Name Change Could Mean Survival For Pristine Creeks

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

CHOCOWINITY — Without changing the road signs or rewriting state maps, an official change in name could mean survival for two creeks along the Pamlico River.

Three environmental groups are fighting for state protection of Blount's Creek and Chocowinity Creek under an official designation as outstanding resource waters.

Blount's Creek and Chocowinity Creek serve as important nurseries for marine life that supports fisherman all along the eastern seaboard. The two creeks and their bays also serve as prime recreation spots for boaters and fishermen in eastern North Carolina.

Environmentalists say these things alone make the waters worth fighting for, but the creeks are also the last of their kind along the Pamlico.

The N.C. Coastal Federation, the Pamlico-Tar River Foundation and the Sierra Club have joined forces in calling for the N.C. Environmental Management Commission to designate Chocowinity and Blount's as outstanding resource waters. The environmental groups hope the ORW status will protect the area from uncontrolled development and save the waters from ruin.

Todd Miller, director of the Coastal Federation, called the unspoiled waters of the two creeks "a rare commodity in (the) region."

The Coastal Federation has petitioned the Environmental Management Commission to designate eight other waters in the state as outstanding resources. Blount's and Chocowinity are the only two in the area under consideration for the special protection.

"It's clear the existing regulations protecting those waters are not adequate," Miller said.

The ORW designation would have the greatest impact not on the waters themselves, but on the development of the land around them.

"If growth and development are not constrained by wise stewardship and careful planning, we will likely wind up with a region less like the eastern North Carolina we know and love, and with a place more like those that people are currently abandoning in order to move here," said PTRF director David McNaught.

Under the ORW classification, the state would impose strict regulations on what goes into and around the waters. Developments would have to set aside a 575-foot buffer between any building and the waters, and tighter restrictions on storm-water runoff could be imposed on the development.

Bush Says No Indication Hostages' Release Near

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush said today he can't offer any assurances that American hostages held in the Middle East will be freed anytime soon, and said his administration continues to look for "signs of change" from Iran.

"I think that if Iran decided they wanted those hostages to come out of there, there would be a good likelihood that that would happen, perhaps not with certainty but a good likelihood," Bush said.

At a pre-vacation news conference at the White House, Bush was questioned repeatedly about the possibility of military action against those holding the hostages, and he replied that "at some point we have to stand up for our interests, even if it means military, yet I'm not threatening military action."

Later, he added, "If I could find a way to take those hostages, get them, and bring them out and that required using the military force of the United States, make no mistake about it, I would do it in an instant."

"We don't have to be hostile with Iran for the rest of our lives," the president said. The hostages are thought to be held by the Shiite religious group Hezbollah, a faction heavily influenced by the Iranians.

"We're going to keep on trying but I can't give you a definitive assessment" of whether the hostages are any closer to freedom after a three-week flurry of diplomacy, Bush said.

"I just don't know. There's a lot of lines out there, a lot of initiatives have been taken," he said.

Bush, asked why he did not retaliate after the murder of Lt. Col. William Higgins, said the United States still did not have adequate information to take either a diplomatic or military response.

"I do not want to be responsible for the loss of innocent life," Bush said, adding that he was also concerned that an American response could lead to harm for the remaining eight hostages.

He said that if he could mount an effective military rescue, "I would do it in an instant."

Bush said he had received "magnificent" cooperation from world leaders, some of it unsolicited, but he did not identify anyone by name.

Bush was asked about his Inauguration Day comment that goodwill would beget goodwill in the U.S. relationship with Iran.

"Now we see a new leader coming in and we hear different signals coming out of Iran, some in the old mode, some that offer more hope. I would leave it stand that a clear and good signal would be the release of the American hostages."

He added, "I just hope that the positive signs prevail, because there are some, they are encouraging."

The president fielded questions on subjects ranging from economic policy to drug abuse for 30 minutes.

Schools To Test New Employees

By Kevin Boughal
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County school board fired another volley in the war on drugs Monday night by approving two controversial drug-related policies, one requiring mandatory drug testing of all new employees at the expense of the employees and the other giving the superintendent authority to conduct confidential investigations.

The new drug policy will require all new employees to take a drug test at their own expense, except for applicants for bus driver positions, whose testing costs will be borne by the school board. Under the policy, job applicants who refuse to take a test will not be considered for employment.

The board passed the drug policy despite arguments from Dr. George Klein, a family practitioner in Greenville. Klein argued that drug testing in itself is not a cure-all and is not conclusive. If a drug testing program is put into effect, there should be counseling for those who test positive, he said.

"It is unwise to implement a drug-testing program without support behind it," Klein said. "If you do implement a drug-testing program, the results should be interpreted by a physician."

Klein also told the board that drug testing is "not very effective" because different people excrete the drugs at different rates.

The board also approved a policy that would give the superintendent authority to conduct confidential operations "for cause." The "for cause" is intended to be a safeguard

De Klerk Replaces Botha

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRETORIA, South Africa — National Party leader F.W. de Klerk was sworn in today as South Africa's acting president, a day after he and other Cabinet members forced the resignation of P.W. Botha.

In a news conference immediately after taking the oath of office, de Klerk praised the ousted Botha, who was in power for 11 tumultuous years as one of South Africa's greatest leaders.

"His greatest gift to South Africa is the fact that he has put our country on the road to fundamental reform, that he has successfully started pulling South Africa out of its dead-end streets and that he guided us in the direction of a totally new dispensation," de Klerk said.

Shortly after being sworn in at the Union Buildings by Chief Justice Michael Corbett, de Klerk said he planned to convene a new Parliament on Sept. 13, a week after national elections. He is expected to be chosen by an electoral congress the next day to serve a full five-year term as president.

Botha had attacked de Klerk personally in what was seen as a bitter and undignified farewell speech broadcast on national television Monday night. Specifically, Botha said he opposed de Klerk's plans to make an important diplomatic trip to Zambia later this month.

De Klerk defended himself in a television interview immediately following Botha's speech, and said the 73-year-old president's departure "was in the best interest of South Africa."

Botha, with his party's support, initiated South Africa's first halting steps of race reform in the late

Shiite Being Held Without Charges

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — The army said today that a Shiite Moslem cleric kidnapped by Israeli commandos is being held under administrative detention, which allows people to be jailed without being charged or tried.

In Damascus, Syria, Iran's foreign minister said Israel must unconditionally release the cleric, Sheikh Abdul Karim Obeid, and indicated Iran will not use its influence to free hostages in Lebanon until Obeid is free.

Israel's military censor, meanwhile, asked police to open an investigation into a report in the Sunday Times of London and the Washington Post that two of three Israeli soldiers missing in Lebanon are dead, said Eitan Haber, spokesman for Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The Jerusalem Post reported today that an extensive investigation was under way to pinpoint the source of the report. Cabinet ministers will be investigated as well, it said.

An army spokesman said Obeid, the Lebanese cleric kidnapped by Israeli commandos on July 28, is being held for six months under an administrative detention order signed by Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron. He did not say where Obeid was.

Israel accuses Obeid of coordinating attacks by the Moslem fundamentalist Hezbollah on Israeli troops in south Lebanon.

Administrative detainees, generally Palestinians, are usually allowed to have a lawyer and appeal their detention. But the army spokesman, who is not identified under military regulations, would not say if Obeid had such rights.

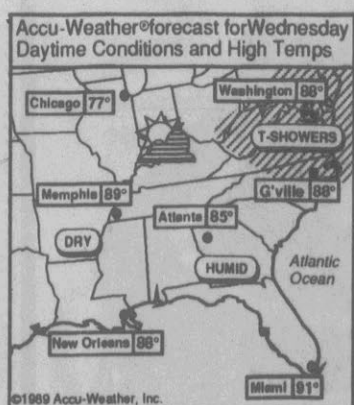

Obeid's abduction July 28 worldwide attention after a radical Shiite group in Lebanon claimed to have killed an American hostage, Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, in retaliation.

Rain Causes Some Flooding

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Heavy rainfall in Greenville on Monday "created some real flooding problems in the city for an hour or so," according to Mayo Allen, director of Greenville's Public Works Department.

"Anytime you have this much rain — I'd estimate two to three inches fell in a short time during the heaviest part of the rainfall — there will always be areas where flooding will take place for an hour or two," Allen said.

One of the major causes of flooding, other than the lay of the land in some areas, Allen said, "comes from the size of drainage pipe used in some areas. Unfortunately, many developers put in the minimum size drainage pipes rather than using larger pipes. This is fine under normal conditions, but when you have the kind of rain we had yesterday, the smaller pipe will not do the job.

"Another problem," Allen said, "comes about as the result of debris in drainage ditches. We immediately put workmen out to flooded areas who found limbs and other heavy debris blocking ditches.

"I want to encourage everyone to keep a check on debris accumulating in drainage ditches and to let us know. We check on the ditches frequently, but sometimes debris gets into these ditches anyway. Anyone spotting such can help themselves and us by calling us to pinpoint the debris so that we can clean out such places."

In addition to the recurring quick flooding of the railroad underpass on Dickinson Avenue, other areas of town with flooded streets included Colonial Heights, Westhaven and Pecan Grove Subdivisions "as well as several other areas. We dispatched everyone available, and within an hour after flooded areas were reported we had most areas cleared and back to normal."

Allen noted that, "in the 18 years I've been here, there has been more heavy rains and the problems such rains create than ever before. This shows us the necessity of developers thinking in terms of maximum rather than minimum drainage pipes as the city grows."

Monday Thefts

Investigators said five thefts — among them $2,000 worth of clothing and a bullet-proof vest — were reported to Greenville police on Monday.

Officer S.A. Person said the $2,000 worth of clothing was taken from Tom Togs at 1900 Dickinson Ave. in a break-in reported at 7:36 a.m. and a license plate was taken from a car parked at the Shop-A-Lot store at the intersection of Farmville Boulevard and Bancroft Avenue in an incident reported at 12:41 p.m. Detective E.M. Haddock said a bullet-proof vest valued at $335 was taken from a car parked in a lot on Eighth Street near the Dickinson Avenue intersection in an incident reported at 4:11 p.m.

Officer P.K. Burrows said a bicycle was taken from in front of Eckerd's Drugs at The Plaza mall in an incident reported at 12:31 p.m., while Officer C.N. Gray said a purse containing $15 in cash was taken from the Pitt County Mental Health Center on Stantonsburg Road in an incident reported at 7:03 p.m.

Man Arrested

James Arthur Acklin, 32, of Route 1, Bethel, was arrested on theft and other charges by Greenville police Monday.

Detective T.E. Nevelle said Acklin was taken into custody about 11:35 a.m. on auto larceny and possession of stolen property charges which resulted from the theft of a car from 1407A N. Washington St. on Sunday.

Neville said Acklin was also charged with obstructing and delaying an officer, while Officer K.L. Hadnott said Acklin was also charged with driving while his license was permanently revoked, speeding and driving left of center.

Drug Charges

Willard Jones, 18, of 1310B Myrtle Ave. was arrested by Greenville police on multiple drug charges Monday.

Officers M.R. Benton and N.B. Rice said Jones was charged with possession of marijuana; possession with intent to manufacture, sell and deliver cocaine; possession of a weapon of mass destruction, and maintaining a dwelling for the storage of illegal drugs in connection with a 9:09 a.m. search of Jones' Myrtle Avenue home.

The officers said they confiscated a .20 gauge shotgun and 58 bags of cocaine-based crack after searching the house.

Rest Home Fire Traced To Chair

Investigators have traced the origin of a fire at the Carolina Care Health Care Facility Sunday to an upholstered chair in one of the rooms, but they said today the cause of the fire has not been determined.

The fire drove 114 residents plus staff members out of the rest home, but no injuries were reported.

Capt. Michael Branch, a fire prevention specialist coordinator, said the fire started in a chair in a resident's room that suffered the most damage. But he said there was no indication of how the fire began.

"In other words, in all the debris, we were not able to determine what caused the chair to burn," Branch said.

According to Barbara Morris, a supervisor at the rest home, all the residents in portions of the rest home other than the east wing are doing well. She said the only resident hospitalized was to be released back to the rest home this afternoon.

She said 20 of Carolina Care's residents are doing well in their temporary lodging at the Parkway Retirement Home in Cary.

Building Burned

Flames leap skyward as Greenville firemen burn an old building near the intersection of Ficklen Drive and Greenville Boulevard this morning. The wooden two-story building once housed a popular eating place, according to city officials who recalled memories of the restaurant and store. The property is owned by the East Carolina University Foundation and will be given to ECU at a later date. The area will be beautified as a small park area.

Hodgkin's Patient Back In Greenville

Ron Chance, the Greenville Hodgkin's disease patient for whom the eastern North Carolina community has now raised more than $121,000 for bone marrow treatment in Omaha, Neb., is back in Greenville.

Chance and his wife Kay flew home Saturday after doctors in Omaha found a kidney infection that prevented their starting the chemotherapy that would destroy Chance's bone marrow and prepare him for a treatment that promises to eradicate the Hodgkin's disease. Stem cells from his own body were collected at the University of Nebraska Medical Center and are there waiting when he is sufficiently recovered from the kidney infection to go back and have further treatment.

Chance was hospitalized at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Monday to be treated for the kidney condition.

According to the Rev. Leon Harris, pastor of Chance's Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church and a leader in the fund-raising campaign, Chance's spirits are good and he is doing what is necessary to recover sufficiently to return to Omaha.

Messages of support for Chance and his family and/or donations may be sent c/o Rose Hill Church, Route 1, Box 432-3, Winterville, N.C. 28590.

Absence Policy

Guidelines for students who will be absent because of farming employment have been established, according to a Pitt County school official.

Students will be allowed excused absences for farm-related work. The work must be documented by a signed note of explanation from the employer upon the student's entry or return to school.

Students who are going to be out should call the school and confirm that they will be enrolling. If five or more days are missed, the student will be allowed two weeks to make up missed assignments.

Census Project

U.S. Census Bureau representatives will be in Greenville through Saturday collecting employment data which will be a part of August's national labor force report that will be released Sept. 1 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Information collected will be kept confidential.

Registration Set

Parents of students who have recently moved into the Stokes Elementary School district may visit the school between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. through Friday to register their children for the 1989-90 school year.

Parents of kindergarten and first-graders are asked to bring the child's birth certificate, immunization record and social security card. School starts on Aug. 28. For additional information, call the school at 752-6907.

Three Die In Bragg Accident

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — An Army light observation helicopter crashed and burned in a wooded area of Fort Bragg early today, killing all three soldiers on board, according to a spokesman at the base.

The OH-58A Kiowa helicopter was on a routine training mission when the mishap occurred at 12:10 a.m., Maj. Doug Foster said.

Officials became aware of a problem with the helicopter when contact was lost with a range control officer, according to The Fayetteville Times.

Foster would not comment on what may have caused the crash.

Names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of relatives, Foster said.

Foster said an investigation will be conducted by officials to determine the cause of the accident.

It was the second accident involving a military aircraft on Fort Bragg in less than a week.

On Wednesday night, a C-130 from Dyess Air Force Base, Texas, crashed while attempting a heavy equipment drop, killing one crewmember and injuring six others. Tech. Sgt. Charles Alfred, 34, of Mineola, Texas, died in the crash. It was the first fatality in an accident involving aircraft at Fort Bragg since a C-130 crashed while attempting to deliver a tank at a capabilities exercise on July 1, 1987. Five servicemen died in that crash.

Martin Signs Roanoke Pact

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin has joined with the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission to sign an agreement with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service outlining the management of 47,000 acres along the Roanoke River.

The agreement Monday culminates months of negotiations between opponents and proponents of the refuge. In March, the wildlife commission recommended approval of a refuge. But residents of the region raised questions about the refuge's impact on economic development and agriculture.

The memorandum of agreement provides for cooperative management of both the Roanoke River wetlands and the proposed Roanoke River National Wildlife Refuge. Highlights of the terms of that memorandum include:

— 47,000 acres of wetlands in the Roanoke River bottomlands of Martin, Bertie and Halifax counties would be protected. Of that total, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife would propose to acquire 33,000 acres. The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission would own about 14,000 acres.

— The bottomland hardwood forest will continue to be a refuge for ducks, geese and turkeys.

— The N.C. Wildlife Commission would administer public hunting permits for both areas as approved by the commission and Fish and Wildlife Service. Permits will be issued by computer drawing through special application.

— The non-swampy "highlands" on both sides of the Roanoke River have been removed from the agreement to provide for industrial development on those sites.

— The Roanoke River remains open to barge traffic that would serve existing and future industry. The agreement is designed to protect industrial and agricultural development outside the refuge.

Texasgulf's Fine Going To Schools

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Beaufort County schools will receive a $1 million windfall as a result of legislation sending air pollution fines paid by Texasgulf Inc. to the county.

The payment is the largest settlement of an environmental case in state history. It is unusual, state officials said, because civil penalties for environmental violations normally go to the state's general fund.

But local officials, including area legislators who supported the measure, said the money should be handled like criminal fines and property forfeitures, which are earmarked for schools.

In June, Texasgulf agreed to pay the state $1 million — plus $1,907 for investigative costs — as part of a negotiated settlement. The settlement stemmed from a $5.7 million fine for air quality violations at the company's phosphate mine and fertilizer plant near the Beaufort County town of Aurora. The company did not take a position on how the money should be handled, a Texasgulf spokesman said.

The Beaufort County school system and city school system of Washington, N.C., will split the money about evenly. The county system has about 4,400 students, and the city has about 4,000.

No one had previously challenged putting civil penalties in the general fund rather than returning them to counties where violations occurred, said Rep. Howard B. Chapin, D-Beaufort, who introduced the legislation. He is a former teacher and coach in the county school system.

State law specifies that fines and property forfeitures under criminal laws should go to schools, but it is not clear on how money from administrative actions should be handled, said Alan D. Briggs, a deputy state attorney general. State environmental officials had argued that money raised through fines should help bolster regulatory programs even though the money went to the general fund, he said.

In neighboring Hyde County, school officials received a similar windfall in 1979 when a settlement in a drug smuggling case gave the schools about $500,000 in cash and property.

Botha Steps Down In S. Africa

1970's and early 1980's, though his efforts slowed considerably after nationwide black unrest erupted in 1984.

After his swearing-in, de Klerk said of Botha, "His place in history among the great leaders that our country produced is already assured."

"There is no doubt that we stand on the threshold of a new era in South Africa and southern Africa," the 53-year-old de Klerk said. "History offers us a unique opportunity for peaceful solutions."

"I trust that the people of South Africa will show the courage and vision required to break the cycle of conflict, tension and isolation that has gripped us for so long," he said. "We want to build a new South Africa in which all people participate in decisions affecting their lives at all levels."

Policies Approved

for students and employees and it means that the superintendent must have a reason to investigate someone. Originally, the policy was intended to deal with problems of student substance abuse, but the board changed the wording so that it could also include other problems that may need investigation.

The policy met resistance from board member Mary Williams, who wanted the specific reasons why a person could be investigated written into the policy. The board stood firm, omitting any reference to specific reasons for investigations.

The policy requires that the appropriate law enforcement officials will be involved in the investigation and that an "extreme effort is taken to safeguard confidentiality."

Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, a leading critic of the National Party, said of de Klerk: "All he is doing is giving a new face to apartheid." Tutu said the transition is "just a change of initials from P.W. to F.W."

But Tutu said from his Cape Town office that he felt sorry for Botha.

"He looked a pathetic figure. Here we saw a coup. They didn't use guns, but they certainly put pistols to his head."

In general, de Klerk and the other Cabinet ministers were more sympathetic to Botha than the public and news media today.

The banned United Democratic Front, the country's largest anti-apartheid coalition, said the leadership change will make little difference to South Africa's 28 million blacks.

The Cabinet members told Botha, who suffered a stroke Jan. 18, to use his health as an excuse for resigning 23 days before the crucial polls.

But the defiant Botha said his health was not the issue.

"I am not prepared to leave on a lie," Botha said he told the Cabinet.

Botha showed no emotion or signs of ill health when reading his 20-minute resignation statement from a desk at his official residence in Cape Town.

"After all these years of my best efforts for the National Party, and for the government of this country as well as the security of our country, I am being ignored by ministers serving in my Cabinet," Botha said.

Botha, nicknamed the "Great Crocodile" for his feared temper and sometimes ruthless manner, seldom appeared in public following his stroke.

Botha insisted he was not a "sulky old man," but he never offered congratulations to de Klerk, who replaced Botha as party leader in February.

Botha's behavior became increasingly erratic in recent weeks. Last month he refused to attend a farewell banquet planned by the National Party to honor him.

He did, however, appear unanimously at a provincial party congress, forcing de Klerk to give up his seat at the head table.

De Klerk, a lawyer who appears to share Botha's vision of limited and gradual race reform, has spoken in vague terms of dismantling more apartheid laws.

However, he has not promised any specific changes on major apartheid issues such as power-sharing with the black majority or desegregating schools and neighborhoods.

"De Klerk was party to the disastrous policies of the government under P.W. Botha's rule," the United Democratic Front said in a statement. "The mass democratic movement demands the government as a whole resigns so that democracy and peace may be established once and for all."

Bush Honors Congressmen Who Died In Plane Crashes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush paid tribute today to two House members killed in recent plane crashes, calling them "outstanding public servants" who were "working to better the lot of mankind."

Bush opened a question-and-answer session with White House reporters by recalling the deaths in Ethiopia of veteran Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, and in Mississippi of freshman Rep. Larkin Smith, R-Miss.

"I want to note again the passing of two outstanding public servants ..., the president said. "... Their passing is mourned by everyone who knew them."

"Their death also reminds us that there are outstanding men and women in public life who are working to better the lot of mankind," Bush said, alluding to Leland's interest in alleviating world hunger and Smith's concern with the war on drugs and crime.

Leland was memorialized at a special service Monday, one day after searchers found the wreckage of his plane in a remote mountain ravine 100 miles from its destination near Ethiopia's border with Sudan.

Bad weather stalled efforts Monday to recover the bodies of Leland and 15 traveling companions from the crash site. U.S. Embassy spokesman James Haley said recovery teams reached the site Monday afternoon and planned to begin retrieving the bodies today.

Meanwhile, a delegation of U.S. and Canadian aviation safety experts left Washington on Monday for Ethiopia to help investigate the cause of the crash. The Ethiopian government had requested the aid.

Plans for a delegation of four members of Congress and two White House aides to travel to Ethiopia to accompany the American bodies back to the United States were on hold until the bodies were retrieved and identified.

Leland, a 44-year-old Texas Democrat who headed the House Select Committee on Hunger, was on his sixth visit to Africa and his second this year when the plane crashed on Aug. 7

"This mission was a mission of mercy. It was the best our country had to offer. It showed our compassion, our generosity, our interest in seeing that there are no more hungry people, the children would not die of hunger. So why these?" said Robert Mallett, an aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said at the memorial service.

Mallett and other congressional staff members praised Leland and the Capitol Hill aides who were among those accompanying him.

Sponsored by the Senate Black Legislative Staff Caucus, the service in the stately caucus room of the Russell Senate Office Building mourned Leland; Patrice Y. Johnson, Leland's chief of staff; Joyce Williams, a staff member for Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., for 10 years; and Hugh A. Johnson Jr., a staff member of the House Select Committee on Hunger.

"We ask God, why these? They're our best," Mallett said. "Your living will not be in vain. Because we're going to see that homelessness is no more. That ... in the words of the old Negro spiritual, 'we ain't going to study war no more.' We're going to see that there are no more hungry children in Ethiopia, anywhere in the world."

"In that way, we will know that in your dying, you have challenged us to live," Mallett said.

"We gather today with heavy hearts as we join with his staff, his family, and Senate staff in this great, immeasurable loss," prayed Senate Chaplain Richard C. Halverson. "We remember the hungry and the homeless for whom he laid down his life."

Leland, the founder of the hunger committee, was leading a 16-member delegation of Americans and Ethiopians to the refugee camp when the twin-engine plane vanished shortly after takeoff from Addis Ababa. There were no survivors.

The trip was intended to focus attention on the need for hunger relief for hundreds of thousands of Sudanese, who have been forced from their homes by the country's long-running civil war.

Protection Sought For Creeks

The ORW classification also forbids nearly all discharges from wastewater treatment plants in the area.

"An Outstanding Resource Water designation will not curtail development," McNaught said, "it will simply provide some restraint so that the development that does occur will be more harmonious with the surrounding environment."

On a recent weekday afternoon, the temperature hovered around 90 degrees, and the waters of Chocowinity and Blount's creeks lay still. Fish broke the water occasionally, and birds chased across the waters after the fish and each other.

Only one boater disturbed the natural calm of the waters.

Much of the area along the two creeks remains untouched by large-scale developments. A handful of houses breaks the tree line along the southern shore of Chocowinity Creek. The population along Blount's Creek appears even smaller.

When paved, the streets are no more than two lanes wide, sometimes less. Deer and other wildlife roam the area almost as frequently as man.

"You can imagine developers salivating over this area," said Tom Perlic, coastal conservation chairman of the Sierra Club. "If we get the ORW it will really limit what they can do here."

To the environmentalists, the beauty of the bays and creeks lies not only around the water, but also under the water.

A large part of the petition for ORW status was based on a geological report by Dr. Stanley R. Riggs, research geologist with East Carolina University. As part of his work with the Albemarle Pamlico Estuarine Study, Riggs has studied metal concentrations and sediments in the Pamlico River.

From his study of core samples, Riggs said, Blount's and Chocowinity creeks "ended up being two of the more pristine areas."

And the reason — little activity by man.

"Our recommendation would be permitting discharges in that area should be looked at very seriously," Riggs said.

The area lacks any municipal or industrial discharge so metals and other pollutants have not had a chance to accumulate in the creeks and bays, Riggs explained. And the near absence of development leaves more trees and brush to block runoff which carries more pollutants into the waters.

The geologist said any efforts to protect the area would require stricter controls on development and discharges now.

"Once we stop what's going in," Riggs said, "we can think about cleaning up what's already there."

ly one inch between 7 a.m. Monday and 7 a.m. today. The water plant measurement device, however, is located some distance north of the city on the Old River Road. A spokesman there indicated that the measurement there did not accurately reflect the amount of rainfall within Greenville as the big rain storm skirted that site.

The high temperature was recorded at 80 degrees with a low during the 24-hour period of 70 degrees at midnight.

Well-Placed Voice For Humanity

In a decade where attention focused more on full bank accounts than it did on empty stomachs, the voice of Rep. Mickey Leland sounded out of place. In fact, though, it was well-placed.

His voice, stilled by a plane crash that took the Congressman's life last week, championed the cause of the hungry. During his political career in the 1980s, Leland pounded the table about starvation when other lawmakers were pontificating over funding bombers and aiding Contras. His advocacy eased suffering and improved the plight of many. It set an important example of world stewardship that should not be abandoned.

As a former dashiki-wearing activist who cut his teeth in politics in the 1970s, Leland made the issues of death by starvation and war in Africa his cause. It was on a visit to Ethiopia in the Horn of Africa, where over 1 million people have died from war and famine over the past 15 years, that his plane smashed into a mountainside in bad weather, killing all on board.

Leland helped form the House Select Committee on Hunger and served on it. He talked about hunger at a time when few others paid attention to it. He was talking about chronic starvation in the Sudan in 1986 — three years before the U.S. government began cross-border feeding operations. He was trying to win famine relief for Ethiopia long before news reports of a 1984-85 drought put that nation's plight in the worldwide spotlight.

Leland's voice was not only timely, it was effective. Among his committee's major accomplishments was persuading Congress to approve about $8 million annually to increase the use of vitamins in the Third World.

His committee also took up the issue of hunger at home, pressing for high-quality foods at competitive prices in poor urban and rural areas. It helped establish farmers markets for low-income families to buy inexpensive fruits and vegetables.

A former firebrand who had softened his rhetoric over the years, Leland's militant style could be abrasive and disagreeable. But whatever his demeanor or ideology, his love for his fellow man was obvious. Leland was, above all else, a humanitarian.

It is that concern that should transcend his death. It is much easier to wring one's hands than roll up one's sleeves and go to work. Leland was bold enough to take that step. His life is over, but his passion for helping should not be lost.

To the editor:

It has been brought to my attention that the Pitt County School System will begin this fall with as many as seven positions cut in the areas of music, art and T.E.P. What kind of world are we fostering if we find ourselves unable to promote the areas of intellectual and artistic creativity? Children and adults alike need these experiences for intellectual and spiritual balance not to mention the possible and likely reduction in the burden of discipline in our schools?

Shall we rear our children to be robot-like repeaters of glik data or those, though entrusted with facts and skills challenged to create the new music, art and technology needed to protect, enrich and serve our progeny? Every child needs and deserves the opportunity to be stimulated and encouraged to demonstrate their creative abilities and it is our obligation to provide the above.

To the editor:

This letter is in response to Mr. Ed Garrison's comments in the article by Lane Dunn on July 31, 1989, about the chore provider program.

The DDS contracted with the Medical Personnel Pool (MPP) to handle the chore provider program as a result of a lawsuit in Johnston County forcing the county to make these employees staff employees and provide benefits.

The chore provider that I am familiar with was being paid $3.35 per hour for two hours per day five days per week. She was advised that her hours would be cut in half effective August 1, 1989, and be paid $4 per hour as a part-time employee of MPP.

I was informed by a Pitt County representative of DSS that this cut was necessary because MPP was charging the County $6.85 per hour for chore provider.

Mr. Garrison stated in the article that "all sides would benefit from the switch." I wish he would tell me how a 40 percent cut in wages to the chore provider and a 50 percent cut in services to the patient will benefit them.

It costs the county 30 percent for the benefits now per employee, 30 percent of $3.35 is $1 more per hour for a total cost of only $4.35 and if employees work only half time they only generate benefits at half time rates.

It appears that county would have been much better off to have kept the people as employees and cut their hours by 15 percent and kept some control over the cost of this program. Whenever MPP's contract is renewed you can rest assured there will be an increase in cost.

In this day and time our country should be looking at ways to keep costs down, not giving programs to independent companies to profit from.

To the editor:

I have lived in several states such as New York, New Jersey and Maryland, and have worked in Washington, D.C., Michigan, Arizona and here in North Carolina.

I am disgusted and wearied of all the negative news on/about crime and the negative actions committed. Rarely, do I see something in the media that shows that someone does care about others. I feel strongly that if there were positive action taken by people in all forms of the media, I am pretty sure that the negative action committed by others will soon decrease.

So why not have something positive on "a hero saves someone," etc. or a front-page "helping hand in need." At least it will be good news for the public. I am sure you will see a slow and gradual change of attitudes in the public.

You see, I have been deafened for almost 61 years and recalled in the old days, there were stories of good deeds done or a heroic action that saved a life or lives. Even stories on simple actions like helping the elderly, the handicapped and even those who are normal to have a better quality of life.

But for the past forty years I have seen an increasing number of negative stories: murder, rape, theft, drugs and accidents caused by drugs or alcohol. This does not help us to develop or model our image among our fellow members in the community. Does "bad news" make the paper or the media get more money?

However, there are good stories to inspire the community to a better life, but you have to find them!

Thank you for listening to my gripes!

Small Things Make Big Differences

Sometimes small things make big difference. One little detail that does is the fact that the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority elected to proceed with an instrument landing system without waiting for federal participation.

Since any instrument landing system would add to the airport's safety, early installation obviously was important.

It all has to do with new microwave landing system technology which is under development. The Federal Aviation Administration has scrapped a $79 million contract to build old style microwave landing systems at airports.

While the FAA says it is still committed to installing new technology microwave systems at major airports by 1998, local officials say funding for a microwave system at Pitt-Greenville was originally promised by 1986 — a year which has come and gone. There's no question the facility can't wait until 1998 for the improvement.

The community could still be on standby for this new system and the wait might be a long one. But since Pitt-Greenville opted to put in its own system, one will soon be available.

Air traffic has grown at Pitt-Greenville Airport. An instrument landing system is needed, for both safety and future expansion. If airport officials had waited it might well have been in the next century before the microwave system was installed. It cost local money to install the instrument landing system, but if it makes the airport more safe for navigation and stretches its wings, it is money well spent.

The Quandary Created In A Petri Dish

BOSTON — When I first heard that Mary Sue and Junior Lewis were going to court, I knew this was going to be more than your average, nasty custody fight. They were wrangling over the most dramatic leftover of their marriage: seven fertilized and frozen eggs.

The ex-couple couldn't split what they had joined together. He couldn't get his sperm back; she couldn't retrieve her ovum. Nor were they willing to divvy up what they had stored at the in-vitro clinic: four for her, three for him. They couldn't even share custody: one week in her freezer, one week in his.

Junior didn't want the pre-embryos to become full-fledged dependents. Mary Sue wanted them to go were they were intended, into her womb.

'However bizarre this bioethics free-for-all, it is not finally a matter of the rights of "pre-born" children, but of two adults. In front of all of us, they are trying to fight their way out of the quandaries created in a petri dish.'

So I assumed that this case would become an ethicist's delight and a lawyer's nightmare. There is simply no precedent for this dispute. There isn't even an appropriate analogy. Should Junior become the first man with the post-fertilization right to say no? Should Mary Sue become the first woman with rights to her ex-husband's reproductive system?

But when the case was heard last week in Tennessee, the weight of testimony focused instead on the question of when life begins. On whether these pre-embryos were a "group of undifferentiated cells" or "pre-born children."

Ellen Goodman

Not surprisingly, Mary Sue's lawyer tried to argue that pro-creation had already taken place — that, in essence, the cells frozen in liquid nitrogen should have a chance to be born. Indeed, Mary Sue called herself "the mother of those embryos."

She argued further that, "They have already been fertilized and to me that is the beginning of life. Putting them in storage indefinitely, that's killing them."

These words sound more than a little familiar. Suddenly, in this wholly unique context, we were arguing again about conception, fertilization, life, biology and beliefs.

In the endless abortion debate, the pro-life movement has defined conception the way Mary Sue does: as the moment an egg is fertilized by a sperm. In its view, the fertilized egg is an unborn human life even before it makes the treacherous trip into the woman's womb.

But this definition raises all sorts of other issues for this case. If the Davis' seven pre-embryos are really "pre-born children," then who is to say that Mary Sue is the best "vehicle" for their birth? If a pre-embryo is a human life, then it might well be threatened by the process of implanting frozen embryos which has only a 10 percent success rate. If "the mother" has success with one pre-embryo, should she not promise to bear all seven?

I won't in any way diminish the anguish Mary Sue has been through or her desire to have a baby. But she is not a "mother" and these are not "pre-born children."

Lawyers, like most of us, push for clarity. But biology resists. Biology tells us that conception is not a moment, but a process. Fertilization itself can take a whole day. It takes four days for that egg to get to the womb. In the course of last year, you can calculate, there were 336 million eggs fertilized throughout the world and 107 million of them were naturally washed away. As bioethicist John Robertson told the court, "A pre-embryo is not an offspring."

To call the microscopically small, two-day-old eggs "undifferentiated cells" is to describe them, not to diminish them. Because of their potential they deserve, as Robertson said, "special respect, but not the respect due a person."

This is a case that never should have happened. Couples do and should decide the future of frozen embryos in case of death or divorce. But the Davises didn't and so the judge must.

Mary Sue's history, laid out before the nation in this court case, is ripe with painful details: five ectopic pregnancies, six failed IVF attempts, one failed marriage. Her investment in this process is deep and arouses genuine sympathy.

Junior could let her use these pre-embryos, bear them alone, raise them alone. He could walk away; she has said so. It's a sign of his belief in the importance of parenting that he has refused.

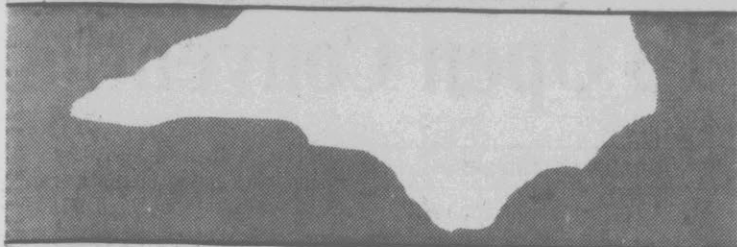

Given all this, the impossibility of this situation, the clash of rights and needs, I believe the judge should rule against Mary Sue.

There is more than a chance that she could have children using another donor another day. She retains that right. But if she is allowed, against Junior's will, to be impregnated with these pre-embryos, he may lose forever his right to decide whether and with whom to have a child.

However bizarre this bioethics free-for-all, it is not finally a matter of the rights of "pre-born" children, but of two adults. In front of all of us, they are trying to fight their way out of the quandaries created in a petri dish.

IN THE STATE

Railroads Merge

RALEIGH — Despite passing a major highway bill in the General Assembly recently, North Carolina can't rely on roads alone as a means of transportation in the next century, Gov. Jim Martin said.

Two state-controlled railroads were merged Monday, giving North Carolina what Martin called a "unified ribbon of steel" from Charlotte to Morehead City.

Stockholders of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad and the North Carolina Railroad Co. agreed to the merger at a meeting in the House chamber of the old State Capitol. The state held a 75 percent interest in both companies.

North Carolina Railroad had operated a line from Charlotte, through the Piedmont Crescent, to Goldsboro. The Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad line ran from Goldsboro to Morehead City. The merged company owns 316 miles of rail line.

Housing Project

WILMINGTON (AP) — The state Department of Transportation has agreed to buy 18.5 acres of land for $450,000 from a debt-ridden Wilmington housing project which former Gov. Jim Holshouser helped launch.

DOT agreed to buy the Gingerwood housing project property for use as highway right-of-way from HBH Properties Inc. The purchase is part of a deal between HBH and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to salvage the housing project, officials said.

The land sale is occurring more than a year before DOT is scheduled to begin buying right-of-way for the Smith Creek Parkway.

No homes have been built at Gingerwood, which Holshouser and two business partners launched more than three years ago. HUD let them get a federally backed project without putting up the collateral ordinarily required.

Senate Race

RALEIGH (AP) — Michael Easley, a prosecutor in Southport, says he is considering running against Republican U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms next year.

Easley said some fellow Democrats had approached him about entering the race if former Gov. Jim Hunt decides not to run. Although he said he had many questions about such a candidacy, Easley said he was intrigued by the idea of a Senate race.

"I agreed not to shut the door on it," he said. "It is an interesting idea."

The 39-year-old Southport resident told a reporter that the largest question before him was whether he could raise enough money to mount an effective statewide campaign.

Easley has been district attorney since 1982 for the 13th district, which includes Brunswick, Bladen and Columbus counties.

Best Dressed

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Highway Patrol has been named the grand national winner of the 1989 best dressed police department competition sponsored annually by the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers and Distributors.

The department was first named the best dressed state agency and went on to take top honors in the overall competition. In addition, the Hickory Police department won the best dressed award in the category of city with less than 200 officers.

All top winners will receive a plaque.

Interstate Chase

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A man led state troopers on a two-county, 115 mph chase Sunday before crossing the median on Interstate 40, driving against traffic and ditching his car, a spokesman for the state Highway Patrol said.

Jeffrey Adams Flood, 20, of Advance, was being held in the Davie County Jail. He is accused of stealing a car and of various violations stemming from the chase.

There were no injuries during the chase, Sgt. M.R. Yelton said.

Some May Get Second Tuition Bill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A 20 percent tuition increase is the largest the University of North Carolina System has ever had, but a tight budget this year gave legislators and university officials little choice.

"We're more concerned that this does not become a trend," Jay Robinson of the UNC System said Monday. "This university has always been committed to keeping down the cost of an education. Our state Constitution says that public higher education will be made available at the lowest possible price."

"I think it would be a shame if any of our campuses got to the point that a qualified student could not afford to go there, that something could not be worked out to help them get a college education," he said.

But parents of some students bound for UNC campuses this fall will be getting a supplemental tuition bill now that the Legislature has approved the tuition increase.

"It's a problem, but it's the same kind of problem we've faced before," Robinson said. "Some campuses had already sent out their bills with a notation that there might be a supplemental bill, while others have held up on the billing to see what happened."

Legislators agreed to a 20 percent tuition increase for in-state students at the 16 campus system. Out-of-state students will face a 15 percent increase.

At UNC-Chapel Hill, for instance, that means North Carolina students will see their tuition increase from $504 to $604 this year. Out-of-state students at that campus will pay $5,127 for tuition this year, up from $4,458.

"It's an excellent bargain, and I hope it stays that way," Robinson said. "One of the hallmarks of our state has been that a person could get an excellent education at a bargain price."

Room and board, tuition and fees vary within the system, Robinson said.

"As a general rule, fees tend to run a little higher than tuition," he said. "Room and board depends pretty much on which direction you go — whether you go into an older dorm or live off-campus."

"But, certainly, you can get an education in our institutions for under $5,000 a year, not counting the money students spend on their own," he said. "That's a great bargain."

Hardee's Owner Is In Takeover Fight

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. — Several North Carolina congressmen were among members of Congress who recently expressed concern that a foreign interest can buy a company and break it up, causing many of its U.S. employees to lose their jobs.

Congress expressed concern last week as stock prices for the Canadian company that owns Hardee's Food Systems have soared since the British corporation that controls it became the target of a hostile takeover bid.

The rise is fueled by speculation that Imasco Ltd. of Montreal, parent company of Rocky Mount-based Imasco USA Inc. and Hardee's Food Systems, will be broken up and sold if the bid is successful.

Anglo-French corporate raider Sir James Goldsmith revealed a $21.35 billion takeover offer July 12 to shareholders of B.A.T. Industries PLC, a tobacco and retailing giant that is Britain's third-largest industrial company. B.A.T. owns many U.S.-based businesses, including Saks Fifth Avenue and the Farmers Group Insurance Co.

B.A.T. also owns 40.4 percent of Imasco Ltd., which also owns the Imperial Tobacco Co., Canada's largest. The block of 48.2 million shares B.A.T. holds is the largest single holding in the company.

More than 200 members of Congress, including Sens. Terry Sanford and Jesse Helms and several North Carolina representatives, sent a letter last week to Secretary of State James Baker asking him to express their concerns about Goldsmith's takeover bid to the British government.

"This is a situation that caused us very serious concern," said Rep. Tim Valentine, D-N.C. "We were concerned that in this particular threatened buyout ... Goldsmith had in effect served notice on B.A.T.'s employees."

Goldsmith has announced that he will sell off all of B.A.T.'s non-tobacco assets if his bid is successful. B.A.T. has advised its shareholders to reject Goldsmith's offer of securities valued at $13.08 for their holdings in the company.

The day after Goldsmith's bid, the price of Imasco's stock soared from $33.75 (Can.) a share to $37.88 (Can.) a share on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Since then, the price has continued to rise, fueled by speculation that the company will be broken up if Goldsmith is successful. The stock closed Friday at $38.50 (Can.).

While Imasco had revenues of $6 billion last year, it would cost only $4.6 billion to buy all 120 million shares of the company's stock at current market prices.

Officials at Imasco's U.S. headquarters in Rocky Mount say they are not worried about how Goldsmith's bid for B.A.T. will affect them.

Panamanian Bank Enters Guilty Plea

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — A Panamanian bank was ordered to pay the United States, Canada and Switzerland a record $5 million fine after pleading guilty to federal charges that it laundered $411 million for a South American cocaine cartel.

Banco de Occidente of Panama, where two managers allegedly conspired with the Medellín cartel, entered its guilty plea Monday before U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley.

The $5 million fine was the largest ever imposed by a federal court against a bank for drug-money laundering, said U.S. Attorney Robert L. Barr Jr. The conviction was the first of its kind involving a foreign bank with no U.S. operations.

The guilty plea resulted from a plea bargain between prosecutors and the bank, which had faced a maximum penalty of fines totaling $10.5 million and forfeiture of an amount equal to assets identified as cocaine proceeds.

Canada and Switzerland, which helped in the two-year investigation dubbed Operation Polar Cap, each will receive $1 million of the fine, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh announced in Washington. The fine-sharing arrangement was the first of its kind, Thornburgh said.

"This international cooperation in the war against drugs sends a message to drug traffickers everywhere that it is going to be harder for them to hide their ill-gotten profits, and easier for us to recover them," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said.

"The bank pled guilty because of the activities of two people in one branch office," said William Richey of Miami, an attorney for the bank.

Richey said drug-profit transfers slipped through the bank unnoticed because the bank "exists to transfer funds. It's a trade bank."

According to prosecutors, the general manager and a commercial manager at a Banco de Occidente of Panama branch were bribed by members of the Medellín cartel. The Colombian ring reportedly accounts for up to 80 percent of the cocaine entering the United States.

The bank is a subsidiary of Banco de Occidente of Cali, Colombia.

The money was sent out of the United States and "laundered" through wire transfers, transactions used routinely to exchange large sums of money.

To conceal cocaine profits, the money launderers, posing as jewelry dealers, exchanged gold-painted lead bars among themselves to generate phony gold bullion transactions, Assistant U.S. Attorney Wilmer Parker III said during Monday's hearing.

Dotson is held by his sister after being cleared by judge

Man Who Served 6 Years, On False Charge, Cleared

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Gary Dotson, finally cleared of a rape that his one-time accuser later said she invented, says he's bitter over the agony the legal system put him through.

"It's a good system but mistakes happen," Dotson said Monday after a judge overturned his conviction. "I have my bitterness, yes. It has been hard to deal with."

After the judge acted, prosecutors dropped charges that could have led to a new trial, saying they could not win the case again.

As the hearing ended, Dotson turned and smiled at his relatives in the audience, then heaved a sigh of relief.

"It's over," Dotson told reporters. "As they say, this is the first day of the rest of my life."

Dotson was convicted in 1979 of the rape and aggravated kidnapping of Cathleen Crowell Webb and was sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison. Dotson had served six years of the sentence when Mrs. Webb, now a Harrisville, N.H., homemaker, said she invented the 1977 attack because she feared she had become pregnant by her boyfriend.

"I forgave her a long time ago. I've no animosity against her," Dotson said. "As far as I'm concerned, today my name has been cleared."

Mrs. Webb's attorney, John McLario, said she was pleased with the dismissal of charges and wondered "why something like this wasn't done long ago."

"She trusts that it will be put to rest and she naturally wishes the best for Gary," McLario said. "She is very sorry for the part she had in this unfortunate situation. When she came forward in 1985 she never anticipated it would be a four-year odyssey."

Circuit Judge Thomas R. Fitzgerald granted Dotson a new trial based on genetic tests which prove his semen could not have made the stain in Mrs. Webb's underpants — the key in his conviction.

Prosecutor Gayle Shines moved to dismiss the charges against him, citing conflicts in Mrs. Webb's statements and the difficulty in disputing the genetic test. Ms. Shines also said it was uncertain that Dotson would have to spend more time in jail if convicted again.

Ms. Shines said the state "absolutely (does) not" owe Dotson an apology.

"He was tried by a jury of his peers," she said. "I don't believe a mistake was made."

But Dotson's attorney, Thomas Breen, said the only conclusion was that Dotson was falsely convicted.

"Gary's going to have to live with the horror of knowing that he was incarcerated all those years for a crime he never committed," Breen said.

Dotson, 32, who married and became a father since his release, was paroled last August after recurring minor problems with the law returned him to prison.

He has two months left in an alcohol and drug treatment center, and said the program has changed his life.

"It's hard for us to take a look at ourselves," Dotson said. "I feel more confident in myself. For the first time in 12 years I can take responsibility for my own actions."

He plans to attend college this fall, and train to be a drug and alcohol counselor, he said.

When Mrs. Webb recanted her testimony, Gov. James R. Thompson granted Dotson clemency, saying his punishment had been sufficient. But the governor refused to pardon Dotson, saying he did not believe Ms. Webb's reversal.

"I wish him well," Thompson said after Monday's hearing. "I hope he will be able to conquer his alcohol dependency and live a normal and productive life."

SCLC Picks Quayle To Open Convention

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — The selection of Vice President Dan Quayle as opening speaker for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's national convention was bound to arouse criticism, the president of the civil rights group said.

But Rev. Joseph E. Lowery, who recently met with Quayle, said he is reserving judgment about the vice president and the Bush administration — despite Quayle's 1988 Senate vote against a civil rights bill.

"I was surprised to hear about some of the things he knew about the movement," Lowery said. "He was tossing out names and places and asking a lot of questions."

Harris Hickman, a Democratic consultant in Washington, said the invitation to Quayle was "obviously politics as opposed to principle."

"If he had ever had any commitment to civil rights, it certainly would have shown up in the House and Senate," said Hickman.

Quayle was scheduled to deliver the convention's keynote address today during a luncheon for the SCLC's national board. He also was to visit a learning center set up by the SCLC in an Atlanta housing project.

About 50 civil rights activists were expected to attend the convention, which runs through Friday.

The meeting is the first major gathering of civil rights leaders since Dexter Scott King, the son of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., resigned as president of his father's memorial center, the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change.

King, 28, resigned Aug. 4, four months after he was installed.

Neither he nor King Center officials have disclosed the reason for the resignation, but some civil rights leaders attributed it to managerial conflicts with his mother, Coretta Scott King, and aunt, Christine King Farris.

Mrs. King is among those slated to attend the convention, and Mrs. Farris serves as a co-chair for the gathering. It was not known whether Dexter King would attend.

Hosea Williams, an Atlanta city councilman and former officer in the SCLC, has said that the King Center in recent years had moved away from its intended role as an educational center and instead competed with SCLC for leadership of the civil rights movement.

Martin Luther King, along with Lowery and the Revs. Ralph Abernathy and Fred Shuttlesworth, founded the SCLC in 1957 in Montgomery, Ala., to continue the movement started with bus boycotts in that city. It has long been considered the grassroots arm of the civil rights movement, working on issues such as homelessness, unemployment and economic empowerment.

The theme for this year's conference is "Rebirth of Hope In The Struggle." The group intends to plot its role in national party politics and decide a course of action for "reversing the assault on affirmative action and minority set-aside programs."

Drugs Rated Top Concern

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Teen-agers and adults alike view drug abuse as the most important problem facing the country — eclipsing fear of war, the economy, AIDS, crime, abortion and alcohol abuse as top concerns, says a new Gallup poll.

The results, said William Bennett, the national drug policy coordinator, "give a very clear sense of direction" to the Bush administration, which is to unveil its drug strategy on Sept. 5.

The Gallup report was released as President Bush prepared to discuss drug strategy today in three meetings, two with outside groups and one with his domestic policy council.

Airlines Extend Price War To Fall Lineup

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — An air fare skirmish has intensified into a war, as major U.S. airlines extend bargains on summer travel into the weak fall season.

Trans World Airlines started the move Sunday, announcing it was cutting round-trip fares by as much as $160 to lure passengers. TWA also said it would lower certain international fares into next spring.

The reductions were matched Monday by Pan American World Airways, USAir, United Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Continental Airlines and Eastern Airlines in markets where they compete with TWA.

American Airlines, the nation's largest carrier, went one better by matching the cuts for all the mainland U.S. cities it serves, not only those where it competes with TWA. Spokesman Jim Brown in Dallas said American would match TWA's new fares to Europe on a competitive basis.

Pan Am did the same for international routes, cutting fares across its entire overseas network except for the Soviet Union, said spokeswoman Elizabeth Manners in New York.

Jim Lundy, a spokesman for Delta Air Lines, said the Atlanta-based carrier was studying the issue and expected to make a decision today.

The reduced fares are available for domestic flights from Sept. 9 to Dec. 15 and for international flights from Oct. 1 to May 21. Reservations must be made by Sept. 1.

Air fares had been steadily rising in recent months amid strong passenger traffic and may have peaked for awhile, industry analysts say. Continental started a round of cuts Aug. 2 when it reduced to $75 each way its weekend fares through Labor Day on most non-stop flights, and lowered transcontinental weekend fares to $100 each way.

"I think traffic is strong enough that (the new discounts) can put on some incremental passengers; it's free money," said Kevin Murphy, an airline analyst at Morgan Stanley & Co.

An unusual arrangement in the latest fare-cutting allows one change in travel dates.

An Achievement Center

QUESTIONS YOU SHOULD ASK

How important are values and respect of others to the building of my child's character?

How often do I see signs of a warm, caring family relationship in my child's school setting?

Am I providing my child the best educational opportunities available which insure achievement?

St. Gabriel's Catholic School, an achievement center located in Greenville, North Carolina, invites you to visit and experience for yourself the atmosphere of Christian values in education. All children are welcomed and encouraged from all denominations and backgrounds to pursue academic excellence within the framework of Christian principles. Students at St. Gabriel's realize their uniqueness as well as their responsibility to understand and appreciate the uniqueness of their fellow classmates.

St. Gabriel's School is proud to offer a kindergarten through the fifth grade program. Further, we are delighted to house a pre-school for both three and four year olds. This setting is ideal for building lasting relationships. We have a dedicated, professional staff whose objective is to prepare the whole child through consistent patience, understanding and love.

We take responsibility for the education of our children and because of this belief our curriculum is built upon strong basic academic skills. Our students' lives are enriched daily with religion, reading, writing, English, mathematics, science and social studies. These basics are supplemented weekly with classes in music, art, computers and physical education.

We encourage you to visit us and see for yourself St. Gabriel's Catholic School, a school that can provide your child a quality education based on Christian principles enhanced with love.

Accent Propaganda Targets Books, Music And Games

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BEIJING — Despite sweltering heat, thousands of Chinese poured into the People's Revolutionary Military Museum for the daily dose of official culture and history.

They filed past glass cases containing blood-soaked army T-shirts, charred rifles, Molotov cocktails, broken bits of brick, smashed loudspeakers, cracked helmets and crumpled shields. They were led into a makeshift theater where they were shown the government version of the pro-democracy student protests that were broken up June 3 and 4 with much bloodshed.

They were led past wallboard exhibits that describe the "heroics" of the Chinese People's Liberation Army in the crackdown, an action that Western analysts and independent observers describe as a massacre.

Through it all, the visitors remained silent Monday. Only a few were bold enough to remark that visiting the museum was not their idea.

The museum's hospitality guide told two visiting Americans that more than a million people have now seen the two-week-old "Turmoil Exhibit," or, as it is called officially, the "Exhibit of the Quelling of the Counterrevolutionary Rebellion."

Attendance is mandatory for all Beijing workers as part of the new leadership's national re-education process, which the government calls "cultural rectification."

Although different in ideology and scope from the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung's Cultural Revolution of the 1960s and '70s, the campaign under the leadership of Deng Xiaoping is aimed chiefly at reinforcing Deng's vision of Chinese society and the Communist Party of China.

Deng's campaign has targeted everything from literature and journalism to pornography and pop music, from political ideology to video games, from movie houses to tea rooms.

Under Deng's direction, the orthodox party hierarchy has used a dual strategy of censorship and substitution to carry out its campaign. The casualties have been human as well as material.

In June, when the party leadership started its crackdown on the liberal and progressive forces of Zhao Ziyang, the ousted party chief, many of Zhao's supporters in the political hierarchy were purged. But in the past month several key writers, historians and ideologues in the government's Ministry of Culture and the Press and Publications Administration — the powerful censorship bureau — have also been fired.

Reliable sources said Monday that the leadership has decided to replace the minister of culture as well as two deputy ministers, among them Ying Roucheng, who gained world fame as the gentle prison warden in the Academy Award-winning film "The Last Emperor."

Ying, whose movie character was purged in the Cultural Revolution, was personally criticized by the party's aging conservatives when the film was being made because he helped arrange for it to be filmed inside Beijing's Forbidden City. Nonetheless, he kept his government post as deputy minister of culture. Ying's pending, real-life purge is seen by several Chinese artists as an especially bitter example of life imitating art.

Culture Minister Wang Zuguang, who was removed last week from his post as secretary of the party's cultural committee because of his liberal ideas, is soon to be replaced as minister by a hard-liner with a background in propaganda, the sources said.

On the material side, the campaign has been even more sweeping.

It has been extended to virtually every province, and millions of copies of books, magazines and video and audio tape cassettes have reportedly been confiscated or destroyed. Booksellers have been fined or jailed. New museum exhibits are carefully screened, as are all new films and publications.

In announcing developments in the campaign, the state-run New China News Agency has said repeatedly that the materials confiscated or destroyed were found to be "vulgar" or "anti-communist" or to be based on "pornography, feudal superstition or bourgeois liberalization."

In one province, hundreds of video cassettes deemed pornographic were publicly crushed under a steam roller. In another, thousands of volumes of outlawed magazines were burned.

The official news agency reported that in the province of Xian "pornographic publications ... suffered a disastrous fate" when 4,000 government agents raided 900 bookstalls and confiscated tens of thousands of books, magazines and tapes.

The government has taken to calling such material "cultural opium."

The hard-liners have not stopped at confiscation and prosecution. They have devised a vast array of neo-conservative cultural programming for "misguided" party members and government workers. This program of substitution has been as intensive as the purge.

Journalists, editors and educators have been subjected to frequent political indoctrination seminars. Party instructors have lectured dancers, singers and actors in ballrooms and tea houses. Government censors have inspected video-game parlors for games with sexual or political overtones and have replaced many with games considered ideologically respectable.

The most intensive substitution programs have been concentrated in Beijing, the center of the student unrest.

Tiananmen Square, which was the focal point of the student activity, is closed to the public, but it was filled Monday with hundreds of movie actors and extras for the filming of a government television special to be aired over several days leading up to the 40th anniversary of the Communist Party's takeover on Oct. 1.

The film, one of several recent government productions, reportedly will emphasize the need for strict adherence to the pure ideology that was the backbone of the Chinese Communist revolution.

Another recent government film, "The 100 Colors Uprising," deifies the 84-year-old Deng Xiaoping as a young revolutionary who led a key battle against the nationalist forces in the late 1920s. Now in its third week in theaters throughout the country, the film has been required viewing for government workers, who are given free tickets.

Whether the campaign is having any effect on a population that has been exposed to years of reform under Zhao and other progressives is not clear.

A taxi driver who had a copy of a banned book, a paperback detective story entitled "The Case of China's Biggest Con Man," laughed when he was asked how he had managed to buy a book that was banned.

"It's easy," he said. "All the booksellers still have them. You just ask for a 'yellow' book, show your identity card to prove you don't work for the police, and you buy it."

Such "yellow" books are not really pornographic, the cabbie said. His book, he said, tells of a crafty Chinese citizen who embezzled nearly $20 million without getting caught. It is plots like this, he said, that account for the popularity of such books.

"When people read the book, they think this guy is really cool," he said.

But there is another reason for what he and several other Beijing residents called a resurgence in the popularity of such books, and it bodes ill for the success of the government's cultural rectification campaign.

"The main reason," the driver said, "is that as soon as the government bans a book or a magazine, for whatever reason, the first thing people want to do is run out and buy it. People think there must be some great, mysterious reason why it has been banned, and they want to get it before it's sold out."

Vacations Should Be Stress-Free

By David R. Joslyn

Finally vacation time arrived, you had been planning for months just for that time to get away with your family and travel. Perhaps a trip to the mountains, or the beach or maybe a long trip west to, those famous spots at Yellowstone or the Grand Canyon. Maps were obtained and studied, money saved and the car repaired.

The trip had it's good times and many new experiences were shared but you and your family returned home exhausted, and frustrated because things did not turn out as they had been planned. It cost more than you thought it would, the car became crowded and the kids were restless and noisy and it seemed like you had to drive forever!

We have all experienced vacations that seemed to be more exhausting than going to work. Such vacations seem long and costly, we don't eat regular meals and sleep regular hours in a way that helps us feel good. The new experiences which start out to be exciting become stressful and tiring. By the time the last few days of vacation arrive we cannot wait to get home!

Stress comes from many different sources and to a reasonable level is essential to living a challenging and interesting life. When stress exceeds a certain level we suffer the consequences in a variety of ways. Often we are not aware that the critical level of stress has been passed; we feel listless, unable to sleep well, we get angry faster than usual and seem to lack energy. There are many signs of over stress but most of us live busy lives which don't allow a lot of time to stop and look at ourselves; we keep pushing and try to ignore the uncomfortable feelings. I remember one woman saying "the only vacation I get is when I'm sick," and she was frequently sick which required her to stop everything for a day or two.

So, what are we to do to become more aware of stress in our lives and to cope with stress effectively? An example will help me illustrate some useful suggestions. Mr. Jones came for counseling, his wife was leaving him and he was seeking advice on keeping the marriage together. In the discussion which followed he described his efforts to work through problems with his wife. To remedy the marital discord Jones took his wife to a beach resort in Mexico. He said that he spent a lot of money for the trip and a lot of time with his wife but things were worse when they returned.

Why don't vacations work? There are three areas that need to be evaluated to determine whether stress is too heavy in our life: the physical, mental and spiritual. The physical assessment requires a review of the basics, sleeping, eating, exercising and relaxing. We need to ask ourselves, are we doing these things in a reasonable manner? Healthy mental activity, requires stimulation through new experiences which require adaptive problem solving; this may involve a simple game of trivial pursuit or the complex task of planning a new home. Also, mental health requires the opportunity for the spontaneous emotional release of true feelings. The spiritual aspect of life deals with issues of the purpose and meaning of life; the need to understand what life is about and our role in it is essential.

So, why did Jones' vacation fail to improve his relationship with Mrs. Jones? Like so many of us he approached a new experience with a good deal of anxiety. To cope with his own anxiety he planned for all possibilities. Mrs. Jones complained that she didn't have a minute to relax but was constantly shuttled from one point to another. In short, the basic need to relax was overlooked; vacations should include tender loving care of our physical selves.

Mental stimulation needs to include reasonable exposure to new and interesting places - two weeks to cover Europe is too much stimulation, be reasonable with yourself. Essential to an enjoyable vacation is an opportunity to be spontaneously childlike. To be able to play and enjoy the moment is a basic necessity. If you have children, forget for a while that you're the adult and just play with them - vacations require fun, laughter and smiles - children are experts at these things.

Spiritual rejuvenation is best done alone, it's a time to reflect on who you are and who you would like to be in this world. This is promoted by finding our own private place; some select the ocean, others the mountains, but, whatever your choice you should be familiar enough to be able to close your eyes and return briefly whenever life gets too difficult.

Don't make the same mistakes the Jones made. In planning your next vacation, leave room for relaxation, reasonable involvement in new experiences, opportunities to truly play and have fun and time to be alone and reflect. If you do these things you won't return more exhausted than before you left.

David R. Joslyn, Ph.D. is an assistant professor at the School of Social Work at East Carolina University and has provided counseling to patients of the Pitt County Mental Health Program.

Tardy Parents Receive Low Marks

Dear Abby: I just read the letter from "Disgusted in Virginia," who is upset by a day-care facility's policy that children not picked up by 6:30 p.m. are taken to the child welfare authorities. You thought that was terrible! What's so terrible about it? Obviously you have never been in the day-care business. Well, I have, and you wouldn't believe how irresponsible some mothers are.

My day-care hours were from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., but one mother brought her 2-year-old child here at 6 a.m. without even calling me first. She was on her way to the airport and was leaving town. She said "someone" would pick up her child at 5:30 that evening.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

When nobody came for the child, I tried to reach the two numbers I had on the child's record. One was the child's grandmother. I called, and that phone had been disconnected. The other was a "friend." I called, and the person who answered the phone said there was no one there who knew anything about a child in day-care so I must have dialed a wrong number!

What was I to do? I didn't have the heart to take the child to a welfare facility and leave her with strangers, so I kept her with me overnight. (Her mother left no clothes - not even a clean diaper!)

She picked the child up around noon the following day with the usual excuses - her car broke down, she wasn't near a phone, she was unavoidably detained, etc.

As you might have guessed, I am not in the day-care business anymore. I don't have the stomach (or the heart) for it. -- Fed Up In Fresno

Telephones Show Age Difference

The difference between youth and maturity can best be described by what happens the moment a person enters the house. Maturity runs to the bathroom. Youth punches the button on the answering machine to see who called.

I don't think I've ever seen a generation so consumed with the telephone. Every time I see a guy using a phone on an airplane at 34,000 feet, I think of Tony Roberts in the old Woody Allen film. Whenever Tony hit a new location, he automatically reached for a phone and announced, "I'm at 555-5473," as if someone cared. He never got a call.

The joke wouldn't play today because reaching out and touching anyone has hit epidemic proportions. The telephone cord has replaced the umbilical cord to sustain life. Sever it and we die.

Ivana and Donald Trump have 235 phones aboard their yacht ... nearly one for every linear foot. Motorists call their offices from cars to describe freeway conditions, and travelers call from planes mostly to say, "Guess where I'm calling from?" Conference calls, automatic dialing, call-screening calls are yours for the dialing. Call an 800 number and order a Crockpot. Call a 900 number and listen to women talk about their fantasies. Get an extension cord that will take you to another time zone. All of this is enough to make Maxwell Smart's phone shoe seem obsolete.

At Wits End

I am one of the few people who have always regarded a phone as an inconvenience. It's something that rings when I am in the shower, putting dinner on the table, or when I'm watching a pet psychologist on TV explain how to keep the dog from wetting on furniture legs.

For my children, life begins when the phone rings. I figured out once they spend about 75 percent of every waking hour fiddling with the phone.

We recently vacationed in a remote part of Mexico with a son who sends Ma Bell a Mother's Day card. You can imagine his horror to discover our hotel did not have a phone. Forget the blue sky, the beaches, the snorkeling, the fishing, the food, the tranquility. He had a phone credit card and no place to stick it. Half-crazed, he got in the car and rode around for half a day trying to find a push-button phone so he could get his messages from his phone at home. He never found one.

Ever watch someone go through phone withdrawal? It is not a pretty sight. It's like he stopped existing and had to keep looking at his Social Security card to know that he was still an entity.

When the plane touched down in Los Angeles, he rushed to the nearest phone, and I saw him jot down a phone number and then hang up and begin dialing.

Why would you get so excited to hear from your dental hygienist that you were due for an appointment? All of it is sick!

Litterbugs

RALEIGH (AP) — If you spot a litterbug on North Carolina's highways, the state Department of Transportation wants to hear from you.

Officials with the Keep North Carolina Clean and Beautiful project in the state Department of Transportation have set up several campaigns to accomplish their goals, including "Swat a Litterbug."

People who spot motorists littering the highways are asked to take down the license number, date and location. The information should be sent to Keep N.C. Clean and Beautiful Inc., Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 25201, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

The litterbugs will be sent letters requesting that they refrain from littering.

Dail
GRIFTON — Mr. Roy Dail, 75, died at his home on Route 1, Grifton, on Monday. Arrangements will be announced by Farmer Funeral Home of Ayden.

Home Sales Sluggish

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — High mortgage rates and rising prices continued to plague sales of existing homes in the second quarter, a real estate trade group reported today, with 41 states and the District of Columbia posting declines.

At the same time, the National Association of Realtors said booming prices made housing most expensive on the West Coast and the Northeast in the April-June period.

The median price of a home in the San Francisco Bay area, the most expensive market, was $265,700, the Realtors said, compared with Peoria, Ill., which had the lowest median price of $47,700.

The Realtors said their quarterly survey of sales of previously owned homes showed a seasonally adjusted annual resale rate of 3.72 million units, down 3.1 percent from the January-March quarter.

Nunn Wins Fight But Loses Respect

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RENO, Nev. — Michael Nunn kept his title, but his reputation took a beating.

The unbeaten Nunn displeased many of the fans and infuriated Bob Arum of Top Rank Inc. in retaining the International Boxing Federation middleweight championship Monday night.

"I'm seriously considering terminating the relationship," Arum said after Nunn beat Iran Barkley on a 12-round majority decision.

Then the promoter went further. "We had a promotional agreement for one more fight and we're going to release him from it."

Arum also promoted Nunn's first two title defenses.

It was how Nunn won that upset Arum. The victory was workmanlike, but unspectacular.

"People who go to boxing matches are no different than people who go to any other entertainment. They want to be entertained," Arum said. "He won technically, but who gives a damn."

"I beat him more easily than Thomas Hearns or Roberto Duran," Nunn said.

Actually, Hearns lost to Barkley, getting stopped in the third round and losing the World Boxing Council title on June 6, 1988. Duran took the WBC title from Duran on a 12-round split decision in an exciting match last Feb. 24.

Watching Nunn boost his record to 34-0 were Duran, who boxed a three-round exhibition before an estimated crowd of 6,500; Leonard, who was a commentator for HBO television, and Emanuel Steward, who manages and trains Hearns.

Leonard and Duran will stage a long-awaited rubber match on Dec. 7 at Las Vegas, but Steward said before the fight that Hearns was interested in fighting Nunn, possibly next spring.

"I think before Michael Nunn can be mentioned in the same breath as Hearns, Leonard and Duran, he has to really go back to basics," Steward said.

Leonard felt that Nunn might be too concerned with being overshadowed by Leonard, Duran and Hearns.

"He's a talented champion," Leonard said, "but he's lost perspective."

Nunn, who had scored 23 knockouts in his first 33 fights, including an 88-second victory over Sumbu Kalamby in his previous defense, entered the ring as a 6½-1 favorite.

One person who didn't appear disenchanted with the match was Barkley.

"Mike fought a great fight and I fought a great fight," Barkley said. "That's all I can say."

"Let's do it again," Barkley said to Nunn.

"I'm ready for that if you are, Iran," Nunn said.

The boxers definitely were in the minority in wanting a rematch.

The 26-year-old Nunn had much faster hands and quicker feet than the 29-year-old challenger. But while he often controlled the pace, Nunn never established dominance as he mixed boxing and punching.

New Court For Rose?

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Baseball's lawyers have asked a federal appeals court to keep Pete Rose's lawsuit against baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti in federal court, and not return it to Ohio state court as Rose wants.

Gerald Weigle, a Cincinnati lawyer representing baseball, filed the request Monday with the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. It was Giamatti's latest effort to win court approval to conduct a hearing on allegations that Rose gambled on baseball. If found guilty, Rose, the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, faces a possible lifetime suspension from baseball. Rose says he is innocent.

Monday's filing by baseball's lawyers was in response to Rose's Aug. 8 filing with the 6th Circuit appeals court in Cincinnati. Rose, in his filing, challenged the July 31 decision of U.S. District Judge John Holschuh of Columbus, Ohio, to keep Rose's lawsuit in federal court, rather than state court. Baseball on Monday urged the appellate court to reject Rose's appeal and retain the case in federal courts.

Robert Stachler, a lawyer for Rose, declined to return a telephone call for comment Monday.

Clerks in the 6th Circuit office said a three-judge panel of the appellate court will review the written filings by Rose and baseball. In similar cases in the past, the appeals court customarily has not conducted hearings and instead has ruled on the basis of written filings by lawyers, the clerks said.

The appeals court gave no indication Monday when it will rule.

In Columbus, Holschuh issued an order Friday putting the case in his court on hold until the federal appeals court rules. Holschuh's order canceled a hearing he had scheduled in the case Monday, and also forced cancellation of a hearing Giamatti had scheduled for Rose this Thursday in New York City. Baseball officials want to question Rose about his admissions, reported July 30 in an interview with The Washington Post, that he bet on football with bookmakers and acknowledged that doing so was illegal.

Rose, who is from Cincinnati, won a preliminary order June 25 in state court from Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert Nadel upholding Rose's claim that Giamatti is biased and already has made up his mind against Rose. Giamatti denies that claim.

Baseball's lawyers want the case kept in the federal courts, which have previously upheld the commissioner's broad baseball governing power against challenges by team owners Charles Finley and Ted Turner.

Rose is also asking the appeals court to overturn Holschuh's ruling that Major League Baseball and the Cincinnati Reds, both named as defendants in Rose's lawsuit, are nominal defendants.

Valvano Dodges Questions

Coach Awaiting Appropriate Time To Comment

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano spent more time dodging questions than answering them at a Tournament of Champions basketball doubleheader news conference.

The four representatives of the tournament teams — N.C. State, Pittsburgh, Ohio State and Oklahoma State — gave brief speeches Monday to start the news conference.

When it was his turn to take the podium, Valvano immediately made reference to the ongoing saga at his school.

"I can now say no comment in seven different languages," he joked.

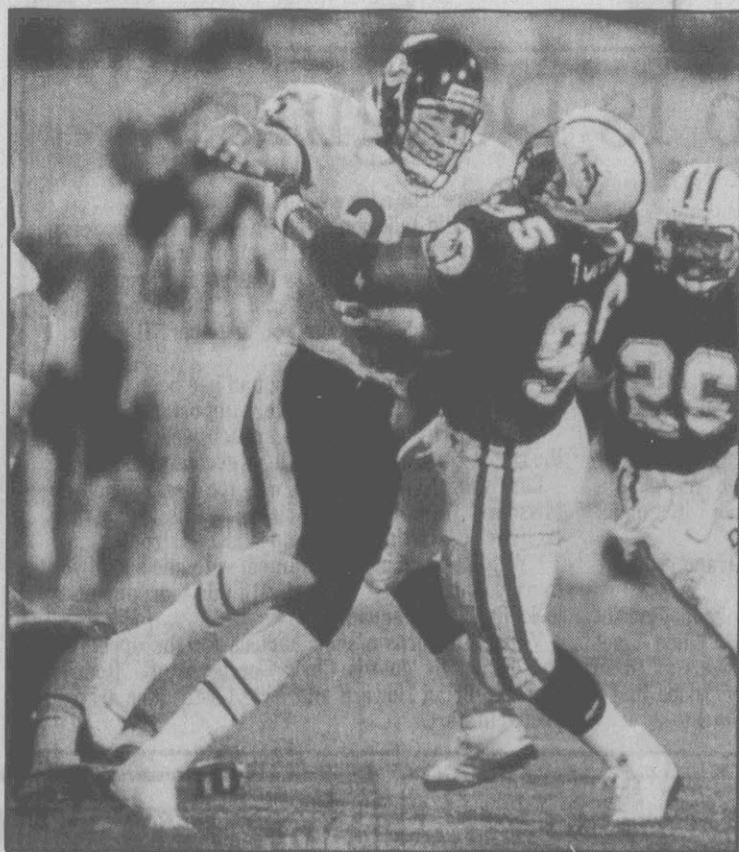

Valvano had kept his public appearances to a minimum since the release of "Personal Fouls," a book authored by Peter Golenbock, which contains allegations of wrongdoing in the N.C. State basketball program.

On Monday, he coined a phrase which ended up being his only answer to questions on the subject.

"I will comment on that at the appropriate time," he said.

A few minutes later, however, a determined

Bears Roll Past Dolphins; Each QB Comes Through

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — The three contending quarterbacks for the Chicago Bears' starting job received passing grades from Coach Mike Ditka in their first test.

Mike Tomczak threw for two touchdowns, and Jim McMahon and Jim Harbaugh each directed a long touchdown drive as the Bears beat the Miami Dolphins 28-20 Monday night in the exhibition opener for both teams.

"All three played well," Ditka said. "This makes my decision easier because no matter which one I make, I know it will be the right one. I've felt good about the quarterback situation all along, and nothing has changed."

Tomczak had the best statistics, completing seven of eight passes for 122 yards. He threw scoring passes of 11 yards to Neal Anderson and 28 yards to Dennis Gentry.

"You'd like to go eight for eight, but I felt very comfortable," Tomczak said. "I'm happy with the way the whole team played."

McMahon hit four of six passes for 47 yards and led an 84-yard touchdown drive in his only appearance.

"For the limited time I was in, I played all right," McMahon said.

The Bears failed to score on the first three possessions directed by Harbaugh. He then led them 89 yards for their final touchdown and finished with five completions in eight attempts for 52 yards.

"We're all even," Harbaugh said. "Everybody's been playing real well. Competition has been making us better."

The three quarterbacks entered the game listed as No. 1. Afterwards, Ditka declined to say who was No. 1.

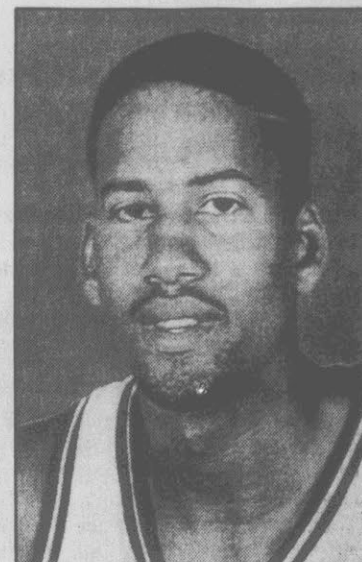

"The guy who was under the most duress was Harbaugh, because he had less starters with him," Ditka said. "A couple of passes he threw could've been caught, and that would've helped his stats."

Chicago built a 21-0 lead when the starters for both teams were in the game. The Bears' domination left Miami coach Don Shula shaking his head.

"It was about as bad as it could get in that first half," he said. "I was really disappointed that we didn't play better. They took our defense apart."

The Dolphins looked good at times offensively. Dan Marino directed their first two possessions and completed five of seven passes for 62 yards. Backup Cliff Stoudt hit 10 of 14 for 177 yards and touchdowns to Andre Brown and Scott Schwedes.

Brown, a free agent rookie helping to take up the slack caused by veteran receiver Mark Clayton's holdout, gained 128 yards on five receptions, including a 67-yarder to set up Miami's first score.

Ricky Berry

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The apparent suicide of Sacramento Kings forward Ricky Berry left his stunned teammates and friends wondering why.

Kings official Greg Van Dusen, taking over during a news conference when Coach Jerry Reynolds was overcome by emotion, said Reynolds "had no indication that Ricky was in any way considering something of this nature."

"We had no indication that he had any form of depression or anything like that. He had excellent relations with the coaching staff, his teammates and the entire organization," said Van Dusen, vice president of the Kings' sports arena.

Investigators said Monday that the 24-year-old forward, the Kings' top draft pick last year, shot himself in the head and died at his suburban home following an argument with his wife.

Van Dusen, reading from Reynolds' prepared notes, said Berry "had great security as a King and in fact held tremendous promise as a potential superstar. Ricky had all the tools physically and he was a very determined player."

During the news conference, Reynolds began with, "Really, the only thing I've got to say is, my prayers," but was unable to continue and left the room.

Kings spokeswoman Julie Fie said Berry was active in community affairs, including charity camps to teach disadvantaged children about basketball.

Other players phoning the Kings' office about the news were shocked, Fie said. "Nobody wants to believe it," she added.

Friends and acquaintances said Berry had appeared happy.

Valerie Berry found her husband's body at 9:45 a.m. PDT Monday in the family room of their new house in an upper middle-class neighborhood, Ed Close, a spokesman for the Sacramento County sheriff's department, said. The gun and a note were found at the scene.

Peete Joining Aikman As Top Prospect

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With all the hoopla over Troy Aikman's impressive debut for the Dallas Cowboys, you may have missed the fact that Rodney Peete, his crosstown college quarterback rival the last two years, didn't do too badly himself.

In his first debut against the Cleveland Browns, Peete completed 11 of 23 passes for 155 yards, one touchdown and one interception as the Detroit Lions unveiled their stretch offense in a 25-24 loss.

Peete, who played at Southern Cal, drew the loudest cheers during pregame introductions and received a standing ovation at halftime after throwing a 41-yard touchdown pass with one second left to give Detroit a 17-15 lead.

When he was replaced at quarterback by Bob Gagliano in the second half, the fans repeatedly chanted for Peete's return.

"It makes you feel good, it really does," Peete said Monday. "But the thing you have to do is keep it in perspective. Right now, I'm just trying to get experience. As far as looking down the line and saying I'm going to be the guy, you'd have to ask Coach Fontes."

And Wayne Fontes won't say that Peete, a sixth-round draft choice, will be his starter despite several signs that he is the leading candidate. Originally, Peete was supposed to sit out this week's game with Cincinnati. Now, Fontes says he'll play and may even start.

And since Fontes says he wants to have a starting quarterback in place before the third exhibition game, Peete would seem the logical choice if he ends up starting the first two games.

"For a rookie, I thought he was brilliant out there," Fontes said of Peete's debut. "I hate to put that much pressure on the young man, but he played very well. It was a heck of a performance."

"Rodney is the type of young man that all the hype and publicity won't bother him at all. He knows it comes with the position. He can handle it. He won't get cocky and think he has all the answers at this time."

After leading Detroit to first downs on its first two plays from scrimmage, Peete fumbled later in that possession, fumbled into the end zone for a Cleveland safety on the next possession and had an interception returned 73 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter.

But he settled down and passed for 141 yards in the second quarter. The Lions finished with 438 yards in offense, more than they had in any game last year.

"At the start, it seemed like everything was going so fast," Peete said. "I just had to get the first few series out of my system. You have to remember that this is the same game as in college, it's just on a different level."

"A lot of players come in and try to put a lot of pressure on themselves. This is the NFL, and that puts them in awe. I feel this was a step forward for me whether I played well or things went totally bad. I just wanted to get a chance to play."

Aikman, the No. 1 draft pick from UCLA and owner of a six-year, $11 million contract, started the Cowboys' 20-3 victory over San Diego on Sunday and played the first half, completing eight of 11 passes for 67 yards and one touchdown. His longest completion was 13 yards and he never tried a deep pass attempt.

Coach Jimmy Johnson said that's the way it may be for a while for Aikman and fellow rookie Steve Walsh.

"Some of the things we're going to do with our young quarterbacks will be somewhat conservative at times," Johnson said. "We feel like it's better to go that route and win than be spectacular and take a

Football Practice Set At A.G. Cox

WINTERVILLE — Football practice will start at A.G. Cox Middle School on Aug. 23 at the school field from 6 to 8 p.m.
For further information, contact Coach Ben Moore at 756-3105.

ECU Varsity Begins Fall Workouts

A group of 107 returning players underwent physical testing Monday starting with a timed mile run at 6 a.m. on the Bunting Field Track on the East Carolina campus.

The Pirate returnees, who reported to school Saturday, went through several types of testing throughout the morning. Wide receivers Al Whiting and Darren Bynum finished tied for first with the best time in the mile.

"I thought this group of players reported in excellent physical condition," head coach Bill Lewis said. "There are always one or two out of the group that didn't work as hard over the summer as we would have liked, but that is a small percentage."

"These tests are a good indicator of what kind of physical shape we are in."

While the veterans were testing, 41 newcomers went through drills as a unit for the final time. Today, they will join the veterans, giving ECU 148 hopefuls for the first full practice of the fall.

East Carolina opens the 1989 season at home against Bowling Green on Sept. 9.

Ayden-Grifton Scrimmage Postponed

Ayden-Grifton's varsity football scrimmage scheduled for Monday night at Edenton was postponed due to inclement weather.

The two teams will try again Wednesday night at 7 in Edenton if field conditions permit. If not, the scrimmage will be shifted to the Chargers' field.

Ayden-Grifton will also scrimmage Friday night at 7 at home against Lejeune. Also Friday, North Pitt is at Plymouth and Northside is at D.H. Conley.

Farmville Central travels to James Kenan and Greenville Rose visits Raleigh Broughton Thursday night.

Deacons, Odom Set For New Arena

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — For the first time in eight years, Wake Forest will play its in-state Atlantic Coast Conference basketball rivals in Winston-Salem, part of a 14-game home schedule in the city's new 14,000-seat coliseum.

The Demon Deacons, under first-year coach Dave Odom, will debut in the Lawrence Joel Memorial Coliseum on Saturday, Nov. 11, when they face the Stabita club of the Soviet Union in an exhibition. The first regular-season date is on Nov. 25 against Davidson.

Wake Forest hasn't played a substantial home schedule since the 1981-82 season, when the Demon Deacons played in the Greensboro Coliseum. They haven't played Duke, North Carolina and North Carolina State in Winston-Salem since 1981.

Still, Wake Forest will have one date in Greensboro when it plays Seton Hall, the NCAA runner-up, in the ACC-Big East Challenge on Dec. 5.

Non-conference opponents in Winston-Salem are Cornell, Campbell, North Carolina-Wilmington, Alabama, East Tennessee State and William & Mary.

Wake Forest's road schedule includes the Fiesta Bowl Classic in Tucson, Ariz., which includes Penn State, Purdue and host Arizona.

The 1989-90 Wake Forest basketball schedule.
NOVEMBER — 11-Stabita of Soviet Union (exhibition); 25-Davidson; 30-at Evansville.

DECEMBER — 2-Cornell; 5-Seton Hall in Greensboro; 9-Campbell; 19-North Carolina-Wilmington; 21-Alabama; 28-30-Fiesta Bowl Classic.

JANUARY — 4-at Maryland; 6-Georgia Tech; 10-E. Tennessee St.; 13-at Clemson; 15-at Richmond; 18-N. Carolina St.; 20-Duke; 22-at North Carolina; 28-Virginia.

FEBRUARY — 3-at Old Dominion; 7-at Georgia Tech; 11-North Carolina; 13-William & Mary; 18-at Duke; 21-Clemson; 24-Maryland.

Carlos Yates Is Gunned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carlos Yates, the leading scorer in the history of George Mason basketball, was killed after being gunned down while riding his motorcycle near Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, police said.

Yates was hit six to eight times in the upper body with automatic gunfire on Sunday afternoon, police said. Found at the scene were 16 9mm shell casings.

Police said Monday that Yates was discovered in the southeast section of the city with multiple gunshot wounds. He was transported to D.C. General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 4:15 p.m.

Police have no suspects in the slaying, which appears similar to many drug-related homicides in the area. Yates, 27, became the city's 279th murder victim this year.

Yates starred at George Mason from 1981-85, scoring 2,420 points and grabbing 520 rebounds, the seventh-best total in school history.

He played at Flint Hill high school in Virginia before attending George Mason, where he led the team in scoring for four straight years. He was Freshman of the Year of the then-East Coast Athletic Conference and the ECAC Co-Player of the Year as a sophomore.

After leaving George Mason, Yates played one year of professional basketball in Italy.

Clemson Moves To Two-A-Days

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson held their final non-contact workouts Monday, and will continue a two-a-day practice schedule in pads for the rest of the week.

Several players missed practice with minor injuries Monday but are expected to be back within the next few days. Quarterback Jim McLees suffered a broken nose in the afternoon, while freshman outside linebacker Ashley Sheppard sat out with a dislocated finger. Safety Marc Taylor underwent back surgery Monday and will be out for an undetermined period.

Coach Danny Ford said he was pleased with the Tigers' work over the first six practices. "I think we have had three positive days in shorts. ... The team is real excited about getting to put pads on because you can't play football in shorts and they are ready to play football."

Ford said he hoped to be able to make personnel decisions after seeing the team practice in pads. "We need to see if we can develop any depth and see how our projected one and two teams are doing."

"We will go quite a few more two-a-days because we don't have long to get ready for Furman. We also hope to get a scrimmage in sometime this week," Ford said.

Gamecocks Welcome 130 Players

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's first day of football practice saw 130 players come out, and first-year coach Sparky Woods sent the squad through two two-hour practice sessions in shorts.

"Overall, I was pleased with the condition the team reported back in," Woods said. "From the looks of things, it seems as if they worked hard during the off-season."

Woods said both practices were encouraging. "I thought we had two good practice sessions," he said. "I really like our players' attitude and work habits on the practice field."

Woods said senior quarterback Todd Ellis "looked sharp and polished throwing the football." The coach also praised the performances of receiver Robert Brooks, defensive end Corey Miller and defensive back Stephane Williams.

The Gamecocks will begin their first contact drills Thursday. South Carolina will also have an autograph and fan photo session at 6:15 p.m. Saturday, followed by a scrimmage at 7 p.m.

Johnson, Sandberg Gets Weekly Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore rookie Dave Johnson, the only Oriole to pitch consecutive complete games this season, was named American League Player of the Week.

Johnson, a 29-year-old Baltimore native, allowed 14 hits and two earned runs in 18 innings during victories over Minnesota and Boston.

Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who tied a 61-year-old Cubs record by hitting home runs in five consecutive games, was named National League Player of the Week.

Sandberg hit six home runs overall and drove in 12 runs during the week and tied the Cubs' record for home runs in consecutive games set by Hack Wilson in 1928. For the week, Sandberg hit .435 with 10 hits in 23 at-bats. He scored eight runs and had a 1.126 slugging percentage.

Douglas Could Be Next Tyson Foe

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — James "Buster" Douglas, who fought in lackluster fashion on the undercard the last time Mike Tyson defended the heavyweight championship, may be Tyson's next opponent.

"Nothing has been signed yet, but it looks that way, that Douglas is the guy," Al Braverman, a spokesman for promoter Don King, said Monday. King was expected to hold a news conference today, Braverman said.

Tyson is 37-0 with 33 knockouts. His last fight was July 21, when he knocked out Carl "The Truth" Williams in 93 seconds. Douglas, 28-4-1, outpointed Oliver McCall the same night.

Tyson's estranged manager, Bill

Cayton, said he had not received any contract papers concerning the fight but he has approved either Douglas or former champion Michael Dokes as Tyson's next opponent.

"I have no problems with either Dokes or Douglas," Cayton said. "I've given approval for both, but I thought Dokes was going to be first sometime in October."

Cayton must approve all opponents for Tyson, who has three fights remaining on a $26.5 million deal with Home Box Office. Cayton said HBO has approved Douglas and Dokes as potential opponents.

Douglas' manager, John Johnson, said the fight with Tyson is set.

"We have agreed to the terms and the conditions for the fight," Johnson, who met with King in Orwell, Ohio, over the weekend, told the Columbus Dispatch. "The contract should be signed within 48 hours."

"I'm ready for it," Douglas said. "Ever since May of 1987 I've been wanting it. It has been a long time coming, but it's here."

"We have given Don King an October date for a Tyson fight and we assume that it will be against Dokes," Bob Greenway, HBO's vice president of sports programming, said.

However, HBO spokesman Tony Fox said the pay cable network also considers Douglas an acceptable opponent.

Braverman said he expected the fight to be held in October, but that no exact date has been set. He said the Las Vegas Hilton has the right of first refusal for the bout.

Douglas was stopped in the 10th round of his scheduled 15-round International Boxing Federation championship fight with Tony Tucker in 1987. Tucker later lost a 12-round decision to Tyson for the undisputed world championship.

"I knew it was possible to get back to this point," Douglas said. "I had to work hard, but I knew if I just kept fighting and coming out victorious I'd get this shot."

Johnson said Douglas will earn more than $1 million. The Dispatch said Tyson would be guaranteed at least $5 million.

Meanwhile, Winners Worldwide Ltd., a British sports promotions firm, offered Tyson $100 million to make a year-long world tour that would include a title fight each month.

Berry Commits Suicide ...

Sunday and she spent the night elsewhere, sheriff's Sgt. Jim Whitwell said.

There was no immediate indication when Berry died, but neighbor John Murray said visitors' cars were parked at the house until about 11:30 p.m. Sunday. Authorities discounted an early report by a neighbor of a gunshot at about 9:30 a.m. Monday.

The Berrys had lived in the house about three weeks and were still settling into the neighborhood of large custom-built, single-story houses, surrounded by neat yards and curving streets.

Berry's father, Bill, who coached his son in college and is now a Kings scout, and Bill Russell, Kings vice president and former coach, arrived at the player's home shortly before the body was removed by the coroner's office. Bill Berry received word of the suicide while meeting with Kings officials.

Later in the day, people identifying themselves as relatives knocked at the door of the house, but there was no answer and they left. Investigators also had left the scene, leaving about a dozen reporters around the house.

"We are profoundly shocked and saddened at the tragic ending of the life of Ricky Berry," Kings managing general partner Gregg Lukenbill said. "Ricky was a kind, thoughtful, sensitive, caring and soft-spoken young man who was spirited and talented as an athlete. Our thoughts and our prayers are both with Ricky and with his family in this time of grief."

Berry, the career scoring leader at San Jose State, was chosen by the Kings as the 18th selection overall in the 1988 NBA draft. He averaged 11 points on 45 percent shooting last season in 64 games, including 21 starts.

Berry set the San Jose State scoring record despite playing only three years. He was the first player in the school's history to average more than 20 points a game, 20.2 as a junior.

Born in Morgan Hill, Berry was a star player at Live Oak High School and played a year at Oregon State before transferring to San Jose. After sitting out the 1984-85 season under the NCAA transfer rule, Berry made the All-Pacific Coast Athletic Conference team in each of three seasons with the Spartans.

As a senior, Berry was honorable mention on The Associated Press All-America team. He played on the United States' 1987 Pan American Games team, which won a silver medal.

He had two years left on his contract with the Kings.

Rookie QBs Coming Through ...

chance on a bunch of sacks. The bottom line is to win, not throw deep passes."

Johnson said he would stick with his plan of rotating the quarterbacks. Walsh will start and play the first half on Saturday against the Los Angeles Raiders. Aikman will play the third quarter and Babe Laufenberg will play the fourth quarter.

In other quarterback news around the NFL:

— Rick Strom, who grew up in the shadows of Three Rivers Stadium but had an unspectacular college career at Georgia Tech, is threatening to overtake Todd Blackledge as the Pittsburgh Steelers' backup quarterback.

"I feel like I've been having a good camp and I feel like I've been making some good plays," Strom said. "It's up to the coaches as to how they see us as far as who's second, who's third. I am just concentrating on myself. I'm not going to get into a comparison situation between me and Todd."

Coach Chuck Noll admits that Strom has narrowed the gap.

"There's a competition there, there's no doubt about it," Noll said. "We'll see how it goes. It's just the beginning."

— Phoenix quarterback Neil Lomax, who is still hoping to play this season despite an arthritic left hip, is miffed that former San Francisco 49ers coach Bill Walsh says he should retire for the good of the team.

Walsh, now an NFL analyst for NBC-TV, said on national television Saturday that Lomax won't play this season and should quit before he further hinders the club's development.

"I don't know where he got his information or how well he knows my condition," Lomax said Sunday. "We had a nice chat. I have no idea why he said those things. I don't need that stuff. I don't need to think about my condition. I want to think about football. If you notice, there were no quotes from me. It was just his opinion."

Pittsburgh Steelers

Tim Worley said he is getting closer to a contract settlement with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I really don't know the figures yet," he said.

The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported today that the team's top draft pick has lowered his contract demands to $4 million over five years, down from the $9.2 million he was seeking two weeks ago. The Steelers have raised their offer from $1.6 million to $2.5 million over five years.

New York Giants

Top draft pick Brian Williams and free safety Terry Kinard joined holdout quarterback Phil Simms in signing contracts on Monday. Simms signed a three-year package that will pay him $1.3 million this year, $1.4 million next year and $1.5 million in 1991.

"It's good to be back. I'm happy everything is over," Simms said.

"It's not as easy as you think. You don't know what's going on."

Kinard, whose contract ran out after last season, said he signed a three-year deal in the area of $1.7 million. Williams, the 18th player taken in the draft, signed a four-year contract valued at about $1.98 million.

Indianapolis Colts

Linebacker O'Brien Alston and tackle Kevin Call, both starters, will miss 3-4 weeks while they recover from knee surgery. Coach Ron Meyer said All-Pro running back Eric Dickerson probably won't practice this week. Dickerson, hampered by an inflamed Achilles tendon, may sit out Saturday's preseason game at Green Bay.

Phoenix Cardinals

Rookie offensive lineman Joe Wolf, one of three unsigned first-round draft picks, agreed to terms. Wolf, the 17th overall pick out of Boston College, reportedly agreed to a four-year deal in excess of $2 million.

Cleveland Browns

Coach Bud Carson is leaning toward moving cornerback Hanford Dixon, a Pro Bowler, to free safety, where he played in Saturday's game against Detroit. Rookie Tony Blaylock started at cornerback while Dixon took over Felix Wright's spot at free safety, with Wright at strong safety.

Green Bay Packers

Green Bay traded holdout offensive lineman Darryl Haley, who played in 13 games last season, to Cleveland for an undisclosed conditional draft choice, leaving the Packers with only one unsigned player.

But the missing player is a big one — top draft choice Tony Mandarich.

Valvano Is Dodging ...

reporter asked another question involving the controversies surrounding the university.

"You really want to talk about this don't you," asked Valvano. "Unless you think the 'appropriate time' was in seven minutes, that's still the answer."

Valvano has denied the charges against him, but the University of North Carolina System formed a commission that conducted an investigation into N.C. State's athletic program.

Details of the report are to be released Aug. 25 at a meeting of the UNC Board of Governors in Chapel Hill.

Despite the occasional testiness, Valvano did joke some.

"Humor is so much a part of my makeup, I'm not sure that can ever change," he said. "When I get around basketball coaches who are friends as these gentlemen are, the mood is strictly on hoops and I certainly enjoy the merriment of the moment."

"But there'll be a time we'll talk."

Valvano did talk about the effects the controversy is having on him and his team this summer.

"The spirit of togetherness that got us through last year has permeated," he said. "Either adversity tears you apart or brings you together. It's a real learning experience."

"The fact that most of the squad has been together (over the summer), has been very important."

The majority of Valvano's speech was devoted to the Dec. 1-2 tournament, now in its second year.

Last year North Carolina was the host, joined by Missouri, Temple and Arizona. This year, the Wolfpack coach thinks the field is just as strong.

"You like to go in a tournament with one squad you think you can beat," he said. "In this tournament, it looks like it's my squad."

Valvano returns a solid nucleus for the upcoming season led by guards Chris Corchiani and Rodney Monroe. Brian Howard and Avie Lester also are expected to start.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Aug. 16

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Trust in people and remain optimistic over the outcome of relationships. Energize a love affair if you are losing interest.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Assert yourself, but do not expect the impossible. Be energy-efficient and waste little on unproductive endeavors.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Use your talents in dealing with people. Judgment is good and well-organized. Put some of your energy into recreation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You have come to realize that success is not an accident, but a result of hard work and making the right moves at the right time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Acting in spurts of enthusiasm can confuse others and undermine your true intentions. Keep emotions on an even keel!

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Getting your ideas across today may be like water dripping on a rock. You will be more on target if you wait two days.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): A gentle and harmonious disposition will be your theme for the day. You may want to make yourself extra attractive to fit your mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Taking action that is not well thought out is ill advised. You relate best to people who have well-defined goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Withholding your love to control a relationship has adverse consequences. Use emotions to demonstrate your affection.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You have inner powers and creative resources that can be tapped. It is your nature to always succeed despite setbacks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can reap the rewards from past efforts. A project involving someone close starts to mature. Keep love ongoing and fresh.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Examine a new outlet for your creative enterprises. Someone boring may invade your privacy in the later day.

If we had to choose a theme song for bridge players, it would be "Can't Take My Eyes Off of You." You have to watch every card that is played.
Had North's five-card suit been a major, it would have been wrong to suppress it. However, since nine tricks are usually easier to make than 11, North opted for what he expected to be a simple contract.

East rose with the ace of diamonds and returned the queen, which was allowed to hold. Unfortunately, East had no more diamonds. The spade shift was taken in the closed hand, and declarer forced out the ace of clubs. West cashed the king of diamonds, but that was the last trick for the defense. South rattled off the rest to scrape home.

West was asleep at the switch. Had that defender been watching the spots, he would have realized that, since the doubleton 9-8 of diamonds appeared in dummy, declarer had no spot card higher than the seven, and could not hold more than four diamonds.

That should have made the winning defense easy to find. West must overtake the queen of diamonds with the king and continue with the ten to force out declarer's stopper.

That gives declarer a diamond trick which could not be established by force, but inevitably leads to the contract's defeat. South has only seven fast tricks available, and must set up two club tricks to make his contract. However, West can grab his ace as soon as the suit is led and cash two more diamond tricks to beat the contract one trick.

Walesa Backs Prime Minister's Offer To Resign

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa today welcomed Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak's decision to give up trying to form a government, as one of Poland's two minor parties endorsed Walesa's bid to form the next government.

The developments came one day after Kiszczak offered to resign as prime minister in the face of opposition from Solidarity, and urged instead that pro-communist Peasant Party leader Roman Malinowski form a coalition government that would include both communists and the free trade movement.

Solidarity has rejected such offers previously, saying only a government headed by the opposition and dominated by non-communists will have the credibility necessary to solve Poland's political and economic problems.

The economy particularly is in disarray, with industrial production falling, shortages of basic commodities common, its foreign debt at a burdensome $39 billion and growing and rising inflation.

Associates say under such conditions that Walesa himself might be willing to serve as prime minister.

In a statement issued by Walesa today, he said:

"Gen. Kiszczak's declaration expressing readiness to resign... was received by myself as resulting from a feeling of responsibility for Poland, and a step opening new possibilities to solve the current government crisis."

Walesa, who is not a member of Parliament, said his offer of a coalition government of Solidarity, the Peasants and the Democratic Party "is today the only chance to change the course of events dangerous for the country."

Such a government, he said, would be "a government of national responsibility, nominated with respect for the rights of the Polish president."

Walesa apparently was referring to the constitutional rights of newly elected communist President Wojciech Jaruzelski to control foreign policy and the armed forces. Presumably, Solidarity would nominate for the defense, interior and foreign ministries only candidates acceptable to Jaruzelski.

Despite those assurances, the prospect of a Solidarity-led government has alarmed both the communist Polish United Workers Party and the Soviet Union, which has said it could be destabilizing both for Poland and Europe.

Solidarity parliamentary leader Bronislaw Geremek has said the party also fears a Solidarity-led government would purge a large segment of the "nomenklatura" — party functionaries who hold tens of thousands of government and management posts.

The nomination of Malinowski, a non-communist but long allied with the communists, was apparently the party's effort to offer an alternative to a Solidarity-led government that Poland's East bloc and party hardliners could not accept.

The resignation of a communist premier because the opposition will not endorse his bid to form a government — and the plausible attempt by Solidarity to form a government against the wishes of the Polish and Soviet communist parties — demonstrates how radically East bloc politics have changed.

Such events would not have been thinkable even a year ago.

Malinowski has not publicly replied to Kiszczak's suggestion that he form the government. But he already faces opposition from Solidarity and from within his own party, among others.

The Democrats for instance came down squarely in favor of Walesa's proposal to form the government in a statement carried today by the state PAP news agency.

"We think that we should do everything to realize Lech Walesa's proposal, which has broad support in Democratic Party circles," said the secretary of the party, historically allied to the Communist Party but showing independence in recent weeks.

It said Kiszczak's resignation from forming a communist-led government "creates a new situation — more favorable for continuing negotiations striving for a government of 'national trust' based on an alliance" of Solidarity, the Peasant Party and the Democrats.

Earlier Solidarity Sen. Jaroslaw Kaczynski said Kiszczak's recommendation of Malinowski was an attempt to "make it... very difficult, if not impossible" for Solidarity to form the government, but that he did not think that the proposal would succeed.

Another Solidarity deputy, Henryk Wujec, called the proposal of Malinowski "an idiotic move."

If Solidarity would succeed in its push to win the prime minister's post, it would be the first non-communist government in the East bloc since the late 1940's.

Kiszczak, elected prime minister on Aug. 2, said he would contact Jaruzelski and ask him "to draw proper conclusions from the situation."

Faced with the difficulty of winning a majority in Parliament despite opposition from the Solidarity caucus that makes up 35 percent of the chamber, the longtime interior minister blamed Walesa's proposal for prolonging and complicating the problem of forming a government.

Child Murders Stun Tokyo Suburbanites

TOKYO (AP) — A man arrested in connection with the kidnapping and slaying of a 5-year-old girl has confessed to killing two other girls in a series of cases that have brought fear to Tokyo suburbs, police said today.

In a society remarkably free of crime, the brutality of the murders in an area northwest of Tokyo has shocked many Japanese and dominated news and television reports.

The cases, however, also have drawn attention to the many animated films available in Japan that show violence and scenes of undressed girls and comic books involving crime. The suspect, Tsutomu Miyazaki, said he collected them.

Miyazaki, the 26-year-old son of a printing shop owner, was arrested Friday in the kidnapping and killing of 5-year-old Ayako Nomoto two months ago. On Sunday, police said he confessed to killing two 4-year-old girls, Mari Konno and Erika Namba.

Police said they also were questioning Miyazaki about whether he was involved in the disappearance of a fourth girl, 7-year-old Masami Yoshizawa, missing since October.

Miyazaki was first arrested July 23 for allegedly forcing a 6-year-old girl to let him take nude pictures of her. During questioning, he admitted to having killed Ayako and directed police to a wooded area where her skull was found, police said.

Police said Miyazaki told them he had picked up Ayako in his car but became angry when she "made fun of a deformity" in his hands and strangled her. He then took her body to his room, where he chopped off her head, hands and feet, they said. Her torso was found northwest of Tokyo on June 11.

"I cannot control myself when I see a young girl," newspapers quoted him as telling police.

Since Miyazaki confessed last week to murdering Ayako, an army of reporters has been stationed at his house, police headquarters, the victims' houses and murder sites.

When questioned, teachers told reporters Miyazaki seldom stood out and left little impression on them. Acquaintances described Miyazaki as a quiet loner who bragged about his collection of nearly 4,500 videotapes, including many animated films.

Masked Rioters Hurl Bombs At Police

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Masked rioters threw homemade gasoline bombs and rocks at police in Londonderry early today following a peaceful march by IRA supporters 20 years to the day since British troops entered the city.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary said the three hours of pre-dawn violence occurred in the city's Roman Catholic Bogside area where crowds barricaded streets two decades earlier in battles with police.

Police fired dozens of plastic bullets to break up the rioters, who wore masks to hide their identities. Police said two men were hit and injured by the bullets but that their condition was not thought to be serious.

The British domestic news agency

Press Association said that at one stage gunshots were heard, apparently fired at police, and that officers later were reported to have fired in the air to scare off the rioters.

Police said a small homemade explosive device was thrown at an armored police Land Rover, rocking the vehicle and breaking windows in nearby homes.

The news agency quoted an unnamed local resident as saying rioters ran down a street throwing gasoline bombs and rocks: "This is the worst (violence) we have had for four to five years. People were expecting trouble but no one knew what."

Sporadic violence was also reported in Belfast.

On Monday, several thousand IRA supporters paraded through the Bogside neighborhood. They marched into the old walled city, an historic Protestant stronghold, and walked past the ruins of a building shattered by an IRA bomb two days earlier.

"We've all risked our lives for 20 years and I say, fight on," said Martin McGuinness, once the top IRA commander in the city and now a vice president of the outlawed IRA's legal political wing, Sinn Fein.

"I'm here to pay tribute to the troops of the Irish Republican Army," McGuinness said.

Earlier, he read off the names of 37 members of the IRA's Derry Brigade who have died since "the troubles" began in August 1969.

Sinn Fein was alone in taking such public notice of the 20th anniversary of the British troop deployment.

The larger Catholic party, the Social Democratic and Labor Party, ignored it.

James Molyneux, leader of the largest Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists, and Democratic Unionists Party leader Rev. Ian Paisley used the day for a first meeting with the new secretary of state for Northern Ireland, Peter Brooke, the British Cabinet member responsible for the province.

Molyneux and Paisley said they had emphasized the opposition of Unionists, who support continued British rule, to the 1985 Anglo-Irish Agreement that guaranteed the Irish government a formal consultative role in the running of the province.

"We completely disillusioned the secretary of state that the Unionist leadership was weakened in the protest and fight to end the agreement," Paisley said.

Israeli Planes Buzz Palestinian Camps

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIDON, Lebanon — Israeli warplanes buzzed Palestinian refugee camps near this southern port today, drawing heavy anti-aircraft fire from guerrillas, police reported.

The Moslem Voice of the Nation radio in Beirut earlier reported the Israeli fighter-bombers hit targets near Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut.

But a police spokesman in Sidon, who cannot be named under standing regulations, said the Israeli jets "did not attack."

The spokesman said two Israeli jet fighters flew at "a very low altitude" over the Ein el-Hilweh and Mieh Mieh camps on the city's eastern edge at 12:15 p.m. (4:15 a.m. EDT).

Guerrillas in the sprawling shantytowns opened up on the jets with twin-barreled anti-aircraft guns, but no hits were observed when the jets made a single pass over the camps.

Witnesses in Sidon said the Israeli action triggered panic in the city.

Several motorists jumped from their vehicles and took cover in bomb shelters, entrances to buildings and fields.

The Israeli air force has carried out nine raids this year against targets in Lebanon, including Sidon's refugee camps. Eight people have been killed and 67 wounded in the air strikes.

Ron Howard Says 'Andy' Led Him To Directing Job

By Bob Thomas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Ron Howard recalls how his early life as a child actor on "The Andy Griffith Show" led to his becoming a director.

"I loved the environment of a movie set; it was always fun. It was work, and there was some discipline involved, but it was fun for me. When I got a little older — 7-8-9 — I became interested in the camera. You know how boys are interested in gadgets. I spent a lot of time hanging around with the camera crew," he said.

"I soon saw that the director was the person who got to hang out with the actors, which was fun, and he also got to hang around the camera and look through it and make decisions about it. Very early on, I thought that was going to be an interesting job, and I'd like to try it."

Howard didn't wait long. At 21 he directed a cheapie for Roger Corman, "Grand Theft Auto." After leaving the "Happy Days" TV series, he made a successful comedy with his series co-star, Henry Winkler, and Michael Keaton. Next came his "Splash" smash, followed by "Cocoon," "Gung Ho" and "Willow."

Now, "Parenthood."

"It's really the first time that I've done a movie that was personal to me," said Howard. "And it's the first time I've done a movie that was one of my own ideas."

The inception came with a horrendous plane flight which he and his wife were able to laugh about later. He thought that if they could laugh about such a happening, perhaps comedy could be found in other serious matters — such as raising children.

Howard, father of three daughters, began collecting other such stories from his own memory and those of friends. He worked with his regular writers, Lowell

Ganz and Babaloo Mandel, to develop the script of "Parenthood."

How do today's parents differ from a generation ago? "The baby boomer group, of which I'm a member, don't seem to go at anything halfway," he said. "Now that they're turning their attention to family and child-rearing, they're doing it with a real fervor, a real commitment. They want to be different. They've always wanted to be different, and better, and have more information and more choices. It's a more complicated time."

The central figure of "Parenthood" is Steve Martin as a husband who tries to balance his work with the responsibilities of fatherhood. Surrounding him is a family that includes Mary Steenburgen, Jason Robards, Tom Hulse, Dianne Wiest, Rick Moranis, Martha Plimpton and Keanu Reeves.

Howard said he had no trouble keeping the ensemble cast happy. "They all believed in the script. They had a lot of fun when they were there. I didn't have to do any of the hand-holding and ego-massaging that I frankly expected would be an important part of my job."

"They loved the ensemble nature of the film. These are all people who starred in their own movies. In a way, I think they kind of enjoyed not having that kind of responsibility and yet still being a part of something they believed in."

Seven movies isn't a great body of work for a director, but Howard believes a pattern may have emerged.

"I tend to be character-oriented," he said. "Even when I was doing fantasies like 'Splash' and 'Willow' and 'Cocoon,' what was in it for me was the scenes in which the actors could shine. I think 'Parenthood' is an extension of that, with all the sci-fi stuff stripped away."

NBC Closing Paris Bureau

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — NBC News plans to close its Paris bureau and open one in Budapest, Hungary, as part of what the network describes as "a long-planned restructuring of NBC resources" in the United States and abroad.

NBC's Paris bureau — whose chief, Ted Ebert, will take over a revamped Moscow bureau — will be shut down at the end of the year and about 10 French nationals employed there will be let go, a network source said. Two Americans — correspondent Jim Bitterman and producer Pat Thompson — will remain with NBC News.

The closing of the Paris bureau is part of a trend by the cost-conscious networks to try to cut expenses and increase what management calls "efficiencies" in the face of declining audiences and declining revenues caused by increased competition from cable television, independent stations and videocassette recorders.

CBS also plans to close its Paris bureau, and ABC downgraded its bureau there this year by moving chief European correspondent Pierre Salinger to London.

Although the latest network's adieu to the City of Light is likely to raise eyebrows in some journalistic circles, NBC News President Michael Gartner, in a statement, downplayed the importance of Paris in coverage of European news in the era of satellite transmission.

"The Paris bureau has primarily been used as a launch pad to cover stories elsewhere in Europe and Africa," he said, "but we also have that ability in our bureaus in London, Frankfurt and Rome."

Meanwhile, NBC said that it would open a bureau in Budapest for news coverage of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania, and would "begin to establish a presence in Barcelona (Spain) in preparation" for the Summer Olympics there in 1992. NBC will televise those games, having bought broadcast rights for them last December for a record $401 million.

Gartner said that NBC's Budapest bureau "reflects the increasing developments in Eastern Europe, developments that often are finding their way onto our news shows."

The chief of the new Budapest bureau is David Page, formerly a producer at NBC's bureau in Frankfurt, West Germany, and most recently a producer on the news division's "Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow."

Julian Lennon Tries To Escape Shadow

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Julian Lennon is running hard to escape the shadow of his famous father, John.

The 26-year-old singer told US magazine in its Sept. 4 issue that his voice, which is similar to his father's, from now on will be heard on songs that are "a lot more raw and a lot more opinionated lyrically."

"I've used my shyness in the past to avoid issues and keep my opinions quiet. I'm not tired of being nice, but there is more to me than that," he said.

Writer Sees TV's 'Mancuso' As Old-Fashioned Idealist

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Writer-producer Steve Sohmer says he sees the hero of his upcoming NBC series as an old-fashioned idealist who's a dinosaur in today's FBI.

The show "Mancuso, FBI," starring Robert Loggia as Nick Mancuso, is a spinoff from the miniseries thriller "Favorite Son."

Sohmer, who wrote the best-selling novel about political corruption in Washington, and adapted it for the miniseries, said what excites him most about Mancuso is that idealism.

"He's had a lifelong love affair with the Constitution," he said. "But when you look at him you know only blind justice would choose this man as her champion. Everyone underestimates him. He's the hero of the 1990s because he believes passionately in his country and wishes the country would live up to its principles."

The miniseries, which ran last fall prior to the presidential election, told of a conspiracy to boost the candidacy of a handsome senator for vice president. At the time, Republicans protested that there were certain similarities to candidate Dan Quayle. Sohmer pointed out that the book was written and the miniseries was filmed long before anyone knew Quayle would be the Republican candidate for vice president.

Mancuso, along with his secretary, played by Randi Brazen, and Charles Siebert as the head of forensics, are holdovers from the miniseries. New members of the cast are Lindsay Frost as a Justice Department lawyer and a special agent in charge, yet to be cast.

Sohmer is executive producer of "Mancuso, FBI," which will be filmed in Los Angeles with some second-unit work in Washington.

"Mancuso is a very personal guy with me," said Sohmer. "He's a character based on an amalgam of things I feel, some of my father, my grandfather."

"He's a guy in a $10 suit who can never get his tie all the way up. He's not prepossessing. He's a man who's a first-generation American born to immigrant parents who taught him this is the greatest country in the world. After college and law school, he joined the Army out of patriotism and became a military policeman. There he was recruited for the FBI."

Sohmer said he has asked for FBI cooperation in filming the series, but said he will not give the agency script approval.

"I want to make this as close to FBI policy, rules and procedures as possible," he said. Agents who have seen the show's FBI office set say it's authentic.

"But this really isn't a show about the FBI. It's about people in trouble, American ideals, the law and how people try to subvert those ideals and place themselves above the law. It's David vs. Goliath."

Each episode begins with what appears to be a run-of-the-mill case. But it soon turns into a crime where the stakes are very high.

An investigation of a murder at a Department of Energy facility turns out to be a plot by one of our allies to steal fissionable material. In another story, the press uncovers what appears to be the womanizing past of a cabinet appointee. But Mancuso discovers a plot to discredit the appointee.

In addition to his writing and his producing duties for "Mancuso," Sohmer recently became president of Nelson Television. Doing triple-duty leads to a schedule in which he begins writing at five in the morning. At eight, he conducts story conferences for the series, and at 11 he goes to his office at Nelson.

His second book, "The Russian Doll," will be published soon by G.P. Putnam's Sons. It involves a military conspiracy during the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks. The leading character is a woman Air Force lieutenant.

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.)

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy are available in store.

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:

Number of Monthly Payments	APR
