IBM Seeks Proposal On Downtown Office Building

By J. Ward Best
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

IBM Corp., a giant in the personal and office computer field, now wants to stake claim to part of Greenville, according to a local engineering firm.

In a letter to Mayor Ed Carter and City Council members dated Oct. 4, James G. Hite of Hite Associates, P.A., said IBM requested a development group that Hite represents to submit a proposal for construction of an office building in downtown Greenville.

IBM would lease approximately 22,000 square feet of a proposed four-story, 50,000 square-foot office building, according to the letter.

Hite, representing a group of developers including Marvin K. Blount Jr. and Robert L. Jones, told the City Council on Thursday night that his group was seeking a city-owned parcel of land to accommodate the proposed building.

The City Council voted Thursday night to approve the sale of 1.3 acres of land to Hite's group for what the group offered, $14,900, after Hite said he was pressed by a deadline from IBM to decide on a site.

Hite's letter told the council that IBM indicated a preference for the proposed site between the Tar River and First Street near Cherry Hill Cemetery. Hite's group owns property to the east of the proposed site, and the 1.3 acres owned by the city for additional parking for the office building.

Marvin K. Blount's law office is now located on the property, and will be demolished for the proposed office building, according to Hite.

IBM spokesmen in Research Triangle Park confirmed today that the company is looking at Greenville for expansion.

"We are assessing our space requirements in Greenville," said Bob Wright of IBM. Wright said he could not say any more about the project until the company made definite plans.

Rumors have been circulating for the past few months about the possibility of IBM locating an office in Greenville.

Hite refused to publicly confirm at Thursday's council meeting what he

Nursing Home Fire Kills Nine

By Jean McNair
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NORFOLK, Va. — A fire that struck a nursing home while patients were going to sleep killed nine people and injured nearly 100 as rescuers rushed dazed patients to safety through halls flooded with choking smoke.

The elderly evacuees, some in bedclothes and some of whom were naked when they were saved, were helped down halls and down ladders as firefighters tackled the blaze, reported at 10:30 p.m. Thursday.

Patients huddled early today on lawns of houses near the 160-bed Hillhaven Rehabilitation and Convalescent Center, attended by paramedics and neighbors.

The fire was mostly contained to a room on the second floor of the four-story brick home, but smoke spread throughout, and many of the injured suffered from smoke inhalation, said Norfolk Fire Chief Thomas E. Gardner.

"I woke up in a roomful of smoke," said patient Robert Bell, 82.

"The whole room was saturated with smoke. You couldn't see and you couldn't hardly breathe."

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but authorities ruled out foul play, Gardner said this morning.

Gardner said the nursing home did not have any sprinklers, but said they were not required when the home was built in 1969. He said he hoped the fire would inspire lawmakers to require sprinklers.

"I personally advocate that you don't build anything in the city that you don't put sprinklers in," Gardner said today. "I'm hoping this will cause the legislators to help make a modification to the building code that would require a sprinkler system in at least buildings of this occupancy class."

He also said the rescue efforts were hampered by the fact that many patients "were hooked up to all sorts of medical equipment."

Panel Finds Gray Area Over Freedom Of Press

By Charles Hoskinson
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Privacy was on trial Thursday at East Carolina University.

A panel of expert witnesses from the legal community, the media and the academic community struggled to draw a line between privacy and the right of a free press to publish items of public interest, and found instead a large gray area.

H. Hugh Stevens Jr., attorney for the N.C. Press Association, smiled and joked as he grilled the panel over the hypothetical situation of Mary Margaret O'Sullivan, depicted as a prominent and uncompromising anti-abortion activist and aspiring legislator who pays for an abortion for her 17-year-old daughter after the girl is raped.

Stevens told the story of how "Bloody Mary" rose to prominence by standing outside abortion clinics yelling at women who go inside. He spoke of how a reporter's request for an interview was answered with a letter saying O'Sullivan wanted to keep her public and private lives separate.

But the reporter received confidential medical records from a source that described how O'Sullivan paid for her 17-year-old daughter's abortion after she is raped, Stevens said. The reporter promised to keep the source's identity secret, but taped their conversation.

"You've got a situation filled with

Burmese Students Hijack Airliner

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — At least two Burmese students hijacked a Burmese airliner with 85 people aboard today and demanded that their country's military government release all political prisoners and restore democracy.

The students forced the Fokker 28 aircraft to land at a Thai military airfield and held the passengers hostage, said Col. Somchai Dhanarajata of Thailand's Supreme Command Joint Operations Center.

One hijacker appeared in the door of the plane with a hand grenade in his upraised fist. Hijackers later released several hostages, including four women and a child, said a navy spokesman, Lt. Somchai Kaewvibunphan.

They insisted on a response to their seven demands by midnight (1 p.m. EDT). It was unclear whether they had made any threats if their demands are not met, Somchai said.

In a list given to Thai authorities, the hijackers demanded the release of top Burmese opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi, an end to the curfew imposed by the military government and restoration of democracy in Burma.

Thai marines surrounded the aircraft of Burma's national airline, Myanmar Airways, and a U.S.-trained, anti-hijacking unit from the Thai air force was en route to the airfield, he said.

The plane was returning from Mergui to Burma's capital, Rangoon, when the hijackers ordered the pilot at gunpoint to divert to Thailand, Burma's neighbor, according to Burma's official news agency. The report said three hijackers were involved rather than two as reported by Somchai.

Rehnquist Stirs Ire With Report

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Civil libertarians are criticizing Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist for bypassing the federal courts' policy-making body and sending Congress a plan that could lead to swifter executions for death-row inmates.

The move also appears to have dismayed many of Rehnquist's colleagues on the Judicial Conference, the 27 federal judges headed by Rehnquist who serve as a kind of board of directors for the federal courts.

Rehnquist's move set the clock running for legislative consideration of the death penalty appeals proposal, under a 1988 law in which the Senate bound itself to speedy action.

Fourteen of the Judicial Conference members wrote Congress to request hearings on whatever recommendations the conference makes, The New York Times reported today.

Rehnquist's move "would essentially render the (U.S.) Judicial Conference impotent," Leslie Harris of the American Civil Liberties Union told Legal Times, a Washington-based newspaper for lawyers.

In its Oct. 2 issue, the newspaper quoted opponents as saying Rehnquist's action may suggest federal judges are split over what changes, if any, are needed in handling death penalty appeals.

The 14 judges, including the chief judges of eight of the 13 federal judicial circuits, this week wrote conference secretary Ralph Mecham asking him to "transmit to the chairmen of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees a request that hearings be held so that the recommendations of the Judicial Conference, which will be adopted at its next meeting, can be considered," according to The New York Times.

East Carolina Ranked 15th In South By Magazine

By Carol Tyer
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina University is ranked 15th among colleges and universities in the South surveyed and evaluated by U.S. News and World Report Magazine for a special report titled "America's Best Colleges."

ECU's sister institutions, Appalachian State University and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, were ranked ninth and 10th respectively among colleges and universities in the South. Wake Forest University was first in the category and the University of Richmond ranked second.

The category in which ECU ranked 15th, included 562 regional schools that were divided into four geographic areas: North, South, Midwest and West.

Dr. Richard Eakin, ECU chancellor, said, "I am pleased and encouraged by East Carolina's inclusion among the 15 best regional universities in the South. This recognition is a tribute to the strength of our faculty and staff. It should serve to challenge us to even higher levels of achievement."

Among 204 national universities, Duke University climbed from 12th place to fifth, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill went from 23rd to 18th. Davidson College ranked 15th among 141 national liberal-arts colleges.

From among 384 regional liberal-arts colleges, Lenoir-Rhyne College ranked eighth among those in the South.

The colleges and universities ranked by U.S. News and World Report were rated by five criteria: quality of student body as measured by the school's selectivity; faculty quality; reputation for academic excellence; financial resources, and ability to retain and graduate students.

Two Adults, Two Children Die In Wreck

FOUNTAIN — Four people — two adults and two children — died from injuries they received when a car ran off South Eason Street and into a roadside ditch in Fountain late Thursday afternoon.

Highway patrol Trooper R.E. Backus identified the dead as Marion Lee Edwards, 39, of Route 2, Fountain, who was driving the car, his sister Linda Edwards, 28, and her children, Demetrius Edwards, 5, and India Edwards, 4, all of Fountain.

"Alcohol was definitely involved," Dr. Stan Harris, regional state medical examiner, said this morning.

The medical examiner said the results of blood alcohol tests would not be available today.

Ms. Edwards and her children were riding in the back seat, according to Backus.

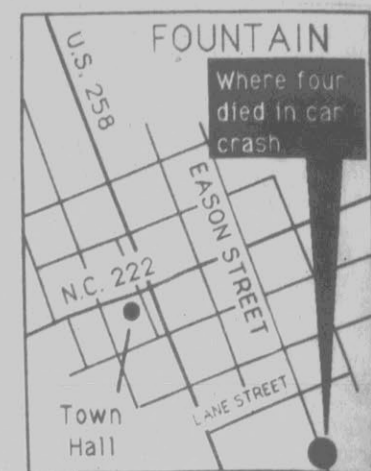

Injured in the mishap, Backus said, were Brenda King of Fountain, a passenger in the back seat, and Joyce Avent of Route 2, Farmville, who was riding in the right front seat.

According to Backus, the car was headed north when it swerved across the road and ran into a ditch, then struck a driveway tile.

Ms. Edwards and her two children died at the scene from neck injuries, the medical examiner said, while the driver died from multiple chest and abdominal injuries a short time after arriving at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

None of the people in the car were wearing seat belts, Harris said. "They were flying objects."

Griffin Resigns From Bond Panel Over Vote On West

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The chairman of a steering committee for the school bond referendum says he is resigning because he disagrees with the Pitt County Board of Education's decision to deny Superintendent Edwin L. West Jr. renewal of his contract.

But Robert S. Griffin says he still supports the bond referendum.

"I'm still supportive of the bond issue. I still intend to vote for it," Griffin said Thursday. "I'm going to encourage everyone to vote for it."

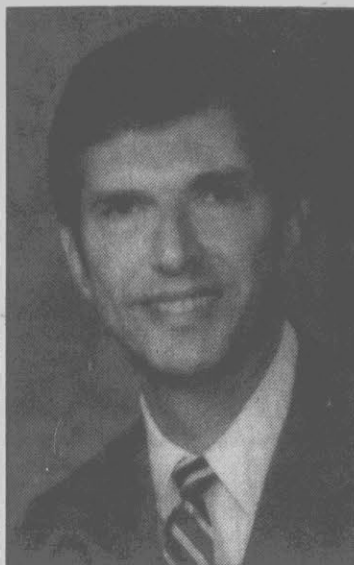

Griffin said he had agreed to a request by board Chairman George E. Williams and West to lead a steering committee to organize support for the $25.7-million bond in a Dec. 12 referendum, but changed his mind after the board decided not to renew West's contract as superintendent Sept. 18.

"I am personally a friend and a supporter of Dr. West," he said. "I am not, therefore, a supporter of the majority position of the board."

Griffin said in a letter to Williams last week that he was "heart sick" over the board's decision and felt it was inappropriate for him to remain as chairman because he disagrees with the board's position.

However, Griffin said Thursday he intends to continue his support of the committee's efforts from a less visible position. "I think (the board) should choose another leader that is aligned with their position," he said.

The board has not acted on his resignation, Griffin said. "I have not yet heard back from the chairman."

Williams could not be reached today for comment.

Pitt Homemaker Is Among Leaders Receiving Awards

By Rosalie Trotman
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The North Carolina Extension Homemakers Association recognized its outstanding leaders across the state Thursday in Greenville with the presentation of A&P Awards, including one to an area recipient.

Rubelle Goin of Pitt County received an engraved silver tray from Ernest Willoughby, director of the Greenville A&P store, who made the presentations.

Mrs. Goin, one of 16 winners from eight NCEHA districts in the state, is a past district president and is incoming treasurer of the Southeastern District, which includes Pitt County.

She is president of her local organization and county council treasurer.

"Mrs. Goin is very deserving and her work locally as well as on the district and state levels personifies her abilities," said Evelyn Spangler, Pitt County home economics agent.

Taking a look at the international theme through economic understanding was the objective of over 500 women attending the NCEHA state council meeting in Greenville on Wednesday and Thursday.

Individual district business meetings and luncheons were held Wednesday. Sam Uzzell, a Pitt County agricultural extension agent, was a keynote speaker.

Uzzell discussed global economics, aid to the Third World and his recent trip to Peru. "I observed the ways in which agricultural technology transfers took place there and how North Carolina citizens are affected by events that occur elsewhere," Uzzell told the gathering.

"I urge you to increase your awareness of what is going on abroad. There is a lot to be done, and a lot we can do," he said.

Pitt County representatives to the state council sessions were Jo Costello, Deborah Cannon, and Mrs. Spangler and Mrs. Goin.

Barbara Stetzel was installed as state president Thursday.

"I see involvement as the necessary and vital force to the success of any goals we attain. There are a number of ways in which NCEHA members are involved or can be involved in the issues and actions of the association. Being an active committee member or officer is a start to setting a firm foundation for greater involvement and accomplishments," said Rebecca Jarvis-Rhodes, outgoing state president.

IBM Asks Proposal For Offices

had said in his letter to the council. Publicity about the project could jeopardize negotiations with IBM, he said.

Hite said his group intends to develop the property even if IBM chooses another location. But IBM required a proposal by Oct. 10, Hite said.

City Manager Greg Knowles said the city hoped IBM would chose to locate in Greenville, and he said the city would contact IBM within a week.

"Yes, the city will be calling them and asking if there is anything we can do to help them move in," Knowles said. "We want them to come."

Knowles said the city knew IBM was looking at Greenville as a possible site, but Hite's group did not offer a firm commitment to buy the land on First Street until two weeks ago.

Along with the proposed sight on Hite's property, IBM is also looking at two other sites in the city and others outside of Greenville, Knowles said.

The council approved the sale of 1.3 acres of city-owned property to Hite's group Thursday night. The parcel was not opened for public bids, and Hite said he hired a private firm to appraise the land.

The Daily Reflector

In voting to sell the property to Hite's group, the council included a provision that the property would return to the city for the sale price if it is not developed within three years.

Mayor Ed Carter and Council member Lorraine Shinn objected to the procedure of the sale and the amount. Ms. Shinn, who did not vote on the measure, and Carter said they did not object to development of the property, but rather the way Knowles handled the city business.

In August the mayor and three members of the council met in an emergency session to "counsel" Knowles about his handling of city matters and providing information to the council.

Carter said today he should have been included in the talks from the beginning, but he fully supported the project.

"I think it's a good thing and we shouldn't throw the baby out with the bath water," Carter said.

Harris-Teeter Faces Union Drive

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROANOKE, Va. — The United Food and Commercial Workers Union has started a campaign to organize employees of 21 Harris-Teeter supermarkets in Virginia and 80 supermarkets in North Carolina.

Union volunteers and organizers began the drive Wednesday by handing out union literature to employees at the Harris-Teeter stores.

The union is talking to employees to find out if the company has violated any state or federal labor laws, said Gene Moser, president of Local 278 in Roanoke.

In Charlotte, N.C., Harris-Teeter President Edward S. Dunn Jr. said he had no comment on the union drive.

The union said it has been trying for more than 12 years to get a contract after winning an election among Harris-Teeter employees at a warehouse in Durham, N.C. That is the union's only victory in Harris-Teeter operations.

Frank Dinger, a Food and Commercial Workers Union vice president in Charlotte, said the union was overwhelmed by employee response to the campaign.

Street Closing

Evans Street from Greenville Boulevard to Arlington Boulevard will be closed to through traffic beginning Monday and lasting about 30 days.

People living and working inside the area came and go, but through traffic will not be allowed, said Wayne Nottingham, N.C. Department of Transportation resident engineer.

Council Restricts On-Street Parking

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The City Council has put an end to parking along some city streets near East Carolina University, and slapped parking restrictions on some areas.

The council approved parking restrictions along parts of Third, Fourth and Harding streets and created "no parking" zones on Fourth Street and Beasley Drive during Thursday's council meeting.

The council also passed an ordinance which would outlaw the East Carolina Stockyard on N.C. 11 after a three-year amortization period. And a proposal to locate a mediation center in the gymnasium at the old Epps High School was delayed for more public comment.

The parking control restrictions will go into effect after a 30-day information period. The council action established controlled residential parking along the following streets: the north side of Fourth Street between Library and Harding streets; the east side of Harding Street between Johnson and Third streets; the east side of Harding Street between Johnson and Fourth, and the north side of Third Street between Jarvis Street and Woodlawn Avenue.

Citing safety reasons, the council established no parking zones on the north side of Fourth Street to a point 77 feet east of the center line of Harding Street and on the north side of Beasley Drive from a point 55 feet east of the center line of Medical Drive.

Signs and markings will be placed in the effected areas, and the city will give citations to violators after 30 days.

The East Carolina Stockyard, where citizen reports led to the discovery of dead pigs earlier this summer, was also given a grace period. An ordinance adopted by the council Thursday allows the stockyard three years and three months to cease operations. The additional time was added to the city attorney's proposal of three years to allow for the expiration of the owner's rental contract with East Carolina Stockyards.

A final decision on locating the proposed mediation center in the city-owned Epps gym was delayed after some area residents expressed some questions and concerns about the operation at Thursday's meeting. The council suggested the residents meet with the group proposing the center and return to the council for approval at a future meeting.

The council denied two rezoning requests which had earlier won approval from the Planning and Zoning Commission. The requests from Raymond L. Carney, the owner of the Unlimited Touch nightclub, and Alyce Hilliard would have established commercial zones in predominantly residential neighborhoods.

Chancellor Wasn't Told Of Arrests

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH, N.C. — N.C. State University's Athletics Director Jim Valvano failed to tell administrators for more than a month that seven Wolfpack wrestlers had been involved in an assault on two men and a woman, the university's acting chancellor said Thursday.

Dr. Larry Monteith, who became interim chancellor Oct. 1, said he was "distressed" that Valvano had withheld information about the Sept. 1 attack from him and other senior administrators. Monteith said he learned about the assault Wednesday, the day police filed charges. Monteith said the seven wrestlers would be suspended from the team.

At a news conference Thursday, Monteith said Valvano had promised to write a letter explaining why he had not told officials about the incident.

Monteith said he talked to Valvano Wednesday night after learning of the assault, and the two agreed to meet next week to discuss the situation.

GUILD OF OPTICIANS
YOUR EYEGGLASS PRESCRIPTION
What does the Federal Trade Commission say about "Eyeglass Prescriptions?"

Q. Can I charge my patients an extra fee for releasing the prescription?
A. No. The Rule makes it illegal for you to charge your patients any fee in excess of your normal examination fee as a charge for releasing the prescription. So if your normal examination fee is $30, you cannot add an extra $5 or $10 for releasing the prescription.

Q. When do I have to give out a prescription?
A. The prescription must be given to your patient immediately after you complete the eye examination. This means that you must give your patient his or her prescription before you begin your dispensing procedures (if you also dispense eyeglasses).

Q. What if my patient doesn't ask for the prescription? Do I still have to give it out to my patient?
A. Yes. The Rule requires that you prepare the prescription and physically offer it to the patient. Of course, you can't force the patient to take it, but you must offer him or her the written prescription. Simply asking your patients whether they want their prescription is not sufficient. We found that many consumers had never seen a prescription for corrective eyewear, and thus were unaware that they could take that piece of paper and use it to comparison shop.

Q. What is the penalty for violating the Rule?
A. The penalty for violating the Rule is up to $10,000 per violation.

Q. How can I report violations of the Rule?
A. You can contact us directly in Washington, D.C. Our mailing address in Washington is: Eyeglasses TRR, Federal Trade Commission, Room 281, Washington, DC 20580

Fire Kills 9 In Norfolk Home

to 97 — died of smoke inhalation, said Deborah Myers, a spokeswoman for Sentara Norfolk General Hospital.

The 98 people taken to eight hospitals suffered smoke inhalation and minor burns, officials said. Twenty of people were admitted to Sentara Norfolk General, including five in critical condition, Ms. Myers said. The rest were treated and taken to other nursing facilities.

The fire was extinguished after midnight.

Second-floor resident Harriett Waddill, 76, described the confusion:

"Everything was quiet. We were going to bed. All of a sudden we heard this commotion in the hall. They were running up and down the hall and they were yelling, 'Get him out of the room.' It was getting so black I couldn't even identify were my bed was."

Katie Gwaltney, 88, said nursing home workers told her to stay in bed in her fourth-floor room after she heard the fire alarm.

"They came and told us that everything was OK," she said as family members comforted her in her wheelchair. "I couldn't get out. I just lay so still."

Gardner said many residents stayed in their rooms with the doors closed while firefighters used a giant pressurized ventilation system called a smoke blaster to clear the smoke and pump fresh air into the building.

The fire chief said 180 people were in the building when the fire broke out.

He said the state code requires sprinklers in buildings that are five stories or taller. The nursing home is four stories. He said officials have ruled out foul play and would release the cause of the fire late today.

Nursing home officials will consider installing sprinklers, but they are difficult to place in existing buildings, said Jeffrey M. McKain, a regional vice president for the Hillhaven Corp., a Tacoma, Wash.-based chain that owns the home.

"It's an extremely difficult system to retrofit," McKain said.

Jeff Crow, who lives across the street from the nursing home, said he was watching television when he noticed an orange glow in a second-floor room.

"I knew something was wrong when they started laying sheets out" on the building's lawn, he said. "Then they started bringing bodies out. It was terrible."

Crow comforted one elderly man who was brought down by a fire truck ladder.

"He was coherent," Crow said. "He was a little awe-struck by it, talking about how the Lord took care of people."

As another resident in a wheelchair waited to be rolled into a van, an attendant leaned over her shoulder.

"You're all right," she said. "You're going to get some sleep soon."

At Sentara Norfolk General, dozens of people waited in the lobby hours after the fire for information on their relatives in the nursing home.

Bob Crumpler, who drove 50 miles from his home in Ivor to check on his 88-year-old mother, Esther Crocker, said he had heard she was all right.

"We'd still like to know where she's at because I know she's scared," he said.

Myers identified the victims as Louise Leigh, 76; Dewey McDaniel, 92; Susie Foreman, 71; Eula Oslin, 79; Mary Harrell, 74; Mittie Tann, 79; Roberta L. Lightfoot, 97; Major Leary, 78; and Nemesio Tabor, 65. All but Leary are women, she said.

Lessons

Pass The Glass Of Goodness Freely

The most important lessons learned in school aren't necessarily found in books. Just ask Ayden Elementary School.

Over five years ago, a tornado destroyed most of that school, leaving its students and teachers without a place to meet or school supplies. It was a difficult, unhappy time for the youngsters and the community. But when a busload of schoolchildren from Liberty School in Union County arrived and brought supplies, clothes and food, the pain of loss eased. Kids and adults alike learned something important about the human spirit.

They also learned a lesson about man's responsibility to his fellow man. On Monday, parents from Ayden will drive cars filled with canned goods, clothes and supplies to Spring Hill, S.C., a small community near Bishopville flattened by hurricane Hugo. These materials were collected by children, parents and teachers of Ayden Elementary who hope to help the community of Spring Hill the same way they were helped in 1984. The school "adopted" Westley Elementary in that town just as Ayden was "adopted" by Liberty School.

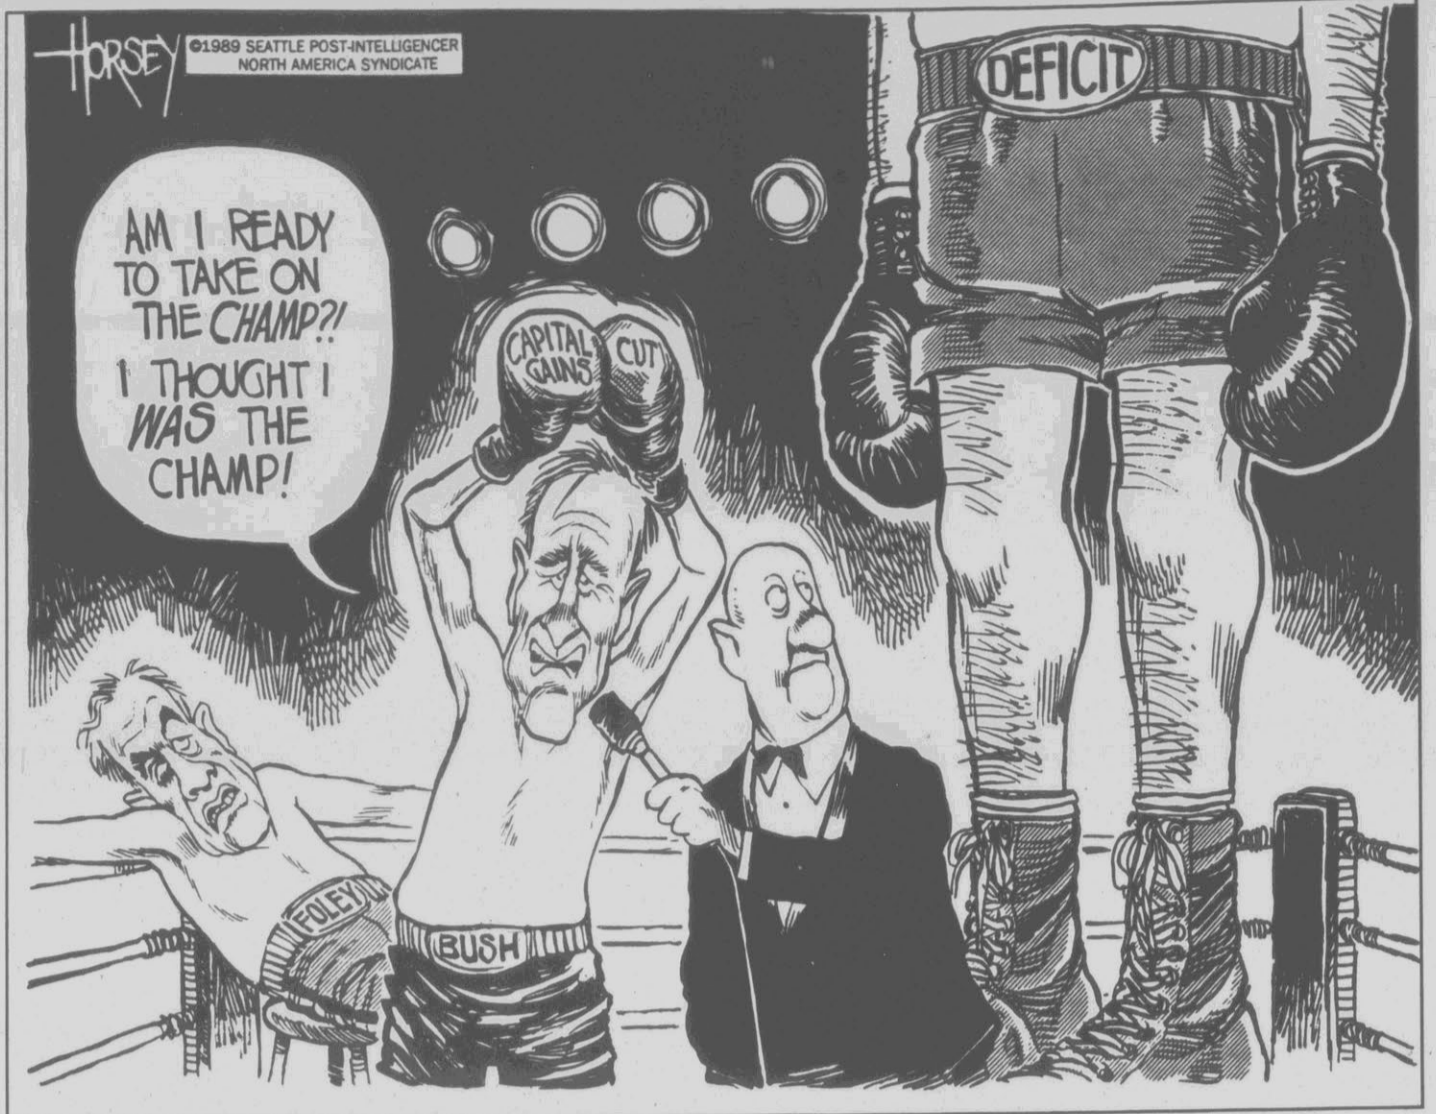

Instead of buying ice cream for themselves, kids have been giving their quarters to the effort. Parents are unselfishly donating time and gas to deliver the goods. Community residents and businesses have done their part. It is a small but inspiring slice of the human experience — one which deserves a warm round of applause.

For the residents of Ayden, the photos of Hugo's destruction mirrored the scenes they saw in their own town five years ago. The difference — their neighbors and families, not strangers, were the ones without homes, food, warm clothing and a school.

But instead of just remembering the horror of that time, they chose to recall the goodness of others and reciprocate.

That lesson is a poignant one. Kindness can't eliminate tragedy, but it can ease it. And the glass from which it flows can be passed freely without diminishing the level.

'For the residents of Ayden, the photos of Hugo's destruction mirrored the scenes they saw in their own town five years ago.'

About The Forum ...

Salutes is a forum for readers of The Daily Reflector Opinion page. The column will be a regular feature on Fridays and will allow readers to recognize extraordinary efforts by individuals or community organizations.

Space will not allow all letters to be published but all submissions meeting guidelines will be considered.

Let The Daily Reflector know about the good things in your community by writing to Salutes, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835.

Generosity

It is with great pride and pleasure that I write to acknowledge the generous contributions recently made to the American Red Cross on behalf of the victims of the infamous Hugo.

Over $10,000 in cash, canned goods, supplies, etc... have been forwarded to our local chapter in a relief effort for the hurricane victims. Most remarkable is the fact that most of these contributions came unsolicited. It is a simple matter seeing something that needs to be done and doing it.

The citizens of Pitt County have always rallied to the aid of their neighbors, just as those neighbors assisted us during those dark days in March of 1984.

Time & Energy

Due to the hot humid summer, materials in the Pactolus Elementary School media center mildewed. To clean more than 6,000 books posed a tremendous challenge. Many community volunteers and staff members have helped meet that challenge with their continued support the clean up will soon be finished.

I want to "Salute" everyone who has donated their time and energy to clean books for our boys and girls.

Submissions to Salutes should consist of no more than 150 words and should spotlight a good deed or good job that deserves community note. Longer letters will be cut. Signatures, phone numbers and addresses of letter-writers should accompany all letters.

Not Easy

Real Service In Troubled Times

Service in the North Carolina National Guard means giving up lots of weekends for training and at least two weeks of intensive training in the summer.

It can mean much more, however. It can mean being of real service to fellow citizens in troubled times.

That's not easy in itself. Guardsmen can be mobilized and sent into potentially dangerous situations at the call of the governor. That requires leaving homes and careers on short notice.

It happened to the Greenville National Guard unit following Hurricane Hugo's unprecedented damage in Mecklenburg County last week. Forty-seven guardsmen from the 213th Military Police unit were mobilized and ordered to Charlotte to help with traffic control and other police duties in a city which was temporarily paralyzed by the unanticipated damage caused by a hurricane so far inland.

One of the guardsmen was injured when he was struck by a vehicle while directing traffic.

Sill it was a positive experience for local guard members. They reported good relations with civil authorities there and some said the people in Charlotte were pleasant and welcomed them.

The emergency over, the military police unit returned home last weekend.

They will resume their role as civilians who regularly train for emergency duty or even mobilizing to go off to war. Local units have, after all, been call for extended active duty in wartime.

The state can take comfort in the knowledge that the National Guard is available in emergencies such as Hugo. And local members can take satisfaction in knowing the hard earned skills were a help to their fellow North Carolinians in a time of emergency.

Too often, no thanks goes to those who give up their comforts and, with little compensation, help others. Many have no desire to do the things the guard did in Charlotte. The ones who do have the desire should be recognized.

Two Views On Homelessness

WASHINGTON — I wouldn't care to predict the practical outcome of tomorrow's (Oct. 7) march to demand more federal help for the homeless. It's too hard to know who in the Bush administration will be listening and what, given the government's strained budget and the President's anti-tax-increase obstinacy, their response might be.

But it does seem clear that homelessness has reached scandal proportions, and the pressure on the low-income renters in such housing-tight markets as Washington threatens to make it worse.

Housing Now!, the coalition of groups sponsoring tomorrow's march, may not have a detailed strategy for the war on homelessness, but who can question their insistence that a federal effort to increase the supply of low-cost housing has to be a major part of the attack?

Well, John Scanlon can. Scanlon, a policy analyst for the Heritage Foundation, acknowledges the good intentions of the marchers but sees their strategy as fatally flawed.

If their demands are met, he says in a paper released this week, "the ironic result will be a tragic defeat for homeless Americans. The reason is that the homeless problem is not due to a lack of housing."

He's as serious as a cold night on a steam grate. Whether his conclusion makes any sense is another matter.

In one sense, of course, there is no lack of housing. Thousands of Americans own two or more homes, and thousands of housing units — not all of them boarded-up buildings in the inner cities — are vacant. But the existence of this housing "surplus" does not mean that there is plenty of housing that the homeless can afford. Is Scanlon arguing that we should speak, not of a lack of housing, but of a lack of affordable housing?

No, he's talking about something else entirely.

"A massive new program of subsidized housing would do nothing to help the majority of the homeless because it would ignore the disabilities preventing the homeless from taking advantage of existing forms of housing assistance. It also would do little to aid those few among the homeless who do owe their condition to economic factors."

For Scanlon, the homeless are overwhelmingly mental patients prematurely released, alcohol and drug abusers, people who do not avail themselves of available help, and victims of rent control.

I find it hard to take him seriously.

There is no doubt that some of America's homeless are the counterparts of the mentally ill to be found sleeping on cathedral steps, in parks and under bridges the world over. It is also true that the misguided policy of releasing mental patients to seek outpatient care at neighborhood clinics added to the problem.

But if anything is clear, it is that the ranks of the homeless have been swelled in recent years by people — including families and working adults — whose basic flaw is the lack of money to pay for housing.

William Raspberry

The Economic Policy Institute has done a masterful job of demolishing the supposed link, dear to the heart of conservatives, between homelessness and rent control. As for the rest of Scanlon's notions, a glance at a survey of this city's homeless (who may be fairly typical of the homeless across the nation) undertaken by the University of the District of Columbia's Kathleen H. Dockett should help.

According to that two-year study, 75 percent of the District's homeless had no severe psychiatric distress, and 86 percent reported no history of psychiatric hospitalization.

Drug and alcohol abuse were frequent problems, and the city's homeless had a startlingly low rate of participation in public-entitlement programs. But lack of money for housing was the overwhelming factor in their plight.

"Economic problems and interpersonal conflicts were most often cited by respondents as the reasons they became homeless," according to a UDC summary, "and the lack of economic resources helps keep them on the street...Lack of money and the lack of access to facilities needed to meet basic needs are the leading causes of stressful living on the streets."

Scanlon, who has studied government reports, says the biggest gainers from the Housing Now! demand for more affordable housing would be "construction companies and their employees."

Dockett, who has studied the homeless themselves, reaches a different conclusion:

"Long-range solutions to the problems of homelessness involve increasing the supply and accessibility of low-cost permanent housing. Diverting funds into bigger and better shelters, while an essential emergency service, should not be viewed as a substitute for the development of permanent housing."

Scanlon, incredibly, says such help would only make things worse.

Capital Gains Vote Steered Through Forest Of Timber Interests

Tom Redburn

WASHINGTON — Tree owners will undoubtedly be grateful to Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark.

As the narrowly divided Senate Finance Committee neared its showdown over capital gains taxes earlier this week, Pryor was a crucial swing vote. Because he represents a state where timber interests carry a lot of political clout, lawmakers seeking to woo him used an appropriate bait — tax breaks worth hundreds of millions to timber owners.

The bidding war over Pryor's vote, which repeated methods used last week in the House capital gains fight, illustrates the importance special interests play in shaping legislation with supposedly broader goals in mind.

The estimated 8 million tree farm owners in 26 states are represented by a bipartisan forestry caucus of 121 lawmakers. The caucus has grown into one of the most potent political forces in Congress. Indeed, the White House was so impressed with its ability to sway lawmakers that President Bush went out of his way during the House battle to meet with a group of tree owners and visit a picturesque Maine timber operation, with network television cameras in tow.

In the Finance Committee showdown, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., led the GOP fight for a capital gains tax cut. His package pointedly included two extra tax breaks targeted primarily on timber owners.

Not to be outdone, Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, added two others to his competing tax plan. The Bentsen plan focused on providing an extension of tax deductions for individual retirement accounts instead of the capital gains tax cut advocated by Bush.

Pryor, who earlier had expressed interest in a compromise over capital gains, ultimately lined up behind Bentsen's package. It was approved by the committee when Packwood's capital gains proposal lost by the narrowest of margins on a 10-10 tie vote.

But the battle is not over. The tax bill now moves to the Senate floor, where a showdown between capital gains and IRAs is expected this weekend. No matter which way the vote ends up, though, timber interests can't lose.

Under the Bentsen bill adopted by the Finance Committee, timber owners would get relief from anti-tax-shelter rules, providing them with an estimated $140 million in tax benefits over the next five years. Moreover, tree farmers would be the chief beneficiaries of a five-year, $295 million provision to restore income averaging to all farmers.

Packwood's capital gains package, which is expected to challenge Bentsen's plan on the Senate floor, also takes aim directly at timber state lawmakers like himself. One provision, designed to overturn an IRS ruling, would allow immediate write-off of fertilizer expenses used to grow timber. At the same time, Packwood added a lower corporate capital gains rate of 27.9 percent to the proposal. However, the limit applies only to assets that don't generate profits unless held at least eight years — assets like trees.

"Would that have anything in common with the fertilizer provision?" wondered Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., whose question was met by general laughter.

Packwood pulled no punches in his reply. "For timber," he said, "this is the best provisions they are likely to see."

Belatedly, lawmakers are now expressing second thoughts about the timber and other special interest provisions added to the tax bill. Pryor, in a Senate speech Thursday evening, acknowledged that he was one of the prime beneficiaries of what he called the committee's "feeding frenzy," adding: "We did not act responsibly."

And Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, suggested Thursday evening that lawmakers might try to remove many of the unnecessary tax breaks from the overall budget bill. Ironically, the timber industry was not supposed to benefit from the capital gains cut. Bush's original tax measure provided a lower tax rate exclusively for stocks, bonds, and residential real estate.

But then the politics of Capitol Hill took over. Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., a timber-state lawmaker, fashioned a capital gains proposal that would cut the rate to 19.6 percent only through 1991, but also extended the tax break to timber, commercial real estate and most other assets. With the White House approach dying on the vine, administration officials "saw this was the best vehicle in town" Jenkins said, "and they decided to ride it."

Indeed, they did. White House budget director Richard G. Darman, the architect of the administration's capital gains strategy, became an unabashed convert to the timber cause.

"A vote against capital gains," Darman told reporters just before the House balloting, "is a vote against farmers, small owners of timber stands, people who raise Christmas trees...."

After winning on a 19-17 vote in the House Ways and Means Committee, Jenkins' package prevailed on the House floor by a surprisingly wide margin — 239 to 190. And of the 63 Democrats who bucked their party line and voted with the majority, more than half represented timber districts.

Not all lawmakers from timber states see the House measure as a plus. Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., is a longtime supporter of lower capital gains taxes but he voted against the Jenkins measure because he worries that it will encourage timber owners to decimate their forests in a rush to take advantage of the temporarily lower rate.

"We need something that encourages long-term investment rather than reaping short-term windfalls," he said.

But Rep. Ron Wyden, also an Oregon Democrat, backed the bill as the best way to restore a special tax advantage for capital gains. "I would have voted for this if it didn't have a stick of timber," he said.

Wyden, however, had little to worry about. Even the alternative plan advanced by House Democratic leaders would have kept the anti-tax-shelter timber provision, which Wyden proposed as a way to encourage private wood lot owners to replant their forests.

"This is something that has across-the-board support from environmental groups," Wyden said. "I don't see this as special interest legislation."

Old Notions Dying

David Remnick

MOSCOW — The old notion of Soviet ideology as an inviolable faith is dying, and no one has set the reform into motion more quickly these days than the members of the new Soviet legislature and even some of the traditional cardinals of Communism, the Politburo.

The Soviet Union has entered a period when almost nothing is sacred. It turns out that Mikhail Gorbachev's perestroika is a reform movement based not so much on a "general line" as an evolving series of improvisations, mistakes, corrections and heresies.

Personal property, a Western-style free press, market competition, looser emigration laws, freedom of religious belief, a multi-party system — nearly all of the anathemas of orthodox Leninist faith are now being considered as serious alternatives in the committee rooms of the Supreme Soviet and the Congress of People's Deputies. Everyone, Gorbachev included, seems to be learning on the job, expanding his own sense of what is necessary and possible.

This week's struggle in the Supreme Soviet to find a legal, non-authoritarian way to ban labor strikes in vital industries during a time of immense economic difficulty was just one example of the collapse of ideology as a means of answering essential questions. No longer do the the Institute of Marxism-Leninism and the Communist Party's ideological department make sure that the latest policies of state coincide with dogma. Ideology, and its most conservative adherents and habits, continue to block many needed changes, but the atmosphere here is now more of practical politics than monolithic thought.

"With the problems this country is facing now, we can't afford screens like ideology. All we can do is solve this mess using real solutions that work," said Nikolai Shmelyov, a legislator and economist who is a leading advocate of introducing market mechanisms as quickly as possible into the Soviet system.

There are leaders still around who seem to live by the old catechism. Yegor Ligachev, a Politburo conservative and once the country's ideology chief until he was removed from that post, seems to have made it his mission to speak up for the old notions of "class interests" in foreign policy and economic centralization.

The provinces, too, are filled with party leaders and apparatchiks who rely more on memory than innovation to run their regions. But more and more of those figures have been forced to step aside, lost in the spring elections or are bound to lose in the coming local elections.

Gorbachev himself has been quick to speak up for the privileged, "leading role" of the Communist Party and the "unsurpassed" wisdom of Vladimir Lenin, but the longer he has been in power the more he has become a creature of trying to find ways of satisfying real demands rather than the demands of an ideology that most people here have long considered dubious and degraded.

The Communist Party, still the main locus of political power here, remains a closed, shadowy institution. Everyone's life is affected by its actions, but no one knows much about how it works. When three Politburo members were fired last month, the official press cited "reasons of health" and that was that. The rest was speculation. For now, many legislators try to tiptoe around the party and hope that more and more power will be transferred their way.

Ideological habit will doubtless prevent many of the most radical ideas from passing into law and the most radical laws from being enacted on a practical level in the immediate future. But in a process that is likely to take many years before even a degree of stability and economic health have been achieved, the change over the past has been extraordinary.

"It's possible that the biggest advance the Soviets have made so far in the economic field has been their ability to set aside ideology," said Ed A. Hewitt, the editor of the journal Soviet Economy. "Some of them still can't use words like 'private property' without stuttering, but the progression is amazing."

Ideological indoctrination in Marxism-Leninism was once the central part of everyone's education. To get ahead, a young person joined the Young Communist League, or Komsomol, read the party-line journals such as "Agitator" and took required courses in Marxist doctrine. The most powerful figure in the country during the Brezhnev era, after Brezhnev himself, was his severe ideologist, Mikhail Suslov.

"The stock phrases of required thinking, not even thinking but rather dictated argument," Alexander Solzhenitsyn wrote of that period, "maimed us all, leaving almost no undamaged minds."

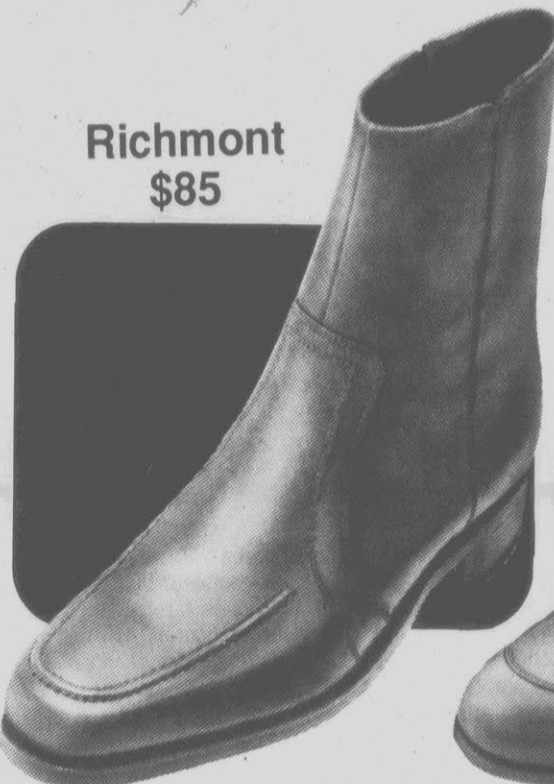

Now, the most obviously propagandistic publications, such as Pravda, are losing subscribers, and some have been closed down. The Komsomol and the party itself are losing members. And Soviet education is more interested in shaping scientists, academics, engineers and other skilled people who may help get the country out of the mess it is in.

Although Gorbachev himself has set the tone for the de-ideologization of Soviet political life, it has been his two closest allies in the Politburo, Eduard Shevardnadze and Alexander Yakovlev, who have been most specific about just how far the leadership has jettisoned ideological purity as a basis for its decision making and the political culture.

Bakker Predicts His Vindication

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Maintaining his innocence, fallen television evangelist Jim Bakker predicted he would be vindicated after 12 men and women found him guilty of cheating his faithful followers.

"I went into this courthouse several weeks ago saying I was innocent of the charges against me," said the smiling and defiant PTL ministry founder after posting bond Thursday. "I come out still innocent of the charges against me. I put my faith in God."

A smiling and defiant Bakker proclaimed his innocence following his conviction by a federal jury of defrauding his followers out of $3.7 million to buy luxurious homes, cars and jewelry.

Bakker took off his glasses and stared straight ahead as the verdict was read. One of his attorneys, Harold Bender, put his hand on his shoulder.

Bakker looked at the jurors as they were individually polled. His wife, Tammy, sat quietly behind him with her left hand on her head. Her eyes welled with tears but she maintained her composure.

Their supporters, who had been warned by U.S. District Court Judge Robert Potter against any outbursts, remained silent.

Potter, who is known as "Maximum Bob" for handing out maximum prison terms and fines, scheduled Bakker's sentencing for Oct. 24. Bakker faces penalties of up to 120 years in prison and more than $5 million in fines.

Following the verdict, the emotions of the past six weeks began to surface. Bakker's loyal supporters hugged and wept openly. Others tried to fight back contempt for Potter.

"They're suppressing a lot of anger against a biased judge sitting on the bench," explained Bakker backer Don Phillips.

Others weren't sympathetic. "I'm not the smartest man in the world, but when you get caught with your hand in the cookie jar you've got to take what's coming," said Charlotte businessman Ira Bostic, who extended his lunch hour in hopes of catching a glimpse of the former PTL leader.

Outside the courthouse, Mrs. Bakker sang a gospel song before predicting: "It's not over 'til it's over."

Prosecutor Deborah Smith called Bakker "the government's star witness," saying the crime of fraud had been preserved on videotapes of Bakker's broadcasts in which he appealed for money for Heritage USA, his religious retreat and theme park near Fort Mill, S.C.

The jury watched eight hours of excerpts of old "PTL Club" shows showing Bakker making pitches for $1,000 donations in exchange for yearly stays at the retreat's lodging facilities.

Bakker was released on $250,000 secured bond after spending three hours in the custody of federal marshals.

Potter ordered Bakker freed after expressing his own concerns about whether his supporters might try to help him flee the country.

"My concern is that his supporters are so zealous that they have what I call the Jim Jones mentality," Potter said. "They think he can walk on water."

The reference was to the former cult leader from California who led about 900 of his followers to commit suicide by drinking poison in the jungles of Guyana.

Several hours after the verdict, as Bakker waded through the rush of media to a waiting white Cadillac, he said: "I feel sad but encouraged in God."

His attorneys say an appeal will be filed.

The Associated Press

Bakker waves to crowd outside Federal Courthouse

"We've lost a battle, but we'll win the war," said Bakker's 82-year-old lawyer, George T. Davis. He hinted at possible grounds for the appeal.

"There was so much negative pretrial publicity that he was unable to get a fair trial in this community," he said. "I'm reasonably hopeful we'll be successful on appeal."

Jury foreman Ricky Hill said Bakker was corrupted by money and a fancy lifestyle.

"He was called by God. But eventually the money became too much for him," said Hill, who said during jury selection that he was a Christian. "We kept looking for something from the defense and we never saw it."

Another juror, Gwen Morrison, said the verdict should be construed as a warning for other televangelists

"I think they should not go around telling people to send in money for things they're not going to give them in return," she said.

Juror Vivian Ferguson said "just about every sentence he used he put God in it. He kept taking the people's money, and I couldn't go along with that."

Prosecutors credited Bakker's testimony for the conviction.

"The message is you can't lie to the people and use television and the mails to get them to send you money," said Ms. Smith, a Justice Department fraud specialist. "It doesn't matter who you are or how well known you are, you simply can't do it."

Evangelists Say Lord's Work To Continue

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Bakker's conviction on fraud and conspiracy charges stemming from his stewardship of the PTL ministry will not slow the work of God, says the Rev. Billy Graham.

"This verdict doesn't bother the work of the Lord; the work of the church continues to go on no matter what happens," Graham said. "God's work is not dependent upon one person — it is dependent upon the Holy Spirit."

Bakker was found guilty Thursday in Charlotte of defrauding his followers in the promotion of lodging at his Heritage USA religious retreat and theme park near Fort Mill, S.C. Prosecutors said Bakker diverted $3.7 million of ministry money to fund his lavish lifestyle. He faces a maximum sentence of 120 years in prison and $5 million in fines.

"There are still countless thousands of men and women in the ministry — serving as pastors, teachers, missionaries and evangelists — being faithful to what God has called them to do, many of them on very low incomes," said Graham, an evangelist who has traveled around the world to conduct Christian revivals.

"I have been saddened over the past 2-2½ years — since this PTL story broke — that so much effort and attention has been focused on the negative aspects of ministry, when the Gospel we preach is called the 'Good News.'"

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, who briefly ran PTL after Bakker resigned, said evangelists can get on with spreading God's word now that Bakker has been convicted.

"While I am personally sorry for Mr. Bakker, his family, and the thousands who have been hurt by the PTL saga, I am pleased that this dark chapter of religious history has concluded," Falwell said from Dallas, where he was attending a meeting.

Falwell, the TV evangelist who took over PTL at Bakker's request when he resigned in 1987, said he had "no interest in defending my brief involvement with PTL some two and a half years ago, as that has already been well documented."

"I am confident that the work of God, which is far bigger than any one man or church, will flourish in the days and years ahead in an unprecedented way," he said.

California television evangelist Robert Schuller agreed.

"Now that the jury has reached a verdict I am optimistic because Americans will know that it is safe to trust in trust again," he said.

"I'm thankful that this sad, sorry, pathetic story has come to an end. I think a lot of people will realize how easy good people with good intentions can get off track," Schuller said.

Employees at Bakker's current ministry, operating out of a shopping center in Orlando, Fla., were stunned by the convictions.

"I can't believe it. I think there's been some kind of mistake," said Don Baldwin, acting general manager of Jim and Tammy Ministries, which runs a church and produces a television show broadcast by eight cable outlets.

Bakker resigned from PTL after confessing to a sexual encounter with former church secretary Jessica Hahn.

"I don't feel sad for what happened to Bakker," Hahn, 30, told The Associated Press. "I'd like to look him in the eye and tell him 'get out the rowboat, you can't walk on water.'"

"This is going to go down in history as saying, 'you can touch even the mightiest of men who are armed with Bibles, white collars and microphones. ... Today's verdict is not attacking God, but the people who are abusing God.'"

Church leaders at the Assemblies of God, which defrocked Bakker in May 1987, declined to comment on the conviction.

"The church did what it had to do in 1987 and we feel we have put that behind us and we are going on with the business of the church," said Juleen Turnage, spokeswoman for the 2.5 million-member denomination.

The church last month established a 10-year Decade of Harvest program to evangelize 5 million people.

IN THE STATE

Plant Selected

RALEIGH (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has picked Raleigh's Neuse River sewage plant for a regional award recognizing excellence in maintenance and operation.

"We could almost say that the water coming out of that facility is safe enough to drink," said Tracy Caldwell, an environmental engineer with the EPA in Atlanta.

The plant removes roughly 99 percent of the gunk and garbage from the water before releasing it into the Neuse River, said Billy R. Creech, superintendent of the plant.

That should make Smithfield residents happy, since they live downstream.

"I knew that Raleigh had an excellent water system," said Kenneth Baker, Smithfield's mayor. "I didn't know about the award but it confirms what we already knew about our good water. We're proud of our state capital."

The award honors treatment facilities for good management and performance. The Neuse plant is one of seven winners in the southeastern United States.

Amendment Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Sen. Terry Sanford is co-sponsoring an amendment to the President's Drug Control Strategy that would authorize more money to local governments and rural communities to gather intelligence about drug activities in their areas.

"This amendment provides important help for North Carolina's battle against drugs," Sanford said. "It would give badly needed funds to our state and local governments to improve their intelligence-gathering capabilities, thus resulting in more arrests, prosecutions and convictions."

Specifically, this amendment authorizes $1.5 million a year for the state for three years, 40 percent of which must be distributed to areas with populations less than 100,000. In addition, the larger metropolitan areas — Raleigh, Durham, Winston-Salem and Charlotte — would get $350,000.

The Senate was expected to vote on the amendment Thursday.

Cash Rewards

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Cash rewards totaling $36,200 are offered for information about the murder of Cindy Jones Kirk, a Guilford County native who was stabbed to death in the drive way of her Durham home in August.

Meanwhile, Durham police are circulating a composite drawing of a man listed as a possible suspect in the slaying.

Police received authorization this week for rewards of $25,000 offered by Kirk's husband, Bill, and $5,000 offered by Bill Kirk's employer, GKC Associates of Durham. Those rewards are offered for information leading to an arrest and indictment.

Earlier, Ms. Kirk's employer, the Liggett Group, posted a reward of $5,000 for information leading to an arrest and conviction. Durham's Crime Stoppers program offered $1,200 for information leading to an arrest.

The 34-year-old Ms. Kirk was stabbed repeatedly the afternoon of Aug. 21 in the driveway of her home in west Durham.

Mobil, Public Spar Over Gas Well

By Dennis Patterson
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WILMINGTON — An exploratory natural gas well off the North Carolina coast would help the country in its efforts to become less dependent on foreign oil, Mobil Oil Corp. officials say. But coastal residents said in a hearing on the proposal that the risks are not worth the drilling.

"If there's one chance in 55 trillion of ruining our coast, it's not worth the risk," said Effie Sparrow of Wilmington. "There's things more important than money."

Mobil has proposed to drill an exploratory well 38 miles due east of the Outer Banks. Mobil geologists think there might be a reservoir of 5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas 12,000 feet below the ocean floor at that site.

State and company officials held the first of four public meetings on the plan Thursday.

Bill Whittemore, a Mobil lawyer at the session, said he had no doubts that what Mobil is doing is best for the country in the long run.

"I don't have an ounce of guilt about this," Whittemore said. "I think we are doing what is best for North Carolina and for the country."

"What we're trying to do is free you from foreign oil dependence and the tankers that move up and down this coast every day," he said. "If we never drill this well, your coast is at risk from those tankers."

The company presented a 1,500-page draft proposal Sept. 1 after reaching an agreement with the state and federal officials to provide more information than the law requires for a test well.

Mobil's final proposal cannot be presented before Jan. 18, 1990, under an agreement with the state. Between now and then, state officials are reviewing the environmental information in the draft proposal and preparing the state's response.

Thursday's public meeting, which lasted more than 2½ hours, was the first of four the state has scheduled to get public input and let people know where they can examine the massive draft plan. Meetings are scheduled next week in Greenville, Elizabeth City and Buxton.

The meeting at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington drew representatives from the Sierra Club and other environmental groups, as well as students and state officials.

"I want to say that until we get off our dependence on oil, we have no right to tell you to put it in somebody else's back yard," said Kevin Dunay of Hampstead, a millwright who said he had worked in California, Texas and other oil states.

"But I want to tell you that every place I've been where an oil company is is a disgusting damn mess," he said. "Every place where there is an oil well or an oil terminal, the docks are black, the beaches are black, the ships are black. That's why these people are worried."

"Everybody worries about the big spills from oil wells, but I worry about the little spills," he said. "There's a much greater chance of spilling 20 or 30 gallons at a time. Maybe we can't keep you from coming here, but we can demand that you make it clean and make it safe. That's what people want."

The proposed drill site will be at the edge of the Gulf Stream, an area where eddies from the stream frequently swirl toward shore.

"It's going to be an interesting drill site from the state's perspective," said Donna Moffitt, director of the state's Outer Continental Shelf Office. "It will certainly involve some circumstances that the state will want to keep an eye on."

"It's not a routine well, but it's well within our technological capabilities," said Whittemore. He said the drilling ship Mobil plans to use can withstand the quick-rising northeasters that hit the coast, but not a hurricane.

Mobil proposes to begin drilling May 1 and finish the test well by August, before the prime season for hurricanes in North Carolina.

The company proposes to keep a clean-up ship at the drill site 24 hours a day, with a back-up crew and equipment at the state port in Morehead City.

If the company finds no gas, "we'll plug up the test well and go home," Whittemore said.

But if commercial quantities of gas are found, the company would have to drill four to five confirmation wells before beginning commercial pumping.

Both the confirmation wells and the commercial wells would require separate rounds of public hearings and environmental reports, Whittemore said.

Gov. Martin Scolds Etheridge Over SAT Test Score Incident

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — When the College Board released its ranking of average SAT scores showing that North Carolina had fallen to last place in the country, it was news to Gov. Jim Martin. And he says he's disappointed he didn't know about the ranking earlier.

Martin expressed his disappointment in a Sept. 22 letter to state schools superintendent Bobby Etheridge. Martin said he wasn't prepared for the "bad news about our deplorable and embarrassing ranking on SAT scores."

The College Board released the scores Sept. 12, but Etheridge had known the results earlier.

Etheridge apologized for not calling Martin personally, but said he had given advance warning of the dismal test results to Howard H. Haworth, chairman of the state Board of Education, and members of the board.

"I assumed — incorrectly as it turned out — that Chairman Haworth would share them with you," Etheridge wrote in a Sept. 27 letter to Martin.

Haworth, in a telephone interview Wednesday evening, said Etheridge had told him and some board members about the scores a few days before their release, but "Mr. Etheridge never asked me to convey the information to the governor."

"He's a member of the Council of State," Haworth said of the superintendent. "The key responsibility of delivering the information is between the Council of State member and the CEO, the governor."

Martin, a Republican, also complained that Democratic superintendent's staff had refused to discuss the scores with Lee Monroe, his senior education adviser.

"He was refused any information and was told that it was embargoed for a later release date," Martin wrote. "It is very difficult to work in a cooperative partnership on important educational issues when such a lack of communication and cooperation exists."

Etheridge said he could find no one on his staff who had talked to Monroe. "Certainly, any information we had available was available to Dr. Monroe," he said.

Haworth distributed the governor's letter to board members at their retreat at the Outer Banks this week. Etheridge gave board members copies of his letter to Martin on Wednesday as they were meeting in Elizabeth City.

Etheridge declined to comment on the governor's letter, but he said he wished it had not been distributed to the board. The letter was hand-delivered and marked confidential, as was his reply, he said.

"I felt that is how it should have been handled," he said. "I'm very disappointed because it was personal correspondence."

Haworth said he decided to release Martin's letter to the education board members because "I thought they needed to be aware of the fact that the governor had been quite concerned that he didn't have adequate information ... and had been put in a position that could potentially have been embarrassing to the state."

In other board business on Wednesday, the board's program committee heard an update on plans to incorporate religion and religious studies into the social studies curriculum.

But Joe Webb, division director in the curriculum department, cautions that social studies will not become a religion class.

"We will be teaching about religion and its role in our heritage and struggle," Webb said. "It's hard to study American history and not deal with the religious implications."

If the state Department of Public Instruction continues to follow its timetable, religious studies will be incorporated into the social studies curriculum by the beginning of the next school year.

Before the program is adopted as part of the state program of study, the state department plans to hold a number of meetings with teachers, parents and school board members specifically to address the legal implications, Webb said.

Almost 18 months ago, the state board commissioned a study of religious education. A task force recommended introducing religion into the social studies curriculum, as well as into art and literature and other logical places, Webb said.

Trucks Alternate Food And Chemicals

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Leaders of an association of food processors say they are worried about the practice of alternating loads of chemicals and food in the same tank truck.

Truckers told a House Public Works and Transportation subcommittee at a Thursday hearing that they alternated loads of chemicals with shipments of juice, wine and edible oils.

The practice, while legal, is worrisome, said Allen Matthys of the National Food Processors Association, which represents more than 600 food companies and industry suppliers.

"While neither the Food and Drug Administration nor our members have yet discovered a case of contamination caused by this practice, we strongly encourage the swift enactment of specific federal guidelines or legislation to prevent the contamination of food by hazardous non-food materials," Matthys said in prepared testimony.

He told the Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight that some association members have been asking carriers for written guarantees that tanker trucks are used only for food.

Two months ago, the subcommittee was told by several truckers that they sometimes carried garbage in the same refrigerated trucks used for food.

The panel focused Thursday on the related practice of hauling chemicals and liquid foods back to back.

Trucker David Helzer of Hermiton, Ore., said the practice appeared widespread. He has worked for two Washington State trucking companies.

"On June 9, 1988, I loaded ammonium phosphate, washed out, and reloaded apple juice. I then loaded monethanolamine 100 percent, washed out, and reloaded apple juice," Helzer said.

Helzer's 1989 shipment log, released by the panel, included loads of cooking oil, wine, apple juice, fire retardant, marine lubricant and lime sulphur.

"The backhauling of chemicals is dangerous, disgusting and unfortunately legal," said committee member William Clinger, R-Pa. "We need to make it a crime."

Mom Shoves Kids Out Window As 'God Waits'

NEW YORK (AP) — A mother who told her children "God is waiting for you" pushed her 6-year-old daughter and 3-year-old son out a 10th-floor window, killing the girl and critically injuring the boy, authorities said.

Firefighters broke down the apartment door Thursday afternoon just in time to stop the naked woman from pushing a 1-year-old daughter through the window's protective bars, saving that child and two others, said fire Lt. John Lane.

"She was mumbling 'Mohammed, Elijah,' she was trying to move the children along to the window to jump and she was going to jump also," said Lane, one of the first rescuers to reach the apartment.

"She told the children, 'God is waiting for you,'" he said. Meenah Abdussalaam, 32, her daughter, Zainab, and son, Husein, were taken to St. John's Episcopal Hospital.

Zainab died of her injuries, hospital spokeswoman Nancy Uzo said. Husein was transferred to North Shore University Hospital in neighboring Nassau County, where he was in extremely critical condition late Thursday after surgery, hospital spokeswoman Carol Hauptman said.

The mother, who was unhurt, was being evaluated at St. John's. Dr. Russell Beavers told reporters she "seemed distant ... not cognizant of what was going on."

Mrs. Abdussalaam was charged early today with murder, attempted murder and endangering the welfare of children, said Sgt. Pete Berry, a police spokesman.

Firefighters who happened to be passing by and saw the first child fall forced their way into a barricaded bedroom and found the mother and three children: 1-year-old Amna, her 8-year-old brother, Askia, and 4-year-old sister, Fatima. All were naked.

Police managed to grab the mother as she was sliding Amna out between the window bars. Lane said Mrs. Abdussalaam punched the firefighter who broke down the bedroom door.

The three uninjured children were turned over to city welfare workers.

Armed Boy Takes Class Hostages, Wounds One

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANAHEIM, Calif. — A new student armed with a shotgun and a pistol took a high-school drama class hostage and wounded one boy who defied him before surrendering peacefully to police.

The hostage ordeal at Loara High School Thursday ended 40 minutes after the 15-year-old gunman, clad in a trench coat, entered the auditorium and took over a class of 35.

Tony Lopez, 15, was in fair condition with a wound to the face, said Fran Tardiff, spokeswoman at the University of California, Irvine, Medical Center.

Police identified the gunman as Cory Robb, who was being held early today in a juvenile facility awaiting charges. Robb was previously known to police, Chief Joseph Molloy said.

Students described Robb as a troubled new student.

The class was learning the parts of a stage when the teen-ager came in and ordered the teacher to leave and lock the door behind him, student Mindy DeLuca said.

The teacher said, "Come on class, we're going," related Miss DeLuca, who identified the teacher only as Mr. Tuttle.

The armed youth ordered the teacher out, then told the class to "go sit with friends, do whatever you want to," Miss DeLuca said. "He was relaxed after that."

"I thought it was a joke because it was in drama," she said.

The gunman was calm at the outset but Lopez began antagonizing him, said student Jimmy Hurley, 15.

"He was telling him to 'shoot me' — and he did," Hurley said.

The bullet hit Lopez in the left side of the jaw.

"He sat down next to me and he was bleeding pretty bad," Hurley said.

Students screamed at the shot, then asked their captor if the victim could leave. The wounded boy and all the girls in the class were let go, leaving 10 to 12 boys, the students said.

The armed teen-ager then called his mother from a telephone, told her he had "held up the room" and asked to talk to his stepfather, Hurley said. Calls then came in on the phone, apparently from police, Hurley said.

A hostage negotiator persuaded the boy to put down his guns in the auditorium and walk outside to surrender. The boy was cooperative, complied with instructions and didn't struggle, said police Lt. Marc Hedgpeth.

"Wish we could tell you what his motive was. We just don't know," Hedgpeth said. "We're very thankful it ended as it did."

The arrested boy had attended the school for just a few weeks and "there was nothing to indicate he was after one particular student," Hedgpeth said.

Rocket Test Ends On Pad

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — As the countdown reached zero and the rocket rumbled to life, Jim Bennett's emotions hoppedscotched from anxiety to elation to puzzlement and, ultimately, to sickening disappointment.

Bennett, president of American Rocket Co., watched on a video monitor Thursday morning as his company's product — billed as the nation's first commercially developed and built rocket — went up in flames on the launch pad.

The failure of the launch from Vandenberg Air Force Base left Bennett and his 90-some employees with an emotional hurdle to overcome as they look to the next launch attempt. The Camarillo, Calif., company will wait six months to a year before trying a second launch.

"It's just a sick feeling. We worked so hard, and it meant so much to us," Bennett said in a telephone interview. "We worked a long time to get this far and we hoped that it would be a success, that we can go on. At this point we can go on, but we don't have that success."

The unattended launch of the 58-foot-tall unmanned rocket was an especially emotional moment for Amroc's employees because of the July death of company founder George Koopman in an automobile accident. The rocket was nicknamed the "Koopman Express."

The rocket was to have soared on a $2 million, 15-minute suborbital flight, conducting two experiments.

In a test of satellite sensors being developed for the Star Wars missile defense system, the rocket was to release a cloud of inert gas. The idea was to see if the gas would shield the rocket from detection by sensors aboard the military's Delta Star satellite.

The rocket also was supposed to deploy a 390-pound test model of an 8½-foot-wide "ParaShield."

Trump Airline Bid Brings Skepticism

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Donald Trump's $7 billion buyout bid for American Airlines has been greeted with skepticism by analysts who wonder if the billionaire developer is really looking for a quick buck through stock plays.

"That seems to be a popular question," said Robert Decker, an analyst for the Chicago investment firm Duff & Phelps Inc., after American's parent company, AMR Corp., revealed Trump's proposal Thursday.

Trump wrote AMR Chairman Robert L. Crandall, offering $120 for each of the 58.9 million shares of stock in the nation's largest airline.

The deal would be the biggest airline takeover ever.

Shares in Fort Worth-based AMR rose $16.87 1/2, to $99.87 1/2, in heavy trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange. Other airline stocks also jumped in related speculation.

Some in government, concerned about high debt levels in the industry brought on by buyouts, viewed the deal unfavorably.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, called for the immediate adoption of legislation approved by the committee Thursday that would require Department of Transportation approval of airline takeovers.

Others called for the Justice Department to review the deal for antitrust violations because of Trump's purchase in June of Eastern Airlines' Northeast shuttle, since renamed the Trump Shuttle.

The AMR bid followed weeks of speculation about airline takeovers, much of it centered on profitable American, which has about 22 percent of the domestic market.

Trump said his offer would expire Oct. 20. AMR said it would consider the proposal "in due course."

But the airline added: "There has been no change in (AMR's) policy and belief that AMR and its shareholders will be best served by AMR remaining an independent company and continuing the strong partnership among American Airlines, its employees, the communities it serves and the public."

Analysts said the company's response could involve selling assets, including jets or its computer reservations system, or searching for a friendly buyer to compete with Trump.

Trump said he was prepared to put up at least $1 billion in equity.

Jobless Rate Is Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP). — The nation's civilian unemployment rate rose a notch to 5.3 percent in September as a rise in joblessness among adult men more than offset a decline among women.

The unemployment rate was up from 5.2 percent in both July and August, the Labor Department said in the government's first comprehensive look at the economy last month.

The report was a bit weaker than many analysts had expected.

 fishhooks," Claude Sitton, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, told Stevens.

"Let's see if we can get you to chew on a couple," Stevens responded.

As they swallowed the hooks, one by one, Stevens reeled them in with questions like:

1. What do you do with the records?

2. At first, Sitton said he'd burn them.

"You wouldn't really burn those records would you?" Stevens asked.

"Not at all," Sitton responded.

Stealing the records was a crime that violated O'Sullivan's right to privacy, Joe Blick, Pitt County assistant district attorney, said.

3. Is the information newsworthy?

"Unquestionably," John Wood, Raleigh bureau chief for the New York Times regional newspaper group, said. "The congregation has the right to know if the preacher is practicing what he preaches."

4. Was it wrong to tape the source without the source's knowledge?

It's ethically wrong, but probably not a violation of the legal right to privacy, Judge Gerald Arnold of the N.C. Court of Appeals, said.

5. The problem is disclosure," Sitton said. "If you tape and disclose, you're in trouble." He said it would not be a problem if reporters taped interviews to refresh their memories about what was said.

6. Should rape victims' names be published?

The News and Observer generally does not publish rape victims' names, Sitton said, but the paper is not comfortable with "playing God" by leaving the names out.

7. The exception comes where a public figure is involved, Sitton said. "Prominence has its penalties," he said.

8. Should the story be published? Should the daughter's name be used?

Both Sitton and Wood said they would tell the story in full because of the mother's position as a public figure. The daughter is an unfortunate partner in her mother's prominence, they said.

The newspaper has a responsibility to the public to publish the story, Sitton said. "She would deny the poor women of her state their right to choice, yet she exercises her own right to choose," he said.

Publishing the story would not be to punish the O'Sullivan family, but to highlight the moral dilemma they faced, Wood said.

"I think that's what makes it an interesting story. The intent of the story is to magnify the extent of this dilemma."

The program was the second in a series at ECU honoring the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Pope Starts Asian Journey

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROME — Pope John Paul II today departed on a politically sensitive 10-day Asian pilgrimage amid calls that he speak out on human rights in South Korea and Indonesia.

The pope's special Alitalia Boeing 747 took off from Leonardo da Vinci Airport at 2:15 p.m. The plane was making a brief refueling stop in Venice to allow a non-stop flight to Seoul, South Korea, of 13 hours and 10 minutes.

It is the 44th foreign trip of John Paul's 11-year papacy.

After Seoul, he goes to overwhelmingly Moslem Indonesia and makes stop in East Timor that has provoked protests from Portugal, the island's former colonial ruler. Indonesia invaded East Timor in 1975 and annexed the heavily Catholic island the following year.

John Paul will also make a two-day stop in the Indian Ocean island nation of Mauritius before returning to Rome Oct. 16.

The pope's route to Asia carries political significance. The Italian airline Alitalia received permission to fly the leader of the world's 850 million Roman Catholics over Hungary and the Soviet Union, a sign of vastly improved Vatican-Soviet relations during the past year.

Earlier, China had barred a papal overflight, leading Alitalia to seek a different route. China broke relations with the Vatican in 1957.

Before departing, Asia Watch, an independent human rights monitoring organization, urged John Paul to speak out on human rights issues during the trip.

"We believe that because of your special role and the worldwide attention that your visit will attract in South Korea and Indonesia, your strong expression of concern on human rights would have an immeasurable impact in furthering respect for human rights in those countries," the group said in a letter to the pope it released to the news media.

South Korean police and intelligence agencies were placed on alert for the pope's weekend visit, his second trip to the country following a tour in 1984.

Public Thinks Colleges Fall Short, But Are Needed

By Tamara Henry
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Most Americans consider higher education "a very worthwhile investment" but few give colleges high marks for producing quality teachers, productive workers or good citizens, a Gallup Poll shows today.

The national survey, released by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education as part of National Higher Education Week, also found that the American public is divided over whether a person's race makes it harder to get a college degree.

Colleges and universities received satisfactory grades for their overall performance, with 74 percent of the 1,253 adults surveyed in July saying that a person's lifetime benefits from attending college are at least equal to the cost.

Thirty-nine percent said a college education is worth more than the cost, while 35 percent said it is equal to what is paid, the poll showed. Slightly more than one in five, 22 percent, said a college education today is not worth what it costs to attend.

In overall job performance, higher education institutions were graded a "B" by 38 percent, a "C" by 35 percent, with an additional 6 percent giving an "A."

But colleges and universities got

"Cs" across the board from most of those polled when asked whether they prepare students to be productive workers, produce quality teachers and develop young people into good citizens.

Age appeared to play a key role in forming opinions of higher education institutions. Young adults age 18 to 29 were more likely than middle-aged adults age 30 to 49 to rate the opportunities colleges offer to succeed an "A" or a "B"—54 percent compared with 43 percent.

Young adults also gave higher rates to colleges for producing quality teachers than older respondents, 44 percent "A" or "B" versus 37 percent.

"Clearly, most Americans, especially younger people, consider higher education to be a very worthwhile investment," said Gary Quehl, president of CASE. "At the same time, we in higher education need to continually take the pulse of the ultimate consumers — the American public — to ensure we are offering them the quality programs and services they want and need."

"The survey results suggest areas where we need to concentrate our efforts in the future."

Forty-five percent of those surveyed believed all high school graduates, regardless of race, have equal access to a college education.

However, virtually the same number — 44 percent — disagreed, saying a person's race makes it harder for that person to gain access to a college education. Minorities were significantly more likely than whites to have that belief about race, 59 percent versus 42 percent.

Questioned about ways colleges could increase the access to a college education for students of all races, six in 10 Americans suggested working closely with parents, community, and church groups to encourage minority participation.

—49 percent said colleges and universities deserve an "A" or "B" for providing all Americans equal opportunity to succeed; roughly the same number rate a "C" or below, 47 percent; 4 percent didn't know.

Church Council Says Missionaries Losing Respect For Native Beliefs

By David Briggs
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — They no longer speak of their task as "the white man's burden," but some missionaries, perhaps influenced by a decade of self-indulgence and national boosterism, are said to be exporting self-righteousness with religion.

The organizer of a conference on racism and ethnocentrism among missionaries said mission officials have noticed some evangelists are heading overseas with a diminishing respect for native cultures and beliefs.

"The Reagan years, I don't know how else to say it, have lessened the sensitivities and commitment to this," said Paul Yount of the National Council of Churches. "We'd thought we'd made some headway into this, but now we're not so sure."

Daniel Romero, a mission director for the United Church of Christ, recalled being shocked when a missionary couple referred to Third World people as "heathens."

"To have that terminology used now, I think, is an insult to the religious communities around the world," said Romero, general secretary of the mission program of the Board of World Ministries of the United Church of Christ.

Mission officials discussed issues of racism and ethnocentrism in missionary selection in a workshop earlier this week at Stony Point, N.Y. The meeting was sponsored by the Overseas Personnel Office of the Division of Overseas Ministries of the national council.

Member churches of the national council had some 4,300 missionaries overseas in 1985, slightly more than 10 percent of the total 43,000 Protestant missionaries, according to Yount.

Yount, director of overseas personnel for the council, noted that many early missionaries took stands against colonial authorities and that missionaries have translated the Bible into almost every language and dialect.

"I would stress that the missionary heritage in this is both positive and problematic," he said.

The conference was called because many mission officials felt the new generation of missionaries lacked sensitivity toward native cultures, Yount said.

"The climate has changed," Yount said. "There is not the more widespread concern about the racism within our own culture, classism within our own culture."

Romero, however, said he thought it was some older missionaries who "still carry some overtones of the past in which there is a bit of that white superiority that comes creeping in."

He recalled, for example, how several such missionaries had joked about the odd names they had encountered overseas, despite being in the presence of natives of those countries.

"I don't think they had the slightest notion it affected the people sitting there," he said.

Julie Brown, vice president of the Division of Overseas Ministries for the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), said her experience had been different.

"I think the missionaries that the Disciples are sending out today are less racist than the missionaries we were sending out 20 years ago," she said.

She said many missionaries from her church, appointed for specific terms and specifically invited by overseas organizations, speak not in terms of "making a tremendous impact" on the places they visit but of enriching their local churches when they come back.

Missionaries who say their only reason for going overseas is that they feel called by God "are the first people we weed out. It usually means they have a paternalistic attitude," she said.

Romero sees hope for the future in the recruitment of younger missionaries and more minority missionaries.

"There is great value to having people who have lived with racism, who have lived with oppression in their own countries," he said.

In addition, churches are adjusting to vast shifts in membership, with congregations swelling in Africa and Latin America as branches in Europe and the United States remain merely stable or, in some places, wither.

Brown noted that the Disciples of Christ will have more members in Zaire than in the United States by the year 2000, and that the denomination has cut its corps of overseas missionaries in half, to 110, over two decades.

Such changes have prompted new attitudes toward mission work, Yount said.

Participants at a recent meeting of the World Council of Churches agreed, he said, that "if we're really going to have the sending of missionaries, we really need to have the exchange of missionaries."

Church, Farm Groups Join Their Efforts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Ten farm and church organizations have joined together to help educate Americans about the importance of farm and trade policy to the Third World.

"We all need to make these vital connections between our food, farmers and trade policy," says program chairman Walter Grazer of the U.S. Catholic Conference. "Education of our citizens is critical, so they can make informed decisions and join in the policy process."

The non-profit, Washington-based Trade and Development Program is funded by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

The goals of the program include "maintaining U.S. family farmers and vital rural communities," which organizers said are important resources throughout the world.

The sponsors are: Bread for the World Institute on Hunger and Development, the Center for Rural Affairs, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the Friends Committee on National Legislation Educational Fund, the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, the National Farmers Organization, the National Farmers Union, the National Grange, the Presbyterian Church (USA) and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Dialogues

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A joint commission of Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians will focus on Scripture and tradition in the next round of ecumenical dialogues.

The teams of 10 Catholic and 10 Lutheran theologians decided on the next topic while wrapping up six years of work on "The One Mediator, the Saints and Mary."

The eighth statement of the dialogue, scheduled to be voted on in February, deals with the two traditions' differences regarding the practice of involving saints in prayer and the doctrine that Mary was conceived free of original sin and taken bodily to heaven.

The ecumenical commission will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the dialogues next September in Erlanger, Ky.

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of I Samuel intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

DAVID AND SAUL

IN THE DARK OF NIGHT, DAVID AND ABISHAI HAVE CREEPT INTO SAUL'S CAMP PAST SLEEPING SENTRIES, AND NOW THEY STAND ABOVE THE KING, HIMSELF....

HERE, AT DAVID'S VERY FEET, IS THE MAN WHO INTENDS TO KILL HIM!

GOD HATH DELIVERED THINE ENEMY INTO THINE HAND THIS DAY....

...LET ME NOW SMITE HIM WITH HIS OWN SPEAR, I PRAY THEE! I WILL PIN HIM TO THE EARTH—AND IT WILL NOT BE NECESSARY TO SMITE HIM A SECOND TIME!

BEFORE DAVID CAN SAY A WORD, ABISHAI SNATCHES KING SAUL'S SPEAR AND HOLDS IT POISED ABOVE THE SLEEPING MAN'S BREAST!

Candlelight Ceremony Joins Pair Friday

MRS. COPPEDGE

TARBORO — The wedding ceremony of Dora Lee McLawhorn and Terry Allen Coppedge took place Friday evening at 7:30 in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Officiating at the double-ring, candlelight ceremony was the Rev. Calvin Trueblood, uncle of the bride. Music was presented by organist Mary Ann Thompson and vocalists Kim Buck, aunt of the bride, and Beverly Trueblood, cousin of the bride.

Parents of the bridal couple are William C. McLawhorn of Kinston and Brenda M. Bullock of Tarboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coppedge of Rocky Mount.

Amy McLawhorn of Tarboro was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Carla McLawhorn, sister of the bride; Chrissy Lucas and Janda Medford, all of Tarboro; Teresa Coppedge, sister of the bridegroom, and Michelle Cockrell, both of Tarboro; and Sabrina Jones of Ayden, cousin of the bride. Miniature bride was Glenda Knox of Tarboro, and the flower girl was Jennifer Coppedge of Nashville, cousin of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man, and the ring bearer was Jack Buck Jr. of Greenville, cousin of the bride. Miniature bridegroom was Scott Smith of Tarboro. Ushers included Brandon Roberson, cousin of the bridegroom, Don Alford and Johnny Manning, all of Rocky Mount; Allen Trueblood of Richmond, Va., cousin of the bride; James Winslow of Grifton, uncle of the bride, and Billy Medford of Tarboro.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of cherish satin overlaid with crystal organza and embroidered schiffli appliques trimmed with beads. The gown had a fitted bodice, Victorian neckline and pearl collar. Miniature ruffles trimmed the gown hemline and extended into a cathedral train. She wore a halo of seed pearl sprays and leaves attached to a triple-tiered pouf of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white tearoses and miniature carnations.

Attendants wore copeland blue satin formal gowns, carried nosegays of multicolored flowers and wore matching halos. The flower girl wore a satin violet ballerina-length gown with puffed sleeves. The miniature bride wore a formal gown of cherish satin overlaid with embroidered schiffli appliques. She wore a halo of flowers and carried a bouquet like that of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Several bridal showers, bachelor party for the bridegroom and an after-rehearsal dinner were given for the couple prior to the wedding.

The bride and bridegroom graduated from North Edgecombe High School. She graduated from Mitchell's Hairstyling Academy in Greenville, and is employed by Fantastic Sam's Styling Salon and he is employed by Auto Print Supply, both in Rocky Mount.

The couple will live in Rocky Mount after a trip to the mountains.

Magazine Helps Find Nannies

By Darlene E. Superville
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RUTHERFORD, N.J. — A nanny magazine on the newsstands just six months has helped make the task of finding quality child care a lot easier for American families.

Gillian Gordon, working mother of two, launched the magazine in May on the advice of her husband after she found herself short of household help.

She says that when she lived in Great Britain she was accustomed to consulting magazines such as Nursery World or The Lady to find qualified child care professionals. No comparable publications, she says, were available in the United States.

"I was wondering where one would go to find a nanny," said Gordon, mother of Alexandra, 3½, and Liam, 15 months. The Gordons live in this New Jersey community about 10 miles from New York City.

So began "Nanny Times." The first issue hit the stands May 1989 in the New York metropolitan area, where demand for child care is high, and in the Midwest, where many American nannies come from. It also was distributed to some hospital maternity wards and colleges with nanny training and early childhood programs.

Gordon says there was such demand that the magazine went national with the third issue.

Readers find stories on interviewing and hiring nannies and related topics, plus photos and personal ads from nursemaids and parents who are looking for each other. It also supplies information on child care as a career.

MR. AND MRS. HAMILTON

Two Wed Sunday Afternoon

Debra Carroll Eason and Steven John Hamilton were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. Pat Houston conducted the double-ring ceremony at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church. Music was presented by harpist Josephine Lewis.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Needham Eason of Route 2, Selma, and Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hamilton of Greenville.

Stacy Hamilton of Greenville was maid of honor. She is sister of the bridegroom. Lynn Hedman of Selma was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Wanda Wall of Rocky Mount, sister of the bride, Nancy Andrews of Clayton and Susan Beyerle of Rochester, N.Y., cousin of the bridegroom.

Anna Wall of Rocky Mount, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Christopher Hamilton of Nantucket, Mass., nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

The best man was the bridegroom's father, and ushers included Bobby Whitley of Washington, N.C., Dale Caldwell of Wilmington, Steve Yost of Atlanta, Ga., and Jim Hamilton of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a satin tea-length gown with a V-neckline trimmed with pearls and sequins. The skirt was layered with ruffles. Her hat was trimmed with sequins and pearls with a lace pouf, and she carried a cascade of white gardenias, mini white mums, baby's breath and ivy.

The attendants wore tea-length peach suits. The flower girl wore a peach printed dress and carried a basket belonging to the bridegroom's grandmother.

A reception was held at the church after the ceremony.

The bride attended King's College and is employed by MCI Telecommunications. The bridegroom attended N.C. State University and is employed by the N.C. Department of Transportation.

The couple will live in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Mexico.

A rehearsal dinner and pre-nuptial party were held for the couple prior to the wedding.

El Vez Brings Satire, Style To His Act Joined By 'The Elvettes,' He Remembers The King

By Beth Ann Krier
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — It's The King — alive and slightly on tilt.

El Vez, the Mexican Elvis Presley, wears the trademark white polyester, rhinestone-studded, flare-legged Vegas jumpsuit ... but with a sequined Our Lady of Guadalupe stitched on the back. The perfect get-up for songs such as "You Ain't Nothin' but a Chihuahua" and "That's All Right, Mamacita."

The Elvettes, El Vez's faithful backup singers (Priscillita, Lisa Maria, Gladyscita and Que Linda Thompson), in their peticotted skirts, off-shoulder peasant blouses, beehive hairdos and multiple tattoos bear stunning resemblance to barrio cantina waitresses. Backstage at El Vez performances, they provide their own refreshments: Segó (a favored diet drink of the '60s) spiked with tequila.

Seldom has the latter-day Elvis phenomenon been blessed with more satire — or more style. On stage El Vez dares to dress in the most outrageous cultural clichés. Extravagantly embroidered boleros, sombreros dancing with ball fringe, pointed-toe boots — all musts in any fashionable amigo's wardrobe. Off-stage, without the El Vez trappings, Robert Lopez is equally colorful, preferring hand-painted ties from the '40s and plastic imitations of crocodile shoes. As his mother, Gina Lopez, points out: "He was always artistic. He was first on his block to have platform shoes. They were about a foot high."

Lopez's penchant for exaggeration has proved most effective — rarely has an artist's career taken off so fast and frenetically.

It started last May. Lopez, 28, a veteran of respected pioneer Los Angeles punk rock bands and more recently the curator of La Luz de Jesus folk art gallery in Hollywood — a showcase for the campy, religious art he imported from Mexico and Central America — was staging one of his monthly openings at the gallery.

His openings have gathered something of a cult following and this one was a show of 36 artists' paintings of Elvis, his clothing and assorted, uh ... tributes. To round out the evening, Lopez hired a mediocre Elvis impersonator and dressed up himself as Col. Tom Parker, Presley's legendary manager.

Shortly thereafter, it struck him that he too could impersonate Elvis, but perhaps with a home-boy edge. He chose to become what he terms an Elvis "interpreter" and "cultural ambassador."

Lopez explains that over the years he has become conscious and appreciative of his Mexican heritage. Though his grandparents were born in Mexico, Lopez remembers that he did not learn any Spanish until he took a few classes at his high school in Chula Vista, Calif. And while he says that he was never embarrassed by his ancestry, he admits to squeezing lemon on his shiny black hair to see if it would bleach in the sun, a natural result of going to school with surfers.

After the El Vez brainstorm struck, Lopez decided to break in the act right away, big time: Memphis, Tenn., during Weep Week, the annual August memorial festivities at Graceland.

"I wrote the songs on the airplane and rehearsed them in my hotel room," recalls the performer at his home in Los Angeles, a veritable folk art-Elvis museum attractively cluttered with Presley memorabilia mounted, displayed and accessorized with low-rider touches such as hubcaps dotting the walls.

"I figured that if worst came to worst," he says, "I'd just stand in front of Graceland with a ghetto blaster and do my act."

Worst came to best. Lopez called a Memphis night spot where he knew a whole batch of Elvis impersonators would be performing. He easily impersonated a talent agent and got himself booked on the show.

Wearing gold lame pants and a giant gold sombrero, he also serenaded the crowds at Graceland and passed out fliers promoting his club gig.

"At Graceland, someone started a rumor that El Vez was the little kid who played Elvis' sidekick in 'Fun in Acapulco,'" says Jon Bok, Lopez's roommate and a furniture artist whose work is exhibited at galleries throughout the world. "Everyone wanted to have their picture taken with him."

Questions On 'Before' Photos Stir Varied Reader Responses

Dear Abby: You requested opinions from readers in response to a question posed by the mother of a child with a repaired cleft lip. This mother asked if displaying the "before" photos of her daughter in the family album was appropriate now that the defect had been corrected by surgery. Her husband felt they should not be displayed, and you said, "Display them only with the daughter's approval."

As the mother of a 13-year-old daughter born with a cleft lip and palate, I personally feel that the pre-surgery pictures should be included among other family pictures. To exclude them would make the child feel that you were ashamed of the way she looked at birth.

However, I think your suggestion of honoring the child's wishes when she is sufficiently mature to express them is a valid one.

Abby, please let your readers know about the National Cleft Palate Association. This organization is dedicated to advancing the health, welfare and education of children and adults with cleft palates and craniofacial irregularities. There are chapters and support groups all over the United States. (I am president of the New Orleans chapter.)

Dear Abby

Parents and interested parties may call either (800) 23-CLEFT or (800) 24-CLEFT — both toll-free numbers — for more information about this non-profit organization. — Lucienne D. Siragusa, New Orleans

Dear Lucienne: Thank you for writing. My mail contained some diverse opinions concerning whether the pre-surgery pictures should be placed in the family album. Read on:

Dear Abby: I feel I must write about the little girl who was born with a birth defect that was corrected by surgery.

I had a tumor on my pituitary gland when I was very young. Because of this tumor, my growth was stunted and as a child I was short and fat.

My mother took a lot of pictures of me as a child. I was not a very pretty sight. Fortunately, surgery corrected this condition and enabled me to grow normally. I am 18 years old now, and all the misery of my stunted growth and fat body is now a thing of the past.

Last year, I went through our family album and removed all the pictures of me when I was a short, fat and miserable child. Then I tore them into little pieces. Why should I have to relive all those painful memories? Once was enough! Thank God they are over. — Happy In Florida

Dear Abby: I'm so mad I don't know where to begin. The lady's daughter was born with a cleft palate and had corrective surgery at 4 months old. You said to put the pre-surgery pictures away until the girl was old enough to decide whether she wanted them in the album or not.

Abby, do you really think in a few years the child will feel comfortable putting those pictures back, when her parents weren't comfortable with them to start with?

My youngest son was born cross-eyed, but he had corrective surgery when he was 8 months old. I love my children for who they are — not what they look like. And I'm certainly not going to yank eight months' worth of pictures out of my family album.

I also hope parents of children born with irreversible defects don't feel ashamed to display pictures of their kids. — A PROUD MOM IN TACOMA

Dear Proud Mom: My mail ran 20-to-1 in favor of leaving the pre-surgery pictures in the family album. Most said to remove them would be attempting to deny reality. Many children wrote to say that they were glad they were shown pictures of themselves before their surgery. Some thought they looked "funny"; others said they appreciated the wonderful work their doctors had done.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA, 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: The trend is 25 to 50 cents higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 47.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson closed, will reopen Monday; Wilson 46.75. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 37.00; Wallace 38.00; Spivey's Corner 38.50; Rowland 38.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 45.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 44 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a preliminary weighted average of 45.65. The market is steady and the live supply is fully adequate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 2,845,000, compared to 2,152,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market is 2 cents higher. Supply very short for a good demand. The undertone for next week's trading is weak. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 22 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 4 cents higher, 2.53-2.68 in East and mostly 2.68-2.78 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 2 to 3 lower at 5.79-5.99 in East and too few to report in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.70-3.75; new crop soybeans 5.34-5.69; P.I.K. certificates steady and ranged from 100 to 103 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, responding to new evidence of sluggish economic growth.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 11.96 to 2,785.52 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 462 up, 271 down and 448 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.66 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Before the opening the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate rose a tenth of a percentage point in September to 5.3 percent.

The data also showed an increase of 209,000 in nonfarm payroll employment, well short of advance estimates on Wall Street in the range of 275,000 to 300,000.

Cambodian Resistance Says Soviets Stepping Up Supplies

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNITED NATIONS — Moscow has doubled the pace of its arms shipments to Cambodia this year, sending 60 tanks and 20 MiG-21 jet fighters in August alone, the resistance coalition and Asian diplomats said today.

The Soviet Union began shipping huge quantities of munitions to Phnom Penh when it became clear that Vietnam's troops would be withdrawn by the end of September, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Moscow sent 160 T-55 main battle tanks this year, more than doubling Phnom Penh's inventory of tanks.

The Soviets also sent at least 36 Mig-21 fighter jets, 76.2mm heavy artillery, trucks, thousands of tons of land mines, small arms and ammunition to the port at Kampong Saom, diplomats said.

Soviet deliveries of munitions through the end of August are running about twice as high as the pace of shipments in 1988, the diplomats said.

The information on shipments came from the Cambodian resistance movement's sources, U.S. intelligence and independent media reports, they said.

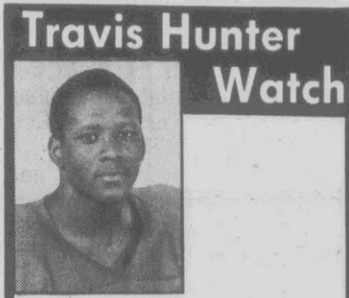

An official at the Soviet Union's U.N. Mission, speaking privately, said he did not think that the pace of Soviet arms deliveries had increased this year.

In Cambodia and Afghanistan, governments backed by Moscow have lost the protection of armies from powerful neighbors and now face determined, well-trained guerrilla movements.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

There are a couple of reasons Bill Lewis' might want to see East Carolina come away with an upset victory over South Carolina Saturday afternoon.

The two teams meet at 1:30 p.m. in Williams-Brice Stadium in Columbia, S.C. It's Homecoming for the Gamecock faithful and a crowd in excess of 72,000 is expected.

Lewis, in his first year as East Carolina's head coach, was the defensive coordinator at Georgia a year ago when the Gamecocks shocked the Bulldogs, 23-10, a week after escaping from East Carolina, 17-0. This year, the Gamecocks are coming off another upset of the 'Dawgs, this time between the hedges in Athens, 24-20.

So, the Pirate coach would relish not only bringing East Carolina its first-ever victory over the Gamecocks, but would gain a certain amount of revenge for the licks handed Georgia by South Carolina.

But it won't be easy, and Lewis acknowledges it.

"Having been a part of the program (at Georgia), I know how difficult it is to win there," Lewis said. "Beating them was a great thing for South Carolina, especially after beating them in Columbia last year. (South Carolina) trailed 17-14 at the half and totally, absolutely dominated the game in the second half."

Lewis said he admired the job done by another first-year coach, Sparky Woods, who was brought in from the head job at Appalachian State after Joe Morrison died suddenly of a heart attack last February.

"He has kept the momentum going," Lewis said. "He has brought in a new staff and new ideas but kept the focus in the right direction."

Lewis says South Carolina is a very physical team on defense.

"They will flat out strike you," he said. "The second thing that impresses you is their soundness. They are very fundamentally sound, a well-coached team. They have a lot of team foot speed and get a lot of people to the football. They're a good tackling team that plays hard, physical football."

Also, Lewis points out, the Gamecocks have no one player they depend upon to be the pace-setter. But instead, they have a well-rounded group.

"They're not a no-name defense, but just the type that you can't dominate one player and do the job," Lewis said.

Leaders on the defense, the coach says, included outside linebacker David Taylor ("big enough to play on the line, but has the talent of a strong safety"); noseguard Tim High ("a dominating line player"); tackle Marty Dye; and linebacker Patrick Hinton ("a big-play guy for them, a tremendous, physical athlete").

"If one word describes them offensively, it's balance," Lewis said.

They run and pass equally well, led by quarterback Todd Ellis and running back Harold Green.

Green, however, is listed as questionable for Saturday, due to an injury suffered against Georgia. Mike Dingle is likely to move up to his spot.

Ellis has a big fan in Lewis, who tried to recruit him at Georgia. In three previous games against the Pirates, he's thrown for nearly 1,000 yards.

"You can't stop him, you can only try and control him," Lewis said.

Green is All-America caliber, Lewis says, but Dingle is almost a carbon-copy; the same type runner.

Ellis has a large group of talented receivers to throw to, including Robert Brooks who caught a 97-yard pass that broke open the game last year.

"His catches broke Georgia's back," Lewis said. "He was the freshman of the year in the NCAA last year."

Three other receivers, flanker Eddie Miller, backup Carl Platt and split end backup George Rush, all have track speed.

The kicking game is a plus for the Gamecocks also. Placekicker Collin Mackie, a junior, has never missed a point after touchdown and has an excellent field goal percentage. He holds South Carolina records for the longest field goal and the longest consecutive string of field goals (15).

Punter Daren Parker is the nation's top kicker with a 48.1 yard average.

"We've got to play hard for 60 minutes," Lewis said of his Pirates' chances in the game. "We have to play to their caliber, much higher than we've played in our first four games. I've seen signs of it, but we haven't put it all together yet."

East Carolina will again go with Travis Hunter at quarterback, despite the success backup Jeff Blake had last week in bringing the Pirates back from a deficit to finish in a tie against Louisiana Tech.

Cubs Clobber Giants, 9-5, Even Series

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants are even — in number of routs, number of ace pitchers clobbered and in number of victories in the National League playoffs.

After an embarrassing 11-3 loss in Wednesday night's opener, the Cubs came back with a vengeance, beating the Giants 9-5 Thursday night to square the best-of-7 series at one game apiece.

Just as the Giants had battered Chicago's 19-game winner, Greg Maddux, in the opener, the Cubs pounded San Francisco's 17-game winner, Rick Reuschel in Game 2. Chicago set a playoff record by scoring six runs in the first inning, then ended any San Francisco hopes for a comeback when Mark Grace doubled home three runs in the sixth inning.

"We got beat good last night," Manager Don Zimmer said. "It looked like we didn't belong on the same field with them. But the series is tied and we're 7-7 (for the year) with them. The first team that wins four will go to the World Series. I only hope it's the Cubbies."

The next three games will be played at San Francisco's Candlestick Park, beginning Saturday.

Jerome Walton opened the game with a single on Reuschel's first pitch. Before the 40-year-old veteran knew what was happening, Ryne Sandberg tripled, Grace doubled, and Luis Salazar and Shawn Dunston each singled. That finished Reuschel. Kelly Downs relieved, and Cubs starter Mike Bielecki tagged him for a two-run single.

It was the biggest first inning ever in the National League playoffs, topping the five-run first by Pittsburgh against Los Angeles in 1974.

"No problems, other than they kept hitting whatever I threw," Reuschel said. "I threw a couple of good pitches. They hit the good ones and a few of the bad ones."

Ironically, Bielecki didn't last five innings and the victory went to reliever Les Lancaster.

Bielecki gave up a two-run homer to Kevin Mitchell in the fourth. It was the second in the series for Mitchell, who led the majors with 47.

Then came the fifth. With two on and two out, up stepped Will Clark who had homered twice, including a grand slam, and driven in six runs in the opener.

Out came Zimmer. In a similar situation Wednesday night, he had stayed with Maddux, who gave up Clark's grand slam.

This time, Zimmer went to the bullpen for left-hander Paul Assenmacher, who retired Clark on one pitch.

"That's one of the toughest decisions I had to make," Zimmer said of replacing Bielecki. "Here's a guy who won 18 games and needed one out to get the win but I had my mind made up when he walked (Robby) Thompson."

Assenmacher didn't retire another batter, as Mitchell and Matt Williams each singled opening the sixth. In came Lancaster. Pinch batter Ken Oberkfell flied to center as both runners advanced, but Lancaster fanned Pat Sheridan and got pinch hitter Ernest Riles to fly out to end the threat.

"That was the turning point for us," Lancaster said. "The big out was the strikeout. It was a big lift for all of us."

The Cubs wrapped it up with Grace's base-clearing double off Craig Lefferts in the sixth. That blow negated Williams' two-run homer in the eighth and a solo shot by Thompson in the ninth.

"It was a big at-bat at the time," Grace said. "It came off a tough lefty like Lefferts when the score was 6-2. I watched while he walked Smith. He missed with every slider he threw to Dwight. He missed on the first pitch to me and then I got around on an inside pitch."

"There's no way you can approach it like another game," Grace said. "You play seven games and it's do-or-die. If you don't outplay the Giants, you go home."

Chicago outplayed, outhit and outpitched the Giants Thursday night.

"We got more hits off Reuschel in the first inning than we usually get off him in a whole game," Zimmer said. "I can't figure that out."

Giants manager Roger Craig, himself a former pitcher, had no such problem.

"He got the ball up and got hit," Craig said. "He's funny that way. Either you will get to him quick or he'll go seven to nine innings. He has struggled his last two times out. He said he's not tired, but we're going to talk to him."

In any playoff, the visiting team usually is satisfied to split the first two games.

"When we first came here, we'd have been happy with a split," Craig said. "But when you win the first, you want to win the second. Now we go home."

The teams appear just as evenly matched at Candlestick Park as they did in Wrigley Field. The Giants were 53-28 at Candlestick, the best home record in the league. The Cubs were 45-36 away from home, the best road record in the NL.

"I don't think we're going into San Francisco thinking we can't win," Zimmer said.

Rick Sutcliffe, 16-11, is the scheduled starter Saturday against San Francisco's Mike LaCoss, 10-10.

"They are two veteran pitchers with good stomach," Craig said. "They both pitch well in pressure situations."

Reid Signs, Says It's Time To Play

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — After signing a multi-year contract with the Charlotte Hornets, J.R. Reid says it's time to play ball.

"It's a very nice contract. I'm happy with it," Reid said. "Now we're ready to get down to the business of playing basketball. We have the real business part of it out of the way. Now I just have to play ball."

The terms of the contract were not disclosed during announcement by team officials on Thursday, but Reid was reportedly asking for a three-year-contract at $1 million a year.

Reid, who left North Carolina after his junior year, was the fifth pick overall in the 1989 NBA draft and is the highest pick to sign with a team so far. Danny Ferry, the second pick by the Los Angeles Clippers, spurred the NBA and signed with an Italian team.

The announcement came as the Hornets prepared to leave for training camp at Appalachian State University in Boone. Camp opens on Friday.

He is the second underclassman to sign with the Hornets in the team's two-year existence. In 1988 as an expansion franchise, Charlotte drafted Rex Chapman, who left Kentucky after his sophomore season. Chapman signed late last year and missed most of training camp because of contract negotiations.

"This is a little bit different than last year in that we have reached an agreement with J.R. and his representatives earlier than last year (with Chapman)," said Hornets President Carl Scheer. "We thought that was critical to the development of our team."

Reid's attorney, Lee Sentress, said the terms of the agreement were settled "a few days ago" after team owner George Shinn became a part of the negotiations.

"He didn't spend a lot of time in it, but his entry was very constructive," said Sentress, who also represents former North Carolina players Brad Daugherty of the Cleveland Cavaliers, Sam Perkins of the Dallas Mavericks, and Walter Davis of the Denver Nuggets.

With Reid's signing, the Hornets will have 18 players in training camp. Mike Jones, who played at Auburn before going overseas to play with a European team, won't be attending training camp and team officials gave no reason for his absence. Former Memphis State standout Andre Turner had been added to the camp roster on Thursday.

Martin Has Great Year But Victory Escapes Him

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONCORD — Vince Lombardi supposedly told his Green Bay Packers: "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing."

NASCAR Winston Cup driver Mark Martin disputes that theory. The 30-year-old Batesville, Ark., driver, who now lives in Greensboro, N.C., heads into Sunday's All Pro Auto Parts 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway without so much as one victory in his career.

Martin has had what he considers to be a terrific season, but that zero under the "wins" column is beginning to haunt him.

Sounding more like Mr. T than usual soft-spoken self, Martin said, "Man, I pity some of these guys. We're going to work them over something fierce in these last five races."

In 24 races this season, Martin has won a series-leading six poles, started from the front row nine times and had 14 top-10 finishes, including four runner-up finishes.

He is third in the Winston Cup driver standings, 255 points behind leader Dale Earnhardt and 180 behind second-place Rusty Wallace.

On Sunday, Martin's Ford Thunderbird will start third behind pole-winner Bill Elliott and Ken Schrader.

The constant questions about Martin and the team operated by Jack Roush failing to win have made the driver angry and defensive.

"It's hard to get the credit that's due when people jump to conclusions," Martin said. "But we've been the most consistent Ford this year. We have more top-five finishes, more top-10 finishes."

"You can drag out the record and look at it. We haven't dropped out of many races because our stuff has been reliable. We've run bad once since Martinsville (in the spring), and it was Martinsville again. And that time we ran bad, we got sixth."

"Just look at how the best of them have run this year. Even Rusty, as hot as he is, did not run that well at Dover (last month). And if there's anyone that runs well everywhere, it's that bunch."

"The 3 (Earnhardt) and the 27 (Wallace) cars have done it on a regular basis, but it's not forever," Martin added. "I guess any time you do well enough, you're subject to criticism. And if people aren't criticized, then they probably aren't doing enough to be considered. We're trying hard."

"A pat on the head would be good right now. We feel we've accomplished a lot. We want to be the ones that are dissatisfied, not the people around us. ... Sometimes it just gets frustrating because people don't realize what we've done. Just look at how many teams in this garage would like to trade places with us right now."

"We've got a solid foundation that is only going to get better. We have not won races. Some of the other guys have won races. But the things we have accomplished have come from talent, and even more so, from hard work. And we're just getting started."

The final 22 spots in the 42-car lineup were filled Thursday, with Brad Teague leading the way with a lap of 171.168 mph. That was the 16th best lap overall and gave Teague the 21st position in the field.

Teague, from Johnson City, Tenn., replaced Ben Hess, who has tried to qualify the Pontiac Grand Prix on Wednesday.

"I was originally supposed to drive the car over here, but they said if another driver came up with a sponsor, he'd drive the car," Teague explained. "They just asked me to drive the car today. I hate it for Ben, but I've got a whole lot more experience than he's got."

Bobby Hill Jr. was next at 171.092, while Hut Stricklin, who stood on his lap from Wednesday, was next at 170.487.

Practice for Sunday's 500-mile race continues today and Saturday.

Sports Notes

Three Marks Set At ECU Pentathlon

Three records were established during East Carolina's annual swimming pentathlon at the Minges Natatorium Thursday afternoon.

Freshman Carole Sharpless established a new standard in the 100-meter backstroke with a time of one minute, 3.78 seconds, junior Meredith Bridgers set a new mark in the breaststroke with a 1:06.75 and sophomore Paige Holt set a new mark in the 100-meter freestyle with a time of 55.24.

Freshman Julie Wilhelm took top honors in the women's events with 3,470 points. Bridgers was second at 3,368 and Nicole Duke finished third at 3,259.

In the men's event, senior Raymond Kennedy was first with 3,095 points, followed by freshman Derek Nelson with 3,004, and junior Tom Holsten with 2,363.

Kennedy placed first in the 200-meter individual medley (2:02.49) and the 100-meter breaststroke (1:02.29). Other individual winners were Danny Martinez in the 100-meter butterfly (55.89), George Walter in the 100-meter backstroke (56.48) and Nelson in the 100-meter freestyle (49.80).

Individual winners in the women's events were Karen Baldrige in the 200-meter individual medley (2:17.13), Jennifer Muench in the 100-meter butterfly (1:30.03), Sharpless in the 100-meter backstroke (1:03.78), Bridgers in the 100-meter breaststroke (1:06.75) and Holt in the 100-meter freestyle (55.24).

Conley Takes Two In Cross Country

D.H. Conley took a pair of cross country meets from East Carteret and Wilson Hunt Thursday, with the Valkyries gaining a shutout victory.

Conley's girls won the first five places to earn a perfect score of 15 points against East Carteret, which finished with 47. Hunt did not participate in the girls' run.

Conley's boys just missed a perfect score, taking the first four spots before having to settle for sixth by their fifth man, giving the Vikings 16 points. East Carteret had 57 and Hunt earned 63.

Conley's Jason Wing won the boys' run in a time of 19 minutes, 15 seconds, while Hope Harrington won the girls' race in 23:32.

The boys are now 13-2, while the girls are 8-4. Conley's next outing is Monday at West Carteret.

Other Conley finishers:
Boys: 2) Rodrick Walton 19:34; 3) Carl Andreu 19:43; 4) Ron Mills 19:46; 6) Nathan Wright 19:51; 7) Jason Osborne 19:55; 10) John Dunn 20:46; 11) Steve Allen 20:55; 13) Adam Charlton 21:12; 18) Wally Heritage 22:29; 19) Alkiwuan Thompson 22:39; 20) Mike Hanrahan 22:58; 22) Stacy Barr 23:47; 23) Matt Dunn 24:18.
Girls: 2) Celeste Charlton 24:35; 3) Tricia Smith 24:38; 4) Amy Allen 25:21; 5) Stacey Burhans 25:34; 7) Julie Smith 26:28; 8) Jennifer Stevens 27:23; 9) Valerie Mills 27:35; 10) Wendy Dixon 27:54; 11) Gretchen Meisner 28:40; 12) Carrilee Andreu 23:52; 13) Meghan Smith 29:21; 14) Pany Sayed 29:22; 15) Heather Smith 29:40; 16) Kim Lloyd 30:29.

Jaguar Junior Varsity Rolls, 26-8

FARMVILLE — Brandon Terrell rushed for 88 yards on 14 carries and scored three touchdowns to power Farmville Central to a 26-8 junior varsity football win over visiting rival Ayden-Grifton Thursday night.

Terrell scored on a 23-yard run with 2:24 left in the first quarter, added a 1-yard run midway through the second quarter and scored from three yards out with :48 seconds showing in the third period.

A 12-yard pass from Reggie Tyson to Tony Lang 10 seconds before intermission staked the Jaguars, now 2-2, to a 20-0 lead. Tyson had earlier run in a two-point conversion.

Mike Jackson got the Chargers on the board with a 4-yard run in the fourth quarter. West dashed over on the two-point conversion.

Farmville will visit East Carteret next Thursday while Ayden-Grifton hosts North Pitt.

Rose Defeats Knight In Soccer, 2-0

RED OAK — Aaron Tschetter and Jason Bizzaro each scored goals to lead Rose High School to a 2-0 road victory over Northern Nash in Big East Conference soccer action Thursday.

The victory raised Rose's record to 5-0 in the conference.

Tschetter scored first to break the ice at the 32-minute mark, assisted by John Beasley. Bizzaro added an unassisted goal in the second half. It was his seventh goal, along with three assists, in the last four games.

Rose outshot Northern Nash 17-7, with Rampant goalie Eddie Enright recording six saves.

"This was the most intense we have played all season," Rose coach Charlie Harvey said. "With this level of intensity, we'll be able to compete better with the stronger teams in the league."

Rose, 9-2-1 overall, returns to action on Monday, hosting Kinston at 4:30 p.m.

Farmville Middle Tops E.B. Aycock

Undefeated Farmville Middle School chalked up a pair of first-half touchdowns then erupted for 22 fourth-quarter points to rout E.B. Aycock 34-0 Thursday afternoon.

Edwelle Tyson and Michael Maye each scored two TDs for Farmville. Tyson darted eight yards with 3:30 left in the first quarter to break a scoreless tie and added a 5-yard run with 4:36 left in the final period.

Maye scored on a 20-yard sprint in the second quarter and an 18-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Eric Davis, who had a pair of two-point conversions, capped the scoring with a 2-yard run with 58 seconds left.

Farmville is now 3-0.

Lady Pirates Capture Tournament Title

RALEIGH — Two East Carolina women won their divisional titles to lead the Lady Pirates to first place in the Meredith College Tennis Invitational Tournament Thursday.

Jennifer Fenton and Kelly Buck both won their respective divisions in the tournament, while Nicole Catalano and Wendy Perna also reached the finals of theirs, propelling ECU into the title.

Methodist College finished second, followed by Atlantic Christian, Campbell, Catawba, Meredith and Guilford.

Junior Netters Fall To Ridgicroft

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department junior girls' tennis team fell to Ridgicroft School 9-3 Thursday afternoon.

Morgan Bright, Amie Thompson and Sofia Lannegren accounted for Greenville's wins.

Greenville, now 1-1, travels to Goldsboro Tuesday.

Farmville Central Moves To Top

A week of upsets caused a shakeup in this week's Daily Reflector Top 12 prep high school football poll and a new No. 1 team is ushered in for the second consecutive week.

Undefeated Farmville Central is the unanimous choice as the poll's top team, receiving all three first-place votes. The Jaguars replace Bertie, which assumed the No. 1 spot for one week but fell to Tarboro 28-14 last week.

The Falcons slipped from first into a tie for fifth with Northampton East.

Following Farmville is West Craven, which vaulted from fourth last week. Rose moves from fourth to third, Wilson Hunt jumps from eighth to fourth and Northampton East climbs from sixth to fifth.

Havelock, which fell to D.H. Conley 7-6, slipped from second to eighth. Conley, which was unranked, moves into the ninth position. Rounding out the poll are Washington, Greene Central and Plymouth.

The poll ranks teams from the Big East, Coastal, Colonial, Northeastern, Eastern Plains and Tobacco Belt conferences regardless of classification.

The Top 12
• Farmville Central: Morris

Foreman passed for 123 yards and rushed for 73 and Shawn Ford keyed the defense as the Jaguars stifled Plymouth 22-8. They visit 1-4 Ayden-Grifton tonight.

• West Craven: Lee Becton rushed for 150 yards and scored four touchdowns in the Eagles' 45-14 blitzing of North Lenoir. They host 5-1 Havelock tonight.

• Rose: Columbus Grice tossed a pair of touchdown passes and ran for another as the Rampants whipped Kinston 27-6. They host undefeated 5-0 Wilson Hunt tonight.

• Wilson Hunt: The Warrior defense finally allowed its first touchdown but three touchdowns runs by Chauncey Walston paved the way for a 35-12 rout of Southern Nash. They visit 5-1 Rose tonight.

• Northampton East: The Rams enjoyed an open date last week. They host 2-2 Northside tonight.

• Bertie: Despite 176 yards rushing by Tracy Leary, the Falcons were spilled from the ranks of the unbeaten as improving Tarboro, led by 112 yards rushing by Terrell Hinton and Marshall Barnes, staged an upset. They visit 2-3 Hertford County tonight.

• Havelock: The Rams saw streaks of 35 straight regular-season wins, 19 straight Coastal Conference wins and 18 consecutive road wins end in a 7-6 loss at Conley. They host 5-0 West Craven tonight.

• Columbia: Eric Brown and Bobby Rouhiac hooked up on two touchdown passes as the Wildcats erupted for 32 second-half points to overcome Mattamuskeet 32-13. They visit 3-2 North Edgecombe tonight.

• D.H. Conley: The Viking defense turned in a stellar performance in the upset of Havelock. They travel to 0-6 Pender County tonight.

• Washington: David Williams rushed for 108 yards and Damien Moore added 106 as the Pam Pack crushed Southeast Halifax 34-0. They are open this week.

• Greene Central: John Dixon rushed for 142 yards and Timmy Wilkes added 123 yards as the Rams won their fourth straight, thumping South Lenoir 26-6. They host 2-3 East Carteret tonight.

• Plymouth: The Vikings and quarterback Shawn Walker were limited to a season-low 192 yards passing in their loss to Farmville. They host 1-4 Edenton tonight.

1. Farmville Central	5-0	36
2. West Craven	5-0	32
3. Rose	5-1	30
4. Wilson Hunt	5-0	28
5. Northampton East	4-0	20
6. Bertie	4-1	20
7. Havelock	5-1	18
8. Columbia	6-0	16
9. D.H. Conley	4-2	12
10. Washington	4-1	8
11. Greene Central	4-1	7
12. Plymouth	3-1	4

Others receiving votes: East Carteret 2, Northeastern 1.

Rose, Washington, Roanoke Post Wins

Rose, Washington and Roanoke rolled to easy wins in girls' high school tennis action Thursday afternoon.

Rose Bests Northern
RED OAK — Rose preserved its unbeaten mark in Big East Conference play with a 7-2 win at Northern Nash.

ATTENTION GREENVILLE AREA RESIDENTS

A Thoroughfare Plan is a plan for the development of existing and proposed major streets that will adequately serve the future travel needs of an urban area in an efficient manner. The current Thoroughfare Plan for the Greenville Urban Area was developed in 1972; however, it was not adopted until 1979.

In 1984, the City contracted with the Thoroughfare Planning Unit of the North Carolina Department of Transportation to update the City's Thoroughfare Plan. On July 24, 1989, NCDOT in cooperation with the City of Greenville's Development Department began presenting the recommended Thoroughfare Plan to the City of Greenville.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

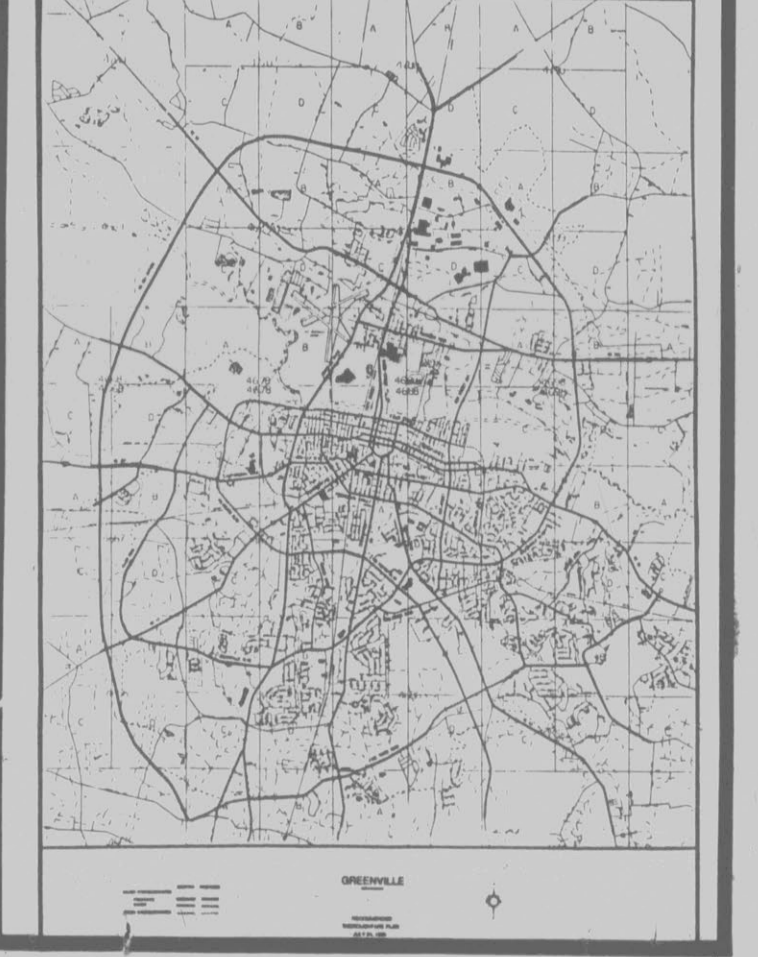

The City Council wants to hear your opinion on the recommended plan. There will be a series of public meetings at locations in each of the voting districts to explain the proposal and answer questions.

The dates and locations for the meetings to be held in each district are:

South Greenville Elementary School, Howell Street
Monday, October 9, 1989, 7:30 pm
Wahl-Coates Elementary School, East Fifth Street
Tuesday, October 10, 1989, 7:30 pm
Third Street Elementary School, West Third Street
Wednesday, October 11, 1989, 7:30 pm
E.B. Aycock Jr. High School, 1325 Red Banks Road
Thursday, October 12, 1989, 7:30 pm
J.C. Park, Cedar Lane
Monday, October 16, 1989, 7:30 pm

CONSIDERATION BY THE CITY COUNCIL - After these public meetings, the City Council will hold a public hearing. At this public hearing, interested citizens will be given an opportunity to express their opinion on the recommended plan.

FURTHER INFORMATION - If you need further information, or have questions, contact the Development Department at 830-4467.

Grizzard Inching Lead Out

Woody Peele

Mike Grizzard continues to inch away from the pack while the rest of us scramble for position.

There were some changes in the pecking order last week as a result of our few differences, and it looks like Vickie Spivey may be moving her move.

In the last two weeks, Spivey has moved from a tie for last place into sole possession of third place.

Tom Baines, meanwhile, has moved up to second place, the closest challenger to Grizzard.

Mike continues to lead with way with a 45-12 record, followed by Baines at 43-14. Spivey is third at 41-16, followed by Greg Laudick and myself at 40-17. Tom Morris continues to bring up the rear with a 39-18 record.

Before we get to the panel's choices, a look at this week's high school games.

For one of the few times, it would appear that the Pitt County games are pretty cut and dried. The favorites in the three Pitt games are strong favorites. And that usually means that an upset might happen.

First off, Ayden-Grifton is host to Farmville Central. The Chargers are suffering through a rebuilding year this season while Farmville Central ranks as one of the top teams in the state. Ayden-Grifton has won but once and Farmville is unbeaten. An upset? Not in my book — Farmville is the pick, 35-6.

D.H. Conley's Vikings travel to winless Pender after coming off one of their biggest wins, a 7-6 victory over previously unbeaten Havelock. The Vikings must watch out for a letdown following that big game, and the Patriots may be lying in wait for them.

Nevertheless, Conley must be the pick here, takes a 28-0 victory.

Finally, North Pitt travels to Pamlico. The Panthers have flexed their muscles the last couple of games after losing to three good teams in their opening games. Pamlico has only one win, that coming on a forfeit. But — if there is to be an upset, it's likely here.

Still, it's North Pitt, 23-8.

Elsewhere, it's Chocowinity over Mattamuskeet, Roanoke over Creswell, Greene Central over East Carteret and Williamston over Roanoke Rapids.

Last week's record: 5-2; season record, 32-10.

Rose High School plays host to Wilson Hunt in a key Big East game. Both of the teams come into the game unbeaten in conference play — Hunt unbeaten on the year. Rose has lost but once, to 3-A power Bertie. Rose knocked Hunt out of the playoffs last year and Hunt was the last team to beat Rose in a Big East game, so both have reasons to win. A loss necessarily end playoff hopes, but it will go a long way towards it.

The panel is picking Rose, 5-1, in this one. My own choice is Rose, taking a 21-17 victory.

East Carolina travels down to South Carolina, hoping to remain unbeaten. But, ECU has never beaten the Gamecocks, who are coming off a big upset win at Georgia. Todd Ellis is one of the best, if not the best, quarterback the Pirates will face this season.

It was close last year — but this year? The panel is going with South Carolina by a 6-0 vote. I pick South Carolina, 24-14.

Our other picks: Clemson over Virginia; Maryland and Georgia Tech, a toss-up; N.C. State over Middle Tennessee State; Louisiana State over Florida; Penn State over Rutgers; Duke over Army; Wake Forest over North Carolina; Illinois over Ohio State; Alabama over Mississippi and UCLA over Arizona.

The full poll:

Peele S. Carolina over ECU Clemson over Virginia Maryland over Ga. Tech State over Mid. Tenn. Conley, North Pitt Claim Volleyball Championships

North Pitt and D.H. Conley seized regular-season championships in their respective conferences Thursday afternoon and now turn their attention to the North Carolina High School Athletic Association state playoffs.

North Pitt Wins EPC

LITTLEFIELD — North Pitt came up with one win in a tri-match at Ayden-Grifton Thursday afternoon to wrap up the Eastern Plains Conference regular-season title and the league's No. 1 seed to the Class 2-A state playoffs.

The Pant-HERS defeated Pamlico in their opener, 8-15, 15-9, 15-6, but were toppled by the host Lady Chargers 9-15, 16-14, 15-11 in the nightcap.

Pamlico, which finished second in the conference, claimed a 15-4, 15-9 decision over Ayden-Grifton.

Against Ayden-Grifton, which finished 2-8 in the EPC, North Pitt's Shannon Ross had 16 service points while Niecey Sherrod and Latasha Council had seven each. Tina Tillman had 11 points and Renee Curley and Shawner Kinsey had seven each for the Lady Chargers.

Leading Ayden-Grifton against Pamlico was Kelshia Carmon with seven service points. Dawn Doliva racked up 17 service points for the Lady Hurricanes.

Against Pamlico, North Pitt was led by Keisha Highsmith with 13 points while Angie House added 10.

Ayden-Grifton finishes 2-8.

North Pitt, 9-1 in the league and 10-8 overall, will play host to South Lenoir, the East Central's number two team, in the first round of the playoffs, Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Conley Wins Coastal

BURGAW — D.H. Conley regained its Coastal Conference volleyball championship crown with a pair of victories over Pender County Thursday.

It marked the ninth championship for the Valkyries in the past 10 years. The only time they did not win or share the title was in the 1988 season.

Conley took the opening match, 15-6, 15-12 to assure itself of no worse than a tie. Then, in the second match, Conley won the opener, 15-4, but saw Pender come back for the second game, 15-13. Conley then dominated the final and decisive game, 15-2.

Darvetta Patrick led the Valkyries with 11 effective hits and one hill, while Virginia Hall and Tracy Surrrell had 36 hits between them. Nikki Adams led the team in assists.

537 yards, five touchdowns and four interceptions, has moved into first place as the school's leading career passer in completions and yardage and in total offense. Lewis said much of the problem last week when Tech blitzed Hunter unmercifully in the second and third periods was not his fault, but that of his protection breaking down.

Hunter will be without his number one receiver, however. Walter Wilson (10 catches for 119 yards) is out with a shoulder separation. Charlie Tyson, with eight catches for 134 yards, and Clayton Driver, with six for 106 yards, are expected to provide outstanding relief, however. Driver caught a key conversion pass to allow ECU to insure itself of a tie against Tech.

Tailback Willie Lewis remains the number one rusher with 244 yards, a 5.1 average. Freshman Cedric Van Buren is making a name for himself also, rushing for 149 yards and a 6.5 yard average.

Junior Robinson remains ever a threat on kick returns. His 31.5 yard per kickoff return average is fifth best in the country.

As a team, ECU is rushing for 241.8 yards a game while allowing 151.5. The Pirates are passing for 177.5 yards a game and giving up 159.5. That totals out to 419.3 yards a game for the Pirates and 311.0 for their opponents.

ECU, eighth in the country in scoring, is averaging 36.8 points a game, while giving up 14.8.

In contrast, South Carolina is rushing for 130.8 yards a game while allowing 176.2; the Gamecocks are passing for 179.0 per game and allowing 225.8. That totals to 309.8 yards for the Gamecocks to 402.0 per game against. They are scoring 22.0 points a game while allowing 22.6.

West Virginia, which beat the Gamecocks, 45-21, accounts for much of those stats, however. They gained a total of 589 yards against South Carolina, over a fourth of its total allowed.

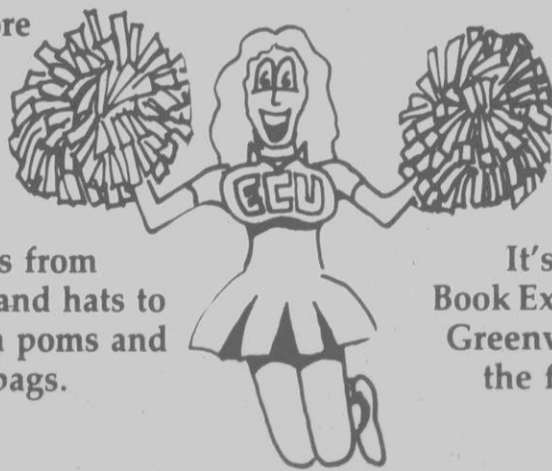

East Carolina will have an open date next week before hosting Virginia Tech on Oct. 21. South Carolina plays host to Western Carolina next Saturday.

Comebacks Seem Old Hat For Cubs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs have been coming back all year, so why not in the National League playoffs?

Rookie Joe Girardi credited the right mesh, shortstop Shawon Dunston talked of concentrating on the game at hand, and Manager Don Zimmer spoke of believing the team can play on a par with anyone.

The Cubs certainly had the opportunity to come back Thursday night, after the San Francisco Giants had thrashed Chicago 11-3 in Wednesday night's opening playoff game. And come back the Cubs did, with a 9-5 victory that squared the best-of-7 series at a game apiece.

"It seems we got beat pretty good. You'd think the world was coming to an end, like we weren't suppose to be on the same field as them," Zimmer said. "All I know is that after 14 games, we're 7-7," including a 6-6 split in regular-season games. "I don't see one of these teams being that much better than the other."

Girardi, who was playing at the Class AA level last year, said a reason for the Cubs' success is the "great mesh of young and old. It's a great time to be on this team."

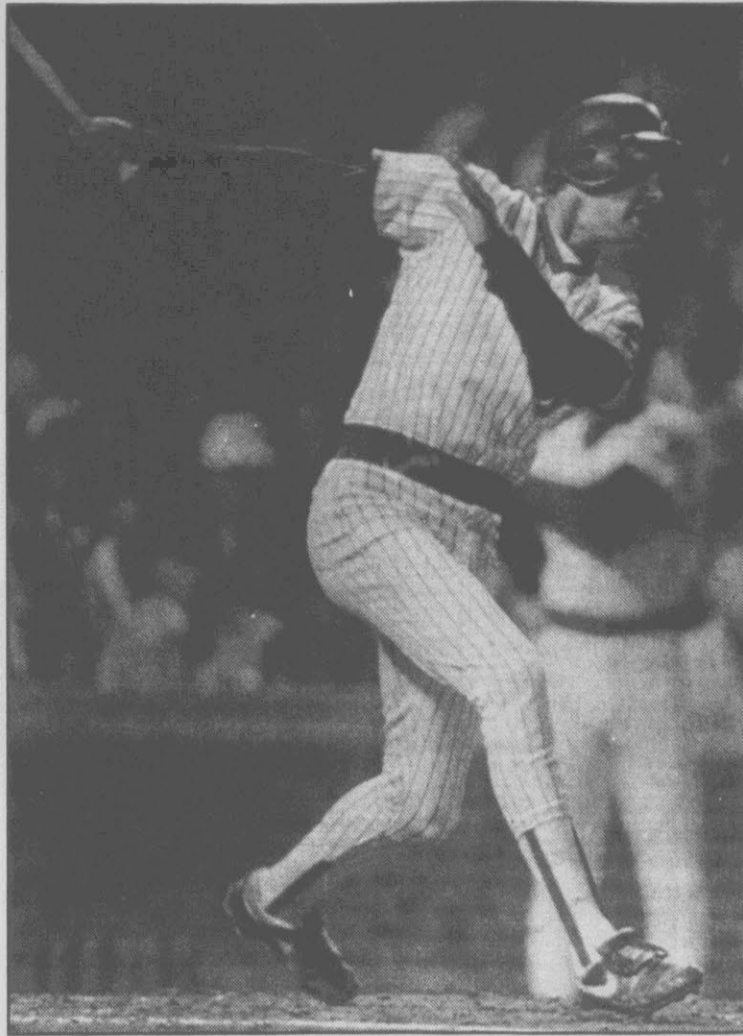

"We have great leadership. Dwight Smith, Mitch Williams, and Shawon keep it loose in the clubhouse. They know when it's time to laugh. And Hawk (Andre Dawson) and Ryno (Ryne Sandberg) tell us when it's time to get serious — when it's time to play."

Dunston said he wasn't worried that a loss Thursday night would have put the Cubs down 2-0 heading to San Francisco. His only concern, he said, was Giants starter Rick Reuschel.

"Last night, I was just thinking about Big Daddy, beating him," Dunston said. "We came out and beat their ace tonight like they beat our ace last night."

It was the youthful portion of the Cubs' roster that showed the way Thursday night.

Mark Grace had four RBIs, rookie Jerome Walton had three singles and Les Lancaster pitched the final four innings for the victory.

St. Andrews Clips ECU Booters, 1-0

LAURINBURG — St. Andrew's College took a 1-0 soccer victory over East Carolina Thursday.

The lone goal in the match was scored in the second half, during the 65th minute of play.

ECU actually dominated play, taking 12 shots on goal to just four for St. Andrew's. ECU goalie Todd Aspden recorded two saves, while St. Andrew's had nine saves.

East Carolina, now 1-12-1, travels to N.C. Wesleyan on Oct. 14.

Three Fire Record 62s In Texas Open

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — Just call it the Hard Luck Golf Classic.

To hear Lanny Wadkins and the boys tell it, the leaders entering the second round of the Texas Open could be on welfare or, worse, forced to be out there somewhere earning an honest living.

"It's my worst year since 1981," grumbled Wadkins after firing a record-equalling 62 to share the first-round lead Thursday with Tom Sieckmann and Mark Wiebe.

After 18 PGA Tour victories, Wadkins is winless in 1989 and has missed the cut in six of his last nine outings. He plunged from his usual lofty ranking to 63rd on the money list.

Wiebe's dilemma was even worse. "The last two weeks I played so terrible," he confessed, "I didn't know if I could go on."

His last victory was in the Hardee's Golf Classic in 1986.

Sieckmann's troubles have been just the opposite. "I've been playing the best golf of my life but the results don't show it. It's been a really disappointing year."

Sieckmann won last year's Anheuser-Busch Classic but his 26 outings in 1989 have produced no trophies and only $82,500, which is 139th on the money list.

Dan Forsman provided still another tale of woe but it was good mostly for chuckles after his 63 left him alone at 7-under par and just one shot off the lead.

His pilot failed to show up in Salt Lake City on Wednesday for the trip to San Antonio and Forsman scrambled aboard a commercial flight that got him here just in time for his afternoon pro-am appearance.

Unfortunately, his clubs arrived three hours later.

"It was strange watching baseball on Wednesday afternoon," he laughed, but he recovered handily.

Playing the course "blind" and despite a bogey, he got to 7-under par through 14 holes and had visions of fantasy scores and fat leads dancing in his head.

"I felt good, aggressive. I thought if I got some breaks I could shoot 60. It looked like my kind of day. And after Wednesday, I said, 'Dammit, I deserve it.' Why not grab this thing by the throat?"

Forsman, a non-winner this year but with two PGA triumphs behind him, burned the cup on each of the four closing holes but not a single putt trickled in.

"Even though it didn't happen," he sighed, "I felt good about it."

And there were other silver linings for the leaders.

Wadkins, who could hit the $4 million mark in career earnings by winning here, labeled his 62 a "good, solid round of golf" and said it reflects the hard work he's been putting in on his game this year.

Jays' Concerns Are Under Roof

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TORONTO — The Toronto Blue Jays have more to worry about than whether their dome is closed.

The Blue Jays trail the Oakland Athletics 2-0 in the best-of-7 American League playoffs. There's been a lot of talk about Toronto's 10-0 record when the roof is closed over the SkyDome stadium. But playing with or without a ceiling isn't the problem.

The problem is Oakland's Rickey Henderson.

"The roof is so high that I don't even notice if it is open or closed," said Jimmy Key, who pitches against Oakland's Storm Davis tonight in Game 3. "I am concentrating on other things when I am on the mound. The only thing you will notice on some days when the roof is open is a little more wind."

AL president Bobby Brown decided earlier this week to close the roof for tonight's game, and will decide later whether to open it for the other weekend games. The forecast is for afternoon highs in the 50s, so it could go either way.

"Some do prefer it closed," Toronto's Kelly Gruber said Thursday. "You seem to get a purer form of baseball when it's closed. It makes for a true game of baseball. You are able to see the pitches better. I prefer it closed."

The Blue Jays were 24-19 in the SkyDome with an open roof. They were 2-0 in games in which the roof was closed after play had begun.

"I liked the other place better," Davis said of Toronto's old ballpark. "I pitched well in Exhibition Stadium. I pitched once in the dome. The ball carried well that time."

And how. Key and Davis pitched against each other in the dome on July 13 and Oakland won 11-7. Davis gave up seven hits and four runs in 3 2-3 innings. Key allowed eight hits and nine runs in 4 2-3 innings.

"I've had good games against them and bad games against them," Key said, "just like any other club."

Key, a left-hander, might be tougher to steal off of than righties Dave Stieb and Todd Stottlemyre, Toronto's starting pitchers in the first two playoff games. The Athletics have 10 stolen bases in the series, seven by Henderson.

"Jimmy Key has an excellent move," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "But Rickey is probably the best baserunner I've ever seen."

Henderson was the center of attention Thursday in an escalating war of words. Toronto catcher Ernie Whitt was angry that Henderson stole second without a slide in the seventh inning of Game 2.

Henderson said he didn't slide because there wasn't any throw. Whitt said Henderson tried to show up the Blue Jays. Oakland manager Tony La Russa took exception to Whitt's comments.

"If he's taking it personal and he's embarrassed, he's a fool," La Russa was quoted as saying in a Toronto newspaper. La Russa said Thursday he did make the statement and then defended his team from Toronto's attacks.

"When you get to the postseason, there is a lot of emotion on both sides," La Russa said. "You celebrate. If I thought some of my people overdid it, I would be one of the first people to say, 'Keep it down.' I saw the Blue Jays celebrate a lot the last two months. Hey, you get happy when you do something good. Now that we've got something going good, I don't like some of the comments that make it sound like we're showing people up. We're excited that we're doing good, just as they would be."

Gruber, Toronto's third baseman, was upset with Henderson and with outfielder Dave Parker, who took a slow trot around the bases after hitting a home run in Game 2.

"I don't particularly care for the hot dog type," Gruber said. "It sort of makes me want to get some vengeance. It's sort of like rubbing salt into the wound. I believe that you play hard and try to win with grace. I'm glad I'm not a pitcher because you would see a lot of heads ducking. There might be some messages I'd send up there. The staring and the long walks around the bases may be their style of game. I just don't like it. Showboating doesn't mean anything to me."

Gaston, however, had no complaints about Oakland's behavior.

"Dave has been doing that for a long time," he said of Parker's trot. "That's nothing new."

Memorial Held For Giamatti

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A public memorial service was to be held today at Yale University for the late A. Bartlett Giamatti, who spent half his life at Yale as a student, then a professor and finally its president.

Giamatti died last month while on a weekend break from his duties as commissioner of major league baseball, a post he held for only five months.

Yale President Benno C. Schmidt Jr., Giamatti's two sons, Paul and Marcus, and a number of other Yale officials and professors were to speak during the late afternoon service at Woolsey Hall, Yale officials said.

Television coverage of the service was not to be permitted.

Yale officials said they did not know who would be attending to day's service because there was no official guest list.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Oct. 7
ARIES (March 20 to April 17): Getting feelings of anger could make you lose out with friends. This is not yet the time to spend more money on what your attachment desires.
TAURUS (April 18 to May 19): Trying to put new ideas in effect in your daily activities could hold you back. Your best knowledge from business matters will come from your hunches.
GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): Arguments can be continuous in your life unless you remain silent. Breaking up present income for a scheme of a friend could be disastrous.
MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): At business, follow directions given by one who knows your subject well. Your ideas for merchandising will be excellent for ideas or products.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Returning to formal methods can make your daily duties more effective. You will need to use proven methods on your business arrangements.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Keep very stable and staunch in the activities that you have to do today. A woman friend of experience will also help you with a money matter.
LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Don't badger family members who won't release financial data you could use. Have a campaign today and find out just where you are financially headed.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Impatience on your home repairs will get you nowhere, fast. If you don't have to make a big investment, a new project could be good for you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): Your new ideas of a business nature are not ready for acceptance. Gather all the information that you can about a business project before you commit yourself.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): Outside associates will be able to give you good ideas for your business. Private information from an expert will show you how to save money.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): Procrastination on your household duties could have adverse results for you. Invite persons you associate side-by-side with into your home and entertain them.
PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): The greatest efforts should be spent in duties involved with your attachment. Don't commit yourself impulsively to a new financial scheme.

MAKE SURE YOU GET YOURS!
 Opening lead: King of ♠
 Most of us complain that we are dealt few enough tricks in our bridge lifetime. Therefore, we must make every effort to husband those that are our due.
 South's two-spade opening was natural and forcing. Over West's preempt, North felt three trumps and a ruffing value in diamonds made a bid of four spades preferable to a double. Since North was unlikely to have as much as an ace and a king for his competitive action, South decided a small slam was more than adequate.
 West's king of hearts was the natural opening lead. Declarer called for dummy's ace, East ruffed and returned a trump, and declarer

AGAIN AND AGAIN," THE CRUEL TEACHER SAID, DEGRADINGLY.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 2 ♠ 4 ♥ 4 ♣ Pass
 6 ♣ Pass Pass Pass
 eventually had to concede a diamond for a one-trick set.
 A pause for reflection before playing to the first trick would have enabled declarer to count 12 tricks—seven spades, three clubs and the two red aces. Therefore, the spade slam was unbeatable as long as declarer did not indulge in a trick-reduction play. Since West almost surely had a seven-card suit to jump to four hearts, putting up the ace of hearts for East to ruff away is a prime example of that type of folly.
 To preserve his 12 tricks, declarer should simply play low from the table at the first trick, retaining the ace for a later role. Declarer can then ruff the heart continuation, again playing low from dummy, draw trumps and cross to the table with a trump. The ace of hearts serves as a parking place for declarer's losing diamond, and the small slam is in the bag.

PBS Special Traces Man's Return To Southeast Asia

By Jay Sharbutt
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Located southwest of Da Nang, it once was fertile land. The Vietnam war made it a miserable, battered killing field nicknamed the Arizona Territory. Dennis Sheehy, a Marine grunt then, knew it well.

He was badly wounded near there in 1967. Later, recuperating in a Navy hospital, he made a decision — as he notes in a PBS special — to return someday to Asia, and "instead of search and destroy, maybe build and reconstruct..."

He did just that, not in Vietnam, but in China, in Inner Mongolia, where he worked on a government program to help save the windswept grasslands. For three consecutive years, he lived there during each year's six-month growing season, joined each June by his wife, Marcie, and their three kids.

His story, and theirs, will be told Monday on PBS, in "The Cowboy in Mongolia," a one-hour documentary made in 1987 by Andy Duncan and Dave King, faculty members at Oregon State University in Corvallis.

Now 42, Sheehy, an Oregon native, is an assistant professor at Texas A & M University. He has undergraduate degrees in Asian studies and Mandarin Chinese, and master's and doctoral degrees in rangeland management.

An odd combination. But it's just as odd that his interest in the Orient was kindled by his first trip to Asia, one seen from a grunt's perspective, in fields filled with booby traps, shell craters and enemy bunkers.

"It's hard to explain," concedes Sheehy, a shy, soft-spoken man. He thinks his interest probably began with tales of the Orient he heard from his father, a Navy veteran — "he's an anchor-clanker" — of World War II.

"Being there in Vietnam, even though it wasn't the best of times, did kind of expand this desire of mine to learn more about Asia," he says.

But it took a while, starting with his first classes in 1968. The ultimate goal was to see China. At one point, though, he'd almost given up hope of getting there.

Then, in 1985, Chinese officials to whom he'd sent a resume hired him to work at a grasslands protection project on a 15,000-acre pilot area in Inner Mongolia. He and his family lived in a commune called Yihenoer Sumu.

Working on projects sponsored by China's government and various organizations, including the United Nations and the World Bank, Sheehy so far has made six trips to China. He plans to return there in December.

He was in Beijing in early June when pro-democracy demonstrations led by students were crushed in the bloody, internationally-televised show of force by government troops around Tiananmen Square.

"All day Sunday I heard ambulance sirens, shooting, and a pall of black smoking was hanging over the city," recalls Sheehy, who stayed put at his hotel, located a short walk from the square.

The sounds of violence gave him an eerie I've-been-through-this-before feeling.

"Yeah, it did," he says. "It's funny in a way, because I got wounded in Vietnam on June 2, and this happened on June 3." He chuckled. "I remember commenting to the people with me that I wasn't going to go abroad anymore during early June."

Jackson Will Host TV Show

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — The Rev. Jesse Jackson has apparently decided he'd rather worry about Nielsen ratings than Gallup polls.

Declaring that there is "incestuous inbreeding" among the current television talk shows, Jackson and Warner Brothers Television executives Thursday announced that the former candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination will host a new program, "Voices of America with Jesse Jackson," beginning next fall.

Jackson said the program is intended to "give access, precipitate ideas, and be fair." Jackson also said that he will not run for mayor of Washington, D.C., in 1990.

The format for the hour-long program is still undecided, but Van Gordon Sauter, former president of CBS News, and composer Quincy Jones have been named executive producers of the venture.

Brando Says Scenes Excised

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marlon Brando says MGM-UA studios excised crucial scenes from his new movie "A Dry White Season," weakening the film's anti-apartheid message.

"I think they made a money decision. If I know corporate executives, especially in the movie business, I know they were thinking of the money," Brando said in an interview to be shown on "Saturday Night With Connie Chung" this weekend.

"They did not take into consideration the benefits that might befall people in Africa who are suffering as a result of the policies of apartheid," Brando said, according to a transcript supplied by CBS News.

"They're hoping I will go away like some evil wind," Brando said. "But they're mistaken because I'm not gonna go away."

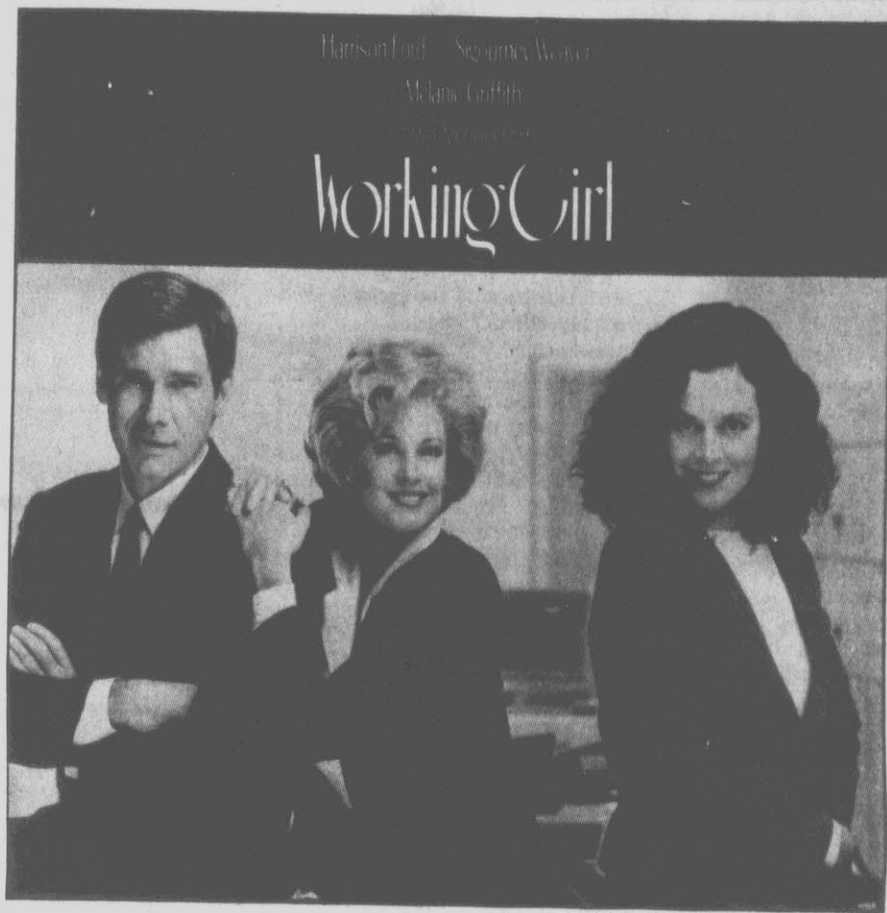

Mary Stevens Hardy, MGM-UA's director of corporate communications, did not return a telephone call seeking comment.

Welk Helps Out Museum Fund

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — A heritage center and Lawrence Welk museum planned for the site of the Welk family farm recently got a boost from the bandleader himself.

Sharon Eiseman, secretary-treasurer of Welk Heritage Inc. in Strasburg, said on Thursday the Lawrence Welk Foundation of Santa Monica, Calif., sent a $35,000 check two weeks ago.

Welk Heritage hopes to raise $750,000 for the project. Eiseman said the Welk check is to be used for fund-raising efforts, paying a curator-coordinator and getting construction under way at the old farm-site three miles northwest of Strasburg.

Welk Heritage is looking for a local fund-raiser, Eiseman said. The group had been negotiating with a national fund-raising company.

Shirley Fredricks, Welk Foundation executive director and Welk's daughter, said her 86-year-old father is in good health and "is honored to think that people in the state, friends and family would do this."

Although he is retired, Fredricks said, her father comes to the foundation offices each day to check the mail, play pool and putt on an office putting green.

Two Red Cross Workers Kidnapped

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIDON, Lebanon — Masked gunmen today kidnapped two Swiss Red Cross employees who worked distributing artificial limbs to victims of Lebanon's civil war and drove them to a Palestinian refugee camp, police said.

The two workers were seized when they arrived at a Red Cross center outside this port 25 miles south of Beirut, police said.

Officials at the Geneva headquarters of the International Committee of the Red Cross condemned the kidnapping, which comes 11 months after the abduction of another Swiss Red Cross worker in Sidon.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility. A Sunni Moslem militia leader indicated a radical Palestinian group was involved.

Police and the Red Cross identified the victims as Emmanuel Christen, 32, and Elio Erriquez, 23, and said both worked as orthopedic technicians at the Red Cross center, which distributed the artificial limbs to victims of the 14-year-old civil war.

The Red Cross pulled all its 31 Swiss delegates from Lebanon on Dec. 20 after the abduction of Peter Winkler, a Red Cross official in Sidon. The Swiss man was kidnapped Nov. 17, 1988 and released Dec. 16.

News reports in Switzerland and Lebanon said at the time that Winkler's kidnapers threatened new anti-Swiss attacks, claiming the Red Cross and Swiss authorities reneged on a pledge to pay ransom for Winkler's freedom.

The Red Cross mission returned to Lebanon Jan. 22 after all parties in Lebanon pledged it would not be attacked.

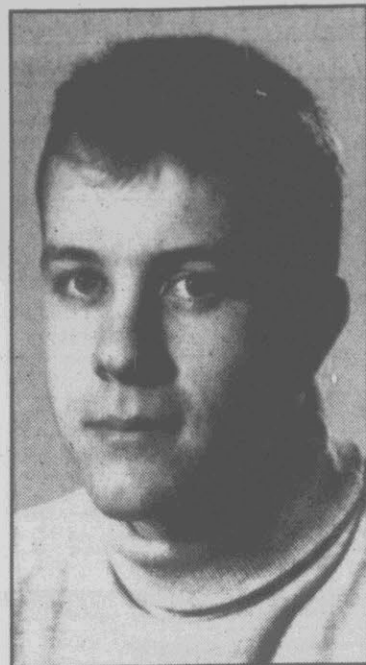

The assailants today, wearing black masks, were waiting in two cars at the entrance of the center near the Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp when the relief workers' white Peugeot car arrived, police reported.

"Christen parked the car at the center's parking lot and climbed out, holding an artificial limb. Erriquez got out from the car's opposite door, followed by a Lebanese ICRC employee," a police spokesman said.

Two men immediately leaped out of a dark-colored Mercedes, one with a pistol and the other a machine gun trained at the Red Cross men, said the spokesman, who cannot be named under standing rules.

"Christen and Erriquez immediately threw their arms up, offering no resistance. They were bundled at gunpoint into the trunk of the Mercedes, which sped off followed by the other car, loaded with armed guards," the spokesman said. The spokesman said the two cars headed in the direction of the camp.

De Klerk Will Meet Churchmen

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — President F.W. de Klerk today agreed to meet with Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu and two other church anti-apartheid leaders next week for unprecedented talks about South Africa's racial conflict.

De Klerk immediately agreed to a request by the church leaders for urgent talks "about the crisis in our land," the president's office said.

It will be de Klerk's first direct meeting with top anti-apartheid leaders since he replaced P.W. Botha as president Aug. 15. The meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday in Pretoria.

Tutu, who was in the United States today, released a statement through his office in Cape Town saying he and his colleagues believe de Klerk "does not appreciate the far-reaching nature of the steps he must take to get negotiations off the ground" between blacks and government leaders.

De Klerk has offered to negotiate a new constitution within five years that would extend political rights to the disenfranchised black majority, but he has ruled out participation by the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement unless it renounces violence.

Tutu, referring to this position, said: "Negotiations which exclude the legitimate leaders of our people, which the government appears to be contemplating, will intensify, not resolve, our country's crisis."

"It is not our intention to go to Mr. de Klerk claiming to be negotiators," Tutu said. "As church leaders, we would see ourselves as facilitators who would try to create the climate for negotiations."

The actual negotiations, he said, "would have to be entered into by those identified by our people as their true political leaders."

In addition to Tutu, the clergymen who requested the meeting were the Rev. Allan Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, and the Rev. Frank Chikane, general-secretary of the South African Council of Churches, de Klerk's office said.

Tutu, expected back in South Africa on Sunday after traveling to Washington for the funeral of Episcopal Bishop John T. Walker, met four times with Botha during the former president's 11 years in power. The archbishop has not met with de Klerk since Botha's resignation in August.

Government sources have been quoted in news reports this week as saying jailed ANC leader Walter Sisulu and another prominent black activist, Oscar Mpetsha, will be freed by Oct. 18.

Sisulu, 77, the outlawed group's general secretary, was sentenced in 1964 along with Nelson Mandela and other ANC leaders to life in prison.

Vigilantes Kill 21 Youths In Sri Lanka

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — At least 21 Sinhalese youths were shot and killed, apparently by a vigilante group in retaliation for the slaying of a volunteer soldier, military officials said today.

Authorities found the bodies today 60 miles northeast of Colombo, in central Kandy district. It brought to 39 the number of slain youths found in the area in two days. Those found Thursday had been beheaded or fatally shot, then dumped on a university campus.

Military officials blamed pro-government vigilante groups for both massacres.

The slayings on Wednesday and Thursday were to avenge the death of a volunteer soldier gunned down by two unidentified men on a bicycle, the officials said on condition of anonymity. Edward Nagahawatta, an assistant registrar at the university, was killed inside the campus Wednesday, officials said.

The country's eight universities were closed more than two years ago because of student unrest. The government contends the campuses are a stronghold of the People's Liberation Front, an extremist Sinhalese group that advocates overthrowing the government.

Military officials said on condition of anonymity that the 21 victims were found today around the town of Kandy.

Two bodies were discovered in the main bus terminal in Kandy, 15 were found in Geliyawa village and the remaining four, in Mahiyawa village, officials said.

Elsewhere, five people were killed in southern Sri Lanka, the government said without elaboration.

Human rights groups say the military and vigilante groups routinely kill sympathizers of the Sinhalese militants. The government denies the charge.

Opposition Leader Escapes Safely As Noriega's Troopers Stage Raid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Soldiers stormed the building where opposition leader Guillermo Endara was holding a hunger strike, but a colleague said he was safely spirited away before the raid.

A nearby resident said the troopers fired tear gas in the raid late Thursday. It came hours after Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who survived a coup attempt Tuesday, told the nation that the government would get tough with its opponents.

Endara, the former opposition presidential candidate, "is now in a safe place," a colleague, Willie Cochez, said later Thursday. He would not elaborate.

Endara is in the 16th day of a fast. He wants Panamanians to delay tax payments and boycott government lotteries and casinos, thus depriving the government of needed revenues.

In Noriega's televised speech, he ridiculed Endara's hunger strike and said he had evidence that the United States had planned to install Endara as president. Noriega annulled May 7 national balloting that international observers said Endara was winning by a 3-1 margin.

Noriega compared the coup attempt with the failed U.S.-backed Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in 1961 and said he would propose a package of "war laws" dealing with national security.

Brandishing a rifle given him by supporters and quoting a Spanish proverb, Noriega promised "blows for the undecided, lead for the enemy and silver for the friend" in a speech from Santiago, 150 miles west of Panama City.

A resident living near the opposition office where Endara had been staying said two truckloads of soldiers surrounded the block, stopped traffic and then entered the building, apparently looking for Endara.

Journalists were kept 200 yards away from the scene.

Associated Press photographer John Hopper was hit on the head and his equipment was confiscated. The wound required stitches. Equipment also was taken from a cameraman for an American television network.

The Associated Press

Cochez would not say how Endara managed to leave the offices without being captured by troops.

Security forces were at the building throughout much of the day. When reinforcements arrived, eight gunmen in civilian clothes fired in the air outside Endara's office, dispersing scores of supporters.

Earlier, members of the Defense Forces dressed in civilian clothes entered the building and arrested two people. They held everybody inside for three hours.

Ten rebels died and 23 people, including three members of Noriega's general staff, were arrested when troops loyal to the government crushed the revolt, the government said.

Calling the coup attempt another Bay of Pigs, Noriega said the United States "had left in the lurch those it had bribed."

He said American troops from the Southern Command military installations along the Panama Canal tried to block loyal forces from coming to his rescue when soldiers took him hostage in the Defense Forces headquarters building.

"They should not be hypocritical," Noriega said referring to the United States. "They were involved."

In Washington, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said the rebels contacted U.S. military officials in Panama and requested possible blockage of routes leading to the headquarters building. He said, however, President Bush never gave the orders to block the routes.

The United States has used political and economic pressure to force Noriega from his post as chief of the Defense Forces since February 1988, when he was indicted in Florida on drug trafficking charges.

Noriega denies the allegations and says the U.S. is trying to back off 1977 treaties that give his country control of the Panama Canal in 1999.

Dressed in civilian clothes and wearing a Panama hat, the general said in the speech the "war laws" would boost the economy, benefit the people and "take away the privileges of the traitors."

In a reference to the jubilation that overtook government offices during the coup attempt, Noriega urged government employees to list "traitors" in their ranks.

"Public employees who are not nationalists must be fired so we can give those jobs to worthy men," he said. "A public official who does not fire the traitors is himself a traitor."

Questions persisted about whether the rebel soldiers killed died during the conflict or later. Nine of the 10 who died were officers.

The government has said only that they died in the coup attempt.

Justice Minister Named

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — President Virgilio Barco named a new justice minister to lead Colombia's crackdown on drug traffickers after they sent death threats to the previous official and reportedly warned other candidates for the job.

His government also announced plans Thursday for a referendum on whether suspected drug traffickers should be extradited to the United States.

Late Thursday, two bombs exploded at a supermarket and a bank in Bogota, injuring two people, police said. The explosions were believed part of the traffickers' violent response to the government's unprecedented 7-week-old crackdown on drugs.

Since Aug. 23, when cocaine chiefs declared a "total war" against the government, traffickers have been blamed for 148 bombings that have killed 10 people and wounded 165.

A government spokesman said Roberto Salazar Manrique, former treasury official and deputy director of the national bank, accepted the job as justice minister.

But five people, including three government officials, turned down the post after receiving death threats from drug traffickers, according to Colombian news reports.

White House Sees Coup As First 'Crisis' Lesson

By Terence Hunt THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration, viewing the Panamanian uprising as "our first bloodletting," says it learned some lessons for future crises, as Congress conducts its own post-mortem of the U.S. response to the coup attempt.

"I hope we will have learned some things from this and be a little better next time," a senior administration official said Thursday. But the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, refused to say whether the administration regretted not intervening militarily in the effort to topple Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega.

The official said he did not want to tip his hand about what the United States might do if another coup is attempted.

As the administration defended itself against bitter criticism for not intervening, Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman David Boren, D-Okla., said his panel and the Senate Armed Services Committee are investigating the administration's handling of the coup.

"We're going to get to the bottom of this," including the question of whether Panamanian rebels offered to release Noriega to U.S. officials during the four- or five-hour period they had him in custody, Boren said.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., disputed the administration's assertion that the rebels refused to release Noriega, saying, "They (the rebels) told the U.S. officers that they were holding Noriega captive, and requested U.S. assistance to take custody of Noriega and remove him to the United States."

However, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said the rebels refused in a "face-to-face contact" with a U.S. military officer to turn over Noriega during the coup attempt.

A variety of officials said Tuesday's coup effort was doomed by a series of false assumptions and mistaken judgments by the rebels as well as by the American forces' lack of flexibility.

One U.S. official said American forces in Panama were prepared for any contingency — "from the maximum all the way to the minimum." But the official said constraints were placed on Gen. Maxwell Thurman of the Southern Command, who assumed his duties in Panama just two days before the insurrection.

The senior administration official, asked if the White House wished it had done things differently, replied, "Yeah, a few things."

"This is our first bloodletting, if you will, first real time of kind of a crisis operation," the official said. "And every administration has a shakedown in one way or another and we've learned some things about our operation that we need to improve. And we'll improve them."

In particular, the official said, "We had strings of intelligence coming in that were not always cross-checked, coordinated and so on with the time pressure and the way it happened."

For example, the official said there was confusion within the administration Tuesday about whether the rebels had offered to turn Noriega over to the United States.

The official said the misunderstanding, between CIA officers and U.S. military officials, occurred because "there was a summary of this conversation (with the rebels) and it said, 'We won't turn Noriega over' and what somebody read it as was 'They want to turn Noriega over.'"

Nevertheless, the administration was adamant that the rebels refused to release Noriega to U.S. officials. Cheney said it was "hogwash" to suggest otherwise.

One official, speaking anonymously, said if the rebels had delivered Noriega to a U.S. military facility, he would have been flown to Florida before nightfall Tuesday to face federal drug charges dating to February 1988.

In the Senate, Helms said that coup leader Maj. Moises Giroldi, had been executed in Panama, adding, "I have received reports from Panama that Noriega personally shot the major."

A State Department source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said U.S. officials are working on the belief that reports of Giroldi's death are "solid information."

"He and at least two others have been shot. The story is they were trying to escape," the source said, adding that the administration officials do not give much credence to allegations of an attempt to escape.

Refugee Train Ends Trip Through East Germany

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HANOVER, West Germany — A train carrying more than 600 East German refugees rolled into West Germany today after a similar exodus had been disrupted for several hours by thousands seeking to board the freedom trains.

The East Germans, chanting "Deutschland!" and shouting thanks, left Warsaw, Poland, by train Thursday night on a trip via their Communist homeland and arrived in Laatzen, a Hanover suburb, nearly 14 hours later.

The 633 refugees, who were accompanied on the train by West German envoys, cheered, whistled and hugged each other when a local politician welcomed them as "my countrymen."

They looked well-rested and more relaxed than those who arrived earlier in the week from Czechoslovakia.

West German officials and Red Cross workers readied temporary housing and other forms of care.

Those aboard had crowded West Germany's Embassy in Warsaw in hopes of joining the East Germans who have made their way through Hungary, Czechoslovakia or Poland since mid-September. More than 47,000 East Germans have left since then.

West German radio and television reported that as soon as the train left, about a dozen more East Germans entered West Germany's Embassy in Warsaw in hopes of gaining permission to go West. They crossed into Poland legally in private cars, Hessischer Rundfunk radio said.

The ZDF television network said the train's original route was apparently changed to avoid a repeat of earlier riots at the East German city of Dresden, where East Germans tried to board trains to the West as they passed through.

Passenger Lutz Kopecky, 29, said East German police and state security agents lined the route Thursday. Stations were empty and the train never slowed or stopped before reaching West Germany, he said in an interview.

Another 386 East Germans who left via Hungary reached West German soil Thursday, border police said.

The journey comes as East Germany, deeply embarrassed by the exodus, begins two days of celebrations marking the communist country's 40th anniversary.

Among those flying in to attend the festivities is Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who is expected to ask East Germany's aging hard-line leaders how they plan to handle the westward flight that is draining much of the East German's work force.

West German radio said some people reportedly were "gravely injured" when East German police in Dresden prevented people from boarding trains heading West late Wednesday and early Thursday. Also, 150 injuries and 80 arrests reportedly occurred during a demonstration Monday in Leipzig by 20,000 East Germans.

The figures were cited at a prayer service in an East Berlin church late Thursday, the radio said without elaborating.

Poland contributed two extra cars to a six-car East German train sent to carry the refugees to West Germany, which grants them automatic citizenship and helps them start new lives.

Julia Lange said the train stopped shortly after crossing from Poland to East Germany and officials boarded.

"We were informed that we were being expelled and they collected our passports," said Ms. Lange, 30.

The freedom trains that left Czechoslovakia brought 7,600 East Germans to the West Thursday.

In Prague, 200 East Germans left the West German Embassy late Thursday and headed home with promises from their government of legal emigration within months. Sources said about 10 East Germans still were inside the mission.

Czechoslovak police used riot police to seal off the embassy from more East Germans. East Germany restricted travel to Czechoslovakia earlier this week.

There was sympathy among Czechoslovaks for the East German refugees. The hard-line Prague government has also refused democratic reform.

"Of course they are running away," a 40-year-old Czechoslovak said on condition of anonymity. "They want freedom."

"I am sure this will have some impact on our country ... but it will take some time because our leadership is very conservative."

East Germans began making their way west through Hungary in May when that communist country removed obstacles from its border with Austria. Since Hungary officially opened its borders Sept. 10, about 32,000 East Germans have used that route to West Germany.

About 7,000 more East Germans arrived in West Germany last weekend from Warsaw and Prague, where they had taken refuge in West German embassies.

Police in Dresden reportedly used clubs and water cannons to drive thousands of people back from the main railroad station during the exodus from Czechoslovakia.

"It was a horrible scene," said a woman in Dresden who asked not to be identified because she feared reprisals. "People were trying desperately to get to the platforms and the tracks, but the police forced them back."

Masses of regular police, secret police and workers' groups organized by the Communist Party dispersed the crowds and sealed off the stations.

East Germany insisted the trains pass through its territory, rather than crossing into West Germany from Czechoslovakia, so it could formally declare the refugees expelled.

Gorbachev Joins East Germany In Marking 40th Anniversary

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev arrived today to help East Germany celebrate its 40th anniversary, while hundreds of East German refugees joined nearly 50,000 others who have fled West in the past month.

Communist authorities also closed three major border crossings between East and West Berlin, and West German television showed new clashes in Dresden between police and protesters hoping to join the exodus of refugees.

Gorbachev arrived from Moscow to join other East bloc leaders for a two-day show of unity, despite fractured relations over the refugee flight and East Germany's reluctance to try the type of political reforms he has championed.

Gorbachev was welcomed by East German leader Erich Honecker at East Berlin's Schoenefeld airport, the state news agency ADN said. Gorbachev then visited war memorials before addressing Communist Party dignitaries.

Also today, a train brought 633 East German refugees from Poland to West Germany, the latest in more than 47,000 citizens who have fled this tightly controlled society to the West since mid-September.

West Germany's ZDF television network said demonstrators threw stones at security forces in Dresden late Thursday, although the disturbances were not as massive as on Wednesday night.

Late Wednesday, 10,000 young, would-be refugees battled riot police at Dresden's train station, just before one of the trains taking East German refugees to the West was to pass by. The clash left dozens of windows broken.

There were efforts to avoid further embarrassment to the East Berlin government. Authorities closed three of the nine busiest border crossings into the city, turning back hundreds of tourists and West Germans since Thursday, said Werner Thronicker, a spokesman the West Berlin government.

East Berlin, the site of anniversary events, was bedecked with the fixtures of socialist celebration. Huge red banners were draped from the Communist Party headquarters, reviewing stands were set for parades and flags hung from public buildings and apartment blocks.

Kiosks were plastered with posters showing construction workers and young mothers appreciating accomplishments of the postwar republic, founded on Oct. 7, 1949. But the image of the East Germans who fled to the West through Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland was broadcast nationwide by West German television.

And on Thursday, as the ailing 77-year-old Honecker prepared for festivities meant to show the virtues of strict doctrine, thousands of would-be emigrants clashed with police in Dresden.

Witnesses said police used water cannon and truncheons to disperse those who hoped to jump aboard trains carrying East German refugees westward from Prague.

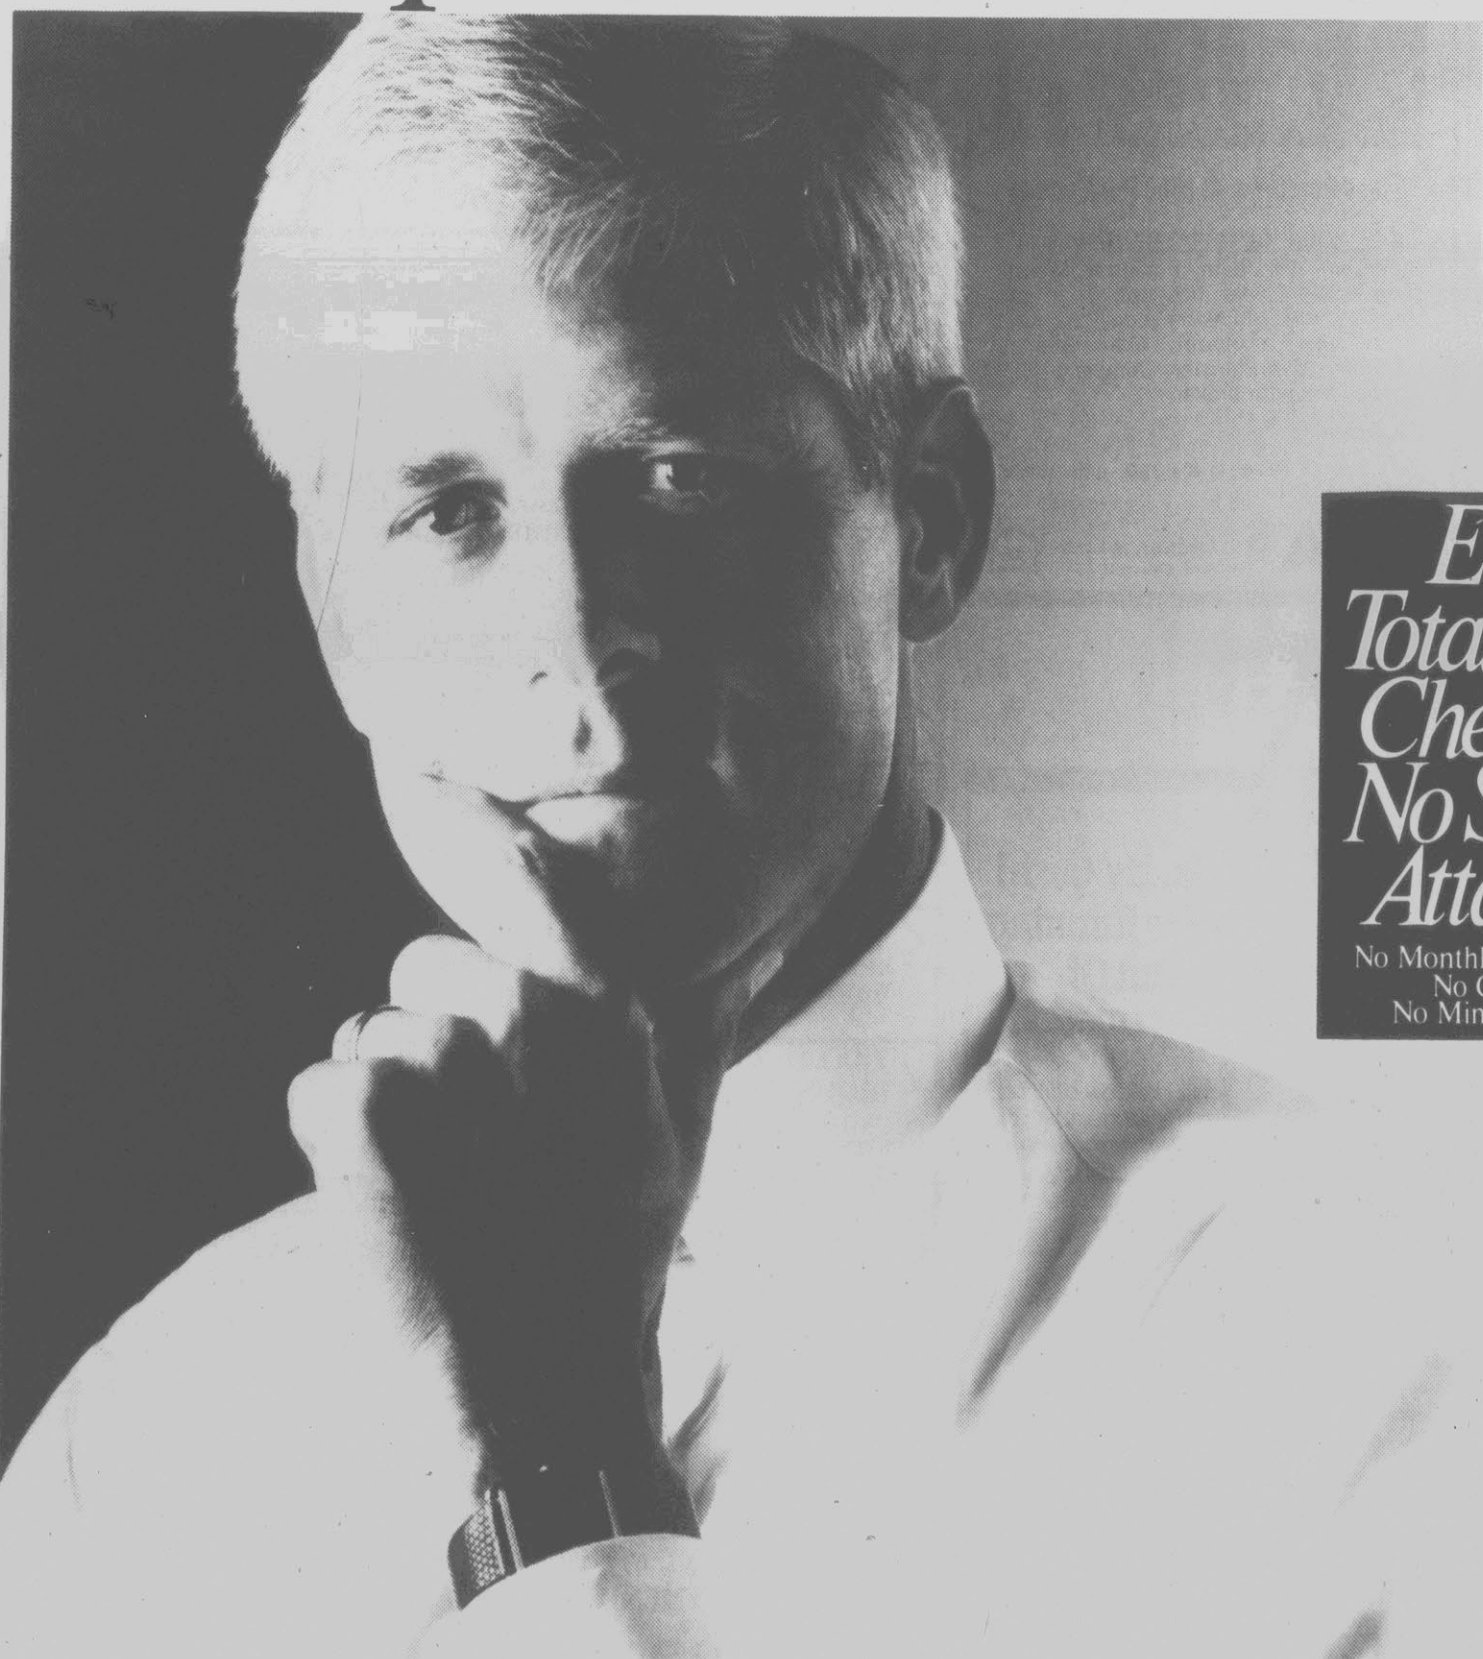

Those who left said 40 years had created country ahead of its East bloc neighbors in consumer goods but behind in the less tangible measures of opportunity.

They described a nation where Communist Party loyalty determined education and employment, censorship concealed truth, and police supervision was a part of daily life. Many hid from television cameras, fearing relatives left behind would be harassed.

"I cannot say I was ever wanting for food or things, that's why it was so hard" said a young East Berlin woman who reached the West German Embassy in Warsaw with her 2-year-old daughter. "But there was nothing else, just limits."
