Elmhurst Driver Goes Beyond Duty

By Cherie Evans
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Helping to recruit bus drivers, getting her own substitute driver and demonstrating her "children first" attitude are characteristics of Deborah Knight, Pitt County Schools' 1989 Bus Driver of the Year.

Ms. Knight received the award during a luncheon Monday to honor the bus drivers of the Pitt school system.

Elmhurst Elementary School nominated Ms. Knight for the award, noting that "she had gone above and beyond the call of duty in helping to get the job done."

"Hardly a week has gone by that she hasn't completed double runs or assisted in some manner beyond her regular route," the nomination form said.

In addition, Ms. Knight has an excellent record with being on the job, according to the nomination data, and her bus has been recognized for three six-week grading periods as the "Best Behaving Bus."

"Bus drivers like Deborah Knight have been essential in getting us through the very difficult situation of locating and retaining adult bus drivers," the nomination form said.

"It has meant so much to our school's transportation system to have her as a driver," it said.

George Williams, Pitt County Board of Education chairman, presented a plaque to Ms. Knight, recognizing her contribution to the education of boys and girls in the county.

"I certainly hope you will consider being back with us next year," Williams said.

While receiving the award, Ms. Knight said, "I try to do my job the best I can."

She said she teaches bus safety rules to the students, and they respect her authority on the bus.

Beth Ward, principal of G.R. Whitfield School, commended the bus

Gorby, Kohl Call For Nuke Cuts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BONN, West Germany — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Chancellor Helmut Kohl signed a broad declaration today that calls for a 50 percent reduction in nuclear arsenals and a worldwide ban on chemical weapons.

The document on common principles of both nations was signed on the second day of the Soviet leader's first state visit to West Germany.

The pact signed by Kohl and Gorbachev said their countries have a common European heritage, and that European nations should exist in "peaceful competition with one another" and reduce their military might.

It also said cooperation by West Germany and the Soviet Union "is not directed against anyone" and that a special place in the "common European home" is reserved for the United States and Canada.

The signing ceremony was carried live on West German television.

The two nations appealed for a 50 percent reduction in the strategic nuclear arsenal of the superpowers and a reduction in conventional armies and weapons "in all of Europe."

The document called for a worldwide ban on chemical weapons, a treaty banning nuclear tests and the preservation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

That accord, signed by both superpowers, is seen by the Soviets and West Germans as a document banning the development of "Star Wars" space defenses advocated by President Bush's predecessor, Ronald Reagan.

The document signed today also stressed the importance of respect for human rights, cultural contacts and youth exchanges for promoting lasting peace.

The Soviets and West Germans also signed 11 other agreements, including pacts to establish a "hot line" between Bonn and the Kremlin, and to increase educational and youth exchanges.

Earlier, Gorbachev received a rapturous reception that outstripped the welcome given two weeks ago to Bush, who scores far below the Soviet leader in West German opinion polls.

Program Approved For Youth

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The town of Ayden is applying for a $25,000 state grant to set up a research program to identify high-risk students at a young age and steer them away from drugs and crime.

Ayden Police Chief Tim Phillips brought the proposal before the town board on Monday, and the group unanimously approved a motion to allow Phillips to apply for the grant. The money would come from discretionary funds of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

The objectives of the program are to ensure that juveniles receive the necessary services and to help them set goals and build self-esteem, he said.

"A child with (high) self-esteem does not get involved with juvenile crime or drugs," Phillips said.

Once the research program is in operation, long-range plans call for two new uniformed officers to work in Ayden Elementary and Ayden Middle schools to reinforce the message to stay away from drugs. "These kids listen to the officers," Phillips said.

Plans also call for the creation of a teen center, where students could go after school to study or to play video games with tokens they earned in school with good behavior. No money could be spent in the center, he said.

Phillips proposed using part the

China Broadcasts 'Wanted' List Citing Student Leaders

BEIJING — State-run television and radio today broadcast a wanted list of 21 top student leaders of the pro-democracy movement who have fled underground, and it urged the nation's citizens to turn them in to police.

By issuing the list, authorities admitted that the activists had escaped the security dragnet set after Communist authorities turned soldiers on unarmed civilian protesters in Beijing to crush the movement for a freer China.

Also today, the government put border guards on alert for prominent dissident Fang Lizhi and his wife, both of whom have taken refuge in the U.S. Embassy to avoid arrest. Provincial, rail, and air authorities also were told to block the fugitive students from leaving the country.

In Shanghai, police detained a television crew from the ABC television network as they filmed a family watching China's evening television news, ABC correspondent Mark Litke said today.

The three-member crew and its government-assigned interpreter were held for about 2½ hours Monday night, Litke said. He said the Chinese family was not arrested and no videotape was confiscated.

The 21 students wanted by the government were pictured on nationwide television and their names were read on Beijing Radio.

At the top of the list were Wang Dan of Beijing University, and Wu'er Kaixi and Chai Ling of Beijing Normal University, the major figures in the student-led movement.

"Wu'er Kaixi is one of the big heads of the organization. He spoke all over to fan the flames of the movement," the television broadcast said.

It showed video taken May 29 from a hidden camera of Wu'er Kaixi eating at a "certain high-class hotel" with his girlfriend. It also showed him speaking through a megaphone at pro-democracy rallies.

"From this we can clearly see the ugly face of the student union leaders," the announcer said. The broadcasts included details such as height, skin complexion and accent of the wanted students.

In the week since the military assault that crushed the pro-democracy movement, the government says it has arrested more than 1,000 people.

Worthington Draws 14 Years For Fire

By John Bare
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A Greenville man was sentenced to 14 years in prison Monday for his part in torching the Liberty Tobacco Warehouse in Wilson in the fall of 1986.

U.S. District Court Judge Terrence W. Boyle handed down the sentence against J.T. "Tommy" Worthington Jr. at a hearing in federal court in New Bern.

Worthington, who managed the warehouse, was sentenced to a total of 124 years in prison, but many of the years are to run concurrently. He will probably be eligible for parole in seven to 10 years, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Kieran J. Shanahan, who prosecuted Worthington in March.

A federal jury convicted Worthington on 56 counts of arson, fraud and check kiting. Boyle could have sentenced him to a maximum of 275 years in prison and nearly $10 million in fines.

Insurance companies paid out over $2 million for losses sustained in the fire, but Boyle did not order Worthington to repay the money. Boyle ruled he was indigent.

Boyle did levy a special assessment of $2,850 against Worthington, Shanahan said.

Federal prosecutors claimed Worthington arranged the fire to land insurance money because he was deeply in debt. He was accused of setting up the arson through a friend, the late Harvey Bowen of Ayden.

Bowen allegedly paid Ronnie Lee Stocks of Pitt County about $8,000 to burn the warehouse. Stocks testified in March that he later paid another man $2,000 to start the blaze.

Worthington's father, J.T. Worthington, was also charged in the fire. The jury acquitted him of arson charges but convicted him on one count of making a false statement on an application for a tobacco marketing card. He was fined $30,000 last month and placed on probation.

The Greenville City Council asked City Manager Gregory Knowles to try on a different hat during Tuesday night's workshop — that of "magician" and juggler.

The council asked Knowles to work an additional $114,490 into the city budget without unbalancing the financial package or requiring any tax increases.

Council member Nancy Jenkins told Knowles to "work magic" to achieve a balanced budget with the additional costs.

The governing board also approved funding for a $200 a month pay raise for council members and an additional seven positions in the fire and police departments.

Council members, who now earn $300 a month, will take home an additional $200 starting in December. The mayor's salary will increase by $250 to $750 a month, while the mayor pro tem will see an increase from $325 to $525.

Mayor Ed Carter said the increase would more adequately cover the expenses of the job. He estimated spending nearly $5,000 of his own money on job-related expenses last year.

Knowles said the additional budget expenses, which included near-total funding of monies requested by non-departmental agencies, were possible by shuffling money from the capital reserve fund and salary lapses.

Under the plan approved at the workshop, the council authorized allocating $87,000 from the capital reserve fund to pay for three upcoming projects: the estimated $52,000 electrical repairs to City Hall, the $20,000 cost of recreation landbanking and $15,000 for a fire station location study.

Excess salary estimates from retirements, leave time and terminations in the police and fire departments added an additional $27,490 to the budget.

The money funded the full $64,000 request from Evergreen, a downtown revitalization group, and an additional seven half-time positions in the fire and rescue and police departments.

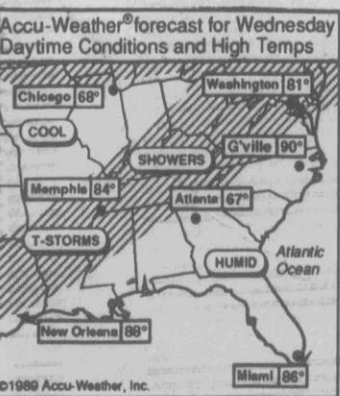

The council also approved nearly all requested funds for 12 non-departmental agencies.

Approved were requests for: $8,000, Greenville Museum of Art; $600, North Carolina National Guard; $2,000, Mid Atlantic Farm Show; $2,500, Pitt-Greenville Arts Council; $1,800, Greenville Foundation; $50,000, Economic Development; $2,500, Pitt County Council on Substance Abuse, and $10,000, Martin County Community Action.

The council trimmed requests from two agencies, agreeing to fund the chamber of commerce with $17,500, the Jaycees Fourth of July event with $1,500.

With the additions approved Monday night, the city budget now totals $25,026,837, not including inter-government transfers of funds or the budget for Greenville Utilities. Knowles estimated the total budget for next year at $140 million.

Martin Holds Snow Hill Meeting

SNOW HILL — Gov. Jim Martin held his 32nd town meeting Monday night — this one in Snow Hill.

Martin, welcomed by Frank Walston, chairman of the Greene County Board of Commissioners, and Mayor Melvin Oliver, answered questions of local citizens for nearly two hours, said John Baldwin, his special projects coordinator.

Baldwin said Oliver and Walston both addressed the need for more quality industry for Greene County, while resident Kathy Parker asked about merit pay raises for teachers and Red Tingen inquired about local telephone service.

Earl Watson, Greene County schools superintendent, commended Martin on the teachers' career ladder and said the county's pilot program is working well.

Annette West talked with the Governor about mental health needs in Lenoir County; George Summerlin discussed legal needs, and John Harper talked about the Department of Transportation's Adopt-A-Highway Program and prisoners' work along state roads.

Martin also fielded questions about a state lottery and about his proposal for increased sales tax for support of public education.

D. Johnson Willis, Jones County commissioner, asked Martin visit his county and hold a similar meeting. Martin was accompanied by Snow Hill by State Supreme Court Chief Justice Jim Exum, a Snow Hill native.

Baldwin estimated that 170 people attended the meeting.

Farm Scene

ASSOCIATE PITT EXTENSION AGENT

Summer is the time of year when we're all out more enjoying the flora of Mother Nature. There are some flora out there, though, that you may want to avoid; namely poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac.

The three poisonous plants contain an oily chemical called hydro-urushiol. This chemical causes mild to severe rashes and swelling depending on how susceptible you are to it.

Coming in contact with the chemical, which is found in roots, stems, bark, leaves, flowers, and fruits, is the most direct way to develop the irritating rash. You can develop symptoms from the smoke of burning plants, touching animals that have the chemical on their skin or fur, or by contacting clothing, tools, sports or camping equipment contaminated with hydro-urushiol.

The best way to avoid the painful rash and swelling is to recognize the plants and avoid them. Three little jingles that are easy to remember can keep you out of the poison ivy.

Leaflets three, let it be; / Leaflets five, let it thrive!
Leaflets of three, quickly flee; / Berries white, poisonous sight!
Fruits yellow, poison a fellow; / Fruits red, go ahead!

Of the three plants mentioned, poison ivy is the most commonly found. It is usually a woody vine growing up the trunks of trees. The stem is covered with hair-like aerial roots. Greenish-yellow flowers appear in the late spring and early summer. Yellowish-white, rounded, waxy fruits about 1/4-inch across are borne in drooping clusters during late summer and fall. And, yes, poison ivy does have three leaflets per leaf. Virginia creeper, often confused with poison ivy, has five leaflets in each leaf and will not cause the rash and swelling.

Poison oak is a low woody shrub that never climbs and has deeply toothed or lobed leaf margins; resembling an oak leaf. Flowers and fruit look much like poison ivy, but the fruits are hairy. Found on dry, sandy soils, poison oak also has the characteristic three leaflets.

Poison sumac is a woody shrub to small tree with seven to thirteen leaflets along a central, reddish stem. Fruits look similar to poison ivy. Poison sumac only grows in wet areas.

If you do contact one of these poisonous plants, washing with a strong soap (laundry detergent) within five minutes will help. Otherwise, once you get the rash, materials to reduce the itching and inflammation are all that's recommended. Symptoms will disappear naturally after what seems to be an eternity. In severe cases consult with your doctor. Short-term resistance is available by immunization.

Driver Saluted

drivers on their efforts on behalf of all Pitt principals.

"When you consider how many hours these children spend on the bus ... you do a remarkable job," she said.

Lenoid Jenkins, a bus driver for North Pitt School, said he realizes his job is important, and he doesn't take the responsibility associated with the job for granted.

"I try to be very cautious because I have a lot of other people's children in my hands," said the 19-year-old from Bethel.

Having driven a bus for two years, "I love working with the kids," Jenkins said. "I like to watch them grow up."

Air conditioning on the bus and higher wages could make his job a little more enjoyable, Jenkins said.

But, Betty Kite, a driver for Chicod School, said other changes should be made to give drivers the respect they deserve.

"We're really not appreciated," she said. "Just look at your pay check. The pay ain't nothing to contend with, and we don't get any benefits."

Beginning Pitt County bus drivers are paid $5.28 per hour through their third year. The maximum wage a bus driver would make is about $7.82 after about 30 years of experience. They do not receive any employee benefits.

Another problem is that "so many parents do not cooperate with you," Ms. Kite said. "I have 56 children on my bus. You can't operate it unless you've got them seated."

Parents are too eager to complain when their children are not allowed to ride the bus because of behavioral problems, she said.

But even with all the hassles involved with driving the bus, Ms. Kite said she will drive again next year.

"I enjoy working with the small kids," she said.

MASONIC NOTICE

Greenville Lodge No. 284 AM&FM will hold an emergent communication Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the lodge to work in the First Degree.

Bethel Seeks Grant

BETHEL — Town commissioners recently voted to submit a two-part application for Community Development Block Grant economic funds totaling $585,323.

The major part of the proposed application will be for $425,000 for funds to extend a sewer line 6,000 feet south of Bethel along N.C. 11. to serve the Winchester Boat Co., which has revealed plans to create about 100 new jobs.

The second part of the grant, in the amount of $160,323, is being made at the request of Pitt County commissioners that Bethel apply for water lines along with the proposed sewer lines.

A public hearing to discuss the proposed application for the grant funds was held without opposition. The board voted to have the Mid-East Commission submit the application for the grant.

In another action at the June meeting, town members voted to adopt a resolution of intent to allow North Pitt High School to connect to Bethel's sewer system. School officials said North Pitt is having difficulty meeting state and federal sanitary regulations.

The resolution stipulates that the matter be contingent on an agreement for technological costs and reimbursement details to be reached both by Bethel and the Pitt County school system.

The board awarded J.W. Rook & Son Insurance Co. an insurance coverage contract based on the company's low bid of $14,261. The bid will increase the limits of coverage from $1 million to $2 million for insuring the town's property, to cover general liability and automobile insurance coverage.

Nine Thefts Reported

Investigators said nine thefts were reported to Greenville police on Monday.

Officer S.C. Locke said an air compressor valued at $2,300 was taken from RB's Barbecue at 1107 W. Fifth St. in a break-in reported at 7:54 a.m., while Officer W.E. Davis said a bicycle was taken from 920 College View Apartments in an incident reported at 9:55 a.m.

Officer A.T. Parrish said a license plate was taken from a car parked at 308 Elizabeth St. in an incident reported at 11:01 a.m., while Officer K.M. Smeltzer said a license was taken from a vehicle parked at 102 S. Bubba Blvd. in an incident reported at 12:57 p.m.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said a 1974 model Jeep station wagon was taken from 3257 Landmark St. in an incident reported at 1:20 p.m., while a purse containing $20 in cash was taken from an office at the Foodland store at the Buyers Market at West End Circle in an incident reported at 3:33 p.m.

Officer R.D. Andrews said an electric welder valued at $750 was taken from Evans Street Mall and Public Storage at 1528 S. Evans St. in a break-in reported at 4:19 p.m.

Officer Alexander Batts said a bedspread valued at $45 was taken from the Best Value Motor Lodge on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 5:17 p.m., while Officer A.J. Dennison said a bicycle was taken from 107 Camellia Lane in an incident reported at 7:09 p.m.

New Jersey Man Charged

Greenville police said this morning that warrants charging William Rannels, 25, of Bridgeton, N.J., with murder and armed robbery have been issued in connection with the killing of Richard Ham Gaddy.

Gaddy's body was found in a truck parked at the intersection of Cedarhurst Road and Baywood Lane about 11 a.m. Saturday. He had been shot in the head at close range with a .22 caliber weapon, police said.

Linda Lopez, 29, of Bridgeton, N.J., was arrested by Greenville police on murder and armed robbery charges on Sunday in connection with the case.

Officials said this morning that Rannels, who was recently released from prison in New Jersey, is also wanted on several charges, including safe cracking and murder, in New Jersey.

Police said that Rannels, who has been known to use the names of Bill Rannels, Bill Reynolds and Bill Sharpe, may be operating a midsize two-door blue Ford with Virginia registration plates. He is armed and should be considered extremely dangerous, officials said this morning.

Wells Scholarship Winners Announced

Scottie Garris and Emily Groet, both of Ayden-Grifton High School, and Rhonda Manning of D.H. Conley High School are recipients of Ausmus G. Wells Memorial Fund scholarships.

The students were chosen by an awards committee comprised of the senior minister of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, the superintendent of the Pitt County schools and Wachovia Bank and Trust.

The scholarship was created in 1984 by the will of Ausmus G. Wells to provide scholarships for worthy graduates of the Pitt County schools to attend East Carolina University.

The Wells scholarship is for $750 per year and is renewable each year.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Influence

Bill Addresses Pertinent Point

Rep. Walter Jones Jr., D-Pitt, has hit on a sensitive, pertinent point in sponsoring a bill in the State Legislature that prohibits lobbyists from making political fund raising contributions during the years of the General Assembly long sessions.

The bill concerns tickets to fund raisers — tickets which are more than simply purchasing a meal. These tickets are $100 or more per person with the money, after the cost of the meal is deducted, becoming a part of a political campaign chest.

If the amount is large enough it is clear that the politician has some debt to the lobbyist. The debt could be paid when a bill affecting whatever cause the lobbyist represents comes before the State Legislature.

It is simply another question of ethics that has to be resolved in the legislative halls.

This particular question troubled House Speaker Joe Maveretic, D-Edgecombe, who said he has asked House Majority leader, Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, to refrain from asking lobbyists to purchase tickets to the Democratic Legislative Campaign Committee's upcoming event which will cost $100 per person. The N.C. Republican Legislative Forum has a $150 per person event scheduled.

If lobbyists make substantial contributions it could reflect in Legislative action on bills which are under consideration in the current session. Here is a question of improper influence, and one which Rep. Jones' bill correctly addresses.

The legislation wasn't designed to affect these immediate events but rather to set the course for the future. But the bill right now doesn't seem to be going anywhere. It was returned to the House Judiciary Committee where it remains.

Nevertheless, Rep. Jones' bill spotlights an important question that begs careful and conscientious consideration by all legislators.

Lobbyist are a constant presence in the halls of the N.C. General Assembly and they can provide important, if one-sided, information on given issues. When the money flows, however, an obligation is made. Members of the Legislature need to exercise care in avoiding even the appearance of having their votes influenced by a political contribution.

Rep. Jones' bill may never escape from committee but it certainly sheds some light on an area of political ethics which needs attention.

'If lobbyists make substantial contributions it could reflect in Legislative action on bills which are under consideration in the current session.'

From Victims To Valued Youth

WASHINGTON — Think of teenage volunteers, and you're likely to picture bright-eyed middle-class kids spending their spare hours in nursing homes, soup kitchens or inner-city tutorial programs.

If poor minority youngsters are a part of that picture, they are likely there as recipients of the volunteer services: non-readers, pregnant girls, trouble-prone boys, potential dropouts.

A new report from the Children's Defense Fund says it is time to change the picture. "At-risk" youngsters may need some of the services volunteers have to offer, but they also need the opportunity to serve.

The CDF report, "Service Opportunities for Youths," lauds the resurgence of youth service after nearly two decades of self-absorption and — presumably its main purpose — catalogues a number of service programs, private and public, federal and local.

But what I find intriguing is the emphasis on service opportunities for disadvantaged youths.

"Essentially, service is one way to connect young people to the well-being of their communities," says the report's author, David Hefferman. "An empowering, character-building experience, service also can help prepare youths for adult responsibilities, including productive roles in the job market and full participation as citizens to lead the nation into the next century...."

"Typically, disadvantaged youths are thought of as recipients of service, not givers. But such efforts can play an instrumental role in reducing the chance of dropping out of school or other poor outcomes among participants. Given the proper guidance, direction and supervision, young people respond well to the responsibility of service and sense the value of their efforts. This, in turn, increases youths' self-esteem and the likelihood of their becoming productive adults."

Like so many important insights, it's obvious once it's pointed out. Since many volunteer-service programs include skills training, exposure to the requirements of the work place, and opportunities for resume-building, their value to disadvantaged youths is clear.

But it goes far beyond that. Inner-city youngsters have been led (by many who profess to care about them) to think of themselves primarily as victims: of poverty, of bad schools, of isolation, of racism. And since they see no end to these victimizing conditions, many of them see only a dismal future for themselves.

It is this constricted view of the future, I am convinced, that makes these children specially vulnerable to school failure, adolescent parenting, crime and drugs. What's the point of postponing pleasure if the sacrifice seems unlikely to pay off? If you're headed nowhere, you might as well enjoy the trip.

But service — doing something for someone else — can transform these children from pitiful victims to people with a sense of their own self-worth.

Sometimes this transformation is deliberate. In San Antonio's Valued Youth Partnership Program, for instance, at-risk high-school students young people learn to overcome their fears of working with the elderly, frequently form close relationships with the residents and, "in the process, rediscover self-worth while making a valuable contribution to the community."

The report, a publication of CDF's Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention Clearinghouse (120 C Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20001) cautions against two potentially troublesome notions: that volunteer activity should replace governmental programs and job-creation efforts and that youth service should be a re-

'Typically, disadvantaged youths are thought of as recipients of service, not givers. But such efforts can play an instrumental role in reducing the chance of dropping out of school or other poor outcomes among participants.'

are identified as "valued youths" and trained to tutor younger children. (The training includes communications skills, child-development theory and, through field trips, exposure to economic opportunities.)

Nor is it necessary that the volunteers be academically gifted. Magic Me, a Baltimore-based program that links children with nursing-home residents, specifically focuses on youngsters who are not doing well in school.

According to the CDF report, the requirement for student aid. But it is unequivocal in its support of the service ideal.

"Today, service goes beyond noblesse oblige — the responsibility of the fortunate to help those less well off," the report notes.

And well it should. People need to recapture control of their communities, and young people need to take control of their lives. Volunteer youth service, properly structured, can serve both ends.

Pushing The Law To Catch Up With Love

SAN FRANCISCO — Harry Britt, the ruddy and ebullient president of the Board of Supervisors, rushes into his book-lined cubbyhole of an office in City Hall and immediately defines the subject at hand. "We're talking about love here!"

What we are actually talking about when we're talking about love(!) is the Domestic Partners Bill. The ordinance Britt wrote has just been signed. It sets up a new non-married, non-single category of relations called "domestic partners."

Any couples who want to enter into the earthly state of partnership will now be allowed an official ceremony called registration. They will sign a Declaration of Domestic Partnership. Once duly registered by the county clerk or notary public, those partners who are also city employees will be eligible for some of the same benefits as married employees.

Britt, a Methodist minister in his former life, waxes romantically over the prospects of domestic partnership. "The goal is to free human beings to develop their needs for affection and sharing." But in a more sober moment, he says: "We are trying to create a model for a pluralistic culture."

In San Francisco, the "pluralistic culture" includes homosexuals and heterosexuals, and so the so-called partners' law has been hailed and reviled as an official recognition of gay couples. Gay couples, who can't legally marry anywhere outside of Denmark, are likely to be the first candidates for partnership.

But the potential pool is more extensive. In the words of the new ordinance, it includes any "two who have chosen to share one another's lives in an intimate and committed relationship of mutual caring, who live together." Indeed, since neighboring Berkeley began allowing city workers to sign up their partners for health benefits, straight couples who take advantage of this have far outnumbered gays.

Ellen Goodman

What is going on here, besides love(!), is a series of experiments in which society is being asked or pushed to respond to a much wider range of human relationships. It's happening in pockets of lifestyle-liberal communities like San Francisco, Los Angeles, Berkeley and it's happening in the courts.

Until fairly recently, Americans were either married or single. Straight couples who chose to cohabit but remain unmarried were, after time, considered married by government fiat. We called that common-law marriage.

One of the hidden effects of the so-called palimony case between Lee and Michelle Marvin ten years ago was that society stepped

How does or should society adjust to these conflict interests for structure and freedom that go to the heart of love(!) and public policymaking? Should we make new legal rules for the non-married, non-single? Americans live in a variety of relationships still so unacknowledged, so new, that we struggle to name them let alone structure them. Significant others? Roommates? Lovers? Now it's Domestic Partners. In small and uncertain experiments, the law is being pushed like a reluctant and dubious parent to catch up with love. Ah, love(!).'

back from the view that a long-term cohabitation was the legal equivalent of marriage. Michelle didn't get palimony because cohabiting isn't the same as marrying.

Waste Reduction: Time To Deal With The Spoils Of Affluence

Paul
O'Connor

RALEIGH — American is running out of room for its garbage. barges from the northeast ply the coastal waters looking for someplace to leave their cargo, and counties throughout North Carolina face the prospect of purchasing vast new tracts for landfills.

The General Assembly is looking at a major new piece of legislation that could radically alter the way garbage is handled in North Carolina. House Bill 1225, introduced by Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, takes a comprehensive approach to the question of solid waste. The bill would change, either directly or indirectly, the way most of us — including industry — dispose of products after we have used them.

The bill directs the state to pursue three goals: Reduce the total volume of solid waste that must be placed in landfills to 30 percent of the current level by 1995; implement solid waste collection systems in every county by 1995; and, thirdly, initiate programs to expand markets for recycled goods.

Much of the 74-page bill deals with new authority for the Department of Human Resources to run programs of solid waste management and recycling, to establish new qualifications for those who manage landfills and to demand that government agencies use recycled products, like paper.

But the bill also effects average North Carolinians in their work and in their daily lives.

The bill, for example, repeals the state's current litter laws and implements tough new penalties based on the amount of litter one dumps. The most extreme cases would result in forfeiture of any vehicle used in the illegal dumping of trash.

Of is becomes law, this bill would have those convicted of littering from a motor vehicle assessed three driver's license points by the Division of Motor Vehicles. To put that in perspective, reckless driving warrants four points and running a stop sign three.

The Hackney bill would also establish a mandatory beverage container deposit in the state in 1996.

Consumers would be required to deposit a nickel, for example, for every 12-ounce soft drink container which they purchased.

The bill would have the greatest impact on industry. For example, the newspaper industry would be hit with a new waste disposal fee of 10 cents per ton on newsprint consumed. But, to encourage the use of recycled newsprint, the publisher would be able to take a 10-cent credit against that fee for every ton of recycled newsprint he used. It is hoped that such a move would create greater demand for, and thus encourage the collection of, used newsprint.

The food processing and restaurant industries would be hit with new restrictions on the disposal of cooking fats, animal by-products and animal fats in landfills. Service stations would see new regulation for the disposal of used motor oil.

the breadth of the bill was best demonstrated by the presence at the initial committee meeting, of lobbyists from dozens of different industries. As one lobbyist noted after the meeting, Hackney's proposal tells every element of society that it is time to begin dealing with the garbage we create.

Pardon, GOP, But Your Split Personality Is Showing

Walter
Mears

WASHINGTON — The Republicans' split political personality is showing.

It may be wearing a bit thin, but it's there. President Bush remains the innocent bystander, cast as the man on the high road, chiding his own low-road lieutenants for their excesses.

But there was an echo of Bush's own 1988 presidential campaign in a disowned GOP attack on Tom Foley, the new speaker of the House.

That echo was in the premise, not the particulars, of a Republican National Committee memo attacking Foley. The memo was headed: "Tom Foley: Out of the Liberal Closet."

Liberal, the "L word," was fashioned into a political curse by the Bush campaign. It was used to make the case that Gov. Michael Dukakis was not a moderate Democratic problem-solver but a knee-jerk liberal.

That was the theme of the attack on Foley, but it added innuendo, comparing the new speaker's record with that of an openly homosexual congressman, saying Foley should "come out of the liberal closet."

The author was a Republican publicist who worked for the 1988 Bush campaign as a deputy press secretary. The memo cost him his job.

Lee Atwater, then campaign manager, now chairman of the Republican committee, shaped the attack strategy of the Bush campaign. While the White House says the season for that is gone, negative campaigning apparently is easier to turn on than turn off.

Atwater said he did not know about the memo and would not have issued it if he had.

But a day earlier, before Bush and other Republican leaders denounced the attack on Foley, Atwater had called the memo factually correct and no big deal anyhow.

"It was disgusting. ... It's against everything I've tried to stand for in political life," Bush said at his press conference Thursday night. "But I discussed that matter with Lee Atwater and he looked me right in the eye and said he did not know about it. He moved promptly to remove the person that did know about it, so I accept that."

The ousted Republican was Mark Goodin, communications director for the national committee, who wrote a memo addressed to "Republican leaders," noting Foley's high approval rating by Americans for Democratic Action, his opposition to capital punishment and his votes against aid to the Nicaraguan Contras.

It went out the day before Foley was installed as speaker of the House to succeed the resigning Jim Wright.

The Goodin attack painted Foley as a doctrinaire liberal by likening the speaker's record to that of Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., a liberal who also is gay. It was Frank who first put the public spotlight on the implications of the memo, saying it was part of a GOP campaign of rumor against Democrats.

Republicans in Congress and at the White House disowned the memo and the author. Foley called it a cheap smear. But he said Atwater had telephoned him to apologize and that he considered the matter closed.

During the campaign that won him the office, Bush repeatedly denied that his was a negative campaign, although that's where the push against Dukakis was. "All that's left is this daily whining about a negative campaign," Bush said near the end. "Don't listen to the crying on the far left."

But Bush has a different role now. He needs no wars with Democrats, especially with a new and popular speaker of the House. He needs Democratic votes in order to govern.

"The president feels he set a new tone when he took office, and that tone should be continued," said White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "And that tone is one of bipartisanship."

But that message isn't reaching every corner of the party. After years of getting along and losing, minority Republicans in the House are trying a more aggressive strategy of political attack. That isn't about to change — they're just getting started.

That points to more tough talk and tough politics.

As he became speaker, Foley said he hoped to see a change in the atmosphere in Congress. Bush said he'd like to change that, too, although he insisted it wasn't caused by Republicans any more than Democrats.

"The ugliness of this climate is bad and I don't like it and I'd like to think that I could help," Bush said.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and politics for more than 25 years.

Bush Redefines Clean Air Debate

H. Josef
Hebert

WASHINGTON — President Bush has redefined the debate in Congress over clean air and taken a leap forward in convincing environmentalists that while he may not be one of them, he's not the enemy either.

To many environmentalists, the significance of Bush's three-pronged proposal Monday to clean up the nation's dirtiest air is that it came forcefully from the White House along with a clear acknowledgement by the president that air pollution is putting millions of Americans at risk.

This is in sharp contrast to the eight years President Reagan occupied the White House. Reagan did not acknowledge acid rain as being an environmental concern and viewed tougher laws to curb urban smog and toxic industrial chemicals as excessive government regulation.

With Republicans in Congress rallying around the Bush clean air package "the political chemistry is going to change dramatically" and the debate will center on finding a middle ground between the White House bill and more stringent Democratic versions, said Jay Hair, president of the Wildlife Federation.

"The Republicans are now going to be in the bidding game on environmental issues," agreed Fred Krupp, executive director of the Environmental Defense Fund. He said the Bush package will serve as "a vehicle that's going to drive this (issue) through Congress."

"We no longer need to debate what the goals will be," suggested Paul Pritchard, president of the National Parks and Conservation Association. David Gardiner, legislative director of the Sierra Club, said the Bush proposal "will definitely break the logjam."

That is not to say the power picture in Congress has not also changed significantly from the Reagan years and likely will be just as important.

Public opinion polls also have told Congress and the president that the voters are keenly interested in removing the yellowish smog from urban areas, want to be protected against the release of toxic industrial chemicals into the air, and approve of curbs on acid rain which is destroying lakes, streams and forests hundreds of miles from the tall stacks of coal-burning power plants.

H. Josef Hebert covers environmental issues for The Associated Press.

Red wolf pup born in captivity is checked by wildlife official

Wildlife Agency To Free Family Of Red Wolf Pups

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST LAKE, N.C. — Four red wolf pups will soon join a world ruled by mosquitoes, ticks, venomous snakes, thick woods — and people. "We've never released a family group," said Mike Phillips, biologist for a U.S. Fish and Wildlife project to re-establish the endangered species in the wild. "If this works, and we're confident it will, in six to 12 months we'll have wolves who are very woods-wise. Once they've reached that stage, they'll be more intolerant of vehicles and people and will be better able to fend for themselves and to enjoy a long life."

In mid-July, at 12 weeks old, the pups will be released with their parents into the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge on Dare County's mainland. Their survival would be a milestone in the first attempt to re-establish a species that had been declared extinct in the wild, officials said. "It's a long-term investment," Phillips said in an interview. "The ultimate payback will come when these animals are 2 or 3 years old and they reproduce. Then they can pass on what they've learned, that woods wisdom, to their pups." In preparation for the release, a team of biologists led by Phillips made their third trip to the isolated holding pen since the litter's birth. Accessible only after a grueling ride in four-wheel-drive vehicles, the pen encloses a 50-by-50-foot space of mucky black soil, stumps and small trees in the center of the 141,000-acre refuge. As the pups' parents paced nervously — freezing suddenly to peer anxiously at the human intruders — the biologists administered vaccines and medicine to ward off intestinal parasites like roundworms and hook worms and other canine diseases like distemper or parvo virus. "We want to do what's necessary to ensure their sufficiency to limit the uncertainty of the first 12 weeks," Phillips said. "Given the value of the wolves, it would be crazy not to. To increase the odds that the animals will survive is the most cost-effective way to conduct the program at this point." Red wolves, a timid, secretive cousin of the gray wolf, once thrived throughout the Southeast. Land clearing and development gradually encroached on the animals' turf until the population had dwindled to small groups in Louisiana and Texas. In 1980, the wolves were declared extinct in the wild. Official estimates these days conclude that only about 90 of the rare predators exist. The wolves involved in the first release in the Alligator River project nearly two years ago had all been born in captivity. They had to learn to fend for themselves in the wild after a period of acclimation in holding pens on the refuge. Phillips said the refuge has the only known free-roaming population of red wolves in the world. Four 13-month-old animals — two females and two males — are the only red wolves running wild on the refuge. An additional 15 wolves are being held in pens for future release. The parents of the four pups born in April are the only survivors of a pioneer group of eight red wolves that began the experiment upon their release in the fall of 1987. The other six wolves died of various causes. Two were struck by automobiles on lonely stretches of U.S. Highway 264. Another was severely injured in a fight with other wolves. One suffered a kidney ailment, another a uterine infection; a third died of unknown reasons.

Rose Blames Federal Suit On His Attack On Helms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., has objected to suggestions he stretched House rules, saying a civil lawsuit filed against him stems from "stepping on a lot of toes" in Congress. Last year, the House Ethics Committee rebuked Rose for borrowing money from his campaign and failing to report it. Three weeks ago, the Justice Department sued him, seeking to recover $30,000 in civil penalties for those alleged ethics violations. Rose said the case was generated by allies of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. A Rose complaint to the Federal Election Commission in 1982 eventually led to a court ruling that Helms' National Congressional Club had violated election law by not fully reporting how it spent its money. "I have stepped on a lot of toes,"

Rose said in an interview. "I have called Jesse Helms and his ilk the frauds that they are. ... I have paid for my forthrightness by being nickel-and-dimed to death." Rose believes John Bolton, a former assistant attorney general who was once a Congressional Club lawyer, instigated the suit. Bolton, now an under-secretary of state, denies that accusation, saying he removed himself from the case as soon as he heard that department lawyers were investigating Rose. "I don't think I've played close to the line," Rose said. "But clearly that's the kind of image that this whole business by the Republicans was designed to foster." Still, Rose says, the examination of ethics probably is good. "The public has the right to ask all the questions they want to about their leaders and to apply whatever scrutiny they would like before they decide who to vote for," he says. North Carolina Republicans, who forced the Ethics Committee investigation of Rose in the first place, say they'll use the matter against him. "There is no question we will make it an issue," said state Republican Chairman Jack Hawke. But he said it would still be difficult to defeat Rose in his 7th District, which includes Fayetteville and Wilmington.

"I have felt when the investigation went on, and when the Ethics Committee made their report, that it ought to make him somewhat vulnerable," Hawke said, "but we have not seen that develop." Rose, first elected in 1972, easily won re-election in 1986, after the allegations were made, and in 1988, after the committee made its ruling. "I'm a little bit like the fellow that checks out of the mental hospital and says I'm the only guy that's got a letter that says I'm not crazy," Rose said. "From October 1986 to March of 1988 all of my records were pored over by investigators of the House Ethics Committee, and they came up with no serious violations." The House panel admonished Rose for borrowing $64,000 from his campaign committee and failing to report those and other loans on his financial disclosure form. Rose insisted the money was to repay loans he had made to the campaign committee.

The committee "reproved" Rose — its mildest punishment — saying it was possible the campaign owed Rose the money but that he didn't have documents to prove it. The panel also chastised Rose for failing to disclose $71,000 in bank loans. He said he didn't realize he had to report some and unintentionally omitted others.

Tuition Hike May Be Cut

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — The General Assembly will likely pass a lower tuition increase for the University of North Carolina system than has been recommended by a House subcommittee, the system's chief lobbyist said. "There's a reasonable chance that we could compromise on an in-state tuition rise of 8.5 percent each year," Jay Robinson, vice president for public affairs, told a legislative subcommittee of the UNC Board of Governors. A House subcommittee proposal, which has been criticized by UNC officials, UNC System officials and students, calls for a 20 percent increase in tuition for in-state students and a 15 percent increase for out-of-state students. A more lenient Senate recommendation calls for a 8.5 percent increase for both in-state and out-of-state students the first year. That would be followed by a 8.5 percent increase for out-of-state students in 1991. That proposal resembles a proposal made last year by the system's board of governors. Robinson said at the meeting last week that prevailing opinion in the General Assembly is that there needs to be some sort of increase. Because legislators are thinking in those terms, Robinson said, it would be best to lobby for small increments rather than to fight against any kind of increase. Robinson said he was unsure when the proposal would be discussed before the full House because there are other budget issues the Legislature must decide on before addressing the tuition increase.

Legislators Say New Tax Needed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — State House leaders who literally met all day without agreeing on how to shoehorn nearly $1 billion worth of needs into a $400 million budget say the exercise illustrates the need for a state tax increase. "To be quite frank, I don't think I've ever gone through a more frustrating experience," Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said in a floor speech Monday night after the marathon meeting. The 14 co-chairmen of the standing budget subcommittees made some decisions during seven hours of wrangling in an overheated room of the Legislative Office Building, including endorsement of tuition increases for the University of North Carolina and community college systems.

But they steadfastly refused to choose between several painful options for dividing up the $400 million that will be available for new spending next year if new revenue sources are not tapped. "What are we gonna do now?" asked Rep. David Redwine, D-Brunswick, after the group rejected the third proposal, which called for cutting in half the $113 million Basic Education Program installment scheduled for 1989-90 and giving teachers and state employees the equivalent of a 2 percent pay raise.

The stymied lawmakers agreed to continue their deliberations today — and to pressure their colleagues to accept Gov. Jim Martin's call for raising the state sales tax a penny on the dollar, which would spare them from making the unpopular choices.

"The message we need to send back to the Finance Committee is to come up with the money to meet the needs of this state," said Rep. Ruth Easterling, D-Mecklenburg. Otherwise, she said, not only will education and state workers be short-changed, but social programs for the poor, sick, elderly and young will not grow.

"I think it's irresponsible of us even to attempt to make a budget that does not address those needs," Mrs. Easterling said.

Diamont told reporters House budget leaders are close to an agreement with Martin on details of a sales tax package. It would generate nearly $500 million a year.

IN THE STATE

Postponed

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — The trial of a man accused in the slaying of judicial candidate Julian Pierce has been postponed indefinitely to give the state time to find a witness a prosecutor said "is essential" to his case. Jury selection was scheduled to begin Monday in Johnston County Superior Court in the first-degree murder trial of Sandy Jordan Chavis, 24, who is charged in the March 26, 1988, slaying of Pierce.

But Judge Anthony Brannon of Durham granted a motion by the special prosecutor, Senior Deputy Attorney General James Coman, to delay the trial until the state can find Kim Locklear Jr. Coman said Locklear is a crucial witness.

Pierce, a lawyer and Indian activist, was found dead at his home in the Wakulla community of Robeson County, authorities said. Pierce was running for a Superior Court judgeship against then-District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt.

Chavis is charged with being an accomplice in the murder, which authorities allege was committed by John Anderson Goins, 23, of Pembroke. Chavis was arrested several days after Pierce's body was found. Goins committed suicide March 29 at his father's home near Pembroke before he could be arrested, authorities said.

went to Reidsville to buy more crack, authorities say.

Caviness pleaded guilty in Guilford County Superior Court to second-degree murder and armed robbery as part of a plea bargain. The agreement called for Caviness to receive a life sentence for the murder plus whatever sentence the judge might impose — up to 40 years — for armed robbery.

Judge Russell G. Walker Jr. of Asheboro sentenced Caviness to 14 years on the robbery charge and ordered that the sentence run concurrently with the life term, meaning he would be eligible for parole in 20 years.

Plant Leak

DURHAM (AP) — A cylinder containing compressed gas sprang a leak Monday night at Mitsubishi Semiconductor, forcing the evacuation of plant employees and a few area residents, but no injuries were reported.

The leak did no damage to the building.

A full shift of employees was working in the building and all were evacuated, said Buddy Newman, Mitsubishi's director of health, safety and environmental issues. Newman said the leaking cylinder, which is part of Mitsubishi's gas reprocessing system, caused a build-up of heat.

Drug Murder

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 20-year-old Greensboro man pleaded guilty Monday to second-degree murder after admitting that he bludgeoned and stabbed his father to death in order to steal money to buy crack cocaine.

Authorities say Chris Caviness took a lead pipe Jan. 29 and hit his father's head five or six times and then stabbed him with a butcher knife. Caviness told police he killed his 45-year-old father, Charlie, because he had been using crack cocaine and needed money to buy more.

After the slaying, Caviness took $265 from his father's wallet and

Girls State

GREENSBORO (AP) — The temptation to use drugs is the biggest problem facing youth to day, and the only way to solve the problem is through education, Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner said Monday.

"I'm not only talking about in big cities like Charlotte," he told 340 participants in the 50th Tar Heel Girls State at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. "The problem is everywhere. It's not only among adults but children."

Girls State is designed to educate students about the roles and responsibilities of citizenship.

Shoulder Belts Will Be Required On Hardtop Cars By End Of Year

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The government is giving carmakers six months to equip all new hardtop cars with backseat lap and shoulder belts, but a safety research group says the new rule doesn't go far enough.

Industry officials, meanwhile, said the order announced Monday by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration came as no surprise but nonetheless might speed up some planned installations.

More than half of 1989 cars already have such belts, and they are scheduled for nearly all 1990 models, industry and government officials said.

The rule will apply to all cars built after mid-December, except convertibles, which are unlikely to be affected until the 1991 model year.

The safety agency said it was still working on detailed installation requirements for the rear-seat belts as well as orders requiring them for convertibles, vans, small trucks and utility vehicles.

"Today's action makes the United States one of the first major vehicle-producing nations in the world to require rear-seat lap and shoulder belts by regulation," the highway safety agency said in announcing the rule.

Brian O'Neill, spokesman for the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, said testing rules are needed to ensure that shoulder safety belt systems work properly in each car's back seat.

"Our position is that if all you do is write a rule that the manufacturers are already following, it's not worth doing," O'Neill said.

Rear seat cushions in some cars may be too soft or improperly designed for effective shoulder belt use in the rear, he said. The institute is an independent, nonprofit research and educational organization funded by the insurance industry.

In addition to the rear lap-shoulder belts, 1990 models must have front-seat air bags or automatic shoulder restraints. Carmakers can either install dual air bags, dual automatic restraints, or a single air bag on the driver's side and a manual or automatic restraint on the passenger's side.

Air bags inflate in a crash. Automatic restraints move into place as the driver or passenger enters the car.

The highway safety administration, which is part of the Department of Transportation, said about 2,000 rear-seat passengers die each year in road crashes, and 600 lives could be saved if even existing lap belts were used by everyone riding in the back seat.

The agency did not estimate the number of lives that might be saved with the new order, which would not affect any cars now on the road. However, if both shoulder and lap belts were used by the 16 percent of back-seat passengers who now use lap-only belts, it said, 25 more lives and 500 serious injuries could be avoided each year.

Government surveys show that front-seat safety belt use has reached an all-time high of 47 percent, with 33 states and the District of Columbia requiring their use. Use of rear-seat belts has increased eightfold over the last six years, with five states requiring it, officials said.

Fred Bowditch, vice president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association in Detroit, said 50 percent to 60 percent of 1989 cars have both lap and shoulder belts as standard equipment in the rear seat.

He said all manufacturers had planned to put the belts on even without a federal order "in the next year or two." He said the order "may hurry up the schedule a little bit for a few models."

According to the insurance institute, lap and shoulder belts are optional for the rear seat on Chrysler cars and on some Ford models but are already standard equipment on many Ford and on all General Motors cars and most foreign autos sold in the United States.

Tanker Captain Pleads Innocent

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Former tanker captain Joseph Hazelwood has pleaded innocent to state charges of criminal mischief leveled after the Exxon Valdez rammed a reef, triggering this nation's worst oil spill.

If convicted of the three felony counts of second-degree criminal mischief, Hazelwood could face up to 15 years in jail and $150,000 in fines. He entered his plea Monday in Superior Court.

Officials on Monday also announced the Exxon Shipping Co.'s Exxon Valdez would be towed to San Diego for more than $25 million in repairs.

Hazelwood, 42, of Huntington, N.Y., has already pleaded innocent to misdemeanor charges of operating a ship while intoxicated, reckless endangerment and negligent pollution. He remains free on $50,000 bail.

The felony case was scheduled for trial before Superior Court Judge John Bosshard in Valdez on June 20, the same day Hazelwood is to go on trial on the misdemeanor charges before Bosshard.

The Exxon Valdez rammed Bligh Reef early March 24, pouring nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil into Prince William Sound.

Before the accident, Hazelwood had turned over control of the 987-foot ship to the third mate. Nearly 11 hours after the accident, the captain had an illegally high blood-alcohol content, the Coast Guard said.

Hazelwood's attorney, Dick Madison of Fairbanks, said he would try to have the trials consolidated and moved to Fairbanks. "I don't think the state wants the cost and inconvenience of two trials any more than we do," he said.

Madison said his client had flown in from New York for the arraignment and would return almost immediately. Hazelwood now fishes for lobsters commercially there, Madison said.

In San Diego, National Steel and Shipbuilding Co. and Exxon officials announced an agreement to repair the Exxon Valdez at National Steel and Shipbuilding's shipyards there.

National Steel and Shipbuilding built the ship.

The tanker will be towed from a protected bay in the sound after the Coast Guard gives permission, Exxon spokesman Karsten Rodvik said in Valdez.

Exxon Corp. has thousands of workers laboring to remove oil from beaches in Prince William Sound. The company estimates it has spent more than $200 million so far in the effort.

Bush Pushes Blueprint For Clean Air

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON, Wyo. — President Bush, buoyed by early applause for his clean air package, is appealing for public support to help sell Congress his blueprint for cleaning up acid rain, smog and toxic chemical pollution.

He was delivering that pitch today in an outdoor speech at Teton Science School set against the dramatic backdrop of the snow-streaked mountains in Grand Teton National Park.

Later today, he was bound for Lincoln, Neb., for another environmental speech at the University of Nebraska to underscore his commitment to alternative-fuels research.

Bush journeyed to Wyoming on Monday evening after touring the still blackened expanse of Yellowstone National Park, where he saw green growth sprouting through the char from last summer's devastating fires.

Bush, who turned 65 Monday, was greeted at West Yellowstone Airport by a crowd of 750 singing "Happy Birthday." He said later, "I was touched by that welcome out there."

At one point in the Yellowstone tour, the president seemed in the dark about the recent change in National Park Service policy on fires. "What is the policy now... What is the thing now on burning?" he asked.

The park service, which previously let natural fires burn, now has orders to fight all of them.

Accompanied by his eldest grandchild, 13-year-old George P. Bush, the president went fishing for an hour Monday evening on Jackson Lake and spent the night at a lakeside government guest house, Brinkerhoff Lodge.

They caught six lake trout, threw four back and grilled the other two for dinner after Bush cleaned them.

Earlier, in the East Room of the White House, Bush had unveiled a clean air package that he promised would cut acid rain-causing sulfur dioxide emissions in half by the year 2000.

The initiative drew applause from industrialists, environmentalists and lawmakers alike — with some reservations.

Environmental leaders hailed his stance on acid rain, but questioned whether the plan was tough enough on smog and toxic industrial pollutants.

And Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and coal lobbyists said it would put high-sulfur coal areas at a disadvantage.

Bush promised that his legislative package "will be cost-effective, but above all, it will work. We will make the 1990s the era for clean air."

With a nod to Congress — but not a word about his predecessor Ronald Reagan's failure to press the topic — Bush said, "We've seen enough of this stalemate. It's time to clear the air. And you know, I think we will."

The president is banking on the sale of 1 million methanol-powered cars a year by 1997 to help rid America's big cities of smog.

White House chief of staff John Sununu told reporters on Air Force One that Bush hopes to sign a clean air bill "by the fall."

Bush, who assured voters in last year's campaign that he was "a lifelong environmentalist," told the White House audience that it was his mission to guarantee clean air "for this generation and for the generations to come."

DOJ Denies Gray Being Investigated

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Rep. William H. Gray III is not the target of a criminal investigation, the Justice Department said in a statement issued less than two days before a House leadership election in which the Pennsylvania Democrat is a candidate.

Gray, a candidate for majority whip, said the department's statement Monday proved his earlier accounts that he was not targeted in a preliminary investigation that government sources have said involves allegations of a "no-show" employee on his staff.

"Congressman Gray is not the target of a criminal investigation by the Department of Justice," the department said in the statement issued Monday night. "Congressman Gray and his office have been fully cooperating with the Department of Justice and the FBI."

Department spokesman Dan Eramian said Attorney General Dick Thornburgh authorized his executive assistant, Robert S. Ross Jr., to make the statement. Eramian declined to answer questions on why the statement was issued Monday night.

Gray's top aide, Jon Plebani, said he had been told the department issued the statement because officials there believed news leaks about the investigation had done Gray a "serious disservice" and possibly had influenced the whip contest. Gray, currently chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, is one of three candidates for the post.

Gray, in a statement, said: "I have said from the beginning that I am not a target and this confirms it. I have said from the beginning that I and my staff have cooperated fully and this confirms it. I have done nothing wrong and this too will be confirmed."

Plebani said an internal review by Gray's staff had left the congressman's staff "convinced, based on our exhaustive checking into every employee who worked for Bill Gray, that we've never had a non-performing employee."

Word of the investigation surfaced after Gray met with FBI agents on Memorial Day at a Washington hotel.

Jenrette Convicted

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAIRFAX, Va. — The jury that convicted former congressman John Jenrette of shoplifting says he should pay a heavy price for the necktie and shoes he stole from a suburban Washington department store.

Jenrette was found guilty Monday of stealing the items and switching price tags on two pieces of clothing. The Fairfax County Circuit Court jury deliberated only 35 minutes before convicting the former lawmaker of the two misdemeanor charges.

The jurors recommended six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for each of the two violations. Sentencing was set for Aug. 18.

The 53-year-old former congressman from South Carolina served 13 months in prison and is still on probation for bribery and conspiracy convictions in the Abscam scandal.

"This could trigger three years extra in prison," Jenrette's attorney, Steve Merrill, said. "He has his entire life left to lose. He's going back to the penitentiary and he's losing any chance to practice law again."

Jenrette had been found guilty of the charges by a Fairfax County Circuit judge on Feb. 23. He appealed that verdict in order to bring his case before a jury, where he felt he could succeed in establishing reasonable doubt.

Reagan Says West Must Risk Gorbys

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Former President Reagan urged the West today to take risks with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, saying he was "the Soviets' best and probably only hope to turn things around."

Reagan also declared that the Chinese government "hasn't learned something very elementary: you can't massacre an idea. You cannot run tanks over hope. You cannot riddle a people's yearning with bullets."

In a speech on his first visit to London since stepping down as president, Reagan painted a sweeping picture of a world gripped by an information revolution in which computers and satellite dishes would inevitably dissolve the barriers between East and West and democracy would supplant communism.

"I believe Mikhail Gorbachev is the Soviets' best and probably only hope to turn things around," Reagan said.

"It is true that the West could stand pat while this is happening. We are not the ones who must change. It is not our people who're isolated from the information that allows them to be creative and productive," he said.

"But it is exactly when you are strong and comfortable that you should take risks."

He said: "I believe we should take the risk that the Soviets are serious in their efforts to reach genuine arms reductions with the West. I support President Bush's proposal to keep pressure on the Soviets to make good on their calls to reduce arms."

Reagan was addressing an array of dignitaries of the English Speaking Union at the Guildhall, the ornate 1,000-year-old seat of London's civic government, where 13 months ago he gave a speech en route home after visiting Gorbachev in Moscow.

Gorbachev, who is in West Germany this week for his first state visit to that country, spoke at Guildhall in April.

Reagan said "I'm more optimistic than ever in my life about peace and democracy in this world." He said "amazing things are afoot in the world this spring."

"Those heroic Chinese students who gave their lives have released the spirit of democracy and it cannot be called back," he said, referring to the student-led movement for a freer China and the Chinese government's violent crackdown on it.

Hungary, he said, was dismantling part of its barbed-wire border fence with Austria and moving to multi-party democracy; Poland had legalized the Catholic Church and held its most open elections in 40 years; dissident Andrei Sakharov now sits in the Soviet parliament.

Communist countries were still trying to suppress the free flow of information by restricting the use of photocopying machines, typewriters, TV satellite dishes and cross-border computer linkups, Reagan said.

But "the biggest of Big Brothers is increasingly helpless against communications technology," he said.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, arrived quietly on Sunday for a four-day visit, and were to dine with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and have lunch with Queen Elizabeth II on Wednesday. Prince Charles, her son and heir, has invited the Reagans for drinks.

Investigators Probe HUD Embezzlement In Housing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE — Federal investigators probing embezzlement in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development want to question a lawyer about the disappearance of $3 million in the Washington area, a newspaper reported.

Earl Martin, who has been missing for about a year, is wanted for questioning in the probe of HUD's

MARILYN HARRELL

Washington field office, which administers federal housing programs in the District of Columbia and its Maryland and Virginia suburbs, The Sun in Baltimore reported today.

Martin was a closing agent who represented HUD at settlement when it sold houses in the District of Columbia. He worked for the Washington office at the same time as Maryland real estate agent Marilyn Louis Harrell, who allegedly embezzled $5.5 million as a closing agent for the department in the Maryland suburbs.

Ms. Harrell, who has not been charged, has admitted taking the funds and claimed she gave the money to charities. Because of that investigators have nicknamed her "Robin HUD."

The Sun reported that neither Martin nor Harrell were bonded as a precaution against theft or loss.

"It's another example of incredible carelessness," the newspaper quoted a senior HUD official as saying. "The Washington office was in a state of total disarray."

Meanwhile, the Washington Post reported today that HUD this week will begin a systematic review of property sales, demanding that 53 field offices explain what happened to any unaccounted-for proceeds, according to a memo from Secretary Jack Kemp.

The Post said the content of the memo was disclosed by a senior HUD official who estimated that as much as $100 million may be unaccounted for. The source based the estimate on the early findings of audits of 11 field offices, the newspaper reported.

The Washington probe is one of several being conducted throughout the country. In Dallas, a closing agent has been indicted in connection with the theft of $2.5 million in HUD funds. Probes also are underway in Denver, Los Angeles and New Orleans.

California Quakes Dramatize Threat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Twin earthquakes that shook Los Angeles did little harm, but they scared people and highlighted the danger from recently discovered faults concealed deep beneath the nation's second-largest city.

The temblors, however, suggest the danger may be more likely to come from a series of moderate quakes than from a much-feared "big one."

"Nothing that happened today makes us fear a larger earthquake any more than we did before," said U.S. Geological Survey seismologist Lucile Jones. "What happened today should make you feel a little more relieved."

The Monday morning quakes injured one person and caused scattered minor damage downtown and in suburbs to the east, including cracked plaster, fallen ceiling tiles and broken windows.

Scientists said the sharp jolts at 9:57 a.m. and 10:22 a.m. measured 4.5 and 4.3 on the Richter scale, respectively. They were centered on the Elysian Park Fault about 8 1/2 miles beneath Montebello, a city about 10 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles. At least five more small aftershocks followed.

The temblors sent high-rise construction workers and window washers sprinting into downtown Los Angeles streets and stranded some elevator passengers momentarily.

"It felt like a bomb struck the building," said Sheila Dickinson, a downtown worker.

Panicky callers overloaded telephone lines, making it impossible to get dial tones in many areas, said Michael Guerin of the California Office of Emergency Services.

Based on historical patterns, Southern California faces a 1 percent to 2 percent chance of a bigger earthquake within three days, said Jones.

The Elysian Park Fault cuts a 60-by-10-mile swath through the heart of the Los Angeles Basin, stretching from Corona northwest to Whittier, then west to downtown Los Angeles, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica and Malibu.

It was discovered after causing the Oct. 1, 1987, Whittier Narrows quake, which, with its aftershocks, killed eight people, injured more than 200 and caused $358 million in damage.

That quake also spurred discovery of another fault, the 40-by-10-mile Torrance-Wilmington Fault, stretching from Newport Beach northwest through Long Beach, Los Angeles' Wilmington district, Torrance and Santa Monica.

Scientists don't know if the two faults relieve stress only by causing numerous mild-to-moderate quakes of magnitude-4 to 6, or also during infrequent major-to-great quakes of magnitude-7 to 8, said geologist Kerry Sieh of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

A major quake directly under downtown Los Angeles would be far worse than a "big one" on the more distant San Andreas Fault, about 50 miles to the north. Officials estimate a big San Andreas quake could kill up to 14,000 people, seriously injure up to 55,000 and cause $17 billion in damage.

On the Richter scale of ground motion, every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

An earthquake of 3.5 can cause slight damage, 4 moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

The number of quakes in the basin has been twice normal since March 1986, Jones said. Some scientists believe that suggests an increased likelihood of a major quake, but the fact the recent quakes on the Elysian Park Fault have been mild to moderate hints that future quakes on the fault may be about the same, not larger, she added.

It takes many smaller quakes to release the same stress as a disastrous jolt, so "I don't think any of us would be surprised if we had a flurry of 5s and 6s over the next 30 years," Sieh said.

Teens Considering Suicide Often Give Warning Signals

By Rosemary Speight

Most adolescents who are depressed or contemplating suicide do not, or will not, talk about how they are feeling without prompting. They feel worthless. They have no hope. They may feel that no one cares, or they may even deny their emotions. A suicidal teen may even be afraid that others will make fun of them, or treat their suicide as a joke.

Friends and family can detect warning signs or clues. Teens considering suicide often give away cherished possessions, act sad and depressed, or even talk about not being around anymore.

Signs which may indicate potential suicide include changes in eating and sleeping habits; withdrawal from friends, family and regular activities; a dramatic drop in grades and school performance; neglect of personal appearance; alcohol and drug abuse, or acts of aggression and rebelliousness.

Never ignore these warning signs. The signs may seem to subside and the teen be more settled or at ease. This may be because he or she has made the decision to commit suicide, and feels as if an end to problems and frustrations is in sight. Subsiding warning signs should not be ignored.

If these signs are observed, privately discuss them with the teen. Ask, "Are you feeling that there is no hope?" If the young person says, "Yes," ask, "Are you thinking about suicide?"

Iris Bolton, a counselor from Atlanta, Ga. says, "If the person is not thinking about suicide, asking won't matter. They will be relieved that you asked, relieved that someone cared enough to ask."

Bolton says that it is important to remember that you cannot make someone choose to live, and that you are not responsible for another person's life, but you can give support and insight into other choices. It is important to remind the teen that suicide is a permanent solution to a temporary problem. Reassure the adolescent that many people think about suicide but never actually do it.

Always be honest with the teen. If calling a family member or a friend, make the call in front of the teenager. Ask him or her to agree to postpone the decision for a while; in return, offer to accompany the teen to find support or help.

By telling others — experts, friends and family members — you may help to develop a support system for the troubled teen. Do not leave the adolescent alone. Stay with him or her until professional help has been arranged.

If you do not know the services in this area, contact someone who does, such as churches, schools, hospitals, police departments or other agencies. Most communities have a 24-hour emergency or crisis hotline. Look in the Yellow Pages under Crisis Intervention or Suicide Prevention.

It is important that professional help is sought. Professional help may be a school counselor, the mental health center, a family physician, a pastor, or a psychiatrist, psychologist or counselor in private practice.

The most important fact is to get professional help to develop positive, non-threatening alternatives.

Rosemary Speight is an information and communication specialist with the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Feisty, Undisciplined 'Beau' Was A Dog He'll Never Forget

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

And when I'd grab him, he'd bite me. He bit lots of folks from day to day. The delivery boy was his favorite prey. The gas man wouldn't read our meter. He said we owned a real man-eater. He set the house on fire, but the story is long to tell. Suffice to say, he survived, and the house survived as well.

Dear Abby: Several years ago, on the Johnny Carson show, Jimmy Stewart read a beautiful poem that he had written about his dog named Beau.

I loved that poem, not only because it expressed my own feelings about the dog I once had, but because his name was also Beau.

I have tried to find that poem, but no library has it, and I have no idea where to look. Can you help me? Or am I barking up the wrong tree? (Smile.) — Still Missing My Beau

Dear Still Missing: You're in luck. I have it, and here it is:

Beau
By Jimmy Stewart

He never came to me when I would call — unless I had a tennis ball. But mostly he didn't come at all. When he was young, he never learned to heel or sit or stay. He did things his own way. Discipline was not his bag. But when you were with him, things sure didn't drag.

He'd dig up a rosebush to spite me

But every once in a while he'd stop in his tracks. With a frown on his face, and look around. It was just to make sure the old one was there to follow him. Where he was bound. We're early bedders at our house, I guess I'm the first to retire. And as I would leave the room he'd look at me from his place by the fire.

He knew where the tennis balls were, upstairs. I'd give him one for a while. He'd push it under the bed with his nose and I'd push it out with a smile. Before very long, he'd tire of the ball and he would be asleep in his corner in no time at all. And there were nights when I'd feel him climb upon our bed. And lie between us and I'd pat his head.

There were nights when I'd feel his stare, and I'd wake up and he'd be sitting there. I'd reach out to stroke his hair, and sometimes I'd feel him sigh. I think I know the reason why. He'd wake up at night and he would have this fear. Of the dark, of life, of lots of things. And he'd be glad to have me near.

And now he's dead, and there are nights when I think I feel him climb upon our bed, and be between us and I'd pat his head.

And there are nights when I think I feel that stare and I reach out my hand to stroke his hair.

And he's not there. Oh, how I wish that wasn't so — I'll always love a dog named Beau.

Pollard-Long Pair Are Married

AYDEN — Vickie D. Long and Mitchell L. Pollard were united in marriage June 3 at 2 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dunn.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Pollard of Greenville.

Raymond Hoggard performed the double-ring ceremony. Deborah Gladson and the bridegroom were soloists.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore an ivory tea-length lace dress styled with a round neckline and fluted sleeves. She carried a bouquet of silk ivory and peach roses accented with blue ribbons.

Serving as matron of honor was Donna Steiner, cousin of the bride, and bridesmaid was Tyresia French, sister of the bridegroom. Casey Peaden, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. All are from Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Tracy Coggins of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, and Stevie Tugwell of Fountain. Matthew Clark of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Katrina Peaden of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register. Judy Hoggard of Greenville directed the wedding.

A pig picking was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents and the bridegroom's family entertained at an after-rehearsal party. Several other showers were given for the couple prior to their wedding.

The bride and bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School. She attended Pitt Community College and is employed by Robert C. Dunn Co., Inc., and he is employed by Vermont American Corp.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip.

MR. AND MRS. POLLARD

Fight Moral Breakdown Using Old-Fashioned Guilt

People talk about the moral breakdown and the lack of ethics in America as if they don't know what to do about them. I know what to do: Bring back guilt! Good old-fashioned, intimidating, demoralizing, threatening, viper-tongued guilt.

It used to be an art form among mothers, passed from generation to generation. When was the last time you refused to speak to your kids for four days, and when they asked why, you said, "YOU know!" When they persisted with "Tell me," you answered, "I can't tell you anything."

I figure I have a lifetime pass into my children's lives. If they were sports heroes and sold autographs to a bunch of star-struck kids who tagged along after them as if they were gods, don't you think I'd put a cork in their bottles? I'd do something subtle, like send 'em a check for signing my Mother's Day card with a note, "Tell me if it cost more."

The morality erosion has surfaced on all levels, from top government, sports and industry to relationships. A commitment these days isn't worth the spit it takes to form the words, "You can count on me." We either can keep lawyers busy — like the recent case in which a girl sued her prom date for canceling out, causing her to get stuck with the expenses of flowers, etc. Or we can start early and stay late with kids and elevate our expectations of them.

I personally blamed our son for the stock market crash of 1988. He will never borrow more money than he can pay back again. They all have tapes of me in the labor room before their births, which they can play back on their VCRs ... just in case they think my birthday doesn't matter. Where else can they get that kind of love?

I personally hate guilt. I hated it when my mother used it on me, but it worked. I would have waited until I was 55 to get married if I hadn't had to hear her say one more time,

"We're not asking you NOT to get married; we're only asking you to wait until you're sure."

Today, whenever one of my kids messes up, I have a "look" that is just below the one where your dog dies in your arms. This is accompanied by deep sighing and threats that have no rationale. They probably would have skipped school more than they did, but they weren't quite sure if I would appear and chain them to their desks or if I was bluffing.

It's a great temptation for kids to cut deals with integrity when the front pages are full of Exxons, Boeskeys, Norths, and TV evangelists selling paradise.

It is within each of us to etch a line of moral standards in our life. The hard part is not to cross over it for money, power or personal gain. The inner voice of a mother at your elbow, threatening you with giving her chest pains if you so much as put a toe over that line, can't hurt.

Ayden Plans Anti-Drug Effort

 $25,000 to pay a group of teachers this summer to enter information about elementary and middle school students into a new computer data system. No names would be entered at that time because of confidentiality requirements. The teachers would use student identification numbers.

When school reconvenes in the fall, Phillips said he would send letters home with students asking parents to sign release forms so that their children's names may be entered into the system. This will allow officials to track the children and determine if students in the high-risk group are making progress and whether they are receiving the necessary care and services, he said.

Phillips said the computer program would not serve as a criminal investigation tool, and students would not have a criminal record by allowing their name to be added to the list.

The data is needed to establish a basis that many students are in need, he said. With it in place, the town will be able to land additional grants for programs, he said, and officers may present evidence to Social Services that supports claims of abuse and neglect.

Using the Department of Public Instruction's definition of at-risk youth, Phillips would determine which students fit the profile.

By tracking the children, Phillips said he would be able to tell whether the children that fit in the profile actually do have more trouble with discipline, grades and drugs than the group of students not considered at-risk.

Prior to his presentation, Phillips gave board members a report on the status of the drug trade in the area. It was compiled through investigative and intelligence information, he said.

The report states that sales of cocaine-based crack total about $2,000 a day in Ayden. It said it appears at least three groups of Jamaican drug dealers are operating in Pitt, Lenoir and Beaufort counties, and the groups recruit young black males over the age of 17 to distribute the drugs locally.

The young men then recruit juveniles as drug runners, the report said. Juveniles are penalized less severely in court than the adult drug dealer would be.

The street price of a vial of crack has dropped from $25 to $14 in the last year, the report said, indicating there is a large supply of drugs and competition among dealers. There is also a possibility that violence could increase between rival drug factions, the report said.

"We have a tremendous problem. It is growing on a day-to-day basis," Phillips said.

Sugar Ray Leonard lands blow to head of Thomas Hearns in their fight Monday

Hearns, Leonard Battle To A Draw; Both Pleased

Both Fighters Show Stirring Displays Of Courage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — For 12 rounds, Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns battled through the heat like valiant old warriors, trying somehow to find through sheer determination some of the skills that had long ago left them.

In a fight that had almost the same ebb and flow of their first bout eight years ago, the two aging fighters reached back to put on stirring displays of courage, with both hurt badly and both refusing to give in.

And when it was over Monday night, three ringside judges handed in their verdicts.

It was, of all things, a draw. A draw that, surprisingly, left both fighters happy.

"I'm proud of having a draw," said a jubilant Hearns, the weight of his first loss to Leonard seemingly off his shoulders at last. "It could have gone the other way, so I'm grateful I got a draw."

"We both displayed what champions are made of," Leonard said. "Like Tommy said, we'll leave it to the judges. I accept it."

The sellout crowd of 15,336 outdoors at Caesars Palace didn't accept it as well, however.

Most thought Hearns, who knocked Leonard down twice, the final time in the 11th round, had won the fight. They booed loudly when the decision was announced.

It took a huge Leonard rally the final two minutes of the 12th round, in fact, to gain the draw. Two of the ringside judges gave Leonard the round by a 10-9 score, but a third gave it to Leonard by 10-8, making his scorecard and the fight even.

"I knew the two knockdowns would be a deciding factor," said Leonard, who retained his World Boxing Council 168-pound title with the draw. "Being knocked down not once, but twice, had a psychological effect not only on the crowd but on the judges."

Leonard was behind by two points on judge Dalby Shirley's scorecard before Shirley's 10-8 round left his card even, 112-112. Judge Tommy Kaczmarek had Leonard winning 113-112, while Judge Jerry Roth had Hearns by the same score.

Statistics compiled by CompuBox Inc., showed the judges had been paying close attention.

According to the computer tabulations, Leonard landed 232 of the 652 punches he threw, while Hearns landed 221 of the 560. Hearns connected with more jabs, Leonard landed more punches besides jabs.

Leonard's rally was all the more implausible coming after the 11th round, when Hearns knocked him to the canvas for the second time and appeared to be gaining final control of the fight.

Hearns also put Leonard down for a count of five in the third round, the only time in Leonard's career that he has been down twice in a fight.

Lakers Search For Formula For Victory

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The NBA Finals can be reduced to this simple equation: three Piston guards minus two Laker guards equals one Detroit championship.

Los Angeles coach Pat Riley is groping for a solution to Detroit's hot-shooting backcourt. He'd better find one soon.

"I hope they don't come up with a formula," said Isiah Thomas, one of those Detroit guards.

The Lakers haven't yet.

Thomas, Joe Dumars and Vinnie Johnson have been unstoppable against the Lakers, who are expected to play again tonight without starting guards Magic Johnson and Byron Scott, who have hamstring injuries.

The Pistons lead the best-of-7 series 3-0 and can clinch their first NBA title and become the fifth team to sweep a final series. A Laker victory would force a fifth game here Thursday night but still leave them with their backs to the wall.

First, they must survive tonight's game.

"We can't back up any more or we'll turn into the wall," said Michael Cooper, the main guard now that Johnson and Scott are hurt.

Just a few hours may be left in the Lakers' two-year reign as NBA champions. The team that has won five titles in the 1980s may lose its last four playoff games of the decade after going unbeaten in its first three series this year.

Thomas said he didn't see a minor earthquake that shook the Los Angeles area Monday as a metaphor for a crumbling of the Laker dynasty.

"I just thought it was kind of cool to be in an earthquake," he said.

The normally imperturbable Dumars wasn't as calm about the small tremor.

"When the earth shakes, there's nothing small about that to me," he said. "The earth moved. I don't care what the Richter scale said. The earth moved."

His sense of hopelessness in the face of potential disaster matches that of the Lakers in trying to stop him, Thomas and Johnson.

"Any one of us can take over a game," Vinnie Johnson said. "We have a lot more people than they do. We stay a lot fresher."

Dumars is the leading candidate for playoff most valuable player after scoring 33 and 31 points in the last two games. None of the trio has scored fewer than 17 points in any of the first three games. They've taken 60.3 percent of their team's shots and scored an average of 70.3 points of the team's average of 110.3 per game. Johnson has made 64.1 percent of his shots and Dumars 62.3.

"They're making us look bad," said Lakers' seldom-used forward Tony Campbell, who has been forced to play guard because of the injuries. "They're hitting open jumpers. They're hitting shots in your face. They're hitting layups. They're hitting running one-handers in the lane. What can you do?"

In Game 1, the Lakers were only missing Scott and played primarily a man-to-man defense. In Game 2, they increased use of their trapping defense. But the injury forced Magic Johnson from the game with 4:39 to go in the third quarter.

Without both of them in Sunday's 114-110 loss in Game 3, "we tried to mix things up" on defense, Riley said. "We'll continue to try. We'll make the adjustments we have to make and, hopefully, they'll work."

The quake registered 4.5 on the Richter scale and the aftershock was marked at 4.3.

Forward James Worthy said most of the Lakers are accustomed to small quakes, which he said strike three or four times up and ran out of there."

"I'm pretty used to it. I don't worry much until things start falling on the floor," Worthy said.

"Then I make my move. Especially in this old building, I'd rather be at home or outside."

The Detroit Pistons were still at their hotel when the tremor and aftershock came.

"I was in my room and the walls and bed started shaking," Isiah Thomas said. "When I realized it was an earthquake, I got up and ran out of there."

The Pistons' John Salley took the earthquake calmly.

"I kind of enjoyed it," Salley said. "I finally got a vibrating bed."

Detroit guard Joe Dumars said he was talking on the phone when he felt the quake.

"I hung up immediately, but it ended pretty fast," Dumars said. "When the earth moves, there's nothing small about it. The earth was moving. I don't care what the Richter scale said."

Dumars is averaging 28.7 points on 62.3 percent shooting in three games in the championship series. Riley didn't have much hope that the quake might shake up the Pistons guard.

"I don't think an earthquake will stop Joe, the way he's shooting," Riley said. "Maybe if we're ahead 101-100 with three seconds left, the rim will start shaking and throw him off."

Thomas was asked if the quake symbolized a crumbling Lakers dynasty. Los Angeles is trailing 3-0 in the best-of-7 series after winning two consecutive titles and five in this decade.

"I don't think it means anything," Thomas said. "But I thought it was cool to be in an earthquake. I can tell my friends about it."

No injuries were reported in the quake and aftershock, which were felt over most of the Los Angeles area.

Injured Lakers Magic Johnson and Byron Scott did not attend the post-practice interview session.

There was no word on whether the vibrations from the quake made their ailing hamstrings feel any better.

Lakers Get All Shook Up By Quake

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Lakers needed something to shake up the NBA Finals, although an earthquake was not quite what they had in mind.

The Lakers were at the Forum on Monday, watching film of Game 3 of the championship series when they were surprised by a minor earthquake and aftershock, about 30 minutes apart.

"I was one of the first ones ready to leave," Coach Pat Riley said. "I hit the pause button."

The quake registered 4.5 on the Richter scale and the aftershock was marked at 4.3.

Forward James Worthy said most of the Lakers are accustomed to small quakes, which he said strike three or four times

up and ran out of there."

"I thought Kevin Johnson (of Phoenix) was the quickest guard in the league, but not after I saw David run for the door," the Lakers' Mychal Thompson said.

Worthy said he wasn't worried this time, but added that he follows his earthquake safety rules.

"I'm pretty used to it. I don't worry much until things start falling on the floor," Worthy said.

"Then I make my move. Especially in this old building, I'd rather be at home or outside."

Johnson Admits Using Steroids

Knew They Were Banned, But Didn't Know Of Potential Side Effects

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO — Ben Johnson, admitting years of steroid use in his quest to be the world's fastest man, said he knew they were banned substances but never would have taken them if he'd known about their potential side effects.

"Nobody bothered to tell me what the side effects were because they were happy to be making all this money," he told the Canadian inquiry into drugs and athletics nearly nine months after a positive test for the anabolic steroid stanozolol stripped him of the 100-meter Olympic gold medal.

Johnson, whose only previous statement since the disgrace at Seoul had been that he never knowingly used illegal drugs, still must tell the inquiry what happened in the weeks leading up to the positive test last Sept. 24.

But Monday, under oath, Johnson started what could be several days of testimony by saying for the first time that he used steroids.

"Every shot that I got with an injection from (his coach and teammates), I had in my own mind that it was banned," he said.

Johnson said that his first use of steroids was in pill form in 1981 and 1982, the steroids Dianabol and stanozolol taken under direction of his only coach, Charlie Francis.

"Charlie's my coach and if he gave me something to take, I'd take it," he said.

But by the time of the 1983 Pan

American Games in Caracas, Venezuela, Johnson said he was aware that he was getting steroids, that they were banned and that he risked disqualification if they were found in his system.

Johnson said he left the concern about clearance times to others.

"I'm not the coach, I just take orders," he said.

He differed only from his coach and personal physician, Dr. Jamie Astaphan, on the issue of whether they informed him about potential for steroids damaging his health.

"If they told me what the side effects were at that time, I wouldn't have been part of the group at all," Johnson said.

The 27-year-old athlete also said the idea for using steroids was not his but that of Francis, his coach since 1977.

"I didn't go up to him and say I wanted to take it. He said the whole world was using them and the only way I'd get better was if I took these drugs," the sprinter said.

Francis delivered eight days of often sensational testimony to the inquiry in February and March, saying he believed steroids were necessary to keep on a level playing field because of their pervasive use in top international competition.

Astaphan confirmed in his appearance that he provided steroids for the sprinter since 1984. The doctor, however, boasted of his ability to beat steroid tests and could not explain why stanozolol was found at Seoul.

Johnson's mother, two sisters and brother were in the hearing room as the athlete calmly answered questions, often responding only yes or no. His father was home in Jamaica.

Pitt County Tops Wilson, 8-1

Travis Clemons scattered four hits over six innings as Pitt County handed Wilson County a 8-1 loss in a rain-shortened American Legion baseball game Monday night.

Clemons struck out six while walking three to get the win. Pitt shortstop Chris Christopher went 3-4 with two doubles and three RBI.

Post 39 jumped on top early, scoring three runs in the first inning as Chris Christopher singled in David Leisten, Clemons singled in Christopher and John Bolen drove in Clemons.

Pitt added three runs in the third as Timmy Moore had an RBI double while Jamie Brewington and Grant Harmon had RBI singles.

Two more Post 39 runs in the fourth made it 8-0 as Christopher and Brewington each drove in a run.

Wilson had a chance to get back in the game in the sixth, putting four men on base, but got only one run out of it as Donald Barnes singled in Dewey Scott.

Pitt improves to 4-2 and returns to action tonight at Rocky Mount.

The game was listed on Pitt's schedule as being set for Wilson, but that was in error. The error was not made public, however, until Monday afternoon.

An error in Monday's paper incorrectly listed the number of hits Pitt County had in a 3-2 loss to Snow Hill Sunday. Pitt actually had six hits, led by Christopher and Bolen with two each.

Snow Hill Post 94's American Legion baseball at Rocky Mount was postponed by rain Monday night.

The contest will be made up on June 27 in Rocky Mount. Snow Hill plays at home against Kinston tonight.

Frye Wins Title On Decision

CHARLOTTEVILLE — Greenville's Dale "Sunshine" Frye won a unanimous decision over Chuck Biddle to capture the K.I.C.K. super lightweight kickboxing championship Monday night at the University of Virginia.

Frye, who is trained by Bill McDonald of Greenville, fought Biddle, who fights out of Washington, D.C., as a part of an undercard for the closed circuit telecast of the Thomas Hearn-Sugar Ray Leonard fight from Las Vegas. The Frye-Biddle bout was held in the University of Virginia Coliseum.

The fight went the full scheduled 12 rounds. Frye also holds the World Kickboxing Association title.

Scott Places 4th At Virginia Beach Event

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Greenville's Barry Scott took fourth place at the East Coast Triathlon Sunday with a time of 1:33.15.

The race, which had a field of over 500, had the swim portion shortened to a 1/2 mile due to a storm.

Scott finished just behind Curtis Alipz (1:31:22) and Patrick Bateman (1:31:05), two of the top triathlon performers in the country.

Scott's next race is July 15 in the Triangle.

Local Men Honored At Mets' Game

Two Greenville men who participated in the New York Mets' Dream Week, will be honored on the field at Shea Stadium Thursday.

Thirty minutes prior to the Mets' game with the Cubs, Vinnie DeBaise and Roy Berbert of Greenville, will join 98 others who attended Dream Week, a Mets' "spring training," will be introduced on the field. Each will appear in full uniform and be introduced to the crowd.

The "Dream Week" is an opportunity for adults to fulfill their baseball fantasies as they live, learn and train alongside baseball heroes for a week at the Mets' Spring Training facility at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

Their appearance at a Mets' game winds up the event.

Amateur Sports To Be Checked Financially

RALEIGH (AP) — The sponsors of a bill seeking a $500,000 grant to help North Carolina Amateur Sports put on the 1990 State Games say they want a public accounting of how tax dollars previously appropriated have been spent.

"There have to be some fundamental questions answered," Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, said Monday. "Those have to do with what prior expenditures look like and what kind of information is going to be readily available for public inspection."

"If it is not going to be readily available and the corporation is going to take the position that it does not have to make that information public, you will have to have serious reservations about whether any level of funding ought to be forthcoming."

Sen. Bill Statton, D-Lee, said that he wants to "satisfy myself that there is a public accounting of the funds and that they are used for a public purpose" before moving ahead with the request.

N.C. Amateur Sports is a non-profit corporation that hosted the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival, an event that generated $750,000 in profits. In 1988, it sponsored 11 sporting events, but ended up losing $73,450.

So far the corporation has received $1.2 million in tax dollars, and is seeking another $500,000 this year.

While the corporation has made public its 1987 federal tax return and copies of audits covering the years 1984-1987, it has declined to provide further financial disclosure. It maintains not only that it is a private corporation but also that disclosure of the costs of staging sports events would put it at a competitive disadvantage in bidding for them.

N.C. Amateur Sports has not permitted inspection of financial documents given to its board of directors by management since January 1988 or minutes of the board meetings.

Henderson To Transfer Out Of Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Phil Henderson, a starting guard on Duke's Final Four basketball team last season, is transferring for personal reasons, the school announced Monday.

Henderson did not indicate where he would transfer.

"I've really enjoyed being a part of the Duke program, but this is a decision that I feel I have to make for personal reasons," Henderson said.

Henderson will be granted his release and will leave Duke at the end of the university's first session of summer school on July 1, according to head coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"Phil has represented our program very well and we certainly wish him the best in his future endeavors," Krzyzewski said.

Henderson started all 36 games for 28-8 Blue Devils last season, averaging 12.7 points per game. He also had 93 assists and was the club's top free throw shooter at 76.4 percent.

Henderson played in 78 games during his three-year career with an average of 9.2 points per game.

A rising senior, Henderson would have to sit out next season under NCAA transfer regulations and would have one year of eligibility remaining at another institution.

Sanders Balks At Falcons Salary Offer

ATLANTA (AP) — Deion Sanders, who reportedly is seeking almost $2 million a year to play cornerback for the Atlanta Falcons, stormed out of a meeting with team officials after they apparently opened negotiations with a much lower offer.

"They must be crazy," Sanders, the Florida State product who was the Falcons' No. 1 draft pick, said after the meeting Monday. "They started off offering me $400,000, $500,000. So I just walked."

Sanders also plays professional baseball, and his agent said he would be willing to stick with that if the Falcons don't come through with a good offer.

"There's a very good possibility Deion will play only baseball," said agent Steve Zucker. "I'm an optimistic person generally, but I'm very pessimistic now. We're not even close."

Sanders met with Falcons officials at Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport during a stop between New York, where he recently finished a brief first stint in the majors with the Yankees, and their Class AAA Columbus (Ohio) farm team.

He is reportedly seeking a contract similar to that signed by quarterback Troy Aikman, the overall No. 1 pick who signed a six-year, $11 million deal with the Dallas Cowboys.

Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns meet the press

The Associated Press

Hearns, Leonard...

had heart," Hearns said. "I didn't think he had such a big heart."

Hearns, the Detroit "Hit Man" whose previous three fights had many questioning his remaining skills, showed some heart of his own.

Hearns was wobbled by a Leonard left hook in the fifth round and Leonard pressed the attack, landing punch after punch to Hearns' head as he tried desperately to cover up in Leonard's corner.

Leonard hurt Hearns again in the ninth round, again with a left hook, and used the same punch to regain the momentum early in the 12th round and nearly finish Hearns off.

Both fighters were seemingly exhausted by that time, spent from the brutal exchanges and 93-degree heat at ringside.

"He stood there, he hung in there and fought a courageous fight," Leonard said. "He's a tough cookie."

Hearns had the added burden of fighting the day his brother, Henry, was arraigned on a murder charge in the shooting death of his girlfriend in Thomas Hearns' Michigan home.

"I don't think I need to comment on it until I know the details," Hearns said after the fight. "I have to go home and check into it. I hope that everything will be okay at home."

The fight had shaped up as the last hurrah for the 30-year-old Hearns, whose pieces of five world titles and earnings of millions of dollars were always overshadowed by his losses in big fights, particularly to Leonard.

Before the bout, he talked of the pain of living with the Leonard loss and the years he had yearned to redeem himself.

And after the draw was announced, Hearns acted like he was a vindicated fighter, at last able to deal with his earlier defeat.

NBA...

when he realized his injury hampered him too much.

"I don't think he's going to play" tonight, Riley said. "If his mobility was even 50 percent better than it was (Sunday), it would still be something we couldn't overcome."

No NBA team has won a playoff series after losing the first three games. The last Finals to end in a four-game sweep was 1983 when Philadelphia beat another injury-riddled Laker team.

A Detroit win tonight would end the 20-year NBA career of Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar on a negative note.

"Whatever I have to give I will bring and give it," he said. "It's no time to leave anything at home."

Abdul-Jabbar, who is retiring after this series, had a season-high 24 points and matched season-highs of 13 rebounds and 33 minutes in Game 3.

"We have to get him 20 shots," Riley said. "Our big firepower is down to two guys, Kareem and James Worthy. They have to take the shots that Magic and Byron took."

In last year's Finals, Detroit also was one win away from the championship with a 3-2 lead but lost the next two games.

They have been obsessed with presenting a public face that takes nothing for granted.

"We're prepared to play seven games," Thomas said.

The Lakers "are a very talented and dangerous ballclub," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said. "You don't want to give a team like that any life at all."

LAS VEGAS — It came down to this for Sugar Ray Leonard: Three minutes to decide the fight. Three minutes to come from behind. Three minutes to save the WBC super middleweight championship.

Your move, your sweetheart. Leonard had been knocked down twice by Thomas Hearns on Monday night. That he was still on his feet, still fighting at the end, was a tribute to the survival instincts of this 33-year-old boxer.

But going into the final round he was behind on the cards of two judges and caught in a dead even fight on the third card.

So Sugar Ray reached into his reservoir and somehow came up with three brilliant minutes of slugging. He stalked Hearns all over the ring, whacking him at every opportunity, going for the knockout. That he didn't get it spoke volumes about Hearns.

When these two gallant champions were done, they had a draw, a 12-round tie that Leonard saved with those furious final three minutes. It was a tribute to both men, who fought brilliantly in the oppressive desert heat.

This War had no missiles. But it had plenty of bombs. If the hype was an embarrassment, the fight was not.

This promotion didn't need dancing girls in fatigues and tasteless comparisons with Normandy. It needed only Hearns and Leonard, staging a duel in the desert that bordered on brilliant. And when they were done, they had settled nothing.

Most times, a draw is an unsatisfying result in a fight. This time, though, it might have been justified.

This was a fight that ebbed and flowed as these two gallant champions reached back from the twilight of their careers for one more sunrise.

Twice Hearns knocked Leonard down, first in the third round and then again in the 11th. Both times, Sugar Ray survived, somehow ignoring the strength-sapping heat for a little extra to get out of trouble.

"He showed me he had heart," Hearns said. "I didn't know he had such a big heart. He fooled me."

And Hearns? This was no cakewalk for him, either.

A number of times, Leonard rocked him and that glazed look came over his eyes, the same one that surfaced in the 14th round against Leonard eight years ago.

This time, though, Hearns' suspect legs did not desert him. This time, he hung tough and got through each crisis, often coming back in the next round as if nothing had happened.

"I think what you must understand is that all of a sudden Thomas Hearns is a greater fighter than was expected," Leonard said. "He was a much better fighter. The legs were there, his chin was there."

By the 12th round, Leonard knew he was in trouble. "I knew two knockdowns might be decisive," he said. "Not so much with the judges but I thought they could have a psychological effect on the fans."

So, he went after Hearns, looking for a knockout, throwing flurries of punches, most of them unanswered. He slugged, he jabbed, he did everything he could. Again, Hearns was in trouble but again he survived and finished the fight on his feet.

The final round had earned Leonard a piece of the decision though. It erased a two-point deficit on the card of judge Dalby Shirley, who gave Sugar Ray a 10-8 edge in the final three minutes and scored the fight 112-112. And it gave him the one-point margin on the card of judge Tommy Kaczmarek, who had the fight even going into the final round. Judge Jerry Roth scored it 113-112 for Hearns, giving Leonard a 10-9 edge in the last round.

If the fans were disappointed by no decision, the fighters were not.

"I think we both displayed what champions are made of," Leonard said. "It's up to the judges. Some saw it his way and some saw it my way. I accept the draw. It was justifiable."

Hearns agreed.

"I leave it up to the judges," he said. "We can't argue with them. I'm proud of having a draw. It could have gone the other way. I'm thankful for what I have."

Where does that leave boxing's Senior Tour?

Monday's only loser may have been Roberto Duran, who expected to fight the winner. Duran, who will be 38 in a few days, now may have to go on hold while they arrange Leonard-Hearns III.

Earnhardt Pads Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt's fourth-place finish in Sunday's 300 stock car race gave him a somewhat comfortable lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup standings.

Earnhardt, who finished behind Ricky Rudd, Rusty Wallace and Bill Elliott in the 300-kilometer race at the Sears Point (Calif.) International Raceway, now holds an 89-point lead over second-place Darrell Waltrip, 1,775-1,666, after the first 12 races of the 29-event season.

Waltrip suffered mechanical problems and finished 38th in the 42-car field.

Wallace moved into third in the standings with 1,648 points, followed by Geoff Bodine, 1,637; Mark Martin, 1,613; Elliott, 1,523; Alan Kulwicki, 1,518; Sterling Marlin, 1,502; Davey Allison, 1,496, and Rudd, 1,486.

Waltrip leads the Winston Cup circuit in money winnings with $629,960, followed by Wallace ($628,730); Ken Schrader ($534,130); Earnhardt ($488,910); Terry Labonte ($313,400); Allison ($309,034); Kulwicki ($290,465); Bodine ($286,725); Elliott ($258,907); and Marlin ($258,517).

Dodgers Shuffle Order, Pound Reds 9-2

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Sometimes it works when you save the best for last.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, shuffling the batting order to get runners on base, got a good mix Monday night when they beat the Cincinnati Reds 9-2.

"I think the biggest surprise was the bottom of the order," said Dave Anderson, who drove in three runs for the Dodgers, two with a homer in the eighth off Kent Tekulve. It was Anderson's first home run since last Aug. 21.

"There's been a lot of talk about the top of the order, but the bottom of the order hasn't done that much. If we can continue to get the guys at the bottom of the order to get on base, the pitchers will be able to bunt guys over and the guys at the top of the order drive some runs in," Anderson said.

Kirk Gibson was in the leadoff spot for only the second time as a Dodger, and with former leadoff hitter Willie Randolph dropped to the No. 2 spot, the duo combined to lead the defending World Series champions to the rout.

"We've put guys in the leadoff spot who couldn't get on base," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "We needed someone up front who can get on base. He (Gibson) can very well be the catalyst. I hate to have him bat first because he can hit home runs, but I had to do something."

Gibson, who has hit at least 24 home runs in each of the past five seasons, carried a 1-for-17 slump into the game. But he keyed the struggling Los Angeles offense with a triple, two singles and two walks as the Dodgers piled up 12 hits against three Cincinnati pitchers.

"It doesn't matter whether I'm batting first or third," Gibson said. "Whatever's best for the team. My job isn't to say who bats where. My job is to come here, be in the lineup and do the best I can."

"It really helped (Gibson), batting leadoff, but he is not a leadoff batter," warned Reds manager Pete Rose. "It was good for him to get things going for them. But for the Dodgers to win, Kirk Gibson will have to hit some home runs."

Chicago beat St. Louis in the only other National League game. New York at Pittsburgh was rained out.

Anderson drove in one of his runs with a suicide squeeze against reliever Norm Charlton to give the Dodgers a 5-2 lead. Charlton replaced starter Rick Mahler, who gave up four runs and seven hits through six innings. Charlton allowed three runs, including Randolph's two-run double to cap the seventh.

"I'm tired of watching Norm Charlton give up too many runs," Rose said. "He didn't get any left-handers out. And, on Anderson's squeeze, he should have made the play easily."

"All the runs they scored early were on outs," Mahler said. "They did the little things that make you win. That's why they won last year. Tonight, I let them do what they wanted to do. I had good stuff, but I made some bad pitches." Mike Morgan 5-4, carried a 4-1 lead and a three-hitter into the seventh inning before the Reds loaded the bases against him with no one out. Singles by Eric Davis and Paul O'Neil put runners at first and third and Ken Griffey bounced a hit off the glove of Tracy Woodson, subbing at third base because Jeff Hamilton sat out the game with a sinus infection.

Jeff Reed grounded into a force play at second against reliever Ricky Horton, cutting the margin to 4-2. One out later, rookie John Wetland came on to strike out pinch-hitter Joel Youngblood. The right-hander finished up to record his first major league save.

The Dodgers, who salvaged a split of the four-game series after being shut out in the first two, added their final run in the fifth when Alfredo Griffin singled, took third on Gibson's single and scored when Randolph grounded to second.

plaining of stomach pains. A club spokesman said Diaz would be re-examined today.

Cubs 10, Cardinals 3

Ryne Sandberg drove in three runs with three hits, including a two-run homer, and Jerome Walton had a career-high four hits as Chicago beat St. Louis, ending the Cardinals' five-game winning streak.

"It's nice to bounce back after what happened yesterday," said Steve Wilson, one of six Cubs pitchers shelled in Sunday's loss.

With scheduled starter Rick Sutcliffe sidelined by back spasms,

Wilson made his first major league start and allowed three hits in five innings. Wilson, 3-0, walked one and struck out three.

"What did I tell you," Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said. "They beat the heck out of us. It always happens when you figure to win. Give the kid credit. He did a good job considering he pitched yesterday and gave them five innings today."

Walton led off the first with a single and was forced by Dwight Smith. Sandberg followed with his eighth homer of the season and third in his last three at-bats against Scott Terry, 4-6.

Jeffcoat Hurls Five-Hitter To Lead Texas' 4-0 Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Jeffcoat won't have any problem recalling when he pitched his first complete game and first shutout in the major leagues.

Both came Monday night, when the 29-year-old left-hander pitched a five-hitter to help Texas beat California 4-0.

"The complete game was the most important thing," said Jeffcoat, who made his 11th major-league start. "Shutouts are not that big a deal. I probably won't get a lot of shutouts, but getting complete games will help the club out and make a career for myself."

Jeffcoat's career has been spent for the most part in the minor leagues.

A 13th-round draft choice by Cleveland in 1980, Jeffcoat has played in Waterloo, Batavia and Chattanooga during his journey to the majors.

Jeffcoat, 2-0, made his third start for the Rangers since joining the club from Class AAA Oklahoma City on May 31. He struck out five and walked two in sending the Angels to their fifth straight loss.

"I have a lot of self-satisfaction because of the fact I've been battling for the last five years to get back up and to stay here," Jeffcoat said. "I've spent most of that time in the minor leagues, so I enjoyed tonight. But, I have to come back and try to be consistent in at least two out of every three starts."

Jeffcoat was signed as a free agent by the Rangers in December 1986 after playing briefly in the majors for Cleveland and San Francisco.

"With each outing, you feel a little more comfortable, whether it's sandlot or a Major League park," Jeffcoat said. "You get familiar with the background, the mound, the catcher."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Chicago 5, Cleveland 3; Kansas City 2, Oakland 1 in 11 innings, and Toronto 5, Detroit 4 in 11 innings.

Julio Franco drove in two runs and became the first Rangers second baseman to hit 10 home runs in a season with a solo homer in the sixth inning off Mike Witt, 3-7, to give Texas a 4-0 lead. The record of nine was held by Bump Wills and Toby Harrah. Franco's 56 RBIs are two more than he had all of last season with Cleveland.

Jeffcoat had never lasted more than seven innings.

Henry Hearn Denied Bond At Murder Arraignment

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Anger and frustration poured from Dennis and Sue Barile while the man accused of shooting their daughter was led away sobbing after his arraignment on a first-degree murder charge.

Henry Hearn, 22, the youngest brother of boxer Thomas Hearn, was arraigned Monday in the death Saturday night of his 19-year-old girlfriend, Nancy Barile, in the boxer's suburban Detroit home.

Thomas Hearn fought champion Sugar Ray Leonard to a draw in their World Boxing Council super middleweight championship fight Monday night in Las Vegas.

"I thought about him," Hearn said after the fight. "My brother knows I was concerned about him, that my thoughts were with him. Now I'm going home to help my brother."

Nancy Barile's body was found in a bedroom of the Southfield home, about a mile from the 46th District Courthouse where young Hearn also was charged with a felony firearms violation.

The Barile family was upset because they felt attention was focused on how the slaying would affect the fight, rather than on the death of their daughter.

"I think they're overlooking that because of the boxing match and who he is related to," Mrs. Barile said. "I think that's unfortunate. I wish somebody would look at my side, would ask me how I feel."

Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Lawrence Kozma told Judge Susan Moiseev he had a witness saying Henry Hearn and the victim had argued about going to a party before the shooting.

"Mr. Hearn ordered the victim into a room. She didn't want to go," Kozma told the judge.

"The witness heard, 'I'm going to blow your brains out,'" Kozma said. "The victim's brains were in fact blown out."

Henry Hearn, a slightly built man dressed in loose-fitting blue jail garb, broke into sobs as Kozma described the shooting.

Defense attorney Neil Fink, who described young Hearn as "a gentle kid," said a .44 Magnum went off as his client and the victim struggled.

Henry Hearn stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered by Moiseev, who denied bond. A preliminary examination was set for June 22 at 9:30 a.m. Fink asked for more time and the judge said an extension would be discussed at a conference on Friday.

The defendant's sister, Mary Hearn, sat in the second row at the hearing, and declined comment afterward. The Rev. Clyde Crooks, who sat with her, said he couldn't believe the charges because young Hearn and Barile "were in love."

After the arraignment, Kozma said part of the investigation was continuing. He would neither elaborate nor name the witness he said came forward early Monday.

"She wanted to leave," Kozma told reporters outside the courtroom. "He wouldn't let her. She said, 'Don't let him take me into the room, there's a gun in there.'"

Thomas Hearn is a former Detroit auxiliary policeman. He owns several handguns he keeps in his plush home. Police didn't say to whom the weapon was registered.

Mrs. Barile said her daughter had dated young Hearn for about two months, but the family had never met him.

This is the second shooting incident involving the boxer's family. In May 1988, Kim Craig, the mother of the boxer's young daughter, was shot in the face by a companion while driving her car. She recovered.

Weather Is A Concern For The Beginning Of U.S. Open

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSFORD, N.Y. — Weather could be a major concern this week in the U.S. Open golf tournament.

The National Weather Service has issued a flood watch for the Rochester area through today, but meteorologists have said the skies should clear by the tournament's first round Thursday.

That's good news for the estimated 200,000 people expected to attend the tournament and spend between $20 million and $30 million at hotels, restaurants and concession stands.

"This is probably the most significant event Rochester has hosted in terms of tourism in the past 30 years," said Rick Rivers of the Rochester-Monroe County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

He said virtually all of the hotel rooms in a five-county area have been booked and two colleges also have been filling up their dorms.

A total of 5,000 people and an additional 2,200 volunteers have been busy putting the finishing touches on the clubhouse and the 6,902-yard, par-70 East course.

"The course is ready. It's the best I've seen it for championship conditions," course superintendent Joe Hann said.

His crews will be out daily from 4:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and from 3:30 p.m. until dark to ensure that the course stays in good shape.

"My biggest concern is if we get a tremendous amount of rain ... maintaining the firmness of the greens," Hahn said.

Most of the players have arrived in the city and have been heading out for practice as early as 7 a.m. Practice rounds continue through Wednesday.

A golfer who has already attracted a lot of attention in this city practiced Sunday. His name is Mark McNulty and he's one of the players the Rochester Anti-Apartheid Coalition plans to protest against this week outside the country club.

They plan to set up a picket line Thursday and Friday and hold a march and rally on Saturday.

McNulty is among those athletes listed by the United Nations Committee Against Apartheid as having participated in South African events.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY June 14

- ARIES (March 21 to April 19): There is a tendency to bicker over details in a search for the right formula. Take disappointment or delay in stride.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You get a vote of confidence from a co-worker. Take a conciliatory attitude if challenged. New social contacts are made in the evening.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Daydreaming and a wandering intellect can produce some innovative decisions. There is a tendency to overreact.
- MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A secret meeting can be intriguing. Poorly planned actions can put you in a negative bargaining position.
- LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Don't let criticism dampen your good feelings. Learn more about the other person's motivations and improve your attitude.
- VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): It may be necessary to give a little ground to get your own desires fulfilled. Stubborn tactics will not get you results.
- LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Hidden meanings and motivations complicate the romantic picture. You are satisfied when you can bring joy to others.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Sorting out memorabilia and papers may uncover a lot more than dust. Family demands can have you spending money.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): It is hard to work quietly, without recognition, when you have given so much. Rewards come from an unknown source at a later time.
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A message from a loved one can put you in a good mood. Share your thoughts with others. This is a time of self-discovery.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): It seems that patience and caring for others has not produced results. Making a difficult decision now will bring eventual success.
- PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Focus on matters concerning your self-worth, sensuality and financial security. Satisfying your emotional needs is important.

 For years, we've been trying to convince you to go with the odds. After this hand, you'll probably never again believe anything we tell you.

North might have tried to find a 4-4 spade fit. However, with no ruffing value in his hand, he chose instead to make the value bid of three no trump, a decision which we endorse wholeheartedly.

West led the queen of hearts, attacking declarer's weak spot. It did not take a genius to see that declarer would have to take nine tricks without giving up the lead. And to accomplish that declarer would need to bring in the club suit without loss—if he surrendered a trick to the queen, the defenders would be able to take at least three heart tricks as well as the ace of diamonds.

If clubs were 3-3, declarer would have a straight guess as to which defender held the queen. So to learn more about the hand, declarer cashed three rounds of spades, ending in hand. On the last of these East discarded a diamond.

Since West probably had long hearts for his opening lead, in addition to four spades, he had to be short in clubs. Therefore, East was a favorite to hold the queen of clubs. But if East held at least four clubs to the queen, there was no way declarer could collect four club tricks. East could hold declarer to three by simply covering the jack of clubs when it was led!

This was the time for a desperation play that had a chance of delivering the contract. Declarer went against the odds by leading a low club to the jack. When that won, he cashed dummy's remaining spade and then took three more club tricks for his contract. Well played!

Shelton Cancels

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

STAUNTON, Va. — Country music singer Ricky Van Shelton canceled his appearance with the Statler Brothers at an annual Fourth of July concert because a cover could not be rigged for the stage, the entertainers said.

The Statler Brothers said Monday that Shelton "made elaborate and expensive demands that we are not willing to provide" for the 20th Happy Birthday USA Celebration.

Shelton said in a statement he canceled because of a personal policy not to accept any bookings that did not provide a cover for the stage.

"Mr. Shelton believes that he cannot deliver the caliber performance his fans expect of him in a rain downpour or with an extreme sun beating down on him," the statement said.

Earlier this year, Shelton won male vocalist of the year, single of the year and favorite music video awards from the Music City News Country Awards.

The Happy Birthday U.S.A. committee, which runs the event, said a stage cover would interfere with an American flag that is used in the Statler Brothers' finale, Shelton's statement said.

New Addition

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Pop superstar Michael Jackson will be getting a new addition to his menagerie of animals this week when he receives a baby giraffe.

Sedgwick County Zoo officials said Monday a 1-year-old giraffe named Mahali was set to leave Wednesday for California, where an animal dealer will deliver her to Jackson.

Zoo officials would not disclose Mahali's price, but said female giraffes normally run about $15,000.

Kathleen Quinlan Is Star Of Cable Movie 'Trapped'

By Jerry Buck

KATHLEEN QUINLAN

LOS ANGELES — A decision to work late in her high-rise office building put Kathleen Quinlan's character in the wrong place at the wrong time.

In the USA Network movie "Trapped," Ms. Quinlan plays Marianne, the building manager, who is caught inside the building, first with a thief, then with a killer.

"What I like about it is that she's not a woman who thinks of herself as a fighter," said Ms. Quinlan, "but when she finds herself in this situation she has to pull herself together and fight her way through it."

Ms. Quinlan calls "Trapped" a female version of "Die Hard," the feature film starring Bruce Willis, which was set in a Los Angeles high-rise as the terrorists' robbery-hostage drama unfolded.

"This is about a man whose family has been killed by toxic waste dumped by a huge corporation," she said. "When he hits the building, an industrial thief and myself are trapped in the building. We become the target. So it becomes more one-on-one than 'Die Hard.'"

"Usually this kind of movie is male-oriented. I loved doing all the physical stuff. I did all the stunts except going off the building. I'm a jock so if I get a role where I can act and do something physical I'll take it. The character of Marianne wasn't written in depth, so I put myself in her shoes and developed the character myself. It was all taken very seriously, but it's really a fun, entertainment piece."

The movie, which also stars Bruce Abbott as John, the thief, has its premiere Wednesday on the USA

Network. It was written by Fred Walton, who directed it on location in Dallas.

"We filmed in Dallas because they have some incredible buildings there," Ms. Quinlan said. "We shot it indoors at night. I'm a very outdoor person, and I'm not a night person. This girl likes to close her eyes at 10:30. We worked from 6 at night until 6 in the morning. It has a lot of action so you really had to be on your toes."

"I'm a former gymnast and so is Bruce Abbott and it really helped. We did one stunt with an explosion. Trust me, if I'd known it was going

Graceland Opens Elvis Car Museum

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — They've toured his house, marveled at the gold records and jeweled jumpsuits and checked out his lavish airplanes. And now, for the Elvis fans who thought they'd seen it all, there's more.

"It's Elvis and America and the automobile," says Todd Morgan, a spokesman for the Elvis Presley Automobile Museum, which opened Monday. "It's Elvis' love affair with cars and America's love affair with cars."

The museum has more than 20 vehicles once owned by the king of rock 'n' roll and is the newest attraction at the 46,000-square-foot souvenir shopping center at Graceland, Presley's former Memphis residence.

More than 650,000 tourists and fans visited Graceland last year. For a $15.95 see-it-all ticket, fans can tour the house, two of Presley's airplanes, his tour bus, a couple of small museums and the new 13,000-square-foot automobile display. It costs $3.50 for the automobile museum alone.

The $1.5 million automobile museum, which includes replicas of a drive-in movie and a 1950s filling station, features vehicles ranging from a go-cart to Presley's favorite Stutz Bearcat.

Many of the vehicles were kept until last year under a backyard carport at Graceland, and they had fallen into serious disrepair, said Brian Hughes of Classic Car Co. of Memphis.

Even the 1955 pink Cadillac that Presley gave his mother was in rough shape, said Hughes, whose company restored the vehicles for the museum. Like many of the display vehicles, the Caddy had to be stripped to its frame and rebuilt, he said.

However, much of the machinery inside the vehicles is still in mint condition. "If you raised the hood, the engine is just like the day Presley gave it to his mother," Hughes said.

The museum includes TV screens beside several of the vehicles showing home movies of Presley or his family.

A short film of Presley movie clips showing him with various vehicles is featured at the drive-in movie set at the center of the museum. For seating, the set has 38 front seats from 1957 Chevrolets.

Graceland is operated for the financial benefit of Presley's only child, Lisa Marie, 21, who will inherit the house and tourist complex at age 25. She has agreed to leave the operation with its current management at least until she is 30.

Last year the complex took in $12 million, up from $9 million two years ago, said Jack Soden, general manager of the Graceland Division of Elvis Presley Enterprises.

Presley died of heart disease in 1977 and Graceland soon became a mecca for the Elvis faithful. The fans were barred from the house until 1982 when the Presley estate hired Soden and other professionals to take advantage of Graceland's potential as a tourist attraction.

Soden said he expects Graceland's business to keep growing, including plans to join outside investors to open an Elvis museum in England. Managers of the Presley estate also expect to take part in a music museum to be built in downtown Memphis.

Acting Offspring Of The Stars Still Need Talent, Peter DeLuise Says

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BALTIMORE — Peter DeLuise, one of the cast members of "21 Jump Street," Fox Television's hipper-than-thou teen message show, is here taping promos.

"Tune in to '21 Jump Street' I'm Peter DeLuise. I'm a bigger star than Johnny Depp. (Big pause.) Physically, that is."

Laughter fills the studio.

Now, this is the part of the story where the young DeLuise — 22, sunstreaked blond, fleshy and powerfully built — expects the writer to make the obligatory "son of Dom DeLuise" reference. "That's how they always introduce me. There's no getting around it," he explains.

Son of: Dom DeLuise, famous Burt Reynolds sidekick, funny man, fat man laughing on the outside, zipping his emotions tight on the inside.

But as Peter DeLuise discusses it, willingly and without any apparent difficulty, "There's an identity problem among (kids of famous people).... It's like they end up committing suicide, or overdosing. We're becoming an endangered species.... The problems are complicated. Like when someone becomes my friend, is it because of me or because of who my father is?"

What he doesn't so readily acknowledge are the advantages, clearly, that help open doors to a young man who might otherwise be another anonymous actor. "It opens doors, yeah," he says. "But if you don't have the talent, you don't get hired."

He grew up in Los Angeles, with two younger brothers, (now also in show business) and his mother, also an actress. His father, he says, neither encouraged nor discouraged his ambitions but found him work as an extra when he was a child. His parents are still together. You can't say that for a lot of the marriages in Pacific Palisades. His father, he says, wanted him to be normal, so he went to public schools, was probably the only visibly famous kid at Pacific Palisades High School.

He describes his character, Officer Doug Penhall, this way: "Emotionally scarred from childhood and carrying a heavy weight. Uses humor to sidetrack investigation into soul."

Ask him about his weight, his following in his father's image - playing the sidekick rather than the romantic lead — and he reveals little.

"My dad and I don't have a weight problem," he jokes, "We're just big-boned."

Yet when a photographer starts shooting, he requests, no full shots, please. "I'm a little concerned about my weight."

He immediately sidetracks: "I'm not self-conscious about my weight. I'm more self-conscious about my acting."

The mighty Bismarck, as it was shown in 1941 as the pride of the Germany naval fleet

Wreck Of Famed WWII German Battleship Found

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — After a fruitless search last year, the German battleship Bismarck has been found on the ocean floor 600 miles off the coast of France, 48 years after it was sunk by the British Navy.

The Bismarck was located Monday under 15,000 feet of water by a remote-controlled robot named Argo that scuttles across the ocean floor. Argo and his master, expedition leader Dr. Robert Ballard, also discovered the sunken Titanic four years ago.

The Bismarck was sitting upright on the sea floor "intact in an excellent state of preservation" about 600 miles west of Brest on the Brittany coast, said Ballard, who is based at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution on Cape Cod.

The discovery is likely to trigger great curiosity among naval historians, said Maj. Charles Neimeyer, a history professor at the U.S. Naval Academy.

"They'll be looking for the sort of technology the Germans had at the time, because this ship was considered state-of-the-art," he said. The find could answer questions about the way the ship went down and "how the crew lived and survived at sea on a German warship," he added.

No human remains were found near the Bismarck, on which all but about 100 of the 2,200 crew members perished. A memorial service for those who perished was held aboard one of the expedition's ships.

The ship will be left undisturbed as a grave site, like the Titanic, according to David Gallo, assistant director of the Center for Marine Exploration at Woods Hole. The battleship might be explored by the sophisticated robot, though, Gallo said.

Ballard and a research team searched several days for the Bismarck last year. Instead of the Bismarck, the explorers found a 19th century sailing ship that has yet to be identified, Gallo said.

"There were quite a few reports about its position when it sank," Gallo said. "But the problem is, those reports can be off by a mile or more, and a mile at sea, when you're looking at the sea floor, represents a very large area to be covered in a search."

The demise of the dreaded Bismarck, which was equipped with eight 15-inch guns, began on May 24, 1941, when it encountered the Royal Navy off the coast of Greenland.

The Bismarck sank Britain's battle cruiser Hood but was hit by the Prince of Wales. The Germans then fled south for occupied France with the British in pursuit.

Two days later, British warships and aircraft located the crippled vessel and launched a furious attack. The Bismarck finally went down the next day.

The successful campaign was a significant victory for the Allies, who thwarted Hitler's plan to use the Bismarck to raid Atlantic Ocean shipping lanes.

Neimeyer said the victory also gave a big psychological boost to the Royal Navy, which was stunned by the loss of the Hood.

"This gave confidence to the carrier-aviation community that they could indeed sink a battleship," he said.

The expedition was jointly funded by Turner Broadcasting System Inc. and a group of private investors. The National Geographic Society plans to produce a documentary on the discovery that will be televised next fall.

U.S. Trade Gap Tops $30 Billion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. trade worsened dramatically in the first three months of the year, widening to $30.69 billion, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the deficit in the current account was 7 percent larger than the $28.68 billion imbalance run up in the final three months of 1988.

The current account, also known as the balance of payments, is the most important trade statistic because it measures not only trade in merchandise but also transactions in services, primarily investment flows between countries.

The merchandise trade deficit improved sharply in the first quarter, narrowing by 13.7 percent to $27.63 billion. However, this improvement was wiped out by a decline in the services category, which fell to a tiny $369 million surplus from a surplus of $8.36 billion in the fourth quarter of 1988.

Reinstatement

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two police officers involved in the death of James Edward Swan will be reinstated without disciplinary action, according to a written statement from the city council.

Noting the officers have been exonerated from any criminal wrongdoing through the findings of the grand jury, the statement said Monday the city "has found no basis to discipline or take any administrative actions against either police officer."

The officers' actions during the arrest of Swan, a suspected drug dealer, on Feb. 1 did not violate established arrest policies and procedures nor pertinent regulations of the city, officials said.

Swan died during a drug raid after a brief scuffle with police.

Analysts said the steep drop in the services surplus reflected the fact that the dollar rose in the first quarter, lowering American businesses' earnings overseas.

The current account provides a measure of the amount of money this country must raise abroad to finance its economy. The United States, because of huge merchandise trade deficits, was transformed from the world's largest creditor nation to the largest debtor country during the 1980s.

Simply put, that means that foreigners now own more U.S. assets than Americans hold overseas. Both the Reagan and Bush administrations have claimed that this is a sign of strength, showing that the United States remains a popular place to invest.

However, private economists have warned that the growing debt burden will ultimately lower America's standard of living as more and more dollars are handed over to foreigners as interest payments on the debt.

With the $30.69 billion current account deficit in the first quarter, the imbalance between U.S. holdings abroad and foreign holdings in the United States has probably climbed past $500 billion, up from $368 billion at the end of 1987. However, the government will not release the official calculation of that figure until June 29.

As recently as 1981, the United States ran surpluses in its current account because the nation's cushion in overseas investment earnings was enough to offset perennial merchandise trade deficits.

But in 1985, the United States became a net debtor for the first time in 71 years as the value of American investments overseas were surpassed by the value of foreign holdings in the United States. That reflected the fact that billions of dollars had been transferred into foreign hands to pay for foreign cars and television sets and other imported goods.

Today's report said that in addition to the $27.63 billion deficit in merchandise trade and the $369 million surplus in the services category, the $30.69 billion current account deficit reflected payments of $3.42 billion in foreign aid and pensions to Americans living overseas.

Argentina's Chief Will Resign, But His Successor Isn't Ready

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Citing the disastrous state of the economy, President Raul Alfonsin says he has no choice but to resign five months before his term ends. But the president-elect says he's not ready to take office.

The economic chaos prompted hundreds of hungry Argentines early this month to storm supermarkets and steal food they could not afford. At least 14 people died and dozens were seriously injured in the rioting.

"The government's room for action during the months that remain of its mandate is too narrow to face the problems with a chance for success," Alfonsin said in announcing late Monday that he would step down June 30.

"Any delay brings greater suffering for everyone," he told the nation in a surprise 15-minute televised address, adding that Vice President Victor Martinez would resign with him.

The six-year term of the man whose civilian administration replaced a discredited military dictatorship officially ends Dec. 10.

But President-elect Carlos Menem, a populist champion of the working poor, said it would be "impossible" for him to take office five months early.

In a terse statement from northwestern La Rioja province, where he is governor, the Peronist leader said that would require legislation that could not possibly be enacted by month's end. The six-paragraph communique did not elaborate, or say when Menem would be ready.

The country last transferred power between two elected governments in 1928.

Menem slipped out a side entrance of his office to avoid reporters, Argentine news agencies reported from La Rioja, 700 miles from Buenos Aires.

Provincial news secretary Adrian Freijejo said Senate president Eduardo Menem — the president-elect's younger brother — would act as interim president, as the constitution sets out.

Alfonsin's address followed days of talks between the governing Radical Civic Union and Menem's Peronist Party.

On May 14, the Peronist Party won the presidency for just the second time in 34 years and attained virtual control of both houses of Congress. The party already controlled legislatures in 17 of Argentina's 22 provinces.

Menem, 58, and Alfonsin, 62, talked about an early transition almost immediately after the vote, but disagreed on how to stabilize the economy.

Little action has thus been taken to curtail inflation, which hit 78.5 percent in May, and interest rates and unemployment continue to rise.

The economic problems have been fueled by Argentina's $59 billion foreign debt. Problems in repaying the debt and meeting demands by foreign creditors also caused rioting in Venezuela in February, and have been blamed for instability in Brazil, Peru and other Latin American nations.

The independent news agency Diarios y Noticias cited another reason for the resignation of Alfonsin, who had been barred by the constitution from seeking a second term.

It quoted unidentified government sources as saying Menem was trying to pressure Alfonsin into granting amnesty to officers who led three barracks revolts during his tenure and to others convicted of human rights abuses during the military dictatorship's "dirty war" against leftists from 1976-83.

"The insistence ... prompted the government to decide to announce its departure," DyN quoted the sources as saying. "Alfonsin does not want an amnesty."

A former president and army commander, Gen. Jorge Videla, and seven other top officers were convicted of human rights abuses committed during the seven-year dictatorship, when at least 8,961 people were arrested, never seen again and presumed executed. Human rights groups claim the death toll is much higher.

Clashes Break Out

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — Radical students calling for the overthrow of President Roh Tae-woo today battled riot police with firebombs and stones after holding rallies to denounce a government crackdown on dissidents.

Clashes between police and protesters broke out at six Seoul colleges while peaceful protests were held at six other campuses.

Riot police in green combat fatigues and visored helmets ringed all the colleges to stop protesters from marching into the streets.

The clashes came amid conflicting reports that Roh intends to shuffle his Cabinet and remove senior ministers he believes have performed effectively. About 300 protesters, some of them armed with wooden clubs and iron pipes, battled police with firebombs at Sogang University in western Seoul after the students marched out of the campus beating drums and waving flags.

Hundreds of riot troopers blocked nearby streets and hurled rocks at the students but did not use tear gas. Students hurling rocks battled riot police at nearby Yonsei University after they were blocked from marching out.

"Beat Roh Tae-woo to death!" and "Oust Roh Tae-woo!" students chanted.

Police said they had no reports of arrests or serious injuries.

New Fighting Dampens Peace Hopes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian and Christian forces fought with tanks and recoilless rifles in hills southeast of Beirut today, dampening hopes that Arab League efforts would swiftly end the latest outbreak in the 14-year civil war.

A spokesman for Christian army commander Michel Aoun said Syrian gunners were shelling his forces' positions in hills around the mountain town of Souk el-Gharb as well as in Beirut's Christian suburbs of Kfarshima and Hadath.

He said the Syrians were shelling from positions in the village of Aitaf, opposite Souk el-Gharb, and from the suburb of Choueifat.

The spokesman accused the Syrians of starting the barrage as Arab League Assistant Secretary General Lakhdar Ibrahim crossed Beirut's dividing Green Line for talks with Gen. Aoun and other Christian leaders in east Beirut.

"They shelled us with tank cannons and recoilless rifles. We are responding in kind," said the spokesman on condition of anonymity.

He accused the Syrians of provoking the fighting to "foil efforts by Arab leaders to work out a solid cease-fire."

Shortly before dawn, Syrian howitzer batteries deployed in Moslem west Beirut fired 20 shells at the coastline north of the city in an apparent effort to maintain a blockade of Christian ports.

Police said the 130mm shells exploded around the ports of Byblos and Jounieh. No casualties were reported.

The renewed shelling after a two-day lull contrasted sharply with reports in Lebanese media that a cease-fire agreement had been worked out by Ibrahim in Damascus, the Syrian capital.

U.S.-China Relations Strained Over Dissidents

By John Schidlovsky
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BEIJING — Relations between China and the United States have reached one of their lowest points in the decade since the two countries normalized ties.

As Chinese armed police stood outside the American Embassy early Tuesday morning in slightly larger than usual numbers, the tension palpable on the street was also evident in the worsening feud between the two nations.

Inside the embassy, dissident Fang Lizhi and his wife, Li Shuxian, were going into their ninth day of refuge after fleeing to the embassy in the wake of the army massacre of pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen square.

Photographs like police mug shots of the couple appeared on Monday night's news with a story about an arrest warrant signed by the city's Public Security Bureau.

Accused of "counterrevolutionary" crimes, Fang and his wife face long prison terms, if not execution, should they emerge. American officials say they will not cave in to Chinese pressure to release the couple.

The Chinese-American standoff was best described over the weekend by American ambassador James Lilley, who said in an interview with CBS News:

"We Americans stand for certain things and I don't think we're going to change. And I think the Chinese stand for certain things and they're not going to change. And then, you strike a deal."

Whether a deal can be arranged remains to be seen. But the urgency was growing: Some diplomats said they expected Chinese officials to whip up a demonstration outside the embassy grounds by "private citizens" to demand Fang's surrender.

A prominent astrophysicist and outspoken advocate of democracy, Fang was careful during the seven-week student movement to keep a low profile. However, from the beginning of the protest, the government accused him and his wife of encouraging the demonstrators, whom it now labels counterrevolutionary "thugs" and "ruffians."

Fang has found himself at the center of previous U.S.-China diplomatic wrangling. In February, he was forcibly prevented from attending a banquet hosted by President Bush during the American leader's visit to China.

The next day, the president said on his departure from China that he regretted the incident. Chinese officials, always extremely sensitive to being criticized by others, began a counteroffensive in which they labeled Bush's remarks irresponsible and interference in China's "internal affairs."

After last weekend's army massacre of hundreds, possibly thousands, of unarmed civilians, China has again circled the wagons. It has condemned Bush's decision to limit military ties with China as unacceptable.

In the past few days, the government's non-stop propaganda barrage has unleashed a torrent of attacks against the American Embassy's sheltering of Fang, and against the contents of Chinese language newscasts by the Voice of America, which is widely listened to here.

The shrill propaganda assault comes on the heel of last week's firing by Chinese troops into a diplomatic building that is home to several American military attaches and security officials. Remarkably, no one was hurt by the spray of gunfire.

At the time, the shooting was believed to have been a spur-of-the-moment spree by troops driving by on the street and possibly trying to intimidate foreigners and discourage photograph-taking from the building.

But according to reliable diplomatic sources, the trajectory of some of the bullet holes indicates the shots were not fired from the ground up but from directly opposite the upper stories of the building.

That would indicate a planned attack on the apartments, with shots that could only have come from a large building under construction directly across Changan Avenue. There have been no witnesses stating they saw soldiers shooting from across the street, however.

The deterioration in relations comes at a time when China recently improved its ties with the Kremlin. Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and China's senior leader Deng Xiaoping met here last month to begin a new era of "normalized" relations.

After the Tiananmen massacre, the Soviet Union was one of the few countries that did not condemn the slaughter.

The United States, by contrast, has been in the lead of the worldwide criticism. Ironically, after years of hesitating to offend China because it might drive the Chinese back into the "Soviet camp," Washington has now made its toughest criticism at a time when Sino-Soviet relations are the best in three decades.

President Bush and Ambassador Lilley have said they do not want to jeopardize the future of the U.S. relations with China. However, diplomats said the ruling hard-liners led by Deng were finding it to their political advantage to arouse public hostility to the United States.

"It plays right into their hands," said a Western diplomat of Fang's taking refuge in the embassy. "It gives the Chinese a chance to blame all of the demonstrations on the Americans."

Some U.S.-China programs may suffer. A plan to send an initial 20 American Peace Corp workers to China this fall may be canceled. The fate of 40,000 Chinese students in the United States is unclear, as is the future of American investments and tourism in China.

China Steps Up Attacks On VOA Reports

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BEIJING — China attacked the Voice of America Monday for "rumor-mongering" and deliberately provoking violence in its daily broadcasts on the pro-democracy movement, escalating the government's criticism of the United States.

The accusation, in a front-page commentary in The People's Daily, the official party newspaper, the Beijing Daily and two other newspapers, singled out 10 VOA radio broadcasts aired since the pro-democracy marches began in Beijing, detailed their "lies and rumors," "irresponsible news" and "purely fictional" reports and then provided readers with the government's version of events.

"Whenever this trouble was settling down," said the article, "Voice of America would deliberately provoke. And not only did they run instigating, attacking, provoking news, but they would also air lies."

The barrage of anti-VOA attacks, also carried on television and radio, followed within hours the issuing of an arrest warrant for Chinese dissident Fang Lizhi and his wife who have taken refuge in the U.S. Embassy.

Alan W. Pessin, 33, the VOA's chief China correspondent, said that the Chinese criticisms reflect the government's determination to control the information its citizens receive.

He estimated VOA's Chinese audience, which includes students, workers, diplomats, even foreign ministry officials, to be

"tens of millions" and "in times of crisis probably more than that."

Responding to the government's charges, Pessin said, "We have spent an inordinate amount of time in the last eight weeks tracking down rumors and ending up not using them."

When the government imposed martial law in Beijing May 20, it forbade foreign correspondents from using "press coverage to make instigating and inciting propaganda." In its attack, the government accused the VOA of nearly that: "VOA already has concocted too many rumors. And their efforts to incite counterrevolutionary rebellion has really born fruit."

Although violating martial law could result in expulsion from China, Pessin said, "We're trying not to let this affect us. It's not going to change what we do on a daily basis, that's for sure."

Chinese officials weren't the only people upset with VOA coverage; at times, so were student demonstrators who complained during the demonstrations in Tiananmen Square that the VOA correspondents were not doing enough, Pessin said.

One time, the VOA correspondents were greeted by a poster thanking the British Broadcasting Corp., the VOA's main competitor, Pessin said, but he told that students, "It's not our job to support you." "Maybe when you get it from both sides, it means you're doing a credible job and maybe I should take solace in that," said Pessin.

Tiananmen Square Reopens To Traffic

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — Curious Beijing residents today were allowed to drive and bicycle around a heavily guarded Tiananmen Square for the first time since the army took it by force June 4 from student protesters.

Soldiers and traffic police allowed no stopping, but there was plenty of gawking as bicyclists pedaled past 36 tanks and armored personnel carriers along the road at the northern edge of the square and a dozen at the southern end. Pedestrian traffic was not allowed.

The 100-acre square itself was nearly empty, with soldiers standing every 15 feet along the perimeter, facing outward with rifles in their hands. Rolls of barbed wire lined the southern corners.

The stone slabs that pave the square looked charred and scraped in places, but there was no other sign of the battle that raged on the edges of the square the night of June 3-4, when tanks roared in from the east and west. Some students have said the army also fired on the protesters inside the square, but the government has denied it.

The Chinese government has said nearly 300 people were killed, mostly soldiers. But Chinese witnesses and Western intelligence said the toll could be as high as 3,000, most of them civilians.

Tiananmen Square is the center of Beijing both physically and psychologically. On one side stands the former imperial palace, on another is the Great Hall of the People, the seat of government.

Protesters traditionally have taken their causes to Tiananmen, from college students who protested China's ceding territorial rights to foreign countries in 1919, to the tens of thousands of students who occupied the square repeatedly in April and May to demand talks with the government, press freedom and end to official corruption.

The square also is a favorite place for Beijing residents to stroll and fly kites on warm evenings and weekends.

The army quickly cleaned up the students' tents and banners but the 10-day delay in reopening the square indicated it took longer to erase other signs of the student occupation and violent recapture. Some television broadcasts over the past week showed soldiers scrubbing graffiti off the square's monument to revolutionary heroes and scraping up charred debris.

Also opened for the first time in weeks was the imperial palace, one of Beijing's top tourist attractions. However, visitors were directed to the north gate and a large portion of the palace compound in the south, closest to the square, was closed without explanation.

Diplomats In Hiding

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Two Chinese diplomats, who denounced their government after the Beijing massacre, remained in hiding today to study their options after declining to ask for political asylum.

The young consulate officers, the first Chinese diplomats to defect to the United States since the Communist Revolution in 1949, met for several hours Monday with the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"They haven't requested anything," said David Ilchert, INS regional director. "They are not in INS custody and told us they do not wish to make any statement to the press. They're mulling over the options and may wish to seek legal counsel."

Meanwhile, China's consul general in San Francisco issued a brief statement calling the defections "utterly unjustifiable," and said China is "making representations" to the United States regarding the case.

The defectors are worried about giving up their homeland and careers but didn't appear to be worried about violent reprisals against them, said FBI agent Richard Held.

He said the consulate officers, who are at an undisclosed site in the San Francisco Bay area, are not in FBI protective custody.
