Chinese Armies Trade Fire

By Jim Abrams
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Civil strife threatened to engulf the Chinese capital today and soldiers of armies loyal to rival political factions were reported battling for control of the city.

A Chinese witness said soldiers of the 28th Army exchanged tank and small-arms fire this afternoon in western Beijing with the 27th Army, which invaded central Beijing on Saturday night to crush the pro-democracy movement.

The 28th is believed loyal to ousted Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang.

A soldier of the Beijing-based 38th Army said it was fired upon by the 27th on the west side of the city. Chinese witnesses also said fire from the 27th Army killed a small boy and slightly injured a girl in the afternoon.

The 27th has been fortifying its positions around Tiananmen Square. Troops and tanks from the rival armies were positioned around the western and eastern flanks of the 27th Tuesday night.

Hundreds of people came out to cheer soldiers of the 38th Army on the west side of Beijing, offering the troops cigarettes and shaking their hands.

"The 28th and 38th armies are the people's armies, the 27th Army is a bunch of bandits," said a 32-year-old man.

There had been reports of new troops moving into the city for a showdown, and armored columns from the 27th took up defensive positions at major intersections on Monday.

The government announced today that nearly 300 people had been killed.

Evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a worsening crisis in China, the Bush administration today was considering using chartered aircraft to evacuate Americans from Beijing and other areas of the country, an administration official said.

The official, who declined to be identified, said State Department officials were reviewing steps to protect the safety of U.S. citizens in China. The official said Americans did not appear to be in any immediate danger.

In addition to using chartered aircraft, the administration also was contemplating asking airlines to use larger planes on regular commercial flights, the official said.

There are an estimated 2,000 Americans in Beijing and another 4,000 Americans throughout the country.

Foley Receives Formal Call As House Speaker

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Democrats today nominated Thomas S. Foley of Washington as the 49th speaker of the House, moving decisively to replace Jim Wright and end months of political tumult spawned by charges of ethical misconduct.

The full House was expected to ratify the majority Democrats' choice by the end of the day, and Foley was moving to set the tone for his stewardship.

"I hope that this can be the beginning of the movement of the House back to the business for which the public elected us to serve," he told reporters as he arrived at the Capitol. He said he hoped to quickly "restore a mood of conciliation, reconciliation and cooperation between the two parties."

Foley, unopposed, was approved by the Democratic caucus in a unanimous voice vote. Still to come, perhaps next week, were contests for other Democratic leadership posts made vacant by the ethics turmoil.

Republicans were powerless to stop Foley's election, since Democrats command a 259-175 majority. But they voted this morning to nominate Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois as their candidate for speaker in a symbolic act.

Michel, who by tradition was to introduce Foley to the House, told fellow Republicans today that their party has been mistreated under Democratic control, and just getting rid of Wright won't correct things by itself.

"The House has been corrupted by the absolute power of one-party domination and it isn't going to be cured by a personality transplant," he said, accepting his party's nomination.

The Republican National Committee already was attacking Foley as a political enemy more liberal than his reputation indicated.

Wright, D-Texas, was driven from the leadership by ethics charges that he tried to skirt House rules on outside income. He steadfastly maintained his innocence, but said in a dramatic speech to his colleagues last week that he would step down to prevent the controversy from paralyzing the House.

Republican strategists are trying to label all Democrats as corrupt from an uninterrupted third of a century ruling the House. They cite as examples Wright's unprecedented decision to resign the speakership because of ethics charges, and the announcement by Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif., that he'll step down to avoid an ethics inquiry.

Foley, who recognizes that Democrats must not be seen as less ethical than Republicans, has said revising House ethics rules and campaign laws will be a top priority.

Foley, 60, of Spokane, is a 12½-year veteran of the House leadership with a reputation for negotiating the tough deals through persistence and compromise.

As majority leader, Foley was spared some of the pressure directed at the speaker's office. But while Michel had some kind words, other Republicans already were firing at Foley.

Mark Goodin, communications director of the Republican National Committee, distributed a four-page memorandum portraying Foley as an "ultra-liberal" who has cleverly managed to avoid any left-leaning label.

Farmville Voters To Test New Electronic Equipment

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt election officials are dangling some high-tech voting equipment in front of the county commissioners, hoping the sample convinces board members to buy the new electronic machines.

When Farmville residents go to the polls June 13 to vote on whether the town should amend its charter to create a council-town manager form of government, the voters will be using five Shouptronic voting machines on loan from Lenoir County, said Pitt elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee.

Instead of the customary method of marking paper ballots and running them through machines that tally votes, voters will be able to make their choices by pressing buttons on one self-contained machine that electronically tabulates the votes throughout the day.

With this, there is no need to count ballots when the polls close. The machines produce a paper tape with a final tally.

"Four years before, my staff and I worked 42 non-stop hours (in the November general election). This (past) year we were home by 10 o'clock on election night," said Lenoir County elections Supervisor Mary Jeffress.

Ms. Jeffress was in Greenville on Monday while a dozen Pitt poll workers were trained to use the new machines.

Lenoir County, with about 28,000 voters, has half the number of voters of Pitt County. Prior to 1988, Lenoir had no mechanical equipment at all; votes were marked on paper ballots, and staffers hand-counted everything.

"We were in the horse-and-buggy days," Ms. Jeffress said. "We made a giant leap."

None of the arguments in favor of the machines are new. Pitt election

Commissioners OK Plan For New Jail By Lease-Purchase

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County Commissioners Monday adopted recommendations of a jail study committee calling for construction of a new 250-bed jail through a lease-purchase agreement.

The board also agreed to hold a public hearing before adopting the criteria for selection of a new solid waste landfill as recommended by the county's solid waste task force.

Commissioners also heard recommendations for an agriculture center — to house offices of the county agricultural extension service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Soil Conservation Service and the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service — to be located near the intersection of U.S. 264 and Secondary Road 1590 north of Greenville.

Commissioner Kenneth Dews, chairman of the jail study group, said the panel recommended building a new 250-bed facility in two phases, the first to include "a dormitory type facility to house 96 sentenced, minimum security prisoners." Phase two, Dews said, would include "the main jail with all required facilities including a minimum of 100 single cells.

"Both phases are recommended to be awarded as one contract," Dews said.

The jail committee also recommended that the new facility be located in a "rural setting" on a minimum of 50 acres of land in order to provide for future expansion and "to provide for the possibility of operating a prison farm," according to Dews.

Other recommendations of the jail committee, which were unanimously adopted by the board on Monday, were:

— That the project be financed through a lease-purchase agreement.

— That the board select a "highly qualified bond counsel firm to represent the county's interest" in the financing of the project.

— That commissioners "select and contract with an architectural firm highly experienced in jail design and construction to immediately begin design of the new jail facility."

Pitt Board Approves Contracts For Industrial Shell Building

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners approved contracts for the construction of a shell building for industrial development at a meeting Monday and created a new position of tax administrator.

The construction contract for the industrial building — designed to be sold to an industry desiring to locate in Pitt County and needing the space — went to C.A. Lewis Inc. for a negotiated low bid of $655,761.

John Chaffee, director of the Pitt County Development Commission, said the 44,400-square-foot building will be erected on a 10-acre site in the industrial park north of Greenville. Construction should take about five months, he said.

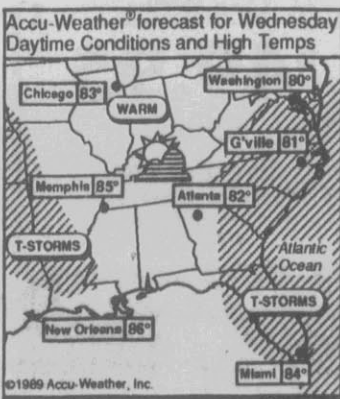

Chaffee said that the initial low bid of $684,600 submitted by the Lewis firm was more than the money expected to be available for the project, so reductions in the price were negotiated.

The largest items deleted from the project, according to Richard Johnson, the architect for the project, were a $15,564 savings for replacing a six-inch precast concrete rear wall with eight-inch cement block and the paving and curb and gutter for an entrance road for a savings of $7,000.

Commissioners approved the creation of the position of tax administrator on the recommendation of County Manager Kramer

Speakers Back Increased School Spending

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Calls for support for a $25 million bond referendum for public school construction and increased spending for school current expense needs dominated a public hearing on the proposed 1989-1990 Pitt County budget held by county commissioners.

Of the 64 people who spoke at Monday night's hearing — businessmen, medical doctors, teachers, teachers' aids, school advisory committee members, PTA officers, parents of school-age children, concerned citizens — only one, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce President Ed Walker, did not mention spending for public schools.

Walker presented commissioners a resolution adopted by the Chamber which calls for "a bond issuance ... that would provide the necessary funding" for long-term capital improvements at Pitt Community College.

And only one other speaker, Carin Lapicki, president-elect of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County, asked the board to consider anything but support for education.

Speaking for the league, Ms. Lapicki said, "We are acutely aware of the fact that needs identified by the various departments far outweigh projected, available revenues."

But she said, "We are concerned about the building of a new county jail facility. It is the position of the League of Women Voters ... that every effort be made to establish community alternatives to incarceration in local jails. We encourage you to continue to explore such alternatives in order to keep those guilty of non-violent crimes out of jail.

"Statistics today demonstrate a direct correlation between the number of high school dropouts and the number of those serving time in our prisons. Professionals are able to identify at-risk children at very early ages.

"With these facts in mind," Ms. Lapicki said, "the league encourages you to fund early-childhood education programs as a means of reducing the number of at-risk students in our county's schools."

Mrs. Lapicki said, "We question whether the board of education's request for capital outlay, current expense and expansion items has been adequately addressed in this budget proposal. We ask you to reconsider" the school's request for $3.2 million in new funds for current expense and expansion items and a $25 million bond issue for capital improvements.

Ms. Lapicki also said, "The need for a new landfill is imminent. The league supports waste-management programs which encourage waste prevention, reduction, recovery and recycling as a means to conserve our environment and minimize the cost of waste management."

The remaining 62 speakers, in what had the appearance of being a well-orchestrated drive to have the 8 percent boost in school current expense funds included in the proposed budget increased and gain approval for a bond referendum for school construction, urged commissioners to increase spending for such things as teachers salary supplements, the arts, athletics, learning disabilities, drug prevention programs, bus driver pay, programs for at-risk students, and continuing education for teachers.

Council Accepts Plan To Upgrade Electric Power System At City Hall

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Problems with electrical wiring at City Hall have sparked a debate on the City Council that threatens to smolder until members decide the fate of the municipal building.

During Monday's workshop the council decided to accept a private engineer's recommendation to redesign and rewire the city hall electrical system. But the board left open the option to later include wiring capacity to allow for fourth floor occupancy in the facility.

The approved upgrading of the building's wiring will cost nearly $50,000.

The electrical system improvements would bring the 50-year-old structure into compliance with fire and safety codes. A $300 patch-job on the system approved last month would not support the building's power needs and would not clear the city of liability in case of an accident caused by a power outage.

Assistant City Manager Ron Kimble said doors were left open in the basement and fans were brought in to cool electrical panels during last week's near-record heat. Last August the building suffered two brown-outs because of heat and overloaded circuits.

"The situation is not getting any better," Kimble said.

City attorney Mac McCarley told the council the city was "on notice" and would be held responsible for any accident incurred during a power outage or fire caused by the electrical system.

The council agreed the problem needed a permanent solution, but the members split on determining the best course for reaching a solution.

Because of the inadequacy and potential danger of the system,

Council member Rufus Huggins called on the council to act quickly on a permanent remedy.

"We find ourselves in a situation where we're reacting instead of analyzing and deciding," said Mayor Ed Carter.

Ronald E. Pledger, an electrical engineer with Dibble and Associates, presented the council with options which would allow for continued, safer use of the first three floors of City Hall and expansion to the fourth floor, or installation of a larger, more complete system.

The smaller system, which includes a central circuit breaker, main distribution panel and a new basement panelboard, is estimated by Pledger to cost $47,704. The more complete system, estimated to cost $76,264, would also include new feeders, new panels and chases (conduits) through most of the system.

Kimble said the engineer

Extension Telephones Approved For Elderly

By Greg Laudick
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Greenville Housing Authority on Monday approved the placement of a second telephone extension in residential units at University Towers, the authority's facility for the elderly.

Authority members authorized GHA Executive Director Kenneth Noland to pursue the installation of an additional extension to be located in the bedrooms of the elderly residents.

The estimated cost of the project is approximately $3,000.

"The placement of this additional phone extension will allow phone service to be more accessible to the elderly residents of University Towers," Noland said.

"Now residents will be able to use their phone without having to get out of bed. This is important in the event of a medical emergency," he said.

Noland estimated the second phone extension should be installed in units within the next 30 to 45 days.

In other matters, Noland reported that construction of the authority's new 32-unit development off SR 1204 is proceeding slightly behind schedule due to poor weather conditions.

However, Noland said he believes the contractor will be able to make up lost time if there are favorable weather conditions from now until the project's Dec. 25 target date for completion.

The project, Dubber-Laney Woods, is located south of N.C 43 and east of Rountree and Westhills townhomes.

Also Monday, the commissioners authorized the purchase of a fax machine to be placed in the GHA's central office; scheduled a budget preparation session for June 29 at 4 p.m. at the Housing Authority office, and changed the date for next month's GHA meeting from July 3 to July 5.

Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported that the average rent at authority housing developments in May totaled $128.37.

Wilkes Surrenders On Drug Charges

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

An accused heroin kingpin who allegedly fled Pitt County in September has been taken into custody and is being held in the Pitt County Jail on a $1.1 million bond.

Redmond "Duke" Wilkes Jr. left Greenville an eight-month undercover drug operation came to an end and 31 people were indicted, authorities said today. All were arrested but Wilkes and one other person, and those indictments have remained sealed since September.

Wilkes, who has been living in Stamford, Conn., investigators said, turned himself in to law enforcement authorities Monday afternoon. Greenville police say they have been working since March to extradite Wilkes, who refused to return to Pitt County.

Wilkes is accused of 17 heroin violations, including possession, sale and delivery of the drug, and conspiracy. Several of the charges are trafficking counts involving between 4 grams and 14 grams of heroin. Each trafficking charge carries a minimum prison term of 14 years and a $50,000 fine.

At Wilkes' first appearance this morning, District Court Judge David Leach said it appeared that Wilkes could face a maximum of 280 years in prison if he is convicted on all counts.

Wilkes answered Leach's questions as the judge advised him of his right to have a lawyer represent him, and Wilkes then waived his right to have the court appoint an attorney. Raleigh attorney Nicholas J. Dombalis II appeared in court with Wilkes, but he told the court he was limiting his work to the first appearance and a bond hearing.

Dombalis asked Leach to lower Wilkes' bond to $50,000. He said Wilkes lives out of state and voluntarily came to Greenville to turn himself in to law enforcement authorities. All 17 charges stem from three heroin sales, he said.

Assistant District Attorney Al Kirby said the state opposed any bond reduction. A bond hearing for Wilkes was scheduled to be conducted this afternoon in Pitt District Court.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Cruel, Rigid

The Darkest Fears Confirmed In China

Imagine thousands of East Carolina University students, protesting in the heart of Greenville.

Not against a football game or on behalf of a favorite rock songster, but against government corruption and repression.

While Greenville is no Beijing, try to imagine a hunger strike, unsanitary conditions, streets blocked. It would be inconvenient; the community would be aggravated. The patience of citizens and local officials would wear precariously thin. There would be confrontations, name-calling, fistfights, unpleasant ugliness. More than a few hard feelings would emerge.

But those students wouldn't be shot by the hundreds in cold blood by soldiers.

If they broke the law, they might be tear-gassed or water-hosed or arrested. The community might disagree with their methods; it might prefer they work for change through the system, not outside it.

But in a democracy, those demonstrators would not be murdered by uniformed countrymen because they espoused governmental reform.

Granted, that tragedy happened on a smaller and distinctly different scale at Kent State University in 1970 when National Guardsmen killed four student protesters. But that was the result of youth and panic, not deliberate butchering by the government.

No, those hypothetical students in Greenville would have what the students in China want — freedom. Contrast the emotions and actions such an event would prompt in this community with the outright murder of demonstrators demanding more democratic government in Communist China. Feelings might run strong here, but the law prohibits murder. That comparison makes the brutality in China even more repulsive.

The students were killed because they wanted a taste of the fundamental liberties that many Americans have. The images of that massacre are horrible. They left indelible bloodstains on the minds of all who watched.

The events in China confirm the darkest fears about totalitarian governments — they are cruel and inflexible. They respect neither human rights nor human life. The regime of 84-year-old Deng Xiaoping has proven itself an enemy of freedom. His ally, Premier Li Peng, promised no violence would occur. He then ordered the army to clear the square with guns and tanks — pitting bullets and war machines against those armed with only hands, minds and ideals. It was a move that cannot be forgiven or forgotten.

China is unstable. Some reports now have soldiers fighting soldiers in the midst of a government that has demonstrated their weakness and lack of control by resorting to butchery.

President Bush has no choice but to tread carefully, while making it indisputably clear that the Chinese government's actions are despicable to the world's largest democracy. His decision to end military sales is correct. Future actions must be smooth and careful, not knee-jerk reactions that could further unsteady the turmoil in China.

Again, for a moment, place Tiananmen Square in Greenville. Then revisit the images of death and bloodshed in China. The comparison makes a poignant point. Where freedom is respected and protected, those who espouse it don't die at its hands.

Neither can an idea like freedom be hushed or slain by mere brutality.

The End Of Innocence In China

WASHINGTON — What will happen in China now?

People a lot smarter than I believe that the answer is: Not much. Their view, based on their knowledge of both Chinese history and the dictates of communism, is that the official brutality that began Sunday is merely an exclamation point marking the end of six weeks of surprising permissiveness.

The slaughter of hundreds of student demonstrators and innocent civilians and the wounding of thousands more is, according to this view, the predictable return to the ruthlessness that was never far from the surface. What to Western eyes appeared to be official powerlessness in the face of an irresistible hunger for democracy was, say some of the experts, only rigidity disguised as indulgence — a sort of fascism in drag.

Maybe the experts are right. But my own guess is that something fundamental has changed in China. Remember the news footage of embarrassed soldiers being offered refreshments by the demonstrators they were supposed to disperse? Remember the amazing absence of hostility on both sides? Remember the simple earnestness of the students as they told reporters that the

William Raspberry

People's Army would never hurt the people?

They really believed it. They believed, too, that it was possible to reform communism, make it more democratic, more responsive to the wishes of the people, without changing the fundamental order of things. They were as mistaken as were the experts who kept warning uninformed Americans against viewing the demonstrations as an attempt to overthrow the communist rule in favor of Western-style democracy.

The hard-line officials now in control knew better. They understood that uninformed Americans were, in their naivete, perhaps closer to the truth: that to accede to the students' demands — no matter that they didn't see themselves as counter-revolutionaries — would in fact encourage counterrevolution.

So the regime did what, by its lights, it had to do. It replaced the student-sympathizing troops from Beijing with soldiers from distant provinces who had been kept ignorant of developments in the capital. And it used these soldiers with shocking ruthlessness to break the back of the demonstrations.

Why the undisguised ruthlessness? It wasn't about restoring order. The massive demonstrations may have embarrassed the Chinese leadership and forced soft-line officials out of office. But there was more order, more safety, more civility — even more goodwill between the people and the army — before the government's resort to violence.

What it finally came down to is that the people in power wanted to remain in power. Forced to choose between the appearance of civility and the maintenance of the regime, they chose the regime.

The choice may have marked the end of innocence for the demonstrators — no matter that some of them were singing the communist anthem, the Internationale, as they were routed from Tiananmen Square.

"The atmosphere is of utter shock and disbelief that the army could do this," one witness told reporters. "We have no weapons; they have tanks and machine guns," said another. "The soldiers did not want to do this. They were ordered to, and Deng (Xiaoping) is head of the military in China. He is like Hitler."

No. Like every totalitarian for whom the first order of business is maintaining power.

The government having done what the students thought was impossible — ordering Chinese to kill unarmed Chinese in order to keep a few old men in power — the country's young people must make a choice of their own: between communism without liberty and liberty without communism. Expert opinion to the contrary, I expect that the students and their millions of supporters may opt for the latter.

That may not be enough to defeat the regime and its suddenly barbarous soldiers, who seemed to be more and more firmly in control as the week came to its bloody close. But it may be enough to transform the "people's government" into the people's enemy.

What would be the result of that is anybody's guess.

A Boot In The Face — Forever

WASHINGTON — These are the most momentous months in mankind's history. This is so not merely because of the scale of events shaking regimes from the Danube to the China Sea, but also because of the clarity with which great ideas are clashing and historic controversies are being resolved.

Imagine, said Orwell, a boot in your face — forever. His nightmare is the totalitarians' dream, the terrifying promise of permanence. What died in Tiananmen Square was the totalitarian pretense, the claim to have broken history, and all human spontaneity, to the saddle of a party's political will.

To sense the stakes of today's turbulences, go back 33 years. But first go back 2,500 years. Political philosophy began with Plato, who sought ways to prevent cycles of civic virtue from decaying into tyranny. His comprehensive prescriptions concerned education, poetry, rhetoric.

Modernity has meant preoccupation with history as linear, not cyclical. History is a narrative infused with the drama of the possibility of progress.

The last two centuries have given birth to various historicisms — doctrines purporting to decipher laws of historical development. Theories claim to explain the course of history in terms of vast impersonal forces. These theories stipulate that history is a series of inevitabilities independent of individuals' political wills and choices.

The totalitarian impulse arises from historicism. It arises from the claim that a particular party has a monopoly on understanding and has a right to unbridled administration of insight, however brutal that might be for those who contest its monopoly of interpretation.

Paradoxically, in the 20th century, when history has accelerated giddily, the great political invention, totalitarianism, has promised regimes that would perpetrate themselves — forever. The world has been haunted by the specter of permanence, the permanent boot in the face.

In 1951, Hannah Arendt, a refugee from Hitler's Europe, published a stunning treatise, "The Origins of Totalitarianism." Her deeply troubling thesis was that ideological intoxication, combined with modern instruments of social control, might make totalitarianism an unassailable tyranny, immune to all dynamics of change from within.

Terrorism — the end of legality; random violence — is but one totalitarian instrument. Another is gray bureaucracy controlling all cultural institutions. Totalitarianism aims at the conscription of the citizen's consciousness — state ownership not merely of industries but of minds. So totalitarianism requires control of the flow of information. It requires the central scripting of all public argument — which means no real argument in public.

Intermediary institutions standing between the individual and the state — schools, churches, clubs, labor unions, even families — must be pulverized or permeated by the state. The totalitarian aim is the atomization of society into a dust of individuals. This dust is to be blown around by gusts of ideology emitted by the tutelary party.

The totalitarian enterprise is the extirpation of all autonomous institutions and hence of autonomous impulses in society. Instead of Marx's withering away of the state, there would be the withering away of society through the unlimited penetration of life by the state — by politics.

In 1956, in the streets of Budapest, Arendt's profoundly pessimistic theory was slain by a luminous fact. For 12 days, Hungary flung its unconquered consciousness in the face of the totalitarian state. There was no civil war because the nation was not divided: Ideological indoctrination had left the public utterly unmarked.

In Budapest, as in Tiananmen Square, tanks prevailed, but Arendt rejoiced in the refutation of her hypothesis. In an epilogue to the 1958 edition of her book, she wrote:

"The voices from Eastern Europe, speaking so plainly and simply of freedom and truth, sounded like an ultimate affirmation that human nature is unchangeable, that nihilism will be futile, that even in the absence of all teaching and in the presence of overwhelming indoctrination, a yearning for freedom and truth will rise out of man's heart and mind forever."

A striking fact about Tiananmen Square is that there was no single acknowledged leader there. Note a stirring similarity. A Hungarian professor speaking 33 years ago: "It was unique in history that the Hungarian Revolution had no leaders. It was not organized, it was not centrally directed. The will for freedom was the moving force in every action."

What made Tiananmen Square terrifying to the totalitarians was precisely what made it insubstantial in the face of force but will make it triumphant in time: no leaders, just unscripted spirits.

A watching world marveled at the bravery, politeness and good will of the protesters, but wrongly spoke of their moderation. The watching world, like the protesters themselves, did not understand the inherent, irreducible radicalism of their categorical challenge to the totalitarian pretense. The regime understood.

Sitting In The Back Of The Room, Making Faces

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — Office work isn't normally classified as hazardous duty, as the kind of work that leads to serious injuries. Yet the repetitive nature of many office functions is causing "a crisis situation for administrative support workers in this state," according to a work safety consultant who testified recently before the House Subcommittee on Business and Labor.

Frank Cox, a professor of ergonomics at Central Piedmont Community College and a consultant to companies that are redesigning their workplaces, said a half-million North Carolina workers are susceptible to repetitive motion injuries. Because they repeatedly make the same muscle motions every day, they risk injuries to their muscles and nerves.

Toby Lippin of the N.C. Occupational Safety and Health Project in Durham said that the automation in today's workplace has reduced, for many workers, the variety of motions required to complete a task. Today's workplaces often require hundreds or thousands of repetitions of the same one or two motions. That repetition is what injures nerves and muscles.

The best known of these injuries is carpal tunnel syndrome which hits the wrist's median nerve. The symptoms include numbness, an inability to distinguish hot from cold and difficulty in grasping and holding objects.

The frequency of these injuries is rising dramatically in North Carolina. The Department of Labor reports that the 1,243 repetitive motion injuries reported in 1987 constituted a threefold increase over the injuries reported for 1986. Workers' Compensation payments for these injuries totaled almost $2 million in 1987.

The two were testifying in support of a bill sponsored by Rep. Sharon Thompson, D-Durham. House Bill 1208 would require that employers consider repetitive motion injuries as they comply with state law that requires a workplace free of hazards. It also mandates that the Labor Department develop plans for helping employers avoid these hazards, and report these plans to the legislature in 1990.

The Thompson bill did not receive a warm welcome in committee. Rep. Vernon Abernathy, R-Gaston, argued that the bill was not necessary because industry was already working to reduce these injuries. He noted that Cox had mentioned, in his testimony, the efforts of companies like Frito-Lay and Southern Bell to correct the problem. Rep. Al Lineberry, D-Guilford, added, "It seems like they are well on their way. Why does the state have to get involved?"

But Ms. Thompson countered that many industries are not doing anything to correct the situation.

Rep. Harry Grimmer, R-Mecklenburg, warned that passage of the Thompson bill would mean that repetitive motion injuries would be covered by workers' compensation. But Charles Jeffress, deputy commissioner of labor, said that the injuries were already covered by law.

Ms. Thompson argued that passage of the bill would help reduce injuries, and thus cut medical bills and workers' compensation costs for many businesses. She said that many injuries could be avoided through simple, no-cost changes. Some suggestions: regularly rotating work stations, better furniture and training employees to use hand motions less likely to injure the wrist muscles.

The bill is not dead, but Ms. Thompson is not optimistic about its chances. "It's discouraging when you're trying to make a point to save them money and they're sitting in the back of the room, making faces."

The Challenge: Make It Last

Walter Mears

WASHINGTON — When President Bush was asked whether his journey to the Western summit was his greatest political triumph, he smiled and said "No" without an instant's hesitation.

Was it his election to be president? "Now we're talking," Bush said, relaxed and satisfied as Air Force One neared the runway Friday, ending his week-long diplomatic mission. He called it a triumph for the Western alliance and for Western values.

It had been his best week since the inauguration. Now the challenge is to make it last. The successes that heartened Bush and his high command are preliminary.

Proposals are not achievements. And the agenda already has changed, posting a new challenge. What was to have been a series of leadership briefings on NATO turned instead from last week's success to this week's crisis — the savage Chinese crackdown on protesters demanding democracy.

Still, there are points in any political career at which one turn can alter the whole plot.

For Bush, one came in the summer of 1980, when Ronald Reagan put him on the ticket after an improbable mini-boom for former President Gerald R. Ford as vice president.

There was another in the winter of 1988 when Bush, his presidential candidacy in trouble, turned it around with victory in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

Europe '89 could become that kind of landmark in the Bush presidency. There's a lot to be done first. But Bush did get one immediate dividend — he came home to altered perceptions of his leadership.

He went to the NATO summit at Brussels under fire at home from critics who said he was too slow and too timid in dealing with the peace offensive of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. At NATO, Bush launched his own, and the allies time of criticism over style, pace and proposals.

Bush had commissioned a foreign policy review that dragged well into May, and followed it with a series of four foreign policy speeches that were intended to describe his vision but were long on rhetoric and philosophy, short on proposals.

White House chief of staff John Sununu said those speeches were an essential part of the Bush plan. He "Fortunately, it all came together right," Sununu said.

At least for openers. There's still a long course to cover. Bush said he will press the U.S. and NATO bureaucracies to swiftly convert the ideas into a package that can be put before the Soviet Union when the conventional weapons talks resume in Vienna on Sept. 7.

That's a challenge. The weapons Bush proposals to curb must be defined in treaty terms the United States and the Soviet Union both can accept. Moscow already is talking about including some things NATO omits. There also is likely to be a demand that cutbacks include U.S. Navy forces.

Scowcroft said verification of the proposed cuts will be a problem but should be manageable.

So far what has happened is that the president has gained NATO endorsement of his plan to cut about 30,000 U.S. troops in NATO if the Soviets will withdraw ten times that many. That's a deal no ally would be likely to refuse, even if NATO were in the habit of rebuffing American presidents.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 25 years.

'Proposals are not achievements. And the agenda already has changed, posting a new challenge. What was to have been a series of leadership briefings on NATO turned instead from last week's success to this week's crisis — the savage Chinese crackdown on protesters ...'

unanimously embraced it. He proposed sharp cutbacks in conventional forces, and he said it ought to be done by 1992 or 1993.

In addition, the administration engineered an alliance compromise on the timetable for negotiations for cutbacks in short-range nuclear missiles.

All this cast Bush as a decisive leader of the alliance — he said it showed the way he intends to lead the free world. In short order, he seemed to have overcome a spring said they were written to send signals to Europe, east and west, and to the Soviet Union. "It was a hard time for us to go through and make sure we did that part right — and keep hearing that nothing was happening," Sununu said.

Brent Scowcroft, the national security adviser, said Bush was determined to make all his proposals on Europe at Brussels, rather than have them disclosed in advance and made into a fait accompli.

UNC Board Confesses There Are Some Weak Links

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fifty-five percent of those responding to a University of North Carolina Board of Governors survey rated themselves no better than average board members, but many blame some of the group's ineffectiveness on the selection process.

Every two years, board members are elected by the General Assembly, a process that requires candidates to spend considerable time campaigning in the halls of the Legislature.

"The top minds wouldn't go through that because it's degrading," said Robert C. Eubanks Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "It's exactly the reverse of what it should be. The Legislature should be recruiting them."

And in 1987, the General Assembly shortened the terms of the Board of Governors from eight to four years, a decision that some say could further weaken the board.

"Shorter terms will curtail their effectiveness," said Lee Monroe, Gov. Jim Martin's senior education adviser. "It takes awhile to get the feel of the constituent institutions."

For the first time in the board's 17-year history, the 34 members rated their performance by filling out a questionnaire supplied by the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges.

The 16-page survey has provided the first real opportunity to gauge the effectiveness of a board which:

- Sets policy for the 16-campus UNC system, widely considered one of the best in the country;
- Oversees an operating budget that totaled $1.3 billion in academic year 1988-89.

Several observers say the board's self-study is a fairly accurate assessment of members' abilities, while others describe the appraisal as much too modest.

"We would probably give ourselves a 'B,'" said Robert "Roddy" Jones, chairman of the Board of Governors.

John King, who works with the Association of Governing Boards, gives the board high marks.

"It would be hard to rate a board ahead of this one," said King, who is also interim dean of the College of Education at the University of South Carolina.

However, some on the Board of Governors readily admit there are some weak links among the panel's 34 members. Nevertheless, they contend the board's overall performance is outstanding.

"If I wanted to go out and hire people and fill the positions on the board you would probably not have some of the people you have," Samuel Poole, board vice chairman, said in an interview. "(But) that board is supposed to be representative of the general public. You have a very cross section of North Carolina. To that extent I think it is an excellent board."

Other observers, however, say they would rate no more than one-third of the board above average and 15 percent to 20 percent would get below average marks. The rest, they say, are average.

King was one of two association representatives who assisted the Board of Governors during a three-day retreat in Pinehurst in March. Much of the retreat dealt with a self-study of the board's effectiveness.

A total of 26 of the 34 members — two of whom are members emeriti — responded to the survey. As it was intended to do, the questionnaire pointed out a number of areas of concern, some of which the board has already made plans to address.

Among other things, the survey showed that:

- 53.8 percent said they do not feel that all the 16 campuses are living up to their missions through the programs they now offer. Another 19 percent said they didn't know or couldn't judge.
- Less than two thirds — 62.5 percent — said they feel well informed about the type and quality of the system's educational programs.
- 36 percent said the board was doing a poor job of evaluating the performance of the system's executives.

During the retreat, the board agreed to look at setting up formal procedures to evaluate North Carolina University System President C.D. Spangler Jr. and his staff.

- Only 38 percent find the system's financial statements intelligible.
- Less than half — 48 percent — feel the board has an objective and clearly understood methods to guide allocation of funds fairly and equitably among the institutions.
- Only 58 percent said they stay abreast of higher education trends, legislation and other public policy by reading publications such as The Chronicle of Higher Education.

IN THE STATE

Western Council

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner, a newcomer to the environmental protection arena, will direct a state government effort to promote mountain development without destroying nature's beauty.

"There's a fine line that you have to walk between protection of the environment and economic development," Gardner said Monday at a news conference with Gov. Jim Martin, who announced creation of the Western North Carolina Environmental Council. Gardner will be the group's chairman.

"What we hope to do is ... open up a dialogue" between environmentalists, mountain business interests and local government leaders in 23 western counties, Gardner said.

Resolution

RALEIGH (AP) — A resolution of outrage over the massacre of Chinese protesters sailed through the North Carolina House of Representatives as members stood in silent tribute to the victims.

The hastily introduced measure was approved 102-0 Monday night.

"I cannot tell you how moved I was when I turned on the television ... and (saw) those people, unarmed, beating on those tanks and taking on those military personnel ... and the courage they exhibited," Majority Leader Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, said in a hushed chamber.

Wicker sponsored the resolution with Speaker Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, and Minority Leader Johnathan Rhyne, R-Lincoln. Mavretic ordered that copies be sent to the North Carolina congressional delegation.

RJR Windfall

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina may have to use as much as $90 million of the $159 million RJR Nabisco tax windfall to balance this year's budget and offset tax deductions the tobacco and food giant is expected to claim during the next two years, officials say.

About $30 million would be used to balance the budget. Twice that amount might have to be used to offset RJR's deductions.

"We're not going in the red by the end of the year," Marvin Dorman, deputy state budget director, said Monday. "The $159 million that everyone has talked about could for the next fiscal year actually become more like $65 million."

But Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said Monday night that unless revenue collections increase dramatically this month, the state will face a budget deficit and the RJR money might have to be used to cover it.

Royall said that preliminary revenue figures indicate that the state, in order to avoid a budget deficit, must collect about 14 percent more this month than it collected in June 1988.

Hostages Taken

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 41-year-old man on his way to West Virginia held two elderly women hostage for eight hours after his car broke down near the rural Mecklenburg County home, authorities said.

Ronald La Rue, of Athens, W. Va., was charged Monday afternoon with kidnapping and burglary. He was being held in the county jail in lieu of $45,000 bond, police said.

Police say Bonnie Holden, 87, and her daughter, Carolyn Holden, 63, were held hostage for about eight hours after La Rue apparently forced his way into their home.

As members of the local SWAT team and other law enforcement officers surrounded the small brick house, the man gave himself up.

Education Leaders Say Changes Needed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After sinking millions of dollars into public schools, leaders say it's time to make fundamental — but less expensive — changes in the way North Carolina schools are run.

After sinking millions of dollars into public schools, leaders say it's time to make fundamental — but less expensive — changes in the way North Carolina schools are run.

Teachers and principals deserve more instructional freedom and better pay, state leaders say. In exchange, educators should be accountable for results: better attendance, lower dropout rates and higher test scores.

A bill gaining momentum in the Legislature would do that.

"If there aren't any measurable gains for students," said John Dornan of the Public School Forum of North Carolina, which supports the bill, "why should the state pay for it?"

If enacted, the bill would make North Carolina a national leader in treating teachers and principals more like private-sector professionals, Dornan said.

Some educators are edgy about being evaluated, but there's a growing consensus that it's time. Except for scattered pilot programs, North Carolina teachers now are paid on the basis of experience, not performance.

"Accountability measures are a necessity now. We have to do it," the North Carolina principal of the year, Barbara Ledford of Northeast Junior High in Charlotte, said in an interview.

O.L. Yates, a ninth-grade government teacher in Haywood County and educator for 23 years, agrees: "The legislature and the general public have a right to expect us to come through. We've got to produce."

In the last four years, state spending for public schools has risen 55 percent to nearly $3 billion a year — nearly half the state's budget.

The cause for the growth is the Basic Education Program, an eight-year plan that reduced class sizes and improved curriculums, primarily in rural schools. The program eventually will add 25,000 school employees.

But such spending hasn't soothed critics, who say the state ranks too low on Scholastic Aptitude Test scores — 49th nationally; has too many high school drop outs — 26,000 last year, and has too many university students in remedial programs — 26,000 or about 25 percent of the system.

Critics also say the program builds on the existing classroom system — one that is antiquated — and does not devote enough money or time to improving basic instruction.

"The BEP is still just tinkering with the system," said Rep. Jim Crawford, D-Granville, co-chairman of a subcommittee that reviews education spending. "We need to address how we educate."

The recent spending "focuses on inputs. It doesn't deal with results," Gov. Jim Martin said. "People want to see accountability."

The Legislature is considering two changes to bolster the profession:

- Raising salaries and revamping the pay schedule for teachers. The schedule has been frozen for six years, so that teachers have not received raises for seniority.
- Giving educators more instructional freedom and pay in exchange for their becoming more accountable.

Manufacturers Lead List Of State's Largest Firms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Textile and furniture industries continue to be the backbone of North Carolina's economy while meeting the challenges of increasing productivity and reducing labor costs, a survey says.

Manufacturing companies account for nearly half of the businesses included in the annual "North Carolina 100" rankings of the state's largest privately owned businesses released Monday.

The rankings are limited to privately held companies that are not subsidiaries or divisions of other companies and that are headquartered in North Carolina, according to Dave Hunt, a partner in Arthur Andersen & Co., which compiles the list each year.

"Both the distribution and construction industry segments experienced solid years in 1988, and the service industry sector continues to display the greatest strength in our economy over the six-year history of the survey," Hunt said.

"Revenues have grown over 200 percent during that period and the number of employees in the segment has increased from approximately 13,000 in 1984 to almost 48,000 in 1989," Hunt said. "This segment has clearly absorbed the employment declines realized in the manufacturing sector and has generated numerous new jobs over the six-year survey period."

Industries not ranked include banks, insurance companies, other financial institutions, real estate brokers, hospitals and other health care organizations, and retail establishments.

Only two businesses in the state — McDevitt & Street Co. of Charlotte and Cone Mills Corp. of Greensboro — were listed as having 1988 sales of more than $500 million.

Halstead Industries Inc. of Greensboro was a new addition to the list this year, but company president Bill Halstead said the company has been in the state for about 10 years.

"We've been around for a while," Halstead said. "We made the list this year as a result of our final administrative move to North Carolina. We are technically a new arrival ... but we have been migrating here slowly and steadily since about 1978."

Halstead said the price of copper also was a factor in his firm's third-ranked position on the list.

"It is impossible to straight-line our company performance with sales, or revenues, really, because of the volatility of that commodity," he said.

Manufacturing companies accounted for 47 businesses and 48 percent of the revenues on the list. Distributors accounted for 31 of the top 100 businesses and 22 percent of revenues.

Cogentrix Inc. of Charlotte, which combines commercial steam production with the generation of electricity, was the fastest-growing company on the list, jumping from number 70 in 1988 to number 24 in 1989.

"I guess it's a case of being at the right place at the right time," said Jeff Freeman, vice president of project development at Cogentrix. The company was formed by George T. Lewis Jr. in 1983 after the federal government allowed private companies to enter the electric generating business.

Cogentrix has seven plants in North Carolina and Virginia that produce steam used by textile, pharmaceutical and other businesses. The steam generates electricity by passing through turbine generators on its way to the plant that ultimately uses it.

Arthur Andersen & Co. provides accounting and audit, tax, management information consulting and professional education services through 231 offices in 49 countries. The firm has North Carolina offices in Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh.

Civil Rights Groups Assail Race-Bias Ruling

By James H. Rubin
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Civil rights advocates are accusing the Supreme Court of abandoning the nation's 25-year-old commitment to fair treatment in the workplace for minorities and women.

They expressed alarm and dismay over a ruling Monday they said undercuts the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and will make it far more difficult for workers to prove with statistical evidence that they are victims of racial or gender bias.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights, said, "If the court continues down this path, the civil rights laws will be just an empty shell."

But Edwards did not predict any immediate action in Congress to reverse the 5-4 court ruling.

"It's a major step backwards," said Patrick Patterson of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund. "The court has made it much more difficult for (plaintiffs) to win and at the same time has made it easier for employers to defend themselves."

Barry Goldstein, also with the fund, predicted civil rights lawyers now will concentrate on cases where they can prove intentional discrimination and seek big money damages to punish employers who discriminate.

"It is going to make litigation a lot tougher and a lot nastier," he said. "It means fewer cases and bigger awards."

But business leaders hailed the ruling and said most employers will remain committed to affirmative action even if the threat of losing lawsuits is reduced.

Stephen Bokot of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said, "I'm really pleased. It went much further than I thought the court would go. This means fewer specious cases will be brought. Employers are going to be able to defend these cases more easily," he said.

Monday's ruling focused on so-called "disparate impact" cases where allegations of bias are based on statistics showing under-representation for minorities rather than deliberate discrimination.

The decision divided the high court sharply and prompted bitter remarks from the dissenting justices.

"One wonders whether the majority still believes that race discrimination — or, more accurately, race discrimination against non-whites — is a problem in our society, or even remembers that it ever was," said Justice Harry A. Blackmun in a dissenting opinion.

The court overturned a lower court ruling that had favored Filipinos, Alaska natives and Asians employed during the summer at Alaska salmon canneries. The minority groups said they have been relegated to the lower-paying jobs there.

The justices sent the case back to the lower courts with instructions to use the high court's new guidelines making it more difficult for the minority groups to win their lawsuit.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the court, said that when minorities use statistics to show they are bias victims, employers only must produce evidence that there is a legitimate reason for apparently neutral business practices.

The burden of proving the practices are non-discriminatory — of persuading a jury there is no bias — does not shift to the employer, White said.

He added that the workers must suggest alternative practices that do not have an unfair impact on minorities, but said employers cannot be forced to adopt the alternatives if they are more costly.

The court also limited the statistical evidence that minorities can use to prove discrimination.

For example, White said a lack of minority group members in skilled jobs is not evidence of bias if the absence reflects "a dearth of qualified non-white applicants for reasons that are not (the employer's) fault."

He said the minority groups must show that any under-representation in skilled jobs is tied directly to specific business practices under attack.

White said that without such protection for employers their only recourse to eliminate racial imbalance in their work forces would be unlawful quotas.

In other action, the court: — Ruled, 5-2, that the main method used by the Church of Scientology to receive money from members does not entitle them to federal income tax deductions.

— Handed artists and authors a victory by unanimously ruling that a homeless-rights group in the nation's capital does not hold exclusive copyright to a sculpture it commissioned an artist to create.

— Cleared the way for trial of a government lawsuit against junk bond specialist Michael Milken and removed a major obstacle to a $650 million payment by his former employer to investors and the federal treasury.

— Rejected an appeal by Medicare patients who want to use their own money to pay for an assistant surgeon in eye cataract operations.

Report Cites Nuclear Mishaps At Sea

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. and Soviet naval accidents have littered the ocean floor with at least 50 nuclear weapons and 10 nuclear reactors since World War II, according to a report released today by the Greenpeace environmental group.

Forty-three of the 50 weapons and six of the nine reactors are Soviet, and the real number may be much higher because so few details are known of secretive Soviet navy operations, said William Arkin, an analyst who worked with Greenpeace on the project.

"We got no information at all from the Soviets," said Arkin, who works at the Institute for Policy Studies, a liberal Washington interest group. "We were totally unsuccessful in getting any kind of real response from them. And we were totally unsuccessful in getting any information from U.S. intelligence about Soviet naval accidents."

Using material obtained from the U.S. government under the Freedom of Information Act, the researchers listed 1,276 accidents since World War II involving military vessels.

The accidents caused more than 2,800 deaths and ranged in severity from the loss of an entire vessel and crew to minor collisions and fires that caused little damage and few if any injuries.

Greenpeace said that of the accidents, 228 involved aircraft carriers, 406 other major surface warships, 182 supply ships, 142 minor military ships and 75 amphibious vessels. Separately, 75 incidents involved sinkings. Twenty-seven submarines powered by nuclear reactors have sunk in that period, including five Soviet, four American, four French and three British, as well as submarines from West Germany, Israel, Pakistan, Peru, Spain and Turkey, the analysts reported in their 101-page study.

Perhaps the most serious accident was the sinking of a Soviet Yankee-class submarine on Oct. 6, 1986, with 32 nuclear warheads and two nuclear torpedoes aboard 600 miles northeast of Bermuda.

San Francisco Legalizes 'Domestic Partners'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Homosexual and unmarried heterosexual couples, long neglected as part of the American family, won official recognition for the first time in the nation as the city's "domestic partners" bill became law.

"This is important legislation because it's a step in helping our country come to terms with the lives of parts of the American family that have not always been dealt with, particularly lesbian and gay couples and particularly in the time of an AIDS epidemic," said Harry Britt, president of the Board of Supervisors and author of the bill.

Mayor Art Agnos, who signed the bill into law Monday, called the legislation "one of the most important milestones in San Francisco's effort to adopt policies to recognize the diversity of families and to extend to all people in our city the basic human right to form families of their choice."

Though denounced by leaders of the city's powerful Roman Catholic Church as an attack on marriage and the traditional family, the new law won the unanimous support of the Board of Supervisors before going to Agnos for his signature.

Agnos also appointed a "Task Force on Family Policy," chaired by civil rights attorney Roberta Achtenberg, to determine guidelines for allowing unmarried city workers to add partners, adult children and extended family members to the city's health plan.

Agnos emphasized that the addition of domestic partners or other family members would not cost the city any money.

"It's a very simple issue of fairness," he said. "Currently city workers can place some dependents and family members on their health plan, but not others. ... It's about creating a level playing field for all city workers and making San Francisco a city that is friendly to families of all kinds."

Agnos said it would take about two months to set up the mechanisms and distribute the information to allow unmarried partners to declare their relationship, either publicly through a county clerk for $35 or confidentially with a notary public.

He said the city attorney and the city Human Rights Commission are developing an informational package that will outline the rights and responsibilities of the relationships.

Registration confirms existing city policy that provides city workers in non-traditional relationships the same hospital visitation rights and bereavement and maternity leave as married city employees.

To qualify for registration, a city worker must live with and share basic living expenses with their partner.

Voyager 2 Taking Photos Of Neptune

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PASADENA, Calif. — Voyager 2 has closed to within 73 million miles of Neptune and started taking photographs of the planet, the last it will encounter on its odyssey through the solar system, NASA officials said.

The space probe launched 12 years ago was about as far from Neptune Monday as Earth is from the planet Mercury, said Ellis Miner, Voyager deputy project scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The spacecraft is taking about six pictures every three hours as it approaches the planet at roughly 37,200 mph. The probe's closest approach is scheduled for Aug. 24, when it will pass within 3,000 miles of Neptune.

"We're seeing a lot of detail on the atmosphere that we really hadn't anticipated," Miner said.

The first images were being recorded by the spacecraft's tape recorders, and will be played back at the JPL laboratory, operated under contract by the California Institute of Technology for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The probe now is so far away, more than 2.6 billion miles, that data radioed at the speed of light take nearly four hours to reach Earth, officials said.

Voyager 2 and its sister space probe, Voyager 1, were launched within weeks of each other in the summer of 1977 in what has proved to be one of the most successful data gathering efforts from deep space.

Texasgulf Wins Reduction Of Air-Pollution Fine

By Martha Waggoner
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Despite the reduction of an air-pollution fine, environmentalists credited the penalty with prompting Texasgulf Inc. to change its approach toward environmental issues at its Beaufort County fertilizer plant.

"I'm pleased that there's a settlement," said Bill Holman, a lobbyist for the Sierra Club and the Conservation Council of North Carolina. "I think the fine was helpful in shaking up the company's management and bringing in a new team. I'd be a lot more upset about the reduction in the fine had there not been a change in management."

The state announced on Monday an 80 percent reduction in the $5.7 million fine levied against Texasgulf — which would have been the largest environmental fine in North Carolina history — because neither side wanted to spend years in court, officials said.

R. Paul Wilms, director of the Division of Environmental Management, accepted the company's out-of-court settlement offer of $1 million plus $1,907 in investigative costs on Friday after long negotiations between the department and the company.

The fine against Texasgulf originally was announced on Dec. 17, 1986. The company operates a huge phosphate mining operation near Aurora.

"There had been a lot of proposals and counter-proposals and this was the agreement that satisfied everybody and avoided five to six years probably of migraine headaches and man-hours and legal wrangling," said Don Follmer, director of public affairs for the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. "We felt and they felt that it's better to settle it, wipe the slate clean and get on with everybody's business."

Several environmentalists said Texasgulf had improved its attitude toward environmental protection since the fine was first levied more than three years ago, but Follmer said that change had nothing to do with the reduction.

"We would agree that Texasgulf has had a major management shift since we levied the fine and has given us every indication that they intend to be good environmental citizens and have been cooperative and working with us to solve rather serious problems that you have when you have a large industry on an estuary, and we're making progress on that," Follmer said.

The $5.7 million fine was based on statutory fines for violations over a number of years, Follmer said. "And the settlement is just what it is, a settlement. It's a compromise. We believe it's fair to all parties concerned, fair to the state and fair to the company. Neither Texasgulf nor the state seeks out lawsuits that might last a lifetime."

The settlement includes a statement that no damage occurred to the environment or human health as a result of the alleged violations and also that Texasgulf admits no guilt by agreeing to the settlement.

"An extensive investigation revealed no identifiable harm to the environment or to human health," Follmer said.

J. Randolph Carpenter, manager of public relations and governmental affairs for Texasgulf, said the settlement would let the company get on with its 25th anniversary of its phosphorus operation in Beaufort County, the theme of which is "Commitment for Tomorrow."

The settlement covers alleged violations of the state's air pollution control laws, plus a permit revocation, and violations of Prevention of Significant Deterioration Regulations and air quality standard violations for sulphur dioxide after the original fine was issued.

Texasgulf contested the penalty and permit revocation.

The original assessment, which contained 1,724 alleged violations of air-quality laws, charged that the company altered its pollution control equipment without notifying the Division of Environmental Management.

Tom Stroud, education coordinator for the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation in Washington, N.C., said his group was disappointed with the reduction.

"... we feel industries that violate pollution laws should be subject to strict interpretation of those laws and should be required to pay the full amount of their fines," he said.

Stroud said the company had improved its environmental protection in recent years but said he did not know if the change came about because of the threatened fine.

Carpenter said the company's attitude toward the environment had changed as the rest of the state's outlook changed.

"I think what we've seen over a period of the last two or three years is a very heightened level of consciousness on the part of a lot of people regarding environmental protection," he said.

He pointed to Texasgulf's new wastewater discharge permit, which includes recycling wastewater that normally goes into the Pamlico River. The current permit allows the company to discharge up to 60 million gallons a day of wastewater that contains both phosphorus and fluoride. The new permit calls for reduction of phosphorus by 90 percent or more and fluoride by 75 percent or more, Carpenter said.

The new recycling system should be in operation in 1992.

Ex-Student Pleads Guilty To Selling Drugs

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A former East Carolina University student has been sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $500 for selling hallucinogenic mushrooms to an undercover Greenville Police investigator.

Superior Court Judge David E. Reid Jr. of Greenville sentenced Arthur Hicks Pigford, 26, on Monday, after Pigford pleaded guilty to selling 3 ounces of the drugs on March 30.

In exchange for the plea, prosecutors dismissed a charge of possessing the drugs and a charge of maintaining a dwelling to keep drugs.

Pigford, of 807 College View Apartments, was one of six ECU students arrested April 21 on a variety of charges involving LSD, mushrooms, cocaine and marijuana.

Investigators said they learned through informants that a group of students had been traveling across the country with fans of the rock group Grateful Dead and purchasing drugs at low prices. The students would return to Greenville and other cities and sell the drugs, investigators said.

Pigford's attorney, Milton Williamson of Greenville, told the judge that his client had already suffered by being expelled from ECU and embarrassing his family.

Reid suspended a three-year prison sentence on the condition that Pigford serve the 90-day term in the Pitt County Jail, remain on probation for three years, not associate with known drug users and submit to searches by his probation officer.

In addition to the fine, Reid ordered him to repay $350 to the Greenville Police drug fund.

Pigford's father, Douglas H. Pigford of Warsaw, told Reid that friends and family members were surprised to learn of his son's drug involvement. His son has a clean record, was an Eagle Scout and is not a drug dealer, he said.

Assistant District Attorney Clark Everett said that the law treats selling mushrooms as a serious offense, and he asked Reid to consider the case as he would any other drug transaction, despite Pigford's solid family background.

ECU officials will not comment on disciplinary action taken against individual students, but all six would be expelled under the university's drug policy, according to a spokesman. None have preregistered for the fall semester, according to the university registrar.

Pigford is the second ECU student to plead guilty to drug charges in connection with the investigation.

Last week Gregory L. Fritts, 20, of Mount Gilead pleaded guilty to possessing, selling and delivering 15 dosage units of LSD on Feb. 22. He was sentenced to four months in the Montgomery County Jail and five years of probation.

Cases against the four remaining defendants are pending.

Coach To Enter Plea In July

By John Bare
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A court document indicates an assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University will enter a plea to drunken driving charges at his next court appearance in July.

Chris David Benetti, 31, of Route 3, Box 126-E, Greenville, was set to appear in Pitt District Court on Monday, but his case was continued. The continuance order states that his attorney, Ernest L. Conner, was occupied Monday with a previously scheduled trial in another courtroom, and the case was reset for July 17.

Conner's office said he was working in a domestic case in Greenville that would likely last most of the week.

The continuance order also states that Conner intends to plea the case at its next setting.

The order, signed by Judge David Leach of Greenville, does not state whether Benetti intends to plead innocent or guilty.

However, when defense attorneys intend for a client to plead guilty, they customarily say that the case is set for plea.

If the defendant intends to plead innocent, attorneys usually say the case is set for trial, not a plea. Conner was in court today and could not be reached for comment.

Benetti's case was originally set to be heard June 6, but was continued to Monday.

He was arrested at 12:53 a.m. April 21 and charged with driving while impaired, court records said. He was operating a 1988 Chevrolet donated to the university by Phelps Chevrolet of Greenville, according to court records and Waverly Phelps, who owns the dealership.

Greenville Police Officer J.G. Jenkins stopped Benetti on Portertown Road after Benetti "almost ran off the road several times and crossed over yellow dividing line twice within a short distance," Jenkins' report said.

Benetti blew a .16 and a .15 on the Breathalyzer, court records said. Under state law, a person may be considered legally impaired with a blood-alcohol content of .10.

ECU Athletic Director Dave Hart has declined to comment on any disciplinary action taken against Benetti.

After the arrest, Hart issued a statement through the university's sports information department in which said the coach recognized the seriousness of the incident and had been formally reprimanded.

Grants Set For Elderly Services

Three area organizations received federal grants to provide emergency services to the state's homeless population, Gov. Jim Martin announced.

Greene Lamp, serving Greene and Lenoir counties, received $11,367; Martin County Community Action, serving Beaufort, Martin and Pitt counties, received $25,046, and Nash Edgecombe Economic Development, serving Edgecombe, Nash and Wilson counties, was awarded $26,815.

A total of $516,437 was distributed to 32 state agencies, all of which serve migrant and seasonal farm workers. The money was distributed through the 1989 Emergency Community Services Homeless Grant program.

Martin said the funds will enable local agencies to provide urgently needed services to homeless individuals and to develop follow-up and long-term care.

The grants range from $6,062 for the I CARE Inc. program in Iredell County to $43,977 for the Four County Community Services, which serves Bladen, Hoke, Robeson, Columbus, Pender and Scotland Counties. Each anti-poverty agency will develop and administer programs to deal with the needs of homeless people in their particular area.

The grants will be administered by the Division of Economic Opportunity in the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The DEO also administers the Community Services Block Grant program and the Community Action Partnership program, two major anti-poverty programs in the state.

Alcohol Becomes Mom's Pacifier

Dear Abby: I'm a stay-at-home mother of two children, ages 3 and 5. (Before becoming a mom, I was an executive secretary.)

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Shortly after my first child was born, after putting him to bed at night, I'd have a glass or two of wine to relax.

Five hectic years and another child later, I am now up to four — sometimes five — glasses of wine each night to relax, seven nights a week. (I do not, however, drink during the day.)

Can this amount of alcohol damage my liver? Am I an alcoholic because I use alcohol to relax? I need to know. — "Mom" in Cocoa, Fla.

Dear Mom: If you "suspect" that you have an alcohol problem, you have one. Some facts:

There are, to date, more than 2 million female alcoholics in the U.S.A., and their numbers are increasing at a faster rate than male alcoholics. Alcoholism usually starts later in life for women, but progresses much more quickly. Women are more likely than men to drink alone, hide their drinking, and feel guilty and ashamed about it. Women suffer more alcohol-related depression, and are more likely to develop other kinds of chemical dependencies — prescription drugs, for example.

According to the National Council on Alcoholism, nine out of 10 wives stay with alcoholic husbands, but only one husband in 10 will stay with an alcoholic wife.

Are you an alcoholic? Take this test:

1. Have you ever been absent or tardy from work because of drinking?

2. Do you drink to overcome shyness or to build your self-esteem?

3. Have you suffered financial difficulties because of your drinking?

4. Do you encourage others to drink because you don't want to drink alone?

5. Has your job performance suffered because of your drinking?

6. Do you drink in the morning to get going?

7. Do you drink alone?

8. Do you drink to forget your troubles?

9. Has your drinking caused a faulty memory?

10. Do you try to find "reasons" (or excuses) to have a drink?

If you have answered "yes" to three or more of these questions, you are either an alcoholic or are on your way to becoming one. So, now what do you do?

For openers, look up Alcoholics Anonymous in the telephone directory. (It's listed under "A.") Then attend a meeting at one of the chapters near you. There are no dues, and you need not identify yourself unless you want to.

If you need treatment, your local mental health professionals can help you choose among available community resources for expert, professional treatment. Or, write to: The National Council on Alcoholism, 12 W. 21st St., New York, N.Y. 10010. Please enclose an SASE for a reply, as this is a non-profit organization. Good luck and God bless you.

Dear Abby: Would you please publish your address so readers can write to you? Some of the newspapers that run your column never run your address. — Needs Your Address

Suicide Is Second Leading Killer Of Young People

By Rosemary Speight

Suicide claims the lives of more young people, ages 15-24, than any other cause except automobile accidents. Each year, approximately 5,000 American young people kill themselves, one every 90 minutes. This rate is three times what it was 25 years ago.

One out of every three eighth and 10th graders surveyed in 20 states said they have seriously considered killing themselves. In March of 1989, the National Center for Disease Control reported that 34 percent of 11,000 students — 25 percent of the boys and 42 percent of the girls — had gone so far as to attempt potentially fatal injuries.

According to the Link Counseling Center in Atlanta, Ga., out of 10 people who kill themselves, eight have given definite clues to their intentions.

This indicates that suicide threats must be taken seriously. Research shows that the suicidal person gives many clues and warnings. A life may be saved by recognizing these clues or "cries for help."

Teen problems may seem insignificant or unimportant to adults, although they are very serious to the teen-ager. Youth is a time filled with constant changes, both physical and emotional. Every symptom on the following suicide list is also a sign of normal adolescent development, and should not be taken too literally. However, the symptoms should be addressed if they persist for an extended period of time.

Open dialogue on the subject of suicide can be helpful. Rather than pushing the teen to act or "giving him the idea," discussion can help bring problems to the surface and find possible solutions.

Suicide Symptoms

1. Depression — which may be exhibited by crying, loss of hope, loss of sleep, appetite or interest in usual activities — can make life events seem overwhelming.
2. The loss of a loved one through death, separation, divorce or breaking up with a girlfriend or boyfriend may sometimes contribute to the desire to end life.
3. Family problems may leave a teen feeling rejected, or that his family doesn't understand or care.

4. The pressure to succeed — to get good grades, go to the best college and date the right people may overwhelm some teens.

5. Poor self esteem — whether from a lack of praise, or failure in school work or athletics — may be a very serious problem to a teen-ager. As psychiatrist Peter Giovacchini states in his book, The Urge to Die, "Being a teen-ager today is an enormous task."

Between ages 12 and 20, an individual must, says Giovacchini, "come up with totally new definitions of who he or she is, what his or her talents are, what the world is, how it stands in relation to him or her, and how to get along with it."

At the same time, Giovacchini says, "His/her adolescent body grows up and leaves him/her with a still childish mind." Teens are desperately seeking independence from parents, and at the same time they are in desperate need of their mother's and father's understanding.

The teen who is bored, angry, drunk or drugged is indirectly asking others to please find a way to communicate to the distress, confusion and pain.

Most suicidal persons are undecided about living or dying. They gamble with death, leaving it to others to save them. Almost no one commits suicide without letting others know how he/she is feeling.

Often this cry for help is given in code. Signals may include threats of suicide, previous attempts, moodiness, withdrawal, sudden changes in behavior and making final arrangements such as giving away personal possessions or preparing a will. It is imperative that we treat suicidal talk and suicide attempts seriously and get professional help. Referrals may be made to the local mental health center, pastors and private counselors or therapists.

Where Does A Youngster Go After Suffering Burnout At 5?

I got a note from my son's kindergarten teacher one day telling me my son was "immature." When I asked her what that meant, she said, "It means he is very childish."

If she were a 5-year-old boy dressed in a pair of short pants with a duck on the pocket and carrying a note in his fist all day with B-O-Y-S written on it so he could match it up to the right restroom, she'd be called immature, too.

There has always been a big push in this country for children to "grow up." Now some education specialists are seeing a new phenomenon emerging: 5-year-old burnout!

Too much academics, too soon. "Don't just sit there and eat your soup. Spell Milwaukee." "Teething? Wrap your gums around a computer." "If you're going to drool, do it over a foreign language."

We are all guilty of it. I remember watching the valedictorian at my daughter's nursery school wet his pants. It was all rather ludicrous. Here he was in a long gown and mortarboard holding a diploma in his hand certifying he was ready to take his place in academia, and he wasn't even paper-trained.

without even knowing it? The beauty pageants of 2- and 3-year-olds where someone wins and someone loses. Someone could be Miss Congeniality ... if she knew how to spell it, pronounce it, and what it meant.

It's only in fun, but there's even a baby triathlon where participants in the 10- to 15-month age group compete in the 5-yard crawl, knock-the-blocks and the 5-yard toddle.

The specialists point out there's nothing wrong with preschool children learning their ABCs, but they shouldn't be drilled. And if computers are used, the children should be in control and go at their own pace. If this doesn't happen, it can undermine their self-esteem and self-confidence.

No one has figured out yet how many overachieving preschoolers are motivated by parents with a "genius wish" for their children. I'm not sure I want to know. But I do know that if you got a group of parents together and asked, "At what age did your child recite the entire alphabet?" no one would remember. On the other hand, ask them something important like when their child was toilet-trained, and they'll recall the exact minute.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved slightly higher in early trading today following its sharp decline on Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.68 to 2,484.33 as of 10 a.m. EDT.

Advancing issues were ahead of decliners by a margin of about 3 to 2, with 609 stocks rising, 378 falling and 488 unchanged on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the Big Board came to 29.39 million shares after the first half-hour of trading.

Leading the most active list was RJR Holdings, which rose 3/4 to 22 1/2 after RJR Nabisco said it was selling five food businesses for $2.5 billion. The sales were expected as part of the company's plan to reduce debt following its acquisition by Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.

Among blue-chip issues, AT&T was up 1/4 to 35 3/8 and General Electric rose 1/4 to 54 1/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up 0.44 to 180.33. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.35 to 359.93.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 37.13 points to 2,480.70.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 3 to 2 on the NYSE, with 600 up, 933 down and 448 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 163.42 million shares, against 229.14 million in the previous session.

Water Hearings Scheduled

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — State environmental officials will begin public hearings Tuesday on a proposal to designate eight "outstanding resource waters" along the coast, which would set stricter limits on development.

The classification being considered by the state Environmental Management Commission would let the state set stricter limits on development near coastal sounds and rivers that have outstanding water quality. The limits also could be imposed for waters that have other valuable natural resources, such as highly productive fisheries, or heavy recreational use.

Areas recommended for reclassification include: the Alligator River in Dare and Tyrrell counties; Swan Quarter Bay and Juniper Bay in Hyde County; Core Sound, Back Sound and the Southeastern Pamlico Sound in Carteret County; Western Bogue Sound and waters near Bear Island in Carteret and Onslow counties; Stump Sound in Onslow County; and Masonboro Sound in New Hanover County.

Environmental groups asked the state to consider the designation because they think existing regulations do not adequately protect sensitive coastal waters — particularly since the EMC revised its rules for controlling storm-water pollution in 1987.

Jail Plan Approved

— That the new jail include a hearing room for pretrial hearings and office space for magistrates and magistrates court.

Dews said the committee also recommended that the sheriff's department be housed in the courthouse as long as court continues to be held there and that the present jail be designated as a holding facility for prisoners as long as court continues to be held in the courthouse.

Preliminary estimates given to commissioners as part of a draft long-range county facilities plan suggest that a new jail could cost from $12 million to $15 million.

County Manager Kramer Jackson told commissioners that the cost of financing the jail through a lease-purchase agreement is "so near" the cost of financing through the sale of general obligation bonds that a lease-purchase plan is "very attractive." "The difference in cost is very little," Jackson said.

Commissioner Linwood Mercer, a member of the jail committee, described the lease-purchase plan as "a financing tool ... a different way of owning it."

After adopting the recommendations, commissioners asked the jail committee to begin looking for a site and schedule interviews for the selection of architects and bond attorneys as soon as possible.

Mike Esarey, chairman of the solid waste task force, in asking for a public meeting on the site selection criteria, said the guidelines would eliminate sites unacceptable to large numbers of the general public, sites which would pose unusual environmental risks and sites which would pose a higher degree of nuisance to larger numbers of people.

Esarey said the proposed 500-acre minimum suggested for a site would include a buffer area and provide for a "20-year life or longer for a landfill."

The board also approved a proposal from the solid waste task force to ask for proposals for a 20-year solid waste master plan for the county, which Esarey estimated would cost between $100,000 and $200,000.

The board went into executive session to discuss details of land acquisition after Mitch Smith, head of the county's agricultural extension service office, reported that the agricultural committee has recommended a five-acre site near the intersection of "Highway 264 and SR 1590" as the location for a proposed agriculture center to house extension service, FmHA, ASCS and SCS offices.

The creation of the center was proposed in October 1988 by the heads of the four agencies as a means of improving access to the services the four departments provide to county farmers.

The committee also suggested that the proposed building be financed through a lease-purchase plan.

Armies Square Off As Beijing Awaits Showdown

ed and more than 7,000 injured in a four-day onslaught that ran protesters out of central Tiananmen Square and paralyzed the city.

The first official casualty figures were far lower than unofficial estimates that had placed the death toll at more than 500.

Other Chinese estimates, also unconfirmed, were that thousands died.

Fears of a military showdown have swept the Chinese capital. People hoarded food and public transportation was at a standstill. Many people were not going to work.

Foreign embassies, including the U.S. mission, urged their nationals to leave, and some arranged special charter flights to speed evacuation.

The government took the unusual step today of denying a report from Taiwan that senior leader Deng Xiaoping had died.

Deng reportedly ordered the assault on Tiananmen, but China's top leaders have remained out of sight, with none coming forward to take responsibility.

The nationally televised evening news said the report was a "fabrication designed to make people uneasy and create chaos." Chinese sources have said Deng is hospitalized with prostate cancer.

Yuan Mu, spokesman for China's cabinet, the State Council, said on the evening news that the figure of nearly 300 dead included soldiers, "thugs," bystanders and 23 students.

Yuan is regarded as aligned with conservative elements but there was no indication who was running the government.

Unidentified people opened fire from a window this evening on soldiers and tanks outside the military museum in western Beijing, a Chinese witness said. The witness said he was too far away to identify those who fired.

Some students and other civilians are known to have captured weapons from soldiers in fighting over the weekend.

At Tiananmen Square, troops with rifles huddled behind concrete road dividers and trash cans as if expecting an infantry attack. They were backed by about 20 tanks, their guns pointing to the east.

Hundreds of soldiers that local residents called "good troops" were seen along the airport road and a main highway in northeastern Beijing.

Inmate Hanged

WENTWORTH, N.C. (AP) — A Stoneville man, who threatened to kill himself while being locked in a jail cell last weekend, hanged himself in the Rockingham County Jail where he was being held on drunken driving charges.

Larry James Manus, 41, was cursing and fighting so much that it took three men to get him in the cell on Saturday, according to Rockingham County Sheriff Bobby Vernon. About five hours later, Manus told jailer Willie McClurkin he was not crazy enough to take his own life. Vernon said, so McClurkin moved him from the cell with camera surveillance to a regular cell.

Less than 24 hours later, Manus was found dead.

the bullet ... take a strong stand for education."

Joe Gantz, president of Empire Brushes, said his company, the first located in the industrial park north of Greenville, "decided not to invest further in Pitt County," because "we're not sure we'd have a trained, educated work force" in the future.

Suggesting more local money should be spent on education, Gantz said, "We need the best possible schools ... this county can give to us. We demand excellence from our employees. We ask excellence from our schools."

Katherine Bullock of Greenville, a member of the faculty at Pitt Community College and active in the public schools as a volunteer, urged commissioners to "adopt the budget as proposed" by the school board. "Quality schools are not totally state supported," she said.

Greenville resident David Cobb told commissioners, "We usually get what we pay for. I'm here to suggest we support the schools as much as we can."

Chris McCoy, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce board, offered commissioners a resolution supporting the issuance of $25 million in bonds to pay for school building improvements and new facilities.

"It seems reasonable that the bond issuance must be approved," McCoy read, in order to fund the present needs of the schools "and improve our standard as leaders in eastern North Carolina."

"We believe (a bond issue) would be in keeping with good business planning for our county, its future

ing this afternoon. One man said the troops, from the northeast city of Shenyang, were good because "they are not shooting at the people."

People along the road talked with them and offered them food, far different from the atmosphere in central Beijing where residents were shot at for approaching military checkpoints.

One Shenyang soldier, asked if he knew of the massacre early Sunday at Tiananmen in which hundreds were gunned down by invading troops, said: "In my heart I know what happened."

The Shenyang soldier, asked what he was doing in Beijing, said he was "waiting for orders."

The 38th Army, or capital garrison, had refused to move on the people after Premier Li Peng declared martial law May 20. It was not immediately known if the 38th was involved in fighting today.

Both the 27th and 28th armies are based in Hebei province, and each comprises between 35,000 and 40,000 men.

Opposition within the military to the suppression of the pro-democracy movement may have grown since the bloodbath, which has been universally condemned by Chinese citizens and foreign governments. In Hong Kong, the Ming Pao newspaper quoted informed sources in Beijing as saying a young guard took four shots at Li on Sunday in the Great Hall of the People, hitting the premier in the thigh. It said Li's wound was not severe and his assailant was immediately shot to death.

Anti-government demonstrations have spread to Shanghai, Nanjing, Chengdu and numerous other cities.

Shanghai Radio said today that student-led barricading of streets "had brought the whole municipal economy to the brink of collapse."

In Beijing, there were new reports of troops firing on unarmed residents. A contingent of soldiers fired directly on a crowd near a major intersection west of Tiananmen, a foreign witness said. He said he heard screams from the crowd, but did not know if anyone was hit.

Another foreign source said tanks were moving north and firing their guns near the university area in northwestern Beijing.

So far, the military has not tried to enter the universities, the birthplace seven weeks ago of the movement for democracy and an end to official corruption.

State-run newspapers have not appeared since Saturday.

Chinese sources said Defense Minister Qin Jiwei was stripped of power for opposing Deng's decision to end the student demonstrations with military force.

Premier Li had been the main target of anti-government demonstrators before the crackdown, with people demanding he resign for imposing martial law on the capital. Zhao Ziyang, who was reportedly sacked by Deng after opposing martial law, has not been seen since May 19.

Hardee Given New Post

Jackson, who said the position would include duties now carried out by the county's tax collector and tax assessor.

And commissioners appointed Jimmie Hardee, presently the county's tax assessor, to fill the new position effective July 1.

Tax Collector Bill Smith will retire at the end of this month after 22 years in the job.

Jackson said Hardee, who joined the tax supervisor's office in October 1970 and has headed the department — first as tax supervisor and more recently as tax assessor — since 1978, has agreed to take on the additional duties as tax collector.

Jackson said that Hardee's salary for the dual roll will be about $40,000. He is now making about $30,000 as tax assessor.

Commissioners on Monday also agreed to hold a public hearing on a proposed increase in fees for some services provided by the health department's environmental health division.

According to a list of the proposed fees given to the board by Dr. Tim Monroe, health director, lot evaluations, including septic tank inspections, would increase to $65, compared with the present $50 fee, while the annual swimming pool operation permit fee of $25 would rise to $200 and the charge for water samples would increase from the present $10 to $25 each.

Proposed new fees include: $80 for swimming pool plan review; a $50 annual pool fee; $25 for written mobile home park authorizations, and $25 for building addition or septic tank location for pools.

In other business, the board agreed to work with the town of Bethel in an effort to secure an $85,000 grant for the construction of a new library.

John Welch, grants administrator for the state library, told commissioners that in order to receive the $85,000 grant, the proposed library would have to be operated as a full-service branch of Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville which is recognized by the state as the county library.

Bethel Mayor Frank Hemmingway told commissioners that Bethel's $85,000 local match for the grant is being raised through private donations. He said the town would have no problem in paying the cost of operating the library as part of the Sheppard library system. The mayor estimated it would take about $12,000 a year, about double what the town now spends for library operations.

Voting

officials have been selling the idea for years, trying to convince the county commissioners to fund the purchase.

The elections board hopes next week's vote in Farmville goes one step further in swaying the commissioners, Mrs. Hardee said. There are 2,302 voters eligible to participate in the election, and every voter participating will be handed a survey upon exiting the polls.

The questionnaire asks whether the voters found the Shouptronic machines easier to use and whether the ballots are easier to read. It asks whether the voters prefer the new machines and whether the county should make the switch.

In the 1990 budget request the elections board has submitted to commissioners, the board did not request funding for the machines because of the county's tight financial situation, Mrs. Hardee said.

However, the board has asked that any bond referendum include a proposal concerning the Shouptronic purchase. Also, the board has asked that the commissioners make the switch as soon as the money is available.

When the board first asked for the machines, each cost $4,200, Mrs. Hardee said, and the cost has already risen to $4,900. Pitt County needs 100 machines, she said.

Though the initial cost would be high, Mrs. Hardee and members of the elections board have continued to argue that the equipment would pay for itself.

With the Shouptronic equipment, the county would no longer have to print hundreds of thousands of ballots for an election. Last November, printing costs topped $17,000, and voter registration is growing.

With the new equipment, the county would no longer have to purchase additional voting booths, which cost over $10,000 in November. The county is required by law to have an adequate number of booths, and more are needed each election, Mrs. Hardee said.

Also, the machines would probably allow poll workers and election officials to leave the polling sites before midnight on election nights. In past years, election workers have often worked through the night feeding thousands of ballots into counting machines, or, in worst cases, counting them by hand.

With the Shouptronic machines, the counting is done automatically. Ms. Jeffress said it takes five minutes to read the final tally and record the results.

Chang Rallies To Upset Lendl

17-Year Old Overcomes Cramps To Pull French Open Shocker

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — Michael Chang, writhing with leg cramps and hardly able to serve, staged a sensational rally to upset top-seeded Ivan Lendl 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 today and reach the quarterfinals of the French Open tennis championships.

In a match of high drama and excitement, the 17-year-old from Placentia, Calif., brought off an improbable victory on Center Court that had the capacity crowd of 14,000 wildly supporting the underdog.

After playing the whole of the fifth set in pain, Chang fell on his back in relief after Lendl double-faulted on match point to end the 4-hour, 38-minute contest.

The American, the youngest ever quarterfinalist in the men's event, was in tears as he left the court.

While Chang's comeback was the focus of attention, countryman Jim Courier coast a two-set lead and went out of the tournament as the second week began.

The unseeded Courier was beaten 2-6, 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, 7-5 by Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union. Courier, 18, had upset No. 5 seed Andre Agassi on Sunday.

"When it gets to 4-4 or 5-5 in the final set, I go for it too much," Courier said. "That was the case today. I got a little over-anxious."

"But give Andre credit. He beat me. It was more of an emotional letdown after such a big win yesterday."

If the quality of the Chang-Lendl match was patchy, the emotion of the occasion was super-charged.

Lendl was warned in the first set and penalized a point in the fourth, both times for arguing over line calls. Chang also was warned, for taking too much time in the fifth game of the final set — when he was in the most pain.

"I was surprised I was able to hang on so long," Chang said. "When he gave me the warning, both my thighs were cramping. If I put any pressure on any of my muscles, I'd cramp. I just tried to win as many points as I could. When I had a chance, I went for it."

After being outthit by Lendl for two long sets of marathon rallies, Chang got back into the match by trying to finish off the points quicker and going for the lines.

Lendl's concentration was badly shaken, but as Chang was suddenly hit by dehydration and cramps, there seemed only one winner. Chang, watched from the stands by his mother, sometimes screamed in pain as he chased Lendl's deep groundstrokes in the fifth set.

Every opportunity he got, the tournament's No. 15 seed drank from a court-side water bottle and declined to sit down during the changeovers to keep his legs from giving in completely.

To stay in the points, Chang slowed the game down with high looping balls, in contrast with his tactics in the third and fourth sets. But whenever he found the strength, he continued to smash home winners.

The American's serve suffered the most. Tightened with cramps, he gave Lendl short, soft balls to return, and in his last service game, Chang even served one point underhanded.

It took Lendl so much by surprise that the 29-year-old Czechoslovakian ended a point when he hit a volley wide.

Lendl's concentration by now was shattered and Chang, saving his energy for his opponent's service games, broke the top seed for a fourth straight time.

When Lendl served to save the match at 3-5, 15-40, Chang moved to within two feet of the service line to receive a second serve by Lendl.

The result was a double fault, the first time since 1982 that Lendl had exited so early at Stade Roland Garros. It also ended his hopes of winning the Grand Slam following his victory at the Australian Open in January.

Jabbar Is Ready For Last Trip To NBA Finals

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, serious and soft-spoken as ever, acts as if these next two weeks are nothing special.

He's in the playoffs for the 18th time in 20 NBA seasons. He's in the Finals for the eighth time this decade. And he's still the starting center for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Next season, he won't be. That's what makes his final championship series that begins tonight against the Detroit Pistons very special, despite his denials.

"This is the last time the Lakers will be watched by people who like to watch the Lakers the way they know them," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said. "It's the end of an era."

Abdul-Jabbar has been a giant on the national basketball scene for nearly a quarter century, ever since he was Lew Alcindor, a freshman star at UCLA in 1965. He was the NBA's rookie of the year in 1970 and is its leading all-time scorer in the regular season and playoffs.

His career, unmatched in basketball history, has, at most, seven games left.

He is retiring after this season. Yet Abdul-Jabbar sat calmly at courtside before Monday's practice, deflecting probes by reporters seeking a spark of emotion.

"I keep answering this question again and again. My motivation is to help this team win," he said with a trace of annoyance. "I understand what I have to do to help this team win. I'm prepared to play."

Doesn't this series mean more because it's his last? "Not that I'm overly aware of," he said.

Riley thinks Abdul-Jabbar, at 42 just two years younger than his coach, does feel strongly about his final series but is focusing on the battle with the Pistons by pushing those feelings aside.

"The way of the warrior is to win or perish," Riley said. "This is his last war."

The Lakers were unscathed by the skirmishes leading up to it. They won all 11 games, a single-season record, in their first three playoff series against Portland, Seattle and Phoenix.

However, Byron Scott, the Lakers' third-leading scorer in the playoffs at 19.9 per game, strained his left hamstring in practice Monday and was listed as questionable for Game 1.

Lakers spokesman Josh Rosenfeld said Scott was in-

Orioles Make McDonald 1st Pick In Baseball Draft

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Ben McDonald, 14-3 for Louisiana State this year after starting the season with 44 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings, was chosen by the Baltimore Orioles today as the first pick in baseball's amateur draft.

"It's a big relief," McDonald said at a news conference at Omaha, Neb. "It's been tough on my family and me. It affected the ballplayers, coaches everybody close to the team."

McDonald, a 6-foot-7 right-hander, could be with the Orioles by the end of the season. He has struck out 194 in 148 1-3 innings and has a 2.91 earned-run average.

"It's been a goal of mine since last year," McDonald said of his No. 1 selection. "I think I could go up and do well but I don't think they'll put me in a situation I couldn't handle. If I continue to work hard and progress as I expect to, I don't see why I wouldn't be up there in the next couple of years."

McDonald was one of eight pitchers taken on the first round. In a surprise, 14 of the players taken were from colleges. It was thought that high-school players would fill most of the first round. Last year, 18 colleges players were among the first 26 picked.

Tyler Houston, a catcher from Valley High in Las Vegas, was taken second by the Atlanta Braves. In his first 87 at-bats, he hit .563 with 12 homers and 57 runs batted in.

The Seattle Mariners then took Roger Salkeld, a right-hander from Saugus, Calif., High. The 6-foot-5, 205-pound Salkeld was 10-0 this

Pitt Tops Wayne In Legion Action

Maurice Hines Drives In Four Runs Off Four Hits To Key 15-5 Win

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Maurice Hines banged out four hits and drove in as many runs as Pitt County's American Legion baseball team romped past Wayne County, 15-5, Monday night at Harrington Field.

Post 39, boosting its record to 2-1 on the young season, banged out 15 hits on the night, three of them doubles.

Wayne County, meanwhile, collected nine hits, but was unable to bunch them often enough to counter Pitt's offense. Wayne, now 3-2, did hold a slim 1-0 lead after a half-inning, but never after that.

"We never seemed to get untracked tonight," Wayne coach Ron Glover said. "We've got a lot of first year players who have to adjust to playing two or three games in a row."

"Pitt County played aggressively and did a super job," he added. "But we had played the last two nights in a row and were kind of thin in our pitching."

Ronald Vincent, continuing to substitute for Grant Jarman, said he was very pleased with "the way we swung our bats and the enthusiasm we showed."

"I thought (Brian) Smith pitched well, for his first time, and both Pee Wee (Gatlin) and Jamie (Brewington) did well in relief. We really got the job done tonight."

Wayne led only briefly in the first inning. With one out, Jeff Smith drew a walk and moved up on an infield out. Graham Whitfield followed with a single to left, driving in Smith.

Pitt came right back to score three runs in the bottom of the inning. David Leisten led off with a bunt single and stole second, scoring on Ty Little's double to right center. Timmy Moore reached on an error, allowing Little to score. Moore moved to second on the play. Hines followed with a double to left center, but Moore had to hold up and made it only to third. John Bolen followed by popping up in foul territory to the third baseman. The catcher came over also, and that left home uncovered so Moore dashed home safely after the catch with the third run.

Pitt added three more in the second for a 6-1 lead. Bryan Smith led off, reaching on an error. Both Leisten and Little were then hit by pitches, loading the bases. Moore followed with a single to left, driving in both Smith and Leisten. Hines added another single, scoring Little.

The fourth saw another pair cross. Little and Moore opened with singles. Hines reached on an error, scoring Little and Moore came around on the misplay also. That upped the lead to 8-1.

Wayne cut the lead to 8-4 with three in the fifth. Smith walked and Bob Grant singled to right. An error allowed him to take an extra base and Smith to score. With one out, Sean Harris walked and David Whitfield doubled to left, driving in Grant. Harris scored on Wade Lyal's infield hit.

Pitt added a ninth run in the sixth. With one away, Hines singled and moved up on an error. He scored on Heath Clark's single.

Anderson Returns To Managing Duties

DETROIT (AP) — A subdued Sparky Anderson returned as manager of the Detroit Tigers on Monday after spending more than two weeks recovering from exhaustion brought on by what he said was his refusal to follow his own advice.

Anderson said he always has admonished his players to leave baseball — especially a loss — at the ballpark. He said his inability to do that made him a physical and mental wreck.

"There has never been another manager who takes losses harder and keeps them inside longer — maybe Gene Mauch — than me," Anderson said at a news conference at Tiger Stadium.

He said he always has told his players "there is nothing so important about baseball (to let it) ruin your life."

"I have always taught those words, but I've never lived them," Anderson said. "Inside, I die a thousand deaths" after a loss.

Anderson, 55, is the 10th-winningest manager in major league history. He is in his 20th season of managing a major league team, his 11th in Detroit after nine years at Cincinnati, where he led the Reds to four National League pennants and two World Series championships. The 1984 Tigers, under Anderson, won the World Series.

Anderson said he began to feel bad after a Tigers' exhibition loss to their Class AAA affiliate, the Toledo Mud Hens, on May 11. He said he barely slept during a three-game road series at Cleveland. Finally, on May 19, before a home game against Kansas City, Anderson was ordered home to Thousand Oaks, Calif., to rest.

"The first day I was home, I slept 16 hours, and that wasn't because I was physically tired," Anderson said. "I was mentally tired."

Anderson's wife, Carol, blocked all calls from well-wishers, including San Francisco Giants manager Roger Craig, who phoned twice. Anderson said he appreciated being left alone by the media.

He said he underwent a battery of physical tests in California and was pronounced in excellent health. What he and Tigers team physician Dr. Clarence Livingood described as a minor blood abnormality is being studied.

Anderson said he will reduce his off-field activity, specifically charity golf outings. He also said he will ease his heavy load of hospital charity work and will come to the stadium later than he has over the years.

Snow Hill Rips Wilson, 11-2

SNOW HILL — Walt McKeel hit a grand-slam home run to help power Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team to an 11-2 victory over Wilson Monday night.

Snow Hill jumped on Wilson for five runs in the first inning, thanks to McKeel's blow. George Burnette led off the inning with a walk and Ed Stanley singled. Chris West singled to drive in Burnette and Wes Jackson reached on a hit to load the bases. McKeel then followed with his four-run smash to give Snow Hill a 5-0 lead.

The team added four more in the fifth inning as Gary Cox hit a three-run double to highlight the frame. That made it 9-0 at that point.

Snow Hill added its final two in the seventh, while Wilson got its two in the top of the eighth.

Todd Mewborn went the distance for the win for Snow Hill, scattering five hits. He walked six and struck out 15. No one had more than one hit for Wilson.

West led Snow Hill with three hits while Jackson and Mewborn each had two hits.

Both Snow Hill and Wilson are now 3-1 on the year. Snow Hill travels to Greenville tonight to face Pitt County in an 8 p.m. game at Harrington Field.

Braves Tab Prep Catcher In 1st Round

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves selected a catcher, Tyler Houston of Valley High School in Las Vegas, as their No. 1 pick in major league baseball's free agent draft Monday.

The Braves picked second overall in the draft. Houston, 6-foot-2 and 210 pounds, hit .466 with 13 homers, 66 RBI, 50 runs and 15 stolen bases in 36 games as Valley High went 31-5 this season. He struck out seven times in 131 at-bats.

Houston played third base as a freshman, catcher as a sophomore, third and short as a junior and all three positions this year.

Braves spokesman Jim Schultz said it has not yet been determined what level Houston will be assigned to in the organization.

The Braves were weak at catcher for several years. Veteran Bruce Benedict made the National League All-Star team in 1983, but has failed to hit above .242 since then. Ozzie Virgil, acquired from Philadelphia in 1986, never lived up to expectations. And Jody Davis, acquired from Chicago late last season, has been in a slump all year, prompting the Braves to again make Benedict their starter.

"We have been high on him since he was a sophomore," Atlanta General Manager Bobby Cox said of Houston. "He's a heckuva athlete and a great competitor. It shouldn't take him long to go to the top of his class in his profession."

Major league teams won't announce the names of draft choices below the No. 1 selection until next week. The draft will continue on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Braves, Dodger Lose Players In Game

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves first baseman Gerald Perry, who has gone 133 at-bats without an RBI, suffered a slight separation of his left shoulder in the first game of a doubleheader with the Los Angeles Dodgers on Monday night.

The Braves said Perry would have the shoulder X-rayed on Tuesday. He had the same injury last season and during spring training this year.

Perry fell on the shoulder in the fifth inning attempting to make a diving catch.

Chris Gwynn of the Dodgers left the game in the second inning with soreness in his right foot. He hurt the foot in Sunday's game against Houston while sliding into home plate. The Dodgers said the foot was bruised and Gwynn would be examined Tuesday.

Catcher Bruce Benedict of the Braves was shaken up in the eighth inning when he took two foul tips off his mask.

The Braves said Benedict was "woozy" and also would undergo further examination on Tuesday.

Jackson Determines Ailment

CINCINNATI (AP) — Danny Jackson thinks he has the solution to the mysterious case of the missing left-hander: the big toe did it.

Jackson, 23-8 last season, won only three games in April and May while losing eight — matching his total for all of last season.

Since the end of last season, Jackson's big toe on his left foot has been sore. It was fine over the winter with rest, but started aching again during spring training.

The toe hurt a lot when he pushed off the pitching rubber with his left foot, causing him to change his delivery and rely more on his arm strength. As a result, his fastball lost some of its movement and his arm tired in the middle innings.

Finally, he had an examination last week that detected calcium deposits causing inflammation in the toe. He got a cortisone shot, rested for a week, and had one of his best outings of the season Sunday in a 5-3 victory over San Diego.

Jackson went 6 1-3 innings, giving up eight hits and two earned runs while striking out seven. He was able to push off with the left foot again, regaining the zip in his pitches.

"For me, it's an unbelievable difference," he said. "I can't describe it. I'm just glad we finally figured out what the problem was."

"When You Want Results!"

Dodgers' Rookie Answers Call

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To the rescue came Ramon Martinez.

With the Los Angeles pitching staff worn out from working 35 innings in two games against the Houston Astros and facing a doubleheader at Atlanta, the Dodgers turned to the 21-year-old rookie for help.

And Martinez delivered.

"I knew I was giving them more chance to rest the others," said Martinez, who stopped the Braves on six hits Monday night as the Dodgers won 7-0 in the first game of a doubleheader.

"I was aware of what had happened the last two days."

In the second game, two-run homers by Kirk Gibson and John Shelby led the Dodgers to a 4-2 victory and a sweep.

Martinez, who had a 1-3 record last year, fanned nine, a career high, and walked one in getting his first shutout and complete game in seven major-league starts.

"I feel more confident," Martinez said. "I've got better stuff, better control and a better curve ball."

Martinez was recalled Saturday from Triple-A Albuquerque, where he was 8-1.

"I never shook off (catcher) Mike (Sciocia). Every pitch he called, I threw. The last time I pitched was last Tuesday. I did good ... a one-hitter against ... Las Vegas ..."

In the second game, the homers by Gibson and Shelby came off John Smoltz, 7-4.

Tim Leary, 4-4, the third of four Dodger pitchers, allowed two hits in three innings in his first relief appearance after 11 starts this year. Jay Howell struck out the two batters he faced for his 10th save.

Giants 11, Reds 8

Jose Uribe homered and Kevin Mitchell singled with the bases loaded as San Francisco pounded Jose Rijo with six early runs.

Scott Garrelts, 4-1, scattered seven hits in eight innings after retiring the first 13 batters. The right-hander has allowed just six earned runs in his last three starts, covering 23 innings.

Uribe homered, his first since last July 17, in the top of the second to put San Francisco ahead to stay. After fanning in his first two at-bats, Mitchell singled home a pair of runs in a three-run fourth that chased Rijo, 5-2.

Cardinals 5, Expos 4

Milt Thompson hit a three-run homer as St. Louis scored five runs in the third inning and beat Montreal for its second victory in eight games.

Jose DeLeon, 7-3, combined with Ken Dayley and John Costello on a three-hitter. DeLeon allowed all three hits and struck out a season-high 10 in 6 1-3 innings. Costello earned his first save.

Bryn Smith, 5-2, walked DeLeon to start the top of the third and Vince Coleman singled. Thompson followed with his second homer.

Cubs 15, Mets 3

Dwight Smith hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a bases-loaded triple by Vance Law highlighted a six-run sixth as Chicago pounded New York.

The Cubs were coming off an 11-3 victory over St. Louis on Sunday, in which they homered six times. The Mets had their four-game winning streak snapped.

Smith went 3-for-4 with three runs scored and three RBIs to lead Chicago's 13-hit attack. Smith's homer, his first in the majors, came off David Cone, 3-5.

Greg Maddux, 5-5, won his fourth straight start, but did not come out in the sixth after being hit on the left calf in the fifth inning by a drive off the bat of Darryl Strawberry.

Padres 10, Astros 2

Ed Whitson allowed five hits in eight innings for his seventh straight victory and Tony Gwynn had four singles as San Diego snapped Houston's 10-game winning streak.

Whitson, 9-2, walked one and struck out five, retiring the last 13 batters he faced. Mark Davis closed.

Mark Portugal, acquired from Minnesota in the offseason, was the loser in his National League debut, giving up six runs on nine hits in four innings.

Pirates 3, Phillies 3

The game was called after a delay of 1 hour, 44 minutes. All the statistics count and the game will be replayed in its entirety as part of a July 28 doubleheader, which starts 5:35 p.m., EDT.

Pittsburgh tied it in the seventh on a one-out single by Jose Lind, an infield out and Bobby Bonilla's single.

Yankees Bungle Way To 16-3 Loss

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call them the Sham Yankees.

This is the proudest, most successful franchise in baseball history? Not on Monday night, when the Yankees committed six errors, allowed 13 unearned runs and were routed 16-3 by the surging Baltimore Orioles.

"Nobody is happy about what happened tonight," said Yankees manager Dallas Green, who screamed so loudly at his players after the game that the tirade could be heard through the cinderblock walls. "But let's not make any more of it than it is. It's just one night, and you won't see it again."

What the fans at Yankee Stadium saw was so abysmal that they began chanting for rain in the third inning. By then, it was 11-0 and Baltimore was on the way to its 11th consecutive victory.

The Yankees' errors were the most in the American League this season and their most since making six on May 24, 1986. The Orioles, 54-107 last year, have a five-game lead in the AL East. But they aren't gloating.

"It's a long season," Manager Frank Robinson said. "We just won a ballgame. We'll play them a lot more this season."

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 3

A sellout crowd of 48,378 attended the opening of the ultramodern, $375 million SkyDome. The fans gave the Blue Jays a standing ovation when they took the field. The first pitch was a strike by Jimmy Key to Paul Molitor and the ball was taken out of play and will be sent to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Glenn Braggs' two-run homer keyed the Milwaukee victory. Fred McGriff and George Bell homered for Toronto.

Rangers 4, White Sox 2

Julio Franco stayed hot and Bobby Witt started warming up.

Franco knocked in a pair of runs, upping his AL-leading RBI total to 49, and Witt broke a month-long slump. Witt was 1-5 in May with a 7.34 ERA but beat visiting Chicago, allowing seven hits and both runs in seven innings.

"I found that I was overthrowing when I got behind batters," Witt said of his problems last month. "So we (Rangers pitching coaches Tom House and Dick Egan) made some adjustments. I just made sure I wasn't overthrowing in those situations tonight."

Big-Time Hurlers Come Up Short

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA, Neb. — The big name pitchers in the College World Series West Division contests failed to come through.

Long Beach State All-American Kyle Abbott was knocked out Monday in his team's loss 8-5 to Louisiana State and Texas rocked Miami freshman standout Alex Fernandez 12-2.

Long Beach State's loss sent the seventh-seeded 49ers home with a 50-15 record and two CWS losses. LSU, seeded sixth and 54-16, moved to a 7:10 p.m. CDT game tonight against Miami, the No. 3 seed and 49-17.

Tonight's winner will advance to face second-seeded Texas, 53-17, in a 7:10 p.m. contest Thursday. A Texas win would put the Longhorns in Saturday's noon championship, but a loss would force a second game between those same two teams Friday night.

On Monday, Abbott opened the evening with 2 1-3 innings of off-target pitching for Long Beach State. The left-hander, 15-3, had been the No. 9 pick — by the California Angels — in the major league amateur player draft earlier in the day. He walked five, gave up three hits and surrendered seven runs before going to the bench.

"I didn't think it would affect me," Abbott said of the draft. "I felt good. It was just that the ball was taking off on me."

"He has been under a lot of pressure in anticipation of the draft and so forth," 49ers coach Dave Snow said. "It's hard to put that in perspective on how much it affected him, but he was a little bit wild."

LSU used a walk and a catcher interference call to set up a two-run single by Scott Schneidewind in the second. Then the Tigers scored six in the third on a walk, a single by Craig Cala, an RBI single by Mike Bianco, another walk to load the bases and a walk to Matt Gruver to force one run in.

Robby Corsaro came on in relief of Abbott and gave up another run-scoring walk and a three-run double by Tookie Johnson.

Dan Berthel singled home two runs for Long Beach State in the fourth, Deryk Hudson and Todd Lloyd had RBI hits in the sixth and Berthel hit his second homer of the year for the 49ers last run in the eighth.

LSU starter Curtis Leskanic, 15-2, went 7 2-3 innings. It was a school record for most wins in a season.

"I didn't know about the record," Leskanic said. "It's nice to be with (Ben) McDonald on that, but it doesn't mean I'm a better pitcher than him. It wasn't even one of my goals this year. I just wanted to pitch and win."

McDonald won 14 games for LSU this season and was the No. 1 player drafted, being taken by the Baltimore Orioles.

In the nightcap, Texas pounded out 12 hits, including a pair of homers and an RBI single by Craig Newkirk to hand Fernandez his second loss in 17 decisions. The Longhorns also beat Fernandez 6-5 in February.

Toronto Opens New SkyDome

Blue Jays' Rob Ducey throws in practice in Toronto's new SkyDome

The Associated Press

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO — The Toronto Blue Jays opened the SkyDome Monday night against Milwaukee under the stars, while construction crews stayed busy finishing the $375 million stadium.

The day started out overcast, but by late afternoon the sun was peeking out and the retractable roof was rolled back, exposing three-quarters of the stadium.

"This will take a little while to get used to," pitcher Jimmy Key said a couple of hours before he lost to the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3. "It's not like a home quite yet."

The SkyDome is a great idea that's not quite completed.

The ticket booths aren't finished and empty crates and boxes are strewn throughout the cavernous runways. The SkyDome is located in a downtown commercial area and parking and transportation is lacking.

While the Blue Jays and Brewers took infield practice, workmen finished setting up railings behind home plate and checking the outfield fence.

But the most important thing — the field — was all set.

"Neither side has an advantage tonight," Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston said. "We're both going to find out what the problems are at the same time."

Construction crews worked around the clock the last few days taking care of loose wires, open ceilings and debris.

The opening was in doubt until a government official finally issued an occupancy certificate last Friday.

On Saturday, the official opening ceremony was held and about 55,000 were drenched when the retractable roof was opened. A soldout crowd of about 53,000 was on hand Monday.

Fortunately, workers had dropped tarpaulins around all three base areas and home plate. The artificial turf on Monday had some water stains in the outfield, but otherwise was dry.

"It's a little more spongy than Exhibition Stadium," Key said.

The final touches were made on Sunday when the 10-foot-high outfield fences were erected, the bullpens set up and dugouts put in place. The field measures 400 feet to dead center, 375 in the power alleys and 328 down the lines.

There's a glass-enclosed, 650-seat restaurant ringing the outfield, and Gaston was a little worried about the reflection.

"It's possible that will be a problem for the batter, but it also may be too high," Gaston said. "We couldn't take batting practice because they weren't finished the work, so I don't know."

The SkyDome is baseball's fifth indoor stadium and perhaps the prototype park for the next century.

There are four levels, with three containing seats and one for luxury boxes.

The seats are various shades of blue and, unlike Exhibition Stadium, all the sightlines are good.

"It even looks good from the last row," Brewers broadcaster Bob Uecker said.

There is a 364-room hotel inside the stadium, and 70 rooms in the hotel are suites that overlook the field from both sides of the massive scoreboard.

For guests and visitors, there is an 800-seat, three-tiered restaurant that hangs from the roof over the outfield.

In case the game gets a little boring, the SkyDome is equipped with a health club, saunas, a 25-meter swimming pool, squash courts and an indoor track that circles the outfield.

There's also a miniature golf course and a 150-seat movie theater.

And, of course, there's the dome. The SkyDome has a 339,343-square foot retractable roof able to open and close in 20 minutes.

Marty Springstead, the American League's supervisor of umpires, said if it starts to rain during a game, the umpires will have to call for the roof to be closed.

Before Monday's game, Springstead inspected the field and didn't find any problems.

"It's a lot different from Exhibition Stadium, that's for sure," veteran Blue Jays catcher Ernie Whitt said. "I just had to look around for awhile. It's great."

Exhibition Stadium, where the Blue Jays played for 12 years, was built for football and many baseball fans had a better view of the parking lot than the field. It was also the victim of howling winds off of Lake Ontario and a flock of nervous seagulls.

The luxury boxes around the field of the SkyDome are between $225,000 and $100,000, plus the cost of the tickets. The boxes have plush carpets, dining facilities and TV monitors.

There is also a club level with 5,800 extra-wide seats that were sold for a maximum of $4,000 for the season.

Ticket prices for the general public will remain from $4 to $15 — for now.

In addition to watching the game from luxury seats and luxury boxes, the fans can look at a luxury scoreboard.

The SkyDome has a 35-by-115 foot color scoreboard, the largest ever built. The SkyDome's TV screen is 3.7 times bigger than any other in the major leagues, and is located in dead center field.

The hotel and most of the restaurants aren't quite ready yet and a walkway from a major transit station won't be completed until late summer.

"We still have some work left," Blue Jays president Paul Beeston said. "But we're ready to play ball and that's the main thing. The fans will get a good show."

Sutcliffe Gets New Pact

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Rick Sutcliffe, claiming he'd like to wind up his career in Chicago, is staying with the Cubs after getting a two-year contract extension worth $4.2 million.

"I talked to my family and my grandparents and it was unanimous, everybody wanted me to stay in Chicago," Sutcliffe said.

Sutcliffe's grandfather, Bill Yearout, helped rear Sutcliffe and was responsible for his getting into baseball.

"I said 'Grandpa, where do you want me to play the next couple of years?'" Sutcliffe said. "And he said 'What's wrong with where you're at?'"

Sutcliffe, his agent, Barry Axelrod, and Cubs president Don Gresenko came to terms on the new contract although it was somewhat unexpected.

"I'm a little surprised, but it's great," Sutcliffe said. "When we couldn't agree in spring training, we decided to wait until the end of the year. But Barry called me and said the Cubs had had a change of heart."

In earlier negotiations, the Cubs were against guaranteeing the second year of the contract. But Sutcliffe's 7-3 start had something to do with that.

"It was a combination of his performance and his leadership," Gresenko said. "We're doing what we can to win and we're looking beyond this year."

Sutcliffe, 32, is getting $1.8 million in the final year of a five-year deal worth $9 million. The new contract, with a $550,000 signing bonus, is for $1.65 million in 1989 and $2 million for 1990.

Baseball Draft Picks ... season with a 0.65 ERA, striking out 140 in 82 innings.

Philadelphia, picking fourth, selected Jeff Jackson, an outfielder from Simeon High in Chicago. He hit .493 in 71 at-bats with 12 homers, 51 RBIs and 30 stolen bases.

Texas took Don Harris, an outfielder from Texas Tech, who wasn't projected to be taken in the first two rounds. St. Louis then took for Paul Coleman, an outfielder from Frankston (Texas) High who batted .510 this year in 49 at-bats.

Frank Thomas, a first baseman from Auburn, went to the Chicago White Sox with the seventh pick.

"He's strong, with outstanding power and not that bad defensively," White Sox scouting director Al Goldis said of Thomas. "He does need to lose weight, though."

The Chicago Cubs took Earl Cunningham, an outfielder from Lancaster (S.C.) High. Through his first 65 at-bats this season, Cunningham was batting .446 with 11 homers and 25 RBIs.

Kyle Abbott, a left-hander from Long Beach State who is not related to Jim Abbott, was taken by the California Angels with the ninth pick. Charles Johnson, a catcher from Westwood High in Fort Pierce, Fla., was taken next by the Montreal Expos.

Only the first round of the three-day draft is made public immediately. Teams are fearful that colleges will use the draft as recruiting lists, so they don't release the complete list for about two weeks.

Cleveland took Calvin Murray, a third baseman-outfielder from White High in Dallas, Houston picked Jeff Juden, a right-hander from Salem (Mass.) High and Kansas City selected catcher Brent Mayne of Cal State Fullerton.

San Francisco, choosing 14th, drafted outfielder Steve Hoesy of Fresno State and the Los Angeles Dodgers, using the pick they got from the New York Yankees as compensation for Steve Sax, took right-hander Kiki Jones of Hillsborough High in Tampa, Fla. That's where Dwight Gooden went to school.

Boston, using the pick it got from San Diego as compensation for Bruce Hurst, took outfielder Greg Blosser of Sarasota (Fla.) High. Milwaukee, picking 17th, drafted Iowa right-hander Cal Edred. Pittsburgh took shortstop Willie Green of Jones County (Ga.) High and Toronto drafted shortstop Eddie Zosky of Fresno State.

Cincinnati, picking 20th, took Texas outfielder Scott Bryant, who had 18 homers and 103 RBIs entering the NCAA playoffs. Detroit chose right-hander Greg Gohr of Santa Clara and the Dodgers used their own pick for outfielder Tom Goodwin of Fresno State.

Boston then took first baseman Maurice Vaughn of Seton Hall and the New York Mets took catcher Alan Zinter of Arizona. Minnesota took shortstop Chuck Knoblauch of Texas A&M and Seattle completed the first round by selecting right-hander Scott Burrell of Hamden (Conn.) High. The Mariners got that pick from Oakland as compensation for Mike Moore.

The Yankees, because of free-agent signings, did not have a first-round pick for the fifth consecutive season and the 10th time in 11 years.

NBA Championship ...

jured early in the team's two-hour workout when he went up for a rebound and landed awkwardly. He said Scott was to be examined today and his status for the game would then be determined.

The first two games of the best-of-7 Finals are at the Pistons' home and no road team has ever won the first two games of a title series.

"They're coming in to win both games," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "I think they truly believe they can go undefeated."

"We didn't expect to sweep anyone. It just worked out that way," Abdul-Jabbar said. "Each step got harder and harder and now we're at the hardest."

The Pistons lost to Los Angeles in seven games in last year's Finals, their first since 1956. They had the NBA's best regular-season record this season and swept their first two series before beating Chicago 4-2 in the Eastern Conference Finals.

Last year, the Lakers won the title "because of their experience, because of their composure," Pistons guard Joe Dumars said. "That's what we have now."

They also have a strong defense that has not allowed more than 100 points in all 13 playoff games but now must contend with the NBA's fifth highest scoring team.

"There's a certain amount of pride" in that streak, Daly said, "but if we win 112-111 I'll be happy."

Detroit has starting forward Mark Aguirre, traded Feb. 15 by Dallas for Adrian Dantley, and a strong bench led by Vinnie Johnson, Dennis Rodman, John Salley and James Edwards.

The playoff emergence of Orlando Woolridge adds another weapon to the Los Angeles bench of guard Michael Cooper and Mychal Thompson, Abdul-Jabbar's backup.

In the playoffs, Abdul-Jabbar is averaging 10.6 points after averaging just 7.8 against Phoenix in the Western Conference Finals. Thompson has averaged 11.9 in all three playoff rounds and 9.0 against the Suns.

Abdul-Jabbar averaged a career-low 10.1 points in the regular season.

"I had some physical problems early that really complicated things," he said.

The Lakers also got off to an unusually slow start before winning the Pacific Division title. That is just one source of motivation as the Lakers try to become the first team to win three consecutive titles since the Boston Celtics capped an eight-year run in 1966.

"A lot of people were counting us out. That's the number one (motivation). Another is winning it for Kareem," Cooper said. "We want to do something that hasn't been done in a long time" by winning a third straight championship.

Despite some regular-season struggles, "It's always happened for us in the playoffs so I wasn't concerned when the playoffs started," Los Angeles' Magic Johnson said. "I knew we would rise to the occasion."

Both coaches say Abdul-Jabbar, with perhaps only four games left in a brilliant career that already has spanned 1,793 games, will do the same.

"Here's a man of dignity, a man who's a professional through and through," Daly said. "Nothing but a winner. He'll go out the same way."

"It's time to make his last statement to his fans," Riley said. "He's going to let them know he gave the best effort of his career over the last two weeks."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — At Churchill Downs, it was 2½ lengths in the mud and rain. At Pimlico, it was a nose on a sunny day and a fast track. So, when Shug McGaughey came home to Belmont Park, he did some more head scratching.

Easy Goer, the betting favorite both times, was second to Sunday Silence in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, so there must be a way to win. There had to be.

He talked for hours with his wife, Mary Jane, who may soon be able to take a more active role around the stables again since giving birth to their second son on Friday. And he talked with his old friend and neighbor at Belmont, trainer David Whiteley.

"Am I missing something here? That's what I asked him," McGaughey said. "But then, people who've been away from your horse — they don't know him. It's a lot easier to train somebody else's horse, probably."

Sunday Silence probably will go off a slight favorite over Easy Goer on Saturday for the 121st running of the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes, longest of the three Triple Crown races. McGaughey says he still has confidence in his horse, and he's resisting any big changes, even though his mail is running heavily in favor of replacing jockey Pat Day with someone more aggressive.

"I never gave any consideration to changing riders," McGaughey said. "I thought maybe we did move a little too soon in the Preakness, but in retrospect, Pat said he would have been carried real wide if he hadn't. He could have been a little more aggressive, maybe. When you get to that point, you have to try to force other people to make a mistake."

"Maybe there were some things I'd have done in the last quarter mile if I'd been riding, but I'm not going to say them on paper."

Sunday Silence will be trying to become the 12th Triple Crown winner and the first since Affirmed in 1978. No horse has ever won the Triple Crown in a Belmont field bigger than eight, and 10 are expected to enter on Thursday.

Sunday Silence's biggest advantage here probably is his speed. None of the horses in this field appears to possess more speed than Sunday Silence, and this race, despite its distance, is a frontrunner's race.

While the Belmont is one-quarter mile longer than the Derby and one-sixteenth mile longer than the Preakness, 10 of the last 25 Belmont winners have been no worse than second at any time during the race. The last two Triple Crown winners, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Affirmed a year later, led from wire-to-wire.

It's possible that Sunday Silence will try to do the same thing.

"We'll just have to see," Sunday Silence's trainer, Charlie Whittingham, said. "He's an easy horse to rate, but he's got probably the most speed in the race if we want to use it. You never know how things will turn out."

Besides Sunday Silence and Easy Goer, the probable field includes five Triple Crown veterans. They are Awe Inspiring, Hawkster, Triple Buck, Rock Point and Irish Actor. Also expected to enter are Imbibe, Fire Maker and La Voyageur, a French campaigner. Awe Inspiring, also trained by McGaughey, will run as a betting entry with Easy Goer.

All will carry 126 pounds.

Rose, Peters To Meet

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose will have a chance to confront one of his primary accusers on Saturday.

Ronald Peters, identified as the Cincinnati manager's bookmaker, is scheduled to be interviewed by Rose's lawyers, who are preparing a defense against gambling allegations.

Robert A. Pitcairn Jr., one of Rose's lawyers, confirmed Monday that Peters will be interviewed. He said he didn't know whether a representative of baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti will be present as well.

Bush Suspends Weapons Sales To China But Spurns Sanctions

By Marie Cocco
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — President George Bush temporarily suspended U.S. government and commercial weapons sales to China Monday and announced a series of other, measured steps to protest the Chinese government's bloody suppression of pro-democracy demonstrations.

The president condemned the attacks by Chinese forces against student-led demonstrators in Beijing's Tiananmen Square. And he publicly urged army factions believed to be sympathetic to the demonstrators' cause to return to the "restraint" he said they had shown before the bloodshed began.

But Bush, who was the U.S. envoy to China for a year during the mid-1970s, pointedly turned aside suggestions that he take more sweeping actions — such as economic sanctions or the recall of U.S. Ambassador James Lilley — in response to the Chinese government's brutal actions.

"I don't want to see a total break in this relationship, and I will not encourage a total break in the relationship," Bush told reporters in the White House briefing room.

"When you see these kids struggling for democracy and freedom, this would be a bad time for the United States to withdraw and pull back and leave them to the devices of a leadership that might decide to crack down further," he said.

Bush — who indicated he relied in part on his own experience in China and knowledge of its history — said the moment was ripe not for "an emotional response" but for "a reasoned, careful action" that takes into account both long-term U.S. interests and the current state of confusion and internal conflict within China and its government.

The president demonstrated the U.S. government's apparent lack of knowledge about details of events in China when he was asked about reports that pre-eminent leader Deng Xiaoping is ailing and perhaps, incapacitated. Bush said he had talked to Lilley about Deng's health Sunday night. But, he said, "We just can't confirm one way or another."

Bush also said the political situation in China is "too obscure ... too beclouded" to assess which leaders have prevailed.

The suspension of government military sales affects four Pentagon contracts worth a total of about $600 million, although several of the contracts have been partly completed. In addition, U.S.-based companies will be prohibited from selling military equipment to the Chinese.

The largest of the contracts is a $502 million Grumman Corp. program to upgrade the Chinese F-8 fighter. In 1988, according to the State Department, such sales by private contractors amounted to $85 million.

Bush did not order a broader ban on high-technology equipment that could be converted to military uses. But late in the day the Department of Commerce issued a statement that it would continue to "carefully review" high-technology exports "on a case-by-case basis."

Bush also met Monday for about 45 minutes with four Chinese students who attend universities in the Washington area. The students expressed support for the president's actions. "It will be a big blow to those responsible for the massacre, those butchers of Beijing," said Jia Hao of Shanghai, who is studying at George Washington University.

Congressional leaders from both parties — who have complained that Bush has been moving too slowly and timidly in response to the attacks — generally were supportive of his action. The leaders met with Bush Monday afternoon in a session dominated by the events in China, though its original purpose was to discuss the just-concluded NATO summit.

"Under the circumstances, I think the president's acted correctly ..." said House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who is to become Speaker when Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, steps down. "I think he's done the right thing."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., ranking minority member on the Foreign Relations Committee, who has sharply criticized the president for not acting sooner, said: "He's taking a step at a time. I think he's fine thus far. It depends on whether the atrocities stop."

Helms said that if the brutality continues, he would press to have the United States end all trade with and investment in China and take other steps, such as blocking China's applications for loans from international lending institutions.

Besides suspending military sales, Bush ordered:

—Suspension of visits between U.S. and Chinese military leaders. State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said that an invitation for Chinese Defense Minister Qin Jiwei was being withdrawn and that a scheduled June visit by China's naval commander was being canceled. Low-level military contacts also are being halted, State Department officials said.

—"Sympathetic review" of requests by Chinese students in the United States to extend their stay. A State Department official said that because of a "brain drain" of talented youth from China to the United States, the department generally urges Chinese students to return home. Bush's order, the official said, will likely mean that any of the 40,000 Chinese students here who fear for their safety in China will be allowed to stay.

—Humanitarian and medical assistance for the injured, to be delivered through the Red Cross.

Bush avoided taking the single step that could have the most dramatic impact on China, a halt in U.S. trade.

Kremlin Quiet On China's Woes

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

MOSCOW — The Kremlin, fresh from restoring relations with China after a 30-year split, kept silent Monday about the Chinese government's brutal use of force to stop students demonstrating for democracy.

But lawmakers in the new Soviet Parliament called the turn of events a tragedy and discussed whether such repression could occur in the Soviet Union if the program of social change falters.

Boris Yeltsin, the populist who represents Moscow, denounced the siege of China's Tiananmen Square as "a crime" and said that such a confrontation could not be ruled out in the Soviet Union, although on a smaller scale.

"Tbilisi showed it could happen," he said, referring to events in Soviet Georgia in early April when troops, using sharpened shovels and gas, dispersed a crowd of demonstrators. At least 20 people died.

Andrei Sakharov, the human-rights campaigner, said, "My sympathies are totally on the side of democratic change ..."

Monday's session of the Congress of People's Deputies was canceled as the country observed a day of mourning for victims of a freak accident in the Ural Mountains, where a gas line explosion incinerated two passing passenger trains.

But in the hallways, some of the newly elected lawmakers reflected on whether their government, with its recent multi-candidate elections and move toward creating an active Parliament, was changing fast enough under Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's program of "perestroika" to make a similar uprising and crackdown unthinkable.

Yuri Karyakin, a writer who Friday had daringly called for the body of Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin to be removed from its mausoleum and buried, noted that the main opposition to Gorbachev's programs "is formed by reactionary elements in the (Communist Party) apparatus and the army." He said that Soviet progressives needed to support Gorbachev to fend off such possibilities of military activity in the Soviet Union.

Jakovas Kanovicus of Lithuania said that because of Gorbachev's "wisdom and gift for tactics, nothing similar is going to happen here, I hope."

While Gorbachev and other Kremlin officials remained silent on events in China, the Soviet media seemed schizophrenic, as if teetering between "glasnost," Gorbachev's phrase for openness, and an official government line.

For two nights in a row, Vremya, the Soviet TV news show, has shown riveting film footage of students rushing around tanks, of tanks on fire, of people pedaling the wounded in carts, of tanks lining up in the streets. It has quoted Western estimates of deaths.

Sunday, the official news agency Tass carried an account describing the killing of a 7-year-old girl and the chaotic scenes in Beijing's streets. It quoted the Japanese news agency saying hundreds were dead.

But Monday, Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, buried a small Tass report deep inside the newspaper and Tass reverted to using official Chinese government accounts of events.

The Kremlin had no comment Monday, and Politburo member Aleksandr Yakovlev, who was talking to deputies in a hallway of the Congress, avoided any judgment.

While Gorbachev was in China for a summit last month, he commended the Chinese government for carrying out a "dialogue" with the student demonstrators. But the day after he left the country, China's leaders called out the military for their first failed attempt to scatter the demonstrators.

Yakovlev said Monday that the Soviets are "for dialogue," but he made it clear how reluctant the Soviets are to jeopardize the long-sought rapprochement with China.

Paper Says Li Peng Wounded By Officer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONG KONG — A young officer took four shots at Premier Li Peng in Beijing's Great Hall of the People, slightly wounding the Chinese leader in the thigh, and was immediately killed, a Hong Kong newspaper reported today.

The daily Ming Pao said the slain guard had fired from a distance in Sunday afternoon's attack at China's seat of government.

Ming Pao, quoting unidentified sources, said about 170 other guards at the Great Hall of the People were quickly disarmed.

The report could not be independently confirmed in Beijing.

The Chinese-language newspaper did not identify the slain officer but said his sister and a girlfriend and her brother were among the hundreds killed Sunday when troops broke up a peaceful protest on Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

The protesters, led by students, were demanding a freer China and an end to corruption.

Ming Pao, respected for its coverage of China, said the assassination attempt occurred shortly after Li returned to the Great Hall from an inspection tour of Tiananmen Square, which had been cleared by soldiers and tanks.

It said members of the would-be assassin's family were arrested.

The newspaper quoted one of Li's aides as saying the premier had appeared irritated and unstable recently, tossing cups and banging tables in anger. It said the aide has since disappeared.

Li, a hardliner who ordered martial law in Beijing on May 20 in a bid to crush the pro-democracy movement. Students and other protesters, enraged by the order, demanded Li's resignation.

 They say that, if you put enough monkeys at enough typewriters, sooner or later one of them will produce a literary masterpiece. Similarly, let Trump Coup Tommy play long enough, and a hand will come up suited to his peculiar talents—a bad player most of the time, he becomes a star when trumps break badly.
 The auction, for Tommy, was fairly routine. His bid of five spades asked about trump quality, and North felt that four to the queen was sufficient to accept the slam invitation.
 West led a heart, ruffed by Tommy. The king of spades was allowed to win, but West captured the jack with his ace as East showed out. That caught Tommy's attention, and when West forced his last trump with a heart return, Tommy knew that only a trump coup would salvage the contract.
 For that to succeed, TCT needed a 3-2 diamond break—the suit he intended running. And Tommy worked out that, since he would get four discards on diamonds on which he could let go two hearts and two clubs, he needed to cash only one club. After taking two high diamond tricks and a high club, Tommy proceeded to run his diamonds.
 If West ruffed at any point, declarer would overruff in dummy, draw the last trump and his own hand would be good. West's refusal to ruff only delayed the inevitable. Tommy reduced the hand to a position where West held 10 8 of trumps and the table had Q 9, with the lead in the closed hand. When Tommy led a club, dummy had to score the last two tricks no matter how West defended.

Polish Communists Pose Coalition With Solidarity

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — The Communist Party is suggesting that Solidarity join it in a governing coalition after the independent labor movement's apparent victory in nearly every contested race in national elections.

Such power-sharing is unprecedented in the Soviet bloc. Solidarity-backed candidates could even be offered Cabinet posts, and the union said it was willing to discuss such an arrangement.

Jubilant Solidarity campaigners celebrated with Russian champagne at their Warsaw headquarters Monday after a Communist Party spokesman acknowledged defeat in Sunday's vote — the country's most democratic balloting in more than four decades.

For the first time since the postwar Communist takeover of Eastern Europe an opposition group will control a freely chosen chamber of Parliament — the Senate — and have veto power over legislation.

Although final official results were not expected until midweek, voters rejected government-backed candidates nearly everywhere.

"The next few months will show if we are able to create a national alliance for progress and a better tomorrow... A firm alliance of forces is necessary that reflects the political diversification of society, not divides it only into 'ours' and 'yours,'" the Communist Party daily Trybuna Ludu said today.

In conceding defeat on state television Monday, party spokesman Jan Bisztyga reminded viewers that Poland's leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, had suggested a post-election "grand coalition."

"The first step of the opposition toward the co-responsibility is participation in maintaining order in the country," Bisztyga said in an English translation of his remarks provided by the state-run PAP news agency.

There have been no specific explanations of what Jaruzelski intended in his call for a coalition on Friday. It appeared that at least some government ministries might be offered to Solidarity.

But Bronislaw Geremek, a senior Solidarity adviser, told a news conference Monday, "Solidarity's participation in a grand coalition would require more talks." He said no proposal had been received.

Solidarity's unfolding victory in races for Parliament's two chambers — the Senate and more powerful assembly — was of shocking proportions for the authorities.

In the new 100-member Senate, where opposition candidates were allowed to enter the races for all of the seats, Solidarity candidates appeared to have clearly won all but two or three seats.

In races where no candidate received a majority, runoff elections will be held June 18, and Solidarity then could sweep the Senate.

In the 460-seat Sejm, the existing lower house, Solidarity candidates won or were ahead in the races for all of the 161 seats they were allowed to seek.

Thirty-five party and government leaders ran unopposed for the Sejm, but it appeared that many did not receive the majority of the vote needed to take the seats. Among the 35 candidates on the so-called "national list" were Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski and Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak.

Under Polish law, the government officials rejected are allowed to keep their posts. But it undoubtedly would be a humiliating blow to authorities, and leading figures such as Rakowski might consider stepping down.

Mourners Mob Khomeini's Funeral Procession

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TEHRAN, Iran — Millions of mourners today blocked the funeral procession of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Some reportedly grabbed his shrouded body and scores of people, including Khomeini's son, were crushed in the chaos.

The procession halted, frenzied mourners grabbed the corpse as it lay in an open coffin, tearing off the white shroud for mementos, and letting the body fall to the ground, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

The body was quickly whisked from the dusty north Tehran square onto a helicopter that took it to a cemetery south of Tehran for burial.

There was no immediate word on if or how many people were killed, injured or simply fainted because of the 91-degree heat. At least eight people were killed and hundreds hurt Monday during a similar huge show of mass grief.

The chaos occurred when the grieving multitudes stopped the funeral procession a half-mile from the Mosalla Mosque, where Khomeini's body had lay in state since Monday in an air-conditioned glass-encased bier.

Two helicopters had landed nearby, and officials were moving the body from a hearse to a helicopter when the crowd pushed toward them.

Security forces fired in the air to disperse the crowds, but the grieving multitudes remained, IRNA reported.

Earlier, crowds knocked down Khomeini's only son, Ahmad, 43, in the square outside the Mosalla Mosque.

Ahmad Khomeini's black turban fell off as he was being hoisted above the crowds and passed from hand to hand in an ambulance at the edge of the square. He appeared pale and drowsy, but conscious.

The hearse carrying the body was stranded in a sea of mourners clad in black, unable to move forward because of the crowds, IRNA said.

Khomeini died Saturday at age 86. He was to be buried at the Baheshteh Zahra cemetery, 22 miles south of Tehran, alongside victims of the Islamic revolution that catapulted him to power 10 years ago and thousands killed in the Iran-Iraq war.

Television had said his funeral was being postponed, but it later showed his body at the cemetery.

Shouts of "Allah Akbar!" God is Great, echoed across the city. The hearse had hardly covered a half mile of the journey two hours into the funeral procession.

Many of Tehran's 6 million people turned out to bid Khomeini farewell. Millions more converged on the city from other regions, the official media reported.

The procession began at 7 a.m. when Khomeini's devout militants, the Revolutionary Guards, carried his body down from the bier.

Khomeini's body lay on the ground in the open air as the white-bearded Ayatollah Mohammad-Reza Golpaygani prayed. Golpaygani, one of the four remaining senior ayatollahs in Iran, lifted his spectacles to wipe tears with a handkerchief.

After the 30-minute service, Khomeini's body was placed in a wooden coffin that was covered with a white cloth, then carried by Revolutionary Guards from hand to hand into a white van.

Crowds cried hysterically. Readings from the Koran, Islam's holy book, blared from the mosque's minaret as the masses cried: "Farewell beloved imam!" and "Oh Khomeini, why have you left us?"

They pounded their heads and chests with clenched fists in a traditional Shiite Moslem expression of grief.

In the chaos, women, clad in head-to-toe black chadors, were rubbing shoulders with men, defying an Islamic ban on physical contact between a woman and a man other than her husband.

Firefighters sprayed the mourners with water to cool them off.

About 2 million frenzied mourners had kept a nightlong candle-lit vigil around the bier.

Some mourners scratched their faces until the blood ran and threw ashes over their clothes.

Khomeini died of a heart attack 11 days after intestinal surgery without resolving the problem of who would succeed him. He left a 29-page "political testament," excerpts of which were read over Tehran radio on Monday.

The excerpts made no reference to how Iran should be governed after his death. But such proposals may have been in the sections that still have not been made public.

President Ali Khamenei, 49, was appointed caretaker leader Sunday. A presidential election and referendum on constitutional reforms, which are likely to increase the president's executive power, are scheduled for Aug. 18.

Khamenei's swift appointment was designed mainly to fill the vacuum amid political turmoil that has prevailed since Khomeini launched his resurgence of Islamic fundamentalism in February with a call for the death of British novelist Salman Rushdie.

In the absence of a single personality who can match Khomeini's religious and political authority, it seemed likely that Iran would be ruled by a collective leadership.

Khamenei has endorsed the presidential candidacy of Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, 55, a political ally and the only declared candidate.

Bush Calls For Hostages' Release

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — President Bush Monday called upon the new Iranian government to work for the release of American hostages held by Moslem extremists in Lebanon if it wishes to improve relations with the United States.

He also said that U.S. experts were still uncertain about political developments in Tehran after the death of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Iran's president, Ali Khamenei, was named Khomeini's successor as the nation's spiritual leader. "But in a society of that nature," Bush noted, "it's hard to predict" what will happen.

Asked at a news conference if he planned any other kind of overture to Tehran to improve relations, the president said:

"No, absolutely not. They know what they need to do. They have been a terrorist state, and as soon as we see some move away from oppression and extremism of that nature, we will review our relationship."

Bush noted that he outlined the conditions for improved relations in his inaugural address Jan. 20.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler emphasized those conditions.

"The Iranian government will have to decide whether it wants to take the steps which are required for an improvement in relations," she said. "I will restate them. It should use its considerable influence over the hostage-holders in Lebanon to bring about immediately the safe and unconditional release of all hostages. If Iran wants to be a responsible member of the international community, it should also stop its support of international terrorism and terrorists," Tutwiler said.

Sixteen Westerners, including nine Americans, are being held in Lebanon by Islamic fundamentalists who are widely believed to receive aid from Tehran.

Reflecting the continuing hostility between the United States and Iran, no message of condolence has been sent about Khomeini's death, Tutwiler indicated, and no U.S. representative will attend the funeral.

"I'm not sure we were invited," she said.

Travis Entertainer Of Year; Reba And Ricky Top Vocalists

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Ricky Van Shelton and Randy Travis were big winners, Reba McEntire was named top female vocalist for a fifth straight year and President Bush saluted Johnny Cash as a living legend at the 23rd annual Music City News Country Awards.

Shelton earned four honors, including favorite male vocalist, while Travis was named entertainer of the year, the top award, at Monday's ceremonies.

Travis, the top-selling singer in country music with No. 1 hits like "Deeper Than the Holler," had won nothing until the night's final award was announced.

"I was beginning to get worried," said the former short-order cook and dishwasher. "I try my best to represent country music in a good way."

Travis beat out McEntire, Shelton, George Strait, Hank Williams Jr. and the Statler Brothers.

Shelton won the four other categories for which he was nominated. In addition to male vocalist, he topped single of the year and favorite music video for "I'll Leave This World Loving You," and best album for "Loving Proof."

"It makes me feel real good inside because I love music so much," said Shelton, who worked as a pipe fitter for 10 years before leaving the mountains around Grit, Va., in 1984 to pursue his musical dreams. "It's been my life's dream. I never had a decent car. I never had a decent house. I gave up everything for this."

Cash was voted the Living Legend Award, and was praised in videotaped remarks by Bush, a country music fan, as a giant who has served his country through music.

"Your songs have helped reawaken patriotism in America," the president said. "In every sense of the word, you are a true living legend."

Cash, who spoke by satellite from Hawaii, said, "It's a very humbling experience to receive an award like this."

McEntire won her award just two days after marrying Narvel Blackstock, her manager, in Lake Tahoe, Nev. The marriage was announced Monday afternoon.

"This award means to me one more time that I'm accepted," she said backstage after accepting her plaque.

Patty Loveless, a cousin of country queen Loretta Lynn, was voted star of tomorrow over the late Keith Whitley and three others. In her acceptance remarks, she paid tribute to Whitley, who died of an alcohol overdose May 9.

"Keith Whitley lives on with his music as far as I'm concerned," she said. Sixteen awards were presented at the Grand Ole Opry House during a two-hour syndicated television special, with the Mandrell sisters as hosts. Some stations will broadcast a delayed version of the show later this week.

All winners were picked by subscribers to The Music City News, a monthly country music magazine published in Nashville.

The deadline for receiving the votes was nine days before Whitley died.

The Statler Brothers quartet were voted group of the year for the sixth straight time, raising their total number of Music City News awards through the years to a record 39.

Other winners were: Ray Stevens, comedian of the year; Ricky Skaggs, instrumentalist of the year; the Judds, vocal duo of the year; the Whites, gospel group of the year; The Nashville Network's "Nashville Now," No. 1 TV series; "A Country Music Celebration: 30th Anniversary of the Country Music Association," best TV special, and Dwight Yoakam and Buck Owens, vocal collaboration.

Producer Has New Comedy On CBS TV

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

HOLLYWOOD — When CBS previewed its fall pilots to advertisers recently, producer Hugh Wilson was called upon to make an impromptu speech about his new half-hour comedy, "The Famous Teddy Z."

"Don't worry," Wilson told the advertisers with a wry smile. "It has plenty of jokes and lots of white people."

Only those familiar with Wilson's track record as a producer would understand his cryptic and somewhat bitter comment.

"Teddy Z," which will debut this fall in the Monday night time slot sandwiched between the successful comedies "Murphy Brown" and "Designing Women," is a traditional sitcom that stars Jon Cryer ("Pretty in Pink") as a 21-year-old mail-room clerk who suddenly finds himself rocketed to the big time at a fictional Hollywood talent agency. It is a far cry from Wilson's last project: CBS' now-defunct "Frank's Place," a decidedly non-traditional half-hour that featured very few jokes and lots of black people.

"Frank's Place," launched in the fall of 1987, starred Tim Reid as a Boston college professor who inherited a New Orleans Creole restaurant. It was one of several of that season's so-called "dramedies" — one-camera, filmed shows that broke sitcom tradition by blending drama and comedy, as well as removing the studio audience and its laughs from the mix.

"I never liked that — dramedy," Wilson says now. "It sounded like we were all post-Impressionists or something."

The show won critical praise and an Emmy (for outstanding writing in a comedy) but never won a large TV audience; though CBS tried "Frank's Place" in numerous different time slots throughout the season, it consistently ranked among the five lowest-rated prime-time shows. Last October, the network finally, apologetically, axed it.

The cancellation came as a relief to Wilson, if not to star and co-executive producer Reid, whom Wilson says would have liked to continue.

"It was so hard to do; it took so long to shoot and to write," Wilson said. "If it had been successful, none of that effort would have made you tired. But to work that hard and have the show put in (disadvantageous) time slots, and then we were off the air on hiatus."

"Plus, it was angering, and somewhat embarrassing, to work that hard on a show and see it ranked 70th, or 71st. You almost say: 'Oh, what the hell. The hell with it.' I'm a little bitter — yeah."

PBS Series 'Infinite Voyage' Examines Natural Disasters

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The search for ways to predict some of nature's most unpredictable rampages is examined in a new documentary Wednesday in the PBS series "The Infinite Voyage."

The special, "Living With Disaster," looks at hurricanes, tornadoes, volcanoes, earthquakes and a recently discovered atmospheric phenomenon, the microburst, which has knocked airliners out of the sky.

In central California, Dr. Allen Lindh, a seismologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, is working on a program to predict the next major earthquake.

In Denver, Dr. Wayne Sand is helping to develop computer software for a radar that will warn air traffic controllers and pilots of a microburst.

"We can't control these natural forces," said producer Gail Willumsen, "but through scientific research we are learning how to better predict disasters and live through them."

"Living With Disaster" is tied in with the International Decade for Natural Disaster Reduction, which begins in 1990. The United Nations proclaimed the observance to recognize scientific and technological advances that help save lives and lessen property damage.

The show, the eighth in "The Infinite Voyage" series, was produced by WQED-TV, Pittsburgh. It will be shown next week on some commercial stations and on cable.

The area around Parkfield, Calif., along the San Andreas fault, is one of the most closely monitored earthquake areas in the world. Hundreds of sensors measure earth movement, and lasers calculate any shift in the fault. The seismologists expect an earthquake in the Parkfield area measuring 6.0 on the Richter scale sometime in the next year or two. The last five earthquakes there have been in that range.

"All the data is fed into computers that give us precise information on small earthquakes in the area," said Lindh. "We know that Parkfield earthquakes in 1934 and 1966 were preceded by foreshock sequences. We're monitoring the area looking for foreshocks. Our first line of defense is to identify these foreshocks as they occur. That will give us an indication that the main event is about to occur."

Lindh said as yet they could not predict the next great earthquake. "We're at the stage of learning to crawl before we walk," he said. "Our focus now is on Parkfield. After that, we can evaluate whether gearing up for a major earthquake in Southern California is justified."

The microburst, also known as wind shear or divergent wind flow, has been recognized as a hazard to aviation for only about 10 years, said Sand. The flows develop beneath thunderstorms. They are known to have caused airliner crashes in New Orleans and Dallas and are a possible cause of several crashes since the late 1960s.

"The microbursts form rapidly, but the computer software we've developed to detect these events looks for precursors that give us a warning," said Sand, deputy manager for the research applications program at the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Denver's Stapleton Airport. "You can anticipate them to some degree."

Sand said the downward flow of air beneath a thunderstorm hits the earth and sprays out in all directions, like a garden hose spraying water on a sidewalk. An airplane flying through this would hit sudden headwinds, followed by a downdraft, followed by tailwinds.

"An event in Denver last summer showed a difference of 80 knots in the wind speed as it changed direction 180 degrees," Sand said.

The documentary also looks at sea erosion at Ocean City, Md., where Dr. Stephen Leatherman, a coastal geologist with the University of Maryland, says condominium buildings in the resort could be under water in less than 11 years.

The death and destruction from the earthquake in Soviet Armenia were due largely to poor building design and construction, according to Dr. Peter Yanev, who was a member of the National Academy of Sciences delegation that reached Armenia within days of the great quake. He warns that similar construction is found in such earthquake-prone cities in this country as Boston and Salt Lake City.

Rolling Stones Bass Man Weds

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — The barriers, bouncers and security men were worthy of a gathering of the Rolling Stones. And so it was after bass man Bill Wyman took his bride to the altar.

Wyman, 52, and Mandy Smith, 19, had a formal wedding at St. John's Church Park on Monday, four days after they were legally married in a registrar's office.

None of the other Stones was in church, but Mick Jagger, Keith Richards, Charlie Watts and Ron Wood showed up later for the reception, along with guitarist Eric Clapton, Boy George, film director Michael Winner, comedian Spike Milligan and pop star Kim Wilde.
