Drug Lords' Dad Calls For Peace

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — Seven bombs apparently set by drug traffickers exploded early today, police said. The father of three reputed drug lords called for negotiations with the government to end drug-related violence.

There were no injuries in the bombings of six state liquor stores in Medellin and a travel agency in Bogota, police said, but $100,000 of damage was caused. The bomb in Bogota blew up about 300 feet from a military base.

Police blamed drug traffickers for the bombs, which went off between 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. Police also blamed traffickers Sunday for nine bombings of banks in Medellin. There were no claims of responsibility.

Fabio Ochoa Restrepo, father of the reputed Medellin cartel leaders Jorge Luis, Juan David and Jorge Ochoa Vasquez, asked President Virgilio Barco to "end the blood-letting in our dear Colombia" by negotiating with drug traffickers to end the violence.

"No more drug trafficking, no more war, no more assassinations, no more bombs," Ochoa Restrepo said in his message, which was dated Saturday and printed in local newspapers today.

Ochoa Restrepo said drug traffickers are willing to negotiate for peace, but similar initiatives must be made by the government, leftist guerrillas and paramilitary groups.

Leftists groups often attack drug traffickers' extensive property holdings inside Colombia.

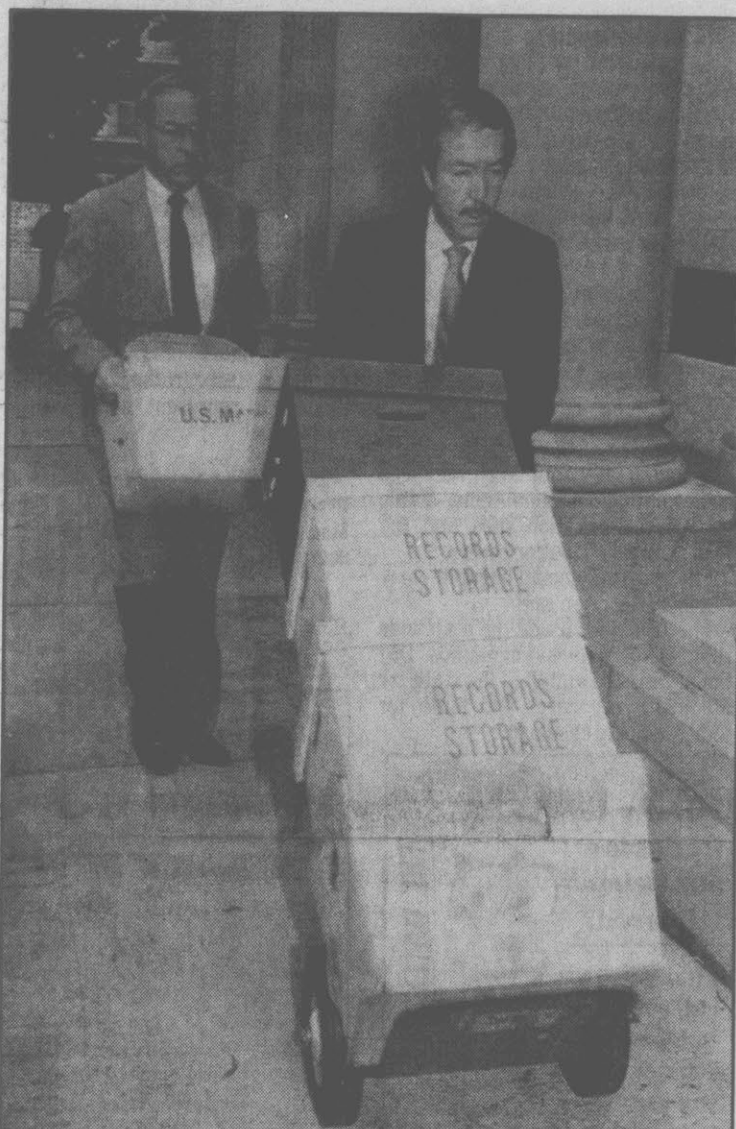

Ochoa Restrepo said a dialogue with the government was a condition for peace, and he asked the government for "forgiveness" of the traffickers, but did not elaborate.

Ochoa Restrepo's three sons are among 12 people wanted by the United States on charges linked to the Medellin cartel, which enforcement agents believe is responsible for 80 percent of the cocaine distributed in the United States.

Barco, who began the unprecedented war on traffickers after the assassination of a leading presidential contender on Aug. 18, has refused all calls for negotiations with traffickers.

A Bogota city councilwoman today said the government can win the war on drugs but must first get rid of police and government officials tied to the drug traffickers.

PTL records are wheeled into courtroom for Bakker trial

Aide Says Bakker Used PTL Funds To Pay Jessica

Related story on A-5

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — A former aide to Jim Bakker testified the PTL ministry founder used church money to pay Jessica Hahn to keep silent about their sexual tryst. Convicted former PTL worker David Taggart testified in the first day of Bakker's fraud and conspiracy trial that his former boss also used church money to buy homes, expensive cars and to finance luxurious trips to seaside resorts.

Taggart also testified today that Bakker once told him he wanted to have 10 homes.

Bakker is charged with 28 counts of fraud and conspiracy and could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million if found guilty of all of them.

Bakker quit PTL in March 1987 amid revelations about his 1980 sexual encounter with church secretary Hahn and a $265,000 payoff to her.

Blockade-Running Tanker Set Afire

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A tanker carrying fuel for Lebanon's besieged Christians was struck by Syrian shellfire today and set on fire as it tried to run a Syrian blockade under the cover of darkness, police reported. Nine crewmen were reported missing.

The incident touched off a fierce five-hour artillery battle between the Syrians and the Christian forces of Gen. Michel Aoun in and around divided Beirut. Police said three people were killed and 16 wounded in the barrage, which dwindled to intermittent mortar and machine gun exchanges by 8:30 a.m. (1:30 a.m. EDT).

That raised the casualty toll since fighting erupted March 8 to at least 795 people killed and 2,263 wounded. Police said only two Lebanese among 11 crewmen aboard were rescued. One of the survivors, Hanna Saddiq, said the tanker was attacked with missiles by "a Syrian gunboat" enforcing the 5-month-old blockade off the Christian-held coast during the night.

But a police spokesman, who cannot be named under standing regulations, said the ship was shelled by radar-controlled Syrian howitzers deployed along the seafloor in Moslem west Beirut.

Syrian artillery batteries along west Beirut's seafloor also fired on Aoun's positions and the shelling quickly spread to residential districts, police reported.

Police said the ship, identified only as the Sunshield, was hit at least once by radar-guided artillery about 7 miles off Maameltein, an area 11 miles north of this war-torn capital.

The crew included five Lebanese.

Proof Of Hazing Hard To Develop

By Kevin Boughal
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Like the other schools in the North Carolina system, East Carolina University has little tolerance for people both inside and outside the Greek system who are found guilty of hazing.

Unfortunately, it is difficult for the universities to prove that someone is guilty.

"In order to find somebody guilty, someone else has to step forward," said Ron Speier, the director of student services at ECU. "In my six years here, there have been no reported incidences of hazing. However, that does not mean that such incidents do not take place."

ECU officials hope that education is the key to limiting the number of hazing occurrences, but if that does not work, the legal penalties are harsh, said Speier.

North Carolina state law defines hazing as "to annoy any student by playing abusive or ridiculous tricks upon him, to frighten, scold, beat or harass him, or to subject him to personal indignity." If found guilty of hazing, a student will be charged

Pitt Teachers To Get Pay Raises Sept. 15

By Charles Hoskinson
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Although all Pitt County teachers will see more money in their paychecks this year, some will get more than others.

Instead of a 6 percent increase across the board, raises for local teachers will be as low as 1.9 percent or as high as 14.8 percent under the new pay schedule recently approved by the General Assembly.

The difference is the result of a change in the way teachers are paid. When the General Assembly approved the pay increase, it also scrapped the old 16-step pay schedule in favor of a 30-step one where pay is based on years of experience.

The new pay schedule gives experienced teachers a bigger raise, according to Dan Thomas, controller for Pitt County schools. "It favors those that have been on board awhile rather than those who are just beginning," he said.

For example, a beginning teacher without a graduate degree will earn $1,914 per month this year, up from last year's $1,833. However, a teacher with three years of experience and no graduate degree, who also made $1,833 a month last year, will now make $2,020 a month.

Teachers with graduate degrees will receive similar pay increases.

Another change is the incorporation of the 2.5-percent longevity pay into the salary schedule for teachers with less than 25 years' experience, Thomas said. Those with 25 or more years' experience will continue to receive the extra 2.5 percent payment, he said.

Teachers whose salaries are paid from local funds will also receive the same raises, Thomas said. "We will always pay everybody on the same basis," he said.

Teachers will see the raises in their Sept. 15 paychecks, Thomas said.

Snow Hill Rescue

A seven-member Mount Olive Rescue Squad high level rescue team was called to Snow Hill on Monday night to help a 30-year-old Mexican, Francisco Morena, from the top of a 175-foot elevated water storage tank off Eighth Street. Ray Brogden, a member of the rescue team, is shown just below Morena on the tank's vertical ladder as he helps the man to the ground. Other rescue team members on a catwalk above control a rope attached to the two men. Morena was discovered on top of the tank about 9:20 p.m. but attempts to talk him into coming to the ground on his own failed. Mount Olive rescuers reached the ground with Morena at 11:50 p.m. Morena was arrested on charges of being drunk and disruptive and placed in the Greene County Jail under a $2,000 bond.

DOT Decision Still To Come On 264 Trees

By J. Ward Best
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

SWAN QUARTER — As expected, area residents filled Mattamuskeet High School on Monday night to voice their opposition to the state's plans to remove nearly 800 trees from along the side of U.S. 264 in Hyde County.

But a N.C. Department of Transportation representative said today the state has not yet had time to consider the comments, and a final decision on clearing the trees has not been made.

Because of a number of fatal accidents along the east-west highway, DOT plans to clear-cut trees along an 11.5-mile stretch of road between Wilkinston Creek and Swan Quarter.

Hyde County Commissioner Sharon Gibbs said last week the proposal, which had originally won countywide support, now rallies the ire of county residents.

"The people in the county just do not want the trees cut down," Ms. Gibbs told The Daily Reflector last week.

And Hyde residents expressed those sentiments to DOT representatives at Monday's public hearing.

C.O. Smith, DOT Division 1 engineer, said the majority of the people who spoke Monday night opposed the cutting. Smith said most people dismissed the danger from the trees, and said the beauty of the roadway should not be marred by chain saws and stump grinders.

"The comments will be taken back to Raleigh," Smith said, "and the decision will be made there."

Smith said he did not know when a final decision on the cutting will be made.

Six lawsuits have been filed against DOT charging negligence for not clearing the trees.

Larry Stallings, area traffic engineer with the DOT regional office in Wilson, said last week that planning on the project was complete, and the department was ready to let bids on the cutting as soon as DOT officials made a final decision.

Following a 1987 accident which killed three teen-age boys, Belhaven officials asked the state to make a determination on the safety of the trees growing within four feet of the road in some places. DOT decided the trees were unsafe and would have to be cleared.

Hyde County commissioners originally supported the plan, but after election changes and because it has been nearly two years since the last fatality, the board members have reversed their stance.

Ms. Gibbs said the trees don't jump out at motorists, and the scenic drive provides one of the county's few natural attractions for outsiders.

A Belhaven physician, Dr. Charles O. Boyette, said last week the area residents needed to distinguish between the beauty of the trees and the safety of motorists.

Monday Thefts

Investigators said seven thefts were reported to Greenville police on Monday.

Officer K.L. Jones said $50 in cash and several keys were taken from 33 Yorktown Square Apartments in a break-in reported at 1:42 p.m., while Officer R.D. Andrews said an amplifier, graphic equalizer and a number of tapes were taken from a car parked at 204 N. Oak St. in an incident reported at 2:35 p.m.

Officer J.M. Ebron said $435 worth of furniture was taken from a trailer at Tri-County Mobile Homes East at 745 Greenville Blvd. in a break-in reported at 5:48 p.m., while Officer R.L. Hadnott said two tires and rims were taken from a car parked on Burlington Street in an incident reported at 6:21 p.m.

Officer R.C. Broadway said a checkbook, $4.50 in pennies and several credit cards were taken from a car parked at 402 E. 13th St. in an incident reported at 6:31 p.m., while two gold chains were taken from JC Penney at The Plaza mall by a juvenile, who was turned over to the department's Juvenile Division, in an incident reported at 7:57 p.m.

Broadway also said $4,715 worth of property — clothes, dishes, furniture and other household goods — were taken from 3006 Maryland Drive in an incident that occurred in June but was reported about 7:26 p.m. Monday.

Embezzlement Charge

Franklin Stanley Fulford Jr., 23, of 106 Summit St., was arrested on embezzlement charges by Greenville police on Monday.

Detective W.A. Reid said Fulford was charged in connection with the theft of 25 gold pendants valued at a total of $1,050 from Overton's Sports Center on Red Banks Road.

Permit Issued

Certificate Awarded

Michael S. Wheeler of East Carolina University recently was awarded the Advanced Law Enforcement Certificate by the North Carolina Criminal Justice Education Standards Commission.

The certificate is the highest professional certificate awarded to law enforcement and criminal justice officers in North Carolina, according to the panel.

To qualify for the advanced certificate, officers must complete a combination of professional training and relevant education, as well as meet minimum experience requirements.

Wheeler is a corporal with ECU.

Ward, Speir Win Board Appointments

Robert A. Ward of Burlington has been appointed a member of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees, while Betty Speir of Bethel has been named to the board of the North Carolina Center for the Advancement of Teaching.

The two appointments were made by the University of North Carolina Board of Governor at a meeting Friday in Chapel Hill.

Ward, executive vice president of Unifi Inc., a synthetic yarn processing firm in Greensboro, was appointed to fill the term of Vincent Lowe of Wilson, who died July 7.

A 1962 graduate of ECU with a bachelor's degree in business administration, Ward became a certified public accountant in 1964 and completed the executive program at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill in 1976.

A past president of the North Carolina chapter of the Financial Executives Institute, Ward was recently elected to the FEI's national board of directors. He is a member of the board of visitors of Elon College, the ECU Foundation board, the Pirate Club executive committee and the ECU Business School's Business Advisory Council.

Ward, a U.S. Marine Corps veteran, is married to the former Margaret Cude Ward, also a 1962 ECU graduate. One of the couple's two sons, Robert A. Ward Jr., is now a junior at ECU.

Mrs. Speir is executive director of the Pitt County Educational Foundation and co-owner of Smith and Speir Properties.

She received her undergraduate degree from Duke University and her master's from ECU and has been vice president of Bethel Manufacturing Co. as well as a guidance counselor and English teacher for the Pitt County school system.

In the past Mrs. Speir has served as chairman of the N.C. Victim Assistance Committee, vice chairman of the N.C. Democratic Party, and a member of the Governor's Crime Commission, the state Board of Education, the Commission on the Education and Employment of Women, the Commission on Education for Economic Growth and the state's Commission on the Length of Sentencing.

Mrs. Speir presently serves on the Pitt County Memorial Hospital board, is a member of the Democratic National Committee, and is chairman of the B.N. Duke Scholarship Committee at Duke University.

The Center for the Advancement of Teaching, located at Western Carolina University, is a statewide program, under the auspices of the UNC Board of Governors, dedicated to the advancement of teaching as an art and as a profession.

Retirement Announced

Kay J. Dunn of Winterville, who has served with the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission in Pitt County as a wildlife protector and as an enforcement supervisor since January 1972, is retiring effective midnight Thursday.

Dunn, of Route 1, Winterville, who graduated from Ayden High School in 1958 and attended East Carolina University, has worked with the Wildlife Commission since October 1963. He was stationed in Hyde and Duplin counties before being assigned to Pitt County 17 years ago.

Three years ago Dunn was promoted to sergeant and has served as an enforcement supervisor for Pitt, Greene, Lenoir and Duplin counties.

No replacement for Dunn has been named as yet, wildlife officials said.

Social Services Board Approves Worker To Handle Medical Forms

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County Board of Social Services voted Monday to accept a contract with the Pitt County Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Center to create a new position to work at the center.

The employee will process medical assistance applications for Pitt County residents at the center and initiate the process for patients from other counties.

The Mental Health Center will pay half of the costs and federal matching funds will pick up the additional costs.

Ed Garrison, director of the Pitt County Department of Social Services, informed the board of action that had taken place in the state legislature.

Garrison said the General Assembly passed a bill providing $3 million for child abuse and neglect caseworkers. He said that as a result of the bill Pitt County will receive $10,000 guaranteed money plus additional funds to be worked out in a formula based on the number of referrals.

Garrison said Pitt County should receive "significant funding."

The director said Monday that the General Assembly also passed a bill that literally says people can transfer their property in order to qualify for Medicaid.

"There is a tremendous shortage of information coming out of Raleigh on that issue," he told the board.

But Garrison said this morning that "information from Raleigh today says the legislation is in violation of federal statute and cannot be enacted by the state."

The Legislature passed a bill increasing Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits by 2 percent, Garrison said.

Another bill increased the income level for medical assistance for pregnant women and women with children up to 1 year old from 100 percent to 150 percent of the poverty level.

Garrison said the bill would allow for an income increase from $11,200 per year to 16,400 per year without cutting medical assistance benefits.

Supplemental assistance for adults in rest homes was increased from $724-760 each month.

Garrison said cost increases cause some problems for the department.

Since the county budget has already been adopted Social Services may have to ask the county commissioners for more funding in order to comply with the changes, he said.

George Perry, the Department of Social Services' income maintenance program administrator, told the board plans are under way to begin mailing food stamps to the disabled and people over 60.

Perry said fliers to make the public aware of the program will be distributed at community resource centers, the Council on Aging, Meals on Wheels, nutrition sites and the food stamp distribution center.

The program should begin in early October, Garrison said.

The board reviewed the statewide rankings of Medicaid caseloads. Pitt County ranked eighth in the state for Medicaid only cases and ninth for total Medicaid caseload.

Scholarship Award

Victoria E. Grady of Greenville, a medical student at East Carolina University School of Medicine, recently received a scholarship to attend a summer school program on substance abuse intervention at Wright State University School of Medicine, Dayton, Ohio.

The scholarship was sponsored by the J.M. Foundation of New York and Scaife Family Foundation of Pennsylvania.

The program is held in conjunction with Wright State School of Medicine's Weekend Intervention Program, a 72-hour education and counseling program for persons convicted of drunk driving.

Requirements Met

Dr. Jack W. Wilkerson of Greenville recently completed continuing medical education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors.

Book Rush Keeping ECU Stores Busy

By Jane Edwards
ECU NEWS BUREAU

It is "book rush" these days at East Carolina University, the busiest and most hectic time of year for the campus Student Stores which do a third of their annual volume of business in the two weeks after students come back to ECU.

It began last Wednesday, the first day of fall semester classes for an estimated 16,000 eager students. Bookstore manager Michael Coston and his staff were braced for the engulfing tide, having hired about 25 extra employees to help handle the work load and extended hours.

Students snatch up required textbooks for their courses and also buy notebooks, pens, paper and other school supplies. Some buy clothing, souvenirs, novelties, pennants and room decorations. Mainly, said Coston, purchases during "book rush" are books.

Student Stores receives approximately 2,000 requisitions for textbooks from the faculty, then orders the number of volumes estimated to be needed and stocks the books on shelves listed by faculty and class.

Coston estimated that book prices have increased this year by approximately 3 to 5 percent over last year's prices, and he said that nearly 20 percent of the books ordered this year are new editions.

"This year's volume of sales are matching up with last year," Coston said. During August 1988, the Student Stores did at least 30 percent of its annual business. "We expect approximately the same this year," he said.

Coston figured that on the average, an ECU student will spend $200 to $250 on required textbooks, depending on the student's major and year. The most expensive majors appear to be in the School of Allied Health Sciences, where the tab for required textbooks may run $500, Coston said.

Institute Participant

Nelsonya Evette Cox, a student at Ayden-Grifton High School, recently participated in the Institute for Future Agricultural Leaders on the campus of North Carolina A&T State University.

The weeklong institute was co-sponsored by the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation and A&T University.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Cox of Ayden.

ECU Enrollment Goes Past 16,000

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University has an enrollment of more than 16,000 students for the first time in history with an increase of 455 registered for the fall semester.

Registrar J. Gilbert Moore announced total registration of 16,038. Registration ended last week and classes began last Wednesday.

The numerical increase exceeded earlier estimates by university officials. Moore said there were fewer entering freshmen this year but a higher rate of retention. Last year, fall semester enrollment jumped by more than 700 students to a new record of 15,583.

This year, because of higher admissions requirements and a greatly increased rate of denials by the admissions office, it was estimated that the freshman class might be as much as 13 percent smaller than in 1988 when it totaled 2,991. ECU admissions officials denied nearly 2,000 applications this year, nearly doubling the 1988 denial rate.

The 16,038 students on campus included more returning students than had been anticipated and at least 135 more graduate students, Moore said.

Moore reported 11,828 full-time and 1,481 part-time undergraduates and 927 full-time and 1,802 part-time graduate students in the fall enrollment.

Last year, ECU's student enrollment exceeded 15,000 for the first time with 15,583. In 1987, enrollment was 14,882.

In terms of enrollment, ECU is the third largest institution of higher learning in North Carolina.

Dr. Richard Eakin, ECU chancellor, said the university was "right on target" with an enrollment increase of approximately 3 percent.

"This was our goal," Eakin said. He said East Carolina University "seeks to increase student enrollment by two to three percent a year in the foreseeable future."

"We are right on target with that goal," he said. "I am pleased with the total enrollment figures."

Schools Seek Drivers

Pitt County school officials are looking for a few good bus drivers.

"We're still in the recruitment stage as we always have been for bus drivers," said Barry Gaskins, a spokesman for the school system.

Monday was the first day of school for Pitt County students, and system officials are still working to iron out tangles in the school-bus routes.

Billy Walls, bus driver coordinator the system, said Pitt schools began operations Monday short two full-time drivers and filled those positions with part-time drivers.

"We are actively recruiting to fill those positions" with full-time drivers, Walls said.

Except for the buses, everything went well on the first day, Gaskins said. "As far as the opening in general it was very smooth," he said.

Tanker Is Shelled

four Egyptians and two Ghanaians, but the nationality of the rescued men was not immediately known. The police spokesman said the nine missing were feared dead.

Saddiq, 24, told reporters at the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Christian east Beirut, where he was being treated for severe burns, that a Syrian gun-boat approached to within 10 yards around 2:20 a.m.

The police spokesman said he had no information on the ship's tonnage, registry or owners.

He said the Sunshield was carrying 550,000 gallons of gasoline purchased by the Christian government headed by Aoun, which is vying for power with a rival Syrian-backed Moslem Cabinet.

Hazing Prohibited

with a misdemeanor and will face imprisonment of no more than six months and/or he must pay a fine not to exceed $500.

All of the schools in the system abide by that definition and they also abide by the penalty — "upon conviction of any student of the offense of hazing, or of aiding and abetting in the commission of this offense, he shall, in court, be expelled from the college or school he is attending." Failure by the school to expel the student is a misdemeanor.

In order to educate the students who are pledging a fraternity or sorority, ECU requires the house members to sign a promise that they will not haze and they also must inform the pledges about the university's hazing policy. They must also tell pledges what to do if they are hazed, said Speier.

Although some of the local fraternities, like Sigma Nu at ECU, have been formed with the idea of anti-hazing in mind, many of the main offices for the fraternities have outlawed hazing and have taken steps to end it, too.

The Associated Press reported that Tau Kappa Epsilon has proposed a policy by which prospective members would go through a two-week rush period, followed by immediate initiation. New pledges would be under a trial membership and would be reviewed to determine if they could remain in the fraternity. While under their trial memberships, the pledges would retain the full rights of membership.

"Personally, I agree with it," Billy Holmes, president of the Beta Beta chapter of TKE at North Carolina State University, told the news service. "It would force us to choose our members more selectively."

Part of the advantage of setting a national policy like the one proposed by TKE is that individual schools have less of an opportunity to break the rules, said Speier.

"(Some schools) have the entire fall semester to pledge, (some) have a few months and (some) have a few weeks, but this new program will make the amount of time that a fraternity has to induct a pledge the same across the country," said Speier.

The Associated Press reported that between 1978 and 1988, 43 fraternity pledges died in hazing incidents in the United States.

Solid Sleep

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Martin Winters fell asleep between the railroad tracks, but when four Southern Railway freight engines pulling 37 cars barreled over him, he not only lived through it — he slept through it.

Through the roar and rattle of a train traveling 30 mph just inches from his face, he never stirred.

Winters, 25, was taken to jail because he was intoxicated. Overcash said. He was released at 6:50 a.m. Sunday.

Authorities say the entire train passed over Winters before it stopped. Winters did not suffer a scratch — or any lost sleep. He was still unconscious when officers took him to jail about 1 a.m. Sunday.

Body Found

RALEIGH (AP) — The Wake County Sheriff's Department is investigating the death of a man found in a trailer park in eastern Wake County on Monday.

Thomas James McCoy was found dead behind a trailer at 6:40 a.m., Wake Sheriff's Capt. S.M. Pickett said.

Investigators found a kitchen knife beside the body, but the only visible sign of injury was a hurt knee, Pickett said.

The death is being treated as suspicious pending the outcome of an autopsy today, Pickett said. "We're treating it as a homicide because there are so many unanswered questions," he said.

Taggart Says Bakker Used Church Money

Bakker attorney George T. Davis said the Hahn payment was made without Bakker's knowledge.

Taggart was the first and only witness to testify Monday on the opening day of Bakker's trial. Taggart, and his brother James, were convicted last month of tax evasion. Each faces 25 years in prison and $1 million in fines at sentencing Sept. 8.

Taggart and his brother, James, returned to court today ahead of Bakker, who was dressed in a pinstriped suit and accompanied by his lawyers.

Taggart said today that Bakker complained just weeks before he resigned in 1987 that he didn't live as well as other evangelists.

"We were at ORU (Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla.) and they were showing us around," Taggart said. "Mr. Bakker said that he lived shabbily compared to Oral Roberts, the (Rex) Humbards and other ministers."

Taggart said Bakker made the comment while they were in Oral Roberts' office, "which is about the size of this courtroom."

He also testified that Bakker had become fascinated with real estate investments and had said he wanted to invest his bonus payments from PTL in land. "He told me he wanted to have 10 homes," Taggart said.

Taggart also recounted moving the Bakkers' personal items from the parsonage in Tega Cay, S.C., to Palm Springs, Calif., in June 1984.

"We were moving their clothing — you know, personal items," Taggart said. He said the move was made on a private jet that cost PTL $105,000 for the trip.

Taggart also said the Bakker's parsonage electric bill usually ran about $1,800 to $2,000 a month because "the pool was kept at a very high temperature ... in the 90s."

During her broadcast today, Tammy Faye Bakker denied ever asking on the air for defense funds for her husband.

"I don't mind the reporting of the news," she said on the "Jim and Tammy Show." "But what makes me sad is when they do it incorrectly and when they do it incorrectly on purpose, and they do it to slant the news the way they want the news slanted."

Prosecutors say Bakker and other executives at the evangelical empire diverted for their own benefit at least $4 million of the $158 million they raised by selling "lifetime partnerships" at the ministry's resort hotels.

They painted a picture of extravagance while Bakker's attorney, George T. Davis, said his client is innocent and called him a "creative religious genius."

Taggart testified that one 1986 document in Bakker's handwriting suggested in 1986 cutting the ministry's payroll from $24 million to $10 million and imposing a freeze on spending. Taggart said Bakker suggested the changes in January 1986, the same month the PTL board voted Bakker a $200,000 bonus and a $100,000 bonus for his wife, Tammy Faye.

Taggart testified that under Bakker's orders he spent more than $500,000 in PTL money to purchase and decorate a condominium for the Bakker family in Highland Beach, Fla., in 1982. Taggart testified that the expenditure of PTL funds was not approved by the PTL board of directors until several months later.

Taggart also said Bakker purchased a $600,000 home in Palm Springs, Calif., a month before he resigned.

Giamatti Did His Job Correctly

Pete Rose is banned from baseball for life ... not one year, not five years but for life.

That is the ruling of Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti after a compromise was reached with Rose which allowed the commissioner to issue his ruling.

While Rose may apply for reinstatement in one year it is pointless to speculate on his return to active participation in baseball. Rose still denies that he bet on baseball, but the commissioner's banishment indicates that Giamatti feels he has the evidence to that effect.

It is a sorry end of a career which spanned playing major league baseball to managing the Cincinnati Reds. Yet, if Commissioner Giamatti has the facts, it is a deserved end.

The baseball commissioner's office was born out of a previous scandal in the sport. It was recognized then that if public confidence was not maintained in the game then there would be nothing left.

In recent decades television has made professional baseball bigger than ever. The money pours in and stars can demand enormous compensation. It is even more clear today that participants must stay clear of the gambling moguls if the fans are to continue to believe in the game and support it.

Many people like Pete Rose — those who played with him and those who played against him. He is a great favorite of Cincinnati fans. It is perverse to take any joy from his downfall. It hurts his fans and casts a pall over the game of baseball.

Nevertheless there can only be admiration for Commissioner Giamatti for doing what had to be done. The reason his office exists is to keep the game clean in an atmosphere where huge amounts of money are being generated, and gambling is openly carried on. Clearly those who play and manage should not gamble on baseball. The commissioner took on the biggest of them all to show that such conduct won't be tolerated, and that should close the book on the Pete Rose affair.

Proud Ride

Watkins A Hard-Fisted Fighter

Even the enemies of Rep. Billy Watkins couldn't deny how tough he was. Even his opponents and those who derided his hard-fisted, closed-door politics had to admit Watkins was a powerful man and that he used his clout to better North Carolina.

Watkins, a lawyer and 10-term Democratic state legislator representing Granville County, died of a heart attack at his home in Oxford Saturday. He was buried today in the community he served.

He was a fiercely partisan politician, fighting for Democratic programs and making and defending party policy. Those who opposed him remember him as rigid, unsophisticated, uncompromising and unreasonable, dedicated to winning at any cost. Those who served alongside him recall his stern adherence to his causes and his determination to overcome any obstacle to serve them.

Neither side, however, can deny Watkins' devotion to public duty, nor his significant contribution to state government.

Watkins was chairman of the powerful state House Appropriations Committee from 1981 through 1988 and a top lieutenant of former House Speaker Liston Ramsey until Ramsey's ouster in the opening days of the 1989 session. He was a primary target of complaints from 20 Democrats and 45 Republicans who formed a coalition to unseat Ramsey.

That group accused Watkins of back-room dealing and favoritism when divvying state funds. They called for an open state budget process and an end to closed-door politics in the House. Watkins surrendered his chairmanship but refused to apologize for the way he ran the Appropriations Committee. During the 1989 legislative session he was seldom heard from and was relegated to insignificant committees, all chaired by Republicans.

While Watkins' legacy to the state is one of powerful party politics, it is also one of progress. He was a key architect of the important Basic Education Program, an eight-year, $800 million effort to improve public schools. Ironically, without Watkins' leadership, its fifth-year budget was slashed nearly in half by the 1989 General Assembly.

In addition, he was a tenacious supporter of the interests of rural North Carolina. For farmers, he championed tobacco marketing, beef cattle research and the horse industry.

Watkins once rode a donkey, the symbol of the Democratic party, to a fund-raiser at the Horse arena on the N.C. State Fairgrounds. Given his devotion to that party, there are those who might speculate upon his death that Watkins arrived at the Pearly Gates astride the same steed. For him, that would be a proud ride.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I never cease to be amazed at the stories some members of the General Assembly tell when they get back home after the session.

Senator Tom Taft's comments in the 8/20/89 edition of The Daily Reflector are a case in point. He said, "I think it is absurd for the Governor to be talking about a special session less than 24 hours after the longest session in history. I think the suggestion was made out of frustration arising from his lack of success."

Senator Tom Taft knows full well that a special session may be required to address the question of ratification of the regional compact on waste disposal.

The only frustration Governor Martin probably has is shared by most North Carolinians upset by the fact that the General Assembly session lasted too long. That is solely the responsibility of the General Assembly. Ask Senator Taft why the Senate often met only three days a week while he was being paid a per diem for working seven days a week. Ask Senator Taft why the Senate voted to direct $300 million per year from highway funds to the General Fund. Ask Senator Taft why he voted to strip Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner of powers and responsibilities given to every other Lt. Gov. in this century. Ask Senator Taft how he proposes to fund all the projects at East Carolina University when he voted for a budget that will leave a $200 million shortfall in any expansion items for next year.

Finally ask Senator Taft if he will support a constitutional amendment that will cut off legislators pay after any session lasts longer than 120 days.

Of course keep in mind that Senator Taft will probably tell you anything he thinks you want to hear and then do as he pleases while he is in Raleigh.

To the editor:

Drunk driving kills our friends and family members at an alarming rate, and remains the most frequently committed crime in the nation. On average, one person dies every 22 minutes, 65 each day, and more than 23,000 Americans lose their lives due to drunk driving crashes each year.

In an effort to reduce drunk driving deaths, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) and Volkswagen United States have teamed up for a public education program called Drive for Life. Drive for Life urges all Americans to pledge to drive sober on the Saturday of Labor Day Weekend and throughout the year, and to turn on their headlights when driving Saturday in remembrance of those people killed and injured in drunk driving crashes. The National Safety Council estimates that alcohol-related deaths increase 10 percent during the Labor Day Holiday. We're encouraging everyone to pledge to drive responsibly, and if they are going to drink, to explore alternatives like taking a cab or calling a friend. It's actually easy to avoid the lethal combination of alcohol and automobiles.

The success of Drive for Life depends on the support of every American community, and we're asking for your help. Please join us Saturday and Drive for Life.

Please, Someone Ask The 'C' Question

WASHINGTON — Will someone please ask Henry Kissinger the "C" question. It goes like this: "Dr. Kissinger, do you have a financial stake in the issues you discuss on television or in your newspaper column? Is one of your corporate clients seeking to do business in a country under discussion? If that country changed governments, would that affect your access to its officials? Dr. Kissinger, we await your answer."

"C" stands for Conflict — as in conflict of interest. "C" could also stand for Cash, since Kissinger gets a lot of it from corporations who hire his firm, Henry Kissinger and Associates, as consultants. The firm's role, we are given to understand, is to offer advice and also to open doors. These doors are a lot easier for Kissinger to open if he happens to know government leaders or if he refrains, as is the case with China, from calling them a collection of murderous thugs.

China — yet another "C" word — is a case in point. Kissinger has frequently commented on events there and recently devoted his newspaper column to the economic sanctions Congress imposed on the Beijing regime. He condemned the sanctions, characterizing the Tiananmen Square massacre as purely a domestic matter. Sure the regime's "brutality was shocking," Kissinger wrote, but, "No government in the world would have tolerated having the main square of its capital occupied for eight weeks by tens of thousands of demonstrators." By "no government" Kissinger is presumably including Britain, the United States, Sweden and, even Lichtenstein — a preposterous statement, but one that makes us grateful that

Richard Cohen

Richard Nixon, not Kissinger, was President during the student demonstrations of the 1970s.

This sort of amorality, what Kissinger fans call pragmatism, is nothing new for Kissinger, especially where China is concerned. As President Nixon's national-security adviser, he helped design the so-called "tilt" towards Pakistan during its war with India. He did so not because Pakistan was in the right (it wasn't), but because it was being instrumental in arranging Nixon's 1972 trip to China. Kissinger has always been a little soft on China.

So Kissinger's recent foreign-policy pronouncements are hardly inconsistent with his long-held views. But those views seem dated. The so-called China card could only be played against the Soviet Union. But Russia has folded its cards and pretty much left the table. To insist that China retains its old importance vis-a-vis the Soviet Union ("China remains too important for America's national security," Kissinger wrote) is charmingly loyal, if not nostalgic, but hardly makes a lot of sense anymore.

But is there another reason? Frankly, I don't know. Kissinger and Associates could teach the KGB a thing or two about secrecy. When I called to ask if Kissinger had clients who do business in China or were attempting to, I was told that such information is not public. When I asked if Kissinger had been to China in the last year, I was told...you guessed it: Put my requests in writing, and — maybe — someone would get back to me.

So, okay. Here's my request — in writing. Does Henry Kissinger have a conflict of interest? Rather than being amoral (okay, pragmatic) is he, instead, defending the status quo — the people and governments he knows? These questions are important because Kissinger's is the most authoritative non-governmental voice on foreign policy. When Kissinger talks, everyone — including the White House — listens.

And does he talk. A recent survey showed that Kissinger (along with his one-time deputy, Alexander Haig) appeared on "Nightline" more often than anyone else. On neither that show nor any other (NBC's "Today," for instance) do I recall him being asked if he had business dealings with any of the governments being discussed.

But why not? After all, Kissinger makes enormous amounts of money as a consultant. We can glean how much just from the $900,000 pay package (including severance) disclosed by Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger, who left the Kissinger firm to join the State Department. We can only assume Kissinger made more — a lot more.

For the last several months, Washington has been in an ethics frenzy. Not even the press has been exempted and journalists have been asked where they get their money — speaking fees, for example. Why Kissinger, the newspaper columnist, or Kissinger, the talk-show guest, should be exempted from such scrutiny is beyond me. So let's ask the "C" question about China: Is Kissinger's position on U.S.-China policy based on a disinterested analysis of the facts or on a financial interest in the outcome? We await the rumbling reply.

Bakker Trial Has Its Show Outside

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Outside the federal courthouse where a jury is judging Jim Bakker, many of those gathered have made up their minds about the fallen minister's guilt or innocence.
 And two imposters arrived in a heavy blue Cadillac limousine that had once been the real Bakkers'.
 The people behind the Jim and Tammy masks — Jeff and Lucille Thompson of Charlotte — timed their stop for the best media exposure. Nearly 100 journalists and 50 spectators had swarmed the courthouse, starting at 5 a.m.
 Elsewhere on the sidewalks, a woman who said she was "Mary Lee Pink from Topsy, Tenn.," hawked "The Bible Belt," a piece of black seat-belt webbing decorated with a miniature Bible for $17.99. Jerry Lowrance of Gastonia tried to sell $5 copies of "The PTL Song," a 1986 spoof of the Bakkers' PTL ministry.
 Meanwhile, some protested against Jim Bakker.
 Jimmy Swaggart, Jim Bakker, Oral Roberts, Leroy Jenkins and All Hypocrites Do More Damage to the Real Cause of Christ Than Anything Else," said a sign carried by David Hallman of Columbia, S.C.
 Bob Eckhardt, also of Columbia, held a sign saying, "Christians Don't Use Lawyers. God Almighty Fights Our Battles."

 More than 50 members of the news media, some arriving as early as 5 a.m., scribbled their names on a list for 35 media seats in the courtroom. Some reporters who failed to make that list joined the ranks of would-be spectators jockeying for position behind police lines for the 19 seats held for the public.
 Bakker, who resigned from PTL in 1987 after revelations about his sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn and a $265,000 payoff to buy her silence, is accused of using money raised through the television ministry for his own opulent lifestyle. If convicted of all 28 counts of fraud and conspiracy, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million.

Eckhardt said he and Hallman have been picketing Bakker for years and represent no denomination other than "God's church."
 "We picketed Jim Bakker even before he fell, even before Jessica Hahn," Eckhardt said. "We just want people to know God isn't playing games. Anybody who reads the Bible knew that (PTL) wasn't right."

Harrier Crash

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Two Marine Corps pilots ejected safely from their twin-seat Harrier jet before the aircraft crashed into the Neuse River, authorities say.
 The TAV-8B Harrier II aircraft crashed into the Neuse River near the Cherry Point Marine Station's officer's club about 6 p.m. Monday evening, according to Gunnery Sgt. Jim Gladkowski of the Cherry Point Public Affairs Office.
 The pilots were flying the trainer aircraft during a training mission when the accident occurred, Gladkowski said. Michael K. Butters, 29, of Springfield, Va., was the pilot in command and the instructor on the flight, and Capt. John R. Running, 33, of Portland, Ore., was the instructor in training.
 Both men were taken to the Cherry Point Naval Hospital for observation.
 The aircraft, which was based at Cherry Point, crashed into the river, Gladkowski said. The condition of the Harrier was not known. He said the U.S. Coast Guard was called to the scene shortly after the crash.

to swim a narrow section of Causey Reservoir, authorities said.
 Senior Airman Sandor L. Kaszas, 21, no hometown available, was swimming with friends Sunday in an 80-yard-wide section of the rugged canyon reservoir east of here, said Weber County Sheriff's Capt. Wes Goldsberry.
 Two friends made it to the eastern shore, and one climbed up a cliff and watched as Kaszas slipped beneath the surface, he said.
 Like his friends, Kaszas was stationed at nearby Hill Air Force Base.

Layoffs

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Seventy-seven long-haul truck drivers for Holly Farms Foods Inc. — most of them from Wilkes County — have been notified that they will lose their jobs, a spokesman for the company said Monday.
 A. Gerald Lankford, a Holly Farms spokesman, said the move was part of a streamlining process started more than a year ago.
 Fifty-five drivers from Wilkes County will lose their jobs, Lankford said. Sixteen drivers at the company's Monroe plant and six in Virginia are also being laid off, he said.
 The employees were notified Friday through letters and have been given a 60-day notice in accordance with federal law, Lankford said.

Fatal Weapon

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Japanese fighting sword is believed to be the weapon that killed Brenda L. Salomon on Aug. 18 near Knox Trailer Park at Camp Lejeune, according to base spokesmen.
 Lance Cpl. Curtis Allen Gibbs, 26, of Headquarters Company, 2nd Marine Regiment, 2nd Marine Division was taken into custody on Friday and is being held for questioning in the Lejeune brig, said personnel at the base Joint Public Affairs Office.
 Agents of the Naval Investigative Service recovered the sword in Gibbs' vehicle, said base spokesmen.
 The NIS is continuing the investigation.

Foiled Plot

EDEN, N.C. (AP) — An Eden woman and an apparent boyfriend have been charged with paying $1,000 to have the woman's husband killed, officials said.
 Melinda Dunn Pierce, 32, and Daniel E. "Sonny" Pittman, 41, also of Eden, are charged with ordering the death of Mrs. Pierce's husband, Barry Pierce, officials said.
 The plan misfired when the unidentified hit man shunned the shotgun death order allegedly given him and informed the police on Aug. 20 that he was supposed to kill Pierce that night, officials said.
 Bail has been set at $250,000 each, and a probable cause hearing on the charges of solicitation to commit murder and conspiracy to commit murder was scheduled for today in Rockingham County District Court.

Report Calls For Prison Alternatives

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 RALEIGH — Citing North Carolina's crowded prisons, a research group says state officials should create alternatives to jailing some convicts.
 "We need to look at who is going to prison and why, and see if there is a more appropriate and cheaper punishment for some of these inmates," said Mike McLaughlin who authored the report for the Center for Public Policy Research.
 Prison construction cannot keep up with the demand for prison space driven up by tougher sentences and more effective law enforcement, the report said.
 "We cannot build fast enough to escape this state prison and county jail crowding crisis," said McLaughlin, in the latest edition of North Carolina Insight magazine.
 A federal court had threatened to take over the state's prison system due to crowding and that threat led lawmakers to pour $800 million into improving prison conditions.
 The center, an independent, non-partisan, nonprofit corporation created to examine state government policies and practices, recommends that the state create a special commission to decide what types of criminals belong in prison.

 The proposed Correction and Sentencing Policy Commission would include all three branches of state government. The panel would develop profiles of which criminals should be imprisoned, decide when alternatives to incarceration should be mandated and file prison impact statements for legislation that changes sentencing or mandates prison terms for any crime.
 Since 1987, the state has relied on emergency parole procedures to cap the prison population at 18,000 inmates. But using American Correctional Association standards of 50 square feet per inmate, the prison system's current capacity is only 15,701 inmates, the center reported. It will take until 1994 just to build to that standard for the 49 prison units covered in a recently settled lawsuit over the conditions.
 Prison crowding isn't the only problem confronting the state's criminal justice system. County officials say jails, which mainly house pre-trial detainees and some misdemeanants, are often just as full.

 The N.C. Center's analysis of jail population records indicates of the 97 county jails across North Carolina, 25 were filled beyond capacity at least one day out of every month in 1988. A similar analysis in 1986 found only 15 jails in that category.
 David Jones, director of the crime commission's Criminal Justice Analysis Center, said pre-trial detainees are staying in jail longer and more drunken driving offenders are being sentenced to jail as a result of the 1983 Safe Roads Act. The state also has reduced the number of inmates that may be transferred to state prisons.
 "Basically, it's just a situation where the prisons are overcrowded and it backs up down the line," Jones said.

 Cost alone encourages using more alternatives to incarceration. For example, for each convicted inmate on probation, the state spends about $1.29 a day. Intensive probation, which may be more appropriate for otherwise prison-bound inmates, costs $6.54 a day. But housing an inmate in a minimum-security prison costs $31 a day or $11,300 a year, with maximum security carrying a $94,000 price tag for each bed.
 Sen. Fountain Odom, D-Mecklenburg, said the public may not support community-based alternatives to prison. He said even his Presbyterian Sunday school class is saying, "Build more prisons and I don't care what the cost is."
 But some studies indicate the public is receptive to punishment options that do not include traditional imprisonment, the center reported.

Public Opposes Lighthouse Move

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A National Park Service plan to move the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is not favored by the majority of people who responded to the idea, officials said. The lighthouse, a landmark spiral-striped structure on the Outer Banks at Buxton, is threatened by erosion that has brought waves to within 160 feet of the base. When it was built in 1870, the ocean was about 1,500 feet away.

The park service's preferred plan calls for the 208-foot tall structure to be slowly moved on special tracks about 2,500 feet in a southwesterly direction where it eventually would be 1,600 feet from the ocean. The plan, which would cost $8.8 million and take about two years, had been recommended by the National Academy of Sciences.

The park service took public comments on the plan and most of them were opposed. The agency received 116 responses from throughout North Carolina and other states as far away as Texas and California, an official said.

Of the 116 written responses, 43 favored moving the lighthouse, 67 wanted to see it saved in place and six did not express a preference. A breakdown on the preferred method of protecting the lighthouse in place was not available.

National Park Service officials are scheduled to decide in October what action they will take.

In addition, a Hatteras Island businessman had submitted petitions with 4,516 signatures in opposition to relocation, said Robert Woody, a spokesman for the Cape Hatteras National Seashore in Manteo.

James M. Howard Jr., a spokesman for the park service's regional office in Atlanta, said Monday that the regional director would review the public comments along with technical information before making a decision in early October. Referring to the responses, he said the decision would not be based on a popular vote but park service officials would not ignore public opinion.

If benefits from different projects were close, he said, public opinion might sway the final decision one way or the other.

There were two alternatives for protecting the lighthouse without moving it. One option — which the park service had endorsed in 1986 — is a seawall and revetment that would encircle the base of the lighthouse with concrete and stone. The $9.4 million project, which would take 19 to 20 months, eventually would create an island as the surrounding shoreline eroded.

The third alternative calls for improving existing groins or a series of pilings in the ocean near the lighthouse, building two new groins, adding a revetment made from six 12-foot concrete slabs and pumping sand on the beach. Construction would take less than a year and cost about $9.7 million.

Attorneys Face Ethical Charges

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Five eastern North Carolina attorneys, including a former Superior Court judge, have been accused of violating their profession's ethics code in complaints filed recently with a disciplinary panel of the State Bar.

The complaints, filed by the bar's Grievance Committee, named:

— Arthur Lee Lane of Fayetteville, a special Superior Court judge from 1979 to 1984, relating to his handling of a suit he filed in 1987 for a client against a finance company. Lane is accused of failing to request a jury trial, to prepare for the trial and to collect a judgment won by his client.

In a telephone interview, Lane denied committing any ethics violations.

— Cabell J. Regan of Lumberton in connection with his representation of a client whose house Regan bought in 1988. The complaint alleges that Regan's own interests in buying the house were adverse to the interests of his client, Jaye Leo Gavin.

According to the complaint, Regan paid $5,000 for the house, which was worth twice that amount, after telling Gavin he couldn't find any other purchasers. The complaint also alleges that Regan made false statements to the bar regarding his efforts to find a buyer.

— Ray C. Blackburn Jr. of Hampstead, who is accused of failing to follow through on a client's appeal. The complaint said that he entered a notice of appeal on behalf of a man who was convicted in 1988 of first-degree burglary but then never carried out the appeal and failed to communicate adequately with his client.

— Guy Benjamin Eubanks of Beaufort, who allegedly back dated a will in 1985 for a man who had been declared incompetent to handle his own affairs. The complaint accuses Eubanks of changing the date on the will to a time before the man was declared incompetent.

The complaint further accuses Eubanks of failing to file state income tax returns for 1982, 1983 and 1984. He pleaded no contest in Carteret District Court to failing to file for 1984 and received a suspended sentence, the complaint says.

— Clara D. King of Dunn, accused of preparing a codicil to her father's will despite having doubts about his mental capacity. The complaint alleges that Ms. King's father was seriously ill when she prepared the codicil in 1983 and that she took his hand and placed a pen in it, and an "X" was made for his mark on the document.

Messrs. Regan, Blackburn and Eubanks and Ms. King could not be reached for comment.

The complaints are pending before the Disciplinary Hearing Commission, which meets in three-member panels to hold hearings and decide whether to impose discipline.

In a recent decision, the commission publicly censured a Sanford lawyer, Richard B. Hager, for misconduct in his handling of a client's estate. The commission found that he had mortgaged the estate's assets and had paid his firm's legal fees without first getting court permission.

The commission said it was "very concerned" to learn that it was common practice for lawyers in North Carolina to pay estate assets to themselves without court approval or the consent of heirs.

"Such conduct amounts to a clear conflict of interest and any such payments are illegal fees," the commission concluded.

Swindall and wife talk to reporters after his sentencing

Swindall Appeals For New Hearing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Former Rep. Pat Swindall hit the airwaves a few hours after he was sentenced to a year in prison and tried to convince skeptical listeners he deserves a new trial to reverse his perjury conviction.

Swindall, accompanied by his pregnant wife Kim, appeared Monday on two television news shows and two radio programs, including a 2½-hour appearance on a radio call-in show. More appearances were planned this afternoon.

"This is not about my political career," the 38-year-old conservative Republican said following his sentencing in federal court. "This is not about whether I should be in Congress."

"You don't stand by and let the Constitution of the United States be trashed," he said. "That's why I'm doing it."

"This man violated federal law," said U.S. Attorney Robert Barr. "He will do time in jail for his misdeeds."

U.S. District Judge Richard C. Freeman sentenced Swindall to 12 months in prison on each of nine counts of perjury, with the terms to run concurrently. Freeman also fined Swindall $30,000, plus $450 in court costs.

Swindall was convicted June 20 of lying to a federal grand jury last year about negotiations for an $850,000 loan from a federal agent posing as a money launderer.

The loan, to help finance Swindall's $1.5 million home in suburban Stone Mountain, did not go through.

Swindall, who will remain free while pursuing an appeal, said the judge's decision to grant him an appeal bond was an indication he would win a new trial.

"All I ask is a fair opportunity to present my case in a fair court," he said.

Barr, who had sought a sentence of more than three years in prison, said the government may appeal to obtain a tougher penalty.

Freeman said the government's sentencing recommendation was unjustified because prosecutors had not proved Swindall was personally involved in laundering money.

In his public appearances, Swindall was alternately righteous and glib about his situation.

He told one caller that he was fooled by federal agents posing as drug-money launderers because "I'm not used to dealing with criminals. I may have to get used to it soon."

Some callers supported Swindall's claims that he was the victim of an unfair trial and an overzealous prosecutor, but many others castigated him for refusing to admit his guilt as decided by the jury.

Bush Holds Talks On Drug Campaign

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush, on a business break from his vacation, meets today with his drug czar and top Cabinet officers to put the final touches on his anti-drug battle plan.

Among the participants summoned for today's strategy session at Bush's oceanfront retreat were drug czar William J. Bennett, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, CIA Director William Webster and Lawrence Eagleburger, acting as secretary of state while James A. Baker III is on vacation.

Bush will unveil the drug strategy Tuesday in a nighttime televised address to the nation, his first as president.

White House officials have said the plan will cost about $8 billion — $2 billion above current levels — and will try to cut off drugs at the source, stiffen penalties for users and expand treatment for addicts.

Drafts of the speech are being circulated for comment within the administration.

Meanwhile, in Washington on Monday, Colombian justice minister Monica de Greiff and Thornburgh discussed extradition of about 80 Colombian drug traffickers wanted in the United States and tighter security for judges in her nation.

Ms. de Greiff and Thornburgh also discussed training and equipping Colombian police and armed forces for the war against the Medellin cocaine cartel, the Justice Department said.

Colombian President Virgilio Barco, in Bogota, put to rest rumors that Ms. de Greiff had decided to resign in the face of death threats from drug cartel leaders worried about possible extradition to the United States.

The drug traffickers have threatened to kill 10 judges for every trafficker sent to the United States to face trial.

The White House on Friday announced a $65 million military aid program to Colombia, while the Justice Department is providing $2 million to help protect Colombian judges.

Lawsuits Force Schools To Curb Some Activities

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Fear of lawsuits is prompting many educators to cancel or curtail field trips, physical education, cheerleading and other favored school activities, a group backing revised liability laws said today.

Those who don't are paying the price — in the form of higher insurance payments.

The results of two surveys "illustrate just how much America's litigiousness and risk-aversion has diminished the quality of life for all our students," said Martin F. Connor, president of the American Tort Reform Association.

The school programs affected most often were class trips, shop classes and physical education, said the group's staff counsel, Ivan Gluckman. Others include laboratory science programs, such as chemistry, and use of school playgrounds.

Athletic activities also were frequently mentioned as targets of curtailed activity, particularly gymnastics, football and cheerleading.

The association surveyed attorneys and school principals on how the threat of lawsuits has affected school programs.

The 190 principals who responded, all members of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said that while only 16 class-related programs were canceled, about half of more than 240 activities were modified because lawsuits were either threatened or filed, said Gluckman.

Fifty-eight percent of the responding principals said there was a noted difference in the kinds of school programs being offered because of the threat of lawsuits and high insurance costs, Gluckman said.

They survey showed 51 extracurricular programs were canceled and 301 modified.

"Over the past few years — and the 1989-90 school year will be no exception — students have returned to school in September only to find that some of their favorite activities have been canceled or modified because educators fear such activities might lead to costly lawsuits," said Connor.

Restrictions on athletics have included limits on heights of pyramids by cheerleaders, stopping the use of trampolines by gymnasts and halting diving competitions for swimmers, the association said.

Sixty-two percent of the attorneys representing school boards that are members of the National School Boards Association reported no changes in school activities. However, most indicated that schools are paying higher insurance premiums to continue offering the programs.

One in five attorneys said they had been involved in lawsuits or out-of-court settlements that affected school-related programs.

Glickman said use of non-faculty volunteers has been affected because of questions about whether they are covered by school insurance, with 13 percent of school attorneys saying the use of volunteers has been stopped or restricted. Parent volunteers typically help with math and reading labs, science programs and social activities.

About 190 members of the principals' association and about 290 members of the Council of School Attorneys completed the survey, conducted in December.

The American Tort Reform Association is a Washington-based organization that advocates revising the system of liability lawsuits.

Congressman Asks For Ethics Probe

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., is asking the House ethics committee to investigate his former relationship with a male prostitute.

"Questions have been raised about my employment of a personal assistant during a period between 1985 to 1987," Frank wrote in a letter to the chairman of the ethics committee. "I have publicly responded to these questions, and I have expressed regret for the mistaken judgment involved."

"In order to ensure that the public record is clear, I hereby request that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct conduct an investigation into these matters," Frank said in Monday's letter to committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif.

House rules require that a member act "at all times in a manner which shall reflect creditably on the House." The ethics committee already is looking into cases involving three other members accused of sexual improprieties.

Frank pledged to cooperate fully with investigators and asked that the probe be conducted quickly.

The liberal Democrat acknowledged Friday that he had paid for sex with a male prostitute, then hired the man, Steve Gobie, to do household chores and run errands.

Saying he was "victimized," Frank said he fired Gobie two years ago when he became suspicious that Gobie was selling sex from Frank's Capitol Hill apartment.

Gobie alleges Frank knew about the prostitution ring at his apartment. Frank denies that.

Meanwhile, George Washington University law professor John Banzhaf said he asked U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens of the District of Columbia to investigate other charges related to prostitution, including running a bawdy house and soliciting for prostitution.

CP&L Lays Off 500

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Carolina Power & Light Co. said Monday it was laying off 500 employees and that 220 other workers will be given the option of transferring to other jobs or being laid off.

The utility announced the layoffs Monday, following an internal staffing study that took almost a year to complete. The 500 employees were laid off from jobs eliminated throughout the utility.

The jobs of additional 1,000 employees who work under contract also will be eliminated.

CP&L said the layoffs were necessary to cut the workforce and would save an estimated $70 million, possibly forestalling rate hikes in the immediate future.

The announcement ended a period of anxiety for employees, who had been awaiting results from the company study.

"I was so relieved because the stress factor in that building since January has been so great," said Jacqueline S. Stewart, one of 500 employees laid off by the electric utility.

Asked what she would do next, she said: "Cleanse my soul, cleanse my heart, and by all means, cleanse my mind of CP&L."

"I don't know whether I was surprised or not," said W. Anthony Simpson, who had been paid about $30,000 a year as a training-program developer in the utility's transmission department. "I'm going to take the month of September off and do nothing."

Simpson, a four-year CP&L veteran, added that the utility had prepared for the job cuts by providing cardboard boxes for laid-off workers to carry home their personal belongings.

Alaska Has Trouble Keeping Up With Glasnost

By Dean Fosdick
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The thaw of glasnost has led to so many trade, cultural and scientific agreements between Alaska and the Soviet Union that Gov. Steve Cowper is scrambling to keep up with them.

The governor issued a statement recently asking that initiatives across the Bering Strait be coordinated through his office.

"The main purpose was that a lot of people were coming out of the woodwork purporting to be representatives of Alaska or the Soviet Union," said David Ramseur, Cowper's press secretary. "Things are happening so fast that we wanted to get a handle on it."

Cowper on Wednesday is to lead an Alaska delegation on a 10-day, 6,700-mile "trade and friendship mission" to the Soviet Far East, moving from Big Diomedes Island in the Bering Strait to Khabarovsk on the Sino-Soviet border.

"We can't sign treaties or agreements that bind nations," Cowper said. "What we can do is enter into preliminary negotiations, sort out the details at our level, then hand them to the representatives of the respective federal governments for a ready-made treaty.

"There's a variety of activities that are either in place or being considered," he said. "We have to speak realistically with the Soviets about some of the trade agreements that have been proposed, but probably the most important message from us is our long-term commitment to this relationship."

At the December 1987 summit meeting in Iceland, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and former President Reagan issued a statement encouraging expanded contacts and cooperation on issues relating to the Arctic.

Many new ties have been forged since then, including the following:

— A "Friendship Flight" from Nome to Provideniya in June 1988 reunited Eskimos from both nations separated since the political "Ice Curtain" fell in 1948. Bering Air, a small commuter airline, began charter service between the two cities one year later.

— The Soviet icebreaker Admiral Makharov helped rescue California gray whales trapped in ice off Barrow in October 1988, and the Soviet skimmer ship Vaidogubsky helped mop up after the nation's worst oil spill hit Prince William Sound in March.

— An expedition used skis and sled dogs to make a 1,200-mile from Anadyr to Nome earlier this year to promote Alaska-Soviet relations.

And there are more agreements in the works.

A pact opening the Alaska-Soviet border to visa-free travel by Eskimos with relatives in both countries is to be signed in September.

Negotiations are under way that could lead to the Soviet Union and the U.S. placing sanctions on any vessels taking fish native to either country beyond exclusive economic zones.

Both nations also are working on a regional agreement to establish joint maritime search and rescue missions using Alaska National Guard Scouts and members of the Soviet Border Patrol.

"Because of our geographical location and our history in Alaska, we were in a much better position than other states to press for agreements relating to the Soviet Far East," Cowper said. "As a result, we're recognized now as being in the forefront of efforts leading to friendship between the two nations."

Not all the exchanges have been government-to-government.

Lynne Cox tried to warm relations between the two countries in July 1987 when she swam the frigid 2½-mile strait separating Little Diomedes Island in Alaska and Big Diomedes Island in the U.S.S.R.

Tom Busch, general manager of radio station KNOM in Nome, spent the Fourth of July in Provideniya with a pack of Cub Scouts. He said the three-day trip was "a life-changing experience."

"We went at the invitation of the Young Pioneers, sort of the Soviet equivalent of the scouts," he said. "We stayed with their families in their flats. I soon realized that something we weren't expecting was happening. The mother in that household told me 'Steve is my son.' I could see how attached she'd grown to my 10-year-old."

"I told her — and I felt this — that her Laurissa is my daughter," he said.

Columnist Joseph Alsop Dies At 78

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Joseph W. Alsop Jr., a journalistic legend and one of the nation's most influential and widely read political columnists of the post-World War II and Vietnam eras, died of cancer and emphysema Monday at his home in Washington. He was 78.

Alsop, whose Washington-based column was syndicated in more than 250 newspapers, was known for his strongly held opinions on a variety of issues and his conviction that the pre-eminence of America's armed forces around the world was essential to the nation's freedom and security and the survival of western civilization.

He was a passionate anti-communist and one of the staunchest and most vocal supporters of an aggressive military policy in Vietnam during the 1960s, a period in which he was sometimes called the capital's leading "superhawk." Long after the fall of Saigon in April 1975, Alsop insisted it was a war "we could have won and should have won."

During the Cold War era of the 1950s his columns had warned repeatedly that the United States was losing its military superiority to the Soviet Union and that dire consequences would surely follow. He clashed vigorously and often with Sen Joseph R. McCarthy over the Wisconsin Republican's Red-baiting tactics in the early 1950s.

He was a versatile writer and a scholar of wide-ranging interests, and his columns often contained references to classical literature, mythology and the Bible. Time magazine said he was probably the only western newsman to have read "The Analects of Confucius" in classical Chinese, a language he learned while being held prisoner by the Japanese during World War II.

Politics and diplomacy were Alsop's meat and potatoes, but he also wrote books about the history of art collecting, the Greek Bronze Age and the low carbohydrate diet. He was a collector and connoisseur of fine art, and in 1978 he delivered the Andrew W. Mellon lectures in the fine arts at the National Gallery of Art.

Helicopter Carrying Wounded Fugitive Crashes, Kills Four

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPOKANE, Wash. — A wounded fugitive, strapped to a stretcher, tussled with the crew of a helicopter and may have caused a wreck that killed all four aboard, according to a man who heard the pilot's final radio transmissions.

The bodies of Canadian fugitive Robert L. Adams, 25, and three helicopter crew members were found by searchers Monday in northern Idaho on Larch Mountain, 25 miles northeast of Spokane.

The crew — the pilot, a registered nurse and a respiratory therapist — reported that Adams was scuffling with them before the Aerospaciale Astar from Sacred Heart Medical Center in Spokane crashed around 10 p.m. Sunday, according to Bob Zinkgraf, who was listening to a scanner at his Colbert, Wash., home 15 miles north of Spokane.

He said the crew "reported they were having problems with the suspect."

"A couple of minutes later, they reported they were in a scuffle with the suspect. Then we heard the hospital trying to get in touch with them. They reported they lost contact with the helicopter," Zinkgraf said.

A medical center spokesman, Marilyn Thordarson, said the last report at 9:56 p.m. made no mention of any difficulty, and that only static and background noises were heard afterwards. The Federal Aviation Administration was not monitoring the radio transmissions.

Sheriff's Detective John Valdez said the pilot was frantic in his last radio transmission.

"He said something like, 'We have a problem. We are going down,'" Valdez said.

Asked what caused the crash, Bonner County Sheriff Chip Roos said, "It really could have been anything. All we know is that whatever happened must have caught the pilot by surprise. He went straight down from a high altitude." At the crash site, Adams' body was found strapped to a gurney, Idaho State Police Cpl. Brian Zimmerman told the Spokesman-Review of Spokane. When he was put on the helicopter, both of his arms were handcuffed, Zimmerman said.

Roos said it was unclear whether Adams was still handcuffed at the time of the crash.

Shuttle Positioned For October Launch

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space shuttle Atlantis was moved to the launch pad today to be readied for an October flight to dispatch the Galileo spacecraft to the planet Jupiter.

A giant tracked transporter was positioning the 97-ton shuttle at Launch Pad 39B shortly after 8 a.m. following a snail's-pace 4-mile trip from an assembly building.

Once the vehicle is secure on the pad, workers will begin the long task of preparing it for liftoff on Oct. 12, the first day of a 43-day launch period in which Jupiter will be in position to receive a visitor from Earth in 1995, when Galileo is to arrive.

The five astronauts are to deploy Galileo about six hours after launch, starting it on a six-year outward journey during which it is to fly by Venus, pass Earth twice and make the first close approach to an asteroid. The circuitous 2.4-million-mile route was chosen so Galileo can use the gravitational pull of Venus and Earth to accelerate it slingshot-fashion toward Jupiter.

Galileo is to parachute a probe into Jupiter's atmosphere and then spend about two years orbiting the planet, photographing it and studying it with scientific instruments.

To power it through its long journey, Galileo will carry two 122-pound radioisotope thermoelectric generators, each containing 24 pounds of highly toxic plutonium-238 dioxide.

Anti-nuclear groups have protested that the nuclear material could pose a health hazard if it were released during a shuttle accident. NASA has responded that the generators have been tested to survive the most explosive type of shuttle failure.

Shooting Of Black Sets Off Violence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VINELAND, N.J. — About 200 people smashed windows, looted stores and battled in the streets early today after a protest over the shooting death of a young black man by police.

More than 30 people were arrested and at least one person was hospitalized, police said.

About 100 state and local police officers in riot gear battled to regain control of the streets after about 40 buildings were damaged along about a one-mile stretch of a downtown street.

Order was restored about 4 a.m., police said. The trouble began around 11 p.m. Monday.

"Things are out of hand," Vineland police Lt. Ed Zatzaryny said earlier. "They're going crazy to retaliate for the shooting."

The disturbance was preceded by a march on the police station by about 100 demonstrators who chanted "We want justice."

Zatzaryny said that crowd dispersed, but a few hours later separate groups of blacks and Hispanics began forming in various parts of the city and converged on Landis Avenue, the main drag of the mostly white downtown section of Vineland, a city of about 54,000 about 35 miles south of Philadelphia.

The group, estimated by Zatzaryny at 200, began throwing rocks and bottles at cars and storefront windows.

"There was extensive damage to stores," the lieutenant said. "Windows were knocked out of a few police cars and a lot of civilian cars were smashed up pretty good."

Gary Vasell, a manager of a Seven-Eleven convenience store on Landis Avenue, said he barely escaped injury.

"I was looking through the window and all of a sudden bricks came flying through," Vasell said. "I started to run out the door and then more bricks came flying through so I just backed up and called the cops. I thought maybe somebody was going to start firing shots. I thought I was going to die."

Smaller groups took to sidestreets and caused more damage, Zatzaryny said.

Several residents in the area scuffled with vandals and some members of the packs fought with each other, he said.

The victim of the shooting, Samuel Williams, 26, was killed Sunday by a white police officer, Paul Letizia, after Williams reportedly threatened Letizia with a steel rod, police Chief Joseph P. Cassisi said.

Officers spotted Williams on Sunday after receiving an anonymous call about a man on a bicycle carrying drugs, Cassisi said. Williams had pending arrest warrants on drug and weapon charges, he said.

Williams allegedly threw two rocks at Letizia when the officer told him he was under arrest, Cassisi said. He then picked up the rod and started toward the officer, swinging, Cassisi said.

Adolescent Parents Need A Variety Of Support

By Dr. Vickie Causby

For the past two decades, adolescent pregnancy and parenthood have been major social concerns. One out of every five births in the United States is to a teenage mother. Girls between the ages of 15 and 19 account for half a million births each year.

North Carolina statistics indicate that 18 percent of the mothers giving birth last year were less than 20 years old. In eastern N.C. there are approximately 430 adolescents who will become pregnant this year.

The consequences of adolescent childbearing have been well documented. Pregnancy is the most common reason given for young women failing to complete high school. The consequences of lower educational attainment include less prestigious jobs which pay poorly and provide little job satisfaction. As a result, adolescent mothers are disproportionately likely to depend on public assistance for support. The "feminization of poverty" easily includes adolescent mothers and their children. Although we have less information regarding the impact of adolescent parenting on the father of the child, there are strong indications that his emotional and economic well being are affected.

Some teenage parents do overcome the handicaps imposed by adolescents childbearing. They complete their education, get decent jobs, and avoid welfare dependency. Adolescent mothers can provide nurturing and loving care to their children.

So the question is asked, "what makes the difference between teen parents who are successful in their transition from adolescence to parenthood and those who are unsuccessful?" One of the answers is support. This support needs to come from families, boyfriends, grandparents and peers. Other supports may come from the community such as the health department, social services and the public school system.

The types of support adolescent parents, in particular adolescent mothers need include social, emotional and economic support. Child care services allow teen moms to go back to school and remain there until graduation. Financial support may include buying diapers for the baby or helping out with medical cost for both the mother and the child. Family members or friends may be that special someone that the adolescent talks to about school problems, career plans, or child care issues. Adolescent mothers need encouragement and praise to help them cope with the stress of being a parent. Transportation is an important support. It can help ensure utilization of medical care and other community services along with regular school attendance.

A recent study in Pitt County revealed that adolescent mothers in the local school system do feel they receive quality support from their families and the fathers of the babies. The teens interviewed said that their families offer emotional and financial support. Both maternal and paternal grandparents often baby sit while the teen parents have some free time with friends. Many of the adolescent mothers reported that the adolescent fathers visit their babies often and provide as much financial support as they can afford. None of the mothers interviewed in Pitt County were married and the majority lived at home with their parents or with a relative.

There are also public supports available to adolescent mothers and their babies. Aid to Families with Dependent Children provides minimum financial support and Medicaid helps with the medical cost for many of the mothers and children. Although the health department is also available for medical care, an underutilization of this support was reported by some teen mothers. Lack of transportation and long waiting periods in the clinic were cited as reasons for not using this support.

Although adolescent parents are receiving support, many needs continue to go unmet. When asked what kind of support they needed the most but were not receiving, the adolescent mothers said day care was one of their primary concerns. The lack of adequate day care makes it very hard for teen mothers to stay in school. Day care is available in only one of the schools in our county. Space is very limited and transportation is a major problem. Adolescent mothers are not allowed to bring their children on the school bus even if car seats are provided.

Another concern expressed by the teen mothers was the lack of flexibility in the school absenteeism policies. In N.C. every student is allowed 30 excused or unexcused absences. If a student's absenteeism rate is higher than this allotted number, she or he will not pass that academic year, no matter how high their grades might be. Adolescent mothers are often out of school while recovering from pregnancy and birth. Other absences may be due to having a sick child, a doctor's appointment or lack of day care.

The transition into early parenthood is not easy. Many families of adolescent parents are providing much needed support. However, some families do not have the resources to assist the young mother and her child. An increase in public support and flexibility with current policies is necessary. With support we can prevent young mothers and their children from being victims of isolation and poverty.

If you would like more information about how you can be supportive of an adolescent mother and her child, contact Cynthia Doctor, coordinator of the Adolescent Health Model at 758-0817.

Dr. Causby is an assistant professor in the East Carolina University School of Social Work and has served as a consultant of the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic.

Country Mother Wants Guests

(Editor's note: Abby is off on a two-week vacation, but she left behind some of her favorite letters taken from her best-selling book, "The Best of Dear Abby.")

Dear Abby: I just read the letter from the 28-year-old mother of four who tacked a poster on her door with "rules" to keep visitors away.

Well, I'm a 38-year-old mother of six, and I'm amazed that anyone would want that much privacy. We're newcomers who live in the country, and I'm stuck out here with six kids, two dogs and three cats. I'm so hungry for company, I'm ready to go out on the road and flag down some strangers.

Please print my "poster" in the paper for all to read:

— You may smoke inside, outside, on the roof or anywhere you wish; just don't burn the house down.

— If you're hungry, help yourself to anything you can find. And if you can't find anything, ask one of the kids. They'll fix you a peanut butter and brown sugar sandwich.

— If you're here around mealtime, grab a chair and join us.

— If you want to stay overnight, bring a sleeping bag and we'll move some clutter from the corner to make room for you.

— Bring your kids. We have so many, a few more won't make any difference.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

— We can't lend you any money, but go ahead and ask anyway. It will make us feel good to know we appear that prosperous.

— Tell us your troubles and we'll tell you ours. One of our kids can play the violin for background music, and we can all cry together.

— If you can stand us, we can stand you, so drop in anytime and stay as long as you like. We're people who like people. — Midge In Watsonville, Calif.

Dear Midge: You sound like the kind of person I'd like to know. I'll bet you won't be hungry for company long.

Dear Abby: The wife who said her husband smelled because he seldom bathes reminds me of a story they tell about Samuel Johnson, the noted English lexicographer of the 1700s. Johnson was a "purist" where words were concerned, but when it came to his personal hygiene, he was a notorious slob.

A woman passenger sitting next to him on a coach train said, "Sir, you smell!" Whereupon Johnson replied: "Madam, you are wrong. You smell, I stink."

Universal Press Syndicate

Perhaps the husband who was accused of "smelling" would like to show this to his wife. — Seattle

Dear Abby: My husband's former wife, Velma, with whom we have remained on fairly good terms, invited us to her home for a party. She is now married to a very well-to-do man.

Velma told me it was going to be a costume party, so my husband and I dressed up like a couple of rabbits.

Imagine our surprise when the butler opened the door and ushered us into a room filled with men in tuxedos and women in stunning gowns! We felt like a couple of fools. Velma laughed and said she thought it was funny. I was very upset to have been made the butt of her joke, so I got myself a glass of punch and spilled it on her gown. Then I laughed and told her I thought it was funny. However, she didn't see anything funny about it.

My husband isn't speaking to me, and he thinks I owe Velma an apology. What should I do? — A Wife In Need

MRS. DAVIS

Wedding Vows Solemnized

BEAUFORT — Maria Susana Faulkner of Greenville and Harry Sheldon Davis Jr. of Beaufort were married Aug. 12 at 1 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Jack Franks conducted the double-ring ceremony which used Latin traditions. Music was presented by organist Nancy Harris, pianist Beverly Pasineau and soloist Anita Willis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Faulkner of Warsaw. Parents of the bridegroom are Carol Long of Morehead City and the late Harry S. Davis.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with sposabella lace. The fitted bodice had a high neckline with sheer illusion and lace inserts with puff sleeves trimmed with sequins and pearls. The full gathered skirt extended into an extended chapel-train with a shawdow panel beaded with appliques. She wore a rhinestone headpiece attached to an elbow-length bubbled pouf of illusion. She carried a silk bouquet of white roses with seed pearls.

Donna Lynne Faulkner of Greenville was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Claudia Hernandez of Kenansville, Andy Wood of Suffolk, Va., and Elizabeth Waters of Greensboro. They wore floor-length gowns of aqua crystal organza.

Clarivel Gonzalez was junior bridesmaid; Cathy Gonzalez served as flower girl and the miniature bride was Leslie Pichardo. All are from Kenansville.

The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Christopher Davis. Ushers were Grey Sabiston of Beaufort and Jose Hernandez and Gabriel Nader of Kenansville. Ashley Davis was ring bearer and Alan Hernandez of Kenansville was miniature bridegroom.

Wanted: New Season, Old Ideas

You could call this the summer of my discontent. I am sick to death of five-minute car chases on TV, tired of seeing bodies hurled through skyscraper windows, weary of the staccato blast of gunshots. If I never see another couple nibbling each other beneath the sheets like a leftover salad, I'll be happy.

I'm really bored with reality. I live it every day and see it replayed every night on the 6 o'clock news.

You know what I miss? I miss the old movies in which a couple is walking through the park (he in a tuxedo and top hat and she in a long, satin gown), and suddenly he starts singing and the sound of a 60-piece orchestra that isn't there comes out of the trees and they start to dance. I want to see Mickey and Judy stage a show to pay off someone's mortgage. I want to see horses and dogs smarter than people again.

Wouldn't it be great to go to a movie theater where an usher showed you to your seat? And if someone chewed a jumbo container of ice in your ear or carried on a conversation, he'd be shown the door? I wonder what it would be like to see a doctor on TV in a suit who didn't look like he had just come from a hockey game, or a couple end a date at the front door instead of the bedroom.

At Wits End

Call me crazy, but wouldn't it be nice if we saw a performer being interviewed on television because he made great music, not because he just got out of the Betty Ford Clinic?

I'm tired of seeing people eat fast foods on TV commercials like lizards, talking with their mouths open and dribbling down their chins. And while I'm on the subject, when are we going to say goodbye to a vocabulary that includes bloat, monthly periods, bladder control, gas, shrinking hemorrhoids, mucus, irregularity, diarrhea and feminine hygiene?

How I hunger for a world with some style, some elegance, some sense of decorum and courtesy. Wouldn't it be wonderful to see a book of verses on the best-seller list that didn't need the word "satanic" in the title? Or a concert out-of-doors where the police didn't outnumber the audience?

Deliver me from another show about private eyes. Doesn't anyone sell storm doors and windows for a living anymore? Spare me the social disease of the week. (I know in my heart we're going to see a docudrama on who gets custody of the frozen embryos, as if it's happening every five minutes in America.)

Every Sunday, I drag in front of the TV set in my bathrobe and quickly turn to the last few minutes of Charles Kuralt's "Sunday Morning" show. All voices are silent as I listen to the rustling of wind through the Everglades, birds patrolling the beach in North Carolina or the symphony of a stream in Jackson Hole, Wyo. For August, that's as close to reality as I want to get.

Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 34.00; Wallace 36.00; Spivey's Corner 36.00; Rowland 36.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 54 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The final weighted average is 51.53 cents. The market tone for next week's trading is mostly steady. The live supply is adequate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 2,237,000, compared to 2,191,000 last Tuesday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply fully adequate for a light demand. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 25 cents at farm buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 3 cents lower at 2.64-2.75 in East and mostly 2.64-2.72 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 2 cents lower at 5.94-6.14 in East and mostly 6.10-6.29 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 2 cents lower at 3.44-3.59; new crop corn 2.28-2.68; new crop soybeans 5.31-5.69; P.I.K. certificates steady to 1 percent higher and ranged from 100 to 104 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices dipped in early trading on Wall Street today after the government revised upward its estimate of economic growth in the second quarter.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 6.66 to 2,736.70 as of 10 a.m.

Declining issues were ahead of advances by a margin of about 5 to 4, with 368 stocks rising, 462 falling and 502 unchanged on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume after the first half-hour of trading came to 19.26 million shares.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of the economy's performance, grew by 2.7 percent from April through July, a significant change from the 1.7 percent growth rate originally reported last month. The news eased fears that the economy was slipping into a recession.

The report also contained good inflation news. A closely watched

GNP Jumps 2.7 Percent

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy expanded at an annual rate of 2.7 percent in the spring, significantly faster than previously believed, the government said today in a report that further dispelled recession fears.

The Commerce Department said the increase in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, was a full percentage point higher than its original estimate made a month ago.

The initial report had put GNP growth in the April-June quarter at an anemic 1.7 percent. That was the poorest performance in three years and had increased fears that the economy could be facing an imminent recession.

However, more recent government statistics have shown that economic activity in the second quarter was not as weak as previously believed, prompting economists to put away their gloomy forecasts of an impending downturn.

gauge tied to the GNP indicated inflation did not worsen during the second quarter despite the strength in the economy.

But on Wall Street, the news "was a non-event," said market analyst Michael Metz of Oppenheimer & Co.

Traders were pleased that the GNP figures indicated there was no real pressure on inflation or interest rates, but the report "happens at a moment when we've had a generous markup in stocks and we're due for a correction," Metz said.

However, he said, this report was not likely to spark a decline.

The most actively-traded issue on the NYSE in the early going was Ford Motor, which fell 1/2 to 52 1/2.

Among other blue chip issues, AT&T was unchanged at 40 1/2 and Exxon was down 1/4 to 43 1/2.

Woman's Lawsuit Is Blocking What Would Be Europe's Tallest Building

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Developers offered Hannelore Kraus $1.6 million to drop her lawsuit blocking the construction of what would be Europe's tallest skyscraper in her neighborhood in downtown Frankfurt.

She refused. It would ruin the neighborhood, Mrs. Kraus explained in her home about 200 feet from the building site overlooking one of Frankfurt's busiest and noisiest intersections.

Her one-woman campaign against the Campanile, as the skyscraper would be called, has made the 49-year-old Mrs. Kraus a local celebrity — and the bane of developers planning other skyscrapers in Frankfurt, a world financial center.

Mrs. Kraus has the right under Hesse state law to block the Campanile because it would cut her home off from sunlight, and the law specifies that every homeowner has a right to sunlight.

The developers have not said how many stories they plan in the building, but it will be 265 meters tall — or 869 feet, which would make it slightly less than three-quarters the height of the 102-story Empire State Building in New York City.

"The Campanile is just too big for this area," Mrs. Kraus said. "Then you have the whole array of problems that crop up, for example, traffic and burdens on the environment."

That, she added, isn't worth becoming an instant millionaire.

"I can't approve of this building by somehow personally taking myself out of controversy or by being paid off," she said in an interview in her apartment in the six-story building she owns near the main railroad station. Developers originally had hoped to start construction in March and say she is the sole cause of a costly delay.

Mrs. Kraus also runs a small pension nearby in her Gutleutviertel neighborhood.

While the ethnically mixed crossroads in the city's center often puts German speakers in the minority, Mrs. Kraus says the Campanile would destroy the "excellent neighborliness" in the area.

"Even my pension guests who are here for a short time notice that," says Mrs. Kraus. "They go down to the small restaurants nearby, to the Spaniard, or the Yugoslav or the Greek."

She says that during the annual summer street festival everyone in the area takes part, "even the Turkish grandmothers who before just looked out of the upper-story windows and didn't dare to come down."

Mrs. Kraus takes pride in defending the area where she has lived most of her life, and she chuckles as she recalls how a former city planner predicted money would persuade her to change her mind. Mrs. Kraus is unmarried but it is customary in Germany to refer to women in her age bracket as Frau, or Mrs. She also holds a doctorate in political science and that requires her foes to address her as "Frau Doktor Kraus" when they discuss the issue with her.

"These skyscrapers are a thing of the past," she said, because of what she called their excessive energy consumption.

Various developers are watching the outcome closely, because they plan to build a half-dozen or so skyscrapers in Frankfurt.

Critics claim the building boom is excessive in this city of about 600,000 people.

Developers say the total price tag for the Campanile project, including the land, runs to nearly $405 million.

Mrs. Kraus faced off with Valentin Weber of the Fay Industrie-und Wohnbau KG, representing the developers, on a recent television program.

"If we were making a movie," said host Guenther Jauch, "then you two would get married in the end, and everything would be settled that way."

Weber responded that he was already "happily married" and Mrs. Kraus observed that, alas, marriages aren't as simple as they used to be.

Obituary

Mayo

AURORA — Mrs. Eleanor Hollowell Mayo, 63, formerly of Route 1, Aurora, died Monday in the Pasadena Bayshore Hospital, Pasadena, Texas.

A graveside service will be conducted at 4 p.m. Wednesday at White Hill Free Will Baptist Church Cemetery, Route 1, Aurora, by the Rev. Robert Cayton.

She was a native of Beaufort. Surviving are a daughter, Faye Mayo Edwards of La Porte, Texas; one son, Ray Mayo of La Porte, Texas, and two sisters, Eula H. Peele of Grifton and Lois H. Bland of Garner.

The family will receive friends today from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Paul Funeral Home, Washington, N.C.

Gorbachev Cautions Lithuania Leaders

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KISHINEV, U.S.S.R. — Moldavia's parliament today began considering a draft law to make the local dialect the official language of the republic, but non-Moldavian strikers and protesters charged the measure was discriminatory.

Meanwhile in the restive Baltics, an activist said Monday that President Mikhail S. Gorbachev cautioned Communist Party officials in Lithuania against pushing too hard for autonomy.

Moldavian President Mircha I. Snegur opened the Supreme Soviet debate by urging approval of the law without granting concessions to thousands of striking Russians, Ukrainians and other ethnic groups that comprise more than a third of the republic's population. The vote was expected by Wednesday.

Around Kishinev, capital of this republic on the Romanian border, television sets broadcast the session in both Russian and Moldavian, a Romanian dialect, to attentive viewers.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Monday that ethnic activists in Moldavia are trying to "take power on the crest of a muddy wave of chauvinism and separatism."

Deputy Charged

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT MORGAN, Colo. — A sheriff's deputy has been charged with criminally negligent homicide for shooting a cookie salesman during a routine traffic stop in front of the salesman's home.

Morgan County Sheriff's Deputy Dan Probasco, 29, was charged Monday in Morgan County District Court in the July 15 death of Dan E. Smith, 36, a salesman for Nabisco.

Police say Probasco shot Smith in the back of the head after pulling him over in front of Smith's Fort Morgan home for an apparent drunken-driving check.

"Deputy Probasco's actions...grossly deviated from the standard of care that a reasonable person in like circumstances and under a like standard of care would exercise," District Attorney Jon Bailey said at a news conference.

Probasco has declined to discuss the shooting with investigators, and has been on paid administrative leave.

If convicted, the deputy could face one to four years in jail and a fine ranging to $100,000. Bailey said the jail sentence could be extended to eight years under exceptional circumstances.

The shooting has prompted criticism of the sheriff's office by some Fort Morgan residents, who said the episode epitomized the sometimes overzealous law enforcement in the county.

Police reports say the shooting occurred after Probasco pulled Smith's car over and radioed headquarters to verify Smith's license number and driver's license.

A transcript of radio transmissions the night of the slaying showed the sheriff's dispatcher had just acknowledged Probasco's call when Probasco yelled, "I need backup." The dispatch center then was unable to contact Probasco on the radio.

A short time later, a neighbor of Smith's called police to say an officer had asked her to call for assistance because there had been a shooting.

McEnroe Back On His Game As He Wins Opening Match

Brad Gilbert Is Upset By Witsken In U.S. Open

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — John McEnroe is back on his game, back among the favorites in the U.S. Open, back in his home territory. Even Mac feels like he's back.

"I've come a long way and I've set myself up with an opportunity here," said the four-time U.S. Open champion who has not won this tournament, or any other Grand Slam event, since 1984. "I feel like I did some successful things the last year to put myself in a position not to have to play a Becker or Lendl until the semifinals.

"If I play my best, I feel I can win. I feel I can give the top players a run for their money."

McEnroe is one of the top players again, rated fourth in the world. He won at Indianapolis and lost to Ivan Lendl, the world's No. 1 player, in the finals of the Canadian Open this summer.

On Monday, McEnroe beat Eric Winogradsky of France 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 in the first round of the American championship.

"I've been through it all here," said McEnroe, who grew up in Douglaston, five miles from the National Tennis Center. "I've lost pretty much in every round and I've felt what it tasted like to win.

"I do feel more comfortable here because I was brought up here. All things considered, I feel that I'm a lot better off than a year ago."

Brad Gilbert must have felt the same way entering the Open. Gilbert, seeded eighth, had won his last three tournaments, the first man to put together such a string since Boris Becker in 1986.

Gilbert's match winning streak had reached 17, and he was primed for the Open. But a bout with a stomach virus sapped Gilbert and he lost to Todd Witsken 4-6, 7-6 (7-4), 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

"It was God's way of torturing you when you lose," Gilbert said. "I've only had it twice in my career. In fact, I had it seven years ago here. I hope it's another seven years before I get them again."

Gilbert was the only seed to lose Monday. Winners included both defending champions, Mats Wilander and Steffi Graf.

Wilander, who has not won a tournament this year, swept Horst Skoff of Austria 6-1, 6-3, 6-1. Graf, seeking her seventh Grand Slam title in the last eight major tournaments, routed Etsuko Inoue of Japan 6-3, 6-1.

Other seeded winners were Becker, Aaron Krickstein, Alberto Mancini, Jay Berger and Carl Uwe-Steeb among the men, and Zina Garrison, Monica Seles and Conchita Martinez of the women.

Five men, including the 10th-seeded Mancini, rallied from two-set deficits to win. Mancini, of Argentina, beat Jonathan Canter 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Today, Chris Evert began what she has said would be her final U.S.

NFL Suspends Two Dozen For Steroids

Names Of Offending Players To Be Announced Today; Banned For A Month

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — For the first time ever, NFL players are being suspended for using steroids.

Within minutes of hearing that a federal judge in Washington had given it the go-ahead, the league gave its teams the names of approximately 24 players who will be suspended for at least a month after testing positive for the muscle-enhancing substances.

The names were to be made public today. The NFL planned to release the names on Monday, but the announcement was delayed when the players' union asked U.S. District Judge Thomas Hogan to issue a temporary restraining order to stop the league from implementing the suspension plan.

League spokesman Joe Browne declined to say exactly how many players under contract tested positive, but he did say "fewer than two dozen" were involved. Browne also said an unspecified number of other players among the 2,300 tested at training camps had tested positive but had already been cut by their teams.

Teams were required to reduce rosters to 60 players by today and to the regular-season limit of 47 by next Monday.

The steroids-testing plan stems from an announcement last March 21 by Commissioner Pete Rozelle in which he said that any player testing positive for steroids or agents used to mask them would be given the same treatment as anyone testing positive for illegal substances — a four-game suspension.

On Monday, the NFL Players Association went before Hogan, saying that releasing the names would damage the reputations of the players. It also claimed that the procedures under which 2,300 players were tested were "sloppy and unreliable."

But Hogan refused to grant the request, saying all players had been given ample warning that they would be disciplined for using steroids. He also said the union failed to show how its members would face irreparable harm under the league's plan.

In seeking the temporary restraining order, the union called the accuracy of the testing procedures "highly questionable" and said that identifying and suspending a player for steroid use would stigmatize him.

Hogan acknowledged that a suspension "could be fatal to a marginal player" and called his decision "a close call."

But he said the union's lawyers had failed to prove that players who might be suspended would suffer irreparable harm and added that most legal questions relating to the NFL's steroid-testing program must be left to an arbitrator to decide.

After failing in court, the union said it still hoped the league would reconsider the suspensions and release of the names.

The union's lawyers said they were considering whether to take further legal action. They may return to federal court Sept. 7 to seek a preliminary injunction against the NFL's plan and they also could appeal Hogan's ruling.

The union also appealed to the NFL.

"The ball is in their court now, not Judge Hogan's," said Doug Allen, the union's assistant executive director. "We are not trying to hide steroid users and we're not condoning steroid use. We do think the testing methods are suspect."

Hogan, however, agreed with NFL lawyer Paul Tagliabue, who said all players had been given ample notice that they would be disciplined if they tested positive for steroids at training camps.

"This was not a surprise," Hogan said.

It's Decision Time For The NFL Teams

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the deadline approaches for reducing rosters to 60 players, it is decision time in the NFL.

That meant good news Monday for All-Pro Luis Sharpe, Al Toon and Mike Quick, and first-round draft pick Broderick Thomas, all of whom signed "contracts" after lengthy holdouts.

But wide receiver James Lofton, a seven-time Pro Bowler, and kicker Rich Karlis, the Denver Broncos' No. 2 career scorer, were each let go as teams moved to cut rosters by today's 4 p.m. EDT deadline.

Sharpe, an offensive tackle, became the last Phoenix Cardinal to sign, agreeing to a two-year deal.

"It's been a long, drawn-out process. It ran the range of emotions," Sharpe, who held out 33 days, said. "I'm a proven player, a team leader. I've never missed a game since I've been in the league. I felt something special should be done for me."

Last season, Toon set a New York Jets record with a league-leading 93 catches for 1,067 yards, a 13.3 average and five touchdowns. He was the first Jet to lead the NFL in receiving.

In four years, he has averaged 73 receptions for 970 yards and five touchdowns, and already ranks sixth in franchise history with 292 receptions and seventh with 3,881 yards.

"He's going to be a sight for sore eyes," Coach Joe Walton said of the sure-handed wide receiver who ended his 38-day holdout. "He'll give us a big lift. He's a big part of us."

Toon, who made $400,000 last season, signed three one-year contracts for an estimated $3.6 million.

Quick, a five-time Pro Bowler who missed the first four exhibition games, also signed three one-year contracts and, according to Philadelphia Eagles president Harry Gamble, will be among the highest-paid wide receivers in the league. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

"I think this could possibly be my last contract as a professional football player," said Quick, 30, who missed eight weeks last year with a broken leg.

Thomas, a linebacker from Nebraska, signed a five-year contract for undisclosed financial terms. Selected by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as the sixth player in the draft, he held out for 43 days.

"The money is a side thing," Thomas said. "What's going to make Broderick Thomas happy is putting on that uniform, going out there and contributing to this team."

The Buccaneers are counting on Thomas' pass-rushing skills to make a difference in a defense that had only 20 sacks last season. Coach Ray Perkins has said he plans to use the 6-foot-4 246-pounder in third-down passing situations and, on special teams until he's ready to challenge Winston Moss for the starting job at right outside linebacker.

Also on Monday, Anthony Carter, the Minnesota Vikings' Pro Bowl receiver, arrived in training camp and ended a 28-day holdout.

Carter has said he wants to extend his contract to about $1 million annually, but General Manager Mike Lynn has refused to negotiate with the receiver or any other signed player not in camp.

Los Angeles Raiders
Lofton, the seventh-leading pass catcher in NFL history, was one of 10 players cut by the Raiders.

Lofton, 33, was acquired by the Raiders before the 1987 season for two draft choices. Last season, his production fell to 28 catches for 549 yards and, for the first time in 11 NFL seasons, he did not score a touchdown.

Also released was 34-year-old tight end Jimmie Giles, a veteran of 12 seasons with the Houston Oilers, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Detroit Lions and Philadelphia Eagles. He had joined the Raiders as a free agent.

Linebacker Linden King, 34, was cut. He was the starting left outside linebacker the last two seasons.

Philadelphia Eagles
The Eagles also signed offensive tackle Matt Darwin to a two-year contract. That leaves defensive tackle Mike Pitts as Philadelphia's lone holdout.

Indianapolis Colts
Veterans John Holt and Roy Banks were cut. Holt, in his fourth season with the Colts and ninth in the league, started six of 37 games at cornerback after coming to Indianapolis in a trade with Tampa Bay. Banks, a fifth-round draft pick in 1987, missed most of his rookie season with an ankle injury and played in 14 games at wide receiver last year.

Also cut were rookie tackle Jim Thompson, Indianapolis' 10th-round draft pick, and free agents Aaron Sam and Jeff Garnica.

Esiason Makes Point On Boos

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — Boomer Esiason made his point, but it wasn't the sort of point that helped the Cincinnati Bengals much.

The New Orleans Saints beat Esiason and the Bengals 27-10 Monday night in an NFL exhibition game delayed 11 minutes by one booing incident and nine minutes by another. It was the first victory for the Saints and the first loss for the Bengals.

In the first instance of enforcing a new rule against disruptive crowd noise, officials penalized the Saints four times for the first one, taking away all three timeouts and moving the ball 1 1/2 yards closer to the goal line.

Bobby Nuss, who has handled the down marker on the sidelines for every Saints game since the team was formed in 1967, said he has heard much louder crowd noise.

"Ten times as loud, and they still ran every play," Nuss said. "Cincinnati had three tight ends in, and I've seen teams with wide receivers just go on and run their offense with noise 10 times as loud."

Esiason stopped short of admitting as much, but he implied it.

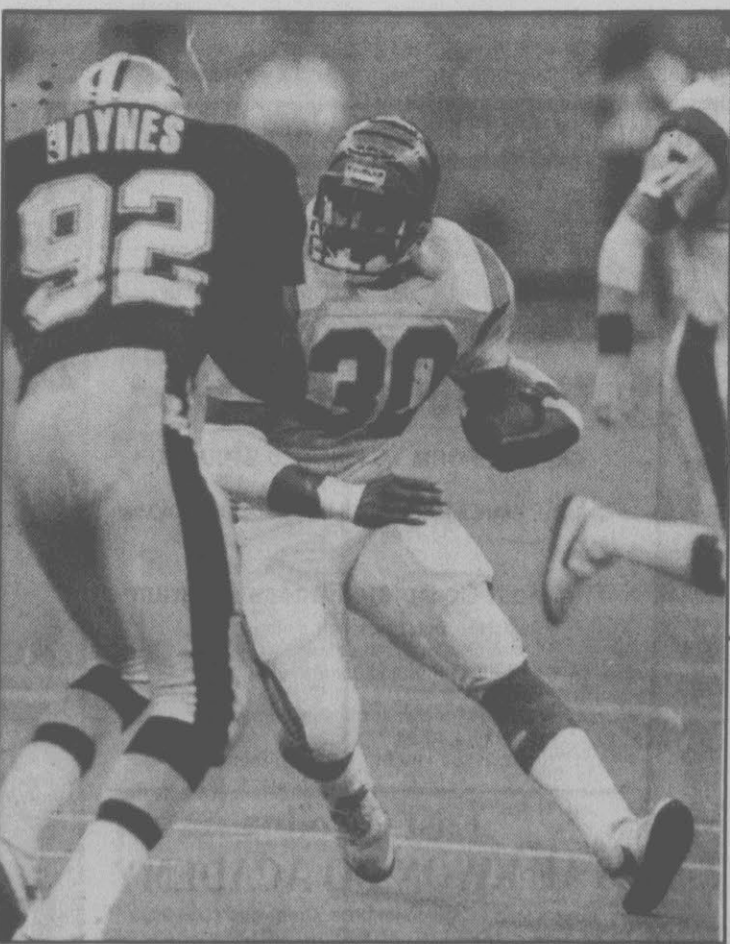

"What we tried to do, we tried to make a point," he said. "We tried to overemphasize the point.

"I think everybody in this room does not like this rule. The thing about playing in the Superdome and playing against the New Orleans Saints is you have to battle their fans, the same with going to Cincinnati, you have to battle our fans."

"I'll tell you who's going to get the rule changed," said Saints defensive line coach John Pease. "It won't be the coaches, and it won't be the owners. The networks will change it."

"Those two periods pushed this game 20 minutes into ABC's next programming. How much would 20 minutes of ABC's time cost you?"

Bobby Hebert passed for 142 yards and a touchdown and set up another touchdown with a 42-yard pass to Brett Perriman to lead the Saints. The touchdown pass was a 30-yarder to Eric Martin, and Dalton Hilliard ran three yards for a touchdown after Perriman's reception. The 42-

Giamatti Free To Say What He Wants

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti says the agreement banning Pete Rose from baseball leaves Giamatti free to express his personal opinion that the former Cincinnati Reds manager bet on baseball.

Rose said he felt he was double-crossed by Giamatti's remarks, made during the news conference last Thursday at New York in which the commissioner announced Rose's lifetime banishment.

"Just 12 hours earlier, we signed that agreement in good faith, and there he was saying he thinks I bet on baseball," Rose told The Cincinnati Post in an interview published Monday.

"The only reason I signed that agreement was that it had no finding that I bet on baseball. We got what we wanted, and we didn't have to go another eight months and spend another three-quarters of a million dollars," Rose said.

On Monday, Giamatti said that Rose appeared to misunderstand the agreement.

"I was very clear about the fact that I was not going to be constrained from saying what I thought was the case," Giamatti told the Associated Press by telephone from Cape Cod, Mass. "I'm not going to change anything I said."

Giamatti, asked last Thursday whether he thought Rose had bet on baseball, replied, "Based on the evidence and in the absence of a hearing, I have concluded that, yes, he bet on baseball."

Deputy commissioner Francis Vincent, Jr., and Rose's lawyer, Reuben Katz, drafted the agreement, which includes a stipulation that Rose neither admits nor denies betting on baseball.

Katz acknowledged that Vincent had told him what Giamatti's response would be to a question about whether he thought Rose bet on baseball.

"That's true, he did," Katz said. "Maybe I misunderstood. Maybe I wasn't altogether clear on what Mr.

Pirates Review Scrimmage Monday

East Carolina went through a light workout Monday trying to work out some kinks that popped up in Saturday's scrimmage. Coach Bill Lewis also had his team begin preparations for their first opponent, Bowling Green. The Falcons invade Ficklen Stadium on Sept. 9.

"We wanted to review the scrimmage and try to improve on some things," Lewis said. "The scrimmage displeased me because of our lack of concentration. We had too many off-side penalties, dropped passes and silly penalties."

"Today is also a day that we'll put in our game plan for Bowling Green and begin to introduce our players to them," he added.

The Falcons, 2-8-1 last year, are out of the Mid-American Conference. The game will be the opener for both teams. The two last met in 1974 when ECU won, 24-6, in Greenville. Bowling Green won the only other meeting, 47-21, in 1971 in Bowling Green.

"We begin our game-week preparations this week," Lewis said. "Every Monday for the rest of the season will be similar to today."

Rose Soccer Registers First Win

NEW BERN — The Rose High School boys' soccer team reserved a spot in the New Bern Sun-Journal Invitational finals with a 1-0 win over New Bern Monday night.

The Rampants, now 1-1-1, faces Kinston Wednesday at 7 p.m. Kinston edged Havelock 2-1 in Monday's second game.

Despite several scoring opportunities for both teams, regulation ended in a scoreless deadlock. And for the second time in 10 days, overtime failed to produce a winner. New Bern and Rose played to a 1-1 tie in the season-opener for both teams in Greenville.

Tournament rules, however, have a provision for determining the winner of a tie game — the team to score the greater number of five penalty kicks. John Beasley, Jason Bizzaro, Aaron Tschetter and Toure Claibourne converted for the Rampants while goalie Russell Nelson twice denied New Bern.

Rose finished with 10 shots on goal to 20 for the Bears. Nelson was credited with 14 saves. New Bern goalie Bill Hollows had five.

Pirate Old Timers' Classic Sept. 30

The second annual Pirate Old-Timers' Baseball Classic, the event that reunites former East Carolina University baseball players and coaches from the past, is scheduled for Sept. 30 at Harrington Field.

The Classic will coincide with Hall of Fame weekend at ECU, when the Pirate football team hosts Louisiana Tech. The baseball game will follow the conclusion of the football game.

"Last year's game was a great success and it provided an enjoyable time for everyone," ECU baseball coach Gary Overton said. "It provided our former players and coaches the opportunity to get together for the first time since their playing days."

"We are extremely excited about this year's game as well."

More than 50 former players and coaches participated in last year's event. Any former ECU player interested in participating should contact Troy Waller at the ECU Pirate Club, 757-6178.

Hardy, Wilson Take Top Honors

Marvin Hardy and Diane Wilson won top honors in the Greenville Tennis association's 12th annual tennis classic held at the River Birch Tennis Center Aug. 23-27.

Hardy defeated Allan Hinds 6-4, 6-2 in the men's singles finals then teamed with Nelson Staton to defeat Ben Harrison-Mike Belangia 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in the men's doubles finals.

Wilson bested Brenda Jones 6-2, 6-4 in the women's singles finals.

In mixed doubles Allan Hinds-Legare Hinds defeated Tommie Roach-Brenda Jones 6-2, 6-1.

Club members will participate in Rocky Mount's OIC Invitational Tournament during Labor Day weekend.

Hammonds Offered Contract In Greece?

ATLANTA (AP) — A Greek basketball team reportedly has offered Washington Bullets first-round draft pick Tom Hammonds a one-year contract worth more than $1 million.

Hammonds, a former Georgia Tech star, was selected in the first round by the Bullets in June's NBA draft.

The Atlanta Constitution, quoting unidentified sources, reported in Tuesday's editions that Hammonds received the $1 million, one-year offer from the Paok Athletic Club in Salonika in northern Greece.

Hammonds' contract would include a large signing bonus, a place to live, a car and an option to sign for another season, the newspaper said. He would have to sign by the end of September, when the Greek league's season begins.

The newspaper quoted its unidentified sources as saying Hammonds' contract would be similar to the deal Danny Ferry signed last month with Messaggero Rome of the Italian basketball league.

Hammonds, the ninth pick overall in the NBA draft, could not be reached for comment late Monday. His agent, Richard Howell of Atlanta, would not comment.

Bullets general manager Bob Ferry said he was unaware of a Paok offer to Hammonds and would not comment on his team's negotiations with him.

Bulls' Little Tabbed Manager Of The Year

GREENSBORO (AP) — Durham Bulls manager Grady Little has received his third manager of the year award in balloting by managers and sportswriters.

Little won manager of the year in 1981, when his Hagerstown Suns won the league championship. He won it again in 1985 when he was with Kinston. His most recent award came on Monday.

This season, the Bulls won the first half of the Southern Division title and overtook Kinston for first place late in the season.

Lynchburg outfielder Phil Plantier, whose 27 home runs and 105 runs batted in leads the Carolina League, has been named the league's most valuable player by vote of managers and sportswriters. He is batting .302.

Also receiving honors Monday was Kinston pitcher Charles Nagy, who played less than half the season. Before he was promoted to Class AA, he compiled an 8-4 record with a 1.51 earned run average before his promotion on June 16.

Named to the league's all-star team were starting pitchers Mike Draper of Prince William, and Pat Gomez of Winston-Salem and Randy Tomlin of Salem, who tied for the second starting pitcher position.

Draper's 14 victories lead the league. Joe Ausanio of Salem, who has a league-leading 19 saves, was named to the all-star team as top relief pitcher.

The infield consists of first baseman David Segui and second baseman Luis Mercedes, both of Frederick. Kinston's Mark Lewis was the shortstop and John Wehner of Salem was at third.

Pat Kelly of Prince William is the utility infielder.

Chosen to the outfield along with Plantier were Moises Alou of Salem and Andy Tomberlin of Durham. Al Martin of Durham was chosen as utility outfielder.

Segui, Lewis and Alou have been promoted to Class AA. Segui left the league with a .317 batting average, but doesn't have enough at bats to qualify for the title.

Brian Deak, currently on Durham's disabled list with a broken hand, is the catcher and Don Sparks of Prince William is the designated hitter.

Welch Named AL Player Of The Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Bob Welch of the Oakland Athletics was named the American League Player of the Week for Aug. 21-27.

Welch pitched 16 innings and didn't allow a run in posting a 2-0 record. He gave up 11 hits while walking two and striking out 12. He defeated Nolan Ryan and the Texas Rangers on the night when Ryan collected his 5,000th career strikeout, and he beat the Kansas City Royals and rookie sensation Tom Gordon on Sunday.

Belcher Named NL Player Of The Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Tim Belcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who pitched his major league-leading fifth shutout last week, was named National League Player of the Week for Aug. 21-27.

Belcher had a 2-0 record during the week, allowing 12 hits and one earned run while striking out 15 and walking six in 17 innings. His ERA for the week was 0.53.

Early Games Will Test Cavs

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Virginia football coach George Welsh has few questions entering the 1989 season and it's a good thing considering the early portion of the Cavaliers' schedule.

It all begins in the Kickoff Classic Thursday in East Rutherford, N.J. against none other than defending national champion Notre Dame, a preseason No. 1 pick in many polls. Consecutive road dates to Penn State and Georgia Tech follow before Virginia opens its home schedule with Duke.

Welsh compares the challenge of butting heads with the Fightin' Irish to that of taking on perennial power Penn State a year ago. He only hopes the end result will be more respectable than that 41-14 drubbing.

"Hopefully we learned something from playing Penn State last year," said Welsh, who has guided the Cavaliers to four winning seasons in five years and needs just eight more victories to become the winningest coach in Virginia history. "I don't think we handled that very well."

Welsh welcomes back 37 lettermen and 18 starters — nine on both offense and defense — from last year's team that was 7-4 overall and finished second in the Atlantic Coast Conference for the second straight year with a 5-2 mark.

Plus, the Cavaliers signed Terry Kirby, the nation's most sought after running back. Kirby, rated as the best newcomer in the ACC and the nation by The Sporting News, is not guaranteed a starting job but, along with junior tailback Marcus Wilson and junior quarterback Shawn Moore, the Cavaliers have several potent offensive threats.

"He hasn't earned a job yet," Welsh said of the 6-3, 215-pound Kirby. "He hasn't earned playing time. All freshman understand that. They have to go out and compete but he will get as much an opportunity as any other tailback."

Moore (6-2, 213) set a single-season Cavalier record last season for total offense with 2,562 yards, including 2,158 through the air. He connected for 15 touchdowns but was intercepted 14 times.

Brian Satola and Matt Blundin, who also plays for the Cavalier basketball team, are relegated to backup roles.

Wilson rushed for a team-high 429 yards in 1988 despite missing five games due to arthroscopic surgery on both knees. Sophomore Nikki Wilson and red-shirt freshmen Alvin Snead and Dave Brown will provide depth.

Seniors Durwin Greggs, a two-year starter, is back at fullback with Don Bryant in reserve.

Although John Ford, Virginia's all-time leading receiver is gone, the Cavaliers still have a respectable receiving corps led by senior Tim Finkelston. He will be joined by Johnnie Wilson, Derek Dooley and Herman Moore. Bruce McGonnigal, who had 26 receptions for a team-high 471 yards last year, is expected to start at tight end.

The offensive line, featuring 6-6, 270-pound All-ACC senior guard Roy Brown, returns intact. Junior Trevor Ryals mans the other tackle slot, senior Tim Morris is stationed at center and senior Jim O'Connor, junior Paul Collins and sophomore Ray Roberts alternate at the two tackle spots.

"We should have a pretty good offensive football team," Welsh said. "The key for us defensively is at inside linebacker."

That's the hole left by Virginia's top two tacklers from last year, Jeff Lageman and David Griggs, but everyone else is back. Senior Phil Thomas, a three-year letterman, will man one of the linebacking spots while red-shirt senior Elton Toliver, Mike Williams or Mike Smith will fill the other.

Defensive end Ray Savage, a 6-2, 233-pound senior, is the Cavaliers' top returning tackler. Sophomore Don Reynolds mans the other end spot.

Along the line, Ron Carey is back at noseguard and Joe Hall and Chris Stearns return at tackles.

Junior free safety Keith McMeans heads up a secondary that returns all its starters. He will be joined by Tyrone Lewis at strong safety and Tony Covington and Jason Wallace at the corners.

"We should have a pretty good football team, all things considered," Welsh said. "We have fewer question marks right now than we've had for a long time. A number of experienced players return, but with our schedule this fall we have to be good right away if we're going to win early in the season."

Open. The six-time champion, who will retire from tournament competition after the Open, drew Bettina Fulco of Argentina. Martina Navratilova, Gabriela Sabatini, Lendl, Stefan Edberg, Jimmy Connors, Andre Agassi and Michael Chang also were scheduled.

Becker wasn't looking beyond his next opponent after manhandling David Pate 6-1, 6-3, 6-1. He certainly wasn't thinking about next week.

"It's too early to say, it's the first round of a 128-man draw and anything can happen," the second-seeded Becker said. "It's the best-of-5 and you're also out there against the airplanes (from nearby LaGuardia Airport), as well. It's a difficult tournament to predict ... I take it step by step."

Graf admitted she is much more at ease this year than last, when she was trying — successfully, it turned out — to finish off the Grand Slam. She has lost only twice in 1989, but one was to Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario in the French Open final.

"It was much easier before the tournament, that's for sure," Graf said. "It's much easier than last year."

Nothing has come easy for Wilander this year. But he feels redemption would come with a victory here.

"Basically, if you win it, then 1989 was not such a bad year after all," he said. "On the other hand, you could get to the final and play a great match and lose and that would make it a pretty good year."

Witsken says he's had his best year since turning pro in 1982. The win over Gilbert was his second major upset in the Open. He beat Connors in the third round in 1986.

"It was tough for me because I had only been playing Grand Prix tournaments for about a half-year," Witsken said of his victory over Connors. "I really didn't expect that. But now, I've played the tour long enough that I know my limitation and what I can do."

Gilbert couldn't do much because of cramps and diarrhea. He even munched on bananas and brownies during the match.

"Unfortunately, it depleted a lot of my energy," Gilbert said. "I got tired from the second set on. I didn't have any reserve."

"I had a really good summer and it was an unfortunate way to end the summer."

Giamatti would say. I think that I was surprised that (Giamatti's statement) was that strong, that he put it that way and that it came so fast."

Giamatti said he based his opinion on the 225-page report by baseball investigator John Dowd. The agreement noted that baseball rules allow Rose to apply for reinstatement after a year but doesn't guarantee that he can return.

"The document also says I have a formal basis for the sanction I imposed," Giamatti said.

Rose said he hasn't ruled out counseling for his gambling.

goals of 35 yards and 44 yards, and free agent Paul Frazier ran five yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown.

Cincinnati's scores came on a 1-yard tackle-eligible pass to Anthony Munoz and a 48-yard field goal by James Gallery, both in the second quarter.

Bengals coach Sam Wyche said the game gave everyone in the country a chance to see the new rule in action.

"I think the rule was enforced correctly, and we legitimately couldn't hear," he said. "That was no fake there. I couldn't hear anything on the sidelines."

"I have to applaud the fans for pulling for their team. I can't put them down for that. But there needs to be some justice for the visiting team, some kind of a chance for them."

Esiason worked into the third quarter and completed eight of 17 passes for 94 yards. Eric Wilhelm relieved him and threw three passes without a completion.

The Saints outrushed the Bengals 121 yards to 113.

John Fourcade, who relieved Hebert in the second quarter, said the booing penalties cost the Saints a score. He entered the game with 1:49 left in the second quarter and the Saints at their own 17-yard line. In five plays, he had the Saints at the Cincinnati 21-yard line with 13 seconds left, but couldn't get off another play.

"If we'd had just one timeout, we'd have got at least a field goal,"

"Yeah, it's a great rule: 'Y'all pay your money and come to the game, but don't make too much noise,'" Fourcade said.

Saints coach Jim Mora was also opposed to the rule.

"I think it stinks, and we won the game," he said. "We were not adversely affected by it, and I still think it stinks, and I think the Cincinnati people would agree."

Hebert said he believes every team that plays home games in an enclosed stadium will be victimized by the rule.

"I talked to Boomer after the game, and he said we're going to see a lot of it. Every offense looks for every advantage it can find, and I know what San Francisco is going to do when they come in here. And that won't be just a preseason game."

Esasky Is Boosting Boston, For Now

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nick Esasky is having a career year with the Boston Red Sox. It may also be his only year at Fenway Park.

Esasky hit a three-run homer in the first inning Monday night as the Red Sox completed a five-game sweep of Detroit with a 6-3 victory over the Tigers. Esasky has 26 homers and leads the American League with 93 RBIs.

Esasky is a free agent at the end of the season and has expressed a desire to play in Atlanta. He hits a ton there and makes his off-season home in Marietta, Ga.

"I'm not deciding now," Esasky said. "But it's good to know others might be interested."

The first baseman was traded by Cincinnati along with reliever Rob Murphy to Boston for first baseman Todd Benzing, infielder Luis Vasquez and pitcher Jeff Sellers on Dec. 13, 1988.

For the Red Sox last season, Esasky hit 15 homers with 62 RBIs. His previous career high for homers was 22 in 1987.

"I'm just trying to relax and swing the bat," Esasky said. "I've been having a lot of fun lately. But I've been having fun all year."

Will it be enough fun to keep him in Fenway?
"Nick's a good hitter and he's in a groove," Boston third baseman Wade Boggs said. "He's one of the best — and he's doing it all for us, not just with home runs but with other hits."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Oakland 7, New York 3; Milwaukee 8, Toronto 2, and Minnesota 5, Seattle 4 in 10 innings.

The Tigers have lost nine straight games. The last time Detroit was swept in a five-game series was July 31-Aug. 3, 1975, also at Fenway.

"They're having problems all right, but so what?" Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "They had bats and balls. I don't care how bad they were, we still had to beat them."

Esasky's three-run homer off Jeff Robinson, 3-4, in the first inning enabled him to take the RBI lead from Texas' Ruben Sierra, who has 92.

Mike Boddicker, 12-9, shut out the Tigers on three singles for five innings before tiring and needing relief help in the seventh as the Red Sox extended their longest winning streak of the year to seven games.

After allowing three hits and one run in the sixth, Boddicker gave up two singles to start the seventh and was replaced by Rob Murphy, who pitched 2 1-3 innings and allowed a run. Lee Smith got the last two outs for his 19th save.

Athletics 7, Yankees 3

Dave Stewart became baseball's first 18-game winner, Dave Parker and Walt Weiss homered during a barrage of eight straight hits and Oakland beat New York at Yankee Stadium.

Oakland got 16 hits and moved 1 1/2 games ahead of idle California in the AL West. The Yankees lost their fifth straight game and fell to 2-10 under Manager Bucky Dent.

Stewart, 18-8, moved ahead of Houston's Mike Scott and St. Louis' Joe Magrane as the top winner in the major leagues. He got closer to his third straight 20-victory season, a feat that has not been accomplished since Jim Palmer from 1975-78.

Andy Hawkins, 13-13, got tagged for 10 hits and five runs and left after three consecutive hits started the third inning.

Brewers 8, Blue Jays 2

Robin Yount had three hits, including his 15th homer, and newcomer Ed Romero drove in two runs as Milwaukee snapped a six-game losing streak by beating Toronto at the SkyDome.

The loss dropped the second-place Blue Jays two games behind idle Baltimore in the AL East.

Tom Filer, 5-2, allowed two runs and four hits over five innings and Bill Krueger gave up one hit the rest of the way for his third save.

John Cerutti, 9-8, allowed four runs, one earned, and nine hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Twins 5, Mariners 4

Seattle lost a club record-tying 12th straight game as Kirby Puckett doubled home Dan Gladden with two outs in the 10th inning to lift Minnesota over the Mariners at the Metrodome. The Twins have won six straight.

With one out in the 10th, Wally Backman singled and was forced at second on Gladden's grounder to third before Puckett doubled up the right-center field gap against reliever Mike Schooler, 1-5.
Jeff Reardon, 5-3, who blew a save opportunity in the ninth, retired Seattle in order in the 10th inning for the victory.

Seattle rallied with two outs in the top of the ninth off Reardon to tie the score 4-4 as Harold Reynolds singled and scored on Greg Briley's double.

National League

Neither Frank Viola nor Orel Hershiser, participants in the first-ever matchup of pitchers coming off Cy Young Award seasons, would admit to being moved by what amounted to the stuff of which dreams are made.

Until Viola was traded to the National League, such a showdown would have been virtually unthinkable, pure Hollywood. Naturally, any decent script writer would have it end 1-0.

Ridiculous. But that's exactly what happened Monday night in Los Angeles when Viola pitched the New York Mets to victory over Hershiser and the Dodgers.

Still, the principals in one of the more ballyhooed games this season seemed underwhelmed by it all.

"It's not that big of a deal," Viola said of the occasion, which also was the first matchup of the last two World Series MVPs.

Hershiser, who shut out the Mets in Game 7 and became MVP of the National League playoffs last season, viewed it similarly.

The game had little meaning for the Dodgers, who are mired in fifth place, 12 games behind front-running San Francisco, in the NL West. But it was extremely important for the slumping Mets, just 3 1/2 games behind pace-setting Chicago in the East.

Viola made sure they weren't by pitching a masterful three-hitter, striking out five and walking none for his first NL shutout and complete game. The 26-year-old left-hander, 24-7 last season for the Minnesota Twins, had 10 shutouts in his American League years.

In another bit of Hollywood, Jack Clark bettered the request of an Easter Seals poster girl who'd asked him to hit a homer. He hit two and tied a career high with six RBIs as San Diego whipped Montreal 9-4.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 9, San Francisco 1; St. Louis 3, Cincinnati 2; Chicago 6, Houston 1, and Atlanta 5, Pittsburgh 2.

While he didn't match Viola pitch for pitch, the 30-year Hershiser, who spun magic a year ago when he set a record with 59 scoreless innings en route to a 23-8 finish, didn't need to issue any apologies. He allowed eight hits in eight innings, struck out four and walked one.

Hershiser, 14-10, leads the league with a 2.32 earned-run average. But he hasn't won in four starts because the injury-riddled Dodgers have scored only four runs in that time.

The game's only run came in on Gregg Jefferies' third-inning single, a groundout and Howard Johnson's RBI single.

Padres 9, Expos 4

Clark's pair of three-run homers helped 1988's top draft pick, Andy Benes, to his second straight victory. Clark's homers, his 19th and 20th, came off Kevin Gross, 10-9, as the Padres won their fifth straight game.

Benes, 2-2, pitched 6 2-3 innings, allowing five hits, striking out eight and walking five. Mark Davis collected his 32nd save.

The victory pulled the Padres within seven games San Francisco. The Expos fell three games behind the Chicago in the East.

Mike Pagliarulo, a teammate of Clark with the New York Yankees last season, also hit a three-run homer for the Padres.

Phillies 9, Giants 1

The Giants must have thought they were seeing double when the Hayes boys came to bat for the Philadelphia Phillies. They were.

Although unrelated, Von and Charlie Hayes hit back-to-back doubles in the same direction in both the second and third innings.

Once they broke the habit, things got even worse for the Giants. In the fifth, Von walked and former Giant Charlie — who had four RBIs — hit his fifth homer of the season.

With the score tied 1-1 in the second, Von led off with a double to right and Charlie drove him in with the second of eight two-base hits by the Phillies. In the third, Von hit a run-scoring double to center and Charlie did the same to make it 6-1 and chase Rick Reuschel.

The combined Von and Charlie Hayes line was 5-for-9 with four doubles, a homer, five RBIs and six runs scored.

Cardinals 3, Reds 2

A two-out, two-strike, two-run single by Pedro Guerrero capped a three-run eighth inning as St. Louis remained 1 1/2 games behind Chicago.

Guerrero drove in his 89th and 90th runs with a hit off Rob Dibble, 7-4, after Cincinnati rookie Scott Scudder carried a four-hitter and a 2-0 lead into the inning. The victory was the 11th for the Cardinals in their last 15 games.

Scudder left after Todd Zeile grounded out, and Denny Walling doubled pinch-hitting for John Costello, 3-2. Todd Worrell pitched the final inning for his 20th save.

Willing McGee's single greeted Dibble, sending Walling to third. Ozzie Smith grounded a single to right to score Walling and send McGee to third. Milt Thompson struck out, but Smith stole second before Guerrero drove a 1-2 pitch over shortstop.

Braves 5, Pirates 2

Pete Smith, who came into the game with a 9.32 ERA against Pittsburgh, pitched 6 2-3 innings to beat the Pirates for the first time in six career decisions. Pete Smith, 4-13, allowed five hits, struck out four and walked three.

Jeff Blauser hit his third home run in three games and ninth of the season. He had the first two-homer game of his career Saturday in Chicago.

Trailing 2-0, the Braves scored four runs in the fifth inning against Bob Walk, 11-9. The first scored on a wild pitch, followed by run-scoring hits by Oddibe McDowell, Jeff Treadway and Lonnie Smith.

Cubs 6, Astros 1

Greg Maddux was for the ninth time in 12 decisions and Shawn Dunston hit a two-run double in Chicago's four-run first inning. Maddux, 15-10, struck out four and walked two in his sixth complete game.

NFL Begins Making Cuts...

Green Bay Packers

Eighth-round draft picks Thomas King and Brian Shulman were among 14 players cut. King was a defensive back from Southwestern Louisiana and Shulman a punter from Auburn.

Also released were guard Scott Kirby, a ninth-round selection from Arizona State; defensive back Stan Shiver, a 12th-round choice from Florida State; defensive end Doug Bartlett, tight end Brent Novoselsky, running back Jeff Smith, nose tackle Toby Williams, kicker Kerry Brady, fullback George Cooper, guard Thomas Flesher, linebacker Tim Inglis, tackle Jeff Lucas and linebacker Tim Moore.

Pittsburgh Steelers

The Steelers placed seven players on waivers, including defensive back Greg Lee and defensive end Jerry Reese.

Lee made the team last year as a free-agent rookie. Reese, from Kentucky, was the team's fifth-round draft pick last year.

Also waived were five rookies: center Gene Cullinane, running back Fred Highsmith, tight end Thane Ritchie, wide receiver Brian Slater and defensive end Steve Vandegrift.

Atlanta Falcons

Punter Rick Donnelly, who led the NFL with an average of 44.03 yards per kick two years ago, will undergo back surgery next month and miss the entire season.

Donnelly, 27, injured his back during a shuttle test run in June and had missed all of training camp. He averaged 40 yards last year and was second in the NFL with 27 punts inside the 20-yard line.

Chicago Bears

The Bears cut 17 rookies, including former Northwestern running back Byron Sanders, the younger brother of Heisman trophy winner Barry Sanders, and rookie punter Kent Sullivan.

Also cut were fifth-round linebacker Greg Gilbert of Alabama, linebacker LaSalle Harper, defensive tackle Joe Nelms, defensive back George Streeter and wide receiver Fred Weygand.

Denver Broncos

The Broncos apparently ended their stormy relationship with Karlis by rescinding his contract, making him an unrestricted free agent.

A free agent out of Cincinnati in 1982, the bare-footed, soccer-style kicker has connected on 71 percent of his 193 field-goal attempts. Karlis' 655 points is second only to Jim Turner's 742 in team history.

After making 23 of his 36 field-goal tries during Denver's 8-8 season last year, Karlis and his $300,000 salary fell into disfavor with the Broncos' management.

Los Angeles Rams

Running back Greg Bell and tackle Robert Cox signed contracts, reducing the team's holdout list to two.

Terms of the contracts were not disclosed.

Bell, a five-year veteran who came to the Rams from Buffalo as part of the Eric Dickerson trade in 1987, gained 1,212 yards and led the NFL with 18 touchdowns last year.

Cox, a three-year veteran from UCLA, backs up starting tackles Jackie Slater and Irv Pankey. He has often been referred to as a third starter by Coach John Robinson.

Miami Dolphins

While nine Dolphins received pink slips, defensive end John Bosa was given the green light.

Bosa, recovering from a knee injured in the seventh game last season, obtained medical clearance to begin practicing in pads. The third-year pro and former first-round draft pick is hoping to bolster a defense that has given up an NFL-high 29.7 points per game in three exhibition losses.

Those released included safety Steve Gage and running back Eric Starr, two of 11 players unprotected by other teams during the off-season and obtained by the Dolphins as Plan B free agents.

New York Giants

Herb Welch, a 12th-round draft choice who hustled his way onto the team in 1985 and then started at safety in the Super Bowl a year later, was among seven players cut.

Tom Flynn, a late-season acquisition in 1986 and a backup safety on the Super Bowl champions, also was released as the Giants reached the NFL's 60-man roster limit a day ahead of schedule.

Of the 45 players who dressed for the Giants' 39-20 Super Bowl victory over Denver on Jan. 25, 1987, 20 are no longer with the team. That number could increase with next week's final cutdown to the 47-man roster, as wide receivers Phil McConkey and Stacy Robinson face battles to remain.

Phoenix Cardinals

The Cardinals also cut 14 players — including linebacker Niko Noga and five 1989 draft picks — and placed four players on injured reserve or the physically unable to perform list.

Placed on waivers besides Noga were punter Chris Becker, quarterback Alex Espinoza, wide receivers Andre Langley and Chris Harkness, kickers Teddy Garcia and Kendall Trainor, cornerbacks Rickey Royal and Michael Adams, center Kevin Thomas, offensive guard Jim Michalczik, offensive tackle Todd Nelson, defensive end Jeff Hunter and running back Robert Mimbs.

The moves reduced the Phoenix roster to 62.

Washington Redskins

Coach Joe Gibbs said that the team will attempt to trade defensive tackle Dean Hamel, who walked out of training camp three weeks ago and has been told not to return.

Hamel, 28, was supposed to fill the starting spot opened by the retirement of Dave Butz. But he left training camp on Aug. 7, two days after a poor performance in the exhibition opener against the Buffalo Bills in which he did not register a tackle or an assist.

How the Automotive Security System Works:

When the security system is armed, it will immediately be triggered if:

- The windows are broken.
- The car is towed.
- The engine is started.
- The dome or courtesy light is activated.
- The car is shaken or hit.

After the automotive security system is triggered, the built-in electronic siren will sound at 114 db for approximately 80 seconds. The system will then automatically reset itself and continue to provide protection for your automobile.

Disney Acquires Henson Muppets

By Patrick Lee
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

HOLLYWOOD — Kermit the Frog joins Mickey Mouse under a deal announced Monday in which Walt Disney Co. will acquire Jim Henson's production company and rights to his popular Muppet characters. Disney will pay an undisclosed sum — estimated by one source at $150 million to $200 million — for all of the assets of New York-based Henson Associates Inc. These include an extensive library of television shows and movies, merchandising rights and a 15-year contract for the creative services of Henson himself.

"He's almost like a creative designated hitter," Michael D. Eisner, Disney's chairman and chief executive, said in an interview.

"It's the kind of acquisition we like to make," he added. "We've not made a lot of acquisitions in the past few years, but if we can make one in an area that attracts enormous creative talent, that's what it's all about."

Analysts said the companies would make a perfect fit.

For Disney, it would mean a whole stable of recognizable characters to be exploited in television, movies, theme parks and merchandising — crucial to a character-driven company whose only major new player is Roger Rabbit. It is believed to be the first time Disney has gone outside the company for non-literary characters.

An added benefit: Kermit, Miss Piggy and Fozzie are perhaps as well known abroad as Mickey, Minnie and Donald and would aid acceptance of Disney's planned Euro Disneyland near Paris and other foreign projects.

For privately held Henson Associates — which has had mixed financial success lately with increasingly unconventional projects — the deal offers Disney's deep pockets for developing feature films and TV programs, clout from Disney's television syndication arm, and access to Disney's pay cable television channel.

The agreement in principle, announced Monday at the Disney-

Muppets © Jim Henson Associates, Inc.; Mickey Mouse © Walt Disney, Inc.

MGM Studios Theme Park in Florida, also frees Henson himself from the worries and financial burdens of distributing, merchandising and marketing Muppet ideas, analysts said.

"It's certainly a nice acquisition for Disney in that it will extend upon their current repertoire of children's programming and characters," said Jeffrey Logsdon, director of institutional research for Crowell, Weedon & Co. in Los Angeles. "I'm sure there's multiple benefits in both film production and on the theme park side from having licensing rights to these characters."

Except for Kermit the Frog, Disney would not acquire rights to the Muppet characters that appear in the public television program "Sesame Street," including Big Bird and Oscar the Grouch. Those characters are part-owned by the show's producer, the Children's Television Workshop, although Henson created them and will continue to perform in the show.

For the Disney organization, Henson and his company will produce movies, network and off-network television programs (including shows for the cable Disney Channel), home video programs and Muppet attractions for Disney theme parks.

The first project is a 3-D film attraction featuring Kermit and the Muppets, to debut in May at the Disney-MGM theme park in Florida, said Jeffrey Katzenberg, head of Disney's film unit. A version of the attraction is expected to appear at Disneyland as well.

Disney also gets the rights to Henson's library of films and television programming, which includes the "Muppet Show" and "Fraggle Rock" TV series, "Jim Henson's Muppet Babies," animated children's show, as well as the three Muppet movies and two other films.

Howard Duff's Acting Roles Now Show Him As 'Bad Guy'

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Howard Duff, long noted for playing cops and other good guys, is frequently on the wrong side of the law these days.

When Duff's hair turned white, the former leading man's roles turned bad.

Duff is a much-in-demand bad guy in movies and television, although he's occasionally cast as, say, a priest to keep it interesting.

"I'm getting all kinds of different roles," said Duff. "I was a sleazy city councilman on a pilot. I was a farmer. A priest. I've done a lot of ruthless tycoons. Playing all those roles is the only good thing about growing old. I can't play those 'Tennis, anyone?' roles any more."

In a new NBC movie, "Hidden

Rage," he co-stars as the father of Jaclyn Smith. When Smith, now a Chicago policewoman, returns home seeking the identity of the man who raped her 20 years ago, Duff is a leading suspect. The movie will be telecast in the fall season.

"I play an Arkansas peach farmer and I don't approve of my daughter's lifestyle," he said. "He's very fundamental. You don't know exactly what their relationship is. She tries to be nice to her father, but he rebuffs her at every turn. You don't know why. The atmosphere is very gothic."

"She returns home to try to learn who raped her when she was 15. The rapist pulled something over her face and she never knew his identity. Then she blacked out because it was so traumatic."

The movie was written by Steve Sohmer, who wrote the book and miniseries "Favorite Son" and is producing its spinoff series, NBC's "Mancuso, F.B.I." Smith's husband, Tony Richmond, was the cinematographer and the director was Ed Sherin.

whose committee oversaw the Defense Department.

He starred in five series, beginning with "Mr. Adams and Eve" in the 1957-58 season, which also starred his then-wife, Ida Lupino. It was loosely based on their life as stars in Hollywood. In 1960, he was a two-fisted adventurer in "Dante." He was Detective Sgt. Sam Stone in "Felony Squad" for three years, beginning in 1966. After a long layover, he was the corrupt sheriff in "Flamingo Road" in 1981-82. He was a tycoon again for a year in "Knotts Landing" as William Devane's father.

He and Lupino were the guest villains on one of the last "Batman" shows in the 1960s.

"They were doing 'Batman' at the same studio where I was doing 'Felony Squad,'" he said. "A friend of mine wrote the 'Batman' episode. I don't know if he talked me into it or somebody else did. But everybody was on the show playing villains."

Duff's show got him into broadcasting and during World War II he was a correspondent with Armed Forces Radio.

New Film 'Memphis Belle' Recreates WWII Heroism

By Matt Wolf
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BINBROOK, England — World War II pilot Robert Morgan, who flew the renowned American B17 Flying Fortress bomber called the Memphis Belle, is pleased Matthew Modine is playing a character based on him in a new movie. But he thinks the actor has one thing to learn.

"I've got to get Matthew a little bit more egotistical," Morgan chuckled, referring to the star of "Memphis Belle," which retraces the 25th and last mission in 1943 of that B17 and the 10 men who flew it.

The movie, budgeted at $20.6 million, began its 10-week shoot in Britain July 17. Modine, the 30-year-old star of "Full Metal Jacket" and "Birdy," co-stars with Eric Stoltz ("Mask," "Some Kind of Wonderful"), who is the radio operator, and D.B. Sweeney ("Eight Men Out") as the navigator.

John Lithgow, the original star of "M. Butterfly" on Broadway, plays the public relations officer who views the Memphis Belle mission as a chance to boost both war bond sales and sagging morale.

Michael Caton-Jones, the Glaswegian filmmaker who made "Scandal," directs from a screenplay by Monte Merrick. The film is co-produced by Catherine Wyler, daughter of the movie director William Wyler, and David Putnam, the British producer of "Chariots of Fire" and "The Mission."

"Memphis Belle" is due for release in the United States in September 1990, and in Britain one month later.

It is Putnam's first movie project since he finished a much-publicized Hollywood spell as chairman and chief executive of Columbia Pictures two years ago. And the 48-year-old Putnam hopes it will counter films such as the 1986 blockbuster "Top Gun," which he said glorified air combat.

"I couldn't work out what that film was about other than men zooming around the skies," he said in an interview on the set at an abandoned Royal Air Force base in Binbrook, Lincolnshire, 180 miles northeast of London. "I was wondering if it was possible to take the technical qualities of 'Top Gun' and use them in a dramatic film about human beings."

Putnam said he was inspired by a 1944 documentary by William Wyler about the Memphis Belle. Wyler flew in the bomber five times to get the footage.

"That was unashamedly a propaganda film made for a job, but it did its job rather well," said Putnam. "We all agreed it was the basis for a really good film."

"Memphis Belle" relates 24 hours before the bomber's final mission, a successful raid over Bremen in northwest Germany. The aircraft was then brought back to the United States, where the same 10-member crew flew it across the country as a propaganda exercise. In May 1987, it was restored and is now on display in Memphis.

In the film, five B17s were used for the flying sequences. One crashed during filming July 25, injuring two technicians. None of the stars was aboard.

The characters in the movie are fictionalized versions of the original crew, eight of whom are still alive and were flown to the Lincolnshire location to help promote the movie.

Eugene Adkins, an original Memphis Belle gunner now living in Johnson City, Tenn., said the on-set visit was "like Christmas to us. ... I never dreamed it would ever happen again."

Robert Hansen, the crew's original radio operator, said Eric Stoltz's equivalent character in the movie undergoes a more difficult ordeal than Hansen did in the actual mission.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Aug. 30
ARIES (March 20 to April 19): Make out any report that is requested of you at work or by a governing body. Really get in focus all details connected with your financial activity.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 19): Steer clear of a family argument by getting your home in order and making it more harmonious. Today's new moon uncovers an old friend who knows the score.
GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): Don't allow anything to keep you from going after your goals in a quiet, confident and controlled manner that will show through to all concerned with your well-being.
MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): Be sure to reward yourself and your family with a fine dinner this evening and benefit from one another's company and the four positive aspects of the solar eclipse.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Get the proper approvals of authority before you dash across borders with that endearing, confident and charming special someone who takes a lot of shortcuts.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Work out how to be more consistent with your romantic attachment who doesn't always understand what you are up to and how you expect them to react.
LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Stop dealing with people who think they can take advantage of you even if they are related, and go after your personal aims with all the power you can muster this new moon.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Put more effort into developing your particular talent and enjoy greater success with family, friends and foes. This well-pected new moon should provide new opportunities.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): Be sure that you keep a promise made around August 16th, at the time of the full moon and also be certain that you do all the work expected on the new project.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): With the well-pected new moon today you will still be required to have enough collateral to receive the credit you are seeking out of state.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): The ways and means of production are important now at the new moon and it is especially necessary to stay on top of any recent industrial breakthroughs.
PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): Under these four great aspects and the new moon it will be necessary that you find better modes of expression in order to clear up any misunderstanding.

Opening lead: Six of ♣
 Sometimes the fate of your contract is in the lap of the gods. However, there is nothing to stop you from giving the deities an assist.
 The auction had one point of interest. With essentially a balanced hand, North saw no reason to introduce his six-card minor. Slam was out of the question, and the prospects of taking nine tricks in no trump were far brighter than 11 in the long suit. As a result, the optimum contract of three no trump was reached in quick time.

 West leads the six of spades and East plays the jack. How would you rate your chances of making your contract?
 Obviously, if the diamond finesse is going to succeed, you have more than enough tricks. And if the spades are 4-4, your contract also is safe. The danger comes if the spades don't divide evenly and the diamond finesse fails, since the play to the first trick virtually marks West with the ace of spades.
 If the spades are 5-3 and you win the first trick, you have no chance because West will ambush your second spade honor with the ace. But what if spades are 6-2?
 Ironically, as long as the spade break is bad enough, your contract becomes a sure thing. All you have to do is refuse to win the first spade trick! When East continues a spade, West is helpless. If he wins, you still have a spade stopper. If he holds up, you can afford to lose the diamond finesse. Since East has no spade to return, you rake in 10 tricks—one spade, two hearts, five diamonds and two clubs. As you can see, had you won the first spade trick the defenders would have collected six tricks before you had reaped your just share.

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closesout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closesout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.)

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy are available in store.

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:
