Thousands of students mass in downtown Beijing

Chinese Defy March Ban

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — More than 150,000 students and supporters of their pro-democracy campaign burst past a police line today and triumphantly filled Tiananmen Square, defying communist leaders' threat of a crackdown.

"We have created history today. History will not forget us. The people will not forget us," a student leader shouted through a megaphone to students in the 100-acre square, China's symbolic seat of power.

Trucks filled with soldiers circled the square to act as a barricade, but marchers swarmed onto the trucks.

They shouted "Welcome 38th Army!" and handed out leaflets to soldiers explaining their demands for sweepings changes in China's autocratic system, including press freedom and accountability of the country's leaders.

The trucks were immobilized by the mob, and within minutes the vast square was turned into a sea of waving white-and-red student banners and protesters chanted pro-reform slogans.

The students did not try to occupy the square but continued their march down Changan Boulevard, the capital's main thoroughfare. They then headed back to their campuses, declaring they had scored a victory by reaching the square.

While the march was going on, the government partially acceded to the students' demand for dialogue, saying it was ready to hold talks with them "at any time." But the statement said talks would have to be conducted through official student organizations, which the protesters have rejected.

The evening television news carried lengthy official comments reiterating the government's pre-march statements condemning student-generated "turmoil."

"The broad masses of students ... want to promote democracy and end corruption. That we understand and are in agreement with," the Beijing city government said. "But a minority of people ... reject the leadership of the party and government and want to return our country to the

Physician Faces Contempt Hearing

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Belhaven doctor said today he planned to comply with a Superior Court judge's order to appear at his contempt of court hearing in Washington, N.C.

Judge William C. Griffin Jr. of Williamston said Wednesday afternoon he would pursue contempt charges against Dr. Charles O. Boyette, who failed to appear for jury duty Tuesday and was late Wednesday.

Boyette said he has retained attorneys John A. Wilkinson and William P. Mayo, both of Washington, N.C. Mayo has been Boyette's personal attorney for 25 years and is also legal counsel for Pungo District Hospital in Belhaven, where Boyette is one of two doctors on staff. The two physicians serve eastern Beaufort County and most of Hyde County.

If Griffin finds Boyette in contempt, the sentence is at the judge's discretion. He could fine him or send him to jail. Boyette said the judge appears to have made up his mind that the doctor is guilty. No specific time was set for the hearing.

"I think he's got it in his craw to pass a contempt charge," Boyette said. "Contempt is a serious charge. Anyone would be foolish to work up a charge if it could be avoided."

Boyette said he asked in advance to be excused from jury duty altogether, claiming his heavy patient load at the hospital would not allow him to leave the town for court. However, Chief District Court Judge Hallett S. Ward of Washington, N.C., refused to dismiss Boyette from jury duty, setting up the confrontation this week between the doctor and Griffin.

Boyette, who is mayor of Belhaven, said he was able to attend court Monday, and he was sworn in and sat on a jury. When he checked in by phone Tuesday afternoon, he said he told the court there were too many emergencies for him at the hospital, and he could not leave.

"It just got worse from there," he said.

Boyette was ordered to arrive at the courthouse Wednesday at 10 a.m., but he said there were five emergencies that morning, including a patient experiencing heart failure and a woman in labor. He called the courthouse and said he would be late. He arrived at noon.

During the Wednesday morning jury selection, Boyette said a clerk had pulled his name for the 12th spot on a jury. Boyette claims he knew the participants in the trial, and the attorneys probably would have dismissed him from the case. Still, he said the judge took the tardiness as a sign of disrespect for authority.

"He took it as a flagrant affront to his authority and his order," Boyette said. "He said that I had been instructed to be there, and I was in contempt by not following instructions."

City Gets Shelter Grants

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The city of Greenville today was awarded $49,186 from the North Carolina Emergency Shelter Grant Program on behalf of three local non-profit agencies.

The Greenville Community Shelter will receive $23,711 in ESGP funds, the Faith House will get $19,266 and the Greenville Family Violence Center will receive $6,209.

"This demonstrates the commitment that our government has to our part of the state," said Greenville Mayor Ed Carter at a check presentation ceremony at City Hall today.

"I must indeed express my sincere appreciation and gratitude to the governor for his kindness and concern for our community," he added.

Greenville Mayor Pro-Tem Lorraine Shinn, who is also regional manager for the northeastern office of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said Greenville was the second largest grant recipient in the state — second only to Buncombe County.

Ms. Shinn said $751,000 in ESGP funds were available for statewide distribution this funding period, compared to requests totaling over $3 million. The $751,000 was distributed among 55 local governments involving 85 homeless shelters in the state.

She said grant funds may be used for operating funds, maintenance costs, rent, furnishings and appliances.

The grants will be administered locally by the city's development department.

Baby Food Tampering Spreads In British Isles

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — New cases of baby food tampering were reported today across England as well as in Ireland and Northern Ireland, and three babies were treated by doctors after eating food tainted by extortionists, officials said.

Newspaper reports said food companies had paid $850,000 to extortionists and that the culprits were demanding another $1.7 million.

The Daily Telegraph said police believe a gang that extorted $85,000 from a large supermarket chain this year was reponsible.

Scotland Yard, which is coordinating a nationwide inquiry, refused comment on the reports.

According to police, parents today reported finding glass, pins, needles and caustic baby soda in jars and cans of baby food and in one case, powdered milk. They did not say how many new cases were reported, but as of Wednesday there had been at least 28 cases in England alone.

Three babies were taken to hospitals in Leicester, Exeter and Leeds and later released.

New cases turned up in the province of Northern Ireland as well as across the border in the Republic of Ireland, police said.

H.J. Heinz Co. Ltd. and Cow and Gate Ltd., two of Britain's leading food manufacturers, on Wednesday offered a total of $169,000 for information leading to the conviction of the extortionists.

Heinz, whose parent company is the Pittsburgh-based food giant, and Cow and Gate said they had received extortion demands. They refused to elaborate.

The Daily Telegraph said police suspected a gang of extortionists who reportedly got $85,000 from a supermarket chain this year after threatening to poison food on its market shelves. The gang threatened to spike baby food unless it was paid $1.7 million, the newspaper said. It did not name the victimized supermarket chain.

The London tabloid Today said without attribution that some manufacturers had already paid $845,000 to the extortionists. It did not name the companies.

Tornado Toll

MANIKGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — A tornado killed at least 500 people and devastated more than 20 villages in central Bangladesh, the government said today.

The tornado Wednesday night blew away people, houses and animals as it whirled at 100 mph through the Manikganj area, 25 miles northwest of Dhaka.

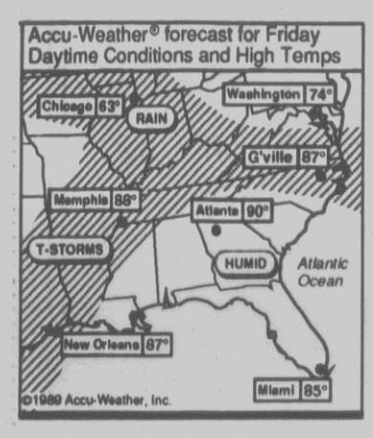

Survivors said the funnel cloud raged for 10 minutes and flattened "everything, including buildings."

Bush Says U.S. Chemicals Used To Refine Cocaine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — President Bush said today there is increasing evidence that foreign drug-traffickers are using American-made chemicals to refine cocaine and "we should demand that United States corporations act responsibly" to prevent such abuses.

Bush said few Americans are aware that "illegally diverted barrels of dangerous chemicals — clearly marked with U.S. corporate logos — are routinely seized" in the jungles of Colombia.

While U.S. businesses "by and large" have supported government efforts to curb drug abuse, "industry's got to do more," the president said.

"And I hope that parents' groups and stockholders are listening today," he said in the speech to the International Drug Enforcement Conference here. "We should demand that United States corporations act responsibly, and that they not tolerate chemicals ending up in criminal hands."

More than 100 striking Eastern Airlines employees and their supporters demonstrated outside the hotel where Bush spoke. They gave a thumbs-down salute as Bush's motorcade rode past. The president, who has refused union appeals to intervene in the nearly 8-week-old strike, waved in return.

In advance of Bush's speech, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the administration hoped that corporations would take "voluntary action" to determine the end use of chemicals they sell and ship out of the country.

But in his speech, Bush noted that a wide-ranging anti-drug abuse bill passed by Congress last year authorizes the government to take action against the diversion of chemicals for drug production. He said "regulations are now being drafted to tighten controls on the chemicals needed to refine cocaine."

The president said the time had come to "rid the world of these toxins" and said "we're going to start right here in the United States ... because, all too often, that's the original source of the basic industrial chemicals needed to produce cocaine."

"Traffickers have hit us where it hurts," he told the gathering of drug enforcement officers from Latin American nations. "Now, we're going to exploit their vulnerabilities, crimping the flow of materials, without which they cannot produce. No chemicals, no cocaine."

Bush pointed to the seizure by a 30-nation task force last year of 155,000 pounds of highly flammable ether, almost 450,000 pounds of acetone and more than 50,000 pounds of hydrochloric acid.

He said Colombian authorities in January destroyed 25 cocaine laboratories and "enough chemicals to make approximately 83 metric tons of cocaine. The damage that's done when 83 tons of coke hits U.S. streets is pretty obvious."

In a second speech today, prepared for the dedication of a Coast Guard drug-interdiction communications center in Miami, the president said "our purpose is simple and close to home: to keep drugs out of the lockers, the classrooms and off the playgrounds of our schools, to redeem the children of America from the scourge of drugs."

"From this site, civilian and defense radars will work together, under the watchful eye of Coast Guard and Customs duty officers, who will coordinate interception by federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, whether it means scrambling a jet fighter, a Coast Guard cutter or speedboats guided by the Blue Lightning strike force," he said.

Meanwhile, Fitzwater said Bush believes his trip, coming as he neared the 100-day mark of his presidency, has gone "very well." He said he expects Bush to travel around the country frequently to discuss his agenda and programs.

He said Bush feels it is important to "report to the American people, tell them what he is doing, discuss his program, talk about various issues. Bush will often make speeches before the American people, visit a lot of states."

Wednesday Thefts

Investigators said three thefts were reported to Greenville police on Wednesday.

Officer R.D. Andrews said $500 worth of fire logs were taken from 312 Rotary Ave. in an incident reported at 8:24 a.m., while Officer T.L. Forrest said a bicycle was taken from 301 Roundtree Drive in an incident reported at 10:44 a.m. The bicycle was later recovered, Forrest said.

Officer R.E. Jones said two gold necklaces with a combined value of $355 were taken from 503 W. Third St. in a break-in reported at 8:56 p.m.

Lottery Charges

Greenville police arrested three men on lottery charges Wednesday in connection with a 9:32 a.m. incident on Pamlico Avenue.

Officer S.C. Locke said Louis Artist Smith, 59, of 515A McKinley Ave. was charged with dealing in lotteries and possession of lottery tickets in connection with the incident.

Locke said Leon Evans, 53, of 100B Cox St. and Nathan Coggins, 71, of 502A Darden Drive were both charged with possession of numbered tickets.

According to Locke, $259 in cash, two lottery books and 11 number stubs were confiscated from Smith.

Break-in Charge

David Eugene Rouse, 17, of Route 8, Greenville, was arrested on a breaking, entering and larceny charge by Greenville police Wednesday.

Detective E.M. Haddock said Route was charged in connection with a break-in at 209B Alice Drive on April 16 where a video cassette recorder and radio-tape player were reported taken.

Permits Issued

Greenville police have issued two solicitation permits.

A permit has been issued to the Kiwanis Club of Greater Greenville to allow 45 volunteers to raise funds for the Children's Hospital from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. during May in locations throughout the city.

Police have also issued a permit to the Elmhurst Elementary School PTA to sell tickets for a barbecue chicken plate dinner on May 11 at the school. All PTA members are permitted to sell tickets Friday through May 11 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in locations throughout the city.

School on Friday

Friday will be a regular school day in the Pitt County schools, said Barry Gaskins, school public information officer.

Originally scheduled as a teacher workday, the day has been designated as a makeup day because of time missed due to inclement weather.

Choir Rehearsal

The Pitt County Mass Choir will rehearse Friday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at St. John Baptist Church in Falkland.

Bike Safety Week

The Greenville Optimist Club will sponsor its annual Bike Safety Week activities Saturday at Eastern Elementary School from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Candlemaking

Jack McNally, a student at South Greenville School, dips his wick into wax to make a candle while teacher Pat Mair and other students look on. Making candles was one of several activities students participated in Wednesday to recognize North Carolina Heritage Week.

Activities include a bicycle rodeo, a skill test and free bicycle safety inspection.

Greenville Mayor Ed Carter has designated Saturday through May 5 as Optimist Bike Safety Week, which is to stress intelligent coexistence of motorists and children riding on streets and highways. Children will learn bicycle safety through demonstrations and skills tests.

Club Ceremony

The Quota Club of Pitt County will conduct a ceremony at the Town Common Park Sunday at 2 p.m. to kick-off the recognition of May as "Better Hearing and Speech Month" as declared by the U.S. Council for Better Hearing and Speech.

The local ceremony will coincide with a variety of ceremonies Sunday conducted by quota clubs worldwide in service to the hearing impaired.

Quota International Inc. is a non-profit, classified service organization, comprised of executive businesswomen who are dedicated to serving the hearing impaired and their communities.

Class Project

Feasting on traditional Roman foods and wearing togas, student's of Ayden-Grifton's Latin I class held a convivium Friday. The Latin party honored the anniversary of the founding of Rome.

Michael Adams, Allyson Morris and Mary Arbegast received certificates of merit for their scores on the National Latin Exam during the celebration.

Heritage Week

Grifton High School is observing North Carolina Heritage Week. In addition to class visits to the Grifton Museum, a variety of activities have been held in the school's media center and classrooms.

George McArthur gave demonstrations of basketry and hammock making, Worth Forbes conducted sessions on wool gathering, Hazel Bright displayed and demonstrated quilting, and Ann Hughes demonstrated the "versatile washpot" with a different use on each day.

Mrs. Hughs also displayed an arrangement of antiques to show stages in processing flax and wool into yarn ready for weaving. The exhibit is housed in the media center entrance.

Guests and schedules were arranged by Ann Storms, media coordinator.

School Activities

Fourth and fifth grade students at Stokes Elementary School recently participated in the North Carolina Quiz Bowl. Zeb Brubaker, Diahanna Staton, Tre Teel and Jamaal Tyson were on the winning team.

Stokes Elementary observed Secretaries Day Wednesday and a luncheon will be held for school volunteers today. Student's work will be displayed Friday throughout the building and a chalk-in will be held.

Students at Stokes recently participated in a presentation of "Those Magical Dinosaurs." The entire student body took part in a musical program of songs related to "pride." The orchestra performed and there were several student solos.

Spelling Bee winners at the school were Zeb Brubaker of the fourth grade, with Dareus Hardy as alternate, and Brenda Perkins, fifth grade, with Donta Lawrence as alternate.

Guest Speaker

Addie Gore, an agricultural extension agent, recently visited Mrs. Girdharry's first grade class at Eastern School. She spoke to students about nutrition.

School Activities

G.R. Whitfield's Career Club, led by Carolyn Watford, traveled to Elizabeth City State University to compete in the Eastern North Carolina Career Club Rally. Finalists were Sam Simmons, first place, and Sheddrick Moore, Mike Powell, Jennifer Susak and Kim Allen, third place.

Charles Dempsey and Terry Livingston's seventh graders recently visited the Moving Wall in connection with their Vietnam studies, and the animal collection at River Park North.

On Friday, kindergarteners from Faye Terry and Sue Powell's classes went to Carolina East Mall to observe the NASA space exhibit and to the Greenville Common to hear a storyteller, while the chorus, directed by Gary Rivenbark, attended the Chorus Festival Friday at Williamston High School.

Director Selected

John Erdogan, director of bands at J.H. Rose High School, has been selected to serve as a judge at the North Carolina Music Festival in Myrtle Beach, S.C. Friday and Saturday.

Erdogan, one of the youngest on the panel, was chosen because of his experience as a marching band clinician and in drum corps. He will serve in the capacity of visual adjudicator for field show, parade, majorette squad, percussion ensembles, dance team and visual ensembles.

Student Reports

Several D.H. Conley students who are members of the North Carolina Student Academy of Science presented reports on their science research during state competetion recently at Wake Forest University.

Elizabeth Phibbs received honorable mention, Mary Beth Gray received a second place in the Junior Biological Advanced Division, Jessica Mega received first place in the Junior Behaviorial Advanced Division and Katrina Layton received third place in the Senior Biological Advanced Division.

Elizabeth Phibbs and Mary Beth Gray received special recognition from the North Carolina Biotechnology Center.

Publication Wins

"Expressions," a magazine published by students at East Carolina University, received the 1988-89 "Most Outstanding Medium" award from the ECU Media Board.

"Expressions" publishes non-fiction articles, short stories, poetry and reviews. The editor is Reginald Dillahunt of Kinston.

The magazine's primary purpose is to serve the campus minority population, addressing concerns of African-American, Native American, Hispanic, Jewish and other minority ethnic groups. The magazine also attempts to cover issues of interest to foreign students, veterans, women and non-traditional students, Dillahunt said.

EEOC Visit

Representatives of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission will visit Greenville on Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the United States Post Office, located on 300 W. Second St. The representatives will discuss employee rights under equal employment opportunity laws administered by EEOC.

Courses to Start

Two Elected

Two Greenville policemen were elected to leadership positions in the N.C. Division of the International Association of Identification at the group's spring conference in Burlington over the past weekend.

Sgt. Roger W. Benton, supervisor of the Greenville Police Department's identification section, was elected to the board of directors of the state-wide identification group, while Officer John D. Baker, a Greenville identification officer, was elected first vice president of the state association.

John Neuner, with the State Bureau of Investigation's latent fingerprint section in Raleigh, was elected president.

The association also voted to hold the 1990 spring conference in Greenville.

Deputy Evelyn Williamson Baker of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department also attended the conference.

Tales Told

Belvoir Elementary School students began their celebration of North Carolina Heritage Week with performances by Louise Anderson, a regionally acclaimed storyteller from Jacksonville.

She told folk tales learned from her family and through a lifetime of research, and she encouraged the children to probe into their heritage by questioning their parents and grandparents and listening to their stories and accounts of past events.

Other activities during the week included a school-wide exhibit by staff and community leaders that included quilting, weaving, spinning, horse shoeing, tobacco processing, native fish, Indian lore and other facets of North Carolina.

The speaker Sunday morning will be Elder Ethel J. Bryant, with music by the New Bern District Choir. Dinner will be served at 2:30 p.m.

State Opposes Helmet-Less Bike Riders

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Motorcycle injury data supplied by the state helped block efforts to repeal North Carolina's mandatory helmet law for riders over age 21, but lawmakers appeared willing to reduce the penalty for violations.

Thomas Cole of the state Division of Health Services predicted the number of injuries among motorcyclists would double if the bill passed, killing an additional 15 people each year at a cost of $70 million in lost livelihoods and related costs.

"Since ... up to 80 percent of motorcyclists are uninsured, much of this additional cost would fall directly on taxpayers," he said during a meeting Wednesday.

Maj. F.M. Lemmond of the state Highway Patrol agreed, saying people in the medical profession refer to helmet law repeal as "the donor law" because the head injuries "create more organs to be donated to someone else."

Several members of the Concerned Bikers Association supported the bill sponsored by Rep. Steve Wood, R-Guilford,

"It's not what you put on your head but what you put into it," said Rick Nail of Charlotte, association president. "Education is much more important than making someone strap something onto their body."

Michael McGee, community relations officer for the group, told the Human Resources Subcommittee on Health and Disease Prevention helmets contribute to accidents by restricting hearing and vision and impairing balance. Of the 14 states with the most motorcycle injuries, eight have mandatory helmet laws, he said.

"This is not an economic issue or social issue," he said. "It's a very simple freedom issue."

Claude Chavis, 39, of Harnett County, said 92 percent of motorcycle riders oppose mandatory helmet laws.

Helmets result in a tradeoff between head injuries and neck injuries, said Victoria Cope, legislative coordinator for the association.

Legislators' School Scheduled

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The Rural Education Institute at East Carolina University has invited 320 middle and secondary school pupils, mostly from rural schools, to attend the fourth annual Legislators' School for Youth Development in three-week sessions beginning June 18 and July 9.

High school seniors will comprise the first session June 18-July 6 and juniors the second, July 9-July 27, on the ECU campus. One hundred and fifty students are expected to attend each session.

Emphasis during the sessions will be focussed on developing leadership, enhancing communications skills and introducing the young people to new experiences. The statewide program was authorized by the 1985 General Assembly in an attempt to develop leadership potential among the state's rural youth.

The legislation specified that the program be designed for students from rural, isolated areas with a ratio of at least three to one, rural over urban students. Selections of the students were made from nominations submitted by teachers, counselors, principals, parents and leaders in various communities.

A similar program is conducted in the western half of the state on the campus of Western Carolina University at Cullowhee.

Local students participating, listed according to their home counties, include:

Beaufort — Caroline Edwards, Chris Craddock, Tonika Ward, Julia O'Neal, Robbin Briley, Crystal Brinn and Tiffany Heady; Greene — Kelly Radford, Edward Ham and Monica Speight; Martin — Esther Blanks, Alvin Coleman, Jacquelyn Bryant, Eric Williams, James Ambrose and Todd Pittman, and Pitt — Shannon Hardee, Dwayne Hines, Sarah Stancill, Kristen Oakley, Jonathan Corbett, Tonia Godley, Ephriam Gorham, Vijay Manthripragada, Steve Wicker, Yolanda Kelly, Niambe Green, Edwin Manning, Carlton Taylor and Bershuan Thompson.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Fitting

The Future & The Solution

It is fitting that the East Carolina University-Black and Decker Manufacturing Research and Development Work Cell was unveiled at the ECU School of Industry and Technology during National Science and Technology week.

Officials say the lab will give ECU students a major advantage as they seek future employment in industry. A number of area industries, including Procter and Gamble, contributed equipment for the new lab. Its mission was symbolized by a robot which participated in the unveiling by puncturing a balloon holding a ribbon.

The research laboratory is a partnership which will pay great dividends to ECU students and the cooperating industries as well. The research moves into an area that will be basic to productivity improvement in a broad range of industries of the future. In experimenting with industrial robots, the industries of the future will provide new employment to humans who will develop, maintain and operate the robots.

'Technology is sometimes blamed for the ills of the world, but without technological development the world could still be a dark place to live and work.'

Technology is sometimes blamed for the ills of the world, but without technological development the world could still be a dark place to live and work. That fact is important to note as the role and function of science and technology is debated and spotlighted this week.

It is also important to acknowledge the responsibility technology bears for solving the problems it has created. While science is frequently the problem, it is equally as often the solution.

The world is only now learning to carry out technological development in a way which serves humanity to the utmost including improving the quality of life. The industrial and technological changes ahead are going to be swift and startling. Both participating industries and ECU will benefit from the partnership they have established.

Funny Lady

Lucy's Laughter Lives On

The world is a little colder today, a little more forbidding, a little more serious. It has lost one of its funniest, most entertaining human beings — one who armed herself with laughter and shared that fun with millions. There will never be another like her.

Lucille Ball, who took the world of television by storm with the "I Love Lucy" series, one of the popular television shows of all time, died Wednesday at age 77.

Earlier she has undergone heart surgery and the outlook for recovery seemed good. Unexpectedly Wednesday her great heart gave out and a remarkable show business career came to the final curtain.

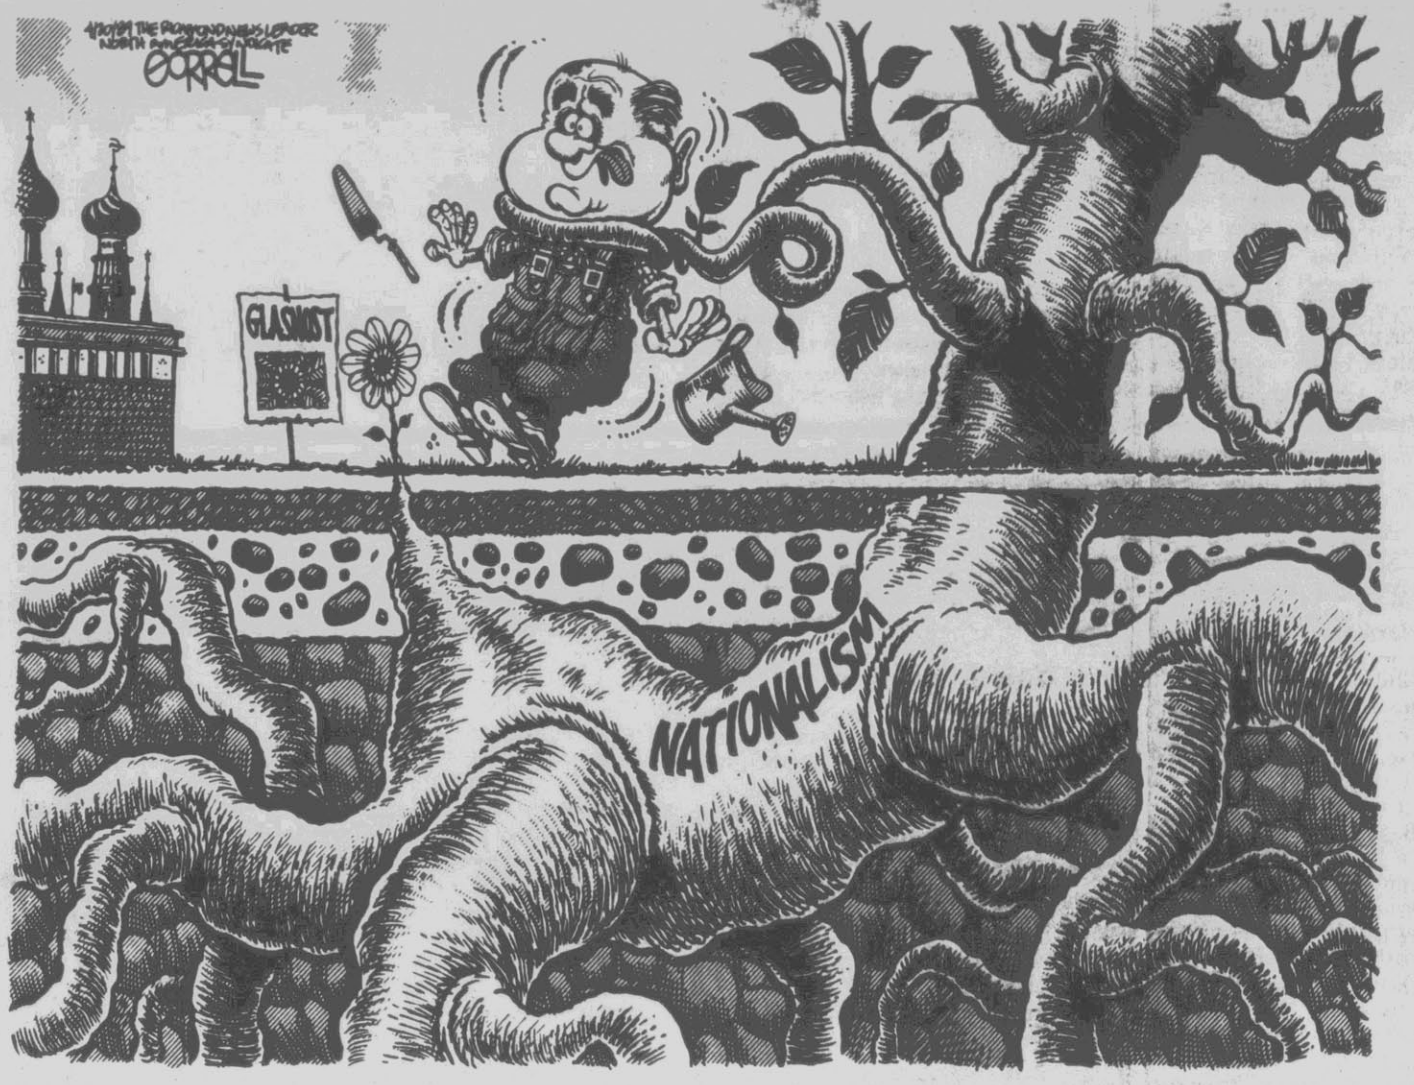

The television audience was huge on the nights when "I Love Lucy" was on. Lucille Ball starred with the late Desi Arnaz, who was then her husband in the show and in real life. Vivian Vance and William Frawley played the parts of their neighbors, Fred and Ethel Mertz. The comedic situations were endless and hilarious and the show's attraction to the American public, just becoming accustomed to television, was powerful.

All the stars on "I Love Lucy" blended perfectly to make the show a great one. Few would dispute, however, that it was Lucille Ball's great talent as a comedienne that carried the show to such great heights. Lucille Ball translated her real life pregnancy into the show's storyline and it was estimated that 44 million people watched the night the script called for the baby to be born. In real life she gave birth to a son.

All television series come to an end and so did "I Love Lucy." Despite business successes, the marriage of Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball also ended and she later married Gary Morton.

The "I Love Lucy" shows are classics and they regularly appear as reruns today. No doubt that will continue as each new generation discovers the great talents of a lady who lived before their time.

What that means is that Lucy's laughter will never be stilled. Lucille Ball's life has ended, but her talent — making life a little easier by making it funny — will live on.

To the editor:
"Timmy's taking my bicycle!"
"Timmy?"
"I'm late for little League."

We'll see later how Mom mediated that squabble. Moms arbitrate more often than they mediate, and either way is better than warfare. This letter is about mediation, informal (Mom) and especially formal (professional or paraprofessional).

Mediation involves a third party's helping two parties resolve their difference; both parties must be satisfied. (In arbitration the third party asks, listens, then decides.)

Formal mediation is succeeding everywhere. In domestic disputes and divorce settlements. In neighborhoods, from loud radios to hedge fences. Within schools, some Piedmont schools among the pioneers: membership in NAME (National Association for Mediation in Education) is booming. By diversion of cases from court (a major category). Internationally (1988 banner year).

There is a large literature. There are numerous organizations, including Society of Professionals in Dispute Resolution. There are specialists, like Speed Leas, conciliator in church congregational disputes.

There are fifteen county mediation centers in North Carolina. For Pitt, inspired by years of work of people like Bill Hadden and Jesse Harris, foundation for a mediation center has been laid out the past two years — helped off the ground by Bill Nicholls, Graham NaHouse, Tom Long, David Ames, and others; continued by Marty Schultz and his committee (Daily Reflector Feb. 23, p.1.).

Mayor Ed Carter is making it real. The city has made space available; the center will serve the county. Volunteers will soon be trained. Further support funds are being found. East of the other N.C. mediation centers, ours will join the N.C. Mediation Network (P.O. Box 217, Pittsboro 27312).

And Timmy's Mom? Just asked Janie: "Fifty cents from Tim ok, Janie?" "Yes but I need my bike by 5:30." Called: "Fifty cents to Janie and have it back by 5:15?"

"Ok, Mom!"

It isn't always that easy!

To the editor:

In reaction to the increase in minimum wage, I fear that it will have an adverse effect on unemployment. Eastern Carolina is known as a low paying geographical area of employment: particularly in the city of Greenville. Being a college town, Greenville has an abundance of students thus providing merchants and other employers with what could be termed "cheap labor." The minimum wage increase will prevent even student labor from being cheap resulting in a lower number of job openings. Turning away students in search of work will not only be a financial disadvantage to the student, but will also present the community with the problem of idle minds and idle bodies. Too much spare time and lack of funds could lead to behavioral problems such as theft or vandalism in our city.

The Effects Of A Cosmic Jaywalker

WASHINGTON — Your response to science news depends on your sensibility. I, for one, am delighted by the discovery of 1989FC, a cosmic jaywalker. That asteroid may or may not smash lots of us to smithereens. However, it certainly teaches an always timely, because chastening, lesson about the irreducible disorderliness of everything.

1989FC (why do we give better names to Buicks — Electra, Riviera — than to really important things?) was recently discovered from a Mount Palomar Observatory photograph after the asteroid made one of its annual passes near Earth.

It is big — perhaps more than half a mile in diameter — and fast (46,000 mph). When two objects are in overlapping orbits, the bigger one inevitably pulls the smaller into its path. So a scientist says, "Sooner or later it should collide with the Earth, the moon or Mars."

It would be nice to know which one and how soon. Should we paint the house or are we going to get smooshed? 1989FC would bump with the force of 20,000 one-megaton hydrogen bombs.

The cosmos is not crowded. If there were just three bees in America, the air would be more congested with bees than space is with stars. But there is a lot of stuff besides stars whizzing around.

'Before Darwin, many people believed that no living thing could become extinct because extinction would suggest that there had been imperfection in God's original plan. What will people think if one of 1989FC's big brothers comes crashing along and makes everything extinct all at once? If 1989FC itself hits Earth, causing localized catastrophe, one result will probably be a religious revival. The catastrophe will be construed as evidence that a caring God exists and is not amused.'

Earth is constantly pelted by small bits of matter, and some not so small: In 1908, passengers on the trans-Siberian express were startled by a bright blue ball of fire as a small comet leveled a 70-mile strip of Siberian forest. A hotly disputed hypothesis is that the evolution of life on Earth has been marked by radical disjunctions because of collisions with extraterrestrial material. Some scientists say one such collision occurred 65 million years ago and caused climatic changes that led to the rapid extinction of dinosaurs.

It is estimated that asteroids of more than half a mile in diameter hit Earth once every 40 million years or so. A few weeks ago 1989FC came within half a million miles of (let's look on the bright side) Congress. That counts as a near-miss. (Why do we say "near-miss" when what we are describing, with an airplane or an asteroid, is a near-hit?)

If 1989FC hits Earth, the odds are it will hit an ocean, raising (depending on its angle of entry) waves several hundred yards high, inundating coastal areas. (New York City? Every cloud has its....) Striking land, it would dig a crater a mile deep and five to ten miles across. There goes the neighborhood.

The Lisbon earthquake of 1755 was enough to cause people to question the idea of progress and to doubt a divinely ordained orderliness of the universe. That earthquake was an intellectually improving event. Imagine what a collision with a big asteroid could do for the moral and intellectual climate.

In 1610, Galileo discovered moons around Jupiter. The discovery convulsed Europe's religious and (hence) political passions. It proved something deflating about the nature of our solar system: Earth is not the center of the universe.

Ever since we were evicted from where we think we belong, science has delivered a series of affronts to our sense of dignity and autonomy. Darwin, by saying mankind is continuous with the slime from which mankind has only recently crept, imbedded mankind in the mud of the planet that has itself been revealed to be peripheral. Then Freud said there are within us uncharted depths with their own turbulences.

Early astronomy may have displaced our planet from the place of honor in the cosmos, but at least Newton said the universe was intelligible, even decorous. He was the great orderer. His clockwork theory of the universe gave rise, through the seepage of science into the wider culture, to an arid deism in theology: God was envisioned as the winder of the clock-like mechanism of the cosmos. There even was clockwork political theory, the clearest expression of which is the U.S. Constitution with its tidy (on paper) system of checks and balances — politics as physics

Neither Newton's universe nor our Constitution work as clock-like as we had hoped. And now we have 1989FC to worry about.

Before Darwin, many people believed that no living thing could become extinct because extinction would suggest that there had been imperfection in God's original plan. What will people think if one of 1989FC's big brothers comes crashing along and makes everything extinct all at once?

If 1989FC itself hits Earth, causing localized catastrophe, one result will probably be a religious revival. The catastrophe will be construed as evidence that a caring God exists and is not amused.

Court Ruling Leaves State In An Undesirable Position

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling on state pension taxation has put the State of North Carolina in an undesirable position. To comply with the decision, the General Assembly can choose from several different options, but no one of those options is fair to all retirees and taxpayers.

In the case of Davis V. Michigan, the high court ruled that the state cannot tax the pensions of federal retirees differently from those of state and local government retirees. North Carolina currently exempts all state and local government retiree pension payments from state income tax, but exempts only $4,000 from pensions of federal retirees. The court ruling means that this disparity must be stopped.

The most obvious solution, and no doubt the one which federal retirees sought in Michigan, would be to exempt all federal pensions from taxation. That would cost the state treasury $42 million a year, according to legislative staff projections.

There's little if any, legislative sentiment for that idea for two reasons. First, the state can't afford it. Second, the chairmen of the House and Senate finance committees — and probably most rank and file legislators — feel it would be unfair to exempt government pensions while taxing pensions for those who worked in the private sector.

Analysis

This second point is especially pertinent in North Carolina where private pensions are, on average, smaller than government pensions. The average federal (including military) pension in North Carolina is $13,000 a year. For state and local government retirees, the average is $7,200. For those in the private sector, the average is $4,800.

A second solution would be to eliminate taxes on pensions for everyone. But that is even more unaffordable than the first option. It would cost the state $122 million a year, and raise yet another fairness question. Why should retirees be exempt from taxes when workers aren't? If two couples have identical incomes, why should the retired couple, whose expenses and parental obligations are probably less, pay no tax while the working couple pays taxes?

Another solution would be to eliminate the pension exceptions altogether and make everyone pay taxes on their pensions. But that wouldn't be fair to state and local government employees. As unfair as it may be that they've never had to pay taxes on their pensions, it would also be unfair to begin taxing them now. Those people put their work years in with the promise that their pensions would not be subject to state taxes. To tax them now is to go back on a deal, to break a promise. The original decision to enhance state and local government pensions by making them tax exempt was a mistake which the legislature made many years ago.

Rep. Alex Hall, D-New Hanover, chairman of the House Finance Committee, is proposing to tax all pensions, and use the extra revenue raised to increase state and local government pensions. Hall hopes the raise would compensate state and local governement retirees for what they pay in taxes.

But there's a disparity in that, too. Retirees of private industry, state and local government all receive social security payments which are not taxed by the state. Federal retirees do not receive social security, they receive only their pensions. Thus, federal retirees under this plan would pay tax on their pensions.

Their First Report Card

Walter Mears

CHICAGO — In back-to-back appraisals, Vice President Dan Quayle and President Bush issued their own report cards on their first 100 days. Not surprisingly, the marks were excellent.

Bush said his administration is off to a good start in confronting problems that demand "urgent attention and decisive action," and in setting a steady course for long-term progress.

Quayle said the United States is disproving "the so-called declininsts," who see signs of national retreat. The vice president said his message on a 12-day mission to the Pacific is one of optimism, with alliances flourishing, trade booming, U.S. political and economic principles ascendant.

There are other grading systems, of course.

For example, while Bush boasted of a bipartisan budget agreement that kept "my no new taxes pledge intact," the deal does not deliver the decisive deficit curbs he also promised during the 1988 campaign. Indeed, some critics have called the deal a sham that simply puts off the day of budget reckoning until next year. Bush said it was "a strong first step."

Quayle, then Bush addressed members of The Associated Press in Chicago on Monday, two hours apart. The vice president's speech was, in his phrase, a "pre-trip briefing" on his trip to Australia, Indonesia, Singapore and Thailand.

Bush's staff also turned out a 17-page background summary on accomplishments but skipped setbacks like Senate rejection of John Tower's nomination to be secretary of defense.

His summary of proposals and plans was designed to counter complaints that his administration has drifted without a clear agenda. "I think the work we've done these past three months demonstrates the value of tough, principled negotiations between this administration and Congress," the president said.

He cited the budget agreement, a deal for non-military aid to the Contras, the savings and loan reform and bailout bill that has passed the Senate, his ethics reform bill, the drive against drugs, his education and child care proposals.

Bush said thorough reviews of foreign and defense policy issues will be completed late in May, pointing to strategies for a time of "remarkable change in international affairs."

The president said there's a running debate now on what it takes to move the nation forward. He said it takes principle, performance, ideology, action, "and this administration understands that the American people expect all of these — and something more.

"They expect results."

Results will be the final exam on each of issue. Those are the grades that really will count.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 25 years.

Iowa Explosion Victim Buried In Mount Airy

By Dennis Patterson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. — A Mount Airy sailor who died in the explosion on the USS Iowa was well-liked and enthusiastic about serving his country, a chaplain and relatives said as he was buried with full military honors.

"The cost of peace and freedom is high," Navy chaplain Lt. Jim Myers told mourners at the funeral service before Boatswain's Mate Eric Casey was buried Wednesday. "But American youth such as Eric Casey have always answered that call for freedom.

"Unfortunately today, we are gathered here once again because the cost of peace and freedom has cost us the life of one of our precious young men."

Casey, 21, was one of three North Carolina sailors who died in the explosion.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Dwayne Collier Battle, 21, of Rocky Mount; and Seaman Apprentice Leslie Allen Everhart Jr., of Kernersville, died in the explosion in a gun turret on the Iowa while it was on maneuvers near Puerto Rico on April 19. Battle's funeral is scheduled for Saturday in Rocky Mount.

"Eric Casey died at his station doing his duty for his country," Myers told about 100 friends and relatives at the Moody Funeral Home chapel. "His was a short life, but a good one."

The accident was the worst Navy disaster in more than a decade, killing 47 sailors. The explosion and fire were in the second of the two forward gun turrets, at the loading position of the middle gun in the three-gun turret.

Casey had enlisted in the Navy in July 1985, soon after he graduated from North Surry High School. Friends said he planned to return to Mount Airy and enroll in college in June after his four-year enlistment ended.

The funeral included pall bearers and an honor guard from the USS Dewey at Charleston, S.C., and a delegation from the North Surry High School ROTC unit. Casey was a lieutenant colonel and cadet commander in the ROTC chapter. The service lasted less than 20 minutes.

"Quality of life is the most important thing about life and not the quantity, or length of it," Myers said. "No matter how long we live, all of us are going to die with unfulfilled hopes and desires.

"Let's not just remember how he died," Myers said. "Let's remember how he lived."

Casey's sister, Danajo Kiger, said her brother had talked about enrolling at a community college in Surry County to become an electronics engineer. He was scheduled to finish his tour of duty in July.

"He always lived life for the day that it was," Kiger said. "He never dwelled on the past. He was pretty carefree, you know, but he owned up to his responsibilities.

NCNB Chief Says Bid May Be Made To Acquire Texas Banks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Just months after NCNB acquired the largest bank in Texas, chairman Hugh McColl says the Charlotte-based bank may bid for 20 troubled banks in the Lone Star state formerly owned by MCorp.

"We don't think we have an edge, but we already have 1,100 people running a bank (NCNB Texas National Bank) for the FDIC," McColl said Wednesday at a news conference after NCNB's annual shareholders' meeting.

"We feel we could do the same for some of their other asset problems," McColl said. "In other words, we are in there on the ground and doing the job."

The announcement came two days after NCNB dropped its unsolicited offer for Citizens and Southern Corp., of Atlanta.

McColl said NCNB had been invited by the FDIC to enter the bidding for the former MCorp. banks, which were placed in federal receivership last month following heavy real estate and energy losses. MCorp itself still operates five banks in Texas.

Four months ago, NCNB effectively doubled its size when it was selected by the FDIC to acquire the largest bank in Texas, First RepublicBank Corp., which — like MCorp. — was based in Dallas.

NCNB now manages more than $50 million in assets and has full-service banks in seven Southern states.

Francis "Buddy" Kemp, chairman of the new NCNB Texas National Bank, said acquiring the former MCorp. banks was one of several possibilities for NCNB to expand into new markets in that state.

"There are several markets in which we would like to build on our strength," he said. "Houston and San Antonio are areas where we'd like to have more strength.

"Whether it's MCorp. or another bank isn't the issue," Kemp said.

NCNB officials said they have not prepared an offer for the financial troubled part of the $18 billion banking company.

"A superficial review suggests a package similar to the First Republic bid," said Tim Hartman, vice chairman of NCNB Texas. "All of that could change as we move into late May."

In what could be the third largest commercial bank rescue in U.S. history, federal regulators have pumped $300 million into the Dallas company.

"We are still several weeks away from making a bid," Hartman said.

Earlier Wednesday, McColl received a warm reception from shareholders as NCNB opened its annual meeting just two days after dropping its $2.4 billion takeover effort for Georgia's largest bank.

More than 450 shareholders greeted McColl with a standing ovation before he touched briefly on the events of the last three weeks.

On Monday, NCNB announced it was withdrawing its merger offer for Citizens and Southern Corp. of Atlanta. If the deal had gone through, it would have been the largest bank merger in U.S. history and would have created the sixth-largest bank in the nation, with about $76 billion in assets.

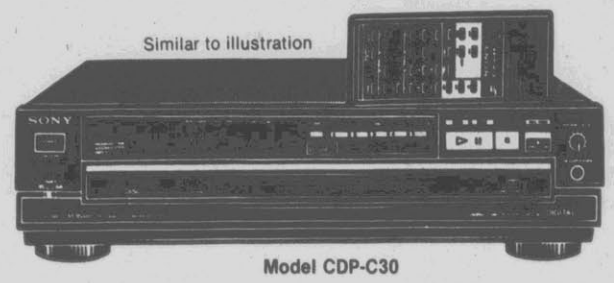

After launching the buyout plan on March 30, McColl was forced to drop the bid when he ran into a solid wall of resistance from C&S's board.

"They rejected our offer for reasons I'm sure were entirely clear to them," McColl told shareholders, "although they're not entirely clear to me."

McColl reiterated his vow to continue NCNB's aggressive expansion efforts in the Southeast and Texas.

Speedy Trial Vote Delayed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina's "Speedy Trial Act" is not making the wheels of justice turn more quickly, but it is unclear whether changing or abolishing the law would improve things, a House subcommittee was told.

The Judiciary Subcommittee on Civil and Criminal Justice postponed action Wednesday on a bill that would extend the deadline for bringing a case to trial after an indictment from 120 days to 150 days. The measure also would add new exceptions to the law.

Also Wednesday, the Senate delayed a floor vote on a bill to abolish the Speedy Trial Act.

The House bill was recommended by a committee established by Chief Justice Jim Exum of the state Supreme Court to study problems raised by the act, which is causing crowded dockets and loading down judges with paperwork related to requests for exemptions to the deadline, said Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange.

"At the end of each week of court or each two-week term, judges are having to sign sheafs of paper continuing these cases," said Franklin Freeman, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, said the bill was an effort to please district attorneys, judges and defense lawyers.

"We believe that this giving an extra 30 days for disposition of cases and the inclusion of the exceptions would result in fewer cases being put on the calendar, thus reducing the paper flow," he said.

H.B. Williams, president-elect of the state district attorneys' conference, said the group opposes any change in the current law. But if there is a change, the prosecutors prefer repealing the Speedy Trial Act to extending the deadline, he said.

"It is our belief that any problem with providing a speedy trial is the result of resource constraints," Williams said. "There's not enough people ... not enough courtrooms, a lack of Superior Court judges."

Senate Tenatively Drops Victory Level

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina's 74-year-old runoff primary law is facing its stiffest challenge ever, as the Senate has agreed tentatively to let candidates be nominated without getting a majority of the vote in a primary.

Under a bill endorsed 35-13 Wednesday and scheduled for a final vote today, the threshold for winning the nomination without a runoff would be lowered from more than 50 percent of the vote to more than 40 percent.

Blacks have spearheaded the push to abolish runoffs or make it easier to be nominated without a second primary, and the often bitter debate raised racial and partisan issues.

Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, charged that Republicans had duped a majority of the Senate's Democrats into believing the change would be fair to blacks and women, who complain that they often finish first in a primary against several opponents only to lose a runoff against a single white male.

"Minority people think that it's going to ... let them get elected," Swain said. "It might get some of them nominated, but it will never work to elect anybody except more Republicans."

Some Democrats say Republicans want to get rid of runoffs because they would fare better in general elections if their opponents are black or female.

The bill "is the final step toward the elimination of the Democratic Party and I commend all you (Republican senators) ... for being able to fool our Democratic majority here into thinking they're doing a great thing for all the people of this state," Swain said.

Rep. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, a leading supporter of the bill who visited the Senate chamber as the bill was debated, told reporters Swain probably was correct about the GOP's alleged ulterior motive.

"But that's when you begin to test the mettle of the Democratic Party," Michaux said. "If Democrats are true Democrats ... that should not prevail."

Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, argued that the change would not hurt the Democratic Party, noting that the party is strong in many states without runoffs.

Second primaries were needed for most of the century because North Carolina was essentially a one-party state and winning the Democratic nomination was tantamount to election, Mrs. Marvin said. But with a more competitive GOP, the runoff is an anachronism, she said.

"All of you Democrats know how second primaries have divided us in the past and made it extremely difficult for us to pull ourselves together," she said.

Michaux, D-Durham, who would have won the Democratic nomination for the 2nd District congressional seat in 1982 if the 40-percent threshold rule had been in effect, said its approval was "a step in the right direction."

He said its prospects in the House were good and said if it becomes law, he might challenge Democratic Rep. Tim Valentine, who was first elected to Congress in 1982 after defeating Michaux in a runoff. Michaux had won 45 percent of the vote in the first primary.

Originally, the bill called for abolishing second primaries altogether.

Panel Opposes Pregnancy Bill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A bill that would create a statewide adolescent pregnancy commission is headed to a legislative committee, where supporters hope it will get a friendlier reception than in a subcommittee, where its defeat was recommended.

"We're confident that the full committee will understand that this (bill) is a necessary and important part of pregnancy prevention efforts in North Carolina," said Barbara Huberman, executive director of the North Carolina Coalition on Adolescent Pregnancy, which is spearheading the drive to establish the commission.

The House Human Resources Subcommittee on Children and Youth voted 4-3 Wednesday to give the measure an unfavorable recommendation.

Ann Frazier, chairman of North Carolina Conservatives United which is leading opposition to the measure, acknowledged the subcommittee's vote was not binding on the full committee, but voiced confidence.

"Even though the subcommittee was divided, we feel that this will be a good sign and will ... help the full committee defeat this bill," Mrs. Frazier said.

The bill would set up a 15-member commission to help local communities establish anti-pregancy programs. The panel also would award grants to help get the programs started.

The Department of Human Resources already funds some local programs, two of which — in Robeson and Greene counties — have school-based clinics. Ms. Huberman emphasized that establishing the clinic was a local decision.

AIDS Survey

DURHAM (AP) — Based on a high rate of participation in a trial survey, people selected for a national survey on the prevalence of the virus that causes AIDS could be expected to participate, North Carolina researchers say.

"We didn't have people chase us off with guns or anything of the sort," said Dr. Donald Zimmerman, a researcher and spokesman for the Research Triangle Institute, which conducted the pilot study.

"We had people open their doors and say, 'Come on in, let's do this,'" he said Wednesday. "There seemed to be a strong attitude that this is a serious problem that deserves serious attention."

About 85 percent of the 308 people asked to submit blood samples for analysis agreed to do so in RTI's survey, a rate that Zimmerman called "unusually high."

Brodie Attack

DURHAM (AP) — One of Duke University's most prominent faculty members, James David Barber, publicly blasted Duke President H. Keith H. Brodie this week as a poor leader who should not be rehired.

The attack came in a guest column on the editorial page of Tuesday's Duke Chronicle, the student newspaper.

Barber — a political scientist and expert on U.S. presidents — criticized Brodie for ignoring faculty views on policy and for failing to act on problems until demonstrators bring them to his attention.

The criticism comes as Brodie finishes his fourth year of a five-year term as Duke president. The university's trustees, whose decision it would be to rehire Brodie, are scheduled to meet on campus on May 12.

Lobbying

RALEIGH (AP) — Two politicians who had come under fire for their lobbying activities have decided they won't lobby after all.

State Democratic Party Chairman Lawrence Davis III and former Gov. Jim Holshouser, legislative counsel for Republican Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner, have canceled plans to represent corporate clients before the General Assembly.

"I'm not going to lobby at all on anything," Holshouser said Wednesday. "I felt comfortable with it myself, but I saw there was the potential for misunderstanding. I'm just not going to do it."

Holshouser, a Republican, reversed his earlier decision to lobby for corporate clients of the law firm Patton Boggs & Blow.

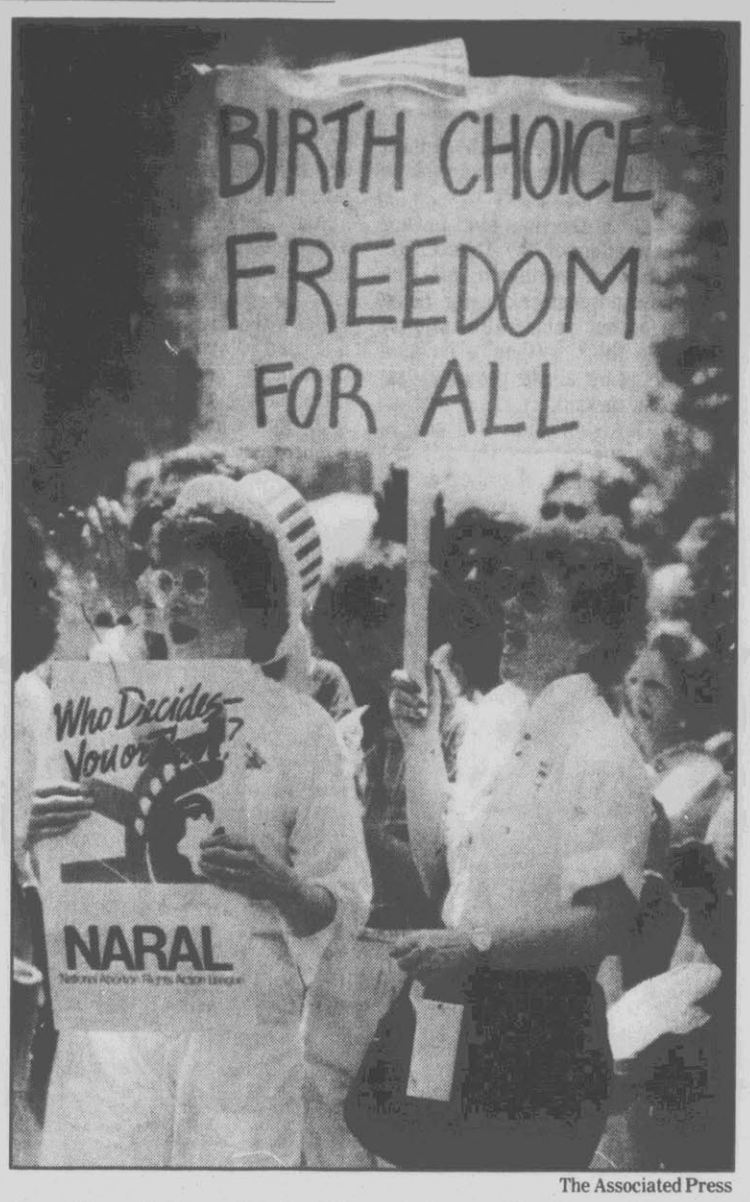

Davis, a lawyer with the firm of Womble Carlyle Sandridge & Rice, had raised eyebrows when he said he would continue to lobby for longtime clients after becoming state Democratic chairman.

Worker Dies

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — A 47-year-old Forest City furniture manufacturing worker died after he was cut by a knife that flew out of a machine he was testing, a Broyhill Furniture Industries official said.

Billy Bruce Harris, who had worked for Broyhill since 1971, was pronounced dead at Rutherford Hospital after the accident occurred around 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Harris had placed two knives into a shaping machine, but they apparently were not locked into place when he turned on the machine to test it, said Brent Kincaid, vice president of operations for Broyhill. One of the 3-inch-long knives struck a shield covering the equipment and the other struck Harris in the side.

Pro-Choice Activists Rally At Legislature

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — As state lawmakers moved toward slashing the state abortion fund and the U.S. Supreme Court considered its commitment to legal abortions, about 800 people rallied in an attempt to stem the anti-abortion movement.

"I think it represents a real turning of the tide, with pro-choice beginning to speak out and send its message to the Legislature," said Ruth Ziegler, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League of North Carolina.

On Tuesday, the House adopted a budget that would cut the abortion fund from $924,500 a year to $200,000. The Senate has approved a budget that would cut the fund to $424,0000.

The pro-choice advocates carried white coat hangers dipped in red to symbolize back-alley abortion. Speakers acknowledged that after years of success in the legislature, they now face a foreboding political climate.

"We are dealing right now with a dangerous situation in this state," state Rep. Ann Q. Duncan, R-Forsyth, told the crowd. "We are talking about health equity for poor women."

Rep. Sharon Thompson, D-Durham, told the crowd that "we used to have an administration and House leadership that supported reproductive rights."

"Now the tables have turned," she said. "There is more of a feeling now that it's OK to cut the fund. We have no other choice but to return to the grass roots."

At one point, a small group crowded around Rep. Paul Stam, who has led the push in the House to cut the state abortion fund, and peppered him with questions about abortion.

"You have no right to make a decision that would affect me," Sue Sandlin-Plaehn of Raleigh told Stam. "Let us decide what goes on in our house. That's pro-choice."

"Liberty involves freedom of choice until it affects somebody else," Stam said. "The problem (with abortion) is that we know scientifically that we're affecting somebody else's life."

He also admonished the crowd, "If you want to kill somebody, pick on somebody your own size."

Some men and women gave up their lunch hour to attend the outdoor rally across from the State Legislative Building, while others brought their children in strollers. Several people carried placards that read "My Choice, Not Theirs," "Keep Abortion Legal" and "Mother of Two By Choice."

Ms. Ziegler presented petitions containing the signatures of more than 10,000 pro-choice supporters to Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, and Rep. Ann Duncan, R-Forsyth, who were joined by Rep. Peggy Stamey, D-Wake, Rep. H.M. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, and Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover.

"You've sent a strong pro-choice signal today," Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, told the crowd. "But you must remain consistent, vigilant and loud — somewhat like the other side."

Ms. Duncan, the only Republican appearing Wednesday, said she was speaking out for the first time because she believed she had gained enough credibility in the Legislature.

Supreme Court Receives Arguments On Abortion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Both sides of the abortion issue are finding grounds for hope as they await a Supreme Court ruling in a key Missouri case that could alter the right of women to end their pregnancies.

Frank Susman, a St. Louis lawyer who urged the court Wednesday to strike down a Missouri law restricting abortions, said he is not conceding any votes among the nine justices.

"I have given up on no one," he told reporters after the hour-long argument session that packed the courtroom and drew more than 200 demonstrators and spectators outside the court building.

Twenty-seven "pro-choice" protesters were arrested for breaking through police barriers that lined the court building's plaza.

Referring to the court's 1973 ruling in Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide, Susman said he believed the justices are now aware "Roe works. You cannot put the cork back in the bottle. You can't turn the clock back 16 years."

Missouri Attorney General William Webster, who urged the court to uphold the state's abortion regulations even if it does not reverse the broader 1973 decision, also said he was pleased with the arguments.

"To the extent Roe works, you have to ask yourself why we are standing in front of the court" 13 years after the case was decided and after numerous subsequent court rulings on abortion, Webster said.

He said the Missouri regulations are a lot less severe than the "pro-choice" forces claim and stop far short of outlawing abortions.

"The debate has been polarized and exploited. Frankly, (the Missouri law) just doesn't go that far," he said.

Harvard law professor Charles Fried, a former top Reagan administration official, argued in behalf of the Bush administration. He urged the court to overturn its 1973 ruling, but declined to speak to reporters outside the courtroom after the argument session.

The justices, who do not necessarily have to reconsider Roe vs. Wade in resolving the Missouri dispute, gave little indication of how broad their decision will be. They are expected to announce their ruling by July.

At one point, Justice Antonin Scalia — a potential swing vote along with Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Anthony M. Kennedy — asked whether the court must consider the nature of a fetus.

"Can you derive (a fundamental right to abortion) without making a determination as to whether the fetus is human life or not?" Scalia asked the lawyers.

The justices will take their initial vote in the Missouri case Friday in a closed-door meeting. They will discuss their views, beginning a process that will include drafting and redrafting opinions.

A federal appeals court, relying on Roe vs. Wade, struck down major provisions of the Missouri law as unconstitutional.

Rudy Linares is led to police van after arrest Wednesday

Father Released On Murder Charge In Baby's Death

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A gun-wielding father who tearfully unhooked his comatose son's life-support system and held him until the baby died has been charged with murder for an act he said he committed "because I loved my son."

Rudy Linares entered the hospital room of his 16-month-old son, Samuel, and unhooked the boy's ventilator, holding hospital workers at bay with a .357-caliber Magnum nandgun, police said.

"No one has the right to take the law into his own hands," said Cook County State's Attorney Cecil Partee. "The facts of this case clearly dictate the filing of first-degree murder charges."

At the hearing Wednesday night, prosecutors said the 23-year-old Cicero house painter should be held without bail on the murder charge because the gun was cocked and Linares had threatened to "kill anybody who interfered."

But Judge Marvin Ruttenberg ordered Linares released on a $75,000 recognizance bond, which means he does not have to put up any money unless he fails to appear at future hearings.

The judge told him to return to court today.

Following Ruttenberg's order, Linares was taken into custody by police from Cicero on an unrelated December warrant of battery and resisting a police officer.

He was released early today after posting $1,000 at the suburban jail, police said.

Linares' wife, Tamara, joined close relatives and about 20 friends at the hearing.

"Nobody has a right to call him a murderer, because Sammy was already dead," said Linares' 22-year-old brother, Robert. "He was hurting. Put yourself in his situation. It was his son.

"For eight months he went through so much pain and agony. ... This was killing and eating my brother away inside."

"I did it because I loved my son, alright? I love my wife," Rudy Linares shouted to reporters after his arrest.

At 1:20 a.m. Wednesday, Linares ordered hospital staff out of the pediatric intensive care unit at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, where the boy's breathing had been sustained on a ventilator since August, police said.

He then unhooked the boy from the life-support system and sat crying with his son in his arms, police said.

"I'm not here to hurt anyone. I'll only hurt you if you try to plug my baby back in," police quoted Linares as saying.

Linares eventually allowed nurses to enter and remove three other youngsters. Sgt. William Rooney said the child died about 30 minutes after the incident began.

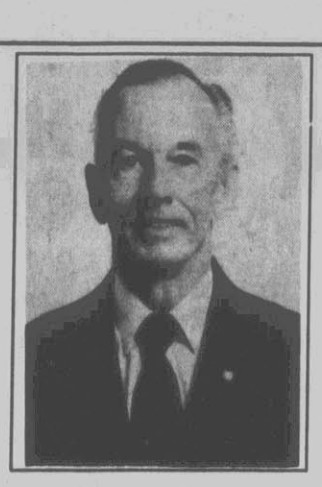

"He never pointed the gun at anyone other than the child," Rooney said. "He sat there in a chair until the baby had expired, then turned the gun over to the officers."

Linares was "calm at times ... he did a lot of crying," said Detective Gary Bulava.

Later, Mrs. Linares said: "This is the best thing. Sammy is out of his misery."

Linares had unhooked his son's life support system during a Dec. 30 visit, but staff members reconnected the apparatus, Bulava said.

A police official who spoke on condition of anonymity said no charge resulted from the earlier incident because police had not been notified.

Magellan spacecraft sits in orbiter bay of shuttle Atlantis

Countdown On Track For Shuttle Launch Set For Friday Afternoon

By Howard Benedict
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A trouble-free countdown gave NASA workers some breathing room today as preparations proceeded toward Friday's midafternoon launch of Atlantis and five astronauts. The mission will propel a probe to Venus on the first space shuttle planetary mission.

"We just don't have anything out there that we're worried about; it's been a real smooth count and we expect it to continue that way," NASA test director Ronald Phelps told reporters today.

Phelps spoke as the countdown was halted for 15-hours, 34 minutes. The hold was planned to allow for any catchup work in case of problems, but Phelps said there were none.

As the NASA crew prepared for its four-day flight, three Soviet cosmonauts returned to Earth today, leaving the Mir space station unmanned for the first time in more than two years. Three of the cosmonauts had been in orbit for five months, the third for eight months.

When the Atlantis count resumes shortly before midnight, the launch team will make preparation to begin loading more than 500,000 gallons of propellant into Atlantis' fuel tanks.

The only concern, and it was slight, was the possibility of crosswinds of more than 17 mph that could be dangerous if the shuttle had to make an emergency landing on a runway near the launch pad.

Shuttle managers assessed all facets of the flight during a day-long meeting Wednesday and reported, "all preparations are progressing satisfactorily. There are no technical or programmatic issues. ... Weather is expected to be good."

Liftoff of the 29th shuttle mission and the fourth since the Challenger explosion three years ago is set for 2:24 p.m. Friday. The launch team will have only a 23-minute period in which to get the shuttle off the ground because of the need to deploy the Magellan probe from a precise point in space and the requirement that liftoff occur before darkness falls on emergency landing sites in Spain and Morocco.

The astronauts were to review flight plans and make efficiency runs in jet aircraft today.

They are commander David Walker, pilot Ron Grabe and mission specialists Mary Cleave, Mark Lee and Norm Thagard.

Late Friday, about six hours after liftoff, Lee and Cleave will release Magellan from the cargo bay and an hour later a rocket will hurl the 7,600-pound payload on a 450-day voyage to Venus.

Magellan is to orbit the cloud-veiled planet and map up to 90 percent of the surface with a high resolution radar system.

Its images should reveal details as small as 100 yards across, about the size of a football field. This is 10 times sharper than any previous pictures of the planet.

"All our previous data from Venus has been low resolution and about all that data has done is tell us basically there are continent-size mountain masses on Venus and that there are extensive rolling plains," Magellan project scientist Joseph Boyce said Friday.

Soviet Cosmonauts Return Home, Leave MIR Empty

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Three Soviet cosmonauts returned to Earth today from the Mir space station, leaving no one aboard the orbiting craft until at least August, the official news agency Tass said.

This is only the second time the space station has been left unattended since it was launched in February 1986. Mir was unmanned from July 1986 to February 1987 while the Soviets prepared the station for constant occupation.

Officials said leaving the Mir unmanned will save money at a time when the Soviet Union faces a $160 billion budget deficit and will give experts a chance to review scientific data already collected.

Meanwhile, other segments of the Soviet space program are continuing. Tass announced today that a Photon rocket had been launched Wednesday.

"The program of the 16-day flight includes experiments to produce semiconductor materials with improved qualities and extra-pure biologically active preparations in micro-gravity," Tass said.

The Soyuz TM-7 carrying the three cosmonauts from the Mir touched down in Soviet Central Asia at 6:59 a.m., Tass reported. The capsule carrying Alexander Volkov, Sergei Krikalev and Valery Polyakov landed 90 miles northeast of Dzheskazgan.

The cosmonauts, apparently suffering no ill-effects from their extended space flight, were to be taken by helicopter to a nearby town to meet with their families, Radio Moscow said.

Volkov and Krikalev had been in space for five months while Polyakov, who remained on board after orbiting with a Soviet-Afghan team, had been aboard Mir for eight months.

A replacement crew was originally due to arrive at the Mir on April 19, but Tass said "a delay with the preparation" of two new modules forced a change in plans.

The next crew due to take up residence in Mir in mid-August will bring with it two modules containing a space chicken farm and equipment for the production of single-crystal semiconductor materials, Tass said.

The agency said there would be "a biological complex for mastering the technology of growing poultry in zero gravity."

The new crew members, Alexander Viktorenko and Alexander Balandin, are expected to remain on board six months.

One of the new modules will contain an airlock to permit cosmonauts to exit the craft while in orbit, and a maneuvering unit for spacewalks, Tass said.

Deputy flight director Viktor Blagov said last week that the new modules, which would double the station's weight to 100 tons, would be attached to the Mir by the end of the year. He said they also will bring on board a space bicycle, a solar battery and an East German optical experiment.

In September, an Afghan and a Soviet cosmonaut were forced to postpone the landing of their Soyuz TM-5 capsule for a day because of equipment and crew errors. They touched down safely a day late but were running dangerously low on food and air.

In December, two Soviet cosmonauts returned from the Mir after breaking the record for the longest time in space after a year-long stay.

Continuing Problem

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CANBERRA, Australia — Vice President Dan Quayle, touring a NASA facility deep in the Australian bush, today called the resignations of several space agency officials a problem the administration must confront.

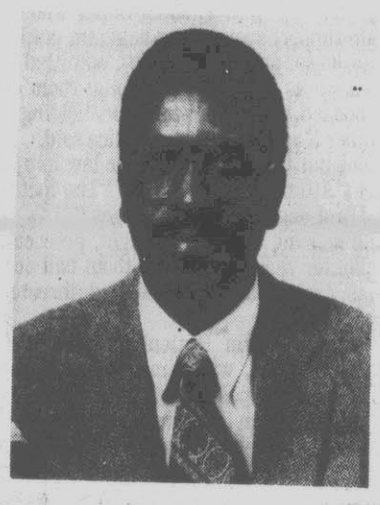

The NASA officials cited low pay and potentially tougher ethics legislation the Bush administration has asked Congress to consider. Some of the rules are aimed at tightening the "revolving door" for federal workers, which would close job opportunities in the private sector for NASA officials.

"We'll just have to work with Congress and work within the administration to see if there is anything to adjust the regulations," Quayle said.

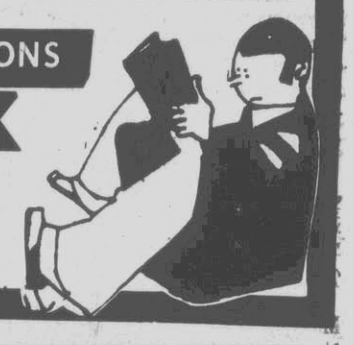

Higher pay for NASA workers should also be considered, he said.

Quayle, on his second day in Australia on his trip to the Pacific, visited the Tidbinbilla Space Tracking Station, which is managed by Australia's space office on behalf of NASA.

Robot Falls As Museum Study Stalls

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — It was the moment of truth and all systems were go, but the star of the show was nowhere to be found.

About 2,000 museum officials, teachers and technicians were tuned in Wednesday to test a $7 million satellite hookup to an exploration ship anchored in the Mediterranean.

But when it was time for the Jason to take center stage, all that was left of the robot whose predecessor first scavenged the sunken Titanic was a severed cable.

The disappearance occurred as engineers at Turner Broadcasting Systems Inc. in Atlanta were coordinating with control centers at more than 10 science museums around the nation and in Canada. During the next two weeks, 250,000 students are scheduled to watch live transmissions as the robot explores the ruins of a Roman ship wrecked off Italy in A.D. 300.

Dr. Robert D. Ballard's crew was lowering Jason and its 8,000-pound mobile garage, Argo, 2,100 feet to the sea floor. The audio signal was scratchy, but suddenly rubber-booted marine biologists began scratching their heads and conferring just out of the camera's view.

The frayed cable came up and the crew looked on, first shocked and then increasingly pale: Jason and Argo were gone.

Within an hour, Ballard — the sea explorer who in 1985 claimed the international limelight with his role in locating the Titanic — was talking live by satellite to concerned colleagues and sponsors back in North America.

"We've had a burp," he said, shifting slightly in his shipside chair 3,000 miles away. "The cable separated and we dropped the vehicle. We have to go down and pick it up but we know pretty well where it is."

Ballard said Jason was "still snug in its garage" after the million-dollar, state-of-the-art exploration team fell at 4 mph into a soft, silty sea bed thousands of feet below the surface.

"Now our Argo is among the artifacts spread out in the debris field," he deadpanned, referring to the hundrds of ancient ceramic containers, tools and other items that were aboard the sunken Roman trading ship.

Museum officials said the project, whose sponsors include Turner, the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Electronic Data Systems and the National Geographic Society, would go on as scheduled between May 1-14.

Fontaine said the 12 museums contributed about $180,000 to the project, which Ballard first proposed nearly two years ago to spark students' interest in science.

The museums included The Boston Museum of Science; the Museum of Natural History in Denver; the Detroit Science Center; the Discovery Place in Charlotte, N.C.; the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago; The Science Place in Dallas; Memphis (Tenn.) Pink Palace Museum; The Franklin Institute in Philadelphia; the Rochester (N.Y.) Museum and Science Center; Mote Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla.; National Geographic Society Grosvenor Auditorium in Washington; and the Royal British Columbia Museum in Victoria, British Columbia.

What Goes In ...

BOSTON (AP) — As he was finishing an emergency appendectomy, Dr. James W. Turner noticed what he throught was a stray thread on the surgical drapes. Then it wiggled.

The thread was actually a 2-inch-long skinny red worm slithering out of the patient's incision. It was a fish worm, inadvertently eaten by the patient in sushi the night before.

The patient was undergoing the operation for abdominal pain, but doctors believe the worm was the real cause of his misery.

The incident, described in today's New England Journal of Medicine, "is an uncomfortable reminder of the potential danger of eating raw fish," noted Dr. Peter M. Schantz of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Raw fish in sushi and sashimi has become popular with the spread of Japanese restaurants in the United States, but health experts say most cases of worm infection occur when people prepare raw fish at home. Experienced sushi chefs are good at spotting wormy fish so it doesn't reach customers.

In the latest case, the victim ate raw fish at a friend's home in New York City.

EPA Officials 'Softened' Report

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — An Environmental Protection Agency draft report concluded EPA failed to protect American water supplies from chemical contamination, but higher-ranking officials changed the conclusions to make them more favorable, a comparison of agency documents shows.

An accurate picture of the protection program is crucial to 120 million Americans whose drinking supply comes from groundwater. They depend on EPA and the states to enforce laws to prevent hazardous waste dumps from poisoning their water.

EPA issued its final report last October on groundwater monitoring at 58 of the nation's 1,447 hazardous waste disposal facilities. Some of the hardest-hitting staff criticism of the enforcement program was deleted from the September 1987 draft of an agency task force on groundwater monitoring. Other conclusions were softened.

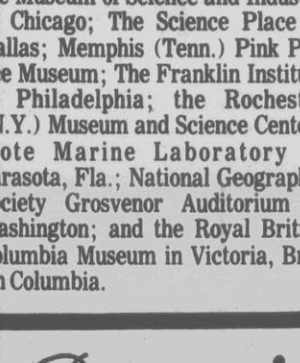

Among the deletions was a task force conclusion that enforcement of groundwater monitoring was so poor that EPA and state officials "potentially compromise the level of protection provided to the public and the environment."

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., whose House Energy and Commerce subcommittee was reviewing the reports at a hearing today, said the monitoring program "falls far short of providing sufficient protection against critical threats to our nation's groundwater."

Kathie Stein, an attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund, told the committee in written testimony that EPA officials initiated "a much-needed, critical self-review of the groundwater monitoring program" and then "appeared to have become intimidated" by the preliminary findings.

Jonathan Z. Cannon, acting assistant EPA administrator for solid waste and emergency response, said the officials responsible for the changes have left the agency and he did not know why the reports differed. But he conceded, "They're clearly different."

Federal Scientists To Watch Fusion Test

By Paul Recer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Federal scientists will monitor the operation of a cold fusion experiment in an attempt to verify that University of Utah researchers have captured the power of the sun in a test tube.

University of Utah chemist Stanley Pons testified Wednesday before the House Science Committee that scientists from the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico will visit his campus to watch the operation of a tabletop fusion cell.

Later, Pons told the committee, the cell will be dismantled and taken back to Los Alamos by the federal scientists.

Pons and his collaborator, Martin Fleischmann of the University of Southampton in England, arranged for the demonstration in an effort to calm skepticism in the science community that the room-temperature fusion apparatus actually works.

Testimony by Pons and Fleischmann was followed by comments from seven scientists at other university and federal laboratories who told of great doubts among researchers about the Utah results.

Mike Saltmarsh, head of the fusion energy program at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, said all of the federal laboratories had tried to replicate the Utah cold fusion results.

"The results have all been negative," said Saltmarsh. "We have seen no heat" generated by the process.

The Utah delegation before the committee also included University of Utah president Chase Peterson, who urged that the government move swiftly to provide federal funds for the cold fusion research.

Other scientists who testified, however, cautioned against federal support until the process has been verified.

Pons and Fleischmann received a generally warm reception by the science committee, but did face some sharp questioning about why so many other laboratories have not been able to verify their experiment.

Pons' announcement of the Los Alamos participation came after Rep. Sid Morrison, R-Wash., asked if the Utah experiment could be performed before independent observers.

"We have 19 experiments being set up now," said Pons. One of these, he said, will be monitored by the Los Alamos scientists.

Committee members also asked why some other laboratories have not been able to get details needed to replicate the Utah experiment, and Fleischmann replied: "We are very happy to tell people how we have been able to do it."

He said, however, that those who don't succeed should "publish in full" reports of their failures.

Two researchers at Portland State University in Oregon reported a successful experiment on Monday in which results of the cold fusion experiment were duplicated using specifications and materials described in an article by Pons and Fleischmann.

Physics professor John Dash and graduate student Patrick Keefe said "at least" 100 times more energy was produced than was used to start the experiment, with the energy burst occurring in the first second.

Rep. Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn., noted at Monday's hearing that reports of the Utah experiment have indicated the heat produced is at a low level. She asked if they could achieve a "useful temperature" with the reaction.

"We've had a cell warm up to the boiling point," said Fleischmann. But he said to scale up to a useful level "raises many new problems."

"We think it's feasible, but it will require a very high effort," he said.

Fleischmann and Pons spent about $100,000 of their own money to develop the tabletop fusion cell, but they said to scale up to a larger size will cost about 10 times more, and to produce useful energy "would cost millions."

Peterson urged the committee to provide federal funds to help set up a fusion research center at the University of Utah. He said the state already has allocated $5 million and another $1 million has been raised from private sources.

"What level of funding do you believe is needed?" asked Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif.

"The figure that comes to mind is $25 million," said Peterson. "We should move promptly. We should have proposals within a week."

Other scientists who testified, however, urged the committee not rush into support of the effort.

"We need at least two months to evaluate the significance of this process," said Steven Jones, a Brigham Young University fusion researcher.

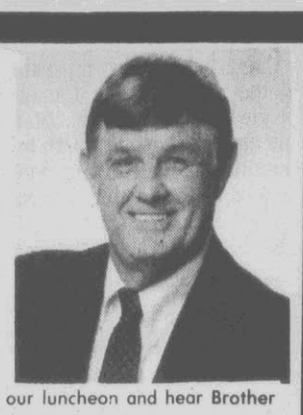

Fusion research could be hurt if federal money were put into the Utah effort before it is proven, said George Miley, a fusion expert from the University of Illinois, Urbana.

"A failure could set fusion research back by years," he said. "I urge us to not overreact and put all our eggs in one basket."

Tugs, Canadian Navy Aid Drifting Tanker

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Engine failure left a fully loaded Exxon oil tanker adrift 10 miles off the coast of Washington Wednesday, prompting rapid response from salvage tugs and the Canadian navy to prevent the ship with 21 million gallons of Alaska crude oil from drifting toward shore.

Though there was no immediate threat of a spill, the incident raised new questions about the reliability of tankers serving the Alaska oil routes. It also turned an unwelcome spotlight on Exxon's tanker operations.

It was the third major incident involving an Exxon tanker in less than two months. Last month the Exxon Valdez spilled 11 million gallons of crude oil off Alaska, and two weeks earlier the Exxon Houston lost more than 100,000 gallons off Oahu in the Hawaiian Islands after it was battered by heavy seas.

Authorities now add to that list the Exxon Philadelphia, bound for a refinery at March Point near Anacortes, Wash., when it suffered a ruptured boiler tube, crippling its 19,000-horse power steam turbine.

The crew radioed an emergency at 8:16 a.m. PDT, and by noon a Canadian destroyer had arrived while four tug boats raced from Port Angeles and Victoria. By mid-afternoon two tugs were towing the tanker to Port Angeles for repairs.

Coast Guard Rear Adm. Rober Kramak said a full-scale emergency response was justified. "I don't think it's run-of-the-mill that such a large crude carrier would lose power just outside the Strait of Juan de Fuca," he said.

Les Rogers, a Houston-based spokesman for Exxon, said "There's no danger. There was never any threat."

Victim Of Gang Rape Attack Still In Coma

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The vicious attack and rape of a jogger in Central Park by a gang of teen-age hoodlums has left many New Yorkers trying to make sense of a senseless crime.

The victim, a 28-year-old investment banker, remains in a coma. Eight of her alleged attackers, ages 14 to 17, are in custody. Two were indicted Wednesday and indictments against the others were expected today.

But by some accounts, the youths seemed unlikely attackers although several came from broken homes and all lived in a Harlem neighborhood surrounded by drugs, alcohol, crime and poverty.

"I deal with kids in trouble, these were not kids in trouble," said Bernard Diamond, principal of the junior high school two of the boys attended. "They come from homes of parents who care, parents who are as shocked as we are."

Their victim was on a solitary jog in the northern end of the park the night of April 19. She was beaten unconscious with a lead pipe and rock, raped and left bound and nearly naked. She was found several hours later.

Doctors at Metropolitan Hospital, where she has been in critical condition in a coma since the attack, say that although she may survive it's unlikely she will ever recover completely.

The woman apparently was one of several targets of the gang as it went "wilding" through the park that night.

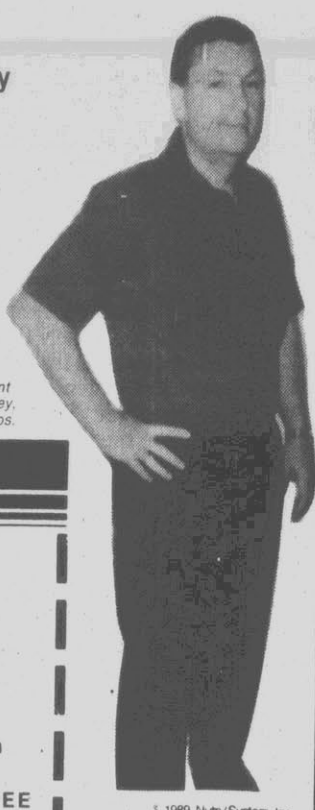

The term was a new one to the police, but not the activity. For years, loosely organized packs of marauding youths have roamed the streets and parks bullying, robbing and attacking victims at random.

"I ain't going to say it's fun. It's getting your anger out at somebody. It's like stealing fruit. It's not 'cause you are hungry," a 15-year-old boy who said he was a friend of one of the suspects told The New York Times.

The assailants reportedly used racial epithets in one of eight assaults during the rampage.

AIDS Child Enters School For First Time

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TAMPA, Fla. — A mentally disabled, AIDS-stricken 7-year-old stepped into a classroom for the first time in her life today, with bows in her hair, a knapsack on her back and the cheers of supporters surrounding her.

Rosa Martinez, who fought a 2½-year court battle against school officials who feared a health risk, called today the most important day in her daughter Eliana's life.

A federal district judge Wednesday cleared the way for Eliana to attend class without being confined to a glass isolation booth, as required in an earlier ruling.

Supporters cheered as Mrs. Martinez and Eliana walked into the one-story, red-brick Manhattan Exceptional Center, where 201 students are enrolled. There were no protests.

"She'll finally, for the first time in her life, be able to be with children and spend all the time she can with them," Ms. Martinez said as they went inside.

Eliana wore a pink dress and pink bows in her hair and carried a toy that plays the Disney song "It's a Small World."

Principal Sandra Williams said she sent notes to parents Wednesday to prepare them for Eliana's arrival and received four calls of concern, with one mother saying she was not ready to accept the risk.

Attorney Steve Hanlon, who pressed a suit through a federal appeals court to keep the little girl from being put in a glass-walled booth in the class for mentally disabled, physically impaired children, drove mother and daughter to school. Eliana became the 12th student in the class.

"It's a wonderful day for her," he said. "She'll do wonderfully here. She's going to take off like a rocket."

But he said he expected her first day to be difficult because "she doesn't have any exprience with other kids."

Hanlon and Mrs. Martinez, a nurse who adopted Eliana as an infant in her native Puerto Rico, argued that in order to develop fully Eliana needed to be with other children for interaction, stimulation and socialization.

Eliana was stricken with acquired immune deficiency syndrome from tranfusions of tainted blood shortly after her premature birth.

The child, who had been taught at home since June 1987, was once told she could attend class on the condition she remained inside a glass booth. However, the issue of a partition became moot when U.S. District Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich decided Eliana posed no significant threat to her classmates.

Hanlon predicted Wednesday that the ruling will have far-reaching effects.

"I'm just a trial lawyer," Hanlon said, "but people who really do a lot of this work tell me this is a landmark case — that it will have a major impact around the country."

In an earlier ruling, Kovachevich tried to allay the school system's fears by ordering the isolation booth for the incontinent child until the girl became toilet trained and learned to stop sucking her fingers.

Students Defy Marching Ban

chaos of the Cultural Revolution."

The 1966-76 Cultural Revolution was a leftist campaign that turned into near civil war.

The Communist Party and Beijing government on Wednesday issued stern warnings that the student protests, now in their 11th day, are illegal and further street demonstrations would be crushed.

But students and a growing hoard of supporters pushed their way through police barriers across half a dozen intersections along the nine-mile route from campuses in northwest Beijing to the center of the city.

When three truckloads of armed police pulled up at one intersection, they were surrounded by a crowd shouting "People love the people's police, the people's police love people."

By the time the students reached the square, more than eight hours after the march began, they were far outnumbered by workers and residents had who joined them, and the soldiers who had been guarding the square faded out of sight.

Thousands of people leaned out windows and cheered as the marchers surged by. Kindergarten children stood at the gate of their school and applauded, and patients wearing bathrobes emerged from a hospital to accept pamphlets the students were handing out.

Students with arms linked sang the national anthem and shouted "Long live democracy."

Others shouted "Down with bureaucracy, down with corruption," oft-repeated phrases during the demonstrations and class boycotts that have shaken the communist government.

Student leaders called on students from dozens of Beijing universities to march to Tiananmen Square to protest harsh government statements condemning their campaign for democracy.

The government has accused the student activists of a "planned conspiracy" to overthrow the government.

The students have called for Premier Li Peng to resign and say senior leader Deng Xiaoping, 84, is too old to rule. But most say their campaign is not anti-government.

They have appealed for free speech and press, an end to rampant corruption in government and more funding for education.

"Strongly support the good leaders of the party," read one banner. The demonstrations were sparked by the April 15 death of ousted Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, a reformer.

The demonstrations have been much larger, and gained far more popular support, than pro-democracy student demonstrations of 1986-87 that led to Hu being ousted for failing to crack down on the students.

Jury

The contempt hearing was first set for 9 a.m. today, Boyette said, but the only other doctor at Pungo Hospital, Lawrence Ward, had been called to testify in the case that began Wednesday afternoon. Ironically, it is the same case in which Boyette was called to sit as a juror.

So that the hospital would not be completely void of doctors, Griffin ordered Lawrence Ward to testify early today and ordered Boyette to remain at the hospital until Lawrence Ward returned. Then, Boyette was to report immediately to the courthouse, which is about 30 miles from the hospital. Boyette said he was not subpoenaed.

"He told me right eyeball to eyeball: 'You be there,'" Boyette said.

Beaufort County Superior Civil Court began at 8:30 a.m. today, clerks said, and Griffin was not able to be reached for comment.

Boyette said he has been called for jury duty four or five times during his 25 years as a doctor, but he has always been dismissed because of his workload. He said Hallett Ward's refusal to dismiss him this week started the whole problem.

"It is throwing our health (care service) into a chaotic situation. One person can't serve this area. It would wear a doctor out in a year," he said. "I felt he has a lack of understanding of what I'm doing."

The Pirate Charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association has named Jane Whealton of Winterville as its woman of the year. She joined ABWA in 1984 in Goldsboro and transferred to the Greenville chapter in 1987. Mrs. Whealton received a woman of the year pin and is a candidate for the national association's top 10 women of the year award.

If You Doubt Dad, Hire A Baby Sitter

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Please, please print this as soon as possible so my husband and I can stop fighting about it. I'm sure you will see it my way.

I work days and my husband works nights. We have a 5-month-old baby boy who my husband takes care of during the day, and I take care of at night.

My husband accuses me of being too protective of our son. He may be right, but I will let you be the judge. One day, I was talking to my husband on the phone and he said, "The baby is sleeping — I think I'll run over to get a pizza and bring it home." I flipped out! Abby, the pizza parlor he wanted to "run to" is two blocks from where we live.

I told him he shouldn't even think of leaving the baby alone for two minutes — ever! Then he started in again with how overprotective I am, and we had a huge fight on the telephone.

He never did get the pizza that day, but I worry now, wondering if he has ever left the baby alone without telling me. Or maybe he would do so in the future. I wanted to ask friends and family what they think so I could prove my point to him, but I don't want any of them to know that he even considered leaving our baby alone. Please settle this. I am desperate. — Massachusetts Mother

Dear Mother: A baby should never, never be left alone. If you have the slightest doubt that your husband has left your baby alone for as much as five minutes — or that he would do so in the future — don't trust him to look after the baby. Get a sitter.

Dear Abby: A while back you had a letter in your column from someone who wanted to know if it was OK to ask "who else will be there" before accepting or declining an invitation. There could be a good reason.

I am a 56-year-old successful professional woman with a rather unusual handicap I've never been comfortable disclosing to others: I am unable to remember the names of casual friends and acquaintances. Once a person has been identified for me, my memory of that person returns, and from then on, I'm fine. I have a good memory and function well in other areas. I have been psychoanalyzed up one side and down the other, so I know this condition isn't caused by emotional problems.

When I attend a social event, if I know in advance who will be there, I can recognize them. Otherwise, I must wait until someone uses their name, which doesn't always happen. This has caused me endless embarrassment. I cannot very well say, "Who are you? I've only seen you 100 times."

So, please, Abby, don't condemn those who ask, "Who else will be there?" — Draws A Blank

Dear Draws: Obviously, knowing in advance who else will be there has its advantages. I had in mind those who inquired before accepting an invitation in order to decide whether to accept or not.

Miss Smith, Mr. Manning Are Married In Vanceboro

VANCEBORO — Kimberly Dawn Smith and Jerry Lee Manning, both of Vanceboro, were united in marriage April 15.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Smith, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lee Manning, all of Vanceboro.

Nuptial music was presented by pianist Linda Thomas, trumpeters Linnie Fulcher and Virgil Hudson and vocalists Peggy Mills, Jason Lilly and the bride.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white crystal organza over satin with a V-neckline edged in scalloped lace with pearls and accented with silk floss embroidered lace embellished with pearls, sequins and pearl droplets. The gown had a scalloped cathedral train adorned with lace motifs and wire-edged ruffling. Her veil was attached to a tiara with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of fuchsia and white roses, gardenias and miniature daisies with lace and pearls, made by the bride.

Sheila S. Arrington of Vanceboro was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sandra Manning, sister of the bridegroom; Debbie Lilly, Beverly Wilson, Kristy Wilson and Patricia Wilson. Emily Evans was flower girl. All are from Vanceboro.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Earl Manning, brother of the bridegroom; James Evans, Anthony Filllingame, Gregory Smith, brother of the bride, and Isaac Evans. Johnathan Hannah was ring bearer. All are from Vanceboro.

The bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The parents of the bridegroom gave a rehearsal dinner.

The bride, a graduate of West Craven High School, is employed by Nutri-System Medical Weight Loss in Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of West Craven High School and is employed by Amital Spinning Corp. in New Bern.

The couple went to the Bahamas for a wedding trip.

Plant The Right Blooming Bulbs For The Summer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Many a home gardener has planted bulbs in early spring, only to be disappointed by a lack of blooms in the summer.

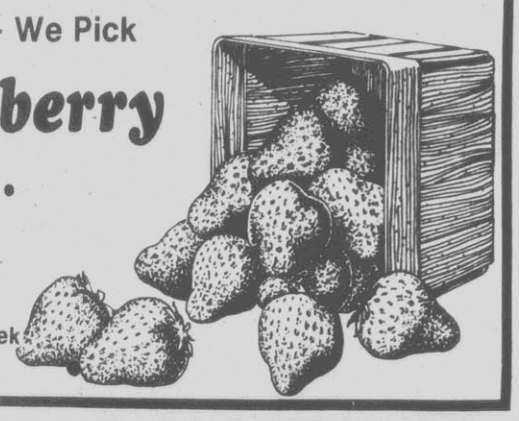

That's because many novice gardeners don't know the difference between spring and summer-flowering bulbs, say horticultural experts at the Netherlands Flowerbulb Information Center here.

Summer bloomers include certain lilies, anemone and gladioli. Begonias, calla lilies and tiger lilies will flower during July in most part of the United States. Freesia, dahlias and summer hyacinths will flower from August until a hard frost.

The Price Of A Diamond Depends On Four Factors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Be sure that the diamond engagement or wedding ring you choose is of a style that is timeless — and of a quality that makes it a good investment.

"No two diamonds are alike," says Lloyd Jaffe, chairman of the American Diamond Industry Association, "and of course as with any commodity, the rarer the diamond, the more expensive the stone."

The price of a diamond is equally dependent on four factors, says Jaffe — shape (cut), color, weight (carat) and degree of perfection (clarity).

Cut: The shape of the diamond — round, oval, emerald cut, heart, marquise, pear-shape — is a matter of personal taste. A fully cut diamond has 58 facets which, when properly proportioned, will maximize the 'fire' in the stone. Round stones traditionally are the most popular.

Carat: The larger the size, the rarer the stone and the greater its value. A carat is roughly equivalent to one-fifth of a gram.

Clarity: The number and location of imperfections in a stone determine its clarity grade. A diamond with fewer flaws is rarer and therefore more valuable.

Color: Diamonds come in a variety of colors ranging from colorless (blue-white) to deep yellows. Those closest to colorless are more desirable.

Are They Ready For The Real World?

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

On occasion when I address a graduating class, I look out over that giant wave of academia with awe. It is only a matter of time before they unleash on the world a force of literature, mathematics, science and philosophy. They are feeling pretty good about themselves when I pose the question, "Are you ready for the real world? By that I mean, can you feed yourselves? Are you able to dress yourselves without a committee? Can you maintain an apartment or room under current health standards?"

I look at those poor, innocent babies, and my heart goes out to them. They haven't a clue as to how telephone rates work. They have never seen a towel on a rack. They've never threaded a needle, changed a fuse or seen a chicken that wasn't wearing batter.

Many have visions of buying a steam table that food grows out of three times a day. Whenever they need a clean shirt or a clean blouse, they'll canvass the entire apartment building until they find someone who has one. Life is just one long unmade bed.

I hate being the one who tells them, but someone has to do it. We all try. From the day children are born, parents attempt to prepare them for the day when they will have to assume responsibility for themselves. They invite them into the utility room and the kitchen, but the boys still put their trousers under a mattress to press and their wet socks over a lightbulb to dry.

We know the day will soon be at hand when they reach into a sock drawer only to discover clean socks do not reproduce themselves. Buttons will fall off their shirts, and what they perceived to be the Oral Roberts healing-themselves principle was really their mother. Ultimately they will discover the cruel reality that there is no soap or toilet tissue fairy who floats into the bathroom while they are sleeping to replace the empty dish and spindle. They're it.

It is only recently that I have become the most important person in my grown children's lives. There isn't a day goes by that I don't get a call on my "housekeeping hotline."

"How much water do you use to cook spaghetti?" "How much soap do you use to wash a pair of jeans and a sweatshirt?" "How come I only get one sock back with every pair I put in? Where does the other sock go?"

It boggles my mind that a kid who can hook up a stereo system, operate a VCR blindfolded, and has been working computers since grade school called me the other day and said, "I thought you said I could defrost hamburger in the dishwasher."

"What did you set it at?"

"Fill."

"That's too soon."

"I also have stinking odors in my kitchen," he said. "How do I get rid of them?"

"Clean it."

College boy!

Obituary

Higgs

GREENVILLE, NC — Miss Lelia Shields Higgs, 93, died Wednesday.

The graveside service will be conducted Friday at 11:00 a.m. at Greenwood Cemetery by Rev. Hugh Burlington.

Miss Higgs, a life long resident of Greenville, graduated from Greenville High School in 1913. She graduated from Meredith College in 1917 with an AB degree. While at Meredith she was a member of the Kappa Nu Sigma Honor Society and served as president of the Student Government Association. She also graduated from the New York School of Art Design and did further study at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. She was associate designer at Barksdale Studios in Greensboro, prior to operating Lelia Higgs Studio of Design from 1930 until 1945 in Greenville.

She was a member of Immanuel Baptist Church and served many years as a Sunday School teacher as well as Trustee of the Church. A past president of the Woman's Missionary Society, she was also Chairman of the Interior Design Committee of the Sanctuary.

Other memberships included Round Table, AAUW, D.A.R. and Pilot Club. She had also served on the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, as well as the Greenville Art Society. During World War II, she was chairman of the Pitt County Salvage Committee.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Higgs Buchanan of Greenville; a niece, Ms. Anne Ballentine Buchanan of Greenville; and a nephew, Edward Higgs Buchanan of Rockville, Md.

The family will receive friends at the Wilkerson Funeral Home from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Army Chief Named Minister

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AMMAN, Jordan — King Hussein today named close friend and former army commander Field Marshal Zeid Bin Shaker to head a new government, official sources reported. Jordan was shaken last week by riots over price increases.

The new Cabinet will act as a caretaker until the country can organize its first general parliamentary elections in 22 years, King Hussein said in an interview published today with the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Seyassah.

"The next government will be a temporary one with a specific assignment, namely speeding up solutions to our problems ... and overseeing the general elections which will take place very soon," the king was quoted as saying.

Bin Shaker, 55, was commander in chief of the armed forces until last year, when the king brought him to the palace as chief of the royal court and adviser on security affairs.

Injury Concerns Scared Off NFL Teams

Billy Michel

ECU's Michel, James Went Unpicked In Draft Due To Old Ailments

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Former East Carolina football standouts Billy Michel and Tim James said old injuries were the reasons they went unpicked in last week's National Football League collegiate draft.

Both had been rated as mid-draft picks by a number of pre-draft publications, but they went unchosen through the draft's 12 rounds.

Both Michel, who suffered a severe knee injury during his junior year, and James, who had a neck injury in high school, are fully recovered and passed their physicals at the NFL's Combine Tryout camp in Indianapolis in January.

"I figured something had been said about me," said Michel, who has since signed a free-agent contract with the Denver Broncos. "I found out last night since I had a knee operation, with the new (smaller) rosters, they didn't want to take a chance on me.

"It's not the knee. It's fine. It's the risk, since I've had an injury. The same thing happened with him (James) because of his neck injury from high school."

Not being drafted leaves a player with professional football aspirations two routes. He can either shop himself around the league and sign a free-agent contract with the team of his choice, or he can try to catch on with a team in the Canadian Football League.

Another ECU senior considered to have a chance at getting drafted was Reggie McKinney, a 5-10, 190-pound running back/kick returner. McKinney, though, also went unchosen and has since signed a free-agent pact with the Miami Dolphins.

"They (the scouts) were talking like I was going to be a draft pick, in the mid-rounds," McKinney said. "But I wasn't, so we (my agent and I) started looking at the free agent opportunities and luckily I got it with Miami."

Michel, a 6-5, 270-pound offensive guard, decided on Denver over Pittsburgh.

James, a 5-11, 235-pound fullback who led ECU in rushing this past year with 787 yards, is still surveying his options.

"Right now I haven't made any decisions," James said. "I've talked to my agent, but no decisions have been made.

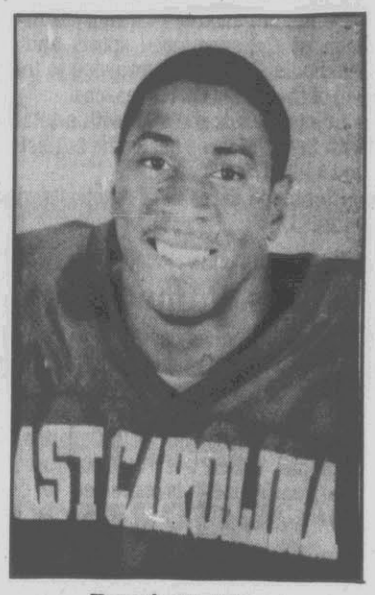

"My main interest is trying to get on the Miami roster. My agent (Mel Levine) is from down in that area, so he has pretty good influence right there.

"Starting today, I've started to consider Canada. I just want a chance to play some more football."

All three ECU seniors have learned you can't believe what you hear from the mouths of NFL scouts, coaches and personnel directors.

"It's a big game because they pump you up, but the big-name school players are the most likely

Conley Loses Share Of Lead

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley left its share of the lead in the Coastal 3-A Conference stranded on base Wednesday.

The Vikings left 12 runners on base in falling to East Carteret 5-3 in high school baseball action.

The win kept the Mariners atop the league standings with a 5-1 record and a overall mark of 11-3, while Conley dipped to 4-2 and 8-4.

"In all honesty, they (East Carteret) shouldn't have had the opportunity to stay in the game," D.H. Conley coach Allan Wilson said. "I'm not taking anything away from them, but if we had taken advantage of our chances they wouldn't have been in the game. But they wound up getting in it in the seventh."

The Mariners erased a 3-2 deficit in the top of the seventh inning with a trio of runs.

Richard Daniels led off the inning with an infield single. After Daniels stole second, he advanced home with the first run when Carrol Lewis reached on a error by Viking shortstop Gray Mills.

Mahlen Swain then sacrificed Lewis to second. That brought Wilson out of the Viking dugout to replace starting pitcher Brian Bullock with Travis Clemmons.

Bullock hurled six and a third innings, giving up seven hits, striking out seven and walking one.

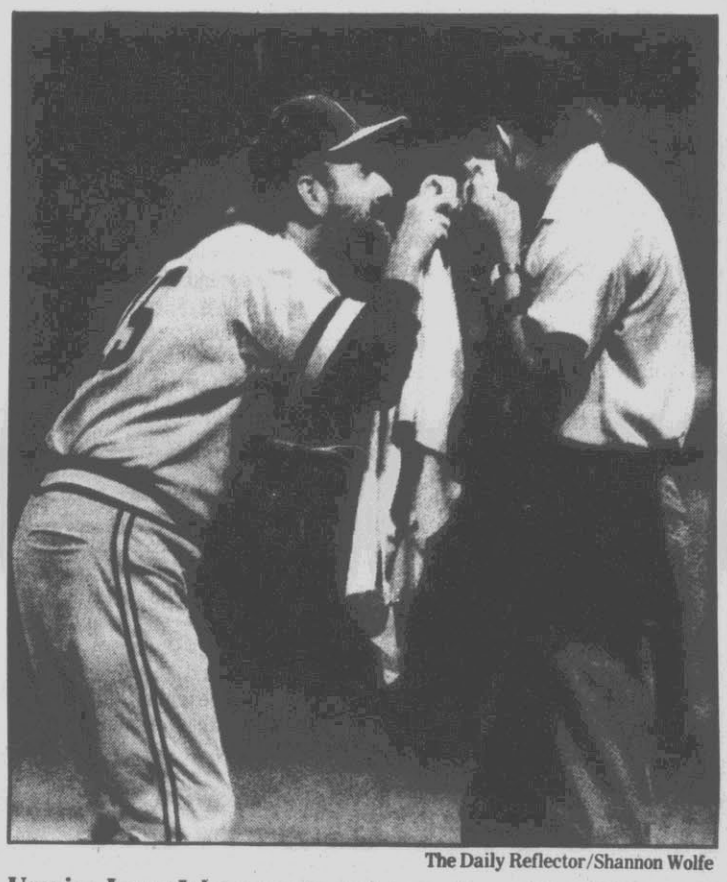

"I didn't think he (Bullock) did bad," Wilson said. "He wasn't as sharp as he has been at times, but tonight is the first time he's pitched in a while."

Clemmons' fortune on the mound wasn't much better as Lewis moved to third on a single by Jud Copeland.

The final two runs of the inning were scored when Lee Morris lined a shot off first baseman Scott Claybrook's glove into rightfield and Lewis Jones knocked in Copeland with a fielder's choice.

"They only had one earned run in the inning," Wilson said. "The error on Mills and the ball Claybrook didn't get killed us. That line drive (that Claybrook missed) was a double play ball that would have ended the inning."

UNC's Reid Waiting To Decide On NBA

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — J.R. Reid, who is considering forgoing his senior year at North Carolina to apply for the NBA draft, says he won't decide until he hears from coach Dean Smith, who is trying to determine Reid's potential status in the draft.

"If the numbers are right, the money's right and a team needs me, I'll go," Reid said Wednesday. "If not, I'll look forward to my senior season. I just want to be happy and do what's best for J.R. Reid."

All underclassmen must have such requests to the NBA in writing by midnight May 13. The draft is scheduled for June 27.

Smith is calling NBA executives, trying to figure out how high in the draft Reid would go and whether Reid's status could be improved significantly by playing his senior year for the Tar Heels.

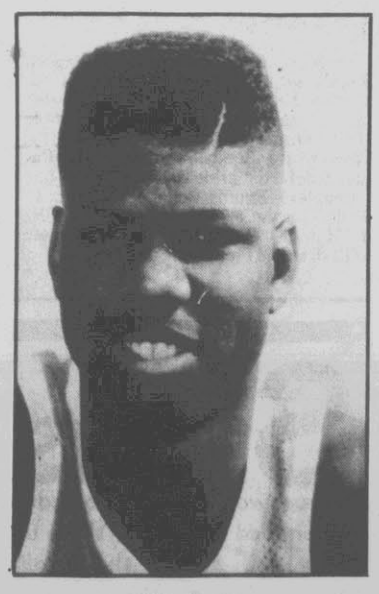

Smith has said in the past that he encourages his players to go into the draft after their junior season if they would be certain to be picked among the top three, bringing a top contract. Smith's players who have taken that advice are Michael Jordan, James Worthy and Robert McAdoo.

Reid likely would be a lottery pick, meaning he would be one of the first nine players selected.

Drafting order for the nine NBA teams which did not make the play offs will be determined by lottery on May 21.

Reid told The Charlotte Observer he and Smith have met twice to discuss the situation.

"Last time, he said he'd get back to me after he was through," Reid said. "I'll listen to his recommendation, then my parents will come in and we'll all talk about it. But the bottom line is, it's my decision and I'm the one who's got to be happy with it."

J.R. Reid

Reid failed to make All-ACC last season after being a consensus All-American as a sophomore. He averaged 15.9 points and 6.3 rebounds, down from 18.0 and 8.9 the year before.

Kentucky Job Still Open

Carlesimo Is Reportedly Still The Top Candidate

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The search is still on for a basketball coach at the University of Kentucky, school officials insist.

But the prime candidate appears to be Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo, who left the Kentucky campus Wednesday after two days of interviews with school officials and a tour of the basketball facilities in Memorial Coliseum.

"The (search) process will continue," UK Athletics Director C.M. Newton said. "There are other things we are going to do. There have been other people we've talked to certainly, and the process will continue on."

Carlesimo is the only coach to make an official visit to the Southeastern Conference school.

UK President David Roselle wasn't sure if others would follow in the coming weeks.

"It's hard to anticipate things when you deal with personnel matters," he said. "People are somewhat unpredictable. But that certainly is a possibility."

Two sources told The Associated Press that Carlesimo, who guided an unheralded team to the runner-up spot in the NCAA tournament this year, would accept the position at Kentucky, which is awaiting NCAA penalties for irregularities in its basketball program.

Newton, however, said no overtures have been made by either side.

"There's no job offers," he said. "There's been no job acceptance."

Kentucky is seeking a replacement for Eddie Sutton, who resigned under pressure in March after directing the program for four years.

Carlesimo, 39, refused to talk about the position with reporters.

"I have absolutely no comment," he said.

And before speaking at the Georgetown University basketball banquet Wednesday night, Carlesimo issued a statement that said:

"I'm in Washington to appear at Georgetown University's basketball banquet as the guest speaker. I do not wish to make any statement on any other subject that would detract from the recognition for the Georgetown team."

Newton said he and Carlesimo met with Jim Host, president of Host Communications Co., which holds broadcast rights to Kentucky sporting events, to give Carlesimo a feeling for the job's public visibility.

He said the three did not discuss money during the session that lasted about 75 minutes.

Tigers Drop Another

Angels Hand Detroit A 1-0 Defeat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Tigers hit some balls on the nose, but it wasn't enough to keep Jack Morris from taking it on the chin again.

Three California pitchers allowed nine hits and five walks Wednesday night, but the Tigers stranded 13 runners and lost 1-0 to the Angels, who got only four hits off Morris, including a homer by Brian Downing.

The Tigers now have scored seven runs in Morris' five starts, and his 0-5 record marks the first time in his career the 1980s' winningest pitcher has lost five straight decisions. Detroit has been shut out three times with Morris on the mound.

Downing, who led off the second inning with his third homer of the season, said he could tell early in the game that the Angels wouldn't score many runs off Morris.

Orioles 2, Athletics 1

Baltimore, which won its 11th game on May 31 last season, improved its record to 11-9 and stayed in first place in the East, snapping Oakland's seven-game winning streak.

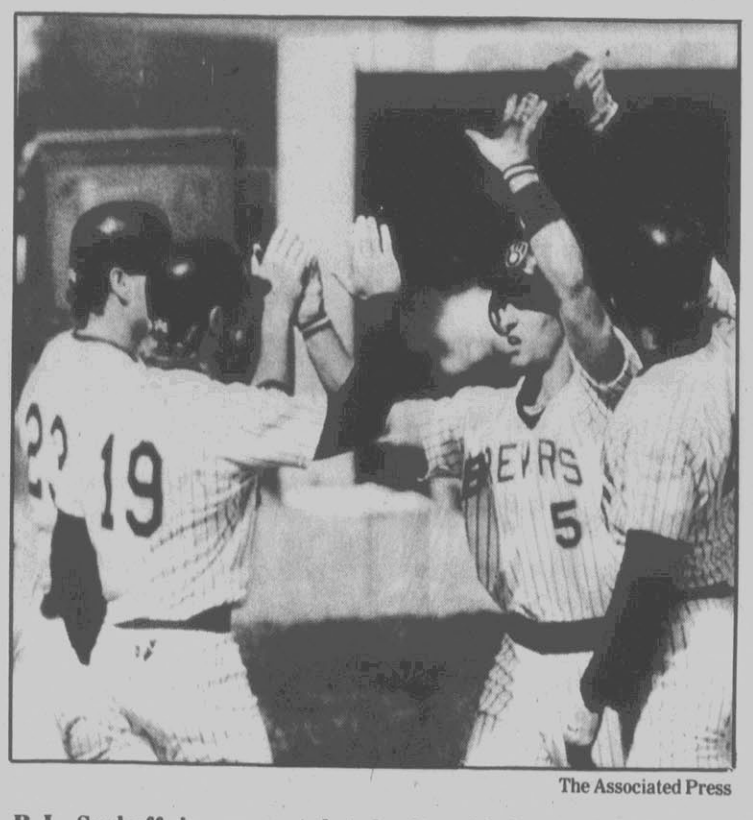

Jose Bautista and Gregg Olson combined for a five-hitter. Bautista, 2-2, pitched seven innings, allowing one run and five hits, while Olson pitched a perfect two innings for his second save, striking out four.

Mariners 7, Blue Jays 6

Ken Griffey Jr. tied a team record with his eighth straight hit, a homer in the seventh inning that broke a 6-6 tie for Seattle against Toronto.

Griffey, a 19-year-old rookie, drove reliever David Wells' pitch over the right-field wall for his third homer. Griffey also had a two-run single, another single and a double, tying the team record held by Harold Reynolds and Darnell Coles.

DeLeon Ices Giants

Only 1st, 9th Frames Are Shaky

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jose DeLeon was shaky in the first inning and tired in the ninth. In between, he was almost untouchable.

DeLeon, going for his third straight complete game, went 8 1-3 innings, yielding five hits as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Francisco Giants 3-1 Wesnesday night. The first hit, on the second pitch of the game, was Brett Butler's home run.

After that, DeLeon, 4-1, was dominant until the ninth. After he walked Kevin Mitchell, DeLeon was lifted for Ken Dayley, who got his first save when Chris Speier hit into a double play.

DeLeon, who fanned seven and walked one, has not permitted more than five hits in any of his five starts this season. He lowered his earned run average to 1.96.

Astros 6, Phillies 5

Glenn Davis, the only Astro to homer at home this year, hit one for the fourth consecutive game.

With the game tied 3-3 in the seventh, Davis hit a two-run homer off reliever Jeff Parrett, driving in Billy Hatcher, who had singled. The home run was Davis' seventh, leading the National League.

Mets 6, Braves 1

At New York, Dwight Gooden pitched a five-hitter for 8 2-3 innings and started a two-run rally with a double as the Mets, 10-9, won for the seventh time in their last nine games to move over the .500 mark.

Gooden, 4-0, struck out nine and walked six while improving his lifetime record in April to 17-2. He also had an infield single in the third inning.

Reds 6, Expos 5

At Cincinnati, two run doubles by Chris Sabo and Paul O'Neill keyed the Reds' win. Sabo's sixth-inning

Sports Notes

Conley Only Area Team In Wachovia Cup

D.H. Conley High School is the only area team in the top 10 among the four North Carolina High School Athletic Association classifications after the winter sports season in the Wachovia Cup standings.

The Vikings, who sent their girls' basketball team to the state finals, and whose wrestling team finished second in the state, are in 10th place through the winter season. Conley has 152½ points, well behind number one Apex, which had 295 to lead the 3-A classification.

Conley trails ninth place Burlington Williams by 12½ points.

Points are awarded for finishes in the top eight and ties of state playoffs in each of the sanctioned sports and for participation in those sports. The Wachovia Cup will be awarded to the top teams in each classification at the end of the spring sports seasons.

Lejeune leads the 1-As with a total of 290 points. Hendersonville is second with 247½. Monroe heads the 2-A list with 242½ points while Salisbury is second with 217½.

Richmond paces the 4-A schools with 270 points while Chapel Hill is second with 255.

Hughes Named Tournament Director

Deborah Hughes has been named tournament director for the 5th annual Michael Jordan Celebrity Golf Classic to be held June 17-18 at the Greenville Country Club.

The tournament is an annual charity affair benefiting the Ronald McDonald Houses of North Carolina. Since its beginning in 1984, the tournament has raised over $125,000 for the Ronald McDonald House program. This year's event is expected to draw more than 40 celebrities and 160 players.

Conley JV Team Beat S.W. Edgecombe

PINETOPS — D.H Conley edged Southwest Edgecombe, 1-0, in 10 innings Wednesday in a JV baseball game.

Jay Kuykendall and Scott Coleman combined for a six-hit shutout. Kuykendall, Anthony Barrett, Coleman and Scott Hardy had two hits each for Conley, 3-6 overall.

Virginia Slips Past ECU, 5-4

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — The University of Virginia scored an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh inning to take a 5-4 softball win over East Carolina University, handing the Lady Pirates their first-ever losing season.

East Carolina entered the game needing a win for a break-even year. The Lady Pirates finish the season with an 18-20 record.

Virginia took the lead with a run in the first, but ECU came back to score three times in the second as both Leslie Cramer and Chris Byrne had triples. Virginia closed it to 3-2 with a run in the fourth.

ECU scored again in the fifth when Wendy Tanker singled in Laura Crowder but Virginia tied it up with two in the bottom of the inning on a home run.

Then, in the seventh, the winning run crossed on an ECU error.

Amaker Named Duke Assistant Coach

DURHAM (AP) — Former Duke standout Tommy Amaker has been named a full-time assistant basketball coach, Blue Devils head coach Mike Krzyzewski announced Wednesday.

Amaker, 23, fills a vacancy left by the recent departure of Bob Bender, who was named head coach at Illinois State.

Shaw Elects To Sign With UNCW

UNC-Wilmington has signed Fayetteville South View standout Tim Shaw, who had also considered East Carolina, to a basketball scholarship.

A 6-5 swingman, Shaw averaged 20.2 points per game this past year and led his team into the state 4-A playoffs. He had received some early interest from Wake Forest until Bob Staak resigned as the Demon Deacons' coach.

ECU had been recruiting Shaw along with UNCW and Wake Forest. He becomes the Seahawks' third signee. ECU has signed eighth players to scholarships and returns seven players returning off last year's team.

Hawks Hope Dominance Continues

By Bill Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlanta Hawks, after acquiring Moses Malone and Reggie Theus during the regular season, were supposed to dominate the NBA this season in much the same way they dominated the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Hawks finished with a more than respectable 52-30 record despite finishing third in the Central Division behind Detroit and Cleveland. They also finished third in the Eastern Conference and earned a homecourt advantage in three of five games of their first-round series against the Bucks, starting tonight in Atlanta.

In addition to the 0-6 record against the Hawks, Milwaukee has dropped eight in a row in Atlanta and was eliminated 3-2 by the Hawks in the first round of last season's playoffs.

"I don't think we're overly cocky because of it," Hawks forward Dominique Wilkins said. "We understand what we have to do, but I don't think it's a disadvantage."

Bucks forward Terry Cummings said that losing all six games to the Hawks could be an advantage because Atlanta may be overconfident.

"I think we've had a pretty good year," he said, "and I believe we're in a much better position than we were last year when we played Atlanta in the playoffs."

In other games tonight, Philadelphia is at New York, Portland at the Los Angeles Lakers and Golden State at Utah.

Four more series open Friday night when Chicago is at Cleveland, Boston at Detroit, Houston at Seattle and Denver at Phoenix.

Wilkins said that in the playoffs "anything could happen, but I think if we play with the same intensity that we did during the regular season against them, we'll be all right."

He said the Hawks have no reason to change the way they play the Bucks.

"We beat them every time, so I would think that's the way to play them," said Wilkins, who averaged 26.2 points a game, seventh best in the league. He averaged 27 points against the Bucks.

The Hawks won the homecourt advantage by winning nine of their last 10 games while Milwaukee was dropping 10 of its last 15.

"Until the last three weeks I would describe our season as being consistently inconsistent," Coach Mike Fratello said. "Then we finally put it together and had a big streak."

The Lakers, with five championships in the 1980s, begin a run for their third straight when they play host to Portland, the only one of 16 playoff teams with a losing record.

Coach Pat Riley said that this year is special because it closes the decade and it's the last season for all-time scoring leader Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"What this playoffs is all about is to bookend the '80s," Riley said. "This is the last stand of this team as we know it. We're seeing the end of a great team.

"It's Kareem's career-ending playoffs, and there's got to be some sentiment involved for us. This could last a week for us or it could be two months. Whatever happens, I hope we go out in a blaze of glory."

Riley "guaranteed" the Lakers would win the championship last season, a boast he is not making this year.

"I'm relieved that we're finally here (in the playoffs)," he said. "It's been a long seven months; I think we were a little burned out at times, a little depleted. I think the team is ready to play now and I think we're going to be successful.

"I think we're as good as anybody in the league; I don't care what people say about Detroit and Cleveland and the others. These players can win a championship if they really want it."

Los Angeles beat the Trail Blazers, who finished with a 39-43 mark, in all five regular-season meetings, by an average of eight points. And Portland is 3-18 against the Lakers at the Forum in the 1980s.

"We're going into LA with nothing to lose and everything to gain," Trail Blazers coach Rick Adelman said. "It's going to be good for us."

The Knicks lost four of six games to Philadelphia, but own the homecourt advantage in the first round because they won the Atlantic Division.

Despite the presence of Ron Anderson, who averaged 16.2 points, the 76ers appear to have a decided disadvantage in bench strength.

"I need to put some pressure on them," said Anderson, who scored more than half of Philadelphia's 218 points off the bench against the Knicks this season. "In order for me to avoid having all those athletic guys coming at me, I have to score and make them slow it down because they're a better team when they're running and scoring off turnovers."

The Knicks go into tonight's opener with five players who made significant contributions in a reserve role — forwards Kiki Vandeweghe and Kenny Walker, rookie point guard Rod Strickland, guard Trent Tucker and forward-center Sidney Green.

"Their bench is one of the reasons they've had the year that they've had," Sixers coach Jim Lynam said. "Kenny Walker has played very well against us."

Pepsi-Cola.....19
Moose.....11

Pepsi-Cola outslugged the Moose, 19-11, in the opening game of the year for the two teams in the Tar Heel Little League Wednesday.

Pepsi started the scoring in the first, pushing over four runs, but the Moose came right back in the bottom of the inning with four of their own. Pepsi then scored four more in the second, two of them on a home run by Damian Phillips. The Moose rallied for two in their half of the inning, cutting the lead to 8-6.

Pepsi added three in the third, then pushed over one in the fourth, the latter proving to be the winning run. Jason Howard reached on an error, taking two bases on the play. He moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Taylor Holt's single.

Pepsi added two in the fifth and five more in the sixth before the Moose rallied for five in the bottom of the sixth.

Geoff Stallings, Phillips and Holt each had two hits to lead Pepsi, while no one had more than one hit for the Moose.

Sportsworld.....7
Optimists.....6

Sportsworld pushed over a run in the top of the eighth inning to take a 7-6 victory over the Optimists in the opening game of the year for both teams in the North State Little League Wednesday.

The Optimists took the lead with a run in the second, then added two more in the third. Sportsworld, however, rallied for five in the fourth, taking a 5-3 lead. The Optimists came back with two in the bottom of the fourth, tying it up at 5-5. Both teams then scored single runs in the sixth inning.

It remained that way until the eighth when Sportsworld got the winning run. Matt Davis led off and was hit by a pitch. Walks to Donte Lawrence and Mike Worthington loaded the bases and another to Scott Ray forced in Davis.

Worthington led the Sportsworld hitting with three while Pat McNally had two to pace the Optimists.

Rose Netters Win; Farmville Falls, 5-4

Rose High School's tennis team rolled up a 7-2 tennis victory over Rocky Mount Wednesday.

The Rampants won the number one singles, then dropped the next two before sweeping the remaining matches on the day.

The victory boosts Rose to 6-2 on the year, all in Big East play. Rose will play at home against Northern Nash today.

Singles: Joseph Taft (R) d. Ellis Ramey, 6-1, 7-5; Kevin Brice (RM) d. Stephen Simpson, 6-4, 6-3; Joseph Haggerty (RM) d. Neal Creech, 6-2, 6-3; Jeff Pittman (R) d. Robbie Zalzneck, 6-1, 6-3; Jim Metzger (R) d. Chris Stone, 6-3, 6-1; Chris Bland (R) d. Addi Schmidlin, 6-1, 6-0.

Conley Falls ...

For East Carteret, the late inning heroics was nothing new.

"This is about the third game we've pulled out in the last inning this year," East Carteret coach Gary Chadwick said. "This is a real experienced team. I've got five seniors out there and this is something they've been doing all year."

East Carteret jumped out to the early lead in the game with a run in the top of the second.

Jeff Hewitt ripped a two-out double to center and then moved to third on a single up the middle by Robert Nelson. James Gaskill then picked up the RBI with a single to center.

Conley bounced right back in the bottom of the frame and took the lead with a pair of runs.

Andy Fassett ripped a leadoff double to right and then brought home the first run of the inning when Bill Jenkins laced a double to left.

Two outs later, Bullock powered a single to right to score Jenkins.

The Mariners pulled even in the third inning as Swain reached courtesy of a walk. After stealing second, he scored on a RBI single to leftfield by Copeland.

Conley regained the lead once again in the bottom half of the fourth. Mills walked, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Kervin Vines, making the score 3-2.

The Vikings will return to action tonight at home against Farmville Central.

Rose Wins Again; AG, GC Take Loop Wins

STANTONSBURG — Rose High School's unbeaten baseball team completed its first swing through the Big East Conference Wednesday, routing Wilson Beddingfield, 20-9.

The win boosted the Rampants to 14-0 overall and to 7-0 in the Big East.

Rose took a 3-0 lead in the first inning but Beddingfield came back with three in the second.

Rose then broke the game open with six runs in the third, getting only three hits. However, two of them were doubles, hit by Chris Christopher and David Leisten.

Then, in the fourth Rose exploded for 10 more runs, taking a 19-3 lead. Timmy Moore highlighted the frame, hitting a grand-slam home run, while John Bolen added a two-run homer.

Greenville's pitchers walked nine Bruin batters, but Beddingfield returned the favor with 13 walks. Beddingfield had only three hits on the day.

Rose plays host to Northern Nash on Friday.

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton held off a Farmville Central rally and gained a 4-3 Eastern Plains Conference baseball victory Wednesday night.

The Chargers scored a run in the first and added two more in the second. Farmville scored one in the fourth.

Ayden-Grifton got what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the fourth. John Tyndall doubled and moved on to third on an error on the play. Moore grounded out, allowing him to score, making it 4-1.

Farmville picked up one in the fifth and another in the seventh to close within one, but could rally no more.

Ayden-Grifton, now 5-8 overall, is 3-2 in conference play while Farmville falls to 4-2 in the EPC. Both teams will be in action on the road today, Ayden-Grifton at North Pitt for a league game and Farmville at D.H. Conley for a non-conference contest.

BETHEL — Greene Central High School rolled to a 9-1 baseball victory over North Pitt in the Eastern Plains Conference Wednesday afternoon.

The Rams put the game away with three in the first. Cedric Collins' infield grounder forced a previous runner. Walt McKeel singled and Rob Davis walked, loading the bases. Jimmy Hardy singled in Collins and a wild pitch let McKeel score. Swindell Flowers then doubled in Davis for a 3-0 lead.

After one in the second, the Rams got three in the fifth and two in the seventh. The Panthers' only run came in the sixth.

Reggie Hill, in relief of Cornelius Hill in the sixth, faced five batters and struck out each of them to preserve the win.

Judge Criticized By Professors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — When Judge Carl B. Rubin criticized baseball's investigation of Pete Rose, the jurist left himself open for criticism.

Five leading law school professors criticized Rubin, who said baseball was engaging in a vendetta against the Cincinnati Reds' manager and all but one said the judge should disqualify himself from sentencing an Ohio bookmaker who claims he took bets from Rose.

Three of the five contacted by The Associated Press said Rubin, the chief judge of U.S. District Court in Cincinnati, violated the American Bar Association's Code of Judicial Conduct in publicly commenting on Rose.

Rubin, who will sentence Ohio bookmaker Ronald Peters on tax evasion and drug trafficking charges, criticized baseball's investigation of Rose last Friday, accusing Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti of "entering into ... a vendetta against Pete Rose," according to a transcript of a conference in the judge's chambers.

There were conflicting reports Wednesday on whether Rubin would voluntarily remove himself from sentencing Peters.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer quoted aides to Rubin as saying the judge would file an order today officially removing himself from the sentencing of Peters.

Linda Kloth, chief administrator of the federal court in Cincinnati, said Rubin removed himself because "he just felt there was an appearance of impropriety" because of his publicly stated views on the investigation.

The Cincinnati Enquirer quoted Rubin as saying he would not disqualify himself.

"He should not be talking about it — it is a violation of the code of judicial conduct," Marvin Freedman of Hofstra said. "He should not speak about a matter that may come before him. It's against the rule."

In an interview in Wednesday's New York Times, the 69-year-old judge elaborated on his earlier remarks, which came after Giamatti sent him a letter saying he believed Peters' testimony before baseball's investigators.

"I don't think that such a prolonged investigation can help either the manager or the team," the judge was quoted as saying of baseball's inquiry. "Also, I think that the nature of this is such that the press has tried, convicted and executed Pete Rose and I think that this thing was handleable in a different fashion. This could have been done differently. It could have been over and done with before the season started, I think."

Stephen Gillers of New York University and Alan Dershowitz of Harvard agreed with Freedman about the canon violation.

Charles Ogletree of Harvard said the remarks "seem to raise serious questions on the canons of judicial conduct." Thomas C. Grey of Stanford, however, said he didn't think the judge violated any rules because he was referring to baseball's inquiry, not the grand jury's.

"I don't think it violates it. It's just imprudent," he said.

Rubin did not return telephone messages left at his chambers Wednesday. Albert Engel, chief judge of the sixth circuit Court of Appeals, did not wish to comment on Rubin's remarks, Engel's secretary said.

The Hofstra professor also said that if Rose is indicted, Rubin shouldn't be allowed to hear the case.

American League Roundup ...

Rangers 3, Indians 2

Texas won its 15th game, two more than any previous April, when pinch-hitter Geno Petralli doubled in the winning run in the 10th inning.

Royals 5, Yankees 3

Kansas City won its fifth straight game on Jim Eisenreich's eighth-inning home run, the Royals' first pinch-hit homer since Sept. 10, 1987.

Al Leiter, 1-2, walked George Brett with one out in the eighth and was relieved by Lance McCullers. Eisenreich, batting for Gary Thurman, drove a 3-2 pitch over the center field wall, breaking a 3-3 tie.

Brewers 12, Twins 0

Milwaukee snapped Minnesota left-hander Allan Anderson's seven-game winning streak dating back to last year as Chris Bosio pitched a four-hitter and B.J. Surhoff hit a grand slam.

Surhoff's grand slam in the seventh and a solo homer by Joey Meyer in the sixth gave the Brewers 10 home runs in their three-game sweep of the Twins and a league-leading 23 for the season.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 4

Chicago lost for the ninth time in 11 games when Dwight Evans' bases-loaded grounder bounced off second baseman Steve Lyons' glove for a single with one out in the 10th inning.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending April 21.

MILITARY BASE CLOSINGS — By a vote of 43 for and 381 against, the House refused to block a Pentagon commission's plan to close 86 domestic military bases and realign 59 others. This failure to approve HJ Res 165 means the sweeping base reductions will be taking effect next year.

Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., who voted to kill the plan, termed the debate "a profile in congressional cowardice" because the House and Senate left to a commission the job of targeting bases for extinction.

Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., said the plan "could save between $600 to $700 million a year from the defense budget without reducing our capability at all."

Members voting yes wanted to block the base-closing plan. For North Carolina, no one voted yes. Voting no was Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Howard Coble, R-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; Alex McMillan, R-9; Cass Ballenger, R-10; James Clarke, D-11.

MARTIN LUTHER KING HOLIDAY — By a vote of 305 for and 84 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1385) to begin federal funding of the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission and make the panel a permanent agency.

When established in 1984 to promote a new national holiday honoring King's birthday, the panel was given an April 20, 1989 expiration date and required to raise its own budget.

Supporter Connie Morella, R-Md., said federal funding of the panel is needed because "priovate donations have been declining over the years." Opponent William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., asked "what...will these members of this comission do indefinitely in the future by chewing up a half a million dollars of taxpayers' money?"

Members voting yes supported the bill. Voting yes was Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Rose, Hefner and Clarke. Voting no was Coble and McMillan. Ballenger did not vote.

TO CHANGE HATCH ACT — By a vote of 297 for and 90 against, the House passed a bill (HR 20) amending the 1939 Hatch Act to permit federal employees to enagage in politics in their private lives.

The measure retains the law's ban on on-the-job political activity by civil servants and certain other executive branch workers. It was sent to the Senate.

Supporter Frank Horton, R-N.Y., said federal employees "ought not be second-class citizens."

Opponent Frank Wolf, R-Va., said "we do not need legislation that will hurt public confidence in the federal workforce."

Members voting yes supported the bill. Voting yes was Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Rose, Hefner and Clarke. Voting no was Coble and McMillan. Ballenger did not vote.

SAVINGS AND LOAN BAILOUT — The Senate passed, 91 for and 8 against, a bill (S 774) to bail out hundreds of insolvent or teetering savings and loans and revamp federal S&L oversight so that the ongoing crisis in the thrift industry does not recur.

Bonds floated by a new federal financing entity would fund what is by far the most costly bailout ever imposed on U.S. taxpayers, a rescue estimated to cost $50 billion initially and at least $157 billion in its first ten years. The Congressional Budget Office says taxpayers will cover more than half the cost, with savings and loans and their customers covering the remainder.

Senators voting yes favored the bailout legislation. For North Carolina, Terry Sanford, D, voted no and Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

TO FUND BAILOUT — By a vote of 48 for and 50 against, the Senate rejected a plan to count the $50 billion initial cost of the S&L bailout in the federal budget rather than as an "off budget" item not tallied against Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit limits.

The plan sought to substitute Treasury borrowing for industry bonds as the bailout's funding mechanism.

Senators voting yes wanted borrowing for the S&L bailout listed in the budget. Sanford voted yes and Helms voted no.

TO CONFIRM DANNY WALL — By a vote of 61 for and 38 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to S 774 requiring Senate confirmation of M. Danny Wall as head of the Office of Savings Associations, a new regulatory united created by the bill.

Wall now heads the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the S&L oversight agency being elimated amid complaints Wall has been a lax regulator of thrift industry.

Senators voting yes were opposed to requiring Senate confirmation of Wall. Sanford voted no and Helms voted yes.

Family Schedules Private Services For Lucille Ball

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — An outpouring of sympathy from presidents to childhood neighbors followed the death of Lucille Ball, but many said the queen mother of comedy will live on through television reruns and her influence on comedy.

The daffy, redheaded comedian whose harebrained schemes drove her television family crazy and delighted viewers for four decades died Wednesday of a ruptured abdominal artery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. She was 77 and died eight days after emergency heart surgery.

A private burial was planned, reportedly with no funeral services in accordance with Miss Ball's wishes.

"God has her now, and, thanks to television, we'll have her forever," said comedian and longtime friend Bob Hope.

Hospital switchboards were swamped with condolence calls and thousands of cards after Miss Ball's death, spokesman Ron Wise said. Miss Ball's family requested that any flowers sent to the Medical Center in her memory be distributed to other patients.

Miss Ball maintained her sense of humor even when she was critically ill. Following her operation last week, her first words to her daughter, Lucie, were: "Wouldn't you know — this is the day I was going to get my hair done."

Miss Ball had been improving steadily from the heart surgery, so her death came as a shock.

"She had been walking, her spirits were up. Her family was with her," Wise said. "She responded as well as anyone could respond to that kind of surgery."

He said she woke up early Wednesday complaining about a sudden pain in her back, and in a matter of seconds went into a full cardiac arrest that was caused by a ruptured aorta.

Miss Ball and her late former husband, Desi Arnaz, starred in "I Love Lucy" from 1951 to 1957. In the ground-breaking show, still seen in syndication worldwide, the late Vivian Vance and William Frawley played their neighbors, Fred and Ethel Mertz.

"Probably a lot of what she did rubbed off on what I do," said actress-comedian Jane Curtin, star of the sitcom "Kate and Allie." "But it couldn't be helped, because I memorized her shows."

The show, one of the most popular in television history, was distinguished by Miss Ball's faultless timing, rubber-faced expressions, wide-mouthed wails and extravagant pratfalls.

"Working with Lucy was like receiving an M.A. or a Ph.D. in comedy," recalled Joan Rivers. "What she forgot about comic timing and delivery is more than most of us will ever learn in a lifetime."

Comedian Whoopi Goldberg said: "Lucy was great because she represented every person. She showed us human foibles and gave us a chance to laugh at ourselves."

Miss Goldberg said her favorite episode involved a visit by the "I Love Lucy" characters to Hollywood, where Lucy and Ethel spotted actor William Holden in a restaurant.

"That was how we would all react to seeing a movie star in a restaurant," Miss Goldberg said. "She was looking at him in a compact mirror, and trying to look at him surreptitiously. And that's just an example of how everyone can identify with Lucy."

Bob Rosati, who lives down the street from the Beverly Hills home Miss Ball shared with husband Gary Morton, said he was watching a rerun of "I Love Lucy" on Wednesday morning when the screen went black and the words "In Memory of Lucille Ball, 1911-1989" appeared.

"I felt I had lost someone in my family. I couldn't believe it," said Rosati, 40. "I was watching Lucy like I do every morning. She's one of the most-admired ladies in this town."

He was among a group of fans who stood reverently outside Miss Ball's home on Roxbury Drive as florists delivered baskets of flowers to the house. Tour vans passed by in a non-stop procession.

On Hollywood Boulevard's Walk of Fame, flower arrangements were placed on Miss Ball's two stars — one for her film work, one for television.

Budd Friedman, owner of the Improvisation comedy clubs, said, "The world of comedy has lost its first lady. Her death is an irreparable loss ... to our industry."

Bionic Team United

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO — Lindsay Wagner drifted majestically from the hotel ballroom where filming had just taken a break. She wore a black evening gown and fuchsia gloves, her hair upswept.

Then she plopped down to floor level to play for a moment with her young son.

The Bionic Woman is back. Not to mention the Six Million Dollar Man. Together again for their second reunion TV movie.

"A series like that," Wagner said. "It was grueling and it was a lot of fun. Both of those things were experienced to the extreme."

She almost laughed and grimaced at the same time. "So you look back on it in horror and with a lot of fond memories," she said.

If the producers have their way, "The Bionic Showdown: Return of the Six Million Dollar Man and the Bionic Woman II," showing Sunday on NBC will be just a lead-in to a new weekly series with state-of-the-art bionics.

Wagner and Lee Majors, who played the Six Million Dollar Man for five years to Wagner's three as the Bionic Woman, would not stay around for a new series. Luring them back for two reunion movies would be just about the limit of their interest in the roles.

Richard Anderson, who played Oscar Goldman on both series simultaneously and is a producer for the reunion movie, said it was hard to get everyone back together.

Asked why she would come back to the part at all, Wagner said simply, "Richard Anderson is an old friend, and he's producing it."

The plan calls for younger, little known actors to take over for the next generation of potential bionic stars.

Wagner looks startlingly young, so the idea of passing on her bionic stint to a younger actress whose powers will be greater and more modern — computer activated — has a certain touch of amusement.

"I make a crack in the show," she said. "There's a line in there: 'I'm starting to feel like an antique.'"

Executive producer Michael Sloan said that, because of the high-tech nature of the show, an effort is being made to use special effects that haven't been seen before on television.

"You have to give it a new attitude and a new look," he said.

Sloan jokes that he's become "the king of 'returns' movies. I don't know how that happened."

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY April 28

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): When you feel original you have creative energy galore. Design a novel approach toward joining someone in a mutual adventure.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Start new projects. Move forward at the workplace with new ideas. Distant news firms up travel plans. Act fast to close a financial deal.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Inspiration is everywhere. You are excited by new prospectives and activities. Popularity is glowing. Travel plans can begin.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You love activity and stimulation. A good mood makes you want to give more than you receive.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You are not being as cooperative as you can be. Surprises are in store if you remain adaptable. Additional sleep will recharge the body.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Associates are argumentative, and work is left incomplete. You may need a pry bar to get cooperation. Give attention to productive ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You worry over unimportant matters. Return phone calls and answer mail immediately. Organize time for maximum efficiency.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Home entertainment may be on your mind. Be yielding when a minor understanding arises over an irrelevant issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Talents run aground when you get sidetracked. Learn how to concentrate your efforts and accomplish your goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Treat yourself by doing the things that you enjoy. A frolic over the weekend, including a short trip, would give you an emotional lift.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Financial impulsiveness, along with an attitude that is overly indulgent, is self-defeating. Spending the future away today has limitations.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Your natural innocence is appealing to others. Too many amusements can overwhelm you and interfere with a blossoming romance.

Opening lead: King of ♠

As usual, things were not going well with Trump Coup Tommy. He held only his fair share of the cards and, since everything had been splitting fairly normally, he was down 33 points. As our readers know, it is only when trumps break badly that Tommy performs like a virtuoso. Finally, this hand came along.

South had less than the law allows for his vulnerable overcall at the two-level, but that was vintage Tommy in action. Since a doubleton honor was adequate support on the auction, North had no hesitation in jumping to game.

The defense was as good as it could be. West led the king of spades and East followed with the seven. Since that was the lowest outstanding spot-card, it had to be either a singleton or from the queen, so West continued with a low spade. East won and shifted to a club, taken by dummy's king.

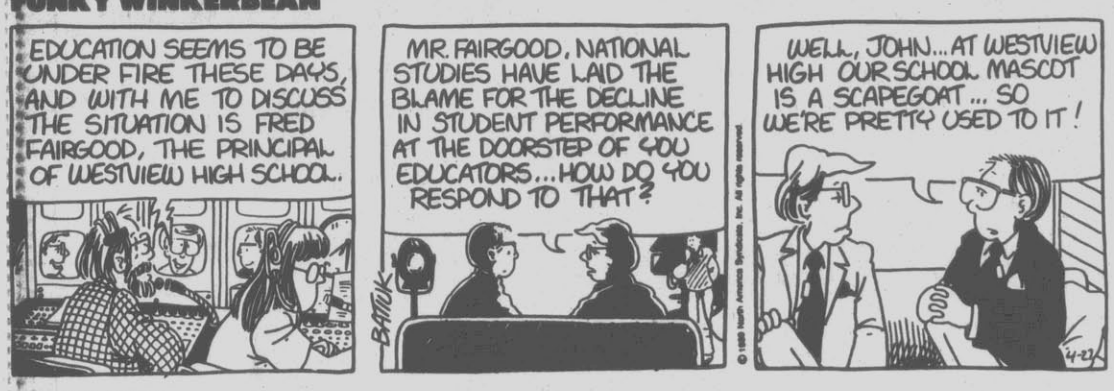

Tommy ran the queen of hearts, and then the eight. When West sluffed a spade, Tommy brightened visibly. He cashed the king and ace of diamonds, and ruffed a diamond. A club to the ace served as the entry for another diamond lead. Since ruffing was fruitless, East discarded a club as declarer ruffed.

With eight tricks in the bag and the A J of hearts still in hand, Tommy simply exited with a club. East won, but he was then forced to lead a trump away from K 6 into declarer's tenace. So Tommy was home with six trump tricks and two in each minor suit.

Andersen AW Windows · Patio Doors ™

THIS ISN'T JUST A WINDOW. IT'S INSULATION.

Home heating and cooling losses in the window areas can be costly. Andersen® casement windows insulate against that loss. Their snug-fitting design is far more weathertight than industry standards. And High-Performance insulating glass is 42% more energy-efficient than ordinary double-pane in the heating months and 20% more efficient in the searing summer sun. Call for information and a free estimate.

Andersen AW Windows · Patio Doors ™

GENERAL FEATURES

High-Performance Glass. Andersen® High-Performance insulating glass has a special transparent coating that helps keep heat inside during cold weather, outside during hot weather. It's even more efficient than triple-pane glass at reducing heating and cooling costs and keeping your home comfortable the year around.

High-Performance Sun Glass. Andersen® High-Performance Sun insulating glass was developed expressly for use in hot-climate areas. Thus it provides the ultimate in efficiency where cooling is the prime concern.

Energy-saving. Energy conservations is a fact of life. But thanks to beautiful Andersen® windows and patio doors, it's something you can live with in comfort and style.

Beauty. One look at Andersen® windows and patio doors, and you'll see how they set the standards for beauty. Clean, simple lines that enhance any architectural style. Large glass areas that let in more light, open up your view.

Remodeling. Whether you're adding on to your home, or just replacing worn-out windows, don't make the same mistake twice. This time, don't settle for less than Andersen® brand windows.

Do-it-yourself. With top-quality windows and patio doors from Andersen®, installation comes easy. Afterward, smooth operation is an open-and-shut case.

Insulation. Energy-smart Andersen® windows insulate where heat loss might otherwise be the greatest—in the window area itself. Like additional ceiling insulation, Andersen windows can help reduce heat loss and energy costs, and keep you more comfortable.

SEN HIGH-PERFORMANCE SUN WINDOWS ANDERSEN® HIGH-PERFORMA

THE REMARKABLE WINDOW THAT TURNS THE HOT SOUTHEASTERN SUN INTO COOL DAYLIGHT.

Install Andersen® High-Performance Sun windows. Their special transparent coating and bronze tinted glass reduce the sun's heat 2½ times better than single-pane windows.

And High-Performance Sun windows filter out the ultraviolet rays that fade fabrics and finishes.

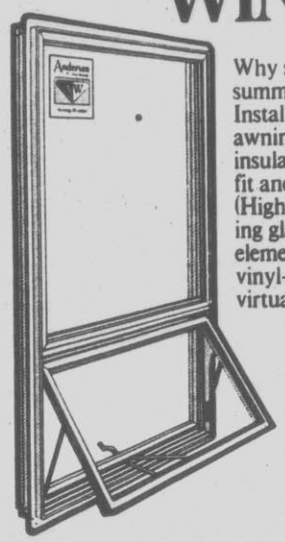

All while being 42% more energy efficient than ordinary double-pane windows during winter and 22% better in the searing summer sun.

Want to keep your home from getting sunburned? Ask us for Andersen High-Performance windows.

Come home to quality. Andersen.

Andersen AW Windows · Patio Doors ™

THE PAINLESS WINDOW.

Why suffer winter drafts or summer window painting? Install famous Andersen® awning windows. Their insulating wood core, snug fit and double-pane glass (High-Performance insulating glass optional) keep the elements outside. And the vinyl-sheathed exterior is virtually maintenance free.

Perma-Shield® Casement Windows

WINDOW FEATURES

Snug-fitting design. Two times more weathertight than windows which only meet minimum industry air-infiltration standards.

Energy-saving, double-pane insulating glass. Almost two times more efficient than old-fashioned single-pane glass without storms.

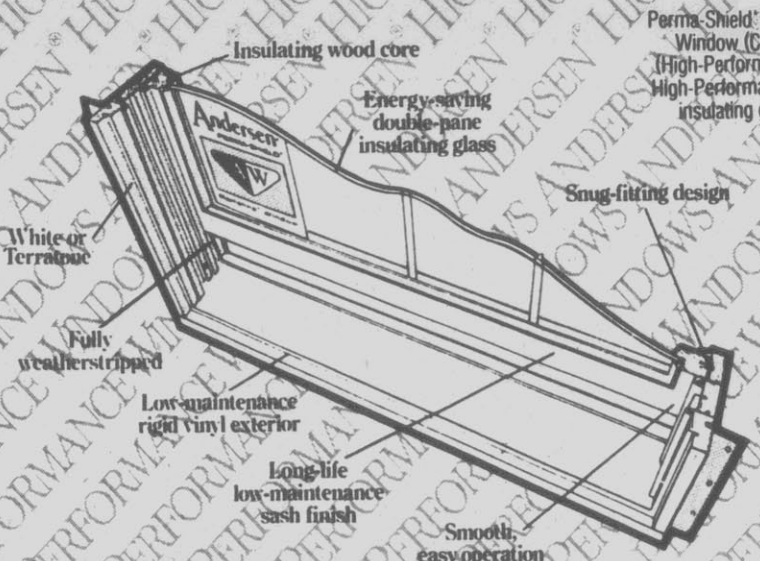

Low-maintenance vinyl exterior. Durable rigid vinyl exterior* doesn't need painting. Is designed not to chip, flake, blister or peel. Won't rust, pit or corrode.

*Varies by window style. Consult us for details.

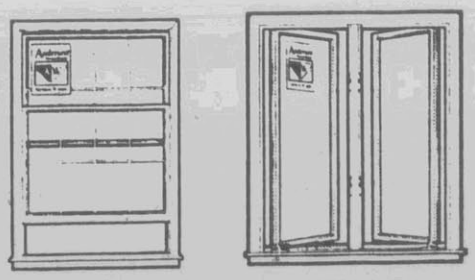

Insulating wood core. Wood is one of nature's best insulators. And one of its most beautiful. That's why warm, solid wood is at the heart of every Andersen® window and patio door.

Smooth, easy operation. Solid, stable window materials, finely tooled hardware and Andersen's 80+ years of expertise create windows and patio doors that operate smoothly, quietly—almost without effort.

Snap-out grilles (optional) for easy cleaning. Tough, durable Andersen® Perma-Pit® grilles snap in to add the traditional look, snap out for easy glass cleaning. Grilles available

DON'T SETTLE FOR A MERE REPLACEMENT WINDOW.

Get a better window–famous Andersen® Perma-Shield® windows. Their insulating wood core, double-pane insulating glass (or optional High-Performance insulating glass), and tough vinyl exteriors make them energy efficient and virtually maintenance free. Easily installed.

REMODELING STARTS WITH ANDERSEN® WINDOWS.

PATIO DOOR FEATURES

Fits same rough opening of most six-foot metal sliding doors.

Easy to install. No reframing or re-siding necessary in most instances.

Snug-fitting design. Two times more weathertight than sliding doors which only meet minimum air-infiltration standards.

Energy-saving, double-pane safety insulating glass. Almost two times more efficient than old-fashioned single-pane glass at reducing heat loss. Safely crumbles to bits if broken.

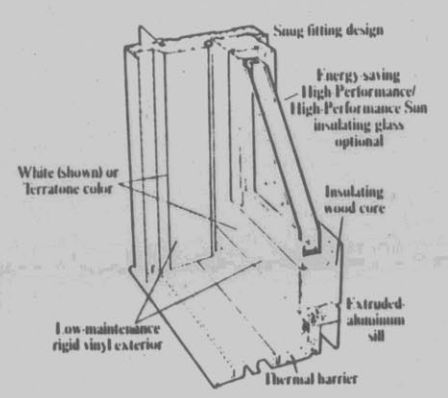

Low-maintenance, rigid vinyl sheath. Doesn't need exterior painting. Is designed not to chip, flake, blister or peel. Won't rust, pit or corrode.

Insulating wood core. Helps reduce heat loss.

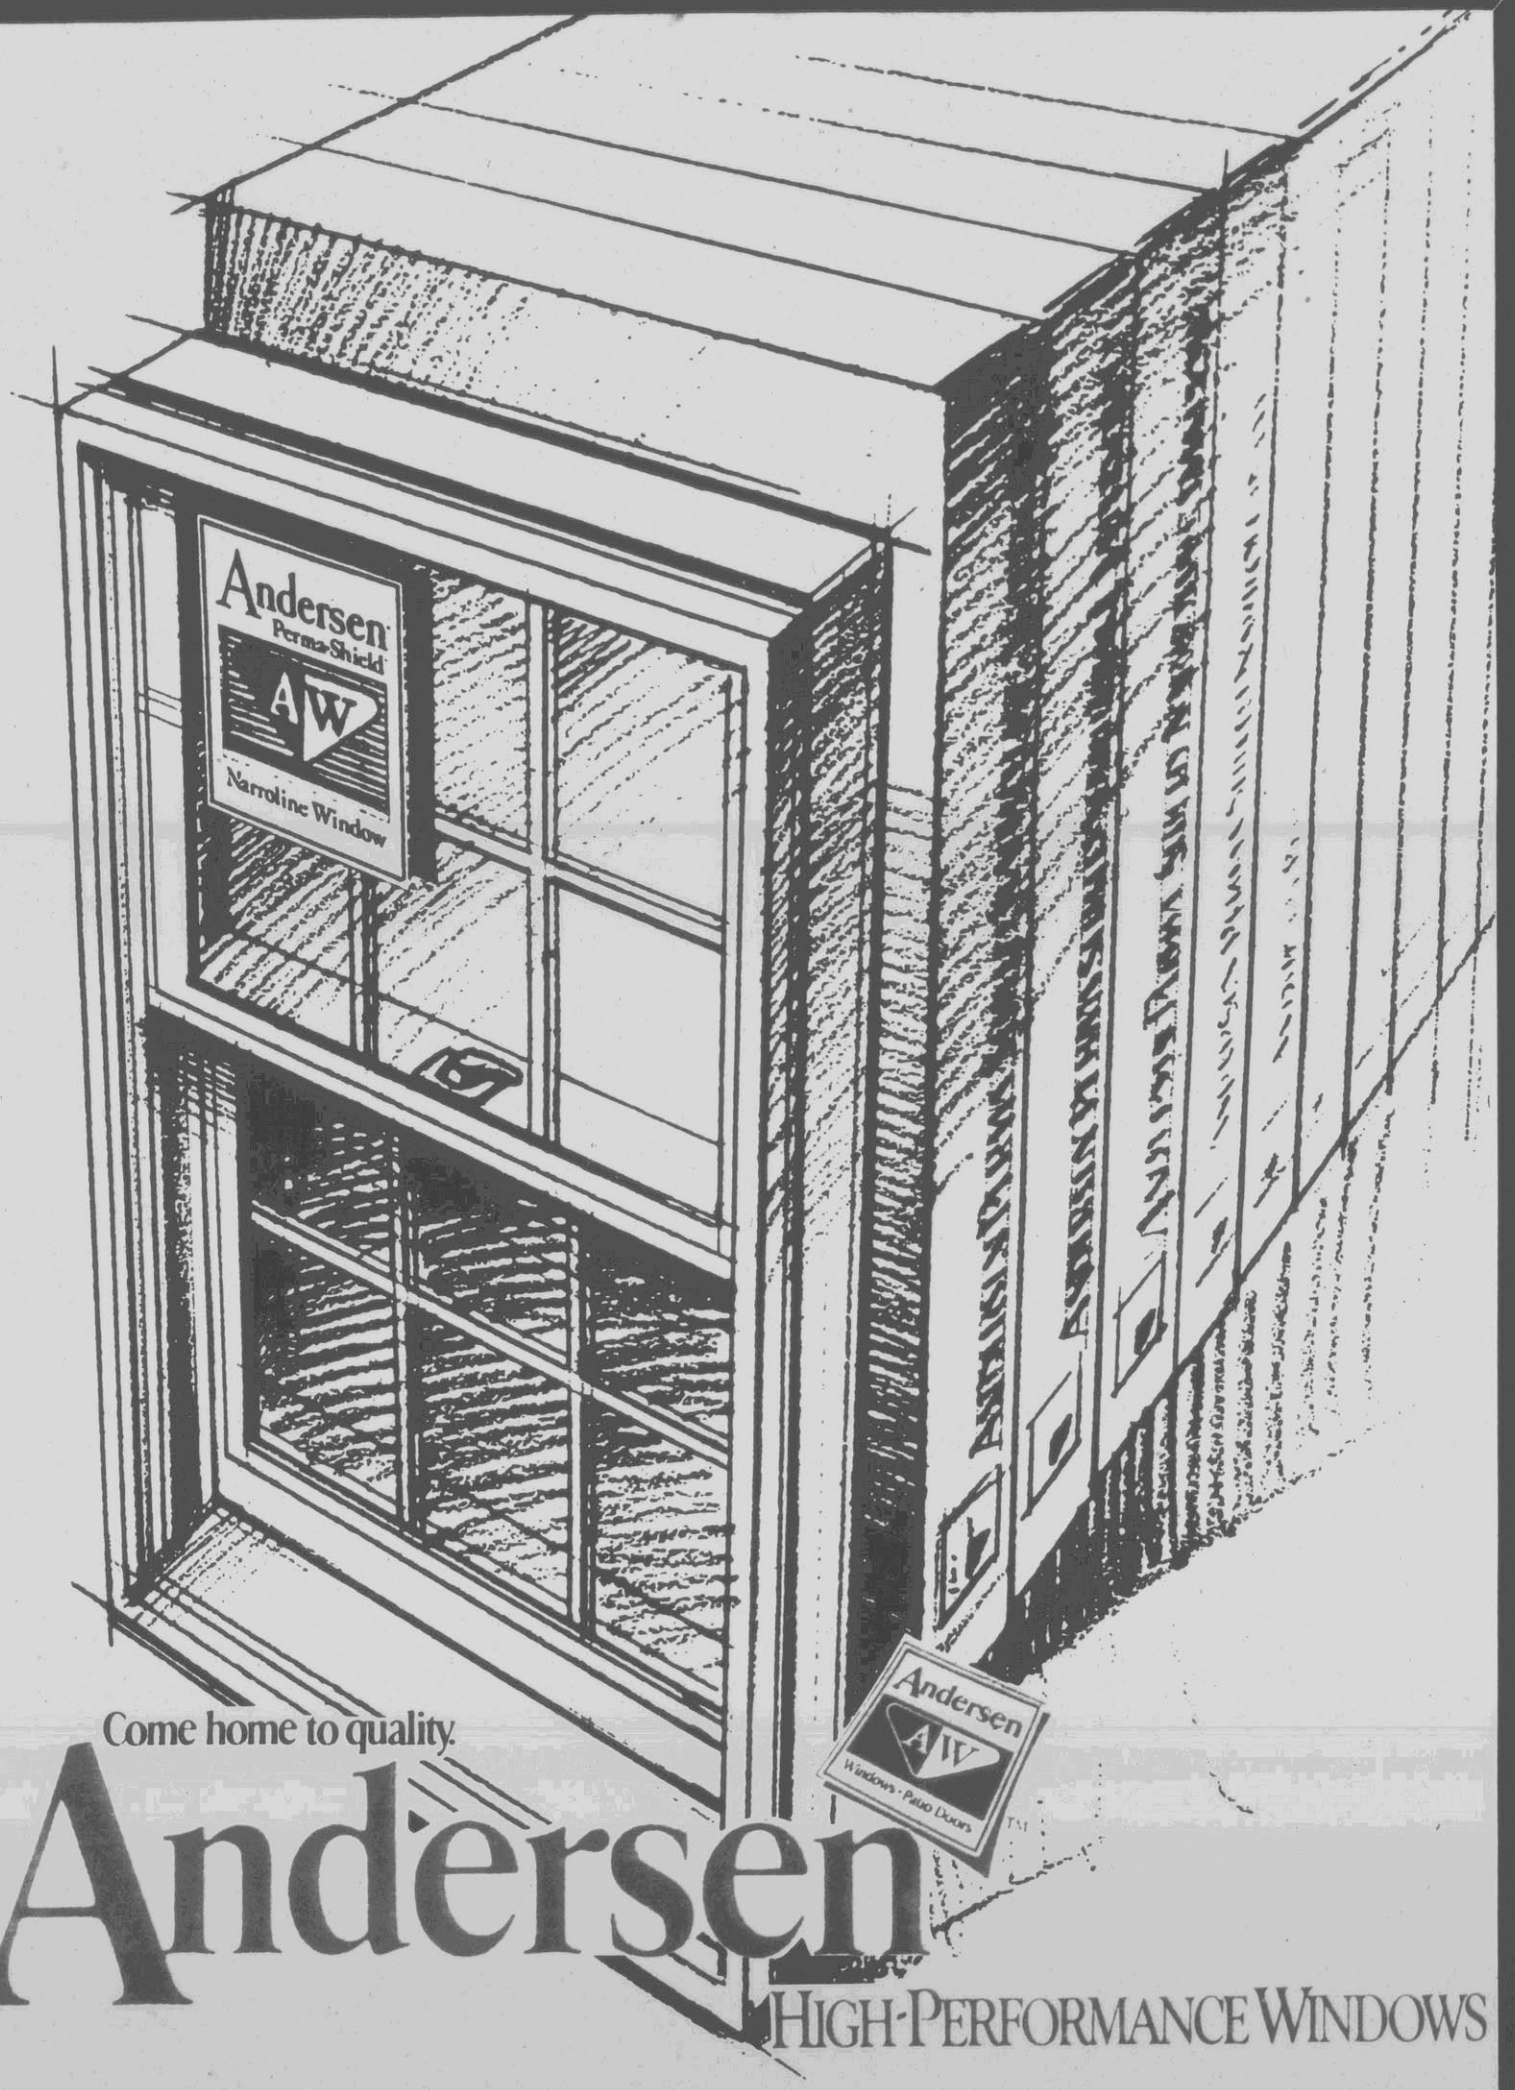

Rugged extruded-aluminum sill.

Built-in sill drain. Drains moisture to the outside.

SEE THE HIGH-PERFORMANCE PATIO DOOR.

It's the Andersen® Perma-Shield® patio door with new optional High-Performance insulating glass. This glazing has a transparent coating that keeps radiant heat in during cold weather, out during warm weather. Reduces heating and cooling costs. Come see our display and let us show you the many other quality features of the High-Performance patio door.
