North Vows Hard Fight 'As Long It Takes'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Blasting prosecutors and vowing to "fight hard, for as long as it takes," Oliver North says his conviction on three felonies in the Iran-Contra affair will eventually be overturned.

The first person to go on trial in the scandal that rocked the last two years of the Reagan administration, North lost his $23,100-a-year Marine pension as soon as the jury delivered its verdict Thursday.

Ex-President Reagan, who successfully resisted a defense subpoena to testify at the trial, declined to comment after the man he once called a national hero was found guilty.

North was acquitted of nine of the 12 criminal charges against him and prosecutor John Keiser appeared less than satisfied with the decision.

Still, Keiser said, "Colonel North has been convicted of three very serious charges. The jury has spoken." North called it "a partial vindication."

North, to be sentenced June 23 by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and $750,000 in fines. As a first-time offender with an exemplary 20-year military career, North almost certainly will get penalties far less severe than that. Court appeals could take years.

The National Security Council's former "action officer" on Central America counterattacked less than two hours after walking out of the federal courthouse. He defiantly criticized the cost of pursuing him through the legal system and suggested the prosecution had overstepped the bounds of fairness.

"After more than two and a half years and over $40 million of our taxpayers' money spent on investigations, congressional inquisitions and now a special prosecutor who has likened me to Adolf Hitler, we now face many months and perhaps years of fighting the remaining charges," North said, reading from a statement.

"As a Marine, I was taught to fight and fight hard, for as long as it takes to prevail," he added. "We will continue this battle and with the support and prayers of the American people, we will be fully vindicated."

In closing arguments last month, Keiser said North and his former boss, national security adviser Robert McFarlane, "are following Adolf Hitler's old strategy: The victor will never be asked if he told the truth."

North got an endorsement of sorts from one of the jurors, 65-year-old Earl Williams, who served in Patton's 3rd Army in World War II.

"He made some mistakes, you know, but I don't think he should go to jail for it ... a hero like he was," Williams told CBS News following deliberations that totaled 64 hours over 12 days.

North won't get his military pension back unless his conviction for altering and shredding sensitive NSC documents is overturned on appeal.

"Once the conviction goes into effect, whatever time that is, he loses

Magellan Probe Starts On Its Way To Venus

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The robot probe Magellan streaked across the solar system today at 25,000 mph on its way to Venus, and the astronauts who launched the spacecraft turned to more routine tasks aboard Atlantis.

Deployment of the probe from the shuttle's cargo bay Thursday night signaled a revival of an American planetary-science program that has been dormant since 1978.

"The spacecraft is performing just beautifully. All systems are operational and nominal. It couldn't be better," John Gerpheide, Magellan project manager, said a few hours after the probe was launched.

Atlantis' fiery blastoff Thursday afternoon followed a cliff-hanging, 59-minute wait that ground controllers and the five astronauts endured because of the fickle Florida weather. With just five minutes left in the shuttle's launch window, controllers found a hole in the clouds and Atlantis thundered into the sky at 2:47 p.m. EDT.

About six hours after the liftoff, Magellan was gently ejected from the shuttle's cargo bay and the $550-million interplanetary mission began.

"At last check, all systems were working exceptionally well on Magellan," Mission Control commentator Jeffrey Carr said early today.

The space shuttle also was performing well, Carr said.

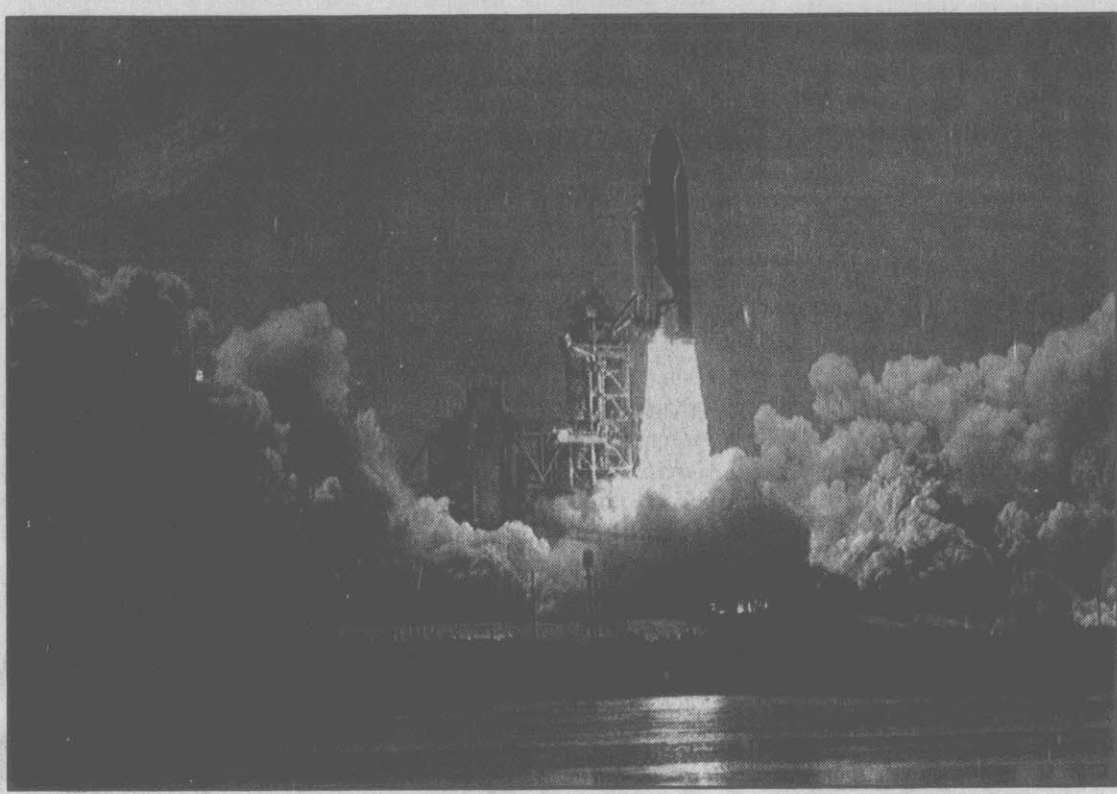

Mission Control awoke the crew today at about 9:20 a.m. EDT with a rousing rendition of the theme music from the movie "Superman."

"Good-morning and congratulations on a super day yesterday," Mission Control told the crew.

"Good morning Houston," commander David Walker replied. "We're up and around. Everybody's feeling good, trying to find our toothbrushes."

"We thank you for that fine wake-up music," Walker said.

Pitt's Travel-Tourism Growth Creeps Ahead

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County travel and tourism revenue increased slightly in 1988, but the rate of growth fell sharply, Gov. Jim Martin announced Thursday in Boone at the Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism.

After Pitt's boom year in 1987 when hospitality industry revenue jumped 36 percent, growth slowed to 3.7 percent in 1988. Still, the county experienced and overall increase, with travel and tourism revenue reaching nearly $65 million.

"It was an increase, definitely," Al Nichols, executive director of the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Bureau, said in a telephone interview from Boone. "The increase matches pretty closely with other communities our size. I think it's a positive thing."

The annual convention draws over 300 travel industry executives, meeting planners and attraction operators from across the state. North Carolina native Charles Kuralt performed "North Carolina Is My Home" this week at the conference.

The convention was held in Greenville for the first time in 1988.

Statewide, Martin announced that revenue from travel and tourism jumped 8.2 percent in 1988.

"Travel expenditures totaled $6.2 billion last year — that's the largest amount in the history of the state — and represents an 8.2 percent increase over last year's record-setting revenues," Martin said in a prepared media release.

Nichols said he is skeptical of the accuracy of the statistics because the formula the state uses does not adequately distinguish between revenue generated by residents and visitors. The state totals include all retail sales in the county, as well as money generated through restaurants, service stations, and other local businesses.

For example, while the state totals indicated Pitt's revenue rose 3.7 percent, Nichols said business at area motels is up over 8 percent through the first nine months of the fiscal year.

"I'm not sure really how to read this (the state totals) as a gauge," he said. "The North Carolina Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus is embarking right now on a more reliable study to give us data which would refer more specifically the relative impact of travel and conventions," he said.

In eastern North Carolina, Pitt's total revenue is well ahead of neighboring counties.

Seniors Will Get University Awards

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Three seniors, including the first University Scholar to complete degree requirements, were named today to receive the 1989 University Award at East Carolina University.

The University Award, presented by the ECU Alumni Association each year, recognizes superior academic achievement, service to the university and the community, and both potential and exhibited leadership qualities.

Selected to receive the 1989 award at Saturday's spring commencement were William Clayborn "Clay" Deanhardt and Donna Lynn Zekonis, both of Greenville, and Chandra Benita Floyd of Wilmington.

They will be formally presented engraved plates and one year's active membership in the Alumni Association on Saturday in a special presentation by Burney R. Rivenbark, president of the ECU Alumni Association. In addition, four-year $500 alumni scholarships will be named in their honor and awarded to three incoming ECU freshmen for the 1989-90 academic year.

Deanhardt completed his bachelor of arts degree summa cum laude during the 1988 summer session. Having finished his undergraduate education in three years with a 3.9 grade point average and a double major in English and philosophy, he has continued to take graduate classes for the past two semesters. He has been a graduate teaching assistant in the English department and plans to enter Harvard Law School.

As an entering freshman, Deanhardt received the John F. Minges II and Thorburn Whitehurst Minges University Scholars Award. The award pays full tuition and fees all four years of the recipient's education and recognizes academic excellence, leadership ability, and a commitment to service endeavors.

He received a National Merit Scholarship and was inducted into Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society, and Phi Kappa Phi, honor society for juniors and seniors.

Kay Yow To Speak At Commencement

Olympic women's basketball coach Kay Yow, an East Carolina University alumna, will be the speaker Saturday at ECU's annual spring commencement.

More than 2,000 students are to be graduated with degrees and certificates of advanced study, including five doctorates of philosophy and 67 doctorates of medicine.

The program will begin at 9:15 a.m. in Ficklen Stadium with a band concert.

In the event of rain or threatening weather, alternate plans call for the commencement to be moved indoors at Minges Coliseum adjacent to the stadium, and a second program to be held in the afternoon.

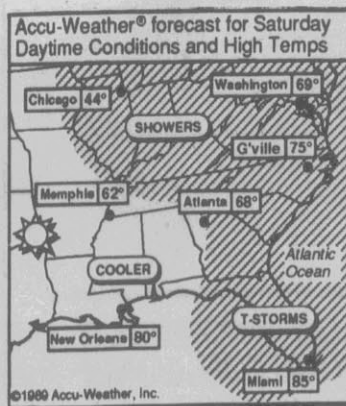

Commencement speakers, university trustees, administrative officers and other members of the platform party will lead the traditional academic procession which will include members of the faculty and the graduates.

For the past two years, ECU has conducted a fall commencement for those students who complete degree requirements during the summer or fall semester. Last year, a record attendance of 12,000 was set for the spring commencement.

Ms. Yow has been head women's basketball coach at North Carolina State University for the past 14 years and in 1988 was the head coach of the U.S. Olympic women's basketball team which won the gold medal in Seoul, South Korea.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

One Instant

The Beginning Of The Journey

Tomorrow the world will be a bright place for some 2,000 East Carolina University graduates. It will be a place where they step briefly into the sun and embrace a symbolic beginning.

ECU's 1989 graduates will receive their diplomas Saturday morning. While that commencement march marks the tangible end of education, it also represents the genesis of the journey that education prepared them for — a life of work, earning, service, ambition, family and contribution.

For some, this ceremony is the culmination of four years study. For others, it is the end of a longer effort — years of school punctuated by years of work to earn enough money for that learning. The class of 1989 isn't just youthful, pink-faced students. It is diverse, includes young and old alike drawn together by a single purpose — the desire for an education.

'While that commencement march marks the tangible end of education, it also represents the genesis of the journey that education prepared them for ...'

As these graduates step forward to take their roles in society, many will be pondering the value of the education they just completed. The answer to each cogitation lies in the choices each individual makes. The mark each one leaves on the world rests heavily, in turn, on these choices.

The class of 1989 has acquired knowledge. Its members have obtained specific information and skills that prepare them to live a more productive, satisfying, and prosperous life. These graduates will be teachers, managers, scientists, social workers, writers and planners. Many will assume tasks so mundane they appear everyday and unremarkable, yet important, nevertheless. Others will be shakers and movers, in the spotlight visibly affecting the workings of their community.

How each one uses these skills and this information will not only determine the quality of his or her life and the value of the knowledge amassed at ECU, it will play an important role on the potential of the region. Many of these graduates are from eastern North Carolina and many will find work here. Their futures are synonymous with the future of the region. Their success or failure, the productivity and completeness of their lives, will tangibly affect the needs and politics of the East.

While each graduates must set an individual goal for fulfillment and seek that goal, the investment in education will yield a greater return if those choices reflect an awareness of this role. Simply put, tomorrow's graduates should seek balanced lives; ones that include service to community and civic responsibility.

The class of 1989 has prepared itself to face the future. Armed with knowledge and a desire and need to make a living, its members are ready to take the first important step toward these goals. They will have a brief, bright, memorable instant Saturday. But their true moment in the sun will be the choices made about the remainder of their lives.

A CHANGE OF UNIFORM

BARBOUR FOR THE DAILY REFLECTOR

No Racist Conspiracy Here

WASHINGTON — Nobody tuned in Ted Koppel last week expecting an instant solution to Washington's problems of race and caste and drug-related homicide.

But admirers of Koppel (a group that emphatically includes me) had hoped for something better than the unfocused hodge-podge of a town meeting we got last Thursday.

A week later, I still can't tell you what the nearly four-hour show was supposed to be about. Was it about the fact that blacks and whites in this town don't socialize together very much? The title, "D.C. — Divided City," as well as some of the videotaped footage, seemed to suggest it.

Was it about the anguish of black youths who go through their adolescent-to-young-adult years either invisible to whites or else seen only as crimes waiting to happen? A five-minute segment — videotaped and co-produced by a group of teen-age boys — made that point with particular impact.

Most viewers, I imagine, tuned in to watch a special on drugs — drug abuse, drug trafficking, drug-spawned murder and the federally directed war on drugs. If so, they may have tried (as I did) to fit the pieces of the special into a coherent whole.

It never came together for me. Granting that D.C. is a divided city, where poor blacks can go for days without face-to-face contact with whites, and where black professionals are unlikely to spend much after-work time with their white counterparts: What has that to do with the drug problem?

Giving a video camera to a group of black teen-agers and asking them to record their impressions of how whites view them was a clever idea, nicely executed. I'd love to see the tape used as a take-off point for discussions involving white residents, shopkeepers, employers, educators and black teens.

It might provide the youngsters a glimpse into the nature and basis of white apprehension, and it might help the others to understand the dehumanizing pain of being born a suspect.

But it has nothing to do with drugs.

Koppel seemed surprised, when the talk turned directly to drug trafficking, that his mostly black audience focused so heavily on racism. He seemed particularly amazed at the applause that followed the assertion by Dr. Frances Welsing, a psychiatrist, that the traffic in drugs is a conscious effort at genocide: that "genetically recessive" whites, fearing "genetic annihilation," are using drugs as a way of decimating the population of young black males — "the greatest threat to white genetic survival."

None of the speakers showed any eagerness to point out the contradiction between Welsing's statement and the assertion by experts that some 80 percent of America's drug abusers are white.

I found myself dividing the participants between those who believe we can take effective action against the drug menace and those who think nothing can be done.

The first group included public-spirited individuals, small groups and organizations like the Muslims' Fruit of Islam, who are working, with at least modest success, to give black youngsters the guidance and self-esteem to help them avoid the drug scene, whether as users or as sellers.

Nobody on the other side actually said that nothing can be done, of course. They tended instead to make both the selling and distribution of drugs the products of racism. Blacks don't run the agencies charged with keeping drugs out of the country; they don't own the planes and ships that bring it in, or the banks that launder the proceeds of the trafficking; they don't import or distribute the assault weapons used by local dealers to blow each other away. So doesn't it stand to reason that whites must intend the results — addiction, destroyed communities and homicide — that the trafficking produces?

Two things about this indictment: First, it overlooks the more obvious explanation for both white and black involvement in the drug business: the enormous profits to be had. Second, by making the drug trade a racist conspiracy, branding whites as inherently — even genetically — racist, and implying that nothing will change until racism is rooted out, it forces the conclusion that the whites have no interest in solving the problem and that blacks have no ability to solve it.

The entire explication, no matter how emotionally satisfying it may be, is a recipe for inaction and despair. As with so many pressing issues, those who believe that solutions are possible tend to get busy working on the problem; those who doubt that anything can be done undertake to shift the responsibility away from themselves.

To the editor:

A puzzling thing has been appearing in "The Daily Reflector" lately. Real estate firms now add, where applicable, "This property is in the Winterville school district."

Now, I know for a fact that the Winterville schools are in no way better than the other Pitt County schools. The reason I know this is that the members of the Board of Education and the County Commissioners — all ladies and gentlemen of unquestioned integrity — said that when the school systems merged they would afford equal opportunity for all students. Dr. Eddie West said so, too.

So, why the puzzling ads? There were nine in the Sunday, April 30, edition. Maybe someone can shed some light on this phenomenon.

To the editor:

State Senator Tom Taft of Greenville says emphatically he is for the death penalty.

A recent roll call vote in the State Senate revealed that Sen. Taft voted against cutting funding for the Death Penalty Resource Center. The Death Penalty Resource Center, by the way, was once financially supported by attorneys. But, for the last two years, this agency has been a burden to the state's taxpayers.

What does the Death Penalty Resource Center do? It funnels money to four staff attorneys who fight to keep convicted clients away from an already imposed death sentence.

Sen. Taft's actions speak much louder and clearer than his words, don't you think?

It is a shame when funding for criminals has an earlier time, with less debate, than a vote to raise teacher salaries!

A.A. Adams

To the editor:

Help for North Carolina's young families may be close at hand if we show our support. Congress is planning to vote soon on landmark legislation to help working parents: the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA). This legislation would allow employees to take 10 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave in three critical situations — to care for a newborn, newly-adopted or sick child, to care for an elder parent or to care for themselves in the event of an employee's own serious, extended illness.

As a pediatrician, I frequently see young parents who are emotionally torn between the care they desperately want to give their child and their responsibility to their jobs. The American Academy of Pediatrics supports this bill because it has been medically documented that children need their parents at certain critical points if they are to have a good chance at growing into health, productive adults. With enactment of this legislation, Americans will join parents in 127 other countries who can care for a sick or newborn child, without fear of losing their job or their health insurance.

When you look at the costs, this idea isn't too good to be true. In fact, a recent government survey on the economic impact of this legislation found that the actual cost to employers would amount to only the cost of continuing the health insurance coverage of an employee on unpaid leave — or about $25 per week! Remember employers would be exempt.

We, as constituents, need to push our members of Congress to address the needs of today's families. We, as a society, must show our children that we are there for them — especially when they need us most.

In response to Susette Sheppard, a school bus driver (letter to the editor April 24, 1989).

As a private citizen and concerned mother I speak on behalf of all private automobile drivers. We are concerned about the inconsiderate, uncouth school bus drivers here in Greenville.

Sure everyone is in a hurry. We all have somewhere to go, either to work or school. Please ask school bus drivers to stop tailgating our cars because we never know when our straight shift cars are going to roll back. (Probably shouldn't drive a car or bus if you cannot control it.) We also have senseless bus drivers that pull out in front of us, going only 35 mph because they don't think they should wait for the three cars behind me. What a novelty — wait for no traffic! If you drivers have children or relatives in private automobiles, please stop pulling out in front of us. We are innocent as the children on your bus.

For the safety of all of us everyone needs to slow down, pay more attention to brake lights and flashing bus lights.

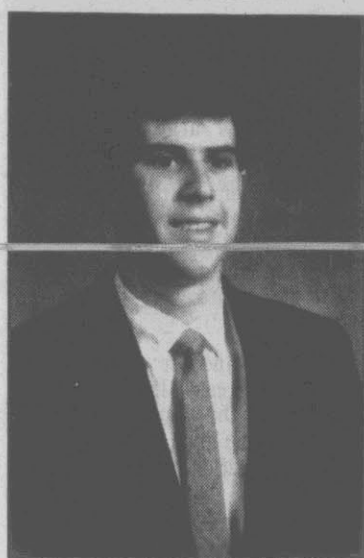

Yet personally I had fewer problems driving on the road with school buses driven on the road by one of those innocent children. They had yet to cultivate years of bad driving experience.

In 1988, travel and tourism generated $13.3 million in Martin County, a 1.6 percent decrease; $25.4 million in Wilson County, a 22.2 percent increase; $25.1 million in Lenoir County, a 7.5 percent increase; $5.8 million in Beaufort County, a 5 percent decrease, and $5.9 million in Edgecombe, a 2.3 percent decrease.

In Greene County, travel and tourism generated just $210,000, one of the state's lowest totals. Greene's total revenue was an increase of 8.8 percent.

In Craven County, which Nichols has said competes directly with Pitt for some convention business, travel and tourism generated $41.1 million, a 2.8 percent increase.

By far, the largest increase in 1988 occurred in Madison County on the Tennessee-North Carolina border. Travel and tourism revenue in Madison jumped 200 percent in 1988, but the total dollar figure was well below other counties. Madison revenue increased from $2.2 million to $6.6 million.

Of the $6.2 billion generated statewide, Martin said North Carolina residents generated about $17 billion, while out-of-state visitors generated $4.45 billion.

The state tourism office received over 460,000 inquiries in 1988, Martin said, which is a 10 percent increase over the previous year.

Of those requests for travel information, Martin said 261,000 came as a direct result of the advertising campaigns of the state Division of Travel and Tourism. Over half of those requesting information eventually visited the state, Martin said.

"That means that once we get our travel packet into a potential visitor's hands, there's more than a 50 percent chance that his or her next visit will be in North Carolina," Martin said.

"The bottom line is that our award-winning advertising program works. We are committed to continuing the success story of North Carolina's travel industry," he said. "And we're committed to boosting promotional efforts with your local and regional tourism organizations."

Court Says State Agencies Can Levy Civil Fines

By John Flesher
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The N.C. Supreme Court's ruling that state administrative agencies may levy civil penalties for regulatory violations appears to have answered fundamental questions about the relationship between the three branches of government. The unanimous ruling Thursday "leaves the state agencies with the ability to do the jobs for which they were created ... protecting North Carolina citizens," said state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg.

The lower court had said administrative agencies could not have discretion in setting the amount of a civil penalty for rules violations.

"An issue was the power of the General Assembly to grant agencies the power to fine violators by civil penalties," Thornburg said in a prepared statement. "Millions of dollars in pending civil penalties were at stake."

The case involved a dispute over anti-pollution regulations between the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development and Dennis W. Harris, Natalie G. Harris and Roy J. Hall of Caldwell County.

Under authority granted by the state Sedimentation Pollution Control Act, NRCD fined the Harris and Hall $4,200 for failing to control erosion and sedimentation while developing about 18 acres of land near Lenoir.

The penalty was $75 per day for 56 days, running from Oct. 25, 1983, through Dec. 20, 1983. The law allows the NRCD secretary to assess penalties of up to $100 per day.

The Harris and Hall appealed to Superior Court, where a judge ruled that the law violated the state Constitution by giving the NRCD secretary discretion in setting fines — in essence, conferring judicial authority on executive-branch officials.

A divided panel of the North Carolina Court of Appeals upheld the trial judge. The panel stopped short of disallowing all civil penalty assessments by administrative agencies, but said the agencies could not determine amounts.

The appeals court's ruling last year worried agency officials, who warned that state regulations on pollution and a wide range of other topics would be toothless if the decision stood. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency had offered to take control of enforcing anti-pollution standards in North Carolina if the ruling was not overturned.

In its unanimous opinion written by Associate Justice Louis Meyer, the Supreme Court said the appeals panel had interpreted too broadly an earlier Supreme Court ruling that overturned a civil penalty imposed by the insurance commissioner.

In that case, "this court addressed an isolated question raised by an un-complicated statute," Meyer wrote. "It did not decide that the North Carolina Constitution absolutely forbids conferring discretionary civil penalty power on administrative agencies."

The key issues in any dispute over such penalties, Meyer wrote, are whether an agency needs penalty assessment authority to do its job and whether the law gives the agency "adequate guiding standards" in setting the amounts.

In the insurance case, the law allowed the commissioner to set any penalty up to $25,000 — an excessive range, Meyer wrote. But the sedimentation law's range of up to $100 per day is reasonable, he said.

The threat of a NRCD-levied fine is a needed deterrent against violations, since the law does not allow the department to order polluters to stop what they are doing, the opinion said.

Resolving another legal issue raised by the case, the court said one panel of the Court of Appeals cannot overrule another panel of the court on a question raised in a separate case.

Education

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina teachers think the Basic Education Program is giving students a more well-rounded education, but less than half think students are any better prepared for college or work, a state survey shows.

Teachers said smaller classes, more supplies and an expanded curriculum were the most beneficial features of the state's massive eight-year school improvement plan, according to the survey by the state Department of Public Instruction.

But there is "evidence the teachers particularly have mixed feeling about the BEP," which is now in its fourth year, says the survey report. Less than half of the teachers thought students had been better prepared for further academic study, and less than a third thought students were better prepared for work after high school, says the report.

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) —

The Rocky Mount school board has filed a federal lawsuit claiming that the Nash County school board had hurt the city system by maintaining racially segregated schools that siphon white students from the city.

The lawsuit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, asks that the court declare the Nash County schools in violation of federal laws that require unitary school systems.

Father Killed

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro man has been charged with murder in the Wednesday night beating death of his father, police said.

Kenneth Hargrove, 42, is being held without bond in the Guilford County Jail, charged with first-degree murder. His father, Marvin J. Hargrove of 304 Winston St., was found beaten to death seated in a chair in the living room of his small brick house about 9:20 p.m. Wednesday.

Police found a metal, blood-stained crowbar in a truck parked near the home, and they suspect that was the murder weapon, said Ed Hill, a detective with the Greensboro Police Department.

Hill said Kenneth Hargrove told police that Marvin Hargrove refused to give him $10 with which to buy food.

Jacobs Probably Will Serve Less Than 30 Months In Plea Bargain Agreement

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUMBERTON, N.C. — Timothy Jacobs will probably serve about three years in prison after pleading guilty in a plea bargain to 14 counts of second-degree kidnapping, but a prosecutor says he won't offer a similar deal to Jacobs' codefendant, Eddie Hatcher.

"I just feel like there's a lot of difference between the two defendants and the victims felt like there was a lot of difference ... and I just don't think this same arrangement would be appropriate in his case. No deal," said Robeson County District Attorney J. Richard Townsend.

"We knew about Timmy's agreement, but we told them right from the start we wanted no part of a deal with Eddie," said Deborah Adams, one of the people taken hostage in the takeover of The Robesonian newspaper in Lumberton in February 1988.

Jacobs, 20, said as he left the Robeson County courtroom on Thursday that he wouldn't testify against Hatcher. But he could be subpoenaed in a trial.

Jacobs was sentenced to six years in prison. He originally faced up to 420 years behind bars.

Lynn Phillips, deputy director of the state Division of Prisons, said if Jacobs was a model prisoner and worked to earn "good time" credits, he would probably spend 40 percent of his sentence, or about two years and four months, in jail.

Jacobs and Eddie Hatcher held up to 20 people hostage in The Robesonian newsroom for 10 hours on Feb. 1, 1988. They carried shotguns when they entered and chained the newspaper's front door shut.

Jacobs and Hatcher, who describe themselves as Tuscarora Indians, said they took over the newspaper to draw attention to allegations of official corruption and drug trafficking in the county. A state task force appointed by Gov. Jim Martin found no evidence to support the allegations.

"There have been attempts by some to portray Timothy Jacobs as the victim in this case," Townsend told the court. "But I don't want anyone in this courtroom to leave today thinking that. The hostages and their families were the victims. ... The hostages were the ones who didn't know if they were going to live or die."

"If Timothy Jacobs suffered, so be it," Townsend told the crowded courtroom. "He has brought it about himself."

The southeastern North Carolina county is comprised roughly of one-third whites, blacks and Indians.

"I was very satisfied with the sentencing," Ms. Adams said. "I have never felt exactly the same way about him (Jacobs) as Eddie Hatcher. I felt he did deserve to spend some time ... but not 30 years in prison. The last thing I've heard out of him is he may be trying to change from last year. I hope that's true."

Jacobs' six-year prison term will be followed by a six-year suspended sentence with supervised probation.

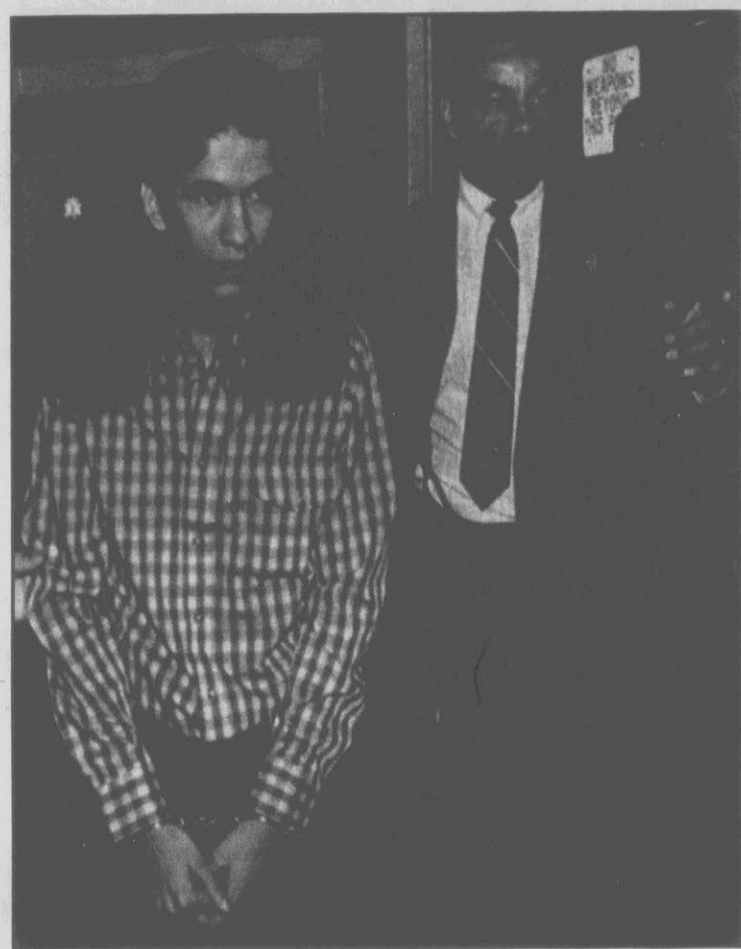

Neither Jacobs nor his attorney, James Parish of Fayetteville, would say what prompted him to plead guilty in state court after he had been acquitted of a similar set of federal charges, which included hostage-taking and firearms violations.

During the federal trial, Mr. Jacobs' defense was that he participated in the takeover to protect his own life.

"He wants to get on with his life and do something with himself," said his mother, Eleanor Jacobs, after the court appearance. "It was his decision (to plea bargain). I didn't talk him into anything."

Superior Court Judge Anthony Brannon ruled that if any books or movies are produced about the takeover, any money earned by Jacobs will be forfeited to the victims of the takeover. Court documents list 14 Robesonian employees as the people detained, but authorities said the night of the siege that up to 20 had been held at various times.

The judge also allowed Jacobs to be free for 30 days on $20,000 secured bond despite objections from Townsend. Jacobs wants time to get his personal affairs in order and possibly get married, said his at-

Charges Dropped In AZT Protest

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DURHAM — Trespass charges have been dismissed against four activists who sealed themselves in an office at Burroughs Wellcome's headquarters last week to protest the cost of an AIDS drug, a lawyer said.

Attorney Stewart Fisher said he and Assistant District Attorney Michael Nifong had reached an agreement for the charges to be dismissed in Durham District Court. The agreement hinged on proof that the activists had paid Burroughs Wellcome more than $9,000 for damage to the office.

"Burroughs does not want to prosecute the case," Fisher said.

The amount paid the company is about equal to the cost of one year of treatment with AZT, the drug manufactured and sold in the United States solely by Burroughs Wellcome, Fisher said.

Fisher said the payment included restitution for damage caused by Durham County sheriff's deputies who kicked in a wall to remove the protesters.

Burroughs Wellcome spokeswoman Kathy Bartlett said there had been no negotiations on the protesters demands that the price of the drug be cut 25 percent.

One of the protesters has AIDS and one has AIDS-related complex, according to a spokesman for the group ACT UP, or the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power. All four of the men are from the New York City area and belong to ACT UP's New York chapter.

There is no cure for AIDS, but AZT has been shown to inhibit the virus that causes the fatal disease from reproducing.

The protesters entered Burroughs Wellcome's Research Triangle Park office on April 25 dressed in coats and ties. Armed with equipment to barricade themselves and enough food and water for three days, they walked past security personnel and receptionists and entered an office. They then used a drill to bolt small steel plates over a door and handcuffed themselves to office fixtures.

Mavretic Raises Issue Of Full-Time Assembly

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH (AP) — House Speaker Joe Mavretic's proposal that legislative committees meet year-round is expected to open debate on whether the part-time legislature is becoming too much like a full-time Congress.

Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, also said Wednesday that legislators should be allowed to introduce bills throughout the year. He said his proposals, which include a computer link of legislators' Raleigh offices and homes, would allow lawmakers to spend more time in their districts.

"If we do it right, we can be come truly citizen-legislators," he said. "The alternative to that is full-time legislators as we have in Congress."

But others said the proposals could bring about greater distance between legislators and their constituents.

"It's obviously a step toward a more full-time legislature," said Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe. "When the business of the House is going on, we've got to be here."

Mavretic said his proposal was needed to spread the work load and reduce the length of legislative sessions. The legislature now meets for about six months in odd-numbered years and about a month in even-numbered years. But many Commonly asked questions and answers concerning this procedure.

Question: "How long does the procedure take?"

Answer: This procedure takes only 15 to 20 minutes to start and the patient completes the treatment at home and to their desired degree of whiteness; however, on your first visit, the dentist must prepare you for the procedure and usually a normal one-hour appointment is sufficient. The results are very predictable when the patient follows the instructions to the letter. Most cases can be completed within a two week period, more complicated cases may require a longer period of time. Patients who follow the instructions properly may see results within the first three days of treatment.

Question: "If this is such a new procedure, how can I be sure it's safe?"

Answer: Although it is a new product, it is based on the older bleaching techniques that have been in use on teeth for over twenty years. When used properly, these techniques have proven to be extremely safe but overpriced for most people. It is a much milder medication than anything ever used before for this purpose and is priced where every patient can now afford to look their very best with a totally different and easier procedure.

Question: "How long will the results last?"

Answer: The procedure can be permanent with occasional and proper maintenance.

Spending Plans Approved

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Senate and House leaders say they expect speedy completion of a compromise federal budget, now that both chambers have passed mirror-image $1.2 trillion spending plans that cause little political pain.

Lawmakers on both sides of the Capitol approved fiscal 1990 budgets on Thursday, obediently consenting to proposals whose foundations were laid in talks last month between congressional leaders and Bush administration officials. With bipartisan amity that has been glaringly absent in most budget debates, the Senate adopted its plan 68-31, while the House signed off 263-157.

Supporters said the budgets were the best available solutions to the gridlock created by President Bush's "no new taxes" pledge and Democratic reluctance to slash domestic programs. Yet they conceded that their talks with the White House, which lasted about as long as the biblical flood, had not yielded a perfect instrument.

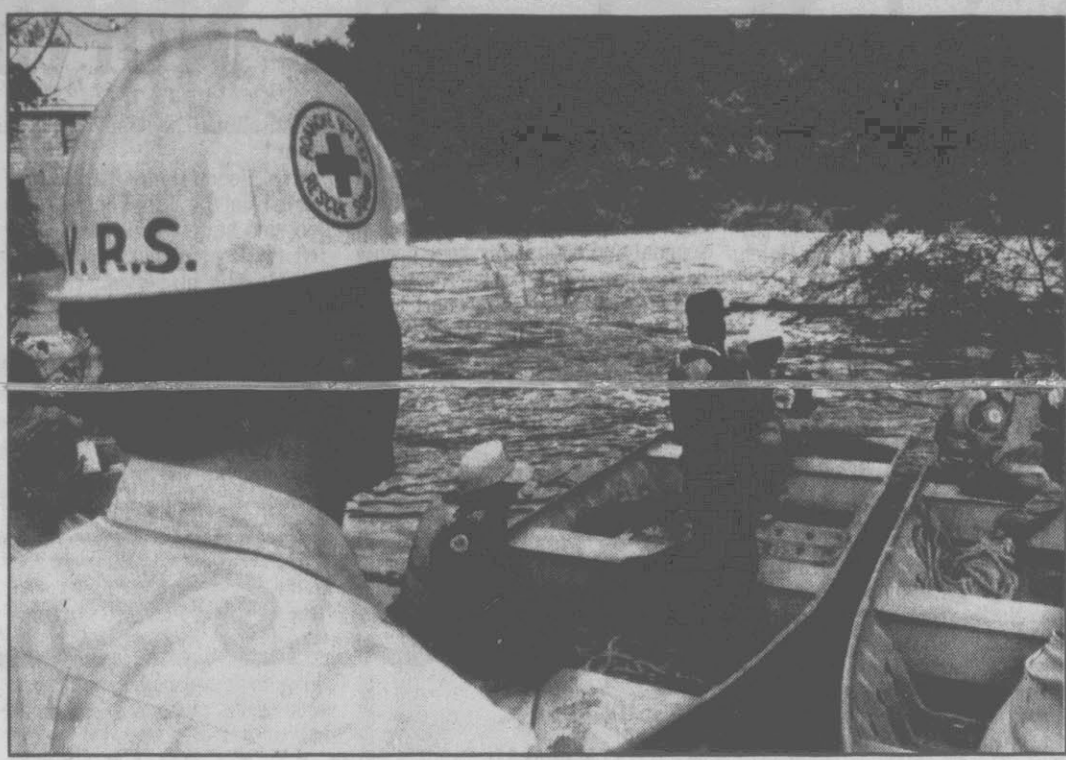

"We didn't produce what Noah did," said Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee. "Some even think we barely produced a rowboat."

There are few significant differences between the two plans, mainly because overall totals for revenues, deficit reduction and defense, domestic and foreign aid spending were cemented in the White House-congressional budget pact.

House-Senate negotiators will have to settle relatively minor differences in how the two chambers would distribute money among education, science, criminal justice and other domestic programs.

Congressional leaders have said their goal is to complete work on a compromise budget by mid-May, which if accomplished would be the earliest date of completion in 11 years. That bargaining should begin next week.

Census Shows American Households Still Shrinking

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — With fewer children and growing numbers of both young and older Americans maintaining homes of their own, the typical household has shrunk to less than half its size when the nation was new, a Census Bureau report shows.

As of July 1, 1988, the average household included 2.62 people, a record low, the bureau reported Thursday.

The first national census in 1790 — an era of extended families living together — calculated that the typical household contained 5.79 people.

The new figure also was down from 2.64 people in 1987 and 2.75 in 1980.

Census demographer Campbell Gibson said three factors are important in the decline in household size.

"More than anything else ... the decline in fertility" has had an impact on household size, said Gibson. He said the drop in household size has resulted largely from a decline in people under age 18.

In addition, he said, larger numbers of older Americans are living on their own, as are increasing numbers of young people.

Between 1980 and 1988 the total number of households increased 13.9 percent, but the population rose just 8.5 percent.

Between 1980 and 1987 the proportion of the total population under age 18 dropped from 28.1 percent to 26.0 percent.

The nation's birth rate fell from 18.2 births per 1,000 people in 1970 to 15.6 in 1987.

In recent years total births have begun to creep up again, largely because the giant Baby Boom generation is in its prime child-bearing years. However, the Baby Boomers still are reproducing at a lower rate than their parents, resulting in fewer children per household.

"Total births are still nowhere near" what they were in the decade following World War II, Gibson said.

This decline in young people is reflected in the maturing of America's population, a change emphasized on Thursday with a separate Census report showing that the nation's median age has risen to 32.3, its highest level ever.

Baby Boomers and elderly Americans whose lives have been extended by improved medical care are largely responsible for that increase.

In 1970 about 5 million people aged 65 and over lived alone, while by 1987 that total had risen to 8.5 million. In addition, many young people continue to set up housekeeping on their own rather than forming families as they pursue education and careers.

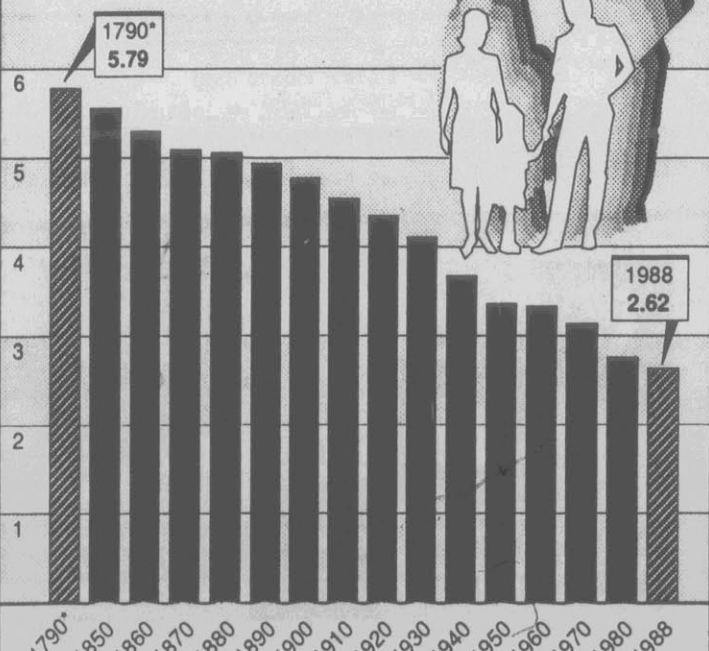

In 1987 there were 6.5 million persons aged 25 to 44 living alone, compared to just 1.6 million in 1970, Census studies show.

Gibson discounted the effect of the rise in divorce and separation on household size, however, saying detailed statistics are not available to determine that effect.

Family-oriented Utah was the only state with an average household size of more than three, at 3.17, the bureau reported. Florida and Oregon had the smallest average household size at 2.46.

Fewer members in today's families

The American family, averaging 5.79 persons in 1790, shrunk to only 2.62 persons by 1988.

Time Capsule

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Elon College tried to preserve a piece of the present for the future today when it sealed a time capsule for the school's second century.

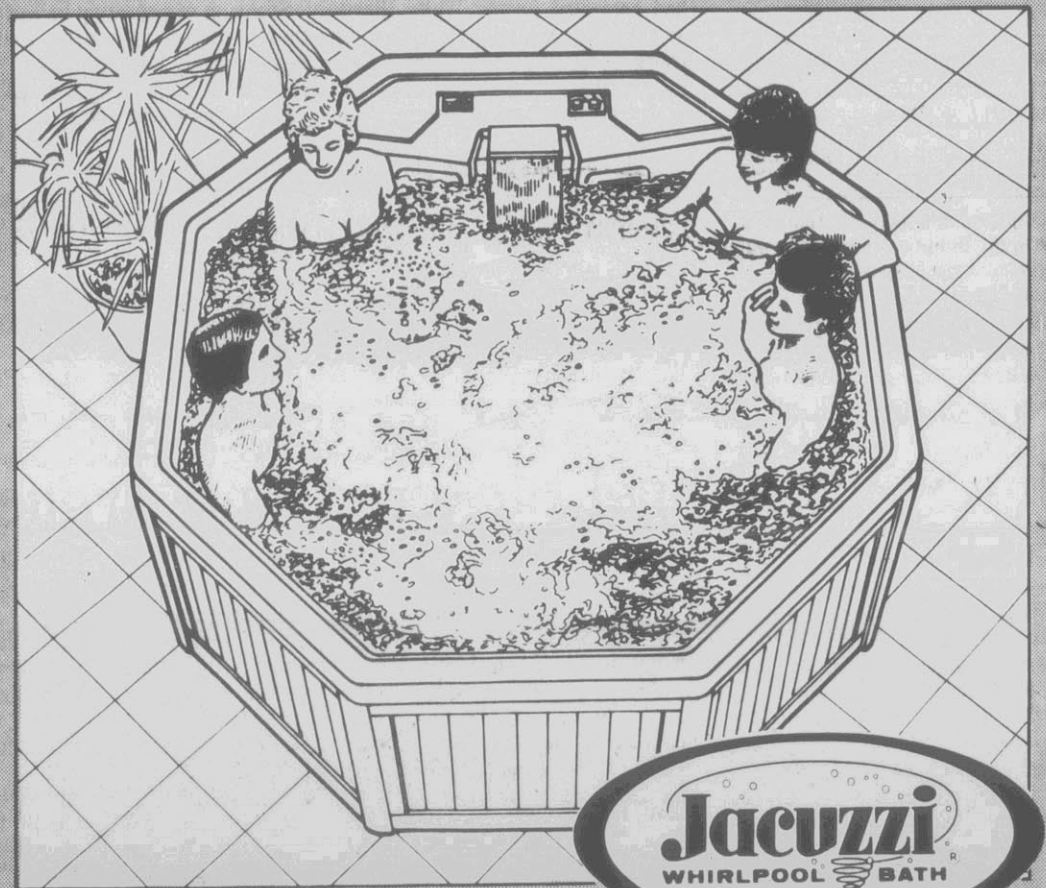

Capping the time capsule concluded Elon's year-long 100th birthday celebration.

Members of the Elon College Writers Bloc, a student organization, have spearheaded the effort to collect objects representing campus life for placement in the capsule. Instead of being buried in the ground or placed back in the cornerstone, the capsule will be housed in a specially designed area in a new student center building expected to be completed in the next five years, said Susan Klopman, writing specialist in the college's development office.

"We wanted to hold it for its own special place in the new building," she said.

Conservatives Call For Quick Pardon For North

By Lawrence L. Knutson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Calls for a presidential pardon in the wake of three guilty verdicts against former Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North are producing disagreement in Congress, but most of those commenting believe that North should spend little or no time in jail.

Many conservatives called for a prompt pardon by President Bush. Other members of Congress — including some conservatives — said that would be premature at best and that the judicial process should be allowed to run its course.

Former President Gerald R. Ford, whose pardon of ex-President Richard Nixon caused a furor and may have cost Ford re-election, declined to give Bush advice on the subject.

"I have very strictly taken the position that it would be inappropriate for me to comment on that publicly.... It's a very very personal (decision) to the president, as I found out from my own experience," said Ford on ABC's Good Morning America.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House investigating committee, said on "Today" this morning that "this is not an instance where a presidential pardon is appropriate, nor is it an instance where he should have extended sentence...."

Hamilton said earlier that the "fact that Col. North was in a difficult position does not absolve him of his responsibility, but it may go toward mitigation of his punishment."

Opinions varied widely on the federal jury's split decision — convicting North on three charges, acquitting him on nine others — and on the ultimate meaning of his role at the heart of the mystery known as the Iran-Contra affair.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., said on CBS "This Morning" that while he opposes a pardon, the commutation of a prison sentence would be "totally appropriate."

"I don't think there should be a prison sentence. I don't think there ought to be any kind of a harsh sentence at all. I do think it is important to establish for the future that there's no ambiguity, that no matter what you think other people may have ordered, you simply can't rip up documents and you can't mislead the Congress as long as national security wasn't involved," said Frank.

"I think he's a very tragic figure," said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., vice chairman of the Senate Iran-Contra Committee. "But I find no evidence of remorse on his part because he really believes he was doing what he was supposed to do."

"I do not think Oliver North understands to this day what the constitutional issues were all about," Rudman said.

Daniel L. Casey, president of the American Conservative Union, called on Bush to pardon North and Richard A. Viguerie, chairman of the United Conservative Union, declared that "Oliver North deserves a medal, not a prison sentence."

"I predict there will be an avalanche of conservative outcry for President Bush to pardon Ollie," Viguerie said.

"I think George Bush should pardon him," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who was one of North's stoutest defenders in the Iran-Contra probe.

But Hatch and other senators said that step would almost certainly cause political problems for Bush, similar to those faced by Ford when he pardoned Nixon in the Watergate scandal.

"The president's problem is that if he does pardon him there will be shouting and screaming from the same partisans who have been out to hang North from the beginning," Hatch said.

Some of Hatch's conservative colleagues disagreed on the pardon issue.

"I do not want to see a pardon because I think the court system is working very well," said Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., also opposed a pardon saying, "The man was indicted and the jury decided that the facts upheld three of the indictments. It's obviously a tragedy for him and his family. But no one is above the law."

"As a former prosecutor I wasn't surprised at the verdict," said Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt. "What the jury is saying very clearly is that North shouldn't be taking the blame for the whole thing, he shouldn't be a fall guy."

But Leahy said a presidential pardon would "make a mockery of the whole system."

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said a pardon would be "outrageous."

"I take the president at his word that there will be no pardon," Biden said and added: "It seems to me the jury came to the conclusion that you cannot lie and that you are not allowed to go ahead and shred documents, that you are responsible for your actions, that you still have to obey the law even though someone else told you to do it."

Former President Reagan, on whose watch North took the actions that resulted in the Iran-Contra scandal and his trial by jury, declined to comment because North still faces a long process of court hearings and appeals.

But Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, the chairman of the Senate Iran-Contra Committee, said the decision reaffirms the panel's findings that North and the others involved in the Iran-Contra affair "showed disdain for our laws and constitutional system of government."

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., who also served on the Iran-Contra committee, said he felt "Colonel North was left twisting in the wind by an administration he served with all his heart and soul."

Bush Denies He Promised Honduras Aid In Trade For Contra Support

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he never told Honduras' president that U.S. aid would be linked to that country's support for the Nicaraguan rebels. And he dares skeptics to prove him wrong.

Confronting a pivotal Iran-Contra question head-on Thursday, Bush declared firmly there was no deal, "no quid pro quo."

Bush, who had refused to address the issue for weeks, did so moments before a federal jury announced it had convicted former White House aide Oliver North on three of 12 charges relating to the arms-and-money affair.

The president cited the ongoing North trial recently in refusing to talk about suggestions he played an intermediary's role as vice president in a purported Reagan administration plan to tie American assistance to the willingness of Latin American countries to help the Contras.

But on Thursday he was eager to take the question.

Speaking of a meeting he had with then-Honduran President Roberto Suazo in early 1985, Bush said: "The records of the meeting demonstrate there was no quid pro quo."

"The word of the president of the United States — George Bush — is, there was no quid pro quo. No implication, no quid pro quo, direct or indirect, from me to the president of Honduras on that visit."

"And for those who suggest there was, the onus is on them.... Thank you for asking that question."

Neither Bush nor White House aides would say whether he might grant North a pardon. Nor would the White House comment on the verdict.

Bush said on April 24 that he had not talked with anyone about whether he would pardon North and said any suggestions about what he would do were "stupid" and "idiotic." In the past, he had called North a hero and said he hoped the former Marine officer would be acquitted.

The question of Bush's role in a possible Reagan administration deal with Honduras was raised in documents presented at the North trial. The documents placed him at a meeting with Suazo in Honduras at a time when internal Reagan administration memos suggested a plan in which continuing U.S. aid to Latin American countries would be linked to assistance for the rebels.

The government "admitted for purposes of this trial" the facts in a main document, the 42-page stipulation introduced at the trial, although a State Department official subsequently said it presented a distorted picture of U.S. policy and actions in 1985 and 1986. The U.S. government was barred from directly or indirectly aiding the rebels during that time.

The document never asserted that Bush discussed a quid pro quo arrangement with Suazo.

Juror Says Panel Bickered And Argued

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Oliver North was a credible witness and should be spared from prison, says one of the jurors who voted to convict the former White House aide after days of deliberations often filled with "bickering and arguing."

"I believed him," juror Earl F. Williams, 65, said Thursday after the jury found North guilty of three of 12 counts against him. "No, I don't think he should go to jail."

"Col. North, I don't know if he's all that bad or all that good. He made some mistakes."

Williams, a former security guard who had served with Gen. George Patton's 3rd Army in World War II, said the jury did not agree on the guilty counts until Thursday, the 12th day of deliberations, although some of the acquittals had been decided earlier.

The last charge to be decided was whether North altered and shredded government documents, the District of Columbia resident said. He said the question was over whether North had criminal intent.

North was also convicted of obstructing Congress and accepting an illegal gratuity.

"The jury was split a while on some of the counts, and in a case such as this there is a lot of bickering and arguing," he said. "But with God's help we prayed a lot and made a decision."

Williams said the nine female jurors, "were really set in their ways, but after prayer, a little consideration and friendly talking they came right in with us." But he did not say in what direction anyone had to be persuaded.

Student Protests Spread

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thirty-five students were arrested at the University of Massachusetts' latest sit-in, bringing the two-week total to 102 arrests, while protests continued at several other colleges across the country.

Police on Thursday used wheelchairs to arrest 32 students after a 20-hour occupation of a dean's office in a science building to protest Defense Department-funded research at the 25,000-student campus.

Three more students were taken into custody outside, including two who allegedly tried to block buses carrying protesters to the football stadium.

Meantime, City University of New York students told school administrators they would end their sit-ins against proposed tuition increases and budget cuts today, said Mark Torres, a leader and spokesman for the CUNY Student Coordinating Committee.

But unified action by the students appeared far from certain.

"We're not pulling out, regardless of what they say," said Xaire Muhammad, one of the protesters occupying two buildings at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in Manhattan.

Elsewhere, teaching and research assistants at the University of California-Berkeley ended a two-day strike on Thursday, claiming they had won overwhelming support from students.

In Atlanta, a group hoping to pressure Mercer University trustees to keep open the school's College of Arts and Sciences ended a 24-hour "read-in" Thursday and launched a daylong prayer vigil. Trustees voted to close the college June 30, 1990.

In Middlebury, Vt., several hundred students protested tuition increases at Middlebury College, but the school's president said the demonstration was unlikely to stop plans to increase tuition to $19,000 a year, from $17,000 this year.

Parents Questioned

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST ALTON, Mo. — A body found in a trash barrel was that of a 3-week-old Illinois girl, and authorities questioned the parents who had told them the baby was abducted much like another infant daughter three years ago.

An autopsy performed Thursday confirmed the identity of Heather Sims, who was reported abducted last weekend under circumstances that mirrored the 1986 disappearance of her sister.

The first infant, 13 days old, also was found dead.

Several hours after the autopsy, authorities broke windows to get into the Sims home right across the river from this Mississippi River town.

Robert and Paula Sims were not at their home in Alton, Ill., but went to the Alton police station to answer questions later Thursday, said Sgt. Rick McCain. Police refused to say what they were looking for at the home.

Dr. Mary Case, the St. Charles County medical examiner, would not comment on Heather's cause of death, but said it was a homicide.

At the old lock and dam, a popular spot for fishing and boating 30 miles north of St. Louis, at least two dozen federal, state and local investigators, assisted by dogs, searched for evidence where Heather's body was found.

The couple told police that a masked man approached Mrs. Sims while she was taking out trash Saturday night, and that the gunman forced her back into the home, knocked her unconscious and took the infant. Sims said he was at work at the time.

In June 1986, the Simses, who then lived in Brighton, Ill., reported to police that an armed intruder barged into their home — again while Robert Sims was at work — and took their 13-day-old baby, Lorelei.

Lorelei's remains were discovered a week later near the couple's home. The cause of death never was determined and no one was charged. Investigators have said the Simses were suspects, although the couple denied any involvement in the baby's disappearance.

The couple has a 15-month-old son.

Rockin' Barber Remembers 4 Famous Cousins

By Guy Coates
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FERRIDAY, La. — Mayor Glen McGlothlin, who sings with a rock 'n' roll band when he's not barbering or mayoring, dances around the chair as he clips a patron's hair and talks about Ferriday's famous four.

A sign on the edge of town reminds you that Ferriday is "Home of Jerry Lee Lewis, Mickey Gilley, Jimmy Swaggart and Howard K. Smith."

The latter, of course, is the network TV anchorman. But the barbershop gossip this day is mostly about the others, the three cousins who left this Mississippi River town of 4,000 folks and took separate routes to make their mark in rock 'n' roll, country music and TV evangelism.

"There's a lot of disappointment in this town," says McGlothlin, referring to the furor surrounding Swaggart who was defrocked by the Assemblies of God Church in 1988 after a New Orleans prostitute said the evangelist had paid her to pose nude for him. Swaggart refused a denominational order to stay out of the pulpit for a year. In January a New Orleans stripper, Mary Catherine Kampen, made similar allegations against Swaggart in Penthouse magazine.

"You may not agree with him on his thinking," says McGlothlin, a member of a clan that grew up with the three famous cousins. "He got pretty bad down on the Catholics for a while, and the Baptists. But a lot of people thought he was a good Christian man. And I'm not going to say he ain't."

"I'm not in the judging business. God does a pretty good job of judging. The Bible says he who is without sin can cast the first stone. Well, I couldn't throw a pebble."

The woman who made the accusations in Penthouse, he says, "is at least pretty. That other girl, though, she was ugly. Just pure ugly."

The mayor-barber perks up when asked about Jerry Lee Lewis, the rock 'n' roll legend whose life story is depicted in a new movie titled "Great Balls of Fire" due for release in late June.

"I was just a tad when Jerry Lee lived in town," says the 42-year-old McGlothlin. "He was cocky but he said he would make it big one day. I'd listen to him rattle that piano and say to myself that I would, too."

When McGlothlin was about 21 and ready to try the big time, the Army grabbed him.

"It was Christmas Eve 1967 when I got drafted," he says. "Boy, was I mad. Two LSU football players and I were getting the physical. I'm telling you, these boys were big. They could knock walls down and eat nails. They flunked the physical. Me, I was dried up, 140 pounds, and passed."

"The next thing I knew, I was in the 1st Cavalry in Vietnam and they made me point man on patrol. I still don't know who disliked me so much."

Doing a jitterbug step around his barber chair, McGlothlin sighs and concedes that even if the Army hadn't intervened, he still wouldn't have made it as lead singer in a big-time band.

"I had the stardust like a lot of kids around here who were poor and saw how Jerry Lee and Mickey made it," he says. "But I never had what it takes to make it big. Jerry Lee had that thing. He could make you jump out of a seat and dance. That's the thing that sells records."

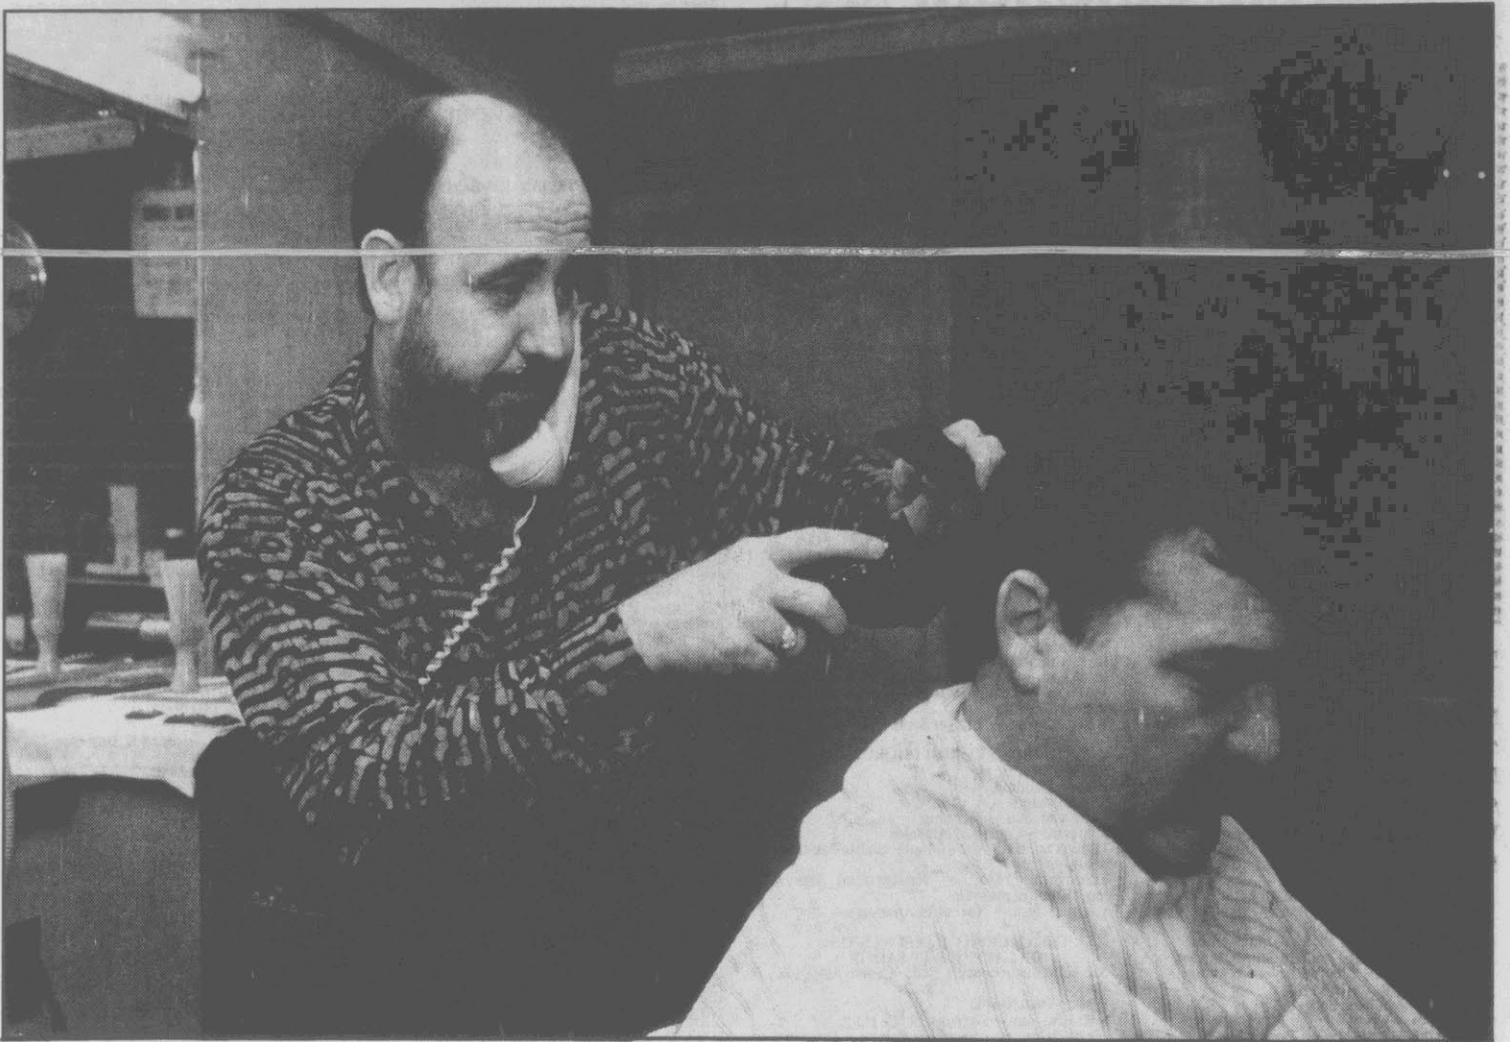

Gilley, well-known in country music circles, became nationally known when the movie "Urban Cowboy" featured the nightclub "Gilley's" in Pasadena, Texas, outside Houston. Gilley was part-owner of the club, which is now closed.

The mayor's band, Fast Eddie and the Partyrockers, does all right around Ferriday and Natchez, across the river in Mississippi.

"We play enough gigs and are trying to broaden our base," says the mayor, who is lead singer. "We've played as far away as Biloxi. I can't play an instrument. I have to move all the time. I'm jittery, can't sit still long enough to practice."

He's always on the move while cutting hair, often with a telephone cradled under his chin.

The customer in the chair at the moment is napping, apparently

The Associated Press

Barber McGlothlin recalls hometown cousins Jerry Lee Lewis, Mickey Gilley, Jimmy Swaggart, Howard K. Smith trusting the whirling dervish with scissors not to nip an ear.

Putting on his mayor's face, McGlothlin says the town "is tickled" about the new movie about Jerry Lee's life, but, "I wish they would have made some of it here. This town needs the money."

The phone rings — as it does every few minutes — and the mayor discusses toilets he found for free to replace those broken by vandals at a recreation center.

Katherine Dodson McGlothlin, who was formerly married to an older brother of the mayor's, drops by the barbershop to chat.

"Talk to her," McGlothlin says. "She went to school with those three."

"I used to dance with Jerry Lee while he was standing up playing the piano," she says. "He was into mischief and skipped school a lot but he was a good boy. Mickey was settled down because he was going steady with Geraldine Jones. Jimmy Lee was quiet. He only played in church."

The mayor's uncle, Concordia Parish Sheriff Hubert Lee McGlothlin, also went to school with the three.

"All those boys would play piano in church and they'd put so much rhythm in it, the minister would ease 'em off a bit," the sheriff says. "Why you could dance to 'The Old Rugged Cross' the way they played it."

"The one thing I can say about all of them is that they never forgot where they came from. They come back once in a while and they're the same, just good old boys. I rode many a mile on the back of a bicycle with those boys. Mrs. Gilley gave me my first BB gun. I came from a family with 11 kids. We all lived on the same block, the Swaggarts, the Gilleys, the Lewises and the McGlothlins."

Katherine McGlothlin says she often goes to Memphis, Tenn., and runs into Jerry Lee at The September Place, an after-hours bistro.

"You can't get in unless you have your own bottle," she says. "I don't drink so I look in the alley for an empty bottle, put it in a paper bag and go in. When Jerry comes in it's usually at midnight. He's usually polluted. But if he's in fairly good shape, he plays. He's sent flowers to my table. He doesn't forget old friends."

When they were young, she adds, "All those boys preached at times."

"Yeah, I heard that Jerry Lee would have made the best preacher but he went the other way," puts in the mayor. "He used to sneak in black bars down the road. The church made him play gospel, but he wanted to play hard-down boogie-woogie and he learned it in those bars."

As for his own career, McGlothlin says, he got into politics because the town barber knows the common man's problems "better than most anyone else."

"My father and my grandfather were barbers and I learned a lot from them about people," he says. "I don't know a lot about any one subject, but I know a little about a lot. I know a little hunting, where the fish are biting and I sympathize with farmers because if they don't make it, I don't make it.

"One thing I don't try to discuss is religion. My father and grandfather told me that."

Study Confirms It: Fundamental Things Apply As Time Goes By

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Sex differences in human mate selection are virtually universal and probably rooted in human evolutionary history, according to a worldwide study.

"Men worldwide place greater value on mates who are young and physically attractive. Women prefer mates who are somewhat older, have good financial prospects and are ambitious and industrious," says David M. Buss. "These basic differences were found in samples ranging from coast-dwelling Australians to urban Brazilians to rural Zulus in South Africa."

Buss is associate professor of psychology at the University of Michigan and director of the International Mate Selection Project, an international consortium of 50 scientists who carried out parallel studies.

Why the pervasiveness? It all has to do with reproduction, says Buss. A woman must have access to food and shelter for her offspring which "enhance the possibility that her children will survive." To reproduce, men must have access to fertile females, and, says Buss, youth and physical appearance provide the most apparent indicators of fertility.

Add New Life To A Room Without Adding Expense

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRONXVILLE, N.Y. — If you've just redone a room and you feel it needs a little touch of something, or if you're tired of a look and you don't want to spend a lot of money to change it, there are several remedies.

For example, says decorator Dominique Yvernault, you don't have to walk in a straight line to get from room to room. So if you have a large living room, bring the furniture out from the walls. It will help create a cozy, welcoming look.

"It's great to put your chairs, an ottoman or a couch in the center of the room," the Bronxville, N.Y., interior designer says. "Two loveseats in front of the fire are always nice."

Proper lighting is important not only for warmth, but for flattering the skin. "Don't overlook candlelight," she says. "Candles are always nice on the dining room table and also look pretty on a mantel, in crystal balls that sparkle in the light."

Yvernault, who as head of her own interior design firm has done some of the New York area's spiffiest homes, offers these other foolproof tips to make your home more inviting:

— Display your collections. A collection of something you love is always intriguing and shows your own personality. Gather your collection together — a group of things has the most impact.

— Use your living room. It's a shame so many families use their living rooms only at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter.

— Create an atmosphere. Music. A fire in the fireplace. A soft fragrance in the air. These are welcoming touches for your family, and for guests.

— Use plants and flowers: Flowers are wonderful, even a single rose. I love orchids, but you can get the same impact less expensively in other ways. These days, most markets sell nice little flowers that can really set off a room.

his retired pay," said Pentagon spokeswoman Linda Dumoulin. The conviction is legally effective as soon as the secretary of the Navy is formally notified and the paperwork completed.

For North, intensely proud of his Marine career, the pain of that punishment is likely to be more in its symbolism than its financial cost. Conservative groups have been willing to pay him as much as $20,000 in speaking fees for a single appearance, and just a few hours after his conviction, two more speaking engagements were announced in Cleveland for May 11.

In seeking to overturn the convictions, North's lawyers will first file post-trial motions with Gesell on the question of whether North's case was tainted by his and other witnesses' nationally televised immunized congressional testimony in 1987. That could mean delving further into the knowledge of jurors, the grand jurors who indicted North and prosecutors in the office of independent counsel Lawrence Walsh. Gesell set a deadline of 10 days for the defense to announce its intentions.

North was found innocent of charges that focused on lying and obstructing Congress in 1985 and 1986 by denying he was assisting the Contras. At the time his superiors had passed along an order from Reagan to see to the needs of the rebels, and to do so secretly during a congressional ban on military aid, according to trial testimony.

But North was found guilty of aiding and abetting an obstruction of Congress as well as shredding and altering documents in November 1986, crimes that occurred after the Iran arms sales had been publicly disclosed. North also was found guilty of accepting a $13,800 home security system in mid-1986 from Iran-Contra co-defendant Richard Secord, whom North had enlisted to run arms to the Contras.

President Bush used the occasion of the verdict to speak out on a major question raised by evidence in the trial — whether as vice president he helped circumvent the ban on U.S. aid to the Contras.

Bush, who previously had declined to comment because of the ongoing trial proceedings, declared Thursday that he never told Honduras' president that U.S. aid would be linked to that country's support for the Nicaraguan rebels.

Bush declared firmly that there was no deal, "no quid pro quo."

Some conservatives, meanwhile, clamored for a presidential pardon of North. Richard A. Viguier, chairman of the United Conservative Union, declared that "Oliver North deserves a medal, not a prison sentence."

But on Capitol Hill, conservative Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., opposed a pardon, saying, "The man was indicted and the jury decided that the facts upheld three of the indictments. It's obviously a tragedy for him and his family. But no one is above the law."

During the rest of the mission, the astronauts will try to photograph lightning systems at night and attempt to grow crystals of indium by melting and then re-solidifying the material.

The crew members also will take other photographs of the Earth as well as test various systems on the orbiter. Another planned project includes taking saliva samples during the flight to determine how an anti-motion sickness drug is absorbed by the body in zero gravity.

Atlantis, in orbit 184 miles above the Earth, is scheduled to land Monday afternoon at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"It was really a wonderful day for us, the beginning of the rebirth of the planetary program," Gerpheide said. "It's the beginning of a really grand set of missions which will last for quite a few years."

"While it's too early to tell about the major portion of Magellan's mission, we're pleased it's gone so well so far," Walker said when told Magellan had been launched on its journey.

Magellan was the first planetary craft deployed from a space shuttle.

The Magellan is moving at a rate of 25,000 mph, relative to Earth, meaning it travels about 416 miles in just sixty seconds.

Pitt Teachers Preparing For Lobby Day In Raleigh

considered in the Legislature, Ms. Kron said. They are being sponsored by Gov. Jim Martin, the Public School Forum of North Carolina and the NCAE.

Ms. Kron said each of the bills would phase in a 30-step salary schedule over a period of three years and would pay beginning teachers about $20,000, while veterans would receive from about $35,000 to $46,000.

The forum's plan would cost the state the most money to implement at $163.9 million, Ms. Kron said. The governor's plan would cost about $107.5 million, while the NCAE's plan would cost about $149 million.

"Career ladder is attached to the governor's salary bill" and to the forum's bill, Ms. Kron said. Career ladder is a merit-pay program that currently is being piloted in 16 school systems in the state and is being recommended by the governor.

NCAE has opposed implementation of the career ladder program in its present form, indicating that certain elements such as the Teacher Performance Appraisal Instrument need to be improved.

A 20-step plan recently proposed by state education Superintendent Bobby Etheridge represents a compromise of the other plans, Ms. Kron said. It would cost the state about $381 million in the next two years to implement the plan that includes a new salary schedule for all school employees.

In Etheridge's plan which has yet to be introduced as a bill, "you get to the top faster, and your total lifetime earnings are greater," she said.

But on Wednesday the state Board of Education eliminated a 4 percent pay increase for teachers who work three years and earn tenure that was part of the original proposal submitted by Etheridge. It decided that the $75 million to $80 million that would be needed to fund that pay increase should be used for expanding the career ladder program.

Ms. Kron also discussed Senate Bill 2, "The School Improvement and Accountability Act of 1989."

The bill would allow local school districts the option of whether to implement the career ladder program, to develop its own merit program or to have no merit program at all, she said.

Any program would require the majority vote of all teachers in the school district as well as the majority vote of school administrators and the local board of education.

"I think it's going to be up to each individual school district to find what works in their schools," Ms. Kron said. "I don't think there's a panacea for everything."

Ms. Kron also briefly discussed bills that would affect educators' health insurance, annual leave for teachers and the implementation of educational programs for 3- and 4-year-olds. She encouraged the teachers to make their principals aware of a public hearing Monday that will address the issue of tenure for principals.

A state rally with the theme "10,000 for 10 percent" will be held June 16 in Dorton Arena in Raleigh, Ms. Kron said. "This will be appropriation time," she said. "This is when they (legislators) spend the money."

Easy Goer Is Odds-On Favorite

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Now, Shug McGaughey can restart his heart and take a few easy breaths before Saturday. Easy Goer is the Kentucky Derby's first odds-on favorite in this decade, and the main horse is in the main gate.

Easy Goer will break from the 14th of 16 post positions Saturday, taking what many believe will be the first step on a Triple Crown road last traveled in 1978 by Affirmed.

"Somebody said they heard my heart pounding through my shirt when they drew the first, 15th and 16th post positions," McGaughey, Easy Goer's trainer, said. "I took a deep breath and relaxed a lot."

The main gate holds 14 starters. The 15th and 16th starters, 50-1 outsiders Wind Splitter and Northern Wolf, will break from an auxiliary gate set up at the end of the main gate.

While there may be concern about the auxiliary gate opening, it's never failed in the Derby. The most obvious disadvantage is that because the auxiliary gate doesn't fit tightly against the main gate, the 15 and 16 starters are forced even farther outside.

"If I'd have picked, it wouldn't be 14," McGaughey said. "But what I really didn't want was number one or the auxiliary gate."

Easy Goer, who has won all three starts this year with ease, was a 3-5 early favorite, coupled in betting with stablemate Awe Inspiring, the Flamingo Stakes winner who will break from the No. 13 post. Even without the entrainment, Easy Goer almost certainly would be odds-on.

Not only is McGaughey's entry the first odds-on Derby favorite since Spectacular Bid won in 1979, but Easy Goer also will be trying to become the first 2-year-old champion since Spectacular Bid to win the race.

Sunday Silence, the Santa Anita Derby winner trained by Charlie Whittingham, will start from the 10th post and was made the 3-1 second choice when 16 3-year-old colts were entered Thursday.

"It's a very fine post position," the 76-year-old Whittingham said. "In fact, anywhere in the main gate is good."

The D. Wayne Lukas entry of Houston, winner of the Bayshore and Derby Trial, and grass specialist Shy Tom was made an 8-1 third choice, along with Harvey Vanier's Western Playboy, winner of the Jim Beam and Blue Grass stakes and apparently recovered from an infection in the hock of his left hind leg.

Houston will start from the No. 6 post, and Western Playboy from No.

3. Shy Tom, a late entry who hasn't raced on dirt since last December, will start from the fifth spot.

"Your concern is always that nobody runs over you," Lukas said. "It's kind of like driving a car on the freeway. You can be a good driver in a new car, and it's the guys in the clunkers on the inside and outside lanes that you have to keep an eye on."

"I don't have a super-fast horse inside of me, but I would have preferred Shug or Charlie's post," Lukas said. "Everybody's on the inside of you, and you can see them."

Lukas said horses have a natural tendency to drift toward the rail since that's the way they are trained.

"And there's a certain intimidation factor," he said. "Horses on the outside can always put the squeeze on a little bit."

McGaughey, who will send Pat

Day out to ride Easy Goer, said his main worry starting from so far outside was the dash to the first turn of the 1 1/4-mile race.

"But, to be honest, we've got three-eighths of a mile to run to that turn, so if the riders are careful, there shouldn't be any problems," McGaughey said.

Each starter will carry 126 pounds, and, if they all go to post, the race will be worth $759,200, with $584,200 to the winner. ABC will televise live from Churchill Downs from 5-6 p.m. EDT, with the race scheduled to start at about 5:33 p.m.

East Carolina University's Pirates close out their regular season over the next few days, aiming to get a little momentum going into the Colonial Athletic Association Tournament.

The Pirates play host to Norfolk State, a strong Division II team, tonight and North Carolina Wesleyan, a Division III power, on Saturday night. Those two games close out the home season.

The Pirates then travel to Chapel Hill to face the University of North Carolina, one of the powers of the Atlantic Coast Conference, on Tuesday.

Then, they'll have two days off before opening the CAA tournament at UNC-Wilmington against George Mason.

All three games are scheduled to start at 7 p.m., both at Harrington and at UNC's Boshamer Stadium.

Coach Gary Overton says that none of these three will be easy pickings for the Pirates. But at the same time, Overton is glad to be playing strong teams as the Pirates prepare for the tournament.

Injuries May Slow Pirate Bats

A key injury which occurred in the opening game of the doubleheader with Mount Olive could hurt the Pirate hitting, however. In that game, the Pirates were already without the services of third baseman John Gast, sidelined with a strep throat. Gast, however, is expected to be back for this weekend's games and for the tournament.

During the first game, first baseman Calvin Brown suffered a torn cartilage in his knee when making a cut. Overton said it was almost the exact same injury that Kansas City Royals' star George Brett suffered a few days later.

Brown, one of the leading hitters for the Pirates with a .362 average, and the leader in homers with 11, may be able to serve as a designated hitter for this weekend's games, but the Pirates may hold him out until the tournament.

However, it appears that there is no way that he will be able to work in the field, so something will have to be done to shore up the defense.

Pirate hurler Jake Jacobs delivers a pitch home

Jacobs Achieves Feat Few Have

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In the past two weeks, Jake Jacobs has put his name into the East Carolina University baseball record books with indelible ink.

Jacobs, with back-to-back no-hitters against Atlantic Christian College and Mount Olive College, did something that few pitchers ever attain. In the major leagues, only one man ever accomplished that feat, Johnny Vander Meer.

"I've never had a pitcher have two no-hitters in a season before," Coach Gary Overton said, "and I've never heard of a pitcher (having back-to-back no-hitters.)"

"It was enjoyable to watch (the two no-hitters) not only because we won, but for seeing how he performed. In the first game, he didn't have his best stuff and he had to pitch. But he hit his spots as well as I've seen anyone. In the second game, he did have his good stuff. He threw it on talent whereas the first one was on his knowledge in setting up the hitters."

For Jacobs, the second no-hitter was especially sweet. Having attended school at Southern Wayne, just outside Mount Olive, he not only had some former teammates on the Trojan squad, but his father is an assistant coach with the team.

"He was real proud of me," Jacobs said. "I've learned a lot from him."

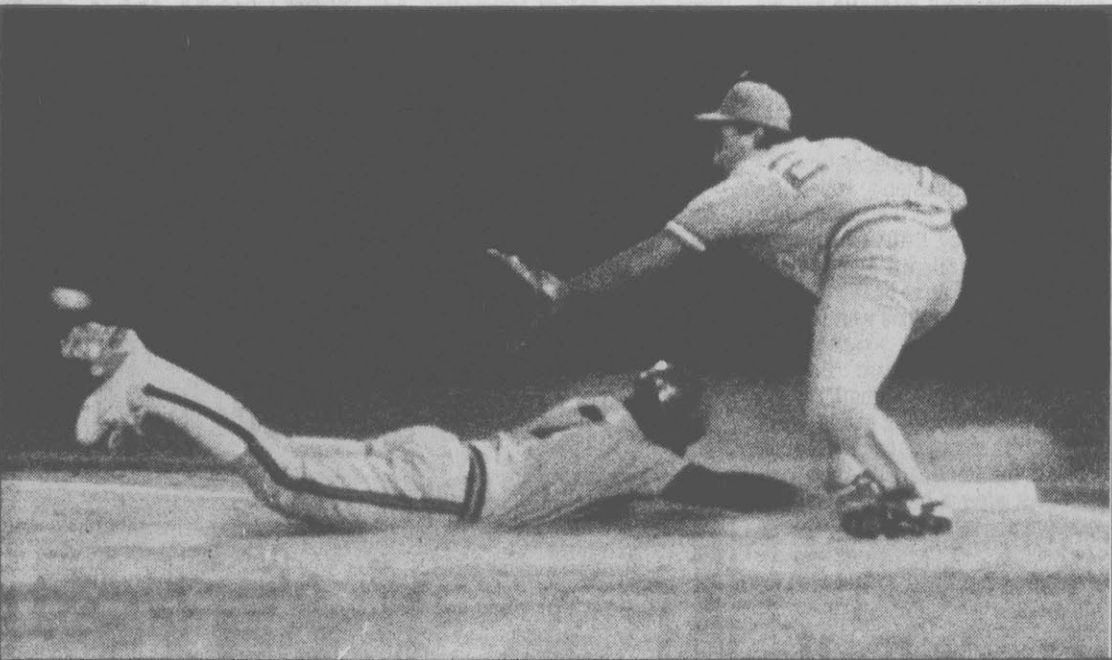

Jacobs' father played some minor league ball in his youth, with the Raleigh Capitals. He, too, was a pitcher, but a lefthander. "We talk a lot about things that can help me," the younger Jacobs said. "But he never pushed me in sports. In fact, I wasn't even a pitcher until I got into high school, I played second base. The only thing he told me was that he thought that because I wasn't very big I wouldn't be a three-sport star and I should concentrate on one."

For that reason, Jacobs transferred from Goldsboro to Southern Wayne to work with baseball coach Doyle Whitfield.

And from there, it was just a step to the mound. He put together a 22-2 high school record, including a 13-0 mark as a senior, leading his team to the 4-A state championship with an 0.47 earned run average.

Then, it was on to East Carolina, where he won 10 straight games as a

Ronnell Peterson dives back in safely at first during Ayden-Grifton's 11-8 win Thursday

Chargers Top Falcons, 11-8

Season-Long Slump At Plate Ends With 16 Hits

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's baseball team got what it had been waiting for all season long Thursday night — a big night of hitting.

The Chargers banged out 16 hits and recorded a 11-8 win over C.B. Aycock in an Eastern Plains Conference matchup.

"This is the most hits we've had in a week (of games combined)," Ayden-Grifton coach Chris Ross said. "This is without a doubt the best that we've hit the ball. We've been playing around with five or six hits per game every time until tonight."

The win boosts the Chargers to 6-9 overall and 4-3 in the league, while the Falcons slip to 8-4 and 3-4.

"They just hit the ball good early in the game," C.B. Aycock coach Dee Glover said. "We made a couple of mistakes that kept them going and they took advantage of what was available to them."

The Chargers wasted little time jumping into the lead in the game as they scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning.

With two outs, Jay Tripp belted a single to right. Ronnell Peterson followed with a double off the centerfield fence to score Tripp.

Gary Eubanks then singled to left to score Peterson. After Gene Stan-cil walked putting runners at first and second, John Tyndall doubled to left to score Eubanks and wind up the Ayden-Grifton scoring in the inning.

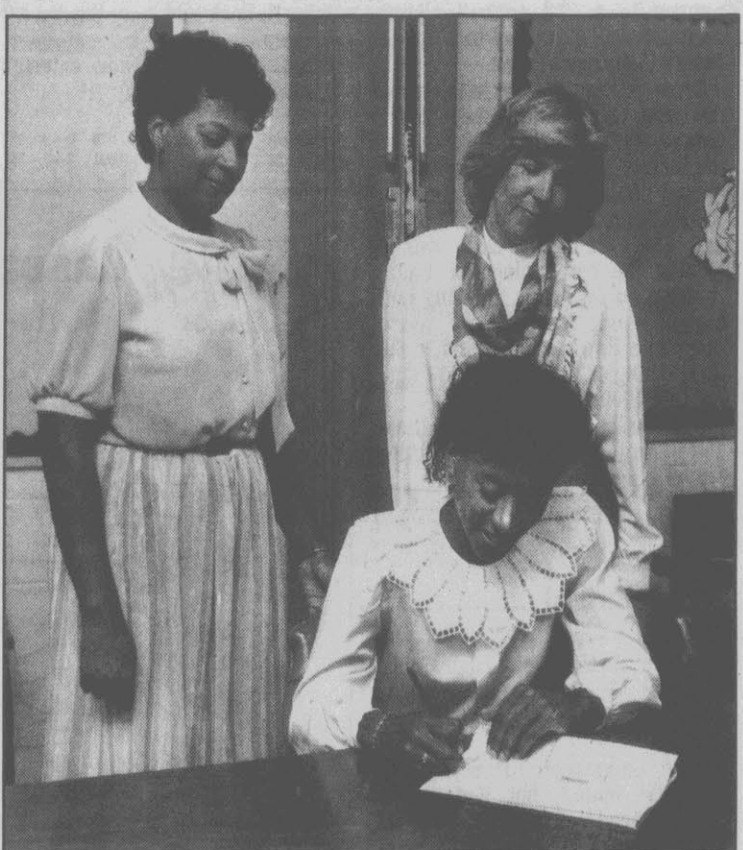

The Falcons managed to get even in the top of the second with a trio of runs. Bob Grant and Shawn Harris led off the inning with singles.

Grant later scored on a fielder's choice by McClain. Harris then scored on a wild pitch, while Freddie Gooding, who reached on a walk, scored the final run after an error on Charger catcher James Woodard.

Pilgreen Signs With E. Tennessee State

By Tim Chandler
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

BETHEL — East Tennessee State went looking for speed for its women's basketball team and found it in North Pitt's Keshia Pilgreen.

Pilgreen signed with the Lady Buccaneers earlier this week after looking at offers from Pembroke State, Mount Olive, St. Augustine's and Chowan College.

"They were looking for quickness and they wanted her for that reason," North Pitt coach Mabel Perry said. "They (East Tennessee State) don't have a lot of height and they like to run, so she should fit in well there."

Pilgreen said the desire to play basketball at the Division I level also figured into her decision. East Tennessee State, which is located in Johnson City, competes in the Southern Conference.

"I want to major in criminal justice and they have a very good program there," Pilgreen said. "And I really wanted a chance to play Division I basketball."

Pilgreen has been the scoring leader at North Pitt for the past three seasons. This year, she led the team in scoring with 23 points per game and rebounding with 10.2 per contest. To go along with that, Pilgreen was named the Eastern Plains Conference player of the year as she led the Pant-Hers to the regular season conference title, a state sectional title and a berth in the East regionals.

The Pant-Hers were eliminated in the regionals by eventual state champion Clinton.

"She was a great impact player for us," Perry said. "She was the leading scorer and rebounder for the past three years. Next year we'll know how bad we're going to miss her when we start playing."

By that time, Pilgreen will be bat-

Bo Farley Honored By NCHSAA

Bo Farley, former coach and athletic director at Rose High School, was one of 15 people awarded the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's Distinguished Service Award Thursday.

The awards were presented at the 75th anniversary meeting of the NCHSAA in Chapel Hill, with some 750 people in attendance.

The award, presented for "meritorious service to high school athletics," is presented annually to people in a wide-ranging field, including coaches, administrators, media and others, according to Rick Strunk, assistant executive director of the NCHSAA. Those selected were nominated and voted on state-wide. This is the fourth year of the program, according to Strunk.

Farley served for a number of years as a coach in several sports at Rose High and was the school's athletic director until his retirement.

In addition, two other area student-athletes were honored, Michael Moore of Rose and Wendy Dixon of Chocowinity. Both were among the candidates for state scholarship awards, representing Region I. Both, as regional representatives will receive $750 grants to apply to the college of their choice.

He will play on the East team, coached by St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca.

Joining Edwards on the East team will be Kato Armstrong of Southern Methodist, Ken Battle of Illinois, Paul Graham of Ohio University, Terence Green of DePaul, Ken McFadden of Cleveland State, Kenny Payne of Louisville and Rico Washington of Weber State.

Rose also lost to Fike Wednesday, 4-0.

Rose falls to 3-8-1 overall and returns to action at home against Wilson Hunt Tuesday.

L.A. Gets Rocked By Cards

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the bright side for Los Angeles, Mickey Hatcher pitched a hitless ninth inning against St. Louis.

By that time, however, most of the Dodgers weren't looking Why?

The Cardinals piled up 21 hits en route to a 12-0 victory Thursday night over Fernando Valenzuela.

Hatcher, who does just about everything for Los Angeles, was called on to mop up the mess.

He walked three, hit a batter and balked. But he didn't allow a hit.

"I waited 10 years for this," Hatcher said. "I had a spitter ready to go, but I forgot where I put the lubricant. They were squeezing my strike zone. It was one of the biggest thrills in my life."

For the 36,689 at Dodger Stadium, however, it's not quite as thrilling to see Valenzuela pitch anymore.

Valenzuela, trying to recover from a sore shoulder last season, allowed six runs in 1 2-3 innings in his worst outing of the season.

"I felt good," Valenzuela said. "I have no excuses. I threw all my pitches and they hit all my pitches. I'll just have to wait until my next time out. The only one who pitched well tonight was Mickey."

Ken Hill pitched a three-hitter for his first major-league shutout and Tom Brunansky and Pedro Guerrero drove in two runs each.

"He's definitely not the Fernando I remember seeing a couple of years back," Brunansky said. "When he was on, he was probably one of the nastiest pitchers in the game."

Milt Thompson sparked a five-run second inning with a two-run homer and Tony Pena paced the Cardinals' attack with four singles.

Giants 6, Pirates 3

Kevin Mitchell hit his major league-leading 10th home run of the season, leading San Francisco past Pittsburgh at Candlestick Park.

Mitchell, who also leads the majors with 32 runs batted in, hit a two-run homer in the third inning off

Randy Kramer, 0-1, to snap a 1-1 tie. It was Mitchell's fourth home run in his last three games.

Mitchell hit a career-high 19 home runs last season for the Giants in 505 at-bats. He entered the season with 53 homers in 1,311 career at-bats.

Mike Krukow, 1-0, pitched the first five innings for his first victory since last Aug. 18. He allowed home runs to Bobby Bonilla and Glenn Wilson.

Cubs 4, Padres 0

Mike Bielecki pitched a five-hitter and Andre Dawson went 4-for-4 with two triples as visiting Chicago beat San Diego, sweeping the two-game series.

The shutout was the first in Bielecki's major-league career, which began with Pittsburgh in 1984. Bielecki, 2-1, walked one and struck out four in recording his first complete game since Sept. 15, 1987, and only the third of his career.

Walt Terrell, 3-3, gave up eight hits, walked one and struck out four in six innings.

Mets 3, Reds 2

Howard Johnson homered off reliever Rob Dibble with one out in the 10th inning, leading New York past Cincinnati at Shea Stadium for the Mets' ninth victory in their last 11 games.

Dibble, 3-1, struck out Mookie Wilson and then allowed Johnson's fifth home run of the season, a drive over the right-field wall.

Astros 5, Expos 4

Bill Doran hit a home run with one out in the 10th inning to lift Houston over Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Reliever Joe Hesketh, 3-1, struck out Rafael Ramirez to start the 10th, but Doran hit a 3-2 pitch into the left-field seats.

Braves 3, Phillies 0

Tom Glavine pitched a two-hitter for his second shutout of the season as Atlanta beat visiting Philadelphia.

Glavine, 4-0, walked none and struck out two. He retired the last 13 batters he faced to record his third complete game of the season.

Easy Goer worked a half mile in 47 1-5 Thursday and galloped out in 59 3-5, too quick for McGaughey's taste. He chewed out exercise rider David Carroll for letting Easy Goer go after another horse for the second time this week.

"I was just irritated because things didn't go perfect," McGaughey said. "It's no big deal ... It didn't take anything out of him."

Sunday Silence also had his final workout Thursday, going 46 3-5 for a half mile and galloping out five-eighths in 1:01 3-5.

Easy Goer, winner of four of six career starts, has not lost since last Nov. 5 here in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile, when he finished second, 1/4 lengths behind Is It True over a muddy track.

The weather forecast calls for rain Friday and, for Saturday, cloudy skies, scattered showers and temperatures in the mid-50s.

McGaughey is not worried.

"I've been racing here since 1979, and I've never seen the track the way it was for the Breeders' Cup," McGaughey said. "Normally, this track is very fast when it's sloppy. If it's the ordinary sloppy track here on Saturday, he'll be fine on it."

In his last outing, Easy Goer won the Wood Memorial April 22 by three lengths over Rock Point, with Triple Buck third. Easy Goer won the April 8 Gotham by 13 lengths in 1:32 2-5, a one-fifth of a second off Dr. Fager's 1968 world record for the mile. Easy Goer also won his 3-year-old debut, the March 4 Swale, by 8 3/4 lengths.

Whittingham, meanwhile, kept Sunday Silence out West. He won his last start, the Santa Anita Derby on April 8, by a record 11 lengths, and, like Easy Goer, has won all three starts this year.

While rebounding with a five-length victory in last Saturday's Derby Trial, Houston's reputation took a sharp dip in the Santa Anita when he finished fifth, 16 3/4 lengths behind Sunday Silence. Lukas blamed the 100-plus degree heat.

Western Playboy has won just two of his five starts as a 3-year-old, but they were the last two. He beat Dispersal by a half-length in the Blue Grass on April 15, and he was a 1 1/2-length winner over Feather Ridge in the Jim Beam on April 11.

Bullets Win; Rose Falls

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville romped to a 17-2 softball victory over Creswell Thursday in a Tobacco Belt Conference game.

Creswell scored a run in the top of the first, but Jamesville put the game away with five in its half of the inning. Nikki Sexton singled and moved up on an out. She scored on Karen Styons' single. Jana Worsley and Sherry Blanton both walked, loading the bases. Jennifer Fagan reached on an error, allowing both Styons and Worsley to score. Stephanie Rawls walked and Rickie Jo Lee singled in Blanton and Fagan for the 5-0 lead.

Jamesville is now 12-2 overall and 10-1 in league play. The Lady Bullets travel to Bear Grass today.

Viola's Woes Leave Him Speechless

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Viola is still winless and it's driving him speechless.

"I've got so many things bound up to say but I'm speechless," Viola said after going 0-5 as the Minnesota Twins lost to the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2 Thursday night despite his complete-game eight-hitter.

"I thought I threw better than I have all year. The breaks just aren't going our way. It's not just me, it's the whole team."

While the Twins were suffering their 11th loss in 12 games and falling into the American League West Division cellar, in other AL games it was Cleveland 3, Kansas City 1 as John Farrell came within three outs of a no-hitter; New York 11, Texas 7; California 3, Toronto 2, and Chicago 5, Boston 4.

Viola, the 1988 Cy Young Award winner when he was 24-7 with a 2.64 earned run average, actually lowered his ERA to 4.84. The last time Viola went this far without a victory was 1983, his first full season in the majors when he didn't win until May 18, making him 1-2 en route to a 7-15 record.

The Brewers parlayed an infield hit, a stolen base, a broken-bat single and Joey Meyer's RBI grounder into a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. RBI singles by Gary Sheffield and Robin Yount made it 3-0 in the fifth.

Winner Don August allowed one run and six hits in seven innings. Chuck Crim retired the only batter he faced and Dan Plesac took over for his fifth save although he yielded a home run to Brian Harper with two out in the ninth.

The Twins gave it a shot for Viola in the ninth. Following Harper's homer, Carmen Castillo doubled, but Plesac speared Dan Gladden's line drive to end the game.

The entire Milwaukee team was on the field to congratulate Plesac when it was discovered that Harper's drive had bounced out of center fielder Yount's glove and over the fence.

"When he didn't present the ball, I thought, 'We've got problems,'" Manager Tom Trebelhorn said.

Indians 3, Royals 1

Farrell held the Royals hitless until the ninth. Willie Wilson started the ninth with a grounder that skipped over first baseman Pete O'Brien's glove for a two-base error and Kevin Seitzer broke up the no-hit bid with a fly ball that dropped inside the right-field line for a single, Kansas City's only hit. Wilson scored when Doug Jones got Jim Eisenreich to hit into a double play.

It was the third no-hit bid broken up in the ninth inning this season. Toronto's Nelson Liriano broke up both of the previous bids with a triple against Texas' Nolan Ryan on April 23 and a double against California's Kirk McCaskill on April 28.

"It's a real good feeling because everything seems to stand out so much," Farrell said. "You remember every pitch and the strike zone seems to be three or four times bigger than it was. I didn't relax. I knew what was on the line.

"I was thinking about the no-hitter in the fourth inning but I wasn't going to get too far ahead of myself. Before long it's the eighth inning, we score three runs and we're close to doing it."

Farrell was making his fourth start after beginning the year on the disabled list because of tendinitis in his right elbow. Loser Bret Saberhagen allowed three runs on five hits.

Cleveland broke a scoreless tie with three runs in the bottom of the eighth on a two-out RBI single by Jerry Browne and a two-run homer by Joe Carter, his third.

Yankees 11, Rangers 7
Two-run singles by Rickey Henderson and Don Mattingly highlighted light-hitting New York's largest outburst of the year, a five-run third inning. Winner Dave LaPoint gave up three homers and all seven Texas runs in 5 1-3 innings. Dale Mohorcic and Dave Righetti closed it out.

The Yankees chased Charlie Hough with four runs in the first inning, including Ken Phelps' RBI double and RBI singles by Wayne Tolleson and Alvaro Espinoza. Hough also lasted two-thirds of an inning against Cincinnati in 1979 as a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers, 268 starts ago. His previous shortest start with Texas was 12-3 innings.

The Yankees scored five runs in the third off Brad Arnsberg, equaling their biggest inning of the year and surpassing their previous high of eight runs in a game. New York's Steve Balboni and Texas' Pete Incaviglia, Rafael Palmeiro and Julio Franco hit solo homers.

Angels 3, Blue Jays 2
Lance Parrish led off the 10th inning with a double and eventually scored the winning run on Dante Bichette's sacrifice fly. Toronto's Junior Felix became the 53rd player in major-league history to hit a home run in his first at-bat with a third-inning shot off Kirk McCaskill.

White Sox 5, Red Sox 4
Ron Kittle drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Chicago withstood a late rally to end Boston's three-game winning streak.

Chicago starter Bill Long snapped a personal three-game losing streak by yielding a run and six hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Jarman's Auto.....12

Fickling Insurance inched past Jarman's Auto in a Tar Heel Little League slugfest Thursday afternoon, 13-12.

Fickling took the lead the first with a run but Jarman's came back with two in the top of the second. Fickling added another two in the fourth for a 7-2 lead before Jarman's exploded for 10 runs in the top of the fifth. Scott Whitley had two doubles to drive in two runs and scored two runs in the inning for Jarman's while Beth Vincent added a run-scoring triple and also scored a run. That made it 12-7.

But Fickling came back with three in the fifth as Randon Russell hit a two-run double, then added three more in the sixth to win it, as Brett Givens had a two-run double.

Ben Hobbs got the win in relief while Jason Adams took the loss. Mark Ellwanger led the Fickling hitting with two. Vincent led Jarman's with three, while Adams, Whitley and Abdul Jordan each had two hits.

Coca-Cola.....15
Aldridge & S'land.....8

Kevin Pilgreen picked up four hits and helped lead Coca-Cola to a 15-8 victory over Aldridge & Southerland in the North State Little League Thursday.

Coke took the lead with a pair of runs in the first, adding six in the second. They picked up two more in the third and five in the fourth for a 15-0 lead. A&S rallied for two in the fifth and six in the sixth, but fell well short.

Jamie Wilson got the win, but had help from Pilgreen and Steve Salargo. Wilson also had three hits, as did Salargo. James Ebron added two hits for Coke, one of them a three-run homer.

Maurice Whichard led the A&S hitting with two, and drove in two runs. He also took the loss on the mound.

Barbour Wildcats.....9

PACTOLUS — The Chicod Royals eased past the Bob Barbour Wildcats, 10-9, in the Southern Pitt Little League Thursday night.

Jamie Brown got the win for the Royals, going the distance for Chicod. He struck out 10 and walked two.

Chicod's hitting was led by Brown with two hits, both of them doubles, driving in two runs. The Wildcats had only three hits, all by different people.

Bethel Phillies.....14
Chicod Hornets.....3

PACTOLUS — Five players for the Bethel Phillies picked up two hits as they rolled to a 14-3 win over the Chicod Hornets.

LaChauncey Worsley, Russ Carson, Ear Hines, T.J. Howard and Chris Heath all had two hits each in the win.

Howard also picked up the win on the mound for the Phillies.

If Brown is able to serve as the DH, Overton said he would probably try to work in freshman Tommy Eason at first base. Eason, who alternates with Chris Cauble at catcher and the DH position, got his first work at the base on Wednesday in practice.

Last weekend, when the injury occurred, Overton moved second baseman Mike Andrews to first, with Kevin Riggs taking over at second.

If Brown cannot DH, then it will not matter which one plays first, the other can DH. But if Brown is in the lineup, Overton wants to keep the offense intact, which means that he must play Eason somewhere to keep his bat in the lineup, too.

This weekend's play will go a long way toward deciding how the experiment will work out.

Brown, meanwhile, will undergo arthroscopic surgery once the season ends.

Stolen Base Record In Sight

John Thomas tied the single season school record last weekend with his 23rd nab of the year, and thus needs only one more to set a new mark, surpassing the old one set by Eddie Gates in 1977. Thomas, with 48 career stolen bases, is just six behind the record there, set by ECU assistant coach Billy Best from 1977-80.

And David Ritchie has a shot at both also. He's stolen 20 bases this year and has 46 in his career.

Adams Passes Brown For Hitting Lead

John Adams has had one of the hottest bats for the Pirates recently. He's hit .531 over the last nine games and moved past Brown as the team's leading hitter with a .380 mark.

Another hot bat belongs to Riggs, who has boosted his average to .340 in the last few weeks.

Pairings Set Now For CAA Tournament

The pairings for the CAA Tournament, which begins Friday at UNC-Wilmington have been finalized now.

Friday at noon, top-seeded UNCW will take on William & Mary, while James Madison, the number three seed, faces Richmond at 3 p.m. The Pirates face Mason at 8 p.m.

Saturday, the Pirates — if they win — will face the winner of the JMU-Richmond game at 8 p.m. Should they lose, the Pirates will face the winner of the UNCW-WM contest.

The activities will get underway on Thursday evening with a banquet, at which time the all-conference team and other honors will be announced.

Jake Jacobs ...

freshman, adding another as a sophomore for what was then a school-record 11 consecutive victories. (Teammate Jonathan Jenkins has since broken that mark, winning 13 in a row.)

So far, as his career begins to wind down, Jacobs has a 24-5 record with a 3.27 career earned run average, including a 7-1 mark thus far this year. He's appeared in 57 games, tying for third place on that list. He's only six games shy of Jim Peterson's record of 63. With 193 strikeouts, he's just eight behind number-three Mickey Britt, who had 201.

"Although he was not an impact pitcher when he came in, we knew he'd get some innings right away and help us," Overton said. "He has made a gradual improvement throughout his career. As he went along, he drew tougher and tougher assignments and he's matured as a pitcher, working on the things that made him better."

One of those things was a slider, but it also cost him something, too, his curve ball.

"It's not a true slider. I grip it the same as my curve, but just drop down and throw it harder," Jacobs said. "But in learning in, I kind of lost my curve. I spent the whole summer in the Valley (League) getting it back. It's worked well, but my slider is just coming back around again, too. That's why I struggled early this year. I don't think (the curve) is an out pitch, but it can help set up an out pitch."

Another factor is his ability to locate pitches, Overton said. "His walk-strikeout ratio is good; that's another sign of being a good locator with the ball."

Jacobs, in 237 innings, has walked 107 and struck out 193. Jacobs' work in the Valley League paid off, too. At the end of the season last summer, he was selected to the league's all-star team, and went to Boardwalk and Baseball in Florida to play against several other summer league all-star teams.

And, he'll be returning there just as soon as he throws his last pitch for the Pirates, but not to play. Jacobs will earn a degree in commercial recreation management with a minor in business, and has been awarded an internship with Boardwalk and Baseball in the marketing department. Boardwalk and Baseball is a baseball theme park and is the site of the Kansas City Royals spring training camp. The park also has its own AA farm club with the Royals.

After that, he hopes to return to North Carolina to work in sports marketing. "I don't want to coach or manage, but I do want to work with sports marketing," he said. "I would love to come back to East Carolina, it's growing so fast."

But this weekend, in the final regular season games, and next, in the Colonial Athletic Association tournament, he'll be trying to deny that internship just as long as possible. If the Pirates can win the CAA tournament they will advance to the NCAA playoffs.

"I really have to credit Coach (Billy) Best for a lot of what I've done," Jacobs said. "He's done a great job with the pitchers and it's really paid off. He's got the young guys coming in and throwing strikes. We talk about situations and things that we want to do. Coach Best is the kind of guy who will tell you what you're doing wrong and who'll let you know you're doing a good job, too."

"With the defense and hitting, this is just the perfect place for a pitcher." And while Jacobs hasn't quite been "perfect," he has made his mark with those two no-hitters.

Rose Runs Past Rocky Mount, 9-0

Greenville Christian, Jamesville Post Victories; Panthers In Loss

ROCKY MOUNT — Maurice Hines scattered three hits over five innings and got relief help from Walter "Pee Wee" Gatlin to help Rose record a 9-0 shutout win over Rocky Mount in Big East baseball action Thursday.

Rose went ahead early and never looked back, scoring one run in the first and five in the second.

Tim Moore opened the first with a walk, moved to second on a sacrifice and third on a fielder's choice before scoring on a strikeout by Hines when the catcher threw to first for the out.

In the second, Jamie Brewington and Walter Gatlin both walked and moved up on a sacrifice. Heath Clark walked to load the bases before Brewington scored on a walk to Moore. Chris Christopher singled in Gatlin and Clark. A double steal moved the runners up. Hines then singled both runs in to make it 6-0.

Brewington had a two-run double in the fourth to score Christopher and Leisten and move the advantage to 8-0.

Christopher, Leisten, Hines and Brewington had two hits apiece for Rose, which moves to 16-0 and returns to action today against Wilson Beddingfield.

WILSON — Greenville Christian Academy recorded a 8-6 baseball victory over Wilson Christian in a playoff game Thursday afternoon.

Greenville scored all eight of its runs in the fourth inning and made that stand up for the win in the game, which qualified GCA for the regionals.

Wilson took the lead with a run in the second and two more in the third, but then Greenville exploded for eight in the fourth.

John May led off the inning with a walk and stole second. Chris Pace doubled him over and scored when Kevin Goodrich doubled. Larry Haddock walked and Frankie Huggins reached on an error, scoring Goodrich. Charles Carlton walked, loading the bases and Billy Potter cleared them with a triple. May, back up, walked and stole second. A passed ball scored Potter and after Kevin Joyner walked, another passed ball let May score.

Wilson rallied for three in the sixth, but fell short.

Goodrich led the GCA hitting with two.

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School rolled up a 9-5 baseball victory over Creswell in the Tobacco Belt Conference race Thursday.

Jamesville took the lead with a run in the first inning, but Creswell came back with two in the second. The Bullets moved back out with three in the bottom of the second however, taking a 4-2 lead.

Then, in the third, Jamesville put it away with five more runs. David Gardner led off, reaching on an error and Brad Davis walked. Casey Wells reached on another misplay, allowing both Gardner and Davis to score. Kent Dickerson's grounder hit Wells for an automatic base hit and making Wells out. Ernie Coltrain then doubled in Dickerson and Ernie Gardner doubled to score Coltrain. Rusty Lee reached on another Creswell error, scoring Gardner with the run run.

Creswell rallied for one in the fourth and two in the seventh, but fell short.

Coltrain led Jamesville's hitting with two, driving in two runs. Javon Webb had two hits, one of them a double for Creswell.

Jamesville is now 10-5 overall, 9-2 in the TBC. The Bullets travel to Bear Grass today.

Jordan, Bulls Take 2-1 Series Lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michael Jordan is hurting the Cleveland Cavaliers as much as Mark Price and Craig Ehlo are hurting.

Jordan, the NBA's leading scorer the last three seasons, had 44 points as the Bulls took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-5 series with Cleveland. But Jordan does that to everybody.

Perhaps more damaging for the Cavaliers, who will be eliminated from the playoffs with a loss at Chicago tonight, are the injuries to Price and Ehlo. Price, Cleveland's star guard and catalyst, is limited by a strained groin that has bothered him for two weeks. Ehlo has a sprained ankle.

Price sat with his leg wrapped in ice after shooting 1-12 Wednesday night.

"It was worse tonight than on Sunday," he said. "It wouldn't get loose for me and I couldn't do anything quick."

Without Price and Ehlo, the Cavaliers — whose 57-25 record was tied for second-best in the league — haven't been able to do much of anything in the backcourt. Ron Harper has been overburdened.

"When you have an injured Mark Price and Craig Ehlo, it's not the same team," Bulls coach Doug Collins said.

The Bulls are the same team that lost six straight to Cleveland during the regular season. But they are one victory away from advancing to play the New York Knicks.

"Right now, we control our own destiny," Jordan said.

In other games tonight, Seattle and Milwaukee can move on by winning. The SuperSonics lead Houston 2-1 and the Bucks are ahead of Atlanta 2-1.

Already into the second round are New York, Detroit, Golden State, Phoenix and the two-time champion Los Angeles Lakers.

Jordan has taken advantage of Cleveland's misfortune — he has 105 points and 31 assists in the series.

"Obviously, it's very important to have Michael Jordan do his thing," Collins said. "That's the greatness of Michael Jordan. He's able to raise his game to a level above the rest."

Houston raised its game a level once it got home after two losses at Seattle.

"I think the most important thing is we learned a lot in the first two games and we applied the knowledge Wednesday night," said Rockets reserve Tim McCormick, who suffered a broken nose in Game 3.

"It's going to be a bigger battle Friday but we are confident. We executed and did all the dirty work we had to do. We'll have that same attitude tomorrow."

The Rockets were sparked by Sleepy Floyd with 28 points. Akeem Olajuwon had his usual strong game with 19 points and 18 rebounds.

"Sleepy was the man," Olajuwon said. "He opened things up, pushing the ball down the floor and making the right plays."

Milwaukee made enough right plays in overtime of Game 3 to push Atlanta to the brink of elimination.

Ricky Pierce, getting extra playing time with Paul Pressey sidelined, and Fred Roberts have been key performers for the Bucks, who have reversed a late-season slump. Milwaukee lost 14 of its last 23 games.

Roberts averaged 17 minutes during the season and has seen more than 30 minutes a game in the playoffs.

"Roberts has had an outstanding series. He's raised his productivity and performance to another level in the first three games," Hawks coach Mike Fratello said. "He's been a big plus for them."

A minus for Atlanta has been Moses Malone's health. Malone, bothered by a stomach virus Tuesday night, was held to 14 points and six rebounds.

"I feel all right and I'll be ready to go Friday," he said. "It won't be easy, but if we play our game, we'll win."

Chargers Roll ...

The tie didn't last long, however, as Ayden-Grifton sent 10 men to the plate in the bottom half of the frame and scored six times to open up a 9-3 cushion.

Woodard led off the inning with a single. After he was moved to second on a sacrifice by Johnnie Moore, he scored on a single to left by Tripp. Peterson then delivered a single to put runners at first and second.

An error allowed Eubanks to reach safely and Tripp to score, while a walk to Tyndall scored Peterson one out later.

Singles by Ryan Hardee, Brian Haddock and Woodard brought in the final four runs of the inning for the Chargers.

"We had a lot of guys break out of slumps tonight," Ross said. "It's something we've been waiting to happen for over a month and it finally materialized tonight."

Ayden-Grifton added another run in the third as Moore, Tripp, Stencil and Tyndall all singled to put the Chargers to push the score to 10-3.

But the Falcons didn't give in as they rallied with single runs in the fourth and sixth innings and three runs in the seventh inning to make it close.

C.B. Aycock trailed only 11-8 in the final inning with runners at first and second and the tying run at the plate in cleanup hitter Paul Reese.

Reese, however, was sent down with a strikeout by Tripp to end the game.

"I thought our kids did a good job of hanging in there," Glover said.

"They still had a chance to win it up till the very end."

Ayden-Grifton returns to action tonight at Greene Central, while the Falcons host Pamlico County.

"The coach (Debbie Richardson) said that everybody will have the same opportunity to get playing time at the beginning of the season," Perry said. Fox Broadcasting To Add Movie Night To TV Lineup

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The Fox Broadcasting Co. is launching a once-a-month movie night in preparation for regular prime-time programming on Monday nights to begin in September.

The movies begin Monday with David Cronenberg's box-office hit, "The Fly."

"We really see the movies and the new night of programming as two separate things," said Peter Chernin, new president of the Fox Entertainment Group. "Soon after we begin Monday-night programming, we hope to start a movie night," probably on May 15.

Other upcoming movies in the Fox lineup include "Big Trouble in Little China," scheduled to air Monday, June 5; "Jumpin' Jack Flash," July 10; and "Mannequin," Aug. 28.

The Tuesday movies will begin Oct. 3 with "Black Widow," followed by "Predator," and "Revenge of the Nerds, Part II."

Meanwhile, Fox is looking at 13 pilots to fill two hours of prime-time programming on Monday, beginning Sept. 11. Among them are what would be the first television project from film director Francis Ford Coppola, based on his movie version S.E. Hinton's teen-appeal book, "The Outsiders."

"Our company is solid and the outlook is bullish," said Chernin. "We're going to put on Monday night then we're going to get on with the business of programming every night of the week.

"I think it's going to be easier going forward now than in the past. The stations are stronger. When we started Sunday night, we had no place to promote it. Two years ago the stations may have had some trepidation, but they've had such success they're ready to tell us to start programming more nights. Everyone's ratings are up."

Fox Broadcasting lost $90 million last year. But Chernin said the fledgling network will come close to breaking even this fiscal year.

"There's clearly a good deal of pride and pleasure in how far we've come in the last year," he said.

Two Fox Sunday shows, "Married ... With Children" and "America's Most Wanted" often finish ahead of a third of the big networks' shows in the Nielsen ratings. Plans are now being made to improve the ratings for Fox's other shows. "Duet," "It's Garry Shandling's Show" and "The Tracey Ullman Show" have received critical praise but scant viewership.

On Saturday, the addition of the reality-based crime show "Cops" has raised the night's ratings significantly. "It's done for Saturday night what 'America's Most Wanted' did for Sunday night," said Chernin.

Fox ratings may be considerably lower than the networks', but so are its expectations. Fox would consider a show with an 8.0 rating a major success. A network show has to do about a 14.0 to be considered a keeper. (Each rating point equals 904,000 TV households.)

"I think the shows that work best for us are those that are attention-getters," said Chernin. "There are numerous ways to get attention. Quality, being innovative, taking chances and using special talents. We go after the younger audience and that goes hand-in-hand because younger viewers are looking for new and innovative shows."

Its take-a-chance attitude has resulted in publicity, for certain. The raunchy comedy "Married ... With Children" drew fire from a Michigan woman who complained to sponsors who said they would review its content more carefully in the future. But Fox has no plans to alter the show, which has sold out its advertising slots for the season.

Other comedies under consideration for Monday include "Let's Get Mom," a domestic comedy starring Carol Kane; a live, half-hour comedy, "Bill Gets a Life," with comedian Bill Maher as a radio talk-show host; "Babes," a female buddy show about three rather large New York sisters; "Hollywood Dog," a comedy combining live action and animation; and "Urban Renewal," in the tradition of "Laugh-In" and "Saturday Night Live," from Keenan Ivory Wayans.

Besides "The Outsiders," dramas being considered include the movie spinoff, "Alien Nation," about an alien culture coexisting with humans and "Wurlitzer," about a young man who discovers an old jukebox that acts as a time machine.

Cliburn, 54, won the 1958 Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow.

Merv Wants A Change

NEW YORK — Entertainer Merv Griffin is taking his Hollywood know-how to his newly acquired properties on Paradise Island in the Bahamas.

Griffin plans to spend $50 million just to bring in extra plants for three of his hotels.

In unveiling plans for the island, of which his Resorts International Inc.

owns 80 percent, Griffin said Thursday that he "fell in love with Paradise Island the minute he saw it," but added, "it still didn't have the look I envisioned."

Griffin plans to fix that by enlisting the help of architect and designer Waldo Fernandez, who has helped decorate Griffin's homes as well as those of stars including Elizabeth Taylor, Goldie Hawn, Neil Simon and Sean Connery.

Artists Conduct 'Sneaker' Sale

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A collection of musicians including Prince and Phil Collins donated their own "sneaker art" Thursday for an auction to benefit leukemia, cancer and AIDS research.

Each artist sketched or painted the new sneakers for sale.

Ten of the 40 pairs of sneakers donated will be sold at a Sotheby's auction of rock 'n' roll memorabilia June 24. The other sneakers will be peddled at various Hard Rock Cafes around the country, said Mark Kane, a spokesman for the restaurants.

The decorative footwear will tour the Hard Rocks in Los Angeles, Dallas, Chicago, San Francisco, New Orleans and Houston, said Kane.

Performers donating sneakers include Linda Ronstadt, Billy Joel, Carly Simon, George Thorogood, Barbra Streisand and Stevie Wonder. Bands such as Simply Red and Pink Floyd also contributed shoes.

Estelle Getty Tells Seniors To Age Without Getting Old

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CEDAR RAPID, Iowa — Estelle Getty, who portrays an outspoken octogenarian on NBC-TV's "Golden Girls," joked with hospitalized senior citizens and told them not to fade into the woodwork.

As the actress shook hands Wednesday with members of Mercy Medical Center's Prime Timers group, Viola Wetzel of Cedar Rapids revealed her age.

"You're 94?" said Getty. "You look better than I do!"

Wetzel was surprised Getty is considerably younger than the 85-year-old Sophia Petrillo she portrays on TV.

Getty, who is in her early 60s but won't disclose her age, says the show's producers weren't sure they wanted a younger woman to play Sophia.

"I told them, 'Where are you ever going to find an 85-year-old woman who will come in to work everyday?'" Getty said.

"If there's just one thing I hope the show and my character tell you is that you can get older without growing old. There's no need to fade into the woodwork when you reach 60 or 70 or 80. You've got to keep at it."

Quayle Visits Oil Spill Site, Says Exxon Must Do More

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Vice President Dan Quayle toured sludge-fouled beaches on his return from a 12-day Pacific tour, and said today Exxon must do more to clean up the devastation wrought by the nation's largest oil spill.

"It's going to be an enormous effort," Quayle said Thursday as he looked at a beach on hard-hit Smith Island, an important haulout area for seals. Workers have been laboring for days to wash the beach clean.

Then at a news conference early today, Quayle said it appears Exxon believes its cleanup plan is adequate. "But I believe Exxon's going to have to do more than they think they're going to have to do," he said.

Quayle, accompanied by his wife, Marilyn, and joined by Coast Guard Commandant Paul A. Yost Jr. and federal Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, ended his Pacific trip Thursday with a six-hour, wind-and-rain-swept tour of the spill zone.

The vice president's jet arrived from Japan at the fishing town of Cordova, about 50 miles from the site of the March 24 spill, which was caused when the tanker Exxon Valdez slammed into a charted reef outside shipping lanes and poured 10.1 million gallons of crude through its shattered hull.

Oil from the slick has been spotted more than 520 miles southwest of Valdez past the tiny village of Chignik on the Alaskan Peninsula. State environmental officials said Thursday the oil is moving in some areas at the rate of 17½ miles a day.

The ship's skipper, Joseph Hazelwood, has pleaded innocent to operating the vessel while drunk and is being investigated by a grand jury for potential felony charges. His trial is set to begin June 20 in Valdez.

Before the news conference, Quayle, dressed in jeans and a flight jacket, met with Democratic Gov. Steve Cowper and more than a dozen mayors and leaders representing areas affected by the spill.

Quayle told reporters that although President Bush has not personally visited the spill site, he has expressed his concern by sending top federal officials to Alaska.

Quayle earlier met with two dozen local officials at Cordova, who urged him to support the expansion of a local salmon research facility to study the effects of the spill. "You can count on it," Quayle told one resident.

He also agreed to serve Alaskan salmon at the White House.

Traveling in helicopters, Quayle and his entourage then went to the USS Juneau, the Coast Guard's command center for the cleanup, and to Smith Island.

Oil from the spill has spread to the spectacular Katmai National Park, a wildlife refuge. Exxon officials Thursday proposed arming the guards of their workcrews with shotguns to protect them against the bears. Currently, guards are carrying chemical sprays to fend off animals.

But state and federal environmental officials were concerned that inexperienced guards might shoot the bears needlessly.

Exxon, which is financing the cleanup, has offered a plan to clean 364 miles of Alaska coastline by mid-September. But nearly 200 of those miles would be left untouched by cleanup crews and allowed to be cleaned by natural wave, wind and traction.

Troop Cut Talks Resume In Vienna

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA, Austria — The NATO allies, divided over whether to update nuclear weapons or negotiate their reduction with the Soviets, resume talks today with the Warsaw Pact on cutting conventional arms and troops in Europe.

When the troop cut talks first opened March 9, both East and West said their rival proposals were not too far apart and that the first agreements on reducing artillery and men on the world's most heavily armed continent were feasible in the early 1990's.

ment, wants any decision on modernizing the weapons put off until after next year's elections, and supports talks with the Soviets about the weapons.

Britain and the United States oppose Kohl's stand, arguing that the U.S.-made Lance missiles now stationed in West Germany must be updated soon to keep NATO's nuclear deterrent effective.

That deterrent is needed, they say, to prevent war in Europe, where NATO estimates it is outnumbered more than 2-to-1 in tanks and other artillery.

It was those weapons that were the focus of NATO's initial proposals to the first two-week session of the Negotiations on Conventional Forces in Europe, which ended in Vienna March 22.

Since then, the Kremlin has begun the unilateral withdrawal of about 50,000 men and 5,000 tanks scheduled to leave Eastern Europe by 1991. The first T-64 tanks left Hungary 10 days ago, and more units go back to the Soviet Union from East Germany today.

But such Soviet initiatives have caused disarray in the 16-member North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which is embroiled in a bitter dispute over whether to modernize its short-range nuclear weapons or negotiate with Moscow over reducing and even eliminating such missiles.

The Western allies proposed specific overall ceilings of 20,000 tanks, 16,500 artillery pieces and 23,000 armored personnel carriers for each side.

The Soviets, by contrast, presented a three-stage Warsaw Pact proposal that aimed at a 10-15 percent reduction in troops, tanks, artillery and combat aircraft by 1994, and a further 25 percent cut — about 500,000 men — by each side from 1994-1997.

By 2000, the alliances should move to strictly defensive forces, the Soviets suggested.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, worried about the sliding popularity of his center-right govern-

China's Communist Chief Calls For Talks

BEIJING — Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang called for a dialogue with students in authorities' first public comment following historic pro-democracy rallies in Tiananmen Square, official media reported today.

demands for democracy, freedom of the press and an end to official corruption. Zhao, while saying talks were needed, did not specifically promise any meeting.

The party leader acknowledged that great numbers of Chinese are expressing anger toward official corruption, and attributed the problem to a lack of openness and a faulty legal system.

Zhao also seemed to tone down earlier official claims that students were being manipulated by people who wanted to see the country in turmoil. Such people "are extremely few and we should maintain vigilance. I think the vast majority of students understand this."

Students marched by the tens of thousands to occupy the square Thursday and rally for more freedom. Some returned to class today to end a two-week boycott but student leaders at Beijing University refused to immediately call off the strike.

Zhao, in a speech made Thursday but reported today in the party organ People's Daily, said, "Now we need broad consultations and dialogue — dialogue with students, dialogue with workers, dialogue with intellectuals."

Despite conciliatory official statements, some students feel they must continue to pressure the government if concessions are ever to be made in Communist China.

Thatcher Suffers Election Rebuff On 10th Anniversary

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party today lost a parliamentary seat it has held for 38 years, suffering a sharp rebuff as she marked her 10th anniversary as prime minister.

In a huge 12.5 percent swing against the government, the socialist Labor Party captured the Vale of Glamorgan, a largely rural Welsh district, with a 6,028-vote majority. That overturned the Conservatives' 6,251-vote majority in 1987 general elections.

"This is what the new modern Labor Party can do... Mrs. Thatcher's days are numbered," declared victor John Smith, who won a House of Commons seat left vacant by the death of a lawmaker.

Defeated Conservative Rod Richards acknowledged votes were lost over Mrs. Thatcher's plans to overhaul property taxes and the National Health Service, and to sell off the national water and electricity utilities.

"We have to win that debate in the country and it will take time because we're changing something quite radically and people are naturally concerned as to how it will affect them," he said.

Smith retorted: "My Conservative opponent had to defend the indefensible. This was a test of Mrs. Thatcher's 10 years in office and the people of the Vale of Glamorgan made it absolutely clear that she's not wanted."

Health Secretary Kenneth Clarke dismissed the result as a minor midterm setback.

Labor also scored heavily off the two divided center parties, whose support collapsed.

Smith polled 23,342 votes to the Tories' 17,314. The centrist Social and Liberal Democratic Party took only 2,017 and the Social Democratic Party, its previous electoral ally, got 1,098. The Welsh nationalist party Plaid Cymru also did badly with 1,672 votes.

The 38-year-old carpenter's election shaved Mrs. Thatcher's majority in the 650-member House of Commons to 101 — still ample to assure passage of her ambitious reforms.

The Conservatives have 375 seats, Labor 228, the Social and Liberal Democrats 19 and the Social Democratic Party 3. Minority regional parties hold the rest.

It is only the fourth time in 25 years that Labor has snatched a seat from the Conservatives in a by-election.

The centrist parties acknowledged they paid heavily for their split after the last general election in 1987, and the rivalries that have become known as "the muddle in the middle."

Mrs. Thatcher, who celebrated her 10th anniversary by declaring she had transformed Britain, faced more problems on the industrial front.

She swept to power on a wave of anti-union sentiment May 4, 1979, after a winter of strikes in which garbage piled up across the country, hospitals turned away the sick and the dead were left unburied.

But now, strikes over pay or conditions loom on the state railroad, in the docks, the engineering industry, the electricity supply service, the fire-fighting service, the London subway and among news staff at the British Broadcasting Corp.

London's liberal newspaper The Guardian predicted today Britain is heading for its worst industrial strife since a yearlong coal miners' strike collapsed in 1985.

Some Conservative legislators claim the unrest may be an organized campaign. "This is beginning to look like a conspiracy," said Tory legislator Harry Greenwood.

The Institute of Directors, an employers' organization, meanwhile reported that confidence in the British economy among company directors has fallen the last two months. It said those listed as "more optimistic" dropped from 29 percent to 19 percent, while more than half said they were "less optimistic."

Socialist Woman May Lead Japan

TOKYO (AP) — A 60-year-old socialist woman could become Japan's prime minister, an event that would turn this conservative, male-dominated country on its ear.

Takako Doi, a doctor's daughter from Kobe and a veteran of 20 years in parliament, is chairwoman of the Japan Socialist Party, the largest opposition party. She is pressing opposition's case strongly now that the governing Liberal Democratic Party is mired in scandal.

Ms. Doi has never directly expressed an ambition to be prime minister but she would probably have the first shot if the Liberal Democrats fail badly in a general election and the Socialists win more seats than the other smaller parties.

Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita said April 25 that he will step down soon to take responsibility for a loss of public trust because of an influence-peddling scandal. His conservative party, in power since it was formed in 1955, has yet to decide on a successor, and many party leaders are ruled out because of their links to the scandal.

The Liberal Democrats are expected to put forward a second-ranking figure as a sort of interim prime minister and try to regain the public's trust before a general election that would give the Socialists a chance to oust the long-governing party.

"This is a golden opportunity for opposition parties to take over the governing power from the hands of the Liberal Democratic Party," Ms. Doi told reporters this week.

"If we fail to take advantage of this situation, we may as well remain minority oppositionists eternally."

The Liberal Democrats have ignored her calls to let the opposition form a minority government in the Diet, or parliament. So the only alternative for the Socialists is to prevent the ruling party from winning the next election for the lower house, where the Liberal Democrats hold 297 of the 512 seats.

A lower house election must be held by next summer, but before then the electorate will vote this summer for half the seats in the upper house, where the Liberal Democrats hold 143 of the 252 seats.

Analysts question whether the opposition has much of a chance given its lack of unity. The opposition includes the Socialist Party (85 lower house seats), Buddhist-based Komeito (56 seats), Democratic Socialists (29 seats), Marxist-Leninist Communists (27 seats) and a scattering of independents.

But analysts agree that it is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for Ms. Doi and the Socialists, who haven't tasted power since a few months in the late 1940s.

In 1986, Ms. Doi became the first woman to head a political party in Japan. Her predecessor resigned over the Socialists' election defeat to the popular former Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

Never married, Ms. Doi is one of only 27 women against 737 men in both houses. It may have helped her become one of the most visible politicians in Japan. Her strong, low-pitched voice is often heard at public events. Dressed in pink suits, she also appears on television shows, not only to debate politics but to take part in game programs.

She is a regular in the parliamentarians' annual singing contest, performing the Japanese version of "My Way," and she claims expertise in pachinko, the equivalent of Western pinball generally associated with students and working class people.

Iranian Solon Urges Arabs To Kill Americans In Retaliation For Israelis

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani said today that Palestinians should kill Americans and other Westerners in retaliation for attacks by the Israeli military in the occupied territories.

"If in retaliation for every Palestinian martyred in Palestine they will kill and execute, not inside Palestine, five Americans or Britons or Frenchmen, they (Israelis) could not continue these wrongs," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying by the official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia.

"It is not hard to kill Americans or Frenchmen. It is a bit difficult to kill (Israelis). But there are so many (Americans and Frenchmen) everywhere in the world," he said.

At least 460 Palestinians and 20 Israelis have died in the 17-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

IRNA said Rafsanjani spoke at a prayer sermon today in Tehran before huge rallies to mark the Iranian holiday in support of the Palestinian cause.

Television showed pictures of thousands of demonstrators. Excerpts of the speech also were carried by Tehran Radio.

"God knows there is a solution if you announce today that from now on you will threaten American interests throughout the world," Rafsanjani said.

IRNA said Rafsanjani also encouraged Palestinians to hijack planes to force Israel to release prisoners and to blow up factories in Western countries.

Rafsanjani criticized PLO leader Yasser Arafat for renouncing terrorism and recognizing Israel's right to exist.

He also brushed aside Western reaction to his support for violence.

"Now they will start saying that so and so, as a man in charge, and as the speaker of Parliament has officially called for acts of terror ... But let them say it ... aren't they saying it now?"

Soon after coming to power in the 1979 Islamic revolution, Iran's leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, set aside May 5 as Quds Day, referring to the Arabic name for Jerusalem. He has called on Islamic nations to free Jerusalem, Islam's third holiest city after Mecca and Medina, from Israeli rule.

"Those who give $10 billion a year to preserve Israel and know what they are doing, is their blood worth anything?" Rafsanjani said.

His remarks appeared to be a further deepening of the Iranian campaign against the West, launched Feb. 14 by Khomeini with a death sentence against British author Salman Rushdie for his book "The Satanic Verses."

Khomeini said Rushdie blasphemed Islam in the book and used his condemnation as a platform to attack slackening revolutionary zeal in Iran.

Western reaction to the death sentence, including 14 countries that called home their top envoys from Tehran, led Khomeini and other Iranian leaders to say ties with the West are unnecessary.

Two W. Germans Reportedly Kidnapped In Lebanon Reappear; Another Missing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIDON, Lebanon — Two West Germans reportedly abducted in south Lebanon reappeared early today, but a Palestinian guerrilla said kidnapers were holding a third in connection with the case of a Lebanese hijacker on trial in West Germany.

There was no immediate confirmation a third West German was being held, and West German television said the Bonn government was skeptical anyone was seized.

"We are still trying to find the facts," said West German Ambassador Wolfgang Göttemann. In West Germany, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hanns Schumacher said the two West German relief workers who reappeared "disappeared for a certain period of time and then suddenly reappeared" last year as well.

The Sunni Moslem Nasserite militia said in a statement that Heinrich Struebig and Petra Schnitzler were released at 5 a.m., 10 hours after being abducted, and drove to their office between the Palestinian refugee camps of Ein El-Hilweh and Mieh Mieh, near the southern port of Sidon.

A Palestinian guerrilla officer in charge of security at the base where the two work said the West Germans "told me that the kidnapers are keeping their colleague Marcus Michael ... in connection with the case of Mohammed Ali Hamadi.

"There were three when they left yesterday evening. Only two of them returned today," said the Palestinian, 1st Lt. Maarouf, who uses only one name.

Hamadi is a Lebanese Shiite Moslem on trial in Frankfurt, West Germany, on murder and air piracy charges in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner in which a U.S. Navy diver was killed.

Neither Struebig, a 48-year-old administrator, nor Ms. Schnitzler, a 26-year-old nurse, would speak to reporters after their arrival in Sidon. They hid their faces from photographers.

The commander of the PLO's military police in Sidon, Lt. Col. Wajih Abu Ali, said this was because they feared for their colleague.

"The released two told me they are scared because the kidnapers have threatened to kill their third colleague if they revealed any information about their abduction," said Abu Ali.

Maarouf did not say if any demands had been made.

Maarouf said he saw Struebig, Ms. Schnitzler and Michael leave in a car together Thursday.

Abu Ali said that based on his investigation, five gunmen in a car intercepted the relief workers' van on the southern edge of Sidon.
