North Evades Jail, Draws $150,000 Fine

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A federal judge today gave Oliver L. North a three-year suspended prison sentence and fined him $150,000 for his role in covering up his involvement in the Iran-Contra affair.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell placed the former National Security Council aide on two years' probation and ordered him to perform 200 hours of community service administering a new program to help inner-city youth avoid involvement in drugs.

Gesell cited North's distinguished career as a Marine officer before he became a staff member at the White House during the Reagan administration.

He told North that during the Iran-Contra affair "I don't think you were a leader at all." He said North was "really a low-level subordinate who was carrying out the instructions of a few cynical superiors."

North, who has said he will appeal his conviction on three counts, had faced a maximum of 10 years' imprisonment and fines totaling $750,000.

Pronouncing sentence, Gesell told North:

"Along the way you came to accept the view that Congress couldn't be trusted ... that the fate of the country could be left to a small inside group not elected that was free to act as they chose while publicly professing to act differently."

But Gesell said that even though North was following orders, "you're not the fall guy for this tragic breach of the public trust."

The judge said North failed to understand "how the public service has been tarnished" by his activities.

North remained at the defense table for a few minutes after Gesell concluded the sentencing. He then walked over to his wife, Betsy, who was sitting in the front row, kissed her on the cheek and whispered in her ear. The two then smiled broadly.

The 45-year-old retired Marine lieutenant colonel was found guilty May 4 of aiding and abetting the obstruction of Congress by helping write a false chronology of a 1985 arms shipment to Iran. He also was

Fed May Loosen Credit Policies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — With growing fears of a possible recession, the Federal Reserve is likely to further loosen credit policy and drive a variety of consumer and business loan rates lower, many private economists predict. Analysts believe fixed-rate mortgage loans will soon dip below 10 percent and other consumer loans will drop by one-half percentage point before the summer is over as the central bank struggles to keep the aging economic recovery alive.

"The Fed has a plate full of statistics suggesting that a wise insurance policy against a recession would be to make another easing move," said Robert Dederick, chief economist of Northern Trust Co. of Chicago.

The forecasts of a looser credit policy came as Fed officials gathered for the start today of two important days of closed-door meetings to map monetary strategy for the rest of the year.

Decisions made by the Federal

Open Market Committee, composed of members of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington and five of the 12 regional Fed bank presidents, will not be revealed until July 20 when Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan delivers the central bank's midyear policy update to Congress.

The Fed in March 1988 launched a credit-tightening effort which drove interest rates up by 3 full percentage points in an effort to dampen growing inflationary pressures by reducing borrowing demands.

But last month, in a major policy shift, the central bank sent a key interest rate, the federal funds rate, down by 0.25 percentage point to around 9.50 percent. The funds rate is the interest that banks charge each other for overnight loans.

Many private economists believe the Fed will decide to lower the funds rate by another 0.25 percentage point in July. Similar small declines would be likely in the following months if the economic

Thousands See Fireworks Show

By Carol Tyer and Lane Dunn
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

An estimated 30,000 or more people were in Greenville on Tuesday night for the July Fourth fireworks display and many more — some possibly the same people — visited the city's Town Common during the daylong community celebration.

"We were very pleased," said Fred Keith, a co-chairman of the Greenville Jaycees-organized event. "The Jaycees — everyone involved — did a lot of work and cooperated beautifully. The weather was great. Everything just flowed all day, I think. A lot of money was made for a lot of good causes and it looked like everyone had a good time."

Rick Cannon of Greenville, regional vice president of the North Carolina Jaycees, said of the sponsorship of the event by the Greenville Jaycees, "I can't say enough about what a great job was done by all the Jaycees and all the rest of the community they had taking part. Fred Keith and Ricky Langley, the co-chairmen, are the greatest organizers I've ever seen. They started on this celebration immediately after the 1988 one and I think that all their hard work showed. It was just super!"

Cannon said state Jaycee President Donnie Solomon of Durham was among those enjoying the day in Greenville. "Donnie said this was a fantastic project for a Jaycee group to undertake, a great thing for the community. He was very impressed," Cannon said.

Cannon, who also helped with concessions, said, "About everything we had sold out. We sold a lot of hamburgers and hot dogs. And so did the Vietnam Vets and the Farmville Jaycees. We all really did well."

Keith said no reports of money made by the many organizations that were allowed to have fund-

Abortion Activists Turning To States

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Activists planning a state-by-state legislative campaign for abortion rights say they have little hope that a deeply divided Supreme Court will protect their interests.

"We will do everything we can to make this the issue of the coming elections," said Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women. "We will seek to build a political army all across the country."

The aim, she said Tuesday, is to convince legislators they will pay a heavy price for supporting anti-abortion laws.

The high court's willingness to scrap the constitutional right to abortion it established 16 years ago appears now to hinge precariously on the vote of Sandra Day O'Connor, the only woman in the nation's history to serve as a Supreme Court justice.

Abortion rights groups say they have little reason to hope she will vote to bar states from enacting tougher and tougher laws to limit abortions.

"She never met a regulation she doesn't like," said Sarah Weddington, the lawyer who successfully argued the 1973 case of Roe vs. Wade that legalized abortion.

Related story on A-9

"We can't look to the courts for our protection on this any more," said Patricia Ireland of the National Organization for Women.

Those assessments were prompted by the high court's ruling Monday that barely stopped short of letting states outlaw abortions.

In a series of 5-4 votes, the justices ended their 1988-89 term by removing some of the shackles that barred states from regulating most abortions for 16 years. In its next term beginning in October, the court could give states even broader power.

The court agreed to study three new abortion disputes, giving it a new opportunity to overturn Roe vs. Wade in 1990.

"There is no longer a majority on the court to support Roe," said Janet Benshoof of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Abortion opponents happily agreed.

"Roe's days are numbered," said Randall Terry of Operation Rescue.

O'Connor is one of five justices who have expressed hostility to the 1973 ruling. In 1983 she said its central premise — permitting greater state control as a woman's pregnancy proceeds — has "no justification in the law or logic."

But if the 16-year-old structure is tottering, O'Connor has not yet announced a willingness to topple it.

The time is not ripe to discard it, she said, choosing instead to uphold Missouri regulations limiting abortion rights on narrower grounds.

She voted, for example, to let states require various medical tests to determine whether a fetus at least 20 weeks old is "viable" or capable of surviving outside the womb.

Two Men Charged In Holiday Fighting

Two people were arrested by Greenville police on assault charges in connection with a fight that broke out near the intersection of First and Washington streets following the Fourth of July fireworks display at the Town Common on Tuesday night.

Officer B.M. Highland identified the two — who were charged with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury — as Shelton Pippins, 18, of Route 15, Greenville, and James Mickey Canady, 20, of Route 1, Rowland.

Highland said the charges resulted from a disturbance involving "three whites and about 15 to 20 blacks" in which three blacks were cut and two other people — one white and the other black — were hit.

Highland said that Pippins required 79 stitches to close a 20-inch wound in his back.

The officer suggested that more charges would have been made in connection with the incident, reported at 10:45 p.m., if those assaulted had been able to identify their attackers.

In addition to the assault charges, Officer C.A. Curtis said Louis Lima, 30, of the Greenville Community Shelter was arrested on Reade Street about 9:27 p.m. on charges of being intoxicated and disruptive.

Moon Rock Cache Still Yielding Clues To The Secrets Of Space

By Howard Benedict
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — When two explorers first set foot on the moon two decades ago, they found a lifeless world, baked by day and frozen by night in temperatures ranging from 230 degrees below zero to 270 degrees above.

They found no wind, no storms, no clouds, no water, no magnetic field, the thinnest of atmospheres and gravity one-sixth the strength of Earth's.

"It has a stark beauty all its own," said Neil Armstrong. Buzz Aldrin described it as "magnificent desolation."

Armstrong, Aldrin and 10 other Americans who followed them to the moon in the next 3½ years returned with 842 pounds of rocks and soil. They left behind sensors that sent data on moonquakes, meteors, radiation and the solar wind.

Slowly, almost grudgingly, this trove is yielding secrets about the moon and its place in the solar system.

A picture is emerging of a birth in searing heat, a brief, violent life of boiling lava and shattering collision, and geological death 3 billion years ago when volcanic activity ceased. The moon's surface has remained essentially unchanged since, except by impact from an occasional meteorite and almost imperceptible dustings from solar and cosmic radiation.

This stability means much of the history of the solar system during those 3 billion years can be read by studying lunar rocks. But the revelations go back even further because samples dating to more than 4 billion years and fragments at 4.6 billion — back to the beginning — have been found in the Apollo samples.

Most experts agree the solar system was born 4.6 billion years ago when great masses of gaseous matter called the solar nebula began condensing to form the sun and planets. The nebula condensed into debris ranging from pebbles to miles-wide boulders, that collided and fused to create celestial bodies.

Scientists believe the young Earth underwent the same period of meteor bombardment and volcanism that the moon did for half a billion years. The weak lunar gravity couldn't keep volcanic gases from escaping into space. But Earth, with its stronger gravity, held on to its volcanic vapors and they helped form an atmosphere and oceans, creating conditions for the development of life.

Because erosion, tides and weather have scoured Earth's surface, the oldest rocks found date back only 3.7 billion years. The older lunar rocks, therefore, are helping scientists piece together Earth's formative years.

However, less than 20 percent of the samples have been studied. The rest are in air-tight, nitrogen-filled stainless steel cabinets locked in vaults at the Johnson Space Center and at Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas.

John W. Dietrich, deputy chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Planetary Science branch and curator of the material, said the samples will stay there until better analytical techniques are found.

The rocks have not revealed exactly how the moon originated, but they have eliminated some old theories and raised a new one.

Before Apollo there were three theories about the origin: that it formed near Earth as a distinct body; that it was once a piece of the Earth; and that it formed elsewhere in the solar system and was captured by Earth's gravity.

"We have determined that all three of them are impossible. The theory best accepted at the moment is a hybrid between two of those," Dietrich said.

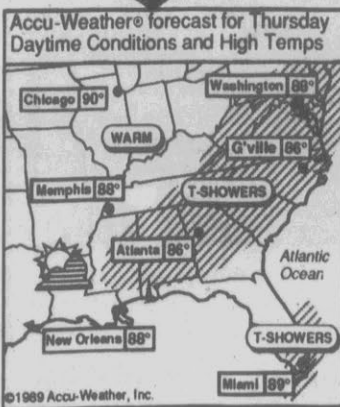

The new theory is that the moon resulted from cataclysm: When Earth and the other would-be planets were still partly molten a body perhaps the size of Mars — which has one-tenth the mass of Earth — collided with our planet.

The high-speed impact caused a giant explosion and the outer layers of the intruder disintegrated, at least partially vaporizing the rocky material. That and vaporized chunks from Earth's outer layer were ejected, with some of the material flying high and fast enough to orbit Earth, forming a ring.

The vapors cooled and condensed into solid particles, which coalesced over a few hundred or a few thousand years into the primitive moon.

"That would explain why the moon has so many of the same chemical properties as the Earth, but in different proportions," Dietrich said. "It also would explain the low metallics on the moon, the deficiencies in iron, and ... the loss of a lot of volatile components that would have been vaporized and lost in the collision."

Bakker's Ex-Aides Go On Trial

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Prosecutors said today the case against two former top aides to PTL founder Jim Bakker revolves around unpaid taxes, but defense attorneys argued that they've already conceded taxes are owed.

"This case is not about Jim Bakker, Tammy Bakker or Richard Dortch," Justice Department prosecutor Joseph Bender told the eight-woman, four-man jury hearing the case against brothers David and James Taggart. "It's not about whether the defendants collected exorbitant salaries or bonuses. It's about the income the defendants failed to pay taxes on."

In his opening statement, Bender said the government would prove that the Taggart brothers illegally used more than $1.1 million in PTL money to buy such things as a New York condominium, luxury automobiles, jewelry, furs and designer clothing.

"The defendants failed to submit vouchers, expense account reports and documents," Bender said. "That's why we're here."

In his opening remarks, defense attorney Ben Cotten argued that the case did not belong in criminal court.

"This case is not about taxes — we concede at the outset there are some taxes owed by David and James," he said. "This is a case about authorization, intent and doubt."

Cotten said witnesses and documents would show that his clients had authorization to use PTL credit cards and take out cash advances from the highest levels at the television ministry.

He described his clients as hard-working, dedicated employees who were given vast responsibilities in running the multi-million dollar ministry in the early 1980s.

"During this time frame, several people were getting vast amounts of benefits through procedures in place that were not under the control of David and James Taggart," Cotten said.

The two brothers were indicted by a federal grand jury in December on charges they failed to pay $487,000 in income taxes from 1984 to 1987. The indictment came out the same day that PTL founder Bakker and his former top aide, Richard Dortch, were indicted on charges of mail and wire fraud.

Bakker and Dortch's trial on charges of diverting more than $4 million of PTL money to their own use and conspiring to defraud PTL contributors is scheduled to open Aug. 28 in Charlotte. However, a hearing was scheduled today to decide whether to move their trial because of extensive publicity.

U.S. Magistrate Paul Taylor wanted to conduct the hearing behind closed doors, but several news organizations appealed his decision. On June 27, a three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond ruled the hearing should be open.

Dortch also is trying to get a separate trial. Taylor may rule on that motion today.

Prosecutors David Brown and Bender are expected to call up to 69 witnesses to testify during the trial, which may last as long as a month.

The witness list in the Taggart trial looks like a "Who's Who" of TV evangelism. The prosecution may call evangelists Jerry Falwell, John Wesley Fletcher, Rex Humbard and Rex Humbard Jr.

Cotten's witnesses could include Bakker's daughter, Tammy Sue Chapman, and former PTL board member, the Rev. Aimee Cortese.

Cotten has said the lifestyles of the Taggarts and their relationship with Bakker would be the focus of the case.

"If I were the government, I would try to stress that these people live high on the hog, and now it's time to pay the piper," he said before the trial began.

Cotten insisted his clients are innocent.

"There never was an intent to do anything," he said. "There's no question some taxes may be owed. The question is how and why that came about. That's what this case is going to be about."

The defendants were known for their extravagant purchases.

Cardinal Suspends Rebel D.C. Priest

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Roman Catholic Cardinal James A. Hickey suspended the Rev. George A. Stallings Jr. from functioning as a Roman Catholic priest one day after Stallings publicly disobeyed the cardinal by establishing Imani Temple and appointing himself pastor, it was announced Tuesday.

Hickey's directive, hand-delivered to Stallings at his Washington home, bars Stallings from functioning as a Roman Catholic priest in "preaching, celebration of Mass and the administration of the sacraments."

In the letter dated July 3, the Washington archbishop said the suspension would remain in effect "until you have renounced the fact of disobedience in accordance with the teaching and the discipline of the Roman Catholic Church."

Stallings, 41, said Tuesday that Hickey's action would not deter him from going forward with the Imani Temple, inside or outside the official church.

"I do not recognize his jurisdiction to determine who we are and what we are," Stallings said. Stallings has said that he founded the church because the Catholic Church has moved too slowly to respond to the cultural and spiritual needs of black parishioners.

According to church law, a Mass said by a suspended priest is "valid" for those who attend as long as the proper rite is used, but "illicit." Church doctrine holds that ordination to the priesthood is indelible. "Once a priest, always a priest" is a familiar Catholic maxim.

But a suspended priest may not validly officiate at a marriage, because the priest represents the wider church as well as civil authorities at such a function. Also, a suspended priest may not absolve penitents of their sins after confession.

There is no mechanism for the church to impose sanctions on worshippers who attend illicit rites.

The suspension, which Hickey warned Stallings 10 days ago would happen if the priest proceeded with his self-styled church, will have the effect of publicly distancing Imani Temple from Roman Catholicism.

Stallings has insisted that the church he launched Sunday at the Howard University Law School with more than 1,000 in attendance is an African American expression of Roman Catholicism. By suspending Stallings, Hickey underlined the fact that the Imani Temple does not have the sanction of the Catholic Church.

But in reacting Tuesday to the suspension, Stallings appeared to be loosening his Catholic ties.

Hickey "can only regulate as a bishop of the Roman Catholic Church and I am not functioning in that context," Stallings said. Referring to the large turnout of blacks at the Imani Temple's launching Sunday, Stallings said, "The people have spoken ..."

China Says Corruption Cases Broken In Beijing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — China announced crackdowns on corrupt local officials today, including the smashing of what it called Beijing's biggest fraud case, as part of an avowed drive to purge Communist Party ranks of wrongdoers.

Official media reported arrests, confessions and trials of officials who defrauded their work units and took bribes, driving home the image that the ruling Communists are involved in a major effort to root out corruption.

Rampant official corruption has been a focus of popular anger, and calls to eliminate it were common among pro-democracy protesters whose seven-week movement was crushed June 4 when troops killed hundreds of unarmed civilians in central Beijing.

A wave of arrests of pro-democracy activists followed, along with the suppression of the free exchange of ideas.

Furthering its grip on the information flow, the government has cut off satellite television from the United States, hotel officials said today.

The State Tourism Bureau ordered major hotels in Beijing that receive Cable News Network and the American Forces Radio and Television Service to shut down reception of the broadcasts, the officials said.

Tourism officials were not immediately available for comment, and the city Foreign Affairs Office said it did not know of any such order.

The government, meanwhile, said it would not investigate Chinese students in the United States who participated in anti-Beijing rallies "without knowing the truth."

A statement issued by the Chinese Embassy in Washington said Beijing "would take a lenient approach toward Chinese students who, without knowing the truth, participated in the demonstrations ..."

and that it will not look into their cases at all," the official Xinhua News Agency said.

The corruption cases reported today included what the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily called the biggest fraud case in the Chinese capital since the founding of Communist China 40 years ago.

The paper announced the trial of six people charged with defrauding the Chinese Academy of Sciences Microelectronics Center out of $105,000 — about 217 years' pay for the average civil servant. The paper did not indicate when the trial began or whether a verdict was reached.

Communist Party chiefs in Henan province and the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region announced anti-corruption steps Monday "as part of an effort to respond to the central government's call on construction of an honest and clean government organ to win the trust of the people," a Xinhua report said.

In Henan, government-run companies will be screened by the end of August and anyone engaging in profiteering or blackmail will be sternly punished, Xinhua said. Inner Mongolian officials who have taken advantage of their positions were urged to turn themselves in and return ill-gotten money and goods, the report said.

At a trial in Shanghai, seven people, including four Communist Party members, were charged with cheating the city government's Textile Industry Bureau out of $35,000, the Legal Daily said.

Led by Liu Zhen, deputy director of the bureau, they charged inflated prices for equipment, concocted bogus expenses and dodged taxes, the paper said. It did not give any results of the trial, which began June 20.

Officials in Wuhan, Hubei province, reported that 13 people have turned themselves in since Jan. 1, including the party secretary of a marine transportation enterprise who confessed in May to accepting bribes of $3,500, the Worker's Daily said.

Wuhan prosecution authorities "are using various channels to promote awareness of laws and consequences of corruption, including rewarding informers and protecting them from revenge," the paper said.

Officials in Chengdu, Sichuan province, also reported achievements in cracking down on corruption in the first half of this year, the Worker's Daily said without elaborating.

The reports came a day after an official of the National People's Congress, China's legislature, accused ousted Communist Party chief

Zhao Ziyang of fostering political corruption by calling corruption "inevitable."

"As Zhao advocated the view, the party relaxed its control on corruption which went rampant as a result," deputy Yang Ligong was quoted by the Xinhua News Agency as telling the congress leadership on Tuesday.

Zhao, a former premier and hand-picked successor-apparent to senior leader Deng Xiaoping, was stripped of all his government and party posts last month after being accused of trying to split the party by supporting the pro-democracy protesters.

Soviets Say Farewells To Gromyko

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Hundreds of people filed past the flower-adorned open casket of Andrei A. Gromyko today to bid farewell to the man who steered Soviet diplomacy through the Cold War and detente.

Diplomats and commoners alike lined the sidewalk for several blocks under gray skies as they waited to enter the turquoise-colored Central Soviet Army House in north Moscow.

A black-and-white portrait of Gromyko, featuring the dour face that earned him the nickname "Grim Grom," hung at the entrance.

Because Gromyko held no public office at the time of his death, he received a private funeral, but the official media gave high accolades to the man who served as foreign minister for 28 years and retired from the presidency nine months ago after Mikhail S. Gorbachev eased him out of power.

Gromyko, who died Sunday at age 79, was dressed in a black suit and lay in a coffin on a bier at the center of the building's Red Banner Hall.

Twenty-nine medals Gromyko received during his long career were displayed on red cushions sloping to the floor from the casket. Among the awards were Hero of Socialist Labor and the country's highest civilian honor, the Order of Lenin, which he received six times.

Red carnations lay on the coffin, which was surrounded by a mound of flowers and wreaths. A dozen soldiers stood guard, and a band played somber music.

Gromyko's wife, Lydia, wore a black dress and veil and clutched her pocketbook as she sat beside their son Anatoly and daughter Emilia.

The cause of Gromyko's death was not announced but a Soviet source said today he had been hospitalized for three weeks and died when his aorta burst. He had been diagnosed as having circulatory problems five years ago, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A funeral was planned at Novodevichy Cemetery, the Soviet Union's second most prestigious resting place after Red Square.

Senior diplomats from embassies in Moscow traveled to the army building to join Soviets in bidding farewell.

Among them was U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock, who stood for a minute in front of the coffin before approaching Gromyko's family to express his sympathy.

Gromyko was retired as foreign minister in 1985 and named to the presidency.

Another Era

The Death Of 'Mr. Nyet'

Andrei A. Gromyko hasn't been center stage in Soviet Union diplomacy for a number of years now.

Nevertheless, his presence in Soviet diplomacy stretched from pre-World War II to the beginnings of the Gorbachev era. Thus it can be said that his influence on world affairs has been enormous.

Gromyko died this week. It is most remarkable that after surviving several leaders and changes in Soviet governmental philosophies he still is treated with respect at his death. That is far better treatment than has been received by others who held power positions in the Communist Soviet Union.

In Gromyko's case, however, that is not surprising.

He was known as "Mr. Nyet" in the western world based on his ability to say no. But he was also known as a survivor in the swiftly changing political climate of Soviet government. Indeed he outlasted Soviet leaders Nikita Khrushchev, Leonid I. Brezhnev, Yuri V. Andropov and Kostantin U. Chernenko. His services stretched back into the Stalin era and he was active in foreign policy development prior to, and during World War II. Surviving through Stalin's time was an accomplishment of note for any Soviet diplomat.

In addition to serving as foreign minister he was ambassador to Great Britain, the United States and the United Nations among other important posts.

He also helped develop the alliance with the United States during World War II, helped in founding the U.N. and participated in developing nuclear weapons treaties.

Nevertheless he was sometimes derided by Nikita Khrushchev.

Those who assess his career will no doubt note that he survived so long because he was willing to subvert himself to the whims of the various rulers of the Soviet Union who came along during his time. Still the world as it is was shaped in part by Andrei Gromyko. His decline from power came at a time when his country was radically changing and perhaps the most that will be said of him is that he represented an era when the Soviet Union was repressive and sometimes cruel. Perhaps that country is entering a time when that will be far different.

Count On Votes, Not The Constitution

BOSTON — Moments after they had begun handing out the stack of opinions to the unruly reporters in the Supreme Court press room, hours before the lawyers had finished dissecting 86 pages of opinion and dissent, the phones began to ring at pro-choice offices across the country. They carried one anxious question: How bad is it?

Television reporters had led their stand-ups on the baking marble steps with the news that Roe had not been overturned. The right to abortion had survived the first assault of a newly constituted and conservative court. But just barely.

Access to abortion — the real-life, everyday pathways for the exercise of that right — had been narrowed, threatened, transformed into a maze. Gradually only those women with the proper maps or money might have the right to their rights.

A shifting plurality of justices ruled in the long-awaited, long-dreaded case called Webster that the state of Missouri could ban its health workers, its doctors and nurses and social workers, from taking part in abortions. The state could ban abortion from public hospitals. It could force its doctors to do tests to determine, when possible, whether a 20-week fetus was capable of survival outside the womb.

How bad? In Roe, the Court had said that the right to decide the matter of abortion belonged by and large to the woman. In Webster, they ruled that the right to decide belongs increasingly to the politicians.

In Roe, the Court struck down state limitations on abortion. In Webster, the Court invited state limitations.

"Thus," as Justice Blackmun opened his searing dissent, "not with a bang but a whimper," the plurality discards a landmark case of the last generation and casts into darkness the hopes and visions of every woman in this country who had come to believe that the Constitution guaranteed her the right to exercise some control over her unique ability to bear children."

On the steps of the Court, Faye Wattleton, the head of Planned Parenthood, asked rhetorically about these constitutional guarantees: "When did it become a political matter whether Americans have privacy? When did it become a political question whether women had reproductive rights? When did it become a political question whether poor people have the same access to their constitutional rights as the rest?"

The answer to the question "when" was easy: On July 3, 1989, they all became political questions.

During the years when the courts defended abortion, a pro-life strategy flooded the state legislatures with laws that were intended to percolate up through the legal system until the composition of the Supreme Court changed. States passed laws that would have required a husband's consent. They passed laws that would have required that women's names be reported. Again and again, they tried to regulate facilities out of existence.

On Monday, after ruling on one of those cases, the Supreme Court said that next term they would hear three more. Two state laws would put a rising number of obstacles before minors. One would ban abortions not done in the "functional equivalent of hospitals," making costs prohibitive. Slowly, in the post-Webster world, law by law, without ever "overturning Roe," abortion could remain legal and become impossible.

Justice Scalia, in announcing his own desire to turn the whole matter of abortion back to the legislatures, expressed his distaste for the way that the Court had been "the object of the sort of organized pressure that political institutions in a democracy ought to receive." And if nothing else, on Monday the Court made sure that every political institution in the land will feel that pressure.

For the past 16 years, the pro-choice people have counted on the courts as their defense, while the pro-lifers have used the legislatures for the offense. If votes were taken today, only nine states would maintain the right to legal abortion. The legislatures that have passed pro-life bills knowing they would be overturned in court have paid no price. Those days are over.

Now every gubernatorial race, every state-house seat, will become a referendum on sexual politics. The legislatures themselves may suffer from gridlock as abortion bills are rushed into committee in the next weeks and months.

In practical terms, the Webster case effects only Missouri. But the national message is clear. Don't count on the Constitution to protect rights. Count votes.

Out Of The Intellectual Cul-De-Sac Of 1973

WASHINGTON — Since the emphatic and supposedly definitive and argument-ending Supreme Court ruling on abortion in 1973, abortion rulings have flowed from the Court like water from a fountain. It was inevitable that this would be so, although a majority of the justices may not have understood this. It was inevitable for cultural, constitutional and scientific reasons, and because a Court ruling can be emphatic yet pregnant with trouble.

The ruling on Monday may seem anti-climactic. Actually, it may be pre-climactic. It did not reach, because it was not necessary for the purpose of ruling in this case, the heart of the 1973 decision. But Monday's ruling increases the odds that the Court one day will reach it in a case generated by this one.

Monday's ruling will fuel the dynamic of litigation — the dialectic of litigation-legislation-litigation that the Court let loose in 1973. By significantly enlarging the scope for state regulation of abortion, the decision turns 50 state legislatures into laboratories for testing the blurry and evolving limits. This testing will generate a gusher of cases for the Court. In one of them, the Court (or the Court with a one-ninth change in its composition) may reach, and remove, the heart of the 1973 ruling.

That heart is the assertion that the right to an abortion is an aspect of the constitutional right to "privacy" which, although nowhere mentioned in the Constitution, has been located by various justices in the "penumbra" of other rights.

The 1973 decision was provocative because it was extreme and incoherent. The extremism was in the flat assertion that at no point is a fetus a "person in the whole sense." The incoherence was in the emphasis on the trimesters of gestation. This grounded the review of abortion regulations not in constitutional law but in medical findings, or, more precisely, in judges' understandings of those evolving findings.

(The Court said that in the third trimester a fetus can live a

George Will

"meaningful" life outside the womb. The Court did not reveal its criteria of meaningfulness.)

For 16 years, American politics has been convulsed by the wrong controversy, about when "life" begins. (As though the Court could tell when "meaningful" life, but not life, begins.) In every abortion, something living is killed. The right controversy, which is philosophical but to which science can contribute, is this:

What is the meaning of "individual" and when in the continuum that begins with conception is there an individual owed the protections associated with the status of person?

As the justices trek off to vacation, they should take with them

'Live by the sword, die by it. Pro-abortion forces who have lived by the Court are now dying a death of a thousand cuts at the hands of the Court. It is cynical, crackpot "realism" to say the Court follows the election returns, but it is simple civics to note that the Court is slowly shaped by the results of presidential elections.'

"Science and the Unborn" by Clifford Grobstein, professor emeritus of biological science and public policy at the University of California, San Diego. It is not your basic beach book, but it is a lucid guide to reasoning about how to assign status to a fetus.

He identifies six aspects of individuality, of progressive levels of complexity, arising separately and gradually and culminating in psychic and social individuality. Such analysis is not sufficient to generate public policy (neither it nor constitutional law can supplant philosophy), but it is necessary.

Live by the sword, die by it. Pro-abortion forces who have lived by the Court are now dying a death of a thousand cuts at the hands of the Court. It is cynical, crackpot "realism" to say the Court follows the election returns, but it is simple civics to note that the Court is slowly shaped by the results of presidential elections. Recent elections have been influenced by the provocation of pro-abortion groups that energized an anti-abortion constituency.

It was provocative enough that pro-abortion forces used judicial fiat as a scythe in 1973 to mow down the abortion laws of 50 states. They should have practiced the patience of democracy, arguing their case in legislatures, where they had been succeeding. Fourteen states with 41 percent of the population had liberalized abortion laws before 1973. Since then, pro-abortion forces, including some on the Supreme Court, have been imprudently provocative and overreaching in rulings that have, for example, held that almost any parental involvement in, or delaying of, an abortion decision is an unconstitutional burden on the right.

On the other hand, the Republican Party has prospered by harnessing the small but intense anti-abortion constituency. The party could get crushed if the 1973 ruling is overturned and the party finds itself committed, as it is today, flatly against a right — fairly free access to early abortions — that a substantial majority of Americans endorse.

By turning up the temperature in the abortion argument, Monday's decision makes trouble for George Bush, who deserves it. His smarmy pandering to the passions of the moment regarding flag-burning — a constitutional amendment to stop what hardly ever happens — will cause the right-to-life movement to clamor for similar exhibitionism on behalf of their amendment. They will tell the First Opportunist that there are few flag-burnings a year but thousands of abortions every day.

Let us hope the Court soon drives out of the intellectual cul-de-sac it took a wrong turn into in 1973. It should restore to the states the right to regulate abortions. Let's have a 50-state row over this, remembering — (it seems to slip some judicial minds) that democracy is as American as French toast and English muffins.

Shutting The Doors Of The Open Legislature

Paul O'Connor

RALEIGH — As the House was voting down a Senate-passed tax plan last week, Rep. Roy Cooper, D-Nash, was asked a question, the answer to which told much about the 1989 General Assembly.

Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, asked if the House would have a plan for education funding should the Senate plan be defeated. Cooper said there was no plan, but there certainly would be plenty of ideas from which to fashion a plan.

In effect, Cooper was conceding that the assembly would be back at square one, right where they'd been when the 1989 session opened. No plan but plenty of good ideas.

Since the opening day, there have been fears that this assembly might not accomplish anything, that it might not further the education reform movement, provide new money for road building, or solve any of the lesser, but still important, problems facing the state. The fear arose from the shaky leadership situation in the House where a bi-partisan coalition of ideologically non-compatible upstarts had grabbed power.

Early session achievements appeared to belie that concern. Committees weren't meeting and most legislation wasn't moving, but the legislature did appear to have reached consensus on the three biggest issues before the assembly.

The session opened with quick approval of an emergency prison improvement package. Then, when Gov. Jim Martin re-confirmed full support for the Basic Education Plan, it appeared that he and the leaders of the House and Senate agreed on that, one of the biggest issues in education reform. Finally, after a legislative study committee devised a 12-year road improvements plan, and a plan to raise the taxes to pay for it, Martin endorsed it, too.

By the end of February, hundreds of bills on other matters lingered in committees, but the three biggest issues of the session appeared to be in good shape.

The movement forward, however, did not have any wheels. Martin's tax plans for schools and roads — which in fairness can't be solely ascribed to him — would raise $1.2 billion in new taxes every year. Senate leaders balked at the price. House leaders looking to help Martin, had trouble lining up Martin's own Republican representatives without House approval of the Career Ladder pay program for teachers. But then even that program went down in flames several weeks ago when revised figures on its eventual cost came in at more than $1 billion.

The Senate took apart the house passed roads package, fashioning a schools and roads plan mostly from gas and motor vehicle taxes. But that plan was then killed by the House.

On the last day of June, the target adjournment date of past legislatures, the Senate patched together a school and roads program that was certain to be rejected by the House.

That rejection would likely result in a conference committee of House and Senate leaders who would fashion a package for schools and roads. Ironically, in this session of proclaimed openness, then, a small group of legislators again will write the budget.

Analysis

The Court's Right To Stop Pampering

Bruce Fein

Civil rights groups have reacted like spoiled children accustomed to legal pampering in decrying a quartet of recent rulings from the U.S. Supreme Court. But these decisions turn the law towards equal treatment for all, irrespective of race, after 35 years of ever larger legal bonanzas for minority groups.

This watershed change in civil rights jurisprudence should be applauded. It is both anchored to irreproachable interpretive principles — the court's examination of the words of the laws themselves — and faithful to Martin Luther King's dream of a day when persons would be judged by the content of their characters, not by the color of their skin.

In January, in City of Richmond vs. Croson, the court held that contract set-asides based on race are unconstitutional. The city of Richmond, Va., with a black majority on its city council, passed an ordinance requiring that at least 30 percent of the dollar amount of public works contracts be awarded to minority business enterprises. The subcontracting bounty extended to Blacks, Hispanics, Orientals, Indians, Eskimos or Aleuts, although there was no evidence that any of the benefited groups had suffered discrimination in the contracting business. Indeed, there was no evidence that Eskimos or Aleuts ever lived in Richmond.

The court overturned the 30 percent racial quota because it was unrelated to rectifying past discrimination. The set-aside smacked of a racial spoils system to assuage the political demands of minorities who constitute 50 percent of Richmond's population. The result was to discriminate against white contractors solely because of color.

What fair-minded person would quibble with the Croson ruling? Why should a minority, unobscured by past discrimination, be preferred over a white person identically circumstanced? As Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone lectured in an earlier case, Hirabayashi vs. U.S., (1943), racial classifications "are by their very nature odious to a free people, whose institutions are founded upon the doctrine of equality." Similarly, Justice John Harlan elegantly protested against the separate-but-equal doctrine in 1896 with the stirring observation: "Our Constitution is color-blind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens... The law regards man as man, and takes no account of his surroundings or of his color when his civil rights as guaranteed by the supreme law of the land are involved."

It slurs the talents of minorities and blinds reality to argue that they are unable to compete without privileges because of history or environmental circumstances.

The high court ruled in Patterson vs. McLean Credit Union last month that an ancient 1866 Civil Rights Act provided no protection against racial harassment in the workplace or dismissals based on race. (Those practices, however, are illegal under Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.)

The 1866 law guaranteed all persons the same right "to make and enforce contracts" as is enjoyed by white citizens. Unremarkably, the court reasoned, "the right to make contracts does not extend, as a matter of either law or semantics, to conduct by the employer after the contract relation has been established, including breach of the terms of the contract or imposition of discriminatory working conditions." The Patterson decision evoked outrage from civil liberties groups because the court refused to torture the language of the law to broaden its reach. But that is not a judicial task.

If the law has shortcomings, it is the role of Congress to enact amendments. And it would be fanciful to suggest that minorities cannot command a fair hearing in that forum. In recent years, minorities have strong-armed the Congress to mandate special legal rights for minorities in the Voting Rights Act amendments of 1982, the Fair Housing Act of 1988 and the award of broadcast licenses by the Federal Communications Commission.

In Martin vs. Wilkes, a group of white firefighters sued the city of Birmingham alleging illegal racial discrimination in favor of less qualified blacks in promotion decisions. The defense was that the promotion decisions implemented a consent decree negotiated by the city and black firefighters, who had sued alleging illegal racial discrimination. White firefighters were neither present nor invited to the negotiating table.

The Supreme Court held last month that the consent decree did not shield Birmingham's promotion decisions from legal challenge by white firefighters. Although the firefighters chose not to intervene in fashioning the terms of the decree, they were entitled, the justices said, to their day in court to contest the legality of provisions discriminating against them. History and common sense teach the unfairness and hazards of relying on the altruism of negotiators to protect the interests of third parties. Czechoslovakia fared rather poorly in 1938 when denied a seat at the Munich conference.

Martin has been assailed as a deterrent to consent decrees embracing affirmative action. No business or government employer, it is said, will settle a racial discrimination claim made by minorities if the results can subsequently be attacked by whites disadvantaged by the settlement terms. But why should the law encourage settlements that violate constitutional rights? The expediency of legal repose should not be a sword of injustice.

Anyone 30-40 pounds overweight who thinks they can exercise to lose the weight without changing their eating habits is mistaken. Most of us do not know how to cut back to 1,000 calories per day and eat healthy. Consider this fact: to lose one pound of body weight requires burning 3,500 calories. Riding a bike for one hour burns 500 calories. It is just not conceivable that a person is going to exercise 21 hours per week to lose 3 pounds of body weight.

In February 1985, the National Institute of Health declared obesity to be a "killer disease" and defined obesity as 20% over normal weight. Dr. Jules Hirsh says obesity is an incurable disease that can only be controlled, similar to diabetes. The Surgeon General's Report in 1988 stated that diet plays a part in five of the top ten causes of death in the U.S. Losing weight and practicing nutritious habits can be an effective way to reduce the risk of heart disease, cancer, stroke, diabetes mellitus and arteriosclerosis.

Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers are involved in preventative health care through attainment and maintenance of normal body weight. This is achieved through a medically supervised program which combines nutritious meals of real food, dietary supplements and Behavioral Guidance Classes to help identify and correct unhealthy eating habits. To ensure that clients avoid the weight loss/weight gain cycle, Physicians WEIGHT LOSS also offers a state of the art Weight Maintenance Program.

In order to evaluate a client for our program, he or she must undergo diagnostic testing to uncover any disease associated with their obese conditions. The client is checked for hypercholesterolemia, hypertriglyceridemia, anemia, hypertension, cardiovascular problems, metabolic alterations, diabetes, liver or kidney disease, hyperuricemia, gout and a host of other possible diseases. Any doctor will advise a medical check before going on a diet, yet there are diet clinics and spas (exercise programs) that have no idea of our physical condition.

Guard keeps campers away from flood area near Morganton

Floods Hit Mountain Campgrounds

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Authorities in the North Carolina mountains kept a watch on water levels in creeks and rivers as they prepared for recovery efforts today after floods swept through campgrounds, forcing the evacuation of hundreds of vacationers.

One woman was presumed dead after a swollen creek washed her away. The woman's husband was pulled from their tent as it washed into Wilson's Creek in Caldwell County in the Pisgah National Forest. Authorities said they would continue searching today for the unidentified woman's body.

"It was unbelievable how many people were up there camping in all the bad weather," said Caldwell County firefighter Rusty Dellinger.

Workers from at least 10 agencies had rescued about 30 backpackers and hikers stranded by the creek's swirling waters by early Tuesday evening.

"I'm a nervous wreck. I've got to get out of here," said one camper, Elaine Self, 28, of Lincolnton. "It's my first time camping here. I'm never coming back."

Heavy rain in Avery, Burke, McDowell and Caldwell counties flooded rivers, streams and lakes, and sent rescuers searching for people cut off by rising water.

"I think it's the worst it's been here since the flood of 1940," said Tom Huskins Jr., general manager of Grandfather Mountain, near Linville in Avery County.

Avery County Sheriff Clinton Phillips said rescue officials had ordered the evacuation Tuesday morning of about 400 people in the flood plain from Pineola to Linville Falls along the Linville River.

The move was prompted, Phillips said, by fears the 32-foot concrete-and-earth dam across 65-acre Land Harbor Lake would give way, sending a wall of water into Pineola and beyond.

"The rumor started some way that there was a crack in the dam," said Bobby Hicks, who runs the dam. "It's scary when you get water that high." But Hicks said he was confident that the structure would hold.

Kristin and Richard Sudkamp of Apex, near Raleigh, were among those evacuated. They woke abruptly at 7:40 a.m. when Linville volunteer firefighters knocked on their camper trailer near Pineola.

Looking out, Kristin Sudkamp saw the Linville River, formerly 70 feet away, closing to within five feet from two directions.

"What really startled me was I saw a lot of dead brush and stuff floating down the river," she told the Charlotte Observer. "Seeing water coming at us from two different directions was really kind of panicky."

The Sudkamps, abandoning efforts to hook up their 27-foot trailer, drove off in their van. Later, they saw a videotape of the site an hour after they had gone. Water covered the tires of their camper in the Down By the River Campground.

"I think it's called 'In the River Campgrounds' now," Kristin Sudkamp said.

They were among more than 150 stranded campers expected to spend Tuesday night in Crossnore's First Baptist Church, on high ground about 3 miles from the river.

Some 300 were evacuated from the Land Harbor resort community near Linville.

Senate Approves Tax Package

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The Senate has approved a $422.1 million bill to raise taxes for salaries, schools and highways, but a dispute over how much input to give teachers delayed a vote on a school merit-pay program.

The omnibus tax bill, passed 47-3 by the Senate on Tuesday, faces an uncertain fate in the House, which defeated some of its key provisions last week but whose leadership favors other portions of the bill that would get the $8.6 billion highway construction program under way.

If the House rejects the bill as passed by the Senate, a joint conference committee would be appointed to seek a compromise revenue bill.

The measure would boost taxes on gasoline, vehicle purchases, titles, rentals and registration, and increase several minor taxes and fees such as university tuition and a regulatory levy on utilities.

A bipartisan coalition loyal to House Speaker Joe Mavretic and Gov. Jim Martin opposes the Senate plan because for two years it would earmark revenue from the vehicle tax increase for general-fund spending such as the 6 percent teacher and state employee salary increase. Martin and Mavretic want the increase in the vehicle tax from 2 percent to 3 percent to pay for road construction.

Martin has called for a 1-cent sales tax increase to pay for general-fund programs, in particular a statewide career ladder program for teachers. A separate bill that went before the Senate Tuesday night, which would be funded by the $422.1 million tax bill, would give local school boards broad discretion in establishing the career ladder or other merit pay plans for teachers.

Action on the bill was postponed until today when a proposed amendment drew heavy fire.

Sponsored by the bill's floor manager, Sen. Richard Conder, D-Richmond, the amendment would allow local school boards to set up merit programs only if a majority of the local system's teachers, administrators and school board members vote to do so. If any of the groups voted against a plan, it would not take effect.

That would give teachers a stronger voice than the bill currently envisions. It now says that "affected staff members" including teachers would be polled about a proposed merit pay plan but the local school board would decide whether to implement it.

Conder argued that no such program could succeed without teacher support.

"The amendment is vital to passage of the bill," he said. "It's also vital to the success of the program. Without the input and vote of the teachers ... the career ladder, lead teacher or whatever concept you might call it will continue to be a miserable failure in this state."

Sen. Dan Simpson, R-Burke, countered that the amendment would tell local school boards that "if you want to implement a merit pay plan, what you've got to do is get the approval of everybody in the county."

"I don't believe you're going to find a merit pay plan of any type or description that's going to be viable and worthwhile if it's got to be approved by everybody that's got anything to do with it," Simpson said.

After Sens. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, and Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, raised questions about the proposed amendment's impact, Conder moved successfully to postpone further debate until today.

Conder's bill, if the amendment were adopted, would be almost identical to a measure backed by some House Democrats. It would allow local boards to choose between the career ladder, the "lead teacher" and other merit-pay programs or come up with a different plan that would meet State Board of Education guidelines.

STRUCTURE

Many families come to counseling with a variety of problems. Upon evaluation, a professional counselor will often note that the family's structure and expectations are unclear. Rules for acceptable behavior are not explicit; consequences of behavior are nonexistent or uncertain; family members have conflicting expectations.

We live in a modern society which allows us great freedom to decide how to live our lives. Since less structure is imposed from outside, many people falsely assume that fewer guidelines are needed, but this is seldom true. Modern society actually demands that we take greater personal control of how we run our lives, that we be less passive and more assertive.

If you expect a structure of rules, guidelines and expectations within the family to develop on its own, you may be leaving many important issues unattended.

A family counselor can help you talk through your feelings and establish a framework for family interaction.

Dog Owners Liable

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Owners of "dangerous" dogs would be liable to civil and criminal punishment for failing to restrain their pets and would have to pay an annual $100 privilege tax under a bill that has cleared the state Senate.

The measure was approved 28-18 Tuesday and sent to the House.

Critics questioned the need for the tax and complained that it might treat dog owners unfairly, but Sen. Fountain Odom, D-Mecklenburg, said protecting the innocent should be uppermost in legislators' minds.

"My concern is for the little children and the elderly people who time and time again over the last several years have been either killed or severely maimed by dangerous dogs, especially fighting dogs," Odom said.

The bill defines as "dangerous" a dog that has killed or severely injured a person "without provocation" or is determined by the local animal control officer or board to be potentially dangerous because of its behavior.

"We were out within 15 minutes; we didn't take anything," said William Parr, 73, whose street in the Linville Meadows section had become a flowing river.

By Tuesday afternoon, state inspectors proclaimed the Land Harbor Lake dam provisionally safe, although deputies continued to monitor it.

Crossnore Fire Chief Grant Townsend said 25 to 30 houses in the Pineola and Altamont areas were damaged by flood waters, but most damage was minor.

The Linville Falls campground on the Blue Ridge Parkway also was evacuated and closed Tuesday, said District Ranger Gene Redmon of the National Park Service.

"We're recommending that they just go on home if they can," Redmon said. "We're telling people to stay on higher ground and not go into the valley areas at all."

In Burke County, four people, including a 70-year-old woman and a small child, were rescued from rising water Tuesday morning in a section known as God's Country.

Danny Tatum of the Burke County Rescue Squad said none of the victims were injured. He described them as "just cold and wet."

Emergency Management officials said earlier that the four had been camping but took refuge in a car. When the water rose, they abandoned the car for higher ground where they were stranded.

The flooding was caused by a slowly dissolving tropical storm that dumped more than 1.5 inches of rain on the mountains beginning Monday, causing some minor mud slides and other damage. The National Weather Service said up to 2 inches of rainfall was likely in the mountains, with up to 4 inches in some isolated areas.

New Pistols

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP) — Lincolnton police have converted to 9mm semi-automatic pistols offering better firepower and protection against more dangerously armed criminals, Police Chief Terry Burgin says.

The new Beretta semi-automatics hold up to 16 rounds, 10 more than the department's former .357 Magnum revolvers.

The department's 23 officers have carried the semi-automatics for two weeks. "They've all qualified for the next six months," Burgin said.

The officers must qualify with the weapons twice a year.

Woman Drowns

CASHIERS, N.C. (AP) — Heavy rains were blamed in the death of a woman who drowned Monday when she was swept over a series of waterfalls while tubing in Jackson County, authorities said.

She was floating down Norton and Mill Creek south of Cashiers with three companions when the tragedy occurred, said Lt. Ron Melton of the Sheriff's Department. The other three managed to reach the bank and were unhurt, he said.

Rescue workers continued Tuesday evening to search for the body of the woman, whose name is being withheld pending notification of family. The searchers concentrated their efforts on the creek and the river it feeds, Chatuge River.

Melton said witnesses reported that the creek rose a foot and a half during a three-hour period Monday evening because of heavy rain.

Teens Kidnapped

OAKWOOD, Ga. (AP) — Hall County officials said three teenagers apparently were abducted from a fast-food restaurant in Cherokee, N.C., by three men who drove them to north Georgia and released them near an interstate.

Hall County Sheriff Dick Mecum said three boys called 911 from an exit off Interstate 965 saying they had been abducted by three men Monday night and brought there.

The teen-agers told authorities that the men had said they were taking them to Atlanta. Mecum said the teens did not know why they were left in Hall County instead.

Mecum said the teen-agers were not injured, but the boys said the abductors took one boy's Isuzu Trooper vehicle, which they had driven on their trip to Georgia, and might have headed for Mississippi.

He said the boys reported that the men threatened and harassed them.

Fire Death

DUBLIN, N.C. (AP) — A 58-year-old Bladen County man was killed Tuesday when his house caught fire, county officials said.

Cecil Chavis was found dead in a bedroom in the front of his home about one-half mile outside Dublin, according to Floyd Hersey, Dublin's fire chief.

The fire was reported by a couple traveling between Bladenboro and Elizabethtown, Hersey said. The couple tried to alert Chavis about the fire by pounding on the door but were unsuccessful. They went next door and called the authorities, Hersey said.

Hersey said that by the time firefighters arrived, the house already was a total loss. Firefighters from Bladenboro, Elizabethtown and Dublin responded to the fire, authorities said.

No one else was home at the time of the blaze, Hersey said. A cause for the fire has not been determined, Hersey said.

10 People Are Killed In Holiday Accidents

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 10 people died on North Carolina roads over the July 4th holiday weekend, including two people who were killed in a head-on collision in Randolph County on Tuesday night, the N.C. Highway Patrol said.

Robert Wayne Walk Jr., 20, of Trinity and Rebecca Kennedy Barnes, 40, of High Point were killed in the accident on U.S. 311 4.7 miles west of Randleman at 9:50 p.m. Troopers said the vehicle driven by Walk crossed the center line and struck the vehicle driven by Barnes. Two other people were injured in the wreck.

Thomas Lee Mooring, 19, of Pikeville, was killed when he was thrown from his car after it hit a ditch and overturned shortly before 3 a.m. Tuesday on a rural Wayne County road.

In Haywood County, Harold Bradley Clause, 19, of Maggie Valley, was killed when a vehicle he was a passenger in struck a tree Monday night.

Jennifer Lynne Rose, 24, of Hubert, died Monday when her car swerved and hit a flatbed farm trailer being towed by another car. The car driver by Ms. Rose then hit another vehicle head-on, reports said.

Billy Kyle Vaughn, 19, of Marshallville, died Sunday when he drove his car at high speed, lost control at a curve and struck a culvert off a rural Union County road. Troopers say the car overturned, throwing Vaughn from the vehicle.

Carlos Osorio, 44, a native of Guatemala, was hit by a car in Sampson County about 11:45 p.m. Saturday.

Clyde Grady Benoist Jr., 32, and Bobby Curtis Lampley Jr., 29, both of Rockingham, were killed in a wreck at 9:39 p.m. Saturday. The car, driven by Benoist, struck a tree.

Lloyd Marcus Peele, 72, of Edenton, was killed at 7:50 p.m. Saturday in Chowan County when his car struck a ditch and overturned, troopers said.

In a South Carolina wreck, Lolita M. Raines, 25, of Jacksonville, died Tuesday after the car she was riding in overturned about 5:50 p.m. on Interstate 20 westbound at the 57 mile marker in Lexington County, the patrol said.

North Carolina's 1989 highway death toll now stands at 662, compared to 730 on this date last year.

The N.C. State Motor Club predicted that 24 people would lose their lives in traffic accidents on North Carolina roads during the 102-hour holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Tuesday.

Last year, 1,284 accidents occurred in a 78-hour holiday period, killing 25 people and injuring 1,017.

Former president, Nancy prepare to enter helicopter after tests at Fort Huachuca

Bucking Horse Tosses Reagan

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. — Former President Reagan was recuperating today from scrapes and bruises after being thrown by a bucking horse during what he called "my own private rodeo."

The 78-year-old Reagan was flown to Fort Huachuca's Raymond W. Bliss Army Community Hospital after the spill at a ranch in the northern Mexico state of Sonora, said his spokesman, Mark Weinberg.

After four hours of treatment, Reagan returned to the ranch, where he has been vacationing since Saturday, officials said.

Although Reagan did not suffer any serious injury, doctors suggested he stay at the hospital overnight, officials said.

Reagan declined, so doctors assigned the hospital's chief nurse, Lt. Col. Paul Farineau, to accompany Reagan back to the ranch that's owned by William Wilson, a friend and former U.S. ambassador to the Vatican.

The former president plans to celebrate his wife's birthday there on Thursday before returning to his Los Angeles home at the end of the week, Weinberg said.

Capt. Juan Lopez, a U.S. Army doctor who examined Reagan, said he planned a follow-up check today in Mexico.

Lopez said he told Reagan to stay away from stressful exercise for the rest of the week.

While at the hospital, Reagan made jokes and did not complain of any pain, Lopez said.

The spill occurred Tuesday morning.

"The horse Reagan was riding bucked wildly several times on a rocky downhill slope and eventually stumbled," Weinberg said.

The spokesman said Reagan is "an excellent rider and he held on quite a while." He said Reagan joked that the accident was "my own private rodeo." In a telephone interview from Los Angeles, the spokesman said that he didn't know if the horse suffered any injuries.

Lt. Gen. Thurmond D. Rodgers, ranking officer at Fort Huachuca, said Reagan told him to "make sure people know that I was thrown from the horse. I did not fall."

A U.S. Army helicopter flew Reagan to Fort Huachuca from the ranch near Cananea, Mexico, said Maj. Dennis Seely, a base spokesman.

June Scobee Rodgers, widow of space shuttle Challenger pilot Dick Scobee and now wife of the fort's ranking officer, dropped by the hospital to give her regards.

After about four hours, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, left the hospital and returned to Mexico via the Army helicopter.

Rodgers said Reagan was in good spirits on his departure, saying nothing to personnel, but saluting as he left.

While vacationing in Kennebunkport, Maine, President Bush was informed of Reagan's accident by the Secret Service just before Bush went boating, White House spokesman Bill Harlow said.

"The president was relieved to hear that President Reagan is OK," Harlow said. "He'll be calling him at some point."

Bush Sticks To His Speedboat During Vacations In Maine

By Tom Raum
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — Every time President Bush goes out in his 28-foot speedboat, "Fidelity," a small navy of power boats accompanies him.

Bush is constantly on the 28-foot Cigarette-brand racing boat during his vacation periods, and local boaters regard his sleek blue-hulled craft with white and red trim as a familiar sight.

The president was headed for his boat on Tuesday, in fact, when he was told by Secret Service agents of former President Reagan's horseback riding accident in Mexico.

Television crews following Bush caught a picture of the president on his boat talking on the telephone. But White House aides denied that was how he learned of Reagan's accident; instead, he was just talking to a staff member.

Just as Reagan relaxed by riding horses, Bush takes obvious pleasure in bouncing through Atlantic waves in his boat, with a specially designed hull for ocean racing.

The smaller boats pursuing the presidential craft everywhere it goes include several Coast Guard cutters, two Secret Service power boats — both products of drug raids — and a half dozen or so power boats leased by news agencies. Also, sightseeing boaters often come along for the ride, just to catch a glimpse of the president behind the wheel.

But boats are kept at a safe 250 yards behind Bush by Coast Guard cutters. Those inching closer receive stern warnings over loudspeakers.

Bush bought his boat in 1973 for $15,000, a fraction of the cost of new Cigarette boats, which can run well over $100,000. Bush sold stock in the Fidelity Printing Co. of Houston to pay for the boat — thus, the name "Fidelity."

With twin 185-horsepower inboard engines, the boat can zip along at speeds up to 50 mph. And Bush seems to enjoy hitting the throttle, zipping between rocks and leaving the chase boats far behind in his spray.

As he told a well-wisher in town the other day, "I hope we get out on the water, do some fun stuff."

Bush did "fun stuff" for the duration of his five-day Independence Day holiday here.

Boating shared billing with jogging, tennis, swimming and frequent golf games, and reporters covering the vacation White House often felt they were covering sporting events.

One who didn't think boating with the president of the United States was "fun stuff" was French President Francois Mitterrand.

Bush tried repeatedly to get Mitterrand out on his boat when the French leader was his guest here in May. However, Mitterrand, who reportedly gets seasick, declined. At one point, Bush brought the boat around in a final effort to get the French leader out for a spin.

Bush wound up going out himself, leaving Mitterrand behind to work on a speech.

Bush has promised residents of this seacoast resort he would be a "good neighbor," and said he would drive his boat slowly — at least in the narrow channel leading into downtown Kennebunkport.

But he doesn't observe any speed restrictions in the open Atlantic off his compound that sits on a peninsula, Walker's Point, jutting out into the sea.

In fact, one of Bush's favorite tricks is to unnerve his guests by bringing his boat full throttle into the cove by his house, seeming to head straight toward a stone wall, and cutting his engines at the very last moment.

Then he brakes the boat in a tight circle and, in a fury of spray and centrifugal force, brings the craft to a docile stop right alongside his wooden dock.

But Bush didn't go out in his boat on Monday, when he treated neighbors to a 15-minute fireworks display from his property.

President Returns To Capital

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush is coming off a five-day vacation with a diet of papers and briefings to prepare for next week's trip to East and West Europe.

Bush was heading today to Washington, where he had no public schedule but planned to meet with top advisers to discuss the upcoming economic summit in Paris.

He leaves Sunday for Poland, where his call this week for withdrawal of Soviet troops was apparently designed to have public appeal.

Bush wrapped up his long Fourth of July holiday by spending Tuesday with his wife Barbara, grandchildren and assorted other family members at the family compound on Walker's Point.

Continuing his five-day streak of intensive sports activity, the president played tennis and went boating, the White House said.

He started the day by helping pick up debris and clean the Walker's Point grounds of litter from the massive fireworks display he hosted Monday night for the people of Kennebunkport. The pyrotechnic show was funded by an anonymous donor, officials said.

Bush learned in mid-afternoon that former President Reagan had been hospitalized after being thrown from a horse during a vacation in Mexico, Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Bush was relieved, the spokesman said, that the former president suffered only minor injuries and was released from a military hospital in Arizona later in the day.

Earlier Tuesday, Bush received Fourth of July holiday greetings in a phone call from Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi.

Bush looked ahead to his East European trip in an interview with Polish journalists that was released by his staff on Monday.

In the interview, Bush urged the Soviet Union to take "an historic opportunity to help end the postwar division in Europe."

He proposed for the first time that the Soviets remove their troops from Poland.

Bush told the Polish reporters that in their homeland, "there's an historic opportunity now to help end the postwar division of Europe."

Bush has promised economic incentives for Poland in response for its recent steps toward democracy. However, he has released no specific figures or proposals.

His trip comes just a few days after Poland saw its Solidarity union become the first independent opposition to enter an East bloc legislature since the late 1940s.

After Poland, Bush travels to Hungary, France and the Netherlands.

Topless Bar Waiters Attack Protesters Burning U.S. Flag During Pro-Abortion Rally

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Abortion-rights activists clashed with police in Boston and burned a flag-draped effigy of a justice in Atlanta during demonstrations against the U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing states to restrict abortion.

Pro-choice protesters who burned an American flag in Minneapolis were attacked by three waiters from a topless bar. One man was arrested and several protesters suffered bruises and abrasions, police said.

On a day when Americans celebrated their liberty, thousands of people in at least 10 cities heard July Fourth calls to safeguard abortion rights.

Counterdemonstrations were held in three cities, but the anti-abortionists were vastly outnumbered. The rallies came a day after the high court upheld a Missouri law imposing restrictions on abortion, inviting other states to do the same.

"The most fundamental liberty is the right to control our own bodies," Massachusetts Rep. Susan D. Schur told more than 3,000 people at a rally in front of the Statehouse in Boston. "For if we have not the ability to control our own bodies, we are no more than slaves."

Lt. Gov. Evelyn Murphy also denounced the ruling, and abortion rights groups announced a statewide campaign to vote anti-abortion lawmakers out of office in the 1990 elections.

"Vote with your heart, your head and your stomach," Schur said. "Vote as if your life depends on it."

Protesters waved American flags, held signs with slogans including "My rights have been raped," and chanted "Just Say No!" to the Supreme Court decision.

Demonstrators scuffled with police trying to clear the crowd and two people were arrested, including one on charges of assaulting an officer, police said. Police also blocked about 300 protesters who tried to broadcast their message to tens of thousands of people gathered for the annual Boston Pops concert and fireworks display along the Charles River.

In Seattle, Sen. Brock Adams, D-Wash., told hundreds at a pro-choice rally he was outraged by Monday's ruling: "On the eve of the Fourth of July, we witnessed an attack on a basic constitutional right, the right of privacy."

Up to three dozen anti-abortion protesters also showed up. One carried a 10-foot-tall sign of Jesus weeping over a fetus until a pro-choice demonstrator knocked the sign down and another burned an American flag on a coat hanger and threw it at him.

Colorado Rep. Ruth Wright told a crowd of about 350 people at a Boulder rally they faced a hard fight to maintain abortion rights. "It's going to be tough; it's going to be ugly. We're going to be accused of being baby killers. We're going to have to stand up to that."

In Indianapolis, speakers told about 350

demonstrators to fight backers of anti-abortion legislation expected in the 1990 General Assembly as a result of the Supreme Court decision.

"You take our rights, you lose your jobs," said Melinda Rider, executive director of the Indiana Pro-Choice Action League.

More than 200 demonstrators outside the Maryland State House in Annapolis also were urged to begin lobbying for the 1990 state elections to preserve abortion rights. A few anti-abortion activists approached the rostrum and interrupted the rally briefly before police escorted them away.

In Atlanta, about 450 abortion-rights advocates marched to the Capitol, where protesters placed a handful of coat hangers on the statue of former Gov. Eugene Talmadge.

As the rally was ending, a small group of marchers set afire an effigy of a Supreme Court justice wrapped in a flag. An unidentified man tried to stop the flag-burning, shouting "This is Nazism," but was pushed back.

The flag-burning in Minneapolis occurred as about 150 abortion rights demonstrators rallied outside the federal building.

When a small group of protesters began burning a flag, three waiters from the Solid Gold nightclub ran across the street and attacked them, said police watch commander Ed Scott. One of the waiters was arrested for disorderly conduct.

In Pittsburgh, an estimated 400 abortion rights advocates in front of the federal building were challenged by half as many anti-abortion demonstrators who gathered across the street singing "God Bless America."

"Let the babies live!" the Rev. Keith Tucci, an Operation Rescue leader, yelled through a bullhorn.

There were no arrests or altercations, although each side tried at times to out-shout the other and police had to keep anti-abortion protesters from mixing with their opponents.

Among the youngest pickets was 3-year-old Jennette Maddock, who held a sign that read, "Mommy had a choice - why can't I?"

Her father, John Maddock, said he and his wife, Janine, attended the rally because "this is a family thing with us."

"Jennette was our choice," Mrs. Maddock said. "It was a serious decision, emotionally and financially. We think it's important for people to come out and express their opinion."

About 200 demonstrators in downtown Milwaukee listened as Daniel Maguire, a theologian and professor at Marquette University, told them: "You are the moral majority. Don't believe that they represent the high moral ground."

California Reports New Fires Flaring

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HACIENDA HEIGHTS, Calif. — Residents returned to their canyon neighborhood, thankful that a wind-whipped fire that leveled 13 homes and caused an estimated $4.3 million in damage wasn't more devastating.

Firefighters declared the blaze contained Tuesday afternoon after completing a line around the smoldering hills, said Los Angeles County Fire Department spokesman Joe Silva.

But as firefighters were released from that blaze, about 200 others were dispatched to the San Bernardino National Forest to battle a 150-acre blaze in Santa Ana Canyon, 70 miles east of Los Angeles. Smaller fires flared throughout the region, but were quickly controlled.

Elsewhere, crews battled forest and brush fires in mostly remote areas of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico, where a large fire threatened an endangered type of trout.

In Hacienda Heights, most of the firefighters who had battled the flames since Monday were released, but 100 remained to hold the containment lines on the 1,500-acre blaze.

Residents whose houses were passed over by flames hoppedscotching through the neighborhood Monday returned to their homes to protect them from looters. Silva said four people were arrested for looting late Monday.

"I cannot believe they would want to take more from people who already have lost almost everything," he said.

Among those returning to the affluent area was George Podunovich, dug a shovel into what remained of his house.

"My birth certificate, my diploma," he said. "All my records — they're gone."

Tammy Wigington lost a redwood deck and hot tub in the fire, though her home was spared.

"We were going to have a barbecue," she said. "But I guess we already had one."

Also returning was Paul Lukather, who was grateful to discover that his two-story Spanish-style house was untouched by flames.

"I walked up here with a neighbor," said Lukather. "We couldn't wait to find out if we had lost our homes."

Flames fanned by erratic winds came within 20 yards of the house and later consumed a small detached recreation room nearby, he said.

"When you think what could of happened, this really was a blessing," he said.

Also returning was Don Younger, who was visiting friends on Monday when he saw a plume of black smoke coming from his neighborhood. When he tried to drive to his home, fire officials would not allow him through, so he drove to a hill where he could watch.

"I saw the firefighters down on their bellies saving my home. I wish I could hug them all," he said.

After making a thorough survey of the area Tuesday morning, authorities said 13 homes were destroyed and eight were damaged. Losses were estimated at $4.3 million.

Although as many as 600 people were evacuated Monday night, only 10 people spent the night at Los Altos High School, where the American Red Cross opened an evacuation center.

Fire officials said the cause was under investigation, though they said it probably was man-made.

Exile Fulfills His Dreams After Waiting For 58 Years

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Abe Stolar used to lie awake homesick in his Moscow bed, imagining smelling the flowers of a Chicago rose garden and hearing the roar of the elevated trains.

Now, after 58 years in exile, he can do it in person. Stolar returned to the city of his childhood on the Fourth of July, a fitting day to mark his long but victorious fight for freedom.

"I really can't find words," the 77-year-old man with wispy white hair and sparkling brown eyes told well-wishers and reporters as he stepped off a plane at O'Hare International Airport.

"It's overwhelming," said Stolar, who was accompanied by his Soviet-born wife, Gita Rozovskaya.

"God bless you all. It's wonderful to be here," he said.

Stolar was traveling from Israel, where he emigrated earlier this year after a 14½-year fight to leave the Soviet Union.

His immediate plans are to get reacquainted with his home town and to tour the United States, taking in some baseball, junk food and other all-American fare.

Today, he planned a walking tour of his childhood neighborhood, Humboldt Park, a thriving ethnic European enclave when he left but now infested with street gangs and graffiti.

He also plans to go to Wrigley Field for tonight's game between the Cubs and the San Diego Padres.

Stolar was to be accompanied by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who helped secure his release from the Soviet Union.

Simon was on hand for the emotional welcome at the airport, where he presented Stolar with a bouquet of red roses, a U.S. flag and a T-shirt bearing the name "Chicago."

The senator called Stolar "a real hero, a guy who has stood up for freedom."

Stolar, whose Russian-Jewish parents immigrated to America in 1910, was raised on the Northwest Side. But the family returned to their homeland in 1931 during the Great Depression, believing that the Bolshevik Revolution had created a workers' paradise.

It turned out to be more of a nightmare for the family. Stolar's father died in the Stalinist purges, and his mother and sister were sent to camps in Siberia.

Stolar, just 19 when he arrived in the Soviet Union, served in the Red Army during World War II. He was wounded by a German hand grenade and lost the sight in one eye.

He then worked as a translator and announcer for Radio Moscow, married and had a son. But in a country where Jews have long been harassed, he felt isolated. And in the early 1970s, Stolar wanted out.

Promises that he could leave were repeatedly broken by Soviet officials, who refused to let Stolar's whole family leave.

"I was an alien there for all the 58 years I was there," Stolar said. "It was a crime they didn't let me out."

Simon met Stolar during a trip to Moscow in 1980, and contacted Soviet officials and U.S. diplomats in efforts to secure Stolar's release.

Freedom didn't come until March, when Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev allowed Stolar, his wife, son, daughter-in-law and two grandchildren to leave for Israel.

"What can I say, really?" Stolar asked Tuesday, expressing gratitude to Simon and the media for publicizing his plight. "I can't say anything but thank you, thank you, thank you!"

Stolar used to love to walk the downtown streets, taking peeks inside the lobbies of the grand hotels. His dream of one day staying in the fancy, 3,000-room Stevens Hotel has come true.

From the airport, he went to the hotel, now the Chicago Hilton and Towers, which is putting up the Stolars in its 23rd-floor Chicago Suite.

No special menu is planned during Stolar's week-long stay — he's "a junk-food junkie" who likes hamburgers and hot dogs, said assistant manager Peter Borup.

Other stops on the Stolars' 12-city U.S. tour include Anchorage, Alaska, and Miami. The trip ends Aug. 13 in Los Angeles.

Man Kills 3, Then Himself

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A man fatally shot his wife and two children and then killed himself in the family's apartment, police said today.

Gabriel Velasquez, 36, was found on the kitchen floor, holding his year-old son, Alex, said Detective John Boyle. Both had been shot in the head and a handgun was near the father's hand.

In the living room, investigators found the body of Velasquez's 26-year-old wife, Dora Funes, and 12-year-old daughter, Neydy. Both also were shot in the head.

Boyle said the shootings apparently resulted "from a continuing domestic altercation," but he had no specific information about the dispute.

The bodies were found Tuesday night, but Boyle said the victims are believed to have been dead since Sunday night.

Art Panel Rejects GI Jane Memorial

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — An American Legion post that raised $68,000 for a sculpture honoring women who served in the nation's military during wartime finds itself with a statue and no place to put it.

The plan had been to set up the half-ton statue in Veterans Memorial Plaza, part of a city park that Legion Post 272 maintains under agreement with the Parks Department.

The Legionnaires thought they had clear sailing from the department when they made arrangements with sculptor Eileen Barry.

But the city Art Commission, which has the final say on whether a sculpture or other art may be displayed on city property, recently rejected the 8-foot bronze of a woman in fatigues and combat boots, calling it "not strong enough artistically."

Jerry Klein, treasurer of Post 272 in the Queens borough, said he had never heard of the commission when the project got started in 1986.

"We thought we would have to work just with the Parks Department. At some point in the project, after the contract had been signed, that's when we heard there was an Art Commission," Klein said.

Parks Commissioner Henry Stern said his department always informs donors that Arts Commission approval is required. "Nobody would tell them to make a statue without first getting it approved" in the design stage, Stern said.

Mrs. Barry said she was shocked by the commission's opinion of the statue, which is nearly complete.

"Anyone who sees this has nothing but comment that she's strong, she's powerful," Mrs. Barry said.

Despite the denial of a permanent site for the statue, the Parks Department has said it may stand temporarily at a city site across the street from the Rockaway park. Art Commission approval is unnecessary for display of less than a year.

"It just gives us some breathing room," said Klein. "We still have to get a permanent site."

SWAPO Prisoners Return With Stories Of Torture

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OSERI KARI CAMP, Namibia — Some of the 150 people freed by Namibia's guerrilla movement after years of imprisonment said many of their fellow prisoners were tortured and beaten to death.

Returning home on Tuesday, the freed detainees told of beatings and of being held in underground pits in neighboring Angola.

They said they were among thousands of dissidents imprisoned by the South-West Africa People's Organization during its guerrilla war for independence from South Africa.

Dozens, perhaps hundreds, of SWAPO members accused of spying for South Africa were killed at SWAPO prison camps, the ex-prisoners said.

They gave the names of several of those killed.

"I was beaten every day" for 10 years, said Henry Boonzaier, a trade union official in Namibia before he left to join the guerrilla army.

Dozens of long scars criss-crossed his back, inflicted by repeated beatings with heavy sticks, Boonzaier said.

"I know many people were beaten to death," he said. When asked how many, Boonzaier replied, "Hundreds."

Many prisoners also died because of poor conditions, he said.

Boonzaier and others said they often were kept in underground pits, were seldom allowed to see sunlight and were fed only rice and beans for months.

"I lived in a pit underground," said Ripangura Kanguatjivi. "We were beaten, we had no medicine and we feared for our lives every day."

Another returned detainee,

Magdalena Goagosos, 26, said she was beaten in the months before she delivered her son, Hans. She would not answer questions about her baby's father, but it was clear she became pregnant while she was a prisoner.

Pilotless Fighter Flies 560 Miles

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov had no explanation today for why Warsaw Pact defense forces failed to detect and shoot down a runaway MiG-23 jet fighter that crashed into a house in Belgium, killing a man.

In an interview with Tass, Yazov said investigators were en route to Kolobrzeg airfield in Poland to find out why the MiG's pilot bailed out after takeoff on a training mission, leaving the jet to fly pilotless for 560 miles.

From Poland, the investigators will fly to the crash site and discuss compensation for the death and damages with Belgian officials, the official news agency said.

"It is difficult to say why it was not shot down, why it was not detected," Yazov said. "A large-scale investigation should be carried out."

The defense minister said he believed an engine malfunction immediately after takeoff on the training flight prompted the pilot to eject.

"As the pilot himself explained, the afterburner spontaneously switched off during the takeoff and the plane began to decelerate," Yazov said. "Following the bail-out, a sufficient thrust, in all probability, developed and the plane continued its flight."

The MiG-23 flew over some of Western Europe's most densely populated regions and crashed just miles from a cluster of cities along the French-Belgian border.

Two American jets intercepted the runaway MiG over West Germany, but did not shoot it down because it was over a densely populated area, Tass said.

A Soviet MiG-29 crashed June 8 at the prestigious Paris Air Show.

A joint French-Soviet commission established that a bird sucked into the engine caused the crash.

The MiG-23 Flogger, a swing-wing single engine jet, first entered service in 1967. It usually is armed with one 23-mm gun and can carry anti-aircraft missiles. Variations on the basic design are flown by all Warsaw Pact nations and have been sold to other countries.

The Flogger, which has been superseded in some Soviet units by more advanced fighters, can fly at Mach 2.35, or 1,551 mph at 30,000 feet above sea level, according to Jane's "All the World's Aircraft," published in London.

Gorby Lays Wreath At Arc

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, beginning the second day of his visit to France, laid a wreath today on the tomb of France's unknown soldier beneath the Arc de Triomphe.

The ceremony followed a speech Tuesday night in which the Soviet leader called for a united Europe and declared his readiness to defend human rights.

Soviet and French flags fluttered along the avenue des Champs-Élysées to the arch begun by the Emperor Napoleon in 1806 to celebrate his military victories — but completed long after Napoleon's failed invasion of Russia.

In a toast at a state dinner Tuesday night, Gorbachev referred to Bonaparte's 1812 march on Moscow, which he traced to a turning aside from the ideals of the French Revolution whose bicentennial is being celebrated this year. Gorbachev called anew for building a united Europe, for moving beyond the East-West schism that grew from the Cold War.

"The post-war period is over," Gorbachev said at the gala dinner hosted by President Francois Mitterrand. "Today, a way toward a stable peace is opening before us, based not on a balance of forces, but on a balance of real and correctly understood interests."

On Tuesday, the first of three days in France, the Soviet president met with Mitterrand then visited the Place de la Bastille.

Thousands See Fireworks Show

raisers within the celebration have been received yet.

"I saw a wet Mayor (Ed) Carter walking around," Keith said. "So I took it the Ron Chance dunking booth did all right. And I hear that the United Cerebral Palsy people made over $10,000 on their rubber duck race and had a winner from New Bern. I didn't hear the name."

Keith said the five-kilometer and one-kilometer foot races and the children's tricycle-bicycle parade went well. Ronald McDonald House games were well patronized. "And the crafts people that I saw were smiling," he said, "so I feel like they did all right."

Keith praised the security and traffic control exercised by the Greenville police and cooperating law enforcement agencies. "I know people who were right in the traffic just after the fireworks felt like it was slow," he said. "But I can tell you the city was cleared twice as fast this year as last. I think the traffic control was great."

Greenville Police Capt. Nelson Stator reluctantly agreed. "Yes, we did well," he said, "but I can see ways that it could be done even better."

Stator said next year he will suggest having better radio communication among the different agencies assisting with traffic. And a few more lots near the Town Common will be closed. He said the problems seemed to occur when lots close in the common area were attempted to clear, but could not because of the heavy flow of pedestrian traffic. He said a couple of lots near the Town Common that should have been vacant were filled.

"I don't know whether someone failed to place the barricades," he said, "or whether someone who shouldn't have moved them. I'll find out."

Stator said there should have been no vehicles on First Street. And there were. "Some parts of our plan broke down," he said, "but overall things went well."

Walter Stasavich, the city parks and recreation person in charge of the maintenance of the Town Common, said his people face about a day and a half of work at the site now.

Keith said that this year there were many more trash receptacles than last year and that these seemed well used. "Last year, the trash receptacles were overflowing," he said. "This year there seemed to be plenty."

Stasavich agreed that receptacles were plentiful and were used by many. "Some people will walk a hundred yard to dispose of a piece of trash properly," he said. "But of course, not all."

Stator said he understands there was some violence following the fireworks among a few outside the common area, but that overall security seemed to work well. He said people observed by officers as having any alcoholic beverage on the Town Common were asked to pour it out.

"We got along well," he said, "confronting people, but not making arrests this time. I hope this can continue. It really should be common knowledge that alcohol isn't allowed in this public facility and we shouldn't have to contend with this problem."

Stasavich said, though, that overall an atmosphere of family fun prevailed throughout the day. "Where else can you take your family on the Fourth and have so much to do for so little expense?" he said. "I thought it was great!"

statistics show that the early-year spurt in inflation is moderating and the economy is remaining sluggish, the economists say.

The central bank has been struggling to engineer a "soft landing" where growth slows enough to dampen inflation but without causing a recession.

Last week's big drop in the stock market was blamed on growing fears that the country is headed for a downturn later this year, based on statistics showing weak consumer spending and a big slump in factory orders.

"The economy is slowing more rapidly than expected and underlies the need for the Fed to act promptly to ease monetary policy," said Jerry Jasinoski, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers. "Failure to act soon may turn the soft landing into a recession."

Lawrence Chimierne, senior economic adviser at the WEFA Group, an economic consulting firm, said, "The Fed cannot ignore the various signs showing we have a very sluggish economy."

"Clearly, the risk of a recession is higher but my guess is that the Fed believes we can get by without one" through gradual moves to lower rates, Chimierne said.

Mortgage rates are already falling. Fixed-rate mortgages, which peaked at 11.24 percent in late March, dropped to a nationwide average of 10.07 percent last week, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. David

Emergency Stop

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — An F-16 pilot took emergency measures to stop the taxiing fighter jet after an engine malfunctioned, authorities said.

The pilot locked the aircraft onto an emergency cable strung across the runway at the Great Falls International Airport to prevent it from running off the pavement, said Fire Chief John Ball of the Montana Air National Guard.

Wyss, chief financial economist at DRI-McGraw Hill, another forecasting firm, predicted that 30-year mortgages will soon fall below 10 percent and decline to around 9.5 percent by September.

Other economists forecast a further one-half percentage point drop in banks' prime lending rate which was cut to 11 percent in early June, its first reduction in more than a year.

The prime rate is traditionally considered a benchmark for business loans, but it now influences a variety of consumer loans, including home equity loans.

Various economists said while they are looking for further signs of easing credit from the Fed, they do not expect anything as dramatic as a cut in the Fed's discount rate, the interest it charges to make direct loans to financial institutions.

New Phones

TOKYO (AP) — Move over, Paris. Tokyo will join you in the ranks of cities with eight-digit phone numbers.

Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. said Tuesday that the change from seven-digit phone numbers in Tokyo will take place Jan. 1, 1991. Subscribers will add a 3 at the beginning of their seven-digit numbers.

The national telephone utility said a shortage of exchange numbers began showing up in 1981 as demand increased for facsimile and microcomputer communications on top of demand for regular telephone lines.

Some eight-digit phone numbers were given to pocket pagers in 1987, and in 1988 some new subscribers for regular phones received eight-digit numbers, NTT said, but by early 1991 the shortage will be acute.

Unlike in France, which has had eight-digit local phone numbers throughout the country for several years, the change in Japan will affect only phone numbers in Tokyo, a city of 12 million people.

Browning Surprised When He Just Misses Perfection

Cincinnati Pitcher Didn't Think He Had His Stuff

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — Before the game, Tom Browning didn't think much of his stuff. By the seventh inning, he was thinking about a perfect game.

The Reds left-hander was within three outs of becoming the first pitcher ever to throw two perfect games when Dickie Thon doubled to right-center field Tuesday night. Browning didn't even finish, yielding to John Franco after Steve Jeltz singled home Thon. Franco held off the Phillies for a 2-1 victory.

Browning wasn't lamenting the lost opportunity for everlasting fame. He seemed surprised to have gotten so close.

"I didn't think I had good stuff before the game. I told Bo (catcher Bo Diaz)," Browning said.

After retiring the first 21 batters, Browning, 29, had changed his outlook. When Von Hayes grounded out to end the seventh inning, "I thought then that I might have a chance," he said. "I just tried to throw pitches where Bo wanted, low. They hit some hard but right at people."

Browning threw 80 pitches, 61 for strikes. He was in total control, on and off the field, for eight innings.

"We just sat there talking (in the dugout)," he said. "I tried to stay nice and relaxed. We've all been in this situation together before."

Browning pitched his perfect game last Sept. 16, when he retired 27 Los Angeles Dodgers at Cincinnati.

nati. It was the 14th perfect game in major league history and the last no-hitter in the majors.

He also went 8 1-3 innings without allowing San Diego a hit on June 6, 1988 before Tony Gwynn singled. Thon played for the Padres then.

"When he gets in a groove like that he's really tough," Thon said. "Fastballs and changes, he pitched a great game."

But not a perfect one.

"It was a fastball away," Browning said of the pitch Thon sent into the gap in right-center. "He tried to pull the first pitch. Then he hit it in the alley."

"I was just trying to hit the ball hard somewhere. I hit it pretty good," said Thon, a .231 hitter. "The pressure was on him as well as me."

Browning, 7-6, has had pressure on him for a while. In his six previous games, Browning had a 1.49 ERA in 42 1-3 innings but just a 1-1 record to show for it.

The Reds, who haven't been hitting much, had lost five of six and 16 of 24.

"I realized that we have been struggling a little bit offensively, not scoring a lot of runs," Browning said. "There isn't much you can do, just go out and hope you get the breaks."

The Reds didn't exactly rattle any fences Tuesday off Terry Mulholland, 1-3. They got six hits and two first-inning runs.

Browning made those two runs look like 200 until the ninth, when he needed Franco to get Len Dykstra to hit into a double play, ending the game. Franco earned his 22nd save.

The only no-hitter in the 19-year history of Veterans Stadium is Pascual Perez's five-inning job for Montreal last September. Four pitchers have gone into the ninth inning at the Vet without allowing a hit.

The 1-hour, 44-minute game was the fastest in the league this season. The previous was 1:48, last Thursday between Atlanta and Cincinnati. Browning started that game, too.

"I've pitched like that since Little League. I was always taught to get the ball and throw it," he said.

At the start of the third, on Browning's only 3-2 count before the ninth, Dykstra sent a line drive toward right field that first baseman Todd Benzinger speared.

The rest of the plays were routine, although Browning dropped his glove to his right side and held onto a shot by Dykstra that appeared headed for a hit.

The Reds got their runs when Harris led off the game with a walk and scored on Kal Daniels' double, Daniels reaching third on the throw to the plate.

After Barry Larkin grounded out, Eric Davis walked and Paul O'Neill hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Daniels.

Martina Not Anticipating

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WIMBLEDON, England — Don't bother reminding Martina Navratilova that she's just two victories away from a record ninth Wimbledon singles title.

"There's no reason to talk about it," she said Tuesday after advancing to the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-2 cakewalk over Gretchen Magers.

"If and when I win the semifinals, I will be happy to talk about the finals," the second-seeded Navratilova said. "I can't say it enough, you can really only play one match, you can't look ahead."

"The players are too good. If you start looking ahead, you will find yourself packing your bags and going home before you get there."

But Navratilova, who is tied with Helen Wills Moody at eight Wimbledon singles titles, admits breaking the record has been on her mind.

"Obviously," she said, "thinking about the Wimbledon record or winning Wimbledon again, that goes on when I'm working out, when I'm out there four hours a day and running and lifting weights and killing myself on the courts. But once I get here, I'm just thinking about winning the next match."

On paper, that shouldn't be much trouble. In Thursday's semifinals, Navratilova will face unseeded Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, a player she has beaten in all 11 of their matches.

Lindqvist edged another unseeded player, Rosalyn Fairbank, 7-5, 7-5.

"She's basically a baseliner, although she has been trying to come in," Navratilova said of Lindqvist. "She's got a great backhand, and I'm just going to try to move her around. I can't wait to play."

If she gets past Lindqvist, Navratilova's final opponent will be either top-seeded Steffi Graf, who beat French Open champion Arantxa Sanchez 7-5, 6-1, or Chris Evert, who came from behind to defeat Laura Golarsa 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Chrissy Keeps Dream Alive; Graf Avenges Loss To Sanchez

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WIMBLEDON, England — Two points from defeat against unheralded Laura Golarsa, Chris Evert realized where she was and that she might never return.

It wasn't how the 34-year-old American wanted to end an 18-year success story at Wimbledon.

"I thought, 'This isn't the way I would like to go out of the tournament,'" Evert said Tuesday. "Certainly, if it would be my last year, which probably it would be, it would not be the way to go out."

Inspired by that notion, Evert cracked a trademark two-handed backhand down the line. On the next point, Golarsa missed a volley. In a flash, a match Evert had no chance of winning was hers for the taking.

And she took it. "I certainly never thought I was going to win that match," Evert said after a 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 victory that put her into the semifinals for the 17th time in 18 years after her greatest comeback at Wimbledon.

Action switched to the men's quarterfinals today, with John McEnroe first up on Centre Court against Mats Wilander, followed by Tim Mayotte against defending champion Stefan Edberg.

On Court No. 1, Ivan Lendl was pitted against unseeded American Dan Goldie, followed by Boris Becker's meeting with surprise quarterfinalist Paul Chamberlin.

Evert was joined in the women's semifinals by her old friend and rival, Martina Navratilova, defending champion Steffi Graf and unseeded Swede Catarina Lindqvist.

Navratilova, edging closer to a record ninth Wimbledon singles title, overpowered Gretchen Magers 6-1, 6-2. Graf avenged her French Open final defeat by Arantxa Sanchez, beating the 17-year-old Spaniard 7-5, 6-1, and will play Evert in the semifinals.

Lindqvist ended the run of Ros Fairbank, who had beaten two seeds. The South African lost 7-5, 7-5.

Navratilova, who shares the record of eight Wimbledon singles titles with Helen Wills Moody, said she didn't want to discuss breaking it — yet.

"If and when I win the semis, I will be happy to talk about the finals," Navratilova said. "I can't say it enough ... you cannot look ahead. If you start looking ahead, you will find yourself packing your bags and going home before you get there. There's no point."

Graf, beaten in three sets in Paris by Sanchez, avenged that defeat easily and hasn't dropped a set on her way to the semifinals.

The Spanish teen-ager, whose bubbly personality endeared her to the crowd, served for the opening set at 5-4 but was broken at love and thereafter struggled on the grass.

Instead of repeating the passing shots that stunned Graf in Paris, Sanchez was hurried into errors. She scurried and scampered for every ball, but this time it wasn't enough.

"She played much better than she did at the French Open," Sanchez said. "She played incredibly. I couldn't do anything."

Graf wasn't so sure of her performance. "This match was nothing special," the 20-year-old West German said. "I can play much better."

So can Evert. The American eteran, who has won the title three times but not since 1981, looked beaten against Golarsa, ranked 87th in the world.

Playing a perfect serve-and-volley game after shedding her early nerves, Golarsa had Evert in dire trouble and led 5-2 in the final set, then 5-3, 30-0 on serve.

"She was playing so well that I didn't know what to do," Evert said. "I was wondering in the third set, 'Do I have enough in reserve to pull this match out?' Because I pulled out so many matches in my career, or was there nothing there?"

Many Skipping Greater Hartford

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CROMWELL, Conn. — Defending champion Mark Brooks, rebounding after a sluggish start on this year's PGA Tour, leads a field of 156 pros into the $1 million Greater Hartford Open at the Tournament Players Club of Connecticut.

Mark Calcavecchia, Chip Beck, Scott Hoch, Mark O'Meara, Paul Azinger, Ben Crenshaw, Lee Trevino and Fuzzy Zoeller are among those expected to tee off on Thursday. But 48 of the top 100 money-winners will skip the tournament, preferring instead to start their preparations for the British Open, the season's third major tournament, which begins July 20.

Late entries for the Hartford event include two-time U.S. Open winner Hale Irwin, former PGA champion Hal Sutton and 1986 Hartford winner Mac O'Grady.

Tournament officials said the par-71, 6,786-yard course is in good condition, although a bit of rain would help level out conditions on all the putting greens. Eight of the greens are more than 60 years old, but the other 10 are only 6 years old.

Brooks, 28, won last year's $126,000 first prize when he sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole.

Brooks faces formidable odds in trying to repeat. No player has repeated as Greater Hartford champion since the tournament began play in 1952 as the Insurance City Open at Wethersfield Country Club.

Brooks started this year slowly, missing six cuts in eight starts. But he found his stroke in the Canadian Open two weeks ago, finishing in a tie for fifth, his best placing of the year. That finish boosted his earnings this year to $93,230, 82nd on the PGA money list.

Missing from today's celebrity pro-am today was Sammy Davis Jr., the entertainer who attached his name to the tournament for 15 years before calling it quits last year.

"Everywhere I go, the first thing people ask is, 'Who's taking Sammy's place?'" Lydia Bartnik, celebrities chairwoman of the tournament, said. In fact, she said, no one is taking Davis' place.

Officials of the Greater Hartford Jaycees, which organizes and runs the tournament, said they miss Davis and his contributions, but that neither the mood of the tournament nor the attendance will suffer without him.

Daniel E. Kleinman, counsel for the tournament, said that Canon, whose initial five-year contract to sponsor the tournament ends this year, "will remain with the tournament as a sponsor."

Schultz In Favor Of Extra Money

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — The top administrator of the NCAA says he's in favor of giving additional aid to athletes to help with travel from home to campus and to go toward a spending and clothing allowance.

The stipend, however, would be based solely on need, NCAA executive director Dick Schultz said.

"I don't think I'd be in favor of saying, 'All right, we're going to do this for every athlete.' But I think if you put in a need-based formula, then you would allow the truly needy student to have those things," Schultz said in an interview with The Dominion-Post of Morgantown. "I feel that if we recruit athletes and bring them in, each has a right to live like the average student because he or she can't work during the school year."

Schultz said a set stipend instead of a program based on need wouldn't stop cheating by some athletic programs.

"The (NCAA) constitution says you can receive up to the cost of attendance," he said. "That's the maximum and it's substantially more than we provide right now: room, board, books, tuition and fees."

"So if the members are interested, I would certainly support something that would provide the needy athletes with additional funds up to the cost of attendance. In some cases, it might be $300 or $400 a month."

Schultz, in Morgantown last week for a testimonial dinner for recently retired West Virginia athletic director Fred Schaus, said the NCAA would have to pass a national rule and financial aid officers at each member institution would have to determine and document need.

"There are a lot of (non-athletes) at every institution that receive financial aid based on need," he said. "The formula is there. It would be just a matter of plugging the athlete in there and to see how much he or she would be entitled to over and above the scholarship they get right now."

Pitt Rally Carries Past Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — Pitt County's American Legion baseball team rallied from a 2-0 deficit to take a 6-4 win over Rocky Mount in the first game of the second round of the Area One East playoffs Tuesday night.

Pitt fell behind in the second inning when Rocky Mount took the lead with a single run. Jimmy Adams singled and stole second, scoring when John Bonner reached on an error.

Rocky Mount added a second run in the fifth. Ernie Jones singled and was sacrificed to second. He scored on a hit by Ricky Taylor.

Pitt then came up with three runs in the sixth to take the lead for good. Jamie Brewington walked and John Bolen reached on a fielder's choice. Heath Clark then doubled to drive in both runners. Clark scored on a hit by Ty Little for the 3-2 lead.

Pitt added two more in the seventh. David Leisten reached on an error and Chris Christopher doubled to drive him across. Brewington walked and Bolen singled, scoring Christopher.

The sixth Pitt run crossed in the eighth. Walter Gatlin walked, was sacrificed up, and took third on Leisten's single. A wild pitch allowed Gatlin to score.

Rocky Mount came up with two in the bottom of the eighth, but fell short in its rally.

Leisten, Maurice Hines and Clark each had two hits to lead Pitt while Adams had two hits to pace Rocky Mount. Hines got the win, going the distance, scattering eight hits, striking out 10 and walking four.

Pitt County will try and wrap up the best-of-three series tonight at Harrington Field in Greenville at 8 p.m. when it hosts Rocky Mount in Game Two. A third game, if needed, would be played Thursday at Rocky Mount.

The winner will advance to play the winner of the Snow Hill-Wilson County series, starting Saturday.

Snow Hill Holds Off Wilson Rally

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team, the regular season champion, held off a rally by Wilson County, 3-2, in the second round of the Area One East playoffs Tuesday night.

Todd Mewborn started the game and got the win and had a no-hitter going until the eighth inning. With two outs, however, pinch-hitter Donald Barnes got a single. Mewborn walked the next man and was relieved by Chris West, who later gave up two more hits which led to Wilson's scoring, all in the ninth.

Snow Hill took the lead in the sixth inning, scoring all three of its runs. George Burnette struck out but reached when the catcher dropped the ball and then threw wildly to first base. Burnette stole up and went to third on Cedric Collins' bunt single. Collins also stole up and both scored on a hit by Walt McKeel. McKeel went on to third on an error at the plate on the relay, then scored on a wild pitch for the 3-0 lead.

In the ninth, after two men were out, John Bunn drew a walk from West to get the Wilson rally going. Scott Davis then singled and Angelo Cox followed with a triple, scoring both runners.

But West retired the next batter to end the threat with the tying run still at third base.

McKeel led the Snow Hill hitting with two in four trips to the plate.

Snow Hill now leads the best-of-three series, one game to none, and will seek to wrap it up tonight at Wilson's Fleming Stadium at 8 p.m. Should the third game be needed, it will be played Thursday night at 8 p.m. at Snow Hill.

The winner of the series will advance to play the Pitt County-Rocky Mount winner in a best-of-five series for the league title starting Saturday.

Kinston Indians Pull Off Triple Play

KINSTON (AP) — The Kinston Indians turned the first triple play of the Carolina League season Tuesday.

In the sixth inning, Peninsula Pilots' Dodd Johnson lined a pitch right at Kinston Indians first baseman Daren Epley, who touched first and tossed to second as a pair of baserunners were off on a hit-and-run play.

The triple play took Peninsula out of a big inning and led to a 4-3 loss to Kinston, the Pilots' ninth straight setback against the Indians.

Len Thigpen led off the inning for the Pilots with a single off Kinston reliever Mike Curtis and, after Kohichi Ogata walked, Darrell Tingle scored Thigpen with a single to left and moved Ogata to second.

With Ogata and Tingle each getting excellent jumps on the pitch, Johnson lined a 1-0 pitch right to Epley, who could have had an unassisted triple play.

Instead he stepped on first to double up Tingle and tossed over to second baseman Ramon Bautista, who tripled up Ogata, who had already rounded third.

It added to a good and bad defensive game for Kinston, which also turned two double plays, but committed three errors.

The Indians are off to a 13-2 start in the season's second half and have won 15 of their last 17 games.

Spencer Wins Carolina Pride Race

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Jimmy Spencer came from deep in the starting field to win his third NASCAR Busch Grand National Series race of the season in the $75,648 Carolina Pride 200 at Myrtle Beach Speedway Tuesday night.

Spencer, of Berwick, Pa., started 20th in the 31-car field for the 200-lap race. He blasted through the field in the first half of the race, then took the lead from polesitter Rob Moroso of Madison, Conn., on lap 92.

Spencer led the rest of the way on the .538-mile, banked track.

Moroso fell from contention after being involved in an accident on lap 115 and finished seventh.

Jack Ingram of Asheville, N.C., finished second, one second behind Spencer, with Bobby Hamilton of Nashville coming in third. Spencer and Hamilton drove Buicks, while Ingram was in a Chevrolet.

Spencer collected $11,825 for the win, which came at an average speed of 75.938 mph. There were six caution flags for 32 laps.

Schmitt Wins Winston West Race

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Veteran Bill Schmitt came from a lap behind to win the NASCAR Winston 200 stock car race at Portland Speedway on Tuesday, taking the lead in a chain-reaction tangle with just four laps remaining.

Schmitt, a two-time NASCAR Winston West Series champion, won by six car lengths over Jerry Bowers of Meridian, Idaho.

Bowers, who led much of the race, appeared to have it won but was hit from behind in the third turn on the paved half-mile oval, enabling Schmitt to slip his Chevrolet Monte Carlo into the lead and go on to what he called "the most bizarre victory of my career."

Magrane In 5th Straight Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National League's leader in earned-run average last season is making a run at defending his title.

Joe Magrane pitched a five-hitter for his third straight victory, leading St. Louis past Los Angeles 2-1 at Busch Stadium Tuesday night.

Last season, Magrane led the NL with a 2.18 ERA while going 5-9. His five victories were the fewest ever by an ERA winner and he was the first Cardinal to lead in that category since Harry Brecheen in 1948.

Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said Magrane needed only 76 pitches to get through the first eight innings of the game.

"He threw 12 in the ninth. He threw 10 of them to Mike Marshall," Herzog said. "He's capable of going out there and throwing that kind of game every time."

previous season of his 11-year career.

Terry Puhl led the Astros attack with a single, double and triple in three at-bats and three RBIs.

Ojeda, 5-8, lasted only two-thirds of an inning, allowing eight runs and six hits.

Cubs 5, Padres 1
Andre Dawson had three hits, drove in one run and scored another, leading Mike Bielecki and Chicago past San Diego at Wrigley Field.

Bielecki, 7-4, allowed no runs, five hits and struck out six in six innings. He left the game because of a bruised hip sustained when he was hit by Tony Gwynn's line drive in the third inning.

The victory ended a streak of six straight home losses for the Cubs, who scored three runs against Ed Whitson, 10-6, in the first inning and added two unearned runs in the third.

Pirates 5, Giants 3
Jose Lind and R.J. Reynolds drove in two runs each in a four-run fifth inning as Pittsburgh beat visiting San Francisco for its sixth victory in eight games. The loss sliced the Giants' lead over second-place Houston to 1½ games in the NL West.

Randy Kramer, 3-4, allowed two runs in five innings to win his second consecutive start and beat former Pirate Don Robinson, who lost his second in a row after winning four straight.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1
Joe Magrane pitched a five-hitter for his third straight victory, leading St. Louis past Los Angeles at Busch Stadium.

The Cardinals scored two runs in the first inning off Fernando Valenzuela, 4-7. Jose Oquendo followed Vince Coleman's double and 44th consecutive successful stolen base with a sacrifice fly. Ozzie Smith then doubled and scored on Pedro Guerrero's single. The Cards are 22-11 in games in which Guerrero has driven in a run.

Since coming off the disabled list on April 30, Magrane has a 7-4 record and a 1.85 ERA. Overall, he is 8-6.

Braves 9, Expos 3
Jeff Blauser had four hits, including a two-run double in a five-run first inning, as Atlanta beat visiting Montreal.

Rose's Lawyers Seek To Halt Move

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Lawyers for Pete Rose want to keep his lawsuit in a state court in Cincinnati, where the Reds manager already has won an order that protects him from suspension or firing.
 Rose's lawyers were expected to file papers in U.S. District Court in Columbus today to try to block Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti from moving the case to the federal court system.
 Baseball's lawyers asked the federal courts on Monday to take the case away from Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert A. Nadel, who has given Rose a temporary restraining order that prevents Giamatti from deciding the manager's fate. Baseball's request was filed with the U.S. District Court in Cincinnati, which transferred it to a federal judge in Columbus to avoid appearances of impropriety.

 The question of which court gets to handle Rose's lawsuit could be pivotal in deciding the outcome. Federal courts repeatedly have upheld the sweeping powers of the baseball commissioner, while Nadel has shown a willingness to go into what he described as "uncharted waters" in handling the lawsuit.
 "Federal courts are much more aware of the needs of baseball and much more willing to accept the authority of baseball and the commissioner," baseball lawyer Louis Hoynes Jr. said.

 U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh in Columbus was awaiting the response today from Rose's lawyers before deciding whether he has legal jurisdiction over the lawsuit, or whether it should go back to Nadel.
 Rose's lawyers had expected baseball to try to change the courtroom in which the lawsuit will be heard. They argue the matter belongs in the state courts.
 "Federal court has no jurisdiction over this case," Robert Stachler, one of Rose's lawyers, said.
 While Holschuh considers the legal skirmish, Rose remains under the protection of Nadel's 14-day order.

That order blocks Giamatti from holding a hearing with Rose on evidence that the manager bet on his own team, an offense that carries a lifetime ban from baseball.
 Nadel granted Rose the temporary order June 25, and ruled that Giamatti cannot take any action against Rose and the Reds cannot fire him. Nadel then scheduled a hearing for Thursday on the manager's request for an injunction that would extend those protections indefinitely while the sides prepare for trial on Rose's lawsuit against Giamatti.
 In announcing his unprecedented decision from the bench, Nadel said there was evidence that Giamatti had "prejudged" that Rose is guilty. Giamatti denies he has made up his mind on Rose's fate.

 Baseball's lawyers then turned to a state appeals court in Cincinnati, which concluded it had no legal standing to get involved in the case. The appeal to the federal courts in Cincinnati on Monday was baseball's next step in trying to take the case away from Nadel.
 U.S. District Judges Carl B. Rubin and Herman J. Weber in Cincinnati said they had "substantial doubt" whether the case legally could be moved to the federal court system. But they decided that a judge in Columbus should make that decision, rather than one in Rose's hometown of Cincinnati.

 Rubin already has said he thought there was a "vendetta" against Rose, a remark that later resulted in Rubin removing himself from the case of one of the manager's chief accusers, bookmaker Ronald Peters.
 "(Rose) is not just another litigant," the judges said Monday, in moving the case to Columbus. "He is instead a baseball figure of national reputation closely identified with the Cincinnati Reds and the city of Cincinnati. Under such circumstances, it would appear advisable that it be transferred to a city of the Southern District of Ohio other than Cincinnati."

Jackson Downplays Reaching 40-40 Club

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bo Jackson is halfway to joining Jose Canseco in the 40-40 club. Not that it makes any difference to the Kansas City outfielder.
 "To hell with 40-40 — you all are more concerned about it than I am. I'm just playing baseball," Jackson said Tuesday night after homering twice to lead the Royals past Oakland 10-1.
 At the season's midway point, Jackson has 20 home runs and 20 steals.
 "I wouldn't call it dumb," Jackson said of 40-40 speculation, "but it's blown out of proportion by the press. If I don't do it, the sun's going to rise tomorrow somewhere. I just go out there and play ball. And as a baseball player, I'm not satisfied with the way I'm playing."

 Bret Saberhagen, 8-4, won his fifth consecutive decision, allowing five hits in seven innings and striking out a season-high 11. He has not lost since May 19 at Detroit and the Royals are 13-4 in games he has started.
 In other games, New York beat Detroit 1-0, California beat Texas 5-2, Baltimore beat Toronto 8-0, Cleveland beat Chicago 3-2, Milwaukee beat Boston 4-3 and Seattle beat Minnesota 3-2.
 Matt Young, 0-2, gave up four runs and five hits and walked five in three-plus innings. He was making his fourth start following elbow surgery.

 "We made terrible pitches," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said of the way his staff faced Jackson, "and he capitalized on them."
Yankees 1, Tigers 0
 Don Schulze, promoted from the minors earlier in the day, allowed six hits in seven innings for his first major-league victory since July 20, 1987, with the New York Mets.
 Tom Brookens, who, like Schulze, played in the Detroit organization last season, singled home the only run in the fourth inning off Frank Tanana, 7-8. Don Mattingly went 3-for-4 and extended his hitting streak to 17 games.

 Before the game, the Yankees observed the 50th anniversary of Lou Gehrig's farewell speech in Yankee Stadium.
Angels 5, Rangers 2
 Tony Armas hit a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth off Kevin Brown, 7-5. There were 62,390 fans at Anaheim Stadium, the largest crowd in the majors this season.
 Wally Joyner doubled with one out and took third on an infield grounder. Chili Davis was intentionally walked and Armas hit his sixth home run of the season in just 47 at-bats.
 Willie Fraser, 2-4, pitched three innings of three-hit relief after Mike Witt gave up six hits and both runs in six innings.
Orioles 8, Blue Jays 0
 Dave Schmidt pitched a perfect game for 6 1-3 innings and Cal Ripken drove in three runs in the SkyDome. Mark Williamson finished the combined two-hitter with 2 2-3 innings of hitless relief for his seventh save.
 Schmidt, 8-7, lost the perfect-game bid when Tony Fernandez beat out a bunt single down the first-base line.
 Dave Stieb, 7-5, allowed five hits in six innings, struck out five and walked four. Toronto has lost four of its last five games.
Indians 3, White Sox 2
 Luis Aguayo hit his first home run of the season and Scott Bailes, 4-3, won for the third time in four starts, allowing two runs and six hits in seven innings. Doug Jones got three outs for his 20th save in 23 opportunities.

 Melido Perez retired 11 consecutive batters from the second until Jerry Browne walked with two outs in the fifth. Aguayo then hit his first home run since he had one for the New York Yankees against Bailes last Sept. 13.
 Bailes held the visiting White Sox scoreless on four hits until the seventh, when Dan Pasqua hit a two-run homer.
Brewers 4, Red Sox 3
 Paul Molitor snapped a 2-2 tie with a leadoff home run over the Green Monster in the eighth off Joe Price, 1-4. B.J. Surhoff added a sacrifice fly in the ninth for a 4-2 lead.

 Chris Bosio, 8-5, allowed seven hits in 7 2-3 innings, struck out eight and walked three. Dan Plesac got the final four outs for his league-leading 21st save in 26 opportunities.
Mariners 3, Twins 2
 Scott Bankhead, 7-4, allowed three hits and one run in 7 1-3 innings to win his fifth consecutive decision.
 Mike Schooler pitched the ninth for his 18th save, allowing a run-scoring single to Al Newman. With the tying run on third and one out, Schooler struck out Tim Lardner and got Randy Bush on a flyout.
 Allan Anderson, 9-6, gave up three runs and six hits over eight innings for the visiting Twins.

Sports Illustrated Says NFL Drug Problem Not That Bad

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW YORK — The NFL's drug problem is not as serious as the league makes it out to be, according to Sports Illustrated.
 In this week's issue, the magazine said the NFL has turned up "scant evidence" of illicit drug use by players but deliberately gives the impression it has a serious problem because it wants to maintain its strong antidrug policy.
 Sports Illustrated said it "has turned up widespread irregularities, inconsistencies and misrepresentations in nearly every facet of the NFL's drug program. League officials have misstated the dimensions of drug use among players ... depending on their public relations needs of the moment."
 "They have seldom bothered to distinguish between players who are addicted and those who have used drugs recreationally."
 NFL spokesman Joe Browne reacted to the story by saying:
 "Sports Illustrated has criticized our office in the past for not doing enough to address the drug issue. Now, they apparently are claiming that the NFL drug problem is not that serious. Editorial consistency evidently is not one of the magazine's virtues."
 The magazine says a "probable explanation" for the NFL not divulging its low numbers of positive tests is that "to justify its brass-knuckles drug policy, the NFL needs to give the impression that drug use by players is widespread."
 "The NFL has seized upon the perception that professional sports has a drug problem, and has used that perception to try to improve the league's image and to manipulate players. The NFL tests players and retests them and suspends them and releases their names and the public assumes that Rozelle & Co. mean business about drugs."

 Sports Illustrated said it has seen figures that 6.5 percent of all NFL players tested positive for cocaine, marijuana, alcohol and other drugs (except anabolic steroids) in pre-season 1986 and 9.6 in pre-season 1987.
 However, it said that most positive tests were for over-the-counter medications or alcohol, adding that only 0.7 percent tested positive for cocaine in 1986 and 0.8 percent in 1987. The figures for marijuana were 1.8 and 1.6 percent, respectively.
 "The unavoidable conclusion is that NFL officials fear publicizing the figures because then they might have trouble justifying their drug-testing program," the article says.
 The NFL is the only league that tests all players for drugs. Since 1982, players have been subject to urinalyses in training camp, as well as unannounced follow-up tests when there is "reasonable cause" to believe a player is using drugs.
 Last year, the NFL suspended 24 players for alleged involvement with cocaine, marijuana or alcohol, more than the total number of athletes suspended by major-league baseball, the NBA, the NHL and the Winter and Summer Olympics.

 Sports Illustrated said its report was based on transcripts of hearings and court proceedings in NFL drug cases and on interviews with players, agents, team doctors, National Football League Players Association officials and drug experts, as well as information provided by former employees of Dr. Forest Tennant Jr., the league's drug adviser.
 It said outgoing Commissioner Pete Rozelle declined to be interviewed and Tennant would not answer questions.
 The magazine also said the NFL "routinely breaches its own policy" by failing to make some players who test positive undergo reasonable-cause testing and conversely by treating some players who aren't addicts as if they were.

Medical Science Hasn't Diagnosed The Manager. By Hal Bock. The Associated Press. Back in May, when the doctors were poking and probing around an exhausted Sparky Anderson, the manager of the Detroit Tigers remembered his old pal, Gene Mauch, who had the same symptoms and the same examination a year earlier. Mauch had left the California Angels in spring training feeling awful and went through the whole battery of medical tests — heart, lungs, and the rest. "When they were finished with him," Anderson said, "Gene asked the doctor, 'Can you give a test for 27 years of managing?'"

Uno Assets Reported

TOKYO (AP) — The personal assets of Prime Minister Sousuke Uno and his wife total $2.1 million, the second largest in Japan's 22-member Cabinet, an official at the prime minister's residence announced.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity Tuesday, said the 66-year-old Uno's assets included 2.4 acres of land and his residence in Shiga, 200 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The assets of Chief Cabinet Secretary Masajuro Shiokawa and his wife were the largest among Cabinet ministers, totaling $9.3 million. They include $8.9 million worth of land in Osaka, Japan's second largest city.

The assets of Justice Minister Kazuo Tanikawa, his wife and three children totaled $155,000, smallest among the Cabinet ministers.

Cabinet ministers have been making their personal assets public since 1984. The official said that for the first time, the Uno Cabinet also disclosed the assets of parliamentary vice ministers and their families.

Uno's Cabinet was inaugurated June 2 after his predecessor, Noboru Takeshita, resigned to take responsibility for an influence-peddling scandal.

The disclosure of assets began after the bribery conviction of former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka raised questions of political morality that caused electoral setbacks for the governing Liberal Democratic Party.

AID Inspector Says U.S. Funds Not Reaching Egyptian Families

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Not a single family benefited during the first 10 years of a $134 million U.S.-Egyptian program to provide housing for low-income people near Cairo, according to the Agency for International Development.

A new report to Congress by AID Inspector General Herbert L. Beckington complains about U.S. aid operations in Egypt. At $2.3 billion a year, Egypt gets more U.S. aid than any country except Israel.

The project begun in 1978 at Helwan, about 18 miles south of Cairo, was to cost $160 million, shared equally by the two governments. By March 31, 1988, the United States had spent $71 million and Egypt $63 million and not one family had occupied an apartment, the report said.

John Riddle, a spokesman for the agency, said that since Beckington's report was written, 205 families have moved into 158 apartment units. The project had been planned to include 4,000 units.

The United States will stop paying money into the project after Sept. 30, Riddle said.

The AID report said questionable management decisions were responsible for problems in the housing project. There were disputes about who would be eligible to get a house, and planners apparently never considered how money was to be collected from the occupants, the report said.

Riddle said the United States is spending 10 million Egyptian pounds (about $3.9 million) to hire local contractors for what he called a "lessons learned analysis" of the project.

The money is coming from the sales of U.S. goods sent as aid to Egypt. Money from such sales usually goes into a joint account managed by the two governments.

Beckington also complained about the agency's system for checking on the $3.4 billion worth of goods sent to Egypt since 1975.

"AID had not verified the arrival in Egypt of more than $283 million in AID-financed commodities through April 30, 1988," the report said, adding that the problem has persisted although it was mentioned in previous reports.

It also faulted AID's accounting for more than $11 million in Egyptian currency collected from sales of medical products.

The report, submitted to Congress every six months, covered Oct. 1, 1988, to March 31 of this year.

Beckington praised as well-managed the project to improve the power station at the Aswan High Dam, to which the agency is contributing $140 million. The dam was built with Soviet help during the 1960s after the United States rejected the project.

The Egyptian government has not submitted required reports, Beckington said, so his agency cannot say if Egypt is contributing the equivalent of $12 million as promised.

Despite aid given by the United States and the Soviet Union, Egypt is in poor economic condition.

Solidarity Delegates Take Seats Beside Communists

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — Taking seats beside their former Communist jailers in the new parliament, Solidarity legislators savored the historic moment and immediately took the government to task for mishandling the economy.

Not only did the free trade union movement claim the spoils of its June election victory on Tuesday. It also saw the discredited government of Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski formally resign.

In his first speech as a deputy, Solidarity veteran Jacek Kuron lashed into Rakowski for helping precipitate an economic crisis in which the government's "chaotic policy caused only social unrest." Rakowski looked on uncomfortably from a balcony.

Kuron, who spent nine years in jail for opposition activities, noted that Communist authorities refrained from increasing prices during the election campaign, then ordered price rises after the humiliating electoral defeat.

Despite running uncontested, Rakowski and other key members of the ruling Communist coalition were denied seats in the new parliament.

In the June balloting, Solidarity-backed candidates won all but one of the races the opposition was allowed to contest. Theirs became the first opposition movement to enter an East bloc parliament since the postwar Communist takeover.

"There were two great moments in my life — the August 1980 agreements (that created Solidarity) and today," said Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, who did not run for office but sat in places of honor with Communist leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

With the economy in shambles, many analysts say, the same government that crushed Solidarity with martial law 7½ years ago had few options but that which it chose — reinstating the union in April and trying to work with it.

Shortages in basic commodities are worse than ever, inflation is averaging 100 percent per year and servicing the $39 billion foreign debt is becoming more problematic.

Price increases in the last two weeks alone raised the cost of sugar, cigarettes, alcohol, gasoline, refrigerators and washing machines.

The value of the dollar, Poland's most valued currency, fluctuated wildly before stabilizing after the government announced a monthlong wage and price freeze as of July 1.

In postwar Poland, government-mandated price increases have touched off labor unrest that has toppled regimes and, last August, led authorities to agree to negotiate

Solidarity's reinstatement.

Unclear now is whether Solidarity will help the government by assuming part of the responsibility for seeking a way out of the economic crisis.

The union is asking Western leaders for $10 billion in new aid that would allow Poland to continue on its path of reform — encouraging free market mechanisms and closing money-losing industries — without labor turmoil.

On Tuesday, Rakowski's Cabinet formally submitted its resignation to the Sejm, or lower house of parliament, which now counts 161 Solidarity deputies among its 460 members.

 The inexperienced player goes for — every finesse in sight. The hallmark of the expert is that he tries to avoid relying on a finesse, if possible.

When he learned his partner had an unbalanced hand with three-card heart support—and shortness in spades, South wisely elected to play in four hearts rather than three no trump. The former rated to have a far greater chance of success.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and declarer ruffed. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed, followed by a diamond, carefully ruffed with the seven. West overruffed with the king and unwisely continued spades, again ruffed in dummy. A fourth diamond was ruffed with the nine, establishing the 13th diamond on the table. A trump to the queen and ace left declarer in control. Declarer won the spade return with his ace, cashed the jack of trumps and, leaving the master trump out, he crossed to the ace of clubs to discard a club on the fifth diamond. The defenders could take their high trump whenever they wished, but that would be the third and last trick for the defense. Declarer lost only three trump tricks.

Note the care declarer exercised in ruffing in his contract. He ruffed spades while retaining the ace in his hand to control the suit. And he prudently ruffed the first diamond with the seven, and not with the two, to protect against a 4-2 break.

A Christian Connection Minister, Electrician A Counselor To The Young

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Many people know Charles Gooden as a mild-mannered electrician at Pitt County Memorial Hospital; others know him as a dedicated Christian youth minister and counselor.

Gooden says he makes his work at the hospital meaningful by performing his job conscientiously and by being friendly and helpful to co-workers and even visitors to the hospital. But during his leisure hours, he realizes full self-expression through preaching or otherwise sharing his Christian convictions.

It was Christianity, he said, which drew him out of a living hell — alcohol and drug addiction from the time he was about 9 years old until he was 20.

Gooden, 29, is licensed as a minister by both the United American Free Will Baptist Church and the United Holiness Church. However, he says that his ministry is non-denominational. He likes working mainly in youth revivals and other youth endeavors because he feels that his life experience helps him relate well to young people and their emotional challenges.

Gooden grew up in Washington, D.C., the son of a wealthy downtown bar owner. He remembers happy younger years with his parents, three brothers and one sister. But his life grew steadily more unstable and unhappy as his father's business prospered and he stayed away from home more and more. His mother left home when he was 6, and he did not see her again until he was 15. He feels sympathy for her even now, he said, knowing that she was no longer able to cope with the emotional distance between her and her husband.

From that time when he was about 6 years old, he said, he and his siblings were poor little rich kids — living in a nice house in the suburbs, left day after day in the care of various maids.

"My life became a nightmare," he said. "I did everything I could to get attention from anybody, but no one paid any attention to me. So therefore, as I grew older, I started stealing from everybody, breaking into places. I also started smoking anything I could smoke."

He recalls those years as a time when he wanted love so badly from other people and felt so little of it for anyone else. "I was so angry," he said. "I felt cheated that my home was so torn up. But I didn't tell anyone how I felt in words. Instead, I just grew up fast, became very street-wise, very seemingly able to take care of myself."

"I remember thinking back then that there was only one person on earth that I loved. That was my grandmother Carrie Gooden. She was such a rock of Christian faith — so strong, so wise, so able to bear up under whatever came her way. I admired her so much, still do. She lived in another part of Washington and I loved to go to her house. The atmosphere was so nice there. She was just a good woman."

"It's still my aim to have my life be the kind of Christian witness hers was."

He recalls a time when he stole his father's car. "When I was sitting in the police department in handcuffs waiting for my father to come and get me, I was so scared, I couldn't cry or speak. My father finally came and I was shaking like a leaf. The policeman asked my father what to do with me and he replied, 'Teach him a lesson.'"

"My heart really dropped and I felt abandoned. The policeman took me to a holding cell and soon I was in a bad boys' camp. I remember the first day I was there, I was scared stiff. During my first night there, I had to protect myself. It was the only way to prove myself. Once I was accepted, everything eased off. No more fights. I had become one of the rough crowd that ran the place. I became hard-nosed."

"After my release, I started right back again stealing cars, breaking into places. In the midst of all this, when I was about 14, drugs became a pastime. I was smoking marijuana, doing cocaine and angel dust. Naturally I was totally addicted.

"I've nearly gotten myself killed several times. One time I remember was when I was tripping out on drugs walking down the middle of Georgia Avenue in Washington in heavy traffic. I wasn't aware at the time, but I remember all those lights coming after me. Luckily, I saved by a cousin who tackled me out of the way of a truck."

"That didn't cure me. I kept on indulging. I came south for a while to North Carolina, but things only got worse here. I didn't fit in. I stirred up trouble in class, got into fights. If only I had someone to talk to, I thought. But I didn't, as I feel as true with a lot of young people today."

Somewhere along the way, before he left D.C., in spite of his drug habit, in spite of his difficult behavior, Gooden worked with an electrician and began learning a trade he has been able to use to earn a living ever since. He has since obtained further training at Pitt Community College.

After having lived in North Carolina a while, he enlisted in the Army. Though he didn't entirely give up drugs and alcohol during his years of service in Texas and West Germany, he remembers this as a time when he learned a lot about discipline, self-respect, courage and determination. "But still, this wasn't enough," he said. "I got out of the Army and started hanging on the streets again, which meant more drugs..."

A second near-death experience occurred for him in Pitt County when he was hit by a car traveling 40 mph. "I am really blessed to be living," he said, "I left the hospital with only 13 stitches."

A little later, which living in Greenville, he had another accident. The same week he lost his job, his home and his "so-called friends". "By then, he said, "I was getting really sick of my life anyway. I was sick of drug. I didn't know how to get off them, but I was sick of them. I had nothing and no one," he said.

He recalls Thanksgiving Day, 1980: "I went to my sister's house in Ayden for dinner. I felt at the time I had nothing to be thankful for. I looked at her dinner table and I started to cry. And I cried and I cried and I cried. I realized then and there that I needed something within. I began calling upon the name of Jesus Christ."

"And what a change occurred for me! Jesus began working with me. The peace of God and a feeling of worthiness came to me as never before. Jesus took away the drugs, the alcohol, even the cigarettes. He gave me the Holy Spirit."

Today, Gooden likes to use his experience to work with young people. "I like to talk to kids in church and in school," he said. "In schools, I low-key my religious convictions, talk to them about the need to apply themselves at math, at English at all the subjects I used to resist once I got hooked on drugs."

"I like to work with kids in churches, sometimes in youth revivals. I want to do more."

Gooden is at work on plans to start a center for youth to visit where they will get support from volunteer adults and from their peers to stay off drugs. He is seeking grants and other backing to start the center.

He also spends time writing. He has self-published three books: A Study in the Word; The Tongue, A World of Iniquity and A Focus on Life, with Study Guide. A revised edition of A Focus On Life is to be published soon. These may be ordered from P.O. Box 8663, Greenville, N.C. 27835; phone, 758-5954.

He has also had some poetry published.

Gooden also dreams of being a missionary in Africa. Representatives of the Sudan Interior Missions in Charlotte have encouraged him to begin preparing to volunteer at a mission center on either the Ivory Coast or Benin. Either place, they assure him, he can work both as an electrician and an evangelist.

Retirement Communities Come Of Age

By David Larsen
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

In the development where she lives, she could have played pool or tennis, gone swimming or dancing, ridden horses or taken up golf on a 27-hole course. She could have grown her own vegetables or flowers, attended the theater or taken classes in everything from jewelry-making to woodworking. Or she simply could have contemplated the sunset on the banks of a creek, tossing bread to ducks.

But, no, Irene Puhlmann had other plans.

"I go for a stroll with my cat, which I have trained to walk on a leash," she said. "It wasn't easy — a stubborn German against a stubborn cat. But I won, and now we both enjoy it."

Her training of and her daily trot with her tabby, Puhlmann noted, helps to fill her retirement time, which like thousands of fortunate senior citizens nationwide, she has plenty of.

In fact, because of medical advances, greater public health consciousness and increased life expectancies, a rising number of older Americans like Puhlmann, a resident of Leisure World in Laguna Hills, Calif., are becoming part of a quiet trend.

They are "spending larger fractions of their lives in retirement," said Dr. Richard Suzman, health science administrator with the National Institute on Aging in Bethesda, Md. "And often this means more of (seniors') lives are spent in retirement communities."

Dr. Jon Pynoos, gerontology professor at the Andrus Gerontology Center at the University of Southern California, observed: "What we are seeing is the aging of some retirement communities."

For seniors like Puhlmann, who has spent 22 of her 77 years in Leisure World, the prolonged retirement has been mostly pleasurable. It has been a binge of relaxation, a period in which she and many seniors feel unpressured to make extended or extensive plans. They travel and spend time with their families. And their biggest concern often is simply their next leisure.

But for American society as a whole, and especially for segments of the housing and health-care industries, modern seniors' long-lasting retirement has focused attention on more than just play.

It promises to increase the prominence of three kinds of communities for the aged: Adult-only villages of condominiums or co-op apartments, usually owned and occupied by active, independent, empty-nesters 55 and older; assisted-living units, usually rented, and generally including meal, maid and other services; and life-care centers, where for big initial fees and monthly service charges, the elderly get lodging, meals, utilities, amenities, and, most importantly, access to hospital care, if required, and a nursing home at no extra cost.

"The adult community, which includes the 45,000-member Sun City in Arizona, came into being in the late '50s and early '60s," said Winston Elton, principal with the real estate consulting firm of Peat, Marwick-Goodkin in San Diego. "The life-care community is really a type of nursing home, and those go back decades. The third alternative, also known as congregate living, is the newest. It pretty much started within the last 10 years, and has really gained ground in the last five."

"Such living," he said, "is kind of a hybrid between being totally independent and being somewhat dependent. The rush is on because everyone is gearing up for the gray power of the baby boomers around the year 2000."

Which of these situations — besides, of course, the prospect of simply staying in their present single-family homes — will best suit the current group of elderly and the baby boomers and even those that will follow them?

Answers to such questions will evolve in the years ahead but some clues to the future already may be apparent in models of retirement life that exist now.

Tracy Strevey, the 87-year-old former dean of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences at USC, tried to explain why he and his wife have been so satisfied at the 2,095-acre Leisure World, a prime Southern California example of the active seniors' retirement community.

"You see people out walking at midnight," Strevey said, gesturing toward one of the complex's many tree-lined streets.

"And when we go on a trip, all we do is lock the door, notify the security desk, and leave," added his wife, Margaret, 80.

The Streveys have traveled often but always have returned to Leisure World, the 21,000-resident community that will observe its silver anniversary this year. The Streveys have lived there almost since it opened.

They sold their West Los Angeles home and were heading for 18 months to Ethiopia, where the Ford Foundation asked him to become executive vice president of Haile Selassie University. She refused to go abroad without having an American home to return to. "When we purchased our place (in Leisure World) in 1966, it was just a parcel of land with a stake in it," Strevey said.

But now it has become a highly desirable address, one that many seniors are competing for. "There are only about 200 units (in the complex) on the market right now, most of them one-bedroom," said Timothy B. Taylor, community information manager. "Prospective buyers bid against each other for the larger ones."

Why the popularity for a place, which some disparage because of its concentrated population of the old?

"We don't have facilities for people who can't take care of themselves," Margaret Strevey said. "We emphasize that this is an active life, if you want it — and most people here do want it."

Through Leisure World, residents enjoy a formidable array of activities, including hobby and academic classes, sports and recreations, as well as other individual and group diversions. They can participate in clubs for those interested in bocce, parapsychology, Scrabble and the needs of the hearing impaired, to name a few. The complex itself contains extensive, well-maintained landscaped grounds.

Although a few rentals are available, more than 92 percent of the complex's 40,000 to 500,000 and 800- to 2,250-square-foot co-ops and condominiums — most of which are paid for in full, in cash — are occupied by owners, who also must cover a monthly maintenance fee of $250 to $350 to live in Leisure World.

Though there are occasional conflicts between neighbors at Leisure World, "Probably only 1 percent of the residents sit here and complain, but they would complain anyway, anywhere," Margaret Strevey said. "When you become older, you don't change; you get more so."

Evans Street Building Has Entrepreneurial History

The Evans Street building was built in 1929

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The people of Greenville are steadily pushing for growth and progress. The widening of Evans Street is a step in that direction.

But progress is not without consequences.

During the Evans Street project the city will destroy a 60-year-old building rich in business history.

J.J. Perkins, one of the major businessmen and real estate developers in Greenville, built the building at 1501 S. Evans St. in 1929. The dark red double-bricked building has been the home of several fledgling businesses since the 1940s. Henry's Army/Navy Surplus most recently occupied the building.

The structure will be demolished future to make room for the four-lane road that will accommodate the heavy traffic that Evans Street has carried for years.

Henry Heath, owner of Fort Henry's Army/Navy, which recently moved out of 1501 into a new building just behind the old one, said that Perkins originally used the building as an office for his lumber mill which was situated just behind the lot. But in World War II he began making tobacco hogsheads there and that apparently that was the first business to be based in the building. Heath said that people would often come into the old store and tell him that they had worked there during the war.

In 1947, Perkins rented the building to Chaz Flournoy and it became the home of Tip Bottling Co. According to Carl Worley, president of Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Selma, Tip was a non-carbonated grape drink that contained a high amount of juice. He said that it was similar to many of the fruit drinks on the market today that boast of being high in fruit juice content.

Worley said that Tip Corporation, the parent company headquartered in Virginia, started producing Mountain Dew and was eventually bought by Pepsi-Cola. He said that Tip was popular in the southeast but never caught on nationwide.

The Greenville Tip Bottling Co.

moved out of the building in 1951. Worley said that Tip could still be found up until about 1960.

After the bottling business moved out the structure stood vacant for several years until Robert Thompson moved Brown Laboratories into the building in 1958. The lab's most notable product was H.C. headache powder. William Swindell, vice-president of Brown Laboratories, said that O&F cough medicine, a breath freshener and an antiseptic were also manufactured on the site. He said the headache powder and the breath freshener were the most popular items among the drug stores, which were their major customers.

Diagonally Striped Top Flattering To Any Figure

Breeze through the long, hot summer without losing your cool in this airy, diagonally striped top. Flattering to any figure, it's loosely knit in 100 percent cotton yarn. You'll be surprised at the ease with which you create the diagonal stripes in garter and stockinette stitch.

Begin at one corner with just four stitches and increase one stitch per row until the desired width is reached. Then decrease gradually until you have four stitches remaining — it couldn't be easier. The increases and decreases are worked to form an eyelet edge row. A drawstring through the eyelet creates the lovely drape and fashionable, slightly bloused effect.

To obtain directions for making the Beautiful Bargain in small, medium and large sizes, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-070289 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

structions and cotton yarn in your choice of the following colors: peach and white, lavender and white, taupe and white or bright blue and white.

Until some smart knitter happened upon the idea of knitting on the bias, diagonal striping was a nuisance with constant color changes on each row. But with this method, it's easy as pie and can be used for a multitude of projects. Anything made as a square or rectangle is a candidate for this technique: pillow tops; place mats; afghans, tote bags and garments.

Varying effects can be created by alternating different pattern stitches as well as colors, but for a sample swatch, work in simple garter stitch in which every row is knitted.

With any yarn and needles you have on hand, cast on 4 stitches with the main color. Work all rows as follows: Knit the first 2 stitches, increase 1 stitch and knit to the end of the row. You may use any type of increase you choose.

Step 1: With main color, work the pattern row 6 times and change to contrast color. Step 2: With contrast color, work pattern row 2 times and change to main color. Repeat Steps 1 and 2 once more.

You now have a triangular piece of knitted fabric. One of the edges of the triangle will be the bottom edge of your finished piece while the other will be one of the side edges.

To turn your triangle into a square, you will now start decreasing. Decrease rows will be worked as follows: Knit 2, knit 2 stitches together, knit to the end of the row. Keeping in the same color, change sequence as before, repeat this row until 4 stitches remain on the needle. Bind off.

This basic pattern creates a square. To determine the final dimensions of the square, just measure one of the edges from the needle to the corner. This will give you the width of the piece. When the measurement of one edge equals the desired finished width of the piece, it's time to start the decrease rows.

If you want to make a rectangle, first work the triangular piece until you have the desired width. Then decide how long you want the rectangle to be. Let's say that you want it to be 3 inches longer than the width. In this case you would then knit 3 inches without increasing or decreasing before starting the decrease rows.

While this sample uses just garter stitch and two colors in a fixed sequence, there is no end to the varieties you can find. You can use multiple colors, alternating the size and placement of the stripes at random to create your own unique pattern. Or try a solid-color version alternating pattern stitches instead of colors. Or use two or more colors in two or more patterns. Just let your imagination run free and enjoy.

Retirement Communities Aging

least one person in a unit must be 55 or older, though the average age in the complex is 76 years old, said Kirk Watilo, vice president of community services.

Margaret Strevey noted that residents do not find the age rules restrictive, particularly because "at any given time, you see an awful lot of grandchildren around this place," and "in any calendar year, a visitor can stay for up to 60 days."

For 25 of her 85 years, Volena Davidson has lived at Mount San Antonio Gardens, one of the nation's longer-lived life-care communities. Though other such projects have suffered painful financial failures, Mount San Antonio Gardens in Pomona, Calif., has thrived for 27 years.

"I think we could live on the outside," Davidson said. "But I would hate to leave here. I no longer like to cook or wash the dishes or do anything like that."

"I didn't expect to be in this nice place this long because I didn't expect to live this long," she mused. "But here I am."

"It's a little devastating to realize that so many who moved in at the same time as I did have died. But this would have happened even if we had all been on the outside and they had lived down the block. This is the way life is."

Davidson said that her first husband died six years after they entered the retirement community; she has remarried and now lives with her second husband, Sidney.

"This is far better than being a burden on your family, to be as independent as you can," she said. "We just write a check at the end of the month, and everything is taken care of for us."

She and her husband are among 450 seniors, 62 or older, who must be healthy upon arrival. They live in everything from apartments to cottages on 27 acres.

The uncertainty that troubles the retirement of many Americans has been all but eliminated, because the facility cares for just about all their basic needs until death.

This coverage is not cheap. Marketing director Ruth Davis noted the cost for the smallest accommodation is a one-time "founder's fee" of $39,000, after which a monthly service fee of $1,070 is paid.

This fee, Davis said, includes the cost of three meals daily; utilities, except telephone; biweekly housecleaning; weekly linen changes; recreational programs and entertainment; and complete nursing, medical and surgical care.

As residents' health dictate, they may move to different levels of care in the facility — from temporary help in their own residences, to personal assistance with such chores as dressing, bathing and making the bed in lodges; to full care in a 55-bed nursing facility. The contract also covers hospital costs.

"At today's prices, what we offer is a good deal," Davis said. "We have a vacancy factor of only 2 percent."

Building Has Entrepreneurial Past

The business was sold and moved out in 1964. Swindell was not upset that his old place of employment would no longer be standing. "It doesn't matter to me," he said. "I guess that's the way things go."

A couple of small businesses made short stays at the address. Greenville Electric Motor Co. worked out of the building in 1967 and Tetterton's Cabinet Shop from 1969 to 1971.

In 1972 Herman "Smokey" Heath moved his Army/Navy surplus store onto the site. He ran the store for four years before selling it to his brother Henry. Henry Heath has been at the site ever since. He bought the building from Mamie Perkins, J.J. Perkins' widow, in 1986.

Mrs. Perkins is probably best remembered for willing nearly $7 million to the city of Greenville upon her death in November 1988.

Henry Heath said that he considers the building a landmark and would like the city or state to move it back instead of destroying it.

The city has declined to foot the bill, however, and sometime in August bids will go out to see who has the privilege to bring 60 years of budding entrepreneurship to an end.

Ministry Is To Youth

"I'm going to do," he said, "with the rest of my life whatever God wants me to do. I've tried drugs. I've tried having lots of money. I've tried a lot of things that didn't truly make me happy very early in life — too early. I've done a lot to hurt myself and others. Now I just want to work for the Lord and do some good. I want to keep as many young people as I can from going through what I did. And that's what I plan to do."

Daw-Hunt Couple Are Wed

TARBORO — Lisa Margaret Hunt and Simon John Daw were married at 11 a.m. Monday. The Rev. Douglas E. Remer conducted the double-ring ceremony at Calvary Episcopal Church. A. Lloyd Owens Jr. presented a program of organ music.

The bride's parents are Dr. Judith R. Hunt and Alden E. Robinson of Bethel, and the bridegroom's parents are Arthur John and Lorna Jaqueline Daw of Plymouth, England.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a taffeta gown by Eve of Midway with a lace and bead bodice and a dropped waistline with iridescent sequins. The off-shoulder sleeves were accented by taffeta bows. She wore a silk flower wreath attached to a scalloped edged veil.

Teresa Oliver of Ellsworth, Maine, was maid of honor. The matron of honor was Carolyn Hunt of Hawthorne, N.J., aunt of the bride. Brigitte Aubois of Quincy, Mass., and Heather Wright of Fullerton, Calif., were bridesmaids.

The honor attendants wore pink tea-length gowns similar to that of the bride and carried wreaths of pink and white carnations and lilies.

The best man was Andrew Mark Daw of Chelmsford, England, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers included Jack M. Hunt and James J. Hunt of Hawthorne, cousins of the bride, Richard E. Hines and Mark James of Greenville.

A dinner reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Hilton Head, S.C., the couple will live in Narragansett, R.I.

The bride is a fifth-year pharmacy major at the University of Rhode Island, and the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Bath in England.

Father Would Have Spurned Him Had He Known Of Aunt's Divorce

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I have a bone to pick with you. A young woman who had been previously divorced wrote to say that she was anticipating a second marriage. She said her fiancé knew about her divorce, but he asked her not to disclose this fact to his parents. Because of this, you told her you thought her fiancé was "adolescent."

Abby, before judging the young man, you should have considered that there may have been other facts of which you were not aware.

When I first started dating, my father forbade me to date anybody in whose family there had been a divorce. As you can guess, that eliminated a lot of boys.

When I went away to college, I fell in love with Steve. He told me that his favorite aunt had been married briefly when she was 17, and then divorced before marrying a very fine man. When it came time for Steve to meet my parents, I asked him not to tell my dad that his favorite aunt had been divorced, so of course he never did.

Steve and I have been happily married for 15 years. My father died last year, and at his funeral I confessed to my mother that Steve's favorite aunt had been divorced, but I never told Dad. Mom said she thought I had acted wisely because if Dad had known, it would have completely changed his opinion of Steve. Then Mom confided that during all the years she and Dad were married, she had kept from Dad the fact that her own brother had been married and divorced!

I'm glad my husband didn't judge me as an "adolescent" for trying to spare Steve and me the anguish my father would have caused us had he known the truth about Steve's favorite aunt. — Happily Married

Dear Happily Married: If, as your mother stated, your father's opinion of Steve would have been "completely changed" had he known that Steve's favorite aunt had been divorced, it doesn't say much for your father. (Since when is a person responsible for the deeds of his relatives?)

It's also interesting that your mother, during all the years of her marriage, kept from your father the fact that her brother had been divorced. (Why, pray tell, should one's divorce be regarded as a dark and dirty secret?)

There is nothing wrong with revealing the truth. Hiding it is deceitful, and therefore shameful.

Dear Abby: My fiancé and I are getting married this fall, and we are having a problem with the guest list.

My fiancé plans on inviting his boss and his boss's wife. I plan on inviting a very good friend of my family's who is also married. We just learned that my fiancé's boss is married to our friend's ex-wife, and these two women do not get along with each other at all!

How do we keep from hurting any feelings and keep everybody happy? — An Albany Coincidence

Dear Coincidence: Invite whomever you want, and if two of the guests do not like each other, it will be their problem — not yours. Of course, if you are having a sit-down wedding dinner, seat these two women as far from each other as possible.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Morita Says 'Karate Kid III' Based On Integrity And Honor

By Bob Thomas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — In this summer of marauding ghosts, murderous jokers and sadistic Nazis, is there room for a movie based on "heart, integrity, honor and respect"?

Pat Morita, who believes "Karate Kid III" possesses those qualities, hopes so: "Maybe those standards need to be seen more often. Maybe we need to reflect more of those virtues."

"Maybe in a disintegrating society where we have so much child abuse to freeway shootings to dope in neighborhoods, etc., etc., it wouldn't hurt to see some real human qualities and values."

"The Karate Kid" is an anomaly amid this season's orgy of Roman numerals. The first "Kid" arrived in 1984 devoid of media hype. As Morita recalls, Columbia Pictures and producer Jerry Weintraub concluded, "Well, this will be a good old summer, teen-age kind of thing. Let's get it in and get it out, and if we make something out of it, fine."

The movie astonished everyone by "busting through the roof" and grossing $91 million and winning Pat Morita an Academy nomination as supporting actor. Naturally, a sequel was in order, and it soared to a $115 million gross.

"Here we are with No. 3, really having to compete in the marketplace because it's sequel summer," Morita said. "In a way, I kind of like it. I think our audience will support us, and those who never saw the previous two pictures might want to check us out for curiosity alone."

"KK III" continues the relationship of the martial arts guru, Miyagi, and his star pupil (Ralph Macchio). Their differences tear them apart, but of course they reconcile for the final tournament.

"How can we top ourselves?" Morita mused. "It's the old comedian's dilemma: 'I killed 'em on the dinner show, but what am I gonna do on the cocktail show? How am I gonna top myself?'"

"Well, you got to be prepared for an entirely different audience. If you maintain the attitude that you're going to top yourself, you probably won't. You have to go with the flow and the happening of the environment of that moment and that time. I don't worry about that comedian's dilemma in terms of sequels. I just attack the script, do the best and hope for the best."

That brand of optimism has helped Pat Morita survive a full life of setbacks. He was born in Northern California to Japanese immigrants who made a precarious living as fruit pickers in the central valley. He spent much of his early years in a hospital with spinal tuberculosis. As soon as he recovered, he joined his parents in the Manzanar internment camp during World War II.

"One day I was an invalid," he recalled. "The next day I was public enemy No. 1 being escorted to an internment camp by an FBI agent wearing a piece."

Any residual bitterness is invisible. After the war, Morita graduated from high school in Fairfield, Calif., and joined his parents in the orchards. The family opened a restaurant in Sacramento and prospered. He later worked as a data processor for the Department of Motor Vehicles and Aerojet-General. At 30 he made a big — some said foolhardy — change in his career.

"It was sort of like running away to join the circus, to be the shotgun rider on the calliope going down Main Street," he recalled. "I had different visions of show business then. I couldn't juggle, I couldn't sing or dance, I had no dog act. I was probably the least qualified of anybody to bust into the business."

What he could do was stand-up comedy, and he practiced the trade in the coffee houses and bars of San Francisco and Los Angeles and all points between. All he wanted was to be "a good journeyman, professional stand-up comedian."

The acting came by accident. He was offered a role on "Happy Days" which led to his own brief series, "Mr. T and Tina."

He was rejected by Jerry Weintraub during casting of "The Karate Kid." "No stand-up comics," the producer decreed. Director John Avildsen tested him anyway, and when Weintraub saw the footage, he exclaimed: "That's him! That's Miyagi!" To make him seem more Oriental, Weintraub insisted on the billing "Noriyuki 'Pat' Morita."

Will this be the last "Karate Kid"? "It could be. It wouldn't hurt, knowing that we had three good shots at it and completed a kind of trilogy, which no one expected in the first place," Morita said. "That in itself is an achievement and a great joy."

"If I were in Ralphie's shoes, I wouldn't blame him for quitting. I think it's tougher for an actor to reach way inside himself and play younger than he is, and sustain that quality all the way through a movie, as opposed to the stretch I have to make to play older and wiser."

Cut-Rate Videocassette Recorders Might Not Be A Bargain After All

VIDEO MAGAZINE

Videocassette recorders sold at bargain prices of $199 and lower may turn out to be no bargain at all.

These bottom-of-the-line decks usually turn out to be no-frills models optimized for slow tape speeds, not the fast speeds at which most pre-recorded tapes are made, and lack any extra features.

However, as the current issue of Video Magazine reports, real value can be found in the way of mid-priced VCRs. Ranging in price from $500 to $900, these decks are packed with loads of features that can be suited to a particular field of interest. For example, film buffs can study their favorite flick ad nauseum with digital effects like crystal clear freeze frame and slow motion. For audio buffs who want to listen to Pavarotti or Star Wars in hi-fi stereo, there are mid-priced VCRs that offer great sound.

There are two major categories of mid-priced VCRs. One emphasizes more in the way of audio, the other special effects: Once you've determined what's important to you, your choices are vast.

Audiophiles will be happy to hear that mid-priced audio has improved dramatically. Most moderately priced machines offer the clearly superior MTS hi-fi stereo. Audio experts caution consumers that if a new hi-fi VCR has a harsh, buzzing sound, the hi-fi heads may be badly adjusted — exchange the unit immediately.

Denver Hosts TV Special

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — John Denver had more in mind than playing guitar when he signed on as host of the first "In Performance at the White House" of the Bush administration.

"I have a personal agenda in this. I want to play horseshoes with the president," Denver said on a recent visit to New York as host of a United Nations dinner on World Environment Day.

"I have tandem (horseshoe) pits at my home," Denver said. "I've been home in April and May for the first time in over 10 years, and my game has sharpened."

The one-hour "In Performance at the White House" airs tonight on PBS. It also features actor Barry Bostwick, opera star Simon Estes, Broadway singer Judy Kaye, the ragtime ensemble from the Marine Band and ragtime pianist Joshua Rifkin.

The executive producer of the show, John Musilli, presented President and Mrs. Bush with several possible formats for this season's "In Performance at the White House" series. They selected one based on Earl Robinson's song, "The House I Live In," referring both to the White House and the United States. Musilli chose Denver as host of the opening concert.

"I called the Bushes," Musilli said. "They said, 'That would be terrific. Do you think he'll do it?'" Denver, who was delighted to accept, said, "Mr. Bush attended my first concert at Carnegie Hall, in 1971, I think. I think he has been a fan of mine."

Musilli hopes the two other shows in the series, like this post-Fourth of July special, will have holiday themes, airing around Columbus Day and Thanksgiving.

The "In Performance at the White House" season in the Reagan administration featured Broadway music.

Denver will sing and play guitar as well as serve as host.

'Batman' Still Setting Records

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOLLYWOOD — "Batman" soared into the box office stratosphere by becoming the first movie to make $100 million within 10 days.

"Batman" grossed a record $30.1 million during its second weekend of release, according to Exhibitor Relations Co.

"Batman," starring Michael Keaton in the title role and Jack Nicholson as his comic antagonist, the Joker, set the previous weekend mark with $42.7 million in its first three days.

If it continues on its winged way, "Batman" could well become the highest-grossing movie yet, topping the $228.6 million set by 1982's "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial."

The former record-holder for the fastest $100 million was "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," which passed the barrier after 19 days last month.

"Honey, I Shrank the Kids," the family comedy starring Rick Moranis, held strongly in second place, grossing $13.1 million during the weekend.

In third, selling $10.4 million worth of tickets during its opening weekend, was the critically panned "The Karate Kid Part III," starring 27-year-old Ralph Macchio.

In fourth place was the fading comedy "Ghostbusters II," with Bill Murray and Dan Aykroyd, which dropped from $13.9 million one weekend ago to $9 million this past weekend. It was followed by Steven Spielberg's adventure sequel "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," landing in fifth with $7.1 million.

The bittersweet coming-of-age drama "Dead Poets Society" starring Robin Williams continued to draw large crowds, collecting $6.7 million to finish in sixth place.

The much-hyped but poorly reviewed "Great Balls of Fire!" opened to spectacularly bad business, winding up in seventh place. Despite its exclamation point, "Great Balls of Fire!" collected only $3.8 million.

"Do the Right Thing," on only 353 screens, grossed $3.6 million to finish in eighth place. Universal has yet to announce if it will add more screens for "Do the Right Thing."

Rounding out the top 10 were William Shatner's "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier" in ninth with $2.5 million, and the baseball fantasy "Field of Dreams," featuring Kevin Costner, in 10th with $1.8 million.

Here are the top movies for the weekend as tallied by Exhibitor Relations, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross and number of weeks in release. Figures for "Karate Kid III" and "Ghostbusters II" are estimated.

1. "Batman," Warner Bros., $30.1 million, 2,194 screens, $13,708 per screen, $100.2 million, two weeks.
2. "Honey, I Shrank the Kids," Disney, $13.1 million, 1,431 screens, $9,161 per screen, $38 million, two weeks.
3. "The Karate Kid Part III," Columbia, $10.4 million, 1,560 screens, $6,667 per screen, $10.4 million, one week.
4. "Ghostbusters II," Columbia, $9 million, 2,410 screens, $3,734 per screen, $74.5 million, three weeks.
5. "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," Paramount, $7.1 million, 2,103 screens, $3,371 per screen, $147.3 million, six weeks.
6. "Dead Poets Society," Disney, $6.7 million, 1,109 screens, $6,049 per screen, $46.3 million, five weeks.
7. "Great Balls of Fire!" Orion, $3.8 million, 1,417 screens, $2,687 per screen, $3.8 million, one week.
8. "Do the Right Thing," Universal, $3.6 million, 353 screens, $10,095 per screen, $3.6 million, one week.
9. "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier," Paramount, $2.5 million, 1,679 screens, $1,470 per screen, $42.5 million, four weeks.
10. "Field of Dreams," Universal, $1.8 million, 940 screens, $1,920 per screen, $50.6 million, 11 weeks.

Computers In Hand, They're 'Robocops'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. — Scofflaws are facing a new crime fighter that can't be sweet-talked out of a ticket.

With AutoCite, a new computerized citation system the size of a calculator, an officer types in the make, model and license number of an illegally parked car and the device records the data and spits out a ticket — all in less than 30 seconds.

"It cuts down the amount of paper work. The error factor goes down to nearly nothing. We should be able to issue citations faster," Police Chief Neil Purcell said.

"Beware. We're Robocops now," Officer Marianne Weber said Monday as she put a machine-issued ticket on a windshield.

The six machines, which cost about $30,000 each, went into service last month and are expected to bring in $140,000 more in parking-ticket revenue this year.

Brunch Is Easy, Informal Way For Celebration

By Sherrie Clinton
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

When was the last time you tried to get a group of people together for a wedding shower or a baby shower or a birthday or anniversary celebration? Remember how hard it was to pick a time that everyone agreed on? It seemed like everyone was juggling work schedules, baby sitters and other commitments.

That may be because you were thinking traditional afternoon or evening get-togethers. But how about a brunch mid-morning either Saturday or Sunday?

Morning parties free everyone, including the hostess, for all the other things they have to do that day.

Another advantage to morning is that no one feels constrained to dress-up, casual clothes in the morning are just fine.

Pick a menu that fits your schedule, and concentrate on foods that can be made ahead of time. Buy whatever you can, particularly mundane things like salad or dressings. Save your time for one spectacular centerpiece, like the Pancakes Oscar offered here.

Most breakfast foods, like eggs or waffles or French toast, would be tough to serve to a group. Pancakes Oscar is undoubtedly a breakfast food but serves a large number nicely.

Pancakes Oscar looks very showy but is not difficult to make. The pancakes could be made the night before and refrigerated. Place a sheet of waxed paper between each pancake to keep them from sticking together.

Assemble the pancakes on an ovenproof platter before your guests arrive. Cover loosely with aluminum foil and keep warm in a slow oven. Decorate right before serving.

PANCAKES OSCAR

5 egg whites
1 1/4 cup confectioner's sugar
1 tsp. cream of tartar
4 8-inch to 10-inch pancakes (use your favorite recipe)

16 oz. of raspberry preserves (orange, strawberry and blackberry are also good)

Assorted fresh fruits for garnish

Beat egg whites with a wire whisk. When whites begin to form soft peaks, slowly add sugar and cream of tartar while continuing to beat the mixture. Continue beating until stiff peaks are formed.

Place one pancake on an ovenproof platter and spread the top with 1/4 of the preserves. Top with another pancake and repeat the process until all pancakes are used.

Immediately before serving, fill a pastry bag with meringue and decorate the top. Place under broiler for a few minutes to brown top.

Garnish with fresh fruit, such as fresh berries or orange segments.

Depending on how you slice it, Pancakes Oscar will make at least 8 brunch-size servings. For a larger group, make a second one or add more pancake layers.

MUSSELS MARYLAND

1/4 cup olive oil
2 tps. garlic, minced
3 lbs. mussels, cleaned
3/4 cup white wine
2 tps. Old Bay or similar seafood seasoning, 1/4 cup butter, cut into coarse chunks

In a sauce pan heat olive oil. Fry garlic for a few seconds. Add mussels and stir until coated with oil. Add white wine and sprinkle with Old Bay. Cover and steam mussels until they open. Remove mussels to a platter.

Reduce liquid by 1/2. Remove from heat and slowly whisk in fresh butter, a little at a time. Pour over mussels. Serve with fresh lemon wedges and crusty Italian Bread.

MORNING GLORY MUFFINS

2 1/2 cups sugar
4 cups flour
4 tps. cinnamon
4 tps. baking soda

Savory Chicken Bites, Cajun Country Pork Soutache offer easy ways to spice up the ordinary

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q: I have been reading food labels. What must be on the label? J.K., Greenville.

A: Every food label must have the name of the food, the name and address of the manufacturer or distributor and a net quantity statement. That is all that must be there, if a food has a standard identity (a recipe approved by the federal government).

Some of the standard foods are peanut butter and jelly, and ice cream. If a food does not have a standard of identity, the label must also have a list of ingredients.

The ingredients must be in order by weight. So, the heaviest ingredient (often water, flour or sugar) is listed first, then the name of the next heaviest and so on. A common or usual name of an ingredient or a function (like sweetener) must be given.

Manufacturers don't have to be too specific for some items. For example, they can say spices rather than list all of those used like cinnamon, cloves and mace. People with allergies find this frustrating since they want to avoid items that cause a problem. The food manufacturers feel it is important to protect their flavor secrets (much like a chef who won't share his special recipes). The ingredient label also gives the job or functions of preservatives added, for example (to retard spoilage).

If a food has had vitamins or minerals added to it, or if the manufacturer makes a nutrition claim, then the package must also have a Nutrition Label.

Nutrition labels have been required on those products since the mid-1970s. For many years it was thought that consumers didn't really read or use those labels. In recent years, surveys show that more people use them, especially the first time they buy a new food item. So, there is a consumer move to make the nutrition label more understandable and helpful. If you have any suggestions, write to the Food and Drug Administration who controls nutrition labels.

Dear Readers: It's hot, so it's time to remind you about the importance of a special nutrient - water. To keep proper blood pressure, body temperature and prevent constipation, we need to keep giving our body water.

Remember that thirst is not a good indication of your body's fluid need. If you are thirsty, your body is already short of water. So, many experts suggest drinking an extra glass of water after your thirst is quenched. Many people tell me they just can't drink 8-10 glasses of water a day. A twist of lemon or lime in the water makes it taste a lot better and doesn't add calories.

It's also ice cream eating season. Most of us love ice cream, but remember if you are watching your fat intake, you probably can't eat ice cream, especially premium or gourmet ice cream, often.

However, many of the newer, soft-serve yogurts are either no- or low-fat. There is no standard of identity (accepted government recipe) for yogurt yet, so you need to check the ingredient list and nutrition label. The yogurt may or may not be low in calories. Remember, low fat does not necessarily mean low calorie.

The new frozen fruit Purees are typically low fat and low in calories. So, there are some cool choices for the person concerned about their fat intake to control their blood cholesterol and/or their weight.

The Fun Of Spices

By Carleton Jones
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

If you are weary of the same old menus, try taking a look at your spice cabinet. How many of those little bottles have you used recently? Probably only a few.

If you think spices are only for sweet stuff and cookies, you are missing much of the fun. They may never give your food the pungent, cool lift of fresh herbs, but they can do things that some herbs cannot, like holding up under high-temperature cooking or harmonizing well with sweets.

Technically, a spice is a seed or a ground seed. An herb is usually the leaf or part of a plant, either dried, ground or served fresh. There are similarities between the two. Some spices, like herbs, can insistently stand up to certain fresh foods, normally what you think is the purpose of herbs. Crushed coriander, for instance, is a regular with cabbage family foods in France and in other Continental cuisines.

An orchestral array of spices appears in France's famous pain d'epice. This lavish gingerbread of Burgundy is a hallowed habit in the city of Dijon, one of the world capitals of cuisine. The recipe below is by Mirielle Johnston in her The Cuisine of the Rose (Random House; 1982; $16.95) and it is one of the better ways of making adults happy who grew up on licorice sticks, ginger snaps and cinnamon bread.

You cannot count out spices when it comes to healthy food regimes, for the regulars of the spice trade can give ardent accents to fruit and grain dishes. For a spectacular example see Colin Spencer's vegetarian vegetable risotto below. It blends colorful spice accents with the healthy flavors of all those eggplants and zucchini that will be shaping up in gardens soon.

Some spices achieve maximum effects when combined with herbs. A sample is what happens to cardamom when blended with a lemony fresh plant. "The muskiness of cardamom and the haunting citrus flavor of lemon balm can add a new dimension to a cheesecake," say Sherry and Mel London in The Herb & Spice Cookbook, a seasoning celebration published in 1986 by the Rodale Press.

At the same time, careful cooks will not scorn traditional blends. Fruit sauces are almost always a success with ground ginger. Pears, plums and apples will almost always breathe a little and step up into the celestial with skilled doses of cinnamon, mace and allspice. There's nothing wrong, either, with the traditional spice escort for pumpkin pies or cookies, a blend of cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and allspice. For a truly aromatic concoction, get out the blender or the Cuisinart or a big mortar and pestle and try the Calcutta curry blend as devised by Davis Townsend in her book How to Cook with Herbs, Spices and Flavors. (HP Books; 1982). This basic powder can be used sparingly for an exotic touch in salads and curries or with mushroom, vegetable or fish dishes.

Little Bottles Give Cool Lift To Your Menu

Garlic, ground red pepper and parsley add to a cajun country pork soutache that makes a delicious main dish using refrigerated dinner rolls, and Italian spices such as basil, oregano and thyme give flavor to savory chicken bites designed especially for appetizers.

The following are some formulas that may suggest the range of pungent flavors available in the chromatrics of spices:

SAVORY CHICKEN BITES

1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
1/2 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. dried basil leaves, crushed
1/4 tsp. onion salt
1/8 tsp. dried oregano leaves
1/8 tsp. dried thyme leaves
1 cup finely chopped cooked chicken
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1 2-oz. jar chopped pimento, drained
2 8-oz. cans refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1 egg, beaten
1 1/2 tps. sesame seed

Combine cream cheese, juice and seasonings, mixing until well blended. Stir in chicken, celery and pimento; mix well. Separate dough into eight rectangles; firmly press perforations to seal. Spread each rectangle with cream cheese mixture, leaving 1/2-inch of dough on one long edge. Roll up, starting with long edge spread with cream cheese mixture; seal edges. Brush with egg; sprinkle with sesame seed. Cut each roll into four pieces. Place, seam-side down, on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375°, 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown. Serve immediately. Makes 32 appetizers.

CAJUN COUNTRY PORK SOUTACHE

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 garlic clove, minced
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground red pepper
1 8-oz. package cream cheese, cubed
2 tps. chopped green onion
2 tps. chopped parsley
1 tsp. file powder (optional)
1 8-oz. can refrigerated crescent rolls
1 egg, beaten

Brown pork; drain. Add onions, celery, green peppers, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook over low heat 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cream cheese, green onion, parsley and file powder; stir until cream cheese is melted. Unroll dough on lightly greased cookie sheet; firmly press perforations to seal. With floured rolling pin, roll dough to 12-by-10 inch rectangle. Spoon pork mixture down center of dough, leaving one inch of dough on both ends and three inches of dough on both sides. Cut dough on each side of filling into 14, 3/4-inch diagonal strips 2 inches long. Brush egg over dough strips. Fold ends of dough over filling. Lay dough strips alternately over filling, forming a roll resembling a braid. Brush dough with remaining egg. Bake at 350°, 25 minutes or until golden brown.

PAIN D'EPICE (DIJON GINGERBREAD)

1 lb. honey
1/2 cup water
5 cups light rye flour
1 tsp. coriander
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. anise seed
1/2 tsp. powdered cloves
1 tsp. grated nutmeg
5 drops lemon extract
2 tps. lemon peel, cut in tiny dice
4 tps. crystallized or fresh orange peel, cut in tiny dice
2 tps. baking soda
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tsp. milk

Combine the honey and 1/2 cup water and bring to a boil. Mix the flour, spices, lemon extract, peels of lemon and orange and add the honey and water, stirring vigorously. Cover and let stand 20

Brunch Is An Easy, Casual Celebration

1 tsp. salt
1 cup raisins, plumped in brandy and drained (see note)
1 cup coconut, shredded
4 cups shredded carrots
2 apples, shredded
1 cup pecans
6 eggs
2 cups vegetable oil
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Sift dry ingredients into a large bowl. Lightly dust the raisins with flour. (This keeps them from falling to the bottom of the muffins.) Add the raisins, coconut, carrots, apples and nuts and stir well. Add the eggs, oil and vanilla, stirring only until combined.

Spoon batter into cupcake tins and bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Makes 16 to 20 muffins, best if served about 24 hours after they are made.

RICH LEMON MUFFINS
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

Finely grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup fresh lemon juice
2 large eggs

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Generously grease 12 muffin cups. In a large bowl, with a fork, combine the flour, ½ cup sugar, baking powder and salt.

In a 1-quart saucepan, melt the butter. Cool it slightly. Stir in the lemon rind and juice, then beat in the eggs. Stir the liquid into the flour mixture just until moistened; batter will be lumpy. Divide the batter among the greased cups. Sprinkle the tops of the muffins with remaining 2 tablespoons sugar.

Bake the muffins 15 to 20 minutes, or until a cake tester comes out clean. Remove the muffins from the cups and serve warm.

GOLDEN-RAISIN HONEY LOAF

2½ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 tps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
½ cup vegetable shortening

1 cup golden raisins
2 large eggs
½ cup milk
½ cup honey
2 tps. grated lemon rind

Heat the oven to 325°. Grease and flour a loaf pan. In a large bowl, combine the flour, brown sugar, baking powder, salt and baking soda. With a pastry blender or 2 knives, cut in shortening to resemble coarse crumbs. Stir in the raisins.

In a small bowl, beat the eggs, milk, honey and lemon rind. Stir the honey mixture into the flour mixture just until the flour is moistened. Spoon the batter into the prepared pan.

Bake the loaf 50 minutes, or until a cake tester comes out clean. Cool the bread in the pan on a wire rack 10 minutes. Remove the bread from the pan and cool completely on the rack. Wrap the bread tightly in foil and let stand overnight before slicing.

Makes 1 loaf.

SOUR CREAM BLUEBERRY BANANA BREAD

2 cups all-purpose flour

1 tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. ground cinnamon
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, softened
¾ cup sugar
2 large eggs
1 cup mashed, ripe bananas (about 2 large)
½ cup sour cream
1 cup blueberries
½ cup coarsely chopped pecans

Heat the oven to 350°. Grease and flour a loaf pan. On a sheet of waxed paper, sift together the flour, baking soda, salt and cinnamon.

In a large bowl, with an electric mixer on medium-high speed, cream the butter and sugar until they are light and fluffy. Add the eggs, bananas, and sour cream and beat until blended. Gradually beat in the flour mixture at low speed and continue beating until the batter is smooth. Fold in the blueberries and the pecans.

Spoon the batter into the prepared pan. Bake 1 hour, or until the bread is golden on top and a cake tester comes out clean. Let the bread cool completely in the pan on a wire rack.

Makes 1 loaf.

Spices Add Dash Of Fun To The Ordinary

to 24 hours. Mix the soda and egg yolks and add the batter, which should be very soft and smooth (Add a little water to soften if needed). Stir well. Preheat the oven to 300°. Pour batter into two well-buttered loaf pans. Bake for 1 hour. Brush tops with milk and let cool. Wrap in aluminum foil. The flavor will improve after three days. Always keep tightly wrapped.

Note: Pain d'epice is best served in very thin slices, lightly buttered, with tea or coffee.

SPICED VEGETABLE RISOTTO

2 zucchini
4 tps. olive oil
1 tsp. each: crushed cumin and coriander seeds, paprika and garam masala (see note below)
2 large onions, sliced
5 large cloves garlic, crushed
Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper
1½ cups rice
¾ cupful white wine or vermouth
4 cups boiling water
2 tps. green peppercorns
1 oz. butter
4 oz. freshly grated parmesan cheese

Cut the eggplant and zucchini into small cubes. Heat the oil in a heavy, ovenproof pan and saute all the spices. Add the eggplant, zucchini, onion and garlic and cook gently for about 4 minutes or until soft. Add the salt, pepper and rice. Stir until the rice has soaked up all the oil and juices. Remove the pan from the heat. Add the wine or vermouth, boiling water and green peppercorns. Preheat the oven to 375°. Place the rice mixture in the oven and bake until the rice is cooked through, about 45 minutes. Before serving, stir in the butter and parmesan cheese. Serves eight to 10.

Note: Garam masala, a blend of spices, is widely available in Indian grocery stores. To make your own, combine 1½ teaspoons ground cumin, 1 teaspoon each ground coriander, ground cardamom and ground black pepper, ¼ teaspoon each ground cloves and ground bay leaf.

TURKEY WITH FRUIT STUFFING

1 10-oz. package pitted dates
1 16-oz. package dried apricot halves
1 cup walnut pieces
2 cups water
½ tsp. ground cinnamon
¼ tsp. ground black pepper
¼ tsp. ground ginger
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg

Cut 3 parallel, lengthwise, 1-inch-deep slits in each turkey breast half. Lay them flat in a buttered roasting pan. Cut dates in thirds. Cut apricot halves in fourths. Combine dates, apricots and remaining ingredients in saucepan. Simmer 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool slightly. Fill slits in turkey with fruit mixture. Cook in 325° oven 2 hours. Cut each breast half in 6 slices. Serves 12.

HONEY-CITRUS PORK CHOPS

8 pork chops, 1 inch thick
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice

1 tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. allspice
1 tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. nutmeg

Place pork chops in a flat baking dish. Combine orange juice, lemon juice, honey, dry mustard, pepper, allspice, ginger and nutmeg; mix well. Pour the sauce over the pork chops and marinate for several hours turning once or twice. Place chops and sauce in the broiler, about 6 inches from heat and broil, basting frequently with sauce. Cook for 15 minutes on each side or until well done. Serves eight.

CALCUTTA CURRY BLEND

12 cardamom pods
1 tps. coriander seeds
1½ tsp. cumin seeds
1 tsp. ground turmeric
1 tsp. ground ginger
1 tsp. whole fenugreek
1½ tsp. ground allspice
1½ tsp. ground cumin
1½ tsp. ground whole pepper
1½ tsp. ground cloves

Remove cardamom seeds from pods and discard pods. Place cardamom seeds and remaining ingredients in a mortar or heavy bowl. With pestle or back of a heavy spoon, crush ingredients until powdery with no distinguishable pieces. This could also be done in a blender or food processor. Spoon it into a screwtop jar. Cover tightly and store in a cool dry place. Makes about ½ cup.

Marketing Researchers Find 'Moderate' Consumers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — The NPD Group, a market research firm, has identified a group of consumers called Moderates — "households headed by homemakers whose attitudes and concerns toward eating lack drive and continuity."

According to the NPD-National Eating Trends report, Moderates comprise 25 percent of households. They do not take particularly strong positions on nutrition, traditional foods, convenience or health.

Moderates come from all walks of life. They account for 27 percent of carbonated soft drink consumption, 31 percent of soup, 41 percent of hot cereal, 37 percent of cookies, 29 percent of ketchup and 32 percent of fruit juice.

The Nutritional Segmentation Update 1989 studied the attitudes and actual eating behavior of over 600 households for two years.

Cole Slaw, Potato Salad Summer Picnic Staples

By Sherrie Clinton
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

For most of us, side dishes like cole slaw and potato salad are as much a part of a summer picnic as the fried chicken.

Of course you could buy the slaw at a deli, but we think you'll like our recipes so much you'll want to make your own.

Our recipes include from-scratch varieties as well as ones made with bottled salad dressing for cooks in a hurry.

Cole slaw and potato salad both taste best when the ingredients are sliced and diced by hand. A food processor is faster but it might reduce your side dishes to mush.

Think contrasts. If a creamy potato salad, such as the Baked German Potato Salad, is served, accompany it with a tart cole slaw such as Sweet and Sour Slaw.

Be sure to transport the side dish in a sturdy container with a tightly fitting lid. Before serving, turn container upside down to distribute dressing. Set right side up and let stand a few minutes before serving. Serve directly from container, using a slotted spoon to drain off marinade.

CARAWAY COLE SLAW

- 4 cups shredded cabbage, about 1/2 medium head
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsps. sugar
- 2 tbsps. vinegar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 to 2 tbsps. caraway seeds
- 1 tsp. onion juice or finely grated onion
- Paprika, optional

Shred the cabbage fairly fine. Combine all other ingredients except paprika. Toss with cabbage until well mixed. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Garnish with paprika before serving, if desired. Serves 8.

SWEET AND SOUR COLE SLAW

- 2 lbs. cabbage, shredded (Use both red and green cabbage for extra color)
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 1 medium bell pepper, finely chopped
- 2 tbsps. sugar
- 1/2 cup white wine vinegar
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- 1 tsp. celery seed

Combine cabbage, onion, pepper and sugar and mix well.

In a non-aluminum saucepan, bring the remaining ingredients to a boil. Remove from heat and pour over slaw. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours before serving.

RED CABBAGE SLAW

- 1 small head of red cabbage, finely chopped
- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1 tbsps. mustard
- 1 tsp. chopped chives
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 4 tbsps. bottled salad dressing
- 1 dozen black olives, chopped

Combine cabbage, onion, mustard, chives and parsley. Chill for 2 hours. Add bottled dressing. Toss well. Garnish with olives. Serves 6.

HOT SLAW WITH PEAS

- 1 medium head of cabbage
- 2 cups shelled green peas
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup butter
- 2 cups bottled salad dressing
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- Chopped parsley
- Salt and pepper to taste

Discard outer leaves of cabbage and wash head thoroughly. Prepare chicken stock from bouillon cube. When stock is bubbling, add cabbage, onion and peas. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly for 1/2 hour. Add butter and salad dressing. Cook until juice is reduced. Serve warm. Garnish with chopped parsley. Serves 6.

QUICK CABBAGE SAUTE

- 2 tbsps. pine nuts
- 3 tbsps. peanut or safflower oil
- 1 leek, white part only, finely chopped
- 2 carrots, peeled and julienned
- 1/2 sweet red pepper, seeded and julienned
- 1 medium cabbage, cored and finely shredded
- 1 tsp. chili paste with garlic
- 2 tbsps. soy sauce
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- Salt and pepper to taste

In a large skillet toast the pine nuts over medium heat for 3 to 5 minutes. Shake the pan constantly to avoid burning them. Remove and set aside.

In the same skillet heat the oil over medium-high heat. Sauté the leeks until slightly softened, about two minutes. Add the carrots and red pepper and saute for about 3 more minutes. Add the cabbage and saute until just wilted, about 3 minutes more.

Add the chili paste, soy sauce, sherry, and salt and pepper to taste.

Stir to combine, bring to a boil and cook for another minute. Taste for seasoning and add the pine nuts. Serve immediately.

The vegetables may be prepared up to 4 hours in advance and refrigerated. Prepare the recipe just before serving. Serves 4 to 6.

TART APPLE SLAW

- 2 Granny Smith apples, peeled and chopped into small chunks
- 2 cups sliced green cabbage
- 2 cups sliced red cabbage
- 1 1/2 cups bottled salad dressing
- 1 tbsps. lemon juice
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 ripe avocado, pitted and cubed
- Salt and pepper to taste

Combine apples, both cabbages, avocado and eggs. Mix gently. Fold in salad dressing and lemon juice and chill for 2 hours. Garnish with walnuts. Serves 6.

PLAIN OL' POTATO SALAD

- 2 1/2 lbs. red Bliss potatoes, about. Washed, skin on
- 3 or 4 large eggs, hard-boiled with potatoes
- 3/4 cup mayonnaise, about
- Onion salt, to taste
- Pepper, to taste
- 2 to 3 tbsps. real bacon bits

Boil potatoes with the eggs in same large pot for about 20 to 25 minutes. Rinse in cold water to cool.

Dice or cut up potatoes to desired size. Leave the skin on. Dice cooled hard boiled eggs. Combine with the mayonnaise and seasonings to taste. Refrigerate several hours or overnight before serving. Serves 4 to 6.

BAKED GERMAN POTATO SALAD

- 1 cup diced bacon, about 5 oz.
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 tbsps. all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. black pepper
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 2/3 cup cider vinegar
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 2 tps. celery seed

2 qts. potatoes, boiled, peeled, sliced about 1/4-inch thick (red potatoes are ideal)

Fry the bacon until crisp in a medium skillet. Remove with a slotted spoon and reserve. If there is not about 1/4 cup of fat left in skillet, add additional bacon fat or vegetable oil to make that amount. Add the celery and onion and cook over medium heat for 3 minutes. Add flour, salt and pepper and cook 2 minutes longer. Then add the sugar, vinegar and water all at once and, stirring with a whisk, bring to a boil and cook 1 minute. Add the parsley, celery seed, and reserved bacon and combine; remove from heat. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Place potatoes in oiled 13x8x2-inch casserole and pour the dressing over all. Mix very gently so potatoes aren't broken up. Bake for 45 minutes or until the middle of the casserole bubbles. Serves 10 to 12.
