clothing and food for families in disaster, help purchase a manikin for teaching cardiopulmonary resuscitation sessions, help purchase supplies for teaching how to take blood pressure and temperature, and many other Red Cross efforts.

The director said the Pitt County United Way provides the chapter with 87 percent of its budget. She said the rest of the money comes from contributions and course fees from classes that the chapter holds like first aid and water safety.

There will be a poster contest involving Pitt County schools with the theme "Somewhere, someone needs you." Grades kindergarten through fifth will participate, Ms. Zimmerman. There will be prizes awarded and the chapter hopes the National Red Cross in Washington, D.C., will choose one entry as a national poster.

Friday through March 19 at The Plaza Mall, the chapter will have a booth set up to answer questions people may have about the Red Cross and get them interested in joining the foundation.

"People look at the Red Cross as a blood service but it does a lot more than that," according to Ms. Zimmerman. At present Red Cross personnel are helping families who lost their homes to high winds and funnel clouds that hit Pitt County on Feb. 22. She said $2,000 has been spent in the area to help the families.

She said all Red Cross chapters are a direct link between military personnel and their families. The Red Cross assists individuals with personal and family problems and help to maintain family family communications worldwide. It also, on request, can obtain reports essential to problem solving on a confidential basis from family members or physicians.

The Red Cross Blood Service collects blood from donors from its 57 blood regions. Ms. Zimmerman said Pitt County runs 58 bloodmobiles a year. The county goal for the July 1, 1988, to June 30, 1989, period is 5,000 units. She said the chapter has reached 85 percent of that goal so far.

Pitt County has a board of directors with 35 members, including five high school members and one East Carolina University student. Ms. Zimmerman said the youth members oversee the bloodmobiles that visit their schools. She also said the Red Cross is looking at the possibility of Red Cross Clubs at schools.

Ms. Zimmerman has been at the Pitt County chapter for three years and with the Red Cross organization for eight years.

"I feel working with the Red Cross has been rewarding to me in that I have been able to get other people excited about what the organization stands for," she said.

The Red Cross mission statement says its aims are to "improve the quality of human life and to enhance individual self-reliance and concern for others."

It also says the "American Red Cross Services helps people avoid emergencies, prepare for emergencies and cope with them when they occur."

Ms. Zimmerman said she knows she can help a family through Red Cross and act as an advocate to get them help.

Geologist Presented National GSA Award

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — An East Tennessee geologist who studies the structure of mountain chains, especially the Appalachians, has been given a national award for his work.

Robert D. Hatcher Jr., a University of Tennessee-Oak Ridge National Laboratory Distinguished Scientist, received the award from the Geological Society of America, said officials with Martin Marietta Energy Systems Inc.

Martin Marietta operates Oak Ridge National Laboratory, along with two other nearby facilities, for the U.S. Department of Energy.

The Distinguished Service Award was established to recognize those who make noteworthy contributions to the society, which has 17,000 members worldwide.

Hatcher has been directing a project to understand the structure of the crust beneath DOE's reservation at Oak Ridge, where the national laboratory and a nuclear weapons plant are located.

Sergeant To Speak

Domino's Pizza has arranged for Mississippi State Highway Patrol Sergeant Pete Collins to address students Thursday at J.H. Rose High School at 8:55 a.m., at D.H. Conley High School at 10:30 a.m. and at E.B. Aycock at 1:30 p.m.

Collins will speak on the devastating effects of driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Last year, he traveled more than 150,000 miles speaking to more than a quarter of a million people, mostly students.

Collins is a 16-year veteran of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, where he was voted trooper of the year for 1988 and currently serves as public affairs coordinator. He was voted most outstanding by the National Beta Club for his service to young people during the 1885-86 school year. He also is a member of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol Honor Guard.

To attend or for information, call Joan Warner at 756-9953.

UNC Board Looking Into Arts School Controversy

By Michael Hobbs
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — UNC system President C.D. Spangler is continuing efforts to settle the controversy surrounding Jane E. Milley, chancellor of the N.C. School of the Arts, whose resignation has been requested by the school's Faculy Council.

Spangler reported in private session on the work of a fact-finding team that has looked into the controversy surrounding Milley's leadership. He declined to say what he had told the UNC Board of Governors in the private session after their regular meeting on Friday.

"It's a personnel issue," Spangler told the Greensboro News & Record. State law allows public bodies to meet behind closed doors to discuss personnel issues.

However, others interviewed said that Spangler hoped to have the Milley controversy resolved within a month.

One way that might happen, sources say, is if Milley finds employment elsewhere.

There have been published but unconfirmed reports that she is a job candidate for at least three other schools.

"There's a process under way that might resolve the situation," one board member said after the meeting. "If it doesn't, we'll have to take the necessary action."

Asked to elaborate, the board member told the Greensboro newspaper, "I'd say she's gone."

Sources said Milley is under no ultimatum to find another job or be fired. But they added that the controversy needs to be settled soon. School officials say the school has begun to suffer because of the rift between Milley and the faculty and administrators.

"I think there is a pretty close timetable for making something work," another board member said.

Efforts to reach Milley Friday were unsuccessful.

Last month, Spangler alerted the board that he would report to them Friday on the School of the Arts fact-finding mission.

Board of Governors Chairman Robert L. Jones said Spangler had hoped to have Milley's status resolved by Friday's meeting. "He's put in a lot of time on this," Jones said.

The Faculty Council at the School of the Arts in Winston-Salem voted 11-0 Thursday to reaffirm an earlier no-confidence vote and to call for Milley's resignation.

"I am aware of what's been going on. It's a very sensitive personnel matter," said Jones, a Charlotte contractor and developer. "(Spangler's) just not at a time he can make a recommendation on the matter. At this time it's between the chancellor and the president."

The discontent focuses on Ms. Milley's management style, which top administrators describe as abrasive and counterproductive to the goals of the school. They also say she won't delegate authority and doesn't understand what it takes to develop young artists

Milley, 48, has said she will not resign her $83,600-a-year job. The first female chancellor in the UNC system, she has headed the School of the Arts since 1984..

The board also briefly discussed comments made by state House Speaker Joe Mavretic on the need for more cooperation among the state's education boards and approved $41.5 million worth of construction projects.

In a speech to the first joint meeting of the Board of Governors, the state Board of Education and the Board of Community Colleges Thursday, Mavretic said the lack of cohesion among the boards has meant that "we do not have a system of education in North Carolina."

"He is known for getting to the point he wants to make," Jones said. "I think we are not so thin-skinned that we'd take his comments personally."

Jones said the meeting of the boards, which was mandated by legislation passed by the General Assembly, was a "good kickoff meeting."

"I think it was a good start on a cooperative effort," Jones told the board.

A Smaller Standard Loaf?

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Rep. John "Pete" Hasty is an insurance salesman who claims no skill as a baker, but last week he popped a bill into the legislative oven that promises to give rise to a new standard for bread.

"This is my half-a-loaf-is-better-than-no-loaf bill," said Hasty. "And I'm not just being silly."

House Bill 411 seeks to establish a new standard size for a loaf of bread. The bill would amend a law that sets four standard-size loaves, ranging from 1 to 2½ pounds and having various lengths and widths.

Setting loaf standards is important, Hasty told the Winston-Salem Journal.

"It's sort of funny, but I am told by folks that make bread that you can pump it with air as big as a door — but with no nutrients in it," Hasty said.

"This law is supposed to offset that problem."

Hasty said that he wants to create a fifth category, setting a new, smaller loaf size at 9 inches long and 5 inches wide, weighing 12 ounces.

Hasty, a Democrat from Maxton, said he was asked to introduce the bill by Campbell Soup Co., which not only has a soup plant in Maxton, but also owns Pepperidge Farm Inc.

Apparently some companies, including Pepperidge Farm, have sold loaves that haven't always conformed to state standards, said Ron Murdock, the chief of the N.C. Measurement Section.

"It's not only Pepperidge Farm, but other bakeries as well," Murdock said. He added that the state rarely tries to enforce the law. "I've got a whole lot of worse things to worry about, in most cases," he said.

Murdock and Hasty insist that the smaller standard will better serve senior citizens and single adults, who can't eat their way through a pound-and-a-half loaf before it goes stale.

Hasty said he had no idea how his bill, which has been referred to the House Commerce Committee, would affect other breads, such as specialty stores' extra-thin baguettes, which are lighter than the law allows. "I don't know, I haven't thought much about that French stuff before."

His bill would continue the present law's definition of a loaf:

"The term 'loaf,' as used in this section, shall be construed to mean a loaf which is baked in a pan of rectangular shape, either with straight-up or flared side, either with or without cover, and shall be known hereafter as the standard loaf."

Thanks, But That's Enough

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — Farmers are finding themselves tractor-axle-deep in mud with the planting season approaching, after Mother Nature showered the state with gifts of rain, snow and ice.

Agriculture officials said this week that while farmers soon may be itching to get into the fields, all the late-winter moisture is a blessed change from recent dry months.

"Right now, in talking with most of the folks, I would say they feel like it's helping them, because we were coming into the year fairly short on water," said Richard Melton, an agricultural extension agent in Hoke County. "I think we're starting to build up to the point where we've got plenty of water in the ground right now."

Melton said Hoke County was dry from mid-January to mid-February. But since then, Hoke and other counties in the area have had heavy rains and three major winter storms, two that brought ice and one that brought snow.

Hoke had 3.25 inches of precipitation in the last two weeks of February. With added rain and ice in March, the county now is on par with its expected annual rain fall for 1989, Melton said.

"I think everybody's got a real good outlook on spring right now, just because of the rains we've been having," he said, adding that farmers' attitudes are "a lot more optimistic" than they were in the dry days earlier this year.

But the precipitation has a down side. Officials said early season farm work may fall behind schedule because growers can't get into the wet fields.

Some farmers are ready to start applying nitrogen to their wheat, oats, barley and rye. They also want to prepare for corn planting by applying lime and fertilizers to the fields.

"They're sitting around the store wondering why they can't get in the field," Harnett County extension Director James Goff said. "We aren't in a critical situation yet, but it makes them have to get so much done in a short period of time."

Voting Lawsuit

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A lawsuit filed in federal court is seeking single-member voting districts in Moore County and Southern Pines so that blacks will have a fair chance of electing candidates of their choice, according to an attorney in the case.

At-large elections for county commissioners, county school board members and Town Council members in Southern Pines dilute black voting strength in violation of the federal Voting Rights Act, according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit points out that 21 percent of the county's population is black but that no black serves on the five-member Board of Commissioners or the eight-member Board of Education.

Black people make up 38 percent of the population in Southern Pines but the Town Council has never at one time had more than one black member, according to the lawsuit filed Feb. 21 in U.S. District Court in Rockingham.

Officer Probe

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Winston-Salem Police Department is investigating whether one of its own officers checked license plate numbers for a blackmailer who extorted money from people by telling them he had videotaped them in adulterous liaisons, a newspaper says.

The Winston-Salem Journal reported Saturday that three unnamed sources had confirmed the investigation, which stems from last week's arrest of Bruce N. Rose.

Deputies said a blackmailer would visit local parks at random and wait for couples to meet. He would then photograph and videotape the couples in compromising situations.

Later, the blackmailer would call the people involved and threaten to use the videotape if he weren't paid, deputies said.

Accident Verdict

GREENSBORO AP) — A Greensboro woman killed in a 1985 crash with a fire truck contributed to the accident, and her husband won't be able to recover damages from the city, a jury has ruled.

The Guilford County Superior Court jury decided that while fire truck operator Phillip Lynn May was negligent in speeding through a red light, Anna Belle Johnson did not exercise due care in entering the intersection.

An autopsy showed that Mrs. Johnson had a blood-alcohol level of 0.16 percent, over the legal limit to drive. But jury foreman Walter Townsend said that was not a factor in the jury's decision.

Townsend said the jury did not believe Mrs. Johnson had used due caution in entering the intersection.

False ID Cards

DURHAM (AP) — Two Duke University freshmen have been charged with making false identification cards after 44 Florida driver's licenses were found in their possession.

Nine more Duke students will be charged with related crimes when they return from spring break. said Stephen O'Brien, chief of Durham County's Alcoholic Beverage Control Law Enforcement office.

Charles Jesse Medrano, 18, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; and Marcello Gerardo Porcelli, 18, of Kings Point, N.Y., were leaving a commercial photo finishing company Thursday when approached by ABC officers, O'Brien said.

Valuable Vegetation

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Wild horse living on barriers islands are eating vegetation needed to trap sand and stabilize the island, a marine biologist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill says.

Mark Hay, associate professor of marine sciences, said that the islands could disappear entirely if the horses are not carefully controlled and if the sea level rises as expected over the next few decades.

After horses at the Rachel Carson Estuarine Research Reserve near Beaufort began starving three years ago, Hay and associate professor John Wells began studying the horses' effects on the islands.

"We found that where we exclude horses, there is a lot of marsh development, including a grass known as spartina and other kinds of marsh vegetation as well," Hay said. "As storm waves push sediment across the island, the sand drops out when it hits those marshy areas, and it keeps on moving across in places where horses have grazed marsh grasses down."

Results so far suggest the horses are doing a lot of damage to the island marshes and they are changing the coastal geology in general, he said.

Nude Photos Put Yearbook Distribution A Year Late

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — Last year's Guilford College yearbook is coming out a year late, apparently with photographs of naked streaking students, but minus another nude photo of a student who objected.

College officials will say only that the delay in publishing the 1987-88 yearbook was because of legal complications, but the former student who edited the "Quaker" says the photographs are the key.

"They are doing censorship," said Andrew Stuart of Nashville, Tenn., who graduated last May and is doing graduate work at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Stuart turned the yearbook almost into a one-man project. He took many of the pictures and wrote 75 percent of the text, some of it in the first person. Several pictures are of males and females, he says, running around nude during the annual spring festival called Serendipity.

The pictures are graphic, Stuart says, but "they were taken in a public place. I saw no problem in running them."

School administrators and some students did. Distribution of the yearbook was delayed while the college's student-run Publication Board, its faculty advisers and school lawyer John Hardy discussed what to do.

Everything appeared settled in February. Stuart says the decision was made to leave everything as was. Then, another problem arose.

Stuart says that 11 months after the photo was taken, the woman abruptly protested having the picture appear in the yearbook.

Nancy Cabel-Wells, Guilford's vice president for student development and dean of students, says the Publications Board has made the decision to go ahead with publication "with modifications."

Stuart says the controversy is not in keeping with Guilford's Quaker tradition "of showing tolerance to all points of view. They are not doing that."

He isn't sure what's being deleted, but he says he understands the shirt-lifting photo and some words critical of Guilford administrators are going into the trash can.

Tracy Russ of Charlotte, editor of the Guilfordian student newspaper and a member of the Publication Board, says the controversy was not a matter of an administration stepping in and becoming a heavy-handed editor.

For the most part, the controversy was "student-initiated," Russ says.

Jon Prestage, Guilford's director of public relations, says that the administration hasn't tried to reign in Stuart and that the yearbook's format will appear pretty much as the editor intended. However, he says, the college had to be concerned with privacy issues.

While there is much to disagree about, there is one point of agreement among all involved.

"It is a very unusual yearbook," Stuart says.

Two Lawsuits Are Withdrawn

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — Two recent court decisions have caused the relatives of two people killed in a shooting spree to withdraw their lawsuits against the Forsyth County and Davidson County sheriffs, at least for now, an attorney said.

The suits had been filed by Joel A. Cantrell and Darlene Hull. Cantrell's daughter, Crystal Suzanne Cantrell, and Mrs. Hull's husband, Ronald Lee Hull, were among the four people shot to death in Forsyth County on July 17.

Michael Charles Hayes is charged with 16 felonies — including four charges of first-degree murder — in the shooting spree. He is scheduled to be tried March 27.

Several hours before the suits were dismissed, a Superior Court judge in Winston-Salem denied a motion by Hayes' attorneys to bar prosecutors from seeking the death penalty if Hayes is convicted.

That motion was among six heard Friday in the case.

The lawsuits against the sheriffs and six of their deputies were filed in November in U.S. District Court. The suits claim that officers deprived the victims of their constitutional right to life and liberty.

Since the suits were filed, though, two court decisions have defeated similar claims.

Cheney: Available, Confirmable

Bush Quickly Names New Defense Nominee

By Tom Raum
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — At first glance, Rep. Richard Cheney might seem an unlikely candidate to run the Pentagon, but his selection by President Bush won early rave reviews in Congress.

In picking the five-term Republican from Wyoming, Bush moved quickly on Friday to fill the void left by the Senate's rejection of John Tower less than 24 hours earlier.

And while the announcement caught most political leaders by surprise, the Cheney choice at once fulfilled two objectives Bush advisers had cited as critical: someone quickly available and someone quickly confirmable.

To allow the politically divisive Tower defeat to fester over the weekend — and to be churned over on Sunday television talk shows and in newspaper columns — would have not been helpful to the president.

So far, the move-quick strategy seems to be working. Senate leaders announced immediately that they would hold confirmation hearings in the coming week.

"Congressman Dick Cheney is well known and highly respected by the members of the Senate," the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and the panel's ranking Republican, John Warner of Virginia, said in a joint statement.

Although Cheney, 48, lacks direct defense experience, he is a member of the House Intelligence Committee and was senior Republican on the 15-member special panel that investigated the Iran-Contra affair.

Equally important, he served as President Ford's chief of staff.

In selecting Cheney, whom Bush praised as a "widely respected man of principle," the president repeated what he had done in filling many other Cabinet slots — he reached back and picked someone whom had served in a previous Republican administration and with whom he had enjoyed a close working relationship.

Cheney did not get wind of what was in store until Thursday — as the Senate was at work rejecting Tower — when he got telephone calls from chief of staff John Sununu and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft.

Bush himself didn't contact the candidate until just hours before the official announcement.

The president's choice makes sense, said Norman Ornstein, a political analyst for the Conservative American Enterprise Institute.

"You wouldn't have thought of him initially because he's not a defense specialist. But in terms of respect in Congress, he's near the top of everyone's list.

"If Dick Cheney can't make it through the confirmation process, no one can," Ornstein said. "Bush had to find someone who could sail through, and it was a wise choice."

Bush himself called Cheney "a thoughtful man, a quiet man, a strong man" who "approaches public policy with vigor, determination and diligence."

And, judging from early reaction, most members of the Senate appear to agree. Cheney has few detractors.

"I have the greatest respect for his broad range of experience and knowledge," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee who had been one of Tower's strongest supporters. "I look favorably on this nomination and hope that he will be confirmed expeditiously."

"An excellent choice," said Sen. Charles Robb of Virginia, one of the last Democrats to announce opposition to Tower. "Unless there is a complete void in that area (defense), the confirmation should move rapidly."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine praised Cheney as a man who "served with distinction" in the House and promised "prompt consideration by the Senate Armed Services Committee and the full Senate."

For his part, Cheney said he had "extensive views on defense policy" and said he was "eager to get to work."

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said there was a consensus in the White House that the clock was ticking after the Tower defeat. Bush was being "encouraged by everyone to do it in a hurry," Fitzwater said.

Bush himself said if he had made a mistake in handling the Tower nomination, it was the long delay in sending it to the Senate.

"So when it became clear (Thursday) that the votes weren't there ... I began to think and talk to my top advisers here, get opinions from them," said Bush.

Nominee Popular On Speech Circuit

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Rep. Richard Cheney's personal and campaign finances indicate he approaches his nomination as defense secretary with almost none of the baggage that helped sink the first man President Bush picked for the job.

Unlike John Tower, who was rejected by the Senate in part because of his relationships with the defense industry, Cheney's financial benefactors have been dentists, insurance companies, farm groups and energy companies.

And although the Wyoming Republican has been paid better than most of his House colleagues for giving speeches, raising a total of $81,350 in 1987, he gave $59,000 of that to charity, according to his most recent financial disclosure forms.

That was more than he had to give away to meet House limits, and none of the money had come from the defense industry.

Over the last five years, Cheney has raised more money through speaking fees, $266,875, than even House Republican leader Robert Michel, who got $250,888, according to a study by Common Cause. He kept $107,937 of that — an average of a little over $20,000 a year.

Cheney's disclosure forms show that he is financially comfortable but is not rich.

In 1987 he earned between $226,333 and $290,833 and had assets worth between $200,000 and $530,000. He had less than $50,000 in debts.

Cheney depended on special interests to pay for about a third of his last re-election campaign, which cost some $292,000 — a relatively small amount for congressional races.

While much of his campaign money came from energy, insurance and farming interests, Cheney did raise more than $13,000 from defense contractors. However, all but one of those defense interests gave far less than the legal limit, according to records filed with the Federal Election Commission.

That one company, FMC Corp., gave Cheney the $5,000 legal limit through its political action committee.

Other defense contractors contributing to his 1988 campaign included Lockheed Corp. and Martin Marietta Corp., which each donated $1,500, and TRW Inc. and United Technologies Corp., which each contributed $1,000.

Credit Union Earnings Returned To Members
Volunteers Keep Operating Expense Down

CHEROKEE, NC — Allan Oocumma is a member of the Mountain Federal Credit Union in Waynesville, NC. Allan, a native American, is personnel assistant, US Government Bureau of Indian Affairs in Cherokee, NC.

In a recent conversation, Allan expressed his thoughts about being a credit union member. "I've been a member of Mountain Federal Credit Union for ten years. My wife, Brenda, is also a member. In that period of time we have had occasion to use all or most of the services the credit union provides. We have money market share accounts; we've financed automobiles, taken out a loan to assist my wife in her accounting business, and most recently, we received a home improvement loan. We feel we get the products and services we need from the credit union, and the services that we receive are at a lower cost than at other financial institutions. When you add in the convenience of payroll deduction the credit union is a very good deal."

When asked to comment on the credit union philosophy of "Not for profit, but for service" he said, "The credit unions' cost of doing business is often less than that of other financial institutions. Since they are cooperatives, no profits go to stockholders. Earnings are returned to members and/or are used to improve member services. Volunteer directors and committee members help keep operating costs down. As a result, they can usually pay higher interest on savings and can charge lower rates on loans.

"At the credit union you also experience a feeling of family. My wife and I communicate with the staff on a first-name basis. You are not a number. You are dealing with someone you know and who knows you.

"Credit unions place a strong emphasis on educating members to improve their economic condition, and on occasion, I have used our credit union staff for financial guidance."

When asked if he felt the privilege of having a vote in how the credit union is run was important to him, he replied, "I feel it is very important. It is one of the things that make credit unions unique. We try to attend the annual board meeting and exercise the right to vote."

In response to the question, "If you could share one special thought about credit unions what would it be?" he said, "Use the credit union to your advantage and start a savings account for those unexpected emergencies."

The foundation of the credit union is people helping people and service to its members. It is what distinguishes credit unions from other financial institutions and makes them a vital financial alternative.

North Carolina boasts 267 credit unions with a growing membership exceeding 1.1 million and assets of 4.2 billion dollars.

When Viper Bit William Haast, The Viper Died

By Hilary Israelsen
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY — The first time William Haast brought home poisonous snakes, his horrified mother left home for three days. She came back only because she realized her son's interest wasn't about to slither away.

At 78, Haast remains a self-described "snake-aholic," who has kept his energy and enthusiasm though he just weathered his 148th snake bite. It is not surprising it was the viper, not Haast, who passed on.

Haast is founder and director of the Miami Serpentarium Laboratories, which he started in Miami in 1946. He relocated the lab to Salt Lake City five years ago to concentrate on venom research and production.

Haast claims to be the first to standardize snake venom and produce it for research use. His clients include Wyeth Laboratories, the only producer of antivenins in North America, and almost every university in the country. He also has helped foster research into the use of venom against such diseases as polio, multiple sclerosis and AIDS.

Haast was in his lab collecting venom from a Pakistani pit viper Feb. 28 when the serpent bit his left thumb. Not overly concerned, he waited to see if the weekly venom injections he has given himself for 40 years would provide immunity to the poison.

When the bite was still bleeding after 24 hours, he took himself to the hospital and was diagnosed in critical condition, the venom robbing his blood of the ability to clot. Doctors said he could have bled to death from a bump or fall.

"I guess I excited every hematologist (blood doctor) in town," he said. "They dug up all the information they had on snake bites."

Haast, who was released from the hospital Wednesday, praised the extraordinary efforts in his behalf to obtain antivenins from California, England, the Soviet Union and even from private sources in Iran. A White House aide helped contact foreign sources and ease passage of the medicines through Customs.

"Those people involved in getting the antivenins are the heroes of the story," he said. "All I am is the result of an accident." Haast's condition started improving after he received the serum from California, and doctors in the end opted not to use the foreign serums.

The night before Haast was bitten, he and Nancy Harrell, who helps direct the lab, went to a local steak house for what she called "anything goes day."

Sometimes at the end of the month Haast abandons a strict routine that includes eating animal protein only on even-numbered days and never touching refined sugar. This night, he consumed four chocolate sundaes.

"When I let myself go, I really let go," he said.

The next day, Harrell said, Haast was a little hastier than usual in his work. "He was really buzzing around the lab that day," she said.

He believes his strict regimen — which also includes always walking up the 11 flights to his condominium — helped him overcome the viper's venom and to cleanse his system. It wasn't until nine days after the bite that he ate solid food. Meantime, the snake had died of natural causes.

Haast, first bitten in 1926, says his interest in snakes dates back nearly 70 years to when he collected garter snakes out of canals in Paterson, N.J.

In Miami, Haast's serpentarium near the highway to the Florida Keys was as much a tourist attraction as a laboratory. Visitors could watch from a glass-enclosed amphitheater while Haast extracted venom from hundreds of different species of snakes.

He and Harrell moved the facility to Salt Lake City in 1984 to focus more on research. He declines to say just how well the business is faring except to say it's "holding its own."

Haast collects venom from each snake about once a week, at the same time they are fed a high-protein formula he mixes himself. Harrell helps with the feedings; feeding and venom collection are done at the same time to minimize trauma to the snakes.

Nearly 50 years ago, Haast had a hunch that snake venom may be valuable in treating polio and was proved right. Later, he had the same feeling about multiple sclerosis and more recently has explored the possibility of using venom in the fight against AIDS.

Haast and Utah businessman Alan Glanville have organized AIDS experimental treatment and research in Mexico. Both hesitate to discuss the project, saying it is in its infancy and the hospitals and researchers involved require anonymity.

Rampage Sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A trucker described by his family as a gentle man driven to desperation by personal problems has been sentenced to four years in prison for a car-ramming rampage that terrorized motorists for 40 miles.

Although a county probation report recommended that Charley Tom Lee be placed on supervised probation, Superior Court Judge Judith Chirlin sentenced him to state prison, saying his actions had instilled fear and terror in drivers.

Lee, 26, of Haltom City, Texas, pleaded guilty Nov. 18 to five counts of assault with a deadly weapon. He has been jailed since the May 18 incident in which about 30 cars were rammed but no one was injured.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The space shuttle Discovery's countdown was running smoothly Saturday and back on schedule for Monday's launch, after high wind stalled the countdown for seven hours during the night.

There were no reasons to believe the launch would not go as scheduled, said Robert Crippen, NASA's deputy director of shuttle operations.

"We don't have any significant issues that we are working," Crippen said after a Saturday afternoon mission management meeting. He added that the weather was expected to cooperate for Monday's liftoff.

Launch preparations were stalled for seven hours after wind gusting to 40 mph slowed some of the final maintenance and testing on Discovery late Friday. Loading of liquid oxygen and hydrogen fuel for the spacecraft's electricity generating fuel cells, scheduled to have started at midnight, was delayed until 7 a.m. Saturday.

Ronald L. Phelps, launch preparation test director, said the countdown schedule had a planned eight-hour hold. That hold was reduced to one hour, and workmen cleared the launch pad and began loading propellants.

By then the wind had calmed considerably.

"Losing those seven hours really didn't hurt us much," Phelps said. Despite the problems, he said, the countdown has "been one of the smoothest" ever.

Discovery's liftoff is set for 8:07 a.m. Monday. Forecasters predicted improving weather through the weekend with clear skies and calm winds by launch time.

Once in orbit, the crew of five will deploy a $100 million communications satellite and conduct scientific experiments during five days in orbit.

Monday's launch will be the third since NASA's shuttle flights resumed after the hiatus that followed the explosion of the shuttle Challenger in January 1986.

Discovery's commander, Navy Capt. Michael L. Coats, and his pilot, Air Force Col. John E. Blaha, practiced shuttle landings early Saturday in a training aircraft modified to handle like the shuttle. All of the crewmen later spent an hour flying T-38 jets.

Others on the crew are Marine Col. James F. Buchli, Marine Col. Robert C. Springer, and Dr. James P. Bagian, a physician.

The astronauts arrived at the Florida spaceport Friday and said that after a four-year wait they were ready for orbit.

The crew originally was named in 1985 to fly a mission the following year. But the Challenger explosion that killed seven astronauts delayed all shuttle flights.

Search Continues For Victims Of Ontario Jet Crash

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DRYDEN, Ontario — Rescue workers using snowmobiles and plows searched the snowy woods near Dryden on Saturday for bodies and clues to the cause of an Air Ontario jet crash that killed 24 people.

Provincial police said two of the 47 survivors brought out of the forest after Friday's crash died later in hospitals. Twenty-two bodies still were missing.

At least eight of the injured were in serious condition, said provincial police Constable Bill Brayshaw.

At midafternoon police issued a statement saying no bodies were found. It asked private helicopter pilots carrying journalists to stop flying over the crash site because they were disrupting communications. Access to the area remained restricted.

The Dutch-built Fokker-28 was headed for Winnipeg, Manitoba, with 69 people aboard when it clipped treetops, plowed into the woods and burst into flames just after taking off in a snowstorm.

Some survivors walked out of the woods on their own, many without coats or shoes in the deep snow.

"All we saw was snow and fire and pieces of metal flying," passenger Danny Godin told the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. He said the plane broke apart and, "Most people were yelling, screaming and just scrambling."

Godin said the plane "was loaded very heavy. ... We were delayed in Thunder Bay an hour and we had to take fuel off the airplane because we were above the legal load limit."

"It was like struggling — you could hear the (plane) shuddering," said passenger Paul Tagger, 43, of Appleton, Wis., who escaped with bruises.

A stewardess, he said, shouted: "Oh my God, we're going to crash. Get down! Keep your heads down!"

Flight 363 originated in Thunder Bay, an Ontario city on the north shore of Lake Superior. It made a brief, scheduled stop in Dryden, a paper-mill town of 6,500 people about 200 miles northwest of Duluth, Minn., to pick up passengers, and took off about 1 p.m.

Norm Pascoe, a spokesman for the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, said visibility was about half a mile when the plane took off.

Dryden resident Roxanne Groves heard the aircraft fly overhead.

"It didn't sound normal and then all of a sudden we heard a thump, a good thump. I looked out about five minutes later and there was black smoke all over the place," she said.

Air Ontario is based in London, Ontario, and is among a number of fast growing, commuter airlines spreading service since deregulation to Canada's scattered towns and cities.

The last fatal crash in Canada of a regularly scheduled commercial flight was in 1979, when a Quebecair Fairchild 27 went down in Quebec City, killing 17 people.

Canada's worst air disaster occurred in 1985, when 256 people, mainly American servicemen returning to Kentucky from the Middle East, died in the crash of a chartered DC-8 in Gander, Newfoundland.

Two From Hickory Among Crash Dead

LIMA, Peru — A small plane carrying American tourists back from a sightseeing trip crashed into a construction site on a college campus, narrowly missing crowded classrooms but killing all 10 people aboard, officials said Saturday.

Officials at Lima's airport said the pilot of the plane radioed the control tower that he was having problems shortly before Friday's crash in the capital's San Miguel neighborhood.

"It was flying as if it were a truck without brakes. It sounded as if the motors were turned off," said Jesus Tarazona. Tarazona was on the roof of his two-story home when the plane slashed through thick fog shortly before nightfall and smashed into a two-story building under construction at the University of San Martin de Porras.

The U.S. Embassy identified the American victims as John Howe, 81, and his wife Barbara, 72, of Hagerstown, Md.; Robert Fisher, 66, and his wife Ruth, 62, of Moorestown, N.J.; Dorothy Menzies, 77, and her daughter, Virginia Fennel, 48, of Hickory, N.C.; and Virginia Hall, 78, and her granddaughter, Mary Shuford, 28, also of Hickory, N.C.

The Aerocondor flight's pilot and copilot, both Peruvians, also were killed.

Johan Leuridan, a university dean who was visiting the work site, was hit by falling bricks and hospitalized with a back injury. Police said all the workers at the site had left 15 minutes before the crash.

Hugo Monzon, general manager of Aerocondor, a small airline that provides air taxi service to small towns in Peru, said the plane was a British-made Norman Islander purchased six years ago.

He said the cause of the accident had not been determined.

The plane crashed nearly four miles from the Lima airport.

Some students in the classroom building near the crash site told reporters the sound from the crash was so loud they thought a terrorist bomb had gone off or their building was collapsing.

The plane smashed into a wall on the second floor of the partially constructed building. A wing landed on the floor, and part of the fuselage tumbled into a garden below.

Several residents of the San Miguel district said they heard the plane's engines sputtering seconds before the crash. But they said they were unable to see the aircraft because of heavy fog.

Blast Probed As Terrorist Move

Rogers Family Had Received Threatening Calls

By Barbara Meltzer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO — Federal agents with brooms and metal detectors focused Saturday on the burned-out wreckage of a van driven by the wife of the Navy captain who mistakenly ordered the destruction of an Iranian passenger jet.

Officials said the case was being investigated as a possible terrorist attack.

The home of Capt. Will Rogers III, commander of the USS Vincennes, was sealed off and he and his wife, Sharon, were in hiding. There were reports they had received threatening calls about the missile strike on the airliner.

The van remained in the cordoned-off intersection where it exploded and burned Friday, moments after Mrs. Rogers got out when she heard a noise.

There also was increased security at the several military facilities in San Diego, the nation's largest Navy complex.

The van was the center of intense scrutiny Saturday by investigators from the FBI and other federal agencies, who had a command post set up nearby.

"We are into an exhaustive, painstaking, lengthy investigation to determine what type of bomb it was, what was used in it, how it was detonated," said Thomas Hughes, the agent in charge of the San Diego FBI office. "...There are fragments ... that would lead one to believe this was a pipe bomb."

However, he said at a briefing Saturday that it had still not been determined whether it was a pipe bomb.

Investigators set up barrels covered with sieves and sifted through debris collected from the area shortly after Friday's explosion. Other investigators swept beds of plants lining the avenue with metal detectors.

The debris will be taken to a lab in Washington. Bomb analysts from the Los Angeles FBI office and the Washington FBI explosives unit were at the scene.

The roofs of buildings in the area also were being searched for any kind of evidence, Hughes said.

"Teams of investigators are running out just hundreds and hundreds of leads," Hughes said.

He said the Rogerses were being kept in a secure location. Their son, who attends school in upstate New York, was notified and offered protection, the FBI said.

Hughes declined to comment when asked about a report that a red car was seen behind Mrs. Rogers' van and made a quick U-turn after the explosion.

Rogers, who joined his wife at a nearby police station after the bombing, had driven the van earlier Friday, The New York Times quoted a Bush administration official as saying.

The couple's home was kept behind a security seal, with authorities blocking the street so far away that the house was not visible to reporters.

Three official-looking vehicles with heavily tinted windows were allowed through the barricade Saturday.

A Justice Department source in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity said investigators suspect the bombing was the work of terrorists. However, local FBI investigators would not confirm that theory.

"This could have been perpetrated for some other reason unknown at this time," Hughes cautioned.

Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called for an all-out war against the United States after the Iran Air passenger plane was shot down.

Some members of the Iranian Reolutionary Guards have entered the United States as students, Oliver B. Revell, executive assistant director of the FBI, said earlier in the week. He said there was a "hard core" of 200 to 300 Iranians who were of concern to his agency.

FBI spokesman Michael Kortan said no incidents linked to Mideast terrorists had occurred in this country since 1983, when the FBI stopped an attempt by Iranians to bomb a Seattle theater occupied by Iranian opponents of Khomeini's regime.

Last July 3, in the Persian Gulf, the guided-missile cruiser Vincennes exchanged fire with Iranian speedboats.

During the battle, an aircraft that Rogers thought was an Iranian F-14 fighter appeared on the U.S. warship's advanced radar. After the plane failed to respond to warnings on civilian and military channels, Rogers gave the order to shoot it down.

The aircraft was actually an Iranian civilian jet with 290 people aboard. All aboard were killed.

Rogers later said he regretted the deaths but that his decision was made in defense of his ship and crew. He was backed by the Reagan administration, which also decided to compensate the victims' families.

Mrs. Rogers received a threatening call last July from someone she guessed might have been Middle Eastern, The New York Times reported Saturday, quoting an unidentified Pentagon official. The caller gave her the name of an organization that was unfamiliar to her and said, "Are you the wife of the murderer?" frightening Mrs. Rogers into hanging up, the newspaper said.

The Navy found no indication that the named organization existed, the Times said.

An unidentified Justice Department source told The San Diego Union that Rogers and his family received at least two telephoned death threats from callers who said they were acting in response to the jetliner's destruction.

Bishops: Meeting Won't Change American Church

By Mary Beth Sheridan
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VATICAN CITY — U.S. Roman Catholic leaders ended a special meeting with the pope Saturday acknowledging differences with the Vatican but predicting the session won't "change the shape of the American Catholic Church."

"This was not the bad schoolboys being called home to be disciplined by their father," Archbishop Daniel Pilarczyk of Cincinnati declared.

Pope John Paul II called the extraordinary meeting to discuss how bishops can spread Catholic teaching in an American society strongly influenced by such secular trends as divorce, sexual promiscuity and materialism.

Because of the United States' worldwide influence, the Vatican sees it as a battleground on which the church can win or lose its fight against these trends.

During four days of meetings, Vatican cardinals urged the 35 bishops to assert church teachings more vigorously and bring their often independent-minded flock into line.

Echoing those conclusions, the pope told the bishops gathered Saturday in an underground stone hall:

"We are guardians of something given, and given to the Church universal; something which is not the result of reflection, however competent, on cultural and social questions of the day, and is not merely the best path among many, but the one and only path to salvation."

Some U.S. bishops responded that Catholic teachings only can flourish when they take into account a society shaped by democracy and give-and-take.

"Surely there are differences," Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago said in a report summing up the talks. "But these differences stem from a single, burning desire: to teach and evangelize in the most effective way possible, given the cultural and societal realities of our time."

Speaking for the bishops, he called for clarification on how much dissent can be allowed and said compromise sometimes is needed "to remain in the public debate and influence public morality."

Bernardin also suggested establishing a commission to increase Catholic influence over segments of American culture, including the media, art, entertainment and economics.

He said the bishops additionally feel an "urgent need" for a theological critique of radical feminism. Elaborating, Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston told a news conference the bishops are against feminism that views the Catholic Church as patriarchal, and therefore flawed.

Cardinal Antonio Innocenti, the prefect of the Vatican's Congregation for the Clergy, criticized some women for asking to be priests, which the church considers a role only for men.

"There can be suspicions that this desire is fed more by the search for power than the idea of service," he told reporters.

Despite the Americans' recommendations and strong words from the Vatican, the bishops indicated they expect little concrete change soon because of the meeting.

"I don't think it will change the shape of the American Catholic Church," said Pilarczyk.

For the Vatican, Innocenti said he thought the meeting was a "great step foward" in unifying the church.

Vatican and U.S. church leaders appear to remain apart on several issues.

For example, Vatican officials placed heavy emphasis on artificial birth control, while Bernardin and other U.S. bishops barely touched the subject. Large numbers of American Catholics ignore the church's ban on artificial contraception.

"I would say that the issue has been dealt with implicitly ... in the many times we looked at cultural factors which inhibit acceptance of and living out of faith," Law said.

While the Vatican questioned the U.S. annulment process and said it seemed too many marriages are being annulled, the American bishops defended their tribunals. Law said he foresaw no changes in the process.

However, there also was debate among the American prelates, reflecting divisions within the U.S. church. American bishops differed among themselves on such issues as the value of general confession of sins, and the degree to which compromise is permissible to adapt church teachings to U.S. society.

Afrikaner Church Condemns Apartheid

By Greg Myre
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The main church of ruling Afrikaners has declared apartheid a sin and asked forgiveness for its long support of the racially discriminatory system.

"We confess with humility and sorrow the participation of our church in the introduction and legitimation of the ideology of apartheid and the subsequent suffering of people," said the white Dutch Reformed Church.

The black and mixed-race Dutch Reformed Churches welcomed the most explicit condemnation of apartheid made by their white mother church but said it also must work to destroy the system it helped create.

President P.W. Botha and virtually his entire Cabinet are among congregants of the repenting church, which probably is Afrikanerdom's strongest single unifying factor.

"(Apartheid) cannot be accepted on Christian ethical grounds, because it contravenes the very essence of reconciliation, neighborly love and righteousness," the white church said.

It made the statement late Friday after a weeklong meeting between white, black and mixed-race church leaders in Vereeniging, 38 miles south of Johannesburg.

"It is encouraging that there are ministers in the white DRC that call for fundamental and comprehensive changes," said the black and mixed-race delegation. "But it is vital that they should embark on acts of liberation within church and society."

Among the black and mixed-race leaders were some of the country's best-known anti-apartheid figures, such as the Rev. Allan Boesak and the Rev. Beyers Naude, one of the few white ministers who belongs to the black church.

They called on the white church to condemn specific discriminatory laws and "develop a theology counteracting apartheid." They also issued a document promoting civil disobedience, which the white church did not endorse.

"One cannot be a Christian and not resist apartheid," the document said. "Resistance to this evil system is both the calling and duty of the church."

Piet Rossouw, a top official in the white church, said Saturday its leaders would address such issues at a meeting this week.

"The important thing is that we are working together to address the problem of discrimination and suffering," Rossouw said.

With about 1 million adult members, the white Dutch Reformed Church is by far the largest and most influential church among Afrikaners, who make up 3 million of the country's 5 million whites. The church opposes political activism but is in close contact with the government behind the scenes.

Johan Heyns, leader of the white church, told The Associated Press late last year he recently had spoken to Botha about sensitive political issues, including the possible release of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela.

In 1986, the church reversed its decades-old support of segregation and said apartheid was a mistake, but it stopped short of calling it a sin or heresy.

At the same time, it opened membership to all races. But most churches remain segregated because of tradition. About 50 ministers and 30,000 congregants who believe in strict segregation have broken away from the white church in the past three years.

The Dutch Reformed Church provided the scriptural justification for apartheid when the governing National Party came to power in 1948 and began codifying racial segregation. D.F. Malan, the prime minister from 1948-54 when most apartheid laws were enacted, was a minister in the church.

Over the years, church leaders cited dozens of biblical passages they said supported apartheid, under which the black majority has no voice in national affairs. They argued biblical references to "peoples" and "nations" supported policies to preserve cultural identity, and the right way to do this was to divide different races into their separate "nations."

About 1.1 million of the nation's 28 million blacks belong to the black Dutch Reformed Church and 680,000 of the 3 million mixed-race people belong to their Dutch Reformed Church.

Also Saturday, blacks planning a sit-in at a whites-only park in Carletonville, 45 miles west of Johannesburg, canceled the protest after police warned organizers they would be held responsible if any trouble broke out.

Blacks in Carletonville have been protesting a recent town council decision to resegregate public facilities that had been integrated.

Human Rights Session

GENEVA (AP) — The U.N. Human Rights Commission ended its 1989 session on Friday with votes on Cuba and Romania, rounding out a list of more than 100 resolutions and decisions in a six-week meeting.

Under a measure backed by Romania's Warsaw Pact ally Hungary and by all Western and some Third World countries, Romania will come under a U.N. inquiry for alleged grave human rights abuses.

In coming under scrutiny, it joins such nations as Chile, El Salvador, South Africa.

Pinochet Supporter Wounded

Police take away a supporter of military President Augusto Pinochet on Saturday in Santiago, Chile, after the man suffered a head inuury during a clash with anti-government protesters. The man holds a chain he used to attack demonstrators protesting in the city's center as Pinochet delivered his annual state-of-the-nation speech on nationwide radio and television.

Casualties Heavy In Pakistan

By Kathy Gannon
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A week of fierce fighting between Moslem insurgents and Afghan government forces holding a strategic city has killed scores of Afghans and injured hundreds, a guerrilla spokesman said Saturday.

Thousands of guerrillas blasted Jalalabad in a relentless attack with long-range rockets and heavy artillery, said Mohammad Shoaib of the Jamiat-e-Islami insurgent group.

The city, Afghanistan's fifth-largest, is seen by the guerrillas as a stepping stone to the capital of Kabul, 75 miles to the west.

"Fighting is close to and around the city," said Shoaib. "There are rumors that some mujahedeen (guerrillas) have entered the city from the north, but there is no confirmation."

Several guerrilla sources said the insurgents now control a key government garrison on the outskirts of Jalalabad.

The guerrillas captured as many as 500 government troops in the battle for the post, said Naeem Majrooh of the Afghan Information Center, which opposes the government.

Majrooh said casualty figures "are very high. Most of the deaths are from mines and bombardments."

The government of Afghan President Najib said 1,500 guerrillas had been killed in the weeklong fighting around Jalalabad. It did not give figures for government forces.

Shoaib said the latest death toll he received was about 100 with many more insurgents injured.

Western journalists returning from the Afghan-Pakistani border said a convoy of ambulances was headed for Pakistan, where most of the guerrillas have their bases.

The International Committee of the Red Cross runs a hospital in Peshawar, Pakistan, about 30 miles from the border, and the staff reportedly was working around the clock treating war wounded.

Afghanistan's official Radio Kabul, monitored in Islamabad, said nine rockets hit the capital Saturday, killing one person and injuring another.

Najib asked the United States and the Soviet Union to intervene to stop the fighting, according to a radio report Friday.

The United States, Pakistan and Iran have aided the guerrillas. The Soviets in February pulled the last of their troops out of Afghanistan after nine years of intervention in support of the Marxist government.

The guerrillas have been fighting the government since a Marxist coup in 1978 and have vowed to overthrow Najib now that the Soviets are gone.

They recently formed an interim government and on Friday held their first Cabinet meeting inside Afghanistan, about seven miles from the border in eastern Paktia province.

An alliance of seven guerrilla groups that operates from Peshawar, Pakistan, formed the government with hopes it will eventually replace Najib's.

Sudan on Saturday extended formal recognition to the rebel government.

The move made Sudan the second country, after Saudi Arabia, to recognize the government.

Malaysia's foreign minister said Saturday his country will propose that other Moslem countries recognize the guerrilla government at the Organization of Islamic Conference meeting in Saudi Arabia on Monday.

Whales In Trouble

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile (AP) — About 100 whales are grounded on a beach in the Strait of Magellan and some apparently are dead, the navy reported.

It said the whales were seen on a beach of Bahia Lomas on Tierra del Fuego at the western end of the strait.

A navy spokeswoman said no other details were available and that a ship was sent to the area to investigate, but preliminary reports indicated a number of the mammals were dead.

It was the second incident of grounded whales in the Strait of Magellan, at the southern tip of South America, this week.

Honduras, Rebels To Discuss Peace

By Freddy Cuevas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Honduran officials and rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government will meet in Washington this week to discuss a peace plan that includes disarming the rebels, a Honduran official said Saturday.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Eugenio Castro said in a telephone interview the meeting will be held Monday and Tuesday. He refused to give further details.

Officials in Washington could not be reached immediately for comment.

In February, the presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica agreed to the peace proposal, which includes freeing hundreds of former Nicaraguan national guardsmen and free and open elections in that country.

As part of the agreement, the leaders said they would draft a plan by May 15 to disband the 11,000-member rebel force fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Castro said two senior diplomats and two army colonels will represent the Honduran government at the Washington talks. He said Contra leaders Adolfo Calero, Aristides Sanchez, Roberto Ferrey and Enrique Bermudez will represent the rebels.

Honduras has reluctantly tolerated Contras in its territory since 1981, when the rebels — with U.S. assistance — started battling the Sandinistas.

WACHOVIA INTRODUCES A NEW 7-DAY CD.

A short-term CD with a long-term rate.

With our new, automatically renewing 7-Day CD, you no longer have to tie up your money for months or years just to get a high rate of return.

Here's how it works. Every seven days, you can (1) withdraw all your money with no penalties, (2) withdraw part of your money as long as you maintain a $20,000 minimum, or (3) leave your money on deposit and we'll renew your certificate automatically.

Our new 7-Day CD earns a higher rate than most short-term CDs or money market accounts. Your interest rate is automatically adjusted every seven days to the current rate being offered for this certificate.

Your investment is backed by the financial strength of Wachovia, a bank with an unbroken record of stability for over 100 years. And each depositor is also insured for up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Why let another week go by at a lower rate? Just call a Personal Banker℠ at any Wachovia branch.

High yield with high liquidity. That's The Wachovia Way.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Uncertainties

Discovery Spotlights Waste Dilemma

If there's not a law, there ought to be.

Packhouses and tobacco barns aren't the proper places to store medical waste and body parts, and if North Carolina doesn't have appropriate laws preventing such casual treatment of these materials, it's time to write some.

The discovery of used syringes and human body parts in three Pitt County agricultural structures recently prompted legal, ethical and public health questions that have not been satisfactorily answered.

First, the incident is morally troubling to a society that places great value on how it treats its dead.

Second, the legal uncertainties surrounding the issue are equally disturbing and raise sharp questions about North Carolina's commitment to proper waste disposal, as well as its regulatory authority.

The medical waste and body parts were stored in the barns by a Bethel funeral home operator who owns a crematorium in Raleigh. While no state or local laws were broken, North Carolina waste officials think the incident violates a handful of state medical waste regulations. But these same state officials have no way to enforce penalties for ignoring these regulations because a case awaiting a ruling by the N.C. Supreme Court challenges the constitutionality of of that power.

The state has asked the funeral home operator to clean up the storage sites and comply with regulations. He has agreed and that cooperation is appropriate. There remains, however, the troubling question of what could be done if materials were improperly stored and the offender refused responsibility or involvement? The answer is far too close to "nothing" to be satisfactory.

Let's get this straight. An individual improperly storing medical waste isn't violating a law, only a regulation. Because of legal uncertainty, there is no way now in North Carolina to require the situation be rectified. A proper ruling by the court may or may not clear up such ambiguity, so regulatory enforcement power cannot be counted on.

With this in mind, it is unfathomable why North Carolina doesn't have some legislation — some legal requirements — setting acceptable standards for handling these materials. If a law is broken and the violation can be proved, punishment and correction is certain. The incident in Pitt County shows it's time for this type of assurance.

While three barns of medical waste hardly constitute a major waste crisis, their discovery spotlights the dilemma disposal presents. Clearly, these materials should not be stored or disposed of in a barn and if that practice is not already outlawed, it should be.

Reminder

A Fragile, Beautiful Environment

Every coastal storm brings us a stark reminder of the fragile nature of North Carolina's Outer Banks.

This week's wintry blast — an ice, sleet and snow storm elsewhere — once again delivered a blow to the narrow band of sandy islands which make up the Outer Banks.

While the winter aspects of the storm concerned much of eastern North Carolina, at Kitty Hawk there was debris and water on N.C. 12 the day of the storm. The road was covered with water in Rodanthe, Pea Island and near Buxton.

Winds of 60 mph halted or curtailed ferry operations and concern was voiced for further erosion around the Herbert C. Bonner Bridge which has already suffered from previous storms.

The winter storm was unique in nature ... but it is also just one of the many storms which pound away at the Outer Banks winter, spring, fall and summer. That has been going on for centuries and the narrow islands have been constantly changing in their nature.

It is only in this century that man has constructed buildings, bridges and highways on the Outer Banks, and it has been a constant fight with the power of the sea during that time.

It would be unreasonable to expect that all man-made structures should disappear from the Outer Banks. That won't happen, but we can protect what is left as undeveloped area.

The Outer Banks are a source of pride to North Carolinians and they provide a great recreation area for much of the nation. We must do all possible to live in harmony with nature as we enjoy this unique resource.

Public Forum

To the editor:

It is interesting to compare dollar figures involved in two current news items, i.e., 'teachers' salaries' and pay scales for the striking Eastern Airline employees. The March 8 Daily Reflector contained an article which gave current maximum teachers' pay as $27,650 for the bachelor degree and $30,430 for the master's degree. Compare this with the following figures given by Cable News Network: airline baggage handlers (you know, the guys who lose our luggage) have a maximum of $36,500 and the mechanics have a maximum of $39,500.

We all know the comparative educational requirements for these three vocations. Air safety is important, but certainly not more so than our children's educational future.

Jack Edwards

To the editor:

I am writing related to several previous letters and concerns regarding the trees cut down to build a shopping center at 14th and Charles streets. I agree that the "tree massacre" is horrible.

I feel there is a way to satisfy both the citizens of Greenville and the builders of future malls, convenient marts, etc. Most builders are going to try almost anything to make "big bucks," but the way I see it, they are just cutting down money!

How can builders build something satisfying to them and their customers? The solution: build a functional building with respect for the surrounding environment. For example, design building plans with a view to nature's beauty. If builders left the trees standing, it would be more enticing to customers, bringing in more money.

If these and other solutions are not taken into consideration, soon the world will be a cement blob.

Take A Lesson From Pasquotank

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — When one local government gets a good idea and gets it approved by the General Assembly, others usually quickly try the same thing. A local bill for Pasquotank County has just such a potential.

Pasquotank has had tough times on the school front recently. A combination of population growth, aging facilities and a disaster or two led to the need for five new buildings. The county was hard pressed to raise the money.

After money was raised to build two new schools, to enlarge another and renovate a fourth, the county commissioners turned to the local hospital. For 25 years, Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City had been charging hospital patients a dollar or two extra, per day, and putting that money into a reserve for future renovation of the hospital, according to Rep. Vernon James, D-Pasquotank. That reserve is now in the range of $18 million — about what is needed to renovate the hospital.

But the county hospital can't use all of it at once. Renovation will take place over seven years, with work being done on one wing at a time. So county commissioners want to borrow hospital money to build a school.

James told the House Education Committee that the county would like to borrow $3.5 million. Legislative approval would be needed because this cannot be done under current state law.

James said the county would pay the hospital back with the sales tax receipts that it gets for infrastructure projects. That money should come in quickly enough to fully compensate the hospital before the hospital needs to use the money. If it doesn't, James said, the feeling is that the county would issue bonds at that time.

> 'Pasquotank has had tough times on the school front recently. A combination of population growth, aging facilities and a disaster or two led to the need for five new buildings. The county was hard pressed to raise the money.'

The whole idea is to avoid paying interest on a loan to build the school. That idea sparked a gleam in the eyes of other legislators.

"If other counties find this bill is popular, they'll be adding their names to it pretty quickly," said Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

As simple as the idea sounds, it does carry a couple of problems for Pasquotank and other counties.

The first is that in other counties, the hospital may not have the large reserve that Albemarle Hospital has accumulated. Without such reserves, a hospital could not use this bill to help build schools.

The second problem was noted by James himself. Albemarle is owned by Pasquotank County, but it serves patients from a four or five county region. These out-of-county residents have been paying that extra daily fee for the expressed purpose of renovating the regional hospital. Is it fair, James asked, to now use that money for a Pasquotank school? He answered "yes," so long as the money is paid back in full, and on time.

With many North Carolina schools approaching the end of their useful lives, and with the need for more classrooms as student-teacher ratios are reduced, many counties will need to raise money quickly. The 10-year plan for school construction funds that was approved in 1988 brings in big new infusions of cash, but still, for many counties, it will take several years to collect enough to build a school.

Counties, therefore, are in need of short term cash. While the Pasuotank idea may not work for many counties, it might help a few get over the hump. As Diamont said, those counties may soon be lining up to add their names to the James bill.

A Lot Of Talk About The Weather

Alvin Taylor

Sunday Morning Notes

This and that.

□ The weather continued to occupy our conversations last week. After facing, ice, winds, snow and rain, this past week was another one of balmy weather followed by cold and the inevitable tornado and windstorm warnings.

A drive down the new 264 to Farmville showed the evidence of the previous storms. Pine trees had been snapped off by ice, or wind or snow or a combination of all three. They had fallen across the fencing along the highway creating some major repair jobs for the Department of Transportation in the weeks ahead.

Meanwhile the Tar River was hanging high, even though not particularly a flood threat. At something over 16 feet, however, the river creates quite a lake in the northside flood plain with the waters reaching to the very foot of the Pitt-Greenville Airport north-south runway.

Then winter was back with a coating of sleet and ice on streets and highways, school closings and other disruptions in life. And what would follow that? Why balmy days with temperatures in the 60s naturally. Makes one yearn for the sound of a robin's song.

□ As anyone who drove in last week's sleet storm is aware the road conditions are treacherous. As always for your columnist there was an added element of inconvenience. Just as the sleet started falling Tuesday night my auto headlight burned out. I made it home OK, but the next day there was a slippery trip to the repair shop to get it replaced. On icy roads two headlights are better than one any night.

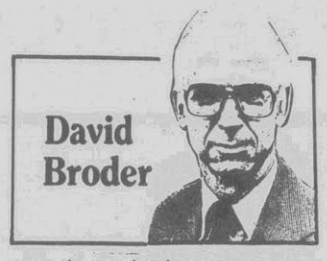
In Greenville the warehouses were once grouped around the Dickinson Avenue area — Dog's Head, as it was called.

Though not as large as present day warehouses those still covered a city block and were the largest areas under one roof in town. Tobacco factories were in the same area and they were giant buildings in themselves. The old plants which housed Person-Garrett, Imperial, Export, E.B. Ficklen and Greenville Tobacco Co. are still there, although converted to other uses.

Commentary

The Cost For S&L Bailout Will Exceed Mere Dollars



David Broder

WASHINGTON — If you want to understand the growing public cynicism with the political process and Washington, the current savings-and-loan bailout effort provides a perfect case in point.

President Bush lists his S&L rescue plan as one of the proudest achievements of his fledgling administration. Leaders of the House and Senate, when criticized for the slow start of the two-month-old 101st Congress, say a bit defensively that hearings are under way on at least one urgent problem — the thrift institutions.

But on Main Street, the message coming from both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue is heard very differently. What voters see is not the responsiveness of government to a problem threatening the stability of the financial system, but the stark fact that the public is about to be socked with a bill experts say will top $100 billion over the next decade to clean up a mess the politicians did their best to sweep under the rug during the last election campaign.

'Higher cynicism and still lower voting participation will also have to be reckoned in the account.'

Now that problem is being addressed in the usual Washington way, in an intricate minuet between the administration and Congress, with maneuvers so fancy and language so confusing that only the insiders can follow or participate in the game.

What the public grasps is that rather than the issue being debated openly between presidential candidates at a time when voters could make their wishes felt at the ballot box, it's now being negotiated among financial-industry lobbyists, their friends in Congress and a set of unelected administration officials.

The public will have the privilege of picking up the bill, but otherwise will be told, not very politely, to butt out.

It was no secret last fall that the $5 billion Congress had voted in 1987 to sustain the federal fund guaranteeing S&L deposits was going to be grossly inadequate to cover the losses among those thrift institutions which had stumbled into trouble in the permissive climate of 1980s deregulation.

Late last September, my Washington Post colleague Jerry Knight wrote accurately that the S&Ls would provide "the first economic crisis of the 41st presidency." But, he pointed out, "neither George Bush nor Michael Dukakis has said a word about it yet."

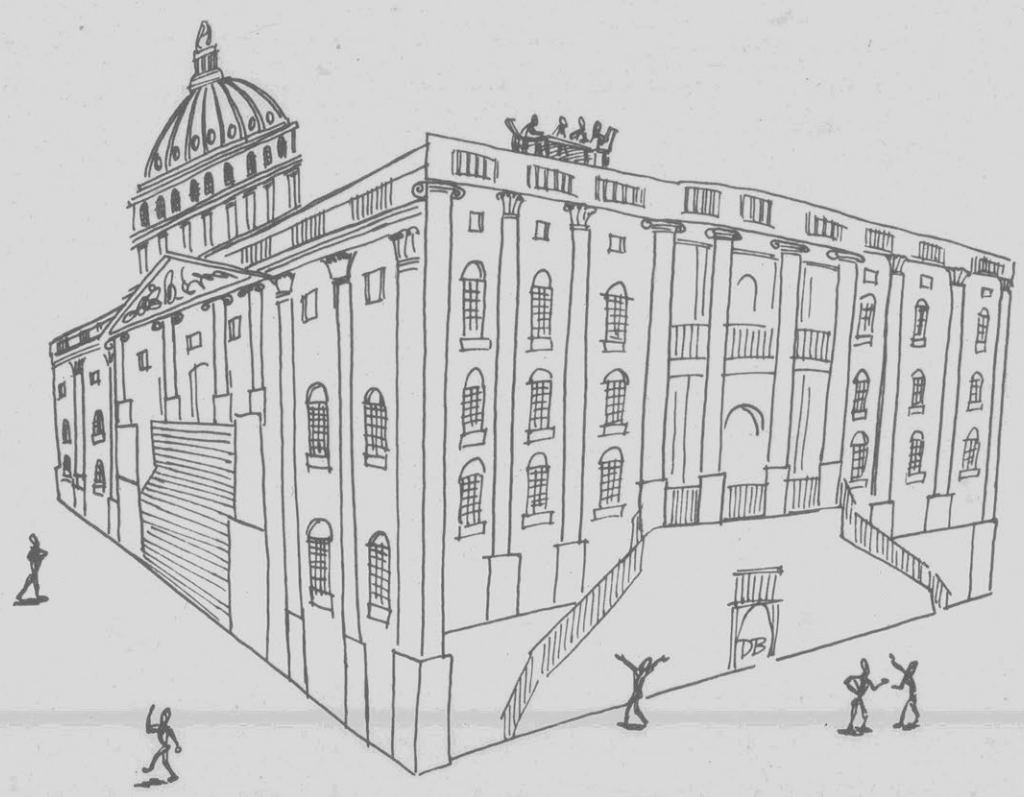
A few days later, Dukakis did raise the issue, saying Bush in his role as the deregulation maestro of the Reagan administration had let "the ticking time bomb" explode. But neither Dukakis nor Bush came close to suggesting a solution. They recognized that any credible plan would require them to address budgetary and tax issues both were trying desperately to avoid.

Their conspiracy of silence meant that the voters never heard the vital policy choices discussed, never got a chance to express their own views about where the bailout bill should be sent and how those responsible for the disaster should be held to account.

Instead, those issues are being thrashed out now, long after the election is over, and in forums where few of the small depositors and taxpayers have much influence.

True, the fear of voter reaction caused the Bush administration to back off its early thoughts of "taxing" depositors directly for the bailout. But that "victory," if it was one, is likely to be short-lived. As Congress now mulls how to split the bill between S&L operators, depositors and the general tax-paying public, the voices that are most urgently and frequently heard on Capitol Hill are those of savings-industry lobbyists.

The pending report from the House Ethics Committee on Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas) will remind everyone of the coziness between key legislators and thrift-industry operators. Their pattern of mutual back-scratching led to the defeat last November of former Banking Committee Chairman (and S&L buddy) Fernand St. Germain (D-R.I.), who was more open than most in accepting favors from those his committee was supposed to monitor.



If the S&L case were an isolated instance, it would be bad enough. But sadly it is all too typical of the growing separation between campaigning and governing. As campaigns are drained of substance by the manipulations of candidates and campaign consultants, voters hear less and less that gives them a feeling they have a real stake in the outcome.

The choice increasingly turns on matters that are contrived or ephemeral. When did you last hear President Bush talk about the Pledge of Allegiance?

But voters are not dumb. They understand that to govern is to choose. And when the hard choices are concealed in the campaign period (as they were in the S&L case), they do not disappear. Instead, the choices get made in a more intricate, concealed Washington power game, where only the insiders can effectively play.

When the bills for this particular choice are sent to the public, the cost will be measured in more than dollars. Higher cynicism and still lower voting participation will also have to be reckoned in the account.

Virtue, Hypocrisy

Richard Cohen

WASHINGTON — Bill Bennett, please light up. Take a ciggie, strike a match, inhale and then say — in a fog of smoke — that you are doing so because we are in danger of raising virtue to where it has become a public vice. John Tower would drink to that.

William Bennett is the drug czar, whatever that is. But whatever it is, Bennett has been editorially told by the New York Times, among others, that he can no longer smoke. "He cannot plausibly lead the national drive against drug addiction while himself addicted...to nicotine," said the Times, which made no such argument when Bennett was Education secretary. A major hunk of his constituency back then was school kids.

But why can't Bennett smoke? Is smoking the moral or physical equivalent of using crack? No. Do smokers corrupt the local constabulary? No. Do cigarette wholesalers kill one another with AK47s? No. Is smoking illegal? No. Have we failed to distinguish between one kind of addiction and another? Yes. Are such distinctions important? Yes.

Of course, smoking is a public-health menace. Bennett will be healthier for quitting and, maybe, public figures should set an example in this regard. But the insistence that he cold turkey (he has) represents both a failure to distinguish between the trivial and the important and a willingness to make cosmic judgments based on personal habits or behavior irrelevant to job performance.

Smoking has become one of these habits and sex has become a shorthand way of judging character. Sometimes sex is. It entails a certain amount of discipline and discipline is a worthy trait. But here again distinctions are not made. Gary Hart, for instance, was asked if he had ever cheated on his wife. Never mind that the answer is no business of ours. It was never the issue to begin with. The issue, once again, was self-discipline: the entirely reckless behavior of an already-suspect man who was caught more or less with Donna Rice while he was running for President.

Yet that questions recurs. It was put to Tower, for example, when in his case the issue was not adultery but alleged behavior suggesting sexual harassment. Here again, one vice was equated to another when, of course, any adult knows the difference. Adultery is not the same as abusing women any more than a light spanking by a parent is child abuse.

But Tower bought the present ethic when he pledged not to have a single drink if confirmed as secretary of Defense. Why? Is one drink the same as six? No. If, as he maintained, he did not have a drinking problem, then why the pledge? One drink at the end of the day does not an alcoholic make.

The same, stern standard doomed Douglas Ginsburg's chances of a Supreme Court seat. Nominated by Ronald Reagan as a replacement for the fallen Robert Bork (whose smoking was mentioned at his confirmation hearings), Ginsburg had to withdraw from consideration when it was revealed he had smoked marijuana in the past...a misdemeanor that was almost never prosecuted.

What that had to do with his intellect, his judicial abilities or, even, his present views on pot smoking, no one could explain. In fact, Ginsburg was a member of a generation that had, by the many millions, experimented with marijuana, much as a previous generation had taken its gin from a bathtub. Are we to disqualify a whole generation from public service? Was Ginsburg's behavior any worse than that of Hugo Black, a Supreme Court justice (1937-71) who had once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan, a membership totally unrepresentative of his beliefs or, as it turned out, his judicial career?

These standards are so rigid as to be ridiculous. Novelists instruct. The Czechoslovakian protagonist of Milan Kundera's "The Unbearable Lightness of Being" is a rampant womanizer. But his integrity is such that he will not recant an anti-communist letter he had written to a newspaper. He is ruined, deprived of his livelihood as a surgeon. Admittedly, this is fiction, but it was acclaimed because it was recognized as truth.

Lately, however, this truth — that a single characteristic is not the sum of a person — has eluded us. We pose questions that are supposed to be Rorschach tests: Do you smoke? Did you ever use pot? Do you cheat on your wife? What if the last question was put to Franklin Roosevelt or Dwight Eisenhower? It would have rearranged the furniture of history, and for the worse.

Politicians bemoan single-issue politics in which voters decide, on the basis of, say, abortion, to reject a candidate. But single-trait politics is just as worrisome, just as simplistic, just as narrow. As a nation, we are on a fool's errand. We seek the virtuous person for government but our standards are so rigid we will wind up with something else entirely: the hypocrite.

The Substantive Thinness Of Debt

George Will

WASHINGTON — President Bush, who needs handlers as much as he disdains them, deepens suspicions he sought to allay when he bounded, yet again, into the press room and quickly found himself denying that his administration is in disarray. It does him no good to give the country more exposure to himself than he can fill with interesting or merely plausible things to say, so he should go to earth for awhile.

The substantive thinness of his presidency was guaranteed by his way of winning it — "no new taxes" — and the thinness was proclaimed as policy in his inaugural address: "We have more will than wallet." Today's $5 trillion economy is 75 percent larger (40 percent bigger per capita) in real terms than in 1967 when Bush became a congressman. The nation's wallet is remarkably thick. The government's wallet is thin by political choice and will be kept so by Bush's policy.

Hence the imaginative energies of the political class here are increasingly squandered on intellectual dishonesties to justify evasions of the deficit problem. And the centrality of that problem guarantees a Bush presidency hollow at its moral center.

Interest rates are ever-larger levers on events in a nation addicted to debt. Total debt — government, business, household — has risen 200 percent in a decade, and much of the debt is pegged to the prime rate. In this decade interest, not defense, has been the fastest growing portion of the federal budget. Rising rates make that portion grow faster while the consequence of rising rates — slower GNP growth — causes revenues to grow slower than Bush's budget presupposes.

Compounded intellectual incompatibilities — administration assumptions incompatible with one another, and with predictable Federal Reserve policy — are by now a Republican ritual. This is an odd ritual for a party that advertises its realism as an alternative to Democratic wishful thinking.

The Reagan administration's first forecasts, made in March 1981, assumed that between 1980 and 1986 there would be a rate of GNP growth (25 percent) and a decline in unemployment (from 7.2 to 5.6 percent) and a balanced budget (by 1984, no less). These forcast were utterly incompatible with the monetary policies that would e necessary to achieve serious progress toward the Reagan administration's most serious goal, reduction of inflation from 13.5 to 1.9 percent.

As things turned out, by 1986 real GNP growth had been just 16.5 percent, unemployment was not much below the 1980 level (6.9 percent) and the 1984 budget had been $185 billion dollars out of balance. The problem was that the Fed had practiced what Reagan preached, emphasizing the primary goal of suppressing inflation.

And today? There they go again, those Republicans.

The administration projects declining interest rates. They are rising. Even if they remain where they were when the administration made its projections, the deficit-reduction projection would be $9 billion off because rates did not decline. The administration projects 3.5 percent real growth in GNP for five years. Fed chairman Alan Greenspan says such growth "presupposes an increase in productivity which could conceivably happen but is quite unlikely."

Bush wants America to think beyond quarterly reports and annual budgets, to the long term. Good idea. Let's start.

The deficit, which today is larger as a percentage of GNP than ever before in peacetime when unemployment was this low, is sopping up in government borrowing a debilitating share of domestic savings. America's savings rate has fallen substantially, from an already alarmingly low base, in the 1980s. Hence investment has been inadequate. Hence productivity growth has been too slow: The growth of output per hour has been at half the 1960s rate.

Because of investment neglected and growth forgone, Herbert Stein says: "For every $100 billion of deficit we run, we reduce national income by $15 billion a year forever." Forever. That is the long term.

U.S. Psychiatric Team Interviews Soviet Patients

By Mark J. Porubcansky
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — U.S. officials said Saturday following an unprecedented inspection of Soviet mental hospitals that they could not determine whether patients still are held because of their political beliefs.

A team of psychiatrists, lawyers and interpreters interviewed 27 patients and former mental patients in a review spurred by Western charges of widespread psychiatric abuses.

The Soviet Union withdrew from the World Psychiatry Association in 1983 unde. pressure from the West. It has pledged to end abuses and hopes to be readmitted this year to the association.

At a news conference Saturday, the Americans refused to discuss individual cases or their conclusions about the Soviet mental health system.

"We will not deny that this has been a very sensitive and difficult undertaking to carry out to our full satisfaction," said delegation leader Robert W. Farrand of the State Department's Bureau of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs.

Asked if he could say if there were any political prisoners still in Soviet mental hospitals, Farrand responded that "no one can prove the negative."

He said, however, that the human rights situation in the Soviet Union had improved substantially. The number of people the U.S. government lists as political prisoners is "well down" from 750 two years ago, Farrand said.

"We would not have agreed as a government to come to Moscow in 1991 for a human rights conference if we had not been convinced that the question of political prisoners had, in the main, been resolved," he said.

The team's lead psychiatrist, Dr. Loren H. Roth of the University of Pittsburgh's Law and Psychiatry Program, said Soviet officials were late in providing some medical records and that some patients had been discouraged from consenting to interviews.

However, he said the group eventually was able to interview those people.

Delegation sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said they had no indication of retribution against patients who gave interviews.

Yuri A. Reshetov, head of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's Office of International Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs, said there are no political prisoners in mental hospitals.

But he said some people named on Western human rights lists may be "undergoing treatment due to specific concrete actions against the law."

Of the 27 people interviewed, 15 were in mental hospitals and 12 were former mental patients, Farrand said.

All were being held for political reasons, according to reports by Western human rights monitors. Patients were permitted to request that Soviet doctors not be present during the interviews.

The Americans visited seven mental hospitals, including facilities in Kazan, Leningrad and Chernyakhovsk under the control of the Interior Ministry, which is responsible for the Soviet Union's uniformed police.

Hospitals controlled by the ministry have been identified as places where dangerous criminals and political prisoners have been held.

Under a government decree in January 1988, those hospitals are being transferred to the jurisdiction of the Health Ministry, which runs all other mental hospitals. The decree also made it a crime for anyone to knowingly commit a sane person to a mental institution.

U.S. officials said they still were reviewing medical records provided by Soviet doctors and will complete a summary of their report in four to six weeks. It then will be turned over to Soviet officials to add their comments before it is published.

Minister Puts $666 Million Price Tag On 1988 Uprising

By Karin Laub
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — The Palestinian uprising cost Israel $666 million in 1988 and nearly wiped out its economic growth, and it may exact a similar toll this year, a Cabinet minister was quoted Saturday as saying.

Gad Yaacobi blamed the losses on higher military spending, reduced production, and lost tourism and foreign investment. Yaacbi, of the left-leaning Labor Party, was economics minister until November, when he became communications minister.

Arab reports said four Palestinians were wounded in clashes with troops Saturday. The army confirmed two injuries.

Israel radio quoted Yaacobi as saying Israel's $35 billion economy grew 1 percent last year, instead of a forecasted 2.5 percent. In 1987, it grew 5 percent.

At the same time, the value of goods and services in the occupied lands shrunk from $1.5 billion in 1987 to $1.2 billion, according to Palestinian economist Samir Abdullah.

A spokesman for Yaacobi, Naama Henig, said Saturday that Yaacobi believes the revolt against Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip may have the same drastic economic effects this year.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, meanwhile, said Palestinian leaders have expressed support for his proposal to hold elections in the occupied territories to choose a delegation for direct peace talks with Israel.

"I have received hints that the approach I proposed appeals to not just a small number of the leading figures among the residents of the (occupied) territories," Rabin said in an interview Israel radio broadcast Saturday.

His remarks came after leading Palestinians rejected the plan, saying the Palestine Liberation Organization is their sole representative and elections only can be held after Israel withdraws.

"The people here will not elect a leadership to be in competition with the PLO," Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij, a political moderate, said Saturday. "It will only drive a wedge between us and our brothers on the outside."

Four Palestinians, including a 12-year-old boy, were shot and wounded in Saturday clashes with Israeli troops in the Gaza Strip, Arab hospital officials said. The army confirmed two wounded.

Since the uprising began Dec. 8, 1987, 394 Palestinians have been killed. Seventeen Israelis have died.

Rabin outlined a troop redeployment plan to "reduce the burden" of reserve soldiers by cutting their duties from a maximum of 62 days a year to 44 days.

"In Gaza and the West Bank, regular forces and fewer reserve troops will serve in areas known as trouble spots," Rabin said. In addition, specially trained border police units will take over some areas.

The radio interview was broadcast a day after the army shifted some troops out of Gaza Strip refugee camps. It marks a shift in government policy from emphasizing a widespread army presence to using fewer, but better-trained anti-riot units.

The redeployment also came as Foreign Minister Moshe Arens left for a 10-day visit to the United States, where he is expected to encounter pressure to reduce friction in the occupied lands.

Rabin denied troops were redeployed to appease the United States. "There is no connection to whether the Americans want this or not," he said.

Blue Devils Top Virginia By 69-58

Slow-Starting Ferry Scores 23

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Coach Mike Krzyzewski is hoping No. 7 Duke has something left for Sunday's Atlantic Coast Conference title game against ninth-ranked North Carolina.

Danny Ferry, Duke's leading scorer who was scoreless the first 16½ minutes, came to life just before intermission and finished with 23 points Saturday to power the Blue Devils to a 69-58 semifinal victory over cold-shooting Virginia.

The triumph was Duke's 15th straight over the Cavaliers in a streak dating to 1983.

The defending tournament champion Blue Devils, 24-6, will seek their third title in four years on Sunday against the Tar Heels, who drubbed Maryland 88-58 in the other semifinal. The game will be a rematch of last year's final, won by Duke 65-61.

"We feel like we earned the title game by playing two good games, but so did they," Krzyzewski said. "Last year was a classic game and I expect the same tomorrow."

The Cavaliers, 19-10, "played their hearts out and I hope we have enough left for tomorrow," said Krzyzewski, whose team defeated Wake Forest 88-64 Thursday in the opening round. "We need to get 48 hours of sleep in about 12 hours."

Ferry, who missed his first six shots and was scoreless until hitting a layup with 3:30 left in the half, scored the Blue Devils' final six points before intermission to help Duke to a 32-16 lead.

The Cavaliers made only four of 27 shots, 14.8 percent, in the first 20 minutes.

"Both teams came out with defensive intensity and it was a game of who would crack first. Unfortunately, we cracked," Virginia coach Terry Holland said. "In the second half we came back, but when we got it down to 10 points, Ferry hit eight straight points and then made another 3-pointer and that was it."

Virginia, with Bryant Stith scoring five points, made its biggest move of the game to get within 41-31 with 13:29 left before Ferry went to work again.

The 6-foot-10 forward scored the eight straight points and 11 of Duke's next 12 points, including three 3-pointers, and the Blue Devils led 53-39.

"He's a great player and he showed it in that stretch," Holland said. "We cut it to 10, but they went to him and he delivered."

North Carolina Rips Maryland

Reid Leads Heels In 88-58 Victory

By Tom Foreman Jr.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Neither ninth-ranked North Carolina nor upstart Maryland showed much style in their Atlantic Coast Conference tournament semifinal Saturday, but the Tar Heels had enough substance to make another trip to the championship game.

J.R. Reid scored 17 points and the Tar Heels took advantage of Maryland's icy shooting for an 88-58 victory over the Terrapins, who played without hospitalized coach Bob Wade.

"Maryland was not as sharp as they were yesterday," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said, "but neither were we."

The Tar Heels, 26-7, reached the finals for the 17th time in the 36 years of the tournament. Wade missed the game when he collapsed moments after Friday's victory over top-seeded North Carolina State. He remained in an Atlanta hospital Saturday and school officials said he was resting comfortably.

Maryland athletic director Lew Perkins said Wade told him he would watch the semifinal on television, but officials at Georgia Baptist Hospital would not say whether Wade saw the game.

Maryland, led by assistant coaches Jeff Adkins and Ron Bradley, finished the season at 9-20 and suffered the worst loss ever in an ACC tournament semifinal. Until Saturday morning, the two assistants thought Wade would be on the bench beside them.

"We didn't find out that coach Wade would not be joining us until 10:15 today," Bradley said. "I then spoke with him at 11:45 just before our bus left for the coliseum. He said to go with the basic game plan that we had used yesterday."

It was a patient half-court offense that helped the Terrapins reach the semifinals, taking N.C. State out of its faster tempo. But it was an impotent attack that took Maryland out of the tournament.

Maryland hit two of its first 13 shots while the Tar Heels were running away to a 17-6 lead in the first 10 minutes. The Terrapins hit just four of 23 field goals for the half for 17 percent. A 47 percent second half helped the Terrapins improve to 36 percent field goal shooting.

North Carolina also struggled, hitting 37 percent of its field goals in the first half, but the Tar Heels mustered enough offense for a 38-14 halftime lead.

"Halfway through the game, I realized if we didn't get that lead, we would be in a lot of trouble because FARMVILLE — At times this year, Ayden-Grifton has been a two-man show, but Saturday against Hertford County, the Chargers evened things out and the result was a trip to Fayetteville for the Eastern 2-A Basketball Regionals.

As usual, Leon Dixon, with 26 points, and Ronnell Peterson, with 22 points, were the main contributors for Ayden-Grifton. But James Woodard and John Tyndall added 17 points apiece to knock off Hertford County, 86-66, in the finals of the Section I 2-A tournament.

The win advances Ayden-Grifton to the 2-A Eastern Regionals to be played in Fayetteville later this week. A draw will be held to determine their opponent.

Farmville Rips Clinton

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell is a proponent of man-to-man defenses, but he realized his team needed to play zone if it had any intentions of defeating Clinton.

The move paid dividends for the Jaguars during a second quarter rally that brought them from behind and keyed a 77-60 win over the Dark Horses in the Section II 2-A Basketball Finals Saturday night.

The win sends Farmville to the Eastern 2-A Regionals to be held in Fayetteville later this week. The Jaguars, 23-4, will find out who they play after a drawing early this week.

Farmville trailed 18-15 after the first quarter, but came back strong in the second period to outscore the Dark Horses 33-9 to take control of the game.

PINETOPS — History may be repeating itself at SouthWest Edgecombe High School for D.H. Conley's basketball team.

The Vikings rolled into the Section I 3-A finals to be played Monday after blowing past Apex, 78-51, Saturday night. Conley will face East Carteret for the championship.

Two years ago, the Vikings won the sectionals held at SouthWest Edgecombe and then went on to claim the state title.

There was never much doubt that the Vikings, 21-5 on the year, would win Saturday as they jumped out to a 21-4 lead in the first six minutes of the game.

"They (Conley) are by far the best team we've faced this year," Apex coach John Griggs said. "We've played some 4-A schools in the Raleigh area too. But none have been as good as they were.

Rose Bows To Trojans

FAYETTEVILLE — Fayetteville's Pine Forest, the champion of the Mid-South Conference, rallied from behind to nip Rose High School, 71-70, in the finals of the Section II, 4-A Boys Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

"We led just about the whole game," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said. "But they caught up with us in the last five minutes. We played well, but it wasn't enough."

Rose grabbed the lead early in the game, pushing out to a 20-14 lead in the opening period of the game. Rose held on through the second quarter, despite a 20-19 scoring margin by the Trojans. That left the Rampants with a 39-34 halftime lead.

Pine Forest continued to chop away at the lead in the third period, pushing through 14 points while holding Rose to just 11. That trimmed the Rose lead back to 50-48 going in the final period.

Pine Forest took its first lead with 7:32 left in the game, and the Dream Comes True For Greenville Pair

Trip To Mets' Dream Camp Provides Memories For Berbert, DeBiase

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

For many a man in his 30's or early 40's, the idea of attending the New York Mets' "Dream Camp," is a way of extending his youth.

For two 62-year-old Greenville men, it was a chance to recapture their youth. And they not only did it, they showed up a number of those far younger men.

Roy Berbert and Vinnie DeBiase, both retired from Burroughs Wellcome, recently attended the Mets' camp in Port St. Lucie, Fla., returning with great memories and few of the aches and pains that might be expected.

"We didn't know if we'd be accepted by the younger kids," DeBiase said, "and we made the starting teams. That was the most exciting thing about it."

But, he admitted, when the day was done, "We had one glass of wine and went to bed early."

The trip is a purchased one, but those attending must be over 30.

"The great majority were in their 30's and early 40's," Berbert said, "but there were two men there older than us. One was 68 and the other was 71."

The trip includes a week's stay at the Mets' spring training camp, lunch in the clubhouse, practice sessions and coaching from the Mets' staff in hitting, fielding, pitching and game fundamentals.

"You live, eat and sleep baseball for one whole week," DeBiase said. "There were so many things we learned that we can pass on, things I wasn't aware of. For instance fielding the ball, it's completely different from anything we've gone through."

Both men have coached Little League ball, in fact, Berbert is entering his 20th year with the Greenville Little Leagues.

"We went for our own enjoyment," he said, "but we learned a lot to pass on to the kids."

Right away, both men were impressed by the hospitality of the Mets.

"We got there on Sunday and were taken to the clubhouse. There, we found lockers with our names on them, complete with two sets of Mets' uniforms (road and home)," Berbert said.

The uniforms, tailored to each individual by his measurements, are theirs to keep. Each morning, the uniforms hung neatly in the lockers, having been cleaned and pressed by the Mets' locker room crew.

The week culminated with an awards banquet, but the fun is not over yet for the 180 who attended the two one-week sessions. They'll attend a Met game in Shea Stadium in New York, be introduced to the crowd, be given their own baseball cards and a video of their week in camp.

Both men originally are from New York, moving to Greenville with Burroughs Wellcome. Both, too, were long-time Mets' fans.

"My lifetime ambition has been to play with the pros," Berbert said. "After I retired, I got information on the camp and Vinnie and I decided to go."

Since they were retired, they went into a program of getting in shape for the trip, helped by Rose High School baseball coach Ronald Vincent, who hit them grounders and pitched to them at Guy Smith Stadium.

"For two months, we practiced in back yards and at Guy Smith and in the batting cage there," DeBiase said.

The 80 who attended the week with Berbert and DeBiase were divided into six teams and they played three six-inning games on Monday. That night, the pros chose up sides and they played two six-inning games a day Tuesday through Friday.

"They have seven fields there, although only one has a grandstand," Berbert said. "All of them, however, are built to Shea Stadium dimensions."

"And one of them has artificial turf," DeBiase added.

Saturday, the Mets' staff played each of the six teams a four-inning game.

Both Berbert and DeBiase ended up on the same team. Berbert caught and DeBiase played second base — both starting every game. Their team was coached by Jerry Koosman and Duffy Dyer. Other staff members included Bob Apodaca, Larry Bearnarth, John Cumberland, Doug Flynn and Felix Millan. Others who came in for the Saturday game included Buzz Capra, Chuck Hiller, Ron Hunt, Frank Thomas and Al Weiss.

"The pro team has never lost to a camp team," Berbert said. "We asked Koosman how hard they would throw to us, and he said, just hard enough to win."

The two reported that the Mets were very accommodating and tried to follow through with every request.

"The 71-year-old told them he wanted to pitch in the Saturday game and they let him," Berbert said. "He only wanted to pitch to two or three batters, but he ended up throwing two innings of scoreless ball. He threw the ball so slowly that the Mets were just breaking their backs trying to hit it."

With a 71-year-old pitcher and a 62-year-old catcher (Berbert), Koosman said that the two were the oldest battery in the history of the Dream Camp.

"When these guys were born," he joked," the Dead Sea was only sick."

DeBiase also had a thrill in the Saturday game. His team was hitless when he came to the plate, and he got the first hit of the day off the Met pitcher.

"It was really a thrill," Berbert said. "When we went out for our first batting practice, Jerry Koosman was pitching and I thought to myself: here's a guy who won over 200 games, faced the toughest hitters in baseball before thousands of people and he's pitching to me."

"It's difficult to explain the excitement of walking out on that

Rowan, Justice Top Rosco Run

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Phillip Rowan and Charlie Justice both used a steady pace to hold off any challengers and claim wins in the 10 kilometer and five kilometer races, respectively at the Rosco Run For Children Saturday.

Rowan, of Greenville, turned in a time of 31:46 to win his race for the second year in a row. He beat out a field of 63 entrants and finished just over a minute ahead of second-place finisher Wayne Broadhead (32:58) of Goldsboro.

The 5-K and 10-K races, as well as a one-mile fun run for children, were all part of The Rosco Run For Children, sponsored by the Daily Reflector and Ross Laboratories to benefit The Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina.

"I've not been running real well," Rowan said. "I've had the flu, but I ran the same time last week."

Rowan's time was good enough to break his official course record of 32:43 he set last year, though.

"He pulled away with about two and a half miles to go," Broadhead said. "I was starting to fall back. He felt me drop back and he picked it up and got away in a hurry.

"I just let him go. I didn't feel like I had it in me. If I had tried to keep up I probably would have died out there."

The race was Rowan's second of the season and came after a few weeks marred by bad weather which impaired training to some extent.

The 5-K, which had a field of 138 entrants, was a much tighter race.

Justice battled David Ess of Rocky Mount for the lead early in the race before breaking away at the two-mile mark to record a 30-yard victory with a time of 15:54. Ess came in at 16:01 while Pete Gibson of Murfreesboro took third with a time of 16:22.

Ess, a sophomore on the Appalachian State track team, broke out strong and took the early lead.

"I usually go out and kind of let two or three guys get ahead and then I fall into pace," Justice said. "We stayed together until the one-mile marker. When I heard my split (5:07), I thought we were running relaxed so that's when I decided I was going to try and shake him. The guy hung tough until the two-mile mark."

Ess was running in his first 5-K in two years and had just finished up his indoor track season at ASU where he ran the 800 and 1,500 meter events for the Mountaineers.

"He put on a surge at the one mile mark and I kept up with him," Ess said. "Then I kind of just fell back."

Last year, Rob Powell won the five K, but he didn't enter this year.

"I was expecting Barry Scott (who competes with Justice, Rowan, Broadhead and a number of other entrants on Team Tiger) to run," Justice said. "Being involved with the race, I knew who was running. I figured me and Barry would have a good race. When Barry decided not to run, I decided I better.win it.

"I did all the wrong things this week. I told people I was going to win. When I couldn't shake that guy at the two-mile break, I thought I was in trouble."

Dee Anna Davis was the top woman finisher in the 5-K with a time of 19:37, followed by Terri Lynch (20:33) and Pamela W. Meck (20:59).

Ralph Birchard, at 74 the oldest entrant in the 5-K, turned in a time of 31:06.

"I should do it in 27:00," said Birchard, who turns 75 next week. "I feel I did pretty well in relation to how much I've trained lately because of the weather."

In the 10-K, Mary Ann O'Briant of Durham was the top woman finisher with a time of 43:09, beating out Carol Griffin (44:44) and Rosemary O'Briant (49:48).

"It's the best I've ever run," O'Briant said. "I didn't feel like I was in that good of shape. I think I kept about the same pace all the way though. It's a flat course and I'm used to running on hills. I thought I was just going to do this just for fun."

The children's fun run had 63 participants, some running, some walking, some doing a combination of the two.

Chocowinity Girls Capture Sectional

WILLIAMSTON — Chocowinity's girls' basketball team, aiming for a trip to the 1-A Regional Tournament in Fayetteville later this week, had to struggle Saturday afternoon to earn that berth with a 70-60 win over Dixon.

Dixon led the Lady Indians by six points late in the third period of the game, but two three-pointers by Kim Coffey sparked the comeback.

Chocowinity rolled out to an 18-13 lead in the first period of the game, but Dixon took command after that, 17-10, building a 30-28 halftime lead. Dixon outscored the Tribe in the third period to take the six-point lead, but Coffey's first three pointer cut it to 51-48 as the final frame began.

Coffey opened the fourth quarter with another three pointer to tie it up and Chocowinity was in charge after that.

"We had a seven point run after that and spread it out," Coach Larry Knox said. "We really did a good job coming back on 'em."

Chocowinity outscored Dixon, 22-9, in the final period to record the win.

Chrylene Myers led Chocowinity with 29 points while Druscilla Crawford had 14 and Wendy Dixon had 12. Esther Rochelle led Dixon with 28 while Candida Gurganus added 13 and Edie Piner had 10.

Chocowinity will play at South View High School on Thursday at a time to be announced. The Tribe's opponent will also be announced later in the week.

Wade Remains In Atlanta Hospital

ATLANTA (AP) — A day after his greatest victory, Maryland basketball coach Bob Wade was confined to a hospital Saturday as his team was crushed by North Carolina in the second round of the ACC tournament.

Wade was hospitalized with chest pains following his Terrapins' shocking 71-49 victory over top-seeded North Carolina State in Friday's first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament. Maryland, with a 1-13 ACC record this season, had been seeded last in the eight-team showdown, and became the only bottom-seeded team ever to knock off No. 1 in an ACC tourney.

Wade had a cardiac catheterization Saturday morning at Georgia Baptist Hospital, and had to remain there for observation and recovery, according to a statement from the ACC tournament office at The Omni.

Tests showed no sign of heart disease, and Wade was in good spirits, the ACC said.

Softball Meetings Are Rescheduled

Organizational meetings for three softball leagues sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department have been rescheduled for this week.

The Women's League meeting will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m., as will the meeting for the Coed League. The City League meeting will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. All meetings will be held at Elm Street gym.

Anyone interested in playing in or entering a team in these leagues is asked to be present at the meetings.

For more information, call 830-4543 or 830-4550, or come by Elm Street gym.

Basketball Tourney Set In Williamston

Elliott Leads #1 Arizona Past Oregon State In Pac-10

Oklahoma, Georgetown Post Wins

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Sean Elliott scored 21 of his 29 points in the first half Saturday as top-ranked Arizona overpowered Oregon State 98-87 in the semifinals of the Pacific-10 Conference tournament.

Anthony Cook had 15 of his 24 points in the opening 20 minutes for the Wildcats, who stretched their winning streak to eight games and earned their 18th victory in their last 19 games.

The Wildcats, 26-3, made 20 of 28 field goal attempts in the first half and built a 52-38 lead.

Cook scored seven points in the first 1:35 of the second half as the Wildcats stretched their lead to 59-40. Oregon State couldn't cut the lead under 12 points until the final minute of the game.

Gary Payton scored 25 points for Oregon State, 22-7, while Eric Knox added 23.

Elliott, limited to five points in the first 33 minutes of Arizona's quarterfinal win over Washington State, surpassed that total in the first 7:28 against Oregon State.

Elliott had a total of 17 points against Washington State. Two free throws with 3:01 left before halftime gave him 18 Saturday.

A short jumper by Cook with 11:58 left in the first half broke a 19-19 tie and put Arizona ahead for good. Cook made 11 of his 12 field goal attempts while Elliott was 8-of-14 including two 3-pointers.

The Beavers stayed in the game early with excellent outside shooting. Payton made three 3-point shots and Knox two in the first 10:33 of play.

Payton's third 3-pointer cut Arizona's lead to 27-26, but a dunk by Harvey Mason and a 3-pointer by Elliott gave the Wildcats a 32-26 lead.

The Beavers trailed 35-31 after Bob Cavell made a free throw with 5:44 left before halftime. But the Wildcats scored 17 of the final 24 points of the half to take a 14-point lead.

Knox went to the Oregon State bench with 4:17 left before halftime after picking up his third foul and he stayed there until the beginning of the second half. He finally fouled out with 2:58 remaining in the game.

Oklahoma.....76
Iowa State.....74

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tyrone Jones' 3-point shot with one second left — Oklahoma's only 3-pointer of the day — gave the second-ranked Sooners a 76-74 victory over Iowa State in the semifinals of the Big Eight Conference tournament Saturday.

Victor Alexander, who scored 26 points for Iowa State, had given the Cyclones a 74-73 lead with 35 seconds left on a shot from inside. The Sooners then missed three shots and Alexander was fouled on the rebound with eight seconds remaining.

Jones, who scored 11 points, made only one of four shots from 3-point range. As a team, the Sooners were 1-of-11.

Oklahoma, 28-4, will play Missouri or Kansas State in the tournament final. Iowa State dropped to 17-11.

The Sooners, who needed two overtimes to beat Colorado in a first-round game Friday, trailed by nine at halftime and didn't take its first lead until Stacey King hit a shot to make it 53-52 with 14:35 left. King fouled out with 3:35 remaining and wound up with 14 points.

Iowa State led 69-65 with 6:47 left, but Oklahoma tied it on a Skeeter Henry jumper about two minutes later.

Sam Mack, who scored 15 points, gave the Cyclones a 72-71 lead with a free throw at the 3:35 mark, but Mike Bell — King's replacement — made it 73-72 with a shot from inside at the 45-second mark. That set up the closing moments.

Forward William Davis scored 20 points and had nine rebounds for the Sooners. Blaylock, who sat out Friday's game for disciplinary reasons, had 14 points, six assists and four steals.

In the first half, Alexander and Terry Woods led the Cyclones to a 28-18 lead before William Davis scored six points in an 8-0 spurt that brought the Sooners within 28-26.

After the Cyclones opened an eight-point lead, Oklahoma again got close with a 6-0 run. But the Sooners, who shot 37 percent in the half, scored only four points in the final 3:22 and trailed 46-37 at halftime.

Davis had 16 of his points in the opening half and helped make up for the lack of production from King and Blaylock, who scored four and six points, respectively.

Georgetown.....85
Pittsburgh.....62

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Smith scored 26 points and No. 3 Georgetown blitzed Pittsburgh with a 20-0 first-half run that carried the Hoyas to an 85-62 rout in the Big East tournament semifinals.

Georgetown, 25-4, the regular-season conference champion, advanced to Sunday's finals against fifth-ranked and second-seeded Syracuse, which beat No. 11 Seton Hall 81-78 in the other semifinal.

Pittsburgh, 17-12 but with four victories over Top 10 teams this season, is hoping for an at-large bid to the NCAA Tournament.

The Panthers, who have never reached the finals of the Big East tournament, were led by Bobby Martin with 14 points and Brian Shorter with 13. Mark Tillmon added 13 for the Hoyas.

There were eight lead changes and five ties in the first nine minutes before Georgetown took control with the 20-point spree, which included two 3-point goals and two three-point plays in quick succession.

Then the roof fell in on Pittsburgh, which turned the ball over 14 times in the first half.

Bobby Winston tied it with a jumper, Jaren Jackson hit a 3-pointer, Smith converted a three-point play, Dwayne Bryant made another 3-pointer and Winston gave Georgetown a 30-18 lead with another three-point play.

Pitt coach Paul Evans then was whistled for a technical and Smith made both free throws. Two free throws by Alonzo Mourning and a jumper by Bryant completed the spurt and gave the Hoyas a 36-18 margin with 7:48 left in the half.

Trailing 44-29 at halftime, Pittsburgh closed the gap to 45-34 early in the second half. Smith sparked a 14-5 run with two 3-pointers, giving Georgetown a 59-39 bulge and the Hoyas led by at least 18 the rest of the way.

It was the second easy victory in the tournament for Georgetown, which beat Boston College 82-52 on Friday night.

Florida State.....80
South Carolina.....63

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Derrick Mitchell scored 20 points and Tony Dawson added 17 to spark No. 14 Florida State to an 80-63 victory over South Carolina on Saturday in the semifinals of the Metro Conference tournament.

Florida State, 22-6, which won the regular-season league title, now plays No. 16 Louisville for the tournament crown Sunday. Louisville beat Memphis State 71-70 earlier Saturday.

South Carolina, 19-10, was the victim of two long scoreless streaks in each half and shot just 41.4 percent, hitting 29 of 70 field goals. Florida State made 29 of 50 shots, or 58 percent.

The Gamecocks closed to 30-26 with 8:05 left in the first half but then failed to score for the next 5:13.

Florida State went on a 10-0 run to go up by 14 with 3:11 left. Mitchell, who made eight of 10 field goals, hit two straight buckets during that stretch.

George McCloud and Tharon Mayes added 16 points each for the Seminoles, who beat the Gamecocks for the third time this year.

South Carolina was led for the second straight game by freshman Joe Rhett, who scored 14 points. Rhett also led the Gamecocks in rebounding with nine.

Barry Manning and Brent Price added 12 points for South Carolina, while Hudson had 10.

New Mexico St.....62

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — David Butler scored 17 points as 18th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat New Mexico State 68-62 Saturday to win the Big West Conference tournament and an automatic NCAA berth.

Stacey Augmon had 11 points and 12 rebounds for UNLV, which advanced to the NCAA tournament for the seventh straight year. The Runnin' Rebels, 26-7, have won the Big West tournament five times in their seven seasons in the league and have been top-seeded every year.

New Mexico State, 21-10, is hoping for its first postseason bid in a decade.

Love Looks To Hold To Lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. — Highs and lows haven't done it for Davis Love III, so he'll be looking for the middle ground in Sunday's final round of the $800,000 Nestle Invitational golf tournament.

"A few times I've had the lead and didn't play well. Other times, I've been out of range and played great," Love said Saturday after converting an eagle-birdie start into a two-shot lead through three rounds.

"Now, I need to find the middle ground. I look forward to the challenge, to see if I can play well with the lead," said Love, who led throughout on a warm, windy day after hitting a 3-wood second shot to 10 feet for an eagle on the first hole.

His 3-2 start paved the way to a round of 66 and a 205 total, eight under par on Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course.

Now there is one more step to take.

"I'm due to have a good Sunday round, that's all there is to it," said Love, whose only previous victory in a four-season PGA Tour career was a come-from-behind effort in the 1987 Heritage Classic.

"You keep getting yourself in position and sooner or later it's going to happen," he said. "If it's not tomorrow, well, that's just the way it is."

His closest pursuer is veteran Tom Kite, who once won this tournament when it was known as the Bay Hill Classic.

"That's a break for me," Love said. "Tom is a good friend. We'll be playing together, and I always seem to play well when I'm with Tom."

Kite took second alone in the chase for a $144,000 first prize when he compiled a bogey-free 67 and completed 54 holes at 207.

"One of the best rounds of golf I've played in a long, long time," said Kite, who missed only one green and never was in danger of making bogey.

"The weather conditions were dramatically better," he said, "and that made it a lot easier to play.

"It's still a tough golf course, but compared with the cold and the wind the first two days, this was pretty sedate," said Kite, who has finished in the top 10 in three of four previous starts this year.

Larry Rinker, whose only victory in a nine-year career came with sister Laurie in an unofficial mixed team championship, and Loren Roberts were another stroke back at 208.

Rinker had a 68 and Roberts, who led or shared the lead through the first two rounds, shot 69.

Payne Stewart, Don Pooley and Larry Mize were next at 210, three under par and five behind the leader. Pooley shot 68, Mize 69.

Stewart, a runner-up last week in the Honda Classic, moved up with the best round of the tournament, a 65. He holed out twice from off the green, a 20-foot chip-in for birdie on the ninth and an 82-yard pitch that found the cup for eagle on the par-5 12th.

"I've played well here on the weekend before," Stewart said. "I thought that if I kind of got within semi-touch of the leaders today, well, anything can happen tomorrow."

Mark Calcavecchia, who has collected two 1988 Tour titles and leads golf's money-winners, backed away after sharing the second-round lead with Love and Roberts. He fell victim to two double bogeys and struggled home with a 75 that left him at 214, nine shots back.

U.S. Open champ Curtis Strange had the same total after a 69. Australian Greg Norman, with a 73, was at 217 and Tom Watson, also with a 73, was a shot higher at 218.

He also birdied the seventh and 10th, but followed each with a bogey when he missed the green to the left.

He ran off a string of three birdies in a four-hole stretch beginning on the 13th, but again missed a shot to the left and bogeyed the 17th.

"I'm irritated with myself," he said. "All three times, I just wasn't ready to hit the shot. I don't mind hitting bad shots, but I hate to make mental errors," he said.

Sunday Notebook:

Another Quarterback Enters The Picture For ECU

Chad Grier (6-4, 207) will be eligible after transferring from Richmond where he was a starter for the Spiders.

Grier, a native of Greensboro, will be a junior in eligibility and will battle previous starters and rising seniors Charlie Libretto, Travis Hunter and rising sophomore Jeff Blake.

With new coach Bill Lewis entering his first spring practice and installing a new pro-set I formation offense, the starting quarterback job would appear to be wide open among the four competitors.

Harrell Made The Most Of His Senior Season

Chocowinity came out of nowhere to win the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference basketball tournament last weekend which qualified the Indians for the 1-A Sectional playoffs.

A big reason for Chocowinity's late-season success has been the play of senior center Otis Harrell, who spent the last three year's as the team's manager. In his first year of high school competition, he averaged 8.9 points per game during the regular season.

But in the TBC Tournament, Harrell, a 6-4, 250-pounder nicknamed the Whopper, came alive. He averaged 16 points a game during the three-day event and helped his team upset top-seeded Belhaven and second-seeded Northampton East en route to the title. For his efforts, Harrell was named the tournament's MVP.

Harrell followed that up with 19 points Tuesday to lead the Tribe past Lejeune in the first round of the state playoffs, but the season ended for the Tribe Friday night when they lost to Northampton West in the second round of the sectional playoffs.

What's Next For Blue?

When East Carolina ended its season last weekend by losing to George Mason in the semifinals of the Colonial Athletic Association Tournament, senior Blue Edwards closed out his career with the Pirates.

He finished the season with an average of 26.7 points per game (sixth in the nation) and was among the conference leaders in both field goal percentage, rebounds and steals. He caught the eye of more than a few pro scouts during the year, but the big question is will he get drafted by the NBA.

In past year's, Blue would have been a lock to get drafted. But the draft has been pared down to only two rounds this year and that has severely cut the number of players who actually get selected.

Forecasting who gets picked and who doesn't is at the best an inexact science so there is no telling. Many thought former D.H. Conley and Maryland standout Keith Gatlin was a lock to get picked last year, but he went unchosen in the three-round draft.

In Edwards' favor, though, is the inception of two more expansion teams to the NBA in Orlando and Minneapolis. That creates a minimum of 24 additional roster spots.

Opinions vary, but a big determinant will be how Blue performs later this spring at the Portsmouth Invitational Tournament, a showcase weekend for the country's top seniors. How he matches up against the country's elite could go a long way toward deciding his fate.

ECU officials are also trying to get him an invitation to the NABC (National Association of Basketball Coaches) All-Star game to be played the Saturday before the final four in Seattle.

The NBA isn't the only option though. There is always the Continental Basketball Association, which frequently contributes players to the NBA during the season, and there is also Europe, where basketball continues to gain more and more fan support each year.

Former North Carolina and NBA standout Bob McAdoo is almost a basketball demi-god for Tracer Milan, an Italian team. The money is good and the experience of traveling abroad is invaluable.

Prep Baseball Season Set To Open

Sure the basketball season is just getting rolling along into playoff action, but, weather permitting, it won't be too long until the opening of the 1989 prep baseball season.

It's doubtful there will be the same amount of talent around the Pitt County area that there was last year, but enough returns to make things interesting.

Rose went undefeated last year during the regular season and advanced to the state finals before falling to Charlotte Harding.

The Rampants lost a lot off that team but return enough key players to be a powerful team once again.

Rose must find replacements for catcher Axel Smith and pitcher Tom Moye, specifically, but the Rampants do have pitcher Jamie Brewington back for his final year along with outfielders David Leisten and Tim Moore, both of whom hit over .400 last year.

Traditionally strong Greene Central lost heavily to graduation but in Cornelius Hill, the Rams have one of the top infielders in the area and coach Jim Fulghum will find a way to keep on dominating the Eastern Plains 2-A Conference.

For the first time in three years, Conley coach Alan Wilson doesn't have the luxury of sending pitcher Bronswell Patrick out on to the mound, who is in Arizona now, toiling for the Oakland Athletics organization during spring practice.

Wilson does have junior Hal Conger and senior Brian Bullock back to put on the mound, though, and that alone bodes well for the Vikings.

Nichols Holds To Senior Lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHOENIX — Bobby Nichols' 5-under-par 67 Saturday wasn't much when compared to his 62 on Friday. Still, his two-round total of 129 gave him the lead in the $300,000 Arizona Classic.

Bruce Crampton, who started the day five stokes back, shot a 8-under-par 64 to move within two strokes of Nichols at 131.

Bob Boldt shot a 10-under-par 62 to tie Nichols' course and tournament record of 10-under par and was three strokes back at 132, tied with Gene Littler, who shot a 65.

"I didn't hit the ball quite as close to the hole today," said Nichols, who is looking for his first Senior Tour victory since 1986, when he won his only tournament. "The main thing is to keep it on the fairways."

Nichols said he's looking forward to the final round.

"I don't think there's any game plan," he said. "If I hit the ball well I'll win. If I don't, I won't. When you think you've got it made, you've had it."

Crampton had eight birdies, an eagle and bogeys on the 12th and 13th holes. He shot into the bunker on both holes.

"It's going to take a pretty good score to win," he said. "I'm taking one shot at a time. That's what I'm going to do. You need to keep your mind on your own business. I can't control what Bob Boldt is doing. Too many guys make that mistake, worrying about what the other guy is doing."

Boldt, who joined the Senior Tour in 1987 and has career earnings of $72,259, shot a 29 on the front nine and a 33 on the back. He started the day at 2-under par and shot a round that included nine birdies and an eagle on the fifth hole.

"It's been a long time since I shot a 62," said Boldt whose previous best was a 64. "I've never been 10-under after 13 holes. After I birdied 13 my partner Paul Moran told me I had a chance to shoot 59."

Boldt had a chance to shoot a 27 on the front nine but missed two three-foot putts. He also bogeyed the par-4 14th hole.

"I was trying to play one shot at a time," he said. "You can't think about the score. If you dwell on the negative you won't play very well."

Miller Barber and Geiberger were four strokes back at 133. Bruce Devlin, Dick Hendrickson, Walter Zembriski and Lou Graham were tied at 135.

McNeill In Two Wins

WILMINGTON — Eugene McNeill won two events and Udon Cheek captured another as the East Carolina University track team opened the outdoor season at the UNC-Wilmington Invitational Saturday.

McNeill took first place in both the 100- and 200-meter dashes, with times of 10.43 and 21.42, respectively.

Kelvin Wrighton took a fourth in the 100 in 10.64 while Ike Robinson was fifth in 10.78. Teddy Vernon took fifth in the 200 in 22.20.

Cheek captured the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in a time of 53.64 seconds while Brian Williams finished fourth in 54.34. Williams then finished second in the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.83.

East Carolina's 4x100-meter relay team finished second with a time of 41.05.

"We ran pretty good for the first outdoor meet of the year," Coach Bill Carson said. "In the intermediate hurdles, both Cheek and Williams had excellent times. I didn't expect them to break 55 this early."

Bucs Lead Fripp Golf

FRIPP ISLAND, S.C. — East Carolina holds a 12-shot lead over the field in the Fripp Island Intercollegiate Golf Tournament after two rounds of play.

The final round of the 54-hole tournament will be played Sunday.

East Carolina has a 765 total, 12 ahead of second place Ball State, in with a 777. Other teams scores include Austin Peay 798, UNC-Wilmington 817, Bryant 817, Miami of Ohio 828, Notre Dame 831, Lewis 832, South Carolina State 837, Indiana (Pa.) 841, Radford 842, Spartanburg Methodist 844, The Citadel 845, Georgia College 859, Longwood 868, Atlantic Christian 893 and New Hampshire 920.

Craig holds a three shot lead over second place David Beard of Austin Peay, in at 72-76—148. ECU's John Maginnes is tied for third with a 72-79—151.

Illinois Takes Second In Big Ten Race

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Kenny Battle scored 22 points and Kendall Gill added 19 Saturday as fourth-ranked Illinois beat No. 8 Michigan 89-73 to clinch second place in the Big Ten.

Rumeal Robinson scored 22 points for Michigan, 24-7 and 12-6, and Loy Vaught added 15 for the Wolverines. Glen Rice, the Big Ten's leading scorer, was held to 14 points. Illinois, 27-4 and 13-5, set a school record for victories in a season.

Illinois opened the second half with a 13-5 run with Gill scoring seven points. The Illini led 56-42 with 16:22 remaining and led 65-44 with 12:24 to go after five straight points by Battle.

Michigan scored eight consecutive points to pull to 65-52 before Illinois went on an 11-2 run, taking a 76-55 lead with 7:38 left.

Illinois trailed early but used an 11-1 run to go ahead 32-22 with 6:40 left in the half.

Illinois extended its lead to 14 before an 8-0 Wolverines run, capped by Robinson's 3-pointer and Loy Vaught's three-point play, pulled the Wolverines to 39-33.

Syracuse.....81
Seton Hall.....78

NEW YORK (AP) — Sherman Douglas scored 27 points as fifth-ranked Syracuse made 12 of its last 14 free throws Saturday to advance to the championship game of the Big East tournament with an 81-78 victory over No. 11 Seton Hall.

The Orangemen, a weak free-throw shooting team for years and a 61 percent team this season, will meet on Sunday the winner of Saturday's other semifinal between No. 3 Georgetown and Pittsburgh.

The winner will receive an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament but all four semifinalists are expected to receive berths in the 64-team field.

The victory was the 17th straight by the 27-6 Orangemen over Seton Hall, 26-6. Syracuse is 19-1 against Seton Hall since the Big East started 10 years ago.

Syracuse's last field goal of the game came on a shot in the lane by Derrick Coleman with 5:47 to play. The first of the free throws, two by Douglas, gave the Orangemen a 71-70 lead.

Thompson added 17 for Syracuse, while Coleman, who played the final six minutes with four fouls, had 14.

Andrew Gaze had 12 for Seton Hall and Ramon Ramos and Gerald Greene had 11 each.

The semifinal matchup was the second in two years between Seton Hall and Syracuse and the Orangemen won last year's 68-63.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Roy Marble, Ed Horton and B.J. Armstrong, playing their last home game, led No. 15 Iowa to an 87-70 victory Saturday over a sixth-ranked Indiana team that kept four starters on the bench after clinching the Big Ten title.

Marble had 19 points and Armstrong and Horton 18 apiece as Iowa snapped a four-game losing streak to finish the regular season 22-9 overall, 10-8 in the league. Indiana, finished at 25-7, 15-3.

Edwards, a sophomore guard averaging 20.4 points, hurt his back in a 75-64 victory Thursday night over Wisconsin while Jadlow, averaging nearly 11 points, injured his right ankle and suffered a deep bruise on his left thigh against the Badgers.

Except for Lyndon Jones, who finished with nine points, the Hoosiers played the entire game with reserves.

But they trailed at halftime by just 32-26.

Iowa spurted to a 39-30 lead on a bucket by Ray Thompson with 17:51 to play and padded that to 44-34 about two minutes later. Two free throws by Armstrong capped a 22-5 Iowa run to give the Hawkeyes a 66-43 lead at the 9:34 mark.

Indiana climbed back to within 14, 71-57, on Kreigh Smith's basket, but Iowa scored 11 of the next 13 points to grab an 82-59 advantage and put the game away.

Stanford.....95
UCLA.....86

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Todd Lichti scored 23 points and freshman reserve Adam Keefe had 22 on Saturday as 12th-ranked Stanford took command early and went on to beat UCLA 95-86 in a Pacific-10 Conference tournament semifinal game.

The Cardinal will meet top-ranked Arizona, 26-3, in Sunday's championship game. The Wildcats advanced by beating Oregon State 98-87 earlier Saturday.

Stanford extended its lead to 25 points on a pair of free throws by Lichti with 17:02 remaining. The Bruins rallied in the late going, but couldn't get closer than nine points.

The win was the 11th straight and 21st in the last 23 games for Stanford, which is 26-5 overall. UCLA fell to 20-9.

Reserve Bryan McSweeney had 14 points and Howard Wright and Eric Reveno 10 apiece for Stanford.

Pooh Richardson led UCLA with 24 points, 14 in the first half. He fouled out with 2:33 left. Trevor Wilson had 22 points for the Bruins, 16 in the second half.

LSU To Study Academic Impact

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — A committee has been appointed at Louisiana State University to look into what Athletic Director Joe Dean called the devastating effect new academic policies under consideration would have on student athletes.

"There are a lot of factors in this. We have people saying that athletes must not only comply with the NCAA rules for admission but with the university's additional requirements as well. If we pass this we would be the only school in the country requiring our students to have physics coming out of high school. Even MIT doesn't do that," Dean said.

Dean said if athletes were required to take physics and a foreign language it would hurt recruiting.

"We already had a football recruit who told our football coach that if he had to take physics, he wouldn't come here," Dean said.

Under requirements that went into effect last fall, entering freshmen must have taken 17½ specific academic units in high school, including physics and a foreign language.

The NCAA rules call for only an 11-credit academic core of courses with a C average and a score of at least 15 on the American College Tests, used to determine college entrance.

Athletes are now exempted from making up the units not taken in high school, Dean said.

"Don't get me wrong, I'm all for academics, it's the reason we're here, but they're talking about making kids make up these courses on a college level if they put this rule into effect. Not a high school level, a college level," he said.

Interim Chancellor Grady Bogue said the faculty committee studying the admission policy is looking at the possibility of making it more flexible so it would recognize special talents as well as academic requirements.

"What the policy didn't address was what to do about students that don't meet requirements but have talents that make them ready for college so we have asked the faculty to reexamine it," Bogue said.

Football coach Mike Archer refused to discuss the possible rule changes, but said earlier if the policies go into effect, LSU's academic program would become a lot tougher than those at other schools and could cause players to choose to go elsewhere.

The effect of many of the proposed changes being considered would be minimal however, according to the dean of the Division of Academic Services.

"A decision to require physics would not amount to much because what we do is specify that the course they have to take is Physical Science 1001 which is a basic science course. Adding a foreign language requirement would just mean taking two semesters and I think it would be an exaggeration to say that puts us in a bad position," said Dr. Carruth McGehee.

Many major colleges require students to take courses including foreign languages and computer courses for graduation, McGehee said.

"In my estimation the LSU requirements and the NCAA requirements are almost a wash. The NCAA requires fewer courses but has no grade requirements. I think what you have to remember when you start changing requirements for athletes though, is that they have more constraints on them than the normal student has. They aren't as flexible in terms of the number of courses they can take, or in the amount of time they have during their seasons," said Larry Fitzmorris, director of the Academic Center for Athletics at LSU.

Of more concern, Dean and others said, could be a move afoot to change the basis for putting students on academic probation.

The proposed rule would place a student on academic probation — and make him or her ineligible for athletics — at an earlier point than is now the case, and would require the student to bring up his or her grades to a 2.0 average on a 4.0 grading scale by the next semester.

"If these changes are implemented you won't notice it for the first two or three years because of the underclassmen now on campus," said Dean. "But it will eventually take its toll on our athletic program. Everyone in athletics knows what the level field means, and if this is implemented we won't be playing on the same field as Alabama, or Georgia, or Auburn."

Pilgreens Lead Pant-Hers To Sectional 2-A Crown

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — Two Panthers faced each other ready to fight at Farmville Central High School Friday for the Section I 2-A Girls basketball championship.

The North Pitt Pant-Hers prevailed over the East Duplin Panthers 64-59 to win and advance to the 2-A regionals this week.

Free throws and Keisha Pilgreen's 32 points made the difference. North Pitt took 36 foul shots opposed to East Duplin's 19.

North Pitt's numerous free throw opportunities were keyed by its aggressive offense and East Duplin's man-to-man defense. The two collided often and the result was many chances from charity stripe for North Pitt.

East Duplin coach Jerry Hunter said that he never considered switching to a zone defense to cut down on the fouls.

"We live with man and we die with man," he said.

North Pitt coach Mabel Perry gave credit for the win to a full-court press her team used in the second half and teamwork. The press created turnovers and allowed North Pitt to stay in the game despite many ball-handling errors on the Pant-Hers' part.

Keisha Pilgreen scored half of North Pitt's points but Perry said the whole team contributed.

"They worked hard and they've got guts," she said. "They beat a very good team."

Hunter said he didn't try to devise a defense during the game to cool Pilgreen off. "You can't come up with quickness at halftime," he said. "We've had trouble with that all year. Anybody with a real quick guard can beat us."

East Duplin led most of the first half but could not shake North Pitt. The game was tied 28-28 with 2:00 left but East Duplin scored the last five points of the half to take a 33-28 lead into intermission.

North Pitt came out hot in the second half and scored eight straight points to gain a three-point lead. East Duplin hung on, however, and the game was tied 44-44 at the end of the third quarter.

Early in the fourth quarter Pilgreen hit a basket to break a 46-46 tie. From there North Pitt took command and built up a six-point lead, the biggest of the game.

East Duplin clawed back in the last minute to make the game interesting. Laura Maready made a field goal and was fouled with nine seconds to go. She converted the free throw to pull the game back to three points and give East Duplin a chance.

But East Duplin couldn't complete the comeback. Pilgreen hit a free throw with four seconds left and her cousin Gwen Pilgreen added another with one second left to account for the final margin.

Gwen Pilgreen scored 14 points and Portia Clark had nine for North Pitt. Hannah Grady led East Duplin with 17 points while Maready scored 13 points and Celeste Brown added 12 points.

North Pitt advances to the regional playoffs Wednesday at South View High School, in Fayetteville, to play an opponent yet to be determined.

Chargers...

coach Bob Murphrey said. "It was the most solid we've played. We got good games out of four people instead of just three."

Hertford County looked up to the challenge early on and led 15-10 after a 3-pointer by Darren Askew with 2:43 remaining, but Ayden-Grifton came right back with a 3-pointer by Tyndall to make it 15-13.

Joel White missed at the other end for the Bears and Peterson scored off a layup to tie the game at 15-15.

A turnover by Hertford County resulted in another basket by the Chargers, with Dixon doing the honors on a follow shot to make it 17-15.

Ayden-Grifton never trailed again.

Woodard and Peterson added a basket each to close the quarter and give Ayden-Grifton a 21-19 lead.

The Chargers continued to pour it on in the second quarter and broke away for good midway through the period with a 9-4 run that pushed a one-point advantage to a eight-point lead at 34-26. Ayden-Grifton eventually went into halftime with a 45-35 edge. Woodard hit two 3-pointers in the second period to aid the Chargers.

After a strong first quarter, the Bears were never able to muster a serious challenge.

"We didn't get into our halfcourt offense," Hertford County coach Charles Simmons said. "When we were running, there was too much individualism. Ayden-Grifton was very patient on offense and they did an excellent job on the boards.

"When we shot the ball, we got one shot. When they shot it, they often got second shots."

Peterson, who had 41 points Friday in a 76-66 win over Northampton East, received a great deal of attention from the Hertford County defenders but still ended up with 22 points.

Dixon, though, was a particular thorn in the side of the Bears. His 26 points were a game high and Hertford County center Tim Smith fouled out trying to stop him in the low post.

"He really hurt us," Simmons said. "When he got the ball down low. He did anything he wanted. Our big man fouled out in the third quarter and that didn't help."

By the end of the third quarter, Hertford County had made up little ground on the Chargers and still trailed 61-52, but that was as close as it would get.

After getting back within 67-56 on a follow shot by Askew, Dixon scored four points in a row and Tyndall hit a layup on full court pass from Peterson and then added two free throws the next time down the floor for a 74-56 Charger lead.

"We played solid defense," Murphrey said. "We stopped their penetration and we cut off the baseline. We made mistakes but we spread them out after we got into the game. This team (Hertford County) is not used to playing behind and that probably rattled them."

Joel White had 14 points to lead Hertford County, 22-3, which was the champion of the Northeastern 2-A Conference this season.

Jordan Back On The Floor

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A confident Michael Jordan returned to the court Saturday night and helped the Chicago Bulls defeat the Seattle Supersonics 105-88.

After missing last Wednesday's game in Boston, the first NBA game he has missed since March 13, 1986, Jordan said his groin injury healed faster than he had anticipated. Jordan had been told to rest at least four days and not go near a basketball court.

While getting his left thigh wrapped to protect the groin area, Jordan said:

"There was no way I was going to miss two straight games because in my mind I only needed about three days rest."

Jordan scored eight of his 18 points in the final period and handed out 15 assists in the Bulls' victory.

But Pat Garrett hit a layup with 2:34 showing and added another jumper with 2:07 to do. Anthony Darden made a jumper with 1:27 left to put the Trojans into a 67-64 lead and they never trailed again.

In the fourth quarter, Pine Forest made six of 12 free throws, including four of seven in the final 1:14 of the game.

With 20 seconds left Andre Jackson made a free throw for a 70-67 lead and after James Teel missed a three-pointer for Rose, Linc Butler hit another free throw for a 71-67 lead. Teel then canned a three-pointer with one second left to set the final margin.

Fouls hurt Rose in the final period as both Jamie Brewington and Johnny Ebron fouled out. Pine Forest hit on 18 of 25 free throws in the game.

Garrett led Pine Forest with 31 points, including 12 of 16 at the foul line. Jackson added 11 and Darden had 10.

Rose was led by Eric Edwards with 14, while Maurice Hines had 13, Teel had 12 and Brewington had 10.

Pine Forest will advance into the 4-A Regionals, to be played at the Cumberland County Arena in Fayetteville later this week.

Missouri Gains Big Eight Finals

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Anthony Peeler and Doug Smith keyed an 11-3 run beginning the second half and No. 10 Missouri used its height advantage to beat Kansas State 88-83 Saturday in the semifinals of the Big Eight tournament.

The Tigers, 26-7 and 6-4 under interim coach Rich Daly, meet No. 2 Oklahoma in Sunday's title game. With Daly subbing for head coach Norm Stewart, who underwent cancer surgery in February, Missouri finished second to the Soooners in the regular season.

Smith and Peeler each made quick baskets to open the second half and Mike Sandbothe's bank shot ended the run with Missouri holding a 50-33 lead over the Wildcats, 19-10.

LaKeith Humphrey and Steve Henson each made 3-pointers, pulling the Wildcats to 79-74 with 1:32 left. But Peeler then made two free throws for an 81-74 Missouri lead. With 51 seconds left, Kansas State's Fred McCoy fouled out and Mike Sandbothe made the front end of a one-and-one free throw for an eight-point lead.

Missouri's height allowed the Tigers to dominate most of the inside play. Kansas State's tallest starter was McCoy at 6-7, while Missouri's had Sandbothe at 6-8, Smith at 6-10, Greg Church at 6-8 and Gary Leonard at 7-1.

Missouri, winning its third straight after getting off to a faltering start under Daly, was led by Smith with 22 points and Peeler with 16.

LaKeith Humphrey scored 27 points for Kansas State Henson 16.

Missouri, which split its two regular-season games with Kansas State, took control of the boards and the game in the first half and led 39-31 at halftime.

After Billy Ray Smith's free throw cut Missouri's lead to 30-27, the Tigers outscored Kansas State 9-4 the rest of the half, with Lee Coward making a 3-pointwer and Leonard capping the surge with a follow shot.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Freshman Everick Sullivan hit a free throw with two seconds remaining to lift 16th-ranked Louisville to a 71-70 victory over Memphis State Saturday in the semifinals of the Metro Conference tounament.

The Cardinals, the defending tournament champions, will face the winner of the South Carolina-Florida State game, which was played later Saturday. The championship game will be played Sunday at the Carolina Coliseum.

The Cardinals, 21-8, rallied from a nine-point deficit with 3:32 left to beat the Tigers, 21-10, and advance to the finals for the fourth consecutive year.

LaBradford Smith capped an 8-0 run with a three-point play to cut the lead to 70-69 with 1:46 left. Sullivan, who played his high school basketball in South Carolina, then hit the second of two free throws to tie it with 1:07 to go.

After Memphis State's Elliott Perry missed a 3-pointer, Sullivan was fouled. Sullivan, a 63 percent free-throw shooter, hit the first but missed the second. But after a time out, Memphis State turned the ball over as time expired.

The loss overshadowed a season-high 26 points by Cheyenne Gibson, and an outstanding second half by Perry, who scored 15 of his 20 points in the final 20 minutes.

Smith led the Cardinals with 18 points, while Pervis Ellison had 17 and Kenny Payne 12. Keith Williams scored 10.

The Tigers led by as many as seven in the first half, but Louisville battled back to tie it at 34 at the half.

Memphis State scored eight points in a row to take a 58-50 lead with 8:48 left, but the Cardinals cut the lead to 62-61 with 5:16 to go.

An 8-0 run gave Memphis State a 70-61 lead with 3:32 left. But the Cardinals rallied to earn a shot at their seventh tournament title in the 14-year history of the league.

Hallas, apparently thinking the Hurons trailed by two instead of three points, drove in for a layup as the game ended rather than trying a 3-pointer that would have forced overtime. Hallas had hit a 3-pointer with 1:36 to play to pull Eastern Michigan within 74-73.

Keith Stalling's free throw with 16 seconds to go gave Ball State a 75-73 lead. Eastern Michigan's Isaac Henderson, fouled with five seconds left, made the first free throw but missed the second. McCurdy grabbed the rebound, was fouled, and converted both shots. Hallas followed with his layup that left Eastern Michigan a point short and, with a 16-13 record, in danger of being overlooked for postseason play.

Billy Butts scored 19 points and Curtis Kidd added 16 for Ball State, 27-2. McCurdy added 13 points and 11 rebounds.

Lorenzo Neely scored 17 and Howard Chambers and Hallas 15 apiece for the Hurons.

Ball State led 41-35 at the half and 50-43 with 14:25 to play. But the Hurons came back to cut the margin to 59-57 and eventually went ahead 70-69 on two Neely foul shots.

A free throw by McCurdy and two by Stalling put Ball State ahead for good at 72-70.

Florida.....76
Tennessee.....71

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Florida took another step toward adding the Southeastern Conference tournament title to its regular season crown Saturday, downing Tennessee 76-71 on a late-game surge led by Livingston Chatman and Cliford Lett.

Chatman, who scored 25 points, broke a tie at 61 with a free throw with 3:55 left in the game, then padded that with a field goal at 3:37. Lett and Renaldo Garcia stretched the lead to 71-61 at the foul line as Tennessee had to foul in an attempt to get the ball.

Lett finished with 17 points. Garcia had eight, all from the line in the final 2:07.

Tennessee cut the lead to 67-71 on 3-point shots by Mark Griffin and Doug Roth, but could get no closer.

There were 12 ties and 14 lead changes before Florida took the lead for good.

Roth led Tennessee scoring with 14 points, and he had 11 rebounds. Griffin had 12 points and seven rebounds.

Also in double figures for the Vols were Dyron Nix and Greg Bell with 12 each and Clarence Swearengen with 10.

Dwayne Schintzius had 10 points, 13 rebounds and four blocked shots for Florida. In addition, he blocked the lane so thoroughly that Tennessee was forced into an outside game.

Alabama.....83
Vanderbilt.....79

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alabama finally found its shooting touch away from home, where the Crimson Tide logged a 14-0 record this season.

With Alvin Lee scoring 24 points, including three consecutive 3-pointers during one stretch, the Tide shot 55 percent overall and trimmed Vanderbilt 83-79 in the semifinals of the Southeastern Conference Saturday.

"I think the defense won it, and another thing I think was that we shot the basketball with much more authority than we shot it on the road for a long time," Tide coach Wimp Sanderson said.

It was the fourth victory in a row for the Crimson Tide, 22-7, and set up a tournament title battle between second-place Alabama and conference champion Florida, which downed Tennessee 76-71 in Saturday's other semifinal game.

It will be the sixth time in the last eight years that Sanderson has guided the Tide to the tournament finals, winning it twice.

Valkyries Defeat Tarboro To Gain Sectional Finals

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

PINETOPS — For the first time since 1983, D.H. Conley's girls' basketball team was able to celebrate after a state playoff game.

The Valkyries, behind strong offensive performances from Lendora Tyson and Glenda Hardy, rolled to a 67-57 win over Tarboro in a Section I 3-A semifinal game.

The victory marked the first in state playoff action for Conley since the 1983 team finished second in the state.

Tyson led the way for the Valkyries with 26 points, while Hardy added 24. Forward Charlene Davenport also chipped in 10 points for Conley.

Hardy helped Conley take control of the game in the third quarter as she reeled off the final eight points of the period to give the Valkyries a 44-37 lead heading into the fourth quarter.

Conley had gone in tied, 30-30, at the half, behind 18 first-half points from Tyson.

"We've got to have somebody to step in for us and take the up some of the offensive slack when they tighten up on Lendora," Conley coach Keith Gould said. "When they're that tight on her, somebody's got to be free. Glenda was and she got into the flow of the offense for us."

Tarboro had gone to a matchup zone in the second half with two players guarding Tyson closely.

"We try to pride ourself on our defense," Tarboro coach April Ross said. "But that's what broke down today. We were keying so much on number 25 (Tyson) and then number 3 (Hardy) hurt us."

Hardy connected on the first field goal of the fourth quarter to push the Valkyrie lead to nine, 46-37, with 7:50 to play.

Conley later stretched the lead to 11, 50-39, at the 6:07 mark when Tyson scored inside after an assist from Virginia Hall.

From there, the Valkyries were never really threatened again as Tarboro could get no closer than seven points.

In the first half, Tarboro managed to stay close thanks to clutch outside shooting from Tiffany Turner and Gwen Knight. Turner finished as the game's leading scorer with 27 points, while Knight added 11, eight of which came in the first two quarters.

Turner canned a 3-pointer from the corner with 3:04 to play in the first period to give Tarboro an 11-9 lead.

Hardy then scored the next five points to push Conley up 16-14, but Turner scored with a baseline jumper late in the quarter to knot the score at 16-16 heading to the second period.

"We knew that they (Knight and Turner) would come out shooting the threes," Gould said. "We were hoping that one of them would be off. But they both shot the eyes out of it tonight."

Turner began the second quarter with another 3-pointer to put Tarboro up 19-16 early.

Tyson, however, took over for Conley then, scoring eight points in a 10-point Valkyrie run, which gave them a 26-19 lead with 3:15 to play in the half.

Tarboro fought back, sandwiching 3-pointers by Knight and Turner around a score from Tyson to close within three, 28-25 with 1:51 to play in the half.

After Tyson gave the Valkyries a 30-25 lead, Turner scored three points from the free throw line to lead Tarboro on a 5-0 run in the final minute, which tied the game at the half.

"Tarboro was really aggressive," Gould said. "I am tickled to death with the way the girls played and I feel fortunate to have gotten a win."

The Valkyries, 20-5 for the year, will play East Wake Monday at 6:30 p.m. for the sectional championship. Tarboro ends up the year with a 12-8 record.

Farmville Rolls...

man to man because their guards post so well," Terrell said. "We switched to a zone (a 1-2-2) and it took them out of the ball game."

The move closed off the entry passes to Clinton's inside players and also forced them into a number of turnovers which resulted in layups off the fast break at the other end.

"They started to exert themselves defensively," Clinton coach Jim Squibb said. "Their rebounding did that."

Reggie Barrett scored 10 of Farmville's 15 first-quarter points to keep the Jaguars in the game early on.

"Before the game, I talked to my two seniors (Barrett and George Burnette) and told them that they have to be the ones to take us to Fayetteville," Terrell said. "(Reggie) is a senior. He took over when it was needed."

Jarvis Lang, the Jaguars' 6-5 junior center, came alive in the second period with 10 of his 17 points.

"We didn't want this to be our last game," Barrett said. "In the first quarter, we just weren't into it. In the second quarter, we came out and played like we were supposed to."

Barrett opened the second quarter by scoring off a back door play to make it 18-17.

Jerris McPhail missed a jumper at the other end and Burnette rebounded the ball and scored off the break to make it 19-18 with 6:58 left. Clinton turned it over on the next possession and Lang scored off the fast break for a 22-18 Farmville lead.

Lang scored again with 5:22 left off a dunk. Ervin Forbes hit a free throw and Lang hit another jumper with 4:08 to go in the half for a 27-20 Farmville lead.

Barrett hit a jumper with 2:58 left to make it 29-20. Reserve Johnny Tyson then blocked a shot by Scooter Banks and Lang scored off a dunk on the fast break for a 31-20 advantage.

Bud Farmer broke the drought for Clinton with a lay in with 2:22 left in the half, but he was called for a technical on the play. Burnette cashed in with two free throws and on the ensuing possession, Chris Hunter broke free for a basket inside and a 35-22 edge.

By the half, Farmville led 41-24 and that was pretty much the ball game.

The second quarter hole was more than Clinton could come back from.

"They got behind and kind of panicked," Terrell said.

Clinton, which closes the year at 17-8, was led by Banks with 18 points.

Vikes Gain Finals...

They played so well on defense.

"It would have taken a very, very good effort on our part to win," Griggs said. "But the people that normally hit for us couldn't get into position on the posts. But that's a credit to the good defense they were playing."

The Cougars, who finish their year at 14-12, rallied at the end of the quarter as Demetrius Wilson, who finished with 14 points, scored the final five points of the period to close the gap to 21-9.

Wilson then scored the first basket of the second period with 7:42 left in the half to trim the lead to 21-11.

"I thought we played real ragged at times in the first half," Conley coach Cobby Deans said. "But we seemed to settle down and play better in the second half."

Bershaun Thompson, who finished with 13 points, then broke the Viking scoring drought with 7:14 left in the half when he drilled a 3-pointer for a 24-11 lead.

By the 5:20 mark, Conley led 27-12 after a free throw from Paul Merritt and a layup by Martin Patrick.

The Vikings stretched the lead to 16, 32-16, by the 3:12 mark of the quarter thanks to five straight points by Junior Farrow, who led Conley with 14 points.

Jason Wing, however, pushed the lead to 38-22 at the half when he canned a 3-pointer with one tick left on the clock after the Vikings had held for the final shot.

The Vikings ended all doubts of the outcome in the third period when they raced to a 55-31 lead by the end of the period.

Of the 17 points Conley scored in the period, 10 came on layups, while two more came at the free throw line and wound up 3-point plays.

"In the second half, Jason (Wing), Junior (Farrow), Terry (Williams), Stacey (Green) and J.J. (Stephenson) typified what we were trying to do," Deans said. "Once they started doing that we seemed to play real well."

Stephenson scored six of his seven points in the final period, with four of the points coming on a pair of dunks.

Deans was able to clear his bench as all the regulars were pulled from the game with three minutes to play in the fourth quarter.

The Vikings now must prepare for a East Carteret team which they handled with ease twice during the regular season. But Deans, doesn't see that as any aid to his team.

"East Carteret is a much better team than when we played them last time," Deans said. "I'm expecting a very tough game from them."

Beware The 'At-Large Eater'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Nine men meeting behind locked doors and protected by armed guards this weekend have a word for teams like Rutgers.

They call them at-large eaters. And if very many of them appear this year, they will have a big impact on who makes the 64-team NCAA Tournament and where they're sent when the field is unveiled Sunday afternoon.

Coming out of nowhere, at-large eaters grab one of the NCAA's 30 automatic bids by pulling off an upset in a conference postseason tournament, as Rutgers did Friday in the Atlantic 10. With an 18-12 record, Rutgers would merit small consideration for one of the 34 at-large berths that fill out the field.

But by locking up their league's automatic, they may force the selection committee to spend an at-large on somebody who would ordinarily figure to get in with an automatic — such as the Atlantic 10's Temple Owls.

"The at-large eaters provide us with an entrant that otherwise wouldn't be there," said Jim Delany, Ohio Valley Commissioner and chairman-designate of the committee. "It means there is one fewer at-large position. And it can put more pressure on the committee."

The committee does not necessarily scorn at-large eaters. The NCAA's steadfast policy has been to encourage growing interest in college basketball by guaranteeing lesser conferences and teams a place in the tournament. And going from a 7-22 record last year to this year's NCAA field is certain to excite interest on the Rutgers campus in New Jersey.

"Upsets are part of the beauty of basketball," said Delany. "We've had as many as five or six conference tournament upsets in a year, and we've had years when there was none."

With no way of knowing how many at-large eaters would rise up to complicate things, the commmittee sequestered itself Friday morning, beginning marathon deliberations.

Befitting its hard-won stature among the country's premier sporting events, the NCAA Tournament is taking on even more the trappings of importance. For the first time, the committee blocked off the entire top floor of Kansas City's Hyatt Regency Hotel for the weekend and posted armed guards at the elevator door.

"I don't know if we'll need the security, but we'll need the time," said Tom Jernstedt, an associate NCAA executive director and chairman of the tournament. "I think this year it could be more difficult than ever to seed teams at the higher levels and to assign them to the various sites."

Another complicating new twist is a rule that outlaws the home court advantage. This could work to the disadvantage of top-ranked Arizona since the Wildcats can't play on their home court in Tucson in the first round of the West Regional.

But the committee has not outlawed the "home crowd" advantage, which possibly could work to the great benefit of teams like Indiana and Georgia Tech, to name only two.

"The No. 1 objective is to balance the bracket," Jernstedt said. "So we seed each of the four regionals one through 16, evaluate teams, and then determine where they should be sent. At the higher level of competition, there appears to be more parity than ever before, which will make that judgement even tougher, and it's never been easy." Making teams ineligible to play tournament games on their home floor was supposed to be done in 1991, but the commmittee moved it to this year while conceeding that several apparent discrepancies may arise.

Wherever a team plays 50 percent or more of its games is declared its home court. Thus, Arizona cannot be at Tucson for the first round.

But Indiana, a possible No. 1 seed in the Midwest, may wind up playing tournament games before the friendly folks at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis since Bobby Knight's team is officially "home" in Bloomington.

Georgia Tech may play in the Omni in Atlanta, which is just a few miles from its campus and certain to offer the Yellow Jackets all the comforts of home. Another home crowd situation could arise at Greensboro, N. Car., with whatever Atlantic Coast Conference teams are assigned there.

"This will be our next controversy," Jernstedt said. "For years, it was 'How can the NCAA permit teams to play on their home courts?' We discussed it and discussed it with all interested parties.

"Finally, the committee voted not to let teams play on their home court. But the committee is very hesistant to move into the home crowd question because what is a home crowd? Does this mean North Carolina State cannot play at Charlotte? That St. John's can't play at East Rutherford? You can go right down the line.

"If we said you can't play in front of a home crowd, then we're going to end up with some empty buildings and do a real disservice to the fans and the tournament. The committee believes it's taken a big step to preclude teams from the home court. But it's not prepared to take the next step because it's such a judgmental thing."

This year's tournament marks the final year in the NCAA's contract with CBS, and participating teams will take home record payouts. Just getting an invitation is worth a projected $250,200. Then teams will get $500,400 for reaching the second round, $750,000 for reaching the third and about $1 million for getting to the fourth.

The Final Four teams that line up in Seattle the first weekend in April will each collect an estimated $1,231,100, about $33,000 more than went to last year's Final Four.

Also-Rans Await NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Hours after the much-awaited NCAA selections are announced Sunday, 32 teams will be awarded berths in the field for the 52nd National Invitation Tournament.

The first three rounds of the tournament will be played at campus sites and the final four teams will play at Madison Square Garden on March 27 and 29 for the championship of the nation's oldest collegiate postseason tournament.

Connecticut won last year's NIT, defeating Ohio State 72-67 in the championship game. Colorado State and Boston College were the other teams to advance to New York for the semifinals.

The bids will all be announced Sunday with the first released just hours after the NCAA's field is determined at 5:30 p.m. EST.

Women's Field Expands To 48 Teams This Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The field for the women's college basketball tournament has expanded again this year, but there are still certain to be some disappointed schools when the NCAA announces the 48-team field on Sunday.

The tournament has expanded by 16 teams overall from the original structure of 32 when the first NCAA event was held in 1982.

"I'm really glad we got those eight extra teams," said UCLA senior associate athletic director Judy Holland, who chairs the tournament committee. "It gives us a lot more flexibility, especially when weaker teams in conferences get the automatic bids through upsets. But it also gives us a whole new area of teams to examine for at-large choices. I'll bet there are 50 teams that believe that each of them belong as part of that new group of eight. So everyone is going to get a hard look this weekend, so no one is omitted when we discuss our selections."

Nineteen conference champions receive automatic berths while the remaining 29 teams are selected at-large.

The tournament begins next Wednesday with four first round games in each region at the home of the higher seeded teams, wherever possible. The top four seeded teams in reach region receive byes. Second-round action continues the following weekend on the campuses of higher seeded teams.

Survivors then advance to four host schools for the region semifinals and finals: Western Kentucky in the East, Auburn in the Mideast, Louisiana Tech in the Midwest and Texas in the West. Games will be played on Thursday, March 23 and Saturday, March 25.

The final four teams then return to Tacoma, Wash., a second straight year, Friday, March 31, and Sunday, April 2.

This year the the championship will get a little extra exposure with the men's tournament finals being held the same weekend at nearby Seattle. But at the moment women's teams are concerned with just getting invited to their own party.

"The Southeastern Conference continues to be the strongest from a standpoint of depth," Holland said. "But the Atlantic Coast is pretty good, also.

"I saw Maryland when they played out here and I was really impressed. No one talks about them much because they weren't part of our TV package so a lot of people didn't get to see them."

Unlike the men, which seed all 64 teams, the women only fit eight teams, nationally, in the bracket.

"We'll select a first row of four. No one will be a real No. 1. We'll just take a team and make them No. 1 in the East, No. 1 in the Mideast and so forth," Holland said.

"Then we'll select a next four and pair them with the first group from a standpoint of good matchups and geography.

"The rest of the bracket is then selected regionally, but we can, and probably will, move teams to other locations to maintain a competitive balance. We're almost automatically in that situation because we'll probably have more teams from the East and Mideast then we have available slots so some of those have to move. In making the pairings, we'll look at sites, interest and other factors."

While coaches clamored and got expansion, the last few spots will still be a tough call for the committee.

Ayden-Grifton's Ronnell Peterson, in a crowd, looks for help

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

LITTLEFIELD — An old coaching adage says it's not how you start, but rather how you finish.

Ayden-Grifton, behind a career-high 41 points from Ronnell Peterson, decided to put a new twist on that saying at the expense of Northampton East, handing the Rams a 76-66 defeat Friday in the second round of the Section II 2-A basketball playoffs Friday night.

The Chargers led by 19 in the first quarter, but struggled in the fourth quarter as Northampton rallied to get as close as six points on two occasions before the final buzzer sounded.

"With this team, things can go just as good as they can bad," Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey said.

The Chargers showed both sides.

After trading baskets in the early going, Ayden-Grifton went on a 19-0 run over the last five minutes of the opening quarter and looked like it was ready to blow the visiting Rams all the way back to Northampton County.

After a basket by Northampton East's Fred Vinson made it 9-6, Leon Dixon and Peterson took over.

Dixon scored inside on one possession and added a free throw on the next. Peterson hit a jumper from just beyond the free throw line after a turnover by the Rams to make it 14-6.

Ayden-Grifton's James Woodard came up with a loose ball the next time down the floor and got the ball to Dixon on the break who lobbed it up for Peterson for a layup to make it 16-6.

Another turnover led to one more basket from Peterson on a feed from John Tyndall. Dixon then rebounded a miss by David Perry and scored at the other end on a pass from Woodard to make it 21-6.

By the end of the first quarter, Ayden-Grifton led 25-6 and looked firmly in control.

"They were real aggressive, much more than us, when we hit the floor," Ram coach Victor Hampton said. "We weren't ready when we first hit the floor.

"I told them before we came out, we didn't want to dig a hole. As it stands, they got control of the game. We dug a hole and it was hard to get ourselves out."

But Northampton East did make a game of it.

Murphrey said he decided coming into the game that he would have his team lay off Ram starters Perry and Tracy Barnes to concentrate on Terry Williams and Fred Vinson. Early on, the Rams had trouble adjusting.

"I think they were surprised with our defense," he said. "It kind of threw them early in the game. We played a little softer on defense than we usually do. That made for a slow-paced game. It helped us early in the game, but they adjusted."

The Rams outscored the Chargers 17-13 in the second quarter and went into the locker room trailing, 38-23, at the intermission.

By the end of the third quarter, though, Ayden-Grifton had regrouped and pulled back ahead by 16 at 54-38.

With only eight minutes left in the game, the Chargers still looked to be in control, but the Rams chipped away at the lead and got within 60-52 with 4:34 left on a 3-pointer by Vinson.

Peterson came back with a layup and drew an intentional foul and hit the resulting two free throws with 3:59 remaining to make it 64-52. Less then a minute later, though, reserve guard Mike Langford hit his third straight shot to pull Northampton East within eight again at 64-58.

The teams traded points over the next few possessions before Vinson broke free for another 3-point shot to cut the margin to six again at 67-61 with 58 seconds left.

Dixon and Peterson had both struggled at the free throw line in the final period which aided the Rams' comeback. But after Vinson's 3-pointer, Peterson hit three from the line and Dixon hit two to make it 72-61 and put an end to any rally hopes by Northampton East.

North Pitt Tops Roanoke Rapids

Girls' Basketball

BETHEL — North Pitt's Eastern Plains Conference champions had little trouble in disposing of Roanoke Rapids, 65-58, Friday night in a Section I 2-A girls state playoff basketball game.

The victory boosted the Pant-Hers into the Sectional finals against East Duplin. That game was to be played Saturday afternoon at Farmville Central.

The Pant-Hers jumped out into an early lead, taking an 18-11 advantage after the first period of play. They inched a little further out in the second quarter, building a 32-24 halftime lead.

That margin was stretched to 49-38 in the third quarter and the Pant-Hers coasted to the victory.

Gwen Pilgreen led North Pitt with 24 points while Keisha Pilgreen added 14 and Portia Clark had 11. Felicia Sykes had 27 and Allyson Matta had 12 for the Lady Yellow Jackets.

ANGIER — SouthWest Edgecombe High School pulled away from Washington in the final period to take a 44-31 victory in the Section II 3-A girls basketball tournament Friday night.

The loss ends the season for Washington, the Coastal Conference's second seeded team. SouthWest advances to face West Craven in the finals of the tournament.

Washington inched out into a 10-9 lead after one period, but SouthWest came back and grabbed a 20-18 halftime advantage. The game remained close through the third period, which saw the Lady Cougars take a 27-24 lead into the final quarter.

In that, however, SouthWest pulled away from the Pam Pack, 17-7, to take the win.

Barbara Mabry led SouthWest with 13 points while Yvonne Knight added 12. Washington was led by Crystal Lupton with 16.

Hertford Ousts N. Pitt By 59-51

Boys' Basketball

AHOSKIE — Hertford County shook off a stubborn North Pitt basketball team to take a 59-51 victory over the Panthers in the Section I 2-A boys' tournament Friday night.

Hertford jumped into the lead in the first period of the game, taking a 16-9 margin by the first horn. In the second period, North Pitt began to get its feet on the ground again, and trailed by 32-26 at intermission.

In the third, North Pitt slowed the action and took an 8-4 advantage, trimming the lead back to just 36-34. But Hertford took command again in the final quarter, outscoring the Panthers, 23-17, to record the win.

Keith Britt led the Bears with 17 points while Joel White added 16 and Darren Askew had 13. William Morning had 16 and Randy House had 13 for the Panthers.

GUMBERRY — A three-point basket with 20 seconds left helped lift Northampton West to a 54-53 victory over Chocowinity in the Section II 1-A boys basketball tournament Friday night.

The loss ends the year for the Indians, who had put together a five-game winning streak to gain the sectionals after a fifth place finish in the regular season. The Tribe closes at 12-12.

Chocowinity streaked out to a 21-19 lead in the first quarter of the game. Northampton reversed things in the second period, however, and gained a 32-31 halftime advantage. Chocowinity then outscored the Hurricanes, 15-7, in the third period to push into a 46-41 lead. But the 'Canes fought back and a three-point goal by Eric Johnson with 20 seconds left put them into the lead, 54-53. Chocowinity had two chances at baskets after that, but turnovers cost them their opportunity.

Johnson finished the game with 14 points for Northampton while Jerome Person added 13. Otis Harrell and Sean Crawford each had 11 and Bobby Moore had 10 to lead Chocowinity.

they were slowing the ball down really well," North Carolina guard Steve Bucknall said.

"Again, we were playing good defense. No matter what a team does, they're not going to get a good shot. We know we're going to get a good shot and that's the difference."

A 19-7 start to the second half helped Maryland get within 47-33 following a 3-pointer by Walt Williams with 13:30 left. North Carolina answered that threat with a six-point run, four of them by Bucknall.

"I'm very disappointed with our effort in the second half," Smith said. "We reverted back to bad execution."

Scott Williams scored 13 points, and Rick Fox and Kevin Madden added 12 apiece for North Carolina.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Steve McCoy plucked Tom Huerter's desperation shot from the air and put it back in with one second left to give Siena a 68-67 win over Boston University Saturday and its first NCAA berth ever.

The Saints, playing because of a measles outbreak in an empty Hartford Civic Center, won despite a series of late turnovers that cost it a seven-point lead in the final seven minutes.

It was the ninth straight game played by Siena under a spectator quarantine because of an outbreak of measles at its upstate New York campus, improved its record to 24-4 overall.

field," DeBiase said. "For years, we've been making a fuss over Little Leaguers, and now here's a professional baseball club making a fuss over us."

As the week wound down, some of the Mets' players began arriving for spring training and taking batting practice with the campers. They included Howard Johnson, Lee Mazilli, Ron Darling, Tim Teufel and Keith Miller.

Physically, except for the trip to Shea Stadium, the Dream Camp is over. But it will never really end for Berbert and DeBiase, who, for as long as they live, keep the Dream alive in their memories.

Lady Pirates Fall Short In Rally Against Madison

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — James Madison, the defending champion of the women's Colonial Athletic Association basketball tournament, once more moved to the finals of the event Friday night, ousting East Carolina, 71-63.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, seeded fourth in the tournament, gave the Lady Dukes all they wanted in the game, but came up short at the end.

The game was close throughout much of the first half, as the lead changed hands on seven occasions. East Carolina led by as much as four, 10-6, on a Chris O'Connor three-point basket with 16:43 left in the period. But Madison came back and after closing to 19-18, outscored the Lady Pirates, 20-12, in the final 10 minutes of the half to take a 38-31 lead. Madison led by as much as eight at one point in the half.

The Lady Dukes took up where they left off in the second half, with a 10-4 run that make it 48-35 on a Missy Dudley layup with 15:15 left. The lead was stretched to 15 two minutes later on a Donna Budd jumper that made it 52-37, Madison's biggest lead.

East Carolina rallied after that, outscoring the Dukes 17-9 to cut the lead to five at 59-54 with 5:35 left in the game.

But that was as close as the Pirates could come as Paula Schuler hit four free throws and three other Dukes hit baskets to hold off the ECU women.

"We're very disappointed to lose this game," ECU coach Pat Pierson said. But I'm very proud of our girls. They played with a lot of heart.

"I especially thought Gretta Savage played very well," she added. Savage closed out her career with a career-high-tying 26 points.

James Madison is a very talented team," Pierson said, "and tonight we couldn't stop (Carolin) Dehn-Durr. She was just too effective in the paint."

Dehn-Durr finished the game with 21 points, high for Madison, and she also pulled down 12 rebounds as the Lady Dukes led in that department, 40-32. Budd added 16, Vickie Harris had 14 and Schuler had 11.

East Carolina, which closes out its season at 15-13, added 13 from Pam Williams while Sarah Gray had 11 and also pulled 11 rebounds.

South Carolina Stops Pirate Rally For 7-4 Win

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The University of South Carolina handed East Carolina its first loss of the season Friday when the Gamecocks took a 7-4 baseball victory over the Pirates.

The win snapped a four-game losing streak for the Gamecocks, who go to 5-5 on the season with the victory. East Carolina is now 7-1.

South Carolina started the scoring in the second inning, getting a single run. Lee Nichols reached on a three-base error and then scored when Tripp Cromer singled.

East Carolina bounced right back and tied it up in the top of the third. John Gast walked and John Adams followed with a double. Mike Andrews then singled to drive in Gast. But on the following play, the Gamecocks came up with an odd double play to get out of the jam. The grounder was relayed from third to second to force Andrews, then on to home to double up Adams there.

South Carolina immediately moved back out, scoring two in the bottom of the third. Skeets Thomas and Cromer both walked and scored on Mark Taylor's two-out double, for a 3-1 lead.

The Gamecocks padded their lead with a run in the fifth on Hardin Brown's solo home run. Cromer then hit a two-run homer in the sixth to up the lead to 6-1.

East Carolina rallied for three in the top of the seventh to cut the lead to 6-4. Chris Cauble opened with a double and successive walks to David Ritchie, John Thomas and Steve Godin forced in Cauble. Tommy Eason then hit a shot down the third base line that the Gamecock third baseman stabbed and then beat Thomas to third for the force. Ritchie scored on the play. Calvin Brown then singled to score Godin.

"That was probably the key play in the game," ECU coach Gary Overton said. "If Eason's grounder had gotten through, it would have scored two runs and we would have had men on second and third. It was pretty much the play of the game."

South Carolina then came back with a third home run in the bottom of the inning as Derrick Mack cracked the round-tripper.

Cromer and Taylor led the South Carolina hitting with two each, while no one had more than one hit for the Pirates.

East Carolina returns to action Sunday, hosting the University of Connecticut at Harrington Field in Greenville, N.C. The doubleheader gets underway at 1 p.m.

Lakers Pop Hornets By 33

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Like a champion fighter sensing an early knockout, the Los Angeles Lakers jumped on the Charlotte Hornets in the opening minutes and put them away early.

Using a relentless combination of fast breaks and tenacious defense, the world champion Lakers moved out to a 20-point lead after 10 minutes Friday night to hand the Hornets their sixth straight loss, 123-90.

Byron Scott and James Worthy led seven Los Angeles players in double figures with 25 and 20 points, respectively. But it was the great one, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, playing in his first and final NBA game at the Charalotte Coliseum, who took control in the early moments.

Abdul-Jabbar, who was presented with an oversized rocking chair from the Hornets before the game as a retirement gift, scored six of his 10 points and grabbed five of his nine rebounds in the first six minutes as the Lakers moved out to a 19-9 lead.

"That's what we like to do — apply ourselves early and stick to our game," he said. "We're slowly getting there. The key for us is to improve every game and establish consistency."

Charlotte coach Dick Harter said the Lakers were at the top of their form Friday night. Two nights earlier, the Lakers beat the expansion Miami Heat by 46 points on the road.

"They (Lakers) wanted a quick knockout and they got it," he said. "I've been coaching 30 some years and that's the most overmatched I have ever felt.

"The way they played tonight we could play them 50 times and never stay with them."

Earvin "Magic" Johnson hit seven of eight shots for 16 points, grabbed seven rebounds and dished out 14 assists before getting an early breather when the Lakers went up by 41 in the final quarter.

"It doesn't matter who we're playing. We're going to play our game," he said. "Right now we're getting ready for the playoffs and we're going to play just as hard whether (our opponent) is a first-place team or last-place team."

Lakers coach Pat Riley said every victory counts at this stage of the long NBA season.

"This one game could mean the difference of playing at home and playing away in the playoffs," he said. The Lakers shot 58 percent from the field, with Worthy connecting on 10-of-15 shots and Scott going 10-for-16 — including one three-pointer from about 30 feet out.

Worthy, who grew up in nearby Gastonia, said the Lakers wanted to set the tempo early.

"It's important that we show them that we take them seriously," he said. "We show them respect early, that we came here to play."

Swans Become Destructive Pest

Egg-Shaking In Swan Nests Upsets Some People

Few creatures inspire images of romance and elegance as the mute swan, which traditionally has graced English estates. In this country, however, the bird has become a destructive pest, according to "National Wildlife" magazine.

And biologists have their hands full explaining to an uncomprehending and sometimes hostile public why they must be controlled.

Symbols of wealth and European royalty, mute swans became fashionable around the turn of the century, when the budding American aristocracy began importing them from Britain. Only two species of swans are native to North America: the trumpeter swan and the whistling, or tundra, swan.

From estates on Long Island and in upstate New York, the mute swan population has blossomed into feral groups in seven states along the Atlantic Flyway. Today, the wild population of roughly 6,000 is growing by an alarming 30 to 40 percent annually in some states.

Control them now, biologists warn, or face a problem like that posed by exotic species, such as the gypsy moth, starling or English sparrow.

Although they rank among the most graceful of birds on appearance, mute swans in this country can cause considerable damage to the environment. They are fastidious eaters, consuming only the most choice roots in a pond. In their search for the tastiest morsels, they uproot natural vegetation indiscriminately. Other birds graze, of course, but few rival the mutes' capacity for destruction.

Overgrazing can destroy the delicate balance in the brackish ponds of the Atlantic Coast, the mutes' favorite habitat. Tiny fish depend on vegetation for food and cover, and a pond bottom needs several years to recover from the devastation that a large flock of mutes can leave behind.

Moreover, mutes drive native waterfowl from their natural nesting sites, say researchers. Nesting male mutes defend large territories, often attacking other birds and animals. They even stand on other birds' nests and prevent females from sitting, says a biologist who has found dead goslings on swan nests and has seen swans kill goslings and ducklings.

In some places, biologists are seeking to control swans in a manner that dismays some people. When they discover a mute nest containing eggs, they shake the eggs, which scrambles the yolk and destroys the developing swan embryo.

Later, when the pen and cob return to the nest, they continue to watch over the lifeless eggs. Fooled, the thwarted parents will try to hatch the clutch until it is too late to lay a second clutch successfully.

The technique is difficult to reconcile with human emotions, and the biologists have aroused fierce opposition. One third-grade class in Rhode Island sent a packet of hate mail to the state's senior wildlife biologist.

Some people might feel differently about mutes if they knew how aggressive they sometimes get. The birds have been reported to chase and attack people.

Some biologists are experimenting with control techniques other than egg-shaking. One method is to substitute trumpeter swan eggs in mute nests. As yet, the experiment has not yielded substantial numbers of the native species.

And so, for the present, egg-shaking goes on.

New State Conservation Organization

The newly formed Atlantic Coast Conservation Association of North Carolina is launching a major effort to bring together concerned individuals who will work for the preservation of marine life along the state's coastline.

Disturbed by the number of negative issues affecting the marine environment and general decline in saltwater fishing in recent years, the group is seeking to reverse the trend by coordinating a drive to get the fisheries resource back on track.

Bob Richardson of Winston-Salem, president of the group, said its goal is to preserve and protect marine life offshore and in-shore. The group hopes to coordinate its efforts with the state Division of Marine Fisheries and the South Atlantic Fisheries Management Council.

"Everyone needs to become better informed as to the status of this resource in North Carolina, and an education program will be the key to getting our marine environment back on track," Richardson said. He hopes for a large number of members statewide.

The ACCA-NC will look closely at size, creel and weight limits on certain species of fish, as well as examine gear types that produce large numbers of by-catches.

Richardson said some of the coast's problems in recent years include red tide, purple seaweed, medical wastes on shore and an increase in the coastal population using the resource.

"We have taken from the marine environment for many years," he said. "Now it is pay-back time."

The group was formed during several organizational meetings, with representatives from Greenville, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Washington, N.C., Wilmington, Wrightsville Beach, Atlantic Beach, Morehead City, Carolina Beach, Raleigh and Southport.

The ACCA-NC is part of the Coastal Conservation Association, a national organization with headquarters in Houston. For information or to join, write ACCA-NC, P.O. Box 15804, Winston-Salem, N.C. 27113-5804, or call (919) 760-FISH.

Ducks Unlimited Shooting Event

With the help of trap, skeet, sporting clays and other events, Ducks Unlimited is attracting shotgunners from across the country to compete for more than $60,000 in prizes at its Continental Clay Target Tournament (DUC Shoot).

Slated for April 6 to 8, the event will be held at the National Gun Club in San Antonio, Texas. Participants will be given free registration prizes and an opportunity to win guns, ammunition, trophy belt buckles, a truck and other prizes.

Angela Bland

"If you enjoy shooting a shotgun," said Bob Runion, DU national shooting chairman, "you'll really like this tournament. We've even created a special hunter's class in trap and skeet for non-registered shooters and our Fun Shoot events put everyone on the same level."

Runion said the $200 registration fee includes all targets, ammunition, social events and gala awards banquet. A truck shuttle will be available from the host hotel to the event.

Proceeds will be used to construct a DU wetlands project in United States breeding grounds. For information, write Rich Grozik, Ducks Unlimited, One Waterfowl Way, Long Grove, Ill. 60047, or call (312) 438-4300.

Coastal Celebration Scheduled In April

In an effort to get inland citizens involved in preserving North Carolina's coast, WRAL-TV is hosting a two-day Carolina Coastal Celebration on April 8 and 9 at the state fairgrounds in Raleigh.

The free event will showcase traditional entertainers, crafts, strange seafood and educational exhibits about the coastal environment.

"Those of us upstream love and enjoy the coast, and we need to understand that we have to become personally involved if North Carolina is going to have productive, enjoyable coastal waters in the future," said John Greene, the station's senior vice president and general manager.

"We want people to have fun, and to leave the festival knowing more about how they can help save the coast," he commented.

Non-commercial agencies and organization are being invited to submit exhibits and traditional entertainers are being sought. Inquiries should be directed to Stephanie Bass, project director, 821-8792.

Station officials say WRAL-TV has made a long-term commitment to addressing the problems of North Carolina's sounds and estuaries, which are becoming increasingly damaged by pollution.

The station produced and aired a half-hour documentary, "Troubled Waters," and hosted a town meeting to examine the problems in October 1988. A series of public service announcement is now airing and a series of informational spots telling viewers how they can help save the coast is being produced.

A citizens guide called "Sound Advice" is now available by writing Save Our Sounds, WRAL-TV, P.O. Box 12000, Raleigh, N.C. 27605. It tells how citizens upstream can help preserve water quality as they go about their daily activities.

Taste-Testing For Best Bait

By Roger Munns
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES, Iowa — For a fish, getting to spend time in one of Keith Jones' aquariums must be about as good as can be.

There, in complete safety, a fish gets first-class accommodations for several weeks, his only chore being to perform taste tests for a fellow who appreciates fish.

"It's like taking them to Baskin-Robbins," said Jones. "We ask them to tell us which samples they don't like, which ones they like and which ones they really like. There's no stress, we keep them well fed and the water clean. They don't live a bad life."

There's a sinister motive, though, from a fish's point of view. Jones is a fish biologist for Berkley Inc. of Spirit Lake, which makes fishing lures. His job is to isolate the chemicals that fish identify as food, and then make them into lures.

"I'm somewhat of a unique species," he said. "I don't know of a single other fishing lure company that has a fish biologist on staff."

He also has discovered that fish do not necessarily like a repugnant bait.

"There's a mistaken impression that the stinkier the bait, the better. That's a gross error. That's not how it works. The chemicals that catfish rely on as a signal for food has nothing to do with how stinky it is," he said.

Some stinky baits, like old cheese, do contain elements that are quite appetizing for catfish, "but it doesn't contain very much of them, and the part that does is probably not the stinky part."

The fish tests are simple.

"You take little cotton pellets, the same as you would find in a dentist's office. By themselves, they're neutral. Fish neither like them nor dislike them.

Gieberger's 59 Said Unbeatable

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. — 59.

It's a dream, a goal, a target.

"It's possible," Dan Pohl said of the PGA Tour's all-time single round scoring record.

Barely. Just barely possible.

Ben Hogan didn't do it. Nor did Sam Snead or Byron Nelson. Neither did Arnold Palmer or Jack Nicklaus or Lee Trevino or Tom Watson.

In all the thousands and thousands of rounds they played in Tour competition, none shot 59.

Only Al Geiberger has done it. On a hot, muggy summer day in Memphis in 1977, the tall, slender Geiberger birdied the 18th hole from about 8-10 feet and recorded the only sub-60 score in Tour history.

"I made the comment then," Geiberger recalled, "that if I could shoot 59, anyone could do it because there are so many really good players on the Tour."

He was wrong.

Improved equipment, better conditioning of the Tour's courses and a heightened level of competition have combined to push scores lower and lower in the last decade.

But no one has approached that record. No one really has come close. No one has been within two shots of it.

"I'm surprised," Geiberger said.

No one else is.

"Shoot 59?" Watson said with a puzzled expression.

"You have to make 13 birdies or a couple of eagles to go with the birdies. That's about 70 percent of the holes you play. Even in a best-ball event, the average score is about nine under.

State Makes Quick ACC Exit

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — All four Atlantic Coast Conference tournament first round games were blowouts — but one was a shocker — aptly described by North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano as a "nightmare on Peachtree Street."

Valvano's 17th-ranked Wolfpack, seeded No. 1, were surprised by eighth-seeded Maryland, the doormat of the conference, winners of only one ACC game in 14 tries this season.

The Terrapins, 9-19 overall, got 23 points from John Johnson and overpowered North Carolina State 71-49 Friday in the first of four opening round games, becoming the first No. 8 seed in the 36 years of ACC tournament play to knock off No. 1.

Maryland will meet No. 9 North Carolina today in the first semifinal game and No. 7 Duke will face Virginia in the nightcap.

North Carolina battered Georgia Tech 77-62, Duke whipped Wake Forest 88-64 and Virginia knocked off Clemson 90-73.

"We shot 30 percent and they dominated the glass," said Valvano, whose team had beaten Maryland by scores of 90-67 and 94-67 during the regular season. "We just couldn't score. They beat us in every phase and every aspect of the game and looked good doing it. They deserved to win."

"This was a very nice win for us," said Maryland coach Bob Wade in an understatement. "Basically, our game plan was to play deliberately and to break the game into 45-second possessions. We maintained our composure and took care of the basketball."

Later, Wade was admitted to Georgia Baptist Hospital complaining of chest pains. He was listed in stable condition.

Maryland team physician Dr. Sanford Levine said Wade had suffered from dehydration and was being kept overnight at the hospital. He said the coach would be examined in the morning and if all is normal, will be allowed to coach today's game.

Tony Massenburg added 18 points for Maryland. Rodney Monroe scored 14 points for North Carolina State, 20-8.

J.R. Reid scored 17 points to lead five North Carolina scorers in double figures. Steve Bucknall added 14 points, Rick FRox 13, Jeff Lebo 11 and Scott Williams 10 for the Tar Heels, 25-7. Dennis Scott led Tech, 20-11, with 24 points and Tom Hammonds had 17.

"This was the best we played all year," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith. "After not winning the regular season, we are determined to win the tournament championship."

The Tar Heels dropped their final two regular season ACC games to fall into a tie for second place.

Danny Ferry scored 24 points as Duke connected on its first eight shots in running away to its victory over Wake Forest. Christian Laettner added 15 points for the Blue Devils, 23-6. Freshman Chris King led Wake Forest, 13-15, with 31 points.

John Crotty scored 18 points and Richard Morgan added 17 to lead Virginia, which held Clemson to only 17 first-half points.

"We just simply played a horrible first half," said Clemson Coach Cliff Ellis, whose Tigers made only 7 of 29 shots, a 24 percent shooting percentage.

Virginia is now 19-9. Dale Davis led Clemson, 18-10, with 21 points.

Georgetown In Easy Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Georgetown opened its quest for the Big East Tournament championship with an 82-52 romp over Boston College Friday night.

Charles Smith scored 24 points and Alonzo Mourning had eight of Georgetown's tournament-record 12 blocked shots. With Smith leading the way, the Hoyas scored 14 straight points for a 31-15 lead midway through the half.

Georgetown held Dana Barros, who set a Big East tournament scoring record Thursday night with 38 points in an opening-round victory over St. John's, to just five shots and five points in the first half. He finished with 11.

Syracuse 79, Providence 76

Freshman David Johnson had 13 points and classmate Billy Owens eight during a spurt that turned a 41-41 tie with 15:33 to go into a 70-58 lead. Syracuse then overcame 56 percent free-throw shooting to hold on as Providence closed to 74-73 with 51 seconds left.

Owens and Johnson each finished with 18 points to lead Syracuse, 26-6, to its 21st straight win over Providence. Cal Foster led Providence, 18-10, with 17 points.

Seton Hall 74, Connecticut 66

The Pirates got 21 points from Ramon Ramos, who contributed to the foul trouble that plagued Cliff Robinson, the Huskies' center and top scoring threat. Robinson ended with just 10 points, all in the first half as Connecticut shot just 29 percent from the floor.

Seton Hall, 26-5, got 12 points each from Andrew Gaze and Daryll Walker. Phil Gamble had 19 points and Chris Smith 18 for the Huskies.

Pittsburgh 71, Villanova 66

Brian Shorter scored 20 points and Pittsburgh snapped a 64-64 tie with six straight free throws.

Bobby Martin's two free throws with 1:30 left put Pitt ahead. After a miss by Villanova, Gary Massey was called for an intentional foul when his forearm hit Rod Brookin in the eye. Brookin made both free throws and Martin added two more for a 70-64 lead with 39 seconds left.

Villanova, which got 19 points from Tom Greis and 15 from Doug West, fell to 16-15.

Big Eight

Oklahoma 95, Colorado 87, 2OT

Stacey King led the Sooners with 28 points, including the first five of the second overtime against Colorado. The Buffaloes, who finished 7-21 and had been blown out twice by the Sooners, outrebounded Oklahoma 62-42.

Colorado, trailing 68-62 with 15 seconds left in regulation, tied it on 3-pointers by Steve Wise and Reggie Morton, then took a six-point lead in the first overtime before Oklahoma tied it at 77 on Tyrone Jones' 3-pointer with 1:23 left.

The Sooners, averaging 105 points per game, were held to a season-low 31 points in the first half. Shaun Vandiver had 15 points — all in the second half — and 17 rebounds for Colorado.

Missouri 98, Nebraska 70

Gary Leonard had 17 points and Byron Irvin had 15 as Missouri capitalized on turnovers. The Tigers had an 18-point lead 12 minutes into the game.

Irvin, the Tigers' leading scorer with a 19-point average, did not start because of a groin injury. He became the fourth player in Missouri history to score 600 points in a season and now has 603 for the Tigers, 25-7.

Eric Johnson had 15 points for Nebraska, 16-15.

Iowa St. 88, Oklahoma St. 69

Sam Mack scored 22 points and Mark Baugh, Terry Woods and Victor Alexander all had 20 for the Cyclones. Thomas Jordan, with 16 points, and Richard Dumas, with 14, led Oklahoma State.

Iowa State is 17-10. Oklahoma State is 16-12.

Kansas St. 73, Kansas 65

Steve Henson had 23 points, including a key 30-footer with 58 seconds left in the game and one second on the shot clock as Kansas State ended defending national champion Kansas' season.

Kansas, 19-12, used a 7-0 run to take a 63-62 lead with 3:55 left, but Kansas State, 19-9, got consecutive baskets from LaKeith Humphrey and never trailed again.

Pac 10

Arizona 62, Washington St. 54

Anthony Cook scored 19 points and Sean Elliott had 12 of his 17 in the final seven minutes as the Wildcats, 25-3, struggled past Washington State.

The Wildcats didn't go ahead for good until Cook's three-point play with 3:28 remaining broke a 48-48 tie. Brian Quinnett led Washington State, 10-19, with 20 points.

Stanford 66, Southern Cal 61

Howard Wright scored seven of his 16 points in the final 3:10 as Stanford shook off stubborn USC for its 10th straight victory.

Wright made a short jumper with 1:43 remaining to break a 58-58 tie and put Stanford, 25-5, ahead for good. USC finished 10-22.

Oregon St. 79, Cal 66

Gary Payton scored 10 of his 21 points in the first 3:42 and Eric Knox had 19 of his 27 in the second half for Oregon State, 22-6 and winner of 15 of 17. Leonard Taylor led Cal with 16 points.

UCLA 64, Washington 54

Don MacLean, a freshman, scored 13 of his 18 points in the second half for UCLA.

UCLA, 20-8, also got 16 points from Trevor Wilson. Mark West led Washington, 12-16, with 13 points.

Big West

UNLV 99, Fullerton St. 83

Stacey Augmon scored 10 of his 29 points during a 12-0 second-half run that carried UNLV into the championship game against New Mexico State at Long Beach, Calif..

With UNLV leading 69-59, Augmon converted a three-point play with 10:16 remaining to start the 12-0 run, added a 3-point shot and made two steals that he turned into dunks.

JOHN DEERE

IT'S SOME OFFER.

Your John Deere dealer stands behind the new 1989 walk-behind with this promise: "Buy it and test drive it for a full month. If you don't agree it's the best mower you've ever used, you can bring it back for a full refund."

IT'S SOME MOWER.

We're making this offer because we're completely confident you'll be happy. If its durable, quick start engine, 5-speed shift-on-the-go transmission, and easy, lift-off rear bagger don't make you completely happy, we'll be happy to take it back.

Purchase by August 31, 1989.

Business Notes

New Realtor Named

Connally Branch of Clark-Branch Realtors has announced that Susan Bach has become associated with the firm.

A graduate of J.H. Rose High School, Ms. Bach attended East Carolina University and moved to Raleigh in 1981. She is a licensed real estate broker and was a multimillion dollar producer for Howard Perry and Walston Realtors.

Ms. Bach is a member of the Raleigh Board of Realtors and the Sales and Marketing Council of the Wake County Home Builders Association. She will specialize in residential sales.

Leadership Conference

Barry C. Chesson, a district manager of Equitable Finance Co. at 315 Clifton St., attended the firm's national district leadership conference last week in Hawaii.

Chesson was qualified to attend based on the amount of production achieved in the Greenville district in 1988 and on the number of agents that progressed through the company's four-year training program. Only 31 of the 157 district managers in the South qualified.

He was accompanied by his wife, Marcia, and two daughters.

Radio Event

WNCT radio station in Greenville recently held an on-air event to benefit the Ronald McDonald House of Eastern North Carolina.

Regional businesses donated merchandise and gift certificates during the time the event aired from Jan. 10 to Feb. 10. Dave Spatola aired interviews with families and Make-A-Wish kids.

A check will be presented to the Ronald McDonald House on Thursday at 10 a.m.

Harris Appointed

Mac Harris has been appointed by the North Carolina Real Estate Commission to the advisory committee for revision of the brokerage operations prelicensing course.

Harris is director of the Eastern Carolina Center for Real Estate Studies and general manager of J.L. Harris Realty. He is past president of the North Carolina Real Estate Educators Association and served on the commission's advisory committee.

Lease Signed

Charnelle Wright, facilities engineer for McDonald Douglas Corp., has announced that the company has signed a lease with Phil Flowers and Associates for office space in the Flowers Complex at the corner of Evans and 14th streets.

The space will be used as a telecommunications facility for Tymnet, the firm's network systems company. Evergreen of Greenville Inc. assisted with locating the space.

Director Named

Evergreen of Greenville Inc. has announced that Loretta A. Lewellyn will fill the newly created position of membership services director. She will be responsible for marketing memberships for Evergreen and for providing membership services, organizing workshops and socials and preparing a newsletter.

She holds an associate degree from Pitt Community College. She previously was administrative assistant to the Greenville city manager and was affiliated with Mattel. She and her husband, Don, have one son.

For more information on Evergreen, which promotes downtown revitalization, contact Ms. Lewellyn at her office at 111 S. Washington St., or call 758-0026.

Business Moved

The Trophy House, previously located at 1205 S. Evans St., has moved to a new location at 2225 Memorial Drive.

The firm specializes in customized trophies, plaques, desk sets, door signs and unusual awards and gifts.

Business Symposium

The Seymour Johnson Air Force Base Contracting Division is conducting a small business symposium and trade fair at its officers' club March 22 and 23.

Topics include enhancing relations between the Air Force and small businesses and educating small business on how to do business with the government. The trade fair will feature displays by vendors.

To attend, contact Martha Robbins at 736-5711.

Hours are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Indian Seminar

A seminar for Indian business leaders in North Carolina will be held Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Bordeaux Inn in Fayetteville. The event coincides with the annual Indian Unity Conference to be held Thursday through Saturday in the city.

The seminar, coordinated by the state Department of Administration and the state Commission of Indian Affairs, will address major business development efforts in Indian communities and the need to increase networking.

Four Indian business leaders will speak and representatives of more than 10 agencies that provide assistance to developing businesses will be present. More than 1,000 Indian-owned businesses operate in the state.

A $5 registration fee is payable at the door. For information, contact Ben Jacobs at 733-5998.

Electric Corp. Meets

The 52nd annual meeting of the Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corp. will be held Saturday at Edgecombe Community College auditorium in Tarboro.

Business includes presentations by members, the election of directors and an annual report. Several exhibits will be on display from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. Registration begins at 12:30 p.m., followed by the meeting at 2 p.m.

Monk's Opens

David P. Parker, manager of Washington Square Mall in Washington, N.C., has announced the planned opening of Monk's Cheesesteaks at the mall sometime in March.

The local Monk's franchise is owned and operated by Judy and Alton Griffin.

Relocation Announced

The real estate firm of Collice C. Moore & Associates has announced the relocation of its office to 200A Eastbrook Drive.

The firm specializes in real estate appraisals, property development, consulting and brokerage.

Officer Promoted

William Davis Green, a business services officer at Branch Banking & Trust Co. in Kinston, has been promoted to banking officer by the board of directors in Wilson.

A native of New Bern, Green is a graduate of East Carolina University with bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration. Green, who joined the firm in 1987, is married to the former Lisa Dawn Cason of New Bern.

New Club Member

Onuoha Oti, sales representative for Mutual of Omaha Co. in Greenville, has been named to the company's Builder's Club for 1988.

The club recognizes agents for outstanding sales and service. He is affiliated with the Fred E. Daniels division office in Rocky Mount, which serves 24 eastern North Carolina counties.

New Staff Member

IDS Financial Services had announced that Eileen Braunstein has joined its financial planning staff in Greenville.

Ms. Braunstein, who recently transferred to Greenville from the Athens, Ga., office has five years of financial planning experience and a degree in consumer economics from the University of Georgia.

She and her husband, Harry, have two children.

New Vice President

Mitchell G. Barnes, formerly of Greenville, has been elected vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Winston-Salem, the bank announced.

The organization said that Robert B. Plybon, president of the North Carolina life underwriters organization, will speak.

Boarding Kennel A Product Of Couple's Business Dream

By Angela Lingerfelt Bland
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A new boarding kennel near Greenville that offers a variety of pet care services "looks like it will be profitable, but we're not counting our chickens before they hatch," says Lu Livermon, who owns the business with his wife, Doreen.

Hoffman-Haus Kennels, located near Sunshine Garden Center at Route 2, Winterville, opened its doors the Wednesday before Christmas 1988 and had filled all 31 runs of one wing with dogs by the next day, the owners said. Its cattery also was operating at capacity.

Situated on six acres of country land with both indoor and outdoor facilities, the wooden building reminiscent of a mountain cabin was designed and built by the Livermons last year. Owners of dogs, cats and other animals that need a temporary place to stay are greeted at the door with a cross-stitched sign that reads "Kennel Sweet Kennel."

"I was working 80 hours a week farming livestock, raising hogs, chickens, ducks, dogs and geese in Ahoskie," Livermon said. "We farmed there for 13 years before we decided to go for our dream of working with dogs."

The couple's business originated when Mrs. Livermon decided to train their three German shepherds herself. After successfully doing so, other people began bringing their dogs to her for training. Eventually, the couple built a small, six-run kennel in their back yard in Ahoskie and began boarding and grooming dogs.

"The backyard kennel showed more of a profit for us than our livestock operation," Livermon said. "And our two kids (now ages 11 months and 5 years) were isolated in Ahoskie, so we researched Greenville and decided we would like to move our family here."

His research indicated that Greenville would support his dream business, which specializes in boarding, training, grooming, baths and dips, a cattery, pet supplies and breeding of German shepherds and Rottweilers.

"We saw that a kennel facility was needed here because there are only two other boarding kennels, plus the ones at vets, and the backyard types," he said.

The couple located the land in February 1988 and began in September to build the kennel from plans they made themselves.

"It was very obvious to us what worked and what didn't, so it didn't take us long to plan it — only several hours of real intense floor planning," Mrs. Livermon said.

The modern design they settled on features two wings with 3-, 4- and 5-foot-wide runs. Each run has an individual outdoor section with a roof that protects the animals from rain or heat. Hot water is circulated underneath the floor to keep the concrete warm, and the facility is heated and air-conditioned. Outside, double fencing makes it escape-proof.

Because of the kennel's location outside the city limits, the business features both outside and inside facilities, including the two wings that hold 62 animals, a supply room, a kitchen for mixing special diets, a room for baths and dips, a room for grooming, an upstairs cattery, an indoor training room, an outside exercise area and a 2.5-acre training field.

"We emphasize that we are in a country setting with fresh air and that it's quiet and safe," Mrs. Livermon said.

The family lives behind the kennel, where an intercom system connects the business with their home for 24-hour monitoring of animal activities. The Livermons are members of the American Boarding Kennels Association and they hope, one day soon, to become one of the 11 kennels in the United States that are accredited.

Since the early days of learning about dogs on her own, Mrs. Livermon and her husband have gained more experience in training and breeding. Livermon is certified in basic and advanced obedience training, behavior modification, protection, kennel management and Schutzhund training (a German guard dog sport used worldwide).

He attended Kromerhaus Kennel in Bethlehem, Pa., where his instructor, in a letter, commended his ethics, enthusiasm, eagerness to learn and called him "one of the best students to ever complete this training."

Mrs. Livermon was certified in 1986 in dog obedience instruction. A Green Grass clogger and a graduate of J.H. Rose High School, she was the first woman to graduate from the carpentry program at Pitt Technical Institute, where she also earned the highest-so-far grade point average of anyone in the program.

The name, Hoffman-Haus Kennels, was chosen because Mrs. Livermon's mother's maiden name is Hoffman, a German name — like the two kinds of dogs they breed. Haus means home.

On Saturday from noon to 6 p.m., the couple is hosting an open house, where pet displays will be offered, a pet artist and photographer and Humane Society representatives will be present, and tours will be given.

Hours of operation are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., except on Wednesday when the business closes at 1 p.m. and on Saturday when it closes at 4 p.m.

Regional Postal Position Filled

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A 24-year veteran of the U.S. Postal Service was named on Friday as Regional Postmaster General for the eastern region, an area where postal services have been criticized.

The division serves the District of Columbia and 11 states — Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Samuel Green Jr., 48, replaces Johnny F. Thomas. Thomas resigned under fire in January, after he imposed personnel cutbacks in the Washington area. Less than a month earlier, Thomas had said more workers would be hired to improve services.

Green's appointment was made by Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank, who described Green as a "results-oriented manager."

Bankruptcy Filing Keeps Eastern Alive — For Now

By Stefan Fatsis
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Eastern Airlines could dump billions of dollars in assets or sell itself whole if the carrier, pushed to the brink of collapse by union walkouts, can convince a U.S. bankruptcy judge it can't otherwise survive.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Burton R. Lifland is the key figure now in determining the future of Eastern, which said it was losing $4 million a day mainly due to the strike until it sought protection from creditors Thursday under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws.

The filing places in the judge's hands the pending $365 million sale of Eastern's Northeast shuttle to New York developer Donald Trump. It also delays USAir's proposed $85 million purchase of Eastern gates in Philadelphia and routes from that city to Toronto and Montreal.

"If they have to raise cash to operate week-to-week or month-to-month they can get by with the sale of a couple planes," said Richard Lieb, a New York bankruptcy lawyer. "But if it's a very significant transaction, there is some real doubt whether it could happen."

Filing for bankruptcy protection gives Eastern a chance to fly again without worrying about its debt, but it doesn't stop the strike-torn carrier from shutting down for good.

Eastern's papers filed at bankruptcy court in Manhattan listed $4.5 billion in assets, $3.39 billion in liabilities and 15,696 creditors.

The filing doesn't specify how Miami-based Eastern plans to resurrect its crippled operations, but analysts said the sale of the carrier — possibly to Trans World Airlines owner Carl C. Icahn — or a piece-by-piece dismantling were possibilities.

Some believe bankruptcy court was a better option for Eastern than holding an auction of routes, planes, gates and landing slots on the open market, where buyers probably would have bid rock-bottom prices.

"Now because bankruptcy court is protecting the company and the creditors, Eastern will only accept an offer that is a fair offer," said James Carey, vice president for research for Airline Economics Inc.

Chapter 11 is designed to allow companies to operate normally during reoganization, but assures nothing.

In 1982, Braniff Airways tried to reorganize and keep flying under Chapter 11 but had to suspend operations before it was sold and brought out of bankruptcy.

Any reorganization plan must be approved by the judge and by creditors.

Secured creditors, who have Eastern assets backing their debt, would be the first to get paid. Unsecured creditors, including passengers with unused Eastern tickets, have no security in case of default and cannot get reimbursed until the end of the case — if at all.

Eastern reported secured debt of $1.49 billion, while its largest unsecured creditor, the Bank of New York, is owed $150 million.

Eastern President Phil Bakes said in court papers that the airline had $200 million in cash left from more than $400 million on hand at the outset of 1989. That money, needed to run daily operations, would have evaporated in about 45 days and Eastern would have been forced out of business if it had not sought court protection, he said.

Eastern lost $1.02 billion this decade compared with industrywide earnings of $2.89 billion, the papers said. The airline said it was losing $4 million a day during the walkout by mechanics, pilots and flight attendants, which began Saturday.

In the court documents, Bakes blamed unions for forcing Eastern to seek bankruptcy protection, saying they want to wrest control of the airline from parent Texas Air Corp. and avenge the 1983 takeover of Continental Airlines by Texas Air Chairman Frank Lorenzo.

Biggest U.S. Bankruptcies

Eastern Airlines, with assets of more than $1 billion, is one of the largest companies to file petitions for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Many Eastern Workers Are Now Searching For Jobs After Strike

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Eastern Airlines employees say it appears they have little choice but to find new jobs now that a strike has put the airline in bankruptcy court.

"Everything is upside-down," said Patrick E. Grace of Raleigh, an Eastern ticket agent at Raleigh-Durham International Airport who was laid off indefinitely Monday. "It really is like a death in the family."

Of about 70 Eastern employees at RDU, only a handful of managers are still at work. The 32 members of local 1085 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers at RDU have been on strike since last Saturday.

On Monday, the rest of the RDU workers — mostly ticket agents and sales personnel — were notified they were being laid off. They were among 9,500 non-union workers laid off nationally. There are 8,500 union members on strike.

On Thursday, the airline filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law.

Union members are receiving strike pay of $100 per week from the union. Non-union members got checks for $280 from Eastern for the time they had worked and are uncertain about ever seeing another.

A dozen non-union employees went to state Employment Security Commission offices Friday to file for unemployment benefits and were told even that is uncertain.

Under state regulations, whenever such a claim is made "and there is an issue of whether their unemployment is caused by a labor dispute in active progress, the commission will have to schedule a hearing, take evidence and make a decision," said Henry Gransee, ESC deputy chief counsel.

Employees said they were told a hearing might not be held for two or three weeks. And, they said, even if they are successful, the maximum they can receive is $228 per week, roughly half their salaries at Eastern.

Witnessing the fall of Eastern — for decades the dominant airline in the Triangle — adds hurt to their financial woes. Eastern provided the first airline service to Raleigh in 1932, had the first jet flight at RDU in 1965, and until the late 1970s, operated the vast majority of airliner flights at RDU.

"It's a very serious situation," said Sarah Aja, who until Monday was manager of Eastern's Ionosphere Club. She said nearly all Eastern employees at RDU had long years of service with the airline.

"Raleigh is a very senior station," she aid. "The least seniority is 12 years. I've worked for Eastern 21 years. Several had 1½ years until retirement."

She said most workers will have to get new jobs. "We have families with one income, two or three children, car payments, and it's very difficult for these people."

Debt Rating Lowered

NEW YORK (AP) — Standard & Poor's Corp. announced Friday it has lowered its rating on $5 billion of RJR Nabisco Inc. debt because of the $24.53 billion leveraged buyout of the food and tobacco company by Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.

Standard & Poor's, a credit rating service, said it was lowering RJR Nabisco's A rating to BB.

Preferred stock and convertible debentures to be issued in connection with the buyout are expected to receive a B plus rating, Standard & Poor's said.

Standard & Poor's announced it was reassessing RJR Nabisco's debt rating last fall, after the company's managers said they were considering a leveraged buyout of the firm. Management lost a bidding war to Kohlberg Kravis, which is in the process of carrying out its own LBO.

A leveraged buyout — which is accomplished with largely borrowed funds — sharply increases the debt load of a company and can raise questions about its ability to repay its loans.

The highest Standard & Poor rating is AAA.

A rating of BB is fifth on the Standard & Poor's list, and is the highest of five grades assigned to debt on which there is speculation about the issuer's ability to pay interest and repay principal. It is followed by B.

Military Contract

FAISON, N.C. (AP) — The Department of Defense has awarded Faison Manufacturing Co. a $16.5 million contract to manufacture duffel bags for the military over the next three years.

Company president Domenick Sanducci said the additional business will add about 30 employees to the 100 now working at the plant.

The company currently manufactures duffel bags for the military under a two-year, $7 million contract that expires in June.

The contract was awarded just a month before a fire destroyed the company's manufacturing plant Jan. 23, 1987.

Pilot Cuts Roster

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Pilot Freight Carriers Corp. laid off 135 workers at its Kernersville terminal last week shortly after the company's owner sought to allay employees' concerns about such a move, sources at the company told the Winston-Salem Journal.

Workers told the newspaper that the Kernersville terminal will cut back from three shifts to two beginning Sunday.

Pilot employs about 2,650 people at 54 terminals nationwide. About 600 people work at the Winston-Salem and Kernersville terminals.

In February, Pilot laid off 25 workers in Winston-Salem, 75 in Kernersville and 150 elsewhere. At the same time, Pilot closed 11 of its terminals — three in New York, six in Virginia and one each in Maine and Washington, D.C.

U.S. Truck bought Pilot in December from the Taggart Group, an investment company in New Jersey, which bought Pilot in October 1987.

Rate Reductions

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Utilities Commission Friday ordered Duke Power Company to immediately reduce its rates to retail customers in North Carolina and refund about $17.6 million plus interest.

The reduction and refunds stem from a case which was sent back to the Utilities Commission by the state Supreme Court. The court told the commission to reconsider a 1986 rate case in which Duke had been allowed a 13.4 percent rate of return on common equity.

After reconsidering the case, the commission found the correct rate of return should be 13.2 percent.

The commission said the estimated refund for a typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per month for 12 months would be about $6.36 plus 10 percent interest. The rates for the same customers will be reduced about 22 cents per month.

Commission Chairman Robert Wells and Commissioner Ruth Cook dissented on the rate of return issue, saying Duke Power's rate of return on common equity should be 12.3 percent. They took the same position in the original case.

U.S. Debt Plan Hailed As First Step, But What's Next

By Susanne M. Schafer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration's turn-about proposal aimed at dampening Latin America's debt crisis is getting generally good reviews, despite some reservations that it may not go far enough to quell the region's explosive social unrest.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, spurred on in part by the Venezuelan riots that claimed 300 lives two weeks ago, announced Friday that the U.S. government was switching gears and looking favorably for the first time on forgiving some of the Third World's crushing $1.3 trillion debt.

The new plan turns away from the Reagan administration's policy of piling new debt on top of the old. It is directed primarily at Latin America's most heavily obligated nations, such as Mexico, Venezuela and Brazil, which have accumulated some $410 billion in loans.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a key member of the House Banking Committee and a specialist on international finance, lauded the shift.

"It is clear that the administration has finally kicked the habit. New money will no longer be used to bail out the bad," Schumer said after the Brady speech.

But Schumer said, as did others, that Brady's proposal lacked detail and did not define how extensive the debt relief might be. He noted that the proposal calls for voluntary action on the part of the lending banks.

"Two looming questions remain — how much relief can actually be provided on a voluntary basis and how carefully will that relief be channeled to actually raise living standards in Third World countries," the congressman said.

In their attempts to meet the demands for economic reform from their creditors, Latin American nations have cut wages and government subsidies, resulting in sharply reduced living standards amidst stalled economic growth.

The result, a rising tide of political and economic instability in those key Latin nations, has become the focus of increasing concern to members of Congress and the administration, as well as the international banks that have extended the billions in loans.

In order to encourage the commercial banks to look more favorably on debt forgiveness, the administration also called on the two major international lending institutions — the World Bank and its sister organization the International Monetary Fund — to provide guarantees of interest and other assurances against debts that go bad.

James D. Robinson, chairman of American Express Co. and the author of his own debt relief plan which he put forward in 1988, said after Brady's address:

"The good news is that the momentum is getting underway ... The financing techniques are within reach. The question is whether the political will is there."

He quipped that he was pleased that the concepts of debt relief and debt forgiveness "are no longer ... X-rated words."

Robinson cautioned that the administration must keep the momentum moving and make the plan a top priority when the IMF and World Bank meet in Washington at the end of the month. And it must be pursued at the annual economic summit of the world's leading democracies in Paris in July, he added.

"This is no longer a banking problem, it means jobs and international security," Robinson warned.

Such expressions of concern were echoed by Venezuela's President Carlos Andres Perez, who termed the Brady proposals "very timid," adding that "they do not go far enough to satisfy the minimum aspirations of Latin America."

But the Venezuelan leader also welcomed the proposals for opening "a dialogue with the administration of President Bush."

In Mexico, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari hailed the proposal as "a first and positive response to Mexico's position" and he sent his Treasury Secretary, Pedro Aspe, to Washington for talks with U.S. officails.

Mexico, which is attempting to restructure payments on its $107 billion debt, is seen by several debt experts as the most promising candidate for the new approach.

Both Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a member of the Senate Finance Committee, and World Bank head Barber Conable, asked on Friday for special consideration for Mexico because of its progress toward economic reform.

"If investment is not made and jobs are not created in Mexico, the United States could face a tidal wave of illegal immigration," Bradley warned.

Bradley, in a commentary published in Friday editions of The New York Times, noted that the rise of Mexico's leftist Cardenista Front for National Reconstruction has exactly paralled the drop in living standards.

Unless Mexico is granted sufficient debt relief in a timely fashion, Bradley asserted, America's southern neighbor "will be thrown into economic chaos or revert to self-destructive nationalism."

Soybean Futures Take The Plunge

By David Dishneau
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Soybean futures prices were whipsawed Friday amid reports of a nuclear mishap in West Germany, then plunged to a sharply lower close as news of a volcanic eruption in Guate-mala eased fears of another drought-ridden U.S. growing season.

"Ooh, boy, it was wild," said Victor Lespinasse, a trader with Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in Chicago.

Grain futures finished mixed on the Chicago Board of Trade. On other markets, silver futures gained while gold retreated; livestock and meat futures advanced; and energy futures were mixed.

Soybean futures settled 5 cents to 11 cents lower with the contract for delivery in March at $7.57 a bushel. Wheat was $\frac{1}{4}$ cent to $3\frac{1}{2}$ cents higher with March at $4.36 a bushel; corn was $\frac{3}{4}$ cent to $2\frac{1}{4}$ cents lower with March at 2.75\frac{1}{2}$ a bushel; oats were $\frac{1}{2}$ cent lower to $\frac{3}{4}$ cent higher with March at $2.07 a bushel.

Soybeans rallied at midday following wire-service reports of a nuclear reactor breakdown near Frankfurt, West Germany.

Traders, recalling the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear accident, frantically bought futures contracts on fears of European crop contamination. At one point in the session, the most active soybean contract, for May delivery, was up more than 12 cents from Thursday's close.

But buyers turned sellers on follow-up reports that no radiation had leaked from the reactor. Two out of four emergency cooling systems at the Biblis nuclear power plant problems temporarily broke down, the Hesse state government said.

Selling accelerated shortly thereafter on news of a volcano eruption in Guatemala. The Pacayo volcano, which last erupted in June 1987, was reported to be spewing lava, ash and sand, forcing the evacuation of 255 people.

Analysts said the market's reaction was partly based on a finding published four years ago by Paul Handler, a University of Illinois physics professor, that volcanic eruptions near the equator typically are followed by good growing weather in the United States.

Handler had spoken on the subject last week at a crop-weather symposium in Chicago. He said in a telephone conversation Friday that it was too soon to tell whether the eruption in Guatemala might have some impact on this summer's weather.

Handler said volcanic eruptions can send certain gases into the stratosphere, where they oxidize into sulfuric acid and water, then condense into a sunlight-reflecting fog that can stay there for a year or longer.

"One hundred and twenty years of data show that when you have a low-latitude volcanic eruption, you have good growing weather in the U.S. corn belt," Handler said.

Silver futures built strongly on Thursday's gains on the New York's Commodity Exchange, pushing the price for spot delivery well above the psychologically important $6-a-troy-ounce level breached in the previous session.

Analysts said Friday's national unemployment report, showing a 0.3 percentage point drop in unemployment last month, ignited new inflation fears and brought more dollars into the silver market as a hedge against rising prices.

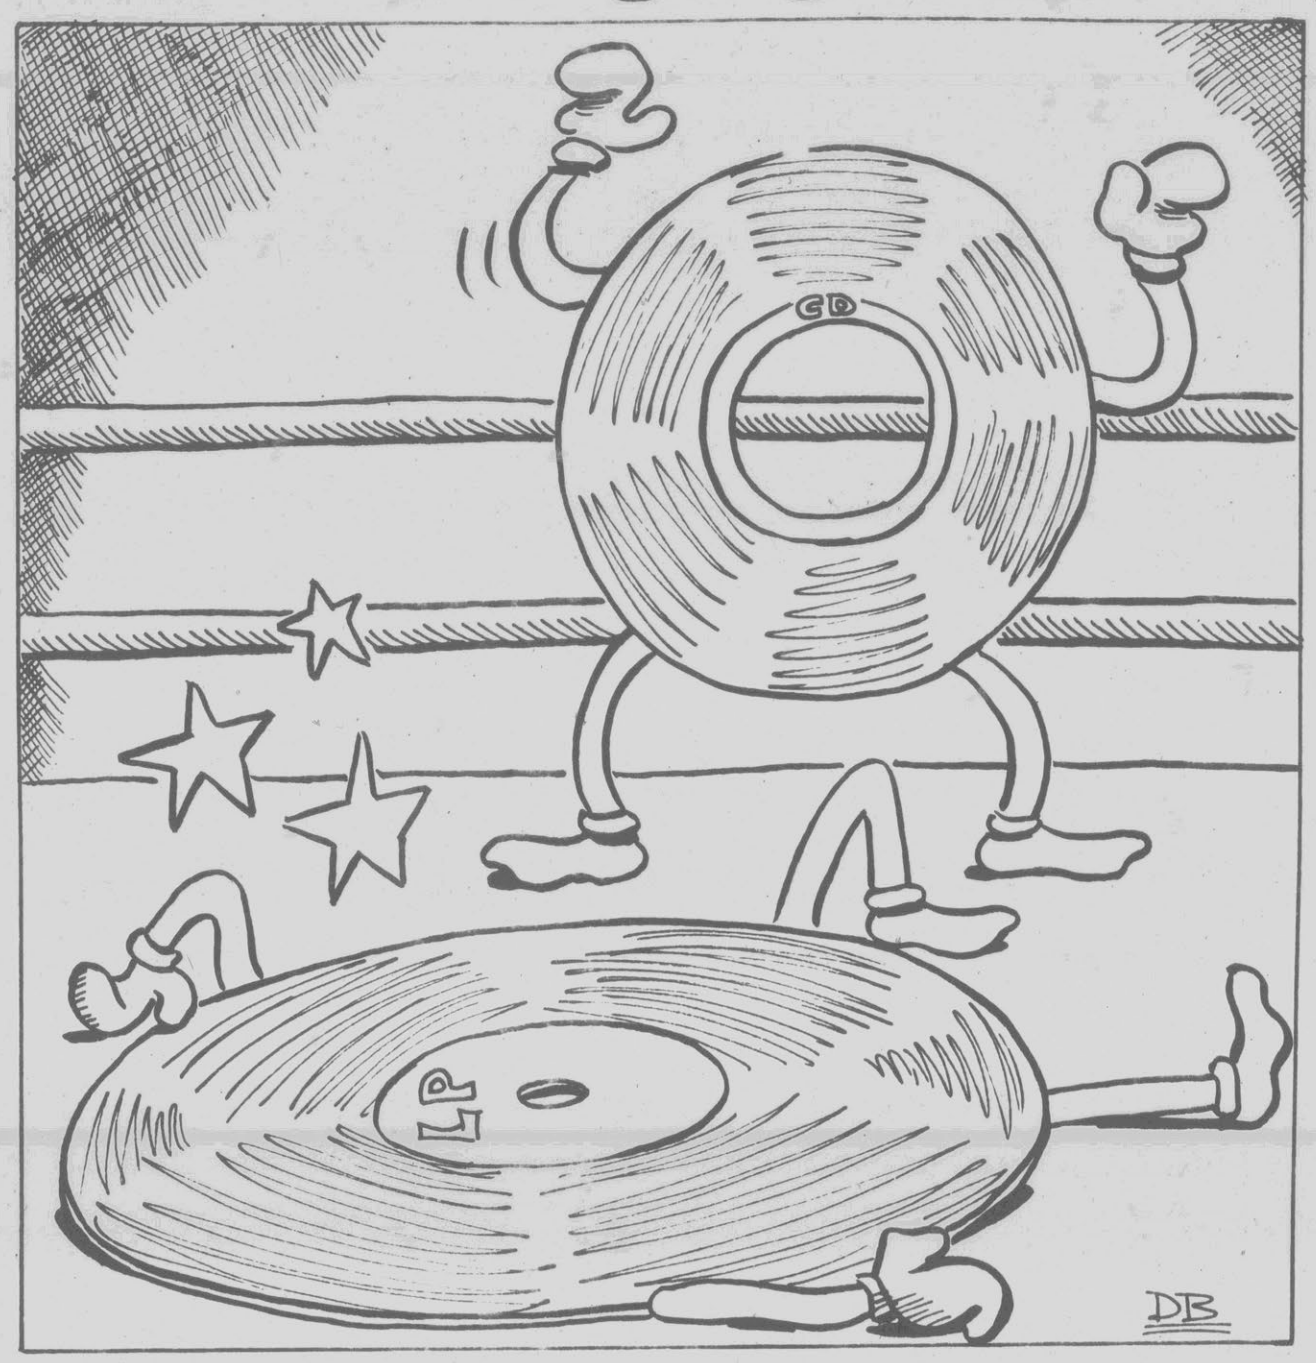
Rise Of CD Is Bringing Demise Of LP



Digital Recordings Top Charts

By Hillel Italie
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The next time producers of the Grammy awards want to pay tribute to the music industry's past, they may have to consider the long-playing record. With LP sales falling drastically and the compact disc's popularity soaring, the future of vinyl seems, at best, limited.

"It's getting close," says Jack Eugster, chairman of the Musicland chain, whose 685 stores nationwide include Musicland and Sam Goody. "I don't think anyone wants to say goodbye, but it's certainly not going to be a category that anybody is going to be stocking in any depth."

Figures released by the Recording Industry Association of America show that in 1985 the CD sold 22.6 million units nationwide compared to 167 million for the LP.

But by 1987, the CD had pulled virtually even, selling 102.1 million units while LP sales dropped to 107 million. Figures available for the first half of 1988 show an even more drastic shift with records moving just 43.5 million units and CDs selling 70.4 million.

While record stores are busy returning unsold LPs, U2's "The Joshua Tree" recently became the first CD to be certified platinum for selling a million copies. The "Dirty Dancing" soundtrack, Def Leppard's "Hysteria," and "Faith" by George Michael have all followed suit.

But as major labels and record stores follow the market, others insist that LPs sound better than CDs and should not be phased out. LPs generally sell for about $8.98 and CDs are in the $10-$20 range.

CDs are digitally mastered (as opposed to analog for LP), a concept first tested in France in the 1920s. Digital recorders sample sound waves at a rate of a little over 44,000 times a second and put them back together, resulting in a "clean" but sometimes hollow sound.

The effect could be compared to watching a film, which consists of a series of still frames run at a high enough speed to give the appearance of a moving picture. Analog recordings pick up everything that's sent out, increasing the chance for hiss and distortion but also producing a fuller sound.

The necessary equipment for digital was not available, however, until the '60s when NHK, the Japanese public televison station, worked with Sony and Denon America to develop prototype recorders.

Digital recordings (also known as PCM, or Pulse Code Modulation) were first demonstrated in the late '60s and became available to the general public in 1972 when Denon released the Mozart Hunting Suite by the Smetana Quartet.

PCM recordings were only available on vinyl and cassette until the '80s when they were issued in the form of a 5-inch "compact disc" developed by Sony and Phillips, and they quickly became the hottest audio item of the decade.

"Analog recordings are subject to the environment and get destroyed. There are old recordings of Vladimir Horowitz that are gone," said Robert Heiblim, executive vice president of Denon America Records, which produces both digital and analog recordings. "With CDs we can just keep making copies so we have it forever.

"What the engineer hears in the recording studio the consumer does not hear on analog. Sometimes they get less than one-fifth the sound quality. The digital allows you to hear what the engineer hears. Also each analog recording we stamp out sounds slightly less good than the first. In compact disc or digital recordings, the millionth copy is the same as the first copy."

But some authorities disagree.

"With the compact disc, you're listening to a musical event without the sense of being there," said Larry Archibald of Stereo File magazine.

"The second thing is that high frequencies in analog are more easily and graciously produced than in digital and the third thing has to do with general low-level information — subtle clues about the recording site and where the recording was made; little details in the sound of instruments. Digital tends to lose this."

Harry Pearson, publisher of The Absolute Sound, also prefers analog recordings.

"You've got to consider that analog technology is 100 years old and it's been refined and perfected," he said. "This is the first generation of digital technology. It's going to take a long time for digital to sound as good as analog. Analogue retrieves more information because digital cannot reproduce a wide band signal."

CDs are not immune to damage. Though no wear occurs during play since they are grooveless and operated by a beam of light, they can still be scatched and dirt stains or smudges can cause mistracking. Extreme temperatures also can damage CDs.

Lou Dennis, the senior vice president of sales at Warner Bros. Records, isn't taking sides. He's letting the sales figures speak for themselves.

"We're not trying to form people's opinion, we're reacting to the market. Our job is to make available what people want to buy," he said. "If the market buys something, it will be available. If I ship 1,000 LPs and take back 582, the market has told me they're not interested."

Because LPs are selling so poorly, four of the six major record companies (Warner Elektra Asylum; Capitol EMI Manhattan Angel; and CBS) have increased their penalties from 5 to 10 percent for records returned. For example, a Sam Goody store might order 1,000 LPs of the new Paul McCartney album but only be able to sell 500. The remaining copies could be returned to the record company but the store would be penalized.

"It's a real challenge to stay in stock. It puts pressure on you to do very well. There are certain titles that are not brought out in LP, that's an increasing percent," Eugster said.

Since the major labels are unlikely to put their entire catalog on CD, analog proponents are worried that some records will become difficult to find. Gene Dingernari, co-owner of Footlight Records, a Manhattan store that buys and sells used LPs, says business has expanded greatly.

"So much of what we have is just not available on CD," he said. "Some of the most expensive records are the ones that were the dogs. They've become very rare and unavailable. We deal with collectors who are still hooked on vinyls."

One such collector is Frank Doris, the technical director of The Absolute Sound. "Ten years ago, you get could get any of Frank Zappa's records, either on Verve or Reprise, for $3 to $5," Doris said. "Now they're worth $15 to $50. Also the Grateful Dead, you could find their albums easily 10 years ago, now they're going for $20 or $30."

The audio magazines, while conceding that digital recordings are here to stay, have urged the music industry not to turn its back entirely on the LP. But Archibald sees little chance of the industry giving way.

"Unfortunately, I see a future where LPs will only fill a niche market," he said. "Most of the major recording studios are now done in digital. Those recordings will inherently miss some of the great information from analog recordings."

CD's Clearly The Winner: Confessions Of A Convert

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

I'll admit I was apprehensive at first, if not down right skeptical.

I'm a traditional sort of person, not inclined to fall for the newest fashions or the latest technological developments to make their way overseas from Japanese electronics factories.

So when I first heard about compact discs, I just assumed it would be another techno-gimmick to be overly marketed to impression-conscious yuppies.

I would be completely satified, I told my own smug self, to continue listening to music through the traditional source of prerecorded music — the vinyl album.

Few indulgences give me greater pleasure than returning from a spending spree at a record store and tearing the clear, plastic wrapping from a brand new album.

But as the price for the compact disc players began to drop to a level that even a journalist could afford, an increasing number of my friends were making the switch to CD's — and loving it.

"The sound is incredible," commented Clay, a local graduate student.

Still, I was unconvinced. My albums sounded just fine, thank you.

"And what about the price," I argued.

For the cost of one CD, I figured I could purchase nearly two albums. Two for one. The sheer economics was enough to keep the platters spinning at my house.

Then I found myself in a crisis.

My turntable suddenly went on the fritz. Diagnosis: terminal.

A few trips to local electronics stores enlightened me that he cost of quality turntables had skyrocketed since the days when I jammed to The Knack in my college dorm room.

I quicky realized that for nearly the same amount of cash, I could have a fairly adequate CD player.

What a dilemma: going digital or staying with vinyl? I sought input from anyone who would offer comment. I bugged my coworkers during deadline. I called my friends long-distance at odd hours.

I simply couldn't decide. Then I received a sudden source of inspiration during at trip to the re-

Dance partners spin at Mars

Manhattan 'Club Kids' Make The Scene

By Beth J. Harpaz
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — There are men who dress like women and women who dress like Madonna, college students whose nocturnal revelry precludes classes before 2 p.m. Theirs is a kinky world of acid-house music, designer drugs and sexual antics in the safe-sex era.

Manhattan dance clubs are a way of life for "club kids" in their late teens and early 20s, many of them from suburbs and small towns where an affinity for late hours and bizarre clothes made them outcasts.

"It's about coming from somewhere where you're really not accepted," says Katarina Markovic, 22, a would-be fashion designer and club regular from Louisville, Ohio. "We are here because we don't fit in somewhere else."

"I started out as an Ivy League student at Columbia, started going to clubs and found it was more fun," says Jeff Bankoff, 20, an emigre from a Boston suburb who has since transferred to a less-demanding college.

Michael Alig, 21, came to New York from South Bend, Ind., to attend Fordham University. But after his introduction to the clubs, he too transferred to an easier school. Today he works as a party promoter, earning $1,000 from club owners for each bash he throws.

He chooses his guests from 12 mailing lists of 1,500 names each, devises a theme ranging from Hawaiian luaus to television commercials, hires the entertainment, orders the food and plays host.

The most outrageous parties are mentioned in the half-dozen periodicals devoted to the club scene or in the gossip columns of the daily tabloids. Good press and fabulous parties provide clubs with the reputations they need to attract people who pay $15 a head to get in.

In contrast, club kids usually get in for free. The trick is to dress outrageously and know the doorman — another source of club employment, one that pays up to $100 for a three-hour shift.

At 1 a.m. on one winter Tuesday, yuppies, businessmen, and sedately dressed college students wait in line outside M.K., a Manhattan club, as the woman working the door whisks Alig and two pals inside. Alig wears makeup, shorts made of fake fur, and suspenders. His roommate wears a cowboy costume. With them is a 19-year-old girl in a decollete black dress.

"Those people are expedited into the clubs," explains Frank Roccio, who owns The World, an East Village club. "They are the happening people, but aside from that, they entertain as well. We want to look at those kids. We want to watch them cavort. Part of the entertainment of the evening is to go home and say, 'Did you see that guy with the blond wig and spangled eye shadow?'"

Bizarre decor and odd locales help set the clubs' anything-can-happen mood. M.K. features a wall lined with bones, and because it is housed in a former bank, giant vault doors open out onto the dance floor.

The hot new club Mars, which opened in January, is housed in a warehouse in Manhattan's meat-packing district at 10th Avenue and 13th Street — described by the New Yorker magazine as "a location that would kill your mother if she knew where you were." Renovating the five-story building cost $1 million and the decorations include a wall of computer chipboards, a rusted piano, old television sets, and a collection of tribal masks.

At M.K., entertainment ranges from a "performance artist" whose act consists of yodeling and shrieking, to a man sheathed in yards of white tulle lying languorously on a sofa beneath a giant canvas splattered with black and white paint. He wears a woman's wig, makeup, high heels — and nothing else.

On the dance floor, illuminated solely by three red track lights, the crowd boogies to acid-house music, a repetitive, fast-paced form of disco with little melody, lots of computer tones, and a generous helping of old dance tracks, remixed and played at mind-numbing volume.

One popular cut, by the British band Bam Bam, is called "Where's Your Child?" The musical question is answered with a deep, sinister echoing laugh and a single word: "Ecstasy."

The reference is to a mood-altering, amphetamine-based pill. Drug Enforcement Administration agents say they can't find ecstasy — formally known as MDMA — on the streets. In the clubs, regulars buy it for $20 a hit.

A 23-year-old art gallery worker describes a typical evening: "I go to the clubs, do ex, and go to work tripping the next day."

While some say ecstasy is the club kids' drug of choice, others say it is merely a fad. Michael Musto, who covers the club scene for the Village Voice, says those who take ecstasy are "a minuscule portion of the population."

Club owner Roccio agrees that alcohol is the substance most often abused by the club crowd. The drinking age in New York is 21, but clubs can admit 16- to 20-year-olds if they don't serve them liquor — a law that is often winked at.

But what's more striking in the clubs than either drug or alcohol abuse is the highly charged sexual atmosphere. Women wear leather bras as outerwear and skirts that are 10 inches long from waistline to hem. Male go-go dancers wear Jockey shorts and sneakers.

Questions To Be Asked

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

It is with great pride I tell you that I can still be shocked. It's not easy in today's world, where guns are shot and no one flinches, and children are fought over and no one cries.

I was shocked the other day by a survey that said by the age of 13, boys who had never had a sexual experience were in the minority, and sexually inexperienced girls were in the minority by age 15. By the time children entered high school, 55 percent of them had engaged in sex.

I'm not going to pull the old chestnut, "In my day, at that age, I still had a doll on my bed and was picking broccoli out of my braces." This is not "my day,' and times have changed. But peer pressure hasn't changed in 200 years.

Peer pressure is a force to be dealt with. It's bigger than we are — stronger than we are. It supersedes the love of our mothers, the threats of our fathers, the wisdom of our grandparents, and even the strength of our own convictions.

It makes a knee hanging out of a rip in your jeans all right. It makes skipping school cool. It makes drinking, taking drugs and sleeping around acceptable. It's not important what you do ... just so long as everyone else is doing it with you.

What's unique about "peer pressure" is that every generation believes they invented it. It's brand-new, and they are the first ones to deal with it.

Kids have been dealing with it since "The Scarlet Letter," when I suspect Hester's mother told her daughter, "You fool around and you'll end up wearing a piece of costume jewelry that does not stand for Academic Achievement."

My parents fought peer pressure with dire predictions. If you had sex before you were married you went blind, your skin broke out and you glowed in the dark. If you broke the curfew or wrecked the car, you were a dead person. If you smoked a cigarette, you couldn't come out of your room until your wedding day.

My generation of parents spawned yet another approach: the Compromise Two-Step. All the other parents were dancing to it, so we too gave in to some peer pressure. We were relieved to know our kids were smoking only cigarettes, not pot. Our son was living with someone ... thank God it was a girl. Our children were engaging in sex, but at least they were prepared. They weren't studying, but at least they were still living at home.

We are in the throes of a new approach to peer pressure -- "Just Say No!" Putting those three little words up against peer pressure is like Pee-wee Herman facing off with Ted Koppel. How can kids say no when parents can barely say it?

How about, "Be Prepared to Live With Yes!"? Drugs will personally screw up your present and your future genetically. Sex in high school is what fills out a graduation gown, if you're lucky enough to graduate or escape disease. If you begin to "prove" your masculinity/femininity, love, loyalty and independence, when does it stop?

Peer pressure carries one of the highest price tags around. Parents and kids alike must ask themselves, "Can we afford it?"

Navy And White Sail Back In

By Sujata Banerjee
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Navy and white have always belonged together, as mandated by Catholic schools and mothers. Navy doesn't show dirt. White is quietly respectable. The combination is very, very nice.

But this kind of reputation has its drawbacks. Young women uniformed in boring navy grew up to dress in sophisticated black or shocking chartreuse. Yet this spring, as talk of "all-American" style is big and the new first lady, Barbara Bush, loves to wear white pearls with her "Barbara Blue" suits, the fashionable are giving navy and white a boost.

Ethan Cohen, a 28-year-old New York designer whose clothes are at Henri Bendel and Bergdorf Goodman, designed his spring collection exclusively in navy and white, with touches of black.

"I wanted my first collection to be simple; I thought it was very chic that way. Navy can work quite well on many women, both for work and after 5:30. I want women to look pretty, have fun and a sense of couture, but not a fashion victim look."

Richer navy is the backbone of many current designer collections. Navy silks and wool crepes used in evening dresses at Anne Klein, Oscar de la Renta and Carolyne Roehm are sexy enough to give them the presence and elegance of black, without the flatness that color sometimes has.

But the bulk of navy and white remains in daywear, and at considerably more moderate prices. Adrienne Vittadini has paired short and long-sleeved navy cardigans with white skirts and blouses. The sweaters are piped with white at the pockets and trimmed with lots of brass buttons. Skirts can be full, pleated numbers or skinny pencil shapes.

Some design houses are going the other way — edging white clothes with navy accents. At Perry Ellis, jumpsuits are edged in navy, as are pajama top jackets. White rayon and cotton blouses with blue piping on collar and pockets are popular at all price levels, in boutiques and junior departments.

And for all-out femininity, look at the plethora of navy-and-white floral and polka-dot print dresses in rayon and crepe, with full, calf-grazing skirts.

When wearing navy and white, there are new fashion considerations. Be careful when it comes to mixing shades of navy. Either shop with your old navy garment in hand, or try to combine it with a piece that has a lot of white in it — a white blouse piped in navy, for example, will not clash with a navy skirt or trousers of a slightly different hue.

CD's Advantages Beat Old-Fashioned LP

cord store. The racks of albums which I previously shuffled through were now racks of CDs. The albums now were banished to a small, corner section of the store. It seemed the decison was being made for me by the record companies.

I also discovered the record company heads were electing to put additional songs on artists' CDs, which were not available on the artist's album.

Marketing treachery!

The next day I traveled into Raleigh and bought my CD player at one of the discount electronics houses.

I haven't regretted the decision once.

In fact, in retrospect I wonder why I even harangued the decision. CD's are incredible. I love 'em. I'm addicted.

I can't get enough of the clear, digital sound. No background hisses or pops makes listening to Steely Dan an outright joy.

I never have to worry about scratches and the accompanying skips to the Beatles, or any other of my favorites.

Best of all, the sound seems so much more vibrant, so rich and full — and louder. I realize that with albums, I was being cheated from hearing all of the music.

Of course one of the greatest benefits of going CD is the welcome element of programablity. When a dud song suddenly comes through my JBL's, I can sit from accross the room and zap it with the remote control. I can even program the entire disc to play through without hearing the undesirable track. I can even play a song 50 times in a row if I so choose, simply by pressing a button.

It sure beats the heck out of trying to locate a particular song on a cassette by fooling around for five minutes with the fast forward and reverse modes on your tape player.

And as for the cost of CDs which I feared so much, Well, I've found that if I shop around and wait for sales, I can usually pick up a brand new release for just a few dollars more than the price of an album. And that's not bad. If the CD isn't abused, it will probably last next to forever.

Of course the record companies know there are CD addicts out there like myself who want all the new releases they can afford and music from the past. Subsequently, the companies are putting out massive amounts of greatest hits packages and compilation collections.

These are made all the more enjoyable due to the ability of CDs to contain a substantially greater amount of music than a record or cassette.

Digital technology has provided me an opportunity to once again enjoy the acoustic brilliance of Peter Framton's "Lines On My Face," the powering bass line on Human League's "Don't You Want Me," and I'll admit to even getting into the CD-enriched "Rock and Roll All Night" by Kiss.

I guess I realized the extent to which CD's have affected my listening habits the other day when, while cleaning the house, I discovered my stack of albums covered with a quarter inch of dust.

"Wow," I thought, "I never even listen to my albums anymore."

It looks like a medium of recorded music which provided generations of enjoyment is coming to an end.

Excuse me while I tear the clear wrapping from my new CD.

Teens Find Home In Night Clubs

Musto says the antics sometimes get out of hand. In one case, he says, a participant in a wet T-shirt contest was nearly gang-raped by clamoring spectators before she was rescued by her boyfriend.

Roccio also sees "a new wildness" on the club scene. "I think there is a revived sexual awakening...We're going through the terrible, terrible reality of the AIDS crisis, and like anything else, we're seeing a backlash on the part of the younger people," he says.

Fear of AIDS dissuades most people from the one-night stands that were common on the New York disco scene in the late 1970s and early '80s. Instead, says Musto, scanty clothing and X-rated entertainment constitute "a sexual three-ring circus. You can't have sex, so you can at least watch a bizarre variation."

The club kids are blase. Despite "the nudity and outrageous dress, people are going home alone," says Andy Anderson, 23, a native of Missouri.

As for the sex antics inside the clubs, a 19-year-old known on the club circuit as Julie Jewels says: "It was all in fun — it wasn't dangerous."

Like many club kids, Jewels has adopted a pseudonym and cultivates an image to match. She wears a long, blonde hairpiece and low-cut, tight dresses, slit up the side, often sequined or black, that she designs herself. She came from the Soviet Union 10 years ago and says her father doesn't mind her club-hopping, as long as she finishes her education at Hunter College.

Jewels' 15 minutes of celebrity have arrived. She was recently photographed by Mademoiselle magazine for an article on clubs, and she even has imitators known as "Julie Jewels Wannabes."

Other club kids speak proudly of phone calls from radio programs, MTV and mainstream magazines for stories on ecstasy and acid-house music. But it's fame on the club circuit that really counts. If the person working the door recognizes you, you've made it.

Roccio, the 40-year-old father of an 18-year-old girl, says the quest for fame began with the club kids' baby-boomer parents.

"We grew up in a world where everyone was going to be exceptional, where everyone was going to be someone," he explains. "The Beatles were just four guys from Liverpool. Elvis was just some guy from Tupelo."

He adds: "We made our kids feel they had every right to be stars."

Mr. Dixon, Miss Robinson Wed

Kimberly Lynn Robinson and Jimmy Moye Dixon Jr. were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Daniel Rivers officiated during the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Sandra M. Gilbert of Winterville and T.P. Robinson of Conners, Ga. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr.and Mrs. Jimmy Moye Dixon Sr. of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her brother, Ronald G. Robinson.

The maid of honor was Beth Manning of Greenville; the matron of honor, Marla Cooke, sister of the bride, of Jackson, Ga.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Crawford, cousin of the bride, Michele Malvaso, Angie Venters, Debra Gurkins and Lorraine Murphy, all of Greenville, and Dinah Stafford, cousin of the bride, of Richlands.

Junior bridesmaids were Farrah Dixon and Valerie Dixon, both cousins of the bridegroom, both of Greenville. Honorary bridesmaids were Patsy Corey and Lisa Hardee, both of Greenville.

The best man was the bridegroom's father; the ring bearer, Hunter Venters of Greenville.

Ushers were Richard Robinson, brother of the bride, of Covington, Ga., Scottie Dixon, brother of the bridegroom, Kurt Ilhy, Eddie Rawls, Louie Dixon, and Paul Pierce, all of Greenville. Junior ushers were Eddie Robinson, brother of the bride, of Conyers, Ga., and John Isenhour, cousin of the bridegroom, of Lenoir.

Music was provided by Della Dixon, organist; Peggy Hardee, pianist; and vocal soloists, Vickie Dixon, the Rev. and Mrs. Jeff Isenhour, ad the Rev. Daniel Rivers.

The bride wore a formal gown of white crystal organza and satin designed with a scalloped deep V neckline accented in back with draped pearl strands. The basque bodice and long pouf sleeves were enhanced with embroidered lace beaded with pearls and sequins and accented with clusters of pearl droplets. The full skirt and cathedral train were enhanced with lace motifs embroidered with pearls and sequins. Ruffled organza and lace bordered the hem of the skirt and garlands of organza ruffles decorated the scalloped train. She wore a V neckpiece of silk flowers and pearls with side sprays and her veil of illusion flowed from a back pouf.

The attendants wore gowns of cerise crystal taffeta designed with dropped waist bodices, sweetheart necklines, pouf sleeves and full flowing hi-low circular skirts enhanced with front cascades and bows. Bouquets of white anthuriums were tied with satin and accented with greenery.

The flower girl wore a white taffeta gown with ruffled apron-effect skirt and cerise cumberbund and bow. She carried a basket of flowers.

Jean Evans directed the wedding. Jennie Harrison presided at the register. Thank you scrolls and programs were given out by Lisa Mayo and Beth Edwards.

A reception was held in the Cherry Fellowship Hall. Cake was served by

MRS. DIXON

Geraldine Smith and Magalene Leary. Guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Baker. Goodbyes were said by Jack Dixon. Rice bags were given out by Christie Dixon, Rachel Isenhour and Gina Isenhour.

An after-rehearsal party was held in the fellowship hall. Several showers were given for the couple.

The bride attended Rose High School and Pitt Community College; the bridegroom, Conley High School and East Carolina University. The bride is employed by Pitt Ear, Nose and Throat Inc., the bridegroom by Buehler Products of Kinston.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will live on Route 13, Greenville.

Kiwanians Set Dance For Benefit On April 1

The Neonatal Unit of the Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina will benefit from an old-fashioned sock hop on April Fool's Day.

The Women's Kiwanis Club of Greater Greenville is sponsoring the by-invitation-only dance to launch its project of funding a $41,535 neonatal intensive care bed. Club members hope to make the dance an annual affair.

Music for the '50s theme dance, which is set for the Greenville Athletic Club, will be provided by the Spontanes. Club members have also promised refreshments and unique entertainment.

Those who received invitations must respond by Wednesday, according to publicity chairman Joanne Honeycutt.

Jeannette Cox is president of the Women's Kiwanis Club of Greater Greenville, the first women's Kiwanis club in the country.

Couple Married Saturday

Cindy Lou Haddock and Stephen Gregory Rhue were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in a candlelight ceremony.

The double-ring ceremony was conducted in the Ayden Christian Church by the Rev. James M. Dailey.

The bride is the daughter of Gene Haddock of Ayden, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Eichorn of Charlotte. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rhue of Kinston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin featuring embroidered schiffli lace, pearls and sequins. The fitted bodice and basque waistline were accented with beaded sequins and pearls and had a bateau neckline. The long, tapered Renaissance sleeves extended to a point with floral lace and pearls. The skirt and cathedral train were trimmed with floral cutouts of matching lace and beads. She wore a double-tier, pearl-edged fingertip veil of illusion attached to a band of silk flowers and lily of the valley. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis with strands of pearls.

Ginger Lynne Haddock of Greenville was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a formal gown in daphne rose featuring a lace fitted bodice, short sleeves with satin ruffles and a satin bow in back. She carried a cascade of stargazer lilies and julibee alstromeria in mauve and pink.

Bridesmaids included Janet Loftin Newman, Cindy Avery Cozart and Pamela Gayle Spencer, all of Greenville, Trudy Haddock Riggs of Ayden and Ella Whitford Setliff of Fremont. They were dressed like the maid of honor.

Honorary bridesmaids were Tammy Powers Burch of Grifton, Jane Bennett Welborn of Williamston and Kimberly Ann Cardwell of King. Each carried a long-stemmed mauve rose.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were William R. Rhue Jr. of Winston-Salem, Kent Titus Painter of Charlotte, Dr. James A. Oldham IV of Greenville, and Christopher Scott Riggs and William Arthur Rouse Jr., both of Ayden.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length dress of mauve silk and the bridegroom's mother wore a tea-length dress of rose silk. Each wore a corsage of mauve roses and miniature carnations.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and received a master's degree from East Carolina University. She is employed by Eastern Construction Co. in Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from Arendell Parrott Academy and Pitt Community College. He is employed by Yale Materials Handling Corp.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Park City, Utah.

MRS. RHUE

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom followed by a dance given by family and friends. Other pre-nuptial parties included a chicken picking, several dinner parties, bachelorette and bachelor parties, and several miscellaneous showers.

Pointers Help Make Your Wardrobe Work For You

NEW YORK (AP) — Rare is the woman who does not have "closet clothes" — those irresistible, impulse pieces that never did, and never will, relate to the rest of her wardrobe.

If you have more than your share of bottomless tops and topless bottoms, here are some tips to get your wardrobe working for you:

— Read fashion magazines. What's new? What are the key pieces? How are they put together?

— Make a "just looking" shopping trip. Shop both in the more expensive boutiques and in discount stores for ideas of what is available and what you might expect to pay.

— Analyze the clothes you have seen. There will always be several concurrent trends, with one best for you.

Mom Should Tell Twins About Their Real Father

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I have twin daughters who will soon be 5 years old. Their natural father broke up with me when I was 3 months pregnant with them.

Since then, I have been married to a wonderful man who has been with me since the girls were 4 months old. The twins' natural father gave all legal rights to my husband. As far as I am concerned, my husband is their natural father.

The problem is that both our families and a few close friends know about this and think we should tell the twins about their natural father.

My husband says if we don't tell them the truth, they might resent it if they ever find out.

I don't want to tell them. Do you think I should? And if so, should I show them the letters and pictures that I have kept? If I do tell them, when should I tell them? — Mommy Of Twins

Dear Mommy: If both families and "a few close friends" know, you can be sure someone will tell your daughters. Save the letters and pictures until they start asking questions about their "real" father. (They surely will.)

Genetics play a very important part in our lives, and every person has the right to know the medical histories of both parents.

Tell them as soon as they are old enough to understand. At age 6 or 7 seems appropriate.

Dear Abby: My fiance and I had a terrible fight, and now I'm not sure I want to go through with the wedding we were planning to have in June. This would be his second marriage and my first. He is a professional man with two nearly grown children by his first wife, from whom he has been divorced for 10 years. I am in my mid-30s and have supported myself since I was 20 years old.

The blowup started when he asked me to sign a prenuptial agreement. I was so hurt and insulted, I tore it up! Abby, I am very much in love with this man, and if the marriage should go wrong, I'm not the type to take him to the cleaners and he knows it, so why is a prenuptial agreement necessary? — Still Smarting

Dear Still Smarting: Smarten up. Today approximately 50 percent of all marriages end in divorce. As I said in my new book, "Dear Abby on Planning Your Wedding" (Andrews and McMeel), a prenuptial agreement is an excellent idea for both parties should the marriage end in death or divorce. It does not necessarily mean that he doesn't "trust" you. Please don't fault him for wanting to ensure that his children by his first marriage are well-provided for. In a prenuptial agreement, you should retain your own attorney to protect your interests. This has nothing to do with "trust" or the lack of it. It's common sense and beneficial for all parties concerned. Trust me.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

ERA Champion Griffiths No Longer In The Battle

By Judy Daubenmier
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LANSING, Mich. — Feminists are readying a second try at ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, but this time they'll have to do it without the help of former congresswoman Martha Griffiths.

It was Griffiths, now Michigan's 77-year-old lieutenant governor, who stalked the halls of Congress to get the 218 signatures needed to pull the ERA out of a House committee and onto the floor for debate, clearing the way for its eventual overwhelming approval by Congress in 1972.

But the amendment was ratified by only 35 state legislatures, three short of the number needed to add it to the U.S. Constitution.

"I think part of the problem is that it's also associated with rights for minorities and you'd be surprised how much racism there still is in this world," says Griffiths, a Democrat.

"Another thing, some men resent tremendously the idea of a woman coming into their offices and really having a chance at promotion."

Griffiths predicts the amendment will be ratified this century as young women become more aware of discrimination.

The next time around, she says, the case for the amendment should be presented in economic terms. "I never had anybody objecting to my trying to get more money for their working wives."

She says women themselves are partially to blame for not being more aggressive in seeking promotions and asking for equal treatment. "I think a lot of women just won't do it," she says.

Griffiths, now in her second four-year term as lieutenant governor, never displayed such reluctance when it came to fighting for women.

Born Martha Wright in Pierce City, Mo., on Jan. 29, 1912, Griffiths is descended from a family that homesteaded in the area.

"My father thought that girls were as smart as boys and he encouraged me," said Griffiths, who grew up going squirrel hunting alongside the boys, out-shooting them because of her steady hands.

She attended the University of Missouri, where she met her future husband, Hicks G. Griffiths. They attended the University of Michigan law school together, graduating in 1940 as the institution's first married couple.

After working together for a Detroit insurance company, the two established their own law firm in 1946. They worked on the successful gubernatorial campaign of G. Mennen "Soapy" Williams in 1948.

Griffiths was elected to the state Legislature and in 1952 ran for Congress. She lost, but won the seat two years later and became the first woman to serve on the House Ways and Means Committee.

"There is where you find how badly women have been treated," she says of the tax-writing panel.

One of Griffith's early targets was Social Security, which she said required women to pay in as much as men but paid women and their children less benefits when they retired or died.

"What kind of nonsense was that?" she asks rhetorically.

Griffiths wrestled with the complexities of Social Security and inheritance tax laws, but her greatest achievement involved adding the word "sex" to the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The effect was to outlaw discrimination against women, blacks and members of other racial minorities and create the basis for countless lawsuits.

Her amendment caught potential opponents flat-footed and it passed before members of Congress knew what they had done.

"It was a glorious accident," she says. "It really changed America."

Feminist leaders revere her.

"She's a legend in her own time," says Marian McCracken, former president of the National Organization for Women and Michigan's representative on NOW's national board.

"She understood sex discrimination way before her time, way before other people did and tried to use her position to do something about it," says Eleanor Smeal, president of the Fund for a Feminist Majority, whose goal is to elect more women to public office.

Griffiths says the push for the ERA changed women's lives even though the amendment did not pass.

Volunteer: Abused Women 'Leave Cracks In Your Heart'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Helen Magers and her co-workers see women battered by segments of a society gone violent.

Women who come into Women Helping Women, a Cincinnati agency where Magers is executive director, are invariably in crisis. Some are fleeing abusive husbands or boyfriends. Some are crossing the country, trying to start new lives.

Recently, a woman who said her husband beat her with a baseball bat arrived with her two children, Magers says.

"Her left eye was swollen shut, her right arm — she couldn't move it," Magers says. "She went to the hospital, but the hospital had no place to keep her kids."

The three were referred to a local shelter.

Last September, a 34-year-old woman who had been visiting the agency for 18 months was murdered. The woman had sought help in coping with an abusive husband The husband, who had been in prison for wife beating, is charged with her murder, Magers says.

Magers began to cry as she recalled the case. "They leave cracks in your heart ...."

Workers from Magers' agency are following the case and attended the man's court arraignment.

"He thinks we're trying to railroad him," Magers says. "We went to his arraignment. He thought our being there put a lot of pressure on the judge."

Women Helping Women was founded in 1973 by graduate psychology students. It began as a general counseling and peer support group and has no national affiliation.

It now includes counseling for rape victims and talking with law enforcement officers and hospital personnel to encourage greater sensitivity in treating and questioning rape victims. Magers says her agency meets monthly at University of Cincinnati Hospital with police, prosecutors and hospital employees.

"The bottom line is, we're trying to make this as easy on the victims as possible," Magers says.

Magers, 44, was a Cincinnati television writer-producer when she says she decided to follow her social conscience. Her career at the agency includes being volunteer, interim executive director and, since 1984, executive director.

"The reason I finally came here is, it was time I put my energies where my big mouth was," she says. "If I was committed to this, it was time I did something about it.

"Coming to this, and learning about this, has been astounding. You can't feel sorry for yourself and work here very long."

Magers was reared as a Southern Baptist farm girl in tiny Pee Wee Valley, Ky. "I grew up like one of the Little Women," she says, "I didn't know there were things like incest or rape."

The agency is housed near the Hamilton County Courthouse, where volunteers often accompany women to court. It has eight full-time staffers, one part-timer and about 100 volunteers.

The agency serves about 10,000 people a year. There are no fees, Magers says.

Money from the United Way, city and state grants and a weekly bingo game help fund a $300,000 budget, Magers says.

To Her, 300 Dozen Cookies Are All In A Day's Work

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

QUINTER, Kan. — Carolyn Emig says she finds it difficult to bake only for her family of four.

"I don't even like to make one pie crust, so I mix 40 or 60," she says.

Or she might make a hundred dozen or more fried cinnamon rolls or up to 300 dozen cookies.

She likes to bake. But her efforts in the kitchen aren't just for pleasure. They help her and her husband, Walt, pay for their farm.

For more than 10 years, Emig has baked bread, pastries and cookies to help make ends meet. It all began in her basement but has since moved to a sun-filled, converted mobile home, its walls painted glossy white.

"I didn't want a job that would mean leaving my family," she says. "Here I can help out and be at home, too. But I try not to take so many orders that they crowd into my family life."

Every Tuesday, she makes fried cinnamon rolls that she delivers to convenience stores in Quinter and Hays. On other days, she bakes special orders, such as 52 dozen dinner rolls for a wedding. And about once a month, she bakes up to 300 dozen cookies that will be frozen and later thawed to fill orders from local businesses or homemakers.

She says she will bake almost anything, but she draws a line at decorating cakes. "They take too much time. I'd rather go by volume."

Her kitchen, which takes up most of the mobile home, becomes an assembly line when she hires several neighbors to help with her monthly cookie bake-in.

"You're rolling out dough, glazing and taking them out of the fryer all at the same time," Emig says. "I need help."

She apologizes for the "handmade" look of her baked goods, pointing out that the trays full of gooey fried rolls aren't entirely uniform.

"None are shaped the same," she says.

But it's that homemade appeal that makes them sell.

"I'm picky about the ingredients," she says, adding that she uses only freshly ground unbleached white or whole-wheat flour, butter instead of margarine, and pure vanilla.

"I use real butter in my gingersnaps. I wouldn't use anything else," she says. "But in my soft sugar cookies, I use lard, otherwise it doesn't have the right flavor."

Emig says baking is a tradition among German Baptists like her family. In Ohio, where there are large settlements of German Baptists, family-owned bakeries and meat markets are common.

Their faith, she says, emphasizes family involvement in business.

"We work for the glory of God," she says, "because if God doesn't build it, it isn't worthwhile."

But she also has another reason for baking.

"I get to see lots of people," she says, "and I like people."

'Most Hated Woman' Plans To Be Remarried

By Henry Stern
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLINTON, N.J. — Convicted child killer Elizabeth Diane Downs, who describes herself as the most hated woman in America, giggles nervously as she talks of her plans to marry a former police officer from Oregon.

The 33-year-old former mail carrier, one of Oregon's most notorious criminals of modern times, also smiles a lot when she talks about a new book about her trial which is due out this spring.

Ms. Downs was sentenced to life in prison plus 50 years for killing her 7-year-old daughter and wounding her two other children on a rural road outside Springfield, Ore., on May 19, 1983. An appeal of the conviction was set aside without comment on Jan. 4.

She was transferred to the Correctional Institution for Women in New Jersey after she escaped in July 1987 by scaling a fence at the Oregon Women's Correctional Center in Salem. She remained at large for 16 days until she was found with a group of men less than a mile from the prison.

Prison authorities believe she has less chance of escaping in New Jersey because she doesn't know anybody here and she would have no place to run.

Prison guards at Clinton say Ms. Downs keeps to herself, but associates say she thrives on publicity. As one guard put it, "The last thing her ego needs is another interview."

"She sees a camera and her whole world brightens," says Ann Rule, a Seattle-based author whose book, "Small Sacrifices" about the Downs case rode the best-seller list of The New York Times for 25 weeks this year.

"I don't believe she has any emotion for her children beyond the fact that they're her possession and somebody took them away from her."

Prosecutors charged that the children were shot because Ms. Downs believed they interfered in her relationship with a boyfriend who did not want to be a father.

Ms. Downs contends that a stranger flagged down her car shot her and the children. She was wounded by a single bullet in the left arm.

"What happened the night of the shooting was so horrendous, so unexpected, so unbelievable," Ms. Downs said in a recent jailhouse interview. "I'm very self-disciplined and I need to have control of my own existence. I just reached a point of not knowing what was real and what wasn't."

Cheryl Lynn Downs, 7, was killed. Fourteen year-old Christie Ann was left handicapped in her speech, 9-year-old Danny is paralyzed from the waist down. The lead prosecutor in the case, Lane County Assistant District Attorney Fred Hugi, adopted the children.

Ms. Downs says she spends her time exchanging letters with her new fiance, whom she described as a former police officer who saw her on "The Oprah Winfrey show" and wrote her because he felt sorry for her.

"Anybody who would want to be involved with the most hated woman in America must be a nut," Ms. Downs says. "But he's not a wacko. He's genuine."

She declines to indentify the man except that he's a former Oregon police officer who has since moved to New Jersey.

"I'm lucid. I've been married before and I said I never would do it again. But I'm in love," said Ms. Downs, who was married for eight years to Steve Downs, an electrician and farm laborer.

Kim White, a state Corrections Department spokeswoman, confirmed that Ms. Downs has asked the department for permission to marry the man. Ms. White also would not identify him.

She said the couple are in the preliminary stages of applying for permission to marry. They still must meet with the prison chaplain and obtain the approval of the superintendent who submits the request to a committee for a recommendation.

New Jersey does not permit conjugal visits, she added.

Ms. Downs, who earned an associate's degree in general studies while imprisoned in Oregon, has also completed a book, "Best-Kept Secrets," scheduled for release in April by Danmark Publishing, based in Springfield, Ore. About 75 percent of the 350-page book will be direct quotes from the trial transcript, Ms. Downs said.

A spokesman for Danmark says that any profits from the book will go to the state of Oregon under a law passed in the wake of the Downs case.

Its release surely will spark more discussion of the case, but Ms. Downs says she doesn't believe her children will suffer if people talk about her case.

"How could the truth hurt the kids?" Ms. Downs says. "I get so frustrated when I hear things like that...How can the truth hurt anybody unless they're a liar?"

But Ms. Rule says the truth that she observed in the nine-month trial was a guilty Ms. Downs, who was pregnant at the time with another child, who was later put up for adoption.

"I've never seen anyone as manipulative as Diane," Ms. Rule says, describing her as "sociopathic, histrionic and narcissistic."

"I think she knows what she did," Ms. Rule says. "The truth is buried so deep that she doesn't have to think about it. She's not crazy though."

But Ms. Downs denies her guilt and says the bonds between her and her children remain.

"They're part of my body that broke away," she says. "They love me but at the same time they're uncomfortable with ever being with me again."

Ignoring His Epitaph, Tourists Flock To Grave Of Poet Yeats

By Hugh A. Mulligan
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DRUMCLIFF, Ireland — Fifty years after his death, tourists by the busload and in a procession of rental cars pay scant heed to the epitaph William Butler Yeats had carved on his tombstone in the little churchyard here:

"Cast a cold eye
"On life, on death.
"Horseman, pass by!"

Last year, 50,000 visitors from as far away as Japan and Australia trooped into the Church of Ireland graveyard "under bare Ben Bulben's head," the flattopped mountain that like a huge grand piano with the lid down echoes the winds and waves of the wild Atlantic. Some carried well-thumbed volumes by the Nobel laureate regarded by many as the sublimest poet of the English language since Milton.

"Even on the foulest, wettest day, if I leave the church open, someone is sure to come by and sign the guest book," says the Rev. Robert Hayman, an American from San Francisco by way of Seattle who is rector of St. Columba's, the rural Protestant parish where Yeats' great-grandfather had served.

Record numbers are expected for this year's semicentennial observance of the poet's death. In August, scholars and lecturers from around the world will gather for the 30th session of the Yeats International Summer School.

For something to write postcards home about besides "the most wild and beautiful scenery under a sky ever loaded and fantastic with flying clouds," as Yeats described it, there is renewed controversy over whether the poet actually lies beneath the epitaph he composed four months before his death in 1939. For certain, his wife is buried there, memorialized by a smaller stone engraved "George," which also mystifies visitors.

"Like a plague of locusts, that question of the wrong body in the grave comes up every seven years," scoffed Aengus Cantwell, president-elect of the Council of the Yeats Society, which administers his library and memorial in the old Royal Bank building in Sligo. "Willie probably would have enjoyed this morbid joke on himself, but it's very distasteful for his son, Michael, and daughter, Anne, to have to go through it all over again."

Yeats in declining health sought the warmth of the French Riviera, where he died on Jan. 28, 1939. The outbreak of World War II delayed compliance with his wish to be buried at Drumcliff, so his casket was taken to the little cemetery at Roquebrune on the heights overlooking Menton and Monaco in the shadow of the Alps.

Rumors of what happened there resurfaced last fall when British biographer Diana Souhami was researching the life of Dutch painter Hannah Gluck, a close friend of Yeats. She reported finding "letters from the priest in Roquebrune and the undertakers" casting doubt on who was buried where. Her version has Georgie Yeats, the poet's widow, consigning his remains to a temporary grave, which she thought would remain untouched for at least 10 years. Instead, claimed the writer, he was buried in a paupers' grave "with four or five others," which was cleared in 1946 and "all the bones placed in a common ossuary."

Biographer Souhami said artist Gluck and journalist Edith Heald visited Roquebrune a year later and "were shocked to find no trace of Yeats' grave." Gluck had friends write to the priest, who replied that it would be possible to identify the poet's remains "if we empty the entire contents of the ossuary and if we have details of distinctive characteristics which will enable us to reconstruct the skeleton after painstaking research carried out under the direction of a medical expert."

But, according to Souhami, "Yeats' purported remains were exhumed and shipped to Ireland just one month later — much too soon to enable the bones to be indentified" with scientific precision.

In a letter to the Irish Times, Michael Yeats, a member of the Irish Senate like his father, denounced her claims as "the greatest nonsense." He insisted his mother had overlooked the whole operation and the remains were measured. "It is absolutely certain that my father is buried in County Sligo," he wrote. "I have the documentation to prove it."

All of which keeps alive a bizarre and macabre tale of the sort William Butler Yeats would have relished hearing from the farmers and fishermen around Sligo Bay and retelling in glorious, ghoulish detail in his folk collection titled "Mythologies." Even the reburial of Yeats at a grand state funeral is an enduring chapter in the oral history of Ireland's wild west.

The American critic Hugh Kenner found this out when he interviewed the locals more than three decades after that September morning in 1948 when the Irish gunboat Macha brought the remains to Galway harbor "whence they bumped to Sligo, past knots of schoolchildren standing mute with their teachers, along roads never built for a poet's gliding."

He was told "for a fact" how "the coffin was a substitute filled with stones, how drunken sailors let the original slide into the unplumbed Mediterranean; also how the Macha ran aground in Sligo harbor before being diverted to Galway, and how her load, whether stones or lead-encased bones, instantly broke the hearse's springs."

It's almost a tale told by "Silly Willie himself," as Cantwell said Sligo people still characterize the poet from his habit of walking solitary and often barefoot along the strand at Rosses Point, through the woods of Lissadell, on the lake isle of Innisfree, up tortuous trails to the barren heights of Ben Bulben and Knocknarea and the other childhood haunts that echo in his lovely lines.

Yeats was born in Dublin, lived much of his life in London and died in France. Yet he always regarded Sligo, where he spent every boyhoood summer, as his home. His barrister father gave up law to become a painter. His brother, Jack, was Ireland's leading artist.

His mother's side of the family, the seafaring Middletons and Pollexfens, were steamboat captains, smugglers and eventually prosperous ship owner's on whom a poor poet could always depend for a free passage home from Liverpool.

Young Willie spent many summers with Uncle Henry Middleton at Elsinore House, which had a secret tunnel for the delivery of contraband from the beach and the ghost of that smuggling ancestor strolling the veranda or tapping at the window pane.

Nearby lived bachelor uncle George Pollexfen, a spirit-raising medium who imbued Yeats with a lifelong infatuation with horoscopes, seances, crystal balls, tarot cards, telepathy and remembering bizarre dreams like the apparition of "Bernard Shaw as a smiling sewing machine."

Which Way Is Up Mystery Solved For O'Keeffe Painting

By Richard Benke
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA FE, N.M. — Before Georgia O'Keeffe's painting of the Lawrence Tree left Connecticut on a traveling show for the National Gallery 16 months ago, the trunk had been at the bottom and the branches at the top.

Now it's going back to the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford with the tree standing on its head.

Curators say "on its head" is what the artist intended when she painted the towering pine at author D.H. Lawrence's ranch north of Taos 60 years ago, but one of them adds that the National Gallery's decision to show it that way has caused "a firestorm of controversy."

In her last 10 years, O'Keeffe chose at least three times to show the tree upright — on a poster, in a television documentary and in a book of her collected works. The Wadsworth similarly displayed it reaching upward toward a starlit sky. But her final intentions were never made clear. O'Keeffe, who had lived near Abiquiu since 1940, died in Santa Fe in 1986 at the age of 98.

"I warned the curators at the National Gallery that this would become a subject of discussion. Of course, if Georgia O'Keeffe were alive, one word would clarify it," says Juan Hamilton, a fellow Abiquiu artist who was O'Keeffe's helper and confidant during her last 13 years.

The Viking Press and Hamilton say her 1976 book version was intentional.

O'Keeffe and Hamilton also displayed the painting with the tree upright on a WNET-TV PBS documentary in 1977.

In 1981, she gave the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival the right to use the painting on a poster, again indicating a preference for the upright tree. and the festival last month reprinted 5,000 copies showing it that way.

"This was the agreed-upon orientation for our poster," festival marketing director Daniel Kosharek says.

"She said she looked at the tree from several directions and several ways, and she felt that the painting could be hung from any direction," Kornhauser said.

The Wadsworth chose to hang it with the tree reaching toward the top edge of the canvas. But Kornhauser is convinced that the National Gallery research is correct, and from now on the Wadsworth will show the painting with the tree pointing toward the bottom.

In a 1929 letter to Rebecca Strand, O'Keeffe wrote of her four-month trip to New Mexico, including a visit to the Lawrence ranch: "I also got a painting of the big pine tree as you see it lying on that table under it at night. It looks as though it is standing on its head with all the stars around — pretty good — for me."

In a 1931 letter to art critic Henry McBride, O'Keeffe remarked that a picture of the painting in an art magazine lost the point by showing it "standing on its ear. ... That tree should stand on its head."

Hamilton says the artist "was a little more flexible than some of the viewers of this work," and either way may be considered correct today.

"She was a person involved in change. She wasn't a stagnant person," Hamilton says. "If she was hanging a show, she would allow herself to do something similar" and hang a painting differently.

"We don't mean to bind her to the prior decision, but we would think ... that the 1930s decision had a greater pertinence to the original inspiration," he said.

Cowart cited "the inverse visual logic that the artist had in the '30s." Other O'Keeffe paintings could be hung in multiple directions, including the 1929 Black Hollyhock painted at Mabel Dodge Luhan's Taos adobe.

Despite the documentation, Cowart says the decision to show the Lawrence Tree in its original orientation touched off "a firestorm of controversy."

"We've been dealing with it since the exhibition opened. They think they've caught us in a mistake. ... We didn't realize that the Viking book would have such an indelible impact on the public's memory."

The National Gallery tour was timed to coincide with the 100th anniversary of O'Keeffe's birth and should honor her creative intent, Cowart says. "This (inversion) was not a caprice or whimsy. It was out of reverence to the piece.

Hamilton says O'Keeffe would have gotten a laugh out of it, too.

"Probably nothing would have amused Miss O'Keeffe more than people worrying about whether her painting was right side up or right side down," says Hamilton, one of three co-personal representatives of the O'Keeffe estate and co-curator of the National Gallery show.

The traveling exhibition closed Feb. 5 at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. The show also visited Chicago and Dallas after opening in Washington in November 1987. It now heads for Los Angeles for a March 31 opening.

However, the Lawrence Tree won't be included in the Los Angeles visit, which was tacked onto the schedule as an afterthought. The painting returns to the Wadsworth, because the owners felt it had been away long enough.

Old Zanzibar Quarter Is Under Restoration

By Didrikke SChanche
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ZANZIBAR, Tanzania — More than a century after Arab slave traders and gold and ivory merchants built their lavish homes, shops and bazaars near Zanzibar's flourishing harbor, the labyrinthine old quarter is crumbling.

Now, the government is trying to restore the district known as Stone Town to at least a semblance of its former glory through a process very similar to the gentrification of rundown neighborhoods in England and the United States.

Stone Town never ceased to be a commercial focal point for the Spice Island. Its elaborately carved, brass-studded wooden doors and the lattice-work balconies hanging over narrow alleys embody Zanzibar's intertwined Arab, Asian and African heritage.

During 20 years of social and economic upheaval, Stone Town was neglected and suffered severe deterioration. But with new money created by the government's 5-year-old policy of economic liberalization and $400,000 in technical assistance from the United Nations, Zanzibar hopes to reverse the decay.

The effort is led by Ahmed Sheikh Ahmed, director of the Stone Town Conservation and Development Authority, which has put most of its resources not into renovating the buildings but selling them.

"The idea of selling the buildings is not to get money, the idea is to get people to look after the buildings," said Ahmed.

After a revolution by Zanzibar's black majority in 1964, many of their abandoned buildings were confiscated by the socialist government, which converted them into multi-family dwellings for low-income families and newly arrived rural peasants.

Many of the dilapidated structures now pose a potential danger to tenants and shoppers in the quarter's busy alleys, said Ahmed. During heavy rains in 1984, seven buildings collapsed, killing five people, he said.

Stone Town is home to an estimated 18,000 people.

It is Zanzibar's historic seat of government and still houses most of the island's official offices, 40 percent of the city's classrooms, the majority of its mosques, temples and churches, as well as banks, movie houses, hotels, restaurants and the island's main market.

It contains the remains of a stone fort built by Omani Arabs in the 1700s, a palace built by the island's Arab rulers in the mid-19th century, the home of Tippu Tub, a notorious slave trader, and other historically or architecturally valuable buildings.

Since 1985, the development authority has overseen the sale of 120 buildings and Ahmed credited the sales to the nation's economic liberalization policies that opened doors to free enterprise.

"Before 1984, most shops were closed. After 1984, most shops opened. Now they can do business, make money and repair buildings," Ahmed said.

Natural Light Needed By African Violets

In addition to being one of the most popular house plants, the African violet, with its deep green leaves and bright purple, pink and white flowers, is one of the most difficult plants to grow.

The plant requires both high temperature and humidity. The proper amount of natural light intensity, necessary to induce flowering, is difficult to obtain in many homes. Even when the correct intensity is obtained, there often is not enough light duration to ensure the best flowering.

According to horticultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University, African violets should be exposed to direct light during the very early morning hours. East windows and porches are ideal locations for the plants.

To establish whether or not your plant is receiving the proper amount of light, look at its leaves. Dark green leaves with long petioles indicate a lack of sufficient light. If the leaves are bleached, small and tough, and the petioles are short, the plant has been overexposed to light.

African violets require a well drained, high organic soil. Several commercial soil preparations for African violets are available on the market.

Specialists recommend fertilizing the plants with one teaspoon of high analysis water soluble fertilizer per gallon of water. Treat the plants with the solution once every four weeks. Apply enough of the solution to ensure that at least 10 percent drains through the bottom of the container.

After fertilizing, soluble salts may cause a white crust to form on the edge of the pot. Potential stem damage may be prevented by waxing the pot rim with paraffin.

The amount of watering depends on the room temperature, humidity, container type, plant age and growing medium. However, specialists recommend checking the soil daily and watering it when it feels dry to the touch.

Sounds, Smells Of Asian Subcontinent Abound In London

By Maggie Jackson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Just a 20-minute walk east from the spires of London's high finance and the dome of St. Paul's, signs of England melt away into the sounds and smells of the Asian subcontinent.

The mosque's wailing call to prayer drowns out the the toll of the church bell, swishing sari robes replace pinstripes and the scents of roast lamb and spice perfume the air in Brick Lane — the "new world" for Britain's latest immigrants, people from Bangladesh.

Since the first Bangladeshis stepped off the boats three decades ago, some 30,000 have streamed into this part of London's East End. Like the Jews once predominant here, they have struggled to learn English, find shelter and work, and preserve their culture.

A century ago Brick Lane was an area of infamous squalor, where Jack the Ripper stalked his victims. In World War II it was heavily bombed, and soon Jews began moving out, leaving the low-built houses and narrow streets to what has become the largest single concentration of Britain's 160,000 Bangladeshis.

Initially arriving for transient work, they have brought families, built five mosques in a square-mile area of Tower Hamlets borough and opened leather shops and grocery stores filled with chutneys and mangoes. One mosque used to be a synagogue.

Having laid down roots and grown in number, the Bangladeshis have also discovered self-assertiveness, and have adopted a higher profile in demanding their rights as Moslems.

They want more sexual segregation in state-funded schools where their children are in the majority, as well as government money for their private schools.

Salman Rushdie's novel "The Satanic Verses" became an issue in mid-February among the Bangladeshis.

Not all supported Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's call to kill Rushdie and his publishers. But they were vociferous in denouncing the novel as an insult to their faith, Islam.

In many ways the issue wasn't about Rushdie's book, said Iqbal Wahhab, editor of the Asian Herald, an English-language weekly.

"It was about the reassertion of Moslem values onto British society which they feel have been ignored."

The Bangladeshis have begun to shed the immigrant mentality and think of England as home.

"Five, 10 years ago, our people send all money to Bangladesh and think 'I'm just working here,'" said Siraz Miah, a 28-year-old whose tiny leather factory is up a narrow staircase strewn with leather scraps.

"Now we think it's our country. Now people have house and business. Now is better."

His 12 workers stitch 300 jackets a week on old sewing machines, surrounded by head-high piles of hide and the acrid smell of chemicals. They are among the fortunate. Twenty-seven percent of East End Bangladeshis are jobless.

It was factories like this that prompted Prince Charles, during a 1987 visit, to liken Brick Lane's workplaces to subcontinent sweatshops.

Something must be done, said the heir to the British throne, and the business community responded with 1.5 million pounds ($2.6 million) in donations for job-creation projects.

Syed Bodrul Islam, who works the Tower Hamlets Center for Small Business, a job-promotion agency, says his focus is with the younger generation like Miah.

A former social worker, Islam helps his clients apply for interest-free loans for businesses, ranging from shops to market stalls.

"Many were not educated, even in Bangladesh," he added. "But the younger generation are very important.

"The old people who came years ago have a lot of problems. They can't read or write. ... Some came over with 5,000 or 6,000 pounds," $9,000 to $17,000 in 1960.

Arriving mostly from the Sylhet region of Bangladesh, formerly East Pakistan, many early settlers were ship's cooks, with few skills and little English, who came alone intending to return home someday.

Families followed, sometimes nearly a decade later because of Britain's tightening immigration laws, and a community grew. Now their children speak with Cockney accents.

"We have heard that Moslem girls choose boyfriends freely and go to discos. It's worrying us — what comes next?" said Daslim-Ali, a leader of the East London Mosque near Brick Lane.

Others trust the collective identity forged in Brick Lane to teach the children.

"Nowadays lots of Bangladeshis are here, so our children know how we behave," said Taiyabur Rahman, 55, who came in 1959 to open the first Bangladeshi travel agency in London.

"As long as our children are with us, they won't be lost."

But while life improves, problems remain.

Racist violence, a threat wherever Britain's 800,000 Asian immigrants are clustered, is acute in Tower Hamlets. The Tower Hamlets Association for Racial Equality says it received about 2,500 complaints of racial harassment in 1987, mostly over beatings and broken windows. It reported seven arson attacks on Asian homes, none of which caused injuries.

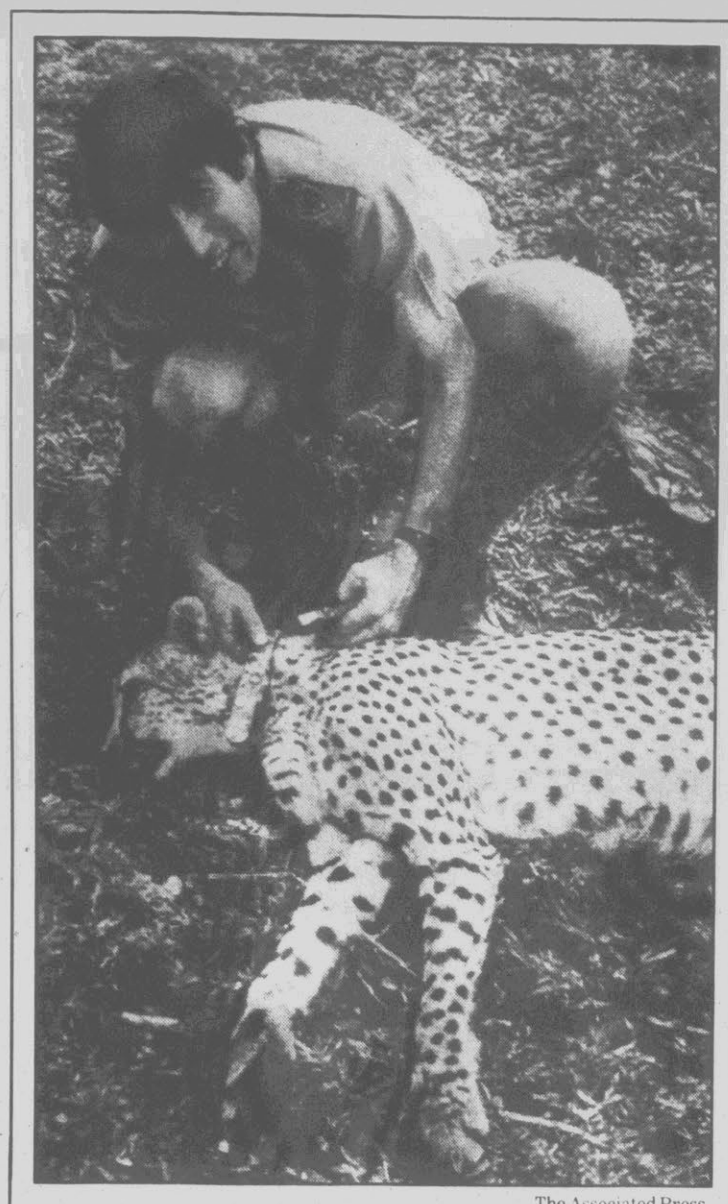
Woman Keeps Watch On The Everglades



The Associated Press

By Brian Murdphy
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Marjory Stoneman Douglas stands watch over the Everglades with the temperament of the ancient sawgrass that dominates the wetland expanse.

Douglas can one moment be smooth and genteel, her hands folded across her lap and her voice hinting at the refinement of her New England upbringing more than three generations ago.

Yet, like the sawgrass, she will cut for the bone when rubbed the wrong way.

"It's not a question of if we can save the Everglades. We must," said Douglas, who will celebrate her 99th birthday April 7. "There is no choice to consider. Without the Everglades, much of Florida is lost, too."

Water is the gift of the Everglades, a soggy plain that ends a 300-mile water system running the center of the Florida peninsula. This slow-moving "River of Grass"— the description in the title of Douglas' 1947 book — starts an atmospheric chain reaction that brings rain to the populated coastal areas during the six-month wet eason.

"Whether you're a developer or an environmentalist, the message is still the same: if the Everglades go, then South Florida becomes a desert," she said.

The greatest threat is not pollution, she contends, but the draining of land to accommodate the population boom in one of the nation's fastest-growing states.

"I'd say about 80 percent of the Everglades are unspoiled," said Douglas. "But what I'm most worried about is man's ignorance of the importance of the Everglades. The people coming to Florida know nothing about the Everglades. That is our greatest peril."

Age has clouded Douglas' sight. But her vision is reaching new horizons.

Recent attention to the Everglades has brought renewed attention to Douglas' lifelong crusade.

In January, Douglas traveled to New York to join talk show host Oprah Winfrey and four others as Ms. magazine's women of the year. Douglas was featured as ABC News' person of the week on Jan. 13 and was interviewed on NBC's "Today" show in February.

But she was conspicuously absent from a three-day conference on the Everglades in January, which featured more than 200 environmental experts and officials.

Douglas said she now prefers to surrender the more high-profile events to members of the Friends of the Everglades, a group she founded in the 1960s. Instead, Douglas likes to greet visitors in the stucco cottage she built in 1926 in the lush Coconut Grove section of Miami.

From her easy chair surrounded by cassette tapes of books, she receives word on the political battles being waged over the Everglades.

In the north, farmers are fighting proposed regulations to limit nutrient-rich runoff that is clogging Lake Okeechobee with algae. West of Miami, where the march of development is most rapid, environmental groups are pushing Gov. Bob Martinez to purchase 105,000 acres to expand the Everglades National Park, which Douglas helped create in 1947.

And in Florida Bay, on the southern edge of the Everglades Park, President Bush in January was shown sea grass beds killed by changes in water supply from the maze of canals and levees constructed throughout the Everglades this century.

Douglas also continues to lead the effort to remove a $30 million canal system that has diverted the Kissimmee River flowing into Lake Okeechobee.

"Why do people worry about me and my age so much?" said Douglas, who disdains ambiguity and speaks in direct, crisp phrases. "I get by. Let's concentrate on the real problems."

Death, in Douglas' view, is the end. She believes in no afterlife for herself or for South Florida if the Everglades perish.

Throughout her life, Douglas has kept a distant relationship with the Everglades. Even when her sight was good, she rarely traveled into the grass and cypress interior. Besides, she says, there are too many bugs.

"I suppose you could say the Everglades and I have the kind of friendship that doesn't depend on constant physical contact," Douglas wrote in "River of Grass," the product of five years' research that turned her from a struggling novelist to one of the region's experts.

In 1915, Douglas left a domineering husband and boarded a southbound train in New Jersey. Her destination was literally the end of the line. Miami was then a ramshackle railway terminus of 5,000 residents where ice was scarce and dreams of riches in real estate abounded.

It was also home to her father, a lawyer who founded what would become The Miami Herald newspaper with a printing press he collected on a bad debt.

In 1943, Douglas began a novel to help overcome an emotional breakdown following her father's death two years earlier. When a publisher asked her for a book on the tiny Miami River, she felt it too insignificant. She persuaded the publisher to consider a treatise on the Everglades water system.

Nearly 50 years later, the book is still in print. Among her other eight books are "Florida: The Long Frontier" and "Alligator Crossing," a children's book.

Although she can no longer use a typewriter, Douglas is determined to dictate the final draft of a biography on the 18th century English environmentalist W.H. Hudson.

When both Miami and Douglas were young, the land-hungry speculators in South Florida thought draining the Everglades necessary to unlock the region's potential.

She hopes that maturity brings wisdom.

"Look how far we've advanced just in my lifetime," said Douglas. "Greed is still something we have yet to learn to control."

River History Compiled

By Ann Henderson
FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GENEVA, Ala. — Only geese and ducks now occupy the peaceful junction of the Pea and Choctawhatchee rivers. But visitors can relive a time when cotton-laden steamboats smoked watery prosperity into the port of Geneva.

In an attempt to recapture the historical flavor of the early days of the original river town, the Geneva Woman's Club spent three years compiling official records, interviews with old-timers and existing newspaper accounts into "Geneva, Alabama — A History."

The 294-page volume is not just a boring factual recount of the people and businesses that occupied the first of three Genevas, said Abbie Harris Beck, chairwoman of the committee which put the book together.

"We wanted to make the book as interesting as possible, as well as a publication which attempts to identify the early businesses, transportation, economics, social and religious life from the first trading post to the coming of the railroad," she said.

One story, included from notes supplied by Chipley historian E.W. Carswell, relates the first impressions of an attorney who stayed at the Pace Hotel while waiting for his journey to continue by riverboat to Pensacola, Fla.

The man arrived at the junction by stagecoach and checked into the hotel for an overnight repast, according to the story.

He was so appalled by this most God-forsaken place that he missed his boat while writing to his hometown to send a missionary quick. Little did he know, according to Carswell, that a Methodist minister was living at the same hotel.

Geneva resident Reginald Hatcher bought a copy of the book and sent it to his son, Marvin, who lives in California. He said Marvin found a section about Yankee soldiers who masqueraded as Rebels during the Civil War so interesting, he went to the public library to find out the rest of the story.

By researching the book, the club cleared up the facts surrounding the naming of Geneva. For years, townsfolk thought Henry A. Yonge named the town for his native Geneva, Switzerland.

But, according to records in the P.K. Yonge Memorial Library at the University of Florida, Yonge named the town to honor his bride who was a native of Geneva, N.Y.

Mrs. Beck also found that her great-great-great-grandfather fought under a forebear of the Kenan family during the Revolutionary War in North Carolina. The Kenans founded the Geneva library.

The largest percentage of the book's contents have been compiled from remembrances from older residents and newspaper files, Mrs. Beck said. Most of the official records either floated away in a flood or were destroyed in fires that ravaged the courthouse and the school.

Ninety-year-old Joel Johnson, president of the Citizens Bank in Geneva, still remembers the 1929 flood.

"We were given one day's warning of the flood," Johnson said. "But that didn't prepare us for the damage. ... The bank employees had to use scoops and shovels to scrape the mud from the bank's floors."

Johnson's family was involved in farming, banking and the mercantile trade. As he thumbed through the book, he recognized the Ray Hotel his father built.

Youth Art Work Now On View At Pitt Hospital

Art work from students in all county schools, from kindergarten through grade 12, has been selected by Emmy Whitehead for this show along the main ground floor corridors of the hospital.

Gecko Motif Become A Best Seller In Cards, Toys

By Beverly Creamer
FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONOLULU — Bruce Hale can say a lot of good things about geckos.

"They don't do anything bad to you like snakes.

"And they're lovable. In a strange, reptilian sort of way."

On occasion, Hale has even considered the little creations er, uh, noble.

He remembers the night a couple of years ago when he was driving up the Pali with his girlfriend, Susana Brown, an interior designer, and in the dim light he could see a gecko clinging to his windshield.

"Here it was, toes stapled to the windshield, getting buffeted by the wind.

"It was so noble."

It all came to him that instant. The noble gecko facing into the wind, fighting tremendous odds.

Commander Gecko, he thought.

A cape.

Soon a gecko appeared in a cartoon strip he was drawing. Hale is a cartoonist-writer who puts out a newsletter for Hawaiian Telephone employees, and he likes to fiddle around with things like cartoon strips in his spare time.

Then a gecko appeared on his annual Christmas card.

And then his girlfriend flipped.

"I thought, 'Gee,'" says Brown, "I wonder if I can make that into a toy.'"

And so, working together, the two of them did. After a fashion. And after the first dozen or so looked like fat stuffed salamanders or bug-eyed frogs.

But eventually, a stuffed toy gecko made from an aloha print fabric emerged. With suction cups for a good window hold.

And gave some to friends.

So did Hale.

Pretty soon every friend who got one was ordering two more. And then a store called Hale and Brown about ordering geckos.

Whoa, they thought. Time to fish or cut the bait.

"For me it was just having a dream and saying, 'OK, it's time to make it reality,'" says Hale.

"I can't say marketing toy geckos was my dream, but working on my own was," says Brown.

So they decided to try it.

Presto. The little fellows caught a market toehold, priced from about $15 to $55 depending on size. And why not? In the past year geckos have come on strong on T-shirts and sleepwear. They've even inspired a raft of copiers in Korea and Taiwan.

As they pressed on, Hale and Brown culled friendly advice about sources of materials and labor from the state Department of Business and Economic Development, from friends in business, even from the Chamber of Commerce. "It's great," says Hale. "There's a company that makes eyes. In Brooklyn."

Then they pooled $30,000 in savings and borrowed funds from friends and family. Brown quit her job to work full-time on Gecko Stufs and was soon tramping the pavement signing up new customers. "Stores that are calling me for the product now, six months ago said, 'We're not going to carry geckos.'"

The little fellas have been in stores for just over a year now, and they're selling well. Now the two partners are bringing out new characters, and even a gecko fable in book form.

"I couldn't find anything on geckos after my brief search of the literature so I said, 'What the heck,' and made it up," says Hale. "But they are supposed to bring good luck."

The new characters include a large, black, evil bofo.

"He's kind of a toad Darth Vader, with suction cups," says Hale.

Even before they decided about him they did mock-ups of several new creatures and took them to a preschool and watched what the children picked up.

The bofo was never far from chubby little fingers.

"Ninja gecko?" he asks.

And they've even begun exporting to Japan where one merchandiser plans a giant gecko extravaganza this summer.

"They're like an animal ambassador of the aloha spirit," Hale says. "You want to protect them. You don't want to hurt them."

Book Business Sidetracks Man From School Plans

By Jim Warren
FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — John Glover's career hasn't gone by the book, but it has been filled with volumes.

A slim man with a mustache and wire-rim glasses, Glover owns and operates Glover's Bookery, a shop of used and rare books popular among lovers of old books, postage stamps and other ephemera.

It's a successful business, but Glover never planned to be a businessman. He wanted to be an archaeologist.

Glover came to the University of Kentucky from Florida in the mid-70s to take graduate courses. Just as he was settling in, his professor took a year's sabbatical. Glover had to find something to do until the professor returned.

Glover and his wife, Carey, were avid book collectors. Their home was lined with stacks of old books. So, opening a used-book store seemed a profitable, and fun, way to spend the year.

"Trouble was, we didn't know how much work it was going to be," Glover says.

Inventory was easy. The Glovers simply stocked store shelves with books from home.

"That just about led to a divorce," Glover says. "All the books I wanted to sell, my wife wanted to keep; and all the books I wanted to keep, she wanted to sell."

The early going was tough. Hours were long. Often, Glover worked all week, then got up before dawn on Saturday and drove hundreds of miles on book-buying trips.

"We started out with $300 and 3,000 books. No business experience whatsoever. No idea what we were doing," he says. "We ate a lot of beans for lots of months."

Books, Films Deal With Portugal's Wars In Africa

By Susan Linnee
THE ASSOCATED PRESS

LISBON, Portugal — The young man in the film looks down at his feet uncomfortably and says: "I don't like to mention that my brother died in the war in Africa. It makes people uncomfortable. They look at the floor."

In the turbulent years following the April 1974 coup that ended Portugal's 48-year dictatorship and brought independence to its five African colonies, the memory of the country's African wars remained submerged.

But with the arrival of relative political stability, the Portuguese, who sent a generation of young men to fight in Angola, Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau, are beginning to take a look at the war years through the arts.

Joao Botelho, a 38-year-old graphic illustrator and independent filmmaker, was among the first to broach the subject in his 1985 film "Um Adeus Portugues" ("A Portuguese Farewell").

Told in the present through a series of flashbacks by the brother and wife of a Portuguese soldier who died in Angola in 1975, the film is full of longing and sadness. "To die in Africa, and then for nothing," says the dead man's father.

In another scene, a soldier reads by lamplight from a geography book to a group of African children: "the Minho, the Douro, the Tajo," he drones, citing the names of Portuguese rivers they will never see.

In the six months since its publication by the Circulo de Leitores and Dom Quixote Press, the two-volume "Os Anos da Guerra" ("The War Years") has sold more than 50,000 copies. This is a record for a collection of essays, poetry, short stores and excerpts from novels in a country of 10 million inhabitants with the highest rate of illiteracy in western Europe.

Half a dozen publishers turned down the book, saying there was no interest in the subject in Portugal.

For editors Joao de Melo, 40, and Joaquim Viera, 38, the period covered in their book marked a time when their generation faced obligatory conscription or emigration to avoid the draft.

Melo, a novelist who spent three years as a medic in Angola, refers to Portugal's "own little Vietnam" and says the generation that succeeded his doesn't know "how lucky they are not to have been under constant threat of mobilization."

A Defense Ministry report, the first on the 1961-75 conflict, says 8,920 Portuguese soldiers died and another 23,233 were wounded during the wars for independence in three of Portugal's five African colonies. The island colonies of Cape Verde and Sao Tome y Principe achieved independence peacefully.

There are no accurate figures available on the number of Africans dead and wounded in the conflicts.

"Some will say we took a long time to come out with these facts," wrote Gen. Manuel Freire Themuda Barata in his introduction to the report published six months ago. "Others will say it comes much too soon."

Retired Gen. Altino Pinto Magalhes, who served two separate stints in Angola and now heads the Portuguese War Veterans League, says it is a good thing to talk about the war.

"In the beginning the Portuguese supported the war out of a sense of solidarity and patriotism," Magalhes said. "But it was long, 14 years, and then there was no victory."

The league has 53,000 members of the estimated 800,000 Portuguese who saw service in the African wars.

Maj. Manuel Lopes Dias, a spokesman for the Association of Armed Forces Disabled (ADFA), says the organizations's 12,000 members suffer from both physical and pyschological problems, some of them just recently manifest, and many of them aggravated by a painfully slow and complicated Portuguese bureaucracy.

Although "war novels" came out during the period that began Feb. 4, 1961, when African guerrillas attacked a Portuguese police station in Luanda, Angola, the theme of the effect of the colonial wars on Portuguese society is relatively recent.

Lidia Jorge, one of Portugal's leading novelists, says she wrote "A costa dos murmurios" ("The Coast of Whispers") because "those who don't want to confront the pain of this memory created a super-reality, a greater temporal distance that the time that has actually passed." The novel is set in wartime Mozambique.

Fernando da Costa's play, "Um jeep de segunda mao" ("A Second-Hand Jeep") was one of the first public presentations to deal with the wars.

Portuguese state televison (RTP) has never devoted a documentary to the subject but did air an hour-long dramatization late last year of Luis Felipe Costa's short story, "Era uma vez um alferez" ("Once There Was a Corporal") — the story of an engineer drafted into the war who steps on what he believes is a land mine, is exhorted by his captain to be courageous and dies of a heart attack from the stress. The "mine" turns out to be a metal clicker.

A Look At Old Victorian Bookends

By Country Living
FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those old bookends in the attic could be Victorian beauties worth hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars.

A beguiling bevy of bookends was made from the late 1800s through the early 1900s, according to an article in the current issue of Country Living. There were figures of poets and authors, ships, women with flowing tresses and animals from dogs to elephants.

Many of the motifs express Art Nouveau's free-flowing naturalistic designs, the simplicity of form and fine handcrafting of the Arts and Crafts movement and the stylized patterns of Art Deco.

Today, prices for the bookends range from less than $50 to hundreds of dollars for artist-signed pieces. Bookends that are the known work of a much-esteemed artist can sell for thousands of dollars at an auction house.

Bookends did not become household accessories until the 1880s, when the invention of the linotype made book publishing less expensive and prompted more people to buy books.

The Victorians, it seems, quite literally accepted English Prime Minister Disraeli's warning, "Beware the man of one book." To accommodate the rapidly increasing presence of books in homes of the less affluent, thousands of decorative bookends were produced to hold the row of books that formed a family's library.

The bookends generally were about four to 12 inches tall. The United States and other countries produced bookends in various metals — bronze, copper, brass, pewter, iron and steel — as well as glass, ceramics, wood and plaster of paris.

Themes included classically sculptured figures of patriots, authors and composers, as well as children, animals, flowers, nudes and reproductions of well-known artworks.

Metal bookends, highly favored and prolifically produced in this country, are most frequently found at antique shows, shops and estate sales. The Pompeiian Bronze Works of New York City issued bookends that were matching busts of Dante and Beatrice. Bradley & Hubbard, of Meriden, Conn., made relief scenes of Pilgrims and the Lincoln Memorial as well as busts of Whittier and Dickens.

Because brass was less expensive than bronze, the firm used it as a base metal in their less expensive "bronzed" bookends for those who could not afford all-bronze pairs.

Metal bookends also appeared as desk-set components. Outstanding are those from the Tiffany Studio in New York City. Tiffany's 1920 catalog listed bookends in the Zodiac pattern ($18) and the Abalone design ($28) with grapevines and grapes made of abalone shell disks.

Pottery bookends to hold editions of Emily Dickinson's poetry were made by numerous American makers, and the Roseville brand can be found for less than $50.

Those who favor the country charm of French faience will like the Quimper bookends boasting playful figures of Breton children or peasants created by the Maison Henriot Factory.

Glass bookends range from the icy beauty of Lalique to the more affordable American glassmakers such as Fostoria, Heisey and Cambridge.

Older Americans Having More Decaying Teeth

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

The good news from researchers is that people are keeping their teeth longer.

But, according to Better Homes and Gardens magazine, the bad news is that older Americans are suffering more tooth decay.

In a recent nationwide study, 63 percent of the elderly who had teeth also had cavities, reports Dr. James P. Carlos, chief of epidemiology with the National Institute for Dental Research.

The problem is compounded because many older people have receding gum lines, which expose tooth roots to decay-causing acids. In old age, cavities can be difficult to treat.

People who suffer "dry mouth," or reduced saliva flow, may also have more decay. Saliva lubricates the mouth, washes food away from around the teeth, and neutralizes decay-causing acids. Dry mouth is sometimes a side effect of medications used to treat conditions such as high blood pressure, allergies and cancer. One partial remedy: artificial saliva mouthwash, recommended by dentists. Fluoridated mouthwashes can also help.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY March 12

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Never give up—keep on laughing and Aries, the Ram, wins every time. Get back to your true spirit as positive energy is flowing again.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Shop for home furnishings and plan spring-time maintenance projects. A short trip to a favorite spot is recommended.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): The day may feel like not much is happening. The later day brings lively action with friends and family. Domestic affairs rate high.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Lend support to young family member's projects. Know when to stand pat and when to give in where sharing is involved.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Avoid dwelling on frustrations from the past. Set a new agenda that is more eventful. Avoid playing favorites when dealing with siblings.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Change your thinking to positive and throw out emotional spooks that affect self-confidence and security. Prepare for the week ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may be saying "why me" when an unpleasant situation presents itself. Blaming fate will not forestall the need to make changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): There is no time or place more appropriate than now to show others how much you care about them. Use your positive thoughts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You feel good. Enjoy driving somewhere. Practical things may be set aside today. Keep discussions light and easygoing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): When you worry money leaves your hands rapidly. Make contact with older people. The evening hours support gourmet dining and music.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Relationships are light and cheery. Heart-to-heart talks with your companion are good for mutual happiness. Preserve your strength.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Attitudes improve and a cloudy day turns to emotional sunshine. Seek out areas of future disagreement and mend your fences today.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY March 13

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Yak-yak over unimportant issues may get on your nerves. Be health-conscious and stay with activities that are good for you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Inventive ideas pay off. use established procedures to introduce ideas. Keep quality in mind as well as quantity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You are at the top of the popularity list. Overly confident can cause you to make risky moves. Test the water before you jump in.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Don't be a yes-person. Tell it like it is and take a straight approach. Use respect as an expression of approval.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Heed the advice of an expert. You are gaining financial independence. It is time to exchange phone numbers with that someone special.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Keep a low profile and avoid cranky cohorts. Put off the answer to an important question until you investigate further.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Add interesting innovations to work procedures and avoid boredom. A festive evening could spill over into the early morning hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): It is a bummer when you are in a job that you feel is insignificant or unworthwhile. Make an assessment and prepare for change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Someone important may be giving you the royal treatment. Be sure to look your best. Now is the time to pursue romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Keep your eye open for a spicy, romantic partner. Avoid making comparisons. This could be the start of something great.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may feel that your sex life is sliding down hill. Try the gourmet routine, instead of fast food. Be a better listener.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Avoid activities that put your safety at risk. You may feel that you can get away with more than you really can.

The bidding:

Pass	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

We wrote a book some years ago entitled "Go With the Odds." But to do so when that course is an exercise in futility is sheer stubbornness on your part.

The auction was quite simple. With the equivalent of an opening bid facing an opener, South bounced right into game as soon as a fit had been located.

West led the king of diamonds, and East signalled with the jack. There followed in quick order the ace of diamonds and ace of clubs to complete the defensive book, then a low diamond. Declarer ruffed in dummy with the seven, came to hand with the ace of hearts and then had to decide how to play the trump suit for no loser.

Anyone with only a rudimentary knowledge of the probabilities should be aware that the percentage play with 10 cards missing the king is to take the finesse. So declarer led the jack of spades and, when West produced the two, flew up with the ace to drop the king! Making four-odd.

What made South abandon the probabilities? Had he seen the king of spades in the East hand?

To all intents and purposes, yes! West, who was a passed hand, had already shown up with 11 points in the minors. Had he held the king of spades as well, he would certainly have opened the bidding. Therefore, East was marked with the king.

Incidentally, if West doesn't cash the ace of clubs, declarer should play on clubs before he touches spades. When he discovers West has the ace of clubs, he can't go wrong in trumps.

Loans, Homeowner IRA Among Bills Before Congress

By David W. Myers
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Mortgages with a 6 percent interest rate for first-time home buyers, use of a tax-advantaged savings account and IRA for a down payment and wider availability of low-interest FHA loans are some of the highlights of nearly a dozen bills being considered in Congress.

Some of the proposals have already been introduced, while others are expected to be submitted later this month. All could face an uphill battle, as lawmakers try to cope with a variety of other pressing issues and struggles to cut federal spending.

Despite these pressures, some housing experts are optimistic that Congress this year will approve legislation aimed at easing the nation's affordable-housing problems.

"This could be Congress' Year of Housing," said Don Campbell, staff director of the Senate Housing and Urban Affairs subcommittee and chief housing aide to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

"Some of these proposals are going to cost money, but I think the nation's housing problems have gotten bad enough that some (lawmakers) are ready to do something about it in a big way," Campbell said.

While housing advocates are pleased that so many bills have been introduced early in the legislative session, they're still waiting for what some simply call "The Big One" — The National Affordable Housing Act.

The measure, which may be introduced later this week by Cranston and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., could be the most sweeping housing legislation proposed in a decade.

The bill would enhance incentives for builders and investors who provide low- and moderate-income housing, and also would provide incentives to encourage more state and local governments to improve housing programs in their area.

For example, the federal government could provide seed money that local agencies would loan to neighborhood developers, or could guarantee loans to builders who produce low- and moderate-income housing.

The bill would also make low-down payment FHA loans widely available to buyers in high-cost housing states such as California.

Taxpayers would be allowed to use money in their individual retirement accounts to purchase a house and could also put up to $2,000 a year in the tax-deferred accounts to save for a down payment.

Many parts of the Cranston-D'Amato legislation overlap other Senate proposals. It is expected that most of the other housing-related bills will be merged into the Cranston-D'Amato plan to form an omnibus bill "that will deal with housing in a comprehensive, big-picture manner," said Floyd Williams, a lobbyist for the National Association of Home Builders.

Key provisions of the major proposals now on Capitol Hill would:

• Make the FHA program viable in all areas.

Most FHA loans are 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages that require a down payment of about 5 percent. Since the FHA guarantees the mortgage, lenders are more willing to make a loan to borrowers who have a small down payment or would have trouble qualifying for a conventional mortgage.

But the FHA cannot insure loans of more than $101,250, making the program of little use in high-cost housing areas, where much larger loans are needed to buy a house.

A bill authored by Rep. David Price, D-N.C., would alter the program so the FHA could make loans on properties whose purchase price did not exceed 95 percent of the median price of homes in the area.

• Permit Use of IRA money for down payments.

A number of proposals would allow home buyers to use money in their individual retirement accounts, 401k savings plans or other pension plans as a down payment on a home. Now, such money can only be invested in bank certificates of deposits, stocks and bonds, and a handful of other items.

Under the Cranston-D'Amato plan, up to $10,000 in retirement savings could be used to purchase a house. The money would be considered an investment — just like a bank certificate of deposit — so the buyer would not have to pay a stiff withdrawal penalty.

The bill also would allow taxpayers to put up to $2,000 a year in the tax-free accounts to save for a down payment.

A bill in the House of Representatives is less generous. Authored by Rep. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis., it would allow first-time buyers to withdraw up to $5,000 from their retirement accounts to purchase a home.

• Make available low-rate loans for first-time buyers.

A bill authored by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, new chairman of the influential Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, would establish a "National Housing Trust" that would provide a federal subsidy to first-time home buyers. The subsidies would effectively reduce the interest rate on a borrower's 30-year loan to 6 percent.

Garden Clinic

Q. I use a fireplace insert and am putting the ashes aside to use on my garden vegetables next year. I have read in at least one source that some wood scraps contain heavy metals. The scraps I have are non-creosote treated woods that are used for outdoor building and also wood from buildings that were painted with leaded paint. My question is, do plants such as vegetables concentrate any heavy metals that wood ashes may contain in quantities enough to cause heavy metal poisoning when eaten?

A. One should proceed with caution if metals such as lead are known to be in wood ashes. Soils would tolerate about 20 pounds, a full five gallon pail, of ashes per 1000 square feet. Heavy metal accumulation would not be serious if ashes are used at this rate. Leaf lettuce is probably the most sensitive of the commonly grown vegetables for heavy metal toxicity.

Q. How large will weigela grow?

A. Weigela can get 6 to 8 feet tall with a similar spread. Weigela is a good border shrub with flowers. Its tubular flowers attract hummingbirds as well.

Q. When is the Davidson Horticultural Symposium?

A. The Davidson Horticultural Symposium will be March 21 and 22 at Davidson College. Henry Cathey, director of the U.S. Arboretum in Washington, D.C., will speak on "The New Ethic in American Gardening" at the Tuesday evening session. Christopher Lloyd, a British garden writer, will speak on Wednesday. Other speakers include J.C. Raulston of N.C. State University and Angela Danadjieva, an environmental designer from Tiburon, Calif. Brent Heath, a third-generation daffodil grower from Tidewater, Va., will speak on "Bulbs as Companion Plants." The Tuesday evening session costs $13.50 and the Wednesday session costs $30. For more information call Nan Hubbard at 704- 892-5266 or write P.O. Box 1145, Davidson N.C., 28036.

Q. Each year my Southern peas rot off at the soil. Is there anything I can do to prevent this?

A. Delay planting until the soil has warmed thoroughly. Plant the peas in an area that has not had peas or beans for three to five years. Plant seed that has been treated with a fungicide.

Here's The Answer

By Andy Lang
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Q. — We are going to finish our attic soon and get the use of a couple of extra bedrooms. It isn't very light up there now and we are considering having a dormer built on one side. The price of the project has scared us a little and we are wondering whether there is any alternative. We don't need a dormer for extra space, merely for extra light. Any suggestions?

A. — Look into the possibility of obtaining the needed light with one or two skylights built into the roof. Some of the modern skylights are very attractive and add to overall appearance as well as furnishing extra light.

Q. — A clothes dryer and washer soon will be installed in our basement. It is going to be a tricky job to make a wall opening so the the dryer can be vented to the outside. Can this be skipped and is there an alternative?

A. — Don't even think about getting a clothes dryer for your basement if it is not going to be vented to the outside. The extra moisture it will spill into the house can cause all kinds of trouble. Hot air coming out of the dryer will find its way upstairs. One of several things it will do is force an air conditioner to work overtime. By all means, vent the dryer to the outside no matter how "tricky" the job is.

Q. — We soon will have some remodeling done to our house. We know about the necessity of getting a permit but wonder what will happen if a permit is not obtained. We are afraid the building department will notify other town authorities and the assessment on our house will go up, increasing our taxes.

A. — Yes, the information about your remodeling will be passed along to the proper authorities and you may get an extra assessment for tax purposes. But the results can be a lot worse if you try to skip the permit. There have been cases where house owners have had to dismantle a piece of new construction because they neglected the permit procedure. Many times the assessment is less than anticipated. Even if it isn't, you have the right to appeal the new assessment figure. But all that is beside the important point: doing the work without a permit is against the law.

Q. — We recently bought a house in the country for use as a vacation or second home. It has a very steep roof. Since it is due for reroofing, we wonder whether there is any special color that will tend to make the roof lines seem somewhat lower. We intend to use asphalt shingles.

A. — Just be sure to select shingles that are dark in color. A dark color makes a high roof seem less towering.

Q. — Our roof must be reshingled soon. I plan on doing it myself. I have had some experience on roofs, although I have never put on shingles. Is there anything I should know?

A. - A hundred things. Here are a few of them. Be sure to wear construction-type shoes with rubber soles. Do the work on a day when it is warm but not hot. Stay off the roof if the weather is even a tiny bit wet. Secure ladders top and bottom and keep the roof surface free of debris. Watch out for power lines. Keep people away from the work area. And don't get on the roof unless you are sure of your footing.

(You can get a copy of "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Roofing," including an asphalt shingle color guide, by sending $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.0. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Stuck Drawer Tips

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everyone has experienced the frustration of trying to open a stuck drawer. Here are some solutions to this annoying problem:

— If an overfilled drawer will open a crack, insert a thin metal ruler or knife blade into the top of the drawer. Move it around to compress and rearrange the drawer's contents. Or, if there are no dividers between the drawers, remove the drawers below the stuck one and tap the bottom of the stuck drawer to shake down its contents.

— If all else fails, pry off the back of the cabinet with a putty knife. Tap the sides of the problem drawer alternately to force it to the front.

If overstuffing isn't the culprit, high humidity might be. It can temporarily swell wooden drawers, causing them to stick.

If this is the case, rub the runners, rails and sides of the drawer with wax or talcum powder to reduce friction. This problem may disappear on its own in drier weather.

A stuck drawer could also be the result of a loose joint. If possible, remove the drawers above and below the offending one. Feel the sides and bottom runners for loose joints. Push drawer joints back into place. Remove the drawer and glue the damaged joint.

A drawer also could be stuck because of a split bottom or bulging sides. To fix a split drawer bottom, glue a canvas strip across the split to reinforce the bottom. On the frame around the bottom, use white glue, not nails, and clamp it to hold the drawer together while the glue dries.

Once you have the drawers out, you may discover worn rails, worn runners or worn guides, all of which should be repaired.

Rails are the parts of the cabinet on which the runners ride. If you do not want to replace worn rails, plane or sand them as smooth as possible.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A heavy duty sanding roll.

Manufacturer's claim — That this aluminum oxide cloth roll cuts faster and lasts longer than emery cloth...that it can be used for a variety of projects, including pipes, hand railings and other curved objects, as well as on wood, metal, plastic and painted surfaces...that its tough, durable and flexible backing makes it easy to sand in tight spaces...that it is moisture resistant and can be torn to the desired length for a specific job...that it comes in extra fine, fine and medium...and that each roll is 1 inch wide by 10 feet long.

———

THE PRODUCT — A line of handsaws with high frequency hardened teeth designed to remain sharp five times longer than conventional saws.

Manufacturer's claim — That the saws feature increased blade widths for improved stability and precision...that the teeth are bevel ground for uniformed front and back angles and for an extremely sharp cutting edge...that specially designed handles are made of high-impact plastic formed from a single piece so the uncomfortable center weld found on traditional designs is eliminated...that each handle has a raised textured surface for a non-slip grip...that the handles are attached by three screws and have a soft cushioned material that is similar to the grips on steel shafted hammers...and that all handles can be used to mark 45 and 90 degree angles.

THE PRODUCT — A contemporary tool kit designed with the woman in mind.

Manufacturer's claim — That the kit features quality tools, accessories and information preselected as most eseential for everyday repair needs...that the kit includes a home maintenance booklet that describes the proper use of each tool and provides step-by-step instructions for simple home repairs...that two rings on the back of the case allow the kit to be hung in an open position on the inside of a closet door, laundry room wall or anywhere else...that the durable leather case handles allow easy and comfortable carrying. . . and that the kit is guaranteed to appeal to him as well as her.

Manufacturer's claim — That this shade blocks up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare...that it allows natural sunlight to illuminate a room while cutting out the ultraviolet rays that create excessive heat gain and cause furnishings to fade...and that the shade is easily operated by hand or by the telescoping pole used to operate the skylight.

Design # 20083

You'll love living in this one-level gem that's zoned for privacy. Columns adorning the inviting front porch are repeated in the active areas to separate rooms without confining walls. So, every room benefits from the glow of the living room fireplace, and the eat-in kitchen is just steps away from your family, guests, and the adjoining deck at the rear of the house. Two bedroom wings flank active areas, keeping quiet areas peaceful. The master suite, tucked behind the garage, features a vaulted ceiling and a private bath with double sinks. Another full bath serves the two bedrooms on the other side of the house.

Are You Watching Black-and-White TV Tonight?

(Don't Be Ridiculous!)

Are You Buying or Selling Your Home Using Black-and-White Advertising?

(Don't Be Ridiculous!)

It is a proven fact that color advertising pulls five to ten times more prospects and generates five to ten times more sales than the same message in black and white.

Announcing...

Williams & Simpson's Homebuyer's Handbook

Your new, full-color guide to real estate in the Greater Greenville Area.

Sellers:

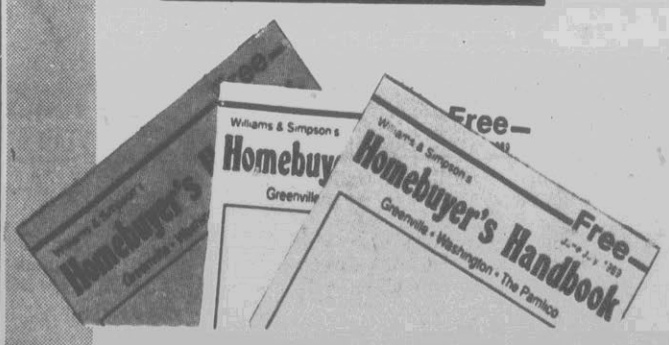
Buyers:

Save time and energy. Shop for your new home in the new, free Homebuyer's Handbook, where color makes the look, character and even landscaping of available homes come alive for you.

Agents:

Don't give your clients second best. Advertising in Homebuyer's Handbook reflects a commitment to providing the best service.



Consider these benefits and features:

- Five to ten times more effective than black-and-white advertising.
- Handy pocket size for frequent and long use. Not discarded but kept for reference.
- Maps, tables and other reader-pulling features.
- Distribution to over 250 in-town locations.
- Out-of-town distribution reaches prospects before they arrive—through newcomer kits, newspaper ads and a national 800 phone number.
- Personnel offices of major employers provide Homebuyer's Handbook to qualified buyers transferring to the area.
- Toll-free hotline for nationwide distribution.
- Advertised on the radio, in key newspapers and in over one-half million Williams & Simpson statewide and nationwide publications as the number one guide.
- Targets your market of active buyers and sellers.
- Creates strong name recognition for agencies and featured agents.

For advertising information, call Lisa Parr, associate publisher, at 919-756-8617 or 1-800-365-5182.

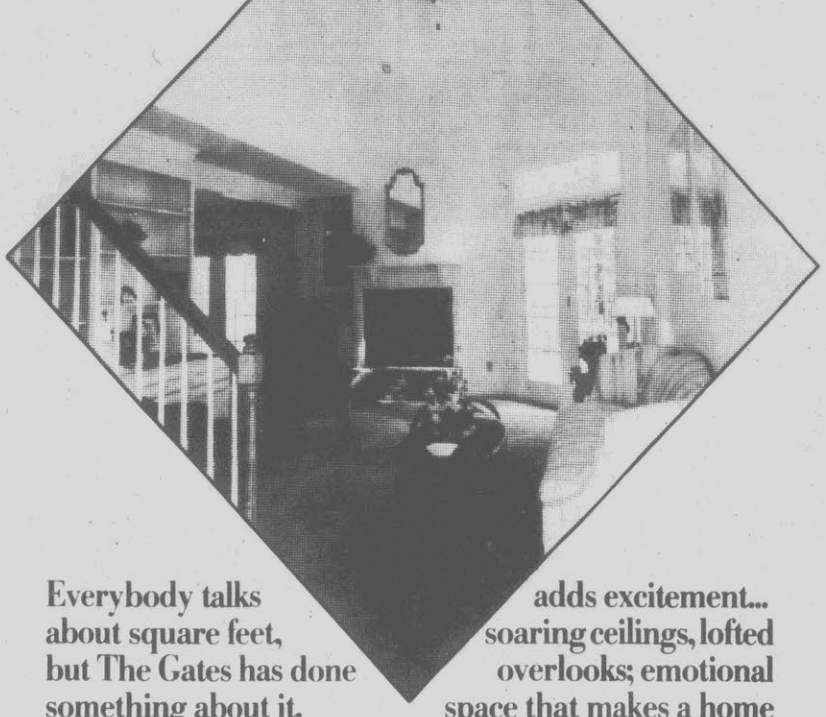
When you decide to sell your home, it involves more than putting up a sign and running an ad in the local newspaper. There are a myriad of details to consider, which makes working with a real estate professional, such as myself, beneficial in many ways.

- I will provide you with a comparative market analysis so that you will know what your home is worth in relation to others in the neighborhood. This will help in setting a realistic price.
- I will offer advice about the condition of your home, including cosmetic repairs and maintenance projects that could improve the appearance without a great deal of effort or expense on your part.
- I will provide an overall marketing plan featuring a variety of newspaper advertisements, open houses or tour dates for other real estate sales associates.
- After an offer is made, I will negotiate the selling price, possession dates, financing alternatives and closing costs. I can also determine whether the buyer will qualify for a loan and how much down payment will be offered.

For these reasons and many more, please contact me for assistance in selling your home. I can be reached at the address and phone number above.

The Gates

ALL SQUARE FEET ARE NOT CREATED EQUAL



Everybody talks about square feet, but The Gates has done something about it. Square footage is a unit of measure in two dimensions only. At The Gates, we add the third dimension—height. Height adds excitement... soaring ceilings, lofted overlooks; emotional space that makes a home more than just shelter. Come visit our model and see and feel what The Gates has done to the square foot.

Greenville's Architectural Heritage Book Now Available

THE ARCHITECTURAL HERITAGE OF GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA. Edited by Michael Cotter. Survey by Kate M. Ohno. History by Mary Hollis Barnes. Introduction by Biruta Erdmann. Published by Greenville Area Preservation Association, Greenville, N.C. Hard cover, 204 plus xiv pages. Illustrated. $31.45, including tax. Available at two places — Jefferson Florist and the University Book Exchange.

"The Architectural Heritage of Greenville" has been seven years in the making. The finished product is well worth the wait. Editor Michael Cotter notes in the preface that the original manuscript has been edited "for readability by a wider audience than originally intended." The additional research has made possible fuller coverage than that provided by Kate M. Ohno in her admirable, but necessarily limited research in the time span accorded her for the inventory she carried out in 1982.

Mary Hollis Barnes' 16 page "A Brief History of Greenville" sets the stage of getting to know much about the city's 200-year history — fascinating details that are a useful and fortunate curtain-opener for the main body of the book, a pictorial and textual survey of Greenville's architecture, existing and no longer existing.

In Barnes' history, we discover, for example that "In 1884, Greenville's first firefighting force — the Rough and Ready Firemen — was organized. This group of 40 blacks had one ladder, and each man had a uniform and bucket. In 1895 twenty-four whites joined these firemen to form the Hope Fire Company."

Fires, several of them becoming destructive conflagrations that wiped out extensive areas downtown, were a major problem even as late as the first years of the 20th century — a problem that accounted for the loss of several historical properties discussed at length in ensuing chapters.

We discover too that by the end of the 1900s, the coming of the railroad to Greenville (not without some serious objections) led to the disappearance of the once-thriving steamship tranportation utilizing the waters of Tar River. The last freight shipment to go upriver to Tarboro was in 1923.

In the 1920s the construction of paved roads and highways, in turn, spelled the death signal for passenger train service to Greenville popular in the first half of the 20th century.

What will perhaps come as something of a revelation to the average Greenville citizen today is the relative late arrival of tobacco culture as an economic maintstay in Pitt County and consequently, in Greenville. "In 1889 (Pitt) farmers grew 36,390 acres of cotton and 70 acres of tobacco. Within ten years, tobacco grew to 12,931 acres . . ." In 1892 R.J. Cobb opened the first tobacco warehouse in Greenville and in 1892 the American Tobacco Company, a major buyer of tobacco, located in Greenville.

Progress in services made rapid strides with the first telephone exchange and the first bank, both established in 1896. In 1908 groundbreaking was carried out on a 47.5-acre site on the Walter H. Harrington farm east of town for a new school, East Carolina Teachers Training School — now East Carolina University.

All the focus of life in Greenville in past years was not solely on economy, transportation and education. There was the tragic growth in the use of slave labor in the late 18th century which resulted in the founding of several plantations. The immediate pre-Civil War population of Greenville consisted of 825 whites, 15 free blacks and 1,053 slaves.

Impressions of Greenville in early years varied: William Attmore, a Philadelphia merchant, in 1787, described Greenville as "(a) village of about 15 families, a place of some trade. . . the town stands high and pleasant." In contrast, George Washington, on a southern tour in 1791, noted he "dined at a trifling place called Greenville." Obviously, Greenville has the distinction of being one of the few places where George Washington never slept.

Early Greenville had its share of things people did for recreational enjoyment. By the middle of the 19th century, three steamers carried passengers downriver to Washington and other points east, including moonlight trips to the Outer Banks; Skinner's Opera House was the scene of concerts and plays; church bazaars and dances were popular, and horse racing and cock fighting appealed to the more adventurous spectator.

The principal portion of "The Architectural Heritage of Greenville, North Carolina," as the book's title implies, covers the architecture — homes, church, public buildings, business establishments, etc.

The survey carried out by Kate Ohno and supplemented by further research for additional material covers only the older established areas of Greenville — the Central Business District, Skinnerville, the Higgs Neighborhood, the Tobacco Warehouse District, East Carolina University and College View.

In these chapters are pictured hundreds of buildings, including newer homes and businesses of unusual architectural significances as part of today's heritage, and older buildings, now demolished or considerabley altered.

More than simply notes on the architecture are given. The usage (or sometimes several usages) of the buildings, capsule histories on the original owners, their occupations, the architect who designed the buildings, all together give an informative recall of past life in the center of what is now a sprawling Greenville.

Appendices and a glossary of architectural terms, an extensive bibliography and a fully annotated index make using this book much simpler than is so often true for similar publications.

"The Architectural Heritage of Greenville, North Carolina" is an invaluable source book. It is also a book to be enjoyed by the average reader. An abundance of facts previously available only in hard to find earlier publications and scattered references are brought together in this one comprehensive, convenient publication — a blessing of the first order.

This first edition volume was printed in 2,000 copies, with something like 25 percent already sold and the expectation of a sell-out by the end of the year.

A Reflector Review

Superb Catalogue Accompanies An Exhibition Of Drawings At The NCMA

AMERICAN DRAWINGS AND WATERCOLORS FROM THE WADSWORTH ATHENEUM. (Catalogue for the exhibition of the show of the same name now at the N.C. Museum of Art, Raleigh). By Judith A. Barter. Introduction by Eugene R. Gaddis. The American Federation of Art. Large format, illustrated. Paper. 96 pages, $19.95. ($21.95 for mail orders which includes tax, postage and shipping charges). Order from: N.C. Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Boulevard, Raleigh, N.C., 27607.

Not too long ago, catalogues to accompany art shows, while generally informative, were frequently more comprehensive in scope than what the average art layman wanted, while at the same time not scoring very high on visual content.

With the advent of improved printing technology, the situation has changed in the past 20 years. The norm now is for publications that combine a happy marriage of lucid, if not usually comprehensive text with a colorful feast of superb visual reproductions.

Such is the case with "American Drawings and Watercolors From The Wadsworth Atheneum," prepared by The American Federation of Art to accompany the exhibition traveling to eight museums, including the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Art lovers with a particular fondness for drawings will be delighted with the 64 works by 52 artists reproduced in exceptional clarity and color on heavy, fine-quality paper in this large format catalogue — 9 x 11½ inches.

In his three page reflections on how the magnificent Wadsworth Atheneum collection was formed, Eugene R. Gaddis, archivist of the collection, traces the history of public-minded individuals who have made this eclectic treasure possible.

It all began with the 1848 bequest of Daniel Wadsworth, a wealthy Hartford, Conn. patron who founded the museum in 1842. Although the long chain of later contributors, both in works of art and in funds is not typical of average donors to art (since Hartford was and still is home to numerous wealthy art patrons), the spirit of generous giving to the enrichment of the public is typical — and is familiar and commendable.

The collection, one of the largest and most representative of drawings in any museum world wide, reflects an open mind in the criteria for forming a collection. In its vast holdings, the array of drawings range through baroque, northern European, French and American works which encompasses a seizable number of foreign-born artists who have made America home. The Atheneum also houses a splendid collection of paintings from Frans Hals through Delacroix, Monet and Wyeth.

Twenty pages are devoted to abbreviated biographies of the artists whose drawings are represented in this traveling exhibition. Highlights of each life are provided.

For example, the entry on John Singer Sargent informs that "Although an expatriate, by the time of his death John Singer Sargent was the most widely known American painter." Sargent, Italian-born son of wealthy Americans, did not come to his native land until 1876, when he was a young man. A portrait by him exhibited in Paris when he was yet a young artist resulted in a minor scandal, so he moved to London. Years later, he declined knighthood from Britain because he considered himself an American.

In contrast, Rockwell Kent, grew up in a poor but genteel family in the New York City area. An aunt, who was an artist, encouraged him to study art. In the 1920s the Donnelly publishing firm of Chicago gave him a choice of books to illustrate. He selected Melville's "Moby Dick." The illustrations in this book established him as a master of bold, stark imagery with mystical, symbolic power — the genre for which he is best known.

Whatever one's special preference in drawings, there is likely to be something of particular individual appeal — whether the opaque watercolors of Charles Demuth and Milton Avery; the figure drawings of Sergent, Isabel Bishop, Winslow Homer, Reginal Marsh or Eugene Berman, or works in contemporary styles by Stuart Davis, Mark Tobey or Hans Hoffman.

For art lovers, this catalogue is an indispensable addition to any collection of art books, both from the standpoint of beauty and concise information.

Hope Foundation Slates Printed Materials Event

WINDSOR — Historic Hope Foundation is sponsoring a one-day symposium, "Protecting Our Printed Material For Future Generations" on Thursday from 9:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. at Hope Plantation, the 1803 plantation home of North Carolina Governor David Stone.

The symposium will focus on the collecting, protecting and displaying of rare books and printed manuscripts.

Speakers for the program are Dr. W. Keats Sparrow, acting chairman of the English Department at East Carolina University, who will begin the symposium at 9:30 a.m. Pamela Spitzmueller, Rare Book Conservator for the Library of Congress, will discuss "The Thomas Jefferson Collection at the Library of Congress — An Eighteenth Century Library Preserved." The third speaker will be Susan Berg, Research Librarian for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Ms. Berg will address the topic "Collecting Books and Manuscripts for Scholarly Research."

After lunch, the symposium will continue with Robert Anthony's lecture, "Reassembling Governor Stone's Library." Anthony is currently working with the North Carolina Historical Collection at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

Helen Urquhart will discuss her master's thesis "The Political Satire in Governor Stone's Library." Ms. Urquhart is currently continuing her work as a graduate student at East Carolina University. The symposium will conclude with a tour of Governor Stone's library conducted by John E. Tyler, chairman of the board for Historic Hope Foundation.

During David Stone's lifetime, he amassed a library of over 1,400 volumes, making his collection of books one of the largest in the state during the Federal period.

The Historic Hope Foundation is in the process of reassembling Stone's library using the 1818 estate inventory of Hope Plantation. Following the project's completion the library will be available to qualified scholars.

The library symposium is open to the public at no charge. A box lunch will be provided for a fee of $5. Reservations are required for the symposium and lunch. There will be limited seating available for the program. The symposium is funded in part by a grant for the North Carolina Humanities Council in Greensboro.

Historic Hope Plantation is located on N.C. Route 308, five miles west of Windsor. For more information contact: Historic Hope Plantation, P.O. Box 601, Windsor, N.C. 27983, or call 794-3140.

New Stamp Honors Toscanini

By Syd Kronish
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arturo Toscanini, widely recognized as one of the great conductors in the history of classical music, receives a philatelic tribute in the form of a new 25-cent U.S commemorative. The stamp is the 11th in the Performing Arts Series.

Toscanini's phenomenal musical career covered 68 years. The maestro was a majestic figure at the podium and achieved worldwide fame.

He was born in Parma, Italy, in 1867 and began studying music at an early age. He made his conducting debut at 19, directing Verdi's "Aida." In 1898, he became musical director of La Scala, Italy's foremost opera house.

Toscanini left Italy in 1908 to become conductor of New York's Metropolitan Opera. He went to Italy during World War I, but conflicts with the Mussolini government led to his return to New York.

First-day cancellations are available in the usual two methods. In both cases, the deadline is April 24.

Collectors may buy the stamp at their local post office and affix to their own envelope. Send to: Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Arturo Toscanini Stamp, Postmaster, New York, NY 10199-9991. No remittance is required. The Postal Service encourages collectors to obtain covers in this manner and gives these orders preferential service.

If you want the Postal Service to affix the stamps, enclose a check or money order for 25 cents per stamp and send to: Arturo Toscanini Stamp, Postmaster, New York, NY 10199-9992.

As an added note — a non-musical one! — first-day ceremonies for the Toscanini commemorative will take place in Carnegie Hall, the world-famous concert hall that was home to Toscanini's New York Philharmonic and to the NBC Symphony during its final years of broadcasting.

Five of the most famous paddle-wheel steamboats that plied U.S. inland waterways during the 19th century are depicted on a new set of five 25-cent stamps appearing in a $5 booklet. The stamps are a tribute to America's earliest and most innovative steamboats, which have been featured in literature and films. The stamps are in a vertical format.

The top stamp shows the famous Experiment, the nation's first successful steam-powered craft. It was a popular excursion boat that carried passengers on the Delaware River, starting in 1790 and into the 19th century.

The second stamp depicts John Stevens' Phoenix, which began carrying passengers in 1809, also on the Delaware.

Robert Fulton, best known of the steamboat designers, launched the famous New Orleans in 1811. It plied the waters of the Mississippi River and is the subject of the third stamp.

The fourth stamp features the Washington, also a Mississippi River paddle-wheeler. This boat was radically different from previous designs, with boilers below decks, two engines and twin crowned stacks.

The bottom stamp in the set illustrates the Walk in the Water, which, in 1818, became the first steam vessel on Lake Erie.

Although the paddle-wheelers have been replaced by more modern forms of travel, they are not forgotten. In fact, two boats — the Delta Queen and the Mississippi Queen

First-day cancellations are available in two ways. Both have April 2 deadlines.

You can buy the stamps at your local post office and affix them to your own envelopes. Send to: Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Steamboat Stamps, Postmaster, New Orleans LA 70113-9991. No remittance is required. The Postal Service encourages collectors to obtain covers in this manner and gives these requests preferential service.

If you want the Postal Service to affix the stamps, note that it will affix single five-stamp panes only. When addressing your return envelope, allow enough space for the five stamps and the cancellation. Include a check or money order for $1.25 for each cover and send to: Steamboat Stamps, Postmaster, New Orleans, LA 70113-9992.

Art By Heppler, Moses On View At East Gallery

Etching and oil paintings by Ruth Heppler and Raku pottery by Joel Moses are being featured in an exhibition at East Gallery that opens Monday and will continue on view through April 11. The East Gallery is located at 646 Arlington Boulevard.

Ms. Heppler has exhibited her work in shows in New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Montana, Maryland, New Jersey, Connecticut and North Carolina. She has received more than 25 awards for her paintings and sculpture.

Before moving to New Bern several years ago, she worked at Paul Meisners in New York with several prominent sculptors.

Potter Moses has had his work shown shown in major museum and gallery shows including the Museum of Contemporary Craft in New York and the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Michigan.

He designs large architectural work as well as wheel-thrown Raku pieces. He recently unveiled a major public work he created for the city of Richmond. Examples of his large murals are installed in New York and Richmond.

Moses's work is included in numerous private and corporate collections in the U.S. and abroad.

Painting Workshop

WASHINGTON, N.C. — New Bern artist Richard Weis will conduct a three day painting workshop March 28-30 in the Washington Civic Center under the sponsorship of the Beaufort County Arts Council.

An artist who has taught and exhibited extensively, he is currently an instructor at Palmico Community College near Grantsboro as part of the North Carolina Visiting Artist Program.

The workshop, which will be focused on composition through linear design, color and value, is open to any interested person. Hours on each of the three days will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Fee for the three days is $45 for nonmembers of the arts Council and $40 for members. The class will be limited to 20 studetns, and registration is required by March 20, with checks payable to Beaufort County Arts Council.

Jubilee Year For Library In Farmville

FARMVILLE — The year 1990 has been declared Farmville Public Library Jubilee Year by the town of Farmville and May 11 has been "perpetually set aside as 'Library Building Dedication Day.'"

Mayor Edna Earle Baker has said in a declaration that May 11-13, 1990, will be designated as Library Jubilee Weekend.

Farmville residents began in 1930 collecting books donated by townspeople to form a lending library, Mrs. Baker noted in her proclamation.

ARE STADIUMS ART?

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York art dealer is taking advantage of the current boom in baseball nostalgia by pitching through the mail offset lithographs of popular old baseball stadiums to fans around the country.

According to Crain's New York Business, a local weekly business journal, the dealer — Bill Goff — markets colorful, nostalgic panoramas of Wrigley Field, Ebbets Field, Yankee Stadium, the old Polo Grounds, Fenway Park and even relatively new Shea Stadium, home of the New York Mets.

Baseball stadiums have a certain magic that no other item in sports has, Goff notes.

Tibetan Art From Brandeis To Be Shown In Gray Gallery

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The "Art of Tibet," over 50 objects from the Rose Art Museum's collection at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., opens at East Carolina University's Gray Art Gallery on March 20, and will remain on view through April 7.

John Brzostoski, exhibit curator, will present a 7:30 p.m. lecture on March 30, in Jenkins Auditorium. A reception will follow in Gray Art Gallery.

The "Art of Tibet" collection was originally housed at the Riverside Museum in New York and contains objects which, according to Brzostoski, are "magical, mystical and mysterious, but at the same time pragmatic."

A work of colorful Tibetan art

The objects are all religious, based on the precepts of Buddhism. Included are thangkas (rolled paintings which are often found at the entrance to Buddhist temples); sculptures of Buddha and other gods and goddesses; ceremonial objects such as prayer flags, a water vase, silver bell, copper trumpet, handheld prayer wheel, and amulet box as well as wood block prints and photographs of Tibet.

Brzostoski is director of the Center for Oriental Studies in New York City and teaches at Cooper Union, the New School for Social Research in New York and the Buddhist Lamaist Monastery of America.

He has traveled extensively in Asia and has contributed to Art News, Arts Magazine and Craft Horizons and is editor of the Free Center Review.

He received his MFA from Syracuse University and is a practicing artist.

The exhibition and catalog are funded by a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C., a federal agency. Additional support was provided by the ECU School of Art and Office of Academic Affairs, and the Art Enthusiasts of East Carolina University.

The exhibit, lecture and reception are free and open to the public.

Gray Art Gallery and Jenkins Auditorium are located on the ECU campus in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center, just south of the intersection of Jarvis and Fifth streets.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, closing at 8 p.m. on Thursday.

For more information, call 757-6336.

Artist Vito Acconci To Visit ECU

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Models of public art projects by internationally known artist Vito Acconci will be exhibited at East Carolina University's Gray Art Gallery from March 20 through April 7.

Acconci will discuss his work during a 7:30 p.m. slide lecture on that date, in Jenkins Auditorium. A reception will follow.

"For almost two decades, Vito Acconci has shocked, entertained and angered audiences," said Perry Nesbitt, gallery director. "'His message is provocative, undercutting social and artistic conventions. His work is interdisciplinary; it does not fit into established categories, and this may produce a sense of insecurity or anxiety in his audience."

While on campus, Acconci will provide individual student critiques and will attend seminars and classes. His visit is funded in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C., a federal agency, in collaboration with Western Carolina University in Cullowhee.

The lecture and reception are free and open to the public. Gray Art Gallery and Jenkins Auditorium are located on the ECU campus in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center just south of the intersection of Jarvis and Fifth streets. Parking is available in lots adjoining the center.

The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., closing on Thursday evenings at 8 p.m.

For more information, call 757-6336.

Show Of Abstract Art At Weatherspoon

GREENSBORO — An exhibition of abstract paintings by six artists from New York City, including former North Carolina painter Donald Foretenberry, will open March 19, in Weatherspoon Art Gallery at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The exhibit will open with a public reception from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. and will continue through April 9. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends.

Included in the exhibition will be approximately six works by each of the artists.

Fortenberry, a native of Shelby, currently works with the Metropolitan Museum of Art where he is principal departmental technician with the museum's department of Egyptian art. A graduate of the Maryland Institute, Foretenberry holds the MFA degree from Brooklyn College. He has exhibited in New York and North Carolina.

Other artists in the exhibition are: Fontaine Dunn, Julie Fromme, Renee Magnanti, Bill Pangburn, and Thor Rinden.

"The works in this exhibition are by younger artists who don't have affiliations with major New York galleries," said Kevin Mullins, an assistant curator in the gallery. "The show is an opportunity to see a variety of contemporary approaches to abstraction."

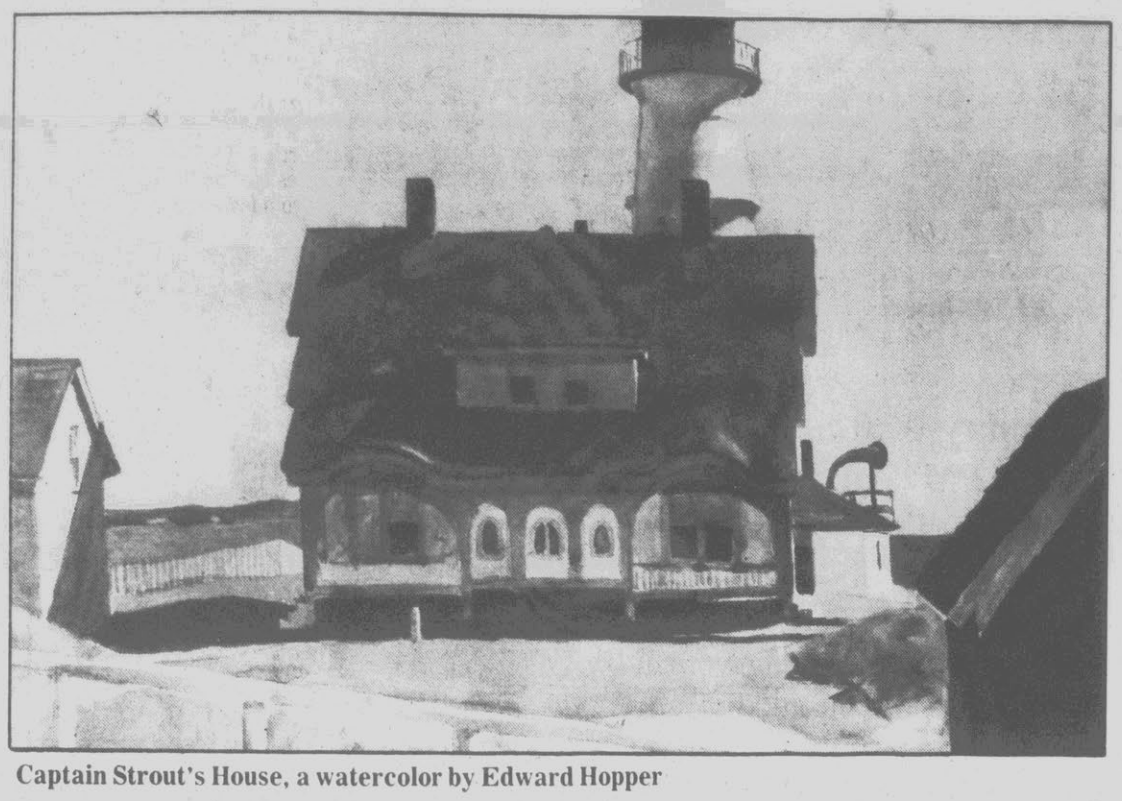
Wadsworth Atheneum Art On View At The N.C. Art Museum

By Anna Upchurch
N.C. MUSEUM OF ART

RALEIGH — Drawings and watercolors by the foremost American masters of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries are now on view at the North Carolina Museum of Art, Raleigh, through April 30.

"American Drawings and Watercolors from the Wadsworth Atheneum" will include works by John Singleton Copley, Benjamin West, John James Audubon, Winslow Homer, John Singer Sargent, John Marin, Edward Hopper, Charles Burchfield, Reginald Marsh, Arshile Gorky, Philip Pearlstein, Isamu Noguchi and others.



Captain Strout's House, a watercolor by Edward Hopper

The works in the exhibition are drawn from the collection of the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, Conn. Founded in 1842, the Atheneum houses one of the country's finest collections of Western art.

Viewed together, the 60 works in the exhibition demonstrate the diversity of ideas and expression that marks the history of American art. This diversity is illustrated by the gallery installation which groups the individual works according to general subject: figure, landscape, seascape, city.

This arrangement permits study of the various treatments of a motif by artists working at different periods and with different intentions and styles. Drawings by John Singer Sargent and Isamu Noguchi represent two differing approaches to the nude model.

Sargent's "Nude Man" is a study that respects the dignity and individuality of the model. In contrast, Noguchi has a sculptor's eye for volume and contour and for the simple monumentality of the human form.

The exhibition offers a rare opportunity to examine the many purposes of drawing and watercolor media. Raw sketches and carefully rendered compositions are included. Many of the works were intended for the private use of the artist. Others, particularly the watercolors, were conceived as independent works of art for public exhibition and sale. A few works illustrated books.

"Until quite recently drawings and watercolors have been widely considered as minor art forms, of interest only to art historians and connoisseurs," comments John Coffey, curator of American and contemporary art at the museum.

"This status resulted in part from their frequent use as preparatory studies for works in other media. By their size and nature, such works have been dismissed as too intimate and personal a means of expression. And yet it's this very intimacy that lovers of drawings and watercolors most cherish."

The exhibition was organized by the American Federation of the Arts. Its showing at the Museum is coordinated by John Coffey and supported by contributions to the 1988 Annual Appeal.

Guided tours of the exhibition may be arranged by calling the Museum at 833-1935, ext. 145. Reservations must be made two weeks in advance for groups. The exhibition is accompanied by a fully illustrated catalogue available in the Museum Shop. Related events include a lecture series titled "American Masters of Painting" at 8 p.m. on Wednesdays in March.

Located at 2110 Blue Ridge Boulevard in Raleigh, the North Carolina Museum of Art houses the art collections of the state of North Carolina. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, until 9 p.m. Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free. For information, call 833-1935.

GMA Schedules Trip To Chrysler Museum

Two community-oriented events are on the calendar at the Greenville Museum of Art for the coming week. The museum is located at 802 South Evans Street.

The Visiting Artists Series continues on Thursday, when Terry Smith will lecture at 10:30 a.m. on "Modern Art: Beauty or the Beast." The lecture is free and open to the public and is made possible by a Grassroots grant from the N.C. Arts Council.

The lecture is to help the average viewer better understand and appreciate modern art. Smith will show a variety of slides that demonstrate some of the pivotal issues of contemporary art and difficulties the art presents.

Smith teaches wood design at the School of Art, East Carolina University. His work has been exhibited and published nationally.

On Friday, the museum will hold a workshop, "Mini Marbeling," for Pitt County Art teachers. The workshop will be taught by Blanche Kammer-Monroe of the Marbelous studio in Grenville, where she researches, creates and markets work produced on paper fabric using ancient techniques.

The workshop will focus on techniques for public school teachers. Fee for the workshop is $10 and enrollment is limited. For more details and information, call the museum at 758-1946.

The teaching class is made possible with the help of a grant from the N.C. Arts Council.

Upcoming Events At GMA

A one-day trip from Greenville to the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk, Va., has been scheduled on April 12 by the staff of the Greenville Museum of Art.

Cost for the trip is $50, which will include transportation, lunch, beverages and snacks on the bus, and a donation to the Greenville museum

Reservations can be made by telephoning the museum at 758-1946. An immediate deposit of $25 is required with the balance due by March 31. Cancellations are not refundable after March 31 unless the cancelled place is filled by another. A stand-by list will be taken.

The bus will leave from the Greenville museum promptly at 7 a.m. A brief stop will be made in Suffolk and then will proceed directly to the Chrysler Museum for an 11 a.m. guided tour of the newly expanded and renovated museum. Lunch will follow the tour after which travelers will be on their own to browse through Chrysler exhibits for about an hour.

The next stop will be the nearby Hermitage Foundation, a Tudor-style waterfront home of the Sloan family which houses an outstanding collection of Oriental, European and American objects and furniture. Additionally, if the weather permits, a trip will be made to Norfolk's Botanical Gardens, famed for their azaleas. Trams have been reserved to tour the gardens.

If the weather is bad, a visit to Waterside, a glassed-in shopping mall and dining center on the waterfront will be made instead.

Departure from Norfolk will be at about 6 p.m. with a brief stop in Suffolk, with arrival time back in Greenville between 9 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Arts Roundtable Meeting Slated

The second Arts Roundtable will be held from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the office of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, 101 West 14th Street, Flowers Building. All arts organizations ar encouraged to attend.

The first Arts Roundatable was held last month at the Greenville Museum of art, with five non-profit groups and three galleries represented. Each month the roundtable will be hosted by a different organization at their site.

For more details, call the council at 757-1785.

Civil War Battle Of Bentonville Re-Enactment On March 19

By Peggy Howe
N.C. CULTURAL RESOURCES

NEWTON GROVE — After the assault, a horse-drawn ambulance slowly crisscrosses the battlefield - loading wounded soldiers for the trip to the nearby field hospital.

It is March 19, 1865, and Union and Confederate soldiers are engaged in what will be a three-day "Battle of Bentonville," involving 90,000 men over 6,000 acres of southern Johnston County.

On Sunday, March 19, 1989, more than 500 re-enactment troops from eight states will gather at Bentonville Battleground State Historic Site to mark the 124th anniversary of the "largest battle on North Carolina soil."

From noon until 4 p.m. the troops will recreate the last three Confederate assaults on Union lines, exactly 124 years to the day that weary soldiers fought around the farmhouse of John and Amy Harper.

The tactical demonstrations will be presented in "first person," according to John Goode, programs coordinator for Bentonville Battleground.

"Participating soldiers will discuss the battle as if it were March 19, 1865. Visitors will be treated as if they were local civilians from the Bentonville community at the time of the battle," Goode said.

Visitors may tour the battlefield and then follow wounded soldiers through the field hospital. They will be present at the arrival of Union Cavalry Commander, Gen. Hugh Judson Kilpatrick.

The battle is scheduled for noon to 12:30 p.m. From approximately 12:30 to 4 p.m., simulated wounded Union soldiers will be carried from the battlefield in horse-drawn wagons to be treated at the fully functional Union field hospital at the Harper House.

Members of the 14th Army Corps will staff the hospital, one of the very few in the United States, Goode said. Some of the field hospital volunteers are from the Museum of the Confederacy in Richmond.

The 500 re-enactment soldiers represent the greatest number ever gathered for the Bentonville anniversary, he said.

The battle included Confederates, under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, hoping to delay Gen. William T. Sherman's advance toward Virginia. For awhile, it looked as if the southerners would accomplish their mission, but reinforcements arrived, and by March 21 Sherman had his entire army at Bentonville. That night Johnston withdrew his forces to Smithfield and concluded the last major Confederate offensive of the war.

During the three-day battle, the Harper family watched the fighting swirl around their farmhouse. They tended Confederate wounded upstairs while Union surgeons operated the field hospital downstairs in their home.

Helping with the battle recreation will be the Johnston County Chapter of the American Red Cross, whose members will provide moulage (wound simulation) for the hospital program. Also helping are the 690th Maintenance Battalion of the N.C. Army National Guard and the 70th Regiment, 3rd Battalion, N.C. State Defense Militia.

Admission is free. For details, call the site at 594-0789, or the Historic Sites Section at 733-7862 in Raleigh.

Bentonville Battleground is located near Newton Grove, three miles north on U.S. 701 and then three miles east on S.R. 1008 (marked exits from I-95).

Southern Writers Symposium Set

FAYETTEVILLE — The eighth annual Southern Writers' Symposium on Friday and Saturday at Methodist College will examine the works of North Carolina writer and English professor Doris Betts.

DORIS BETTS

The symposium will feature lectures by scholars, writers, editors and former students of Mrs. Betts. There will also be a juried exhibit of art works based on Mrs. Betts' writings; presentaton of three one-act plays based on her short stories, and a formal dinner with special music. Mrs. Betts is scheduled to attend and to speak breifly at the Saturday luncheon.

Peggy Prenshaw, editor of The Southern Quarterly and a professor at the University of Southern Mississippi, will give the plenary address. Seven professors are to present papers. Dr. Sue Laslie Kimball of Methodist College is directing the symposium.

A native of Statesville, Doris Waugh Betts spent much of her childhood writing poetry. She has published three collections of stories, "The Gentle Insurrection," "The Astronomer & Other Stories" and "Beasts of the Southern Wild." Her four novels are "Tall Houses in Winter," "The Scarlet Thread," "The River to Pickle Beach" and "Heading West."

She is the recipient of several literary and public service awards, including a Guggenhiem Fellowship in Creative Writing and the North Carolina Award and Medal.

She and her husband, N.C. District Court Judge Lowry M. Betts, live on a farm near Pittsboro. They are the parents of three grown children.

The Doris Betts symposium is open to the public. A registration fee of $15 includes admission to the plays. For more details, call 1-800-232-7110.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Meredith Foltz
SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Sheppard Memorial Library has a collection of VHS-format videocassette tapes in the adult section of the Main Library. Sheppard's videos are primarily of an educational, instructional, book-related, and/or cultural nature and include tapes for adults and children. Videocassettes may be checked out for one week on an adult (blue) borrower's card.

Among the new titles in the video collection are some PBS series acquired with assistance from the MacArthur Foundation. Included are "The Story of English","Nova", "Life on Earth", Alistair Cooke's "America", "The American Short Story", "Civilization", "Great Performances", "Planet Earth", "American Playhouse" and "The Jewel in the Crown".

Together with "A Walk Through the 20th Century", "The Brain", "Heritage", "The Living Planet", "The Shakespeare Plays", "The Heart of the Dragon", "Vietnam", "The Ascent of Man", "The Constitution: That Delicate Balance" and "I. Claudius", already in the Sheppard collection, these tapes offer a significant body of cultural and educational programming from public television.

Viewers with an ear — and an eye — for music will enjoy Arthur Rubinstein, "Messiah" and "All That Bach". Art and architecture take the screen in Georgia O'Keeffe, "In a Brilliant Light: Van Gogh in Arles", "The World of Andrew Wyeth"", "Castle and Cathedral".

"Black American Literature", "A Conversation With Poet Laureate Richard Wilbur", "A Conversation With Gwendolyn Brooks" and Richard Wright's work, "Native Son", will appeal to those of a literary bent.

Fans disappointed by the outcome of the ACC tournament can at least relive their team's past glories in "ACC Basketball: 35 Years of Excellence". Other new recreational videocassettes are "Nancy Lopez: Golf Made Easy", "Cruising Under Sail", "Scuba Video Refresher Course", "Learn Snorkeling" and "Wide World of Flying".

If this season of deadlines does not leave you much time for leisure, you may want to get video help from "How to Prepare a Science Fair Project" or the "Internal Revenue Service's Tax Tips on Tape."

THE HOUSE ALWAYS WINS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A Las Vegas casino resort has received a $57,103 rebate award for the replacement of incandescent light bulbs with compact fluorescents as part of the Nevada Power Company's High Efficiency Lighting Program (HELP) to save energy.

According to Energy User News, the rebate was the result of the resort's reducing its kilowatt demand by installing new, energy-efficient lamps. A total of nearly 10,000 light bulbs were replaced by the resort in public rooms, hallways, stairwells, restaurants, rest rooms and elevators.

Photos Sought For Calendar

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The Albemarle-Pamlico Estuarine Study agency is soliciting photographs to be used in a 1990 educational calendar. The calendar will depict images from throughout the Albemarle-Pamlico region and will incorporate descriptive text on the problems facing eastern North Carolina rivers and sounds.

Photos submitted must be in color and be horizontal in composition. Slides and transparences are preferred. Submissions must be labeled with photographers name and address and phone number. Also, the exact location of the photo site is preferred if known. Photographers need not include detailed information.

Deadline for submissions is March 25.

Photographers sending in slides or transparencies are to understand that there is no financial renumeration, that they are submitting photos as a public service contribution, with the slides or transparencies to be returned to the photographer who retains copyright. Credit will be given for any photo used.

Paul Nurnberg, in charge of the project, said that if any funds remain unused from the grant for the calendar project, such funds would be divided between photographers whose work is selected for this calendar. For more details, contact: Paul Nurnberg, 135 West Main Street, Washington, N.C., 27889, or telephone him at 975-2535.

Writers To Meet

The first meeting in March of members of the Greenville Writers Club will take place at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Steele, 120 Avon Lane, Greenville.

Those planning to attend and who wish to share rides or get specific instructions on how to reach the Steele home can meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Krispy Kreme Doughnout shop, East 10th Street.

Members of the writers club meet each second and fourth Tuesday of the month at various homes in Greenville and the local area. There is no fee involved and the club is open to anyone interested in any form of creative writing.

Gallagher Poems Are Published

Dr. Margie Lee Gallagher of Greenville has published several poems recently.

Her poem "Nightlines" appeared in The Book of Contemporary Myth published by Gotlin Press. Two poems, "Anyway, I'm Too Tired," and "In the Wind Shadow," have been accepted for publication in Potato Eyes, a literary magazine published in Maine. She recently received an honorable mention in the N.C. Poetry Society's annual children's poetry competition.

Dr. Gallagher is an associate scientist in the Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources and an associate professor in the food and nutrition department at East Carolina University.

Band Preservation

The Big Band Preservation Society of Nags Head has announced that it is planning a program of big bands at the Armada Hotel in Nags Head this summer and fall.

Upon receipt of signed contracts, the agenda will include the orchestras of Artie Shaw, Guy Lombardo, Billy May, Woody Herman, Sammy Kaye, Russ Morgan and Glenn Miller.

For information about dates and prices, contact Big Band Preservation Society, P.O. Box 219, Nags Head, N.C, 27959; phone, 441-4644.

ECU Dance Theater Program To Open Wednesday

A trio of the ECU Dance Theater performers to be dancing this week

The East Carolina Playhouse will present an evening of dance featuring the East Carolina Dance Theatre, with The Dance Theatre production to open Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. and will have additional performances on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in McGinnis Theatre on the East Carolina University campus at the same hour each evening.

This year's concert will feature five works choreographed by the dance faculty of the ECU Department of Theatre Arts.

Along with the works of Patricia Pertalion and Patricia Weeks, the final choreographed dance piece by Broadway veteran Mavis Ray, who will be retiring at the end of this school term, will be featured.

Area residents will have an opportunity to see the work of a new dance faculty member, Alan Arnett.

Choreographer Mavis Ray will explore the world of dance from 1840 to the present in her dance piece, "The Decline." Her work, which she says is aimed to amuse as well as entertain, will include a little bit of it all from the waltz and polka to the twist and rock.

When asked about the music she will be using, she stated, "It's a gathering of old and new music from whence I could find it. You name it, I got it!"

Choreographer Patricia Weeks has created a piece that combines a Far Eastern feeling with the futuristic sounds of "Tangerine Dream." The dancers in "Radient Energies" find the source of their energy from within and share its joy and strength with each other.

The Dance Theatre takes a somewhat whimsical look at make believe, antic play and childhood games with "Interplay," by choreographer Patricia Pertalion. She has divided her work into four sections, using giant trash containers as props in one section.

"Octapod," choreographed by Patricia Weeks, will feature Ms. Weeks and Arnett, Terri Leggette Winchell, a dance instructor at D.H. Conley High School, and Goldsboro's Patti Kilpatrick, who was a member of Easy Moving Company of Raleigh. The quartet begins with underwater feeling, expands to a playful interaction and then returns to the calm connectedness of the beginning.

The Dance Theatre will close with the first major dance piece choreographed by Arnett. Arnett's work, "Beauty and the Beast" is a jazz ballet about the transforming power of love.

The action between the two central characters takes place in an enchanted grotto amongst a class of supernatural creatures.

Tickets are priced at $5 for adults and $4 for groups of ten or more. All tickets may be charged on VISA or MasterCard by telephoning the box office, 757-6829, or may be purchased at the McGinnis Theatre box office from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. On Wednesday, the box office will open from 10 a.m. until 8:30 p.m.

For further information, call 757-6829.

Tenth Anniversary For The Message Of Easter Drama In Martin County

"The words of Isiah the prophet echoed down through the ages of time and were fulfilled in the glorious Message of Easter."

Performances are scheduled for March 17 through March 27 at 8 p.m. each evening. As always there is no admission charge. The church and theater are located in the Farm Life Community of Martin County 12 miles south of Williamston off of Highway 17.

From its beginning in 1980, word of the drama has spread not only throughout North Carolina but to neighboring states as well. When asked what he attrributes the success of the drama to, E.T. Taylor, director/producer, replied, "We truly believe the hand of the Lord is guiding the drama. There is no way a group of people with no theater training or experience could possibly put something of this magnitude together without guidance.

"We present it each year as a mission, and not for entertainment. There are several excellent passion plays presented during the summer but the ones I have seen have a commercial air about them. They are produced to make money. You buy a ticket, are entertained and then can buy a souvenir if you like.

"There's not a thing wrong with that because we all enjoy being entertained. But it is not what our church family wanted. We have tried very hard down through the years to keep commercialism out of the drama. Hopefully, we have succeeded."

For more information call 792-4977, 792-4875, or write E.T. Taylor, Route 1, Box 720, Williamston, N.C. 27892.

Contradance On Friday

The FolkArts Society of Greenville is sponsoring a St. Patrick's Day Contradance at 8 p.m. Friday. The dance will take piace at Bill McDonald's Karate Studio, 903 Dickinson Avenue.

Music for the contradancing features Irish jigs as well as other folk music for dances of the British Isle.

Musicians from Durham and Greenville will provide music and Bob Proctor from Chapel Hill will be caller for the dances.

A bginners workshop will be offered at 7:17 p.m. designed to increase understanding and enjoyment of the dances.

Since the karate studio dance floor is sensitive to being damaged, those attending the event are asked to wear soft-soled shoes.

Admission is $4 at the door.

For more information, call 758-4889.

Rancher Artist Sells In Art Galleries

By Jeff Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLY, Ore. — Ask Ned Livingston what he does and even he has a hard time deciding what it is, exactly.

There's what he calls "this stuff": the chairs and other furniture he whittles in fluid designs, which sell for big money in fashionable art galleries in New York and Los Angeles.

Then there's what he calls "the land": the old Gerber Ranch, which he and his wife inherited with its pastures to irrigate, and timber to manage.

And there are the fish in the pond in front of the house, which need a handful of chopped liver now and then; the red-legged partridges, which he released into Miller Creek Canyon; and the Klamath County Planning Commission, on which he serves as a member.

"You are talking to a guy who is not particularly sure what woman he is married to, the furniture or the land," Livingston said one winter's day at his home, which he built in a meadow surrounded by ponderosa pine and juniper at the foot of Horsefly Mountain. "And I'm not particularly worried about it."

Livingston and his wife, Marilyn, were both born and raised in this high desert country east of the Cascade Range: Ned in Klamath Falls and Marilyn on the old Gerber Ranch, which is a good 1½-hour drive from the city.

"We came back here (in the 1950s) after college for a year or two," he said. "Then we went to the big city looking for a big architecture job.

"If I had proceeded professionally, I would have stayed in San Francisco. But we kept coming back and coming back. Finally, I said, 'Let's quit looking for ourselves and do what we really want to do.'"

So they moved back to the ranch. Livingston started gluing up pieces of oak and walnut and using a horseshoe rasp to shape free-flowing chairs, cradles, music stands, benches, coat racks, library ladders and bar stools. The ones he didn't sell stayed home. It has taken some years to get six chairs around the dining table.

"In the '60s I was really hot," Livingston recalled. "I was going to burn up the art world with these things. I had a piece in the Renwick Gallery at the Smithsonian. The point is I had stuff around the country. Maybe I would sell a piece here, a piece there.

"It hasn't built into the kind of thing where I didn't need to worry about a monthly income. Then comes the estate breaking up. I had been involved in the operation of this ranch. So the last four or five years I've let this stuff slide. I've worked on irrigating the south 40 or thinning timber.

"The land is definitely a conflict with this other stuff," he said. "Most people aren't so fortunate to have that problem. It would be stupid of me to neglect it."

Livingston proudly recites the history of his land, which was assembled by cattlemen — first Horsefly Wilson and later the Gerber brothers — in the late 1800s out of small homesteads too poor to support a family. Marilyn Livingston drives about 15 miles on a cinder road to get to the little logging community of Bly, where she teaches school. They lease the pastureland for grazing and Ned is working on expanding the irrigation network to produce more summer grass.

He recently cruised several hundred acres of timber. Where the logging outfit wanted to cut all the mature timber, Livingston left enough of the big trees to generate new ones and maintain the diversity of the forest.

With 20 inches of snow on the ground, he's been able to get back to what he calls the wood whittling.

"My furniture tries to conform to the shape of the human body. It ends up kind of sculptural.

"One of the hardest things to make is a chair. Vitruvius (a Roman architect from the first century, B.C.) said a building should accomplish three things: firmness, commodity and delight. What is a chair but the same three things?"

Livingston has been working on improving his dining chair, which he considers his signature work and abstractly calls to mind the sandhill cranes that breed nearby. "The bad thing is the scoop seat makes it hard to get in and out of," he says.

The sketch of his latest idea is in the middle of his notes from a meeting where a state planning official explained some new regulations aimed at stopping the fragmentation of Oregon's farm and forest lands.

In his shop, an early chair, a prototype for a collasible cathouse, jigs, horse collars, bicycles and a small hydroplane one of his two sons built hang from the ceiling. On a work bench, a portable radio propped on a milk can plays classical music.

At another bench, Livingston is free-forming a curved lamination that will form the splayed legs and support the seat of the new dining chair.

"This is the fun part about designing by the seat of your pants," he said. "You think you know where you're going, but you don't.

"If you look at it, you're looking at the bone and sinew and all the rest of the mass is subtracted. I get more of a feel for what makes that baby work."

Livingston was intrigued by a suggestion some time back to make the chairs out of injection-molded plastic.

"The way I work with the material, I tend to make the wood into a plastic material," he said. "You look at a tree limb sticking out from the trunk, and if that isn't a plastic process, I don't know what is. Wood is basically a bunch of bendable fibers.

"It would be easier to pour the stuff into an injection mold and spit out one of these chairs every two hours in any color you want and walk laughing to the bank."

Though it takes 40 hours to whittle one of his dining chairs out of wood, Livingston finds it more friendly than plastic.

"It has an inherent warmth about it that's hard to duplicate in plastic," he said. "Even a warm color in plastic is cold. Whereas wood, you want to touch wood, feel it."

Historic Foundation Offers Two Old Homes

RALEIGH — The Historic Preservation Foundation of North Carolina is offering for sale and restoration under restrictive covenants two historic houses in eastern North Carolina.

In Scotland Neck, the house being offered is the Josey-Riddick House, a Scotland Neck landmark. The house was constructed about 1884 by Max Hoffman, who immigrated from Germany and became one of the town's best merchants. The house was purchased from Hoffman by James S. Bowers and sold to William H. and Mary C. Josey in 1915. It was the long-time residence of their daughter, Nannie Louise, wife of Neusom A. Riddick.

It is an unusually intact example of Victorian architecture, a blend of Queen Anne and Eastlake details. Located one block off Main Street, it has eight rooms, two halls with a kitchen and office in the rear ell. There are mantels on each floor.

The second home being offered is the Price House on Pittsylvania Street in Historic Halifax. It is not known who constructed the house or when it was moved to its current location. It is fairly certain it was built sometime between 1790 and 1810. Tradition has it that the house was originally located on the banks of Quankey Creek northeast of Halifax. Much of the land in that area was part of "The Grove," the plantation home of Willie Jones, an 18th century politician who worked to keep North Carolina from ratifying the U.S. Constitution until the Bill of Rights was attached.

Anyone interested in more information on these two houses and requirements of restoration, are to write to: The Historic Preservation Foundation of North Carolina, P.O. Box 27644, 1804 Hillsborough Street, Raleigh, N.C., 27611, or call 832-3652.

Liberator Bomber Marks Its 50th Anniversary

A World War II airplane that made a major contribution to winning the war will be honored in 1989 which is the 50th anniversary of its first flight. The airplane is the Liberator bomber. The Army and Air Force know it as the B-24 and the Navy calls it the PB4Y-1.

On December 29, 1939, the first of these four-engine aircraft became airborne from Lindbergh Field in San Diego less than nine months after the prototype began to take shape from blueprints made by a company called Consolidated Aircraft.

More Liberators were built than any other American military plan. Factories located in San Diego, Fort Worth, Dallas, Tulsa and Willow Run made more than 18,000 of them by the end of the war in 1945.

The Liberator became the workhorse in the struggle against Axis powers and flew missions in the Pacific, Alaska, European, Mediterranean, Southeast Asia and the North and South Atlantic areas.

As a land-based patrol bomber for the U.S. Navy, Canada and the Royal Air Force Coastal Command, the Liberator sank more Axis submarines than any other aircraft.

Many were produced as C-87 fast cargo planes. Winston Churchill used a Liberator for his travels. The Liberator won honors and respect by flying longer missions and longer hours and with greater bomb loads and cargo than any competitor until the introduction of the B-29.

Two major events are planned the salute the Liberator.

On May 17-21, there will be a celebration in Fort Worth, Texas and on September 20-24, San Diego, Calif. will have events.

Persons interested in the club and its activities are to contact: The Liberator Club, P.O. Box 15-2424, San Diego, California, 92115.

Massenet Opera Airs Saturday

Karen Shaw To Perform In Two-Orchestra Concert At ECU

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Pianist Karen Shaw will perform at East Carolina University March 19 with the combined North Carolina and East Carolina Symphonies. The concert, part of the 1988-89 ECU Performing Arts Series, is scheduled for 3 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Ms. Shaw will be featured with the orchestras in Grieg's Concerto in A Minor, Opus 16, with Robert Hause, conductor of the East Carolina Symphony, conducting.

Other works to be performed are Richard Wagner's "Rienzi" Overture, conducted by Hause, and Gustav Holst's "The Planets" conducted by North Carolina Symphony conductor Gerhardt Zimmerman.

A native of Connecticut and head of the Indiana University piano department since 1968, Karen Shaw has established an active career as recitalist and soloist, appearing in Europe, Asia and throughout North America. Among her most notable accomplishments is her recording of the complete Rachmaninoff "Etudes Tableaux" for the Musical Heritage Society. Her performances have received critical praise in the New York Times, the London Times and the Washington Post.

A series of appearances at New York's Carnegie Hall won particular acclaim for Ms. Shaw as an interpreter of 19th century piano music.

The combination of the state's official orchestra with the ECU campus orchestra has proved popular with local audiences. The two orchestras first combined forces for a gala concert heralding the re-opening of a completely renovated Wright Auditorium a few years ago.

The North Carolina Symphony has performed both classical and "pops" music for audiences of all ages since its formation 55 years ago. Currently the orchestra appears in more than 100 North Carolina communities each year, presenting some 400 concerts. Since 1982 the orchestra has been under the baton of Gerhardt Zimmerman, formerly associate director of the St. Louis Symphony.

The East Carolina Symphony, composed primarily of ECU music students and some local residents, has earned distinction as one of the nation's leading college orchestras. The symphony was one of 13 college/conservatory orchestras across the nation selected for a series of special National Public Radio broadcasts several years ago.

Its conductor has been ECU music professor Robert Hause since 1967.

Tickets to the March 19 concert are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, open weekdays from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.; telephone (919) 757-6611, ext. 266. Tickets for the general public are $14 each, and $7 for youth, high school-aged or younger. Telephone ticket orders may be charged to major credit cards.

Friday performance

Tokyo String Quartet

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The Tokyo String Quartet will perform at East Carolina University March 16, at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium, as part of the 1988-89 Chamber Music Series sponsored by the ECU School of Music and the ECU Department of University Unions.

The ensemble will present a program of three significant string quartets: the Beethoven Quartet in C Minor, Opus 18, No. 4; the Schubert Quartet in G Major, Opus 161, D. 887 and the Bartok Quartet No. 3.

The Tokyo String Quartet, now in its 18th season, regularly appears in music capitals throughout the world. The group has won acclaim from audiences and critics in New York, Washington, D.C., London, Berlin, Vienna, Amsterdam, Milan, Paris, Hong Kong and Sydney for its precision, balance and intonation.

In North America, the Tokyo Quartet has engagements each season on numerous major community and campus chamber music series. The quartet appears regularly at Yale and Cincinnati Universities, where the members are currently artists-in-residence.

Members of the quartet are Canadian violinist Peter Oundjian along with three Japanese musicians: Kikuei Ikeda, violin; Kazuhide Isomura, viola and Sadao Harada, cello.

The group's interpretations of classic and contemporary chamber music have been heard on many recordings, on such labels as Angel-EMI, CBS Masterworks, Deutsche Grammophon and RCA Red Seal. Their recordings have earned the Grand Prix du Disque du Montreux, three Grammy nominations and Best Chamber Music Recording of the Year awards sponsored by the magazines Stereo Review and Gramophone.

In addition, the quartet has been featured on the public television program, Great Performances, on CBS Sunday Morning and on a nationally broadcast performance taped at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

The Tokyo String Quartet's ECU concert is partially supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the Southern Arts Federation. Single tickets are $14 each for the general public and $7 for youth, high school-aged and younger.

Tickets are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office, open weekdays from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. - telephone (919) 757-6611, ext. 266. Telephone orders may be charged to major credit cards.

Japanese Film Is Next For Art Enthusiasts

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The Art Enthusiasts of East Carolina University will host a showing of "The Ballad of Narayama," a Japanese film directed by Shohei Imamura, on March 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Jenkins Auditorium.

The movie received the grand prize at the 1983 Cannes Film Festival, making Imamura the second Japanese director to be so honored.

"The Ballad of Narayama" is based on an ancient Japanese legend which calls for the elderly to be taken at the age of 70 to a mountaintop by their eldest son where they will meet the gods of Narayama.

The film focuses on Orin, a Noman approaching the age when she must make the traditional journey. By dying, she will ensure the survival of other members of her family.

"The Ballad of Narayama" is the fourth of six films in the Art Enthusiasts International Film Series. Tickets are $2 for Art Enthusiast members, $3 for non-members, and are available at the door or in advance by calling the ECU School of Art office at 757-6665.

Jenkins Auditorium is located in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the ECU campus. Parking is available in lots adjoining the center.

The Art Enthusiasts is a volunteer organization whose goal is to bring together members of the community and state with the ECU School of Art to encourage the growth and expand the awareness of visual arts in this region. The newly-formed group engages in activities that promote the understanding and development of contemporary art, supports programs and exhibitions, and fosters the development of the School of Art.

Joanne Legg Graduate Recital Set

Violinist Joanne Legg of Goldsboro, a graduate student in the East Carolina University School of Music, will perform in recital March 13, at 8:15 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital hall.

Her program will include Franz Schubert's Sonatina in A Minor, Opus 137, No. 2; the Max Reger Praeludium in E Minor for Unaccompanied Violin and Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata in A, Opus 47, No. 9.

Pianist Alisa Wetherington will be accompanist.

Ms. Legg is a graduate of Carnegie-Mellon University, where she received a BA degree in English in 1974. She also received a Bachelor of Music degree from ECU in 1986 and is currently a candidate for the Master of Music degree in violin performance. Her violin instructor is Rodney Schmidt of the ECU strings faculty.

Ms. Legg is a resident of Goldsboro and teaches violin privately in addition to her studies at ECU.

WINE TASTING IN FLIGHT

LONDON (AP) — Reflecting the burgeoning interest in wine, one trans-Atlantic airline is now offering westbound passengers wine tastings in flight, reports a travel industry journal.

According to Travel Agent magazine, upper-class service passengers flying to the United States aboard Virgin Atlantic Airline are treated to a Wine of the Month selection by the airline's stewards.

The airline also has scheduled short talks by authors, vineyard owners and winemakers

June and Bryant Gumbel: He likes his ring finger free

Q. Why doesn't Bryant Gumbel of the "Today" TV show wear his wedding band? Is he divorced, separated? Or is his band at the jeweler's for cleaning?—Risha Riviera, San Diego, Calif.

A. Gumbel prefers not to wear a wedding band, and while his marriage reportedly may not be the greatest, he still has as his spouse the former June Baranco, to whom he has been married since 1973. They have two children—a son, Bradley, 9, and a daughter, Jillian, 5. Let's leave it at that.

Q. Why is it that when the richest film stars are listed, Clint Eastwood is missing? Yet here is a man who has starred in over 30 movies, directed 13, produced many of his own films and broken box-office records.—Laurie Benson, Yonkers, N.Y.

A. Clint Eastwood, 58, lives near Monterey, Calif., 300 miles north of Hollywood, so he conveniently avoids public concentration on his financial accomplishments. Knowledgeable film executives are well aware, however, of his worth. They know that his films have grossed an estimated $1.5 billion or more worldwide and that he is indeed one of the world's wealthiest and most consistently successful movie stars.

Clint: Mr. Consistency

Q. Is Sean Penn, who was married to Madonna, a wife-beater? There were stories on TV and in the newspapers that he handled his cutie roughly, then trussed her up. He also has served time in the pokey for being a bad boy. Is this Romeo a wife-beater or not?—Charley U., Mar Vista, Calif.

A. Only Sean and Madonna know if he beat her, and neither wishes to comment publicly on his pugilistic proclivities. On the record, however, he is no devotee of the works of Emily Post.

Q. Some years back, when the late Darryl Zanuck and Howard Hughes were prominent in Hollywood, weren't they involved in an unwritten agreement to exchange starlets for research purposes? And didn't Charlie Chaplin have the same sort of share-the-wealth agreement with the late billionaire J. Paul Getty? Weren't all four of these men sex-obsessed?—W.F., San Mateo, Calif.

A. Darryl Zanuck and Howard Hughes were known to accommodate each other where the testing of feminine talent was concerned. And it was J. Paul Getty who recommended Joan Barry to Charles Chaplin, who later described her as "a big, handsome woman of 22, well-built, with upper regional domes immensely expansive who evoked my libidinous curiosity." In a notorious paternity trial, Chaplin was charged in 1944 with fathering Barry's illegitimate child. The evidence was in his favor, but he was compelled to pay child support. Zanuck, Hughes, Getty and Chaplin all had women-fixations.

Q. Has Cybill Shepherd of "Moonlighting," who had twins by her husband, Bruce Oppenheim, dumped the guy?—Michelle S., Knoxville, Tenn.

A. Cybill Shepherd has filed for divorce from her chiropractor-husband after two years of marriage. A reconciliation is said to be possible, however, until the divorce is final.

Roach/Photoreporters

Newlyweds Bruce and Cybill: Two years later...pffft

Q. My father-in-law and I disagree concerning the relationship of tennis star Billie Jean King to basketball great Larry Bird. I say they are brother and sister, and he says they are not. Please advise. —Kenneth A. Senn, Pagosa Springs, Colo.

A. Your father-in-law is right. Billie Jean King's maiden name is Moffitt. Her brother is the former baseball pitcher Randy Moffitt. Larry Bird, the Boston Celtics star, is no relation.

Q. On movie credits, I always see such terms as "gaffer," "dolly grip" and "best boy." What do these people do?—A.B. Larson, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

A. A gaffer is the chief electrician and leader of a film's working crew, acting as a bridge between the crew and the director of photography. A best boy is an assistant, such as the assistant to the gaffer. A dolly grip is in charge of the camera dolly, the four-wheel platform on which a camera rests. A good book defining the people who work behind the scenes in film production is "Gaffers, Grips and Best Boys," by Eric Taub (St. Martin's Press).

It's not how much you make, it's what you do with it—and the opportunities are out there

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE

BY ANDREW TOBIAS

Mark Seliger

THE VERY BIG PICTURE

What has this got to do with your money? Everything. If true, it means, for starters, that we may be able to shrink the deficit without big tax hikes. It means the 1987 stock market crash may not have signaled a looming economic collapse. It means both sides can shift military resources to more productive things.

After all, the goal of the Reagan military buildup wasn't to become so strong that we could take over the world. (The Japanese—in part because they don't spend much on the military—are already taking over the world.) Rather, it was to become strong enough to make the Soviets see the futility of the competition and then, from that position of strength, to negotiate meaningful reductions. Say what you will about Ronald Reagan's budget deficits, the strategy seems to have worked.

Freer markets and greater personal incentives are busting out all over—in Russia (perestroika), in China (the Chinese are launching a stock market!), in the historic U.S.-Canada free trade pact, in Europe's move toward economic unification, in lower personal income-tax rates (most recently in Japan). Free trade and low tax rates are the stuff of economic growth. Combined with today's awesome pace of technological progress, they add up to what could be a very bright future.

Of course, there are a few problems: the greenhouse effect; melting icecaps

SMART MONEY TIPS

If you make big bucks

Consider municipal bonds. Free of federal income tax—and your own state income tax, if issued within your state—quality bonds currently yield upwards of 7% after tax. That could look awfully good if interest rates ever fell back to more normal levels. And municipal-bond prices could rise if there were ever a hike in the top tax bracket—which is probably more likely than another reduction.

Buy them for the long-term—you lose a lot in financial "friction" when you buy and sell—and be sure to understand the call provisions of the bonds you buy. (A bond that nominally matures in the year 2017 nonetheless may be called in much sooner if interest rates have dropped and the municipality wants to pay you off and borrow more cheaply.) Before you invest, shop around. Check the offerings of your local broker against the advice and offerings of national municipal-bond specialists, like Gabriele, Hueglin & Cashman (800-422-7435) and Lebenthal & Co. (800-221-5822). As for municipal-bond funds, the problem is the relatively high management fee you pay each year.

If you don't

United States Savings Bonds remain attractive for the small saver. Completely safe and available in amounts as small as $25 (for a bond of $50 face value), savings bonds pay a guaranteed 6% minimum if you hold them at least five years (less, if redeemed sooner) but may actually pay more if interest rates are higher over the period you hold them. At current rates, you'd earn 7.35%. On top of that, savings bonds are free of state income tax, and they give you the option of deferring federal tax on the interest until you cash them in. (Starting with bonds purchased in 1990, you'll escape tax altogether, under certain circumstances, if you use the money to pay for your children's education.) To learn more about savings bonds, visit your local bank or call 800-US BONDS.

If you buy certificates of deposit

You may be better off buying them through a stockbroker. Many brokers now offer to place your money at whatever bank offers the highest rate. It's an easy way to "shop" for them; it's an easy way to break a large sum into federally insured $100,000 chunks (if you have that problem); there's usually no commission to pay, because the brokers are paid by the banks; and many brokers will let you redeem the CD early without penalty. (They just resell it to another investor.) Just don't let your broker sell you something besides a CD!

Meanwhile, beware of a new kind of investment your bank may be offering that smells a lot like a CD but is actually a "subordinated note." This is a loan to the bank—not a deposit—and thus not federally insured. The interest rates are enticing, but not so enticing as to justify the risk. What's more, there's no easy way to cash them in early; but the bank, typically, can repay you any time it wants. So you might not get that enticing rate of interest for as long as you thought.

If you buy them to bet on the stock market

One bank has been offering its 16 million credit-card holders a CD with interest tied to the stock market. If the market crashes, you don't lose a penny—just the interest you'd otherwise have earned. But if the market soars, your CD soars with it—up to a point (beyond that point, it soars without you).

"The dream without the nightmare," the bank's brochure calls it. But actually it's a way to get anywhere from zero percent on your money—if the market stays level or declines—to a maximum of 13% a year, if it just goes straight up forever.

From a marketing point of view, it's brilliant—a way for the bank to attract cash from its credit-card customers nationwide and then lend it to others at 19.8%. From a saver's point of view, it's not so hot. Over a period of years, you'd prob-

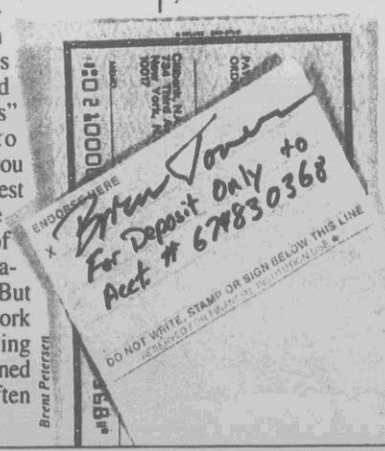
If you deposit lots of checks

The safest way to endorse a check is to precede your signature with a phrase like, "For deposit only to account #2032262430." That way, it's even less likely than usual to be accidentally misdeposited and impossible to be fraudulently cashed.

But writing all that is a nuisance. And part of the new law requiring banks to provide faster access to your deposits also requires that your endorsement be in the top inch-and-a-half of the check (at the "payee" end), which isn't room to write much—not that many banks are likely to refuse your deposit if you stray beyond your assigned space.

So if you deposit lots of checks—the 48 paper-route checks your 12-year-old brings home each month—you may want to use an endorsement stamp. Your bank can probably supply one for a modest fee. It should have the name, address and routing of your bank branch and the phrase "for deposit only" to your account. Once stamped this way, it's virtually impossible for your check to go astray. (Of course, it can bounce, but that's a different problem.) No signature required.



Brent Petersen

ably get about what you'd have gotten from a regular CD, but with a much stiffer penalty if you had to make an early withdrawal. (Withdraw your money early and, no matter how high the market climbs, you get no interest and actually pay 3%.)

There is a broader point here: Beware of new financial products. Most of the research and development that goes on in bank, brokerage and insurance company "labs" concerns not how to squeeze more profit for you out of each dollar you invest but how to squeeze more investment dollars out of you. Hats off to the creative folk in those labs. But you can admire their work without necessarily buying it. The simple, old-fashioned investments are very often the best.

If you lose your wallet

Would you know exactly what you lost? Which credit cards to cancel? On which blank checks to stop payment? One way to keep track: The next chance you get, dump everything out of your wallet face down on a photocopier and take a picture.

Miriam White

Do you know exactly what's in your wallet?

Good mutual funds

Study after study shows that mutual funds that charge no sales commission—"no-load" funds—perform just as well, on average, as those that do. But because no one is out selling them, most people buy load funds—and so, typically, start off with an immediate loss of up to 8.5%. On $10,000, that's $850. Poof.

There are scores of good no-load funds. Here are just five you might consider: Mutual Shares (800-448-3863), Evergreen Fund (800-235-0064), Partners Fund (800-877-9700), Twentieth Century Fund (800-345-2021) and Gabelli Equity Trust (a "closed-end" fund traded on the New York Stock Exchange that you can sometimes buy at a discount—call your broker).

Checking out your Social Security benefits

Want some notion of what Social Security is expected to provide when you retire? And assurance that you've been credited with all the Social Security earnings you should have been? Plus some notion of the disability coverage it would provide and what it would pay your heirs if you died? Call 800-937-2000 to request Social Security Form SSA-7004. When it comes, fill it out and send it in. A few weeks later, you will receive your personalized Personal Earnings and Benefit Statement at no charge.

A TAX HIKE?

We need a tax hike to cut the budget deficit and show the world's financial markets that we are capable of self-control. (If we can show that, we will be rewarded with lower interest rates.) But it should be modest (so it doesn't cause a recession), simple (so it doesn't require more paperwork) and earmarked specifically for deficit-reduction (so Congress doesn't spend it).

A 25¢-a-gallon hike in the gasoline tax would cut $25 billion from the deficit and help to restrain fuel consumption, air pollution, the trade deficit and our increasingly frightening dependence on foreign oil. Yet it would still leave our gas priced at less than half what it costs almost everywhere else.

Taxing cigarettes an extra penny apiece (20¢ a pack) and taxing Social Security paid to recipients earning over $25,000 would raise $10 billion more a year. Keeping the top tax bracket at 33%—it now rises to 33% but then falls back down to 28%—would raise $5 billion more.

These four hikes, totaling $40 billion, should be enough. Much more could cause a recession; much less might not convince the world we mean business.

that will sink all my real estate; drugs and crime; debt piled on debt; terrorism; the prospect that some crazed 14-year-old with an Apple IIGS might wipe out a million bank accounts. As always, there's lots to lose sleep over. As always, we're dancing across the high wire. But we've made some encouraging progress.

THE PRETTY BIG PICTURE

For years, we've been consuming more than we've been producing. Given the first law of economics—that there's no free lunch—you have to wonder how we've pulled this off. We've done it by saving next to nothing, which imperils our future,* and by going deep into hock, which imperils it further. We've been importing VCRs and, to pay for them, selling real estate and major corporations. After five or 10 years, when the VCRs break down, we won't get the buildings or businesses back. We'll just have to sell others.

We've been saying that it's better to borrow the money to buy a $45,000 German car than to buy a $12,000 American car and invest the remaining $33,000 in our future.

Sooner or later, to get things back in balance, America will have to consume less and/or produce more. (Consuming less won't necessarily lead to recession, as it might have in the old days. With the dollar so low, and with the Japanese and others so flush, we'll be busily employed making things for them.) Until we do consume less or produce more, our wealth and competitive strength will just continue to drain off, like a big swimming pool with a slow leak.

How will America ever balance its budget? Continued economic growth, combined with a modest tax hike and modest cuts in the $300 billion defense budget, would head us in the right direction. (As for all those suddenly unemployed military men and women, redeploying 100,000 of them to civilian duty as high school teachers might help to get our toughest inner-city kids off crack and onto reading, writing and arithmetic.)

Actually, it's not necessary to try to wipe out the deficit entirely—at least not right away. The trick is to keep it trending down and keep the economy growing. Right now, our $2.5 trillion national debt equals 50% of our $5 trillion Gross National Product. (At the end of World War II, our deficit was 127% of the GNP.) If the economy should continue to expand at 7% a year, through real growth and inflation, it would reach $10 trillion in 1999. If, over that same decade, we ran annual $100 billion deficits, the total debt would have grown to $3.5 trillion—but it would have shrunk to just 35% of the GNP.

 You will recall Aesop's tale of the ant, who saved food for winter, and the grasshopper, who figured the future would take care of itself.*

YOUR OWN SNAPSHOT

As for your money, isn't it time you reduced your own deficit? And began to observe the most basic rules of personal finance?

1. Spend less than you earn

You may not think you could get by on $50,000 a year if you're earning $65,000—but people do, you know. Really. And the same holds true if you're earning $15,000—somebody down the street is scraping by on $12,000. It's murder scrimping and saving the first few years to get ahead of the game. But until you do, everything costs 20% more than necessary (the credit-card interest you pay to buy it), and once you do, money starts working for you instead of against you.

Methods for saving include:

- Payroll-deduction plans (if your employer offers one): the money goes straight to your savings account without that risky detour through your pocket.
- "Paying yourself first" (the next best thing): putting a set amount, like the first $50 of each paycheck, into a savings account at the same time you deposit the remainder to your checking account.
- "Banking your last raise": continuing to live on, say, $13,500 a year when you've received a raise to $15,000; then living on $15,000 when your pay climbs to $17,000—and so on.

And don't neglect the "savings" possible in shopping smart. Everybody knows this, but you'd be amazed how many people—often, those who can least afford it—pay $3.57 for 100 brand-name aspirins when they could get twice as many generic aspirins for half the price.

If things are good during the Bush years, money you manage to set aside and invest will appreciate nicely. If things come unglued—as they could—you'll be glad you've been living like the ant and not the grasshopper.

The Essential First Rule of money-management: Spend less than you earn.

2. Pay off your credit cards

The American Bankers Association reports that in 1988 about 40% of us paid our bank credit-card bills in full each month, up from 33% in 1987. Progress! But that still leaves 60% of us paying credit-card interest, little of which is even tax-deductible anymore.

(For those who have no credit cards or bank accounts, it can be even worse. Check-cashing stores siphon off as much as 4% or more of each check they cash; pawnshops lend to the little guy at what often works out to 15% or 20% interest a month.)

A mortgage is a perfectly reasonable debt for a young family to assume. But to go into debt for a vacation? For a new dress? For a new car? That's a different story. "Think what you do when you run in debt," cautioned Benjamin Franklin. "You give to another power over your liberty." He actually had lots more to say on the subject, all of it masterful—but you get the point.

3. Diversify

Once you've gotten off the revolving-interest treadmill and have a few months' living expenses someplace safe and liquid, like a bank or money-market fund—quite an accomplishment in itself—there are three more bases to touch. Consider real estate as an inflation hedge (owning your own home, for starters); bonds as a deflation hedge (savings or municipal: see page 4); and stocks, in case things actually turn out okay (shares in no-load mutual funds). The stock market is hardly cheap these days, but over the long run—and this is an important point if you can afford to invest for the long run—stocks always outperform safer investments.

4. Don't blow it

Slow-but-steady is boring; but the alternative—fast-but-lose-it—is tragic, and by far the more common story.

To take a risk by starting your own business can be smart. It takes 80 or 100 hours a week, and—if you underestimate the obstacles or rush in without a great deal of homework—it's likely to fail. But it could make you rich! It happens all the time.

On the other hand, to take a risk because some guy says he can turn your $5000 into $50,000 with no effort or knowledge on your part—well, that's a sure way to lose $5000. Never in the history of economics has this worked.

You get what you pay for in the financial marketplace—if you're careful. Try to get more, and you invariably get what's coming to you.

How Much Do You Want To Know About Cary Grant?

Photofest

Grant, wife Virginia Cherrill and Randolph Scott (r) in 1934: Rumors followed the boys

Ever since superstar Cary Grant died of a stroke in Davenport, Iowa, in 1986 at age 82, a spate of articles, reminiscences and books has been devoted to exposing his lengthy, scandal-stained life. Two of the latest biographies are An Affair to Remember—My Life With Cary Grant, by Maureen Donaldson and William Royce, and Cary Grant—The Lonely Heart, by Charles Higham and Roy Moseley.

Donaldson, a former Beatles receptionist and fan-magazine writer, shared Grant's life for a four-year period, 1973-77. When it was over, she was 30 and he was 73. In addition to their work on Grant, Higham and Moseley are co-biographers of the late actress Merle Oberon.

The two Grant books produce precious little new material. But perhaps warmed-over old ground will attract enough loyal Cary Grant fans to cover the publishers' advance payments to the authors. In any case, here is some of the stuff on Cary which has been hushed about Hollywood for decades:

• Cary Grant allegedly was a bisexual. He had five wives, all beautiful and straight. Only his fifth marriage, however—to Barbara Harris when she was 30 and he 77—was a success.

• Grant was born in Bristol, England, on Jan. 18, 1904. His mother was the former Elsie Kingdon and his father was Elias James Leach, a half-Jewish pants-presser and tailor's assistant. At birth, Grant was named Archibald Leach.

• When the actor was a lad of 10, his father committed his mother to Fishponds, a mental institution in Bristol, some say in order to live with a mistress and their illegitimate son. He then concocted a ridiculous story to satisfy young Archie's curiosity about his mother's disappearance. In 1935, when his father died, Grant—having learned the truth about his mother—had relatives remove her from the asylum. He took care of her until she died in 1973 at age 95.

• As a teenager in England, Grant joined Bob Pender's troup of vaudevillians and acrobats, and it may well have been then, at age 14, that he was inducted into the so-called "British homosexual culture."

• Before women played any considerable role in his sex life, Grant lived in Greenwich Village in Manhattan with a witty gay tie-painter from Australia, John Kelly. Later, Kelly adopted the name Orry-Kelly and developed into one of Hollywood's top dress-designers.

• In the early 1930s, when he was under contract to Paramount, Grant occupied a number of screen-colony residences with a tall, blond, handsome housemate—actor Randolph Scott, from Charlotte, N.C. Their alleged "male marriage" proved a constant source of screenland gossip that gradually diminished only after Grant married heiress Barbara Hutton in 1942 and Scott married Patricia Stillman, a wealthy actress, two years later.

• In his five marriages, Grant fathered one child—a daughter, Jennifer, born Feb. 26, 1966, to his fourth wife, Dyan Cannon.

• A basically schizoid character, Grant was one of the first Hollywood actors to try LSD to reduce his emotional tensions.

• Grant was notoriously frugal and financially shrewd. From 1947 on, he acted as his own agent to save the 10% agent's commission. He employed a lawyer, Stanley Fox, to assist in contract negotiations.

• Despite his many millions, Grant limited his housekeeper to $100 per week for the purchase of food. His favorite and most frequent meal consisted of turkey sandwiches.

With Maureen Donaldson, author of new book detailing their four-year affair

• From 1932 to 1966, Grant acted in 72 films, beginning with This Is the Night, featuring Lily Damita, Charles Ruggles, Thelma Todd and Roland Young, and ending with Walk, Don't Run, which starred Samantha Eggar and Jim Hutton. He regarded Bringing Up Baby, The Philadelphia Story, Suspicion, Notorious and To Catch a Thief as his most notable films.

• An extremely litigious man, Cary Grant acquired in his lifetime an estate valued between $40 million and $60 million, most of it bequeathed to his daughter and his widow.

The People's Choice

Langevin/Sygma

Mikhail and Ron, 1988's most popular pair

It may come as a surprise, and then again it may not, but last year the second-most-admired man in the world, according to us Americans, was Mikhail Gorbachev, president of the Soviet Union. The first was President Ronald Reagan. So declare the Gallup people, who conduct these admiration polls annually.

In 1988, from Dec. 6 to 27, their pollsters asked 994 adults—a scientifically selected sampling of the population—the following question: "What man that you have heard or read about, living today in any part of the world, do you admire the most? And who is your second choice?" The results, combining first and second choices:

1) Ronald Reagan
2) Mikhail Gorbachev
3) George Bush
4) Pope John Paul II
5) Jesse Jackson
6) Billy Graham
7) Lee Iacocca
8) Edward Kennedy
9) Bill Cosby
10) Donald Trump

Note, if you will, that not one athlete made the top 10.

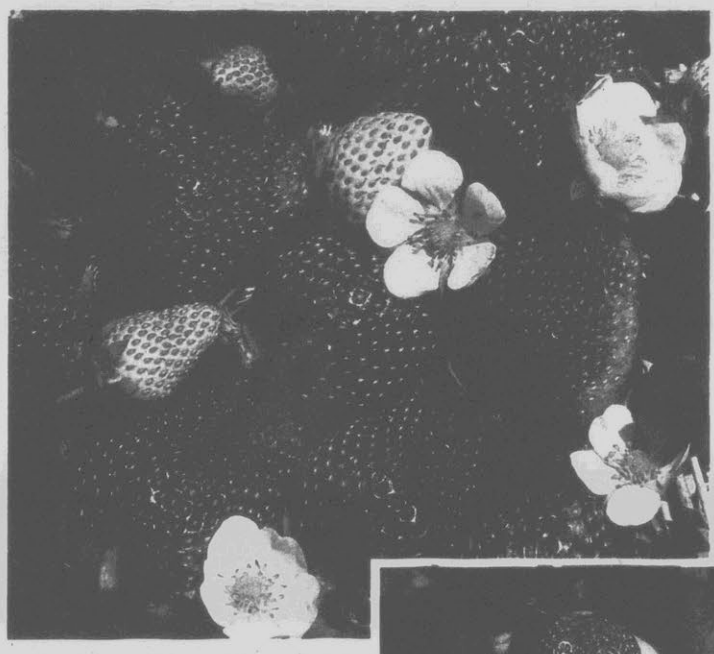
FREE STRAWBERRIES



ALL SEASON STRAWBERRIES

New 'All-Season' Bears Spring, Summer, Fall & Winter Starting This Spring

Cold-hardy 'All-Season' strawberries planted in Fall make strong root growth, will start bearing big, luscious strawberries this coming spring and continue all summer and fall. Winter too, if you take them inside!

Developed by plant scientists at the University of California, from a single plant discovered near Salt Lake City, Utah. Brighton requires no special care to start bearing loads of fruit, continuously. Each plant is so eager to bear fruit it starts flowering and fruiting within 60 days. THEN sets an exceptional number of strong 'runners' and daughter plants that ALSO flower and bear fruit the same season. What's more, these 'bonus' plants will produce flowers and fruit whether rooted in soil or potted inside. This makes them great for decorative planters and hanging baskets. Imagine just two plants in a pot with beautiful white star-shaped flowers and cascades of delicious red fruit hanging all around the sides.

Plus, with each order of Brighton strawberry plants, we send you FREE complete planting instructions, including tips on planting in containers, growing indoors, ensuring heaviest yields, largest fruit and other helpful ideas.

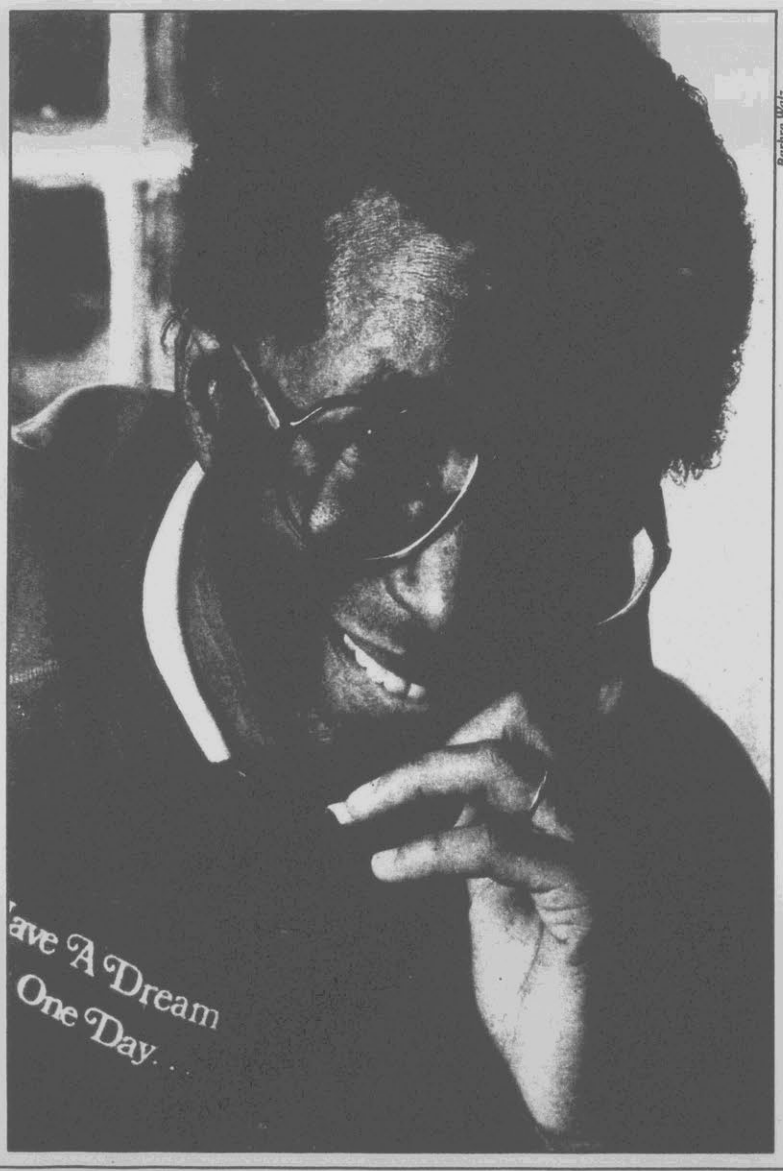
TENNIS CHAMP ARTHUR ASHE TELLS THE STORY OF BLACK ATHLETES

THEIR HARD ROAD TO GLORY



Barbra Walz

Arthur Ashe, athlete turned historian, photographed at his New York State home.

BLACK ATHLETES, SAYS ARTHUR Ashe, have never been given full credit for their achievements in sports—or for overcoming the obstacles they've faced in their rise to eminence.

Ashe, a tennis champion who retired from play following open-heart surgery in 1980, has spent nearly six years with a team of researchers writing A Hard Road to Glory: A History of the African-American Athlete, which has just been published in three hardcover volumes by Warner Books. Starting with an ex-slave from Richmond, Va., named Tom Molineaux, who fought for (and was cheated out of) the British boxing crown in 1810, and continuing through such modern-day stars as Jackie Joyner-Kersee, Dwight Gooden and Mike Tyson, the near-encyclopedic work recounts the black impact in terms of personalities, events and trends, covering the social, cultural and political as well as the sports aspects. Each volume includes plentiful statistics and listings, in addition to photographs.

"I got the idea of doing this book when I was asked to give lectures on the subject at Florida Memorial College," says Ashe, who at 45 is as trim and erect as when he was winning tennis championships at Forest Hills and Wimbledon. "But when I started to do research, I found that, while there was material, it was scattered all over the place and was never in one piece. As I got into it, I found that I myself really had no idea of the richness and variety of the role of African-American athletes in U.S. history, and how much it has been underestimated. The people, the incidents, the stories—they just popped out and almost told themselves."

Of the three volumes, the first, with 194 pages, covers the period to 1918; the second, with 497 pages, from 1919 to 1945; and the third, 571 pages, from 1946 to the present. The books, available individually, are priced at $29.95 for Vol. I, and $39.95 each for Vols. II and III.

Ashe believes the most important gains for black athletes came in the era between World Wars I and II. "Those gains were monumental," he says. "They laid the foundations for the strides we've seen since World War II. But even so, by the time the war ended, there were only two sports in which blacks could aspire to be No. 1—boxing and track. There was no way to deny a Joe Louis or a Jesse Owens."

However, Ashe's own favorite among all the sports personalities he writes about in A Hard Road to Glory is Jack Johnson, the prizefighter who lived from 1878 to 1946, defeated the "Great White Hope," Jim Jeffries, for the world heavyweight boxing championship and then went on to a riotous career that included three marriages to white women, several encounters with the law, accusations of throwing a championship bout and various other escapades. Ashe, who devotes 12 pages to Johnson, remarks: "He flouted convention at a time when he could have been lynched. It's a wonder he survived. He was a talented guy, but he was a character too!"

Ashe—who is married to photographer Jeanne Moutoussamy-Ashe and is the father of a daughter, Camera Elizabeth—points out that, though black athletes have "almost completely rewritten

Doctor-Developed Abdomenizer®

The Intelligent Alternative to Sit-Ups™ Lets you Rock, Rock, Rock your way to a Firmer Stomach!

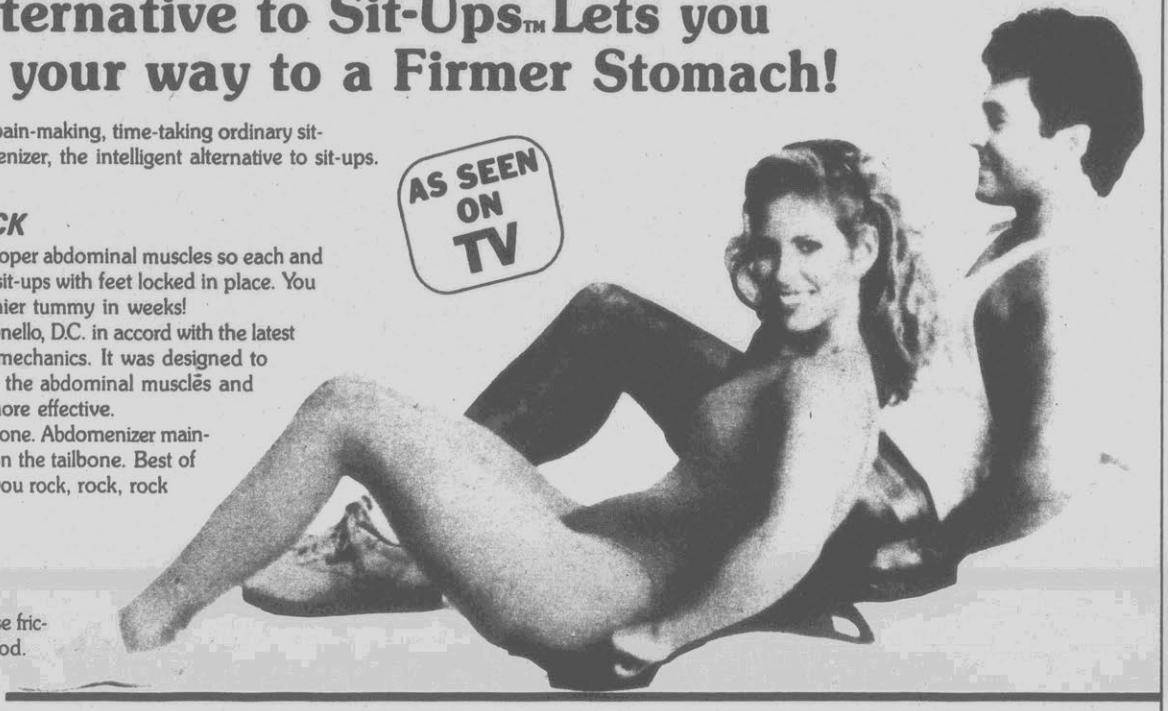
Trying to tighten that tummy with back-breaking, pain-making, time-taking ordinary sit-ups? Stop! Now you can work smarter with Abdomenizer, the intelligent alternative to sit-ups.

A FIRMER STOMACH IN WEEKS AND SAFER FOR YOUR LOWER BACK

This revolutionary stomach exerciser targets the proper abdominal muscles so each and every sit-up is more effective and safer than ordinary sit-ups with feet locked in place. You get maximum benefits in minimum time. Have a tonier tummy in weeks!

The Abdomenizer was invented by Dr. Dennis Colonello, D.C. in accord with the latest scientific knowledge of the human anatomy and biomechanics. It was designed to produce an automatic pelvic tilt which better isolates the abdominal muscles and makes sit-ups safer for your lower back as well as more effective.

You know how ordinary sit-ups can torture your tailbone. Abdomenizer maintains the ideal lumbo sacral angle reducing pressure on the tailbone. Best of all, it's so simple. The unique rocker mechanism lets you rock, rock, rock your way to a firmer stomach.



CUSHIONS & CRADLES LOWER BACK

Experts agree that ordinary sit-ups not only can cause friction on your tailbone, but may do more harm than good. Fatigue and stress to the lower back and spine could cause injury. The Doctor's remedy? A brilliant design that is contoured to cushion and cradle your lower back and pelvis comfortably.

KNEE-IN position works your lower abdominals.

CURL works to tighten upper abdominals.

THREE WAY ACTION

Super effective exercises on the Abdomenizer work on specific abdominal areas. CURLS work to firm upper abdominals. The KNEE-IN position concentrates on the lower stomach area. But that's not all. The slight side-to-side motion Abdomenizer creates, activates lateral obliques. Yes, now you can shape up those love handles...nobody loves.

COLLEAGUES HAIL ABDOMENIZER

Dr. Colonello's colleagues hail the Abdomenizer with such acclaim as: "...I have been truly amazed at the simplicity of the product that yields such dramatic and consistant results." and "Clinically we are excited with this exercise breakthrough."

Now it's your turn for raving reviews. You can make every sit-up more effective and safer, too. You can enjoy a tighter, tonier tummy in weeks. Your Abdomenizer includes a comprehensive instruction manual which includes recommendations for diet and aerobic exercise, which are part of a total stomach-reducing program. So, get smart. Order your Abdomenizer—the intelligent alternative to sit-ups—today.

Either the Chevy S-10 Tahoe is one of the best-looking trucks around.

Or one of the toughest cars around.

The Chevy S-10 Tahoe has a number of features you'd expect in a truck. Like an available 160-horse-power Vortec V6, rear wheel anti-lock brakes* and a 6,000-pound towing capacity.†

But the Chevy S-10 Tahoe also offers a number of amenities you'd want in a car. Like an available AM/FM stereo with cassette, full gage package and power steering. And while we at Chevy think the S-10 Tahoe looks just fine the way it appears on the other side of this ad, there are those who prefer it with the no-cost mud option.

Either way, it's a lot of car — or truck — for the money. Whichever way you look at it.

the record book," their personal adjustments have not always been easy.

"It was a glorious period—the years between 1946 and 1987," he observes in his introduction to Vol. III. "But the calendars were strewn with bankruptcies, broken homes, drug addictions, school dropouts, incarcerations and hopeless dreams."

He also points out that acceptance of black athletes has sometimes been slow even in modern times. He recalls basketball coach Bill Russell once saying of the blacks on his team: "I play them two at a time when we're at home, three when we're on the road—and five when we're behind." Today, of course, blacks dominate in basketball and are well represented in pro football. Baseball, however, despite the integration that began with Jackie Robinson, is doing less well, according to Ashe. "Virtually all the blacks you see in the big leagues are superstars," he says. "Second-echelon players simply aren't hired."

Ashe, who graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles and who holds several honorary degrees, urges all athletes who are in school to stay there. "Do as well as you can in athletics," he says, "but make sure you graduate, even if it takes an extra year. Get your degree and move on, so you have something to fall back on whether you make it or not."

His book certainly provides ample documentation that, when given the opportunity, black athletes have risen to the top in virtually all eras and in virtually all sports. Moreover, Arthur Ashe expects the trend to continue. Even now, he is making plans to add to his final volume as new black champions emerge, achieve and set new records.

Bianca and Bernard fly off to the rescue

The Rescuers is a funny and deliciously scary animated movie about Bianca, a middle-aged mouse (with the voice of Eva Gabor!), and Bernard, her fearful helper (Bob Newhart's voice), who swoop into the air in a sardine can strapped to the back of an albatross. And they sail downriver on a leaf propelled by a heroic dragonfly—all to rescue Penny, the orphan girl, and her teddy bear from the clutches of the scheming Madame Medusa (Geraldine Page). A pleasure for parents and kids. Disney reissue.

• And check out Slaves of New York, starring Bernadette Peters as a funky young hat designer adrift in New York's downtown art scene, where everyone, says writer Tama Janowitz, is searching for success, happiness and a better apartment. Fletch Lives takes reporter I.M. Fletcher (Chevy Chase) sleuthing from L.A. to La., and Police Academy 6: City Under Siege unleashes that inept cop crew again.

KEATON PLAYS AN ADDICT

It's Michael Keaton's comic-tragic performance—as well as the anti-drug message—that makes Clean and Sober worth watching. He plays a cocky and obnoxious cocaine addict who's so far gone, he tries to get drugs into a detox clinic and asks his mother what she has left him in her will when she refuses to mortgage her house to cover his embezzling. Keaton's experiences at the clinic and after, including romance with a fellow addict (Kathy Baker), show him beginning to change...and they ring true.

BOOKS

Remembering 1789

With the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution coming up (Bastille Day is July 14), new books on that historic upheaval are inevitable. One of the best—and most compact—should be George Rudé's The French Revolution (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, $19.95), which cogently examines and analyzes the main events and their significance. Professor Rudé quotes approvingly Alexis de Tocqueville's 19th-century observation that most revolutions occur just when an oppressive regime is starting to make reforms—that as soon as the people's burdens are lightened, they want to throw them off altogether. Wonder if Mr. Gorbachev has ever thought about that?

—Herbert Kupferberg

TELEVISION

Nostalgic for the '40s?

Hollywood's major stars pitched in during World War II to cheer up the boys at the front or sell war bonds, and Entertaining the Troops, a collage of 1940s film clips, shows a great many of them—from Bob Hope to Hedy Lamarr. We even see Abbott and Costello doing their famous "Who's on First" routine in its entirety. PBS.

Ask Marilyn

BY MARILYN VOS SAVANT

Do you think a child should be forced to attend college as soon as he graduates from high school? My son is only 17 and isn't at all decided on what he wants to be, but my husband is very angry and is demanding that he start achieving.

—Anonymous, Portland, Maine

I think it's perfectly fine for a teenager not to have decided what he or she wants to be. Judgments about a life-long profession made too early often lead to disillusionment. However, that has little to do with beginning college. In fact, going to college is probably the best starting point for this exploratory experience. On the other hand, I don't think anyone should be forced to go to college, because it is so likely to be a waste of time on his or her part and a waste of money for whomever is paying.

My suggestion is that your son consider a part-time start at college and include a favorite subject.

Why do people seem to experience car accidents in slow motion when they're happening?

—Sandy Snapp, Denver, Colo.

I don't know for sure, but it may be related to the phenomenon whereby an hour in the dentist's chair seems so much longer than an hour at the amusement park. Perhaps it is simply that situations which evoke fear stir our survival instinct, causing us to "tune in" so closely that we attend to 60 details in a minute, rather than a less-frightening 60 details in an hour or a completely comfortable six details in an hour—corresponding roughly to the accident, the dentist's office and a combination of laughing friends and cotton candy. Anyway, one of the best ways to make a stay at the amusement park last longer is to get on the roller coaster. That ride always feels like an hour to me!

What was your worst subject in school?

—Ben Duncan, Carlsbad, Calif.

Art. I consistently underwhelmed everyone around me.

If red, yellow and blue are primary colors and can't be made by any other colors, then how are they obtained?

—Karen Smith, Cedar Grove, N.J.

Let me briefly straighten out the subject, because your question contains some common errors. There are two kinds of primaries: "additives" and "subtractives." The additive primaries are blue, green and red. Adding lights of these colors can produce nearly every color in the visual spectrum, and the three mixed together produce white light. The subtractive primaries are cyan (blue-green), magenta (purplish-red) and yellow. Subtracting part of the spectrum from white light produces a range of colors; the three together make black.

If that weren't enough to ruin your day, both blue and red can be made with subtractive primaries, and yellow can be made with additive primaries.

What do you do when your emotions are at war with your intellect?

—Anonymous

When there's a conflict, I find that if I act on my intellect, my emotions will follow. With most things in life, what is good eventually will feel good, but what merely feels good eventually feels bad.

Why don't you talk more about your children? Is something wrong with them?

—Anonymous

They just haven't been pertinent to any answer. Both my daughter and my son are healthy and happy and anonymously immersed in their studies in medical school.

PARADE'S ALL-AMERICA HIGH SCHOOL

Girls Basketball Team

Annette Babers

Jessmore/Saginaw News

Lisa Harrison

Lisa Leslie

Shannon Davis

Roger Light

Linda Watson

TWO TALENTED SENIORS have dominated the courts this season and, as a result, they have been named co-Players of the Year on PARADE's All-America High School Girls Basketball Team. Annette Babers, a 6-foot-3 forward from Saginaw, Mich., and Lisa Harrison, a 6-foot guard from Louisville, share the spotlight and top honors. They were tied in the voting by the more than 100 college coaches, recruiters and scouts who chose this year's all-star squad.

Babers and Harrison head a group of 40 players from 24 states named to PARADE's 13th annual roster. For the second year in a row, Indiana placed the most players on the squad, with six, followed by Illinois, Ohio, Texas and California with three each.

Annette Babers, who also made our team last year, has averaged nearly 22 points, nine blocked shots, five assists and four steals per game over her four-year career.

"Annette is an extremely smart player who has all the tools to be a great one," says the Saginaw High coach, Jim Milam. "What makes her impressive is that she's a super defensive player, a good ball-handler, she's quick, has super speed and is an outstanding rebounder." She had not made a college commitment at press time.

Lisa Harrison, who plays for Louisville's Southern High, averaged 24 points, 12 rebounds and four assists per game in her four years on the court.

"Lisa is the most exceptional athlete that I've ever seen," says Bill Brown, her coach. "She seems to know what to do before other players react. She's a very hard worker and is eager to learn. She leads our team in steals, and she's a very fine passer. She will go far." This is Lisa's second appearance on our team. She's committed to Tennessee.

Lisa Leslie, 6 feet 5, of Morningside High in Inglewood, Calif., was described by her coach, Frank Scott, as a "coach's dream" and a "once-in-a-lifetime player." She has averaged 25 points, 14 rebounds and seven blocked shots a game. "She's an ideal youngster, both on and off the court," says Scott. Lisa also maintains a 3.6 grade average. She and Linda Watson of Lynwood, Calif., are the only juniors to make our First Team.

Shannon Davis, 6 feet 2, of Sacred Heart in Pittsburgh, is a three-time PARADE all-American. Nine other players are repeaters from last year. In addition to Babers and Harrison, they include: Courtney Cox, Val Whiting, Necole Tunsil, Natalie Williams, Carol Madsen, Latonia Foster and Tawana Jackson.

Natalie Williams is the daughter of the former NBA guard Nate Williams, who played for four teams in his pro career. Natalie is 6 feet 3 and attends Taylorsville High in Taylorsville, Utah, where she is also a standout in volleyball. She is committed to UCLA.

In addition to our Player of the Year twosome, this year's squad also boasts a set of identical twins—Krissy and Jenny Kuziemski, both 5 feet 10, of Hoffman High in South Amboy, N.J. Krissy made our Third Team and Jenny our Fourth. Both will attend North Carolina State in the fall.

The North Carolina State coach, Kay Yow, directed the U.S. women's Olympic team that competed in Seoul in 1988 and brought home the gold medal. Nine of the 12 players who made up the team are former PARADE all-Americans.

At press time, the college commitments made by other players on this year's PARADE team included: Shannon Davis, Virginia; Courtney Cox, Indiana; Val Whiting and Molly Goodenbour, Stanford; Carol Madsen and Tricia Cullop, Purdue; Danyel Parker, North Carolina State; Cindy Conner, Northern Illinois.

Also, Camille Lowe, Georgia; Averrill Roberts and Monica Taylor, Ohio State; Missy Ayotte, Duke; Tesia Green, Long Beach State; Stacy Carver, Minnesota; Dionne Smith, Notre Dame; Renee Westmoreland, Western Kentucky; Marsha Williams, South Carolina; and Kristy Sipple, Richmond.

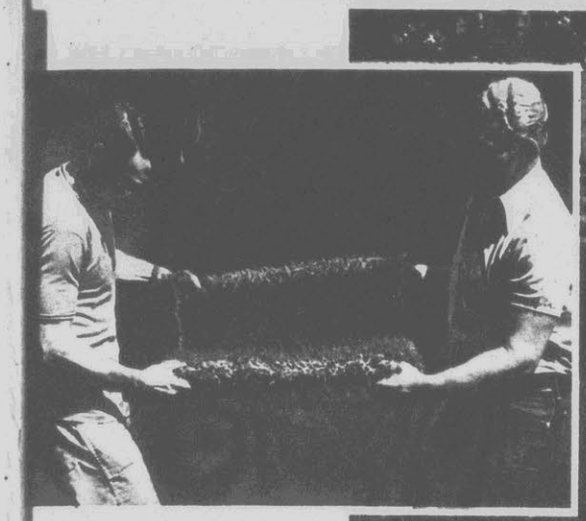
BY HASKELL COHEN



So deep-rooted is Amazoy.. it grows into practically indestructible turf.

FREE! UP To 900 PLUGS If you order NOW!

Amazoy withstands active kids and cookouts. Gives you time to relax, since it needs little water and cuts mowing two-thirds.

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS—DROUGHT & WEAR RESISTANT!

Two Grown Men Can't Pull It Apart! Zoysia Saves Time, Work & Money

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass

By John T. Jackson

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow ... until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn"...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

LAWN WATERED ONLY ONCE

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn —nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

YOU BUY ZOYSIA ONLY ONCE. ESTABLISHED LAWN CAN LAST A LIFETIME!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazoy.

FREE

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffling, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cookouts, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it — or themselves.

Amazoy thrives in porous, sandy soil, "builder's soil". — even salty beach areas! Beauty is but one advantage of Zoysia Grass. It's also so vigorous and rich it thrives in soils where lesser grasses have failed you repeatedly. Start your Amazoy lawn this Spring, and never re-seed your lawn again!

CUTS YOUR WORK, SAVES YOU MONEY

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by ⅔.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day plugs are packed, shipping & handling charges collect via most economical means. For credit card orders shipping & handling costs will be charged to your account.

IN STEP WITH:

BY JAMES BRADY

Robert Stack

BORN: Jan. 13, 1919, in Los Angeles. PERSONAL: Married Rosemarie Bowe in 1956; two children. TV: Includes The Untouchables, 1959-63; The Name of the Game, 1968-71; Most Wanted, 1976-77; Strike Force, 1981-82; Unsolved Mysteries, 1988–. FILMS: Include First Love, 1939; To Be or Not To Be, 1942; A Date With Judy, 1948; Written on the Wind, 1956 (Oscar nomination as Best Supporting Actor); The Last Voyage, 1960; Airplane!, 1980; Plain Clothes, 1988.

Eddie Adams

WHEN YOU GET to talk with an actor who turned 70 on Jan. 13 and whose first starring role was in a 1939 movie (he gave Deanna Durbin her first screen kiss), you ask him about the good old days. And Robert Stack, though currently enjoying a major revival on network television, doesn't disappont you.

He is a fifth-generation Californian from a wealthy and socially well-connected family who was a national skeet-shooting champion at age 16 and a polo star in college. "I'm on the Olympic skeet-shooting advisory committee," Stack says, "but back then the active skeet-shooters in Hollywood were Bob Taylor and Coop [Gary Cooper] and Clark Gable and Howard Hughes. Some of them played polo too. Gable was in a way my surrogate father."

"I knew Ronnie [President Reagan] when he was married to Janie [Wyman]. We weren't chums, but it was Ronnie who got me started on wine-collecting. Now that he has left office, he and Nancy are living about a block and a half away [from Stack's home in Bel Air]."

Although Stack had a big Hollywood career—gaining an Oscar nomination for Written on the Wind and co-starring with John Wayne, Liz Taylor and Bing Crosby—I guess we remember him most vividly as TV's Eliot Ness on The Untouchables. Right now, he's on NBC's Unsolved Mysteries every Wednesday night, a series that evolved out of a couple of specials—with Raymond Burr as host first, then Karl Malden and now Stack—and which has a guaranteed run of at least a year. This year, Stack will return to the scene of the crime in a two-hour Lorimar movie for CBS, Eliot Ness, Welcome to Detroit.

He's a thoughtful, amused critic of his own TV career. "Unsolved Mysteries just sort of grew," says Stack. "It has done very well. But TV is still a complete surprise to me. When I was doing The Untouchables, people kept asking, 'But what will you do after you catch Capone?' And I kept saying, 'I don't know.' " He liked the movie version with Sean Connery and Kevin Costner, despite what he said were inaccuracies, "because it brought The Untouchables back into the language." What he didn't like were those full-page ads of Costner announcing, "This is Eliot Ness." Those ads, says Stack, "bleeped me off."

He and his wife, Rosemarie, have been married since 1956. Their daughter, Elizabeth, is an actress and singer. "She has worked with Jackie Mason and Don Rickles as an opening-act singer, and she's really good," says Stack. "She looks like a blond Rita Hayworth. Charley [their son] plays around with computers. Cary Grant used to come over and talk to the kids about show business, telling them it was not exactly a nifty profession. Elizabeth was all set to become a star, and Cary made her cry. I had to explain that he was just trying to tell her the reality of the business."

Because of his shooting prowess, Stack did one of those early American Sportsman shows with Joe Foss, a Medal of Honor winner who later was governor of South Dakota. "It was my first safari," Stack says, "and I was after my first lion, and they had a mike on me. My heart was pounding so hard, and Foss and I were cursing under our breath so much, they couldn't use the soundtrack." Did he get the lion? "Yes," he says. "It was a lion that had gone bad and was killing cattle, and the game warden said he was going to have to kill it anyway. So I didn't feel bad about it."

BRADY'S BITS

Stack sympathizes with the position of the National Rifle Association on gun control. "Shooting," he says, "is a highly respected sport. I won't apologize for it. But at the same time, when I was a boy, you had to learn gun manners." Did mobsters ever resent his Eliot Ness role? "Hoods are intrigued with show-biz," he says. "Yet they can get mad. Not so much at actors. They think of us as children. But at producers. Someone once put three bullet holes in [Untouchables producer] Desi Arnaz's front door. They never found out who." Another "unsolved mystery."

Every week, Robert Stack is the host of "Unsolved Mysteries." This year, he also takes on another, very familiar role: as Eliot Ness. The old "Untouchable" is coming back.

A Beautiful Way To Go...

And Most Affordable

It's the Jim Walter Way...A way for you to build on your property and have a home you wouldn't believe so little money could buy. We'll build for you to almost ANY stage of completion from the "shell" completely unfinished inside to one 90% complete or just about anywhere in between. Our representative will explain the various stages of completion and what any one of more than 20 homes would cost and your monthly mortgage payment, built to whatever stage you select. Then you take over, finish the rest yourself or with the help of friends, neighbors or relatives. Or maybe sub-contract parts of it. Whatever you do for yourself will save you money...lots of it.

Our Most Complete Home...Still A Bargain Hunter's Top Pick.

We don't honestly believe you can have more home for the money than what we offer you in our most complete stage. And we'll even install central heat and air. You paint or decorate the walls, install floor covering, connect to outside utilities and move in.

THIS IS NOT A ... FRYING PAN"

Nationally Advertised Scandinavian Dry Cooker for Only $9.95

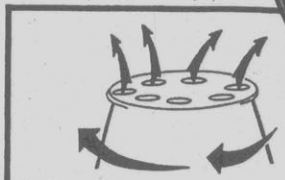
DRY FRYING REVOLUTIONIZES COOKWARE

Dry Frying Revolutionizes Cookware

As part of an enormous nationwide publicity campaign, to introduce, the giant new home shopping club "USA Buyers Network"... We are offering one million of our most expensive fat and calorie free culinary systems — the famous nationally advertised Dry Cooker, for the unbelievable publicity price of just $9.95 only to those who write to the company address (below) before Midnight, May 2, 1989.

Not $50, Not $19.95 - Incredible Offer For Only $9.95!

Similar culinary systems have been nationally advertised by others on television for double our price. In fact, you would think that a high tech culinary system like this would sell for well over $50. But during this nationwide publicity campaign, you don't pay $50 or even half that much. You pay an incredible give away price of just $9.95! But this offer is for a limited time and only available through THIS nationwide publicity campaign if you respond before the deadline above.



The Secret

The exclusive Internal Cooking Tower forces super hot air to circulate rapidly throughout the heating chamber to give you the same effect of frying without the fattening grease and oil!

Indulge In Crispy, Tasty Fried Foods Without the Calories And Fat of Frying!

Just imagine what it would be like to eat all the fried foods you love without the fat, grease, cholesterol, and calories that your body can do without. Cook up your favorite French Fries in this high tech dry cooker, and you'll have a delicious, crispy, low calorie snack that's sure to satisfy even the fussiest of eaters. (Remember, a whole potato has just 90 calories when its NOT deep fried!)

It's hard to believe, but that's still just the beginning! Four pieces of deep fried chicken cooked surrounded by boiling oil actually soaks up more than 1/4 cup of oil — that's over 500 calories! Chicken done in the Dry Cooker is cooked up crispy by rapidly circulating hot, dry air. Now you can enjoy that crispy fried chicken you love without worrying about the ugly fat and calories you hate! If you're one of those people that can't seem to stick to even the simplest of diets because you hate the taste of those bland foods you have to eat, this miracle dry cooker is the answer you've been waiting for to start you on your way to a slimmer, trimmer, healthier you!

Tongue Tantalizing Treats!

Try the dry cooker on sausages and they'll taste as if they've been cooked on an outdoor barbecue. Dry cook vegetables and you'll notice an incredibly wonderful difference from boiling or steaming. You can even dry roast nuts or bake potatoes. With a little imagination, the possibilities are virtually unlimited. Remember, with the Dry Cooker exclusive Internal Cooking Tower you get all the taste and crispiness of fried foods without the extra fat! No wonder this is the most popular and fastest selling cookware ever sold by this giant new home shopping club!

These Nationally Advertised Dry Cookers will not be sold to any wholesalers, dealers, or retailers at this price. They are only available through this special publicity campaign for a limited time. There is a limit of two (2) per address at this price, but requests that are mailed early enough (before April 24) may request up to five. Each Dry Cooker is covered by a full one year money back guarantee.

TO ORDER: Send your name, address and $9.95 for each Dry Cooker you are requesting. Add just $3 for shipping, handling, and insurance (no matter how many units you are requesting). Visa and MC users please supply Account No., Expiration Date, and Signature. (Virginia residents add sales tax). Allow up to 60 days for shipment. Mail to:

FAMOUS NATIONALLY ADVERTISED

Pyramid TALKING Alarm Clock

For Only $10

GUARANTEED TO FIRST 1,000 WHO RESPOND BEFORE APRIL 30, 1989

These TALKING Alarm Clocks are not copies. These are the same famous hi-tech alarm clocks with computer-synthesized voice that have been nationally advertised in this country's leading magazines and catalogs and have sold in prestigious stores for many times this price. Not only the fastest selling, but also the most expensive computerized alarm clock ever sold by U.S.Buyers Network!

The clock of the future is finally here! This amazing computerized alarm clock is by far the most accurate, most efficient, and the easiest to use ever developed. To tell the time, don't strain your eyes--simply touch the top of this ultra-sleek pyramid design, and it clearly announces the exact time of day. Instead of an irritating buzz or ring to wake you up in the morning, this one-of-a-kind clock actually gives you two alarms to choose from. It will either crow like a rooster or, if you like, the clock beeps and announces what time it is--it sure beats squinting at your clock early in the morning to see the time!

That's just the beginning! This little time-teller is loaded with features like automated hourly time announcement mode (this means the clock will automatically announce the time every hour if you desire), two volume modes, two time modes (military or 12 hour), digital time display, easy to set push button controls, and much, much more!

There is a limit of two clocks per address at this price, but requests made early enough, (before April 25) may request up to five. We reserve the right to extend guaranteed dates and quantities.

Ted Danson Stars In The Movie 'Cousins'

By Bob Remington

I know Sam Malone. Sam Malone is a friend of mine. And Ted Danson is no Sam Malone.

Sitting casually, a little nervously, in his hotel suite, wearing clear-framed glasses and gasping every so often from what seems an asthmatic response to New York City air, Danson is 3,000 miles from the blustery rogue of "Cheers." Sam Malone uses charm as a weapon; Danson, as defense. The screen image closest to his real-life self may well be the romantic dreamer he plays in the current film "Cousins," where Danson and co-star Isabella Rossellini gambol like children in a touching relationship that evolves from friendship to love.

"You're right," the 41-year-old Danson acknowledges, "most of the movie parts I've done, I haven't put out dangerous, confused, violent, crazy, off-the-wall energy, which is kind of sexy. Probably that's my style in life, too: Get 'em laughing and giggling," he says with a grin, "and then introduce the possibility of sex."

The path to Sam Malone took him through struggling-actor New York stage roles, TV commercials and two soap operas, "The Doctors" and "Somerset." Danson made his film debut in "The Onion Field" (1979), and went on to guest-roles on "Taxi," "Magnum, P.I." "Laverne & Shirley" and other shows. He earned good notices as the dancing D.A. of "Body Heat" (1981), then edged out Fred Dryer and William Devane for the co-starring spot on "Cheers."

Today, Danson happily rolls along with the huge success of "Cheers"; it's a success that didn't slacken even when Sam Malone's love and nemesis, Diane Chambers (Shelley Long), left the show after five years. Still, as Danson himself concedes, "Cheers," now in its seventh season, may be showing signs of age.

"We still have about one out of four shows that's a knockout," he says. "But Sam and Rebecca (Kirstie Alley) have a problem, because they need another character to bounce off of, where as Sam and Diane could go head to head.

"I think we're getting harder to write for. But I think sometimes the writers have gotten lazy. I think they feel this way too, so I don't feel like I'm stabbing them in the back. See, Sam usually has had something that he's grappling with, so there's movement in his life, and then he's funny when he's trying to grapple. But I haven't had anything to grapple with — I've turned into a walking sex joke: 'Do you wanna, no I don't, heh heh heh.'

"Next movie I do," he offers jokingly, "there has to be dangerous sex."

Now You See It

On April 3, CBS will premiere "Now You See It," a new word-oriented game show that will offer cash prizes for quick-thinking contestants. The half-hour show will be hosted by Chuck Henry and will require participants to quickly scan grids of scrambled letters and try to determine the words that are hidden therein. The program will air between 10:30 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. on most CBS stations.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

Dear Michele: I absolutely love Rob Lowe! What can you tell me about him? — T. TALBOT, ALEXANDRIA, VIRG.

Lowe was born March 17, 1964, in Charlottesville, Va., and raised in Dayton, Ohio. He later moved to Los Angeles after his mother's second divorce. A self-proclaimed social misfit, Lowe wasa skinny kid who confesses, "I was somewhere between the cool kids and the outcasts — the last one picked on every team." Little did anyone know he was destined to become one of Hollywood's founding "Brat Packers" and a box-office sex symbol. In Ohio, Lowe began his acting career appearing in summer stock, commercials and local television.

After the move to California, he attended Santa Monica High School, where he met fellow actor Emilio Estevez — they would eventually team together on screen in "St. Elmo's Fire" (1985). Lowe continued his commercial work in California, and went on to appear in the "ABC Afterschool Specials" "Schoolboy Father" and the Emmy-winning "A Matter of Time." Two failed series pilots followed, but he eventually landed the role of Tony Flanagan in ABC's "A New Kind of Family" (1979-80). In 1982, Lowe made his film debut in "The Outsiders," and has been churning out films ever since. Today, he has his own production company. Lowe is a bachelor, and his romantic liaisons with Melissa Gilbert, Nastassia Kinski and Monaco's Princess Stephanie have provided plenty of fodder for the press.

Dear Michele: I recently watched "Made in Heaven" on HBO. My family thinks I'm nuts, but didn't Debra Winger play the character of Emmett. If not, who did? — CLEADES MULLIS, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

Winger, in drag, chopped off her locks to play the cameo role of Emmett, Timothy Hutton's guardian angel, in "Made in Heaven." Emmett was billed as Himself, and Winger's name was not listed in the credits. It appears the 1986 Winger/Hutton marriage was not made in heaven. The two have since split, but are reportedly dating again.

Dear Michele: As a young girl growing up and bitten by the incurable disease known as "Equine-i-tus," I loved any show with horses in it. "Mr. Ed" was my favorite, and these are my questions: How long did the series run? What breed of horse was Ed? What was Ed's registered name? How long did he live? How did he move his lips? — BETTE L. NAGG, BROWNSVILLE, PENN.

"Mr. Ed" was the first series to ever go from syndication (1960) to network prime time when CBS added it to its 1961 lineup. The sitcom aired from 1961-65. Mr. Ed, whose real name was Bamboo Harvester, was an 11-year old Palomino. Following cancellation of the series, he continued making personal appearances across the United States for 15 years before his death in 1975, at the age of 33. Ed's trainer, Les Hilton, was always on the set with him. Obviously, the horse couldn't talk — his lips were moved by a nylon bit.

Dear Michele: Whatever happened to Todd Bridges of "Diff'rent Strokes"? Was he sent to jail for possession of drugs? — KEVA MILLER, FT. PIERCE, FLA.

For the past several years, Bridges, 23, has had numerous run-ins with the law. He has been convicted for reckless driving, carrying a concealed firearm, and making telephone bomb threats against a man he had hired to customize his Porsche. On Feb. 3, Bridges was booked and jailed for attempted murder, the day after allegedly shooting Kenneth Clay five times during a heated argument. Clay was hospitalized in serious, but stable condition. The week before, Bridges had been arrested at the scene of the crime for possession of cocaine. The actor previously starred as the older brother, Willis, on the NBC sitcom "Diff'rent Strokes" (1978-86).

Dear Michele: My sister and I are going nuts trying to remember the name of the 1960s television series that starred Michael Parks. All we can remember is he rode a motorcycle. — PAULINE BREEN, VICTORIA,TEXAS

Parks starred as brooding biker Jim Bronson in the NBC series "Then Came Bronson" (1969-70). NBC was looking to cash in on the popularity of the 1969 box-office smash.

WEDNESDAY
HOOPERMAN

On "Hooperman," John Ritter plays a San Francisco police detective who doesn't always solve crimes in the most conventional manner. Adding to his troubles is the apartment house he inherited. It airs Wednesday, March 15, on ABC.

TUESDAY

HEAT OF THE NIGHT

A victim of a brutal assault triggers disturbing memories for Tibbs (Howard Rollins I.) and suspicions in the mind of Gillespie (Carroll O'Connor), who thinks that she is lying about her attacker. It airs Tuesday, March 14, on NBC.

Soap Scoop

'AW' was on the mark; 'OLTL' was too far out

By Connie Passalacqua

It was the best of sweeps, it was the worst of sweeps. One soap produced one of the best sequences ever attempted on daytime during the February sweeps period, and another came up with a complete clunker.

"Another World" created a soap landmark with two days of episodes titled "A Valentine to Singles" just before Valentine's Day. The idea of exploring the world of single people in a medium in which almost everyone is paired off or married was that of the show's new head writer, Donna Swajeski, herself a single woman. In the first episode, the theme was "What do women want?" It featured the show's single female characters, from teen Josie Watts (played by Alexandra Sprig) to grandma Ada Hobson (played by Constance Ford). The second episode asked the same question about men.

For the first time in daytime soap history, "AW" broke down television's fourth wall by having characters speak directly to the camera. They described the pain, doubt and insecurity of being single. The dialogue grew so profound that "AW" didn't even sound like a daytime soap. Bravo to "AW" and its writers, for creating a sequence that seemed almost too good for daytime.

On the other end of the February soap sweeps spectrum is "One Life to Live." As much as we admire the creativity of its executive producer Paul Rauch, the show sadly misfired when it offered up an unlikely group of characters who descended into a strange world dubbed Eterna, a city underneath a Llanview mountain.

In what looked like a Greek drama played out against a "Raiders of the Lost Ark" theme, the group of frumpily dressed characters confusingly searched for gold and the true identity of the long-lost daughter of Viki Buchanan (played by Erika Slezak). She turns out to be tarty but charismatic Megan Gordon (played by Jessica Tuck).

The Eterna sequence didn't work, and it wasn't just because it was too strange and too surreal or even because it was out of sync with everyday soap domesticity. The real problem was that the fantastic happenings weren't backed up by the key element a soap must always have to keep its audience glued to the set – romance. There wasn't a love story to drive the Eterna plot.

Credit "OLTL" for trying something different. Oh, well, we'll see you next February.

SUNDAY PEOPLE'S CHOICE

TV Chatter

By Frank Sanello

If you thought last month's "Naked Lie" was a departure from Victoria Principal's good-girl role on "Dallas," wait until "Obsession," her next TV movie, airs on ABC later this year. Principal, who also developed and was executive producer of "Obsession," plays a mentally unbalanced woman who falls in love with another woman.

"This is a character study of mental illness," Principal insists. "Which is not to say homosexuality is a mental illness whatsoever. This woman is obsessed. When something controls your life to the exclusion of everything else, which her interest in this woman does, I think it qualifies as a mental illness."

Principal confides that when she was in high school she, too, had a crush on a female student, but the attraction was purely platonic. "She was so generous of spirit," she says. "She had time for everyone, and I so admired her for that. She went out of her way to be kind to me, which especially touched me because I was the new kid in town and didn't know anybody."

Although he wrote and starred in two of television's classic comedies, "Your Show of Shows" and "The Dick Van Dyke Show," writer-director Carl Reiner doesn't turn up his nose at current programming. Reiner, 66, who concentrates on directing these days, admits that he still likes to watch TV. His favorite? "The Cosby Show."

"It sometimes is just brilliant," he says. "Recently he did a show with 3-month-old twin grandchildren. He didn't do anything but play with them on the couch, but I roared."

Sports Roundup

SUNDAY, MARCH 12

NBA Basketball (CBS)

Denver Nuggets at Boston Celtics.

NCAA Basketball (NBC)

Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament, championship game live from Atlanta. It's the granddaddy of all the conference tourneys and still one of the best shows in college sports, but this has been sort of a sluggish year for the ACC.

NCAA Basketball (ABC)

Southeastern Conference Tournament, championship game live from Knoxville, Tenn. Home cooking should help Tennessee, but freshman scoring sensation Chris Jackson and senior Rickey Blantan make LSU a tough contender.

NCAA Basketball (CBS)

Big East Conference Tournament, championship game live from New York City. We would be surprised if anyone other than Georgetown won this tournament.

PGA Golf (NBC)

Bay Hill Invitational, final-round action live from Bay Hill C&L, Orlando, Fla.

NCAA Basketball (ABC)

Pac-10 Conference Tournament, championship game live from Inglewood, Calif., or Big Eight Conference Tournament, championship game live from Kansas City, Mo.

Skating (CBS)

NCAA Baskeball (CBS)

The NCAA Tournament Draw. CBS has turned the announcement of the tournament brackets into one of the most dramatic off-the-court spectacles in TV sports.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16

NCAA Basketball (ESPN, CBS)

NCAA Division I Basketball Tournament, first-round games live from various sites. The first round of the NCAA tournament is the most exciting and unpredictable 48 hours in all of sports.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17

NCAA Basketball (ESPN, CBS)

NCAA Division I Basketball Tournament, first-round games live from various sites.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18

NCAA Basketball (CBS)

NCAA Division I Basketball Tournament, second-round games live from various sites. Billy Packer has been to every Final Four since 1975, first for NBC and now with CBS. "I think that the expansion of the Tournament has turned it into a genuine national championship," Packer rhapsodizes. "You have every state in the union, every region, with a potential champion, as close as three weeks away.

"Each year seems to be its own story, and the best part of it is that you never know what's going to happen," says Packer. "You can analyze and analyze and all of a sudden Richmond beats Indiana (as it did in 1988). Where did this come from? That's what makes it so thrilling for me."

PBA Bowling (ABC)

World Figure Skating Championships, from Paris, France. West Germany's Claudia Leistner is being touted as the next Katerina Witt, but we are skeptical. Jill Trenary and Midori Ito, who skated impressively last year, return. Kristi Yamaguchi faces the much publicized challenge of skating both solo and in pairs. The men's competition is wide open, but American crowd-pleaser Christopher Bowman looks like a possible favorite.

Wrestling Pays Well - For An Acting Job

By Marty Linehan

To the surprise of practically no one, it was announced last month that those big, bad wrestlers on TV are only funning.

To spare their profession from the regulations that apply to boxing and other sports, the World Wrestling Federation testified before the New Jersey Senate that wrestling is entertainment and that the participants are trained to avoid injuries.

Their drop kicks, flying body presses and "chicken wing," not to mention their grunts, groans, screeches and expressions of rage, are all part of the entertainment. And these tools of the trade are learned, not developed naturally. All you need is size, a far-out costume and an appropriate name.

The tricks are learned in such academies as the Monster Factory, a school for potential grunt and groaners in Paulsboro, N.J. The institution is run by the 260-pound, 38-year-old Pretty Boy Larry Sharpe, who neither agrees nor disagrees with the World Wrestling Federation's announcement.

"Some say it's real," he told reporters, "and some say it's a show. But if you don't know, I'm not going to tell you."

One of Sharpe's successful graduates is Bam Bam Bigelow, who had to gain 30 pounds, shave his head, and cover his dome with tattoos. Then there are two midgets, one a former fast-food chef and the other unemployed, who are now known to fans as Amazing Martin and Frankie 3rd Degree Burns. Their size didn't matter.

Heavy Metal Thunder is not a rock group, just one of Sharpe's students. The 24-year-old wears a red-and-black uniform, spikes on his arms and legs, and has his face covered with war paint. An extroverted pupil calls himself the Ultimate Party Animal. Wait until Studs MacKenzie hears about him.

In 'Never,' Connery Has Outgrown Bond

By Robert DiMatteo

In 1983, the same year that saw the release of one of Roger Moore's best James Bond films, "Octopussy," Sean Connery — the original and still definitive Bond — also returned to the role of 007. "But Never Say Never Again" (ABC, Sunday) proved a bit disappointing.

Essentially a remake of the fourth Bond movie, "Thunderball," it's far more drawn out than the original. Even more disappointing was the fact that Connery has outgrown the role of suave, sexy 007. Bond is a resolutely two-dimensional character, whereas Connery has become a terrific three-dimensional actor. Cavorting in "Never" he looks misplaced, and a bit long in the tooth.

The movie has its moments, though. Klaus Maria Brandauer ("Out of Africa") makes a terrific nemesis, smirking his way through a dangerous laser-video game with Bond. And Barbara Carrera is a sensational villainess. In the movie's wittiest bit of nasty, we see her smoking high heel after she's been blown up.

Director James Cameron ("The Terminator") brought his gift for high-tech action to Aliens (CBS, Tuesday), a relentless 1986 sequel to the 1979 horror hit "Aliens." Joined by a team of tough Marines, Sigourney Weaver returns to the planet Acheron to wipe out the ickiest creatures imaginable. There are lots of hip touches — the funky ethnic cast, the feminist-era heroine, the implied critique of capitalist investment at the expense of human lives.

HOMEWORK

Fresh Ideas For Home Improvement

Staying home is back in style. Carryout and prepared food sales are rising. Renting a video is more popular than going to the movies, and do-it-yourself home repair is booming! Because more career families regard their home as a refuge, home improvements are more popular than ever!

"Homework" will contain articles on renovating, repairing and remodeling your home. This special section will also contain ideas on adding wallpaper, insulation and new lighting. In addition, many helpful and time-saving tips will be given on outdoor cleanup, additions and gardening.

Look for "Homework" in Friday, March 24th's edition of The Daily Reflector. It's sure to make your spring home improvements much easier!

Free Poison Prevention chart from your Eckerd Pharmacist

With National Poison Prevention Week in mind, your Eckerd Pharmacist offers these tips on how to poison-proof your home.

- Make sure all household cleaning products are in their original containers or properly labeled, have child-resistant caps and are locked out of reach.
- Store all medicine in the original container with the label.

Remember, any medicine can poison if used improperly. Come in and ask your Eckerd Pharmacist for a free chart of first aid remedies for poisonings and a telephone sticker for emergency phone numbers.

To an Eckerd Pharmacist, nothing's more important than your health.

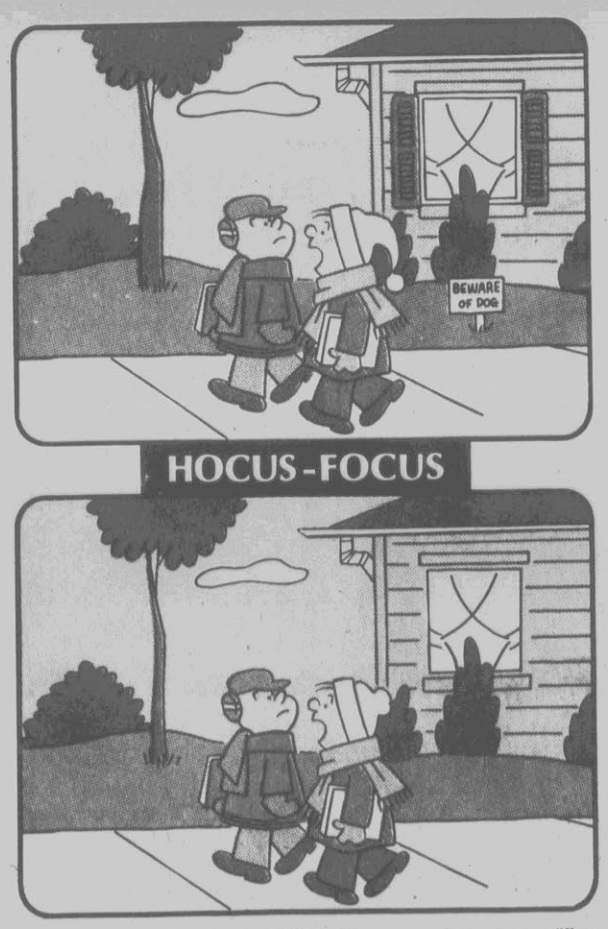
HOCUS-FOCUS



CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Tree is slimmer. 2. Cloud is smaller. 3. Scarf is shorter. 4. Hat is different. 5. Shutters are missing. 6. Sign is missing.

Junior Whirl®

by Hal Kaufman

• BIG PARADE! The line of march here is a procession of the digits 1-9 around the bass drum. Numbers are to be arranged so that a total of 15 is obtained by adding the digits in each three-circle row.

Center digit: 5; then 1,6,7,8,9,4,3,2 around outside.

• LONG COUNT! If a centennial marks a hundred years, and a bicentennial marks two hundred, how do we designate one hundred and fifty years?

It's called a sesquicentennial.
