Rebels Storm Salvadoran Inn Americans, OAS Chief Inside

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Armed rebels today stormed a luxury hotel in the northern part of the capital, and U.S. authorities said the guerrillas had taken over part of the building where American guests were staying.

The Sheraton Hotel is in Escalon, the capital's wealthiest neighborhood, where rebels attacked early today in a renewal of an urban offensive that had appeared to be dying out.

The secretary-general of the Organization of American States, Joao Baena Soares, had been in the hotel at the time, a Bush administration official in Washington said on condition of anonymity. He was reported safe.

The official said there were a number of American citizens in the hotel. "We are trying to determine the location of the Americans in the hotel," the official said.

"The objective is to take Escalon," said a guerrilla who gave his name as "Marlon." He was in charge of an insurgent position 80 yards from the four-star Sheraton Hotel.

Communications with the hotel were cut.

Six helicopters flew over the luxurious homes and tennis club around the hotel and hundreds of soldiers advanced slowly from corner to corner, being frequently pinned down by guerrilla fire.

The army moved several tanks into the neighborhood.

"We're taking Escalon because here the armed forces are not going to bombard people's homes. This is where the oligarchy lives," Marlon said.

He said his Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front unit had been in Mejicanos, a working class northern suburb that, like other poor neighborhoods where the guerrillas dug in during their massive offensive last week.

Conciliatory Carter Raises New Charges

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Mayor Ed Carter made a plea to end the controversy over last week's firing of City Manager Greg Knowles. But in doing so, he leveled further charges against the former manager, including allegations of tampering with city documents.

The mayor also said investigations show other, more serious problems in city departments under Knowles' supervision. Carter would not elaborate on the specific problems, but he said some employees' lives could have been endangered by decisions made by Knowles.

"There are people who are afraid for their lives because of things that are being investigated," Carter said.

"I'm convinced we have some serious problems in some of the departments," Carter said in a press conference Monday.

Carter said he agreed with reasons for the firing outlined by council member Lorraine Shinn during her press conference Wednesday. Ms. Shinn charged Knowles with improprieties in his handling of the

Police Probe Ends Without Specific Suggestions For Corrective Action

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

After a three-month probe into charges of racism in the police department, two investigators recommended returning a large segment of the original concerns to the department and the city for corrective action.

In a 139-page report of their findings, Ron Kimble and Janice Harris avoided making specific recommendations and concluded that further study of the police department would likely continue.

After nearly three months of investigation and an estimated 800 man-hours, Kimble and Ms. Harris submitted a report that concluded the police department had addressed or would ultimately decide 10 of the original 15 concerns presented by a group of black officers in early August.

On the remaining charges and six additional concerns raised during the investigation, the report indicated the need for additional study and follow-up action by the police department and the city.

Kimble, who was named interim city manager last week after Greg Knowles was fired by the City Council, was serving as assistant manager when he and Ms. Harris began the internal probe on Aug. 30. Ms. Harris is a detective with the police department.

"There are concerns we need to address," Kimble said after Monday's council meeting, "but they are not of the magnitude that we cannot address them."

In its second marathon session this month, the City Council heard the findings of the internal investigation in a three-hour session behind closed doors.

The report from the investigation "... includes an analysis of all issues which had come to our attention, and findings associated with our in-

County Will Enforce Erosion-Control Rules

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — The Pitt County Board of Commissioners voted Monday to keep enforcing state erosion-control laws but warned violators that the county will no longer be a soft touch.

The alternative would have been to let the state enforce the law, a position favored by three of the nine commissioners. State officials had threatened to put Pitt's enforcement program on probation unless the county gets tough with violators.

State inspectors visited four projects in September and said the county had allowed violators to avoid paying required penalties.

But County Engineer Phil Dickerson told the board he disagrees with the state inspectors' findings.

Dickerson admitted that his office should have pursued penalties in one of the four cases cited by state inspectors, but said, "In general we feel like we've acted appropriately and used good judgment in three out of four projects."

The county has tried to negotiate with violators to bring them into compliance with the law, Dickerson said. "We have probably been slow to assess penalties in some cases because we tried to work things out with people," he said.

The Sedimentation and Pollution Control Act requires land developers to take necessary steps to prevent erosion and runoff from land under development. It has been enforced in Pitt County since 1974 through the county Sedimentation and Erosion Control Commission.

Dickerson recommended Monday that the board disband the county panel and let state officials enforce the law in Pitt County.

Most Will Have Holiday Thursday

By Jerry Raynor
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

With the exception of duty personnel at Pitt County Memorial hospital and at fire, rescue and police departments in Greenville and Pitt County, many people who normally work on Thursdays will be off for Thanksgiving Day.

Personnel in the majority of city and county offices will also have Friday as a second day holiday, according to a spokesman, with the resumption of normal business hours set for Monday.

Several restaurants in Greenville will be serving special Thanksgiving buffets from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., spokesmen said. These include restaurants in the Hilton Inn, Holiday Inn and Ramada Inn motels, as well as Shoney's Restaurant and Acheson's Family Buffet.

Students and faculty at East Carolina University and Pitt Community College have a full-week holiday period. All academic programs at both institutions — classes and teachers — began observing the Thanksgiving holiday on Monday, with a return scheduled Nov. 27. Administrative offices on the two campuses will be closed for a two-day period, Thursday and Friday.

Students in the Pitt County schools will have a three-day holiday — Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Wednesday will be a work day for teachers, with all teachers and administrative offices to have Thursday and Friday off, according to a spokesman.

Both city and county offices, including Greenville Utilities, will take a two-day holiday period on Thursday and Friday.

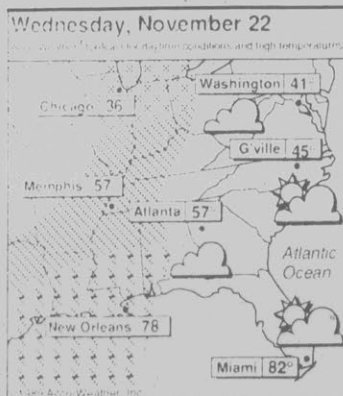

A survey of local businesses indicated that in general, most stores will close for Thanksgiving Day.

A spokesman at Carolina East Mall said all stores, including restaurants, will be closed for Thanksgiving. At The Plaza mall, all stores with the exception of Rose's will be closed for the holiday.

Two of the larger grocery stores to be open Thanksgiving Day are Kroger's and Farm Fresh. Both will remain open until 7 p.m.

Grocery store spokesmen said that, traditionally, sales of food and food-related items are very high the first three days of Thanksgiving week, with slackened sales right after Thanksgiving due to people using leftovers.

New Interchange Site Proposed

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FARMVILLE — The Pitt County Board of Commissioners joined Farmville town officials Monday in asking the state Board of Transportation to move a proposed interchange on the U.S. 264 Farmville bypass.

The commissioners unanimously agreed with Town Manager Richard Hicks that a proposed interchange at State Road 1311 in Greene County should be moved eighth-tenths of a mile east to where old U.S. 264 intersects the bypass. The new interchange would still be in Greene County, but would provide better access to the highway for Farmville residents and businesses, Hicks said.

Randy Doub of Greenville, a Board of Transportation member, told the board he would endorse the change if property owners near the new interchange would be willing to donate land for a right of way.

In other business, commissioners:

- Appropriated $8,000 to increase the number of incoming phone lines at the county Department of Social Services offices. The increase will make it easier for people who want to get in touch with the office, County Manager Kramer Jackson said.

- Received approval from the state Local Government Commission to issue bonds for public school construction and for Pitt Community College. The bond issue must first be approved by voters in a Dec. 12 referendum.

Czechs' Calls For Change Backed By Gorbachev

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Opposition leaders met today with Premier Ladislav Adamec, and the state news agency said prosecutors have begun investigating alleged police brutality at an anti-government rally.

In Moscow, Mikhail S. Gorbachev today backed the rapid changes encompassing Eastern Europe, including the demands for reforms in Czechoslovakia. "I think the changes under way now are consistent with the overall context of the changing world," he said.

A Communist-allied Czechoslovak newspaper, Lidova Demokrace, published an opposition call for the ouster of top Communists, a demand of the estimated 200,000 people who marched through Prague on Monday with chants of "Freedom!"

The country's major state media also broke with past practice by providing extensive coverage of the march in the capital — Communist Czechoslovakia's largest anti-government demonstration ever.

The coverage indicated the party leadership was increasingly shifting to the East German approach of tolerating massive public protests, but there were no signs the ruling Communists were willing to cede any power.

The CTK state news agency announced that the general prosecutor of the Czech republic had opened an investigation into the actions of security forces Friday. Scores of demonstrators were beaten by riot police to break up an anti-government rally.

The premier met with a 10-member delegation that included members of the newly formed Civic Forum opposition movement as well as representatives of the Communist Party youth movement, CTK reported.

A government spokesman, Marcel Jansen, denied earlier reports that the group included Vaclav Havel, a playwright and Czechoslovakia's best-known dissident. There were no immediate details on the talks.

Civic Forum, formed Sunday, is comprised of a dozen opposition groups. It has demanded the resig-

New Superintendent To Have Doctorate

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Pitt County Board of Education members said Monday they want Pitt County's new school superintendent to possess a doctorate degree and at least three years of experience as a school superintendent.

After a casual debate, the board also decided to let its chairman receive applications for the post and pass them on to board members for review.

The office of superintendent will become vacant as a result of the board's decision two months ago not to rehire incumbent Edwin L. West Jr. after his contract expires June 30.

At Monday's meeting, West helped board members choose the professional and personal qualities they want the new superintendent to have from a list of qualities he presented to them.

The three top professional skills chosen by board members are, in order of preference:

- Communications
- Conflict resolution
- A vision of the future

The three most important personal skills are:

- The ability to relate to a diverse ethnic/cultural population
- Good interpersonal relations
- Integrity

The board decided to allow the chairman to hire a secretary to receive applications and forward them to board members, but rejected the idea of hiring an outside consultant or using a committee to screen them, choosing instead to use the full board. "I get the feeling that nobody on this full board is going to trust anyone," board member Frank Grooms said.

Monday's meeting was a good beginning, Williams said. By deciding what they want to see in a superintendent, board members cleared the way for the school system to start advertising the vacancy, he said.

"What we're trying to do now is identify some things we can utilize for our brochures and for our advertisements," Williams said.

County residents will have a chance to tell the board what kind of superintendent they want after the personnel committee develops a format for public input at its Dec. 8 meeting, Williams said.

The committee is also expected to develop application and screening materials for consideration by the full board at a workshop meeting Dec. 18.

Council Reviews Rainwater Study

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

With a little help from the state and federal government, Greenville will soon have a better handle on the problems of storm water runoff.

The City Council reviewed during a workshop Monday a $150,000 grant award from the Albemarle Pamlico Estuarine Study to construct a working model for study of rainwater runoff in the city.

Along with the money from APES, the city would have to provide approximately $85,000 in additional money and services to design and construct a run-off collection pond behind the Moyewood Center, interim City Manager Ron Kimble told the council.

The project would be the first of its kind, according to Kimble, and would study the sediment and pollution carried by storm water.

The council approved a resolution to re-establish the joint planning committee for Greenville and Winterville. The committee, which originally recommended extending Greenville's extraterritorial jurisdiction toward Winterville, would re-evaluate the proposal and possibly look at other joint planning issues under direction of the Pitt County Commissioners.

The council also looked to further planning for the expansion of the city and minority participation in contracts for city projects.

In a "stop-gap measure," the council reviewed a proposal from City Attorney Mac McCarley to establish percentage goals for minority participation in the contracts.

A U.S. Supreme Court decision earlier this year struck down programs which require minority participation in municipal contracts at a set percentage of the contract value. The recommended participation goal of 10 percent, which McCarley said the state and federal government had also set, would take effect if the council agrees at its next meeting in December. The city would then look toward setting verifiable goals for minority participation in the coming year.

West German Envoy Gives Bush Piece Of Berlin Wall

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the West German foreign minister, today brought President Bush a piece of the Berlin Wall as well as the thanks of the German people for helping to bring the barrier down.

"I will treasure this," Bush told Genscher as they posed for photographers at the outset of an Oval Office meeting.

Genscher replied: "It is an expression of the strength of freedom and democracy all over Germany that our Germans ... were in a position, by peaceful means" to open the wall.

He said "the German Democratic Republic (East Germany's formal name) is on the way really to become a democratic republic," although he added that this depends on free elections in the communist state in the year ahead.

Genscher expressed "our great gratitude for the support, the help and the firmness of the American nations in the past decades."

"It's the result of a very clear policy of the West advocating freedom and democracy all over the Europe," he said as Bush admired the nearly foot-long gray brick that the minister had given him.

"We will do nothing to undermine this process or even to weaken this process" of reform throughout Eastern Europe, said Genscher. "We do not look for advantage

... when they have to face difficulty."

The meeting with the West German minister came as Bush prepares for next week's shipboard summit with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev off Malta.

The president will meet with another ally, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, at Camp David, Md., on Friday.

Bush won loud applause from audiences in Rhode Island on Monday when he promised to "keep my eyes wide open" and approach the talks with caution.

"I sometimes get needed a little about being cautious and prudent, but somehow I think that's what a president of the United States ought to do when you go to meet ... a Soviet leader," Bush said.

Bush spent Monday in Chicago and Providence to boost the fortunes of two pro-choice Republican congresswomen, Reps. Lynn Martin and Claudine Schneider, who have their eyes on Senate races next year.

But immediately after singing Rep. Schneider's praises in Providence, he got aboard Air Force One and for a second time vetoed a District of Columbia appropriations bill because of abortion funding provisions he found "unacceptable."

Rep. Schneider, who has not yet declared her candidacy for the seat now occupied by Democratic Sen. Claiborne Pell, was a guest on the presidential aircraft and she told reporters, "I'm disappointed."

Lawyers Challenged

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The federal government has gone to court in an unprecedented attempt to force two criminal-law firms to disclose the names of clients who paid them in cash.

The action filed in federal court Friday was the first attempt to enforce Internal Revenue Service demands for the information from lawyers nationwide.

A 1984 federal law aimed at money laundering requires reporting of cash transactions of $10,000 or more.

The Justice Department announced the legal action Monday. Both law firms involved in the case — Fischetti Pomerantz & Russo and Goldberger & Dubin — have represented alleged mob figures and drug suspects.

They have refused to turn over the information, saying that it would violate the rights of their clients and the attorney-client privilege.

Calls to the two firms were not returned today.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kay K. Gardiner said the government was merely enforcing the law.

"The law is that information regarding fees and the identity of clients is not privileged," she said.

U.S. District Judge Milton Pollack ordered the firms to appear in court Dec. 19.

Burley Tobacco Markets Open

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHEVILLE — Prices were generally higher when tobacco sales opened in the western North Carolina burley tobacco market.

Prices in Asheville on opening day Monday were generally 3 to 4 cents higher than last year's prices, and the final average was 7 cents above last year.

The top price was $1.67 a pound for bright red leaf, and the final average for the day was $1.65 a pound. Final figures for Monday were 583,380 pounds sold for a total of $962,017.88.

"We had hoped for more," said Bob Davis of the Mountain Research

Station at Waynesville, a North Carolina State University Extension Service tobacco specialist. "But you don't get what you want everytime. However, the tobacco is up a few cents from last year."

Generally, various grades were selling for well above the support price. One pile of mixed tobacco with a price support of $1.21 a pound was bid in at $1.62, or 41 cents above the support price.

Last year's average price in Asheville was $1.59 a pound.

John Cyrus, tobacco specialist of the N.C. Department of Agriculture, said farmers could be doing a much better job in tobacco production.

Congress Moving To A Halt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders hope their long-sought deal on a $14.8 billion budget-cutting package will spur a separate effort to eliminate some Medicare benefits and put an unusually early end to this year's session.

House and Senate leaders of both parties shook hands on their deficit-reduction plan for this year early today, and predicted quick approval by the full chambers and the signature of President Bush. The goal was to adjourn for 1989 by day's end.

"It will pass overwhelmingly, I think, in both bodies because it's a pretty good" savings measure, Rep. Bill Frenzel of Minnesota, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, told reporters.

"It is a very strong, effective deficit-reduction package," Senate Ma-iority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, told his colleagues.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said White House Budget Director Richard Darman and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady had told him that "the White House will support this package."

The agreement, forged after weeks of closed-door talks, puts to rest a budget year that has seen almost continual clashes between Bush and congressional Democrats. Despite a springtime budget agreement that both sides thought would smooth their work, ongoing battles — largely involving the president's unsuccessful quest to shrink capital gains tax rates — were the dominant theme.

Nonetheless, optimism reigned in the Capitol that this year's session would end today. By Monday evening, a telephone tape recording that normally provides scheduling information for Republicans was playing a song called "One More Day" from the musical "Les Miserables."

The budget-cutting compromise includes about $5.7 billion in new taxes, most of them on corporations.

Negotiators agreed to add to the bill a provision dramatically revising the government's system of reimbursing doctors for services to Medicare patients.

Pentagon Reported Eyeing Major Cuts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is studying suggestions for "revolutionary changes" in America's military — including cutting 100,000 Army soldiers, getting rid of 100 Navy ships and closing at least a dozen Air Force bases, Pentagon sources say.

Amid the long-range budget planning, a senior Pentagon official said Monday that Cheney also is considering a budget plan for the 1991 fiscal year that could cut $20 billion from the projected $317 billion spending level.

"It could be that bad," the official said. "It could be that we have to cut that much."

Cheney planned to hold a second day of meetings today with Pentagon chiefs to pore over proposed wide-ranging cutbacks for 1992 to 1994, which some Pentagon insiders say could be the most sweeping since the end of the Vietnam war.

While much of the activity is driven by hints of change in the Soviet threat, the Pentagon also is trying to get ahead of Congress in planning for the nearly inevitable budget squeeze, officials say.

"Mr. Cheney has no intention of going up to Capitol Hill and having his budget thrown back in his face," Defense Department spokesman Pete Williams said Monday. "This is going to be a very painful process for everyone."

Some congressional sources, however, said they are wary about the Pentagon projections of major force cuts, suggesting the numbers may be overstated to grab the limelight from lawmakers who have been warning the Pentagon to tighten its belt.

The Pentagon expects to submit its 1991 spending projection to the Office of Management and Budget by Dec. 8, the official said.

Last week, Cheney ordered the military chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force to produce "worst-case" budget cuts designed to slash projected spending, including earlier-anticipated increases, by $180 billion over the three-year period from fiscal 1992 through 1994.

"These are revolutionary changes," said one knowledgeable military source. "Mr. Cheney is really trying to shake the service chiefs out. He wants their backs pressed to the wall, telling him exactly what it is they can give up. He wants their grimmest scenarios."

Hepatitis Risk More Than AIDS

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Hepatitis B, a blood-borne disease that can cause fatal liver cancer, is a much greater worldwide health threat than AIDS, but U.S. doctors are doing little to promote use of a vaccine against the illness, an infectious disease expert says.

There are 20 to 30 times more carriers of the hepatitis B virus than there are people infected with the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, that causes AIDS, Dr. Sanford F. Kuvin, vice chairman of the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases, said Monday.

"Hepatitis B is the most important blood-borne disease in the world today, and that includes AIDS," Kuvin said in an interview at the fourth National Forum on AIDS and Hepatitis. "There are almost 300 million carriers of the hepatitis B virus in the world today and there are about 10 to 15 million carriers of the HIV virus."

Among carriers of the hepatitis B virus, 25 percent, or about 60 million, will die from primary liver cancer, he said. An additional 15 percent, or about 45 million, will die of cirrhosis, another liver disease.

"Hepatitis B is as great a threat to the health of Americans as AIDS," Kuvin said. "There are about 300,000 new infections of hepatitis B annually in the United States."

About 30,000 of those newly infected will become carriers who can spread the disease, and about one-fourth of this number eventually will die of cirrhosis or liver cancer, he said.

The exact number of Americans who die annually from primary liver cancer caused by hepatitis B is not known because records on liver cancer deaths do not reflect if the cancer originated in the liver or moved there from another site.

Mitsotakis heads the New Democracy party, which in the Nov. 5 elections came just short of winning the parliamentary majority needed to form a government alone.

He has since failed to find a coalition partner in either Andreas Papandreu, the former Socialist premier, or Communist leader Harilaos Florakis.

In the balloting, New Democracy took 148 seats in the 300-member Parliament. Papandreu's Panhellenic Socialist Movement won 128 and the Communist coalition garnered 21.

On June 18, elections also failed to produce a winner. A conservative-communist government led the country until the November elections.

The talks between the party leaders had been deadlocked until today over a demand by former socialist Premier Andreas Papandreu that the electoral system be changed before his Panhellenic Socialist Movement supported any government.

Greece Will Have Interim Government

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATHENS, Greece — Political leaders agreed today on a short-term government of the country's widely divided major parties, ending a stalemate produced by inconclusive elections this month.

The three parties agreed to support a government whose life-term will last until mid-April, conservative leader Constantine Mitsotakis told a news conference.

The decision to hold general elections in April follows four rounds of talks between President Christos Sartzetakis and conservative, socialist and Communist leaders.

Mitsotakis said the interim administration will be headed by a respected former Bank of Greece governor, Xenophon Zolotas, who is not a member of Parliament.

The government will include members of all parties and also non-political personalities, Mitsotakis said. He added that the details of the Cabinet's make-up still have to be decided.

He said the administration will tackle pressing economic problems and negotiations with the United

Sexual Assault

A Problem That Can Be Battled

Rape is an ugly, repulsive crime. It is an invasion of a woman's privacy in the most hurtful, damaging way.

It is also a crime that becomes more prevalent as a city becomes more diverse. Like drugs and poverty, increased sexual assault is one of the side effects of growth. Greenville is learning about that side effect.

Since August, there have been at least two rape scares in the city. The first involved a young woman who was attacked in a parking lot near East Carolina University. Shortly after, a man broke in several apartments nearby, looking for a victim. Police say the same man committed those crimes.

The second occurred last week when a man broke into a woman's apartment, kidnaped her and raped her in the woods nearby.

That's the kind of crime a quiet city isn't used to. Things like that usually happen somewhere else. The incident shocked residents and terrified the woman's neighbors.

Police feel the woman's attacker may strike again and warned women to be careful. They have asked people to call the police if they hear anything outside their residences or spot someone suspect. Keep doors and windows locked and don't go out alone, women have been told. Use the buddy system, even to take out the trash.

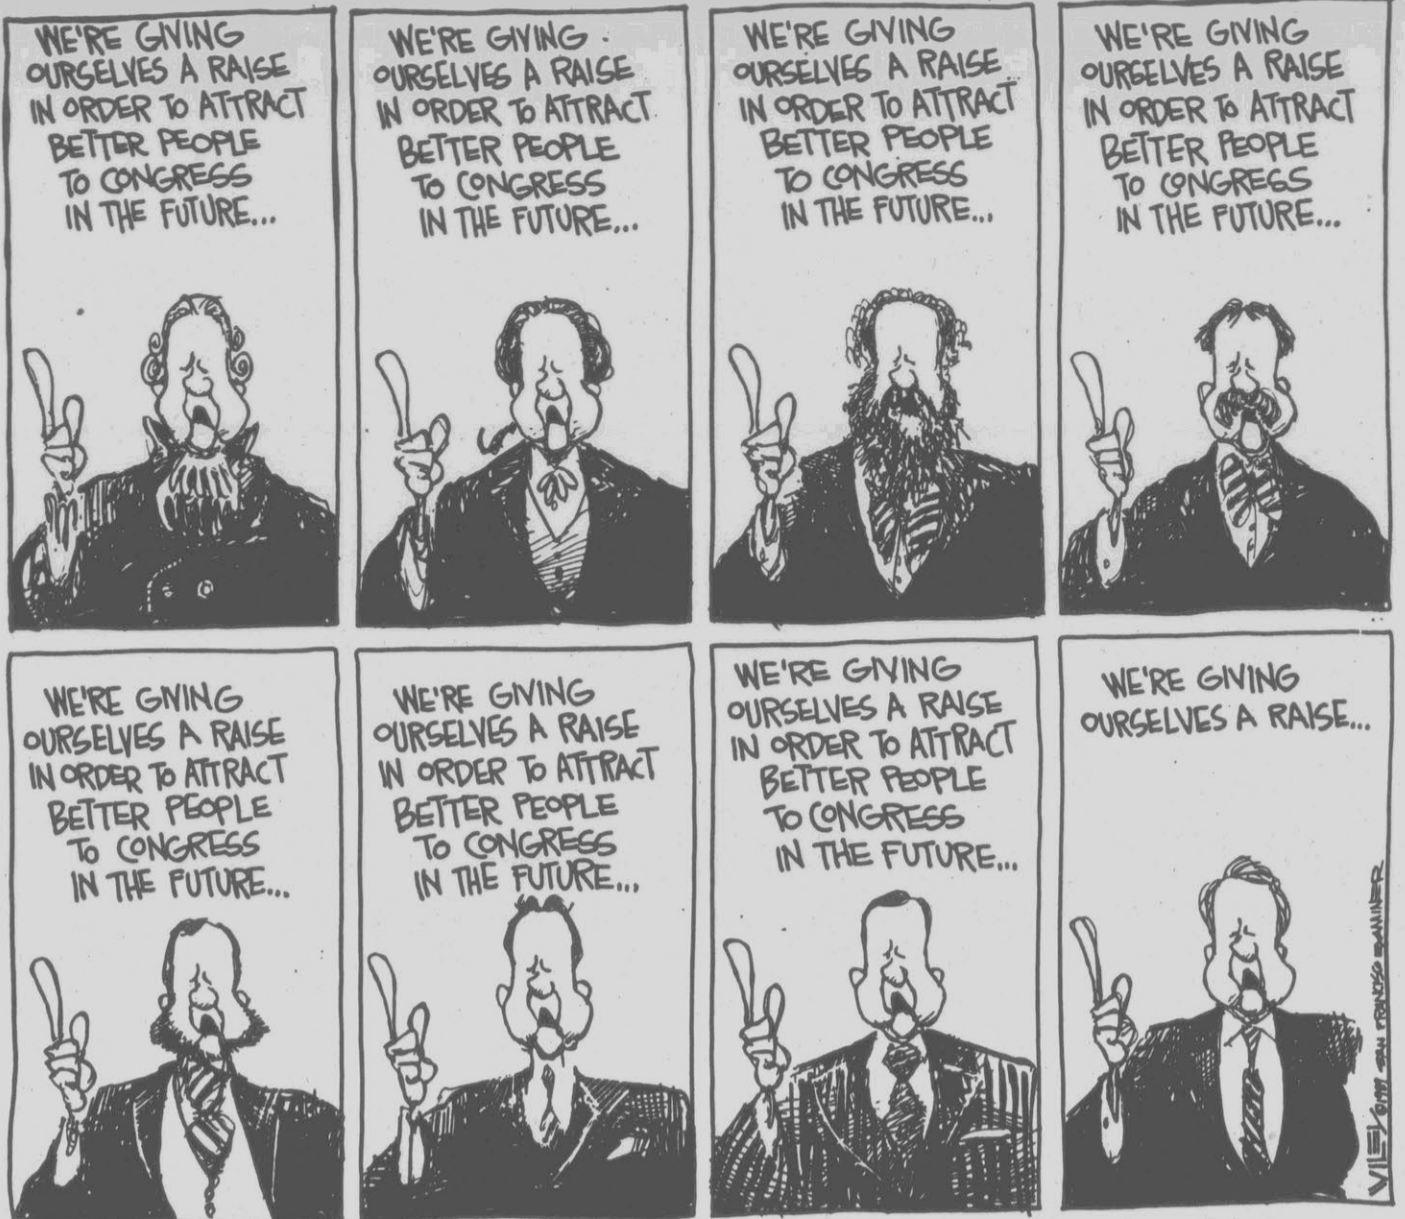

Those are strong statements and good advice. No woman asks to be raped. Common sense and caution, however, can make the difference between tragedy and safety. So can nosy neighbors and concerned friends. So can good public street lighting and a strong police presence.

When the year-end crime statistics are tallied in another six weeks, the number of cases of reported rape in Greenville in 1989 will be higher than last year's. Already, the city has had 27 rapes reported in 1989. Only 15 were reported in 1988. The community's awareness of the danger has heightened also.

From this awareness can come prevention. If the citizens demand aggressive law enforcement, they will get it. If neighbors look out for each other, a rapist won't find easy prey.

Growth always has a down side. More rapes is a symptom Greenville is experiencing. That fact does not have to be tolerated as inevitable. It is a problem that can and should be battled.

'Growth always has a down side. More rapes is a symptom Greenville is experiencing. That fact does not have to be tolerated as inevitable.'

Costing Taxpayers Money

To the editor:
 The mayor and the members of the city council who voted to fire the city manager do not seem to have grasped the basic meaning of the Nov. 7th election.

Many people who voted for Ed Carter in his first race supported him because they believed he would be a better mayor than his opponent. He had established a fairly good record in his service to the city in previous positions.

However, as mayor he became arrogant in his dealings with citizen groups coming before the council and intrusive into the affairs of various city departments far beyond the purview of the mayor. By what stretch of the imagination does the mayor have the right to refer to citizens asking the council to consider a tree ordinance as using Gestapo tactics?

As a consequence, many of us who supported him the first time voted against him this time. Nancy Jenkins was clearly the better candidate.

The firing of City Manager Knowles less than a week after the election is a slap in the face of the voters. Mayor, we were telling you in the election that we did not want you making decisions affecting the future of this city! If Mr. Knowles was not performing his job, the decision to fire him should have been postponed until the new council was in office.

The council also owes the city an explanation for their action. Only a few months ago you gave him a positive evaluation and voted him a substantial raise. If his performance changed so drastically in that short a period of time then you owed it to him as an employee and to the taxpayers to work with him to correct the problems. Your arbitrary decision-making is what forced us to vote you out and it is costing us a great deal of money. It is time you left.

Send The Right People

To the editor:
 I recently read in an AARP Bulletin that Rhode Island and Massachusetts have taken steps to hold down doctors bills faced by all Medicare beneficiaries.

Legislatures in several other states are considering bills similar to those passed in the two New England states. States are moving to restrain medical cost because they don't want to leave it up to Washington. Our federal representatives are spinning their wheels and doing nothing but bickering.

All of us senior citizens should write our state representatives asking them to pass a bill stating that all doctors in North Carolina would have to accept medicare assignment.

If our present representatives will not pass this bill, then we should elect and send representatives to Raleigh that will.

Extra Care Can Prevent Tragedy

Most of us will be giving thanks on Thanksgiving day, and in our community most of us should.

For many, it will be a day of plenty in comfortable homes. We only have to look to eastern Europe, where great changes are taking place, to understand our good fortune.

That doesn't apply everyone. Some will go hungry on Thanksgiving day. For others there might be a bountiful dinner on the holiday, but the days ahead will be a fight with poverty.

And even among those who are fortunate to have enough, there will be some for whom the holiday will bring tragedy.

Thanksgiving is a time for travel. Hundreds of thousands crowd the highways to return to roots or perhaps to visit friends.

With so much travel, it is certain there will be accidents — and accidents mean death and injury and sadness.

The North Carolina Highway Patrol says the holiday travel period begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday and continues until midnight Sunday. Their message to the traveling public is a simple one: drive extra safely during this time.

Last year 17 people died on North Carolina's highways during the Thanksgiving holiday. It would be a miracle if no one died this year.

The fact is that some will die, many will be injured and even more will have their holiday plans disrupted because of traffic accidents.

Those who drive carefully will reduce their chances of becoming part of the statistics. That means driving sober, observing speed limits and doing more than your part to avoid drivers who don't observe the rules of the road.

Take the trip that is traditional for Thanksgiving and enjoy yourself, but don't become a highway statistic. Drive safely and make it truly a happy holiday.

The Peace Of The Satiated Consumer

WASHINGTON — As late as 1911, Belgium was the only country on the continent operating on Greenwich time. Belgium was nine minutes behind Paris which, by the way, was five minutes ahead of French railway time, which was 16 minutes behind Dutch time. In 1912, in a step toward a more "European" sensibility, the continent rationalized itself: All European clocks were synchronized in appropriate time zones, with Greenwich. In 1914, however, the inexorable march toward European "unity" suffered something of a setback.

If at first you don't succeed...

Today European nations are back at the business of inventing "Europe." In this heady atmosphere of hands-across-the-wall it seems querulous to question the giddy assumption that political and cultural blessings automatically accrue from any coming together of European states. But in all the cheerful, facile talk about a "common European house," scant attention is being given to how little historical ground there is on which to build this house.

The rush of events is thrilling (a droll U.S. diplomat says he is nostalgic for last week), but by focusing on the things that politicians and bureaucrats are comfortable dealing with — arms control, currency arrangements,

George Will

"Europe '92" and all that — we miss what is most thrilling about Europe's emerging new sense of itself. It is the resilience of national particularities — the rooted institutions of civil society — that have uprooted tyrannical regimes.

Europe has never been "Europe" in the sense of an entity united politically or even culturally. Perhaps the continent was closest to some sort of commonality, at least in fundamental outlook, when it was called not Europe but Christendom. However, what did such "unity" mean in centuries when the average European did not travel, or receive communication from, more than a few miles from his village? When Christendom was shattered, Luther was the hammer and theology was the chisel, but nascent nationalisms made the shattering swift and lasting.

Luigi Barzini (now, there was a European) argued that the narrow postwar goal of European unity had been achieved. Its primary aim was sufficient political and economic integration to prevent a fourth (after 1870, 1914 and 1939) war between France and Germany. The "European idea" was clankingly expressed after World War II in prosaic institutions: Before the "Common Market" came the "Coal and Steel Community," as though a "community" could be organized around industrial commodities.

Forty years later, that name has an anachronistic ring, evoking a vanished world when steel was king and the power of silicon was unknown. But the idea of the European "community" as a "market" suitably expressed an idea — liberal materialism. That was and still is the belief that economic forces fuel history and that the secret of the good society is the submersion of all mankind's turbulent energies into the enjoyment of private consumption and welfare-state services.

It was a plan for peace through enervation. It was not a noble vision but, after two world wars, nobility seemed less urgent than tranquility.

War has been the homogenizer of Europe. As John Lukacs says, in 1939 there were more European nations than there were letters in the alphabet, and there were few Europeans. National differences were profound. (They still are. Might Europe be happier today if there were more rather than fewer nations — if, say Yugoslavia were disassembled?) Certainly the greatest happiness for the greatest number would be served if a score or so sovereign republics were spun off the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Because of genocide, and the mass movements of peoples during and immediately after the last war, and the alteration of borders because of the war, most European nations are more homogenous than they were 50 years ago, when the war that had erupted from European animosities had King George VI practicing pistol shooting in the garden at Buckingham Palace.

There are still quite enough animosities to keep the European "house" raucous. Fareed Zakaria of Harvard's Center for Science and International Affairs notes that on the streets of Budapest vendors sell maps of "Greater Hungary," which includes a large slice of what Romania is today pleased to call Romania. A Hungarian diplomat, asked why his nation might want to remain in the Warsaw Pact, instantly answered: For protection from Romania.

The Warsaw Pact is an interesting alliance that exists partly to protect members from one another. But then, NATO does too, or originally did. (See: France and Germany 1870, 1914, 1939.)

Perhaps peace-through-enervation, the peace of the satiated consumer, will prevail. If not, Europe's future conflicts will start with all watches synchronized. Call it progress.

School Teaches Fundamentals Of Running For Office

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. — A school by the beach is teaching the fundamentals of running for political office — a job that political parties have neglected, the school's director says.

"Look at the Democratic Party in this state. Can you say there is a cadre of new young people that we can run for political office? You could say the same thing about the Republican Party," said Walter D. De Vries, the executive director of the North Carolina Institute of Politics, Inc.

For 10 weekends this fall, a class of 20 promising political aspirants — ranging from "Jesse Helms" Republicans to Democrats with ties to the labor movement — gathered at a beachfront hotel for intense training.

They were taught how to conduct opinion polls, how to use computers in campaigns, how to set strategy, how to make commercials and how to handle television interviews.

The North Carolina institute is the only statewide school for politicians in the country, De Vries said. It is loosely modeled after a program started in New Orleans in the late 1960s that was designed to pump some new blood into that city's politics.

The institute is needed because the parties and businesses are no longer serving as political pipelines for new talent, De Vries said.

"I don't think the political parties have done the job," said De Vries, a pollster, author and seasoned political professional, in an interview with the News and Observer.

By 1994, the private, non-profit organization plans to train as many as 260 promising young people with the hope they will become city council members, judges, state legislators, members of Congress or governors. And the program is likely to be extended beyond 1994.

De Vries started a North Carolina Institute in 1973 at Duke University, but it folded after two years because of financial problems.

Of the 41 graduates of the 1970s incarnation, many remain active in government and politics, including a judge, city council member, lobbyists, congressional aides and a school board member.

They include former Helms aide George S. Dunlop; state AFL-CIO President Christopher L. Scott; Jeannette Council of Fayetteville, who is first vice chairman of the state Democratic Party; and former Raleigh City Council member Sandra P. Babb.

"Ninety-five percent of the people in the two classes ended up involved in state and local politics," De Vries said.

Institute graduate Lillian C. Woo received 48 percent of the vote in the 1976 Democratic primary against 30-year veteran Auditor Henry L. Bridges. That was the closest an institute graduate has come to statewide office.

"Essentially what happened was a lot of members of Institute of Politics helped out in my campaign," said Mrs. Woo, who lobbies for architects. "It was a real life experiment of what we learned in the program."

In 1987, De Vries re-created the institute, this time holding most of the sessions in a hotel a few blocks from his sound-side house in Wrightsville Beach. A few weekend sessions are held in Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Raleigh.

The institute enrolls two classes each year. The $3,000 cost per student, which includes transportation, is underwritten by 30 foundations, corporations or associations such as the Smith Richardson Foundation and First Union National Bank.

A board of directors chooses the institute fellows based on their political potential, their ideas and their "ethical gyroscope." Typically, the 20 fellows come from a pool of 65 to 85 applicants.

The 29-member board, chaired by William C. Friday, president emeritus of the University of North Carolina system, is an ideological smorgasbord. It includes, for example, state Rep. Daniel T. Blue Jr., D-Wake, who headed Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign in the state last year, and Helms' chief strategist, Raleigh lawyer Thomas F. Ellis.

Practice Range Approved

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW BERN, N.C. — The Navy and the Marine Corps have approved plans to build an electronic warfare practice range based in Carteret County, a newspaper reported.

A Marine Corps spokesman said plans for the Mid-Atlantic Electronic Warfare Range were approved Friday despite promises from the Navy and Marine Corps that a decision would not be made until environmental comments could be made, The Sun Journal of New Bern reported.

The decision was supposed to be delayed until the federal Council of Environmental Quality could comment on the project's compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act, the newspaper said.

A decision has been made, said Gunnery Sgt. Jim Gladkowski, public affairs officer at Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station. However, public release of the decision will be made after being filed in the Federal Register, which was expected to happen today.

The Federal Register is a daily publication of governmental action.

The warfare range is to be based in Carteret County but also would encompass 80 percent of the airspace over Pamlico County. The range will use radars to simulate attacks on aircraft so that pilots can practice responding. The maneuvers, which include low-level high-speed flights, will be scored electronically.

The project has come under fire from state officials and environmental groups who have complained about potential noise pollution from the range and the possible negative impact on wetlands, tourism and fisheries.

State officials also have complained about the military's use of more and more airspace in North Carolina.

They also have charged that the Federal Aviation Administration has not properly fulfilled its duties in reviewing the use of special use air space.

Fort Bragg Command Established

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE — As part of a reorganization of the U.S. Army, the Army Special Operations Command has been established at Fort Bragg, officials announced.

The new Army major command will be headed by Maj. Gen. Gary E. Luck, whose promotion to lieutenant general was approved by the U.S. Senate on Sunday.

"The establishment of this command is an evolutionary event in special operations," Luck said in a prepared statement Monday. "From our country's founding, special operations have played a vital role in our nation's defense, and this new command will serve as the total Army's focal point for all special operations forces as they continue as an integral part of our national defense strategy."

The command will become the 16th major Army command on Dec. 1, the Department of the Army announced Monday.

The change is part of a reorganization of U.S. special operations forces that began in 1980.

The Army special operations forces will remain a part of the multi-service U.S. Special Operations Command which carries out unconventional warfare, counterterrorism, special reconnaissance and counter-insurgency missions.

Headquartered at Fort Bragg, the 1st SOCOM consists of about 10,000 active-duty soldiers stationed around the world. It includes Special Forces, Rangers, Army helicopter units and psychological operations and civil affairs units.

Victims Buried

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Three young children who were stabbed, strangled and mutilated at their rural Franklin County home have been buried with donations from throughout the state, the sheriff said Monday.

Franklin County Sheriff Arthur Johnson said Shenika Chantel McKay, 2, Terrell Quentin McKay, 1, and Quincey Matthew McKay, 2 months, were buried Sunday at Cedar Rock Cemetery, east of Louisburg.

Requests Denied

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Museum of Art is turning away more than a third of the school groups requesting visits each spring because the building is not large enough, the museum director said Monday.

The museum, which opened in 1983 and cost $15.75 million, was built with state and private funds. When it was planned in 1973, it was envisioned as a 400,000-square-foot building. Lack of money eliminated a proposed wing and cut its size to 181,000 square feet.

House Speaker Joe Mavretic suggested that 10 percent of the state's school children should be able to visit each year — or about 90,000 students.

Grants Sought

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Haywood County commissioners voted unanimously Monday to seek $1,937,500 in federal grants and local funds to upgrade water and sewer projects in the county and help attract new industry to the area.

The money will actually cover three major projects. The major portion of the funding will be sought through grant applications to the Economic Development Administration and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

If funding can be obtained, it will provide a means to complete expansion of the Maggie Valley wastewater treatment plant ($750,000), a new finished water reservoir for Waynesville in the Dellwood area ($837,500), and water and sewer extension to what has been identified by EASE as the county's main industrial site located in Canton ($350,000).

The committee has worked for six months to develop a means of drawing industry to the county, which is losing an estimated 1,343 jobs through cutbacks at Champion International and Dayco Products Inc. and 106 jobs through cutbacks at Wellco, a Haywood-based company that announced job losses this month.

Restraining Order

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Members of a Fayetteville church who were upset by sex classes taught to married female members by their pastor have won a temporary restraining order against the minister.

Cumberland County Chief District Court Judge Sol Cherry granted the restraining order Monday, which prevents the minister, Marion Wade, from having anything to do with managing the Household of Faith World Outreach Center.

But the judge said he would delay signing the order until Jeffrey Luedeke, the lawyer representing the members, could determine whether the governing board of the church accepted Wade's resignation.

Man Pursued

RALEIGH (AP) — When a suspected purse-snatcher ran through downtown, officers pursued him by horse, car, foot and bicycle to make the arrest.

Lt. J.A. Privette said a man stole a wallet from a woman's pocketbook in the county office building and fled on foot. Horse patrol Officer D.A. Brugger took off after him.

Officer R.G. Joyner joined the chase on his police bicycle. Sgt. Claude Moore and Officer E.D. Edwards sped to the Fayetteville Street Mall in their patrol car and joined the chase on foot.

The bicycle-bound officer caught up with the suspect, but the man knocked him to the pavement. Officer Edwards, running to the scene, saw his chance.

"That slowed him down, and I tackled him," he said.

Police charged Lorenza Lee Daniels, 27, with 11 counts of credit card theft, assault on a law enforcement officer and larceny.

Today Marks The 200th Anniversary Of N.C. Constitution's Ratification

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Politicians, parade-goers and other celebrants commemorated the 200th anniversary of North Carolina's ratification of the U.S. Constitution in Fayetteville and Raleigh today.

The ratification came during a special convention in Fayetteville in 1789 when delegates voted 194 to 77 to endorse the Constitution, reversing a decision at a similar convention nearly 16 months earlier in Hillsborough.

After the Fayetteville vote, word was sent to President George Washington that North Carolina, after 16 months as a renegade state, was now a team player.

When the ratification news reached the eastern North Carolina community of Edenton, town leaders adjourned to Eagan's Tavern and hoisted 12 toasts: to the new country, to President Washington, to soldiers who fought for independence, and so on.

The 12th toast was to the "fair daughters of Columbia," whoever they were.

The Edenton toasts were to be repeated during a special ceremony today at the state capitol in Raleigh.

Asked what the beverage of choice will be, Bob Geary, assistant director of the state's constitutional bicentennial commission, replied: "We are not going to drink anything — it will be 10 o'clock in the morning!"

The Raleigh and Fayetteville activities marked the end of two years of constitutional commemorations. The Constitution was drafted in the summer of 1787 in Philadelphia and then submitted to the 13 states.

Holiday Travelers To Face Highway Traffic Congestion

By Robin P. Teater
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Holiday travelers should expect congestion on North Carolina highways, but officials with the N.C. Highway Patrol say they will work hard to keep traffic moving safely.

"The volume of traffic is going to be heavy," said state Highway Patrol Col. W.A. Ballard. "With each holiday the crowds get larger."

Ballard said the patrol will be out in full force, with 75 to 100 desk sergeants and instructors given road assignments in addition to the 971 troopers who regularly work the state's highways.

He said except for adding manpower on the roads, the patrol had no special plans to ease traffic congestion.

"We'll have live patrols, radar cars out looking for speeders, DWI enforcement and troopers to assist stranded motorists," Ballard said. "We'll make sure there are no break-downs or wrecks causing the congestion."

Transportation officials say the usual bottlenecks will once again cause congestion.

One of the most frustrating sections for motorists is in the Greensboro area where I-85 and I-40 run on the same stretch of highway, which also is intersected by U.S. 421, U.S. 220 and U.S. 29. The average daily traffic count on that section of I-85 is 78,700, Holland said.

"I've been through there many times and not necessarily on holidays — it's bad enough," said John Frazier, president of the N.C. State Motor Club, which is based in Charlotte.

Joe Springer, a highway planning engineer in the traffic survey section of the state Department of Transportation, said long term plans call for bypassing the Greensboro traffic congestion, but probably not for another decade. He said such a bypass would come to the south of I-85 and connect south of where I-40 adjoins I-85.

Greg Holland, a highway traffic and inventory analyst for the state Department of Transportation, said the longest delays over Thanksgiving will likely come where the heaviest traffic volume normally occurs.

DOT figures show some of the thickest traffic piles up on sections of Interstate 77, which runs north and south and bisects Charlotte; I-40, an east-west link that when completed will stretch from the North Carolina mountains to the coast; and I-85, which runs northeast-southwest, cutting through Charlotte, Greensboro and Durham; and on the Raleigh Beltline, which bypasses Raleigh's downtown.

Boy Attacked By Rottweiler

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — A 7-year-old Trinity boy was hospitalized after he was attacked by a Rottweiler dog while playing in a friend's yard, Randolph County sheriff's deputies said.

Gary Lee Baker, a student at New Market Elementary School, was being evaluated late Monday at N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. Hospital officials declined to release his condition but said he was to be admitted to the intensive care unit.

The investigating officer, Detective Tony Lowe, said the injuries were serious.

The boy suffered bites to the throat, back of the neck, both sides of the torso and the stomach late Monday afternoon, Lowe said.

Gary was conscious, but he was having trouble breathing when officers arrived. The Greensboro News & Record reported in today's editions.

His is the Piedmont's third reported attack by a Rottweiler in the last month.

In October, two Rottweilers mauled a Winston-Salem jogger to death. The dog's owner was charged with manslaughter in the death of 20-year-old Hoke Lane Prevette.

Phone Company Wants To Market A Device That Displays Where A Call Is Coming From

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Southern Bell is seeking permission to market a system that would give an early identification of incoming telephone calls, but regulators say the system raises questions concerning privacy rights.

The service, known as Caller ID, displays the telephone number of the caller on a box attached to the phone. Southern Bell wants to begin providing the service in selected areas of the state later this year for $7.50 a month. It also plans to market display boxes, which are needed, for about $75.

But the service, one of the latest offered by telephone companies, is drawing the scrutiny of consumer advocates in North Carolina — not because of price, but because of questions about privacy.

The Public Staff and the state Attorney General's Office, the state agencies that represent consumers on utility matters, asked the state

Utilities Commission on Monday to delay approving the proposed charges for the new service. They want the service delayed until consumers have a chance to learn about it and comment on it.

The service would give people a chance to know the calling number before they answer. For example, people could identify the source of annoying or obscene phone calls. Schools would have a record of the phone number from which a bomb threat was made.

But the service would also display the telephone numbers of those who may have a legitimate reason to keep them secret.

For instance, a battered wife staying in a shelter might want to call her husband, but not tip off where she was staying. Callers might not call an AIDS hotline out of fear of being identified. And people who pay for unlisted phone numbers would have their numbers made known.

"We have two interests, if not rights, in conflict," Antoinette Wike, an attorney for the Public Staff, told the commission.

Vanity Plate Sales Flat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — State transportation officials have placed 100 proposed highway landscaping projects on hold because of a decline in the sale of personalized license plates.

State Department of Transportation officials told legislators Monday that a higher fee for the plates may be curtailing sales. The fee — which went from $10 to $20 on Oct. 1 — is added to the regular $20 license plate fee.

October's sales figures were about the same those of October 1988, William D. Johnson, state landscaping engineer, told a subcommittee of the Government Operations Commission.

But new plantings of roadside trees and flowers, which are financed entirely through vanity plate sales, had been scheduled on the assumption of a 7 percent annual increase in sales.

As a result of the flat sales in October, the department did not include new landscaping in its long-range plan approved this month by the Board of Transportation. The department will review the matter in a few months.

"We hope revenues will be sufficient to get all of them reinstated early next year," Johnson said in an interview. "But to treat everybody the same, we moved all of them until we can see how much we're getting."

Vanity plate sales currently raise about $600,000 a year for landscaping.

NASA Gives OK To Shuttle Count

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA crews worked under a tight timetable today for launching space shuttle Discovery on a fiery night-time flight Wednesday with five astronauts and an intelligence-gathering satellite.

Shuttle managers concluded after a three-hour meeting Monday that "no major issues are being worked," and gave the OK to proceed with the countdown.

They admitted the schedule was tight but expressed confidence that lagging work could be made up in time.

Workers fell behind in checking out systems and reinstalling equipment and panels on the bottom sections of the two solid fuel booster rockets. The panels were removed last week so technicians could inspect computer boxes suspected of having faulty wiring. One box was replaced.

Because the mission is secret, the space agency remained silent on the exact status of the countdown, which started Sunday. It has said only that liftoff is scheduled between 6:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. and that it will make the count public just nine minutes before the planned liftoff. The launch is expected to take place about 7:30 p.m.

There also will be a news blackout throughout the mission.

It will be only the third after-dark launch in 32 shuttle missions. The last one, in November 1985, was visible for the 700 miles from Key West to Charleston, S.C.

High Winds Buffet Planes, Footballs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gusts up to 64 mph lifted a parked Continental Airlines jetliner and dropped it on a baggage cart and fuel truck in Newark, N.J., while high winds damaged three airplanes at a New York City airport, authorities said.

No passengers were on the Boeing 727 at Newark International Airport, but a worker inside the craft's baggage area was injured, said Police Officer Frank Gato. The man was taken to Elizabeth General Medical Center, where emergency room officials said he was in good condition.

Three Pan American planes parked outside a hangar at New York's Kennedy International were damaged by 44 mph gusts, said Police Lt. Kevin Hassett.

The wind blew one 747 into the hangar. Gusts pushed another 747 into a fence. Metal scaffolding surrounding the third plane, an A-300 Airbus, was blown into the aircraft's skin.

The airport was shut down between 9:30 p.m. and 10:15 p.m., Hassett said.

Planes at LaGuardia Airport in New York City also were delayed for about an hour by the strong winds, authorities said.

In Washington, a storm packing near-hurricane force gusts knocked out power to some 20,000 area homes and intruded on the Denver Broncos-Washington Redskins game by taking footballs off their paths in midair.

Wind gusts up to 73 mph were reported in Washington by the National Weather Service. They were part of a strong cold front that bulldozed its way into the eastern seaboard Monday night and knocked down trees and sent live power wires into streets.

An estimated 15,000 customers were without power in the District of Columbia and Prince George's and Montgomery counties in Maryland, said Nancy Moses, a spokeswoman for Potomac Electric Power Co.

Virginia Power officials estimated 4,000 to 6,000 homes were without power early today.

Most of the outages were caused by trees and tree limbs that tumbled across power lines, officials said.

At Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, trash tossed by the wind littered the field for the Monday night National Football League game between the Redskins and the Broncos. The winds carried thrown and kicked balls around the field.

The National Weather Service predicted sustained winds of 30 to 40

Doctor's Killer Gets Life Term

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — A former mental patient apologized for killing and raping a pregnant doctor in her hospital office before a judge sentenced him to 50 years to life in prison, the toughest penalty allowed for the crimes.

Steven Smith, 23, showed no reaction when Judge James Leff on Monday imposed the maximum penalty for the rape, sodomy, robbery and murder of Dr. Kathryn Hinnant, 33, who was five months pregnant.

Hinnant, originally from Lake City, S.C., was found by her husband and a Bellevue Hospital official smeared with blood in her Bellevue office on Jan. 8.

Smith, a homeless man who had walked the halls of Bellevue in physician's clothing, claimed he was insane. He will be 73 before he is eligible for parole.

"I'm sorry and it shouldn't have happened," Smith said at the sentencing. "There was a lot of things going on that I didn't see or feel, or anything like that."

The defense admitted from the outset that Smith had killed Hinnant but argued he was innocent because of insanity.

British Commons Admits Cameras

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — Television cameras focused on the House of Commons today to give Britons their first live screen view of the venerable, if sometimes raucous mother of parliaments.

The first image they saw in the live broadcast was the gowned, bewigged speaker, Bernard Weatherill, bellowing "Order! Order!" to bring chattering, excited lawmakers into line for the TV debut of the Mother of Parliaments.

The unelected House of Lords has permitted television broadcasts of its proceedings since 1985, and Queen Elizabeth II's ceremonial opening of Parliament was seen nationwide earlier this morning.

But the House of Commons, the often rowdy elected chamber down the hallway, resisted the cameras until now, sticking only with live radio broadcasts that began in 1978.

Former Conservative Cabinet minister Ian Gow delivered the traditional message of thanks to the queen for outlining the government's legislative program earlier today in the House of Lords.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, leader of the governing Conservative Party, and Neil Kinnock, leader of the opposition Laborites, then prepared to joust with each other about the contents of the queen's speech.

Any other lawmaker could join in, providing he or she can catch the Speaker's eye by standing up and waving an order paper — a printed copy of the day's agenda — and be called.

city's budget, his communications with council members and his conduct as city manager.

Carter added to the charges Monday, saying Knowles ordered changes in the minutes of council meetings on at least one occasion. Discovery of the changes during research of the minutes led the council to remove the city clerk's office from the manager's control, Carter said.

Following three hours of heated discussion during the Nov. 13 meeting, the City Council voted in a four-to-three decision to fire Knowles. Carter cast the tie-breaking vote along with council members Lorraine Shinn, Rufus Huggins and Mildred Council to fire Knowles. Council member and mayor-elect Nancy Jenkins voted with Inez Fridley and Bill Hadden to retain Knowles.

The mayor also said he took full responsibility for the timing of the City Council's action to fire Knowles less than one month before a new mayor and council take control of the city government.

"I pledge my full support and cooperation to our mayor-elect and new council," Carter said Monday. "Now that the reasons for the dismissal of Mr. Knowles and its timing have been fully explored, it is now time for our mayor-elect, the new council and all our citizens to put this decision behind us."

"It's hard to keep taking these kinds of attacks," Knowles said today, "especially in light of the fact that the implications are not true. The inference that I'm changing minutes is not true."

Knowles said the minutes generally receive editing and additional information by the city manager and city attorney to accurately reflect the council's intentions. "I was doing it in the normal course of editing over the years," Knowles said. "I did nothing wrong."

Carter also said Knowles received counseling whenever problems arose, and he said he should have pushed for Knowles removal earlier.

"As the mayor, working side by side with Mr. Knowles, it became apparent that I and the council which hired him had made a grievous error," Carter said in his statement Monday. "To that end, I felt a great responsibility to our city and to the new council to see that Mr. Knowles was dismissed prior to the end of my term."

Knowles said today he was seeking legal counsel, but had not yet decided on any possible legal actions. "We're not ready to talk yet," nation of officials who carried out purges following the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 and those who ordered security forces to use violence to crush Friday's demonstrations.

Early today, posters condemning police brutality appeared on shop windows, office buildings and restaurants. The official CTK news agency said about 200 to 300 young people held an all-night vigil in downtown Wenceslas Square, where Monday's demonstration began.

The pro-democracy tide now sweeping over one of the East bloc's last strongholds of hard-line communism also spread Monday to provincial cities, which saw their first big street demonstrations in decades.

At least 35,000 people took part in rallies Monday in the Slovak capital of Bratislava, Ostrava, Brno and Liberec, said state media.

State television showed footage of the Prague demonstration, and CTK and radio reported the protesters' demands for free elections.

vestigation, but it is not meant to recommend solutions to any problems that have been identified," Kimble and Detective Harris wrote.

"That responsibility is more appropriately left to those individuals designated by the management of the city who have the insight and perspective to identify options and implement the desired plans of action," the investigators said in the report.

A group of 15 black officers on Aug. 4 presented a list of grievances charging the police department with racial bias in patrol assignments, minority representation, merit raises and promotions.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, a civil rights organization, and a group of four of the original 15 officers also called for the removal of Police Chief Jerry Tesmond, two of his high-ranking officers, and Knowles.

"Our attempt is not to make recommendations on a wide sweeping basis, although at times it is impossible to refrain from doing so on a limited scope," the report states.

Kimble said he expected to present a plan of action for addressing the remaining concerns at the Dec. 11 City Council meeting.

The report concluded that the police department had already cleared some of the allegations, specifically those concerning shift assignments, representation in the detective divisions and general favoritism toward white officers in discipline, training and advancement.

The police department needs to evaluate its methods of recruitment of minorities, job descriptions and selections, evaluation procedures and internal investigation procedures, the report said. The report also stated that the city's Affirmative Action program will be updated in January.

The report concluded that there was no merit to the charges of favoritism toward white female officers in any area of duty.

"I think what we really need to do is improve communications throughout the police department," Kimble said.

The report also strongly recommended updating the police department's standard operating procedures and personnel practices manuals.

"Many of the concerns listed in the original fifteen would have been lessened to a great degree if an updated personnel practices manual was maintained over the past five years," the report said.

Updates to the manuals were scheduled for January and June of 1989, but are not yet complete. "These documents are in need of updating at the earliest opportunity," according to the report.

Following Monday's meeting, Mayor Ed Carter said, "I'm sure the new council will follow through and take any corrective actions that are necessary."

Tesmond refused to comment on the investigation's finding following Monday's meeting. Tesmond, who sat in on Monday's review of the investigation, could not be reached for comment this morning.

King Gardner, a field representative for the SCLC, said he would not comment on the findings until he had a chance to read the report.

New York Town Grieves For Victims Of Tornado

By Jules Loh
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEWBURGH, N.Y. — So many funeral processions in one day. Five, and this stricken town's sorrow seemed even greater because the coffins were so small. One was covered with a teddy bear-shaped wreath of flowers.

A stuffed Garfield doll, a small dinosaur and baseball cards lay nearby.

It was apparent that the bells tolled for the children, not for the spirit of the town.

"It will take time, maybe a long time, but we will get through this," Bud Sharp was saying, standing on the lawn of the First Presbyterian Church where people gathered Monday for the last of the five funerals that gray and chilly afternoon.

"The tragedy was the worst we have ever had," Sharp said. "At least it shook us more than any I know of. But I believe it brought us closer together as a community, as neighbors, and I have a feeling that will last."

Sharp was in charge of the first unit of volunteer firefighters who responded Thursday to a call from the East Coldenham Elementary School. A tornado had smashed down a wall of brick and glass onto the children at lunch, killing seven youngsters and injuring 18 others.

The town's collective grief was manifest at the two funerals on Saturday and the five others Monday.

Three of the five families chose to keep the services private, to bear their sorrow alone. Others did not.

About 600 mourners crowded St. Francis of Assisi Church, a grand old brick edifice with twin bell towers and stained glass windows. Over the generations, it has been the site of hundreds of funerals but surely few as unsettling as the requiem for Adam Joseph Soltis, age 7.

"We remember today our little brother Adam and his schoolmates," said the pastor, the Rev. Howard Dalton.

The organ sounded joyful, and 600 voices found solace in ancient rites:

"He will raise you up on eagles' wings, bear you on the breath of dawn, make you to shine like the sun, and hold you in the palm of his hand. ..."

The music swelled within the church where 13 priests wore white and gold vestments. The priests surrounded the candles aglow with life, the white flowers, the little coffin draped in white, so tiny before the altar beneath the vault of the ceiling.

"We have our faith," said an elderly woman, turning, cheeks wet, to embrace the younger man next to her.

"And each other," he replied.

About 100 people went to a funeral home to mourn Charles "C.J." Scotto, 7, who lay in an eggshell-colored casket decorated with the teddy bear-shaped wreath of carnations and daisies. Nearby were his Garfield doll, a New York Jets pin and C.J.'s other treasures.

The service at First Presbyterian was for Maria Jean Stuhmer, 8. Also buried Monday were Joanna Teresa Lichtler, 7, and Amy Marie Innis, 8.

Peter Orsino and Larae Marie Litchhult, both 8, were buried Saturday.

Teri Potter, mother of four, is a nurse at one of the hospitals where injured children were taken.

She stood at the door of a room where Michael Holmes and George Marshall Jr., both age 7, lay in beds with their broken limbs encased in plaster suspended from traction slings. She watched the firefighters who rescued them drop by to touch them and bring them gifts.

"They were stressed out," she said. "They wanted to come and see the children they saved rather than dwell on the children they could not. They certainly brought smiles to the faces of those two."

Mrs. Potter had another thought that seemed to reflect a feeling prevalent in this normally placid Hudson Valley town.

"The deaths, the injuries, made me step back and think of my own life and my values, think of the few things that I've been upset about recently."

"All of them mean absolutely nothing in the perspective of one tragic afternoon."

Romanian Delegates Laud Leader's Hard-Line Stance

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUCHAREST, Romania — Delegates to a Communist Party congress today extolled hard-line leader Nicolae Ceausescu and offered lavish praise for his rejection of democratic reform.

Politburo member and labor leader Miu Dobrescu said Ceausescu's nearly six-hour speech to delegates Monday was "an exemplary model of creative tackling of present-day realities, a genuine thesaurus of social and political thinking."

Ceausescu, the East bloc's fiercest hard-line leader, opened the party congress with a firm rejection of reforms sweeping the region. Instead, he declared his intention to increase government and party control of daily affairs.

"The ruling out of the capitalist system ... is the leading requirement of a just society," Ceausescu asserted to orchestrated displays of adulation from more than 3,000 delegates at downtown Palace Hall in Bucharest.

He also called for the cancellation of the Hitler-Stalin pact of 1939, under which Germany and the Soviet Union later annexed parts of Eastern Europe. The Romanian province of Bessarabia was annexed by Moscow a year later under the pact's secret protocol. It was the first time Ceausescu had mentioned the accord.

"A clear, unequivocal stand of condemnation and cancellation must be taken against all the accords concluded with Hitler's Germany, practical conclusions being drawn to eliminate all the consequences of those accords and dictates," he said in his speech.

Romanian Communist leaders never reclaimed the province, now called Soviet Moldavia. However, the party daily, Scinteia, for the first time published a story Nov. 14 describing recent popular unrest in Kishinev, the republic's capital.

The delegates' support underscored Ceausescu's tight control of the congress and the personality cult that has grown up around him during his 24 years in power.

His comments were interrupted for up to 50 seconds by shouts of "Romania, Communism! Ceausescu, Heroism!" and other slogans shouted in unison to the accompaniment of rhythmic clapping.

The five-day congress is expected to approve Ceausescu's economic plan for the next five years.

The plan continues strong state control of the economy. Ceausescu has invested billions of dollars in a crash industrialization program that led to widespread food and energy shortages for Romania's 23 million people.

Yet the longer the food lines and the more vocal the people's complaints, the more harshly the regime has cracked down on critics.

During the congress, Ceausescu as well as relatives and supporters were expected to win re-election to the party leadership.

Also absent were all sixteen NATO countries except Turkey. In the past, Western ambassadors have attended the opening day of the congress.

Board

Board Chairman Eugene James agreed with the recommendation.

"The state has mandated it and since they mandated it then let them enforce it," James said.

The Board of Commissioners has been too soft on violators in the past, James said. It would have to show more "backbone" in its enforcement of the law if it wants to keep the authority to do so, he said.

"To satisfy the state and keep the program we're going to have to start assessing penalties," Dickerson said.

But the board passed a motion by Commissioner Kenneth K. Dews Sr. to keep the program in the county, with stricter enforcement through the use of county staff members. The motion calls for commission to be disbanded.

"For the time being, I think it's our responsibility to keep the program and deal with the people on the local level," Dews said.

James, along with Commissioners Linwood E. Mercer and Farney M. Moore, voted against the motion. Commissioners Wilton R. Duke, D.D. Garrett, Charles P. Gaskins, Tom Johnson Sr., Charles L. McLawhorn and Dews voted for the motion.

After the vote, James said the enforcement program would cost the county money. "Who pays you all to do this work for the state?" he asked Dickerson.

"You do," Dickerson replied.

Keep Relationships Collision-Free, Just Listen

By John R. Ball

Years ago, an article was carried in a local paper reporting that the only two automobiles in town collided at the intersection of State and Main.

People bump into each other all the time and, sometimes, there are collisions. We collide with each other in families, on the job, in schools and at other important crossroads. We get our signals crossed. We don't see someone coming. We force an advantage when the light is yellow and the other person does the same. We try to pass when there is a curve ahead and we ignore the caution signs in our relationships.

We must learn to stay collision-free by observing the rules of communication. How often do we say, "I wish I had not said that," or, "If I could take that back I would." Or we say, "She did not quote me correctly," or, "He misunderstood me," or, "They lied."

All reflect damaged relationships, and relations are damaged or feelings are hurt, we may have wars,

Your Mental Health

arms races, business failures, loss of relationships or broken families.

Failures in honest, wholesome communication can be avoided. There are several rules.

1. Listen to the other person. Just listen and stop talking so much yourself. If you will listen, you will be heard when it comes time for you to talk. Let what needs to be said — be said. This helps settle into conversation and communication.

2. Listen for feelings and messages more important than mere words. Sometimes it is hard for people to say what they mean. Listen carefully and deeply.

3. Know when not to respond. How can you take someone seriously when all you are thinking about is what to say in response? You are not listening. You are responding or thinking about what you are going to say.

That may make it a debate, not a conversation. Take the other person seriously by responding to his ideas and what he sees as important.

Conversation clarifies. Debate sends each to his respective corner to come out for the next round.

4. Deciding when to listen should be deliberate. You can't be a good listener just because you don't have anything to say. Don't you get tired of trying to carry a conversation because the other person won't talk? That's not listening.

Avoiding conversation may be a product of a negative attitude or arrogance, but it is not productive listening. We should not expect "triple A" conversation all the time, regardless of how close we are to the other person. Barriers may develop to slow conversation and communication. The quality of relating is not gauged by the volume of words.

There are times when you just need to listen so communication can happen. Listen with a clear head and be open to what needs to be said to you.

5. Look for the real and not the assumed. We are so judgmental. We may assume that someone isn't worth listening to because of their age, their color or their background. Making assumptions may not only be misleading but may be deadly. A lot of businesses and organizations pay high prices for wrong assumptions.

Perhaps we should use assumptions simply to inform us on what questions are important to clarification of active listening.

6. Saying what you mean is hard. How often have you said, "Well, I am just going to tell you what I think," as if to say, "Until now, I have been misleading you or I have been less than honest." Why do we have to tell people when we are going to be honest? Do we practice deception so much that we have to warn someone when the truth is coming? Why can't we just say what we mean?

We fool ourselves exaggerating or stretching the truth so much that we deceive other people and ourselves.

Why can't we say what we mean without fear of being hateful or mean?

7. Say what needs to be said. That does not mean saying everything you know on the subject. If you say what you mean, you should also learn to say only what needs to be said. You would avoid asking some people a question because you know you are going to get an overload of conversation or you will have to hear more than is necessary in response to your question.

Ask yourself: What do they need to know? How can I say it and avoid rambling? How can I say it so it will be heard?

If you don't understand the message or the content, it is hard to tell someone else. It is also hard to ask a question so someone will understand what you need to know.

The gift of making a simple declarative sentence is a great gift. We talk in circles, saying what we want to say or think without understanding what people want or need to know.

Nurses Should Hang Diplomas

Dear Abby: In a recent column, a woman wrote to say that she objected to being examined by a doctor without a nurse present. I have no objection to that. What I do object to is calling someone a nurse when she is not really a nurse.

I venture to say that 75 percent of the "nurses" in doctors' offices have no more than a high school diploma and are not registered nurses. Some of the procedures these so-called nurses are called upon to perform are extremely critical and should be performed only by someone who is properly trained. It is illegal to practice medicine without a license, yet these same doctors see nothing wrong with hiring women off the street, giving them minimal training and turning them loose on unsuspecting patients. Just because a woman puts on a white uniform and nurse's cap does not make her a nurse. (Those items can be bought in a uniform shop.)

Please don't use my name or city, as my wife is a registered nurse working in the office of a doctor who uses "nurses" who aren't really nurses. — Requesting Anonymity

Dear Requesting: Thanks for an interesting letter. To stick all physicians with the same needle would be unfair, but I'm sure there are some so-called "nurses" with minimal training who are passing for registered nurses.

Physicians proudly frame and hang their diplomas in their office walls. I think all registered nurses who work in doctors' offices should frame and hang their diplomas alongside the doctor's.

Dear Abby: I just had to write when I read the letter from the woman whose doctor noticed a scar on her wrist and asked her if she had tried to commit suicide, which made her angry! Instead of getting angry, she should have been grateful for the doctor's concern. I wish I had a doctor like that.

Not long ago, I went to a health clinic because I was very depressed and had a sore throat. When the doctor came in to examine me, I was crying. He just looked in my throat and my ears and never asked me why I was crying. He just said, "Drink lots of liquids and get some

Dear Abby

rest — you look very tired." With that, he hurried out of the examining room. Please comment. — Let Down

Dear Let Down: I suggest that you go back to that clinic and tell them that you are depressed and need to see someone who specializes in emotional problems. You desperately need someone to talk to — preferably someone who not only listens but "hears" what you are saying.

Dear Abby: If you have a cross with a figure of Christ on it and it breaks, what are you supposed to do with it? The arm on mine broke off, and I hate to throw it in the trash because I think that would be disrespectful. Should I bury it? — Only 14 And Already A Fan In Waukegan

Dear Only 14: Yes, bury it. And bless you for asking.

Dear Abby: Regarding the letter you printed from the reader who objected to receiving heavily perfumed bills from department stores, here's how my wife and I handled that situation:

We cut up that store's credit card in several pieces and mailed it back with a note stating we objected to the store stinking up our mailbox to advertise a perfume that it was promoting. It worked like a charm!

Within days, we received a telephone call from the store's credit manager wanting to restore our credit card and assuring us that it would be no problem to flag our account and send us regular bills that wouldn't stink up our mailbox. — Sensitive Noses In Atlanta

Dear Sensitive: Smart move on your part, and theirs — a matter of eliminating scents for dollars.

Candlelight Vows Performed

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — The candlelight wedding ceremony of Cheryl Lynn Meador of Winterville, N.C., and Kenneth Wayne Jones of Greenville, N.C., took place Oct. 21.

The Rev. David Easter conducted the double-ring ceremony in Highlawn Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen M. Meador of Huntington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Jones of Tarboro, N.C.

The bride attended Marshall University and plans to attend East Carolina University. She is employed by V.A. Merritt & Sons in Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU and is employed as an assistant manager with Roses Corp.

The couple is living in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

Shoulder Pad Era Ends, What Now?

When will the shoulder-pad madness stop? I have ripped enough of them out of garments to pad my own cell. Mounds of them spill from my drawers and sewing basket. They line my shelves and pop up in unlikely places, by the kitchen phone and in the glove compartment of my car.

I know what designers were trying to do. They were attempting to create an optical illusion. If they gave women shoulders like running backs, their waists would look smaller. It's a play on the old bridesmaid theory: Get ugly ones and the bride will look good.

I tried wearing shoulder pads. I really did. When every garment came out with them a few seasons ago, I stood in front of the mirror and thought, "If God had given me shoulders like this, I would scrub floors at night to get them surgically corrected." Not only did these lumps give my movements a Frankenstein quality, they traveled. I never got over the shock of seeing four mounds dotting my chest (two moving). In fact, I developed a tic just jiggling the pads into position.

It became really ludicrous one day when I pulled on a coat with shoulder pads over a jacket with shoulder pads that covered a blouse with another set of shoulder pads.

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

The pads shifted and slipped down my back, causing my friend to observe, "Quasimodo lives!"

I don't wear shoulder pads anymore. That's quite obvious. Sleeves swirl around my fingernails and my chest looks like it hasn't eaten in two years. That's not the problem. The problem is that I can't seem to be able to throw a pair of shoulder pads away. Don't ask me what I'm saving them for. I just know the minute I toss them out, someone will come up with a use for them and I will have gotten rid of a gold mine. I have lived too long around women who make planters out of bleach bottles and Christmas ornaments out of dryer lint.

Until then, what do you think? Too big for earrings? Too small for a bleacher pillow? Too light for badminton? Eye shades when you want to sleep late? Knee pads for scrubbing the bathroom? Earmuffs? Mitts to polish the car? Pot holders?

I wonder what the NFL does with its old ones.

Shutters from The Shutterry of Nanik No Other Design Element Can Compare.

Shutters offer a perfect combination of the practical and the beautiful. Shutters from The Shutterry of Nanik are available in 2 1/2", 3 1/2" and 4 1/2" louvers. Choose smooth paint, smooth stain, or a sandblasted finish, in over 33 standard colors. Or request a custom color to match your needs precisely.

All Nanik shutters are completely framed, preventing any light gaps and hiding irregularities in the window. The Shutterry provides tension screws in each panel to let you adjust the tension of the louvers. This feature allows you to set the louvers in one permanent position if desired, or to maintain the proper tension if the louvers are opened and closed frequently.

In building and installing wood shutters, there is no substitute for skill and experience. Demand the best — shutters from The Shutterry of Nanik.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was higher in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.97 points at 2,638.01 at 10 am EST after a half-hour of trading.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 19.96 million shares.

The Labor Department reported today that consumer prices shot up 0.5 percent last month as higher gasoline and food costs gave the country its biggest inflation surge since May.

The government blamed the rise on a jump in gasoline costs, higher prices for new cars and a sharp turnaround in fruit and vegetable prices.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks had risen 0.19 to 188.22.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.23 at 371.71.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 20.62 points to 2,632.04.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE, with 467 up, 1,008 down and 484 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 128.17 million shares, down from 151.02 million in last Friday's session.

Machinists End Strike

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SEATTLE — Machinists ended their 48-day strike against Boeing and will head back to work Wednesday after overwhelmingly approving a three-year contract that could become the standard for the aerospace industry.

A company spokesman today said he hoped for a speedy return to full production, but a union head predicted operations would be slowed for as long as a year because of lingering resentment.

"I think that it's going to take awhile for the company to get their production back up to speed as they'd like it," said Tom Baker, president of District Lodge 751 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

More than eight in 10 Boeing workers voted in favor of the contract Monday night, Baker said.

The strike against the world's largest builder of commercial jets affected more than 57,000 workers in nine states. It came as the company had a record backlog of aircraft orders of more than a decade in part because airlines are replacing their aging fleets.

Inflation Jumps As Fuel, Food Costs Boost Prices

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices shot up 0.5 percent last month as higher gasoline and food costs gave the country its biggest inflation spurt since May, the government said today.

The October increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, which translated into an annual inflation rate of 5.9 percent, followed four months in which the index recorded modest monthly gains of 0.2 percent or less.

The price spurt was slightly worse than analysts had been expecting. The government blamed the rise on a jump in gasoline costs, higher prices for new cars and a sharp turnaround in fruit and vegetable prices.

Through the first 10 months of this year, consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 4.6 percent, up only slightly from the 4.4 percent price gains recorded in both 1987 and 1988.

Many economists are predicting that the best news on inflation has passed and that coming months will show higher inflationary pressures. Still, few analysts are concerned that the price increases will worsen beyond annual rates of around 5 percent.

Leading the October advance was a 0.9 percent seasonally adjusted jump in gasoline costs, the biggest increase since a 3.9 percent surge in May. Gasoline prices have been on a roller coaster this year, soaring by 21.2 percent in the first five months of the year and then falling by 9.3 percent from June through September.

The price that consumers actually paid at the pump was unchanged in October. However, gasoline prices normally fall in October, so the frozen prices translated into an increase after the Labor Department made its adjustments to take seasonal factors into account.

Food costs were up 0.4 percent in October, the biggest advance since a 0.6 percent rise in May.

Fruit and vegetable prices jumped 1.2 percent, reflecting higher costs for apples and bananas. Dairy products posted a huge gain for the second straight month, rising 1.8 percent for the biggest advance since May 1980.

New car prices were also up in October, rising by 0.6 percent after having fallen for five consecutive months. The jump reflected higher costs for the 1990 models and a big 1.3 percent rise in auto financing costs. Used-car prices, however, continued to decline.

Wall Denies Outside Influence

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Thrift regulator M. Danny Wall, acknowledging mistakes in his handling of the nation's largest savings and loan failure, today vigorously defended his overall performance and declared, "No political figure influenced my decisions."

"We have all learned some tough lessons from this case. We made some mistakes, and in retrospect, we would do some things differently," Wall said in testimony prepared for delivery under oath to the House Banking Committee.

The panel, chaired by Rep. Henry

B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, was conducting the last of six scheduled hearings investigating the collapse of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association of Irvine, Calif.

The committee also planned to hear from the thrift's owner, Charles H. Keating Jr., but it was unclear whether Keating would refuse to testify by asserting his constitutional protection against self-incrimination.

Keating, a Phoenix, Ariz., millionaire, is the target of a federal grand jury probe and of a $1.1 billion fraud and racketeering suit filed by regulators. Congressional sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said his attorneys were advising him to remain silent today.

Court Denies Ban On Discount Rules

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An executive with Thomasville Furniture Industries Inc. claimed victory after the North Carolina Court of Appeals refused to grant a preliminary injunction to stop the firm from enforcing restrictions that prevented discounters from selling to out-of-state customers.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday upheld a ruling by U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree of Wilmington that rejected the discounters' request for an injunction against Thomasville.

"This, of course, is basically a complete victory for Thomasville, and it upholds the position that we have maintained all along and that is that Thomasville's sales policy and distribution policy is validated," said Frank W. Burr, executive vice president with Thomasville.

But the court also ruled that 13 furniture discounters may amend their complaint to allege that Thomasville violated federal antitrust law.

The case arose after Thomasville, a furniture maker in Thomasville, imposed restrictions on the discounters that prevented them from advertising or selling Thomasville products by mail or telephone to out-of-state customers.

The discounters, in a suit brought in June 1988 in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, claimed that the restrictions amounted to an unreasonable restraint of trade.

Dupree, and the appeals panel, noted that the discounters' sales of Thomasville products amount to only 17 percent of their total sales, and an even smaller percentage constituted sales to out-of-state customers.

"The new Thomasville marketing strategy does not impair the discounters' ability to sell Thomasville furnishings to local consumers or to out-of-state customers who come to their showrooms," the appeals panel said.

Boeing spokesman Russ Young said company supervisors and managers would spend today planning for the workers' return, with Wednesday devoted mostly to regrouping. Boeing shuts down nearly all operations Thursday through Sunday for Thanksgiving.

Average wages will increase $1.14 an hour in the first year and $3.24 an hour over three years, not counting lump sum bonuses, Baker said. Current hourly wages range from $8.88 to $18.42.

Before the vote, a deafening din of cheers and boos rang out as union leaders entered the Kingdom.

But in contrast to an Oct. 3 meeting, during which members rejected a Boeing offer and approved the strike, only a few members threw paper airplanes made from pages of the contract offer.

Faldo Joins Wave Of Foreigners To Abandon Tour

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. — The rift between European and American golf appeared to widen with Nick Faldo's resignation of membership in the U.S. PGA Tour.

Faldo, the Englishman who holds the Masters championship, became the fourth major European star to declare himself in favor of greater participation on his home circuit and less on the American tour.

Previously, former Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany resigned his American tour membership. Ian Woosnam of Wales and Seve Ballesteros of Spain had earlier declined offers to join the American circuit in 1990.

Of the leading European players, only Sandy Lyle of Scotland, a former Masters and British Open title-holder, has indicated he would retain membership on the American tour next year, a PGA Tour source told The Associated Press.

Because they are no longer members of the American Tour, Faldo, Langer, Ballesteros and Woosnam will be eligible for a maximum of only nine American events — the Masters, U.S. Open, PGA and five others on the basis of sponsor exemptions. They would also be able to play in the World Series of Golf, if they qualify by winning another Tour event.

The actions of Ballesteros, Woosnam, Faldo and Langer came on the heels of a PGA Tour Policy Board decision last month not to reduce from 15 to 12 the minimum number of American tournament appearances required of foreign members.

"It's too much," Langer, a member of the American

Tour since 1985, said. "If I play 15 tournaments in America, that means I have to be here five or six months a year. That is too much."

"We hoped they would cut the number to 12, but they didn't do it," he said.

Faldo, a former British Open winner who has held American Tour membership since 1981, previously had been critical of the requirements for foreign players. He was unavailable for comment after his letter of resignation was received at PGA Tour headquarters.

Woosnam, runner-up in the PGA championship this year, has not held American Tour membership and has competed infrequently in this country.

Ballesteros, winner of three British Opens and two Masters, was stripped of Tour membership in 1986 after failing to play in the required minimum number of American events the previous season.

The Spanish star, generally regarded as one of the two or three best players in the world today, has been an outspoken critic of PGA Tour commissioner Deane Beman and the American Tour policies ever since. He steadfastly has maintained that the 15-tournament requirement constitutes a hardship on non-American players.

Australian Greg Norman, who competes in the United States under the same regulations, took a different stance, however.

"It's a matter of personal priorities," Norman said. "You have to decide what's best for you."

Blount Sees Brighter Days Ahead

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Even after closing out a second straight 1-10 season, Eric Blount is convinced better days are ahead for the North Carolina football program.

A sophomore from Ayden, Blount and the Tar Heels ended the year with a 41-0 loss at home against Duke Saturday. That leaves UNC coach Mack Brown with a two-year mark of 2-20 and a lot of questions.

"I think one day we'll win," Blount said. "We're going to turn it around. The only way you can approach it is to keep working harder and things are eventually going to pan out. I believe this program will turn around before I leave here."

The Tar Heels will need all the positive thinking they can get. So far, there is little to show for the Mack Brown era other than disappointed fans and empty seats at Kenan Stadium.

Blount's role figures to expand next season. He'll head into spring practice as the number-one tailback, but will face challenges from highly regarded redshirt freshman Antuarn Williams and sophomore Randy Jordan.

"I'll have to go out and have a positive attitude," Blount said. "In this system we've got at Carolina, tailback is one of the most important positions on the field. I think the tailback can make more big plays for the offense."

Last year, UNC was done in by a weak defense. The unit showed improvement this year, but the Tar Heels struggled all year on offense.

Freshman quarterback Chuckie Burnette was forced to play early and finished the year with 520 yards passing, but suffered 14 interceptions with only two touchdowns.

"I played as a freshman at wide receiver so I tried to give him a little advice," Blount said. "He's going to be a great quarterback for North Carolina. I'm not worried about that."

"Once he gets some confidence in himself, he'll be one of the best. He's a freshman. He's going to make mistakes. He'll tighten up on that and make big plays for us."

Senior Jonathan Hall and sophomore Todd Burnett also struggled at the position, handicapped by an offensive line that was never able to establish the running game or effectively pass block.

"We've got to go back and re-evaluate our offense," Brown said. "That is evident. We've got to run the football better to have a chance to compete. But most of our players are coming back."

The Tar Heels played a lot of young players on both sides of the line of scrimmage, and that inexperience showed.

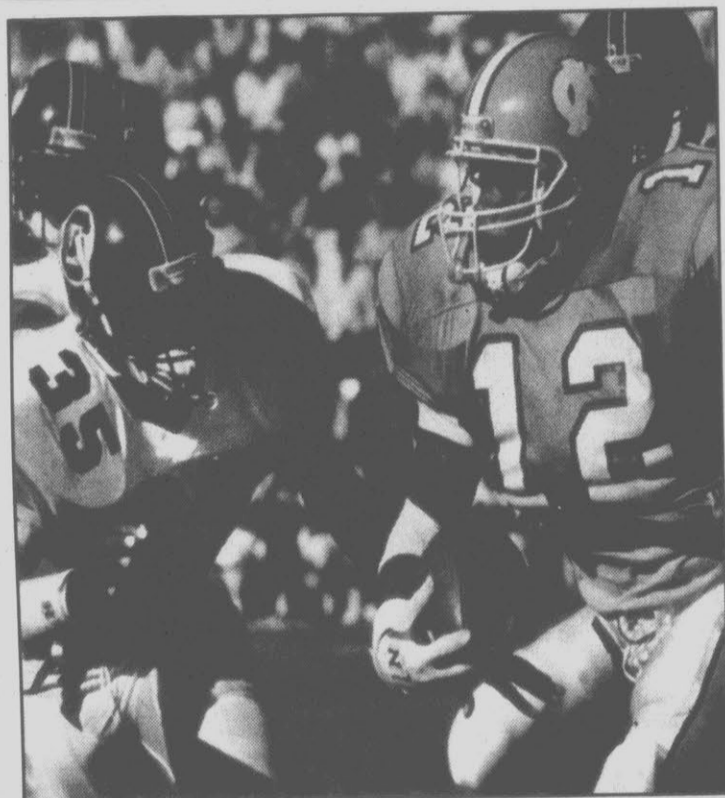

Freshmen Julius Reese and Bucky Brooks started at wide receiver. Freshman Tommy Thigpen started at inside linebacker. By the end of the season, four freshmen were seeing considerable time in the secondary.

But even next year, the Tar Heels will still be fielding an extremely young team. Winning might be a little further than just around the corner for this team.

"We'll never play as many freshmen again as we did this year," Brown said. "I'm sorry for our seniors that that many young guys were playing in (the seniors') last year of football."

Blount heard about the inexperience label throughout the year, but he's not as inclined to accept it.

"I don't think inexperience was (See BLOUNT, B-3)

Kubiak Fills In, Leads Broncos Over 'Skins

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Just when quarterback Gary Kubiak figured he was destined to spend the season on the bench, he ended up being John Elway for a night.

Kubiak, inserted as the starter Monday night in place of an ailing Elway, played the role magnificently. He threw two short touchdown passes in the first half, then played ball-control in the final 30 minutes to lead the Denver Broncos to a 14-10 victory over the Washington Redskins.

The triumph all but wrapped up the AFC West title for the Broncos (9-2), who own a four-game lead over the Los Angeles Raiders with five games left. Denver, San Francisco and the New York Giants share the best record in the NFL.

Kubiak, who has made a career out of backing up Elway, had thrown only two passes this season prior to Monday night. He learned four hours before the game that he was about to get his second start in the last five years because Elway was sick with a stomach virus.

"It's kind of ironic," Kubiak said. "I told my wife last week ... I think it may be one of those years where John plays every game. But as long as we win, it's OK."

Kubiak got off to a rough start, fumbling on the third play from scrimmage to set up the Redskins' lone touchdown, an 8-yard run by Jamie Morris. But Kubiak rebounded to lead the Broncos to victory in much the same fashion Elway has done this season — by throwing short, conservative passes and frequently handing off to Bobby Humphrey, who finished with 110 yards in 31 carries.

Kubiak completed 13 of 27 passes for 123 yards, including a 1-yard TD pass to Melvin Bratton and a 5-yard scoring strike to Ricky Nattiel. Kubiak also had 16 rushing yards, punted twice and guided the Broncos in a 14-play drive that enabled them to hold the ball for the final 6:45.

"I wasn't concerned about the job Gary would do because Gary is a great quarterback," Denver coach Dan Reeves said. "I was just worried about going into the game with just one quarterback."

One was quite enough. Before the game, Reeves told the Broncos that they could "make excuses or make the plays." Denver opted for the latter.

"There's so many people who did a great job," Reeves said. "Our defense really played super. You know, turnovers set up the 10 points they had."

In addition to Morris' touchdown, the Redskins got a 32-yard field goal from Chip Lohmiller after a Kubiak pass was intercepted by Washington cornerback A.J. Johnson. The kick made the score 14-10 midway through the third quarter, but Washington couldn't get past its own 39 the rest of the way.

The Denver defense allowed only 223 yards, and safety Dennis Smith twice made key plays by stripping Morris of the football. The first fumble set up the Broncos' first touchdown and the second stopped a potential Washington scoring drive.

"We had two big turnovers which hurt us badly," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said. "A lot of tough things have been happening to us."

Indeed, Washington had just gone through a tough week in which it lost the services of defensive end Dexter Manely because of a third violation of the league's substance abuse policy. His replacement, Markus Koch, tore knee ligaments and Gibbs said he could be lost for the year.

Washington (5-6) again had trouble moving the football behind its injury-battered offensive line. The Redskins led the NFL in total offense three weeks ago, but they've only scored two touchdowns in their last three games.

Its own injuries and the Denver defense weren't the only obstacles Washington had to overcome. A swirling wind that raged up to 30 mph hurt, too.

"The offense just really couldn't sustain anything," Gibbs said. "Going into that wind, that really changes things."

With the loss, the Redskins all but said farewell to their chances of get-

Backcourt The Lone Strength For 'Pack

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

For North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano, basketball is a game of two main strengths and right now the Wolfpack only has half that equation figured out.

To be successful, you have to inside game and an outside game. As the Wolfpack found out in a loss to DePaul last week in the Preseason NIT, their only strength is the backcourt combination of Chris Corchiani and Rodney Monroe.

"As I look this year, the concerns I have is we have no inside game," Valvano said. "I'm concerned with having no inside threat."

"Rebounding, team speed and lack of inside game are three areas of tremendous concern."

That concern was increased when 6-9 senior Avie Lester was suspended from the squad just before the season opener for academic shortcomings.

That leaves State with a team of jump shooters in 6-7 forward Brian Howard, Monroe and Corchiani.

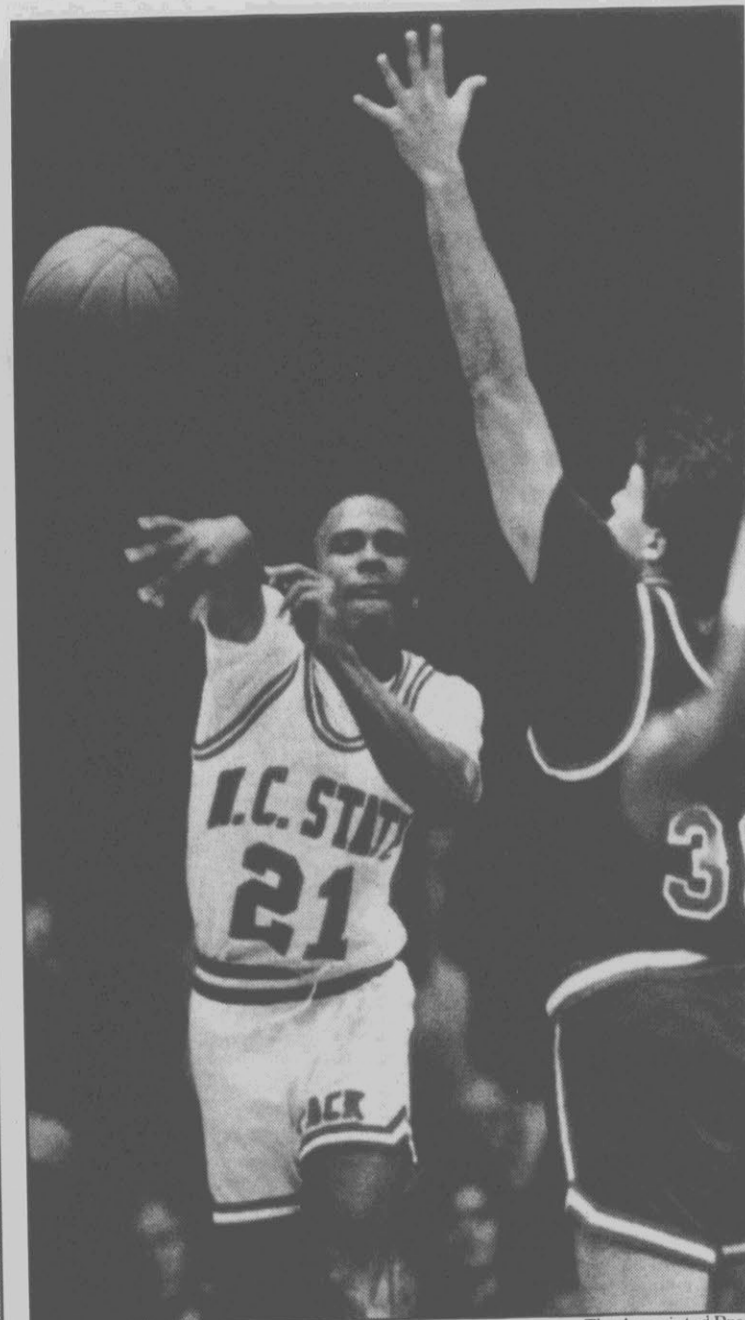

Brian D'Amico, a 6-10 reserve center, has a limited offensive game, but he has been called on to start in Lester's absence.

Nor does Valvano have the luxury of time in developing an inside game, thanks to a tough early-season schedule.

The NIT is out of the way, but the Tournament of Champions with Pittsburgh, Oklahoma State and Ohio State opens Dec. 1 and is followed by the ACC/Big East Challenge game against St. John's Dec. 5.

"The intangible is the schedule," Valvano said. "On paper, you don't think much about it. As it gets closer to it, it becomes a very real issue. Last year we had a schedule designed for success."

Blue Devils' Hines Tops All-ACC List

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Clarkston Hines, the Duke wide receiver whose personal assault on the record books helped the Blue Devils continue their climb to the top of the Atlantic Coast Conference, leads the balloting for the 24-member all-ACC football team announced today by The Associated Press.

Hines, a senior, was the first pick of all 60 voters who participated in the balloting conducted by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. The Chapel Hill native captured 120 points, and he capped his season with three touchdowns catches against North Carolina that raised his NCAA-record career total to 38.

"It's the ultimate thing. It's a situation that everybody dreams of, to win your last regular-season game in your hometown, the place where as a kid you watched others play," Hines said.

Although Hines said he wasn't caught up in the record-setting frenzy, his name will appear throughout the ACC and NCAA record books. He closed the year with 1,149 yards in receptions, the third year that he has had at least 1,000 yards in catches and only Tulane's Marc Zeno has accomplished that feat in Division I-A.

The 1989 yardage also tops his ACC record of 1,093, set last season. Hines also broke the Duke single-season scoring record with 104 points, which also led the league.

"I've said all along that he's the best receiver in college football. He's the best I've ever been around, coached or thrown to," Duke coach Steve Spurrier says. "But what separates him from all the others is that all his goals are team-oriented. He doesn't come in after the game and say 'How many balls did I catch?' or 'How many yards did I have?' He just wants to help us win games. He's a fearless competitor."

Hines was one of four Blue Devils — all offensive players — on the first team. He was joined by offensive tackle Chris Port, center Carey Metts and running back Randy Cuthbert.

Shawn Moore, the Virginia junior quarterback, was one of four Cavaliers who made the first team. He collected 114 points, including 53 of 60 ballots for first place.

Moore finished his season by accounting for five touchdowns in the Cavaliers' 48-21 victory over Maryland which gave Virginia its share of the ACC title with Duke.

For 1989, Moore completed 56 percent of his passes for 2,076 yards and 18 touchdowns. He is the third most efficient passer in Division I-A, according to the latest NCAA statistics.

"I think what he's done this year, not many quarterbacks in the country have done," Virginia coach George Welsh says. "The running, the passing, the winning."

"I'm happy for him. I think he's an outstanding athlete."

Yount Wins AL MVP

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Robin Yount's 16 years with the Milwaukee Brewers have been ones of quiet efficiency. He's a hitter and a leader, not a talker.

So when Yount won his second American League Most Valuable Player award of the decade on Monday, it was no surprise that he had little to say. Humility and consistency have long been his trademarks.

"I appreciate the award and thank the baseball writers for their votes," the publicity-shy Yount said from Hawaii, where he was vacationing.

"It's always nice to be recognized, but I want everyone to realize that this award is also for my teammates, the organization and the great fans of Wisconsin."

Those great fans of Wisconsin got a jolt earlier this month when Yount, who broke in with the Brewers as a long-haired, 18-year-old shortstop in 1974, filed for free agency.

What would the Milwaukee Brewers be without Yount, who led the team to the World Series in 1982 when he won his first MVP award?

Yount, never one to stir up controversy, hinted at the end of last season that he wanted to return to the Brewers, but only if the team made some changes to increase its chances of returning to the World Series. At age 34, getting back to the World Series is Yount's one remaining goal in baseball, not 3,000 hits and not awards. Yount, the major league's hit leader of the 1980s with 1,731, enters the 1990 season with 2,602 career hits. He also led baseball with 337 doubles in the 1980s.

"His accomplishments speak for themselves. But I don't think individual awards mean anything to Robin," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said.

"What means most to him is the fact he can play this game at the high level that he sets for himself and at a level that will help the ball club win. He puts everything in a team perspective."

Yount, the Brewers' centerfielder, joined Stan Musial and Hank Greenberg as players to be MVPs at two positions and also became the first AL winner to play for a team that didn't have a winning record. The Brewers were 81-81 in 1989.

Greenberg, with Detroit, and Musial, with the St. Louis Cardinals, each won their MVP awards as first basemen and outfielders.

Yount, who switched to the outfield in 1985 because of shoulder problems, is the second Brewer to win the MVP award. Reliever Rollie Fingers won in 1981.

Yount batted .318, hit 21 homers, drove in 103 runs and scored 101 this season. He had 38 doubles, nine triples, 19 stolen bases and committed but seven errors.

"He's the guy we look to to carry the ball club," teammate Greg Brock said. "Without his bat and his leadership, we're hurting."

Jim Gantner, one of Yount's closest friends on the team, said last week that he expects Yount to be back in Milwaukee, although California is one of several teams reportedly interested in stealing him away.

"My gut feeling is he'd like to come back," Gantner said. "Milwaukee is still No. 1 with him. I haven't talked with him lately, but that's the way I think he feels."

"I don't think money is the top priority. He won't go to another team just for the big bucks. I know that for a fact."

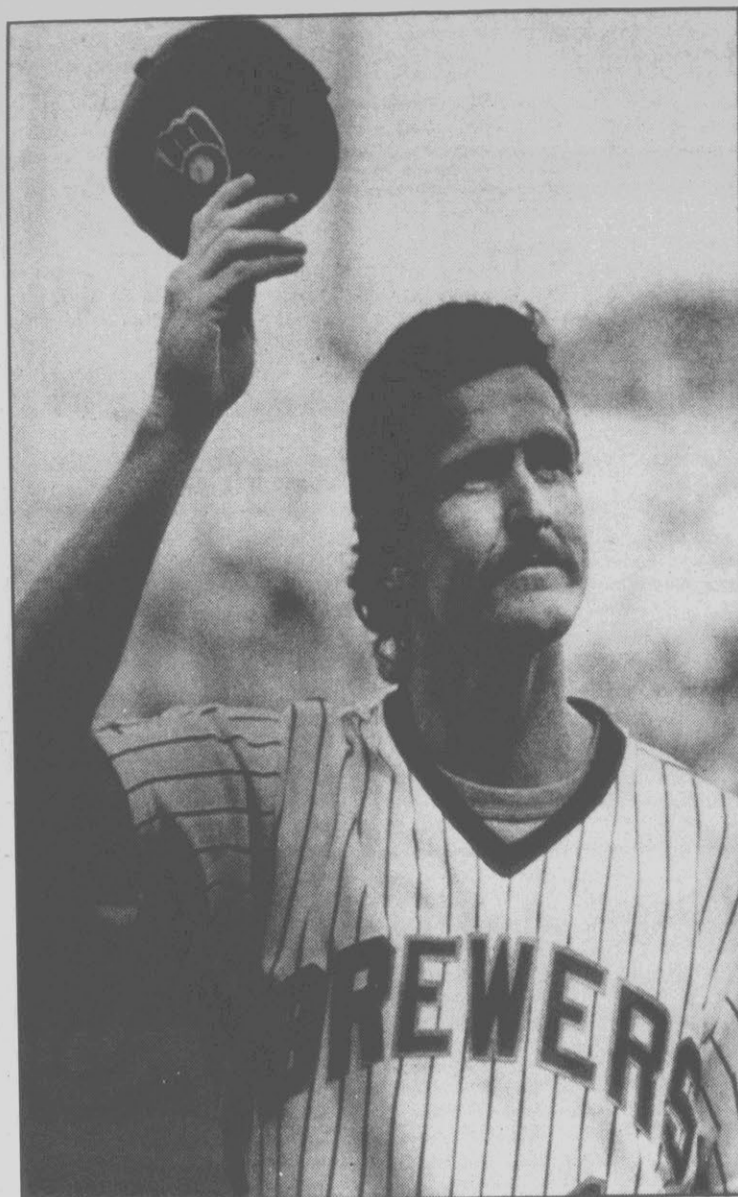

Yount received eight first-place votes and accumulated 256 points, and was the only player named on all 28 ballots by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Texas' Ruben Sierra, who batted .306 with 29 home runs and a league-leading 119 RBIs, was second with six first-place votes and 228 points. Sierra, whose team finished fourth — as did Milwaukee — also led the league with a .543 slugging percentage, 78 extra-base hits and 344 total bases.

Baltimore's Cal Ripken was third with six first-place votes and 216 points. He hit .257 with 21 homers and 93 RBIs in helping the surprising Orioles challenge for the AL East title.

George Bell, like Ripken a former MVP, finished fourth with four first-place votes and 205 points. He batted .297 with 18 home runs and 104 RBIs for AL East champion Toronto.

Dennis Eckersley, who finished fifth with 116 points, and Carney Lansford, who wound up 17th, received the other first-place votes. Both play for the World Series champion Oakland Athletics.

NBA Fears The Lottery

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALEM, Ore. — Commissioner David Stern said the NBA's success could be jeopardized if the Oregon Lottery adds professional basketball to its sports betting game.

Stern asked the state Lottery Commission on Monday to drop the idea, saying that wagering would make basketball fans more interested in point spreads than in how their teams are faring.

He also said legalized betting on NBA games "will inevitably result in suspicion about every questionable play."

"Our success is threatened if our game becomes the object of widespread gambling," Stern said.

His comments were made as the lottery commission considered whether to include basketball in the "Sports Action" game, which for the past 10 weeks has offered wagering on pro football.

Proponents of the proposed expansion of the lottery also testified before the commission, which will decide later whether it will add the NBA to the game.

Oregon was the first state to offer a lottery-sponsored game based on the outcome of professional sports contests.

In the current game, bettors can wager $1 or more on three to 14 football games each week, using point spreads set by a Las Vegas oddsmaker.

The NFL opposes Sports Action for the same reasons as the NBA and is backing legislation in Congress to prohibit states from offering such games.

In testimony Monday, Lynn Snyder, athletic director at Oregon State, said that Sports Action has generated $1.3 million for college sports programs, which previously received no state aid.

"We cannot survive without your assistance," Snyder told the Lottery Commission. "It is absolutely essential that this support continue."

Snyder also dismissed as "laughable" arguments by the NBA and NFL that the game will hurt the integrity of professional sports.

He noted that neither league has seriously protested the legalized gambling on sporting events that goes on in Nevada.

"Is professional sports doing anything to address this situation? To my knowledge, no," Snyder said.

Also testifying was track star Alberto Salazar, who disputed arguments that Sports Action might result in point shaving by NBA players.

"You are talking about players who are highly paid," Salazar, who attended the University of Oregon, said. "For him to throw a game because a bunch of people with $2 bets are screaming, I find hard to believe."

But Stern said that because basketball involves fewer players than football, the outcome of a game can be easily affected by the actions of a single player.

"The history of the college basketball point-shaving scandals of the early 1950s, which have continued until very recently at some of the most prestigious universities in the United States, confirms this," he said.

Cardinals Go Duck Hunting, Can Stallings

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHOENIX — Phoenix Cardinals coach Gene Stallings kept hearing rumors that he was, in his words, "more of a lame duck than a dead duck."

On Monday, when he announced he would become the former, the Cardinals stepped in to say he was the latter.

Two hours after Stallings announced that he would honor the last five games of his four-year contract but would not seek to renew it, the Cardinals fired him and named running backs coach Hank Kuhlmann as interim coach for the last five games.

Kuhlmann

"He indicated he didn't want to be here. To me, if you don't want to be a Cardinal, find another line of work," General Manager Larry Wilson said during a news conference. "I don't want to take away the focus of what we're doing right now."

"Five weeks might make the difference of making the playoffs or not. Last year, we lost the last five games. I think we are very capable of winning the last five games. But I think it would be disruptive if Gene was here as a part of it."

"I want the team to do well and win games. I don't think they can do that if I'm the center of controversy," Stallings said. "I believed that continued speculation about my future was a distraction, so I did what I thought was right for the organization and the team."

Phoenix (5-6) still has slim hopes of a wild-card playoff berth heading into Sunday's game against Tampa Bay.

The Cardinals, who moved to Phoenix from St. Louis in 1988, have had three consecutive losing seasons under the 54-year-old Stallings and were 23-34-1 during his tenure.

Stallings' contract, worth a reported $250,000 this season, was due to expire Feb. 1 and the Cardinals said they will honor it.

There has been speculation throughout the season that the Cardinals would fire Stallings. He said "nobody told me anything to the contrary" and he never received a vote of confidence from Wilson or team owner Bill Bidwill.

The situation came to a head late last week after the St. Louis Post-Dispatch published a Wilson interview critical of Stallings.

The article quoted Wilson as saying Stallings works at being popular and was taking too much credit for the organization's success through a rash of injuries this year.

Stallings, given a copy of the story Friday, met with Wilson Saturday night at Anaheim, Calif., before

"I want the team to do well and win games. I don't think they can do that if I'm the center of controversy."

—Gene Stallings

Sunday's game against the Los Angeles Rams, which Phoenix lost 37-14.

"I asked Larry if the article was accurate. In part, the article reflected some of his feelings — that I wasn't a team player. I don't agree with that. I'm loyal to the people I work with and work for," Stallings said.

"I think my popularity has been blown out of proportion. I haven't won any honors or awards. I'm just another guy in the community. To imply that I worked at getting endorsements (from other NFL players and executives to be rehired), that bothers me. I meditated on it a long time last night."

Stallings said he informed his team and staff of his decision Monday afternoon.

He then told reporters of his plans, reading from a hastily written statement. Wilson met with Stallings 15 minutes later, decided to fire him and hired Kuhlmann.

"I was caught off guard. But he had already discussed it with his players and his staff and there was no time to talk about it," Wilson said. "I think a number of things in the article were blown way out of proportion."

"I think his feelings are an over-reaction. But that's over and done. He made his decision and I made mine. The situation he put himself in made him part of the problem. That's why I asked him to leave."

Wilson said Kuhlmann, in his fourth year as an assistant, "will do a good job. He has the respect of the players and the other coaches. He's a very positive person, the type of guy people can rally around. He has great leadership and has been in the game for a long time."

Kuhlmann, 52, has no previous head-coaching experience in the pros. He was a special teams coach at Green Bay (1972-74) and Chicago (1978-82), an assistant at Notre Dame (1975-77) and Missouri (1966-71), and offensive coordinator with Birmingham of the United States Football League from 1983-85.

"I went to the USFL hoping to become a head coach. It's happened now and I'm going to work as hard as I always have," Kuhlmann said. "I really feel for Gene. But the Cardinals hired me to be a football coach and that's what I'm going to do. I'm honored the position was offered to me."

"It's been a shock. Nobody likes to see things like this happen. But once Larry has a team meeting Wednesday morning and we start thinking about Tampa Bay, we'll start tuning our minds toward football again."

Most of the Cardinals players said they were stunned by Stallings' decision and some were angry at the organization.

"It was handled in a terrible manner. A class man was handled in a very classless way," two-time Pro Bowl offensive tackle Luis Sharpe, the team's player representative, said. "Now, I think we're going to have to go out and win the last five games and allow him to go out with a little dignity."

"Gene was doing the best he can in a very difficult situation," said two-time Pro Bowl quarterback Neil Lomax, who has missed the season with an arthritic left hip. He is one of 18 Phoenix starters to miss at least one game this season.

"When players are injured, that's part of the game. That's no excuse for losing. I never tried to make it one," Stallings said. "Do I think I was doing a good job? Yes sir, I do. I've been coaching as hard as I know how."

Orangemen Want To Prove They Deserve A Bowl Bid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — After winning four in a row and seemingly landing a bowl bid, Syracuse is feeling like a Top 20 team again. Now comes the time to prove it.

Syracuse coach Dick MacPherson said the Orangemen can turn that feeling into reality by beating No. 19 West Virginia Thanksgiving night.

"We've lost to the three Top 20 teams we've played this year, so this is the week we should prove it if we really belong up there," MacPherson said.

"All the kinks are out. We're taking the show to Broadway," said MacPherson, whose team has come back after consecutive losses to Pittsburgh, Florida State and Penn State.

Syracuse (6-3) hasn't been winning pretty, but the Orangemen have been winning. And after being outscored 105-45 in its three losses, Syracuse has turned both its offense and defense around, compiling a 128-72 scoring advantage during its winning streak.

The Orangemen were idle last weekend and MacPherson put his squad through light workouts before giving players Friday and Saturday off.

"The obvious results are that you could see the bounce return to their legs. That's the physical part," said MacPherson, who said the break also gave his team a chance to relax mentally before an important game.

"We want to build a constant crescendo this week and explode for once this season into something great," he said.

In each of the last two seasons, either West Virginia or Syracuse has needed to win this game to finish an unbeaten season. That alone would make this a rivalry.

There's nothing to change that this year, even though neither team is unbeaten and both appear bound for bowls. Of particular interest will be the showing of West Virginia quarterback Major Harris, considered a prime Heisman Trophy contender.

West Virginia (7-2-1) is apparently headed for the Gator Bowl on Dec. 30 against Clemson.

After a couple fuzzy weeks, Syracuse appears headed to the Peach Bowl in Atlanta on Dec. 30. Syracuse positioned itself for a bid when Virginia defeated Maryland on Saturday to earn a trip to the Citrus Bowl as co-champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Pirates Eighth After First Round

KIWAH ISLAND, S.C. — The East Carolina golf team, in its first action since winning the Seascapes Invitational three weeks ago, struggled to an eighth-placed standing after the first round of the Kiawah Collegiate Tournament Monday.

Augusta College, led by John Sheehan's 4-under-par 68, leads the 13-team event with a total of 304 for its low four individuals.

Kansas State is 13 shots back at 317, followed by Jacksonville at 319, Furman at 321, Ball State, Virginia Tech and Richmond at 322, ECU at 324, Georgia State at 326, Campbell at 333, Virginia Commonwealth at 336, Youngstown State at 327 and Middle Tennessee State at 350.

Mike Gant of VCU was the only other player under par with a 71.

Freshman Ryan Perna led the Pirates with a 79. Francis Vaughn carded a 81 while Simon Moye and John Maginnes each shot 82.

The final round was scheduled for today.

"This is one of the most difficult golf courses that I have ever seen," ECU coach Hal Morrison said. "I think we have a good chance to move up (in the standings today) but Augusta is almost impossible to catch."

Paladins Fall To Louisburg, 97-60

LOUISBURG — Louisburg Junior College romped to a 97-60 victory over Pitt Community College Monday night in a college basketball game.

Pitt stayed close during the first part of the opening half, trailing by four much of the way. But Louisburg finally built up a 26-15 lead just beyond the midpoint of the half.

From there the Hurricanes built up a 21-point lead by intermission, 50-29.

Pitt held on through the first eight minutes of the second half before Louisburg again pulled away to the final margin.

"We showed some fatigue in the later stages of the game," Pitt coach Charles Coburn said. "It was our third game in four nights. With their size, I thought we showed a lot of spunk just to stay with them as long as we did."

Leo Lockhart led Louisburg with 18 points while Scott Adams had 14, Weldon Parham had 13 and Chris Sugg had 10. Pitt was led by Terry Warren with 21 and Clayton Cherry with 15.

Pitt, now 2-3, plays at home against Lawson State of Birmingham, Ala., on Friday at 7 p.m. at A.G. Cox gym.

Aces Capture Domino's Tennis Title

The Domino's Pizza Team Tennis League completed its season Sunday with the Aces finishing first and undefeated as it downed the Slammers.

Mike Belangia, captain of the Aces, was named the day's outstanding player.

The league is co-sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

Final standings are: Aces 7-0; Slammers 5-2; Swatters 4-3; Double Faults 4-3; Strings 3-4; Slicers 2-5; Netcords 2-5; and Lobsters 1-6.

Area Gymnasts Place In Meet

Several local gymnasts were among top finishers in a Level 8 qualifying sectional held at Rose's Gymnastic Center in Greenville Sunday.

In the open division, Jessie Sloan was 2nd in the all-around competition with a 29.50. She placed 2nd on uneven bars with a 6.9, 2nd on the balance beam with a 6.8, 5th in the vault with a 7.7 and sixth in floor exercises with an 8.1.

Amy Rose finished 3rd in the all-around with a 28.90 score. She was 1st in the vault with an 8.15, 3rd on the beam with a 6.7; 4th in floor exercises with an 8.25 and 6th on the bars with a 5.8.

Regan Tayloe finished 4th in all-around with a 28.65. She was 3rd in floor exercises with an 8.35; 3rd on the bars with a 6.35 and 4th on the beam with a 6.55.

Rebecca Whitter placed 5th in the all-around with a 27.80 and was 1st on the bars with a 7.05.

Others who placed were Yina Forbes, 4th on the vault with a 7.75, 5th on the bars with a 5.95 and 5th in floor exercises with an 8.15; Sarah Mohror, 5th on the beam with a 6.40 and Christy Thompson, 6th on the vault with a 7.7.

In the closed division, Carla Hewitt finished 3rd in the all-around with a 27.30. She was 2nd on the beam with a 6.75, 3rd on the bars with a 5.45, 5th in the vault with a 7.25 and 5th on floor exercises with a 7.85.

Emily Reason was 5th in all-around with a 25.50, 5th on the bars with a 5.2, 5th on the beam with a 5.9 and 6th in floor exercises with a 7.4.

Lee Goldfarb finished 6th in all-around with a 24.45 and was 4th on floor exercises with an 8.0.

Others included Megan Ryan, 6th on the beam with a 5.3; Sarah Stancil, 6th on the vault with a 7.2 and 6th on the bars with a 5.15.

Sheehan Has Performance Of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Patty Sheehan, who put on an sensational comeback to win the Rochester International in a playoff last June, received the Ladies Professional Golf Association Performance of the Year Award.

Sheehan's comeback began when she registered the LPGA Tour's first double eagle in two years on the par-five 17th hole in the tournament's third round.

The next day, she shot birdie-eagle-par on the last three holes to tie for the lead and then clinched her 20th tour victory, beating Ayako Okamoto on the first sudden death playoff hole.

Car Trouble Costs Hornets' Reid

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte Hornets rookie J.R. Reid's car trouble will cost him several hundred dollars in team fines after he missed practice and a team meeting.

Reid called a teammate from Chapel Hill Sunday to say he could not return for the 11 a.m. practice because his car had broken down. Because he missed practice without an excuse, and because he failed to call coach Dick Harter or trainer Terry Kofler directly, Reid will pay a "very high fine," probably several hundred dollars, Harter said.

The penalty doesn't end there. Reid was scheduled for a private practice at 4 p.m. Monday after the Hornets regular practice at 10 a.m. Also, he will pay to see the nutritionist who met with the Hornets Sunday morning.

Harter said the absence won't keep Reid from starting Tuesday against the Miami Heat.

Though reserve point guard Jerry Sichting participated in about half of Sunday's practice, he is still listed as doubtful for the game against Miami. Sichting re-aggravated the ankle ligament strain that has kept him out of the Hornets' last two games.

Braves Complete 40-Man Winter Roster

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves completed their 40-man winter roster on Monday by buying infielder Alexis Infante from Toronto, waiving relief pitcher Mark Eichhorn and sending pitcher Jose Alvarez to their Richmond farm club.

The Braves also bought the contracts of pitcher Rick Tricek and outfielders Dennis Hood and Keith Mitchell from Richmond of the Triple A International League.

Infante, 28, hit .167 in 20 games for Toronto and .208 in 67 games for Syracuse of the IL last season.

Eichhorn was 5-5 with a 4.35 earned run average in 45 games for the Braves. Alvarez had a 3-3 record with Atlanta and a 2.86 ERA in 30 games before being sidelined with a strained right knee the second half of the season.

Tricek was 6-5 with a 2.59 ERA at Sumter of the Class A South Atlantic League; Hood batted .252 with 11 home runs, 44 runs batted in and 32 stolen bases with Greenville of the Class AA Southern League; and Mitchell hit .261 with 10 homers and 49 RBI at Burlington of the Class A Midwest League.

Stockton NBA Player Of The Week

NEW YORK (AP) — John Stockton, who led the Utah Jazz to three victories last week, was named NBA Player of the Week.

Stockton averaged 23.3 points, 17.3 assists and 5.3 steals as Utah increased its record to 6-1, beating Washington, Chicago and Indiana.

Smallball Failing For Warriors

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Injuries and puzzlingly poor play have given the supposedly strong Golden State Warriors a newer look than they'd planned: worst record in the NBA.

The same brand of "smallball" that last season produced a playoff sweep of Utah and made the Warriors one of the five most improved teams in league history is failing in a big way (2-7) this season.

It's been a nightmarish November for Coach and General Manager Don Nelson, who may have to revise his rebuilding timetable after reaching probably the low point of his two years as Golden State's coach.

Just last month Nelson said the Warriors were improved from last season's 43-39 team and had a chance to lead the NBA in scoring. Instead, they're 19th among 27 teams in offense and couldn't even outscore neophytes Minnesota and Charlotte on last week's 0-4 road trip. And with Larry Smith in Houston and center Alton Lister suffering a season-ending injury Nov. 7, they're 25th in rebounding.

Three hours after flying back to San Francisco on Sunday, Nelson put the team through an emergency practice at the College of Alameda and installed a new trapping defense. But he has no quick fixes going into Wednesday night's game against Sacramento at the Oakland Coliseum.

"I'm worried," he said. "I'm worried that if we don't get it together soon, we will be in such a hole we'll spend the rest of the season digging our way out."

"For whatever reason, we aren't scoring like last season."

Aside from starting forwards Chris Mullin and Rod Higgins, no one has played consistently well. Mullin is third in the league in scoring at 28.3 points, and the 6-foot-7 Higgins, going to the boards when the Warriors play without a center, is averaging 8.6 rebounds to nearly double his career-high stats of last season.

Lithuanian rookie Sarunas Marciulionis also has been a frequent bright spot with powerful drives to the basket, though he's still shy about shooting from outside. He is third on the team with an 11.9-point average, and shooting 50 percent from the floor and 83 percent from the free throw line.

Blount Is Still Optimistic...

too much of a factor," he said. "We just got bad breaks. It seemed like if one thing happened bad to us, we seemed to fall down."

"You can't let that take over. In this game, you're going to make mistakes. You just have to keep bouncing back and not worry about it."

It was a bittersweet year for Blount. A standout tailback in high school at Ayden-Grifton, he started at wide receiver as a freshman.

During pre-season practice he was shifted to the tailback spot, which was weakened when Kennard Martin was suspended for academic shortcomings.

Splitting time with senior Aaron Staples, Blount ended the year with 409 yards rushing on 86 carries for an average of 4.8 yards per carry. He also returned kicks and punts.

"That's my main position," Blount said. "Wide receiver was good for me. We had a great running back in Kennard Martin so I didn't mind. We had somebody who could do the job back there."

"When Kennard wasn't here I took his place. I had to fill some big shoes. He was one of the great players in the ACC. I told myself I could fill those shoes. I played tailback before. It was like coming back to high school."

ACC pass-catching title 65-61, joined Hines as a first-team wide receiver.

Bruce McGonnigal of Virginia, ninth in the league in receptions with 42 catches but a runaway leader among tight end, earned that position in the balloting.

Joining Port and Metts on the first-team offensive line were Stacy Long of Clemson at the other tackle; and Pat Crowley of North Carolina and Roy Brown of Virginia at the guards.

Jerry Mays of Georgia Tech and Cuthbert, a sophomore, tied at the running back position with 108 points apiece.

Mays has two games left in the season, but has already eclipsed the 1,000-yard mark with 1,064, 12th best in the nation at 118.2 yards per game. Cuthbert's story is remarkable because while he played in 11 games, he only started the last six. His bulldozer-style running helped him gain 1,023 yards, only the second running back in Duke history to surpass 1,000 yards. The last was Steve Jones with 1,236 in 1972.

North Carolina State defensive lineman Ray Agnew was the top nominee among the defensive candidates, getting 117 out of a possible 120 points, with 57 first-place ballots.

challenging that I've had in 10 years. I've always felt that the concept of playing a tough schedule makes you better is not true. I think winning on a tough schedule makes you better. If you play a tough schedule and lose, I don't think it helps. I've never had a good loss."

All this happens before the Atlantic Coast Conference season even gets into swing in January, which could mean a rough beginning for the Wolfpack.

"What I'm looking at now is trying to play tournament basketball early in the year," Valvano said. "Any success with out club starts with the backcourt. They are better as a team than individually."

Monroe averaged 21.4 points per game last year and is the definition of an offensive machine. He won four games with last-second shots during the final five weeks of the season last year.

Corchiani's job is to get him the ball and the junior point guard racked up 266 assists last year.

Depth in the backcourt is thin with forward Mickey Hinnant about the only experienced player who can spell Monroe.

State had limited depth last year, but with the addition of freshmen Bryant Feggins (6-6) and Kevin Thompson (6-9), the bench should be improved.

"Our bench is going to be better," Valvano said. "The freshmen are going to play a big role. We're going to play more people. Bryant Feggins and Kevin Thompson are going to get quality minutes."

Howard figures to step up his offensive production to make up for the loss of Chucky Brown, now with the Cleveland Cavaliers. Last year, Howard averaged 12.5 points and 5.4 rebounds per game.

"In my opinion he is our best basketball player and one that we can least afford to lose," Valvano said. "He does so many things for us. He's our best defensive player. He's our best rebounder."

Nittmo Finds Himself On Edge

Shaky Day Could Be The End For Ex-ASU Kicker

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Placekickers always live on the edge in the NFL.

One game you're a hero. The next you miss a game-winning field goal or extra point attempt and you're out of a job.

Bjorn Nittmo, a former Appalachian State kicker, on Monday was teetering on the edge with the New York Giants, just one day after kicking two field goals in the Giants' 15-3 victory over Seattle and becoming the first Swede to play in the NFL.

Nittmo, 23, made two of his three field goal attempts and an extra point against the Seahawks. Good results.

But the bottom line was that the kicks weren't pretty, especially the 27-yard field goal attempt that bounced off the upright in the first quarter.

His field goals from 32 yards out were line drives and one could sense a collective sigh emanating from the Giants' sidelines when the officials signaled the kicks were good.

After the game Giants coach Bill Parcells said Nittmo would be his kicker next Monday night against the San Francisco 49ers.

When asked on Monday if he planned tryouts for kickers, Parcells' confidence in Nittmo seemed to ebb.

"I don't know," Parcells said. "I'm not trying to hide anything. Have we got anyone to call in here to kick at this moment? No."

Might there be someone brought in later in the week?

Could be, Parcells said. Might someone else kick against the 49ers?

"I don't know," the coach said. Flu Sidelines Elway

John Elway, the Denver Broncos' regular quarterback, did not start Monday night's game against the Washington Redskins after coming down with the stomach flu in the afternoon.

Steve Antonopolous, the team's trainer, said Elway had severe nausea and was resting in the team's locker room at the start of the game.

Elway, who threw for 2,051 yards with 10 touchdowns and 14 interceptions in Denver's first 10 games, was replaced by Gary Kubiak, who had completed both of his passes this season for 30 yards.

Kubiak had started four previous games in a seven-year NFL career, all with Denver. His career record was 129 completions in 218 attempts with 12 touchdown passes and no interceptions.

Kubiak is the only other quarterback on the Denver roster.

Marino Hurts Ribs Miami Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino suffered severely bruised ribs in Sunday's victory at Dallas, but tests Monday revealed no fracture.

Kubiak said his ribs felt better today (Monday), coach Don Shula said. "He was pretty encouraged by the way he felt today."

Shula said Marino probably will miss some practice time because of the injury. The players had Monday off.

The injury came late in the first half when the Cowboys' Jim Jeffcoat slammed into Marino's left side on a sack.

On the next play, Marino completed a 48-yard touchdown pass to Andre Brown to end the half. Marino missed no action because of the injury but winced after several passes.

Trudeau In Old Spots Quarterback Jack Trudeau has been down this road before.

Two years ago he replaced the injured Gary Hogeboom and led the Indianapolis Colts to their only playoff appearance since 1977. This year he's seeking an encore performance after replacing the injured Chris Chandler.

Sunday night, Trudeau led Indianapolis to a 27-10 victory over the New York Jets, giving the Colts a 5-6 record and putting them two games behind AFC co-leaders Buffalo and Miami.

"We put ourselves in the spot that we're in," said Trudeau, who became the starter when Chandler sustained a knee injury in the third game. "But, I still believe we're good enough that we can still give it a run. We've got five (games) left and I think if we can win all five, we'll be in the show. That's what we're hoping to do."

Oilers Streaking The Houston Oilers won't get any gold stars for winning three straight games, but the players hope their streak will give them playoff momentum.

The Oilers (7-4) beat the Los Angeles Raiders 23-7 Sunday, their third straight victory for the first time in regular season since 1985.

"You don't get a gold star for winning three in a row," coach Jerry Glanville said. "You add up the wins at the end of the season and hope you have enough."

Quarterback Warren Moon sees the streak as a building block.

"The streak is nice but we need to pad it on the road," Moon said. "We've got to take the momentum on the road."

It was a costly victory. Four Oilers starters went to the sidelines in the game and it took some creative lineup shuffling to shore up the holes.

Wide receiver Drew Hill and center Jay Pennison didn't suit up for the game because of injuries. George Yarno started at center and started a chain reaction on the offensive line when he went out with a knee injury.

Starting guard Bruce Matthews shifted to center, and Don Maggs, a backup tackle, filled Matthews' spot at guard.

Wide receiver Ernest Givins missed most of the second quarter with an ankle injury and linebacker Robert Lyles missed the second half with a knee injury.

Stevens Coming Around With a receiver corps decimated by injuries, John Stevens' return to that form was crucial for New England to control the ball against Buffalo's strong defense, keep pressure off quarterback Steve Grogan and beat the Bills.

If only Stevens could stay healthy. He did and the Patriots, with four players who hadn't played a single down for them before Sunday, sprung a 33-24 upset. It dropped the Bills into a first-place tie with Miami in the AFC East at 7-4. New England is fourth at 4-7.

"When he's running the ball well," guard Sean Farrell said of Stevens, "everyone looks better."

Stevens gained 126 yards on 23 carries, his first game over 100 yards this season and the third-highest output of his career. His highest, 134 yards on 25 carries, also came against the Bills.

He also had four receptions for 76 yards, both career highs, and made good runs after the catches.

Bears Floundering The Chicago Bears are fighting off the frustrations of an unaccustomed 6-5 record, but they haven't given up in their quest to make the playoffs and reach the Super Bowl.

This is the first time since 1984 that the Bears, who have won five straight divisional titles, have lost as many as five games. That year, Chicago finished 10-6 and still made the playoffs.

Part of the difficulty has been the loss of defensive tackle Dan Hampton. The Bears won their first four games with Hampton and are 2-5 since he went down with knee surgery.

"We've played without Hampton before, but not for this long," linebacker Ron Rivera said.

One reason the Bears have not lost sight of their postseason goals is that their 6-5 record has them tied for second place with Green Bay in the NFC Central Division, one game behind the Minnesota Vikings.

"At times it's been very frustrating," guard Tom Thayer said, "especially the way we've lost the games. We have to stay positive. We have a lot of capabilities. We can win our division, we can make the playoffs. If we stick together, we still have a chance."

Klecko and Fields Walton Klecko and Fields Walton for the New York Jets. One of their greatest former players, Joe Klecko, knows why.

Klecko, who is making appearances promoting a book he and Joe Fields, another ex-Jet, wrote over the last two years, points directly at the coach.

"Joe Walton has taken a potential Super Bowl team and run it into the ground since 1983," Klecko said Monday. "We had the potential to win it all as much as any team when he took it over from Walt Michaels."

Klecko was released by the Jets following the 1987 season, which he calls "the most difficult of any." He played for Indianapolis last year before retiring.

Walton steadfastly has refused to comment about "Nose To Nose," Klecko and Fields' book, which has been on the stands all fall. But one current Jet who said he has read the book labeled it "pretty accurate and honest."

That's also how Klecko characterized it.

"It's a book about two guys who lived in the trenches of the NFL," he said. "It's about how we became close friends, 'The Odd Couple,' and what we lived through."

"People want to read about what goes on behind the scenes, not just on the field."

What happened behind the scenes involving Walton and his players makes for juicy reading. Klecko and Fields detail team meetings in which Walton called the players "pea brains who will never amount to anything after football," brought up "every mistake a player made, again and again, and almost never praised them," and criticized the players for throwing parties during the season.

Does Klecko fear for their security on the Jets?

"I'm not there anymore, so I can't say," he said. "But Walton lives too much on the philosophy of fear. It's hard to get a guy to play his best when he's worried all the time about his job."

Neon Upsets Hilliard It was such an uncharacteristic show of emotion by Dalton Hilliard that even he was surprised when he had a chance to think about it.

Atlanta's Deion Sanders gave Hilliard a gratuitous shove Sunday, sending the New Orleans Saints running back skidding through the end zone and into a wall. Hilliard responded by yanking Sanders around, grabbing his jersey and shouting in to his face before officials separated them.

"I wasn't what you would call embarrassed, but I was startled," Hilliard said. "By the time I got to the sidelines, I was startled that I lost my composure like that."

What did he say to Sanders? "I don't remember," Hilliard said. "Heat of the moment, you know. There's no hatred or revenge lingering. It was just something that happened."

"It was just out in the open, a thing that could have been avoided. It wasn't like in a crowd where a defensive back might not be able to stop or something."

NBC News Drops TV Re-Creations

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

LOS ANGELES — NBC News will stop using re-creations of news events and will transfer to the entertainment division its one show that uses the technique, the magazine series "Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow," NBC executives said Monday.

"Yesterday, Today & Tomorrow" will continue to use re-creations under its new guise, but no news division employees will be involved, the network said. The show has aired three times this year. A fourth installment, which is being produced by the news division and will include a re-creation, is set to air Nov. 28.

Tom Ross, a senior vice president at NBC News, said the network's research included viewer reactions to re-creations throughout the television industry, not just on "YTT." He conceded that widespread criticism played a role in the decision to drop the technique. "I guess any criticism from people you respect in the business has got to heighten your concern," he said.

While the news division is losing one prime-time program, it is gaining another. The network announced last month it had committed to airing a prime-time series in 1990 with Jane Pauley as co-host.

No new plans were announced for the program's three co-anchors, Maria Shriver, Mary Alice Williams and Chuck Scarborough.

The use of re-creations by network news divisions has come under heavy fire, particularly from former TV news executives who complain that dramatizing news events distorts the truth and jeopardizes journalistic credibility.

In addition to its use on "YTT," the practice is a regular feature of CBS' "Saturday Night With Connie Chung." CBS has not said whether it will change its policy regarding re-creations.

Officials at NBC News portrayed "YTT" Monday as a noble experiment that did not work. "We did these re-creations responsibly and accurately and I am proud of the programs we aired," NBC News President Michael Gartner said in a prepared statement. "But after a thorough evaluation, we have decided to discontinue them as a format for news."

The decision to transfer the show to the entertainment division apparently came after research showed that re-creations were confusing viewers.

"Our primary responsibility at NBC News is to convey information clearly," Gartner said. "If viewers are confused, the answer is simple — abandon re-creations in news programming."

Former ABC Insider Writes Story Behind Network's Sale

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Huntington Williams' inside story of the decline and sale of ABC is the kind of history that most people don't want to be a part of.

A high-ranking ABC executive heaved a sigh of relief after reading the book. "Thank God," he said, "my name's not in it and I'm not a source."

There are few heroes in "Beyond Control: ABC and the Fate of the Networks," written by Williams, a former speechwriter for ABC founder Leonard Goldenson. Williams worked at ABC from 1981 to 1985.

Goldenson and former ABC president Elton Rule are two of the book's good guys, who led ABC to network leadership in the 1970s. But in Williams' account, Rule's successors squandered their inheritance and eventually forced the sale of the network to Capital Cities.

"ABC was the most interesting of all the networks," Williams said in an interview. "The secret of ABC was that it gave all these young kids a chance to cut their teeth developing programs. Eventually the brilliant programmers left. That left Fred Pierce and Tony Thomopoulos to run the network."

"Beyond Control," published by Atheneum, is at times as provocative as the movie "Network." It tells of management brilliance and management failures, of sexual pe-cadillos and such goofiness as putting a psychic on the network payroll.

Richard Connelly, an ABC public relations executive in New York, said the company had no comment on the book.

Goldenson held ABC together almost with spit and chewing gum in the 1950s. He came out of the movie industry and brought Hollywood and television together, first with Walt Disney, then with such shows as "Maverick," "The Life and Legend of Wyatt Earp," "Cheyenne" and "77 Sunset Strip."

In the 1960s ABC was something of a joke. "Put the Vietnam War on ABC and it'll be over in 13 weeks," one joke went.

The turnaround began in 1968 when Rule moved into top management. One top ABC executive, Barry Diller, developed the "movie of the week" concept. Another, Michael Eisner, developed the series "Happy Days." (Diller is now chief operating officer of 20th Century Fox. Eisner is chairman of Disney.)

Fred Silverman, lured from CBS, built a schedule that made ABC first in the ratings. The one-time third network was now the richest network and the biggest moneymaking advertising vehicle in the country.

After Silverman left for NBC, ABC coasted for a while, then fell to third place.

Williams tells how ABC lost producer-creator Stephen Cannell, who took his next show, "The A Team," to NBC where it became a huge hit. The book tells how ABC lost "The Cosby Show," which put NBC in first place, after it had been offered by two former ABC executives, Tom Werner and Marcy Carsey.

The events that led to the sale of ABC to Capital Cities were set in motion, according to Williams, by an overhead telephone call.

"A secretary misinterpreted the call and thought her boss was trying to sell the company," he said. "That alerted Wall Street. Then the Federal Communications Commission briefly considered changes that would allow the networks to own their affiliate stations. Since the bloom was off the oil industry, the networks looked to Wall Street to be ripe for huge profits.

"Wall Street was just waiting for ABC to go into play. Then ABC missed 'The Cosby Show.' That was the drama that led seven months later to ABC being sold. The fact that it could be done in a friendly manner led to changeovers at the other networks. ABC was the only network bought by broadcasters."

Williams resigned from ABC after the purchase but before it became effective in January 1986. He immediately began work on the book.

"Most of the information I got from interviews," he said. "I learned more about broadcasting than I ever wanted to know. I was trying to make sense of what I had seen. It was the end of a dynasty. At the time Goldenson didn't seem to be an imposing man. But he was a giant."

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Nov. 22

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): The financial aspects of your home life require handling for securities in the future. People from a distance will occupy your time with your attachment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Business suggestions coming from a distance can be most helpful to you. Joint expenses with members of your household can now be well solved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A consistent course of action advised by an expert will be very good to follow. Don't argue with your attachment over another romantic interest.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Places long enjoyed are best for you to entertain and be entertained now. Extra money will now come to you through your daily duties.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): There will be so much activity with your attachment today that you will need to pace your many plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A good day to open your home so others will more enjoy your hospitality. Watch your expenditures closely as you tend to spend too much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You will need to make up your mind now about an important business matter. You and your loved one should have some wonderful moments today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be on the alert for many benefits to come to you at your residence. Long time friends are best for you now to associate with today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Being moody with good friends now could put you behind the eight ball. Don't take business advice now from an older friend which would limit you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Lots of good ideas will come to you today for making more money. Much romance is now blossoming between you and your loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): One understanding friend will especially give you a brilliant business suggestion. Spend as much time as possible alone with your attachment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Obligating yourself to a big sum of money is most unwise now. Invite younger friends into your home for some excitement.

South's 11 high-card points grew to gigantic proportions and the final action was well judged.

Once North jump-raised diamonds, South could afford to cue-bid the ace of hearts en route to five diamonds. There was nothing to add after North's first club cue-bid, but when North repeated his action South took stock. To be interested in a grand slam without either of the two top trumps, North had to have the ace of spades as well as first and second-round control of clubs. Therefore, South's singleton spade represented a key control. Reasoning was translated into action with a jump to seven diamonds.

The accuracy of South's deductions was borne out in the play. Although West's club lead removed a key dummy entry, declarer was still able to manage his assets to yield the maximum return. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade high. Two of dummy's
