Bus-Car Victims Out Of Hospital

The 18 children and the driver of the Pitt County schools' Bus 145 sent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital on Monday morning after a bus-car collision north of Stokes are all out of the hospital, and most were "back in their routines" today, according to school officials.

Rosa Ebron, the bus driver, did not drive a bus this morning, but expects to be back at work in a day or two, Stokes Elementary School secretary Janie Chance said she understood.

Ms. Chance said all but two of the children involved in the accident were in school at Stokes Elementary today. Among those attending school today were the two listed Monday as most seriously injured — fourth-grader Reeshan Outlaw and fifth-grader Lestina Andrews.

Ms. Chance said she talked to several of the children this morning. "They told me they were sore," she said, "but they all seemed in good spirits."

Stancil Howell, 23, the Williamston resident who was driving the car that struck the bus from behind on State Road 1551, remains a patient at Pitt Memorial. He was listed this morning in serious condition, a spokesman said.

Highway Patrol Trooper Merton Cox said Monday that Howell told him he went to sleep at the wheel as he was driving to Greenville after working until 6 a.m. Cox said Monday that Howell was being charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Damage to the bus was estimated at $300 and it is expected to be back on the road in a day or two after repairs are made, school officials said today.

Wright Seeks Democrats' Aid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — House speaker Jim Wright today took his defense against ethics charges to the most important jury of all — the 260 House Democrats who re-elected him speaker just four months ago, and who will have the final say over whether he keeps that post.

Wright addressed a closed-door session of the Democratic Caucus in the House chamber, and as members streamed in they said they were concerned but were keeping an open mind.

"Members want to hear from the speaker," said Rep. Michael Andrews, D-Texas. "Much depends on him and how he responds."

Democratic Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif., predicted Wright will be able to knock down many of the 69 charges against him and will remain speaker. "The main thing is for the American people to understand that these are mere accusations," he said.

Filing of the charges on Monday made Wright the first speaker in U.S. history to be formally charged with ethical wrongdoing by the House, although some of his predecessors have been tainted by scandals.

The voluminous report of the ethics committee included new details about how he sold thousands of copies of his book, "Reflections of a Public Man," to special-interest groups. Several colleagues called those deals the most troubling of the charges against the Texas Democrat.

In one case, a March 1986 speech to the Fertilizer Institute, the trade group planned to give Wright a plaque or a small gift in return for his appearance. But Wright's office arranged instead for the group to buy $2,023 worth of books, yielding the congressman $1,112 in royalty income.

House members are limited by the rules to accepting no more than 30 percent of their salaries in outside speaking fees. The House ethics panel found reason to believe that Wright circumvented that limit by converting speech honoraria into book royalties, which are exempt from the limits.

In two other cases — a speech to the Ocean Spray cranberry organization in the fall of 1985, and a speech in March 1986 to the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association — Wright sold books instead of collec-

Council Puts Off Med District Vote

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Greenville City Council on Monday agreed by consensus to take no immediate action regarding land-use zoning in the city's Medical District.

At the start of the first of several 1989-90 budget sessions, the council agreed to postpone further deliberations on Medical District land uses until after the 1989-90 budget has been finalized.

A week earlier, the council approved a directive requesting the resurrection of the original Medical District Land Use Study Committee which submitted the plan that set forth land-use zoning patterns in the area near Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The move was intended as part of an effort to acquire further clarification on the intent of the document.

However the chairman of that committee, Janice Faulkner, forwarded a letter to council members last week declining the invitation to head the newly reappointed panel and told the council it is unlikely the committee could be reassembled as it was originally appointed.

"I do not think we should rush into something just because we think some people want to develop that land," said Council member Bill Hadden on Monday. "I really feel that we ought to take some time on this. I think this council needs more time and workshop study before we can take any action."

Following the discussion on the Medical District, the council heard budget reports from representatives of the Pitt-Greenville Airport, the Aquatics and Fitness Center and Sheppard Memorial Library.

Construction Begins On First Mixed-Use Project Downtown

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In response to a recent change in the city's zoning regulations, a local development firm on Monday began construction on the downtown district's first mixed-use project at the H.L. Hodges building on East Fifth Street.

The renovation, undertaken by University Village Associates, will provide 7,500 square feet of retail space on the first floor of the Hodges Building and eight two-bedroom apartments on the second floor.

Don Edwards, a partner in the development firm, said Monday that the building's mixed uses will capitalize on market forces generated by the growing, adjacent college.

"We've got East Carolina University right at our footsteps. Now we can let the students live in the downtown area," Edwards said.

The renovation is expected to be complete in four months, he said.

One of the first tasks performed Monday was the removal of a red metal slip cover which masked the second story of the building.

Edwards said the completed University Village project will be visually appealing and will add to the overall character of the downtown district.

"We're delighted with the condition of the brick underneath the metal slip cover," he said. "When complete, it will look like a restoration of a 1915 building."

Edwards said he is optimistic the mixed-use concept will be successful, noting that three of the eight planned apartments were leased before construction began.

Pitt Board Backs New Sales Tax

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County Commissioners on Monday approved a resolution that seeks authorization by the North Carolina Legislature to allow county governments to enact local legislation for an additional sales tax.

Passage of the resolution incorporates seeking assistance from area representatives in state government in drafting the legislation.

An estimated $4 million would become available with a 1-cent increase is sales tax in Pitt County.

Action by the Pitt board constitutes support of a resolution proposed by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

In discussing the resolution, commissioners cited two compelling factors which they said they feel clearly justify considering an additional tax to raise more funds in Pitt County.

One is what they agree is a tremendous need for increased capital funding for a variety of projects. The second factor is realization of the burden of expenditures for a wide range of county programs which are beyond the county's capacity to pay for from the existing scale of county property tax.

While taking note of the fact that Pitt County is in better financial shape than some North Carolina counties, commissioners stressed the need in Pitt for additional money, particularly for large expenditure items such as jails, schools and landfills.

Consumers Win Right To Collect

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in a major victory for consumers, today upheld state laws that allow those indirectly affected by illegal price-fixing to sue for monetary damages.

By a 7-0 vote, the court reinstated efforts by four states — California, Minnesota, Alabama and Arizona — to participate in a multimillion-dollar settlement of a nationwide conspiracy to fix cement prices.

Lower courts had relied on a 1977 Supreme Court decision in which the justices said federal antitrust law does not permit "indirect purchasers" to sue.

But writing for the court today, Justice Byron R. White said the 1977 ruling was never intended to preclude state laws allowing such lawsuits.

"It is one thing to consider the congressional policies identified in (the 1977 decision) in defining what sort of recovery federal antitrust law authorizes," White said. "It is something altogether different, and in our view inappropriate, to consider them as defining what federal law allows states to do under their own antitrust law."

Under the 1977 ruling, if a manufacturer illegally conspires to fix a product's price and sells it to a retailer, the retailer may sue for tri-

First Fiber-Optic Cable Links Japan, U.S.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The first fiber-optic cable across the Pacific Ocean went into service today, tying the United States and Japan together more tightly than ever.

The cable, no bigger around than a garden hose, stretches 8,271 miles from California, through Hawaii, splitting in the western Pacific toward Guam and Japan.

Pacific Link will allow 40 times as many calls across the Pacific than were previously possible via copper cables.

Builders of the $700 million cable marked its completion with a video teleconference between Japan and the boardroom of the New York Stock Exchange.

"The distance between the two countries has become shorter," Shiro Uramatsu, executive vice president of the Tokyo Stock Exchange, said from the Japanese end of the hookup.

"We now have a new base, a new plateau" for communications services, John Berndt, president of international communications services for American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said in New York.

Its completion comes four months after that of the first fiber-optic cable across the Atlantic, TAT-8, which was inaugurated with a video speech by author and futurist Isaac Asimov.

Fiber links will now stretch most of the way around the world, competing with satellites for the business of carrying phone calls, computer traffic and video conferences. Satellites are still used for television.

Vet Helps Others Find Their Buddies

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A one-evening seminar titled "How to Locate Your Veteran Buddies" will be held today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Pitt Community College, Humber Building, Room 209.

The seminar will be taught by Mike Hughes, a Vietnam veteran from Greenville, S.C., whose career now involves teaching the seminars around the country. He said that his course is not only for Vietnam veterans, but is also for those of other wars.

Hughes taught the same class Monday night at PCC and may be back in Greenville later to teach additional courses if there is sufficient interest, he said.

Hughes served with the 8th Infantry in Vietnam. He said that several years ago, he became interested in contacting his Vietnam buddies and has since, with the help of his friend Steve Wittenberg of Ardsley, N.Y., located his entire unit. The B Company, Second Battalion, 8th Infantry unit served in Vietnam's Central Highlands in 1968-69.

Hughes said 31 of his unit members were killed and 50 were wounded. He has talked with many of the parents of those who were killed.

He said he is always in the process of gathering resources for veterans to use in making contact with buddies or buddies' families. He offers advice as to how to approach people who have lost loved ones, both in letters and on the telephone.

Hughes said he has learned from experience that most members of families who lost loved ones during any war like hearing from people who cared deeply about the ones they cared about.

"You need always to simply let them know you still think about their loved one," Hughes said. "Usually that's wonderfully well-received because, so often, even the old classmates of men who died 20 years ago don't keep contact with their parents and siblings. If you find that you're not well received, you can just politely end the conversation and let that be that."

During his seminar, Hughes also gives information on ways individuals can organize reunions for military and other groups and how veterans can tell their own stories pertaining to their military experiences.

During the day, he will be serving as a volunteer at the Moving Wall on the Greenville Town Common.

The fee for tonight's course is $5.

Tax Filing

Special boxes set up in the lobby of the Main Greenville Post Office for late state and federal tax filers were filled to their brims this morning, Postmaster Charles Caulk said.

In fact, Caulk said, after the boxes were filled, some people did use the regular letter drops for posting their tax forms. All returns that were mailed prior to midnight Monday inside the main post office were postmarked April 17, according to Caulk.

School Board Sets Budget Priorities

By Cherie Evans
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Programs for children at risk for dropping out of school and substance abuse education programs top the list of instructional items the Pitt County Board of Education wants to expand in its 1989-90 budget.

During a workshop meeting at Falkland Elementary School on Monday evening, the board also listed materials for exceptional children as a priority for its expansion budget next year.

About $100,000 would fund the programs for at-risk students, $50,000 would fund the substance abuse education programs, and $30,000 would provide the materials for exceptional children, according to the board's proposed budget.

In personnel services, the board identified supplement increases for teachers, principals and assistant principals as a top priority at a cost of $234,768. It also listed an initial supplement for teacher assistants at $48,000, an employee assistance program at $37,500 and employee drug testing at $25,000.

Overtime pay for current employees to drive buses topped the list in operational services at $80,000, followed by security systems in the schools at $48,000 and an expanded soccer program at $12,500.

The board also requested that Dan Thomas, controller, add any increased cost because of inflation to its current $11.6 million operating budget for the 1989-90 year.

Mandated programs such as salary and hospitalization increases are expected to add about $2.3 million to the 1989-90 budget.

The board also asked school administrators for the number of employees, including teachers, administrators and clerical and janitorial personnel, that are allocated to the school system by the state. It also wants the number of employees provided by the county through local tax dollars.

The number of positions provided through the state Pilot Finance Project also has been requested by the board. The Pitt school system was one of eight in the state allowed flexibility in using its state funds. The flexibility allowed the county to fund some positions through state rather than county dollars.

The board asked for the number of positions the school system would have to assume under its local budget once the pilot project ends this year.

Before its workshop, the board conducted a public hearing on its 1989-90 budget.

Mary Alsentzer, president of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County, said the league wants to offer its opinion on the distribution of funds appropriated at the local level for school administration.

"In order to do so, it would be necessary for the school board to offer an additional hearing on fund distribution when the budget amounts for expense and expansion items are fixed," she said. "This might be done at the end of the summer each year after state and local funding have been established."

The league also encourages equity in capital outlay projects, including the construction of a new elementary school in the Stokes area and the removal of trailers at schools, Ms. Alsentzer said.

The league also recommends that a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners serve on the school board as a liaison between the two boards and that teacher supplements be increased, she said.

Dick Cutler, principal of Farmville Middle School and president of the Pitt County Association of Principals and Assistant Principals, asked that the board consider increasing the supplement of assistant principals and providing mileage reimbursement for their travel.

Assistant principals receive a 2 percent supplement while teachers get 2 percent plus $100, Cutler said. He provided results of a survey, which will be reviewed by the board, that identified ranges of supplements and criteria used by other school systems to determine local supplements.

Nicki Evans of Farmville requested that the board give each high school $5,000 to provide band instruments. She also asked that the board consider a instrumental lease program.

The board will review and consider budget information during its regular meeting May 1. Its budget must be submitted to county commissioners by May 15.

Pitt Board Backs Plea For New Sales Tax

Addressing the concern of imposing a cap on the amount of sales tax, it was generally accepted that an additional 1 cent would be the amount considered at the present. It is up to the commissioners to enact a cap amount.

The idea of excluding food items as part of any tax structure was discussed. County Manager Kramer Jackson said that bills are now being addressed on the subject at the state level. One of the bills already introduced calls for a repeal on taxes for food and for non-prescription drugs, Jackson said.

Commissioners delayed taking further action on the issue of the establishment of a Roanoke River Wildlife Refuge. The proposed refuge is adamantly opposed by Martin County commissioners, with Bertie and Halifax counties in favor, and Pitt and Washington counties on record as being in opposition. Hyde County has expressed a neutral stand.

Some proponents of the refuge have suggested that Pitt at least follow the example of Hyde County and declare a neutral stance.

It was noted that U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones Sr. has indicated that if Martin County constituents are strongly opposed, he cannot back the issue.

Commissioners, while voicing gratitude for an offer by Burroughs Wellcome to provide equipment and personnel to assist in the event of dealing with a chemical spill, tabled action on the matter until a later date. County attorney William H. Watson was asked to check on items in a tentative agreement that deal with insurance responsibilities.

The Burroughs Wellcome offer was introduced to commissioners by Pitt Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner during the presentation of a new, comprehensive county disaster plan, with the single document replacing three former documents.

A motion to place $2,725 in the upcoming budget for the purchase of an item for the Bethel Rescue Squad was approved. The money represents a 50/50 share by the county in the purchase.

A presentation of projects involved in the Community Based Alternative program was presented by Carl Worthington, Juvenile Court counselor. Worthington, in the role of chairman of the Pitt County Youth Services Advisory Committee, introduced several project leaders who gave an overview of their programs.

Funding in the amount of $139,116 is provided totally through state funds. Commissioners approved the continuation of existing programs and the addition of some new programs. A stipulation was made that accountability for all funds be made through the county budget officer.

ple damages. But if the retailer passes on the illegally inflated price when selling the product to the ultimate consumer, the consumer may not use federal antitrust law to sue.

Today's decision, however, allows such consumers to sue under a state antitrust law.

Justice Department lawyers, who sided with the appeal filed by the four states in the cement price-fixing case, told the court that at least 11 other states and the District of Columbia have enacted laws expressly giving indirect purchasers the right to sue.

The states are Colorado, Hawaii, Illinois, Kansas, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

In the case decided today, the four states sought to sue in behalf of county and municipal governments that had purchased cement or products containing cement.

A spate of lawsuits was filed against cement manufacturers in 1976 and 1977, alleging a nationwide conspiracy to fix prices. Each of the four states involved in today's court action filed a suit, based in part on state laws protecting indirect purchasers.

The litigation was consolidated in federal court in Arizona, and by 1981 cement manufacturers had agreed to pay $32 million to settle the case.

Direct purchasers then challenged the states' right to be compensated for indirect purchases.

A federal trial judge, later upheld by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, threw out the states' suits.

House Speaker Seeks Party Aid

ting speaking fees, and was given the books to distribute as he saw fit. The ethics committee saw those as unreported gifts to the speaker.

"My view is that count one (dealing with the book sales) is the most serious issue," said Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., vice chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, the organization of all 261 House Democrats.

"It's a bad day. It looks rotten. But at some point in time, the facts do make a difference" and will help the speaker, he said.

The speaker's problems were the No. 1 topic of conversation on the House floor, but lawmakers were reacting cautiously in public to Monday's formal filing of charges against Wright, the equivalent of an indictment.

"I think we have a responsibility to keep our minds open and our mouths shut until we have an opportunity to read the report," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., who wrote many of the rules Wright is charged with violating.

"We learned that the charges are not trivial, they are not technical, and they are not aimed at his wife," as Wright had argued last week, said Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., a close ally of Georgia Republican Rep. Newt Gingrich, whose complaint last May launched the Wright investigation.

Republicans were going out of their way not to lambaste Wright, fearing that to do so would only make it easier for the speaker to rally Democrats against what he has portrayed as a partisan vendetta. Instead, Republicans simply pointed to the ethics panel's unanimous bipartisan vote to issue the formal statement of charges against Wright.

Democrats pinned their hopes on rebutting what they saw as the weakest part of the ethics committee's case, the charge that Wright improperly accepted some $145,000 in gifts from Fort Worth developer George Mallick because Mallick had a direct interest in legislation before Congress.

The rules bar acceptance of more than $100 in any calendar year from a person deemed to have a direct interest in congressional action.

The panel, in its report, said Mallick's large oil and gas and real estate investments set him apart from the general public and made it "reasonable to infer" that he would be interested in lawmaking on taxes and real estate development. In addition, he had dealings with savings and loan institutions and with a Fort Worth redevelopment project that were affected by bills before Congress, the committee said.

Less easy to dismiss were the counts relating to the book sales.

Work Begins On Multi-Use Project

The project was made feasible just months ago when the Greenville City Council amended the Zoning Ordinance to provide for such facilities in the DM (downtown mall) and CD (downtown commercial) zoning districts.

Included in the new regulations are density bonuses which are provided to developers who build project amenities otherwise not economically feasible.

Those amenities include the preservation of unique architectural details on existing buildings, providing private parking beyond the amount required by the ordinance and the protection of downtown ground-floor street frontage for retail purposes.

Jack Steelman, executive director of Evergreen of Greenville Inc., which assisted in preparing the zoning ordinance revisions, said, "Through this project, people will see there is a very logical and profitable marriage between this area of downtown and the needs of the university.

"The University Village concept, which is so popular in other college towns, can work well in Greenville, too, and will clearly be perpetuated by this project," he said.

Financing for the University Village project is by First Federal Savings and Loan of Greenville.

We Make Loans For Smiles, Hugs And Cheers.

At NCNB, we realize when you borrow money, you're making as much an emotional investment as a financial one.

So when we loan you money for braces, we see it as helping to create a priceless smile. We understand that the long-term reward of a college education can't be measured in dollars and cents. And that the investment you make in a marriage will continue long after the wedding bills have been paid.

You see, it's all in the way you choose to look at things.

And at NCNB, we'll really make an extra effort to see things your way. We'll work to come up with a monthly payment schedule that suits your terms, not ours. And to give you an interest rate that is competitively low.

So whatever your borrowing needs may be, just stop by the NCNB office nearest you and talk them over with one of our loan specialists. Because at NCNB, we'd really like to loan you the money for things you can't put a price on.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

The Edge

Use Reasoning, Not Good Intentions

When Greenville City Council members agreed to give a private community service agency taxpayers' money to pay bills, they were acting with their hearts, not their heads. When it comes to spending public dollars, that's a precarious and improper perspective.

No one is doubting the worthiness of the cause. Faith Ventures, the agency funded, does admirable community service; its work addresses needs that otherwise would go unmet. The organization provides transitional housing to temporarily homeless people and to those recovering from drug and alcohol addiction. It also spends time and money helping these individuals find permanent, affordable housing.

'Greenville simply can't afford to get into the business of spending public dollars on private endeavors, regardless of their value. That's not sound fiscal policy.'

But the decision to spend nearly $2,500 of city money to help Faith Ventures pay bills for the month of April puts the City Council — and taxpayers — in a perilous position.

First, it incorrectly sets a policy for granting "emergency" requests from community agencies. Council members have no business spending taxpayers money in this manner. By providing this hard-times help, the council has set a precedent. It will be difficult to deny other legitimate requests from equally deserving causes or organizations. What's to stop any other group or citizen from coming before council with a financial request and having it granted? Council members will have to find a suitable answer to this question.

Second, because Faith Ventures is operated under the auspices of a church, the council has placed itself in a potential church-state conflict. While the council may have sidestepped the legal ramifications of such a position by specifying the money not be used for religious activities of any sort, the appearance of improper association remains.

The margin separating church and state is precariously narrow. It is an important margin; it guarantees freedom of religious beliefs for Americans. No state-dictated church can interfere with the right of any citizen to worship in any manner that individual chooses.

That's why the line of distinction must be scrupulously drawn and respected. City Council has failed to do so. It's legal position may be solid, but its financial relationship with a church-run agency is a connection that should be questioned. It places the city at the edge of the margin.

Taxpayers have to wonder why its elected officials took such implausible action. Faith House needed a one-time grant to pay a $1,000 mortgage, an $800 utility bill and a $225 house insurance premium. Yet the organization's officials had not requested emergency funding through normal non-profit financing channels such as the United Way. Why didn't council direct the group to such avenues?

It is not the city's role to be paying a religious-based entity's yearly home insurance, monthly mortgage and utility bill. Greenville simply can't afford to get into the business of spending public dollars on private endeavors, regardless of their value. That's not sound fiscal policy.

What council members must do now is devise a sound means of addressing the flood of private fund requests that could face them. They can't undo a bad decision but they can learn from mistakes. The lesson? Make funding decisions with cool reasoning from the head, not with good intentions of the heart.

Wright Traveled Well Worn Ruts

David Broder

WASHINGTON — In "Reflections of a Public Man," the exercise in vanity publishing which now is causing him such problems, House Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas) includes a bit from one of the hundreds of graduation speeches he has given over the years. He advised the members of this class that "everyone who has ever traveled the road of life has followed certain ruts," so they ought to "choose your rut carefully. You will be in it for the next 20 or 30 or 40 years."

Applying that fatuous sentiment to Wright's own career, you could say that he has traveled a path to power that has landed many others in the mud. Texas does that to its politicians.

We have seen the pattern before. Not just in the recent Senate nomination fight over former Sen. John Tower of Texas, but also with other prominent Texans who crashed just when their careers seemed to be soaring.

Lyndon Johnson, the former President; John B. Connally, the former governor; Ben Barnes, the former lieutenant governor — what is it about these men and their state? What is the failing they share with Jim Wright?

Their common fault is overreaching. Seeking more power than it is healthy for one man to hold, or seeking to enhance and insulate their power with the comfort of leveraged economic security.

I do not offer any judgment on the specifics of the House Ethics Committee's report on the Speaker. But it is clear to anyone who knows Texas that Wright has come face to face — as others have done before him — with the contradictions between the politial standards of his home state and those the nation aspires to embrace and enforce at this moment.

Such rapid rise-and-fall patterns are not unique to Texas politics, but they have a special character there. The ground rules are different.

Texas not only spawns people of immense political talent, it grooms them at an incredibly early age. Wright was one of those precocious operatives, a decorated Army Air Force vet and member of the Texas legislature at age 23, mayor of his home city at 26, a member of Congress at 31.

Like many others, he achieved real political power before he ever had the opportunity to secure a financial base for himself or the wealth that would provide economic security for his family. Like them, Wright was motivated not by money but by power — and yet he had the same debts and the same material desires as his contemporaries. Man of them were as successful in extracting wealth from the expansive Texas environment as Wright and his breed were in extracting power.

That they would meet and do business was almost inevitable, given the Texas climate. A select few were spared the moral dilemmas of the situation because they had secured their wealth and their social position as a family inheritance before they entered the political world. George Bush and James A. Baker III were in that lucky position.

But for the poor boys like Johnson, Connally, Barnes and Wright or an impecunious preacher's sonacademic like Tower, it was never quite so uncomplicated. Back in 1972, Neal R. Peirce, writing in "The Megastates of America," described the commonplace transaction by which emerging Texas politicians were assisted in achieving an economic status less embarrassingly modest than their political standing would seem to deserve.

"If an establishment politician appears on the scene without prior wealth," Peirce wrote, "steps are taken to see that he stays a poor boy no longer, apparently with little concern that his independence might be undermined in the process. A favorite way to dothis is to sell the man stock in an up-and-coming local corporation. One of the establishment's banks is lined up to lend the man money to buy the stock, with the securities themselves the sole collateral."

The process is aided by two conditions more prevalent in the Lone Star State than elsewhere. As Peirce wrote, "The political life of Texas is directed by a single monied establishment. There is no other state of the Union where the control is so direct, unambiguous and commonly accepted." And within that politicaleconomic establishment, "manipulation of government for direct personal gain is simply not regarded as very immoral."

That is why, Peirce wrote, "Texas' monied establishment has its Achilles heel — ethics....There is not even in theory a line between private interest and public responsibility, as the establishment sees it."

Jim Wright is a product of that culture. The Texas system has ruined more brilliant political figures than larger states like California and New York have been capable of producing in the postwar period. The specific acts for which he has been arraigned are matters for his colleagues to weigh. But what is happening to him now has happened to many a Texas politician. The ruts on which he has traveled to this point were etched deep in the road before he ever set foot on his journey.

Better Ethics, Worse Government

George Will

WASHINGTON — Speaker Wright's "personal ethics" are now the focus of attention in this continental superpower. Many people, including Wright, say that whatever is to be done, 'twere well it were done quickly. Nonsense. Let's all wallow in it, for weeks, months if possible.

'Tis said there should be no element of Republican revenge in this. Why ever not? It is said we must avoid an orgy of recrimination and a ruinous escalation of nastiness on the ethics front. I say let the ruination begin. Let there be scorched earth, salt sown in the soil, not a stone left standing on another stone on Capitol Hill.

I do not know if Wright is guilty of anything, but I hope that if he is innocent he is ruined and if he is guilty he goes unpunished. Let there be no nonsense about justice at this late date from the fine folks who brought us the Bork lynching, the Tower inquisition, the Meese tormentings, and much else in the name of highmindedness.

What part of the destruction of the Bork nomination did you find most admirable, if only for its imaginativeness? Was it anti-Bork advertising campaigns that the sponsors admitted were lies? Was it anti-Bork groups snooping around to learn what movies Bork had rented, hoping to find something naughty? (They found Fred Astaire.) Then there were all those fraudulent reports by free-lance ethicists who said they saw John Tower misbehave on occasions when they could not have seen Tower. Ah, but that was then, this is now. And two wrongs do not make a right, right?

Right. But a 14th or 18th or 23rd wrong, if the 14th or 18th or 23rd victim is a prominent Democrat, may make a cease-fire on the "personal ethics" front. And perhaps we might even get a redefinition of ethics to include behavior with an important effect on the public weal.

Suddenly a lot of Democrats are not having any fun anymore. Won't some referees blow the whistle, call time out, re-set the clock, do something? The best thing about Wright's travail is that it may cause a few hundred Democrats to decide that ethics is not such a good dodge after all.

It is lovely that Wright's case is coming to a boil as the latest bipartisan budget fraud is being perfected at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. And as, in a courthouse at the foot of Capitol Hill, the trial of Oliver North is coming to a close. Did North lie to Congress? Yes, he says so. But the lying was extraordinary and the quantity was small beer compared to the mountain of mendacity routinely shoveled out to the American people by the Bush administration and both parties in Congress concerning the annual evasions of the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction "law."

In the last two years under that law, the deficit has actually increased. Congress and the executive branch have conspired for their mutual convenience (that is what bipartisanship, so much celebrated just now, really means) to fudge the assumptions and cook the books in ways which, if practiced in the private sector, might get the practitioner sent to prison.

This is the time of year for senior-class trips to Washington by high-school students. They come in brightly colored buses that sometimes park bumper-to-bumper, like benign, pretty snakes stretching down Capitol Hill. If there were criminal sanctions attached to Gramm-Rudman, there would be a snake of bumper-to-bumper paddy wagons lined up to cart Congress and some of the executive branch to jail.

Wright and North may have misbehaved with sums involving single commas. But ethics — pardon me, I mean "personal ethics" — stop with the second comma. Budgetary shell games involving three commas — billions — do not count when the subject in Washington is "ethics."

The adjective "personal" gives the game away. The subject of "personal ethics" is a device for changing the subject from the ethics-free zone of matters central to the nation's welfare. In that zone, the stakes are high and the choices are hard so there is tacit bipartisan agreement that ethics have nothing to do with it.

Actually, "personal ethics," if understood in terms of financial fastidiousness, are probably better than ever in American politics. However, today's relatively pristine ruling class will not write an honest, let alone a responsible, budget.

Better "personal" ethics and worse government — that is the result of deciding that ethical rules are about relatively little things.

IN THE STATE

Tax Revenue

WILMINGTON (AP) — The mayors of several Brunswick County beach towns have gone on record against a county decision last month to change its method of distributing sales tax revenue.

The mayors say the new method, based on population instead of property tax revenue, is unfair because it does not take into account the number of temporary residents who spend money that contributes to the sales tax revenue.

"The only thing that bothers me on this account is that somebody is not giving any consideration to the resort communities," said Holden Beach Mayor John Tandy. His town will receive about $24,000 less in revenues, based on 1987-88 distribution figures.

Despite the protests, including a threat by Bald Head Island to secede from the county, the resolution has already been received by the state Revenue Department, making it unlikely the action can be reversed before next year.

Air Study

DURHAM (AP) — Research findings at Duke University support the theory that air pollutants are contributing to the decline of Southeastern forests.

Research has shown that loblolly pine trees exposed to ozone, one of the three main air pollutants of concern today, experience a significant growth reduction, said Curtis J. Richardson, professor of research ecology in the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies at Duke.

Ozone is formed when hydrocarbons and nitrous oxides, both of which are produced by automobile emissions and industry, interact at high summer temperatures under ultraviolet light. With its warm climate and high emissions, the Southeast produces high levels of ozone.

The Duke Forest Project was established in 1987, following surveys by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service that indicated stands of pine trees in coastal, Piedmont and lower mountain regions were not growing as rapidly as in previous decades.

Insurance Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — An Illinois insurance company has resumed offering health insurance coverage in North Carolina after a Wake County Superior Court judge has ruled in its favor in a rate dispute with Insurance Commissioner Jim Long.

The ruling, issued last week by Judge Donald W. Stephens, said that Long did not have authority to put restrictions on a 73.6 percent rate hike sought by Golden Rule Insurance Co. and ordered the commissioner to give "full unconditional approval" to the increase.

The company says it will reverse a decision to withdraw from the health insurance market in the state. On March 1, Golden Rule had started declining to renew the policies of its 3,140 North Carolina customers.

Waste Board

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Ethics ruled Monday that an executive of Carolina Power & Light Co., which is the largest producer of low-level nuclear waste in North Carolina, has no conflict of interest serving on the board that will choose a waste-disposal site in this state.

R. Michael Jones, the director of external relations for Carolina Power & Light and a stockholder in the company, need not remove himself from the N.C. Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority, the ethics panel said in an opinion released Monday.

Raymond L. Murray, the chairman of the authority, said the finding settles a challenge that a state environmental group had posed to Gov. Jim Martin's decision in December to appoint Jones to the 15-member authority.

The Radioactive Waste Roundtable had said that Jones should not be allowed to vote on selection of a site or the award of a contract for a company to build and operate the disposal plant.

Worker Killed

MOUNT HOLLY, N.C. (AP) — A 21-year-old Mount Holly man was killed Monday when the forklift he was operating overturned and he was crushed under 4,000 pounds of steel, authorities say.

Robert William Kelly died instantly at about 7:50 a.m. from massive trauma to the skull, Gaston County Medical Examiner Bill McLean said.

Kelly, an employee of Temporary Staffing Systems Inc. of Gastonia, was killed on a job assignment at Gaston County Dyeing Machine Co. on N.C. 27 in Mount Holly.

The 1985 East Gaston High School graduate, had four years experience with a forklift, said his father, James Kelly.

Resignation

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — John Dempsey, who for seven years helped raise enrollment, buildings and endowment money at Belmont Abbey College, resigned as the college's president Monday.

Dempsey, 43, will become president of Sandhills Community College in Southern Pines, a 10,000-student, two-year part of the North Carolina community college system.

Dempsey, a Pennsylvania native, will get what he called "a modest raise" at Sandhills, from $73,000 at Belmont Abbey to $85,000.

Parking Petition

ASHEVILLE (AP) — About 700 students and 100 faculty members have signed a petition against plans at the University of North Carolina at Asheville to bulldoze four acres of the botanical gardens' buffer zone for a parking lot.

The petition along with a vote last week of the faculty senate recommending against the new lot has prompted Chancellor David Brown to take another look at the plans, he said Monday.

The 120-space lot would require the removal of most of the trees that now stand between the botanical gardens and an existing parking lot serving a high-rise dormitory. A low bid of $181,000 to build the project was submitted last week.

Hickory Stamp

For the first time in 10 years Hickory's mail was canceled with its own postmark as the Hickory Post Office became a regional postal facility for 286 post offices in Catawba and 11 surrounding counties.

Previously, all of Hickory's mail was processed in Charlotte and canceled with a Charlotte postmark.

In addition to adding 12 letter sorting machines, the Hickory Post Office will hire 66 new workers. So far, 44 people have been hired — mail sorters, electronics technicians to service new machinery and new supervisors. The post office already had 81 mail sorting workers.

House Panel Backs Convention On Balanced Budget

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina remains in favor of a constitutional convention to force the federal government to balance its budget, despite warnings that such an event could become a free-for-all for special interests.

The House Rules Committee on Monday rejected 13-6 a bill approved earlier by the Senate that would have rescinded the General Assembly's 1979 vote in support of a convention.

A convention must be called if 34 of the 50 states go on record in favor. At one time, 32 state legislatures had approved the call for a convention although Alabama and Florida have since withdrawn their support.

The move to prevent a convention is fueled primarily by concern that it would not be limited to the balanced budget issue and would veer into pet causes of single-issue groups.

"We don't have any rules or guidelines for a convention," said Rep. Betty Wiser, the bill's House sponsor. "Anything could happen at a convention. The last time we had a convention, they rewrote the Constitution."

She attributed the bill's defeat to a successful lobbying campaign waged by groups such as the National Taxpayers' Union and North Carolina Citizens for Business and Industry, which focused on the balanced budget issue instead of the possibility of a "runaway convention."

Rep. Johnathan Rhyne, R-Lincoln, quoted the late Sen. Sam Ervin as saying the specter of a convention run amok was a straw man created by foes of a balanced budget requirement.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said he had signed the bill as a co-sponsor but had changed his mind about it. He said his constituents were "fed up to here with a budget that's so big, nobody knows how much this nation owes."

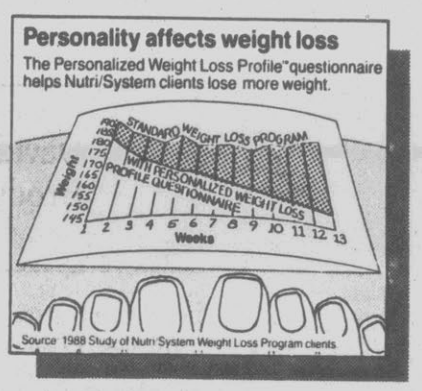
N·A·T·I·O·N·A·L WEIGHTLOSS MONTH

At any given time, some 43 million Americans are making a serious diet attempt. Losing weight is hard, more complicated than simply cutting back on calories or certain food. And keeping the weight off is even more difficult.

Thousands of people lose weight every year, but many are back where they started within a year. But there is hope. Studies conducted at the University of Pennsylvania show that people who follow a weight loss program that includes behavior modification lose more weight and maintain their weight longer.



Behavior Modification Aids Weight Loss

A number of personal factors can interfere with any person's ability to lose weight. For example, a person under stress at work may have a difficult time losing weight. Most of these people have a great deal of determination to succeed when they start a diet. But sooner or later, coping with workplace struggles is going to become more important than sticking to a diet. The best way to lose weight and keep it off for this type of individual, then, is to find new ways of coping with job stress.

The International Congress on Obesity (ICO) recommends that behavior therapy or modification be included in any safe and credible approach to weight loss. One guideline recommended by the ICO is to assess—prior to starting a weight loss attempt—the psychological and social factors which can prevent a person from losing weight.

The Personalized Weight Loss Profile™ Questionnaire

Nutri/System has developed such a tool: The Personalized Weight Loss Profile™ questionnaire.

Years of research at the University of Rochester have identified eight personality characteristics that are most likely to interfere with an individual's ability to lose weight. These personal factors have been incorporated into the Personalized Weight Loss Profile questionnaire.

Used exclusively in the The Nutri/System® Weight Loss Program, this questionnaire pinpoints the attitudes and behaviors which prevent people from reaching their ideal weight. Every client completes a Personalized Weight Loss Profile questionnaire when entering the Program. The answers help Nutri/System Behavior Breakthrough™ Counselors identify and intervene in any obstacles to permanent weight control.

In a recent study, clients in Nutri/System Centers achieved nearly three times as much weight loss when the Personalized Weight Loss Profile questionnaire was used to assist in resolving their individual weight loss problems.

Nutri/System® Comprehensive Weight Loss Program

The Council on Scientific Affairs of the American Medical Association recommends three elements for successful weight control:

1. Nutritionally-balanced diet
2. Behavior modification
3. Exercise

"A program that incorporates all three (elements) is more likely to lead to long-term weight control," the AMA concludes.

The Nutri/System Weight Loss Program, founded in 1971, is a comprehensive weight loss program that embraces all of the elements recommended by the AMA. The Nutri/System Weight Loss Program includes:

- Nutrition and Behavior Counseling to provide encouragement and support and to help understand weight control problems with our exclusive Personalized Weight Loss Profile™ Questionnaire and Behavior Breakthrough™ classes.
- Delicious, low-calorie meals that are nutritionally balanced, low in fat, portion-controlled, and meet the high flavor and texture standards of our Flavor Set-Point™ Meal Plan.
- Light Exercise designed for people not used to exercising regularly.
- Weight Maintenance to help keep those pounds off and begin a healthy new life confident of permanent weight control.

National Weight Loss Month

The 1,100 Nutri/System® Weight Loss Centers salute all efforts to inform the American public of the dangers of obesity. And we applaud the 43 million adults who are currently waging their own personal "War on Obesity" by actively attempting to lose weight and control their weight.

Nutri/System supports the designation of April as National Weight Loss Month, to raise public awareness and concern for the number one national health threat—Obesity. Nutri/System welcomes all other responsible members of the weight loss community to join in the "War on Obesity."

"War on Obesity"

If you are concerned with your health—and the health of your family—join in the national effort to recognize obesity as the number one public health threat it is.

What can you do?

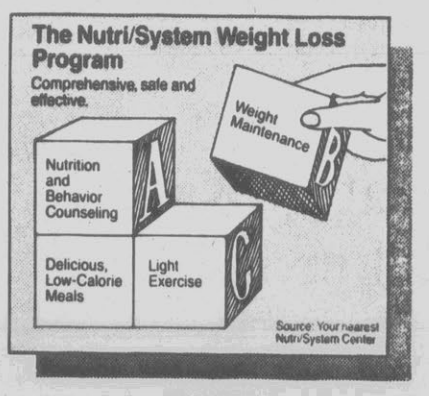
1. Make sure you are not part of the problem. See your family physician and determine if you are counted among the 68 million overweight Americans*.
2. Take control of your own life. If you are overweight actively seek help through a comprehensive program for weight loss and weight control.
3. Enlist others in the "War on Obesity". Talk to your family, friends, and neighbors about this important national problem and join the thousands of Americans who will observe National Weight Loss Month during April.
4. Call for a national health policy on obesity. Write or call your Congressman today to join the "War on Obesity" and let's lick this national health threat.



A message in the public interest from the 1,100 Nutri/System® Weight Loss Centers throughout North America.

NCAE Plan For Schools Introduced

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A program designed to give individual schools more flexibility in setting their policies and goals would make teachers more accountable and boost their morale, supporters say.

Reps. Roy Cooper, D-Nash, and Bruce Ethridge, D-Onslow, planned today to introduce a bill that would implement the School-Based Accountability Program proposed by the 47,000-member North Carolina Association of Educators.

"Everybody has a voice but the teachers," Ethridge said at a news conference Monday. "The teachers want to take part, and we're trying to have a vehicle here of getting the teachers involved with decision making."

NCAE president Karen Garr said it was "an apple-pie kind of bill because it does what we've all said we need to be doing — putting the authority and accountability at the local school level."

Under the bill, each school would establish a council, the majority of whose members would be teachers. It would develop annual "accountability plans" with goals for the coming year, ranging from tangible accomplishments such as higher test scores to more subjective improvements such as enhancing student creativity.

The instrument for accomplishing these goals might be establishing a program such as the lead teacher, in which several teachers in a school work under the supervision of a team leader, or a local career ladder program, which would award superior teacher performance with higher salaries.

If approved by the school principal, the accountability plans would be reviewed by a district-wide council and finally by a council established within the state Department of Public Instruction.

If its plan is approved at each level, a school could apply for state grants to help finance its implementation. The bill would appropriate $6 million in 1989-90 and $12 million in 1991-92 for the grants. The state council would divide up the money.

A school could participate in the program only with permission of its principal and local school board.

The legislators described School-Based Accountability as a supplement to existing school initiatives such as the Basic Education Program, which when fully implemented will pump an extra $800 million a year into the public schools in an effort to give all pupils access to the same basic level of instruction.

Eventually, they said, School-Based Accountability could give local schools flexibility in implementing the BEP.

Couple Sues Over Mock Navy Raid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. — A former bridgetender and his wife are suing the federal government, seeking $750,000 in damages because the man contends he suffered permanent mental damage after a 1986 mock raid on the Sneads Ferry Bridge by a Navy SEAL team.

The complaint was filed in U.S. District Court in New Bern by Jacksonville lawyer Richard Mu on behalf of William H. Simmons and Shirley G. Simmons. It asks $500,000 for Simmons and $250,000 for his wife.

Simmons was the bridgetender on duty in the early morning hours April 3 when a four-man Navy Sea-Air-Land commando team participating in a training exercise at Camp Lejeune staged an unauthorized practice raid on the bridge.

The team, dressed in camouflage utilities with their faces painted to match, carried M-16 rifles, planted dummy explosives on the bridge and hung a banner reading "PLO, this bridge has been destroyed, do not cross."

Simmons did not report the incident until he ended his shift at 7:30 a.m., when he discussed it with his replacement. After it was reported, the incident was investigated by the Naval Investigative Service and the Onslow County Sheriff's Department.

In November 1986, Navy Lts. Peter Wikul and Benny Green appeared before Capt. Robert Gormly, commander of Naval Special Warfare Group-2, charged with one count each of dereliction of duty. They received non-punitive letters of caution.

Simmons' complaint states that he "suffered severe emotional trauma and fright which has resulted in a completely debilitating and permanent mental disorder," The Wilmington Morning Star reported.

The suit says Simmons has incurred expenses for medical and psychiatric care and has been unable to work.

The suit also contends that Mrs. Simmons had to help pay her husband's medical expenses and that his permanent injuries caused her to be "deprived of his services, society and consortium."

The suit alleges negligence on the part of the Navy Department for not alerting the public and Simmons that the bridge, which is outside federal property, would be a target for military maneuvers.

Charlotte School Officials Challenge Quayle Claim Busing Isn't Successful

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Visiting a school nationally recognized for excellence, which has a mandatory busing program, Vice President Dan Quayle said court-ordered busing is "not very successful."

"Mandatory busing, without flexibility, has proven to be a tool that is not very successful," he told a news conference. "Overall, it has not been successful, by and large."

"Mandatory forced school busing as a social tool, social engineering, by and large, has not been successful," Quayle said in response to a question.

Quayle said he didn't know enough about the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system to make an "intelligent" assessment on whether busing was working in North Carolina's largest city.

The vice president also could not provide examples of school districts across the country where he felt mandatory busing had failed.

"There are no specific cases on the tip of my tongue," he said.

Quayle's assertion was challenged by school officials and several Charlotte parents whose children have been bused.

Ashley Hogewood Jr., chairman of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school board, said he thought Quayle "fell into the trap of using the hackneyed phrase that it's a social experiment.

"Well, it's not an experiment in Charlotte-Mecklenburg," Hogewood said. "It's a way of life."

Hogewood said Quayle's comment on busing was "unfortunate" because he made it "when he was standing in front of one of our premier schools.

"You have a school that sits right in the middle of Charlotte with housing projects around it, and it is directly fed by a large suburban neighborhood," he said. "I defy anybody to tell me that that's not a good school, and I am supported in that. The black and white community has supported it."

Hogewood also said Quayle's comment ignored the fact that three-quarters of the busing programs in Charlotte are not related to integration. He said the city's and the county's growth have made busing necessary.

"It's not to say it doesn't have flaws and problems, but we're experiencing a lot of growth in the suburbs and that puts pressure on you to continue that integrated system," Hogewood said.

The vice president spent nearly two hours at the school, one of four in North Carolina to be cited in the Education Department's Outstanding School Recognition Program last year. The school is for grades four through six.

About two-thirds of the school's 700 students are bused in from predominantly white neighborhoods in southeast Charlotte as part of the area's court-ordered school desegregation program, according to PTA President Lynne Peters.

Later Monday, Quayle attended a Republican fundraiser and spoke at the fifth annual banquet of Concerned Charlotteans, a conservative citizens group which has taken strong stands against abortion, homosexual activity, pornography and AIDS education.

"You and I share an ideology and a philosophy," the vice president told about 1,300 people who paid $20 each to hear him speak at the Charlotte Convention Center. "We are pro-family, pro-defense, and pro-American."

During a short speech, Quayle brought up several issues, including President Bush's pledge to not raise taxes. He also plugged the Star Wars program, and Bush's child-care proposals in the Congress.

Gov. Jim Martin and U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms were expected to attend the banquet, but neither came. Martin remained in Raleigh suffering from the flu, and it was not clear why Helms was not at the banquet.

Outside the convention center, a handful of protesters carried signs saying "The bigots are having a Quayle for dinner," and "You don't speak for all Christians."

During his visit to the school, Quayle said he picked the First Ward Elementary School because of its strong academic record.

"The education you get today will determine what you will be tomorrow," he told an assembly before sitting in on a sixth-grade science class. "The future is yours. I look around and I see a lot of smiling faces. I know you're happy because you know the importance of education."

Part of Quayle's visit called for him to sit in on Tina Wilson's sixth-grade science class, where he helped count down a balloon rocket experiment and asked the students about their favorite subjects.

"My three children have found science to be one of their favorite classes," he told the 28 students as reporters and photographers watched.

In his 10-minute address to the student body, Quayle also had praise for the teachers and parents.

"I came here to pay my respect for what this school has achieved," Quayle said. "The First Ward Elementary School is an example of how education should be produced."

Senate OKs Sticker Bill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Warnings that the Constitution was being trampled were drowned out by indignant demands to protect the young and innocent as the Senate voted to to banish profane bumper stickers from cars on North Carolina roads.

The bill, approved 44-5 Monday night, now goes to the House, where its fate is uncertain. A similar measure was scheduled for a House judiciary subcommittee vote today, and the chairman warned last week that prospects for passing the bill were not good because of constitutional concerns.

But during Senate debate, supporters said the Legislature should carry out the will of the people and leave it to the courts to decide whether the law violates the constitutional guarantee of free expression.

Voting against the bill were Sens. Frank Ballance, D-Warren; Jim Ezzell, D-Nash; Bill Martin, D-Guilford; Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus; and Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe. All others voted for the bill except Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, who was absent.

If enacted, the Senate bill would prohibit affixing to a motor vehicle any sticker, decal or other visual device containing "indecent" words that describe sexual acts, excretory functions or parts of the human body or that contain visual depictions "harmful to minors."

The measure was amended to have it apply only to stickers readily visible to minors, exempting stickers in inconspicuous places such as a car's interior. Critics said the amendment wasn't enough.

Waste Site Committee Finds The Unexpected

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Everything from staged funerals to organized protests have greeted the staff and members of the N.C. Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority in its effort to hold 26 community meetings across the state to answer questions about a proposed waste-disposal site.

"We've had individuals literally standing in the door, trying to prevent people from going in," said Chrystal Stowe, a spokeswoman for the authority.

But few critics stop at the entrance.

"We've tried to conduct meetings while people were chanting and singing, shouting at us, hurling obscenities at us," Ms. Stowe told the authority Monday.

"There have been coffins set up in the lobbies and crosses in the yard to greet us," she said. "I'm not going to stand up here and say that it's been easy; but I don't think that anyone thought it would be."

Today's stop for the troubled caravan is Mount Airy, where a screening of the state's search for a permanent disposal site for up to 32 million cubic feet of low-level radioactive waste will mark the 2lst showing since late February.

As opposition has flared, the staff recently has been sending out notices to selected officials, informally assuring them that their counties aren't seriously being considered among the 5,054 square miles being studied for a potential waste site.

Officials in Rowan County got such a call two weeks ago, and another was placed to Wilkes County, the site of a meeting next week.

The timetable calls for at least two potential sites to be named by Oct. 1 and to be tested for a year. A final site would be designated by Nov. 15, 1990, and the plant would open Jan. 1, 1993.

Opposing groups have quickened their pace, said Tenney Deane Jr., executive director of the authority.

"We are now picking up the groups that are traveling out to the forums and go from meeting to meeting, showing an outward aggression toward anything we have to say," Deane said.

In Wadesboro, for example, about 1,000 people turned out for a meeting last month featuring catcalls, hecklers and allegations of a plan to turn Anson County into a regional landfill for low-level nuclear waste.

In Polk County, an overflow crowd at a meeting last week left up to 300 people standing outside the chambers, while opponents directed the agenda inside.

Raymond L. Murray, the chairman of the authority, said the large crowds were triggered by needless alarm.

Escape Try Fails

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — A helicopter pilot's inexperience and poor choice of aircraft may have been the difference between a daredevil prison escape of a drug kingpin and the tangled wreckage lying inside the compound.

Moments after former powerboat champion Benjamin "Barry" Kramer leaped onto the small helicopter that swooped into the exercise yard Monday morning, the crgft's rear rotor became tangled in the 12-foot fence surrounding the Metropolitan Correctional Center.

"Had he not hit the fence, he would have escaped," said Warden John Clark.

The crash left Kramer with a broken right leg; pilot Charles Clayton Stevens, 34, of Gold Beach, Ore., suffered two broken legs and facial injuries.

They were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where they were listed in guarded but stable condition today.

Calvin R. Coady, a flight instructor for Aris Helicopters Ltd. of San Jose, Calif., said Stevens paid him $35,000 in cash for the 37-year-old helicopter Dec. 17.

Most of the 1,000 prison's inmates are awaiting federal trial. The 36-year-old Kramer was being held in a special high-security arma because he was considered an escape risk.

Child Loses Four Fingers To Bomb Hidden In Store

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — A pipe bomb exploded among packages of garbage bags in a department store, injuring a 5-year-old girl who lost four fingers and was in danger of losing her sight in one eye.

None of the 50 other people in the K mart store when the bomb went off Monday night was seriously injured, officials said.

"The store looks like everybody dropped whatever they were looking at," said Scott Minigr, a spokesman for the Marion County sheriff's department. "There's blood on the tile. The trash bag area is a mess. There is a blood and merchandise scattered all over."

Minier said the bomb had a pressure-sensitive release.

"It sounded like a pop," said a clerk, Judy Kiefer. "The first thing I heard was a child screaming. A lot of people were saying, 'Get out of here.'"

The store received no warning before the explosion, and no motive for the bombing was known, said sheriff Joseph G. McAtee.

The bomb went off apparently as Erin Bower of Indianapolis grabbed a package of trash bags, authorities said.

She was in surgery today.

"She still has her thumb and about half of the palm of her hand," said Barbara McGraw, a spokeswoman for Methodist Hospital. "She has a significant injury to her left eye. We haven't been able to determine whether we will be able to preserve her sight."

The girl's mother, Maurine Bower, 31, suffered a minor shrapnel injury to one of her legs and fainted. She was treated at the hospital.

The explosion occurred about an hour before the northeast Indianapolis store was to close.

Louis M. Profeta, a medical student at Indiana University, was shopping when the bomb exploded.

"I saw the little girl, her clothes were on fire and the mother was screaming. Both father and mother were covered in blood," Profeta said. "We rendered first aid and got the father and mother away, then got her stabilized."

The father, Kevin Bower, 31, was holding his youngest daughter, Megan, 1, at the time of the explosion.

The severed portion of Erin's hand was recovered at the scene about an hour after the explosion, packed in ice and taken to the hospital, but officials said it could not be reattached.

Authorities brought in dogs to sniff out more explosives. None was found.

Other K mart stores in the Indianapolis area planned to take precautions as a result of the bombing, Minier said.

Agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms are aiding the investigation.

Speedy Justice Goes To The Jail

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — With prisoners sleeping on floors and a federal judge threatening to release inmates to reduce overcrowding, municipal judges were ordered Monday to open a special court inside New York City's biggest jail to speed sentencing so inmates can be shifted to state prisons.

In addition, Sol Wachtler, chief judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, reassigned half the city's civil court judges to criminal trials and asked other justices to defer vacations.

Soaring drug arrests coupled with increases in other crimes are straining New York's criminal justice system. Jail barges have been pressed into service, a homeless shelter has been converted into a prison and plans have been put forth to remodel the New York Coliseum, a former exhibition hall in Mid-Manhattan, into a temporary jail.

The jails are now at 103 percent of capacity. Recently, the city advertised in newspapers for other buildings that quickly could be changed to detention facilities.

In the first three months of this year 4,598 people were arrested on felony narcotics charges in Manhattan alone — a 64 percent increase over last year.

Earlier this month, the Legal Aid Society, citing serious jail-overcrowding, filed a contempt motion against the city.

U.S. Arrests Cult Suspect

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BROWNSVILLE, Texas — U.S. authorities have arrested one man and issued warrants for two others in the growing international investigation of a cult of drug smugglers suspected of slaughtering 15 people.

Mexican officials, meanwhile, suspect a woman believed to be the cult's "witch" may have been killed because she knew too much about the drug operation, a newspaper reported today.

Serafin Hernandez Rivera of Brownsville was arrested Monday in Houston on charges of marijuana importation, possession and conspiracy. He belongs to a family suspected of involvement in drug trafficking for at least 12 years, said Oran Neck, chief U.S. Customs agent in Brownsville.

Neck said warrants also were issued for Martin Quintana and Malio Fabio, two Mexican citizens believed to have participated in the sacrificial slaying and mutilation of University of Texas student Mark Kilroy, who disappeared while vacationing along the border during spring break.

The two were among six suspects who remained at large and were considered dangerous, Neck said.

Hernandez is the fifth suspect to be arrested. His father, Brigido Hernandez, owns the northern Mexico ranch where human sacrifice Was practiced by the cult in the belief it would bring magical protection to the group's illicit business.

Texas Air Says Eastern No Longer Up For Sale

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — In an unexpected development, Texas Air Corp. declared Monday that it is no longer interested in selling strikebound Eastern Airlines.

The announcement came amid rumors of a new bidder for Eastern and hours after a court hearing during which Eastern's lawyers agreed to provide confidential information about the company's financial health to prospective purchasers.

At the hearing, federal bankruptcy judge Burton R. Lifland put off for a week a motion by a disgruntled Eastern customer calling for Eastern to be put on the auction block. But he urged all the parties to quickly find a way to get the carrier's planes back in the air.

"This airline is hemorrhaging," said Lifland. "Most bankruptcy cases go through an early triage stage. In this case the patient has been in the emergency room too long," he said, continuing his medical analogy. "Our purpose is to get the debtor stabilized enough to get the debtor from the emergency room to intensive care."

The court hearing was the first public event in several days in the tortuous process to rescue Eastern, which was struck by its machinists on March 4 and filed for protection from its creditors five days later.

Throughout the day, rumors spread that a new, fourth bidder for the ailing company, joining former baseball commissioner Peter V. Ueberroth, TWA chairman Carl C. Icahn and Chicago hotel magnate Jay A. Pritzker, all of whom have recently expressed interest in buying Eastern.

One well-placed union source said that the fourth bidder was someone who "emerged from left field." The source said that the individual, whom he refused to identify, was a wealthy East Coast businessman who had no previous experience in the airline industry.

"It sounds like someone who got a civic urge" to save a sick company, the source said, but added: "When such a person discovers what kind of dollars are really involved they often lose that urge."

Monday's hearing was prompted by the filing of a motion earlier this month by Moreton Rolleston Jr., a 71-year-old Atlanta attorney who is the father of a striking Eastern pilot married to a striking Eastern flight attendant.

The motion asked Lifland to consider putting Eastern on the auction block because its continued idleness is harming the public, especially the people of Atlanta, one of the carrier's major hubs.

However, Joel Zweibel, chief attorney for Eastern's 15-member creditors' committee, which includes representatives from aircraft manufacturers, food and unions among others, urged the judge to delay hearing the motion for a week.

Court Gets Heavy Mail On Abortion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Americans in record numbers are writing and telephoning the Supreme Court to express their views on abortion, but a court spokeswoman says it's all to no avail.

"I hope they understand this is not a popularity contest. We are not keeping score of who favors abortion and who does not," Toni House said in commenting on the more than 40,000 letters and hundreds of telephone calls reaching the court each day.

Ms. House, the court's public information officer, said, "While people have a right to write to the court I hope they do not expect that the enunciation of their opinion will have any effect on the justices."

The court is to hear arguments April 26 in a key abortion-rights case from Missouri in which the justices are being asked to overturn or substantially limit the landmark 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

Ms. House said the volume of mail and calls increased dramatically when the justices last January agreed to study the Missouri case, and that switchboard operators and mailroom employees have been "laboring against the rising tide" since the massive "pro-choice" march on Washington earlier this month.

In normal times, the court receives about 1,000 pieces of mail daily. The court's mail room was inundated with an estimated 46,000 letters Monday.

Some send more than letters. The court has received a number of coat hangers, a grisly symbol of illegal abortions, and numerous photographs of aborted fetuses.

Congress Explores Possible Exploitation By Oil Firms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Gasoline prices around the country rose suddenly after the Exxon Valdez spilled 10 million gallons of oil in Alaska, but Exxon and a government energy official told a Senate hearing the accident wasn't the reason.

That wasn't enough to convince Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who criticized other oil companies for passing up an invitation to appear Monday before his Energy subcommittee on energy regulation and conservation.

"You have an amazing burden of proof to convince the American people that the oil companies didn't exploit the Valdez accident," Metzenbaum said. "I also invited Arco, Mobil, Chevron, BP, Texaco, Shell and Amoco, and I regret their failure to appear."

In the three weeks following the spill, gasoline prices jumped 10 to 30 cents a gallon across the country.

Tracy Stanton, a Shell service station owner in Columbus, Ohio, said in his 20 years of business he has never seen such a rapid increase in gasoline prices in such a short period of time, including during the Arab oil embargo of the 1970s.

J.T. McMillan, senior vice president of Exxon, told the Senate subcommittee: "The idea that Exxon raised prices to profit from that spill is completely unfounded. The marketplace will not permit any unusual costs incurred by a particular supplier, like the costs necessary to clean up the oil spill in Alaska, to be recovered in the marketplace."

Although the Alaskan oil spill temporarily affected the price of crude oil to the West Coast, the price of gasoline has been increasing for several months overall because the cost of crude oil has been rising, he said.

W. Henson Moore, deputy secretary of the Department of Energy, agreed with McMillan that prices had been rising before the accident.

Moore said that the spill and the oil lost because of the five-day shutdown of shipping from Prince William Sound amounted to about 13 million barrels, but he said the loss "had no lasting or permanent effect on gasoline prices."

The oncoming summer driving season, increased regulations, higher cost imports and added excise taxes were other contributors to higher prices, McMillan said.

Metzenbaum and others on the panel pressed the energy deputy secretary for a deeper explanation of increasing prices, but he said complete data were unavailable and the department was still analyzing the situation.

Stanton, the service station operator from Ohio, blamed "oil company greed" and the control the major oil companies have gained at the refinery level and by increasing their number of company-operated service stations. Stanton is the former president of the Service Station Dealers of America.

The senator criticized Exxon's plan to deduct the costs of cleaning up the spill from the taxes they pay the federal government.

"For every dollar they (Exxon) spend, the taxpayer will pick up 34 cents," said Metzenbaum. "Why shouldn't Exxon foot the bill?"

Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., has introduced a bill that would prevent the deductions, which Exxon said were a legitimate business loss allowed in the tax code as a deduction.

'This Law Made Me Do It'

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — Ramon Salcido left a note in his abandoned car blaming the "law" for a murderous rampage that left seven people dead and asking God to forgive him, authorities said Monday.

"Forgive me, God, but this law made me do it. We could live better, me and my children, but what can I do," the note says, according to law enforcement officials.

The note, written in Spanish, suggests that a demand, made under welfare laws, that Salcido pay $5,807 in back child-support payments, plus $511 a month for support of a child by a previous marriage, led him to kill his second wife, Angela, two of their three daughters, his mother-in-law, two sisters-in-law, and his supervisor at the winery where he worked.

The note and a handgun were found in Salcido's blood-splattered car in San Rafael, 25 miles south of Santa Rosa. The car was discovered about 6 p.m. Friday, the day of the killings.

Sonoma County Sheriff Richard Michaelsen said he was at a loss to explain the note. But deputies served Salcido, 28, with papers last week demanding that he support Maria Crystal, 4, who authorities say was his child by Debra Whitten Salcido, 27, of Fresno. Ramon Salcido's second wife, who apparently had not known of his past until the papers were served, told a neighbor that she was considering an annulment as a result.

Authorities in Fresno, where Debra lives, initiated the demand because Debra was seeking to draw welfare payments on behalf of her daughter. By law, authorities must attempt to obtain support from parents who receive public assistance for their child

The FBI, which joined an intensified hunt for Salcido on Monday, released the note as part of an affidavit to persuade a federal magistrate in San Francisco to issue a warrant for Salcido's arrest on charges of flight to avoid arrest. The arrest warrant was issued.

But the fourth day of the hunt for the burly suspect ended with Sonoma County law enforcement authorities acknowledging that they don't know where he is or might be going.

Coast Guard Approves Exxon's Cleanup Plan Despite Skeptics

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VALDEZ, Alaska — Imagine a road from Los Angeles to Phoenix, Ariz., 30 feet wide and coated with 4,200 gallons of oily black slime per mile. Now slop the goop onto remote beaches and coves along Prince William Sound.

The Exxon Valdez tanker wreck has left about that much oil on the sound's once pristine shoreline — Exxon figures it at 366 miles. And the giant corporation won federal approval Monday for a plan to clean up most of it.

But the ambitious strategy to clean up 305 miles faces sharp skepticism and new demands that it be broadened to include other polluted areas. Some officials just smiled sadly when asked its chance of success.

The plan calls for a mobilization by early June of 4,000 people and scores of vessels. By Sept. 15, they're supposed to erase the tarry remains of the nation's worst oil spill from the rocky beaches of one of the world's richest regions for fish and wildlife.

Adm. Paul Yost, the head of the Coast Guard, approved the proposal Monday. But he wondered if Exxon could meet its goals in the face of the sound's notorious weather and the limited time available.

"I'm concerned whether the level of activity can be kept up through the summer to complete cleanup," said Yost, who demanded the plan last week.

Dennis Kelso, commissioner of the Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation, described it as barely adequate.

"It needs more work," he said, adding it would be next week before he would comment on whether he believed it would work.

Yost, overseeing the cleanup at President Bush's direction, listened to the concerns of Kelso and other state officials. He then gave Exxon until May 1 to come up with plans to deal with oil contamination outside the sound and disposal of oily waste.

Consumer Prices Up In March

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices jumped 0.5 percent in March, propelled by higher costs for food, energy and apparel, and helped produce the largest quarterly increase in two years, the government reported today.

Last month's climb in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index followed advances of 0.6 percent in January and 0.4 percent in February.

Overall, consumer prices in the past three months rose at a compound annual rate of 6.1 percent.

It was the largest quarterly increase since the first three months of 1987, when prices rose 6.3 percent on an annual basis, and was significantly higher than the annual consumer price rises of 4.4 percent registered for each of the past two years.

Price increases have been even steeper at the wholesale level, where inflation ran at a compound annual rate of 10.2 percent in the January-March period, the largest quarterly increase in eight years.

Daniel T. Van Dyke, senior economist at Bank of America in San Francisco, said in advance of today's report that while price rises have moderated some since the start of the year, "we still have a problem" with the pace of inflation.

"We're in a period where the inflation rate seems to be hanging around 5 to 5.5 percent," Van Dyke said. "That is too high for any long-run kind of equilibrium and I don't think that's what the Federal Reserve has in mind either."

Food costs last month rose twice as much as they did during the previous month, up 0.8 percent in March after advancing 0.4 percent in February.

Energy costs, meanwhile, registered their sharpest increase since August 1987 last month, advancing 1.1 percent after rising 0.6 percent in February.

The boost in petroleum-based energy prices, up at a 22.4 percent annual rate so far this year, accounted for more than two-fifths of the price acceleration during the first quarter, the Labor Department said.

Rising food prices were responsible for nearly one-quarter of the price increases during the quarter, it said.

U.S. Pilot Dies In Fighter Crash

BENWICK, England (AP) — A U.S. attack jet on a training flight crashed near this village in eastern England, killing the pilot and scattering ammunition over a stretch of farmland, officials said today.

Authorities cordoned off the site after army officials warned of the danger from the ammunition from the A-10 Thunderbolt II that went down Monday about 20 miles north of the university town of Cambridge.

The crash killed Capt. Donald R. Roberts, 29, of Rochester, N.Y., said a spokesman for the 3rd U.S. Air Force in Britain. The second member of the two-man crew ejected before the crash and parachuted to safety.

The plane was on a routine training mission from the nearby Bentwaters air base, said the spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The spokesman said the plane carried practice ammunition that had a propellant charge, not an explosive charge. But he cautioned against anyone handling the shells.

Parents Should Talk Openly With Teens About Sex

Your Mental Health

Sexual relationships are a fact of life for many teen-agers. So, unfortunately, are pregnancy and parenthood for many unprepared teens. Some teens may choose to be parents, but others become parents because of ignorance about reproduction and birth control and a feeling that "it can't happen to me."

Questions about sex and birth control or contraception are hard to ask. Teens frequently turn to their friends for advice or try to find answers in books. Information given by friends may be incorrect or incomplete.

Parents have the unique opportunity to assure that their teen-age sons and daughters receive complete, accurate information if they are willing to talk openly with them.

This is easier said than done, to be sure, since both sides may find it an uncomfortabe subject at the outset. Some of this may reflect how parents were taught about sex (or not!) and, among other factors, this influences the attitudes they bring to this sort of discussion. But parents need to remember that if they fail in this responsibility, they force their kids to seek "experts" on their own.

In this respect "the best defense is a good offense." That is, start a child's sex education when the child is young and first asking questions. Teach at a level which is appropriate to the childs age. Give direct simple answers to questions, making them no more complicated than is necessary. Use vocabulary, and don't scold your child if he/she asks questions using vulgar terms picked up from other kids.

What about talking with a teen-age son or daughter? If you've already started off answering your young child's questions in a matter-of-fact manner, your job is easier, although the questions may be harder. The foundation should be in place, such that the teen-ager will most likely feel confident in approaching you for advice about more serious questions involving relationships and sexuality.

If on the other hand, the subject leaves you and your child extremely uneasy and awkward, or if you are simply unable to communicate or to get your teen-ager to open up, you may complete you teen's education by steering him or her to the approprite profesional-doctor, counselor or teacher.

If your own education was lacking and you want to be able to provide accurate information to you teen-ager, check at you library, with your physician, or with a family planning clinic for books that might help.

The more usual case is when the previously "taboo" subject finally "comes up" during adolscence. It will be important then to find out what ideas he or she may already have formed, and what information (or misinformation) your teen has in the areas of sexuality, relationships and contraception.

Then, answer whatever you can in a straightforward way, leaving aside an emotional, critical approach that puts distance between you and your child and discourages him or her from bringing up the subject again.

What should I teach my teen-ager? In a word, whatever they need to know — from basic facts about reproduction and its prevention, to parenting joys and responsibilities, to sharing responsibility with a partner for decisions about sex and contraception. Does this imply that teaching abstinence (not engaging in relations at all) is useless? No, for it needs to be presented as a choice for the teen-ager that is as valid as using any form of birth control.

It's always a teen-ager's choice to say, "No," even if he or she has said yes in the past. It may be the only choice for someone who is unprepared for pregnancy and unprepared to avoid it.

Parents' teaching a teen-ager about birth control or helping him or her to find correct information does not imply that the parents are condoning sexual relationships. It does let the teen-ager know that you recognize the pressures he or she is under from society (TV, movies, advertising), from peers and from normal physiologic and emotional development.

It acknowledges that his concerns are important to you and are to be taken seriously. It says that a teen-ager can make decisions responsibly and contributes to her self-worth.

By listening carefully to your child or adolescent, you will discover opportunities to initiate or continue his sex education. In this way, you help your child gain a well-balanced, healthy and responsible attitude concerning his sexuality that will carry over into adult life, relationships and parenting.

If you find that it is so awkward talking to your teen-ager about sex and birth control, or that your relationship is too strained for open dialogue, seek the help of professionals — such as a teacher, a counselor a physisian or another — to help you get the appropriate information to your teen-ager.

Listen carefully to your children and adolescents so that you don't miss opportunities to help them gain well-balanced, healthy and responsible attitudes toward themselves and others that will carry over into adult life, relationships and parenting.

Her Vindication Took 35 Years

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: The letter about the boy who falsely accused a girl of stealing, found out he was wrong, then sent flowers to her in a classroom brought back memories. Flowers are nice, but had I been that girl I would have preferred receiving his apology publicly in a crowded lunchroom — the same place he accused her of stealing.

I was in a new job and was in charge of all current filing cabinets. About 15 co-workers and I had our desks in an open area without walls — not even glass partitions. The No. 1 boss asked me to bring him a certain file. I couldn't find it. He had a visitor with him who wanted to see that file. I looked for that file and couldn't find it. I knew I had it in my filing cabinet, but it was gone!

The boss loudly ridiculed me for my inefficiency — in the presence of my co-workers. I wanted to die. About an hour later he called me into his office. I expected to be fired.

Instead I got a quiet and very formal apology in the presence of nobody! He told me that the purchasing agent had taken the file from the cabinet during my lunch hour and neglected to tell me. The purchasing agent had heard him chewing me out, but didn't say a word until the visitor had left. Then he told the boss. He never did apologize to me for taking that file without telling me — or failing to speak up while my boss was humiliating me. My respect for both men was destroyed that summer day in 1954.

If you choose to publish this, please do use my name. — Mrs. Frances Crum, Searcy, Ark.

Dear Frances: Thirty-five years is a long time to wait for public vindication. I hope a few witnesses to that incident read this. Have a nice day, Frances.

Dear Abby: Help! I will be getting married in July. Presently, my fiance and I each have our own homes, so we do not need any of the usual wedding presents — small appliances, silverware, crystal, glassware, pots, pans, dishes, etc. However, we could use cash gifts that could be combined to purchase larger and costlier items. A large number of guests are expected from out of town, and we will not be able to return gifts to the stores.

How can I tactfully state this to our invited guests? Please print this as soon as possible so that I may have your response before ordering wedding invitations. My fiance and I agree to abide by your recommendation. — No Name, Please

Dear No Name: If you are asked if you prefer cash for a wedding gift, by all means, say yes. But under no circumstances should you request cash. I presume those who are invited to your wedding are aware that both you and the groom have your own homes and are not in need of household items, so it would seem plausible that a gift of cash would be offered.

However, if you were considering including a suggestion of "cash" with your wedding invitations, please don't. It's tacky.

Dear Abby: I want to thank you for telling your readers about the book "Flying Without Wings," by Dr. Arnold Beisser (Doubleday). Excellent! My husband has severe emphysema and is on oxygen full time. We got the book, I read it aloud, and we enjoyed and discussed it.

It gave me a totally new respect and feeling for my husband's condition. He could identify with the author, who was severely disabled because of polio.

Again, you have helped many. — Mrs. Gerald O. Trudell, Mesa, Ariz.

It Comes With The Territory, Mom

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

Valerie is a mother from Weedsport, N.Y., who writes, "After cooking more than 30,000 good, well-balanced meals for the family, why is it that the children only remember the ones that were failures?

"My mostly grown children will sit down at a meal together, and one will say, 'Remember the time that Mama made that casserole of bean sprouts, and then we had fruitcake left over from Christmas for dessert and two of us threw up?'"

I hate to tell you, Valerie, but at every birthday observed in our house for the last 30 years, the story is regurgitated about how I broiled a three-layer birthday cake. It was so thin you could read a paper through it. The legend is recounted with all the drama and enthusiasm of the Nativity.

Mothers who put out three meals a day for a family have to have the detachment of a ticket taker at the World Series. There was a time when I took such pride in cooking. That was before I realized that one child hated anything that had to be chewed, another hated the color green, and the third ate only three of the six basic food groups: fast, faster and fastest. (He would eat meals served only in the backseat of the car.)

You'd have thought they were food critics. "Do you know what that white stuff reminds me of?" "What have you hidden under all that cheese?" "Is this the way it's supposed to look?"

I knew that no matter what I labored over, the only things they would remember were the Thanksgiving when my gravy was served as a beverage and the time I took a Jell-O mold to the class picnic. "Selective memory" is a condition that not only encompasses your shortcomings in the kitchen, it also extends to nearly every aspect of family living.

Every school day for 12 years, I personally awoke my son, put his feet on the floor and pointed him toward the bathroom and the start of a new day. But the only day he recalls was a Friday one February when I just yelled at him to "roll out" and went to the kitchen.

As he tells the story, "First off, she made me miss my bus and I had to walk and I was late, and she didn't give me a note so I spent the first period in the principal's office, and I missed the announcement about the SAT test. Was she happy? Oh no, she forgot to run after me with my lunch, so I didn't have any. I also didn't have my homework done because she failed to get me up early enough to do it. I had no gym clothes because it was her stupid idea to wash them. If it hadn't been for Jennifer, I'd never have known about the SATs and I wouldn't have gotten into college or had a chance of a decent job or getting married and having a family. Good old Mom almost ruined my life, and all because she wanted to teach me a lesson."

It comes with the territory, Valerie.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose in heavy trading today, after two government reports that suggested inflationary pressures eased slightly in March.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had advanced 28.78 points to 2,366.57 at noon EDT. The blue-chip indicator was up 29.33 points an hour earlier.

Advancing issues outpaced decliners by about 5 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 938 issues up, 365 down and 529 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 104.96 million shares.

The Labor Department reported today that consumer prices, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, jumped 0.5 percent in March, fueled by higher costs for food and energy. That followed rises of 0.6 percent in January and 0.4 percent in February and put the annual inflation rate at 6.1 percent, higher than the 4.4 percent increase in 1988.

A second report by the Commerce Department said housing starts fell 5.4 percent and building permits plunged by 13.7 percent last month.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up 1.50 to 170.55.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index advanced 1.62 to 337.84.

Among actively traded issues on the NYSE, Northwest Airlines was up 6½ to 96¾ after its parent company announced Monday that it might sell the nation's fourth-largest airline, amid takeover threats.

AT&T was up 5/8 to 32 7/8, American Express gained 3/8 to 33 3/8 and Citicorp advanced 3/4 to 29 7/8.

Abbott Laboratories was down 1/4 to 54 7/8, RJR Nabisco was off 3/8 at 85¼ and Ramada had lost 5/8 to 11½.

Evans

RALEIGH — Lemual Maurice Evans, 55, died Friday morning at the Veterans Hospital in Durham.

A graveside service will be held Wednesday at noon at the National Cemetery in Raleigh by Chaplain, Captain Steward A. Smith of the Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro.

Mr. Evans, a native of Pitt County, had made his home in Goldsboro for the past 25 years and was retired from the United States Air Force.

He is survived by his wife, Shannon F. Evans of Kure Beach; one son, Edward Earle Evans of Myrtle Beach, S.C.; one daughter, Melody E. Sellers of Carolina Beach; his mother, Mary L. Evans of Greenville; a brother, Ervin L. Evans of Greenville, and two grandsons.

Francis

CONWAY — Mr. George Francis of Route 2, Conway, died Sunday at his home.

His funeral was to be conducted today at 3 p.m. in Conway Baptist Church by the Rev. James Hester. Burial was to be in Conway Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Nannie B. Francis of the home; two sons, G.R. Francis of Severn and W.R. (Ron) Francis of Atlantic Beach; a daughter, Kathy Sherman of Greenville; a brother, W.C. Francis of Windsor, Va.; two sisters, Verdie F. Chitty of Ahoskie and Vida F. Harris of Lincolnton, and one granddaughter.

Arrangements are being handled by Bridgers Funeral Home in Conway.

Guilette

FAYETTEVILLE — Mr. Ronald Joseph Guilette, 56, of Greenville, died Sunday.

His funeral was to be conducted today at 2 p.m. at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Fayetteville by the Rev. Kevin Fahey. Burial was to be in Cumberland Memorial Gardens in Fayetteville.

Mr. Guilette was a production manager with Hamilton Beach.

Surviving are his wife, Mattie Stephens Guilette; two daughters, Joan Carlucci of Raleigh and Barbara Hemingway of Hope Mills; a son, Tom Guilette of Hope Mills; a half-brother, Rodney Guilette of Yonkers, N.Y., and four grandchildren.

Memorials may be made to the American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 35752, Fayetteville, NC, 28303.

Jones

Henry Robert Jones Sr., of 100 Vance St., died Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Arrangements will be announced by Phillips Brothers Mortuary in Greenville.

Letchworth

A funeral for Mrs. Nancy Elizabeth "Lizzie" Edmondson Letchworth will be conducted 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. W.L. Butler. Burial will be in the Hamilton Cemetery in Hamilton.

Mrs. Letchworth, a native of Pitt County, spent most of her life in Martin County in the Hamilton community. For the past ten years, she had lived in Farmville. She was a member of the Church of Christ in Hamilton.

Surviving are one son, Leroy Letchworth of Tarboro; two daughters, Helen L. Davenport and Bonnie L. Taylor, both of Tarboro; one brother, Earl Edmundson of Farmville; five sisters, Dora Ellis of Tarboro, Pearl Grimesley and Mattie Wainwright, both of Farmville, Rena Bell Baker of Black Jack and Ethel Fields of Jacksonville; one step-brother, Roland Tyson of Greenville; six grandchildren, and two great-granddaughters.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and at other times at the home of Bonnie Taylor, Highway 258 South in Tarboro.

Lloyd

OLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — A man was found shot to death in a wooded area near Olivia in the western part of Harnett County on Sunday night, authorities say.

The body of Michael Eugene Walters, 26, of Olivia was found with a gunshot wound in the upper left chest, said Bill Strickland, Harnett County Sheriff's Department chief of detectives.

Cable

Unlike traditional copper cables, fiber-optic cables carry information in pulses of laser light. The single new cable will be able to carry 40,000 phone calls at a time across the Pacific, compared with less than 1,000 for the two existing copper cables combined.

AT&T owns 35 percent of the cable. Kokusai Denshin Denwa, Japan's international phone company, owns 23 percent. There are 30 partners in all, including MCI Communications Corp. and US Sprint Communications Co., as well as phone companies in Australia, Brunei, Canada, France, West Germany, Hong Kong, South Korea, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Spain, Taiwan, and Britain.

Laying fiber across deep oceans required special considerations. Surfers had to be moved aside at Hawaii's Makaha Beach to make room for a dinghy that brought the cable ashore. Sharks are attracted to the cables, so they had to be sheathed in steel to a depth of about 8,500 feet. That makes those sections about the thickness of a man's fist.

The trans-Atlantic cable has suffered three partial outages in its brief life, two caused by damage from fishing trawlers on the French leg and one by an electrical short on the British leg, Wallerstein said.

The Pacific Link leaves the West Coast at Point Arena, about 100 miles north of San Francisco. After its split in the western Pacific, the southern leg goes to Guam and the northern touches land in Chikura, Japan.

Seahawks Nip Pirates, 4-3, In 10th To Take Top Seed

Error Leads To Winning Run After EC Rally Ties It

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The old cliche about the bounce of the ball helped the UNC-Wilmington Seahawks to a 4-3, 10-inning baseball victory over East Carolina Monday night, clinching top seeding in the upcoming Colonial Athletic Association tournament.

That tournament, which begins May 12, will be held on the home field of the Seahawks. The four-day event was moved there after The Diamond in Richmond, the site of the tournament for the past two years, was not available this year.

The Seahawks had led throughout the game until East Carolina tied it at 3-3 in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Then, in the 10th, the Seahawks used a Pirate misplay and the bounce of the ball to score the winning run.

With one out, Ed Stoudenmire grounded back to John Gast at third, but his throw to first was off-target to let the runner reach safely. He then moved to second when Mark Chamberlain grounded into the second out of the inning.

Trent Mongero followed with a line drive into left field which John Thomas fielded cleanly and fired to the plate.

The ball arrived in plenty of time with Stoudenmire still only about two-thirds of the way down the baseline, but it took a bad hop over the head of waiting ECU catcher Chris Cauble and Stoudenmire slid safely over the plate for the 4-3 lead.

Aside from that, the game was almost a flawless contest between the two CAA leaders. Seahawk pitcher Tony Tillman, 2-3 after the win, threw what was probably his career best, scattering seven hits, walking five and striking out 11. Loser Jake Jacobs, 5-1, gave up eight hits, walked two and struck out seven.

"This was a great victory for us," Seahawk coach Bobby Guthrie said. "It was a great college baseball game, too. East Carolina has great atmosphere here and they have a great team. We've played Auburn and Clemson, and East Carolina is the best we've played."

Both Guthrie and ECU coach Gary Overton praised the job done by both pitchers. "You have to give all the credit to Tillman," Overton said. "He got ahead of the hitters when he had to. We chased bad pitches early in the game, but then he started throwing strikes when he had to."

Guthrie said that Tillman, who missed much of the season with an injury, made some mistakes but that he overcame them.

"That's the reason I was out there so much," Guthrie said. "I wanted

Death Toll Rises In Soccer Disaster

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — The death toll in Britain's soccer stadium disaster rose to 95 today as a government-ordered inquiry was opening to determine how the fans were crushed to death.

A critically injured fan died overnight at Northern General Hospital in Sheffield, said a hospital spokesman, who spoke anonymously. The victim was not identified.

Of the 170 people injured in Saturday's disaster, 25 were still being treated in Sheffield on Tuesday, including 19 in intensive care.

The inquest on six of the victims, headed by Lord Justice Sir Peter Taylor, will "make recommendations about the needs of crowd control and safety at sports grounds," Home Secretary Douglas Hurd told Parliament Monday.

The tragedy occurred at a Football Association Cup semifinal between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest at Sheffield Wednesday, a neutral site.

Hurd's announcement of the inquiry came amid criticism of South Yorkshire police, and attacks on Liverpool fans by European soccer officials, one of whom compared them with wild animals.

Officials and fans accused police of allowing thousands of late Liverpool fans into the stadium, and then responding too slowly when their numbers crushed Reds fans already inside against a steel anti-riot fence.

British fans have a reputation for violence — rioting Liverpool fans are blamed for starting the May 1985 Heysel Stadium riot at Brussels, Belgium, where 39 fans died, most of whom were Italians.

Rival fans are segregated and fenced in at Hillsborough and many other ballparks to prevent fights in

Louisburg Standout Commits To ECU

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina has reportedly received a verbal commitment from Louisburg College standout Tim Brown, and he is expected to sign a grant-in-aid today.

Brown, 6-6 and 210 pounds, led Louisburg to a 18-14 mark while averaging a team-high 17 points and nine rebounds a game. He played both center and power forward for the Hurricanes.

Brown also visited the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga and South Alabama, but reportedly gave an oral commitment to ECU after visiting this past weekend.

Brown began playing basketball as a senior at Raleigh Enloe and has participated in organized basketball for only three years.

"Tim averaged better than nine rebounds per game for us," Louisburg coach Enid Drake said. "He's just a good rebounder. I think he's going to keep getting better — I hope so."

Brown is the second junior college player the Pirates have landed in the spring signing period, which began April 12. The last Louisburg player the Pirates signed was record-setting forward Blue Edwards, who averaged 26 ppg this past season on his way to setting a single-season scoring mark.

Brown joins Chowan's Taro Knight, a 6-3 point guard, who averaged 7.4 points and 6.1 assists per game this past year. ECU lost out on Knight's teammate, 6-3 wing Tabarris Hamilton, who signed with Jacksonville.

The Pirates signed four players during the early fall signing period in 6-5 Jon Hardin of North Greenville Junior College, 6-6 Darrell Overton of Craven Community College; 6-6 D.J. Morgan of Raleigh Athens Drive and 5-9 Paul Childress of Stanley County Albemarle.

Of these four, Hardin is on shaky ground academically and may not be qualify to enter ECU in the fall.

Ayden-Grifton standout Ronnell Peterson, a 6-1 guard, also will likely sign with ECU if he qualifies academically.

ECU coaches may sign as many as two more players. Two wing players the Pirates are presently recruiting are 6-5 Tim Shaw of Fayetteville South View and 6-4 Steve Richardson of Terre Haute (Ind.) South.

Shaw, who averaged 21 points a game as a senior, had been offered a scholarship to Wake Forest but his situation became muddled with the resignation of Demon Deacon coach Bob Staak. New Wake Forest coach Dave Odom hasn't indicated whether he is as interested in Shaw as Staak was.

Mekonnen Captures Boston Marathon

Ethiopians Dominate Run

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Abebe Mekonnen had plenty of confidence. Ingrid Kristiansen had no competition. Joan Benoit Samuelson had tears in her eyes and an uncertain future.

Mekonnen's 50-second victory in Monday's Boston Marathon continued the Ethiopians' domination of the sport and was his sixth triumph in his last seven marathons.

Samuelson, once the queen of the same roads that Kristiansen now reigns over, lost the women's race by more than 13 minutes.

Kristiansen took the lead at the start and never was threatened seriously in beating runnerup Marguerite Buist of New Zealand.

But Samuelson, who finished ninth, didn't lose the gritty determination that drove her, at one time, to become the world's top female marathoner.

"I didn't have the day I wanted to have," she said in a voice choked with emotion. "I was duly humbled and I will be back."

She just doesn't know when.

Plagued by physical problems and committed to her husband and 18-month-old daughter Abigail, the winner of the Boston Marathon in 1979 and 1983 and of the Olympic marathon in 1984 said she plans to suspend her workouts and hopes her ailments subside.

"I can't go on with my responsibilities as a mother or a wife and keep up my training, so I'll take some time off and see if this thing will clear up on its own," she said. "But it's not the end of Joan Samuelson's career."

She said her left knee, subjected to an arthroscopic procedure in February, didn't bother her. It was her right hip that gave her problems 11 miles into the race and forced her to change her stride.

"It did come back somewhat, but I was never able to run at my full stride again," Samuelson, 31, of Freeport, Maine, said. "I think a lot of people are expecting me to say this is it. They were expecting me to say that in '84 and '85. But it's not it."

She won't run another marathon before next year's competition in Boston and she may not run that either, she said. Her physical condition and feeling toward the sport will dictate her schedule.

"I'll let Mother Nature do her healing," she said. "It may take one year or it may take five years."

And by then Kristiansen, 33, may not be as strong as she is now.

The Norwegian flyer has three of the top five times by a female marathoner — Samuelson has the other two — and won her fourth consecutive marathon. Her time of 2 hours, 21 minutes, 6 seconds in London in 1985 is the best by any woman.

"If you don't call Ingrid Kristiansen the world's best runner, you're kidding yourself," Samuelson said.

Her winning time Monday in her first victory in three meetings with Samuelson was 2:24:35. She had hoped to be the first woman to break 2:20, but said the weather "was a little too hot." The race started at noon when the temperature was 62 degrees.

Abebe Mekonnen hits tape to win Boston Marathon

Ingrid Misses Record

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Ingrid Kristiansen wanted to challenge the 2-hour, 20-minute barrier in the Boston Marathon and Joan Benoit Samuelson wanted to challenge Mother Nature.

Kristiansen didn't make it, but won the race. Samuelson should have known that marathons have no mercy for anyone with health problems.

Samuelson, the 1984 Olympic marathon winner, said she will take at least a year off before her next marathon, allowing time to heal the hip and back injuries that plagued her in Monday's race, in which she finished ninth.

"I didn't really have the day I wanted to have but that doesn't take away from the winners," said Samuelson, 31, who wept as she spoke to reporters after the race. "I was duly humbled out there."

Kristiansen, who ran a good if unremarkable race, said the sunny skies and 62-degree temperatures hindered her. And she was gracious about Samuelson.

"I don't think she's been running as much as me," Kristiansen said. "And it's not as easy to be a marathon runner if you have something wrong with your body. I hope she comes back and wins again."

Samuelson holds the American marathon record of 2:21:21, set in beating Kristiansen in Chicago four years ago.

"I just kept thinking I might be able to pull it off," she said, recalling the hip and back problems that began to plague her 11 miles into the race. "The heat wasn't a factor for me. I knew I'd have a tough time with the biomechanics of my hip and back but they went very quickly. I couldn't get my stride back."

But, she said, to those who believe she will retire soon, "this is not the end of Joan Samuelson's career."

"I still have some very good races in me," she said.

Though Samuelson won the 1984 Olympic marathon just three months after arthroscopic surgery, she was unable to pull of a similar feat Monday. She had similar surgery again in February but finished behind 44-year-old Priscilla Welch of Great Britain, the Masters record holder, who won the Master's Monday and was seventh overall.

Welch, who began running at the age of 35 and won the overall New York Marathon in 1987, said she was a disappointed with her time of 2:34:60.

"My legs were gone halfway into the race," said Welch, who lives and trains in Boulder, Colo. "I was running on an empty tank after that."

Marguerite Buist, 26, of New Zealand, was one of the few top women finishers who said she enjoyed Boston's demanding course because she trains on hills.

Kristiansen, 33, who finished in 2:24:35, and Samuelson, who came in at 2:37:52, were markedly gracious to one another.

"If you don't call Ingrid Kristiansen the world's best runner, you're wrong," Samuelson said.

She also said she admired Kristiansen' ability to balance her running with motherhood. Kristiansen has a 5-year-old son. Samuelson gave birth to a daughter in the fall of 1987.

CAA Baseball Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the Colonial Athletic Association baseball tournament, May 12-15, are now on sale at the East Carolina Athletic Ticket Office.

The tournament will be played at UNC-Wilmington's Brooks Field. It had originally been scheduled for The Diamond, at Richmond, Va., but the field was unavailable this year. The Diamond has been the site of the previous two tournaments.

Tickets for the tournament are $10 each and are good for the whole tournament. Single game tickets will be $3 each and will be on sale at the gate only.

The winner of the tournament will earn the league's automatic berth into the NCAA regionals.

Richmond Takes CAA Golf Title

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — The University of Richmond put together a three-day score of 916 to take a 20-stroke victory over defending champion East Carolina in the final round of the Colonial Athletic Association golf tournament Monday.

The tournanment was played at The Homestead in Hot Springs.

Andy Brock led the Spiders in their final round with a par 70, while Rob Shawger added a 76 and John Krikorian and Dave Renzulle each added 78, giving the Richmond a final-day score of 302, the lowest round of the tournament.

East Carolina's Francis Vaughn, who finished with a 12-over-par 222, captured the individual championship, four strokes ahead of Krikorian and Brock.

The victory avenged Richmond's loss to the Pirates last year, when the Spiders had gone into the final round with a nine-shot lead, only to lose by 13 strokes.

East Carolina, with a team score of 310 Monday, finished at 936, nine shots ahead of third-place William & Mary.

Shawger was fourth with a 227, followed by Chad Bales of James Madison and Chris Fox of William & Mary, tied for fifth with a 231. Those six were named to the all-conference team.

East Carolina's Simon Moye finished in seventh place with a 234.

Final team results and leading individuals' scores Monday at the Colonial Athletic Association golf tournament, held at The Homestead's 6,566-yard, par-70 Cascades Course:

Farmville Golfers Take League Match

MINNESOTT BEACH — Lance Parker shot a 79 to lead Farmville over Ayden-Grifton and Pamlico County in an Eastern Plains Conference golf match Monday.

Farmville totaled 330, while Ayden-Grifton had 358 and Pamlico County had 433.

Other Farmville scores were Dave Baker (80), Pat Hobbs (84) and Gary Joyner (87). Ayden-Grifton was led by Will Barnes' 86, along with Chad Tulloch (87), Mickey Adams (89) and Shaler Shewning (96).

Ayden-Grifton takes on Conley and North Lenoir at Falling Creek Country Club in Kinston.

Rose Girls Romp In Track Meet

The Rampettes tallied 109 points to outdistance second-place Farmville Central's 40 points and third-place Rocky Mount's 23.

Tiffany Williams helped pace the Rampettes with three wins. Williams took honors in the long jump, triple jump and 100-meter hurdles. She was also on the winning 400 meter relay team.

Rose, now 6-0, will host Wilson Hunt Wednesday.

E.B. Aycock Tops Wellcome, 12-2

E.B. Aycock Junior High School defeated Wellcome Middle School in baseball action Monday, 12-2.

Jermain Reed tossed a one-hitter at Wellcome for the Jaguars to get the win. Aycock was led at the plate by Bryant Hill, Richie Grimsley, Al DeBiase, Reed, Barry Simo and John Foley each had two hits for the Jaguars. Reed had a home run in the third inning with one on board.

Wellcome's lone hit was made by Wainwright.

Aycock is now 1-1 and travels to Farmville on Thursday.

Pitt Paladins Take Two Softball Wins

WINTERVILLE — Pitt Community College's softball team swept a doubleheader Monday from Carteret Community College.

PCC won the opener 10-1 before rolling to a 34-0 rout in the second game.

The nightcap was stopped after three innings due to a one hour time limit.

The wins boosted the Lady Paladins to 8-8 on the year and to 2-0 in the Eastern Carolina Community College Athletic Conference. PCC will be back in action Thursday on the road against Coastal Carolina.

Overton Wins Slalom Event

ORLANDO, Fla. — Kristi Overton, a freshman at the University of Central Florida, won the slalom event in the season opener of the Professional Water Ski Tour this past weekend.

Overton made thetop six ouf ot 16 qualifiers on Friday and advanced to the finals on Sunday. She defeated world-record holder Jennifer Leachman and Deena Brush-Mapple en route to the title.

Earnhardt Regains Points Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt moved up from fourth to take a slight lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup stock car standings with his victory in Sunday's First Union 400 race at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

Earnhardt, a three-time Winston Cup champion, now has 1,054 points, and hold a three-point lead over Geoff Bodine, who held the lead going into Sunday's race.

"A three-point lead doesn't mean much going into the last race of the season, much less going into the eighth race of the year," he said after Sunday's event.

"Still, we're pretty happy to be back on top," Earnhardt said. "What we need to do now is reel off two or three straight wins and lengthen this thing out some."

Celtics' Inside Game Sinks Hornets

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — If nothing else, the Boston Celtics still have their dominant inside game.

And that's what the Celtics used the most in recording Monday night's 113-108 victory in overtime over the Charlotte Hornets.

Seven-foot center Robert Parish grabbed two offensive rebounds and got short jumpers to give Boston a 109-104 lead in overtime. Rookie guard Brian Shaw then hit three free throws in the last 22 seconds to seal the Celtics' fifth consecutive victory over the Hornets.

It was Charlotte's 12th consecutive loss at home.

Parish, Shaw, Kevin McHale and Reggie Lewis made sure the Celtics controlled the inside. All four had double digits in rebounding and scoring, as the Celtics outrebounded Charlotte 73-44, the most rebounds by a Hornet opponent this year.

"I thought we played very tough on defense, but you can't win unless you pull the boards," said Charlotte coach Dick Harter. "It is tough to rebound against guys that can shove you off the court."

Charlotte concentrated on stopping 6-foot-10 forward McHale, who missed his first five shots and was seven for 22 from the field. But that left Parish open for his 21 points and 22 rebounds, 10 of which came on the offensive end.

"I give McHale credit for my big game on the boards," Parish said. "When their big people helped out on McHale, it made it easier for me. i just collected the garbage."

Along with missing Larry Bird, who has been out most of the season, the Celtics were also without starting point guard Dennis Johnson, who remained in Boston, nursing a sprained left ankle.

Kevin Gamble stepped in for only his second start of the season and scopred a career-high 25 points. Reggie Lewis led the Celtics with 26.

"It's hard to get a handle on this game because we are not a well team right now," Boston coach Jimmy Rodgers, who team has Bird, Ramon Rivas and Jim Paxson on the injured list.

The victory cut Boston's magic number to two for grabbing the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

The Hornets played most of the game without forward Kurt Rambis, who sprained his ankle was was removed from the game for X-rays with 7:55 left in the first quarter. Charlotte also played without forward Tim Kempton, who was suffering from a hip pointer.

Charlotte, despite being outrebounded, came back from a 10-point third-quarter deficit with good shooting and defense. The Hornets were 11-for-22 in the fourth period and created 21 turnovers in the game, while committing only 10.

Rookie Rex Chapman led the comeback effort with his game-high 29 points. Kelly Tripucka added 19.

Chapman gave the Hornets a 102-100 lead with 55 seconds left in regulation on a floor-length pass from Sidney Lowe. Chapman dunked over Gamble on the one-on-one break.

But McHale tied the game with a fadeaway baseline jumper with 30 seconds left, and neither team was able to get off a final shot.

Boston then jumped out to its 110-104 lead and held on for the victory on Shaw's three consecutive free throws.

Charlotte came back with four consecutive points and had a chance to tie with 26 seconds left. But Kelly Tripucka, the team's leading free-throw shooter with a 86.6 shooting percentage from the line, missed two free throws.

Shaw, who scored all five of his points from the free-hrow line, got the rebound and was fouled immediately by Chapman. Shaw missed the frist shot before giving Boston a 111-08 lead with 22 seconds left.

Chapman tried to take the ball inside after a Hornet timeout, but his sho was blocked by Parish. Shaw hit two more free throws for the final margin.

Suns 140, Kings 85

Cotton Fitzsimmons finds it incredible. Tom Chambers finds it enjoyable. The rest of the NBA might find the Phoenix Suns fearsome.

The Suns recorded the biggest rout in the league this season with a 140-85 pasting of the Sacramento Kings Monday night. Phoenix, 28-0 at home against the Western Conference, moved within a half-game of the idle Los Angeles Lakers for both the conference and Pacific Division lead.

Chambers finished with 20 points, Armon Gilliam had 19, Kevin Johnson 17 plus 15 assists, rookie Dan Majerle had 16 points and Hornacek 15 for the Suns, who reached the 53-win mark for just the third time in the franchise's 21-year history.

Wayman Tisdale had 14 points for Sacramento, which made only 38 percent of its field goals (33 of 86).

Bulls 104, Knicks 100

At Chicago, Michael Jordan scored 20 points in the fourth quarter as Chicago ended a six-game losing streak.

Jordan, who finished with 34 points, 11 rebounds and nine assists, took charge from his point guard position after the Knicks scored 17 consecutive points, wiping out a 10-point Bulls advantage.

Rockets 99, Spurs 91

At Houston, San Antonio extended its club-record road losing streak to 19 games and fell to 3-37 away from home this season. The Spurs have lost six straight overall.

Akeem Olajuwon scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half for the hosts and added 16 rebounds.

Jazz 108, Clippers 102

At Los Angeles, Utah won its seventh straight over the Clippers, dating back to last season. Karl Malone had 34 points, while Thurl Bailey came off the bench to score 26 and John Stockton added 16 points for the Jazz, the Midwest Division champions.

SuperSonics Warriors 109, OT

At Oakland, the Sonics trailed by 13 points with 1:18 remaining in the first half. But they tied the score 70-70 and 94-94 before forcing overtime at 104 on Xavier McDaniel's jumper with 56 seconds remaining. The Warriors scored only 12 points in the fourth quarter.

Edenton Tops Skins; Bullets Pop Lakers

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville took advantage of a number of Mattamuskeet miscues in the fourth inning to break the game open and ease to a 8-1 Tobacco Belt Conference victory Monday.

The Bullets led 3-0 after two but put the Lakers away in the fourth.

David Gardner had an RBI single and Mattamuskeet also had five walks and one error as Jamesville scored four runs to take 8-0 lead.

Ernie Gardner went 2-2 with an RBI to lead the Bullets, 5-5 overall and 2-2 in the TBC, who return to action today at Aurora.

ROBERSONVILLE — Edenton used a strong third inning to break open a tight game and roll to a 12-7 Northeastern 2-A Conference baseball win over Roanoke Monday.

Leading 1-0, the Aces scored six runs in the third, keyed by five base hits and a solo homer by John Stepney.

Roanoke countered with two runs in the bottom of the inning, but that was as close as it would get the rest of the way.

Roanoke, 3-5 overall, returns to action Thursday at Williamston.

to be sure that he and the catcher were on the same wavelength."

Guthrie said the Seahawks gave a great effort in winning the contest, but that either team could have won it.

"We were down some after losing Sunday (9-0 in the second game) and we knew we had to have a great pitching performance from Tillman and we got it."

The crowd, which packed the stands and lined the fences, was the largest ever at Harrington Field, an estimated 2,800.

The Seahawks took the lead in the second, scoring once. Randy Fennell led off with a single to left and Tom Heitler followed with a hit to right. Both were sacrificed up and Perry Currin grounded out, allowing Fennell to score.

The Seahawks then added single runs in the third and fourth, both on home runs. Stoudenmire connected to dead center in the third and Fennell to right in the fourth.

"I guess I was a little complacent," Jacobs said of his early innings. "Both of the home runs were bad pitches on my part. The first was a 3-2 slider that hung out over the plate. The other one was an 0-2 fast ball that was up high. It wasn't that good a pitch for him but he got all of it."

Jacobs settled down after that and pitched through the eighth inning without allowing a hit. He got out of a jam in the ninth when UNCW threatened to add an insurance run when Gast made a diving stab of a drive by Currin and crabbed his way to the base to beat Heitler and force him out for the third out of the inning.

The Pirates began their comeback in the fourth, scoring once. Tommy Eason doubled to center and with one out, had to hold the base when Gast sent a liner into right that just settled down for another double, leaving runners at second and third. Steve Godin walked to load the bases and with two away, Mike Andrews drew a walk from Tillman to force in Eason.

The Pirates got another in the fifth. John Thomas reached on an infield hit up the middle and stole both second and third. He scored on a ground out by Calvin Brown.

Then, in the ninth, the Pirates tied it up. Andrews opened with a double to left and was sacrificed to third. He scored on Thomas's long fly to center to make it 3-3.

But after the Seahawks got their run in the top of the 10th, the Pirates couldn't rally once more, although Gast did reach on an error with two outs. A called strike three on Godin finished it up.

Fennell led the Wilmington hitting with two, while Thomas had a pair to pace the Pirates.

East Carolina, which went into last week ranked 30th in the nation, drops to 26-5 with the loss, 12-3 in the CAA. The loss was the third in the last four games for the Pirates, who entered last week with a 25-2 record.

UNCW is now 23-10 overall, 14-1 in the league and will be the CAA's number one seed in the tournament. ECU will be the number two seed.

The Pirates have no time to dwell on the loss, however, as they travel to Norfolk, Va., to face Old Dominion tonight. The return to action at Harrington Field on Friday night, hosting Virginia Commonwealth.

Brewers Snap Rangers' Win Streak, 8-1

The Associated Press

Boston's Jody Reed slides under the tag of Baltimore catcher Bob Melvin in action Monday

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Last week, Terry Francona only cost Nolan Ryan a possible no-hitter. This time, he helped saddle him with a loss.

"I'll take hits off anybody," said Francona, who had a single and two doubles in four at-bats as the Milwaukee Brewers ended the Texas Rangers' club record eight-game winning streak 8-1 Monday night. "Even on an off-night Ryan still has decent stuff. We got a lot of breaks."

In winning their fourth straight, the Brewers also got 11 hits, including rookie Bill Spiers' ninth-inning grand slam off Brad Arnsberg, his first major-league homer. He was 1-for-16 coming into the game.

Ryan threw 104 pitches in five-plus innings. He yielded three runs and seven hits, walking six and striking out three. In his previous start, the 42-year-old right-hander retired the first 20 Milwaukee batters and went eight innings, allowing only the hit by Francona and striking out 15.

Francona doubled and scored in Milwaukee's two-run second inning, singled and scored in the sixth and singled a run across in the seventh. He conceded he didn't really hit Ryan hard.

Ryan doesn't think Francona has a jinx over him.

"He hasn't mastered me yet," Ryan said, adding that he didn't have command of his pitches. "The longer it went, the worse it got," he said. "Sometimes you have bad innings, struggle and come back, but I couldn't. When you walk six guys like I did you can get into serious trouble."

Winner Bill Wegman scattered five hits in 7 2-3 innings.

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 2

Andy Hawkins pitched a five-hitter for his first AL victory and Roberto Kelly drove in four runs, three with a ninth-inning triple.

"As soon as you get that first one under your belt things seem to settle down a bit. Hopefully, this team can build on a game like this one," said Hawkins, who started the game with a 15.00 ERA after yielding 20 hits and 15 runs in nine innings in his two previous appearances.

New York broke a 2-2 tie with an unearned run in the seventh. With two out, Alvaro Espinoza worked Toronto starter Mike Flanagan for a walk, Kelly singled and, after Duane Ward relieved, the runners advanced on Ernie Whitt's passed ball. Rickey Henderson hit a grounder that first baseman Fred McGriff booted for an error, allowing Espinoza to score the go-ahead run.

The Yankees wrapped it up in the ninth against Ward and Tom Henke. Kelly tripled with the bases loaded and scored on Steve Sax's grounder. Earlier, New York's Bob Brower and Toronto's McGriff hit solo homers.

Mariners 7, Athletics 2

Henry Cotto hit his first two home runs of the season and rookie Erik Hanson held Oakland to four hits through eight innings. Cotto's two-run homer put Seattle ahead 2-1 in the Mariners' four-run fourth inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh. It was the first multiple-homer game of his career. Hanson gave up a run in the first inning and then checked the A's until Tony Phillips homered in the sixth.

Three of the Mariners' four runs off Curt Young in the fourth were unearned. Rey Quinones was safe when shortstop Walt Weiss bobbled his grounder and one out later Cotto hit his first home run. Alvin Davis singled and with two out Mickey Brantley doubled. Both scored on Darnell Coles' single.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 4

Mike Greenwell hit a two-run homer as Boston erased a 2-1 deficit with five runs in the eighth inning. The Orioles scored twice in the ninth but failed to win consecutive road games for the first time since August 1987.

Ellis Burks opened the Boston eighth with a triple off Brian Holton, who replaced starter Jose Bautista in the seventh. Greenwell then hit his fourth homer of the season, a 420-foot blast into the bleachers in right center.

The Red Sox added three more runs on singles by Jim Rice and Danny Heep, a pair of walks and Marty Barrett's two-run single. The Orioles opened the ninth with three consecutive singles off Lee Smith, who replaced starter Wes Gardner in the eighth. Bob Stanley came on for his second save.

Angels 3, White Sox 0

Devon White doubled home a run in the first inning and started a two-run ninth with another double and California got six-hit pitching from Kirk McCaskill and Bryan Harvey.

Brian Downing opened the game with a single to deep short, continued to second on Ozzie Guillen's throwing error and scored on White's one-out double. Loser Shawn Hillegas allowed one run and four hits in eight innings. The Angels scored their final two runs off Ken Patterson on White's second double, Wally Joyner's infield hit, Chili Davis' sacrifice fly and Lance Parrish's triple.

McCaskill allowed all the Chicago hits in 7 1-3 innings and Harvey pitched out of an eighth-inning jam.

Garrelts' Six-Hitter Leads Giants

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After pitching his first shutout in six years, Scott Garrelts finally had something to say.

Garrelts, a converted reliever, pitched a six-hitter and Will Clark and Candy Maldonado each drove in three runs as San Francisco beat San Diego 9-0 Monday night.

Garrelts, 2-0, struck out five and walked three for his first shutout since Sept. 25, 1983, and his first complete game since May 31, 1986.

In spring training, Garrelts said he didn't want to talk to reporters anymore. But that all changed following his gem over the Padres.

"I didn't decide tonight to talk because I pitched a good game. I decided the other day on my day off," Garrelts said.

The Giants' right-hander was converted from a reliever back to a starter near the end of spring training.

"As a reliever, you come in trying to throw as hard as you can. Starting, you have to pace yourself, and I think that's helped me," Garrelts said. "I think that was one of the things that got me in trouble in the bullpen, I'd come in trying to get strikeouts. As a starter, you don't have to do that."

Last season, Garrelts had 13 saves and had totalled 48 since going to the bullpen in 1985.

"As a starting pitcher, he can get a little wild, like he did early tonight," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "He can walk a couple of guys and he has a chance to pitch out of it. As a relief pitcher, he couldn't come in wild like that or it would cost him the game."

Elsewhere in the National League it was New York 5, Philadelphia 2; St. Louis 4, Pittsburgh 2; Cincinnati 3, Los Angeles 2 in 10 innings and Montreal 2, Chicago 1.

The Padres, who have lost five of their last six games, were shut out 5-0 on Sunday by Rick Mahler and the Cincinnati Reds.

"They hit, we didn't, and when you get behind it's pretty hard to catch up. It's as simple as that," Padres manager Jack McKeon said.

The Giants had 15 hits en route to their sixth victory in their last seven games.

"We got some early runs, and (second baseman) Robby Thompson and (center fielder) Brett Butler made some outstanding defensive plays. Those things lift a pitcher up," Garrelts said. "Getting runs early builds up your confidence."

Mets 5, Phillies 2

New York broke out of a batting slump as Darryl Strawberry, Kevin McReynolds and Keith Hernandez hit consecutive home runs in the third inning against Philadelphia's Don Carman.

The Mets began the game with the worst record in the NL at 3-7 and had scored just 35 runs, fewest in the league. Their poor start prompted Manager Davey Johnson to criticize them Sunday for their "lackluster" performance.

"We're not a last-place ballclub and there's no reason for us to play like one," Strawberry said. "It was just a matter of time."

It was the first time in Mets' history that they hit three consecutive home runs at Shea Stadium. The Mets had done it four times on the road and once in New York at the Polo Grounds.

Expos 2, Cubs 1

Andres Galarraga hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning as Montreal snapped Chicago's seven-game winning streak. The streak was the Cubs' longest since June 1983.

Kevin Gross, 2-1, pitched 6 2-3 innings and allowed nine hits for the victory and Tim Burke got the last three outs for his second save.

Tom Foley singled with one out in the sixth off Greg Maddux, 0-2, and Galarraga hit a 416-foot homer over the left-field fence at Olympic Stadium to give the Expos a 2-0 lead.

Mitch Webster had an RBI single for the Cubs in the seventh.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2

Ozzie Smith's RBI double snapped an eighth-inning tie and St. Louis went on to beat injury-plagued Pittsburgh at Busch Stadium.

The Cardinals hit four doubles off reliever Brian Fisher, 0-1, to break a 1-1 tie in the eighth.

Pinch-hitter John Morris led off with a double and advanced to third on a sacrifice. Smith, who is 7-for-12 since coming off the disabled list on Saturday, doubled down the right-field line to break the tie. Terry Pendleton and Pedro Guerrero then followed with RBI doubles.

Pittsburgh played without three starters — catcher Mike LaValliere, first baseman Sid Bream and center fielder Andy Van Slyke — and bullpen stopper Jim Gott, who are all injured.

Reds 3, Dodgers 2

Todd Benzinger's sacrifice fly scored Barry Larkin in the 10th inning to lift Cincinnati over Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium.

Reliever Jay Howell, 0-1, yielded a leadoff single to Larkin. Larkin was picked off first by Howell, but was safe when shortstop Alfredo Griffin dropped the ball running him back toward first base for an error.

After a wild pitch and a walk to Kal Daniels, Eric Davis beat out a slow roller to third base for a hit that loaded the bases. Benzinger then broke the tie with a fly to left field.

Rob Dibble, 2-0, pitched one inning for the victory and John Franco got the last three outs for his fifth save in five opportunities.

Ethiopians...

(See ETHIOPIANS, B-4)

Buist finished in 2:29:04. Kim Jones of Spokane, Wash., was third in 2:29:34. Samuelson finished in 2:37:52, more than 16 minutes slower than her best time.

"Four years ago she (Samuelson) was a really great runner, but I don't think she's been training enough to be as good as me now," said Kristiansen, the 1986 Boston champion who has won 12 of her 20 marathons. "I was by myself the whole race. I saw no other woman."

Mekonnen, 25, had company until he pulled away from his final challenger with 1½ miles left in the 26-mile, 385-yard run through eight communities — from the town of Hopkinton west of Boston into the shadow of the Boston Public Library near downtown.

His winning time was 2:09:06, well off Rob de Castella's course record of 2:07:51. Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania, the runnerup in 1988 in the closest finish in Boston history, was second again, this time in 2:09:56.

"He doesn't have a good finish," Mekonnen said of Ikangaa. "That's why I was confident."

John Treacy of Ireland, with a time of 2:10:24, was third for the second year in a row. Kenya's Ibrahim Hussein, who beat Ikangaa by one second last year, was fourth in 2:12:41.

Mekonnen's victory came one day after wins by two other Ethiopians. Belayneh Dinsamo, who has the world's fastest time of 2:06:50, won the Rotterdam Marathon, and Keleke Metaferia won the World Cup Marathon in Milan.

Those victories helped a lot, Mekonnen said. "It gave me a good impression. That's why I won today."

About 18 miles into the race, Mekonnen and Ikangaa left the rest of the field of 6,418 official runners behind. Treacy then began closing the gap and thought he had a chance to win.

That's when he pulled away from Ikangaa.

"I could really feel myself closing in on them," said Treacy, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist in his first marathon. "Then Mekonnen took off and that was that."

Mekonnen planned to run in last year's Boston Marathon. But a mistaken belief by officials in his country that a South African would compete led o a boycott that kept the Ethiopians out of the race. His nation also boycotted the Olympics in Seoul.

"The Boston Marathon is one of the historic marathons," Mekonnen said through an interpreter. "He's happy he won but he doesn't consider it his Olympic race."

Mekonnen and Kristiansen each won $45,000 for their victories.

The last American to win the Boston Marathon was Greg Meyer in 1983. Herb Wills of Tallahassee, Fla., was the fastest American in Monday's race with a time of 2:17:40 that put him in 10th place.

John Campbell, 40, of New Zealand, finished fifth overall in 2:14:19. He shattered the course record for masters of 2:17:53 set last year by Ryszard Marczak of Poland.

World bests were recorded in the men's and women's wheelchair events.

Philippe Couprie of France won in 1:36:04. The previous best time was 1:38:22 by Paul Clark of Canada in 1988. The women's winner was Connie Hansen of Denmark in 1:50:06. The previous best was 2:02:15 set last year by Candace Cable-Brookes of the United States.

Jamesville Romps Past Mattamuskeet

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School romped to a 15-3 softball victory over Mattamuskeet in a Tobacco Belt Conference game Monday.

Both teams scored twice in the first inning and Mattamuskeet got a third run in the second.

But Jamesville exploded for 12 runs in the third inning to put the game away. The Lady Bullets came up with 11 hits and a walk in the inning and also took advantage of four Lady Laker errors. Karen Styons capped the inning with a two-run homer.

Sheila Bowen, Candy Bembridge, Styons, Tanya Worsley, Nikki Sexton, Jennifer Fagan and Staphanie Rawls each had two hits to pace the Jamesville attack. No one had more than one for Mattamuskeet.

Jamesville is now 6-2 overall and 5-1 in league play. The Bullets travel to Aurora today.

Edenton 9
Roanoke 5

ROBERSONVILLE — Sherrill Bogues and Tia Dillard had three hits apiece to lead Edenton to a 9-5 win over Roanoke in a Northeastern Conference baseball matchup Monday.

Edenton took an early 4-0 lead after three innings of play and added three more in the fifth for a 7-0 lead.

Roanoke scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth, keyed by a single from Kim Stalls, to pull within 7-3, but that was as close as it would get.

Roanoke, 3-3 overall and 1-3 in the conference, was led by Leggett with a 2-4 performance. The Lady Redskins return to action Thursday at Williamston.

'I'm Not A Girl'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RADNOR, Pa. — Farrah Fawcett says she isn't a young girl at 42 and she wants directors to take notice.

In this week's TV Guide, Ms. Fawcett said she had qualms about her role in the recently finished movie "Margaret Bourke-White," about the American photographer who died in 1971.

"They wanted me to play her as this girl and then have me age, and I've done all that in a bunch of other films. It's like people think they have to see the young me in a film, but I'm not a girl anymore," she said. "I'm a woman getting older, and I only want to play a woman."

After she insisted on script changes, producer-director Lawrence Schiller dropped plans to show Ms. Bourke-White as a blossoming young woman.

Now, Ms. Fawcett would like a funny role to make her feel good. She even has a leading man in mind: her personal leading man, Ryan O'Neal.

"I'd love to do a romantic comedy with Ryan," she told the magazine. "He just got done doing a comedy, 'Chances Are,' and when he came home he'd always say how much fun he was having."

She added, "And fun is what I need now. People keep threatening that they're going to write a funny picture for us. Well, I'm ready. But no girlie parts."

Singer Uses Songs To Pay For Painting

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Singer Donna Summer is working hard for the money to support what has become a habit — painting.

The singer is displaying paintings at the New York Art Expo at the Jacob Javits Center.

"I didn't want to do this originally," Summer explained. "But a few friends of mine in the business are the ones that said I should do this and I really insisted they should leave me alone. People kept offering to buy things. "The thing that got me to think about it was when my husband said there was no room in the garage. The frames and canvasses were getting to be very expensive and my husband said I should sell them and support my habit."

Summer's works include a series of colorful acrylics, including "Self Portrait," "Rainbow Girls," and "Twins." She also expresses her love of music with "Jazzman."

Hispanic TV Increases U.S. Shows But Some Surprises Keep Erupting

By Feliz Gutierrez
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — More "Made in the USA" programs are airing on U.S. Hispanic TV stations these days, sometimes packing surprises for producers, performers and viewers.

For instance, last year singer Linda Ronstadt was approached for a Spanish-language TV interview after she lustily sang a concert of the Mexican corridos she learned from her father.

"She couldn't say three words in Spanish," producer and host Luca Bentivoglio said of the singer, who was raised in Arizona. His entertainment news program, "Desde Hollywood," reaches 85 percent of the nation's estimated 20 million Hispanics on the Spanish-language Univision network.

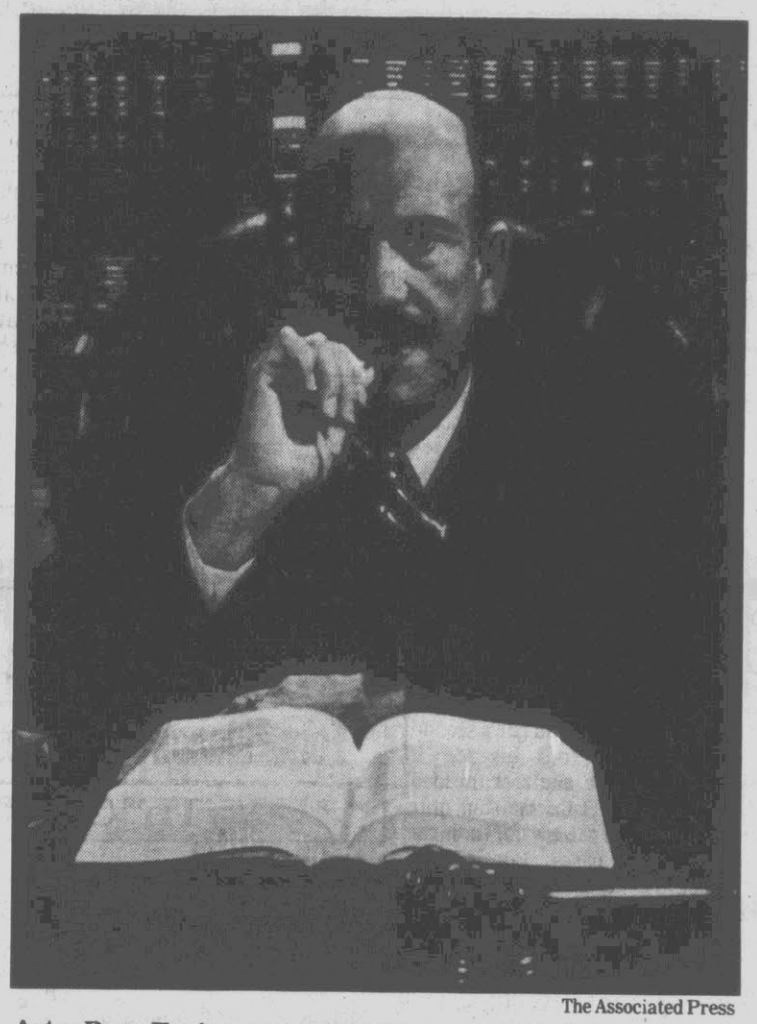
Raquel Welch, also with Hispanic ancestry, had Spanish problems, too, Bentivoglio said. Other entertainers with no particular Spanish links, such as actors Ted Danson and Charlton Heston, have tried speaking the language, and Chevy Chase surprised Bentivoglio with a rapid-paced patter sounding like Spanish.

Language isn't the only surprise facing Univision and rival Telemundo, which reaches 65 percent of U.S. Hispanics. Producing more programs in this country means developing new formats and paying higher costs.

About 40 percent of Telemundo's network shows are U.S.-made, up from about 20 percent a year ago, said Peter Roslow, network marketing director. Univision's U.S. production share is now 31 percent, a 450 percent increase from 7 percent in 1988, said President Joaquin Blaya.

Blaya says U.S. productions cost six times more than imports from Latin America, long Hispanic TV's main source.

Both networks use English-language TV producers, borrow American formats and look for ways to cut costs. In the process, Spanish-language TV is looking more like TV in English.



The Associated Press

Actor Rene Enriquez stars in 'El Juez,' or 'The Judge'

New shows include music videos, game programs similar to "Pantomine Quiz" and "Candid Camera" and audience talk shows resembling "Oprah" and "Donohue." This spring, Univision rolled out "El Juez," a courtroom drama, "Portada," a magazine show, and "Cristina," an audience talk program.

But it takes more than simple translation to take a show theme from English to Spanish.

"When we have a show on impotence (for example), it's harder to get a man to talk about his sexual problems than on Anglo TV because of machismo," said Maria Laria, hostess of Telemundo's audience talk show "Cara a Cara."

"We had a show on sexual fantasies," said Ms. Laria. "A lot of the Hispanic community complained. Latin women are not supposed to have sexual pleasure."

To cut costs, Bentivoglio does his two Univision shows, "Tu Musica" and "Desde Hollywood," without sets. The fast-paced music, hot graphics, video clips and interviews are edited on a table top with VCRs and TV screens at a cost of $5,000 per half-hour show.

But cost cutting is not applauded by all. Performers in "El Juez" were paid less than in the English-language version of "The Judge" after the Screen Actors Guild approved lower wages to boost Hispanic productions and jobs.

"I'm not getting rich. I make more in the American market," said former "Hill Street Blues" star Rene Enriquez, who plays the judge. "Yes, it is less money than the minimum. Right now the important thing is to have it done. Later on we have to evaluate and be fair."

Instead of the standard $398 per day, "El Juez" performers were paid a $250 minimum. Reruns are paid at 25 percent of the actor's applicable minimum, rather than the standard declining percentage running from 40 percent to 5 percent after the 12th run.

"The viewing audience for the Spanish-language networks is much smaller," said SAG official Rodney Mitchell. "The advertising dollars would be much smaller for the Spanish than for the English-language version."

Like Enriquez, some Hispanic union members favored the pact, believing it is helping bring Hispanic TV production to the States. Others disagreed.

"We were split 50-50," said Victor Contreras, one of 12 Hispanic performers attending a SAG meeting. "I will not work for less than scale. Here we're demonstrating an additional skill and then asked to discount our fee."

If the pact had not been approved, the show could have been shot in Mexico, where actors are paid $50 a day, or Puerto Rico, where pay ranges from $100 to $150, SAG's Mitchell said.

Ratings figures show people are watching Spanish-language TV, but not all of the U.S.-produced shows draw as well as Telemundo's two game shows or Univision's Saturday night extravaganza "Sabado Gigante."

Values Still Working Class

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Madonna, 30 years old and rich, says she's just a "working-class girl" in some respects.

She told Vogue magazine in its May issue that she can be a bit of a tightwad even though the money is there.

"I hate waste and I hate to waste money. I don't see the point of having more than one car. And I hate to waste food," said Madonna, who reportedly made $46 million in 1988.

"Well, there's a difference between being born into money and making money. I've made my money. I'm from a poor background and basically I'm still a working-class girl in terms of my ethics," she said.

Madonna told the magazine that splitting up with actor Sean Penn after three years of marriage hurts but has sot left her depressed.

"Sad. I'm sad about it," she said. "Very sad. You can't be married to somebody for 3½ years and then just forget him."

Piscopo Backs Joint Custody

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TRENTON, N.J. — Comedian Joe Piscopo, who has lost a custody battle, urged lawmakers to give divorced fathers a better chance of winning joint custody.

"This is not a fathers' rights issue, not a women's rights issue. It's for the child and the child alone," Piscopo told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Monday.

The Alpine resident lost his bid in state Superior Court to keep his former wife from moving to Florida with their 10-year-old son, Joey, last year. He said his son has been "traumatized" by the move.

"He told the judge he didn't want to move," Piscopo said. "No one listened to the boy."

The panel heard testimony but did not act on bills that would establish joint custody as the preferred resolution of divorces.

Beats Leukemia

LONDON (AP) — Spanish tenor Jose Carreras says he finds singing more exciting and has more time for friends and family since winning a two-year battle against leukemia.

"In the past I always said 'I will do it later' because my career was taking 100 percent of my effort," the 42-year-old opera singer told reporters Monday. Now, "I try to be happy and spend time doing things I always wanted to do like being with my friends and children."

Long-Running 'Hello Hollywood' Gives Way To Stars

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RENO, Nev. — The 1906 earthquake has shattered San Francisco nearly 7,000 times, floods have destroyed a warring planet and ostrich-plumed showgirls have paraded down the grand staircase on the world's largest stage.

But after 11 years of pleasing the crowds at Ballys, "Hello Hollywood, Hello" is saying goodbye to make way for Dino, Liza and Frank.

"It's a wonderful, wonderful show, but it's run 11 years and in the last couple of years the audience has been down. Our surveys showed that people wanted to see name stars," said Richard Sturm, vice president for entertainment at Bally's hotel-casinos.

Dean Martin will inaugurate the new policy April 27, after the show's last performance April 18. Martin will be followed by Paul Anka, Barbara Mandrell, Liza Minnelli, Barry Manilow and Frank Sinatra.

"It will be a real sadness," said Diane Petersen, a principal singer who has been with the show since it opened June 2, 1978.

"That's always a difficult part of our business. You become so close to people, then face the reality that you've got to go other directions."

Michael Eardley, a principal singer who also has been with the show from its opening, echoed the spirit of family in the 90-member cast. "Every six months, we say goodbye to somebody. This is just a bigger version of that."

More than 600 people have performed in "Hello Hollywood," and 7 million have watched it from the 2,000-seat showroom at Bally's Reno.

What they have seen is a two-hour extravaganza abounding in superlatives.

Between the opening "landing" of a passenger jet on the one-acre stage and the final montage of Hollywood musicals, there are attacks by space ships that descend from the showroom ceiling, production numbers to make Busby Berkeley envious and San Francisco at the turn-of-the-century in both its Nob Hill grandeur and Barbary Coast ribaldry.

And then, there's the earthquake.

With a combination of lighting, sound, on-stage motion, pyrotechnics and scenery that splits and collapses on cue, the Barbary Coast and the San Francisco skyline are reduced to burning rubble within a minute.

Another dramatic moment is the deluge that ends the space scene. Two three-story waterfalls and a rainfall the width of the stage send 4,000 gallons of water gushing from an overhead holding tank through an opening in the stage and into a receiving tank under the stage.

The waterfalls weigh six tons each. Another set weighs 10 tons.

The stage, built solely to accommodate "Hello Hollywood," is 58 feet shorter than a football field and 180 feet wide. Three giant elevators descend into a basement below for scene changes.

Eardley and his dancer-wife, Katherine, who met 4½ years ago on the "Hello Hollywood" stage, run a recording studio and music production company.

Horoscope — From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY April 19

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Here is a harmonious day to settle into. Check for documents or important papers that need attending to. Love can be blind at this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may rubn someone the wrong way because of misinformation. Check all the facts before speaking. Keep an open mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Your moods may swing. this is not a good time to push an argument. There is a tendency to win your way by wearing the other person down.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You may have felt a bit down yesterday, but that has changed. Today will be smoother with the feeling of making a fresh start.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Today may not turn out to be as productive as you intend, but a lot will still be accomplished. Expect to deal with impulsive behavior.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Established procedures will work best. Gain added insight by studying career-related journals. Make plans that are flexible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Others sometimes underestimate your abilities when your flattery appears frivolous. A loose schedule will be more accommodating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Social contacts are pleasing. Expensive purchases may not be worth the price. In other areas judgment is on target. Contact parents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You vowed you wouldn't take that extra bite, and now you must make up the difference. Good news keeps you smiling and singing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If you work behind the scenes, you lessen chances for your creativity to be discovered. Charm will bring you the rewards of companionship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Throw out old, worn articles and ideas. It is time for your annual "new day" which is necessary for your mental well being.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Try not to exaggerate matters. You can be charming and convincing at the same time. Give attention to a legal matter that can now be concluded.

Opening lead: Queen of ♡

We are not proud of South's bidding on this hand from a rubber bridge game at New York's renowned Cavendish Club. Fortunately, South had the skill and some help from the enemy to land his contract.

Since North could not bid over one heart, his jump in response to his partner's takeout double showed little more than length in the bid suit. Under the circumstances, South would have been wiser to select the minor-suit game. Indeed, six diamonds could be made on several different lines, depending on what the defenders chose as their opening lead.

Against three no trump West led the top of his heart sequence. East covered with his king and returned the eight after declarer allowed the defenders to win the first trick. Since there was no need for a second holdup, declarer took his ace. It might seem that declarer needed only the diamond finesse, but note the spots—after the ace captures the king, the suit is blocked.

At the third trick declarer led a crafty jack of diamonds. Actually, he hoped the finesse would lose, for then he could get to dummy by overtaking the third diamond. West could have blocked the suit by covering with the king, but he was afraid, not unreasonably, his partner might have the bare queen. The jack won and now declarer had to resolve the diamond blockage.

He found a pretty ploy—he exited with a heart! West made a fatal error; he started to cash his heart winners. Declarer quickly shed the offending ten of diamonds. After West took his last heart, declarer was able to win any return, pick up the king of diamonds by leading the queen, and run his long cards in the suit for the rest of the tricks.

Chinese Students Demand Reforms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Students mourning the death of reformist leader Hu Yaobang staged a sit-in today at the Great Hall of the People, the seat of government, to demand greater democracy, a free press and more money for education.

About 3,000 students from at least five Beijing universities marched to Tiananmen Square and about 1,000 sat outside the Great Hall, refusing to leave unless authorities agree to meet with them and publish their grievances.

In Shanghai, more than 1,500 students marched during the night chanting pro-democracy slogans.

The student marches were the largest in China since 1986-87 pro-democracy protests that resulted in Hu's forced resignation as Communist Party chief.

They reflected not just grief at Hu's death but students' unhappiness with their living conditions and bleak career prospects.

In Beijing, student representatives were allowed inside the Great Hall to present their demands but emerged shortly after noon to say that the only response had been to "go home."

Police kept a low profile throughout the day and made no effort to stop the demonstrations.

Hu, who died of a heart attack Saturday at age 73, is a hero of Chinese students because he was considered a champion of the rights of intellectuals.

He was forced to resign in early 1987 after being accused by party conservatives of failing to take harsh measures against the pro-democracy student demonstrations of December 1986 and January 1987.

Today's Beijing protest became increasingly political in nature as the day went on, with students who carried banners and wreathes dedicated to Hu chanting "Long live democracy, down with dictatorship, overthrow bureaucracy, down with corruption!"

Students from Beijing University and People's University were later joined by demonstrators from Qinghua University, a prominent engineering school, the Nationalities University, the Beijing School of Economics and other schools.

Saudi Arms Dealer Arrested By U.S.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERN, Switzerland — Police arrested Saudi arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi today on U.S. charges that he helped Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos hide millions of dollars in paintings and property plundered from the Philippines.

Khashoggi, a jet-setting financier known for his big deals and an alleged central role in the Iran-Contra affair, faces charges stemming from "illegal property dealings," a Justice Ministry statement said.

The Marcoses fled the Philippines in February 1986 after the military-civilian uprising that deposed Marcos and brought President Corazon Aquino to power. They are accused of taking an estimated $3.5 billion in cash and property.

The U.S. government has accused Khashoggi of fronting for Marcos to help divert and hide the former president's ownership of real estate and valuable art.

Khashoggi, 54, was arrested in a Bern hotel this morning and was taken to the district jail in downtown Bern, the ministry statement said.

It was not immediately known why he was in Bern but he is reported to hold interests in several European companies. His office in Saudi Arabia declined immediate comment on the arrest and referred inquiries to Khashoggi's lawyer, identified as Sami Fadel, whose whereabouts were not disclosed.

U.S. indictments naming the Marcoses, Khashoggi, five other people and a California bank accuse the couple of plundering more than $100 million from the Philippine treasury to buy real estate and expensive art objects in New York.

Khashoggi, the reputed broker of the arms deal at the heart of the Iran-Contra scandal, was indicted in October in New York on racketeering and other charges in the case.

Khashoggi, who has lived in Paris, is accused of submitting a false document to French officials who were seeking evidence at the request of U.S. investigators.

He also posed as the owner of paintings and New York property secretly held by the Marcoses, prosecutors have said.

Curfew Lifted In Capital Of Soviet Georgia

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Authorities today lifted the curfew in the capital of Soviet Georgian and searched for 14 people reported missing after troops broke up a pro-independence demonstration in the city's center.

The curfew was imposed in Tbilisi after the military tried to disperse the demonstrators on April 9 and at least 19 people were killed. A Georgian official acknowledged Monday that one of the 19 was shot by soldiers.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, a native of Georgia and a former Communist Party chief of the republic, said the violence damaged President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's reform efforts.

Shevardnadze has been in Georgia for more than a week trying to ease tensions.

Students were reported to be back in classes today and public transportation was operating normally.

Lea Umanishvili, chief editor of Georgian television in Tbilisi, said the curfew was lifted this morning. And Zurab Lomidze, deputy director of the Georgian news agency Gruzinform, said on Monday that the soldiers and tanks, which arrived on April 7, would begin leaving today.

Ms. Umanishvili said in a telephone interview from TV headquarters that no tanks and only a few soldiers were visible on the streets.

She said the Ministry of Health still was searching for 14 people listed as missing after the clash. The list consists of three or four boys ages 11 to 13, two women, and the rest men, she said.

Tbilisi residents have been plastering lists to walls charging that 100 people disappeared after the clash and that many of them died in addition to the 19 in the official death toll.

Rolad Beridze of the Georgian Foreign Ministry denied the rumors of a higher death toll. He said Monday that most of the reported disappearances had innocent explanations.

Beridze said Monday that soldiers shot and killed one resident who was violating the first night of the curfew on April 9. He said two companions were wounded with the curfew violator.

A STRONGER PERFORMANCE THAN EVER.

As First Federal continues to deliver an enviable financial performance, some of our most important people stay backstage.

But they're not strangers to the citizens of Pitt County. Our list of directors reads like an honor roll of community leaders.

First Federal is guided by high achievers, not high rollers. We've chosen the area's most respected and experienced professionals to help guide Pitt County's community bank.

And it shows. Our balance sheet reads strong and solid. Our employees are proud and positive. And our customers tell us themselves every day: our performance is outstanding.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE: MAKING SURE EVERY DOLLAR HAS A PITT COUNTY ADDRESS.

They set First Federal's goals, always keeping in mind the goals and dreams of Pitt County's families. So they take great pride in paying higher rates to depositors, and in investing those deposits in loans within Pitt County.

THE AUDIT COMMITTEE: THEY CAN BE OUR FOUR TOUGHEST CUSTOMERS.

With sound judgment, an eye for detail and a dedication to the highest standards, they strengthen our resolve as a financial institution. They never let us forget that in a strong community bank, the savings come first.

THE LOAN COMMITTEE: FIVE RESPECTED SIGNATURES UNDER EVERY LOAN WE MAKE.

They have the sixth sense of successful businessmen and the cautious optimism of natural leaders. They ensure that every single loan meets our commitment to financial strength, local investment, prudent lending and competitive rates.

LOCAL CONTROL, LOCAL COMMITMENT, LOCAL PRIDE: VALUES CLOSE TO HOME.

These are the leaders of First Federal–experienced businessmen and local professionals steering a steady course into the future. What these confident leaders bring to First Federal is what we, in turn, give back to our local community–a winning spirit.

A spirit that, like First Federal, is now stronger than ever.
