Crewmen train firehoses on burning No. 2 gun turret after blast on U.S.S. Iowa Wednesday

Ship Blast Probe Begins

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Investigators aboard the USS Iowa searched for clues to the cause of a fiery explosion that claimed the lives of 47 sailors as the damaged battleship headed home and grief-stricken families dealt with the loss of their loved ones.

Officials refused to speculate publicly on what caused the worst disaster to strike a Navy ship in more than a decade, a blast that ripped through the Iowa's No. 2 gun turret during naval exercises Wednesday in the Atlantic north of Puerto Rico.

Tar Heels Die, see A-6

Although naval gunnery experts combed the vessel Thursday, their task was complicated by the absence of survivors from the swiveling gun housing where the explosion occurred. Eleven men escaped from powder magazines located deep within the ship at the base of the turret.

"We have no eyewitnesses to what actually transpired," Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told reporters as he returned to Washington from a NATO meeting in Brussels.

The Navy imposed a moratorium on firing 16-inch guns found on the Iowa and its three sister battleships, the New Jersey, the Wisconsin and the Missouri, pending an investigation of the disaster.

Adm. Richard D. Milligan, a former commander of the New Jersey, began the board of inquiry's investigation, and Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman said he could not predict when the investigation would be completed.

As the Iowa headed toward its home port in Norfolk, Va., the flag-draped, metal coffins containing the bodies of the 47 seamen killed arrived at the Dover Air Force Base in

Moving Wall Attracts 40,000 During 7-Day Stay

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Moving Wall has moved on to Big Stone Gap, Va., after more than 40,000 people viewed the half-scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial during its stay in Greenville.

The wall, set up at the Town Common for a week, attracted people from all over eastern North Carolina, said Linda Furbush, co-chairman of the project that brought the replica to the city.

The Moving Wall lists the names of the more than 58,000 Americans that died in Vietnam, and Mrs. Furbush said many visitors left mementos, just as millions of others have done at the memorial in Washington, D.C.

A box full of the items will be mailed to the Vietnam Combat Veterans Ltd. in California, the group that owns the replica.

"(People left) pictures of Vietnam veterans from 20 years ago and very emotional letters to those same Vietnam veterans," Mrs. Furbush said this morning at the Town Common as a truck pulled a trailer loaded with wall panels up the hill.

"One gentleman came in his regular street clothes during the day and stayed quite a while. He was a Vietnam veteran. Then he went back home, got his full dress uniform on from 20 years ago and came and stood by the wall and took all of his medals off and left them there for a special friend," she said.

"We had one mother write a letter that said she still sets out a Sunday dinner plate for her son every Sunday. She still bakes him a birthday cake every year. He's an MIA, and she's still hoping that he's going to come home," he said.

Visiting the wall is emotional enough that it moves people to write such letters and leave such gifts, she said, and people have had similar reactions all over the country. The Moving Wall stays one week at a time in each town and is booked up until 1991. Different generations see a different significance in the memorial, she said, but all show the same reverence.

"The young people come and they're quiet. The adolescents come and they're quiet. The teen-agers, the young adults and the older adults — everybody just looks at those 58,000 names. But, when you talk to them, they all seem to be thinking of something different.

"The little children, who really don't understand what war is ... when their parents told them that all these men died in the war, they would make the comment: 'They're all heroes.' The teen-agers and the young adults would make comments about: 'We're never going to let this happen.' Like they were learning more of a lesson from all this.

"The people of my generation who were in the Vietnam War and caught up in all of that 20 years ago, they more or less came to honor the men and pay their respects. They don't feel that it was a waste or it shouldn't have happened. Most of them find that it's a fact of life. Wars do happen, and if we're going to fight for liberty, then we're going to have to make those sacrifices," Mrs. Furbush said.

Elderly people who were not directly involved with the war were the most emotional group of visitors, she said.

"The older people, 60 and 70, they would come in wheel chairs. I would find that even though they didn't have anybody on the wall, they would break down and cry more than other people would. Maybe because they ... see that out of the 58,000 names the average age was 19, and they just really get very emotional," she said.

Younger adults have a difficult time imagining themselves as 19-year-olds flying overseas to fight a war, she said.

"They just couldn't imagine themselves as 19-year-old boys, who just six months ago were going to the prom or out drinking with the boys, having to go through with this experience."

Though the wall is only half the size of the original memorial, Mrs. Furbush said many people commented that it is a surprisingly good replica.

"Some commented they were very surprised that it was so close to the one in Washington, D.C. Others commented that they didn't see any difference. They thought it was like being back in Washington, D.C., especially with the mood of the people at the wall and the mementos that they were leaving — people making the name rubbings."

EPA Calls On Schools To Conduct Tests For Cancer-Causing Radon

By H. Josef Hebert
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — School officials across the country are being advised to test for radon after the federal government found unhealthy levels of the odorless, cancer-causing gas in half the schools examined in spot checks from Maine to Washington state.

"Based on measurements taken in 3,000 schoolrooms in 16 states, it appears that elevated levels of radon gas can be found in schools throughout the United States," EPA Administrator William K. Reilly said Thursday.

He called indoor radon, which is emitted from natural radioactive decay in the ground, "one of the major environmental health threats facing Americans" and urged that officials nationwide test their schoolrooms for the gas.

The testing, he said today on "CBS This Morning," would cost "anywhere from $5 to $25 for a room. And if it turns out there's a problem, the costs of doing something about it are not very high. They're in the range of $500 to $10,000 maximum."

The EPA, which last year issued a similar warning to homeowners after a spot check around the country, said that of 130 public schools tested in 41 communities, 54 percent of the schools had at least one room normally occupied by students or staff that registered unhealthy levels of radon.

The agency has said that any level of 4 picocuries per liter of air should be considered unhealthy and warrant additional tests and likely corrective action. In schools in five of the states the level was 20 picocuries or more and in a school in Tennessee it was found to be 136 picocuries.

By comparison, federal standards for uranium mining call for miners to wear protective equipment when radiation levels are 16 to 20 picocuries per liter of air during continuous work periods, said Richard Guimond, the EPA's director of radiation programs.

EPA spokeswoman Martha Casey said no list of the schools tested was immediately available, but affected

Pitt Schools Awaiting Word

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

While North Carolina was not among the states tested for radon in the public schools by the federal government, a Pitt County school official said the system is aware of the health risks caused by the gas and is awaiting any word that may come from the state or the Environmental Protection Agency.

"We're waiting on some type of direction to come from the Division of Plant Operations with the state Department of Public Instruction," said Barry Gaskins, public information officer of the school system.

"We're concerned about it with all the information revealed to us but need direction from Raleigh and the EPA to deal with the problem if we do have a problem," Gaskins said.

"To my knowledge, there hasn't been any significant levels of radon detected in eastern North Carolina. So, it's premature at this point to develop a plan for something we're not sure about," he said.

Radon is an odorless, colorless and tasteless gas that is the product of natural radioactive decay of Radium-226 in the soil and rocks. It normally causes no health concerns outside where typical levels are in the 0.2 to 0.7 picocurie range. Higher concentrations are in buildings where the gas is trapped and accumulates.

Filipino Rebels Kill U.S. Officer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines — Suspected communist rebels firing from a speeding car killed an U.S. Army officer and former Vietnam prisoner of war today as he headed to work, officials said.

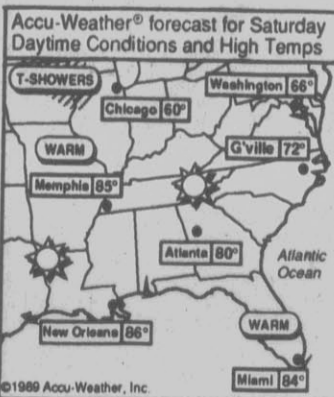

Col. James N. Rowe, 51, of McAllen, Texas, was shot in the head when at least two hooded assailants pulled up in an auto alongside Rowe's car and shot him near his office at a military compound in suburban Quezon City, the officials said.

Col. Victor Tiangco of the Philippine military's Capital Region Command said Rowe's driver, Joaquin Vinuya, was wounded in the 7 a.m. ambush but was not seriously injured.

Tiangco said Rowe, a West Point graduate, was chief of the army division at the Joint U.S. Military Advisory Group, which provides training and logistical support for the Philippine armed forces.

President Corazon Aquino said the Philippine military would increase security around the six U.S. military installations in the wake of the attack.

Thursday Thefts

Investigators said six thefts, including the theft of a vehicle, cash, jewelry and electronic equipment, were reported to Greenville police on Thursday.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said a 1983 model Jeep station wagon was reported taken from a parking lot at Pitt-Greenville Airport in an incident reported at 11:14 a.m., while Officer P.W. Worthington said a radio was taken from a car parked at 1530 S. Evans St. in an incident reported at 11:42 a.m.

Officer C.L. Robertson said $700 in cash was taken from a man at 1710 S. Pitt St. when someone entered the dwelling and pushed the victim to the floor before taking the money at about 12:57 p.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said two speakers were taken from a vehicle parked near the intersection of Third and Reade Streets in an incident reported about 4:18 p.m., while Officer C.A. Curtis said a stereo and amplifier were taken from a car parked at 210 Elm St. in an incident reported at 7:08 p.m., and Officer Alexander Batts said a camera, three gold chains, a diamond ring and a pair of pants were taken from 2612 Tryon Drive in an incident reported at 7:17 p.m.

Theft Arrests

Greenville police arrested two people on theft charges Thursday.

Detective T.E. Nevelle said Larry Cornell Woolard, 30, of 415A Roundtree Drive, was arrested on larceny charges about 3 p.m. in connection with the theft of $5,000 in cash, a shotgun and a pair of binoculars from Down Home Car Cleaners at West End Circle which was reported Tuesday.

Officer C.N. Gray said Trenita Lashon Cox, 20, of 105E Catawba Road, was arrested on embezzlement charges about 3:51 p.m.

Gray said Ms. Cox was charged in connection with two incidents at Nichols Discount City on Greenville Boulevard where customers were allowed to leave the store without paying for merchandise. One incident involved three pairs of shoes and the other involved two rolls of toilet paper and two packages of napkins.

Drug Arrests

Marvin Earl Hines, 34, of 412 W. Village Drive, was arrested on drug charges by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers assigned to the department's special investigations section said Hines was arrested on charges of possession of heroin, possession of marijuana and possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine in connection with a 5:45 p.m. incident at the intersection of Bancroft Avenue and Fleming Street.

Students Inducted

Over 100 students attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill were recently inducted into Phi Beta Kappa.

Inductees from Pitt County are Anne-Lynne Davis, daughter of Kenneth Joseph and Linda Davis of Greenville and Robert Francis Haggard, son of Paul W. and Doris Jean Haggard of Greenville.

Contest Winner

Betty Outerbridge of Bethel recently won $100 in a promotional contest sponsored by the North Carolina Pork Producers and the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Ms. Outerbridge registered for the contest at a Bethel supermarket. Her name was then selected from among 3,000 entries.

Registration Set

Wintergreen Elementary School will have kindergarten registration April 28 from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the media center.

Children who will be 5 years old before Oct. 17 are eligible for the 1989-90 school year.

The child's birth certificate, immunization record and social security number are needed for registration. Guardian papers also are needed if the child lives with someone other than his or her parents.

School Program

J.H. Rose High School was certified recently to participate in the Tandy Technology Seminars program.

The program enables the principal to nominate each year outstanding math, science and computer science students and teachers.

The first awards, based on accomplishments through the 1988-89 school year, will be offered in the spring of 1990.

D.H. Conley Report

Debbie Gray, a teacher at D.H. Conley High School, will be named in Raleigh Saturday as master adviser of North Carolina Future Homemakers of America.

D.H. Conley teachers Ruby Jackson and Harry Jones are Pitt County schools' nominees for science and social studies, respectively, for the state awards program for Outstanding Language Arts, Mathematics, Science and Social Studies teachers.

Pitt Board Scans Budget Proposals

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County Commissioners heard from the elections board, the tax assessor, the register of deeds, buildings and grounds, housekeeping and the sheriff as the board continued work Thursday on the 1989-1990 budget.

Elections officials had requested $105,000 more for the coming fiscal year than the $171,438 appropriated in this year's budget. But County Manager Kramer Jackson has recommended a total of $339,403, some $39,500 less than requested.

The largest proposed increase in the elections budget is for poll workers — a requested $46,901 compared to $25,024 this year.

The buildings and grounds budget — which totaled $685,380 this year — was recommended by Jackson at $705,702 for the coming fiscal year. The figure includes increases of $10,000 for maintenance of buildings ($22,000 budgeted this year) and $10,333 for a new employee to work at maintaining county road signs and changing light bulbs in county buildings.

Walter Gould, who heads the department, told commissioners that 698 man hours were logged during the first half of this fiscal year in replacing light bulbs in county buildings.

Jackson, the county manager, told the board that he is recommending a 5 percent or $87,435 increase in the sheriff's budget for the coming year, as well as a 5 percent or $32,098 increase in jail expenditures.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who has asked for an additional $108,130 for the sheriff's department and $181,833 more for the jail in 1989-1990, told the board, "I think we can live with that (Jackson's recommendations)".

The working budget also includes a proposed $195,293 for the register of deeds — the same amount as appropriated in this year's budget, as well as $694,979 for the tax assessor's office, also the same amount as in this year's list of expenditures.

Tax Assessor Jimmy Hardee reported that the latest figures available show an increase of about 5 percent in the valuation of property in the county, from $2.935 billion this year to about $3.08 billion for the coming tax year.

Jackson said the new figures — based on the present 63 cents per $100 valuation — would raise about $807,800 more than the $17.75 million estimated ad valorem tax revenue on which the working budget was based.

In other business Thursday, commissioners approved the hiring as soon as possible of a part-time worker — at $7 per hour for 20 hours a week — to work with Sheriff Tyson and District Attorney Tom Haigwood in an effort to expedite the trial of jail inmates.

Trial Court Administrator Bill Nichols, in recommending the position, said the employee would also work with the clerk of court's office.

ECU Commencement Planned For Ficklen

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University has announced a contingency plan to conduct two ceremonies indoors in the event of rain at the 1989 spring commencement on May 6.

Weather permitting, the traditional commencement will be outdoors in 35,000-seat Ficklen Stadium beginning with a band concert at 9:15 a.m. and the academic procession of graduates, faculty and invited dignitaries into the stadium at 9:45 a.m. Approximately 2,500 graduates will receive degrees.

Kay Yow, an ECU alumna and women's basketball coach at N.C. State University, will be the commencement speaker.

In the event of rain, commencement will be moved inside Minges Coliseum which seats 6,500. A morning program will be followed by a repeat performance in the coliseum at 2 p.m.

The morning commencement will recognize recipients of doctorate and master's degrees, education specialist and Certificates of Advanced Study and bachelor's and master's degrees in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The afternoon program will recognize degree recipients in the professional schools of allied health sciences, art, business, education, home economics, industry and technology, music, nursing and social work.

This year marks the first time that ECU has planned for two commencement programs in the event of inclement weather. In the past, the program has been moved from the outdoor stadium setting into the coliseum but seating for guests has been limited.

Last year, an estimated 12,000 persons attended the spring commencement at which retired television network anchorman Douglas Edwards was the speaker.

Oil Source Remains Elusive

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A little more than two weeks after an oily substance was spotted in a ditch off New Street leading to the Tar River, officials say they are no closer to discovering its source.

Some potential sources have been checked and eliminated, said Walter Stasavich, recreation and parks superintendent for the city.

Tanks have been dug up and places where tanks used to be have also been investigated at the city's recreation and parks maintenance site near where the oil was found. None of these appear to be the source, said Mike Branch, Greenville Fire-Rescue Department fire prevention coordinator.

Other possible sources in the area have also been looked at, but Branch declined to identify what they are.

Branch said that the river started rising the weekend after the oil was discovered and a 54-inch pipe near the area where the oil was found has not been visible since. He said the oil has been contained by barriers placed in the ditch by fire-rescue workers.

"When the water goes down," Branch said, "we will be able to look at the mouth of that pipe and see whether there appears to be more oil there. If so, I think we can assume the oil is from some continuously leaking source. But if there's no more, we might guess that it came from a one-time dump, probably into a storm grate somewhere in the area."

Officials in the Water Quality section of the N.C. Division of Environmental Management seemed to agree with Branch's summation of the situation. Roger Thorpe, regional water quality engineer, said it appears that no more oil is getting into the river and no more action will be taken toward finding the source until the river stops flooding the site.

Thorpe said he had no information relative to the findings of samples of the oil taken two weeks ago.

Take A Look

Was The Danger Unnecessary?

Serving on a U.S. Naval vessel is dangerous duty regardless of the circumstances. Certainly, however, the Navy should take an extensive look at its safety precautions following the disastrous explosion which rocked the USS Iowa and killed 47 persons.

There have been critics of the old battleships like the Iowa which were once retired from sea duty. The huge World War II fighting ships were brought out of mothballs and put back into service. Even though the ships were modernized, the 16-inch guns are still essentially loaded and fired as they always were.

The critics following the Tuesday disaster included retired Rear Adm. Eugene LaRocque of the Center for Defense Information who said the guns are old fashioned and should be eliminated.

The guns are huge and in addition to World War II sea battles they have been used for offshore shelling including the Korean Conflict of the early 1950s, and in Vietnam. In the age of missiles, offshore shelling is no longer considered to be an advantage.

There is also a considerable argument that the battleships, once retired, should never have been returned to service. Their day is seen as past and they are vulnerable to the sophisticated projectiles that have been developed since the battleship's prime.

While that doesn't bear directly on this tragedy, the Pentagon should also consider carefully whether the answer to the 16-inch battleship gun controversy is not to put the battleship back in mothballs.

The nature of the military is to deal with explosives ... and in handling explosives the danger of accidents which might kill soldiers is always a possibility.

That doesn't allow, however, room for anything less than a thorough investigation of this explosion which claimed a number of lives. Let's fully determine whether the battleship's 16-inchers serve any real defense purpose. If they don't then we should not be risking lives in practice firings.

The Math Mess: Part II

WASHINGTON — Paul Burke's notion, as presented in a recent column of mine, is simple enough. High schools should require only the math that successful professionals actually use.

Burke, a member of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, was reacting to an NCTM proposal calling for more required math in the nation's high schools. Does his notion make sense? A number of readers, many of them math teachers, think not.

Two of them, Eileen Backofen and Barbara Ringgold, both teachers at George Mason Junior-Senior High School in Falls Church, Va., make the point as crisply as anyone:

"If you are a successful, well-educated professional," they write, paraphrasing the lead of my earlier column, "how much (blank) do you use?"

They argue that the blank, occupied by math in my column, could as easily (and as wrongheadedly) be filled in by virtually any required high-school course of study — analysis of Shakespearean sonnets, dissection of worms and frogs, bonding patterns of molecules, the search for imagery and symbolism in 19th-century novels — "not immediately applicable" to a student's environment.

"We believe this nation's schools and universities have already experimented with Mr. Burke's suggestion of allowing students to avoid a core curriculum and substitute 'something else that they like,'" the George Mason teachers wrote. "We have been retreating from this position for some time. We are not comfortable with a situation in which a student is encouraged to ignore simultaneous equations in favor of theater arts or replace English literature with writing technical reports.

William Raspberry

"We believe society is best served by engineers who can appreciate a sonnet and poets who can understand the applicability of a sine curve."

It certainly sounds better than Burke's simple notion. But is it really? Despite the patient arguments, the exasperation and the sheer outrage of a number of math teachers, I remain unconvinced.

To begin with, neither Burke (a math-trained social scientist at HUD) nor I would argue that students should not be required to study math. And, as I tried to make clear, his definition of "the math that well-educated professionals actually use" is fairly broad.

What he has in mind is the math that the well-educated use to perform their jobs, live their lives, entertain themselves and understand their universe. That would include: the ability to compute whether they are better off with a $800 cash rebate or a 2.9 percent loan for their new car; to understand stock-market fluctuations, income-tax codes, demographic projections, and the relative validity of public-opinion polls; and to grasp at least the essence of scientific developments, military parity and budget and trade deficits.

Some well-educated people find it easy and natural to understand their world in mathematical terms. Others will seek understanding in philosophy, or literary allusions, or historical analogies, or esthetic or biological imperatives. Mathematics is simply one habit of thought. And while everybody needs some math — I'd say at least through elementary algebra — it is (I believe) a mistake to suppose that requiring the non-mathematical to take more advanced math courses will enhance their understanding and not exacerbate their sense of inadequacy.

Am I suggesting that every youngster should be permitted to "do his own thing"? As a matter of fact, I am — provided he has been required to learn enough of the specific disciplines to be able to discover what "his own thing" is.

A lot of math teachers will be disappointed, but I stand with Max Bader, an Oregon man who studied high-school math through calculus, scored a perfect 800 on his SATs, excelled in med school and now, in addition to his work as an epidemiologist, plays the stock market.

"I use numbers all the time and must analyze data for significance," he writes, "and yet I never use 95 percent of all the math and statistical formulae I have learned. In fact, I rarely need anything beyond basic arithmetic and simple algebra. What I do need is logic and the ability to think through and set up problems.

"What I remember and use are spoken foreign languages, good literature and history books, economics, government, good films, physics, chemistry, memorable patients and their histories, ethics, English history and the like. These are all subjects that any average person with an interest in them could master."

I wonder if Dr. Bader gets emotional about a sine curve.

Sports Should Excite, Not Incite

One can only imagine the horror of being trampled to death at a soccer match. It happened in Sheffield, England Saturday.

The latest count is 95 dead and many people injured. Fans were crushed against a steel anti-riot fence at a game between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest. It has happened before. In May 1985, 39 fans died in Brussels in a match involving Liverpool.

The answer is not in banning soccer matches, but rather better crowd control — limiting the number of spectators at matches — and better safety features in soccer stadiums.

On this side of the Atlantic there is a feeling that it can't happen here.

Can't it?

Our stadiums are more modern and perhaps we feel safe in attending a major sporting event, but look what happens after some major sporting championship wins here. The crowds might be orderly, if jubilant, as they leave the stadium but overnight groups sometimes go wild. Cars have been turned over and other damage has been done in cities that host major league football and baseball teams. It doesn't stop there. Damage can occur after college teams win national championships. It may be only a matter of time before crowds surge out of control at a major sporting event and there is a large loss of life in this country.

The bottom line is that sports event fan rowdiness is worldwide and includes the United States. The nature of sports events is to excite the fans and bring them into the stadiums.

To avoid killing them, however, rules will have to be established to protect them. Stadiums can't be overcrowded and escape routes must be provided. On the field team players and others will have to take responsibility for their behavior to avoid inciting riots. Sports events should be staged to entertain people, not kill them.

The Ethics Of Governing

BOSTON — The ethics charges came with a price tag on them. I was waiting for that. After all Americans like to price things, even our values. Numbers, dollars and cents, act like the magnetic sensors they use in department stores. They set off a public alarm.

The specific price attached to the charges leveled against Speaker Jim Wright add up to $145,000 in improper gifts. That's 69 charges, or an average of $2,101.44 per charge.

I do not know whether this price tag is a fair one or what the ultimate cost will be to Wright. But as a somewhat mathphobic observer of ethical debates and debacles, it strikes me that our culture is much more comfortable weighing people's personal ethics than their political ethics.

Ellen Goodman

'What kind of ethics are behind the decisions to build bombers or housing? What value judgments can be made about the choice to develop land or conserve it? How do we decide which governments to support? How do we determine our Third World friends and enemies?'

We are at ease with a moral judgment made against someone's private sin — lust or greed. We are much less comfortable judging someone's public ethic — those decisions that can lead to such outcomes as aggression, the abuse of the environment, the neglect of the needy.

After all, not far from the Capitol where Jim Wright's deeds were being added up, Oliver North's brass was being tarnished in the final days of his trial. The hero of the summer of '87 was less damaged by admissions of lying or defying Congress than by the petty stuff. The petty cash that is.

The prosecution portrayed him to the jury as a loose rudder on his own foreign-policy course. But the charges that came home to the jury of public opinion were those that pictured his hand in a till. This time the price tag in dispute was on a GMC suburban van.

Whatever the costs of a covert operation in terms of life and legitimacy, they were less impressive to many than the source of a $3,000 payment on a private van.

So, too, when the Michael Milkens of the world come to grief, accused of insider trading, it is less the system's abuse of the economy that's excoriated in public than his greed. His memorable price tag: $550 million in income in 1987.

If it isn't money, then it is often sex that sets off the righteousness alarms. It happened with Gary Hart. It happened with Jimmy Swaggart and Jim Bakker. People are more likely to judge — harshly — the ethics of intimacy than those of public policy.

What toppled John Tower were not concerns about what effect the military-industrial complex might have on his judgment. It was concern about the effect of alcohol on that judgment. In Alaska, Captain Joseph Hazelwood may be responsible for the ruination of an entire bay, but has only been accused of drinking when he should have been driving.

At times it seems that our ethical verdicts are barely related to the most egregious behavior. They are as out of kilter as the charges that jailed Al Capone for the least heinous crime in his career: income-tax evasion.

We seem to reserve the accusations of unethical behavior for the simple, direct, everyday misdeeds. The hand in the till. The body in the wrong bed. Corruption. Infidelity. Drunkenness. Thou Shalt Not Steal.

We are much slower to discuss, let alone decide, the ethics of governing and managing. What kind of ethics are behind the decisions to build bombers or housing? What value judgments can be made about the choice to develop land or conserve it? How do we decide which governments to support? How do we determine our Third World friends and enemies?

These are harder and more divisive questions. We prefer to put them in the utilitarian realm of practical politics, to keep them out of heated atmosphere in which values are discussed. We risk being accused of naivete for questions that sound like clichés: How do you make a choice between swords and plowshares? Yet these are also in the realm of ethics.

I am not suggesting that we turn down the concern over personal ethics, although at times it can be a distraction, even a cover. I think rather that we should expand the attention, the circle of light, to a much wider arena. We are comfortable talking about the ethics of politicians. We should be equally comfortable discussing the ethics of politics.

Here, too, there are prices to be paid.

Three Tar Heels Die Aboard Iowa

Washington Sailor Escapes Serious Injury In Battleship Blast

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Families and friends mourned the loss of three North Carolinians who were reported killed in the explosion and fire aboard the USS Iowa.

Navy officials Thursday performed the wrenching task of notifying families that their loved ones were among the 47 sailors who died in the blast.

The victims included Leslie Allen Everhart Jr., a seaman apprentice who grew up in Wilmington; DeWayne Collier Battle of Rocky Mount, a petty officer 3rd class; and Eric Casey, 21, of Mount Airy.

Four other North Carolina sailors aboard the ship escaped serious injury, family members said. They are Levi Cobb of Washington, N.C., Ronald McKinney of Broadway, Trey Garrett of Henderson and Jeffrey Goodman of Granville County.

The accident was the worst Navy disaster in more than a decade.

DEWAYNE C. BATTLE

"It's like a ton of bricks in your stomach," said Hilda Garrett, waiting to hear from her 22-year-old son. "It just weighs you down and you know you'll never be able to stand up straight again."

"Right now, I don't want him in the Navy," she said.

Leslie Allen Everhart Sr., Everhart's father, said friends and church members had been with the family in Kernersville since they received the news of his death. The younger Everhart, 31, grew up in the Wilmington area.

Battle signed up for the Navy for excitement and a career after he couldn't find a good job in Rocky Mount. Family and friends said he had found both on the USS Iowa.

"He enjoyed it," said Keith Moore, a boyhood friend. "He liked it because he got to travel and was experiencing life."

Battle, a 1986 graduate of Rocky Mount Senior High School, was remembered as a quiet youth who liked to spend time with his friends and family.

"He told me he wanted to join the service and I told him I thought the Navy would be good," said his brother, Kevin Battle, who served in the Navy from 1980 to 1984.

"They have excellent advancement opportunity and you know the benefits in the military are second to none," Kevin Battle said.

Kevin Battle said his brother never expressed fear for his safety.

"You've always got the danger of a fire or something like that," he said. "That's part of the shipboard experience. One of the first things you learn in boot camp is fighting fires. It goes from the top to the bottom, everyone gets involved."

Acquittal Spurs Study Of Insanity

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Public outcry over a Winston-Salem case in which a multiple murderer was found innocent by reason of insanity has sparked a two-pronged approach to eliminating the insanity defense in North Carolina.

Reps. Trip Sizemore, R-Guilford, and Forsyth County Republicans Frank Rhodes and Theresa Esposito called Thursday for a study of the issue and supported legislation to replace the innocent but insane verdict with a new one — guilty but insane.

Rhodes said he had been contacted by families of the four people killed when Michael Hayes went on a shooting spree in Winston-Salem.

Sizemore said he had also received a lot of calls.

"All the calls that I've had have not criticized the jury nor in effect do they criticize the judge," said

Sizemore at a news conference. "They are critical of an act committed publicly that took innocent lives in our area when the law allows ... that whenever he is determined to be healthy again, he can come back home."

Someone convicted under the proposed law would be sentenced in same manner as a defendant found guilty of the offense. The defendant would receive appropriate treatment but, once considered safe, would be sent to prison to complete his sentence — even if it means the death penalty.

"It means really basically that no one will be able to get away with murder as Hayes has," Rhodes said, adding that Hayes "now ... appears to be completely normal. He appears to have a great deal of satisfaction with himself and his verdict."

Similar bills have failed in the past in the face of objections that the mentally ill should not be held responsible for their actions. But Sizemore said that was an illusory argument.

"Just about everybody will say that somebody who commits murder has some kind of problem," he said.

Ms. Esposito said lawmakers "also have a responsibility to protect the innocent."

"When you have to speak to the parent of a child who has been murdered or killed it's not an easy thing to handle," she said.

Democrats Upset Over Ban On 'Pork Barrel'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Some state representatives expressed anger in a closed-door meeting of House Democrats that Speaker Joe Mavretic decided to dismantle the "pork-barrel" system, but the caucus took no formal position, Majority Leader Dennis Wicker says.

Wicker also voiced doubt after the tense meeting Thursday that Democrats — even those who resent Mavretic's election as speaker — would challenge the decision.

"I just have not heard of any movement like that," Wicker said. "That's his (Mavretic's) call, his decision."

Reporters were barred from the caucus in the auditorium on the third floor of the Legislative Building. Several tried to gain entry but left after Wicker threatened to summon the sergeant-at arms to escort them out.

In interviews after the meeting, which lasted more than an hour, several legislators described the atmosphere as turbulent.

Rep. Peggy Stamey, D-Wake, said she had reminded Mavretic of his past efforts to get state funding for projects in his Edgecombe County district.

"Go back and check the record and see who put in a bunch of money to get Sara Lee in Edgecombe County," Mrs. Stamey said. She referred to a $750,000 state expenditure in 1987 for electrical generating facilities that helped lure a manufacturing plant to the county.

Mavretic, who left before the caucus ended because of a speaking engagement, said reaction to his edict had been "mixed." Asked whether he intended to stand by it, he replied, "Absolutely."

Mavretic, who ascended to the House's top post by putting together a bipartisan coalition that unseated former Speaker Liston Ramsey in January, made his "pork barrel" announcement last week.

Henceforth, Mavretic said, the House will abandon the custom of dividing a specified sum — usually $7 million to $10 million — among the legislators for projects in their districts.

The practice, long referred to as "pork barrel" spending, has drawn fire from Republicans, who claimed some of the money was given to unworthy recipients and that the Democratic leadership used it to keep lawmakers in line.

Some Democrats voiced surprise and resentment at Mavretic's move. Wicker said Thursday he wished Mavretic had discussed it with the Democratic caucus instead of making a unilateral decision and announcing it at a news conference.

During the caucus, some Democrats complained that funding of local projects had been "tainted un-

House Panel Again Delays Vote On Corporal Punishment Policy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH (AP) — The sponsor of a bill to let some North Carolina schools experiment with alternatives to corporal punishment remains determined, despite the second lengthy House committee meeting without a vote.

Rep. Marie Colton, D-Buncombe, said she was surprised at the resistance in the Education Committee.

"I think if we could get it through this committee, we'd have a pretty good chance of passing the House," she said, adding, "As long as they're willing to keep taking it up week after week, I'll just hang in there."

The bill would allow up to 16 school systems to ban corporal punishment for two years while experimenting with other forms of punishment. North Carolina law currently prevents schools from banning spankings, although there are restrictions on how corporal punishment is administered.

Opponents of the bill have been gradually chipping away at it. At the last meeting, the panel agreed to an amendment to let teachers expel unruly pupils and bring parents to court for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The committee agreed to an amendment Thursday to remove the court from that section, requiring instead that teachers and the principal meet with parents before reinstating the child to classes. The amendment also added a provision to let any school system withdraw from the pilot program at any time.

Then Rep. Michael Decker, R-Forsyth, offered an amendment to require that a majority of teachers vote for the pilot before their system could join it.

"I think a majority of our teachers don't want to surrender this right," he said.

Rep. Ed Warren, D-Pitt, added principals to the voting. Then Rep. Art Pope, R-Wake, suggested parents also be consulted.

Rep. Luther Jerald, D-Cumberland, objected to all the voting, saying, "We're giving away too much authority as far as elected officials go."

Rep. Alex Warner, D-Cumberland, said he couldn't accept the bill no matter how it was amended.

"I think we've got a bad bill here because every one of us is here scratching our heads to decide how we're going to implement this statewide," he said.

Rep. Steve Arnold, R-Guilford, then suddenly moved to adjourn the meeting, leaving Decker's amendment undecided.

"I know of no organized group of people who are involved in this issue who oppose it," Ms. Colton said after the meeting.

Martin Seeks Help On Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin has mailed letters to every teacher in the state in an effort to build support for his proposed 1-cent increase in the state sales tax.

The 64,324 letters cost the taxpayers $15,000, Tim Pittman, Martin's communications director, told the Durham Morning Herald Thursday.

Paul Pulley, a lobbyist for the N.C. Association of Educators, called Martin's letter "a campaign letter."

"I don't think it's appropriate for the governor to campaign for various offices at the taxpayers' expense," Pulley said.

Martin has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1992, when Terry Sanford will be up for re-election.

Pittman said the letter was not designed to bolster Martin's chances in any future campaign.

"It's not related in any way to a campaign," Pittman said. "I think that's obvious from the letter itself. It's an information letter, and no more."

"It's predictable that the NCAE would oppose the use of a letter to get the full story out to the teachers," Pittman said.

Martin has tied the proposed tax increase to statewide implementation of a merit pay plan for teachers. NCAE officials have said the program, now being tried on an experimental basis in 16 school systems, needs changes.

"After what was admittedly a false start in the budget I submitted in January, I soon came to realize that North Carolina's brighter future would require a conscious commitment from all of us," Martin wrote.

Panel Says NCCU Negligent In Death

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

N.C. Central University and the UNC system were negligent in the 1986 shooting death of a student in a dormitory and must pay his mother $100,000, the legal maximum, a N.C. Industrial Commission judge has ruled.

In a strongly worded opinion Thursday, Judge Christine Denson, a deputy commissioner, wrote that NCCU officials had ignored the high crime rate around the campus.

"One got the feeling that they (NCCU officials) were acting like ostriches with their heads in the sand by failing to recognize that they were in the highest crime area of the city of Durham ...," Ms. Denson wrote.

She wrote that the university did not have control of Chidley Hall or of the campus.

"The state, just as it is now taking a long-overdue look at the prison system, needs to decide if it's serious about providing quality education and the accoutrements thereof at NCCU," she wrote. "A partial answer, though perhaps undesirable, is a chain-link fence around the campus with limited manned-guarded entrances and exits at which IDs and automobile tags would be checked."

The victim's mother, Mazelle Bullock, would not comment on the decision.

The UNC system probably will appeal the decision to the full Industrial Commission, said Andrew Vanore Jr., chief deputy attorney general.

Charles Holland, the chairman of NCCU's board of trustees, said he was disappointed that Ms. Denson had suggested fencing the campus and that he opposed the idea.

"Fences around a university may not keep any people from intruding," he said.

Senators Howl As They Vote For A Dog

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A bill to designate the Plott hound as North Carolina's official dog easily won Senate approval, although one critic growled that the matter was a waste of time and another questioned the breed's worthiness.

"As I understand it, the Plott dog is a son of a cur that's vicious as a wildcat and bays bears," Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, said after Thursday's vote. "Apparently it's just one step above a mongrel. So I don't think this is a worthy symbol of the state of North Carolina."

But Cobb's criticism was lost in a wave of praise for the hound, which Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, said is the only dog indigenous to North Carolina.

"They are the most loyal, the most courageous, the most persevering, and they are fearless," Swain said. "They are the best example of what we would like our North Carolina humans to be."

Sen. Lura Tally, D-Cumberland, owner of a Plott hound, said it was a "great breed."

"I didn't realize I had one until I started reading about it," she said. The dog's ancestors were brought to North Carolina from Johnathan Plott, a German immigrant, in 1750, Swain said. Plott settled in the Cabarrus County area and his son moved to Haywood County, where the dog was cross-bred with a strain of cur to improve its hunting capabilities.

Since then, the breed has been kept pure, Swain said. The dog has a sleek body, floppy ears, a brindle coloring and weighs about 75 pounds in adulthood.

The Senate tentatively approved the bill 39-3. When time came for the final vote, Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner, the presiding officer, called, "All in favor will howl." The chamber erupted in laughter and mournful howls.

The bill now goes to the House.

If the measure is enacted, the Plott hound would become the latest in a long line of legislatively ordained state symbols, joining the cardinal (state bird), scotch bonnet (state shell), gray squirrel (state mammal), dogwood (state flower), honey bee (state insect), pine (state tree), channel bass (state salt water fish), emerald (state precious stone), box turtle (state reptile), and granite (state rock).

The two latest entries into the state's list of symbols, both approved in 1987, were milk (state beverage) and the shad boat (state historical boat).

Cary Facility

RALEIGH (AP) — Thanks to the area's relatively low cost of living and the room it offers for companies to grow, the town of Cary has been chosen to house a $10 million warehouse, distribution and marketing center by the largest publishing company of scholarly works in the world.

"We had a plant in New Jersey but we just outgrew it," said Jeff Seroy, publicity director of Oxford University Press Inc. "It's cost-effective and we're also building for the future..."

The press publishes more than 800 books and journals a year. The company was founded in the 15th century and is an offshoot of Oxford University in England. The publishing company, which has 6,000 titles in print, has its American headquarters in New York City.

Recognition

DURHAM (AP) — Sixty years after he began designing buildings at Duke University, the work of the late Julian Abele will be officially recognized for the first time today.

Working at the behest of James B. Duke in the 1920s and '30s, Abele designed much of Duke's stately neo-Gothic West Campus, including highly acclaimed Duke Chapel, and the elegant Georgian East Campus. Only in the past few years has it become widely known that Abele was black.

Wendelin Watson, a third-year Duke Divinity School student, describes Abele's race as "a well-kept secret" on the Durham campus.

Tonight, Watson said, Duke's Black Graduate and Professional Student Association will hold its first Julian Abele Awards and Recognition Banquet.

Part of the ceremonies will include the unveiling of a portrait of Abele, which will be hung in Allen Building, which he also designed. It will be the first portrait of a black to hang in the school's administration building.

Student Study

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina schools are failing to improve education for black students who enter school behind their white peers and lose ground as they get older, a new study says.

Robert Bridges, superintendent of Wake County schools, said Thursday at a conference on educational equity that schools must find more effective ways of teaching black students who are failing in school. He said he opposes the widespread practice of labeling such students "at risk."

"I'd rather say that our institutions are at risk of failing the child, that the homes are at risk of failing the child, that society is at risk of failing the child," he said.

According to a study presented at the conference, for the past three years, white females scored highest on the California Achievement Test with few exceptions. White males scored second best, followed by black females and then black males.

Students March

DURHAM (AP) — More than 60 black and white students marched between Duke's campuses, saying there "is still something wrong" racially at the school.

"Change is not happening fast enough. There is still something wrong," Craig McKinney, president of the Black Student Alliance, told the 100 people gathered in front of Allen Building on Duke's West Campus on Thursday.

The students presented to Provost Phillip Griffiths a list of "concerns" calling for improved treatment of blacks on campus.

The walk and list of concerns were part of National Black Student Action Day. There were similar demonstrations on up to 80 campuses across the nation, according to a press statement distributed by the Black Student Alliance.

Parents Charged

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A man and his wife are in jail under $100,000 bond each, charged with child abuse after their 9-month-old daughter was permanently disfigured when her torso apparently was dipped into boiling water.

Eric Marshall Hammett, 19, and Jennifer McCoy Hammett, 20, were charged Wednesday, according to a warrant filed at the Winston-Salem Police Department. Kathy Marie Hammett suffered second-degree burns, a skull fracture and permanent disfigurement, the warrant said.

A police spokesman said the baby's torso apparently was dipped into boiling water and the hot steam burned her face. Her feet were not burned, the spokesman said.

A Baptist Hospital spokesman said the baby was in stable condition in the hospital's burn unit.

Angry Crowd Shouts 'Kill Him' As Salcido Returns

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — A furious crowd shouted "Kill him" as a winery worker who admitted killing his wife, two of his daughters and four other people was returned to the wine country where the slayings occurred.

Ramon Salcido, 28, was whisked into the Sonoma County jail under tight security late Thursday night as about 200 people waiting outside the entrance yelled and waved signs reading "Yes on capital punishment" and "Salcido doesn't deserve to live."

"I just wanted to see this creature," said Nadia Garcia, 40, of Santa Rosa. "We are all full of anger and bitterness. I'm surprised no one got out a gun and shot him."

Salcido, who has said he had no regrets about the April 14 killings, has been charged with murder and attempted murder.

The subject of a massive manhunt, Salcido was arrested Wednesday in western Mexico, near his hometown of Los Mochis in the state of Sinaloa.

He was brought to Mexico City Thursday afternoon, deported by Mexican authorities and flown back to California on a jet belonging to "Peanuts" cartoonist Charles Schulz, who lives in Sonoma County.

The handcuffed Salcido smiled faintly at the crowd of reporters and sheriff's deputies when he stepped off the plane at the Sonoma County Airport late Thursday night.

He was quickly put in a sheriff's van, driven to the jail, then transferred to a patrol car and made to lie down as it went past the shouting crowd, sheriff's Sgt. Carl Dennis said.

"A lot of people don't have positive feelings toward this suspect," said reserve sheriff's Deputy John Childers, who guarded an area near a runway at the rural airfield. "Someone may take it on himself to act as an executioner. We don't need that. We are just trying to prevent that now."

A native of Mexico but a legal resident of the United States, Salcido told Mexican officials after his arrest that he was a U.S. citizen and asked to be returned north, according to the Mexican attorney general's office. But U.S. authorities have said they had no record that Salcido had been naturalized.

"I want to be tried in an American court and face an American jury," NBC News quoted Salcido as saying during his brief stopover in Mexico City.

Long extradition proceedings might have been necessary if Salcido had been treated as a Mexican citizen.

Salcido, a forklift operator at a Sonoma County winery 40 miles north of San Francisco, admitted the slayings Wednesday night in a TV interview but refused to discuss his motives.

He told agents he killed his American-born wife, Angela, 24, and a winery co-worker, Tracy Toovey, in a jealous rage, believing Toovey and his wife were romantically involved, according to federal officials.

Also killed in a brutal shooting and slashing spree were Salcido's mother-in-law, his two sisters-in-law and two of his young daughters. The two sisters-in-law, 8 and 12, also were raped and sodomized, and one was nearly decapitated.

His daughter, Carmina, who turns 3 Monday, is recovering from a slashed throat. She and the bodies of her sisters, 1 and 4, were found Saturday at a Sonoma County dump. Carmina identified her father as their attacker, authorities said.

Salcido so far has been charged with four counts of murder in connection with the slayings of his wife, Toovey and two daughters. He also has been charged with three counts of attempted murder in connection with attacks on Carmina, another co-worker and the co-worker's wife.

FDA Says A Little Vermin Never Hurts In Your Food

By Deborah Mesce
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Insect parts, rodent hairs and maggots don't sound appetizing, but when tossed with a salad, churned up in tomato sauce or baked in bread they're not bad at all, the government says.

The Food and Drug Administration says that though vermin and their residues are "aesthetically unpleasing," within prescribed limits they are "harmless, natural and unavoidable" in food.

Under FDA standards, for example, 3.5 ounces of tomato sauce can have up to 30 fly eggs, 11 ounces of wheat flour can have up to 450 insect fragments and a half pound of canned or frozen spinach can have as many as 100 aphids, and a pound of cocoa beans can contain up to 10 milligrams of rodent feces.

These limits are in the FDA's manual of "food defect action levels."

According to the manual, the levels "are set because it is not possible, and never has been possible, to grow in open fields, harvest and process crops that are totally free of natural defects."

The alternative — using more chemicals to control insects, rodents and other natural contaminants — "is not satisfactory because of the very real danger of exposing consumers to potential hazards from residues of these chemicals," the agency says.

In its manual, the FDA lists a range of products from apple butter to nutmeg, from popcorn to pizza sauce. For each, it also lists the level of allowed "defect" — including insects, maggots, rodent filth, fly eggs, mold, rot and mammalian excreta.

"During harvesting and processing, a great deal of this is removed, but there could be a few pieces of insects or insect bodies that get through," Paris Brickley, chief of the microanalytical branch at the FDA, said Thursday.

"But these are not harmful to health," he said. "The main objection is aesthetics, but most would not notice it in the food if it were there because most of it is microscopic." Also, some of the foreign matter, like the field insects, will be washed off by consumers before it is eaten, he said.

If the FDA found a harmful pest or contaminant, like the salmonella organism, the defect levels would not apply and the agency would take the food off the market, he said.

The agency uses its defect action levels to measure the sanitary conditions of food manufacturers and processors, he said. If contaminants are found in excess of the allowed levels, the FDA can take legal action against the manufacturer and remove the product from the market.

"Eating a fly wing may not hurt you, but it does indicate how carefully the food has been prepared," said Rodney E. Leonard, executive director of the Community Nutrition Institute, a non-profit consumer interest group based in Washington, D.C.

Leonard said it may be time for the FDA to review the standards, "to go back and examine what quality do we expect and do these standards reflect that. Some of these levels may be too high."

"There's more sensitivity today about food quality than at any time since the 1960s when we last had a major review of food safety legislation," he said. "The problem with Chilean grapes and Alar in apples indicates that the public is questioning the basis for a lot of these standards."

Prison Jobs Push Government Employment To Record Levels

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The growing need for prison and jail workers is helping push the number of public employees to record levels, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

Corrections workers were the fastest growing category as public employment climbed to a record 17.3 million people as of October 1987 — the most recent detailed figures available.

While the overall total represented an increase of 2.1 percent from 1986, corrections workers were up 9.5 percent to 425,000, the report said. Overall population growth was less than 1 percent.

"Corrections is the fastest-growing segment" of government employment across the country said Meredith De Hart, a social science analyst at the Census Bureau.

The public demand that criminals be incarcerated and kept there is growing across the nation, she said.

At the same time, many states and localities find themselves under court order to expand overcrowded jails and prisons, which then required increased staffs to operate the facilities.

The Census office that keeps track of government operations has been told to expect construction of a new prison every year in some states, said Ms. De Hart.

The 1987 corrections employment of 425,000 was up from 388,000 a year earlier. As recently as 1980 only 263,000 government employees had jobs in corrections, Census statistics show.

Other public safety categories also rose. State and local police employment was up 2.0 percent to 718,000 and fire department workers were up 2.8 percent to 335,000.

In addition, these governments employed 273,000 judicial and legal workers, up 5.0 percent from the year before.

Total government employment across the country was 17.3 million, the report said, up from 16.9 million a year earlier and the highest level ever.

Included were 3.1 million federal workers, up from 3.02 million in 1986 but still below the record 3.4 million civilian federal employees set in 1945 at the end of World War II.

After remaining in the vicinity of 2.8 million for several years the number of federal workers increased to 2.9 million in 1984 and edged over the 3.0 million mark in 1985.

The new report shows 14.2 million state and local government workers as of 1987, up 2.4 percent from 13.9 million in 1986. This, too, has been an area of steadily rising employment, although there was a dip in the recession of the early 1980s.

The largest share of federal workers were employed in national defense and international relations, with 1.1 million workers, up from 1.08 million a year earlier, the report said. At the same time employment by the Postal Service, the next largest federal job source, rose from 795,000 to 807,000.

Education was by far the largest source of state and local jobs, employing 7.4 million workers in October 1987, up 2.1 percent from the year before.

Hospitals provided 1,100,000 state and local jobs, up 0.1 percent. There were 433,000 local public welfare workers, up 0.7 percent, while health workers increased 2.7 percent to 299,000.

Employment in social service administration by state and local governments declined by 1.9 percent to 103,000.

These governments employed 553,000 highways workers, up 0.5 percent.

State and local governments had 274,000 park and recreation workers, up 2.2 percent; 102,000 housing and community development workers, unchanged; 112,000 sewer workers, up 0.9 percent and 114,000 solid waste workers, unchanged.

Airport Bans 'Dirty' Water

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Gag bottles of dirty Boston Harbor water haven't gone over very well with Logan International Airport officials, who have banned the novelties from airport gift shops.

Irving and Selma Kravetz of Quincy came up with the idea of selling 5-ounce bottles of polluted Boston Harbor Water. He collects the filthy stuff in large vats. She helps fill the little bottles.

Each bottle bears a label that promises the dirty water inside is 100 percent proof but not for drinking. As an insurance measure, the bottle caps are sealed with glue. They sell for $3 or $4.

But Massport, which runs the airport, couldn't quite swallow the idea. And since anything sold at the airport needs Massport's approval, the bottles were ordered off the shelves last week.

Jurors Begin Deliberations On North Charges

By Pete Yost

Judge Limits North's Right To Claim He Was Following Orders

WASHINGTON — A jury headed by a 34-year-old clerical worker deliberates Oliver North's fate today, after a judge sharply limited the fired White House aide's defense that he was only following orders in the Iran-Contra affair.

The jury foreman, Denise Anderson, presides over a group of nine women and three men chosen for their task 2½ months ago because they were among the few Americans who hadn't watched, read or heard anything substantial about North's televised testimony in 1987.

Ms. Anderson, a hospital employee, was picked for the jury after telling lawyers: "I don't like the news."

In two hours of instructions Thursday, the 12 jurors were told to consider only in a narrowly defined context North's assertion that all his actions were directed by higher-ups including President Reagan.

"Authorization requires clear, direct instructions to act at a given time in a given way," said U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell.

"It must be specific, not simply a general admonition or vague expression of preference."

Gesell said "neither the president" nor North's bosses "had the legal authority to order anyone to violate the law."

At the same time, the judge encouraged the jury to consider the atmosphere of secrecy that pervaded the Reagan administration in the Iran-Contra affair.

Emphasizing that "our country is governed by the rule of law," Gesell said others "ranking above or below" North may have engaged in the same kind of conduct he did.

"Some have pled guilty to charges, some await trial, some are dead, others have received immunity in exchange for testifying," said the judge. "This evidence was admitted so you would better understand the atmosphere in which, and the circumstances under which the defendant was working as these may bear" on North's intent.

Horasina McKie, one of the five alternate jurors excused Thursday by Gesell, told CBS News: "Mr. North had a choice in what he did. ... He had a choice to either say, 'No, I don't want to do this,' or 'Yes, sir, I will do this' even as it went along and he knew it was wrong."

As to Reagan's involvement, Ms. McKie said, "I can't say he knew everything, but I think he knew enough to know what was going on." CBS said she emphasized that she had not discussed the case with other jurors and thus did not know their views.

North's defense that his bosses gave him the go-ahead for everything he did could apply to as many as eight of the 12 criminal charges against him. However, the judge's instructions likely will curtail its importance in the jurors' deliberations.

Gesell emphasized a number of points that could be favorable to North.

The judge pointed out conflicting evidence over whether a proposed congressional resolution of inquiry was pending or not when North lied to the House Intelligence Committee in 1986. In the Aug. 6, 1986 session, North denied he was assisting the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. One congressional committee had already voted down the resolution.

The authorization defense also could figure in that charge in the jury's deliberations.

North testified he tried to get out of the meeting, telling national security adviser John Poindexter it would be unwise because at the heart of the resolution "were all kinds of things that could not be revealed." North said Poindexter told him to go the meeting anyway. Afterwards, Poindexter sent him a note saying, "Well done."

Gesell also said the jury may or may not wish to consider that North wrote two phony letters to make it appear that he was paying for a $13,800 home security system. The system was paid for by Iran-Contra co-defendant Richard Secord, whom North had enlisted to run arms to the Contras.

Regarding the attempted cover-up by North on the security system, the judge said "innocent persons sometimes have feelings of possible guilt, and their actions do not necessarily reflect actual guilt." North said he didn't pay for the system because the man who arranged the installation, an acquaintance of Secord's, didn't send him a bill. North wrote two phony, backdated letters about the security system after the Iran-Contra affair erupted.

After the jury was dismissed for the day, Gesell told North lawyer Barry Simon in the courtroom that the judge's comments on the security system charge had been "the strongest pro-defendant instruction I could devise."

Remaining on the jury were Caswell G. Hartridge, 61, and Helen G. Lynch, 37, whom ABC News reported had been previously involved in unrelated civil suits.

They answered "no" on jury questionnaires when asked whether they had been involved in a civil or criminal proceeding.

Gesell delayed proceedings to question jurors in private, then brushed aside a motion by North's lawyers for a mistrial. Defense lawyers decided not to press for removal of the two jurors.

The 12 counts with which North is charged carry maximum prison terms totaling 60 years and fines of $3 million upon conviction.

Bush Says He's Puzzled By Fuss Over Documents

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush is voicing bewilderment over claims that sensitive Iran-Contra documents — including some dealing with his own actions — were withheld from congressional investigators.

But Bush does say emphatically that the Reagan White House, not his, was responsible for providing documents to the committees during their investigations in 1987.

If the lawmakers now have a complaint about what was and was not made available, he said, they should contact A.B. Culvahouse, who was Reagan's White House counsel at the time.

"All I can just state is the confidence that I feel in Culvahouse and company," he said Thursday.

Bush also insisted anew that he would not discuss a document showing that he served as an intermediary in getting Honduras to help the Nicaraguan Contras. This came during a time when U.S. military aid to the rebels was banned.

"I might have something to say on it" after the completion of the trial of former Reagan White House aide Oliver North, who is accused of lying to Congress and obstructing a congressional investigation, among other charges.

"I went to Honduras, sure. That's a matter of public record," he said during the 22-minute question-and-answer session on the Colonnade next to the Rose Garden.

"Put it this way: my conscience is clear."

On other matters, Bush:

- Said he has not made any decision on new restrictions against semiautomatic weapons. Likewise, he said he has not made a decision about how to modernize the strategic nuclear arsenal or funding levels for the Star Wars missile defense program.

- Declared that selective drug testing for federal employees "is very important, and nobody will change my mind on that one." But he sidestepped questions about whether he agreed with Attorney General Dick Thornburgh's suggestion in a Baltimore Sun interview that drug testing for public housing applicants "ought to be considered."
- Said he wished there was "some dramatic plan" that could win agreement to stop the violence in Lebanon. "The problem — the short-run of it — how you stop this firing, the shelling, how you get factions to stop warring — has certainly in recent times defied solution. But we can't give up on it."
- The session with the small group of reporters was dominated by questions about the Iran-Contra documents which have surfaced for the first time during North's trial.
- Bush said he would "offer full cooperation to any request made of this administration" for information. However, he said documents from the Reagan White House were in "the control and custody" of the Federal Archives.
- "I have no reason to believe that the previous administration, the lawyers in it who worked closely with Congress, did not fulfill their obligation," Bush said.
- Asked if he would cooperate in a congressional request for an immediate and thorough investigation of whether documents had been withheld from lawmakers, Bush said, "I would refer them to the people that were in charge of the documentation, which could be Mr. Culvahouse and company, in whom I have great confidence. But if there's anything we can do to encourage that — absolutely."
- A White House spokesman, asked about the president's promise of cooperation, said he did not know specifically what the pledge might mean.

Soviet Skimmer At Work As Officials Tour Oil Scene

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NAKED ISLAND, Alaska — For a few seconds, Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr. tottered this way and that on an oil-slicked rock. A worker laboring to rid the shore of gooey oil stepped in and saved him from an embarrassing fall.

While Lujan and two congressmen were touring a section of the Prince William Sound shoreline Thursday, a giant Soviet oil skimmer was testing its booms at Resurrection Bay some 80 miles west in the Gulf of Alaska.

The Coast Guard plainly was delighted with the promise of progress brought by the 425-foot Vaidogubsky, and gains made by a 120-foot Mr. Clean III, a skimmer from Santa Barbara, Calif.

"This was a major step, having those two skimmers out there," said Coast Guard Lt. Gary Stock, who was monitoring the cleanup in Anchorage.

Exxon spokesman Henry Beathard in Valdez estimated that more than 2 million gallons of the 10.1 million-gallon spill was recoverable from the surface of the gulf and Prince William Sound. The spill occurred March 24 after the tanker Exxon Valdez hit Bligh Reef.

Lujan, Reps. Don Young, R-Alaska, and Curt Weldon, R-Pa., and a sizable entourage flew from Valdez on Thursday by helicopter to Naked Island, a remote beach 45 miles to the southwest.

The group got a look at the only area in Prince William Sound where shoreline cleanup operations have started. Exxon estimates it has cleaned 2,100 feet of the more than 300 miles of oil-splashed shore.

As Lujan inspected the cleanup effort, oil glistened off rocks or stood in gleaming puddles in the bright sun. A black stain along the driftwood-strewn beach marked the high-tide line. The smell of crude was strong.

From a distance, the shore was a palette of oil-smeared workers clad in hard hats and bright orange, yellow and black rainwear. They used fire hoses to blast oil off a 75-yard stretch of rocky beach as the sun played through the mist, casting rainbows.

Landing craft laden with heavy equipment hugged the shore, and an oil skimmer dipped up the runoff from the beach facing McPherson Passage.

Lujan, wearing an orange float suit, picked his way to the end of the beach nearest his aircraft, and in moments was posing with a fire hose for photographs.

Before it was over, several of the secretary's traveling companions had joined him. Laughing, they enthusiastically blasted the oily mess with such force that it carried over a boom and into the water workers were trying to protect. That sparked an obscenity laced tirade from people on a barge nearby.

Retreating, Lujan said, "It looks like this is going to be a big job to clean up."

But he said it was too early for him to know what he would tell President Bush come Monday.

Lujan and the congressmen were briefed early Thursday by the U.S. Coast Guard in Valdez, then by Exxon officials.

Weldon, a member of the House's Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said he was unimpressed.

"There were a lot of people covering their rear ends," he said.

Weldon noted the two briefings covered essentially the same ground, "but they were completely, diametrically opposed."

He said the question that must be answered is why — if there were a contingency plan — it was not implemented almost immediately after the spill.

Young credited the beach workers with making some headway.

"They're making progress, that's the big thing," he said.

Vice President Dan Quayle will stop in Anchorage and Valdez on May 4-5 as he returns from a Pacific Rim excursion and will tour spill sites, U.S. Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, said.

Exxon Has New Spill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAYOU SORREL, La. — A tank ruptured as it was unloaded from an Exxon barge early today and spilled 300,000 to 400,000 gallons of oily waste into the Grand River, state police said.

"Environmental officials from Exxon tell us that the material is about 90 percent water, 7 percent alcohol and 3 percent oil," said Lt. Ronnie Jones of the state police.

No one was injured, Jones said. Jones said once the sun came up the alcohol was expected to evaporate, leaving only the oil to be cleaned up. In the interim, there is a slim chance the material could catch fire, he said.

The spill happened at a remote area about 35 miles southwest of Baton Rouge, on the edge of the Atchafalaya Basin, a large swamp and marshland that is a breeding ground for a variety of water life.

"The Grand is a slow-moving river, so there has not been a tremendous amount of movement of the material," Jones said.

The barge was carrying three tanks of the waste, Jones said. Workers removed the tanks from both ends of the barge, causing it to buckle and rupture the middle tank, Jones said.

Exxon dispatched a cleanup crew from New Orleans. If the waste is 3 percent oil, at 300,000 to 400,000 gallons that would amount to 9,000 to 12,000 gallons of oil.

There was no immediate comment on the spill from Exxon officials. There was no answer at Exxon offices in New Orleans.

The Department of Environmental Quality and other state agencies were also sent to the site, Jones said.

PUBLIC NOTICE COUNTY OF PITT

Monday, May 1, 1989 2:00 p.m. (adjournment date)

If the need for additional meetings arises, notice of these meetings and a later adjournment date will be published in this paper. The Board of Equalization and Review meets for the purpose of examining the tax scroll and the new appraisals for 1989 in accordance with the laws of North Carolina.

Appraisals are on file in the Office of the Tax Assessor and should be examined prior to the meeting of the Board. For the convenience of any taxpayer wishing to appeal to the Board, please call the Tax Assessor's Office, 830-4111 for an appointment with the Board of Equalization and Review. This will enable the Tax Department to have your records available with the least possible delay.

Document Says Hunt Brothers Nearly Cornered Silver Market

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The multimillionaire Hunt brothers of Texas came within weeks of cornering the world silver market, according to a previously secret government document, but the Hunts say they were only following a family tradition of thinking — and buying — big.

Filings in the government's price-fixing case against Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt show that government investigators believe they were close to establishing a world silver monopoly in 1980.

The brothers, in their response, say the silver shopping spree was nothing out of the ordinary for the sons of legendary Texas oilman H.L. Hunt.

The government and defense documents, which had been under court seal, were obtained by The Associated Press this week through a Freedom of Information Act request.

"H.L. Hunt was a wildcat," the brothers' lawyers say in their response. "He raised his sons with a wildcat's philosophy, which involved risk-taking and rapid decision making. When the Hunts enter a field of investment, they typically do so on a relatively large scale in light of their substantial wealth."

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission contends that the brothers actually were engaged in a price-fixing scheme.

In a previously sealed submission by the CFTC to an administrative law judge, the agency contends that had the scheme not collapsed, "by the end of May 1980, they could have owned virtually the entire available world supply of deliverable .999 silver bullion."

Attorneys for the Hunts counter that their silver investments stemmed simply from their preference for investing in hard assets as a hedge against inflation and monetary uncertainty.

And they said such large purchases were in keeping with the brothers' approach to business.

At the time of the 1987 filing, Hunt attorneys said, Bunker owned a forest in Florida, the largest tract of land in northern Australia, a quarter of million square feet of building property in downtown Anchorage and the biggest piece of waterfront property in San Diego. He was one of the largest cattle raisers in the country, and owned the largest Arab coin collection in the world.

Their oil holdings "of course, are very substantial," the lawyers said, and include interests in "many of the richest fields discovered to date."

Many documents in the case had been sealed from the public view since 1985 at the Hunts' request; the stack is now more than 5 feet tall. The filings in the quasi-judicial proceeding were released by the agency this week in response to the AP request.

The CFTC has accused the brothers, heirs to one of the world's greatest fortunes, of rigging the price of silver futures between fall 1979 and March 27, 1980. That day came to be known as "Silver Thursday" as prices crashed to $10 an ounce from a one-time high of more than $50 an ounce.

Thousands of investors, who had purchased silver on credit, lost billions of dollars when they were forced to sell it to pay their debts. The Hunts themselves lost an estimated $1.3 billion.

"The prices for silver bullion and futures during that period rose to their highest levels of the century and then fell even more quickly than they had risen. Only the (Hunts') silver-buying frenzy ... accounts for the magnitude of the price rise," said a CFTC document.

It is the largest market manipulation case ever filed by the CFTC and if the Hunts lose, they could be permanently banned from trading in all futures markets and fined $100,000 for each violation of federal commodity laws.

The brothers' response to the charges offers a glimpse into jet-setting life on the international horse-racing circuit from Kentucky to France, of banking in Zurich, and of courting Arab investors.

The CFTC says it has evidence of a "tangled web" of relationships and rendezvous at luxurious locales to support charges the men schemed to corner the silver market. The agency alleges the Hunts recruited Saudi Arabian sheiks Ali Bin Mussallam and Mohammed Aboud Al-Amoudi, and Brazilian speculator Naji Robert Nahas to join their effort.

"These horse-related meetings amount to zero proof of conspiracy or manipulative intent," the Hunts responded. "There is not a scrap of evidence that these meetings resulted in any joint conduct — or even parallel transactions — with respect to silver."

Since the 1987 filing, the brothers have filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization. They face several Internal Revenue Service claims totaling many millions of dollars, and Bunker Hunt was forced to sell his beloved breeding and racing stock of horses because of setbacks in the oil industry.

They and others also have been ordered by a jury in New York to pay $136.4 million to Minpeco S.A., the Peruvian government's silver mining company, for ruined investments because of the silver price collapse.

Passover Mirrored In U.S.S.R.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A modern parallel is unfolding of the ancient Passover story of liberation — the rising exodus of Jews permitted by the Soviet Union.

The resemblances were cited as the week-long Passover observance started Wednesday evening, marking the Jewish flight from bondage in Egypt. However, Jews today don't have to rely on rituals of the past, says Theodore Ellenoff, president of the American Jewish Committee. "Before our very eyes, the gates of the Soviet Union have been thrown open, and Jews are using the opportunity to stream out."

During the first three months of this year, 9,461 Jews have been allowed to emigrate from the Soviet, triple the number in the same period last year, with projections the 1989 total may reach 40,000.

That would be the third year of a steadily rising surge of departures under the more open policies of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Pope Calls For Irish Reconciliation

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II on Thursday met with President Patrick J. Hillery of Ireland, calling for "courageous gestures of reconciliation" to stop the sectarian bloodshed in Northern Ireland.

The pope, who visited Ireland in 1979, described the country as "on the whole, a warm and loving society, secure in the rule of law and rooted in the highest ideals of justice, freedom and peace."

But he decried the "deadly climate of intimidation and violence which has caused so much suffering to both communities in Northern Ireland during the past 20 years."

"Only a genuine willingness to engage in dialogue and courageous gestures of reconciliation goes to the heart of the underlying causes of the present complex situation of conflict," he said.

The pope urged all parties in the conflict to find a political accord "that will respect the legitimate rights and aspirations of all the people of Northern Ireland."

"Signs of hope are not lacking, and we shall pray and be confident that a process guided by reason and mutual acceptance will not be long in bringing an end to bloodshed and the secure advent of a just reconciliation."

At the end of the meeting, the pope said he would be in Ireland again in the next few days. He said he would be in Ireland again in the next few days. He said he would be in Ireland again in the next few days.

Aging Ministry Faces Catholic Orders With Fiscal Nightmares

By Judy Daubenmier
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sister Paula Hickens, 79, in a convent retirement wing

NAZARETH, Mich. — For 53 years, Sister Alice Trese labored in the Lord's vineyard as a college registrar and social worker for the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Now 89, Sister Alice spends her days in the order's retirement home, a wing on the convent she entered as a young woman in 1929.

"I can't get used to the idea I can't do what I used to do," says Sister Alice, who worked as a receptionist and in the order's laundry even after retiring seven years ago. "I can't get used to the idea of failing health."

Now, Sister Alice and her retired friends attend Mass every day, say their rosaries, and root for the Detroit Tigers just like they have since their younger days.

These frail women of God are part of an aging breed of Roman Catholic nuns and monks moving into retirement while fewer and fewer young women and men are entering convents and monasteries to support them.

The result is a fiscal nightmare that has left an estimated $3 billion deficit in retirement budgets across the country, says Sister Mary Oliver Hudon.

She is director of a retirement project of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Conference of Major Superiors of Men and the Leadership Conference of Women Religious.

Nearly 36 percent of the estimated 122,000 nuns and monks in the United States are over age 70 and less than 1 percent are under 30, she says.

"The base that can support the older religious (nuns and monks) has just been eroded away," she said.

Few orders stashed money away for retirement, in part because nuns worked for low wages and because they preferred to spend the money building hospitals or adding services, Sister Mary Oliver says.

"They made that choice on the assumption that when people were no longer active, they died," she says. "It sounds terrible, but I don't think anybody foresaw the social changes" that led to longer life spans and far fewer people entering religious life.

Diocesan priests, who aren't members of religious orders, weren't included in the retirement project, she says. Their pensions are funded by all the churches in the diocese for which they worked, rather than a single order.

The Sisters of St. Joseph mirror the national picture, with 220 of their 455 members retired, says Sister Betty Veenhuis, president of the congregation.

The order, founded 100 years ago by nuns from New York who came west to staff Borgess Hospital in Kalamazoo, once had 950 members, orphanages, and Catholic schools across southern Michigan.

Thirty years ago, Sister Betty says, as many as 50 young women would have been preparing to enter the convent, which comprises the spot on the map called Nazareth.

Now it has only 18 women under 40 and just one woman — in her 40s — preparing for admission, she says. At the other end of the spectrum, 13 are over 90.

Sister Betty says mergers with other orders could bolster the sisters' ranks in the future, as could discussions with a group of about 100 lay people in the Kalamazoo area who want to be affiliated in some way with the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Like many orders, the Sisters of St. Joseph joined Social Security in 1971 when the law was changed to permit nuns and monks to make back payments and enter the system.

Sister Emily Simons, treasurer of the order, says Social Security provides just $2,000 of the $10,000 annual cost of caring for a retired member. The rest comes from the earnings of younger sisters, who take vows of poverty and turn their earnings over to the order.

But Sister Betty says that isn't enough and this year the order will need to tap the interest on a retirement fund that it has been paying into since 1971.

Sister Emily says the congregation's assets, including its members' earnings, Social Security, retirement fund and the proceeds from selling all its property except the motherhouse, would be 45 percent short of the amount needed to care for the current members until their death.

She estimates the deficit to be in the millions of dollars, but declines to be more specific.

The sisters know of the looming fi-ancial crisis and try to cut corners, Sister Betty says.

"I don't think they at all fear that we're going to run out of money and that they're going to be on the street," she says.

"It simply calls us to good stewardship and good planning and good use of our resources over the next five or 10 years."

Sister Mary Oliver says some orders try to sell off their land and buildings, but often can't find buyers for their aging facilities.

Despite the growing problem, she says, most orders still can pay their bills.

"There is not a sister or brother I know of who is starving or not getting medical care," she says. "The crunch is going to come in five to 10 years."

Sister Betty is putting her faith in old-fashioned Christian charity and a committee that advises the order on investment decisions.

In December, Michigan Catholics contributed more than $1.45 million to a new fund set up to bail out religious orders, says Sister Monica Kostelny of the Michigan Catholic Conference.

Final figures aren't in, but Sister Mary Oliver expects more than $20 million will be collected nationwide in the first of 10 annual appeals.

The funds will go first to desperate orders, such as one with 17 of its 18 members over 70, and then be divided among the others' retirement funds, she says.

Ohio Pair Relies On Signs Of Love To Confront Obstacles In Marriage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAYTON, Ohio — Marriage grows on signs of love that every married couple knows.

For Steve and Barbara Dunaway, the signs are different. His wife's signs to him fall on deaf ears.

When Dunaway leaves in the morning for his maintenance job, it isn't enough for Barbara to give a good-morning groan, turn over and forget whatever he said to her.

Steve, 31, is deaf. The only way Barbara, 30, can receive the message "is to open my eyes and focus them. At 6 in the morning, it's a shock, sometimes."

While they were still dating the couple had their first fight, and Barbara was just beginning to learn sign language.

"He got mad, went into a bathroom and locked the door. I was yelling, pounding, so frustrated. There was absolutely nothing I could do about it."

That was five years ago. Today the Dunaways work together teaching sign language to others at Family Services Association and negotiating all the obstacles of a hearing-deaf marriage.

Even the obstacle of a husband who loves to go fishing.

"Steve loves to fish, I mean for hours," Barbara says. She signed the words so her husband could follow the conversation.

"I never fished until I met him, and I still don't like it unless we get a lot of action."

A few years ago, they went to Angler's Day at Hara Arena, and when an interpreter failed to show, they asked Barbara to fill in. It wasn't easy, but she kept coming back, learned the signs for a lot of fishing jargon and now is the regular interpreter for the deaf at the show.

While basic sign language can be picked up quickly if the person is motivated, Steve and Barbara say there is always something new to learn: computer language, space flight language, popular or slang terms.

"Slang is really hard for the deaf," Barbara says. "They have their own slang idioms. English idioms, such as the pot calling the kettle black, may mean nothing to them."

As everyday marrieds trying to communicate, Barbara can get Steve's attention by pounding on the floor. If he is upstairs, she can flip a light off and on, and "we meet halfway on the stairs."

As hands move and fingers flash, the way they affectionately look at each other, it's been more than halfway.

Film Crew Is Working To Blend Into Durham

By Robin P. Teater
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DURHAM — Portable dressing rooms and rented trucks filled with lighting equipment line the shady avenues of the tranquil neighborhood.

Across the street and beyond the flowerbeds, black plastic strung across the front door of the stately, colonial mansion blocks out the sunny, spring morning. A woman seated near the walkway holding a walkie-talkie yells "Quiet, please."

Inside a young woman with a bloodied face is forced down the grand staircase by two armed soldiers. The lady of the house questions the sight, while a handsome soldier enters and drags the young woman, kicking and screaming, from the house.

Actors Faye Dunaway, Natasha Richardson and Aidan Quinn are rehearsing a scene for the film "The Handmaid's Tale," based on Margaret Atwood's novel about life in the near future under right-wing, military rule.

In the movie, the effects of pollution, nuclear accidents and genetic experimentation have taken their toll, leaving most women infertile. Those still able to bear children are called handmaids and are assigned to commanders — men of the ruling elite.

Miss Richards, daughter of actress Vanessa Redgrave and known for her starring role in "Patty Hearst," is the film's heroine. She plays a handmaid assigned to bear children for the commander, played by Robert Duvall.

Miss Dunaway plays the commander's barren wife, while Quinn plays the commander's driver who becomes the handmaid's lover.

The filming, which began in February, has been done entirely in North Carolina. The first scenes were shot in the North Carolina mountains, near Boone. More recent locations have included St. Mary's College in Raleigh and the American Tobacco Co. and Duke University in Durham.

Last month the filming sparked controversy when hanging scenes were filed in front of Duke Chapel. Some alumni and faculty said the sight was blasphemous to the chapel, while others called the film thought-provoking and moral.

"We needed a place where we had lots of seasons and we had winter, spring and snow and flowers," said publicist Mary Lugo. "The book is set in a university town and Duke is absolutely perfect."

For their last few weeks of filming, the cast and crew have taken over a 58-year-old, 10,000-square-foot Durham mansion owned by Lars and Mary Hunsvald, but the couple is still living there.

"It's a huge house — just the two of them," Ms. Lugo said. "We're only filming one room at a time. They watch. They're very fascinated."

"It's like a breath of spring," Mrs. Hunsvald said. "They come to the kitchen for my bread. They're just like real people."

Michael Stroud, a locations manager based in Wilmington who finds sites for filmmakers, said he knew producer Danny Wilson wanted to make "The Handmaid's Tale" in North Carolina.

"We really hadn't decided on Durham until we found this house ... Coupled with Duke, it made this the ideal place to be," Stroud said.

Wilson acknowledged it was a plus that North Carolina is a right to work state, which allows filmmakers to use non-union workers.

The $13 million movie, directed by award-winning filmmaker Volker Schlöndorff, boasts a cast of more than 100 main cast members and about 3,000 extras. Wilson estimated 60 percent of the cast and crew were North Carolinians.

Organization Will Help Cut Closet Chaos

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL

This year, instead of spring cleaning, try spring organizing.

Ladies' Home Journal offers a treasure trove of ideas to help cut through chaos and clutter. And what better place to begin but in the closet?

One key to keeping a closet neat is to store clothes by type. Add shoe shelves. Install extra clothing rods to hold trousers and shirts. Make the most of closet doors by hanging several mini-shopping bags from hooks to hold lingerie, pantyhose and socks.

Choose one type of hanger both to save space and to create a neater look. To add charm, use floral storage boxes and tuck scented sachets in corners.

When reorganizing a closet, take stock of clothing as well. A chaotic closet usually contains too many outdated and ill-fitting fashions that need to be thrown out or donated to charity.

Toss out anything stained or torn beyond repair.

'Mixed Up' Took Right Step By Reaching Out To Find Help

Dear Abby: I am a 16-year-old girl and I want to drop out of school. Some people tell me I shouldn't drop out, and some say I'm wasting my time in school. (I am not a very good student.)

Can you give me some pointers on how to make school easier for me so I won't have to drop out? I got kicked out of school for two semesters and right now it is very hard for me. I have only 30 credits and it will take me a while to graduate.

I am so far behind now, I feel like calling it quits. I have a hard time getting up in the morning, and hate taking all that hassle for falling so far behind in my schoolwork. It would be a lot easier to just quit and find some kind of job. Lots of people make it without a high school diploma.

Please tell me what to do. — Mixed Up In Bay City, Mich.

Dear Mixed Up: You are not as "mixed up" as you say you are. The person who asks for help is thinking clearly and wants some input before making an important decision.

Drop out? No way! Go to your teachers and tell them that you are determined to stay in school and graduate. Ask for their suggestions. (You may need tutoring.) Concentrate on your school work and do not permit yourself to sleep late — force yourself to get out of bed in the morning. It may take you a while to graduate, but it will be worth it. (It's the exceptional genius who can "make it" without a high school diploma.) Hang in there, and good luck.

Dear Abby: My fiance and I are planning a simple, intimate wedding in my home, after which we will depart for a brief but romantic honeymoon.

A longtime friend of mine told me not to arrange anything for our wedding night because she wanted to take care of it. When I asked her what she had in mind, she told me it was going to be a surprise — that I would have to "trust" her.

Well, neither my fiance nor I want any surprises on our wedding night, so after much consternation, I finally gathered my courage and told my friend that I appreciated her generosity, but our honeymoon plans had already been made, so she shouldn't plan any "surprises" for our wedding night.

Her reaction was a mixture of hurt and hostility. Abby, do you think we acted reasonably in declining her offer? Or should we have gone along with her surprise?

She was so offended that I didn't "trust" her that our friendship has cooled to where she is barely speaking to me.

Was I wrong? Should I have let her surprise me? — Hates Surprises

Dear Hates: You were not wrong. This friend was very presumptuous to try to intrude herself on your wedding night. You owe her no apologies.

Dear Abby: A couple we know were recently married. Yesterday we received their wedding invitation — it was postmarked two days after the wedding.

Several months ago, they told us they were keeping their wedding very small — just family members and a few very close friends, which apparently we were not.

Are we supposed to acknowledge this purposely late invitation with a gift? I think if they really wanted us at their wedding, they would have sent the invitation on time. If not, they could have sent an announcement. How do you feel about it? — Feeling Slighted

Dear Feeling: Same as you. Send a congratulatory card and wish them well.

Dear Abby: You reach more peo-

Daily Dose Of Lecithin May Stop Memory Loss

By Richard Cole
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Find yourself forgetting names and appointments, mislaying keys and groping for words with increasing frequency as you grow older?

Two daily tablespoons of lecithin, a common health-food staple, could help.

"The medical community accepts that there may be a role for lecithin in aiding memory," said neurologist Barry Baumel of the Neurological Centers of South Florida. Baumel and Florence Safford, a Florida International University social work professor, studied the effects of lecithin last year.

In their study, 41 subjects aged 50 to 80 were given two tablespoons a day of lecithin for four weeks and 20 others received placebos. They kept logs of memory-loss incidents the seven days before and after taking the substance.

Ninety percent of the lecithin group had a significant decrease in memory lapses, Safford said. The placebo group had 60 percent more such lapses, though that may have resulted from increased awareness because of keeping track.

In addition, 40 percent of lecithin takers "reported an improvement in mood, a decrease in anxiety and a general sense of well being," she said. None of the placebo takers reported any change in mood.

The study was limited to people with mild memory loss, not those with the severe symptoms or Alzheimer's disease, for whom lecithin already has failed to show significant results, Ms. Safford said.

Lecithin contains lots of B vitamins, particularly one called choline, known to improve the work of neurotransmitters — brain cells that fire electric charges that make our thought processes work. "By adding choline to the diet, you are helping this brain mechanism to fire faster," Ms. Safford said.

"There may not be dramatic changes. We're not looking at people suddenly becoming geniuses. But even if it helps a little bit, we should try it."

But choline needs to pass the blood-brain barrier, which keeps harmful chemicals from damaging the brain. Lecithin, which is similar to chemicals in the brain, turns out to be an ideal transporter. "It has an emulsifier that allows it to pass through the blood-brain barrier," Safford said.

The lecithin is taken in granule form, mixed with a liquid like fruit juice or sprinkled on cereal, rather than in capsules, she said. "You'd have to take 16 to 20 capsules a day to equal the same amount as a tablespoon."

The only reported ill effect from lecithin was mild diarrhea.

ple in your column than anyone I can think of, so please publish this.

Baby sitters who sit in a parent's home and earn more than $50 during a calendar quarter must pay Social Security tax and income tax on their earnings, if the parent who employs them chooses to claim a Child Care Credit on her tax return. Why? Because in order to claim the Child Care Credit, the parent must fill out a "Form W-10 Dependent Care Provider's Identification and Certification," which lists the baby sitter's name, address and Social Security number.

If the parent decides to claim the Child Care Credit, the baby sitter's pay should be increased enough to cover the resulting taxes (at least 32 percent) when federal, state and Social Security taxes are figured in.

When you consider that the Child Care Credit is only 20 percent to 30 percent (depending on your income) of the amount actually paid out for child care, wouldn't it be less expensive for everyone if the parent decided not to claim that credit? — A Kentucky Taxpayer

Dear Taxpayer: Yes. And when many mothers on limited incomes realize that — they will probably forgo the "credit." Thanks for pointing it out.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, resuming the rally that carried it to 18-month highs earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 6.60 to 2,383.98 by noontime on Wall Street.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 692 up, 516 down and 589 unchanged.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .49 to 171.79.

Navy Has No Witnesses To Blast

Delaware, site of the largest military mortuary. Navy honor guards carried the coffins off a camouflaged C-5 Galaxy cargo plane.

The bodies had been airlifted by helicopter from the Iowa while it was anchored offshore from Roosevelt Roads Naval Station in Puerto Rico, and placed on the cargo plane for the flight home.

Across the nation, teams of Navy officers and chaplains broke the news to the sailors' next of kin.

Reward Posted

RALEIGH (AP) — The state is offering a reward of up to $2,500 in the disappearance of a New Bern convenience store clerk.

Christine Grady disappeared from the Kwik Mart in New Bern at about 2 a.m. Dec. 18. Police responding to an alarm at the store found nobody inside and no money or merchandise missing.

Ms. Grady's coat, purse, car and keys were found undisturbed. A register tape showed the last purchase as a pack of chewing gum at 2 a.m. The gum was still on the counter.

Polish Artists

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Museum of Art has arranged a display of 54 works by Polish artists from the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the first such exhibit in the Southeast.

Museum Director Richard Schneiderman said the works will be selected from the National Museum of Poznan in Poland. The paintings are not scheduled to arrive in Raleigh until the spring of 1992.

Masonboro Island

WILMINGTON (AP) — Another 16 acres of Masonboro Island should be in state hands soon, giving the state almost the entire southern half of the undeveloped barrier island it wants to preserve.

The owners of the land, near the island's southern tip, have signed an option to sell the property to the state, and state officials say they plan to seal the $120,000 deal soon.

The state is trying to buy and preserve Masonboro as the fourth site in North Carolina's national estuarine research reserve. The longest strip of undeveloped beach south of Cape Lookout, the 8-mile-long barrier island is between Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach in New Hanover County.

Adm. Jerome Johnson, the commander of the U.S. 2nd Fleet who was aboard the Iowa, said "the fire and explosion was instantaneous."

Navy officials aboard the Iowa had scheduled firing 22 rounds. Four rounds were fired from the No. 1 turret and immediately after the commander had given the order to load and prepare the gun in the No. 2 turret, the explosion occurred.

Capt. Larry Sequist, a former captain of the Iowa, told reporters earlier in the day, "It seems from the reports that those powders exploded." Six 110-pound sacks of powder are rammed into each gun after it is loaded with a 1,900-pound shell.

Naval officers familiar with the Iowa said an explosion can occur if a gun breech is cracked, but Sequist stressed, "we simply do not know what caused that powder to go."

None of the four battleships of the Iowa class, which saw service in World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars, had previously experienced such an explosion, Pentagon officials said.

Wednesday's explosion brought the worst loss of life for the Navy since a 1977 accident off Spain, in which 49 sailors died when a launch returning them to the USS Guam and the USS Trenton was struck by a Spanish freighter.

Except for two World War II Japanese battleships and the current Navy aircraft carriers, the 58,000-ton ships of the Iowa class are the largest warships in the world.

Six ECU Students Facing Drug Charges

Six East Carolina University students were arrested on drug charges this morning as part of an undercover investigation by Greenville police, agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and officers of the ECU public safety department.

Greenville police Capt. R.M. Nichols said the investigation, which began Feb. 21, was concluded with the arrest of the students. Nichols said other arrests are pending in connection with the operation.

Those taken into custody today and the charges against them include:

ECU Gridders Set For Public Unveiling

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Sixth annual Great Pirate Purple/Gold Pigskin Pigout Party is expected to draw record crowds this weekend as the general public gets its first look at new coach Bill Lewis' first East Carolina football team.

The annual Purple/Gold scrimmage game, which winds up spring practice, will begin at 3:30 p.m. Saturday in Ficklen Stadium.

The Pirates, however, held their last "real" scrimmage on Wednesday. Saturday's game is just for fun and show, with little at stake for the players. Rather than having the first units go against each other, and so the like, the senior members of the team were divided into two groups, and each of those drafted the remaining players to set up the competition.

The weekend got off to an early start on Thursday night when those participating in today's golf tournament got together for a social and to auction off various celebrities.

The golf tournament began this morning at 8:30 a.m. at Brook Valley Country Club. A banquet will be held tonight at the Hilton for the players and other guests.

Chief celebrities for the weekend will be two Miller Lite All-Stars, Larry Csonka, formerly of the Miami Dolphins, and Ben Davidson, ex-Raider all-star. In addition, Terry Long, East Carolina's only consensus All-America pick, now with the Pittsburgh Steelers, will be in attendance. Davidson and Long are both expected to take part in the golf tournament, with Csonka arriving tonight to take part in other activities planned around the weekend.

Tonight's activities, in addition to the banquet, will be a mini-carnival, featuring hot-air balloon rides, starting at 6 p.m. in the Ficklen Stadium area. The annual pig cooking contest will also highlight the evening. The pigs arrive at the stadium at 7 p.m. with cooking starting at 10:30 p.m.

A live beach band performance will run from 9 p.m. until midnight, with a fireworks display set for 10 p.m.

East Carolina's baseball team will face Virginia Commonwealth in a 7 p.m. game at Harrington Field.

Saturday, the pigs will be judged from 7 to 9 a.m., and barbecue plates will go on sale at 10 a.m.

The Punt, Pass and Kick Contest, for youths 8-13 will be held at 9 a.m. with the finals at halftime of the football game in Ficklen Stadium. A Pig-Out Softball Slugfest will also begin at 9 a.m. at the ECU softball field.

The all-stars will be available for autographs from 10:30 until 11:30 a.m., and various other contests and stunts will be going on throughout the morning and afternoon, including a dunkin' booth and a suntan bikini contest.

The ECU lacrosse club will face Ferrum College at noon.

The spring game begins at 3:30 p.m.

Rounding out the day's activities will be a second baseball game between the Pirates and VCU, once again starting at 7 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Listed below are the rosters for the two teams:

Baseball Notebook:

A Tough Opponent

After East Carolina's Pirates fell to UNC-Wilmington in the fateful game on Monday night, more than one fan was overheard to say, "Thank goodness, they don't play football."

That was in reference to UNC-Wilmington's seeming dominance over East Carolina in sports over the past few years.

Well, that's true and then again it's not. Certainly in basketball, the Pirates have struggled. They haven't beaten the Seahawks since the 1984-85 season, losing the last 10 in a row.

In Coach Gary Overton's tenure, the Pirates have lost nine while winning eight. Twice, however, the Pirates met the Seahawks when it really counted, in the Colonial Athletic Association tournament and beat them both times.

However, it is true that in each of the last four seasons, UNCW has won two of three regular season meetings. The last time the Pirates won two of three was in 1985, the final year the Pirates were in the ECAC-South. The Seahawks loss in the final game of the set knocked them out of a berth in that tournament.

In the 1980's the two teams are exactly even. Each has won 16 games.

Ahead, however, lies the CAA Tournament, where it really counts. And tradition is against the top seeded team. Never once has the number one seed won the tournament, nor has the host team won.

That's two strikes the Seahawks must overcome if they are to earn the league's NCAA regional berth.

An Old Friend Is Back Again

Tonight and Saturday night, an old friend of the Pirates will be back in Harrington Field as Virginia Commonwealth comes to town to face the Pirates in a pair of single games.

Tony Guzzo is the coach of the Rams and has led them from obscurity to national ranking in his tenure with the club. Guzzo, who is an East Carolina graduate, served as a graduate assistant with the Pirates under former coach Hal Baird. He later took the head coaching job at Division III North Carolina Wesleyan, building that school into a national power.

Now, he's gone on to VCU and appears headed in the same direction. Guzzo, in his six year at VCU has a 170-170-1 record. Last year, however, GREENSBORO — Bill Glasson just had sinus surgery and Don Shirey Jr. has an identity crisis. David Ogrin would like to change his luck, and Jim Booros and Tom Sieckmann wouldn't mind improving on theirs.

A soap opera? A dime-store novel? Hardly. It's the feelings of the co-leaders after one round of the Greater Greensboro Open.

All five golfers had a chance to walk away with the lead to themselves at Forest Oaks Country Club. Today, they will tee off with portions of first place.

Glasson has already had four operations on his knees. About a month ago, after talking to a half-dozen doctors, he had surgery to open up blocked sinuses which made him nauseous and drained him of stamina. He admits to one thing that motivated him to play in the GGO.

"I got bored at home," Glasson said. "I don't know if I'm hurting myself or I'm not hurting myself. I'm a golfer. I'm supposed to play and I'm playing," he says.

Glasson posted four birdies on the front nine and had the lead to

3rd Try The Charm In Signing Aikman

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING, Texas — It took Jimmy Johnson three shots at Troy Aikman before he finally got his man.

It took a six-year contract for $11.2 million, including a $2 million bonus, to land the UCLA quarterback.

Aikman became the quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys' future on Thursday when he signed the richest rookie contract in NFL history. He will be selected by the Cowboys, who have the first choice in Sunday's NFL draft.

Johnson said he had been sweating the signing for two weeks.

"He turned me down out of high school and went to Oklahoma," said Johnson, who was then coach at Oklahoma State. "Then when I was at Miami I tried to get him when he left Oklahoma, but he went to UCLA. I was afraid he would turn me down a third time."

Ironically, Oklahoma State broke Aikman's leg in his sophomore season and while he was out he decided to transfer to UCLA.

"Thanks for breaking my leg, Coach," Aikman said. "You did me a favor."

Vinny Testaverde of Tampa Bay signed a six-year contract for $8.2 million when he came out of Miami in 1987.

Warren Moon recently signed a contract with the Houston Oilers for five years at $2 million per season.

Leigh Steinberg, Aikman's agent, also negotiated that contract. "It was the highest contract for a rookie," Steinberg said.

The 6-foot-3, 217-pound Aikman of Henryetta, who played two years at UCLA after transferring from Oklahoma, was 20-4 for the Bruins. He completed 60 percent of his passes and had 41 scoring tosses to only 17 interceptions.

Aikman was the most valuable player in the Cotton Bowl, leading UCLA to a 17-3 victory over Arkansas. He also was named the winner of the Davey O'Brien award as the nation's best quarterback. He was third in the Heisman Trophy balloting.

Rams Garner EPC Lead

Six-Run Fourth Inning Propels 11-2 Rout Of Jaguars

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — Six and 12 proved to be big numbers for Greene Central Thursday against Farmville Central.

The Rams scored six runs, while sending 12 batters to the plate, in the fourth inning to pave the way to a 11-2 high school baseball romp over the Jaguars.

The game was to decide who would emerge as the early front-runner in the Eastern Plains Conference. Greene Central did so impressively, improving to 7-5 overall with the win and 3-0 in the conference. Farmville Central dipped to 6-5 and 3-1.

"They just beat us today," Jaguar coach Billy Best said. "This is our third game in three days and we've had to pitch everybody, so we're tired. But that's not to take anything away from Greene Central because they definitely outplayed us today."

The Rams entered the third inning deadlocked at 2-2 with the Jaguars.

But that soon changed as consecutive singles by Rob Davis, Swindell Flowers, Jimmy Hardy and Jason Plead, brought across the first two runs of the inning for Greene Central.

Farmville starting pitcher Troy Puryear then gave up three more walks and a single to Cedrick Collins allowing three more runs to score before he was taken from the game.

Reliever Monty King then issued a bases-loaded walk to Davis scoring the final run of the inning.

"We didn't start hitting the ball until our third time around (the lineup)," Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum said. "We've got to get production hitting the ball to be successful and today we got that."

Defensively, the Rams got a complete game performance from Reggie Hill on the mound. Hill gave up four hits, struck out seven and walked one.

"Hill threw pretty good for us today," Fulghum said. "For the most part, our pitching has done a good job all year, but our defense has let us down. Today (though) we had only one error."

The Rams struck again with the big inning in the top of the sixth when they sent nine batters to the plate and scored a trio of runs.

Cornelius Hill and Collins got the inning started with a pair of singles. McKeel then pushed across the first run with a double to leftfield, setting up a two-run single by Davis to wrap up the scoring in the game.

Farmville got off to an early lead in the game when Kevin Wade ripped a home run over the leftfield fence in the bottom of the second for a 1-0 Jaguar advantage.

The Rams quickly answered in the

Conley, North Pitt Lead Wachovia Chase

D.H. Conley of the Coastal Conference and North Pitt of the Eastern Plains Conference have taken the lead in the race for their respective leagues' Wachovia Trophy after the end of the winter sports program.

Conley has earned 143 1/2 points with a second-place finish in the state wrestling tournament and girls' basketball tournament, giving them a commanding lead with a total of 163 1/2 for the year thus far.

Washington and West Carteret are tied for second with 85 points while Havelock is fourth with 62 1/2. They are followed by East Carteret with 30, West Craven with 25 and North Lenoir with 20.

In the Eastern Plains, North Pitt added 14 1/4 points to its total with first place finish in girls' varsity and boys' junior varsity basketball. That gives the Panthers a total of 27 1/4 points on the year.

Ayden-Grifton is close behind with 25 3/4, followed by Farmville Central with 22 1/2. They are trailed by Greene Central with 22 1/4, South Lenoir with 17 1/2, C.B. Aycock with 10 1/4 and Pamlico with 10.

Northeastern, with a first-place tie in basketball, has moved into the lead in the Big East Conference, earning 17 points in the winter for a 58-point total.

Rose High School is hot on their heels with 55, followed by Northern Nash with 46 and Wilson Fike with 44. Wilson Hunt is next with 38, followed by Rocky Mount with 26 1/2, Kinston with 25 1/2, and Wilson Beddingfield with 17.

Hertford County has the lead in the Northeastern Conference, earning 41 winter points with a first place finishes in varsity and junior varsity basketball.

Edenton is second with 66 1/2 points while Northampton East had 66. Plymouth is next with 60 1/2, followed by Roanoke Rapids with 59, Williamston with 56 1/2 and Roanoke with 54.

North Edcombe finished second in both boys and girls basketball to earn 82 1/2 points for a total of 170 points in the Tobacco Belt Conference.

Chocowinity and Belhaven are tied for second with 152 1/2, followed by Bath with 100. Jamesville and Columbia are tied with 65, followed by Creswell with 62 1/2, Bear Grass with 60, Mattamuskeet with 57 1/2 and Aurora with 50. Each conference determines its own point system.

E.B. Aycock Rolls To 19-2 Victory

FARMVILLE — E.B. Aycock's baseball team improved to 2-1 for the year with a 19-2 win over Farmville Middle School Thursday.

Al Dibaise led the way for Aycock at the plate, going 3-4.

Aycock will return to action Monday at home against Bethel.

Coastal CC Defeats PCC Softball Team

JACKSONVILLE — Coastal Carolina Community College rolled past Pitt Community College, 14-9, in softball action Thursday.

Pitt was led by Kim Bridges, who went 3-4, while Holly Glover and Tonya Ross had two hits apiece.

Pannill 500 Should Impact On Points Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Pannill Sweatshirts 500 at the Martinsville, Va., Speedway could play a big part in the NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing standings, said leader Dale Earnhardt.

But as close as the standings are, they're about guaranteed to change after the race, the three-time Winston Cup champion said.

Earnhardt will carry a three-point lead over second-place Geoff Bodine of Chemung, N.Y., into Sunday's race. The Winston Cup teams will begin arriving at Martinsville Friday morning for pole qualifying Friday afternoon.

Northern Nash Girls Rampettes, 1-0

Northern Nash's girls' soccer team scored a goal at the 85:30 overtime mark Thursday to slip past Rose 1-0 in a Big East Conference matchup.

The win upped Northern Nash to 1-6-1 for the year, while the Rampettes dipped to 2-4-1.

Northern Nash had 10 shots on goal during the game, while Rose had eight.

Rose goalie Susan Grimsley had five saves as did Northern Nash goalie Amy Parrish.

The Rampettes will return to action Tuesday at Rocky Mount.

Bullets Keep Hopes Alive With Victory

By Bill Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Washington Bullets are refusing to bomb out of the NBA playoffs despite shooting plenty of blanks against the Chicago Bulls.

The Bullets' starters scored a total of 27 points and were 11-for-44 from the field Thursday night, but Washington outscored the Bulls 53-45 in the second half for a 100-98 victory.

The victory, combined with Boston's 137-117 loss at New York, pulled Washington within one game of the Celtics in the race for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth. Each team has two games remaining, and the Bullets will advance to the playoffs if they finish in a tie with Boston because of a 4-2 edge in head-to-head games.

Rookie reserve Ledell Eackles scored a season-high 28 points and John Williams added 21 for the Bullets, who handed Chicago its seventh loss in eight games.

Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 30 points, but was held to four assists and five rebounds, while committing six turnovers.

Eackles scored eight points and Williams two during a 10-0 third-quarter run by the Bullets that cut a 65-54 deficit to one point with 3:17 left in the period.

The Bulls led 74-71 after three quarters, but the Bulls outscored them 7-0 over the first two minutes of the fourth period.

A pair of 3-pointers by John Paxson helped the Bulls tie the game 96-96 with 2:21 left, but Eackles made two free throws 20 seconds later to put in front for good.

Knicks 137, Celtics 117

Atlantic Division champion New York, playing without Patrick Ewing because of his sore knee, routed Boston as Mark Jackson scored 29 points and Eddie Lee Wilkins had six during a 13-0 run at the start of the second half.

New York extended an eight-point halftime lead to 82-61 with 9:33 left in the third quarter as Wilkins, averaging less than four points a game, got free inside for three layups during the 13-0 run.

The Celtics got no closer than 14 the rest of the way, the last time at 96-82 before Jackson responded with two of his five 3-pointers for a 102-82 advantage.

Kevin McHale scored 23 points for the Celtics, who were unable to win consecutive games on the road all season and are now 0-25 on the road against winning teams.

Lakers 118, Kings 115
Los Angeles opened a one-game lead in the Pacific Division and Western Conference when James Worthy scored eight of his season-high 38 points in the last five minutes against Sacramento.

The victory extended the Lakers' homecourt winning streak against the Kings to 36 regular-season games and 38 games including playoffs since 1974.

Wayman Tisdale had 22 points and Harold Pressley 21 for the Kings, while Byron Scott had 20 points and Magic Johnson 19 points and 16 assists for Los Angeles.

The Lakers, who will earn the homecourt advantage in the Western Conference playoffs if they can win one of their last two games, had a five-point lead with 8:20 left in the game before a 13-4 run put Sacramento ahead 107-103 with 3:08 to play.

But Worthy hit a layup and tipped in a missed shot by Scott in a 42-second span to tie the score 107-107 with 2:16 left. Worthy's four points ignited a 9-3 spurt that gave Los Angeles a 112-107 margin with 52 seconds remaining.

SuperSonics 124, Trail Blazers 118
Seattle clinched fourth place and a homecourt advantage in the first round of the playoffs while keeping Portland from capturing the Western Conference's last postseason berth.

Chicago's Bill Cartwright blocks Ledell Eackles shot attempt

Dale Ellis and Xavier McDaniel scored 31 points apiece for the Sonics, winners of seven straight and 7-1 overall since McDaniel was made a starter over Michael Cage.

Portland, which needs a victory for itself or a loss by Dallas in the final two games to earn the conference's No. 8 playoff berth, stayed close despite the absence of center Kevin Duckworth, who missed the game because of strep throat.

Jerome Kersey scored 30 points, Kevin Porter 28 and Clyde Drexler 21 for the Trail Blazers.

Nuggets 136, Spurs 113
Denver snapped a five-game losing streak and won its 19th straight at home as Michael Adams scored 25 points, Fat Lever 23 and Alex English 22.

The Nuggets scored the first 18 points of the fourth quarter, extending a 12-point lead to 122-92 with a 136-113 victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

It was the eighth straight loss for the Spurs, 3-38 on the road this season.

Rookie Anthony Bowie led San Antonio with 24 points, while Alvin Robertson had 23.

76ers 105, Nets 92
Philadelphia beat New Jersey as Hersey Hawkins scored 25 points and hit his first 10 shots from the field while the 76ers shot 69 percent in the opening half.

Philadelphia made 15 of 19 shots in the opening quarter and took the lead for good with a 13-2 spurt that broke a 13-13 tie. Charles Barkley had five of his 15 points in the run and Mike Gminski added four of his 19.

New Jersey trailed only 65-61 midway through the third period before the 76ers opened a 74-65 advantage and led by at least seven the rest of the way.

Chris Morris led the Nets with 19 points.

NBA Notes:

SHOOTING THE LIGHTS OUT

In its last three games, all victories, Philadelphia has made 58.7 percent of its field goal attempts. The 76ers were 42-for-76 (55.3) Thursday against New Jersey, 52-for-85 (61.2) Tuesday against Milwaukee and 42-for-76 (55.3) Sunday against Charlotte.

Charles Barkley, the league's second most accurate shooter with a .580 percentage, is 28-for-37 in the three games, a .757 percentage.

STRUGGLING

Gerald Wilkins of New York, 6-for-15 Thursday in the Knicks' victory over Boston, has made only 29 of his last 83 field goal attempts, a .349 percentage. Trent Tucker, Wilkins' backup at shooting guard, is just 10 for his last 34, a .294 mark.

Berra Arrested One Of 23 Caught In Drug Sweep

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — Former major leaguer Dale Berra, the son of Hall of Famer Yogi Berra and one of the witnesses in the "baseball drug trials" of 1985, has been caught up in another drug incident.

Berra was one of 23 people arrested Thursday on charges involving cocaine. Berra, 32, was arrested at his Glen Ridge, N.J., home at about 8 a.m. as part of a five-county sweep by more than 100 law officers. He was arrested later Thursday and was freed after posting a $5,000 bond, authorities said.

He was unavailable for comment. His father, a coach with the Houston Astros, was not commenting.

Yogi Berra was informed of his son's arrest about 4 p.m. in Atlanta, where Houston was finishing a three-game series Thursday, Astros officials said.

Rob Matwick, director of public relations for the Astros, said team officials called him about the arrest, and Matwick then told the senior Berra, who is from Montclair, N.J.

Bob Watson, the Astros' assistant general manager, said the team is "going to give Yogi all the moral support we can."

He declined further comment. "The club is taking the position that we're going to hold off on all comments until we find out more information," Watson said.

Dale Berra is charged with conspiracy to violate New Jersey narcotic laws. He is accused of meeting several times with John Bailey, purportedly to buy cocaine.

Authorities say Bailey is the key figure in an operation that distributed $15,000-$20,000 worth of cocaine weekly "to people ranging from street level dealers to 'corporate type' individuals purchasing drugs for personal consumption or limited distribution."

"Berra was identified meeting with Bailey on three occasions, twice at Bailey's home and once at Berra's home," Morristown Police Chief Jay White and Lee S. Trumbull, Morris County prosecutor, said in a joint statement.

Schmidt's Sets Record, Leads Phils' Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Schmidt's extra base hit in the first inning against Pittsburgh was extra special, too.

Schmidt, whose 546 homers rank seventh all-time, broke Richie Ashburn's Philadelphia club record for hits Thursday night with a run-scoring double — the 2,218th hit of his 17-season career.

He also doubled and scored in the fifth inning as the Phillies beat the Pirates 9-4 Thursday night at Three Rivers Stadium.

"It's not up there with number 500, but getting the most hits in the history of an organization is something to be happy about," Schmidt said.

"I'll keep that ball," Schmidt said. "It will be on the mantle. Richie and I signed the ball I hit to tie the record, and we'll auction it off for charity. But this ball is mine."

Elsewhere in the National League it was New York 4, Chicago 3; St. Louis 5, Montreal 2, and Houston 4, Atlanta 3.

The Phillies scored three times in the first inning and twice in the second to take a 5-1 lead against Mike Dunne, 1-1.

Ken Howell, 2-0, allowed four runs and three hits over six innings before Greg Harris pitched two scoreless innings and Todd Frohwrth finished the game.

"This team isn't doing anything out of the ordinary other than hitting the ball," Schmidt said. "We've got a guy hitting fifth (Von Hayes) who is the best hitter in the league and we've got three guys up in the batting order (Juan Samuel, Tommy Herr and Chris James) who can hit the ball."

Von Hayes, hit a two-run homer in the first inning and is batting a league-leading .489. As a team, the Phillies are batting .272, nearly 30 points higher than they did last season.

Mets 4, Cubs 3

Gregg Jefferies broke a 1-for-28 slump with a game-tying single and Mookie Wilson's grounder scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning as New York beat Chicago at Shea Stadium, sending the Cubs to their fourth straight loss.

Dwight Gooden, 3-0, pitched seven innings and allowed four hits for the victory and Roger McDowell finished for his first save. Gooden improved to 16-3 lifetime against the Cubs.

Calvin Schiraldi took over for Mike Bielecki in the seventh and walked Kevin Elster leading off. One out later, Mitch Williams, 0-1, relieved and walked Len Dykstra. Jefferies singled to center to tie the score and send Dykstra to third.

Cardinals 5, Expos 2

Rookie Ken Hill earned his first major league victory and drove in a run as St. Louis defeated visiting Montreal, snapping the Expos' four-game winning streak.

Hill, 1-0, was called up from Class AAA Louisville when the Cardinals lost their third starter this season to injury or illness. He pitched seven-plus innings and allowed five hits.

Todd Worrell pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the eighth when he got Hubie Brooks to hit into a double play and struck out Tim Wallach. Worrell retired the side in the ninth for his third save.

Astros 4, Braves 3

At Atlanta, third baseman Ron Gant's fielding error allowed Kevin Bass to score the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as Houston snapped a four-game losing streak.

Ken Griffey Jr. had a good reason to be nervous.

For the first time, his father, Ken Griffey Sr., watched him play in a major league game. The elder Griffey had the night off because the Cincinnati Reds were idle and sat in the press box in Chicago on Thursday night.

In his first three at-bats, Griffey Jr. was 0-for-3 with two strikeouts. But in the seventh inning, he snapped a 2-2 tie with a bloop single and the Seattle Mariners went on to beat the Chicago White Sox 5-2.

"Yep, I was real nervous," the younger Griffey said. "I could see him (after the strikeouts). I knew exactly what he was saying. I can't repeat it, though. The fourth time was a new at-bat, though. Nothing special."

Don't tell his father it wasn't special, though.

Willoughby, Daniels Hurl Panthers To 10-1 Victory

ROSEWOOD — North Pitt's Craig Willoughby and Reggie Daniels combined for a no-hitter Thursday to lead the Panthers to a 10-1 victory over Rosewood in high school baseball action.

The Panthers scored all they needed in the third inning when they tallied four runs. Randy House, Roosevelt Hines, Dave Sawyer and Calvin Grimes all had hits in the inning for North Pitt.

The win lifts North Pitt to 4-4 for the year, while Rosewood dips to 7-3. The Panthers will return to action Tuesday against Eastern Plains Conference foe C.B. Aycock on the road.

Jaguars Tie In Tri-Meet; Finish Year Unbeaten Again

Farmville Central's boys' track team completed its fourth straight undefeated regular season Thursday by earning a tie in a Eastern Plains Conference tri-meet while Rose took first in a Big East Tri-Meet with Kinston and Rocky Mount.

At Farmville, the Jaguars tied for the win in the meet with Greene Central with 72 points each, while C.B. Aycock finished third with 38 points.

The win boosts Farmville to 7-0-1 for the year. The next action for the Jaguars will come next Thursday at the conference championships at South Lenoir.

At Hunt, Mike Moore was a double winner for the Rampants, winning the shot put and the discus as Rose totaled 85½ points, compared to Kinston's 66½ and Rocky Mount's 31.

Rose moves to 7-2 overall and returns to action next Monday at home against Beddingfield.

D.H. Conley finished third in a tri-meet behind North Lenoir, with 81 points, and Havelock, with 61 points.

Conley, which totaled 40, moves to 1-1 overall and returns to action at East Carteret at Monday.

Adrian McLawhorn was the only double winner for the Vikings, finishing first in the 1,600 meters and 3,200 meters.

NASA Says Undetected Giant Asteroid Gave Earth 'Close Call'

By Paul Recer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — An asteroid big enough to wipe out cities whizzed past the Earth last month before astronomers even knew it was there, showing how hard it is to forecast a natural disaster from space, a NASA scientist said Thursday.

The mountain-sized asteroid flashed by the Earth at a speed of 46,000 miles an hour and was not even detected until days after it had become only a receding point of light, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced.

Astronomers reported that the object missed the Earth by only a half million miles — about twice the distance between the Earth and moon. In cosmic terms, this is considered "a close call."

Had it hit the Earth, said Bevan French, a scientist in NASA's solar system exploration division, the asteroid would have created a crater the size of the District of Columbia and spread destruction for 100 miles in all directions. Other effects would be felt thousands of miles away, he said.

"The object would be packing the equivalent of 40 billion tons of TNT," said French. "That would be equal to about 40,000 hydrogen bombs all going off at the same time."

Henry Holt, a retired U.S. Geological Survey scientist now working on a NASA-funded project to detect and track asteroids that cross the Earth's orbit, found the asteroid in photographs taken almost a week after it had flown past.

French said the fact that the asteroid, called 1989FC, was not seen earlier came, as no surprise.

"These detections are made because you can photograph a trail of light as it moves against a background of fixed stars," said French. "That means the asteroid is moving across your path and not on a collision course."

"An asteroid that was heading right for you would look just like another small fixed star and might be very difficult to detect until it was too late to do anything about it," he said.

There have been several federally funded studies to determine how to protect the Earth from being bombed by outer space rocks, but little else has been done, said French.

"Your best bet would be to identify these several hundred or thousand Earth crossers (asteroids) and calculate their orbit," he said. "Then you would know when you are in danger."

Once the approaching object was sighted, said French, "then you could launch a large nuclear device to explode near the asteroid and nudge it out of the way."

But for now, said the NASA scientist, "we don't really have the kind of detection capability or launch capability to do that at the moment."

French said Holt found the object in photos taken on March 31 by an 18-inch telescope at the Mount Palomar Observatory in California. The photos were processed several days later and the asteroid was discovered by comparing views taken an hour apart.

By the time the object was

photographed, French said, it had already made its closest approach to Earth and was streaking outward, away from the sun. Scientists plotted the trajectory backward and determined that the asteroid passed within a half million miles of Earth on March 23.

"On the cosmic scale of things, that was a close call," Holt said in the NASA announcement of the event.

Asteroid 1989FC came closer to Earth than any other object so large since the pass in 1937 of an object called Hermes. That object went by Earth at about the same distance as 1989FC.

French said that if 1989FC had impacted dry land on Earth "it would be a very major catastrophe for which we have had no experience."

If the asteroid had hit the ocean, he said, it would have created tidal waves that would wash over vast areas of coastal regions.

French said that there may be "hundreds of thousands" of such Earth-crossing asteroids and that such an object the size of 1989FC could reasonably be expected to impact the Earth every 5 million to 20 million years.

He said there is a crater in Ghana and one in the Soviet Union created by such objects hitting the Earth. The Soviet crater is thought to be less than a million years old.

Scientists also believe that an object about six miles in diameter hit the Earth about 65 million years ago and ejected so much debris into the atmosphere that it caused the planet to cool. A popular theory blames this event for the extinction of the dinosaurs.

French said that 1989FC is in an orbit that crosses the orbits of Earth, Mars and Venus. He said the asteroid is moving away from the sun now, but will pass within 20 million miles of the Earth early in October.

Astronomers now are tracking the asteroid to gain a more refined estimate of its orbit. French said 1989FC passed close enough to the Earth for its orbit to be affected by the planet's gravitational influence.

Scientists will have to take this into account when calculating the asteroid's new orbit.

Confusion Over 'Brain Dead' May Hold Up Life-Saving Transplants

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Confusion among doctors about the legal and medical definition of "brain dead" is common and may deprive some people of life-saving organ transplants, doctors say.

"Health professionals have personal concepts of death that vary widely and are often confused and or self-contradictory," according to authors of a study, led by Dr. Stuart J. Youngner of Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine in Cleveland.

But the findings should be taken to mean that doctors are declaring patients brain dead when they are not, say authors of related articles accompanying the study published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Rather, "they might be hesitant in making a diagnosis of brain death if they were uncertain about what it is to be brain dead," said one author, Dr. Joseph M. Darby, director of trauma and neurosurgical intensive care at Presbyterian-University Hospital in Pittsburgh.

"Confusion and or delays amongst health-care personnel might be an impediment to organ retrieval," he said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Researchers in Cleveland asked 195 health professionals at four university affiliated hospitals there to answer the question: "What brain functions must be lost for a patient to be declared brain dead?"

The professionals included 39 doctors likely to be required to make direct decisions about brain death and 156 doctors and nurses who might be involved in the care of brain-dead patients, the researchers said.

Thirty-three of the 39 decision-makers, or 85 percent, selected the correct multiple choice answer — "irreversible loss of all brain function." Ninety of the 156 others, or 58 percent, picked the right answer, the researchers reported.

Incorrect answers included: loss of function of the brain stem, which is necessary for consciousness; loss of function of the cortex, which is necessary for higher reasoning; and severe brain damage, the researchers said.

In addition, they probed the subjects' personal ideas about what constitutes death. Researchers found that even among professionals who knew the medical criterion for brain death, contradictions were common about why such a criterion indicates a person is really dead.

Forty-two percent of the whole group consistently said the loss of higher brain function or the loss of lower brain function was the reason a brain-dead person is really dead, but "58 percent did not use a coherent concept of death consistently," the researchers said.

Such confusion could hamper efforts to obtain donor organs, since the ability to obtain them from suitable donors depends largely on the attitude and commitment of health professionals, the researchers said.

Lack of understanding of why brain-dead patients are dead may not only contribute to professionals' discomfort in managing such patients, it may also discourage doctors from discussing possible donation with families, the researchers said.

Darby, in an accompanying article on the medical management of brain-dead donors, cited figures indicating that 10,000 to 15,000 donor organs are needed each year. While 12,500 to 27,000 potential U.S. donors die annually, only 15 percent to 20 percent of potential donors become actual donors, he and his colleagues said.

Study Pinpoints Rising Costs Linked To Disabling Headaches For Workers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Disabling headaches force people to miss an average of 1 1/2 days of work each year, according to a new study that also reinforced earlier findings that women were afflicted more often and more seriously than men.

The study published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association found that most people suffered 10 to 12 headaches each year and about 10 percent of all headaches are migraines, distinguished from the common or "tension" headache by severe pain, nausea or vomiting, longer duration and a more acute reaction to sensory stimuli, like light or noise.

Headaches rank seventh among common complaints needing outpatient care, and the National Headache Foundation estimates that direct and indirect costs for medical care and lost workdays are $6 billion to $10 billion annually.

Walter Stewart, one of five authors of the Journal report, said researchers did not try to come up with a dollar figure.

The Journal study involved telephone interviews with 10,169 residents of Washington County, Md., ages 12 to 29.

It was significant both because it focused on a large-scale population at highest risk for the onset of serious headaches and because it gathered data on both long-term problems and headaches in the previous four weeks.

Among its findings:

— Women, who reported suffering headaches more often and more seriously than men, missed an average 1.8 days annually, compared to 1.2 days for men.

— Women said their headaches were of longer duration, more painful and worsened with age. Duration and intensity remained largely constant with men as they aged.

Neville Brothers Are 'Heartbeat Of New Orleans'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — They're called the "heartbeat of New Orleans." And in music circles, the Neville Brothers are known as "musician's musicians."

For over 30 years, the Neville name has been synonymous with all the traditions of the Crescent city.

Their sound is culled from a gumbo of styles — jazz, Caribbean, African, Cajun, rock, funk — resulting in music as distinctive as New Orleans itself. Charles Neville, who plays saxophone, calls it New Orleans rhythm and blues.

The brothers — Art, Aaron, Charles and Cyril — worked individually for more than two decades before they finally merged their diverse talents in 1977. After several albums and a two-year interlude, the band has just released their new album, "Yellow Moon."

The collection, including eight original songs, is perhaps their most political and personal album, one in which they express their concern for social issues.

The album's first single, "Sister Rosa," is a tribute to Rosa Parks, who became one of the catalysts for the civil rights movement in 1955 when she refused to give up her seat for a white person on a segregated bus in Montgomery, Ala. The reggae number, written and performed by percussionist Cyril, reflects the album's overall theme: to educate people by increasing their awareness.

"If you don't learn from history, it tends to repeat itself because it can definitely happen again," said Art, the keyboardist.

"Look at the neo-nazis and Skinheads," added Cyril, wearing a "Stop Apartheid" button. "We want to give youth a chance to look at each other on their own terms, rather than how it was in the last generation who had a certain amount of fear and hatred pumped into them before they got a chance to look at people and decide for themselves."

"We want to convey to youth that they don't have to be superhuman or smart to make a change for the better in the world."

"My Blood," another song by Cyril, speaks about the roots of oppression, with particular mention of South Africans, Haitians and native Americans.

There's also a remake of Sam Cooke's "A Change Is Gonna Come," and two Bob Dylan covers,

"The Ballad of Hollis Brown" and "With God on Our Side." Although Aaron and Cyril trade off as lead vocalists on most of the album, Art gets the chance to belt out "Fire and Brimstone" with the same enthusiasm he seems to have for life in general. Charles is heard prominently on the instrumental "Healing Chant."

There is a tenuous and harmonious thread to "Yellow Moon," partly due to producer Daniel Lanois' (Peter Dinklage, U2) recording style. He used a New Orleans apartment instead of a studio.

"His method of recording is to build the studio around the artist, rather than force the artist to conform to some existing environment," Charles said.

"The nickname for the studio became 'the swamp,'" Cyril said with a laugh. "A whole atmosphere was created which you are able to hear on the record."

Jonathan Demme ("Something Wild," "Married to the Mob") directed the video for "Sister Rosa." The filmmaker shares the musicians' interest in Haiti. After working with artists there and hearing Cyril sing "My Blood," Demme wanted American artists to go to Haiti to perform.

"But he didn't want it to be like a Sun City," said Cyril, referring to the so-called integrated music venue in South Africa. "He wanted people with more similar roots and backgrounds." The brothers and Demme are working on a video with the Haitian band Les Freres Parent.

The brothers' musical roots go back to the '50s. Art was part of the Hawkettes in 1954 when they recorded the legendary New Orleans anthem, "Mardi Gras Mambo." In the 1970s, he helped form the Meters, a funk group with great impact on fellow musicians and such new bands as The Police.

Charles was busy touring with Big Mac Bell, Bobby "Blue" Bland and B.B. King. Aaron had a Top 10 hit in 1967 with "Tell It Like It Is." Cyril was involved in his own band before he joined Art with the Meters in Europe, who were touring with the Rolling Stones.

ATW Staging Of 'Sound Of Music' Makes It OK To Like The Musical

I admit it. I'm a "The Sound of Music" junkie.

"I tell myself I have no need to see the Rogers and Hammerstein musical again. I've seen several stage performances and I've seen the movie numerous times. Recently I've considered myself cured of having to watch the movie every time it's aired anew on television.

But the Ayden Theater Workshop's Thursday opening night offering of the musical classic consoled me, told me that this particular addiction of mine is OK to have.

"Seeing 'The Sound of Music' so masterfully performed really was a rush about which I need not feel guilty. I went home uplifted, inspired, pleased with how I'd spent my evening. I felt that I've made new friends and experienced new highs of admiration of artistic ability.

What admiration I have for the real Von Trapp family and the telling of their pre- and early-World War II show of courage by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse. And every time I hear once again the music of Richard Rodgers and the lyrics of Oscar Hammerstein, I marvel anew at the appropriateness of every last note, every last word. What genius!

ATW actress Jon Shaw was a wonderful Maria Rainer later to become Baroness Von Trapp. Her singing was beautiful. She conveyed just the right combination of wholesomeness and feistiness. And I was truly impressed by her acting ability. In one scene as Maria was silently contemplating leaving the Von Trapp household, Ms. Shay's face showed so much emotional pain that I felt myself close to tears. I felt that the story line was at that moment immeasurably advanced.

John Williams was a convincing Captain Von Trapp. Jim Hinson was a superbly cast Max Detweiler.

Sally Bramley's being cast as Elsa Schraeder was a wonderful surprise. In every other role of Sally's I've seen, she has personified sweetness and light. I didn't know she could so convincingly play the cynically sophisticated Baroness Von Trapp hopeful.

And the children. What can I say? All seven seemed Germanic cherubs who also sang like angels. They provided just the touch of innocence needed to make the play trip along. I was especially impressed by the singing of Annessa Cotterman as Liesl, though her acting seemed no better than that of the other six — Michael Boswellas Friedrich, Dawn Devor as Louisa, Ben Dennis as Kurt, Megan Sumerell as Brigitta, Anne Bramley as Marta and Caitlyn Willis as Gretl.

And the nuns. Now, hours later, their lilting allelujahs still ring in and brighten my mind! I never knew my longtime acquaintance Kim Dale, cast as Sister Margaretta, could sing so beautifully. And I was equally impressed with the solos of Helen Mary Boone as the Mother Abbess.

Ana Tolar and Michael McClain provided comic embellishment as Frau Schmidt, the housekeeper, and Franz the butler. Both quickly established their buffoonery and never let up throughout the play.

Set-making and other technical work was masterfully directed by Craig Sumerell. The play flowed and there was never any distraction by any lack or variance, apparently also reflecting the conscientiousness of director Michael Culp. He also ably played Admiral Von Schriber.

This was my first experience of a musical in which the "orchestra" was three instruments including synthesizers. I was surprised that I did not feel slighted at the absence of a full array of human musicians. I was awed by the ability of Sue Ann Culp to both play an instrument and direct the singing. And, unlike many performances I've seen, the music was never overwhelming. It seemed to me to always be just-right accompaniment to the on-stage singers and dancers.

I am amazed at the costume design of Frani Boberg and the work of several seamstresses. I counted seven changes of outfits on each of the seven children alone, so the volume of costume work seems to me staggering. And what a lot of starching and ironing mothers or someone must have done for the children's outfits alone. Nuns' habits and Nazi uniforms were also impressive, as were the wardrobe of Elsa Schraeder and the outfits of the couples at the party.

Scribbling notes in the dark as I watched, I was struck again by the wonderful message of the play. I found myself jotting down gems of truth about love and life and integrity. What a gift to humanity this innumerable-times-performed play has been.

Remaining curtain times for the ATW gift to this area are 8 p.m. today and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. The place is the Ayden-Grifton High School Auditorium.

'Littlest Victims' Is First High-Definition TV Movie

By Kathryn Baker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — It might seem that time has passed by CBS' "The Littlest Victims," an emotional account of Dr. James Oleske's pioneering research into AIDS in children of six and seven years ago.

But the movie is still relevant for its sympathetic portrayal of minority AIDS victims and the response of the research community and the Reagan administration in the early months of the AIDS crisis.

It may be helped by the fact that it is the first made-for-TV movie to be shot on high-definition video. It airs Sunday.

Although it will be years before many viewers will own TV sets that capture the crisp, almost three-D picture that high-definition video produces, they might notice a slightly sharper image than usual.

On a high-definition monitor, the picture is dramatically different because HDTV splits the image into twice the number of lines for transmission as the current TV picture.

In a screening room in midtown Manhattan, a group of television critics were joined by Oleske himself to watch "The Littlest Victims" on a big-screen, high-definition TV set. The portly, gray-haired Oleske is portrayed in the movie by a handsome, svelte Tim Matheson.

"After the first 15 minutes, I said to myself, 'I look a little bit like this guy,'" Oleske joked after the screening. "My kids couldn't understand how a tall, thin, handsome guy could play a short, fat doctor."

Oleske said he has lost about 40 pounds since the events of 1982-83 portrayed in the movie. A subplot is about his battle with heart disease due to overweight.

But the movie is really about the children who became victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome before scientists even knew that a virus caused the fatal disease that attacks its victims' immune systems, rendering them helpless against infection.

Oleske, a Newark, N.J.-based pediatric immunologist, was convinced early on that the children he was seeing were suffering from AIDS they had contracted through their mothers, then a revolutionary theory. In 1982, AIDS was still considered a gay men's disease, although it had also begun to turn up in intravenous drug abusers.

The movie confronts the social problems surrounding AIDS and the Reagan administration's slow response to provide research money.

"You mean just because it's hitting gays and junkies, nobody cares?" an outraged Oleske says in the movie. "This is not that kind of country!"

Later, when he learns that his application for a grant from the National Institutes of Health has been approved — but not funded — he rants to his laboratory assistant, "The government doesn't give a damn about the people with AIDS! It's written them off already! The sooner they die the better!"

Oleske praised CBS for avoiding unreal characterizations of AIDS victims to make them more "sympathetic," i.e., white. "I congratulate CBS in making a movie that shows what the real story is," that most young victims of AIDS are minority children of poverty-stricken parents.

Oleske said doctors must understand the social pressures on poor, black, inner-city women to have children, often their only source of self-esteem. When such a woman is told she has a 50 percent chance of having a baby with AIDS, Oleske says, what she hears is that she has a 50-50 chance of having a healthy baby. Nevertheless, doctors often respond with disgust when they realize a woman has become pregnant despite the risks.

The original title of the movie was "Innocent Victims." It was changed after Oleske complained that it suggested other victims must be guilty of something.

"It's not that way," he said. "They didn't know. They're all innocent victims."

Oleske said he was "somewhat embarrassed" by the central role of his character in the movie and said attention was due instead to the dedicated nurses who care for AIDS children. It is still a struggle to find the money to pay the nurses and keep the research going, he said. He donated all the money he made on the movie to a children's hospital.

"The only reason I did this — and my wife would say soul — was I needed a social worker desperately, and the money for this movie would pay for a social worker," he said.

Actress Wendy Kilbourne stars as radio station owner on NBC-TV's 'Midnight Caller'

Actress Says "Midnight Caller" Role Free Of 'Sexual Tensions'

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Wendy Kilbourne says she believes her character in "Midnight Caller," the wealthy owner of the radio station that employs provocative talk show host Jack Killian, probably asked her father for a radio station when she turned 21.

"A big point is made that she didn't just kick back and say I'm playing with radio," Kilbourne said. "It was an ailing station and she turned it around."

The series plots bring station owner Devon King into regular conflict with Killian (Gary Cole), a former San Francisco detective whose late-night show turns him into an urban hero.

"I think she and Jack are friends," Kilbourne said. "I like the relationship because it's not burdened with sexual tensions. There is a mutual attraction. I think the writers are trying to have these people's vision widened by the other's point of view. There's a real friendship developing between the characters. I like that."

The one-hour series, filmed on location in San Francisco, has been doing well in the ratings and consistently wins its time slot.

"I got the role by auditioning for it, which is a very painful process," Kilbourne said on a visit to Los Angeles. "I was interviewing for another job and forgot about the appointment with the producers of 'Midnight Caller.' My agent called and said I'd be late."

"I raced over, preoccupied with the other show, and read directly off the page. They said thank you. I got into my car and banged my head on the steering wheel. I marched into my agent's office to tell her never to schedule me like that again. She said they'd called and wanted to test me."

Kilbourne was born into the motion picture business, but her mother whisked her out of town as soon as possible.

"My mother didn't want to have anything to do with Hollywood," she said. "Her father had written 'The Wizard of Oz.' I grew up in San Mateo, LaCanada and Newport Beach. I had a very normal childhood."

Kilbourne's grandfather was Noel Langley, one of the screenwriters who adapted the Frank L. Baum fantasy for the 1939 classic motion picture.

"My mother was looking for stability. She's an artist, and while she appreciates the creative aspects of the business, she wanted to provide a stable environment for her children. She had grown up in boarding schools in England."

Despite her mother's aversion to Hollywood, Kilbourne began studying drama when her mother married an actor involved with the Shakespeare Festival. She began studying with the South Coast Repertory Theater, then enrolled at Orange Coast College.

Her first professional film role was two lines in an episode of "The Paper Chase."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY April 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Your quick and restless nature may prefer to break routine. You may seek ways to escape certain feelings.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): The day is stimulating and earthy. You can use the practical side of your nature to increase capital. News comes from a distant source.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You and your mate make a heavy combination when both of you want to dominate. This approach may get poor results.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Hit the road, but keep distance and activities reasonable. Do something interesting with an adventurous companion.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Discussions occur over a possible change of residence. Siblings ask for mature help. Control pleasure spending. Your vitality is high.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your sincerity has paid off. You make a good impression on someone who will be of benefit in the future. Protect against social isolation.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A burst of energy sends you in many directions. You mix with others and take an interest in home affairs, entertaining and siblings.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be specific about what you want. Avoid activities that you do not enjoy. Make a commitment to follow a more nutritious diet.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Put your creative ideas to use. Control your temper, which can be short and snappy, when you are asked inane questions.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Eliminate counter-productive activities that take away your energy. Early emotional issues evaporate later. Take a short trip.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't have high expectations today. Plans can fall out of place faster than you can put them together.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Things may get done in a round-about way today. Someone is not giving you all the facts. Protect your own interests.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣
 It's again time to test your dummy-play technique. Cover the East-West cards and decide how you would play three no trump after West leads a low club.
 The first problem is what to play from dummy at the first trick. You have one sure club stopper no matter what you do. If West is leading away from the ace-queen of clubs, you will have a second, positional stopper provided you play the jack from dummy. You do and it holds. Now what?

You have eight fast tricks. You can develop a ninth if the spade finesse succeeds, if the hearts are 3-3, or by setting up long cards in diamonds. What are the risks?

You cannot afford to let East gain the lead, because a club through the king will inevitably sink the contract. So at trick two try the spade finesse. That loses to the queen and a spade comes back. You win in hand. What next?

You can't afford to go after hearts—if the suit doesn't break, West might be able to get rid of an embarrassing diamond. So lead a low diamond toward dummy. If West plays low, rise with the king; if West produces the queen, let him hold the trick. Both defenders follow low. How do you continue?

You have to get back to test the lie of the diamonds. Come to hand with a heart and play another diamond. When West produces the queen, let him hold the trick and, if East follows, claim your contract. If West does not produce the queen, take the ace and cash two more high hearts. If the suit splits, you're home. If it doesn't, lead a third diamond and hope West must win. He must then either exit with a spade, which allows you to cash the winning diamonds, or else lead a club, which will permit you to score the king and enjoy the diamonds in dummy.

THIRD SHIFT

As a result of our rapid growth Simpson Industries is seeking a 3rd shift manufacturing supervisor experienced in high quality, close tolerance machining. We have extensive milling, drilling, and turning and many state-of-the-art CNC lathes and CNC machining centers. The successful candidate will place quality as a #1 priority and must have good people skills combined with sense of urgency. Previous supervisory experience in a machine shop is a firm requirement. A degree in a related field is desirable, but not a requirement.

Simpson Industries, Inc. is a multi-plant manufacturer of high quality machined products for the automotive and engine industries.

Iran Says American 'Spies' Arrested

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran said today it has cracked several U.S. espionage rings and vowed to punish the "big American spies" who were plotting to overthrow the government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani announced during a weekly prayer session at Tehran University that a large number of the spies have been arrested in recent weeks, according to Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported, monitored in Nicosia. He claimed the arrests have exposed the entire CIA operation in the Middle East.

Rafsanjani said the Americans "should have realized that ... this country is no place for coups."

He said some were Iranian navy personnel who transmitted intelligence on Iranian naval deployments to the U.S. Navy "when they were fighting us in the Persian Gulf."

He said the Iranian ship Iran Ajr, which was attacked and boarded by U.S. forces in the gulf on Sept. 21, 1987 as it was laying mines, was "betrayed by these very people."

Rafsanjani said the arrests included "big American spies" who were now being interrogated. He did not say how many people were rounded up because "the Americans should not know how many have been trapped. There are too many." But he stressed that the navy officers who had allegedly spied for the Americans "are fortunately still alive."

He claimed the Americans "have announced these people have been executed, because they are not aware of their whereabouts."

Rafsanjani did not name the navy men. But dissident Iranian sources reported recently that three senior navy officers were executed in early April for plotting to overthrow the government.

The sources said that about 20 other pro-Western navy officers had been arrested on charges of spying.

South Africa Will Clear Exit Route

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — South Africa said today that all its security forces in Namibia will be confined to their bases for 60 hours next week to allow guerrillas to withdraw to Angola without threat of confrontation.

South Africa's foreign minister, Pik Botha, said the security forces would remain at their bases in northern Namibia from 6 p.m. Wednesday until 6 a.m. the following Saturday.

His announcement came after reports of new fighting between the South African-led security forces and guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization.

"South Africa gives the assurance that SWAPO infiltrators will be allowed unhindered to return to Angola during the period in question," Botha said in a statement released in the South African capital, Pretoria.

He did not say what South Africa would do if SWAPO fighters remained in Namibia after April 29.

South Africa says 1,600 guerrillas crossed into Namibia from neighboring Angola after April 1, in violation of a December peace accord that required them to remain at bases in Angola until mid-May.

Since then, more than 280 guerrillas and 27 members of the security forces have been killed in fighting in northern Namibia, territorial officials said. Most of the fighting occurred in the first week of April, but officials said three SWAPO guerrillas were killed Thursday in clashes.

Col. Richard Warren, commander of the Australian U.N. military forces in northern Namibia, said the clash occurred about 25 miles southeast of a military airbase at Ondangwa.

South Africa says 400 guerrillas have withdrawn to Angola, 32 have been captured and 900 remain in the territory.

U.N. forces in northern Namibia have set up assembly points where the guerrillas can report and be given safe passage to Angola. However, only 12 insurgents have turned up.

Botha said the decision to confine the security forces to their bases was made following a meeting Thursday between officials from South Africa, Angola, and Cuba, the signatories of a December regional peace accord that cleared the way for Namibia's independence from South Africa.

The three countries agreed that SWAPO forces should return to bases at least 100 miles inside Angola, he said.

Korean Students, Police Battle

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — Hundreds of radical students yelling "Down with dictatorship!" battled riot police with firebombs and rocks in at least three cities today after rallies demanding the overthrow of President Roh Tae-woo.

Several thousand radical students took part in fierce clashes at four major colleges in Seoul, surging out of the campuses to attack riot police who fired volleys of tear gas and hurled rocks back at the protesters.

"Punish Roh Tae-woo!" and "Yankee go home!" the students yelled as they beat drums and brass gongs in the third day of serious campus protests in Seoul and other cities.

Yonhap, the South Korean news agency, said hundreds of students also clashed with police in the southeastern cities of Kwangju and Iri.

Police officials said there had been some injuries, but they had no figures on injuries or arrests.

The Defense Ministry announced earlier today it would mobilize up to 80,000 military technicians to keep key industries running if workers go on strike. The government has warned that growing labor unrest could cause major economic damage and foment unrest.

Students staged protests at colleges in Seoul to support labor strikes and demand the overthrow of the conservative Roh government. Student leaders called for a major drive by opposition groups to oust Roh.

More than 1,000 students hurling hundreds of firebombs and rocks battled riot police for more than two hours in the streets around Konkuk University in eastern Seoul. Police trucks with multiple tear gas launchers repeatedly fired barrages of choking gas to drive the protesters back onto the campus.

Police battled about 1,000 students at Hankook University who charged out wielding iron pipes and wooden clubs and hurling firebombs. Similar clashes were reported by college officials at Seoul National and Yonsei universities.

The students claim the Roh government is a front for military rule and are calling for a popular uprising to topple the administration. But the radicals and allied dissident groups lack popular support because of their violence and extreme views.

Quake

MOSCOW (AP) — A strong earthquake struck a remote, mountainous area of central Siberia today, but there were no reports of casualties or damage.

The quake measured 8.9 on the 12-point Soviet scale, and its epicenter was located in the mountains of southwestern Yakutia, Tass said.

An 8 point earthquake is considered "destructive" on the Soviet scale, but the area is remote and seismographs in the regional capital, Yakutsk, 2,700 miles east of Moscow, recorded the quake at only 2.3 points, Tass said.

The Soviet news agency said it had received no reports of injuries or damage from the temblor, which occurred this afternoon.

Mudslides Kill 52 In U.S.S.R.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — At least 52 people have been killed in mudslides and flooding in a mountainous region of Soviet Georgia, Radio Moscow said today.

Meanwhile, a bus carrying 20 people is missing and may have been swept off a road by a torrent of mud, an editor at Georgia's official Gruzinform news agency also reported.

The editor, who did not give his name, said in a telephone interview that the mudslides occurred Wednesday evening.

Radio Moscow said the hardest hit areas were in the Adzharia region of southern Georgia along the Black Sea coast.

"Plans have been worked out to evacuate about 3,000 persons," the official radio said, adding, "Sunday has been declared an official day of mourning."

Tass, the official news agency, said in the first reports on the disaster Thursday that landslides, avalanches and floods destroyed or heavily damaged more than 500 houses.

"As landslides, snowslips, mudslides and spring floods continued in Adzharia for the past several days, destroying dwellings, administrative buildings, hospitals, schools and roads, an increasing number of people had to leave the danger zone," Tass said.

More than 700 families had already been moved to safer regions, the news agency said.

It was the second fatal mudslide in the Soviet Union this year. In January, about 250 people died from mudslides in the Central Asian republic of Tajikistan.

Clashes Leave Policemen Hurt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — Clashes between leftists and neo-Nazis on the 100th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's birth left 13 policemen injured, West Berlin police said today. Authorities said 100 people were arrested.

Scattered fighting broke out late Thursday on Hitler's birthday and went on throughout the city until early today, police said.

A police statement said about 500 people, mostly young leftists and foreigners armed with clubs, gas pistols and chains, roamed the streets looking for neo-Nazi "skinheads."

The "skinheads," recognizable by their shaven heads and black combat boots, had threatened to harass foreigners and leftists on Hitler's birthday.

Thirteen young Germans and Turks clashed with five neo-Nazis near the city's Congress Hall, police said. Both sides were armed with clubs and gas pistols. Police arrested all 18 and confiscated their weapons.

In another incident, an off-duty policeman sustained facial injuries when he attempted to arrest two neo-Nazis who were spray-painting swastika emblems on a building. The officer was able to arrest one of the men, but the other got away, police spokesman Jorg Mueller said.

Pitt-Greenville Arts Council Offers Varied Events

As the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council celebrates its 10th anniversary, the public is being invited to join the celebration of the arts in the community.

The purpose of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council is to celebrate and nurture the creative spirit. The council assists, sponsors, coordinates and promotes arts programs and activities in Green and Pitt counties.

The Eastern Carolina Arts Festival is just one of the many programs and services provided by the Arts Council. In 1989-90 the Arts Council will sponsor the following programs and services:

- Special performances — the Arts Council will sponsor a performance of the Charlotte Shakespeare Company on July 9 and two other special performances will be announced at a later date.

- Exhibits — a series of four juried exhibits are being planned and monthly exhibits of local artists will be held in the Arts Council office gallery.

- Arts-in-the-Schools — a series of artist residencies and children's theatre performances in the public schools.

- Children's Holiday Workshop — a day of music, puppets and crafts held in December.

- Emerging Artists Program — a grant program to provide career or project development funds to local artists.

- Publications — the Arts Council will publish a bimonthly newsletter, an arts calendar called "Circa" and an Arts Directory of artists and arts organizations.

- Workshops — a series of workshops on grant-writing, financial management, marketing, and organizational development for non-profit organizations.

- Project Assistant Grants — the Arts Council funds special projects and programs of local cultural organizations.

- In-House Services — services offered to local cultural organizations by the staff of the Arts Council are a computerized mailing list, bulk mailing services, resource library and consultant services.

Primary funding of the Arts Council comes from the individual memberships and the support of local businesses. Support also comes from the city of Greenville, Pitt County, and the North Carolina Arts Council.

The Arts Council is a non-profit charitable organization which is operated by a 20-member policy-making board of directors. The office is staffed by one full-time executive director and a part-time administrative assistant.

The Arts Council office is located in the Flower Building at the corner of 14th and Evans streets. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Persons who would like to join the celebration by becoming a member of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council may send contributions or membership dues to: Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, P.O. Box 8191, Greenville, N.C., 27835.

All members will receive the newsletter/arts calendar and invitations to all Arts Council events. Members are also eligible to receive a discount on Arts Council events and activities, including a copy of the annual Arts Festival print. General membership dues: individual, $15; family or organization, $25; business, $35, and contributing member, $50 plus.

1989 Festival Chairperson

LAURA ELLIS

Laura Ellis is serving in the capacity of the 1989 chairwoman of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Mrs. Ellis has been a resident of Greenville for over five years.

She has been active in many organizations including St. Timothy's Episcopal Church, the Women's Shelter, the United Way, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Greenville Museum of Art.

Mrs. Ellis is married to attorney Charles Ellis and has one daughter.

- Sixty-five percent of South Koreans live in urban areas today, while 25 years ago 70 percent of them were farmers, says National Geographic.

Opening Ceremonies At 1 P.M.

This year's Super Sunday opens the week of festivities with a day of entertainment and activities for young and old alike.

It will be held at Carolina East Mall and will last from 1 p.m. through 5 p.m. on Sunday, April 23.

Opening ceremonies for the festival will take place on Sears Stage at 2 p.m. with Mayor Ed Carter on hand to welcome participants and those attending.

Kenneth Dews, vice chairman of the Pitt County Commissioners, will give opening remarks and Laura Ellis, festival chairwoman, will give an overview of the festival activities and Super Sunday.

The day will feature children's activities, folk art demonstrations, the Youth Art Competition, visiting celebrities and two stages with continuous entertainment.

Children will be encouraged to use their artist skills. Booths will be set up for children to participate in cookie art, balloon art, computer art, thumb printing, magnet art, face painting, puppet art, tissue flower art and paper weaving.

Also especially for children will be appearances by characters such as the Chick-Fil-A Chicken, Roller Rabbit, Winnie the Pooh, Cocoa the Clown, Sparkey the Fire Dog, MacGruff the Crime Dog and Smokey the Bear.

Many Pitt County School art programs will have students taking part in the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival through the Youth Arts Competition.

Selected pieces of art work created by students in grades K-12 will be shown in an exhibit and will be open for public viewing during the Super Sunday activities.

Prizes and cash will be awarded to the top three entries in five separate categories. There will be a poster show and sale by the Rose High School Art Honor Society.

Three Gospel Groups To Perform At The Plaza

The sounds of gospel music will fill The Plaza when three local groups share their talent Tuesday, April 25, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Tammy, Tonya, Tina and Tonette Edwards, along with their cousin Phyllis Jones, are the singers constituting "The Edwards Singers."

They have sung from Connecticut to Georgia. This family group has been singing for 14 years and has released an album titled "Jesus Never Fails." The group has another album that will be available this month.

The "Vine Sisters," also a family group, is comprised up of Alice, Audrey, Dorothy, and Mattie Vine as well as five musicians.

The group has recorded three albums: "Blessing Over the Hill,"

"Robed and Ready," and "God Can Do Just What He Says."

The last featured group, "The Golden Jubilees" started 13 years ago with James Barry and Norman Pugh as two of the original members.

It has since added William Forbes, "Little James" Sutton, David Coley, "Little Ben," Jimmy Daniels and "Blue" Matthews.

This group has two 45s out: "Remember How They Did Him When They Led Him To Calvary Hill" and "Better Days Are Coming."

Jim Rouse, owner of Joy 1340 AM WOOW and publisher of M-Voice Newspaper, will broadcast the program live.

The Vine Sisters singers with supporting personnel

MusicFest Scheduled At Rock Springs Site On Sunday, April 30

The MusicFest will take place on Sunday, April 30, from 1 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., out on the meadows of a Pitt County historical area known as Rock Springs.

Rock Springs is located on N.C. 43 north, three miles past the East Carolina School of Medicine.

The MusicFest will consist of an afternoon of jazz featuring Group Sax, Dick Gables's All Stars, Spiral, and Joe Distefano's Quartet.

A review in Raleigh's News and Observer said, "Group Sax ... has developed into a fine cultural resource as well as a creative jazz band capable of igniting the moment."

From originally playing mostly in the "be-bop" idiom, the group's format and personnel have been expanded to include both contemporary and original works. Gelb, manager and leader of Group Sax and a native of Long Island, N.Y., is the Visiting Artist at Wilson Technical Institute.

Gelb and Group Sax will be performing jazz pieces that Gelb has composed. Other members of the group are Ray Codrington, trumpet; Jim Crew, piano; Salim Malik, bass; Peter Ingram, drums, and Beverly Botsford, percussion.

Also performing in the festival will be Dick Gable's All Stars, a Dixieland group primarily out of Raleigh.

Dick Gable is a nationally known musician who played with several large bands before settling in Raleigh. George Broussard, a noted local trombonist and a faculty member in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be playing with the group.

Joe Distefano and Friends, a quartet, plays primarily small group and swing blues.

The Spiral group will be performing progressive and fusion jazz.

The four groups to perform in the concert offer four distinct sounds and represent a range of instrumentation.

Tickets are $5 general admission and $10 VIP (reserved seating) and will be available at all festival events, at Jefferson's Florist, Clark Gallery, and Sunshine Video.

Varied Local Musical Fare

Music — country, folk, classical, western, rock, sacred — whatever one's preference, is available in Greenville and Pitt County on many occasions all year long.

A significant number of the area's offering in music are programs sponsored by the School of Music, East Carolina University. These are events that cover concerts and recitals by students, faculty and visiting artists. Generally, they are without charge and are open to the public.

Frequently, well known national and international ensembles perform at ECU, at ticket prices considerably less than in larger cities.

Churches and night clubs, the annual Sunday in the Parks concerts, and special musical programs during festivals, all add to the quality and variety of musical life in Greenville and Pitt County.

Suzuki Violinists To Play On Stage At Town Commons

Young performing members of Suzuki violinists

The Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina will present a concert at the Greenville Town Common Amphitheater at 5 p.m. on Sunday, April 23.

Intent on watching for cues

tunes, dances, and concerts are among the works to be performed.

The students will represent various age groups — preschool through high school — and a range of achievement levels in the Suzuki repertoire.

Members of the group are from towns in Pitt and surrounding counties.

The Suzuki method relies strongly on the cooperative relationship of teacher, parent and student in a pleasant, yet disciplined enterprise. It is not merely a music method; rather, it is a combination of philosophy, technique and program of education.

The Suzuki approach is designed to enhance a child's self-esteem by having him thoroughly master each step before he moves on to the next. It is a system based on caring.

Area violin, cello, and dance teachers who coordinate the work of the group include Carol Moore Wright, John Wright, Steve Vutinas, Paul Topper, Andrea Thomas, Jon Shaw, Rodney Schmidt, Katie Raab, Cheryl Mercer, Katherine Jenkins, Taylor Evans, Mamie Dixon, Su-Su Corbitt, Robin Blount, Wendy Bissinger, Stephen Bath and Joanne Bath.

Dr. Charles Bath will be the accompanist for the concert. The fiddle selections will be accompanied by guitar, banjo and mandolin.

The E.B. Aycock Gym will be the rain location. The Suzuki performance is sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken and Ace Cleaners. It is free and open to the public.

ECU Jazz Ensemble To Give A Concert In Wright

Jazz Concert
The East Carolina Jazz Ensemble and guest performers, Jerry Tachoir and Carol Bailey, will have a concert Sunday, April 23, at 8:15 p.m. in East Carolina's Wright Auditorium.

The concert will be under the direction of George Broussard and will feature a variety of jazz styles including Dixieland, Fusion, and Big Band.

It will also pay tribute to jazz greats such as Louis Armstrong, Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Parker.

Some compositions and arrangements will be by Duke Ellington, Charlie Parker and Phil Woods. Other compositions will feature those made famous by Count Basie, Bunny Berigan, Billy Holiday, and the Boss Brass.

The East Carolina Jazz Ensemble has toured North Carolina and Virginia. It has performed for the North Carolina Music Educators Conference.

The ensemble has played with such artists as Roger Pemberton, Stan Eyermann, Maynard Ferguson and Billy Taylor.

Billy Taylor, a Greenville native, opened the first Arts Festival in 1980 with the Jazz Ensemble.

Vibraphone and marimba artist, Jerry Tachoir, has an international reputation. A native of Pittsburgh, Tachoir is a classically trained musician who has played with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, the American Wind Symphony, Wilkensburg Symphony and the International Symphony in Switzerland.

The concert is sponsored by the East Carolina School of Music and is open to the public without charge.

Chamber Choir Concert

Juan I. Carrillo, a graduate teaching assistant in the School of Music, East Carolina University, and faculty member Rhonda Fleming will direct a concert to be presented by the East Carolina University Chamber Choir at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 23.

The concert will take place in Immanuel Baptist Church, and is free and open to the public.

The program will open with two works by G.P. da Palestrina, the "Exultate Deo" and "Sicut cervus," to be followed by "Fa Una Canzona" by Orazio Vecchi and "El Grillo" by Josquin des Prez.

The next selection, Claudio Monteverdi's "Laetatus sum" will feature Mary Smith, soprano, an ECU music student.

Other compositions chosen for the concert are Felix Mendelssohn's "Drei Volkslieder"; four Bela Bartok Slovak Folk Songs, and three pastorales by Cecil Effinger. The latter will feature Keith Hall, an alumnus, as oboe soloist.

The concluding work on the program will be a composition by Argentine composer Ariel Ramirez, the "Misa Criolla" with student soloists Lori McLelland, soprano, and Angela Burns, alto.

In conducting the works of Vecchi, des Prez, Monteverdi, Mendelssohn and Ramirez, Carrillo partially fulfills requirements for his master's degree in music education in choral music.

He is from San Jose, Costa Rica and is a student of Dr. Fleming.

Instrumentalists performing in the concert are: faculty member John O'Brien and Lori Buchanan, violins; Eddie Turnage, bass; Steve Fitts and Ledford Wilson, trombones; Michael McGinnis, guitar; Johanna Wright, violoncello; Susan Cisneros, bassoon; Eric Howard, Dwight Lawing, and Hamilton Halloway, percussion, and Lynette Maready, harpsichord and organ. Ms. Maready is also accompanist for the chamber choir.

Seven Galleries, Museums To Participate In Gallery Hop

The Gallery Hop being presented as part of the 1989 East Carolina Arts Festival offers a unique art experience with several mediums being represented.

The self-guided "hoppers" can enjoy exhibits at many of Greenville's finest galleries on Friday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

"Hoppers" can begin their tour at any of the following galleries:

- Arlington Hall, Arlington Village.
- The Arts Council Building, Flowers Building.
- Art and Camera, Cotanche Street downtown.
- Clark Gallery, Arlington Building.
- Gray Gallery, East Carolina University.
- Susan's Gallery, Flowers Building.
- The Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St.

As part of the gallery hop, North Carolina artist Linda Clark will be honored at the reception at East Gallery, 646 Arlington Blvd., in Arlington Village. The exhibit will feature original jewelry and paintings by Ms. Clark and will be on view April 17 through May 9.

Also on display will be a variety of work by artists represented by the gallery.

Billy Walls, a native of Greenville, will have part of a series titled "Shapes" on display in the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council office, located on the corner of Evans and 14th streets. This is an abstract series of black and white photos.

Art and Camera will feature Jacob Van Wyck. This display of work will consist of works in stone lithograph and ceramics. The gallery is located on Cotanche Street beside the University Book Exchange.

Arlington Hall will present a show entitled "Representing" featuring their in-house artists. The artists will be in attendance. The mediums being represented include acrylic, oil, paper, collage, drawings, sculpture, and more.

A graduate thesis exhibition will be on display at Gray Gallery on the East Carolina campus. The artists in this exhibition include Linda Darty, Trudy LaDouceur, Maria McLaughlin, Blanche Kammer-Monroe and John Hancock.

Susan's Gallery will present a show of recent cibachrome photographs by Henry Stindt. This highlights scenic nature and travel.

Also, the month of April is the third anniversary of the gallery, and framing specials will be offered.

The Greenville Museum of Art which will have two exhibits displayed. A traveling print show from the University of Tennessee titled "Maps and Phobias" will be in the north and south galleries, and prints, drawings and constructions by Michael Ehlbeck will be in the upstairs gallery.

Special music and refreshments will be provided by each of the "gallery hop" studios.

Extravaganza Of African-American Art At Comfort Inn

The African-American Arts Extravaganza will be held in the Arbor Room of the Comfort Inn on Sunday, April 30, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The extravaganza will consist of an exhibit and sale of works by North Carolina black artists. Six artists from the Piedmont to the coast will feature a variety of styles and media. Seascapes, contemporary, traditional African motifs, pen and ink, sculpture, and oils will be represented.

- Edward Hale, Greensboro, all media and realistic rural scenes.
  - Van Hinnant, Greensboro, contemporary paintings.
  - Floyd Newkirk, Greensboro, cartoonist and graphic artist
  - Chester Williams, Durham, metal sculptor and wood inspired by traditional African art.
  - James Melvin, Nags Head, seascapes and historical depictions of blacks in history.
  - Robert Hall, Rose Hill, rural scenes, pen and ink, oils.
- There will also be other artists with work on view.

Art Pleasures In Greenville

Interest in art in Greenville and Pitt County and the continued expansion of the art programs in the School of Art, East Carolina University, have together increased both awareness and opportunities to enjoy art.

From the early efforts of Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp and others to establish an art museum in Greenville and the founding of the art school at ECU, the scope and variety of art available to patrons locally has accelerated year by year.

Today, in addition to GMA and the ECU School of Art, patrons in the community can view art a wide range of visual art — works in paper, textiles, paintings, collages, sculpture and even experimental forms of art in museums and galleries.

Coloring Book Souvenir Item

A special souvenir of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival will be available throughout the week of the festival.

This is a coloring book titled "Around the Town With Art," and comes with coloring crayons. The book will serve as a source of cultural entertainment for children.

The book also includes a listing of the arts, music, dance, and theatre activities available in Pitt County for children.

The coloring book and set of crayons is priced at $2.

For more information on where the souvenir coloring book can be purchased, call the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council at 757-1785.

All Species Day At River Park North On April 29

One of the last events of the Arts Festival will be All Species Day, Saturday, April 29, in Greenville's River Park North.

Termed a "celebration of the Coastal Carolina Bio-Region," the day is sponsored by the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation, Sierra Club, community schools, League of Women Voter's, Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, and the Greenville Environmental Advisory Commission.

All activities are free and open to the public.

A lecture series for adults, titled "Think Global — Act Local," and organized activities and games for children, from 10:30 a.m. until noon, will mark the beginning of All Species Day.

Mayor Ed Carter will open the speaker program with the proclamation of All Species Day in Greenville.

The lectures will be a forum of discussions concerning such local environmental issues as recycling, waste mangement, and water quality in the Tar-Pamlico.

Guest speakers from various environmental groups who will participate are: Pamlico-Tar River Foundation, Re-Leaf, Greenways, APES, the PERT Team of the State DEM, and Greenville Recycling.

While the adults are occupied, the children may enjoy taking part in various games and activities planned for the day. There will be a nature walk, an estuary game, face painting, mask making, ecology games and tree identification. Children may also learn how to make a recycling bin.

An organic, vegetarian lunch will be sold from noon to 1 p.m., while the "Swamp Gypsies" provide musical entertainment.

The Theater for All Species Day, under the direction of Steve Myott, will take place during the afternoon. It will involve large, outdoor puppets and stilts. The theater will be a combination of events including a skit and story telling hour from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., with story tellers Ann Sullivan and Mj Daughtry, the grand celebration and the Parade of Animals.

At the Parade of Animals, spectators are invited — and encouraged — to bring a representation of their favorite creature or the creature that they most identify with the coastal Carolina bio-region, a visible emblem like a flag, banner, poster or mask.

In addition to all the events mentioned there will be booths open throughout the day manned by environmental groups such as Greenville Recycling, Re-Leaf, and the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation.

Injured birds of prey from the North Carolina Raptor Center will be on display with other natural history items of interest, and Ken Marsh, the visiting artist at Pitt Community College will exhibit sculpture as well as recite Indian legends.

Amy Hannon, director of All Species Day, says that the day will have a "fair-like atmosphere," and it will "appeal to the child in everyone." The theatrical aspect adds a new dimension to the day this year, as does the speaker forum. Last year there was just one speaker.

All Species Day promises to be a presentation of relevant environmental issues.

Dance Events Featured During The Festival

A Dance Extravaganza performer

N.C. Academy of Dance Arts dancers will perform at 1 p.m. Super Sunday

Dance Concert On Campus

The Dance Extravaganza, which will be presented on Monday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m., highlights the variety of dance talent and interest in the area.

The program will be performed in the Studio Theatre on the East Carolina University campus on Fifth Street. The theatre is located in the east wing, downstairs, in the Messick Theatre Arts Building.

Participants will present a varied program of tap, jazz, modern, ballet, Arabic and ballroom dancing as well as a few surprises.

Admission is free, and seating is on a first-come, first-served basis.

The dance night is sponsored by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Students enrolled in East Carolina University's Sorbonne program will participate this summer in Paris in celebrations of the bicentennial of the French Revolution.

Many special events are planned including a gala parade with representatives of most of the nations of the world. There will also be the grand opening of the new Peoples Opera at the Place de la Bastille.

Many of the old monuments of Paris have been spruced up for the celebrations. Renovations at the Eiffel Tower and the Arc de Triomphe have been completed. Gardens will be at their best, fountains will be flowing and Paris, "the City of Light," will be illuminated as never before.

This year's ECU-Sorbonne group will be the first to enter the Louvre Museum by way of I.M. Pei's glass pyramid and to view the new reflecting pool and new landscaping at the Louvre. The students also will be among the first to see the new arch constructed at La Defense, the modern skyscraper district north of the center of Paris.

Students will be enrolled in the Cours de Langue et de Civilisation Francaises at the Sorbonne of the University of Paris in the mornings. At the end of their studies, students will receive the Certificat de Langue Francaise from the Sorbonne, one of the oldest universities in the world, founded in the 13th century.

In the afternoons, students will take a French civilization course. Emphasizing French art, architecture and history, the course is largely taught on site at museums, monuments, cathedrals and chateaux.

This year's group of at least 30 students will include 18 ECU students and smaller groups from UNC-Chapel Hill, N.C. State, Meredith College and Princeton.

Visiting students are able to participate in the program and may transfer grades to their own universities. Graduate students and adults interested in studying French language and culture also are able to participate either as auditors or for credit.

Anyone desiring more information about the ECU-Sorbonne program may call or write: Prof. Karine Sparrow-Ginter, Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C., 27858-4353. Telephone 757-6024.

New ECU Camerata Group To Premiere On Tuesday

The New Music Camerata of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will present a program at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, April 25 in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus.

The program is free and open to the public.

The New Music Camerata is directed by faculty musicians Robert Ponto and Mark Taggart. The camerata is a newly organized group concentrating on the performance of contemporary 20th century music.

Various members of the school of music faculty and student body will take part in the performance, depending on the instrumentation of each work.

The program will open with "Hyperprism," a 1923 composition by Edgar Varese (1885-1965). Next will be a work "Encounters II," written in 1966 by William Craft (born 1923). This piece will feature faculty member Jeffery W. Jarvis, tuba, as soloist.

"Voice of the Whale," written in 1971 by composer George Crumb, (born 1929), consists of a vocalise, five variations on the theme sea-time, and a sea nocturne — for the end of time.

Following an intermission, the major work of the evening will be performed, a 1923 composition, "Facade" by composer William Walton, (1902-1983). Faculty member Clyde Hiss and music student Karla Scott will be the two reciters for this work which consists of 22 short selections.

Instruments used in the New Music Camerata consists of flute/piccolo, clarinet, saxophone, horn, trumpet, trombone, percussion, cello and piano.

Linda Clark Show At East Gallery

Jewelry by artist Linda Clark

An exhibition of paintings and jewelry titled, "Two Views/One Artist" will be at East Gallery through May 9. Linda Gillam Clark will be showing her oil paintings and sterling silver jewelry in this exhibit. Ms. Clark's work is in oils and with silver.

A graduate of East Carolina University, she has studied oil and watercolor technique with Dan Morgan, Clara Flanagan, and Bob Pitman. She is presently studying metal and weaving design in ECU's art program.

Her work has been exhibited and won awards in shows and exhibitions throughout Eastern North Carolina.

A reception will be held Friday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Chamber music will be provided by members of the Eastern Junior Youth Orchestra. This show is one of those being featured in the Gallery Hop sponsored by the Pitt/Greenville Arts Council during the East Carolina Arts Festival.

Frame Shop Show

For its part of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival gallery hop, the Art&Camera Frame Shop and Gallery will feature the work of artist Jake Van Wyk, with a reception to be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, April 28.

Van Wyk's show is comprised of lithographs, drawing, stoneware and porcelain work.

Italian Day Festivities At N.C. Museum Of Art

RALEIGH — Adults and children can don togas or togas for a daylong festival of arts and culture of Italy on Saturday, April 30 at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh.

The "Festa d'Italia" begins at 10 a.m. with walk-in art workshops for children. Young artists will make laurel wreaths, carnival masks, and pasta jewelry, help decorate a pasta palace or create a large mosaic. The workshops conclude at 12:30 p.m.

Performances of Italian music and dance by Triangle area ensembles will be held throughout the day. The Raleigh Boychoir will present concerts at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. The Tarantella and other Italian folk dances will be performed at 11:40 a.m. and 12:45 p.m. by the Triangle Italian-American Heritage Association.

Music students from Meredith College will present Neapolitan songs, arias and ensembles at 1:05 p.m. and 2:15 p.m. Two performances of popular Italian music will be held at 12:20 p.m. and 2:45 p.m.

Animated Italian folktales for children will be screened at 10:20 a.m. and again at 1:45 p.m. in the museum auditorium. Italian folktales and stories will be performed at 12 p.m. and 2:05 p.m. Performances of the "Punch and Judy Show" will be held at 11 a.m. and 1:25 p.m.

The film, "Three Coins in the Fountain," will be screened at 3 p.m. It features Louis Jourdan, Rossano Brazzi, Clifton Webb, Dorothy McGuire and Jean Peters in a 1950's romance filmed in Rome. The film won Oscars for photography and for its title song.

Director of Education Joseph Covington will present a travelogue about Italy in a slide talk titled "Palaces, Popes, and Pasta." He will talk about major monuments of history and architecture in Rome, Florence and Italian hill towns. The slide talk will be held at 11:05 a.m. in the auditorium.

Guided, 30-minute tours of the museum's collections of ancient art and Italian Renaissance paintings will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Brief demonstrations of cameo cutting, marquetry, pasta-making, papermaking, winemaking, calligraphy and bocce ball will be held. Italian design will be showcased in displays of imported cars.

Call in advance for a schedule of demonstrations and displays, as most will be held only once during the day.

For more information or a schedule of events, call 833-1935, extension 143.

• Maryland's State House in Annapolis, built in 1772, is the oldest capitol in the United States in continuous use, says National Geographic.

Minnie Evans' Visionary Art

A visionary drawing by artist Minnie Evans

Minnie Evans. She has been called the artist of most beautiful dreams, a gifted woman who trained herself to paint and draw. Long before her death at an old age two years ago, this gentle black woman had become known internationally as one of the finest of all folk artists.

Wilmington was home to Minnie Evans from the time she was a few months old until her death. In her thirties, she began drawing, sketches in pencil at first, then moving on to color, crayons and colored pencils.

A deeply religious woman, Mrs. Evans translated her night dreams into finely detailed drawings full of visionary mystery. Most of her work was also deeply influenced by the shapes and colors of leaves and flowers in nature, things she dearly loved.

This combination of night dream-visions and the reality of the beauty of the natural world about her resulted in art that is wonderfully expressive in its delicacy and jewel-like color.

Today, the art of Mrs. Evans is sought after by collectors and museums worldwide.

One of the best places to see her art is at St. John's Museum of Art in Wilmington. This is the museum that first exhibited her art, that faithfully supported her over the years.

Travel Adventures In Eastern North Carolina

After the week of activities of the East Carolina Arts Festival, people will be thinking about other events, other places to visit weekends and after work as the hours of spring and summer grow longer.

Parks administered by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department in Greenville are logical choices for close-at-hand relaxation and adventure.

River Park North is Greenville's largest park, one that combines facilities for family activities and an extensive natural area.

One of the park's major attraction is the Science and Nature Center, a museum that opened last year. It has a section devoted to scientific challenges for school children; an excellent collection of sea shells of the world donated by the late Renate Wittig Skinner; mounted animals; picnic areas; a nature trail with a swamp observation platform; fishing, and in the warmer months, rental paddle-boats.

The 365-acre spread provides opportunities for seeing nature up close — wild flowers, birds, reptilian life, trees, a swamp area.

Two other Greenville parks — the Town Common bordering the Tar River, is popular for strolling, for sun-bathing. In summer, the Sunday in the Park series of twilight concerts give music lovers a variety of entertainment. Green Springs Park on East Fifth Street is another favored spot for picnicking and walking.

• Not far distant from Greenville, there are many fascinating places to visit, all within a day's time. Periodically, festivals and special events are part of the scene.

In Beaufort County, Goose Creek State Park is ideal for outdoors-oriented people. The park is noted for its live oaks and Spanish moss, and its ample picnic areas. A sizeable walkway extends over a wetlands area, making possible the study of swamp life. Camping is available, and in season a river beach is open.

Beaufort County is also the location of the historic town of Washington. The renovated river front is a pleasant place to watch water activities. Fine old homes, old churches with cemeteries and an active cultural center add up to a rewarding place in which to spend time.

Farther east in Beaufort County is Bath, the oldest town in North Carolina. The small village has North Carolina's oldest church, and several historic homes grace the town's quiet streets. Bath has numerous water vistas.

North of Greenville, Tarboro's Town Common attracts those who take delight in the formal design of a tree-filled downtown park, a place dotted with statuary, surrounded by stately homes and churches.

A brief survey of other easily accessible places of interest not far distant from Greenville include:

• Cliffs of the Neuse State Park near Seven Springs, with 90 foot bluffs overlooking the Neuse River, is dramatic evidence of long ago geological upheavals. A museum effectively pictures the changes. The park also has nature trails and a swimming area in summer months.

• Hope Plantation near Windsor. An early 19th century rural mansion, home of Governor David Stone.

• Moratoc State Park, Hollister. A large nature park with the highest elevation in coastal North Carolina. Hollister is also the home of the Haliwa-Saponi Indian tribe which stages annual Pow-Wows.

• Merchants Millpond State Park. Another nature park, featuring huge old cypresses and a variety of plant and animal life common to ponds. It offers numerous excursions throughout the year.

• Tryon Palace, New Bern. A faithful restoration of the Royal Palace that was home to pre-revolutionary royal governors. The complex covers other historic buildings. The formal palace gardens attract thousands of visitors yearly.

These are but a sampling of outstanding places of nature and history to visit in eastern North Carolina.
