Dow Falls, Then Bounces Back

By Mariann Caprino
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Stock prices bounced like a ping pong ball today in a crush of trading so heavy that it was difficult to get an accurate reading on the Dow Jones industrial average, which gyrated wildly.

The key Dow index was up 16.19 points at 2,585.45 at 10:30 a.m., with some issues posting impressive gains, after an initial dive of about 65 points.

Volume was even heavier than on Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987, according to Richard Torrenzano, the New York Stock Exchange's chief spokesman. About 131 million shares were traded in the first hour, about equal to the typical trading for an entire day.

In spite of the Dow Jones industrials' gain, declining issues outnumbered advancing ones by about a 7-to-1 margin in the overall market.

Initial Dow readings were complicated because computers were running behind the heavy trading, and some stocks in the index had not begun trading because of a crush of sell orders. But 29 of the 30 Dow component stocks had opened by 10 a.m., Torrenzano said.

Investor Sees 'Great Buying Opportunity'

By Frances Horton Arrington
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Charlie W. Harris of the Mount Pleasant community outside Greenville is planning to take advantage of today's activity stemming from the stock market's Friday the 13th scare.

On Friday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 190.58 points or 6.91 percent to 2,569.26, erasing nearly $200 billion in stocks' paper value.

Harris, like many other investors, was quickly reminded of the October 1987 crash when stocks plummeted 508 points, the largest drop ever in points. He said he's not going to make the same mistake this time that he made then.

"I didn't panic and sell like some did, but I let them all fall and didn't buy a thing," Harris said from his broker's office this morning. "That's where I made my mistake."

Harris was at the office of Interstate-Johnson Lane on South Evans Street first thing this morning conferring with brokers about his stocks.

"I think this is a great buying opportunity today. I think it (the market) will fall this morning," Harris said. "I've already placed my orders below the market, so when it gets there I can pick it up."

"We're getting through the initial tremor of the opening," said Eugene Peroni, an analyst with Janney Montgomery Scott in Philadelphia. "The market is holding up pretty well; it's not showing real signs of breaking."

But Peroni also cautioned that scores of other Big Board stocks did not begin trading at the opening bell.

"The market's real test will come later this afternoon when everything is opened and has had a chance to trade on a normalized basis," Peroni said.

The Dow Jones average had plunged 190.58 points on Friday in the worst decline since the Black Monday crash of 1987.

Sell orders had been accumulating over the weekend and stock futures contracts were at a discount to stocks, giving an incentive for investors to sell stocks and buy futures.

Stock index futures plunged at the opening in Chicago, creating a further drag on the stock market in New York. But the futures later moved into plus territory, helping the stock market recoup its losses.

Overseas, where markets reopened for the first time since Wall Street's Friday the 13th scare, declines registered from moderate to large.

At midday in London, the Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-stock index was down 195.8 points, or 8.8 percent, at 2,038.1 in heavy volume. Prices failed to sustain a morning rally sparked by bargain-hunting.

But dealers said trading was less feverish than during the 1987 market

Storm Kills 2, Spawns Tornadoes

By Sue Fahlgren
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GALVESTON, Texas — Hurricane Jerry blustered ashore with 80 mph winds, flinging a half-dozen twisters inland, blacking out thousands of homes and killing two people before quickly losing much of its punch today.

Authorities urged thousands of people in Louisiana to seek higher ground as the late-season storm moved north through east Texas. More tornadoes and up to 5 inches of rain were possible, the National Weather Service said.

By 5 a.m. the storm was downgraded to a tropical depression with winds at 35 mph. It was centered was 35 miles east-southeast of Lufkin, near 31.2 degrees north latitude and 94.2 degrees west longitude. It was moving northeast at 17 mph and was expected to continue in that direction and weaken further.

As the hurricane blew into Galveston from the Gulf of Mexico, it uprooted trees, smashed windows and tore several balconies from an apartment building, but damage overall was limited.

"Whole balconies came down. It just ripped them up from the bolts," said resident John Harsh.

The bodies of a 24-year-old man, who worked for the U.S. Coast Guard, and his 2-year-old daughter were found on rock jetties on Galveston Island's protective seawall, Galveston police said. It appeared that they had been in a car that was swept off the seawall, officers said.

The seawall was erected after Galveston was devastated in a 1900 hurricane in which 6,000 or more people died. It was the deadliest hurricane on record in the United States.

A tornado spun off by Jerry damaged several buildings in the town of Orange near the Louisiana line, and another twister ripped the door off a Galveston fire truck and damaged the fire station and a shed at the airport.

Tornadoes or funnel clouds were sighted around Galveston Bay in Hitchcock, Baytown, Beach City, Webster and a nearby spot northeast of Texas Highway 6. Tornado damage generally was confined to roofs and power lines.

Two tornadoes were spotted early today in inland Polk County, damaging some houses and barns, said sheriff's spokeswoman Genace Chapman.

At least 52,000 homes and businesses lost power, most of them in Galveston Island, said Houston Lighting & Power spokeswoman Graham Painter. But by 5 a.m. today, 80 percent of the power was restored. Phone service to much of the island also was disrupted.

The center of the hurricane made landfall Sunday evening, with sustained winds of 80 mph and 100 mph gusts, according to the National

Countdown Resumes

By Howard Benedict

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A countdown suspended five days by a failed engine computer resumed today for Tuesday's launch of space shuttle Atlantis with the nuclear-powered Galileo probe bound for the planet Jupiter.

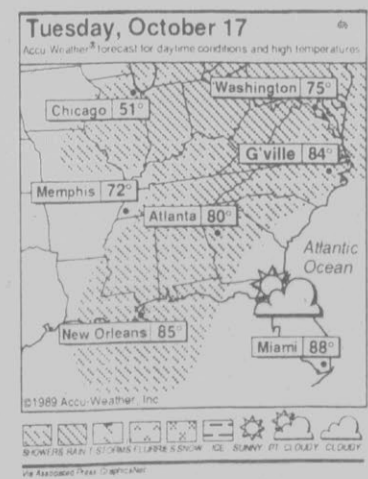

Liftoff of Atlantis and its crew of five astronauts was set for a 26-minute period starting at 12:57 p.m. Tuesday. That's when Earth and Jupiter will be aligned properly for Galileo to orbit the giant planet in 1995 after a six-year voyage.

The weather forecast had a 70 percent chance of favorable conditions at the planned launch time.

Shuttle managers on Sunday gave the go-ahead to restart the countdown after assessing the readiness of the shuttle and replacing the bad

Freed Leaders Resume Struggle

By David Crary
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOWETO, South Africa — Anti-apartheid leader Walter Sisulu, resuming the struggle on his first day of freedom in 26 years, told an emotional crowd he's confident he'll see the day a black man can become president.

The government freed Sisulu and seven other aging anti-apartheid leaders at dawn Sunday and the seven who belong to the African National Congress held the guerrilla movement's first news conference in South Africa since it was banned in 1960.

"Our determination has never been weakened by our long years of imprisonment," said Sisulu, a former ANC secretary general and the country's best-known black leader after the still-imprisoned Nelson Mandela.

Some among the hundreds of ANC supporters packing the church hall where the news conference was held wept as the freed prisoners, raising clenched fists, led them in singing "God Bless Africa," the anthem of the anti-apartheid movement.

Sisulu said the seven, aged 60 to 80, were confident they would live to see "a government that includes blacks ... a democratic method where a black man can become president, or a white man can become president."

Today, newspapers across the political spectrum said the release had ushered in a new era that will be full of dramatic change and uncertainty. "The country enters a new phase in its history," the pro-government Citizen said in an editorial. "But it is not going to be an easy transition ... (and) nobody knows what kind of new country will emerge."

The Sowetan, the country's largest black-oriented daily, cautioned that the freed black leaders face a daunting task: "that of uniting the democratic forces in this country and transforming it into a non-racial democracy."

Business Day, the country's leading financial daily, concurred.

"This is only the start of a long and complex process," wrote editor Ken Owen. "What is said by Sisulu and his colleagues this week will be as important for creating a negotiating climate as President (F.W.) de Klerk's bold move in ordering their freedom."

De Klerk announced the unconditional release of the eight Tuesday as part of his attempt to improve conditions for negotiating a new constitution that will extend political rights to blacks.

But he envisions some arrangement under which whites would retain veto power over major decisions. Under apartheid, the black majority has no voice in national affairs.

The releases are viewed as tacit acknowledgement by the government of the ANC's influence and popularity.

Sisulu, 77, told the news conference that he had felt pressure building for his release and "that sooner or later they would have to give in ... It was not possible to despair because the spirit of the people outside was too great."

Even relatively conservative black leaders have said they will reject any negotiations with the government unless the ANC is legalized and its jailed leaders freed.

Sisulu and his colleagues said the ANC, the largest group fighting the white-led government, will continue its military campaign and reject negotiations until the government

Mort Hurst Outeats Moon Pie Competitors

He went. He ate. He conquered.

Mort Hurst of Williamston traveled to Oneonta, Ala., last week and made mincemeat of the competition in Saturday's Moon Pie eating contest. He shattered the world record of 15 double-deckers in 10 minutes by stuffing 16½ into his gut, along with a full gallon of water.

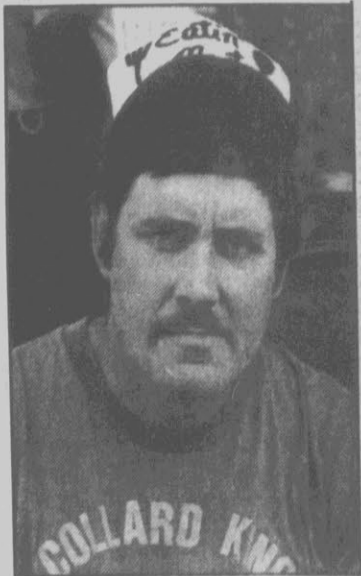

It wasn't easy. In fact, Hurst says, "It was worse than terrible."

But he did it. And he outdistanced his closest competition by a full 5½ pies.

"They were a little thicker than I figured," he said. "More marshmallow. They blew up inside my stomach real bad."

"It was the toughest thing I've ever done in my life," he added. "The pain was so bad, I just had to clinch my fists and wait for it to pass."

In fact, he said, he hurt too badly to give a local reporter his name. "I just forgot it," he said. "I tried to look at my T-shirt so I could

Zoning Issues On Agenda For City Planning Board

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall.

The commission will consider a request from David A. Evans Sr. to rezone a 193 acres south of Red Banks Road near the Lynndale subdivision. The request originally came before the board for consideration two months ago but was withdrawn.

Two other rezoning requests are scheduled for discussion during the meeting. Aldridge and Southerland Inc. have requested rezoning of 16 acres at the intersection of N.C. 11 and S.R. 1131 from low-density residential to highway commercial and office and institutional use.

A.J. Speight, Luise S. Elks and

Estelle S. Eastwood have requested an increase in zoning on a 1.5-acre tract off the western right of way of U.S. 13 and N.C. 11 to highway commercial use.

The planning board has also scheduled discussions on the following items:

- Three preliminary subdivision plats.
- Pawn shops.
- Appointments to the committee studying the Greenville-Winter-ville-Pitt County extraterritorial jurisdiction.
- Annexation of lots within Tucker Estates, Bedford and Westhaven subdivisions.
- Status reports on the comprehensive planning process and the zoning ordinance update.

New Start In 1984 Slaying

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

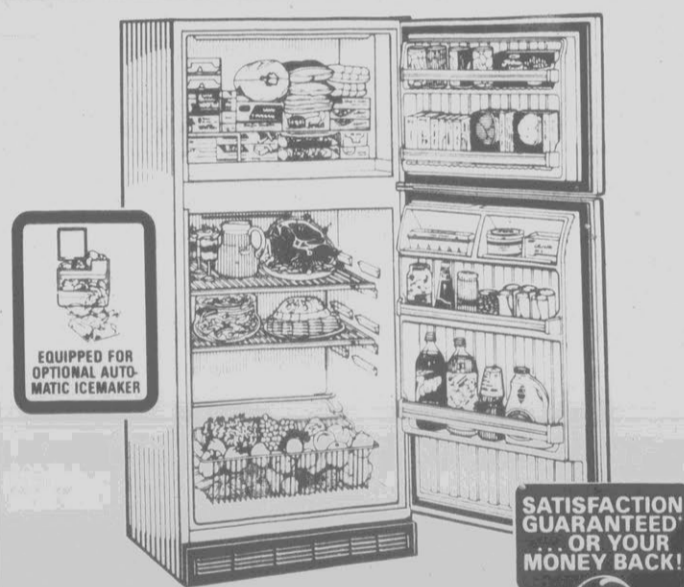

WINSTON-SALEM — Authorities say they are starting from scratch in investigating the 1984 slaying of a Winston-Salem copy editor rather than trying to rebuild the case against a suspect whose conviction was overturned.

Four detectives and a supervisor in the Winston-Salem Police Department have been assigned to the Deborah Sykes case, and sources in Forsyth County told The Winston-Salem Journal investigators have submitted samples for possible genetic analysis and comparison with Darryl Hunt, who was convicted in 1985 in the rape and stabbing of Mrs. Sykes.

Proponents of genetic testing say that it can identify an attacker in a rape case almost to a certainty by comparing a person's DNA patterns with samples of seminal fluids found on the victim.

Farm Scene

By Mitch Smith
 COUNTY EXTENSION DIRECTOR

The tobacco season of 1989 will long be remembered as one of the most difficult of recent memory. Excessive rainfall, decisions on leaching adjustments, and a new disease called "Target Spot," are just a few examples of the obstacles encountered during the past eight months. Among the many problem areas for producers, none was impacted more by the 1989 season than transplant production.

Obtaining quality transplants is a major goal of the tobacco farmer. In many ways, the quality of the plants used in transplanting determines the quality of leaf sold on the warehouse floor. This past spring found many plant beds barren and many growers seeking alternative sources of tobacco seedlings. The question so often asked, "Why is there so much uncertainty in producing good quality tobacco plants?"

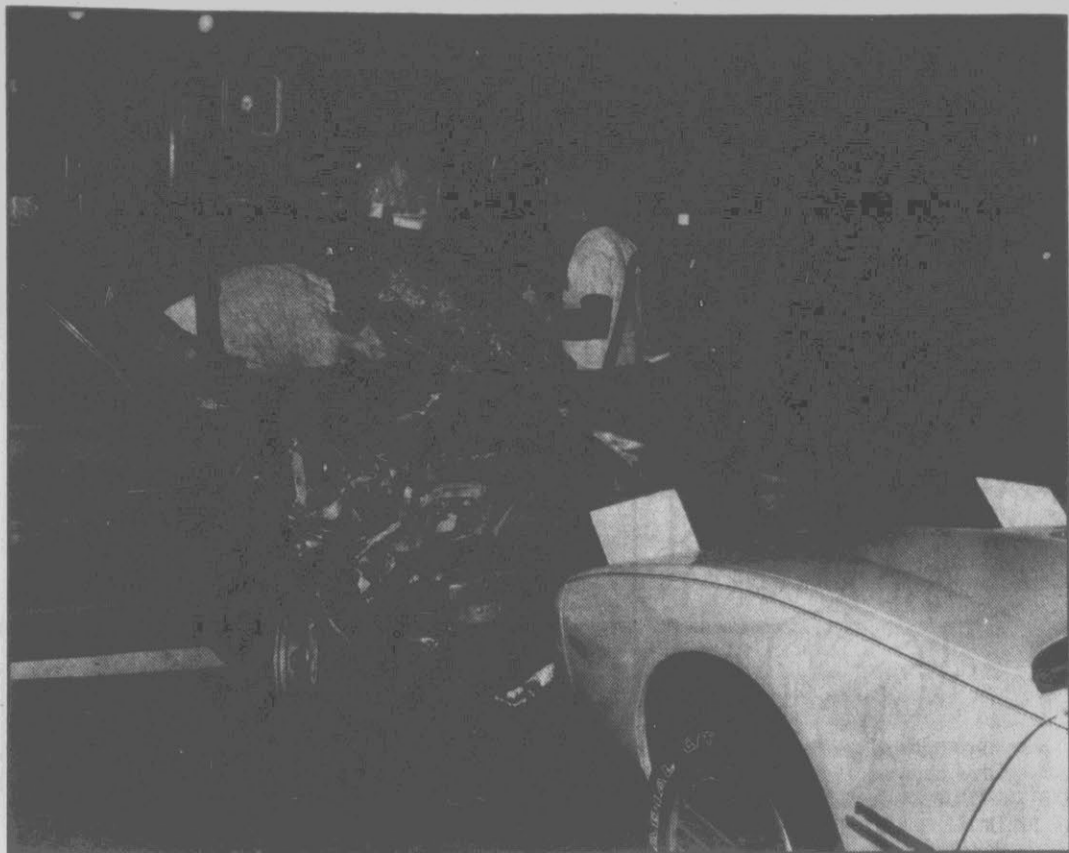

Plant production represents the most primitive area of production for the tobacco farmer. Despite the introduction of clipping in 1984, the practice of producing transplants has remained relatively unchanged. Most Pitt County plant beds are five yards wide and no one is absolutely sure from one season to the next if plants will be available. Most of the problems associated with conventional plant production is linked to water management. In 1989, the number of Pitt County farmers irrigating their plant beds after seeding increased from 45 to 82 percent. Irrigation after seeding assures sufficient moisture for germination is present in the bed area. Equally important to providing moisture during seeding is proper drainage. If there is any lesson to be learned from 1989, it is the need to prepare a "high crown" for the seedlings when the bed area is being constructed. This step helps eliminate problems encountered with excessive moisture. Tobacco on the plant bed is similar to tobacco in the field in that it does not tolerate well excessive moisture.

As we approach the final selling days of the tobacco season, many growers will reflect back on 1989 and consider ways to improve their operations. More than likely, transplant production will be an area heavily scrutinized. In an effort to help growers decide on the best method of obtaining quality tobacco plants for the 1990 season, the Agriculture Extension Office will present a seminar, "Where Are You Going to Get Your Tobacco Plants for 1990?" The seminar will be at the Tar Landing Restaurant, Greenville, on Nov. 7. Contact the Pitt County Extension Office, 1717 W. Fifth St., telephone 830-6361 for more information.

Stocks Plummet Across Europe

By Cotten Timberlake
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Stock prices plummeted across Europe today in their first response to Wall Street's Friday the 13th plunge, but then recovered a bit on a better-than-expected opening in New York later in the day.

Trading was disrupted in several European financial centers, as the price declines triggered European versions of "circuit breakers" and prompted authorities in some countries to step in and try to contain the damage.

European traders reported price declines of 3 percent to 15 percent.

Wall Street's big drop Friday came after the European markets had closed for the weekend and the Tokyo market's relatively calm response earlier Monday did not reassure European investors.

Share prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange tumbled 13 percent, with the German Stock Index plunging 203.56 points, or 12.8 percent, to 1385.72.

It was the steepest fall on the Frankfurt stock market ever and brought the index to its lowest level since May 29, when it stood at 1385.57.

London's Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100-stock index rallied by more than 50 points in half an hour to stand at 2,113.7 in late afternoon, down 120.2 or 5.4 percent from Friday's close. The improvement began when the New York market opened with smaller-than-feared price drops.

Earlier today, share prices failed to sustain a morning rally sparked by bargain-hunting and the 100-share index fell by up to 198.1 points, or about 9 percent, as investors became nervous about Wall Street's approaching opening.

Volume was a heavy 501.6 million shares by midday, compared with 249 million shares at the same time Friday.

On Wall Street, stock prices bounced like a ping pong ball. The Dow Jones industrial average was up 16.19 points at 2,585.45 at mid-morning, with some issues posting impressive gains, after an initial dive of about 65 points.

Nigel Lawson, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, said the British slump was not surprising, and he saw no reason for it to have an impact on the economy.

In Tokyo, where trading ended before the London market opened, the Nikkei Stock Average fell 647.33 points, or 1.8 percent, to close at 34,468.69 Monday.

But official trading was delayed indefinitely on the Brussels exchange and for 30 minutes in Frankfurt because of an excess of sell orders, stock exchange officials said.

A spokesman for the West German central bank, the Bundesbank, said, "We're observing the situation very intensively. We've been in constant contact with the affected countries." He requested anonymity.

computer that forced a postponement of the launch, scheduled originally for last Thursday.

"We retested the computer and everything looks fine," test director Mike Leinbach told reporters.

Astronaut Donald Williams, who commands Atlantis' crew, praised technicians who worked around the clock for four days to make the computer swap, saying they "did a super job."

Launch preparations were taking place under the tightest security ever for a shuttle flight because of threats from anti-nuclear activists opposed to a launch carrying 49.4 pounds of radioactive plutonium-238. The plutonium will provide electricity to operate Galileo's systems.

Members of the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice vowed to try to infiltrate the launch area to stop the launch, arguing that an accident like the explosion of the shuttle Challenger could spread the radioactive material over inhabited areas.

Large areas of the Kennedy Space Center were closed to the public and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mobilized more than 200 armed guards and helicopter and boat patrols.

A federal judge last week rejected the activists' lawsuit to halt the launch. The groups appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington on Friday.

The astronauts are to release the $1.5 billion Galileo from Atlantis' cargo bay about 6½ hours after they reach orbit. An hour later, a rocket motor will start the 6,700-pound craft on a roundabout trip that will cover 2.4 billion miles to Jupiter.

In December 1995, a 737-pound probe released from Galileo is to plunge into Jupiter's cloud layers and take the first samples of the Jovian atmosphere.

The main Galileo craft will enter an orbit around the planet, and its cameras and 10 scientific instruments will gather information on temperatures, magnetic fields, radiation, cloud characteristics and gravity.

Galileo also will study Jupiter for clues to the formation of the solar system.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

An Off Year

The Politicos Keep On Going

In terms of county, state and national politics this is about as much of an off year as you have.

County, state and national campaigns will be reserved for 1990 when candidates for the Legislature, county elected positions and the United States Senate will seek to attract the votes of Tar Heels. It will be still another two years after that before we consider another president, not to mention a new governor. 1989 is reserved for municipal elections, which is not to minimize their importance in our chain of governments.

Given all that, the state politicians still come for such events as the North Tar River Fellowship Club gathering, the Legislative Appreciation Day and the Ed Warren Golf Tournament for legislators and area business and civic leaders.

The state candidates for next year's primary and election have yet to declare but potential candidates are around.

At last week's events, former State Sen. Bo Thomas was working the crowd and letting all Democrats know that he expects to be a candidate to unseat GOP Sen. Jesse Helms. Thomas is a Hendersonville businessman. State Sen. Marc Basnight, a Dare County Democrat, let it be known he is highly interested in the First Congressional District seat now held by Rep. Walter B. Jones.

Basnight didn't say definitely he was going to contest Jones, but he is interested in the congressional seat.

There were many other legislators, public officials and judicial figures at the events, of course. Some might be thinking about state or national office. Most probably aren't.

Even in an off year and even if you aren't seeking votes, a political event is a gathering of people. If you are in politics, you go. There might be something bigger ahead in political ventures.

Tanked

Soon, Less Will Be More

Less will be more when a major Greenville utilities water tank project is completed.

Bids for $2.38 million in water tank construction will provide for the building of two new tanks and the demolition of six tanks which have served the city's water needs for a number of years. The elevated tanks which will disappear include:

- Greenville Boulevard near 14th Street, built in 1963.
- Greenville Boulevard near the new Wal-Mart, built in 1982.
- Chestnut Street, built in 1935.
- North Greene Street, built in 1953.
- South Washington Street, built in 1935.
- Jarvis Street, built in 1935.

Only a tank in the industrial area will remain and that will be considered in providing an industrial water supply.

The six demolished tanks — many of them neighborhood landmarks of many years standing — will be replaced by only two tanks. One of them will be a 1.5 million gallon elevated tank to be built on a tract of land behind Wal-Mart. The other will be on the Greenville Boulevard site near 14th Street.

It seems to be radical surgery for the city's water storage system but officials say the larger and higher tanks will provide more efficient service and better water pressure.

So be it, but many a person who grew up in the shadows of the old storage tanks will see a part of their youth passing.

An Afrikaner Example For Israel

Stephen Rosenfeld

WASHINGTON — Lights, camera, fantasy: Yitzhak Shamir, prime minister of Israel, is saying, "Most Israelis and Palestinians are tired of confrontation and wish to speak to one another about the road of prosperity and justice for all. The search for peaceful solutions is the key to a safe future for Israel, and I make an appeal to all Israelis to become part of this process."

Electrifying, right? Such a statement would transform the bitter Israeli-Palestinian stalemate overnight. It would signal the change in basic attitude essential to reconciliation. It could not fail to stir the further expressions on the Palestinian side that Israelis need in order to take the risks requisite to peace.

Of course Shamir has said nothing like this. But the statement itself is entirely valid. Not only does it represent a statesmanlike vision of which Israel's friends would surely like to believe it was capable. It was in fact spoken just the other day, with suitable geographic emendations, by the leader of a somewhat similarly embattled ethnic community, President F. W. de Klerk of South Africa, who is edging into an uncertain and ragged yet hopeful outreach to his country's "Palestinians," the blacks.

De Klerk's initiatives have to them a lift that leaves Shamir in the glum and invidious position of trailing far behind supposedly benighted, unadaptable South Africa in the crucial category of public peace-seeking.

Important differences exist between the situations of Israel and South Africa. The surest way to antagonize an Israeli has long been to suggest that Israel treats Palestinians in the same racist way that apartheid Pretoria treats blacks. Israelis have not wanted their country even to be mentioned in the same breath with South Africa.

What the two countries unquestionably have shared in the past, however, is an overwhelming reluctance to come to political terms with an alienated and hostile subject population. Specifically, South Africa has denied the claims of black African nationalism and refused to meet with representatives of the African National Congress. Israel has denied the claims of Palestinian nationalism and refused to meet with representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

But compare the leans of the two countries now. The South African government is releasing old ANC prisoners, countenancing ostensibly illegal trips by planeloads of white South African citizens to palaver with ANC officials in exile, and is otherwise seeking ways to ease into negotiations on the country's future with this officially proscribed "terrorist" organization.

Meanwhile Israel is locking up gadfly peacenik Abie Nathan, a citizen who met with PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, for breaking a law — a shameful law for any democratic country to have on its books — forbidding contacts with "terrorist" organizations. Shamir, author of a plan for elections among Palestinians on the West Bank, has gone into acute political contortions to avoid contacts with the very Palestinians whose cooperation is essential to get his own plan off the ground.

There are plenty of good reasons to wonder whether de Klerk will work his way through all the tortuous shifts in thought and policy that a political solution in South Africa demands. But he is thinking in new ways; he is listening to critical voices without dismissing them as traitorous or naive; he is challenging orthodox notions of cultural and racial determinism; he is going beyond racial community to show a glimmer of a sense of national community, and he is taking risks with his political base. Most important, he is moving toward talking with the people whom, he now realizes, he has to talk to in order to protect his community's future. This does not ensure a place in history, but it is what earns respect in politics.

Shamir, sad to say, is on the wrong side of all these questions. To look at the way he struggles to elude the helpful diplomatic hand now being extended to him, however awkwardly, by the United States and Egypt is to bow to the limitations of the man. Shamir, for all of his personal courage and devotion to his people, is in the grip of an irredeemably tragic reading of history. It is an understandable Jewish reading, but it denies him the capacity to recognize the changing circumstances that have led many other Israelis who are no less aware of the Jewish tragedy than he to make a very different calculation of what Israel must do to flourish and survive. It must go the way that, perhaps, South Africa has begun to go.

The Language Of Democracy

I. Roberto Eisenmann Jr.

As we were informed very early on the morning of Oct. 3 that shooting had erupted at command headquarters of the Panamanian Defense Forces, a group of Panamanian exiles met and started making calls to our country. Reports were very confused, but it was clear that a major coup attempt against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega was in progress. The action seemed to be concentrated at headquarters, which led one to assume Noriega was inside, for the headquarters building is not necessarily the most important military garrison. Since troops on the outside were shooting inward, it was clear that this was a battle between loyalists and rebel troops. It was also clear that there was cooperation by U.S. troops, which secured Fort Amador (a joint base), locking in Noriega troops, as well as Fort Clayton, the Bridge of the Americas and the Avenue of the Martyrs.

Then the rebels' first and only communique was read on Radio Exitosa. As we listened, our concern deepened. Normally, plotters in Latin American military institutions make all sorts of promises to draw support from as many constituencies as possible. Typically, they say that the coup is to "restore democracy," "clean up corruption," "respect human rights," "restore justice," "respect the will of the people through clean elections," "protect against foreign ideological penetration," "produce change," and so on.

In this case, the communique, signed by Maj. Moises Giroldi Vega and Capt. Javier Licona, was totally different from the norm. It began by proclaiming a "return to Torrijismo," which in essence meant "no change," just more of the same with different faces. It then said that it would respect the present government — the puppet government installed by Noriega. Democracy was not mentioned once, nor was justice. The communique stated that this was purely a military operation with absolutely no political ties — in other words, a clear disconnection from the people's movement for democracy. It then listed those officers who would be retired, starting with Noriega; it did not include any of his gang.

In essence, this coup would have condemned the people of Panama to "Norieguismo" without Noriega — to a change so that nothing changes.

Of course, the relief of getting rid of Noriega — in Panama, internationally and in the United States — would have been so great that voices of concerned democrats would have been drowned out. The administration in Washington would probably have gone back to business as usual with the Panama narco-military machine, as it would have a fresh face. After all, President Bush said "we have no quarrel with the PDF ... it is Noriega we want out." God help us! we thought; the PDF has proven to any and all objective observers that it is a gang of thugs dressed in U.S. military uniforms with a different shoulder patch. This uniformed gang is incompatible with democracy in Panama. The people of Panama are not struggling for "stability" a la Noriega or a la Giroldi. They are struggling for democracy, which is their traditional form of government and the only true possibility for institutional stability.

When we got final word that the coup had failed, there was — incredibly — a sense of relief. After this "victory," Noriega will have to face harsh realities. He is in a political vacuum, as last spring's election showed in its 3-1 defeat of his candidates. His regime is completely isolated by the international community. His own military is fatally fractured. The coup leaders included the commanders of the units most loyal to Noriega — the crack Special Forces (the unit in charge of headquarters security), the cavalry and the G-2 intelligence unit, which Noriega headed and nurtured for 14 years. As for age group, there were junior officers, mid-level officers and very senior officers — a cross section of the total force.

For those of us who have battled for democracy in Panama for 20 years, this coup attempt was an unexpected bonus with a silver lining. The internal and external pressures will now multiply geometrically, pressing for legitimate democratic changes.

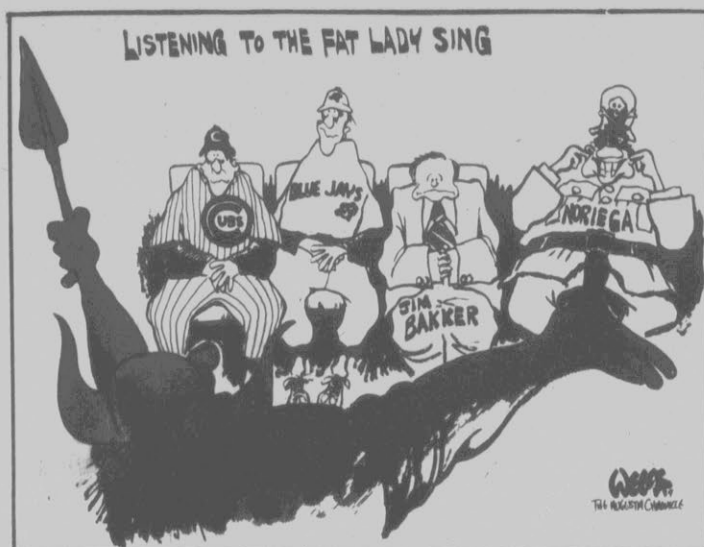

The brief drama of Oct. 3 held many lessons for military and civilians alike, such as: A successful military coup requires the participants' decision to kill or be killed; they cannot depend on U.S. assistance; they must connect with the people's militant non-violent movement, and the objective must be legitimate democracy.

We, the people of Panama, will persist in our democratic struggle, and we will soon prevail over narco-militarism, in spite of our friends.

Eisenmann is the editor of La Prensa, Panama's newspaper of record, which has been closed by Noriega's troops.

Special to the Los Angeles Times

Martin Can't Complain About A Trade Deficit In Japan

Paul O'Connor

During his recent trip to Japan, Gov. Jim Martin was in an unusual position for an American official. He couldn't complain about a trade deficit.

North Carolina is in an uncommon position among the American states in that it actually has a trade surplus with the Japanese.

The surplus results from Japan's 1988 purchases of $700 million of North Carolina products. The bulk came in the agricultural and chemical sectors. The Japanese buy large amounts of American tobacco for use in their blended domestic cigarettes. Japanese imports of American cigarettes are also on the rise, although those purchases are still relatively small.

Martin also could not complain about Japanese investment in North Carolina. According to his prepared remarks, which were made available in Raleigh, Martin repeatedly referred to the $1.5 billion in industrial investment which 80 Japanese companies have made in North Carolina — almost $1 billion of that since 1986 alone.

Analysis

Had he not found reason to complain, or at least make some negative remarks, the Japanese might not have recognized Martin as an American. Trade negotiations between the two nations are regularly marked by American charges that while the Japanese like to sell in America, they prefer to buy at home. That's how the huge trade differential between the two countries developed.

Martin chose not to complain. Instead, he expressed mutual concern. Things are good for both North Carolina and Japan, he said. If trade tensions between the two nations aren't resolved, the good times might end.

"The trade between our country and yours is drastically out of balance. This situation must be rectified if the economic relationship between the United States and Japan — and between North Carolina and Japan — is to continue to grow and prosper," he said.

Martin blamed the Japanese distribution systems for the conflict. Americans regularly complain that the Japanese distribution systems are rigged to make it difficult for foreign producers to sell in Japan.

The Japanese deny that and say that Americans simply don't understand how their country works.

Martin said that whatever the problem, "We request your understanding and dynamic assistance in bringing out the fair playing field our exporters are offered in other markets and generally support in our own market."

During his Japanese stay, Martin announced that he has formed the Japan Business Council in North Carolina to help Japanese investors with problems they may have here. The six-member panel, made up evenly of representatives of American and Japanese companies, will also be asked to make recommendations for helping American exports sell better in Japan.

In Korea, on the second leg of his trip, Martin was in a considerably different position. To date, Korean investment in North Carolina has been very small — only one small furniture plant, he said. Korea also imported $125 million worth of North Carolina products last year.

To the Koreans, Martin stressed that North Carolina has a reliable workforce and generally lower production costs.

Loving A Socialist State — But Reluctantly

Barbara Garson

I hate the capitalist premise that the worst people, acting from the worst motives, will somehow produce the greatest good. I've always yearned to live in a cooperative society. But when I finally visited prosperous, peaceful, semi-socialist Sweden, where people speak earnestly about the common good, I had become almost too cynical to relax and enjoy it.

"Who's putting up these buildings? What are they for?" I asked suspiciously as I joined a crowd of onlookers at a Stockholm construction site.

"We need more apartments," a lady answered innocently. Everyone nodded in cheerful agreement. But I knew that some Nordic Trump or Helmsley was knocking down good houses to build a ghastly tower for foreign millionaires.

Currently there is less than 1 percent unemployment in Sweden. You can see employers lined up at employment centers offering gifts (a book bag, a wallet, etc.) to job applicants. You can also see the beginnings of a Third World immigrant population. "Aren't you worried that they'll let in enough immigrants to lower the wages?" I asked a trade union official.

"They?" he looked perplexed. "They is us. How would that be in the common good?" But I knew that Swedish businessmen must already be plotting to give the country an "anti-inflationary" dose of unemployment.

Considering how naive these Swedish state planners seem to be, I couldn't help noticing that most things in Sweden do work well. For instance, the scenery. Stockholm is a city of islands that presents both the tourist and the regular subway rider (it's elevated in places) with glistening water views at every turn. This will still be true when those new houses are finished. By law in cooperative Sweden, no one, no matter how rich, may block the common view of lake or sea shore.

I was slowly beginning to trust Sweden's ethos of the "common good" when I ran into my cousin Sharon and her husband David, who were there on business. Sharon is a physical therapist and David an engineer who consults in metal cutting.

My cousins agreed that Stockholm was clean, safe and beautiful. "And they know what they're doing in metal," David acknowledged. But he'd hate to live there because of the taxes.

David was thinking of those famous 70 percent tax rates applied to the highest personal incomes. Actually, he'd have a good chance to avoid that bracket. There are effectively no corporate taxes in Sweden, to encourage people to keep money in their business for reinvestment. So as an independent consultant, David might have some room to finagle.

For the most part, though, professionals like him pay high taxes, winding up with only three or four times the income of a factory worker.

"But you don't have to worry — college and medical care are free, your housing is relatively cheap" (I was starting to sound like the Swedish Chamber of Commerce), "if you had another child, you could stay home for a year with 90 percent of your pay, if you lost your job you could..."

"Look, we work for our money," my cousin-in-law accused me.

"But you'd be at least as well off as you are now and..."

"I should pay 70 percent taxes so someone else can stay home?"

"But you'd still have all the things you want. It's just that the other guy would too."

There was no sense arguing. My cousins were too locked into struggle and inequality to consider relaxing in the peaceable kingdom.

Even old-style American hippies, I discovered, may be wound too tight to give up their rugged individualism.

A Swedish bookseller told me excitedly, "The man who discovered Bob Dylan is just down the street."

"What do you mean 'discovered Bob Dylan,'" I answered as he dragged me along, protesting.

Yet inside a shop which appeared to sell nothing, sat Izzy Young, who had indeed discovered Bob Dylan for the early '60s crowd who hung around his Folk Center in Greenwich Village.

For the last 16 years, Izzy, who speaks fluent Swedish with an unapologetic Bronx accent, has been raising his daughter, running the Folklore Centrum and publishing a folk music magazine in Stockholm. The magazine, he told me, has 2,000 subscribers.

"That's pretty good for Sweden," I nodded.

"There's a bunch of anarchists with 4,000 subscribers," Izzy griped, "that own a huge building downtown. The Swedish government pays them for putting out a magazine to overthrow it."

I doubt that anarchist publications of 4,000 circulation receive enough subsidy to buy large downtown buildings. But it is indeed government policy to support periodicals that would fold for lack of advertising.

So, by a Swedish quirk, the leading conservative newspaper, Sydsvenska Dagbladet, that extols the efficiency of market forces, is the largest recipient of government subsidy or "the biggest welfare collector in the country," as the self-supporting Socialist papers love to call it.

But Izzy accepts no subsidies for his folk music magazine and no "handouts" for the concerts and readings he holds at the centrum.

"When Allen Ginsberg gives a reading here, we split the gate. We make maybe $32 each. Back in the States, I've seen Grace Paley reading her heart out for hours for a good cause — for free."

"These Swedish intellectuals, the Swedish Institute pays them 15,000 kroner, they read for 20 minutes."

"But, Izzy," I argued between phone calls from someone trying to reach Judy Collins and another person looking for the original lyrics of a folk ballad — "Izzy, you're a national resource."

"What the hell is government-sponsored folk music?" he growled. "Besides, I've always made it on my own."

I kept on arguing, but I knew how he felt. I'd been invited to Sweden because of my research on how computer automation can be used to increase centralized control of employees, and all week I'd been having subsidized lunches with officials. Frankly, all this VIP treatment from the usual sources of centralized control was undermining my confidence. What kind of nonsense am I writing that a government is feeding me flounder and smiling?

Like Izzy, I'm too wedded to a life of marginality and dissent to relax in the land of herring and harmony.

"Still," Izzy admitted when he introduced his 16-year-old daughter, who played in Swedish day-care centers and learned to speak three languages in Stockholm schools.

The Question

Theo Lippman Jr.

All right, readers, let's see how you do on a question that recently stumped so many college seniors.

When Did Christopher Columbus Discover America?

- A. Oct. 12, 1492.
- B. Oct. 13, 1492.
- C. Second Monday in October.
- D. He didn't.

Did you say "A"? Correct. According to Columbus' records, a lookout on the Pinta, one of Columbus' three ships, sighted an island in the Bahamas at 2 a.m. Oct. 12, 1492. Columbus and his captains went ashore later the same morning.

Did you say "B"? Correct. According to some historians, Columbus discovered America on Monday, Oct. 13, 1492, but because of superstitious fear of the number 13 and because he had a strong religious conviction that his discoveries were biblically ordained, he back-dated his log to Sunday.

Did you say "C"? Correct. In 1968 Congress made Columbus Day a federal holiday. But it decreed that it always be celebrated on the second Monday in October, regardless of the date. Some who favored this made a point of the fact that Columbus had in fact discovered America on the second Monday in October.

Did you say "D"? Correct. It is a well-known fact that Columbus was not the first European to discover America. In 860 Irish monks left Iceland and discovered Greenland. They left Iceland because the Vikings moved in.

In 982 Eric the Red, a Norseman, settled and named Greenland. In 986 Bjarni Herjulfsson, a Viking, sailed along the North American coast as far south as New York, but never went ashore. He didn't like the looks of the Indians. In 1000 Leif Ericsson settled in "Vinland," above Cape Cod, for a year, but didn't like it and returned to Greenland. In 1002 Thorwald, Leif Ericsson's brother, settled in Vinland, and was killed by Indians. "See," Herjulfsson said.

In 1006 Thorfinn Karlsefni settled in North America, but was chased out by the Indians. So the Scandinavians said to heck with it and never came back till about the Civil War. Had they stuck it out, who knows how American history might have been changed. Walter Mondale might be president today. Nahhh. Too far-fetched.

A few other groups claim one of theirs beat Columbus here. This includes West Africans and Poles, and they may be right, but none of those discoveries, including the Vikings', led to anything. The significance of Columbus was that after he discovered America, it stayed discovered. Shortly after 1492, European explorers, treasure seekers and colonizers were routinely sailing to the North and South American shores, which had quickly come to be recognized as "new" continents, not Asia.

Columbus himself, as you know, thought he had discovered a new route to that old continent. He thought Cuba was Japan.

Thank goodness he was wrong! Wouldn't that be a kick in the shins? Two Japans!

State Waterways Suffer Gridlock

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — With more than a quarter of a million boats and 250 marinas, North Carolina is running into gridlock on its waterways and no means to control it.

"If somebody comes to us, owns river property and wants to build a marina, we can't tell them there are already too many marinas," said George Matthis, assistant major permits manager at the state Division of Coastal Management. His agency regulates shoreline development as well as pier and marina construction in coastal counties.

The General Assembly wrote the agency's rule book when it passed the Coastal Area Management Act, often referred to as CAMA, in 1974.

But none of the laws passed by the legislature or any of the rules adopted by the Coastal Resources Commission — the 15-member panel that oversees coastal development — addresses the problem of waterway congestion.

Marinas can be turned down because they would harm water quality or the environment, but not because of overcrowding.

Mack Bennett, a New Bern native who has opposed construction of more marinas, said CAMA should be moving to stop overcrowding.

"We're beginning to see on our rivers what occurred on our highways two or three decades ago and it's time we face it," he said.

In Beaufort, on the eastern edge of Carteret County, dozens of sailing yachts leave the Intracoastal Waterway to anchor in Taylors Creek along the town's waterfront. At Wrightsville Beach, a summer playground near Wilmington, the year-round population is increasing, as are hotels, condominiums and docks. In Wilmington, a thriving waterfront has caught the fancy of entrepreneurs who want to regularly dock a party boat along the city's bulkhead.

New Bern's downtown revitalization has gone even further.

In 1986, the five-story Sheraton hotel and convention center opened on a bank of the Trent, featuring 100 rooms, all of which offer a panoramic view of the river and 150 boat slips scattered across five docks.

Shortly after the Sheraton opened, a four-story Ramada Inn went up on the opposite bank of the Trent. Last week, workers completed building 158 boat slips on three piers that serve that hotel.

Now, the Sheraton plans a 65-room addition, a new waterfront restaurant, a condominium development for retirees and new boat slips that will bring the inn's total number of slips to 313.

"That will be the biggest marina we've permitted," said Matthis.

The Ramada's piers jut 459 feet out into the river from the shoreline. The piers of the Sheraton on the opposite shore stretch varying lengths, but planned expansions will make at least two jut out 650 feet.

Another developer has obtained a Coastal Area Management Act permit for a combination marina and dry-stack storage facility a few hundred yards up river from the Ramada. It will have 82 wet slips and spaces for 84 boats on land.

Still another landowner plans to rehabilitate an existing marina on a creek above the Sheraton. All those marinas are concentrated on a river that varies from about 1,300 feet to 2,200 feet across.

Piers are allowed to reach one-third of the way across a river as long as they don't stretch into the federal channel, Matthis said. Federal channels are areas of waterways the government helps dredge to keep them open to navigation.

As piers crop up in increasing numbers on both sides of rivers and creeks, rather than just along one shore, the boating public is becoming frustrated, said George Everett, director of coastal management.

"The guy on side A gets one third, the guy on side B gets a third, and that leaves the public a third down the middle," he said.

The owner of the Sheraton, William J. Callnin, doesn't understand the fuss over the number of piers.

His piers — which he says are open to boaters who need a slip for a few hours, a few days or a year — take up a small part of the Trent. Just 500 yards away, the mile-wide Neuse beckons.

"I think people are overreacting," he said. "CAMA is going to allow just so many marinas... and there is still plenty of water for people to enjoy."

But Bennett said marina owners near his New Bern home bar the public from using their piers for fishing, swimming, boating or just visiting, even though the structures float on public waters. Sooner or later, he said, the public will have no access anywhere along the river bank.

"I know there is a fine dividing line here between the rights of property owners and the rights of the public to that water," he said. "But somewhere in that river, the two rights clash."

Employees Sharing Benefit Costs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Employers have found what they hope is the prescription for rising health-care costs and insurance premiums — let the employees pay a share.

Employers are turning to policies with cost-sharing features such as higher deductibles, coinsurance and requirements that employees pay part of the premiums, according to a study by Hewitt Associates, an international consulting firm specializing in employee-benefit plans. The firm studied 227 employers from 1984 through 1988.

Compared to five years ago, more company health plans have front-end deductibles, which require the employee to pay initial medical expenses up to a certain amount. The amount of those deductibles also is rising.

Most plans no longer pay for all hospital room and board charges and all surgical expenses. Instead, most policies now have coinsurance provisions, which require employees to pay a percentage of these charges, usually 10 percent to 20 percent subject to a "stop-loss" provision that places a cap on the total amount the employee has to pay.

In addition, more plans are requiring employees to pay part of the insurance premiums.

During the five-year period covered by the study, many employers also began trying to minimize excessive or inappropriate use of medical care by requiring prior approval for all non-emergency hospital stays and a second opinion before surgery.

A typical example is the James H. Anderson Co., a Raleigh janitorial-supply house that used to pick up the full tab for health insurance for its 17 employees and their families.

The firm's insurance premiums skyrocketed, year after year after year: up 35 percent in 1987, 37 percent in 1988 and 39 percent in 1989.

Now the company no longer insures its workers' families. Although the company still pays health-insurance premiums for its workers, any employee who also wants coverage for his or her family has to pay about $50 a week.

In addition, to help keep premiums down, the company has increased the deductible under its policy from $100 to $200 a year. Employees must pay this amount before coverage begins.

"It was getting to the point where it was just too much for the company to completely cover an employee and his family," said John R. Anderson, company president.

Triangle Fire Extinguisher, an 18-employee firm in Raleigh, quit paying to insure employees' families two years ago. Citing "astronomical" rate increases, the company discontinued the benefit but allowed workers to pay for the coverage themselves. Also, a $100 deductible was increased this year to $250, said Noah D. Brown, company manager.

"We had been floating along in a happy state of ignorance until they came in with the super increases a few years ago," he said.

Health-care costs in the state rose 16 percent in the 12-month period ending March 31, according to an index developed by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, which has 1.9 million subscribers.

But the insurer's premium increases were much higher — an average of 50 percent in 1988 — partly because of a $142 million loss during 1987 and 1988.

James Singleton, a spokesman for Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said small- and medium-size businesses are having to take such steps as increasing deductibles to reduce the impact of rate increases. Larger companies, he said, often are better able to absorb the higher costs or pass them along to their customers.

Are N.C. Child-Care Workers Underpaid?

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — You can make more money in North Carolina serving alcohol to an adult than lunch to a pre-school youngster, and child care professionals say they don't understand the inequity.

"Day-care work is hard work," said Connie Jenkins, director of the First United Methodist Church Child Development Center in Charlotte. "If you're dedicated and professional, it's even harder."

Nationally, child-care workers are paid less than typists, cashiers, bartenders, groundkeepers, carwashers and animal caretakers, according to 1988 Census Bureau figures.

Workers argue they are more than babysitters, saying their work involves teaching children how to get along with others, how to develop talents and self-esteem, how to dress themselves and how to interact with the world.

As elsewhere across the country, North Carolinians pay dearly to know their children are in good hands. Yet child-care workers say they see little of the profits.

As a result, child-care teachers and assistants, no longer able or willing to survive on poverty-level pay, are leaving the field at an alarming rate.

"It is a strange kind of contradiction in our society that we talk about how important the nurturing of the next generation is, yet the role of teaching the young is not valued in what we pay," said Marjorie Warlick, executive director of Child Care Resources Inc., a nonprofit child-care referral agency in Charlotte.

Centers report that they are constantly refilling the same jobs and that some classrooms have to go without a regular teacher for as long as six months.

Jenkins said that workers frequently are lured away by public schools, which pay more for what amounts to the same job.

"You may end up with a person who does not have a degree or the experience," says Sarah Henderson, director of the YWCA KEYS Afterschool Program in Charlotte.

Workers say the constant making and breaking of attachments could play havoc with children's emotions.

Study: Doctors Favored In Medical Malpractice Suits

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DURHAM — Research at Duke University might take some of the starch out of the tort reform movement associated with medical malpractice cases.

In recent years, the medical profession has supported changing some rules in the civil justice process, saying big awards were causing malpractice insurance premiums to skyrocket. Proposals have ranged from limiting the money patients can collect to eliminating juries from the decision-making process.

The Duke study of 611 malpractice suits from 1984 to 1987 found that when patients were compensated for a doctor's negligence, juries were conservative with their awards. The Duke research contradicts many doctors who complain of incompetent and unpredictable juries who award multimillion-dollar judgments based on sympathy.

"Any report like that tends to negate the implication that there is a need for tort reform," said Greensboro radiologist Ernest Spangler, president of the N.C. Medical Society.

Some physicians who follow malpractice and tort reform issues complain that the study — the work of the Private Adjudication Center at Duke University School of Law — is incomplete, flawed and too narrowly focused.

"There is a lack of data on settlements and settlement dynamics. And that's where all the money is changing hands," said H. David Bruton, a Southern Pines physician who tracks tort reform efforts in North Carolina. "What they studied was a very small piece of the problem and then made generalizations from that piece."

Thomas O'Brien Jr., associate dean of the East Carolina University

School of Medicine, said, "What will hurt us is the impression that there is no problem. The legislature will conclude there is no problem."

Thomas Metzloff, the Duke law professor who directed the research, agreed the study is incomplete and its findings tentative. Statistics have been compiled for 611 of about 900 medical malpractice lawsuits filed from 1984 to 1987. But Metzloff said he does not expect the findings to change much when all the data is analyzed.

Physicians complain that the three-year period studied by Duke researchers includes no multimillion-dollar judgments to patients in malpractice lawsuits. They say there have been several during the 1980s.

Metzloff agrees, but he said the time period studied by Duke is representative of North Carolina's malpractice litigation.

GUILD OF OPTICIANS

YOUR EYEGLOSS PRESCRIPTION

What does the Federal Trade Commission say about "Eyeglass Prescriptions"

Q. Can I charge my patients an extra fee for releasing the prescription?
A. No. The Rule makes it illegal for you to charge your patients any fee in excess of your normal examination fee as a charge for releasing the prescription. So if your normal examination fee is $30, you cannot add an extra $5 or $10 for releasing the prescription.

Q. When do I have to give out a prescription?
A. The prescription must be given to your patient immediately after you complete the eye examination. This means that you must give your patient his or her prescription before you begin your dispensing procedures (if you also dispense eyeglasses).

Q. What if my patient doesn't ask for the prescription? Do I still have to give it out to my patient?
A. Yes. The Rule requires that you prepare the prescription and physically offer it to the patient. Of course, you can't force the patient to take it, but you must offer him or her the written prescription. Simply asking your patients whether they want their prescription is not sufficient. We found that many consumers had never seen a prescription for corrective eyewear, and thus were unaware that they could take that piece of paper and use it to comparison shop.

Q. What is the penalty for violating the Rule?
A. The penalty for violating the Rule is up to $10,000 per violation.

Q. How can I report violations of the Rule?
A. You can contact us directly in Washington, D.C. Our mailing address in Washington is: Eyeglasses TRR, Federal Trade Commission, Room 281, Washington, DC 20580

Thousands Watch As Marcos Entombed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HONOLULU — Ferdinand E. Marcos was entombed in an air-conditioned mausoleum as thousands of loyalists said farewell to the ousted Philippines president.

The mausoleum also is outfitted with a small chandelier; a religious statue surrounded by flowers sits on a shelf. Marcos' favorite slippers, pajamas and golf cap were placed in his coffin, said Col. Arturo Aruiza, a Marcos adviser for 21 years.

"He was my hero, he was my general. He was my teacher, my friend. He was my father," Ferdinand Marcos Jr., said during the tribute to his father Sunday.

Later the son, who is known as "Bong Bong," told the crowd, "Weep not, for you sat at the feet of a man touched by God."

Enrique Fernando, the last Philippine Supreme Court chief justice during Marcos' presidency, collapsed during the speech in hot, humid weather and was taken to St. Francis Medical Center.

Marcos died at the hospital Sept. 28 at age 72. He had lived in exile in Honolulu since February 1986, when he was ousted by a civilian-military uprising following a disputed election, and replaced by Corason Aquino.

Hospital officials said the 74-year-old Fernando was stable Sunday night. Marcos spokesman Roger Peyuan said Fernando has a history of heart disease, but didn't suffer a heart attack.

More than 2,500 people waited hours for Marcos' widow, Imelda, to arrive at the Valley of the Temples Memorial Park with her husband's body.

More than a dozen men rolled Marcos' casket up a long, winding hillside drive, with hundreds of mourners walking behind. When the pallbearers reached the stairs leading to the small mausoleum, elderly retired Philippine generals were replaced by younger men.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Easy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally!" Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W634, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800) 527-9700, ext. W634.

Mich. Youngster Upsets Town With Noriega Visits

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEGAUNEE, Mich. — A schoolgirl's friendly visits with Panamanian pen pal Gen. Manuel Noriega have her neighbors and her congressman shaking their heads.

"If it was my daughter, she wouldn't be going," City Councilwoman Virginia Paulson said after 11-year-old Sarah York left last week for her second trip to Panama.

On Wednesday, Sarah and her father turned up beside Noriega as Panama's military leader lauded her as a "meritorious daughter" of Panama City and an example of "the truth of the United States, purity not hatred."

After her meeting with Noriega, she repeated her support for the general. She said he's "very nice" and she doesn't believe "the bad things newspapers in the United States say about him."

In the United States that day, U.S. leaders were talking about ways to oust Noriega.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Mich., said Sarah's visits to Noriega put the United States in an awkward position.

"To have one of our little citizens go down there and be treated well is kind of an embarrassment for our government," Davis said. "It sends the wrong message that we, or some people in this country, say Noriega is an all-right guy."

The schoolgirl and her father, Mitchell, a prison guard, left for Panama on Oct. 8 and planned to return Tuesday to this northern mining town of about 5,000 people. The trip, which the Yorks say is safe despite a State Department travel warning, was delayed by the Oct. 3 coup attempt.

The girl visited Noriega last October.

She sent her first letter to Noriega following his U.S. indictment on drug trafficking charges.

Her mother, Pauline, who accompanied her on the first visit but stayed behind this time, refuses to discuss the second trip.

Mayor Jack Morris said residents never had given much thought to Panama.

"It was nice to have somebody go to another country," he said. But he rejected Mrs. York's request that Negaunee find a sister city in Panama.

"It just wouldn't be proper," Morris said.

After her first trip, Sarah set up school exhibits and helped classmates become pen pals with children in Panama. Negaunee Schools Superintendent Don Mourand said very few parents complained.

"I believe parental choice is certainly come to force here," Mourand said.

Foundation Earmarks Money For Needy Kids' Math Project

By Lee Mitgang
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The Ford Foundation announced today a $10 million project to boost math education for middle school children in poor communities.

Project QUASAR — Quantitative Understanding: Amplifying Student Achievement and Reasoning — aims to help schools come up with new approaches to enliven mathematics in grades four through eight.

Ford Foundation president Franklin Thomas was scheduled to announce the project, among the largest ever undertaken by the foundation on behalf of public education, at a news conference today.

The goal is to help schools go beyond drills and rote memorization and get pupils to see real-life meaning in numbers. The project hopes to find ways to combine the teaching of basic skills with higher-order math reasoning and problem solving.

U.S. 13-year-olds ranked last in a recent comparison of math proficiency with youngsters in Canada, Ireland, Korea, Britain and Spain. Only 40 percent of U.S. youngsters showed proficiency in solving moderately difficult two-step math problems, while 78 percent of Koreans could do so.

The QUASAR project will be directed by the Learning Research and Development Center at the University of Pittsburgh, which was given a $2.5 million initial grant.

The center will spend the 1989-90 school year selecting the first five schools to participate in the project and training teachers and administrators. The project will begin in classrooms in the 1990-91 school year.

The center will select schools in economically and educationally disadvantaged communities based on their conduciveness to innovation. The project will expand to at least 10 other urban and rural schools in 1991-92.

Potato Museum operators Meredith and Tom Hughes are framed by spuds in their home

At Potato Museum, The Eyes Have It

By Robert M. Andrews
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — If visitors to this museum get the feeling they're being watched by hundreds of eyes, they're right. After all, they're standing in the Potato Museum.

Surely one of the smallest museums in Washington, if not anywhere in the world, the Potato Museum occupies the basement of a yellow-brick rowhouse on Capitol Hill that is the home of Tom and Meredith Hughes, a fun-loving couple of spud fanatics, and their 5-year-old son, Gulliver.

Gulliver's nickname, naturally, is "Tater Tot."

Filling the two tiny basement rooms are 400 items from the Hugheses' collection of 2,000 potato artifacts, from a bronzed, heart-shaped potato donated by a Canadian woman to a North Carolina inventor's digital "Tater Time Clock" which runs on electrical current supplied by the acids in two attached potatoes.

"The goodness of the potato knows no bounds," the couple gushed in a tuber tome they wrote in 1986, titled "The Great Potato Book," extolling the virtues of their favorite vegetable.

Visitors to the private, non-profit museum are welcomed by Mrs. Hughes with a slide show of potato folklore, accompanied by tapes of such top tuber tunes as "Cold Tater Stomp" or "Weird Al Yanokovich's 'Addicted to Spuds.'"

Then her husband, a schoolteacher in suburban McLean, Va., invites guests to become couch potatoes and enjoy his videotape of "great moments in potatoes" from Hollywood movies. The scenes include Marilyn Monroe snacking on potato chips in "The Seven-Year Itch" and Richard Dreyfuss making a mountain of his mashed potatoes at the dinner table in "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Q: What was the biggest potato ever grown?

A: An Englishman named Thomas Seddal is reputed to have harvested a monster spud weighing 18 pounds, 4 ounces on Feb. 17, 1795.

Q: What was the biggest single serving of mashed potatoes in history?

A: An 18,260-pound mound of instant mashed potatoes, prepared in a cement mixer truck for the annual Potato Bowl football game at Grand Forks, N.D., in 1982.

The museum's shelves are stuffed with potato toys (including a "Spudomatic" air pistol that shoots potato pellets), a burlap potato sack jacket, potato posters, dolls and postage stamps, a 1948 Idaho "World Famous Potatoes" license plate and some 4,000-year-old potatoes preserved in a jar.

There's also a cluster of antique potato chip cans, a basket of deep-fried potato skins woven by the chef at Antoine's Restaurant in New Orleans, and a staggering assortment of implements and kitchen appliances — potato mashers, slicers, peelers, scrubbers, hoes, rakes, planters, baskets, diggers and beetle sprayers.

Investigators Probe Jetliner Fire

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Investigators seeking the cause of a flash fire that gutted a parked Delta Air Lines jetliner said they are focusing on an area in the belly of the Boeing 727 that houses computer gear.

A team of federal inspectors arrived Sunday to join the investigation of the blaze, which burned a 4-by-15-foot hole in the side of the plane as it sat at a Salt Lake International Airport boarding gate.

Saturday's fire forced the nine passengers and six crew members aboard to evacuate. Five crew members and one passenger were treated for smoke inhalation.

Hugo Recovery Passes Poor By

By Mary Brooks
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The historic Battery has been spruced up, the tourists have been invited back, and all but one of the emergency shelters for victims of Hurricane Hugo have been closed.

But the recovery of this 319-year-old city has largely bypassed the poor, and many families left homeless by the storm 3½ weeks ago wonder where they will get their next meal and how long they can depend on charity for a place to sleep.

"We've been going from place to place. This is the fourth place we've stayed," said Ethel Williams, 77, bedridden with a cold last week at the Ebenezer African Methodist Episcopal Church shelter.

Mrs. Williams hasn't been able to return to Ansonborough Homes, a low-income housing project, since it was flooded with 4 feet of water by the 18-foot tidal surge that came ashore with Hugo on Sept. 21.

Joining Mrs. Williams in her worries was her 78-year-old neighbor, Rosa Ferguson, who retired on a small pension.

"I don't know where I'm going to live," Mrs. Ferguson said. "The only thing I wish for is they could turn me out to a shelter of my own, that I could find my own shack."

The two women are far from alone.

The church is feeding about 150 people a day and housing 16, with more expected, said the Rev. Charles McLamore.

"We're talking about the people who've got no family to go to, got no insurance to repair their home," he said. "Those kind of people that lost everything they had, and a paycheck won't cover it."

Hugo killed 33 people in the Caribbean and 29 on the U.S. mainland.

In South Carolina, 18 were killed, 270,000 left jobless and 50,000 to 65,000 lost homes. Damage to homes, businesses and the farming, fishing, timber and tourism industries has been estimated at $4 billion or more.

Federal Emergency Management Agency provides individuals and families with up to $10,000 for housing and smaller amounts for repairs and rent. So far, the agency has distributed about $4.4 million to 2,300 people.

But McLamore says many of the poor will never see the federal aid because they're unable or unwilling to deal with the paperwork.

"Most of these people who need it, most don't want to go through all of them applications and stuff," he said. "A lot of these people can't write, can't read, just can't find a decent job. ... They (are) just left out."

The American Red Cross has helped thousands by providing vouchers for food, clothing and furniture, and one month's rent for temporary housing, said Liz Leonard, a spokeswoman for the Carolina Lowcountry Red Cross. But she said the poor may be unable to bounce back as quickly as middle- and upper-class victims.

"(It's) the people who are barely getting by in the first place that really get hit by this," she said.

Friends' Responses To Handicapped Baby Vary

Dear Abby: You recently published a letter from a reader asking how she should respond to a friend who had just given birth to a baby with Down syndrome. Coincidentally, three weeks before reading that letter, I had a little girl, "Anna," who was born with spina bifida.

To respond to your reader, we are absolutely delighted with our baby. True, she has a difficult road ahead and faces many hurdles, not least of which is paralysis of the legs. To us, Anna is a beautiful baby first and has spina bifida second.

I can't tell you how many Mass bouquets and sympathy cards we received — messages I consider totally inappropriate. I am still waiting to hear from friends whom I suspect also "don't know what to say."

We have never been disappointed — Anna fits right into our family environment and is loved and cherished as much as her sister.

To those like your reader who are unsure how to react, do everything you would have done had the baby arrived without a problem. Don't assume that the parents are distraught and disappointed. Handicapped kids very often bring with them enormous amounts of joy and rewards. We think Anna is extra-special and feel privileged to welcome her into our family. — Happy Mother In California

Dear Mother: Thank you for a very uplifting letter. Please read on:

Dear Abby: You recently printed a letter from someone who didn't know what to say to parents of a baby born with Down syndrome.

Our daughter just gave birth to a son with Down syndrome, and because she realized that many people would be as perplexed as your writer, she enclosed a letter with each birth announcement. And here's her letter:

"Dear Friends and Family: Our second son, Matthew Noel, was born on July 27. And now we want to add a personal note to this announcement because we want everyone to know that Matthew was born with Down syndrome. There is no easier way to tell you this than there was for the doctors to tell John and me. We know that you had the same high hopes and expectations for our second child that we had, and this is a shock and disappointment to all of you.

"John and I had quite an adjustment to make in the last few days. We've experienced a lot of emotional pain and learned a great deal about how Down syndrome will affect our son and our family. Matthew is very cute and responsive, and we hope that you will accept him without pity or reservations.

"With God's help, we hope that our son will grow up strong and healthy. We want you to share in the joy of his progress along the road of maturity, even though he may travel that road a little more slowly and may not get as far as others.

"Please don't feel that you have to pretend that he is normal, and please feel free to ask any questions you may have about him.

"His name, 'Matthew,' means 'a gift from God,' and we know that in time we will enjoy the special gifts that Matthew was meant to bring to his friends and family. We hope that your prayers are with us. — Matthew's Parents"

Couple Marry Sunday

NEGRIL, Jamaica — The wedding ceremony of Carol Ann Curtis and Christopher George Rhodes took place Sunday in Jamaica.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Curtis of Hendersonville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Rhodes of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal gown of satin and crystalette with a sweetheart neckline accented with pearl and sequin applique. The open V-back had a bow and train of cascading ruffles. Her veil was accented with flowers and lily-of-the-valley. It was designed and made by her mother.

The couple will live in Greenville after their return from Jamaica.

The bride is employed by Planters Bank and attended J.H. Rose High School and East Carolina University. The bridegroom also attended J.H. Rose High School, and is employed by Ken Russ Pest Control.

Several showers were given for the couple prior to their marriage.

Harrell-Liverman Vows Said

AHOSKIE — Patricia Faye Liverman of Greenville and Michael Earl Harrell of Lewiston were married at 3 p.m. Sunday in Union Baptist Church. The Rev. Cameron Curin Jr. officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of C.J. and Faye Liverman of Ahoskie. She was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Betty B. Foskey of Greenville and Richard E. Harrell of Ahoskie.

The bride wore a floor-length gown with a cathedral train of bridal satin with sposabella lace. The fitted bodice featured a sabrina neckline, deep V-back, elbow-length sleeves with puffed shoulders and basque waist. Sposabella lace cut-out motifs embellished with pearls and sequins adorned the skirt in a pyramid design. Her shoulder-length veil featured a semi-halo of pearls and iridescent sequins. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of calla lilies, statice, snapdragons, forget-me-nots, lilies, white, pink and blue rosebuds, ivy and baby's breath.

Teresa L. Edwards of Drewryville, Va. was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sheila L. Rawls of Ahoskie and Elaine L. Evans of Murfreesboro, cousins of the bride; Ricky Lynn Harrell, sister of the bridegroom, Sandra L. Warren and Elizabeth Ann Warmack, all of Greenville, and Karen R. Mason of La Grange.

Attendants wore tea-length gowns in alternating colors of bluebell blue and shocking pink. They wore halos

MRS. HARRELL

Liverman of Ahoskie, brother of the bride; Lennie Malone of Aulander; Pete Jernigan and Jimmy Mitchell of Lewiston; Kenny Davidson of Ahoskie, cousin of the bride, and Gregory S. Edwards of Drewryville, brother-in-law of the bride. Ring bearer was Gilbert A. Harris Jr. of Greenville.

Honorary attendants were Deborah L. Barnes of Wilson and Nancy I. Little of Raleigh.

Nuptial music was provided by pianist Pam C. Woodard and vocalists Marion and Karol Gillison.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

A birdseed-bagging party, a bridesmaid's luncheon and several showers and parties were given by friends. The bridegroom's mother and Steve Briley hosted a rehearsal dinner Saturday night.

The bride is a graduate of Ridgecroft School, Atlantic Christian College and Pitt Community College. She is employed as a radiologic technologist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and Roanoke-Chowan Hospital, Ahoskie.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Ahoskie High School and Alliance Tractor-Trailer Training Center. He is employed by Belvoir Manufacturing.

The couple will live at Route 3, Greenville, after a trip to Cocoa, Fla. and Walt Disney World.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: The trend is $1 to $1.25 cents lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, no quote; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadburn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 47.75; Wilson 47.75. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 41.00; Wallace 41.00; Spivey's Corner 41.00; Rowland 41.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina job dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 100 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a final weighted average of 47.26. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 2,182,000, compared to 2,120,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled under a crush of sell orders today as nervous investors sought to unload shares in the wake of the worst setback on Wall Street since the crash of 1987.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials skidded 49.18 to 2,520.08 in the first 30 minutes of trading, but not all stocks included in the widely watched measure had opened for trading by 10 a.m. EDT because of order imbalances.

The New York Stock Exchange had anticipated a flood of sell orders and activated its computers at 7:30 EDT, an hour earlier than usual, so it could sort out business ahead of the 9:30 EDT market opening. Nonetheless, trading in numerous stocks was delayed.

Investor

 "It probably has slowed down the volatility in the market. It has not and should not completely do away with the market's ability to go up or down," Nesbit said. "But, a repeat of 1987 should not happen because of these governing measures."

Patty Eguez, a broker at Shearson-Lehman-Hutton Inc. on Arlington Boulevard, said the "circuit breakers" coupled with a sounder economic climate make it unlikely that Friday's crash would have the repercussions of the 1987 crash.

"Many people are talking about the October 1987 crash and are asking 'Is this similar to that?'" Ms. Eguez said. "It's not. A lot of imbalances are not the same — the trade deficit is lower, lower inflation and the dollar is in better shape."

Ms. Eguez said investors should keep in mind that Friday's market drop was a direct reaction to a failed buyout of United Airlines parent UAL Corp. She said some groups involved in the buyout were caught owning $2-$4 billion of stock and many of them began selling the stock once financing for the deal fell through.

Ms. Eguez said investors should be especially cautious about trading stocks today and should not be surprised if the market falls at least 100 more points.

"This was a market reaction to one situation. We think the market will stabilize," she said. "If you own high quality stock that you like, the reasons you liked it Friday are still good today."

Hill
KINSTON — Mr. Alvin Daniel Hill, 55, died Saturday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Taylor-Edwards Funeral Chapel in Snow Hill. Burial will be in the Rainbow Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Janet Nobles Hill of the home; three sons, Alvin Daniel Hill Jr. of New Bern, Robert Alex Hill of Kinston and Alton Dean Hill of Hookerton; his mother, Ethleen Johnson Hill of Hookerton; a sister, Lorraine Hill Moye of Hookerton, and one brother, Gene C. Hill of Hookerton.

The family will receive friends at the Taylor-Edwards Funeral Home today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Monk
FARMVILLE — Mrs. Keel Lang Monk, 74, of 207 W. Church St. died at her home today.

Her graveside funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville by the Rev. Wilbur Teachey.

Mrs. Monk, a lifelong resident of Farmville, was a member of the Farmville United Methodist Church. Surviving are her husband, Albert Coy Monk Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. William S. Page Jr. of Kinston; a son, Albert C. Monk III of Farmville; two brothers, R.O. Lang Jr. and Tommy Lang, both of Farmville, and three grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Farmville Funeral Home from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Farmville United Methodist Church.

crash. "There isn't the same panic," said Bob Wade, joint head of market making at Robert Fleming and Co. in London.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange, the Nikkei Stock Average of 225 issues closed at 34,468.69, down 647.33 points, a drop of 1.8 percent from Friday, when the index rose 329.97 points. The previous biggest decline of the year was 484.11 points on Sept. 26.

The dollar's value sank in early trading today in Europe and in Tokyo before recovering somewhat.

Trading in Tokyo was the first opportunity a major foreign market had to react to Friday's 190-point plunge in the Dow Jones industrial average, the worst setback since the 508-point dive in the Oct. 19, 1987, crash.

The trading there and in other major foreign markets had been expected to set the tone for the activity that resumed later in New York.

On Wall Street, the New York Stock Exchange opened its computers to receive orders at 7:30 a.m. EDT, an hour earlier than usual, because it expected heavy volume. Thousands of worried investors called sell orders into their brokers over the weekend, setting the stage for a flood of activity when Wall Street opens for business.

U.S. market and government officials closely watched overseas developments after spending the weekend mapping out strategies to prevent a financial disaster paralleling the events of two years ago, when the Dow plummeted 508 points on Black Monday after a 108-point drop the preceding Friday.

The Federal Reserve indicated over the weekend that it would move quickly today to meet any demands for cash that might result from a deluge of sell orders hitting the U.S. markets.

"We will be there with all the liquidity demand that is needed," said a senior Fed official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Fed's action was aimed at helping to keep bankers from cutting off credit to brokerage houses and securities firms suffering heavy losses from a plunge in stock prices.

The NYSE will offer its individual express delivery service when trading begins, which puts individual orders of up to 2,999 shares ahead of big, institutional orders, a NYSE spokesman said.

Normally, the service is offered only once the Dow moves up or down 25 points.

A system of "circuit breakers" installed following the 1987 crash automatically halts stock trading temporarily if the Dow rises or falls 250 points from the previous session's close.

Takeover rumors and leveraged buyouts had pushed the stock market higher in recent months, and trouble with one of those deals — the employee-management buyout of United Airlines parent UAL Corp. — sparked Friday's sell-off.

Jerry Smashes Into Texas Coast; 2 Dead

Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla. Within 3 1/2 hours, Jerry was downgraded to a tropical storm after its maximum sustained winds fell below 74 mph.

On Galveston, which bore the brunt of the storm, an early assessment found minor street flooding but little serious damage, said Gary Vasquez of the emergency operations center. The biggest task appeared to be cleaning up debris scattered by the wind, he said.

"I think we did very well," said Mayor Jan Coggeshall.

Jerry was considered a category 1 hurricane, the least severe possible. Hurricane Hugo, which devastated parts of the Caribbean and South Carolina last month, was a category 4 with winds of 135 mph. Jerry was much smaller, too, with hurricane-force winds extending just 15 to 25 miles out from the eye, as compared with 100 miles for Hugo.

But Jerry was still enough to cause fear in low-lying areas, particularly because it coincided with an unusually high tide caused by a rare alignment of the Earth, moon and sun. The combination of astronomical forces and the storm sent tides 5 to 8 feet above normal.

In Louisiana's Cameron Parish, officials Sunday urged voluntary evacuation of 8,000 to 10,000 residents. "We're just concerned about getting people to higher ground," said Scott Henry, a Civil Defense volunteer.

The evacuation advisory was lifted this morning.

Earlier, hundreds of workers had been evacuated from offshore oil rigs as Jerry zigzagged through the gulf during the weekend.

Most of Galveston's 62,000 residents decided to stay in their homes instead of evacuating for Jerry.

By 11 p.m., those who had moved to shelters were told they could return home, said Gary Stone, spokesman for Galveston's Emergency Operations Center.

Jerry was the seventh hurricane of the six-month Atlantic season, which ends in November. Hugo was easily the most destructive, killing 33 people in the Caribbean and 29 on the U.S. mainland and causing billions of dollars in damage.

Prep Playoffs Races Are Shaping Up

There are still three weeks to go in the 1989 high school football season, but things are beginning to be a little clearer concerning the state playoffs. Oh, to be sure, there's still a lot of games left to play and a lot of deciding to do, but you can pretty well bet on who's going to make the playoffs now. The Big East Conference will get only two representatives this year. Right now, it would appear that Wilson Hunt is in the driver's seat as the only unbeaten left in the league. But, despite having beaten Rose and Northeastern, the Warriors still have three tough games left, with Fike, Rocky Mount and Northern Nash. Only Rocky Mount is a home game. Rocky Mount appears out of the playoff picture, but can still have an effect since it still has to play Rose and Hunt. Hunt, meanwhile, could just about clinch one of the two spots with a win over Fike on Friday.

Northeastern, meanwhile, has only Rose and Fike in its way. Rose, meanwhile, would seem to have the roughest road, with Fike, Northeastern and Rocky Mount all ahead, only Northeastern at home.

Best bets: Hunt and Northeastern.

The Coastal 8-A will also send just two teams, and D.H. Conley would appear to have a lock on one of those two spots. The Vikings have a perfect 4-0 record and have beaten two of their three closest competitors. Conley has a home game left with West Carteret and a road contest against West Craven, also unbeaten in league play.

Conley, with a win over West Carteret, would clinch one of the two berths, regardless of the outcome of the West Craven game.

West Craven, meanwhile, has three games left, including White Oak and Conley. It would appear that a win over White Oak Friday would just about clinch a playoff spot for the Eagles, too.

White Oak, to make it, would have to beat West Craven, while Havelock, one of the preseason favorites, appears out of the running with two losses.

Best bets: Conley and West Craven.

Farmville Central has two tough games left, with Greene Central this Friday and North Pitt the next. All three are unbeaten in the league.

The league gets three spots this year, so it would appear that all three are likely to go to the playoffs. All three must still play each other, and while the outcome could, by some stretch, see someone else sneak in, it's unlikely.

Best bets: Farmville, Greene Central, North Pitt.

In the Colonial, Tarboro, off to an 0-4 start, has turned it around since opening league play and is 4-0 in the conference, having beaten Bertie, seemingly, its closest competitor.

The Colonial also gets three spots, and Tarboro would now seem just about a shoo-in with only two games left, Washington being one of them.

Bertie, 3-1, also looks safe, with only games left with also-rans. Washington, which has still to face Tarboro and Hertford County, is probably the bubble team. Hertford, off to a slow start, must win against Washington to make it.

Best bets: Tarboro, Bertie and Washington.

The Northeastern 2-A also gets three and Northampton East appears sure of one of those, with a 2-0 league record. The Rams have already beaten their two closest competitors.

But from here on in, this is probably the most muddled league. Plymouth, Northside, Williamston and Roanoke Rapids all have shots.

Best bets: Northampton East, Plymouth and Northside.

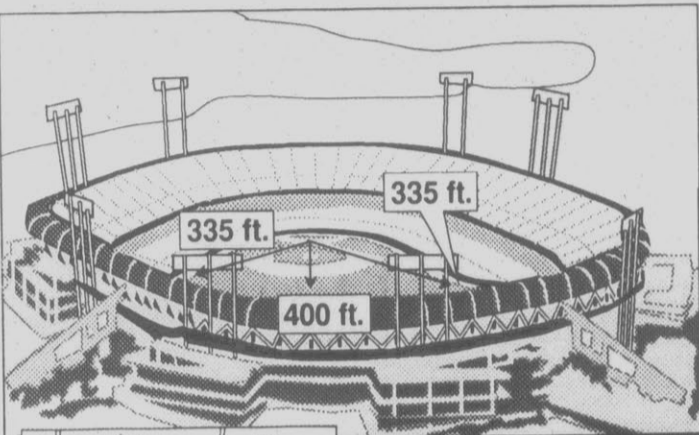

Finally, the 1-A Tobacco Belt will also have three teams. North Edgecombe, 3-0, looks to have a lock on first place. The Warriors have only one real test left, with upstart Creswell.

Oakland Pitchers Come Through

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. — Roger Craig almost can't watch. His split-finger fastball has come back to haunt the Giants.

It's been scary, too. Real scary. Oakland beat San Francisco 5-1 Sunday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 World Series.

On Saturday, Dave Stewart showed off his split-finger pitch and beat the Giants 5-0 with a five-hitter.

In Game 2, Mike Moore bedeviled the Giants for seven innings with his version.

"You got to give credit to the Oakland pitching staff," Craig said. "Every guy they've thrown out there has had a better split-finger than the other guy."

Craig should know. He's the guru of the split-finger. The Giants manager has saved careers by teaching it, and even created stars. But all he sees now is a monster.

In losing the first two games, the Giants managed only nine hits in 62 at-bats, a .145 average, and were 0-for-11 with runners in scoring position.

Will Clark and Kevin Mitchell, known as the Pacific Sock Exchange, crashed, going 0-for-6 with runners in scoring position.

"Their pitching can't get much better than it has been," Craig said.

Oh, no?

Bob Welch will pitch for the A's in Game 3 on Tuesday at Candlestick Park. The former Los Angeles Dodger is 19-4 lifetime against the Giants, 6-0 at San Francisco.

LaRussa's Moves Paying Dividends

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. — For the first two games of the World Series, Tony La Russa didn't need to worry about being second-guessed. His first guess was just fine.

The Oakland manager has made all the right moves, and the A's head over the Bay Bridge with a 2-0 lead over the San Francisco Giants.

In Game 1, La Russa went with Walt Weiss at shortstop over Mike Gallego and in Game 2 Terry Steinbach caught instead of Ron Hassey.

Weiss homered in Game 1, and Steinbach in Game 2.

Before Sunday's 5-1 victory, La Russa said he thought Steinbach would hit a home run off Giants starter Rick Reuschel.

"I said something like that, but I say things like that every game," La Russa said. "I usually make these positive predictions and today it happened. But I probably said that about four or five guys today. I wouldn't make much of it."

But if La Russa keeps it up, he may be working on Wall Street in the offseason.

Not that he's always perfect.

In Game 1 of the World Series against Los Angeles last season, La Russa replaced Dave Stewart with Dennis Eckersley after eight innings and the A's leading 4-3.

As the world knows, Kirk Gibson hit a two-run homer with two out to win the game, and spark the Dodgers' victory over the A's in five games.

What a difference a year makes, Tony.

Weiss missed much of the year with a knee injury, but La Russa wanted some more left-handed hitting against Scott Garrelts in Game 1.

Gretzky Busts Mark In Edmonton

The Great One Better's Gordie Howe's Career Point Total In 5-4 Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EDMONTON, Alberta — Nobody scores more than Wayne Gretzky. And few do things as dramatically as the Great One.

He didn't just break Gordie Howe's record of 1,850 career points Sunday night. He did it in Edmonton, in the building where he led the Oilers to four Stanley Cup titles in nine seasons.

He didn't do it with any old assist. He did it with a goal. And not just a goal, but a game-tying goal with 53 seconds remaining in regulation.

Why stop there?
To cap the celebration, he put in the game-winner, too, with 1:36 left in overtime, giving his new team, the Los Angeles Kings, a 5-4 victory over his old team.

"I said to tie it, get one point, so the Edmonton fans can share it with the L.A. fans," said Gretzky's wife, actress Janet Jones. "He said, 'Janet, if I got one point tonight, it means I did play that well.'"

Other guys score one point a game. Gretzky gets them in bunches. He's played 780 games and gotten three points 58 times, four points 90 times and five points 58 times.

"I'm just so proud Wayne Gretzky calls me his friend," said Howe, who came onto the ice for a 10-minute ceremony after the historic point.

5-0 Rams Face Bills

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — His club is 5-0 — the NFL's only unbeaten team — but Los Angeles Rams coach John Robinson insists, "We're not a juggernaut or anything like that."

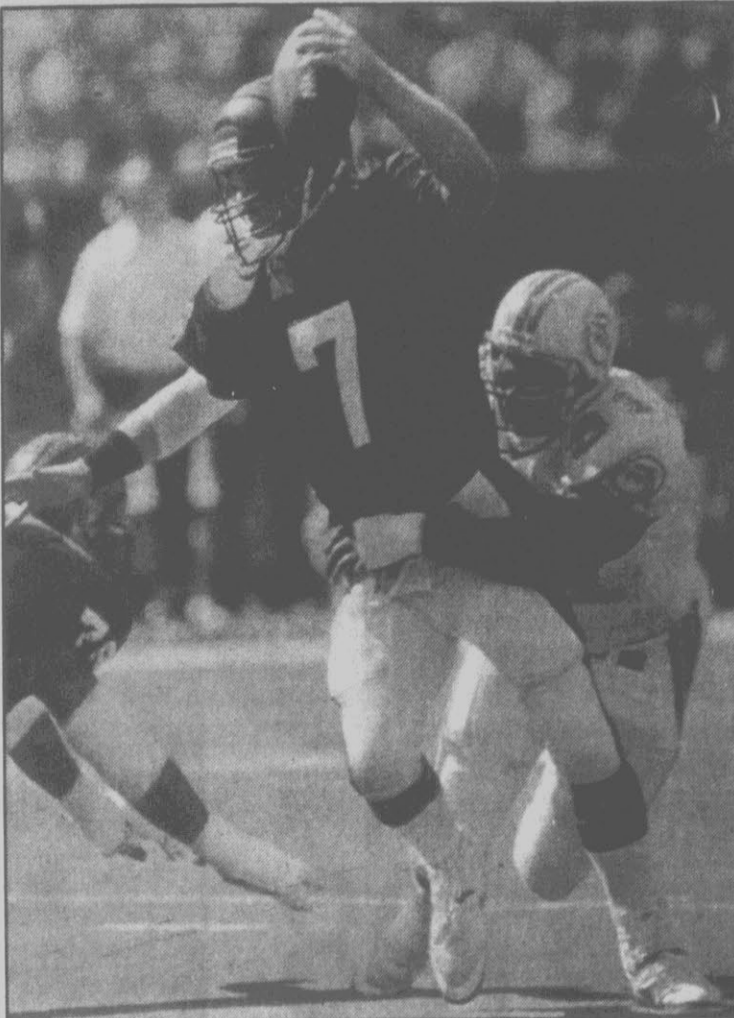

Quarterback Jim Everett concurred: "We're not walking around town with rings on our fingers."

Caution is understandable, given the Rams' performance last year. After starting the season with seven victories in nine games, Los Angeles lost four of seven, and then was beaten in the NFC wild-card playoff game at Minnesota.

"Once you start fast, people say, 'Boy, you guys are really good now,'" Robinson said. "I think those people who see us see potential and the possibility of it all happening, but know we're a ways away from that right now."

The Rams' opponent tonight, the Buffalo Bills, also know something about fast starts and potential. They went out 11-1 last season, and, after advancing to within one game of the Super Bowl, were projected to be a force in the NFL this season.

Surprises Abound In The NFL

Oilers, Dolphins Surprise With Wins On The Road

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Oilers don't pull upsets on the road. The Cincinnati Bengals don't get upset at home. The Detroit Lions don't depend on anyone, anywhere.

Except on Sunday.

And the most upset of all probably was Mike Ditka.

"I don't know if this team can win another football game. At this point, I don't think we can," the Chicago Bears coach said after the Oilers rallied for a 33-28 victory at Soldier Field.

The Bengals hadn't experienced the depression of defeat at Riverfront Stadium since 1987. But Dan Marino ran the Miami Dolphins through "The Jungle" to a 20-13 victory, snapping Cincinnati's 12-game winning streak there.

And the Lions, who hadn't come close to winning in going 0-5, surprised the Buccaneers 17-16 at Tampa as rookie Rodney Peete scored from the 5 with 23 second left and Eddie Murray kicked the decisive extra point.

New England and San Diego could have used Murray, too. The Patriots lost to Atlanta 16-15 as Greg Davis, who made three field goals, misses a conversion. Chris Bahr's PAT was blocked by Jeff Bryant and his 51-yard field goal attempt was blocked by Joe Nash as Seattle edged San Diego 17-16.

Also, Pittsburgh, a 51-0 loser to the Browns in the season opener, won a shocker at Cleveland, 17-7; Minnesota, in Herschel Walker's first game as a Viking, beat Green Bay 26-14, with Walker gaining 148 yards; Denver took Indianapolis 14-3; San Francisco beat winless Dallas 31-14; the New York Giants took Washington 20-17; the Los Angeles Raiders defeated Kansas City 20-14; Philadelphia was a 17-5 winner against Phoenix, and New Orleans downed the New York Jets 29-14.

Tonight, Buffalo entertains the Los Angeles Rams, the only unbeaten team in the league.

Oilers 33, Bears 28

Houston had lost 52 of its last 62 road games and rarely is competitive against the likes of the Bears if the game is not in the "House of Pain."

Chicago seemed in charge with a 28-19 lead with four minutes remaining, built on Mike Tom-zak's three touchdown passes. He also was intercepted four times.

"We had the game won; we had it won with six turnovers," Ditka said. "None of those turnovers came after we had the lead. Therefore, if we had the lead, how come we can't hold a nine-point lead?"

Because Warren Moon scored on a 1-yard run with 3:38 left, and Lorenzo White got in from the 12 after Allen Pinkett ripped off a 60-yard gain.

"It ranks right up on top," Oilers coach Jerry Glanville said of the victory. "When you beat a good Chicago team and a good Chicago coach, it's a big win."

The loss was the second straight for the Bears, only the second time since 1984 that Chicago has lost two in a row. The Bears are 4-2 and tied with Minnesota for first in the NFC Central.

"We'd do things that were good and then we'd self-destruct," linebacker Mike Singletary said. "We didn't play good and we didn't play smart and in the National Football League, that'll get you killed."

Archer Claims First Win In Playoff

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — George Archer won a playoff for his first victory on the PGA Seniors Tour, the Gatlin Brothers Southwest Senior Classic. Archer, who turned 50 on Oct. 1, joined Arnold Palmer and Gary Player as the only seniors to win their tour debut. Archer finished at 7-under-par 216, tied with Jimmy Powell and Orville Moody. After the three parred the first extra hole, Powell and Moody drove into the water from the next tee. Archer tapped in a par that the other two couldn't match.

Faldo Completes Rally With Eagle

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Nick Faldo capped a late comeback Sunday by sinking a 20-foot eagle putt on the 36th hole to defeat Ian Woosnam for the World Matchplay Golf Championship.

Faldo, who did not lead in the match until the last hole, trailed by three holes with just seven left in the two-round final. But he won the 12th and 13th holes of the afternoon session to pull within a shot, then tied the match on the 16th with a birdie.

After Woosnam and Faldo both birdied the 17th, Faldo eagled the par-5 18th for the victory and $160,000.

Seve Ballesteros defeated Ronan Rafferty 5 and 3 in an 18-hole match for third.

Reid Keys Hornets By Bullets

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — Rookie J.R. Reid scored eight points and controlled the defensive boards during an 18-6 fourth quarter run as Charlotte defeated Washington 104-88 in an NBA exhibition game Sunday.

The Hornets led 83-77 with 9:33 left before Reid took over. Over the next eight minutes, the Hornets outscored the Bullets by 10 points to increase their lead to 101-83 with about one minute left.

Dell Curry led Charlotte with 16 points. Reid added 15 points and 10 rebounds while Terry Dozier, a rookie from South Carolina, added 12 points.

Bernard King scored 15 for the Bullets, 1-1. Jeff Malone, Ledell Eackles and Tom Hammonds each had 10.

The Bullets grabbed a 14-11 lead in the first period on a three-point play by Mark Alarie. Consecutive baskets by Curry put Charlotte ahead 20-17 with 4:27 to go in the period, and the Hornets never trailed again.

The Hornets led 51-48 at half but outscored Washington by 13 points over the final two periods.

Bodine Gains Holly Farms 400 Win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NORTH WILKESBORO — They came to see a duel between Rusty Wallace and Dale Earnhardt, but the fans who saw the Holly Farms 400 got a lot more than that.

Geoff Bodine won the race, Earnhardt finished 10th and Ricky Rudd became a target.

Earnhardt began the day 35 points behind Wallace, who is seeking his first Winston Cup driving title. Last week, Earnhardt lost 110 points to Wallace after finishing dead last at Charlotte because of a broken camshaft.

Earnhardt and Wallace started on the front row Sunday in a race being made up after rain washed out the event two weeks ago. Because there were no qualifying runs, drivers were assigned starting positions according to their point standing as of Sept. 30.

Wallace never challenged for the lead and at the end, it was a two-car race between Earnhardt and Rudd.

Earnhardt was trying to hold off Rudd's late charge when their cars tangled in Turn 2 on the last lap. Both cars spun out, giving the third-place Bodine an unexpected victory with an average speed of 90.253 mph.

Bodine thought Rudd's move on the last lap was a good one, but Earnhardt wasn't impressed at all.

"It's a pretty bad deal," he said. "Upset? Upset ain't the word for it. They ought to fine him (Rudd) and make him sit out the rest of the season."

Rudd said it was just hard racing.

"Was it a racing accident? I don't know," he said. "It's the last lap and you're going for the win, I guess maybe it is. I guess he didn't want to give up the lead."

"All I know is that I went down under him into Turn 1. The next thing I know, we were both turned around."

NASCAR officials said no action was planned following a review of tapes of the incident.

"We view it as a racing accident," NASCAR officials Chip Williams said.

Earnhardt and Rudd tangled with 30 laps remaining in last year's Holly Farms 400, and Rudd was later fined for his part in that altercation.

"That's why the people pay $25 to get in," Bodine said.

"It comes down to the last lap — three quarters of a lap can make the whole day," Bodine said. "If it didn't happen you'd be disappointed."

It was a crushing disappointment for Earnhardt, who had dominated the race, leading 342 of 399 laps. He was less than a lap away from moving back into a 16-point lead over Wallace in his bid for a fourth Winston Cup points championship. Instead, he was placed 10th and trails Wallace, who finished seventh, by 37 points with three races to go.

Bodine led only the last of the 400 laps in the 250-mile race, and gained his first victory since June 1988 at Pocono.

"It was great for me, it was like the parting of the black and green seas," he said, referring to the colors of the two leaders.

"Before that last caution I saw that Ricky had caught Dale," he said. "He was putting the heat on him."

"It's what you expect on the last lap," Bodine said. "I know Dale was ready for some contact. The fans were ready and the pit crews were ready."

After Earnhardt and Rudd slammed together, Mark Martin came on to finish second, followed by Terry Labonte. Hary Gant was fourth and Morgan Shepherd finished fifth.

Before it was over, Earnhardt had to be restrained from going after Rudd.

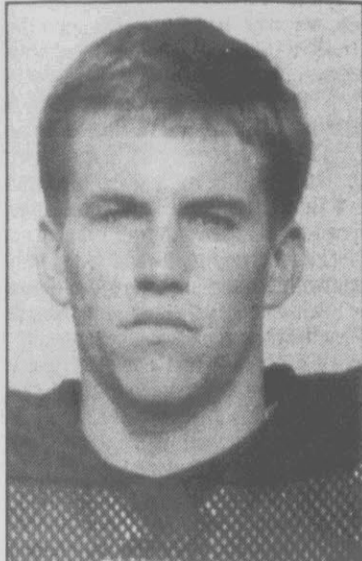

Player Of The Week

Numbers are important, but the bottom line is production.

It's an adage D.H. Conley quarterback Scott Seymour understands fully. A senior quarterback, Seymour threw the ball only eight times Friday in a 19-0 win over White Oak, but he completed six of those for 74 yards while also running for two touchdowns as the Vikings garnered a key Coastal Conference victory.

His two targets were Junior Farrow and Hal Conger, each with three receptions. Seymour's passing honest and gave Conley running backs Mike Clark (16 carries, 52 yards) and Kenny Haddock (11-77) room to operate.

Conley, 6-2 overall and 4-0 in the Coastal, is now guaranteed a playoff spot.

Prep Honor Roll

Greene Central's backfield: Tommy Wilkes and John Dixon punished Pamlico County for 136 and 106 yards, respectively, Friday night in a 32-0 win.

Wilkes, a junior tailback, scored on touchdown runs of 13 and three yards, while Dixon, a senior fullback, had scoring runs of one and 21 yards.

Roanoke's Levy Jones: Jones, a junior tailback, makes his weekly appearance in the honor roll thanks to a 135-yard rushing performance in a 13-6 loss to North Edgecombe. Prior to this game, Jones had broken the 200-yard rushing barrier for three consecutive weeks.

North Pitt's Malcolm Wiggins: Wiggins, a senior fullback, ran for 97 yards on eight carries in a 23-6 win over Ayden-Grifton Friday. Wiggins took over the lead following an injury to halfback Reggie Daniel. Wiggins scored on runs of 32 and 45 yards.

Farmville Central defensive backs Rasel Daniels and Morris Foreman: Daniels, a senior cornerback, returned a fumble 88 yards for a touchdown and Foreman, a junior safety, returned another fumble five yards for a score as the Jaguars downed East Carteret, 20-14.

East-West Coaches Announced

GREENSBORO (AP) — Greensboro Dudley basketball coach Steve Hankins has been selected to coach the West boys' team and Lawrence Dunn of Raleigh Athens Drive will coach the East in the 1990 McDonald's East-West All-Star games next summer.

Hal Stewart of Garner will head the East football team. Bill Williamson of Wilson Hunt, Jerry Daniel of East Montgomery and B.T. Chappell of Ayden-Grifton are Stewart's assistants.

Homer Thompson of Winston-Salem Parkland was named the West football coach. His assistants are Randy Faucette of Bunker Hill, Leland Riddle of Mitchell County and E.Z. Smith of Concord.

Hankins' assistant will be Fred Lanford of South Caldwell. Robert Woodley of Edenton Holmes will be the assistant for the East.

Jack Raspberry of Wilmington Hoggard will guide the East girls' team with Angie Mull of Smithfield-Selma the assistant. The West girls' coach is Marsha Crump of Morganton Freedom and Bob Johnston of Albemarle is her assistant.

Jones: Walsh Not Park Ot Walker Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Steve Walsh was not a part of the blockbuster trade that sent Herschel Walker to the Minnesota Vikings, and Walsh's name did not even come up in the negotiations, Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Sunday.

It was reported Saturday by a Fort Worth, Texas, radio station that Dallas would have to send Walsh to Minnesota before Feb. 1 if the Cowboys keep the five players and the conditional draft picks acquired in the deal.

"He was not considered at all in this trade," Jones said when asked about Walsh during the telecast of The NFL Today on CBS.

"His name was never mentioned. He is not a handshake. He is not an eye wink. The trade is as you see it."

Allen Makes A Prophet Of Scott

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii (AP) — Mark Allen proved Dave Scott right, but it wasn't quite as Scott had hoped.

Scott had said his 1986 record of 8 hours, 28 minutes and 37 seconds in the Ironman Triathlon World Championship was "soft," and said an 8:09 finish was possible.

"The race was just as I predicted, but the finish was wrong," Scott, a six-time winner, said after Allen won the 1989 race Saturday.

Allen, 27, of Cardiff, Calif., took 19 minutes, 25 seconds off Scott's record with an 8:09:14 finish.

Gretzky Milestone ...

Northlands Coliseum, many of whom walked by Gretzky's statue on the way in, roared and roared. They had bought every available program by the end of the first period and throughout the third period chanted his name, urging him on.

"I almost didn't play the third period," said Gretzky, who complained of dizziness. "I got my bell rung a couple of times."

He came in needing one point and tied the record right away, assisting on Bernie Nicholls goal at 4:32 of the first period. He got off four shots in the first period but was quiet after that. It turned out he was just setting things up.

He came onto the ice with 3:52 left and stayed on for almost the rest of the game. With about a minute left, the puck rolled his way.

Steve Duchesne passed the puck to Dave Taylor, who directed it in front of the goal. Gretzky had been hanging behind the net.

"I usually don't go out in front," Gretzky said, "but something in my head said you better go out in front."

Gretzky stepped to the far side of goaltender Bill Ranford and rapped the puck into the net. He was mobbed by teammates.

"I didn't do a lot," Gretzky said. "I just threw it up."

Gretzky, at age 28 and in his 11th NHL season, broke the record in less than half the time it took Howe to set it. Howe, who played 26 seasons for the Detroit Red Wings and the Hartford Whalers, had 801 goals and 1,049 assist in 1,767 games.

"I think because of our friendship he felt bad breaking it," Howe said. "He had to do it to keep his job. He can't go the whole season without scoring any points."

Prep Playoffs ...

A surprise this season, Creswell looks to finish 4-2 in the league and earn one of the spots, too.

The third will likely be decided in two weeks when Roanoke plays Columbia. The Wildcats, unbeaten until two weeks ago, have lost their last two in a row and are clinging to their hopes. A victory over Roanoke — or an upset by someone else — will probably decide it.

Best bets: North Edgecombe, Creswell and Roanoke.

New CNN Newscast Begins

By Jar Sharbutt
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Preceded by "here-come-de-judge" jokes and headlines about viewer juries, CNN's new "The World Today" premieres tonight, co-anchored by Bernard Shaw and former Texas judge Catherine Crier.

It will be a closely watched event. It's Crier's debut in news. And it marks a direct CNN push, if only in half the nation, against the "CBS Evening News," ABC's "World News Tonight" and "NBC Nightly News."

Crier, 34, had no experience at all as a journalist when hired by Cable News Network, whose action startled many in news. She only had two weeks on the job at CNN. Shaw, with CNN since it began in 1979, is a 25-year veteran in news who came up the hard, traditional way.

Although he has declined to comment, he reportedly was more than a little miffed at her hiring. Crier says she knows nothing of that: "That's not the message I've been receiving. And I've been working with him."

She meant rehearsals of the new show. Crier, who will co-anchor it at CNN headquarters in Atlanta, with Shaw co-anchoring in Washington, is aware that a certain amount of criticism may follow her on-air debut tonight.

"I'm not as worried about that initial round as I will be six months or a year down the road" if criticism continues, she says. "Because I am brand new to the business, and I acknowledge that, and have a lot to learn."

She doubtless will be the nation's most watched on-the-job trainee. But CNN's new one-hour weeknight newscast, starting at 6 p.m. EDT, isn't likely to make a big dent in ratings of the Big Three for several reasons.

The major networks twice "feed" their half-hour weeknight newscasts to affiliates, the first feed at 6:30 p.m. EDT. West Coast affiliates air those newscasts three hours later on a tape-delay basis.

In contrast, "The World Today" will air live simultaneously in all time zones, with no tape delays for the West Coast. Thus, its head-on competition with the Big Three only will be in Eastern and Central time zones.

Its potential audience also is smaller because only it only is on cable. CNN estimates it is seen in 52 million homes. That's impressive, but there are a total of 92.1 million homes with TV, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. figures.

Ed Turner, CNN's executive vice president for newsgathering, downplays the idea of the newcomer representing major competition to the Big Three.

"In the cable world, I don't know that you say you're going to make a dent in (Nielsen) numbers," he says. "You hope to. But you look for the kind of audience that's most desirable to sponsors — some of the better-educated, more affluent viewers ... and we have a pretty good market for that."

Kloves Persevered To Build His Movie

By John Horn
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — "The Fabulous Baker Boys" is a movie about selling out. How the movie came to be made is a story about hanging tough.

Steve Kloves, the 29-year-old writer and director of the new release from 20th Century Fox, persevered for five years to build his movie, his way. During his odyssey, he dodged a few offers (adapting the Pulitzer Prize-winning "A Confederacy of Dunces"), and brainless studio suggestions for his movie (wouldn't Chevy Chase and Dan Aykroyd be great?).

"The town wasn't nice to this project at all," Kloves said recently.

"Hollywood pummels people. It perverts talent. But I think 'Baker Boys' is proof that if you hang in there ... you can get something made that you believe in."

Teaming together for the first time, brothers Jeff and Beau Bridges play piano-playing brothers Jack and Frank Baker. "Feelings" and "Bali Hai" are tops on the playlist in their cheesy lounge act, and the duo's best break comes when the harpist at the Sheraton cancels for an appendectomy.

The Bakers have bored Seattle's Holiday Inn lonely hearts too many times — Jack and Frank may have played side-by-side since childhood, but they're strangers to each other, and their music isn't getting any better.

"Two pianos isn't enough anymore," Frank finally admits to his younger brother.

After a fruitless search for a female singer, the two are confronted by Susie Diamond (Michelle Pfeiffer), an escort girl whose voice is much more mellifluous than her personality. With Diamond on vocals, the trio soon become a hit, of sorts. And yet, they're still something of a charade.

Jack is a jazz piano genius stuck in a wrinkled tuxedo with no guts to try real music. Frank knows, too, that performing for a low-rent telethon on Channel 71 isn't high art, but he's a father with a family to support.

Compromise, it seems, is part of the gig.

"This is not a movie that has an extraordinary plot," said Kloves, who wrote the 1984 teen movie "Racing With the Moon."

"It's all character ... and it's pretty much the execution of the actors in moments that make this movie work or not work."

But studio executives decided that "The Fabulous Baker Boys" didn't have an extraordinary plot and needed help. "Saturday Night Live" veterans Aykroyd and Chase would make the script funny, studio executives said. Maybe Michael Keaton would be right. Perhaps the Susie Diamond character could really hit it big at the movie's end.

Who knows? One more rewrite, a little more tinkering, ought to do it. Kloves wouldn't budge. At that point Kloves, who had never before directed, was named as the movie's director.

"I think five years give you strength, because you don't want to screw it up after that long," Kloves said of his $11.5 million movie. "I think only one studio in town said they would make the movie, but they didn't want Jeff and Beau."

"And I said, 'No. Absolutely not.' Because Jeff had committed to the project. I mean I was a guy who had never shot a foot of film before. I went up to Montana and Jeff committed to me. That was a big vote of support. So there was no way I was going to sell him out. It all comes down to loyalty.

The Associated Press

Kloves sits in his new home with a poster from his movie

"This town can be real rough on you if you're not considered to be aggressively mainstream. And they were pretty rough on us. There's real satisfaction in one thing: A lot of people who read the script thought that this movie was humorless. But with every preview audience we've had, the first hour and 15 minutes plays almost like a comedy, and then it gets darker."

With the Bridges and Pfeiffer, Kloves found a cast interested more in ensemble acting than star turns.

"There's no entourage, there's ... (nothing) about how big is my trailer," Kloves said. "They're there early and they leave late. That, for a first-time director, is a real gift."

As for commercial success, the filmmaker isn't concerned.

"The truth is we encountered, to put it mildly, severe resistance in this town," he said. "There is satisfaction in the sense that we got it made. I know we were right to make it. Whether it's going to make any money, I can't worry about that."

William Hurt Says He Almost Quit Acting

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Actor William Hurt says the ordeal of being center stage in a highly publicized court case pushed him to the brink of abandoning his acting career.

"I've been walking the edge for a long time, thinking about whether acting is the right thing for me to be doing," Hurt said in an interview in Sunday's editions of The New York Times. "I have never said that because I was an actor you can have my privacy, you can steal my soul. You can't."

The Oscar-winner drew headlines this summer and fall in the lawsuit filed in New York state court by the mother of his 6-year-old son.

Sandra Jennings claimed she was Hurt's common-law wife and deserved a portion of the millions Hurt has earned during the past eight years. A judge ruled in Hurt's favor two weeks ago, but Jennings is appealing the verdict.

To gather his thoughts, Hurt has returned to the stage at the Circle Repertory Company, where he was a performing member from 1977 to 1982.

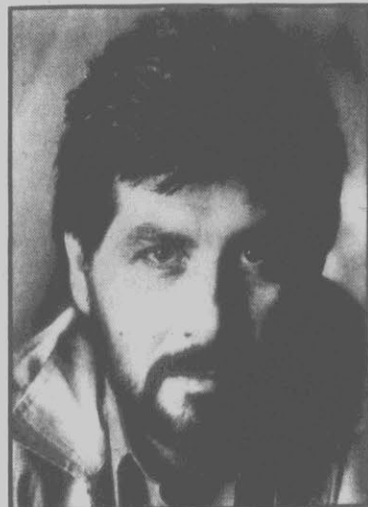

Hurt stars opposite Lois Smith in "Beside Herself," a play by Joe Pinzauro about a middle-age woman who confronts the ghosts of her younger self.

"This is the best thing I could be doing right now," he said. "I can relax the most. My guard doesn't have to be up."

Hurt has starred in the films, "The Big Chill," "Body Heat," and "Broadcast News," and won an Academy Award for "The Kiss of the Spider Woman."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY Oct. 17

ARIES (March 20 to April 17): Use a little money to make your home more attractive, and then you will be able to invite interesting friends there. Take your attachment to see a relative and a neighbor.

TAURUS (April 18 to May 19): Two family members will bring practical benefits into your home. There are several new ways by which you will be able to add to your income.

GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): In any family conference hold them in strictest confidence. Avoid discussing secret matters in the presence of good and polite friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): You can make more money if you keep quiet about your cleverness and inventiveness. Don't expect too much of whoever dwells beneath your own roof.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Big plans you have for work will have to be postponed for a little while. Specific directions given by a higher-up should be carefully followed.

VRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Don't let an emotional associate keep you from seeing your friends. Enter with pleasure into all the activities at your home.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Two friendly couples from a distance can make this an active pleasant day. Fighting over an obligation will only cause more dissension.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Accept now a younger person into your circle of friends. Your home can now be filled and overflowing with newcomers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): In friendship, don't try to keep up with the very prosperous friends you know. Important men are not yet willing to release to you the data you desire.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): Your family will aid you to perfect your talents, creative ideas. Accept an invitation from an outside associate for you and your loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): Your uncertainty requires that you postpone a very important business matter. Put all that restlessness that you feel at home to good use.

PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): A very good day to do spring house cleaning at home. You can get the financial knowledge and data you desire from periodicals.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠ 7 ♥ 954 ♦ AJ10652 ♣ 876
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Dbl ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—With 10 HCP or more, you would start off by redoubling. Therefore, you can bid two diamonds now without worrying that partner might play you for a good hand. Your hand rates to take at least four tricks with diamonds as trumps, and partner's high cards will work for you.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠ A1093 ♥ J2 ♦ K65 ♣ AK73
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass
 What action do you take?
 A.—Partner has taken two bids, so he might have a reasonable hand. But even though you were within an eyelash of opening one no trump, you may not be safe at the two-level if partner turns up with a dead minimum. Pass.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠ 4 ♥ KJ102 ♦ AQ10 ♣ AQ1093
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 1 ♣ Dbl Pass 2 ♥
 Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Remember, you have forced partner to bid, so you might find little of value facing you. Nevertheless, your hand is considerably better than a minimum takeout double. Invite game by raising to three hearts.

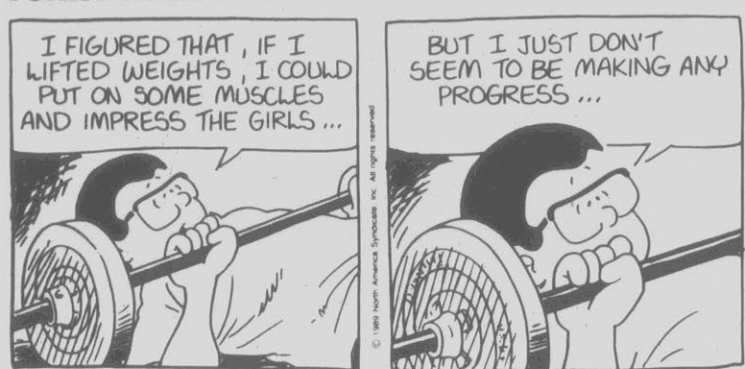

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠ AKQ ♥ AQ10962 ♦ 6 ♣ K94
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Partner has promised some 6-9 points, and while you can't be sure that those will be the right values, you need so little for game we would opt for four hearts. Don't bid three hearts. That would be only invitational, and it's the location of partner's high cards that's key, not the strength of the hand!

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠ 5 ♥ 8763 ♦ AKJ92 ♣ J53
 Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
 A.—Don't count your spade singleton as 2 points and respond two diamonds. Until such time as you find a fit, your singleton in partner's suit is a liability, not an asset. Bid one no trump.

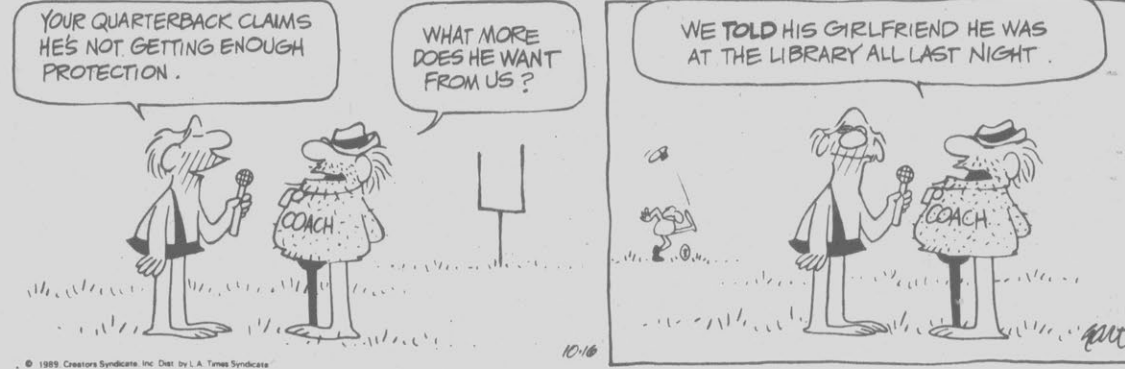

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠ Q76 ♥ J103 ♦ 752 ♣ KQ107
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
 2 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Partner's raise invites you to bid game if you are maximum for your initial response, i.e. 8-10 points. You have a borderline 8 points, but they are fortified by a couple of tens, so accept with alacrity by bidding three no trump.

Wall Street Sees Stocks Drop Off As Rally Ebbs

By Peter Coy
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Stock prices opened sharply lower today as investors registered concerns about a worsening trade picture.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 24.39 at 2,632.99 at 11 a.m. Broader market indicators also showed a decline.

The closely watched Dow had ended a volatile day of trading Monday with a gain of 88.12 points, or 3.4 percent, at 2,657.38 — the fourth-biggest point rise on record. Volume was the fourth-largest in history, with 416.29 million shares changing hands.

The Monday rally erased about half of Friday's 190.58-point plunge, the worst decline since the Black Monday crash of Oct. 19, 1987.

Larry Wachtel, a vice president at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., attributed today's retreat largely to concerns that the U.S. trade deficit was worsening and could lead to higher interest rates.

The Commerce Department reported today that the nation's trade shortfall increased to $10.77 billion in August, up 30.77 percent from a revised July deficit of $8.24 billion.

Many economists had expected the latest trade deficit to be about $9 billion. Today's report initially sent the dollar lower, but bond prices were slightly higher.

In the broader stock market today, declining issues outpaced advances by a 7-to-3 margin, with 761 down and 330 up after the first half hour of trading. Early volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 23 million shares.

Monday's rally was concentrated in blue-chip stocks, which benefited from a "flight to quality" among nervous investors while many smaller issues continued to lose ground.

Declining issues outnumbered advancing ones by a 5-to-4 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Indexes of the American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter stocks fell.

Friday's plunge had raised fears of a repeat of Oct. 19, 1987, when a Friday decline turned into a Monday rout that knocked a record 508 points off the Dow average. That did not turn out to be the case.

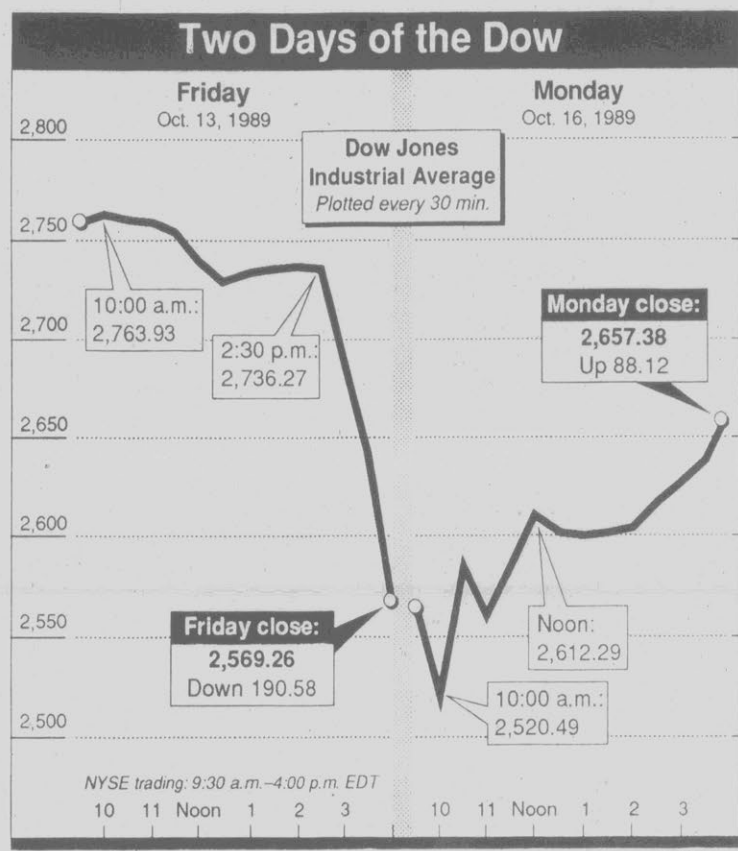

Stocks held up despite a steep decline in the U.S. bond market and weakness in foreign stock markets.

Stock indexes on Monday fell 1.8 percent in Tokyo, 3.2 percent in London and a steep 12.8 percent in Frankfurt, West Germany, where one trader described trading as a "bloodbath."

Today, the Nikkei Stock Average closed at 34,996.08, up 527.39 points, on the Tokyo Stock Exchange. It was the second-largest rise in the key index this year.

The dollar closed at 142.25 yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market today, up 1.50 yen from Monday's close.

Trade Gap Broadens Sharply

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The U.S. trade deficit widened dramatically to $10.77 billion in August, the biggest imbalance in eight months, the government said today in a report which sent stock prices tumbling at the start of trading.

The Commerce Department said the August shortfall between imports and exports was 30.8 percent higher than a revised July deficit of $8.24 billion.

While analysts had been expecting the trade deficit to worsen in August, the actual figure was much higher than a consensus forecast for a deficit of around $9 billion.

Unexpectedly bad trade reports have in times past sent shock waves through financial markets, first causing the dollar to plunge, with the weaker U.S. currency acting to pull down stock prices as well.

The dollar dipped in early trading and stock prices opened sharply lower.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 industrial stocks plunged 24.59 at the opening, but the loss was cut to 12.50 within 30 minutes. Traders attributed the early sell-off to concerns that the trade deficit was worsening and that could lead to higher interest rates.

The August deficit was the worst trade imbalance since a $10.80 billion deficit last December.

The widening gap resulted from a 0.2 percent decline in exports to $30.4 billion and a 6.4 percent increase in imports to $41.2 billion.

Fed Cash Flow Sets Off Selling

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve, taking the lead in handling the government's market rescue efforts, stood prepared for more damage control today as an unexpectedly bad economic report touched off an initial selling spurt on the stock market.

The government reported that the merchandise trade deficit in August widened dramatically to $10.77 billion, the worst deficit since December of last year.

The bad trade report triggered an early sell-off on the stock market with the Dow Jones industrial average off almost 25 points within the first few minutes of trading as investors worried about more volatility in a market which has plunged and surged over the previous two trading days.

Analysts were waiting to see whether the Federal Reserve would flood the banking system with more cash today given the bad trade report.

The Fed pumped $2 billion into the banking system on Monday to back up its pledge to keep the Friday the 13th stock market plunge from having a disastrous ripple effect through the financial system.

Some private economists have expressed worries that by pumping up the U.S. money supply, the central bank was running the risk of making inflation worse and weakening the value of the U.S. dollar. But Fed officials discounted those fears and said they stood ready to supply more money if needed to insulate the banking system from the stock market turmoil.

For its part, the Bush administration was playing down any worries over the dollar or inflation, preferring to bask instead in successfully keeping the market's 190-point plunge on Friday the 13th from becoming a rerun of 1987's Black Monday.

Instead of another huge drop, the market rallied Monday to regain nearly half of the losses suffered on Friday, leaving the administration breathing a sigh of relief.

"Calm and cool has prevailed," said one Treasury official who spoke after the markets closed on Monday.

Many economists said they believed the Fed's $2 billion infusion on Monday threatened the dollar's stability by driving down U.S. interest rates.

"Reducing interest rates too much could bring the dollar down," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of the Boston Co. "Any dollar slide would be the most dangerous prospect for

Shuttle Fueled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — About 200 armed security guards patrolled against anti-nuclear trespassers as the space shuttle Atlantis was fueled for this afternoon's launch carrying the plutonium-powered Galileo space probe.

The $1.5 billion Galileo, bound for Jupiter, is the most expensive and sophisticated unmanned spacecraft ever built and is expected to give the best look yet at the mysteries of another planet.

"It is the Rolls-Royce of spacecraft," said Clayne Yeates, one of the mission managers.

The shuttle and its five astronauts were scheduled to lift off at 12:57 p.m. Liftoff had been set for last Thursday, but was delayed when an engine computers malfunctioned and had to be replaced.

Late Monday, a faulty navigational unit was replaced without causing any delay, said NASA spokesman Ken Senstad.

Addition At Eastern School Approved By County Board

By Stuart Savage
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

BETHEL — An addition to Eastern Elementary School in Greenville was among $1.04 million in school capital projects approved for funding Monday by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

The $896,509 Eastern addition, authorized during the county panel's meeting at Bethel's public service building, includes nine new kindergarten and first-grade classrooms, staff and student restrooms, and storage and mechanical space.

The money for the Eastern project includes some $570,215 in county funds and more than $326,000 in state public school building dollars.

Two other projects approved Monday were an $85,000 proposal to provide a new water well at Pac-tolus Elementary School (the present well is said to be subject to immediate failure which would force the school to close), and $67,000 for an additional classroom at Falkland Elementary School.

The 1,000-square-foot classroom approved for the Falkland school is in addition to classrooms to be added in a $578,650 project approved by commissioners in July.

School Superintendent Eddie West told commissioners that the additional classroom would be needed to take care of the projected enrollment at the school during the coming year.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution giving Pitt County Memorial Hospital officials the authority to "further pursue financing alternatives" as part of a proposed plan to add 143 new beds.

Early proposals to add the new beds and expand other areas at the medical facility suggested issuing bonds to pay the estimated $58 million price.

But hospital officials told commissioners last week that issuing two series of bonds totaling as much as

School Board Will 'Listen'

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It was all smiles Monday as the Pitt County Board of Education met with the heads of local school advisory councils.

In the first of a series of regular meetings, board members agreed to listen more closely to the people they appointed to advise them.

Board Chairman George E. Williams called the meeting on the recommendation of Stephen D.

Blades, outgoing chairman of the Greenville K-5 advisory council. Blades had asked for closer cooperation between the advisory councils and the board.

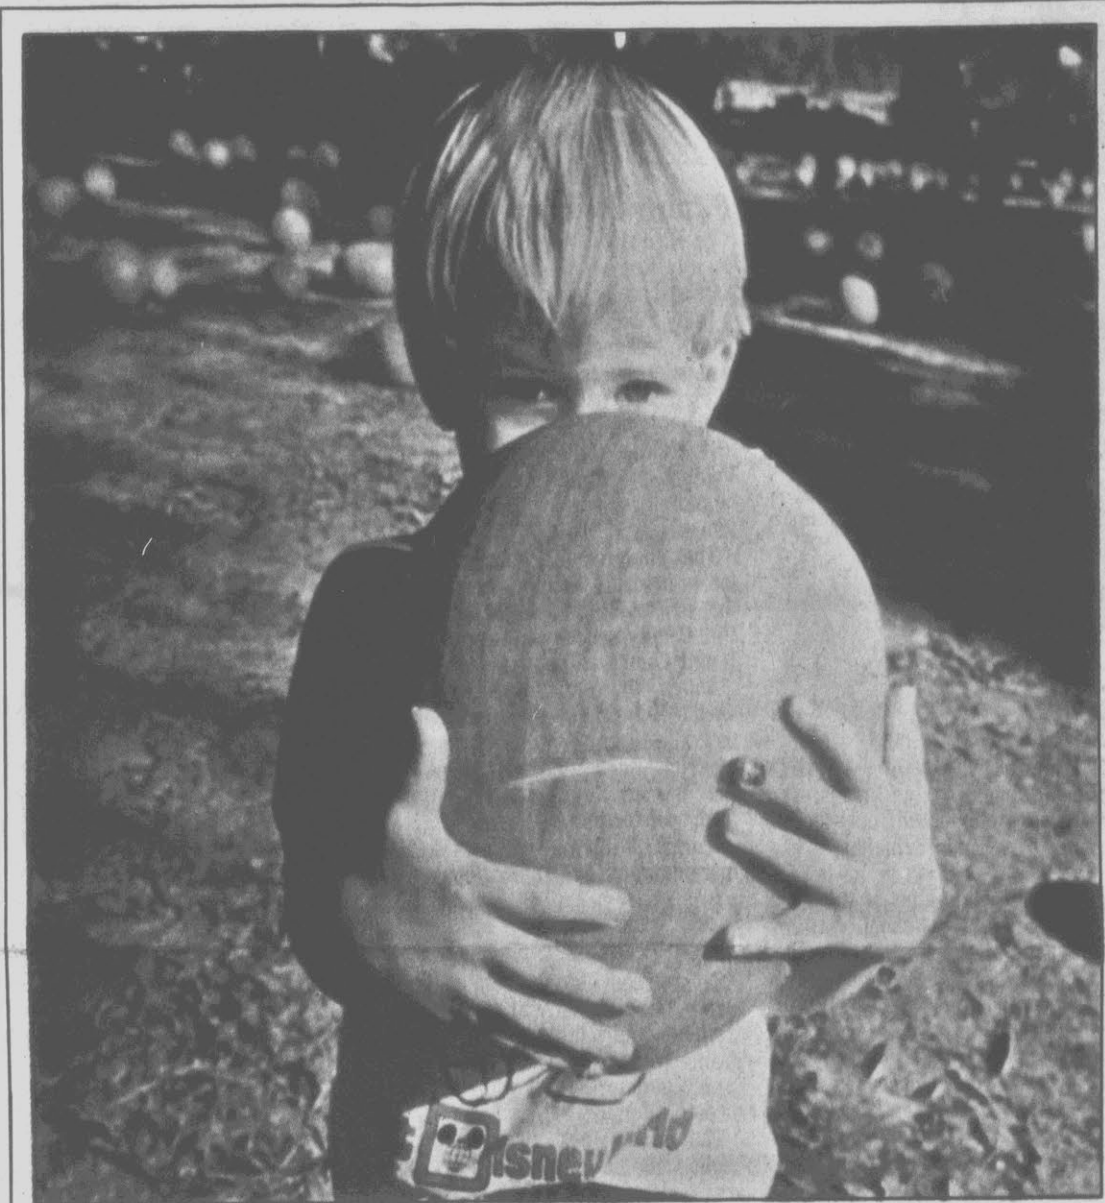

As a result of Blades' recommendation, the board will meet with council chairmen at least twice a year to discuss issues that concern the school system, Williams said.

The school board's split 7-5 decision on Sept. 18 to deny Superintendent Edwin L. West Jr. renewal of his contract brought criticism from some county residents, who accused the board of being out of touch with the community. The vote also conjured up the image of a divided board, threatening passage of a $25.7 million bond referendum that the board says is badly needed.

At Monday's meeting, the advisory council heads agreed that better communications between them and the board is needed. They say they want to have a more active role in shaping policy for the school system as a liaison between board members and the community.

Reflector Literacy Drive Wins Award

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Daily Reflector has been named first place winner in the under 25,000 circulation division of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association's Literacy Awareness Contest.

Presentation of the award was made today during the SNPA's annual convention in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. A $500 monetary award from the SNPA will be conveyed by The Reflector to Literacy Volunteers of Pitt County at a date to be set.

The Reflector's efforts for adult literacy have been carried out in ongoing cooperation with the local Literacy Volunteers of America.

Dr. Libby Knott, president of the local LVA said, "It's because of Reflector staff person Diane Williams and Mac Nicholson, our public relations chairman, that the local LVA has been as successful as it has. The Greenville area community has developed a strong commitment to support adult literacy largely because the public has been so well made aware that many adults in Pitt County need to learn to read and write

Ferren Will Head Leadership School

Arlene Ferren, coordinator of pupil services with Pitt County schools, will chair this year's Leadership Institute for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. The institute is scheduled to begin Nov. 13 with the theme "Guiding Futures."

Nominations are now being accepted for participation in the 1989-90 Leadership Institute offered by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. With over 130 graduates living and working in the community, the institute will soon embark on its eighth year of developing community leadership potential.

The Institute Steering Committee will accept nominations for the 20 participant slots through Friday. Selections will be announced by Oct. 27.

Developed by the chamber to ensure a continuing reservoir of leadership talent for the future, the institute consists of a series of one-day workshops designed to provide potential leaders an in-depth understanding of the resources and needs of the community. Participants conclude the series with small group projects on topics of current community interest.

Participation requires a time commitment of one to two days per month during the period of Nov. 1989 to April 1990.

To be considered for participation in the Leadership Institute or to nominate someone else, contact Pat Burnette at 752-4101 or Arlene M. Ferren at 830-4220.

Chamber Sponsors Planning Conference

About 100 people from the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce attended a planning conference in Myrtle Beach, S.C., last weekend to discuss key issues facing the area in the 1990s.

Panel discussions were held on topics such as local and state government, education, economic development, adolescent health care and drugs.

"It was a great conference. We had a good cross section of people from all over the community," said Mavis Butts, chairman-elect.

Ms. Butts said the session was effective in identifying potential community problems and in devising possible solutions for those problems.

"We had discussions on many topics and I think from them we were able to come up with some good ways of working with our problems," Ms. Butts said.

Participants also discussed ways to attract more tourists into the area and ways to improve local government.

There was a panel discussion on each topic and a question and answer session that followed. Participants talked about what is happening now and what they anticipate will happen in the future in these areas.

The out-of-town planning session is held each year to help chamber members identify and plan their activities for the year.

$88.4 million could be much better for the hospital.

Cathy Barger, PCMH's chief financial officer, said at the Oct. 11 meeting that a new proposal suggests that some $33 million in bonds should be issued in one series, with a second issue of some $55 million at a later time.

About $20 million from the first issue — considered pay back for capital projects already paid for from hospital revenues — would be deposited in the bank. The remainder of the first issue and the proceeds from the second issue would be used for capital projects.

The additional $20 million in the bank would increase the hospital's cash position to the point, Mrs. Barger said, that the $55 million bond issue would receive a higher rating, thus decreasing the hospital's cost of financing.

Mrs. Barger said that in effect the hospital's debt is so low that an additional $33 million would not affect the bond rating to a great degree. But she said that an additional $20 million in the bank could mean the difference between a BBB bond rating and an A-plus.

Commissioners must give final approval for any bond issue by the hospital. And any bonds issued by the medical facility would be repaid from hospital revenues, not property tax money.

The board formally approved First Boston Corp. as bond underwriters for the hospital bond issue, along with J.C. Bradford & Co. (formerly Carolina Securities), First Union National Bank, Interstate/Johnson & Lane, NCNB National Bank, Shearson Lehman Hutton, Wachovia Bank & Trust and Wheat First Securities as co-managers.

Jean Darden, a resident of Trent Circle in Greenville who said she was speaking for a group of people living in the area of Pitt-Greenville Airport, encouraged the board not to locate a new jail in the vicinity of the N.C. 11-N.C. 33 intersection.

"We think it will help you to know beforehand how we feel about it," she said.

Mrs. Darden said residents of the area do not want a jail near their homes because they would "be afraid" for their safety, their property values would decrease and the already difficult traffic conditions in the area would become much worse.

"You have a choice" of where to locate the new jail, Mrs. Darden told commissioners. "We don't. We're at your mercy."

Eugene James, chairman of the board, told Mrs. Darden that "no land has been selected for a jail. We are looking at several sites."

But county representatives have talked with state officials about the possibility of acquiring state-owned property at the N.C. 11-N.C. 33 intersection as a jail site.

RALEIGH (AP) — A luxury-car importer has pleaded guilty to mail fraud, understating the value of cars on invoices, failing to pay federal income taxes he had deducted and filing a false tax return.

Lyle Eugene Lathe, who formerly operated of L&L International Inc., of Wilmington, pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court under a plea bargain in which prosecutors promised to recommend a sentence of less than five years. U.S. District Judge W. Earl Britt set sentencing for mid-January or later.

White House Will Veto Abortion Bill

By William M. Welch
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush will veto a bill allowing federally financed abortions in cases of rape and incest after giving up efforts to find a compromise, his spokesman said today.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the provision, part of a spending bill already approved by a House-Senate conference committee and the full House, would be vetoed once it wins final Senate approval.

The White House previously had hinted that a veto was likely. Today, Fitzwater said it flatly.

The White House abandoned the bid for a compromise after chief of staff John Sununu met for a second day Monday with leading anti-abortion congressmen.

"We talked to people on all sides of the issue ... We couldn't find any flexibility," Fitzwater said today.

Bush earlier had threatened to veto legislation expanding current law, but last week he said he was seeking "room for flexibility" to avert a veto.

"I'm not looking for any conflict over this," he said Friday. "I'm not going to change my position any. But let's see how those negotiations come out."

Congressional Democratic leaders have already conceded they do not have enough votes to override a veto of the measure, which has already passed the House.

The efforts to reach a compromise were never given much of a chance by abortion rights supporters, who won a surprise victory last week in the House and expressed no willingness to yield their position.

Fitzwater acknowledged as much after Sununu met with Reps. Vin Weber, R-Minn., Christopher Smith, R-N.J., and Henry Hyde, R-Ill., just as he did on Friday.

"I don't think really there was ever much opportunity to get close," Fitzwater said. He said "senior advisers" to the president "have recommended a veto."

Abortion rights supporters warned that a veto will hurt the Republican party in the context of what some believe is a changing political climate on the issue.

"If he vetos it, it hurts him," Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., said earlier Monday. "It hurts our party. It hurts our candidates."

Packwood said a veto could particularly damage GOP candidates for governor in Virginia and New Jersey, two states with races this fall in which the abortion issue has been successfully used by Democrats who back abortion rights against anti-abortion Republicans.

"He's misjudged badly the sentiment of the public on the issue of choice," Kate Michelman, head of the National Abortion Rights Action

League, said earlier Monday. "He's going to have to take his lumps."

The language dropping a 10-year-old ban on the use of federal money for abortions by poor women in cases of rape and incest is included in a $156.7 billion appropriations bill for the labor and health and human services departments. Current law allows Medicaid abortions only when the mother's life is in danger.

The bill next goes to the Senate for agreement on a separate provision.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said he did not know when the bill would come to the floor. Senate sources said Republicans are holding up the bill while they decide on their next move.

Board

Board members agreed to revise the policy governing advisory councils to better define their role. Local council representatives will be invited to participate in the process.

Currently, each of the 31 schools in Pitt County is represented on an advisory council, whose members are appointed by the school board.

Both school board and advisory council members said the meeting helped heal divisions in the school system at a critical time just before the Dec. 12 bond referendum.

"I think it's just a good way to establish the communications process that we would like to establish," Williams said.

"We are committed to this."

"I think this is a really good idea of the school board's," Ed Congleton, chairman of the Stokes Elementary School advisory council, said. "It opened up the lines of communication that some people thought had been closed."

Salvadoran Peace Talks Deadlocked

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORAVIA, Costa Rica — El Salvador's conservative government and leftist rebels opened talks on ending the country's 10-year-old civil war and immediately reached a deadlock as each side rejected the other's first proposal.

Joaquin Villalobos, a leader of the rebel Farabundo National Liberation Front, said the government's offer amounted to no more than "a call for unconditional surrender."

Justice Minister Oscar Santamaria, who is heading the government delegation for the talks that are to last through today, called the proposal "serious and responsible."

The rebels proposed a series of military, economic, political and legal reforms directed toward achieving peace and democracy.

A source close to the rebels said today the proposal includes removal of top military chiefs who are directing the war. They include Defense Minister Gen. Humberto Larrios; Gen. Juan Rafael Bustillo, the air force commander, and numerous brigade commanders.

A copy of the government offer obtained by The Associated Press calls for the rebels to cease hostilities by Wednesday, demobilize immediately and organize to participate in elections and the country's political life.

The proposal promises only to "halt military operations without prejudice that the armed forces carry out their constitutional duties."

It implicitly rejects a rebel proposal for a cease-fire in exchange for a government promise to undertake wide political and social reforms, purge the armed forces of rightist officers and negotiate a permanent end to hostilities.

"Basically, the government proposal is to stop the fighting, without basis or discussion — simply silence the guns. This is an absurd, illogical and inflexible scheme," Villalobos said.

Government spokesman Juan Martinez Varela denied the offer was merely a scheme to get the rebels to lay down their weapons. "We are not asking anyone to surrender," he said, but refused to answer further questions.

This was the second round of talks between the two sides since President Alfredo Cristiani took office in June for a five-year term.

You Will Never Have To Face THIS At The Diet Center

...because our weight loss program is designed to be safe, effective, and pain-free. And that means no shots, EVER! Instead, we rely on a completely natural food supplement which is specifically formulated to complement the Diet Center Program. It's not a placebo. It's not an appetite suppressant. It's a food supplement that is designed to help stabilize the blood sugar level in your body. And blood sugar stabilization is the underlying principle of the Diet Center Program.

At Diet Center, we'll teach you how refined sugar, as well as stress and other factors, can cause your blood sugar to fluctuate. When sugar level is low, for example, you feel nervous and hungry, and have a difficult time making correct food choices. But with our food supplement, and with the food selections used in the Diet Center Program, you'll learn to eat nutritious foods with "staying power," ON TIME, ON A SCHEDULE. And you won't feel deprived or hungry, or experience loss of energy. With our program, you'll discover that:

- You will lose weight rapidly
- You will not be hungry
- You will have energy
- You will feel TERRIFIC!

And the best part of all is that it's completely painless. And So EASY!

So, if you're looking for a weight loss program that's safe, effective, and won't make you the least bit squeamish, don't look any further. Come to Diet Center. And feel no pain.

Neon Message

Outcry Shows Deep Concern

You can battle drug abuse with police, prison, treatment and education, but if John Q. Public doesn't fight it in his own neighborhood, the struggle is a lost cause.

In Greenville, a group of citizens have shown they are willing to raise their fists and their voices against problems they see as a threat to their neighborhoods — drug dealing and drug abuse. Members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference led a group of angry citizens on a march from the SCLC offices on Albemarle Avenue to Greenville's Town Commons Sunday to formally declare war against drugs in the community.

While it would be easy to be cynical about the effectiveness of a march, there's no reason to be. The shouting that went on during that march wasn't just rhetoric. It was an outcry that shows a deep concern for community by a significant segment of its citizens — along with a tangible commitment to improving that community. The people who walked through the streets of Greenville — some of the same streets frequented by drug dealers — shouting anti-drug slogans and bearing signs displayed their disdain for a scourge that can unravel the social fabric of the strongest community.

Their determination to rid their neighborhoods of drugs sends a neon message to leaders, elected officials and the rest of the city's citizens — one that should be heeded. We won't tolerate drugs, they are saying. Drugs are threatening our lives and our children's futures, and we'll fight them even if it involves personal risk.

That message is a challenge to each citizen to join the battle. Drug abuse affects everyone and every neighborhood and won't be overcome until each citizen takes up arms against it. That may mean marching, turning in drug dealers, helping users get help or taking time to guide youngsters away from drugs. It may mean higher taxes to pay for better enforcement and aggressive prevention programs in schools. It may mean giving a user or dealer a second chance by giving him or her a job. All these things are part of the fight.

The message of the SCLC march is a relevant one in a community that ardently seeks a high quality of life for all its citizens. To attain that quality, the drug problem cannot be overlooked. It affects all aspects of the community and must be fought with earnest commitment by all segments.

Police can do their part, as can treatment centers, drug education programs and prisons. But John Q. Public must also do his.

'The message of the SCLC march is a relevant one in a community that ardently seeks a high quality of life for all its citizens.'

Start At The Beginning

WASHINGTON — What can Lawton Chiles be talking about with his proposal for "universal access" to prenatal care? Is there really anyplace in America where pregnant women (or adolescents) can't get prenatal care — through the welfare department or through public-health clinics?

The retired Florida senator has one answer; Rae K. Grad, the executive director of his National Commission to Prevent Infant Mortality, has another.

Says Chiles: "Access can be denied in a number of ways: through cultural inhibitions, through inconvenience, through lack of money or through lack of knowledge." It isn't enough just to put clinics out there, he said. Their use has to be legitimized and encouraged.

Grad, who accompanied Chiles during a recent interview, agreed. The day before the interview, the Ph.D.-holding registered nurse had put in several volunteer hours at a clinic in the economically hard-pressed Southeast Washington, where she had seen a dozen pregnant teen-agers.

"Half of them were either on cocaine or else had V.D.," she said. "Most were in the eighth month of their pregnancies, and this was their first prenatal visit."

But their hesitancy in seeking prenatal care was not their only lack of access, she said. "Several said they had tried to get appointments but were bumped for lack of staff. The clinics, trying desperately to reduce the city's shameful infant-mortality rate, have made babies a priority. The tragic side of this well-intentioned decision is that it bumps women. They can't always get prenatal care when they seek it; they can't even renew their birth-control prescriptions." So the clinics wind up treating sick babies who wouldn't have been sick — who might not even have been conceived — if they had been able to see the women.

That, by anybody's definition, is lack of access. So what would Chiles propose to do about it? Essentially, two things.

First, he would like to see a shift to "one-stop shopping" for health care. "We find that pregnant women may have to go to four different places and fill out forms that can run up to 30-odd pages at each one, in order to get the services they are entitled to. One office for WIC (the federal nutrition program for women, infants and children), another for food stamps, a third for maternal and child care, and a fourth for Medicaid.

"In today's computer age, one office ought to be able to ask a woman a simple set of questions and then tell her what she is entitled to."

If that makes sense, the second idea (which Chiles acknowledges is not his own) is borderline genius: the routine use of "resource mothers" — neighborhood women who have successfully raised their own children — as counselors for pregnant girls.

"We're talking about local women, known and respected in the neighborhood, who would deal one-on-one with no more than 10 or 12 girls each. The kids know these women care about them, so they will listen.

"And these women can be as tough as necessary without driving the girls away. 'I heard you had a beer or a cigarette,' they might say. Or 'You know, you don't have to repeat this; you can do something with your own life, and I can get you the help you need to do it.'

"Our studies indicate that if a girl has a baby by age 13, she'll have three by age 18. Well, where resource mothers have been used, the repeat rate has been cut in half. It's already working in places like Norfolk, Appalachia, Louisiana and Rochester, N.Y., and I'm trying to get it started in Quincy, Fla."

Congress recently passed legislation to establish six "resource mother" demonstration projects.

Chiles's commission has also had some success in getting several major employers to institute prenatal programs.

"The business sector is beginning to realize that for them to have a vibrant work force, they have to get involved in early childhood education — down to age 4," he said. "What we are saying is that we need to go down four more years, to prenatal care. In order for even a program like Head Start to work, it helps if the child has a healthy start in life."

It all makes sense. America, lately awake to its disgraceful infant-mortality rate, is spending millions of dollars on high-tech care for children born with serious health problems, and with the new "crack baby" phenomenon, that spending will increase.

It would be more efficient — and enormously cheaper — to start with pregnant women.

The Big Boys Can Call Tokyo Collect

WASHINGTON — Boy, am I tired. Haven't slept a wink all night. Was up at 1 a.m., sitting before my computer, working the stock markets. I moved around the world with the sun, buying and selling stocks, bonds, precious metals and corn futures in places like Tokyo, Hong Kong, Sidney, Frankfurt, Paris and London. On paper, I made $89,325 before the New York markets opened. Here's how I did it.

Richard Cohen

On Friday, after the New York Stock Market fell almost 200 points, I decided that Monday was the day to make a lot of money. I listened to the experts on television explain what had happened. Some said that the market plunge reflected lowered corporate profits. Others said corporate profits were up and so, soon, would be the market. I took note of all this.

I watched "Wall Street Week." I learned that now was the time to buy. I learned that now was the time to sell. In the newspapers, I was told that the economy was doing fine and, also, doing not so fine. The trouble was junk bonds, which had been slipping, but not corporate bonds or the bellwether U.S. Treasuries, in which I have had a large position ever since I saw them as a smart investment while in the Army. For the purchase of a bond, you were moved to the head of the chow line. I bought.

'But then I hit the wrong key on the computer. In a flash, I moved from semi-precious metals to semi-trailers and became a minority owner in a trucking company.'

Here, then, was my portfolio at midnight Sunday. I was heavily leveraged in debt equity (Mastercard, Visa and Sears) with a slight cash-flow problem which, every Tuesday, brings me a visit from a guy named Vito. I was prepared to option my options and arbitrage what I had left. As for my debentures, my dentist said they were fine. Traditionally, my family does not trade in pork bellies but corn futures is a different matter entirely. I have never bought soybeans because never in my life have I ever seen anyone eat them. I do not buy what I do not eat.

My day began when the Tokyo market opened. I traded dollars for yen, charging them to my Visa account up to the limit. I sold corn futures short, bought American Airlines long, did the huckle-buck with Leonore Helmsley and took a small position in Sony so I could have an even smaller position in Columbia Pictures. This, I hoped, would admit me to certain screenings both here and on the Coast.

Moving on to Hong Kong, my computer told me that there was a slight difference between Tokyo futures and Frankfurt pasts. I therefore bought in one place, sold in another and rejected a computer date from a woman in Wyoming. At this point, I negotiated a loan in Sydney, paid it off in Hong Kong and used the profits I made in the currency differential to buy semi-precious metals in Frankfurt.

By now, the Paris and London exchanges had opened. The dollar was down, the mark up and the yen steady, albeit in light trading. This meant nothing to me, but it had profound meaning to my computer program. By pressing F10, I bought and sold dollars, yen and marks, went in and out of diamonds, bought 10,000 head of New Zealand sheep, sold them in Austria and picked up a bottle of scotch at the duty-free shop in Amsterdam. I was $52,287 ahead — at the current rate of exchange.

There was so much to ponder. Inflation might be going up. Congress had imposed Gramm-Rudman. The federal deficit was growing and the Giants had lost the first two games of the series. I optioned my series bet, ran out to the automatic teller machine (ATM), answered the door to get the scotch, faxed a message, heard the beep of "call waiting," and was asked if Lulu was home. That interruption cost me $16,987 — at the current rate of exchange.

In and out I went. Precious metals. Corn. Wheat. Stocks. Bonds. Options and futures. I was leveraged and unleveraged. My computer was smoking. My fax machine was beeping. I was working in ten different time zones, in four different currencies. I had no idea what I was doing, but neither, I knew, did anyone else. This was the way to make money. It had nothing to do with actually making a product. I knew that.

But just before the New York market opened, everything went wrong. I was poised for the kill. My strategy was to sell short, whatever that is, and then take my profits from all my losses and arbitrage them so that, in the long run, they were capitalized and amortized. I paused, breathless and on the verge of immense wealth.

But then I hit the wrong key on the computer. In a flash, I moved from semi-precious metals to semi-trailers and became a minority owner in a trucking company. I sold that for grain futures, bought options on margin (or was it margins on option?) and ended the day making $89,325, which is what it cost me in phone charges.

That's the difference between me and the Big Boys. They call Tokyo collect.

Tax Package A Nice Gift To Future Legislators

Paul
O'Connor

RALEIGH — Included in the state tax reforms and increases of 1989 is a small gift for future budget writers and tax collectors.

The 1989 General Assembly raised highway taxes for all, cut income taxes for many, raised income taxes for others, and reinvigorated the mechanism that allows tax revenues to grow at rates faster than the economy.

The 1989 changes, which became effective immediately, mean that 700,000 of the state's lowest income residents no longer must pay personal income tax rolls while other low-income North Carolinians will pay less state income tax. Higher taxes on higher-income individuals will offset the lost revenue.

The sales tax was also raised — but only for major purchases like automobiles, aircraft and boats.

Some higher bracket taxpayers will find the tax increases offset by smaller accountants' fees for filling out the new, simplified state tax return. State taxes also are deductible on the federal return.

While the gasoline tax increase is destined to raise billions to pay for the highway program, the income tax changes were designed to be revenue neutral. That is, they are not supposed to raise any more money than income taxes brought in last year, adjusted for growth and inflation.

Over the long term, the income tax changes will help the treasury, however. They will maintain the favorable ratio that currently exists between economic growth and tax growth.

Some taxes grow faster than the economy. The income tax, since adjusted by the 1937 General Assembly, has been such a tax. In recent decades, the income tax has grown by about 1.4 percent for every 1 percent growth in the economy.

That tax growth over and above economic growth is important. Tax historians say that it is the major reason North Carolina went from 1937 to 1983 without a major income tax increase even though the state added many new programs in that time.

Had the legislature not changed the tax system, that ratio would almost certainly have dropped over the coming decade. As per capita income rises, the mathematical formula which drives the more rapid growth of tax revenues changes. The result would have been tax growth in the 1990s that more closely resembled economic growth. Economists call this tax principle "elasticity."

The 1989 reforms knock many low income people off the tax rolls. But if those people participate in economic growth, and if there is inflation, then they will return to the tax rolls. When they do, they will fuel tax revenue growth that exceeds economic growth.

The sales tax increases may dramatically improve the ratio of sales tax revenues to economic growth in the next few years. It is a tax which grows more slowly than the economy. Every 10 percent increase in economic growth generates only about 8.5 percent growth in sales tax revenue.

The 1989 changes will help many low-income taxpayers, but it will also provide for some growth in taxes in the 1990s without requiring legislators to vote for tax increases. That is a nice gift to future legislators.

Analysis

Investors' Confidence Lifts Prices

James Flanigan

Investors were certainly confident Monday as they bulled stock prices to a big rebound from Friday's collapse. But whether they should have been so upbeat is another question.

"Considering that corporate earnings are falling, not rising, it's amazing how easy it was for the market to bounce back," Charles Clough, chief investment strategist for Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, said. But even though he was skeptical, Clough recommended that his firm's professional investor clients increase their holdings of common stocks and reduce holdings of bonds.

In doing so, he followed a thundering herd of brokerage houses making similar recommendations. Goldman Sachs, Shearson Lehman Hutton, Paine Webber and the research house Sanford C. Bernstein, among others, advised customers to put more money in the stock market.

Evidently, they were preaching to the choir as many investors spent the weekend telling their brokers and even the Gallup Poll that they were in a mood to invest. The Gallup organization polled a few hundred of Fidelity Investments' mutual fund customers and found almost all of them upbeat about the American economy and prepared to stay invested in stocks for the long term.

Individual brokers heard similar sentiments. "I came in Monday morning with buy orders," Walter Haddad, senior vice president of Paine Webber in Los Angeles, said. Haddad waited until a selling hangover from Friday cleared the market — during roughly the first hour of trading — and then went in buying. He was part of a nationwide rush to purchase stocks that drove trading volume to 416.29 million shares, the fourth largest ever.

Confident as they were about the economy's underlying strength, investors favored basic industries. Shares of the chemical companies, Dow and Du Pont, each rose more than $3 apiece. General Electric was up more than 2 points, AT&T was up more than 3. Heavy machinery makers Caterpillar, Deere and Ingersoll Rand were up; the aluminum companies Alcan and Alcoa were up. Even the automobile makers, Ford, General Motors and Chrysler, were up, although the outlook for cars sales this fall is not strong.

The over-the-counter market, where stocks of smaller companies are traded and individual investors outnumber big institutions, declined early Monday — a late reaction to Friday's fall in the larger markets. But the over-the-counter market recovered later to post a small loss on the NASDAQ composite index.

Investor optimism contrasted sharply with the fears of imminent recession that followed the Oct. 19, 1987, market crash. And that was just the point, investment experts said. Investors remembered that the fears had been unfounded and that those who sold stocks two years ago missed out on market's subsequent recovery. They were determined not to miss out this time.

However, some investment experts questioned whether lightning would strike twice in the same way. Kenneth Fisher, a San Francisco investment manager, suggested that this is a time to be more cautious than enthusiastic about stock investments.

"There is weakness in all parts of the auto supply industry," Fisher noted, as Detroit automakers have scheduled relatively low production for the next few months. "And the trucking industry is already suffering hard times." Nonetheless, investors boosted prices Monday for such auto suppliers as Genuine Parts and for the big trucking firm Consolidated Freightways.

Skeptical analysts asked whether the market could continue going up despite increasing evidence that the economy is slowing — from the owner of a small software company, who wonders why sales dried up in October, to giant IBM, which reported a 25 percent decline in third-quarter earnings on Monday.

IBM had forecast the decline weeks ago, and its stock had already fallen. Nonetheless, IBM dropped to a 52-week low of 97.75 points early Monday before recovering to close at 103.

The danger for investors is that their enthusiasm for the economy's long-term strength will blind them to its near-term weakness and they'll fall into what market watchers call a "sucker's trap" — buying stocks in a market rally that masks a general, long-term decline.

So which side should the public believe, the bulls or the bears? The truth is, said Michael Hines, who samples investor psychology for Fidelity, "the public has been disregarding the major institutions and making up its own mind ever since the 1987 crash." That's why the number of individual investors, which fell to 33 million after the crash, has grown back to more than 50 million at present.

And as Monday's rebound demonstrated, individual investors are no longer easily frightened. They are indeed in for the long haul — even though the going might get rough for a while. In short, they're bullish.

Press Attorney Says Open Meetings Law Violated

Titles Skipped

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — By using a numerical code when discussing textbooks it was considering in a meeting, the N.C. Textbook Commission violated the state's Open Meetings Law and invited potential lawsuits, an expert on open meetings said.

Commission members said that they were unaware they had violated the law and that they would disclose book titles at future meetings.

"If I made a mistake, I'll take ownership," said Nancy B. Davis, chairman of the 14-member commission and superintendent of Union County schools.

By keeping titles secret, commission members left themselves open for a potential lawsuit from publishing companies unable to follow its discussions, said Hugh Stevens Jr., general counsel for the N.C. Press Association.

"If they are going to read the textbooks, they ought to read the Open Meetings Law, too," he said.

N.C. State Study Held By Panel Chief

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A report on N.C. State University's basketball program should be released to the public and the head of the investigatory panel that wrote the report is violating the law by refusing to do so, says an expert on public records.

"The taxpayers' dollars were spent to conduct this investigation and create this report, and this is the product of that effort," said Hugh Stevens Jr., the attorney for the N.C. Press Association. "The people own that and they're entitled to see it."

The Poole Commission spent more than $40,000 in tax dollars during its six-month investigation of the basketball program. Its findings formed the basis for an Aug. 25 speech given by UNC system President C.D. Spangler Jr. to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

In his speech, Spangler said abuses had occurred in the Wolfpack basketball program, and he called for academic and athletic reforms for the 16-campus system.

Stevens said the report should be made available immediately under the state's Public Records Law.

That position was shared by William A. Johnson, an emeritus member of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors who has served as its chairman.

Samuel H. Poole Jr., the vice chairman of the Board of Governors who chaired the investigating commission, said he had the only surviving copy of the report, but would not release it.

Andrew A. Vanore Jr., chief deputy attorney general in the state Department of Justice, said the commission does not have to release the document.

Poole said Friday he was withholding the report from the public to protect the privacy of N.C. State students and university officials, but also because one member of the four-member commission did not want to sign and release the report.

State Will Try To Prove It Can Handle Waste Stocks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Despite the lack of a regional agreement on the treatment of hazardous wastes, state officials hoped to prove to federal officials that North Carolina can deal with its wastes.

North Carolina faces the suspension of about $37 million this fiscal year in federal Superfund money intended to clean up hazardous waste sites if it cannot prove to the Environmental Protection Agency that it can treat its wastes. Those funds will be withheld until the state submits an acceptable plan to handle hazardous wastes.

North Carolina had pinned its hopes for complying with the federal deadline on a regional agreement with other Southeastern states, but negotiators failed to reach an agreement.

"We think we're going to be in compliance," said Donald Beason, an aide to Gov. Jim Martin, on Monday. "If we come into compliance, we'll get the Superfund money right away. If we are not, however, that money simply will be held until we are in compliance."

Regardless of whether an eight-state agreement can be reached, the state's written plan for the next 20 years calls for North Carolina to build a regional hazardous-waste incinerator by 1993.

For months, North Carolina officials have been negotiating with South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi on a regional agreement.

"As far as what effect that will have on North Carolina, I don't know of any immediate, visible effect," EPA spokesman Carl Terry said Monday. "It's not going to be something the state would feel tomorrow."

"The states are continuing to talk," Terry said.

KINSTON (AP) — An Albertson woman lost her husband, brother in law and unborn baby in a two car collision at an intersection that claimed the lives of two other people earlier this year, authorities said.

A fourth person also died in the most recent accident.

Sherrill Keith King, 24, Carlos B. Perez, 22, and his brother, Javier B. Perez, 24, all of Albertson, died Saturday night in an accident at the intersection 13.3 miles south of Kinston, Trooper J.R. McLawhorn said.

Carlos Perez was the husband of Mrs. Perez, 21, who also lost her unborn child in the accident. Two people in the King car were injured.

GREENSBORO (AP) — With moderates having maintained a firm hold on the presidency of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention for the past decade, a conservative running for the post says his bid is a long shot.

"I'm the underdog. There's no doubt about that," said Wilmington minister Eugen Ridley. "I feel that we'll have a reasonable chance. It won't upset me either way."

Ridley, who describes himself as an "ultra-conservative," and a Shelby minister associated with the moderates will run for president at next month's Baptist State Convention. Ridley said Monday that he will allow his name to be placed in nomination. Ridley, 42, is pastor of Long Leaf Baptist Church.

The Rev. Gene Watterson, 59, pastor of First Baptist Church in Shelby and currently the convention's first vice president, is the moderates' candidate.

Watterson said he will campaign on a platform of reconciliation and commitment to historic Baptist principles such as freedom of conscience and separation of church and state.

Felons May Be Freed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — For the first time, state parole officials will consider releasing convicted felons early after the prison population reached its "Supercap," officials said.

The limit was reached over the weekend when North Carolina's prison population exceeded 18,000.

The provision is part of the Emergency Prison Population Stabilization Act, which was amended by the General Assembly last January.

"The cap was placed ... to stabilize the prison population so that hopefully it will give us an opportunity to get some prison built," said Sen. David Parnell, D-Robeson. "If we had not placed a cap on it, the federal government would have come in and operated our prisons for us."

The cap was not meant to be a permanent solution to crowded cells but was adopted to stabilize the population while prisons were being built, said Parnell, one of the cap's advocates.

The population of North Carolina's

89 state prisons reached 18,046 Saturday, marking the first time it has topped 18,000 since March 30, 1987, when inmates numbered 18,007.

Only felons eligible for parole will be released to ease crowded cells. Gov. Jim Martin said. Drug kingpins, traffickers, sexual offenders, kidnappers, abductors and drunken drivers are not eligible.

Under the prison cap, which was triggered Sept. 25, the Parole Commission has until Dec. 22 to reduce the prison population to no more than 17,460. That was the eighth time the special provisions of the prison cap have been in force since the law was first ratified March 11, 1987, and the third time since the General Assembly amended the legislation.

Many of those released early will return to the prison system, a state official said.

"We're seeing a large number of repeat offenders being paroled because of the prison cap and then going back because of their failure to meet parole," said Arthur Zeidman, director of Victim and Justice Services in the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Zeidman voiced concern that the mandatory release of so many prisoners would shift the burden onto the division, which is charged with assigning parolees to community work.

Super Tuesday Gets Smaller

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OLIVE BRANCH, Miss. — Southern political leaders said they won't abandon the Super Tuesday presidential primary, but they admit fewer Southern states will be represented at the 1992 version.

At its fall meeting in this sleepy north Mississippi town, a Southern Legislative Conference task force Monday endorsed Super Tuesday but discovered some states troubled by the regional primary have dropped out.

While Kentucky, Arkansas, Alabama, Virginia, and Maryland are likely to exit Super Tuesday in 1992, states expected to cling to the Super Tuesday presidential primary in March 1992 include Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Texas, Louisiana and North Carolina.

"As a concept, I think it was a success last time, and we need to do our best to keep the framework in place," said conference chairman-elect Robert C. Hunter, a North Carolina state representative.

Critics have blasted Super Tuesday as a flop because it failed to put a conservative Southern Democrat on the presidential ticket that was ultimately led by liberal Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who lost badly to Republican George Bush last November.

"We didn't end up with a Southern candidate, but nobody said we could guarantee it," said Hunter at the SLC meeting that drew lawmakers from 15 Southern states and Puerto Rico.

"I think Super Tuesday will be Super Tuesday regardless if some states are out," said Florida state Rep. Ron Silver of north Miami.

Pulling out of Super Tuesday is unthinkable for Mississippi. "We have nowhere to go," said state Rep. Charlie Capps of Cleveland, a former SLC chairman who credits Super Tuesday with bringing many presidential candidates to visit Mississippi last year.

Capps said he's talked things over with Republican Party leaders, Democratic Gov. Ray Mabus and other top Democrats, and they want Mississippi to stay in Super Tuesday.

Capps and other SLC leaders believe that even with a smaller Super Tuesday field the Southern voice will be heard during the White House sweepstakes in 1992.

"The more states that stay in, the more impact we will have," said Tennessee state Sen. Douglas Henry Jr., a past SLC chairman.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp., which completed its acquisition of NCNB Texas National Bank on Aug. 1, reported net income of $143.6 million for the third quarter of 1988, a 57 percent increase over the previous quarter.

Earnings per share in the third quarter of 1989, which ended Sept. 30, more than doubled to $1.45, compared to 69 cents per share in the comparable period in 1988. Earnings per share for the second quarter of 1989 were $1.00.

Helms Ads

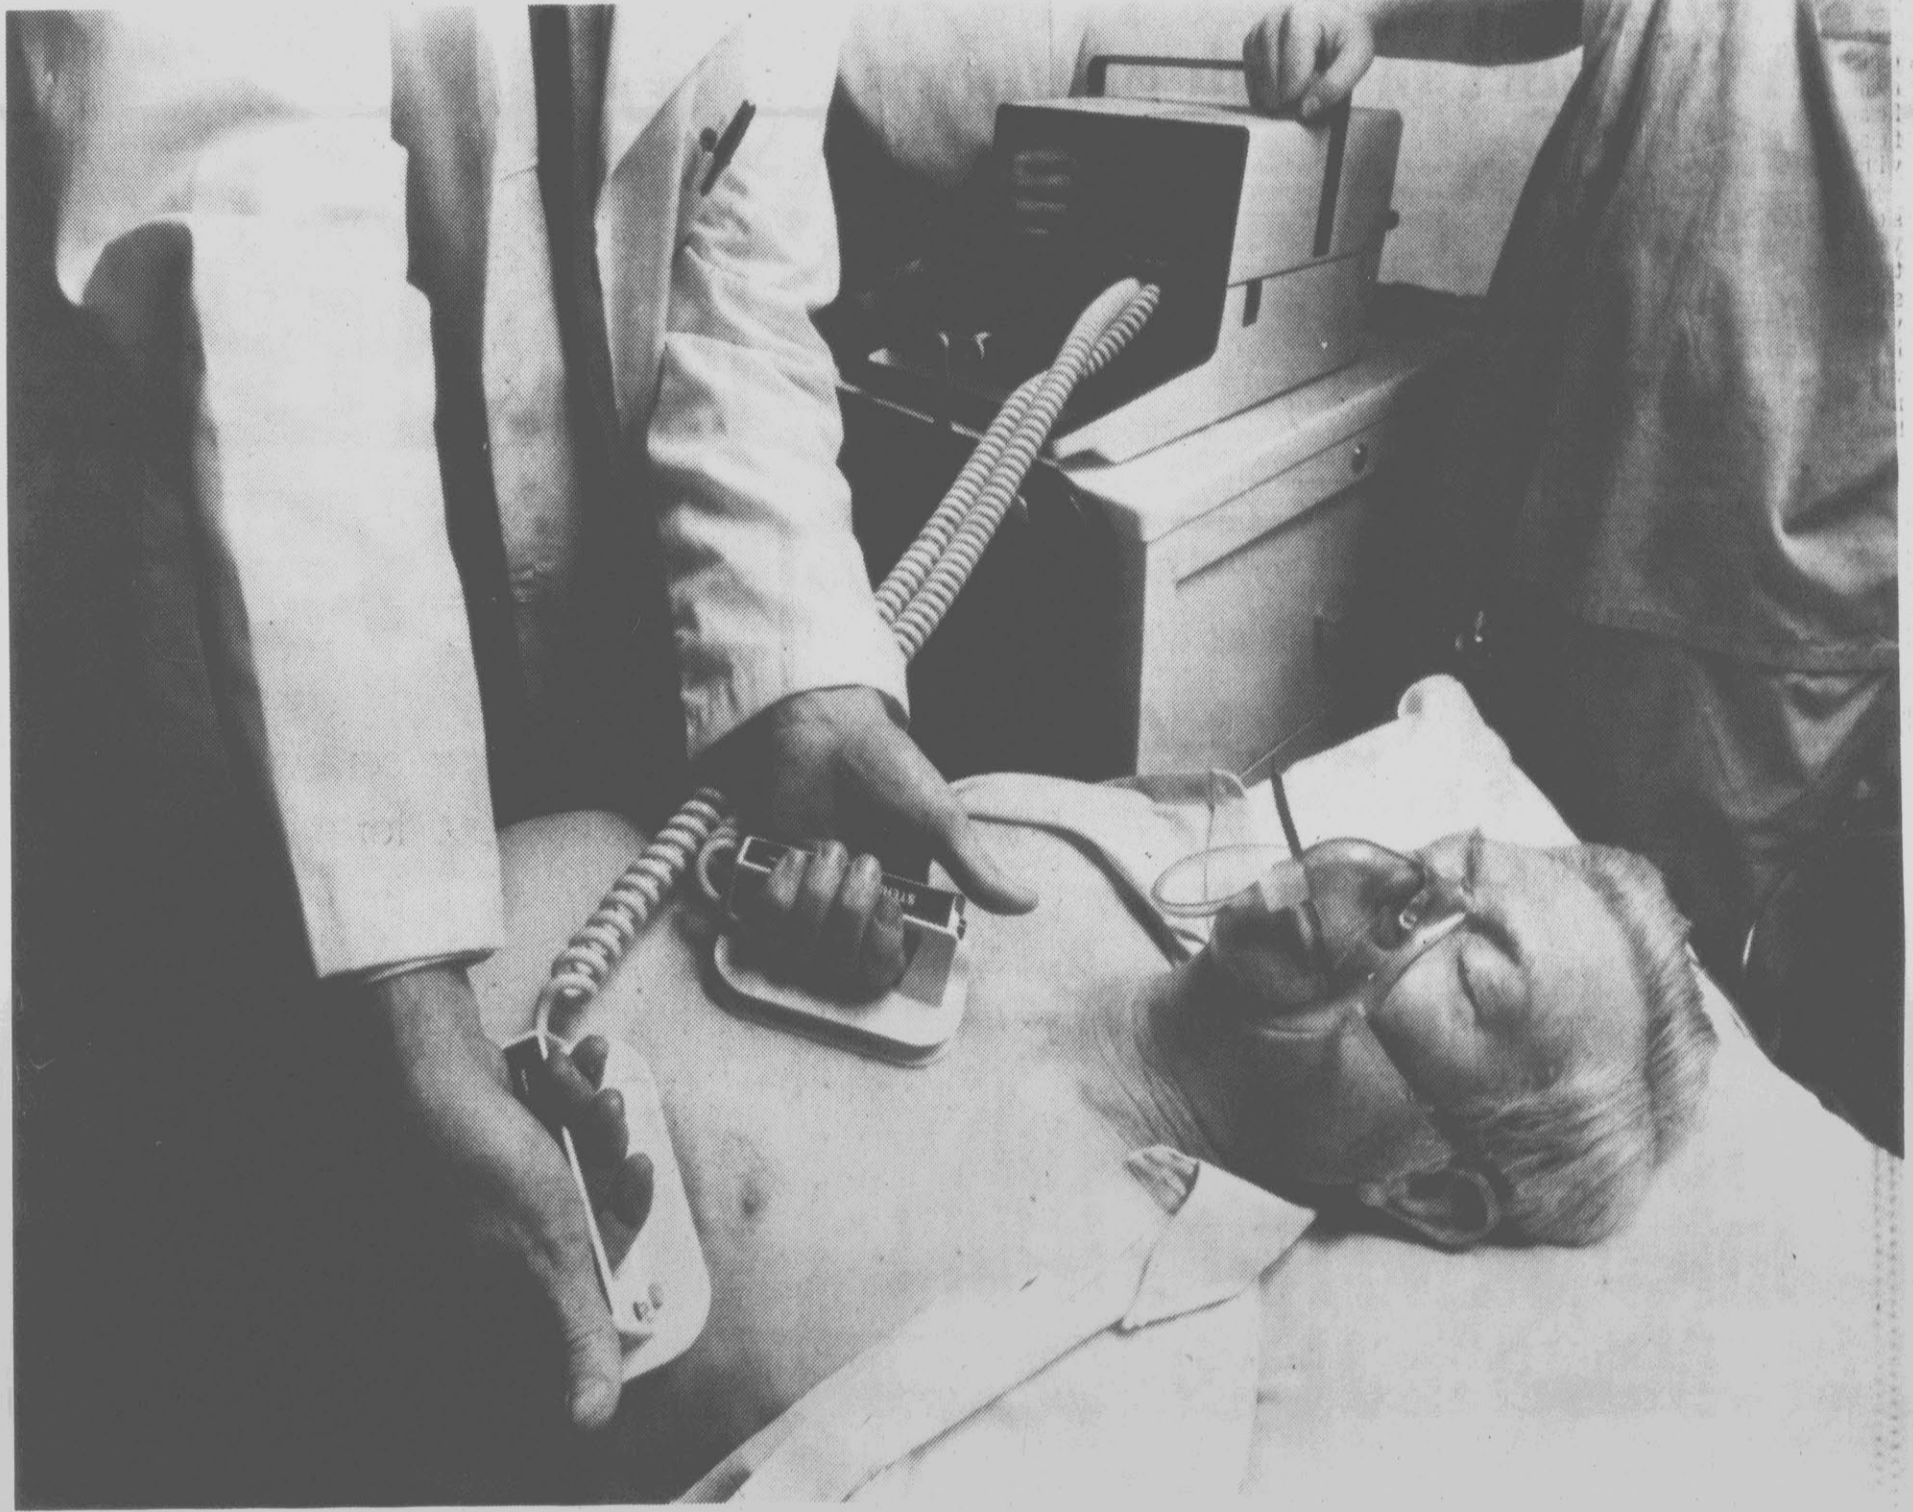

RALEIGH (AP) — A full-page advertisement that accuses U.S. Senator Jesse Helms of being soft on crime is an attempt by the "homosexual lobby" to legitimize its lifestyle, Helms says.

The advertisement — which ran in the Greensboro News & Record and The Charlotte Observer on Monday — questioned Helms' opposition to a bill to have the federal government collect statistics of crimes against people for reasons of race, religion or ethnic origin.

The advertisement was placed by People for the American Way, a non-partisan constitutional liberties organization that stresses freedoms of worship and speech.

"The homosexual lobby has made it clear it intends to use this data to repeal sodomy laws and change school curricula so that students, children in our schools in America, can be taught that homosexuality is all right, just another lifestyle," Helms said.

"This senator says, 'No.' That is not going to be the curricula of students in America if I have anything to do with it."

There's Been A Dramatic Increase In The Cost Of Living.

There's been an explosion of medical technology recently. And it's saving and prolonging lives. But the cost of living, of staying alive, is high. Because technology doesn't come cheap. Organ transplants, CAT scans, heart/lung machines, cardiac catheterizations, lithotripsy, neonatal care, all carry huge price tags. And they're driving up your company's cost of health coverage.

Our job, our responsibility, is to hold down those coverage costs as much as possible. We do that by offering a variety of group plans that allows you and your company to choose the type of coverage that meets your needs in the most cost effective manner. These coverages include traditional group, two HMO's, preferred provider and flex benefits.

And you don't have to make your choice alone. We have vast data banks containing health care profiles of millions of subscribers in thousands of occupations. By comparing those profiles with the makeup of your company and its people, we can help you find the plan or plans that work for you. We can even make refinements within those plans to meet particular health needs or cost considerations.

Medical technology is a wonderful thing, and we should all be grateful for what it does. But somebody has to pay for it. And we don't want you or your company paying any more than you have to. Ask your employer to get in touch with us. And let's see if, together, we can do something about the high cost of living.

East Germans Stage Protest

Smoking Foes Claim Victory With Airline Smoking Ban

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — More than 120,000 protesters demanding democratic reform marched through Leipzig on the eve of a meeting by East Germany's ruling Politburo that could determine the future of hard-line leader Erich Honecker.

Monday's night's march, the largest single protest in the nation's 40-year history, put new pressure on the government to consider reforms. It also renewed speculation that the Politburo might initiate a leadership change at its regular weekly meeting late today.

Honecker, 77, reportedly is under increasing pressure to step down from within the ruling Communist Party.

In Leipzig, protesters on Monday night carried placards demanding freedom of the press and free elections.

Protesters chanted "Power to the young people" and "Erich, lead reforms or go to a retirement home."

There were reports of scuffles when security forces attempted to grab banners away from marchers but no reports of arrests.

Christoph Wonneberger, the pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church in Leipzig, told West Germany's ZDF television that more than 120,000 people participated in the three-hour march.

For the first time, East Germany's state-run television promptly reported the protest, saying "tens of thousands of citizens" took part.

More than 70,000 protesters marched unhindered in Leipzig on Oct. 9. Earlier in the month, police broke up mass demonstrations.

When asked about developments in East Germany, Vyacheslav Dushichev, a foreign affairs adviser to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, told ZDF that "all Socialist states need to renew their old political and economic systems."

"The old Stalinist models of Socialism are sentenced to die out, and no one can keep them alive," Dushichev said.

On Oct. 7, during a visit to East Berlin for 40th anniversary celebrations, Gorbachev urged Honecker to implement reforms akin to those under way in the Soviet Union, Poland and Hungary.

Honecker's government has steadfastly rejected the need to open up his tightly-controlled society.

But pressure has mounted on the aging hard-line leadership in East Berlin as unrest spreads, and a there is a seemingly endless exodus of tens of thousands of refugees.

For days, there have been reports and growing speculation that Honecker's 18-year rule at the head of the Communist Party may be drawing to a close.

On Monday, West Germany's Bild newspaper reported that the dissatisfaction has spread to East Germany's regional Communist leaders.

Bild, quoting "well-informed" sources in East Berlin, said 13 of the 15 regional chiefs want the Communist Party Central Committee to remove Honecker and make changes in the 21-member ruling Politburo.

Bild said regional leaders also called for a special meeting of the committee, but so far hard-liners had resisted the call. The powerful Politburo makes recommendations to the Central Committee.

Also late Monday, hundreds of East German musicians signed a resolution demanding immediate reforms. They criticized the government for "making criminals out of those who want to examine society's problems."

Early this month, East Germany began to be hit by street protests that have been the most serious since 1953, when Soviet tanks helped put down a workers' revolt.

WASHINGTON — Smoking foes are proclaiming victory following House-Senate negotiators' vote to ban smoking on all continental U.S. airline routes and on many flights to and from Hawaii and Alaska.

The restrictions, which must be approved by the House and Senate before being sent to President Bush, would cover practically all of the 16,000 airline flights scheduled in the United States each day.

By the estimate of tobacco industry lobbyist Charlie Whitley, the rules would allow smoking on about 55 flights daily. Lobbyist Jo Ellen Deutsch of the Association of Flight Attendants said she thought smoking would be permitted on fewer than 20 flights a day.

"This isn't even a compromise," said Nancy Hailpern, lobbyist for the American Cancer Society, one of many health groups that fought to expand current anti-smoking rules. "We're using the word compromise basically for the benefit of the other side."

"With few exceptions, every airline passenger in America now can look forward to smoke-free travel," said Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., who helped write the measure.

Durbin and Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., who championed an airline smoking ban in the Senate, predicted the legislation would be approved by Congress.

"I don't think we'll have a bit of a problem," Lautenberg said.

The tobacco industry was battered in Congress this year when on Aug. 2, the House voted 259-169 to make permanent the current smoking ban on flights of two hours or less.

On Sept. 14, the Senate voted 77-21 against cigarette-state lawmakers' effort to prevent adoption of even stricter rules. The Senate then passed a permanent ban on all flights by a voice vote.

With those defeats behind them, tobacco interests had to accept what they could get.

Whitley, a former Democratic congressman from North Carolina, said of the adopted language, "As much as it preserves, we'll take that."

Flights from the West Coast to Hawaii and Alaska are scheduled for less than six hours and would be covered by the ban, Lautenberg and others said. Uncovered would be non-stop flights to those states originating in the central and eastern United States.

The prohibition would also apply to flights to or from U.S. possessions in the Caribbean, but not to Guam.

Thousands demonstrate Monday in Leipzig, East Germany.

Webster Seeks More Leeway In CIA Support of Violent Coups

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — CIA Director William H. Webster would like Congress and the administration to relax restrictions on supporting potentially violent coups, The New York Times reported today.

In the interview Monday, Webster told the newspaper a longstanding executive order forbidding U.S. involvement in assassinations has been interpreted to prohibit U.S. aid to any coup that could lead to the death of a country's leader.

The government's interpretation of the restrictions barred CIA officers from advising the leaders of the Oct. 3 coup attempt against Panama's Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, unidentified Bush administration officials told the Times.

Asked if a change in the guidelines would have made a difference in Panama, Webster said: "I'm not certain it would have made a difference in this situation. But it could very well make a difference in the next one, because the likelihood of the next plotter planning that he may probably have to take Noriega out is real."

Webster said he detects a willingness in the administration and Congress to reinterpret the executive order.

He said he believes the order bars an American plan to assassinate Noriega. But "the area that has to be addressed" is whether U.S. employees may support a situation in which, "Here's a group that says it doesn't plan to kill him, but they're going to have to play rough and it could happen," Webster said.

The executive order against support for coups that could lead to a leader's death was adopted in 1976 by President Ford after congressional investigations detailed the CIA's role in assassination plots against Cuban President Fidel Castro and others. The order was strengthened by President Carter.

Marines Say D.I. Recants 'Rape, Pillage' Slogans

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Marines who marched behind the slogan "rape, kill, pillage, burn" during basic training at Parris Island, S.C., this summer are being told their drill instructor recants the use of the words.

The flag that carried the saying has been destroyed, Capt. J.R. Mill, public affairs officer at the training depot, said Monday.

Mill said the approximately 70 members of the Platoon 1066 all received a letter from Staff Sgt. B.C. Kirkpatrick.

"As your former senior drill instructor in platoon 1066, I would like to correct a misconception you may have about words written on our Basic Warrior Training guidon flag," said the letter.

"These words, 'Rape, Kill, Pillage and Burn' were certainly not an expression of my true beliefs or an official Marine Corps slogan."

The letter, dated Oct. 6, followed a complaint four days earlier by the mother of one of the recruits who saw the sign in a graduation photograph of her son's basic training platoon.

Another sign in the picture showed a naked woman. The signs were used during marching drills.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., received the mother's complaint and immediately asked the Marine commandant to investigate.

McCain said Friday that he was satisfied the corps was reacting appropriately but still expected a full report.

He called the use of the signs a failure in leadership, saying "it shows a lack of supervision."

Mill said the signs were made by and for the platoon under Kirkpatrick's leadership that graduated in August.

The letter from Kirkpatrick said, "Some day, in combat, we may be confronted with the harsh necessity to kill or destroy, but glorifying these activities or suggesting that we commit serious crimes is inappropriate and simply not true."

Kirkpatrick referred in his letter that the Marines refer to the principles taught in their class on "the law of war."

Jerry's victims may have died when this truck was blown off sea wall at Galveston

Cleanup Starts As Jerry Leaves 3 Dead, $8 Million In Damages

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GALVESTON, Texas — Crews cleaned up after Hurricane Jerry, which wielded a brief but deadly blow, causing three deaths and as much as $8.25 million in damage.

As the weak hurricane's remnants slipped out of Texas and into Louisiana and Arkansas on Monday, the Gulf Coast island city of about 62,000 quickly returned to normal. Crews picked up downed power lines and trees, and only one school was closed by a power failure.

"We've had much more serious storms," Galveston Mayor Jan Coggeshall said. "But for the people who did have damage, it was very serious for them."

Jerry, a relatively small hurricane, grew unexpectedly from a tropical storm to a hurricane early Sunday and roared ashore later that night with winds gusting to 100 mph.

As it swept across Galveston Island, Jerry toppled trees and power lines, tore off roofs and shattered windows in cars and homes. The hurricane also spawned a half-dozen tornadoes in the area, but damage generally was confined to roofs and power lines.

Damage was estimated between $5 million and $8.25 million after ground and aerial surveys Monday, Ms. Coggeshall said.

Power was restored Monday for most of about 75,000 Houston Lighting & Power Co. customers who lost at the height of the storm.

The hurricane also churned up the Houston Ship Channel, crumpling four Houston Lighting & Power transmission towers built to withstand 90 mph winds. Customers were not seriously affected, but downed wires halted traffic on the ship channel, which likely would be closed until today, utility spokeswoman Geri Konigsberg said.

Three people were killed when a pickup apparently was swept off Galveston's protective seawall Sunday. The bodies of a 26-year-old Coast Guardsman and his 2-year-old daughter were found Sunday on the seawall's rock jetties; the body of a 19-year-old Coast Guardsman was found Monday.

Though Jerry barely brushed Louisiana, it stirred up enough waves to eat away more of the delicate coastline.

Fund Raiser Was Picture-Perfect

It was, by all accounts, a picture-perfect night for the Greenville Museum of Art's 50th-anniversary fund raiser.

Three blue and white striped tents were spread across the rolling greenery of Michael and Helen Weaver's farm along the Tar River, and nearly 500 guests wandered through each of them to view items set up for auction and, finally, prepare for a sit-down dinner.

And though fund-raiser organizers have not yet tallied the final figures for Saturday night's event, it was, Lynda Blount says, a success. Even a 30-minute power outage did little to dim the festivities, since guests enjoyed their dinners by candlelight.

By the time the lights returned, guests were ready to begin bidding on four items especially prepared for an open auction. Those items included an evening of music by Bill Bowen's Band, a Cadillac, a grand piano and a Victorian playhouse designed by Raleigh architect Arthur McKimmon.

Throughout the evening, guests made their way into the tent set up for the silent auction, placing their bids on artwork, antiques and other items.

Tuxedo Junction played for those who enjoyed dancing on the specially designed, 7,200-square-foot dance floor. Among those attending were N.C. Secretary of Cultural Resources

Patric Dorsey, Sen. Marc Basnight of Manteo, along with other local and state officials.

Fund-raiser organizers were Mrs. Blount, Mrs. Weaver and Peg Hardee.

A Child's Play Is Self-Expression

By Lesley Tamarin Mega, M.D.

Three-year-old Jenny plays all day long. She pretends that the pieces of cereal floating in her breakfast bowl are "fishies" and that by removing them with her spoon she is "fishing." She engages in an imaginary telephone conversation. A wooden block becomes her "car." As adults, we might be tempted to smile indulgently at her play, envy her, and dismiss her activities as an acceptable but trivial way to spend her time. Playing children pose a problem to our work ethic culture which maintains "no work, no play."

Play differs for the child and the adult. For the adult, even the most strenuous and dangerous play is not considered work by definition (unless one is a professional football player or golfer). Play for adults is re-creation. The playing adult steps back into reality. For the child, play is not recreation. He cannot recreate as he is in the process of creating, preparing to become an adult.

For Jenny, play is the natural medium for self-expression as it is an activity which she comprehends, is comfortable with, and is an integral part of her world. It is her means of testing, incorporating, and mastering feelings and realities. Play for the child equals words for the adult as it is her means of communication.

The make-believe aspect of play is essential. A child cannot drive a car, fly a plane, or go to outer space. Reversal of roles in which the child pretends to be the parent or teacher can be achieved only in the play situation. Overt expressions of hostility and aggression which are not tolerated by the adult world are possible for the child through play. The make-believe element eliminates the guilt feeling which would arise if the child's action could result in real harm. It also enables the child to be victorious over forces otherwise above her reach and capacity.

The child's stage of development will be reflected in her play. The same toy will be used differently by a toddler and a pre-school age child. An infant, 0 to 1 year, is in the stage of "manipulation" play. Her earliest interest in toys is largely derived from what her body can do with them. The baby will reach, hold, push, kick, look at or use her voice to babble at the toys.

The toddler, 1 to 3 years, focus on "maternal" play. The child's play at this age revolves around attachment to and separation from the nurturing figure. There is a repetitiveness and rigidity of form in this play. The coping theme for the toddler is "I'll do to others what is done to me." For example, the child at this stage has to "sit still" to be dressed. She is bathed, wiped and put to bed. To help relate to this, the child tries to bestow "mothering" on anyone or anything that will allow it. Teddy bears, dolls and even the family pet are carried around, dressed, fed, wiped and put to bed. The toddler must also learn to separate from her maternal figure. She once again copes by repeating what is done to her through play. The "peek-a-boo" game is a good example of this. The toddler pulls a sheet over her face when "mother is gone" and with great glee and laughter pulls the sheet down when "mother is back."

The pre-schooler, 3 to 6 years old, is involved in "fantasy" play. This age child is influenced by her inner feelings and thoughts. Her play is more imaginative and is characterized by constant change. As a toddler, one is keenly aware of one's smallness and helplessness, but as a pre-schooler one is completely blind to the age difference between oneself and one's parents. This age child feels that they are "big" and can do what any grown-up can. The boys assume impressive masculine roles as super hero, policeman or pilot. The girls are teachers, ballerinas or members of royalty. Pre-schoolers are creators using blocks, paints and clay.

The school-age child, 6 to 12 years old, enjoying "game" play. Strengthening ones idea of what is right or wrong is an important task during this stage. Belonging to a group, with its elements of conformity and loyalty and participating in group activities with rigid rules can help ease the development of such values. While the younger child usually likes her own performance, the school-age child is often critical of herself and may not feel comfortable with her achievements. Because of this feeling of vulnerability, children of this age group would like to be able to correct what they view as "mistakes." This explains their involvement in activities such as checkers and other board games which can be repeated over and over again. The elements of group conformity and loyalty are combined with rigid rules and repetition in such games. For example, in chess, two "groups" of men compete against one another according to strict rules in a narrowly defined field. Each "group" or chessmen are loyal to one another and their actions influence the other members on their team. If the child's chessmen should lose, she can always try to make up the loss by replaying the game.

Through play, children can better understand their feelings and experiences and learn to master them. Play is critical for normal child development.

Editor's Note: Erma Bombeck is on a book tour. This Best of Bombeck release originally appeared on Sept. 28, 1982.

Some of the best fiction being written today is never serialized in the slick magazines and never makes it to The New York Times list. They're messages between the working wife/bachelor and the woman who comes in to clean their house/apartment.

Sometimes they never even see each other. They communicate only by notes left on the refrigerator door. The following is a series of written communications between Wilma and her employer, Mrs. Rutledge.

Mrs. Rutledge: There is a cat mess at the end of the sofa. — Wilma

Wilma: I know. — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: What do you want me to do with it? — Wilma

Wilma: You are limited on options. You can surround it with sand and use it as a putting green, gift-wrap it and amaze your friends, or clean it up. I prefer the latter. — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: I was going to clean up the you-know-what, but the sweeper smells funny and sounds strange and won't pick up anything. Can you fix it? — Wilma

Wilma: The cat is missing. I suggest you check the sweeper bag. — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: The cat was not in the bag. Maybe the cat mess is not a mess at all. It looks just like something in a green bowl in the refrigerator. Is it what I think it is? — Wilma

Wilma: What do you think it is? — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: I knew once, but I forgot. The sweeper works just fine. What did you do to it? — Wilma

Wilma: I emptied the bag. — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: You know that little problem I told you about two weeks ago about the cat? I think I solved the problem. I moved the sofa over it and you can hardly notice it now. — Wilma

Wilma: You're fired! — Mrs. Rutledge

Mrs. Rutledge: There is another cat mess I didn't tell you about. It's hard to find. I'm the only one who knows where it is. Goodbye. — Wilma

The Stage Delicatessen Turns Spotlight On A Non-Celebrity

By Elise Rosen
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Gloria Horowitz thinks her husband Sheldon is the greatest thing since sliced bread, and that's the way she wants him immortalized: with a sandwich named in his honor at the Stage Delicatessen.

The Stage, home of overstuffed sandwiches named for celebrities, is running a contest to select a common person for a spot on the menu alongside the "Mike Tyson Triple Decker Knockout" and the "Donald Trump Power Special." And Mrs. Horowitz thinks Sheldon is a winner.

"Because my husband is renowned for his honesty, this sandwich should be open-faced, revealing all the beautiful truth of its contents," she writes.

The ingredients in a Sheldon Horowitz sandwich: Tongue (because Sheldon loves to talk), red bell peppers, half-sour pickles, lumpfish caviar, smoked turkey, green-leaf lettuce and mustard on pumpernickel bread.

The Tuckahoe couple will learn

Thursday whether this Horowitz hoagie will triumph over more than 150 other entries in the contest sponsored by Stage co-owners Paul Zolenge and Louis Auerbach.

The idea for the contest, Zolenge said, stemmed from the restaurant's traditional practice of taking Polaroid snapshots of celebrities who dined there. Other customers often wanted to have their pictures taken, and asked why they were not given the spotlight.

"The common customer really is more important than the stars," said Zolenge. "If not for them, we wouldn't be here."

The winner is to appear on Stage menus in all three of the deli's locations — the original, on Seventh Avenue in Manhattan, as well as branches in Boston and Los Angeles. In addition, the winner will receive $100 and a dinner for four at the Stage Deli in New York.

The rules specified, "No one who has made a significant contribution to the arts, theater, music, literature, pop culture or sports may enter. In other words, Woody Allen need not apply."

Brett Eidman of Manhattan took the rules seriously.

"Be assured," he wrote, "I have not made any significant contribution to the arts or to mankind. In fact, sometimes my uselessness even gets to me and I try to sleep it off."

His sandwich would be corned beef on club, but the meat would be sliced so thin that it resembles ham, which befits him, Eidman says.

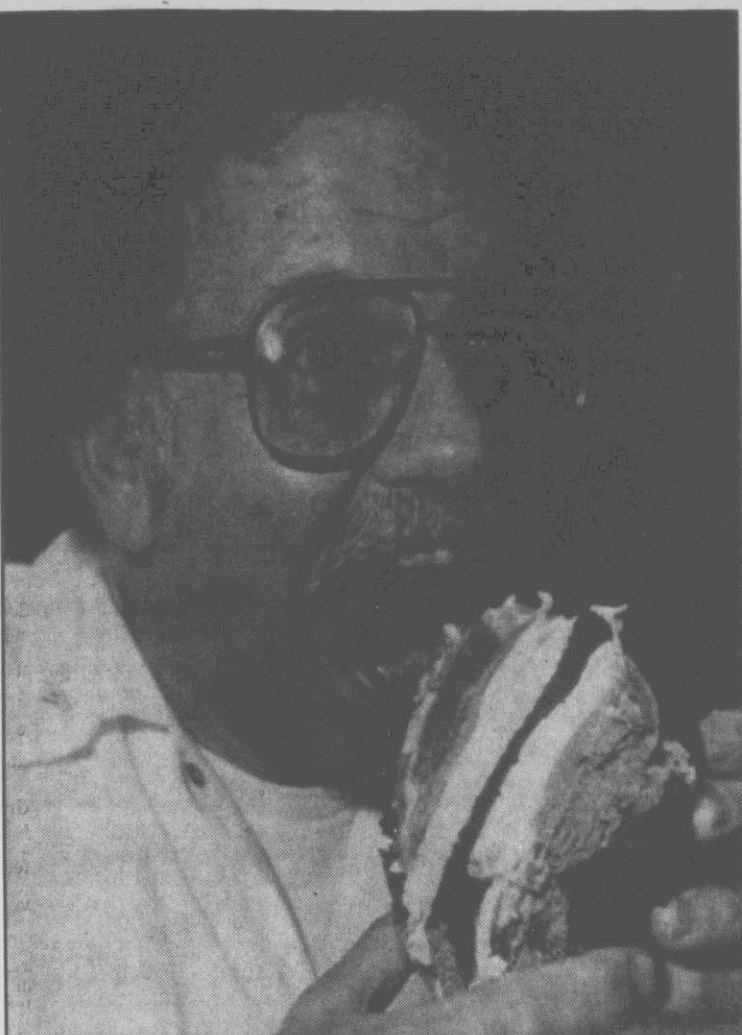

Who could be more appropriate, ask friends of the "unfamous" producer Wheeler Jackson, than the man "who has done it all, or at least tried to?"

"A regular guy, just slugging it out, day by day doing the best he can," reads his description. Jackson, they say, appears in a recent New York Lottery commercial as a "real person" — sure testimony to his typicality.

Bubbles Helfman insists that she is even more typical. "My problem," she says, "is that I want the whole left side of the (Stage's) menu."

"So I end up tasting a little of each. From my plate. My husband's plate. My boss's plate. Tourists from South Dakotas' plates. (I'm not proud. I'll schnorr from anyone...)" said Helfman about her sandwich sampling.

As a solution, Helfman proposes "The Bubs," a platter comprising five mini-sandwiches to satisfy the palates of fickle eaters.

Mannerly Callers Give Their Name

Dear Abby: When I call my friend on the phone, one of his children (ages 15 and 17) usually answers. In answer to my request to speak to their father, I am always asked, "May I ask who is calling, please?"

This really rubs me the wrong way because I figure the child has no business knowing who is calling. It comes across as being rude and nosy.

I know this is not intended, so I asked my friend if his children have been instructed to do this as a form of "screening" his calls. He said, "No. It's because callers often do not leave messages; therefore I've instructed my children to get their names right away."

Abby, I think this is faulty reasoning, because callers have every right not to leave a message if they choose.

In answer to the question, "Is your dad in?" I think the appropriate answer should be either, "Yes. Just a minute, I'll get him," or, "No, would you care to leave a message?"

I've explained to my friend twice that I find his present answering procedure offensive, but nothing has changed. It is so upsetting to me that I now hesitate to call him at home. Am I justified in being upset? And how would you suggest I resolve this? — Troubled In Ontario

Dear Troubled: I think you are not justified in being offended or upset. Well-mannered people always identify themselves when placing a telephone call.

When an unidentified caller is asked, "Would you care to leave a message?" invariably the response is, "Never mind, I'll call again." (Click). Then the caller is left to wonder who called — which can be very frustrating.

On the other hand, when people inquire, "May I ask who's calling?" they will usually get the caller's name immediately.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Earlier this year you ran a letter in your column from a woman signed "Choking," who suffered a full-blown migraine headache caused by a fragrance sample inserted in her TV Guide. Her letter went on to say that millions of folks with severe allergies, asthma and other related health problems do everything they can to avoid these odors.

Soon after reading "Choking's" letter in your column, I introduced legislation in the New York state Senate that would require that any cosmetic, perfume or other fragrance sample be enclosed in an odor-proof sealed packet if it is to be included in any publication or advertisement offered for sale or mailed in New York state.

The introduction of this legislation has prompted quite a response from people who have at one time or another had a violent reaction after having been exposed to these free samples. I intend to hold hearings this fall on this legislation to allow all interested parties to come forward and offer their feelings on this issue.

Thank you, Dear Abby, for inspiring this legislation. — Martin Connor, State Senator, Albany, N.Y.

Dear Sen. Connor: I wish you success. A headache-inducing fragrance that arrives uninvited in one's mailbox is nothing to sneeze at.

If you would like to write to Abby, send your letter to Abigail Van Buren, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA. 90069. For a personal, non-published reply, enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Cash

financial markets because of the heavy holdings by foreign investors of dollar-based assets.

The Treasury official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady was in close consultation throughout the weekend with officials at the Federal Reserve and the Securities and Exchange Commission and officials from other governments.

Brady, who chaired a commission which investigated the 508-point market drop two years ago, emphasized the need for the various agencies to keep all sides informed on what everyone was doing and avoid any hint of panic, officials said.

Thus, at the opening of the market on Monday when stock prices were still falling, Bush told reporters "I am not worried" and stressed that government agencies were keeping close tabs on developments.

Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan, who won plaudits for his handling of the 1987 crash, gained more kudos for the latest episode. Over the weekend, the Fed made it clear that it would flood the banking system with as much cash as needed to make it easier for banks to continue making loans to brokerage houses that may have suffered heavy losses.

Without the line of easy credit, brokerage firms could have been forced to sell more stocks to replenish their cash supplies, thus further depressing stock prices.

SEC Chairman Richard Breeden, who has been in office less than a week, said the safeguards installed after the October 1987 market crash worked well on Monday, demonstrating "the significant improvements that have been made in trading systems over the past two years."

But some in Congress were unconvinced, saying that the market gyrations demonstrated the need for more government regulation of securities trading.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said his panel would call Brady to testify on Oct. 26 about what further reforms were needed to dampen market volatility.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., said he believed a "super regulator" was needed to oversee the markets, one of the recommendations not implemented from the Brady Commission report.

"Regardless of the triggering mechanism, it pretty much falls in the same pattern," he said. "There is an incident... which creates some short-term volatility, at which point computer-driven program trading kicks in, which adds velocity to the marketplace, which creates a second level of volatility — panic."

Tobacco Market

Actor Cornel Wilde Dies At 74

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — Cornel Wilde, whose athletic abilities first brought him to Hollywood and whose elegant physique, good looks and dramatic talent kept him there for nearly 50 years, died in Los Angeles early Monday.

Wilde, whose film portrayals ranged from the romantic composer Frederic Chopin in "A Song to Remember," (for which he received an Academy Award nomination), to a hunter being tracked down by bloodthirsty African tribesmen in "The Naked Prey," which he also directed, was 74.

Wilde, who was admitted to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Sept. 2 suffering from leukemia, died shortly after midnight, said hospital spokeswoman Paula Correia. His son, Cornel Wilde Jr., and daughter, Wendy, were at his side.

During his long and varied film career, which spanned from 1940 to 1987, the aristocratic actor, writer and director was involved in more than 50 movies.

"I realized long ago that I could not depend on luck to bring me success," Wilde once said. "I worked hard, extra hard to improve my chance by increasing my abilities and my experience. It was my goal to accomplish, in my life, something of value and to do it with self-respect and integrity."

He made one of the first films ever dealing with environmental pollution ("No Blade of Grass" in 1970), portrayed Revolutionary War spies, Robin Hood's son, Omar Khayyam, Constantine the Great, and aesthetic protagonists ranging from the consumptive Chopin to the eccentric Lord Byron.

He moved from studio to studio in quest of satisfying roles and from in front of the camera to behind it when he couldn't find producers and directors who agreed with his point of view.

"Acting is not just 'another day, another dollar,'" he told columnist Hedda Hopper as long ago as 1954. "If I hate a script or think it's foolish or in bad taste, I'm miserable."

and that this opportunity exists free of charge right here at home."

The local LVA, which is affiliated with a national organization, was formed four years ago this month and has grown exponentially, Nicholson said. He said until this time, the group has trained about 150 tutors. This year, he said, promises to bring in at least that many new tutors. At least three per week are being added. He said every week also brings new calls from people requesting to be tutored.

A local Literacy Awareness Week is held each autumn. During the week, the LVA promoted awareness with a "blue ribbon" campaign. The LVA personnel and other volunteers — about 320 of them — cut 6.1 miles of blue ribbon into foot-long strips which they encouraged people to display on their cars.

Messages on marquees around town advised, "Learn to Read. It's free," and gave a phone number for the LVA. Radio messages also told of the reader tutoring opportunity for adult students and potential tutors alike.

The newspaper has run all year its "Yes" column for use by fledgling readers. Focusing on current events, the column introduces new words that can be used in tutoring sessions or individually.

The literacy organization is largely supported by The United Way and its budget is kept small by volunteer involvement. Its only paid worker is Toni Golding, who has an office open weekday afternoons.

A tutor training session was held the last two weeks of September and the first week in October, largely a result of the enrollment of many tutors during the Awareness Week. Already, another is scheduled for January.

Nicholson said he and Ms. Williams of the Reflector staff have been requested by the national organization to write an article for its next issue of The Reader about Greenville area efforts and accomplishments.

One possibility, he said, is that the LVA will adopt for national use the blue ribbon campaign successfully carried out in Greenville.

Inmate Dies At Central Prison

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A young, apparently healthy inmate was found dead in his cell at Central Prison early Tuesday, prompting a state investigation, authorities said.

"In this case we decided to call the SBI in simply because it's a little unusual... Although there are no visible signs of... foul play, he was apparently healthy and young," said David Guth, a spokesman for the Department of Correction.

James Stinnett Greene, 30, of Greensboro, was a found lying in his cot in a single cell about 6 a.m. by a correctional officer making the morning count of prisoners, Guth said.

Greene was not breathing and was pronounced dead at 6:55 a.m., Guth said. An autopsy likely will be conducted.

"We just don't really know what happened," Guth said.

Florida Players Declared Ineligible For Gambling

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Eight days after NCAA rules violators forced the resignation of Florida's coach, starting quarterback Kyle Morris and backup Shane Matthews have been declared ineligible for betting on football games, the university said.

Meanwhile, in the wake of broadcast reports, university officials denied head basketball coach Norm Sloan and three assistants had resigned.

"That's not true," said UF Athletic Director Bill Arnsperger. "I'm not aware of anything like that at all."

The NCAA has been investigating the university's football and basketball programs since June 30. The football team suffered a shock Oct. 8 when Coach Galen Hall stepped down amid charges he broke NCAA rules concerning payments to his assistants.

Morris, of Clinton, Miss., and Matthews, of Pascagoula, Miss., admitted violating NCAA rules by betting on professional and college games between late August and Oct. 7, said UF spokeswoman Linda Gray.

The two did not wager on Florida games and bet only small amounts of their own money — $25 to $100, the university said in a statement.

Two other players — Brady Ackerman, a walk-on receiver from Jacksonville, and G.A. Mangus, a walk-on quarterback from Atlanta — were declared ineligible for unspecified NCAA rules violations, according to the statement.

The federal Buckley Amendment forbids release of confidential student information, Gray said, so the university cannot provide details about their suspensions.

Morris, Matthews and their families had cooperated fully in the matter and gave permission for the university to release information, Arnsperger said.

"It is unfortunate these young men became involved in this situation," Athletic Director Bill Arnsperger said. "However, both young men wanted this information to be made public so that other student-athletes can be made aware of the seriousness of even casual, friendly bets for even small sums of money."

All four suspended players will remain as students, the university said.

NCAA rules stipulate that the scholarships of Morris and Matthews must be revoked immediately. They have to sit out spring practice and can apply for reinstatement next summer.

All four will be suspended for the rest of the season. Any further extension of ineligibility will be determined later by the university in cooperation with the NAA, Gray said.

Morris, a 6-foot-3, 206-pound sophomore, has started for Florida the past two seasons. He was booted after the Gators' season-opening home loss to Ole Miss, but rebounded to lead the team to five straight victories.

He completed 65 passes in 131 attempts for 1,098 yards with nine touchdowns and six interceptions through the first six games.

Matthews, a 6-foot-2, 180-pound redshirt freshman, was fourth on the Gators' quarterback depth chart behind freshmen Donald Douglas and Lex Smith.

David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA in Shawnee Mission, Kan., was informed by UF officials Monday night of the players' gambling violations.

"I won't tell you anything. I am not in a position to say anything,"

Berst said by telephone from his home.

He said he doubted anything would happen to UF because of this, unless it is learned the university "had a hand in" the gambling.

UF spokeswoman Linda Gray said the University Police Department still is investigating the gambling allegations, but she would not speculate on the possibility of criminal charges.

The bets didn't affect the players' individual performance, she added.

The Gators play New Mexico in Gainesville on Saturday for homecoming. Before the announcement, they were considered the prohibitive favorite.

Freshman Lex Smith, who has never played a down in college, will likely replace Morris. Whitey Jordan, Florida's offensive coordinator, said the Gator offense will feel the loss of its starting quarterback.

"It makes us have to revamp it," Jordan said. "We've got to cut it back some. Lex can throw the football. But, with him being inexperienced, it's like starting over."

"The only thing that changes is that we're going back to the fundamentals. We're back to August now with the basic throwing game."

Gray told The Associated Press that Sloan and assistants Monte Towe, Kenny McCraney and Phil Weber have not resigned.

"This is not true," she said. "No such plans are currently in effect."

"I have spoken to President Robert Bryan and General Counsel Pamela Bernard, who said there are no imminent plans for changes in the basketball program," Gray said. "However, the basketball and football programs are still under investigation by both the school and the NCAA."

Adversity, 'Pack No Strangers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — As North Carolina State head basketball coach Jim Valvano and his team head into the season awaiting a verdict from the NCAA, one of the team's leaders is philosophical about the tribulations.

Coach Valvano likes to say that adversity can either tear you apart or make you stronger," said Wolfpack junior point guard Chris Corchiani.

"Well, I think it has made us stronger. "Last season, when the turmoil started, we just came closer together. We were playing for a cause. This year, it may be even a little more so."

Athletics have taken a back seat to making changes based on the conclusions of the eight-month investigation, Valvano said Monday as he opened the first official day of basketball practice for the Wolfpack.

"To say we did not have any problems would be wrong," Valvano said. "I felt as an athletic director that the solution had to be swift and immediate. I felt it was incumbent on me to do that."

According to the NCAA, the Wolfpack violations include allegations that basketball players traded their complimentary tickets for cash, clothing and stereo equipment; that players sold or traded complimentary shoes; and that players got special discounts and personal charge accounts not available to other customers at a Raleigh jewelry store.

"That ball is not for us to play with," Corchiani said when asked about possible NCAA sanctions against the N.C. State program. "We can't do anything about it. We've done everything we can do to comply with the NCAA (investigation)."

"All we can do now is wait for a verdict."

In a 1,600-page response made available last week, N.C. State officials acknowledged that some rules were broken during the past four years, but that the breaches were not deliberate. The response said corrective measures have been taken to ensure that the breaches do not occur.

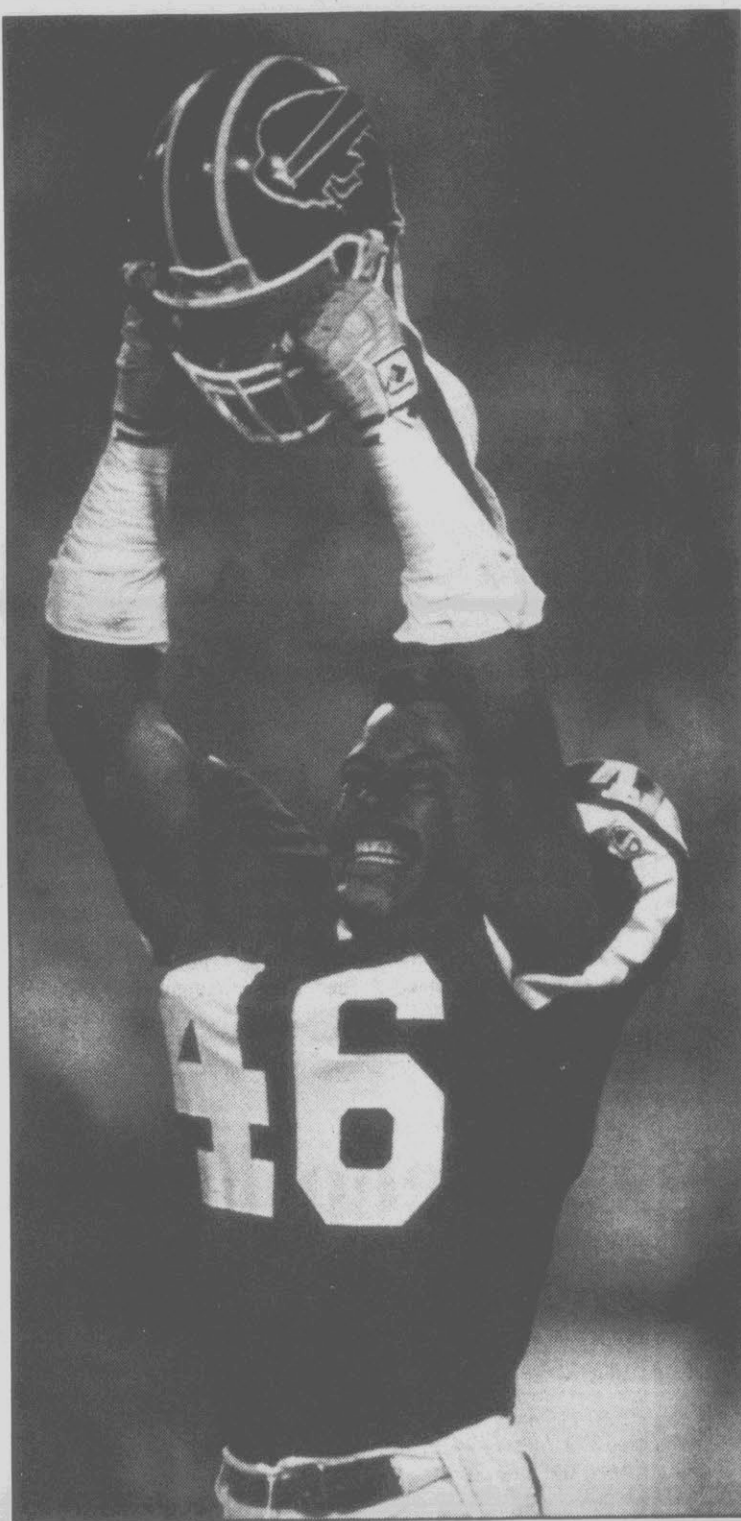

Valvano, who stepped down last week as athletic director, announced last week that he would eliminate all active recruiting in the 1989-90 school year as part of self-imposed penalties.

"We felt a non-recruiting year would let everybody know how serious we are about this," he said. "We have to approach the thing that is most important — perception."

On Monday, Valvano said he was undertaking an effort to educate his players, athletic boosters and the business communities on the rules of college basketball. He also said he had implemented policies concerning players' shoes and complimentary tickets. No coaches will recruit off-campus and paid visits for prospective players will not be allowed.

Valvano also said he had instituted a new set of academic rules for the team with some policies more stringent than those required by the university.

"Soul-searching? Yes, there has been soul-searching. After going through the last eight months and then to say I haven't changed would be foolish. Certainly I have taken a look at myself, at everything ... and of course I have looked at it as a failure on my part," Valvano said.

Buffalo's Leonard Smith celebrates a late defensive stand

No More Unbeatens Miraculous Bills' Rally Stuns Rams

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — The miraculous followed the mundane for the Buffalo Bills' offense.

Bills followers expected little of quarterback Frank Reich, a four-year backup making his first NFL start in place of the injured Jim Kelly. For much of the game, they weren't disappointed, because little is what they got.

Reich underthrew and overthrew his way to a 5-for-15 passing performance in the first half, and the Bills generated as much firepower as a damp firecracker.

But Reich the wreck became Reich the redeemer in leading Buffalo to a stunning 23-20 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Monday night, knocking off the NFL's last remaining unbeaten.

Coach Marv Levy, who withstood many calls to find a better backup for Kelly, said he knew all along that Reich had the composure to be an effective pro quarterback.

"You never go wrong going with a player with great character because he can overcome a lot of things. And Frank Reich has that."

Reich kept his composure even after the chilly start and a demoralizing touchdown reception by the Rams' Willie Anderson that seemed to give Los Angeles a 20-16 victory with less than two minutes to play in the game.

The Anderson pass from Jim Everett restored the lead to a Rams team that had held it until a 1-yard touchdown pass from Reich to Thurman Thomas put Buffalo ahead 16-13 with 2:23 left in the game.

On the Los Angeles sideline, there was a feeling that the Everett-to-Anderson bomb had saved the Rams in a game that was much closer than most had predicted.

"We thought we were magicians," Rams defensive back LeRoy Irvin said. "We thought we had pulled one out of the hat."

On the Buffalo sideline, a depressed defense was met by an upbeat Reich.

"Right after the Rams scored that touchdown, the defense came off and they didn't look too happy," Reich said. "But we gave them a vote of confidence. We really felt we were going to go down and score. That's what we told the defense going off."

What followed was a story line fit for a Disney movie.

Kelly's Backup Orchestrates Comeback

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — It was a job for a Joe Montana, a John Elway, a Jim Everett or, heaven forbid, a Jim Kelly.

But a Frank Reich? It was Reich instead of Kelly, who's out with a separated left shoulder, who came running onto the field with 1:22 left and the Buffalo Bills staring at a 20-16 deficit, courtesy of a Los Angeles Rams' scoring pass of 78 yards from Jim Everett to Willie Anderson.

It looked to all the world like the Rams would remain the NFL's only unbeaten team, particularly because of Reich, who had thrown just 20 passes in four NFL seasons until he took over when Kelly was injured a week ago.

"I thought we had it won," Everett said. "Then I looked up at the scoreboard and saw a minute and 22 seconds left and three timeouts left. I thought that if I was the quarterback, we'd have a chance."

But Everett, who entered the game as the NFL's No. 2-ranked passer, wasn't the quarterback. That position belonged to Reich, a second-stringer going on third who had thrown for just 33 yards in the first half and, until the last nine minutes, had no completion longer than 13 yards.

Still, Reich had all the confidence of any of the above quarterbacks. Seven plays and 1:06 later, the ball was in the end zone, on an 8-yard Reich pass to Andre Reed, and Buffalo was a 23-20 winner.

"The defense came off after the long touchdown and they didn't look too happy," Reich said. "We kind of cheered them up. We knew we were going to go all out and score and that's what we did."

Mike Lansford's kickoff was short and Ronnie Harmon returned it to the 36, from where Reich went to work. And what a job it was — seven completions in seven attempts for 69 yards.

First he threw for six yards to Reed, who had eight catches in the game for 106 yards.

The drive almost ended there when the ball came loose but Bills center Kent Hull fell on it.

Then Reich threw three times to Thurman Thomas, whose fumble had set up the Everett-Anderson hookup just when it seemed the Bills had a safe 16-13 lead. After guard Will Wolford was called for a false start, Reich hit Thomas for 17 yards to the Rams' 43.

Oakland's Welch Feels At Home At Candlestick

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Candlestick Park is new to most of the Oakland Athletics, but Bob Welch will be right at home as the wind buffets him around on the mound tonight.

Welch is Oakland's one-man homefield advantage for Game 3 of the World Series. He was 6-0 at the 'Stick when he pitched for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The only question is which Welch will show up against San Francisco: the one with the 19-4 career record against the Giants or the one with the 5.85 ERA in 14 postseason games?

The veteran right-hander was 1-0 in the American League playoffs, allowing eight hits and two runs in 5 2-3 innings against Toronto. He also pitched well in Game 3 of the Series last year, allowing one earned run on six hits in five innings, and clearly is tiring of questions about his postseason record.

Asked during a Candlestick Park press conference Monday to explain his October numbers, Welch replied tersely: "Bad pitches. Guys who can hit. I think that's a pretty good explanation."

If his irritation was understandable, it also was one of the few such moments for the relaxed A's during their off-day workout.

The primary topics were the often wild winds of Candlestick, lineup changes at catcher and possibly shortstop, and how to hit Don Robinson, the Giants' Game 3 starter.

None of those issues seemed a particularly big deal to a team with a 2-0 advantage in the World Series.

The A's yucked it up over their pitchers' weak swings, Rickey Henderson's tardy arrival and anything else that caught their attention. But one thing Manager Tony La Russa isn't worried about is overconfidence.

"We have never shown the first instance of taking things for granted or backing off all year long," La Russa said. "We've been a very hungry club, especially for the last two months."

None of the A's regulars in the lineup have extensive experience with Candlestick's swirling gusts. Most have played there only in the Bay Bridge Series that ends each spring training in early April. Dave Henderson played for the Giants in September 1987 but was mostly used as a pinch-hitter.

"I don't think this part of the season the wind here is that bad," said Rickey Henderson, whose "punishment" by La Russa was to sign baseballs. "Usually in October they have mild weather."

Henderson played in Candlestick in a high school all-star game and in the 1984 major league All-Star Game, and recalled having no problem with the conditions either time.

"The wind, if it kicks up, can cause a lot of problems with popups here," said shortstop Walt Weiss, who may be benched in favor of Mike Gallego. "But it wasn't too bad today."

La Russa said he hadn't decided on either his shortstop or his batting order in the absence of Dave Parker, who will be limited to pinch-hitting duties since there is no designated hitter allowed for World Series games played at National League parks.

"Gags (Gallego) and Weiss — we can't lose," he said. "It's a real tough call, but it's the best kind of call. I've got two outstanding shortstops."

La Russa had already announced that Ron Hassey will catch instead of Terry Steinbach, whose three-run homer was the key blow in Sunday night's 5-1 victory. Hassey, an 11-year veteran, has caught Welch regularly ever since he was assigned to help the pitcher make the adjustment from the National League at the start of last season.

Parker, playing out his contract and seeking a two-year deal from the A's if they'll agree to it, conceivably could have played his last game for Oakland. But on the verge of his second World Series title, he said he's not that frustrated.

"I would like to be out there, but it's the rule," he said.

"I only played one game in right field all year. I'd rather have a Rickey Henderson in left field and a Dave Henderson in center, and of course Jose (Canseco) being the offensive machine that he is — you've got to have those three talents out there."

Rose Girls Second In State GOLF

CHAPEL HILL — Rose High School's girls' golf team, the defending state champions, stood second after the first of two days of competition at Finley Golf Course in Chapel Hill Monday.

Rose's team of Camilla Brown, Robyn Galloway and Valerie Vincent shot a total of 207 for the first round of play. The top two scores are counted each day.

Richmond County leads the team field with a 194 total, 13 shots ahead of Rose. Hoke County is third with a 237 total, followed by Pinecrest at 238.

Meredith Tucker of Rocky Mount and Andena Briles of Southwestern Randolph each had opening round 80s to tie for the lead in the individual championship. They hold a two-shot lead over Anzee Wilkins of Triton, who had an 82 while Brown is fourth with an 83 total.

The final round of the tournament will be played today.

Individual Leaders: 1) Meredith Tucker, Rocky Mount 80 and Andena Briles, SW Randolph 80; 3) Anzee Wilkins, Triton, 82; 4) Camilla Brown, Rose, 83; 5) Pam Davison, Sanderson, 87; 6) Amy Mouser, Hickory, 91; 7) Leslie Gainey, Richmond, 92; 8) Angie McBride, S. Green Captures Football Contest

Zack Green of 1600 Oaklawn, Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Green correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed on last week's contest pages. His victory came through his point total guess. His guess of 76 was the closest to the actual total of 67 scored in Virginia's 50-17 win over North Carolina.

Second place went to Anthony Martin of 122D Woodlawn Ave., Greenville. He, too, had 27 games picked correctly, but was further off the point total with a guess of 81.

There were two ties in the contest games, between Ohio and Miami of Ohio, and between Oregon State and Arizona State. Both were counted wrong in most instances since rules allow for the picking of a tie. One entrant, Brett Ussery of Farmville, became the first person in the history of the contest to pick a tie and hit it, calling the OSU-ASU game.

The next contest in the series appears in today's edition.

Recreation League Tennis Roundup

The Domino's Pizza Team Tennis League completed its second week of play Sunday.

The Strings defeated the Swatters, 30-28; the Slammers downed the Swatters, 21-20; the Aces beat the Double Faults, 33-16; and the Slicers topped the Netcorps, 25-24.

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's junior girls tennis team defeated Greenfield School of Wilson Monday, 7-2.

The team will travel to Chapel Hill Wednesday to face Culbreth Junior High.

Cox Tops Ayden In Volleyball

WINTERVILLE — A.G. Cox Middle School defeated Ayden in a pair of junior high school volleyball matches Monday.

In the A team match, Cox won, 15-10, 15-3. Service for Cox was led by Lori Lewis and Keisha Wilder. In the B team match, Cox took a 15-4, 15-10 victory. Triva Ebron and Whitney Bennett led service for Cox.

Now 6-0, Cox travels to Bethel on Wednesday for its next match.

AYDEN — Host Chicod registered a 15-10, 15-4 middle school volleyball win over Farmville Monday afternoon.

Alecia Page led Chicod with 10 service points in the opening game and seven in the second.

Chicod, now 4-2, plays at Wellcome Middle School Wednesday.

Tech Players Honored For Clemson Win

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Four Georgia Tech players were selected as players of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference after the Yellow Jackets upset Clemson on Saturday.

Running back Jerry Mays, defensive back Ken Swilling, linebacker Eric Thomas and quarterback Shawn Jones were chosen for the weekly honors by a panel from the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Mays, a 5-foot-8, 166-pound senior from Thomson, Ga., accounted for more than 100 total yards in Georgia Tech's 30-14 victory, rushing for 97 yards and adding another 57 yards in pass receptions. He caught eight passes, including one for a touchdown, and rushed 25 times in capturing the conference offensive back honors.

Jones, chosen as the rookie of the week, led the Yellow Jackets offense, which amassed 385 yards against the Tigers.

Jones, a 6-1, 193-pounder from Thomasville, Ga., completed 15 of 25 passes for a career-high 223 yards and two touchdowns, a 3-yarder to Mays and an 81-yard scoring pass to Bobby Rodriguez early in the third quarter.

Thomas, the defensive lineman of the week, had a total of 15 tackles, including four solo tackles and four primary hits. Thomas, a 6-1, 220-pound senior from Oak Ridge, Tenn., graded out at 83 percent on his assignments.

Swilling, a 6-2, 226-pound sophomore free safety from Toccoa, Ga., was named defensive back of the week. He also had a total of 15 tackles, including three solo tackles, and had an interception that set up a Yellow Jacket field goal.

Ferry, Shaw Find Going Rough In Rome

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — It's starting to get embarrassing for Danny Ferry and Brian Shaw.

The American stars played their worst game of the Italian basketball season as their team, Messaggero Roma, lost its fourth straight.

Messaggero's fans were hoping the highly-touted and highly-paid Ferry and Shaw would bring them a league title. The team lost 93-85 Sunday night to previously winless Pains Napoli.

After winning its opener, Messaggero dropped three close games to the league's top teams. But Sunday's decisive loss to one of the league's weakest clubs hurt the most.

Shaw, who started as a rookie guard last season with the Boston Celtics, scored a team-high 20 points but shot only 7 of 21 from the field in what II Messaggero described as a "disastrous" performance.

Ferry, the former Duke All-America who chose Messaggero over the Los Angeles Clippers of the NBA, was held to a season-low 14 points.

The Naples team was paced by Ivan Sunara, who led all scorers with 22 points, and American center Cozell McQueen, who dominated under the boards.

With its 1-4 record, Messaggero is tied with five other clubs in 11th place in the 13-team first division. Messaggero's next league game is against Riunite Reggio Emilia, also 1-4.

Broncos Rehire Shanahan

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos on Monday rehired Mike Shanahan, who was fired as head coach of the Los Angeles Raiders Oct. 3.

Shanahan was an assistant coach in Denver for four seasons, serving as offensive coordinator during Denver's two Super Bowl seasons of 1986 and 1987.

Shanahan will become Denver's quarterback coach and is expected to begin leading practices later this week, said Matt Cook, a Broncos spokesman. The terms of the contract weren't disclosed.

D.H. Conley and North Pitt continue play in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association state volleyball playoffs tonight.

Conley, the Coastal Conference champion, travels to Wake-Forest Rolesville in for a third-round test in the 3-A playoffs while North Pitt, the Eastern Plains Conference champion, is home against East Duplin at 7 p.m. in the third round of the 2-A playoffs.

Rose, Hunt Battle To Scoreless Tie

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Perhaps the safest place at the Meadowbrook Park soccer field Monday afternoon was in the net.

Despite two 40-minute halves and two 10-minute overtime periods of fast and furious action, host Rose and revenge-seeking Wilson Hunt failed to score and had to settle for a scoreless tie in a Big East Conference boys' soccer match.

The Rampants, who travel to Elizabeth Northeastern Thursday afternoon at 4, had handed Hunt a 2-0 loss just last Thursday in Wilson.

"Intensity's the word," Rose coach Charlie Harvey said. "Our problem is coming ready to play. That's the thing in a team sport. If all 11 aren't playing you try to make changes but sometimes it doesn't click and today it wasn't clicking."

The tie leaves Rose, seeking its sixth consecutive Big East regular-season crown, with a 7-1-1 record in the conference and 11-3-2 overall. Wilson Fike is challenging for first with a 5-1-1 mark, including a win over Rose last week.

The two will collide later this season in Greenville.

The Warriors, who travel to Northeastern today, stand 4-3-1 in the conference and 6-4-1 overall.

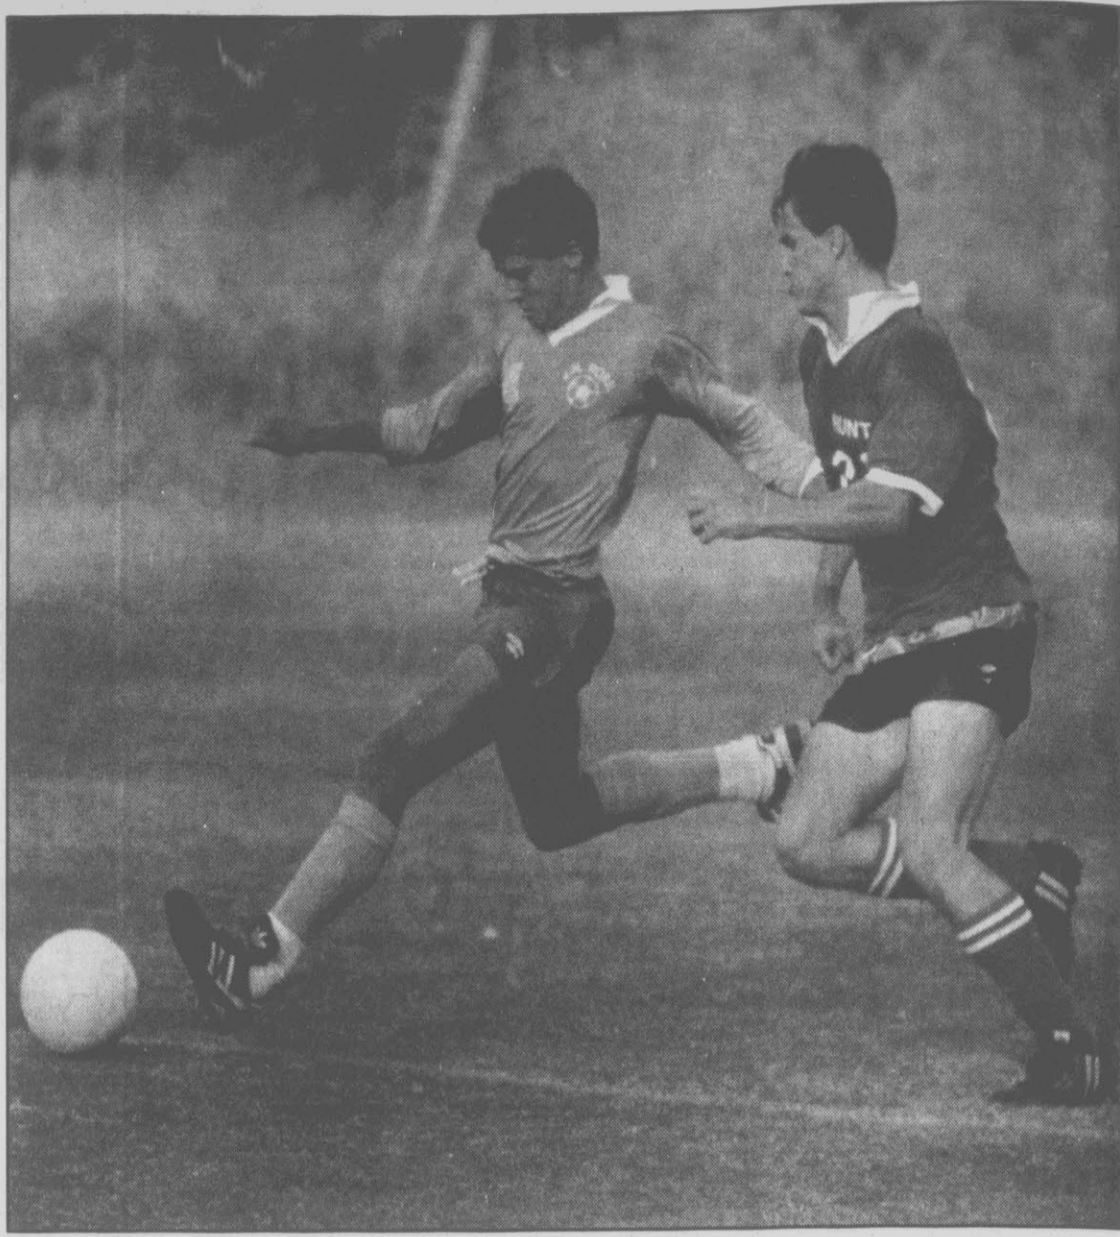

Hunt geared its defense to stopping Rampant leading scorer Jason Bizzaro, who accounted for both goals in Thursday's match. Bizzaro was often shadowed by at least two defenders, but still managed to attempt several shots.

Still, his effectiveness was limited.

"The difference was we had defense against No. 14 (Bizzaro)," Hunt coach Todd Gribble said. "The first game we didn't mark him well. We sort of triple-teamed him with Greg Appert, Patrick Campbell and Mark Davis. We kept those guys fresh."

Harvey insisted the difference in the two matches was simply Hunt's mental approach.

"The only thing they did different was they came out more ready to play," Harvey said. "They basically had nothing to lose. I guaranteed them (his Rose players) that Hunt would be a different team, more fired up and ready to play."

The Daily Reflector/Mike Grizzard

Rose's Thomas Leahy (4) works the ball upfield against Wilson Hunt's Brian Bennett (21)

Rose dominated much of regulation, owning a 10-3 advantage in shots the first half and a 21-5 shot advantage through two periods.

But both teams had opportunities galore in the two overtimes, including several from point-blank range.

The Warriors barely missed forging ahead 1:30 into the first overtime

when Richard Keely's bullet from 15 yards out bounded off the right bar. Russell Nelson made a tremendous dive to his right to smother a by Brian Bennett shot six minutes into the second overtime.

Rose also had its chances in the two overtime periods with five cornerkicks and several pin-ball like flurries in front of the Hunt goal but came up empty.

An apparent goal by Bizzaro with just under two minutes left was negated by a handball.

Rose had one corner kick opportunity in the first half and five the second half. The Rampants' closest call in regulation came when Ashley Branch's shot from the right wing hit the top of the crossbar and ricocheted off.

Neutral Sites To Host Two Prep Championships

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL — Two of the four North Carolina High School Athletic Association state football championships will be played at neutral sites this year.

Both the 3-A and 4-A title games will be played at Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill. The 3-A teams will be at 8 p.m. Dec. 8, and the 4-A championship will begin at 3:30 p.m. Dec. 9.

"We are excited about having these two games at Kenan Stadium," said Dick Knox, associate director of the NCHSAA, who coordinates the football playoffs for the organization. "It's a beautiful facility and Carolina has just been great to work with to ensure that the championships here will really provide a memory forever for the athletes, coaches and spectators."

The Village Companies of Chapel Hill will serve as primary corporate sponsor of the two championship games, helping to underwrite the costs of playing at a neutral site.

The NCHSAA board of directors had approved the possibility of the 1-A and 2-A championship games being played at Carter-Finley Stadium in Raleigh, contingent on corporate sponsorship. However, the games will be played on a home-and-home basis for this year.

Irish Keep Hold On No. 1 Wolfpack Climbs To 12th; Clemson Out

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas A&M's 17-13 victory over Houston returned the Aggies to the Top 25 and dropped the Cougars out of the Top Ten.

After a one-week absence from the rankings, Texas A&M made it back to No. 23 in this week's Associated Press college football poll while Houston fell from No. 8 all the way to No. 16.

The top seven teams, led by Notre Dame, Miami and Colorado, remained the same. Colorado picked up one more first-place vote than last week following a 52-17 rout of Iowa State.

Despite a 41-27 victory over Air Force, Notre Dame's first-place votes slipped from 54 to 52. But the Irish remained No. 1 with 1,443 points.

Miami again was No. 2 with 1,374 points after a 48-16 thumping of San Jose State. Miami and Colorado both received three first-place votes, with the Buffaloes earning 1,352 points.

A week ago, Colorado was 57 points behind Miami and trailed Notre Dame by 123.

The four teams behind Colorado — Nebraska, Michigan, Tennessee and Arkansas — remained unchanged from a week ago. Pittsburgh, Southern Cal, Alabama, Auburn and North Carolina State all advanced a notch to complete the top dozen.

Illinois picked up three places, from 16th to 13th, after beating Purdue 14-2. Florida State, loser of its first two games but winner of its last four, advanced from No. 19 to No. 14 with a 41-7 victory over Virginia Tech.

Washington State moved from No. 17 to No. 15 after beating Stanford 31-13.

Behind No. 16 Houston is Penn State, up from 23rd after trouncing Syracuse 34-12, and West Virginia, idle on Saturday but still up from No. 20 to No. 18.

Air Force's loss to Notre Dame dropped the Falcons two places to No. 19, and Florida, tied with Brigham Young for 25th a week ago, moved up to No. 20 by beating Vanderbilt 34-11. BYU took over No. 21 after beating Colorado State 45-16.

Losses cost Michigan State, Clemson and UCLA their spots. Michigan State, which had been No. 21, lost 10-7 to Michigan and fell out of the rankings. Clemson, No. 14 a week ago, lost 30-14 at home against Georgia Tech and UCLA absorbed a 42-7 thumping by Arizona and turned over its No. 22 ranking to the Wildcats.

South Carolina, idle last week, remained No. 24 and Oklahoma fell from 15th to 25th after losing to Texas 28-24.

Vols Paid For Cobb Rehab

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The University of Tennessee spent more than $10,000 last spring to send running back Reggie Cobb to an out-of-state drug rehabilitation clinic, according to a story published Tuesday in a Nashville newspaper.

Citing unnamed sources, The Tennessean, Nashville's morning newspaper, said Cobb entered a six-week drug rehabilitation program after he was suspended from the Vol team last February following the third positive drug test of his college career.

An NCAA rule passed in 1986 allows a school to allocate funds for drug rehabilitation as "benefits incidental to a student's participation in intercollegiate athletics," according to the NCAA Manual.

The Tennessean article said Cobb was permanently dismissed by Coach Johnny Majors last Thursday after he again tested positive for drugs in a random screening.

Tennessee officials have refused to comment on the matter.

The Vols, 5-0 and ranked sixth in the latest Associated Press poll, had last weekend off and are preparing for Saturday's Southeastern Conference clash with No. 10 Alabama in Birmingham.

Cobb was originally suspended from the Tennessee team on Feb. 22. He appealed for reinstatement to the team following completion of the rehabilitation process last summer, the newspaper's sources said.

Majors announced on July 20 that the junior tailback would be allowed to return to the team.

Cobb had rushed for 616 yards in his five games, including a 225-yard effort in a Sept. 30 victory over Auburn.

According to figures supplied by the university, the Tennessee athletic program spent approximately $44,000 on drug testing during the 1988-89 school year.

Giants Hoping More Than Scenery Changes

Robinson Should Add More Punch

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants will have a little more punch in their lineup for Game 3 of the World Series. Don Robinson is hitting.

He's also pitching, and that could be the problem.

The 6-foot-4 right-hander has a sore right knee and must wear a cumbersome knee brace.

"That's not a knee brace he's wearing, that's a Lawn Boy," said Giants pitcher Mike Krukow, who is missing the Series with an arm injury.

A lot is riding on Game 3, scheduled to start at 5:35 p.m. PDT today.

Robinson will be opposed by Oakland's Bob Welch as the A's try to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 Series.

Welch is 19-4 lifetime against San Francisco, including 6-0 with a 2.35 earned-run average at Candlestick. All that came when Welch pitched for the Los Angeles Dodgers from 1978-87.

In the first two games, the Giants managed only nine hits in 62 at-bats, with none in 11 opportunities with runners in scoring position. They had very little success hitting the split-finger pitch off Dave Stewart and Mike Moore.

The Giants managed only one run in the first two games, and the last time that happened in the World Series was by Philadelphia in 1950.

The designated hitter rule is not being used in the National League park, so Robinson will get to swing at Candlestick.

"Don Robinson is one of the best hitting pitchers I've ever faced," Krukow said. "You can't just throw down the middle when he's hitting."

Robinson hit three homers this season and has 11 in his career. He's such a good hitter that Philadelphia gave him an intentional walk on June 22, 1984.

"Don Robinson is a good hitter, and I would let him bat in a close situation," Giants manager Roger Craig said.

"I've seen comebacks before," Robinson said. "I was down 3-1 with the Pirates (in 1979). I'm looking forward to going to our park and playing by National League rules. I get to hit and that's an advantage for us. They'll have to pitch to (Jose) Uribe and at no time this year did anyone walk him to get to me."

Robinson was mad when Craig chose Mike LaCoss to start Game 3 of the NL playoffs, but the manager was concerned that Robinson wouldn't make it very far. That concern still exists.

"We'll wait and see what happens," Craig said. "I see no reason why he can't go out and throw 85 to 100 pitches. The one thing about Don Robinson is he's got the perfect makeup for a pitcher — he's a great competitor, and he'll battle you all the way."

Welch isn't counting on his past performances against the Giants to mean anything.

"I know my record at Candlestick is good, but I can't pinpoint why. I just happened to pitch good games against them," Welch said. "I could be 10-0 here and it wouldn't matter once I go out on the field."

Welch came to Oakland in a three-way deal involving the New York Mets and the Dodgers prior to the 1987 season, and is 34-17 in two seasons.

Welch doesn't throw as hard as he did 11 years ago, but he's a complete pitcher now.

In 1978, Welch, then a rookie, struck out the New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson to win Game 2 for the Dodgers. But Reggie hit one into the seats in Game 6 off Welch.

Robinson pitched in the 1979 World Series for Pittsburgh against Baltimore.

Both pitchers are back, although a little worn, a decade later.

Robinson began his career as a starter with Pittsburgh and moved to the bullpen in 1983.

The Giants acquired Robinson on July 31, 1987, for catcher Mackey Sasser and Craig made him a starter again last season.

Robinson was 12-11 this year with a 3.43 earned-run average.

He hurt his right knee in a start against Cincinnati in September.

"One pitch could be the Series," Robinson said. "It couldn't have happened at a worse time. It doesn't bother me when I hit, run or jump or move around the mound, only when I move toward home plate and get ready to release the baseball."

That could be a problem for a pitcher.

"My thing is getting through the first inning," Robinson said. "I just wish I knew my knee would be 100 percent."

Anything less, and the Giants might be looking at a one-way ride over the Bay Bridge.

Craig said Monday he won't hesitate to take Robinson out if he looks shaky.

"You can't wait at this time of year," Craig said. "I will manage a little differently."

Craig Makes Lineup Moves

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — A change of scenery is not the only thing that will be different for Game 3 of the World Series.

San Francisco manager Roger Craig, faced with a 2-0 deficit against Oakland, is making some lineup changes.

Ken Oberkfell will start at third base and Pat Sheridan in right field, knocking Jose Uribe and Candy Maldonado out of the lineup. Matt Williams moves from third base to short, taking Uribe's spot.

In the first two games at Oakland, the Giants went 9-for-62 (.145) with one run scored. They were 0-for-11 with runners in scoring position, including 0-for-6 by Will Clark and Kevin Mitchell.

"Evidently we need more offense," Craig said. "Oberkfell has been swinging the bat good all year. The only reason I hate to do it is that I take away my pinch hitter."

Craig

During the regular season, Oberkfell set a club record with 18 pinch hits.

With the World Series moving over the Bay Bridge to Candlestick Park for Games 3, 4, and, if necessary, 5, the designated hitter rule will not be used.

"You're going to use a pinch hitter more in the National League than you would in the American League," Craig said. "But he's swinging the bat good. I just feel he can get me some offense, drive in some runs."

To make matters even worse for the Giants, Clark just feels plain lousy. Clark, who already has a sore knee, now has tonsillitis.

The Giants first baseman was at Candlestick Park on Monday, but did not participate in San Francisco's two-hour workout.

"He reported for about 60 minutes of treatment on his knee," Giants trainer Mark Letendre said. "We also changed his medication for his tonsillitis. Although he had a general malaise, and that was not somebody in the French Revolution, he felt better."

Parker, however, will be on the bench since there is no DH.

"We'll miss Dave's bat, but we still have a good lineup," La Russa said.

Most Athletes Favor Drug Testing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST LANSING, Mich. — A national survey of college athletes found 72 percent believe illegal drug use is a problem in sports and 65 percent favor mandatory testing of all athletes by their schools.

The study, released Monday by Michigan State University researchers, also shows the number of college athletes using anabolic steroids increased slightly over the past four years, but marijuana and cocaine use dropped.

The number of athletes drinking went up slightly and use of smokeless tobacco increased by nearly 40 percent, from 20 percent in 1985 to 28 percent this year, according to the study for the NCAA.

Of the nearly 2,300 athletes surveyed, 5 percent reported using anabolic steroids, mainly football players, but also men and women participating in eight other sports. That's up from 4 percent in 1985.

One of the Michigan State researchers, Dr. Douglas McKeag, said testing and strong sanctions for violators would ease a lot of pressure on athletes.

"The principal concern now among athletes is, 'How can I stay up with my competition if I know my competition is getting an artificial boost here and there?' That's a hard question to answer," he said.

McKeag said athletic conferences and the NCAA are stepping up the fight against steroids, but some athletes are willing to risk long-term heart, liver, and reproductive problems for short-term gain.

"When you deal with drugs that are perceived as being helpful in getting somebody what they are asking, in other words a pro career with lots of money, you have a lot there that you're arguing against," he said.

"Regardless of how severe some of the side effects might be, you're dealing with a young individual who may be looking at his lifetime dream."

McKeag predicted those numbers would drop as education programs took hold, and said he was more worried about the fact that 89 percent of the athletes, up from 88 percent in 1985, regularly drank alcoholic beverages.

"You take a look at what can occur to an individual and the number of people hospitalized now with alcohol-related problems, you're dealing with a significant problem in our country that is much wider than any of the other drugs on this particular list," he said.

William Anderson, associate professor of medical education, said he was impressed with the drop of cocaine use — from 17 percent in 1985 to 5 percent this year — by athletes and the decline in marijuana use from 36 percent to 28 percent.

Anderson said the cause of the sharp cocaine drop was hard to determine, but might be traced to the highly publicized deaths of such athletes as Maryland basketball star Len Bias, and to education efforts.

Anderson said he couldn't explain the dramatic increase in the use of smokeless tobacco especially in baseball, with 57 percent of male players using it and 9 percent of women softball players doing the same.

"This just flies in the face of any and all efforts at education," Anderson said.

Use of smokeless tobacco has been linked to cancer of the mouth, lips, and gums and loss of teeth due to deterioration of gum tissue.

McKeag and Anderson said they and their team of researchers had 2,282 athletes at 11 NCAA colleges and universities volunteer to fill out confidential questionnaires. For their 1985 study, the number was 2,039.

Of those athletes, 1,552 were male and 730 were female.

Lohr Out To Defend Disney Classic Title

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Bob Lohr wants to take a vacation, but first he has to play some golf at Disney World.

Lohr will defend his title in the Disney World Classic starting Wednesday. The victory in last year's event was his first and only PGA Tour title.

"I'm really looking forward for the year to kind of come to a close," Lohr said. "It's been a little bit disappointing."

"You certainly have high hopes after you win a tournament. Your expectations rise a little bit. Maybe that's been part of the problem."

After the Disney, Lohr plans to play in just one more tournament this year — in December.

The resident of suburban Orlando is coming off his best finish of the year, a third-place tie in the Texas Open at San Antonio. That boosted him to 96th on the PGA money list with $142,609, a slip from last year's finish in 32nd place with $315,536.

He earned the biggest paycheck of his career in the Disney a year ago, thanks in large measure to an opening-round, 10-under-par 62.

"It was a tremendous feeling to shoot that low," Lohr said. "It would be an understatement to say everything went right that day. It went right for four straight hours."

Lohr had 10 birdies and no bogeys in his opening round, added scores of 67, 66 and 68 in the next three rounds, and then beat Chip Beck on the fifth hole of a playoff.

Lohr's 10-under score was a personal best. The groove he found that day has since been elusive, he said.

"There have been a couple of times I shot really low front nines, but I didn't sustain it," he said. "At Memphis this year I shot 6-under on the first nine. If the momentum had stayed with me, I could have shot 10- or 11-under. But it's tough to keep it going all day."

Lohr might need to shoot another 62 to retain his Disney title because the field is that strong. It includes 14 of the top 20 money winners this year, 40 of the top 50 and champions of 26 tournaments.

DUNKEL INDEX

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Sheridan Says Wolfpack Must Play Mistake-Free

RALEIGH — N.C. State football coach Dick Sheridan says his 12th-ranked Wolfpack will have to play a mistake-free game when it travels Saturday to meet Clemson's Tigers. "I was surprised but not shocked," Sheridan said of Georgia Tech's 30-14 upset over Clemson last week. "Georgia Tech has been underestimated for some time. "Regardless of the Georgia Tech game, I think we're going to get the same Clemson output," Sheridan said. "We have a tremendous amount of respect for Clemson. They can line up and compete with the very best in this nation."

Duke Seeks To End Terp Reign DURHAM (AP) — When Duke takes on Maryland Saturday, coach Steve Spurrier hopes his team will be able to end the Terrapins' decade-and-a-half domination over the Blue Devils. It's been 17 years since Duke beat Maryland, but the Blue Devils have come close the past two seasons. Last year Maryland won 34-24, and in 1987 the Terrapins rallied for a 23-22 victory. In a 32-game series, Duke has lost 18 times to Maryland, including the last 13 games. In both games, Duke had a big lead but couldn't hold it. Two years ago, Duke led Maryland 22-7 with less than six minutes left, but a then unknown quarterback named Neil O'Donnell led the Terrapins to two touchdowns and two two-point conversions. Saturday's game will be televised at 4 p.m. on ESPN. Sheridan said Clemson's losses to Georgia Tech, a 20-point underdog, and Duke in the past three weeks won't have much effect on the non-conference games and having one open weekend. The Wolfpack has defeated Clemson in close battles for the past three years. Saturday's game will be televised at 4 p.m. on ESPN. Welsh Touts Herman Moore CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. — Virginia coach George Welsh on Monday departed from his usual practice of restrained praise for his players to tout the talent and accomplishments of Herman Moore. At his weekly news conference, Welsh said that Moore, a sophomore wide receiver, could be "one of the top receivers in college football." Moore, a 6-foot-5, 197-pound former Atlantic Coast Conference high jump champion, has 21 receptions for 541 yards, an average 25.8 yards per catch, and six touchdowns this season. His four catches for 116 yards and one touchdown in Saturday's 50-17 victory over North Carolina gave Moore three straight 100-yard ACC games. Welsh praised Moore's desire in addition to his athletic ability. "I hope saying this isn't the kiss of death," Welsh said. "But Herman's a tough kid. He wants to win. You can see it in his eyes. He wants the ball thrown to him in the clutch." The only question mark in Moore's ability concerns his speed but Welsh said that can be improved during the off season. Moore earned recognition last season for hauling down long touchdown passes but his evolution into a more complete receiver has given the Cavaliers (5-2 overall and 3-1 in the ACC) a more potent passing attack. All three of Virginia's starting receivers — Moore, wide receiver Tim Finkelstein, and tight end Bruce McGonnigal — have more than 1,000 career receiving yards. Quarterback Shawn Moore is ranked first in passing efficiency among NCAA Division I-A quarterbacks with 69 completions in 116 attempts for 1,121 yards and 10 touchdowns. The Cavaliers host conference foe Wake Forest (1-4-1, 1-2) on Saturday.

"Regardless of the Georgia Tech game, I think we're going to get the same Clemson output," Sheridan said. "We have a tremendous amount of respect for Clemson. They can line up and compete with the very best in this nation."

Sheridan said Clemson's losses to Georgia Tech, a 20-point underdog, and Duke in the past three weeks won't have much effect on the non-conference games and having one open weekend. The Wolfpack has defeated Clemson in close battles for the past three years. Saturday's game will be televised at 4 p.m. on ESPN. Bills' Defense Revives...

(Continued from B-1) found in the previous drive of 86 yards that led to the Thomas score, marched the Bills 64 yards downfield. He completed seven straight passes, ending the drive by hitting Andre Reed from eight yards for a touchdown with 16 seconds left. Reich hit 16 of 22 passes in the second half. All of this was accomplished, Reich said, despite a dislocated finger on his throwing hand that happened in the third quarter. "Even right now I don't have feeling in it," he said. "That's why I was throwing the ball on the sidelines. I was continually throwing because I was trying to block out the pain." The Rams were stunned. "You make a play like my touchdown, you feel like you won a ballgame," Anderson said. "We were celebrating, but then they came back and it really hurt to watch. It hurt a lot." Overshadowed by Reich's heroics question, their best game of the season," Levis said. The Rams' offense, No. 4 statistically in the NFL, was limited to 266 yards. Greg Bell, the NFL's No. 2 rusher, ran for 44 yards in 22 carries. "We hadn't been playing together and we knew it, so we had a meeting and talked it over," Bills nose tackle Fred Smerlas said. "What you saw tonight was the real Buffalo Bills defense. We were rockin' and rollin', that's the kind of 'D' we can play." Rams coach John Robinson, whose team is now 5-1, said the loss could prove beneficial to his team in the long run. "We are a football team that, I think, will be there in the end and we've got to be ... in a few more of these kind of games," he said. The Bills, 4-2, took a one-game lead in the AFC East over Indianapolis and Miami. They also talked about the long-range implications of the victory. Said center Kent Hull: "I think we came together as a football team to night."

Reich Engineers Bills' Rally...

(Continued from B-1) had plenty of time and done almost nothing. Most of the offense was Thomas' 105 rushing yards in 24 carries. Reich got no help from the Rams' defense. Coach John Robinson insisted that his team play its regular "nickel" defense, a complex combination of man-to-man and zone coverage involving five defensive backs, and not the dreaded "prevent" that often as not prevents victory instead of touchdowns. In fact, "nickel" was the operative word. "On the last drive, they nicked us and dimed us," Irvin said. "Their backs made the big plays. They used us. "That kid Reich played well when he had to." Jerry Gray, the other cornerback, was less flattering. "I should have had four interceptions," said Gray, who had one early in the game. "The game was fun, but for the defense, you're left with a sick feeling. It's the feeling you had but let it slip away." Robinson may have had the last word, the word often directed to the likes of Montana and Elway and Everett — and now Frank Reich.

Zsa Zsa Gabor's Sentencing Postponed For One Week

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Sentencing for actress Zsa Zsa Gabor was delayed for a week after her new attorney claimed she wasn't properly defended during her trial and the prosecution recommended 30 days in jail.
 "We have a miscarriage of justice," new defense attorney Harrison Bull told Municipal Court Judge Charles Rubin, who earlier was sent the prosecution recommendation of 30 days in jail and more than $17,000 in fines.
 A jury convicted Miss Gabor on Sept. 29 of battery on a police officer, driving without a valid driver's license and having an open container of alcohol in her car.
 Bull alleged that the trial attorney, William Graysen, mishandled the assault case against Miss Gabor and violated canons of ethics.
 "We do know Mr. Graysen directly solicited this client. He guaranteed this client would not go to jail. Those two facts alone, if proven, would support a denial of due process," Bull said Monday.
 Rubin granted a one-week delay in sentencing, but said he was not overwhelmed by Bull's argument.
 "I feel there is a lot of grasping at straws here," he said, adding there was nothing to indicate misconduct by Graysen.
 Rubin said there was no doubt in

Miss Gabor's mind that jail was a possibility if she was convicted. Throughout the trial, the judge said, "she made some of the most incredible statements about incarceration."
 The judge said he would not allow Miss Gabor to use dilatory tactics or grandstanding. But he set the Oct. 24 date for sentencing and a motion for a new trial.
 Deputy District Attorney Elden Fox disagreed with the defense argument.
 "I felt the matter should have referred to the defendant's competence rather than counsel's," Fox said. "The tenor of this motion appears to be sour grapes."
 Graysen said in an interview that he expects his defense to be upheld.
 "I wish her well. I hope she gets a new trial and that she is vindicated," he added.
 The courtroom developments occurred after Los Angeles County's top prosecutor castigated the actress for mocking the judicial system.
 "She created this situation for herself with her celebrated mouth. She made her bed and she can lie in it, and that's at Sybil Brand," District Attorney Ira Reiner told reporters, referring to the women's jail.
 In addition to the jail term, the prosecution sentencing memorandum sent to the judge sought more than $3,000 in fines and $14,000 to compensate the Beverly Hills Police Department for its costs.

 "This is not some befuddled old lady," Reiner said. "She's as street-wise as anybody else."
 Miss Gabor, whose movies include "Moulin Rouge," "Queen of Outer Space," "Boys Night Out" and "Picture Mommy Dead," was uncharacteristically quiet about Reiner's comments and the jail prospects.
 "I don't say anything," Miss Gabor said by telephone from her Bel-Air home.
 Miss Gabor could be sentenced to 18 months in jail for hitting Officer Paul Kramer. Fox has said she will likely get some type of public service.
 "If she is given any form of community service it will be a farce... preposterous, an outrage," said Reiner, insisting jail time was necessary to convince citizens that celebrities have no special privileges.
 The tempestuous Miss Gabor slapped Kramer on June 14 after he stopped her $215,000 Rolls-Royce convertible. The actress testified she instinctively struck out after Kramer roughed her up.

CNN executive vice president Paul Amos congratulates news anchor Catherine Crier

News Rookie, News Veteran Co-anchor Debut of CNN Show

By Jay Sharbutt
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — She wore an orange jacket, he a gray business suit. A veteran of 25 years in broadcast news, he was crisp and assured. Brand new to the business, she was slightly stiff but not visibly nervous.
 And so it went for co-anchors Bernard Shaw and former Texas judge Catherine Crier as CNN's new, one-hour weeknight newscast, "The World Today," premiered Monday, slow in pace and long on live remotes and financial reportage.
 On the plus side, it was straightforward, unadorned, and had none of the nervously chipper hello-America anchor banter that usually is part of opening night on network news programs.
 But much work lies ahead if "The World Today" is to cause much concern by the large news firm of Rather, Jennings & Brokaw, or even fulfill CNN's promotional vow that the program "will change the face of evening news."

 Granted, the newcomer arrived on a day Wall Street was still briskly tumbling about, a story that had to be covered. But the show covered it from so many angles it mainly proved why economics is called the dismal science.
 The angles included Crier's taped primer on how Wall Street works. It is all well and good to explain the basics. But the basics must be made interesting. They were not.
 Her piece was one of four long features in the first half hour. Only hers was about Wall Street. A more memorable feature concerned a university course in which one can actually observe the process of decomposition in dead squirrels and vegetables.
 That, uh, didn't add much to the night. Neither did a CNN staffer's live stock market report from Chicago on whatever it is that stock index futures do.

That report basically seemed an excuse for Crier — who earlier spoke with another CNN reporter about the World Series — to show she can do live question-and-answer pieces with CNN reporters.
 It might have been smarter to start her off in her field of expertise, the law. Surely there was a rousing criminal case or a portable legal precedent to be had Monday.
 And while Cable News Network is to be saluted for avoiding glitz and whizbang in its new show, the pace of Monday's first try was often slow. At times the show resembled a sure cure for insomnia.
 Whether Crier can learn the art of interviewing remains to be seen. She's only been in news since Oct. 2, and on-the-job training is doing things the hard way when an entire nation is watching you Monday through Friday.

Simply Red: Americans Just Don't Understand

By Elisabeth Dunham
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — It's been three years, two No. 1 hits and 3 million albums since Simply Red entered the American pop music scene, but lead singer Mick "Red" Hucknall says the audience here still doesn't fully grasp the music of his group.
 The band that fills sports arenas elsewhere in the world plays the smallest Palladium in Los Angeles and the moderate Warfield Theater in San Francisco. Hucknall blames narrow-minded radio programming.

 "Radio stations everywhere else in the world are very eclectic in their musical choice and taste," said the 29-year-old red-haired singer and songwriter. "They play a whole mash of different types of music. In America, our music doesn't suit their programming."
 "I still maintain that the public doesn't get a hold on it. We're perceived as a slow-ballad band."
 Simply Red's American hits, "If You Don't Know Me by Now," and "Holding Back the Years," are showcases for Hucknall's stunning, soulful vocals. But they tell only half the story.

 The music of the six-man ensemble bears little resemblance to most contemporary music. Simply Red tackles everything from jazz to soul to pop to reggae and does it extremely well. And Hucknall's voice has been compared to everyone from Phoebe Snow to Neil Young to David Ruffin. The band — a collection of musicians with backgrounds ranging from pub performer to church organist — prides itself on working under its own set of rules, far removed from the middle of the road.

The Family Circus By Bill Keane

"I KNOW who did it, but I'll ask anyway."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Oct. 18
ARIES (March 20 to April 17): A couple from a distance will have excellent advice for your future. You can make money through now taking a business risk.
TAURUS (April 18 to May 19): Fixing up your home can be easily accomplished. You can join with your close attachment in a business association now.
GEMINI (May 20 to June 20): Being critical at home could alienate you from members of your family. Be off with close friends to see interesting companions.
MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21): Don't invite an interesting group into your home at this time. You will be tempted to spend more money than is sensible.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Be off and about to interesting activities with your attachment. Resentment at home will cause you nothing but unhappiness.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Restlessness at home requires that you and your family get out of the house. If you are going to do business now a large firm is best.
LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): Do nothing now that would cause business persons to think you are cheap. Seeing too much of one friend can cause you unnecessary problems.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Going dutch treat with your friends now would keep worthwhile friendships intact. Take your attachment an article of beauty or color.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 20): Now would be a good time to join an organization including friends you like. You have a good chance to improve home conditions now.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 18): Get all possible business data that you require from experts. A time when you need to keep your temper under control is when with your friends.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 19 to Feb. 17): A very good day for you to invite and entertain charmers in your home. Facts and figures require much care in anything of a financial nature.
PISCES (Feb. 18 to March 19): Invite younger persons into your home. Accepting more responsibilities in business will bring you more income. Steer clear of friends who are not reciprocal and economize.

FOURTH-ROUND LOSERS

Opening lead: King of ♠ High on the list of the world's most complete bridge professionals would be Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles. He's a world champion player, a prolific writer and the most popular teacher on the West Coast. A few years ago he published a series of 20 lessons that proved to be a best seller. Now there are 15 more (Kantar Lessons II, published by Eddie Kantar, P.O. Box 427, Venice, Calif. 90291-0427. $35 including postage. Or send $50 for all 35 lessons).

The new series includes such subjects as The Negative Double; Entries; Avoidance Play; Card Combinations; Hand Evaluation. In the above example, from the chapter on Proper Care and Handling of Fourth-Round Losers, you reach a normal contract of four spades. North's three-spade bid is forcing and shows three-card support with opening bid values.

Neither vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

2 ♥	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

In the lesson Kantar discusses how, when you hold a high trump in dummy, your first order of duty is to ruff a loser on the table. Here, for instance, if you draw even one round of trumps, you are headed for defeat. Each time an opponent wins a heart trick a trump will be returned, and dummy will not have a trump for declarer's fourth heart. South must win the opening lead and immediately discard a club on a winning diamond. South remains with a club loser, two certain heart losers, and the problem of the fourth heart.

"On the plus side, dummy has a high trump to care for South's fourth heart. The point of the play is to start hearts before spades.

"South plays the ace and a heart. Regardless of what the defense develops, South concedes a third heart and ruffs the fourth in dummy."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Libyan-Egyptian Tensions Continue

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

CAIRO, Egypt — Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak sought to end more than a decade of hostility between their two nations Monday as they held nearly three hours of talks at an Egyptian seaside resort.

The long-time foes indicated afterward that their discussions, set to resume Tuesday in Libya, had been friendly but did not include the issue of restoring diplomatic relations, broken 10 years ago.

"I do not feel as a guest in this place. I am among my family and brothers," Gadhafi said before flying back to Libya from the Mediterranean beach town of Mersa Matruh in an Egyptian presidential jet.

"I hope ties improve," Mubarak said. Asked about resumption of full diplomatic ties, the Egyptian leader, who will travel to Tobruk, in Libya, on Tuesday, said: "I did not open this issue today."

A full reconciliation with Egypt, Washington's most important Arab ally, would represent Gadhafi's most significant accomplishment so far in a months-long campaign to mend fences with his neighbors and diminish Libya's international isolation. The Libyan leader, shunned by the United States for allegedly supporting terrorists, last visited Egypt 16 years ago.

Medellin Judge Shot To Death On Street Corner

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — A federal judge waiting on a street corner for a ride to work was shot and killed this morning in Medellin, apparently by drug traffickers, the Colombian radio chain Caracol said.

Judge Hector Jimenez Rodriguez was killed by a passenger on a motorcycle as he waited with another judge, the radio chain said.

The gunman got off the motorcycle, walked up to Jimenez and shot him, Caracol quoted witnesses as saying in a report from the scene in Medellin, the base of the country's most notorious cocaine cartel.

Caracol did not give any other details of the slaying. The Medellin police department told The Associated Press it would be several hours before it would issue a report.

There are varying figures on the number of judges that have been killed in Colombia, but the Justice Ministry says that about 50 judges and 170 judicial employees have been killed since 1982.

The Association of Judicial Employees says 1,600 of Colombia's 5,000 judges have been threatened with death in the last 12 months.

Meanwhile, the newspaper Vanguardia Liberal of Bucaramanga, heavily damaged by a bomb on Monday, hit the streets with a 16-page edition today. The newspaper had joined in a condemnation of cocaine barons.

There had been doubts that Vanguardia Liberal would be able to publish today. The paper usually publishes 24 pages each day. Four employees of the newspaper were killed when a car bomb wrecked its building in north-eastern Colombia.

The newspaper's publisher blamed drug traffickers for the bombing in Bucaramanga, a city of 400,000 people 175 miles north of Bogota.

Four journalists were assassinated by unidentified gunmen last week in the cities of Medellin and Monterria.

Delegates Vote To Limit Ivory Trading

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSANNE, Switzerland — Delegates to a 91-country conference have voted overwhelmingly to halt trade in ivory and place African elephants on the endangered list, but five African members refused to go along with the ban.

Proponents of a total ban on the ivory trade could not obtain the required two-thirds vote and so agreed to a compromise proposal allowing southern African nations to apply for exemptions to a special panel of experts.

Environmentalists cheered loudly Monday as delegates to the Convention on Trade in Endangered Species passed the last-minute proposal 76-10-11 with 4 abstentions.

The measure amounts to at least a two-year ban because no exemptions are likely to be considered before group's next meeting.

It must be confirmed in a full session before the 10-day gathering ends Friday, but delegates called that a formality.

"We think this was a good compromise, a place to work from," said Conny Harriman, head of the U.S. delegation that championed East Africa's bid for a total ban.

Costa May, Tanzania's director of wildlife, said East Africans were satisfied. "This is the best we could do, now we must try to work together."

But Rowan Martin, director of research for Zimbabwe's Wildlife Department, was bitter: "They forced seven countries who seemed to be doing well at conservation out of the convention."

Zimbabwe, Malawi, Mozambique, Botswana and Burundi — whose lands contain about one-tenth of the African elephant herd — said they would file for exemptions.

Under convention rules, members can declare reservations within 90 days, allowing them to trade with any other member states who declare exemptions or with non-members.

Britain, Argentina May Restore Ties

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MADRID, Spain — British and Argentine diplomats held talks today aimed at restoring ties severed because of their 1982 war over the Falkland Islands. The first round of the two-day talks was held at the suburban home of the British charge d'affaires, Ivor Roberts. Wednesday's session was to be held at the Argentine Embassy residence.

"It's too early to say much," Argentine Ambassador Lucio Garcia de Soler said at the end of the three-hour morning session between five-man delegations. "But I think it's positive."

Britain's U.N. representative and delegation head Crispin Tickell called the first meeting "good, interesting and businesslike."

Today's were the first formal talks between the two countries since an initial encounter in Bern, Switzerland, in March 1984 founded on the question of sovereignty over the wind-swept archipelago in the South Atlantic, a British colony since 1892.

The Madrid talks, announced at the United Nations Aug. 18, were made possible after President Carlos Menem of Argentina agreed to drop the insistence of his predecessors that Argentina's claim to what it calls the Malvinas had to be the first issue considered in any discussion of normalization.

The agenda of the talks was not made public, but they were expected to center on re-establishment of consular ties as well as air and sea links between the two countries severed because of the 74-day war, which claimed nearly 1,000 lives.

The Argentines are also expected to seek an end to the British-imposed 150-mile zone of exclusion around the 200-odd islands that would permit Argentine fishing boats to operate in the fish-rich region, which lies above the Argentine continental shelf.

Spanish diplomatic sources, who are not directly involved in the talks, said Argentina would most probably call for a reduction in the 2,000-man British military contingent based in the Falklands since the end of the war as a pre-condition to restoring consular relations.

Indirect relations between the two countries have been handled through a British interests section at the Swiss Embassy in Buenos Aires and an Argentine interests section in the Brazilian Embassy in London.

The Spanish sources also described Argentina as being "more in a hurry" than Britain to come to an agreement because of the Latin American nation's pressing need to normalize economic relations with London and desire to establish closer ties with the 12-member European Economic Community.

Last week, Menem pardoned and freed the leaders of the military junta convicted and jailed under the government of former President Raul Alfonsin for their role in backing the April 2, 1982, invasion of the islands that was eventually repelled by a British task force.

Argentina surrendered on June 14, 1982, but never made a formal declaration of cessation of hostilities.

Waldheim Exonerated In Commando Deaths

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — The Ministry of Defense has concluded Austrian president Kurt Waldheim was not responsible for the executions of six British commandos in World War II, although he probably was aware of them, Britain's domestic news agency reported today.

Press Association quoted a report from an 18-month investigation as saying Waldheim, as a junior officer, could not be held responsible for the executions.

A spokeswoman at the Ministry of Defense confirmed that the report was completed but refused to comment on the findings. She said a statement would be made to the House of Commons this afternoon.

Waldheim, a former U.N. secretary general, had been accused of complicity in the murders of the British troops captured off the Turkish coast in April 1944.

The troops were taken to Arsalki near Salonika, Greece for interrogation at the headquarters of the intelligence unit of the German Army Group E, where Waldheim was a junior intelligence officer.

The six commandos of the Special Boat Squadron refused to talk, and were later shot by a firing squad in a suburb of Athens. Under the Geneva Convention it is a crime to kill prisoners of war.

The ministry's report is based on the work of a 16-member team which examined British records and documents provided by the United States, West Germany and Greece.

An international commission of historians which probed Waldheim's army career reported in February 1988 that the initial "W" was on transcripts of interrogations of the six men.

However, the commission said it could not prove a connection between Waldheim and the commandos, though it suggested he knew they were shot by the Gestapo under a general order by Adolf Hitler that commandos be executed.

The fate of the British troops was part of the commission's inquiry into charges that Waldheim took part in or facilitated atrocities, including the massacres of some 60,000 Yugoslav partisans and civilians and the detention of Jews.

When It Comes To Guaranteed Satisfaction...

10% Low Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees our everyday low prices. If you find an identical advertised item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices when you buy from us. It must be an identical in-stock item. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Details on product warranties & Lowe's financing policy are available in store.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy:

If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or closeout). When we restock you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Some stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Apply For Your Handy Lowe's Credit Card!

Just present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard or Sears card and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.)

Lowe's Low Payment Plan — Terms Of Repayment:

Your credit must be satisfactory. No down payment required. The monthly payment includes sales tax of 5% and finance charges. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment may vary slightly. The monthly payment has been estimated and may vary depending upon state laws and charges. Insurance is available upon request. The APR is as follows:
