Voyager's Legacy Will Be Here For Years To Come

By Lee Siegel
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PASADENA, Calif. — Far in the cold darkness beyond Neptune, a lonely Voyager speeds into the void, dozens of worlds in its wake as it leaves a legacy that may aid the survival of its home planet, a garden island in a sea of space.

What wonders Voyager 2 witnessed as the one-ton spacecraft cruised the solar system, traversing an arch-shaped 4½-billion-mile path in 12 years as it trekked past four planets and at least 56 moons:

In 1979, Jupiter and its moon Io, a hellish satellite of sulfur-spewing volcanoes. Saturn and its graceful rings in 1981. Five years later, Uranus, knocked on its side by some incomprehensible collision. And today, the probe is 5 million miles past deep blue Neptune, with its frozen volcanic moon Triton, once flooded by seas of icy lava.

Such marvels, such sights never before seen by human eyes, were returned to Earth in 81,000 photographs captured by television cameras aboard Voyager 2 and its twin, Voyager 1, which explored

Jupiter and Saturn before hurtling toward the stars.

And what, one may ask, did these humble Voyagers, these piles of 1960s electronics, do for their human masters, for the American taxpayers who paid the $865 million to propel them to the outer planets?

"The immediate benefits of Voyager's pictures of Neptune and Triton and their wealth of scientific information is to stimulate our intellects and to nourish our souls," said Bruce Murray, president of The Planetary Society and former director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

"But surely over the coming generations those arcane facts will become relevant to our destiny on Earth, just as earlier arcane facts from Venus and Mars are now considered vital to our destiny."

Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan said: "If you want to understand Earth, go look at other worlds."

From Mariner and the space probe Pioneer, scientists studied how Venus' thick clouds trap solar heat.

Helmsley Convicted Of Evasion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Hotel queen Leona Helmsley was convicted today of tax evasion for charging personal expenses to her businesses but was acquitted of the most serious charge against her, extortion conspiracy.

She was found guilty of 33 of the 41 counts on which she was tried. The counts on which she was convicted related to evading $1.2 million in taxes from 1983 to 1985.

Mrs. Helmsley showed little emotion while the jury foreman read the verdict, but occasionally shook her head.

Her co-defendants, former aides Frank Turco and Joseph Licari, were convicted of assisting in the tax-evasion scheme. Turco, who had been charged in the extortion conspiracy, was also acquitted on that charge.

All three also were acquitted on mail fraud charges.

Each of the 33 counts Mrs. Helmsley was convicted on carries a maximum prison term of three or five years. She could also face fines as high as $8 million.

Mrs. Helmsley, 69, was depicted at the trial as arrogant, penny-pinching and mean-spirited. Her former housekeeper testified that Mrs. Helmsley once told her, "We don't pay taxes. Only the little people pay taxes."

Her 80-year-old husband, Harry, who heads a multibillion-dollar real estate empire, was charged in the April 1988 indictment but was not tried because the judge found him mentally incompetent.

The verdict came in the fifth day of deliberations in U.S. District Court.

The bulk of the expenses on which the tax charges were based were $3.1 million in renovations and operating costs at the lavish Greenwich, Conn., mansion, Dunnellen Hall, which the Helmsleys purchased for $11 million in June 1983.

Many of the bills were altered to make it appear the work was done at corporate entities. Prosecutors contended that the phony bills resulted in unreported income on the Helmsleys personal tax returns and incorrect business deductions on the corporate returns.

Morning Collision

An Ayden man was injured shortly before 6 a.m. today when the tractor he was operating collided with a truck on rural paved road 1120 near Ayden. Fire-rescue department records identified the driver of the tractor as Jack Cox of Route 1, Ayden, and the driver of the truck, lower right, as Cleavy Avery of Route 1, Winterville. After the collision, the tractor traveled to the left side of the road and struck a parked car owned by Bill Pollard of Norris' Trailer Park, lower left. Avery reportedly was not injured.

Bakker Depicted As Luxury Lover

Dortch Hospitalized In Florida

By Dennis Patterson
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Prosecution witnesses portrayed Jim Bakker as an evangelist of extravagance, but attorneys for the PTL founder say he was a busy minister concerned with saving souls.

David Taggart, a former aide to Bakker convicted of tax evasion, testified Tuesday that the televangelist pursued an extravagant lifestyle and was enchanted with real estate.

"He told me he wanted to have 10 homes," Taggart said.

In a related development, former PTL official Richard Dortch, expected to be a key witness in Bakker's trial, was hospitalized in Florida for undisclosed reasons. Dortch had also been admitted in April to Morton Plant Hospital, in Clearwater, Fla., for chest pains.

Hospital spokesman Paul Gramblin said today that Dortch, who lives in Safety Harbor, Fla.,

asked doctors not disclose details of his condition.

Robert Dash of the U.S. attorney's office here refused to discuss Dortch's involvement in the trial or the effects of Dortch's hospitalization on the proceedings. He said, however, that Dortch is not expected to be called this week.

Dortch, 57, agreed on Aug. 8 to plead guilty to two counts of wire fraud and one count each of mail fraud and conspiracy. The plea bargain came three weeks before he was scheduled to stand trial with Bakker. Dortch was sentenced Aug. 24 to eight years in prison and fined $200,000.

Prosecutors say Bakker and other executives at PTL diverted for their own benefit at least $4 million of the $158 million they raised by selling $1,000 "lifetime partnerships" at the ministry's resort hotels in Fort Mill, S.C.

In cross examination, defense attorney Harold Bender asked Tag-

Lynne James Will Guide Evergreen

By Kevin Boughal
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

City of Greenville Senior Planner Lynne James will replace Jack Steelman as the executive director of Evergreen of Greenville, Inc., the city's economic and downtown development program, it was announced today by Evergreen officials.

"I'm looking forward to the challenges ahead," said Mrs. James. "I hope that I can keep the momentum going."

Mrs. James will not officially begin her position with Evergreen until September 8. She said she expects a smooth changeover since Steelman will have more than a week to fill her in on all the organization projects.

Steelman said he will leave Evergreen to take a job as the economic development coordinator of his home town, Winston-Salem.

He said his primary reasons for leaving Greenville were for the long-term security of his family and his own professional development.

"I have enjoyed my tenure with Evergreen tremendously," said Steelman. "(I) could not consider leaving without first expressing my

ECU Freshmen Reflect Higher Rank In Classes

By Carol Tyer
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In the fall of 1988, about 70 percent of East Carolina University's entering freshmen had been in the top half of their high school graduating classes. More than 95 percent of the 2,631 freshmen who entered ECU last week ranked among the top 50 percent of the graduates of their respective high schools.

Class rank is infinitely more important as a predictor of success in college than Scholastic Aptitude Test scores or even high school grade point averages, said Dr. Thomas Powell, ECU's new director of admissions. He is, therefore, optimistic about the chances of this year's entrants completing four-year programs of instruction in 1993 or before.

Powell said the higher class rankings reflected more stringent overall admissions standards. And he said they were, at the same time, a large — perhaps the largest — component of the heightened standards for admitting students to the university used during the past year.

The increased selectivity will have a handsome payoff, Powell believes, both for individual students and for the university as a whole. For the time being, it has cut back on the

City Officials Say Anti-Loitering Law Works

By J. Ward Best
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In July, the Greenville City Council took a bold step and outlawed a teen-age tradition. So far, the new law seems to have been a step in the right direction.

The council passed an ordinance prohibiting assembly in downtown parking lots after hours. A small group of teen-agers who frequent the parking lots objected, and the city attorney who drafted the ordinance even expressed "cautious optimism" about the success of the law.

But with the ordinance now having been in effect for a month, city officials are claiming at least partial victory.

Mac McCarley, Greenville city attorney, said he has received mostly positive response to the ordinance so far.

McCarley said he received 15 calls about the ordinance when it was first adopted on July 24. All the calls were from parents, and only one objected to the parking lot ban. "She thought we ought to let kids be kids," McCarley said.

Four teen-agers appearing before the council to oppose the ordinance said much the same thing. But the six members of the council agreed that the problems of vandalism, littering, illegal drinking and drug use had to be curbed.

Questions had been raised about the constitutionality of the ordinance, but McCarley said he felt the ordinance could stand a court challenge.

Greenville Police Chief Jerry Tesmond has also claimed an early victory in the city fight against its parking problems.

"We've had very good voluntary compliance on the part of the young people," Tesmond said today.

Greenville police have been patrolling the 12 city-owned parking lots and handing out copies of the ordinance. Tesmond said the teen-agers have voluntarily moved on and he said he does not know of any tickets written under the new ordinance.

"We had a tremendous problem down there," Tesmond said. "I think it's commendable that the young people have responded."

A group of downtown business owners also went before the council to throw their support behind the ordinance. The trash left behind from the weekend gatherings and the vandalism had to stop, they said.

Louis Clark, speaking for the business owners, presented a petition with 51 signatures and two letters supporting the ordinance.

"I have been pleased with the reports I've received from downtown business owners and police officers," McCarley said.

But after telling about eight-hour shifts Saturday and Sunday to clean up after the gatherings, Mayo Allen, the director of public works, was cautious about the success of the ordinance so far.

"Yes, there's been some improvement," Allen said today, "but there's still some trash out there."

Allen said the signs warning of the new law have had some effect, and private businesses have begun to put up the warnings.

But with area high schools reopening and the college students returning, Allen said he would have to wait before calling the new law a complete success.

"We haven't given it enough of a chance yet," Allen said.

Graham said that foreign farmers are subsidized by their governments to the point where they can sell well below American prices, but he said the problems "just made the (tobacco farmers and Democrats) tougher and more determined to stick around and try for good farm products."

MacKenzie Security Purchases Tampa-Based Guard Operation

MacKenzie Security Inc. of Greenville has acquired the full-service guard operations of Vickers Security of Tampa, Fla., said R.W. MacKenzie, president of the firm.

MacKenzie said the recent acquisition is the first step of a long-range business strategy to diversify and grow.

"From now on, we will be looking seriously at other operations in the Southeastern region of the country to analyze their potential and evaluate their compatibility with our long-term expansion plans," MacKenzie said.

"We chose Vickers to begin our expansion program because the company integrates very nicely with MacKenzie Security," MacKenzie said. "Their operation is stable and successful and their client mix is similar to our operation in North Carolina."

With its 400-member guard force, Vickers serves various industrial, commercial and resort properties in Florida's central and southwestern regions. Although there will be some consolidation in areas of administration, MacKenzie said he anticipates no major changes in personnel or operating policies of either company.

Founded in Greenville in 1969, MacKenzie Security has approximately 400 security officers and an administrative staff of about 10 people.

About seven months ago, the firm relocated into the renovated Moseley Building, 402 W. Fourth St., which MacKenzie said has become the firm's corporate headquarters.

MacKenzie Security provides security services for corporate clients including background investigative work and urinalysis drug testing.

MacKenzie said most of the company's work is done in eastern North Carolina, although he said the firm has clients as far west as Gastonia.

Schools Have More Local Options

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County teachers, administrators and school board members will have more control over their public schools under a bill passed by the General Assembly earlier this month.

The School Improvement and Accountability Act of 1989 gives local school systems the chance to set their own performance standards and provides them with state funds to set up merit-pay options for teachers.

Under the bill, the Pitt County school system will have four options. It can design a program for school improvement that is based on student performance and receive some flexibility in the use of state funds. The system can also choose from a variety of merit-pay options for teachers, including the Career Development and Lead Teacher programs piloted by the state, or design its own. The state will provide additional funds for these programs.

The school system may also choose to participate in both programs at the same time, or elect not to participate in any option.

The State Board of Education must approve all school-improvement and merit-pay plans submitted by local units. A majority of the teachers, administrators and school board members must support any local plan before the state board will approve it.

Local school officials have until Oct. 10 to decide whether or not to participate in the programs. If they decide to participate, a plan must be submitted to the state board by March 1.

"We're supportive of the process and in our own way are working toward that goal of flexibility," Barry Gaskins, a spokesman for the Pitt school system, said. For several years, each Pitt County school has prepared individual management plans, giving principals the flexibility to respond to local needs, Gaskins said.

Officials of the state's largest teacher organization also support the bill. The North Carolina Association of Educators believes that local flexibility in decision-making will allow schools to improve, according to Julia Kron, the association's president.

"Schools in Bertie County are not like the schools in Chapel Hill," she said. "We need to set goals at local levels."

Basic standards are important, Ms. Kron said, but need to be tailored to local needs. "Schools should be a reflection of the community," she said.

Some critics have charged that allowing teachers to vote on programs robs local boards of education of their powers. Ms. Kron disagrees. "I don't look at school-improvement programs as a piece of power to be pulled back and forth," she said.

Teachers will not buy into a program that will not get good results, Ms. Kron said. Their input is vital to the success of programs because they are the ones who have to work with the students, she said.

Teachers have valid reasons for liking or disliking a program, the NCAE spokeswoman said. "You want your students to do well," she said.

Local people know what's best for local school systems. Rep. Ed Warren, D-Pitt, said. "I support more flexibility for the schools," he said. "I think it's a move forward in education."

Nursing Graduates Pass Examination

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University nursing graduates posted a 95 percent passing rate on the national registered nursing licensing examinations in July, Dr. Emilie D. Henning, dean of the School of Nursing, announced today.

The 1989 passing rate for ECU graduates who took the national licensing exam in North Carolina was reported by the N.C. Board of Nursing, Henning said. The board said 56 of 59 ECU graduates taking the examination for the first time passed.

Seven other ECU nursing graduates have taken the examination in other states and the outcomes are not yet known, Henning said. In addition, 16 members of the 1989 graduating class already are registered nurses, she said.

The 95 percent in-state passing rate is in sharp contrast to a total passing rate last year of only 63 percent, which prompted university officials to take corrective action.

"I believe the graduates are taking the (licensing) examination more seriously," Dean Henning said. Also, she said, "our faculty has put a great deal of effort into changes in the program to reflect the examination, and also worked with the students to develop their test-taking strategies," she said.

"Many of the pending changes in health care will place even greater emphasis on the role and expertise of nurses," said Dr. Alastair Connell, vice chancellor for health sciences.

"These splendid results indicate that ECU is contributing vigorously in meeting the need for highly trained nurses," Connell said.

ECU Freshmen Rank Higher

number of freshmen attending ECU, with the rolls down 363 from a fall 1988 enrollment of 2,994.

Powell said that class rank during preparatory school is important, not only because it indicates past performance doing the academic work that was also required of one's peers. It's also a good indicator of motivation and confidence in one's own ability to learn, Powell and associate admissions director Eugene Owens agree.

And it appears to be the fairest way to judge students' educational potential in spite of quality of previous educational programs and past cultural advantages. That is why the new admissions criteria have made class rank such a large factor in the admissions formula.

Both Powell and Owens said that grade point average is important, too. Entering students with a C-minus average were being admitted at the first of the last academic year. By the end of that year, the grade point average for those being admitted was a solid C.

"C work is required to graduate from college," Powell said. "So that's what we're requiring for entrance."

A component of the admissions formula that Powell sees as less important is Scholastic Aptitude Test scores. With a possible 1600 score — 800 verbal and 800 mathematics — out-of-state ECU entrants are now averaging 950, whereas they were averaging 800 a year ago. Regular in-state entrants are averaging 850. There was also a special admissions category of 190 in-state students who did not do as well on the SAT, but had exceptionally good academic records in high school.

Another factor in the admission process is the University of North Carolina systemwide requirement of successful completion of certain "core curriculum" courses for entrance into college.

"This is a factor over which we in the individual admissions offices have no control," Powell said, "but one which we believe is serving students well. We can expect the students who have done well in three mathematics courses, four English courses, etc., in high school to be equipped to deal with the rigors of college much better than those who have not."

University Chancellor Richard Eakin said, "I am very pleased with the academic quality of our freshmen. I think they're the best qualified entry-level class we've ever had. The university administration and faculty will continue to pay attention to ways to ensure that our admissions standards provide a high probability of success for all ECU students. We also will seek to have these same standards encourage applicants who do not get into ECU initially to do community college or other academic work that provides them the background they need to enter our programs later or otherwise succeed in their endeavors."

Amplifying Eakin's statement, both Powell and Owens stressed that the route to college is not always directly from high school. They said the ECU admissions program will be stepping up its efforts to work with junior and community colleges in developing more streamlined access to ECU for their students. These efforts will be on behalf of the students who have successfully completed general college courses in two-year programs or who would enter specific programs at the university level after having completed counterpart programs in community or other colleges.

An example would be a program packaged to help a graduate of a community college associate degree program in electronic engineering move smoothly into an industrial technology four-year program at ECU.

The ECU admissions office also is looking at new ways to facilitate college work by adults already out in the workplace.

James Heads Group

Steelman said he was happy with his accomplishments during his tenure and that he accomplished more than he had expected to.

"We've shown people that a downtown investment is a profitable investment," said Steelman. "Three years ago, people were hesitant about investing downtown because they didn't know if they would see a return, but now investing downtown is profitable."

New Professor

Dr. J. Frank James has joined the faculty at the East Carolina University School of Medicine as a professor in the department of psychiatric medicine.

James has been a clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine. His work at Oklahoma included supervising the consultation-liaison residency rotation at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Oklahoma City and the leadership and administration residency rotation in the school's psychiatry department.

At ECU, James will be responsible for liaison activities between the ECU School of Medicine and the state's mental health facilities. He will also maintain resident teaching and supervision obligations.

A native of Liberty, N.C., James received his undergraduate education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and his medical degree from the Medical School of the University of Tennessee in Memphis.

Clark echoed Steelman's sentiments.

"We've done a lot better than we anticipated," said Clark. "Downtown deteriorated over a period of 15 years and it is going to take time to bring it back."

Clark described Mrs. James as the most exceptional candidate interviewed during the selection process.

"(Her) ability, combined with her experience in urban planning and her understanding of Greenville's development process, will enable Evergreen projects underway to continue without delay," said Clark.

As senior planner with the city of Greenville, she is responsible for long-range planning and development studies, including those for the medical district, population and employment projections, the formulation of annexation and growth management policies for the future development of Greenville and the establishment of the city's first capital improvement planning process.

Mrs. James received a bachelor's degree in political science and urban studies from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro where she graduated Magna Cum Laude and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa, and she received a master's Degree in urban and regional planning from Florida State University.

She is married to Gregory K. James, an attorney in the law offices of Frank Wooten.

INTIMATE MATTERS

A common reason that couples consult a marriage counselor is that one partner or the other consistently shows a lack of interest in physical intimacy. This can cause great anxiety in the other person. Spouses tend to attach all kinds of meanings to low levels of desire, and the tendency is great to see lack of responsiveness as a personal rejection.

Over the course of a lifetime, an individual's libido is greatly affected by stress, fatigue, and age, as well as by unresolved conflicts. Yet many people also tend to seek reassurance, or seek to banish personal insecurities, through physical intimacy. When couples become particularly "out of synch" in this regard, anxieties develop that compound and prolong this cycle. One partner may step up efforts to initiate intimacy to counteract his or her own anxieties, and thus be doubly wounded by rejection. This partner may, over time, come to avoid intimacy so as to avoid rejection, compounding the couple's problem.

Learning to speak more openly about fears, concerns and feelings become a large part of the marital therapy of couples caught in this cycle. Together the partners can develop a more open style of seeking reassurance, thus taking tension out of the bedroom.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

A Handicap

N.C. State Needs Clean Slate

Fresh leadership can do little to extricate North Carolina State University from a sticky web of athletic misdeeds unless that leader begins with a clean slate. Jim Valvano, NCSU athletic director and head basketball coach, should step down from both posts, and if he does not, N.C. State's Board of Trustees should ask for his resignation.

University of North Carolina system President C.D. Spangler stopped one step short of providing that clean slate last week when he called on Valvano to resign as the university's athletic director but made no such suggestion about his position as head basketball coach.

Spangler made his recommendation along with releasing the finding of a six-month investigation into athletics at N.C. State by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors. While no NCAA academic rule violations were found by the commission that investigated allegations of wrongdoings at the university, that investigation did reveal manipulation and misuse of the academic system for the benefit of collegiate athletics. Valvano, as athletic director and basketball coach, bears a large responsibility for these misdeeds.

Such abuse is intolerable and North Carolina's largest university must work diligently and promptly to remove it. But the university cannot overcome its troubles if one of the major players in this scandal remains among its ranks. Valvano is a talented coach, but his judgment and leadership at N.C. State is clearly in question. As long as he remains, doubts about the integrity of both athletics and academics will linger.

In addition, his continued presence would create a difficult situation for N.C. State's new chancellor. For that individual, Valvano would be baggage that would pose a direct and insurmountable threat to any effective policy. How can a new chancellor be expected to set high standards with such baggage in place? Valvano is one problem that should not be left to the new chancellor to solve. That individual must begin without a built-in handicap.

The misdeeds at N.C. State have marred the reputation of a distinguished university. The school is well-known for its prowess both in the classroom and on the basketball court. The inexcusable manipulation of academics for athletics places a black mark on this reputation, one which must be erased.

While simply cleaning house won't cure all the university's ills, it is an essential start. Valvano must step down or be removed if the future of a great university is to remain solid.

Despair Will Not Battle Drugs

WASHINGTON — As the nation prepares for yet another assault on the malignant drug problem, the greatest barrier to success is not obvious. It is not the Colombian drug cartel, the shortage of treatment centers or the scarcity of prison cells, serious as those obstacles are.

The biggest hurdle to overcome is the cynical belief that the problem is beyond remedy. Too many Americans think that the people who are caught in the drug trap are too far gone to be saved. Essentially the fear is that social problems of this dimension are insoluble, that you can tinker around the edges (and waste a lot of money in the process) but you're not going to be able to do much to help people who don't want to be helped.

You often find the same defeatist attitude when it comes to discussions about improving the quality of schools and the performance of students, aiding the homeless or, for that matter, improving the productivity and competitiveness of the American economy.

The tendency in every case is to shrug and say: That's too big a problem. We just have to be patient and wait for it to cure itself.

There's no justification for that attitude. As evidence, consider the report just published by the Southern Regional Project on Infant Mortality.

Four years ago, the Southern Governors Assn. and the Southern Legislative Conference formed a joint task force, under then-Gov. Richard Riley of South Carolina, to attack the region's frighteningly high infant-mortality rates.

When the project started, the latest available figures, for 1983, showed none of the 17 participating states was losing fewer than 10 of every 1,000 infants during their first year of life. The death rate, which topped 15 in some states, was closer to Third World standards than to the advanced industrial nations of Europe. Many of the deaths were the result of the mothers' malnutrition causing low-birth-weight babies.

In too many cases, the teen-age parents lacked even rudimentary knowledge of how to care for their infants. And in too many places, pre- and post-natal care was not available or not being used.

The state officials decided that the human tragedy and economic waste was intolerable, and they pledged to improve the situation. How well they have begun to do is indicated in their report, "A Bold Step: The South Acts to Reduce Infant Mortality."

By 1987, 16 of the 17 states (Delaware being the exception) reported that they had significantly reduced their infant-mortality rates. The death rate for the United States as a whole declined in that four-year period, but nine of the Southern states achieved greater reductions than the national average.

David Broder

Among those which started off with relatively low death rates, West Virginia, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Texas have reduced their rates below the current national average of 10 per thousand. Mississippi and South Carolina, which began with the highest death rates among the 17 states, made notable gains, with South Carolina leading all the others in the absolute size of the reduction.

They did it by attacking all phases of the problem, not trying to find a single "magic bullet" cure. At the outset, the project staff came up with a checklist of 27 programs that plausibly could contribute to reducing the infant-death rate. They ranged from establishing special adolescent health-care clinics to requiring hospitals to admit all women in labor. Expansion of Medicaid benefits to reach more of the poor was a key element.

Most of the states have made good use of the recommendations. But the report also shows intelligent adaptations and innovations to meet local needs. South Carolina, for example, established a "high-risk channeling project" which screened Medicaid-eligible pregnant women to assure that they were sent to an appropriate facility at the time of delivery. The project has succeeded not only in saving lives but in reducing emergency transportation and medical costs.

Georgia has established an effective counseling program, using teen-agers trained in schools, churches and community organizations to work with their contemporaries on understanding the responsibilities and problems of pregnancy. The state also has trained nurses as midwives and placed them in public-health clinics.

North Carolina set up a program to subsidize medical-liability insurance premiums for doctors who agree to provide obstetrical and infant-care services in rural counties where that kind of help is hard to find. A West Virginia University doctor developed a simple "birth score" system that hospitals can use to identify high-risk infants and see that they are referred for frequent doctor visits during their first year of life.

The list goes on, with many examples of foundation, business and community support for the governmental and medical services. The point is that when the officials of these states identified a serious problem and made the commitment to attack it, they didn't stop with a declaration of good intentions. They took up every possible avenue that looked hopeful, committed resources to the task and evaluated what works.

That is what the nation has to do about the drug crisis. If national leaders will do that, there is no reason to throw up our hands in despair.

To the editor:

The concerned officers of the Greenville Police Department who have presented a list of concerns to Police Chief Jerome Tesmond would like to see that the public is properly informed as to the nature and validity of our charges. The discriminatory practices by which we have been victimized are indeed factual. We have specific information and documentation to support each charge. Be assured, more detailed information will be given at the appropriate time during the independent investigation.

The concerned officers of the Greenville Police Department have proof and documentation of specific instances that affirmative action is not practiced within the department under the present administration.

There are those within the Police Department who are making a futile attempt to discredit our charges of discrimination in making patrol assignments, inconsistencies in promoting practices, favoritism toward white female officers, sexual harassment, and the creation of cosmetic positions with no specific duties. These are only a few of the charges that have been presented to this administration. At a later date, these will be reviewed by the appropriate federal government agencies.

These practices must not be allowed to continue within the Greenville Police Department for the officers currently serving nor for those who will come after us. The continued growth of our city demands that the quality of leadership and the management of personnel and resources within the local law enforcement agency be superb.

We are asking for your support of our efforts in correcting certain practices which will help the Greenville Police Department give better service to the deserving public.

To the editor:

Regarding the recent Board of Education meeting of August 14, 1989, at which the issue of drug testing was approved, I would like to clarify my position.

It has come to my attention that the general impression is that I am against drug testing. This is not so. I am very much in favor of drug testing; however, I would like to make several important points.

Drug testing is a very complicated procedure that should be interpreted by a physician. The consequences of misinterpretation by unqualified individuals can lead to tragic consequences for the person being tested. (Some over-the-counter drugs contain elements which will test positive.) The medical expert can eliminate the possibility of this kind of error.

Those who do fail the test end up being simply rejected, leaving them with very few options. This can create the possibility that they may become part of the growing statistic of crime in our community, up to 80 percent of which is currently drug-related.

A program of rehabilitation needs to be established in our community, providing those who fail the test an opportunity to become drug free, and to be fairly reconsidered for employment. Most companies have already interviewed these applicants and found them qualified, pending the drug test. These applicants represent up to 15 percent of the total prospective employee pool.

Drug testing should not be the sole or conclusive criteria for whether an employee is qualified. There are many productive employees in the work force already who already have drug problems.

In conclusion, I am completely in favor of drug testing with appropriate physician interpretation, with an avenue for these applicants to become employable and productive members of our community.

To the editor:

Our City Council members have shown their true colors about who they are representing. I do not begrudge a fair meal allowance but I do resent the city employees making money off my taxes. It is my opinion and I have a right to my opinion that the City Council's self-interest comes before the taxpayers (with the exception of two council members who voted against the increase — and I thank them.) I am a retired person living on a fixed income and I do not and cannot afford $52 a day for meals (my wife and I) but I guess I have no control over what the City Council does or wants instead of what is needed.

To the editor:

I would like to make a plea to the litterbugs who break the law. Don't they know there is a fine if caught littering? This plea is also for drivers of open-bed trucks. There is also a law against trucks of all sizes, hauling garbage, trash, etc. without a cover of some sort. The law is obviously not being respected or enforced. Littering is worse in the summer as the roads are more traveled. And you can especially tell where some roadworkers and farmworkers do their eating.

Groups of concerned citizens are out picking up the litterbugs mess at least four times a year under the Adopt-A-Highway or Adopt-A-City Block programs. If the litterbugs would participate in one of these programs, I'd guarantee they'd never, consciously, litter again! Sure, some of the litter "might" be bio-degradable — but how long does it take? Months and years, if at all. In the meantime, the roadways look bad. This is when the concerned citizen is back on the scene — and on and on goes this vicious cycle as long as there are unconcerned citizens.

Blacks Suffer Hazards Yet Remain Inactive On Environment

Paul Ruffins

What color is a returnable soda bottle? According to a group of Washington's prominent black ministers and influential leaders, deposit bottles and cans are white. During a 1987 campaign to defeat a local initiative to recycle bottles and cans, the advisory committee to the Clean Capitol City Committee argued that elitist white environmentalists were attempting to victimize the black poor.

In fact, CCCC members were predominantly white and all represented industry groups, such as the Glass Packaging Institute, opposed to returnable bottles. Early polls showed Washington residents supporting the measure. But after the CCCC spent $2 million and ran a slick advertising campaign featuring images of elderly black people struggling to return empties and claims that empty bottles and cans attract roaches, the initiative was defeated 55 percent to 45 percent. Washington remains littered with bottles and cans.

"A white-controlled industry group successfully made the bottle bill into a racial issue, convincing the black community that environmentalists were white outsiders," said Peter Williams, black executive director of D.C. Common Cause, which supported the measure.

Another version of this "environmentalists are outsiders" tactic was attempted in Los Angeles. When environmentalists joined local residents in opposing the construction of a Los Angeles City Energy Recovery Project incinerator in the poor South Central section, a public-relations firm hired to promote the project passed out leaflets saying, "Don't let outsiders tell you what to think."

The reasons that industry groups can make this argument reflect the peculiar racial politics of ecology. Minorities are at highest health risk from pollutants both at home and at work: 71 percent of blacks and 50 percent of Latinos — as opposed to only 34 percent of whites — reside in cities and breathe the most polluted air. Often they live in old housing with the highest concentrations of lead in the paint and plumbing. Between 1976 and 1980, more than 50 percent of all black infants under the age of 3 who were tested had blood lead levels higher than the Centers for Disease Control's proposed standards.

Minorities are also likely to be exposed to toxins by working in the most hazardous jobs in the most unhealthy industries. Latino farm workers suffer an estimated 300,000 pesticide-related illnesses a year. Most incinerators and toxic waste dumps are in minority areas. The General Accounting Office reported that three out of four communities surrounding hazardous waste landfills in the Southeast were predominantly poor and black. Despite these findings, such organizations as the NAACP and Urban League — exquisitely sensitive to threats to minorities in such areas as education, housing, jobs, AIDS and drugs — have almost completely ignored environmental hazards.

For example, the program for a recent Urban League Conference offered more than 20 forums, from child care to the lack of minority teachers. Not one was dedicated to environmental issues. One session, "A National Health Policy of African Americans," featured Health and Human Services Secretary Louis W. Sullivan. He said minorities, particularly blacks, are far more likely to die of heart disease, stroke and cancer. However, Sullivan did not mention the link between pollution and cancer, or that air pollution exacerbates heart disease and respiratory problems. It would be bad enough if minority organizations ignored environmental issues — but in many cases, they work against them. NAACP Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks lobbied against raising the federal fuel mileage standards to 27.5 miles per gallon. Hazel N. Dukes, president of the New York state NAACP, argued that the New York City Council should not institute tough smoking bans to limit indoor pollution.

When it came to the bottle bill, the advisory committee argued that higher beer and soda prices would hurt the poor. Hooks was concerned about blacks losing jobs in the auto industry. Dukes felt that the law discriminated against minority and blue-collar workers since executives, more likely to be white, could still smoke in private offices.

Why are many black leaders and organizations willing to join the beverage, auto or tobacco industries in fighting environmental regulations when polls show that most Americans favor stricter pollution controls? On the most cynical level, money is why black organizations have often supported industry groups. Many members of the CCCC advisory committee, or their organizations, received payments ranging from a $350 donation for a woman's shelter to consulting fees of $21,000.

But the economic issue goes beyond greed. Minority organizations need funding to carry out their civil-rights work. The NAACP, Urban League, United Negro College Fund and others receive large donations from corporations and unions. Minority communities are also vulnerable to economic blackmail. Many members of the minority anti-environmental lobby believe that a cleaner environment is a luxury compared with issues such as racial discrimination or jobs.

A recent New York Times Magazine story describing Los Angeles' strict new plan to reduce pollution gives a good example of this attitude. The one minority person quoted was the former president of the Los Angeles City Planning Commission, Daniel P. Garcia, who said the plan, developed by whites, doesn't consider the needs of minorities. Garcia commented: "I'm tired of being told that poor people breathe bad air, too. ... Labor-intensive industries employing mainly minorities are hard hit by this. What happens when small businesses can't afford all these fees and controls?"

The environmental movement must also accept its part of the blame. Many civil-rights groups have longstanding relationships with unions and corporations. Hooks is not likely to forget that United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther marched with Martin Luther King Jr. long before Earth Day was invented. On the other hand, most environmental groups have done little to reach out to minorities, making it easy for industry to portray them as elitists.

Norris McDonald, president of Washington's Center for Environment, Commerce and Energy, one of the few black environmental groups, feels that when it comes to hiring minorities, environmental organizations make the same excuses as corporations. "They say they can't find blacks and other minorities," he said, "yet when we advertised for minority interns, we got so many applicants they almost knocked our door down."

Environmental organizations also have not framed their issues to include the needs of minorities. Historically, groups such as the Sierra Club, Audubon Society and National Wildlife Federation were started to protect the environment from society, rather than to protect people from the environment. They are better known for saving whales than minority children.

Williams of Common Cause also notes that environmentalists have often advocated using higher costs or taxes to encourage conservation without seeming to be concerned about the impact on the poor. Charles Stephenson, chairman of the board of the Center for Environment, Commerce and Energy, believes that white environmentalists have defined the environment too narrowly. "To black folks," Stephenson said, "the environment isn't just forests and wetlands, the environment is where you live, so the housing crisis should also be considered an environmental issue."

But if environmentalists have taken too narrow a view of the environment, many civil-rights leaders' view of civil rights is not wide enough to include the human right to pure air and water.

Fortunately, a growing number of black leaders understand the link between environmental and civil rights. Jesse Jackson made the environment a major issue in his 1988 campaign. The United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice published the landmark study "Toxic Waste and Race."

Environmentalists have also become more sensitive to minority concerns. Greenpeace played a significant role in supporting a bill of Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., to prevent toxic waste dumping in Africa and the Third World. As U.S. society grows more concerned about pollution, groups will seek minority allies in struggles over environmental regulations. Rather than accepting old arguments that conservation costs jobs, civil-rights leaders should ensure that minorities get their fair share of opportunities in recycling and other emerging industries, and take a stand protecting the environment. Stephenson sums up the situation: "This environment is as much ours as it is theirs. We have to be concerned with the greenhouse effect, and clean air. We can't wait until our children are sick like we did with lead paint poisoning. Our people are suffering the most and we have to get out in front."

Fairness, Honesty

Paul Marx

For many teachers, the return to the classroom will be no more joyful than it will be for their students. The ordeal will begin again.

The difficulty, the struggle, is not in the imparting of information or in the teaching of skills. The difficulty is that the people teachers have to deal with have different ideas of what constitutes acceptable behavior than do the teachers.

Teachers find themselves forced to deal with children and adults for whom lying, cheating and other forms of dishonesty are routine behavior. Teachers have to deal with people who see nothing wrong with trimming the truth or always putting their own interests and welfare above anyone else's. They have to deal with people who value fairness for themselves, but not for others if being fair means a sacrifice for them.

The difference in values between teachers and students has become so great today that many teachers have given up trying to influence their students. But teachers must not abandon the task. Even though the cement of character has been poured by the time kids get to school, it has not yet set.

Like it or not, the teacher is constantly on stage demonstrating how to behave. From whatever the teacher says or does, the child will draw inferences about what is right. However unwillingly, teachers teach more than reading, writing and arithmetic.

Thus, teachers need to be alert to the messages they are sending. On the other hand, excessive awareness can be inhibiting and cause incoherence and confusion.

In general what is right can be quite simple. I would suggest conveying three basic messages: honesty, the Golden Rule and respect for public space.

Today's rampant dishonesty won't change without the help of teachers. Day after day teachers must convey the message that people are expected to be honest. Of course, this means that the teacher must always be open and honest, which means more than simply not lying. It also means acknowledging mistakes, carelessness and forgetfulness. It means being able to say, "I don't know." A teacher who is open and honest will be a powerful influence for openness and honesty in a child, regardless of the contrary influences in the child's life.

Second, teachers should not be hesitant about conveying the message that people should treat others the way they want to be treated. Teachers should not be restrained about asking, "Is that the way you would like to be treated?" And they certainly should be aware of that question in regard to the way they behave.

Finally, the idea that public or communal space is everyone's space seems to have died during the past couple of decades.

From children who drop candy wrappers, to adults who flick cigarettes out of car windows, to industrial polluters, the besmirchers of public space are everywhere. The idea that space that is shared must not be dirtied seems to be a value few people have been taught. Revitalizing that value would result in the rebirth of other forms of consideration as well.

Resisting the pressures in the opposite direction, let's make the point that strength and happiness grow out of doing what we know to be right, not from doing what others want us to do. If through word and deed teachers spread these three commandments, a new generation that would be less destructive than recent ones might come on the scene.

Murder-Suicide

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Two people were found dead at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station after police received a report that a man had barricaded himself inside the base living quarters, authorities say.

A unidentified man and woman were found dead Tuesday after police moved into the one-story residence with tear gas. One person is suspected of killing the other and then committing suicide, according to Sgt. Les Gay of the Cherry Point Public Affairs Office.

Military police were called about 3:30 p.m. when authorities learned that a man had barricaded himself inside one of the single-family homes in the Slocum Village housing area, a group of government quarters near the base. Gay said shots were heard about the time that the military police were called.

Law enforcement officials from Havelock, New Bern, and Jacksonville were called, and police moved in about 7:30 p.m. with tear gas when they were unable to make contact with the people inside the house, Gay said.

Gay said the names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of next of kin. He would not say if they were Marines.

Shelton Dies

SPEED, N.C. (AP) — Former State Sen. Henry Gray Shelton died Monday at the age of 82.

Graveside services will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Speed.

Shelton served in the state Senate from 1957 to 1963. He also was a member of the North Carolina Cattlemen's Association and was its president 1960 through 1961.

Shelton served on the State Highway Commission from 1949 through 1952 under Gov. Kerr Scott. The commission accounted for more than 13,000 miles of paved roads.

Shelton is survived by his wife, Athlea Boone Shelton of Speed; his daughter, Anne Urquhart of Tarboro; sisters Anne Parker Wilkinson of Richmond, Va., and Ethel Taylor of Roanoke Rapids; and one grandchild.

Search Called Off

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Authorities have called off a search for the body of a North Carolina man who drowned in Causey Reservoir after divers were unable to find any trace of him in the cold, deep water.

Senior Airman Sandor L. Kaszas, 21, of Gloucester, N.C., was swimming with friends on Sunday when he vanished while crossing an 80-yard gorge in the rugged canyon reservoir east of here.

Kaszas was stationed at nearby Hill Air Force Base.

Rate Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Jim Long has ordered a hearing on a proposed 4.2 percent increase in auto insurance rates, which would cost policyholders about $51 million.

Long is challenging a request by automobile insurers, saying that it would produce excessive insurance costs for North Carolina drivers.

The requested rate would produce an overall increase in compulsory liability coverage of 8.3 percent and would decrease by 1.5 percent non-compulsory collision and comprehensive coverage.

Legislator Eulogized As Strong Leader, Friend Of Education

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OXFORD, N.C. — A packed congregation including many of the state's highest elected officials remembered Rep. Billy Watkins as a strong leader and friend of education during funeral services here.

"If he saw a thing to do and he thought that it was right, he never wasted any time taking a public opinion poll to see how other people thought about it," said the Rev. Clarence Godwin to an audience of more than 700 on Tuesday.

Watkins, who had served for 20 years in the General Assembly, died Saturday at his home of a heart attack.

"His constituents have lost a faithful, hard-working and just representative," said Godwin during the service at Oxford Baptist Church. "Many of us have lost a good and trusted friend."

The small church was packed during the service, with people standing along both aisles and in the balcony. The casket was covered in roses and greenery, flanked by floral crosses.

NCSU Grant

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University has received a $345,250 grant from Philip Morris USA to support research, extension, education, student scholarships and staff development in the college of agriculture and life sciences.

Durward F. Bateman, dean of the college, said the money will "support a broad range of projects, including continuation of general funding of the Tobacco Foundation to support specific research efforts and the agricultural leadership development program."

One of the research projects receiving support from the gift is the long-term attempt by engineers to mechanize tobacco transplanting, one of the most labor-intensive aspects of tobacco production and one that has been most difficult to mechanize.

CHARLOTTE — NCNB Corp. is supplementing its takeover war chest, and analysts think troubled savings and loans in Texas, Florida and possibly Virginia may be the bank's targets.

With federal approval, NCNB will soon be flush with another $860 million, analysts said. The bank said it may use part of new capital for acquisitions. Last Friday, NCNB said it had sought Securities and Exchange Commission approval to issue 5 million shares of stock for sale in Japan. At Monday's closing price of $52.50, the stock would sell for $262.5 million. NCNB also filed a statement to sell $600 million in subordinated debt over the next 12 months.

In the past 18 months, NCNB has raised $1.3 billion through stock and debt offerings, and added another $300 million to its capital through retained earnings.

"It sounds like their major focus is on Texas, and perhaps a troubled thrift acquisition in Florida. I don't think they want to make a major thrift acquisition in every state," said Kathryn Hart, who follows NCNB for Interstate-Johnson Lane in Atlanta.

A longer shot is a healthy thrift in Virginia, whose stock price jumped last week on rumors the Charlotte-based bank was interested.

The Virginia thrift linked by rumor to NCNB is Investors Financial Corp. of Richmond. Investors Financial is the holding company for Investors Savings Bank, which has $2.4 billion in assets and 50 offices in Virginia.

The company's stock climbed from $7.50 a week ago to close at $8.75 Monday in over-the-counter trading. NCNB and Investors Financial officials declined to comment on the speculation.

Banks are allowed to acquire healthy thrifts for the first time under provisions of the savings and loan rescue law enacted earlier this month. In a recent interview, NCNB chairman Hugh McColl Jr. said the company could add assets most cheaply by acquiring savings and loans, rather than banks.

Gerry O'Meara, an analyst with

The Robinson-Humphrey Co. in Atlanta, said NCNB is likely to pick up troubled institutions, in which federal regulators must pump in cash or dispose of problem loans to assist with the sales.

"That would clearly be Texas first and Florida second," he said.

He didn't rule out the Virginia thrift, but said it would be a long shot.

Earlier this month, NCNB purchased the deposits of one insolvent Texas thrift in a Houston suburb. The bank paid $25,000 for the transfer of $85.5 million in deposits. NCNB says it has targeted the Houston, San Antonio and El Paso areas for growth.

NCNB has expressed interest in several major Texas thrifts, the Dallas Morning News reported.

In July, the banking company announced it was buying the remaining 51 of NCNB Texas National Bank from federal regulators. The estimated cost was $800 million, including $320 million in an interest-bearing note that matures in one year.

That buyout freed NCNB from a partnership with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. — an arrangement that FDIC officials said had put the bank at a disadvantage in bidding on other government-assisted sales.

Some of the newly raised capital could be used to pay off the Texas sale.

Alabama Bans Waste Output From N.C. And 21 Other states

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Alabama is banning hazardous waste shipments from 22 states and the District of Columbia to keep the state "from becoming the waste dump of the nation," Gov. Guy Hunt said.

A representative of the hazardous waste industry said his group plans to challenge the ban — the second of its type in the country — in court.

On Tuesday, the Alabama Department of Environmental Management identified states that would be affected by a law enacted in May. The list includes North Carolina.

The new law bars states from sending hazardous waste to Alabama if they don't have some means of disposal within their own borders or if they don't have a cooperative agreement with Alabama.

"The intent of this legislation was to force states to accept responsibility for the hazardous waste they generate. In the past, it has seemed Alabama was the path of least responsibility," said Sue Robertson, chief of the department's land division. Officials from Alabama and seven other Southeastern states will meet Thursday in Atlanta to discuss ways to dispose of hazardous wastes over the next 20 years. Mrs. Robertson said the ban "could be used as a negotiating tool" to get the other states to handle their share of waste.

South Carolina is the only other Southeast state with a hazardous waste landfill.

Eighteen of the banned states and the District of Columbia have no disposal facilities. They are Alaska, Arizona, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington were banned because they did not respond to the state's request for information about hazardous waste disposal within their borders.

Alabama's ban is similar to one enacted earlier this year by South Carolina.

Tucker Eskew, an aide to South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, applauded the move and said the two states are aiming for "a regional approach which ensures reciprocity and fair burden sharing" in waste disposal.

Richard Fortuna, executive director of the Hazardous Waste Treatment Council in Washington, said the lobbying group has made overturning the two states' laws a top priority. He said the state laws violate federal interstate commerce statutes and will cause a shortage of hazardous waste sites nationally.

Prescription Costs Vary, Survey Shows

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A prescription that costs $28 in one community could sell for $2 in another, according to a private survey of drug prices that found wide variations nationally and even within communities.

The American Association of Retired Persons said Tuesday that its survey found that prices differed by factors of up to 14-to-1 nationally and that costs typically vary by more than 25 percent from one pharmacy to another in the same town.

Even bigger price differences were found between some brand-name medications and their generic substitutes, which on average cost half as much, the AARP said.

One pharmacy had the city's highest cost, $36, for a brand name and the lowest, $9.75, for the generic.

The findings confirm the wisdom of shopping around, and are especially important for older Americans, who account for 12 percent of the population but use 32 percent of all prescription drugs, AARP said.

"It was possible that an older consumer could save more than $30 on a single prescription," the report said.

For example, in one community a prescription for Procardia (heart medication) sold for $26.99 at one pharmacy and for $58.60 at another pharmacy in the area."

The findings also have important implications for government and private health insurance programs, which could hold down spiraling costs by making sure beneficiaries get the lowest-priced medications, AARP said.

The 42-state survey also looked at services offered by pharmacies and found somewhat higher drug costs at outlets that have special programs such as 24-hour operations, after-hour emergency service, free delivery, patient drug profiles and discounts.

"Since for many older consumers, these services can be as important as cost savings, and since many offered them 'at no additional cost,' consumers should ask about the services and any associated costs," the AARP said.

The group used older volunteers to survey prices at 1,050 pharmacies between September 1987 and September 1988. The resulting study, which didn't identify specific towns or pharmacies, examined price differences among 165 communities on 15 drugs often prescribed to older Americans.

While the pharmacies surveyed were not scientifically selected, the true range of prices cannot be less than those found in the study, AARP said.

The report said there were large state-to-state differences in drug

Source: American Association of Retired Persons costs, with Hawaii and Alaska having the highest overall average prices and Florida the lowest, but AARP could not immediately provide actual figures for the states.

There were big differences within states as well.

In New York, for example, the price for Dyazide, a medication for high blood pressure and extra fluid in the body, varied from $20 to $45 in six communities. In Pennsylvania, one pharmacy had an average price of $15.88 for certain drugs surveyed while another had an average of $31.36.

Drugs included in the survey were: Dyazide; Procardia; Slow-K and its generic, potassium chloride TR, used to treat the need for more potassium; Hydrodiuril and its generic, hydrochlorothiazide, for high blood pressure and extra fluid in the body; Isordil and its generic, isosorbide, for chest pain; Cardizem, chest pain; Lasix, and its generic, furosemide, for high blood pressure and extra fluid; Tenormin, high blood pressure; Inderal and its generic, propranolol, for high blood pressure and chest pain; and Tagamet, ulcers.

The survey did not include Idaho, Maine, Nevada, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Wyoming or the District of Columbia.

Fish 14, Bush 0

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — The vacation was 14 days old and the standings were: Fish-14, President Bush-0. The presidential patience appeared to be wearing thin.

Sure he was worried about the drug lords in Colombia and the civil war in Lebanon. But the other thing bugging Bush as he relaxed on the coast of Maine was why the heck couldn't he catch a fish.

Despite daily excursions in his speedboat Fidelity — sometimes twice daily — to ply the ocean off his seaside home, the president failed to reel one in.

He tried all kinds of lures and a variety of fishing partners — from grandchildren to visiting dignitaries — but still came up with an empty line.

He canceled an afternoon of golf

Sunday in favor of a fishing jaunt, and on Monday morning decided to forego his 6:30 a.m. jog to try again.

On the advice of longtime fishing buddy Bob Boilard the president even ordered the Secret Service to keep extraneous boats, including the small flotilla of press chase boats, 500 feet away on the theory that the vessels might be scaring off the fish.

Still no luck.

Bush tried not to show dismay, and Barbara Bush claimed the president wasn't bothered a bit. But there were signs it was getting to be something of a sore subject.

"The fishing's been lousy," he confided to reporters at the end of the first fishless week. "I fish every single day and haven't got one."

Eventually there were inklings of a Hemingwayesque obsession, as he talked of having a "rendezvous with bluefish." He laid down a decree: "I guarantee there will be fish caught."

Consumers Still Buying Generics Despite Concerns

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Consumer advocates and physicians say there's no reason to doubt the safety and effectiveness of most generic drugs, and consumers appear to be heeding that advice.

"I don't think there's panic in the streets. I think they're concerned," said Harold Cohen, editor of the trade publication Drug Store News-Inside Pharmacy, referring to drug consumers.

Cohen, who has been visiting pharmacies in St. Louis, Phoenix and Washington D.C. for the past week, said Monday he saw few customers switching from a generic to a brand-name drug.

"As far as we know there is no problem with safety at this time and no problem that is one that would make people stop taking generic drugs," Dr. Frank Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said today.

"If you are concerned, see your physician, but don't switch without really checking with someone first," he said on "CBS This Morning."

Disclosures of fraud and corruption in the FDA's generic drug division have tainted the agency's reputation and cast doubts on the industry as well as the safety and efficacy of generic medicines.

"We are just as shocked, dismayed and angry as I think consumers are with the despicable events that were perpetrated by a few generic companies," Young said, adding that "we're not going to rest until this is cleaned up."

Young's assurances of the safety of generics echoed those of other physicians and consumer advocates.

"At the present time, there's no evidence that any generic drugs out there in the pharmacies lack safety or effectiveness," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the Public Citizen Health Research Group.

Dr. Ray W. Gifford, a trustee of the American Medical Association who is also an internist at the Cleveland Clinic and a clinical pharmacologist, agreed.

"What we've seen in the past few weeks is regrettable, but I don't think it reflects all generics and it really hasn't changed my prescribing habits," he said.

However, Gifford said, most physicians already insist on brand-name drugs for certain hard-to-treat conditions, such as congestive heart failure.

"There doesn't seem to be a surge of phone calls or people bringing back bags of drugs," said James Krahulec, vice president of government affairs for Rite Aid, the nation's largest drugstore chain.

Krahulec said his chain was surveying its nearly 2,300 stores to gauge public reaction to the scandal enveloping the generic drug industry, but "no one has called in with panic information."

The FDA has initiated steps in the past month to pull from the market products manufactured by several generic drug companies.

In the latest move, the agency said Monday it wants to remove Bolar Pharmaceuticals Co. Inc.'s generic version of Dyazide, a popular drug used to treat high blood pressure. The FDA said it found no evidence of fraud.

The Copiague, N.Y.-based Bolar, which says it will appeal within the 30-day limit, said the problem stems from confusion over a clerical error in identification of samples used in safety tests.

The FDA also has expanded federal inspections of 11 generic drug makers to include the plants of 20 additional generic companies and is reviewing 30 of the most commonly used generic drugs.

Crack User Draws Life For Letting Man Rape Daughter

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — A judge rejected a crack user's plea for leniency and sentenced her to life imprisonment for letting a man rape her 13-year-old daughter to pay drug debts.

Judge James J. Rashid said Tuesday that Susan Barbier "sunk to an intolerable level of humanity," and showed no potential for rehabilitation.

Barbier, 29, who could be paroled in 10 years, was convicted of first-degree criminal sexual conduct for giving her daughter to a man who raped her twice.

Anthony Sawyer, 28, was convicted on the charge and was sentenced by another judge Thursday 40 to 60 years in prison.

Barbier maintained her innocence. In a letter to Rashid dated Aug. 18, she said: "I feel I have been punished enough," in losing her children to her ex-husband, the letter said. "The last two years of my life has been nothing but tragedy."

Rashid said he imposed more than the 10 to 25 years called for in sentencing guidelines because they "don't accurately reflect the nature of this crime."

"Your daughter trusted you and you abused that trust beyond all bounds of decency," Rashid told Barbier.

"This case demonstrates tragically the far-reaching impact of drugs on innocent people," the Wayne County circuit judge said. "I have not heard of such a situation where drugs were responsible for a mother subjecting her own daughter to sexual abuse."

Sawyer testified that Barbier offered her daughter to settle a drug debt, then smoked crack with him after the attack.

Assistant Prosecutor Kelly Ramsey said Barbier's daughter called the May 1988 rape the worst hour of her life.

"The child is grateful her pain is finally over," Ramsey said after Tuesday's sentencing. "She can begin rebuilding herself."

The victim, now 14, had written a two-page statement before sentencing, but was too shaken to read it in court, said her father, Michael Dare.

"She wanted to ask the judge to keep her mother in prison long enough that she can't endanger (her) younger children," ages 6 and 8, said Dare, 33. "She spent so much time taking care of those kids that she felt like a mother instead of a sister."

Dare said he plans to lobby for legislation easing regulations on taking children away from parents who are drug users.

Wayne County Juvenile Court granted Dare temporary custody of the victim and her sister, 13. The two other children, who are half-sisters, were staying with a relative.

Although Barbier will be eligible for parole in 10 years, Rashid must first be notified and then has authority to deny her release, Ramsey said.

Republican Wins Pepper's District

First Cuban-American Goes To Congress

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — A strong Hispanic turnout helped make Republican Ileana Ros-Lehtinen the first Cuban-American elected to Congress, ending an ethnically divisive campaign for the seat held by Democrat Claude Pepper for 27 years.

"Now it's time to forget our differences and focus on unity... we are all Americans," Ms. Ros-Lehtinen said after defeating Democrat Gerald Richman in Tuesday's special election.

During the monthlong campaign, Ms. Ros-Lehtinen refused to debate Richman following claims that his "American seat" theme stirred prejudices against Hispanics.

Richman had said his remark "This is an American seat" was an appeal to voters to decide on qualifications, not birthplace. He also said it was a response to GOP National Chairman Lee Atwater's statement that the party wanted to elect a Cuban-American.

"It was a rough campaign. Wounds from it need to heal," said Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen, 37, a state senator since 1982 and wife of U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen, called on Richman and his supporters to meet to discuss the drug and crime problems facing Miami.

"We do not have the luxury to waste time on divisive politics," she told more than 1,500 cheering supporters, most from Miami's conservative Cuban community. "We must focus on what we have in common and not ponder on the negative."

Pepper, the liberal advocate for the elderly and the only person to hold the seat, died May 30 at age 88.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen's campaign included appearances by President Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle. Her campaign chairman was the president's son, Jeb.

Atwater called the victory a GOP milestone in the South.

"That seat has been a Democratic seat since it was created," he said from Washington. "For us to win it is a major victory."

With all 159 precincts reporting, Ms. Ros-Lehtinen had 49,638 votes, or 53 percent, to Richman's 43,759 votes, or 47 percent. Turnout was 50.6 percent, unusually high for a special election.

The district covers black neighborhoods such as Liberty City, most of Miami, Miami Beach and Miami Springs and sections of blue-collar Hispanic Hialeah and upscale Coral Gables and Key Biscayne.

According to unofficial returns, predominantly Latin precincts had turnouts of more than 60 percent and gave Ms. Ros-Lehtinen 80 to 90 percent.

Richman, a 48-year-old attorney and political novice, conceded that a surprisingly strong Hispanic turnout tipped the election.

"They voted overwhelmingly," said Richman, who counted on heavy backing from black and fellow Jewish voters and the 30,000-plus edge in registered Democrats. "We've got to get everyone in this community to get out and exercise their right to vote. If that had happened, we would have won tonight."

Some of the Cuban exiles at Ms. Ros-Lehtinen's victory gathering said that although her election is symbolic of their assimilation into the United States, they still feel excluded from mainstream America.

"We have brought Ileana to office on our own with no support from others," said Richardo Samter Sr., 55. "We have been trying to cross the bridge that separates us, but we are treated like second-class citizens."

Lynn Files Libel Suit

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Loretta Lynn has filed an $11.5 million libel lawsuit against the tabloid Globe over its story that the country music queen was hospitalized from a drug overdose that left her "near death."

Lynn filed the lawsuit Tuesday in U.S. District Court.

She charges the Globe's Feb. 28 story was fictitious and caused her "serious mental and emotional injuries, damage to her reputation" and loss of money.

The article, under the headline "Loretta Lynn Near Death After Drug Overdose," described an overdose of Demerol, a powerful prescription painkiller.

Dean Heine, vice president of Globe International Inc., the Boca Raton, Fla.-based publisher of the weekly Globe, declined to comment Tuesday on the suit.

Four Are Arrested As Racial Tensions Flare In N.J. Town

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VINELAND, N.J. — Four people were arrested this morning as racial tension and vandalism continued on the streets where a black man was shot and killed by police.

Officers in riot gear doubled their patrols and disbanded small groups of youths to try to prevent a recurrence of the violence and looting that broke out late Monday and early Tuesday.

The mother of Samuel Williams, 26, who was shot Sunday, called for calm as community leaders discussed longer-term solutions to defuse the tension in this city of about 54,000.

Three of the four arrested were jailed on charges of malicious mischief in the overturning of a parked car, and the fourth on a charge of failure to disperse.

There were no arrests in another incident this morning, when about a dozen helmeted officers chased about 10 people after the group yelled obscenities at them. The group later threw bottles and rocks at the officers, but there were no injuries.

"I don't think it's over," said 34-year-old Gary Childers, who has lived in Vineland for about three years. "It's just going to escalate."

After reports of the shooting, nearly 200 people gathered on the city's main street and threw rocks and bottles through store windows. There was looting and about 20 cars were damaged, including police cars that had windshield smashed. Four people were reported injured and 26 people were arrested.

On Tuesday night, about 200 people met at a church with religious and community leaders and heard the victim's mother plead for an end to the violence.

"That's not going to bring my son back," said Lucille Williams, sobbing as other family members cried by her side. "I don't want nobody else killed. One is enough."

"Let's pull together and love each other," she said.

Funeral Set Today For Slain Youth

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Hundreds of people mourned a black teen-ager killed in an attack by a white gang, and officials said the FBI has opened an investigation of the case.

Meanwhile, the head of the school board promised to expand lessons in human relations when the academic year opens next week, with teachers emphasizing the need to increase racial tolerance.

"Plainly, drastic changes are needed," superintendent Ralph A. Fabrizio said after meeting with dozens of community leaders at a Brooklyn school two blocks from where the killing took place last week.

The funeral for 16-year-old Yusef Hawkins was scheduled for today. Many public figures planned to attend, including Gov. Mario Cuomo, Mayor Edward Koch and Manhattan Borough President David Dinkins.

Koch was jeered by a crowd when he arrived at Hawkins' wake Tuesday, and a cousin briefly blocked the front door before the dead youth's father, Moses J. Stewart, led Koch to the coffin. The mayor left through a back door.

Dinkins, who is black, has accused Koch of contributing to racial tensions in the city with abrasive remarks. Dinkins is Koch's leading opponent in next month's Democratic mayoral primary, according to polls.

Also among the estimated 1,600 people attending the wake was the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Mourners were evacuated from the funeral home briefly because of a bomb threat.

Hawkins and three black friends went to the Brooklyn neighborhood of Bensonhurst the night of Aug. 23 to look at a used car for sale. About 30 whites, armed with at least one gun, bats and golf clubs, chased the four and surrounded them.

Hawkins was shot twice in the chest.

Six young white men have been charged with assault, riot and other counts. Five have been released on bail.

One of the six, Joseph Serrano, 20, was arraigned Tuesday and held on $75,000 bail. Assistant District Attorney David Neier told the judge that witnesses had placed Serrano at the scene with a bat and a pistol.

Police continued to search for 18-year-old Joseph Fama, who reportedly has been identified as the gunman.

There have been reports that Fama may have fled to Italy, where his parents were born. Police have asked the State Department to help find him, Sgt. Pete Berry said.

The FBI has begun a preliminary inquiry into Hawkins' death, said Ann Driscoll, a spokeswoman for U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney. The U.S. Attorney's office also has offered assistance to the office of Brooklyn District Attorney Elizabeth Holtzman, which is handling the case.

Such steps are not unusual in cases that may involve federal civil rights violations, Driscoll said.

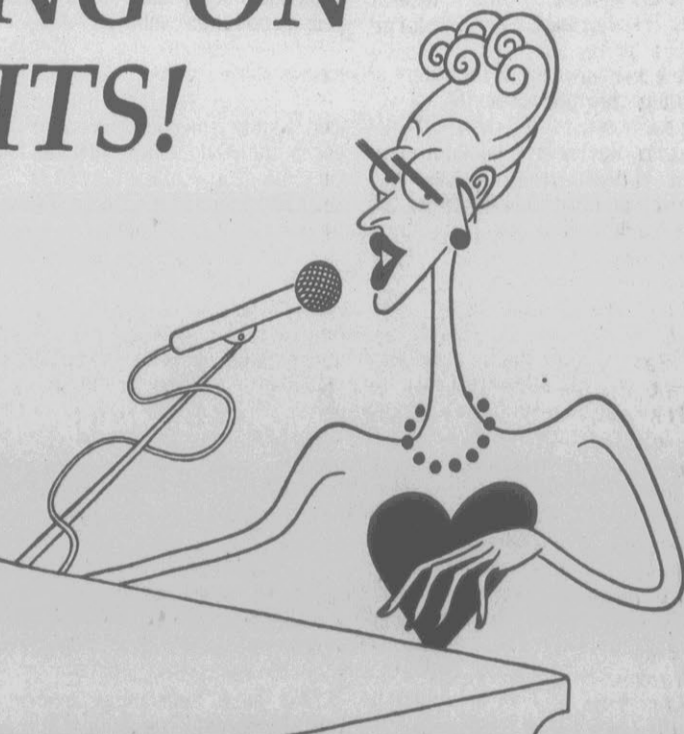

Police said Hawkins and his friends were innocent victims of a feud between the white gang and 18-year-old Gina Feliciano. She had been dating a Hispanic man and invited black friends into the mostly white neighborhood.

Researchers Take Pi To More Than One Billion Digits

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the world of mathematics, Gregory and David Chudnovsky are known for going the extra mile.

Unsatisfied with their record 600-mile-long calculation of pi in June, the brothers more than doubled that record, coming up with a number containing more than a billion digits.

"They're starting more calculations, so it goes on from here," Denis Arvey, a spokesman for IBM, said Tuesday. "I don't know when they're going to stop."

Meanwhile, six California scientists extended man's search into the infinite by determining the world's largest known prime number.

"It's God-awful large," Smith said. "There's nothing in the real universe that is comparable at all, that you measure in those numbers."

Pi is the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter.

Since pi was first approximated at 3 1/7 in ancient Greece, it took centuries and the invention of the computer in recent decades for scientists to calculate the ratio to more than 100,000 decimal places.

But in less than three months, the Chudnovskys extended their record calculation from 480 million decimal places to more than a billion.

The Columbia University researchers did their work on two supercomputers at International Business Machines Corp.'s Thomas J. Watson Research Center in Yorktown Heights, N.Y., the company said.

The new mark of 1,011,196,691 digits appears to be a record, Arvey said.

Peter Renz, associate director of the Mathematical Association of America, said he had not heard of anybody exceeding the researchers' mark.

In June, the Chudnovskys said their 480 million-digit pi would stretch for 600 miles if printed.

At the time, David Chudnovsky said calculating pi to such lengths is useful for testing the performance of computer hardware and software. He called the task "the ultimate stress test."

In California, the six researchers at computer maker Amdahl Corp. spent evenings and weekends during the last year using the company's machines to find the largest prime number.

The number equals 391,581 multiplied by 2 to the 216,193rd power, minus one. To put that in perspective, that's 600 times the number of atoms in the known universe, according to Sergio E. Zarantonello, one of the researchers.

"It's like going to the moon, in a sense. There's not a lot there, but it's important scientifically to do it because the technology proves so useful," researcher Bodo Parady said.

A prime number is any number that can be divided evenly only by 1 and itself.

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the previous record was set in 1985 by David Slowinski of Cray Research Inc., the supercomputer maker. The new number, discovered Aug. 6, has 37 more digits and is a trillion, trillion, trillion times larger.

Sunnyvale, Calif.-based Amdahl said Guinness had accepted the number for entry into the publication.

The discovery was announced at a meeting this week of the American Mathematical Society by Sam Wagstaff Jr., a computer scientist at Purdue University.

Although the number itself has no known practical application, the advanced multiplication programs honed by the researchers during their work already are being used by scientists searching the universe for pulsars, rotating neutron stars.

The process also has applications in cryptology and bank transaction coding, which use large prime numbers.

The other Amdahl researchers were: John Brown, Landon Curt Noll and Gene Ward Smith.

Canyon Pollution Traced To Plant

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Two federal agencies contend that a large Arizona power plant, partly owned by another government agency, is polluting the skies over the Grand Canyon.

But the operator of the plant, one of the nation's largest coal-burning electric facilities, criticizes the National Park Service study.

"We designed and built the Navajo Generating Station to meet all air quality standards," said A.J. Jack Pfister, general manager of the Salt River Project, which operates the plant near Page, Ariz.

"The plant was located to assure that emissions would blow away from the Grand Canyon," he said Tuesday.

The controversy pits the Environmental Protection Agency and the Park Service against the federal Bureau of Reclamation, which owns 24.3 percent of the plant and would be responsible for much of the cost of expensive pollution controls.

Costs estimates to control the pollution range from $300 million to $1 billion.

The government has tried for years to determine to what extent the plant, 80 miles from the center of the Grand Canyon, is responsible for the layers of haze and pollution that cloud the skies during certain times of the year.

The Park Service defends its $2 million study tracking the plant's pollution and favors strong curbs.

But the Bureau of Reclamation sides with plant operators who argue the plant shouldn't be singled out for expensive pollution controls.

Both agencies are part of the Interior Department.

Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan said Tuesday he wasn't prepared to accept the Park Service conclusions, suggesting the National Academy of Sciences conduct a review. That suggestion was widely seen as giving the Bureau of Reclamation the upper hand.

The EPA said Tuesday that pollution from the 2,250-megawatt plant "is a significant contributor to visibility impairment" at the canyon.

The EPA relied heavily on last year's six-week Park Service study, in which plant pollutants were traced using a specially colored chemical.

The Park Service said that during the study, an average 40 percent of the pollution could be traced to the plant, and that the figure reached 70 percent on some days.

"We have substantial evidence that the Navajo Generating Station is a significant contributor to the visibility problem," said F. Henry Habicht, EPA deputy administrator. "Action must be taken now to protect the Grand Canyon."

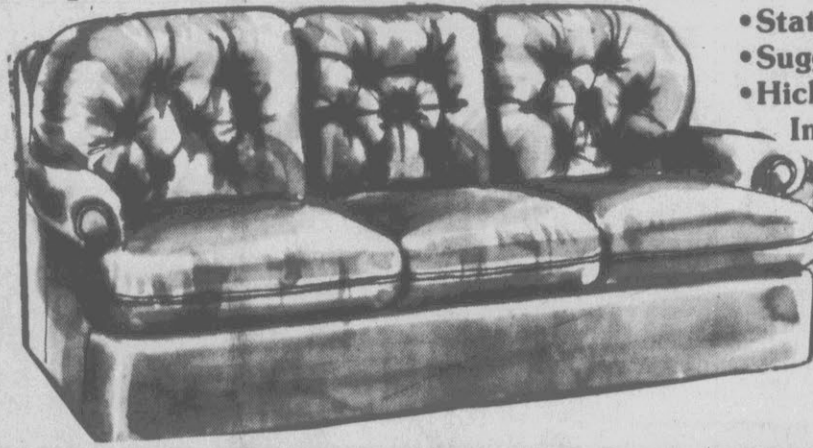

The EPA said it would determine by February how sharp a reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions will be required. Curbs could force the plant to install expensive "scrubbers" or other technology.

Poland Recalls Start Of War

By Drusilla Menaker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — The nation where World War II began will mark the 50th anniversary of the German invasion beginning Thursday with a series of events nearly overshadowed by the startling political events under way.

Joining Communist President Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski at official events will be Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and newly named Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, the first non-communist to head a Polish government in 45 years.

Planned commemorations include an internationally broadcast concert by Leonard Bernstein, speeches at Westerplatte, where the war's first shots were fired, and an international prayer for peace led by a televised message from Polish-born Pope John Paul II.

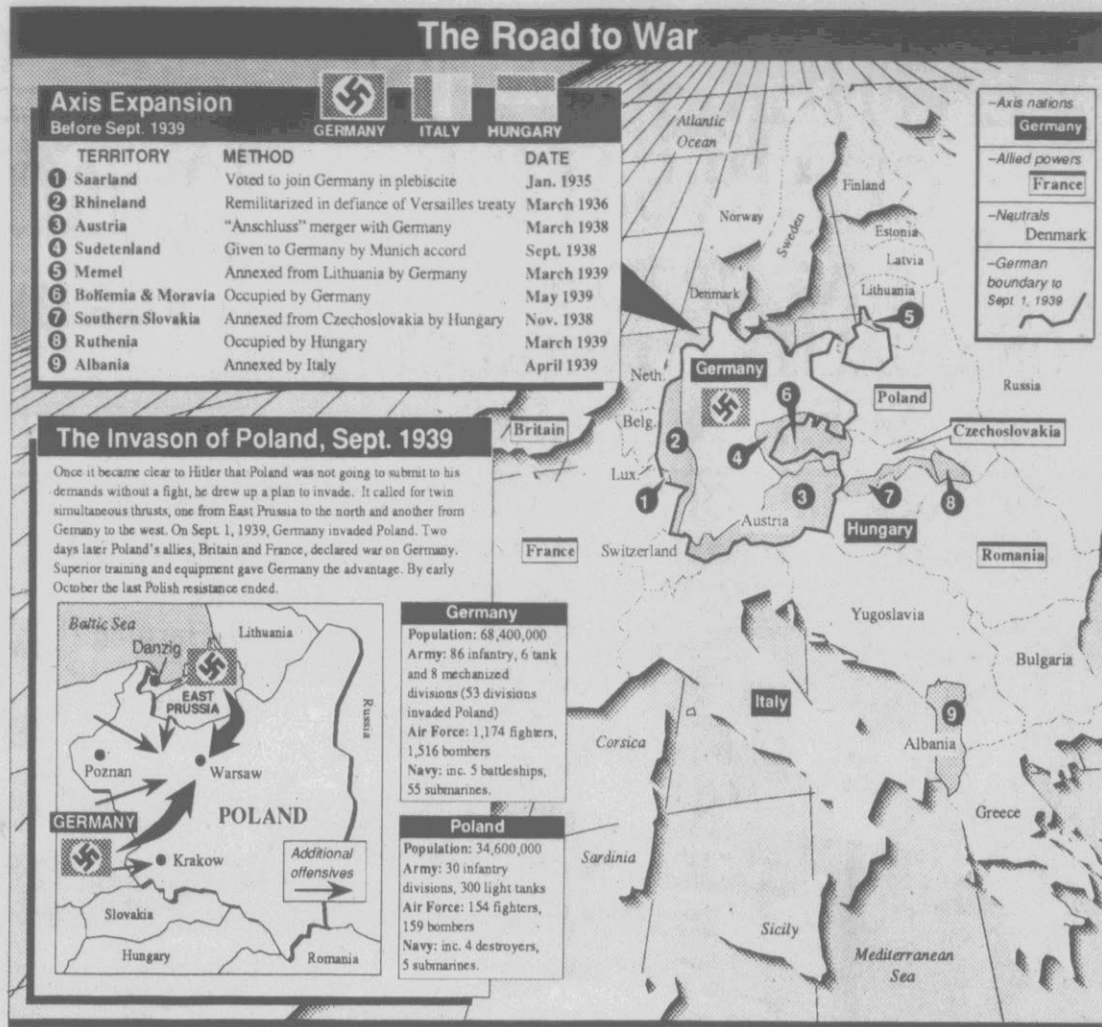

The war has an enduring poignancy in Poland, which alone among countries fought against Hitler from the conflict's start on Sept. 1, 1939, to the victory in Europe on May 9, 1945.

More than 6 million Poles died, a fifth of the population and a higher percentage than any other nation. The toll included 3 million Jews, deported to death camps such as Auschwitz and Treblinka that the Nazis built in the once-obscure Polish villages by those names.

At war's end, 40 percent of Poland's national property was lost and Warsaw was empty and leveled. In the capital, stucco facades of homes still show the scars of battle.

To some, the war's toll continued at the hands of the communist government that took power backed by Soviet dictator Josef Stalin.

"We will pay homage to all victims of the war, we will pay homage to its heroes and we will express the will to live in peace," said Wlodzimierz Lozinski, a spokesman for Jaruzelski.

The commemoration begins one week after Communist and Solidarity lawmakers joined to elect Mazowiecki prime minister. The Solidarity editor heads the first non-communist government in the Soviet bloc.

The events begin tomorrow night with a parade to Victory Square and a changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Jaruzelski, who went to Siberia with his family after the Soviets invaded and later joined the Polish army organized under the Soviets, will lead the ceremony.

On Friday, Jaruzelski, Walesa and others will gather in the Baltic port of Gdansk at the 75-foot granite memorial honoring the defenders of Westerplatte, where the German battleship Schleswig-Holstein fired on a garrison of 182 Polish soldiers to start the war.

War veterans from Poland and the Allies will participate, including about 70 survivors of the attack.

Bernstein will conduct a concert Friday evening at Warsaw's Grand Theater with actress Liv Ullmann and others in a televised benefit for UNICEF.

Bernstein will open with lines from W.H. Auden's poem, "September 1, 1939," and Samuel Pizar, one of the youngest survivors of Auschwitz, will narrate remiscences accompanied by photographs and film of the destruction of Warsaw. Ms. Ullmann will narrate Arnold Schoenberg's cantata "A Survivor From Warsaw."

An International Day of Prayer for Peace will bring together representatives of world religions for conferences and contemplation on Thursday and Friday.

"The lessons we draw from World War II must be drawn for the whole world, for international reconciliation and understanding," said Wladyslaw Klaczynski, an organizer.

The pope is to address his countrymen Friday evening via a television screen set up in the Royal Castle Square at Warsaw's Old City, rebuilt after the being razed by the Nazis.

Jewish groups, representing the few thousand who remain from a population that numbered 3.5 million before the war, will mark the anniversary with a photo exhibition, "Jews in Struggle for Poland," and a service at Warsaw's lone synagogue conducted by the country's only rabbi, Pinchas Menachem Joskowitz, who arrived this spring from Israel.

There will also be wreaths laid at the monument to the Warsaw Ghetto uprising and at Umschlagplatz, where Jews were loaded into railroad boxcars for transport to the death camps.

Three Colombian Judges Step Down

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — Three more judges resigned in Medellin, the nation's cocaine capital, after threats were made by drug lords seeking to halt a government crackdown on narcotics trafficking, authorities said today.

The resignations brought to 108 the number of judges who have quit since the traffickers vowed Aug. 18 to retaliate against the government, police, journalists and others regarded as a threat to the drug empire.

The traffickers have said they will kill 10 judges for every Colombian extradited to the United States to stand trial on drug charges.

The Medellin magistrates, who resigned on Tuesday, had been investigating slayings believed to have been ordered by drug traffickers.

The government, meanwhile, was reported to be preparing to extradite to the United States the first drug figure since the traffickers' terror campaign began two weeks ago.

The effort to extradite Eduardo Martinez Romero, an alleged money manager for the traffickers, is seen a key test of Colombia's will to battle the drug barons. He was arrested in the first days of an unprecedented offensive against trafficking, which began after gunmen hired by the cartel assassinated presidential hopeful Sen. Luis Carlos Galan on Aug. 18.

The syndicated TV news program "Noticiero 24 Horas" reported the Colombian government notified Martinez on Tuesday of plans to extradite him to the United States. He was told he had five working days, or until next Tuesday, to appeal.

A U.S. narcotics official had said earlier that the paperwork was going forward on an extradition request for Martinez, a 35-year-old economist who faces federal charges in Atlanta in a $1.2 billion operation for laundering cocaine profits. He is being held under heavy guard by the investigations division of Colombia's national police force.

The television did not cite a source for its report. A presidential spokesman said he could not give any information, and the U.S. Embassy refuses to comment on extradition proceedings.

President Virgilio Barco re-established the country's extradition treaty as part of a series of emergency measures in the drug crackdown. In raids nationwide, police have seized more than $200 million in real estate including luxurious homes and office buildings, and other property such as airplanes, helicopters and cars. About 11,000 people have been taken into custody.

German, Japanese Companies Pull Magazine Ads

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Japanese and West German companies that ordinarily advertise in weekly U.S. news magazines apparently don't want their products associated with memories of blitzkriegs, gas chambers and death marches.

Time magazine and U.S. News & World Report said Tuesday that some advertisers pulled ads out of their special issues on the 50th anniversary of the outbreak of World War II.

Time and U.S. News declined to identify the advertisers. But the World War II issues were noticeably lacking in ads from Japanese companies, which are heavy advertisers in the magazines.

Newsweek magazine, whose special war coverage was limited to slightly more than two pages of book reviews in its Sept. 4 issue, had a normal amount of advertising from Japanese companies in the issue.

West German companies do not advertise every week in any of the magazines, so it is difficult to determine whether any had pulled ads.

Some of the ads that were pulled were switched to other issues of the magazines, said spokesmen for the magazines.

Lutherans Neutral On Abortion Issue

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Lutherans grappled with the issue of abortion in an assembly that briefly adopted a resolution some considered pro-choice before delegates reconsidered and maintained a neutral position.

As the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's first legislative assembly neared its close today, it recognized that society was in a "time of crisis" about abortion, with "mounting hysteria, fear, polarization and violence."

The newly merged 5.3-million-member denomination settled on a resolution Tuesday that advised "information, counseling and competent Christian guidance" on abortion. This should be "based in the Lutheran traditions of Biblical grounding and social and individual responsibility," the resolution said.

The delegates avoided defining a position about abortion itself, leaving that for a two-year study on sexuality and decision by the next assembly in 1991.

One delegate, Guy Erwin of New Haven, Conn., unsuccessfully sought a speeded up process for developing a stand on this "excruciating, sensitive" issue, adding, "We must begin to lead or be led."

The assembly reconsidered and rejected an originally approved measure that many delegates interpreted as pro-choice.

The Rev. Paul Hinlicky of Delhi, N.Y., exclaimed during the debate, "I will not obey this call for free access to abortion on demand."

A nurse, Betty Jane Reiser of Whitehall, Pa., pleaded for retaining the original, saying "pro-choice allows pro-life. The reverse is not true." To not permit it is "taking away our freedom."

In the end, delegates reinstated a revised version eliminating a phrase calling for provision of "free access to services."

Bishop Herbert W. Chilstrom, church president, said that if the original was taken literally it would be contrary to previous church statements.

The three denominations that merged into the new body had taken varying positions, one seeing human life as beginning at conception, another less definite about it, but both upholding the sanctity of unborn life.

On another topic, the assembly urged "loving care and compassion" toward AIDS sufferers, saying they often have been "met with apathy, indifference or even antagonism and denial."

The church affirmed the "rights and dignity of all persons living with AIDS," and pledged to include them "in the life and worship of the church."

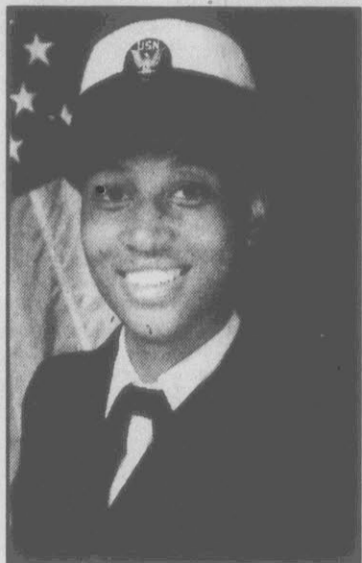

Steps also were taken for fuller inclusion of youngsters in future assemblies, and to provide resources to meet needs of the deaf and other disabled, and also those whose primary language is not English.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market got off to a tentative start today in the wake of Tuesday's retreat led by program trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 0.38 to 2,726.25 at 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Declining issues held a slim lead over advancing ones on the New York Stock Exchange, with 467 down, 459 up and 526 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 22.71 million shares in the first 30 minutes of trading.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 0.20 to 194.67.

Wall Street analysts attributed the selling Tuesday to strategies aimed at profiting from the price differences between stocks and futures based on stock price indices.

Airline stocks continued to attract investors and several appeared on the Big Board's list of actively traded shares in the early going.

Pan Am was unchanged at 4, AMR, parent of American Airlines, rose 1 to 92 1/2 and Delta rose 2 to 84 1/2.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 16.73 to 2,726.63.

Declining issues outnumbered advancing ones by a margin of about 11 to 6 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 640 stocks up, 869 down and 486 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 175.21 million shares, up from 131.18 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 0.98 to 194.47.

gart to read from PTL checklists that included subjects ranging from hotel cleanliness and providing ministers to counsel people after a service.

"So Mr. Bakker was not only taking care of the day-to-day things at PTL — the lights, the cleanliness — he was also looking out for the spiritual welfare of his congregation, wasn't he," Bender asked.

"Yes, salvation was important," Taggart said.

But Taggart also testified that Bakker complained during a visit to Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., just weeks before he resigned that he didn't live as well as other evangelists.

"They were showing us around," Taggart said. "Mr. Bakker said that he lived shabbily compared to Oral Roberts, the (Rex) Humbards and other ministers."

Taggart said electric bills at Bakker's lakefront parsonage in Tega Cay, S.C., usually ran about $1,800 to $2,000 a month because "the pool was kept at a very high temperature ... in the 90s."

Taggart said Bakker always accepted bonuses from the PTL board, even after objecting to them.

In 1986, Taggart testified, the PTL board considered buying a $50 million life insurance policy for Bakker. But the board settled on a $29 million policy that cost PTL more than $857,000 per year.

Taggart also testified that PTL hired a private investigator for at least $5,000 to follow Charlotte Observer Publisher Rolfe Neill, Editor Richard Opper and reporter Charles E. Shepard. The newspaper had published stories on the Bakkers' lavish lifestyles.

If convicted of all 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million.

Bakker quit PTL in 1987 amid revelations about his 1980 sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn and a $265,000 payoff for her silence.

Taggart also said the board of the evangelical empire in 1985 approved borrowing $800,000 for operating expenses while also voting Bakker a $200,000 bonus.

Taggart and his brother James each face 25 years in prison and $1 million in fines for their tax evasion convictions. The two were convicted in July of evading $525,000 in federal income taxes on $1.2 million they received from PTL.

The witness also recounted moving the Bakkers' clothing and other belongings from Tega Cay to a house they owned in Palm Springs, Calif., in 1984. He said the move was made on a private jet at a cost to PTL of $105,000.

Fountain Will Change Trading

Fountain Powerboat Industries Inc. in Washington will move trading of its stock from the over-the-counter market to the American Stock Exchange on Friday, said Kenneth H. Bornstein, company executive vice president.

Bornstein said the move is designed to increase the boat manufacturer's visibility among potential investors. He also said that in AMEX trading, the stock will be less susceptible to fluctuations in price caused by rumors.

Prosecutors also began presenting witnesses who testified about PTL's fund-raising activities as they began building their fraud case against Bakker.

Former PTL advertising copywriter Lois Chalmers, said a campaign for the partnerships offered a David-and-Goliath sculpture touted to be worth $1,000.

But the ministry only paid $10 for them, she said. A silver version of the sculpture in Bakker's office might have been worth $1,000, she said.

Also, a former computer programmer for PTL, Hollis C. Rule, testified that he went to his superiors with concerns that the number of "partnerships" in the ministry's hotels was oversold.

Rule said the number of $1,000 partnerships grew from 44,375 on June 7 to more than 64,000 in September 1985. Additional partnerships were solicited despite Bakker's self-imposed limit of 25,000, Rule said.

Richard Ball, who was vice president of World Outreach at PTL and Rule's boss, said he relayed those concerns to Bakker and another PTL executive in a brief meeting at the television studio.

"They told me not to worry about it," Ball said.

warming the planet to 900 degrees in a runaway "greenhouse effect." It helped alert scientists to how industrial air pollutants threaten to warm Earth, flooding coastal areas and triggering droughts and starvation.

Sherwood Rowland and Mario Molina first warned of depletion of Earth's ozone layer after using chemical formulas devised to help NASA understand Venus' atmosphere, Sagan said.

Sagan and other planetary scientists developed the theory that smoke from nuclear war could plunge Earth into a dark, cold nuclear winter and cause mass starvation of those who survived the exchange of warheads.

"The idea ultimately evolved from our attempt to understand the great Martian dust storm of 1971-72," which was detected by Mariner 9 and chilled Mars' already cold surface, Sagan said.

"The lesson we're learning is that the complexity of the universe is something you'll never imagine without looking at it," U.S. Geological Survey geologist Laurence Soderblom said Tuesday at a final news briefing on Voyager 2.

At Neptune, Voyager discovered six moons in addition to Nereid and Triton, which were first detected

Players Seemed To Heed NFL's Warning

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The NFL's first-ever suspension of steroid users seems to demonstrate that Commissioner Pete Rozelle's warning last March that the crackdown was coming may have worked.

When the first suspensions were announced Tuesday, just 13 players were caught for using the muscle-building substances. Of those, only Pro Bowl guard Ron Solt of the Eagles was of any prominence.

The number seemed to please even the NFL Players Association, which is challenging the accuracy of the testing procedure and the validity of the suspensions.

"The fact that so few players have been suspended for alleged steroid use indicates that the public perception of the steroid problem in the NFL is greatly exaggerated," said Gene Upshaw, executive director of the union and himself a former All-Pro guard.

Meanwhile, the old drug policy caught two more prominent players — All-Pro cornerback Leroy Irvin of the Los Angeles Rams and tight end Orson Mobley of the Denver Broncos. They were suspended for the final exhibition game and the first three regular-season games after testing positive for the second time for illegal substances.

"It hurts me, it disappoints me, but surprise me? No," Coach Dan Reeves of the Broncos said of Mobley's suspension.

They were the second and third players suspended this season under the policy which set down 24 players in 1988. Tony Burse, a fullback for Seattle, was suspended earlier this summer.

The steroid suspension policy was announced last March 21 by Rozelle and a letter detailing the plan was sent 10 days later to all NFL players. Rozelle said he made the announcement so early to allow time for players who might be using steroids to get the substances out of their systems before training camp tests.

In both 1987 and 1988, 6 percent of the players had positive steroid tests at camp, but no suspensions were imposed.

The percentages were much lower this time, and the warnings seem to have worked, even by the testimony of one of those caught, linebacker Mark Mraz of the Los Angeles Raiders.

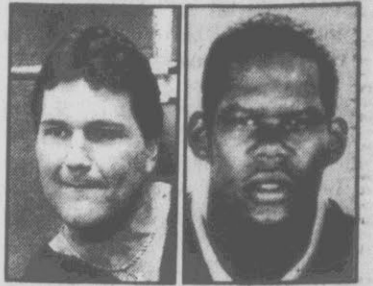

"He was very disappointed and very emotional," Raiders coach Mike Shanahan said of Mraz. "He said he was aware of the new policy since April 1. He informed me that he had not been on them since then."

But Coach Lindy Infante of Green Bay, who lost offensive linemen Keith Uecker and Mike Ariey, said the warnings may not have been enough.

The 13 players from eight teams also include three from the Buffalo Bills — brothers Tom Doctor, a linebacker, and Sean Doctor, a fullback, and linebacker Matt Jaworski.

Others suspended were defensive back Maurice Douglass of the Chicago Bears, running back Vince Amoa and wide receiver Bobby Riley, both of the New York Jets, tight end Vernon Kirk of the Los Angeles Rams, and running back Keith Henderson and nose tackle Rollin Putzier of the San Francisco 49ers.

Irvin and Mobley fell under the policy for illegal substances that took effect last season.

Dawkins Set For Return

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — All things considered, Johnny Dawkins would rather be playing basketball.

The former Duke star had a healthy dose of the alternative last year, missing 50 games for the San Antonio Spurs with a nerve problem in his left leg and foot.

"It made me very hungry for the game of basketball," said Dawkins, who said he feels "100 percent" healthy.

Now he's expected to start at point guard for the Philadelphia 76ers, who traded 11-year veteran guard and four-time All-Star Maurice Cheeks to get him.

"You don't replace a Maurice Cheeks. He's a great player," said Dawkins, who at 25 is seven years younger than Cheeks. "I do play basketball and think I'm a good player."

Dawkins said he hopes 76ers fans "keep an open mind" toward him after Monday's deal.

"I think if they do that they'll be pleasantly surprised."

Philadelphia obtained Dawkins and forward Jay Vincent from the Spurs for Cheeks, the NBA career leader in steals with 1,942, and a pair of reserves, center Chris Welp and guard David Wingate.

Dawkins last year averaged 17.7 points and 7.6 assists through the first 23 games before his injury, then missed 50 of 59 games. But he's seven years younger than the 32-year-old Cheeks and the Sixers say he may be able to play another eight years. Dawkins said ice treatments caused the nerve problem.

"I don't think I'll be doing too much icing," he said.

Evert Opens Strong Shriver's Loss Leaves Questions

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Chris Evert knows where she is headed. Pam Shriver has no idea where she's going.

Evert, the six-time U.S. Open champion who has announced she is playing a major tournament for the final time, won her first-round match before an adoring crowd that greeted her every move with warm applause and cheers. Shriver, not at all sure what she wants to do with her life, was eliminated.

Evert brought a bouquet of sunshine to a humid, overcast day that ended with heavy rain and a suspension of play. Ivan Lendl was ahead 6-1, 7-6, 2-0 against Diego Perez when the match was halted. French Open champion Michael Chang didn't get a chance to start.

But the fans were there mainly to see Evert win her 98th Open match, a record. They got what they sought as she beat Bettina Fulco of Argentina 6-4, 6-2.

"I'm aware of the people's reaction," she said. "I feel that they're a little more supportive because it is my last U.S. Open."

"I could get real emotional if I let myself. But I can't do it because I don't want to forget why I'm out there — and I'm not out there for them to clap and praise and thank me for all of the years of tennis. I'm out there to win a tennis match."

"I'm trying to not let it filter in and think about it emotionally." While Evert is fighting the emotions, Shriver is trying to get them flowing again. She was totally uninspired in losing to Larisa Savchenko of the Soviet Union 6-2, 6-3.

"I think in order to beat Savchenko, you have to be really eager and really strong mentally and physically and get out there and want to battle the games out," Shriver said after lasting just 55 minutes against Savchenko. "The emotions of a good effort just didn't get started."

Shriver hasn't gotten started all year, falling from fifth to ninth in the rankings, and is wondering if she can make the commitment necessary to stay near the top.

"I've got to start enjoying myself a little bit, or else in the next six months to a year, I'll seriously start thinking about what else I can do with my time," Shriver said.

Before the storms hit, suspending seven matches in progress and postponing 14, Martina Navratilova, Jimmy Connors, Stefan Edberg, Andre Agassi, Gabriela Sabatini, Tim Mayotte and Hana Mandlikova advanced.

Today, Lendl was to finish his match, while Evert returned to the court against Elise Burgin. Ironically, Burgin was bumped from the 1988 U.S. Olympic team when Evert decided to play in Seoul.

Also in action today were Navratilova, Steffi Graf, John McEnroe, Mats Wilander and Michael Chang.

Evert admitted she isn't expecting to win her 19th Grand Slam crown. "The first round, all you want to do is get by it," she said. "I certainly didn't impress myself much."

"I'm not even thinking about winning the tournament. I haven't even played a full year. I'm not really match tough. It would be almost a miracle for me to win this tournament."

Aikman Leading QB Derby; Johnson Mum

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cornerback Everson Walls, deciding to play soothsayer, predicts that Coach Jimmy Johnson will pick Troy Aikman over Steve Walsh as the Dallas Cowboys' starting quarterback.

"I think it will be Troy, and nothing against Steve," Walls said. "I think he (coach Jimmy Johnson) will pick Troy."

"Johnson has to pick between two different styles. There is a lot of pressure on both of them. I think Steve has played well, but Troy will make fewer mistakes."

Aikman Walsh

Johnson has refused to make a decision on which of his rookies will get the job because "we owe it to the fans who come out to the game to announce it then." Johnson said the lineup that takes the field for Saturday night's exhibition game against the Houston Oilers will get the call for the regular-season opener as well.

Asked how they looked in practice on Tuesday, Johnson grinned and said: "Good — they both looked real good."

Aikman was the NFL's top pick in the regular draft. Walsh was the top pick in the supplemental draft, taken by the Cowboys after Atlanta passed on him.

Walsh talked on Tuesday like he already thinks Aikman will be the pick. "The coaches have made a big emotional commitment to Troy," Walsh said. "He was touted as the next Roger Staubach."

"I think the competition has been as fair as it was capable of being considering that I reported late."

Can Walsh, who played for Johnson at the University of Miami, look into his coach's eyes and tell what he's thinking?

"Oh, he gives you different reads on different days," Walsh said. "I think we both have surprised the coaching staff. We've both shown we have the ability to move the team."

Walsh said he would be unhappy if he's not the one.

"I'll be disappointed," he said, "but I'll go along with what coach Johnson says. At least the second guy will get to play. The second guy will get more work than, say, the backup to Dan Marino in Miami."

Johnson has said he plans to play his second-team quarterback at any time although he will not go to a two-quarterback system.

Panthers Face Big Challenge

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

For the second week in a row, North Pitt's Panthers must come up with a game plan to stop one of the top offensive performers in the East.

Last week, North Pitt, a 2-A school, fell to 3-A West Craven, 27-13, as running back Lee Becton ran for 225 yards.

Next up is 1-A power North Edgecombe and versatile quarterback Orlando Whitaker, who has 45 career touchdown passes.

Other top games in the area include Roanoke at Farmville and Conley at Ayden-Grifton.

The Warriors fell in their season opener, 30-14, to Farmville, despite 142 yards and one touchdown passing from Whitaker.

"We're just going to have to go in and play our defense against them," North Pitt coach Stuart Ennis said. "They are going to cause problems because of the multiple formations they use. They'll go to some one-back set-

Martin Closes Book With Heels

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Kennard Martin, saying he wants to turn the page on the past, has declared his North Carolina football career over.

"I just didn't think I would feel comfortable there. Too many things happened there," Martin said. "I want to put all that in the past, turn the page and keep on going."

Martin, who was suspended from the North Carolina team for what coach Mack Brown called "academic inconsistencies," said he will attend classes in High Point. He said he would attempt to transfer to a Division I-A school in the spring.

Brown gave Martin the option of staying on scholarship this year with the possibility of being reinstated to the team for next season. But Martin, who led the ACC in rushing with 1,146 yards last season, turned down the offer.

"I'd like to transfer somewhere, anywhere really, so I can play football again next season," Martin said in a telephone interview with The Charlotte Observer from his home in Winston-Salem. "I don't have any particular school in mind yet. I haven't talked to any (schools) yet, but I will try to pretty soon."

Martin was suspended from the team in 1987 by then-coach Dick Crum after failing a drug test. Last year, he had one of the top comebacks in college football despite the Tar Heels' 1-10 record. Last spring, he was arrested and charged with stealing another student's textbooks, but an Orange County grand jury decided not to hear the case.

Sports Notes

Lewis Glad To See The Heat

High temperatures accompanied a two and a half hour practice for East Carolina's football team on Tuesday as it continued preparing for its season opener.

Head coach Bill Lewis said his team was beginning preparations for its first opponent, Bowling Green, and that Tuesday's practice would be typical of things to come.

"Today was a good example of what our team can expect of Tuesday practices for the rest of the season," Lewis said. "It's a day when we begin looking at the other team and start preparing for the upcoming game."

Lewis said the heat was a plus and that he hoped that it would continue because his team needs to be prepared for the high temperatures that are typical in the early part of the season.

One down note for the Pirates was the injury of sophomore outside linebacker Ken Burnette. A welcome surprise during spring drills, Burnette went down with a new injury on Tuesday and could be out until the third or fourth week of the season.

In other notes, freshman tight end Carlester Crumpler, a former Rose player, underwent surgery on both of his shoulders and will be redshirted.

Fullback Rich Cameron is still out indefinitely with a knee injury. The Pirates will hold a closed scrimmage tonight.

ECU Booters Hold Scrimmage

MOUNT OLIVE — East Carolina scrimmaged Mount Olive College in soccer Tuesday as the Pirates prepare for the upcoming season. The two battled to a scoreless tie.

Head coach Bob Lust said he was pleased with the effort of the team on defense, but was disappointed in the offensive showing.

"We generally dominated play and did well on defense stopping goals, but we couldn't get the ball in to score," Lust said. "The defense has been doing well so far in practice and again today. The offense is lagging behind. We are building and creating opportunities, but we just aren't converting them."

ECU took 19 shots on goal as compared to five by Mount Olive. ECU had 10 corner kicks while the Trojans had three.

Freshman goalie Todd Aspdren recorded two saves. ECU opens the season on Friday, traveling to the University of Richmond.

Fall Tennis Programs Are Set

The City of Greenville Closed Mixed Doubles championships will be held Sept. 5-10. Events are offered for both adults and juniors.

The deadline for entries is Friday at 5 p.m. To enter, contact the River Birch Tennis Center at 830-4559.

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is also sponsoring several tennis leagues starting the week of Sept. 17. Men's and women's league play will involve competition between other towns with play on Sunday afternoons at 2 p.m. and Tuesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. A local league, the Domino's Pizza Team Tennis League, will play Sunday afternoons at 4 p.m. All levels of play are encouraged to take part. The deadline for signing up at River Birch is Sept. 8.

Registration for adult and junior tennis classes will be held Sept. 5 through Sept. 8, 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at River Birch. Classes are offered for beginners and intermediates and will begin Sept. 11.

Soccer Program Holds Registration

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is continuing its registration for the girls' soccer program. The program is open to girls age 65-15 (age Dec. 1, 1989).

Practice times will be Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday, depending on age group, from 3:30 to 6 p.m. The program begins Sept. 6 and will run through mid-November.

A limited number of spaces is available and a registration fee is charged. For more information, contact Ben James or Duane Grooms at 830-4543 or 830-4550.

ECU Football Parking Plans Given

The implementation of a parking system and the opening of two new paved parking lots should make getting to an East Carolina University football game easier this fall.

Beginning this season, all parking areas are color-coded with the nine lots used for parking for the games. The parking areas located on Ficklen Drive have orange, gold and blue passes and are for private parking only. The new parking lot, located on the corner of Ficklen Drive and Charles Boulevard, is for general public parking and may be entered from Charles Boulevard only.

Additional Pirate Club parking is located behind Scales Field House and will have white and purple passes. The lots may be accessed from the Pirate Club entrance on Berkley Road or off Fields Street.

Recreational vehicles and Pirate Club semi-private parking will be red-colored and access will be Charles Boulevard.

General public parking will also be available at the Allied Health parking lots and behind Harrington Field on the corner of Charles and Greenville boulevards.

ECU officials have stressed that there will be no parking at Elmhurst Elementary School this year and cars parked there will be towed at owners' expense. Also, no general public vehicles will be allowed to enter Ficklen Drive.

Suggested routes for general public parking at Minges Coliseum would be to enter Charles from Greenville Boulevard or 14th Street; for Harrington Field parking, enter Charles from Greenville Boulevard; or for Allied Health parking to enter Charles from either 10th or 14th streets or Greenville Boulevard.

For more information, contact the Pirate Club at 757-6178.

Strange Fined For PGA Outburst

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — It was a flare of anger during the heat of competition, but it was a mistake nevertheless, U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange said.

"I am truly sorry," for an outburst that prompted a fine from the PGA Tour, Strange said Tuesday.

"I want my two sons (Thomas, 7, and David, 4) to know that their dad can see he made a mistake, admit it, and grow from it," Strange said in a statement released by the Tour.

Schedule Gives Terps Opportunity

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Joe Krivac has seen the days when Maryland reigned atop the Atlantic Coast Conference. It was the early 1980s and he was an assistant coach under Bobby Ross.

Now entering his third year as the Terps' head coach, Krivac is determined to bring the Maryland program back to that level of superiority. The 1989 schedule provides the opportunity but the question remains will the Terps' be up to the task?

"The one big hurdle we've got to overcome is we've got a very difficult early schedule," Krivac said. "We've got to jump in against the two preseason conference picks, N.C. State (Sept. 2) and Clemson (Sept. 23), and we've got both of them on the road. Then you've got sprinkled in there a team that played for the national championship, West Virginia (Sept. 9), then throw in the MAC Conference champion Western Michigan (Sept. 16) and the Big 10 champion Michigan (Sept. 30)."

"It's a schedule that has five bowl teams. We've got to start with three of them on the road and five of those teams are picked in the preseason top 20. It's the type of schedule that gives us a tremendous amount of opportunity because, if we're good enough, it will put us right back up where we want to be. It certainly offers us a tremendous challenge."

The Terps have experience and talent on offense but the defense is young and untested. How that defense develops will ultimately determine Maryland's fate in 1989.

"We've got two extremes on our football team this year," Krivac said. "We've got a relatively young defense and a pretty salty, veteran type of offense."

"Offensively we'll be pretty junior- and senior-laden. We've got some people who can run on defense and we've got some size. Even though it's a young defense, if they can hang together and hang in there during those first five or so ball games, it's the type of defense that's going to get better as the year goes along."

Maryland's greatest asset is perhaps senior quarterback Neil O'Donnell, who started all 11 games in 1988, passing for 1,973 yards with 12 touchdowns and 11 interceptions. He hit on 160 of 267 of his tosses for an impressive 59.9 percent.

"Neil O'Donnell, I think, is one of the premier quarterbacks in the league," Krivac said. "He's a big, strong kid that can move around pretty good and can make some things happen. He has a great work ethic and is a very productive player. I think he'll be one of the better quarterbacks in the East."

Junior Scott Zolac will back up O'Donnell.

The backfield is thin but does have some talent in senior tailback Bren Lowery and senior fullback Dennis Spinelli. Ricky Johnson is the top reserve behind Lowery while junior Doug Stump and freshmen Darren Colvin and Cornell Rigby provide depth at fullback.

Another concern for Krivac is replacing place-kicker Dan Plock, who converted 17 of 22 field goals and each of his 27 PAT last year. Sophomores Fred Ensign and Eric Elfus and freshman Dan D'Orazio are battling for the job.

Punter Dan DeArmas is back for his sophomore campaign.

Washington Redskins
Quarterback Doug Williams and running back Kelvin Bryant were placed on the non-football injury list by the Redskins, who also cut 13 players, including rookie quarterback Jeff Graham, and put three players on injured reserve.

Kansas City Chiefs
The Chiefs signed free agent safety

Kenny Hill and waived 10 players.

Hill, who played eight seasons with the Raiders and the New York Giants, was released earlier by the Giants. He has six interceptions and seven fumble recoveries since being drafted by the Raiders in 1980 from Yale.

Waived were two rookies — safety Jack Phillips, a ninth-round draft pick from Alcorn State, and wide receiver Robert Oliver, a free agent from Western Michigan — along with quarterback Steve Slayden, fullback Tom Kelleher, wide receiver Albert Bell, defensive tackle Bob Standifer, cornerbacks Greg Hill and Calvin Loveall, former ECU safety Ellis Dillahunt and center Gerry Feehery.

Pittsburgh Steelers
The Steelers cut a number of veterans, most notably defensive end Keith Gary, while also placing former ECU linebacker Vinson Smith on injured reserve.

Smith signed with the Steelers last spring as a plan B free agent. He had been battling all training camp for one of the outside linebacker spots. He has previously played for the Atlanta Falcons during the 1988 season, part of which he spent on injured reserve.

tings, and they'll also go to one back and put him in motion with the quarterback in the shotgun."

Those offensive variations give Whitaker room to move around in the backfield by expanding the pocket and also opens up the field. The Warriors also send more people out on pass patterns, which puts pressure on opposing linebackers, and in some cases defensive ends.

"I think that when you are covering an offense like that, you're worried about the actual coverage itself," Ennis said. "We're going to defend all the formations. It's just a matter of if you're in pass coverage, especially man, you have to use some people for coverage that are not defensive backs."

In North Pitt's case, that could mean extra work for linebackers

Reggie Daniels and Reggie Cox. Last year, North Edgecombe did a good job of taking away the Panthers' option game with the use of a 5-4 defense en route to a 13-7 overtime win. Against Farmville, the Warriors used two other defensive sets and Ennis is preparing for all three for Friday night.

Farmville vs. Roanoke
Farmville, fresh off a 30-14 season-opening win over North Edgecombe, takes on Roanoke at home Friday at 8 p.m.

The Redskins are in their first year in the 1-A ranks, having moved to the Tobacco Belt Conference from the Northeastern 2-A.

The Redskins feature a new quarterback in sophomore Marcus Crandall, whose development has allowed Roanoke coach Dock Ayers to use multi-talented Jimmy Brown in a number of positions.

Last year, Brown played quarterback, but Ayers is planning on using him at running back, wide receiver and tight end this season.

"I think Roanoke will be a very quick, enthusiastic team," Farmville coach Dixon Sauls said. "They have new life moving into the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference. I expect them to try and throw the ball, to spread us out and try to take advantage of their quickness."

Farmville is led by junior quarterback Morris Foreman, who ran for two touchdowns and passed for another against North Edgecombe. Sauls would like to get some more running room for tailbacks Rasel Daniels and Bernard Newsome on the outside.

"The caliber of backs we have, all have excellent speed so we need them out in the open field some," Sauls said. "One or two guys missing a block on the inside and it looks terrible. We don't even get out of the backfield."

Roanoke plays an eight-man front, so the Jaguars may look to go inside first with fullbacks Calvin Jordan and Lenwood Mercer.

Ayden-Grifton
Ayden-Grifton opened the season with a 20-6 win over 1-A

Richlands that featured some steady play by an untested Charger offensive line.

The Chargers returned no starters off last year's line, but the newcomers came through in the season opener.

What little experience the Chargers do have, though, is in the offensive backfield with running backs Rashid Williams (10 carries, 92 yards), Ricardo Gamble (13 carries, 75 yards) and Scott Cannon (7 carries, 32 yards) who had gotten extensive playing experience last year.

"Overall, I thought we executed our running game," Charger coach B.T. Chappell said. "We did a better job than I anticipated. Our backs held on to the ball. The offensive line did a pretty good job. It seemed like we were pretty matched up with another team."

The Chargers are young just about everywhere except the backfield. They have only one senior in the line in guard James Williams, and little experience at the ends or at quarterback.

"We were looking to pass the ball more," Chappell said. "We completed one to us and one to them."

"It's hard with a quarterback in his first time (out there). He (Jay Tripp) passed more in his first game than he did all last year."

Boston Bombs California; Yanks Just Self-Destruct

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even in the midst of what could be their worst season in 77 years, the New York Yankees haven't lost the ability to go the Boston Red Sox one better.

While the red-hot Red Sox were scoring nine runs in an inning en route to a doubleheader sweep of the California Angels, the ice-cold Yankees were giving up 10 in one inning in a 19-5 bashing by the Oakland Athletics.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, the American League East, as well as the AL West, is now a three-team race.

"Four games back with 30 to go, that says we're alive," Boston reliever Rob Murphy said after the Red Sox collected 14 hits in the opener and 16 in the 7½-inning, rain-shortened nightcap in pounding the Angels 8-4 and 13-5.

Baltimore leads Toronto by a game and Boston by four in the East while Oakland boosted its lead in the West to three games over California, with Kansas City remaining four back.

Jose Canseco powered Oakland's 18-hit attack with a pair of tape-measure homers. His first, a two-run shot off Chuck Cary, tied the game 3-3 in the third inning — the Yankees actually led 3-0 — and cleared the second fence in front of the visitors' bullpen in left-center field. His second, a three-run blast off Greg Cadaret, capped a club record-tying 10-run fifth inning. This one sailed into Yankee Stadium's Monument Park in left-center, an estimated 442 feet from home plate.

Red Sox 8-13, Angels 4-5
Wade Boggs had a pair of singles in a nine-run fourth inning as Boston stretched its winning streak to nine games by sweeping California. In the opener, Boston shelled Bert Blyleven, 14-3, for seven runs in three innings and ended his 10-game winning streak.

The Red Sox led 3-2 in the nightcap when they broke it open with nine runs on seven hits, four walks, a hit batsman and a couple of wild pitches.

In the opener, Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a homer and a single as Boston handed Blyleven

Indians 3, Orioles 1
Brad Komminsk hit a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth as Cleveland ended Baltimore's four-game winning streak. Komminsk hit a 2-0 pitch over the center-field fence for his seventh home run as Cleveland snapped a three-game losing streak. The homer was the Indians' ninth hit off rookie Pete Harnisch, who is 0-10 in 11 career starts on the road.

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 2
Fred McGriff, the AL home run leader, snapped a 2-2 tie with his second of the game and 35th of the season in the seventh inning. McGriff lined reliever Donn Pall's 3-2 offering just over the fence in right with two out. The Blue Jays had tied the game 2-2 on consecutive homers by George Bell and McGriff off Melido Perez in the fifth.

Royals 12, Tigers 8
Kurt Stillwell drove in three runs and he and Jim Eisenreich each had three of Kansas City's 17 hits as the Royals handed Detroit its 10th straight loss. The Tigers are 0-9 on their worst road trip since 1960.

Mariners 5, Brewers 3
Rookie Erik Hanson, just back from the minors, snapped Seattle's club record-tying 12-game losing streak by blanking Milwaukee until the ninth inning. Hanson allowed four hits, the last one being Robin Yount's 16th homer, a three-run shot with two out in the ninth inning.

Rangers 4, Twins 2
Geno Petralli's RBI single broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning as Texas snapped Minnesota's season-high six-game winning streak. Drew Hall pitched three hitless innings of relief for his first AL victory and Jeff Russell, the Rangers' fifth pitcher, went two innings for his club-record 30th save. Loser Rick Aguilera allowed the four Texas runs and nine hits in 7½ innings.

National League

All by himself, Von Hayes is making the National League West race more interesting. A cool trick, considering he plays in the East.

Hayes hit three home runs and drove in six runs Tuesday night as the Philadelphia Phillies won at San Francisco 6-1. In two days at Candlestick Park, Hayes is 5-for-8 with three homers, two doubles, seven RBIs and six runs scored.

The Giants lost for the fourth time in five games and have dropped nine of 15, including six of the last seven at home. They are still four games ahead of Houston, but San Diego has won six straight and has pulled to within six games of the top.

Cubs 10, Astros 9
At Wrigley Field, Chicago rallied from a 9-0 deficit after five innings, winning it in the 10th on Dwight Smith's single with the bases loaded.

Rafael Ramirez hit a grand slam, a two-run double and drove in a team-record seven runs for Houston. But the Cubs came back to win their third straight game and send the Astros to their seventh loss in eight tries.

Mets 2, Dodgers 1
David Cone threw a four-hitter and New York won a pitching duel at Dodger Stadium for the second straight night.

Cone, 12-6, won for the ninth time in 10 decisions. He retired 19 of the last 20 batters.

Cardinals 4, Reds 2
In St. Louis, Joe Magrane got his league-leading 18th victory, winning his seventh straight decision as the Cardinals won for the 12th time in 16 games.

Magrane, 18-7, has won 13 of his last 14 starts. He gave up eight hits in his league-leading ninth complete game and is tied Oakland's Dave Stewart for most victories in the majors.

Padres 2, Expos 1
Luis Salazar's infield hit scored Marvell Wynne from third base with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning as San Diego got closer to first place than it has been since June 9. Montreal fell four games behind Chicago in the NL East.

Pirates 5, Braves 4
Andy Van Slyke drove in two runs as Pittsburgh beat visiting Atlanta despite two homers by Oddibe McDowell.

Doug Drabek, 11-10, pitched 7½ innings and Bill Landrum finished for his 19th save. Tom Glavine, 12-8, got the loss.

Yankee Exec Resigns; Expos Take Candelaria

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syd Thrift resigned as senior vice president of baseball operations for the New York Yankees Tuesday after just five months on the job and less than two weeks after Dallas Green was fired as manager.

George Steinbrenner, owner of the team, who hired Thrift on March 21, announced the resignation, saying, "He talked to me for a long time earlier today and said that his reasons for leaving the Yankees were personal and as far as I am concerned, they will remain personal."

Later on, speaking before the Yankees' Tuesday night game with Oakland, Steinbrenner insisted: "Syd was not forced out. It was his decision to leave now. I did not ask him to leave."

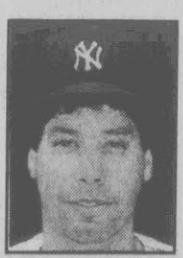

The owner also said he may have rushed Bucky Dent, 2-10 since taking over for Green.

"It's a big move and looking how things have gone, I may have been asking too much," said Steinbrenner, who would not say if he was bringing Dent back next season.

Steinbrenner reportedly was angered that Thrift did not publicly support his dismissal of Green on Aug. 18. There were reports that the owner voiced his displeasure with Thrift at a recent meeting and rumors circulated around Yankee Stadium that a change would be made.

"I hear those rumblings, too," Thrift said Monday, "but they're only distractions to me. I'm constantly hearing it and it makes it hard for me to do my job. The only thing I could probably do differently is work 18 hours a day instead of 16."

Thrift had a five-year, escalating contract starting at $350,000 per year. He was not available for comment and was reported on his way home to Virginia.

Candelaria

After coming to the Yankees, he negotiated trades that brought Jesse Barfield, Walt Terrell, Tom Brookins and Steve Balboni to New York and sent Rickey Henderson to Oakland for three players, Greg Cadaret, Eric Plunk and Luis Polonia. There were reports last week that Steinbrenner had ordered Thrift to trade John Candelaria, Dave Righetti, Ken Phelps, Wayne Tolleson, Hal Morris and Polonia. Candelaria was traded to the Montreal Expos Tuesday.

Baseball Notes

Thrift was senior vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates from 1986 through 1988 before being forced out in a front office power struggle.

Expos Happy With Deal
Candelaria, deemed expendable by Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, was traded Tuesday from New York to the Montreal Expos, who embraced the veteran left-hander as the answer to their bullpen problems.

"He can help us down the stretch," said Montreal's vice president of player personnel, David Dombrowski. The Expos gave up a player to be named to acquire Candelaria.

"John Candelaria fits the description of a veteran pitcher," Dombrowski said. "He's been through it all. He's been on pennant winners. He's pitched in a World Series and he's pitched well under those circumstances."

Essasky In Drivers' Seat
Nick Esasky of the Boston Red Sox is having fun, laughing all the way to the bank.

And the banker, many feel, could be Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner, starting in 1990.

Acquired from Cincinnati in a deal last December, Esasky is enjoying the best year of his career with 26 homers and an American League-leading 93 runs batted in through Monday.

General Manager Lou Gorman, who engineered the deal to get Esasky and relief ace Rob Murphy for Todd Benzinger, Jeff Sellers and a minor league pitcher, is ecstatic.

But there is a drawback. Esasky is resisting Gorman's efforts to sign him to a new contract.

The first baseman, a right-handed slugger from Marietta, Ga., becomes a free agent at the end of the season. And Turner reportedly is ready to pay big, big money to get him and his big bat for Atlanta's cozy stadium.

"The only thing I've decided is not to decide anything now," Esasky said. "I've had a good time here, but I'm going to wait and see what happens."

"I'll think about it when the playing (season) is done. But I guess whatever decision I make some people will be happy and some won't."

Braves Acquire Cabrera
The Atlanta Braves on Tuesday

acquired catcher Francisco Cabrera from the Toronto Blue Jays to complete the trade that sent reliever Jim Acker to Toronto.

The Braves also got reliever Tony Castillo in the deal.

Cabrera, 22, was named the International League Rookie of the Year and was the starting catcher in the Triple A Alliance All-Star game in July. With Syracuse, Toronto's Triple A affiliate, Cabrera was hitting .299 with nine home runs and 71 runs batted in.

The Braves announced that Cabrera would join their Triple A farm club in Richmond on Wednesday.

Top Matchup
Montreal at San Diego (10:05 p.m. EDT). Dennis Martinez (14-4) pitches for the Expos against Ed Whitson (15-9). The 15 victories represent a career high by Whitson.

Slumps, Streaks, Stats & Stars
Baltimore's Pete Harnisch had made 11 career starts on the road. He is 0-10. ... Rafael Palmeiro is 12-for-67 (.179). ... Joe Magrane has won 13 of his last 14 starts. He tied for the major-league lead in victories with 18 as St. Louis defeated Cincinnati 4-2 Tuesday night. ... Gold Glove second baseman Ryne Sandberg has gone 59 games without an error. He had a 61-game streak in 1984.

Von Hayes hit three homers and drove in six runs as Philadelphia beat San Francisco 6-1. ... Rafael Ramirez, Astros, hit a grand slam and drove in seven runs, but Houston lost at Chicago 10-9 in 10 innings. ... Jose Canseco hit two homers and drove in five runs as Oakland routed New York 19-5.

Status:
Al Leiter missed his final start for Toronto's Class A Dunedin team because of, stiffness in his left shoulder. He will be re-examined by Dr. James Andrews in Birmingham, Ala.

Pete O'Brien started for Cleveland after missing six games because of an injured back.

Chris James returned to the San Diego lineup after missing three games because he hurt his right hand in a car door.

Jose Uribe did not start Tuesday because of a sore shoulder. The Giants' shortstop will likely rest today also.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Aug. 31

ARIES (March 20 to April 19): Contact newcomers whose sense of humor is similar to yours and have a good time together. Be sure that you don't drive carelessly or recklessly.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 19): Talking over recreation plans with regular partners can go a long way toward establishing better understanding and harmony, at this time with today's good aspects.

GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): Plan to have a constructive discussion with your associates in the a.m., so that you can solve the communication problems that have been difficult.

MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): Don't allow arguments in the home to get out of hand or to remain unsettled for long. Some vocational concerns are going to require more effort now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Some secret anxiety is more pronounced today and could result in hasty actions so be sure to think over all your actions before you make a commitment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Look over and review your social life very carefully and be certain as to which friends you want to retain in your life and which friends you want to drop.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Take sound steps to safeguard your reputation in the world of business and take time to know exactly where your career is heading.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't leave anything unattended or undone while you spend a lot more time delving into new interests. It is important that you make contacts with different types of people.

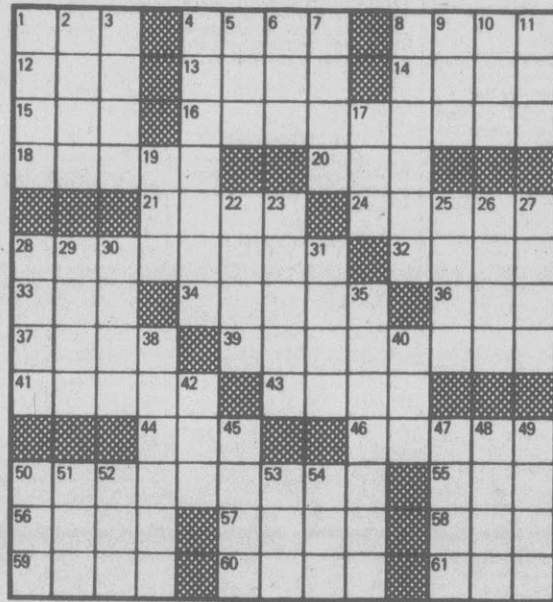

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): A financial obligation from the past has you very concerned but today isn't the time to try to handle this item or to get in an argument over it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): Keep some distance between you and a partner who is too sensitive and emotional about an unidentified something that has put a bee in their bonnet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): Stay out of an argument with a co-worker just because you don't agree on some minor points. Handle a task that you promised to take care of some time ago.

PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): Instead of trying to use force to achieve your goals, use tact and see how much easier you can have what you need under today's good aspects.

 We have often been asked for the one great secret to winning bridge. Are you ready for this? Find yourself a good partner! North had a lot to be thankful for on this hand.

With his collection of losers, North should have realized that, since his hand was likely to produce at least six tricks for partner, nine tricks might prove easier to make than 11. At three no trump, South would have indulged in the pleasant luxury of simply gathering tricks. Five diamonds was another matter.

West led a top club, and declarer could see three possible losers—two spades and a heart. Had South's ten of spades been a low spot card, there would have been only one hope for the contract—to find West with both the king and queen in the suit. Possession of the lowest honor in the suit, however, changed the odds from slight to a sure thing.

Declarer won the first trick with the ace of clubs, cashed the king and ace of trumps and ruffed a club in dummy. After coming to hand with the ace of hearts, another club ruff prepared the ground for an endplay. The king of hearts was cashed and declarer exited with a heart, not caring who won the trick.

Whichever defender gained the lead would have to break the spade suit, since either hearts or clubs would present declarer with the contract via a ruff-suff. If East won the third heart, his forced return into the spade tenace would limit his side to one spade trick. If West won, declarer would duck the trick to East, who would have to win with an honor and then lead a spade into the tenace. Either way, declarer was able to hold his spade losers to one trick.

In Remodeling, Small Changes Really Count

Simple Formula Can Give Your Home New Look

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

"Small changes can make a big difference" is a rule of thumb for Brook Pattengill, an artist and designer who remodels houses for fun and profit.

"I stick to a simple formula, making only the changes that I know work well for me to make a home more attractive and inviting," said Ms. Pattengill, who has remodeled eight houses in recent years.

Ms. Pattengill lives in the Los Angeles community of Sherman Oaks in a Dutch Colonial home that she has been remodeling for three years.

The things that matter to her in a home environment are "an attractive kitchen where I can experiment with new recipes, a luxurious bedroom where I can feel pampered, a cozy den to relax in and read, a workplace in which to paint and an attractive living room in which to entertain."

To her living room and dining area, Ms. Pattengill has added large mirrors and functional, oversized plantation shutters; in her bedroom she replaced a small bay window with French doors that now open into her patio.

To her den, which she themed to a Pennsylvania country look with a hand-stenciled border in a farm motif, Ms. Pattengill is adding serious beams, a term she uses to differentiate between real wood beams and the phony look-alikes available at home building outlets.

"They are not load-bearing beams, but lend a substantial feeling to a room and can be easily bolted into the rafters above the ceiling," she said.

In her small kitchen, Ms. Pattengill has removed the doors on the upper cabinets to create a feeling of openness and installed a shelf along the ceiling for storing baskets and other decorative objects.

And having visualized an island in her kitchen, which she could not afford, she created the additional storage and work area by placing her grandmother's Victorian marble-topped dresser in the center of the kitchen.

Exterior improvements to Ms. Pattengill's home include split-rail fencing, brick walks replacing the cemented areas and a facing in Bouquet Canyon stone on the front of the house — a feature that Ms. Pattengill had always admired in the more expensive houses that were being built in Beverly Hills, Calif., while she was growing up.

For the most part, Ms. Pattengill's renovation ideas are not pretentious, she says. "They are rooted in my practical Midwestern background, which favors beauty but not at the expense of function or quality."

Ms. Pattengill, a collector of blue-and-white china, ceramic roosters and hats, describes herself as a "nut on storage" and likes having a proper place for everything. To increase storage space, Ms. Pattengill frequently uses her "Cliff May solution."

May — a well-known designer of California ranch-type homes who is still working while in his 80s — is known for his "fabulous floor-to-ceiling shelving around doorways and windows," Ms. Pattengill said.

By now, Ms. Pattengill has developed a successful remodeling routine, she said, and has assembled a crew of reliable subcontractors, including general contractor L.T. Briggs, who assists her on most of her projects.

Exterior improvements to designer Brook Pattengill's home include split-rail fencing, brick walks and a driveway

"Before we ever get started on a new project, we develop a plan, a work schedule, and I keep a file on each project that contains all receipts, permits and any ideas clipped from design magazines that may be useful," she said.

"For the most part I stay away from major structural changes, but if I run into cramped spaces that need opening up, I either remove or open up a wall, or I put in skylights," she said.

"My first priority is to upgrade the electrical and plumbing systems in older houses, change the hardware and interior doors when necessary. Those are some of the changes that make a world of difference."

When buying a house to remodel, Ms. Pattengill searches in older neighborhoods "where trees have had a chance to mature. New trees are expensive and take years to grow," she said. "I also look for houses with some identifiable style instead of a mishmash of periods. A house with some architectural integrity is easier to remodel."

The extent of remodeling kitchens and baths, while important, depends on each situation, Ms. Pattengill said.

"For the most part, I work around existing tile work in bathrooms and kitchens instead of gutting the entire space. Often, a border of wallpaper that is complementary to the tile work can pull it all together without major expense."

Ms. Pattengill views herself as a pioneer among women remodelers, recalling that when she first started in the 1960s, few single women were buying houses.

"A woman couldn't just go into a bank and get a loan — for whatever reason — without the consent of her husband. Being divorced at the time, it was even harder for me."

"That first experience taught me the need to either budget or desist. I also learned two sobering truths about remodeling: It always costs more than you think and the work always takes longer than you think," she said.

Here Are Some Tips

Replace patio windows and sliding glass doors with multipaned French doors.

Use stencils as borders on painted walls, theme to room function.

Enlarge a fireplace mantel with marble, rock or wood.

Create wall cutouts for light, airiness and display.

Build storage around bay windows or doors with floor-to-ceiling shelves.

Install a deep shelf mounted on window sills for planters.

Replace standard doors and hardware.

Groove, peg and revarnish hardwood floors.

Add crown molding, beams, wainscoting or chair railings to break bare expanses.

Design landscaping to include brick paths and use brick inserts on cement driveways.

Before You Saw, Think About What You Want To Do

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Is your family outgrowing your home? Are you longing for an at-home office but don't have room? Do you want to add new light and character to your house? If so, for these and other reasons, you might be considering remodeling.

Rick Morrall, building editor of Sunset magazine, believes that homeowners can save time, money and frustrations by following these 10 suggestions before picking up a saw or calling a contractor.

—Before talking to an architect, designer or contractor, take the time to analyze your true needs, desires, goals and realistic constraints.

Examine what you want from your remodeled home. Is it more space, more convenience, more light, more privacy, better traffic flow? Are you remodeling for your family or for resale? Also determine your budget and how much work you plan to do yourself.

—Outline the physical limitations of the existing house. Identify the weight-bearing walls, where plumbing lines and heating ducts run and where sewer, gas and electric connections are located.

—Research your local permit requirements, codes and ordinances with the building department in your community. Most codes specify the percentage of a lot's surface area that can be covered by buildings. Energy codes limit the amount of glass you can use. Some departments provide handy printed guidelines explaining the permit process.

—Pursue several design strategies before locking on to one idea. You may not be able to remove an existing bearing wall completely, but you may be able to open it up by replacing it with load-bearing beams or columns. Don't overlook any possibilities. Be creative and remember that the first solution is not always the best one.

—There are three basic design strategies for remodeling: staying within the building's footprint (foundation), adding a floor, and adding on at the side. Decide which one or combination of these strategies is best for your situation and budget.

—By staying within the house's footprint, you can improve traffic circulation, connect inside and outside, and increase the sense of spaciousness by opening upstairs to downstairs, removing and replacing walls with partitions, and opening up the ceiling.

—Adding a floor can be the most structurally demanding, intrusive and expensive remodeling operation. This is an excellent option if your house already fills the lot or if you want to preserve yard space. Adding another floor also allows dramatic aesthetic changes, whether it's to take advantage of views, add light or emphasize interior height and volume.

—Adding laterally may be the best way to expand your home if you have a large lot. Good horizontal additions effectively improve the function and comfort of existing adjacent spaces. Determine where you can most logically and feasibly attach the addition — at the front, side or rear. This strategy can be the least intrusive to daily life in the house.

—Think about the overall design of the expanded house and compatibility with its surroundings. Pay close attention to materials, proportions, light and form. Determine if you want your home to blend in or stand out.

—Remember that frustrations, disappointments and delays are an inevitable part of remodeling. As one architect says, "Our job is to eliminate surprises — but unexpected things always seem to happen."

Morrall reminds potential remodelers that a well-thought-out design helps make the process more worthwhile. A poorly designed remodel, usually costs about the same and takes just as long as a well-designed remodel.

If Johnny Can't Breathe, Help May Be Available

By Linda Roach Monroe
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

If Johnny can't breathe, it is time for Johnny, his parents and his doctor to get educated.

Childhood asthma — once generally considered to be a condition that most youngsters would "grow out of" — has, within the last 15 years, been viewed as a chronic problem that can and should be controlled with regular medication.

That change of view has had profound effects on patients and their families.

Just ask Susan Cerini, of La Canada Flintridge, 12 miles north of Los Angeles, who watched her son, Nick, deteriorate from mild wheezing at age 1½ to a frightening period of severe asthma episodes when he was 8. That was when she decided that no matter what doctors had told her, there had to be a better way to deal with Nick's asthma.

Nick's was a classic case of undertreatment, said Dr. Warren Richards, the new physician Cerini consulted a year ago. Nick's treatment had consisted primarily of allergy shots and the traditional preventive drug, theophylline, which can ease asthma but is losing favor as the asthma drug of first choice. In Nick's case, it wasn't working well enough.

Richards, who saw Nick at Children's Hospital of Los Angeles, instead, adopted an approach that has become widespread among asthma specialists familiar with the latest research on the disease. Unfortunately, the specialists say, many pediatricians and family practitioners, as well as some allergists, are unfamiliar with these methods.

In an attempt to remedy this, a panel of doctors convened by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute met in Washington recently to begin developing asthma treatment recommendations for use in educating physicians nationwide. They hope the guidelines will help lower asthma hospitalizations as well as deaths, which totaled 122 children and 3,833 adults in the United States in 1986.

The recommendations will not be issued before next summer, but the panel's chairman indicated that they will follow a course similar to that adopted by Richards in treating Nick.

—Richards enlisted Nick's involvement and cooperation in combatting his illness. Studies have shown that this is essential to ensure that children take their medicine regularly and learn to recognize early warning signs of an asthma attack.

—He started the boy on a regular schedule of an inhaled corticosteroid spray to reverse bronchial inflammation, which doc-

Afghan Features Windowpane Stitch

Knit a two-toned, reversible afghan — it's almost like having two afghans in one. On one side, the light color predominates and on the reverse side the dark one does. You'll be amazed at how easy and enjoyable this afghan is to knit, and how good it feels to the touch.

An interesting thermal stitch — also known as the windowpane check stitch — is used with worsted-weight yarn. It's worked in six panels, which are then joined together by narrow garter stitch bands in a single color, resulting in a visually pleasing, cozy throw measuring 54 by 60 inches. The gauge is 18 stitches for every 5 inches.

To obtain directions for making the reversible afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-082789 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-082789 by sending a check or money order for $23.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of the following color combinations: burgundy/off-white, colonial blue/off-white or walnut/off-white.

With size 11 circular or double-pointed needles and two colors of worsted-weight yarn, you can try the thermal pattern stitch used to make the reversible afghan. Start by casting on a multiple of 4 plus 3 stitches. This means you can cast on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 4, then cast on 3 more. For your sample swatch, I suggest 23 or 27 stitches.

Be sure to use either the circular or double-pointed needles because on all even-numbered rows, you will slide the stitches to the opposite end of the needle and work the next row from that end without turning your work. When you try it, you will see why ordinary straight needles won't work.

When you are instructed to slip a stitch, always slip it as if to purl, holding the yarn in the back of your work when on a knit row and in front of a purl row. On Rows 2 and 4, you will be told to work a "triple wrap purl." To do this, wrap the yarn three times around the needle instead of only once as you would normally do in purling.

Row 1, with dark color: (A) knit 3; (B) slip 1 stitch, dropping the extra wraps; (C) knit 3. Repeat Steps B and C across to end of row, turn. Note: The first time you work Row 1, there will be no extra wraps to drop, but you will have them on all later repeats of this row.

Row 2, with dark color: (A) purl 1; (B) work 1 triple wrap purl stitch; (C) purl 1; (D) slip 1 stitch; (E) purl 1; (F) work 1 triple wrap purl stitch; (G) purl 1. Repeat Steps D through G across to end of row and slide all stitches to the other end of the needle. Do not turn, but start next row at this end of needle.

Row 3, with light color: (A) knit 1; (B) slip 1 stitch letting extra wraps drop off needle; (C) knit 3. Repeat Steps B and C across to end of row, turn. Note: The first time you work Row 1, there will be no extra wraps to drop, but you will have them on all later repeats of this row.

Row 2, with dark color: (A) purl 1; (B) work 1 triple wrap purl stitch; (C) purl 1; (D) slip 1 stitch; (E) purl 1; (F) work 1 triple wrap purl stitch; (G) purl 1. Repeat Steps D through G across to end of row and slide all stitches to the other end of the needle. Do not turn, but start next row at this end of needle.

Row 4, with light color: (A) purl 1; (B) slip 1 stitch; (C) purl 1; (D) work a triple wrap purl stitch; (E) purl 1; (F) slip 1 stitch; (G) purl 1. Repeat Steps D through G across to end of row and slide stitches to other end. Do not turn. Repeat Rows 1 through 4 for pattern.

Work these four rows at least five or six times to see the lovely effect of this pattern stitch. If you are using a different weight yarn, be sure to use a needle three to four sizes larger than you would usually use for that yarn. For example, work sports-weight yarn, try size 8 or 9 needles.

Once you have worked a few repeats of the pattern, I think you will agree that it is simpler to do than you might think when just reading the directions and that it makes for absolutely fascinating knitting! Clip and save this column for your files as you will probably find many other uses for this pattern stitch.

They Celebrated Divorce

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: I will never again say that a letter in your column is too unbelievable to be real. Listen to this:

My husband and I recently attended the 25th wedding anniversary party of a couple we have known for years. It was a beautiful dinner party at a club for about a hundred guests.

Around midnight, the husband said that he and his wife had an announcement to make. They stood arm in arm, and he said, "We've had 25 years of marriage. Our children are married now, and there is no longer a reason to go on pretending our marriage is a success. It has been a failure for many years, so we've decided that while we are both young enough to enjoy life we're getting divorced. It's nobody's 'fault.' It's mutual and friendly, and we hope you will continue to be our friends."

They kissed each other and danced together as the band played, "Good Night, Sweetheart."

Can anybody top this? -- Was There

Dear Was: I hope not.
Dear Abby: How about a letter from a "winner"? My married lover left his wife for me!

I was told that I wasn't breaking up anything; his marriage was dead long before he even met me. His wife had gotten fat. I was married too, but I assured him that my marriage was also over -- my husband had gotten dull and boring.

So I divorced my boring husband and he divorced his chubby wife. Oh, yes, we both had children, but we explained that we were in love and when they were older they would understand.

Our marriage was a dream come true. No more lying and sneaking around. At long last we were legally man and wife for all the world to see.

Our apartment was filled with modern furniture and old-fashioned guilt. And plenty of doubt and mistrust.

Two years later he was meeting someone new. I told him he was a liar and a cheat. He said it took one to know one.

And by the way, he's gotten a little dull and boring, and I've put on a little weight. -- A Winner

Dear Abby: I am an Italian man, age 34. I am medium build and am told that I am good-looking. I drive a sightseeing bus by day, so I speak a little English. I am single and would like to correspond with an American woman between the ages of 30 and 60.

She doesn't have to be beautiful, but I want one who has a steady income and owns a late-model American automobile.

If you know of a woman who would like to correspond with me, please ask her to send a picture of the automobile. -- Vito In Napoli

Dear Abby: What's the difference between a wife and a mistress? -- BESS

Dear Bess: Night and day.

Couple Marries Aug. 26

Mary Catherine Williams of Fuquay Varina and John Allen Kossuth Tucker of Raleigh were married Saturday at 11 a.m. in St. James Episcopal Church, Belhaven. The Rev. Gary Fulton performed the double-ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by organist Benjamin F. Keaton, uncle of the bride, and vocalist Dr. Randolph Umburger.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter S. Williams of Fuquay Varina. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Chapin Jr. of Greenville and the late Elmer K. Tucker.

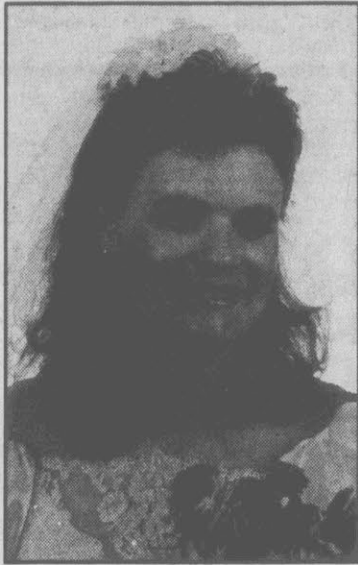

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of slipper satin embellished with pearls and iridescents. The satin skirt was edged with a border of alencon lace, as was the detachable semi-cathedral train.

Sheree Kear of Raleigh served as attendant. She wore a giotto pink, tea-length dress.

The bridegroom's stepfather served as best man.

The mother of the bride wore a fuchsia tissue linen two-piece dress, and the mother of the bridegroom wore a royal blue silk sheath.

pagne was served on the porch and lawn of the River Forest Manor, where a buffet luncheon was served. The evening before the wedding the parents of the bridegroom entertained at a dinner at River Forest Manor.

The bride attended Atlantic Christian College and is employed in the Engineering Department of North Carolina State University. The bridegroom graduated from North Carolina State University and is manager of the Raleigh office of Rivers & Associates.

Following a cruise to the Bahamas, the couple will live in Raleigh.

Zoning Fight

OXFORD, Conn. (AP) — Actress Barbara Hershey and other residents of nearby Southbury are fighting a zoning change that would permit "war games" in the countryside around this quaint New England town.

Hershey, who has starred in movies such as "Beaches," "The Natural" and "The Right Stuff," said through a spokesman she was "appalled that anyone would want to hurt this historic neighborhood with anything as ugly as war games."

In the war game, players wear protective goggles and fire at each other with paint-pellet pistols. The zoning change would allow the weekend game on parcels of at least 200 acres.

Public Ignores Belushi Film But Flocks To 'Uncle Buck'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOLLYWOOD — Slammed by critics, "Wired" was largely ignored by audiences over the weekend and the comedy "Uncle Buck" topped the charts for the second week in a row.

An unusual parable of drug addiction showing the late comedian John Belushi revisiting his life after escaping from a coroner's body bag, "Wired" grossed just $681,000 last weekend while playing on 680 screens, according to figures released Monday by Exhibitor Relations Co.

With such a stunningly low per-screen average, "Wired" is certain to disappear from theaters quickly and likely will debut in home video stores soon. Reviewers panned the movie and it had difficulty finding a distributor partly due to its subject matter.

"Uncle Buck," starring John Candy as an obnoxious relative sent to babysit two nieces and a nephew, collected $6.7 million.

It was followed by "Parenthood," a chronicle of family life featuring Steve Martin and Jason Robards, which netted $6.4 million. The $43 million underwater adventure film "The Abyss" finished in third with receipts of $4.7 million.

In fourth was the romantic comedy "When Harry Met Sally..." with Billy Crystal and Meg Ryan as friends who become lovers, on ticket sales of $4.1 million. "Lethal Weapon 2," starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover, was in fifth with $3.3 million.

The drooling dog-cop buddy picture "Turner and Hooch" finished in sixth with a gross of $3 million. "Casualties of War," which opened poorly last weekend, fell to seventh with a gate of $2.9 million.

Still showing in the charts after 10 weeks of release, "Batman" landed in eighth by collecting $2.6 million. Rounding out the Top 10 were "The Package," with $1.9 million in limited release, and "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids" with $1.7 million.

In other box-office news, "Little Monsters" opened weakly and "Cookie" did fair business its first week out. Playing only matinees and for young audiences who pay less than full fare, "The Adventures of Milo and Otis" generated healthy returns of $470,087 on 242 screens.

Here are the top movies for the weekend as tallied by Exhibitor Relations, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross and number of weeks in release.

1. "Uncle Buck," Universal, $6.7 million, 1,835 screens, $3,665 per screen, $23.7 million, two weeks.
2. "Parenthood," Universal, $6.4 million, 1,384 screens, $4,610 per screen, $53.7 million, four weeks.
3. "The Abyss," 20th Century Fox, $4.7 million, 1,525 screens, $3,105 per screen, $33 million, three weeks.
4. "When Harry Met Sally...," Columbia, $4.1 million, 1,171 screens, $3,464 per screen, $60.7 million, seven weeks.
5. "Lethal Weapon 2," Warner Bros., $3.3 million, 1,560 screens, $2,138 per screen, $125.1 million, eight weeks.
6. "Turner and Hooch," Disney, $3 million, 1,551 screens, $1,948 per screen, $51.9 million, five weeks.
7. "Casualties of War," Columbia, $2.9 million, 1,507 screens, $1,902 per screen, $10.5 million, two weeks.
8. "Batman," Warner Bros., $2.6 million, 1,302 screens, $1,995 per screen, $233.7 million, 10 weeks.

9. "The Package," Orion, $1.9 million, 323 screens, $5,733 per screen, $1.8 million, one week.
 10. "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids," Disney, $1.7 million, 1,189 screens, $1,460 per screen, $115.4 million, nine weeks.

Desert Rose Band Hits The Top With Five No. 1 Best-Sellers

By Mary Campbell
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Chris Hillman considers the Desert Rose Band the best band in which he has ever been.

In fact, he'd just as soon not even talk about the others, including the most famous one, the Byrds — which he and Roger McGuinn founded just 25 years ago — and the Flying Burrito Brothers.

Country music fans like the Desert Rose Band, too. They've made five straight singles go No. 1 on the best-selling country chart. And "Hello Trouble" is climbing toward the top.

The band also is nominated as vocal group of the year in the upcoming Country Music Association awards, for song of the year for "I Still Believe in You" and for the Horizon Award, the association's highest honor.

Hillman and McGuinn are nominated for country event of the year, for a performance at Red Rocks in Colorado. Their duet, "You Ain't Going Nowhere," also is on the current country singles chart.

"This band feels the best," Hillman says. "The others never felt right. The Byrds felt OK. It was such a diverse group of individuals it self-destructed. This feels like the chemistry is right."

"The six of us are trying to think alike, trying to focus everybody's vision into one vision."

"This has got the best players and singers. It has proven itself with the chart singles. We're right on the track. A man would be a fool to wreck this train — give me a pen, I've got a song title."

Guitarist John Jorgenson says, "In Nashville, everyone is a songwriter. Every third or fourth line of conversation, somebody says, 'That would be a good song.'"

In January, Hillman, McGuinn and David Crosby performed as the Byrds in Los Angeles, trying to trademark the name, countering an attempt by the group's original drummer, Michael Clarke, to use it.

"They talk about re-forming the Byrds," Hillman says. "I don't think that is going to happen. The Byrds would be wonderful to do if it didn't interfere with the Desert Rose Band."

"I love the other guys but I don't want to look over my shoulder. This is something that's challenging right now. It takes enough of my time just to keep abreast of the business and try and come up with something unique each time we jump into the studio."

After the Byrds, the Flying Burrito Brothers, Stephen Stills' Manassas, Souther-Hillman-Furay, McGuinn Clark & Hillman and time out for spiritual stocktaking, Hillman cut two solo country albums for Sugar Hill Records: "Morning Sky" and "Desert Rose."

Keaton Filled Batman's Cape, Now Wants Choice

By Charles Champlin
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

HOLLYWOOD — In Hollywood, crossing well is the best revenge. It is the great silencer of complaints that a movie may have been less than perfect.

When Michael Keaton was cast as Bruce Wayne in "Batman," there were cries of outrage from what Keaton calls "the DC Comics fundamentalists." A cover line on Rolling Stone magazine asked, "Can Michael Keaton Fill the Cape?" but gave no clear answer. Thousands of letters, it was said, poured in to Warner Bros. protesting the choice of Keaton to play the Caped Crusader. It was the "Star Trek" syndrome in reverse.

Ah, but that was long ago, and now his consolation is in the grosses as they rise. No feat in Batman's half-century career quite matches the speed with which "Batman" zipped past $200 million at the box office, invading the list of the all-time 10 top-grossing films.

For Keaton, pacing barefoot around his house in the Los Angeles neighborhood of Pacific Palisades, chomping gum to soothe his nerves (he dislikes interviews), all this is sweetness itself.

"Amazing, amazing, amazing," he said a few days ago. "I feel like a spectator and a participant at the same time. I tell myself this is just plain silly, and then I think, 'Let's just enjoy it, OK?' And I am. But, I mean, 'E.T.'s' grosses in half the time? Wow."

Even in the Bat trappings, Keaton played Bruce Wayne at a level of reality that seemed at odds with the leering flamboyance of Jack Nicholson's Joker. It was also an interpretation at considerable variance with the cheerful invulnerability of Adam West's Wayne on television. But it was a reading, Keaton says, that he and director Tim Burton quite agreed on.

"Batman was easily the least-developed character in the script. When I went to meet Tim, I said, 'This is what I'm going to do. I hope you agree.' I wanted to play him real. I'd done three pictures back to back and I was pretty tired; I guess I didn't want an argument. But Tim said he felt exactly as I did about the part."

Why "Batman" should have taken off as it did is not entirely clear. "A groundswell of Batman interest collided with the movie," Keaton says, but he adds, "It's a perfect contemporary myth coming at a perfect time."

"He's the only super-hero who's a real human being. When he's hit hard, he goes down. You can invest more sympathy in him. You say, 'Hey, he's Bruce Wayne, not a Superman.' It's much more interesting."

Burton, Keaton says, tried to avoid using the word innocent to describe Wayne. "But there's something like innocence about him."

Actually Keaton feels that what he did with Wayne is what he has done in his other films.

"You take a realistic character and then push it a little. The challenge was heavy going in, with all those attacks and complaints. But I think having my back to the wall worked for me.

"To put it in sports talk, I feel as if I got my bat on the ball, no pun intended, in a real way. Now I'm beginning to feel like I hit for the cycle."

"The movie must work on some level, to explain those grosses."

Keaton, 37, was born in Pittsburgh, the youngest child in a family of four boys and three girls. He did some early work with the Pittsburgh Poor Players, which has its headquarters in a Lutheran church in the Oakland section of town. For a brief time he worked as a crew man at WQED, that fine public television station in Pittsburgh.

Then he made his way via stand-up comedy into episodic television and then into "Night Shift," the movie that established his career and that led to "Mr. Mom," his co-starring hit with Teri Garr.

Meanwhile, having done four movies in 20 months — "Dream Team," "Clean and Sober," "Beetlejuice" and "Batman" — Keaton says that he plans to do nothing until something choice comes by.

There is always the prospect of a "Batman II," of course. In the present sequel-obsessed climate of Hollywood, it would appear inescapable. Sticks and stones will break your bones, but grosses never hurt you.

He was off last weekend to spend some time at the ranch with his 6-year-old son, Sean.

London Stage Awaits A Star-Filled Fall

By Matt Wolf
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — London theatergoers are in for a celebrity-filled couple of months, as no fewer than seven Oscar and Tony-winning luminaries take to the stage.

The starry array should mollify producers who have seen attendance drop during an unusually hot, humid summer that kept people away from theaters.

First out of the gate is Jack Lemmon in "Veterans Day" by American author Donald Freed, which was opened Aug. 22 at the Theater Royal, Haymarket. It is the two-time Academy Award-winning actor's first London stage appearance since 1986, when he repeated his Tony-nominated Broadway performance as James Tyrone in Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

Scheduled to run through Dec. 9, "Veterans Day" is about a White House meeting of three veterans of different American wars. Michael Gambon and Robert Flemyng complete the cast under Kevin Billington's direction.

Next up in September are the almost back-to-back openings of three shows featuring heavyweight stars.

Paul Scofield, who won an Oscar and a Tony for his stunning portrayal of Sir Thomas More in "A Man for All Seasons," returns to the London stage Sept. 19 for the first time in three years in Jeffrey Archer's "Exclusive," at the Strand Theater.

Two esteemed British actors, Alec McCowen and Eileen Atkins, co-star in the second play by the best-selling novelist and former politician. The first is his long-running courtroom drama, "Beyond Reasonable Doubt."

The next night, Sept. 20, sees the long-awaited debut of "Miss Saigon," the epic musical from Claude-Michel Schonberg and Alain Boublil, the French composer-lyricist team who wrote "Les Miserables" with Herbert Kretzmer.

Jonathan Pryce, the wiry Welsh actor who won a Tony in Trevor Griffiths' 1976 play "Comedians," stars in the musical, which has been three years in pre-production.

On Sept. 25, Albert Finney, the Oscar-nominated star of "Tom Jones" and "Murder on the Orient Express," opens at Wyndham's Theater in Ronald Harwood's "Another Time."

The author and his star collaborated on the movie version of "The Dresser," which earned Finney another Oscar nomination. Here, he plays a South Africa-born, London-based musician facing a midlife crisis. Janet Suzman and Sara Kestelman co-star.

Sept. 29 marks the opening of the season's most anticipated classical revival: Trevor Nunn's staging of Shakespeare's "Othello," with opera singer Willard White as the lovestruck Moor and Ian McKellen

— the Tony-winning star of Peter Shaffer's "Amadeus" — as the vengeful and jealous Iago.

This production will arrive in London following a six-week stint at The Other Place in Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford-upon-Avon, where it is in previews. The London run ends Nov. 11.

In 1985, Frances Ruffelle won New York audiences with her award-winning performance as Eponine in "Les Miserables." She opens Oct. 17 in her first musical since then: Ian Dury's "Apples," at the Royal Court, set in the world of tabloid journalism.

The following night, Peter O'Toole returns to London's commercial West End in "Jeffrey Bernard Is Unwell" at the Apollo Theater. The play, written by Keith Waterhouse and directed by Ned Sherrin, casts O'Toole as Jeffrey Bernard, the unabashedly dissolute and low-living columnist for the London weekly magazine, The Spectator.

Two-time Oscar-winner Glenda Jackson is expected in two productions next winter: a revival of Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," co-starring John Lithgow, which will first be seen at the Ahmanson Theater in Los Angeles, and a new play at North London's "fringe" Almeida Theater by leftist author, Howard Barker.

Although her American exposure is limited, Dame Judi Dench is among Britain's best-respected actresses, and hopes are high for her West End engagement in Anton Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard." Directed by Sam Mendes, the production opens in the fall, date to be announced, at the Aldwych Theater.

Help May Be Available For Most Youthful Asthma Sufferers

tors now know goes on in an asthmatic even during periods when no shortness of breath is felt. Used in this form, corticosteroids have fewer of the serious side effects associated with regular use of oral or injected steroids.

Without suppression, the inflammation would feed on itself over time and eventually lead to severe attacks, doctors say. Another drug that is increasingly used to prevent the inflammation is cromolyn sodium.

—He stepped up Nick's use of bronchodilators, medications to open the airways. Besides continuing theophylline pills, he added an adrenaline-like bronchodilator spray. Nick inhales this daily through a "spacer" regulating device. (Without this accordion-like device, the spray often is improperly inhaled and so is ineffective.)

It also is important that Nick knows to increase the frequency of his bronchodilator at the first, minor signs of an asthma attack, before playing or taking part in other activities that might cause him problems.

"First, I try to settle down," Nick says of the times he feels an approaching asthma episode. "Then, if that doesn't work I tell my mom that I'm going to take a puff."

Inhaling the bronchodilator opens his airways and has allowed 10-year-old Nick to run, bike, play baseball, golf and swim without the awful sensation that used to scare him so much, the feeling of "breathing through a straw."

If all else fails, he calls his doctor for permission to take an oral cortisone to stop his lung spasms. He also can use a home aerosol machine (a nebulizer) to deliver a higher dose of bronchodilator to his lungs.

Such care has helped Nick stay away from where asthmatic children often end up: in hospital emergency rooms. There, asthma accounts for 2 percent to 3 percent of all visits, when continuous preventive therapy would have controlled the problem at home, doctors say.

In a study published in the July 1 issue of the journal, Pediatrics, Richards concluded that many asthmatic children seen in the Childrens Hospital emergency room were there because their asthma therapy was inadequate or non-existent.

He looked at 100 asthma cases seen from February to June 1988 and found that, of children repeatedly hospitalized for severe asthma and whose doctors were not allergists, a third had no continuous-use medication prescribed for their condition.

With 92 percent of children cared for by pediatricians or family practitioners, their parents never had been told the well-established fact that allergies were a possible trigger of asthma; more than half the children seeing these physicians never had received inhaled, adrenaline-like drugs considered key to halting asthmatic episodes.

A separate questionnaire given to 45 pediatricians and family physicians indicated that they often did not ask questions that Richards considers crucial in assessing asthma's severity. Although 68 percent asked if a child's physical activities were hampered, only 36 percent asked if asthma was preventing their sleeping or attending school; 4 percent asked about the child's general comfort level.

Japanese Women Seeking New Life Of Their Own

By Michael Hirsh
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A quarter-century ago, Betty Friedan called the oppression of American women "the problem that has no name." But Japan today has a name for Meiri Marimo's problem: She's "leftover Christmas cake."

Miss Marimo, in other words, has grown a bit stale as a marriageable commodity — at least that's what her mother complains. In Japan, where many marriages are still arranged, a woman is considered to have a shelf life of about 25 years.

When Miss Marimo was 28, she left for New York — alone.

Sumiko Morikawa sits next to the "No Smoking" sign in her Waldorf-Astoria office and lights a cigarette. At 39, she says she's looking for a new man. She isn't particular about his background — as long as he isn't Japanese.

"Japanese men and women, they cannot understand how to love," says Miss Morikawa, the owner of a translating service. Three years ago, she ended a 16-year marriage undertaken to please her tradition-minded brother in Japan. No passion, she says.

"Japanese businessmen are very nice, but they are so totally quality-controlled. They see themselves as company men. And their wives also, they say, 'I'm a Mitsubishi wife.' It kills the individuality of people."

It is 11:30 a.m. Renko Isowa, 42, pauses over a dish of vanilla ice cream as she cheerily recalls the strict training of her youth in the traditional female skills.

"I learned flower arrangement, tea ceremony and cooking for two years. I was totally dead," says Miss Isowa, vice president of a television production company here.

"I wanted to start working. I wanted to be a member of real society."

Twenty-six years after "The Feminine Mystique," Friedan's manifesto of women's rights, helped kindle feminism in the West, only a trickle of women in Japan are able or willing to live out its creed. But many of those few come to the United States to try.

The three expatriates above may seem refreshingly liberated, but in Japan many would consider them wild-eyed radicals. They insist on standing out in a society where wa, or group harmony, dictates "the nail that stands out is hammered down."

"Japanese women haven't been raised to have aspirations," says Jane Condon, author of "A Half-Step Behind: Japanese Women of the '80s." "They're still facing boundaries we broke through 20 years ago."

"To be good American, you have to be an individual. To be a good Japanese, you'd better damn sight not be," says Steven Fochios, a New York City psychiatrist who counsels many Japanese women.

"The women who ... come to the U.S., then get into the machinery of the country, are able to enjoy the kinds of freedoms they had never dreamed of," he says. "And these women are tough. They are tough."

Miss Marimo's family frets, to no avail. To her friends, she is an "incredible oyahuko," a bad daughter. A few years ago, she moved into her own apartment in Tokyo, watching defiantly as the social pressures that mold a Japanese woman's life — a cycle of temporary employment, marriage and child-raising — claimed her schoolmates one by one.

Her old friends "spoke to me as if they were accusing me, criticizing me very severely," recalls the lithe, long-haired Miss Marimo, a free-lance writer.

"I didn't care at all. I don't want to be involved in housekeeping. I smiled a Japanese smile" — and left.

In the United States, disaffected minorities organize, as American women did in the 1970s. In Japan, it has always been easier to jump ship than to rock the boat. Until recently.

Today, the glacial rigidity of Japanese society — "otoko no shakai," the man's world — shows signs of thawing after more than a century of uneasy integration with the West. Japan's giant corporations, facing chronic worker shortages as the economy surges, are beginning to open management jobs to women. Traditionally they are hired as tea-pouring "office ladies" while pursuing their real vocation: marriage.

Japanese women are even making an impact on politics. A record 22 women won seats in the July 23 elections for Parliament's upper house. Female voters had been angered by allegations that Japan's just-departed prime minister, Souseki Uno, kept paid mistresses.

The election also showed, however, that much has not changed. Many of the victorious female parliamentary candidates had portrayed themselves not as feminists but as simple housewives immune from corruption.

Indeed, apart from the odd individualist who ventures abroad to live, few Japanese women want change.

"If you go to a party here and introduce yourself as a housewife, people will think you're strange. But in Japan it's OK. Being a housewife doesn't bother Japanese women, because they have a social position," says Kako Nakagawa, the executive editor of New York Yomiuri, a newspaper published for Japanese in North America.

"I think in the United States you have no secure place for women," she says. "Here there are opportunities for women, so if you don't try anything hard, then you feel guilty. ... But in Japan there are no opportunities so there's no such struggle. It's easy."

"When I go to Japan, the Japanese women I see are very content-looking, very happy," says Naoko Adams, a researcher for Sunstar Corp., a Japanese company with offices in New York. When I come back to America, I notice the women look very unhappy, frustrated."

While women in Japan are largely blocked from positions of power, they provide a vital temporary worker base that absorbs economic downturns, allowing large Japanese companies to maintain their much-vaunted "lifetime employment system" for permanent workers. In addition, they are the linchpin of an economic system that allows men to spend long hours working and, as is expected, socializing afterward.

With the men otherwise occupied, women often control family purse strings, and so completely control their children's destinies that surveys have shown the central relationship in a Japanese man's life is not between him and his wife but between him and his mother.

So strong is such patterning of Japanese women, in fact, that leaving it behind sometimes causes deep emotional problems for expatriates, who must spurn what they have been taught since childhood and embrace alien values.

"Some of them say they feel guilty about being free as an American," says Fochios, the psychiatrist. "They feel inferior to a Japanese woman because they don't have the capacity to be a good Japanese wife."

Some expatriate women, however, simply decide to ignore American values.

"Japanese women are better off. I don't think I would like to marry an American man," says Kiyomi Koizumi, a 65-year-old neurophysiologist who came to the United States in 1949 and married a Japanese.

"I always say my husband is like air — you would miss it if it's not there, I can't live without it, but you don't feel it. An American man might be around me too much."

Start Early To Avoid Child Abuse

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BALTIMORE — Preventing child abuse begins before a child is born.

Potentially abusive mothers sometimes reveal themselves in their attitudes toward their pregnancies, and certainly in how they greet their newborn infants.

It is, then, delivery room and maternity nurses who are the first line of defense against such abuse.

These were among the thoughts on child abuse in America shared with a group of Japanese nurses, midwives and nursing instructors studying maternal and child health this week at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The 15 women, "all very experienced nurses" were part of a study tour to Hopkins sponsored by Hesco

International Ltd., a Tokyo publisher specializing in health and medical books, said Stella Shiber, conference coordinator and associate dean of the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing.

The session on child abuse, led by Hopkins pediatric nurse Jean Wheeler, focused on the problem in America and what can be done to prevent it.

Researchers believe "early intervention may prevent future abuse," Wheeler said. It is, therefore, vital to identify "at risk" mothers and children as early as possible. This begins during prenatal care and continues long after mother and baby go home from the hospital, she said.

The Turtle And The Rabbit

By Shaun Cates

Once upon a time a turtle was in a hole and a rabbit was hopping by. The turtle yelled and the rabbit heard him yelling so he jumped over to the hole. The turtle said, "The dirt is good and smooth." So the rabbit jumped in the hole. The turtle said, "Let me get on your back so I can get out and then I'll pull you up." So, that is what they did but when the turtle got up, he never came back to get the rabbit out of the hole. The

Moral: Look before you leap!

Shaun Cates, 9, a student at H.B. Sugg School receives special mention.

More Nutritious Food Choices

By Latongia Phillips

They should have more nutritious food choices, such as vegetables and fresh fruit, in the lunchroom.

These students at Farmville Middle School like to eat the junk food from the snack line. What they should be eating is a healthy nutritious meal in the food choice line. The junk food in the snack line isn't nutritious enough. It's poor in vitamins and things like that. It's high in fats and calories. It can also make you gain weight. You could also get sick from eating too much junk food. If you stay sick, you miss a whole lot of work from school and a lot of school. More nutritious food choices would prevent that.

People don't like most of the choices. If they don't eat, they become hungry the rest of the day until they go home. When the students don't eat, they usually think about food instead of their school work. If they don't think about their work and only think about food, they could flunk. If students had more nutritional choices they liked better, they would eat more and be better off.

If students had a better choice of nutritional foods, they might buy more. If students would buy more, they would be helping the school buy new school materials such as computers, textbooks or library books. That would be very nice for the school.

The students here at Farmville Middle School should really eat more hot nutritious foods. It would give them better health. It would also be helping the school.

Therefore the school lunchroom should offer more

All About The United States

By Karmee Stephenson

The United States is our country. We try to take care of it. We try very hard to keep it clean and safe for everyone. Our country is very big. We have many stores, places to eat, beaches, houses, schools and streets.

In our country we have lots of ways to get around. We can travel by bus, train, car, plane, boat, van, helicopter and hot air balloon.

Many families from other countries have moved to our country to live. We have Chinese, Africans and many others. These people are living in our country. The United States is the best country.

North Carolina

As early as 1524 explorers were discovering the wonders of North Carolina. It was not until 1585 that settlers actually started to remain in the area.

In 1789, after the American Revolution, NC became the 12th state. Today North Carolina is 28th in size among all states and has an estimated population of 6 1/4 million people. Most of the people of NC live in rural areas (52%) and the remaining 48% live either in cities or very near them. Charlotte is the largest city in the state, followed by Greensboro, Raleigh and Winston-Salem.

North Carolina has many state symbols. The cardinal is the state bird, the dogwood is the state's flower and the pine is the state tree. Our state song is The Old North State and our motto is Esse Quam Videri (To Be, Rather Than To Seem). There are many state symbols including milk as the official state drink. See if you can locate additional state symbols.

North Carolina has many firsts of which to be proud. The first English child born in the new world, Virginia Dare, was born on Roanoke Island. The potato was taken from NC by Sir Walter Raleigh to his estate in Ireland. It was planted there in 1587. Irish potatoes are famous but they first came from NC. The first silver

Making Salsa Is Easy And Fun

By Sujata Banerjee
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Salsa! The name is shared by a hot Afro-Cuban dance form — and a hotter tomato and chili sauce. In salsa dancing, you simply let your body go. And when you eat a good salsa, your tongue completely runs away from you.

Americans have taken to salsa like an army of fire-breathers, as Mexican restaurants proliferate around the country.

Making salsa at home is easy and fun. Salsa can be made either by with pre-cooked tomatoes, or raw, diced ones. The only stipulation about salsa fresca (fresh tomato salsa) is it must be eaten within a few hours, or the tomatoes will spoil. In any case, it takes less than 20 minutes to concoct a low-calorie, high Vitamin C salsa that can be used many ways.

So, instead of using salsa only with chalupas, enchiladas, burritos and tacos, why not try salsa and grated Cheddar cheese rolled up in a warm tortilla for a snack or lunch? For breakfast, a little salsa spooned over fried eggs makes a savory Mexican breakfast known as huevos rancheros. Salsa is also superb on the side of steak, grilled chicken or broiled whitefish.

What is the salsa of the moment? The trendiest nouvelle cuisine restaurants are concocting fruit salsas made with mango, raisins, oranges, and other sweet fruits. Fruit salsa is a perfect, sweet-spicy surprise to accompany chicken or fish.

The following are some recipes for salsa by Emmy Ayub, the head chef at Tortilla Flats in Baltimore.

ORANGE-KIWI SALSA

- 3 oranges
- 3 kiwifruit, peeled and diced
- ½ cup raisins
- ¼ cup chopped red onion
- 1-2 tbsps. lemon juice
- 2 tbsps. chopped, fresh mint
- Salt to taste

Peel and section two oranges; cut orange sections in half. Squeeze juice from remaining orange into medium-sized bowl. Add orange sections and remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate overnight or up to two days.

SUMMER SALSA WITH BACON

- 2 fresh tomatoes or 1 medium can of tomatoes
- 1 medium can of tomato sauce
- ½ bunch of scallions
- 1-2 hot peppers, to taste
- 3 strips cooked bacon, crumbled, to taste
- Garlic to taste
- Oregano to taste
- Italian seasoning to taste
- Fresh parsley

PICO DE GALLO

- 1 onion, large
- 2 tomatoes, medium
- 4 jalapeno chillies, fresh
- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ cup water
- Salt, pepper, garlic powder (approximately 1 tsp. each or to taste)
- 1 tsp. chopped cilantro

Dice onions and jalapenos in ¼ inch pieces. Dice tomatoes in ¾ inch pieces. Mix all remaining ingredients and serve.

ZUCCHINI

Harvest A Bumper Crop Of Recipes

By Sherrie Clinton
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

The "waste not, want not" school of thought makes it particularly difficult for those of us faced with a bumper crop of zucchini. You definitely don't want to waste it but just what on earth are you going to do with all of it?

We've scoured a number of cookbooks, old favorites as well as the very latest, to compile a long list of zucchini recipes.

This Chocolate Zucchini Cake recipe comes from one of my favorite sources, a cookbook put together by a local organization.

CHOCOLATE ZUCCHINI CAKE

- Grate 2 cups of peeled zucchini and set aside to drain all water
- ½ cup soft butter
- 1¾ cups sugar
- ½ cup Crisco oil
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup sour cream
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2½ cups flour
- 4 tbsps. cocoa
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ½ tsp. powdered cloves
- ½ tsp. baking powder
- 1 6-ounce package miniature chocolate chips

Cream together the butter, sugar, oil, eggs, sour cream and vanilla. Then stir in remaining ingredients, except the zucchini and chocolate chips.

Fold in zucchini. Pour into greased cake pan, 13 by 9 by 2 inches. Sprinkle chocolate chips over cake. Bake at 325° for 40 to 45 minutes. Do not preheat oven.

ZUCCHINI WHOLE-WHEAT MUFFINS

- 1½ cups coarsely shredded zucchini
- 1 cup all purpose flour
- 1 cup whole-wheat flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 4 tps.s baking powder
- 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup milk
- 1 large egg

Heat the oven to 400°. Generously grease ten three-inch muffin cups. Place the shredded zucchini on a small piece of cheesecloth or in a strainer. Squeeze or press to remove as much moisture as possible. Set aside the zucchini to drain on paper towels.

In a large bowl, with a fork, combine the flours, sugar, baking powder, lemon rind and salt. Fold in the zucchini.

In a 1-quart saucepan, melt the butter. Cool it slightly. Stir in the milk, then beat in the egg. Stir the liquid into the flour mixture just until moistened; the batter will be lumpy. Divide the batter among the greased cups.

Bake the muffins 20 to 25 minutes, or until a cake tester comes out clean. Let them stand 5 minutes before removing them from the cups and serve them warm.

Makes 10 muffins.

WHOLE-WHEAT ZUCCHINI BREAD

- 1½ cups all purpose flour
- 1½ cups whole-wheat flour
- 1 tbsps. ground cinnamon
- 1 tsp. ground nutmeg
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ¾ cup raisins
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- ¾ cup low-fat plain yogurt
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 tpsps. vanilla
- 2 cups finely shredded unpeeled zucchini

In bowl, combine all-purpose flour and whole wheat flours, cinnamon, nutmeg, baking soda, baking powder, salt and raisins.

In large bowl, beat eggs until foamy; beat in oil, yogurt, milk, sugar and vanilla. Stir in zucchini. Add flour mixture and stir until combined.

Pour batter into 2 well-greased 8- by 4-inch loaf pans. Bake in 350° oven for 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pan and let cool thoroughly before slicing.

Makes 2 loaves, about 13 slices each. Each slice has 152 calories, 4 grams fat, 21 milligrams cholesterol and 100 milligrams sodium.

If you are on a low-cholesterol diet, you can reduce the cholesterol to zero by substituting 4 egg whites for the 2 eggs.

CHUNKY ZUCCHINI BREAD

- 3 cups all purpose flour
- 1½ cups sugar
- 4½ tpsps. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. ground nutmeg
- 1½ cups chopped zucchini
- 1½ cups chopped walnuts
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 4 large eggs
- 2 tpsps. grated lemon rind

Heat the oven to 350°. Grease and flour two 8½- by 4½-inch loaf pans. In a large bowl, combine the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and nutmeg. Stir in the zucchini and walnuts. In a small bowl, combine the oil, eggs and lemon rind.

Bake the loaves 1 hour, or until a cake tester comes out clean. Cool the breads in the ans on a wire rack 10 minutes. Remove the breads from the pans and cool completely on the rack. Wrap the breads tightly in aluminum foil and let them stand overnight before slicing.

DOT'S CARROT-ZUCCHINI BREAD

- 2½ cups sugar
- 6 large eggs
- 2½ cups vegetable oil
- 1½ tpsps. vanilla extract
- 4 cups all purpose flour
- 4 tpsps. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1½ tpsps. ground cinnamon

2. Food labeled or advertised as "100 percent natural" do not contain any additives or preservatives.
3. Foods that are "low cholesterol" are always also low in saturated fats.

4. Foods labeled "reduced calorie" do not contain more than 100 calories per serving.

5. Foods advertised as having "food energy" contain special ingredients that provide more energy than other foods.

1. True. According to Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations, "low calorie" foods cannot contain more than 40 calories per serving. Please not, dear readers. However, there is no regulation on what a serving is. Read the label.
2. False. While many foods advertised or labeled as "natural" do not

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

contain additives or preservatives, there is no prescribed definition of the term regulating its use. You can check a claim of "natural" by reading the label of the product's ingredients.

3. False. Not all foods that are low in cholesterol are also low in saturated fats.

For instance, foods that contain little or no cholesterol, such as margarine and peanut butter, are not necessarily low in saturated fats.

4. False. According to the FDA, foods labeled "reduced calorie" are not limited in calories per serving. However, reduced calorie foods must be at least one-third lower in calorie content than a similar food in which calories are not advertised as reduced. For instance, if regular cheesecake contains 600 calories, "reduced calorie" cheesecake may contain no more than 400 calories per serving.

5. False. Energy is not provided by vitamins, minerals or any "special" ingredients. Energy is only provided by calories. Therefore, claims of "high food energy" only mean that the food is high in calories. This information comes from the Federal Trade Commission, Office of Consumer/Business Education.

Bountiful Zucchini Crop Produces Delicious Harvest Of Dishes

2 cups grated raw and unpeeled zucchini
2 cups chopped walnuts
1 tsp. grated orange rind

Preheat the oven to 350°. Lightly grease the loaf pans.

In a large mixing bowl, beat together the sugar, eggs, oil and vanilla. In a separate bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Stir the dry mixture into the wet mixture until just blended in, then fold in the carrots, zucchini, nuts and orange rind all at once.

Pour the batter into the prepared pans, place pans in the oven and bake for about 50 minutes (60 minutes for larger loaves) or until a toothpick or cake tester inserted in the center of the loaf comes out clean.

Remove the pans to wire racks, cool

15 minutes, then remove the loaves from the pan. Place the loaves on their sides and cool completely before serving. This bread will keep well, tightly wrapped and stored at room temperature, for 3 to 4 days.

Makes three 8½-by-4½-by-2½-inch loaves or two 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaves.

FRIED ZUCCHINI STICKS

1 lb. zucchini
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tbsps. milk
1 tsp. seasoned salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
Fat for deep frying

Wash and dry zucchini. Cut lengthwise into sticks ½ inch wide and 3 inches long. Combine eggs, milk, seasoned salt and pepper in mixing bowl. Dip zucchini into egg mixture and then into bread crumbs, coating well. Fry in hot deep fat (about 375°), until golden brown, about 4 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper.

Or zucchini can be pan fried in skillet on top of range. Makes 6 servings.

WESTERN ZUCCHINI

½ lb. zucchini, sliced ¼-inch thick
10-ounce package frozen Italian green beans
1 small onion, sliced 1 small clove garlic, crushed
¼ cup water
1 tbsp. soy sauce
2 tbsps. toasted, slivered almonds

Heat bacon drippings in skillet. Add zucchini, beans, onion and garlic. Toss. Add water. Cover tightly and cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Add soy sauce and top with almonds.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SYLVIA'S ZUCCHINI

6 cups thinly sliced zucchini
1 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
8-ounce can tomato sauce or 1 cup diced tomato
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 375°. Combine zucchini, butter, salt, pepper, tomato sauce and cheese. Saute in skillet for 15 to 20 minutes or pour into 1½ quart casserole and bake at 375° for 30 minutes.
Makes 6 servings.

ZUCCHINI CUPS

3 large zucchini, about 1½ lbs., trimmed

1 heaping tbsp. minced fresh basil
1 cup finely crumbled feta cheese
2 eggs, beaten

Freshly ground white pepper to taste
Cucumber curls

Preheat oven to 350°. Wash zucchini. Cut into 1-inch thick slices. Using a melon scoop, scoop out a hole on one cut side of zucchini, leaving a cup with a ¼-inch thick wall. Combine Gruyere cheese, basil, feta, eggs and pepper. Spoon filling into zucchini cups, allowing ½ to 1½ tablespoons filling per cup, depending on size of cavity.

Place zucchini on cookie sheet. Bake for 30 minutes, until cheese is hot and puffed up. Place on serving platter and garnish with cucumber curls. Serve warm or tepid.

Homemade Salsa Easy

JALAPENO SALSA

3 each jalapenos
1 large can diced tomatoes
2 tbsps. Lawry's Season Salt
½ tsp. garlic powder
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. cilantro

Chop onion and jalapeno fine. Set aside. Put diced tomatoes in blender, blend 30 seconds. Mix blended tomatoes, onions and jalapenos in large mixing bowl. Add the rest of the ingredients. Transfer to storage container and refrigerate.

SALSA RANCHERA

2 tbsps. peanut, corn, or safflower oil
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
2 large, fresh, ripe tomatoes, chopped (or 4 canned tomatoes, drained and chopped)
1 can (12 oz.) jalapeno chilies, drained and finely chopped
1 tsp. mild white vinegar
¼ tsp. sugar
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Heat the oil in a skillet and saute

the onion and garlic until translucent.

In the work bowl of a food processor fitted with a steel blade, process the tomatoes, chilies, vinegar and sugar until pureed. Add to the onions and garlic in the skillet and cook down, uncovered, stirring occasionally until thick and smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes about 1½ cups.

SALSA VERDE VERDE (GREEN GREEN SAUCE)

1 lb. tomatillos
2 fresh small chilies
¼ cup chopped scallions (including some of the green)
1 cup fresh cilantro leaves
Salt
1 tsp. sugar
1 clove garlic (optional)

Remove dry, paperlike skins from tomatillos. Coarsely puree uncooked tomatillos, chilies, scallions and cilantro leaves in blender. Season with salt to taste and add 1 teaspoon sugar.

Serve with soft tacos or burritos and as a dip for corn chips. Also wonderful with fried chicken, pan-fried pork chops, and pan-fried potatoes.

Blanching Critical In Freezing Produce

By Joan Drake
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Blanching, or scalding, is a critical step in preparing fresh vegetables for freezing. This process cleanses the vegetable surfaces of dirt and organisms, brings up their color, helps retain vitamins and reduces the action of enzymes that otherwise would destroy their fresh flavor after about a month in the freezer.

The fresher the vegetables are when frozen, the more satisfactory the end product. Choose those at their peak of ripeness and process them as soon as possible.

Freezing retards the growth of bacteria but does not sterilize the food. Therefore, sanitary measures in the handling and processing of foods are very important.

Before blanching, wash, drain, sort, trim and cut the vegetables the same as you would if you were cooking them fresh. Use one gallon of water to blanch each pound of vegetables — two gallons for a pound of leafy greens.

Place the vegetables in a wire basket and lower it into vigorously boiling water. Begin counting the blanching time as soon as the vegetables enter the water. Keep the heat on high and stir the water or cover the container during blanching.

Time the blanching carefully, using the following chart. Under-blanching stimulates enzyme activity rather than reducing it; prolonged scalding causes loss of vitamins, minerals, flavor and color.

Remove the vegetables from the boiling water and immediately plunge into ice water to stop the cooking process. Stir the vegetables as they cool for approximately the same amount of time they were blanched. If more than one batch of vegetables is being prepared, the hot vegetables may be poured into a colander set in the ice water so the wire basket can be reused.

Pack the cooled vegetables loosely into moisture-and-vapor-proof containers. Seal, label with the contents and date, then place the containers in a single layer in the freezer, leaving about one inch of space between the packages so they freeze quickly. Once completely frozen, packages may be compactly stacked. Frozen vegetables should be used within one year.

When large quantities of vegetables are being processed, determine the amount that can be blanched in 15 minutes and keep the remainder under refrigeration until the first batch has been packaged. The same scalding water may be reused for the same product, adding water as needed to retain the proper level.

The following timetable for blanching vegetables prior to freezing comes from the "Handbook of Food Preparation," published by the American Home Economics Association.

Satisfying Salads Are Playing Main-Dish Roles

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

More and more people are discovering satisfying salads that play main-dish roles in their meals. Due to a wider selection of fresh fruits and vegetables, produce consumption has increased a great deal. Other than meats, poultry or seafood, good sources of protein such as beans, rice, pasta, eggs or cheese may be combined with the fresh fruits or vegetables.

Refreshing salads of varied flavors and textures become even more appreciated when the heat sizzles at this time of the year. Take advantage of the season's fresh bounty in these innovative recipes.

CRAB-SHRIMP SALAD TOSS

- 3/4 cup instant rice
- 1 cup water
- 1 tsp. chicken bouillon granules
- 1 (6-oz.) package frozen crab meat and shrimp, thawed and drained
- 1/2 cup chilled cooked peas
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 2 tablespoons chopped green onions
- Curry Dressing
- 1 small head lettuce, shredded
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 2 small tomatoes, cut in wedges
- 1/2 cup chow mein noodles or crunchy onion rings, optional

Combine rice, water and bouillon granules. Bring to boil, cover and simmer 5 minutes. Let stand covered, 5 minutes. Chill thoroughly. In medium-size bowl, toss chilled rice with crab meat and shrimp, peas, celery and onions. Add 1/2 cup Curry Dressing. Mix gently and thoroughly.

Arrange equal portions on beds of shredded lettuce on individual salad plates. Top with additional dressing. Garnish with egg slices and tomato wedges. If desired, sprinkle crumbled chow mein or onion rings on top of each. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Curry Dressing

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- 1/2 tsp. curry powder
- 1/2 tsp. seasoned salt

Blend together mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon juice, curry powder and seasoned salt. Makes about 1 cup.

SEAFOOD SALAD NICOISE

- 1 1/2 lbs. ling cod, bass or salmon, grilled or poached
- 1 head romaine or red-leaf lettuce
- 1 lb. cooked asparagus or green beans
- 1 lb. cooked new potatoes, cut in chunks
- 1 cup sliced cooked carrots
- 2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
- 1 (6-oz.) jar artichoke hearts, drained and cut in halves
- 1/3 cup drained pitted black olives
- 2 tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese
- Dressing

Break cooked fish in large chunks. Line serving platter with lettuce leaves. Mound fish in center and surround with asparagus, potatoes, carrots, tomatoes, artichokes and olives. Top with Dressing and Parmesan cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Dressing

- 3 tbsps. olive oil
- 1/2 tsp. Dijon mustard
- 2 cloves garlic, pressed
- 3 tbsps. lemon juice
- 1/4 tsp. basil, crushed
- 6 anchovies, drained, rinsed and mashed
- Pepper
- 1 1/2 tbsps. chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. capers, drained

Combine oil, mustard, garlic, lemon juice, basil, anchovies, pepper to taste, parsley and capers. Stir well or shake in covered jar.

SUMMER FRUIT AND HAM SALAD

- 1 large pineapple
- 2 cups cubed cooked ham
- 1/2 cup strawberries, cut in halves
- 1 (10 3/4-oz.) can condensed cream of chicken soup
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsps. honey
- 2 tbsps. orange juice concentrate
- 1/4 tsp. ground ginger
- 2 medium bananas, sliced
- Toasted, shredded coconut

Cut pineapple in half lengthwise. Using sharp knife or grapefruit knife, scoop out fruit. Remove core and dice fruit. To make salad in bowl, combine pineapple, ham and strawberries. Chill.

To make dressing combine soup, sour cream, honey, orange juice and ginger. Chill. Add bananas to fruits. Fill pineapple shells with fruit salad. Drizzle with some dressing and serve with remaining. Garnish with toasted coconut. Makes about 5 1/2 cups, 6 servings.

CARIBBEAN PLUM SALAD

- Iceberg lettuce
- 4 plums, sliced
- 2 whole chicken breasts, cooked, boned, skinned and slivered
- 2 green onions, chopped
- 3/4 cup macadamia nuts or cashews, halved

Lemon Herb Dressing or Fresh Lemon Ginger Dressing Watercress, optional

Line 4 individual salad bowls or large bowl with lettuce. Arrange plums, chicken, green onions and macadamia nuts in lettuce. Drizzle with choice of dressing. Garnish each salad with watercress, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

- 1 tbsp. sugar
- 1 small clove garlic
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup oil
- 1 tbsp. minced parsley
- 3/4 tsp. fines herbes
