Colombian Jet Carrying 107 Crashes Officials Say All Killed When Airliner Blew Apart

By Tom Wells
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — A Colombian passenger jet with 107 people aboard crashed in flames today outside Bogotá, and everyone on board was killed, aviation officials said. Witnesses said the jet blew apart in the air.

The chief of the Civil Aviation Authority, Col. Jorge Gonzalez, said the crew of a Colombian air force jet flying in the area saw two explosions on the Avianca Airlines Boeing 727. He spoke to the Colombian radio networks RCN and Caracol.

Witnesses also reported seeing the plane explode before it plummeted to the ground at 7:15 a.m. in Soacha, a city about 18 miles west of the center of the capital, Bogotá.

No one on the ground appeared to have been hurt, Gonzalez said.

RCN quoted officials at the control tower at El Dorado Airport in Bogotá as saying the jet crashed three minutes after taking off for the western city of Cali.

It quoted the flight controller as saying the pilot reported everything normal seconds before communication with the plane was lost.

"The plane exploded in the air and then fell to the ground and caused a huge explosion," said

Jairo Alba, who witnessed the crash.

Alba, interviewed by the RCN radio network, said the jet was destroyed.

RCN quoted other witnesses as saying they saw smoke pouring from one of the three engines and then seeing the plane explode.

Radio Caracol said Flight 203 just cleared the southern edge of this city of 6 million people. The area of the crash is mainly industrial. Fragments from the jet were spread across a six-mile area, and body parts littered the crash site, witnesses said.

"The plane was flying along

A man updates Indian election results today in New Delhi

Voters Abandon Gandhi's Party

By Earleen Fisher
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's party today failed to win a majority in elections for only the second time in 42 years as voters deserted it for a new centrist alliance and a fundamentalist Hindu party.

Incomplete results from the election for a new Parliament showed the Congress Party with more seats than any single opposition group but far short of a mandate to form the next government alone.

That leaves Gandhi in the difficult position of trying to form a coalition government — the first in the history of the world's most populous democracy.

The fundamentalist Bharatiya Janata Party, capitalizing on a rise in Hindu nationalism, appeared destined to be the pivotal player. Its leader said

Millions Observe General Strike

By Girard C. Steichen
 THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Sirens howled and church bells rang today as millions of people observed a symbolic general strike and filled streets and city squares in the largest demonstration so far against Communist rule.

Wenceslas Square in central Prague was jammed with hundreds of thousands of flag-waving workers marching beneath the banners of their factories, firms and offices.

"We don't want you anymore!" the crowd roared in a chant that echoed off the high 19th-century buildings surrounding the square, a half-mile long boulevard.

Trying to head off the two-hour strike, seen as a referendum on demands for their ouster, the country's Communist leaders early today dumped three more hard-liners from the ruling Politburo.

They also endorsed a "dialogue" with the opposition and agreed to a parliamentary inquiry of the brutal police crackdown on a peaceful student rally Nov. 17 that touched off the East bloc's latest popular revolt.

The concessions followed unprecedented talks Sunday between opposition leaders and Communist premier Ladislav Adamec, who later joined reformer Alexander Dubcek at the head of a rally and told about 300,000 demonstrators authorities were ready to listen to their demands.

Demands for free elections and an end to one-party rule were plastered over the windows of shops, hotels and restaurants that shut down for the strike, which began at noon (6 a.m. EST).

State-run television, which has played a key role in the dizzyingly rapid popular revolt here, broadcast footage from industrial centers around the country, showing crowds of hundreds of thousands attending strike rallies.

At the largest enterprise in the Slovak capital, Bratislava, the company's radio even issued instructions on how to go about the strike, television said.

Huge crowds of strikers were seen in Bratislava, the east Slovak industrial center of Kosice, the mining center of Ostrava on the Polish border, and in Usti nad Labem, the heart of industrial north Bohemia.

There was no estimate of how many workers went on strike, but the television footage and the crowds in Prague suggested the strike was a major success for the opposition.

duction would not be completely disrupted.

"It has to go to the very end," said Jana Cervenkova, one of those protesting on Wenceslas Square. "As long as the Communists rule, it is going to be as messed up as it was for the last 40 years."

"Look Gustav, how thick the crowd is!" the masses chanted, referring to President Gustav Husak, who headed the crackdown on democratic reforms that Dubcek tried to institute in 1968.

"Dubcek to the Castle!" they yelled. Husak replaced Dubcek in 1969.

Sirens wailed and church bells pealed across the land at noon to signal the start of the strike.

People jangled keys and rang little bells of their own in a symbolic signal to the Communists that their time in power is up.

"The last bell is ringing, the fairy tale is over!" they chanted.

A radio announcer called the strike "the highest form of ... struggle" for democracy and said it had been made necessary because "of the mistakes of the regime."

Later, a representative of the Student Strike Committee that initiated the protest proclaimed on the radio that protests, which began 11 days ago, would continue until a clause enshrining the Communists' leading role is struck from the constitution.

Rebels Assassinate Comoro President

MAYOTTE, Comoro Islands — Rebel troops attacked the presidential palace in the Comoro Republic and killed the longtime ruler of the Indian Ocean island nation, state-run Radio Comoro reported today.

Officials at the Comoro Embassy in Paris said Sunday night's attack was led by a former army commander who recently resigned in a dispute with President Ahmed Abdallah Abderrahmane.

The ex-commandant, Ahmed Mohamed, led an undetermined number of men in the assassination, said an embassy official who spoke on condition of anonymity. It was unknown whether Mohamed had intended to seize power and whether he was killed.

Many Cholesterol Tests Said Inaccurate

By Deborah Mesce

WASHINGTON — Cholesterol screenings in shopping malls and other public settings often can be inaccurate, pose hygiene risks and frequently fail to provide counseling or physician referral, a government report said today.

The report by the Department of Health and Human Services' inspector general recommends federal regulation of all cholesterol screenings that are not conducted by health care professionals.

An investigation by the inspector general found that basic rules of hygiene were often ignored, qualifications and training of testers varied widely and public screenings often lacked the optimal conditions needed to produce accurate results with portable analyzers.

"The public in general is not aware of these shortcomings, and does not know what to look for in safe, high-quality public screening programs," said the report.

"In addition, screening staff may be placing themselves as well as screenees at risk due to marginal observation of the basic rules of hygiene and infection control procedures," the report said.

The report was being discussed at a hearing today by a House Small Business subcommittee on regulation and business opportunities, chaired by Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who requested the study.

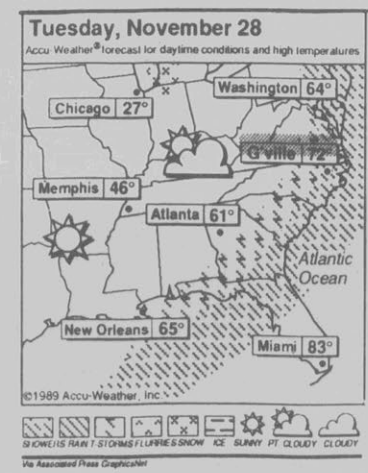

Cholesterol screenings are conducted at shopping malls, pharmacies, health clubs, village halls and a variety of other public settings. The report said it found no reliable national statistics on prevalence of screenings but said that because of greater awareness of the link between high cholesterol and heart disease, "demand for screening is increasing significantly."

"At a time when over 60 million adult Americans may currently have high blood cholesterol, placing them at risk of heart disease, it

THOMASTON, Conn. — The mother and friends of an American church activist arrested in El Salvador denied the accusations of Salvadoran police that she had hidden explosives and ammunition for leftist guerrillas.

"Jennifer is working for the church," said Audrey Casolo, the mother of 28-year-old Jennifer J. Casolo. "She is working to help the poor people."

Salvadoran police on Sunday arrested Ms. Casolo and seized a cache of ammunition they said was buried under her house in San Salvador. Police briefly exhibited Ms. Casolo for reporters Sunday, but she was not provided an opportunity to comment.

Ms. Casolo, of Thomaston, is a representative of the Christian Educational Seminar, an ecumenical group based in San Antonio, Texas, that provides tours of El Salvador to visiting Americans.

Greenville's Vitality, Growth Sold Chain In Selecting Site

By Frances Horton Arrington
 THE DAILY REFLECTOR

When Harris Teeter officials decided to move their super-market chain into eastern North Carolina, Greenville was among the top cities considered for a store site.

"We chose Greenville for the same reason that a lot of folks are choosing Greenville — a lot of vitality, good quality growth," said Sam Kendrick, vice president of finance at Harris Teeter. "We feel like it's our kind of market."

Kendrick said there are a number of factors that sold store officials on Greenville.

"The university (East Carolina) is there. We're big on that because we've done well in other university cities like Chapel Hill, Boone and our store near UNC-Charlotte is doing well," Kendrick said this morning from Harris Teeter's Charlotte headquarters. "We also like Greenville's hospital. The city has a financial center and a business center."

Kendrick said Harris Teeter had been searching for a Greenville site for three or four years.

"Everything we looked at was on the bypass or beyond," he said. "We felt that everyone had moved out and left a vacancy in the interior of the town."

He said he is pleased about the Charles Boulevard site because it is located inside the city and is close to ECU and neighboring residential developments.

"We wanted to get as close to the college as we could and we feel like we've got good access to some of the other subdivisions," Kendrick said. "We feel like there is enough business in the area to support our store. Hopefully, we'll pull from the community at large."

He said owners of University Center are apparently not having problems finding tenants.

"It looks like it's going to be a real successful venture," Kendrick said. "The (shopping) center is leasing up nicely — a lot of businesses are going into it. I understand there's been a lot of good response to it from the community."

Kendrick said construction of the Greenville store cost Harris Teeter between $1.2 to $1.3 million. He said the company spent an additional $1 million for store equipment and about $400,000 for inventory.

"We have very high hopes for Greenville. That seems to be the town in the eastern part of the

Landing Delayed

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Blustery winds that sent small "dust devils" whipping across the space shuttle's desert landing site forced NASA to keep the Discovery astronauts in space another day.

Plans to end the secret military mission with a rare night landing Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., were scrapped because of the persistent winds, which gusted to nearly 30 mph.

The five astronauts, who reportedly deployed a spy satellite during their classified mission, were scheduled to return to Earth today with a 2:52 p.m. PST touchdown at Edwards.

Sunday's postponement marked the sixth time in 32 shuttle flights that a landing has been delayed by weather.

NASA initially rescheduled the landing for 4:32 p.m. PST today, but Mission Control decided to bring the shuttle back at 2:52 p.m. PST to reduce sun glare.

The Christmas tree lots are filling up; meaning only one thing. It's time to choose that special tree to help your family celebrate the holidays. Before you grab the kids and go down to pick our your Christmas tree, check to make sure the size and freshness is right.

Take a look at the area your Christmas tree is to be placed. Can you really use an eight-foot specimen, or will a six-footer tree be better. Make sure you measure. Trees look a lot larger once you get them inside the house.

To check the freshness of your Christmas tree, try these two methods. Lift the tree a couple of inches off the ground and bring it down abruptly on the stump end. Lots of outside, green needles should not fall. Inside needles turn brown and shed naturally every year. Take hold of a branch about six inches from the tip. Pull your hand toward you allowing the branch to slip through your fingers. Needles should remain attached to the branch.

Now that you have selected your special tree, care for it as you would a fresh bouquet of flowers. As soon as you get it home, make a fresh straight cut across the base of the trunk, about one inch is enough.

Immediately place your tree in a water-holding stand or, if you are not ready to decorate it, in a bucket of water. Don't ever let the base of the tree dry out or a seal will form and a new cut will be necessary.

A Christmas tree, like a bouquet of flowers, likes it cool and safe, so don't put it near your fireplace, heat source or television set.

Don't forget to unplug lights when you go to bed or leave home.

Be sure that the light cords and connections you use on your tree are in good working order to insure a safe Christmas for your family.

The life cycle of your Christmas tree is completed with the end of the holiday season. A new Christmas tree was planted to replace yours to insure that you will never need to miss the joy and happiness of a REAL TREE.

Ornament Sale

The Easter Seal Society of North Carolina is offering a limited-edition gold-on-brass Christmas ornament as a holiday fund-raiser.

The ornaments, each with the Great Seal of the State of North Carolina, cost $12 each. Proceeds will benefit children and adults with disabilities through Easter Seal services, a society spokesman said.

Long Jail Stay Over

GREENSBORO — A clerical error at the post office left a 20-year-old Greensboro theft suspect in jail for 127 days.

Timothy Andre Poteat, 20, finally walked free last Wednesday, after the Guilford County district attorney's office agreed to drop the license charge and reduce the possession charge to a misdemeanor in return for his guilty plea.

Poteat's sentence was time served.

"I'm in jail with murderers and people with life sentences," the brick mason said, when still clinging to the bars of the jail day room he shared with 26 people.

"I'm not a gangster. I don't sell drugs or nothing. The only thing I'm going to do when I get out is go back to work," he told the Greensboro News & Record.

Students Exchange Volunteer Service For Credit Points

By George A. Threewitts
ECU NEWS BUREAU

Volunteers please! This is the request going out to students at East Carolina University.

The students in the freshman-dominated Health 1000 classes are being urged to volunteer their time to worthy causes in exchange for a couple of points added to their grades at the end of the semester. It's an unusual exercise funded by the federal government to promote volunteerism.

"The response from both the students and the community has been overwhelmingly positive," said Judy B. Baker, a health education instructor in the department of health, physical education, recreation and safety.

"We had no idea when we started the program it would turn into something like this," she said.

Beginning last spring students taking Health in a Modern Society (Health 1000), a required course, were told they could get two extra credit points by volunteering for at least five hours of work with one of 26 community agencies. A total of 249 students signed up.

When their working hours were tallied the total came to 4,096 hours — more than 16 hours per student.

"The objective is to instill in them the importance of community service and hope that it will become a part of their lives," said Ms. Baker. And so far, she said, the project seems to be working.

The student volunteers do an assortment of jobs for such organizations as the American Red Cross, Council on the Aging, the Boys Club, and a program for terminally ill children called the Dream Factory.

For the Red Cross the students can donate blood or help with registration during blood drives. They help package food and deliver meals, produce newsletters and give musical programs for the elderly. At the Boys Club they serve as tutors, teach arts and crafts and work in the game rooms.

In a Shelter for Battered Women, students help care for children while mothers attend support groups.

Last spring when Dream Factory officials needed volunteers to help with a television fund-raiser they called ECU. The students responded and the agency got all of the volunteers it needed for the project.

"The biggest thing they are doing right now is providing a service to the community," said Ms. Baker. And she said many of the volunteers have been deeply affected by their experiences. She said students often get attached to the programs they are working with and continue to volunteer.

"Not only do the students get rewarded for serving but they feel more positive about themselves," Ms. Baker said.

She said the students are also learning about career options they've never thought about before.

The project is supported by a federal ACTION grant from the Federal Domestic Volunteer Agency. The program was started to encourage volunteerism. Precise records are kept and in most cases the students are required to follow guidelines and attend orientation classes.

Ms. Baker said she hopes the program can become a permanent part of the curriculum and she said a proposal has been written to seek funding from private sources when the federal grant ends.

The project is set up as a volunteer effort and most but not all of the 57 sections of the Health 1000 courses taught at ECU are participating. Ms. Baker said participation is up to the students and to the instructors of the course.

She said research is being done to see how many students do more than the five hours required for the extra credit and how many continue to volunteer later as a result of the program.

"We hope to catch the students early in their college experience hoping that this will continue," she said.

So far the response from both students and from the agencies has been good. The agencies are beginning to call and ask for volunteers for specific projects and their reactions to the students' help have been extremely positive, according to Ms. Baker.

As for the students, their feelings towards the program have been positive as well. One freshman who worked with displaced families said the experience has changed her life. "It I can make a small difference in the life of one child it was well worth it," the student said.

Drive Under Way To Gain Legislative Support For Handicapped Kids' Services

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — North Carolina has taken some steps in developing services for infants and toddlers, but it will need to expand them to handicapped preschoolers to keep receiving millions of dollars in federal aid, a state official says.

Under a 1986 law passed by Congress, states can get federal money to launch services for handicapped children.

But to continue getting federal help, states must make a commitment by the 1991-92 school year to provide a "free and appropriate" education to all students ages 3 and 4. They also must offer services such as physical therapy to handicapped infants and toddlers under 2.

Further, said Kym Lake, infant services director for the state Department of Human Resources, the General Assembly must mandate educational services for all handicapped 3- and 4-year-olds by June 30, 1991, or the state will lose an estimated $22 million in federal aid.

That's why Sally Sloop, the mother of an autistic boy, is leading a statewide drive to win a legislative mandate that would bring free, comprehensive services to all handicapped children younger than 5.

The human cost in lost services to children with special needs would be incalculable, said Sally Sloop, co-chairman of the N.C. Interagency Coordinating Council, which Gov. Jim Martin appointed to help the state carry out the law.

Parents now must navigate uncharted channels to find the few services available for their handicapped preschoolers.

Services for the 7,000 handicapped 3- and 4-year-olds are limited largely to what the state can provide with the $9.5 million it receives from the federal government. Many parents must put their children on waiting lists or seek private help.

Old Churches Are Proud Of Heritage

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOONE — They are Old Regular Baptists, Regular Baptists, Free Will Baptists, Missionary Baptists, Primitive Baptists, Union Baptists, and many more, but they're proud of their heritage.

"One colleague of mine counted 27 varieties," said Howard Dorgan, a professor at Appalachian State University, who searches the mountains for the plain-faced churches.

"The old traditional churches are growing-old churches," said Dorgan. "They're becoming very small. A lot of these churches have 20 members. Some have 10 members."

Many people living in the Appalachian Mountains don't know where the churches are or, more importantly, exactly what they are, Dorgan said.

"They're always afraid people are making fun of them because of the thinking that they are very ignorant," he told the Winston-Salem Journal. "They have a remarkably high degree of sophistication in theologies."

"There is a tremendous amount of emotionalism, but they do know who they are theologically."

Dorgan first wrote in depth about them in a 1987 book Giving Glory to God in Appalachia: Worship Practices of Six Baptist Subdenominations.

His second book, The Old Regular Baptists of Central Appalachia, is due back from the printer this week.

Dorgan, who has taught communication arts at Appalachian State since 1971, found his calling at the low-frequency end of the AM radio dial on Sunday mornings. He tunes in the rapping cadence of preachers who came to the microphone without notes but — they are convinced — with Heaven's words in their mouths.

"I was just absolutely fascinated by that chanting rhythmical style," he said. "I started wandering through the mountains with a tape recorder, trying to make contacts before I went into a church so I would be welcome.... I started discovering more and more Baptists."

An article eight years ago in a newspaper aimed at tourists described the 57-year-old professor with the Amish-style beard who carried the recorder and a camera.

It was read by Darvin Marshall, a Regular Baptist in eastern Kentucky. Marshall got in touch with Dorgan and began taking him to church.

Through Marshall, his contacts multiplied, and Dorgan is convinced that part of the reason is the empathy he wears on his sleeve for a vanishing breed of old-time religion.

They allowed him to witness baptisms in the New River, foot-washing services in Kentucky, and memorial services and dinners in four states, he said.

Churches lent him histories and minutes for his research, he said.

He found the northwestern corner of North Carolina rich in religion.

"The wonderful thing about Ashe and Alleghany counties is that there is far less cultural contamination," said Dorgan, who was raised as a Methodist in northern Louisiana but converted to Catholicism when he married.

Holiday Care

The Need Continues Year-Round

For most people, today was a day of repentance, food-wise. A lot of belt buckles pulled a little too tight and many a skirt just couldn't handle that last back button.

After a holiday weekend of gorging, it was a day to start over with diets, exercise and resolve. The funny stories about Aunt Millie's beans and Uncle Buck spilling his tea made starting over easier. Many of those memories were shared over brown bag turkey sandwiches today.

But there are those whose clothes weren't tight today from overeating and whose holiday stories don't include warm anecdotes from a family kitchen.

The homeless and the hungry had a different kind of Monday after Thanksgiving. It, too, was a return to routine — staying warm, finding food and shelter. During this season of holiday giving most of us tend to think more about the homeless and the hungry. That's good, but it would be better if that concern continued year-round.

In Greenville, organizations like the Greenville Community Shelter, Salvation Army and others, help the homeless regardless of the time of year. At Thanksgiving, special efforts went on at the Community Shelter, St. Gabriel's Church and elsewhere to provide the traditional Thanksgiving meal to those who otherwise would not be at a table laden with turkey.

During the Christmas holidays more people will be involved in efforts to help and many civic and professional organizations will fix baskets of Christmas food and distribute it to needy families.

It is good that the holidays cause a community to be aware that there are many who do not share in an affluent society. Some don't have a dry, warm place to stay. Some don't know where their next meal will come from. The fortunes of fate have left some unable to provide housing and food for themselves.

There are agencies which are involved with the poor and the homeless throughout the year and their work is to be applauded. None of us should forget, though, that the less fortunate are the responsibility of all of us.

Each citizen can help by contributing cash or goods to the agencies that serve the homeless. Each citizen can volunteer time to the Community Shelter or other agencies.

Our community is fortunate to have agencies which serve the needs of the homeless and hungry. But these agencies can't function without community commitment. Support must continue year around if those who need help the most are to receive it.

That's a good point to ponder after Thanksgiving when those belt buckles tug at tummies and those buttons just won't meet over that middle.

Is The Steep Price For Naught?

William Raspberry

WASHINGTON — Dexter Manley is out of the National Football League, probably forever. You don't have to be a soft-on-crime bleeding heart, or even a Manley fan, to wonder what purpose has been served.

Along with thousands of other Washingtonians, I've been a Manley fan ever since the huge and agile man-child showed up here as a terror of the special teams. I've enjoyed his motor-mouth good-naturedness, I have admired his skill at terrorizing NFL quarterbacks, and I have admired his courage for admitting that, despite four years as a "student athlete" at Oklahoma State, he couldn't read. It took a special guy to enroll at the Lab School in a successful effort to overcome his illiteracy.

But he recently tested positive for substance abuse for the third time. And in the NFL, the third strike is out.

Is anyone better off for his headlong plunge from stardom to disaster?

Certainly Dexter isn't. Last week, he was earning nearly $1 million a year, half of it from broadcasting and promotions. This week, he is just another guy out of work.

Are his fans — including the youngsters who sport replicas of his No. 72 jersey — better off? Are they less likely to experiment with drugs because their idol has fallen? Would they have been more likely to try drugs if he hadn't?

Is the NFL better off now that one of its stars is out of the game? It's hard to see how.

What is the purpose of the NFL drug policy anyway? Unlike anabolic steroids (the strength- and performance-enhancing compounds), the drugs that brought Manley down (alcohol and cocaine) are not thought to give any competitive advantage to those who use them. Unlike airline pilots or railroad engineers, football-playing drug-users endanger only themselves. Athletes who play poorly lose their jobs, whether their poor play is due to drug abuse, poor work habits or declining skills.

Nor is there any evidence to suspect widespread drug abuse in the NFL. The league does not publish its figures, but according to a recent report in Sports Illustrated, fewer than 1 percent of NFL players tested positive for cocaine in 1986 and 1987, and fewer than 2 percent for marijuana.

So what is the point of the league's test-and-punish rules? To rehabilitate drug abusers? To punish them? To deter non-users from starting?

The only explanation I've heard that makes the slightest bit of sense (though I've never heard any allegation that it actually happened) is that drug-abusing athletes might find themselves in the clutches of drug-dealing gamblers who could order them to miss a key tackle or fumble at a crucial time.

Some who claim to know say that Manley's earlier offenses were for alcohol abuse. But haven't we decided that alcoholism is not a moral lapse but an illness? Does it make sense to punish a worker, not for missing work or for subpar performance, but for having a disease?

Does the NFL consider substance abuse an illness? It's hard to say. Under league rules, the first positive test for drug abuse (whether the drug is marijuana or cocaine) draws a warning; the second mandates a 30-day treatment program, and the third suspension for life, with the right to reconsideration after a year.

The mandatory treatment rule sounds like acknowledgment of a disease. But do the people who run the NFL believe that a second-time marijuana offender is a sick man in need of a month's treatment? Or that an alcoholic who falls off the wagon and then smokes a joint can be cured by taking away his livelihood?

Maybe the league believes, as Washington Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke apparently does, that the problem is not illness but plain stupidity.

"I gave him credit for having enough intelligence to say to himself: 'I'll never do it again. I'm going to discipline myself. I'm going to exert enough willpower never to do that silly thing I did before,'" said Cooke, as though he were discussing speeding tickets or curfew violations.

"I feel sorry for his lack of intelligence in not overcoming this problem created by this addiction."

I can agree with Cooke that experimenting with prohibited drugs manifests a certain lack of intelligence. But for an addict to fall off the wagon, under circumstances where he is sure to be found out and under penalty of losing nearly $1 million a year, sounds more like compulsion than mere silliness. That is the obvious lesson for anyone tempted to try addictive drugs even once.

None of this excuses Manley, of course. He knew the rules, however pointless they may seem, and he violated them. Just conceivably, the steep price he now must pay will make it easier for others to keep straight.

But I wouldn't count on it.

El Salvador: A Pact With Killers

WASHINGTON — In my early days as a journalist, I worked the police beat, but I didn't see my first murder victim until I went to El Salvador. There, I saw two — both laid out on the tile floor of a morgue. They had been shot in the head the night before.

In the following days, I saw many more victims. These were shown to me in snapshots made by a human-rights organization. The pictures were contained in a thick album — page after page of the mutilated and the beheaded. I did not so much leave El Salvador as flee the place.

Now the remarkably unremarkable has again happened in El Salvador. Five Jesuits, including the rector and vice rector of Central American University, were murdered. So, too, was a housekeeper and her 15-year-old daughter. There is some indication the priests were tortured before being killed. And there is further indication that the killers were either government troops or a right-wing death squad operating with permission of the military.

The U.S. ambassador, William J. Walker, says the evidence is so far inconclusive. He is right about that. El Salvador's president, Alfredo Cristiani, says whoever is responsible will be punished. He is wrong about that. For years, Salvadorian death squads have operated with impunity. The killers of churchmen and women, American nuns and countless others have nothing to fear. Justice, like snow, is never seen in El Salvador.

The unaccountable violence of El Salvador is nothing new. But civil war has made it worse, and so has American aid. Without it, the country might have been at peace years ago and this civil war, like countless others, would have been settled by the people involved. This is not to say that only the right wing engages in terrorism and that the insurgents are a bunch of pacifists. It is only to ask a question: Why have we made this bloody business our business?

Once, the answer to that question was supposedly obvious: The FMLN rebels were communists. As in Nicaragua, if communism got a toehold, it would mean several things, not the least of them being Soviet missiles uncomfortably close to the U.S. mainland. That has always been a preposterous argument since, in the missile age, not even ICBMs located in the Soviet Union are more than half-an-hour away — and, besides, such missiles are not even stationed in Cuba. Since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, Moscow has respected American fears.

Richard Cohen

Now, though, not even specious arguments can be advanced. The Soviet Union is an empire in remission. It has pulled out of Afghanistan. It has allowed its former satellites to choose their own way of governing. Yogi Berra said it ain't over until it's over, but even American conservatives are beginning to say the Cold War is over.

Given what all the world can see, how can the United States continue to justify a Central American policy based on the fear of Soviet encroachment in this hemisphere? Given that the Soviet Union has gone into Chapter XI, how can we continue to fear that it will offer oodles of aid to Nicaragua or the rebels in El Salvador?

The United States has yet to adjust psychologically to what has happened since Mikhail Gorbachev came to power. To the hammer of the word "communism," its policy knee still jerks: troops, aid, weapons and, in the case of Nicaragua, the maintenance of an insurgency. Never mind that neither the Sandinistas in Nicaragua nor the FMLN in El Salvador are Moscow-style communists or maybe, as some people contend, even communists at all. But even if they all sleep with a picture of Lenin under their pillow, what does it matter to us?

Of course we favor democracy. But we didn't support a contra-style insurrection when Nicaragua was ruled by the despotic Somoza clan. El Salvador troubled us not at all when it was brutally run by an oligarchy of landowners. We make no war in Honduras, which is run by the military, nor do we intervene in Guatemala. By comparison to it, Nicaragua is a leafy city on the hill.

The crimes of the Salvadoran military and the para-military death squads have been unspeakable — thousands of deaths. And yet for almost a decade now, we have intervened on their side — the side, we said, of anti-communism. We have overlooked the internal reasons for the civil war and think that by continually threatening to withhold aid we can reform the society.

The murder of the Jesuits, probably by the military or with its permission, is further evidence that elements in El Salvador will continue to go their own way. The Salvadoran right wing has always used the communist threat to justify its barbarity, and we have used the same reasoning to justify our aid.

With the Berlin Wall all but down, our policy in El Salvador stands exposed for what it has always been: a pact with killers. It's time for the United States to go home.

Richard Cohen writes for The Washington Post Writers Group.

Mayors Call For Government To Do More In Drug Fight

By Patricia Walsh
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — City governments are willing to be soldiers in the battle against drugs but need more than just fighting words from the Bush administration, mayors attending an annual conference said.

Mayor Terry Goddard of Phoenix, president of the National League of Cities, said Sunday the federal government must do more to fight illegal drugs, viewed by Americans as the gravest problem facing the country.

"And yet, we've heard all the rhetoric, we heard (drug czar William) Bennett make all the right analyses, and then the mountain labored and out came a mouse. There were no new resources, no new commitment to fight drugs," Goddard said at the conference attended by 5,000 officials.

"The federal government needs to step in," said Seattle Mayor Charles Royer. "Give me a break about 'the federal government's money' — just because they print it doesn't mean they earn it."

With such a large chunk of federal tax being funneled into defense, it is hard to get funding for local programs, Royer said.

Mayor Andrew Young, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said major cuts in military spending won't come soon, despite the improved relations between the United States and the Soviet Union and the growing independence of Eastern Europe.

"A 5 percent cut in military spending may be realistic, but I don't see a drastic dismantling of the military empire," Young said. "We must wait and see if the changes are maintained. We were doing pretty well in China, and all of a sudden they clamped down."

Young said the lack of federal resources to resolve domestic problems is rooted in the lack of decisive national leadership. "The problem with Washington is that nobody will make a decision about anything," he said.

Cleveland Mayor George Voinovich said that inadequate public education is the root of the drug problem. "Somehow, we have to get these kids as early as we can and teach them not to use drugs," he said.

"When I was elected in 1977, crack was not even in our vocabulary. Now, it is the symbol of a lost generation ... of people who are not safe on the streets," Royer said.

Vice President Dan Quayle

canceled a scheduled address today due to a death in his family. Jack Kemp, secretary for Housing and Urban Development, is scheduled to speak Tuesday.

Up To 4 Feet Of Snow Falls In The West

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Near-blizzard conditions blew into the Dakotas today from a storm that dumped up to 4 feet of snow from the Sierras to the Rockies. So much snow fell in Utah that a World Cup ski race was postponed.

The snow delighted early-season recreational skiers but sent cars skidding off roads and into each other, prompted some avalanche warnings and caused power outages.

Icy roads were blamed for car crashes that killed three people in Montana on Sunday. Some schools were closed in Minnesota today.

Interstate highways and smaller roads were closed at times during the weekend, causing major traffic jams as Thanksgiving holiday travelers tried to return home.

I-80 over Donner Summit at Truckee, Calif., was closed for nearly 10 hours into early Sunday, and the California Highway Patrol reported traffic delays of three to four hours through the pass later in the day. The National Weather Service said the storm dumped 13 inches of snow on Donner Summit on Friday and another 38 inches Saturday and early Sunday.

In Utah, World Cup officials determined that conditions were too dangerous for men's slalom races Sunday at Park City, which got nearly two feet of snow by nightfall.

But the snow meant other ski areas were able to open.

"There's an awful lot of (snow) out there. It's a welcome sight," said Angela Gaines, an Alta Ski Lift employee. Alta had 26 inches of snow by Sunday night.

However, the Utah Avalanche Forecast Center issued an avalanche warning for the mountains around Salt Lake City, Provo and Park City.

In addition to snow, the storm also yielded two funnel clouds and 50-60 mph winds in southern Davis County in Utah, but authorities reported no damage or injuries. High winds also were blamed for power interruptions in Utah's Santa Clara County.

In Montana on Sunday, three people died in crashes on icy roads, while passengers in about 1,000 cars and trucks on I-90 between Bozeman and Livingston were stuck in a traffic jam 10 miles long, the state highway patrol said. The patrol temporarily closed the highway's westbound lanes.

The storm moved east today, piling up heavy snow in Colorado's northern and central mountains and in the western Dakotas.

"Near blizzard conditions, that's what it's like in the western Dakotas," Karl Swanberg, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Minneapolis, said early today.

"It's gusting 50 mph, producing near zero visibility" around Rapid City, S.D., Swanberg said.

No snowfall estimates were available early today. "It's hard to measure when it's blowing around like that," he said.

Temperatures were expected to drop into the low teens and as many as 8 inches of snow were forecast for northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

All Moorhead, Minn., schools canceled classes today after the area got four inches of snow during the night. Two- to 3-foot snowdrifts were common, said meteorologist Bob Nordlund of the National Weather Service in Fargo, N.D.

In the Pacific Northwest, the storm dumped snow in most of Oregon's mountains. Two of the state's largest ski resorts — Timberline Lodge on Mount Hood and Mount Bachelor ski area in central Oregon — opened Sunday.

Baby Shamu Has Party

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The four-day party for Baby Shamu ended with the killer whale extinguishing a candle on her birthday cake with a playful squirt.

"We've had a pretty exciting weekend here with her," said Thad Lacinak, director of animal training for Sea World of Texas. "She's quite a ham."

The 1,100-pound whale, who turned 1 Sunday, is the first Texas-born killer whale and the fifth born in the United States. The others were born at the Sea Worlds in California or Florida.

IN THE STATE

Farmer Awarded

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A 31-year-old Haywood County farmer was one of two North Carolina leaf growers named recipients of the Outstanding Young Tobacco Farmer Awards in ceremonies in Richmond, Va., recently.

Steven Wayne Ross runs a diversified farming operation near Clyde producing burley tobacco, beef cattle, tomatoes, hay and wheat.

In its 12th year, the awards program is sponsored by Philip Morris and is conducted by the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

John Thomas Shaw III of Vance County was the second recipient.

Highway Deaths

At least nine people, including a Lenoir County woman, have died in North Carolina during the Thanksgiving weekend, the state Highway Patrol reported Monday.

The Carolina Motor Club projected that 15 people would die in traffic accidents before the holiday was over.

In Lenoir County at 6:15 p.m. on Saturday, Ivey Wayne Smith, 25, of Seven Springs died when he was standing on N.C. 55 and was struck by an oncoming vehicle.

The deaths bring to 1,306 the number of people killed on state roads so far this year, compared to 1,409 on this same date last year.

The official holiday weekend fatality county began at 6 p.m. on Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Last year during the 102-hour period, there were 17 traffic fatalities and 1,310 injuries in wrecks on state roads, compared to 22 deaths in 1987.

Girl Shot

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A 2-year-old Buncombe County girl was critically wounded in a shooting involving her father and another man, authorities said Sunday.

Amanda Owens was flown by ambulance to a Greenville, S.C., hospital late Saturday for emergency surgery, according to the Buncombe County Sheriff's Department.

The child suffered a gunshot wound to the stomach and was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit Sunday, according to a nursing supervisor.

Amanda's father, Jerry Owens, was treated and released from Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville for a gunshot wound to the arm, authorities said.

David T. Lushbaugh was arrested in connection with the shooting, and was charged with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious injury, officials said. Bond for Lushbaugh was set at $60,000 secured.

The shooting occurred about 10 p.m. Saturday at a home near Arden. Other details were not available.

Checkpoints Set

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Wildlife officers and sheriff's deputies in three counties are setting up checkpoints on little-traveled back roads near popular deer hunting areas to check for hunting violations.

The operations are part of an effort by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission to stem the illegal taking of game.

Authorities set up checkpoints in Macon, Cherokee and Clay counties on Saturday. Two citations were issued for having a loaded, large caliber weapon after big game season closed and one big game tag violation.

"As far as the operation, everything went real smooth. The cooperation of the three sheriff's departments was outstanding," said NCWRC Sgt. Mike Stephens.

In the past three weeks, wildlife officers have made four illegal deer and three illegal bear cases in the three county area, Stephens said.

There also seems to be more poaching and spotlighting of game than last year, said NCWRC Capt. Ben Wade.

Medical Group Urges Tougher Laws For State's Unlicensed Physicians

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The N.C. Medical Society and the state Board of Medical Examiners are hoping to make practicing medicine without a license a felony, instead of a misdemeanor punishable by a $100 fine.

The action was prompted by a Watauga County case last month in which Gregory Caplinger pleaded guilty to practicing medicine without a license.

For more than two years, he had been treating patients in Watauga County, billing himself as an M.D. and a "doctor of naturopathy."

Naturopathy is a form of therapy using natural remedies, but Caplinger went beyond that. He was performing medical tests such as electrocardiograms and purporting to treat medical ailments.

After his guilty plea, Caplinger was fined $500 and given a two-year suspended sentence on the condition that he no longer practice medicine in North Carolina.

Working first out of his Natural Health and Therapy Clinic in Boone and later in his Blue Ridge Health Clinic in Blowing Rock, Caplinger used a computerized machine that he claimed could assess a patient's ailments and diagnose vitamin deficiencies.

But Caplinger's medical degree was from a correspondence school in the British West Indies, said Gerald Wilson of Boone, the assistant district attorney who prosecuted Caplinger last month in Watauga Superior Court. And the only medical license he had ever received was for being an X-ray technician in Florida, Wilson told The News and Observer of Raleigh.

Caplinger could not be reached for comment.

At its recent meeting in Asheville, the medical society adopted a resolution urging the state attorney general's office to vigorously investigate all cases like Caplinger's and to refer them to local district attorneys for prosecution.

It will decide in the spring whether to propose legislation making the offense a felony or wait for someone else to introduce such a bill, said Patricia Hodgson, the society's director of communications.

That Caplinger was ever prosecuted at all stemmed in large part from the efforts of Charles Davant III, a family practitioner in Blowing Rock who waged a virtual one-man campaign for more than two years.

In a six-page article published in June in the state medical society's magazine, Davant described his frustrations in getting authorities to take some action.

"Mostly, this is a story of how sick people, many suffering from cancer, arthritis, heart disease, or other chronic illnesses, have been 'ripped off' by an unqualified, unlicensed 'M.D.' whose only documented qualification to deliver any aspect of health care in the United States is to take X-rays in Florida," Davant wrote.

"The State of North Carolina allowed this to continue in spite of irrefutable evidence of continuing violation of our licensing laws for over two years."

Collegiate Slang Has Significance

By Robin P. Teater
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When you talk about Connie Eble's scholarly interest, you need to understand phrases like "gumbey head" and "geeked out."

"Slang is a natural part of every language that has a large enough population ... most societies that have enough complexity to them have the right condition for slang to develop," said Ms. Eble, an associate professor of English at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

But do you understand this: Captain Hipness would be bummed out to be seen with an earth muffin, but a limburger would be doing well to bring it all back home with a gumbey head.

Translation: A cool guy doesn't want to date a wallflower, but a girl no one will date would be doing well to go out with anyone, even if he's stupid.

Mercifully, people usually outgrow such talk, Ms. Eble says.

"I think it outlives its usefulness for us," Ms. Eble said in a telephone interview from her home in Carrboro. "It's not what one would do when one wants to show his maturity ... to establish himself in his profession. It no longer serves a purpose for us. We want to be cosmopolitan after the college age."

Ms. Eble, whose book "College Slang 101" has recently been published by Spectacle Lane Press Inc., said slang is important during college days.

"The psychological security of a shared slang vocabulary during the college years should not be underestimated," she said. "Slang allows college students to endure and enjoy together that twilight zone between adolescence and adulthood."

The 47-year-old linguist said the book is a compilation of examples of slang contributed by her students in her 18 years at UNC.

"Every expression in the book was submitted to me by a student at UNC," she said. "It's a standard assignment in one of my classes for a student to bring in 10 examples of campus slang."

The guide to college slang includes synonyms for studying hard, such as "book," "geek out," "crank," "crank," and "rush the attic."

Synonyms for drunk are too numerous to count, but she features 60 in her book, including "farmed," "trashed," "basted," "polluted," "woofy," and "total-ed out," Ms. Eble said.

The UNC professor isn't using the book in any of her courses, but she said some of her colleagues at other universities are making the book part of the reading required in introductory language classes.

"It really is not appropriate for anything I am teaching," she said. "This has been a scholarly interest of mine for a number of years — for the past 10 years."

In addition to students, groups such as prisoners, con artists, band members and athletes develop their own slang, she said.

"In any instance where language can be used to solidify a group, that's when we see slang developing. Usually these groups are in some way opposed to the mainstream society."

Bakker Ministry To Move

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. — Jim and Tammy Ministries held its last church service at a strip shopping center and supporters said they now plan to meet at an unnamed hotel.

A ministry spokesman said Sunday supporters wanted to keep the location secret because they are tired of walking through reporters and television cameras to get to church.

One supporter was overheard saying the ministry would meet at a Howard Johnson's near its old location. An assistant manager at the hotel, who declined to identify herself, said she could not confirm whether the Bakker ministry had booked a room.

Earlier this month, the ministry reached an agreement with its landlord to move out of the Shoppers World plaza by Thursday. Stewart Gilman, owner of the plaza, said Sunday he did not know where the ministry will go but he expects the ministry to honor the agreement.

Amnesty Program Nears Completion

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — Thousands of North Carolina tax evaders have five days to avoid prosecution by paying their back taxes plus interest before being faced with a Class I felony.

And the state faces the same countdown for collecting the final $9.3 million to meet the $20 million goal set when North Carolina's tax-amnesty campaign began three months ago.

The amnesty expires at midnight Friday. For people who think they can beat the system, the N.C. Department of Revenue amnesty slogan promises, "Unless you make time for it now, you could do time for it later."

Effective Saturday, people who evade state income taxes can face up to five years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

North Carolina began its amnesty period Sept. 1 with the goal of raising back taxes and interest from thousands of people and businesses. The Revenue Department has collected $10.7 million so far, said Charles Collins, spokesman for the amnesty campaign.

"We think that we will get at least half of what we receive in the last week," Collins told the Greensboro News & Record.

Collins bases his optimism on the common taxpayer practice of waiting until the last minute to pay and on the experiences of states with similar campaigns. Kentucky and New York, for example, exceeded amnesty goals and collected the majority of the money in the last week of their campaigns.

Kentucky, with a $10 million goal, received 81 percent of its $61.1 million total in the last week; New York, with a $200 million goal, received about 60 percent of its $401.3 million total in the last week. Kentucky spent about $250,000 in advertising for its three-month campaign; New York spent $800,000.

North Carolina's campaign, which includes radio, television and newspaper advertisements, has cost about $585,000, Collins said.

Although Gov. Jim Martin has not taken the same high-profile approach to advertising tax amnesty as did governors in Kentucky and New York — one appeared in a commercial, the other held numerous news conferences — Tim Pittman, Martin's director of communications, said the governor has been committed to the project from the start.

Aaron Stack will be the first male nanny to graduate from the child-care school

Mass. School Graduates Its First Male Nanny

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTFIELD, Mass. — Another cultural stereotype will self-destruct when the New England School for Nannies graduates its first male nanny.

Aaron Stack, 18, of Westfield, will complete the 3½-month program Dec. 15.

Stack's sense of humor helped him in a similar situation — in high school when he was the only male in a preschool child care class.

Now, it has helped him parry the jests of friends who can't help asking if he wants to be Mary Poppins.

After graduating from Westfield High School last spring, Stack didn't want to go to college, and ruled out military service. Instead, he opted for the nanny program, which he learned about during a job fair.

"The military keeps calling me, but I say, 'I'm going to be a nanny, not a Marine,'" he said.

The $300 a week, plus room and board that he could earn as a live-in baby sitter, appealed to him.

"My pay goes into my pocket," he said. Besides, "I love kids. They're awesome."

Arthur Lord, vice president and director of admissions for the New England School for Nannies, said about 250 women have graduated from the 5-year-old school. Stack will be its first male graduate.

"We're quite proud of him. He's holding up the grades and he won't be hard to place," Lord said.

"It raises some eyebrows when men come into a field like this, like male nurse," Lord added. "We've tried males before, they're uncomfortable about being the only male in the class. Aaron's going to break the door open."

Stack said the program focuses on the business side of being a nanny as well as teaching child care and child psychology. To his surprise, a nanny can expect to have health insurance and taxes paid by the employer.

He acknowledges that since men have traditionally avoided such occupations, some people question his motivation. But Stack said he's determined to be treated as a professional care giver.

"Hey, it's practice," said Stack, who wants to have children some day. "A nanny is a practice parent."

First Living Donor Liver Transplant Set In Chicago

By Charles J. Gans
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Surgeons made final preparations today for the nation's first liver transplant from a living donor — a mother who was giving a third of her liver to her 21-month-old daughter.

Mall Admits Santa Book A Mistake

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TYSONS CORNER, Va. — The Washington area's largest shopping mall says it goofed in allowing Santa Claus to give kids a book that offers a rude awakening: Santa doesn't exist.

"It's just so absurd, the irony of it," said Linda Smyth, of Vienna, Va., a nurse who took her 4-year-old son, Logan, to visit St. Nick last week at Tysons Corner Center. "Here's Santa handing out the one thing saying he doesn't exist."

After at least one mother complained, officials at Tysons Corner Center pulled the book "A Pee Wee Christmas" from Santa's sack and replaced it with stickers and fingerprinting kits.

"What can I say?" Tysons General Manager Jim Foster told The Washington Post on Sunday. "We screwed up."

Foster said mall officials had screened more than a dozen books looking for an appropriate one, but somehow missed the subplot that says Santa isn't real.

One of a series about a group of children called the "Pee Wee Scouts," the book relates the tale of a 7-year-old named Sonny who is ridiculed by his friends because he says he believes in Santa. But by the story's end, the boy admits he knows the chubby man with the white beard and red suit is a fake.

Author Judy Delton, who said her series has sold more than 2 million copies, told the Post the book was meant for 7- and 8-year-olds and was not intended for a mall Santa Claus to give away to younger children.

If successful, the operation at the University of Chicago would provide a solution to a severe shortage of organs for children who need transplants, doctors said.

More than 700 babies a year in the United States need liver transplants, and as many as half die for lack of a donor.

Teri Smith, 29, was to donate the left lobe of her liver to her daughter, Alyssa, in the operation at Wyler Children's Hospital at the University of Chicago, said hospital spokesman John Easton.

Dr. Christopher Broelsch is leading the surgical team in the eight-to-nine-hour operation that was scheduled to begin this morning.

"In a way I kind of fear for her, but I'm confident everything will turn out OK," said Alyssa's father, John L. Smith, 27, of the San Antonio suburb of Shertz, Texas.

Alyssa suffers from an often-fatal liver disorder called biliary atresia. The disease blocks liver bile ducts, backing up bile in the bloodstream and the liver, and is the leading cause for liver transplants involving children.

Until now, the only regularly performed living donor transplants have involved kidneys and some pancreas segments.

Liver transplants from living donors have been performed only three times — in Brazil, Australia and Japan. One child has died.

In those cases, the operation were emergencies performed on critically ill children, said Dr. Peter Whittington, head of the University of Chicago's pediatric liver transplant program. The Chicago hospital has spent more than a year planning the program, and last August authorized 20 such operations to determine if the procedure is viable.

Dr. William D. Paine, who directs the liver transplant program at the University of Minnesota Health Sciences Center, said transplant specialists around the country were closely monitoring today's operation.

Women's Movement

NEW YORK (AP) — Most American women think the women's movement has made their lives better, yet only one in three consider themselves feminists, according to a poll.

The poll of 1,000 American women, published in the Dec. 4 issue of Time magazine, found that 94 percent believe the women's movement has helped them become more independent, 86 percent credit it with giving them more control over their lives, and 82 percent think it is still improving their lives.

Yet 76 percent said they pay "not very much" or "no" attention to the women's movement.

Analysts attribute these contradictory attitudes to the very success of the women's movement, Time says.

"Saying the women's movement is dead is like saying the cold war is dead," said Carol Gilligan, a Harvard professor. "No. No. It's over. It's won."

Screenings Eyed

defies common sense to allow unregulated public screening to continue," Wyden said.

His subcommittee has been studying medical testing, and its finding that a quarter of all such testing was being done in unregulated settings led to a 1988 law that brings all clinical laboratories under federal regulation. The Health Care Financing Administration is drafting regulations to implement the law.

The law provides that some medical testing may be exempt from its provisions, but the inspector general recommended public screenings be included in the regulations because "federal regulation ... is clearly called for in order to safeguard the public."

Sixteen states regulate public cholesterol screening, but regulations in four of them have not yet been implemented, the report said.

The report was based on a review of state and federal laws and regulations, research studies and reports as well as interviews with 250 experts and public officials.

Gandhi Party Fails

today he would "see to it that they (Congress) fall from power."

President Ramaswamy Venkataraman dissolved Parliament tonight, the first formal step toward seating a new Parliament. Gandhi is now a caretaker prime minister until his party or the opposition manage to form a new government.

The election was a major blow to Gandhi, who had been tainted by allegations of government corruption and ineptitude. His family dynasty has governed India for all but five years since it won independence from Britain in 1947.

Gandhi's leadership also had been called into question by the widespread vote fraud and violence in the election that claimed 137 lives, making it the bloodiest balloting in modern India's history.

The election for seats in Parliament's policy-making lower house started Wednesday and was scheduled to end Sunday, but re-voting was ordered in some districts because of alleged fraud. Balloting ended today, and by sun-down winners were declared in 373 of the 525 races.

State television, compiling results from the Election Commission, said the Congress Party had 160 seats. Its party allies had 17.

A majority in the new Parliament — and with it the mandate to form a new government — requires 263 seats.

The centrist National Front, a five-party alliance led by former defense and finance minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh, had 81 seats. Singh, an ex-Congress Party member, was once Gandhi's ally but is now the prime minister's most outspoken political foe.

The Bharatiya Janata, which won just two seats in the last elections in 1984, had 69. The rest of the seats went to smaller parties and independents.

Many undeclared seats are in states where the National Front was expected to do well.

The Congress Party's poor showing could hurt it in the search for coalition partners or trigger a revolt against the prime minister by colleagues in his own party.

"If Congress wants to win anything, the prime minister must go," said independent analyst Bhabani Sen Gupta. "With Rajiv Gandhi, very few things are possible. Without Rajiv Gandhi, many things are possible."

Leader Assassinated

Life in the capital appeared calm today. Bruce Thompson, manager of the Galewa Sun hotel, told the South African Press Association everything was normal.

Radio Comoro, monitored on the French-administered island of Mayotte, reported that Abderrahmane, 70, was killed in a firefight between the rebels and members of his 300-man presidential guard. One guard was reported killed.

The presidential guard is better equipped and trained than the 700-man regular forces formerly commanded by Mohamed. It was not immediately known whether any guard members were involved in the assassination plot.

state that has the most vitality," he said.

Kendrick said the company's decision to come east was a natural progression. He said the company was much smaller years ago with about 80 stores centered in Charlotte, western North Carolina and parts of South Carolina. The Wilmington store was the only one in eastern North Carolina, he said.

"We acquired a chain of stores (Foodworld) in the Greensboro, High Point, Winston-Salem area and at the same time, we were expanding into Raleigh," Kendrick said. "We decided east was the next logical place to go."

Last year, he said the company acquired a Rocky Mount Safeway store that has since operated as Harris Teeter and a store in Wilson is currently under construction and should be finished by next spring.

when suddenly it exploded, broke in two and fell in flames and smoke," witness Alfonso Moreno told Caracol.

"I heard explosions and I thought there was some problem with transformers in the electrical station, but I looked up and saw a plane explode in the air, and bodies and pieces of luggage were falling," another witness Mario Vasquez, told the radio.

The last major passenger jet crash in Colombia occurred March 17, 1988, when an Avianca Boeing 727-100 crashed into a mountain near the northern city of Zulia, killing 138 people.

On July 27, 1985, an air force transport plane crashed in the Amazon jungle, killing all 74 people aboard. The military plane was carrying passengers because of an airline strike.

Many Kids Get Bible Instruction

By Bill Baskerville
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WAYNESBORO, Va. — The second-graders fidgeted and giggled as they filed into Westminster Presbyterian Church and settled into their desks after being bused three blocks from public school. Arms shot up as they vied to read a sign taped to the chalkboard: "Only kind words are spoken here."

The Westwood Elementary School pupils are among thousands of public school children across the country who receive Bible instruction during school hours from private groups that conduct classes off school property.

Whether in permanent classrooms or in buses or trailers parked just off school grounds, the classes are a way around the Supreme Court ban on religious teaching and prayer in the public schools, said Roger D. Blankenship, executive director of the National Association for Released-Time Christian Education.

"It's a marvelous alternative and provides an access for a need expressed by the American people at large," Blankenship said.

The court, while banning religion in public schools, has upheld providing off-campus religious instruction during the school day.

"When the state encourages religious instruction or cooperates with religious authorities by adjusting the schedule of public events to sectarian needs, it follows the best of our traditions," the court held in a 1952 New York case. "To hold that it may not would be to find in the Constitution a requirement that government show callous indifference to religious groups."

Even though released time has been affirmed by the court, the concept may not be immune to challenge, said Sebastian Graber, an attorney for the Virginia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union who is studying the possibility of filing a lawsuit, although he has not decided on what grounds.

"I wouldn't rule out a general challenge at this time," he said. "The Supreme Court might be asked to reconsider the issue."

But advocates believe they are on firm legal ground. "In the '80s, we have been picking up momentum, and in the '90s there will be tremendous growth if I have anything to do with it," said Blankenship.

The thousands of children in all grades enrolled in such programs in 19 states still are only a fraction of the nation's 40.3 million full-time public school students, said Jerry Traister of Gatlinburg, Tenn., a member of the NARTCE board.

It's hard to provide an exact figure for released-time enrollment because many programs "operate on shoestring and don't report enrollment because they want to avoid legal challenges," Blankenship said. The mere filing of a lawsuit could end the programs because of the cost of hiring a lawyer.

Although any religion may provide released-time instruction, Christian groups have had a virtual monopoly on the practice since released time began in 1914 in Gary, Ind., with non-denominational Weekday Religious Education.

Weekday Religious Education was provided in the public schools until the practice was banned by the Supreme Court in 1948, when about 2 million children were participating in WRE programs nationwide.

The ruling forced the programs off school grounds, but didn't temper the fervor of those attempting to provide Bible education.

"There were threats of court suits that so many school boards weakened," said Olive I. Clark, coordinator of Weekday Religious Education in Virginia. "The programs survived where they were strongest."

She insisted that the programs, usually financed by churches and individuals, is not a circumvention of the high court's ban, but is "really the only way you can get to the large population of young children, about 40 percent of whom have no church connection."

Robert S. Riffie, who heads the released-time program in Nottoway County southwest of Richmond, said the instruction is important because public schools are giving children humanism, "keeping God out of the schools."

"We need to have these youngsters exposed to the Bible," he said.

The 60-year-old Virginia Weekday Religious Education program has 14,000 students, the largest in the nation, Miss Clark said. The weekly or monthly classes, which usually last 30 minutes to an hour, must be approved by school boards, and children who participate need written permission from parents. The classes, which run through the academic year, are conducted during school hours because that is when "we can get such a large percentage of the children."

The age of the students varies with the 13 Virginia localities that have programs; the participation rate is about 85 percent, Miss Clark said.

Whether a community has released time is up to the local school board, said Jim Fondriat, a spokesman for the Virginia Department of Education. "The state does not get involved in this at all."

The children in Virginia Wingfield's class at Westminster Presbyterian are among more than 700 in Waynesboro students who participate in the program.

The Waynesboro Council of WRE, which has its own bus to transport children, offers "a straightforward presentation of the Bible," biblical history and geography, said Miss Clark, who directs the program.

The 55-minute classes generally are held during recess or physical education class. "They don't miss any regular instruction," said James W. Nichols, an aide to the Waynesboro school superintendent, Thomas L. Varner.

Released-time curricula are as varied as the groups that provide them.

While Traister's CBM Ministries stresses memorization of Bible passages, the Haversham Christian Learning Center in Cornelia, Ga., offers "no biblical studies whatever," said Ken Wright, its director of development.

Vows Said On Nov. 10

Krista Lee Polachek and Allan G. Batchelor, both of Route 3, Greenville, were married Nov. 10 in a candlelight ceremony.

The Rev. R.M. Stewart conducted the double-ring ceremony in Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the bride are Ann A. Polachek of Washington, N.C., and Richard Polachek of Willard, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Riggs of Route 3, Greenville, are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a cathedral-length gown of satin with lace scalloped V-neckline and Renaissance sleeves trimmed with sequins, pearls and iridescents. She wore a tiara of white flowers and pearls attached to a two-tiered illusion veil, and carried a cascade bouquet of peach sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations with greenery.

Kathie Polachek, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Valerie Riggs, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

Rudy Batchelor of Newport, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man, and ushers included Gerald Riggs, stepfather of the bridegroom, and Richard Mosley of Route 3, Greenville.

A reception was given by the bridegroom's parents and family in the church fellowship hall.

The couple will live on Route 3, Greenville, after a wedding trip.

The bride attended schools in Ohio and Pitt County. The bridegroom attended Pitt County schools and is employed at Pitt Electric Co.

Operation Abby Benefits Armed Forces

Dear Readers: Can you believe it's time for Operation Dear Abby V? Again, we will join forces with the America Remembers campaign whose national chairman is still Donald P. Grimes.

Last year, Operation Dear Abby sent more than 6 million pieces of mail to our servicemen and women stationed in Japan, Korea, Iceland and Europe, as well as to those serving in the Mediterranean and Indian Ocean. Tons of letters and packages were dropped from helicopters to aircraft carriers to cheer those who had been deployed for months.

Schoolteachers in the United States and Canada made classroom projects of writing to our servicemen and women who would be far from home during the holidays. Men, women and children who enjoyed baking sent cookies, brownies and fruitcakes. (The elderly residents of the Jewish Center for the Aged in St. Louis baked kosher cookies!)

I received hundreds of heartwarming pictures of men and women in uniform, gathered around tables on which were piled literally thousands of letters and cards. Many wrote to describe how everyone frantically searched for envelopes bearing the postmark of their hometowns — or states.

Veterans of World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam wrote to give our young servicemen and women a lift because they remember how sad it was to be half a world away from home over the holidays.

Last year, at least a hundred long-distance romances blossomed through the exchange of pictures and letters. (They honored me with invitations to their weddings!)

This year, more than 200,000 troops will participate in the program. Please join me in this campaign to let our servicemen and women know that you remember and appreciate them. Send as many Hanukkah and Christmas cards as you can. In previous years, hundreds of readers wrote to say that they were overwhelmed at the responses they received from grateful servicemen and women.

Write to as many as you can. I can't guarantee that every letter will be answered. Last year, one ship with only 500 men aboard received 60,000 pieces of mail! Obviously they couldn't read all that mail, so some of it was airlifted and distributed to other carriers.

Law Firm Will Be N.C.'s Fifth Largest

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 The newly formed law firm of Parker, Poe Adams & Bernstein will be North Carolina's fifth largest firm with 91 lawyers, a work force of 200 people, offices in the state's two largest cities and an estimated yearly income of more than $20 million. Adams, McCullough & Beard in Raleigh has agreed to merge by March 1 with the Charlotte firm of Parker, Poe, Thompson, Bernstein, Gage & Preston. "Mergers both broaden your client base and, with the larger number of lawyers in different cities, you can handle bigger cases and bigger clients," said Kenneth S. Broun, a law professor with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Parker Poe is the state's sixth largest law firm while Adams McCullough is ranked 13th, according to a survey by N.C. Lawyers Weekly magazine. The combined firm might have annual revenues that exceed $20 million, based on figures from a 1988 economic survey of the state's law firms by the N.C. Bar Association. Partners with Parker Poe apparently will take the more dominant position in the combined firm, and the firm will be principally managed at the Charlotte office. Parker Poe has 69 lawyers, twice that of Adams McCullough. Twenty-three lawyers with Adams McCullough will be joining Parker Poe. Once the merger is completed, Parker, Poe, Adams will be overseen by a seven-member executive committee, five of whom will be from Parker Poe. The merged firm's managing partner, who will be charged with overseeing the firm's day-to-day operations, is a partner with Parker Poe.

"We are the larger firm, and we're going to have more people on the management committee initially anyway," said William E. Poe, chairman of Parker Poe's executive committee. "We don't look at it as long-term control, however."

The merger is another example of big N.C. law firms getting bigger. In 1980, about 30 N.C. firms had 12 or more attorneys. Now about 50 have that number.

NCNB Official Gives Up Texas Post

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 CHARLOTTE — Francis Kemp has resigned as chairman of NCNB Corp.'s Texas bank for health reasons, company officials say. Kemp, 49, underwent brain surgery in late July. He had been recuperating at home since August, and this month returned part time to his Dallas office. Kemp will remain president of NCNB Corp., but will give up the Texas position to vice chairman Timothy Hartman effective Jan. 1. NCNB Corp. Chairman Hugh McColl send company employees a note saying Kemp "has decided not to return to his full-time duties" as Texas chairman.

"His recovery following neurosurgery this summer has not been what he expected, and this will give him an opportunity for more personal time," McColl wrote. "He will continue with the company as president of NCNB Corp. and will be available to me as needed."

NCNB was not specific on what Kemp's duties would be.

Kemp led a group of five top NCNB executives who went to Texas in July 1988 after the Charlotte banking company's successful bid to take over the management of the state's largest bank, the former First Republic Bank Corp.

With the help of a $4 billion bailout from the Federal Deposit Insurance

Corp. to cover the bank's bad loans, NCNB Texas National Bank has become a money-maker. Its profits boosted NCNB Corp.'s earnings for the first nine months of this year to 65 percent over last year's level.

Kemp has been the second-ranking NCNB Corp. executive, and the third-highest paid. His total compensation last year was $668,471, behind only McColl and Hartman.

While Hartman moves to chairmanship in Texas, NCNB Texas spokesman Joe Bowles said there will be no other management moves. Kenneth Lewis remains the Texas bank's president.

A native of Reidsville, Kemp joined NCNB as a credit analyst in 1967. He rose to senior vice president in 1972 and executive vice president in 1975. He became president of NCNB National Bank of North Carolina in 1983, and president of NCNB Corp. in 1985.

Home Sales Remain Steady

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 WASHINGTON — Sales of existing homes remained steady in October at their highest level since last January as mortgage interest rates continued to fall, a real estate trade group said today.

The National Association of Realtors said existing single-family homes sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.52 million, the same as September's revised rate and the highest since the 3.55 million rate at the beginning of the year. The September rate was 1.2 percent above August's 3.48 million sales.

Fixed-rate mortgages fell steadily from 10.10 percent to 9.82 percent during October, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

"Lower rates are sustaining sales at a healthy clip," said Realtors President Norman D. Flynn. "Buyers priced out by higher rates earlier this year are in the market now."

For a year, the Federal Reserve pushed interest rates higher to battle inflationary pressures. But since last spring, the central bank has been gradually easing its grip on credit, allowing mortgage rates and a variety of other consumer and business loan rates to fall.

John A. Tuccillo, chief economist for the Realtors group, predicted that mortgage rates will remain low into next year, providing buying opportunities for less affluent buyers and keeping existing-home sales steady.

The national median price for an existing single-family home was $92,100, down $2,200 from September. The median price means that half the homes sold for more, half for less.

The Realtors said the West posted the only increase in sales in October, up 3.4 percent to an annual rate of 610,000 units. The median price for a home in the West was $142,200, $5,400 below the September cost.

Sales in the South were unchanged from September's 1.34 million unit rate. The median home price there was $83,400, down $1,000 from September.

Sales declined in both the Midwest and Northeast last month, down 1 percent to 980,000 units in the Midwest and 1.7 percent to 580,000 units in the Northeast.

The median price for a home in the Midwest was $70,900, $1,300 below the September price, while it was $143,300 in the Northeast, $2,400 below the September cost.

Gain Elevator Burns

MOYOCK, N.C. (AP) — A stubborn, smoky grain elevator fire kept firefighters from Moyock and Chesapeake, Va. busy during the night at Currituck Grains, about a mile south of the Virginia state line.

Several units from Chesapeake assisted weary volunteer firefighters from Moyock, who battled the fire in a grain dryer since about 9 p.m. Sunday, said Chesapeake Battalion Chief Charles T. Williams. No injuries were reported.

The elevator off Route 158 holds about 2,500 bushels of soybeans, Williams said.

The cause of the fire was not known, although officials suspected that grain overheated in the dryer, Williams said.

The 1989 football season at East Carolina ended on a sour note Saturday when the Pirates fell to Southern Mississippi, 41-27.

Once again, a winning season eluded the Pirates. It was the second time in three years that Southern Mississippi had handed the Pirates a loss in the final game of the year when a winning season was on the line.

And in a number of games this season, it was the Pirates' lack of ability to stop the opposition when it was needed that led to the downfall.

The Pirates lost five games and tied one. In all but two of those six games, the opportunity was there for a victory. But each time, it was allowed to escape.

□Louisiana Tech — East Carolina escaped with a tie when the Bulldogs elected to go for a field goal on fourth-and-one at the ECU 22 with 16 seconds left in the game. ECU had scored with 1:44 left but was unable to prevent the Bulldogs from moving downfield for the tying kick.

□Syracuse — Leading most of the game, ECU gave up the ball with 4:32 left, only to see the Orangemen drive from their own 32 to the Pirate seven, from where a field goal beat them, 18-16. On that drive, Syracuse completed a pass on fourth-and-four to keep its hopes alive.

□Pittsburgh — East Carolina led throughout the first half, but the Panthers came back to regain the lead in the second, only to lose it once more. Each time the Pirates took the lead, however, Pitt came back to score once more as Curvin Richards ran for a career-best 252 yards on the day.

□Southern Mississippi — Each time the Pirates would close the gap, Southern managed to come up with another score, including one in the final minutes when the Pirates so desperately needed the ball back to have a chance to tie or win.

In two other games, the Pirates did manage to hold off late rallies. Against Virginia Tech, which had no serious passing attack at the time, the Pirates kept the Hokies at bay and held on to win. Against Cincinnati, it took an interception near the end zone as time ran out to preserve the victory.

Obviously, the Pirates must work on their defense in the off-season. They must come up with some top recruits in the defensive line.

Coach Bill Lewis will also be looking for a quality quarterback.

One bright spot Saturday was the kicking of Anthony Brenner, who booted two field goals against Southern Mississippi, one of them from 45 yards out. Perhaps that will go toward solving the problem at that position.

Coach Lewis and his staff are already out on the road, looking hither and yon for the players they need to continue the progress the team made this year.

It wasn't a winning season, but it wasn't a losing season either.

Progress was made, but there remains much to be done.

The Pirates face a strong schedule next year. ECU's 1990 opponents are 56-58-4 with a couple more games yet to be played. That may not sound like much, but just four of them have losing records. Southern Mississippi was barely that, 5-6 on the year, while the other three were a combined 4-28-1. That means that the best eight have a combined 52-30-2 between them.

Two of those teams, Florida State and Northern Illinois have but two losses each.

To reach a winning level will be no easy task for the Pirates. There are no opening patsies next year. The three teams with the worst records don't appear until games eight through 10.

Only two of the first five are at home, too, where three of the first four were played this year.

Those facts make the task just a little more formidable — and any winning season which might emerge from it a little more meaningful, too.

Heels Fall In Maui Finals

Missouri Hangs On, 80-73

UNC's Jeff Denny pouts pressure on Missouri's Travis Ford

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAHAINA, Hawaii — Missouri showed three different faces in winning the Maui Classic but it was all done with the same old face in front of the Tigers bench.

The 11th-ranked Tigers beat No. 7 North Carolina 80-73 Sunday night to win the title and give Coach Norm Stewart a return to the sidelines to remember.

Stewart missed the last 14 games of last season after undergoing cancer surgery and the Tigers quickly gave him three more victories to add to his impressive career total.

"It was nice for me, but I don't think it was on the players' minds," Stewart said. "For our guys to play that hard for three days in this heat takes real stamina and they responded real well."

No. 12 Louisville took third place with an 83-69 victory Villanova, while James Madison won the consolation bracket with a 70-60 win over Evansville. San Diego State took seventh with a 63-49 victory over host Chaminade, a Division II school.

In another game Sunday, No. 9 Arkansas beat Oregon 102-75.

On Saturday, sixth-ranked Arizona beat No. 4 Michigan 82-75, No. 5 Georgetown beat Hawaii Pacific 79-57, No. 7 North Carolina beat Villanova 78-68, No. 10 Duke beat Harvard 130-54, No. 11 Missouri beat No. 12 Louisville 82-79, No. 13 UCLA beat Santa Clara 66-62, No. 14 Indiana beat Miami of Ohio 77-66, No. 20 Minnesota lost to Cincinnati 66-64 and No. 24 Memphis State beat Tennessee 91-72.

Stewart watched his Tigers struggle from the outside in an opening-round victory over Evansville. Missouri then had to hold off Louisville in the semifinals as the Tigers blew a 22-point lead over the final eight minutes before scratching and clawing to advance.

Against the Tar Heels, Stewart decided to pack the defense in and, despite being outbounded 41-27, it worked as North Carolina made just two of 18 3-point attempts and shot just 45 percent from the field.

"We had to pack it in for rebounding as much as anything else the way we handled the boards in the first two games," Stewart said. "If they started to make the shots, then we would have seen what we could do."

Missouri's three-guard set leaves it vulnerable to rebounding problems but the defensive pressure it allows was effective against the Tar Heels, forcing them into 20 turnovers, 13 in the first half as the Tigers took a 44-37 lead at halftime.

N.C. Wesleyan won the Ohio Wesleyan Kiwanis Basketball Tournament, Nov. 17-18, defeating St. John's (Minn.), 67-64, in an overtime, and Defiance, 57-55. The Battling Bishops have not played since then. This is the second meeting between the two schools. ECU won the inaugural game last year, 91-65. Wesleyan will also play Colonial Athletic Association member George Mason later in the season.

Pirates Host Wesleyan

The East Carolina men's basketball team bids for its first win of the 1989-90 season tonight in Minges Coliseum against N.C. Wesleyan. Game time is 7 p.m.

The Pirates of head coach Mike Steele dropped their season-opener Saturday night to Appalachian State, 69-59, after falling behind by as many as 23 points.

Indiana's Thompson Honored

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Indiana running back Anthony Thompson, who set three NCAA scoring and rushing records this season, was named today as the 1989 Walter Camp Player of the Year in college football.

A 6-foot, 209-pound senior from Terre Haute, Thompson ran for 1,793 yards and 24 touchdowns on 358 carries this season. He ran for 377 yards against Wisconsin, shattering the all-time NCAA single-game rushing mark of 357 set in 1984 by Washington State's Reuben Mayes.

Thompson's 65 regular season career touchdowns broke the NCAA record of 59 held by Army's Glenn Davis and Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett. His 394 career scoring points also set an NCAA record, breaking the mark of 393 set by Florida State's Derek Schmidt in 1987.

The Walter Camp Player of the Year award is given annually based on votes by college coaches and sports information directors. Thompson was to receive the award at a ceremony in New Haven this afternoon.

Thompson finished his college career with 4,965 career rushing yards (excluding three bowl games, which are not counted by NCAA), which puts him fifth on all-time NCAA list.

His school records, which include bowl games, are 5,299 career yards, 68 touchdowns, 412 points.

Los Angeles Ram receiver Willie Anderson set an NFL record for receiving yards Sunday

Quite A Night For Anderson

336 Yards Receiving Sets Record

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie "Flipper" Anderson had quite a season Sunday night.

The Los Angeles Rams' second-year receiver, who caught 11 passes for 319 yards all last season, set an NFL single-game reception record of 336 yards in a 20-17 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

"It really just sort of got unconscious out there for a while and everything was clicking and things were happening," said Anderson, who caught 15 passes.

The Rams trailed 17-3 when Anderson:

— Caught a 46-yard pass to set up a five-yard touchdown run by Buford McGee with 2:46 left in regulation.

— Caught three passes from Jim Everett on Los Angeles' next possession — one for 26 yards on second-and-22 at the Los Angeles 38, one for 14 yards to the Saints' 15 and the final one on the next play for the tying touchdown with 1:02 remaining.

— Caught two passes for 40 yards in overtime and also drew a 35-yard interference penalty as the Rams marched 71 yards to set up Mike Lansford's 31-yard field goal, his second of the game, at 6:38.

"Flipper's just amazing," said Everett, who overcame six sacks and two interceptions and completed 29 of 51 passes for a career-high 454 yards. "He had one of those highlight days. He was hot, and he knew he was hot. He wanted the ball, and every one that went up he knew it was his."

Anderson's best previous game was against San Francisco earlier this year when he caught four passes for 112 yards.

Meanwhile, Green Bay scored its second big upset in two weeks and moved into first place this late in a season for the first time since 1978. Don Majkowski threw touchdown passes of 34 and nine yards to Sterling Sharpe, giving the Packers a 20-19 victory over Minnesota and a share of the NFC Central lead with the Vikings.

Elsewhere, it was Denver 41, Seattle 14; Pittsburgh 34, Miami 14; Buffalo 24, Cincinnati 7; Kansas City 34, Houston 0; New York Jets 27, Atlanta 7; Indianapolis 10, San Diego 6; Los Angeles Raiders 24, New England 21; Washington 38, Chicago

14; Tampa Bay 14, Phoenix 13. The New York Giants visit San Francisco tonight.

New Orleans built its 17-3 lead as Dalton Hilliard rushed 24 times for 112 yards and threw a 35-yard halfback pass to Eric Martin for a third-quarter touchdown. Martin also scored the Saints' other touchdown on a 19-yard pass from Bobby Hebert in the first period, and Morten Andersen kicked a 36-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Anderson was Everett's prime target because Henry Ellard, the Rams' other starting wideout, was out with a strained calf muscle.

"He's just an outstanding player, and he got his opportunity," Coach John Robinson said. "I suppose one of the things that happens is that when you get a chance, you take advantage of it and it will change your life. It certainly changed his."

"I never thought I'd have a day like this," Anderson said. "It just happened. I was exhausted until I caught the touchdown pass to tie it. Then I was rejuvenated."

Packers 20, Vikings 19
Green Bay's victory came a week after the Packers beat San Francisco 21-17.

"We knew we had to win to have a chance to play in January," said Sharpe, who caught 10 passes for 157 yards. "We're not quite where we want to be yet, but we're moving in the right direction."

Sharpe's second TD catch gave Green Bay a 20-16 lead with 11 minutes left and Dave Brown had

Giants Defense Tests 49ers

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers' offense has been hurting most of the year at the backfield and wide receiver positions.

But Coach George Seifert's team has the NFL's top-ranked offense going into tonight's game against the New York Giants, another banged-up club. The 49ers lead the NFC West, the Giants are atop the NFC East, and both have 9-2 records, best in the conference.

"It's a godsend that it's a Monday night game because we need the extra time to heal up," Seifert said after the 49ers scored 360 yards by their offense in a 21-17 loss to the Green Bay Packers. There were four turnovers by the offense and 10 penalties, the most damaging on defense.

New York has been without Joe Morris, the team's all-time leading rusher, all season because of an injury. The injured reserve list also includes tight end Mark Bavaro and place-kicker Raul Allegre.

New York's offense ranks only ninth in the NFC, but the defense led by linebackers Lawrence Taylor and Carl Banks has allowed the fewest points in the conference, 170.

"They look pretty dominant as far as their defense is concerned," Seifert says.

The 49ers had only two healthy running backs against Green Bay and were down to three wide receivers when the game ended, losing Terry Greer to a knee injury. Quarterback Joe Montana passed for 325 yards and two touchdowns, his 18th and 19th of the season, and wide receiver Jerry Rice got TD catch No. 14, but both finished the game with sore ribs and were held out of practices most of last week. Montana also had a sore elbow.

"You're always nervous that you might not get someone practiced enough, but Joe has practiced enough in the past and Jerry has played enough," Seifert said.

Montana has missed two games this season but still ranks second in the league in scoring passes and has 2,520 yards passing. Backup Steve Young has thrown for 560 yards and six touchdowns.

Rice has 1,149 yards receiving, giving him 6,030 in five NFL seasons. The other starting wide receiver, John Taylor, has 557 yards on 38 catches. They've been available every game.

Roger Craig, aiming for a third 1,000-yard rushing year, has 724 so far. Fullback Tom Rathman is the league's top receiver among running backs, with 56 catches, and is averaging 4.3 yards on his 54 rushing plays.

Tonight's winner will have an edge in the race for home field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs, but both have tough schedules over the closing weeks.

The 49ers are on the road next week against Atlanta, last in their division, and then finish against playoff contenders, the Los Angeles Rams, Buffalo Bills and Chicago Bears. The Giants are home next Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles, right behind them in the NFC East, and close out against AFC power Denver, the Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Raiders.

Injuries Have Furman Hobbling

A series of injuries took the life out of Furman's victory celebration, and the defending champion Paladins will hobble into the next round of the NCAA Division I-AA football championship.

Quarterback Frankie DeBusk, linebacker Kevin Kendrick and running back Dwight Sterling all suffered knee injuries in the 24-10 victory over William & Mary on Saturday.

"It's tough to lose players like that and still win, but we did and I'm proud of that," said Furman coach Jimmy Satterfield. "This was a good win, make no mistake about it, but the win and the game were kind of overshadowed by those injuries."

There was no victory celebration for Appalachian State, the Southern Conference's other representative in the first round of the playoffs. Middle Tennessee State defeated the Mountaineers 24-21.

DeBusk ran for two early touchdowns to lead Furman, which will face Youngstown State this weekend. DeBusk ran three times for 82 yards and two touchdowns and completed four of five passes for 39 yards before injuring his knee with less than three minutes left in the first quarter.

Sterling is out for the rest of the playoffs with a torn medial collateral ligament, and Kendrick was scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery on Sunday.

Patrick Baynes replaced DeBusk after the injury and Satterfield felt the reserve held up real well.

"The second string quarterback doesn't get the work and reps in practice during the week, so it's tough for a quarterback to step in and do a great job," Satterfield said. "The thing that impressed me is Patrick got stronger as the game wore on, and that's encouraging."

Dye, Auburn Wary Of Tide's Stacy

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn coach Pat Dye, looking ahead to fourth-ranked Alabama's first trip to Jordan-Hare Stadium on Saturday, said Siran Stacy has been the key to the Crimson Tide's undefeated season.

"To me, the big difference is the running back," Dye said of Stacy. "Where the other guys were good backs, this guy is a great back."

Stacy, a junior college transfer who began the year on the bench, moved into Alabama's starting lineup midway through the season when Murry Hill was injured.

The 5-foot-11, 195-pound tailback already has set a school record with 18 touchdowns, and he is only the third player in Alabama history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a season.

Dye downplayed the importance of Alabama quarterback Gary Hollingsworth, who has directed the Tide to eight straight victories since Jeff Dunn was injured against Kentucky in the second week of the season.

"Nobody will ever know what Jeff Dunn could've done with this football team," Dye said in an interview with The Huntsville Times. "He was the starting quarterback and he was the one they thought was the best quarterback. He might've done the same thing."

"In my opinion, the thing that solidified Alabama's offense is Siran Stacy. As long as you could concentrate on rushing the passer, you had a chance to sort of contain their offense. But once Stacy got himself established, he took a lot of pressure off Hollingsworth."

Alabama (10-0) already has clinched a share of its first Southeastern Conference championship since 1981 and can win the title outright with a win over Auburn, a team it hasn't beat since 1985.

The 10th-ranked Tigers (8-2), who have won back-to-back SEC crowns, can gain a share of a third straight title with a victory Saturday.

"As far as Alabama coming in here undefeated, I think that's the greatest thing that could happen to us," Dye said. "I really do."

1991 Pan American Games In Jeopardy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The lack of dollars that would be provided by U.S. television coverage may doom the 1991 Pan American Games in Havana.

Also, sports and housing facilities have not yet been built for the games, and some key sports are in jeopardy.

"It's the U.S. TV market that makes or breaks the Pan American Games for Cuba," Pete Cava, spokesman for The Athletics Congress, said Sunday. "Without a TV contract, they could be sunk."

The U.S. Treasury Department recently forbade ABC-TV from executing a $9 million contract with Cuba's organizing committee. U.S. companies are not allowed to do business with the island unless they obtain a waiver from the federal government.

"I wouldn't be surprised if this is the end of the Pan Am Games," said Cava, spokesman for the Indianapolis-based national governing body for track and field based. "Cuba can't make it without U.S. dollars."

South Outgins North In Italian All-Stars

ROME (AP) — Former NBA guards Brian Shaw and Darwin Cook combined for 63 points, as the South team overcame a 50-point performance by Micheal Ray Richardson for a 178-166 victory over the North in the Italian basketball league's All-Star Game Saturday night. Richardson's point total was an All-Star Game record, as was the total of 344 points by both teams.

The game's Most Valuable Player Award went to guard Wes Matthews of the North team, who scored 35 points.

Aoki Edges Size In World Open

KAIMONCHO, Japan (AP) — Isao Aoki birdied the 16th hole and won the World Open golf tournament by one shot over Larry Mizze.

Aoki and Mizze, the defending champion, each birdied the 13th and were tied at 13-under par before Aoki's decisive birdie. Aoki, who had a four-day total of 274, earned $128,000.

New-Look Lakers Keep On Winning

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Magic Johnson has trouble remembering what position he's playing, which is understandable.

As the Los Angeles Lakers get started on their post-Kareem era, Johnson is playing his usual point guard spot. And he's playing the off guard. And small forward. And power forward, and sometimes he posts up as the center.

The Lakers' new approach, with Johnson shuttling all over the court, is working — their 132-112 victory over the San Antonio Spurs Sunday night turned around their only loss of the season and ran their winning streak to nine.

So the Lakers seem quickly to have overcome the absence of their retired center, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"Kareem is a guy you can't replace, but you have to do other things," Johnson said after he scored 24 points and had 10 assists as the Lakers ran their record to 10-1 with the runaway victory over the Spurs.

"We're not thinking about Kareem. What we've got to do is win with the guys in this locker room. We're just trying to get ourselves together, get better and better," Johnson said.

"With Kareem, we knew we could sit back on rely on him and then win it at the end. Now we have to play every minute, scrapping and scrapping."

In Sunday night's only other NBA games, Portland beat Detroit 102-82 and the Los Angeles Clippers routed Chicago 120-96.

Los Angeles coach Pat Riley actually has been slowly moving Johnson into a more versatile role over the past couple of years, as Abdul-Jabbar, in his 40s, became a less dominating player.

Johnson admitted he sometimes forgets where he's supposed to be on the court, since he's being used in every position at one time or another.

"I know the plays, but I don't know where to go from each position right now," he said. "I think in another 10 or 15 games, I'll be ready to play all five of them."

Riley, calling the easy victory over the Spurs his team's "best game by far" of the young season, said that the Lakers still miss Abdul-Jabbar.

"I will always believe that we will miss a great, great center, but we have to make up for it by doing other things," the coach said, adding that he didn't expect the Lakers to get off to such a fast start this season.

"I'm a little surprised; we've got new players and a different philosophy," he said.

The Lakers had extremely well-balanced scoring, with Byron Scott matching Johnson's 24 points, James Worthy adding 22 and A.C. Green 20.

"They played a very good game," said Spurs rookie David Robinson. "I expected it to be real physical, and it was."

Robinson, a dominant force in the Spurs' earlier victory over the Lakers with 23 points and 17 rebounds, got the star treatment from Los Angeles in the rematch — with players sagging back on him on defense, and LA centers Mychal Thompson and Vlade Divac leaning on him virtually every moment.

Robinson had six rebounds and 25 points in Sunday's loss, but 10 of his points came with the game out of reach in the fourth quarter.

The Spurs' other much-heralded rookie, forward Sean Elliot, scored 18 points.

beat Detroit for its fifth straight victory.

Drexler also held Detroit's Joe Dumars to five points as the Pistons lost in Portland for the 20th straight time. Detroit hasn't won in the Trail Blazers' Memorial Coliseum since Oct. 19, 1974.

Portland took the lead for good in the game's first six minutes and led 41-30 at halftime. The 30 points tied a Portland franchise record for lowest scoring half by an opponent and was the second-lowest in Pistons' history.

Mark Aguirre scored 22 points for Detroit.

The victory boosted the Blazers' record to 10-3, second-best in the NBA.

Clippers 120, Bulls 96
Ron Harper equalled a season-high with 36 points and Gary Grant added 17 assists as the Clippers whipped road-weary Chicago.

Charles Smith added 23 points for the Clippers, who enjoyed their biggest victory margin of the season. Michael Jordan scored 26 points for the Bulls, who were playing their seventh straight road game, four of them losses.

"Michael's one of the best in the game and he pumps you up to play against him," said Harper, who played a game-high 44 minutes. "I never try to show up a player like Michael Jordan. I've played against him 30 times and the more I play him, the more I learn from him. Everyone on the team picked it up a notch or two."

Ware Perfect In Final Heisman Bid

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Andre Ware's final bid for the Heisman Trophy was picture perfect — even if it wasn't on television.

Just days before the voters of the Heisman Trophy seal the envelopes on their ballots, the Houston quarterback pumped another four touchdown passes into his stats Saturday in a 40-24 victory over Texas Tech.

"It was just an average day for me," Ware said. "I felt no pressure. I wasn't playing for the Heisman Trophy. I played the best game I could have played against Tech."

"If Andre does not win, they should stop giving the award," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "He is a player who has put up statistics each week and has not had a bad day this year."

Heisman voters have not seen much of Ware because Houston is on NCAA probation and is prohibited from having televised games or receiving a bowl bid. But it would be hard to overlook Ware's achievements.

Ware increased his season passing totals to 44 touchdowns and 4,299 yards. The performance certainly couldn't hurt his chances against chief rivals for the Heisman, which will be awarded Saturday at New York's Downtown Athletic Club.

Indiana running back Anthony Thompson gained only 97 yards on 28 carries in a 15-14 loss to Purdue. Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice rushed for 50 yards and passed for 106 in Miami's 27-10 defeat of the No. 1-ranked Fighting Irish.

Neither Thompson nor Rice scored.

West Virginia quarterback Major Harris, on the other hand, no doubt helped his chances with a Thanksgiving Day performance which resulted in a 24-17 victory over Syracuse. Harris, a junior, became the first player in college football history to pass for 5,000 yards and rush for 2,000 in a career. Against Syracuse, he rushed for 95 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries and completed 12 of 23 passes for 182 yards.

Air Force quarterback Dee Dowis, rated a longshot, scrambled for two touchdowns in Saturday's 42-38 victory over Utah, having rushed for 103 yards on 17 carries and completing 6 of 8 passes for 137 yards.

Two other likely Heisman contenders — Colorado quarterback Darian Hagan and Florida running back Emmitt Smith — were idle this week.

"I watched Major Harris on TV against Syracuse and he does a lot for his team," Ware said. "I was very impressed."

But Ware holds the statistical edge, with nearly twice the number of touchdowns of his closest competitor, Thompson, who has 24 this season.

"And when you talk about character, he could have left school last year and been immediately eligible to play anywhere in the country (because of NCAA sanctions against Houston), but he stayed here and has had a phenomenal season," Pardee said. "What else can you say about what the award represents?"

"I hope I'm able to win it because it would be a great accomplishment for our team," Ware said. "If I don't, I don't know what else I could have done."

Rampants, Chargers Tip Off Tuesday

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Youth is the theme for Rose and Ayden-Grifton as they tip off their respective 1989-90 basketball seasons Tuesday night.

The Rampants will be at home against Class 3-A Bertie while the Chargers entertain former Eastern Plains Conference foe South Lenoir, now member of the East Central Conference.

A tripleheader at Rose gets underway at 4:30 p.m. with the junior varsity boys' game. The girls' game is set for a 6 p.m. start, followed by the varsity boys at 7:30.

Ayden-Grifton gets underway a half-hour later with games set for 5, 6:30 and 8.

Also on tap for Tuesday night is Williamston at Washington, Plymouth at Bear Grass and Greenville Christian Academy at Tera Ceia.

Washington will be in its opener. Williamston's boys are 2-0 while the Lady Tigers are 1-1.

The Bear Grass girls, led by center Janet Rodgers and point guard Jennifer Rogerson, are off to a 4-0 start. The Bear boys stand 1-3.

GCA's boys are 1-2 while the girls are winless in three outings.

No Starters Return

Graduation claimed the entire starting lineup of the Rose boys, but the nucleus for a coach

"This team might have more potential than any team we've had in a long time," Rampant coach James Brewington said. "We've got some pretty big kids inside, some good leapers and some good shooters."

"It depends on how quick they learn and get confidence in themselves."

Shaun Moore, a 6-5 center who is a tremendous leaper, 6-6, 230-pound forward Eric Edwards, forward Toubre Claiborne and guard Felix Robinson are the only returnees Walter "Pee Wee" Gatlin is expected to join those four in the starting lineup.

Brewington said junior Columbus Grice and sophomore Dwight Shepard would also see ample playing time at the guard slots.

"We've got a long way to go," Brewington said. "We have new people at the point, the No. 2 position and No. 3 position we've got to experiment with."

"With a young team like we've got, you don't know what to expect."

Rose girls' coach Bill Kuykendall welcomes back three starters, including point guard Jenny Stoneham, last year's leading scorer. But experience is thin from there.

"We're awfully inexperienced," Kuykendall said. "We have six sophomores and two juniors that have never played varsity ball before. As the season goes on I think we should improve quite a bit. We have the makings of a real good team."

Stoneham and Angeline Mills give the Rampettes stability in the backcourt. The big question is who will emerge to provide rebounding and scoring in the paint.

"Our strength is probably in the two guards, Angeline Mills and Jenny Stoneham," Kuykendall said. "They are both good ball handlers and pretty good shooters. We could have some problems rebounding, though."

Rose finished fifth in the Big East Conference last year with a 6-7 mark and was 8-11 overall.

Ayden-Grifton After a run of several prosperous seasons, Ayden-Grifton boys' coach Bob Murphrey begins a new year with what he deems his youngest squad ever.

James Williams is the only senior on a roster that lists eight sophomores and two freshmen. Williams and juniors Corey Stokes and Derrick Lewis are the lone returnees from last year's squad.

"We have to view it as a rebuilding season," Murphrey said. "This is probably the youngest team I've ever had. The key for me is going to be patience."

"We've had pretty good players the last four or five years that had a lot of savvy and knew how to play the game. My big challenge is to show some patience."

Murphrey got a look as his team in a scrimmage with 4-A Kinston and said "I saw some positive things." But only time will determine how the youth progresses.

"I do think this group does have the potential down the road to win," Murphrey said. "I hope by midseason we'll be competitive."

"We've got a young bunch of guys learning how to play, but by no means are we there yet."

Murphrey said Stokes, Williams, Lewis, freshman Orlando Peterson and either Ben Gaskins or Tony Edwards will comprise the starting lineup in the opener, but he plans to experiment with several combinations.

"We'll be playing a lot of people," Murphrey said. "We have a lot of players with very equal ability. There's about 10 different combinations we can use and that makes it a lot more complicated."

Lady Charger coach Joe Lawrence also has a young on hand, with eight freshmen on the roster. Four players from last year's 13-11 squad return, including All-Conference performer Debbie Williams returns for her senior year.

"Relatively speaking we have a real young team out," Lawrence said. "Our starters (this year) have seen some playing time."

"Depth is going to be a problem. If we are going to have any success at all our young girls have to develop."

Expected to join Williams in the starting lineup are Meghan Craft, Sheresse Wallace, Denise Allen and North Pitt-transfer Anita Harrell.

"We're ready to open up," Lawrence said. "It's been a long three weeks of practice."

Redskins Roll Past Bears, 38-14

The Associated Press

Green Bay's Sterling Sharpe drags Joey Browner

two interceptions in the final four minutes. Majkowski completed his first 14 passes and finished 26 for 35 for 276 yards.

Brown's interceptions were the 58th and 59th of his career, making him sixth on the all-time list.

Minnesota had to settle for field goals by Rich Karlis four times after penetrating the Packers' 20-yard line.

Broncos 41, Seahawks 14

John Elway threw four touchdown passes in the first half, and the Denver Broncos clinched their fourth AFC West title of the decade. Denver (10-2) joined the 1988 Buffalo Bills as the only AFC teams to clinch division titles after just 12 games of a 16-game season.

The Broncos led 38-0 at halftime in a first half that saw them outgain the Seahawks 313-90. Elway did not play in the second half after throwing TD passes of four and 10 yards to Vance Johnson, 32 to Steve Sewell and nine to Michael Young. It was his first four-touchdown game since the 1987 opener, also against Seattle.

Steelers 34, Dolphins 14

Pittsburgh took advantage of an injury to Miami quarterback Dan Marino and two inches of rain that turned the field into a quagmire, erasing a 14-0 deficit and knocking the Dolphins out of first place in the AFC East.

Merrill Hoge scored three touchdowns on short runs and Pittsburgh used three fumble recoveries and an interception — all inside the Dolphins 40 — to make a rout of what looked like a Miami blowout in the first quarter.

Marino injured his right shoulder in the second quarter and left the game late in the third period. Miami dropped one game behind Buffalo.

Bills 24, Bengals 7

Jim Kelly threw three touchdown passes as the Bills beat the team that knocked them out of a Super Bowl trip last season. Kelly had scoring passes of 19 yards to Andre Reed, 42 yards to Ronnie Harmon and one yard to Butch Rolle, while Thurman Thomas went over the 1,000-yard mark for the season with 100 yards in 26 carries.

Chiefs 34, Oilers 0

Christian Okoye and James Saxon scored touchdowns as Kansas City handed Houston its first shutout in almost three years. The Oilers set a team record with 16 penalties for 115 yards.

Okoye gained 67 yards to raise his total to 1,043. Houston quarterback Warren Moon was lifted in the fourth quarter after completing just eight of 20 passes for 99 yards, his worst game of the year.

Jets 27, Falcons 7

The Jets won at home for the first time this season, getting two short touchdown runs from Johnny Hector. The Jets lost their first five home games but dominated the Falcons, who have lost all seven road games.

Colts 10, Chargers 6

Jack Trudeau threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Bill Brooks with 1:54 left for the winning score. Brooks had eight catches for 101 yards. San Diego held Eric Dickerson to a season-low 30 yards on 17 rushes, but 18 came on one carry in the winning drive.

Raiders 24, Patriots 21

Jeff Jaeger kicked a 32-yard field goal with 5:57 to play, overcoming three touchdown passes by New England's Steve Grogan. The Raiders used 8:31 in moving 53 yards on 13 plays to get in position for Jaeger's game-winning kick, which just barely passed inside the left upright.

Redskins 38, Bears 14

Mark Rypien threw for a career-high 401 yards and four touchdowns, two to Art Monk, and Washington spoiled Chicago's chance for a share of the NFC Central lead. Rypien completed a career-best 30 passes in 47 attempts as the Redskins used a 24-0 second half to keep its slim playoff hopes alive.

Buccaneers 14, Cardinals 13

Vinny Testaverde's five-yard pass to Mark Carrier with 43 seconds left gave Tampa Bay the victory and ruined the debut of interim Phoenix coach Hank Kuhlmann. The Buccaneers won consecutive games for the first time since 1984.

Hurricanes' Win Silences Critics

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — First-year coach Dennis Erickson is starting to feel like a successful successor to Jimmy Johnson.

Erickson coached Miami to a 10-1 regular-season record, and Saturday's win was by far the biggest — 27-10 over top-ranked Notre Dame. The victory silenced critics who had pointed to Miami's weak schedule and a loss at Florida State.

"Do I feel relieved? Yeah — like there's about 3,000 pounds off my back," Erickson said.

"My concern was to keep this program at the level Jimmy Johnson left it. It's always tough to make a transition between coaches. I think the transition is now complete."

The Hurricanes finished second, first and second in the nation in their final three seasons under Johnson, who left in February to coach the NFL's Dallas Cowboys. Erickson, who came to Miami from Washington State, has the Hurricanes again in contention for the national championship going into the bowl season.

Miami snapped the Fighting Irish's 23-game winning streak and avenged last year's 31-30 loss at Notre Dame. For those reasons, Saturday's game was the Hurricanes' most important of the season, Erickson said.

"My concern isn't really with the national championship," he said. "We're going to the Sugar Bowl, and what happens happens."

Erickson's attitude probably will become less casual as the glow from the Notre Dame win fades and the Jan. 1 bowl game in New Orleans draws closer. Miami's likely opponent will be Alabama, 10-0 going into Saturday's game at Auburn.

To win their third national title of the 1980s, the Hurricanes will need help — ironically from Notre Dame. The Fighting Irish (11-1) play in the Orange Bowl against the Colorado Buffaloes (11-0), who are likely to replace Notre Dame at the top of this week's ratings.

If Notre Dame beats Colorado and Miami beats Alabama, the Hurricanes will have a strong case for the title.

"Miami's back in the national championship picture," Hurricanes middle linebacker Bernard Clark said. "I'm kind of a Notre Dame fan now."

Notre Dame's chances of winning a second consecutive national championship are slim. The best scenario for the Fighting Irish would be for Alabama to lose to Auburn and then beat Miami, while Notre Dame beats Colorado.

The Irish, No. 1 since the first week of the season, are likely to drop at least to fifth in this week's poll.

"I don't know about the ratings," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said. "All I'm thinking about is getting this team to bounce back. We've got to learn how to handle this and go forward. It's hard, but it's life."

Miami has now won 32 consecutive games in the Orange Bowl. Notre Dame has lost five in a row there by a combined score of 166-32.

"This one's going to haunt us for the rest of our life," Notre Dame linebacker Ned Bolcar said. "And we have to come back here for the Orange Bowl game. I hate this damn place. We just haven't been able to win here."

Miami built its victory Saturday on big plays. They included:

— a 55-yard touchdown pass from Craig Erickson to Dale Dawkins.

— a 44-yard pass from Erickson to Randal Hill on third-and-44, sparking a 22-play touchdown drive.

— a 50-yard interception return by Clark in the final minute of the first half to set up Miami's second touchdown.

"Every time we would get it going, they would come up with a big play," Notre Dame tailback Ricky Walters said. "This was a different team than we saw on film."

Miami limited the Irish to 142 yards rushing, less than half their average. Quarterback Tony Rice managed only 50 yards in 20 carries and threw two interceptions. Rocket Ismail caught just one pass and was held to 31 yards on four kickoff returns.

"We really hate to lose," Holtz said. "It's been a while since we lost. If we had to lose, I'm glad it was to an outstanding team."

Miami's stars included Clark, who had 13 tackles to go with his interception; freshman Stephen McGuire, who ran for 83 yards and a touchdown; and Dawkins, who caught seven passes for 123 yards and two scores.

Alabama Stifles Clemson

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Alabama, led by Robert Horry's 22 points, held off a late Clemson surge to defeat the Tigers 57-48 and capture the San Juan Shootout Sunday night.

Horry scored nine points in the first half and Alabama led 30-20 at intermission. Clemson pulled back into the game, and Sean Tyson's two baskets cut Alabama's lead to 34-30 with 14:44 to go.

But the Tide then scored seven straight points, capped by Horry's 3-pointer.

Derrick Forrest led another Clemson comeback. The Tigers scored six straight points and pulled to 45-41 with 5:07 to go.

But Alabama then sealed the victory when Horry, David Denoit and Keith Askins sank six consecutive free throws down the stretch.

Clemson was paced by Forrest, who scored 10 points.

Horry was voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Stetson's Maurice Cowan, Eastern Michigan's Lorenzo Neely, Roland Shelton of Western Kentucky, Dale Davis of Clemson and Wisconsin's Danny Jones were named to the tournament's all-star team.

Alaska-Anchorage.....109
Auburn.....94

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Ron Fischer scored 33 points as Alaska-Anchorage stunned Auburn 109-94 Sunday to capture seventh place in the Great Alaska Shootout.

Fischer, who missed all seven of his 3-point tries in Saturday night's 75-74 loss to Florida State, hit all five of his attempts in the first half Sunday. Fischer's 25 first-half points staked the Division II Seawolves to a 54-39 lead.

The lead grew to 23 before Auburn mounted a rally, cutting it to 86-79 with 6:39 left. But UAA regained control and coasted to victory.

Todd Fisher added 21 points, 17 in the second half, as the Seawolves improved their season record to 5-2.

Reggie Gallon had 22 points and Ronnie Battle 19 for Auburn as the Tigers fell to 0-3.

Louisville Tops Villanova...

"My concern going in was our stamina because I knew we were going a deep, talented team and we're not quite as deep," Stewart said. "But I tried to play a lot of people and the players off the bench did a nice job."

The Missouri substitutes came through when Anthony Peeler, the Tigers' leading scorer for the first two games, went to the bench with four fouls with 11:52 to play and he was followed closely by 6-foot-10 Doug Smith, the most valuable player, who needed rest after battling the bigger and deeper North Carolina frontline.

Jamal Coleman scored his only field goal of the game on a rebound with 10:04 left to give Missouri a 61-51 lead. Rick Fox scored for the Tar Heels but Jeff Warren, another frontcourt sub, answered that with a tip-in. A driving layup by Nathan Buntin, the other starting forward for the Tigers, gave them their biggest lead of the game, 69-57 with 6:32 left.

"They were playing so well it became a problem to decide when to go back with the starters," Stewart said.

North Carolina did make a final run and made it 76-71 with 38 seconds left on a dunk follow by Kevin Madden. Freshman Travis Ford then made two free throws five seconds later and Smith added two with 15 seconds left to seal the win.

"I thought we played well enough to win but we didn't shoot well enough to win," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "We overpassed early and that led to the turnovers but that can be corrected as it was in the second half."

"Missouri is a fine team and it seems they have a better chemistry than they did last season. We can still be a good team, one that makes the NCAAs. It's still early."

Smith finished with 20 points and Buntin had 16 for Missouri. Madden led the Tar Heels with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

Louisville's third-place victory was another impressive outing for sophomore swingman Jerome Harmon, who missed the last two seasons.

In his first collegiate game, the semifinal loss to Missouri, Harmon had 20 points and he added 21 against Villanova on 9-for-13 shooting.

Harmon sat out the 1987-88 season after failing to meet the academic minimums of Proposition 48 and was redshirted last season after undergoing back surgery.

He missed the tournament opener with another minor back ailment.

"I didn't think I'd ever be in there again, after I hurt my back before the first game," Harmon said. "But once the games started it was just like high school again."

The Cardinals outscored Villanova 19-4 over the final 10:15 of the first half for a 39-23 halftime lead and extended it to 48-26 with 14:45 to play before the Wildcats made a run and got within 70-62 with 3:55 left before the Cardinals clinched it with seven of eight free throws in the final 2:31.

"Obviously we would have liked to have won three games but I'm happy with two and that's a lot better than one," Louisville coach Denny Crum said. "We played well in the second half against Missouri and that carried over into today as we played really hard for 40 minutes."

Relief Effort Raises $2 Million

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Octogenarian Bob Hope shared the stage with the likes of rocker Bonnie Raitt and Crosby, Stills & Nash in an earthquake relief benefit that raised more than $2 million.

Entrepreneur Bill Graham, who co-produced the 12-hour "rock-a-thon" concerts Sunday with public television station KQED, agreed to match up to $1 million in phoned-in pledges.

That threshold was crossed early today, several hours after the three-concert benefit ended. Music from the concerts in San Francisco, Oakland and Watsonville was broadcast on KQED and Northern California radio stations.

Hope decided at the last minute to join the event. At first, the 86-year-old comedian joked from the television studio that it was hard for him to leave his golf game.

Later, Hope was greeted by a wildly cheering crowd at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

The concerts billed more than 45 acts, including vocalist Bobby McFerrin and blues performer Taj Mahal, guitarists Carlos Santana and Neil Young, the Chambers Brothers, percussionist Pete Escovedo and the Latino-rock group Los Lobos.

Fund-raising hosts interrupted the entertainment for brief periods to urge viewers and listeners to contribute. The 7.1-magnitude earthquake that rocked Northern California on Oct. 17 killed 67 people and caused an estimated $7 billion in damage.

Willie Brown, speaker of the state Assembly, vowed to donate up to $50,000 of funds earmarked for his re-election campaign if his fellow elected officials chipped in.

Homeless quake victims were allowed in free to the show in Watsonville, a small, largely Hispanic community south of Santa Cruz that was among the hardest-hit areas.

Film Awards Presented

PARIS (AP) — Frenchman Philippe Noiret won the best actor prize at the 1989 European Film Awards, better known as the Felixes, for his roles in the French film "Life and Nothing Else" and the Franco-Italian "Paradise Cinema"

Britain's Ruth Sheen claimed the best actress award for Mike Leigh's "High Hopes," a satirical look at Thatcherite England.

The jury headed by Norwegian actress Liv Ullmann chose "Landscape in the Mist," a movie about two boys searching for their father, as best film.

The director, Theo Angelopoulos of Greece, received the prize late Saturday at a theater on the Champs Elysees. The presentation was the highlight of the second annual awards competition among film makers from 27 countries.

The film was chosen ahead of the Soviet Union's "Little Vera," Hungary's "Eldorado," Iceland's "Magnus," Portugal's "Memories of the Yellow House," and Britain's "High Hopes."

Summit Draws Network Anchors To Sea

By Jay Sharbutt
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — This weekend, network anchors and correspondents will go down to the sea in ships — Soviet and American guided missile cruisers — for the summit meeting of President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. The warship setting in Malta may be reminiscent of August 1941, when President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met aboard warships in Newfoundland for a meeting that produced the Atlantic Charter.

But now, as then, the Fourth Estate won't need sea legs. As in 1941, the ships involved in a historic meeting aren't far from land, this time about 1,000 yards offshore in the harbor at Marsaxloc, on the south coast of Malta.

This being the age of TV and satellites, those covering and participating in the shipboard summits on Saturday and Sunday may be able to see themselves on TV on the ships, the USS Belknap and the Soviet navy's Slava.

CNN, whose Washington-based anchor, Bernard Shaw, is among 60 Cable News Network staffers heading to Malta, is hoping to install on each ship portable facilities to receive CNN's worldwide newscasts, a spokesman here says.

"They're trying hard to set it up," he says. "Obviously that takes a little more effort, but that's what they're trying to do."

Peter Jennings, Dan Rather and Tom Brokaw, the anchors of ABC, CBS and NBC, respectively, also are making the voyage to Malta, the point men of a three-network army totalling nearly 200 staffers from Europe and the United States.

Each anchor first will report from Rome on the meeting Friday between Gorbachev and Pope John Paul II before moving on to Malta and coverage of a summit in which the upheaval in Eastern Europe may produce major news.

The White House press center, the networks' command stations and portable satellite transmission centers on Malta will be in its capital city, Valletta, a few miles from the harbor in which the shipboard meetings will occur.

Bush and Gorbachev are expected to close their summit with a joint statement, and then hold separate news conferences. The networks expect to air all three events live, starting at 8 a.m. EST on Sunday.

Gere Plays Bad Guys

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Actor Richard Gere has been devoting a lot of time in recent years to his Buddhist beliefs. But that didn't stop him from portraying a couple of old-fashioned bad guys in upcoming films.

The 40-year-old actor, who has done little acting since his acclaimed performance in 1982's "An Officer and a Gentleman," says in the current issue of Fame magazine that he has been supporting the cause of Tibetans, who have been under Chinese occupation since 1950.

"They are a gentle, spiritual people who have been systematically murdered by the Chinese," said Gere, who, along with composer Philip Glass, founded the Tibet House for Himalayan exiles in New York two years ago.

Gere, best known for his sex-symbol roles in films such as "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" and "American Gigolo," is a student of the exiled Dalai Lama, this year's Nobel Peace Prize winner.

"His Holiness has been through so much," he says. "His strength is ... He's just unbelievable."

Gere himself, however, will soon be seen playing characters with a less-than-holy nature.

In the soon-to-be-released "Internal Affairs," Gere stars as an amoral career cop opposite Andy Garcia's good guy investigator. And March is the scheduled release for "3,000," in which Gere stars as a ruthless Wall Street speculator.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠A9842 ♥6 ♦Q3 ♣Q10642
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You can't be sure whose hand it is. However, for his vulnerable overall partner should have close to an opening bid, and had partner opened one spade, you would certainly have jumped to four. Make the same bid now. Any lesser action would be pusillanimous.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠5 ♥AJ863 ♦A1053 ♣AKQ
 The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass
 2 ♣ Pass 2 NT Pass
 3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Dbl
 What action do you take?
 A.—Partner has heard you bid a strong, obviously distributional, hand and, despite his initial support for hearts, he has twice chosen no trump as the preferred contract. You can expect partner to turn up with a double stopper in spades and only three-card heart support. Pass. If partner does not like the contract, he can retreat to hearts.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A10 ♥QJ ♦KQ1086 ♣AQ54

The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—An awkward hand—two clubs is an underbid and three clubs a distinct stretch. The solution is to jump to two no trump; your honors in partner's suit should be upgraded and your fifth diamond and intermediates also strengthen the hand. Had one of your low clubs been a low spade instead, you would not have thought twice about this bid.
Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AKJ1064 ♥AQ10 ♦AK63 ♣Void
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
 3 ♦ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have no idea yet where this hand is headed, so you should try to make the most descriptive bid available. The choice lies between three spades and three no trump, and we strongly prefer the former to stress the quality of our spades and the unbalanced nature of our hand.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K85 ♥84 ♦J3 ♣AQ9854
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1 ♦ Dbl 3 ♦ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—First, East's jump to three diamonds over the double is preemptive. Secondly, if you now simply bid four clubs, partner might think that you are competing under pressure. Jump to five clubs to show that you have a reasonable hand.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A54 ♥KJ ♦AJ9843 ♣A10
 What is your opening bid?
 A.—The problem with a one diamond opening bid is you will then face a rebid problem. You can get the hand off your chest in one bid if you choose to open one no trump. That is acceptable with a six-card minor if your doubleton suits are solidly stopped, as is the case here.

Opposition Candidate Claims Win In Honduran Vote

By Richard Herzfelder
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Opposition presidential candidate Rafael Leonardo Callejas, a U.S.-trained economist, claimed victory today in Honduras' third free election this decade. Official returns were incomplete.

"I invite my opponents to join me in reconstructing Honduras," Callejas, of the National Party, told a cheering crowd at election headquarters early this morning.

In unofficial returns representing about 45 percent of precincts, Callejas had 443,287 votes, or about 50.2 percent, to 392,309, or about 44.5 percent, for Carlos Flores of the governing Liberal Party.

Official returns, much slower in coming out, showed a narrower lead. After announcing Callejas had 44,538 votes to Flores' 43,383, the electoral tribunal announced that its computer had crashed. The office then closed for the night.

Minor parties took the rest of the vote; only a plurality was needed to win. "If the present trend continues, Callejas will win," said Liberal Party treasurer Jorge Roberto Maradiaga in a telephone interview. "The people will regret this."

If Callejas takes office on Jan. 27 for a four-year term, he will become the first opposition candidate to take power in a peaceful vote in 57 years.

The winner faces grim problems in this underdeveloped nation of about 5 million — a stagnant economy, an unpayable debt and wars in two bordering countries, El Salvador and Nicaragua. On Sunday, El Salvador suspended relations with Nicaragua and accused it of arming leftist Salvadoran guerrillas.

"In this violent Central America, where the youth of our neighbors is spilling its blood, the people of Honduras have given a 'yes' to peace and a 'no' to blood," Callejas said in an earlier victory statement at party headquarters Sunday night.

Callejas, like Flores, has made it clear that he wants U.S.-supported Contras fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government to leave Honduras, but he also fears Honduras will alone have to deal with getting rid of the Contra fighters if U.S. aid stops.

He offered no new ideas for achieving that end during the campaign. On Sunday he called for Central American presidents to "reconstruct" the peace process in the wake of El Salvador's decision to break with Nicaragua.

He also said he would be willing to accompany Azcona to any summit that might take place before Jan. 27.

Callejas has promised to privatize government-owned companies, cut government spending and open the nation to foreign investment.

The International Monetary Fund has suspended loans on Dec. 1 because Honduras has refused to negotiate over payments on old debt.

Honduras owes $3.2 billion, most of it to international institutions, and the United States is holding up $70 million in fiscal aid until Honduras makes an arrangement with those institutions.

Callejas, 46, comes from a landowning family and was trained as an agricultural economist at Mississippi State University.

He attributed the election's results to "hard work and the desire for change" and pitched his campaign against the government of President Jose Azcona Hoyo, saying eight years of Liberal government had only made things worse.

Also at stake were three vice presidential posts, a 130-seat unicameral congress and 289 mayoralties. Voting was by party slate, with no ticket splitting allowed.

More than 2.2 million people were registered, but voting was concentrated at relatively few locations and some people had to travel long distances.

Turnout was nevertheless heavy and observers reported few irregularities.

"The problems don't appear to systematically favor one side or another," said an observer for the Organization of American States.

Uruguayans Tab Lacalle As Leader

By Ed McCullough
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Uruguayans chose Luis Lacalle as president in hopes his opposition National Party would reverse three decades of economic decline in this once-rich South American nation.

In Montevideo, a Marxist doctor easily defeated all rivals to become mayor of the country's capital and largest city.

Eight hours after polls closed Sunday, the Interior Ministry had issued tallies from 1,736 of 8,493 voting districts that gave Sen. Lacalle a comfortable lead.

Lacalle has pledged to work with people of all political stripes in reforming Uruguay's state-dominated economy and easing its foreign debt burden.

On the basis of party and independent tallies, Jorge Batlle of the governing Colorado Party — the son and grand-nephew of presidents — acknowledged his bid had failed.

"The future president will be Sen. Lacalle, to whom I offer my most sincere congratulations and best wishes for success in his term," said Batlle, a 62-year-old senator who ran unsuccessfully for president in 1966 and 1971.

According to the Interior Ministry, the National Party received 159,495 votes, or 41.8 percent, of 381,523 ballots tallied, compared to 120,143 or 31.5 percent, for the Colorados, and 48,701 or 12.76 percent, for the leftist Broad Front coalition.

The rest of the vote was split among six smaller parties. About 2.32 million voters — or 80 percent of those registered — took part in the mandatory balloting, election officials said.

Lacalle, 48, in brief comments to reporters at his party's headquarters, said his would be a government of "national unity."

Ballots Impounded

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MATAMOROS, Mexico — The opposition claimed fraud in the northern state of Tamaulipas after election officials impounded more than 1,000 apparently pre-marked ballots.

The ballots were in polling boxes stuffed with votes cast for the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, known by its Spanish initials PRI, before the polls opened Sunday.

At Matamoros precinct No. 35A, where only 18 people had signed in to vote by mid-morning, election officials counted 562 ballots cast in the race for state representative, and 429 in the separate box for the mayoral election.

Almost all of the extra ballots were marked for candidates of the PRI.

"The people of Matamoros will not accept this, and neither will the people of Tamaulipas," said Jorge Cardenas, candidate for mayor of Matamoros for the opposition Authentic Party of the Mexican Revolution.

Matamoros, a city of about 180,000 people, lies just across the Texas border from Brownsville.

Reymundo Padilla, president of precinct No. 35A, said he did not know how the ballots ended up in the boxes before polls opened.

"Somebody put them in the boxes," Padilla said.

"Fraude, fraude, fraude," a crowd chanted at a health clinic where the ballots were being tallied. Voting was suspended temporarily.

PRI mayoral candidate Javier Muzquiz said vote fraud would be impossible in Matamoros because precinct officials would discover it.

PARM officials turned over 300 additional ballots marked for the PRI after discovering a man carrying them with him.

Valentin Jimenez Mora, a PARM candidate for state representative, said the votes "were to be used for tacos" — ballots with several additional ballots secretly folded inside, making it possible for one person to cast more than one vote.
