Legislators Convene In Fayetteville's Mart Area

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — The General Assembly met in a commemorative session today near the spot where delegates voted 200 years ago to ratify the federal constitution, making North Carolina one of the United States.

The House and Senate convened separately under tents on downtown streets in Fayetteville, the provisional state capital in 1789.

Hundreds of city residents and school children watched from behind police barriers as lawmakers debated several resolutions and delivered speeches about the historic occasion.

Black legislators carried through on their decision to boycott the session because it was held outside the Market House, a historic building where slaves occasionally were sold during the 1800s. The controversy drew extraordinary attention to the commemorative session, but legislators and local officials on hand said the boycott did not detract from the importance of the event.

"The members are more interested in the history and culture of our city," said Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland. "I think maybe they've gotten a different image of Fayetteville since they've been here. (The controversy) hasn't even been discussed yet."

Rep. C.R. Edwards, D-Cumberland, was the only black legislator to attend the session. Seventeen others participated in the boycott.

A number of white legislators also skipped the session to conduct business elsewhere. Twenty-six House members obtained leaves of absence, said principal clerk Grace Collins.

Legislators began the day with an outdoor breakfast near the Fayetteville Arts Council building, a renovated post office several blocks from the Market House. Shortly before 10 a.m., the legislators strolled down Hay Street for the morning session.

There was speculation that lingering animosity between House Democrats might swell the ranks of the absentees.

"I wonder if we'll even have a quorum in the House with everybody that says they won't be attending," said Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake.

A well-placed source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said some white Democrats loyal to former Speaker Liston Ramsey might skip the session in an effort to embarrass Rep. Joe Mavretic, who deposed Ramsey in January, and his supporters. All but one of the House members from Fayetteville backed Mavretic.

House Majority Leader Dennis

Wicker, D-Lee, sharply disputed the contention.

"I can say absolutely that is not true," Wicker said. He said he will miss the session, but only because he and other members of a House subcommittee are going to Texas Thursday to discuss forming a regional hazardous waste disposal compact.

The blacks refer to the building as a "slave market" because slaves, occasionally were sold there in the 1800s.

Seminar Pinpoints Dropout Problem

By Cherie Evans

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Methods for keeping students in school are not new. They're just not often used.

Setting high expectations, motivating with creative ideas and getting students actively involved in their learning were among the age-old ideas discussed during a symposium Wednesday evening on students "at risk" for dropping out of school.

Conducted by the Pitt County schools, the symposium brought in educators, medical and business professionals, clergy and parents to discuss working together to use and overlap those ideas to curb the dropout rate in Pitt County.

"There is no such thing as can't," a minister told the group gathered in the Willis Building. "You have the opportunity to become the model community for this nation."

The Rev. Russell White of East Orange, N.J., described how he created the Eagle Flight & Pilot Training School to motivate children in East Orange to want to learn and to be productive citizens.

Participation in the program hinged on their getting good grades, White said. "C means see you later."

The children in the program develop an understanding that they are in control of their lives, despite any obstacles their environment may present, he said. They not only learn to fly but they also learn to live their lives by the flying school's motto — "Honor, Integrity, Dignity," White said.

Since establishing the school in 1975, White said he has trained 239 pilots. Many of them are flying commercial and military airplanes.

"You must have a program where they can get their hands on some-

Martin Proposes Cut In Food Tax

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The state sales tax on food would be scaled back from 3 percent to 1 percent as part of a tax package that will also increase teacher and state employee pay, Gov. Jim Martin said today.

Martin, at his weekly news conference, unveiled his proposed supplemental changes to the state budget, which reflect a 1-cent sales tax increase expected to generate $510 million annually. Martin said that after a 6 percent average pay increase for teachers and state employees, there would be enough money left to offset the $65 million lost by reducing the food tax.

The 2 percent local sales tax would remain in effect, so the total tax on food would be 3 percent.

Martin also affirmed that the state budget office has reduced by 5 percent the money sent to all state agencies in response to lower-than-expected revenues in March.

"What it does right now is to serve as a warning that everybody needs to make an extra effort to conserve ... through this next quarter," Martin said.

Marvin Dorman, state budget director, said revenues declined 32 percent in March compared with the same month in 1988. He said state officials had been told that if April and May revenues are on target, "there might be some relief coming."

Dorman said it was not unusual for the money being sent to state agencies to be reduced, but he said it hadn't been cut by 5 percent since 1982.

The reductions mean the $1.6 billion normally sent out has been reduced by $72 million.

Dorman said the reduction appeared to be primarily due to replenishing local governments for income lost with the elimination of the tax on manufacturers' inventories. He said there was no evidence of an economic slowdown.

Mitzi and Ron Gill, iron-jaw aerialists, create circus magic

A Special Touch Of Magic

By Jerry Raynor
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Aerialists Ron and Mitzi Gill, a husband and wife team performing with the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus, personify the kind of entertainers that give that special touch of magic to circus people.

A strikingly handsome couple, theirs is a glamorous lifestyle — but it is also one achieved through a regimen of strict discipline.

"We constantly watch our weight," Gill said. "Any extra weight could very well be a hindrance to our performing."

"Which means we eat only one meal a day," Ms. Gill said, "after our work day. And that is mostly different kinds of salads. Fortunately, we both love salads."

Their aerial specialty is the iron jaw act, with Gill upside down on a swinging perch bearing the weight of his wife as she sways and spins beneath him, their bodies connected to each other only by devices clamped in their mouths.

"This act requires tremendous strength and skill in the use of jaws and teeth," Gill said. "Good teeth, as you can well imagine, are really important in our act."

While the circus is on constant tour during warmer months, there is no letup in keeping in shape. "We are constantly rehearsing, to stay in top shape," Ms. Gill said. "Carefully double checking our equipment is another thing we do religiously. You can't make mistakes."

Both the Gills call Florida home. Gill was born in Pennsylvania and his wife is a Baltimore native, but most of their lives have been spent in Florida.

Gill has been a performer since 1964, "always as an aerialist," he said. "Since Mitzi and I have teamed up, we've been performing the iron jaw act."

Ms. Gill came to the circus later than her husband. "Before I mar-

Reflector Editorial Editor Wins Award

Mary C. Schulken, editorial page editor for The Daily Reflector, has won the first Glenn Keever Editorial Award from the North Carolina Association of Educators.

The award is to be presented tonight at the Raleigh Civic Center in conjunction with the annual NCAE School Bell Awards.

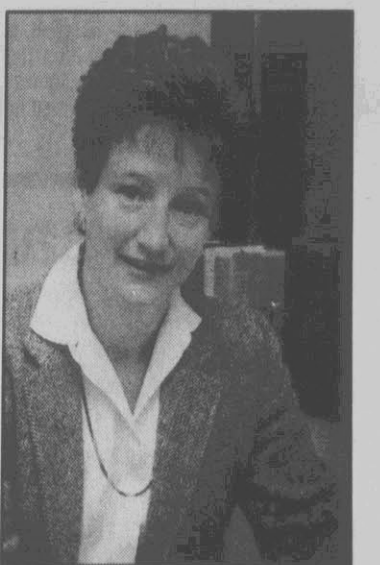

The newly created award honors outstanding editorial journalism efforts for public education. It is named for the immediate past editor of NCAE publications, Glen Keever, who won several national awards for editorial writing. Only one award is given statewide and the competition included papers of all circulation sizes.

The winning entry was a series of 16 editorials published in 1988 spotlighting school construction needs in Pitt County schools. Included were five editorials published during a three-week period in July and August which criticized the escalating use of trailers as classrooms despite a four-year funding effort to eliminate them.

"Why aren't all the trailers

WILSON — The N.C. Department of Transportation seems to be leaning more toward an outer loop for the U.S. 264 bypass at Wilson, but the city and county governments and the Wilson County Chamber of Commerce are pushing an inner loop which would bring traffic closer to the heart of the city.

"We're still considering all options, but there's a slight leaning toward Alternative A that's starting to appear," according to Lubin Prevatt, head of the DOT's rural project planning unit.

The state has proposed three alternate routes for the Wilson bypass.

•Alternate A — at $99.45 million — would take the bypass along an "outer loop" arc from west of I-95 to the N.C. 58 intersection east of Wilson.

•Alternate B — at $100 million — would join U.S. 264 to the west with the eastern leg at N.C. 58 intersection on an "inner loop" route which would run through a portion of the city limits.

•Alternate C, which would cost an estimated $111.1 million — would join the two freeway sections of the new U.S. 264 by following the present highway over I-95 and on to Airport Road, then turn south on a new location and join the Alternate B route at the N.C. 42 intersection.

Prior to the public meeting in March, the city, county, chamber and other groups had supported a fourth alternative, which would follow the Alternate B route, but add an uncontrolled connector from the N.C. 42 intersection to join the present uncontrolled section of U.S. 264 at Airport Road. That proposal — suggested by Wilson county officials — would be built in two phases — would cost an estimated $110.15 million, according to the DOT.

However, since the mid-March public hearing, the city and county governments have adopted resolutions calling for the Alternate B route to be built as a single phase project.

And the Chamber of Commerce board withdrew its support Wednesday afternoon for a two-phase project and adopted a resolution calling for Alternate B to be built as a single project.

Bruce Beasley, president of the chamber, said Wednesday that the Eight Schools Undergo Evaluations

Don Lassiter, chairman of the accreditation team, talks about the significance of the process.

Wednesday Thefts

Investigators said three thefts were reported to Greenville police on Wednesday.

Officer K.M. Lang said a $481 check was taken from a mail box at 3011 S. Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 9:41 a.m., while a bicycle was taken from 126 Ripley Road in an incident reported at 1:25 p.m.

Officer K.P. Woods said two checkbooks were taken from a guest room at the Hilton Inn on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 7:50 p.m.

Larceny Charges

Julius Anthony Kennedy, 27, of 605-A Pamlico Ave. was arrested by Greenville police Wednesday on four counts of larceny and one count of possession of stolen property.

Detective T.E. Nevelle said the possession charge stemmed from a March 1 theft of a television set from 605-A Pamlico Ave.

The larceny charges are in connection with the thefts of a video cassette recorder, a television set, a stereo and an electronic keyboard from 605-A Pamlico Ave. reported on March 20.

Retirement

Lucy Lamm, who recently retired as cafeteria manager at Pactolus Elementary School, was honored for 25 years of service with a reception by the faculty and staff. She received gifts from the students each day of her final work week, and was presented a giant card made by kindergarten and first grade students.

Second and third graders gave Ms. Lamm an Easter lily and a festive balloon. Fourth and fifth graders made a cafeteria photo album and serenaded her during their lunch period. Bubbles the clown also sang a special song for Mrs. Lamm.

Leona Gray is the new cafeteria manager.

Eight elementary schools in Pitt County are being evaluated today for accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Eastern, Elmhurst, Greenville Middle, Sadie Saulter, South Greenville, Third Street and Wahl-Coates schools are seeking reaccreditation by SACS, while Wintergreen, a new school, is seeking its initial accreditation.

A 50-member team of educators from across the state began visiting the schools Wednesday after it was welcomed to the county and the school system during a brunch at the Comfort Inn.

Dr. Eddie West, superintendent, told the group that the doors of the schools are open and the team will find "a strong faculty and some wonderful instruction" in Pitt County.

Donald Lassiter, superintendent of the Elkin City schools and chairman of the visiting team, commended the schools on their efforts toward accreditation. "I compliment you on the work you have done in preparation," he said.

Accreditation brings about school improvement because the schools critically evaluate themselves and record the information in their self studies.

The studies, developed by the schools, outline the school and its community, philosophy, objectives and commitments, design for learning the curriculum, areas of learning and subject areas, administration, staff and faculty qualifications, media center, student services and activities, facilities, plans and priorities.

"Our job is to evaluate the self study — to see if what you say about yourselves is true," Lassiter said.

Also, the team makes recommendations and suggestions for further improvement, he said.

Ruth Hoyle, a retired assistant superintendent in the Craven County schools, consulted with the schools in preparing their self studies.

She said, "It always is a pleasure to come to this area. They always do a wonderful job."

Ms. Hoyle told team members that they will see a lot of good ideas and techniques in the Pitt schools that they'll want to take to their own school districts.

"They truly believe in good education for children," she said.

The schools are accredited by SACS every 10 years, said Barry Gaskins, director of public information for the Pitt system. The schools in the county are on different schedules for accreditation so that all of the schools are not accredited during the same year.

This year, Wintergreen is undergoing its first accreditation process, and Principal Clarence Gray said the school is ready for the test.

"We've been real busy trying to prepare," he said. Dr. Sandra Houston, the school's assistant principal, steered the school's accreditation committee, he said.

Charles Ross, associate superintendent of instruction, recognized Sue Branch and Annie Fields for their coordination of the accreditation process for the school system. Ms. Branch is the language arts and social studies coordinator for the system, and Ms. Fields is a secretary for central office coordinators.

The brunch was attended by members of the Board of Education, Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Greenville City Council and Greenville Mayor Ed Carter.

Seminar Planned

The third annual Pride in Achieving Customer Service Excellence seminars will be held today and Friday at the Greenville Ramada Inn.

The day-long seminars, sponsored by the North Carolina Cable Television Association, will focus on ways which cable employees can improve customer relations. About 200 cable television employees are expected to attend.

Lanier to Attend

Dr. Gene Lanier, a professor in the ECU Department of Library and Information Studies, will present a symposium in Atlanta on Tuesday and Wednesday titled "American Education Today: Pathway to a Second Rate Nation?"

The presentation is sponsored by DeKalb College in Atlanta. Lanier will join a panel investigating the effect of censorship on American education.

Lanier serves on the American Library Association's Intellectual Freedom Committee and chairs the board of advisers of People for the American Way in North Carolina.

Sax Recital Set

Alto saxophonist Michael Hart of Wright, Wyo., a graduate student in the East Carolina University School of Music, will perform in recital Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall on campus. The recital is free and open to the public. Accompanying Hart will be pianist Alisa Wetherington.

An alumnus of St. Cloud State University, Hart is pursuing a master of music degree in saxophone performance at ECU.

Meeting Canceled

The lecture on archeology previously scheduled in the Edgecombe County Administration Building on April 19 has been canceled. There are no plans to reschedule the lecture.

Academic Scholarships

The East Carolina University University Organization of Black Faculty and Staff will award academic scholarships Saturday at 8 p.m. during the fifth annual Ledonia S. Wright Memorial Scholarship Benefit at the Ledonia S. Wright Afro-American Cultural Center.

The scholarship was established in 1984 by the friends and colleagues of Ledonia Wright, a former member of the faculty in the East Carolina School of Allied Health Sciences.

In addition to scholarship presentations, a tribute will be made to Daisy Best, a recently retired faculty member of the East Carolina University School of Nursing. A reception will follow the award program.

Volunteers Honored

In observance of National Volunteer Week, a "We Love Our Volunteers" banner was displayed in the hall of Pactolus Elementary School. A reception was held in the media center to honor the volunteers and the Adopt-A-School sponsors.

A total of 442 hours of voluntary service has been recorded. Volunteers who have contributed more than 20 hours of time are Cynthia Horton, Irma Hamilton, Cherry Turnage, Rauline Warren and Anne Briley.

To celebrate National Library Week a media center contest to name the dinosaur will be highlighted with the theme "Reading is Dino-mite!"

Jane Maier will share stories with third through fifth graders, and students in kindergarten through second grade will view the Reading Rainbow program "Digging up Dinosaurs." Students also will make and wear Dino-mite reading buttons.

Readings Planned

Four readings of "The Doctor of Hoyland," based on a short story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, will be presented by the Readers Theater Company of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The readings will be held Monday and Tuesday at New Deli, 513 Cotanche St. and on April 21 and April 22 at The Humber House, 117 W. Fifth

St. All readings begin at 8 p.m. and are free of charge.

The reading company is comprised of medical students. The story has been adapted by Greg Watkins and is under the direction of Ann Secord. A discussion period will follow the readings.

Thrift Shop Moves

Pandora's Box, First Presbyterian Church's Thrift Shop, recently moved to 805 S. Evans St., across from the Greenville Museum of Art.

The shop has been open for 23 years. During that time proceeds of $218,000 have been given to needy recipients of Greenville and Pitt County, through the various state, county, city and independent organizations.

This weekend marks the beginning of the spring and summer season. The shop's new clothes will be displayed.

Pandora's Box is open Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon.

Forensics Team

The East Carolina University Forensics Team will compete in the national collegiate debate tournament at Upsala College, East Orange, N.J., April 20-24.

The team members, all of whom are in their novice year with the ECU debate group, are Mary Harrison of Raleigh, Michael Harvey of Chapel Hill and Doug Kasales of Woodbridge, Va. Team coaches are Janice Schreiber and Pamela Hopkins, both members of the speech faculty in the ECU Department of Theatre Arts.

Sparrow To Head English Department

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Dr. W. Keats Sparrow, professor of English at East Carolina University and a scholar known in the state's literary and historical circles, is the new chairman of the department of English in ECU's College of Arts and Sciences.

Sparrow has served since late 1987 as acting chairman of the department, which is the largest of 19 departments in the College of Arts and Sciences in terms of faculty and students.

His appointment as chairman, effective immediately, was announced by Dr. Eugene E. Ryan, dean of the college.

A native of Kinston, Sparrow received a bachelor's degree in history and English and his master's in English at ECU. He received a doctorate in English at the University of Kentucky in 1973. Sparrow began as an English instructor in 1965 and has served continuously on the faculty since 1973.

At ECU, he is the founding editor, now editor-emeritus, of the continuing publication, "Teaching English in the Two-Year College," and has served as editor of the Victorians Institute Journal. He has written and co-authored several published works on technical writing and business communications.

Recognized in 1977 for teaching excellence by the ECU Teaching Effectiveness Committee, Sparrow received an award of merit in 1980 from the Society for Technical Communication for editing of the professional journal, "Teaching English in the Two-Year College."

Last fall, Sparrow received the Marguerite Schumann Award for Outstanding Work in 19th Century North Carolina Literature for the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association series. He is president of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association.

Sparrow and his wife, Elizabeth, an instructor in the department of business, vocational and technical education, are parents of a daughter, Elizabeth Nicole, a college student.

Adjustment A Tool For Better Growth

It's time for a growing town like Farmville to move forward and embrace a council-manager form of government. That painless adjustment would enable the community to better balance the expansion headed in Farmville's direction.

Town residents will vote on the issue in June, and proponents should use the time until that referendum to let the public know the benefits of a council-manager form of government.

There are several important reasons why a change in government will help Farmville grow more productively.

Currently, the town operates with a mayor-council form of government. That system concentrates more direct power with commissioners. While this setup is suitable for very small villages, there are sharp drawbacks to its use in a more urban setting.

'Farmville has reached the stage in its development where the time and expertise of a professional administrator is necessary if growth is to be effectively managed.'

First, as a community expands, the demands placed on its leadership increase concurrently. Most often, being a mayor or a council member is an after-hours job performed by caring citizens willing to give their time in return for only token compensation. That devotion represents the heart and soul of grassroots government. But it doesn't always get the job done.

When that stage in a town's growth is reached, a full-time administrator is required to sufficiently serve the community. With growth comes an urgent need for long-range planning, protection of resources, utilization of assets. While many elected public officials have skills in these areas, they lack the perspective that translates this expertise into progress. They also fall short on time — and that's a resource a city manager could provide: time devoted to forge the town's future.

Farmville has reached the stage in its development where the time and expertise of a professional administrator is necessary if growth is to be effectively managed. The town has a population of around 6,000. It has a distinguished industrial base, vigorous retail activity and bustles with residential growth. It is adjacent to Pitt County's most important thoroughfare — U.S. 264 west, which connects the county with Raleigh. In addition, it sits smack in the path of Greenville's growth westward from the medical district — the U.S. 264 corridor will harbor prosperous development, and that growth will likely benefit Farmville.

Under a council-manager form of government, commissioners have policy-making power as well as a professional charged with implementing this policy. That's the best of both worlds, and it's what Farmville needs to secure its future.

Do Community Hospitals Have Niche?

Robersonville's 12-bed hospital knows that it is wanted and needed by its community ... and it is a source of pride for the citizens of the Martin County community. Nevertheless the little hospital has found that it cannot operate without adequate funding. Thus officials decided to close it down last Friday until conditions improve.

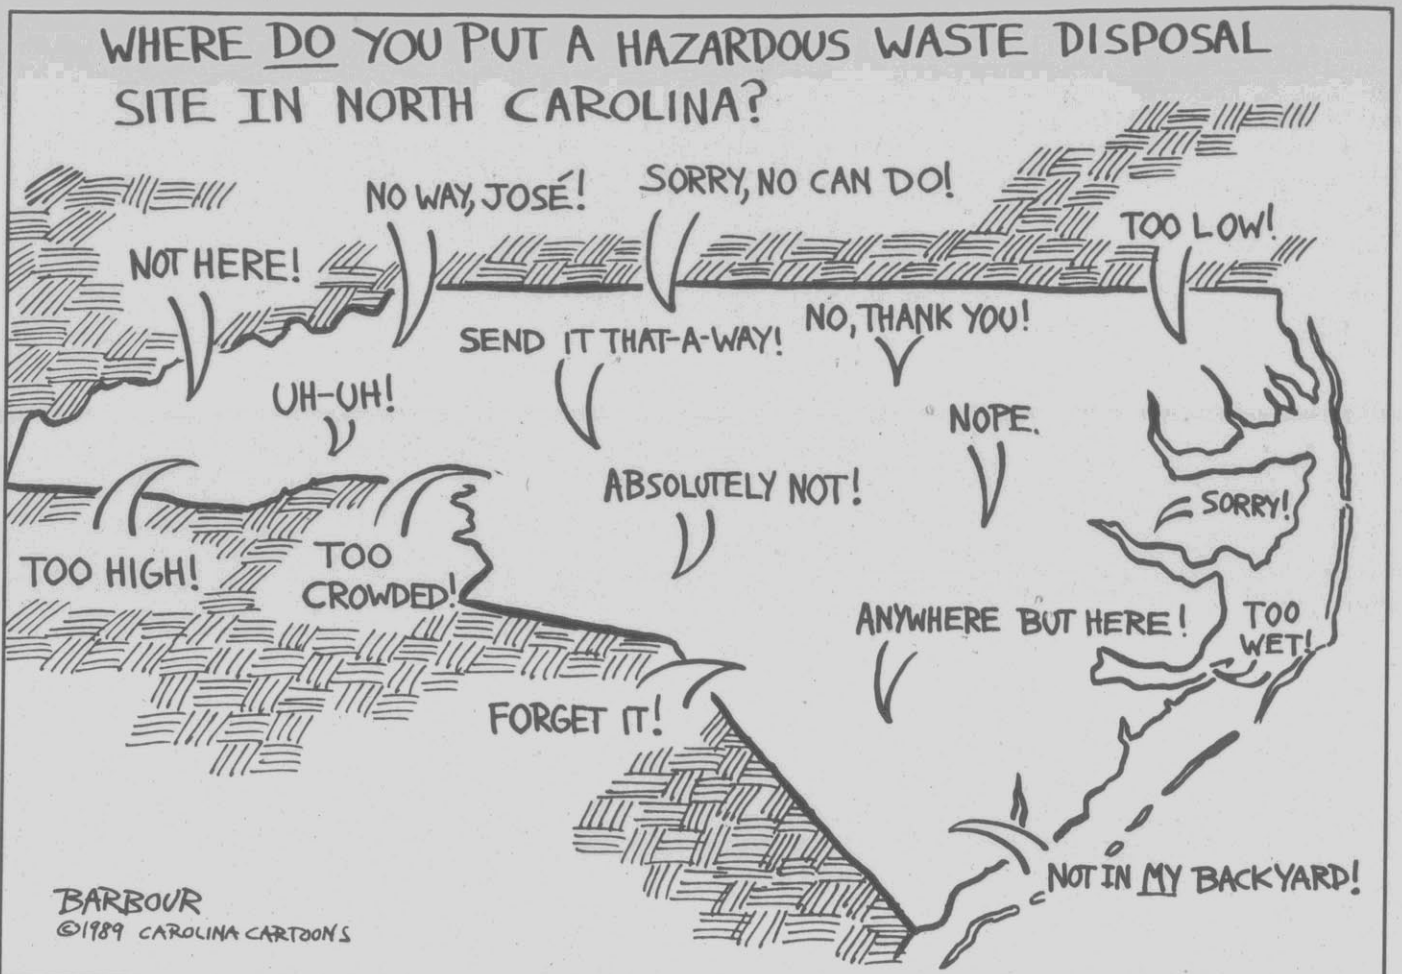

Debts were piling up for the Robersonville hospital and board members decided that it couldn't continue to operate under the conditions.

The closing is seen as temporary, however, and officials hope that federal or state grants will make it possible for the rural hospital to recall its staff be resume its mission. The hospital can retain its license for some time, but it must pay off indebtedness and carry out some capital improvements in order to reopen.

Without doubt the citizens of the area will welcome a reopening. Though Robersonville is a small town it has a good amount of industry and serves a rich agricultural area.

There are two doctors in town who served on the hospital staff.

Everyone is hopeful that the Robersonville Hospital can reopen. There must be a place in the vast health care delivery system for the small hospital which can provide a level of care so that people won't have to leave their area for normal medical services. The Robersonville hospital was a model for this and perhaps some way can be found for it to resume its community role.

To the editor:

There has been evidence for years that alcoholism is in part, if not in whole, a form of food addiction. According to Dr. Theron Randolph, father of clinical ecology, it appears that food substances rather than alcohol perpetuate the craving for alcoholic beverages and cause the behavioral changes we associate with alcoholism. Perhaps if the captain of the Valdez had been in a rehabilitation program that enlightened clients as to the food allergy background of their addiction, the worst oil spill in American history would not rest on his shoulders. It may well be that it is not Demon Rum but Demon Sugar (and/or corn, wheat, barley, grape, etc.) that caused the grief.

The term "food addiction" did not come into use until 1952 and we are not generally taught about its implications. Perhaps this is because foods, especially the common ones, form the basis of very powerful interinvolved financial interests. To indict corn, wheat, milk, eggs, beet and cane sugar as the possible sources of ill health will not make the headlines. Have you seen the latest TV advertisements for sugar?

Dr. Randolph was ostracized for his investigations and his information suppressed. He survived the storm and went on to discover that chemical sensitivities also can cause chronic ill health and disease.

In the long run, health issues are national issues. In the long run, environmental (security) issues are national security issues. It is easy to place blame. How can we better understand and what are the implications we must conclude? And where do we as concerned citizens go from here as custodians of this beautiful God-given planet?

To the editor:

Fourteen years ago I retired from the military and became a citizen of this, my proudly adopted state. I have, during that time, been a productive, contributing citizen, trying very hard to support the state in which I have chosen to live. I have strongly supported those functions which make my state a better place in which to live, such as the United Way, UNC Public Television, the NC Zoo, the Children's Hospital of Eastern NC, the NC political party of my choice, the NC Sheriff's Association, and of course I have paid my taxes.

The Supreme Court of the United States recently ruled that the State of North Carolina has been taxing me unconstitutionally during this entire time. I can certainly understand a ruling that there be a limit in how far back one can recover taxes, regardless of how ill-gotten, and the three-year limit seems fair.

I now read that the state is telling us federal retirees that due to a 1977 ruling no refund is necessary on unconstitutional taxes paid voluntarily, and appear to be preparing to deny a payback. I cannot see how anything can be considered voluntary when I am threatened with a fine or imprisonment if I do not comply. I suggest our legislators review the definition of voluntary.

If this decision is upheld and no payback is forthcoming, I fully intend to respond in kind. There will be no more generous contributions to the United Way, UNC Public Television, the NC Zoo, the Children's Hospital of Eastern NC, the NC political party of my choice, the NC Sheriff's Association, and I will add a statement to my North Carolina taxes that they are paid under protest.

To the editor:

Having fought off (temporarily, at least) radiation and hazardous waste dumps over our water source, people of Pitt County and their neighbors will understand the anger and outrage of Idahoans. They are treated with a reprocessing plant for deadly plutonium over their major aquifer. In threatening their water and air, the proposed plant threatens their family and tourism industries, their homes, and even their lives.

What for? Reagan's Secretary of Energy admitted that we are "awash in plutonium." Plutonium from the Cruise and Pershing missiles is becoming available for reuse. And unlike tritium, plutonium "is forever" (half-life about 25,000 years).

There's also the disadvantage of plutonium-contaminated waste — more than a ton a day. Where will it go?

And there's a husky price tag — estimate $1.9 billion and $1.2 billion to operate for 30 years.

If you think this Special Isotope Separation Facility (SIS) should take its place in line for funding — behind education, highways, crime fighting, sewage disposal, debt reduction ..., call our representative in Congress, or drop them a card. Their names and addresses are on page four of your phone book. The vote is expected soon.

Tax 'Faculties' Instead Of Income

WASHINGTON — What a difference a word can make. The middle of April — tax time — might be less lacerating if we used a delightful anachronism and spoke of having our "faculties" assessed rather than our incomes taxed.

Taxing incomes was originally spoken of in America as taxing individuals' earning "faculties," as in the new Plymouth Colony's taxation on persons "according to their estates or faculties." It would flatter Americans to be told they are paying because, and to the extent that, their faculties are substantial. And saying so would teach a moral truth:

'The strong — wealthy, high achieving, socially competent individuals — contribute much to society because they have benefited much from society. So they should pay a lot of the upkeep of the civilization that confers as well as rewards their faculties. But that notion may itself be an anachronism in a nation that seems to believe that taxation, with or without representation, is tyranny.'

Generally people prosper, and pay more taxes, because of reasons for which they can not claim responsibility.

Our faculties are bestowed by our parents, through DNA and nurturing, and by society, through schooling and the culture. Sorry, you who are particularly vain about your rugged individualism. Life would really be rugged if social reality reflected your self-congratulatory ideology of lonely, unassisted accomplishment. But it does not.

George Will

The principle on which progressive taxation rests is that those who make the most money get the most from society not merely in terms of money but also in "faculties," and thus owe a proportionately larger debt. As Turgot, finance minister of the much maligned Louis XVI, told him: "The expenses of government, having for their object the interest of all, should be borne by everyone, and the more a man enjoys the advantages of society, the more he ought to hold himself honored in contributing to those expenses."

In the United States, the income tax was not, needless to say, enacted out of a sense of honor. It was passed by a political movement confident that its members would not pay it. In fact, it was a tax to cut taxes (counting tariffs as taxes).

After the Civil War, regional and class interests (the manufacturing North and the affluent commercial class) converged to produce reliance on tariffs for the lion's share of federal revenues. The income tax was advocated as a painless (for 99 percent of the population) way of paying for lower tariffs that also would reduce the cost of the common man's consumption. And so it was, briefly.

The income tax enacted in 1913 taxed personal income at one percent and exempted married couples earning less than $4,001. A graduated surtax, beginning on incomes of $20,000, rose to 6 percent on incomes of more than $500,000. The $4,000 exemption expressed Congress' conclusion that such a sum was necessary to "maintain an American family according to the American standard and send the children through college." It was about six times the average male's income.

But as quickly as Americans could say "Sarajevo," war caused government expenditures to soar and international trade (and tariff revenues) to shrink. By 1919, the minimum taxable income had been reduced to $1,000 and the top rate was 77 percent.

Nevertheless, at tax time in 1939, only 3.9 million Americans had to file. Six years later, 42.6 million did. War turned the class tax into a mass tax. The Cold War and, even more important, the welfare state would keep it that way.

Shortly after the income tax was enacted, Sen. Elihu Root told a friend that they both might go to jail for failing to master the tax form, but jail would "be an intellectual center, for no one understands the Income Tax law except persons who have not sufficient intelligence to understand the questions that arise under it."

Complexity increased and the principle of progressivity was largely vitiated by the practice of writing arcane loopholes into the law. By the mid-1960s a senator complained: "The first nine pages of the Internal Revenue Code define income; the remaining 1,100 pages spin the web of exemptions and preferences."

The web was spun primarily for two reasons. Wrinkles in the code were Congress' way of legislating social policy without appropriating public funds. And the ideology of individualism — the myth that incomes reflect rugged individual attainment, not socially conferred and shaped "faculties" — made Americans weakly committed to the principle of progressivity. So weakly that it was virtually abandoned in 1986 in the name of reform.

The strong — wealthy, high achieving, socially competent individuals — contribute much to society because they have benefited much from society. So they should pay a lot of the upkeep of the civilization that confers as well as rewards their faculties. But that notion may itself be an anachronism in a nation that seems to believe that taxation, with or without representation, is tyranny.

A Quick Start Vs. 102,000 Jobs & Free Enterprise

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — Among the 170 members of the North Carolina General Assembly, there are gradations of support for a free enterprise climate. While some legislators would prefer that business be almost completely unfettered, other prefer to apply varying degrees of government regulation on business.

But even among the strongest advocates of a free and unregulated business world, there must be confusion these days, a furniture bill that is before both the House and Senate pits manufacturers against retailers with both sides arguing that they represent the free market approach.

The bill is sponsored by the retailers. It would prevent manufacturers from restricting their advertising and selling territory. Retailers say that manufacturers obstruct their free operation when they prohibit out of town advertising and taking of telephone orders. Manufacturers say they should be free to market their products however they wish.

Manufacturers can now set conditions upon the retailers who sell their furniture: For example the amount of showroom space a particular line is given, limited advertising areas, no sales or price quotes over the phone, no toll-free phone numbers. Retailers who fail to abide by these conditions can lose the privilege of selling a manufacturer's line.

Fredrick Starr, president of Thomasville Furniture, said such restrictions protect the consumer. Starr said that the consumer should visit a showroom, see and feel the product that is to be purchased and learn about the service that is available for that product after purchase. These conditions assure the manufacturer, Starr said, that their customer will be well served.

But retailers say the restrictions merely undermine discounts, of which there are many in North Carolina. They say that the restriction on telephone sales, for example, means that a consumer from out of town who visits a showroom and likes a piece of furniture cannot call back, after having gone home to think it over, and order that item. The person would have to come back, after having gone home to think it over, and order that item. The person would have to come back to the showroom. It also means that retailers cannot advertise in other cities in hopes of luring business into their showrooms, or set up toll-free lines for those who wish to compare prices before making the trip to a distant retailer.

In addition to the free enterprise issue, both sides are claiming to have the best interests of the consumer in their hearts. Starr said the manufacturers have these rules to protect the consumers. Hubie Tolson of New Bern, a retailer, said that unrestricted competition. Consumers might check out furniture in retail outlets around the country, using the investments that retailers in other states make in showroom space and staff, and then call into a discounter. It's possible that such a discounter industry would grow up here in North Carolina. That possibility might explain why a national retailers' group stands with the manufacturers on this bill.

Retailers are out to a quick start on this bill with many legislators already promising to support it. But furniture manufacturers provide 102,000 jobs in this state. That fact will weigh heavily on the minds of any legislator trying to decide how to define the term, "free enterprise."

Impeachment Was On The Agenda

Walter Mears

WASHINGTON — In the bland, bureaucratic shorthand of the government memorandum, it sounds routine. Just another White House meeting. And by the way, the president of the United States chatted with his senior advisers about risking impeachment.

That may sound like Richard M. Nixon and the Watergate White House, but it wasn't. It was Ronald Reagan in 1984, on his way to a 49-state re-election landslide. The question was whether the administration should be secretly soliciting aid for the Nicaraguan Contras from other countries after Congress barred U.S. aid.

The story has been spread on the court record at the Iran-Contra trial of Oliver North, with the government attesting to its accuracy. There is no evidence in that record that any of the senior officials on hand found it remarkable that a top aide to the president had told him he might be flirting with impeachment.

It does not seem to have alarmed the Reagan high command. It certainly didn't get in the way of the search for aid.

Since impeachment is the ultimate political punishment, the word would seem to be one that would get any president's attention. Nixon resigned rather than face an impeachment trial in the Senate.

This is not to suggest that Reagan policy on aid to the Contras bears comparison with the Watergate and cover-up scandals that drove Nixon from office.

But it is striking that the risk of committing an impeachable offense was cited by one of the official family, at a meeting attended by at least 10 other top administration officials — including George Bush — and the matter apparently was treated as ordinary business.

Bush, then vice president, is quoted in minutes of the meeting as having observed that the outside aid would be a problem only if the United States were to promise third countries something in exchange for their assistance to the Contras.

Less than a year later, Bush told the president of Honduras that U.S. aid to that country was being expedited. The court document says the speeded-up aid was in exchange for Honduras' continuing support of the Contras, but is silent on whether Bush made that point in his meeting with the foreign leader.

President Bush has refused to discuss those disclosures, saying any comment from him would interfere with the North trial.

It was James A. Baker III, then the White House chief of staff, later Reagan's secretary of the treasury, now Bush's secretary of state, who raised the specter of impeachment.

Baker's concern seems to have raised no alarm at the meeting on June 25, 1984, no suggestion that even coming close to impeachable conduct might not be a very good idea. The consensus was that Baker was wrong.

So they decided to get a second legal opinion.

According to the government's admission of facts at the North trial, Director of Central Intelligence William Casey told deputies at the CIA and the State Department in mid-July it was time to get moving on Contra aid from other countries "since Attorney General (William French) Smith had recently concluded that raising the funds in this manner would not be an impeachable offense, as had been suggested at the National Security Planning Group meeting on June 25, 1984."

Minutes of the June 25 meeting were read into the North trial record on March 10, when former national security adviser Robert MacFarlane testified that Baker's warning had been discussed and disputed, and that most of those present disagreed with it.

Whatever the merits of Baker's legal advice, the minutes indicate that Reagan recognized the political peril of promoting aid to the Contras by other governments in the face of the congressional ban on U.S. military aid. He was quoted as saying that if word of the effort got out, "We'll all be hanging by our thumbs in front of the White House."

All of that happened during the "Rose Garden" phase of Reagan's campaign for a second term. The public record of Reagan's day that June 25 shows a meeting with members of his staff, a meeting with members of his campaign advisory committee and two White House speeches.

At one of them, on the South Lawn, the president complained about critics of his economic policies. "Every time I hear them," he said, "I remember Robert Frost saying, 'The brain is a wonderful organ. It starts working the moment you get up in the morning and doesn't stop until you get to the office.'"

ECU Graduate Goes To Bat For UNC-CH, NCSU Athletes

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Politics may make strange bedfellows, but none stranger than the alliance of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State and East Carolina.

The three schools, bitter rivals in the athletic arena, were on the same side Wednesday when a proposal to eliminate a state appropriation that defrays tuition costs for student-athletes at the UNC-CH and N.C.

State came before the House Appropriations Committee.

Rep. David Redwine, D-Brunswick, a graduate of East Carolina University, said that while the proposed cut would have applied only to UNC-CH and N.C. State, it would set a precedent that could affect other state schools.

"I have a real concern that once you do these two, the sharks are going to circle on the rest of the institution," he said.

"The publicity that these teams bring to this state is incalculable.

It's tremendous that we have as good teams as we have," said Rep. Gordon Greenwood, D-Buncombe.

The panel rejected the proposal on a divided voice vote and also turned back efforts to raise tuition for some out-of-state graduate students and to eliminate 288 vacant positions in the UNC system.

Rep. Peggy Wilson, R-Rockingham, offered a motion to reduce by $297,494 the state contribution to the fund that pays tuition for athletes in the 16-campus UNC system. The cut would have applied only to UNC-CH and N.C. State.

In 1985-86, the two campuses generated $18.7 million between them in receipts from athletic events, Ms. Wilson said.

The schools' athletic booster clubs, which pay most of the cost of athletic scholarships, easily could absorb the loss of state funding, she said.

"We're trying to make cuts here, and we're trying to make cuts in the areas where we least think it will affect them," she said.

The reduction would not affect other UNC campuses because their athletic programs don't take in near-as much money as those at the system's two flagship institutions, Ms. Wilson said.

The state's contribution to the athletic tuition fund gives the government some leverage over how the money is used, said Rep. Bruce Ethridge, D-Onslow. But Jay Robinson, UNC vice president for public affairs, acknowledged that the Legislature is free to order audits of any section of the UNC system it wishes.

The out-of-state tuition cost for UNC undergraduates is $4,558, which the state contribution reduces to $3,508, Robinson said.

After the amendment was defeated, Ms. Wilson offered another that would have saved $220,000 per year with a 25 percent tuition increase for special graduate students from other states. Special graduate students are top-notch teachers and researchers who are in demand across the country, according to Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe.

"We are trying to attract the very best graduate students," Ethridge said. "Hopefully if we can attract them, we can hold them here."

The amendment failed on a voice vote.

Rep. Trip Sizemore, R-Guilford, offered the amendment to abolish the 288 vacant UNC jobs, which he termed "non-essential" positions such as maintenance workers. Sizemore is ringleader of a group of Republican conservatives who have proposed deep budget cuts to allow the state to embark on a major highway construction program and boost teacher salaries without raising taxes.

Some of the positions have been vacant since January 1988, Sizemore said, noting that his proposal was a scaled-down version of Gov. Jim Martin's recommendation to pare 633 vacant UNC jobs.

But Nesbitt said the reduction of so many posts was a "meat ax approach" and was unnecessary.

The amendment was killed, 36-21.

'Schools Of Choice' Bills Let Parents Decide

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Just as their children get to choose the classes they want to take, two Republican lawmakers believe parents should be allowed to decide where their kids go to school.

Reps. Steve Woods, R-Guilford, and Art Pope, R-Wake, introduced a "schools of choice" bill that would let parents pick the schools their children attend within a district or in another district if the two systems agreed to swap students.

Woods and Pope don't think the bill will pass now, but they want the idea to gain momentum for next year's short session.

"We wanted to introduce now so we could begin discussing it, maybe get it through the House of Representatives and into a study commission," Pope said. "We are hoping to get it through the short session next summer so it can be in place for the 1990-91 school year."

Under the proposal, schools that lose students to more attractive neighbors would have to implement innovative techniques to lure other students to their classrooms.

"If an empty school has such a poor administration that no parents want to send their kids there, then you need to bring in a new management team to compete for those students," Pope said.

He said the "schools of choice" concept has been tried in 30 other states, but has not led to re-segregation, as some opponents of the program fear.

"There are no attendance districts for the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, or UNC-Wilmington or Appalachian State," said Woods. "We think it is time to bring that concept to the secondary and elementary school level."

The bill would allow local school boards to choose "schools of choice" for the 1990-91 school year.

Pope said he was not worried that poor, rural systems would be at a disadvantage in competing with nearby urban systems that have a larger tax base.

"The money follows the students," Pope said. "If a system is losing students, then it needs to offer a program that will attract students."

The bill does not change the state funding formula, which is based on average daily attendance in each school system. Nor does it provide for possible increased transportation costs.

Pope said changes in the bus routes would have to be worked out within the system, or negotiated between districts where inter-district transfers are permitted.

Panel Backs Bill Requiring Use Of Headlights In Bad Weather

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Poor visibility in inclement weather is a leading cause of traffic accidents in North Carolina, and a House subcommittee has taken action on a bill it hopes will reduce the numbers.

Under the measure, motorists would be required to turn on their headlights whenever the weather is bad enough to require use of windshield wipers. The bill has the backing of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Law Enforcement and Public Safety, now goes to the full Judiciary Committee.

The subcommittee amended the bill to reduce the proposed fine for violations from $25 to $5. Violations would be an infraction, not a crime, and would not add insurance points to a driver's record.

"The action is not to be punitive, but it is to be persuasive or educational," said Rep. John Weatherly, R-Cleveland. Current law requires that headlights be illuminated when a vehicle's windshield wipers are operating — but only when the vehicle is in a school zone.

The requirement should apply everywhere because of the difficulty of spotting other vehicles during inclement weather, Weatherly said.

The 428,000-member Carolina Motor Club also supports the bill, public relations director Quentin Anderson said. He said the proposed law would reduce that problem of seeing another car, particularly when cars are passing each other on two-lane roads and when a vehicle begins to hydroplane, he said.

Tests have shown that requiring headlight use in poor weather reduces accidents by 7 to 20 percent, Anderson said. Canada has required that, starting in July, vehicle headlights be illuminated during daylight hours.

"Last year, we had 1,574 people killed and another 117,358 injured on our highways in North Carolina," he said. "Many of these accidents would not have happened had drivers been using their headlights during bad weather."

Homicide

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A state medical examiner has ruled that a man who died in February while in the custody of Goldsboro police officers was a homicide victim.

Dr. Deborah Radisch, associate chief medical examiner in Chapel Hill, said Wednesday that she determined after an autopsy that James E. Swan died of anoxia, or lack of oxygen, from neck compression. She said she ruled the manner of death as a homicide but emphasized that designation does not mean that charges are warranted.

"Certainly that doesn't necessarily have anything to do with charges that could be filed," she said. "We're not saying that you have to charge somebody with murder. That's obviously up to somebody else."

Two Goldsboro police officers involved in the Feb. 1 incident have been shifted to administrative duties pending the outcome of a State Bureau of Investigation probe and a review by the district attorney. Some black residents have said that the officers, who are white, used excessive force to subdue Swan, who was black.

Resignation

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Jane E. Milley, the embattled chancellor of the N.C. School of the Arts, will offer her resignation today, sources have told a Winston-Salem newspaper.

C.D. Spangler Jr., the president of the University of North Carolina system, was to attend a special meeting of the school's trustees today and the UNC Board of Governors will meet in the afternoon, the Winston-Salem Journal reported in today's editions.

The newspaper quotes sources as saying Ms. Milley had submitted a letter of resignation to Spangler, and he would make the announcement after the Board of Governors meeting.

Health Care

RALEIGH (AP) — The cost of health care in the state increased 17.3 percent in the year ending Sept. 30, according to Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina.

The increase reflects the combined effect of higher prices for health care and greater use of health-care services, according to the insurer.

The figures were released Wednesday by Blue Cross and Blue Shield as part of a "health-care cost index" that it said represents "the bottom-line impact on what consumers are experiencing."

Birthday

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Surrounded by senior citizens at the Haywood County Adult Day Care Center, Effie Burress sat quietly Wednesday as the group sang the traditional "Happy Birthday" to the 108-year-old.

"I can't calculate much," she said when asked how old she is, "but I'll never forget when I was born — April 12, 1881."

Born in Brevard, Ms. Burress' family moved to Waynesville when she was a small child.

Pollution Controls Proposed On Rivers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH (AP) — State environmental officials have proposed specific guidelines for protecting "outstanding resource waters" along the coast and measures for limiting nutrient pollution in the Tar-Pamlico river basin.

The proposals made Wednesday show, in part, how the state intends to curb pollution from sewage and development in 10 coastal areas nominated as outstanding resource waters, or ORWs. The Coastal Resources Commission also is considering ways to protect the pristine waters by limiting development.

There would be stricter limits and, in some cases, outright bans on marinas and new sewage treatment plants under the measures recommended by the state Division of Environmental Management.

The Environmental Management Commission can designate outstanding resource waters in areas with exceptional water quality and other valuable resources, such as highly productive fisheries, scientific importance and heavy recreational use. The commission plans to hold public hearings on the proposals in June and make a final decision by September.

Some of the guidelines proposed by the commission's staff would:

- Prohibit new dredging in areas with submerged grass beds or other resources.

- Require low-density development for all new construction within 575 feet of outstanding resource waters.

- Increase the required buffer zones around streams, creeks and rivers for septic tank fields and spray irrigation systems.

- Require public hearings for all permits for the construction or expansion of sewage treatment plants that discharge into the pristine waters.

New marinas and waste discharges would be banned in outstanding resource waters proposed for Swan Quarter and Juniper bays in Hyde County; Back Sound in Carteret County; Bear Island sound in Onslow County; and Masonboro Sound in New Hanover County.

Stricter limits would be enforced in outstanding resource waters proposed for the Alligator River in Dare, Tyrrell and Hyde counties; Core Sound and Western Bogue Sound in Carteret County; Stump Sound in Onslow County; Topsail and Middle sounds in Pender County; and Lockwoods Folly River in Brunswick County.

Mrs. Bush gives a 'thumbs up' signal to reporters

Barbara Bush Says She's Doing Fine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Barbara Bush says she feels fine after a radioactive thyroid treatment and will continue life as usual except that she can't hold her grandchildren or puppies in her lap or kiss anyone for 72 hours.

Looking fit after a reception with the Queen of Sweden, Mrs. Bush told reporters Wednesday, "I feel wonderful."

That morning the first lady underwent a common procedure for her recently diagnosed Graves disease. She drank a radioactive iodine solution to deactivate her thyroid gland, which was producing excess levels of hormones.

Talking to a handful of reporters after standing in a half-hour receiving line and speaking at the reception, she complained that news coverage of her health was overshadowing the issues she wanted to focus on, such as Queen's Silvia's work on behalf of the disabled.

"Will you stop it?" she implored the reporters. She jokingly pretended to be infirm, staggering up to the reporters and leaning on the arm of her press secretary. Then she told the group, "I could Indian wrestle any one of you to the ground."

She said she swam a mile Thursday and Monday and played tennis on Wednesday, and hoped to keep exercising to keep off the 21 pounds that the disease had caused her to lose.

In reference to the weight loss, she said, "I like half of my disease. In fact I love half of it."

She said she had wanted to wear an eye patch or arrive in a wheelchair just to tweak the press, but her press secretary nixed the prank.

During a two-hour visit to Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Mrs. Bush sipped the radioactive solution through a straw, and said it tasted like water.

She also had her eyes examined and they were found to have no damage from the disease, which had caused some eye irritation, she said.

Her condition can cause the eyes to keep opening and water, "so it looks weird," Mrs. Bush said.

She anticipates no aftereffects from the radiation treatment, except an eventual slight neck pain, she said. The doctors also told her not to hold her dog's new puppies or her 11 grandchildren for 72 hours, because their thyroids are small and more susceptible to any effects of radiation.

Mrs. Bush said doctors led her to believe that was just a precaution and may have been "almost an old wives tale."

Wright Probe Finds Probable Violations

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Dealing a serious and possibly fatal blow to Jim Wright's speakership, the House ethics committee has concluded that he improperly accepted gifts from a business partner and tried to evade outside income limits through book sales.

The last of the decisions were reached Wednesday on strong bipartisan votes, according to sources familiar with the panel's probe. The votes mean the panel has found

"reason to believe" the Texas Democrat violated a series of House rules, and they point toward a new phase of the case which could involve a disciplinary hearing and possible punishment.

Wright continued to maintain he had not knowingly or intentionally broken the rules and was expected to mount a vigorous defense. His spokesman, Mark Johnson, said late Wednesday that the speaker had not been informed of any decision by the panel. "All options are open" in defending against the charges, he said.

The action essentially completed the committee's 10-month, $1.5 million investigation of Wright's finances. The panel was meeting again today to work on the specific wording of its report detailing the basis for the charges against the speaker, one source said.

The panel has met behind closed doors and under tight secrecy for three weeks to deliberate the recommendations of its special outside counsel, Chicago attorney Richard Phelan.

In the final days of that process, committee members narrowed their focus to the two most serious issues before them: the acceptance of gifts from a person with an interest in legislation and the evasion of outside income limits.

On Wednesday, the committee voted that benefits received from Fort Worth developer George Mallick from 1980 through 1984, valued at more than $100,000, amounted to unreported "gifts" that were improper because Mallick, an investor in real estate and oil and gas ventures, had a greater interest in congressional legislation than an ordinary citizen, said one source.

Vagrant Charged In Fatal Fire

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PEORIA, Ill. — A vagrant forced out of an apartment house hours before it was set on fire has been charged with nine arson deaths, and authorities say he should have been in jail for another case but ignored a judge's order.

Joe Pickens, 34, never reported to the Peoria County Jail on March 31 to serve a 30-day sentence for a misdemeanor, court records show.

No arrest warrant was issued, and now Pickens faces more serious crimes: nine counts of first-degree murder and two counts of aggravated arson in the worst fire in the history of this central Illinois city.

"I don't fault the sheriff or the jail," State's Attorney Kevin Lyons said Wednesday.

The missed jail date was included on the jail's list of violations to be brought to Lyons' attention — an action the jail takes about every two weeks, the prosecutor said.

Pickens, a native of York, Ala., was charged with the deaths Wednesday, one day after a fire set in a vacant first-floor apartment spread and killed seven children and two young mothers on the second floor.

Pickens confessed to setting the fire after saying it started accidentally, according to Police Superintendent Allen Andrews.

Astronaut To Head Space Agency

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The nation's space agency will be led for the first time by "a hero of its own making," President Bush said in announcing he will nominate astronaut Richard Truly as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The nomination, which had been expected, must be confirmed by the Senate.

Truly, 50, has been an astronaut since 1969, was pilot of the second shuttle flight in 1981 and commander of the eighth in 1983 and has been associate NASA administrator for space flight since 1986.

Truly succeeds James C. Fletcher, a former NASA administrator who resumed the position after the Challenger disaster in January 1986. Fletcher retired this month.

"This marks the first time in its distinguished history that NASA will be led by a hero of its own making, an astronaut who has been to space," Bush told members of Congress and others in the Roosevelt Room of the White House on Wednesday.

Bush also announced that he plans to nominate James R. Thompson Jr., director of NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., to succeed Dale D. Myers as deputy administrator.

Before his space flights, Truly was pilot for one of the two-man crews that conducted landing tests with the space shuttle Enterprise when it was hauled aloft on the back of a 747 jumbo jet.

He was commissioned an ensign in the Navy in 1959, became a naval aviator in 1960 and made more than 300 carrier landings. He now holds the rank of rear admiral.

After the Challenger disaster Jan. 28, 1986, Truly was in charge of the recovery team and of redesigning the shuttle's boosters and overhauling the shuttle safety program.

B. Jay Cooper, deputy White House press secretary, said Congress had agreed to waive a requirement that the head of NASA be a civilian.

Bush said that immediately after the ceremonial announcement, Truly was leaving for Cape Canaveral to take charge of the flight readiness team for the next space shuttle flight, in which the shuttle Atlantis will carry the Magellan radar mapping device into space.

Truly, asked after the ceremony what his top priority would be, said, "To have a good flight readiness and get Magellan on its way to Venus."

Chicago 7 Radical Abbie Hoffman Dies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW HOPE, Pa. — Abbie Hoffman, the satirical Chicago Seven radical who captured the hearts and minds of one generation and angered another by tossing dollar bills on a stock exchange floor and founding the Yippie party, has died.

He was 52. Hoffman, who wrote the books "Revolution for the Hell of It" and "Steal This Book," was found dead in his home Wednesday evening, said Solebury Township Police Chief Richard Mangan. He was fully dressed and under the covers of his bed.

Michael Waldron, a neighbor, found Hoffman and told police Hoffman had been depressed about an auto accident in which he suffered a broken leg last June.

But Mangan said no evidence suggested suicide. An autopsy is planned for tonight.

Hoffman's death shocked those who knew him.

Just last week, Hoffman, who criticized college campuses in recent years as "bastions of rest," told a Vanderbilt University audience that he was saddened by the interest today's young people have in the 1960s.

"Nostalgia is a sign of middle-age," he told them. "We're reminiscing about our youth. When you see young people nostalgic for a youth they didn't even experience, it's a little sad. They're supposed to be out making one for themselves."

Hoffman was writing a book when he died, said his publisher, John Oakes.

ABBIE HOFFMAN

"He was somebody who stayed true to what he believed in unlike so many of his contemporaries who sold out and became just what they detested when they were 20 years old," said Oakes.

A native of Worcester, Mass., Hoffman rose to prominence with the Chicago Seven, a group of radicals who stood trial on charges of conspiring to disrupt the bloody 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The others were Thomas Hayden, Jerry Rubin, David Dellinger, Reynard C. Davis, Lee Weiner and John Froines.

The 4½-month-long federal trial's theatrics featured wild-haired defendants and a 74-year-old judge, Julius Hoffman, who ordered Bobby Seale, a former Black Panther leader, bound and gagged in the courtroom. Seale's trial later was severed from the others.

Hoffman and four others also were charged with crossing state lines with intent to riot. They were acquitted of conspiracy but convicted of the second charge. The convictions eventually were overturned.

During a reunion of the Chicago Seven last year, Hoffman characterized himself as "an American dissident."

"I don't think my goals have changed since I was 4 and I fought schoolyard bullies," said Hoffman.

High Point Fire

HIGH POINT (AP) — A crown of black smoke hung over the eastern city limits of High Point for more than two hours Wednesday night as about 40 firefighters struggled with a blaze at Craft-Tex, which holds explosives, plastics and paint.

"The contents are a total loss and building-wise it will be extensive," Deputy Chief Dave Leonard said of the $1 million building.

The fire began about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, two hours after closing, and was under control about 9:30 p.m. No one was in the building at the time.

It appeared that the blaze started in a spraying booth where novelties are painted, said Harry Wagner, vice president of the company. The business employs 45 people to paint plastic knickknacks such as bears and ducks, he said.

Overton Honored

The Greenville Recycling Committee recently honored Charles Overton, owner and operator of Overton's Supermarket, with a certificate of appreciation for his support of recycling efforts in Greenville.

Ann Maxwell, chairperson of the committee, said Overton has, for many years, let his store's parking lot on Jarvis Street be used as a collection site for recycled materials from the public. She said he now allows five city-owned trailers to be kept permanently in his lot as receptacles for recyclable materials.

Ms. Maxwell and City Council Member Inez Fridley presented the certificate to Overton.

Whichard Scholarship

Amanda Fox Spence of Smithfield was recently awarded The David Julian Whichard Scholarship at a special awards convocation at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The scholarship is made possible by an endowment from the Whichard family, owners of the Daily Reflector, to honor the newspaper's chairman of the board.

The ceremony was held in conjunction with the school's Journalism Days. More than 60 journalism students were honored for academic achievement, service to school, journalistic ability, and leadership potential.

Twenty-two students were inducted into Kappa Tau Alpha, the national society dedicated to the recognition and promotion of journalism. Eligibility for the society is determined by academic standing.

Auditions Scheduled

Actors' Theater Southeast will have auditions for "A Thousand Clowns" Saturday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Humber House, 117 W. Fifth St.

The play needs four men aged 25-55, one woman aged 25-35 and one young actor to play a 13-year-old boy.

Production dates are June 10-11 at The Hilton Inn in Greenville. For more information, call 758-7019.

Initial Repairs In Smith Stadium Renovation Estimated At $204,000

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Status reports on renovations at Guy Smith Stadium, on a decision by CP&L relative to right of way land at River Park North, and on proposals by Greenville Little League officials were made at Wednesday's meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission.

Boyd Lee, department director, said a cost report from the architectural firm of Dudley Shoe Ellinwood & Associates shows that the preliminary cost estimate for Phase I work at Guy Smith Stadium is $204,142.

"We have on hand $196,000 for this phase of renovation, so feel that there will be no problem in getting the work done," Lee said.

The first of several renovation phases is for work to be done on the underside of the stadium. Later phases will be for roofs, seats, dugouts and parking lots, and it is hoped that the Greenville City Council will be able to allocate capital improvement funds each year until all the renovation works is completed, Lee said. Wherever possible, certain parts of the work will be carried out by recreation and parks employees.

"We will be sending out bids in May, with construction work to begin probably in August after the baseball season is ended," Lee said.

On the matter of the CP&L request to secure additional right of way land for a power line that goes through River Park North, with the idea it would involve removal of a number of large trees, Lee said

"that is now a dead issue. If you recall, the initial request was for an added 50 feet right of way, later scaled down to five feet. Then, after efforts made by members of the local environmental advisory committee, an official from CP&L in Raleigh came down and ruled that the whole thing was a mistake. He is putting it in writing that the company does not need the property."

Lee said, "It's a good feeling having people like the local environmentalists on our side. It sure made a big difference in this case."

On the subject of trees, Lee said, "We were most fortunate that in December a decision was made to take out 30 big diseased trees in city park lands. If we had not taken that action then, we would really have had a big cleanup problem after the recent ice storm, for it's pretty certain those trees would have broken and fallen, probably even causing damage to some of our buildings." Each tree removed, he said, was replaced by a young tree.

Reporting on recent negotiations with officials of the Greenville Little League, Lee said, "The league has proposed to place two additional fields at the site behind the Teen Center. We must hammer out an agreement with the organization, with particular attention to one thing. They hope to raise a substantial sum of money for these fields, and would like to be able to name the fields for any person or agency making a substantial donation.

"I explained that the city has guidelines governing naming any type of facility for a person," Lee said, "and this is something we must make clear and keep in mind in working with the Little League people. I want to say this is a hard working group and I'm sure they will come up with substantial funds for these fields. We will be considering an agreement with them at an early date."

Lee briefly mentioned a future project — Greenways in Greenville — that he said will become a big item in the future. He said the project holds top priority among 1989 projects to be undertaken by the Environmental Advisory Commission.

gone?" one editorial asked. "The money hasn't been spent capriciously by the school system." It continues to suggest funding was only adequate for playing "catch up" with building needs. Second, said the editorial, "politics played a role in the expenditures."

"Pitt County has not been totally faithful to its special construction funding promise ... funding allocations by the board of education have been highly political," the editorial suggested.

She avowed that "Ron has taught me everything I know about the circus, about this act. He's a good teacher and he's a good husband too."

"In this work, you have to be on good terms with each other," Gill said. "After all, after the work, there's no energy left to argue."

The dazzling costumes they don

For their early morning interview Wednesday, the Gills were dressed in matching sky blue outfits decorated with silver sequins — costumes that accentuated their trim figures. "Oh no," Ms. Gill replied when asked if blue was the color they traditionally performed in. "That would be boring. We use many different colors."

Florida Woman Accused Of Fraud In Whittington Gifts

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Florida woman who was named last year along with Greenville televangelist Jim Whittington in a civil lawsuit has been arrested on 61 related criminal charges.

Michael Cusick, assistant state attorney in Bartow, Fla., said authorities arrested Barbara June Stevens, 54, of Polk County, Fla., last week on 19 counts of grand theft, 21 counts of forgery, 20 counts of uttering a forged instrument and one count of kidnapping. She is being held on $500,000 bond.

Ms. Stevens worked as a live-in nurse for Valeria Lust, 71, of Lakeland, Fla., from December 1986 to early 1988, said Winter Haven, Fla., attorney Craig Spanjers, who represents Ms. Lust in the civil suit.

The suit, filed last June in Florida's 10th Judicial Circuit, alleges that Ms. Stevens, Whittington and two other Florida evangelists influenced Ms. Lust into donating over $700,000 and a house to Whittington's Fountain of Life Ministries.

"It alleges Ms. Stevens unduly influenced this lady and somehow was able to get a substantial amount of her money and property away from her," Spanjers said. "(Whittington allegedly was) one of the people who was involved in influencing her. We're looking for reimbursement from whatever source we can."

Cusick declined to comment on whether criminal charges may also be filed against Whittington, but he said the investigation is continuing.

Using her position of access, Ms. Stevens allegedly forged Ms. Lust's checks to get the money, Spanjers said. She also donated Ms. Lust's Lakeland home to Whittington's ministries, but the home has since been returned. Spanjers said the civil suit is still in the early stages and he does not know how the criminal charges may affect the proceedings.

Whittington, in a telephone interview from his Greenville office, said his ministry has contended all along that Ms. Lust made the contributions directly, and no money was received from Ms. Stevens. He said his attorneys are confident it is Ms. Lust's signature on the checks totaling more than $700,000 that were given to Fountain of Life in 1987.

He said he does not know why Ms. Lust changed her mind and wants the money back, but each time the requests have come through attorneys, not Ms. Lust. Reimbursing her would be difficult, Whittington said, because the money was used to pay postal and broadcasting bills.

Whittington said he has not been contacted by Florida authorities concerning possible criminal charges against him, and he believes neither he nor Ms. Stevens has committed any wrongdoing. He said he does not believe Ms. Stevens stole any money from Ms. Lust. However, even if any money was taken, it was totally unrelated to the contributions Ms. Lust personally made to Fountain of Life, he said.

Ms. Stevens has attended Fountain of Life crusades for seven to eight years, mostly in Florida, Whittington said. Ms. Lust became familiar with the ministry through televised shows in Florida, he said. Whittington said Ms. Stevens has recently told him that the charges against her are the result of an effort by her daughter to gain revenge for Ms. Stevens' intervention in the rearing of her granddaughter. Her daughter is reportedly the main witness against her, Whittington said.

As for being named in the civil suit, Whittington said it was a move to attract publicity.

"We know nothing about any wrongdoing," he said. "One of the reasons they named me ... it's the day of the preacher. It's the time of persecution of the Gospel. Anything written about the preacher automatically makes the news."

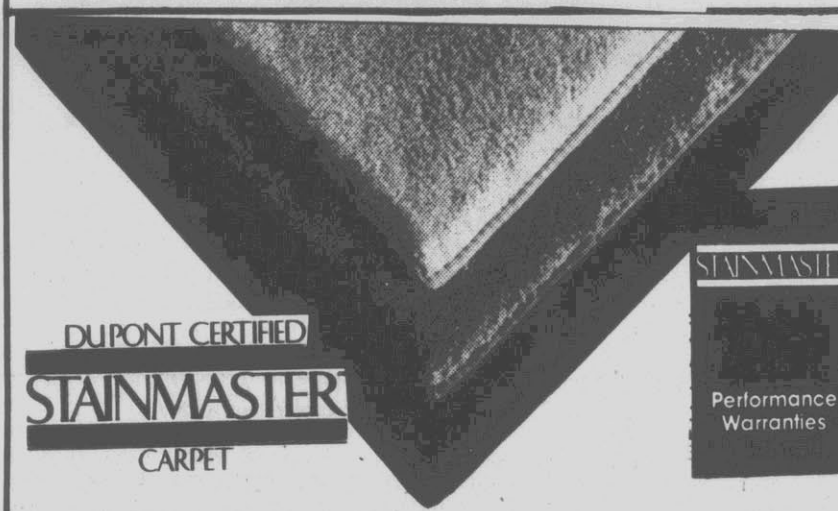

"It doesn't involve me, and to the best of my knowledge, it wouldn't involve Mrs. Stevens," he said. "(Ms. Lust) just gave the money to Fountain of Life as a gift. That's what we've told and what we've reported all along. My attorneys are confident (Ms. Lust signed the checks)."

In addition to Whittington, the civil suit names Miracle Cathedral Inc., its founder Daniel Atwood and an associate of Atwood. The ministry was located in Lakeland, but has closed and sold the property, Spanjers said.

Outer Loop Favored

board's action resulted from conversations with "people at the Department of Transportation. They are indicating to us that if the highway bill (now before the General Assembly) becomes a reality, the money would be available to construct the highway in one phase and if it is, they want to build the highway in one phase."

Because of a previous lack of funding, Beasley said, "they liked our proposal for a two-phase program. They thought it was a good idea. Now they are saying that, because of the highway bill and the federal money involved, it would make good sense to build the highway all at one time."

But Beasley acknowledged that "they (the DOT) seem to be leaning more towards the outer loop than the inner loop.

"We plan to invite the people from the DOT to come back to Wilson to meet with us to talk about where we are and talk once again about more support for the inner loop."

"We're going to use our resources to get them to thinking inner loop," Beasley said. "That's kind of where we are."

Prevatt, the DOT's rural project planning unit head, said the only options currently receiving any strong support from anyone are corridors A and B. "Nobody's really supporting C," he said.

The highway official said people in the DOT's roadway design unit, thoroughfare planning unit and field staff so far have shown "a slight preference" for Alternate A.

Tens Have Disparate Feelings About Pregnancy

By Catherine Crocker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — It didn't seem fair to 15-year-old Tanya Brown that she had to cook and mind her little sister while her mother walked the streets for drugs. She wanted more.

So one day she went to her boyfriend's house and said, "Let me have a baby."

Tanya, who lives on the Rockaway Peninsula in Queens, got what she wanted: a little girl she could dress in pink. She named her after her best friend's sister.

Meanwhile, in the suburban Long Island town of Valley Stream about 13 miles away, 18-year-old Sharon Redman, a senior in high school, became pregnant when she and her boyfriend risked sex without a contraceptive. She elected to get an abortion.

"I never thought it would happen to me," said Sharon, whose real name, like those of the other teenagers interviewed, was changed to protect her anonymity.

It can and does happen to anyone. But not all teen-age pregnancies are lamented; poor urban blacks, like Tanya, often have a different view than their white suburban counterparts, like Sharon.

"In Far Rockaway, it may make them more popular," says Dr. Stanford Friedman, head of North Shore Hospital's division of adolescent medicine. "It may make them the center of attention. It may please their mother. It may get them out of school."

In the suburban Five Towns area of Long Island, teen-agers view pregnancy as a curse, Friedman says. "They, for the most part, see nothing positive about having a baby. Socially, it's a disgrace to have an illegitimate child."

Friedman's hospital is in the unusual position of having firsthand experience with both groups. North Shore runs both a health clinic at Far Rockaway High School and a community-based health service for adolescents in Woodmere, which serves the Five Towns area and its environs.

The free clinic at Far Rockaway High School, which opened in February under a $600,000 six-year grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, occupies a bustling suite of cream-colored rooms on the ground floor, across the hall from a classroom.

Boys and girls drop by for sports physicals, immunizations and bandages for cut fingers, as well as prescriptions for birth control pills, pregnancy testing and treatment of sexually transmitted diseases.

Most of Far Rockaway's 2,000 students are black or Hispanic. Between 75 and 100 girls who attend the four-year school become pregnant each year, says Linda Juszcak, director of the clinic.

The contrast between the two clinics is striking.

Waves of students arrive at the Far Rockaway clinic between classes; the Woodmere clinic is quiet, and few students wait in the orange seats.

While only one in six patients go to the Far Rockaway clinic with sexual concerns, at Woodmere two-thirds of the teen-age patients seek pregnancy tests, treatment of sexually transmitted diseases and contraceptive care.

The disparity, according to Friedman, is simply explained. Impoverished teen-agers often cannot afford private physicians and turn to the clinic for general health care. More affluent teen-agers can afford private care but often fear that their doctor will breach confidentiality.

A survey of the first 1,000 patients registered at the Long Island clinic during 1980-1985 (the latest statistics available) showed that of 183 pregnancies, 91 percent were terminated by elective abortion or miscarriage. Comparable statistics are not available for the Rockaway clinic, but authorities believe that only half of the pregnancies in that area are terminated.

Gina Adams, senior researcher for the Washington-based Children's Defense Fund, says 48.6 percent of all births to white teen-agers were to single girls, compared with 54.9 percent for Hispanics and 90.4 percent for blacks.

'Throwaway Kids' A New Dilemma For Society

By Barbara Metzler
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The baby boy was found at the bottom of a motel trash bin. His face was swollen, his body still, strangled in the first hours of life and dumped by three people who sped off in a late-model Chevy Nova.

"It's such a waste of life," said Gardena police Detective Bill Moreno, who is trying to trace the mother by a serial number on the video-game box into which the infant was stuffed. "Who would do something like that?"

The mother who abandons her child is often unwell, perhaps has lost a job, is addicted to drugs or has mental or physical problems, experts say. "Baby blues" — postpartum depression — also can play a part.

"I was isolated. I felt very alone. I didn't feel there was anybody out there in the world that could possibly understand what I was going through," explained Gayle Marcuerquiaga, who left a newborn girl in a neighbor's trash.

An estimated 20,860 children were abandoned in 1986 in the United States, ranging from babies dumped in the trash to toddlers left in foster homes and not reclaimed, according to the American Humane Association.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg because nobody keeps any hard figures," said AHA spokeswoman Katie Bond. It's hard to tell if abandonment is increasing, she said, because it represents only 1 percent of child abuse and neglect — and those reports have climbed 212 percent since 1976.

But Alex Morales of the Children's Bureau of Los Angeles, a private, non-profit agency which places some forsaken babies in foster homes, said, "There is an increase and a change in the flavor of what's behind it. It seems to be very related to substance abuse problems that the adults are having."

"It's an act of desperation," said Thomas Hicklin, assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at University of Southern California.

Mrs. Marcuerquiaga, 28, who is appealing her attempted murder conviction and three-year prison term, calls her Sparks, Nev., family typically American. She was a young mother juggling work, family, children, and financial ruin.

She believes abandoning her baby last April culminated a series of events that included her father's death and a back injury that put her husband Jim out of work. Her job as a manicurist didn't bring in enough to support their sons, ages 8½ and 4. The couple separated for six months, and she got pregnant during a one-night stand. Yet she refused to believe she was pregnant until the child was born as she sat over the toilet, and even then the child was not real.

"If it were a child to me, that would not have happened," she said of the abandonment. The infant was put up for adoption because Mrs. Marcuerquiaga did not want her to grow up with knowledge of her first few hours. "I felt if we brought her home, she would have to live with this, and she deserves better."

In some cases, children have been left where there is a possibility someone will rescue them, such as doorsteps, churches, hospitals.

A newborn boy was found in March 1988 outside a Mission Viejo urgent care center with a bag of diapers, a $20 bill and a note saying: "Hi, my name is Brett. Please find me a good home."

Last November, a woman pinned a note to the yellow sleeper of her infant son and left him on the steps of a Roman Catholic church here. The note, in Spanish, said: "I have no job. I have no money. I am from El Salvador."

In January, a newborn boy dressed in a T-shirt and diaper was left on the doorstep of a home in the upscale Los Angeles suburb of Simi Valley. "We were just thankful that we were home," said Valerie Carrillo. "It was a shock to open up and see something so special on the doorstep."

The Rev. Alberto Villalobos, who answered a bell at the door of St. John of God Catholic Church in Norwalk, Calif., in March 1988 to find a week-old boy, said the 22-year-old unwed mother was driven by fear. "Nobody knew she was pregnant."

The baby had been left with the note: "Please take care of my child. Give him a good home. I can't, because I don't have one."

"From what I know, she was a young person down on her luck who did what she thought was best for the child," sheriff's Sgt. Douglas Dickinson said of the decision not to file charges. The mother was not identified.

An abandoned child becomes a ward of the county or, in some areas, the state. While authorities search for the parents, the child is put in a foster home, where it might live for up to 1½ years before it can legally be adopted.

Psychologists and social workers say most abandoned children who are permanently adopted into good homes will not suffer any special problems. But Hicklin said "some children think maybe they're to blame or something's wrong with them — they must not be right or worthy of their mother's love."

Finding parents willing to love a throwaway child is not difficult. Most waiting lines are years long for couples who want to adopt an infant. Each case of abandonment lights up switchboards nationwide with would-be parents.

"People are clamoring for babies," said Ray LaMotte, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles County Department of Children's Services. "They can walk in and hand the baby to us. No one needs to know their name."

All the newborns abandoned in the Los Angeles area in the last year were unclaimed by parents. With

Sweet 'John' Was Double Trouble

Dear Abby: The letter from "Shocked in Colorado" prompts my first letter to you. I can top her bizarre tale of a double-dealing lover.

I met a handsome man in October 1983. "John" said he was married, so we had to be "careful." He was so charming, I couldn't resist him. John would come to my house for lunch and "whatever" twice a week.

In December of '88, I happened to see his car pull into an alley behind a strange house. (By this time I had caught him in several small lies and had begun to mistrust him.) I obtained the address and phone number of this house. I called and a woman answered. When I asked for John, she acted so strange I knew he was there. To make a long story short, I called her again, and the two of us got together.

This is what we learned: John had been seeing her for five years, too — just three days longer than I. She gave him breakfast and I gave him lunch. He never called us by our names — he called us both "Luv." He took us to the same places out of town and had given us identical gifts and cards for the holidays. He'd phone us in the evening: He couldn't talk, but we could, so he'd tap on the receiver — two taps for "yes" and one tap for "no."

Dear Abby

Abby, I gave this man five years of my life — so did she. I still hurt a little, but it's a relief not having to cheat and slip around anymore. Would you believe that this woman and I lived within a mile of each other? — Recovering In Arkansas

Dear Recovering: After writing this column for 33 years, I can believe anything. But, there's a lesson to be learned here. There is no free lunch. Or breakfast, either.

Dear Abby: In your answer to "Choking," who coughed, wheezed and got migraine headaches from the perfumed mail and samples of soap and fabric softener delivered to her home unsolicited, you said, "If the army of allergies were to join forces and do a little lobbying, they would create a stink no one could ignore."

Abby, there is an organization of people who are sensitive to perfumes and scented products — the Human Ecology Action League (HEAL). Though we are a non-profit organization and cannot "lobby," we provide information to legislators and to the members of HEAL chapters across the country.

Please inform your chemically sensitive readers that HEAL can help them. For information, they can write to: HEAL, P.O. Box 66637, Chicago, Ill. 60666. Please enclose a long, stamped (45 cents), self-addressed envelope. — Lynn In Evanston

Dear Lynn: HEAL was founded in 1977 by Dr. Theron Randolph, a Chicago physician. It provides a broad spectrum of information for people with allergies, including: lists of specialists in the field of environmental medicine, lists of non-toxic products and where to find them, and affiliated support groups nationwide. Moreover, HEAL lets allergy sufferers know they are not alone with a problem that's nothing to sneeze at. Gesundheit!

Dear Abby: My 14-year-old daughter, "Sara," was assigned to read your booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," for her phys-ed course on hygiene and homemaking. I thought you'd get a kick out of what happened when Sara overheard her older sister telling her father and me that she was going to announce her engagement soon.

Sara rushed to her room and grabbed your booklet to advise us of our "responsibilities." Then she proceeded to read aloud: "The groom's parents provide the bachelor party, pay the minister, etc. The bride's parents provide the torso." — San Franciscans

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA, 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Black Women Marry Later

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Black women are marrying later, divorcing more frequently and postponing or avoiding remarriage because they are less financially dependent on a mate than they once were, according to a University of Michigan study.

"In 1987 only 30 percent of black women ages 15-44 were living with a husband compared with 52 percent in 1960 and 70 percent in 1950," says Reynolds Farley, professor of sociology and research associate at the university's Population Studies Center.

White women also are divorcing, avoiding or delaying the nuptials, but the trend is not so dramatic, according to Farley. In 1987, he says, 55 percent of those ages 15-44 were married compared with 69 percent in 1960 and 70 percent in 1950.

Farley says the key is that black women are catching up financially to black men faster than white women are catching up to white men.

About 75 percent of all black women and 72 percent of all white women aged 25-54 work full or part time. In 1986, they had similar average annual incomes — $12,100 for blacks and $12,800 for whites.

"But one's sense of economic independence and financial security is all relative," Reynolds says. "And relative to the incomes of their potential mates, black women are doing better than white women."

In 1954, a black woman working full time earned 58 percent of a black man's wages, but by 1986 her earnings equaled 80 percent of his.

The improvement, says Farley, "is the result of greater educational attainment, more occupational opportunities for black women and a virtual stagnation of the earnings of black men in the last 15 years."

Relatively, white women didn't fare so well. In 1954, white women working full time were earning 64 percent of a white male's income. By 1986 they were earning just 63 percent.

'R' Rating Counts Out Parents

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

With all the openness about sex in this country, we still have a major hang-up. No one wants to watch an R-rated movie with his mother.

I don't care how old you are or how old she is, there is just something about sharing all that intimacy that destroys the parent/child mystique. (This is the common belief that whatever generation you are in invented sex. Your birth was either divinely conceived or a science fair project that got out of hand. Watching Kim Basinger on the screen would give your mother disturbing dreams for the rest of her life.)

You don't want your mother to know that you know what she knows you already know. She doesn't want you to know that she has known it for years but didn't want you to know it.

The first time I watched a film with one of my sons in which a couple hit the sheets, for no apparent reason he leaned over and said,

"Did Dad ever get the part for his lawn mower that he sent off for?" I whispered, "No." Then he said, "Did I tell you I'm taking Spanish next year?" I whispered, "Great." Then he said, "Did you want some popcorn or anything?"

I couldn't believe it. Here was a kid who was lucky to speak six words a year to me, and all of a sudden, in a dark theater in the middle of the movie, he had more phrases than a talking Buick.

Later, when he apologized for the sex scenes, I said, "I am not without some background material. After all, I've watched animals mate on PBS for years."

"That's different," he said.

"Unless you've seen two fruit bats mate, you don't know kinky."

I hadn't thought about the incident much until recently when my mother was visiting. She suggested we rent a movie, as she never gets to a theater. My mind raced wildly. "How about 'Sleeping Beauty'?" "How about 'Body Heat'?" I've heard so much about it."

It was the most stressful evening I have ever put in. Whenever there was a four-letter word, I had to be ready to cough. When heavy breathing and intimacy filled the screen, I turned to her and said, "So, did you finish your afghan?" When she didn't blink, I raised my voice and said, "Have you ever thought about getting a dog, Mom?" Most of the time I ended up prattling about how the battery burned out in my smoke alarm.

Why do we do it? I don't know, but there is something rather charming about one generation struggling to maintain an innocence. It keeps the mystique alive.

DAR Meets Saturday, Tours Home

The Major Benjamin May chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution had a luncheon meeting Saturday at Greenwreath at Bruce.

Owners, Don Morgan and Frank Van Leeuwen, assisted by Walter Faulkner conducted tours of the newly restored house.

Mrs. Charles Carr, regent, gave the president-general's message and told of damages to the DAR House in Farmville.

A book "Hyde Remembers," donated by Annette McRae, has been accepted by the DAR Library in Washington, D.C.

The May meeting will be a dutch luncheon at the Colonial Inn.

Doctor Numbers

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical attention in America is in the hands of 552,716 doctors, of whom 80,725 are women, and more of them work in California, New York and Texas than other states.

California has 72,089 doctors, including 10,234 woman physicians. New York has 46,462 male and 11,030 female doctors. Texas is served by 30,238 doctors, 3,903 of them women.

Other states with large numbers of doctors include Pennsylvania (28,185), Florida (27,534), Illinois (25,503) and Ohio (21,838).

Symposium Spotlights Dropout Problem

thing," he said, citing the flying school's 98 percent retention rate.

Students at risk are those who have been identified as potential school dropouts because of various social, economic or psychological circumstances.

In Pitt County, 298 students withdrew from school in 1987-88, said Arlene Ferren, coordinator of pupil services.

In 1986-87, the figure was 266, while in 1985-86 it was 262.

Some of the students who withdraw do enroll the following year, she said.

Dr. Thomas Irons, associate professor of pediatrics in the East Carolina University School of Medicine, outlined a perpetual cycle that he says is Pitt County's problem in keeping students in school.

"I think it's poverty, first of all," he said. "It's being poor. Second, it's being uneducated."

Irons said that from 500 to 550 girls under age 16 will become pregnant this year. Half of them will terminate their pregnancies because they can afford the costs to do so, while the other half will have a baby. Those having a child probably will not go back to school even though "we work hard to keep those girls in the system," he said. Half of those teen-age mothers will have another baby as an adolescent, yet would not have finished their high school education.

Programs such as Project Parenting help students raise their children in an unabused, healthy environment while the students get their education, Irons said. "We would like to build" the program to include more students, he said.

"We would like to reach every pregnant girl that goes into public service health care and keep up with her," Irons said. "We honestly believe we can do it."

I believe we can do it if we take upon ourselves the solution to the problem and go after it," he said. "If those of you are tired ... I say un- to you're doing something important. Please don't quit."

Deans from several universities also responded to the problem. Albert Walker of N.C. A&T State University said A&T is a place where "dreamers become achievers from astronauts to presidents" but students must be motivated.

"The children at risk are good kids but something happens along the way. In our society we've forgotten something that is very important. That is values. We, as parents, as leaders, must be very honest with our students. All of us here are at risk," he said.

Carlson Brown of Hampton University said the students at risk in today's society are the same students of the 1930s and 1940s except they're being called by a different name.

All of them are products of poverty, he said. When the unemployment rate increased by 1 percent, there are 600 murders, 100,000 assaults and an increased number of burglaries and other crimes.

In the 30s and 40s, "we could afford not to educate" the poor because there were places in the economy for them. But the changing job market requires more education, he said.

Students are being taught as though they all brought an understanding for and the appreciation of education, and those without that knowledge fall through the cracks, Brown said.

Other obstacles for at risk students are testing, grouping, tracking, curriculum instruction and school management, Waltz Maynor of N.C. Central University said.

White used those obstacles and turned them around in his program by having faith in his students, he said. "Students achieve as teachers expect them to achieve," he said.

The three elements of a good school are the school, the community and the home and how much they overlap, Maynor said.

The role of the school in helping students and families at risk was discussed in Pitt County schools today, while the role of the family will be discussed Friday.

About 150 preachers in the county have been asked to discuss the role of the church Sunday.

Former Champ Robinson Dies At Age 67

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CULVER CITY, Calif. — Sugar Ray Robinson is considered by many the best fighter, pound-for-pound, in boxing history. Those close to the former champion will remember him for a different reason.
Robinson died Wednesday, apparently of natural causes, shortly after being rushed to Brotman Memorial Medical Center. He was 67.
He had a 175-19-6 record including 110 knockouts in his 25-year career which ended in 1965.
"He was one of the finest human beings who ever lived, even a better person than a prize fighter," said

Sid Lockitch, Robinson's business manager for 19 years. "He was charitable, he cared very deeply for children."
"That's why he started the youth foundation 20 years ago. It was a way to help the children, keep them off the streets."
Lockitch was referring to the Sugar Ray Youth Foundation in Los Angeles.
"Aside from the great fighter that he was, Ray was a profound humanitarian," said Phil Jefferson, the administrative director of the foundation. "He had a real concern for his fellow man, especially those who weren't as fortunate as he was."
"The foundation was a lifetime dream of Ray's, going back to his days in Detroit. We've reached at least 30,000 kids over the 20 years that we've been here. The foundation as well as the community owes a real debt to Ray. He left it as a legacy."

Although cause of death was not immediately available from the hospital, Robinson suffered from Alzheimer's disease as well as diabetes and high blood pressure, Lockitch said.
Robinson influenced boxers from Muhammad Ali to Sugar Ray Leonard.

Robinson Was Considered Best Pound-For-Pound

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SUGAR Ray Leonard shared a sweet name and sweet style with Sugar Ray Robinson. One thing Leonard never claimed to share was Robinson's reputation as the best pound-for-pound fighter in history.
"I've always carried his name with great pride and great honor," Leonard said Wednesday after Robinson died. "But when people compare us, I always tell them, 'There is no comparison.' Sugar Ray Robinson was the greatest."

Robinson, whose flashy style also influenced Muhammad Ali, died after a long illness at the age of 67. Leonard, who is preparing to fight Thomas Hearns on June 12, learned of Robinson's death after finishing a public sparring session in Florida.

"It was kind of spooky," Leonard said. "Normally, I hit the bag and jump rope after I'm done sparring, but I didn't do it today. I had a strange feeling, like I couldn't do anything more. Then (attorney) Mike Trainer came over and told me Sugar Ray Robinson had passed away."

'Bama's Humphrey Heads To The NFL

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Bobby Humphrey's agenda for playing in the National Football League is simple.
"I'm not leaning to any particular team, but I believe some of them will be interested in me," he said, adding that he would play for any club — "just as long as the team has money."
That, Humphrey said Wednesday, is why he decided to give up his final year at Alabama to enter the NFL's July supplemental draft.
Turning pro, he said, "gives me an opportunity to do something I haven't done since I was raised — to take care of me and my family."
Although he suffered a foot injury last fall, Humphrey said his doctors have given him permission to run at full speed.
Coach Bill Curry said Murry Hill, running at the No. 1 tailback spot in spring practice, will start for the Crimson Tide next fall. Hill, in three previous seasons, rushed for 981 yards for a 5.7-yard average. He got 778 yards last season, most of them after Humphrey, the school's all-time leading runner, went down with a broken foot in the second game.
Humphrey, who had kept Alabama fans guessing for months on whether he would play as a fifth-year senior, said he had received "a lot of advice — some telling me to stay and some telling me to go, but I made it myself because I have to live with it. It was totally my decision."
Although he said he had "a lot of sadness" about ending his Alabama career, "I feel the opportunity is here, right in my grasp, and I'm going to grab it."
Had he decided to stay at Alabama, Humphrey said, "the Heisman Trophy could have been accomplished, but who knows?"
Humphrey said he had "been under a lot of pressure over the last six months. It was getting a little mind-boggling, so I decided to get it over with."
He said he has not settled on an asking price for an NFL contract, and that he will leave that to whichever agent he picks.

Drug Crackdown Hits WVU Athletes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Several former athletes at West Virginia University are among those being sought in a federal crackdown on suspected cocaine dealers in this college town.
U.S. Attorney William Kolibash refused to identify athletes.
"It's become an individual thing now," Kolibash said. "Some of those named in the warrants are outside the state. One is outside of the country. Our investigation will continue."
On Wednesday, authorities arrested four former WVU football players, including a backup tackle on last year's team which played in the Fiesta Bowl. Also arrested were a graduate assistant on the university's track team and a quarter-miler on drug distribution charges.
"We think we have broken the back of cocaine dealing in Morgantown and the surrounding area," Kolibash said.
Authorities armed with more than 80 warrants began rounding up suspects, including the security director of a local hospital, in pre-dawn raids Wednesday in what officials called West Virginia's biggest drug bust ever.
Most of the charges contained in the warrants alleged the distribution of cocaine, crack and marijuana in Morgantown and north central West Virginia.
Authorities also said several individuals have been charged with firearms violations.
Kolibash said 60 suspects were arrested Wednesday.
Kolibash and Col. J.R. Buckalew, the head of the state police, said the 15-month probe into drug trafficking in Monongalia County involved dealers from several states, including Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York.
Among those arrested Wednesday was Reginald K. McLee, 31, director of

Cavs Top Pirates 15-Game Winning Streak Snapped

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Virginia hurler Keith Seiler went the distance against East Carolina's 30th ranked Pirates Wednesday afternoon and claimed a 3-2 victory over the Bucs, snapping a 15-game winning streak.
The Pirates, with the 15 wins in a row, had tied a school record for consecutive wins and were going for a new mark when the Virginia left-hander limited them to just four hits. The loss was only the third in 28 games thus far this season.
"He may have been the best pitcher we've seen this year," Coach Gary Overton said. "His performance was masterful. He had good velocity and hit his spots exceptionally well. That was the story of the game."
Overton, however, also felt that his pitchers, starter Brien Berkman, and relievers Tim Langdon and John White, also pitched quite well. They allowed only five hits among them.
"A mental mistake cost us the run in the first inning and our defense broke down in the eighth when they scored two. But I was very pleased with the pitching. All three had command of their pitches."
Berkman gave up an earned run in the game, and one of those against White was earned. It was the first earned run he has allowed in 30 innings of work this year.
White also took the loss in the game, his first as a collegiate after nine straight victories this year and last. He is now 6-1 on the year.

Virginia struck first in the opening inning getting a run. With two away, Chris Kughn singled and came around from first on a double by Keith Lee.
"When they scored in the first inning," Overton said, "it appeared that the game might go 1-0 because their pitcher was that good." Seiler struck out 10 Pirate batters on the afternoon, retiring 10 in a row at one point and seven in a row in another.
"I was really surprised that they used him against us. He's their number one pitcher, and I thought they would be holding him for their upcoming (Atlantic Coast Conference) games," Overton said.

A-G Gets Win Chargers' Offense Sinks North Pitt

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR
LITTLEFIELD — Individually, none of the three pitchers Ayden-Grifton coach Chris Ross used Wednesday against North Pitt were overpowering, but together they were effective and that was enough.
Brian Haddock, Scott Chauncey and Gene Stancill combined to limit North Pitt to five hits and help Ayden-Grifton to a 10-5 victory that opened the Eastern Plains 2-A Conference baseball season.
"When it came right down to it, it was the pitching change," Ross said. "Our three pitchers, none of them really shined, but (North Pitt's Randy) House had to go the distance (and) he struggled in the later innings. He got behind on the count."
"We had made our minds up, if we got a lead to go with Chauncey, but he struggled. Stancill came in, got four strikes, got a pop up back to the pitcher (to end the game)."
North Pitt coach Doug Warren thought House did an adequate job, but that the Panthers' chances were done in by poor fielding, especially in the fifth and sixth innings when Ayden-Grifton scored seven runs over the two frames to overcome a 4-3 deficit and take a 10-4 lead.
"You have to make the routine plays," he said. "We didn't have any tough plays out there. Those innings we made errors in the field behind him (House). Up until that point, he had given up only two hits."
The Panthers had taken a 4-3 lead after three runs in the fourth.

Johnny Sherrod was hit by a pitch to open the inning and House reached on an error.
Craig Willoughby then tried to lay down a short bunt. Both Haddock and catcher James Woodard charged the ball, but both hesitated. Woodard finally fielded the ball, but threw clear over Stancill's head at first, allowing two runs to score. Willoughby later came home on a ground out by Dave Sawyer.
In the fifth, though, the Chargers took advantage of a fielding miscue to regain the lead.
With two outs, Jay Tripp singled. Ronnell Peterson followed off a reach after an error by the shortstop. Gary Eubanks got on off a fielder's choice that missed getting anybody out at second to load the bases. A walk to Woodard allowed Tripp to score and Stancill followed with a double which scored Peterson and Eubanks to make it 6-4 off three unearned runs.
The Chargers kept it up in the seventh, pushing across four runs. Ryan Hardee opened with a walk and John Tyndall reached on an error by the third baseman. Johnnie Moore laid down a successful bunt to load the bases, bringing up Tripp, who hit into a fielder's choice with forced Hardee at home.
Peterson followed with a single to score Tyndall. Eubanks brought home Moore on a sacrifice fly and Woodard doubled in Tripp and Peterson to make it 10-4.
"You've got to give the guys credit."

Hornets Sting Knicks In Garden

By Bill Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks, who looked invincible at home just a month ago, are now getting stung with regularity at Madison Square Garden.

The expansion Charlotte Hornets, who won just five of their first 36 road games, snapped a nine-game losing streak Wednesday night with a 104-99 victory over the Knicks, who lost for the fifth time in eight home games after winning a team-record 26 straight.

"This is very disappointing because we lost to the Hornets at home," said Patrick Ewing, who dominated the Knicks' offense with 30 points, including 21 of the team's 41 in the second half. "I can understand losing in their gym, but not here."

"We're supposed to beat this team no matter where they play them," said Knicks guard Mark Jackson, who scored 10 points on 4-for-14 shooting. "We didn't do our job, but give the Hornets credit for playing hard."

Kelly Tripucka, who scored 25 points for the Hornets, said the team has played hard throughout the losing streak.

"We haven't been able to catch any breaks, but we kept our heads up and kept working," Tripucka said. "When you continue to do that, the victories will come."

Tripucka said that the key to the victory, despite Ewing's point production, was the way the Hornets handled him on defense.

"At the end of the game they were just relying on Patrick," Tripucka said. "That's not a bad guy to rely on, but we were concentrating on stopping him, and when he had to pass, no one else was taking charge. We tried to make other people beat us, and it worked."

No one else on the Knicks was 9-for-10 from the field in the second half but the rest of the Knicks were only 10-for-31.

Tripucka said the Hornets realized the Knicks had no real incentive to win after clinching the Atlantic Division Tuesday night when Philadelphia lost. But Charlotte's losing streak was weighing on everyone's mind.

"Sometimes a team relaxes late in the season when they know they're in the playoffs," Tripucka said. "You have to take that into account when you assess the victory, but we've been working so hard without winning that this was big for us."

The Hornets trailed 40-29 after the first quarter and then held the Knicks to 59 points the rest of the game.

"We're not playing at a high enough intensity level against teams with not-so-good records," Knicks coach Rick Pitino said. "We didn't have many easy baskets, especially after the first quarter."

The Knicks led 85-81 after scoring eight straight points to start the fourth quarter, but Charlotte took the lead for good 87-86 on a tip-in by Dave Hoppen with 6:57 left. Hoppen also threw a long inbound pass to Tripucka for a layup with 49 seconds left, giving the Hornets a 100-97 lead.

Dell Curry, who scored 18 points, then offset a dunk by Kenny Walker with a long jumper that made it 102-99 with 21 seconds remaining.

Ewing scored 11 points in the first eight minutes of the third quarter and the Knicks led 75-71 when he went to the bench for a rest with 2:42 left in the period. But with Robert Reid hitting three long jumpers, Charlotte scored 10 of the next 12 points for an 81-77 lead going into the final period.

New York followed a 40-point first period with only 18 in the second but still led 58-55 at halftime.

Charlotte trailed by 13 early in the second quarter but Curry scored 12 points during a 22-9 spurt that tied the score 51-51.

The Knicks outscored the Hornets 27-13 in the last six minutes of the first period for a 40-29 lead. Rex Chapman had 14 of his 18 points and Tripucka 10 for Charlotte in the quarter.

Pistons 107, Cavaliers 95

Vinnie Johnson, replacing Isiah Thomas in the lineup, scored 17 of his 31 points in the second quarter to help the Pistons take control and send the Cavaliers down to defeat.

The Cavs, behind two 3-pointers and a 12-footer from Mark Price, who scored 16 points, used a 19-11 run to take their first lead, 42-41, with 4:46 left in the first half.

Then Johnson hit two 3-pointers and finished with 10 points in the period to put the Pistons back on top 58-48 at halftime.

"I'm always pumped up," Johnson said. "Starting doesn't have much to do with it. Tonight I felt like my shot would go, and it did."

Thomas, who was suspended for the Pistons' previous two games for his part in an altercation last Friday night with Cartwright, entered the game at the start of the second quarter. An elastic wrap covered his broken left hand.

Suns 109, Mavericks 94
Dallas fell 3½ games behind Portland for the final Western Conference spot despite the return of Roy Tarpley following treatment for cocaine abuse.

Jeff Hornacek scored 21 points for Phoenix, which won its fifth consecutive game.

The Suns hit seven straight shots in the second period to stretch a three-point lead to 14 and led 70-47 early in the third period. Tarpley, who was suspended Jan. 5 because of cocaine-related violations of the NBA's drug policy, came off the bench and had 16 points and 13 rebounds.

Lakers 107, Spurs 100

Magic Johnson had 24 points, 10 rebounds and seven assists while A.C. Green and James Worthy scored 17 points apiece for Los Angeles.

The Lakers took control with an 11-2 run late in the fourth quarter to snap an 88-88 tie. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had four of his 14 points during the burst.

The Spurs were led by Vernon Maxwell with 22 points. Jay Vincent and Willie Anderson had 21 apiece.

Bullets 111, Bucks 107
Washington beat Milwaukee for the first time in five tries this season as John Williams scored 17 of his 22 points in the second half, including a 3-pointer with eight seconds left.

Jeff Malone scored 24 points for Washington, which trailed by 16 at halftime. Malone hit a pair of jumpers in the final 1:38 and two free throws with one second left.

The victory left the Bullets two games behind Boston in the race for the Eastern Conference's final playoff berth. Washington has five games left to Boston's seven.

Ricky Pierce and Terry Cummings had 24 points apiece for Milwaukee.

Jazz 107, Nuggets 102

Utah got close to clinching the Midwest Division as Karl Malone scored 14 of his 40 points in the first 5½ minutes and Thurl Bailey made three crucial free throws in the final 18 seconds.

John Stockton added 24 points and 19 assists for the Jazz, now five games ahead of second-place Denver in the division. Both teams have six games left.

Walter Davis led Denver with 29 points, Fat Lever had 26 and Alex English 18.

Drug Charges ...

safety and security at Ruby Memorial Hospital, which is operated by WVU Hospitals Inc.

McLee was charged with distributing marijuana and possession of a firearm during the transaction. Hospital officials refused to say whether McLee is still working at the hospital, which opened its doors a year ago.

Kolibash said ex-WVU football player Milton Redwine of Pittsburgh also was arrested. Redwine, a backup right tackle for the 1988 team, which lost to Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl, was charged with distributing cocaine. He completed his eligibility last fall and was a physical education major.

He originally attended Miami, Fla., before transferring to West Virginia. Wednesday's arrests also included a graduate assistant for the track team at WVU, a quarter-miler and two other former Mountaineer football players.

Courtney Mair, 27, of Kingstote, Jamaica, who holds six WVU track records and is a third-year graduate assistant for the school's track team, was charged with distribution of cocaine within 1,000 feet of a school.

Dionel Johnson, a 20-year-old quarter-miler from Lansing, Mich., also was charged with selling cocaine near a school.

WVU Athletic Director Fred Schaus immediately suspended both from the track team.

"I'm just shocked," Schaus said. "I did not know the men very well. They are suspended from any kind of contact and participation with the track team."

Martin Pushkin, WVU's track coach, also expressed surprise, saying that his team is tested for drugs regularly.

"When I first heard it, I felt I had gotten kicked in the stomach," Pushkin said. "I am very, very anti-drug. If these people are guilty, they'll get their just desserts. But I'm not condemning anyone yet."

Also arrested was Lind Murray, who lettered on the Mountaineer football team in 1980 and 1981. He was charged with distributing cocaine, Kolibash said.

Another former football player, Robert Scott Dixon, 27, was charged with distributing cocaine within 1,000 feet of a school. Dixon, who started at linebacker for the Mountaineers in the 1984 Bluebonnet Bowl, was a member of the football team from 1982 through 1984.

Former Mountaineer football player, West Turner, also was charged. Turner lettered for the Mountaineers in 1983 and 1984 and traveled with the team to the Bluebonnet Bowl, but the linebacker from Vanderbilt, Pa., saw little action in 1985. Turner was charged with sale and distribution of cocaine.

WVU President Neil Buckley said the arrests have tarnished the university's image, which has soared in recent months after the football team's high national ranking and a Top-20 finish by the basketball team.

"I don't think it's good for us," Buckley said. "But I think what's become very clear is that drugs are a large problem in this society. They've invaded our lives and our organizations."

"We have more than 400 students involved in our athletic programs. I don't think we have any reason to believe that they're not going to suffer the same kinds of problems we see across the country."

Kolibash said about a third of the suspects either have or have had some connection with WVU.

"It's been a long, hard 15 months, but it's a relief today," Morgantown Police Chief John Cease said. "If someone had come to me and told me 15 or 16 months ago that 80 or 90 people in the Morgantown area were selling cocaine, I wouldn't have believed them."

"To have this activity at this magnitude in a county our size is a sobering thing."

Ryan Just Misses On No-Hitter

Veteran Hurler Throws Seven-Plus Innings Of No-Hit Baseball En Route To 8-1 Win Over The Brewers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nolan Ryan's fastball is still part of baseball lore and so is his lure. Because every time he pitches, a no-hitter is possible.

Ryan flirted with his sixth no-hitter Wednesday night, giving up a single in the eighth inning. He finished with a team-record 15 strikeouts as the Texas Rangers beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-1.

"I would have loved to throw a no-hitter tonight," he said. "Anytime you get that close, you're disappointed."

Ryan, who has never pitched a perfect game, did not allow a runner until Robin Yount walked with two outs in the seventh inning. After Glenn Braggs drew a leadoff walk in the eighth, Terry Francona — just 1-for-14 this season — followed with an opposite-field, line-drive single to left.

"Francona's always been a tough out for me in the National League. I was trying to get ahead of him in the count and throw a strike low and away and I got it up a little bit," Ryan said. "He's the type of hitter who's going to hit it where it's thrown. He slapped it over third. He hit that pitch like you're supposed to hit it."

Said Francona: "What's so impressive about him is that when I faced him in 1981, '82 and '83, he threw a hard fastball and breaking balls."

"Now he's throwing changeups or whatever. I'd like to give him more credit, except that we have to face him next weekend. Heck, he's Nolan Ryan," Francona said.

Ryan, 42, got the next three batters after Francona and left after eight innings and 134 pitches. Craig McMurtry worked the ninth and gave up a run on three hits.

A crowd of 7,590, held down by temperatures that fell into the upper 30s, saw Ryan make his second start in the American League in 10 years. Ryan, signed as a free agent in the offseason, started against Detroit last week and gave up seven hits in five innings without getting a decision.

Ryan's last no-hitter came in 1981 while with Houston against Los Angeles. Ryan raised his all-time strikeout total to 4,798 and broke the Rangers' single-game record of 14 strikeouts held by Bert Blyleven and Jim Bibby, the only pitchers to throw no-hitters for Texas. Ryan also tied a team mark with six straight strikeouts.

"I've had better stuff. I think the key is that I got ahead and their guys are free swingers," Ryan said.

"I had a good change and they hadn't seen me. I think that worked to my advantage. I was fortunate to get as far as I did without a curve."

Orioles 5, Royals 4

Baltimore stopped a 15-game losing streak against Kansas City when Mike Devereaux hit a sacrifice fly in the 15th inning.

The Orioles had not beaten Kansas City since July 26, 1987. The Royals' winning streak was eight short of the major-league record for consecutive victories against a team, set by Baltimore against Kansas City in 1969-70.

Kansas City scored three runs in the bottom of the ninth for a 4-all tie.

Gregg Olson, 1-0, went the final two innings after Mark Williamson pitched five perfect innings.

Angels 5, Athletics 0

Kirk McCaskill and Greg Minton teamed on a three-hitter as California beat visiting Oakland.

The Angels, who downed Oakland 7-1 Tuesday night on Bert Blyleven's four-hitter, won consecutively against the Athletics for the first time since July 28-29, 1987.

McCaskill, 2-0, gave up two hits and left the game after sixth inning with stiffness in his upper back. Minton closed for his second save.

Mariners 9, White Sox 1

Rookie Erik Hanson pitched eight shutout innings and rookie Greg Biley drove in four runs as host Seattle stopped Chicago.

Hanson, 1-1, allowed five hits in his eighth major-league start.

Biley had three hits, including two doubles. Harold Reynolds hit his team-record 27th triple and scored on a single by Alvin Davis in the fourth against Bill Long, 1-1.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

New York ended its seven-game losing streak as Rickey Henderson's two-run single broke a 3-all tie in the sixth inning at Yankee Stadium.

The Yankees won for the first time since opening day and had been outscored 59-19 before beating Toronto.

John Candelaria, 1-1, pitched four-hit ball for eight innings. Lee Guetterman worked the ninth for his first save.

Indians 10, Red Sox 6

Cory Snyder drove in six runs with two homers and two singles as Cleveland outslugged Boston at Fenway Park.

Snyder hit two-run homers in the second and fourth innings and had run-scoring singles in the eighth and ninth. The Indians won for the fifth time in seven games and Boston has lost five of seven.

Bud Black, 1-1, gave up four runs on seven hits in 5 1-3 innings and Keith Atherton finished for a save. Oil Can Boyd, 0-1, took the loss.

Dave Clark also homered for Cleveland and Rich Gedman homered for the Red Sox.

it," Ross said. "After losing the lead in the fourth, they came back in the fifth and sixth. The clutch hit was Stancill's in the fifth and Woodard's double in the sixth."

Chauncey struggled in the sixth and seventh. He allowed two hits in the sixth but got out of the inning with no trouble. The next inning, he walked the lead-off batter and after two outs, he went to a full count before walking Sherrod. House then singled to load the bases. He followed with a walk to Willoughby to force in Reggie Daniels before getting the hook.

Stancill then came in and got Sawyer to bounce back to the mound for the easy put-out at first.

The win moved Ayden-Grifton to 2-4 overall and 1-0 in the EPC. North Pitt dropped to 2-2 and 0-1.

North Pitt plays at Farmville Central today while the Chargers travel to C.B. Aycock Friday.

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville jumped on top of Bear Grass early and rolled to a 7-1 win in five innings of play Wednesday in high school baseball action from the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference.

The Bullets scored three runs in the first to take a 3-0 lead.

John Ashby reached off an error to start things off. Ernie Gardner followed with a single. Both advanced on a passed ball and Ernie Coltrain followed with a single to drive in two runs. David Gardner followed with a double to score Coltrain.

Jamesville then scored four runs in both the second and third. Gardner and Kent Dickerson had key doubles in the second while Casey Wells, Dickerson, Chucky Barber and Ernie Gardner all had singles.

Gardner went 3-3 to lead the Bullets while Dickerson, Wells and Dickerson had two hits each.

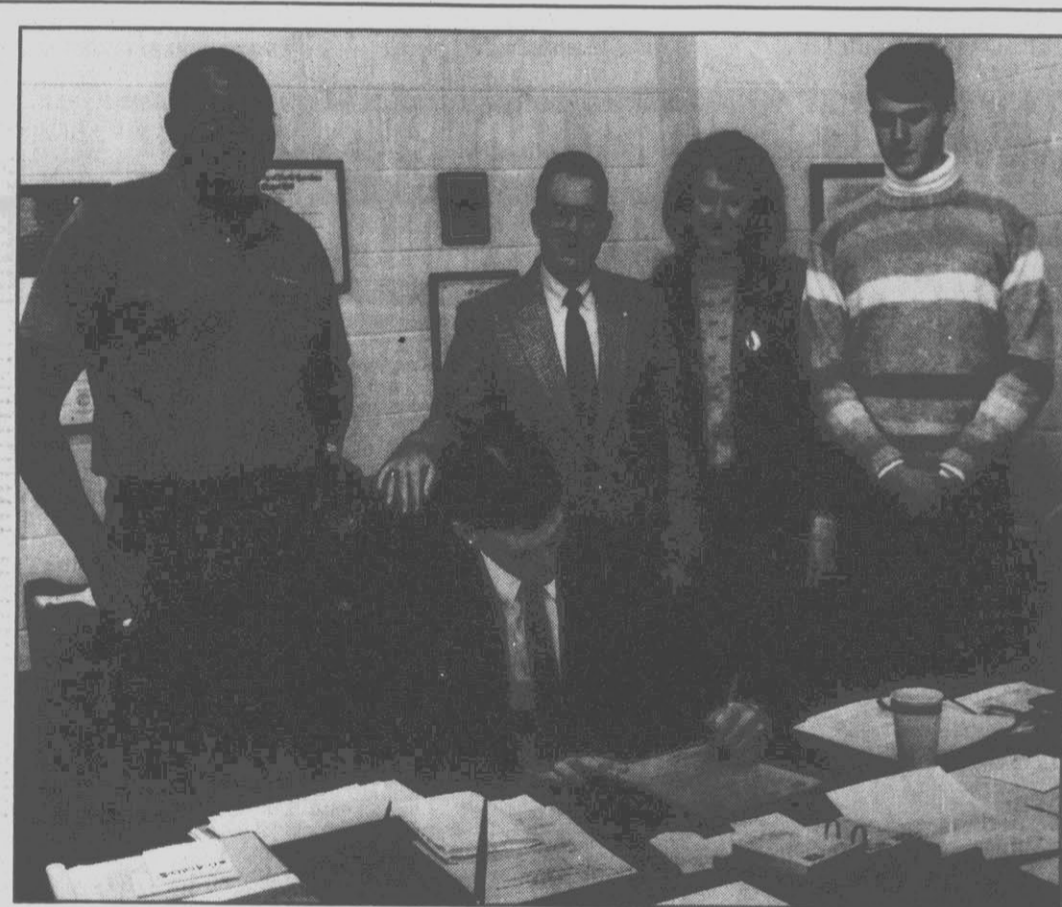

Jamesville moves to 3-4 overall and 2-1 in the TBC. The Bullets return to action against Belhaven today at home.

Sports Notes

Lewis Not Happy With Practice Results

East Carolina head football coach Bill Lewis was not happy with his team's first practice after a three-day layoff Wednesday. "We were very sluggish," he said. "Our legs were dead. It wasn't the type of enthusiasm I would have liked to see. The layoff puts us behind in terms of installing our offense and defense." The Pirates will practice in pads again today and in shorts Friday leading up to a scrimmage Saturday. That scrimmage will be part of the annual ECU Coaches Clinic for high school coaches to visit with the Pirate staff.

ECU Sweeps Past VCU Netters

East Carolina's men's tennis team swept five singles matches in straight sets to ensure a victory over Virginia Commonwealth Wednesday and the Pirates recorded a 7-2 win. The Pirates, recording their sixth win of the spring, also took the number one and two doubles. ECU is now 6-10 while VCU falls to 3-16.

East Carolina travels to Wilmington this weekend for the Azalea Tennis Classic, their final competition before the Colonial Athletic Association Tournament, to be held at Navy, starting April 20.

Singles: Mark Troxell (VC) d. Jon Melhorn, 6-3, 6-3; Andre Moreau (EC) d. Scott Egan, 6-0, 6-2; John Hudson (EC) d. Steve Tyson, 6-1, 6-1; Jon McLamb (EC) d. Steve Beinart, 6-2, 6-4; David Shell (EC) d. Yon Armstrong, 6-2, 6-0; Todd Sumner (EC) d. Mike Stones, 6-0, 6-0.

Doubles: Melhorn-McLamb (EC) d. Egan-Tyson, 8-6; Moreau-Shell (EC) d. Troxell-Beinart, 8-5; Armstrong-Alexander (VC) d. Hudson-Sumner, 8-6.

Pamlico Sail Club Holds Races

Tom Louis of Greenville, sailing "Heart of Carolina" and Bill Taylor aboard "Siren" captured first place in the Pamlico Sailing Club's third race of the season this past weekend. Wilton Smith of Bath, sailing "Queen Anne's Revenge" won third place in the race.

In race four, Mike Horner of Washington, sailing "Bodacious" and Taylor took top honors. Dave Desrocher of Bath, aboard "Western Girl" and Ken Snow of Washington were second, while Bill Farrior of Farmville and Smith finished third.

GR&P Baseball Program To Continue

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will, in fact, continue its 9-12 year old baseball program. An editor's note to a Sportsline letter implied that the Greenville Little Leagues would handle that program.

The Little Leagues will have a minor league program for youth in this age group, but the Recreation Department will continue to offer a separate program for the same age group, beginning in June.

Rose Takes Big East Track Meet Victory

WILSON — Rose High School's girls' track team romped to a 100-21 victory over hosting Wilson Fike Wednesday.

Jennifer Ramsdell and Erika Hill each were double winners for the Rampettes, who advance to 4-0 on the season. Hill took the 100- and 200-meter dashes while Ramsdell won the 800- and 1,600-meter runs.

Fike had one double winner as Jennifer Barnes took the high jump and the 100-meter hurdles.

Rose travels to the Raleigh Relays on Saturday and then entertains Farmville Central in a dual meet on Monday.

HAVELOCK — Gretta Harris was a three-way winner for D.H. Conley, but it wasn't enough to keep Havelock from taking a win in a four-team track meet Wednesday.

The Rams totaled 110 points, compared to 59 by Conley, 53 by East Carteret and 35 by West Craven.

Harris won the 1,600, the 800 and anchored the 1,600 meter relay team. Conley moves to 3-2 and returns to action Wednesday at North Lenoir.

FARMVILLE — Tawanda Moore and Darlene both were double individual winners to lead Farmville Central to victory in an Eastern Plains Conference track meet Wednesday.

Farmville totaled 69 points while Ayden-Grifton had 26 points. North Pitt was last with 12 points.

Moore, with wins in the long jump and the 200 meters, was a double-winner individually and also a member of two winning relay teams. She also was part of the winning 400 meters and mile relay teams.

Darlene Vick won the shot put and the discus for the Lady Jaguars.

GC Rolls Past Conley JV Team, 11-7

SNOW HILL — Greene Central rolled up an 11-7 junior varsity baseball victory over D.H. Conley Wednesday.

Hollis Gunn led the Conley attack with three hits. Chris Williams took the loss for the Baby Vikings in relief. Conley is now 0-5 on the year.

Fenner Declares For The NFL Draft

Former North Carolina running back Derrick Fenner has been declared eligible for the National Football League's college draft on April 23, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle says.

Fenner applied for the draft in January after leaving Gardner-Webb, where his attempts to play football last fall were blocked by South Atlantic Conference officials.

Before granting Fenner's eligibility, the NFL conducted an investigation into Fenner's past, including the first-degree murder charge he faced in Maryland during the summer of 1987, and an incident in Washington last December in which he was shot, The Charlotte Observer reported.

Murphy's Demotion Keys Braves' Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dale Murphy didn't consider it a demotion, just an alteration. It was the catalyst to the Braves' 5-0 victory over San Diego.

Murphy was moved from his customary cleanup spot in the Atlanta batting order to No. 2 Wednesday night. In his first at-bat in that unfamiliar slot, Murphy hit a two-run homer, his first of the year.

"It was just one game, one at-bat really," Murphy said after the victory that featured Tom Glavine's first career shutout, a six-hitter. "For me, this is a day-to-day thing. I just got to keep going out there working on it. Russ said before the game that he was going to try something different. It certainly was something different."

Manager Russ Nixon wouldn't admit to any long-range plans for Murphy as a No. 2 hitter.

"The idea was to get him out of the number four spot and the pressure of carrying the club," Nixon said of Murphy, who had no RBI in 27 at-bats.

Murphy had recognized his problems well before the switch.

"I've just been working on little things, I'm trying to stay back a little," he said. "I had a bad start, but I'm not really concerned about it; what's it been, seven or eight games? I don't think this is a carryover from last year."

In 1987, Murphy hit .226 with 24 homers and 77 RBI.

While Murphy and Lonnie Smith were hitting homers at San Diego, Glavine was extending his scoreless streak to 18 innings. Glavine, 2-0, struck out four and walked one and was threatened only in the seventh inning, when Carmelo Martinez led off with a double. Martinez got to third but was stranded.

Cubs 3, Cardinals 2

At Chicago, two pitchers the Cubs acquired from Texas in a nine-player off-season deal held off St. Louis. Four double plays didn't hurt, either.

Paul Kilgus carried a 3-0 lead into the ninth. Vince Coleman reached on an error by shortstop Domingo Ramos and Tom Brunansky homered to make it 3-2 and knock out Kilgus. But Mitch Williams came on and ended the game by striking out Jose Oquendo for his fourth save and the Cubs' fifth straight victory.

Reds 3, Astros 1

At Houston, Paul O'Neill's three-run double with none out in the ninth won it for Cincinnati.

Astros starter Rick Rhoden and reliever Larry Andersen had combined on a five-hit shutout through eight innings. Dave Smith came on in the ninth and Eric Davis led off with a single. He went to third when first baseman Glenn Davis made a two-base throwing error on Kal Daniels' grounder.

After Todd Benzinger was intentionally walked, Juan Agosto came on and yielded O'Neill's bases-clearing double to left-center field.

Rob Dibble, 1-0, pitched one inning for the victory and John Franco retired the side in the ninth for his third save.

Phillies 6, Expos 3

At Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt, Von Hayes and Ron Jones homered in the third inning off former teammate Kevin Gross, who yielded four home runs, three doubles and a triple. Gross was traded to Montreal in the offseason.

Darren Daulton's homer in the second gave the Phillies a 2-0 lead and they boosted it to 5-0 in the third with the three solo home runs.

Hayes started the longball binge with one out, hitting his fourth of the season. Schmidt hit out the next pitch for his third of the season and career No. 545. After Chris James grounded out, Jones hit his second home run.

Gross worked 4 1-3 innings, giving up six runs on seven hits, walking two and striking out six.

Giants 3, Dodgers 1

Kevin Mitchell hit a three-run homer off Fernando Valenzuela and Scott Garrelts earned his first victory as a starter in three years.

Mitchell's third home run and fourth of his career off Valenzuela came on a 3-0 pitch in the first inning.

Garrelts, 1-0, converted to a starter after posting a 15.00 ERA as the closer in exhibition play, gave up three hits and four walks in five-plus innings.

Jeff Brantley, Atlee Hammaker and Mike LaCoss limited the Dodgers to two hits over the final four innings.

Valenzuela, 0-2, still looking for his first win since being disabled with a left shoulder injury last July, lasted only 4 2-3 innings, allowing just two of six hits after the first inning. He walked two and struck out three.

Rose Evens Record With Win

Rose evened its record at 1-1 with a 14-11 win over Rocky Mount in a Big East high school softball matchup Wednesday.

Rose scored seven runs during a fifth, keyed by four hits and two errors, that put the Rampettes ahead 14-8 en route to the win.

Jenny Stoneham, who picked up the win for the Rampettes, had three hits to lead the way for the team. Tiki Hair, Becky Stoneham and Julie Hallack added two hits apiece.

pair of runs in the third inning and picked up another in the fourth.

But Jamesville rallied for five in the bottom of the fourth. Sheila Bowen and Candy Bembridge both walked and Karen Styons singled. Tanya Worsley walked to force in Bowen and Nikki Sexton singled in Bembridge and Styons. Sherry Blanton reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Worsley, and Jennifer Fagan singled in Sexton.

Jamesville added another run in the fifth.

Styons led the Jamesville hitting with two while Shelby Leary and Dana Mobley each had two for the Lady Bears.

third straight softball game of the young season Wednesday, downing Roanoke Rapids, 9-2.

Williamston started the scoring in the first inning, pushing over two runs. Dawn Bundy singled and Valerie Peele reached on an error. Dana Hardison walked and Kim Hawkins reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Bundy. Lynne Cowan also reached on a fielder's choice, allowing Peele to score.

What proved the difference scored in the second. Donna Hardison reached on a fielder's choice and took second on an error on the play. She scored on a single by Deedee Mills.

Williamston added two in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the seventh. Roanoke Rapids scored single runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Karen Biggs led Williamston with two hits, while Allison Matta had two — Roanoke Rapids' total — for the Lady Yellow Jackets.

Now 3-0 overall and 2-0 in North-

Robinson Mourned By Friends ...

"I idolized the man," Leonard said of Robinson, from whom he got his nickname. "Someone once said there was a comparison between Sugar Ray Leonard and Sugar Ray Robinson. Believe me, there's no comparison. Sugar Ray Robinson was the greatest."

"Generations of fighters copied his style, including Muhammad Ali," said Archie Moore, former light heavyweight champion and a friend for nearly 50 years. "Ali got a lot of his style from Robinson. ... We'll all miss him. I know I'll miss him."

Robinson fought his first fight on Oct. 4, 1940, at age 19, on the undercard of Henry Armstrong's welterweight championship loss to Fritz Zivic, and he fought his last fight at age 44 on Nov. 10, 1965, losing a 10-round decision to Joey Archer.

In the intervening 25 years, the flashy fighter was involved in some of boxing's most memorable bouts.

More than anything, Robinson's record reflects the difference in boxing from his era to the present. Top fighters today are paid so much that they seldom fight more than two or three times a year, if that, and the thought of 100 fights in a career, much less 200, is unheard of.

Robinson was born on May 3, 1921 in Detroit, Mich., as Walker Smith Robinson Jr., and he was elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame in 1967.

"Sugar Ray Robinson was the man, along with Joe Louis," former heavyweight champion Larry Holmes said by telephone from Philadelphia. "Those two guys opened the door for the rest of us."

"Anytime you get into a conversation about old-time greats, those are the two people everyone talks about."

Even Louis, the renowned Brown Bomber and former heavyweight champion, once called Robinson "the greatest fighter ever to step into the ring."

Robinson won the vacant world welterweight title on Dec. 20, 1946, with a 15-round decision over Tommy Bell and never lost a fight to a welterweight the rest of his career.

Robinson also won the middleweight title, stopping Jake LaMotta in the 13th round on Feb. 14, 1951, in Chicago. That was the sixth time the two fighters had met, with Robinson winning five, and it was the only time they did not fight to the distance in one of the most brutal rivalries in boxing history.

By the time Robinson met LaMotta for the last time, he was almost 30 years old and his record already was 119-1-2, yet he fought on for another 14 years.

Another of Robinson's most memorable rivalries was against Gene Fullmer, whom he beat only once in four meetings.

Robinson lost the middleweight title to Fullmer on Jan. 2, 1957, on a 15-round decision, then regained it on May 1 in Chicago with one of the most famous one-punch knockouts in boxing history, ending that fight in the fifth round. That was two days before his 36th birthday.

He and Fullmer fought a draw on Dec. 3, 1960, and he lost a 15-round decision to Fullmer on March 4, 1961 in Las Vegas.

"He was a good fighter, probably one of the best," Fullmer said. "He was rangy. He was fast, quick and smart."

Manhunt On For 'Godfather' Of Satanic Cult

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MATAMOROS, Mexico — Authorities conducted an international manhunt today for the "godfather" of a drug-smuggling voodoo cult that allegedly sacrificed and mutilated at least 12 people to make its members invulnerable.

U.S. and Mexican authorities were searching for Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo, a Cuban who police said orchestrated the ritual slayings on a remote ranch outside of this Mexican border town.

Constanzo is believed to have fled into the United States with Matamoros resident Sara Maria Aldrete, a 24-year-old, 6-foot-1 brunette described by Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox as the "witch of the operation."

A wanted poster issued by the Cameron County Sheriff's Department in Texas described her as "extremely dangerous. Use caution."

In Miami, television station WPLG reported Wednesday night that Metro-Dade police have been alerted that Constanzo was believed to be heading toward the Florida city.

Also Wednesday, in a manner not seen in the United States, Mexican police individually displayed four of five detained suspects in front of scores of media representatives, who subjected them to a barrage of questions.

"We killed them for protection," said suspect Elio Hernandez Rivera, 22 of Matamoros.

He added that he shot one victim and decapitated another.

Police pulled up Hernandez Rivera's shirt and jacket to show scars on his shoulders and back. One was shaped like an arrow, which authorities said signified he was authorized by the cult to make human sacrifices that were intended as protection from police, bullets or other threats to their drug-smuggling operation.

Hernandez Rivera did not comment on the scars.

Among the group's victims exhumed Tuesday were a Mexican policeman, a federal police volunteer, a 16-year-old boy and Mark Kilroy, a 21-year-old University of Texas premedical student who disappeared March 14 in Matamoros while on spring break.

Mexican police believe two victims were executed as revenge for a drug deal that went bad. Hernandez Rivera said some were killed out of vengeance rather than as sacrifices.

Mattox said the ranch apparently was used as a drug-smuggling base, and members were smuggling about 1,000 pounds of marijuana a month into the United States.

At least one victim was kidnapped in the Texas border city of Brownsville within the last month, and up to three may be U.S. citizens, officials said.

Constanzo killed Kilroy, said one of the arrested men, Serafin Hernandez Garcia, 22, a U.S. citizen from Brownsville.

Constanzo apparently introduced a sort of voodoo or black magic to the area, said Oran Neck, the U.S. Customs chief agent in Brownsville, just across the Rio Grande.

The four suspects said they followed Constanzo's orders to kidnap people.

Another suspect, David Serna Valdez, a 22-year-old agronomy student from Matamoros, said he did not know about murders when he was recruited.

Felipe Flores, spokesman for the Mexican attorney general's office, said victims' brains were cut out and put on a fire, mixed with blood, herbs, rooster feet, goat heads and turtles.

Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez said cult members removed some victims' vertebrae for use in necklaces.

Contrary to officials' earlier assertions, no evidence of cannibalism was found, Neck said.

The five suspects were detained pending the filing of formal charges of murder, kidnapping, drug smuggling, criminal association and possession of illegal firearms, said Jose Silva Arroyo, narcotics supervisor for the Mexican Federal Judicial Police.

The police were on a routine drug search when they found the dismembered bodies Tuesday in shallow graves at the ranch.

Some victims were shot in the head, and others appeared to have been slain with machetes or sledgehammers, Neck said.

Kilroy apparently was chosen at random after the cult members "were told to pick one Anglo male that particular night," said Cameron County Sheriff's Lt. George Gavito.

Perez said suspects confessed to removing Kilroy's brain and spine and chopping off his legs.

Car Bomb Kills 34 In Sri Lanka

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — A car bomb placed by Tamil extremists outside a hotel exploded and killed at least 34 people today, military officials said. In retaliation, angry Sinhalese stabbed eight Tamils to death, residents said.

The explosion in the port of Trincomalee, 145 miles northeast of Colombo, occurred as more than 100 Sinhalese in a marketplace adjacent the hotel hunted for gifts and sweets to celebrate the Sinhalese and Tamil New Year today.

At least 30 people were injured in the mid-morning blast, which flattened the hotel and four neighboring shops, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Those killed in the bombing included 24 Sinhalese, eight Tamils and two Moslems, officials said.

The number of dead or injured could increase as rescue workers continue digging through mounds of rubble, the officials in Colombo said.

Indian peacekeeping forces patrolling the area imposed an indefinite curfew on the city shortly after the blast.

Pizza, Pepsi And A Drumstick ...

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OSLO, Norway — Norwegian ship brokers have cooked up a deal in which Soviet shipyards may build up to 85 new vessels worth nearly $2.6 billion that will be partly paid for in Pepsi, pizza and fried chicken.

Ole-Jacob Libaek, who helped broker the deal, said Wednesday that the U.S. soft drink giant Pepsi Cola Co. wants to replace vodka as the medium of payment for millions of dollars in products it exports annually to the Soviet Union.

Libaek said "Pepsi Cola is very big in the Soviet Union and the Russians also want Pizza Huts and Kentucky Fried Chicken," both owned by Pepsi.

The Soviets "prefer to trade goods for goods because of their deficit of foreign currency," he told The Associated Press.

Pepsi markets Soviet vodka but wants to replace the liquor in the bartering arrangement because vodka sales plummeted following a U.S. boycott over the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Sweden's Absolut vodka picked up much of the market, and Pepsi "ended up being paid with a product it couldn't sell," Libaek said.

He said Pepsi will get 25 percent of the ships' sale price to help cover Pepsi imports.

The Norwegian business magazine Economic Report reported today that Pepsi's business in the Soviet Union will reach $600 million in 1990.

Reunification Talks Cause Man's Arrest

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — Intelligence agents arrested a dissident leader aboard a plane today as he returned from reunification talks in communist North Korea and police rounded up about 800 radicals who protested the arrest.

About 20 officials of the Agency for National Security Planning, South Korea's main intelligence agency, boarded a Northwest Orient flight from Tokyo and arrested Rev. Moon Ik-hwan on charges of violating national security laws. Moon's companion, Yoo Won-ho, was also arrested.

Moon was led down a stairway on to the tarmac after agents pounded on one of the plane's door, demanding it be opened. The 71-year-old dissident was quickly driven away in a black car as intelligence agents ringed the area.

About 4,000 riot policemen ringed Kimpo airport to prevent radicals from greeting Moon and arrested about 60 dissidents and students who yelled slogans and unfurled banners after sneaking into the terminal.

Moon created a major political controversy in the south by making a secret visit to North Korea last month to meet with communist leader Kim Il Sung to discuss ways to reunite the divided Korean peninsula.

The government ordered a major crackdown on dissidents and the visit threatened to stall peace talks between the two Koreas.

South Koreans cannot visit the north without government permission.

Thousands of radical students staged violent protests in at least five cities in support of Moon, clashing with riot police when they were blocked from marching off campuses. Police said they had no figures on how many students took part, but Korean press reports said about 10,000 students protested at 23 colleges nationwide.

Police detained about 700 radicals who tried to get to Yonsei University in Seoul for a rally to welcome Moon, police said. Another 50 students were arrested when about 1,000 protesters marched out of the campus peacefully and police armored vans fired tear gas.

Students at four other colleges in Seoul hurled firebombs and rocks at police who fired tear gas and hurled rocks back in clashes around the campuses. About 3,000 students clashed with police in the southern port of Pusan, some 2,000 students fought police in Kwangju in the south and violent clashes were also reported in Taegu and Chunchon.

AIDS Warning Issued

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — An estimated 2.5 million people in North and South America already are infected with the AIDS virus, and some parts of the hemisphere may be facing "a massive epidemic," doctors warned today.

The researchers said the AIDS epidemic in some Latin and Caribbean nations may become as bad as the outbreak in Africa, although the severity will vary from country to country.

Their concern, expressed in an editorial in today's New England Journal of Medicine, is based in part on the apparent spread of the disease from homosexuals to heterosexuals. This shift will put far more people at risk of the deadly disease.

The World Health Organization estimates that at least 5 million people worldwide are infected with the virus and 350,000 have acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

In March 1987, a WHO report said 50 million to 100 million people may be infected by 1991. But in December it reduced that to 6 million to 7 million because of evidence of behavioral changes among high risk groups.

Citing "the best available data and with use of mathematical models that incorporate the prolonged incubation period of AIDS," the editorial predicted that 500,000 people in the Western Hemisphere are likely to be diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome by 1992.

"We have great concern that we are starting to see a more heterosexual pattern of spread emerging in these countries," said Dr. Thomas C. Quinn, an AIDS expert at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases who wrote the editorial with two physicians from the Pan American Health Organization.

"Once it becomes an established heterosexual epidemic in those countries, it has a potential for rapidly increasing in sheer numbers, like in Africa."

TV Talk Show Hosts Debate Good Taste

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Morton Downey Jr. found the shouting distasteful, Phil Donahue settled upon an epitaph — "occasionally he went too far" — and Geraldo Rivera proclaimed that the real Geraldo is three different men, Winchell, Morrow and Merv.

And Larry King, while wanting no part of their style or substance, defended their right to be kinky.

The occasion was a raucous, 90-minute debate Wednesday pitting the four talk-show stars against luminaries in the print media over what constitutes responsible journalism and good taste. The videotaped show, for airing over public television, opened the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

A semi-subdued Downey got outshouted and didn't smoke a single cigarette. Rivera went nose-to-nose with his critics, unbloodied this time, and Donahue, who once dressed in drag for a show on transvestites, didn't skirt the issue.

King rejected the notion that anyone should be reined in. "It's a big pie," said the USA Today columnist and Mutual Radio and CNN television talk-show host. "Geraldo's producers may decide they want to do a lot of sex on their programs, or they want to do things that may be kinky. Suppose they do that? So what?"

"I don't have to watch," King said. "We each set out to do our programs. Same with newspapers. There's the New York Daily News and The New York Times and the New York Post, and the Wichita paper, and USA Today. And all the Americans have is choice."

The program was produced and moderated by former CBS News chief Fred W. Friendly, now with Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism.

Michael Jackson holds his four 'Soul Train' awards

Baker, Jackson Win Top Awards

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Singer Anita Baker captured three awards for her single and album "Giving You the Best That I Got" and Michael Jackson was honored for his hit "Man in the Mirror" at the third annual Soul Train Music Awards.

Vocalist Al B. Sure! was named best new artist and New Edition's "Heart Break" won album of the year at the awards ceremony Wednesday.

Miss Baker won for best female urban contemporary rhythm and blues single; song of the year for "Giving You the Best That I've Got"; and for the best female urban contemporary album of the year.

She won two rhythm and blues Grammys in February for her smoky, sentimental single, which she wrote with Skip Scarborough and Randy Holland.

"We wrote that song with the thought of my husband, Walter, and I am so glad that it was so well-received," she said.

Singer Dionne Warwick and sports broadcaster Ahmad Rashad were co-hosts of the two-hour syndicated broadcast, a spinoff of the "Soul Train" television dance show.

Jackson's "Man In The Mirror" won in the rhythm and blues category for best urban contemporary single by a male and best music video.

The pop idol also was given special awards for his lifetime achievements and contributions and the first-annual trophy in recognition of the year's top performing star, named in honor of Sammy Davis Jr.

"First I'd like to thank God, who makes all this possible," Jackson told the audience. "Then I'd like to thank my mother and father, Joseph and Katherine Jackson."

"Take Six," by the group of the same name, won best gospel album and "Da Butt" by E.U. won best rhythm and blues urban contemporary single from a group.

The awards were created three years ago as a means of recognizing soul music, said Soul Train's Don Cornelius.

Al B. Sure!, who won an award as a new artist for his rhythm and blues single "Off On Your Own (Girl)," said he was glad to be part of the Soul Train awards.

"That's why it's special," he said. "There are other music awards, like the Grammys and the American Music Awards, but this is something more — from the heart."

Mike Farrell Puts Himself In Role As Defense Lawyer

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Mike Farrell knew when he took on the role of Paul Gianelli, the attorney who defended a New York teen-ager accused of arranging her father's murder, that he wanted to put some of himself into the character.

"I saw some video tape of him being interviewed," said Farrell, best remembered for his "M-A-S-H" role as B.J. Hunnicut. "I decided I wasn't going to do an imitation of him. I was going to create my own character. He was very real within the script."

In the ABC movie "A Deadly Silence" on Sunday, as in actual events on Long Island, N.Y., Gianelli defends teen-ager Cheryl Pierson on a charge that she hired a schoolmate to kill her father. She contended that she had him killed to stop his sexual abuse.

"I met the reporter who wrote the book," he said, referring to Dena Kleiman of The New York Times. "She was a terrific source of information. Gianelli was a straightforward lawyer whose practice was mostly domestic but he had done some corporate work."

"The thing that interested me was that on a human level he really connected with this girl and became very committed to her welfare. The more he found about what her life had been like, the more passionate he became about her case."

Kleiman's book related Cheryl's story of her years-long entrapment in an incestuous relationship with her father, James Pierson. It probes deeper, however, to reveal a conspiracy of silence by friends and relatives.

Pierson was shot to death on Feb. 5, 1986, at his home in Selden. Cheryl, then 16, was accused of paying a classmate $1,000 to kill him. She served 3½ months of her 6-month sentence.

"A Deadly Silence" also stars Charles Haid as James Pierson, a robust electrician who clung to such trappings of youth as fast cars and motorcycles; Sally Struthers as social worker Marilyn Adams; Bruce Weitz as Detective James McCready, and Heather Fairfield as Cheryl. John Patterson directed from a screenplay by Jennifer Miller for executive producer Robert Greenwald.

"Because of the circumstances" of Cheryl's case, Farrell said, "some people felt she should not serve any time at all but should be put on some form of probation. She was a person who was trying to extricate herself, albeit violently, from a terrible situation.

"She hired a classmate to kill her father. Her class had discussed a story about an abused wife who had hired someone to kill her husband. She said, 'Who would do a thing like that?' and her classmate said he would."

Farrell has not been in a series since "M-A-S-H" left the air in 1983. He had been a journeyman actor before that, appearing in two other series, but it was "M-A-S-H" that gave him star power. He has starred in several unsuccessful pilots, however, including the 1985 movie-pilot "Private Sessions" in which he played a psychologist.

He said he would now prefer to devote his time to movies, as he has done for the past several years. He produces feature and television movies and appears in some TV films.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

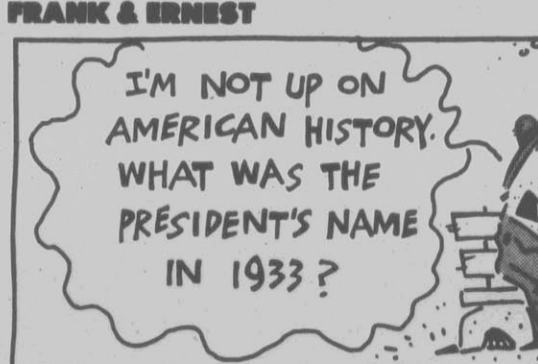

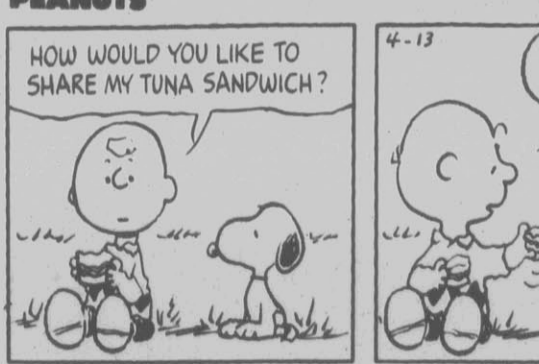

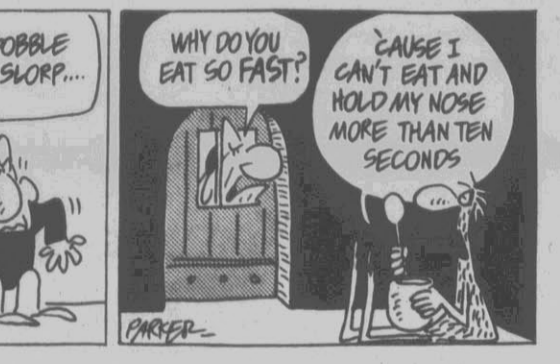

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY April 14
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You consider a new mission that can lead to pleasure, romance and profit. Only consider change that is a distinct advantage.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may need to help someone less fortunate. A romantic tie may be more serious than expected. It is difficult for you to refuse a favor.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A pleasing surprise brings variety into your life. A gift can arrive without your knowing it. Your workday can end early.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You are attracted to someone whom you know. You remain popular with friends. An introduction produces a valuable contact.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Plan to do more with your spare time this weekend. An optimistic attitude will be with you for several days. Plan a cultural sojourn.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A hobby could be expanded into a vocation if it keeps enlarging. Buy items for your personal wardrobe. Enthusiasm is your current style.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You are upset when the love is not returned. Remember everyone is not an extrovert and may have difficulty demonstrating affection.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You are respected. Others see you as an example to follow. What you try will be successful if you analyze the whole picture before acting.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You are on firm ground when it comes to business. Domestic adjustments will be needed to reorganize the evening plans.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You meet an important deadline at the workplace. Reviewing work procedures will produce new systems and efficiency schedules.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Normally you love people and are attracted to groups, except for this weekend when you prefer quiet and rest. Plan a garage sale.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You may feel trapped when you are bored. An overdue promise is kept by a not-so-friendly relative. Creative ideas flourish today.

 Do you think you are one of the country's great duplicate stars, just waiting to be discovered? Test yourself by covering up the East-West cards then decide how, after the lead of the queen of hearts, you would play three no trump on this holding, and why.
 Your jump bid to two no trump is classic—19 points and a square hand. Note that North had no way to suggest a four-spade contract in standard methods; a new suit or a spade rebid would have shown an unbalanced hand.
 West leads the queen of hearts, and there's no point to a hold-up play. You have eight fast winners, and any extra tricks you make will have to come from the spade suit. If you were playing rubber bridge, you would take the safety play of cashing a high spade and then leading to the jack. That nullifies any 4-1 split. Do you make the same play at duplicate?
 Chances of a 3-2 split are about 68 percent, and two times in five you will find a doubleton queen, giving you about a 27 percent chance of scoring five tricks in spades. It might seem that, since a 4-1 break will crop up about 28 percent of the time, you should take the safety play.

 However, in 40 percent of those cases, you will find either a singleton ten or queen, which still allows you to make your contract, reducing the danger of a 4-1 distribution to about 17 percent. And since you will make the same number of tricks as those declarers who land up in a spade contract, that feature doesn't come into consideration. So cash the ace-king of spades and go down like everyone else who specializes in pair events.

1st Time Buyer's Program.

We are pleased to announce Nissan's new purchase program, good for a limited time only, just for people who've never bought a Nissan before! You see, we believe your first car-buying experience should be as exciting (and as easy) as possible! If you:

- Have a permanent job,
- Have lived at the same address for 1 year,
- Have an income sufficient to make your payments,
- Have no credit (or a satisfactory rating),
- Are a valid driver's license, and
- Are a social security number, then you're eligible to buy one of our new Nissans! Perhaps with no cash down!

The requirements, as you can see, are quite basic and easy to meet. In fact, we're willing to bet you're eligible and didn't even know it!

Just think, you could be cruising down the highway in your brand-new Nissan—much sooner than you've ever dreamed possible! And by beginning with Nissan quality, dependability and value, you've already made your most important step: getting the right car.

Simply cut out the credit application we've provided below. Fill it out and bring it to Leith Olds/Nissan. We'll be ready to start you on the road to your new car! And when you use your manufacturer's rebate, with absolutely no cash down!
