Stormy Weekend Brings 4 Inches Of Rain To Pitt

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The sun was a welcoming sight in Pitt County this morning after the sky had poured more rain early today as area citizens began their workweek.

The Greenville Utilities water plant recorded 1.87 inches of rain from 7 a.m. to about 9 a.m. in north Greenville, while WNCT-TV in south Greenville recorded about .12 inches this morning.

About 4 inches of rain has been recorded in the city since Thursday, boosting the Tar River level to 12 feet above sea level this morning. The river was below 9 feet Saturday.

The rain this morning not only created a wet Monday for Pitt County citizens to awaken to, it also created extra work for Greenville Public Works crews.

The asphalt and cement crews of the Greenville Public Works Department joined forces with the ditch crew to unclog the city's ditches and catch basins from tree limbs and other debris, said Mayo Allen, director.

"It looks like it's going to be an all-day job," he said. "We got unusually heavy rain. When you get that kind of rain as quick as we got it you're going to always have these streets to flood. The pipe system is good for normal conditions but you can't call last Saturday normal."

On Saturday, four tornadoes were sighted in Pitt County, one of which destroyed buildings on a farm near Ham's Crossroads. Power outages across the area also were caused by the thunderstorms.

Most of the outages caused by Saturday's storm were restored by 1 a.m. Sunday, said Roger Jones, director of GUC's Electric Systems.

Sunday evening storms caused one feeder to lock out, and a transformer was repaired, he said. This morning GUC workers were answering isolated calls on state road 1517.

In addition to clearing the ditches, Public Works crews will check for erosion and cave-ins due to the excess water and will add sand and broken stone where needed, Allen said.

As the regular thunderstorms keep crews busy clearing the area of debris, "we just haven't had one or two weeks that we've been able to do asphalt and cement work," Allen said. "I'm getting behind" in fixing roads and sidewalks in the city, he said. But, "there's nothing we can do about it."

The rain also will continue to slow things down for area farmers, said Sam Uzzell of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

"Peanuts that may have been planted are probably going to be in difficulty," he said. "I think a lot of corn is in tough shape, too, and tobacco fields are flooded."

"The real story is how long the water will stand in the fields" as to whether tobacco transplants will need to be replanted, Uzzell said.

"I think all of this rain is going to

Airport Receives Grant Documents

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt-Greenville Airport today is a step closer to beginning two major improvement projects.

Airport manager Jim Turcotte said he has received grant documents from the Federal Aviation Administration regarding the $1.3 million terminal expansion project and the construction of an automated weather observation station.

The FAA has awarded $943,730 for the two projects, he said, the bulk of which will go toward the terminal expansion, which could get under way later this month.

Turcotte was scheduled to present the grant papers today to the Pitt County Commissioners who, along with the Greenville City Council and the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, must approve them. Once all three boards OK the grant, the federal money will become available, and the architects will be given a notice to proceed with construction.

On the FAA grant application, Turcotte said the cost of the new terminal building is set at $1,311,333. The expansion will more than double the size of the existing facility, adding a departure lounge, passenger traffic area, new ticket offices and a conveyer-driven baggage claim system. The LPA Group Inc., a South Carolina-based architectural firm, estimates the project will take about nine months to complete.

Turcotte said the grant application states that the federal share of the project will be $822,230; the state will contribute $181,014, and the county and city together will fund $308,089.

"This is what we estimate the cost (to be) before we do any change orders, which we surely will have," Turcotte said.

The Airport Authority has already awarded bids to four major contractors: Eastern Construction Co. of Greenville is the general contractor; Pitt-Electric is the electrical contractor; Humphrey Heating and Air Conditioning is the heating and air contractor, and Braxton Britt of Wilson is handling the plumbing work.

The second project, the automated weather observation station, will allow the airport to provide around-the-clock weather information about the existing conditions at the airport, Turcotte said.

Judge Cautions North Trial In Peril

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The judge at Oliver North's trial said today the news media's attempt to force disclosure of a sealed document concerning a 1985 missile shipment may imperil the case against the former White House aide.

The jury of nine women and three men was entering its ninth day of deliberations today.

At a hearing, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said he thinks the issues raised by 10 news organizations seeking access to the document are "very, very broad."

"If you prevail in this matter," Gesell told a lawyer for the 10 news organizations, "one possibility is I must discharge the jury."

At issue is a stipulation summarizing highly secret intelligence intercepts that tracked a CIA-assisted November 1985 shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran. The intercepts were gathered by the National Security Agency.

North's lawyers used the document in his defense, referring to it in open court. In a highly unusual move, the document was given to the jury for its deliberations, but Gesell has kept it under seal from the public. Ten news organizations, including The Associated Press, went to court April 21 in an attempt to force its release.

The Justice Department, acting on behalf of the U.S. intelligence community, says release of the information would jeopardize national security.

Timothy B. Dyk, representing the 10 news organizations, pointed out that "only one document" is involved.

Gesell replied that "it's the only document I treated this way after 14 months of dealing with over a million documents."

The document shows that top U.S. officials knew at the time of the November 1985 shipment that Hawk missiles were aboard the aircraft.

On April 22, Gesell rejected the disclosure motion, saying the stipulation "is a classified document."

The news organizations appealed. An appeals court panel Friday sent the matter back to Gesell, calling for a hearing on national security issues involved, saying it cannot make a decision without having such a record.

North is charged with creating a false chronology that says no one in the U.S. government knew until January 1986 that Hawks were aboard the November 1985 shipment.

Part of North's defense was to show that CIA Director William Casey and national security adviser John Poindexter were aware at the time from the intercepts what was aboard, yet arranged the false story that no one knew.

Gifts Boost Boys Club Drive Past Half-Way Mark

By Jerry Raynor
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Contributions from Empire Brush Co. for $40,000 and from Pepsi Cola for $25,000 have placed the fund-raising campaign for the Pitt Boys Club at $450,000 plus.

That's more than half of the $900,000 goal for the campaign to fund the new facility, which will serve both boys and girls in Pitt County.

The latest contributions were presented by Joe Gantz for Empire Brush and John Minges for Pepsi Cola to campaign chairmen Burney Warren and Spence Cosby. Both contributions were raised through the campaign's division for major gifts.

"I am very proud that Empire Brushes has been able to help," said Gantz. "The new facility to serve both boys and girls will offer a multitude of opportunities for children of employees of Empire Brush along with children from all areas of the county."

"It will be an excellent facility, both in its programs and opportunities for young people."

Speaking for the Pepsi firm, Minges said "I feel it is important that businesses in Greenville give its support to such a worthy cause. Young people in Greenville and Pitt County are going to benefit from the new club. The way our area is growing makes it even more necessary to provide such services for both boys and girls."

"We are ahead of where we expected to be at this time," said Warren, co-chairman with Cosby of the overall campaign. "Contributors, large and small, are again proving to be generous in supporting the club."

"But we still have a distance to go, and are not resting on our laurels," said Cosby. "I'm confident we will reach our goal, but all our campaign workers still have their work cut out for them in the next few weeks."

To date, Warren noted that the major gifts division of the campaign has been responsible for securing pledges of $330,000 of the $450,000-plus raised.

The five members of the major gifts committee are Jim Ward, Ric Miller, John West, Jordan Whichard and Cosby. All are on the board of directors of the club, and Whichard is the current board president.

Commenting on the sense of dedication shown by the 30 members constituting the board of directors of the Boys Club, Warren said "the members themselves, as individuals, not representing corporations or business, have committed $75,000 in pledges of their own. This is really remarkable."

The civic center and churches division of the campaign, chaired by Whichard, has raised $45,000, with expectations of added contributions, according to Casey.

Beginning Wednesday, Griff Garner, chairman of the division for small businesses and individuals, will head a team of 40 volunteers to seek donations.

"We are gratified by the interest and spirit of generosity shown by people and businesses in Pitt County to meet the challenge of raising these funds," said Casey.

"It's a situation where once more our people are going all out to help in a successful community program," Warren added.

Trial Scheduled For Former Chief

WILLIAMSTON — The trial of a former Williamston police chief accused of firing a high-powered rifle into a home was scheduled to begin today in Martin County Superior Court.

James David Thompson, 42, was arrested Feb. 3 and charged with the shooting in the Church's Crossroads community on Christmas Eve 1988. Thompson was removed from his duties as police chief, a job he had held since 1980.

Thompson is accused of firing into the home of Charlie and Mavis Whitaker about 10:30 p.m. No one was injured, but the shooting caused over $15,000 in damages to the home and nearby automobiles. If he is convicted of the felony charge of firing into an occupied dwelling, Thompson could face up to 10 years in prison.

A Martin County grand jury also indicted two other Williamston men on charges of aiding in the alleged crime. Martin Sheriff Willie Rogers said Johnny Smithwick, 41, was believed to have driven the pickup truck from which the shots were fired and that Gene Bennett, 53, was believed to have been riding in the bed of the truck with Thompson when the shots were fired.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

Soybean planting time is just around the corner and hopefully most decisions have been made by farmers concerning planting. A number of factors concerning planting decisions are outlined in this article.

First, soybean yields will be highest when planted on good soils, not marginal fields. If lime was not applied in the fall, apply and incorporate anytime up to planting if lime is recommended by soil tests.

Based on North Carolina State University on-farm tests, lime applied on low pH fields (requiring an average of 1.3 tons/acre) on the day of planting averaged 10 bushels per acre more than fields where lime was not applied. Soybeans should be fertilized based on soil test recommendations. If a soil test has not been taken, general per acre suggestions are: no nitrogen, 40 pounds of phosphorus and 80 pounds of potassium.

For full season soybeans, the target planting date is May 15. For double crop beans, plant as soon as the small grain is harvested but no later than July 4. Plant two or more soybean varieties for large acreages. Use varieties with differing maturity dates to reduce weather risks. Professional, certified, or properly stored, clean, known variety high germination farmer saved seed should be used as the soybean seed source. In NCSU on-farm tests of 1985-87, farmer-saved seed averaged two bushels less in yield than certified or professionally grown seed.

Inoculate soybeans only when planting them on new land or land no planted to soybeans in the last four years. It is not economical otherwise. It is also not normally economically feasible to use a fungicide treatment on a soybean seed with a germination of 80 percent or better. Do not plant soybeans in a field where nematode populations are high.

Decreasing row widths down to 20 inches can increase yields. Soybeans should be planted 1-1/2 inches deep depending on soil type and weather conditions. Seeding rate depends on soil type and weather conditions. Seeding rate depends on row width and whether the soybeans are full season or late planted.

Utilize a practical weed control program based on past weed problems and soil type. For more specific information on varieties, fertilization, weed control, etc. contact the Agricultural Extension Office at 830-6373.

CARPET "UGLIED" OUT?*

Most carpet doesn't wear out—it "uglies out"! That's right. Its appearance becomes so bad that you can't stand to look at it anymore (or for your friends and neighbors to), so you drop by your local carpet store to see if you can afford to replace it.

Nothing lasts forever, despite manufacturer's claims. Even miracle fibers wear out. The question is, however, "Did my carpet really wear out, or did it simply 'ugly out'?" Now, exactly what is meant by the term "ugly out"?

I'm referring to entry and traffic areas which are dull, flat and matted—literally ground up by fine, abrasive particles of soil, which aren't removed by vacuuming. Then, there are spots and stains which possibly could have been removed if treated at the outset, but now are permanently set so that nothing short of dynamite will move them.

Is there a solution? You bet! I've seen carpet in businesses exposed to 100 times more traffic than yours which lasted 15 years or more without "uglying out". The solution then is threefold: first, forget the idea of buying quality carpet for $5.99 a yard. The ads suggesting this are used to get you in the store where your ultimate choice will cost twice that or more. Second, treat spots rapidly to prevent permanent staining. Periodic application of a quality carpet protector helps here.

Third, and most important, realize that carpet must be maintained. Gone are the days when you were found scrubbing and mopping hard floors where soil build-up was vividly apparent. Carpet absorbs the same amount. It's just not as noticeable, but it's every bit as destructive!

Today, professional cleaners offer "Carefree Carpet Cleaning", which solves the spot and spill problem...solves the problem of unsightly entry and traffic areas...solves the embarrassment of carpet which has "uglied out" before it's time. For a small monthly fee (like payments to the exterminator or to cable TV), you can have year-round appearance protection, while doubling your carpet's life. Interesting? Give us a call for more information.

Judge Refuses To Bar Enforcement Of Turtle Excluders In Shrimp Nets

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — A federal judge today refused to stop the federal government from enforcing a requirement that Atlantic and Gulf Coast shrimpers pull turtle excluder devices in their nets.

Judge Patrick Carr's decision was a victory for environmentalists who say the devices are needed to keep endangered species of sea turtles from being entangled in the nets and drowning. It was a defeat for the Louisiana Attorney General who filed suit on behalf of Gulf Coast shrimpers, who say the "TEDs" are dangerous, unnecessary and cause a loss of shrimp from the nets.

Carr held a rare telephone hearing Friday afternoon after state Attorney General William Guste asked for a temporary restraining order blocking the requirement.

"If this law isn't changed it will mean that the entire shrimping industry is out of business," Tee John Mialjevich, president of Concerned Shrimpers, said Saturday. "We will not be able to survive pulling TEDs. It's not that we don't want to save turtles, it's that we want to feed our families."

Concerned Shrimpers, which Mialjevich said represents 2,000 shrimpers from North Carolina to Brownsville, Texas, was formed to fight the turtle excluder devices, commonly called TEDs.

Shrimp fishermen won a 60-day reprieve from hefty fines that went into effect today for boats which aren't equipped with TEDs that free endangered sea turtles entangled in their trawls.

Under congressional pressure not to strictly enforce the special net requirements, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher said he was ordering the Coast Guard to issue only warnings through June 30 — instead of fines of up to $10,000 — to violators along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts.

Environmentalists maintain the TEDs will help save the endangered Kemp's ridley sea turtle from extinction. Shrimpers disclaim responsibility for most of the 11,000 turtle deaths estimated by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration each year.

"In 21 years of shrimping I've caught six Kemp's ridley sea turtles and they all went right back into the water alive," Mialjevich said.

Fishermen maintain the TEDs are dangerous to pull, prohibitively expensive and will reduce their harvests.

"I don't know of but about a dozen shrimpers that have TEDs," Ted Shepard, director of the 400 member Louisiana Shrimpers Association said Saturday. "I don't think most of them will tow them, they're having a hard enough time making a living now."

TEDs fit into the mouth of shrimp trawls and have trap doors that let turtles escape. Shrimpers argue that they are too easily clogged with debris and that a significant portion of their catch escapes with the turtles.

"This is an unbelievable horror story. There's just no way this should be placed on the Gulf fishermen. You don't get the Kemp's turtles in the areas we shrimp in. They're in the Atlantic and off the coast of Florida," Shepard said.

Shrimpers have proposed alternatives, Mialjevich said, including a $25 fee on shrimping licenses each year dedicated to hatching and growing the turtles.

"They can talk about big fines, but shrimpers can't pay them. They can't afford the $400 for the TED, so how can they pay fines. We've had a lot of bad years and fuel costs keep going up. You know what this is going to mean? It's going to mean foreign shrimpers will be the only ones selling shrimp in this country. This won't save the turtles. This will kill the American shrimper."

Construction Spending Drops For 3rd Month

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Construction spending declined for a third straight month in March, the first time building activity has shown such weakness since right before the start of the last recession, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said spending on projects dropped 0.3 percent in March, following even larger declines of 0.8 percent in February and 0.7 percent in January.

The new decline, which pushed activity down to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $413.5 billion, represented the first time construction spending has fallen for three consecutive months since a string of five in a row from February through June of 1981 before the start of the 1981-82 recession.

Economists have been looking for building activity to be weak this year because of the campaign by the Federal Reserve to push interest rates higher as a way of fighting inflation by dampening economic activity.

The weakness in March was a result of a 9.1 percent plunge in public construction, which fell to an annual rate of $74.1 billion. Much of that decline reflected a sharp 18.8 percent drop in spending for highways and streets, the biggest government category.

Construction of new housing units was down as well, dropping 1.4 percent to an annual rate of $143.3 billion. Spending on single-family homes fell by 1.7 percent to an annual rate of $120.1 billion while multi-family construction was up 0.9 percent to a rate of $23.3 billion.

Non-residential building rose by 4.1 percent to an annual rate of $101.9 billion, reflecting strength in factory construction, which surged by 12.1 percent and hotel construction, which was up 7 percent.

Bush Mends Cheney Remark, Champions Gorbachev Reforms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he wants political and economic reforms championed by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to succeed, despite a suggestion by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney that the efforts will fail.

At the same time, Bush's chief of staff, John Sununu, sought to put distance between the administration and Cheney's remarks, saying in a broadcast interview on Sunday that Bush does not share the defense secretary's views.

"I think the president and Secretary (of State James A.) Baker ... are hoping that Gorbachev's movement towards reform and restructuring the Soviet Union does succeed," Sununu said on the NBC-TV program, "Meet the Press."

"It is an opportunity to establish a relationship, continue the relationship that has begun," he said. Referring to Cheney's prediction that Gorbachev will fail, Sununu said, "I don't think that is the president's view."

Sununu said that the Bush administration was one in which officials like Cheney were free to voice their own opinions.

Bush himself, speaking to reporters on the way to New York where he participated in ceremonies commemorating the 200th anniversary of George Washington's inauguration, said: "we want (Gorbachev's) perestroika to succeed."

However, the president declined to react directly to Cheney's words, saying, "I never comment until I know exactly what he said."

Cheney had predicted in an interview broadcast Saturday that Gorbachev ultimately will fail and be replaced by a leader less friendly to the West, and he argued against major unilateral arms control concessions.

Turning to lingering questions from the Iran-Contra affair, Sununu said the president had told him the United States had not reached a quid pro quo agreement with Honduras in 1985, to increase aid in return for Honduran support for the anti-communist Contra guerrillas of Nicaragua.

Sununu cited as evidence a cable from John Negraponte, then the U.S. ambassador to Honduras, that Sununu said had been turned over to the congressional committee that investigated the Iran-Contra affair and had been discussed publicly by Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., a member of that panel.

Sununu's version of the Negraponte cable appears to contradict a 42-page government document entered into evidence in the Iran-Contra trial of Oliver North, referring to "incentives" to Honduras to maintain aid to the Contras, refers to criteria for expediting U.S. aid, and states: "President Reagan personally authorized the entire plan."

A senior State Department official, Michael G. Kozak, told a congressional panel last Tuesday that the plan had been rejected, meaning that the government stipulation entered as evidence at the North trial was misleading.

THE SILENT ENEMY

You may not know it, but there's a silent enemy at work in your mouth: periodontal disease. This disease affects nine out of ten Americans during their lifetimes. It works slowly and steadily in your gums, attacking the soft tissue and the bone supporting your teeth. Unlike decay-causing bacteria, it doesn't attack the teeth directly. It works from the "underground" of the mouth and may not be noticed for years, until it becomes a serious problem.

In its early stages it causes the gums to become red. They may swell and bleed easily. As the bacteria continue to multiply, the underlying layers become hardened or mineralized. This deposit is called calculus or tartar. In time, the gums slowly separate from the teeth, forming pockets for more bacteria to thrive in. Then they attack the bone structure that supports the teeth, loosening the teeth. By then it may be too late to save the teeth.

Regular dental checkups can prevent this disease from getting a tooth-hold. Don't let it happen to you. Call our office today for an appointment.

100 Days

The Real Measurement Lies Ahead

Traditionally presidents are measured by their first 100 days in office.

The philosophy is that the new president will come forth with bold initiatives in those first few months because he has more clout at that time. And he has the strength which comes through having recently been elected to office. The peak of his presidential power still lies before him.

If President George Bush plans any bold initiatives they won't come during his first 100 days. That bloc of time has come and gone and the new president has hardly been more visible than when he was vice president.

There has been little decisive change in foreign policy and that leaves political analysts wondering what directions the administration will take.

In domestic affairs there has been no boat rocking, even with the awesome deficit still facing the nation.

The Alaskan oil spill is an ecological crisis and the administration lamented it and intervened in the cleanup. So far, though, no great initiative from the administration on how to prevent such future spills or to efficiently clean them up if they occur.

A hundred days is not four years. President Bush's record may be glowing as he nears the end of his term. He didn't, after all, face an economic crisis such as existed in 1933 when new president Franklin D. Roosevelt proposed a flurry of legislation in his first 100 days.

It has been generally a quiet time in the White House during the first weeks of the Bush administration. It won't always be that way, however. There will be economic and foreign policy tests ahead that the president will have to face. They will provide the real measurement of presidential ability.

Ego-Massaging Isn't A Crime

Not Bribery, Not Gifts, Not Gratuities ... Just Compliments

Art
Buchwald

There has been a great deal of talk about senators and congressmen being paid large fees for speaking engagements. The government ethics people have taken the view that these honorariums could be considered bribes rather than payment for the oratory skills that our legislators are famous for.

This is not true. You can't buy a lawmaker for $2,000. I know this because I have attended many conventions and meetings where members of Congress have been the featured speakers. I have never seen one of them compromised because of his lecture fee. It's not money that gets to all our lawmakers but flattery, which is inflicted on them from the day they arrive to the day they leave.

Here is the kind of stuff politicians hear when they go to a business convention as VIP guests of their sponsors:

"Senator, that was the greatest drive I've ever seen on this course. You're a born Jack Nicklaus."

"I read your book, Congressman, and your ideas are mind-blowing. I'm going to order 50,000 copies for my employees."

"Mrs. Senator, we'd love to have a woman's input for our company's 'Good Health Through Tobacco Programs.' Would you consider serving on our advisory board?"

"Congressman Smith, you are a real devil. You never told us that you play horseshoes like George Bush."

"Mrs. Congressman, all of us here admire your husband for the wonderful job he does chairing the Safety Razor Committee. We only wish there were 434 more like him in the House."

"Senator Brown, I read your 800-page committee report on why termites eat railroad ties, and I couldn't put it down. You should submit it for a Pulitzer Prize."

"Mrs. Senator, I hear that besides being a devoted mother, a wonderful cook and a loyal wife, you are also interested in establishing a day-care center for household pets. This is the kind of cause our company's foundation has been looking for."

"May I have your attention, everybody? Congressman Sheldon and his lovely wife Lucy have just won first prize in the Fred Astaire Ballroom Dancing Contest. Let's get them out on the floor so that they can show us why the Sheldons are called the lightest feet in Malarkey, Alabama."

"Congresswoman Sanders, our industry doesn't think of you as a woman. We see you as the cutest little legislator on Capitol Hill."

"Senator, your son and daughter are just great. We wish every American kid had the manners they do."

"Senator Backdate, the reason we respect you is because you are a regular guy, and people in the savings and loan industry know a regular guy when they see one."

"Touchdown, Senator! You won the game."

"Congressman, you really made our convention, just by being here. I hope you don't get upset when our members give you a standing ovation."

"Senator, why don't you and your lovely wife take my private plane back to Washington, or any other place that you would like to go. This is not a bribe. It's just our company's way of saying thanks to a great American and the sharpest lawmaker in the land."

So, forget the money. If you want to know what is corrupting lawmakers, it's kind words — but so far no one has been able to prove that ego-massaging a legislator is a crime.

Democracy

A Strange Occurrence In China

Many strange events are occurring in the Communist nations.

It is a startled western world which reads that thousands of students are striking and demonstrating in the Communist Chinese city of Beijing. What the students want, purely and simply, is more democracy.

The students are using the methods employed in democratic countries to make their case. An independent newspaper was published at Beijing University. Classes were boycotted at area universities. Posters, satirical cartoons and essays have been posted on walls to make the students' case for democracy. Some posters called for Premier Li Peng to step down, a brash move in a controlled Communist country.

The students called for such democratic reforms as freedom of the press, ending corruption and financial disclosure by China's leaders.

The students' rebellion in China seems to be a part of the winds of change which are sweeping the Communist nations. Their citizens want more freedom, better economic benefits from the systems and an end to corruption by the leaders which control the tightly run governments.

Is it the new revolution of Communism? It surely is a start. The Communist leaders no doubt are involved in attempting to crack down on dissidents. Nevertheless there seems to be a thirst for freedom which cannot now be repressed. With new freedoms will come demands for consumer goods leaving less for the huge war machines which seemed necessary for maintaining the absolute control which has characterized Communism.

No doubt crackdowns will come, but it may be too late to stop the surprising changes which are taking place in China and other Communist countries.

The changes will have to be good for world peace. More democratic Communist nations will be less belligerent societies, and people looking for better living standards will expect that less will be spent on the military establishment. It could be the greatest movement for world peace since the end of World War II.

Measure Injustice By One Yardstick

WASHINGTON — The woman lies near death in a New York hospital, a victim not merely of her own foolish daring but also of a singularly bestial attack: vicious, brutish, unprovoked. And I keep wanting the black leadership to say something about it.

Is that silly? What would I want them to say? The 28-year-old woman went jogging in Central Park — at night for heaven's sake — and got in trouble. What's the black leadership got to do with that? What would I want them to say, and in what forum?

I suppose I just want them to say that they — that we — are outraged; that we demand justice, that we care about that woman, though she is white and her attackers are black children.

It's easy enough to understand why they aren't talking. To begin with, it isn't one of their issues. Moreover, the attackers are members of their constituency, and the victim is not. And finally, they may fear that to speak out as black leaders would spread the guilt from the young savages who did the deed to blacks generally.

'As for the notion that the so-far unnamed victim of the recent attack should never have gone on a night-time jog in Central Park — no matter how realistic that advice might be — is not very different from saying that those black guys shouldn't have been wandering around in that all-white blue-collar section of Howard Beach. There shouldn't be places in America where people are forbidden to go because of their race.'

After all, it wasn't "black America" that beat, stabbed, gang-raped and battered this hapless woman and left her for dead. It was a group of some 8 or 9 children, themselves victims, no doubt, of some social atrocities, who did this savage thing. Why should black leaders buy into the savagery by having anything to say about it one way or another?

And didn't the victim, while not precisely "asking for it," pretty much bring the horror upon herself? She did resist the advice of friends and the common wisdom of New Yorkers: Stay the hell out of Central Park at night.

All true. But it is also true that it wasn't "white America" that assaulted the three black men who strayed into Howard Beach, chasing one to his death into the path of a car. It was a mob of white teen-agers.

Still, the black leadership demanded that white leaders speak out about the incident, if only to demonstrate that they weren't all represented by that club-wielding mob. And white leaders did speak out.

As for the notion that the so-far unnamed victim of the recent attack should never have gone on a night-time jog in Central Park — no matter how realistic that advice might be — is not very different from saying that those black guys shouldn't have been wandering around in that all-white blue-collar section of Howard Beach. There shouldn't be places in America where people are forbidden to go because of their race.

I wish the black leadership would say that. I wish we could get over the notion that we have to defend (or at any rate keep silent about) the bad actors among us, even though I understand why we do it.

Sometimes it is simply because they are black and their critics are white; sometimes it is because we fear that for us to turn on even the most blameworthy of blacks will license racists to turn on all of us. As a matter of fact, the opposite is true. But in any case, it is beside the point.

It may also be beside the point that we don't know what to do about children who, with or without the excuse of poverty, have become such cold-eyed and remorseless monsters. We don't know how to "fix" people who have reached adolescence or adulthood without having internalized any recognizable moral code, and we don't know how to keep from churning out more of them.

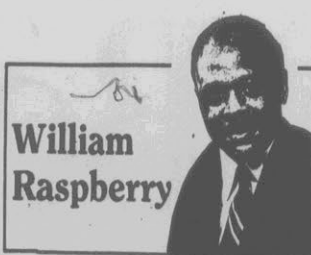

But surely our vocal disapproval of their savagery is one place to start.

We need to make it clear that we are outraged by brutality, not just white brutality. We need to find the words to say we care about victims, not just black victims. To keep silent in the face of atrocities committed by blacks erodes the moral value of our outrage when the atrocities are committed by whites.

It is in the interest both of justice and our progress that we espouse common standards against which we can establish sound social policy and hold people accountable for their behavior. And just as Martin Luther King Jr. found the courage to speak out against the violence of both the Klan and the Black Panthers, it must start with the leadership.

Those race spokesmen, self-appointed and otherwise, who have made it their special mission to attack societal injustice must find the courage to measure that injustice by a single yardstick.

For Bush, A Gradual Start Down The Long Road Ahead

Walter Mears

WASHINGTON — One hundred days later, President Bush is doing just about what he said he was going to do — changing things slowly, operating methodically, nothing drastic, little drama.

That is the approach he described before the inauguration and the one he defends now. "I'm a practical man," Bush said the other day. "I like what's real. I'm not much for the airy and the abstract. And I like what works."

Whether the Bush method is working or not depends on who is judging. Early on, the president found it necessary to deny that his administration was drifting without clear purpose, beset by malaise — the dread political affliction diagnosed during Jimmy Carter's one-term presidency. There remain suggestions that Bush has described no clear purpose and that his own identity remains indistinct, ill-defined.

That doesn't seem to be bothering most Americans. The public opinion polls show solid approval ratings for the way he is doing his job. A USA Today poll indicated that 56 percent would rather have him as president than Ronald Reagan.

Reagan came to office with a clear mission and agenda — rein in government and cut taxes. Those goals overrode everything else during his first months in office. Bush had no such program, and said so before he took office.

"You're looking for a dramatic two-point program or something," he told an interviewer asking about his agenda for the first 100 days.

Analysis

"We don't need a two-point program."

"We need to correct one big problem and we need to build on some tremendous successes, and we need to capitalize on changes in the world." The problem was the budget deficit. It's still the problem, despite a White House deal with Congress to produce a holding-action budget this year.

"That's at least the approach I'm going to bring to the job," Bush said in January.

And now: "I do not feel compelled or pressed because of a column here or a column there to reach out for something dramatic."

But Bush and his advisers did feel the need for a campaign-paced, six-state swing this week to say and show that a lack of drama does not mean a lack of action.

"My starting point has been a respect for American institutions — for Congress, for the dedicated civil servants of the executive branch, for state and local governments, for the concept of public service," the president told annual luncheon of The Associated Press in Chicago on Monday. "... The emphasis is on cooperation, not confrontation, as the surest route to progress."

This has meant compromise on some points on which Reagan wouldn't budge. But that fits the Bush premise that federal government can and should help solve problems. Reagan maintained that government usually was the problem, not the cure.

Bush said before taking office that the voters didn't elect him to bring drastic change to government. "That's not what I am about," he said. "People understood that when they were voting. They weren't looking for a radical shift."

There have been shifts, but most have come gradually, on selected issues, not as part of any grand design. That leads back to the question of whether there is a grand design for the Bush presidency. None shows yet, but Bush has had only three months of the 48 in this term.

"There's a long road ahead of us," he said. "And I am optimistic — that our reforms will produce lasting results, that the long-range planning we do today will pay off in the future, that our consultations with Congress will result in progress in domestic and international affairs as well."

His success in reaching those goals will determine which historical parallel comes closest to fitting his first hundred days.

In U.S. history, the phase recalls the 1933 special session of Congress in which President Franklin D. Roosevelt won swift approval of his proposals to deal with the Depression. In France, it applies to Napoleon's escape from exile and the brief, final campaign that ended in his defeat at Waterloo.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 25 years.

The President's Scattershot Style During The First 100 Days

Ann Devroy

WASHINGTON — No one is quite sure whether it was a tongue-in-cheek comment, but when White House aides recently received the routine internal memo that describes the public theme of President Bush's week, it wasn't cutting the deficit or preserving the peace or fighting drugs or promoting volunteers or enhancing competitiveness or negotiating on Central America.

It was all of those and more. The president's public message that April week, the memo noted, was "Diversity in Government."

With Bush settled into a pattern that aides say essentially reflects what Americans will see the next four years, the "Diversity in Government" phrase captures, more than anything, the scattershot style of the presidency.

The read-my-lips, fly-the-flag, jail-the-criminal campaigner of 1988 with a tightly controlled, simple message tailored for television has vanished.

In its place is a president whose day often offers a jumble of public events, tumbling over and into each other with no apparent theme and little success in dominating the news. The Bush presidency, said one analyst, will test a conventional media wisdom begun with John F. Kennedy and perfected with Ronald Reagan. It holds that a president who fails "to establish a relationship" with the nation by dominating television cannot succeed.

That Bush gets himself and his message on television significantly less than previous presidents is undisputed. The Center for Media and Public Affairs, a Virginia-based organization that monitors the nightly television news, reports that, in his first 60 days in office, Bush was the subject of stories on television news 265 times, compared with 399 times for Reagan and 520 for President Carter when their presidencies were new.

Robert Lichter, director of the center, said much of the coverage Bush does get is "reactionary," showing him reacting to events rather than initiating action. Lichter said his impression of Bush after watching the campaign and early coverage of Bush's presidency is: "The guy knows he's no good on television. You get the impression he held his nose and did it during the campaign because he was convinced he had to. But now that's over and he's back mumbling and babbling and cutting off his words in mid-sentence."

One of Bush's most senior advisers, who has seen him through years of ups and downs, said Bush is an "old-fashioned politician who believes the best way to govern is from the inside ..." by working with the parties involved to reach agreements and seeing the agreements are implemented.

"He doesn't think of television in terms of governing," the adviser said. "He thinks it's for entertainment."

Bush stated a central foundation of his presidency: That the goals he sets and the successes he thus far claims are based not on successful communication but on successful negotiation.

"When I took office," he said recently, "I told the Congress that the American people hadn't sent us to Washington to bicker. They sent us to govern, to work together to solve urgent problems. ... I think the work we've done these past three months demonstrates the value of tough, principled negotiations between Congress and this administration."

White House officials readily agree that Bush and his team make none of the Reagan-era efforts to put what one called "hot language" into a routine speech for the sole purpose of getting on television. Nor do they attempt to stage elaborate events for the television pictures they produce, or work for days on the perfect Bush utterances for television. House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., a media-age politician, said of Bush: "This is a print administration, not a television administration."

White House chief of staff John H. Sununu made much the same point, insisting that television is a part, and not a major part, of presidential communication. It is "results" and not "media manipulation" that count, he said.

There are many who suggest that even if it tried, the White House team, which has few of the key players who staged the campaign, lacks the organization and skills to use the media to its maximum advantage.

The critics cite, for example, an announcement on joining an international effort to control chlorofluorocarbons, a move hailed by environmentalists and taken by a president trying to establish his environmental credentials. Bush made the announcement in the middle of another ceremonial event, and it got virtually no television coverage.

One Republican strategist used a savings analogy to describe how a successful president can use television. Every nightly news appearance that helps the president, he said, is like "putting a dollar in the bank. ... You build up a lot of good impressions with frequent deposits, so when the bumps come, and they will, you got something there to withdraw. It's not that Bush is making withdrawals. It's just that this is the honeymoon, and he should be making more deposits."

Exhibit No. 1 cited in support of that thesis is the four-day trip Bush completed Thursday. It involved more than a dozen events in six states with themes that were supposed to range from competitiveness, to drugs, to the economy, to the legislative agenda. Speeches were given; crime scenes viewed; a tree was planted in North Dakota.

The trip got spotty national coverage at best, with many of the major events never broadcast on television. The most consistent media theme to emerge was a string of reports on television and in print noting the themelessness of the trip and highlighting wacky moments or Bush's mangling of the language. It was a kind of Murphy's Law trip, perfectly symbolized by radio reports Friday that the tree planted in North Dakota on the first day was, by the fourth day, infested by gypsy moths.

The trip was so roundly criticized by the traveling press, and grumbled about by some White House aides, that Demarest and White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater held what was described as a "spirited discussion" with Sununu aboard a returning Air Force One on what went wrong and who was to blame and whether personnel changes were in order.

Participants declined to discuss the session, and Sununu defended the trip as successful and himself and the president as well satisfied with their team. But the fact that few agreed with this assessment was not lost on Bush. Reacting to the media ridicule and criticism of the trip, he said, "It is a very important thing for a president to get outside the White House and move around the country. And some of the friends that were traveling with us didn't seem to understand that, but I can tell you, I learned a lot and it was a good thing to do and I'm going to keep doing that."

Pileup

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A 15-car accident stopped traffic on U.S. 52 near Winston-Salem for about two hours on Saturday.

Nobody was seriously injured in the 2:20 p.m. accident, said Lt. B.R. Johnson of the Winston-Salem Police Department.

Johnson said that bad weather caused the accident near the Interstate 40 exit ramp.

"It was raining, and 52 was slick," he said. "It was something. (Cars) were all banged up."

Two cars that were exiting U.S. 52 collided, Johnson said, and that accident caused a chain reaction of other accidents. Ten cars bumped into each other behind the initial two-car accident, he said. Other minor pileups followed.

Traffic, which was stopped for two hours, was backed up to the Ninth Street exit, Johnson said. Ten wreckers pulled cars from U.S. 52. Three ambulances took people to local hospitals, but Johnson said that nobody was seriously injured.

Employment

RALEIGH (AP) — Eighty-four North Carolina counties had unemployment rates at or below 5 percent for the month of March 1989, compared to 59 in March 1988, the state Employment Security Commission said.

ESC analysts regard 5 percent as a full-employment situation.

The number of counties with rates at or above 10 percent increased from four to five in the same one-year period.

Greene, at 1.7 percent, had the lowest rate, while Graham, at 15.2 percent, had the highest.

In addition, the state jobless rate decreased to 3.2 percent in March 1989 from 3.7 percent in February 1989.

Knott Elected

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Robert E. Knott, provost and dean at Catawba College, has been elected the 25th president of Tusculum College in Greeneville, Tenn.

Knott will assume the post on July 1.

Tusculum College was founded in 1794 and is the oldest college in Tennessee. It is an accredited, coeducational, four-year liberal arts college with an enrollment of 953.

Knott, 48, joined Catawba College in 1982 as vice president of academic affairs.

Ambulance Explosion

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A Surry County Emergency Medical Services ambulance caught fire and exploded Sunday, destroying the vehicle and its contents, an official said. No one was injured.

The Ford Econoline ambulance caught fire at 12:30 p.m. while its crew was returning from a call, said John Shelton, the director of the Surry County EMS. He said the ambulance was not carrying a patient.

The EMS's two other Ford Econoline ambulances have been taken out of service due to the accident and Shelton said he expects the agency will replace them.

In 1987 the Ford Motor Company recalled 20,000 ambulances similar to those used in Surry County because of fuel tank and fuel line problems that caused 24 ambulances to catch fire.

Marijuana Raid

ROBBINSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Federal, state and local law enforcement officers raided what they called "one of the most sophisticated" commercial marijuana-growing operations ever seen on federal lands in Western North Carolina and captured seven suspects on Sunday.

The marijuana was planted in a U.S. Forest Service clear cut between Fontana Village and Tapoco in northern Graham County, according to authorities.

The seven men were videotaped and photographed by officers as they planted and fertilized an estimated 800 to 1,000 plants, officials said.

Jurors Who Freed Man On Insanity Ruling Finds Highly Critical Public

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WINSTON-SALEM — Some of the jurors who found Michael Hayes innocent by reason of insanity in a shooting spree have been threatened and others berated by strangers, but they say they were only following the law, although they weren't happy about acquitting him, either.

"I feel like, the way that the law read, we did what we had to do. People ask, 'Why did you let the guy loose?' And I say we didn't really have a choice," juror Ronald Hutchens said.

"We went through hell, we really did," said Teresa L. Jones, the Forsyth County Superior Court jury foreman. "To live with it afterward, the public hates you. I can't go anywhere."

The jurors are the people who "set a murderer free to roam the streets," according to one recent letter to the Winston-Salem Journal. Another letter writer said the jurors "look on mass murder as nothing more than getting caught with your hand in the cookie jar."

The criticism has taken its toll. At least one of the jurors has been unable to return to work. And several have described feelings of paranoia and fear.

Miss Jones has not returned to work, and says she probably won't be able to for a couple more weeks.

She has received frightening phone calls, including one from a caller who said he hoped that Hayes would be released and come back to kill her.

"Well, I expected it," she said. "But we're not bad people. We're good, honest people. And we're not insane either," she said, referring to a comment by a relative of one of Hayes' victims.

Four people were shot to death and five others injured in the half-hour that Hayes roamed a rural Forsyth County intersection last July, firing his .22-caliber rifle.

Carolyn Beery, another juror, once found herself arguing with her dental hygienist over the verdict. Mrs. Beery told the hygienist — as she has told others — that people not on the jury didn't hear the entire case and therefore can't understand why the jury voted the way it did.

"One gentleman called us 'gutless wonders,'" she said. "It just makes you feel kind of down in the dumps."

Mrs. Beery said she recently had a nightmare in which she was being chased, and another in which she was back on the jury.

Some jurors complain they were asked to do something that is almost impossible.

They were to listen to testimony from the victims' families — testimony that evoked profound sympathy — and then deliberate on the case fairly, rationally and objectively.

But they had to consider the law, which said if they believed Hayes was insane at the time of the shootings, then they must find him innocent by reason of insanity.

Mrs. Beery is openly critical of the insanity defense.

"That 'not guilty by reason of insanity' is wrong, and we all knew it was wrong, but what can you do?" she said.

Pamela Hawkins said she has had fewer problems dealing with the verdict than other jurors have, but she, too, has had confrontations.

"Some people can be very insensitive," she said. "But I'll stand behind my decision 100 percent. I will not be intimidated by the threats and the comments."

"I know that I did what the law required me to do," she said.

Miss Jones agreed. "I'm not ashamed," she said. "I don't walk around with my face held down. I'm frightened, because I know how angry people are."

Miss Jones and Hutchens said jurors sat for a while after deciding the verdict and discussed the anger they would likely face.

"I broke down when I came out of that courtroom," Miss Jones said. "I broke down. My heart goes out to those people (the victims and their families). I'm a Christian. ... Those families affected us like they would never believe. I've shed a lot of tears over this."

"It's still sticking in my mind, and it always will," Mrs. Beery said. "I don't think I'll ever be the same."

Hospital Admissions

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Heart and circulatory ailments were the most common causes of hospital admission in North Carolina from January to June 1988.

Figures released today by the N.C. Hospital Association show that 46,797, or 14 percent, of 332,183 patients treated in North Carolina hospitals in those six months were treated for heart and circulatory problems.

The next most common reasons for hospital admission were pregnancy and childbirth, 13.4 percent; care of newborns, 10 percent; digestive disorders, 10 percent; respiratory disorders, 8.6 percent; diseases of muscles and bones, 7.7 percent; diseases of the nervous system, 5.6 percent; and gynecological problems, 4.2 percent.

NCHA compiled the information from its new Patient Data System, which includes information from 100 of the state's 129 acute-care hospitals.

Ramsey Democrats Form 'Kennel Club'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Almost four months after they lost control of the state House, the 54 Democrats who supported Rep. Liston Ramsey's failed bid for a fifth term as speaker continue to gather together, a reminder that the House remains a divided body.

Members of the Kennel Club — so named because they consider themselves "in the doghouse" — occasionally share a meal, lick their wounds and stoke their still-bitter feelings toward new speaker Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, and the 20 dissident Democrats who helped install him.

waiters removed dirty dinner plates and delivered fresh drinks, House Democrats attending last Thursday night's meeting of the club eased back into their chairs and waited for two of their own to sing to them.

But Duplin County Rep. Charles Albertson — a professional country-western singer — wanted to preface his performance with a salute to someone in the audience.

"I'll never forget the speaker over there," he said, pointing to Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, ousted as House speaker in January by a coalition of dissident Democrats and Republicans. "He's the legitimate speaker. Of all those who should be mad at what happened, he has the most right to be. But this man has been a model gentleman."

As Ramsey lowered his head to acknowledge the compliment, applause filled the back room at the Raleigh restaurant.

On Thursday night — the first time a reporter has attended one of the group's monthly meetings — the jokes and songs were continually interrupted by stinging put-downs.

"This isn't a foreign country, where people have coups," Rep. Herman Gist, D-Guilford, told the group. "I thought this was America."

The dissidents have said they moved against Ramsey because, under his leadership, power remained in the hands of only a few House members. Republicans had made Ramsey and his lieutenants a campaign issue, unseating 10 House Democrats last year.

But the Ramsey group's major complaint is that the Democratic dissidents voted in a December caucus to nominate Ramsey for another term as speaker. The next month, after several secret meetings, they voted against him on the House floor.

That sequence of events was alluded to again and again Thursday night, when 34 of the 54 showed up.

"As each person gains through deceit and deception, our citizens lose," said former Rep. Brewster Brown of Hertford County, one of two former legislators who drove to Raleigh for the dinner. "I will drive from Winton to Asheville next year to make sure loyal Democrats are elected."

"Who would you have voted for for speaker?" someone shouted as the other former House member, Rep. Foyle Hightower of Anson County, stood.

"Ahhh, you know how I'd have voted," he began, pointing to Ramsey, who was sitting at the same table. "I'd have voted for this man right here. I understand a lot of people told him they would, but didn't."

At that, Rep. John Church, D-

Vance, chimed in: "Some people have character and some don't."

Hightower announced he'll try to win back his House seat next year. He lost it in the 1988 Democratic primary to Rep. Pryor Gibson, D-Anson — a Mavretic supporter.

Gibson wasn't invited Thursday night. Neither was Rep. Walter Jones Jr., D-Pitt, another of the 20 dissidents. But Jones, who stays at a hotel near the restaurant, was sitting in the restaurant's bar when Kennel Club members began arriving.

"They seemed a bit surprised to see me," said Jones, who sat alone with a glass of white wine while the others headed for the back room.

Sanford Uses Break For In-State Tour

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEBORO, N.C. — With the Senate in recess last week, Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., jumped in a van and spent the week touring what he called "the real world."

He heard from elderly citizens worried about their Social Security checks and from turkey farmers concerned that low-flying Marine jets were scaring their turkeys. And he was grilled on subjects such as abortion, gun control and capital punishment.

For Sanford, the tour was part of a plan to hold citizen forums in all 100 counties before he faces re-election in 1992. His citizen forums are a type of town meeting held at schools, community colleges and court-houses. The Democratic senator also held private meetings with business leaders and toured schools and factories.

Such barnstorming is not common for U.S. senators, especially those whose re-elections are three years away. His North Carolina colleague, Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, does not conduct similar tours.

Sanford said he felt a need to sample public opinion in person.

"It's so easy in Washington to get just one mind-set," he said in an interview. "People in Washington tend to see things, as they say up there, 'in the Beltway.' To get out and catch the flavor of what people are thinking, keep in touch, be dealing with the real world — I find it invaluable. I find it fascinating."

The Sanford tour, with its tight dawn-to-dusk schedule and its staff advance men, had the look and feel of a political campaign. At a Democratic Party dinner in Monroe on Wednesday, Sanford acknowledged the political overtones.

"I've been campaigning in a way," Sanford, 71, told the crowd.

Frats Say 'No Grades, No Parties'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH, Wash. — Scott Leffel straddled a motor scooter behind the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house and reflected on a future prerequisite for fraternity parties at Washington State University: good grades.

"I'm not too happy to be, actually," said Leffel, a sophomore. "It seems like the university is continually working against us rather than with us."

But the "no grades, no parties" rule that will take effect next year wasn't the brainchild of a scheming college dean trying to rid the campus of an "Animal House."

The Greeks, often considered synonymous with parties, imposed this rule on themselves to bolster their image and academic standing.

Beginning next spring semester, a fraternity will have to forgo parties for two weeks for every 0.05 point that its grade-point average for the preceding fall semester falls below the average GPA for all male undergraduates.

The rule, believed to be the first of its kind for an entire campus fraternity system, was adopted by the Intrafraternity Council on a 22-1 vote of chapter presidents. The 16,000-student school has 25 fraternities with a total of 1,400 members.

Council vice president Tom Gallagher said his fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, would have been pinched if partying penalties had been imposed based on last fall's grades. But that hasn't dampened his enthusiasm for the rule he helped develop.

Gallagher and council president Gary Downing said the policy attracted much interest at a Western regional conference of fraternities they attended recently in Oakland, Calif.

"The IFC leadership wanted to send a message that kind of flew in the face of the stereotypical perception of Greeks, that all they're here for is to party," said Jack Burns, fraternities coordinator for the Residence Life and Housing office. He said he wasn't aware of a similar campus-wide rule anywhere else.

Some fraternity brothers question the correlation between grade point average and keggers, though.

"Maybe the problem isn't just with the partying; maybe it's with the teachers and stuff, you know?" said Leffel of Sig Ep. "I mean, a lot of my TA's (teaching assistants) are from foreign countries, and when I go in there to try and talk econ' I can't even understand this guy."

Navy Still Quiet On Misfire Report

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Navy spokesman has declined comment on a report that there was a misfire in a gun at the USS Iowa's No. 1 turret shortly before the battleship's No. 2 turret exploded, killing 47 sailors.

"While it is under investigation, we cannot comment one way or another," Lt. Cmdr. John Marchi said Sunday, referring to the inquiry into the fiery blast aboard the battleship.

The Virginian-Pilot and The Ledger-Star of Norfolk, Va., reported Sunday that a survivor of the April 19 explosion, Petty Officer Kendall L. Truitt, said the misfire occurred during gunnery exercises just before the blast ripped through the No. 2 turret.

"Later, after the explosion and firefighting attempts, they still had bullets in Turret One's gun," Truitt said.

The newspaper also reported that survivors said 12 sailors in the turret area survived the explosion. The Navy has said only 11 men lived.

Capt. Fred P. Moosally, the commander of the ship, has said there were no indications of any problems with the guns before the explosion.

The ship's weapon's control officer, Cmdr. Robert J. Kissinger, said earlier this week the guns had passed a rigorous inspection that morning. They had been fired last in early February, he said.

The powder also had been inspected before the exercise, Kissinger said.

The newspaper quoted Truitt as saying quick action by Gunner's Mate John M. Mullahy Jr. prevented the fire from spreading to the ship's powder magazines.

Truitt was contacted by the newspaper at his parents' home in Illinois.

The only survivors in the gun's area were those working at the bottom level of the turret, in the nearby powder magazines and in a narrow hallway that ringed the armored turret.

Mullahy was on the turret's internal communications system when the explosion occurred, the newspaper reported. Unable to raise anyone on the upper decks of the six-deck turret, Mullahy opened the blast-proof door between the magazine, and the hallway, letting in the three men who were outside, Truitt said.

Then Mullahy opened the door to the "powder flats," an area on the turret's bottom level where powder is temporarily stored on its way up to the guns, the newspaper reported.

There were no lights, only a thick brown haze and a fire burning to the right. The covers on several 110-pound bags of powder were also burning, the newspaper said. Mullahy told investigators.

Mullahy quickly got out of the powder flats and left the magazine, which Truitt ordered evacuated, locking the door behind him.

Once outside the magazine, Truitt said Mullahy threw emergency switches to flood the area.

Moosally has said he ordered the magazines flooded seven minutes after the blast.

'First' Thanksgiving Observed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL PASO, Texas — Horsemen in armor, monks in brown robes and four musketeers gathered near the Rio Grande to commemorate what they say was the United States' first Thanksgiving celebration, in 1598.

The group took a step Sunday toward revising history with a re-enactment of the fiesta held April 30, 1598 — 23 years before the Pilgrims celebrated in Massachusetts.

While the 400 settlers led by Spanish aristocrat Juan de Oñate were celebrating, the Pilgrims were still in Europe, dreaming of a place where they could worship freely.

The El Paso Mission Trail

Association sponsored the re-enactment. In addition to the armored horsemen, Franciscan monks and musketeers, it included a dozen sheep, a goat and a donkey to represent the 7,000 head of livestock the original settlers brought with them.

No one is asking to move Thanksgiving from the fourth Thursday in November to April 30, but organizers want people to know about the 1598 feast.

"We don't want to fight against any tradition," said Ricardo Marti-Fluxa, Spain's consul general in Houston. "But we feel it was a deprivation not to acknowledge the full history of the United States of America."

Mission Trail president Sheldon Hall said he wants the re-enactment to become an annual event in El Paso.

The 130 men and 270 women and children in Oñate's party started out from central Mexico in early 1598 to settle along the Rio Grande, according to the group's chronicler, Capt. Gaspar Perez de Villagra. While crossing the vast Chihuahuan desert of northern Mexico, the group ran out of water. Five days later and near death by thirst, they reached the river April 20.

According to the Perez de Villagra, the settlers rested for 10 days before holding a thanksgiving feast a few miles east of present-day El Paso.

"We built a great bonfire and roasted the meat and fish, and then all sat down to a repast the like of which we had never enjoyed before," Perez de Villagra wrote.

Oñate then took formal possession of the Rio Grande basin in the name of King Philip II of Spain.

Four Slain In Parsonage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAKEVILLE, Ind. — A minister, his wife and two of their daughters were discovered shot to death in the church parsonage as the congregation sang hymns next door.

"The whole county's shook," said Dan Richard, 27, a member of the Olive Branch Church of the United Brethren in Christ, where Robert Pelley was pastor. "People don't know whether to stay at home alone or in groups."

Investigators believe the four were slain Saturday. The one-story frame house was locked and without signs of forced entry, said St. Joseph County sheriff's Cpl. Charles Feirrell.

The body of Pelley, 38, was found in the hallway Sunday morning, and the bodies of Dawn Pelley, 32, and their daughters Janel, 8, and Jolene, 6, were discovered in a family room, Feirrell said.

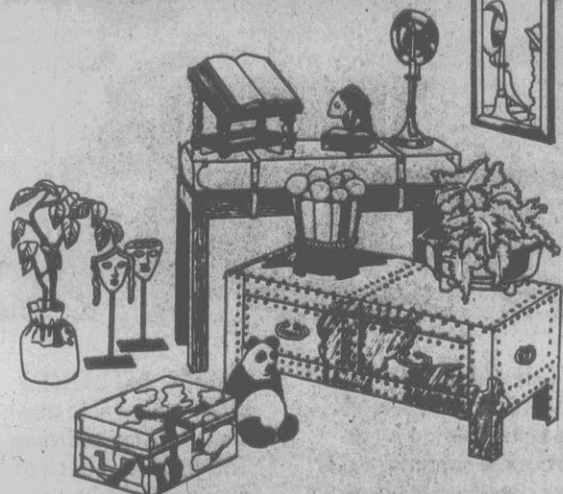

The Pelleys' three other children, ages 10, 14 and 17, were not home when the attack occurred, police said.

Autopsies were being conducted, and all appeared to have been shot at close range by the same weapon, Feirrell said.

The bodies were discovered by church trustee David Hinchaway Sunday morning as the increasingly worried members of the church conducted services in his absence, said 48-year-old Roger Schafer, one of the nearly 70 members of the church.

Soviet May Day Celebration Puts Spotlight On Progress, Economy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Soviets marked May Day today with a parade through Red Square that focused on efforts to encourage economic growth, carry out competitive elections and clean up the environment.

In its broadcast of the annual workers' celebrations, state-run television paid tribute to those killed in a pro-independence demonstration in Soviet Georgia last month as well as to the victims of the Armenian earthquake and a fire aboard a nuclear submarine.

No parades were held in the Armenian and Georgian capitals this May Day out of respect for the dead, the official news agency Tass reported.

In Moscow, the mood was upbeat and the weather was balmy and bright, with the emphasis on progress and only general references to international issues, such as signs extolling peace.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and members of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo stood atop Lenin's tomb to view the festivities as thousands upon thousands of marchers passed through Red Square waving banners, pushing floats and releasing helium-filled balloons.

Raisa Gorbachev, the president's wife, was nowhere to be seen. The Gorbachevs' daughter, Irina, and granddaughter, Oksana, were in a stand reserved for VIPs.

U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock and other Western diplomats who boycotted the parade to protest the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan were in their places with the diplomatic corps today. They returned last year after the Soviets announced they would withdraw their troops — a withdrawal completed in February.

In a section reserved for government dignitaries stood Boris N. Yeltsin, the Communist leader ousted from his post as Moscow party boss and removed from the Politburo but elected to represent the Soviet capital in the new parliament that meets May 25.

Also present were members of a Chinese delegation in Moscow to prepare for Gorbachev's visit to Beijing this month for the first Soviet-Chinese summit in 30 years.

The May Day parade, unlike the one each Revolution Day, Nov. 7, is not a military affair, but Soviet television interviewed a missile commander on the square, Col. Gen. Yuri A. Yashin, who said defense industries now devote 40 percent of their production to making consumer goods for civilians and plan to increase that share to 60 percent in coming years.

"It's mostly things like refrigerators, cars, washing machines, agricultural machinery," Yashin said, reflecting official policy to commit more resources to producing consumer goods for a product-starved domestic market. He said the Soviets have destroyed 860 missiles under the U.S.-Soviet treaty to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

Yashin also said the first military bases, covering nearly 10,000 acres, have been turned over to the civil sector for farming.

Hundreds of signs and red banners held aloft by what Tass said were 150,000 marchers stressed the virtue of work. The signs carried by the marchers also boosted perestroika, Gorbachev's program to modernize Soviet society; a campaign to make the Communist state a nation of laws; and recent parliamentary elections for the new Congress of People's Deputies.

Also this year, there was increased attention to environmental concerns. "To the coming generations: a clean planet," pledged one banner.

Access to Red Square is severely restricted for such events, and the vast majority of Soviets who saw the two-hour parade did so on television.

British Gunman Out On Stroll Fires At Random, Killing 1, Injuring 14

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHITLEY BAY, England — A 22-year-old man taking a stroll through a northern coastal town methodically fired a shotgun at everyone within range, killing one man and injuring 14 people, police said.

The gunman drove away after Sunday's 15-minute shooting spree in nearby Monkseaton and was arrested without incident outside a pub by a police officer who had chased him in an unmarked car, authorities said.

Police said he was from Whitley Bay, but they did not identify him and provided no motive for the shootings. Witnesses said the gunman was dressed in black and wore dark sunglasses.

News reports identified the man as a civil servant who lived with his parents about a mile from Monkseaton, a fashionable suburb of this seaside resort in northeastern England.

His victims included people returning from morning church services, a bicyclist, a man mowing his lawn and a family driving by in a car, officials said. They said he also wounded a woman who opened her front door and others who peered out their windows.

North Tyneside Hospital spokesman Michael Scargill said six of those wounded were hospitalized, three in serious condition.

The first ambulance officers on the scene came under fire themselves, dived for cover and escaped injury.

"He was having a go at any person he met," said Ken Heads, superintendent of the Northumbria ambulance service.

"I have never seen anyone so calm and totally in control — he was like a robot," said Jane Boyd, a resident.

Witnesses said the gunman wore his hair in a pony tail, had an ammunition belt around his waist and a hunting knife strapped to a leg and paused only to shoot his double-barreled shotgun and reload.

The tabloid Sun said the gunman regularly went clay-pigeon shooting with his father and quoted a neighbor identified as Harry Stephenson as saying, "You couldn't hope to meet a more pleasant young man."

Police identified the dead man as Kenneth Mackintosh, 41, a telephone company employee who was married and had two children. He was returning from church when he was gunned down.

Eric Holloway, a 47-year-old engineer, said he and his wife, Heather, and son, Adam, 6, were driving in their car when the gunman took aim at them. They escaped injury.

"He was as cool as a cucumber, sauntering along as though he was out for a stroll," Holloway said.

The Rev. Tom Grant said parishioners leaving his morning service at St. Andrew's United Reformed Church heard a shot and saw a woman fall to the ground opposite the church.

One parishioner tried to help the woman but was forced to run for cover when more shots were heard, Grant said.

The rampage was similar to the massacre of 16 people in the southern town of Hungerford on Aug. 19, 1987, by Michael Ryan who killed himself after being trapped by police.

The bloodbath shocked Britain, where most police are not armed. Britain's already strict gun control laws later were tightened to outlaw sawed-off shotguns, mortars and semiautomatic rifles like the one Ryan used.

Bangladesh Tornado Toll Passes 800

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DHAKA, Bangladesh — The death toll from the tornado that ripped through central Bangladesh passed 800 today when searchers found 14 bodies in the ruins of houses and two other people died of injuries, officials said.

They said the bodies were found in the district of Manikganj, 25 miles northwest of Dhaka, which bore the brunt of the storm.

At least two people critically injured by the tornado died in Dhaka's Medical College Hospital, officials at the Tornado Control Room said. They spoke on condition of anonymity.

The deaths increased the number of people killed to 802. At least 12,000 people were injured and 130,000 left homeless after the tornado raged through Manikganj on Wednesday night, sending people, houses, trees and electric poles flying.

Residents say the storm caused more than 1,000 deaths because 400 people officially listed as missing are feared killed.

Survivors face shortages of drinking water, food and medicines, rescue officials said.

"Diarrhea may spread in an epidemic form unless supply of pure drinking water improves," one official said on condition of anonymity. He said at least 100 people have been treated for diarrhea.

"Decomposing bodies lying in pools and ponds have polluted the water," said relief worker Mohanmad Nasim.

At least 300 wells have been drilled in Manikganj district to supply safe water and another 100 will be sunk in the next few days, officials said.

Meanwhile, Britain announced aid of $85,000 for tornado victims, the government-owned news agency Bangladesh Sangbad Sanstha reported. And Pakistan is sending a plane with relief supplies, it said.

The tornado, accompanied by hailstones and showers, came hours after President Hussain Muhammad Ershad led nationwide prayers for rains to ease a two-month-long drought.

The drought threatened to destroy half the 5.6 million ton spring crop in the ground, Agriculture Ministry officials said.

Opposition Expects To Lose Elections

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASUNCION, Paraguay — Opposition candidates say they expect voting irregularities to ensure a ruling party victory in today's elections but are taking part in hopes the vote heralds a peaceful transition to democracy.

Polls indicate that presidential candidate Gen. Andres Rodriguez of the ruling Colorado Party will receive at least 70 percent of the vote. He has run the country since deposing Gen. Alfredo Stroessner in a coup on Feb. 3.

"We are conscious that we are participating in elections that are marked by flaws, but we're doing it because we want a peaceful transition, not a violent one," the leading opposition candidate, Domingo Laino, said Sunday.

His party is the biggest and best organized after the Colorados and is projected to come in second in the voting.

Laino, a 53-year-old economist and former exile, says his Authentic Radical Liberal Party will withdraw from the political process if the election is not reasonably fair or if the new government tries to impose a "Stroessner system without Stroessner."

Stroessner, 76, seized power in a 1954 coup and brooked little opposition during his lengthy rule, arranging to be elected every five years. He was unseated on Feb. 3 and sent into Brazilian exile.

Sailors Washed Off Submarine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOKYO — Japanese and U.S. ships searched off southwestern Japan today for two U.S. sailors missing from a Navy submarine after a wave washed them overboard while they were standing watch, officials said.

A third sailor also washed overboard before dawn Sunday and spotted by a rescue plane and saved by his ship, the 2,145-ton Barbel, the U.S. Forces Media Liaison Office said in a statement.

The rescued sailor's condition was not given, and U.S. military spokesman Master Gunnery Sgt.

Jake Rodrigues said he had no further information.

"The three crew members were standing watch on the sail during surface operations in international waters when the accident occurred at 2:30 a.m.," the statement said.

Yoshikazu Nakamura of the Maritime Safety Agency's office in Kagoshima prefecture said there probably were numerous big waves at the time because a fog and strong-wind alert was in effect for the area.

The Navy statement said the submarine was off Japan's southernmost main island of Kyushu, about 650 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The League Of Women Voters Struggles Through New Era

By William Welch
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

the final debate between George Bush and Michael Dukakis in a dispute over format and details.

That move generated much sympathy around the country but renewed and intensified hostility toward the league among partisans of both parties.

Yet, the troubles facing the League of Women Voters run deeper.

It is in some ways a victim of the success and achievement of a generation of active, educated and assertive women — like the ones who hocked their jewels to pay the bills — and of the social change that has moved women away from volunteer work to jobs that pay.

"The woman who was the heart and soul of the league volunteer is now an investment banker," says Grant P. Thompson, the league's first male executive director.

To meet the changing social and financial demands, the organization's board of trustees agreed in January to a long-term refocusing of the league's efforts. Its top priorities now are public campaign financing and a project called "Advocate for the Voter," which aims at increasing voter registration and turnout.

The move essentially was a return to the sort of issues that concerned the league when it sprang from the women's suffrage movement in 1919.

"Our goals are the same, but the strategies to reach them are going to have to change," says Nancy M. Neuman, the league's national president. "We've got to accommodate people who have very busy and complicated lives, but who still want to be active and try to change things."

The league's strength is its 1,150 local organizations in communities in every state, where members monitor obscure government proceedings, promote voter registration and push league positions on a plethora of concerns.

Some have seen that wide range of issues as a problem.

"A blue million of 'em," former league president Dorothy Ridings says of the issues the league has tried to deal with: arms control, abortion, clean water, defense spending, child care, housing and tax reform to name a few.

The league describes its own positions as progressive. Some say they are liberal.

Membership in the still-predominately female organization reached a peak of about 150,000 in the mid-1970s and is now about 107,000.

Of all its problems and controversies, the biggest controversy by far was over the debates.

Mrs. G. Finds Nothing Amusing About Divorce Announcements

Dear Abby: With dismay and anger I read the samples you published of announcements some people sent out regarding divorces. You seemed to find them cute. However, since your opinion is important to so many people, I don't think you should endorse jokes made out of a tragedy such as divorce. You have said in your column that divorce is like a death in the family. What if you had received an announcement like this one from a woman who had been unhappily married and whose husband had just died:

"At last, floozies, booze and tobacco finally caught up with Marvin last Tuesday, when he slipped peacefully to his undeserved reward. You are invited to help me start spending his insurance money at a champagne celebration next June 31, at 6 p.m., 123 Swing Drive, Anywhere, USA."

Poor taste, isn't it? So are divorce announcements. At age 69, I am going through a divorce from my 72-year-old husband. I was a good and faithful wife. I never neglected my appearance, but he is going through a delayed midlife crisis and wants a divorce, and there is no way I can prevent it. (That's what "no fault" legislation did to us older women.)

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

I am devastated. I wish I could find one of those capsules that causes instant and painless death because I would be too chicken to shoot myself. (I'd probably miss.)

This letter to you is my announcement — my only one. I doubt if you will publish it, but I had to tell someone, and I can't think of anyone else. — Mrs. G. In L.A.

Dear Mrs. G.: If you "had to tell someone," I'm glad you thought of me. Unburdening one's self is cathartic, but you need much more help than anyone can give you in a letter.

Did you know there is a suicide prevention hotline in your city? Call "information" for that number, then speak to the person there. You will be surprised how understanding and caring that stranger on the telephone will be. Many trained volunteers who man suicide prevention hotlines giving encouragement to lonely, depressed callers were "callers" themselves one time — people who have "been there," helping people who think they can't face another long night. But somehow, with a little encouragement, they manage to hang in there. And they're glad they did. (Suicide is a permanent solution to temporary problem.) Please write again, Mrs. G.; that's what I'm here for.

Dear Abby: I have been married to "Jerry" for two and a half years. It's my first marriage and I feel like the luckiest woman in the world to be married to such a kind and loving man.

Jerry has two children, 7 and 9, by a previous marriage. They live with their mother in a different state, but we have them for Christmas vacations and a month in the summer. They're great kids.

Now the problem: When they come for Christmas, they never have a gift for their father, not even a card. They never remember him on Father's Day or his birthday, either. I know it's not their fault; their mother should help them select a gift — even a card they signed would mean so much to Jerry.

I am not close to his ex-wife, and I am reluctant to write her a letter (or call her) to make this suggestion. She might think I'm being critical of her or putting her down, but all I want is for Jerry to be remembered on those special days. Any ideas? — Only A Stepmom

Dear Stepmom: The next time the children visit, take them aside and tell them how much it would mean to their father to be remembered on his birthday, Christmas and Father's Day.

"Help" the children select cards or gifts, address the envelopes, affix the postage, and if you must mail these remembrances, do that too.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 6940, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Teacher Of Year Named

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Sandra Davis Rogers, a teacher for grades one through three at China Grove Elementary School in Rowan County, has been named North Carolina's teacher of the year, state Superintendent Bob Etheridge announced Monday.

"The energy, enthusiasm and expertise Sandra Rogers bring to teaching truly qualify her to represent the best of teaching and to be North Carolina's teacher of the year," Etheridge said.

Ms. Rogers, a native of Alabama, comes from a family of teachers.

"My mom, two aunts and most of their friends in my hometown were teachers," she said. "My sister, Marcia, and I played school constantly, and even though she was younger, I always had to fight to be the teacher. What a pleasure it was to pass out papers, to write on the chalkboard and to read to the students — neighborhood friends, cousins, dolls and assorted dogs and cats."

Ms. Rogers and other teachers at China Grove Elementary have developed an innovative classroom organized for students who are academically gifted, learning disabled, emotionally handicapped, mentally handicapped or hearing impaired to learn in the same classroom with peers who are considered average for their grade level.

Ms. Rogers has provided leadership in China Grove's "Writing to Read" program, is supervisor of student teachers and is a part-time instructor in the early childhood department of Rowan-Cabarrus Community College.

Ms. Rogers, who will represent North Carolina in the national teacher of the year competition, succeeds Merv Sessoms, a Haywood County teacher.

make it difficult to get strawberries picked. I think that's as much as part of people not willing to get their feet wet as anything," he said.

"I think we've seen some heavy leeching rains which carry nutrients down through the soil profile," Uzzell said. There also have been packing rains that seal the surface of the soil and makes it difficult for ceilings to emerge.

The recharging of the ground water and being able to detect low places in fields and lawns may be seen as positive effects of the rain, Uzzell said.

Forecasters call for scattered showers throughout the day with high temperatures ranging from the high 70s to mid 80s. Low temperatures will be in the 60s.

Car Bombing

TOKYO (AP) — A radical leftist group has claimed responsibility for a bombing that destroyed three cars and three motorcycles on the eve of the late Emperor Hirohito's birthday, Kyodo News Service reported.

Kyodo said the Chukakuha (Middle Core Faction) sent it a letter declaring that the bombing in a parking lot of a dormitory for Imperial Household Agency employees was to protest the turning of the birthday, April 29, into a "memorial day" for Hirohito.

No one was injured by the bomb, which had been placed in one of the cars.

Three other bomb or firebomb attacks occurred in Tokyo and nearby cities at about the same time Friday, also with no injuries reported.

After the emperor's death on Jan. 7, at age 87, the government kept his birthday as an official holiday but renamed it "Greenery Day."

Arthur
 A funeral service for Mr. Hubert Lee "Butch" Arthur will be conducted Wednesday at 1 p.m. at Phillips Brothers Mortuary Chapel by the Rev. David Hammond. Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery.

Pilots will be able to tune in to the new weather station on their aviation band radio, Turcotte said, and the station will include a telephone to provide instant weather information to anyone around the country.

The cost of the station is estimated at $135,000, with the FAA providing $121,000 and the state and local governments providing nearly all the balance.

Tribute Held For Hoffman

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Actress Whoopi Goldberg and LSD guru Timothy Leary led a tribute to 1960s radical Abbie Hoffman, remembering him as a tireless activist whose outrageous style helped turn public opinion against the Vietnam War.

Hoffman, 52, committed suicide April 12 at his Pennsylvania home, coroner's officials said.

More than 1,000 people gathered at the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles for Sunday's memorial. Others in attendance included singer Jackson Browne, "Platoon" director Oliver Stone and Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

Miss Goldberg, who is often associated with social activism, said Hoffman taught her "I can be part of the revolution without having to hate, without having to hurt people and maim them."

"God bless him," Miss Goldberg said. "I'm going to keep him alive in my heart."

Hoffman founded the radical Yippie movement in the 1960s and was a defendant in the Chicago Seven trial, following violent clashes between protesters and police outside the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Car Exports

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A small four-door sedan nicknamed the "Daewoo Racer" is being exported to Czechoslovakia, the first Korean-made automobile to be sold to a East European country, officials said today.

Daewoo Motor Co. said the first 494 of 3,000 cars to be exported will be shipped aboard a Soviet Union carrier to the eastern Soviet port of Vostochniy and then to Czechoslovakia via the trans-Siberian railway.

The car trade is part of a barter agreement under which Czechoslovakia will pay for the cars and other goods, including electronics, with crude oil from Libya, a spokesman for the company said.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — The Disney-MGM Studios theme park opened to the public today with a ceremony complete, with comedian Bob Hope and a shower of gifts for the first family to enter the $400 million attraction.

"It's overwhelming. We never expected anything like this," said Allan Gutierrez of York, Pa., who camped outside the turnstiles with his family since 2 a.m., six hours before the gates opened.

Gutierrez, his wife, two teen-age daughters and father-in-law were honored by Hope and Disney Chairman Michael Eisner at an outdoor stage at the end of re-created Hollywood Boulevard and in front of the Chinese Theater.

Costumed performers sang and danced, several hundred white doves were released overhead and fireworks lit up the cloudy skies as the Gutierrez family was introduced to opening-day visitors.

There were no official estimates of the crowd, but Disney had anticipated that by the end of the day today, at least 15,000 people would visit the attraction blending movie and TV production with a backstage tour and other activities for the public.

The theme of the park is the golden age of Hollywood in the 1930s and 1940s. It is Walt Disney World's third major attraction, after the original Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center nearby.

Hope quipped that this was "the largest theme park run by actors and cartoon characters — unless you want to count Washington, D.C."

Hoch Tops Wrenn On 5th Playoff Hole

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — Scott Hoch erased some of the pain of his Masters loss by winning the Las Vegas Invitational in a playoff. He'd also like to ease the pain of a lot of children who've never heard of him.

Hoch, who lost the Masters with a missed two-foot playoff putt, made three short putts to prolong a sudden-death playoff against Robert Wrenn, eventually winning with an eight-footer for birdie on the fifth extra hole.

"It still hurts," he said of the one that got away three weeks ago, "but this helps soothe the pain a little."

Then Hoch announced he would donate $100,000 of his $225,000 first-place check to the Arnold Palmer Children's Hospital in Orlando, Fla.

He said he and wife Sally "saw the need" three years ago when their son, Cameron, went into an affiliated hospital in Orlando for tests.

"We thought it was bone cancer. But he came out of it OK. It was a bone disease that could be treated," Hoch said. "Ever since, my wife has been after me to donate something to the hospital. I kept putting it off and putting it off."

"Instead of just sending a small check, I wanted to wait until I won and then donate a large amount," Hoch said. "There were many times today when I didn't think I'd have the chance to do it."

Hoch, who said his name "doesn't rhyme with 'choke' any more," had to birdie the 90th hole, the last in regulation play in the five-day event, to gain a spot in the playoff. He did just that, hitting a high, soft three-iron to the water-guarded green and two-putting for birdie.

Then he had to get it up and down on the first three playoff holes, one-putting for par from 2-4 feet each time. He was equal to that, too.

The fourth extra hole was halved in birdies and Hoch acquired his fourth career victory and first in five years on the fifth hole of sudden death.

"I didn't feel as confident here as I did at Augusta," Hoch said. "Augusta gave me confidence. All the guys were falling back and I didn't fold until the end."

This time he didn't fold at all.

Hoch and Wrenn came out of a five-way tie for the lead with their 90th-hole birdies, finishing regulation play at 336, 24 under par.

Hoch played the last 18 at the Las Vegas Country Club in 70 and Wrenn closed up with a bogey-free 66 that included birdies on his first four holes. His runner-up finish was worth $135,000 from the total purse of $1.25 million.

Craig Stadler and Dr. Gil Morgan shot 67s and missed the playoff by a single stroke at 337.

L.A. In Quick Lead Lakers In A Hurry To Win Series

By Bill Barnard
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Since the NBA expanded its playoffs to 16 teams in 1984, the Los Angeles Lakers haven't lost a first-round game. But even with a 2-0 lead over Portland, they still have a sense of urgency.

"You want to win as quickly as you can, just get it over with," Magic Johnson said before the Lakers left for Oregon and Game 3 on Wednesday night. "You can look around and see that some people are fighting for their lives."

Johnson had 35 points, 12 assists, eight rebounds and five steals as the Lakers defeated the Trail Blazers 113-105 Sunday in the second game of the best-of-5 series. Los Angeles is now 17-0 in first-round games since the 16-team format was adopted.

"They just make the plays they need to time and time again," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "We haven't been able to get our game going. We get impatient and rush our shots and that's when they capitalize. They are so good and they really turn up the intensity once the playoffs start."

In other games Sunday, Detroit took a 2-0 lead over Boston with a 102-95 victory, Seattle beat Houston 109-97 for a 2-0 advantage in that series, Cleveland defeated Chicago 96-88 for a two-game split and Phoenix pulled ahead of Denver 2-0 with a 132-114 decision.

In Tuesday's games, it's New York at Philadelphia, Detroit at Boston, Atlanta at Milwaukee, Phoenix at Denver and Utah at Golden State.

On Wednesday, it's Cleveland at Chicago, Seattle at Houston and the Lakers at Portland.

New York and Golden State, in addition to the Lakers, Seattle and Phoenix, own 2-0 advantages. The other three series are tied 1-1.

The Lakers, seeking to become the first team to win three straight NBA championships since the Celtics won their eighth in a row in 1966, didn't trail after taking a 35-23 lead at the end of the first quarter.

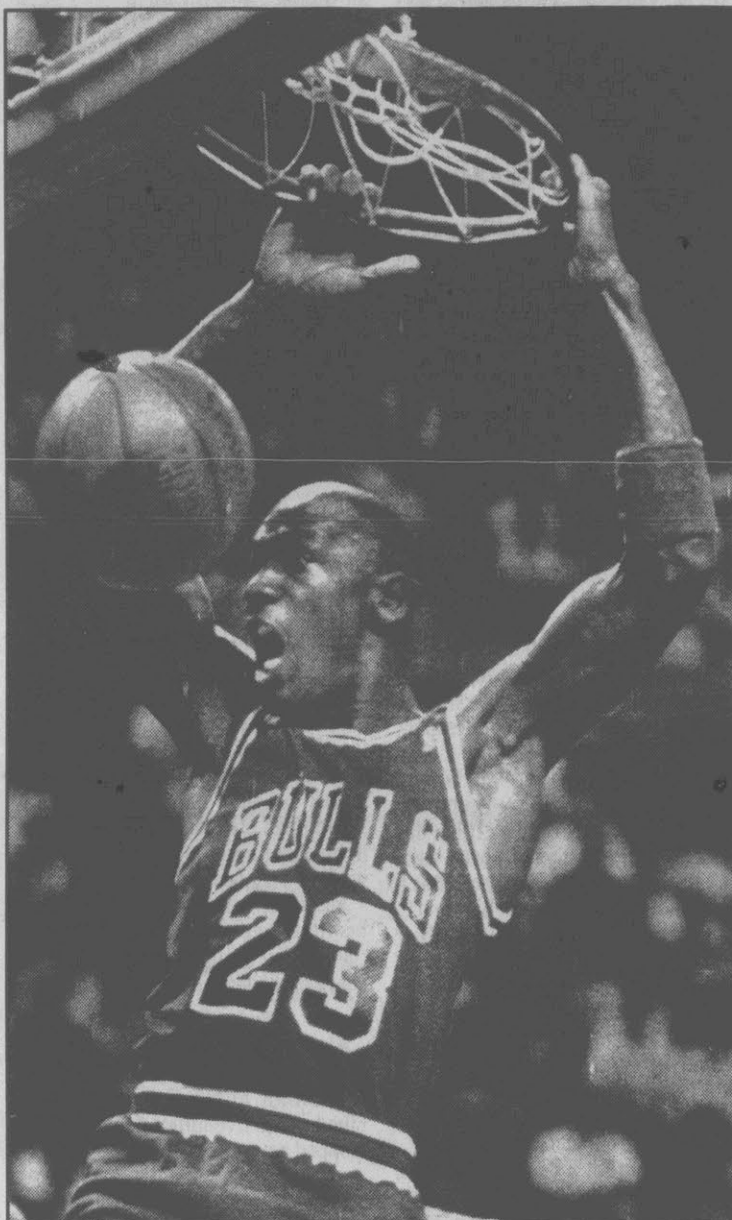

Johnson kept Los Angeles safely in front by hitting four of eight 3-point attempts.

"Over the years I shot it only because the shot clock was running down," Johnson said. "This year I'm just looking to shoot it. The perception of me is that I can't shoot from outside, but now I feel confident that I can make them from out there. If it's open, I'm going to take it."

The Trail Blazers lost by 20 points in the first game, so Adelman adjusted by starting a smaller, quicker lineup in the second game. He used 6-foot-4 Danny Young instead of 6-11 Caldwell Jones, and shifted shoot guard Clyde Drexler to small forward.

But Drexler was called for three fouls in the first 3½ minutes trying to guard forwards A.C. Green and

Isiah Is Going Lefty Injury Changes Thomas' Game

By Hal Bock
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Imagine for a moment doing everything on your job left-handed — signing papers, turning a screwdriver, everything.

Then one day, all of a sudden, you can't do that anymore. From now on, you have to do it right-handed. And what's more, if you try to go back to your old style of doing things, somebody will belt you in the hand, as a gentle little reminder that you can't go back to the way you'd like to do things.

That is the dilemma of Isiah Thomas, wearing a glove on his broken left hand and trying for the first time in his life to take care of his basketball business on the right side, instead of the left.

You think it's easy? You try making the switch sometime.

"I like to go left," Thomas said, holding a bag of ice on the bad hand. "I've had to change my game totally."

Going right instead, the Detroit's quicksilver guard scored a game-high 26 points and had eight assists Sunday as the Pistons beat Boston 102-95 for a stranglehold 2-0 lead in their best-of-5 NBA first-round playoff series.

It was about as easy for him as suddenly switching from using one hand all your life to the other would be for you.

entertainer Michael Jackson, looked like he'd been going right forever. There was one sequence when he grabbed a rebound and went coast to coast, from one end of the floor to other, for the basket. As he arrived in the paint for the layup, he took a smack on the wrist — the bad one, of course — from Robert Parish.

"Did you ever have a broken hand?" Thomas asked, flexing his hand and wincing just a bit. "Well, then you know what it's like."

Thomas broke a bone in the back of his left hand when it somehow collided with Bill Cartwright of Chicago in a little misunderstanding on April 7. He was fined $5,000 and suspended

Alberto Mancini celebrates win over Boris Becker Sunday

Mancini Outduels Becker For Win Unknown Argentine Claims Monte Carlo Open After Four-Hour Duel

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — One might suspect Alberto Mancini to be a tennis force on clay, after the way he demolished Mats Wilander. But Boris Becker, too?

The two battled for more than four hours in sun and shadows on the Riviera before Mancini prevailed in four sets in the first major clay court tennis tournament of the season, the $607,500 Monte Carlo Open.

And with the French Open coming up in four weeks, both players showed they may be contenders for the top clay court title.

Becker, the two-time Wimbledon champion and noted for his power game on slick grass, made the first clay court final of his pro career. He battled the Argentine almost on even terms throughout the afternoon and the early evening at the Monte Carlo Country Club's clay courts.

Although Mancini won 7-5, 2-6, 7-6 (7-4), 7-5, Becker was very much in the contest, serving for the third and fourth sets. He showed a patience on the slow, red clay, that has been missing the previous years.

"He played the important points well. I was playing against a player with a great future," Becker said of Mancini. "But if I keep playing like I did, I could also have a great future. I could also be dangerous on clay."

"Before I was able to put one or two good matches together on clay. Now the big difference is that I put five good matches in a row and this week was the proof I could do it. I beat four good players and had a chance to beat another who beat Wilander 6-0 and 6-3."

Mancini, in making the second pro final of his career, whipped Wilander, the No. 2 player in the world and the winner of three Grand Slams last year, easily in the semis.

"To beat Wilander and Becker on center court in Monte Carlo ... it's like a dream," Mancini said.

The title earned Mancini, who turns 20 this month, $122,900. That's about $32,000 short of what he had earned in his entire pro career prior to Monte Carlo. Becker, in his 29th Grand Prix final, picked up $61,450.

Both Mancini and Becker breezed into the final without losing a set. Becker lost just 21 games in four matches prior to the final as he was able to combine a good serve, as usual, with a baseline patience that enabled him to beat some good clay court players, such as another Argentine, Guillermo Perez-Roldan.

But Becker's good serve deserted him in the final when he counted on it to battle Mancini's effective forehand and backhand.

"Sure I didn't serve great. When I served for the set twice I could have served better," Becker said.

"I put him the ball into play and moved him around. I think the key was that he wasn't getting his first serve in and that allowed me to get into the point," Mancini said.

Hornets Looking To Future Charlotte Established A-Base In First Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — With one season behind them, building is now the primary item on the minds of Charlotte Hornets general manager Carl Scheer and head coach Dick Harter.

"I think you try to keep your foundation solid, and that's not easy," Harter said. "You try to keep things together and upgrade the talent you have."

"I think within five or six years we can be a good basketball team and a team that has a chance at being a playoff team," he said. "It's a long climb."

Scheer cautioned that the pace of improvement may slow down after a first year which saw the Hornets break attendance records and win 20 games.

"Starting with the environment and the fans, I knew we would be successful, but I never believed we would have the kind of intense support demonstrated by our fans throughout the season," he said.

"I didn't set goals of 20 wins or pick a magic number, but we did reach levels of success on the floor that made me believe we have the foundation for a very successful franchise," he said. "We can now look forward to future success."

"I'm not suggesting to you in any way we don't have a lot of work to do," he said. "We should ask our people to understand this is a growing process and success may not come as rapidly and dramatically as they did this year."

Not even George Shinn, a confirmed optimist who built a multimillion-dollar business empire after graduating last in his high school class, could envision how the Hornets' first NBA season would turn out.

"I am a goal-setter, but I always put my goals higher than I can reach so it will give me something higher to shoot for," said Shinn, the expansion team's majority owner.

"My goal at the start of this year was to win 20 games and lead the league in attendance. Nobody even dreamed we had a chance at either of those. ... The fact we have reached both of those goals has exceeded all my expectations."

On the court, the Hornets won 20 games while losing 62. But by drawing an expansion-record 950,064 fans in 41 home dates, the Hornets led the NBA in attendance to become the first expansion city ever to lead a major professional sport in attendance its first season.

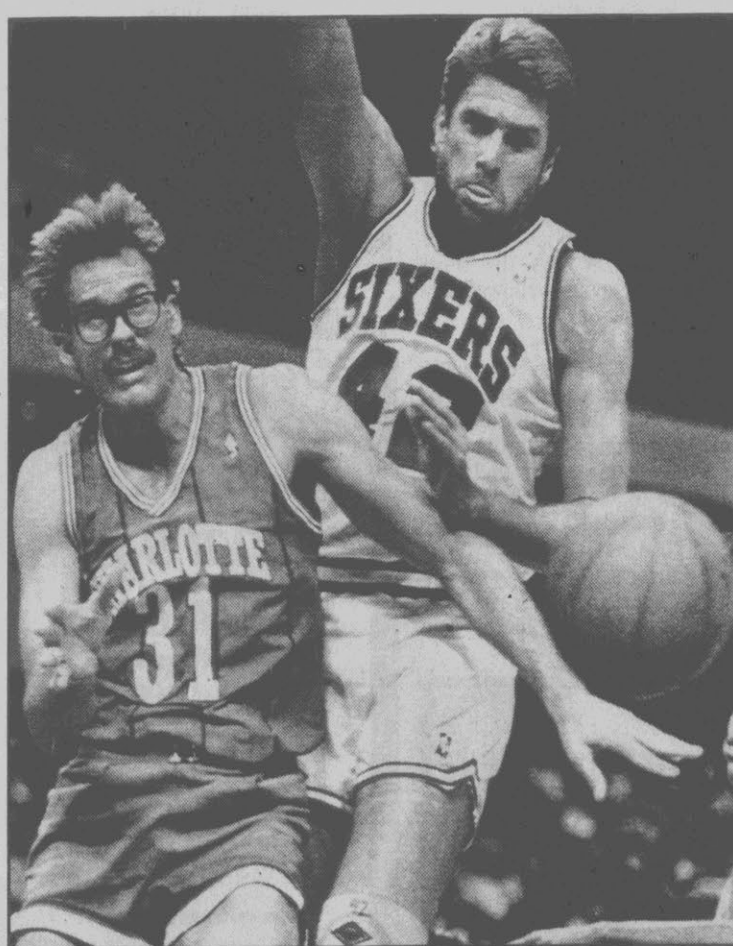

Strong indications already point to the possibility that the 23,388-seat Charlotte Coliseum will be sold out for each of the team's 41 home games next season.

How long will the honeymoon between the Hornets and the community last?

"I have either been married or dating the same girl for almost 25 years, and to me, the honeymoon has never ended," Shinn said. "As long as you try your best to keep the honeymoon going, it will."

"I'm going to keep trying. I want to make sure we have a team that is going to hustle and be aggressive. We are going to continue to do everything in a quality way as we slowly build this team."

Hillin Jr. Takes GM Parts Victory

NAZARETH, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Hillin Jr. became the seventh different winner in as many Busch Grand National series races this season, taking Sunday's crash-filled GM Parts 300 at Pennsylvania International Raceway.

Hillin moved into the lead 19 laps from the end of the 300-lap event when fellow NASCAR Winston Cup regular Michael Waltrip had a fuel pickup problem and made an unscheduled pit stop after building a lead of nearly 11 seconds on the one-mile distorted oval.

It was the second Grand National victory for Hillin, who averaged 81.596 mph in the race slowed by 13 caution flags for a total of 74 laps.

Twelve of the caution flags came before lap 181 and 114 of the last 120 laps were run under the green flag, including the final 56.

After Waltrip's late stop, Hillin was able to cruise to the finish, beating second-place Tommy Ellis by 9.5 seconds.

Waltrip, the younger brother of three-time Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip, came back to finish third, followed by unheralded Tom Peck and Davey Allison.

There were numerous crashes and incidents during the 3-hour, 40-minute, 36-second event, but no injuries were reported.

One multicar crash in the early going took out both three-time Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt and 1988 NASCAR runnerup Rusty Wallace, who were both among the leaders.

Earnhardt clipped Allison while trying to pass for sixth place, slid into a second car and then was hit hard by Wallace.

Tryouts for Pitt County's American Legion baseball team will take place May 7 and 14 at 6 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium, officials announced.

The tryouts are open to any interested players from D.H. Conley, Rose, Washington and Ayden-Grifton high schools. Interested parties must bring proof of age and they can not turn 18 before Aug. 1.

Knee Injury Sidelines Brett For 1 Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — First baseman George Brett will be sidelined at least a month with a partially torn ligament in his right knee, the Kansas City Royals said Sunday.

"There will be no surgery, and that's good news," Manager John Wathan said. "They think it will heal just fine. He can't do anything for two weeks, and then he'll start rehabilitation. We're thinking he'll be out a minimum of four weeks and probably a maximum of six."

Brett, 35, underwent an MRI (magnetic resonance imaging) on Sunday.

An 11-time All-Star, he was put on the 21-day disabled list after suffering the injury in the first inning Saturday night against Milwaukee. After fielding a single in shallow right field, he turned to throw back to the infield and caught a spike in the artificial turf.

A two-time American League batting champion, his .390 average in 1980 is the highest in the major leagues since Ted Williams hit .407 in 1941. He was hitting .253 this year.

Luis de los Santos was recalled from Omaha, where he was hitting .342 with 14 RBIs.

Slaughter Fights With Chisox Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — A brief fight between Yankee catcher Don Slaught and White Sox first base coach Terry Bezington after the seventh inning of Saturday night's rain-delayed game between New York and Chicago cleared both benches and led to Bezington's ejection.

Slaught led off the Yankees' seventh with an attempted bunt that rolled foul, and apparently Slaught's bunt angered Bezington, and the two exchanged words as the teams changed sides after the inning. New York was leading 7-2 at the time of the bunt.

Slaught dove into Bezington behind home plate, and players from both benches rushed onto the field with the White Sox' Jeff Shearer diving on top of Slaught, and shortstop Ozzie Guillen attempting to pull Slaught off of the coach.

Bezington, a 32-year-old rookie major league coach, who had managed eight years in the minor leagues, was replaced by Walt Hrinik at first base when the White Sox batted in the eighth.

Foreman Wins Again; Still Undefeated

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — George Foreman stopped J.B. Williamson with a flurry of punches in the fifth round Sunday to remain undefeated in his comeback bid, and the 40-year-old immediately challenged heavyweight champion Mike Tyson.

Foreman, former heavyweight world champion, improved his overall record to 61-2. He is 17-0 since coming out of retirement two years ago.

Foreman, 255½ pounds, used a considerable size advantage to keep pressure on his opponent. Williamson, 23-5, had weighed in for the heavyweight bout at 200½.

Referee Chris Jordan stopped the fight at 1:57 of the fifth round, with Foreman pounding Williamson with combinations.

Magrane Aids In 4-3 Cardinal Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

First, Joe Magrane got mad and then he got better.

Magrane came off the disabled list before St. Louis played Los Angeles Sunday, and went out and allowed six hits in six innings as the Cardinals beat the Dodgers 4-3 to complete a three-game sweep.

The left-hander got off to shaky start in the first inning as he balked home a run.

Magrane, 2-2, hit Mike Marshall with a pitch with two outs and Eddie Murray and Rick Dempsey followed with singles to load the bases. Marshall then scored on the balk.

"I couldn't have it back, but it didn't lessen my intensity level at all," Magrane said. "That calamity had been started with two outs. That's the type of thing that as a pitcher make you mad."

Magrane then settled down and allowed only four singles the next five innings, using a variety of curves and changeups.

"I think that's what kept me in the ballgame, because my fastball didn't have its usual movement on it," Magrane said. "I was able to keep myself in the game by not only working around in the strike zone but also throwing my curve ball and my changeups — more changeups than normal."

Magrane was placed on the disabled list April 15 because of colitis.

Reds 5, Phillies 3
Eric Davis hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning to lift Cincinnati past Philadelphia at Veterans Stadium.

Pinch-hitter Dave Collins led off the inning with a walk off Larry McWilliams, 1-1. Steve Bedrosian relieved, and two outs later, Davis homered on a 3-2 pitch over the right-field wall. It was the third game-winning homer allowed by Bedrosian this season.

Expos 9, Braves 6
Otis Nixon hit a three-run double and Spike Owen had his first NL home run as Montreal defeated Atlanta at Olympic Stadium to complete a three-game sweep and send the Braves to their sixth straight defeat.

Yanks Trade Lieter For Barfield

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees, seeking power, traded away pitching to acquire right fielder Jesse Barfield from the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Yankees sent left-hander Al Leiter, a hard-throwing prospect considered untouchable two years ago, to the Blue Jays.

"The deal was made to get an everyday player and a guy who's going to be a threat in our lineup," Yankees vice president Syd Thrift said. "We're not down on Leiter. We think he has fine ability and can be a top pitcher in this league."

It was the first trade by Toronto general manager Pat Gillick since Aug. 31, 1987, when the Blue Jays sent pitchers Jose Mesa and Oswald Peraza to Baltimore for left-hander Mike Flanagan.

"This really wasn't the trade I wanted to make," Gillick said. "But I'd been talking to other teams since Tuesday and felt we had to move one of the outfielders. Leiter is a good young pitcher who will help us."

Gillick was forced into making a move by Jeff Musselman's enrollment in an alcohol-abuse program on Friday and the ineffectiveness of Duane Ward and Todd Stottlemyre.

Barfield had his best season in 1986 when he hit .289 with a league-leading 40 home runs and 108 RBIs.

After hitting 28 homers in 1987,

Barfield slumped to 18 last season with 56 RBIs.

Barfield, 29, is hitting .200 in 21 games with 11 RBIs. In his eight-year career, Barfield has 179 homers with 527 RBIs.

"It's a shock," Barfield said in Anaheim, Calif., where the Blue Jays played the Angels on Sunday. "After everything that's been said for two years, it still is (a shock). I'm most upset with the way it came down, being platooned this year and having only 80 at-bats. I'm disappointed that it ended this way."

Barfield will make $1.3 million this season and is in the final year of a three-year, $4.2 million contract. He can be a free agent at the end of this season.

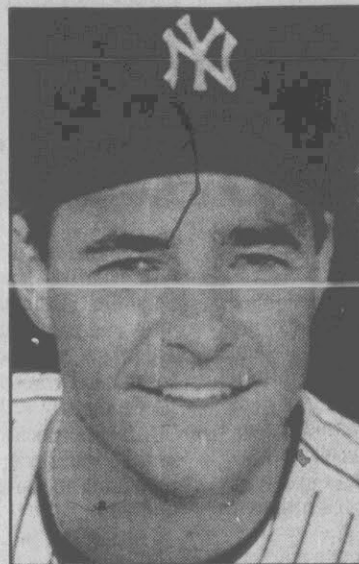

Thrift said he had not discussed a contract with Barfield and his agent.

The Yankees have been seeking some power in their lineup since right fielder Dave Winfield was sidelined after undergoing surgery for a herniated disk.

"We needed power and consistency, which we haven't had this season," Yankees manager Dallas Green said. "Barfield has put up consistent RBI and home run numbers, and that's what we needed."

The Yankees have also been seeking someone to bat behind Don Mattingly in the lineup.

"He's a thumper," Mattingly said. "He's a real long-ball threat. I'll bet

Al Leiter

you he has as many home runs alone as we do as a team. (Barfield has five and the Yankees have eight)."

Leiter is 1-2 with a 6.08 ERA in four starts.

"It was tough," said Leiter, who learned of the trade during the game while sitting on the bench. "It would've been easier if I was 30 years old and had been through a couple of trades."

"I was a little down, but I feel OK now. It's just that I have most of my friends here and I live so close to Yankee Stadium. But you go out and do the same thing no matter what uniform you wear. It's a shame it happened, really. There is a special feeling being a Yankee."

Leiter, 23, is in his third major league season and has allowed 23 hits and 20 runs, 18 earned, in 26 2-3 innings this season. He has struck out 22 and walked 21.

"Any time I can get a regular player for a pitcher, I'll do it," Thrift said. "Barfield is not only a good hitter, but he's a fine right fielder."

Ballard Continues Roll As O's Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland's Dave Stewart and Baltimore's Jeff Ballard lead the American League with 5-0 records — a fact that amazes even Ballard.

"I'm as surprised as anyone by my record," he said Sunday after pitching the Baltimore Orioles past the Seattle Mariners 4-3.

Ballard is the first pitcher in Orioles' history to win five games in April. The 25-year-old left-hander allowed seven hits and three runs against Seattle before Mark Williamson finished for his fourth save as the Orioles, who lost their first 21 games last season, finished April with 12-12 mark and a share of first place in the AL East.

"I felt really good, so when I was behind after three innings, it just didn't seem right," Ballard said. "I figured that sometime, someone would hit one out and help me."

Cal Ripken hit a one-out double in the eighth off Mike Jackson and Steve Trout, 2-2, relieved. After Larry Sheets lined out to shortstop, Mickey Tettleton hit a two-run home run, his fifth homer this season.

"I made a mistake on a fastball that I maybe should have wasted instead of challenging him," Trout said.

Rangers 2, Red Sox 1

In their first battle, 42-year-old Nolan Ryan of Alvin, Texas, beat 26-year-old Roger Clemens of Katy, 40 miles away.

Boston took the lead in the first when Ryan threw a wild pitch with a runner at third. But the Rangers won it when Rafael Palmeiro hit a two-run homer off the right-field foul pole in the bottom of the eighth.

Ryan, 3-1, allowed three hits in eight innings and struck out 11, the 184th time in his career he struck out 10 or more. His 49 strikeouts in 35 innings lead the major leagues.

Yankees 5, White Sox 2

Don Slaught hit a three-run, first-inning double and John Candelaria and Lance McCullers combined on a four-hitter as New York won its fourth straight.

Candelaria, 3-2, allowed three hits, struck out four and walked one in 5 1-3 innings. He left with discomfort in his right knee, which the club said was not serious.

McCullers pitched 3 2-3 innings for his first save as the Yankees evened their record at 12-12, good for a share of the lead in the AL East.

Twins 2, Indians 1

Al Newman's run-scoring single snapped a seventh-inning tie and Roy Smith and Jeff Reardon combined on a five-hitter as Minnesota stopped a seven-game losing streak.

Greg Gagne led off the seventh with a single off Bud Black, 1-4. One out later, Dan Gladden singled and Gagne and Gladden pulled off a double steal. Newman then lined his single to left and Gagne scored easily. Gladden was thrown out at home plate by left fielder Oddibe McDowell.

Smith, 2-1, allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings, striking out a career-high seven. Reardon got the last four outs for his third save.

Black gave up 11 hits in his first complete game in 33 starts since Oct. 2, 1985, against California while he was with Kansas City.

Royals 2, Brewers 0

Floyd Bannister pitched three-hit ball for 8 1-3 innings, leading Kansas

City to a three-game sweep. The Royals are 16-9, a club record for April victories, and gave won eight of their last nine.

Bannister, 3-0, was 0-3 against the Brewers last year and is 6-11 for his career. Steve Farr got the last two outs for his fifth save.

Mike Birkbeck, 0-2, allowed nine hits over eight innings, striking out three in his first complete game since May 17, 1987, also against Kansas City. Those are his only complete games in 41 major-league starts.

Angels 1, Blue Jays 0

Lance Parrish doubled with two outs in the 11th inning to score Johnny Ray from second base, giving California its fifth consecutive victory.

Ray doubled with one out off Tom Henke, 1-3, who came in to start the inning. Parrish then lined his hit into the left-field corner.

Bob McClure, 1-0, pitched a hitless 11th after Mike Witt struck out seven and allowed seven hits in 10 innings.

Tigers 7, Athletics 2

Lou Whitaker hit a three-run homer as Detroit snapped a four-game losing streak.

Frank Tanana, 2-3, allowed seven hits in 7 2-3 innings, striking out five for his second straight victory after 11 winless starts.

Guillermo Hernandez finished with one-hit relief for his fifth save.

Storm Davis, 2-2, gave up six hits in 1 1-3 innings, the earliest exit for an Oakland starter since Steve Ontiveros lasted 1 1-3 innings against California on Aug. 16, 1987. The Athletics lost for just the second time in 12 games.

Call once. And for all.

NBA Playoffs ...

James Worthy, then sat out the rest of the first quarter.

"When you're playing against the world champs, it's not time to experiment," said Drexler, who finished with 28 points. Terry Porter and Jerome Kersey had 21 each for the Trail Blazers.

After the Lakers led by 10 at halftime, the Trail Blazers closed the gap to 69-62 with 6:42 left in the third period, but the Lakers went on to take an 86-76 advantage into the final period.

The Lakers quickly stretched their lead to 98-78, then coasted.

Pistons 102, Celtics 95

Detroit, which held Boston to 10 points in the second quarter in Game 1, outscored the Celtics 21-13 in the fourth period for a 2-0 lead.

Boston led by as many as nine points in the third quarter and started the fourth period with an 82-81 lead. But a 3-pointer by Mark Aguirre gave Detroit an 88-86 lead with 9:50 remaining and the Pistons never relinquished it.

Isiah Thomas led Detroit with 26 points and Aguirre added 21. Robert Parish had 25, Reggie Lewis 21 and Brian Shaw 20 for the Celtics.

Thomas said he had to prove to Coach Chuck Daly that he was suffering no ill effects since breaking a bone in his left hand in a fight with Chicago's Bill Cartwright on April 7.

"I sensed that Chuck didn't have the confidence in me that he normally does," Thomas said. "So I wanted to show him that I could still play and be effective. This is, I'm sure, the best I've played since the injury. It's a gratifying win."

Cavaliers 96, Bulls 88

Cleveland pulled even with Chicago as Ron Harper scored 31 points and Larry Nance had eight during a 13-6 third-quarter rally.

Harper scored 21 points in the first half, a team playoff record, and his layup put the Cavaliers ahead 49-47 with two seconds left.

Chicago, which was 0-6 against Cleveland during the regular season before winning Friday's playoff opener, got two baskets from Michael Jordan and a Craig Hodges' 3-pointer to go up 62-59 with five minutes left in the third quarter.

But John Williams hit a 15-footer to start Cleveland's decisive run, and Nance finished it with a rebound dunk with 30 seconds left in the period, giving the Cavaliers a 72-68 lead.

Darnell Valentine's three-point play opening the fourth quarter made it 75-68, and the Cavaliers led by at least five the rest of the way.

Jordan finished with 30 points for the Bulls.

SuperSonics 109, Rockets 97
Seattle overcame Akeem Olatunji's 30-point, 12-rebound, 10-dunk performance as Alton Lister and Xavier McDaniel each scored 20 points.

With Lister scoring eight points in the last quarter, the SuperSonics broke away after leading 75-73 going into the period. Seattle outscored the Rockets 34-24 in the final 12 minutes.

Sedale Threatt came off the bench in relief of Nate McMillan to spark the Sonics at point guard in the fourth quarter. Threatt had four free throws and three assists in the period and finished with 16 points.

Michael Cage, benched in the last 10 games of the regular season when the Sonics went to McDaniel as a starting forward, added 16 points on 7-for-8 shooting.

Suns 132, Nuggets 114

Phoenix, which blew a 14-point fourth-quarter lead on Friday before winning by one, had an easier time in its second game against Denver.

Kevin Johnson scored 34 points, Tom Chambers 24 and Eddie Johnson 21 for the Suns, who pulled ahead to stay with an 8-0 run late in the first period that gave them a 30-24 lead.

Phoenix extended its edge to 42-27 with a 10-0 run behind Chambers' six points, and Kevin Johnson had five points and Eddie Johnson four in a 15-4 spurt that gave the Suns a 65-41 lead 2:15 before halftime. The Nuggets got no closer than 11 in the second half.

Phoenix stayed safely in front although Denver got 36 points from Alex English and a playoff record-tying six 3-point field goals by Michael Adams, who had 25 points and 12 rebounds.

for two games for the misdemeanor.

That was light punishment compared to the task ahead of Thomas. Much tougher has been flip-flopping his game around from the left side to the right and driving to the basket where unfriendly tall people keep banging the bad hand.

"It got whacked a couple of times the other night," he said. "Sometimes I worry about it. I try not to, but I'd be lying if I told you I don't worry about it."

He wore extra padding on the glove Sunday but it hardly affected his game. He looked completely comfortable in a basketball sense. How he felt was another matter.

Thomas, who was celebrating his 28th birthday Sunday, knows the difference. "It hurts," he said. "There are some things I can do normally that I can't do now."

He did more than enough as far as Boston coach Jimmy Rodgers was concerned.

"It was Isiah Thomas out there," he said. "He put together a string of great plays. He made some strong plays."

One-handed, too.

Thomas came into the game as a question mark. He was almost no factor in Detroit's 10-point victory over Larry Bird-less Boston in the opener, scoring just seven points in 37 minutes, although he did manage 10 assists.

But on Sunday, he seemed more comfortable with the adjustment, and picked up his teammates, after Detroit fell nine points back in the third quarter.

"I kept thinking to myself, 'I don't want to lose, I don't want to lose.' I told myself, 'Do anything in your power, but don't lose.'"

A loss would have eliminated the home-court advantage that Detroit worked so hard to earn with the best record in the league this season. And Thomas simply would not let that happen.

He played 39 minutes, more than any other Piston, and he was in the middle of a stifling defense that turned the game Detroit's way. Boston managed just 13 points in the fourth quarter, no field goals in the last seven minutes and missed its last 11 shots.

"We worked a little harder in the fourth quarter," Thomas said. "From the right side and the left."

Geiberger, Henning Win Seniors Event Postlewait's Team Effort Good Enough For Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN, Texas — Even with his partner in the trees, Al Geiberger was confident.

Having lost their lead on the front nine, Geiberger and Harold Henning had battled back to tie Bob Charles and Bruce Devlin as they reached the 72nd hole of the Legends of Golf.

Then Henning's second shot on the 552-yard, par-5 strayed right, into the trees, where he would pick the ball up. Geiberger didn't flinch.

He lofted a 4-wood 240 yards to the back edge of the green and two-putted for a birdie, earning the $120,000 winners' check in the two-man, better-ball Senior PGA Tour event.

"Obviously, I would have liked to have seen him down in the fairway with a little more support. ... But on 18, I hit a good drive all week. I was going at the green anyway, with the particular shot that I had. By that time, you're so pumped up, it doesn't bother you," Geiberger said.

"The two shots that he hit to the last hole were as good as anybody could have hit under that circumstance," Henning added.

Geiberger's final birdie Sunday gave the duo — teamed in the Legends for the first time — a record-tying 29-under-par 251 over the 6,367-yard, par-70 Onion Creek Club course. Charles and Devlin earned the $65,000 second-place money with 252.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Kathy Postlewait's one-stroke victory in the $425,000 Sara Lee Classic was a team effort.

Val Skinner had just birdied the 12th hole, cutting Postlewait's lead to two strokes. Postlewait knew she was struggling. That's when her caddy, Debbie Rago, stepped in.

"The 12th hole was kind of the turning point. I was struggling and I knew Val was there (near the lead), but my caddy just kind of settled me down and let me know that we had control," Postlewait said.

Rago, who has carried the clubs for Postlewait for the past six years, said she just tried to get her to get her concentration back.

"My whole job is to stay as calm as I can. As long as I've been with Kathy, I know when to talk and when to shut up," Rago said.

"I just told Kathy that we couldn't afford to make any mistakes, that we had to stay aggressive and that we couldn't afford to let people back into the tournament," Rago said.

Postlewait, who held a four-stroke lead over Skinner with nine holes left, used a 14-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole and then two-putted from 36 feet on the par-4 18th to beat Skinner by a stroke for the victory and the 54-hole tournament's $65,750 winner's check.

"Val made it interesting," Postlewait said moments after she had watched Skinner put the pressure on with an 18-foot birdie putt on No. 18.

"I feel like I hit tee-to-green this week as well as I can and this is a course that keeps your attention," Postlewait said.

Postlewait had few troubles over the 6,242-yard, par-72 Hermitage Golf Course. She had only two bogeys, on the par-5 16th hole during the first round and at the par-4 14th on Sunday.

"That was the only hole I really felt I was in trouble. I hit a good tee shot, but I came over the top with an 8-iron on my second shot, chipped within 15-feet and then lipped my putt for par," Postlewait said.

Postlewait was two strokes off the lead after a first-round 68, then took the lead after a 6-under 66 on Saturday. Her 69 Sunday gave her a 54-hole score of 13-under 203 for her fourth LPGA title in 15 years.

Patty Sheehan and Nancy Lopez finished in a tie for third place with 9-under 205 totals.

Hometown Finally Extends Welcome To Woody Guthrie

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OKEMAH, Okla. — For years, residents of this rural community wanted nothing to do with native son Woody Guthrie, citing his writings in a Communist newspaper and his support for the post-Depression labor movement.

But detractors were nowhere to be found Saturday as more than 750 fans waited in line hours to see his son, Arlo, perform at a benefit concert to commemorate the author of songs such as "Bound for Glory" and "This Land Is Your Land."

"Thank you for being here," Arlo Guthrie told the more than 750 people present. "And I know that my dad thanks you also, very much, for this night. God bless you all."

The concert, Guthrie's first in his late father's hometown, was a benefit performance to raise money for scholarships.

For Arlo Guthrie, the concert was a homecoming of sorts to a place he's visited many times but perhaps never really appreciated.

"I've been walking around the whole town feeling kind of strange," he said. "I have other folks here. My grandfather and a lot of his folks grew up here, spent their lives here. I feel like I have encountered my own roots and I'm real happy about that."

He spent much of his two-hour performance talking to the audience and, at one point, took a moment to joke about the controversy that has surrounded the memory of his father.

"I think a lot of good things are happening for my dad... now that he doesn't need it so much," Guthrie said.

The younger Guthrie, known for songs such as "Alice's Restaurant" and "City of New Orleans," told the audience how he asked his father to teach him the words to "This Land Is Your Land" when classmates teased him for not knowing them.

"I remember he sat me down and he taught me some verses that weren't in the schoolbook version. I didn't just go back to school, I went back armed," he said.

"It never occurred to me in sixth grade that other people would know that stuff. I thought that just went on in our house."

The celebration was an emotional experience for Guthrie, who said many of his memories of his father are of the years before his death when he had grown weak from a nervous disorder.

'Family Ties' Tapes Its Final Episode

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOLLYWOOD — Cast members of "Family Ties" celebrated the taping of their 176th and final episode, culminating seven years as the Keaton family on one of television's most popular comedy series.

"It's going to be awhile before it really hits," said Michael J. Fox, who played Alex P. Keaton, the politically conservative oldest child.

"I think it's going to hit us around September when we would be coming back to work — the same as a retired athlete would say when the football season starts next year and I'm not in spring training," Fox said Sunday night at a party celebrating the NBC-TV show.

In the final, one-hour episode to be broadcast May 14, Alex fulfills his longtime dream of landing a job with a Wall Street brokerage firm and prepares to leave home.

"I will miss the entirety of 'Family Ties,'" said Justine Bateman, who played Mallory Keaton, Alex's sister whose main interests were fashion

'Wiseguy' Takes Over As TV's Hottest Prime Time Offering

By Kathryn Baker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — "Miami Vice" has gone cold. CBS' "Wiseguy" has become the hottest show in prime time.

It's also the hippest guest shot on TV. The current storyline, about the recording industry, guest stars rock stars Glenn Frey and Deborah Harry, cult actor Tim Curry ("The Rocky Horror Picture Show") and former Don Johnson main squeeze Patti D'Arbanville.

An earlier storyline lured reverse-cool Jerry Lewis into a rare television role. Tony winner Ron Silver ("Speed-the-Plow") played Lewis' son.

The attention is welcome — for now — but the pitfalls of being anointed as hot by the coolest of the cool is not lost on the show's producer-writers, Steve Kronish and David Burke.

"When you get too cool, you can get cold," said Kronish, sitting in Burke's office in the Stephen J. Cannell Productions building in Hollywood, a long way from Vancouver, where "Wiseguy" is filmed.

Kronish said he and Burke plan to avoid big-name stars in the future and return to the obscure, offbeat casting that impressed the industry and TV critics alike when the show premiered last season.

The first storyline rejuvenated Ray Sharkey's career. Then, unknowns Kevin Spacey and Jean Seaverance made a splash as an incestuous brother-sister crime wave in a second storyline. Another of last season's guest stars was '60s Andy Warhol film veteran Joe Dallesandro.

"Wiseguy" is something of a distant cousin of "Miami Vice." Burke co-wrote the pilot of "Crime Story" for "Miami Vice" executive producer Michael Mann.

Burke's road to Hollywood was winding. His father, former late-night New York talk-show host Alan Burke, disapproved of his son's show-biz aspirations, but begrudgingly got him a job with a friend, director Otto Preminger.

Burke moved into documentary production and became a political media consultant for clients ranging from Jamaica to U.S. Senate candidate Jay Rockefeller.

"The script that got me essentially plugged into this business I was working on during a tour of West Virginia with Jay Rockefeller, from television station to television station," Burke said. "At the end of the day I'd go back to the hotel and sit in the hotel office and work on the script. It's actually a pilot now at ABC."

"Sacraments" is about the mayor of a large, Northeastern city who came up from the streets, bringing his working-class cohorts into power with him.

Kronish, armed with a degree in journalism, got a job as talent coordinator on a local talk show in L.A. A play he had written landed him his first script-writing job after he was variously unemployed, an insurance salesman and an assistant golf pro. His first steady TV job was a game show called, appropriately enough, "Anything for Money."

While still overseeing "Wiseguy," Burke and Kronish found themselves with another series at midseason, NBC's "Unsub," about a crack federal forensic unit.

Paul Monas, an attorney friend of Burke, had come up with the idea a couple of years ago. Burke mentioned it to Cannell, but other projects ensued and Burke forgot about it. At a lunch last fall with NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, Cannell offhandedly pitched "Unsub." The show was on the air three months later.

Spaghetti Western Director Leone Dies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROME — Sergio Leone, the Italian director whose widely imitated films included "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" and spawned the spaghetti western genre, has died at age 60.

He died early Sunday of a heart attack at home.

Leone's career spanned four decades but he is best known for the handful of westerns he made in Italy during the 1960s, typically featuring terse, gunslinging loners dueling on a spare and sun-scorched landscape.

His films made an international film star of Clint Eastwood.

Leone, the son of a film director Vincenzo Leone, began his film career in 1948 as an assistant on Vittorio De Sica's "Bicycle Thief."

After the three westerns, Leone began work on a saga about American gangsters in the early 1900s. But he fell in love with a film he had co-written, "Once Upon A Time in the West," and directed it himself, working with a cast that included

Henry Fonda and Charles Bronson. He followed it with yet another Western, "Duck You Sucker" in 1972.

Leone had trouble in the 1970s finding producers who would foot the bill for his lavish productions and turned to producing other people's films.

Finally, in 1983, he managed to finish "Once Upon A Time in America," an impressionistic film using flashbacks and flash-forwards. The movie was praised at the Cannes film festival and was a hit in France and Italy, but it was drastically cut for its U.S. release and got lukewarm reviews.

Leone had been planning to direct a blockbuster film about the siege of Leningrad by German troops during World War II.

The director, who made his home in both Italy and France, is survived by his wife, Carla, and his children Raffaella, Francesca and Andrea. Funeral services were scheduled for Wednesday.

 A.—Partner has asked you to evaluate your diamond holding for game purposes, and you have just enough to accept. Jump to four spades even though you have only three-card support. On this auction, partner must have five spades, but the hand should play well even if you have a 4-3 fit.

 A.—Whether you open four- or five-card majors, you should not jump in opener's suit with only three-card support unless no other bid is available. Here, you have a perfectly viable waiting bid of two diamonds. You will jump in spades at your next turn.

You've Applauded The Performers. Come Behind The Scenes And Meet The Directors.

The Executive Committee.

A STRONGER PERFORMANCE THAN EVER.

As First Federal continues to deliver an enviable financial performance, some of our most important people stay backstage.

But they're not strangers to the citizens of Pitt County. Our list of directors reads like an honor roll of community leaders.

First Federal is guided by high achievers, not high rollers. We've chosen the area's most respected and experienced professionals to help guide Pitt County's community bank.

And it shows. Our balance sheet reads strong and solid. Our employees are proud and positive. And our customers tell us themselves every day: our performance is outstanding.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE: MAKING SURE EVERY DOLLAR HAS A PITT COUNTY ADDRESS.

They set First Federal's goals, always keeping in mind the goals and dreams of Pitt County's families. So they take great pride in paying higher rates to depositors, and in investing those deposits in loans within Pitt County.

THE AUDIT COMMITTEE: THEY CAN BE OUR FOUR TOUGHEST CUSTOMERS.

With sound judgment, an eye for detail and a dedication to the highest standards, they strengthen our resolve as a financial institution. They never let us forget that in a strong community bank, the savings come first.

THE LOAN COMMITTEE: FIVE RESPECTED SIGNATURES UNDER EVERY LOAN WE MAKE.

They have the sixth sense of successful businessmen and the cautious optimism of natural leaders. They ensure that every single loan meets our commitment to financial strength, local investment, prudent lending and competitive rates.

LOCAL CONTROL, LOCAL COMMITMENT, LOCAL PRIDE: VALUES CLOSE TO HOME.

These are the leaders of First Federal—experienced businessmen and local professionals steering a steady course into the future. What these confident leaders bring to First Federal is what we, in turn, give back to our local community—a winning spirit.

A spirit that, like First Federal, is now stronger than ever.
