Taft Bows Out; Warren Steps In

By Stuart Savage
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Tom Taft, declaring that his family is more important than being a state senator, announced at a late-afternoon news conference Thursday that he will not seek re-election to the 6th Senate District seat in 1990.

REP. ED WARREN

However, state Rep. Ed Warren of Greenville said at an 8:30 a.m. news conference today that he will be a candidate for Senate seat to be vacated by his fellow Democrat.

Taft, a third-term senator, said that, with each year of service, "I have found that the time obligations of being an effective and available state senator have increased at a difficult pace.

"I have four children, a loving wife and other family that need and deserve more of my time, love and attention than I have been able to give them as a result of my Senate responsibilities," Taft said.

Therefore, he said, "It is with mixed feelings of exhilaration and reluctance that I announce that I will not seek re-election ... in order to spend more time with my family."

Taft said that, during the past several years, "my 6-year-old son Thomas has played baseball and I have missed every game but one because of my Senate duties in Raleigh."

"When you can't go to your son's ball games, can't take a vacation, can't go to the church finance committee meeting for nine months, you have to weigh things ... set priorities," the senator said.

After announcing that he will not seek re-election, Taft put his arms around Thomas, picked up the child, and said, "You know what I just did? I fixed it so I can go to your ball games."

Talking to reporters, Taft said that, in addition to the time spent in Raleigh during the sessions, "it takes two or three hours a day" when the General Assembly is not meeting to handle the job of senator effectively.

"I want to spend more time with my family," Taft said. "They deserve more of me than they've had."

Taft said the "difficult campaigns" he has faced, particularly in 1986 and 1988, "didn't bother me." Rather, it was the "increasing significant time consideration. I had

It's clock-changing time again in the United States.

The occasion is the switch from daylight to standard time, which occurs officially at 2 a.m. Sunday.

For the record, turn the clock back one hour. For all but a few Americans this is an event they cannot ignore without the risk of being an hour early for everything until next spring.

In conjunction with the change, the International Association of Fire Chiefs is trying to make the American ritual of resetting the clocks into an annual lifesaving event with reminders that batteries should be changed in smoke detectors at the same time.

The fire chiefs are promoting it as an occasion to make sure you are safe as well as on time by putting a new battery in smoke detectors.

"Change your clock, change your battery," is the simple message.

Capt. Michael Branch, fire prevention specialist for the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, said a working smoke detector can help double your chances of surviving a home fire. But an estimated 50 percent of home smoke detectors are not working because of old or missing batteries.

"Start a new habit this Sunday, when Daylight Savings Time gives way to the return of Eastern Standard Time," Branch said. "When you change your clocks, change the batteries in your smoke detectors."

Branch said the Fire-Rescue Department will install owner-purchased smoke detectors and replace batteries in smoke detectors upon request.

Call the Fire-Rescue Department for additional information on these programs, as well as a program that will supply smoke detectors free to low-income households.

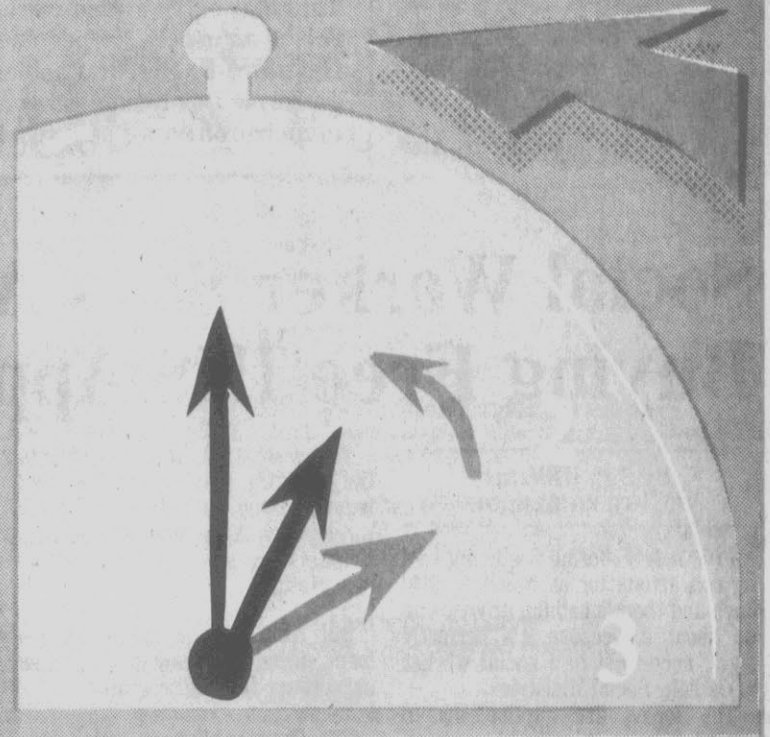

While 80 percent of the homes in America have smoke detectors, as many as half don't work because the batteries are either old or missing. A lack of the warning that smoke detectors can give is a major factor in fire deaths and injuries, fire chiefs say.

While people are concerned about fires and will buy and install smoke detectors, it's easy to forget about them, the nation's fire chiefs warn. And the batteries will die eventually, leaving the home unprotected.

Checking and replacing batteries is also a good idea in states where the clocks don't have to be changed. Those few, which didn't change to daylight time in the spring, include Arizona, Hawaii, parts of Indiana, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa.

Fall Back

It's standard time again. Remember to set your clock back one hour at 2:00 a.m. this Sunday, October 29th.

ECU Will Improve Lighting

ECU NEWS BUREAU

East Carolina University will spend $578,200 for safety-related lighting in high-risk areas of the campus, and trees and shrubbery are being pruned in an effort to make the university safer and brighter.

Concerned by numerous reports of assaults upon women in the city in recent months and one such case in a fringe-area campus parking lot, ECU officials said they would take special safety measures.

Safety patrols have been increased and students have been given instructions about avoiding risk situations.

At the urging of ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin, the University of North Carolina Board of Governors recently approved $500,000 in funding for the lighting on the Greenville campus.

The allocation was from a $6 million repair and renovations fund in the UNC system. In addition, ECU will provide $78,200 from parking revenues and indirect cost accounts for the project.

Richard Brown, ECU's vice chancellor for business affairs, said

Prison Riot Squelched

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAMP HILL, Pa. — Police stormed an overcrowded state prison this morning to regain control from inmates who seized hostages and set fires in a two-night riot that left 101 people injured, authorities said.

Officers fired shots and tear gas in a kitchen building, wounding one inmate, in the assault that led to retaking of control less than two hours later at 9:35 a.m., said Ken Robinson, state Corrections Department spokesman.

Hospital officials said that at some point a guard and two prisoners were critically injured. Robinson said all four hostages were freed safely.

Police in riot gear and wielding shotguns pushed surrendering or captured prisoners to the ground, holding them face-down in the grass.

Rioters among about 1,900 inmates who remained loose in their cellblocks this morning were taken to a holding area at the rear of the prison grounds, Robinson said.

There was confusion about the numbers of rioters, injuries and hostages in the rampages that started Wednesday night.

Robinson and other officials said through Thursday night there were eight hostages. At the end, Robinson said there were four and all were safe.

More than 100 people were injured, including 54 Thursday night and this morning, Robinson said. He said there were no deaths and "all employees are accounted for."

Plaza's Reopening Prompts Look Back At What It Was

By Frances Horton Arrington
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Linda Parker of Greenville remembers when there was a field where The Plaza shopping mall is located today.

She's seen the mall, located at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington boulevards, go through a lot of changes. But the latest are the best, she said while standing outside the mall this morning.

Ms. Parker was among about 400 people who showed up for the grand reopening of The Plaza, which has undergone extensive renovations over the past year.

Ms. Parker just started a job at Names 'N Things, a store inside the mall.

"I've seen all the work that's gone into this, smelled the paint, heard the noise. I wanted to see what it would look like in the end," she said.

She didn't have to be at work until 11 a.m., but came out for the 9:30 a.m. reopening celebration. "It's just awesome, the way it turned out. It's nothing like it was before," she said of the mall's new look.

Dot Sellers, another Greenville resident, came out for the mall's reopening to save money on sales and to watch 4,000 multicolored balloons dance their way across a clear-blue sky.

"I just wanted to see the grand opening for myself and to see if they were having some good sales," Sellers said. "And, I really wanted to see the balloon launch."

Like Ms. Parker, Ms. Sellers remembers the mall when it was Pitt Plaza. She also likes the recent changes.

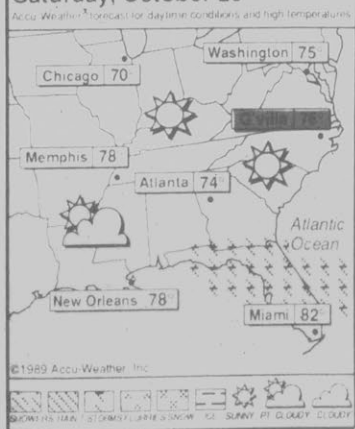

"It's fantastic. You don't have to go a long way to shop anymore," Ms. Sellers said. "We used to have to go out of town to find a lot of the things we wanted."

After the Farmville Central High School Band played and East Carolina University's Pure Gold Dancers danced, mall developer John Kane of J.M. Kane

Parents Protest School Alignments

By Charles Hoskinson
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

WINTERVILLE — A group of parents in the D.H. Conley area wants the Pitt County Board of Education to stop moving attendance lines.

The Alliance of Parents for Quality and Stability in the D.H. Conley Attendance Area also said at a press conference Thursday that it wants fairness and stability for all Pitt County students.

"We're not just for the D.H. Conley area. We're looking for fairness for all of Pitt County," according to the group's spokesman, Michael Fredette.

The alliance was formed by parents in the area who say they are concerned about frequent attendance-line changes by the school board. The alliance wants the board to build new classrooms in areas where there is growth instead of moving children, Fredette said. "We want our kids to have stability," he said.

The attendance-line changes were made for the purpose of achieving racial balance in county schools, Barry Gaskins, a spokesman for the school system, said. According to the board's guidelines, the ratio of black students to white students cannot exceed 65 percent to 35 percent at any county school.

Two of the area's elementary schools — Wintergreen and Chicod — exceed the board's racial-balance guidelines. Both are more than 70 percent white.

"Racial balance is a priority of the board," Gaskins said. The board reviews attendance lines in April, and will consider racial balance at that time, he said. Because the Wintergreen and Chicod areas exceed the board's guidelines for racial balance, they are candidates for attendance-line changes, he said.

"We are not racist. We want fairness for all of the Pitt County children," Fredette said. "There's

Wednesday Theft

Five coats with a combined value of $625 were among items taken from a 417 Hudson St. home in a break-in reported to Greenville police Wednesday night.

Officer G.M. Savage said that in addition to the coats, a television set and $45 in cash were taken in the 10:55 p.m. break-in.

Thursday Thefts

Greenville police said three thefts, including more than $825 worth of firearms, were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer C.M. Credle said the firearms — two .12 gauge shotguns, a .20 gauge shotgun, a .410 gauge shotgun, a pellet rifle and black power pistol — as well as a camera, two knives and $100 in change — were taken from 1713 McClellan St. in a break-in reported at 5:40 p.m.

Officer M.E. Hayes said $100 in cash was taken from the lounge at the Ramada Inn on Greenville boulevard in an incident reported at 1:20 a.m., while Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said a portable two-way radio belonging to Royal Janitorial Service of Ayden was taken from the Minges Building on Evans Mall in an incident reported at 6:56 p.m.

Exchanging ideas

City Manager Greg and Debbie Knowles, left, talk with Richard and Nadine Edwards at Thursday night's fund-raiser for the March of Dimes at The Plaza. About $20,000 was raised as nearly 300 people turned out in support of the March of Dimes Campaign for Healthier Babies. Participants previewed the newly expanded mall, listened to music performed by Leon Jordan and the Continentals, placed bids during a silent auction and munched on hors d'oeuvres. Knowles was chairman of the event.

Social Worker Says Aliens Are Buying Free INS Applications

By J.R. Williams
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Free federal forms are being sold by con artists for as much as $700 each and there's nothing anyone can do about it because it's perfectly legal, according to a social worker at Catholic Social Ministries.

The forms are applications to become legal agricultural workers, and all of the buyers are migrant workers who are illegally in the United States, said Gregg Allinson of the ministry.

The applications are part of a program administered by the U.S. Department of Justice's Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"They're the last people in the world who can afford to spend $700," Allinson said. "Especially when the forms are free to begin with."

Allinson said aliens buy the forms because they don't know the forms are available free and because they are afraid to come into any contact with the government because of their illegal status.

Under the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1986, illegal aliens may be granted temporary resident status if there is a shortage of workers in the United States needed to work on farms.

These workers, if accepted into the program, may legally work and travel in the United States. After three years in the program, the participants are given permanent resident status.

But Allinson said filling out the form doesn't guarantee any alien acceptance into the program.

"You'll probably have better odds in Las Vegas," Allinson said. "But for many of these people, it's the only chance they have."

The Catholic Social Ministries, located on 114 E. Third St., has the forms free to anyone who needs them and will assist aliens in filling them out.

Allinson said even though it's not illegal to sell the forms, it's illegal for anyone not a lawyer or an agent of the law to assist an alien in filling out the forms. The Catholic Social Ministries has been authorized by the federal government to give out applications and help administer them.

The application consists of the program information brochure, the program request form, a change of address card and an envelope addressed to the INS.

Both the request and change of address forms require a person's name, address, country and date of birth.

After completing the form, the applicant is supposed to keep the stub number at the top of the request form and send the form to the INS with a $10 fee.

No one is eligible for the program if he or she came into the United States illegally after Nov. 30, 1988. Applicants must be 18, have performed at least 20 days of agricultural work in the United States during any 12 consecutive months between May 1, 1985, and Nov. 30, 1988, be admissible to the United States as an immigrant or if inadmissible, must have had the grounds of excludability waived in accordance with the INS.

An alien must also certify that he or she intends to perform 90 days of agricultural work in each of the three years following being granted temporary residency. An alien who is not 18 now but who will become 18 during the period between Oct. 1, 1989, and Oct. 1, 1992, is eligible to apply for the program.

"Most people are willing to go through this because it's the only straw they have to grasp on," Allinson said.

Halloween Party

A Halloween party will be held at the American Legion on the corner of Chestnut and Skinner streets Tuesday from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The event, for children from 1 to 15 years of age, is sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chapter of Eppes Alumni and American Legion Chapter No. 160.

West, Not East

Highway Routes Should Serve Region

A proposed route for U.S. 17 bypass of Washington, N.C. has raised some concerns in that city. One plan calls for the route to be east of Washington but logic says the U.S. 17 route should swing west of Washington.

The route shown when the new Department of Transportation TIP was announced is around seven miles west of Washington, crossing the Tar River on the eastern edge of Pitt County. An alternate route would be closer to Washington within two or three miles of the center of Washington, but still on the west.

The Highway 17 Transportation Association initially proposed a route east of Washington crossing the Pamlico River.

At this point some $80.2 million has been included in the TIP for a 19.7 mile four-lane bypass. Department of Transportation board member Randy Doub says that several routes could be considered before a final decision is made. There will be much planning a several public hearings before a final route for the bypass is chosen.

The plan to four lane U.S. 17 was made feasible when the State Legislature implemented new revenue sources for highway construction. There is adequate time for public input for specific projects that will eventually be constructed.

Every community should look to placing new highways where they will be most convenient for the area and the traveling public — where they are most amenable as thoroughfares. It would thus seem logical that U.S. 17 be constructed on the west side of Washington.

Why? Washington and Greenville have become an economic entity drawn together by the four lane U.S. 264 which now connects them. There are people who work in one city and live in the other and drive the route twice daily. If U.S. 264 is to be the main street of this growing urban area, U.S. 17 should be its crossroad. If U.S. 17 is placed on the east of Washington that advantage will be lost.

In the 21st century much of the traffic on U.S. 17 will be coming to the ECU medical school or the university campus. It should be recalled that other highway projects will be under way that will divert that traffic. Travelers can leave U.S. 17 at Williamston and travel via U.S. 64 and U.S. 13 to Greenville. For that matter travelers will be able to eventually follow that route — via N.C. 11 — on four lanes all the way to I-40 and then into Wilmington. It is all in the highway construction program.

I-95, the current main four lane route north-south through North Carolina, is rapidly reaching its capacity. It follows that U.S. 17, once it is four laned, can become an attractive alternate route. Its location must first serve those who travel it, though. If it is placed too far away from the population centers, travelers may find alternate routes more attractive.

Standard Time

Go Back To The Future

Okay, here's the picture. Clocks fall back at 2 a.m. Sunday. That means we turn our clocks and watches back one hour and thus we get an extra hour's sleep overnight.

Sunday will be a 25 hour day because Daylight Time is ending and Standard Time begins. While the extra hour in the weekend is pleasurable, there is a price to pay. It will be dark an hour earlier Sunday evening and every night until the first weekend in April when Daylight Time starts anew.

Of course the upside is that daylight will come an hour earlier for the next five months or so. Thus school children won't be waiting for the buses in the dark and those who like to get up and around early will find some daylight.

The annual clock switching always causes grumbling and confusion. Evening people would like to see Daylight Time year 'round. Those who function best in the mornings wouldn't care if they never saw Daylight Time again.

Congress has tampered with it since World War II when Daylight Time was considered a contribution to the war effort. The most recent move was to begin Daylight Time the first weekend in April rather than the last. It seems to be the pattern which best suits the most people.

Anyway the important thing to remember is to reset the clocks Sunday or else everything will be off schedule. The other thing is to recognize it will be dark an hour earlier in the evenings and that means extra care in driving, walking, running or any activities which take us out on the streets.

The Possibility Of A Stillbirth

WASHINGTON — "Got a question for you," I said to the cabbie.

"What do you make of that new poll that shows over half the voters of Washington want Mayor Marion Barry to resign? Do you think he'll do it? According to the survey by WRC-TV and WKYS radio, 54 percent of the voters said they think he should step down. Will he listen to the electorate and abort his re-election campaign?"

"That's three questions," the cabbie said. "But since you're a pretty good tipper, I'll answer all three. First, it wasn't much of a poll. They talked to some 500 voters, and they don't even know how many of them are registered. The results did reflect some concern about the drug investigation that's been going on around him for so long, but I don't make too much of it. It's just too early."

"That takes care of the first question. The answer to the second is, no, I don't think he'll resign. People don't usually quit one fat job unless they've got another one lined up. You heard of the mayor getting any exciting job offers lately?"

"But the third question is kind of interesting. I don't think he'll abort his campaign, as you put it, but an indictment might produce a spontaneous abortion."

I regretted having used the word, but too late. The cabbie was off and running with it.

"The main question," he said, stroking his chin like one of those talking-head TV panelists. "Is the timing of the indictment."

"If it comes in the first trimester — say between now and February — it would open the field for the four Democrats running against him for the nomination. The way things are going now, they can't get any ink. The news stories are about Barry and the pack. Not much about individual challengers. But a first-trimester indictment would give them a chance to surface without reference to Barry.

"Also, it would smoke Jesse Jackson out. See, Jesse wouldn't mind being mayor, but he doesn't want to run for the job. He wants it to fall on him. An early indictment would mess that up."

"And the second trimester?" I asked, unable to resist the dreadful analogy.

"A second-trimester indictment, say by June, would make it a money fight," the cabbie said. "The other candidates would still have time to do some serious fund-raising, and any of them could pick up the pieces of the Barry constituency."

"The third trimester could be really interesting. Suppose Barry is leading by then — and that's a real possibility. I don't care what the poll says. Most of the campaigning would be over, and the other candidates would be weakened by their failure to break out of the pack.

"All but Dave Clarke. As the only white candidate, his money and his base among white voters would still be intact, and a Barry indictment at that point would make Clarke the instant front-runner. Then Jesse would come forward — reluctantly, of course — to save this black city from a white mayor."

"Are you saying that a predominantly black city shouldn't have a white mayor?" I asked.

"I'm not talking about what ought to happen," the cabbie said. "I'm talking about what probably would happen. Now if I may continue..."

"Surely you're not going to speculate about a fourth trimester," I said.

"I can count," the cabbie glared. "I'm thinking about the possibility of a stillbirth. Suppose the mayor is indicted after he has won the primary. Even Jesse isn't greedy enough to run as an independent. That means that the next mayor would be the former chief of police and newly ordained Republican, Maurice Turner. Seems to me that about covers the possibilities."

"Except one," I said. "Have you considered the chance that there won't be an indictment — that Barry is telling the truth when he says he's never knowingly associated with drug users, never been in the room where drugs were being used, never even seen any drugs? Have you considered the possibility that Barry will be able to convince the voters that he is, in fact, innocent?"

"No," the cabbie said.

The Rules Of The Game

BOSTON — It was an average week. A separated shoulder or two, a few broken bones in one hand, ligament damage to a couple of knees. The football coverage sounded like Grand Rounds on the orthopedic ward. Your average scoreboard of injuries.

Then Jeff Fuller barreled his 49er's helmet into an opponent on the 29-yard line. It was what the commentators call "a possible career-ending injury." It was also a possible walk-ending injury, a possible move-his-body-ending injury, but nobody put it that way at first. Was his neck broken? The game went on. Round up the usual casualties.

I am no football fan. I do not share the allure of this alleged sport. Thousands of pounds of human flesh and armor pound more thousands across the turf, astro and real. Saturdays, Sundays, Monday nights. But watching Fuller being carefully carted off the field, I know why I am hooked on the dynamics of the thing.

Somewhere in the middle of every game, the same thing happens. A man is knocked down and writhes in pain. The team plays on. A man is carted off in a stretcher and replaced. The game goes on. As I watch it now, I have come to wonder: Is this what men mean when they talk about teammates and team players?

All my life, I have heard about the disadvantage women have in business because most don't play team sports. It is said that we don't know what it is like to be turf buddies together, to get muddled together, to win together. Togetherness.

The ultimate model is, I am told, this all-American, only-American sport called football. It is true that on this turf men work together for victory. But on this same turf, they are trained to block a teammate's injury out of their minds. Also trained to be carried out of the way.

This is the image of a team we take from football: a group of people strong and close enough to go for it together, but not intimate enough to stop and take care of each other.

Not long ago, I talked with Harvard's Carol Gilligan, who has studied moral development in children. She has observed the different ways grade-school boys and girls generally deal with sports. When a boy is injured, he is taken off the field while the others continue. When a girl is injured, the game stops while they gather around the one who was hurt.

When does that break occur? Most children, even the little boys and girls, express compassion when another of their kind is hurt. Is it taught out of boys on the playing fields? Is it how they are prepared for war or business or just manhood?

Recently, an open and friendly 18-year-old high-school football star, Brett Law, unself-consciously told a People magazine reporter: "Mostly I like knocking people over." When do people learn that to be a "pro" in many worlds you have to equip yourself with blinders against the weak and the injured? Do they have to learn first to ignore their own feelings?

I don't think every game should halt while a splinter is removed or that every business deal should be sidetracked by injured feelings. Indeed, there are times when people, especially women, get paralyzed by the opposite problem: their fear of causing pain or even making others angry.

But it occurs to me that this image of teamwork may be all too successful a training for business in an era of takeovers and lean, mean strategies. Today, competitiveness is the key word. Those who would be winners often learn not to care when colleagues are cut from the "team." The bottom line may indeed reward those who aren't distracted by bodies on the field.

What would happen in America if just once the pros stopped playing ball until they found out if a teammate had indeed broken his neck? The producers, the coaches, the advertisers would scream.

But they just might send abroad a startling new image of a team player: not an interchangeable digit on a shirt, not a group of men united by an external goal. Somewhere down in the Pop Warner Leagues and in the living room there would be a small flash of understanding: "Pros" also take care of each other.

In time, with this radical sort of teamwork, they might even make the field a less dangerous place. And in time, on more than one turf, more than one office, we might learn to play the serious games with much less pain.

Martin Wants State To Build Landfill To Store Ashes Of Hazardous Wastes

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin, in a move designed to win North Carolina entry into what is now a four-state regional agreement to manage hazardous waste, has proposed that the state build a hazardous waste landfill.

Martin, in a news conference Thursday, said the landfill would be designed to house up to 10,000 tons of ash a year from an incinerator North Carolina is already working to build.

But even as he pitched the plan as an effort to appease Alabama, South Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, Martin said that the state should be prepared to take care of its own waste without a regional agreement.

"If we make a commitment to move as fast as possible for a comprehensive facility, we won't need the other states," Martin said.

Martin said that he spoke by phone Tuesday and Wednesday night with Gov. Guy Hunt of Alabama to see what North Carolina needs to offer — in addition to an incinerator that would burn 40,000 tons of hazardous waste — in order to join in the new alliance.

"One of the things they have asked repeatedly is what are we going to do with the ash; are we going to send it to them?" Martin said. "We've got to be prepared to go forth on our own."

The governor conceded that there may be skepticism in the legislature, which must approve any plans for a regional agreement.

"I don't know if this additional offer will be acceptable to the General Assembly," he said. "We have alerted some members that something like this might need to be offered."

But legislative leaders expressed reservations.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, the Senate president pro tem, told The Winston-Salem Journal: "A landfill is the least desirable method of disposal, and I'd like to avoid it if at all possible. Since the state is going to have a low-level radioactive waste landfill, the legislature had hoped to avoid having both that and a hazardous-waste landfill."

House Speaker Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, who has been a key player on hazardous-waste issues since 1981, said that he wants to see what the state would get in return.

If the state chose to go it alone, it would not be the first.

Gov. Joe Frank Harris of Georgia announced Wednesday that, since the four-state agreement rejected his state, Georgia will take care of its own waste.

"If they're not going to agree to accept our hazardous waste, then there's no need for us making preparations for theirs," Harris told the Associated Press.

Some authorities fear that such an approach could prompt a court challenge on constitutional grounds, raising the question of infringement of interstate commerce if a state bars others from shipping waste to its treatment or disposal sites.

In any event, Martin wants North Carolina to have the incinerator and the landfill operating by December 1991. And his proposal includes a third unit — a solvent-recovery plant that would use the heat from the incinerator to treat an additional 10,000 pounds of chemical wastes that are commonly produced by the furniture industry.

The incinerator, landfill and treatment plant could all be put on the same tract, because the legislature repealed a law in May that required that there be 25 miles between a comprehensive waste-treatment plant and a hazardous-waste landfill.

The N.C. Hazardous Waste Management Commission, acting on Martin's proposals, voted Thursday to try to have a site of up to 500 acres chosen by early May for treatment and disposal of hazardous waste.

IN THE STATE

Forest Threat

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Hurricane Hugo's march through South Carolina and North Carolina felled enough trees to build 430,000 houses, and the toppled timber could become kindling for forest fires, officials say.

Experts estimate $1 billion worth of wood is damaged in South Carolina, $272 million in North Carolina, where forests along the coastal plain were spared.

The downed timber, as it dries from the Sept. 21 storm, will provide highly flammable fuel for forest fires this fall and next spring, said Whit Lerer, fire officer for the Francis Marion and Sumter national forests.

An aerial tanker and helicopter firefighting base have been set up in Georgetown, S.C., and is expected to be operational by Monday, Lerer said.

states, including North Carolina, to seize equipment they said was being sold to grow marijuana indoors, the Drug Enforcement Administration said.

The raids involved 65 commercial businesses in 22 states as well as more than 120 indoor cultivation locations in 42 states, said Frederick Gregory, resident agent-in-charge of the DEA's Greensboro district.

Big Game Trophies Spur Investigation Of Hunting Parties

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — A trophy dispute involving the N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences has opened a window onto a nationwide investigation of big-game hunting that has the Smithsonian Institution scrambling for legal cover.

U.S. attorneys in San Francisco and northern Virginia — as well as the Justice Department, Interior Department and other agencies — are conducting inquiries into alleged trafficking in endangered species from Africa and Asia.

A key figure, according to reports published today, is Richard M. Mitchell, a staff biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's office of scientific authority.

In an interview, Mitchell said he was "quite aware" that he was under investigation, but no search warrants had been served on him and no Fish and Wildlife agents had interviewed him.

"These people may want to shoot their mouth off," he said. "That's what they want to contend, but you know a person is innocent until proven guilty, and these spurious charges can land these people in a lot of deep (expletive)."

"There's been a lot of impropriety on a lot of people's parts," Mitchell said, but he would not elaborate.

Mitchell was on loan to the Smithsonian about a year ago when a controversial hunt took place in a remote part of China. He had joined the hunting party, but he played no role in the killing of four sheep that some government officials contend are an endangered species, his lawyer said Thursday.

Nonetheless, Mitchell's presence among the hunters, plus unrelated questions that have been referred to federal prosecutors in Virginia, have prompted the Smithsonian to hire a prominent Washington law firm to help defend him and the institution.

The Smithsonian "has spent thousands and thousands and thousands of dollars" in legal fees in matters related to Mitchell and the China hunt, said a congressional staffer familiar with the situation.

A Smithsonian spokeswoman said Thursday that she did not know how much money the agency had spent in legal fees, and could make no comment about the China case.

Washington lawyer Jeffrey King, who represents four American hunters who killed the sheep in a hunt that was sanctioned by the Chinese government, said the case "is going to be dismissed through a settlement agreement," possibly today. He said the agreement would require the government to return to the hunters the four hides and sets of horns that it had confiscated. The hunters would pay no fines, he said, but the government would not be required to pay their legal costs.

Hints of the larger investigation were included in an affidavit for a search warrant filed this month in Raleigh. U.S. Fish and Wildlife investigators are looking into allegations that John B. Funderburg, director of the N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences, gave museum titles to big-game hunters to help them bring hides of wild animals from Africa and elsewhere into the country. The hunters often would donate the trophies to the museum and then claim income-tax deductions for charitable gifts.

The search warrant states that a Fish and Wildlife agent is "investigating the Safari Club International using museum donations to circumvent importation regulations. The Safari Club has been advised by a high government official on how to manipulate natural history museums and using the museum authorities to import prohibited species."

The Safari Club is a Tucson-based organization for big-game hunters. The group's acting executive director, Donald J. Brown, referred to the allegations in the affidavit as "slanderous."

The search warrant affidavit, filed by federal wildlife investigators who then were permitted to search the Raleigh museum, stated that big-game hunter Carolyn Williams of Dallas had been named an associate curator of the museum.

The affidavit said that Ms. Williams — identified by her lawyer as one of the four hunters who killed the sheep in China — "in turn applied to import from Canada a walrus into the U.S. under the authority of an associate curator."

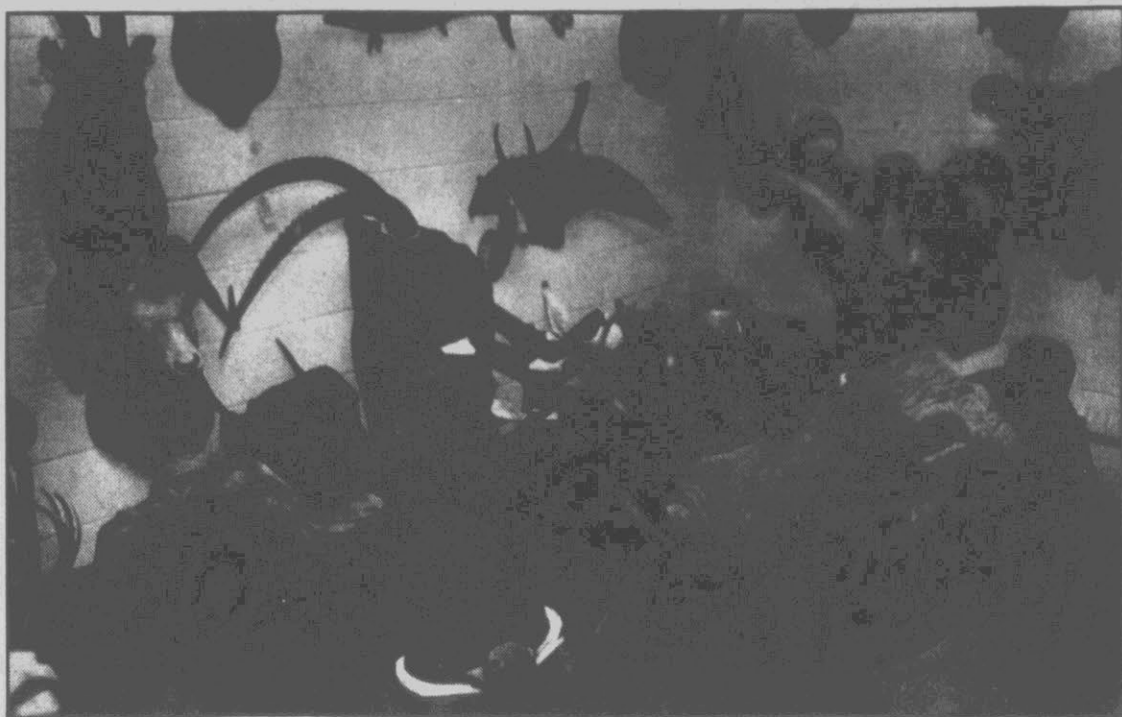

Meanwhile, an official at the Smithsonian Museum said his institution would not have permitted some of the practices used by the N.C. Museum of Natural Sciences.

"One has to be extremely careful about the source" of donated exhibits, said Stanwyn Shetler, acting deputy director of the National Museum of Natural History, a division within the Smithsonian.

In an interview before his resignation, Funderburg acknowledged storing an endangered species — the hide and head of a jaguar — without the proper import permits, allowing a private, for-profit zoo to display animal mounts from the museum's collection and trading and bartering museum pieces with private citizens who did work for the museum.

Shetler said the National Museum of Natural History would not have permitted those practices. Both museums are supported by taxpayers.

"We regard our collection as a national trust," said Shetler. "We operate under very strict collection policies. We have to operate every thing we do in the public interest."

Bush To Be Part Of Dialogue Involving Ortega

American Leaders To Celebrate Costa Rica's Independence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Like it or not, President Bush will be part of a dialogue with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega at today's celebration of Costa Rican democracy, says host President Oscar Arias.
 "I respect President Bush's decision not to have a private meeting with Ortega, but there will be a dialogue among all of us around a table," said Arias at a Thursday press conference as 19 hemispheric leaders began arriving for a two-day "Summit of the Americas."
 "The truth is, we will be capable of sitting down to discuss a common agenda," Arias added.
 Security was tight as presidents and prime ministers began arriving Thursday under cloudy skies.

 The U.S. Secret Service supervised installation of a two-inch-thick, 75-foot long sheet of bulletproof glass in front of the National Museum for Saturday's inauguration of Democracy Plaza.
 Arias implicitly equated Ortega and Bush's status as their countries' leaders when he explained why he had not invited the leaders of Chile, Panama, Cuba or Haiti.
 Ortega has made it clear he would like to meet with Bush, but Bush, under pressure from domestic conservatives, has refused.

 If the two have an encounter, said Bush, "I'm going to be polite, charming," but also "very firm."
 "Everybody knows we have a tense relationship," Bush added during an interview with Latin American correspondents at the White House.
 Arias said he had a right to make up the guest list for observances of the 100th anniversary of Costa Rican independence and had decided "to celebrate this party with those chosen by the majority will of their people."

 He also invited opposition leaders of both Nicaragua and Panama as observers, including Violeta Chamorro, who is running against Ortega in Nicaragua's presidential elections Feb. 25.
 A Costa Rican security officer said the 4.5-ton security shield was mostly to protect Bush and President Virgilio Barco of Colombia, who has been marked for death by drug cartel leaders for his recent crackdown.
 The United States has long supported the Contra guerrilla movement trying to oust Ortega's Sandinistas. Non-lethal aid continues despite a Central American agreement to disband the Contras in exchange for democratization in Nicaragua.
 Bush said he would bring up the problems of a fair election in Nicaragua and arms shipments to El Salvador's leftist guerrillas "every chance I get."
 Costa Rican television covered the arrival of each leader live, and the million residents of the capital were braced for two days of closed streets, shut down businesses and limited movement.
 In addition to the diplomatic ballet between the United States and Nicaragua, the leaders were expected to discuss drug trafficking, Latin America's foreign debt burden and efforts to isolate Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.
 There was no fixed agenda, however, and plans to issue even a general communique on democracy were scrapped when Bush let it be known he would not sign a document that had Ortega's name on it.
 Arias said he was not disappointed because "the communique is usually put in a drawer and forgotten. What we are trying to get out of this is a new dialogue, an exchange of opinions."

 Costa Rican Foreign Minister Rodrigo Madrigal said Latin American countries opposed to Noriega may discuss stronger measures against Panama's government.
 "There is some concern that the previous Organization of American States resolutions were weak and imprecise. The OAS cannot ignore a pressing issue like Panama," Madrigal told journalists.
 Bush planned to meet with Mrs. Chamorro and Panamanian opposition leader Guillermo Endara, whom the United States considers the legitimate president of Panama because of his victory in the May 7 elections, which were annulled.

 Bush last week signed a $9 million bill to provide election-related assistance to Mrs. Chamorro. U.S. and Nicaraguan opposition officials have complained that the ruling Sandinista government's opponents have been denied sufficient access to the news media.
 In addition, Bush on Wednesday extended a 1985 trade embargo against Nicaragua for six months and complained to the Soviet Union about a shipment of arms that was discovered on the Nicaragua-Honduras border last week.
 U.S. and Honduran officials said the arms, discovered hidden behind a false front of furniture, were headed for leftist Salvadoran guerrillas fighting the U.S.-supported government of President Alfredo Cristiani.

Salvadoran Says Advisers Condoned Death Squads

WASHINGTON — A Salvadoran soldier meeting with members of Congress today says he was part of a death squad responsible for as many as 72 murders ordered by top military leaders and condoned by U.S. advisers.

Cesar Vielman Joya Martinez says he took part in eight of the killings under orders to bring leftist guerrillas "to justice."

"My work was only to execute these people," said Joya Martinez, 28, who fled El Salvador in July seeking asylum.

The Pentagon, responding to Joya Martinez' allegations Thursday, called claims of U.S. complicity in death squad activity "patently absurd."

"We know of no instances in which U.S. military personnel have been even remotely associated with such morally repugnant activities," the statement said.

Joya Martinez said that from April into July, he was a member of a seven-man special forces group of the 1st Infantry Brigade called GC-2 in the capital of San Salvador. He said two U.S. advisers, known to the Salvadoran troops only as "the Major" and "William," purchased supplies for the group and "had to know what was going on."

Joya Martinez outlined his allegations for U.S. reporters Thursday in interviews at a Washington hotel and planned a series of private visits with members of Congress today.

The Salvadoran military denies the defector's death squad claims. But Jeff Brown, an information at the U.S. Embassy in El Salvador, said Ambassador William Walker "considers the charges very serious" and "if they are truthful, they must be investigated."

Joya Martinez, speaking in Spanish, said his orders came in one-page reports issued by the Salvadoran Joint Chiefs of Staff. He said the reports went to the commanders of the brigade, Col. Juan Orlando Zepeda and Francisco Elena Fuentes.

He said he took part in eight killings but the reports he saw indicated 72 people were killed from April to July.

"The report did not say kill them, it said 'bring them to justice,' which in simple terms means to kill them," Joya Martinez said. "My job was to kill or be killed."

He said the two American advisers were not in military uniform. They were assigned to the unit to analyze intelligence data and pay for supplies ranging from weapons to gasoline, he said.

Bomb Kills Five Medellin Officers

BOGOTA, Colombia — A bomb exploded on a street in Medellin as a bus carrying policemen to night patrol duty passed by, killing five officers and injuring 15, many critically, police said.
 No one claimed responsibility for the attack late Thursday, but police blamed drug barons angered by the government's refusal to negotiate its policy of extraditing traffickers to the United States.
 "The traffickers are the only criminals with the means and the desire to carry out an attack of this size," said a police spokesman in Medellin, the center of Colombia's drug trade.
 Hours later, two bombs exploded in Bogota, the capital, injuring one person.
 In the two months since the government declared a war on traffickers and the drug lords responded with violent attacks, 168 bombings attributed to the traffickers have killed 21 people and injured 218.

The latest attacks came a day after the country suffered its worst rebel violence in two years, with guerrillas storming two northeastern towns and slaying at least six people, according to army reports.

The bomb in Medellin, packing over 60 pounds of dynamite, was placed on a curb and detonated as the bus passed. National RCN radio said 44 officers were on the bus at the time.

The driver and four others died in the explosion, which severely damaged the bus and sent it reeling out of control, the police spokesman said on condition of anonymity. Many of the 15 injured were in critical condition, he said.

Freighter Floated Off Reef In Keys

MIAMI (AP) — A freighter that ran aground on a protected coral reef was refloated and the Coast Guard filed charges against the vessel's master and its mate, who failed two breath alcohol tests five hours after the wreck.

The mate told the Coast Guard he started drinking only after the ship ran aground.

None of the vessel's 6,000 to 8,000 gallons of diesel fuel leaked, but a few gallons of residue oil from a flooded ballast tank seeped into the water, the Coast Guard said.

A commercial tug freed the 155-foot Alec Owen Maitland from the reef in the Key Largo National Marine Sanctuary on Thursday afternoon with the help of an incoming tide. The ship had been stuck 27 hours.

The ship was returning to Miami for repairs Thursday evening.

Charges were filed against the captain, Duane Goodwin, 37, and mate Michael Anthony Bishop, 43, said Coast Guard investigator Lt. Keith Ward.

Bishop, at the helm during the accident, was charged with negligence for running the vessel aground, not maintaining a proper fix of his position and operating the vessel without proper license, Ward said.

Goodwin was charged with allowing an improperly licensed person to operate the vessel, which ran aground Wednesday afternoon about five miles off Key Largo at a popular diving spot.

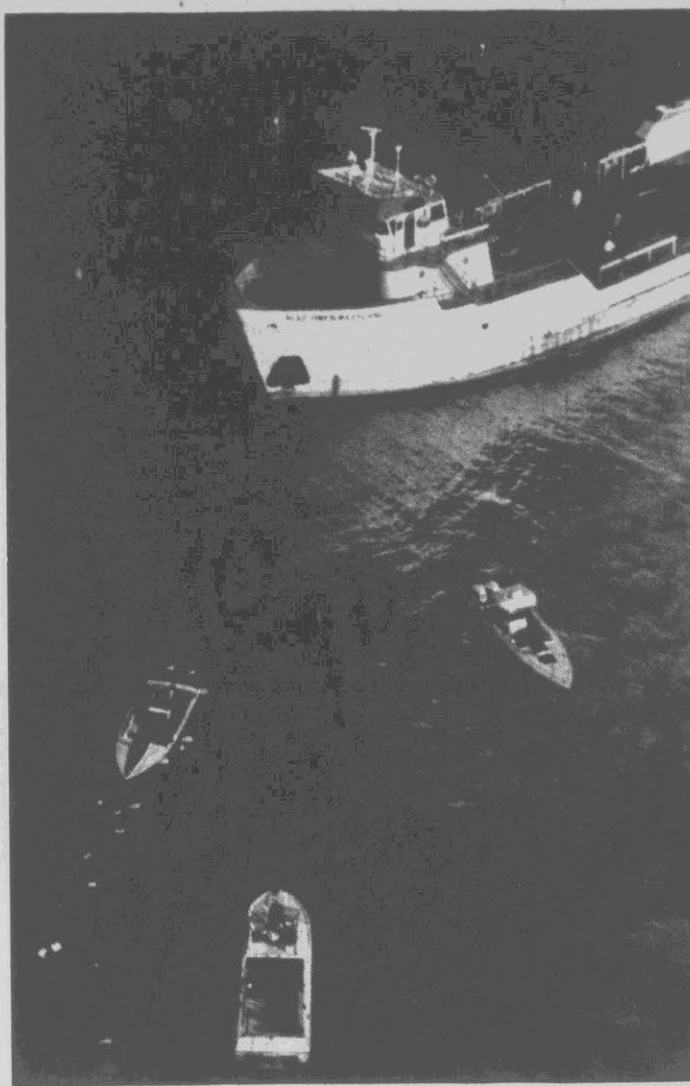

The ship had been en route from Miami to Mobile, Ala., to pick up a cargo of heavy equipment. The Alec Owen Maitland is owned by Maitland Bros. Co. of Littlestown, Pa.

Preliminary findings by Coast Guard investigators indicated that Goodwin, the only person aboard licensed to navigate, was asleep when the ship ran aground, and that Bishop was piloting the vessel.

Bishop failed two breath alcohol tests administered by the Monroe County Sheriff's Department five hours after the accident, registering blood-alcohol levels of 0.10 and 0.11, Ward said.

Under Florida law, someone with a level of 0.10 is considered legally intoxicated, while federal law sets a 0.04 percent limit.

The vessel's hull was gashed on the reef, and the forward ballast tank took on about 5 feet of water. Gov. Bob Martinez, who went snorkeling Thursday at the scene to check damage to the reef, said the ship's propeller and rudder were resting on the bottom.

Anderson Turns 42

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Terry Anderson spent a fifth birthday as a hostage today, a grim milestone in his captivity.

His relatives and friends marked the event with a flood of messages. Radio reports said Lebanon's three television stations would screen a birthday message for the 42-year-old journalist from his 4-year-old daughter, Sulome.

The daily newspapers An-Nahar and As-Safir and the French-language L'Orient-Le Jour published English texts of letters to Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press who was abducted March 16, 1985.

His sister, Peggy Say, wrote, "In honor of your birthday on Friday, we will be in Washington with other hostage families to mark another sad year in which you have been denied your freedom."

The Journalists' Committee to Free Terry Anderson, made up of colleagues from all over the United States, wrote: "Please believe that not a day passes when we do not think of you and pray for you."

Hunt Pressed For Kidnapped Boy

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. JOSEPH, Minn. — The sheriff's office installed extra phones hoping that a caller will respond with news of the whereabouts of an 11-year-old boy abducted at gunpoint.

More than 40 deputies set out on horseback Thursday to search dry fields near the spot where Jacob Wetterling was abducted by the masked man dressed in black Sunday evening, but they found nothing.

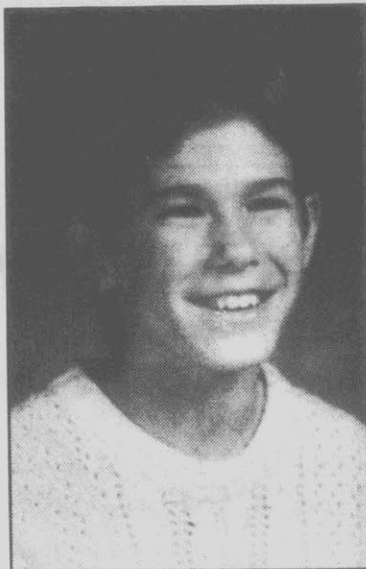

And authorities said an earlier lead that the kidnapper may have been driving a small red car turned out to be bogus.

An art student who owns such a car called authorities to say he had been driving in the area in search of good material to sketch, and probably was spotted by several residents who thought the driver was suspicious.

"We believe that was the vehicle we had been looking for," said Jim Kostreba, chief deputy sheriff of Stearns County.

The Fox network's "A Current Affair" aired a segment on the abduction Thursday night, and Kostreba said telephones at search headquarters began ringing almost continuously as soon as the phone number was shown.

"We had to hook up additional phones," he said. "We're getting

JACOB WETTERLING

Jacob was riding bikes after dark with his 10-year-old brother, Trevor, and an 11-year-old friend in this central Minnesota town of 2,200 people. The trip to a convenience store to rent a videotape was the boy's first trip out by himself at night, said his father, Jerry Wetterling.

On the way back to the Wetterlings' house, the boys were accosted by a man who had what appeared to be pantyhose pulled over his head to distort his facial features.

The two boys who escaped told police the man pulled a gun and asked them their ages, then ordered them to run away and threatened to shoot them.

Jerry Wetterling said he and his wife, Patty, a substitute school teacher, had warned their four children to be wary of strangers.

"My advice would be to take time to sit down and instruct children that there are sick people in the world," said Wetterling, a chiropractor and president of the St. Cloud chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The couple described Jacob as an all-around student who loved to study math and play goalie on a youth-league hockey team.

Wetterling said they had received no ransom demands and doubted his civil rights activism was a factor in his son's abduction. "It's an abnormal situation," he said.

calls from all up and down the East Coast" from people volunteering information about similar cases.

A group of anonymous Twin Cities business leaders Thursday night offered a $100,000 cash reward for Jacob's return unharmed within the next 72 hours. St. Joseph community organizers are offering a reward of up to $25,000 for information leading to Jacob's safe return.

FBI spokesman Byron Gigler said 20 agents have been assigned to the case.

YOUR EYEGGLASS PRESCRIPTION

What does the Federal Trade Commission say about "Eyeglass Prescriptions"

- Q. Can I charge my patients an extra fee for releasing the prescription?
A. No. The Rule makes it illegal for you to charge your patients any fee in excess of your normal examination fee as a charge for releasing the prescription. So if your normal examination fee is $30, you cannot add an extra $5 or $10 for releasing the prescription.
- Q. When do I have to give out a prescription?
A. The prescription must be given to your patient immediately after you complete the eye examination. This means that you must give your patient his or her prescription before you begin your dispensing procedures (if you also dispense eyeglasses).
- Q. What if my patient doesn't ask for the prescription? Do I still have to give it out to my patient?
A. Yes. The Rule requires that you prepare the prescription and physically offer it to the patient. Of course, you can't force the patient to take it, but you must offer him or her the written prescription. Simply asking your patients whether they want their prescription is not sufficient. We found that many consumers had never seen a prescription for corrective eyewear, and thus were unaware that they could take that piece of paper and use it to comparison shop.
- Q. What is the penalty for violating the Rule?
A. The penalty for violating the Rule is up to $10,000 per violation.
- Q. How can I report violations of the Rule?
A. You can contact us directly in Washington, D.C. Our mailing address in Washington is: Eyeglasses TRR, Federal Trade Commission, Room 281, Washington, DC 20580

Scientists Warn Californians Can Expect 'Big' Quake By Year 2018

By Lee Siegel
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — An earthquake more deadly than last week's jolt is 50 percent likely near San Francisco, and a catastrophic "big one" is at least 60 percent probable in Southern California by the year 2018, scientists say.

Overall odds for such quakes, which could kill thousands of people, were listed in a 1988 U.S. Geological Survey study. They remain unchanged by the Oct. 17 upheaval that claimed at least 63 lives in the San Francisco Bay area, said USGS geophysicist Jim Dieterich, the report's lead author.

The report predicted a 30 percent chance by 2018 for a magnitude 6.5 quake on the segment of the San Andreas that caused last week's quake. That jolt measured 7.1 on the Richter scale, suggesting the forecast was conservative.

The earthquake "makes one realize these forecasts are serious and reliable," said California Institute of Technology geologist Kerry Sieh, one of 12 co-authors of the study, which represented a scientific consensus.

The report said a repeat of San Francisco's magnitude 8.3 great earthquake of 1906 is less than 10 percent within 30 years. The 1906 quake ruptured the San Andreas Fault and killed at least 2,500 people, according to recent studies.

The next magnitude 7 major quake will be much more devastating than the recent jolt because it will be located closer to the city on either the San Andreas or Hayward faults, Dieterich and others said.

"The chance of another destructive or more destructive earthquake in the Bay area is still high, and the chances in Southern California are even higher," Sieh said.

The study listed overall 30-year probabilities of 50 percent for a magnitude 7 quake in the Bay area, and 60 percent to perhaps 70 percent odds that the "big one" measuring 7.5 to 8.3 on the Richter scale will rupture the San Andreas Fault in Southern California.

Last week's quake raised the chance of an earthquake on the San Andreas Fault between Los Gatos and Daly City, closer to San Francisco. It slightly lowered the chance of a quake on the segment south of Los Gatos, which is where last week's quake was centered.

But the overall odds for a magnitude 7 quake in the Bay area remain 50-50 by 2018, Dieterich calculated.

A magnitude 7 earthquake on either the San Andreas or the Hayward faults closer to San Francisco "would be much more devastating than last week's earthquake," Dieterich said Wednesday by telephone from Menlo Park.

"Damage for a Hayward Fault magnitude 7 earthquake would be comparable to a great earthquake occurring along the San Andreas Fault in Southern California," he said. "The Hayward runs right through Oakland, Berkeley and the rest of the East Bay."

A 1980 report by the Federal Emergency Management Agency estimated a magnitude 7.4 quake on the Hayward Fault could kill 3,000 to 7,000 people, hospitalize 13,000 to 27,000 and cause $44 billion in damage. No estimate exists for a magnitude 7 quake.

The same report said a repeat of the 1906 catastrophe could kill 3,000 to 11,000 people, hospitalize 12,000 to 44,000 and cause $38 billion in damage. A quake of magnitude 8.3 in Southern California could kill 3,000 to 14,000 people, hospitalize 12,000 to 55,000 and cause $17 billion in damage.

"Everybody who lives in California should be ready for an earthquake at any time, and that means tomorrow," said Don Anderson, director of Caltech's seismological laboratory. "Just because someone says there is a 30 percent probability of a big earthquake in the next 30 years doesn't mean it won't happen tomorrow."

FEMA Says 21,400 Register For Aid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — A recovering Bay area shows America its mettle tonight with the earthquake-delayed third game of baseball's World Series, but the victims and the destruction will not be forgotten in the revelry.

"We can enjoy World Series baseball and still remember those who lost their lives or their property and those who are helping so much in the recovery effort," Mayor Art Agnos said.

By Thursday, nearly 21,400 people had registered for disaster aid with the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Damages are estimated at $7.1 billion with nearly 14,000 people still out of their homes, according to state officials.

People can talk about the quake at a forum tonight held by the Society for Traumatic Stress Studies, which coincidentally began a meeting in San Francisco this week. The 500 experts called off their disaster drill, but offered to help victims of the real thing.

"We believe in the value of talking, talking and sharing," said Yael Danieli, president of the society. Talking, "you don't have to feel lonely and scared. You can re-establish a sense of community."

Relief also came in the form of a $3.45 billion aid package President Bush signed Thursday, most of it destined for Northern California. But people also sought lighter restoratives.

Light as air, in the case of the 59th session of the mock San Francisco Court of Historical Review. On its docket: Who invented the doughnut hole? The winner?

"Mankind, in its own wisdom, invented the hole in the doughnut," Municipal Court Judge George T. Choppelas ruled after an hour of hilarious legal outrage.

And San Francisco, which treats Halloween as its own special holiday, begins the celebration this weekend.

"It was rather somber for a while," said J.S. Gilbert, general manager of the 10th annual Exotic Erotic Halloween Ball, where 10,000 people are expected Saturday night. Some of the proceeds will go to quake relief.

Pedestrians Organizing For Rights

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — City walkers tired of drivers nearly running them down and garbage scattered in their paths now can unite for safer and cleaner sidewalks.

The recently formed Pedestrian Council, the second private advocacy group for walkers in North America, intends to make Philadelphia more walkable by challenging drivers who stop their vehicles in crosswalks, seeking wider sidewalks and making sure streets have enough trash bins.

It will lobby city government for stricter enforcement of laws that affect pedestrians and push to make new developments easier for walkers, said John Higgins, executive director of the Foundation for Architecture, the non-profit group that formed the council.

The council will name 20 board members at its first meeting in mid-November, Higgins said.

"What's clear is that the interests of pedestrians are not the focus for either public or private decision-makers," Higgins said. "We want to build some understanding of what pedestrians' rights are."

The only other similar group is in Ottawa, Ontario, said Patricia Archibald, who organizes an annual convention in Boulder, Colo., of city planners, architects and others responsible for making cities better places to walk in.

The Ottawa group is called Ottawalk. Executive Director Chris Bradshaw said the group lobbies on behalf of pedestrians and promotes walking as an alternative to driving.

Ottawalk, formed 19 months ago, has 55 members who paid $10 each to join.

The pro-walking movement in Ottawa wasn't taken too seriously at first, Bradshaw said, but city officials are beginning to listen as more walkers speak up.

"It's really hard to find two or three pedestrians you can rub together and say, 'Let's do something about it,'" he said. "The main reaction is they have to shake their head and say 'Is this for real?'"

The Pedestrian Council in Philadelphia doesn't plan on holding membership drives. But it is seeking money.

The group is off to a good first step: the state Department of Community Affairs awarded it a one-year, $25,000 grant.

The Philadelphia council has several items on its agenda: pedestrian safety, sidewalk vendors, landscaping and seating, noise, garbage bins, sidewalk encroachments by businesses and access for the handicapped.

And like the Ottawa group, it would like to see a major change in the making of cars.

Bradshaw said strides have been made on auto safety with padded dashboards and seat belts, but little has been done to change the design of auto bodies to make them less dangerous for pedestrians.

"We assume cars only hit other cars or objects larger than itself. We never assume it will hit a 4-year-old child or a policeman directing traffic," he said. "What about the blind person who's walking on the sidewalk, the poor person who can't afford a car, the mother who's walking a stroller — they didn't ask to get into a world where a 2,000-pound hunk of metal is careening around."

Pauley Will Leave Show

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — After 13 years of predawn "Today" wakeups, co-host Jane Pauley confirmed to a national audience this morning that she's leaving the NBC show at year's end. She hugged her successor, Deborah Norville and gave her an alarm clock.

Ms. Pauley's farewell announcement, in which she said she'll miss working with co-host Bryant Gumbel, was preceded by his comments in which he criticized "idle and often erroneous speculation" about the troubled, top-rated show.

Gumbel said the speculation had been "much to the detriment of all of us here."

Ms. Pauley had been reported to be unhappy at recent changes on the show, including the Sept. 5 arrival of Norville as its news anchor, succeeding John Palmer.

Referring to Ms. Pauley as "my buddy" and that "it goes without saying that I'm going to miss her," Gumbel said that she's leaving the show "sometime at the end of this year or January of next year" but isn't leaving NBC News.

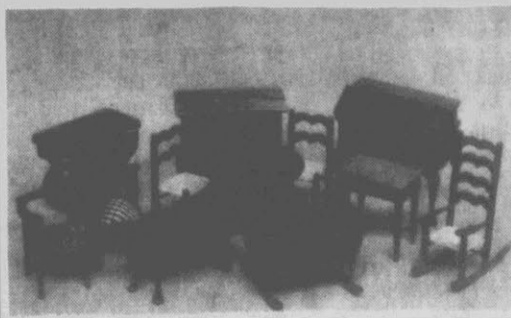

Ms. Pauley, who turns 39 on Tuesday and has two years remaining on an NBC contract reportedly paying her $1.2 million annually, is going to anchor a prime-time news series next year, sources have said.

Likening her impending move to a train "going into the station to take on fuel and provisions for the next leg of the journey," she indirectly confirmed that she had asked to leave the show.

FDA Requires Tampon Makers To Use Standardized Labeling

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Women will be able to reduce their risk of toxic shock syndrome when tampon makers begin complying with a new government regulation requiring standardized absorbency labeling, health officials say.

Within four months, all tampon makers will have to use uniform terms with specified absorbency ranges, allowing women to compare brands and choose lower-absorbency products, the Food and Drug Administration said.

The FDA's announcement of the final regulation Thursday capped nearly a decade of haggling with industry and consumer groups and complied with a court order that set an Oct. 30 deadline for issuing a rule.

The labeling will require manufacturers to use the terms "junior," "regular," "super" and "super plus" to describe the absorbency of their products.

Each term denotes a specified range of absorbency, and manufacturers will be required to include an explanation of the ranges and how women can use the information. They also will be required to advise on labels that women can reduce risk of toxic shock by alternating sanitary napkins with tampons.

The risk of toxic shock syndrome, a rare but sometimes fatal condition, increases with higher tampon absorbency.

"Women who choose to use tampons instead of sanitary napkins, which have no known risk of toxic shock, should use the lowest absorbency product that is effective for them," said FDA Commissioner Frank Young.

Public health officials became aware of toxic shock syndrome in the early part of the decade.

In 1982, the agency required that tampon labeling include a warning about the association between tampon use and toxic shock and advised women to use the lowest absorbency to control menstrual flow.

The labeling also had to list the symptoms of toxic shock: sudden fever of 102 or more, vomiting, diarrhea, fainting or near-fainting when standing up, dizziness and a sunburn-like rash.

The FDA tried unsuccessfully for several years to get tampon makers to agree on a uniform labeling system. In September 1988, the agency proposed a labeling regulation that would use a series of letters to designate absorbency.

The FDA revised the proposal in June to require use of new terms to indicate absorbency, though manufacturers could still use their old terms as well. Consumers and manufacturers argued for standardizing the terms.

Granny Uses Hatchet On Intruder

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — A 71-year-old woman beat an intruder unconscious with a hatchet after she and her great-granddaughter were attacked by the assailant, a female acquaintance.

"She picked the wrong woman," Elizabeth Butts said Thursday. "The only thing I hate is that I didn't kill her."

The intruder, identified as Terry Westbrook, was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital in critical condition with a fractured skull and deep facial cuts. She was in fair condition this morning, a hospital spokesman said.

She will be charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault, said Metro-Dade police Lt. Richard Carey.

Westbrook was an acquaintance of Butts' who stopped by the four-bedroom house the woman shares with her granddaughter and 16-month-old great-granddaughter, Nicole Williams, and asked for money, saying she had just gotten out of prison, police said.

Butts, holding the baby, wouldn't give her any money, so Westbrook grabbed for Butts' gold chains, said Metro Detective Donald Blocker.

The intruder hit Butts on the head with a folding metal chair and a ceramic lamp. At some point, little Nicole also was struck, getting a bump on the head.

As the woman tried to unlock the front door to leave, Butts put Nicole down, reached into a utility closet and pulled out a hatchet. She then beat the woman into unconsciousness.

"If somebody comes to your house and robs you, what would you do?" Butts asked. "I should have had my gun, but I couldn't get to it."

"I wouldn't want old people generally doing this kind of thing," Blocker said. "The average person her age couldn't do this."

Treasury To Borrow Again

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department says it is preparing to borrow $17 billion on an emergency basis early next week so it can pay Social Security benefits to 38.9 million retirees and avert an unprecedented government default.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady said Thursday the emergency borrowing will enable monthly Social Security checks to go out on schedule Nov. 3 regardless of whether Congress breaks a deadlock and passes an increase in the national debt limit.

The details of how the debt auction will be handled were to be announced today. Officials said the hastily announced debt auction likely will occur on Monday.

Treasury officials said the borrowing will go forward unless the administration receives assurances from congressional leaders that it will be able to pass an extension of the debt legislation before the midnight Tuesday deadline, when the current $2.87 trillion debt ceiling drops to a lower level of $2.8 trillion.

Brady's announcement came in a letter to House Republican Leader Robert Michel.

Brady said in his letter that the government will have $17 billion in borrowing authority left on Monday, which he will use to raise cash in the financial markets before the Tuesday deadline.

A Treasury official, briefing reporters on condition that his name not be used, called the emergency borrowing unprecedented and said it will cost the government money through higher interest rates that will have to be paid on the debt due to the hurry-up nature of the borrowing announcement.

The official said, however, that Brady decided to go forward with the borrowing because he did not feel he had any choice. The alternative, the official said, would have been an unprecedented default by the government on its obligations.

The emergency borrowing will only enable the government to scrape by until Nov. 7, when it will again run out of money.

At times of other debates over extension of the debt ceiling, the government has been able to function for several days after hitting the borrowing limit essentially on a cash basis where it meets its routine obligations out of tax revenues it receives on a daily basis.

Exxon Moving To Dallas

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

NEW YORK — Exxon Corp. disclosed Thursday that it will move its 300-person corporate headquarters staff from Manhattan to a Dallas suburb next year, in a painful symbolic setback to New York's efforts to retain major corporate headquarters.

Lawrence Rawl, chairman and chief executive of the world's largest oil company, said officials decided less costly Irving, Texas, would be superior "from the standpoint of our employees' personal and professional lives, and from an overall business standpoint." A company evaluation considered such factors as business costs, housing, commuting, taxes, accessibility by air, and the "overall business climate," Exxon said.

Exxon will move its staff from space it leases at 1250 Avenue of the Americas in midtown Manhattan to leased offices in Irving. In 1993 the staff will move to a new headquarters it plans to build in the Las Colinas, a mixed-used development in Irving with a commercial emphasis, near the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Any loss of jobs is painful right now for New York, which is facing a $500 million budget shortfall, a further contraction of Wall Street and perhaps a recession in the months ahead.

South Africans, Israelis Cooperating On Development Of Ballistic Missiles

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — South Africa and Israel are cooperating on several programs to develop ballistic missiles, including one with nuclear weapon potential, a U.S. official says.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said intelligence reports indicated that South Africa last summer tested a modified version of the Israeli-made Jericho II medium-range missile at Armaston on the Indian Ocean coast near Capetown.

Israel test-fired its own Jericho II missile over the Mediterranean last year, he said. Both missiles have a 900-mile range.

The two countries, which have had an extensive defense relationship since the 1960s, also are cooperating in the development of a long-range missile that could be used to launch reconnaissance satellites into space, the official said.

A long-range version of the Jericho — known as the Shavit, which is Hebrew for comet — was used to launch an Israeli photo-reconnaissance satellite earlier this year from the Negev Desert, the official said. Media reports then described the rocket as a multistage missile having a 2,000-mile range.

Responding to reports about the nuclear cooperation, the State Department urged Israel to sign the international Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, which it has refused to do for fear of opening its facilities to international inspection.

"We have repeatedly urged Israel and other non-signatories" to join the pact, the department said in a statement issued late Thursday. "We reiterate that call."

Both Israel and South Africa have denied they are sharing such technology.

"I bear no knowledge whatsoever of such cooperation," said South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha.

Under intense U.S. pressure, Israel announced in 1987 that it would not sign any new defense contracts with South Africa but would honor existing ones.

The State Department and the Pentagon refused to discuss the matter.

"We do not comment on intelligence matters. The U.S. policy of opposition to the proliferation of missiles and nuclear weapons is well known," said State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler.

Ms. Tutwiler said the U.S. ambassador in Israel had brought up similar reports of nuclear proliferation with Israel in the past.

Union Protest Banned

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A magistrate today banned a protest march by black trade unions, but activists proceeded with plans for a mass rally featuring recently freed leaders of the outlawed African National Congress.

No reason was given for rejecting the application by the Congress of South African Trade Unions to hold a march Saturday in Vereeniging, an industrial city south of Johannesburg. The labor federation, which had sought to protest legislation restricting unions' ability to strike, threatened to defy the ban.

Rescue workers sift through thick undergrowth in search of bodies at jetliner crash site

East Germany Grants Amnesty To Refugees Rescuers Find 31 Bodies In Wreckage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Rescuers located 31 badly burned bodies amid the wreckage of a China Airlines jet today, a day after the plane crashed in a remote valley with 54 people on board, officials and news reports said.

The official Broadcasting Corporation of China said there were no signs of survivors. A Los Angeles man was believed to have been the only foreigner on the plane.

The Boeing 737-200 slammed into a mountain and burst into flames five minutes after taking off from Hualien, a popular tourist resort on the island's east coast.

The jet was en route from Hualien to Taipei, about 90 miles northeast.

The radio said rescuers found 31 bodies strewn in deep grass in the highlands valley and began the arduous task of carrying them on the three-hour walk down the mountain to Hualien. Rescuers also found limbs and other body parts, the radio said.

The so-called "black box," which records cockpit conversations between the pilot and control tower, was recovered from the crash site, the radio report said.

China Airlines spokesman Lodge Lo said the company was looking into any possible "mechanical or crew" error that might have caused the crash of the 3-year-old plane.

BERLIN — East Germany's new leadership today declared an amnesty for all citizens accused of illegally trying to escape from the communist nation, a move expected to free several thousand people from prison.

The amnesty also would allow tens of thousands of East Germans who have fled to West Germany through Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland in recent months to return home without facing criminal prosecution.

The announcement came a day after more than 100,000 people rallied in Dresden and other East German cities for democratic reform, and a Politburo member began talks with a leading opposition group.

The amnesty, which also covers those who took part in illegal street protests, is the firmest step toward reform since Egon Krenz replaced long-time leader Erich Honecker as Communist Party chief on Oct. 18.

It was announced by the official news agency ADN, which said all prisoners affected would be freed by Nov. 30. Although East Germany does not release information on inmate numbers, Western sources said the measure would affect thousands.

ADN said the amnesty covered all people accused of border violations through today. Also today, the nation's legendary former intelligence chief, Markus Wolf, called for greater openness and expressed some sympathy for the refugees who headed West.

In an interview with party newspaper Neues Deutschland, Wolf said, "the recovery of trust is demanded before we can develop further," indicating Krenz may be open to loosening some constraints on the media and free expression.

Late Thursday, the state-run ADN news agency reported the huge rally in Dresden and said 15,000 people also marched in Erfurt, 25,000 in Rostock and 5,000 more in Gera.

Earlier, East Berlin Communist Party chief Guenter Schabowski talked for two hours with scientists Jens Reich and Sebastian Pflugbeil, founding members of the group New Forum. It was the first time a member of the ruling Politburo met with the group, the largest of the new organizations pushing for reform.

Communist authorities banned New Forum in September but have tolerated the group anyway.

Reich described the talks as "open and constructive. We presented New Forum's concepts and ideas."

He said Schabowski "told us he wanted to begin a new political course and wanted to learn about the whole political spectrum here."

Agreement Signed

Dr. Richard Eakin, chancellor of East Carolina University, signed papers in Ferrara, Italy, on Wednesday renewing a cooperative agreement with the University of Ferrara providing for faculty and student exchanges in programs of instruction and research.

Eakin, who went to Italy for the formal renewal, said the exchange activities will be strengthened.

"Our two institutions have many things in common — we are both interested in adding an international dimension to our campuses," he said.

"We both have important schools of medicine, and we are both close to the sea and have a deep interest in marine resources and a commitment to preserving the ecological balance of the neighboring wetlands."

He said three ECU faculty members would participate in the 25th European Biology Symposium being organized at Ferrara.

Six Arrested In Thefts

Six people were arrested by Greenville police on theft-related charges Thursday, four of them in connection with a 5:24 p.m. strong-arm robbery incident at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Wade Street.

Officers W.R. Stephenson and W.R. McLawhorn said a Florida man told officers that money was taken from him after he was struck in the face near the Wade and Dickinson intersection.

The officers said Timmy Ray Dixon Jr., 16, of 1804 Dickinson Ave.; Derrick Demetrius Thigpen, 17, of 608 W. Fourth St.; Tyrell Barnhill, 17, of Route 1, Grimesland, and Kevin Donnell Kennedy, 16, of 909 Douglas Ave., were arrested on strong-arm robbery charges in connection with the incident.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said Charlie Lee Clark, 28, of Washington, N.C., was arrested on auto larceny charges about 4:46 a.m.

Wyrick said Clark, taken into custody at the intersection of Mumford Road and N.C. 33, was charged in connection with the theft of a vehicle from 104 Vance St. In addition to the auto larceny charge, Wyrick said Clark was charged with driving without a license, driving while impaired, and giving fictitious information to an officer.

Officer J.E. Ebron said James Leo Green, 36, of Kinston was arrested on shoplifting charges in connection with the theft of two packages of steak from Overton's Supermarket at 211 Jarvis St. about 11:33 a.m.

Episcopalians Test Liturgy That De-Sexes The Trinity

By David Briggs
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The Episcopal Church is exploring the frontier of de-sexed liturgical language with proposed text changes that will cheer some churchgoers but may upset others in the pews.

Among the changes included in the alternative texts under study is substituting "God who creates, redeems and inspires" for "Father, Son and Holy Spirit."

The Supplemental Liturgical Texts, now being experimented with in a few hundred parishes, also offer other alternatives to referring to God and Jesus in masculine terms such as "Lord" and add prayers that highlight the role of women in religion.

"We are trying to answer the need of people throughout the country who feel left out, women in particular who feel the liturgy is male-oriented," said Bishop Vincent Pettit, chairman of the church's Standing Liturgical Commission.

But while some church leaders welcome the new texts as offering a broader vision of God, others predict the radical changes in church services will unsettle many of the denomination's 2.5 million members.

"Are you going to provide flak vests with the book?" Bishop Robert Witcher of the Diocese of Long Island in New York asked the commission when the texts were recently presented to the House of Bishops.

The church's General Convention of 1985 required the liturgical commission to develop inclusive language liturgies — liturgies that do not refer to God in exclusively masculine terms.

In 1988, the General Convention voted that the supplemental services be made available for testing in parishes no later than this Advent following a year of consultation between the liturgical commission and the House of Bishops' Theology Committee.

The Rev. Sarah Motley, coordinator of the liturgical commission's committee on inclusive language in the liturgy, estimates that 200 to 800 of the church's approximately 7,400 parishes would experiment with the services in "Prayer Book Studies 30-Supplemental Liturgical Texts."

After the texts are evaluated in the parishes, the commission will propose supplemental liturgical texts to the 1991 Diocesan Convention.

The change Ms. Motley refers to as "in many ways the most difficult frontier" is the proposed alternative language for the traditional terms for the three divine persons in one God that make up the Christian Trinity — the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit.

For example, in The Book of Large Print CINCINNATI (AP) — The Catholic Telegraph, the Archdiocese of Cincinnati's weekly newspaper, has sent 18,000 Roman Catholic parishes nationwide a 32-page sample of a large-print tabloid newspaper it plans for people who have trouble reading regular type.

Editor James Stackpole said the newspaper will begin circulating the large-type edition in January. The newspaper will feature stories and editorials from national Catholic press services, he said.

The large-type paper is to be issued 24 times a year.

Common Prayer, the "Gloria Patri" recited in Morning Prayer is: "Glory to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and will be forever." The alternative offered by the supplemental texts is: "Honor and Glory to the holy and undivided Trinity, God who creates, redeems and inspires: One in Three and Three in One, for ever and ever."

Other options offered by the supplemental texts include several instances where phrases in the prayer book are altered to provide gender-neutral terms for Jesus and God. In one part of the Holy Eucharist, for example, the supplemental texts offer the prayer "Blessed is the one who comes in the name of our God" as an alternative to "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

The supplemental texts are "long overdue," said Marjorie Christie, head of the Episcopal Women's Caucus. "The ability to obliterate the totally masculine words from our worship time is a way we are able to broaden our vision of God," she said.

Pettit said it is helpful

Art Program Offers New Ways Of Expression

By Nancy Benac
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The classroom is alive with activity and chatter. Women lean forward, intently pasting together fabric, paper and cardboard. Others draw with bright markers. Some sit still, content just to be there.

Florence Skuce, 87, gently claps her hands and inspects the small notebook she has created. "My book," she squeals. "Hooray."

Dorothy Ewin, 89, says she may use her notebook to record "little notations of things that are coming up."

Emma Maryman, 93, does not speak, but grins broadly at her finished product, assembled with lots of help from workshop leaders.

Within minutes, Dorothy has forgotten where her notebook came from. Others, too, soon will forget. The workshop, however, has been a success.

It is one of dozens sponsored each month by Arts for the Aging, a non-profit group in Washington that uses professional artists to bring art into the lives of the elderly, particularly victims of Alzheimer's disease.

The program sends painters, mimes, harpists, dancers, storytellers and others to adult day care centers and nursing homes to involve older people in the arts and stimulate their creativity.

One week participants may help make a quilt, another time they will learn pantomime, sometimes they hear stories, often they paint or draw.

The program succeeds where countless other arts and crafts projects "never seem to achieve anything but frustration," reports Sara Gibson of the Bethesda Fellowship House, an adult day care center in suburban Maryland. The artists "allow the often unusual creativity seen in Alzheimer's participants to flourish rather than attempting to stifle it with conformity." Melissa Brown, recreation director for Iona House, another center visited by Arts for the Aging, said it gives patients with intellectual problems a new way to express themselves.

"Even the cognitively impaired elderly have the ability to appreciate art. Art can reach the emotional side of them, which can still be functioning and in-need of being utilized."

Artists who conduct the workshops are specially trained to teach the aged and to help even Alzheimer's patients participate without getting frustrated at tasks that are too difficult.

"We try to bring out whatever is left in people," said Lolo Sarnoff, a 73-year-old retired scientist and active sculptor who created Arts for the Aging. "You have to be a little bit more patient, a little bit more repetitive, but they will do some very beautiful things."

Working with the arts has a "soothing effect" on the Alzheimer's patients and reduces their agitation, even though the classes themselves soon may be forgotten because of memory impairment, Mrs. Sarnoff said.

"They are incredibly happy when they can accomplish something, but you don't expect that they will remember. We just live in the moment with them."

Mark Rooney, a painter and art teacher who is Arts for the Aging's program director, said many patients learn and progress during workshops, though some may never master drawing even the basic border that is the first step in his classes. "One student makes Jackson Pollock-type scribbling throughout the class period, then holds it up with a sweet smile to ask, 'Is this what you wanted?'"

Rooney is fascinated with the work of eccentrics such as Pollock and Vincent van Gogh and sees Arts for the Aging as an opportunity to study that art in progress. "I personally respond to their art because it is very honest. It's not contrived in any way."

An estimated 2.5 million to 3 million Americans have Alzheimer's disease, the most common cause of severe intellectual impairment in older people. The numbers are expected to mushroom as the nation's population ages.

At first, individuals may experience only subtle changes in memory. But as the disease progresses it can cause serious forgetfulness, confusion, irritability and changes in personality and judgment that leave patients unable to care for themselves.

Bodil Meleney, a sculptor and part-time executive director of Arts for the Aging, said it is one of many support systems family members need as they struggle with the daily demands of caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's.

"We fit in as a small cog in the whole thing. The artwork seems to calm them down, they are pleased with what they have done."

Mrs. Sarnoff started Arts for the Aging "like everything else in my life — by mistake." She said she happened to answer the telephone at the Art Barn, a community-run art gallery, when the National Institutes of Health called six years ago seeking someone to teach an art class for Alzheimer's victims.

That pilot program was so well received that she began organizing similar workshops from the Art Barn and last year she created a separate non-profit organization "dedicated to enhancing the lives of the aging through art."

Arts for the Aging, financed entirely by private grants and donations, celebrated its first anniversary with a gala benefit Oct. 11 at the West German Embassy that featured an exhibit of artwork by Alzheimer's patients.

The program now sends paid artists into 10 adult day care centers in the Washington area and Mrs. Sarnoff hopes to export the idea to other parts of the country. Arts for the Aging also plans to create a pamphlet for teachers and caregivers at senior centers around the country and is seeking financing for a research project with Georgetown Medical Center's Department of Gerontology to evaluate the effect of artistic stimulation on Alzheimer's patients' behavior.

In addition, the Corcoran School of Art in Washington is offering a new course using teaching methods developed by Arts for the Aging.

Carol Simpson, executive director of the Washington area chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, credits the program with recognizing that "just because someone has Alzheimer's doesn't mean they can't be creative. In fact many can express themselves better (through art) than verbally."

Leg-Lengthening Spurs Controversy

By Larry Siegel
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Brian Lusa doesn't mind that doctors broke his legs and put him in a wheelchair for 10 months. And the 14-year-old dwarf says he will let them do it again because the surgery will make him a foot taller.

"It's worth it. It's like being on stilts," said Brian, who went from 3-foot-11 to 4-foot-5 during the first stage of the leg-lengthening procedure.

"I can help my mom make breakfast. I can turn on light switches. I can turn on the radio and reach the top shelf on my book case. It's real neat. Most little people have extensions in their car to reach the pedals. I won't have that problem."

Brian, of Covina, is one of four teen-age dwarfs undergoing the process, which costs $40,000 to $50,000, at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

Doctors carefully broke Brian's shin bones in November 1988, then used telescoping metal rods to help 6 inches of new bone grow in each gap. They will do the same to his thigh bones early next year, increasing Brian's height to 4-foot-11.

The procedure is drawing criticism from some members of Little People of America, who believe dwarfs should accept their physical characteristics. They say teen-agers under 18 are too young to decide if they want the surgery, and that parents may pressure them into it.

"Most little people can do anything they want to accomplish, and their height is not a barrier," said Daniel Margulies, the group's immediate past president. "The fact you're short doesn't mean there's anything wrong with you. If you're going to do something as drastic as surgery, you have to take the position that short height is something that has to be corrected."

Brian replied: "If they say I don't need to do this, it's not any of their business. I'm pleasing myself. I'm not doing this for everybody. You really want to have this operation to go through all this inconvenience."

The procedure was developed in Spain a decade ago, but modified at Cedars-Sinai to reduce pain and hospitalization.

"It does an awful lot for their self-image and outlook on life," said Dr. David Rimoin, director of pediatrics and the hospital's medical genetics-birth defects center. "It allows them to drive cars, reach lights and elevator buttons — to live in society without the aid that somebody dwarfed in stature requires."

The surgery by Drs. Joseph Isaacson and William Oppenheim is done in two stages: breaking the tibias, or shin bones, and lengthening them 6 inches, then doing the same thing to the femurs, or thigh bones. The fibulas — the lower leg bones next to the tibias — are bowed in dwarfs, so they are straightened and trimmed a bit when the tibias are extended.

Before each shin or thigh bone is broken, four screws are implanted, two on each side of the planned break. They extend at a right angle to the bone, pointing inward toward the other leg. After the bones are broken and placed in casts, hollow telescoping rods are attached to screws, parallel to the leg. A knob allows the rods to be extended one-twenty-fifth of an inch daily, until the gap between each end of the broken bone reaches 6 inches.

Because the membrane sheath around each bone is left intact when the bones are broken with a small chisel and hammer, new bone grows in the proper place to fill the gap, Rimoin said.

Leg-lengthening, first developed for people with legs of unequal length, involves long hospital stays in Italy and the Soviet Union, where patients are made to walk sooner after surgery, causing greater pain, he said.

Cedars-Sinai's patients remain in casts and a wheelchair for at least eight months: five to lengthen the bone and three for the gap to fill and heal. They spend only four or five days in the hospital after each set of bones is broken.

"These kids are in and out of the hospital quickly, and after the postoperative period of a few days, they are pain-free," Rimoin said. "I call it lengthening with a smile."

Patients receive frequent physical therapy to maintain muscle tone while their legs are being lengthened. Rimoin monitors patients for impaired blood flow or nerve damage, but so far hasn't seen serious complications.

Brian had the screws and telescoping rods removed from his shins in June and got out of his wheelchair and onto crutches in August.

Dead Batteries Won't Save Lives

Dear Abby: As a firefighter, I am saddened by the number of people who die each year in home fires simply because they did not have working batteries in their smoke detectors.

During the course of our rescue attempts, we keep finding smoke detectors that did not function because the batteries were either worn out or missing.

In the early 1980s, we saw a dramatic decline in the number of home fire deaths because of the wide acceptance of smoke detectors. Now the number of deaths is on the rise again. What a tragedy!

Abby, please help us get the word out that smoke detectors are worthless unless they have batteries in them that work, so on Sunday, Oct. 29, when people should turn back their clocks an hour from daylight-saving time, they should put new batteries in their smoke detectors. — Jim Estep, president, International Association of Fire Chiefs

Dear Jim: Consider it done! Readers, don't forget, next Sunday, Oct. 29, when you turn back your clocks, change the batteries in your smoke detectors.

Dear Abby: Now that fax machines are here, they have become almost a status symbol. They are remarkably speedy and convenient for business correspondence, but how about faxing thank-you notes for social occasions?

I hope this doesn't catch on. I just received one, and I must say it lacked the warmth and elegance of lovely stationery, as well as the personal touch. Please comment. — No Fax, Please

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear No Fax: Almost any thank-you note is better than none, but a faxed thank-you is definitely a no-no. It's tantamount to sending a "collect" telegram, because the recipient must pay for the fax paper, which is not exactly petty cash.

Dear Abby: Enough is enough. You've turned your advice-to-the-lovelorn column into one crusade after another. Get off smokers' backs!

I just read Susan Ortez's letter about her mother who smoked herself to death (supposedly). Well, my mother has smoked two to three packs a day since she was 14 years old, and she has never coughed once. She's a tiny, fragile woman who will be 92 years old this month.

Her closest friend died of lung cancer. She was 67 — and never smoked a cigarette in her life! — Healthy 70-Year-Old Smoker

Dear Healthy: I am glad you are a healthy 70-year-old smoker. You are very lucky, and your mother appears to be even luckier. There is no arguing with the fact that smoking contributes to lung cancer, bladder cancer and heart disease. Some smokers are luckier than others — but why gamble?

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market lost more ground today, extending its week-long decline amid worries over weakness in corporate earnings.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.53 to 2,608.20 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by nearly 2 to 1 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 309 up, 601 down and 493 unchanged.

the university would "fast track" the project to re-lamp existing lighting fixtures with high pressure sodium vapor lamps.

ECU also will add necessary pole-mounted lighting in parking lots and along frequently traveled footpaths and install building-mounted floodlights where appropriate, Brown said.

In order to begin the project in the shortest possible time, the work is being contracted. "It will begin as soon as possible and we estimate that it will be completed by the end of spring semester," Brown said.

Areas to be provided with additional bright lighting include parking lots behind Mendenhall Student Center and the Joyner Library and near the residence halls on College Hill Drive. In addition, improvements in lighting are scheduled in the Ninth Street area and the athletic complex where tracks and playgrounds are used frequently at night.

The city owns and maintains lighting around some of the campus fringes, including Ninth Street and around the athletic complex. City officials have promised cooperation.

Warren Will Seek Seat Taft Is Leaving to look at my priorities... more time with my wife and family."

Taft still faces the General Assembly's "short" session in 1990 before his term expires. But, he said, "it's an enormous relief" to know he will not be campaigning for re-election.

Taft said his decision not to seek re-election was made recently. He said no decision had been made when a political newsletter, published about two months ago, included Taft in a list of several legislators that the publication said would not campaign in 1990.

But Taft said his leaving the Senate would mean "a shift in focus, not an end," to his political involvement. "I will continue to be active in politics and will pursue other avenues of public service and participation."

Asked who might be a candidate to replace him, Taft said, "two I've heard about so far," include Charles McLawhorn, a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, who campaigned unsuccessfully for the 6th Senate District nomination in a battle with Taft in 1986, and Warren, who is in his ninth year as a representative from the 9th House District.

"I'm going to step back and let the voters decide the issues" for the 1990 campaign, Taft said, "and see who comes forward."

It was a matter of hours before Warren, who said he has been waiting for the opportunity, came forward with an announcement that he will be a candidate for the office.

"I'm going to take advantage of Taft's decision" to step aside, Warren said this morning. "I'm committed to public service and I'm able to give the job my full time.

"I'm proud of what I've accomplished in nine years in the House," Warren said, and "will be a candidate for the North Carolina Senate.

"I'm ready for a new challenge. I have many good friends in the Senate and I like the challenge of promoting our area" in a new capacity.

Warren has been chairman of the House base budget committee on education and vice chairman of the Appropriations Expansion Budget Committee.

"We're a sleeping giant here in eastern North Carolina," Warren suggested. "It's essential to get dollars for our area of the state. I want to build on what's been done."

"I look at this as a golden opportunity to move ahead and make things happen," Warren said. "I'm going to file (as a candidate) in January.

"Education is my priority and will continue to be," Warren said. "I plan to pursue the goal and objective of getting dollars," for education and for other projects in the east.

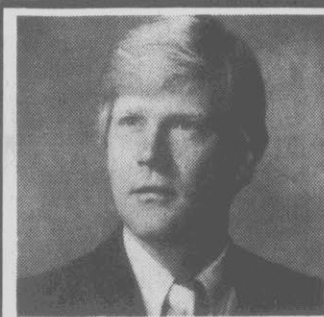

Warren said he was "not entering this race lightly. A number of people have encouraged me in this direction."

"My experience in the House has helped me gain the knowledge and experience necessary for effective leadership. I understand the budget process," Warren said. "I have sponsored important legislation and I have chaired key committees."

"I look forward to taking that experience into a new arena."

McLawhorn, who opposed Taft for the Democratic nomination in 1988, said late this morning that "I'm taking a look at both" Taft's Senate seat and Warren's House seat. "I'd kind of like to keep my options open. Either one one could look right favorable, I think.

"I'm taking a look at both of them... seeing just what I should do. I've had some encouragement both ways and I'm just going to look at both sides... see which is best."

Plaza Mall Reopens

& Co. of Raleigh greeted the gathering.

"If it wasn't for you all, we wouldn't be here," Kane said. "We appreciate your being here. We hope you'll like what we've done."

Mayor Pro-Tem Lorraine Shinn said, "It's a new day in Greenville." She said the newly remodeled mall would benefit Greenville by creating more jobs and bringing more people into the area for shopping.

"It took a lot of vision to undertake a project like this," Ms. Shinn said. "We are grateful to the Kane family and to the merchants who are locating in the mall for having that vision."

Today's event kicked off a reopening celebration that is to last 10 days, according to Lisa DeOreo, marketing director for J.M. Kane. Free daily events will be available to the public during that time, Ms. DeOreo said.

Pitt Plaza, as the mall was originally called, first opened in 1965 as an open air center and was converted into an enclosed shopping center by J.M. Kane in 1984. Developers decided to expand and renovate the mall as the number of customers grew, creating the need for more shopping space.

always alternatives to be considered."

The possibility of attendance-line changes is complicated by the fact that the D.H. Conley alliance feels it has no representation on the school board. None of the board's members live in the area. Most of the area is located in the voting district represented by board members Frank Grooms and Chairman George E. Williams, who live in Greenville.

"We want representation on the board. We have not been heard from," Fredette said. He said Grooms and Williams are not looking out for the D.H. Conley community. "We do not feel they're doing the job for us," he said.

The alliance wants a moratorium on attendance-line changes until after voting districts are redrawn.

"You're looking at an issue which is a valid issue," Gaskins said. The current voting districts are based on 1980 census data which is "somewhat obsolete" because of growth in the area, he said.

However, it is unlikely that anything can be done to provide the Conley area with representation until after the 1990 census, he added.

"I don't think anything can actually be done with these voting district lines until after you get the census data," Gaskins said.

In a related matter, the alliance has not taken a position on the upcoming school bond referendum, scheduled for Dec. 12, Fredette said.

After 11 Day Gap, Series Will Resume Play Tonight

But It Won't Be The Same After The Earthquake

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SAN FRANCISCO — Slowly, life in the Bay area is returning to normal. Businesses are back in business, and so is the symphony and the opera. Conventions are coming back and so are tourists. And tonight, so is the World Series.

Eleven days after a devastating earthquake, the Oakland Athletics and San Francisco again will try to play Game 3.

Of course, this World Series will never be the same. Win or lose, tragedy will be remembered more than any triumph.

But, just like bankers do their banking and cooks doing their cooking, the baseball players will play baseball. More than 62,000 fans will watch them at Candlestick Park when Oakland ace Dave Stewart faces Scott Garrelts in a rematch of Game 1 starters.

Rick Reuschel, scheduled to pitch Game 4 for the Giants, was scratched. He was hit in the right shoulder by a line drive in batting practice this week, so Don Robinson will fill in to face Mike Moore.

Robinson has not started since Sept. 25. He has pitched just 13 1-3 innings since Sept. 3 because of a bad knee.

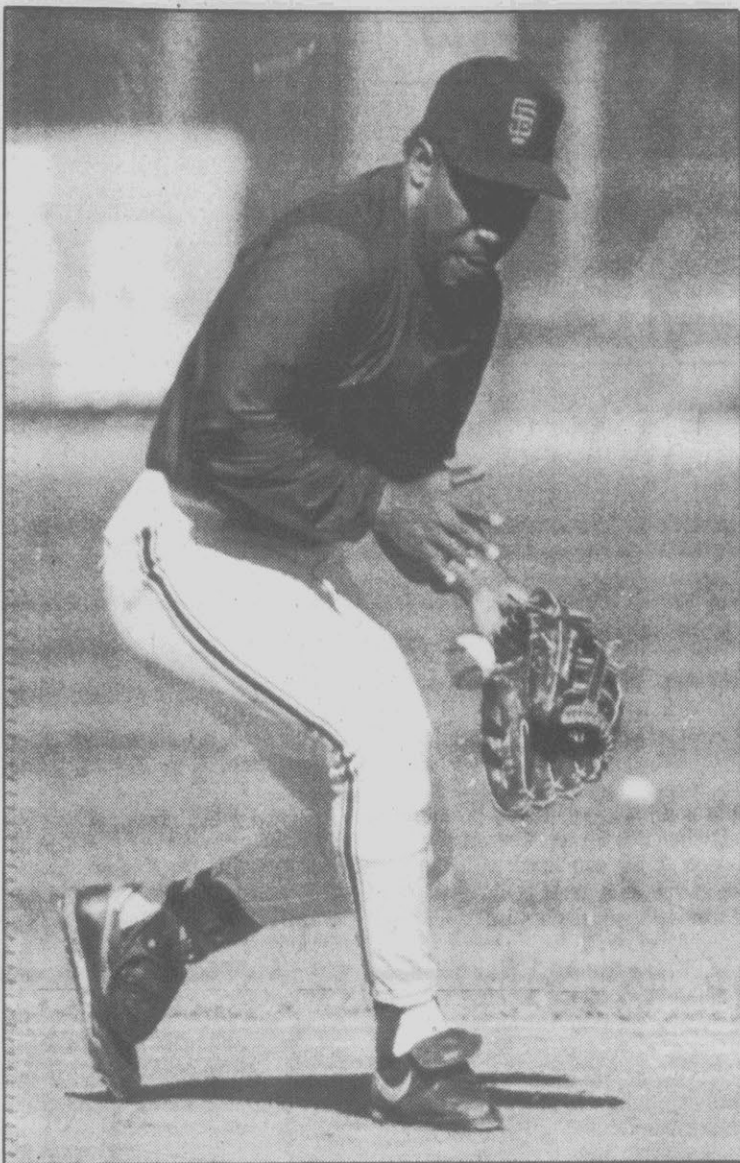

"If things keep going on like this, Dave Dravecky and Mike Krukow will be our starters," Robinson said.

All during the record layoff, while it was debated whether the games should go on, the Athletics and Giants talked about the spirit of the series being gone. Day by day, though, the excitement and enthusiasm returned.

"It's starting to feel like a World Series again," San Francisco's Will Clark said during Thursday's workout.

Oakland, leading 2-0, also got into the swing Thursday. At the Athletics' spring-training site in Phoenix, they held their instructional league team hitless and won 7-0 in a five-inning scrimmage.

Rickey Henderson led off the game with a single and doubled in his next at-bat. Dave Henderson hit a home run off 21-year-old Mike Grimes, a June draft pick who was

Powell Again Captures Regional Tennis Crown

Conley, Williamston, Roanoke Advance Teams

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

WILSON — It was a case of deja vu in the finals of the Northeastern 4-A girls' tennis regionals at Wilson Fike Thursday. And the script is not likely to change, at least for another year.

Every entry that reached the finals in 1988 were back again this year, and the champions defended their titles in decisive fashion.

Sophomore Paige Powell of Rose, the top seed, captured her second straight regional singles crown with a 6-0, 6-2 victory over second-seeded Goldsboro senior Caroline Vinson. Powell defeated Vinson in the finals last year 6-4, 6-3.

The unconquerable junior twosome of Daniela Marx-Lee Worrell emerged from an all-Goldsboro doubles final with a 6-2, 6-3 win over Jennifer Jarrett-Marjorie Clark. Marx-Worrell, who have a pair of state championships on their resume and have never lost a match in their high school career, collected their third title in leading Goldsboro to its third consecutive regional crown.

The Cougarettes, who have gone on to win the state title the last two years, finished with 35 points. Rose was second with 24 points, followed by Wilson Fike with 15, Northern Nash with eight, Eastern Wayne with six and New Bern and Southern Wayne with five each.

All players reaching the semifinal round qualify for next week's state tournament in Chapel Hill.

Rose will be sending Powell and Tricia Tripp to the state tournament. Tripp, seeded fourth in the regionals, made a quick exit in the semifinals as Vinson breezed to a 6-0, 6-0 win.

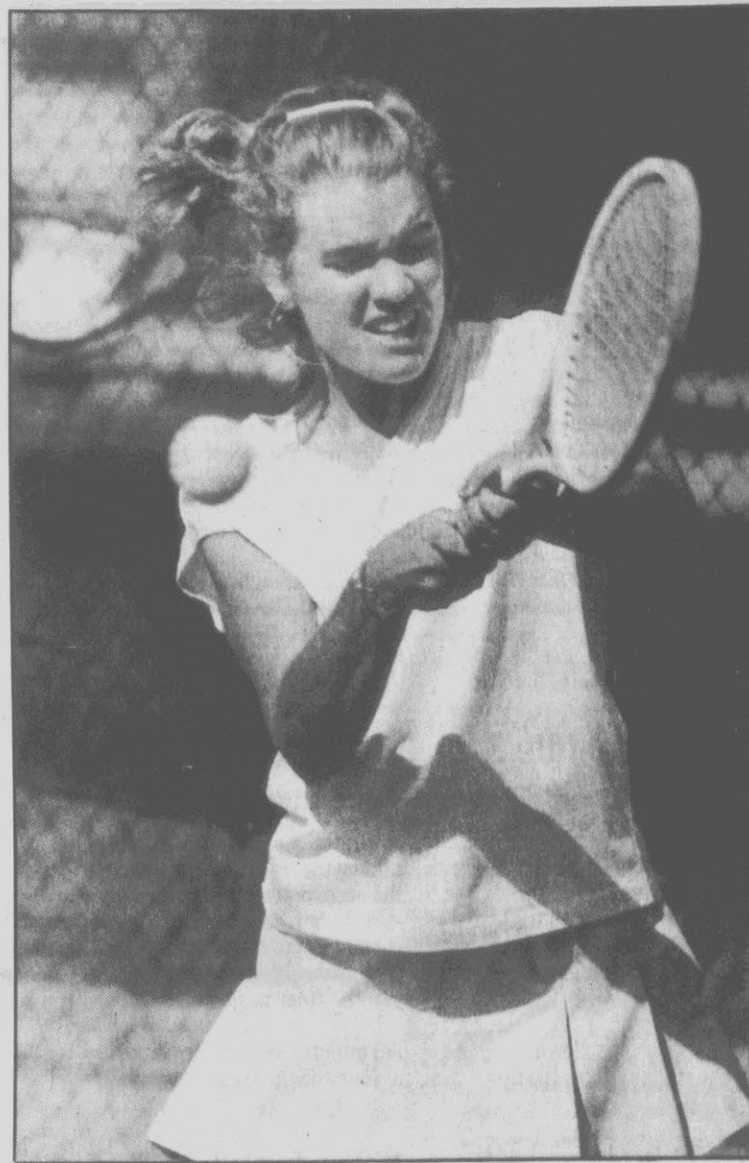

"Tricia did a good job to reach the semis," Rose coach Elizabeth Langston said. "I knew it was going to be tough when she played Caroline because Caroline is such a great player. But it's good experience for Tricia. Just the chance to go to the state means a lot to her."

As for Powell, Langston said she expected a repeat performance. "I had no doubts. I thought she would go all the way again."

Pirates Under Dome Against Orange

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

East Carolina's football Pirates will be out to accomplish a couple of firsts Saturday afternoon. One will be easy — the other less so.

What will be easy will be playing its first indoor football game. The Pirates visit the Carrier Dome at Syracuse University, meeting the Orangemen at 1:30 p.m.

What will be less easy — difficult, in fact — will be beating those same Orangemen.

It will be only the second meeting of the two teams, who first collided last year in Greenville. At that time, Syracuse scored twice for a 14-0 lead before Willie Lewis broke a 20-yard run to close the gap to 14-7.

But after that, the day belonged to the Orangemen, who scored 24 more points and went home with a 38-14 victory.

Syracuse scored the first five times it had the ball, paced by Robert Drummond who ran for 117 yards. Michael Owens, who now is the starting tailback, scored twice, as did the now-departed Drummond.

This year's Syracuse team has lost three times and brings in only a 3-3 record, but Pirate coach Bill Lewis warns that that fact is deceptive.

Syracuse has lost, Lewis points out, to three of the nation's top teams, Florida State, Pittsburgh and Penn State — all currently ranked among the top 14 teams in the country.

Two of those losses came at home, snapping a 16-game home win streak, a streak they hope to begin again Saturday against the Pirates.

The Orange got some consolation for those three losses last week, traveling to Rutgers where they thumped the Scarlet Knights, 49-28.

On top of that, Syracuse coach Dick MacPherson is going for his 100th collegiate career victory.

"MacPherson is one of the most respected coaches in the game," Lewis said. "I hope he won't hold it against me for calling him this, but he's one of the Old Warriors. I have a great deal of admiration for what he's done at Syracuse. Over the past three years, they are the fifth winningest team in the country."

"So it will be a thrill to play against one of his teams."

However, Lewis isn't that happy about the prospect of becoming MacPherson's 100th victim.

"I don't like to coach against someone who is going for a record," he said.

The Orangemen returned a veteran defense up front and a veteran offensive line to give them the nucleus they need for good things.

"They have a number of superlatives, including some all-America candidates," Lewis said. "The Sporting News picked their offensive line as the number one offensive line in all of college football. We can't dispute that. They're big and strong and get the job done."

The line is led by right tackle Turnell Sims (6-3, 285, Jr.), while guard Blake Bednarz (6-3, 303, Sr.), center John Flannery (6-3, 291, Jr.) and tight end Andrew Dees (6-6, 250, So.) also drew Lewis' praise.

"Their tight end is the best blocking tight end we've seen," Lewis added.

Tagliabue's Views Are Similar To Pete Rozelle's

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — One of Paul Tagliabue's credentials as a candidate for NFL commissioner was the insider's view he had at the job as one of Pete Rozelle's closest advisors.

Judging from his first public appearance as the NFL's seventh commissioner, his actions may not differ much from Rozelle's, at least not for a while.

Tagliabue was elected Thursday morning, breaking an impasse that has existed since July 6 when a group of dissidents blocked the election of Jim Finks, the sole candidate proposed by the first of three committees that had a hand in the selection process.

Tagliabue became the candidate of those dissidents. But in reality he is a league insider, close to the so-called "old guard" that had backed Finks, the president of the New Orleans Saints.

"The truth of the matter is that the 48-year-old Tagliabue is as much 'Old Guard' as anyone," said Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell, one of the members of the committee that first recommended Finks. Modell was one of the principal targets of the insurgents and one of the two Finks supporters — Wellington Mara of the New York Giants was the other — who switched their votes to come up with Tagliabue.

Tagliabue sounded a lot like Rozelle in his position on issues. That's not unusual — league officials say that Rozelle often asked when confronted with a major issue: "What does Paul think?"

Tagliabue reiterated, for example, that there can be no expansion without a new collective bargaining agreement, and there hasn't been one since 1987. That was also Rozelle's position.

And while he denied being the author of "Plan B," the modified plan of free agency that took effect last year, Tagliabue had a major role in formulating it. He has also been the league's chief lawyer in the lawsuit that stemmed from the NFL Players Association's 1987 strike.

"There are ways of dealing with the question of free agency," he said. "The Management Council would like to get to the table so that a lot of new ideas could come forward. We need the other side to respond."

The union reacted to Tagliabue's election with guarded optimism.

"I find him to be very straightforward and he wants to solve problems. He understands things have to be done and he's never been opposed to taking actions," Gene Upshaw, the NFLPA's executive director, said.

"I'm glad to see the process is over. It gives us some certainty as to who will be leading the league in the future. The question is, will he be able to pull the owners together? The other question is how much authority will he have?"

Tagliabue's election capped 50 hours of deliberation in seven separate sessions dating back to July 6, when Finks' election was blocked three votes short of the necessary 19. Tagliabue was elected on the 12th ballot.

Rozelle, by contrast, was chosen on the 23rd ballot as a compromise candidate after the then-12 NFL teams debated for 11 straight days on a successor to Bert Bell. At the time, Rozelle was the little-known, 33-year-old general manager of the Los Angeles Rams.

Tagliabue and Finks were the front-runners almost from the time Rozelle announced his resignation

Bizzaro Leads Rose By Rocky Mount

Jason Bizzaro scored twice and assisted on five other goals as Rose High School romped to a 7-1 victory over Big East Conference visitor Rocky Mount in the final regular-season soccer match of the year Thursday at Meadowbrook Park.

Bizzaro finished the year with 18 goals and 11 assists, breaking the school record of 17 goals set by Jordy Smith in 1984.

Rose, the Big East champion for the sixth straight year, totally dominated play, outshooting Rocky Mount, 26-1.

Bizzaro scored his first goal at 5:26 with an assist from John Beasley. Then, at 22:13, Aaron Tschetter struck off an assist by Bizzaro, giving the Rampants a 2-0 halftime lead.

Rose assisted on goals by Danny Weisenberger, Joe Taft and Toure Claiborne, and teamed with Claiborne to assist Park Williams. Bizzaro's other goal was assisted by Edwin Manning.

Joe Haggerty scored Rocky Mount's lone goal late in the contest.

"I was able to get everyone in," Rose coach Charlie Harvey said, "and we played well. There were no letdowns when we substituted. We're all looking forward to finding out who we play next week. I feel real confident about the way we're playing."

Rose closes out the regular season with a 9-1-2 conference record, 13-3-3 overall. The Rampants will face the number three team out of the Midwestern Conference in the first round of the state 4-A playoffs on Thursday. It will be Monday, however, before that place is decided.

Fike, which defeated Elizabeth City Northeastern 3-0 Thursday, will be the No. 2 representative from the Big East. The Golden Demons will face Midwestern Conference champion Jacksonville, the top ranked team in the state.

Three Are Still Unbeaten

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Only three teams remain unbeaten in The Daily Reflector Top 12 prep football poll with Farmville Central leading the pack for fourth consecutive week.

The Jaguars, 8-0, maintained their hold on first by blanking Greene Central 26-0 last week and received all three first-place votes.

West Craven also stands 8-0 and stands second again this week, followed by 7-0 Northampton East.

The remainder of the poll lists Bertie, D.H. Conley, Rose, Wilson Hunt, North Edgecombe, Wilson Fike, Greene Central, Northern Nash and Havelock.

Hunt, ranked third last week, dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 14-7 loss to arch-rival Fike.

The poll ranks teams from the Big East, Colonial, Coastal, Eastern Plains, Northeastern and Tobacco Belt conference regardless of classification.

The Top 12

• Farmville Central: The Jaguar

defense put the clamps on Greene Central and Morris Foreman scored two touchdowns in a 26-0 win. They visit North Pitt tonight.

• Northampton East: David Perry rushed, for 126 yards and scored two touchdowns as the Rams shut out Williamston 26-0. They play at Edenton tonight.

• Bertie: Tracy Leary erupted for 208 yards on 18 carries as the Falcons outlasted Jones Senior 33-20. They host SouthWest Edgecombe tonight.

season, 14-7. They host Rocky Mount tonight.

• North Edgecombe: Derek Belcher hauled in two touchdown passes from Orlando Whitaker and returned and interception for another touchdown in the Warriors'

34-6 romp over Jamesville. They visit Creswell tonight.

• Wilson Fike: The Golden Demons won their first game in the last five against Hunt and stayed in the Big East race. They host Rose tonight.

• Greene Central: The Rams dropped out of first in the Eastern Plains Conference but are still in prime position to advance to the playoffs. They host Ayden-Grifton tonight.

• Northern Nash: The Knights had an open date last week. They travel to winless Kinston tonight.

Pirates Travel To Syracuse...

Key to the offense, of course, is quarterback Bill Scharr.

"They're one of the top-ranked passing teams in the country," the Pirate coach said. "Scharr has done a great job throwing the ball."

And while the Orangemen can certainly pass, they've started to develop a running game this year, too. That has rested on the shoulders of Owens, who ran for 132 yards against Rutgers. It was the second time in three weeks that he has broken the 100-yard barrier. He's had at least 90 yards in four of the six games.

"Their offense will give you a lot of looks," Lewis said. "They'll spread you out and then they have a great threat with Owens."

Throwing the ball, Scharr can go to a number of receivers, chief among them wide receiver Rob Moore, who has 28 catches for 583 yards. The other wide out, Rob Carpenter, had 25 catches for 365 yards, while fullback Duane Kinnon has caught 20 passes for 228 yards.

Defensively, the Orangemen have a lot of experience up front.

"If they have any area that's relatively inexperienced, it's the secondary," Lewis said.

Even so, safety Rob Thomson ranks third in the nation in interceptions, having picked off six thus far.

Tops among the folks up front is outside linebacker Terry Wooden (6-2, 232, Sr.), along with tackle Rob Burnett (6-4, 265, Sr.), and inside linebackers Dan Bucey (6-2, 236, Sr.) and David Barvaro (6-0, 230, Sr.).

"They play you straight up and don't do a lot of stunting or blitzing," Lewis said. "They make few mistakes."

East Carolina, meanwhile, will be trying to get its running game back on track. The Pirates have been held under 100 yards rushing in each of their last three games after averaging well over 200 yards a game for the first three.

Led by Willie Lewis' 300 yards, the Pirates have gotten 158 from fullback Michael Rhett and 157 from back-up tailback Cedric Van Buren. With Denell Harper out of action due to a practice-related injury, Van Buren is expected to see a great deal of action this weekend because of his speed. That, combined with the indoor artificial turf, could give the Pirates the edge they need in the running game.

ECU has averaged 183.5 yards a game thus far while giving up 188.5. Syracuse has given up 178.3 per game while running for 132.0.

Through the air, quarterback Travis Hunter has connected on 45 of 95 passes for 680 yards and seven touchdowns. He's had seven picked off. His backup, Jeff Blake, has made good on 19 of 39 for 241 yards and one score. He's also had one intercepted.

Their top target has been wide receiver Walter Wilson with 14 catches for 259 yards. Split end Charlie Tyson has caught 11 for 196 yards.

As a team, the Pirates are throwing for 179.8 yards a game while giving up 177.8. Syracuse has thrown for 244.7 yards a game and allowing 157.7.

Again, a key may be the kicking game. Both teams have outstanding returners, ECU's Junior Robinson and Syracuse's Qadry "Missile" Ismail. Syracuse kicker Ken Hawkins is averaging 40.3 yards a punt while ECU's John Jett has a 40.8 average.

The game is the first of two straight road games for the Pirates. Next week, they travel to Miami, Fla., to take on the nationally ranked Hurricanes. They'll return home on Nov. 11 to take on Temple in the final game of the year in Ficklen Stadium.

No Ill Will By Finks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS — Jim Finks harbored no ill will after being spurned by the league he has served for 40 years, saying he felt almost relieved that the quest for an NFL commissioner was over.

Finks, president and general manager of the New Orleans Saints, was the early favorite to succeed Pete Rozelle as commissioner. But Finks finished second to league counsel Paul Tagliabue in a vote announced Thursday.

"I'm certainly not disappointed. This has been going on since June for me. I'm relieved personally, and I'm relieved for the league," Finks said. "It had dragged on much too long."

"The process was fair, and maybe it had to come to this, because this league doesn't have much experience hiring commissioners. The last one held the job for 29 years.

"The research and interviewing had to be done and positioning had to be done, and the league fortunately came out with an outstanding man," Finks said. "I couldn't think of a better person than Paul Tagliabue to succeed Pete Rozelle as commissioner of the National Football League."

Finks entered the NFL as a rookie defensive back with the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1949. He helped build the Minnesota Vikings into a perennial Super bowl team in the 1960s and early 1970s, and 19 of Chicago's 22 starters in the 1985 Super Bowl were drafted when Finks was general manager of the Bears.

MARTINSVILLE, Va. AP — Qualifying Thursday for this weekend's 300-lap Budweiser National race in the $15,000 Winston Classic triplexer at Martinsville Speedway, with type of car and speed

The record: last week, 8-1; season, 54-11.

The lone high school game that the panel is picking is the Rose-Fike contest. Here, Rose can, with a victory, wrap up one of the Big East's two playoff berths. They've already beaten all three of the teams that have a chance to tie them the rest of the way, so they automatically would get the nod in the event of any ties. Fike, meanwhile, can keep its playoff hopes alive with the win. They would still have to defeat Northeastern next week to ensure a spot. But the Golden Demons would just about eliminate Rose should they come out on top.

Our panel can't make up its mind about this one. They break even, three picking Rose, and three picking Fike. Me, I'm going to have to go with the Golden Demons here, 28-21.

There's not that much disagreement when it comes to the East Carolina-Syracuse game. This marks the first time that anyone on the Pirate team or the ECU coaching staff has been involved in a game in the Carrier Dome. One member of the team did visit there earlier.

The Orange are usually very tough at home, but they've lost their last two in a row there, snapping a 16-game winning streak. Both of those losses, as was their other loss, on the road, were to nationally ranked teams. Not that it's needed, but the Orangemen have another incentive in that Coach Dick MacPherson is going for his 100th collegiate career victory.

The panel is unanimous on this one with everyone picking Syracuse. I believe it will be in the neighborhood of 31-14.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Wake Forest; Maryland over North Carolina; Virginia over Louisville; Miami over Florida State; Tennessee over Louisiana State; Duke over Georgia Tech; South Carolina over N.C. State; Georgia over Kentucky; Arkansas and Houston, a toss-up; and Alabama and Penn State, a toss-up.

Baines Cuts Into Lead Of Grizzard

Woody Peele

Tom Baines made a move forward this past week, cutting Mike Grizzard's four-game lead in half. Baines turned in a 9-3 week while the rest of us were struggling through a rash of upsets among our 12 games.

Tom claims that his secret is that he didn't try to see what the odds-makers were proposing for the weekend, but just went with his gut instincts.

Well, maybe it works for him, but ...

Meanwhile, Grizzard still holds the lead with a 68-24 record while Baines is hot on his heels at 66-26. Vickie Spivey is three back at 65-27 while Greg Laudick and Tom Morris are both tied at 60-32. I'm nine games back at 59-33.

This week, hopefully, some things will start to happen to close the gaps.

This is the next-to-last weekend for high school football. At stake are most of the post-season berths in the state playoffs, and several games will have an effect on the eventual list of those who make it.

There are, of course, some games that at this point of the season are just for pride.

Ayden-Grifton visits Greene Central. The Rams can wrap up one of the Eastern Plains Conference berths with a victory while Ayden-Grifton came keep its hopes alive with a win. The Chargers, however, will be out of it with a loss. The Chargers are still a young team while Greene Central has much more experience and skills. The Rams are the pick here, 35-14.

Farmville travels to North Pitt and the league championship is at stake. Farmville can wrap up at least a tie for the title and assure itself of the top seeding for the league with a win. North Pitt, meanwhile, could ensure itself of a berth with a victory. It must still play Greene Central, however, so a lot is still at stake next week. Nevertheless, it's going to be Farmville's night here as the Jaguars take a 28-21 win.

Elsewhere, it will be Jamesville over Chocowinity, Roanoke over Columbia, Plymouth over Williamson and Washington over Northwest Halifax.

Choice Of Tagliabue Could Help Carolinas NFL Bid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — A representative of the Carolinas' bid for an NFL franchise says Thursday's selection of Paul Tagliabue as the league's new commissioner moves them a step closer of realizing their dream.

"It puts them in the position that it's feasible for the NFL to go ahead with expansion," said Mark Richardson, spokesman for the group headed by his father, former NFL wide receiver Jerry Richardson.

Tagliabue, a Washington lawyer and one of Pete Rozelle's top advisors, was elected commissioner on Thursday, ending a four-month deadlock and allowing Rozelle to proceed with his retirement plans.

Richardson said in a telephone interview that Tagliabue is a "man of the times" because of his legal expertise.

In a telephone interview, the young Richardson said the league can now focus on the completion of the season. He and his father will look to next spring's NFL meetings in Orlando, where an expansion committee could be set up.

"The first chance we get, we go meet with the new commissioner. The important thing is that we be ready when the league is ready," Richardson said.

Richardson said his work has focused on follow-ups to last August's NFL exhibition game in Raleigh between the Philadelphia Eagles and the New York Jets in Raleigh.

"We've tried to supply the owners with the information on the successes that came out of the game," he said. "Not only by the things that we've sent to NFL owners, but how many of them viewed the game on ESPN. It was a big step forward for the Carolinas."

Richardson said he was not concerned with a decision by Charlotte's city council to postpone a decision on buying land for an NFL stadium for one week. The decision gave city staff members time to study the land and determine if there are environmental problems.

"I think the important thing to remember is that the vote was postponed," Richardson said.

Commissioner Elected...

last March 22 and both were among the six finalists recommended by the first selection committee, made up entirely of "Old Guard" owners.

But Finks was the only candidate recommended and he came up three votes short when the newer owners and some who felt they had been left out of the process mustered the votes to block him.

A second, more broadly based committee included the two among the finalists and the battle began. It was less a battle over candidates than over how the two groups of owners perceived the league. Indeed, a majority on both sides said either man was acceptable.

After a meeting at Dallas two weeks ago, Finks and Tagliabue came out with 13 votes apiece — there were two abstentions — and then Tagliabue began gaining strength. He reached Finks' high-water mark of 16 votes when the meetings began here Tuesday.

At one point, Finks was offered the job of president for football operations under Tagliabue, but declined.

After Rozelle suggested he would walk away even if a successor hadn't been found, the deadlock began to erode Wednesday night. Rozelle said he met with Pittsburgh's Dan Rooney, an old-guard member who had switched to Tagliabue, and they agreed to form a five-man committee to resolve the issue.

It was chaired by Rooney and included Mara and Modell from the Finks side and Minnesota's Mike Lynn and Denver's Patrick Bowlen representing Tagliabue. Mara and Modell agreed to switch, then called Finks early in the morning to tell him of their decision.

"I wanted a man with a football background," Mara said. "I felt we'd have the best of both worlds with Paul staying on as our lawyer. But I'm satisfied. Maybe it will be like the time when Forrest Evashevski turned down the Green Bay coaching job and they had to settle for Vince Lombardi."

Tagliabue, who had said in Dallas that he wanted the job "because it would be fun," said Wednesday that he was well aware of the problems he faced.

He was confronted by the variety of things that will come up when a Cleveland reporter asked him if he would reinstate Browns running back Kevin Mack, who is due to be released from jail next week after serving time for cocaine use.

Tagliabue seemed slightly taken aback, then replied that he was unfamiliar with all the facts but would study them when they came up. It was a standard Rozelle reply.

Finks seemed to take the decision of the owners in stride.

"My congratulations go to Paul. He should make an outstanding commissioner and should serve the NFL for years to come," Finks said.

Tagliabue said that Finks had called him just as he was leaving home to catch a plane for Cleveland.

"He said he was offering me 100 percent support," Tagliabue said. "I said I wanted more than that — 110 percent."

Tagliabue said he wanted to meet soon with Finks to discuss his possible contributions.

One possible role for the Saints' president might be chairman of the league's rule-making Competition Committee, considered one of the league's most powerful posts. Finks is a member of the committee and the chairman's job has been vacant since Tex Schramm, the committee's long-time head, left the Dallas Cowboys to become chairman of the NFL's new overseas venture.

Rozelle said the vote of the 27 teams — Seattle owner Kenneth Behring was absent — was "very strong" for Tagliabue and well beyond the 19 votes needed although there apparently was a negative vote or two. Those in the meeting said there then seemed to be a feeling of unanimity over the selection.

Rozelle said he is very much relieved by the end to the impasse.

"I know Carrie is happy," he said, referring to his wife, who moved the family to the San Diego area in August. Since then, Rozelle has been living in a New York hotel about 10 blocks from his office.

Tagliabue said he hoped to be settled in office about the middle of November, at which time Rozelle would presumably be free to leave. He will remain as a consultant and one of his specific duties will be to help negotiate a new television contract.

"I was glad to hear Paul say that," said Rozelle, who had said all along that both Finks and Tagliabue were outstanding candidates. "Having someone like Paul isn't like having an outsider come in. He knows the owners the general managers and the staff and he knows the problems we face."

Series Takes On Spirit Of Recovery

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — A few San Franciscans, those who remember 1906, have been through it before. The World Series has not.

When the quake-stunned Bay area takes time out for baseball once again today, the sounds of silence and a 62,000-voice chorus belting out "San Francisco" will drown out the crack of bat on ball. And subtle but visible changes at Candlestick Park should make it easy to keep winning and losing in perspective.

The Giants are determined to see that the spirit of recovery from the disaster is recharged in alternately somber and defiant pre-game ceremonies. But they also have taken steps to ensure that any aftershocks don't jolt public safety, from equipping ushers with flashlights to hooking up a backup sound system.

The tone will be set early.

The Candlestick crowd will observe a moment of silence at 5:04 p.m., the time the Oct. 17 quake hit the Bay area with a force measured at 7.1 on the Richter scale.

And disaster officials, not former Giants great Willie Mays, will throw out the first ball.

As for those cracks in the concrete walkways and chips in the pillars, the Giants say there's no need for worry. They are simply signs of aging in a 27-year-old ballpark that, while much maligned, is about as safe as any other place in the heart of an active fault zone.

Still, on the eve of long-delayed Game 3, a media tour of the damaged sections and a briefing on public safety precautions on Thursday held more interest than the team's workout. The official whose words were most scrutinized was not Roger Craig, the Giants manager, but Jerry Anderson, the architectural consultant for Candlestick.

Reporters trailed Anderson around the upper-deck sections of the stadium. Perhaps surprisingly to those who experienced the 10- to 15-second tremor nine days earlier, evidence of the quake was hard to detect.

"It held up as it was designed to hold up," Anderson said. "Our repairs out here have been minimal."

Concrete steps that cracked and broke up in the upper deck in two outfield seating sections have been replaced. Fresh concrete now enforces three concrete A-frame columns damaged in the outer walkway outside the upper grandstand sections in the outfield. Anderson downplayed the damage and estimated total repairs at less than $200,000.

"It certainly showed last Tuesday that it's a good place to be in an earthquake of 7.1 on the Richter scale," he said.

In addition to the flashlights issued to ushers and security guards, there will be plenty of reminders of the disaster.

As fans arrive, they will have the opportunity to donate food, clothing, blankets and other items. They will also be handed pamphlets to remind them of the quake victims, rescuers and survivors.

The fans will be asked to sing "San Francisco," the song popularized by Jeannette McDonald in the 1936 film of the same name. The lyrics are on one side of the handout and, following the moment of silence at 5:04, the cast of the local hit musical "Beach Blanket Babylon" will lead the public chorus.

On the front side of the pamphlet, the Giants compliment the fans for the "remarkable composure and restraint" shown on Oct. 17.

"Tonight we honor the resilience and indomitable spirit of our community to rise again," the pamphlet says. "Let us all join together, not only in prayers for the loved ones lost, but in tribute to the survivors and selfless volunteers whose lives are changed forever."

Also saluted are "an emergency army of dedicated public servants and private volunteers whose tireless relief efforts made heroes of ordinary citizens hour after hour."

Representatives of 10 to 12 organizations which aided in rescue and recovery efforts, including police and fire departments and the American Red Cross and Salvation Army, each will throw out a ceremonial first pitch from the mound.

Once the game starts, another precaution — a backup sound system — should ease spectators' minds.

During the first quake, the power was knocked out, but emergency generators came on within 20 seconds and provided lighting in the concourse and exit areas and on the field. A portable public address system in police cars informed spectators what to do.

Electricians have since hooked up the main public address system to a diesel-powered backup electrical system that will enable it to work in an emergency. That could be crucial during the eight minutes before stadium lights regain full power.

FBI agents will be on hand outside Candlestick at the agency's request, but their duty is mainly to crack down on trademark infringements involving unauthorized souvenirs.

On Thursday, stadium crews tightened bolts, swept up evidence of their repair work and repainted the fading World Series logo behind home plate. It was cosmetic work that reflected the overall repair effort.

Engineers have said that any structural weakness in Candlestick should be reflected in visible damage. In other words, there is no hidden danger.

But no official can answer the ultimate question that probably lurks in the minds of many in tonight's sellout crowd: How big a jolt can the stadium safely withstand?

"They expect this stadium will handle greater earthquake loads — that's how it was designed," Anderson said. "But if you ask me what would happen in a 7.5 or 8.0, I don't know. We just can't say for sure."

Series Story Line Has Many Twists

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Call it "As the World (Series) Turns." Or returns.

Remember when a favorite soap opera character went upstairs and took 10 days to come down? That's sort of what the World Series is like. Forget Luke and Laura. Moore and McGwire are back.

The earthquake changed a lot of things, but not Oakland's 2-0 lead. When last we left, Dave had shut out the Giants 5-0 and was anxiously awaiting his next turn. Well, turns out that it's Game 3. In the meantime, Scott feels better. But Rick feels worse. And Storm is really mad.

Dave Stewart, who won two games against Toronto in the American League playoffs, pitched a five-hitter in the Athletics' victory over San Francisco in Game 1 of the World Series. Stewart struck out six and walked one in his first shutout since Aug. 30, 1988.

Oakland took a 3-0 lead in the second inning off Scott Garrelts. Dave Henderson walked and Terry Steinbach and Tony Phillips hit consecutive singles for a 1-0 lead. Walt Weiss grounded to first and Will Clark threw home, but the sliding Steinbach knocked the ball out of Terry Kennedy's glove and Oakland led 2-0. Rickey Henderson's single scored Phillips for a three-run lead.

Dave Parker homered leading off the third, his third home run of the postseason, and Weiss homered leading off the fourth. That was that.

Game 2 seemed much the same, but this time it was Mike Moore leading Oakland to a 5-1 victory. He allowed four hits and one run in seven innings before Rick Honeycutt and Dennis Eckersley finished.

Carney Lansford's RBI double in the first gave Oakland the lead, but the Giants tied it in the third on Robby Thompson's sacrifice fly.

Parker put Oakland ahead in the fourth with an RBI double off Rick Reuschel. Dave Henderson walked and Steinbach broke open the game with a three-run homer.

Don Robinson was scheduled to pitch Game 3 for the Giants against Bob Welch and Garrelts was slated to start Game 4 against Storm Davis. But Garrelts said before the third game that his elbow was sore and that he might have to be pushed back.

He's healthy now, but Reuschel is hurting. Reuschel was scheduled to pitch Saturday, but he was hit by a line drive in batting practice and it isn't known when he'll be able to throw again.

Stewart and Moore will pitch Games 3 and 4 for Oakland. That has angered Davis. He's eligible for free agency after the World Series and has threatened to leave the A's because he's been bypassed.

Series Set To Resume Tonight...

Jim Abbott's roommate at the University of Michigan.

Jim Corsi, who bounced between the Athletics and the minors this season, pitched three innings for Oakland. Two farmhands finished up and did the job against an instructional team lineup that, by the end of the game, included Ken Phelps, Mike Gallego and Stan Javier.

Jose Canseco was slowed by blisters, caused by a new pair of spikes, but start tonight and try to end an 0-for-23 World Series slump. Catcher Terry Steinbach got nicked by a foul tip, but also is ready.

The weather won't be a problem and neither will the Rolling Stones.

Clear skies, moderate winds and temperatures in the low 60s are in the forecast. There might be rain Sunday, when Game 5 would be played if necessary.

While the Athletics worked out, team management, the Oakland Coliseum and the Rolling Stones worked out a compromise that will allow the World Series to continue as planned despite a schedule conflict.

The Rolling Stones have sold 120,000 tickets for concerts at the Coliseum on Nov. 45 and their contract allows them to move into the stadium five days earlier to set up their massive stage. Should the World Series go back to Oakland, that would've meant trouble.

Bill Graham, one of the country's best-known concert promoters, said Thursday that the rock group agreed to move back its concerts a day if the World Series needs Game 7 on Nov. 1. If so, the group, the Athletics and the Coliseum will together absorb the overtime construction costs.

"Under the circumstances, yes, I'm satisfied. The overall picture, no," Graham said. "It doesn't seem right to me to hear that the facility I have a contract for is not available. But in light of the earthquake and everything else, I think it's fair."

The earthquake and its victims remained foremost in baseball's mind. Commissioner Fay Vincent said $1.4 million would be donated to the earthquake relief effort. The Giants and Athletics each contributed $100,000 and the other major-league teams gave $50,000 apiece.

"We want to assist the recovery to demonstrate our appreciation for the cooperation we have received while guests here and to emphasize our support for the people who have suffered," Vincent said.

The Giants and Athletics said they would open next year's exhibition season with a benefit game March 1 in Phoenix. Proceeds from ticket sales, parking and concessions will go to earthquake victims.

The Athletics collected more than $20,000 in donations during their two days in Phoenix. They went to Arizona to avoid possible bad weather in the Bay area — it turned out to be sunny in both places — and returned to Oakland on Thursday night.

Giants manager Roger Craig preferred to stay at home. He did not set up any simulated or practice games and San Francisco's workouts were fairly loose.

"We just had to get our work in, so we came here," Athletics manager Tony La Russa said. "What Roger is doing to get the Giants ready is different than what we're doing. Every organization has to do what it thinks is best."

Unlikely Entry Leads Nabisco

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Donnie Hammond, the upstart leader of golf's richest tournament, didn't even expect to be playing in the Nabisco Championship.

Three weeks and two tournaments ago, he was mired in 92nd place on the season's money-winning list and, admittedly, "not even thinking about Nabisco."

He had booked himself into a tournament in Japan on the same dates as the elite Nabisco, which takes only the top 30 money-winners for the year.

"I wasn't thinking about it until we were on the plane to Texas and my caddy said, 'Well, we finish first and second in the next two and we're in Nabisco.' I told him he'd better quit drinking."

But the journeyman Hammond, who had won only once before in a seven-season PGA Tour career, followed his caddy's plan, a win in the Texas Open with the second-best 72-hole score in Tour history, and a runner-up finish last week.

Those two tournaments provided him with $194,400 in winnings, vaulted him into 26th place on the money list and put him in the 30-man field that is chasing almost $3.5 million in individual prize money, almost three times as much as any other American event.

The tournament, the final official-money event on the PGA Tour schedule, also will determine the year's leading money-winner and the Player of the Year.

It is a mathematical certainty that Hammond cannot achieve either of those distinctions.

But a 6-under-par 65 — the seventh time in his last nine competitive rounds that Hammond has had a 65 or better — gave him a two-shot, first-round lead Thursday.

"It's a carry-over from Texas," he said. "That was one of those tournaments that I was playing as good as I can play. It happens once every four or five years. It's a nice run to be in."

Valvano Won't Resign Despite The Problems

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Jim Valvano said Thursday he would not resign as North Carolina State's basketball coach, saying that while he accepted responsibility for academic abuses in the program, the university itself allowed abuses to occur.

In a two-hour interview with The News and Observer, Valvano said he would not resign because he was not personally responsible for wrongdoing in the program, and he should be allowed to remain as coach to help oversee changes.

Valvano also said he had been trying to strengthen academics in the program and had not been aware of abuses uncovered during recent investigations. And he stressed that he did not think his players did anything that wasn't permitted by the system.

"I'm saying that this university has systems which are in place which need to be addressed, that basketball players are part of the system that needs to be addressed," he said.

He said his players' academic records generally were similar to those of the NCSU student body — and he cited the low graduation rate of all NCSU students, particularly black males.

The university graduates 51 percent of its students after five years, since Valvano arrived in 1980, 24 percent of his players have graduated from NCSU — 32 percent including students who transfer and graduate from other institutions. Graduation rates by race for the basketball team were not immediately available.

Valvano also complained that The News and Observer had mislabeled him in the past 10 months as a greedy, uncaring coach more concerned about his personal welfare than his players.

"I'm not the person that you folks have depicted," he said. "I'm not some money-hungry huckster here — nothing's further from the truth. Do I make money? Yes. So do a lot of people in this profession."

Valvano said academic abuses in his basketball program that were criticized by University of North Carolina system President C.D. Spangler Jr. and an investigation commission headed by Sam Poole were common in the rest of the university.

Valvano also criticized Hugh Fuller, director of NCSU's academic tutoring program. Fuller told The News and Observer in July that top officials at NCSU permitted academic abuses to occur to keep Valvano's players eligible. Fuller also said he alerted his superiors to the abuses, but got no response.

"I don't agree with Dr. Fuller," Valvano said. "I'm asked to believe on one hand there was this one lone voice in the wilderness and on the other hand you had a chancellor, a provost, two directors of admission, four tutors — all somehow in collusion. I don't believe that. I'm not taking a shot at Dr. Fuller. I think Dr. Fuller felt very deeply and very strongly about his position, but there are two sides to every issue."

Valvano said resigning his job might have been the easiest thing to do at times.

"I say this with great humility now: I had some excellent opportunities, and I felt that would have been really compounding a problem," he said. "And you want to talk about character and integrity — if all you allege and all that's been said is true, and (I) just said, 'Let me get out of here and take a job with the pros,' or another job I was offered, what do my men say? What am I telling them?"

Valvano explained that none of the players on the 1988-89 Wolfpack team would talk to the Poole Commission because of the State Bureau of Investigation agents who worked with the panel.

"When they asked the SBI to come in I did not instruct my players not to talk to them. The players' parents met and very, very succinctly said they do not want their children (to talk to the SBI). They felt the SBI was a connotation of some kind of criminal investigation."

He did not know of any players using drugs while playing, an allegation made in the Poole Commission report.

Although the Poole Commission found that the coach's voluntary, non-punitive drug testing policy was ineffective, Valvano said he and his staff pressed for mandatory drug testing for several years.

He denied a finding in the Poole Commission report that one of his assistant coaches had helped players sell their complimentary game tickets — which would be a violation of NCAA rules.

"Never. That's not true. He (Poole) is wrong. I'm not saying that's not what they think, but that's wrong."

The assertion appeared only in the Poole report, and did not appear in the results of the NCAA's own investigation.

Valvano said he regretted that his relationship with The News and Observer, which has investigated the basketball program since early January, had deteriorated.

"I feel more deeply than you folks know about N.C. State and the program and the problems," he said. "If I had to do it over again, from nine years forward, we'd have a weekly meeting. Sports is off the sports pages — it's a news item all over the country — so I want to be held accountable and responsible. I want to show the character of Jim Valvano, the integrity, the honesty."

Drug User At USC Wasn't Disciplined

By Rick Scoppe
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA, S.C. — An ex-South Carolina football player who has admitted using steroids said he wasn't disciplined by school officials after twice refusing to be tested for drugs.

George Hyder, who said "hard work and steroids" helped him go from 205 pounds as a freshman in 1982 to 270 pounds as senior, said he told Coach Joe Morrison he refused to take any drug tests because he had not signed a consent form.

"The only thing that was ever done was a meeting with Morrison," Hyder testified Thursday in former Athletic Director Bob Marcum's breach-of-contract lawsuit. "Nothing was ever done after that."

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Judge Matthew Perry told the jury Thursday that the trial, which began Oct. 16, may stretch into the middle of next week.

The university still has to call at least three witnesses — school President James B. Holderman, Athletic Director King Dixon and Joe McCulloch, a member of the task force that looked into problems in the school's drug-testing program in early 1988.

Hyder, a walk-on who later earned a scholarship, said he told ex-strength Coach Keith Kephart in the summer of 1985 he was supplying some players on the team with steroids and was being encouraged to do so by two assistant coaches.

Four Unbeatens Face Stiff Tests

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Notre Dame, Miami, Colorado and Alabama, four of the nation's six remaining unbeaten and untied college football teams, appear to have their work cut out for them on a weekend that will go a long way toward determining the eventual national champion.

Top-ranked Notre Dame (7-0) entertains No. 7 Pitt (5-0-1), runner-up Miami (6-0) visits No. 9 Florida State (5-2), No. 3 Colorado (7-0) is at Oklahoma (5-2), which is unranked but one of three teams tied for the Big Eight lead, and No. 6 Alabama (6-0) visits No. 14 Penn State (5-1).

The other teams with unblemished records are No. 4 Nebraska (7-0), which is tied with Colorado and Oklahoma atop the Big Eight and plays host to Iowa State, and unranked Fresno State (7-0), which entertains Nevada-Las Vegas.

Among those holding their breath will be the Orange Bowl, which is drooping over the possibility of a national championship 1-2 shootout matching the Nov. 25 Notre Dame-Miami winner against the survivor of next week's Colorado-Nebraska showdown. The Sugar Bowl's hopes are riding on Alabama, the only unbeaten team in the Southeastern Conference.

Spoilsports Pitt, Florida State and Penn State are hoping to join the New Year's Day bowl picture while Oklahoma, on probation and ineligible for postseason action, would just like to ruin someone else's holiday plans.

Rounding out the Top Ten, fifth-ranked Michigan entertains Indiana, No. 8 Illinois plays host to Wisconsin and No. 10 Southern Cal is at home against Stanford.

Elsewhere, No. 11 Tennessee is at LSU, No. 12 Houston plays No. 13 Arkansas at Little Rock, No. 15 West Virginia is at Boston College, Mississippi State is at No. 16 Auburn, Pacific is at No. 17 Arizona,

No. 18 Brigham Young is at Hawaii, No. 20 North Carolina State is at No. 25 South Carolina, No. 21 Texas A&M is at Rice, Wake Forest is at No. 22 Clemson and No. 23 Washington State is at Arizona State. Florida, the No. 19 team, and No. 24 Texas are not scheduled.

For Pitt, this is the biggest game since 1982 when a No. 1-ranked Panther team was upset by unranked Notre Dame 31-16. That was the last time Pitt was unbeaten this late in a season.

"It's the biggest game since we've been at Pitt, the biggest game of my life," defensive back Louis Riddick said. "We're playing the best team in the country, with a chance to move up in the rankings. It's a great test, but it's also a great opportunity."

Pitt coach Mike Gottfried remembers "walking off the field last year after losing to Notre Dame 30-20 and telling (Coach) Lou Holtz his team was a year ahead of schedule. I thought they'd be a good team (in 1989) and all they did was win the national championship."

"I've talked to our squad about the winning streaks they have — a 19-game winning streak, 14 straight at home, 11 straight since they were voted No. 1. That's impressive in this day of college football when you play so many tough teams."

"No one runs against them. I don't know if they've given up 100 yards rushing in a game this season. Miami passed for 424 yards against them last season and still didn't win. Southern Cal threw for 333 yards against them last week and still didn't win. Notre Dame is the quintessential team."

After Notre Dame, the Panthers have a week off, then play Miami on Nov. 11. Miami has been a thorn in Florida State's side, handing the Seminoles their only setbacks in 1987 and again last year. The Hurricanes are 9-1 in Tallahassee while trailing 12-10 in Miami.

Dennis Erickson, Miami's new coach, says he "had a sense of the rivalry when I first came into town and people said, 'The two things you do are beat Florida State and Notre Dame.' That kind of tells you how important it is."

"I think it's going to be a classic game. The whole nation is going to be watching. It's one of the best games in the country every year so it's going to be fun to coach and play in."

Miami's Gino Torretta will make his third consecutive start at quarterback for Craig Erickson, who has been sidelined with a broken finger on his throwing hand.

Torretta, a redshirt freshman, has completed 64 percent of his passes for 976 yards and seven touchdowns and is ranked No. 4 nationally in passing efficiency.

"Looking at Miami on film, they don't look any different," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "I don't see anything missing. They are probably the best team in the nation. When you lose to a team and you play good, I don't feel it's bad. I don't like Miami beating us, but at least they're the right people."

Miami will have the services of middle linebacker Bernard Clark, who has missed three games with a knee injury.

Florida State will rely on senior quarterback Peter Tom Willis, who has completed 60.4 percent of his passes for 1,832 yards and eight touchdowns.

Colorado visits Oklahoma without two of the people it was counting on last spring. Quarterback Sal Aunese died of cancer last month and running back Eric Bieniemy suffered a knee injury two weeks ago.

Bieniemy insists he will play. Coach Bill McCartney isn't so sure. Besides, backup J.J. Flannigan ran for 178 yards on just 10 carries and scored three touchdowns against Kansas last week.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm playing, regardless," Bieniemy said. "They'll have to hang me up outside to keep me from making the trip."

Oklahoma's Mike Gaddis, the nation's No. 3 rusher, is out for the season after injuring a knee two weeks ago.

"There's no question we're going to be fired up," Oklahoma coach Gary Gibbs said. "We'll be intense, we'll be highly motivated and we'll play with great effort."

"One of our goals is to win the Big Eight Conference championship, and this is one of the things you've got to do if you want to achieve that goal — beat Colorado."

"They've got all the ingredients — a big, strong offensive line with great skill people, a great quarterback (Darian Hagan). They not only can drive the football, but they have the great big-play capabilities. Defensively, they're a big, strong, physical team."

Colorado hasn't beaten Oklahoma since 1976 and hasn't won at Norman since 1965.

"Anybody who knows anything about Oklahoma knows that they just reload," McCartney said. "Gaddis was probably one of the top two or three backs in the country, and it's hard to replace a guy like that. But if you could see the guys they have at tailback, you wouldn't feel sorry for them."

No one has ever beaten a Joe Paterno team three years in a row. Syracuse tried two weeks ago and failed. Now it's Alabama's turn.

Paterno is 3-7 against the Crimson Tide, including 0-4 against Bear Bryant and 0-2 against Bill Curry.

"I feel much more comfortable going into this part of the season than I was last year," said Paterno, whose 5-6 record in 1988 was Penn State's first losing record in 50 years. "We're better. That doesn't mean we're good enough for the stretch run, but it should be a fun period."

"We have a tough stretch down the road (Alabama, West Virginia, Maryland, Notre Dame, Pitt), but, hey, nobody will get bored."

Regional Tennis Results...

Langston said. "She played fantastic today. She deserves it. She's worked at it and plays all the time, even after practice."

Powell dropped only three games en route to her rematch with Vinson. She registered 6-0, 6-0 wins over Angie Abernathy of Rocky Mount and Heather Olsen of Jacksonville Wednesday to reach the semifinals then eased past third-seeded Shilpa Jaggi of Fike 6-1, 6-0.

Vinson also was untested through the semifinals but proved no match for Powell, whose unwavering consistency at the baseline and tremendous ability to recover when apparently out of a point were the difference.

"I knew she would be tough to beat and I would have to play good," Powell said. "I just wanted to play my own game and not to push. She's a good player. She hits it hard but I was doing pretty well with her shots. I was playing really good today."

Powell survived a grueling first game then was in command the remainder of the first set. Vinson, attempting to change the tempo of the match with a variety of drop shots, was able to break serve twice early in the second set and was serving at 2-2, but Powell closed out a break of her own with a forehand winner down the line.

She went on to win the next three games to seal the match.

"Paige plays a baseline game and she's too tough," Vinson said. "She just doesn't miss. My net game isn't strong enough yet for me to try to come in. She's a lot stronger and her forehand's a lot better than mine."

The meeting was the third between Powell and Vinson with Powell winning all three. Powell registered a 7-5, 6-4 win in a tournament over the summer.

"Last year (in the regional) the score was a lot closer but I'd rather play like I did today," Vinson said. "I feel like I'm hitting the ball more solid. When we played this summer it was 7-5, 6-4 and we both played horrible. I'd rather just get killed and play well."

Powell should be one of the top four seeds in the state tournament along with Scottie Thomas, Helen Spencer and Carol White.

"It's going to be hard this year," Powell said. "I will just try to do my best and hope I play good."

Pam Pack Captures 3-A Net Regional

WILSON — Singles and doubles titles propelled Washington to the team title in the Class 3-A girls' tennis regionals at Wilson Beddingfield High School Thursday afternoon.

The Pam pack rolled up 24 points to easily outdistance Tarboro and Orange with seven points each. Southern Durham had five points, D.H. Conley and South Johnston three each and Wake Forest-Rolesville two.

Beddingfield and Hertford County failed to score.

Washington's Lisa Manning captured the singles title while the unseeded duo of Anna Champion and Anne Taylor claimed the doubles crown.

Champion-Taylor knocked off top-seeded Christi Cameron-Kelly Avery of Harnett Central 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

Cameron-Avery eliminated Conley's Nicole Bloodworth-Jenni Bradburn 7-6 (7-2), 3-6, 6-2 in the semifinals.

All players reaching Thursday's semifinals will advance to next week's state tournament on the campus of UNC-Charlotte.

Mills-Bundy Lift Williamston Team

ROANOKE RAPIDS — The top-seeded duo of Deedee Mills and Dawn Bundy captured the doubles crown to lead Williamston to the Roanoke Rapids 1-A/2-A regional title at Emory Park Thursday.

Williamston finished with 24 points, followed by Roanoke Rapids and Roanoke with 19 each, Edenton with 12, Northampton East with six and Rosewood with three.

Greene Central and North Carolina School of Science and Math failed to score.

Two-time defending regional champion Charles B. Aycock was moved to the Wilmington regional this year because of its realignment from the Eastern Plains to the East Central conference.

Mills-Bundy defeated third-seeded Jennifer Coburn-Michelle Lyles 6-7 (9-11), 6-1, 6-4 to reach the finals then topped Dawn Briley-Amie Oakley of Roanoke 6-4, 6-2.

Briley-Oakley ousted Williamston's fourth-seeded team of Carrie Bussell-Hope Robinson 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

In singles, Andrea Byrns of Franklinton defended her title with a 6-0, 6-4 win over fourth-seeded Lori Eure of Roanoke Rapids. Eure stunned second-seeded Gabrielle Webster of Edenton 6-3, 6-2 to reach the finals, while Byrns defeated Brooke Burns of Northampton East 6-2, 6-0.

All players reaching the semifinals earned a trip to the state tournament next Wednesday and Thursday at N.C. State University.

Spanish Rock Musicians Struggle For Identity

By Brett King
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARCELONA, Spain — When El Ultimo de la Fila goes on stage, rock singer Manolo Garcia strikes the pose of a matador, flamenco dancers swirl and stamp to the sound of electric guitars and screaming fans surge forward.

Although lead guitarist Quimi Portet says the group plays rock music, the back-up acoustic guitar, castanets and wailing vocals that have become its trademark are unmistakably and traditionally Spanish.

Spain is synonymous with music, but only recently has home-grown rock 'n' roll moved to center stage as the country witnessed explosive growth in bands, concerts and record companies in the past decade.

When Elvis Presley, Little Richard and the Beatles hit the music scene, Spaniards were living under a military dictatorship. But the death of authoritarian ruler Gen. Francisco Franco in 1975 and Spain's transition to democracy provided the cultural and political context within which local rock could flourish.

Rock bands soon became blatantly ideological in their lyrics and entertained at political rallies and municipal gatherings as the music became a banner for a cultural and political reawakening known as the "movida" — the happening.

"I don't think what happened was a cultural renaissance, or anything like that," said rock singer Anton Reixa. "What happened is that people all of a sudden returned to the way they had always been. Madrid of the 'movida' of the early '80s was like the Madrid of Arniches, Madrid of the zarzuelas," but with spiked hair and pop music." (Carlos Arniches was an early 20th-century composer who wrote for music halls; zarzuelas are operettas based on popular themes.)

Early Spanish rock was little more than an imitation of British and American music, but musicians gradually began to experiment, fusing rock with traditional styles.

This experimentation led to the birth of flamenco-rock. Such Groups as Triana (a neighborhood in Seville), were a precursor to El Ultimo (the last in line). "Triana" excited listeners in the late '70s with their mixture of rock and Gypsy-inspired Andalusian folklore.

The legalization of Spain's regional languages following the return to democracy opened the way for groups such as Os Resentidos (the Resentful), a band from Galicia that mixes raunchy, distorted sounds of electric guitar and synthesizers with bagpipe music typical of Celtic Galicia in northwestern Spain.

The group, which started in 1982, played one of its first gigs in a psychiatric hospital. It now has its own music videos and continues to occupy alternative music charts with a bagpipe-rap version of its hit "Galicia Sitio Distinto" ("Galicia, a Different Kind of Place").

Spain's rock movement has been especially active in the small northern provinces of the restive Basque country, home to some of the most radical rock and punk groups. Basque separatism and political activism have spawned bands such as the Basque-language Kortatu, with its highly politicized mixture of rock, reggae, punk and occasional Basque accordion riffs.

"There are many more bands now than at the beginning of the '80s," said Madrid disc jockey Chusma

Martin. "But now there is no sense of direction."

Martin says many radical groups, Basque and otherwise, still exist, but they are being overshadowed by a new generation of apolitical bands that opt for a variety of styles.

Aficionados of punk, new wave, heavy metal and rockabilly, each in the appropriate attire, roam the streets of Madrid and the plazas of small Castilian villages. American-style country music also has made an considerable impression on Spanish bands.

Living Like A Monk

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Singer Tina Turner, who turns 50 on Nov. 26, says she's a practicing Buddhist who lives "like a monk," doesn't like being a sex symbol and takes no drugs — not even aspirin.

"I live a very quiet life," Turner said in an interview in the Nov. 13 issue of US magazine. "There's no television, no music blaring. I live like a monk, almost. A monk with red lips, short dresses and big hair."

She went on: "I have at times given up the image of raunchy, rock sex, but I've tried to turn that energy into something positive. But I wish it could have been nicer in some way. Maybe I feel that way because I am an older woman who is grown up. Young girls, they like all of that crazy image stuff."

For the past three years, Turner, whose latest album is "Foreign Affair," has been romantically involved with a German record executive, Erwin Bach, 17 years her junior.

But the survivor of the Ike and Tina Turner marriage-music duo isn't interested in wedlock. "I just wanted to have a man on my arm," she said. "I've learned that a vow doesn't hold you."

ABC's Recount Of Final Nixon Days Flawed But Fascinating

By Jay Sharbutt
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — It's strange how things happen sometimes. In October 1974, two months after the Watergate scandal forced President Richard Nixon to resign from office, the Oakland A's won the World Series.

Now, if the A's don't win it again Saturday and have to play a fifth game Sunday night, ABC will have to postpone until Nov. 5 its scheduled Sunday TV movie — one that dramatizes Nixon's last weeks in office.

Regardless of what happens and whenever ABC's three-hour "The Final Days" airs, you'll find it a flawed but fascinating program with an Emmy-caliber performance by Lane Smith as a tormented, anguished Nixon.

It is based on the 1976 book by Carl Bernstein and Robert Woodward, who chronicled their Watergate exposures in "All the President's Men." The movie of that book starred Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman as the probing reporters.

In "Days" — Nixon's lawyers complained to ABC last March about what they said were inaccuracies in the book — no star reporters dash about from source to source in dogged search of the story.

Here, the drama basically is told through the eyes of Nixon's Watergate-defense attorney, J. Fred Buzhardt, effectively played by Richard Kiley as a quiet, honest man doggedly seeking the truth despite what "Days" depicts as Nixon's obstructions and distortions.

Nixon resigned after once-secret tapes of White House conversations revealed he knew of a cover-up of political sabotage by his re-election team against his Democratic opponents in the 1972 presidential campaign.

The tortured behind-the-scenes events leading up to that after the famous 1972 break-in at Democratic National Committee offices at the Watergate Hotel are retold in "Days," but in perhaps too much detail.

Bit by bit, it all returns — the famed 18-minute gap discovered by Buzhardt in a key tape; the spectre of John Dean; the "Saturday Night Massacre" after Attorney General Elliot Richardson resigned rather than obey Nixon's order to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox; the "smoking pistol" tape that sealed Nixon's fate.

All this at times makes you wish scriptwriter Hugh Whitmore had cut to the chase more briskly, instead of painstakingly adding layer upon layer upon layer in this Dostoyevskian video visit to the big house on Pennsylvania Avenue.

The script appears augmented by excerpts from various memoirs — those of Nixon's daughter, Julie; his secretary of state, Henry Kissinger, and Nixon himself, with the actors playing them speaking their thoughts in narration.

While this fleshes out the basics of the book on which the show is based, it tends to distract slightly from the main event — how disclosure of the White House tape recording system doomed Nixon's presidency.

Another flaw: Its version of Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander Haig Jr. (David Ogden Stiers), is simplistic, painting Haig as a loyal, unquestioning subordinate, no matter how dubious the presidential demand.

There is no hint of the book's claim that Haig, in conversations with Kissinger and his aides, "sometimes referred to the president as an inherently weak man who lacked guts."

To Whitmore's credit, the dialogue is remarkably free of the wooden, pompous tone that afflicts most dramatizations of Washington history; the words sound natural, even if their accuracy can and probably will be debated.

Blessed with intelligent, restrained direction by Richard Pearce, the film recreates the book's account of Nixon, during his last White House night, insisting that Kissinger kneel down and pray with him, then collapsing on the floor, weeping.

But it minimizes the book's report of Nixon sometimes drinking heavily, showing him drinking but never intoxicated. And it doesn't use the book's claim that Nixon once reportedly was seen talking to portraits on the White House walls, which he has strongly denied through his friends and lawyers.

"The Final Days" is unusually well-acted, save for an odd, almost comical Kissinger played with deep Teutonic somberness by Theodore Bikel.

The Nixon of the relatively little-known Lane Smith is a masterpiece, even though he initially seems a little too soft-spoken and not forceful enough.

But gradually, expertly recreating Nixon's awkward, hunch-backed walk and gestures, Smith becomes eminently convincing as the driven, agonized man who became the only American president to ever resign from office.

Zsa Zsa To Serve While Appealing

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Zsa Zsa Gabor, still righteously defending her own innocence, plans to appeal her cop-slapping conviction but will serve her three-day jail sentence and perform 120 hours of community service anyway, just to prove a point, her husband said Thursday.

"We are going to appeal," Prince Frederick von Anhalt, Gabor's eighth husband, said in an interview two days after the actress was sentenced at Beverly Hills Municipal Court. "But ... she's also going to serve three days in jail just to show the public that she doesn't fool around with anything."

"She really would love to go to jail, you know, to see what's going on — if people get treated well in jail," von Anhalt said. "She wants to know how people live in jail, how the food is and everything. She wants to have that experience."

Gabor, who has not publicly discussed her plans, left early Thursday for New York to appear on the Phil Donahue Show, von Anhalt said. But before departing, the nearly 70-year-old actress talked about the jail sentence with her husband and made it clear she will go behind bars no matter what — and will expect no special treatment once that steel door clangs shut, von Anhalt added.

"She wants the (jail) uniforms, she wants everything," he said. "She doesn't want special food. She wants the food they get in prison. If she gets specially treated, she doesn't get (a realistic) experience."

As part of her sentence for slapping Beverly Hills motorcycle officer Paul Kramer on June 14, Gabor was ordered to pay $12,937 in fines and restitution, to perform community service at a Los Angeles-area center for homeless women and to undergo psychiatric evaluation. Her three-day jail term can be served at the city or county jail of her choice before the end of the year, Municipal Court Judge Charles G. Rubin ordered.

Gabor, who regularly does charity work, is eager to perform the community service duties, von Anhalt said.

North-South were employing a no-trump range of 13-15. North's two-diamond response was a transfer to hearts. When South obliged, West, who had been content to defend no trump because of his long suit, intervened with a diamond overall, but nothing could deter North from going on to game in hearts.

West led his king of diamonds, and it needed no more than a cursory inspection of dummy to realize that, unless his partner had at least two tricks, there was no way to deand return a club for West to ruff. The logical play is for declarer to rise with dummy's ace of clubs and attempt to draw trumps, using a diamond ruff as the entry to the table. But when West shows out on the second trump, the contract is doomed. Sadly, declarer later learns that a club finesse would have landed the game—a play he would have to have made had he known beforehand that he had a sure trump loser.

feat the contract. At trick two, therefore, West shifted to the two of clubs!

Consider the possibilities from declarer's vantage point. Since he does not yet know of the bad heart break, he foresees only three losers—one spade, one diamond and one club. It seems that the greatest threat to the contract is West has a singleton club. If that is so, taking the club finesse would needlessly cost the contract should East win
