Eight Mourners Dead, 500 Hurt In Stampede

By Alex Efty
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TEHRAN, Iran — Millions of mourners today flooded into a square where Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's body lay, causing a stampede that the official news agency said killed eight people and injured at least 500.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said scores of people were knocked unconscious in the crush as temperatures soared to 100 degrees.

State television showed victims being carried out of the square in front of the Mosalla mosque as crowds scrambled to get closer to the air-conditioned cubical where Khomeini's shrouded body lay in a glass-covered bier.

The revolutionary patriarch's characteristic black turban was on his chest.

The television zoomed in on a bearded, young man spraying mourners with a water hose to cool them.

Khomeini, 86, died Saturday of a heart attack, 11 days after intestinal surgery, leaving the country gripped by its worst political crisis since the revolution that catapulted the Moslem cleric to power in 1979.

President Ali Khamenei, 49, was named Sunday to succeed Khomeini, apparently on temporary basis to avoid a leadership vacuum.

Khomeini's body was brought out of a Tehran mortuary and transported by ambulance to the mosque, where hundreds of thousands of his followers had been waiting all night. He is to be buried on Tuesday.

Wailing men, women and children screamed and pounded on the ambulance as it moved slowly through the crowd.

Beating on their breasts and heads in a traditional Shiite Moslem sign of mourning, they screamed "Sorrow, sorrow is this day ... Khomeini the idol smasher is with God today!"

The crowds waved life-size portraits of the stern-faced, white-bearded Khomeini decorated with black ribbons and red flowers.

Readings from the Koran, Islam's holy book, blared from the minaret of the mosque as state-run television and radio broadcast live coverage from the site. Announcers wept as they eulogized Khomeini.

Rescue workers look at wreckage of two trains devastated when gas from pipeline exploded

Soviet Train Disaster Toll Could Reach 800

By Andrew Katell
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — As many as 800 people may have died when gas leaking from a pipeline filled a mountain valley, exploded and engulfed two passing trains in flames, a newspaper editor in the area said today.

In the first precise official report, Tass said its preliminary count showed 400 of the more than 1,200 people aboard the passenger trains, including many children bound for summer camp, were dead or missing after Sunday's explosion in the Ural Mountains along the Trans-Siberian Railroad.

"Military units are searching the adjacent forest and mountains in the hope that some of the passengers managed to escape the tornado of fire," the official news agency said.

The blast was equivalent to the explosion of 10,000 tons of TNT, Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev, the Soviet military chief of staff, told Tass.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who visited the remote site Sunday, told the new Soviet parliament "a few hundred people" had been killed. He said incompetence and a lack of discipline might have contributed to the accident.

Gennady K. Dmitrin, editor of Evening Chelyabinsk, said his newspaper has a list of between 500 and 800 people dead. He said that list was preliminary.

Dmitrin said children under age 8

Bush Orders Halt Of Military Sales

By Tom Raum
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush today condemned Chinese authorities for a "violent and bloody" weekend crackdown against pro-democracy demonstrators and said he was ordering an immediate suspension of American military sales and commercial export of weapons to China.

"We deplore the decision to use force," Bush told reporters in a hastily convened mid-morning news conference. He urged Chinese authorities "to avoid violence and to return to their previous policy of restraint."

Hundreds of Chinese have been killed, and many more wounded, since the army moved in over the weekend to clear Tiananmen Square.

Bush said he thought it was impossible for China to return to the days of total repression. "We're beyond the kind of cultural revolution response," he said referring to the crackdown on dissent and diversity that began in the mid-1960s.

He said he wanted to forge a careful response to the situation in China, and rejected advice from some who recommended the withdrawal of the U.S. ambassador. He said the ambassador had been active in monitoring events in Beijing and provided an important resource for the United States.

Bush said his response to the weekend of violence in Beijing did not include imposition of economic sanctions. But, he added, "I reserve the right to take a whole new look at things if the violence escalates," he said.

Bush also was asked about events in Iran, where radical leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini died over the weekend. He said "we're not sure yet" what will happen with the government in the Islamic nation although he said President Ali Khamenei appears to be in charge.

"There's a way for the relationship with the United States to improve and that's for the release of the American hostages" being held in Lebanon, he said.

Bush also said he welcomed Sunday's elections in Poland in which candidates endorsed by the trade union Solidarity appeared to have gained decisive victories.

Beijing Troops Open Fire Again

By Jim Abrams
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Soldiers swept through Beijing today shooting at enraged civilians, and there were reports of fighting between military units sent to quell the unarmed pro-democracy protests.

The army, which killed hundreds of people in a crackdown on the protests over the weekend, reportedly shot and killed at least three civilians today.

In Washington, President Bush condemned Chinese authorities for the "bloody and violent" crackdown. He said he was ordering a suspension of American military sales and commercial export of weapons to China.

One Chinese military source said soldiers fought each other around the Nanyuan military air base on the southern outskirts of the city today. He said the fighting was serious.

But residents living near the restricted base said they had seen a steady stream of planes landing and taking off but had not seen or heard fighting.

Artillery shelling also was heard in a far northwestern suburb.

Asked whether soldiers were fighting each other, one Western diplomat said: "It's more than that. There is solid evidence." He would not elaborate.

Chinese sources said the People's Liberation Army is deeply split over the government's May 20 decision to declare martial law and send troops to Beijing. The 38th Army, based around Beijing, reportedly refused to advance on the city.

The source said the 38th was ordered to take over from the 27th Army, which is responsible for the carnage over the weekend. It is not clear whether the army is obeying the order.

Although there have been no accurate tallies, more than 1,000 people are widely believed to have been killed and thousands injured since the army moved to retake Tiananmen Square from student-led protesters.

Philippine Vice Consul Corazon Patarata told a Manila radio station from Beijing today that the diplomatic community estimates 3,000 protesters have been killed by the army.

Protests against the crackdown were reported in several provincial cities as the government praised the military attacks as a patriotic effort to put down rioters trying to overthrow the communist system.

A Chinese journalist said one man's body was ripped apart with machine gunfire from his chin to his stomach this morning and three others were shot and wounded when 17 truckloads of troops attacked a crowd at a major intersection west of Tiananmen Square.

Chinese witnesses said a girl was shot in the chest around noon when troops charged up a narrow residential street near the square.

Two more people died in gunfire from troops who rushed up a central Beijing street in the late afternoon, other Chinese witnesses said.

A U.S. Embassy official also said soldiers fired indiscriminately from 50 to 100 military trucks that hurtled down a normally quiet street flanked by a park and foreign embassies. In the evening, about 30 tanks took up positions outside an apartment complex for diplomats.

The American and other embassies began sheltering foreign students studying at Chinese universities.

Tank and troop convoys moved throughout the night and day, and helicopters dropped off supplies at Tiananmen Square for the thousands

SLCA Official: 'No Proof' Perk Causes Cancer

By Carol Tyer
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

State Launderers and Cleaners Association Executive Director Sunny Smith is disturbed about what she calls "irresponsible public announcements of poorly conducted studies of the alleged dangers" of a synthetic petroleum solvent used by about 85 percent of U.S. dry cleaners.

"Dry cleaners in this and other states are paying enormous costs to responsibly have perchloroethylene (perk) solvent filters disposed of," she said. "They're taking sensible precautions in handling the material just as they always have. Yet now the public is being scared irresponsibly about the possibility of perk causing cancer in rats and supposedly, therefore, in humans."

"There's been no proof that this chemical causes cancer or any other health problems in humans," she said, "yet all these 'possibilities' are being put into newspapers."

A state newspaper reported Tuesday that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, with a laboratory in North Carolina's Research Triangle Park, expects to finish in September an initial phase of a project designed to find out whether more controls are needed in the dry cleaning industry.

For about the last 20 years, most dry cleaners have used perchloroethylene, because of its effectiveness in removing grease.

"This is a very effective cleaning fluid — one that we dry cleaners all know very well to use with caution," said Dickie Rook, owner-operator of A Cleaner World on Greenville Boulevard.

"My fabric cleaning-extracting-drying system is a closed one. Once the clothes are put into the cleaning machine, they are cleaned, fluid is extracted from them, and they are dried — all without anyone touching them."

"I have 21 filters in my system," he said, "When I change these, I wear rubber gloves and make sure it doesn't get on my skin. But I have had an accident when my distiller boiled over and some got in my eyes. I went to the emergency room, but it turned out to be not that bad. They just washed my eyes out really well and I had no damage."

"I'm not saying we shouldn't be careful with perk or any other chemical. I've even had my cleaner wear a charcoal badge and have sent it in to the Fabric Care Institute to be tested to see how much is dispersed in the air and could, therefore, get in his lungs. We also have big exhaust

Services Changing At Kinston Airport

By J. Ward Best
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Kinston airport authority has begun its approach to even larger skies.

The regional facility will lose half its Piedmont jet flights later this month, but the airport will increase its number of daily flights. And the airport is looking to further expand service by adding American Eagle, a subsidiary of American Airlines.

Steven Brian, Kinston airport manager, said Piedmont Airlines will replace two of the four 68-seat jet flights with three cabin-class 37-seat commuter planes on June 15. Brian said all airlines were tending to substitute commuter airplanes for jets in the smaller markets, and al-

Greenville Church Hit By Lightning

By Carol Tyer
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church board member J.T. Williams was inside the church when lightning struck the roof Saturday afternoon, and he had an experience to remember. But he believes the sight in the sanctuary may have been far more memorable.

In fact, he says, the spectacle witnessed by a young man cleaning in that area may cause him "never to grow again."

"This fellow was standing in front of our pulpit Saturday afternoon. He was checking over the cleaning job he and another guy had just completed on the sanctuary when there was the sound of an explosion followed by fiery splinters from our roof shooting down through the ceiling into the sanctuary. He said lightning appeared to be bouncing back and forth inside the choir loft. It must have been some scary sight."

The church is on N.C. 33 on the east end of Greenville. The lightning strike set the church's pipe organ and its speakers afire.

"One of the speakers," Williams said, "looked just like a lit gas log." "If those two cleaning guys and I hadn't happened to be right there in the church, I feel like our church would have burned to the ground. The oak paneling behind the organ would have caught fire very soon and then I don't think there would have been any putting it out."

Williams said he was in another part of the church studying to teach his Sunday School class when the lightning struck about 6:15 p.m.

He said telephone lines at his feet were throwing sparks, and he was still stunned by that when he heard the commotion from the sanctuary.

One phone in the church was still working, Williams said, and it was used to summon firemen.

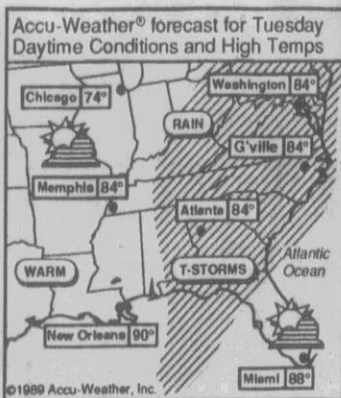

"I can't say enough about how well the Simpson Fire Department did," he said. "We had the fire out when they got there, but they did a wonderful job patching the hole the lightning had made in the roof and setting up exhaust fans to help us get rid of all the trash and fire extinguisher residue."

Williams said that the cleaning crew went back to the work and got the sanctuary in shape for Sunday morning services.

He said the Sunday service was a time of thanksgiving for the church's having not burned.

"Our organ was ruined," he said. "Probably about $15,000 damage, but otherwise we're in great shape. We're just so glad we were there."

Weekend Thefts

Investigators said five thefts were reported to the department over the weekend.

Officer C.J. Melvin said a clock-radio and television set were taken from 13 Vance St. in a break-in reported at 11:38 p.m. Saturday, while Officer C.A. Curtis said a radar detector and bath towel were taken from a car parked at Twin Oaks Apartments in an incident reported at 4:52 a.m. Sunday.

Officer A.G. Lloyd said a checkbook was taken from a vehicle parked at 400 S. Library St. in an incident reported at 9:15 a.m. Sunday, while Officer J.L. Moody said a television set was taken from 509A Sheppard St. in an incident reported Sunday at 12:35 p.m.

According to Officer A.T. Parrish, $660 in cash was taken from a car parked at 103 Oakmont Drive in an incident reported Sunday at 7:01 p.m.

Theft Arrests

Greenville police said three people were arrested on theft charges Sunday.

Officer Alexander Batts said Terrence Daniels, 21, of 308 Conley St. was arrested on auto larceny charges in connection with the theft of a 1988 GMC truck, reported taken from 109 E. Moore St. about 1:02 a.m.

Officer C.G. Alphin said Arrene Perry, 25, of Route 2, Greenville, and Jackie Terry, 20, of Ayden were charged with larceny in connection with the theft of $51 worth of clothing from K mart at the Greenville Square Shopping Center at about 2:45 p.m.

Man Arrested

Greenville police have arrested a man in connection with an attempted rape incident Saturday and are investigating a kidnapping and rape incident which allegedly occurred about two weeks ago and was reported to police on Sunday.

Detective J.E. Harris said Bernard Smith, 30, of the Greenville Homeless Shelter, was arrested this morning and charged with attempted rape in an incident reported at 10:20 p.m. Saturday on Hudson Street.

Harris said that the victim of a separate incident, which occurred two weeks ago, filed a report with the police department at 8:04 a.m. Sunday.

Harris said the victim told officers she was leaving a Dickinson Avenue business when a man, wearing a stocking over his face, forced her into a car and drove to a construction site N.C. 43. The man then raped her in the woods and told her to stay there for 10 minutes before leaving, police said.

Mrs. Jenkins On Committee

Greenville City Council member Nancy Jenkins has been appointed vice chairman of a committee which will examine the future of cities in North Carolina.

Sponsored by the N.C. League of Municipalities, the Committee on the Future of Cities is to identify emerging trends to help cities prepare for the future.

"This committee will be looking at many of the issues, such as transportation and employment, that we're concerned about here in Greenville and eastern North Carolina," Ms. Jenkins said.

"This process should be a real challenge to see how we can integrate our concerns with those of other cities in the state and develop strategies for addressing them," she added. "Sometimes we just put out brush fires, but this will give us a long-term view of needs and issues which we should be planning for now."

Canoe Trip

Paddles and Sails will canoe along the Contentnea Creek on Sunday. The trip will begin at Snow Hill and end in Hookerton. The trip should take about four hours to complete.

For more information, call 946-0580.

League Meeting

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County will hold its annual meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the library and recreation building adjacent to Jaycee Park on Cedar Lane.

Dr. Carmine Scavo of the East Carolina University Department of Political Science will discuss the political culture of eastern North Carolina.

For more information, call 756-5352.

Club Activities

The Winterville Ruritan Club recently donated $1,474 to the Winterville Fire and Rescue Squad.

The club also presented a scholarship to John Christopher Weathington, a senior at D.H. Conley High School, for his accomplishments in academics and student involvement within the organization.

He is the son of Johnnie and Diane Weathington of Winterville.

Degree Received

Kathryn Vaughn, formerly Kathryn Gray Joyner of Greenville, recently received a master's degree from the University of California at Los Angeles and is a recipient of one of four 1989 Outstanding Graduate Student Awards for her thesis, "The Music Mapper: A Computer Application for Culture Based Interpretation of Cultural Variance in Digitized Patterns of Melody and Rhythm."

She will be presented the award at the Alumni Awards for Excellence ceremony June 11.

In addition, her article on the Tambura Drone will be featured in "Music Perception," and this summer, she will present a joint paper covering the psycho-emotional content of melody.

Ms. Vaughn is the daughter of Annie Ruth Miller.

School Speaker

Jeff Byrd of the Greenville Utilities Commission will present a program on electrical safety to students at Eastern School on Thursday.

The program includes a videotape titled, "Louis the Lightning Bug," a demonstration of how electricity travels through power lines and a discussion of ways to be safe near electrical equipment.

School Program

The Pactolus Elementary kindergarten and first-grade students recently presented the program "Sounds That Make Us Smile."

League Executive Director David E. Reynolds said the committee will examine which future trends and issues will have the greatest impact on cities, their role in providing government services and the actions cities must take to prepare for changes.

He said the committee will study demographic, social, political, economic, technological and other trends that will affect municipal interests such as transportation, employment, housing, recreation, downtown areas, public safety, land use and personnel.

The study will also emphasize the importance of government strategic planning and the need to rank

A Way To Relax

Kedrick Gilbert, 11, is able to relax at the city pool in Greenville despite all of the splashing going on around him. Many area residents went to the pool over the weekend to escape the hot weather.

Art work, symbolizing a variety of concepts dealing with sounds, decorated the stage.

At the program's conclusion, Selma Cherry, principal, and Barbara Wing, assistant principal, presented awards for good bus behavior, academic achievement, citizenship, and best all around kindergarten and first grade students.

DARE Program

The fifth-grade classes at Pactolus Elementary participated in DARE drug awareness program, culminating in a recent exercise in the school gym.

Rick Fisher, a Pitt County deputy who taught the class, presided over the activities.

Ceremony Planned

A fifth-grade graduation and student recognition assembly will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the Pactolus Elementary School gym.

Various achievement and perfect attendance certificates will be awarded to students in grades 2-5.

School Event

Elmhurst Elementary School recently held its annual play day activities.

This year's theme, "A Day at Disney," highlighted songs and dances from Disney movies.

Kindergartners were led in the Mickey Mouse parade by Mickey and Minnie Mouse, portrayed by Amy Ennis and Lisa Adams, while other students performed a number of selected Disney showtunes.

Games included a balloon race, an egg race, obstacle courses and teacher relays.

Services Tuesday

Joy Temple Holiness Church will have services Tuesday at 8 p.m. with T.L. Baylor of Free Temple Church, Windsor, as speaker.

Recent Graduate

Juanita Lynn Payton recently graduated from North Carolina Central University in Durham with a bachelor's degree in degree in political science with a minor in public administration.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper L. Payton of Greenville.

Public Hearing

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will conduct a public hearing on the 1989-90 budget today at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor auditorium of the Pitt County office building.

Those interested in addressing the board need to arrive at the building early and list their names among the speakers.

Murder Victim's Sister Feels Money Was Death Motive

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The sister of a man murdered Saturday in Greenville says her brother was probably killed for money he had in the house to pay bills.

"It ain't the first time he had been robbed," said Willie B. Wilson, 89. Her brother, John Carney, 94, 405-B West Third St., was found Saturday night knifed to death in his home.

"He won't hurt (in other robberies) like he was this time," she said. "He had been robbed before. But he won't never hurt before, and he won't scared to stay by himself."

Mrs. Wilson said she was with her brother last week when he withdrew $1,000 from his bank account to pay bills. With the withdrawal, she said he had about $1,500 in cash in his home.

She said she was supposed to go with him today to pay the balance of the cost on his new refrigerator.

Mrs. Wilson said her brother had lived at the Third Street home for a number of years and sold treats to neighborhood kids, so there was often traffic to and from his home. He trusted people, she said, and may have trusted the person that entered his home and murdered him.

"He sold, whenever he had it, candy and cookies and popsicles," she said. "He always lived by himself, mostly. He didn't mind living by himself. He did pretty good by himself, he cooked and cleaned. I tried to get him to come live with me, but he would not do it."

Greenville Police Det. M.P. Cleary said officers answered a call about 9:45 p.m. Saturday and found Carney dead in the home. Carney suffered about five cuts, and his throat was slashed. Results from Sunday's autopsy are not back yet, he said.

Investigators are pursuing suspects, he said, but there are no substantial leads.

Mrs. Wilson said she believes the killer came from outside the immediate neighborhood, because Carney got along well with his neighbors.

"He didn't bother nobody, all those people down there will tell you that," she said.

Mrs. Wilson said her brother's next door neighbor went over to visit him Saturday night and could not get anyone to come to the door. The neighbor said she knocked repeatedly, Mrs. Wilson said, but there was still no answer. She said the television volume was turned up loud, like Carney usually had it.

When the neighbor went around back to check, she pushed the door open, Mrs. Wilson said.

"She saw all that blood on the porch so she ran and called me. I just don't know," she said. "It's just a hurting thing."

She said her brother has a son living in Durham, but he has not arrived in Greenville yet. She and her brother have lived all their lives in the Pitt County area, she said.

CHRONIC PERIODONTAL DISEASE

Periodontal disease may be defined as a group of diseases affecting the tissues that surround the teeth and attach them to the jawbones. In its chronic form, the disease is of slow onset and long duration, usually of months or years.

There is a good side and a bad side to this. Chronic inflammation, in most cases, must persist over a long period before enough bone has disappeared to loosen the teeth and make them subject to loss. Unfortunately, advanced chronic periodontal disease is seldom painful or even uncomfortable during its early stages.

Unless a person visits his dentist regularly, he is unlikely to recognize occasional bleeding of the gums or offensive breath as early symptoms of periodontal disease. Neither symptom is painful, and the person may be blissfully unaware of the disease. When pain or looseness does appear, it is often too late to save teeth in affected area.

Call our office today and schedule an appointment. Let's catch periodontal disease before it is too late to save your teeth.

Note:
We welcome new patients,
both children and adults.

N.C. Records Slight Decline In Liquor Sales

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEVILLE — Stricter enforcement of drunken driving laws and a shift in beverage preference from liquor to wine are being credited for a mild decline in North Carolina's liquor sales.

In 1988, the state's Alcoholic Beverage Control stores rang up total sales of $303.2 million, down $1.1 million from 1987 sales of $304.4 million, said Bill Hester, administrator of the ABC Commission in Raleigh. That translates into fewer bottles of booze sold in the stores throughout the state by 1,796,274.

Total bottles sold — excluding special permit sales for resale as mixed beverages by licensed establishments — were 40,501,193, down from 42,297,467 bottles sold in 1987.

Meanwhile, the number of motorists charged with driving with more alcohol in their blood than the law allows dropped by more than 1,000 between 1986 and 1987.

In 1982, before a stricter driving-while-impaired law was enacted by the 1983 General Assembly, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles reported 95,492 arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol.

A total of 84,634 arrests were reported across the state in 1983; that figure dropped to 72,712 in 1984 and to 67,489 in 1985. The figure climbed to 77,020 in 1986, but dipped again to 75,775 in 1987.

John Lacy, program manager for alcohol studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Research Center, said the statistics are in line with his research on highway safety projects.

"I think our society is starting to look toward more responsible beverage alcohol consumption, largely due to concerns about the impaired driving issues," Lacy told the Asheville Citizen.

He said the Safe Roads Act, which went into effect Oct. 1, 1983, has had "some pretty dramatic effects" on alcohol-related car crashes. In 1987 there were 107 fatalities in alcohol-related car wrecks, compared to 120 in 1986.

Carol Popkin, a staff assistant with the Highway Safety Research Center now studying the effects of the Safe Roads Act on alcohol-related traffic accidents, was more cautious.

"I think it's true that the Safe Roads Act has had an impact on driving while impaired in North Carolina, especially among younger people," she said. "... What is true is fewer people are drinking and driving. Whether they are in fact drinking less at home, or drinking and just not driving, I don't know."

In addition to stricter driving laws, Paul Powell, chairman of the state ABC board, said increasing health awareness among the population contributes to less consumption of hard liquor — and many who do imbibe are more buying more expensive brands and drinking less of them.

"People are trading up from lower priced brands and the cost of premium brands causes them to be more conservative," he said.

Another big question mark in the actual sobriety of the state and national populations is the consumption of beer, still probably the most popular beverage in a country in which an estimated 23.6 percent of the population consumed malt beverages last year.

Rick Ghovens, assistant director of the North Carolina Beer Wholesalers Association, said there are no statistics for beer sales, but beer shipments into the state totaled 4.1 million barrels in 1987. That figure has grown from 3.6 million barrels in 1980, and represents an increase about equivalent to population growth, Ghovens said. A barrel contains 31 gallons of malt beverage.

"We figure our actual growth in the state — especially in the last couple of years — has been flat. It's been population growth," he said.

Disabled Radio Dispatchers Taking Battle For Certification To Court

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WINSTON-SALEM — Two disabled radio dispatchers in Forsyth County are locked in a struggle to win certification in the wake of a ruling by the N.C. Sheriff's Education and Training Standards Commission.

Cabarrus County Sheriff Robert Canaday, chairman of the commission, said the panel adheres to the same high standards for everyone. He said denying certification for Polly Rector and Michael Cranford was justified.

"I don't think that it's arbitrary or capricious whatsoever," he told the Winston-Salem Journal. "No more so than some who are handicapped are certified and some who are not handicapped are not certified. Some make it through (training), and some don't. That's just the bottom line right there."

But Judy Burke, an attorney for the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons With Disabilities who represents Ms. Rector, said she will file an appeal of the decision today.

Lawyers for Ms. Rector and Cranford point to other disabled radio dispatchers who were certified, such as M. Ronald Hargett, who has no legs and uses a wheelchair.

Hargett, a dispatcher with the Union County Sheriff's Department, was certified after he successfully completed the basic training course at Stanly Technical College in 1986 and was recommended for certification.

Attorneys also cite the case of Cpl. Stephen "Chris" Tuttle, who has walked with much difficulty since his spine was severely bruised in an accident when he was 3 years old. He completed the basic law-enforcement training course at Forsyth Technical Community College in late 1984 and was recommended for certification. Tuttle is certified, and he now oversees the radio room for the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department.

In the same training class as Tuttle was Ms. Rector, who was stricken with polio early in life and uses crutches. She, too, successfully completed the course at Forsyth Tech and was recommended for certification. Unlike Tuttle, however, she was not certified. And the reason given was that she was disabled.

The same is true of Cranford, another polio victim. He and Ms. Rector will not be eligible for promotions or full retirement benefits until they can become certified.

An investigation announced two weeks ago to review the certification process will look into charges of different standards, said Phil Lyons, deputy attorney general for training and standards. "The commission is going to take a good, hard, close look at that to clarify any misunderstanding that might exist."

Rep. Theresa Esposito, R-Forsyth, promised to investigate the commission itself.

"What I will do is pull the licensing board's record and see who is appointed to that board, where they come from and who appoints them," she said.

"Not that I'm questioning anybody's integrity, but I want to know who are the appointees on the board to find out specifically how they reach their decision. I want to find out what they are charged with, what their duties are that gives them the ability to make decisions like this."

Most people involved in the dispute seem to think that the root of the problem might lie with the directors and instructors at the state's 40 community colleges and 25 police departments where the training is offered.

The sheriff's commission and the Justice Department say instructors may be interpreting the rules loosely by allowing disabled deputies to have special dispensations. But the dispatchers' attorneys say it is legal to allow "reasonable accommodations" for the disabled.

Soldiers Shoot At Civilians

of soldiers occupying the area since they drove out protesters early Sunday.

Burned-out hulks of buses and military vehicles littered streets, which protesters by the thousands refused to quit. Public transportation was at a standstill and most downtown shops closed.

No Chinese leader has come forth to take responsibility for the decision to turn the military on civilians, filling hospitals with the dead and dying, and it was not known how much opposition to the move exists in the government.

Chinese sources said senior leader Deng Xiaoping, 84, ordered the attack to halt seven weeks of student protests for a freer China and an end to official corruption. They said Deng was in a military hospital being treated for prostate cancer.

Premier Li Peng, who ordered martial law in Beijing, has not appeared in public or commented on the violence. He and old guard ideologues, many in their 80s, are believed to support the action.

The massacre has discredited the government, army and Communist Party and many enraged citizens are calling for revolution.

Before the massive weekend attack, hundreds of thousands of people had thwarted troop movements into the city.

In eastern Beijing, soldiers let off several bursts of automatic rifle fire today as seven military trucks moved on an intersection where crowds had set several army vehicles ablaze.

In Shanghai, the country's largest city, thousands of students today blocked intersections, and in the southern provincial capital of Changsha, sources said. They said thousands of students in the northeastern cities of Shenyang and Changchun marched Sunday in mourning.

The people's defiance was symbolized in Tiananmen Square this morning when a man wearing a white shirt ran in front of a tank column and momentarily brought it to a halt. The man climbed on the lead tank, got down and again moved to block its way when the tank tried to drive around him. Finally, five or six people rushed from the crowd at the side and dragged him to safety.

Hundreds of people fled in panic when the column of 21 tanks and armored personnel carriers pulled out of the square and headed eastward. Many rode bicycles in front of the convoy. Some bicyclists stopped in the road, seemingly daring the soldiers to shoot.

The street battles have paralyzed the city of 10 million, stopping all traffic in many locations and keeping thousands from their jobs.

Soldiers had yet to move into campuses. At the Political Science and Law College, a dead student was laid out on a table, with people filing by.

"The Chinese government is already crazy," a 24-year-old woman said.

Bush Halts Sales

"Communist bureaucrats beware in Poland," Bush said. "It seems to me like there's quite a move moving toward freedom and democracy."

Bush's comments on China were strikingly similar. "I think the depth of the feeling toward democracy is so great that you can't put the genie back into the bottle," he said.

"This is not the time for an emotional response," Bush said. He said it was not possible to know who exactly is in charge in China.

Bush said, "I do not want to see a total break in this relationship" with China. But in announcing steps that included a freeze in contacts between U.S. and Chinese military officials, he said:

"We cannot condone the violent attacks and cannot ignore the consequences for our relationship with China."

He added, "Throughout the world we stand with those who seek greater freedom and democracy."

Bush, who was expected to meet at the White House later in the day with congressional leaders, won immediate applause from one liberal Democrat for his announcement.

"I think he's taken the exact, appropriate steps," said Sen. Alan Cranston of California. "He has avoided taking extreme steps that would not contribute to the resolution of the problems."

Bush spoke as eyewitnesses reported soldiers had swept through Beijing earlier in the day, shooting at enraged civilians.

Shortsighted

Goodbye Bathwater, Goodbye Baby

The highway improvement bill which passed the State House of Representatives last week and is now headed for Senate action provides for a long held dream in eastern North Carolina.

At last the roads Easterners feel they must have for development, convenience, comfort and safety would be built. Following decades of seeing the highway funds spent in the populous Piedmont, Easterners finally have a bill which spells out that their highway needs will be met over the next 12 years.

Could any eastern legislator in good conscience oppose this bill? Well, one of Pitt's own did. Rep. Walter Jones, Jr. voted against it. Fortunately a coalition of eastern, western, Piedmont and Democratic representatives crushed the small group who, for whatever reasons, opposed the bill.

Can the region now expect clear sailing for North Carolina's future? Not quite. There is a group in the Senate which wants to delay this great effort to improve highways by shunting it off to a bond issue. Not only would this delay the program but it would also immensely increase the cost because of the interest which would have to be paid.

Certainly eastern senators will grasp the opportunity of the century and urge the Senate to go on and approve a pay-as-you-go financing package.

As for the House action, we can only ask, what was Rep. Jones thinking of? He claimed his opposition was based the fact that funding for the package — a gas tax and title transfers — unfairly burdened the working people of North Carolina. But Jones' objection throws out the baby with the bathwater. Apparently, he didn't stop to consider the jobs and economic growth that will be created by roadbuilding and better access to other parts of the state. Opportunity and prosperity will ultimately benefit those he feels will be hurt.

This shortsightedness is the kind of thinking that has kept eastern North Carolina from reaching its potential in the 20th century. The region has simply had too many eastern legislators to go off to Raleigh, enjoy the sessions and come back home with nothing.

This legislature was elected to do a job. One part of that job was to develop a plan for modern North Carolina highways and provide for the financing.

Visionary leaders developed such a plan, one which is as fair to eastern North Carolina as anything has been in 75 years. Yet one of Pitt's own lawmakers is back peddling and saying no to this essential bill.

Obviously Pitt County can't depend on Rep. Jones for its highway needs. It can only hope the responsible and visionary members of the General Assembly will prevail.

'Could any eastern legislator in good conscience oppose this bill? Well, one of Pitt's own did. Rep. Walter Jones, Jr. voted against it.'

Deng's Role In Massacre Discredits Him

Jonathan Pollack

The events in Tiananmen Square seem certain to rank among the most momentous and infamous episodes in four decades of Communist rule in China. Three weeks after the first student sit-ins that disrupted the summit meeting with visiting Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and two weeks after the initial declaration of martial law, a besieged, desperate leadership finally decided to act.

'China's urban and politically attentive citizens, though in most instances without a full and accurate understanding of the gruesome outcome in the square, will remain profoundly alienated from the leaders who either urged or acquiesced to the use of force. A firestorm of protest has also been unleashed internationally, and it seems very likely that major adjustments in U.S. policy toward China are in the offing.'

Having failed to persuade or intimidate the students and their supporters, having refused to negotiate with them, and finally having been unable to out wait or outwit them, the authorities turned to the use of force, without regard to the loss of life.

The final decision bore all the hallmarks of Deng Xiaoping, China's aged but still supreme leader. Although little seen in public in recent weeks, Deng has proved to be the decisive figure throughout the course of events. His decision to reject Communist Party General Secretary Zhao Ziyang's pleas to negotiate with the demonstrators and to throw his support to Premier Li Peng led to the decision to impose martial law. Deng had decided to draw the line: There would be no compromise whatsoever with the protesters in the square, who were depicted as insurrectionists determined to topple the top leadership of the Chinese Communist Party.

But those decisions were followed by a prolonged stalemate at the highest levels of the Chinese leadership. Numerous other ranking officials were labeling Zhao Ziyang a "counterrevolutionary anti-party element"; at the same time many senior military commanders voiced extreme reluctance to use force again the demonstrators. The initial deployment of troops in the early morning hours of May 20 (principally from the Beijing Military Region) was neither forceful nor determined, and the citizens of Beijing gloried in their ability to turn back the soldiers.

It was not until several days before the final violent assault on the square that indications grew more ominous. When lightly armed soldiers were rebuffed during the early morning hours of June 3, many in the streets believed another singular victory had been achieved. But the abject humiliation of the People's Liberation Army — the soldiers having been disarmed and embarrassed by the citizens — probably made the final assault inevitable, with military units showing few compunctions about the loss of life.

The horrific events in Tiananmen Square early Sunday morning were further compounded by the employment of main-force units totally unprepared for quelling urban protests. These units, drawn disproportionately from military regions other than Beijing, demonstrated unflinching loyalty to Deng and his allies in the military, but also their unsuitability to deal with the situation in the square. The use of substantial firepower guaranteed exceedingly high casualty figures, which were probably much in excess of numbers reported by area hospitals.

But Deng's concern was not about the loss of life, but about his loss of face. Confronting the biggest challenge to the authority of the party since the Cultural Revolution, he chose — tragically and mistakenly — to view the recent protests in the context of his remembrance of those earlier traumatic events. The result is a final, shameful discrediting of the legitimacy of his rule, and a sad dismembering of the nation's progress during a decade of economic reform initiated under his aegis.

What happens next? Deng and his allies have probably succeeded in imposing their will on a defiant citizenry, at least in the near term, but at a grievous cost. Deng's historical reputation is a shambles within his own populace, and internationally as well: He is likely to be remembered most for his insistence on a brutal suppression of mass protest regardless of the consequences.

Actions do have consequences. The repercussions and aftershocks of this weekend's events will long persist. Deng may face renewed challenges to his determination to remain atop the Chinese system, possibly from within the circle of elders on whom he now depends so critically for support.

China's urban and politically attentive citizens, though in most instances without a full and accurate understanding of the gruesome outcome in the square, will remain profoundly alienated from the leaders who either urged or acquiesced to the use of force. A firestorm of protest has also been unleashed internationally, and it seems very likely that major adjustments in U.S. policy toward China are in the offing.

Thus Deng's decision has assured little, except that China's leader for a full decade seems a disgraced and vastly diminished figure. It is in this context that all Chinese and indeed the world as a whole await the next momentous turn in China's extraordinary political drama.

Policy Changes Can Be Called Back, Words Can't

WASHINGTON — Watching a new thought pass through a Marxist gathering is, said H.G. Wells, like watching a breeze blow across a field of ripe corn: The breeze passes and the serried ranks of minds return to their original position. Wells never saw the likes of Aleksandr Obolensky and Leonid Sukhov.

Obolensky will someday be the answer to a trivia question, but today he is not trivial: He is the first person publicly to challenge a supreme Soviet leader in an election. At the new Congress of People's Deputies, he offered himself as an alternative candidate to Gorbachev for president.

"I understand," he said with nice understatement, "that I have a very slim chance. I want in our history an example of something resembling alternative elections. This is what my voters wanted and what I promised them."

He does not yet quite have the hang of it. In a democracy, making promises is enough; keeping them is foolhardy. Anyway, only one-third of the delegates would vote even to include his name with Gorbachev's on the ballot (which Gorbachev won 2,123 to 87).

However, Obolensky's antic spiritedness was dazzling in light of this: The debate occurred in the shadow of one of those huge, overbearing Soviet statues designed to diminish individuals — a monstrous gleaming likeness of Lenin, glaring into The Future. The statue represents an intractable problem. All the symbols and icons are antithetical to pluralism. None is more so than Lenin, the mummified corpse at the center of the state.

The referents of American political argument are Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln — all of them embodiments of democratic consensus. The omnipresent visual and ideological referent in the Soviet Union is the father of totalitarianism.

Lenin lived in the clean, well-lit prison of one idea: "scientific socialism." His remorseless savagery flowed from it and from the lesson he chose to learn from the European left's greatest trauma, the suppression of the Paris Commune in 1871. The communards were, Lenin said, guilty of "excessive magnanimity....(The Commune) should have exterminated its enemies."

By exterminate, Lenin meant exterminate. Having supplanted the idea of individual guilt with class guilt, he set about killing categories of people, and thus became a Founding Father of genocide.

Soviet political vocabulary, including symbols and heroes, is utterly anti-democratic. There are few indigenous cultural resources for democrats to draw upon. Thus it is breathtaking to read the words of Leonid Sukhov, a deputy identified as "a driver from Kharkov." His words were spoken beneath Lenin's glare and to Gorbachev:

"I compare you not to Lenin or Stalin, but to the great Napoleon, who, fearing neither bullets nor death, led the nation to victory, but owing to his sycophants and his wife, transformed the republic into an empire. You can put me to death, but I fear this path."

Dwell upon that last sentence. Democracy is trying to sprout in stony soil indeed. Death-on-a-whim has been so central to the political culture that it is part of the syntax of public discourse. But once such discourse is public in the sense of political, everything changes, or perhaps has changed.

Note that Sukhov's statement is movingly European, making its point with reference to one of the continent's great shared experiences, Napoleon. The reference says: History did not begin in 1917. Then, we seceded from European civilization; what was done can be undone.

The Congress, although as yet a Potemkin Congress, is more important than the Oriental Woodstock in Beijing.

Twenty years ago this summer, Woodstock, a wallow in the mud of rural New York, appealed to Western worship of youth. That sentimentality is based on the frivolous equation of "spontaneity" with "authenticity," and of both with seriousness. Granted, the protesters in Tiananmen Square, unlike the self-absorbed wallowers at Woodstock, are brave and morally serious. But like Woodstock, the Tiananmen happening is more telegenic than powerful.

Student effusions can destabilize societies and can be bent to serve the purposes of others. But student uprisings rarely institutionalize any impulse, as the Soviet Congress can do, if allowed to.

Obolensky's and, even more, Sukhov's words are more momentous than Gorbachev's arms proposals. Those proposals are consistent with modernization and rationalization of Soviet armed forces, irrespective of any changes in Soviet global goals. Besides, policy changes can be changed back.

But dramatic political words cannot be called back. They reverberate. Doing so, they change the public's most important sense, the sense of the possible. And that change can in time change the goals of the state.

Making Up For Sins

Tom Collins

Analysis

People we had never seen before and probably will never see again flashed in front of us this weekend, leaving behind images of their agony and anger, and enlarging our understanding not only of politics but also of the human situation.

The pictures of the Battle of Tiananmen Square were another extraordinary example of television redeeming its sins by bringing the world yet another example of journalism as history — almost, but not quite, at the instant it was happening.

What the coverage pointed up, over and above the action and the detail, was the futility of censorship sharing with people everywhere an overwhelming desire for freedom — the freedom to choose, the freedom to express, the freedom to criticize without fear.

The pictures told us that. And they also told us what happens when people are lied to for too long and have to live in fear for too long. There are government leaders in many places of the world who must be viewing the tapes out of Beijing and checking their ammunition stocks.

The coverage was as detailed as it was sweeping. Putting their own lives on the line, journalists moved among the chaos that Tiananmen Square had become, interviewing, was by CBS' Richard Roth shortly before he was taken into custody by soldiers. He was describing, over a cellular telephone, people running from the gunfire of advancing troops, his voice quivering slightly with excitement, when he realized the troops were also coming for him and his cameraman.

"OK, we've got to get out of here," someone is heard saying. Then Roth: "They're ripping away his camera." Then labored breathing as he tries to move back into the crowd; then gunfire, the shouts of soldiers bearing down on him, and a CBS voice on the other end repeating: "This is New York. Can anybody hear us?" Then a dial tone. Fortunately, Roth and Williams were later released.

Incongruous scenes, crazy and poignant, also were caught by the cameras. There was a student atop a truck, waving happily at the camera against a background of flames and gunfire. Another student was seen pounding a personnel carrier with a huge chunk of cement — in one image symbolizing the helplessness and fury of people aroused against the armored state. There was a Chinese woman in a clean, flowered dress, delicately picking her way among a crowd of arguing soldiers and students, almost as though she was looking for a seat.

One soldier was shown stripped and hanging from the frame of a destroyed truck. Others were shown holding rifles at the ready. A camera caught a young woman running gracefully in its direction, then swerving at the last moment to disappear offscreen and out of sight forever. At one point CNN's cameras left the inferno in the square and closed in on a hand holding what looked like a piece of shrapnel. Dead and wounded lay on beds and stretchers in a hospital.

"Tell the world," the students shouted at Western journalists, and the media didn't let them down.

Collins is Newsday's media writer. LA Times-Washington Post News Service

"The pictures of the Battle of Tiananmen Square were another extraordinary example of television redeeming its sins by bringing the world yet another example of journalism as history ..."

after the fact. Short of arresting or deporting all foreign correspondents and confiscating all their tapes, the Chinese leaders were helpless to prevent the outside world from finding out what it was doing to its people; their feeble attempts to do so only added to their mortification.

By now we are all too familiar with China's great square. We have seen it in sunshine and exhilaration and in darkness and despair. We have seen happy students and dead students, wounded workers and cheering workers; conciliatory citizens and vengeful ones; smiling soldiers and grim.

And we have come to identify with the Chinese people, that anonymous mass whose feelings and thoughts about their government were always carefully shielded from the rest of the world.

We now see them as beautiful and intelligent, graceful and philosophical, courageous and caring, and filming, ducking and describing the massacre on tape recorders and computers for television and newspapers.

Hand-held cameras showed the student attack on an armored personnel carrier — ABC's raw footage displayed it from beginning to burning end. Ghostlike figures as in some Hollywood epic ran and bicycled in the half darkness of the square, shouting and waving their arms as the troops began to open fire. Columns of tanks rolled past under a barrage of stones.

Barricades were seen being torn up and moved; bloody bodies on stretchers were carried across the screen. A wall of flames divided the square and in the foreground hundreds of frantic students were shown rushing behind their leaders, on their way to God knows where. Automatic gunfire was picked up by the open mikes.

Hermit Burial

The remains of Robert Edward Harrill, better known as the Fort Fisher Hermit, are buried Sunday afternoon in a small cemetery in Carolina Beach near the beach he roamed for over 16 years. Harrell had been buried in Cleveland County since his death in 1972, but a statewide effort led by his son, George Howard Harrill, allowed the hermit to be buried near the area he loved.

State Officials Looking For Record Tourism Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — If pre-season inquiries are any indication, North Carolina resorts could surpass last year's record-high $6.2 billion in travel and tourism revenues, officials say.

Despite higher gasoline prices, the Division of Travel and Tourism had received almost 300,000 queries at the end of April — up from about 175,000 in the same period last year. Richard Trammell, division director, said that could translate into an increase of 9 percent or more in revenues over last year.

"I really believe people may be a little more selective in their travel ... but as long as it's affordable, they will travel," he said.

The division's statistics include money spent by tourists and business travelers at a number of businesses such as hotels, restaurants and gas stations. The statistics also include money spent by out-of-state travelers and residents traveling more than 100 miles.

The lion's share of travel and tourism revenues goes to the state's urban counties, which are frequented by business travelers and conventions. But the counties most dependent on those revenues are clustered on the coast and in the mountains.

For example, Dare County, which includes a long stretch of the Outer Banks, last year took in about $441 million in travel and tourism revenue. That's about $21,100 for every permanent county resident — by far the most of any county — compared to a state average of about $950 per resident.

Of the state's 100 counties, eight of the 10 receiving the most per-capita travel and tourism dollars were on the coast or in the mountains and another, Moore County in the Sandhills, is well known for its golf resorts.

Of the nine, none had an estimated 1988 population of more than 52,000, according to the N.C. Data Center.

The tenth in the top was Mecklenburg County, which includes the city of Charlotte, home of the Charlotte Hornets, a new professional basketball team. The county took in about $2,200 in travel and tourism revenue per resident.

The county, the state's most populous with about 475,000 residents, last year was the first North Carolina county to take in more than $1 billion in travel and tourism dollars.

Several coastal and mountain resort operators said two of their main concerns this summer travel season are rocketing gasoline prices and a shortage of qualified workers.

During Memorial Day weekend, gasoline prices in the state averaged about $1.22 per gallon, up about 15 cents over Memorial Day 1988, according to a survey by AAA Carolina Motor Club in Charlotte.

Banks Lower Prime

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major banks, including North Carolina National Bank, lowered their prime lending rates half a percentage point to 11 percent today, responding to the decline of interest rates on financial markets.

Citibank, the nation's largest bank, was the first to announce it had lowered its prime lending rate half a percentage point to 11 percent.

Several other big banks, including Chase Manhattan Bank, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and Bankers Trust Co., quickly followed suit.

Today's decline was the first drop in the prime rate — used as a base for a variety of other interest rates, including those on consumer loans — since Feb. 2, 1988. On that day, the prime fell 0.25 percentage points to 8.5 percent, but then began a climb that ended today.

Today's decline places the prime rate back at the level it reached on Feb. 10 of this year, when it rose to 11 percent from 10.5 percent.

Women Held Hostage

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two elderly women were being held hostage this morning by a man who apparently broke into their house, Mecklenburg County Police said.

Chipp Bailey of the county police said the women were taken hostage about 3 a.m. at their home in a wooded area just north of Charlotte.

Bailey said a negotiator has been talking to the hostage-taker by telephone, and the two women apparently have not been injured. Bailey said power to the house has been cut off, and the hostage-taker has demanded that police cars be removed from the area.

Police officials said they received an emergency call from the house on the 911 line, but the line was disconnected. The call was traced back to the house and officers were sent to check.

Three Drown

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A 10-year-old Buncombe County boy drowned in Lake Julian on Saturday, along with his mother and cousin, who tried to rescue him, authorities say.

Tony Benjamin of Arden was wading in the lake near the campground off U.S. 25 and apparently slipped into deeper water, according to Robert Griffin, chief of the Skyland Rescue Squad.

"The mother and her niece tried to save the boy, but none of them could swim," said Robert Griffin, chief of the Skyland Rescue Squad.

Meanwhile, the boy's father watched helplessly from the lake's edge, Griffin said. He also could not swim.

The boy was pulled from the water about 7:30 p.m., but attempts to revive him at the scene and at Memorial Mission Hospital were unsuccessful.

The body of Tonya Benjamin, 10, of Asheville, was recovered at 10:15 p.m. Saturday, and 35-year-old Sandra Benjamin, Tony's mother, was found about an hour later.

Several people — including a 10-year-old bystander — attempted to rescue the trio, but the water's swift current made it impossible, Griffin said.

Pilot Killed

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A Durham stunt pilot was killed when his small plane clipped a pine tree and crashed while he was performing stunts at a Kerr Lake cookout.

Sterling Gann, 53, was pronounced dead at the scene about 6 p.m. Saturday, authorities said.

"He had put on a little stunt demonstration for his friends, and he lost control," said Vance County Sheriff's Department Investigator S.T. Lyles. "It appeared it went into a stall, and he couldn't pull it out."

The plane's air speed indicator was locked at 150 mph, investigating officers said.

N.C. Students In Beijing Flee After Confrontation

By Martha Waggoner THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — More than two dozen Wake Forest University students were forced to flee Beijing after demonstrations by Chinese students erupted into a bloody confrontation.

One student, Mike Smith of Glen Mills, Pa., said students in taxis had to go through several roadblocks en route to the airport.

"We saw hundreds of vehicles," Smith said. "There were buses on fire. It was a lot like an escape."

Many of the 26 students were frightened as angry crowds rushed their cabs but soon realized the people simply wanted a message to be delivered, said Stephen Ewing, an associate professor of business and accounting, in a telephone interview from Hong Kong Sunday evening.

"They were trying to tell us what was going on, that the soldiers were killing people, to let the world know," he said. The students "realized what they (the Chinese citizens) were trying to do and we felt OK at that point."

"We saw a lot of movement of troops and a lot of trucks, soldiers and convoys," Ewing said. "Some of them were moving and some of them were stopped and some of them were burning."

Sandra Connor, vice president of public relations for the school in Winston-Salem, said the students and two faculty members had been in China since May 18 as part of the school's international studies curriculum. The students, who will fly to Atlanta from Hong Kong on Thursday, found their departure Sunday much different than they had imagined.

On Sunday, hundreds of thousands of people returned to the streets to block army troops who cut a bloody swath through the city the night before, killing hundreds and clearing Tiananmen Square of the protesters.

Members of a Charlotte delegation visiting China reported Sunday they were safe and didn't see any of the violence and bloodshed in the news.

Charlotte City councilman Richard Vinroot, one of about 40 delegates on a "sister city" tour in China, said the group arrived in Beijing Saturday and planned to travel by bus Monday for Charlotte's sister city, Baoding.

The delegates, who were staying in a hotel about 10 blocks from Tiananmen Square, were in the square about two hours before the gunfire erupted.

"We saw a lot of people ... I would guess there were a couple hundred thousand people milling around," Vinroot told WSOC-TV in Charlotte. "Most of the people like us were observing."

"Some of the kids were beating on the police cars and basically taunting the public military officials to the point that they had broken some windows," he said in a telephone interview. "We also saw some burning vehicles where they had basically overturned a military vehicle and burned it. That sort of thing didn't create any problems for us or for the 200,000 people there."

"But it certainly is the sort of thing that caught the military attention and probably brought on whatever happened after that," Vinroot added. "But ... we walked calmly through all of that and so did everyone else. 'It's not the sort of thing where you felt like you were in any danger at all.'"

Bill Guerrant, Charlotte's information director, also said he and the rest of the delegates were not in danger.

"Without any question regardless of what you might have heard there in the states, our group is safe," he said. "... Spirits are high and everything is fine and there's no need for any of the friends or families of those here to have concern for us. We're in good shape in a nice, comfortable hotel."

House Ethics Saga Continues With Gingrich Case

By Larry Margasak
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The House ethics committee soon will begin reviewing a complaint against Republican Whip Newt Gingrich, an omen that the chamber's ethics problems are not a bad dream that will vanish with the departure of Speaker Jim Wright and Majority Whip Tony Coelho.

Ethics committee members could begin as early as Thursday, at their next meeting, to review a Democratic member's complaint that Gingrich, R-Ga., violated rules on outside income and receipt of gifts.

The allegations against Gingrich, revolving around a partnership formed to promote a book he co-authored, are not the only reasons an ethics cloud will hover over the House while Democrats try to divert attention from their leaders' conduct.

Still pending are Justice Department investigations of House members' personnel practices, Justice Department internal probes of leaks about those investigations, the conviction of a Republican lawmaker for having sex with a minor and more public hearings by a House task force considering changes in ethics rules.

But as Wright prepares to leave Congress rather than fight 69 charges of rules violations, and as Coelho, D-Calif., plans his exit to avoid repeated questions on a junk bond deal, many seething Democrats will pay close attention to the case against Gingrich. The Georgia Republican filed the original complaint against Wright, although the allegations he cited were later dropped.

Asked if he expected to be a victim of retribution, Gingrich said last week, "I may be," but added he would trust the judgment of the eight-member ethics panel that is equally divided politically.

Gingrich said he wouldn't be surprised if the committee — officially the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct — took up his case this week. Committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said the panel may consider the complaint, filed by Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., within two weeks.

Rep. Beryl Anthony Jr., D-Ark., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said Democrats "do not have an organized strategy where we met and said, 'We're going to do A, B or C on Newt. Our strategy is to sit back and let the process work. The assumption is the committee will move with deliberate speed. They've got nothing to gain by postponing it.'"

Other issues that will keep ethics questions alive:

—A reported Justice Department investigation, according to government sources, into personnel practices of House Democratic Caucus Chairman William Gray of Pennsylvania, including whether a "no-show employee was hired. Gray has denied hiring any "ghost" employees.

Gray told supporters in Philadelphia on Sunday that he will not stop fighting for to step into Coelho's post as majority whip.

—A reported Justice Department investigation into the personnel practices of Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting delegate to Congress, according to sources. The AP learned a grand jury intends to begin hearing testimony from current and former employees of Fauntroy, a Democrat, and Rep. Gus Savage, D-Ill., over Fauntroy's hiring of Savage's son.

—A Los Angeles Times report that the Justice Department is conducting a preliminary investigation of whether Coelho received favors from Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., the firm that issued a junk bond purchased by Coelho.

—An investigation by the Justice Department into leaks by its own employees on the House investigations.

In Chicago on Sunday, former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson called for an outside special counsel to investigate the Justice Department leaks to the press, which he said have thrown dirt on Gray's reputation.

"The press must not give credibility and propagate rumors, innuendos and falsehoods on the American people," Jackson said at a news conference.

—The decision of Rep. Donald E. Lukens, R-Ohio, to remain in the House while he appeals his conviction of having sex with a 16-year-old girl, whose mother accused the lawmaker of offering her a government job to buy her silence.

—Wright's parting message in his emotional resignation speech last week, when he suggested, "Members are entitled to know what the rules mean and if they still mean what they meant when they were written and promulgated. Now maybe the rules need to be changed. Let's vote to change them."

—Public hearings by a House task force on ethics, established by Wright earlier this year after collapse of plans to raise lawmakers' pay in exchange for a ban on speaking fees.

Alexander's 10-count complaint said Gingrich exceeded outside income limits under an unusual arrangement with the publisher of his book "Window of Opportunity." As part of the arrangement, a limited partnership of 22 investors paid for promotion and marketing of the book.

Several counts charged that Gingrich violated a rule prohibiting members from keeping gifts of more than $100 from anyone with an interest in legislation. This allegation referred to the legislative interests of some members of the partnership, which consisted of Republican political activists and businessmen. The partnership raised some $105,000 to promote the book.

Gingrich said at an April news conference that none of the investors ever received "unusual or extraordinary personal help" from him in their dealings with the federal government.

The lawmaker added that the partnership did not violate the gift rule because the money each investor contributed did not constitute a gift.

Poll: Americans Accept Patients Who Have AIDS

By Gary Langer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Americans increasingly are willing to accept people with AIDS in the workplace and in public schools, but most oppose the strict confidentiality of tests for the fatal disease, a national poll has found.

Three-quarters of those responding to the Media General-Associated Press survey said people who are infected with AIDS should be entitled to continue working, and even more said children with AIDS should be allowed in regular school classes.

At the same time, seven in 10 said doctors should be required to inform their patients' spouses or sexual partners of a positive AIDS test, and nearly as many said local or state health officials should be notified.

Minorities supported mandatory notification of other interested parties: Four in 10 said doctors should have to report positive tests to the federal government or insurance companies, and three in 10 said employers should be told.

The support for notification ran counter to the view of many public health officials, including the U.S. Public Health Service, which favors strict confidentiality in order to encourage people to take AIDS tests.

The poll was conducted in advance of the Fifth International Conference on AIDS, which opened Sunday in Montreal. In an indication of the growing reach of the AIDS crisis, it found that nearly one in five American adults knows someone who is infected with the disease or who died of it.

Most of the 1,084 respondents did not fear getting AIDS themselves, and they were split on whether it is likely to spread widely outside known risk groups, homosexuals and intravenous drug abusers and their sexual partners.

Still, about six in 10 said they would pay higher federal taxes for greater government efforts at research and treatment. Nearly all favored AIDS education in public schools, and 81 percent said pupils should be told that using condoms can prevent the spread of AIDS.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is caused by a virus that damages the body's immune system, leaving victims susceptible to infections and cancer. AIDS is spread most often through sexual contact, dirty needles, infected blood and from pregnant women to their offspring. An estimated 5 million people worldwide are infected, and no cure is known.

Two percent of the 1,084 adults in the poll thought they were at great risk of getting AIDS; 9 percent felt some risk; 23 percent said "not much risk" and 64 percent said "no risk at all." Two percent were unsure.

Of those who felt they could get

AIDS, three in 10 said they have changed their sexual behavior to lessen the odds.

The majorities who said people with AIDS should be allowed to keep their jobs and attend school were higher than in some previous polls. For example, nearly eight in 10 said children with AIDS should be admitted into regular school classes; four years ago, polls found only about four in 10 in favor of allowing children with AIDS in school.

Among other findings: —Half the respondents favored passage of a federal law banning discrimination against people who are infected with AIDS.

—Eight in 10 said the government should allow AIDS patients to take experimental drugs that have not been fully tested and approved as safe.

—Half favored giving free, clean needles to intravenous drug abusers to help curb the spread of AIDS.

—Fifty-two percent thought AIDS was likely to spread widely beyond its current risk groups; 38 percent thought not and 10 percent were unsure.

Finally, 55 percent said they would agree to answer detailed questions about their sexual behavior for a confidential federal study. The Public Health Service had hoped to study the spread of AIDS by asking thousands of Americans such questions, but the survey is being rewritten at the behest of conservative congressmen who objected to its contents.

The poll, conducted May 5-13, had a 3-point margin of error.

'Weekend' Cocaine User

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fawn Hall, Oliver North's former secretary, has told drug investigators she was a "weekend" cocaine user while she worked at the National Security Council and the Pentagon and had access to sensitive government documents, according to a published report.

The Washington Post reported in its Sunday editions that Hall told a Drug Enforcement Administration agent of her cocaine use during the agency's investigation of drug use and sales at exclusive nightclubs in the city's Georgetown area.

Hall, who testified at congressional hearings about her role in disposing of documents in the Iran-Contra affair, told the agent she used cocaine on weekends in 1985-87 and provided investigators with names of some alleged drug dealers, according to unnamed sources cited by the Post.

The former White House aide revealed her drug use to DEA agents during an interview in the Washington office of her attorney, Plato Cacheris, on Aug. 7, 1987, two months after her Iran-Contra testimony, the sources told the newspaper.

2 Reported Dead In Ethnic Rioting

By Carey Goldberg
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — The Soviet Congress today appealed for an end to bloodshed in Uzbekistan, where one deputy said thousands of homes were set ablaze in ethnic rioting that claimed at least two lives.

Tass said authorities imposed a curfew in several areas of the Central Asian republic after two days of rioting between Uzbeks and the minority Turk-Meskhetis. It said there were deaths, but did not give a number.

The deputy from the region, Rakhmatullah Akhmetov, said he had been told two people had died and "thousands and thousands of homes are burning" in his home city of Fergana.

Akhmetov, in an interview before today's session of Congress, said a dispute in a market prompted the violence, which he blamed on "extremist forces."

During the session, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev read a proclamation saying: "We, people's deputies of the USSR, call upon those involved in ethnic clashes to turn to the voice of reason and stop the bloodshed."

"Think about all the innocents who are threatened — women, children and old people. And stop, prevent injustice from being committed," it said.

The appeal was broadcast live to the nation as part of the Congress' proceedings.

In its report Sunday, the official Tass news agency said "armed groups of hooligans" attacked police, beat citizens and burned buildings and cars.

Police and Interior Ministry security forces are being used to quell the rioting, the official news agency said.

Akhmetov said he telephoned home this morning before the Congress session resumed and was told, "Everything's in smoke; everything's burning."

The unrest flared in southern Uzbekistan, where the Turk-Meskhetis live among the Uzbeks, the predominant ethnic group in the republic. Akhmetov said the trouble began when a Turk complained to a woman selling strawberries at the market that her berries were bad. When she told him he could buy elsewhere, he threw the berries in her face.

Some Uzbeks who saw the incident came to the woman's defense, "and there was a brawl, and after the brawl, an Uzbek died," the deputy recounted. "They should have clamped down on it then, but they didn't, and it grew and grew."

Akhmetov said there are only 700 Turk-Meskhetis in Fergana among 200,000 people.

There is no history of conflict between Turks and Uzbeks in the region, Soviet Turkologist Vadim Tyutyunnik said in a telephone interview.

The Turk-Meskhetis were deported from their homeland in southern Georgia during World War II, purportedly because they might support Turkey if it attacked the Soviet Union. They were resettled in Central Asia and share many cultural traits with the Uzbeks, including the Moslem religion and similar languages.

Ethnic tensions have flared in various parts of the Soviet Union in the atmosphere of increased tolerance created by Gorbachev's policy of glasnost. The openness that has permitted freer expression of political views also has released long-stifled grudges.

In February 1988, ethnic rioting in the Azerbaijani city of Sumgait resulted in the deaths of at least 32 people, most of them ethnic Armenians. Another outbreak in Azerbaijan in November led to 28 more deaths in two weeks of ethnic violence.

The Congress appeal also sought to calm tension in the disputed area of Nagorno-Karabakh, the source of much of the conflict between Armenians and Azerbaijanis. Tass reported Sunday that strikes and protests continued there.

White House Hoping For Better Iran Ties After Khomeini's Death

By Susanne M. Schafer
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The White House is expressing hope that in the wake of the death of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran will adopt "a responsible role" in the world community.

President Bush, returning Sunday to the White House after a 10-day trip to Europe, offered no public comment on the death of the 86-year-old radical Iranian leader, who once branded the United States as the "Great Satan."

The White House offered only a brief statement, saying, "With his passing, we hope Iran will now move toward assuming a responsible role in the international community."

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the State Department was keeping Bush apprised of developments in Iran, and that he had no additional statements to make.

The White House hope was echoed by former president Jimmy Carter, whose administration was hurt by the 1979 seizure of American hostages from the U.S. embassy in Tehran. Carter was conciliatory in comments made Sunday outside his church in Plains, Ga.

"I know he was a great hero in his own nation," Carter said. "My hope is that his successor will be more inclined toward peace and reconciliation."

Warren Christopher, former U.S. State Department negotiator and now a Los Angeles lawyer, said, "I felt so long as he was alive there would be little improvement in U.S.-Iran relations. He had such a monstrous hatred for the U.S. ... I wouldn't expect any immediate change. But I don't think his level of hatred can be maintained."

Despite the poor state of U.S.-Iranian relations in the past, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Sunday that Bush should extend an "open arm" to Iran now that Khomeini has died.

Appearing on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," Lugar said the United States may be able to take a new initiative in the region in the post-Khomeini era.

"President Bush should reiterate the call that his gave in his message at the inauguration, the open arm to Iran. Clearly ... the relationship could be very different. We'd like to make it that way," Lugar said.

The senator said he didn't believe there are any "moderates" in Iran, "but there may be people that we can deal with, and that we have to hope for."

Lugar also suggested that the administration should consider increasing the U.S. military presence in the region.

Death Toll Climbs To 200 In Sri Lanka Floods; Help Arrives

By Patrick Cruz
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Air force helicopters dropped food parcels today to thousands of villagers stranded by mudslides and floods that killed at least 200 people during the weekend, officials said.

More than 100,000 people left homeless by the monsoon-triggered devastation sought shelter in schools, churches and Buddhist temples, police and relief workers reported.

At least eight inches of rain fell Saturday, causing deluges of earth and water in valleys that wind through the southwest corner of the island — from Kegalle in the central hills, south to Ratnapura and down to Galle on the Indian Ocean coast.

Air force commander Walter Perera said helicopters dropped 35,000 food parcels in the Kegalle and Ratnapura districts Sunday and today and pilots were directing navy and fishing boats to pick up marooned people.

In the coconut and rubber plantation districts around Kegalle, 45 miles northeast of Colombo, searchers had recovered 165 bodies from the mud, according to Ratna Jayasinghe, assistant director of social services.

She said her office was looking after 52,000 refugees.

Police headquarters in Colombo, the capital, said at least 200 people died in the Kegalle, Ratnapura and Galle districts, but they did not provide a breakdown.

Piyatissa Ranasinghe, a local government administrator, said 54,000 people were being housed in schools, temples and churches in the gem-mining center of Ratnapura, 45 miles southeast of Colombo.

"We expect to have 60,000 refugees by late Monday," he added.

In the old Portuguese and Dutch colonial fort town of Galle, 70 miles south of Colombo, police headquarters said at least 5,000 people were living in Buddhist temples after being driven out of their homes by flood waters.

The Sri Lankan Red Cross issued an international appeal for food, clothing, tents and medical supplies.

The nation has been battered by six years of ethnic warfare. More than 9,000 people have died in the north and east during an insurrection by guerrillas from the Tamil minority, while another 3,500 have been killed by Sinhalese extremists attacking the Sinhalese-dominated government and its supporters in central and southern Sri Lanka.

Leaders Condemn Attacks

By Larry Thorson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Government and religious leaders in many countries condemned the military attacks on pro-democracy protesters in China, and the Hong Kong stock exchange plunged today in a sign of growing nervousness over the turmoil in Beijing.

There were calls for a United Nations session and a ban on U.S. military sales to China, and Chinese people in many countries protested the heavy casualties in the Chinese army's assaults Sunday and today on crowds of students and other civilians in Beijing.

World leaders including President Bush, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Pope John Paul II expressed dismay and concern at the violence, which had a particularly strong impact on China's neighbors such as Hong Kong and Taiwan, where huge sympathy demonstrations were held.

"The stability of China is important for peace and stability on the Korean peninsula and the rest of Asia," a Foreign Ministry spokesman in South Korea said today. The spokesman, who could not be named in keeping with Korean practice, said Seoul hopes the situation "can be resolved peacefully."

The Hong Kong stock market suffered its worst fall since the 1987 worldwide market collapse. The Hang Seng Index of blue chips lost 590.09 points in the morning session, closing at 2,085.29, or a whopping 22 percent fall.

China's fast economic growth in recent years has been an important tonic for Asian countries, and the chance of prolonged turmoil in China was a setback to the confidence that had been building as the region seemed more tranquil with progress in Sino-Soviet relations and in Indochina.

Hong Kong, a British colony, is to revert to Chinese rule in 1997 under a Sino-British treaty, and the violence in Beijing has made its 5.7 million people deeply nervous about their future.

About 200,000 people rallied Sunday in Hong Kong to denounce the killings, and many people wept as they watched televised reports from Beijing.

In Britain, David Howell, a legislator in Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party, urged her to seek new assurances from Beijing on Hong Kong's future. "Having got a treaty with a government that can shoot people down like this, we must have a reassurance that the spirit of the treaty stands," Howell said.

The treaty calls for Hong Kong to be able to keep its freewheeling socioeconomic lifestyle after China takes over.

Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke protested by canceling a planned October visit to China, and his foreign minister, Gareth Evans, summoned the Chinese ambassador today for consultations.

"We had admired the restraint that had been demonstrated by the Chinese government until the weekend and were shocked at the extent to which that restraint has now been abandoned," Evans said afterward. Australia was "deeply distressed at the appalling and tragic events" in Beijing, he said.

In Washington, President Bush came under pressure from both ends of the political spectrum to cut military aid to China, and there was mixed reaction to his condemnation of the violence.

Fellow Republican Mickey Edwards, an Oklahoma congressman, said Bush's response was "a pretty puny reaction to the murdering of innocent civilians, whose only crime is to want the same freedoms we in the West take for granted."

Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Rep. Stephen Solarz, a New York Democrat, urged Bush to cut U.S. military aid in retaliation for the Chinese army actions.

In West Germany, Labor Minister Norbert Blum said there should be a special session of the United Nations on the assault.

"A government that scorns human life and tramples on human rights must reckon with contempt from all civilized states," Blum said in a statement.

In the Philippines, President Corazon Aquino said she was "very sad about the violent turn of events in China." But her Foreign Ministry spokesman, Jose Ingles, asked if the Philippines condemned the violence, said that while his country sympathized with the Chinese people, "We cannot presume to interfere in their internal affairs."

Accent

At 29, He's Still An Adolescent

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I am a 25-year-old, self-supporting woman, divorced for three years. I was 18 when I married my childhood sweetheart, but as you have often said, "You can't change anybody but yourself," so I ended the marriage when I realized I couldn't change him. Fortunately we had no children.

I am now seeing a very special man. He's 29 and has never been married. Of course there's a problem or I wouldn't be writing to you. He wants to marry me, but before introducing me to his parents, he asked me not to mention the fact that I had been married.

Abby, I don't think divorce is anything to be ashamed of, but, of course, I respected his wishes. I feel very uncomfortable. I care a great deal for this man, but he has gone down in my estimation because of his request.

Am I wrong? And what should I do about it? Also, what is your opinion of him? — Uncomfortable

Dear Uncomfortable: You are not wrong. I think you should tell him how you feel. Divorce is not a "crime." His asking you not to mention it to his parents should tell you that he is still an adolescent where his parents are concerned. And he's not entirely honest.

Dear Abby: What do you think of a Mohawk haircut on an 8-year-old boy? The parents stated that it was the boy's decision to which they agreed.

It is my feeling that these parents have done their son a grave injustice, as he is a very sensitive child and has been experiencing some problems at school because of this conspicuous haircut. I understand that the school counselor was critical of it and so informed the parents, who strongly resented his disapproval.

Having observed the negative reaction of both adults and youngsters, I can't imagine how parents would knowingly subject their child to this type of scorn.

You seem to have your head on straight, Abby. What is your opinion? — Curious In Stoughton, Mass.

Dear Curious: I assume that these parents love their son as much as I love mine, and you love yours — if you have one. They must have their reasons for allowing their son to have the kind of haircut he wanted, and since they did not ask me, I'm quite content to sit on the sidelines and observe without comment.

Dear Abby: My company is considering transferring me to another town. Therefore, I will have to sell my house and relocate. We have maintained our home in good condition, but our next-door neighbors have not. The front of their house has a couple of problems that give it an unsightly appearance. I'm afraid that the poor appearance of their house will hurt my chances for selling our house.

The appearance of their house could be improved significantly at the cost of $150 and a day's labor. I am willing to pay for the improvements and do the work. Is there any way to tactfully make the offer to do the work? To date we have gotten along fine, but I am concerned about insulting them. Any suggestions? — Concerned Southerner

Dear Southerner: One of the few things I learned in Geometry I: "The shortest distance between two points is a straight line," so take the direct approach. Go straight to your neighbors and tell them exactly what you have told me. And don't worry about "insulting" anybody. They'll be getting an offer they can't refuse.

Dear Abby: I met this terrific guy last summer and it was love at first sight for both of us. (I'll call him Mark.) Mark was living with his girlfriend, "Lisa," her 2-year-old son and her mother. (The baby isn't Mark's.) I am not the type to have anything to do with a guy who's involved in another relationship, but Mark didn't tell me about Lisa until later. By then it was too late.

When Lisa found out about Mark and me, she kicked him out. We were very happy together until Lisa started calling him, and he decided to go back to her.

Now, here's the part I need help on. Lisa and I have become very good friends. She's really a neat gal and I don't want to lose her friendship. How can I keep her friendship without seeing Mark? They have no phone, so in order to talk to Lisa and see Lisa's son (whom I adore), I have to go over to their house.

I hate to do this because every time I look at Mark, I die inside. There is nothing going on between us anymore, but I still have a soft spot in my heart for him, and I can't blame him for loving Lisa. She is the most wonderful friend I have ever had.

Please tell me what to do. — Mixed-Up In Florida

Dear Mixed-Up: Losing a lover is painful, but it's not fatal. The price for maintaining your friendship with Lisa and her son is not only having to "see" Mark, but also having to put your feelings for him into perspective and go on with your life. (It won't be easy.)

Please get counseling to help you understand why you're still carrying the torch for this fickle fellow.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 6944, Los Angeles, CA 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Methodist Ceremony Joins Pair

FARMVILLE — Kim Viola Patton and John Wesley Hicks were married Saturday in a high noon ceremony in the Farmville United Methodist Church.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods Patton of Farmville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Hicks Sr. of Route 1, Elkins, W. Va., are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Wilbur C. Teachey conducted the ceremony. Music was presented by organist Drucilla Lamm.

Bess Patton of Farmville was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Jennifer Hankins of Elkins, niece of the bridegroom, and Deana McClaskey of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Thomas Hicks Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va., brother of the bride, and Tony Hicks of Elkins, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Wilbur C. Teachey directed the wedding.

The bride wore a white satin tea-length gown of imported lace, sequins and seed pearls designed with a sweetheart neckline. The gown had three-quarter length puffed sleeves and the basque waistline extended into a circular skirt. She wore a halo of white silk flowers with pearls attached to a fingertip veil.

Each of the attendants wore a lilac tea-length gown of polished cotton.

A luncheon at the Colonial Inn followed the ceremony.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride attended Pitt Community College and East Carolina University. The bridegroom attended East Carolina and Western Carolina Universities. He is employed by Computer Dynamics in Grimesland.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at Annabelle's.

Herring-Hardee Pair Wed

KINSTON — Deborah Ann Hardee of Kinston and James Everett Herring Jr. were married at 3 p.m. Sunday in First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The Rev. W.J. Forehand officiated the double-ring ceremony. Wedding music was provided by organist Johnnee Rice, pianist Jane Farmer and trumpeter Keith Brumble. Randie Hardee and Ellie Jones were soloists.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Hardee and Jennie L. Herring. Grandparents of the bride are Mrs. Herman S. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Hoarce G. Hardee, all of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal-length gown of organza over peau-de-soie with a high neckline encircled with Rachelle lace beaded with pearls. The full, circular organza skirt was appliqued in lace and completed with a ruffle of organza and Rachelle lace sweeping to a chapel-length train. She wore a Camelot cap of matching Rachelle lace embellished with pearls extending to a walking-length veil.

Diane Hardee, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Crystal Wallace, Chris Butts, Joy Gurley and Stephanie Robertson, all of Kinston, Dana Jenkins of Trenton and Michelle Minshew of Snow Hill.

Blaire Hardee and Beth Ann Hardee, both nieces of the bride, of Kinston, were flower girls. Carl Cox of Kinston was ring bearer.

Tom Foster of La Grange, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Ushers were Randy Hardee, brother of the bride, Robby Gurley, Steven Carraway and Mike Burke, all of Kinston, Guy Hines Jr. and Jay Sutton, both of La Grange.

Crisie Taylor of Kinston attended the register. The wedding was directed by Alice Outlaw of Kinston.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's family at the church. A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. Several parties and showers were given in honor of the couple prior to the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Lenoir Community College and is employed with First Citizens Bank in Kinston. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Lenoir High School and is employed with Lenox China of Kinston.

MRS. HERRING

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Kinston.

Mr. Vincent, Miss Russell Are Wed Sunday Afternoon

Sheila Delane Russell of Route 6, Greenville, and Jeffrey C. Vincent of Walstonburg, were married Sunday at 3 p.m. at Mount Pleasant Christian Church. Donald McKinney officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Wedding music was presented by pianist Andrea Wynne and Bonnie R. Morgan, soloist. The wedding was directed by John Price Jr. of Henderson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delano E. Russell of Route 6, Greenville. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce C. Vincent of Route 2, Walstonburg are parents of the bridegroom.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown with cathedral train of tafetta with re-embroidered alencon lace. The bodice featured a Victorian neckline with an illusion yoke, leg o'mutton sleeves and basque waist. Alencon lace beaded with pearls and sequins encircled the collar, accented with dangling pearls and bugle beads. Beaded Alencon lace motifs adorned the bouffant skirt, train and flounce. She wore a layered veil of illusion with a handrolled edge accented with a fluted pouff flowing from the back of a beaded wreath, and carried a cascading bouquet of white butterfly roses, deep pink roses, white freesia and baby's breath with white lace and satin ribbon. A garland of pearls was entwined in the bouquet and draped in the streamers.

Sandra H. Gurkins of Greenville was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Beth Glisson, Trudy B. Oakley and Sherri L. Stokes, all of Greenville; Michelle M. Lee of Aurora, and Amy D. Vincent and Sharon V. Cox, sisters of the bridegroom, both of Walstonburg. Junior bridesmaid was Allison Marie Spain of Greenville, a cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore tea-length gowns of raspberry crepeback satin and carried cascading bouquets of deep pink lilies, pixie carnations and roses, interspersed with baby's breath and tied with raspberry satin ribbons and tulle.

Elisa Paige Briley of Greenville, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a tea-length gown of raspberry crepeback tafetta and carried a basket filled with pink rose petals. The ring bearer was Justin Ray Elks of Greenville, also a cousin of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Ron Beamon of Farmville; Chris Jones and Scott Page, both cousins of the bridegroom, and Keith Cox, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, all of Walstonburg; Kevin Baker of Fountain, and Gregory B. Spain, a cousin of the bride, of Greenville. Derek G. Vincent of Walstonburg, brother of the bridegroom, was junior usher.

The mother of the bride wore a mauve dress. The bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece, lavender crepe outfit. Both wore corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

Adell Moseley and Madeline Perdew, grandmothers of the bridegroom, and Louise Spain, aunt of the bride, were remembered with white corsages.

Ushers were Randy Hardee, brother of the bride, Robby Gurley, Steven Carraway and Mike Burke, all of Kinston, Guy Hines Jr. and Jay Sutton, both of La Grange.

Crisie Taylor of Kinston attended the register. The wedding was directed by Alice Outlaw of Kinston.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's family at the church. A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. Several parties and showers were given in honor of the couple prior to the wedding.

MRS. VINCENT

A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. The bridegroom's parents hosted an after-rehearsal pig picking at their home. Several showers were given for the couple before the wedding.

The bride graduated from North Pitt High School and is a senior at East Carolina University. She is a part-time employee in East Carolina University's purchasing department and at Merle Norman. The bridegroom graduated from Farmville Central High School and is employed by Standard Commercial Tobacco Company in Wilson.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will live at Route 6, Greenville.

Herbal Teas Have Natural Healing Power

COUNTRY HOME

The natural healing power of herbal tea has been savored for centuries.

Most herbal tea is made from a savory blend of natural grain, sweet spices, leaves, flowers and roots. Country Home magazine offers the following three ways to enjoy their piquant and soothing flavors:

— To complement a country kitchen, gently simmer a few cinnamon- and apple-flavored herbal tea bags in a small saucepan on the stove.

— Tuck lemon herbal tea bags in drawers or linen closets for the old-fashioned aroma of a lemon sachet.

— Keep spicy herb tea bags in the desk at work or in other unexpected places. The pleasant scent will be a refreshing surprise.

For a free booklet filled with tips on indulging in the pleasure of herbal tea, write: Savor the Moment, P.O. Box 4154, Syosset, NY 11791.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today, pulling back from the post-crash highs it reached at the end of last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 6.62 to 2,511.21 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 461 up, 517 down and 514 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 22.49 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Analysts said the U.S. market registered no strong response to the strife in Beijing, although stocks in Hong Kong took a severe drop.

In other economic news today, several large banks lowered their prime lending rates from 11.5 percent to 11 percent.

Iran Stampede Results In Eight Deaths

"We have been orphaned! Our father is dead!" several women screamed. The government declared a 40-day mourning period.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said the crowds blocked the streets leading to the mosque and President Khomeini had to be flown to it by helicopter.

Under the constitution, Khomeini's leadership position was considered above the constitution and had no specified duties. He was considered the earthly representative of the prophet Mohammed and the recipient of divine guidance.

Iran's leadership met Sunday to study Khomeini's written political testament. It is believed to contain proposals for how the Islamic republic should be governed after his death.

The constitution requires that the leader be an ayatollah, but Khomeini is hojatoleslam, a middle-ranking cleric, leading to the opinion that he was appointed as a caretaker leader.

Khomeini told the state-run television on Sunday: "We hope temporarily to be able to fill the leadership, because the new terms of the constitution are currently under review."

Likely results include changing the constitution to increase the president's powers at the expense of the prime minister and downgrading the religious qualifications for leadership.

Considered opposed to fundamentalist radicalism, Khomeini has strong support among Iran's merchant class and moderates who favor restoring ties with the West. But he lacks a strong political power base.

Khomeini said the constitutional reform would not be completed in two to three months. They would be put to vote in a referendum set for Aug. 18, when Iranians will vote for a new president.

It was not clear what, if any, effect Khomeini's death would have on 15 Western hostages held in Lebanon, most by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem extremists. They include nine Americans.

It also was not clear to what extent Khomeini's testament would help defuse the crisis that has gripped Iran since he launched a resurgence of radical fundamentalism in February.

Khomeini then urged Moslems to kill British author Salman Rushdie for writing the novel "The Satanic Verses," which many Moslems consider blasphemous.

Opposition groups in exile predicted a crisis in the Islamic republic after Khomeini.

Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, the former president exiled in France, said Khomeini's appointment indicated "a total failure" by the government.

"Imagine a church that cannot find a pope. ... It is exactly the same. Like a dynasty that cannot find a king. ... It will not last," he said.

He said Khomeini will be part of a troika ruling Iran, along with Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani and Ahmad Khomeini, the patriarch's only son. All three are middle-ranking Islamic clergymen.

Khomeini ruled Iran during the 8-year war with Iraq, and Iraqis cheered the news of his death and expressed hope that Iran now would sign a treaty to permanently end the conflict.

Khomeini is survived by his wife, three daughters and son. His eldest son, Mustafa, died while Khomeini was in exile in Iraq.

Iranian media, monitored in Nicosia, said Saturday that the ayatollah's condition had deteriorated because of an unspecified "complication."

Tehran's Resalat newspaper said Khomeini died just before midnight Saturday, nine hours after he suffered heart failure.

Resalat, giving the first account of Khomeini's last hours, said: "Doctors revived the imam ... and he regained consciousness, though he was not able to speak to relatives and top officials who were at his bedside. He whispered prayers."

Disaster Toll High

There were not train tickets and therefore were not included in the count Tass gave for the number of people aboard.

Asked about the death toll given by Dmitrin, Dr. Vladimir Ruchki, a local Health Ministry spokesman said: "It's about right." He said more than 600 people were hospitalized. Tass said more than 500 people were hospitalized and that 85 percent suffered severe burns.

Moiseyev told Tass the liquefied gas explosion "had the same yield as a 10,000-ton bomb and was so powerful that it felled all trees within 2.5 miles." He said the blast hurled two locomotives and 38 passenger cars from the rails, with most of the cars destroyed by a one-mile-long blaze. The total number of railroad cars was not known.

"The picture I saw was terrifying, catastrophic," Dmitrin said, reading from a correspondent's first-person account published in his paper. "The forest was practically burned to ashes by the fire. Only blackened trunks of trees could be seen. But most tragic, cars were blackened, twisted and even now exude a suffocating stink."

A special Aeroflot flight brought 50 of the injured to Moscow for medical care today. The wounded, their skin blistered and peeling in places, were loaded on stretchers into waiting ambulances.

In Moscow, speaking to Congress, Gorbachev called for a minute of silence and the 2,250 deputies stood to mourn the victims. Gorbachev then recessed the session for a national day of mourning.

The 58-year-old Soviet leader, in remarks from the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses broadcast live on radio and television, said the 1,153 mile-long pipeline burst a half mile from the rails.

He said the liquefied petroleum gas poured down a slope toward the tracks for three hours. Despite the leak, pumps were turned on to compensate for the pressure loss.

"Everything started to accumulate, and when this mass reached the level of electrical train contacts, a spark ignited this condensed cloud," Gorbachev told the deputies.

The two passenger trains — traveling in opposite directions — had made unscheduled stops near each other between the city of Ufa and the town of Asha, 750 miles southeast of Moscow. One train was on a siding, and the other was on the main tracks, the Soviet president indicated.

"How could it be that again there is incompetence, irresponsibility, mismanagement, disgrace? Comrades and I, and all residents there, said there will be no progress if we have such laxness," Gorbachev said.

He said investigators would examine why the gas pump was turned on despite the leak and why the two trains made unscheduled stops at the same place.

The busy railroad links the western, European part of the country to the Asian region in the east. The trains were traveling between Novosibirsk, the largest town in Siberia with a population of 1.3 million, and Adler, a popular Black Sea resort.

Gorbachev said among the victims was a group of children traveling to southern resorts. Tass said 16 severely burned children were taken to the town of Yuryuzan and that "doctors are struggling to save their lives."

"The whole territory blew up. It was a real hell," Gorbachev said Sunday in Chelyabinsk, the biggest city near the scene. Television carried his remarks in a special late-night broadcast Sunday.

The television showed bloody and blackened faces and limbs of victims. One boy lying on a stretcher in an ambulance at the Chelyabinsk airport was so scarred the correspondent had to tell viewers, "He's living."

The film showed charred railroad cars without windows lying at odd angles amid twisted tracks and protruding railroad ties. The surrounding area was blackened and barren.

The blast was so strong it shattered windows in a village seven miles away, and incinerated dozens of acres of trees, television said. It was the third major Soviet train accident in a year and added to the disasters during Gorbachev's 4-year-old rule. They include the Chernobyl nuclear power plant explosion, the sinking of a cruise ship and a nuclear-armed submarine, and the Armenian earthquake.

Sunday's accident was the worst in the Soviet Union since June 4, 1988, when nearly 100 people were killed as three trains loaded with industrial explosives blew up in Arzamas, 240 miles east of Moscow.

Solvent Discussed

fans in the cleaning area to take out any excess fumes.

The national Occupational Safety and Health Agency requires that solvent gases dispersed in a work area be reduced to 25 parts per million, one-fourth the previous standard of 100 parts per million. Those standards went into effect March 1.

Another Greenville dry cleaner, Bill Bowen, said he understands that the International Fabric Care Institute, of which he and some 11,000 other dry cleaners are members, is battling against these standards.

"That's right," said John Meijer, legislative liaison for the IFCI in Silver Spring, Md. "We have filed suit against OSHA and we have asked for an emergency stay on the 25 ppm ruling."

"We feel that the OSHA contention that perk causes cancer in amount more than that is absolutely wrong, that there contention is not based on scientific proof and should never have been enacted."

He said dry cleaners have until Sept. 1 to comply with the OSHA standards already in force. A more stringent version of the ruling — one that would require expensive engineer air filtration systems in cleaning plants — will go into effect in December 1992.

Services Changing

though the capacity would drop, the frequency of flights would increase.

"There will be no lack of service," he said.

Brian also said the airport was working diligently with American Eagle to bring the company's service to Kinston.

Officials at American Eagle would not comment on air service to Kinston other than confirming Kinston as one possible site for future expansion.

Ed Stewart, a spokesman for American Airlines, said negotiations with Kinston were continuing, but "things look promising."

American Eagle serves 138 cities throughout the United States and Puerto Rico, Stewart said. If American Eagle were to serve Kinston, flights would go through American's hub in the Raleigh-Durham International Airport. "From there you can go anywhere in the world," Stewart said.

With 11 daily flights by Piedmont and its commuter airlines, Kinston now serves nearly 200 cities through the Charlotte and Baltimore, Md./Washington, D.C. markets. A computer plane was added at the beginning of the month to ease the transition when the jets are replaced.

Brian estimated nearly 135,000 passengers passed through the airport last year. He said service was slightly down so far this year.

Kinston Mayor O.A. Ritch said

Meijer said those standards will put many dry cleaners out of business.

"Twenty-two percent of our industry are cleaners who process fewer than 500 pounds of fabric a week," he said. "They just cannot survive the high costs the OSHA regulations call for."

Bowen said the cost of such regulations is being passed on to the consumer.

"The public thinks that they're being protected by these rigorous standards," Bowen said. "And up to a point, they are. But when the standards get unreasonable, they're putting undue hardship on small business people. And they're causing consumer prices to go sky-high."

"I'll give you a perfect example. I have two dry cleaning operations. And for these two cleaners, this year alone, I will spend about $5,000 to have a company which specializes in hazardous waste disposal pick up my perk filters and hopefully dispose of them in a hazardous waste facility somewhere.

"People in the business just a few years ago just threw them in the trash."

"Do you see why I have to charge more for dry cleaning than people did just a few years ago?"

more frequent flights would help the town's growing industry and draw more area residents away from the airport in Raleigh and back to Kinston. The mayor also said Kinston was close to a deal with American Eagle to provide even greater service.

"I think it's a big plus for everybody," Ritch said about the expanded service.

Eric Jarman scores after game-winning homer to give N.C. Wesleyan the national title.

Eric Jarman's Homer Lifts Wesleyan To National Title

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRISTOL, Conn. — Eric Jarman's solo home run in the top of the 13th inning Sunday gave North Carolina Wesleyan an 8-7 victory over California Stanislaus State and the 1989 NCAA Division III College World Series championship.

The Battling Bishops forced a second game when they beat Stanislaus State 3-0 on Sunday afternoon.

Jarman, a junior centerfielder who played his high school baseball at Greenville (N.C.) Rose, took reliever Robert Sapp's fastball over the 370 mark in right centerfield to help give N.C. Wesleyan its first NCAA Division III championship. Jarman, the unanimous all-tournament selection, also had five hits in seven at-bats and drove in four runs.

For the tournament, Jarman collected 16 hits in 30 at-bats, a .533 average.

Pitcher Mark Silletti, who in the earlier must-win game for N.C. Wesleyan limited Stanislaus state to four hits, entered the title game in the seventh inning with two outs and runners on first and second. The Battling Bishops got out of the inning when Matt Basgall hit a fly ball to center.

Silletti was the winner in both games, while Sapp, 8-5, was the losing pitcher.

Three of the four hits off Silletti in the semifinal came off Stanislaus State's Mark Ruiz. Erik Dbe had two hits in four plate appearances, while junior right fielder Donald Dantzier had two for four and an RBI for N.C. Wesleyan.

Relaxed Byrum Captures Kemper On Record Score

Caddy Tell Jokes To Keep Him Loose For 268 Total

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

POTOMAC, Md. — Tom Byrum needed something to sooth his nerves as he entered the final round of the Kemper Open. What his memory didn't provide, his caddy did.

Drawing from the experience gained from two earlier crushing defeats and chuckling at his joke-telling caddy, a relaxed Byrum shot a 3-under-par 68 Sunday to win by five strokes with a tournament-record 268.

Byrum, who entered the tournament winless in four years on the PGA Tour, began the final round with a two-shot lead. He had been close to that elusive first victory before. But in 1986 he blew a two-shot advantage in the Western Open, and last year he lost a four-stroke lead on the final day of the Pensacola Open.

Both losses were crushing, but helpful.

"It's amazing what you can do with a little experience. It really pays off to get beat a few times," he said. "Luckily, I remembered every lick that I took and it kept me going until the end."

If the experience he gained from those two losses didn't fully calm him, his caddy — known as "Irish Dave" — did.

"He's a joker, and maybe that's what I needed," Byrum said. "I get a little too uptight sometimes and I need to relax and take things a little lighter. He's the kind of guy you can't be around and be serious at the same time."

Byrum pulled away Sunday with three straight birdies on Nos. 46. That gave him a five-shot lead, and the margin never got lower than three the rest of the way.

"Today I took hold of my own destiny on the first nine holes," Byrum said. "That way, I didn't have to work so hard on the last few holes, which are the hard ones."

Tommy Armour III, Jim Thorpe and Billy Ray Brown finished in a tie for second. Thorpe shot a 67 to earn his biggest paycheck since 1986. Armour, who started the day two strokes back, had pars on the final 12 holes for a 71 and Brown shot a 67 after making birdies on the opening three holes.

Byrum iced the victory with a 12-foot birdie putt on the par-4 16th hole. He capped the round with pars on Nos. 17 and 18 to finish at 16-under for the tournament.

His wife, Dana, and the couple's daughter, 14-month-old Brittini, crowded around him after he dropped in an eight-footer on No. 18.

Byrum, who entered the Kemper having missed the cut in nine of 16 tournaments this year, had only six bogeys in four trips over the 6,917-yard TC at Avenel course. His total bettered the Kemper record of 270 by Bob Menne in 1974 and Tom Kite two years ago.

Peterson And Barrett Named To East-West

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — A pair of North Carolina State signees — Donnie Seale of Eden Morehead and Danyel Parker of Clinton — headline the players selected to the 41st annual McDonald's East-West All-Star basketball games.

The selections were announced Saturday by the North Carolina Coaches Association, co-sponsors of the doubleheader which will be held July 25 at the Greensboro Coliseum.

Locally, two players and one coach from Pitt County will take part in the games.

Ronnell Peterson, a 6-1 guard from Ayden-Grifton, and Reggie Barrett, a 6-3 forward from state 2-A champion Farmville Central, will play for the East.

Farmville coach Mike Terrell will be an assistant coach for the East coach Tommy Day of Roxboro Person.

Peterson averaged 21 points a game during the regular season for the Chargers and upped that average to 28.1 ppg during the playoffs as his team advanced to the Eastern 2-A Regionals.

Barrett, a two-year starter at Farmville, averaged 12.9 ppg and 7.5 rpg for the Jaguars.

Seale, a 6-foot-5 guard, will play

Watson's Pitching Paces Wilson To Legion Victory

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Wilson County and pitcher Mark Watson made quick work of Pitt County Post 39 en route to a 5-2 American Legion baseball win Sunday night at Harrington Field.

Wilson got on top early, thanks to a pair of unearned runs in the second inning, and Watson kept the Pitt batters quiet in going the distance for the win.

Pitt totaled seven hits, but only once had more than one in an inning, that coming in the sixth.

"Their pitcher kept us off balance," said Ronald Vincent, subbing for Grant Jarman as Post 39 coach. "We couldn't get anything started. We couldn't even get any baserunners."

Wilson County took advantage of its chances throughout the night, taking advantage of Pitt's miscues to bring runners home once they were in scoring position.

Wilson's two unearned runs in the second were a perfect example.

"It was two runs and it shouldn't have been," Vincent said.

In the second, Watson opened with a double and went to third on a single by Scott Davis. When Davis tried to steal second, Post 39 catcher Derrick Clark tried to pick him off, but no one covered second and the ball skidded into the outfield, allowing Watson to score. Davis went to third and later scored on a ground out by Greg Poythress for a 2-0 lead.

"It's always important when you are playing a good team to get a lead and put the pressure on them," Wilson coach Larry Fulghum said. "We did a good job running the bases. We tried to keep them guessing. We got the ball in play when we had men on third."

Wilson made it 3-0 in the third when Lee Hinnant opened with a walk and went to third on a single by Wayne Sullivan. Kevin Satterfield followed with a fielder's choice to score Hinnant.

In the fourth, Wilson added another run as Davis opened with a single, stole second, went to third on a single by Poythress and scored on a wild pitch.

Post 39 finally got on the board in the fourth when Timmy Moore opened with a single, stole second and went to third on an error before scoring on a ground out by Ty Little to make it 4-1.

Pitt had viable rallying opportunities in the sixth and the eighth, but could score only once in the eighth.

In the sixth, Heath Clark had a single and Maurice Hines followed with another base hit, but he was tagged out in a base-running miscue. Though Clark eventually made it to third, no one could bring him home.

In the eighth, Pitt did get one run, as David Leisten drew a walk, went to second on a single by Clark, to third on a fielder's choice and scored off an error. But with a runner on third with only one out, Pitt was unable to take advantage and bring him home.

Watson, though, never got in trouble. Only once did Pitt send more than five men to the plate in an inning and that was the eighth.

Wilson's final run came in the top of the ninth when Sullivan was hit by reliever Hal Conger, stole second, went to third on a throwing error and scored on another error.

Pitt falls to 1-1 while Wilson moves to 3-0.

Post 39 returns to action tonight at home against Wayne County at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Rod Gorham started for Pitt and went six innings, allowing eight hits to earn the loss.

In Saturday's late game, Pitt County used a four-run fourth inning to break a 4-4 tie and go on to take a 11-9 win over Kinston.

Tim Moore had a double and Ty Little had a RBI single to key the inning.

Pitt then scored two more runs in the fifth to make it 10-4 before Kinston rallied in the late innings to make a game of it.

Kinston scored two in the seventh, one in the eighth and two more in the ninth, but it wasn't enough.

Earnhardt Dominates For 1st-Ever Dover Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DOVER, Del. — Maybe a guy who's won three NASCAR championships shouldn't have to prove himself. But Dale Earnhardt did it anyway for 500 miles on a track that had given him fits.

Earnhardt dominated the Budweiser 500 Sunday, leading for 454 of the 500 laps and holding off Mark Martin by a half-second for his first victory ever at Dover Downs International Speedway.

"You just keep working hard at a place you haven't won at," said Earnhardt, who was forced by a late caution to hold off Martin and Ken Schrader over the final eight laps.

Earnhardt averaged 121.712 mph on the high-banked, 1-mile oval to earn $59,350 for his second Winston Cup victory of the year.

Schrader finished third, followed by Terry Labonte, Rusty Wallace and Ricky Rudd.

Earnhardt had taken his final lead with 63 laps left and was running strong with 15 to go when Michael Waltrip spun, bringing out the caution and setting up a showdown among the leaders over the last eight laps. That gave Martin and Schrader a chance to win, but Earnhardt proved himself correct on the strength of his car.

"As far as confidence in a car doing what it's supposed to do, I thought the car could get right back out front," said Earnhardt, who had last won April 16 at the First Union 400 in North Wilkesboro, N.C.

His victory brought him within two points of the leader, Darrell Waltrip, in the Winston Cup points race.

It also was the first victory for a Chevrolet at Dover since Geoff Bodine's victory in 1986. Ford drivers had won the last five races, including two by Bill Elliott last year, but Earnhardt was having no "Ford track" talk.

"A racetrack's a racetrack. It's just been circumstantial that the Fords have been winning here consistently," said Earnhardt, who finished second to Elliott last Sept. 18 in the Delaware 500 — the only other time he completed all 500 laps in a race at Dover.

Darrell Waltrip, plagued by early handling problems and lapped by Earnhardt only 56 laps into the race, finished ninth to keep his lead over Earnhardt.

"This is the best we've finished at Dover in three years, so we feel very lucky to come out of here with a two-point lead in the standings," said Waltrip, a two-time Dover winner who hasn't finished in the top five since a fifth-place showing in 1986.

Earnhardt set a fast pace, smashing several of the track's average-speed records for stages of the race, including the 400-mile mark at 126.338 mph, which broke Richard Petty's 18-year-old mark of 123.826 mph.

He established his claim early, leading 224 of the first 250 miles. He took the lead from pole-sitter Martin at the start of lap two, sweeping by on the inside and holding the lead through lap 80, when he stopped in the pits for new right-side tires.

Except for green-flag pit stops and brief duels with Martin and Schrader — who earned a $10,000 mid-race bonus for leading at lap 250 — Earnhardt dominated most of the race.

Approaching the halfway point, Schrader bumped Earnhardt from inside on the first turn on lap 245 and took the lead for five laps, giving way to Earnhardt after winning the bonus.

"I wanted that money lap bad, and I know Dale did, too. I got up underneath him and I thought, heck, what would Dale do. So I just glanced him," Schrader said. "We didn't have enough there at the end, but we'll take third."

For Schrader and Martin, the top-five finishes were their first at Dover.

"I drove my heart out," Martin said. "I was just tickled to run second, I guess."

Frye To Fight For World Title

Dale "Sunshine" Frye of Greenville, will go for the Karate International Council of Kickboxing (KICK) world title June 12 in Charlottesville, Va.

Frye fights in the organization's Super Lightweight division.

The bout is scheduled for 12 rounds in the University of Virginia Coliseum and will be held prior to a closed circuit television broadcast of the Sugar Ray Leonard-Thomas Hearns championship boxing match. Frye's opponent in the match will be Chuck Biddle, who fights out of Washington, D.C.

Frye currently holds the World Kick Boxing Association title and would add a second title to his collection with the win. Frye is trained by Bill McDonald of Greenville, who has trained four world champions over the past 15 years.

Another of McDonald's fighters, Curtis Evans of Greenville, successfully defended his North American Flyweight title in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday, winning a nine-round decision.

Wayne County Rolls By Snow Hill, 12-7

GOLDSBORO — Wayne County used a six-run third inning to take control and ease to a 12-7 win over Snow Hill Sunday in American Legion baseball action.

Snow Hill opened the first with a solo homer by George Burnette. One out later, Chris West doubled and scored on a single Darryl Rouse to make it 2-0, but the lead was short-lived.

Wayne County banged out six hits in the third and took advantage of two Snow Hill walks. Wade Lyalls provided the big hit for Wayne County with a two-run triple.

Burnette went 5-6 for Snow Hill, while West and Prentis Uzzell had three hits each.

For Wayne County, Bob Grant went 3-4 while Shawn Harris went 2-5. Davis Whitfield also had two hits for Wayne County.

Snow Hill drops to 2-1 on the year and plays Wilson at home tonight.

Rules Change Asked After Fatality

NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The South Carolina Amateur Boxing Federation is calling for national rules to be changed so that boxers would only be allowed to fight one bout a day.

The request made by representatives of the association at a meeting Sunday. It was in response to the death of Guydell Williams, an 18-year-old from Jackson, Tenn. He fought in two bouts on March 22 in the Can-Am Boxing Championships at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center, and died three days later.

The SCABF's motion was a recommendation to the U.S. Amateur Boxing Federation for a change in the national group's bylaws. The USABF allows a boxer to fight more than one bout a day if the event is considered a tournament and not a club event.

The Can-Am Boxing Championships is considered a tournament by SCABF officials.

The USABF will vote on the measure at its annual meeting in September.

SCABF president Woody Gregory said his life and that of Charlie Hammond, SCABF chief official, have been "pure hell" since March. "If someone didn't have to make that decision (to allow Williams to fight), we wouldn't be here, he said. "We did nothing wrong, but we're under a microscope."

Gregory, who said the motion was partially inspired by public and media pressure, has two meetings with attorneys this week to discuss possible lawsuits against the federation in Williams' death.

The SCABF cleared Can-Am boxing organizers in May of any blame in Williams' death. Doctors said Williams died of stroke, but it is undetermined if the stroke was caused by blows sustained from a fight.

Rick Gaskin, administrative director of the Horry County Youth Club, organizers of the Can-Am event, said Sunday he expected the motion to be approved by the USABF, but declined further comment when reached at home.

Gregory said the Can-Am boxing tournament will continue next year.

One drawback is that the one-fight-per-day rule could exclude some participants if an odd number of fighters enter a specific category. For instance, if five fighters are entered in a certain age and weight class for a two-day tournament, one fighter would have to sit out so that none would have to fight twice in a day.

Dodger Formula Works For Astros

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Astros brought their long weekend to a successful finish by borrowing a trick from Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda.

When the Dodgers ran out of pitchers in Game 4 of last year's National League playoffs, Lasorda turned to ace starter Orel Hershiser, who retired the final batter of the 12-inning game to preserve the victory.

Houston faced a similar situation Sunday. The Astros and Dodgers had played 22 innings the night before, were tied 6-6 after 12 innings and were out of pitchers.

In came Mike Scott, the 13th pitcher used by Houston in two games and the winner on Friday night. Not only did he work a scoreless inning, he also drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly for a 7-6 victory, the Astros' 10th in a row.

"When you are losing, you find ways to lose games but we're finding ways to win," said Scott, 9-3. "When you come to the park, there's always a chance you're going to play. You've got to be ready."

The Dodgers pounded starter Bob Forsch for five runs in the first inning, and made it 6-0 in the third. Louie Meadows' grand slam keyed Houston's comeback.

"When they got ahead 6-0, we were on the bench saying 'there's no way these guys are going to beat us,'" Scott said. "We've got that feeling that we are going to figure out a way to win even when we're down 6-0."

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 11, St. Louis 3; New York 4, Pittsburgh 3; Montreal 7, Philadelphia 4; Atlanta 6, San Francisco 3, and Cincinnati 5, San Diego 3.

With the bases loaded and one on in the 13th, Scott hit the second pitch from Alejandro Pena, 2-2, to center field, scoring Rafael Ramirez. The Astros' winning streak ties a club record.

"I'm ready to get the hell out of here," Dodgers reliever Jay Howell said. "These guys could sweep the '27 Yankees they way they are playing now."

Ken Caminiti, one of four Astros to play all 35 innings for the two games, was ready for more.

"You don't get tired when you play that many innings and win," Caminiti said. "It's when you lose that you feel the fatigue."

Cubs 11, Cardinals 3

Chicago homered six times, twice each by Shawn Dunston and Ryne Sandberg, and one apiece by Mitch Webster and Vance Law, in a game marred by a brief bench-clearing brawl.

Chicago's Mark Grace charged the mound when brushed back by St. Louis reliever Frank DiPino in the top of the fifth inning and was ejected.

DiPino had relieved Cardinals starter Scott Terry, 4-5, following Sandberg's second homer. The Cubs' six homers, their most since June 3, 1987, against the Houston Astros, included three in five at-bats before DiPino took over.

Scott Sanderson, 6-3, allowed five hits, struck out six and walked two for his first complete game of the year in 10 starts.

Mets 4, Pirates 3

Pinch-hitter Mark Carreon led off the bottom of the seventh inning with a tie-breaking home run and New York beat Pittsburgh for its fourth straight victory.

Carreon connected against reliever Bob Kipper, 0-2, for his second home run this season, both as a pinch hitter. Pittsburgh lost its fourth consecutive game.

Don Aase, 1-1, pitched two scoreless innings for his first National League victory and first in the majors since opening day in 1987. Rick Aguilera worked 1 1-3 innings and Randy Myers got the last two outs for his eighth save.

Expos 7, Phillies 4

Otis Nixon had three RBIs and Mike Fitzgerald added two run-scoring doubles as Montreal swept a three-game series in Philadelphia, sending the Phillies to their 11th straight loss.

The slide matches the Phillies' longest losing streak since they dropped the final 11 games of the 1985 season. They've lost 15th of their last 17 games.

Dennis Martinez, 5-1, allowed 10 hits in 7 1-3 innings and Andy McGaffigan finished for his second save.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second when Juan Samuel hit his sixth homer. But Montreal came back with two unearned runs in the top of the seventh against reliever Don Carman, 1-9.

Braves 6, Giants 3

Darrell Evans' three-run homer highlighted a four-run fifth and Dale Murphy had three RBIs as Atlanta avoided a sweep at home by the Giants.

Derek Lilliquist, 4-3, retired the first 11 batters he faced. He allowed five hits over six innings, struck out one and walked none.

Kevin Mitchell greeted reliever Jim Acker with a homer deep into the left-field seats, his 19th of the season and fourth in the three-game series.

The Braves, leading 1-0, started their four-run rally off Mike Krukow, 3-3, with two out in the bottom of the fifth, capping it with Evans' 40th career homer — tying him with Duke Snider for 21st on the all-time list.

Reds 5, Padres 3

First baseman Jack Clark's wild throw with the bases loaded allowed two runs to score as Cincinnati won its fourth straight and completed a sweep of the Padres at Riverfront Stadium.

Danny Jackson, 4-8, allowed eight hits and struck out seven over 6 1-3 innings in his first start in a week. Jackson hadn't thrown from a mound since last Sunday because of a sore big toe on his left foot that required a cortisone shot and a week of rest.

Felix, Blue Jays Like Fenway

Two-Run Homer In 12th Keys Toronto To Win, 13-11

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Junior Felix and his Toronto teammates would like to return to Fenway Park as soon as possible.

Felix hit a two-run homer with one out in the 12th inning Sunday as the Blue Jays rallied from a 10-0 deficit for a 13-11 victory over Boston, extending their winning streak over the Red Sox at Fenway Park to 12 games.

In the three weekend games at Boston, Felix was 8-for-16 with 11 RBIs. He also had an inside-the-park grand slam.

"Yes, I'd like to come back here," Felix said. "I don't know the name of the pitcher. I just ask what he throws and (Manager) Cito (Gaston) tells me."

The pitcher was Dennis Lamp, who wasn't surprised at all that the Blue Jays rallied.

"When you play for 12 years, you see a few of these," Lamp said. "When I was pitching in Wrigley Field, we had a lot of these."

Tom Lawless led off the 12th with a single off Lamp, 0-1, the fifth Boston pitcher. Nelson Liriano sacrificed, and Felix followed with his fourth homer, a drive into the bleachers in right-center field.

"Unbelievable — that was some kind of game," Gaston said. "You never want to give up. In this park you can score a lot of runs quick. I'm telling you, they never quit."

The Blue Jays go home tonight to open the new $350 million SkyDome with a game against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Elsewhere in the American League it was Baltimore 7, Detroit 4; Chicago 2, Minnesota 1; New York 12, Milwaukee 9; California 5, Kansas City 1; Seattle 2, Texas 1; and Oakland 4, Cleveland 0.

The Red Sox scored five runs in the first and led 10-0 after six innings.

Ernie Whitt hit a grand slam with one out in the ninth inning to put the Blue Jays ahead 11-10. The 10-run lead was the largest ever lost by the Red Sox. They have lost 9-0 leads three times.

"In this ballpark, there's not a lead that's safe," Whitt said. "But attitude-wise, we felt very positive. That may have something to do with what we do (win) here."

The Red Sox tied the score 11-11 against Tom Henke in the ninth when Nick Esasky walked, took second on Rich Gedman's sacrifice and scored on Jody Reed's single.

"Today we just turned it around and said 'we can come back.' You see it happen a lot," Toronto first baseman Fred McGriff said. "A team gets an early lead and they relax. Everything went right for us."

Duane Ward, 2-6, the fifth Toronto pitcher, pitched the final three innings for the victory.

Angels 5, Royals 1
Bert Blyleven allowed one run in eight-plus innings and Jack Howell hit a two-run homer as California beat Kansas City in Anaheim.

Blyleven, 6-2, was three outs away from his 57th career shutout when Bo Jackson led off the ninth inning with his 13th home run. Blyleven allowed five hits and struck out seven before Bryan Harvey got the last three outs.

Kevin Appier made his major-league debut for the Royals and took the loss.

Orioles 7, Tigers 4
Randy Milligan hit a three-run homer and Phil Bradley added a two-run shot as Baltimore beat Detroit to complete a four-game sweep at Tiger Stadium. The Orioles, first in the AL East, have won seven straight and 12 of their last 13 games.

Jay Tibbs, 2-0, held the Tigers to five hits in five innings. It was Tibbs' third start since Baltimore purchased his contract from Rochester on April 28.

The Tigers had not been swept by the Orioles since Sept. 8-10, 1980.

White Sox 2, Twins 1
Jerry Reuss allowed three hits in six innings in his first start since May 1 and Harold Baines homered, leading Chicago past Minnesota at Comiskey Park.

The White Sox, who broke an 11-game home losing streak Saturday night, won two in a row for the first time since May 13-14 against Baltimore.

Bobby Thigpen, the fourth Chicago pitcher, worked the ninth for ninth save.

Baines hit his fourth homer off starter Roy Smith, 4-3, and Ozzie Guillen had an RBI single in the first.

Yankees 12, Brewers 9
Jesse Barfield hit two home runs and Deion Sanders hit his first major-league homer, leading New York past Milwaukee at County Stadium.

The Yankees scored six runs in the third inning, taking advantage of four errors by the Brewers.

Robin Yount hit a three-run homer off Jimmy Jones, 1-1, to move the Brewers within 10-7 in the sixth. Mel Hall and Steve Balboni also homered for the Yankees, who were shut out Saturday night.

Mariners 2, Rangers 1

Ken Griffey Jr. hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning and Randy Johnson combined with three relievers on a four-hitter as Seattle beat Texas at the Kingdome.

Johnson, 2-0, allowed three hits and an unearned run in seven innings to win his Kingdome debut and second AL start since being acquired from Montreal on May 25. The 6-foot-10 left-hander struck out six, walked three and hit a batter.

Mike Schooler allowed one hit in 1 1/3 innings for his 13th save in as many opportunities.

Athletics 4, Indians 0

Dave Stewart became the AL's first 10-game winner by allowing three hits in seven innings as Oakland beat visiting Cleveland in a fight-marred game.

Stewart, 10-2, and Cleveland catcher Andy Allanson exchanged punches in a bench-clearing brawl after the top of the seventh. Allanson was hit by a Stewart pitch with two out and a man on second. The two exchanged words before being restrained by umpires and teammates. At the conclusion of the inning, tempers flared again as Stewart and Allanson fought between the mound and second base. Both players were ejected.

Todd Burns pitched the eighth and Rick Honeycutt got the last three outs as the three Oakland pitchers combined on a four-hitter.

Brewington Signs With VCU

Rose Pitcher Is 3rd Rampant To Earn A Scholarship

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Rose High pitcher Jamie Brewington became the third member of the Rampant baseball team to earn a scholarship with a division I school when he signed with Virginia Commonwealth Monday morning.

Brewington joins teammates David Leisten and Tim Moore, both of whom will play at East Carolina next year, as the third Rampant standout to join the college ranks for next season.

Brewington was 8-0 for the Ram-pants this year and 30-0 for his career. Rose was 23-1 this year and went undefeated in the regular season. All told, Brewington played on three straight Big East champion teams during his career.

"VCU, since day one, has been checking up on me," Brewington said. "When they played East Carolina (during the Pigskin-Pigout Weekend), I went over and talked to coach (Tony) Guzzo. He told me he'd keep in touch. Their pitching coach, Paul Keyes also showed a lot of interest."

Brewington had also considered Western Oklahoma Junior College and Columbus (Ga.), a Division II school.

Brewington also played first base for the Rampants and hit .475 with six homers and 30 RBIs.

"They told me I'd be about their fourth pitcher," Brewington said.

Leisten, a two-year starter in right field, signed with ECU earlier this spring. He hit .490 with four home runs and 20 RBIs.

"They made me feel right at home," Leisten said. "They have some openings. Next year, there is going to be an opening in either right field or shortstop."

Leisten said he also received some recruiting interest from UNC-Charlotte, North Carolina, North Carolina Wesleyan and UNC-Wilmington before deciding to sign with the Pirates.

"They first started picking up interest during the American Legion season last summer. (ECU assistant) coach (Billy) Best came to most of the games."

Moore, a three-year starter in center field, signed a football grant-in-aid with ECU this past winter. Moore, who hit .440 with five homers and 21 RBIs, will also play baseball for the Pirates.

"I'm real pleased for Jamie, David and Timmy," Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "Those guys have worked hard, both in-season and off-season. All three of those guys assumed a leadership role and played better (this year). Losing what we had lost (last year), there was some concern about that."

Over the last three years, Rose has compiled a record of 72-7. Three years ago, Rose advanced to the Eastern finals, last year the state championship and this past season the Eastern semifinals.

Moore and Leisten join two former prep teammates, David Daniels and Tom Moye, who were freshmen on the ECU team this past season.

for the West team coached by Tommy Cole of Burlington Williams.

Parker will play for the East girls, coached by Wayne Williams of Richmond County. The 5-6 guard is the state's all-time scoring leader in girls five-on-five basketball with 3,225 points. She led Clinton to a berth in the state 2-A championship each of the last three seasons, winning the title this spring.

In all, 40 athletes were named to the four teams.

The West boys lineup includes Seale, Ethan Albright of Greensboro Grimsley, Brian Paige of North Rowan, Jeff Pickard of Reidsville and Louis Williamson of Bartlett Yancey. Missing from the lineup, however, is Bryant Figgins and Kernersville Glenn teammate Kevin Thompson, who opted not to play.

Day said he tried to recruit players with quickness and size. He picked up five in the 6-6 to 6-7 range, including University of Miami signee Douglas Elliott of Fayetteville Cape Fear.

The East backcourt will feature 6-2 Arriel McDonald of Raleigh Athens Drive. The West's top guard is 5-10 Paul Childress of Albemarle, an East Carolina signee.

Joining Parker and O'Donnell on the East girls roster is Appalachian State signee Neoma Konrad of Chapel Hill.

Gaynor O'Donnell of Southern Wayne, another ECU signee, will also play for the East squad in the girls' game.

Memories Painful For Jewish Survivors Of Voyage

By Brian Murphy
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Jewish survivors of a wartime odyssey at sea marked the 50th anniversary of their failed escape from Nazi Germany by watching Adolf Hitler's yacht sink at the spot where America turned them away.

"We were close enough to see the palm trees and cars of Miami," Walter Karliner recalled on Sunday. "It's ironic in a way that Miami is such a haven now for political refugees, but we were turned away."

Karliner, 62, a gift shop owner from Old Saybrook, Conn., was among 27 survivors of the 1939 Voyage of the Damned who took part in the ceremony, along with other Holocaust survivors and religious leaders. Karliner's parents perished in the Nazi death camps.

The group watched from a small cruise ship as Hitler's yacht, the Ostwind, was scuttled three miles off Miami Beach to make an artificial reef.

"The idea was to sink the yacht for a marine habitat — to try to bring life from a symbol of death," said Miami Beach City Commissioner Abe Resnick, himself a Holocaust survivor.

At the same spot on June 4, 1939, the SS St. Louis was turned away from the Florida coast and headed back to Europe with more than 930 Jewish refugees. Many of the passengers were marooned in occupied Europe and eventually died in Nazi concentration camps.

"If only they let us in 50 years ago, it would have changed so many lives. It would have changed so many things," said voyage survivor Liane Reif-Lehrer.

The memorial service aboard the cruise ship, renamed SS St. Louis for the day, included prayers by Jewish, Roman Catholic and Lutheran clergy. Before the ship departed, a plane flew overhead carrying a sign reading, "Never again."

Resnick helped organize the memorial. The Ostwind, which had decayed for decades as various owners considered plans to restore it, was donated for the commemoration.

The journey that became known as the Voyage of the Damned, and was depicted in a 1975 movie of the same name, began on May 13, 1939, when the St. Louis departed Hamburg, Germany, for Havana.

All the refugees had entrance visas for Cuba, but they were invalidated before the ship reached Havana. An appeal to President Franklin Roosevelt to allow the Jews into the United States was rejected.

Only 22 passengers, who had obtained Cuban visas in Italy, were allowed to disembark.

Judith Keoppel Steel, 51, of New York City cast a red carnation into the sea. "I'm here for my parents," she said. "This is their funeral."

Steel was 14 months old when she was taken aboard the St. Louis by her parents, both of whom died in the camps.

On Sunday, she was presented with a photograph of herself from the scrapbook of Alfred and Sofi Aron of Miami Beach and New York City.

"It's strange to look at all these photos of us smiling on the boat," said Mrs. Aron, 78, who hid in France while her husband was in concentration camps. "We had no idea that we would be sent back to Europe and into the hands of the Nazis."

Survey Reports Chicago Has Wealthiest, Poorest Suburbs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — The Chicago metropolitan area has the nation's wealthiest and poorest suburb, according to a survey.

The Los Angeles and St. Louis areas had most of the nation's 15 poorest suburbs, and New York area communities dominated a list of the richest 15, said the study released Sunday.

The study was based on 1987 Census income and population projections, and directed by Pierre deVise, an urbanologist at Roosevelt University.

"The nation's richest suburbs come closest to representing the American dream as portrayed in films, novels and pop sociology," deVise said. The poorest "resemble the American nightmare," he said.

Chicago suburbs Kenilworth and Ford Heights were named the wealthiest and poorest suburbs, respectively. Per capita annual income in Kenilworth was $61,950, while in Ford Heights it was just $8,943, the study said.

"The nature of suburbs is changing dramatically," said deVise.

"The future of American politics now lies in the suburbs."

After Kenilworth, the wealthiest suburb was Bloomfield Hills, Mich., near Detroit. Per capita income there was $59,830.

Hewlett-Woodburgh, N.Y., was the third wealthiest at $59,300 per capita annual income; Ladue, Mo., near St. Louis was fourth at $55,962; and Mission Hills, Kan., a suburb of Kansas City, was fifth at $55,136.

Besides Hewlett-Woodburgh, five of the wealthiest 15 suburbs are in the New York City area, the study showed.

The Los Angeles suburbs of Cudahy and Bell Gardens were the second and third most impoverished suburbs, with per capita annual income of $5,170 and $5,337, respectively.

Alorton, Ill. and East St. Louis, Ill., both near St. Louis, were the fourth and fifth poorest suburbs, the study showed.

Cartoonist Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Cartoonist Dik Browne, whose "Hagar the Horrible" and other comic strips have entertained millions, died of cancer Sunday at age 71.

He was the only cartoonist ever to receive the National Cartoonists Society's Reuben Award for two different comic strips, "Hi and Lois" in 1962 and "Hagar" in 1973. More than 1,800 newspapers in 58 countries carry "Hagar."

study showed. Per capita income in Alorton was $5,795, while in East St. Louis it was $5,973.

Illinois also had the ninth poorest in Centerville and No. 11 in Venice — both St. Louis suburbs — as well as Robbins, No. 14, outside Chicago.

The study also ranks suburbs in terms of social status, using the percentage of college graduates and the number of executives of various industries as measured by listings in the 1988-1989 "Who's Who in America" directory.

Again, Kenilworth was at the top with 77.5 percent of its residents 25 years and older having college degrees. Kenilworth was third in finance executives, fourth in total "Who's Who" biographees, and fifth in both communications executives and manufacturing executives, the study said.

Bronxville, N.Y., a suburb of New York, ranked first in total "Who's Who" biographees and in communications executives. Oyster Bay, N.Y., near New York City, topped the list with the greatest proportion of financial executives, and Bloomfield Hills had the highest percentage of manufacturing executives.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY June 6

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You enjoy the people around you. Love is not out of the question. Get to know someone special while you are motivated. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A radical change of scenery would be a stimulating diversion. You may find someone's behavior shocking and difficult to handle. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Emotions become entangled, affecting everyday activities. Find out which way the wind blows before you speak. Use fact and diplomacy. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Today you may get to experiment with a wide range of emotions. Bring color and variety into your life. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Someone may be brewing up trouble behind the scenes. Your innovative ideas will be accepted if you introduce them slowly. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your words may have a sharp edge to them today. Soften your approach and be willing to listen to other ideas. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You may be having difficulty getting a romantic connection off the ground. The time may not be right if the other person is already taken. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): This is a favorable day to give personal attention to grooming, appearance and style. Evening plans may fall apart. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Common sense will go a long way to prevent hurt feelings in a social situation. Insensitive incidents occur at the workplace. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A serious attitude will conceal your true feelings from others. Be open with those you trust. If nothing else, you will learn a lot. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): It may be necessary to deal with inappropriate behavior. You may struggle with an embarrassing situation. PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): While you are in a liberal mood, sample and explore other cultures. Spiritual values surface and friendly aspirations prevail. (c) 1989, The McNaught Syndicate Inc.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠J8762 ♥Void ♦KQ653 ♣954 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass ? What action do you take? A.—Surely there must be a better spot to play the hand, but you are caught on the horns of a dilemma. You can't rebid such a shabby spade suit, and a bid of three diamonds would be forcing to game. Pass. Even if partner gets doubled, we're not sure you should bail out.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠QJ5 ♥J6 ♦A10 ♣AQ9872 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♥ Pass 2♣ Pass 2♥ Pass ? What action do you take? A.—With a sound opening bid facing a known opening, you want to be in game, and three no trump looks like the logical bid. Don't rebid three clubs—that shows a sub-minimum two-over-one response with little more than a long club suit. Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠875 ♥K32 ♦K5 ♣AQJ62 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass ? What action do you take? A.—With a balanced minimum and stoppers in the unbid suits, one no trump is clear cut. Despite a ruffing value, raising spades on three low cards would be too encouraging, and a rebid in clubs normally promises six of them in this sequence, or a better five-card suit than you have. Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠875 ♥K32 ♦K5 ♣AQJ62 The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East 1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass 1NT Pass 2♦ Pass ? What do you bid now? A.—You have already described a balanced minimum, so there is no need to repeat the message. Since partner must have at least five spades, all you should do for the moment is take preference to partner's first-bid suit. Bid two spades. Friends Pay Respects To Pepper In Old Capitol

By Jackie Hallifax
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLHASSEE, Fla. — Young and old filed past U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper's open casket in the rotunda of Florida's Old Capitol, where the 88-year-old congressman began his political career 60 years ago.

"He's the last of the people we can depend on any more," said Novelyn McCarty, 77. "He's what I consider Mr. Social Security ... Mr. Medicare."

Mrs. McCarty and her husband,

Eulis, traveled to Tallahassee from Fort Myers to view Pepper lying in state on the eve of his funeral today.

Some 250 people watched as Pepper's casket was carried into the Old Capitol on Sunday evening following a service earlier in Miami.

"I know I'll be a senior citizen one day, and that makes me feel good, what he was trying to do," said Barbara Rhodes, 34, of Tallahassee. "I respect him."

Pepper, a Miami Democrat, died Tuesday in Washington from stomach cancer.

Former Florida Supreme Court Chief Justice B.K. Roberts, 82, knew Pepper since 1929, when Pepper entered politics as a state representative by Taylor County in North Florida. Pepper worked as a freshman legislator in the Old Capitol, used as a museum since 1978.

"He was the most sincere, dedicated and committed public official to the poor and needy and elderly that I have ever known," Roberts said Sunday night. "And I have known him well for 60 years. It was a religion with him."

Pepper, elected to the U.S. Senate in 1936, served there until 1951, when he lost a bitter primary race during which he was dubbed "Red" Pepper because of liberal views and "softness" on Stalinist Russia.

Roberts recalled a 1949 incident when friends had urged Pepper to "ease up" on his liberal leanings because of his upcoming re-election bid.

"Tears running down his cheeks, he said 'I would rather be defeated standing up for a just cause than to ultimately succeed than to succeed with an unjust cause that will ultimately fail,'" Roberts said. "I remember that time. I was very much impressed."

In 1962, Pepper was elected a U.S. representative to a South Florida seat he never lost.

"Claude Pepper's constituency had no borders or boundaries," Gov. Bob Martinez told the crowd waiting to view Pepper's body Sunday night.

"He was a leader like no other we will ever see in our time."

Earlier in Miami, congressional leaders, the elderly and poor praised Pepper during a service at Central Baptist Church as a shining example of U.S. citizenship, filled with passion and dedication to those who needed his help and influence the most.

likely Democratic candidates to replace Pepper.

Another is Hialeah Mayor Raul Martinez. Since 1981, the Cuban-born mayor of the 80 percent Hispanic city said he wouldn't comment on his plans until later this week.

Other Democratic speculation has focused upon state Sen. Jack Gordon, who shares most of Pepper's constituency and liberalism. But Gordon, 67, may be hamstrung because of his opposition to U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan Contras, whose cause is popular among local Hispanics.

The Republicans have several promising Hispanic politicians to field.

State Reps. Lincoln Diaz-Balart and Al Gutman, and state Sen. Heena Ros-Lehtinen are among those mentioned most.

Ros-Lehtinen's husband, U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen, a Vietnam War hero and former state legislator, had been considered a likely candidate but has said lately he is content in his current job.

Pepper Death Opens Door For Fla. GOP

By Dan Sewell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — The death of Rep. Claude Pepper, whose larger-than-life national status made his congressional seat untouchable, has unleashed a frenzy of speculation and backroom politicking over his replacement.

Florida Republicans see an opportunity to bolster their new majority in the state's congressional delegation by nominating and electing the first Cuban-American representative.

Democrats have promised to campaign under the banner of Pepper, who had held the 18th District seat since its inception in 1962.

The date of the special election will be set after today's funeral for Pepper, who died Tuesday at age 88.

"It's sort of like a chess game," said Mayor Xavier Suarez, who was busy last week trying to broker his political influence with possible Democratic candidates in hopes of boosting his political capital.

"The alliances are shifting by the hour," Suarez said in between phone calls. "It's like an earthquake; a hole opens up and then it gets filled in."

State GOP Chairman Van Poole and John Buckley, spokesman for the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said the party believes it can win the seat, which covers most of Miami and Miami Beach and some suburban areas.

But Dade County Democratic Chairman Simon Ferro said: "As far as we are concerned, this is going to be the Claude Pepper memorial seat."

The Republican Party in Florida is coming off its most successful election since Reconstruction.

Besides giving George Bush his largest margin over Michael Dukakis of any state in the presidential election — nearly 1 million votes — Florida elected Republican Connie Mack to replace retired Democrat Sen. Lawton Chiles, won two congressional seats from the Democrats and took a 10-9 lead in the delegation when Democratic Rep. Bill Grant switched parties.

Florida is expected to gain at least three congressional seats after the 1990 census, and Democrats see the elections that year as a watershed.

"We're on edge here," state Rep. Mike Abrams, a Democrat whose district includes North Miami Beach. "All the trend lines are wrong. We need a win."

Pepper's district reflects the changes in Florida politics.

When carved out for Pepper, who earlier had served 14 years in the Senate, it was filled with retirees from the Northeast. The percentage of voters calling themselves Democrats has dropped in a decade from 72 percent to 54 percent. A little less than 50 percent of residents are Hispanic, many of them Cuban exiles solidly behind Presidents Reagan and Bush.

Pepper won every 1980s election by a landslide and drew no opposition last year. He was a holdover New Deal liberal who adopted a tough anti-communist viewpoint.

"Claude Pepper transcended politics," said Miami Beach Mayor Alex Daoud. "He was just unique ... He was not a politician, he was a statesman."

Daoud, coming off a lopsided re-election victory in 1987, is among the

'Robbins' Broadway' Wins Six Tonys; 'Chronicles' Best Play

By Mary Campbell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — "Jerome Robbins' Broadway" dominated the Tonys with six awards, and Wendy Wasserstein's Pulitzer Prize-winning "The Heidi Chronicles" won for best play.

Miss Wasserstein, whose play is about a girl of the 1960s becoming a woman of the 1980s, lifted her Tony aloft Sunday night and said, "For women playwrights, I think this is great for all of us."

Robbins, receiving a Tony as best director of a musical, said, "I suppose as director I have to thank the choreographer."

He was ineligible in the choreography category because the dances are re-creations of 15 memorable numbers from nine hit shows of previous seasons.

That award went to "Black and Blue," which won three Tonys.

In addition to director, "Jerome Robbins' Broadway" won Tony Awards for best musical; actor in a musical — Jason Alexander; featured actor — Scott Wise; featured actress — Debbie Shapiro; and lighting design.

Robbins, who has been choreographing for the New York City Ballet in recent years, decided to notate his Broadway dances for the Lincoln Center library, then decided they could be re-created on stage.

Pauline Collins, remembered as a saucy maid in PBS-TV's "Upstairs, Downstairs," won the best dramatic actress award for "Shirley Valentine," a one-woman play.

"I can't believe the generosity of this theatrical community," the British actress said.

She added that winning "is proof that miracles can happen at any time, even when you're getting on a bit, like me and Philip."

She referred to Philip Bosco, who won as best actor, as a beleaguered Cleveland opera impresario in the farce, "Lend Me a Tenor." It was the first Tony for Bosco, who has acted in 99 plays, 61 of them in New York.

Bosco called his competition — Mikhail Baryshnikov, Bill Irwin and Victor Garber — "two bona fide geniuses and a superb actor who's never been in a play that hasn't been a success."

To Garber, one of two tenors in "Lend Me a Tenor," Bosco said: "I'd like to share this with Victor. It will, of course, be at my house in Teaneck, New Jersey. You're absolutely welcome to come any time to see it."

Garber was mentioned again, by Boyd Gaines, accepting the best featured actor Tony for his role as a doctor and longtime friend of the heroine of "The Heidi Chronicles." Gaines said, "I'd like to thank Victor Garber for not taking this part."

Christine Baranski won featured actress for her portrayal of a flustered guest at a party without a host in Neil Simon's farce "Rumors."

"Yesterday I bet my producer, Manny Azenberg, $1 million that I would lose tonight," she said. "Perhaps I can borrow from Neil Simon."

She added that she's the 12th Tony winner from a Simon play.

Jerry Zaks, acclaimed best play director for "Lend Me a Tenor," said: "I'd like to dedicate this to the memory of my father. His spirit informs everything I do and he would have loved this."

Ruth Brown, a rhythm 'n' blues recording star in the 1950s, won the Tony as best actress in a musical for "Black and Blue." The choreography Tony went to Henry LeTang, Cholly Atkins, Frankie Manning and Fayard Nicholas for "Black and Blue," a revue of jazz, blues and tap dancing. The show also won for costume.

"Our Town" was judged best revival of the Broadway season just ended.

A special Tony to a regional theater went to the Hartford Stage Company in Connecticut.

The 1988-89 season was a mixed year for Broadway. Although box office receipts climbed to a record $262 million, attendance slipped slightly and the number of new productions dropped to 30, a new low.

Among the notable flops were "Legs Diamond," "Chu Chem" and "Welcome to the Club." And much of Broadway's grosses during the past year were derived from long-running shows, including "The Phantom of the Opera," "Les Miserables," "Cats," "Anything Goes" and "Me and My Girl."

NBC Sets Summer Programs

By Kathryn Baker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff is exercising his preference for original programming year-round by putting on three new series and bringing back new "Highway to Heaven" episodes this summer.

As usual, and despite evidence that the networks are losing viewers to cable and videocassettes, most summer TV fare will consist of reruns.

CBS is introducing one new comedy series, though, "Doctor, Doctor," this month. And ABC will air new episodes of "Hooperman," and otherwise rearrange its schedule. In August, ABC will premiere the new Diane Sawyer-Sam Donaldson newsmagazine, tentatively titled "Prime Time." ABC will also have prime-time baseball on Thursdays in June and July.

NBC, which is so successful it barely had any room for new shows on its fall schedule, is using the pre-season to give air time to some new products. No air dates have been set, but two of the new shows on tap, most likely to premiere in August, are:

"Knight and Day," starring Jack Warden ("Crazy Like a Fox") and Mason Adams ("Lou Grant") as a one-time radio act reluctantly reunited after 40 years. Hope Lange plays Adams' wife. The series comes from Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandell, who wrote "Laverne and Shirley" and the hit movie "Splash."

"13 East," set in a hospital and starring Diana Bellamy as a supervising nurse and Ellen Regan as a trainee.

One other half-hour comedy, yet to be picked from among shows in development for NBC, will also make a bow this summer, while "Highway to Heaven," the hour drama starting Michael Landon as an Earth-roving angel, will return with 10 new episodes. It was absent this past season.

ABC is basically in the business of rearranging deck chairs this summer, giving "Coach" a shot at a better time period on Tuesdays after "Roseanne." "Hooperman" will return June 14 in the Wednesday time period vacated by "Coach," which makes its move June 20, bumping "Have Faith," which will move to Sundays, filling half of the hour left empty by the cancellation of "Moonlighting." Phew. "Thursday Night Baseball" premieres June 8 and runs through July 27 in the time periods now populated by canceled shows.

CBS is expected to once again let viewers see the really bad stuff that didn't even make it to air by reviving the "CBS Summer Playhouse," a weekly display of busted pilots. But the network will add one new show, "Doctor, Doctor," a comedy starring Matt Frewer ("Max Headroom") as an idealistic young M.D. trying to cope with the pressures of high-tech medical care. It premieres Monday, June 12, in the "Kate & Allie" time period. "Kate & Allie" will move to 8 p.m. EDT, replacing the canceled "Live In."
