Gabrielle Skips Past Bermuda

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — A weakened Hurricane Gabrielle continued past Bermuda on a path of irrelevancy today in the same cool Atlantic waters where long-harmless Hurricane Felix was downgraded to a tropical storm.

Gabrielle's winds dropped from 135 mph to 110 mph as the center of the hurricane passed northward about 300 miles east of Bermuda late Thursday.

While little change in strength was predicted for Gabrielle today, forecasters expected Tropical Storm Felix to turn toward the northwest and become engulfed in the larger Gabrielle system.

"The winds won't change much until it reaches cooler waters," said Bob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center.

Thursday, residents in Bermuda reported swells of 10 feet in the harbors, and the island's eastern tip reported swells of 15 to 20 feet.

Cruise ships berthed in Hamilton, Bermuda's capital, had been advised Wednesday to sail for the comparative safety of open waters rather than get trapped in confined harbors.

The high seas, and winds of 30 to 35 mph, prevented any seagoing traffic around the island Thursday and prompted residents to buy emergency supplies in the island's shops.

But Gabrielle, Bermuda's second hurricane of the 1989 season and the third in less than two years, largely bypassed the island, according to forecasters at the hurricane center.

Meanwhile, strong winds stretched more than 1,000 miles from Gabrielle's center, reaching the U.S. East Coast.

"A ship 60 miles off the coast of Long Island reported seeing 12- to 15-foot seas," Sheets said. High seas also were reported off the coast of North Carolina.

Early today Hurricane Gabrielle was centered near 32.6 degrees north latitude and 59.6 degrees west longitude, or 310 miles east of Bermuda. It was traveling north at nearly 17 mph.

Felix was downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical storm earlier Thursday as it continued to weaken. The tropical storm posed no threat to land as it traveled northward at 7 mph with winds of 60 mph.

Felix early today was located near 41.0 degrees north latitude and 48.5 degrees west longitude, or about 450 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, in Canada.

Gabrielle was the seventh named storm of the 1989 Atlantic hurricane season. Storms are named when maximum sustained winds reach 39 mph, and are classified as hurricanes at 74 mph.

ECU Students Blame Officials For Va. Violence

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University students who attended last weekend's Greekfest in Virginia Beach say they believe officials in the resort city deserve most of the blame for the event's violent outcome.

Yvette Alston and Shari Edwards said Virginia Beach police were looking for an excuse to crack down on the festival because most of the students involved are black.

Ms. Alston and Ms. Edwards are members of the ECU chapter of Delta Sigma Theta sorority who attended the annual Labor Day weekend gathering of mostly-black fraternity and sorority members.

As many as 100,000 people crowded the streets Saturday night when police officers and National Guard troops moved in to clear them after widespread looting and violence caused millions of dollars in damage to local businesses.

"This is the most devastating thing to ever happen to our resort city," Virginia Beach Mayor Meyera E. Oberndorf said in a statement released this week.

The ECU sorority members said they were out on Atlantic Avenue, the main thoroughfare in the resort area, when the police began to clear the street. Up to that time, they said, there was no warning of any trouble.

"There was nothing going on," Ms. Edwards said. "All of a sudden you see helicopters overhead with lights. Policemen were telling everybody to get off the streets."

Police and National Guard troops blocked off the streets in the area and started forcing people back with their nightsticks, the students said. Many people were being arrested, some for no apparent reason, they said.

Ms. Edwards and Ms. Alston both said they had not heard any warning of potential trouble before they went to Virginia Beach. Except for extra police patrols on the street, they said, there was no indication of trouble Saturday night.

They said they did not learn of the violence and looting until after they returned to Greenville, they said.

Bea Herring, another ECU student who was in Virginia Beach the weekend before Greekfest, said people there were expecting trouble. "Everybody was talking about it," she said.

Like Ms. Alston and Ms. Edwards, Ms. Herring said she was out with some friends on Atlantic Avenue on Saturday night. She said she did not see any looting or rioting, but there was tension on the street between police and the crowd, and people were starting to get out of hand. "I basically saw a lot of maniacs," she said. She and her friends left the area shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday, she said.

The next morning, Ms. Herring and her friends returned to the avenue and saw the broken windows and looted businesses. National Guard troops and police patrolled the streets. "I've never experienced anything like this," she said. "It was like a takeover."

The violence occurred because police were looking for trouble, Ms. Edwards charged. "They initiated it," she said. "The only thing they didn't have was the hoses and the dogs."

City officials overreacted because the students were black, she said. "It's like black people can't have a gathering without expecting that to happen."

"I felt like we weren't welcome," Ms. Alston said. "I felt like they were just paranoid."

Ms. Alston said black fraternity and sorority members are too proud of their organizations to discredit them with the kind of disorderly or violent behavior they were accused of inciting in Virginia Beach last weekend.

"I don't want the black Greeks to get a bad name," she said. "As proud as I am of my sorority, I don't want to make my sorority look bad — ever."

Despite the trouble, both students said they would return next year if the festival is held. "I have a feeling they're going to try to make some kind of way for us not to go there next year," Ms. Edwards said. She doesn't believe that's fair. "It's a public place," she said. "It's like saying that I can't go to a certain school because I'm black."

A-G Senior Is Collard Queen

AYDEN — The Ayden Collard Festival, with the major portion of its activities set for this weekend, is well under way, according to Laura Webb, chairwoman.

"I think this year we have something for everyone," Ms. Webb said.

She said she has taken a break from cooking collard oddities like cakes and pies to chair this year's festival. "It's going to be a lovely weekend," she said. "(Hurricane) Gabrielle even cooperated and went out to sea."

Terri Craft, a senior at Ayden-Grifton High School, was crowned as the new Collard Festival queen Thursday.

The new queen will be a major part of the annual parade on Saturday. She will be surrounded by her court — the nine other contestants in this year's competition. Her first runner-up is Jennifer Drye; her second runner-up, Scotti Garris. Tonya Dennis was designated Miss Congeniality and Miss Craft won the talent competition with a vocal rendition of "Through The Eyes of Love."

Allan Hoffman, WNCT's news anchorman, will be the parade grand marshal. The Vietnam Veterans of America will supply an honor guard.

Square dancing will be held beginning at 7 p.m. tonight, and will evolve into a street dance which will last until midnight. The band Runner will play.

Collard cooking starts at 1:15 p.m. Saturday, with collard eating competition set to get under way at 2 p.m. The Buck Swamp Kicking Cloggers and Jerry Jolly and Steve Creech will entertain from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A shagging exhibition will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday. A street dance lasting until midnight will feature the band Breeze.

Police Challenge Death Report

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The law and order minister accused anti-apartheid leaders today of lying when they blamed police for more than 20 deaths during anti-election protests.

Activists stuck by their claims and demanded the minister's ouster.

The Rev. Allan Boesak and other activists said at a news conference that they knew of 29 people killed in the Cape Town area in election-related violence Wednesday night.

"The evidence points to the fact that the violence in all these areas was instigated by police," said

Boesak, who called for the dismissal of Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok.

Vlok said in a statement that Boesak and Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu were trying to capitalize politically on the extensive violence that occurred this week in mixed-race townships near Cape Town.

Vlok also claimed 26 policemen were injured in unrest late Wednesday and early Thursday following elections for the white, mixed-race and Indian chambers of Parliament.

Blacks are excluded from Parliament, and militant leaders of all races urged a boycott of the elections for the two non-white chambers.

Vlok expressed his "deepest condemnation about the lies and the manner in which the two church leaders have attempted to make political gains from the unrest."

Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, said Thursday that acting President F.W. de Klerk "now sits in a pool of blood" because police had opened fire on anti-election protesters.

According to Vlok, police are aware of 15 unrest deaths in the Cape Town area Wednesday night, 10 of them attributed to black-

Forestry Pilot Survives Crash

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW BERN, N.C. — A state Wildlife Resources Commission airplane crashed while trying to land at Craven Regional Airport, but the pilot walked away with minor injuries, officials said.

Lt. Joseph M. Newman of Kinston, sustained very minor injuries in the crash at 2:47 p.m. Thursday, said Ray Clifton Jr., airport manager.

The single-engine Piper PA-18 Super Cub, flipped on impact and was totaled in the crash.

"I wouldn't say it was pilot error, and we don't know yet the mechanics of what happened. We're going back today to further examine the plane," Capt. Jerry Rich of the wildlife commission said Friday. He said the crash is under investigation.

The pilot was flying from Kinston to New Bern to pick up fellow officers for surveillance of baited dove hunting sites in the area, said Angie Hill, wildlife commission public information officer in Raleigh.

The accident has been classified an aircraft incident, said Rich, so the Federal Aviation Administration won't be investigating.

Newman was unavailable for comment Friday, but a family member said he was doing fine.

United Way Kicks Off Drive For $1.2 Million

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County United Way launched its 1989 campaign with a kickoff Thursday aimed at thanking the more than 500 volunteers who are participating in the organization's fund-raising activities.

The United Way volunteers gathered with campaign leaders in the Great Room at Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus to celebrate the occasion.

United Way Chairman John West to tell people what the United Way will do but what they will not be able to do.

The committee chairman said the meals on wheels program would receive reduced funding this year. "The hard part is deciding who doesn't get a meal," he said.

The United Way sent five children with sickle cell anemia to a camp this summer for kids with the disease, McCarley said. He said more than five children needed the service but the agency could only afford slightly more than $1,200 to send them.

Several people and businesses were recognized for their work on behalf of the United Way. Dick Edwards, United Way vice chairman, said that four companies have been named to the pacesetters division. They are Burroughs Wellcome, Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Eastern Radiology and Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. They are intended to be role models for the other business, he said.

The 14 loaned executives who established campaigns in other companies were also recognized for their contributions. West said they give at least eight hours each week for eight weeks.

Those in attendance watched an eight-minute film featuring Mike Steele, ECU head basketball coach, on the United Way's various programs.

Displays for some of the organizations the United Way supports were set up. Among them were the Pitt County Council on Aging, American Red Cross, the Association for Retarded Citizens and Parents Supporting Parent.

The United Way is planning to hold a "Victory Day" on Nov. 8 to celebrate reaching the campaign goal.

More Students Enroll In Evening Classes

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University today reported "significant gains" in non-traditional student enrollment and credit hours generated by its evening classes for adults and community college transfers.

Dr. Philip T. Rosen, director of ECU's Division of Continuing Education, said fall semester enrollment in the University College increased by 20 percent over the previous year and credit hours generated increased 35 percent.

Rosen cited recognition of the University College (evening classes) by non-traditional students, increased referral of adult students by the admissions office and increased availability of evening classes as major factors in the enrollment increase.

"Although part-time students constitute the majority of University College enrollments (58 percent), the number of students enrolling full-time is increasing," Rosen said.

He said a "maturing of the University College" and its identification as the contact point for non-traditional students and transfer of community college contract students to campus were factors in increasing full-time enrollment.

The University College enrollment increased from 614 students in the fall of last year to 737 students this fall and credit hours generation increased in all individual student categories above six credit hours.

An analysis by Marion Sykes, assistant director of the Division of Continuing Education, showed that women outnumbered men in the 1989 enrollment by 58 percent to 42 percent.

"This is consistent with national trends and patterns as women are returning to college in record numbers," Sykes said.

Sykes's analysis of the enrollment included three classifications: the University College classification which includes students admitted through provisions of the non-traditional student admission policy; non-degree classification which includes students enrolled for certification, personal interest or professional development and general college classification which includes non-traditional students who entered the university several years ago, interrupted their pursuit of a degree and are now returning to school. In the latter case, most are employed full time and attend in the evenings, Sykes said.

The fall semester count was 625 non-traditional students in University College, 40 non-degree students and 72 in the general college classification, he said.

Property Stolen

Investigators said five thefts, including a $1,200 video camcorder, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer L.C. Overby said the camcorder was taken from Todd's Stereo Center at 105 Trade St. in an incident reported at 11:50 a.m., while other officers said a bottle of "Power-up" energy pills valued at $9.99 was taken from The Pantry at 315 E. 10th St. in an incident reported at 12:35 a.m.

Officer R.C. Broadway said several pairs of shoes, a quantity of shoe polish and a number of shoe laces were taken from Saad's Shoe Repair at 113 Grande Ave. in a break-in reported at 7:52 a.m., while Officer J.E. Umphlet said a wheel cover was taken from a car at 1212 Charles Blvd. in an incident reported at 9:31 a.m.

According to Officer R.S. Sawyer, 212 in property was taken from a car parked at 225 Kings Arms Apartments in an incident reported at 9:37 p.m.

Rape Arrest Made

Greenville police have arrested Nathaniel Brown, 39, of Route 4, Greenville, on second degree rape charges.

Sgt. Doug Jackson said this morning that Brown was charged in connection with an incident that occurred in an alley between Cross and Center streets Saturday night.

Jackson said Brown surrendered himself to police early Wednesday night after seeing his picture on a Crime Stoppers promotion on television. The television spot, which said Brown was wanted in connection with the Saturday night rape, was broadcast by WNCT-TV in Greenville during the 6 p.m. news.

Five Medical Students Awarded Scholarships

Five East Carolina University medical students were recently awarded fellowships through the Brody Scholars program.

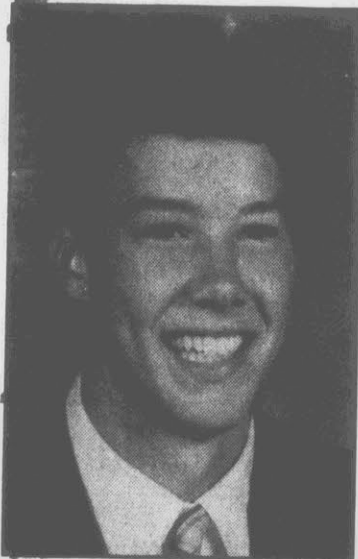

Thaddeus C. West III of La Grange was named the Brody Scholar for the class of 1993. He will receive the program's largest award, a scholarship of $7,500 per year.

West, a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, was a student at the UNC School of Dentistry prior to entering the ECU School of Medicine.

James D. Wiggins of Grifton received a fellowship valued at $2,000 per year. Wiggins is also a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill, where he received a bachelor's degree in biology.

William J. Eastman Jr. of Washington, N.C., Elizabeth L. Tripp of Murfreesboro and Candace S. Rowland of Kinston also received fellowships valued at $2,000 per year.

The Brody Scholar program was established in 1983 by the Brody family of Kinston and Greenville to provide awards for students who demonstrate outstanding academic performance and leadership skills.

Troubles Beneath Shimmering Water

In a few weeks, summer will ease to fall as noiselessly as a bulging orange sun slips into crisp blue water at the the close of day. For the Pamlico River and those who enjoy its bounty, autumn's approach marks the end of another season of recreation on a magnificent water resource.

Summer is the traditional time of leisure, when frolic and fun ease the pressures of the workaday world. For residents of land-locked Greenville, the Pamlico River, some 20 miles from the city, is a short summer commute away from the pressures of a growing urban landscape. Its water, views and breezes provide pleasure and inspiration for many during the hot, dusty summer. A day of recreation on its waters often ends with a seafood meal caught in those same waters — succulent crab and tasty fish.

But beneath the shimmering surface of the river lies a troubled waterway. The Pamlico's problems may not be readily visible to those who enjoyed it this year, but those problems are numerous and persistent.

Water quality has diminished sharply in the 1980s, and scientists who watch the Pamlico have documented this decline. Fish kills have increased steadily in both number and intensity. Disease has become prevalent in crabs and fish. Ulcerative micosis, a fungal disease, causes open sores on fishes' skin, sometimes as large as a quarter or a 50 cent piece. A disease that infects and eats away the shells of crabs has baffled researchers. The only certainty about it is its spread.

Earlier this summer the district manager of the N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries labeled the Pamlico commercially dead — the river can no longer support full-time commercial fishermen. The data on fish and crab landings support this statement. The recorded catch in the river had fallen from more than 5 million pounds of crab and more than 1 millions pounds of fin fish in 1984 to less than half that amount in 1988.

None of these facts are new. Neither are the river's water troubles. The Pamlico has been described countless times as distressed. Pollution has taken its toll, and there is no one culprit. Industry, agriculture, development and recreation — all contribute. Man's activity in the river basin is making the waterway sick, and in 1989, the symptoms of the illness became a little more pronounced.

As the summer ends, those who relish the Pamlico's waters are putting away their boats and skis and sails for winter and thinking about the oysters they'll eat in autumn. Later, when the wind grows cold, they may dream about hot, endless days on sparkling blue water. They'll think of next summer and make plans to spend time on the river.

But if that "next summer" is to be, the troubles of the Pamlico must be acknowledged and carefully addressed. A magnificent waterway is sick. The prescription for better health involves each and every one who uses it, enjoys it, profits from it ... or simply loves it.

That prescription, as well as visions of frolic and pleasure, should be included in plans about next year on the Pamlico.

Curing

Less Fire, More Losses

Tobacco barns once went up in flames with regularity during the curing season.

At best curing tobacco was risky business. A stick of tobacco had only to fall on the hot flues and the drying tobacco along with the tall, wood constructed building, was soon up in flames.

Now a burning tobacco barn is seldom seen. That doesn't mean, however, that tobacco farmers are not suffering disastrous losses from curing fires.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt's emergency services coordinator, says curing barn fires have dropped from 100 or more per season to only a few today. Because of the proximity of the newer bulk curing barns to one another, though, the dollar amount losses have probably increased from the old days.

Today's monetary losses are also heavier because of the cost of bulk barns — $10,000 to $15,000 today, opposed to the $3,000 cost of the old wooden barns.

Now the curing fires are rare, but more disastrous. As always the best defense against this and all fires is due care. It can save a year's work being wiped out by flames.

About The Forum ...

Salutes is a new forum for readers of The Daily Reflector Opinion page. The column will be a regular feature on Fridays and will allow readers to recognize extraordinary efforts by individuals or community organizations.

Space will not allow all letters to be published but all submissions meeting guidelines will be considered. Let The Daily Reflector know about the good things in your community by writing to Salutes, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835.

Thanks, PCMH

I know that it has been said before, but I feel I now must say it myself. Greenville, North Carolina, is indeed fortunate to have the facilities and staff of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

On August 3, 1989, I was Admitted to PCMH through the emergency room, suffering from a small heart attack. August 7th Dr. Douglas Privette performed a heart catheterization to determine the degree of my heart problem. August 9th Dr. John Williams performed 7 by passes during open heart surgery. On August 17th I was dismissed and on my way home.

The care and treatment I received during my 14-day stay at PCMH was more than terrific. Even with the long, stressful hours these doctors and nurses put in, they are not only proficient in their jobs, but still take the time to care. PCMH truly stands up to their motto - People Care More Here!!

Helping Kids Grow

This is a letter of praise and an expression of gratitude to the staff and all others connected with the Pitt County Boys Club.

My two sons have not yet completed their first year of membership and have already grown to a whole new appreciation of responsibility and respect. They have enjoyed the activities provided, learned from the educational programs and grown to love all those who have cared for and taught them a sense of responsibility and respect for themselves as well as others.

I am excited that the new facility will provide these and many more opportunities for both our young boys and girls of Pitt County!

Submissions to Salutes should consist of no more than 150 words and should spotlight a good deed or good job that deserves community note. Longer letters will be cut. Signatures, phone numbers and addresses of letter-writers should accompany all letters.

Driving Out Daydreams With Discipline

BOSTON — The geese are overhead, flying south in V-formations as crisp as a sharpened pencil. We watched them from the porch in a Maine light transformed by September clarity. Now we follow their lead, proceeding on our own annual migration.

The path we take also heads south, along parallel highway lines. We pass the exit to Kennebunkport where George Bush has spent his vacation in the presidential triathlon: fishing at 10, tennis at 11, horseshoes at noon. Within an hour of home, the roads become clogged with our own species: back-to-school, back-to-work creatures.

With jars of wild blackberry jam wrapped carefully in T-shirts and towels, we are returning to the real world, although why we call it "real" I cannot tell you. Is reality hard-edged and harried while fantasy is soft and leisurely? Is the real world one of obligations and the fantasy world one of pleasures?

Our migration takes only a few hours, but as we reach the city a familiar feeling comes out of its August hibernation. The rush that comes from being rushed. A lick of anxiety accompanies us through the traffic to the airport where, in some adult variation of the old car pool, I leave my once-child on her way back to college.

And as I watch her, books, bags, guitar and all, the familiar watchword of the real world comes back into my mind: Hurry. The new year has begun. Hurry.

This is what I associate with September as much as clean notebooks and new shoes. We learn all over again to trade our own rhythms for those of school and work and, in turn, we teach that to our children.

In millions of homes there is the same sudden nagging jump-start to the year. It is the sound of our own voices commanding ourselves and our kids: Stop dawdling.

On the streets today, there are kids with straight parts in their hair and lunch in their Batman boxes. Behind these kids there is a private tutor, at least one parent whose alarm bell precedes the school bell, whose workday begins with the urgent morning job of getting everyone out of the house. Someone who wages a small battle against the sleepy summer tug of leisure, or its evil twin, sloth.

This is what morning is like in America. Not the image of ripe Reaganesque fields and flags, but of pressed parents who may regret the sound of their own impatience sprinkling the breakfast cereal. It is the image of kids collected in buses and cars, delivered to buildings and redistributed to teachers and classrooms. Americans on schedule, on line, productive.

There is no mystery to why we trade our inner pace for a workaday lockstep. There is no living to be made on the sand. Nor is there any mystery to why we become our children's trainers in this pattern. We are driven for the most part by what Barbara Ehrenreich calls succinctly in her new book title, "The Fear of Falling."

Even the middle class in America, or especially the middle class in America, is insecure about its economic future and its children's future. That's more true now in an era when the middle is shrinking and many are slipping down or scrambling up. The fear of falling attaches itself to another anxiety — "a fear of inner weakness," as Ehrenreich observes, "of growing soft, of failing to strive, of losing discipline and will."

We fight these anxieties in ourselves by making a virtue out of necessity: hard work. We fight it in our children by driving out daydreams with discipline. Our own days speed up and we teach, even compel, our children to keep up.

If we are very lucky, we find work we like and schools where our children are happy. But it's only when we step aside for a time, a week or a summer, that the pace becomes daunting, unnatural.

Pretty soon, I know, long before we have emptied the last jar of blackberry jam, it will seem routine again. To the children on my street, the school year that crackles with a fresh start will grow as worn and familiar as a chalkboard eraser. Workaday life will seem as normal as wearing a necktie instead of a T-shirt, heels instead of sneakers.

But today, having just left the ocean for the city, I am most aware of the deliberate, even dutiful, way we prepare our children to lead the exact life that we find so rushed. The pressure is on. Hurry, kids.

Spangler Defends Centralized System For UNC

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOONE, N.C. — Amid calls for the "deregulation" of the state's public universities, University of North Carolina system President C.D. Spangler defended the way the schools are governed.

At the opening session of a two-day retreat here for the UNC Board of Governors, Spangler said it would be unrealistic for the legislature to let campuses set their own tuition and keep the money to spend as they choose.

"The problems of structure and governance are not even among the really important issues before us," Spangler told more than 100 trustees from the system's 16 campuses.

"No organization is without flaws, and no governing system is without its defects. I believe our flaws and our defects can be corrected and adjusted as we work together for common ends."

Spangler was joined in his defense by Jay Robinson, the UNC system's chief lobbyist.

In the retreat's opening remarks, Robinson admonished trustees to work and act "like a family" in their efforts to change policies they don't like.

He said legislators would be reluctant to cede any more control over how campuses spend taxpayers' money. Both he and Spangler warned against attempts to raise tuition.

But trustees gave Paul Fulton, president of Sara Lee Corp. and a trustee at Winston-Salem State University, a standing ovation when he spoke about the need to "deregulate" campuses.

Much of Fulton's speech echoed remarks made Sept. 1 by UNC-Chapel Hill Chancellor Paul Hardin.

In his report, Hardin called on both state legislators and UNC system officials to give campus officials far more control over how they spend state money and manage their schools.

Specifically, Hardin proposed abolishing line-item budgeting, permitting the 16 campuses to set their own tuitions, and allowing campuses to keep tuition revenues instead of turning them over to the state's General Fund.

Unless state legislators agree to such changes, Hardin predicted, the flagship campus's ability to provide students with a first-rate education will be jeopardized.

Spangler did not refer to Hardin's report directly, but his remarks appeared to be a response to the document.

"It would be a major mistake for us to act as though it were structure and the procedures that present us with our foremost problems," Spangler said.

"We need to decentralize as much as possible, but we cannot afford to be divided in the way we go about that."

The issue of how the UNC system is governed has become a heated topic in recent years.

Since 1971, the 16 campuses have been governed by a single UNC system president, who answers to a 32-member board that sets policies for all of the schools. Each campus has its own trustee board and chancellor, but they have only limited powers and serve chiefly as advisers to the system-wide officials.

The system was developed so that campuses would be treated more fairly in the state legislature and not fight among themselves for limited funding.

But some have charged that the major research campuses of UNC-Chapel Hill and N.C. State University haven't fared well under a consolidated system.

Many of Hardin's proposals have been viewed as the first step toward weakening, or even dismantling, that system — a perception that the chancellor insists is groundless.

In arguing for more freedom for trustees, Fulton, a 1957 graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill, said the practice of line-item budgeting "screams for decentralization."

He said further that research campuses should be allowed to admit more out-of-state students than the current 18 percent that is allowed and he urged trustees to be more aggressive in advising UNC officials on how to manage campuses, suggesting that the method of governing the system fashioned in 1971 might not be "ideally suited" for the 1990s.

Referring to a proposal that campuses be allowed to keep unspent money for salaries, Robinson said that it was unrealistic to think state legislators could be convinced to agree. The money is now turned over to the General Fund.

"They're not interested in talking about that at all," Robinson said. "You're talking about what they have decided is their rainy-day fund."

Similarly, Spangler said it was unrealistic to think that legislators would let campuses set their own tuition and then keep that money and spend it as they choose.

He said he would work hard to increase the total appropriation for UNC campuses, but insisted that additional revenues not be sought through higher tuition.

In an interview after the meeting, Hardin said he was confident that the issues he had raised would get a thorough hearing by the Board of Governors.

"No one is saying that these are easy," he said. "But no one has said that we had no business asking."

Haworth Says Schools Left Short In Funding

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina lawmakers failed to come to grips with the "peril" facing the state's children and left public education lagging and adrift, the state Board of Education chairman says.

"My message this morning is disappointment with the legislature's inability to understand the challenges that are there," Howard H. Haworth said Thursday.

But House Speaker Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, said the board chairman and other educators should examine their own performance before blaming legislators for public education's problems.

"There is room for everyone to share the blame," Mr. Mavretic said.

Haworth, a Republican from Morganton, said lawmakers found $9 billion to build new highways, but declined to adequately fund education or to sufficiently address social problems such as teenage pregnancy and child abuse that affect students' performance.

Haworth says the pay raises legislators gave to public school teachers and educators — on average, 6 percent this year and 6 percent again next year — weren't enough.

The Board of Education had called for across-the-board raises of 7 percent this year and 7 percent next year.

"It's a far less aggressive statement of commitment to public education than should have occurred," Haworth said at a meeting of the board.

The legislature provided $69 million of the $112 million scheduled to be funded this year, but provided for most of the difference in the next year. The hiring of hundreds of staff assistants will be delayed for a year.

Hayworth said the General Assembly also should have provided $6 million for an experimental preschool program for 3- and 4-year-olds in 16 classes. The legislature did not fund the program, which the Board of Education had pushed.

He said the legislature should have raised highway taxes less and instead raised other taxes, such as the sales tax, to pay for education needs.

Haworth was appointed by Gov. Jim Martin. The state Board of Education is charged with administering the system of public schools.

"Mr. Haworth wants to wait until the battle is over and throw his 2 cents in," said Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, the top-ranking Senate Democrat.

Imposter

DURHAM (AP) — A Duke University student who traded on his purported connection to the house of Rothschild and may have borrowed money on the strength of that name has no connection with the European financial dynasty, Duke officials say.

The man, a student in Duke's continuing-education program, billed himself as Baron Maurice J.L. de Rothschild.

Duke public safety officials "have determined that he does not have any connection with the internationally known Rothschild family," David Roberson of the Duke News Service said Wednesday.

The Duke student newspaper reported Tuesday that public safety officials and the FBI are investigating the man, apparently to determine the legality of his borrowing.

Guyana Dig

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — The government said Thursday a team of U.S. Army engineers from North Carolina has completed digging an artesian well here as part of a U.S. aid program seen as another sign that Guyana has abandoned its socialist past.

The state-run Chronicle newspaper and the Guyana Defense Force said the 15-man team from Fort Bragg, N.C., this week completed the well in a village 25 miles east of Georgetown, and should complete a second well in a village near the capital by month's end.

A U.S. Army medical team is expected here later this month to help Guyanese officials with an immunization program in the Rupununi savannah region near this South American nation's southern border with Brazil.

Bush Letter Says Helms In 'Trouble'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — President Bush has sent a message that Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election bid may be in trouble.

"Dear Friend, you and I are in danger of losing a strong conservative voice in the United States Senate," says a recent mass-mail, fund-raising letter by Bush on Helms' behalf. "...The loss of Jesse Helms would diminish our hopes for a Republican majority in the Senate. ... The early polls already show that this will be another uphill battle for Senator Helms."

In the two-page letter, dated Sept. 1, the president asks contributors to send up to $1,000 for the 1990 Helms campaign.

Helms has not officially announced his candidacy for a fourth six-year term next year, but a campaign organization has been gearing up. The Democratic Party remains in search of a challenger.

The Bush letter says, "I campaigned hard for Jesse Helms last time in North Carolina, and I plan to do so again in this campaign."

Helms remained neutral in the race for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination even though some expected him to endorse Bush's chief rival, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas.

Assault Sentence

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Three men who pleaded guilty to a beating that left a Kannapolis teen-ager in a coma were sentenced Thursday to six months in prison.

Superior Court Judge James Beatty Jr. ordered that after the prison time, the men will serve five years' probation, including time in electronically monitored house arrest.

Beatty also ordered each to pay more than $1,000 in fees and fines and $10,252.40 toward Franz's medical expenses.

The three Kannapolis men — Bertrand Marquette Scott, 16, Antonio Collins, 18, and James Medlin, 20 — had pleaded guilty to felonious assault in the beating that left Kevin Franz in a coma for 10 days.

Volunteers

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Volunteers from throughout the state were honored at Lenoir Community College in a ceremony highlighted with a speech by Gov. Jim Martin.

"You bring light into dark places. You bring smiles of relief to the faces of others, especially little children and the elderly," Martin told more than 100 volunteers who were gathered for the Eastern Regional Volunteer Recognition ceremony on Wednesday. "Each of you has looked beyond yourself to the needs of those around you, then taken an active role in helping to fulfill those needs."

Throughout the state, nearly two of every three people serve as volunteers in some capacity through programs for children, the elderly and the handicapped. More than 4.6 million people volunteered their time and services in North Carolina last year.

SBI Director Says More Money Needed To Fight 'War On Drugs'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HIGH POINT, N.C. — The question facing State Bureau of Investigation Director Robert Morgan is if more money will be given to the officers fighting the "war on drugs" that President George Bush declared.

"There's only about $717 million in new money for enforcement," he said. "I'm not sure how much money is going to come to state and local law enforcement, and the truth is, they're going to have to do the job."

Morgan said his agency is suffering already from a manpower shortage and that state legislators need to do more to fight drug trafficking.

"I just hope now they will knock heads up there and come up with enough resources to do the job. I hope we will see some money, but it will probably be in grant form that we can use only for specific purposes and not for long-range goals," he told the High Point Enterprise.

Morgan said that he and state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg asked the General Assembly for 140 new drug agents during the last legislative session.

"We got none — not a single one," he said.

Tougher DWI Laws Cause Local Strain

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — With tougher drunken driving laws going into effect, directors of substance abuse programs are bracing themselves for an influx of patients. Some worry they might not be ready.

Local officials say they don't have the money to hire more counselors, instructors and administrators to treat the additional patients.

"The political ramifications are going to be significant," said Allan Spader, executive director of the N.C. Council on Community Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Programs.

"The (agencies) that are really doing the job now are going to catch heat. But the ones that are not taking it seriously are going to get smeared," he said Wednesday.

Members of the council are officials from local mental health agencies statewide who lobby the Legislature, Spader said.

The legislature this summer toughened driving while impaired laws by requiring convicted drivers to be interviewed and tested for potential alcohol abuse or addiction. The new law, which takes effect Jan. 1, also requires problem-drinkers to seek treatment from either private or public substance-abuse programs.

The programs are to be reimbursed through fees charged to the drivers, state officials said. To ensure payment, state Department of Motor Vehicle officials have agreed to withhold drivers licenses until the fees are paid, officials said.

But state mental health advocates say most local mental health agencies are ill-prepared to treat the large number of patients the law could generate. The Fayetteville Times reported Thursday.

Spader said local agencies need to find funds to increase programs before the new law takes effect.

"We're going to have to gear up. We're going to be competing with private agencies," Spader said. "We can do something real good with these programs, but we have to be prepared to take a lot of grief for it at the start-up."

In Cumberland County Eldon Tietje, area mental health director, says he is worried about funding.

"We could find our patient load will double," Tietje said. "The concern we have is how to get a service of this size going without any start-up funds."

An additional 50 to 120 patients could flood the county program now staffed by 10 counselors in the adult program and two in the adolescent program, Tietje said.

Mental health center officials in Cumberland County are studying test programs in other counties to devise a plan to hire and pay staff before receiving the fees from patients.

Morgan doesn't intend to settle for that, though.

He said he and Thornburg will return to the legislature with a new request for funding for more agents during the next session in 1990, but he hasn't decided how much money he'll ask for.

"We're going to go back to the legislature, but it's not worth a whole lot unless they're going to build more prisons and add more court officers to deal with the people we catch," he said.

Morgan estimated the SBI has 250 field agents around the entire state. He said every agent investigates drug cases as well as criminal cases, but some agents work almost exclusively on drug probes.

"Let me hasten to point out, though, they (legislators) did do some things for us," he said. "They did provide a substantial number of new judges and prosecutors. Prison space is still limited, but they did add $75 million of new money for prisons," he said.

Morgan said the prison and court system in North Carolina has already become overloaded with drug offenders.

"We're already putting more people into the court system than the courts and prisons can take care of."

director in 1985, he remembers that combating drugs got a top priority in the attorney general's office.

"In Robeson County, we targeted five major drug dealers in 1985. Four are in jail now and we just indicted the fifth one two weeks ago," he said.

The SBI focuses its battle against drugs on street dealers and major drug traffickers. Though interdiction remains important, it poses a logistically impossible challenge.

"We are concerned with interdiction, but that's almost a stopgap measure. If we had half the army, we couldn't stop every plane or bus," he said.

"As long as it's available on the streets, people are going to use it," Morgan said. "I don't believe there are any users who aren't dealers. Just about all of them have to deal drugs to afford their habit, and that just pyramids the problem."

Morgan believes the only way to win the war on drugs is to educate the young.

"The real answer is education. The finest thing we've done is institute this D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program," he said. "That's where we train local officers how to teach children self-esteem and self-respect and how to say 'no' to peer pressure."

Officers work with fifth-graders in schools across the state one day a week for 17 weeks.

Morgan said, so far, the program has reached more than half of the school children in North Carolina.

Bakker Lawyers Ask Appeals Court To Halt Trial

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Some of the men and women Jim Bakker is accused of defrauding testified in his trial, saying they were told there was no room for them when they tried to use lodging they had reserved at PTL's resort.

"There were more people than there was room," said Lamar Kerstetter, a retired coal miner from Shamokin, Pa., who suffers from black lung disease and cancer and lives on disability insurance.

Kerstetter was one of five PTL "lifetime partners" who testified Thursday, saying they had paid the PTL ministry for lodging at Heritage USA, PTL's religious retreat in Fort Mill, S.C. The witnesses testified that when they tried to use their rooms they were told none were available.

Meanwhile, Bakker's lawyers asked the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond on Thursday to halt Bakker's trial, pending an appeal of U.S. District Judge Robert Potter's refusal to dismiss the charges against Bakker.

Lawyers Harold Bender of Charlotte and George T. Davis of Hawaii on Wednesday asked Potter to throw out the charges against Bakker, citing possible grand jury misconduct.

Bender said in a telephone interview Thursday night that he had received no word on the status of the appeal.

Defense attorneys claim Jessica Hahn told Charlotte radio station WRFX that grand jurors approached her in a courtroom restroom and asked for her autograph during a break in her testimony in September 1987.

Bakker's attorneys claim the grand jurors violated their oath of impartiality, and thus tainted the process leading to Bakker's indictment.

Bakker, 49, is charged with 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy. Prosecutors say Bakker used nearly $4 million in ministry funds obtained from the sale of partnerships in the ministry's hotel to bankroll his extravagant lifestyle.

Bakker unveiled the lifetime partnerships program in early 1984, telling donors he would offer 25,000 partnerships in the 504-room Heritage Grand Hotel, then under construction. Only half the hotel rooms were available for partners.

In morning testimony today, Mark Burgund, former budget director at PTL, said that in 1985 Bakker asked him to determine how to show the value of one partnership program, the "Silver 7,000" program, would be worth more than $1 million in a 50-year period.

Burgund testified he did so in a series of memos to Bakker, showing that if a family of five used the partnership they would have to go to PTL once a year for a week-long free stay and would have to use every facility at Heritage USA, even facilities not yet constructed, such as a bowling alley.

Bakker used those figures in selling the partnerships, which cost up to $3,000, Burgund said.

But prosecutor Deborah Smith said a family of five would have to use all these facilities during their free stay each year and would have to come to PTL another 30 days on their own for them to be worth more than $1 million.

Burgund also testified that PTL was seeking a $50 million loan but could not obtain loans from any U.S. banks. So Burgund was told to go to a broker in Switzerland in July 1986 to try to borrow money. He testified he wrote Bakker a memo about the trip to Switzerland and meeting with a broker, but the deal collapsed when the broker said PTL would have to transfer assets to a corporation the ministry would have to set up in Switzerland.

Under cross-examination by Bender, Burgund said the reason PTL had trouble obtaining loans from U.S. banks was because they felt that PTL relied too much on Bakker as its primary fundraiser.

"He was the mover and shaker, the one every one relied on, even to the point of insuring him for $50 million?" Bender said.

Hudson To Study Poison Evidence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRAHAM, N.C. — A doctor will help Blanche Taylor Moore and her attorneys evaluate the state's evidence against her as they prepare to defend against charges she poisoned three men, killing two of them.

Defense attorney Mitchell McEntire has hired Dr. Page Hudson to analyze the evidence and tests for arsenic.

Hudson is a former chief medical examiner for the state who is now a faculty member at East Carolina University in Greenville. He served as the state's authority on forensic science from 1968 to 1986.

Hudson is known for his testimony in the 1978 Velma Barfield poisoning murders, McEntire said. Barfield was convicted of first-degree murder, sentenced to death and executed in 1984.

"He's the foremost forensic pathology expert in the state — it's possible he's more widely known than that," McEntire said.

"Mr. McEntire wanted a forensic pathologist to be a consultant and asked me to do it, and I've agreed to do it," Hudson said. "The defense is as entitled to an expert witness as the plaintiff."

Hudson declined to say specifically what type of information McEntire wanted. But the doctor said he would examine medical evidence against Moore and, if necessary, testify.

The announcement that Hudson would assist the defense came a day after Superior Court Judge J. Milton Read of Durham ordered that a "designated person" from the defense be allowed to review the findings of Dr. John Butts, the chief state medical examiner.

Read's order, filed in Alamance Superior Court, states that the defense can have its own representative "examine the documents and materials upon which the written conclusions of (Butts) were based, and such other information as may be in the possession of Dr. Butts."

Alamance District Attorney Steve Balog consented to the request for the state's documents and materials that led Butts to conclude that arsenic killed Moore's former husband, James Taylor, and her boyfriend, Raymond Reid Sr.

Butts also found that although arsenic was administered to Moore's father, Parker Kiser, a few weeks before his death, it was not considered a lethal amount.

"It's an entirely reasonable request," Balog said. "If we hadn't consented, the judge probably would have ordered it given to them."

NRC Inspectors Check Duke Spill

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Inspectors from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission are investigating a spill of 10,000 gallons of radioactive water at Duke Power Co.'s McGuire Nuclear Power Plant.

The five-member team arrived at the site Thursday to investigate the Tuesday spill into the Unit 2 auxiliary building.

NRC officials said Duke Power had told the agency an inappropriate valve lineup apparently resulted in the spill. The inappropriate lineup caused pressure to build above the allowed level in a cooling system, NRC officials said.

That apparently caused a gasket to fail, leading to the spill into the auxiliary building over a period of about an hour, NRC officials said.

The special inspection team will develop and validate a detailed sequence of events linked with the incident and prepare a report.

Agency officials said Duke Power reported no workers were injured or overexposed to radiation. Unit 2 was shut down for refueling and maintenance when the spill occurred.

Tammy Sets Off Flood Of Protest Calls

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department's main switchboard was inundated after Tammy Bakker asked followers to telephone the agency to complain about her husband's treatment while in the hands of federal marshals.

Standing outside the federal courthouse where Jim Bakker is on trial for fraud and conspiracy, Mrs. Bakker urged people to call the Justice Department to complain, "because the next person that's treated this way could be your husband or your minister or someone that you love."

"I don't want any other man who is innocent until proven guilty to ever have to go through the terrible torment and public humiliation that my husband has had to suffer," she said Thursday in a prepared statement.

"Jim was not in a hospital as Judge Potter continues to call it," she said. "He was in a prison insane asylum. He was in solitary confinement. On his prison uniform were the letters SECL, which means seclusion."

Potter sent Bakker to the Federal Correctional Institute in Butner last week after Bakker apparently suffered a mental breakdown.

Three special telephone lines were set up after the department's main switchboard was inundated with calls.

Justice Department spokesman Joe Krovisky said the operators were getting "a continuous stream" of calls from people protesting the prosecution of the former PTL leader.

One of the two operators, who refused to identify himself, said the department received more than 280 calls on the special lines on Thursday.

"A lot of the papers printed that he was allowed to walk around the grounds," Mrs. Bakker said in her statement. "He was in seclusion. He asked if he could go out and exercise and they took him to what looked like a little dog pen where he could run around in a circle and then handcuffed and took him right back to solitary confinement."

She told reporters and bystanders that the move had been an attempt by Potter to wear Bakker down.

"I feel he was put there to try to break him down and break down his will to fight this court case and this trial," she said. "I cannot believe that the government of the United States would allow a judge to do something like this."

Mrs. Bakker was to have been interviewed on "Primetime Live" on Thursday night, but host Sam Donaldson said she called just before air time and said she had the flu.

Experts Say RJR On Right Track

By Joyce M. Rosenberg
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — RJR Nabisco Inc. has put together a good track record in the four months since Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. bought the food and tobacco giant in the biggest corporate acquisition ever, securities analysts say.

The announcement Thursday that RJR Nabisco would sell the fresh fruit operations of its Del Monte Corp. to the British conglomerate Polly Peck International PLC for $875 million bolstered the view that the company is taking the right steps to ensure its financial stability.

The sale was part of a divestment plan to help defray the costs of the $24.53 billion leveraged buyout of RJR Nabisco completed in late April. In a leveraged buyout, a company is acquired with mainly borrowed funds, which are paid back through asset sales and the company's cash flow.

Kohlberg Kravis, a specialist in leveraged buyouts, said earlier this year that about $5.5 billion in RJR Nabisco assets would be sold. The latest sale puts RJR Nabisco more than halfway toward its divestment goal.

Moody's Investors Service Inc., a company that rates the creditworthiness of bond issuers like RJR Nabisco, "has confidence in management's ability to do what they are in fact doing," said Gloria Vila, a Moody's analyst.

She said the asset sale plan is on track and that the prices RJR Nabisco has received for its businesses are in line with expectations.

The biggest asset sale so far came in June, when RJR Nabisco sold five of its European businesses to BSN, a French food and beverage company, for $2.5 billion.

The company also sold its biscuit and food businesses in India and Pakistan for $44 million to Britannia Industries Pte. Ltd. of Singapore, and its Chun King food division for $52 million to a group of investors from Singapore.

Both Moody's and Standard & Poor's Corp., another credit-rating service, lowered their ratings on RJR Nabisco's bonds and other debt after the acquisition by Kohlberg Kravis. It is common for a company's credit rating to be downgraded if it takes on a heavy debt load.

Bond investors apparently have had few doubts about RJR Nabisco. They scooped up the record $4 billion in junk bonds issued as part of the buyout.

Moody's did not plan any further adjustments in its rating of RJR Nabisco debt, although the service was confident "that they are going to be able to complete their asset sales on time and at prices that they indicated," Ms. Vila said.

She noted that the company has had a drop in the volume of its domestic tobacco business, which could raise concern about RJR Nabisco's cash flow and in turn, its ability to repay its debt.

However, the drop in volume was being offset by price increases, and RJR Nabisco was reconsidering its marketing strategy to find a way to boost sales, she said.

There was no connection between the falloff in volume and the buyout, Ms. Vila said, noting that RJR Nabisco's cigarette brands have been slipping in the United States for the last five years.

RJR Nabisco got another vote of confidence recently when the investment firm Salomon Brothers Inc. added to its "buy" list the securities Kohlberg Kravis issued to shareholders as part of the merger deal.

The securities, known as a "stub," are debentures, or bonds, that can be converted into stock in the future.

Salomon called the stub "an attractive way to participate in the equity of the RJR leveraged buyout."

The investment firm also was pleased with RJR Nabisco's projected profit growth, which Salomon put at 15 percent.

The success of the RJR Nabisco deal is crucial to the reputation of Kohlberg Kravis, the leader among firms that specialize in leveraged buyouts.

Kohlberg Kravis reportedly has had trouble selling some of its businesses and several others either are foundering or have been disappointing investments.

Seaman's Furniture Co., which went private in a $360 million buyout led by Kohlberg Kravis two years ago, has said it must renegotiate debt payments, partly because sales growth has not met expectations.

Adding to the company's troubles was a lawsuit filed against it last month by Jerome Kohlberg Jr., one of its founders. Kohlberg alleged the firm reduced his stake in several companies Kohlberg Kravis acquired while he was a managing partner there.

Senate OKs Protection For Disabled

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Disabled Americans, including most AIDS victims, would get new legal protections in jobs and public places under a Senate-passed "emancipation proclamation for the disabled" heading to the House.

The measure, passed 76-8 Thursday night, is being billed as the logical extension of the landmark Civil Rights Act of 1964 that gave similar rights to blacks and other minorities.

"In a sense, this legislation is an emancipation proclamation for the disabled, and America will be a better, fairer and stronger nation because of it," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., whose Committee on Labor and Human Resources cleared the bill last month.

The measure prevents employment discrimination against the handicapped, requires equal access to public accommodations such as stores, restaurants and transportation, and requires special telephone service for the hearing- and speech-impaired at no greater cost than regular service.

Sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, the bill had 59 Senate cosponsors and was widely supported by advocacy groups, with a qualified endorsement from the White House.

In a historic gesture to the bill's beneficiaries, the Senate waived its usual strict access rules and allowed sign-language interpreters on the floor during the debate.

"The Americans with Disabilities Act is a landmark statement of basic human rights that will make the promise of equal opportunity a reality for 43 million Americans with disabilities," said Harkin, who has a deaf brother and quadriplegic nephew.

Businesses with 15 or more employees would be covered, but for the first two years of the law only businesses with 25 or more employees would be affected.

Violations of employment discrimination rules would be sanctioned by injunctions, back pay and attorneys' fees.

DOE Will Resume Production Of Tritium For Nuclear Arms

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Energy Department says it will resume production of tritium, an increasingly scarce gas needed to make nuclear warheads, in fall 1990 despite urgings by environmental groups for a further delay.

The first of three tritium-producing reactors at the department's Savannah River complex near Aiken, S.C., will begin low-power testing late next summer, and production is expected to start between October and December 1990, Energy Secretary James D. Watkins said Thursday after briefing White House officials on the plan.

Watkins said precise dates for the restart schedule will not be set before next April after department officials review progress in a broad management and mechanical overhaul under way at Savannah River since last fall.

The three active reactors at Savannah River — designated K, L and P — are the nation's only source of tritium, a manmade hydrogen isotope used to boost the destructive power of nuclear weapons. All three have been out of operation since spring 1988.

Environmental groups criticized the announcement, saying it means the reactors will be back in operation before all safety questions are answered.

"The Energy Department is certainly not putting safety first — restart is still No. 1," said Brian Costner, director of the Energy Research Foundation, a Columbia, S.C.-based group that wants the reactors closed down permanently.

Costner's organization joined the environmental groups Greenpeace and Natural Resources Defense Council in suing the Energy Department in December to force Watkins to complete an environmental impact statement before restarting the reactors. Costner said in a telephone interview that the suit will proceed.

Watkins said he had briefed the National Security Council on the plan prepared by Westinghouse Savannah River Co., which operates the reactors under a government contract.

Westinghouse took over management of the site in April from E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Tobacco Proponents Seek New Strategy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers from tobacco-growing states are trying to figure out how to fend off a proposal headed for the Senate floor that would permanently ban cigarette smoking on all domestic airline flights.

The Senate Appropriations Committee voted 17-0 Thursday for legislation containing the ban, setting up a likely vote by the full Senate next Tuesday.

The smoking provision, broadening the prohibition against smoking on flights of two hours or less, is part of an $11.9 billion measure for transportation programs for fiscal 1990, which begins Oct. 1.

The ban survived an effort by Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., to dilute the proposal by simply making it a permanent extension of the ban on smoking aboard two-hour flights. Cochran's amendment was defeated 18-11, with panel Democrats voting 11-5 and Republicans voting 7-6 against it.

Cochran said after the vote that he didn't know whether he would offer his amendment on the Senate floor.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., whose state is the nation's largest tobacco producer, also said he was unsure how he would respond. "We'll have to circle the wagons," he told a reporter.

The prohibition against smoking on short flights — covering four-fifths of all domestic airline traffic — will expire in April unless it is extended. The new restrictions would take effect 90 days after the bill becomes law, and would supersede the current prohibition if enacted before April.

The House on Aug. 3 approved a permanent extension of the ban covering two-hour flights. The two chambers will have to reconcile their differences before sending the measure to President Bush for his signature.

Health groups and airline employee unions have worked for the tougher restrictions, arguing that the evidence shows that non-smokers risk cancer and other diseases by inhaling cigarette smoke, especially in closed airliner cabins.

"This is the largest preventable cause of death in this country," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., sponsor of the measure.

Lautenberg cited a surgeon general's report concluding that 400,000 people die annually from diseases caused by smoking.

Changes Considered In Catastrophic Care

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Senate tax-writers swamped by complaints from retirees are weighing whether to raise Social Security taxes on workers and their employers to help pay for Medicare catastrophic insurance for older Americans.

"You almost have a sense when you go home of being unwanted, unloved and unappreciated on this issue," Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., said Thursday as the Senate Finance Committee began considering how to respond to the complaints.

The tax increase, which probably would be opposed by the Bush administration, is only one of several ideas the committee is considering. The catastrophic insurance program, aimed at protecting retirees from being bankrupted by a catastrophic illness, has been under attack since it was enacted a year ago as an expansion of Medicare.

The program is financed by beneficiaries, and most of the complaints have come from higher-income retirees who contend they are bearing most of the cost of the program.

Other older Americans complain that they don't need the program — or its costs — because they have private insurance.

Under one proposal being considered, the maximum annual earnings on which the 1.45 percent Social Security hospitalization tax is imposed would be increased from $48,000 to $60,000. That would mean a $174-a-year tax increase for a worker making $60,000 or more and the same increase on the employer.

The hospitalization tax is withheld from paychecks as part of the Social Security tax.

GM Starts New Warranty War With Olds Offer

By Frederick Standish
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — Another battle in the automotive warranty war may be on the horizon after a nearly three-year cease-fire and the front may be on America's highways instead of at dealership service departments.

In early 1987, the nation's Big Three automakers extended existing warranties and used the new guarantees as bait to snare new-car buyers.

On Thursday, Oldsmobile took a page from the European luxury car makers' warranty book and introduced a new three-part program for 1990 Oldsmobile buyers. Two days earlier, Toyota Motor Corp. boosted its warranty on powertrain and safety equipment to five years or 60,000 miles from three years or 36,000 miles.

Oldsmobile's new program offers buyers a three-year, bumper-to-bumper warranty with a $100 deductible after the first year, a chance for new buyers to return their cars within a month for full credit for another new Oldsmobile and a roadside assistance plan.

During the first three years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, Oldsmobile owners will be able to telephone for help anytime their car is disabled for any reason, from an empty gas tank to a major mechanical failure, said Oldsmobile General Manager Mike Losh.

Because of Oldsmobile's sales volume, the move may prompt other General Motors Corp. divisions as well as Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. to rethink their warranties.

"What you're going to see is a big ramp-up in the overall warranty coverage on the part of everybody," said analyst Joseph Phillippi of Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. in New York.

Improving warranties can be costly for automakers, who shoulder most of the cost through dealer reimbursements but won't give exact numbers.

The Oldsmobile warranty announced Thursday is unique in GM. Other GM divisions offer the basic three-year, 50,000-mile warranty with the exception of the Cadillac Allante, which carries a seven-year, 70,000-mile warranty.

Changes in the 1990 version of the Cadillac warranty will be announced next week when the division formally introduces its cars for the coming model year, spokesman Norb Bartos said Thursday, declining to elaborate.

Ford, which introduces its 1990 model cars next week, and Chrysler, which shows off its 1990 cars a week after that, have basic warranties of 12 months or 12,000 miles in addition to longer powertrain and rust protection coverage. Chrysler offers more extensive basic coverage for its larger, more expensive cars.

Officials of both companies said there were no immediate plans to change warranties.

Mercedes-Benz is offering a four-year, 50,000-mile warranty with a free towing provision for its 1989 and 1990 cars. But the number of vehicles covered by that plan, as well as those offered by other makers of imported luxury cars, doesn't approach that of Oldsmobile.

The Oldsmobile warranty, announced as the GM division introduced its 1990 model cars, may be transferred if the original buyer sells the car while it's covered by the basic warranty.

The warranty stems from pilot programs GM ran on the Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme and the Pontiac Grand Prix last year, said Losh, who was general manager of the Pontiac Division before moving to Oldsmobile earlier this year.

He said fewer than 0.5 percent of the Cutlass Supreme buyers taking part in the pilot program returned their cars for other Oldsmobiles. The program also offers free overnight accommodations for drivers whose cars need that much time to be fixed if the driver is more than 150 miles from home.

Inmate Ties Mob To Penny Stock Scandals

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — A chilling tale of one man's life as a mob-connected stock swindler was recounted Thursday for wide-eyed members of a congressional committee investigating penny stock fraud.

Jailed stock manipulator Lorenzo Formato of New Jersey, who appeared before the committee under heavy guard, startled committee members with a wide-ranging declaration that the Mafia is deeply involved in the manipulation of many stocks that trade in the over-the-counter market.

Formato, 38, cited his own career as proof. During his 13-year involvement in a long series of stock swindles, Formato said, he was closely tied to organized crime.

"I was involved with organized crime," he said. "I was involved with people in organized crime."

Formato declined to name names of organized crime figures but said his cooperation with them was mutually beneficial. He said he needed the "protection and strength" that organized crime could provide to his activities and that the mob, in turn, "needed me to wash money for them" through various companies. "I was a money machine," he said. "That's what I became — a money machine."

"This is one of the dirtiest businesses there is. I know from a firsthand basis that behind the suits and ties are a lot of real nasty people."

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., chairman of the House subcommittee on telecommunications and finance, called Formato's lengthy testimony "a blistering, scalding indictment of the entire penny stock market."

American investors lose an estimated $2 billion a year to stock swindlers, according to a new report from the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA). The president of the NASAA, John C. Baldwin, said low-priced stocks are an important source of capital for small companies, however.

Formato, who cooperated with federal authorities in recent stock fraud investigations, has been placed in the federal witness protection program, under which his identity may be changed. As a result, Formato was led into the hearing room wearing a gray hood to conceal his face. It was not known whether his appearance had been changed.

Asked if he feared for his safety, Formato said, "I do think my life is in danger."

YOUR EYEGGLASS PRESCRIPTION

What does the Federal Trade Commission say about "Eyeglass Prescriptions"?

Q. Can I charge my patients an extra fee for releasing the prescription?
A. No. The Rule makes it illegal for you to charge your patients any fee in excess of your normal examination fee as a charge for releasing the prescription. So if your normal examination fee is $30, you cannot add an extra $5 or $10 for releasing the prescription.

Q. When do I have to give out a prescription?
A. The prescription must be given to your patient immediately after you complete the eye examination. This means that you must give your patient his or her prescription before you begin your dispensing procedures (if you also dispense eyeglasses).

Q. What if my patient doesn't ask for the prescription? Do I still have to give it out to my patient?
A. Yes. The Rule requires that you prepare the prescription and physically offer it to the patient. Of course, you can't force the patient to take it, but you must offer him or her the written prescription. Simply asking your patients whether they want their prescription is not sufficient. We found that many consumers had never seen a prescription for corrective eyewear, and thus were unaware that they could take that piece of paper and use it to comparison shop.

Q. What is the penalty for violating the Rule?
A. The penalty for violating the Rule is up to $10,000 per violation.

Q. How can I report violations of the Rule?
A. You can contact us directly in Washington, D.C. Our mailing address in Washington is: Eyeglasses TRR, Federal Trade Commission, Room 281, Washington, DC 20580

Alumni To Meet

The Greenville - Kinston-Washington Chapter, Bennett College Alumni, will meet Saturday at 1 p.m. at the home of Gail Dove Stevens, 205 Whilington Circle. Plans will be made for the remainder of the year.

Students

East Carolina University's unofficial fall semester enrollment of 16,038 students, an all-time record, includes residents of 99 of North Carolina's 100 counties.

The registrar's office also reported that ECU students come from 43 of the 51 states and the District of Columbia and from 34 foreign nations.

In-state headcount enrollment is 13,777 and out-of-state totals include 2,189 U.S. students and 72 from other countries, according to the office.

The student body includes 2,275 students from Pitt County; 1,271 from Wake; 592 from Lenoir; 566 from Wayne; 493 from Beaufort; 491 from Mecklenburg; 484 from Craven; 483 from Cumberland; 421 from Guilford and 405 from Nash. The only North Carolina county not represented this year is Cherokee.

Pediatric Nutritionist

Jody M. Dennis recently joined the Developmental Evaluation Clinic of the East Carolina University School of Medicine as a pediatric nutritionist.

Ms. Dennis will work with public and private health professionals, health departments, school systems and day care and child development centers in Pitt, Bertie, Beaufort, Greene, Martin, Wayne and Hyde counties. She will provide clinical care, technical assistance and evaluation, consultation, educational and liaison services.

A native of Springfield, Mass., Ms. Dennis earned a bachelor's degree at Cornell University in New York City and a master's in public health from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

Doctor Joins Practice

Dr. J. Samuel Mitchener III has joined East Carolina Plastic Surgery Associates as a surgeon and hand specialist. He will also serve as clinical instructor of surgery at East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Mitchener received his bachelor's degree from Davidson College and master's and doctorate in experimental pathology from Duke University. He is also a graduate of Duke Medical School.

Mitchener and his wife, Cary, have a son, James Mitchener IV.

Pactolus School

Pactolus Elementary School opened the 1989-90 school year with an enrollment of 423 students. The school has also added four new classroom teachers.

The school's first Parent/Teacher

Organization meeting will be held Tuesday at 7:30 in the school gym.

Fine Arts Ball

The Greenville Museum of Art will celebrate its 50th anniversary with this year's Fine Arts Ball at Meriwether Farm on Oct. 14. Two tents, one for auction items, another for seated dining, will be set up among the oak trees on the farm.

Chef David Greenleaf of the Coral Bay Club, Atlantic Beach, will prepare the three-course dinner. Tuxedo Junction will provide jazz music during dinner and play for the dance to follow.

Hand-colored invitations were mailed Wednesday to all museum members, who may purchase tickets to the ball. Anyone else who wishes to receive an invitation must join GMA. For information, call 758-1946.

Award Presented

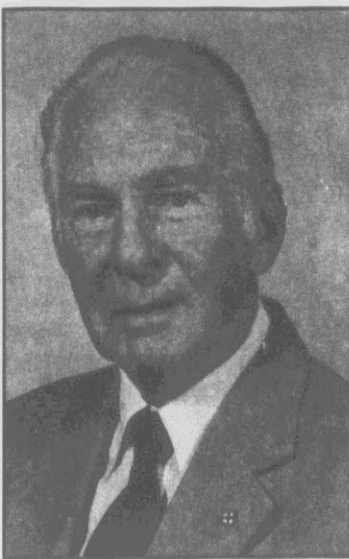

Bill "B.B." Drum was presented the God and Service award at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The award is presented to adults who have distinguished themselves by their commitment to young people through youth agency relationships and the National Council of Boy Scouts of America.

This is the highest religious award given by the Boy Scout of America.

The award was presented to Drum in a ceremony conducted Sunday by the Rev. Sidney Huggins and Joe H.

Goodson, president of the East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America.

Police Deny Report

against-black factional fighting in the township of Khayelitsha. He said the other five deaths were being investigated.

Vlok's spokesman, Brig. Leon Mellet, challenged Tutu and Boesak "to produce the evidence which they used as the basis for telling the world that the presidential seat of the acting state president was dripping with blood because of the alleged deaths of 23 people in the Cape on election night."

"We do not have such information," Mellet said. Both police and anti-apartheid activists increased their figures for known deaths today. Police earlier had reported 12 deaths, and activists had reported 23 on election day.

Although the number of deaths remains in dispute, hospital officials have confirmed that dozens of people were treated for birdshot wounds sustained during the disturbances.

About 180 lawyers, law professors and law students held a demonstration today in downtown Cape Town to denounce police violence. Prior to the protest, anti-apartheid lawyer Dullah Omar said police brutality "reached unprecedented heights" this week.

In a related development, figures released today showed that despite an election system designed to make voting easy, fewer than 20 percent of Indian and mixed-race adults cast ballots for their segregated houses of Parliament.

One Indian candidate, Gangiah Naidoo, received zero votes.

The Indian and mixed-race chambers are largely impotent compared to the dominant white chamber in the tri-cameral Parliament.

The regional police commissioner for the Cape Town region, Maj. Gen Philip Fourie, met today with a mixed-race lieutenant who has created a furor by publicly accusing fellow policemen of brutality.

Tractor Trailors Collide And Burn

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DURHAM — Two tractor-trailer rigs collided and one of them exploded, sending flames 100 feet into the sky and killing the driver today on Interstate 85 in eastern Durham County.

State troopers were still trying to identify the dead man, who was severely burned when the load of asphalt shingles aboard his rig ignited.

A driver and co-driver of the other tractor trailer were not injured.

State Highway Patrol Trooper Leon Payne said he was traveling southbound on I-85 about 5 a.m. when he saw a plume of smoke ahead in the northbound lanes.

Payne said he then saw an inferno ahead that "looked like an atomic explosion" with a mushroom cloud and debris and flames spewing into the sky. Part of the top of the cab was blown across the interstate.

Intense heat prevented anyone from approaching the cab of the burning truck. Payne said the truck's tires exploded as he approached.

He said a tractor-trailer driven by Gregory Eugene Gettys of Bartlesville, Okla., stopped on the right side of the northbound lanes of the interstate so he and his co-driver, Stanton D. Vaughn, of Tulsa, Okla., could get out.

While the tractor-trailer, owned by Tollie Freightway Inc. of Kansas City, was stopped, the other tractor-trailer struck it from behind and jackknifed, showering sparks and spilling fuel from a ruptured fuel tank.

Gettys and Vaughn tried to rescue the driver, but were driven back by flames and the explosion, Gettys said.

Part of the truck's load of containers of a defoaming chemical agent was spilled. Emergency management teams were on the scene to handle the spill, which represented no health hazard, a firefighter said.

Payne said the killed driver may have fallen asleep at the wheel. Evidence at the scene indicated he applied brakes about half a second before impact.

Patrol Sgt. Raymond Isley said the burned tractor-trailer belonged to C&M Equipment of New Scranton, Penn. Officials of the company were trying to determine from their records who was driving the truck, Payne said.

Indicted

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted Weaverville trucking company operator Joseph Eugene Penley on charges of buying truck parts from which the vehicle identification numbers had been scraped away.

Penley, 31, was arrested Aug. 25 by federal agents on charges he twice dealt in altered motor vehicle parts.

The grand jury handed down an indictment Wednesday which alleges that on Aug. 17, Penley knowingly bought an engine and tandem rear ends with their identification number ground off. Penley bought the engine, from a 1984 Kenworth tractor, and the rear ends, from a 1988 Peterbilt tractor, to sell, according to the four-count indictment.

Sutton

Mrs. Roberta Sutton died Wednesday at Greenville Villa Nursing Home. Arrangements will be announced by Flanagan Funeral Home in Greenville.

Wilkes

AYDEN — A funeral for Mrs. Annie Mae Sutton Wilkes will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday in Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Ayden by Elder C.R. Parker. Burial will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mrs. Wilkes was born and reared in Tarboro, but had made her home in the Ayden community several years. She was a member of St. Edwards FWB Church on Route 1, Dover, and the Golden Links No. 161, Knights of Gideon of Ayden.

Surviving are two sons, John Sutton of Newark, N.J., and Ronnie Wilkes of the home; three daughters, Ethel Sutton and Peggy Wilkes, both of the home, and Joyce Lyman of West Germany; six brothers, Lloyd Sutton of Fort Barnwell, David L. Sutton of Bladenburg, Md., Joshua Sutton and James Sutton, both of Newark, N.J., and George Sutton and Joe Sutton, both of East Orange, N.J.; three sisters, Lillie B. Bell of Fort Barnwell, Lencie Sutton of Newark, N.J., and Earline Sutton of Elm City, and three grandchildren.

The body will be at Norcott Memorial Chapel in Ayden from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday. The family will receive friends at the chapel from 8 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. Saturday. At other times, they will be at the home, 607 S. Lee St., Ayden.

Williams

FARMVILLE — Mr. John Albert "Bad" Williams died Wednesday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Acquittal

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A former Robeson County sheriff's detective was acquitted on Thursday of embezzlement charges, authorities said.

The Robeson County Superior Court jury of eight women and four men returned their verdict about 4 p.m. after deliberating about 40 minutes, according to attorney Hubert Rogers, who represented Mitchell. The trial began on Wednesday.

Mitchell, 42, a veteran law enforcement officer, was indicted by a county grand jury on March 6 after an earlier indictment was dismissed on a technicality on Feb. 13.

The initial charge filed in August 1988 alleged that Mitchell, who was a detective at the time, had embezzled a $1,129 check from the Robeson County Law Enforcement Association in May 1987. The association, which later became inactive, was formed as a community-service organization with members from all branches of law enforcement.

His funeral will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Moye's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Willie H. Joyner. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Mr. Williams was born and raised in Greene County, where he attended area schools. He was a member of Moye's Chapel Church, Hope for All Lodge No. 275, Knights Phythia and Calumet Lodge No. 273, and Improve the Benevolent Protectors Order Elks of World.

Surviving are three sons, Milton Williams of Greenville, John L. Williams of Norwalk, Conn., and Paul Bynum of Stanford, Conn.; two daughters, Phyllis Williams of Farmville and Carolyn Young of Durham; a brother, James Williams of Farmville; five sisters, Nannie Newton and Mary Fields, both of Farmville, Ida McKenzie and Alberta Wilkins, both of Washington, D.C., and Annie Edwards of Norwalk, Conn.; 12 grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

The family will receive friends today from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. at Joyner Memorial Chapel, and other times will be at 105 Crestwood Drive. They will assemble there Saturday at 1 p.m. for the funeral procession.

Mississippi Museum Will Focus On Jewish Presence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UTICA, Miss. — The Museum of the Southern Jewish Experience will be the first hall of memories of its kind — in the Deep South and in the nation.

It opens early this fall.

"We're creating a model here that can be adopted by others. It's the story of small-town America and can be told anywhere in the country," said project founder Macy Hart.

Planners of the Utica museum say this project is overdue. Time and population shifts have already stolen away historic and religious treasures.

"We feel there is a great need to preserve the presence of Jews in both small and large communities," said project director Vicki Reikes Fox.

"Right now, in the small towns there is a great sense of urgency because so many young Jews have moved to the big cities, leaving their pasts behind," she said.

Jewish families settled the small Mississippi town of Marx, near Batesville, for example. The town has but a few descendants of its original families today.

"It's the story of small town America. Families settled in small towns, made a living, and then moved away. These families contributed to business, education and culture above their representation, however," Hart said.

The $540,000 museum was built under a grant from the Plough Foundation of Memphis, Tenn. It is located about 45 miles southwest of Jackson on the grounds of Henry S. Jacobs Camp for Living Judaism.

The building is open for tours by appointment. It includes a sanctuary, galleries, museum storage and office space.

Milton Grishman of Biloxi, B'nai B'rith president on the Coast, rates the modern building itself worth a visit. "It is really beautiful," he said.

Many American Jews on the Coast trace their family roots to Eastern Europe or Russia.

Hart, whose own father left Russia at 12 with only a pack on his back, said he hopes the Museum of Southern Jewish Experience sparks new interest in the regional history of American Jews.

Museum staff members will record and preserve the history and culture of Southern Jews. Money is a concern, however.

"We're looking for an angel," Hart said. "We need to raise $3 million to $5 million during the next three to five years."

The museum collection represents Jewish history and culture in Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee so far.

It will cover even more Southern states as gathering and preservation efforts expand, staff members said.

Items that will be housed in the museum include Torahs, breastplates, stained glass and other historic or religious artifacts which have been donated to the museum.

An ark and chandeliers from abandoned synagogues decorate the sanctuary. Wall exhibits tell the stories of Southern Jews with photographs and historical documents.

Jews in the South displayed two personalities, said Fox, a Hattiesburg native.

"By location and lifestyle they were Southerners — plantation owners who grew cotton and merchants who sold pecans. But by religion and heritage they were Jews, trying to keep a faith that was foreign in their new, mostly Christian, home," she said.

The museum will celebrate their unique past. Many were original settlers and community leaders in Southern towns — such as Kaplan, La., and Marx — and bigger cities such as New Orleans and Memphis.

The museum will feature exhibits of photography and art, offer seminars and conduct programs designed to educate both Jews and non-Jews.

The museum will open on Oct. 15, Fox said. Scheduled to speak is Rabbi Alexander Schindler, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Facts About The BIBLE

LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of I Samuel intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times.

DAVID AND SAUL

SAUL, WITH A LARGE ARMY OF PICKED MEN, SEARCHES IN THE WILDERNESS TO FIND AND DESTROY DAVID AND HIS SMALL ARMY OF FOLLOWERS....

... USING ALL AVAILABLE COVER IN THIS ROUGH LAND, DAVID AND HIS MEN FLEE DEEPER INTO THE HIDDEN REGIONS OF THE WILDERNESS....

WE MUST NOT LET SAUL FIND US, FOR HOW CAN I FIGHT AGAINST MY KING?!

...THE UNRELENTING SEARCH CONTINUES, BUT NOWHERE CAN A SINGLE TRACE OF DAVID'S SMALL ARMY BE FOUND!

I AM TIRED — HERE WE WILL REST!

WE SHALL PITCH OUR CAMP HERE, AND MAKE OUR FORAYS INTO ALL THE SURROUNDING COUNTRYSIDE UNTIL WE HAVE FOUND DAVID AND DESTROYED HIS THREAT TO MY THRONE IN ISRAEL!

BESIDE THE SLOPES OF THE HILL HACHILAH, KING SAUL GIVES THE ORDER TO ABNER, COMMANDER OF ALL HIS ARMIES, TO SET UP CAMP FROM WHICH THEY WILL BASE THEIR DAILY SEARCHES TO FIND AND ULTIMATELY DESTROY DAVID AND HIS SMALL BUT FAITHFUL ARMY!

Next Week
DAVID'S SPIES!

Young Adults Put Religion High On List Of Priorities

By George W. Cornell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK - Although modern society regularly is portrayed as becoming more secularized and less religious, the hard data dispute it. Results of a new study provide some added rebuttal in regard to a group almost invariably pictured as abandoning the faith of past eras - young people, particularly college kids. They've relaxed their views about sex, but they haven't shucked off religion.

To the contrary, the new findings are that 80 percent of them consider religion important in their lives, and 55 percent had attended worship services once or more in the month preceding the survey. Even more - 72 percent - had attended worship services in the previous six months. Half of them said they read the Bible at least occasionally. Only 20 percent termed religion "not very important." A tiny 2.3 percent called themselves atheists.

The figures, gathered by pollster George Gallup Jr. for the Christian Broadcasting Network, indicate a remarkable continuing strength of religious concern among the young. That steadfastness has turned up across the board in research data on the religious pulse of America. In a new book, "100 Questions and Answers: Religion in America," published by Gallup's Princeton (N.J.) Religion Research Association, he reviews current findings of high religious involvement and says:

"In 50 years the nation's social order has undergone rapid and profound transformations with little effect on measures of personal faith." In an earlier 57-page report, "Religion in America: 50 Years," summarizing findings for that period about religion, he says the key word for it is "stability." "Basic religious beliefs, and even religious practice, today differ relatively little from the levels recorded 50 years ago," he writes.

This also is documented in other recent books, including "Religious Indicators" in which the Rev. Andrew Greeley, priest-sociologist and novelist, summarizes survey findings over the last half century. He concludes that the pattern generally shows steadiness rather than change or decline. Another book, "Unsecular America," published by Erdmans, offers a similar accumulation of data.

However, the thesis persists among both religious and non-religious commentators that religion is in decline, giving way to secularism, materialism, scientism and hedonism. Greeley arranges figures over the years, showing that beliefs in basic doctrines, church attendance, prayer, organizational affiliation and activity have changed little since the 1940s. He says the data simply don't back the "conventional wisdom of many elite Americans" that the country is sinking into secularism. He says that view is propagated either by people who broke with their childhood religion and need to think what they did accords with the march of history or by religious leaders who do it to urge a return to past piety.

"The secularization model, which has never been confirmed by the data and has often been disproved ... nonetheless remains as strong as ever in scholarly and journalistic circles, unshaken and apparently unshakeable," he says. The recent Gallup poll, involving questionnaires completed by 539 students at 100 colleges across the country, found that religious concern remains high, but views of sexuality and family life have changed. Two-thirds of the women said their ideal life would include marriage, children and also a full-time job, while only 9 percent envisioned an ideal life as being married and staying home with children.

Local Debs Make Debut In Raleigh

By Priscilla Brown
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Tonight's the night. At precisely 8 p.m., they will begin their parade, one by one, down the staircase inside the Raleigh Civic Center. Proud fathers will be waiting at the bottom, thinking, perhaps with every step, that they have lost their little girls.

And even as each of the 254 young women slips her gloved hand into her father's arm, she will be confirming that loss. Tonight she makes her debut, her formal bow to society.

Tradition says she steps away from childish things and into womanhood. Even in 1989.

But tradition holds a special place in the South, and as the young women are escorted into the historic cartwheel figure on the floor of that huge building, they take the place of hundreds of other young women who went before.

Among them are eight area debutantes responding to the call of the Terpsichorean Club. Three are from Farmville, three from the Snow Hill area and two from Greenville.

This weekend marks the climax of a summer of entertaining, travel and social gatherings. It was an honor to be chosen, they say, because their calling represents respect for the work their families have done in North Carolina.

"It is a family time," said Shannon Howard of Greenville. "It is recognition for those families who have made social and cultural contributions in the state.

"I enjoy being a part of it."

Miss Howard, a sophomore at Wake Forest University, is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Malcolm J. Howard. Her father is her chief marshal, or escort, and William Holsten Taft III, also of Greenville, is her assistant marshal.

It is a tradition the Howard family enjoys for various reasons, among them the fact that Shannon's mother made her debut in Honolulu when she came of age.

Margaret Alexander Stowe, of Farmville, is following in the steps of her mother and grandmother. "I have a bond with them now," she said.

Miss Stowe, a sophomore at Mary Baldwin College in Virginia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Henry Stowe of Farmville. Last week, she was named an assistant ball leader, which means she will be one of the first women introduced.

Her assistant marshal is William Alexander Allen IV of Farmville. "I've met different girls from all over the state," she said. "It really is a great opportunity to meet different people, and since I go to school in Virginia, I have enjoyed meeting other North Carolinians."

Like Miss Stowe and Miss Howard, Amy Louise Mewborn is a part of family history. Tonight, when she takes her spot on the floor, she'll be wearing the debut gown worn by her aunt in 1959 and her cousin in 1984. Another cousin, Richard Forbes Gorman Jr. of New Bern, will serve as her assistant marshal.

"I've definitely grown during the summer," she said. "When you're in a variety of situations, you learn to carry yourself with grace. You become more confident, and you are able to handle yourself better."

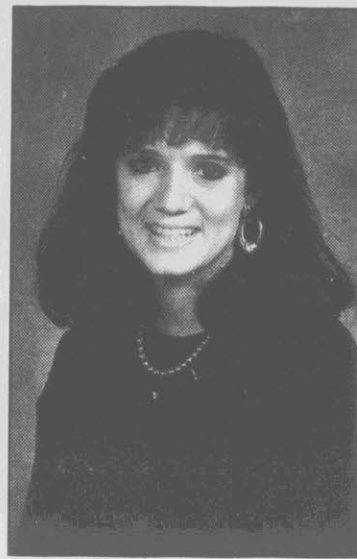

A sophomore at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Miss Mewborn is studying to become a pharmacist.

Partly because Sarah Hodges Edwards' mother made her debut in 1964, she is looking forward to the experience for herself. "It's something I'll always remember," she said.

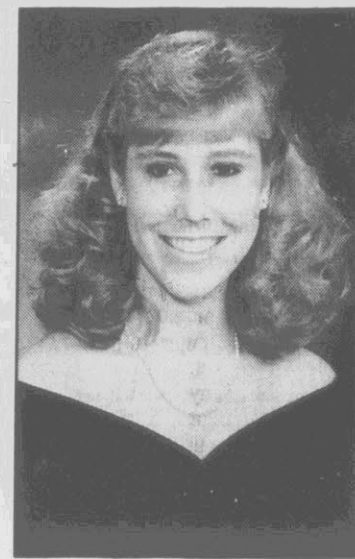

But the weekend will also offer a special opportunity for the Meredith College sophomore to spend some time with her father. Sallie, as her friends call her, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Clay Edwards Jr. of Snow Hill. And she says this weekend will bring her even closer to Dad.

Reade Dawson of Stantonsburg is her assistant marshal.

Another Snow Hill resident, Barbara Elizabeth Miller, is looking forward to time with her father. "We're really close anyway," she said. "I'm going to enjoy it."

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Patrick Miller, and she is a psychology major at North Carolina State University. Her assistant marshal is Patrick Christian Miller of Snow Hill.

Hope Taylor Edmondson of Maury is also a student at UNC. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jackson Edmondson Jr., and she, like the other debutantes, will attend a weekend full of activities.

The ball is just one event during three days of socializing, which began Thursday. This morning, mothers were entertained at a luncheon, while debs and their fathers enjoyed brunch at the Angus Barn. "A lot is oriented toward father and daughter," said Julie Ailene Blackwood of Farmville. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Walter Blackwood Jr., her assistant marshal is Warren Spencer DuBose of Kinston.

"It's going to be a lot of fun," she said of the weekend. "I'm excited, because a lot of my friends are coming to see me."

Dances, brunches, parties, dinners. Merely a social function?

No, says Margaret Hooker Wooten of Greenville. "It's a family time, it's an honor, it's special," she said. "No matter what, you can't stereotype something like this. You have to try it to find out."

"It has helped me a lot to meet other people," she said. "to overcome any kind of shyness."

Miss Wooten is a sophomore at UNC considering a major in biology. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Isler Wooten Jr. of Greenville, and her assistant marshal is John Steven Rhodes, also of Greenville. Her cousin and her aunt, both of Goldsboro, made their debut, and she's more excited than nervous.

"It's going to be fun," she said. On Saturday, there'll be dancing from morning to night, but it's a cinch that each of the college sophomores will be enjoying a return to their own element when the balls strike up Saturday night.

Then, the newly presented debs and their dates will rock to the music of Something Special and The Usual at the Radisson.

After all, social propriety isn't the only reason for Terpsichorean tradition.

Sometimes, the occasion calls for a little plain, old-fashioned fun.

Making Debut

Barbara Lynn Edwards, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien Edwards of Lenoir makes her debut tonight during the 63rd annual Terpsichorean Club ball in Raleigh. A sophomore at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, she is the granddaughter of Mrs. John Sutton of Greenville. Her assistant marshal is David Sigmon.

Comedian Says God Has Sense Of Humor

By Beth Ann Krier
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

SEATTLE — Joe Kogel, the cancer survivor who turned his disease into a traveling one-man show, is publicly ruminating on God's twisted sense of humor.

Here at the Seattle Mime Theatre, he's informing his audience about the ambitious comedian who wanted to do more than make humanity laugh. The guy aspired to make God laugh.

"Actually, my first thought was, was it possible to make God stop laughing? It's not hard to imagine — just read the newspapers," Kogel tells a full house gathered for yet another performance of his autobiographical show, "Life and Death, Actual Stories of Whimsy and Alertness."

A former sportswriter who at age 25 was diagnosed with malignant melanoma, an often-fatal skin cancer, Kogel talks a lot about God. Impishly pacing in blue jeans, oxford cloth shirt and red leather shoes, he warns his listeners, for instance, to be cautious about what they pray for: "I don't think God takes pleasure in disappointing people, but God is a kidder. If you can learn something and she can have a good time teaching it, so much the better."

The storyteller provides the audience an immediate case in point. Kogel, who is now 33 and has been free of detectable cancer for seven years, once beseeched God for the opportunity to do "Life and Death" Off Broadway. Seattle wasn't exactly what he had in mind, but technically, the request was fulfilled. To a T. The theater where he is performing his show through September, is ironically located a half block off Broadway ... on Seattle's Capitol Hill, not far from Kogel's home.

"I'm not saying God is cheap, simply efficient," he says, addressing what he calls the "prayer specificity" issue.

"My motto is: Love like a poet; pray like a lawyer." The crowd howls.

But if the New York City-born performer has a pirouette he most frequently unfurls during his 1½-hour comedic philosophy session, it is not about the perfect way to pray or how to outsmart life-threatening illness. Rather, it's about embracing all of life, especially the yucky parts.

Kogel claims cancer actually turned out to be a good deal for him. He insists that "steering into the skid" of his fast-approaching mortality forced him to learn how to really live.

"I call it the Kogel Effect," he says of the notion he describes on stage and in an autobiography he is writing. "The worst thing in your life, or in any given situation, may contain the seeds of the best."

Kogel allows that he spent a lot of time crying in the "first rush of terror" after the diagnosis. In the most recent version of the constantly changing show, Kogel doesn't discuss the crying or many other specifics of his healing adventure, which involved traditional mainstream medicine and alternative holistic approaches.

He is an artist — a mixture of clown, sage, fool and teddy bear — and he works indirectly, often through metaphor. He employs stories, fantasies, touches of slapstick and even an "obligatory" mime interlude, given his current venue.

But what Kogel thinks he serves up best are his "moments," those epiphanies of daily life that bring sudden, intuitive understanding.

"Life is filled with moments and the more open to them you are, the richer your life becomes. Not easier, not better — richer," he emphasizes to the audience, observing that a pivotal moment occurred in his life when a deer dashed in front of his Honda on an Oregon freeway. After it gave him a first-class scare, the deer suddenly pranced onto his hood and deftly avoided getting creamed by flying over the top of the car.

"It's as though the deer was saying, 'Joe, let's speak metaphorically. You're driving down the freeway of your life in the Honda of your body, and you see something about to cross your path. And based on your long experience of problem solving and problem not-solving, you know that this is gonna be a mess ...

it's going to end in tragedy."

"The deer seemed to be saying, 'Well, that may be true, Joe, but then again ...'" — Kogel mimics the deer's leap — "... maybe it's not."

Records Of Private Citizens Should Be Protected

Dear Abby: I am very much upset after having read about the 19-year-old man who became obsessed with a 21-year-old movie actress, so he tracked her down and fatally shot her!

What is even more frightening is the fact that he was able to obtain this girl's home address through her motor vehicle registration. I understand that because this information is a matter of public record, it is accessible to anyone who wants it.

Abby, I think we need some laws to protect public figures from people who are obsessed with celebrities. Remember what happened to Jodie

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Foster, John Lennon and Theresa Saldana? And now Rebecca Schaeffer can be added to that list.

What do you think? -- Heartsick In Oregon

Dear Heartsick: I think the home addresses of private citizens -- regardless of whether they're celebrities or not -- should not be available to anyone without the knowledge and consent of the people who are being sought. It's not only a matter of privacy; it's a matter of security.

Dear Abby: I was a common-law wife 40 years ago. John and I couldn't marry because his wife wouldn't give him a divorce. We had two beautiful daughters. John died when the girls were 5 and 7. Now they are grown and want to join the Mayflower Society. They need some vital records in order to do so, and I've put them off as long as possible.

Can I get a back-dated marriage certificate? I have John's death certificate and my daughters' birth certificates, showing John as their father; now all I need is a back-dated marriage certificate. After John died, I married again and had a third child, but my only concern at this time is getting a back-dated marriage certificate so my daughters can qualify for the Mayflower Society. Thank you for any help you can give me. Please hurry. -- Waiting In North Carolina

Dear Waiting: Your common-law marriage would not have been valid under any circumstances, since John was already married. Even if you had been married by someone authorized to perform a marriage ceremony, your marriage would have been bigamous and, therefore, invalid.

You cannot get a "back-dated marriage certificate" because the marriage you describe as "common-law" was clearly invalid. Sorry, but your daughters are out of luck so far as joining the Mayflower Society -- if their eligibility depends upon their parental ancestry and the legality of your relationship with their father.

Dear Abby: The letter from the wife who resented her husband's looking through her purse reminded me of my own experience.

When I was a bride, I was shocked to learn that my husband didn't know the meaning of "privacy," and I caught him going through my purse. Of course I told him in no uncertain terms that I didn't like it, but it took him a while to realize that I meant business because I caught him at it a second time.

Finally, I wrote a note and stuck it in my purse. It read: "Freddy, did you find what you were looking for? If not, please let me know and I will help you find it." Then I signed my name.

That's the last time he ever looked in my purse. -- Diane (My Real Name)

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 3840, Los Angeles, CA 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Couple Marry

ENGELHARD -- Shari Leigh Tomlinson and Clifton Milton James were united in marriage Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Engelhard Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Tomlinson of Englewood, and Sallie K. Miller of 2000 Quarter are parents of the bride.

The wedding ceremony was officiated by the Rev. James H. Davenport. Nuptial music was presented by organist Kay Gibbs and vocalist Tynia Harris.

Pamela T. Mann of Engelhard, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Tina Basnight of Engelhard, Lisa Gibbs of Greenville, Sandee Rhodes of Ayden, and Dena Spencer of Norfolk, Va. Junior bridesmaids were Leslie Miller of Garner, Katie Michaelis and Rachel Michaelis of Wilmington, nieces of the bridegroom. Kristen Mann of Engelhard, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The brother of the bridegroom, Ward Miller of Garner was best man, and Justin Gibbs of Engelhard, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. Ushers included David Landing, Mark Parker and Mark Respass, all of Greenville, and Billie Mann of Engelhard.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a cathedral-length gown beaded with seed pearls and iridescents. The sweetheart neckline had floral schiffli lace designs, satin pouf sleeves edged in lace and basque waistline which flowed into an A-line skirt with satin bows and strands of pearls. Matching lace edged the skirt and train. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk white roses, larkspur, lily-of-the-valley and variegated ivy with lace ribbon streamers and sprays of pearls.

The attendants wore similar formal gowns of royal blue and carried colonial silk bouquets of mauve roses, stephanotis and ivy tied with sheer ivory streamers. The flower girl wore a white lace floor-length dress and carried a white wicker basket of flowers.

A reception was held after the ceremony.

The couple will live in Winterville after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina.

The bride and bridegroom graduated from Mattamuskeet School and Pitt Community College. She is employed by the law office of Frank Wooten and he is employed by Computerland of Greenville.

Pre-nuptial parties honoring the couple included an after-rehearsal party, pig picking, bird seed bagging party, miscellaneous shower and linen and lingerie shower.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HOGS: The trend is steady to 50 cents lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 42.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 42.50; Wilson 42.50. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 36.00; Wallace 37.50; Spivey's Corner 38.00; Rowland 38.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 58.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 61 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a preliminary weighted average of 60.25. The market is higher and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 2,652,000, compared to 2,369,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market is lower. Supply fully adequate for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound for hens or seven pounds at farm for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday was 15 cents at farm buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady, 2.38-2.58 in East and mostly 2.63-2.73 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 7 cents higher at 6.24-6.54 in East and mostly 6.14-6.24 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.56-3.77; new crop soybeans 5.48-5.79; P.I.K. certificates are steady and ranged from 100 percent to 103 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a broad loss today, extending its week-long slump.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 45.21 points in the last three sessions since Labor Day, fell another 14.06 to 2,692.82 by noon-time today on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 413 up, 878 down and 39 unchanged.

Analysts said traders' spirits got a small lift from spotty declines this morning in open-market interest rates.

But they said doubts persisted about the chances for any concerted move in the near future by the Federal Reserve to relax its credit policy further.

View History As It's Made Learn To Read

Right now there are over 27 million American adults who can't read well enough to fill out a job application, read the label on a medicine bottle or read the front page news. By 1990 it is estimated that 3 out of 4 jobs in the U.S. will require an education beyond high school. As a result, basic education will become increasingly important, and those who lack the ability to read, write and do common tasks in the work force will more than likely become unemployed altogether.

Is this the legacy we want to leave our children? If not, help mold the future by helping a person learn to read.

assistant coach at the University of Georgia, will be making his second appearance as a head coach. For three seasons, he served at Wyoming, where he was 14-20-1.

Ironically, he was replaced by Pat Dye, who left East Carolina at the end of the 1979 season.

Now, the circle completed, Lewis is at East Carolina, seeking to snap a five-year losing skid. The Pirates have had only two winning years, 1982 and 1983, since Dye left.

Providing the opposition for Lewis' debut will be Bowling Green — and again, there is an irony. ECU chancellor Richard Eakin served as a vice-chancellor at Bowling Green prior to coming to Greenville.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium. A crowd in excess of 30,000 is expected.

Lewis will unveil his version of the I-formation offense and a 5-2 defensive alignment. Key among the offensive players will be senior quarterback Travis Hunter, who is seeking to become the Pirates' all-time offensive producer this season. Behind Hunter, who has started nearly every game since his freshman year, the Pirates are expected to be much more air-minded than in any year since the Sonny Randle era, when most of the school's offensive records were set.

Bowling Green, however, will have something to say about the outcome of the Lewis debut, however. The Falcons, who themselves are riding a three-year losing string, return a veteran team that is also air-minded.

And Lewis warns that their 2-8-1 record of last year cannot be taken that seriously this season.

"One of the things they have prided themselves is to be a well-coached, sound, fundamental football team," Lewis said, adding that the Falcons don't go in for a lot of frills, even on defense. "They have a great plan and do things extremely well."

Lewis said that Bowling Green's passing attack is a concern for the Pirate staff. "Their key performers are returning, and for the most part, are seniors," Lewis said. "They build their offense around throwing the ball, but they won't neglect their running backs. But they want to move the football by throwing."

Senior quarterback Rick Dackin returns for his fourth year as a starter, having already thrown for over 4,000 yards despite missing six games last year with a broken wrist. "He's a proven performer," Lewis said.

And Dackin has outstanding receivers to throw to, including split end Reggie Thornton (180 career catches), flanker Ronald Heard (80 career catches) and tight end Kyle Heckman (70 career catches).

"Last year, they completed 204 passes and 150 of those catches are coming back (in these three)," Lewis said. "Dackin is a big, strong kid who's going to stand in the pocket, but he's a mobile quarterback who takes very few sacks. He's a smart decision maker who gets rid of the ball. They use their backs out of the backfield and they catch the ball very well."

And, the Falcons are not afraid to go deep, testing the secondary with their great speed in Thornton and Heard. The latter is a star in the Mid-American Conference, finishing second in the league's 100-meter dash, third in the 200-meter and winning the long jump. "And they say that in a foot race, (Thornton) will outrun him every time."

Like East Carolina, the Falcons return a fairly experienced line, with four people back, although three of them are in new positions.

"On defense, one word describes them: hard-nosed," Lewis said. "They will come after you. (Inside linebacker Larry) Lambright is the ring-leader. They will try to out-physical you. That's their style of play."

To top it off, Lewis points out, the Falcons have an excellent kicking game. Their field-goal kicker appears to have a range of close to 50 yards and has been perfect on points after touchdown kicks. Their punter averages over 40 yards a kick and the use their two wide receivers as kick returners, hoping to take advantage of their great speed.

"Overall, we have one heck of a football team coming in here," Lewis said.

To win, Lewis said the Pirates must eliminate the big play. "We've got to make 'em work, make 'em earn every yard they get. That's what they do. If we can (do that), contain their speed; everything else comes off that premise."

Hunter, who has been much maligned as a passer, will be shooting to move up on the all time list — a list he is close to topping. Hunter has completed 170 passes — just 28 shy of Carl Summerell's record of 198. He has thrown for 2,450 yards, some 400 short of Summerell's 2,859. And he also has 3,320 yards in total offense, some 560 shy of Bill Cline's

Washington State Offense Tough In 46-41 Victory

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PROVO, Utah — Coach Mike Price says there is a way to stop Washington State's offense. That should come as news to the Brigham Young defense.

Brigham Young, ranked 24th and playing at home in Cougar Stadium, scored 41 points against Washington State Thursday night. That should be enough points to win any game; on this occasion, it wasn't.

With Washington State riding an offense that Price called "the best in the nation today," the visiting Cougars outlasted the home-standing Cougars 46-41.

"We can score against anybody because of our offense," Price said. "I'm not surprised we scored 46 points tonight against BYU. The only thing that is going to stop our offense is ourselves."

It was a glorious return to Utah for Price, who never had a chance to go against Brigham Young in his eight years as coach at Weber State, 78 miles to the north.

"It means a lot to me because I respect him a lot," Price said of BYU coach LaVell Edwards.

"Our inexperience showed up tonight," Edwards said. "Our effort was good in all areas. We almost pulled it off. We have a lot of mistakes to clear up.

"We are still a very young team," Edwards said. "I told them we are still 1-0 in the (Western Athletic Conference)."

BYU is 1-1 overall and Washington State is 2-0.

"There's no one in the country who's 2-0," Price said. "Then how should we be ranked?"

Price said Washington State featured sustained scoring drives in its first victory, 41-7 against Division I-AA member Idaho. "This week, we had big plays."

"Down after down, we did a good job on them," BYU linebacker Chad Robinson, "but those big plays really hurt us."

Washington State's Brad Gossen passed for 317 yards and two scores and Steve Broussard caught a 66-yard scoring pass and ran for three other touchdowns.

Agassi Survives Crowd, Connors To Win

Valiant Effort By 'Old Man' Falls Short In Five Sets

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The noise started in the upper reaches of the National Tennis Center, then tumbled down section by section until soon Andre Agassi was standing in the middle of a maelstrom.

His baleful eyes seem to plead for help. He might as well have been trying to hail a taxi on a rainy night in Times Square. This crowd was not going to let up with Jimmy Connors battling for survival against the teen-aged heartthrob with the frosted shoulder-length hair and denim shorts.

Agassi knew this would happen. New Yorkers are emotional tennis fans when it comes to old favorites. They shook the place for Chris Evert's exit a couple of days ago. Agassi watched that and said to himself, "Andre, you're in for it."

When Connors got into a fifth-set jam against the kid in Thursday's U.S. Open quarterfinal, the fans rallied to the side of their old pal. For awhile, Jimbo responded, breaking Agassi's service and holding his own, pushing the final set score to 4-5 and cheering himself on.

"Give this guy a chance to choke!" Connors shouted, pumping his fists, urging himself on through the din.

"I could just feel the pressure," Agassi said. "I've never felt it like that in my entire life. The crowd wasn't helping, but I can understand why."

Connors responded, with a little help from his shaken opponent. "He was gagging, but I started out too late in the fifth to give him a chance to," Connors said. "He was starting to. You feel it. The sting was off his shot. He was just playing the ball back, not doing anything with it. He gave me every opportunity in the last game. He did nothing exceptional."

But the 0-4 mountain was just too tall to climb. "I drew my final burst of energy, but I let it go one game too late," Connors said. "I wish it was 1-3 instead of 0-4. One game earlier in the fifth and it could have been a different story."

"If I had won that game to go 5-4

... I'll dream about that. That would be a fun dream. That would be something."

Agassi survived the crisis, the crowd and Connors for the first five-set victory of his career, 6-1, 4-6, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4. That put him in the semifinals against top-seeded Ivan Lendl, who eliminated No. 9 Tim Mayotte 6-4, 6-0, 6-1.

Lendl's victory was his 14th straight against the outgunned Mayotte, who was suitably impressed.

"He's just too good," Mayotte said. "Nobody else combines that consistency and power. He seems to get better all the time. My serve doesn't penetrate him at all. I don't have any weapons that could hurt him."

Lendl wasn't so sure about that. "He can hurt me at times," he said of Mayotte. "But I can adjust to it."

Lendl shrugged off his domination of Mayotte. "You start every match from zero," he said. "You don't get points for playing previous matches." Connors rode a roller coaster throughout the match against Agassi. He lost the first set 6-1 and was in trouble in the second, battling dizziness and nausea that almost took him out of the match. Somehow he survived to win that set and the next when Agassi's game suddenly disappeared.

"I played on automatic pilot and guts," Connors said. "I wasn't feeling my best. I didn't think I could continue. It was like I was there but I wasn't there."

Just as suddenly, the momentum swung back to Agassi in the fourth set and by the time Connors got it back in gear in the fifth, it was just too late.

"I played a good match," Connors said, "and he had to beat me by my forceful aggressiveness in the end to win."

Agassi did that and conquered the crowd as well, although the experience left the young man slightly shaken.

"I just hope," he said, "when and if I ever get to 37 years old, still playing tennis, I would hope the people stand behind me like they did him."

The First Becomes The Last

Woody Peele

Last year's champion, Vickie Spivey, is off to a good start this year — at least as far as most of the rest of us is concerned.

Spivey, who works in display advertising, tied with news writer Greg Laudick for (last) place after the first week's pickings last time out. Spivey and Laudick both finished with 6-6 records, and the rest of us were just as glad to see it.

But, Spivey warns, the season is still very, very young and it's not how you start but how you finish.

The rest of us are looking for her to finish right where she is and quit embarrassing our male egos. Vickie, however, continues to wave the banner of equal rights as she looks to climb back to the fore this week.

Elsewhere, city editor Tom Baines and assistant sports editor Tom Morris tied for third place with 7-5 records, while sports writer Mike Grizzard and I finished up tied for first with 9-3 marks.

Hopefully, we can continue that trend throughout the remaining weeks of the pickings.

East Carolina opens its season this week against Bowling Green and the panel will take a look at that, along with the rest of the top area collegiate games.

Returning to the high school activities, my record last week was 6-1, bringing me to 12-4 for the young season.

Farmville Central, off to a 2-0 start, visits Louisburg, which hasn't won in its two outings. The Jaguars must only watch out for a let-down and a look ahead to next week's game with Conley. But, all things being equal, the Jaguars should come out on top this one, 28-7.

Ayden-Grifton, after last week's spanking by Conley, travels to Plymouth, a 2-A team that is on a roll this year. The Vikings have one of the top quarterbacks in the East and should be hard to handle. The Chargers, meanwhile, will be without a couple of top people. Plymouth is the choice here, 35-6.

Conley, meanwhile, visits North Pitt, where the Panthers are looking for their first win of the year. Conley was impressive in its win over Ayden-Grifton last Friday night and should be set for another win here. Sheer numbers are the factor here as Conley takes a 38-7 win.

Elsewhere, it will be Jamesville over Chocowinity, North Lenoir over Greene Central, Washington over Pamlico and Roanoke over Williamston.

Rose High School is at home to Eastern Wayne and probably will be without the services of top running back Maurice Hines. Hines suffered a separated shoulder in last week's win over Jacksonville, but could play if needed this week. He probably won't be needed. Our choice is Rose, taking a 27-0 victory. The panel goes with Rose, 6-0.

East Carolina entertains Bowling Green on Saturday in the opening game of the year. The Pirates are hopeful of a good start to what may prove to be their first winning season in six years. Bowling Green, meanwhile, wants to snap a three-year losing string. Both teams promise high-powered aerial attacks, and I wouldn't be surprised to see this turn into a high-scoring horse race. My pick here is East Carolina, 42-38. The panel goes with the Pirates also, 6-0.

Our other consensus picks: Duke over Northwestern; North Carolina over VMI; Penn State over Virginia; Missouri over Texas Christian; Florida State and Clemson, a toss-up; West Virginia over Maryland; N.C. State over Georgia Tech; Wake Forest over Appalachian State; Florida over Mississippi and Texas A&M over Washington.

Rocky Mount Still Leads In Daily Reflector Top 12

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Rocky Mount sits atop the Daily Reflector Top 12 Prep Football Poll for the second week in a row after improving to 2-0 with a 16-6 win over Tarboro last week.

The Gryphons received three first-place votes for 36 points. Rose remains second while Farmville Central climbs to third. Rounding out the list are Bertie, Havelock, Plymouth, West Craven, North Lenoir, East Carteret, Northern Nash, Wilson Fike and North Edgecombe.

The poll rates teams from the Big East, Eastern Plains, Northeastern, Colonial, Coastal and Tobacco Belt conferences regardless of classification.

The Top 12

- Rocky Mount: Jeff Thomas carried the ball seven times for 109 yards to lead the Gryphons. Tarboro had 63 rushing attempts to 24 for Rocky Mount and 18 first downs to eight for Rocky Mount but came up short on the scoreboard. The Gryphons host intra-county rival Southern Nash tonight.
- Rose: The Rampants won a defensive battle by a 13-7 count over Mideastern Conference member Jacksonville. Quarterback Columbus Grice provided the offensive spark. They play another Mideastern Conference foe tonight when Eastern Wayne (1-1) visits.
- Farmville Central: Quarterback Morris Foreman and running back Rasel Daniels guided the Jaguars past Roanoke 38-6. They visit Louisburg tonight.

- Bertie: Tracy Leary rushed for 127 yards and scored four touchdowns to power the Falcons over Williamston 54-0. They are open this week then entertain Rose next Friday.
- Havelock: Vincent Norris threw one touchdown pass and returned a fumble 67 yards for another TD as the Rams squeaked out their second close decision, nipping Wilmington Laney 14-12. They visit Kinston tonight.
- Plymouth: Shawn Walker completed 15-of-29 passes for 245 yards and five touchdowns as the Vikings steam-rolled Perquimans 54-0. They host Ayden-Grifton tonight.
- West Craven: The aerial combination of quarterback Kevin Holzworth and receiver Kip Bryan and the strong running Lee Becton lifted the Eagles over Greene Central 26-7. They travel to New Bern tonight.

- North Lenoir: Tony Sutton (91), Terrance Outlaw (95) and Tim Smith (70) combined for 256 yards as the Hawks ruled a showdown with intra-county rival South Lenoir 20-10. They host Greene Central tonight.
- East Carteret: The Mariners overcame 11 penalties and seven fumbles to defeat Manteo 21-9. They host West Carteret tonight.
- Northern Nash: Robbie Williams intercepted four passes and returned a kickoff 70 yards as the Knights defeated SouthWest Edgecombe 23-12. They host Tarboro tonight.
- Wilson Fike: The Golden Demons slipped seven notches in the poll after falling to Fayetteville Douglas Byrd. They entertain winless SouthWest Edgecombe tonight.

- North Edgecombe: Chris Bryant rushed for 204 yards and two touchdowns to help the Warriors pick up their first win, a 16-6 triumph over North Pitt. They are open tonight.

- Northern Nash: Robbie Williams intercepted four passes and returned a kickoff 70 yards as the Knights defeated SouthWest Edgecombe 23-12. They host Tarboro tonight.
- Wilson Fike: The Golden Demons slipped seven notches in the poll after falling to Fayetteville Douglas Byrd. They entertain winless SouthWest Edgecombe tonight.

- North Edgecombe: Chris Bryant rushed for 204 yards and two touchdowns to help the Warriors pick up their first win, a 16-6 triumph over North Pitt. They are open tonight.

- Northern Nash: Robbie Williams intercepted four passes and returned a kickoff 70 yards as the Knights defeated SouthWest Edgecombe 23-12. They host Tarboro tonight.

Missed Putt At 18 Drops Estes Out Of The Lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — When Bob Estes missed a putt at the end of his opening round in the B.C. Open, it only cost him a share of the lead. Earlier in the year, he was missing putts that prevented him from simply making the cut in tournaments.

"Not to make excuses, but I was just out of college (Texas) and hadn't been on the Tour too long," Estes, the 1988 College Player of the Year, said of his early troubles. He missed the cut in 12 of his first 16 events.

"I was spending a lot of time on the business end of the game, setting up a management company, trying to find the clubs I wanted. A variety of reasons kept me from practicing," Estes said.

Estes has made the cut in six of his last seven tournaments, and on Thursday was among the leaders in the B.C. Open over the par-71, 6,966-yard En-Joie Golf Club.

When he bogied the 18th hole, he settled for a 66 that left him a shot behind Keith Clearwater.

"I had a chance to make 7 or 8

(under), but I came up short a couple times and then had the bogeys. But I'm playing well," Estes said.

"I think this course suits my game. I like the greens firm and fast because I don't have a high trajectory on my shots. It's to my advantage when I can go to my pitching and chipping game."

Clearwater and Estes lead a tightly bunched field heading into Friday's second round.

Fulton Allem, Gil Morgan and Dave Eichelberger were two strokes behind after the first 18 holes, seven others were at 68 and two dozen more checked in with 69s.

Allem, Morgan and Eichelberger teed off in the morning and were leading at 4-under-par when the afternoon round began.

Clearwater, 30, who hasn't won on the PGA Tour since 1987 when he became the first rookie in a decade to win two tournaments in his first year, started slowly. He had only a birdie on the par-5 third hole to show after his first six holes.

But he strung three birdies together to finish the front nine at 4-under. He took over the lead on the par-5 11th hole, two-putting from 35 feet for a birdie. He added another birdie on the 13th to get to six under.

Clearwater parred his last five holes, then headed straight back to his hotel room.

"I'm really hammered. I've got the worst cold. I'm going home to lay down," Clearwater said as he left the clubhouse.

Estes, who started on the back nine, had four birdies on the back and three on the front. He sandwiched his round with bogies on the first and last holes.

Doug Tewell used a 2-iron for a hole-in-one on the 215-yard, par-3 fourth hole but finished at 74. Jim Thorpe hit a 7-iron 172 yards into the cup on the par-3 16th. He was in the group at 69.

Oklahoma Festival May Have Had Bigger Impact

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The 1989 U.S. Olympic Festival may have surpassed the 1987 festival in North Carolina in terms of economic impact, the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce says.

The chamber reported Thursday that the 10-day sports festival in July added almost $46 million to the Oklahoma economy.

Chamber of Commerce researchers surveyed area businesses, counted participants and added construction costs to estimate that $26.8 million was spent in Oklahoma City and surrounding communities as a result of the festival in July, the chamber said.

After using multipliers ranging from 1.16 to 2.42 to reflect how money is recycled in the economy, researchers determined that the festival had a $45.78 million impact on the local economy, said Clay Bennett, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Festival '89 and vice chairman of the chamber's events division.

Chamber President Jimmy Lyles said that figure is conservative, but it is still larger than the estimated impact of the 1987 festival in North Carolina, which reported a local impact of about $40 million.

Chamber officials said they believe their estimates of the impact are conservative because their formula uses small multipliers compared to the tourism industry, which uses multipliers as high as seven.

Lyles said that Oklahoma City area businesses were very positive about the impact of the festival.

"Overall, everyone that we talked with thought there was an impact there. It helped their businesses at a time when business usually drops off a bit," Lyles said.

He said the festival already has generated new interest in Oklahoma City as a host for other activities.

"We have already gotten feedback from some of the sports associations that were here for the festival who want us to bid on other events," Lyles said.

While the Oklahoma City chamber did not measure the economic impact of the festival beyond the metropolitan area, Oklahoma Centennial Sports President Lee Allan Smith said the festival brought money to other communities around the state — including Lawton and Stillwater and communities involved in the torch run.

The chamber report said $7.9 million was spent in the Oklahoma City area by out of town visitors, $10.3 million by local residents, $3 million on tickets, $3.8 million on construction and $1.8 million on employees.

Lyles said spending by residents was included in the impact study because it was money that might have been spent out of state if not for the festival.

er record. He stands third on each of the first two lists and fourth on the other.

Lewis continues to fine-tune his (er) also. In a late move this year, he shifted George Koonce, a 235-pound junior, to starting defensive end and moved Anthony Thompson (6-1, 229, Sr.) over to the other side to share starting duties with Brian McPhatter (6-2, 203, Sr.).

Another move on defense shifted true freshman Travis Render (5-10, 180) to second team behind starter Chris Hall (6-2, 185, So.).

The Pirates will take to the road for the first time next Saturday, visiting the University of Cincinnati. They are back home the following week against Illinois State.

HERE'S WHO MAKES OUR LIFETIME GUARANTEE ON CAR REPAIRS POSSIBLE.

Because we offer the free Lifetime Service Guarantee on car repairs, my job as service manager is a little tougher. I have to make sure car repairs are done right the first time. Because if they're not, it's our problem, not yours. Here's how the Lifetime Service Guarantee works. If you pay for any covered repair and it has to be done again, we fix it free. That's free parts and free labor. For as long as you own your Ford, Lincoln, Mercury, Merkur or Ford light truck.

The Lifetime Service Guarantee covers thousands of parts and repairs. And it doesn't matter how old your vehicle is, how many miles are on it, or even where you bought it. Add all this up and you've got the best car repair guarantee in America.

Ask us to see a copy of the Lifetime Service Guarantee. Then give us a chance to turn our guarantee into a lifetime reality.

Bulls' Jordan Married In Saturday Ceremony

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan was married over the weekend to a Chicago woman in a quickly arranged early morning ceremony, a wedding chapel owner said.

Charlotte Richards, owner of the Little White Wedding Chapel, said Jordan and Juanita Vanoy were married early Saturday in a brief ceremony at her chapel.

"They just had a regular ceremony," Richards said Thursday. "It was all done in very nice taste."

"I consider this to be my private life and I have no comment to make on it," Jordan was quoted as saying in today's editions of the Chicago Sun-Times. The newspaper said Jordan was reached by telephone at the La Costa (Calif.) Hotel and Spa, where he was helping to sponsor a charity golf tournament for the United Negro College Fund.

"I can't comment on his personal business," said Jordan's assistant, Pam Isenberg.

"We really haven't heard from him," said Bulls spokeswoman Joyce Szymanski.

The Clark County Marriage License bureau confirmed that a license was taken out in the couple's names. The license listed Jordan, 26, as a Highland Park, Ill., resident, while Vanoy was listed as a 30-year-old from Chicago.

Richards said the couple came unannounced with four guests in taxicabs to her chapel at 3:30 a.m. Saturday. She said other people waiting to get married in the chapel asked for autographs prior to the 10-minute ceremony.

Rampants Win By Forfeit; Ridgcroft Downs Knights

The Rose High School boys' soccer team was the beneficiary of a 1-0 forfeit win Thursday afternoon when Southern Wayne failed to show for a non-conference match.

The match was scheduled for a 5 p.m. start at Meadowbrook Park. The Saints, in only their second year of fielding a team, had not arrived by 5:45 so the Rampants were awarded the win.

Rose will open the Big East Conference season Tuesday at home against Northern Nash at 5 p.m.

Ridgcroft 4, Greenville Christian 2.

Billy Mizzelli recorded a hat trick (three goals) to lead Ridgcroft Academy over Greenville Christian in boys' soccer match Thursday, 4-2.

The match was the season-opener for the Knights. They travel to Wilmington Christian tonight.

Mizzelli got Ridgcroft on the board at the 22:30 of the first half but senior Jeff Allen, who finished with eight shots and scored two goals, pulled Greenville Christian even less than three minutes later.

However, Mizzelli struck again at the 13:10 mark then Jeff Mason scored with less than two minutes left in the half for a 3-1 edge.

Mizzelli completed his hat trick at the 24:16 mark of the second period. Allen finished the scoring with 10 minutes to go.

"Their third goal kind of took away our steam, so to speak, before halftime," Knights' coach Joe Grooten said. "We made some last-minute efforts but it was just too little too late.

"Their offense was their key. I knew it would be strong coming in. Our defense did a fairly good job. We're a young team this year as far as depth and that plays to our disadvantage late first half and then late in the game."

Senior sweeper Billy Potter and junior keeper Chris Langley, who was credited with 21 saves, keyed the defensive effort.

Ridgcroft had a 27-13 advantage in shots.

NFL Kicks Off, Ready Or Not

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ready or not, the NFL season opens Sunday.

And a lot of teams aren't ready. Because of an unusual number of holdouts and injuries, many teams would just as soon put the whole thing off for a couple of weeks.

Count the Minnesota Vikings among them.

"I wish we had just a little more time to finely tune this operation," Coach Jerry Burns said.

But the whistle blows at high noon in Chicago, Green Bay, Indianapolis and New Orleans on Sunday — 1 p.m. in Pontiac, Mich., and Atlanta. Kickers will head toward the ball and the 1989 season will be launched.

Three hours later, it will happen in Minneapolis and six other cities.

Early games on Sunday feature Cincinnati at Chicago, Dallas at New Orleans, the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta, Phoenix at Detroit, San Francisco at Indianapolis and Tampa Bay at Green Bay. Late games have Cleveland at Pittsburgh, New England at the New York Jets, Houston at Minnesota, Buffalo at Miami, Seattle at Philadelphia, Kansas City at Denver and San Diego at the Los Angeles Raiders.

The New York Giants are at Washington Monday night.

One reason Burns would have liked more time to get his Vikings ready for the opener against the Houston Oilers is that tight end Steve Jordan and linebacker Jesse Solomon did not end their holdouts until this week.

"I'm ready," Jordan said. Burns can only hope he's right. "Steve Jordan is as finely conditioned an athlete as I've ever been around," the coach said. "He helps our passing game by taking pressure off the outside receivers. We're starting him Sunday."

Solomon, coming off major knee surgery, will miss the opener but could play next week.

Holdouts were not Burns' only problem. Wide receiver Anthony Carter was grousing about being underpaid.

Carter said early in the week he should be benched Sunday because "I won't put my best foot forward." A day later he said he didn't mean it.

The Oilers, too, had good reason to want the opener put off.

Mike Rozier, their leading rusher last season, did not work out until Wednesday after ending his holdout.

No problem, Rozier said. "Who likes to go to camp anyway? I got a gift from God. It's not hard for me to just come in and start playing and do the things I've been doing."

Wide receiver Drew Hill also missed the Oilers' entire training period as he tried to get his contract renegotiated.

The Raiders will open at home against the Chargers hoping that Marcus Allen had enough time to get ready. The Raiders' career leader in rushing and touchdowns held out for five weeks.

New England wide receiver Irving Fryar said he will be ready for the Patriots' opener against the Jets, even though he has had only a week to prepare.

"I can start. I'm fine," ex-holdout Fryar said. "Nobody believed I was in shape until I got here. Now they know I'm in shape."

Al Toon and Wesley Walker, the Jets' best receivers, could use more time after ending holdouts, and Toon for a shoulder injury to heal.

The Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers at one time had eight regulars holding out, including three-quarters of the secondary, but under new coach George Seifert they should be ready for the opener against the Colts.

Some of the summer's most prominent holdouts were top draft choices.

Deion Sanders, the All-American defensive back from Florida State, didn't show at the Falcons' training camp until Thursday. Coach Marion Campbell said Sanders, who has been playing baseball for the New York Yankees, could be used some against the Rams as a punt and kickoff returner. Sanders may also be used in some basic pass coverage formations.

Rams coach John Robinson said rookie fullback Cleveland Gary, a first-round pick, will not play. Gary missed 56 days of preseason work before ending his holdout.

Tony Mandarich, an offensive tackle from Michigan State and the

No. 2 pick in the NFL draft, will be there when the Packers open against Tampa Bay. How much good he will be is uncertain. He didn't sign until Tuesday.

Holdouts were not the only reason for late starts.

The Kansas City Chiefs hope that fullback Christian Okoye, their leading rusher the last two seasons, can play. He missed more than a month because of a neck injury.

Clarence Kay should be at tight end for Denver, although he was out since mid-August with a separated shoulder.

Wayne Fontes, coach of the Detroit Lions, probably wouldn't mind if they held back the opener until next month, when rookie quarterback Rodney Peete should be recovered from a knee injury. Bob Gagliano will start for the Lions against Phoenix.

Sports Notes

Rose, Conley Post JV Football Wins

GOLDSBORO — Dwight Strong and Jermaine Williams each rushed for over 100 yards and the defense put a blanket on host Eastern Wayne as the Rose junior varsity football team waltzed to a 59-0 rout Thursday night.

Strong collected 120 yards on the ground and scored a pair of first-quarter touchdowns while Williams had 103 yards rushing and scored one TD. Quarterback Dante Mayo, who connected on 5 of 6 passes for 87 yards, tossed a pair of touchdown passes.

The Rampant defense held the Warriors to minus yardage and scored a pair of touchdowns on fumble recoveries.

Strong got the rout going with TD bolts of 20 and 5 yards in the first quarter. The Rampants tacked on four TDs in the second period on a 55-yard dash by Williams, a 20-yard run by Chicoby Brown, a 27-yard pass from Mayo to Cliff Tucker 27-yard pass and a 40-yard run by Aaron McKinney.

Mayo hooked up with Troy Clemmons on a 35-yard scoring pass in the third quarter. Fumble recoveries and returns by Lorenzo Blount (21 yards) and Ashley Johnson (20 yards) capped the scoring.

Johnson kicked three extra points and helped key the defensive efforts. Blount also turned in a strong defensive effort.

D.H. Conley 42, North Pitt 0

HOLLYWOOD — Three running backs rushed for over 100 yards as host D.H. Conley sacked North Pitt 42-0 in non-conference junior varsity football game Thursday night.

The Vikings piled up 416 yards in total offense — 395 on the ground. Jessie Corey led the way with 175 yards on nine carries and scored one touchdown. Kevin Anderson added 104 yards on eight carries and had one touchdown while Terry Turnage collected 100 yards on seven carries and scored once.

Conley, now 3-0, took an 8-0 lead in the first period on a 15-yard pass from Brian Smith to Derrick Cox and Turnage's two-point conversion run.

The Vikings upped the margin to 20-0 by intermission on a 1-yard plunge by Smith and a 65-yard blast by Turnage. The PAT run failed both times.

Darryl Tyson scored on a 3-yard run and Anderson scooted 42 yards for another TD in the third period. Ronnie Barnhill's PAT run made the score 34-0.

A 30-yard jaunt by Jessie Corey 30-yard followed Darryl Tyson's two-point run capped the scoring.

Tyson, Cox and Steve Daughtery anchored the defense.

Conley is at Farmville Central next Thursday. North Pitt will host Roanoke.

Rose Runners Down Eastern Wayne

Rose High School's boys' cross country team rolled to a 23-32 victory over visiting Eastern Wayne in a meet held Thursday.

Rose's Mike Jolley took first place with a time of 20 minutes, 13 seconds, while Greg Parker was second in 20:17. Teammate Dave Jolley took third for the Rampants with a 20:19 run.

Other Rose finishers included Richard Gowen, seventh in 21:29; Joel Metzger, 10th in 22:22; Ken Wu, 11th in 22:51; Brian Poust, 12th in 22:52; Josh Howard, 16th in 25:36 and Peter Brinson, 18th in 26:37.

No girls' match was held. Rose, now 1-1, travels to Kinston on Tuesday.

Conley, Rose, Farmville Take Wins

HOLLYWOOD — Host D.H. Conley split a pair of volleyball matches Thursday night, rolling past SouthWest Edgecombe, but falling to perennial powerhouse Durham Jordan.

Conley opened the afternoon against Jordan, falling in the first game, 15-5. Conley came back in the second match however, and had Jordan down 15-14, but made two unforced errors and Jordan took advantage of it to take a 17-15 win and gain the match.

Jordan then topped SouthWest, 15-1, 15-3.

Conley closed out the day with a 15-2, 15-3 win over SouthWest.

"I thought we put together one of our better offensive performances against SouthWest," Conley coach Martha McCaskill said. "Setters Nikki Adams and Jamie Hart had their best matches and ran the offense well. Stacy Stencil had a great day on the back row with some brilliant passes. It was our most balanced attack of the year."

Tracy Sumrell, Virginia Hall, Angie Jones and Darvetta Patrick combined for 17 effective hits in the match, while Hall had six dink putdowns on the day.

Conley, now 7-1, travels to Ayden-Grifton on Tuesday.

Rose-Wilson Fike

WILSON — Rose High School won the first two games, then added the third victory in game four to take a Big East Conference volleyball victory over Wilson Fike Thursday.

The Rampettes took the opening game of the best-of-five series 15-11, then came back with a 15-8 victory in game two. Fike won the third game, 15-4, but Rose rallied to take a 16-14 win in the fourth game to win the match.

Jennifer Vore and Kelly Seamster led the Rampettes in both service and spiking.

Now 1-1, Rose will return to action on Tuesday, hosting conference foe Northern Nash.

Farmville Central-North Lenoir

LA GRANGE — Farmville Central recovered from a first-set loss to win the next four sets and a pair of best-of-three matches from non-conference host North Lenoir Thursday afternoon.

The Lady Hawks took the opening set of the first match 15-12, but Farmville rallied to win the next set 15-6 behind 11 consecutive service points from Stephanie Register then took the third set 15-11 as Pam Lang collected seven service points.

Lang picked up six service points in the opening set of the second match, a 15-6 Farmville win. The Lady Jags concluded the match by winning the next set 15-6 with Frances Boone contributing six service points.

Vickie Best had a team-high seven spikes in the two matches while Felicia Barrett 18 hits.

North Pitt-West Craven-Southwest Onslow

VANCEBORO — North Pitt's volleyball team dropped a pair of non-conference matches Thursday, falling to host West Craven and visiting Southwest Onslow.

In the opening match for the Lady Panthers, Southwest Onslow took a 15-6, 15-5 victory. Sharon Ross led service for North Pitt with seven points.

West Craven finished off the afternoon for the Panthers, taking a 15-7, 15-11 victory. Tamrita Johnson led North Pitt's service with seven points.

North Pitt, now 0-3, will return home on Tuesday to host West Craven.

Pennant Races Taking Shape

Cubs, Cardinals Open Three-Game Series In Chicago

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Starting today, the National League pennant races might take shape. Then again, they could be more tangled than ever in a few days.

"There will be a full house, that's all I can tell you. It should be a heck of a weekend," Chicago Cubs manager Don Zimmer said.

The Cubs, holding a 1½-game lead over St. Louis in the NL East, opened a three-game series against the Cardinals at Wrigley Field this afternoon.

Montreal, trailing by three games, faces Philadelphia this weekend. The New York Mets, 3½ games behind, play Pittsburgh.

"Anything can happen. Any one of four teams can win," Zimmer said.

San Francisco has more control in the NL West. The Giants lead Houston and San Diego by seven games each, and begin a three-game series tonight at the Astrodome.

Chicago increased its lead by beating Philadelphia 6-2 Wednesday night while the Mets routed St. Louis 13-1.

In other games, Pittsburgh defeated Montreal 7-4, San Francisco downed Atlanta 7-5, Houston edged San Diego 2-1 and Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 8-2.

Zimmer gave outfielders Andre Dawson and Jerome Walton a rest and their replacements, Doug Dasenczo and Marvell Wynne, each homered.

Wynne hit his first home run since being acquired from San Diego for a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Dasenczo's first major-league homer made it 3-0 in the third.

"I'm a genius," Zimmer said.

Mike Bielecki, 15-6, gave up five hits and two runs in 5 2/3 innings. Ken Howell, 11-11, allowed four runs on five hits in three innings.

Mets 13, Cardinals 1

Gregg Jefferies hit two homers and two doubles and drove in five runs as New York trounced visiting St. Louis.

Jefferies, whose eighth-inning error helped the Cardinals win the previous night, doubled in the first, hit a two-run homer in the third, doubled in the fourth and hit a three-run homer in the fifth.

Frank Viola, 3-4, got more runs than the Mets had provided him in his first seven starts. He also got his first major league RBI.

Howard Johnson hit his 33rd home run, connecting against Ted Power, 6-7. Pedro Guerrero hit his 13th homer for the Cardinals.

Pirates 7, Expos 4

Pinch hitter Jeff King's checked-swing roller went for a tie-breaking triple and he continued home on right fielder Mike Aldrete's error in the eighth inning as Pittsburgh won at Montreal.

Barry Bonds led off with a double against John Candelaria, 0-1, and King ended a 2-for-23 slump with a grounder past first base. The Pirates scored an insurance run in the ninth on Candelaria's throwing error.

Bob Walk, 12-10, got the victory and Bill Landrum pitched two innings for his 23rd save.

Giants 7, Braves 5

At Atlanta, Kevin Mitchell hit his 42nd home run and San Francisco rallied to beat the Braves.

Will Clark's two-run triple pulled the Giants into a 4-all tie in the seventh. Pinch hitter Chris Speier doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth and scored on Brett Butler's single.

Mitchell homered in the ninth. He leads the majors in home runs and with 115 RBIs.

Steve Bedrosian, 3-6, got the victory. Mike Stanton lost his first decision of the season.

Astros 2, Padres 1

At San Diego, Ken Caminiti hit a two-run single in the third inning and Jim Clancy allowed four hits in seven innings as Houston stopped the Padres' six-game winning streak.

Clancy, 7-11, beat San Diego for the fourth time this season. Dave Smith got his 24th save in 28 chances.

Bruce Hurst, 13-10, lost despite allowing just three hits in six innings.

Dodgers 8, Reds 2

Fernando Valenzuela pitched a six-hitter and Los Angeles ended Tom Browning's eight-game winning streak with a victory at Cincinnati.

Valenzuela, 10-12, walked four and struck out five in his third complete game in 28 starts. Browning, 15-11, gave up seven runs on 11 hits in three innings.

Eddie Murray and Willie Randolph each homered and got three hits. Eric Davis hit his 29th home run for the Reds.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles 8, Rangers 3

Orioles 9, Rangers 6

The Baltimore Orioles continue to make things hot for Nolan Ryan, and warm for the Toronto Blue Jays as well.

With a doubleheader sweep over the Texas Rangers by 8-3 and 9-6 scores Thursday night, the Orioles continued their mastery of Ryan and at the same time moved closer to Toronto in the sizzling American League East race.

"That's what we had to do tonight, win both," Orioles manager Frank Robinson said after Baltimore moved within 1½ games of Toronto. "That was a great achievement with the travel and facing those pitchers here. We've got to think about winning every game we play."

En route to the sweep, the Orioles beat Ryan for the third time in three meetings this year and are 9-0 against baseball's all-time strikeout leader in their last 12 meetings.

"They've had my number," Ryan said. "It's aggravating. For some reason I haven't had good command of my pitches against them."

Meanwhile, the Blue Jays pounded the Cleveland Indians 12-4 for their ninth victory in 10 games.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the California Angels 7-1 and the New York Yankees defeated the Seattle Mariners 6-4.

Mike Devereaux and Steve Finley were the big offensive guns for the Orioles Thursday night. Both went 5-for-10 in the doubleheader with Devereaux getting six RBIs and Finley keying a five-run second in the nightcap with a two-run triple.

Devereaux had a career-high five RBIs to lead Baltimore in the first game.

"This has got to help us out," Devereaux said. "I hope this will put us on the road to a great series."

The first game featured a bizarre twist. The Orioles struck out 16 times, a club record, with Phil

Bradley going down five times.

The Orioles have been chasing the Blue Jays since falling out of first place on Sept. 1. Baltimore had held the top spot for 98 consecutive days.

"We have to keep winning," Robinson said. "If they don't cool down, there's nothing we can do about it. They're playing outstanding baseball."

Blue Jays 12, Indians 4

George Bell hit a three-run double and Lloyd Moseby had three hits, including a leadoff home run, as Toronto beat Cleveland in a rain-plagued game.

Toronto won its fourth straight game and ninth in the last 10, moving 15 games above .500 for the first time this year. The Blue Jays are 66-39 since Cito Gaston replaced Jimmy Williams as manager in May.

John Cerutti, 11-8, gave up two runs on five hits in five innings. Tom Candiotti, 12-8, lasted only 1 1/3 innings, giving up five runs on six hits as the Indians lost for the sixth time in seven outings.

The contest was held up for 1 hour, 33 minutes in the fifth inning with the Blue Jays holding a 9-0 lead.

Brewers 7, Angels 1

Tom Filer held California to four hits and an unearned run in eight innings and Glenn Braggs collected three hits, including a homer, as Milwaukee beat California and dealt the Angels' pennant hopes another blow. The third-place Angels fell six games behind Oakland in the AL West.

The Brewers simplified Filer's job by breaking out for five runs before he had to make his first pitch Milwaukee jumped Mike Witt, 8-13, for six hits in the first inning.

Yankees 6, Mariners 4

Don Mattingly's two-run single keyed a six-run rally in the eighth inning as the Yankees came back to beat Seattle for their eighth straight victory.

The Mariners held a 3-0 lead before the Yankees rallied in the eighth for their winning runs. Mattingly's hit with two out broke a 3-3 tie and Steve Balboni followed with a sacrifice fly for the Yankees' sixth run.

Small Player Is Big Problem

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Wyoming faces Air Force in college football this weekend, one of the smallest players on the field will be one of the biggest problems for the Cowboys.

"He has the ability to juke people in the open field," Wyoming coach Paul Roach said of Dee Dowis, the Falcons' one-man air-and-ground attack.

Dowis, a 153-pound quarterback who hardly looks like a football player, is coming off one of the greatest one-man performances in college football history — including 249 yards rushing and six touchdowns.

That spectacular show left San Diego State in the dust last week during the Air Force's 52-36 annihilation.

Dowis' 249 yards rushing, in just 13 carries, was the fifth-best single-game total in Western Athletic Conference history and the most ever for a quarterback. He had more yards on the ground last week than any other team in the conference.

His six touchdowns and 36 points set WAC records and, according to the NCAA, represented the highest scoring performance ever by a major-college quarterback.

With the ubiquitous Dowis running the Air Force show, Roach faces a dilemma defending the Falcons' triple-option wishbone in Sunday night's game at the Air Force Academy.

"If you gang up on Dowis, the fullback or the pitch will take you out," Roach said. "But he's the primary focus. If we let him loose a few times, we had better be able to score 40 points ourselves."

The Wyoming-Air Force game will cap an extra-long weekend of college football that began Thursday night with Washington State's 46-41 defeat of Brigham Young.

Saturday's games involving the Top Ten have No. 3 Miami, Fla., at Wisconsin, Northern Illinois at No. 4 Nebraska, Pacific at No. 5 Auburn, Tennessee at No. 6 UCLA, Baylor at No. 8 Oklahoma, Colorado State at No. 9 Colorado and No. 10 Clemson at No. 16 Florida State.

The rest of the Top 25 schedule includes Virginia at No. 12 Penn State, No. 14 Syracuse at Temple, No. 15 Texas A&M at Washington, No. 17 West Virginia at Maryland, Mississippi State at No. 18 Southern Mississippi, No. 20 Arizona at Texas Tech, No. 23 Pittsburgh at Boston College, and Georgia Tech at No. 25 North Carolina State.

Erickson, no relation to the coach, played nearly two quarters in Miami's 23-3 victory over Wisconsin last year, completing just five of 17 passes for 57 yards and an interception.

"The offense never really clicked, and I didn't make the plays," Erickson said. "Mentally, I wasn't prepared for the game."

Nebraska opens its season against Northern Illinois, 1-0 after beating Fullerton State 26-17. The Cornhuskers have lost 12 starters from last year's Big Eight championship team, including seven on defense.

"I know Nebraska has lost a lot of good players off their team last year," Northern Illinois coach Jerry Pettibone said, "but Nebraska's one of the programs in the country that has so much continuity in it, players being developed up through the program, that they don't rebuild, they just reload."

Syracuse will be putting a record streak on the line against Temple. The Orangemen have made 260 consecutive extra-point kicks. No Syracuse kicker has missed an extra point since 1978.

"Everybody looks at me and says, 'What are you going to do about the streak?'" redshirt freshman kicker John Biskup said. "I just tell them I'll do the best I can to continue it. It's something we take great pride in."

Allison Surprised

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RICHMOND, Va. — Davey Allison still finds it hard to believe how little time it took for him to succeed on stock car racing's premier circuit.

"Winston Cup racing is extremely competitive," Allison said, "and for a new guy, regardless of how long he's been involved in the sport in other areas, for him to come right onto the Winston Cup circuit — the experience that it takes to be competitive there, to win races, to win poles, is far greater than anything else I've ever done."

"If anybody would have told me I would be able to accomplish what I did, I would have told them they're out of their mind."

Now in his third full season on NASCAR's Winston Cup trail, Allison, 28, will be going after his ninth pole and seventh victory in the Miller 400 this weekend at Richmond International Raceway.

First-round qualifying for Sunday's 400-lap race was set for this afternoon, with the remainder of the 34-car starting grid to be filled in time trials Saturday.

Allison, who won five poles and two races en route to being named the circuit's top rookie in 1987, is a two-time winner this year but has yet to qualify his Ford Thunderbird in the top starting spot.

Car set-up and handling have been problems all season for Allison.

"It's been one of those situations where we're either right on or way off. There's no in between," he said.

WSU-BYU...

Gossen, a junior who took over at quarterback when Timm Rosenbach turned professional last spring, threw first-half scoring passes of 64 yards to Tim Stallworth and 66 yards to Broussard.

Gossen said the pass to Broussard was specifically designed for use against BYU.

"Steve's the fastest guy on the team," Gossen said. "We knew if we sent him down the sidelines, we'd catch BYU off guard."

Down 21-17 at halftime, Washington State bounced back as Broussard scored twice on 1-yard runs in the third quarter and Jason Hanson kicked a school-record 58-yard field goal, surpassing by a yard the record set by Paul Watson in 1977.

Hanson also kicked field goals of 22, 52 and 46 yards, tying a school record for the most field goals in a game, and extended his string of successful touchdown conversion kicks to a school-record 54.

BYU had a chance to come back early in the fourth quarter when Chad Robinson intercepted a Gossen pass and returning it to the Washington State 18.

On the next play, BYU's Ty Detmer threw his third interception into the hands of Jay Languein, who scampered 78 yards to give Washington State a first down at the BYU 4-yard line.

Broussard plunged over from the 1 two plays later and Hanson later contributed a 46-yard field goal for a 46-20 lead.

The game was hardly over, though. Rallying behind the passing of Detmer, who completed 34 of 53 passes for 537 yards and four touchdowns, BYU scored three times down the stretch. Fred Whittingham ran five yards for a touchdown and Detmer hooked up with Matt Bellini for scoring passes of seven and 22 yards.

The BYU comeback ended after the Cougars were unable to recover an on-sides kick after pulling within five points. Washington State's Anthony Prior came up with the ball after a mad scramble, and the visiting Cougars ran out the clock.

Court Ruling On Pensions Produces Aftershocks

By Nancy Benac
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Aftershocks still are rippling across the country five months after an obscure lawsuit filed by a federal retiree in Michigan produced a Supreme Court ruling that upset tax laws in nearly half the states.

States are raising, cutting and shifting taxes, federal retirees are angling for more than a billion dollars in refunds and some private pensioners are claiming they, too, are victims of unfair state taxation.

The furor began when lawyer Paul S. Davis filed suit in 1984 claiming it was unfair for Michigan to tax part of his federal pension when the state exempted the full pensions of state and local government retirees.

The Supreme Court agreed, ruling in March that Davis was entitled to a $4,299 refund and ordering states to treat federal retirees at least as favorably as state and local retirees.

The decision hit home in as many as 24 states that didn't tax all government pensioners equally, 12 of which have enacted corrective legislation, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures.

But instead of making all federal retirement benefits exempt, some states have imposed new taxes on a portion of state and local pensions.

For example, Missouri used to provide a full exemption for state pensions and none for federal. Now it provides a $6,000 exclusion for all single public pensioners with income up to $25,000 and for couples with public pensions up to $32,000; there is no exclusion for those with higher incomes.

Laws that exclude part of public pensions from taxation tend to benefit state and local retirees disproportionately because their pensions generally are lower, said Denis Harrington, of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees.

Harrington said he'd rather see states offer federal pensioners the same benefits other government retirees received in the past, "but as long as they comply with the Supreme Court ruling we haven't got a leg to stand on."

whether the states must refund tax payments by federal retirees; most states are resisting refund requests. Lawsuits seeking refunds have been filed in nearly all the affected states, and potential claims total $1.5 billion to $2 billion for years within the states' statutes of limitation, according to the Federation of Tax Administrators.

Lawrence Lewy, a 75-year-old former IRS attorney, believes he is due more than $10,000 from Virginia and is among those who have filed suit. "I'm not saying I won't be delighted with whatever eventually comes if we win," Lewy said. "But just the idea of the accomplishment is a big factor."

Virginia has the most to lose if refunds are required — an estimated $370 million for a three-year period.

Refunds so far have been forthcoming only for Davis and in Missouri, where the state Supreme Court in May ordered $160 million in refunds covering three years. The state will raise the money through temporary increases in the sales and corporate income taxes.

In Arizona, a tax judge this month ordered the state to reimburse 72,000 federal retirees up to $210 million on taxes paid from 1984 through 1988. Craig Cormier, deputy director of the Arizona Department of Revenue, said the ruling could be "financially devastating" if it stands, since the state recently had trouble resolving a $165 million budget deficit.

Harrington said the Missouri and Arizona rulings are encouraging, but most states seem determined to "go down fighting" against the refunds.

"Every time we get a favorable decision it improves the odds dramatically. It's inevitable that they're going to have to pay refunds of some kind."

Attorney Linda Riley of the Federation of Tax Administrators said states "are watching each other" on the refund question, but she cautioned that laws vary from state to state, and rulings won't necessarily go the same everywhere.

Harrington and Riley said many states are awaiting a Supreme Court ruling next term on two consolidated cases that will help determine when taxpayers are due a refund on a state tax that is found to be unconstitutional.

While the Davis ruling addressed only disparities in taxation of pensions for government retirees, it has sparked interest among private pensioners.

A retired Teamsters union member in Missouri and a group of private pensioners in Alabama have filed suits in their states alleging that dissimilar tax treatment for private retirees is unconstitutional.

Virginia, one of the first to respond to the Davis ruling, enacted a tax-reduction package that equalizes treatment for public and private retirees aged 55 and older, at a cost of $70 million in the first year and $87 million by the third. The state will exclude the first $16,000 of pension income from taxation, reducing the exclusion gradually for those with income from $16,001 to $40,000 and providing no exclusion for those with income over $40,000.

Here's how the NCSL said other states have responded:

- New York, North Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin extended state preferences to federal retirees;
- Arizona, Oregon and South Carolina repealed preferential state pension exclusions and raised other benefits for state retirees;
- Colorado, Iowa, Missouri and Oklahoma now provide a limited exclusion for all public pensions;
- Georgia and Utah have called special legislative sessions for the fall and Michigan's full-time legislature may address the issue yet this year;
- Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, New Mexico and North Carolina have yet to complete action.

In addition, Arkansas and Kansas argue they're not affected. Arkansas says a 1985 law providing equal treatment of government pensions after 1990 meets the requirements of the Davis ruling; Kansas contends the ruling doesn't affect military pensions, the only area of difference under state law.

Schools Beefing Up Security To Curb Violence, Vandalism

By Lee Mitgang
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More guards, high-tech security devices and drug-sniffing dogs are greeting children in urban and rural schools alike this fall as officials struggle to curb spreading violence and vandalism.

Security budgets have doubled, even tripled in many districts in recent years, and now total in the hundreds of millions of dollars nationwide, a 50-state check by The Associated Press found.

New York City alone, with its 1,000 schools and nearly 1 million pupils, will spend $60 million on security this coming school year, double what it spent eight years ago. Los Angeles, the second largest district, spends $26 million.

The spending relates not just to weapons, gangs and drugs, but also to the high-tech revolution that has loaded schools with VCRs and computers that need protection.

"The more we get into computers and things of that sort, equipment that is really expensive, naturally we want to protect that," said Billy Randall, assistant superintendent of the Greenwood Public Schools in Greenwood, Miss., which recently installed sophisticated burglar alarms.

Some districts still insist school life is as peaceful as ever.

"We have none of those kinds of problems you read about in the big cities," said Joe Zema, attorney for the Topeka, Kan., school district where security isn't even an identifiable item in the budget.

But elsewhere, drug and gang problems are finally forcing formerly placid school districts to hire guards and install sophisticated security hardware. Some officials now worry that such measures may make their schools feel like prisons or armed camps.

Bill Hanebuth, head of the Mobile, Ala., County Education Association, called it "a little unnerving" to think local schools might resemble New York's or Chicago's. But with 15 teachers assaulted by students last school year, he and other Alabamians seem to agree sterner security measures are in order.

"It's gotten beyond the day of just the fire drill. We've got to be prepared for the extreme because that's what we face," said Max Joiner, executive director of the Alabama Council for School Administration and Supervision which began security workshops last year.

"We're deliberately trying to avoid letting our schools become armed camps," said A.C. Boyd, director of security for New Orleans' schools, which nonetheless will add a drug-sniffing dog this year to its arsenal of hand-held metal detectors, top-of-the-line locks, high fences and burglar alarms.

No figures exist on how much the nation's schools spend each year on security. But a check of districts in all 50 states found the figure is certainly in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

"We do know that the trend is up, and it's related to drug activity and gangs, and possession of weapons," said Ronald D. Stephens, executive director of the National School Safety Center at Pepperdine University.

The Dade County school district, which includes Miami, will spend $10.3 million on security for the 1989-90 school year, about $1.8 million more than last year, and $4 million more than five years ago, said Red McAllister, director of investigations.

Philadelphia will spend $10.4 million, nearly double the $5.5 million spent in the 1983-84 school year.

Boston will spend $2.2 million on safety this school year and may start using metal detectors, said school committee member John Nucci.

"We have real concerns for this coming school year. The gang problem and guns on the street find their way to the schools," Nucci said.

Ninety-seven percent of New York City's $60 million school security budget is for guards, said Bruce Irushalmi, director of the office of school safety. The city also plans to introduce metal detectors into 15 schools, up from five.

Fairfax County, Va., where a third-grader was raped last year, has hired eight new security employees and will issue photo IDs to all elementary and intermediate staff who travel to schools.

Chicago's school system, the nation's third largest, spends $12.5 million a year and has 723 security positions.

The Muskogee, Okla., district hired two part-time security guards last year for about $30,000 after a student with a handgun accidentally wounded a fellow student in a high school class.

Little Rock, Ark., officials say they plan to raise the profile of security officers and possibly use a drug-sniffing dog following last year's shooting death of a student on a junior high basketball court.

Officials insist all this spending is creating safer, more secure schools.

Daryl R. Harrell, school security director of Albuquerque, N.M., said vandalism losses dropped from $500,000 to $80,000 with the help of an electronic surveillance alarm system.

Mother Teresa Survives Attack

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CALCUTTA, India — Mother Teresa, the Nobel Prize-winning Roman Catholic nun known for her work with the world's poor, suffered a heart attack this morning, her doctor said.

The 79-year-old nun's condition had stabilized and was improving, however, said Dr. A. Bardhan.

He refused to give further details. The official All-India Radio reported she was alert and was visited briefly by the governor of West Bengal state.

Nuns at the Missionaries of Charity, which Mother Teresa founded nearly 40 years ago, said she was progressing well.

"Her heart is much better and her temperature is practically normal," said one nun, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Mother Teresa became ill Sunday night but insisted on attending Mass on Monday. Her condition continued to deteriorate and on Tuesday she was admitted to the intensive care unit at Woodlands Hospital, suffering a high fever and an irregular heart beat.

Born in Skopje, Yugoslavia, Mother Teresa became known for her work with the poor in Calcutta, an eastern Indian city. In 1950, she founded the Missionaries of Charity, an order of 3,000 nuns in 87 countries.

Over the years the order has opened hospitals, leper colonies, orphanages and schools, supported largely by private donations.

Mother Teresa won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979 and has traveled widely since then.

She also has received the Nehru Award, The Kennedy Prize, the Albert Schweitzer Award and the presidential Medal of Freedom.

Carter Mediates Peace Conference

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

ATLANTA — Marking the start of an unprecedented venture in private American diplomacy, former President Carter Thursday launched the formal opening of peace talks here between the Ethiopian government and Eritrean rebels in a bid to end Africa's longest unresolved civil conflict.

It was the first time representatives of the Soviet-backed Marxist Ethiopian government and the Eritrean People's Liberation Front have met publicly to end their 28-year conflict in which more than half a million people have been killed. The two sides have reached a military and political stalemate over the fate of Eritrea, a northern province of Ethiopia.

Carter's bid to find a resolution to the Eritrean conflict is the first example of a private American, or former president, being accepted as a peacemaker in a Third World conflict. The fact both sides agreed to accept him in this role is all the more unusual given that Ethiopia has become a major Soviet client seeking to establish a communist system of government.

Sponsors Will Keep Closer Eye On Television Shows

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Networks are beginning the new TV season with a new fact of life — increasing sponsor scrutiny of the shows on which their ads appear.

The heads of the networks insist there will be no censorship by advertisers or pressure groups, but they also say they're looking more closely at shows of questionable taste. The question is whose "taste" will prevail?

NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, whose network vowed to air the critically acclaimed but controversial TV movie about abortion, "Roe vs. Wade," without sponsorship, if it came to that, said he was concerned about a possible trend toward programming-by-boycott last season.

"What you become concerned about is sort of a new McCarthyism," he said. "What I was fearful of is, today 'The Sex Tapes,' tomorrow 'Dear John.'"

Last season, sponsors balked at so-called "trash TV" fare, but also at "Roe vs. Wade," because of the subject and the critically praised miniseries "Lonesome Dove," because of its authentically raunchy Western dialogue.

But the network bosses said advertisers, from whom the networks draw their revenues, have the right to withhold sponsorship of shows to which they object and in fact have always shied away from certain programs.

"We get advertiser pullout all the time," said CBS Entertainment President Kim LeMasters. "That is a normal landscape for network television." Some advertisers, he said, "will not advertise in any show that has water in it, or it has certain cars in it that are offensive to them."

Advertiser boycotts don't become tantamount to censorship, LeMasters said, unless the network bows to the pressure. Of controversial shows, he said, "I plan to continue to broadcast them. That is our ultimate statement."

CBS Broadcast Group President Howard Stringer sees advertiser sensitivity as part of a larger viewer "revolt" against sexually explicit or violent fare.

"The message to the creative community is again that taste, albeit difficult to define, still revolves around quality, and that the audience is smarter at that than you tend to think," he said.

"We can defend ourselves when we put something on the air that's really worth defending. And some of the sitcoms in which (sex) is a one-track theme, alienate the viewers."

NBC President and Chief Executive Officer Robert C. Wright, a former GE executive, said advertisers are simply responding to consumer desires and don't have any sinister intent to censor what's on the airwaves.

"They scare off real easy when it comes to ... having their company's name associated with something, even though it might not have any real impact. What I have been trying to do is get them to focus in on that and say, listen, investigate the real facts. Try to make a more informed opinion."

The networks believe that allowing advertisers to pre-screen shows will help educate them. But at a meeting of television critics this summer, concern was voiced that pre-screening would be an even bigger step toward censorship.

PBS Will Give TV Viewers A Choice

By Kathryn Baker
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — It's really easy. It really is. Just turn the channel. Press the remote a few times. There. See, it's PBS. It won't hurt you.

It's almost like real TV, listed there in the television guide along with all the garbage on commercial TV. Sure, there are a few good network shows and there's some decent stuff on cable but you've rented all the worthwhile videos, and after a steady diet of "Rambo" and "Charles in Charge" you feel kind of grimy, vaguely out of sorts. It's time for a dose of PBS.

Think of it as oat bran for the mind.

Agreed, there may not be the BBC blockbusters of seasons past, and how many of us really need to know how to restore an 18th-century farmhouse? But there will be some incredible gems, like Bill Moyers' interviews with the late mythologist and storyteller Joseph Campbell, or a brilliant work of fiction, such as "A Very British Coup."

Here are some programs to choose from, circle in the TV Guide, and watch. Every remote control can be trained to find the PBS channel.

Moyers has a new series this season, on contemporary poetry, promising to make an esoteric subject more accessible to average viewers. Think how impressed the folks around the water cooler will be.

When some bozo is talking about "Rescue 911," you can wax erudite, talking about "Travels" a 12-parter following sojourners on unusual treks, such as an American comedian's tour of the Soviet Union and a motorcycleist's trip across China.

If "Art of the Western World" sounds like a college course, it is. The series, filmed on location in 10 countries, examines the development of Western art from classical Greek and Roman works to 20th-century masters. It is being offered as a college-level course by the PBS Adult Learning Service. You didn't pay attention to this stuff in school and wish you had. Here's a second chance.

"America's Century" is a six-part examination of American foreign policy in the 20th century. Great stuff for wowing the cocktail party crowd.

So is Moyers' other series, "The Public Mind," a four-part discussion of how news, politics, advertising and business are evolving to meet the demands of an increasingly image-obsessed culture. It's ironic you're only watching to impress someone.

Remember all those great old network documentaries? They were like pieces on "60 Minutes," except longer. Those are on PBS now. This season they're on the Palestinian uprising, AIDS and the high cost of growing old, the latter a special anchored by Walter Cronkite.

Other documentaries focus on people, from C. Everett Koop to Harold Lloyd.

"The American Experience" is back. It's an anthology of documentaries about various chapters in American history. Also back is "Trying Times," like a sitcom, only funnier and smarter.

And look at this season's stars: Geena Davis, Peter Riegert, Carrie Fisher, Judge Reinhold and Stockard Channing.

The venerable "Great Performances" will present new productions of "Showboat" and "Our Town."

"Masterpiece Theatre" offers what promises to be a great miniseries of "A Tale of Two Cities," the one you bought the Classic Comic to instead of reading the assignment. Now you realize it was a great book. Here's a chance to see the motion picture.

Two ongoing series have new hosts. (You need to know this in case you talk to a longtime PBS viewer.) Diana Rigg takes over from Vincent Price on "Mystery!" and Stephen Thomas takes over from Bob Vilas on "This Old House." That's the home repair and restoration show that inexplicably fascinates you on lazy Saturday afternoons.

Double Suicide

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The bodies of a University police dispatcher and his wife were found near their Orange County home, apparently the victims of a double shotgun suicide.

The bodies of Michael and Nancy Curtis were found approximately 500 feet from their mobile home outside Carrboro at about 6 p.m. Wednesday, according to statements from Orange County Sheriff Lindy Pendergrass.

Both victims apparently died of gunshot wounds, Pendergrass said.

La Toya Denies She's Married

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RENO, Nev. — Singer La Toya Jackson has denied she married her manager and said an impostor must have signed her name to wedding documents.

"It could have been an impostor," Ms. Jackson said Thursday in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. "It's totally untrue that I got married. I'm not ready for marriage yet. I'm too involved in my career right now."

But Washoe County Clerk Judi Bailey on Thursday produced marriage license No. D044127 purchased Tuesday by La Toya Jackson, 33, and Jack Gordon, 50, and said the couple went through a legal wedding ceremony that night.

"They had to show their driver's licenses and tell the clerk all kinds of information in order to prove who they were," Ms. Bailey said. "They even had to know their mother's maiden name and where she was born. And where their father was born."

Cosmonauts Use Manual Steering

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Two Soviet cosmonauts had to switch to manual steering today to travel the last few yards between their capsule and the Mir orbiting station after the automatic link-up system failed, Radio Moscow reported.

The cosmonauts managed to complete the maneuver and remanned the Mir complex after a hiatus of four months. They found the traditional Russian welcome symbols of bread and salt left by the last crew, Radio Moscow said.

After reaching Mir, the Soyuz TM-8 capsule floated around it instead of completing its approach correctly, Radio Moscow said.

"To cover the last few meters, Alexander Viktorenko was forced to apply manual control of the craft," it reported.

"Such things occasionally happen in orbit," cosmonaut training chief Vladimir Shatalov told Radio Moscow.

The glitch was the latest in a series of guidance problems Soviet spacecraft have experienced. A year ago, crew members who left Mir were stuck in their space capsule for 26 hours after problems with a guidance system forced them to abort two attempts to re-enter the atmosphere. In 1987, it took several tries to dock an unmanned space laboratory with Mir.

Tass said today the Soyuz capsule hooked up with the space station at 2:25 a.m. Moscow time (6:25 p.m. EDT Thursday), five minutes later than scheduled.

The cosmonauts carried out two maneuvers earlier Thursday to bring their craft close to the space station, the official news agency said.

"Everything is in order on board and the cosmonauts feel well," Tass said.

Flight commander Viktorenko and engineer Alexander A. Serebrov blasted off from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Soviet Central Asia early Wednesday.

Along with the cosmonauts, scientists sent up two modules to increase the amount of living space at the space station and improve its scientific capabilities.

Viktorenko and Serebrov are to remain in orbit six months. Radio Moscow said today they had already begun their research.

Their mission was delayed because the new modules were not ready and because of sharp public discussion over Soviet expenditures for space exploration at a time when the country has a high budget deficit and is seeking ways to improve supplies of many consumer goods.

West German police check car in which British soldier's wife was killed by terrorists

IRA Claims Responsibility In Death of Soldier's Wife

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DORTMUND, West Germany — The Irish Republican Army said today that it shot and killed the West German wife of a British soldier as she sat in her car in a military housing area.

The attack Thursday night was the second at a British military installation in West Germany in a week.

In a statement released in Dublin, Ireland, the IRA said:

"The woman killed was believed to have been a member of the British Crown Forces garrisoned in Dortmund. It has now emerged that she was the German wife of a British Army staff sergeant." The statement repeated a warning for civilians to stay clear of British army personnel.

"We are up against the cowardly actions of terrorists who go for innocent, defenseless people." Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain said today. The mainly Catholic IRA is fighting to drive the British out of Northern Ireland. Last week, it claimed responsibility for an attack near Muenster in which two British soldiers were seriously wounded.

Hans-Juergen Foerster, spokesman for the federal prosecutor's office in Karlsruhe, said the woman killed Thursday was 26. He declined to disclose her name until her relatives had been notified.

He said the gunman fired more than a dozen shots from a Kalashnikov automatic rifle at the woman, who was sitting in the family car. The car was parked and carried British plates.

Foerster said the gunman got into a car and drove off after the shooting. He wore British military battle fatigues and "had at least one accomplice" who was in the car, Foerster said.

A Dortmund police duty officer, who asked not to be identified by name, said the attack occurred at 9:50 p.m. Thursday in the village of Unna-Massen, located just outside of Dortmund, an industrial city.

Since June, two car bombs have exploded at British military housing areas in West Germany, and one soldier was killed in an attack in Hanover.

The IRA claimed responsibility for the fatal attack and is suspected by police in the others.

A third bomb planted in a soldier's car was found Aug. 28 and defused without incident.

More than 66,000 British soldiers and their dependents are stationed in West Germany.

Briton May Be Dead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The wife of missing Briton Jack Mann, a World War II fighter pilot, said today she had been told he died and that she believed the report to be true.

Mann, 75, disappeared May 12 as he drove to a bank in Syrian-policed Moslem west Beirut.

None of Lebanon's kidnap groups has specifically identified him as a hostage. But a previously unknown faction, the Cells of Armed Struggle, claimed that it kidnapped an unidentified Briton in Beirut the day Mann disappeared.

It demanded the release of Arabs jailed in Britain for the 1987 killing of Palestinian cartoonist Ali Naji al-Adhami. But Scotland Yard said no arrests had been made in that slaying.

There has been no word since then about Mann's whereabouts.

His wife, Sunny, said she received a telephone call Monday from an unidentified man who told her: "I have bad news about your husband."

She said she later met the man at a shop in west Beirut's Hamra commercial thoroughfare and "he told me that Jack is dead."

"I waited, but there was no news about Jack on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday," Mrs. Mann told reporters at her west Beirut apartment.

"I don't know. There's no proof that he's dead at the moment," she said.

But she noted that the report of her husband's alleged death "seems correct."

Mrs. Mann refused to answer any more questions.

A British Embassy spokeswoman, who asked that her name was not used, said the embassy "has no information at all about the reported death of Mr. Mann."

"We're trying to contact Mrs. Mann to find out what she knows, but we haven't been able to talk to her yet," she said.

The Manns lived in Beirut for 43 years. Mann worked as a pilot with Lebanon's national airline, Middle East Airlines, for more than 20 years.

Salvadoran Rebels To Stop Mine Use

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

MEXICO CITY — El Salvador's leftist guerrillas announced Thursday that they will suspend the use of land mines and sabotage against the nation's telephone and electricity systems in an effort to bring the U.S.-backed government of President Alfredo Cristiani to the negotiating table.

Although the announcement represents a significant concession by the rebels, it also clearly is a bid to gain the political initiative in the peace talks. Mines and economic sabotage are key weapons in the decade-long guerrilla war.

At a news conference here, rebel leaders read a communique from the five commanders of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front stating that the suspension will go into effect at midnight Saturday for "a sufficiently prudent period of time" to allow the government and armed forces to respond with measures of their own.

They said, however, that they will continue to attack buses until the government agrees to lower the fare.

The rebels called for the Salvadoran armed forces to suspend aerial bombings, the use of mines and "assassinations, arrests, the use of torture against political prisoners, police actions against demonstrations and strikes ..." among other steps.

"We are taking steps to end the war, not to give the other side an advantage in the war," said

Mercedes del Carmen Letona, who is known by her nom de guerre, "Comandante Luisa."

She added, "We are talking about negotiating an end to the hostilities. Until now, we have had a dialogue of the deaf. We cannot delay any longer."

The guerrillas and the rightist government each have said they are willing to hold talks in Mexico next week. On Thursday, Cristiani named his commission.

But the government has rejected a guerrilla demand that the talks be mediated by the archbishop of San Salvador, Monsignor Arturo Rivera y Damas, or his auxiliary bishop, Monsignor Gregorio Rosa Chavez.

The archbishop moderated three rounds of talks between the rebels and the previous Christian Democratic government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte. He also acted as a go-between in other negotiations, such as those for the release of Duarte's daughter, whom the guerrillas kidnapped in 1985, and for the evacuation of wounded combatants.

Cristiani has said Rivera y Damas does not represent a political party and therefore has no role in the dialogue. The guerrillas respond that retired Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson, leader of Cristiani's Nationalist Republican Alliance, or ARENA party, is blocking the archbishop's participation. D'Aubuisson has been accused of masterminding the 1980 assassination of Rivera's predecessor, Monsignor Oscar Arnulfo Romero.

Public Outcry Blocks Military Rule In Colombia

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — President Virgilio Barco was dealt a setback in his war on drugs when public outrage forced him to back off from imposing military rule on two cities believed to be strongholds of cocaine traffickers.

Barco replaced the mayors of the cities with military officers on Thursday but rescinded the orders in the face of charges the action was unconstitutional and anti-democratic.

One person was killed and at least seven others were injured in violence nationwide, a day after an alleged money launderer was extradited to the United States.

In Medellin, headquarters of the powerful Medellin cocaine cartel, two policemen were slightly injured when bombs placed under a table destroyed a fast-food restaurant in a busy pedestrian mall.

Classes at the National University of Bogota were suspended for the day after skirmishes broke out during a demonstration by about 500 students protesting U.S. aid to help Colombia fight its war on drugs.

The students shouted "Gringos go home" and burned an American flag. Groups of youths with white hoods on their heads flung firecrackers at police and two students were injured in scuffles.

Also in the capital, gunmen in a speeding car killed cattle rancher Jaime Castillo Franco and wounded his driver. Flying glass injured two bystanders, a woman and her daughter.

It was not known if the slaying was related to the government's anti-drug war, which began Aug. 18 when assassins believed to be paid by the cocaine traffickers killed the front-running presidential candidate, Sen. Luis Carlos Galan, a strong foe of drug dealing.

Under emergency measures imposed by Barco, authorities have seized millions of dollars in real estate and other property believed to belong to the drug lords. The president also revived Colombia's extradition treaty with the United States, where many of the leading traffickers face charges.

The first extradition took place on Wednesday when Eduardo Martinez Romero, an economist alleged to be the money launderer for the Medellin drug cartel, was flown to Atlanta. He will be tried on charges of laundering $27 million worth of illicit cocaine cash.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said Thursday that U.S. attorneys are preparing extradition requests for the 12 most-wanted Colombian drug traffickers.

Although the crackdown is believed to have practically paralyzed cocaine production, there is fear of more bombings and other terrorist attacks.

The drug lords have said they would rather die in Colombia than inside American prisons and have vowed to kill 10 judges for every drug suspect extradited.

On Thursday, more Americans were reported leaving. They included 20 families of employees of U.S.-

based Occidental Petroleum Co., a source said on condition of anonymity. He said they left Wednesday night.

Three Americans playing on popular semi-pro basketball teams in Medellin also left, said Jaime Arenas, president of the Colombian Basketball Federation. "Unfortunately, we had to do this because of the violence affecting Colombia and in particular Medellin," he said.

Barco tried to step up pressure on the drug lords by replacing the mayors of two of the traffickers' strongholds, Puerto Boyaca and Pacho, with army officers.

But the move was met by a storm of protest. Civilians and politicians from all of Colombia's political parties accused the government of being anti-democratic and said the action was unconstitutional because it allowed the replacement of elected officials.

Mayor Juan Gomez of Medellin, Colombia's second-largest city, said Barco's action violated the constitu-

"No one will remove me from this job," he said.

Barco later rescinded the action, but Interior Minister Orlando Velasquez said the president backed off only because of public outcry, not because of conviction.

"We believe the action is warranted to confront the situation we are living in," he said in an interview with the Radio Caracol network.

The government had acted after decreeing Wednesday that temporary military rule would be allowed in cities where "abnormal situations" existed.

Barco had put a military major in control of Puerto Boyaca, a town 95 miles north of Bogota in a region where the government has been battling paramilitary death squads run by drug gangs.

"I will obey the order, but I don't agree with it," Puerto Boyaca's mayor, Marino Estrada, had told the Radio Caracol before Barco's order was rescinded. "They must have their reasons but I don't know what they are. Everything has been calm here."

Pacho is 40 miles northeast of the capital, where Medellin Cartel leader Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha is believed to have operated before going into hiding.

For years, drug traffickers have largely evaded justice through bribery and intimidation, killing or bribing politicians, police, judges, journalists and others.

The Bush administration has pledged financial and even military support to help Colombia, which produces 80 percent of the cocaine consumed in the United States.

Barco has praised the U.S. initiative but said the United States must work to reduce cocaine consumption.

Mazowiecki Proposes Split Government

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity would have authority over foreign affairs and the broadcast media in a proposed government that would allow the Communist Party to retain control of the police and military.

Under the proposed government of former Solidarity activist Tadeusz Mazowiecki, the first non-Communist prime minister in the Soviet bloc, the trade union movement would have 11 Cabinet-level posts and the Communists would have five.

The Solidarity-allied United Peasant and Democratic parties would have four and two Cabinet-level posts, respectively.

Committees of the Sejm, or lower house of the National Assembly, began hearings on Mazowiecki's nominees and planned to vote Tuesday on Mazowiecki's proposed government.

No official list of nominees was released. The party newspaper

Trybuna Ludu, the pro-Solidarity newspaper Gazeta Wyborcza and the state PAP news agency all published lists that varied in some details. Government and parliamentary sources also provided slightly varying accounts.

But the general shape of the proposed government was known and appeared likely to win approval in parliament, which is dominated by a Solidarity-led coalition.

According to an unofficial list of nominees compiled from government and parliamentary sources, Solidarity will run six government departments, or ministries.

Non-Aligned Moderates Set Pace

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Moderates led by Yugoslavia guided the ninth summit of non-aligned nations to a close today with resolutions calling for the immediate release of all hostages and debt relief for the Third World.

"We have achieved a high degree of unity about what the future of our movement should be," Yugoslav president Janez Drnovsek told the closing session.

The moderates, who have emerged as the overwhelming majority in the 102-member movement, resolutely resisted throughout the four-day meeting attempts by a group of radical countries to introduce Cold War rhetoric into the proceedings.

However, some of the language in the summit's final declaration reflected compromise among moderates and hard-liners, who insisted on inclusion of references to "the struggle against imperialism, colonialism, neo-colonialism, racism apartheid and all forms of domination."

An effort by Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, to add a condemnation of "Zionism" to the document was thwarted by moderates after a heated debate. The reference eventually was relegated to one of 30 political and economic resolutions.

Conference documents, drafts of which had earlier been prepared by the Yugoslav hosts with the aim of revitalizing the non-aligned movement, dealt with topics ranging from Afghanistan and the Middle East to terrorism and drug trafficking.

One document "resolutely demanded that all hostages and all kidnapped persons be immediately released... irrespective of the perpetrators and the place of the crime."

The document on "international terrorism" said the summit participants condemned all acts of terrorism perpetrated by individuals, states and groups of states.

The movement also said growing links existed between terrorists, rightist paramilitary groups and drugs smugglers.

Economic issues, particularly the need to alleviate the burden of the $1.32 trillion foreign debt of Third World countries, received unprecedented attention at the summit.

The meeting adopted a package of resolutions calling for the cancellation of the debts for the least developed countries and lower interest rates to help the debtor countries revive their economic growth.

The summit brought together about 50 heads of state and a dozen premiers, the largest number to attend since the non-aligned movement was founded in 1961.

The movement once prided itself on its opposition to the superpowers and on its efforts to secure international peace, but since the 1970s member nations have fought a series of bloody wars against each other.

However, attempts by the summit's Yugoslav hosts to tone down acrimonious debates between countries engaged in bitter conflicts, such as Afghanistan and Pakistan, proved largely unsuccessful.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Sept. 9

- ARIES (March 20 to April 19): Invite only your most intimate contacts into your home and enjoy them today. Don't let friction between two friends keep you from having a good time socially.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 19): You need to avoid a desire to have friction with fellow workers over getting your own way. Small results start to come in from a practical project you have been concentrating on.
- GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): An influential person connected with a large company gives you good business advice. Don't resent the efforts of fellow workers to horn in on what you regard as your territory.
- MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): Put into motion in your business affairs your own special talents and abilities. Your most pleasure will now come from outside recreations and entertainments.
- LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Delve deeply into sources of information for ways to make more abundance regularly. Basic home and family issues can now be more easily solved.
- VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Carry through with that new approach that can improve daily activities. A charmer with money can now become a part of your business arrangements.
- LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): You are able to achieve any work ambition with courage and confidence. This is the time to pay those visits and make more contact with kin and close companions with family members.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Secret anger towards a fellow worker would not be permitted to affect your own work. A new approach at a business matter is all to the good.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): Controlling temptation to be moody with good friends finds you having a wonderful time. Your home is where your heart and happiness should be now.
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): Fixed ideas in the mind of a figure require you carry through work exactly as directed. You have a great many new age ideas for increasing your assets.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): Your ideas for astute business results are all to the good so put them into practice. Worldly activities should be the center of your interest with family members.
- PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): A new inspiration that obsesses you is good for making work dreams come true. Plan a new household budget with those who live in your home.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Queen of ♥
 All too often we have seen a declarer exhibit exemplary technique on a tough hand, then go down on one which should have presented no problem. This example is from a rubber bridge game.

North had to decide whether, as a passed hand, he should jump to game or simply bid three spades in response to partner's third-seat, one-spade opening, which might be shaded. We are by nature conservative, so we lean to three spades; but we have no quarrel with North's choice.

West attacked with a heart honor, taken in dummy. Declarer led a spade, and was not particularly bothered when East showed out. West took his three trump tricks and continued with another heart to the remaining honor in dummy.

When West showed out on the second diamond, declarer suddenly realized he was between a rock and a hard place. He had three losing diamonds in hand, and only two trumps remaining in dummy. The defenders made no error in discarding, so the result was down one.

Since declarer had no losers in the plain suits, he should have been willing to concede three trump tricks. That's easy enough to accomplish as long as trumps are not touched.

After winning the first trick, declarer should cash the ace-king of diamonds. Suppose West ruffs with the jack and cashes his high trumps. There would still be three trumps on the table to take care of the diamond losers. And if West does not ruff, declarer simply continues cashing winners and ruffing. No matter what West does, he cannot get more than his three trump tricks, and the contract is safe.

Navy Says It Will Beef Up Ship Discipline

By Bryan Brumley
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Navy says it will tighten procedures on its ships, but that it's difficult to prevent the suicidal behavior officials believe caused the blast that killed 47 sailors aboard the USS Iowa.

A report on the April 19 explosion released Thursday by the Pentagon said "circumstantial evidence" indicated that gunner's mate Clayton M. Hartwig intentionally sparked the explosion.

The family of the 25-year-old sailor contends the Navy made him a scapegoat for its negligence.

More than 1,100 pages of evidence released with the report depicted Hartwig as an expert in explosives who had trouble making friends, had once attempted suicide and 11 days before the explosion said he might "become one of those little white headstones in Arlington National Cemetery any day."

The admirals investigating the explosion also found that Iowa officers were lax in instructing sailors on gunnery, and ordered that procedures be tightened before the 16-inch guns resume regular firing.

Firing of the guns has been suspended since the explosion, but were tested last month.

"As with any catastrophe, the immediate impulse is to take every possible step to prevent a recurrence," wrote Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost, chief of Naval Operations and the Navy's top officer.

However, Trost said in a commentary, "it is virtually impossible to have established procedures to absolutely preclude disastrous results of such an individual choice."

Adm. Leon Edney, the vice chief of naval operations, said the Navy would not change its psychological screening procedures, saying the investigation found nothing to require a drastic change.

Investigators said Hartwig's alleged suicidal tendencies were not known to his superiors, only becoming apparent after interviews with acquaintances and family during the four-month investigation.

"He was a clean-cut sailor. He didn't smoke. He didn't drink. He didn't carouse on leave. ... He wasn't a troublemaker," Edney said at a Pentagon news conference.

But the report concluded that Hartwig was "the principal suspect."

"He was emotionally capable of committing suicide, probably with the intent of killing others also," it said.

"We don't know the motivation," Edney said. Kreig J. Brusnahan, a lawyer representing the Hartwig family, criticized the report.

"The Navy reached the conclusion that they must have a scapegoat in this matter to deflect attention away from their negligence, their incompetence and their indifference in the operation of the USS Iowa," Brusnahan said.

Rear Adm. Richard D. Milligan, who directed the investigation, told reporters how Hartwig stood next to the breech in the middle gun of turret No. 2, describing how he could have dropped a detonator between bags of gunpowder being loaded during firing exercises off Puerto Rico.

But because all those near Hartwig died, "we will never know with absolute certainty exactly what happened," Edney said.

The circumstances of the explosion are muddied further by "a number of major administrative and supervisory discrepancies on board the USS Iowa, as well as substantial and serious failures by senior USS Iowa personnel to properly discharge their responsibilities," Adm. Powell F. Carter, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, said in a letter released with the report.

Among the problems cited were a failure to fully train sailors on firing procedures. But Carter said those discrepancies were ruled out as a cause of the blast.

Milligan began investigating the possibility that the explosion was intentional after receiving a letter May 8 from Hartwig's sister, Kathy Kubicina, saying Hartwig meant to change the beneficiary of a $100,000 accident death insurance policy from Kendall Truitt, an Iowa sailor, to his parents.

Truitt was once a close friend of Hartwig, but the friendship cooled after Truitt became involved with a woman, Milligan said.

Friends and acquaintances described Hartwig as "weird," "troubled" and "shy," saying "he had a hard time making friends," and "had very little self-esteem," according to the report.

One woman told investigators that "Hartwig confided to her that he was unhappy aboard the ship because the other sailors made fun of him."

The names of those who spoke with investigators were blacked out.

In a letter written to a woman friend 11 days before the explosion, Hartwig said:

"I really wish you would stop saying that I am hiding in the Navy. ... I don't think the 1,200 men that went down on the USS Arizona were hiding, or the 37 sailors that were killed on the USS Stark in the Persian Gulf in 1966! I could become one of those little white headstones in Arlington National Cemetery any day!"

Several sailors said Hartwig told them he had "feelings of suicide" and "had attempted suicide." Several sailors also said Hartwig said he knew how to build bombs.

"He told me he could take out the ship very easily with a small bomb," said one sailor. "He just said that an internal explosion that could set off magazines with chain reaction would go all the way down the ship."

Although investigators found no evidence that Hartwig had built a detonator, they did find a book called "Getting Even" and a military manual on explosives at his bunk.

The Milligan report recommended charges against five individuals whose names were blanked out; administrative action to caution three people, including the executive officer of the ship, "with respect to ... duties"; removal of the gunnery officer and the weapons officer from their jobs and administrative or disciplinary action against another person — one recommendation not approved by the chief of naval operations.

The endorsement by the chief of naval operations concurred in a recommendation by the commander of surface forces, Atlantic Fleet, that the captain and executive officer not be subject to judicial action or removal. But the Navy's chief directed that special reprimands be prepared for them.

More Refugees Flee Hungarian Camps

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA, Austria — About 100 people, mostly East Germans frustrated with delays in a promised mass exodus from Hungary, fled across the border to Austria during the night, a Red Cross official said today. Thousands of East Germans are in refugee camps in Hungary waiting to migrate to West Germany. But pressure on Hungary from Warsaw Pact ally East Germany has delayed the transfer.

Also today, West German officials in East Berlin said all 116 East Germans who had holed up in the West German mission there had left the facility.

Eberhard Grashoff, a spokesman for the mission, said the East Germans left the compound this morning after they were promised "extensive legal counsel" in their efforts to leave the country.

The would-be emigres had been living in the mission for more than a month, demanding West Germany's help in getting permission to leave.

West Germany's decision to harbor the East Germans, many of them families with small children, had strained relations between Bonn and the Communist leadership in East Berlin. More than 300 other East Germans remain in West Germany's missions in Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary.

Red Cross officials in Austria said that besides East Germans, today's new arrivals included Romanians, Czechoslovaks and one Ghanaian, said Heinrich Unger, head of the Red Cross in Austria's eastern Burgenland province.

Austria has a policy of giving asylum to all political refugees.

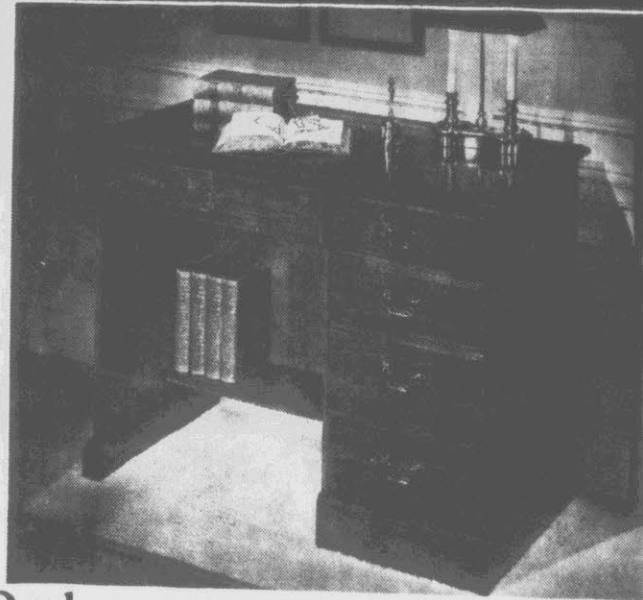

About 6,000 East Germans have fled to West Germany, taking advantage of Hungary's decision in May to remove border fortifications with Austria. Hungary has been seeking closer ties with the West as it reforms its Communist political and economic system.

Another 6,000 East Germans, many of them people vacationing in Hungary, flooded refugee camps in recent weeks to take advantage of a one-time sanctioned migration apparently tacitly agreed to by Hungary.

The prospective exodus has worsened tensions between Hungary and East Germany, which has spurred the liberal reforms embraced to varying degrees in the Soviet Union, Poland and Hungary.
