Bakker Faces Mental Tests

Evangelist Reported Crying, Cowering And Hallucinating

By Paul Nowell
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — PTL founder Jim Bakker was ordered today to undergo psychiatric testing at a federal corrections facility to see if he is competent to continue his trial on fraud and conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Potter suspended the trial in its fourth day after a psychiatrist who has been treating Bakker testified that his client had suffered hallucinations and was cowering in his attorney's office this morning.

"He was lying in the corner of his attorney's office with his head under a couch, hiding," Dr. Basil Jackson testified in the brief competency hearing out of the jury's presence. "He was expressing thoughts that someone was going to hurt him."

Minutes after Potter ordered his fraud and conspiracy trial suspended, a sobbing Bakker was taken from his attorney's office, put in a U.S. Marshal's car and transported to the federal courthouse.

"Please don't do this to me," Bakker said as he was led to the car. "Mr. Bakker, I'm going to have to ask you to sit up please," a deputy marshal said to Bakker, who curled up in fetal position in the back seat.

Bakker was escorted through a rear entrance to the courthouse by six marshals. The usually well-dressed Bakker was wearing no coat and his shirt was sloppily tucked into his pants.

Jackson, who has been treating Bakker for nine months, said Bakker suffered hallucinations Wednesday after a witness collapsed while being cross-examined. Bakker broke into sobs at the courthouse door after former PTL vice president Steve Nelson passed out on the witness stand.

"Mr. Bakker reported that when he left the courthouse, suddenly people outside took on the form of frightening animals which he felt were intent on destroying him, attacking him and hurting him," Jackson said.

Jackson, who sat behind the defense table during jury selection last week but has not been present for the trial, said he had not completed a formal diagnosis. But he said his initial diagnosis was that Bakker suffers from "acute depression and confusional reaction with episode decomposition in which he loses the ability to adequately judge and relate to reality."

Jackson said Bakker had been treated this morning with Xanax, an anti-anxiety tranquilizer and sedative.

Jackson asked that Bakker, who was not present in the courtroom, be sent to an unnamed private hospital in North Carolina, but Potter instead ordered marshals to deliver Bakker to the Federal Correctional Facility at Butner.

Falling Bridge Leaves 9 Hurt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAUREL, Md. — A bridge being built over a major road linking Baltimore and Washington collapsed during rush hour this morning, injuring at least nine people and trapping at least one car in the debris, state police said.

One person was critically injured in the collapse of the Route 198 overpass over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, said Maryland Police spokesman Chuck Jackson.

He said one vehicle had been freed from the rubble, one vehicle was struck by debris but drove on and "there is one vehicle trapped, but there may be more."

The collapse occurred about 7:15 a.m. as workers poured concrete, which they had been doing since 2 a.m., state police Sgt. James Joyce said.

"To our account right now, we have nine persons injured — four construction workers, one victim in the automobile that was on the north side, four victims in the automobile that was on the south side," said U.S. Park Police Deputy Chief Richard Kusick.

He said heavy equipment was being brought in to search for more vehicles beneath the rubble.

The critically injured person was taken by helicopter to the University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore, said state police spokesman Sgt. Joseph Ireton. The others were taken to various hospitals, he said.

One radio reporter on the scene described the bridge as a crumpled mess. There were reports that debris rained down on cars passing underneath.

The southbound parkway was closed at Route 32, and traffic was being detoured around the area. Jackson said the collapse caused tremendous traffic backups.

Maryland police, U.S. Park Police and rescue teams from Anne Arundel, Howard and Prince George's Counties were dispatched to the scene, along with at least two Medevac helicopters and two rescue buses.

The department said the new rule would affect 39 million American workers, most of them in manufacturing and service industries, and estimated it would also prevent 60,000 injuries a year, 28,000 of them serious injuries such as loss of limbs or crushed bones.

It will cost the affected establishments $214 million in the next year for the necessary equipment and training and $135 million in subsequent years, the department's Oc-

Fish Kills Reported Along Two Eastern North Carolina Rivers

By J. Ward Best
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The dog days of August continue to bring bad tidings to the fish in coastal waters.

A spokesman for the Pamlico Environmental Response Team said a fisherman reported netting dead flounder this morning in the Pamlico River near Archbell Point. The area is near the mouth of Bath Creek.

Barry Adams, a chemical analyst with PERT, said PERT members planned to visit the site on the Pamlico today and take water samples.

Adams said water quality conditions in the Pungo River on Wednesday also indicated a potential danger for a kill in those waters.

And PERT reported a series of fish and crab kills along the Neuse River during the past week.

The spokesman said he believes the kills were caused by low oxygenated conditions in the Neuse. State officials also believe pollution in the coastal rivers has caused higher than usual incidents of fish kills this year.

Adams said the upper Pungo Creek was experiencing an algae bloom Wednesday. He said tests in the Pungo showed the water quality in the area was stressed and could cause a kill with any change.

A citizen monitor in Carolina Pines near Cherry Point called PERT Aug. 22 to report nearly 30 dead crabs in pots along the south shore across the Neuse from Arapahoe. The deaths indicated a lack of oxygen in the water, but tests showed normal water quality conditions in the area, Adams said.

Fish began to float up to the shore on Thursday and Friday, according to Adams. Dead fish littered the river's south shore in a 2.5-mile stretch between Havelock and Flanner Beach on Friday.

Adams said most of the dead fish were small menhaden, but some were larger spot and croaker. He said dead crabs also washed up on the banks of the Neuse on Friday.

Adams said tests of the water quality again showed good conditions, and he expected the fish were dying farther out in the river and washing ashore.

The spokesman said decaying organic matter along the bottom of the rivers rob the water of oxygen, creating areas of "dead water" that suffocate fish and crabs.

Adams also said nearly 15 percent of the dead menhaden were marked by ulcerative necrosis. The disease leaves open sores on the fish, and can kill the fish in advanced stages.

Environmental scientists believe excessive nutrients in the water weaken the natural defenses of fish and crabs, contributing to the higher incidents of diseases.

No more dead fish or crabs were seen in the Neuse on Tuesday, but Adams warned the fish kill may be continuing in the deeper waters.

"The area was clear, but that does not mean the fish kill has ended," Adams said.

The PERT member said he believes the recent winds stirring the coastal waters have helped reduce the number of fish kills this summer. Winds help to oxygenate the waters by increasing circulation.

Historically, rivers and tributaries along the Pamlico Sound have experienced fish kills when the water temperatures rise and decaying organic materials rob the water of oxygen. But environmentalists, and now, state officials warn that the fish kills are increasing.

"We feel like there is an increase (in fish kills)," Adams said. "We attribute that to the heavy run-off."

Discharge from wastewater treatment plants and run-off from farm lands and industrial sites add excessive nutrients to the rivers, he said. The nutrients cause excessive algae growth which, when it decays, depletes the oxygen in the water.

Adams said he expects more kills as long as the temperature remains high and the waters remain stagnant.

The Pamlico Environmental Response Team was formed in June of 1988 from members of the state Division of Environmental Management and the Division of Marine Fisheries. PERT responds to and studies environmental emergencies such as fish kills along the Pamlico River and other coastal waterways.

ECU Nurses Set Pace For Exams

By Charles Hoskinson
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

A higher percentage of East Carolina University nursing graduates passed the state licensing examination this year because university officials took action to heal the program, according to the dean of the university's nursing school.

Only 63 percent of ECU graduates who took the test last year passed, the lowest number since the test was revised in 1982, Dr. Emilie D. Henning, dean of the nursing school, said. This year the passing rate was 95 percent.

This year's passing rate at ECU is the highest among the state's five largest nursing schools. The passing rate at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was 91 percent, while at UNC-Greensboro it was 81 percent. At UNC-Charlotte 83 percent passed, and at Western Carolina University the passing rate was 87 percent. The statewide rate was 86 percent.

"Last year was just a bad year, but I think we've corrected that now," Dr. Henning said. Except for last year, the passing rate for ECU nursing graduates has always been close to the national mean passing rate, she said. This year's passing rate exceeded the national mean of 88 percent by seven points, she said.

Since last year, the university has revised its nursing curriculum to focus more on clinical decision-making skills, which the test measures, Dr. Henning said. Faculty members also work with students to develop test-taking strategies, she said.

Higher admission standards also contributed to the high passing rate by screening out marginal students, Dr. Henning said. "We have been more stringent about our policies and adhering to them," she said.

OSHA Orders Power Cutoff During Repairs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The government today gave 631,000 factories and plants two months to install locks so that power to machinery is cut off during maintenance and repairs, a step the Labor Department said would save 120 lives a year.

The department said the new rule would affect 39 million American workers, most of them in manufacturing and service industries, and estimated it would also prevent 60,000 injuries a year, 28,000 of them serious injuries such as loss of limbs or crushed bones.

It will cost the affected establishments $214 million in the next year for the necessary equipment and training and $135 million in subsequent years, the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration said. Those costs will range from $120 for small establishments — such as a small print shop — to $28,000 for large plants with scores of machines, OSHA said.

The regulation, 10 years in the making, is tougher in its final form than when it was proposed. At first, the government proposed requiring that employers either install locks to prevent accidental activation of equipment during repairs or place warning tags on the power source to alert workers that the machinery was being worked on and was not to be activated.

But the final rule released today places a far greater emphasis on locks, allowing tags only when an employer can prove that equipment cannot be "locked" off a power supply or that its tag program is as effective as using locks. Because of the additional training required to meet that threshold, it would actually cost employers more to use tags than it would to install locks, said Alan McMillan, acting chief of OSHA. He said 90 percent of electrically powered machinery is capable of being locked.

"We have so many fatalities, loss of fingers, crushed bones and other serious injuries because these precautions are not taken," McMillan said in an interview this morning. "This will have a major effect on workplace safety."

Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole said the standard "completes a missing link in OSHA's general industry standards. Adherence to a few simple procedures can eliminate nearly 6 percent of all workplace deaths in establishments affected by this rule."

The provision allowing use of tags will not apply to new equipment or machines that are taken off line for major modifications, McMillan said. In those cases, locks must be used.

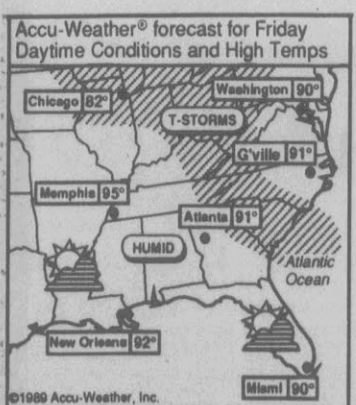

The rule, which takes effect Oct. 31, also requires extensive training and annual retraining of all workers exposed to moving machinery. Employers also must make an inventory of all equipment covered by the rule and establish a written plan for cutting off power during repairs.

Of the 39 million workers the department said would be affected, 3 million actually service the equipment and are at greatest risk, OSHA said. McMillan said the standards should prevent 120 of the 140 deaths each year blamed on the lack of a power cutoff.

The standard applies to most machinery used in manufacturing and in services such as industrial laundries. OSHA data show that packaging and wrapping equipment, printing presses and conveyors account for a high proportion of accidents blamed on a failure to cut off power during major maintenance and repairs. Typical accidents in such situations include electrocution and shock and getting limbs caught in moving parts when a machine lurches on.

The rules do not apply to construction or maritime industries. As is its custom, OSHA will use separate rulemaking procedures to tailor the requirements to those industries. Separate standards also are being developed for utilities.

Wednesday Thefts

Five thefts, including a car and a truck, were reported to Greenville police Wednesday.

Officer L.T. Gray said a 1985 Ford F350 truck was taken from Sutton's Service Center at 1105 Dickinson Ave. in an incident reported at 10:12 p.m., while Officer E.R. Lavoie said a 1978 model Buick LaSabre was taken from A&B Auto at the intersection of Ninth and Evans streets in an incident reported at 2:15 p.m.

Officer L.C. Overby said a watch valued at $150 was taken from 2112 N. Village Drive in a break-in reported at 4:25 p.m. and three plants were taken from 806 Fleming St. in an incident reported at 7:42 p.m., while Officer S.A. Person said a birdbath was taken from 103 Meade St. in an incident reported at 4:38 p.m.

Drug Arrest

Lenvia Tay May, 28, of 601 Roosevelt Ave. was arrested by Greenville police on multiple drug charges Wednesday.

Officer B.D. Dobbs said May was charged with possession of heroin, possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia, delaying and obstructing an officer and driving while his license was revoked in connection with an 11:55 p.m. incident at the intersection of Third and Elizabeth streets.

Bank Fire Call

Greenville fire-rescue officials said several customers and a few employees left Planters National Bank at the intersection of Third and Washington streets shortly after 9 a.m. today when light smoke from an air conditioning motor entered the bank's office area.

But Battalion Chief Tony Smart said the only damage done from the 9:06 a.m. incident was to the air conditioning motor itself. "They never evacuated the bank," Smart said, although "they got a few customers out."

Local Crime Statistics In Line With U.S.

A recent U.S. Department of Justice report shows that Greenville's police department compares favorably with other departments across the nation based on the city's violent crime statistics.

The number of violent crimes reported nationally in the Justice Department's "Uniform Crime Reports Index" averaged 10,012 per 100,000 population. Greenville reported 533 violent crimes last year, or an average of 783 per 100,000 population.

The index includes national data on murder, negligent manslaughter, rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Greenville reported six murders, 15 rapes, 141 robberies and 371 aggravated assaults.

"The Justice Department report tells me that we're right on the mark in many of the areas and superior in some of the others," Greenville Police Chief Jerry Tesmond said.

The Justice Department report found that the average city of 250,000 or more population in 1987 employed 2.3 full-time sworn officers per 1,000 population. Greenville, with an estimated population of 46,507, now has 103 sworn officers, or 2.2 officers per 1,000 population.

Following action by the City Council in June, Tesmond said his department plans to have 107 full-time officers by November, bringing the ratio up to 2.3 officers per 1,000 population — equal to the national average for larger cities.

The report also noted that cities of less than 500,000 population averaged 46 cars per 100 officers. With 52 police cars, Greenville averages slightly better than 50 cars per 100 officers.

While non-uniformed employees now comprise 23 percent of the police work force nationwide, according to the report, only 25 of Greenville's 128 employees — 20 percent — are civilian.

In a related statistical report, information collected in June indicates that Greenville police opened 62 percent more drug cases in the first five months of 1989 than during a similar period last year. The memo also shows a 121 percent increase in drug arrests, and a 107 percent rise in the number of drug charges filed.

The city's Special Investigation Unit opened 74 cases, arrested 38 persons and filed 70 drug charges between Jan. 1 and May 31 last year. During the same period this year, the Special Investigation Unit opened 120 cases, made 84 arrests and filed 145 drug charges.

Greene Firefighters Treated

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A fire in rural Greene County destroyed five tobacco barns and sent six firefighters to the hospital where they were treated for heat exhaustion, officials say.

About 75 firefighters from 11 departments across Greene County were called to Ullmon Ginn's farm near Snow Hill about 6 p.m. Tuesday, authorities said.

The fire caused about $80,000 in damage, said Neil Johnson, assistant chief at Fort Run Volunteer Fire Department. His department is a subsidiary of the Greene County Fire and Rescue Association.

Ginn, 61, has farmed there for 42 years and had nearly filled the five barns, which shared a roof, when the fire started.

"I had gone back to the field to get one last" load, Ginn said Wednesday. "When I came back ... it was all in flames."

Johnson, the first firefighter to arrive, said flames were shooting out the front and back of the barns. "It was just spraying out the back like a solid flame," he said.

Firefighters were forced to remove much of the tobacco to extinguish the blaze, Johnson said. They had to remove one by one the metal racks that hold the leaf for curing.

The curing barns — large, aluminum boxes that resemble the trailer portion of a tractor trailer — have natural or propane gas connections. The gas fueled the fire, Johnson said.

The cause of the blaze had not been determined Wednesday.

Driver Charged

Cleavy Averette III of Route 1, Winterville, who was involved in an early-morning collision on Secondary Road 1102 near Ayden Wednesday morning, was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Highway Patrol Trooper Ron Mills said Averette was charged after the truck he was driving struck a farm tractor, which in turn was forced into a car parked beside the road.

The driver of the farm tractor was identified as Jack Cox of Route 1, Ayden.

Campus Telephone Services Enhanced

When East Carolina University students arrived on campus this month, they found enhanced telephone features available to them for the first time in their residence hall rooms.

For the basic service included in their residence hall payment, students have eight enhanced calling features and four-digit dialing among residence halls.

For an additional cost, students may subscribe to long-distance service and Messageline, which permits them to receive recorded private messages when they are away from their rooms.

Carolyn Fulghum, assistant vice chancellor and director of housing at ECU, and Allen Bender, account manager with Carolina Telephone, jointly announced the new service.

"These features are made possible by advanced technology which permits Carolina Telephone to program desired enhanced features into our digital central office," Bender said. "The service provides many of the same calling features presently enjoyed by the ECU administrative offices without the need for the university to purchase and maintain its own switching facilities for residence halls."

Ms. Fulghum said, "Another advantage to us is the fact that we will no longer have the administrative expense of issuing and retrieving aging rotary telephones we previously have been providing to students. Now, students will be able to purchase touchtone telephones, which are necessary for them to have enhanced services."

Among the ECU enrollment, there are some 5,600 students who room in pairs in 2,800 rooms in 15 residence halls.

ECU Foreign Study Director Urges Students To Be Campus Diplomats

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University is dedicated "to enlarging the horizons of our students," the director of international studies at ECU told students who have returned from study programs abroad, international and U.S. exchange students at a reception and breakfast this week.

Dr. Maurice Simon urged the students to become "campus diplomats" in promoting international studies and exchange opportunities.

The ECU students returning from abroad can play important roles on campus and in their home communities by "personally highlighting the tremendous educational value of study abroad programs," Simon said.

"East Carolina University is dedicated to enlarging the horizons of our students," he said. "What better way to do this than to assist our students in discovering other cultures and national environments."

Dr. Richard Eakin, ECU chancellor, Simon and study abroad program directors, Drs. John Bort and Vince Bellis, Costa Rica; Dr. Paul Dowell, London; Karine Sparrow-Ginter, Sorbonne-Paris; Dr.

Robert Hursey, International Student Exchange Program coordinator, and Dr. Roger Rulifson, Acadia Program, hosted a reception Monday for students who returned from studies abroad.

Six students from five countries and five students from four American universities were special guests at a breakfast Tuesday morning.

Visiting foreign students are Myriam Driot, France; Alessandro

Guidice, Italy; Danielle Kouame, Ivory Coast; Pierre Lequeux, France; Marna Michele, West Germany, and Risto Tanninen, Finland. They are attending ECU as part of the International Student Exchange Program (ISEP).

Through ISEP, more than 80 foreign universities are available to qualified ECU students at the cost of attending ECU, except for travel. Eight to 10 ECU students are expected to study abroad under this program during 1989-90.

Simon said the international studies program will be aided by a recent $1.3 million gift from the estate of the late Thomas W. Rivers of Greenville. The gift will help fund an endowed professorship in international studies and also strengthen and support the international exchange program through grants for travel and other expenses.

Legislator Named To State Position

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Rep. Ann Duncan, R-Forsyth, has been appointed assistant secretary of administration for the state Department of Environment, Health and Natural Resources.

Ms. Duncan, 51, was elected to the General Assembly in 1984 and was re-elected in 1986 and 1988. During that time she served on more than a dozen committees and was vice chairman of the Water and Air Resources Committee and chairman of the Appropriations Expansion Subcommittee on Human Resources.

Ms. Duncan, who will have to resign her legislative seat, will oversee six of the department's divisions: computer systems, fiscal management, general services, information services, legal affairs and planning and assessment.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed serving the people of my district and have learned a great deal about the workings of our state's government," Ms. Duncan said in a news release. "However there comes a time when you have to put into practice what you learn, and this is the time. I'll miss the folks of Forsyth County but eagerly accept the challenges of working in this newly-formed agency."

Ms. Duncan taught public school in Florida for 10 years and worked with the Florida Division of Social and Protective Services for more than two years before moving to North Carolina. She will assume her new post on Sept. 15.

"Ann brings a wealth of experience and ability to the position of assistant secretary for administration which will be invaluable to this new department," said EHNRS Secretary Bill Cobey.

Beating Death

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — A Lincoln County man was charged with murder Wednesday in the death of his girlfriend's 4-year-old son, Sheriff Joe Kiser said.

Karl Noel Greene, 24, was charged after investigators questioned him about the death of Shawn Wayne Duncan, whom Greene brought to Lincoln County Hospital about 2 p.m. Tuesday. Greene was arrested shortly before 1 a.m. Wednesday.

The child, who had bruises on his head and chest, was pronounced dead on arrival, Kiser said. An autopsy was performed Wednesday morning at the North Carolina medical examiner's office in Chapel Hill. Dr. Thomas Clark, who performed the autopsy, refused comment Wednesday.

Societal War

A Serpent With Heads At Both Ends

The drug lords of Colombia have declared war on society. It is a violent, despicable war based purely on greed.

That greed is fueled by the basest motives man can exhibit ... a willingness to enslave other men and women to a cruel and addicting illegal drug which destroys their minds and their bodies. It is avarice that has been exposed by Colombia's heightened aggressiveness in finding drug lords and stopping their trade.

In their fight to continue piling up their evil profits, the drug lords assassinate public officials and judges in Colombia; they bomb public buildings. After all, those who will kill with drugs care little if the killing is with bullets and bombs.

'In their fight to continue piling up their evil profits, the drug lords assassinate public officials and judges in Colombia; they bomb public buildings.'

Fortunately there are still leaders in Colombia who believe in the law and the protection it offers to all citizens. As they battle the drug dealers, however, they constantly put their own lives in danger. The young female justice minister Monica de Greiff, who had reportedly resigned to protect her family from death threats, surfaced in Washington to appear for aid in the fight against the powerful criminals of Colombia. She said millions in American aid is needed to protect judges from the threat of lawlessness.

"The law is under siege in Colombia and we must protect it in every way we can," Mrs. de Greiff said.

The civilized nations of the world who believe in the equal protection of the law certainly should heed the plea.

Particularly should the United States take note. The protection of the Constitution is paramount in our country. More practical, however, is the fact that the U.S. is a huge market for the cocaine pushers of Colombia. It is our citizens who are being enslaved by their drugs.

Of course, it is argued that if Americans didn't use the illegal drugs there would be no market for the Colombian cartel to exploit. That is certainly true and that fact tells the U.S. government it has two objectives.

First it must provide all possible aid for the government of Colombia in this life or death fight with the criminal drug powers. Second it must get serious about the war in our own country with the street pushers of illegal drugs and with the users themselves.

This threat to civilization is a serpent with heads at both ends. Both must be attacked to effectively end this menace.

Still Growing

Quality Up, Numbers Down

East Carolina University has achieved another goal with a fall semester student enrollment of 16,038.

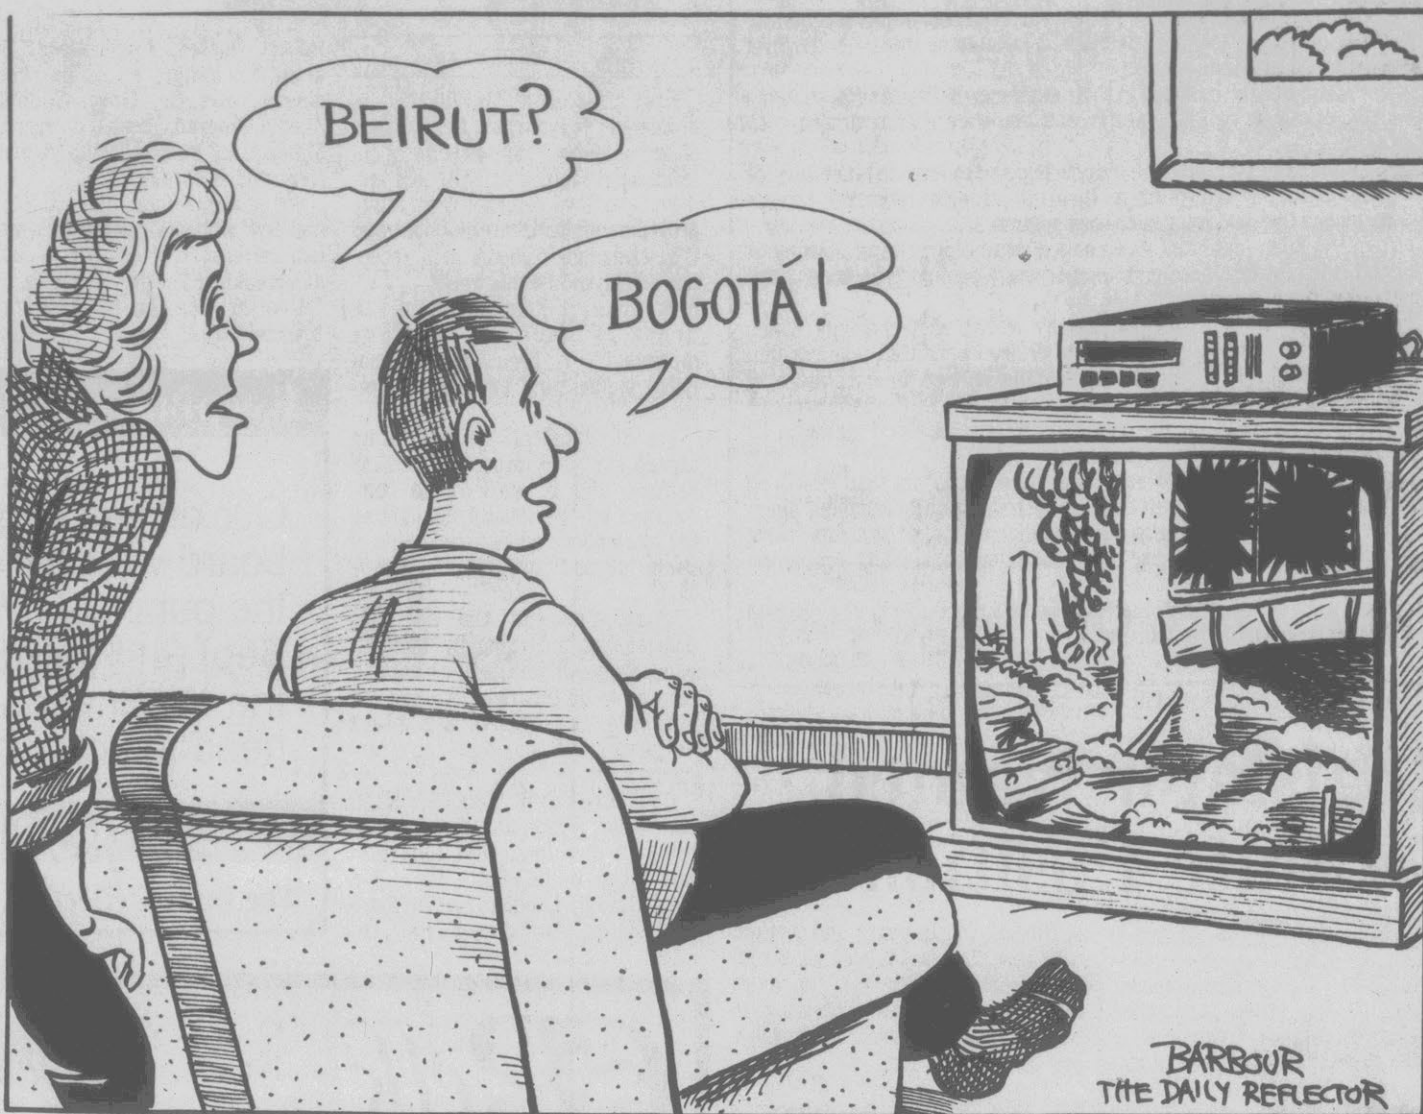

While "record enrollments," can be arbitrary measures of a university's success, interestingly this goal was achieved in spite of a significant drop in size of the freshman class. That class this year could be 13 percent less than the 2,991 who entered in the fall of 1988. University officials attribute this to a higher SAT average and the denial of admission to almost 2,000 applicants.

Nevertheless, total enrollment increased because of a lower dropout rate and more students in graduate programs.

If the academic ability of entering freshmen is borne out, it bodes well for scholarship at East Carolina University. A more carefully selected freshman class should produce better prepared entering students. There should be a lower dropout rate as the class proceeds through the four years of college, and as a group, it should be academically challenged.

Dr. Richard Eakin, chancellor, said the enrollment increase of approximately 3 percent is on target. The goal is a 2 to 3 percent a year increase — instead of the past figure of a 5 to 6 percent increase — for the foreseeable future.

If that new trend represents a goal of slow, controlled quality growth, it is an applaudable aim. If it is achieved and scholarship steadily improved, then the community will watch a large state university become much better in the area of academic achievement. Certainly it is the aim of students, faculty and administration at East Carolina University to achieve excellence in scholarship.

Higher Prices, No Guarantees

Another Reason For Children Never To Leave Home

Art Buchwald

College tuitions are going through the roof. Latest reports indicate it now costs $21,000 to send your loved one for a year to any respectable institution in the United States.

It is not the end of high tuition raises but rather the beginning.

Most educational experts predict that by 1995 the tariff for an average 150-pound male student or a 110-pound female student will be $1 million a year, not counting admission to basketball games. Who will be the lucky students? Young people whose parents have made a killing in Time-Life-Warner Brothers stock or who own six or seven skyscrapers in a rezoned Central Park.

I asked Meyer Daniloff, a Regis Professor of Matriculation at Ivy League Normal, why tuitions were rising so fast. He replied, "All the universities in America are looking for a better class of student, and the only way we can get it is to raise the price of admission. We're tired of the grungy, unkempt, badly mannered student of the past, and the only way to get rid of them is to raise the rates. As the midget who sat on J.P. Morgan's lap once said, 'If you have to ask what college costs, then you can't afford it.'"

"Won't schools become boring if only rich kids can attend them?"

"They will at first, but pretty soon the students will get used to being with their own kind, and you will have a country club atmosphere that most schools at the moment seem to lack."

"Is there any way that middle-class students can find the wherewithal to attend college?"

"Of course. You don't think our society would keep them out just because they can't afford to go?"

"How can they do it?"

"They can buy a state lottery ticket, and if they win the lucky jackpot they can go to any school of their choice. But they have to pick all eight numbers before the registrar will accept them."

He continued, "The main advantage to the schools raising tuition is that they get a fat cat student who will eventually give to the alumni fund. The downside is that if it gets too expensive to go to college, fathers and mothers will not know what to do with their offspring when they reach 18 years of age. Parents in the past could get rid of their children without looking cruel by sending them to college. Now the children will have every excuse to stay in the house forever."

I said, "Without intending to, the colleges are making life miserable for the parents of middle- and lower-class kids."

"It's a difficult problem, but there is nothing you can do about it. There was always the fear that America would eventually price itself out of higher education. This is as good a time as ever."

"Will the students who pay the top-of-the-line fee get a better education?"

"I don't see why they should. We're not saying all parents have to come up with the tuition or else. All we're saying is that if a student chooses to become an airline pilot for a drug cartel just because he can't afford school we are not to blame."

"Will you guarantee tuition is not going to rise more in just a few years?"

"When it comes to education, nobody can predict the future. But I'll bet Pete Rose anything that it isn't going to go down."

The Man Who Is Not Paganini

WARSAW — Poland's president, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, is also Poland's sphinx. His eyes hidden behind tinted glasses, the usually stony set of his mouth betraying no emotion, he certainly does not smile promiscuously. But at a recent meeting with five Americans, the stone cracked and he smiled, even laughed.

A man, he said musingly, is on a tightrope stretched high above a street, with no net below. It is raining, the wind is gusting. And he is playing a violin. (Jaruzelski crooked his left arm and with his right he vigorously drew an imaginary bow across an imaginary violin.) "And people say, 'He's no Paganini!'" The general laughed at his jest.

The tightrope metaphor is a tantalizing exercise in reticence, a quality essential to survival in the Soviet orbit. Toward what is the tightrope walker edging? Democracy? The general, dressed like a banker, does not say that. But he sounds like a Polish patriot as he favors his American guests with a litany of the difficulties — civil war, racial strife, depression — American democracy has experienced in 200 years. Again, his message is — at most — implicit. It seems to be: We are doing, quickly and stealthily, what you have done with much turmoil when you were less constrained by time and circumstances.

Jaruzelski sounds like a conservative Republican when giving examples of excessive entitlements — long, paid pregnancy leaves, for example — that must be pruned if Poland is to become productive. The rococo system of controls must be dismantled and the thick fabric of subsidies must be unraveled. But this means a blast of inflation. Because things must get worse before they can get better, Jaruzelski speaks like a Chicago alderman bent on assembling a broad social base for the government.

Poland is suffering shortages of almost everything — meat, machinery, poetry — but perhaps its most pressing need is a new, more inspiring metaphor to replace the medicinal metaphors. Everyone here talks about the coming doses of "bitter medicine."

When necessities such as milk and meat are, in a blink, four to ten times more expensive, it may seem unfeeling, even fatuous, to call for a more cheerful vocabulary. However, another name for the bitter medicine Poland has just begun to taste is: freedom. And over the long haul, freedom is fun. It works.

A foreign-ministry official, pausing with a forkful of Baltic herring, reminds a visitor, "We are not alone in the world." Reticence about the Russian bear to the east comes naturally in a nation that has had the misfortune to exist (when it has existed: it disappeared from the European map from 1795 to 1918) near large, voracious neighbors.

George Will

Someone once said, rather hardheartedly, of Poland's history: If you pitch your tent in the middle of Fifth Avenue, you should expect to be hit by buses. Tanks, in Poland's case. Europe's northern plain is perfect for blitzkriegs.

But today East German's population is leaking westward through the porous papier-mache curtain between Hungary and Austria. And between Poland and Russia, the Baltic states are in a roiling boil. They are reminding the world, at exactly the right moment, of this exquisitely embarrassing — to the Kremlin — fact: The Soviet Union is the only nation that was allied with Hitler when the war began but did not as a result suffer a rupture of its regime.

The Soviet regime, with all the troubles piled on its plate, probably cannot afford to think much about, let alone intervene in, Poland. But Soviet pressure need not come noisily, with clanking tanks. It could come silently, in reduced flows of iron, oil and cotton.

And Solidarity now faces an identity crisis. It cannot be both what it has been and what it now is: both a trade union and a government, a militant arm of an interest and a conciliating institution.

Poland's Communist Party has acquiesced, so far, in Solidarity exercising power. Is Poland still a communist country? If by that phrase one means a country with a majority of convinced communists, there never has been a communist country, anywhere. However, today the aims and values of Poland's government more closely resemble those of all the NATO governments than those of any Warsaw Pact government, with the possible exception of Hungary's.

However, Poland's communist apparatchiks still control enough institutions to cause the new government to fail. Do the communists want it to? We come back to the sphinx, The Man Who Is Not Paganini.

One longs to insinuate this thought in among Jaruzelski's information about the United States: The eyes of visitors to Washington are drawn irresistibly to a towering monument to a general. His greatest act was one of renunciation, a refusal to keep or receive powers that would have had a stunting effect on his nation's nascent democracy.

IN THE STATE

Pollution Proposal

RALEIGH (AP) — Duke Power Co. is seeking federal money to build a $45 million system at a Duke plant on Lake Norman to demonstrate pollution control at coal-fired power plants.

The Charlotte-based electric utility submitted Monday its proposal for the project to the U.S. Department of Energy under the department's clean coal technology program.

The proposal calls for the department to finance half the cost of the project, with Duke spending $10 million and the remainder of the cost being provided by other partners that will participate, The News and Observer of Raleigh reported Wednesday.

If approved by the department late this year, the project could be in operation in 1991, Duke Power said.

Car Thefts

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP) — A former Macon County sheriff's deputy has been charged with participating in a multi-state car theft scheme involving stolen luxury cars worth more than a total of $200,000.

Local residents purchased the luxury cars for a fraction of their retail value — including one who paid $8,000 for a $35,000 Lincoln — after the sellers convinced them the vehicles had been used "as government safety test cars." Some of the vehicles still had the dealer's sticker price with the vehicle, the troopers reported.

According to warrants on file at the Macon County Courthouse, Thomas Bishop of Franklin was charged with transferring a stolen vehicle with "the intent to pass title to a 1989 Lincoln 4 door which was stolen property."

Bishop, a deputy in the late 1970s and early 1980s, was released on a $2,000 unsecured bond.

Colombo Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Louis Colombo has been reappointed to the N.C. Parole Commission and named its chairman, Gov. Jim Martin announced Wednesday.

Colombo of New Bern succeeds Sam Wilson, who was appointed by Martin on Aug. 15 to a Superior Court judgeship in Mecklenburg County. Colombo has served on the commission since 1985.

Joseph Slate of Cary, director of the Office of legal Affairs in the state Department of Environment, Health and Natural Resources, replaces Wilson as a commissioner. Both men will be sworn in Friday.

Professor Named

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A Bowman Gray School of Medicine professor has been named the ninth Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. Scholar and will receive $165,000 in research support for the next three years.

Ronald G. Washburn, assistant professor of medicine (infectious diseases), will use the award from the Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. Foundation in St. Louis to support his studies of the body's defenses against an inhaled fungus called Cryptococcus neoformans. Two types of Cryptococcus, serotypes B and C, cause especially severe infections.

Research Center Calls For Study Of Duties For Secretary Of State

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — As the General Assembly mulls legislation that would expand the duties of the office of Secretary of State, a research group is calling for careful consideration.

Rufus Edmisten was elected to the office in 1988 to become the first new secretary of state in more than five decades. Thad Eure declined to run for re-election after serving in the office for 52 years.

The change in leadership is an opportunity for state officials to assess the role of the office, the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research said Wednesday.

"With the election of Rufus Edmisten to the office in 1988, the N.C. General Assembly has begun revamping the department of the secretary of state, giving it more duties and more staff members," said Jack Betts, who wrote an article on the subject for the group's magazine, North Carolina Insight. "But before further changes are made, more consideration ought to be given to the proper role of the secretary of state and the scope of the department's duties."

While North Carolina is one of 47 states that have a secretary of state, its office is considered one of the weakest, with only 12 of the 26 duties listed by The Book of the States. Those duties include such things as registering corporations, overseeing elections, filing campaign reports, maintaining state agency rules and regulations and retaining copies of legislative acts. Nationally, secretaries of state have an average of 15.6 of the 26 major duties.

In the face of a rapidly increasing workload, Edmisten has ambitious plans for the office, according to the center, a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization that studies state government programs and policies. "I'm trying to modernize, to upgrade, to add more personnel and to make it a department that does not just react, but which can be a leader for the business community," he said.

Several bills passed this session or pending in the legislature would expand the office. The General Assembly approved new laws to regulate trading in agricultural and other commodities and to update the state's Business Corporation Act.

Still awaiting action are bills to have the secretary oversee a new Small Business Development Council, establish an investor security fund to pay back investors hurt by fraud, create a computerized statewide voter registration system in the office, regulate athlete agents and take over responsibility for compiling state administrative rules from the Office of Administrative Hearings.

While Edmisten had sought funding for 46 new staff members and new enforcement powers that some say rivaled those of the attorney general, the General Assembly put those proposals on hold as well.

During Eure's tenure, the secretary of state's office grew slowly from a six-person staff to 56 in 1985. But the staff had grown to 91 by this year and Edmisten's requests for 1990 would have swelled the ranks to 137.

Edmisten has expressed interest in expanding his office's role in industrial recruitment and state elections — proposals that have drawn criticism from the agencies currently responsible for them.

Former Gov. Jim Hunt said the office would be a natural for luring new industry because of Edmisten's familiarity with the corporate climate of the state and rules governing businesses.

But Commerce Secretary Jim Broyhill says his agency is clearly responsible for economic development including industrial recruitment, small-business development, travel and tourism and film-making.

"He (Edmisten) does not have the staff or expertise to do that," he said.

Broyhill has already seen the legislature put the Business License Information Office in the secretary of state's office over his objections.

And Edmisten says he also hopes to win the authority to issue all business licenses.

"One day I'd like to see us have a one-stop license issuing agency," he said.

But former Deputy Secretary of State Clyde Smith said Edmisten is threatening the cooperative relationship among state agencies overseeing businesses.

"Mr. Edmisten has jeopardized that relationship and taken the office in a direction which was not needed and which is perceived as a power grab," Smith said.

The same perception might extend to Edmisten's wish to have greater responsibility over registering voters.

"I think the secretary of state has a role in educating the public and removing barriers to voting," Edmisten said.

But Alex Brock, executive director of the State Board of Elections, said the secretary of state should not become embroiled in election laws or administration of elections. He said too many of the records already in the rival office are poorly maintained.

Jackson Conducts Anti-Drug Rally

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Jesse Jackson urged Charlotte high school students to "choose hope over dope" during an anti-drug rally on Wednesday.

Jackson offered a message studied with conservative themes: discipline, hard work and the need to live with the consequence of individual choices. With fiery intensity, he turned his podium into a pulpit.

"If you've tried drugs, be honest and stand," Jackson told the audience of nearly 1,000 at West Charlotte High School. "Come forward together. ... Look at someone sitting next to you and say 'Be honest'."

Almost 250 swarmed the aisles, some jabbing fingers at friends prodding them to join. They gathered at a stage where Jackson led them in the kind of call-and-response chant that became a hallmark of his political campaigns.

"I want to be a better person," he said and each repeated. "I have slipped ... and fallen ... onto the low road. ... I want to do better. ... I will do better ... I must do better."

At Jackson's urging, all the students in the audience signed a pledge to say no to drugs or alcohol, to study two hours a night and not to become a teen-age parent.

Democrat Plans 'Old Timey' Campaign To Unseat Helms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GOLDSBORO, N.C. — Former state Sen. R.P. "Bo" Thomas says he can win a seat in the U.S. Senate by using an "old-timey populist campaign."

Thomas, a produce distributor from the North Carolina mountains, said Wednesday he could unseat Republican Sen. Jesse Helms. Thomas is the only candidate to announce that he will seek the Democratic nomination for the Senate next year.

Thomas, who served in the state Senate for nine years, said Democratic leaders have erred in backing candidates such as former Gov. Jim Hunt, who lost to Helms in 1984.

"The tendency has been to nominate somebody slick, somebody smooth," Thomas said. "But that is what the voters did not buy in 1984. I'm not very slick.

"I think the voters will see in me an individual who has tried to champion their concerns, who has a long record of being their friend."

Thomas, of Hendersonville, sought a congressional seat in 1976 and 1978 but was defeated both times by narrow margins.

Thomas dismissed his lack of name recognition as a factor in seeking the nomination, pointing out that no other Democrats who have been mentioned as possible candidates are known statewide either. Wilmington District Attorney Michael Easley, former Charlotte Mayor Harvey Gantt and former state Democratic Party Chairman Betty McCain of Wilson have expressed interest in running.

Hunt stalled the Democratic half of the Senate race for a year by not announcing his intentions, Thomas said, in order to allow the Democratic leadership to "annoint" a candidate. He added that he was not surprised by Hunt's decision to forego another shot at Helms.

"His key men have been pushing for him to run for governor in 1992," Thomas said.

The 1990 campaign will probably not be as expensive as the 1984 race in which Helms and Hunt together spent about $30 million, Thomas said.

Thomas said he has sold one farm in order to begin financing his campaign and has offers on others. He said he expects to raise and spend about $500,000 in the primary campaign and about $2 million for the race against Helms.

Bush Drug Strategy Puts Emphasis On Stopping Cocaine At Its Source

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush's national drug strategy envisions sending up to $260 million in economic and military aid to Colombia, Bolivia and Peru in an effort to stomp out cocaine where it's produced, an administration source says.

The final version of the president's plan, which he will unveil in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night, will be much like the draft proposed by drug czar William J. Bennett, according to another source.

It will be tough on users, heavy on law enforcement and call for a new emphasis on treatment, the source said.

But it won't threaten states with a loss of federal highway funds if they don't impose strict anti-drug laws, as Bennett's draft had proposed, and it won't include the $25 million National Drug Intelligence Center, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The other administration source, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that Bush's strategy will call for $250 million to $260 million in economic and military aid for the three main cocaine producing countries — Colombia, Bolivia and Peru.

Also Wednesday, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., unveiled "debt-for-drugs" legislation intended to offer debt-relief incentives to Latin American nations to subsidize the withdrawal of farm land from producing coca crops, which are refined to produce cocaine.

A U.S. investment of $400 million in such a plan could free enough funds to subsidize the withdrawal of every acre in Bolivia, Colombia and Peru in coca production, said Biden, who plans to introduce the legislation when Congress reconvenes next month.

Sources who had seen the classified section of the draft containing information about proposed aid to the three Latin American countries had said the figure could reach $300 million, and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft indicated Tuesday that it would be even higher.

Scowcroft had included the $65 million in military equipment that Bush announced on Friday for Colombia. That money comes from a discretionary fund available for fiscal 1989, which ends Sept. 30. The strategy covers fiscal 1990. Although Bush met with his top lieutenants in the drug war Tuesday at his vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, to discuss the strategy, the focus of the meeting was Colombia, sources said Wednesday.

"The fundamental issues of the strategy ... did not change," a third source said, noting that the final strategy had gone to the printer before the meeting occurred.

Colombia has been wracked with violence since President Virgilio Barco imposed emergency regulations allowing the immediate resumption of extraditions of alleged drug traffickers to the United States. The move came after the Aug. 18 assassination of a leading presidential candidate who was an outspoken foe of drug traffickers.

Colombian Justice Minister Monica de Greiff met for about 40 minutes Wednesday with Bennett, said Bennett spokesman Don Hamilton, who declined to say what Bush's final drug strategy provides for Colombia.

Mrs. de Greiff asked on Tuesday for $19 million in aid for judicial protection. The United States has so far pledged $2.5 million.

The crackdown on drug users called for in the strategy will start early, with a program allowing judges to strip student loans and other federal benefits from drug offenders expected to begin Friday.

The program, required by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, won't affect welfare, disability or Social Security benefits.

The decision to drop the plan for the National Drug Intelligence Center stemmed from Justice Department objections after the Treasury Department proposed combining it with a new money-laundering intelligence center, a source said.

The draft also had called for a 49 percent increase in treatment funds, $925 million in 1990 compared with $621 million in the current budget, as well as $1.2 billion for new prisons, a 28 percent increase.

The draft sought 10 percent reductions in drug use in two years and a 50 percent reduction in a decade. It called for the same reductions in supply, as represented by estimates of illicit drugs coming into the country and estimates derived from reports of the ease of obtaining drugs.

It also focused on the street crime of the inner city spawned by the drug trade and the insidious nature of crack, the highly addictive, smokeable form of cocaine. The draft called for increasing justice assistance grants to states and cities from $150 million to $350 million.

Copies of the draft strategy were leaked to the media shortly after it was produced in late July.

Britain Says Training Legal

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LONDON — The government said Wednesday that it "strongly deplored" the involvement of British mercenaries in training death squads for the drug barons of Colombia, but indicated there was little it could do to prosecute them.

Officials in the Foreign Office said they knew of no legislation that would enable proceedings to be started against the mercenaries — if they could be identified.

The British officials said that they recognized "the enormity of the problem" in Colombia and were impressed by the political initiatives of President Virgilio Barco. Britain was giving urgent consideration to how it could contribute to the war against the drug barons, the officials said.

Britain over the years has developed expertise in protecting its judiciary, particularly in Northern Ireland, where judges have been targets of the outlawed Irish Republican Army for the past 20 years.

The drug barons have threatened to kill 10 judges for every trafficker extradited for trial in the United States, and the steadfastness of the Colombian judiciary in the face of such threats is seen as crucial.

U.S. Tells Dependents To Leave

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — The U.S. government ordered dependents of its embassy staff to leave Colombia, and authorities imposed a curfew on the nation's cocaine heartland in a bid to stop violence by drug lords.

"Everything has started with no major inconveniences. People rushed to their homes shortly before the curfew time began and now the city is quiet," a spokesman at the Medellin Police Office said by telephone Wednesday night.

The 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was imposed on Medellin, home of the world's most powerful cocaine cartel, and surrounding communities to discourage bombings and other attacks by drug barons stung by the toughest anti-narcotics offensive ever launched in Colombia.

A police force of 4,000 was on full alert and 18 special anti-terrorist units were stationed throughout Medellin. Some were reinforced with armored cars, the police spokesman said.

He said a fragmentation grenade exploded in a country club but caused only minor damage.

Interior Minister Orlando Vasquez Velazquez said the government would extend the curfew, the first in Colombia in 19 years, "wherever it is required to prevent terrorism."

He said Medellin, a city of 2 million, had "become a center of perturbation."

"The U.S. Embassy gave no reason for ordering the dependents of its staff to leave, but it was clearly related to the Colombian campaign against drug traffickers and plans to extradite some suspects to the United States."

The extradition of one suspect, reputed Medellin cartel finance chief Eduardo Martinez Romero, was considered imminent.

An embassy spokesman, Peter Samson, said in a telephone interview: "U.S. Embassy dependents have been ordered to leave Colombia in the next few days. That's all I can tell you."

Because of the recurring violence in Colombia, the embassy already had a policy of not allowing dependents under the age of 18 but had permitted older children, spouses, parents and other adult dependents.

AIDS Spending Likely To Tax State Resources

By Deborah Mesce
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — State and local governments face increasingly difficult budget choices as the growing AIDS epidemic siphons more of their resources, according to a privately financed survey.

Most states continue to rely heavily on federal money to support AIDS programs, but nine — including New York, California and Florida — are spending more of their own funds this year than they are getting in federal grants.

Additionally, states further down in the ranking of cumulative AIDS cases are increasing their spending to battle the disease by 10-fold or more, said the survey by the AIDS Policy Center at the George Washington University.

"AIDS is going to increase the budgetary tradeoffs the states must make," said Mona J. Rowe, who helped conduct the survey paid for by the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

In fiscal year 1989, states spent about $495 million in non-Medicaid funds on AIDS education, prevention, testing, care, research and other related activities.

Of the total, states contributed $252 million from their own resources and received $233 million from the federal government to spend through state programs. The rest came from private sources.

Overall, the bulk of federal AIDS spending is handled directly by the federal government or is funneled through the National Institutes of Health to private researchers.

The House of Representatives has approved $1.6 billion for AIDS prevention, education and research during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. That is the level requested by the Bush administration.

However, there is growing emphasis on money for treatment — especially now that the expensive drug AZT has been recommended for hundreds of thousands of people who carry the AIDS virus but don't show symptoms of the disease.

Patient care "is the next frontier" for state spending on AIDS, especially with new government recommendations encouraging early intervention with expensive drug therapies and patient follow-up, the survey said.

Currently, 64 percent of all non-Medicaid funds for AIDS-related patient care come from state coffers, the survey said.

In a related development, 14 activist organizations wrote Burroughs Wellcome Co. on Wednesday to ask for a reduction in the price of AZT, sold only by the North Carolina-based drug manufacturer.

The letter said that the $8,000 annual cost per patient of AZT will make it difficult to persuade Congress to renew a program that subsidizes the cost of the medicine for patients who cannot afford it.

Kathy Bartlett, a Burroughs Wellcome spokeswoman, said the letter springs from "a failure to recognize how pharmaceutical companies operate."

"It is marketed drugs that help pay for all of your research," she said. Costs for development, marketing and research, she added, "are very, very high."

She said Burroughs Wellcome gave 30 million capsules, wholesale priced at $1.50 each, to the federal government for the AZT trials. Also, she said, the company continues to conduct studies of the drug.

Public health officials believe that up to 1.5 million people in the United States are infected with the AIDS virus. As of July 31, AIDS had been diagnosed in 102,621 Americans, of whom 59,391 have died since June 1, 1981, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control.

Federal officials estimate that by the end of 1992, the number of reported AIDS cases in the United States will total 365,000. In that year alone, more than 80,000 new cases are expected to be reported and 65,000 people with AIDS are expected to die.

Most state funds are spent on education, testing and counseling and patient care. Spending this fiscal year in these categories for the states overall more than doubled from last year, the survey found.

Besides New York, California and Florida, the states spending more than they received in federal funds this year are: Connecticut, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Washington.

On the other end of the spectrum eight states are relying solely on federal funds for AIDS activities: Idaho, Iowa, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, West Virginia and Wyoming.

The survey did not include AIDS-spending growth rates for individual states because of differences in the data collected from year to year. But Rowe said the general trend shows that states with lower prevalence rates are increasing their AIDS spending the fastest.

While New York increased its state AIDS spending by 35 percent and California by 31 percent, Georgia, ranked 8th in prevalence, boosted its state spending 10-fold, and Pennsylvania, ranked 7th, and No. 13 Washington state each increased their spending 12-fold, she said.

Activists Issue New Plea For Lower Price On AZT

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Fourteen activist AIDS organizations are urging the company that makes AZT to cut the $8,000-a-year cost of the only drug approved for use by AIDS patients.

In a letter Wednesday to Burroughs Wellcome Co., the groups said lowering the cost not only would benefit those patients and their insurers already paying for it, but would make it easier to persuade Congress to come up with the millions of dollars needed to supply AZT to those who cannot afford it.

"Without a price reduction, it is politically more difficult, if not impossible, to secure reauthorization and new funding to finance the program needed to provide treatment for all those who need it," the letter said.

AZT is marketed by Burroughs Wellcome under the brand name Zovirax.

Company spokeswoman Kathy Bartlett said the letter reflects "a failure to recognize how pharmaceutical companies operate."

"It is marketed drugs that help pay for all of your research," she said, adding that development, marketing and research costs "are very, very high."

She said Burroughs Wellcome gave 30 million capsules, wholesale priced at $1.50 each, to the federal government for the AZT trials and continues to conduct research on the drug.

The activist groups said they were heartened by recent trials that suggest hundreds of thousands of people infected with the AIDS virus but not yet showing symptoms can benefit from taking AZT.

"Now that the evidence suggests a vastly expanded need for the drug," the letter said, the problems of finding a way to pay for it are "greatly amplified."

It maintained that "a large portion" of the total cost in researching, developing and producing AZT was paid by taxpayers.

"In effect, we have been asked to pay for this drug three times: first in its initial development, next in financing many of the studies needed to permit its marketing, and finally to buy it from you," the letter said.

The 14 groups endorsing the letter identified themselves as organizations "devoted to the welfare of people with HIV." Among the groups were the American Civil Liberties Union, AIDS Project; the Gay Men's Health Crisis; the AIDS Action Council; the National Gay Rights Advocates; the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force; and the American Association of Physicians for Human Rights.

Copies of the letter were distributed to Louis Sullivan, the secretary of Health and Human Services, and to other HHS officials, along with some members of Congress, and to the news media.

Burroughs Wellcome officials have said the company has had to invest heavily to test and manufacture the drug, but have declined to make their precise costs public.

AZT was first synthesized under a National Cancer Institute grant in 1964. In 1984, some Burroughs Wellcome lab tests showed it to be effective against some animal retroviruses and the company offered it for testing by federal laboratories.

NCI scientists proved in 1985 that it was active against the AIDS virus. Burroughs Wellcome then was granted a license to manufacture and test the drug. The clinical trials were directed by the National Institutes of Health.

GAO Says VA Lax In Screening Records Of Medical Employees

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Veterans Administration hospitals are often lax in screening doctors to make sure they have no felony convictions and hold required licenses, according to a federal study that examined hiring procedures at VA hospitals in eight cities.

Fewer than half of the physicians hired at VA hospitals between 1986 and 1988 had had their licenses properly verified with state medical boards, the General Accounting Office found in a study of eight randomly selected facilities.

The GAO studied hospitals in Los Angeles; Clarksburg, W. Va.; Washington; Hines, Ill.; Madison, Wis.; Dallas; San Antonio, Texas; and San Diego.

But the report did not specify which medical centers had problems, and it cited no inadequacies at any individual institution.

The report did not provide any examples of inadequately credentialed doctors making mistakes, but it said the potential for problems exists.

For example, background checks on residents were so lax that some were found to have been convicted of drug, burglary and sex offenses. The report did not identify the physicians involved.

"By not following procedures, VA medical centers could unknowingly hire 'problem' physicians and/or be allowing physicians with sanctions against their licenses to treat veterans," the report said.

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, the ranking member of the Senate's Veterans' Affairs Committee and the lawmaker who requested the report, was more alarmed.

Explosive Detectors Planned

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Devices to screen checked baggage for plastic explosives will be required at 40 of the world's busiest international airports under new Federal Aviation Administration rules.

The regulation issued Wednesday, made possible because of evolving technology that allows detection of chemicals in plastic explosives, has long been anticipated.

Since the deaths of 270 people in the crash of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, in December, federal officials have said they would require installation of the new detection devices once details were worked out.

The airlines, which would have to pay an estimated $393 million over the next 10 years to install detection devices, have questioned the cost and effectiveness of the technology available to meet the FAA requirement.

"We cannot support the widespread deployment of this equipment in the near term because its capability has not yet been demonstrated," said Stephen D. Hayes of the Air Transport Association, an airline industry group.

The FAA, which can require airlines to follow certain procedures abroad as a condition for flying into U.S. airports, says it will continue to consider whether to require the new screening on all international flights by U.S. carriers — a move that could send the cost to airlines to an estimated $896 million by 1999.

The FAA has acquired six prototype screening devices, the first already installed at New York's Kennedy International Airport.

The others are scheduled for installation by the end of the year at London's Gatwick Airport and airports in Frankfurt, Germany; Detroit; Miami, and San Francisco.

The FAA declined to identify the other 36 airports, citing security considerations and the possibility there could be some shifts in those affected.

Investigators have concluded that the bomb that exploded over Lockerbie was hidden in checked luggage loaded in the forward cargo compartment of the New York-bound Boeing 747.

The rule does not require a particular device but says one called Thermal Neutron Analysis has been "shown to have the highest degree of explosives detection currently possible for detecting known civilian and military explosives, manufactured here and abroad."

Any system used by the airlines must be approved by the FAA. The rule requires that the system be automated, detect specified quantities and configurations of explosives as defined by the FAA and be safe for operators and baggage.

The TNA units are estimated to cost $750,000 each, the FAA said. It said this cost is expected to drop as production increases. The device was developed by Science Applications International Corp. of San Diego under an FAA contract. The agency said it has been tested successfully at several airports.

The system emits low-energy neutrons that pass through luggage and interact with the chemical elements in explosives, triggering an alarm. The detection is done by computer.

Miner, 95, Found Safe

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — A 95-year-old miner lost for more than three weeks among the thickets and grizzlies of the wilderness has been found safe.

"I knew the Good Lord would rescue me," Dennis D. Wilkins said after he was found early Tuesday northwest of Anchorage. "As for being scared as that no one would find me, well, I never even gave it a thought."

Wilkins said he set out Aug. 8 from his mining claim near Mount Susitna to meet friends who would fly him home to Anchorage.

"I can't explain it, but somehow I got lost," he said. "There were a lot of moose trails crisscrossing, and then my food supply ran out. Should have brought more. And I think I must have had some blackouts. You know, you don't think right when your stomach's empty."

Wilkins survived for 12 days on blueberries before he found two friends' unoccupied cabin and broke in. He said he wore out the liners of his boots, suffered blisters and swollen feet and "was wet all the time."

"I was just fighting alder (thickets) all the way and I wasn't strong enough. I couldn't climb over it. Bears were running around pretty thick, and there were a few moose too," he said.

S.C. Reactor May Be Restarted

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Department of Energy has decided after a lengthy safety and technical review to recommend restarting a troubled South Carolina nuclear reactor in July 1990 so it can begin new production of tritium, a vital component of nuclear weapons in increasingly short supply, government sources said Wednesday.

The new timetable means operation of the tritium-producing reactor at Savannah River will be delayed at least six months beyond the target previously set by the Energy Department.

The government has not produced tritium since the last of three nuclear reactors at the massive Savannah River facility was closed for safety reasons a year ago. A gas, tritium is used to boost a weapon's explosive force; it decays at a rate of 5.5 percent annually and thus must be regularly replenished to keep the U.S. nuclear arsenal fully operational.

Because of the military implications, the new timetable will be subject to Bush's approval. Besides restarting Savannah River's K reactor in roughly 10 months, DOE also wants to restart the other two reactors three months and six months later.

New Credit Card Rules Allow Customer Shopping

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Credit card disclosure rules taking effect today offer the nation's 107 million card holders a new opportunity to shop around for lower interest rates, consumer activists say.

Industry analysts, however, say they expect the new rules to have little impact — at least over the short haul.

The regulations, adopted by the Federal Reserve Board in April, require credit card issuers to disclose the interest rate, monthly fee, grace period and other terms in a chart on applications used to sign up customers.

Previously, the card's costs did not have to be disclosed until it arrived in the mail.

The new rules also require companies to notify existing customers in advance when their accounts are about to be renewed and another annual fee charged.

"Consumers should use the renewal notice as a reminder to switch cards and save," said Elgie Holstein, director of the Bankcard Holders of America, a consumer group. She advised cardholders to pay off their high-rate cards with a cash advance from a low-rate card.

The new rules apply to bank cards, such as Visa, MasterCard and Discover; to department store cards; and also to cards such as American Express and Diners Club, whose full balance must be paid monthly.

"I'm very hopeful that this will at least provide the edge to consumers to make better judgments," said Peggy Miller, a lobbyist for the Consumer Federation of America.

Miller and other consumer activists believe the regulations should force card companies to compete by lowering their interest rates and annual fees.

Bankers and analysts, however, say most cardholders probably won't see much decline.

"It's going to put some strain on banks charging above-market rates ... and some of the banks that have extremely low rates may see a little more business, but the vast majority are going to stay where they are," said Robert H. Burke, senior vice president of the Bank of New York.

"I don't think it's going to do much of anything," agreed Robert B. McKinley, publisher and editor of RAM Research's Bankcard Update, a Frederick, Md., newsletter that follows the industry.

McKinley said competition has increased in the past several years, but rates are still high, even in the dozen or so states such as California and New York that have their own disclosure laws.

Nationally, cards offered by banks had average interest rates of 18.28 percent in August and an average annual fee of $16.97, he said.

One reason interest rates are not lower is the growing concentration of the industry as large institutions buy out smaller credit card operations, said McKinley. Another is that consumers don't appear to pay much attention to interest rates.

Economists attribute the indifference to interest rates in part to the fact that most people intend to pay off their entire bill each month, avoiding interest charges. But a substantial portion don't follow through on their good intentions.

Credit card rates became a political issue in the early 1980s when short-term interest rates soared above 20 percent.

In The Area

Essay Published

Greenville native Dr. Richard Carlton Wilson has published an essay titled "Our French Connection."

The essay was written specifically for the 25th U.S. study-tour of France, sponsored by the Foundation for International Cooperation. It discusses the cultural and historical similarities between the United States and France.

A Florida resident, Wilson has a bachelor's degree from East Carolina University and a master's and doctorate from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He is retired, having been a professor at the University of West Florida at Pensacola and the founder and a director of its Reading Center. He is the author of three books and 75 articles and the co-author of 12 booklets used in adult literacy programs throughout the United States.

Chamber Project

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a breakfast conference with state legislators from the area to be held at the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive on Sept. 7 at 7:28 a.m.

The conference is designed to give citizens an opportunity to ask questions and voice opinions. Senators Bob Martin and Tom Taft and Representatives Walter Jones Jr., Gene Rogers and Ed Warren will discuss issues such as transportation, education, funding for East Carolina University and the regional activity center, as well as their versions of the recent session of the General Assembly.

For more information, contact the Greenville Chamber of Commerce at 752-4101.

Postal Holiday

Greenville Postmaster Charles H. Caulk said the main post office, ECU station and Kroger contract station will operate on a holiday schedule Monday.

Caulk said no deliveries will be made by rural and city carriers on Labor Day and no window service will be provided. Express and Special Delivery mail will be delivered.

A special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all boxes with 5 p.m. collection time and the collection of mail will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m.

Vending machines located in the main post office and ECU station provide most customers with postal supplies, Caulk said.

Services Planned

Miracle Holiness Church in Macclesfield will hold services today at 7:30 p.m. The speaker will be Elder Willie A. Baker Jr.

New Director

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Rowan County Emergency Medical Service director Terry L. Barber will become head of the revamped Wilson County Emergency Medical Services system Sept. 7, the Wilson County manager has announced.

Barber was selected from among 23 applicants, seven of whom were interviewed, said County Manager Garry C. Mercer.

Suspect Surrenders In Death

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The white man accused of firing the shot that killed a black teen-ager, setting off a racial furor, surrendered to upstate police today, a day after the victim was laid to rest amid anger and anguish.

Police said Joseph Fama, 18, the subject of a weeklong manhunt, turned himself in to police in Oneonta at about 2:30 a.m. Police in the Otsego County town, about 175 miles northwest of New York City, said they expected to send Fama back to the city this afternoon.

Officials had said Fama was a member of a white mob that attacked Yusuf Hawkins, 16, and three other blacks in the predominantly white Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn on Aug. 23. Fama, they said, is believed to have drawn a gun and killed Hawkins.

Fama is the seventh person arrested in the attack. Two of them, including the man alleged to be the ringleader of the mob, were indicted Wednesday.

Hawkins was mourned Wednesday by civil rights leaders, politicians and the parents of a black man killed in the 1986 Howard Beach racial attack.

"If as we lower him in the grave, we are raised in consciousness, then his living and dying will not be in vain," Black Muslim Minister Louis Farrakhan said to spirited applause inside and outside the Brooklyn church where the funeral was held.

"It seems like I'm burying my son again," said Jean Griffith Sandiford, whose son Michael Griffith died after being chased by whites into the path of a car in the Howard Beach section of Queens.

Miles from the Brooklyn's predominantly white Bensonhurst section where Hawkins was killed, more than 300 people packed a small Baptist church. A thousand gathered outside, listening to the proceedings over two speakers set up outside the building in a mainly black section of Brooklyn.

"The longer we waste time in frivolous divisions, this will happen again and again and again," Farrakhan told the crowd. "We say, as the Jews say, 'Never again. Never again. Never again.'"

Gov. Mario Cuomo, Mayor Edward I. Koch, Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward and Republican mayoral hopeful Rudolph Giuliani were heckled outside the church. None of them spoke at the funeral.

Hawkins and three friends were answering an ad for a used car when up to 30 whites, carrying bats, golf clubs and at least one gun, confronted them and killed him Aug. 23, authorities said.

Mayoral candidate David Dinkins — who was well-received by the crowd — said he could understand why tempers might be running high.

"I think one has to understand there has been a young life taken, senselessly, uselessly," Dinkins, who is black, said after the funeral. "It's not abnormal or extreme for people to have that depth of feeling."

Bakker Committed

Jackson, a clinical psychologist from Milwaukee, said Bakker was not capable to appear in court.

"Yesterday he was actively hallucinating," Jackson told Potter. "At this time, he is not able to adequately help counsel in his defense or participate in a rational manner in these proceedings. He would not be able to participate for at least two weeks."

Jackson said admitting Bakker to a state or federal facility could further damage his psychological condition, but "being admitted to a private hospital might be helpful."

George T. Davis, one of Bakker's attorneys, told Potter that Bakker wanted to come to court.

"I want to go to court. I want to be on trial. I want to be in court," Davis quoted Bakker as saying. Davis told the judge Bakker was "laying on the floor in a fetal position."

Jackson said Bakker had not agreed to be voluntarily committed. "Can you convince him to be voluntarily committed?" Justice Department prosecutor Deborah Smith asked Jackson.

"I have great faith in my persuasive abilities," Jackson responded. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jerry Miller, who called Jackson a "hired gun," told Potter the defense had presented its motion for a psychiatric evaluation just 15 minutes before the trial was set to resume.

"This time he (Davis) didn't summon his client to come up to pray," Miller said, referring to Bakker's prayer at Nelson's side Wednesday. "This time he summons a psychiatrist to come up here."

"I'm terribly concerned. I've talked to this man," Davis said. "The problem is if Mr. Bakker is handled gently and carefully he may be able to proceed with this trial. We don't want this trial to stop."

Potter told jurors the trial was being delayed, but did not tell them why. He told the jurors to check in Tuesday to see if the trial would resume Wednesday.

The Butner facility, in a remote section of the state near the Virginia border, has formerly been used for psychiatric evaluations of John Hinckley, who shot President Reagan, and Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt.

Nelson returned to court this morning, saying he was ready to resume testifying after being treated at a local hospital for dehydration.

"I feel a lot better," said Nelson, a former vice president of PTL. "I had a bug, so I didn't eat for a couple of days. I was sick."

Nelson, 39, of Franklin, Tenn., had testified before his collapse that "lifetime partnerships" at PTL's Heritage USA religious retreat and theme park in Fort Mill, S.C., had been oversold.

He said he warned Bakker and former PTL executive Richard Dortch of the potential for problems.

"I told them I thought we had some big-time problems," Nelson said. "I specifically said, 'Someone could go to jail for this.'"

Nelson said that when he first discussed the overbookings with Bakker in 1985, "He told me not to worry, that there was always room at the inn."

Nelson testified that Bakker ordered him to keep two sets of lifetime-partnership counts — one for Bakker's use and a second sham tally to display to the audience during PTL telethons.

"The numbers that were given to everyone else were a lot lower than were on the sheet," he said.

Prosecutors say Bakker and other PTL executives diverted for their own use more than $4 million of the $158 million raised from PTL "partners" who gave $1,000 for three nights' free lodging a year for life at the evangelical empire's hotels.

If convicted on all 24 counts, Bakker, who quit PTL in 1987 amid revelations about his 1980 sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn and a $265,000 payoff for her silence, could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million.

Dortch, 57, pleaded guilty to wire fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy and was sentenced Aug. 24 to eight years in prison and fined $200,000.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 55 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Too few percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a preliminary weighted average. The market is firm and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 2,241,000, compared to 2,121,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 11 cents lower, 2.42-2.62 in East and mostly 2.64-2.74 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 2 cents lower at 5.98-6.18 in East and mostly 6.02-6.13 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.41-3.56; new crop corn 2.22-2.69; new crop soybeans 5.38-6.68; P.I.K. certificates steady and ranged from 100 to 105 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market started off with minor gains today as it searched for direction after a volatile session Wednesday. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up 2.09 to 2,730.24 by 10 a.m. on Wall Street. Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 4 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 525 up, 385 down and 508 unchanged. The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks posted a gain of 0.19 at 195.10 after the first 30 minutes of trading. Volume on the Big Board came to 24.18 million shares.

Wall Street analysts say the market could remain in a holding pattern today ahead of some sensitive economic reports due Friday. The Labor Department will release the August unemployment figures.

Lightning Strike
FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Lightning hit a Public Works Commission transformer Wednesday evening, causing power outages and spilling oil into a creek, authorities said.

Damage was estimated at $1 million. No injuries were reported and the spill did not threaten the area's water supply.

The strike cracked open a metal tank at the transformer and about 6,000 gallons of mineral oil used as an insulator and coolant leaked beyond a catch basin and into a drainage system in a nearby creek, Fayetteville Fire Chief Pete Piener said.

The oil was not believed to be toxic, but it was spreading over the surface of the creek winding a distance of about one mile to the Moose Club Pond.

p.m. Friday at Farmer Funeral Home by the Rev. James Daily. Burial will be in the Dennis Family Cemetery.

Mrs. Dennis was a member of the First Christian Church of Ayden. Surviving are two sons, Edward Earl Dennis of Bethel and J.D. Dennis of Ayden; a sister, Janie Turner of Kinston; five grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Farmer Funeral Home in Ayden from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. today.

It's College Football Time:

Attention pigskin connoisseurs. Put fresh batteries in the remote control, stock up on munchies and position the La-Z-Boy in front of the tube. It's time for college football to begin. And not a moment too soon.

Sure, you say the pennant races are just getting interesting but at the risk of destroying the suspense, Oakland will win the AL West, Toronto the AL East, San Francisco the NL West and St. Louis the NL East.

Sorry Cubs fans. At least you made it to September in first place. But now back to football.

First on the menu is tonight's Kickoff Classic — Notre Dame vs. Virginia. What a way for George Welsh and his up and coming Cavaliers to start off the season. Playing the defending national champions in front of a sellout crowd is quite an opportunity for a team from a conference known for its basketball. Certainly the national exposure, not to mention the financial rewards, were too good to pass up.

No doubt the Fightin' Irish are heavy favorites, but you would never think it to hear Lou Holtz sobbing about personnel losses, lack of experience, etc. The little wizard is without seven players for an assortment of reasons: linebacker Michael Stonebreaker (rules violations), last year's second-leading rusher Tony Brooks (rules violations), sophomore defensive end Arnold Ale (transferred), defensive tackle George Williams (academics), fullback Braxton Banks (injury), linebacker John Foley (injury) and offensive tackle Pete Rausch (quit team), but few are shedding tears for ol' Lou.

He still has versatile quarterback Tony Rice and a bevy of speed, making Notre Dame one of a handful of teams with a legitimate shot at the national crown.

The Irish's bid to repeat could all but be decided before any of the baseball division races are settled. Remember September 16. That's when Notre Dame visits Michigan.

Should the Irish win, they continue in the hunt against the likes of Southern Cal, Pittsburgh, Penn State and Miami. But only a second-week meeting with UCLA stands in the way of Bo's Wolverines if they can knock off the Irish.

Michigan fell to Notre Dame 19-17 last year then put a terrific scare into mighty Miami before choking in the final quarter to lose 31-30.

Speaking of Miami, the Hurricanes have a virtual cakewalk into a Nov. 25 showdown with the Irish. Miami will play only four teams that had winning records last year, but one of those is nemesis Florida State in Tallahassee in late October.

Miami lost its claim to a second straight national championship last year when coach Jimmy Johnson opted to try for a two-point conversion in the waning seconds against Notre Dame and came up a 31-30 loser.

Johnson has since departed for Texas, the Dallas Cowboys that is, and quarterback Steve Walsh followed. Understudy Craig Erikson has taken over for Walsh while Dennis Erikson, no relation, is now at the helm.

Nebraska is another national contender, although it will be difficult to judge just how good the Cornhuskers are with their pitiful schedule. They probably will rule the Probation League (Big 8 Conference) considering the fact that Oklahoma and Oklahoma State had heavy losses and are under NCAA sanctions.

Colorado could challenge for the conference title, but must overcome the tragic loss of quarterback Sal Aunese, who was diagnosed as having cancer in the spring.

The Buffs, who lost to Nebraska and Oklahoma by a combined 10 points last year, have perhaps the most talent in the league but could become a victim of the schedule makers.

Consider this: consecutive games with Oklahoma, Nebraska and Oklahoma State and all are on the road.

The Sooners begin a three-year probation without a proven quarterback. Gone from the sidelines is head coach Barry Switzer and missing on the field will be the trademark wishbone offense, which has been scrapped in favor of a pro-set.

Oklahoma State enters the first year of a four-year probation. Of course, the Cowboys lost Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders and receiver Hart Lee Dykes to the National Football League.

As a junior, Sanders fueled a volatile offensive machine that averaged 47.5 points a game, but he opted not to return for his senior year.

With Sanders gone, that leaves a wide-open race for the Heisman. Top candidates are Indiana running back Anthony Thompson, Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice, West Virginia quarterback Major Harris, Penn State running back Blair Thomas, running back Emmitt Smith of Florida, quarterback Mike Gundy of Oklahoma State, running back Tony Boles of Michigan, quarterback Todd Hodson of LSU and quarterback Todd Ellis of South Carolina.

Thomas is making a comeback from reconstructive knee surgery after gaining 1,414 yards in 1987. The Nittany Lions are also hoping to make a comeback of their own after seeing an NCAA record of 49 straight years without a losing season come to an end.

Out West, a return to the running game is likely with the departure of Rodney Peete of USC, Troy Aikman of UCLA and Timm Rosenbach of Washington State.

The Trojans will feel the least impact because of their awesome defense and should be Rose Bowl bound.

Elsewhere, LSU and Auburn should slug it out for the top spot in the Southeastern Conference while Clemson appears the top dog in the Atlantic Coast Conference. N.C. State will find out quickly if it is a contender with four consecutive conference games to open the season, beginning at home against Maryland Saturday.

Syracuse, whose 21-2-1 record is second only to Miami and Florida State over the past two years, is among the top independents.

Wilander, McEnroe Exit Open

Becker Saves 2 Match Points And Advances

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Boris Becker used pluck and luck to survive in the U.S. Open. John McEnroe and Mats Wilander weren't as fierce or fortunate.

Becker saved two match points in the fourth set — one on a net cord that was the turning point of the second-round match — then dug down in the fifth to beat Derrick Rostagno 1-6, 6-7 (1-7), 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3.

Wilander, the defending champion who won three majors in 1988 and none this year, didn't make it to midnight, losing 5-7, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 to 18-year-old Californian Pete Sampras.

And McEnroe, the four-time Open winner in the midst of an outstanding comeback, could not hang on against a player he'd never seen and knew nothing about.

"It's one thing if a guy plays really well. It's harder to take if I play as poorly as I did," McEnroe said after a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 loss to Paul Haarhuis of the Netherlands, the 115th-ranked player in the world and No. 3 in his country. "I can't think of the last time that I played that poor-

Pirates Not Sharp In 3rd Scrimmage

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Once more, Coach Bill Lewis walked off the field following a scrimmage by his East Carolina University Pirates somewhat disappointed.

Lewis led the Pirates through a three-hour workout Wednesday night in Ficklen Stadium and, while things seemed to start off well, they gradually slipped away, the coach said.

Once more, first-string quarterback Travis Hunter seemed to dominate the offense. He connected on 15 of 24 passes for 172 yards, but suffered his first scrimmage interception of the season. Chad Grier hit on six of 11 passes for 85 yards while Jeff Blake managed two of four for 28 yards. Charlie Libretto made good on four of 10 for 57 yards.

Overall, the Pirate quarterbacks were 27 of 49 for 342 yards.

Walter Wilson continues to be impressive as a receiver. He caught eight passes for 85 yards. Tight end Charles Freeman pulled in three for 48 while BoJack Davenport grabbed two for 50 yards.

However, Davenport was injured during the workout and Lewis was pessimistic about his return. "It's possible he tore a ligament in his shoulder," the coach said. "It could be a season-long injury. We'll evaluate it (Thursday)."

The offense started off fairly strong in the scrimmage as the number one offense worked against the second defense, and the second offense worked against the number one defense. The first unit on offense moved the ball well but failed to score, while the number two unit twice put the ball into the end zone during the first period.

But in the second quarter, the defense dominated and did not allow another score by either unit.

The second half saw the Pirate offense and defense work against scout teams using Bowling Green offensive and defensive formations.

"I guess that I'm just hard to please," Lewis said. "But we're not ready; we're not sharp."

"In every phase, we get to feeling that they're doing what we want but they're not consistent," Lewis said. "They've got to learn that they have to play 60 minutes. Right now, we're playing in spurts and that concerns us. In the first quarter, we moved the ball well and in the second, we were not productive. Turning that around, the defense didn't do the job in the first period and did in the second."

Lewis also said that he thought there was a "tremendous lack of intensity" in the kicking game. "We have to take advantage of every opportunity in every phase of the game and we don't have that feeling yet."

Again, the Pirates saw a number of penalty flags float to the field. "I'm not that concerned about clipping or holding," Lewis said. "Those are penalties of execution. What concerns me is illegal procedure and off-sides. That's just a lack of concentration. Those things (execution penalties) will happen, but I don't like those caused by lack of concentration."

The coach said that it could be that the Pirates are just getting a little weary of hitting themselves and are ready for some other opponent.

CAA Going To 6 Fouls

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Following the lead of the Big East Conference, the Colonial Athletic Association has decided to award its basketball players an additional personal foul in each conference game.

The league voted 7-1 to experiment with six fouls for the upcoming conference basketball season Wednesday with the lone dissenting vote coming from East Carolina.

The ruling came during a conference call of the eight-team league's athletic directors. The experiment will apply to conference games only and will not be in place during the CAA Tournament March 3-5.

Originally the idea for changing the personal fouls' rule was proposed at the May meetings in Wilmington.

At the time, most of the coaches were in favor of the six-foul rule, but the athletic directors opposed the rule change initially so it was tabled.

The NCAA deadline for rule changes is Friday, so the CAA organized the conference call with the athletic directors Wednesday to have a final vote on the proposal.

"Initially, there were some other folks who had some concerns," ECU Director of Athletics Dave Hart said. "In the end result, we were the only ones who remained steadfast in opposed the proposal."

Rose Visits Cards; County Wars Begin

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

For years, the early season showdown between Rose and Jacksonville has been one of the most anticipated around the area, and Rampant head coach Chip Williams doesn't expect that to change in the near future.

The matchup often serves as a barometer for how the teams will fair in their respective conferences, as well as in post-season play.

And, although the two perennial 4-A contenders are in rebuilding situations this year, Friday's 8 p.m. meeting at Jacksonville is none the less intriguing.

"It's always been a pretty big game around the state," Williams said. "Jacksonville has been an excellent football team for all of the '80s. They won a state championship and had a couple of undefeated seasons."

Also on tap for Friday night is cross-county matchup with D.H. Conley visiting Ayden-Grifton at 8 p.m.

Rose has enjoyed the recent edge in the series with Jacksonville, winning the last two encounters and five of the last six, but the Cards have ruled both playoff meetings. Jacksonville's only regular-season wins this decade came in 1980, '82 and '85.

Jacksonville, with Chuck Martin in his second year at the helm, struggled past rival White Oak 14-12 in its season-opener despite amassing only 114 total yards. Rose rolled past Class 3-A Tarboro 32-13 in its opener behind the 128-yard rushing performance of Maurice Hines.

Sindelar To Play In Pirate Pro-Am

Joey Sindelar, closing in on $2 million in career winnings on the Professional Golfers' Association tour, has committed to play in the annual Pirate Pro-Am Golf Tournament, set for Oct. 9.

Sindelar will join fellow touring pros Mike Hulbert and Bobby Wadkins in the tournament. The site of the event will be announced at a later date.

"We are very excited that Joey will join us for the Pirate Pro-Am," ECU head golf coach Hal Morrison said. "The tournament is shaping up to be a great one."

Sindelar finished fifth in the Canadian Open and seventh in the Beatrice Western Open this year.

Anyone interested in playing in the Pirate Pro-Am should contact ECU Assistant Athletic Director Lee Workman at 757-6329.

ECU Booters Will Open Season

East Carolina second-year soccer coach Bob Lust must begin the 1989 season in a difficult manner — playing a league game on the road.

The Pirates, 3-14-2 last season, open the season Friday at 7 p.m. at the University of Richmond, a Colonial Athletic Association opponent.

ECU will open its home season on Tuesday, hosting The Citadel.

Rose Kickers Win New Bern Tourney

NEW BERN — Second half goals by Jason Bizzaro and Clif Ferrell lifted the Rose High School soccer team to a 2-0 victory over Kinston in the championship match of the New Bern Sun-Journal Invitational Soccer Tournament Wednesday night in New Bern.

Bizzaro, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, scored off an assist by Ferrell with 26 minutes left in the match. Ferrell then followed with a goal moments later off an assist by Aaron Tschetter.

The Rampants dominated play, taking a total of 23 shots on goal as compared to just seven by the Vikings. Rose goalie Russell Nelson recorded his second straight shutout.

"Clif Ferrell and Chris Turner played real smart for us," Coach Charlie Harvey said. "The only problems we had were in the first five minutes. Other than that, our players on the sidelines kept the defenders alive."

The victory improved Rose's record to 2-1-1 on the year, all in non-conference action.

In addition to Bizzaro, John Beasley, Toure Claibourne, Bert Powell and Nelson were selected to the tournament all-star team.

The Rampants will play at home against Hoggard High School on Friday at 5 p.m.

Williamston Netters Top Tarboro

Williamston High School rolled up a 7-2 victory over Tarboro in a high school tennis match Wednesday.

Two other matches in the area were postponed. Greene Central's home match with Lejeune was begun but rained out and will be completed with the two teams meet in Jacksonville on Sept. 17.

Rose High School's opening match with Goldsboro was postponed until a later date.

In the Williamston-Tarboro match, the Lady Tigers dropped the first two singles matches to Tarboro, but came back to sweep the remaining matches, including all three of the doubles.

The match was the opening one of the season for the Lady Tigers, who entertain Greene Central on Tuesday. Rose High School's next match is slated for Tuesday at Wilson Fike.

Williamston 7, Tarboro 2
Singles: Kendra Stallings (T) d. Carrie Bussell, 6-4, 6-2; Ashley Cooper (T) d. Dawn Bundy, 7-6 (7-5), 6-0; Hope Robinson (W) d. Kate Miller, 6-0, 6-0; Beverly Bullock (W) d. Fredra Burnette, 6-0, 6-2; Deedee Mills (W) d. Katie Vick, 6-1, 6-1; Nancy Bullock (W) d. Jennifer Rose, 6-3, 6-1.
Doubles: Mills/Bundy (W) d. Stallings-Cooper, 8-5; Jamie Hardison-Kris Maner (W) d. Miller-Burnette, 8-0; Roytesa Rodgers-Sarah Vestal (W) d. Vick-Rose, 8-6.

Clemson's Allen Is Suspended

WALHALLA, S.C. (AP) — Clemson tailback Terry Allen, who could become the school's all-time leading rusher this season, was charged with driving under the influence and jailed for five hours before being released on bond, school officials and authorities said Wednesday.

South Carolina Highway Patrol Officer Robert E. Gambrell stopped Allen, 21, of Commerce, Ga., at 4:05 a.m. Sunday on U.S. 76 near Seneca for DUI, according to a booking report and confinement record, said Officer Jerry Zimmerman, assistant supervisor at the Oconee County Law Enforcement Center.

Allen was released on a personal recognizance bond at 9:05 a.m. after appearing before Magistrate Judge Larry Butts, Zimmerman said.

Allen was given a Breathalyzer test, said Sgt. Neil F. Brown, Highway Patrol supervisor in Oconee County. Brown would not comment on the results of the test.

"He was stopped and charged with DUI. Any other information will have to be held until after the court date," Brown said.

A court date was tentatively set for Sept. 12 for Allen, Brown said.

If convicted of the first-offense charge of DUI, Allen could face up to a $287 fine and a six-month suspension of his driver's license, Brown said.

Allen was suspended from the team for the Furman game scheduled for Saturday. Athletic Director Bobby Robinson said in a statement released late Wednesday.

Henderson To Rejoin Blue Devils

DURHAM (AP) — Phil Henderson, who announced in June that he was leaving Duke, has decided to stay at the school and will rejoin the basketball team.

"I came back without knowing if I could play or not," Henderson said, "and that centers around that fact that I want to continue my education above all."

"Playing ball is icing on the cake. Doing well outside the classroom, extracurricular activities, are good but the main purpose is to be a student first and an athlete second," he said in a prepared statement.

With his decision to return, Henderson is Duke's top returning scorer at 12.7 points per game for the team that went to the Final Four last season. He also averaged 3.4 rebounds per game and handed out 93 assists in helping the Blue Devils to a 28-8 record.

Henderson has started in 37 of 78 games and has been a part of two Final Four teams.

Conley Spikers Off To Strong Start

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

With the championship of the Athens Drive Invitational Tournament under its wing, the D.H. Conley volleyball team is off to a strong start in the 1989 season.

But Coach Martha McCaskill says that the true strength of the team may lie in the future.

Martha McCaskill

"I'm excited about this year, but with only one senior, the future of the team may be another year away," McCaskill said. The lone senior is strong hitter Tracy Sumrell, who is already attracting collegiate attention.

"We have a lot of kids who have come around for us, but we still have a long way to go," McCaskill said. "The field of the Athens Drive tournament wasn't as strong as it has been in the past, but it's a good victory for us. I think we're as fundamentally strong as we've ever been. It just takes time to get the chemistry right. And I think that's true of any team this time of year."

McCaskill is in her 10th season at Conley, the only place she has taught. A graduate of Erwin High School in Harnett County, she holds her collegiate degree from the University of North Carolina. She accepted the Conley coaching job after graduating.

And since then, it's been quite a career. With a 184-30 career record, McCaskill has taken Conley teams to the state finals twice, in 1985 and 1986. The first time, the Valkyries took the runner-up spot and the next year, they came away with all the jewels.

"The first year, we were in awe of (being in) Carmichael (Auditorium on the UNC campus). But it helped us a great deal in 1986 in that we had been there before."

This past year marked the first time that the Valkyries did not win the Coastal Conference championship, as they finished second. "I'm not ashamed of that. I knew it was bound to happen some time. But we have a strong conference, and it's stronger yet because of the addition of Pender. They are a volleyball powerhouse. It's probably their strongest girls' sport. They have a junior varsity program to help feed it, so we're going to have our hands full in trying to get back on top."

Last year, West Carteret proved to be the best in the league. The Lady Patriots beat them out for the Coastal title, then knocked them out of the playoffs in the third round, going on to win the state title.

"They lost everybody they had, but they will still be competitive," McCaskill said. "They have good coaching and they play good defense. Traditionally, it's been between us two, but Havelock is coming around, too, and Pender, of course, will get into the act."

Throughout her career at Conley, McCaskill said she has been blessed with great players — six have earned scholarships on the collegiate level and at least two others have walked on in major programs.

"These kids just love volleyball; it's ended up being their best sport," she said of those who have gone on to play collegiately. They include Karen Barrett and Lisa Mills, both of whom earned grants at UNC-Wilmington; Rhonda Jackson, who earned a grant at UNC-W, but has since transferred to East Carolina; Hannah Hill and Miriam Fulford, who earned partial grants to North Carolina; Trellany Boyd, who has starred for two years at Elon, and, off last year's team, Rene Tuten, who earned a partial grant to Pfeiffer.

Debbie Patrick and Darby Fulford both walked on at North Carolina and earned spots on the team.

"Rhonda is our first player to go to East Carolina and we're excited about that, having her here at home," McCaskill said.

Sumrell is the latest on the list to receive attention from the college ranks. "She hasn't made up her mind about where she'd like to go, but it's still early," McCaskill said. "But I have no doubt she can play somewhere."

Meanwhile, Conley's young team will go at it again tonight, traveling to SouthWest Edgecombe for a 5 p.m. match. They will open their home season on Sept. 7, hosting perennial power Durham Jordan and SouthWest in a tri-match.

 Meanwhile, Bowling Green found considerable success in moving the ball in its latest scrimmage, producing six touchdowns and a field goal during a two-hour and 15 minute session.

The offense racked up 292 yards rushing and 202 passing. First string quarterback Rick Dackin hit on seven of 12 passes for 70 yards and three of the incompletions were simply dropped. Back-ups Erik White was eight of 15 for 50 yards and Pat Gucciardo was five of 15 for 73 yards.

DeLeon Brilliant But Cards Lose

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It didn't take any of Whitey Herzog's managerial genius to figure out why the St. Louis Cardinals didn't beat the Cincinnati Reds.

"You can't win if you don't get a run," Herzog said.

Cincinnati, held to one hit over 12 innings, snapped a scoreless tie in the 13th on pinch-hitter Dave Collins' RBI single, and the Reds beat the Cardinals 2-0 despite a brilliant pitching performance by Jose DeLeon.

Over 11 innings, DeLeon faced the minimum 33 batters, allowing one hit, striking out eight and walking none.

"DeLeon and Rick Mahler were amazing, and DeLeon can't pitch any better than that," Herzog said.

DeLeon retired Cincinnati's first 10 batters before Luis Quinones' one-out, line-drive single in the fourth. A double play erased Quinones, and DeLeon set down the next 22 batters.

"It was really sad we couldn't pull that one out," St. Louis rookie catcher Todd Zeile said. "DeLeon just put the ball where I had my glove all night. He had great control of his pitches."

The loss kept the Cardinals in second place in the National League East, tied with New York, 2½ games behind first-place Chicago.

After Quinones' single in the fourth, the Reds did not get another hit until he doubled with one out in the 13th off Todd Worrell, 2-5.

Eric Davis, who was intentionally walked, stopped at second on Collins' RBI single and scored the Reds' second run when Zeile threw wildly on Davis' steal of third.

Rob Dibble, 8-4, pitched two innings and struck out five for the victory. John Franco pitched the 13th for his 29th save.

St. Louis, which stranded 16 baserunners, left the bases loaded in the 10th and 12th innings.

Mahler, who had lost five straight decisions, pitched 10 innings, allowing nine hits.

"It's a shame DeLeon pitched so well and got nothing for it, but that's the way it goes," Mahler said. "He really pitched a heck of a game. You've got to tip your hat to him."

Astros 8, Cubs 4

Mike Scott pitched a four-hitter for his 18th victory, tying the major-league high, and added a run-scoring single as Houston rebounded to beat Chicago at Wrigley Field. On Tuesday, the Astros blew a 9-0 lead and lost to the Cubs 10-9.

Gerald Young had four hits, three RBIs and scored a run and Rafael Ramirez, who had seven RBIs on Tuesday, added three hits and scored twice.

Scott, 18-7, had failed in four previous attempts to match his career high of 18 victories.

Scott gave up home runs to Dwight Smith in the first inning, Ryne Sandberg in the fourth and a two-run shot to Mark Grace in the ninth. He struck out nine and walked one in his eighth complete game.

Expos 5, Padres 1

Dennis Martinez pitched a six-hitter for his 15th victory and visiting Montreal beat San Diego, snapping the Padres' six-game winning streak.

The loss dropped the Padres seven games behind first-place San Francisco in the NL West, while the Expos moved within three games of Chicago in the East.

Martinez, 15-4, struck out eight and walked one for his fourth complete game. Mets 9, Dodgers 3

Kevin McReynolds hit New York's first grand slam of the season and Sid Fernandez won for the sixth time in his last seven decisions as the Mets beat Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium to complete a three-game sweep.

Fernandez, 10-3, pitched 7½ innings and allowed five hits. Jeff Hamilton hit his 12th homer in the seventh to end the shutout and Mike Marshall added a two-run shot in the eighth, his 11th.

Giants 3, Phillies 2

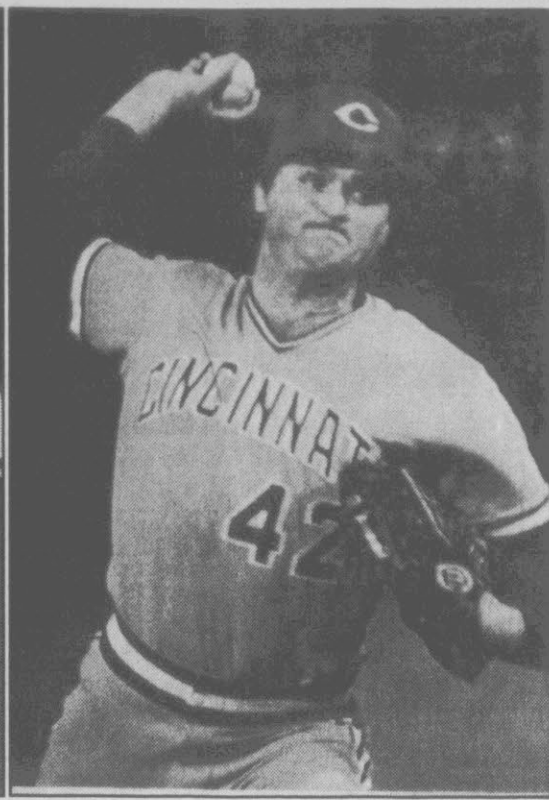

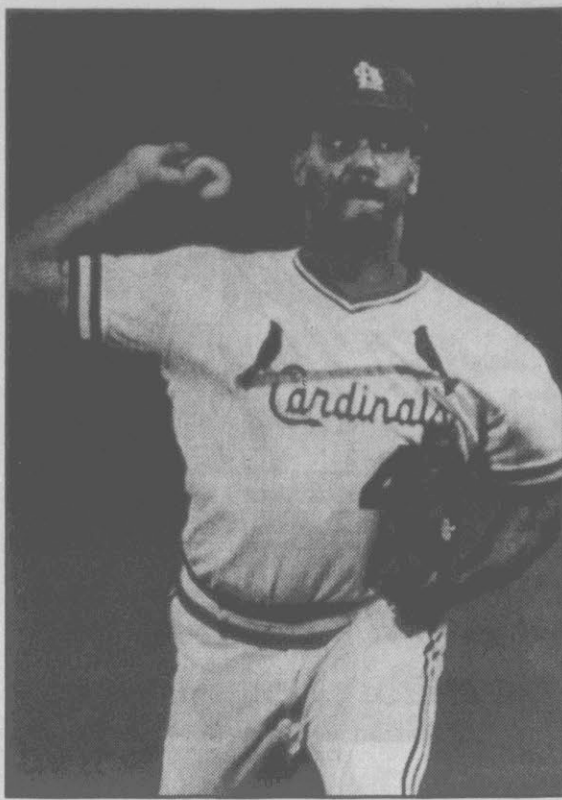

Kelly Downs won for the first time since April 11 and San Francisco snapped a three-game losing streak by beating Philadelphia at Candlestick Park.

Downs, 3-5, pitched six strong innings to win for the first time in four starts since coming off the disabled list following a shoulder problem. He allowed one run and four hits in six innings before being lifted after Charlie Hayes led off the seventh with a homer.

Will Clark doubled in two runs and scored on Dickie Thon's error in San Francisco's three-run fifth inning off ex-Giant Terry Mulholland, 4-6.

Pirates 7, Braves 5

Billy Hatcher's run-scoring pinch single snapped an eighth-inning tie

The Associated Press

Jose DeLeon (left) and Rick Mahler hooked up in a pitching duel Wednesday night as Pittsburgh beat Atlanta at Three Rivers Stadium.

With the score tied 5-5, Mike LaValliere led off with a single off reliever Joe Boever, 4-6. Pinch-runner Gary Redus moved to second on Jose Lind's sacrifice and scored on Hatcher's single. Hatcher moved to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

Randy Kramer, 5-7, won despite allowing the Braves to tie the score with two runs in the eighth. Bill Landrum pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Rookie Jeff Wetherby's two-out, two-run pinch single gave the Braves a 5-5 tie in the eighth.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

After his teammates gave up 30 hits and 21 runs to the Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader the night before, California's Jim Abbott gave them nothing but grief.

"There's not too much you can do about that one," Boston manager Joe Morgan said after Abbott pitched a four-hitter to key the Angels' 4-0 victory Wednesday night. "We were hogtied all the way."

The rookie left-hander, born without a right hand, was given a standing ovation by Fenway Park fans after his third complete game and second shutout in 24 major league starts. The triumph stopped the Red Sox' nine-game winning streak.

"I've been struggling, but the team has been patient with me," said Abbott, 11-9 overall but only 2-3 in the month of August. "The main key for me is to throw strikes. When I do that, I'm confident I can win."

With the victory, California moved to within two games of Oakland in the American League West. The division-leading Athletics lost an 8-5 decision to the New York Yankees.

Yankees 8, Athletics 5

Steve Balboni homered and drove in four runs and Eric Plunk beat the team that traded him earlier this summer as the Yankees ended a six-game losing streak.

The Yankees avoided their worst month since losing a club-record 24 games in July 1908. Still, their 21 defeats in August were the most in one month since July 1919.

Jose Canseco homered and drove in four runs for Oakland, which had a three-game winning string stopped. Canseco had eight hits in 15 at-bats in the series, including three homers and 10 RBIs. The Athletics scored 31 runs on 41 hits in the three games.

The Yankees ended a seven-game losing streak against the Athletics and beat them for the first time in six tries at home this year.

Orioles 7, Indians 4

Phil Bradley doubled twice during a seven-run first inning and Jeff Ballard won his fourth straight as the Orioles spoiled the return of Greg Swindell from the disabled list.

The win was the fifth in six games and ninth in the last 11 for the AL East-leading Orioles and kept them one game ahead of Toronto.

Blue Jays 2, White Sox 1

Nelson Liriano's two-out, run-scoring single in the sixth lifted the Blue Jays to their eighth win in nine games.

The victory was Toronto's 19th in August, a club record.

Twins 7, Rangers 3

Kirby Puckett singled home two runs and pinch-hitter John Moses doubled home two more in the eighth inning as the Twins rallied for six runs to defeat the Rangers.

Texas starter Mike Jeffcoat took a 3-1 lead into the inning before the Twins erupted. They did most of the damage off reliever Jeff Russell, who blew a save opportunity for the sixth time in 36 chances.

Royals 6, Tigers 1

Jim Eisenreich doubled twice and had three hits and Mark Gubicza pitched a four-hitter over seven innings as the Royals handed the Tigers their 11th loss in a row.

Gubicza, 13-10, had a streak of 17 scoreless innings snapped when Detroit scored in the first. He then stopped the Tigers until Terry Leach came on to finish up.

Mariners 7, Brewers 3

Ken Griffey Jr. drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Randy Johnson and Mike Jackson combined on a six-hitter, leading Seattle over Milwaukee.

position. I just think it is a bad rule. I simply reiterated what I stated from my perspective.

"I'm afraid of the inconsistencies. I'm opposed to anything experimental that is not blanketed throughout the NCAA membership."

CAA Commissioner Tom Yeager is on vacation and was unavailable for comment, other than an official statement issued by the league of force Wednesday.

"Going to six fouls will allow our better players to play longer," Yeager said in the prepared statement. "Hopefully, the change will make the game better from the perspective of the coaches, players and fans."

"The game of basketball is constantly evolving. College basketball is a much more active and physical game today. It is an experiment. We will just have to wait and see what happens."

The Big East recently adopted a similar rule, and the Southeastern Conference is reportedly discussing the matter.

Since the May meetings, though, some conference members softened their positions.

"I don't know (what happened)," Hart said. "It was apparent that we had a pretty good consensus that it was not a good rule (in May). I think what happened is some other conferences have discussed and have adopted it."

"I think it's a terrible rule. I appreciate the stage I was given. The vote went the other way, but we appreciated the chance to state our opinion."

ECU basketball coach Mike Steele was attending meetings Thursday and couldn't be reached for comment.

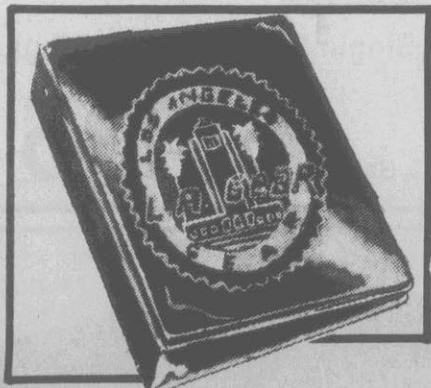

"I think Mike is definitely opposed to it," Hart said. "When I talked to Mike and told him my feelings his feelings paralleled mine."

 ly throughout an entire match in terms of getting it going."
 So McEnroe is gone. And Wilander, the fifth seed who was 14-1 in Grand Slam five-set matches, is out after what he called a "terrible match" against Sampras, ranked 91st.
 "I think it was disappointing to be playing that badly," Wilander said. "I lost in all of them (the Grand Slam events), which is what matters. But it was worse the way I was playing tonight."
 Becker would have been history, too, if not for that net cord.
 Rostagno, a 23-year-old from Brentwood, Calif., who is ranked 65th, held two match points in the fourth-set tiebreaker against the world's No. 2 player. He blew the first one with a forehand volley that went long.
 On the second match point, Rostagno pinned Becker at the baseline. He rushed toward the net for Becker's return, ready to put away the biggest victory of his career.
 The ball struck the tape, changed direction and Rostagno could do nothing with it. He returned the ball almost in self-defense and it went wide.
 "I was thinking, 'If that didn't use up all his luck, nothing would,'" Rostagno said. "He must have had the feeling nothing could go wrong after that."
 Becker certainly recognized how lucky he was. He also knew he had the fortitude to take advantage of the break.
 "In a match like that, many shots sometimes go in your favor and sometimes against it," Becker said. "When you get a shot like that on match point, it is quite sweet."

 "When you are at two match points in a tiebreaker and you get a shot like that, it could break his spirit. I figured his spirit was not that good at the beginning of the fifth set and I broke right away."
 Rostagno couldn't recover.
 "I almost had it," said Rostagno, one of the true non-conformists on the tour — he once traveled the circuit in a minibus. "I felt I played two solid shots on the match points and he was lucky to come up with a very big shot."
 Seeded players who came up with enough big shots to advance on Wednesday included top seeds Ivan Lendl and Steffi Graf, Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Michael Chang and Zina Garrison.
 Today, Lendl, Chang, Gabriela Sabatini, Stefan Edberg, Jimmy Connors and Tim Mayotte were in action.
 McEnroe seemed to be primed for a serious run at the Open title for the first time since 1985. He lost in the first round in 1986 to Paul Annacone, fell to Lendl in the quarterfinals the next year and was beaten by Mark Woodforde in Round 2 last year.

The loss to Haarhuis, the first qualifier ever to beat McEnroe in a Grand Slam event, was hard for McEnroe to swallow.

"I played like a poor player, to be perfectly honest," McEnroe said. "I just didn't feel that great. Sometimes, you don't feel great and you play well. Sometimes, you play lousy."

Conley, Chargers...

 tionally have a ground-oriented attack, but are depending on a band of small running backs this year, led by Willie Huff (5-6, 137, junior) Willie Huff.
 Highly regarded tackle Jerry Keller (6-5, 291) anchors the offensive line. Junior Corey Hatchell (6-0, 171) is under center.
 Jacksonville uses the pro-set offense with several different formations and an unbalanced line. The Cardinals, who put up but three passes last week, live with their running game.
 Rose, keyed by Boris Newton, John Williams and Micron Foreman, effectively shut down Tarboro's ground game a week ago, limiting tailback Terrell Hinton, one of the top running back prospects, to but 68 yards.
 "Defensively, we want to try to stay in our base as long as we can and not move people around until we have to," Williams said. "I think we played a very sound game (last week) except for one series when I think we got a little tired."
 "I don't think we were tested in the passing game but that is going to come, if not against Jacksonville then later in the year."

senior quarterback Jay Tripp was not called on to throw often. Chappell expects Conley stack the line and force the Chargers to mix in the pass more.
 "They'll try to deny you getting outside," Chappell said of the Conley defense. "They put a lot of pressure on you. Last year they played a 6-3 and put nine men on the line of scrimmage. That is going to force us to throw the ball."
 "They are going to make us do what we don't want to do. It's definitely going to point out some things we have to work on. Friday night is going to test the water for us to see how far along we've come in those areas."
 "Hopefully we'll be able to make them more honest. The pressure is on us to do our job. I don't think we can line up and match brawn for brawn the way we did last year. Therefore, we have to do a better job in the skill areas. With all the inexperience in the passing game, it doesn't paint a pretty picture."
 Craft is not sounding an alarm of concern because of one loss. Clayton proved the superior team on opening night and the Vikings returned to practice this week intent upon improving.
 "We just came back Monday and went back to work hard," Craft said. "We've got nine more games. Your whole season is not based on one game. We've just got to get better prepared."
 The meeting with Ayden-Grifton is the first of three straight intra-county battles for Conley. However, Craft puts little weight in the meaning of county showdowns.
 "Coach Chappell's ballclubs are always well-prepared and are always fired up to play us," Craft said. "This is a big game for them."
 "They have experience in the backfield and a strong line. That was sort of suspect going in, but it looks like that is one of their strong points."
 Chappell said one of his biggest concerns was with Conley's quickness, especially along the line of scrimmage.
 "It's going to be a challenge," Chappell said. "The quickness that Conley has is something we didn't have against (Richlands) last Friday. It's going to be a challenge for some of our younger guys. One of the keys is how we handle their quickness on the line."

Ayden-Grifton vs. Conley
 Both Conley and Ayden-Grifton feel they have the pass the ball more this week to be successful. The Vikings attempted 10 passes, completing five, in a 19-6 loss to Clayton, while the Chargers connected on 1-of-6 passes in a 20-7 win over Richlands.
 "We didn't have but 38 offensive plays, 10 of those were pass and 28 were run," Conley coach Steve Craft said. "They dictated to us more of what we could do."
 "We want to throw the football and we'll be prepared to throw the football, but we also want to run the football and we'll be prepared to run it."
 Quarterback Scott Seymour, wide receiver Junior Farrow and tight ends Hal Conger and Martin Patrick give the Vikings a potentially potent passing attack.
 Sophomore Anthony Barrett is Conley's top running threat.
 Ayden-Grifton's weapons are in the backfield with Rashid Williams, Ricardo Gamble and Scott Cannon, but head coach B.T. Chappell said more help will have to come from the passing game this week.
 With the Chargers controlling the ball on the ground last week,

Berry: Fryar Not In Patriots' Plans

Cowboys Release Newsome; Veteran Haynes May Be Out In L.A.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Irving Fryar, the subject of allegations concerning his collegiate career, is also facing problems in the NFL.

New England Patriots coach Raymond Berry said Wednesday that Fryar, a wide receiver who has been a holdout throughout training camp, can continue to sit on the sidelines when the season begins.

"We are not counting on Irving Fryar in our plans for this year," Berry said, adding that veteran Stanley Morgan and rookie Hart Lee Dykes would be first and second on the depth chart. Berry also said he felt comfortable with Sammy Martin, Cedric Jones and Mike Jones as backups.

Asked if Fryar would be welcomed if his contract impasse is settled, Berry said, "It would have to be a very fast decision on his part."

The allegations about Fryar and other members of the Nebraska football program are to appear in the book "Big Red Confidential" by Armen Keteyian, which has yet to be published.

Among the allegations, which were printed Tuesday in the Kansas City Star and Times from galley proofs, were that Fryar may have thrown the 1984 Orange Bowl against Miami by dropping a pass in the end zone; that Fryar, Mike Rozier and Turner Gill were given financial rewards for scoring touchdowns, and that several Nebraska players used steroids.

Calls to Fryar through the Dallas office of his agent, Sherwood Blount, were not returned.

Berry said he would not consider trading Fryar, who caught 33 passes last year. Should the Patriots decide to place Fryar on the reserved-did-not-report list when the regular season begins, they would not be able to sign him to a contract until after the season, but would retain his rights.

Los Angeles Raiders

Mike Haynes, one of the top cornerbacks of the 1980s, may be the next to go in the Los Angeles Raiders' housecleaning.

The Raiders named seven-year veteran Lionel Washington and two-year pro Terry McDaniel as the starting cornerbacks. Haynes and Mike Richardson, a Plan B free agent, were demoted.

Haynes, 36, went to nine Pro Bowls in his first 11 NFL seasons, and remained a starter through last season. He is the leading active pass interceptor in the AFC and third overall in the league.

Earlier this week, the Raiders released two long-time stars, wide receiver James Lofton and tight end Todd Christensen.

Dallas Cowboys

The Cowboys, another team cleaning house, released 10-year fullback Timmy Newsome after a meeting with Coach Jimmy Johnson in which Newsome requested his release if he could not be a starter. Newsome, who played in the same backfield with Tony Dorsett and later with Herschel Walker, missed the Cowboys' final seven games last season with a calf injury and at one time talked of retiring.

New Orleans Saints

The Saints re-signed seventh-round draft choice David Griggs, a linebacker, and waived another linebacker, Willie Pless, after an injury settlement. The Saints had cut Griggs on Tuesday. Pless has a back injury and could not have been cut unless he agreed to a settlement.

Los Angeles Rams

Cliff Hicks, a third-year player, or rookie Darryl Henley will get a chance to play in the absence of cornerback LeRoy Irvin, who was suspended for 30 days on Tuesday for violating NFL guidelines on steroid use. But Coach John Robinson isn't saying who's got the inside track.

"We're going to throw them in there and see who looks the best," Robinson said. "Henley's a natural cover guy and Hicks has had a good camp."

Detroit Lions

Eric Hipple isn't impressed with his last chance to win one of Detroit's three quarterback jobs. Hipple will get to play Saturday in the Lions' exhibition finale against the Rams, but says he's not ready to play.

"I didn't get any offensive reps the first week, not many the second week when I played and I haven't gotten any since. Zero," Hipple said Wednesday. He's getting the opportunity only because Chuck Long won't play and will probably be placed on injured reserve after the 47-man roster is determined.

Rusty Hilger and Bob Gagliano have been working regularly with the offense through the exhibition season. Rookie Rodney Peete is also on the roster.

The Lions also sent starting right tackle Harvey Salem back to Detroit for treatment on his right shoulder.

Seattle Seahawks

The Seahawks traded cornerback Terry Taylor to Detroit for fullback James Jones, contingent on each player passing a physical examination.

The Seahawks also reached agreement Wednesday with their last two veteran holdouts, tackle Ron Mattes and linebacker Tony Woods. Linebacker Darren Comeaux came to terms on Tuesday.

Coach Chuck Knox said that Curt Warner would start at running back in Friday night's game against the San Francisco 49ers. It will be Warner's first action after undergoing minor arthroscopic surgery Aug. 7 on his right knee.

Indianapolis Colts

Offensive tackle Bill Contz, acquired last week in a trade with the Denver Broncos, was released. The 6-foot-5, 270-pound Contz had been acquired in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice.

The Colts play Denver in their final exhibition game Saturday. A victory will give them their first unbeaten exhibition season since a 6-0 mark in 1969.

Chicago Bears

Defensive back Maurice Douglass says he deserves a second chance with the Chicago Bears after being suspended for 30 days for testing positive for steroids.

Douglass will be placed on the Bears' reserve non-football illness list, but will not be paid.

"I'm going to try to fight this thing," Douglass said. "I want to because, to be honest, I know deep down in my heart that if I had taken steroids and knew I had it in my system then I would have taken some kind of a masking agent to cover it up."

Cornerback Lemuel Stimson will start in Douglass' place on the Bears' nickel defense in Saturday's exhibition game against the Raiders.

The Associated Press

John Bosa is back in pads for the Miami Dolphins

San Francisco 49ers

Today promised to be an uneasy one for several players on the defending Super Bowl champs.

Coach George Seifert said the team plans to activate seven veterans who signed late after holding out, meaning that seven others have to be let go. The seven veterans scheduled to be added to the roster include offensive linemen Guy McIntyre and Steve Wallace, defensive backs Jeff Fuller, Tim McKyer and Don Griffin and defensive linemen Kevin Fagan and Larry Roberts.

Seifert said two vacancies could be made by putting cornerback Tory Nixon and rookie linebacker Keith DeLong, the team's No. 1 draft pick, on injured reserve.

San Diego Chargers

The Chargers will start Jim McMahon at quarterback in Friday night's exhibition finale against Phoenix. He'll play the first half.

"He's acclimated himself well," Coach Dan Henning said of McMahon, who was acquired Aug.

18 from the Chicago Bears. "He's been on a pace that's very satisfying."

Miami Dolphins

The Dolphins rejected the latest contract proposal from agents for first-round draft choice Sammie Smith. Tim Robbie, Dolphins vice president for public affairs, said the proposal from Smith's agents was in response to a $2.45 million final offer the team made last weekend.

The sides have agreed on a four-year deal, but the latest proposal left them about $500,000 apart in salary.

New York Jets

Quarterback Ken O'Brien got a day off today, but was tabbed to see most of the action in the Jets' exhibition finale Friday night in Kansas City. O'Brien has a broken toe on his left foot and the Jets are concerned that he might change his throwing motion and re-injure his right shoulder.

O'Brien is scheduled to play three quarters against the Chiefs, with Mark Malone finishing up.

Browns' Mack Pleads Guilty

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — The NFL said it probably would defer a decision on possible disciplinary action against Kevin Mack until the Cleveland Browns running back is sentenced for using cocaine.

Joe Browne, the NFL's director of communications, said no decision had been made on Mack's status.

"We will continue to monitor the case and review today's court proceedings," Browne said Wednesday. "We do not plan to comment further, probably until after Kevin Mack's sentencing."

Mack pleaded guilty to cocaine use as part of a plea bargain which included the dismissal of three charges stemming from his arrest at a drug-infested street corner.

Mack, 26, appeared subdued as he stood before Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Richard J. McMonagle, who said the plea could result in a sentence of up to 18 months.

Mack, who has rushed for 2,989 yards in his four-year career with

Mack returned to the Browns training camp at Baldwin-Wallace College in the afternoon.

"It's been pretty tough," he said during a practice break. "The last couple weeks it hasn't been too bad, because everything has died down."

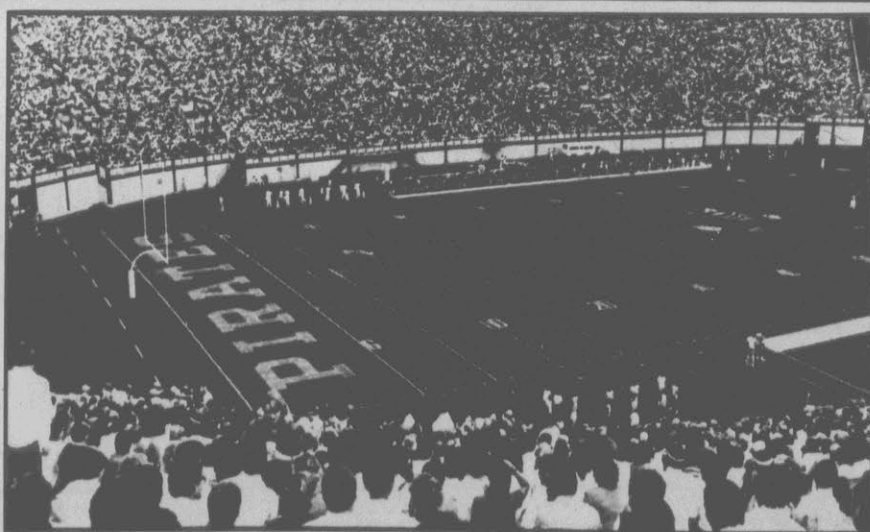

"Now that it's all kicked back up, I'm pretty sure it's going to be real tough for me to keep my concentration about what I have to do on the field."

Anne attends Olympics meeting in San Juan Wednesday

Princess Anne And Hubby Split

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, the only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, is separating from her husband Mark Phillips after 15 years of marriage, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The 39-year-old princess and her 40-year-old husband do not plan to divorce, the announcement said.

The queen, on holiday at Balmoral, Scotland, was described by royal sources to be "obviously saddened" but to understand the couple's decision, which was taken in principle earlier this year, according to Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency.

"Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal, and Capt. Mark Phillips have decided to separate on terms agreed between them," the announcement said. "There are no plans for divorce proceedings."

The terms of the separation were not disclosed but Anne will continue to live at the couple's home, Gatcombe Park in Gloucestershire, about 80 miles west of London. Phillips will move to another house nearby, the palace said.

The palace press office could not say whether this would be Aston Farm on the Gatcombe estate.

The couple's children, Peter, 11, and Zara, 8, will live with their mother at Gatcombe and Phillips will have full access to them, the palace said.

The separation had been disclosed Wednesday night by Phillips' father, Maj. Peter Phillips.

Rumors of trouble in the marriage date back to 1981. In recent years, Anne and Phillips have spent periods of up to six months apart.

Speculation that their marriage was on the rocks arose most recently in April, after personal letters written to Anne by a handsome 35-year-old aide to the queen, naval Cmdr. Timothy Laurence, were stolen and sent to the tabloid The Sun.

Phillips' name has been linked romantically with several women in British tabloid reports in recent years.

Princess Margaret, 59, the queen's only sister, was divorced in 1978 from photographer Lord Snowdon. He has remarried. She has not.

Kaifu Says U.S. Top Global Leader

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO — Despite Japan's emerging economic power and its recent attainment of "equal footing" with the United States, America remains No. 1 where global leadership is concerned, Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said Wednesday.

"No country can replace the United States in its position and role as leader of the free world," Kaifu said in remarks prepared for delivery before the Japan Society of Northern California.

"We expect that the United States can respond to various problems with confidence, and at the same time Japan will do its utmost to continue cooperating with and supporting American leadership."

Kaifu arrived here earlier in the day on the first stop of a 10-day tour of the United States, Mexico and Canada. Japanese officials have said that the visit was aimed primarily at evoking positive feelings among the American public and at reassuring the U.S. government that Japan's basic economic and foreign policies will remain unchanged amid a climate of domestic political instability.

Kaifu, whose administration is only 3 weeks old, is a member of a minor faction of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, and his tenure is considered uncertain at best. In the past three months his two predecessors were forced to resign as the result of bribery and sex scandals, and pressure is mounting on Kaifu from party elders who would like to see him dissolve the lower house of Parliament and call a general election this fall — a move that could hasten his downfall.

Few surprises are expected at Kaifu's scheduled meeting Friday with President Bush in Washington, but Japanese officials say they expect the prime minister's skills as a communicator to help defuse rising bilateral tension, if not bolster his image at home.

In Wednesday's prepared remarks, Kaifu emphasized that ties between Japan and America were changing dramatically but remain fundamentally sound.

The bilateral relationship "is no longer the protector-protected, teacher-pupil bond it once was," he said. "Especially in its economic aspects, this bond is increasingly becoming an association of partners — cooperating and occasionally competing on an equal footing."

Growing interdependence in the U.S.-Japan relationship has meant that "friction has occasionally arisen between us," he said. "One even gets the impression that we are criticizing each other in ever-louder voices."

Peace Conference Ends In Failure

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

PARIS — A 19-nation peace conference aimed at averting a bloody civil war in Cambodia ended in failure here Wednesday after a month of negotiations did not produce a political settlement between rival forces.

In a short statement issued by the delegates Wednesday evening, the conference reported making some progress but admitted that "it is not yet possible to achieve a comprehensive settlement."

"We need time," said conference co-chairman Roland Dumas, the French foreign minister, in a summary statement, "so that the spirit of reconciliation can overcome the spirit of confrontation."

Although delegates to the conference, co-sponsored by France and Indonesia, unanimously agreed to seek another meeting next year, the absence of a political agreement between the Vietnam-backed government and the three main resistance parties almost certainly means a round of fighting once Vietnamese forces withdraw from Cambodia in late September.

"My very sad conclusion," said Tommy T.B. Koh, Singapore's ambassador to the United States and spokesman for the Singapore delegation to the talks, "is that Vietnam and (Cambodian Prime Minister) Hun Sen have decided to take the battle to the battlefield to see how strong the resistance is — at least until the end of the dry season in May."

"My own guess is that we will be back here in May 1990," he added. "As in Afghanistan, it is unlikely that either side will prevail. You will find an impasse on the battlefield just as you have at the conference table."

The main obstacle in the negotiations was the debate over the role of the Khmer Rouge, the Chinese-backed wing of the Communist Party that terrorized Cambodia from 1975 to 1979, four years in which more than 1 million civilians were killed.

Resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk insisted that the Khmer Rouge, which has the most effective fighting force, must be included in any political settlement or the pact would be doomed to failure. His position was backed by the United States.

But the Vietnam-backed government of Hun Sen refused to participate in a regime in which the Khmer Rouge is a member.

"I think Hun Sen was using (Afghanistan leader) Najibullah as an example," Koh said. "He figured if Najibullah can survive in Kabul against a much more substantial resistance force (from the Soviet Union), why couldn't he survive in Phnom Penh?"

In the conference's waning stages, as delegates haggled for seven hours over wording on a one-page final communique, the words of diplomacy turned bellicose.

Sihanouk vowed that his army would defeat the forces of Hun Sen on the battlefield, and Sihanouk's aides released claims of resistance victories over Vietnamese army forces in recent battles.

"We stand ready to assume our national defense," responded Hun Sen, leader of an untested 40,000-man army and peasant militia. "We know the Khmer Rouge will attack. We are prepared for the worst."

Hun Sen estimated rival Khmer Rouge guerrilla forces at 12,000 to 15,000 men. Western estimates have placed Khmer Rouge forces at 40,000.

Few of the delegates give the Hun Sen's forces much of a chance against the Khmer Rouge. "If 100,000 Vietnamese troops, considered by some to be one of the finest armies in the world, could not liquidate the Khmer Rouge," said one delegate, "do you really think Hun Sen can do it?"

China Says Repression Allegations Unfounded

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING — China today denied Amnesty International's charges of secret executions and mass arrests following the military crackdown in June and said the country has no political prisoners.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing, at a weekly briefing, also said U.S. sanctions had "infringed upon China's dignity" and that the United States must be held responsible for deteriorating ties between the countries.

Li said Amnesty claims of a "wave of repression" in China following the June 3-4 military attack on student-led protesters in Beijing "are entirely unfounded and unreasonable."

He said that during the attack "an extremely small number of people used terrorist means and took violent actions in an attempt to overthrow the legitimate government. ... That the Chinese government according to law arrested those criminals and sentenced them to imprisonment is entirely legitimate and justified."

"No country or organization has the right to interfere in an issue that is purely another country's internal affair," Li said.

Amnesty said Wednesday it had sent Premier Li Peng a telex message urging the Chinese government to "stop using judicial killing as a political tool" and to release all "prisoners of conscience."

A statement released by the human rights group's headquarters in London said at least 1,000 people were killed in the military attack on Beijing.

The government has said about 200 died in the crackdown.

The statement added: "There was strong evidence that the authorities had taken a deliberate decision after the army massacres in early June to carry out secret executions but also to publicize certain death sentences in order to cow political opposition."

The report said the number of people arrested as a result of the protests may be much higher than the official figure of 4,000.

Chad And Libya Sign Peace Accord

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALGIERS, Algeria — Chad and Libya signed a peace accord today that calls for an end to fighting over a disputed strip of desert that has been the focus of 16 years of bloodshed, diplomats said.

The agreement was signed in Algiers by Chadian Foreign Minister Acheikh Ibn Omar and his Libyan counterpart, Djadallah Azouz Talhi.

Also at the signing was Algerian Foreign Minister Boualem Bessaïeh, who helped mediate the agreement.

Details of the accord were worked out Aug. 21-25 in meetings outside

Paris, the French foreign ministry in Paris confirmed.

The agreement calls for the parties to try to resolve their dispute through a political settlement within a year.

If that fails, they are to take the issue to the International Court of Justice in The Hague to rule on who holds sovereignty over the Aozou strip, a 45,000-square-mile band of mineral-rich desert between the two countries.

According to the Chadian Embassy in Paris, which issued a copy of the accord, Chad and Libya agreed to:

—The withdrawal of all forces from the disputed region, leaving it under the administration of a group of African observers until the court renders its decision.

—The release of all prisoners of war held by both sides.

—The signing of a treaty of friendship.

Chad holds about 2,000 Libyan prisoners, while most of the Chadians held by Tripoli have been released.

The accord was signed a few days before Libya celebrates the 20th anniversary of Col. Moammar Gadhafi's rule.

Gadhafi claimed the disputed land in 1973 under an unratified 1941 treaty between Italy, then colonial ruler of Libya, and France, which then ruled Chad.

By 1984, the U.S. State Department estimated that 3,000 Libyan soldiers occupied northern Chad.

In August 1987, Chadian President Hissene Habre launched a successful offensive to recapture northern Chad, but failed to push them out of the disputed area controlled by Tripoli.

In September 1988, a cease-fire was proclaimed under the auspices of the Organization of African Unity.

A month later, the two countries re-established diplomatic relations and in July the two leaders held a brief summit in Bamako, Mali, to settle the remaining differences.

France has maintained a small force of 1,500 men in southern Chad since September 1984 under Operation Sparrowhawk, although the troops have not been directly involved in the fighting.

A statement by the French Foreign Ministry in Paris paid "homage to the wisdom of the leaders of the two countries" and expressed "hope that this accord will allow the consolidation of peace in the region."

Habre and Gadhafi, former allies, met for the first time in seven years July 21 in Bamako, Mali. The two leaders shook hands, and the organizers of the meeting felt an accord was so close that they told reporters in the Malian capital that signature on a pact was simply a formality.

The meeting ended with no agreement, not even a communique, but both sides later said progress had been made.

Austrian Railways Preparing For Mass Transfer Of Refugees

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA, Austria — West Germany asked the Austrian railroad today to begin preparing for the mass transfer of thousands of East German refugees in Hungary who are awaiting resettlement in the West, rail officials said.

One official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the request to make an unspecified number of railway cars available for Sept. 6 came from officials in Bonn, the West German capital.

Another railway official said Sept. 6 was only one of several possible dates for such a mass movement of East Germans, and "I personally expect this to happen before that."

Thousands of East Germans have fled into Hungary since May, when that Communist country, which is experimenting with Western-style reforms, dismantled much of its border fortifications with Austria.

The border flood has created friction between the relatively liberal government in Hungary and hard-line leaders in Warsaw Pact neighbor East Germany. Many refugees say they are fleeing East Germany's stagnant economy.

An Austrian government source on Wednesday said at least 1,500 East Germans would be allowed to leave Hungary under a plan being drawn up by the International Red Cross.

But the second rail official, who also asked to remain anonymous, said German Federal Railways officials told the Austrians to prepare for between 15,000-20,000 East German refugees, adding, "This number is fairly official."

The rail official said Austrian Railways had promised the West

German Embassy in Vienna to have 50 rail cars available within six hours at an unspecified border point with Hungary.

Neither Austrian railway officials nor their Hungarian counterparts had been asked to move East German refugees directly from Budapest, he said.

S. Africa Arrests 9 In Election Plot

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government today said it has arrested nine guerrillas who planned to disrupt next week's elections and announced a crackdown on a new campaign to defy apartheid laws.

In Johannesburg, police banned a rally at a university, then fired tear gas at students who refused to disperse. An estimated 4,500 mixed-race high school students in the city boycotted classes to protest the elections.

Acting President F.W. de Klerk said nine guerrillas of the African National Congress and 10 collaborators were arrested in the past week. He said police seized a "big quantity" of Soviet-made mines, rifles and hand grenades.

A police spokesman, Gen. Herman Stadler, said "quite a number" of political activists had been detained without charge in the past two days, but he gave no details. Police in Durban confirmed the detention of four activists involved in planning a week-end protest by blacks on a whites-only beach.

A Law and Order Ministry official, Brig. Leon Mellet, said the crackdown was aimed at activists who threatened public safety or planned to disrupt the Sept. 6 elections, as well as former detainees who have defied restrictions imposed as a condition of their release.

Parliament includes segregated mixed-race and Indian chambers, as well as the dominant white chamber. Many anti-apartheid leaders of all races oppose the elections because the black majority is excluded.

Black trade unions are believed to be planning a nationwide general strike on election day. State-of-emergency regulations prohibit public appeals for such strikes.

Johannesburg police banned a rally planned today at the University of the Witwatersrand and fired tear gas at a cluster of students. A black students' group had intended to announce it would resume functioning in defiance of police restrictions.

Police headquarters reported several clashes Wednesday between police and militants in black and mixed-race townships near Cape Town. It said one policeman and three rioters were injured and reported five arrests connected to stone-throwing and firebombing.

Police have attributed the township violence to the month-old defiance campaign, which has included protests against whites-only schools, hospitals, beaches and buses.

Beirut Fighting Kills 2 People, Wounds 16

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian and Christian forces battled with artillery and tanks around Beirut today, killing two people and wounding 16, police said.

A pro-Iranian Moslem cleric was quoted as calling for the kidnapping of Pope John Paul II if the pontiff visits the beleaguered Christians.

The casualties raised the toll since March to at least 807 killed and 2,334 wounded. More than 90 percent of Beirut's 1.5 million population has fled the ravaged city since the latest round of fighting began.

Sheik Said Shaaban, leader of Lebanon's Sunni Moslem fundamentalists, was quoted as saying in Beirut's Ad-Diyar daily that Moslem zealots also should kidnap President Bush and French President Francois Mitterrand to halt alleged French aid to the Christians.

"If the pope comes to Lebanon and we manage to hold him for the sake of salvaging Palestine, I wouldn't be against such an act," said Shaaban, the only Sunni cleric in Lebanon to support Shiite Moslem Iran, Syria's ally.

Shiite fanatics carried out suicide bombings against U.S., French and Israeli forces in Lebanon between 1983 and 1985, killing hundreds of servicemen, and have kidnapped scores of Westerners.

The pope said Aug. 19 that he intended to visit Lebanon to help end the country's 14-year-old civil war. The Vatican has said the final decision on a trip depends on security in Beirut.

"I support the abduction of Bush and ... Mitterrand to serve the purpose of ousting Israel from Palestine and stopping the French intervention and the naval warships that came to rescue France's children in Lebanon," Shaaban said. He was referring to six French warships in the eastern Mediterranean sent to evacuate French citizens if the fighting worsens.

Man Spends 18 Months In Jail For Sodomy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DECATUR, Ga. — A carpenter said he is bitter after spending 18 months in jail for having oral sex with his wife and maintained his five-year sentence for violating Georgia's sodomy law was an unfair result of a domestic dispute.
 James D. Moseley, 35, left the Metro Correctional Institution on Wednesday afternoon after DeKalb County Superior Court Judge Robert Castellani granted a motion to free him on his own recognizance pending appeal or dismissal of the charges.
 Sodomy, even between consenting married adults, is a felony in Georgia under a 156-year-old law recently upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.
 "Sure, I'm bitter," Moseley said after being released.
 He said faith in humankind kept his spirits up, adding, "I knew someone would see this thing as it really was."

He said he will contact the carpenters' union about a job as soon as possible.
 The state, he said, gave him $25, "I guess to start my life over."
 The case against Moseley began when Bette Roberts, his common-law wife of four years, complained to authorities in February 1988 that he had raped and forcibly sodomized her. The couple has since divorced.
 Moseley denied ever using force to have sex, saying, "I only did what she wanted me to do and then she used it against me to get custody of the kids." He said he was granted no rights to visit his sons.
 Moseley was acquitted of rape and forcible sodomy. But in testifying in his own defense, he admitted on the stand that he had had oral sex with Ms. Roberts. The jury found him guilty of sodomy without aggravation, a lesser charge that means oral or anal sex with consent.
 Some jurors later expressed shock when Moseley was sentenced to five years in prison.

Virginia Executes Killer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RICHMOND, Va. — A former textile worker was executed for raping and murdering the 61-year-old woman he stabbed 42 times with a butcher knife in her farmhouse 12 years ago.

Alton Wayne, 34, was put to death in the electric chair at the State Penitentiary late Wednesday.

The sentence was carried out following a day of appeals that ended with the U.S. Supreme Court voting 7-2 against postponement. Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall, who oppose the death penalty under all circumstances, voted for a reprieve.

Earlier, Gov. Gerald L. Baliles denied clemency for Wayne.

Robert Englund Keeps His Seat On The Carousel

But Twirl May Be Over For Freddy's Alter-Ego

By Bob Thomas
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Robert Englund recalls some advice Mel Brooks dispensed when Mark Hamill fretted about being typed forever as Luke Skywalker as a result of the "Star Wars" movies. The gospel according to Brooks: "Never get off the merry-go-round while it's still turning."

Says Englund: "I remember Mark, drinking a beer and watching an old 'Mary Tyler Moore Show' with me up in Laurel Canyon. He was so worried until Mel Brooks gave him that advice at 20th Century Fox. It really made sense to me, watching Mark and seeing his angst. I said to Mark, 'What's your problem? You're starring in 'Star Wars!'"

"I've used that advice all through the Freddy craze, and it's really kept me focused. The merry-go-round's going to stop pretty soon. I'll get off nice and gently and go on to other things."

The "Freddy craze" is having another go-round this summer with "Nightmare on Elm Street 5: The Dream Child." It's yet another encounter with Freddy Krueger, that charmer with the prune face and the steel-bladed fingers. However, the film has opened quite poorly, falling a staggering 57 percent in its second week of release for a take of only $3.5 million. It looks like this could be Freddy's last stand.

For an actor who has performed Shakespeare and Ibsen, Englund retains a healthy attitude about the character who has dominated his career for the past five years.

"I do Freddy once a year," explained Englund. "People accuse me of doing it for the money now. But I've had a decent career, and I'm still doing a lot of other things. I'm even turning down jobs because of conflicts in schedule."

"I enjoy doing Freddy. I don't enjoy putting the makeup on anymore; it's a real (2½ hour) drag. Once it's on, it's wonderfully designed, porous so it can breathe. I love being able to kid around with the crew as Freddy on the set. I love that it's the one time in my life on film that I can really be larger than life, I can exaggerate. It's the kind of acting that's generally reserved for the theater."

The "Nightmare" series is the kind of bonanza of which small film companies such as New Line Cinema dream. The original film was the creature of the poor man's Alfred Hitchcock, Wes Craven, who created such throat-grabbing terror that the $1.2 million investment returned $26 million in tickets sold. The cost has risen with each sequel, but so has the gross: $30 million for No. 2, $45 million for No. 3, $50 million for No. 4.

Who attends the slice and dice teen-oriented movies?

"I think the original audience were punk rockers and heavy metal kids," said Englund. "They discovered the movie on their own; there was no hype at the beginning because New Line didn't have any money to advertise."

"There was a certain subversiveness, a certain anarchy to Freddy, a slight attack on middle-class complacency. After all — 'Elm Street.' What does that stand for? Picket fences and mowed lawns."

The Associated Press

Englund has played Freddy in all five 'Nightmare' productions

"With the budgets increasing, we changed to more of a fantasy and a special effects film. The audience has grown with it. We've gotten the 'Poltergeist' audience. We've gotten the kid brother and sister of the heavy metal and punk kids. And their parents, too."

Without the Freddy makeup, Englund is a pleasant, even bland looking 40-year-old with a short beard and curly blond hair. He was a California boy who attended Northridge State University and the University of California at Los Angeles before studying at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London.

After playing the classics in the East, Englund decided to give Hollywood a try, and he appeared in such films as "Buster and Billie" (Jan-Michael Vincent), "Stay Hungry" (Jeff Bridges, Sally Field) and "Last of the Cowboys" (Henry Fonda). Television brought him recognition, especially the miniseries "V." He was also obliged to do the subsequent "V" series.

"I was playing the most beatific, nerdy little guy — the good alien," the actor said. "I did the first 'Elm Street' to meet Wes Craven, whom I'd heard a lot about, and also for the challenge of doing a character in makeup. I figured I was going to be locked into the television for five years. I wanted to show the town that I could do something very, very different."

As a slight change of pace, Englund will appear this autumn in the title role of a production of "Phantom of the Opera."

"Not the musical; I have the worst monotone in the world," he added hastily. "This is from the original novel."

Artists, Historian At Work In Plains

By Elliott Minor
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PLAINS, Ga. — Four illustrators and a historian are capturing the rural flavor of Plains, the friendly little town that gained world renown in 1976 when Americans elected a peanut farmer to serve as the nation's 39th president.

Under a government program known as the Historic American Building Survey, the five have been working in Plains since June 12, studying and sketching historic buildings that eventually may be included in the Jimmy Carter National Historic Site.

They were selected for the survey from hundreds of applicants and are paid by the National Park Service. Their headquarters is an apartment next to one Carter and his young wife, Rosalynn, rented in 1953 when he returned from the Navy.

The team's leader, architect John Westberg of Tempe, Ariz., said residents have been helpful and seem to appreciate the Park Service's efforts to preserve the town's heritage.

Since their arrival, the five have attended Sunday Bible classes given by the former president and they met with the Carters at the couple's home on Church Street.

"It's a privilege to work on this project," said Westberg, 35. "He's making a difference on this planet. He seems less concerned about his own life than what he can do for other people."

The team spent several weeks taking precise measurements of Carter's high school, his boyhood home in nearby Archery, a former store operated by the Carter family, the apartment and the century-old railroad depot that served as Carter's 1976 campaign headquarters.

The Park Service already owns the depot and the high school, but is still negotiating a purchase of the boyhood home and store. The Carters have donated their home, but will continue to live in it.

From photographs and sketches, Westberg and three others will prepare detailed ink drawings of the five buildings for the National Archives. The Carter home was not included in the building survey.

"It takes a lot of care," said Dana Peak, as she inked a cornice of Carter's high school.

Ms. Peak, a June graduate of the University of California at Davis, said there's a strong feeling of community life in the Sumter County town of 650 residents.

"The people have been friendly and supportive," said Ms. Peak, a native of the San Francisco suburb of Orinda.

Architect Jason Breyer, 25, of Fargo, N.D., said he likes the historical nature of the project.

"The people are very enthusiastic about the Jimmy Carter Historic Site," he said.

Dale Waldron, 21, of Preston, Conn., said he welcomed an opportunity to meet the former president.

"I found him very open," observed Waldron, a student at the Rhode Island School of Design. "He's very visible. He goes to a lot of meetings."

The fifth member of the team, historian Elizabeth Barthold of Crofton, Md., spends her time interviewing residents of Plains and wading

Veteran Searches For Buddies

By William A. Shires
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Robert H. Franke, an academic official who helps faculty at East Carolina University win millions of dollars in grants and awards to fund research and special projects, has a pet research project of his own.

Paid for out of his own pocket and conducted on his own time, away from his office as director of the Office of Sponsored Programs (OSP), Franke is trying to locate nearly 90 far-flung and long-lost Army buddies.

They were in an outfit blooded in the Battle of the Bulge just before Christmas in 1944 and which went on to help liberate the encircled city of Bastogne as the Nazis' Fortress Europa cracked and fell.

Most of them are men Franke hasn't seen or heard from in nearly 45 years.

An outcome of his project could be a reunion someday of survivors of the battalion in which Franke served as U.S. armies rolled across France, Belgium, Luxembourg and into Germany itself in the bitter fighting of 1944-45.

So far, Franke has found and communicated with 29 of the veterans and he knows the whereabouts of five or six more.

"They're all over the country, literally," he says. "By the way, two of them on my mailing list are millionaires today. Maybe more."

His search "is strictly on my own," Franke says. "It's a hobby of mine."

A youth who grew up "out in the country" from the village of Coon River, Minn., Franke enlisted for military service right out of high school in 1943.

"It was sort of a family tradition and it was natural for me," he says. "Besides there was a war going on."

At age 19, he was headed for the European Theatre of Operations (ETO) as a buck private, 776th Field Artillery. "I didn't know much of anything," he says. But he came through as a staff sergeant in a howitzer battery that won a unit commendation from Gen. George C. Patton's old Fourth Armored Division.

Franke himself spent 25 years in military service, choosing to reenlist as a specialist in the Army's counter-intelligence unit after the war. He studied the Russian language and picked up two undergraduate degrees in extension programs of the University of Maryland.

In 1949, he was assigned to the Army's foreign languages school at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and while serving in North Carolina, met his future wife, the former Annie May of Winterville, N.C., on a blind date.

They have five children, all ECU graduates and scattered from Florida to Texas and California. The Frankes now live in a house that was once a rural schoolhouse, out in the country from Winterville. The house was built by moving and remodeling the old school, a task undertaken by Annie Franke's family, descendants of Revolutionary War officer Benjamin May.

Numbers Don't Matter To 'Two Nice Girls' Trio

By Hillel Italie

Kathy Korniloff, left, Laurie Freelove and Gretchen Phillips, Nice Girls band members

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Four years ago in Austin, Texas, Laurie Freelove had a plan: She wanted to meet Gretchen Phillips, whose music she liked, and start a band with her.

Around that same time, Phillips was mourning the demise of her previous group, Meat Joy, and longed to start another one. She and Freelove met and were soon playing guitar together at coffee houses. They performed Monkees songs, rock 'n' roll, old movie tunes as well as their own material.

They called themselves Two Nice Girls.

A few months later, Freelove and Phillips met Kathy Korniloff and were so pleased with how their voices and guitars sounded together they decided to add her to the group.

The name? Two Nice Girls.

"That was my idea," Phillips explained. "It beat the hell of out of The Jackson Five. Some friends of mine were in a band called Five Happy Guys. One of them left so they changed the name to The Happiness Crew. We were called Two Nice Girls and hired somebody else, but I didn't want to change the name."

They are a major part of a lively Austin music scene that has attracted the attention of critics around the country. All three Nice Girls, however, grew up elsewhere.

Phillips attended Houston's High School for the Performing Arts and headed to Austin after graduating.

"My first song was a duet that I wrote for my sister and I," she recalled. "We would take baths together and it would take forever. The song went, '102, 00 00 00 . . . 107, 111.' That was it. Then we would take the washcloth and suck the water out of it. I had no idea what it was about."

Freelove grew up in Alexandria, Va., and went to a Catholic girls' high school outside of Rome.

"I've been writing songs since I was this high," Freelove said. "I used to have to vacuum and clean the house and I used to make up songs. I have tapes of almost everything I've done. I've got gobs of tapes of when I was a little guy. I was a much better songwriter when I was 13."

Korniloff, the daughter of violinists, lived in The Netherlands and Scarsdale, N.Y.

"My first song was a very, very sad love song about a boy who was supposed to be my boyfriend who I caught with another girl. I was so devastated. I went upstairs to the attic of my house with my little guitar and played my heart out."

Their debut album, "2 Nice Girls," features original songs from all three and a unique overlapping of Lou (See BAND, C3)

Doctor Says To Make Living Wills Specific

By Brenda C. Coleman
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — More people might use living wills to avoid futile medical treatment if the documents set down specific guidelines for care rather than rejecting vague "heroic measures" to maintain life, two doctors say.

Only 9 percent of Americans have living wills, although the wills are recognized legally in more than 75 percent of the states, the doctors noted recently in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

People can use living wills to instruct doctors and families that they do not want to be kept alive indefinitely by mechanical means, such as respirators, if they become ill or injured with no hope of recovery.

Samples of living wills "are apparently not reaching physicians' offices or hospitals," write the doctors, Linda L. Emanuel of Massachusetts General Hospital and Ezekiel J. Emanuel of Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

They recommend a document that outlines "right-to-die dilemmas and appropriate treatments."

The doctors say that living wills tend to be written in vague terms, such as instructions to stop care when "there is no reasonable expectation ... of recovery" or when such care constitutes "heroic measures."

People who sign living wills often do so without discussion with their doctors, leaving them ignorant of their wishes, the authors say.

Many choose to give all decision-making authority to a relative, but the doctors cite surveys that show the relative often does not know what type of care the patient would want.

Such phrases "are open to multiple interpretations on when to act and on what interventions the patient would desire," say the doctors.

In the article, the doctors propose a document that would clarify what treatments the patient thinks acceptable in four situations:

— A coma "with no known hope" of regaining awareness.

— A coma with a "small likelihood" of recovering fully, a "slightly larger likelihood" of recovering with brain damage, and a "much larger likelihood" of dying.

— Irreversible brain damage or disease, accompanied by a terminal illness.

— Irreversible brain damage or disease that makes speaking or recognizing people impossible but is not accompanied by terminal illness.

The form would not eliminate all medical or legal uncertainty, but it would "provide a tangible expression of the patient's wishes," the doctors say.

Dumb Questions, Smart Answers

Editor's note: Abby is off on a two-week vacation, but she left behind some of her favorite letters taken from her best-selling book, "The Best of Dear Abby."

Dear Abby: How can parents get rid of a fat 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.

Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio, doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter and urging her little brother to hang himself is all she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.

Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, and she fiercely resents not being an only child.

The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't find anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires and we're fed up with ... Feeding An Elephant

Dear Abby

Dear Feeding: See another doctor! This time find a competent psychiatrist or psychologist. You certainly have enough clues to conclude that the girl has serious emotional problems. She desperately needs help in getting her head together. And the cost will be "peanuts" compared with feeding an elephant.

Dear Abby: I am writing to thank you for saving my life.

In December 1973 I weighed 326 pounds. If my high blood pressure or heart trouble wouldn't have eventually killed me, I'd have done it myself. I lived with loneliness, depression and despair.

I was a heroin addict and a 23-year-old divorced mother of three on welfare. I hated myself enough to prostitute my body to get money for dope. I suffered humiliation after humiliation. (A 300-pound prostitute gets all the sadists and perverts no other hooker will take.) I had no self-respect, no hope, no God -- no nothing.

I wrote to you, never expecting an answer. Your letter was the first word of encouragement I had had in years. You advised me to go to Overeaters Anonymous. I took your advice and went to a meeting in June of '74. I believed none of it. "These people are crazy," I thought. "I'm a fat, ugly junkie, and they're telling me I can get thin and regain my self-respect if I want to!"

"No way," I told them right out loud. No one threw me out. A beautiful, middle-aged man put his arm around my shoulder and said, "Come back and listen. Try us for 30 days. What can you lose?"

I didn't believe him, but I went back, and back, and back.

Today I've lost 121 pounds, and I'm still losing. I'm drug-free, and I'm learning to like myself. I have a responsible job, a belief in a power greater than myself, and the love and respect of my children and people who believed in me when I didn't believe in myself.

There is no scale at O.A. They don't shame you if you backslide. They are a group of loving, caring, supportive people who are there to help you because they have been helped themselves.

After sinking so low, O.A. gave me a chance to be what I've always wanted to be: a lady.

Thank you for sending me there. — "Born Again" In Connecticut

Dear Born Again: You owe me no thanks. I merely threw you a lifeline. You caught it.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Fat Daughter Feeds On Anger

The other night I climbed into bed and had just closed my eyes when my husband asked, "Is my light going to bother you?"

Every night of our married life he has asked this question, and every night of our married life I have replied, "Not unless I plan on sleeping." It's not important that I sleep with No. 30 sunblock on my eyelids. What is important here is that somewhere between civility and habit, we know the answers to most questions before we ask them.

My kids always like to remind me that when they were growing up, one of my favorite banalities was, "Are you going to go through life with a finger up your nose?" As my daughter points out, "Not only was it a stupid question, but you stood there insisting on an answer, like we had to think about it."

Why do we do it? Why do I stand in the emergency ward of a hospital and ask, "Would you take a personal check?" Get real! They'd take my car in trade if they thought I couldn't pay the bill any other way.

At Wits End

Waiters who stand at your table and ask, "Could I tempt you with dessert this evening?" know the answer before they ask the question. But first, they have to wait until everyone at the table looks at everyone else with just the right amount of hesitation before someone whines, "Why don't you bring us a whole cake and four forks ... just to taste."

"You don't really want to see our home movies, do you?" is another given. I don't know why people ask it. Nor can I figure out the speaker who asks, "Will you forgive me for digressing for a moment?"

Especially if he is digressing at an hour when you should be undressing and going to bed!

Everyone is guilty at one time or another of throwing out questions that beg to be ignored, but mothers seem to have a market on the supply. "Do you want a spanking or do you want to go to bed?" "Are you going to let a little dog like that scare you?" "Do you want Mommy to go away and never come back?" "Don't you want to save some of the pizza for your brother?" "Didn't anyone see the dog scratching on the door to get out?" "Wasn't there any change?"

It's possible we live in hope that someone, someday, will give us the answer we want to hear. Then it's possible we just love to hear ourselves talk. You know what I'm saying?

Gerald Smith tunes a grand piano as others wait in line behind him

Blind Man Tunes Pianos Using Touch And Sound

By Mark Humphrey
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Gerald Smith has never seen a piano, though he has made his living seated at one for 41 years, running his fingers over the strings as well as the keys.

Blind since birth, Smith began tuning pianos in 1948. He learned his trade at the Tennessee School for the Blind in Nashville.

"I found out I was going to have to make a living some way or another," Smith said. "They taught you how to make brooms and they taught you chair caning. I didn't think I could do either one of them too good."

While playing the alto horn in the school band, Smith found piano tuning more to his liking.

"In the band, you have to tune up, and I found out I could do that pretty good," said the native of Jamestown, Ala. "I had a pretty good ear."

Smith's good ear and sensitive fingers have tuned keyboards for the likes of Floyd Cramer, Ronnie Milsap, Johnny Cash and the Nashville Symphony, as well as thousands of customers for the two dealers he's worked for.

The 62-year-old tuner is now semi-retired, spending three days a week sharpening the sounds from uprights and grands. It takes him about an hour to tune a piano.

He makes his way easily among the instruments in a showroom, identifying the make and model with a touch of his hand.

"When you tune a piano, it's just like being acquainted with someone. The more you're around them, the better you know them. It's just like an old friend," he said.

Four decades in the tuning business has taught Smith that each piano has a story behind it, as well. He can tell a lot about the people who play them, even without meeting them.

"If you see dust on the keys up on this end and down on the lower end, you know they haven't touched those keys in years, which indicates they play little, simple songs," he said.

"If I sit down at a piano, run my fingers over the keys, I can tell whether it's been tuned very often. I can tell if it needs rebuilding or overhauling by the way the mechanical part feels."

Smith said his blindness has never caused disharmony with a customer.

"I've never had anybody tell me, 'Well, you're blind. I don't think you can see to do the job good.'"

"But you'd be surprised how stupid people are," he said, laughing. "They know I'm blind when I go in the door. I sit down and start tuning the piano, and they ask me if I need the light turned on."

He says he just tells them "no" and goes on working — touching, listening, running his hands along the 88 familiar keys.

"It's just like an old friend."

Band's Members Don't Add Up

Reed's "Sweet Jane" and Joan Armatrading's "Love and Affection." The version on "2 Nice Girls" was a live performance on an Austin public radio station.

"We went on for an hour-long program called 'Live Set,'" Korniloff said. "Our friends were all invited to be in the studio and lend that live clapping air to the show."

"We tried a couple of times to record the song in the studio, but we could never recapture vocally what we did that one time. As it turned out, the station still had the master copy on two-track which they let us use. They said, 'It's your performance; we only have the tape.'"

The melodies and sweet harmonies make Two Nice Girls easy to listen to, but "My Heart Crawls Off," written by Phillips and Sara Hickman, is a bitter song about jealousy.

"That's the power of being a songwriter," Phillips said. "I just wrote this horrible song about (President) Bush that's got a really lovely melody. If I just made another punk anthem called 'I Hate You,' it wouldn't be really effective."

Freelove wrote "Money," a long way from the Motown hit of the same title that proclaimed, "The best things in life are free, but you can keep it for the bird and bees." Instead, Freelove warns against being "a slave to money."

"It's about money and obsession and the ways it rums you out," Freelove said. "Money keeps many of us protected from distressing things, disturbing things. People who have money can shield themselves from observing the homeless."

Their sound recalls The Roches and Indigo Girls. But what could have influenced Phillips' "I Spent my Last Ten Dollars (on Birth Control and Beer)" or "The Holland Song," in which Korniloff sings, "The Dutch are too much"?

UK Sets Program For Family Doctors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Medical students at the University of Kentucky will combine the fourth year of school with the first year of residency under a pilot program aimed at producing more family practitioners for the state.

"We need them badly," said Dr. Nicholas J. Pisacano, executive director of the American Board of Family Practice, which approved the program that cuts training from seven years to six. "Several schools and some of the top medical educators in the country are watching it carefully."

"The program has the portent of revolutionizing medical education in the United States. If not, we'll document its failure."

Walking Best For Seniors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Walking may be the best all around exercise for seniors, says one sports medicine specialist.

"We often advise a regimen of low-impact conditioning, such as that afforded by walking," says Dr. Ann Ward of the University of Massachusetts Medical School's Department of exercise physiology.

Advantages include overall toning and cardiovascular development, with little risk of injury.

Vet Looks For Buddies

The Frankes moved to Winterville when he returned from the Army and began "building a new life" which included master's degrees in political science and in educational administration and supervision at East Carolina. "My new life focused on ECU," Franke said.

He became involved in the university's international programs while on a graduate fellowship and in 1974 was hired as assistant director of Sponsored Programs. He became director of OSP in 1979. Last year, OSP assisted in obtaining outside funding for research and service projects exceeding $12 million.

A total of 438 faculty proposals were submitted through OSP to fund-ding agencies and 285 were funded.

OSP is attached to the office of the associate vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate school. "Basically, my job involves making the faculty aware of the (funding) opportunities and helping prepare the proposals. East Carolina can easily continue to advance in the areas of research and public service projects," he said.

As for his own pet project, Franke began his quest for old Army buddies with a yellowed list of names and addresses "that somebody in the outfit" put together in 1945, the year World War II ended.

"It was," he says, "a long time ago."

Plains' History Drawn

through real estate records at the Sumter County Courthouse in Americus.

"People here are really proud of Plains and they want to share," she said. "They feel it is special and they're interested in having it recorded."

Ms. Barthold is preparing reports on 23 historic buildings in Plains, including the five that are slated to become a part of the National Historic Site. She is also studying a pond house that belonged to Miss Lillian, the president's mother, a former hospital where Carter was born and a service station made famous by the president's late brother, Billy Carter.

"At first I was so amazed that Jimmy Carter, president of the United States, came from here," she said. "But the Carters are just incredible people."

Ms. Barthold, who has a degree in art history, said she was impressed by the functional design of the old homes in Plains.

They sit on brick pillars for ventilation and protection from moisture. Many have high steep roofs, high ceilings and hallways running through their entire length for more efficient cooling on hot summer days.

Westberg said the high school is typical of hundreds of schools built during the 1920s with a central entrance, wings on each side and an auditorium in the back.

"It's disintegrating fast," he said.

"Water has gotten into the outside walls and it's rotting the floor and ceiling away."

The Park Service is operating a museum in the depot and has earmarked $200,000 to preserve the high school. About 4,000 tourists visit the town each month, just a fraction of the multitudes who flocked to the community during the Carter presidency.

Westberg and the others will remain in Plains through Sept. 15. All their work, including rough sketches, ink drawings and reports, will become a part of the official history of Plains, maintained by the National Archives.

"The drawings may be scrutinized by a lot of people," he said. "It's very important that they be accurate."

TURN AROUND SPECIALISTS

NEW YORK (AP) — A number of firms faced with financial problems are calling upon turn around specialists to solve their problems.

They do so by tightening budgets, eliminating non-profitable products or divisions and closing obsolete factories, says John A. Thompson, president of Interim Management Corp., which supplies temporary executives to industry.

Thompson says troubled firms are using the executives because "the need for experienced hands-on managers who can move quickly, take charge, enhance cash flow and help keep the operation under control is critical."

North rebid his six-card diamond suit just in case South had a hole somewhere. Since the ace of diamonds looked like an excellent card for no trump purposes and all the unbid suits were securely stopped, South insisted on the nine-trick game.
 West led the five of hearts and declarer did not think there was anything to worry about. He took the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of diamonds and continued with a diamond to the king. West's eight of spades discard was a mortal blow. There was no way declarer could come to nine tricks without letting the enemy gain the lead to cash their hearts.
 Declarer fouled up his entries. There were two suits that could produce the necessary tricks. If the diamonds did not run, a winning club finesse might allow declarer to bring in that suit. There was nothing wrong with taking the ace of hearts at trick one. At trick two, however, declarer should have led a diamond to the king and then a diamond back to the ace. If the suit breaks, the king of clubs in dummy is an entry to cash the rest of the diamonds.

 However, when West shows out on the second diamond, declarer is in the right place to change horses. After a club to the jack wins, it needs only a 3-2 club break for de-

Y&R Actress Saw Storyline As A Service To Her Viewers

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Actress Lauralee Bell visited rape treatment centers and talked to counselors before starting a summer-long story about date rape on the CBS daytime serial "The Young and the Restless."

The story followed the rape of her character, fashion model Cricket Blair, by her boyfriend played by Ken Olandt, and his subsequent trial.

"We've just finished the trial and the jury was about to turn him loose when my brother found another girl he had raped on a college campus," said Bell, 20. "The judge allowed us to bring in the new witness. I just got a script where I tell the college officials that if they'd listened to her I wouldn't have been raped."

The trial ended last week with his conviction on a charge of rape.

Bell went to the Los Angeles Commission on Violence Against Women and treatment centers, where she talked to rape victims and counselors.

"This is a good story to do in the summer when a lot of students are home," said Bell. "The people I talked to said the incidence of date rape on college campuses is going up and up. I was just on a personal appearance in Oklahoma where two women told me they had friends who reported rapes after seeing our show."

She said the boyfriend in the show gave little indication that he would attack her.

"He was the handsome All-American boy," she said. "He was always looking after me. You'd never suspect. The only sign was that he was a touchy-feely kind of person."

"We've stressed that you should learn about a person. And when you go on a date set your limits right away. We've tried to make it realistic so girls will know what to expect if it should happen to them."

"The Young and the Restless," the top-rated daytime soap opera, does a major story aimed at young people every summer. In past years they've done stories on alcoholism, teen-age pregnancy and AIDS.

Bell has gone through a lot of trauma in her time on "The Young and the Restless." Her character's mother has AIDS and earlier this year she learned her fiancé is actually her brother and his father is actually her father.

Bell, whose own father is the boss of the top-rated soap opera, has been with the show full time for the past two years. She made her first appearance at 9 and at 13 began making regular appearances as Cricket whenever she had time off from school.

"The audience liked it because they'd never seen someone so young grow up on a show before," said Bell. "I became a teen model for the cosmetics company that's the focus of the show. The children of viewers could watch me and get tips on makeup. The message was don't overdo your makeup, but I didn't buy that myself. I went through the makeup phase, too."

Her father is William J. Bell, who is executive producer and co-creator with her mother, Lee Phillip Bell. They're also the creators of CBS's "The Bold and the Beautiful." One brother, Bradley, is a writer for "The Bold and the Beautiful." Another brother, Billy, is in charge of finances for both shows.

Lauralee still lives at home with her parents. In fact, all of the family lives in a large compound in the Hollywood Hills. The Bells moved here only a few years ago after writing and producing the show from Chicago.

Jazz Musician Takes His Music Seriously

By Mary Campbell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Australian jazz instrumentalist James Morrison takes music seriously — and he has fun with it.

He recounts that at his big band's first concert, in 1983, the band started playing and two ropes suddenly appeared, hanging from above the stage.

"My brother, John, came sliding down a rope onto his drum kit," says Morrison. "I had my trumpet with me. Halfway down I started playing. I cued the band by dropping onto the stage."

"You want an audience hearing jazz to wonder what will happen next, to have an air of expectation. If that's what the music is supposed to do, why should the players be like accountants?"

Idea like that one first came, Morrison says, "from watching movies with the Duke Ellington Orchestra. All sorts of things were going on. A phrase comes into my mind: Jazz need not be just a sound. It's an atmosphere."

Morrison, 26, is now a star in Australia, often on talk shows. This year, in America, Atlantic released "Postcards From Down Under" and distributed "Swiss Encounter," a live quartet set with pianist Adam Makowicz at last year's Montreux Jazz Festival.

Continuing about atmosphere, Morrison says: "In a jazz club, a basement, smoky, dark, a guy comes out in a zoot suit and it's jazz already, when there hasn't been a sound yet."

"I got on to the top laser people. Everyone thinks they just shoot beams around the place. I discovered they can do animation; they don't need a screen. The figures can dance in time with what we play. We don't want to play to a click track. Used sparingly, this will enhance what is going on."

"My main concern is the music, making sure that if someone pulls the plug on the power, it would still stand on its own and be great jazz."

Morrison's band plays a variety of jazz styles. He plays trumpet, trombone, tuba, euphonium and saxophone. "This is the kind of guy I am," he says. "Being 'sensible' would not be being me. Faking a front is the one thing a jazz musician can't do."

He recalls a night in 1969, when he was 6, on which he and his 8-year-old brother set the backyard on fire with rockets and a tea chest, trying to shoot his brother to the moon. "My dad had to hose down the whole thing. He told John he should have known better. John said he'd told me we didn't have enough skyrockets."

"When we started to play music, we just took that into it."

NBC Reunites Bradford Clan

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

The clan from "Eight Is Enough" will reprise their roles in the NBC movie "An Eight Is Enough Wedding," scheduled to air Oct. 15. When David (Grant Goodeve) announces plans to remarry, the divided wedding party includes Dick Van Patten, Willie Aames, Dianne Kay, Connie Needham, Lani O'Grady, Adam Rich, Susan Richardson and Laurie Walters.

Keshia Knight Pulliam of "The Cosby Show" and Michael Gross, formerly of "Family Ties," will be featured in NBC's version of the Mark Twain classic "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." Pulliam stars as Karen, a young girl who falls off her horse and mysteriously finds herself in the legendary town of Camelot. Jean Marsh, Emma Samms, Whip Hubley and Rene Auberjonois co-star.

Hagerty Makes Friends With Characters

By Hillel Italie
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Julie Hagerty's favorite part of the room is by the window: She likes to look outside, pick out people walking along the streets and imagine their life stories.

That's what Hagerty ("Airplane," "Lost in America") loves about acting — making friends with a character and filling in details, conveying an entire person in the space of two hours.

For her new film, "Rude Awakening," Hagerty demonstrates how someone can change from 1969 to 1989. She stars as Petra, a flower child who evolves into a ruthless New York fashion designer.

"I had never played anyone quite like she is in the '80s, sort of icy and cold," said Hagerty, whose screen persona is usually closer to the gentle, befuddled women portrayed by her hero, the late comedian-actress Judy Holiday.

"That sort of attracted me. It was fun to try somebody like that, moving ahead 20 years and seeing where she wound up. But in the end she got sweet again," Hagerty said.

How convincing was Hagerty playing mean? Just ask the parents of her sister-in-law, who picked an unfortunate time to watch the actress at work.

"They were visiting from England," she recalled. "I had never met them so they came to the set one day. It was horrible, we did one take and I'm just yelling. Then I walk over to them and say, 'Hi, I'm Julie.'

"They were completely shocked. They were worried for my sister-in-law. Then we went out to dinner and it was fine. But at first they were just stunned."

Such incidents Hagerty says prove how many dimensions there are to an individual. Her own story begins in Cincinnati. She was a shy girl, concealing her fascination with make-believe and a vivid imagination — perfect qualities for acting.

When she was 17, Hagerty came to New York to model, and began working with the Production Company, an Off-Broadway theater founded by her brother and some college friends. While rehearsing for the John Guare play, "The House of Blue Leaves," she auditioned for the David Zucker-Jim Abrahams-Jerry Zucker production of "Airplane" and landed a part in the wacky 1980 comedy.

"I think it's wonderful if you can make somebody smile," Hagerty said. "When you do comedy, you don't look at it like a comedy. You're playing a scene with the same heart as you do anything else. Not like, 'Here comes the joke.'

"Airplane" was from the heart. If I didn't play it from the heart, because there's a person in a situation, it's not for real and it lacks something. It's got to be real."

She then appeared in Woody Allen's "A Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy" and "Airplane II." In "Lost in America," she plays Albert Brooks' sweet-tempered wife who suddenly comes unglued in a Las Vegas casino, gambling away the entire family nest egg.

Hagerty was an admirer of the comedian and filmmaker and jumped at the chance to work with him.

"He's one of the funniest guys on the whole planet," Hagerty said of Brooks, who later earned an Academy Award nomination for supporting actor for "Broadcast News."

"You have to stop breathing," she said. "He'll knock over a whole room with laughter and he'll leave. You're sad he leaves the room, but you're happy to catch your breath."

"Rude Awakening" also stars Eric Roberts as Hagerty's hippie boyfriend who goes underground in 1969 to avoid the Vietnam War and re-emerges 20 years later, hair and ideals intact.

ALLEGRA BURGESS GROSS, EXECUTRIX OF THE ESTATE OF NANNIE B. HYMAN PARKER, DECEASED
JOSEPHINE COUNCIL ROBERTS, ET AL.
To: All unknown heirs of Josephine Council Roberts, deceased, and her spouses, if any.
Take notice that a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed on the 13th day of June, 1989, in the above entitled action. The nature of the relief being sought is as follows:
An action to sell land for the purpose of making assets for the Estate of Nannie B. Hyman Parker, deceased, said land being fully described in the Petition and identified as follows: Being all of Lot 14, in Block B of the Mountain Park Subdivision, Map Book 8, Page 4, PIH County Registry.
You are required to make defense to such pleading not later than October 10, 1989, and upon your failure to do so, the parties seeking relief against you will apply to the Court for the relief sought.
This the 28th day of August, 1989.
William I. Wooten, Jr., Attorney for Plaintiff, P.O. Box 451, Greenville, N.C. 27835-0451, telephone: (919) 758-2111, August 31, September 7, 14, 1989.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION
New East Bancorp intends to apply to the Federal Reserve Board for permission to acquire a bank. We intend to acquire control of New East Bank of Greenville (Proposed) to be located in Greenville, North Carolina. The Federal Reserve considers a number of factors in deciding whether to approve the application, including the record of performance of banks we own in helping to meet local credit needs.
You are invited to submit comments in writing on this application to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, P.O. Box 27622, Richmond, Virginia 23261. The comment period will not end before Sept. 26, 1989 and may be somewhat longer. The Board's procedures for processing applications may be found at 12 C.F.R. 262 (as revised, 49 Federal Register 5603 (February 14, 1984)). Procedures for processing protested applications may be found at 12 C.F.R. 262.25 (1984). To obtain a copy of the Board's procedures or if you need more information about how to submit your comments on the application, contact the Community Affairs Officer at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Mr. James F. Tucker, Senior Vice President, at (804) 697-8142. The Federal Reserve will consider your comments and any request for a public meeting or formal hearing on the application if they are received by the Reserve Bank on or before the last date of the comment period, August 24, 31, 1989.

We intend to acquire control of New East Bank of Greenville (Proposed) to be located in Greenville, North Carolina. The Federal Reserve considers a number of factors in deciding whether to approve the application, including the record of performance of banks we own in helping to meet local credit needs.
You are invited to submit comments in writing on this application to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, P.O. Box 27622, Richmond, Virginia 23261. The comment period will not end before Sept. 26, 1989 and may be somewhat longer. The Board's procedures for processing applications may be found at 12 C.F.R. 262 (as revised, 49 Federal Register 5603 (February 14, 1984)). Procedures for processing protested applications may be found at 12 C.F.R. 262.25 (1984). To obtain a copy of the Board's procedures or if you need more information about how to submit your comments on the application, contact the Community Affairs Officer at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Mr. James F. Tucker, Senior Vice President, at (804) 697-8142. The Federal Reserve will consider your comments and any request for a public meeting or formal hearing on the application if they are received by the Reserve Bank on or before the last date of the comment period, August 24, 31, 1989.
