The 12 Days Of Christmas Will Be More Dear

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dreams of a white Christmas may be the cheapest gift to give this holiday, but those with fatter wallets might want to consider something more traditional — the 12 Days of Christmas.

The cost of the 12 days as outlined in the carol rose almost $800 this year to $14,598.78, said J. Patrick Bradley, chief economist of Provident National Bank.

The 5.9 percent increase in the bank's seventh annual Christmas Price Index compared with a 4.8 percent increase in another CPI, the Consumer Price Index.

Since the gifts accumulate with each refrain into a shopping nightmare of 364 items, Bradley said a lovestruck swain would have to spend $70,961.21 to buy all 12 verses.

The bank turned to the Philadelphia Zoo for the costs of the fowl. For the nine ladies dancing, the 10 lords a-leaping, the 11 pipers piping, and the 12 drummers drumming, it consulted the Philadelphia Dance Co. and the musicians union local chapter.

Seven of the 12 items remained at 1988 prices — the partridge and pear tree, turtle doves, French hens, calling birds, geese-a-laying, swans-a-swimming and maids-a-milking, Bradley said Monday.

But St. Nicholas forgot to tell the gold market Christmas was coming. The cost of five gold rings this year, according to a local jewelry store, rose 20 percent over last year's $625.

A local nursery informed Bradley that the cost of a single pear tree held at $24.95, a $5 drop from 1988.

As in other service industries, prices for the leaping lords and ladies dancing waltzed up 16 percent to $2,316 and $2,084.40, respectively.

"This increase in Christmas service industry prices mirrors what's actually happening in parts of the economy in the service sector. As a result, we are seeing an influx of people into service industry jobs," Bradley said.

School Leaders Scan Merit Pay

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

More than 150 school administrators from eastern North Carolina met in Greenville on Monday to learn how to redesign their schools for improved student performance.

The conference, sponsored by the Rural Education Institute of East Carolina University, focused on ways to encourage better teaching through merit-pay systems.

Earlier this year, the General Assembly gave local school systems more freedom to determine how their schools operate as long as the changes help students learn better.

The School Improvement and Accountability Act of 1989 gives educational leaders the chance to make modest but important gains in student learning, said Dr. Allan A. Glatthorn of the ECU School of Education. But he cautioned the administrators not to expect too much from it.

"What are the chances that (the act) will make a major impact on student learning in North Carolina?" he asked. "Not very much."

The act, referred to as Senate Bill 2, is the Legislature's alternative to an earlier proposal by Gov. Jim Martin for a statewide career ladder for teachers. That proposal met heavy opposition from the North Carolina Association of Educators, which called it unfair and unworkable.

Among the act's provisions is one that allows school systems to choose a merit-pay plan for teachers and administrators from a number of options, including the career ladder and the lead teacher concepts tested by the state in selected school systems. School systems may also design their own merit-pay plans.

There are several approaches to merit pay, Glatthorn said, each with its advantages and disadvantages. A successful approach should emphasize professional development over performance evaluation, cooperation over competition and team leadership over roles and titles, he said.

"The wrong approach can set you back instead of pushing you forward," he said. "What you do to help teachers grow is more important than giving teachers scores."

Under Senate Bill 2, the state Board of Education must approve local merit-pay plans. But state officials don't have any favorite options, said John Kinlaw, assistant state superintendent for personnel services.

Shuttle Makes Sunset Landing

Tight-Lipped Crew Says, 'We Did What We Were Supposed To'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Discovery's astronauts returned home under cover of darkness today after ending their secret mission with a sunset landing at a desert air base where gusts twice delayed the return to Earth.

A news blackout imposed by the military prevented the astronauts from talking about what they did during their five-day mission, but Commander Frederick Gregory did comment on one problem — a malfunctioning toilet.

"The crew performed, I think, flawlessly. Discovery's toilet didn't work, but we fixed it," said Gregory, who was wearing a slipper on one foot and shoe on the other. He suffered a foot infection while in orbit, NASA said.

Meanwhile, shuttle Columbia was moved to a launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., today for a 10-day, Christmastime flight during which it will put one satellite in orbit and retrieve another that is falling to Earth.

After staying in space an extra day and then an extra orbit because of high winds, Discovery landed at 4:30 p.m. PST Monday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Terrorist Chief Has Cancer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALGIERS, Algeria — Abu Nidal, among the most feared Palestinian terrorist leaders, is hospitalized in the Libyan capital of Tripoli with what Algerian sources described today as "terminal cancer."

One Algerian medical source who recently returned from Libya denied a published report that Abu Nidal has been placed under house arrest by Libyan police in response to pressure from Egypt and the PLO.

"In reality, Abu Nidal is in a military hospital in Libya suffering from a cancerous metastasis which is probably terminal," the Algerian physician said. He insisted that his name be withheld.

Metastasis is the spread of disease from one part of the body to another. Other Algerian sources recalled that Abu Nidal, 52, was treated in Bulgaria for cancerous complications several years ago.

The sources attributed the report, in today's New York Times, that he had been arrested by the Libyan authorities to officials in Cairo or Tripoli seeking to conceal the severity of his illness.

The Algerian doctor said he was summoned to Tripoli a week ago for consultations with a Libyan colleague. He denied having seen Abu Nidal himself.

Old Agnes Fullilove School Soon Will Become Home For Transients

By J. Ward Best
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Homeless men and women already use the Agnes Fullilove school for temporary housing. But a group of Greenville residents plans to make it a more permanent arrangement.

The Greenville Community Shelter presently operates out of the old gymnasium of the school, offering a hot meal and a dry bed on a night-by-night basis. But some people find the porch of the main school building just as hospitable. Empty wine bottles and beer cans show that the school already shelters part of Greenville's homeless population.

The Greenville Community Life Center wants to see some of those men and women move inside the school.

Groundbreaking on a renovation project to provide transient apartments in the school will take place Dec. 12, and the first residents could move in as early as this summer, according to a spokesperson for the group.

Community Life Center vice president Dr. Helen Grove, dean of the school of home economics at East Carolina University, heads the center's project to renovate the school. And she said Greenville needs the shelter as much as the homeless need a place to stay.

After closing its doors as an alternative school nearly two years ago, the building sat unused for the most part. Fullilove school's main building now houses the city's Christmas decorations.

The Community Life Center began planning nearly a year ago to renovate the second-floor classrooms for what it sees as a better use for the school — effi-

Warmth For The Homeless

By J.R. Williams
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The first thing you notice when you walk in the front door at 207 Manhattan Ave. is the warmth.

The next thing is the 35 pairs of frameless mattresses neatly stacked on one another, lined in orderly rows.

But with recent temperatures dipping into the mid-20s at night, the number of doubled mattresses at the Greenville Community Shelter has shrunk. And single mattress areas have increased as an average of more than 39 homeless people have sought refuge from the elements on cold nights.

The shelter opens at 8 p.m., and the night's occupants must be out by 7 a.m. the next day. Lights go out at 10 p.m. and come on again at 6 a.m. The homeless get to sleep a little longer on Sundays.

"What they should have is someone around the clock to let the guys in out of the cold," said Walter Drake, the shelter's innkeeper.

A homeless man, who asked not to be identified, agreed.

"You see how cold it is," the man said outside before being admitted into the shelter recently. His hands were in his pockets and his shoulders were drawn up close to his neck. "I don't have to tell you how cold it is."

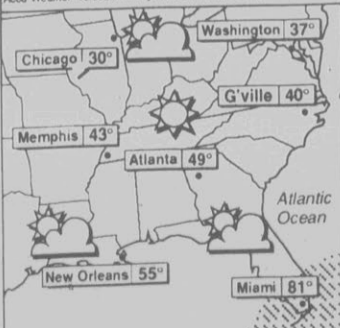

"The shelter is designed to feed the men an evening's meal and provide them with nightly shelter," said Bob Charlton, the shelter's director. "The reason, at present, that we can't be open

Social Services To Install New Phone System

By Lane Dunn
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The Pitt County Department of Social Services plans to implement a new phone system by the end of the December in a move to solve several problems, according to the agency's director.

Ed Garrison said the system is needed because there is a communications problem between the public and the department with the present system.

In addition to serving the public better, the system will also alleviate some legal problems, Garrison said, since the department must be available to receive reports of child abuse and neglect and other emergency calls.

"If some child comes into harm's way because of a telephone system that didn't work, we are going to have a hard time explaining that to the public," the director said.

"We have stepped forward to begin to approach the problem," Garrison said at Monday's social services board meeting.

Garrison said the department currently has only one published telephone number and one switchboard which causes a "bottleneck" in the calls.

The department will begin advertising to let the public know of the system changes he said.

Board members were told Monday that the agency will look into applying to the Mamie Perkins Foundation for funds for additional child abuse and neglect staff. The board's attorney, Ryal Tayloe, said the foundation's distribution committee will probably have about $500,000 to distribute in 1990. He said governmental agencies can apply for the funds.

Mamie Perkins died in 1988 and gave control of part of her estate to the foundation to be distributed to "educational, charitable or benevolent institutions in Pitt County," Tayloe said.

"This gives us an avenue that perhaps will bear fruit," Garrison said.

Garrison told the board the department plans to implement a Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Program that will provide education and job training for needy families.

The department has to send its plan for the program to the state by March 1.

In other reports:

• George Perry, income maintenance division administrator, said surplus food distribution held on Nov. 8-9 provided food for 2,718 families, representing more than 7,000 individuals.

• Perry said the department has received more than 4,000 applications for the Low Income Energy Assistance Program. All of the applications should be processed by Jan. 6, he said.

• The department recently completed its first food stamp mail issuance for the elderly and handicapped. It mailed food stamps to 351 households, representing more than $14,000. Perry said the department had to replace only one package of $21, and that was to a post office box.

• Garrison told the board the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has approved a new social work supervisor position.

• Randy Horton, board chairman, presented Garrison a certificate for 25 years of service to the department of social services.

Two Riding Mowers Stolen From Dealer

Greenville police said 16 thefts, including two riding lawn mowers with a combined value of $5,792, were reported to the department Monday.

Officer E.L. Butts said the two mowers were taken from Greenville Turf and Tractor on Airport Road in a break-in reported at 9:06 a.m.

Other officers said license plates were taken from a car parked at Bob Barbour Honda at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 8:56 a.m. and from a car parked at 1710 W. Conley St. in an incident reported at 9:57 p.m.

Officer J.G. Jenkins said $814 worth of property — a microwave oven, a television set, two cook-tops and six coolers — was taken from Quality TV & Appliance at 105B Trade St. in an incident reported at 10:52 a.m.

Officer R.C. Allsbrook said a television set and video game were taken from 1203A Myrtle Ave. in a break-in reported at 1:55 p.m., while Officer R.G. Mendenhall said two packages of meat were taken from Pollard's Trading Post in an incident reported at 2:38 p.m.

Andrews said a .16-gauge shotgun was taken from 1307 Dickinson Ave. in an incident reported at 4:26 p.m. Andrews also said a bicycle was taken from 108E Concord Drive in an incident reported at 7:01 p.m. and a 20-gauge shotgun was taken from a vehicle parked at B14 Glendale Court in an incident reported at 9:16 p.m.

Coed Found Dead After 3-Day Hunt

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ACME, Wash. — A college student who disappeared while jogging alone was found dead in a riverbed three days later after a search by neighbors and residents of this small Northwest town.

An autopsy report was expected today on Amanda Stavik, 18. Whatcom County Sheriff Larry Mount said she was murdered.

"All these terrible things, all you can think is it doesn't happen to you. It doesn't happen on Strand Road. And it did," said Mary Stavik, the girl's mother, before the body was found Monday. "People here aren't even careful about locking their doors."

The body was found about noon Monday in the shallow South Fork of the Nooksack River, a few miles from Ms. Stavik's family home on Strand Road. The woman apparently had been abducted while jogging alone Friday.

As word spread, residents gathered at a supermarket in this farming community of about 350 residents in the Cascade Mountain foothills, 80 miles north of Seattle and 20 miles south of the Canadian border.

"I didn't think that kind of thing happened here," said Tiffany La Monte, 17, a friend of Ms. Stavik.

Many of the Staviks' neighbors had joined the search in the forested hills and along Washington 9, a winding two-lane road. Donations to a reward fund for evidence on the killer exceeded $8,300, said organizer Jim Kyle.

Ms. Stavik, a freshman at Central Washington University in Ellensburg, was seen by her 13-year-old brother, Lee, when she went jogging with her dog, Kyra, while home from college on Thanksgiving break. The dog returned alone.

Mount said the woman's body was naked except for her running shoes. There was no evidence of struggle at the site, leading investigators to suspect the body floated downstream, said Sheriff's Sgt. Ron Peterson.

A pair of sweat pants that may have belonged to the girl were found about 10 miles south of the Stavik home. Mount said the pants were being tested at the state crime laboratory.

The FBI was helping the investigation, and officials planned to enlist the Green River Task Force, a Seattle-based team of detectives with expertise in abduction. The task force was formed to pursue a serial killer, but there was no indication Ms. Stavik's slaying had any connection to the unsolved killings in the Seattle area.

At Central Washington University, 100 miles southeast of Seattle, a reporter found a note on a school riderboard with a message from Ms. Stavik seeking a ride to the Bellingham area for Thanksgiving. Acme is just outside Bellingham.

The FBI was interviewing Ms. Stavik's classmates.

TVA Paid $172,700 To Fly Boss To Work

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Tennessee Valley Authority paid $172,700 to fly a manager between his Tennessee office and his Virginia home for a year because officials believed the man would otherwise quit, a congressional report says.

The study, released Monday by the General Accounting Office, a research agency of Congress, said the authority provided the flights for Steven A. White between Oct. 2, 1987, and Sept. 30, 1988, while he was the TVA's nuclear power manager.

White had been hired when the authority's management was being criticized by Congress, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and others.

"TVA's board of directors ... believed that the special transportation services were necessary to retain Mr. White's management services," the GAO wrote.

White lived in Charlottesville, Va., and worked in the TVA office in Chattanooga, Tenn., a distance of more than 400 miles. He left the agency Nov. 18, 1988.

White, a retired admiral who served in the Navy's nuclear submarine program, was hired as a consultant by the TVA in January 1986 when the authority was facing severe problems with its nuclear power program. The previous fall, the TVA shut down its five operating reactors and halted construction on 12 others.

The flights were made primarily on Friday evenings and Monday mornings so White could spend weekends at home, the report said.

"We found no evidence that TVA provided similar commuting services to its employees or to contractors," the investigators wrote.

White's wife accompanied him on three of the flights, using government-paid seats, the report said.

TVA spokesman William Lee in Knoxville, Tenn., said he could not comment on the report because the authority had not seen it. White did not return a telephone message left at his Charlottesville home.

Until October 1987, White flew to work on commercial airlines and was reimbursed by the TVA. The study did not say how much White billed the authority for the trips.

The report stated that from Oct. 2, 1987, to March 18, 1988, the TVA provided air transportation for White through a contract with Bechtel, one of the authority's construction subcontractors.

Small numbers of other TVA and Bechtel workers also flew on some of these flights, but "the flights were geared to meet the needs of Mr. White's schedule," the report said.

Under their contract, the TVA paid for four of the eight seats on each flight. White was a passenger on 34 of the 39 flights, which ended when the TVA decided the arrangement was not economical. The service cost the TVA $108,400, the report said.

During the next six months, the TVA used its own aircraft or chartered planes for White. During that period, White made 23 flights between his home and office at a cost to the TVA of $64,300.

Both East And West Apt To Have Electronic Ears Open At Summit

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The meeting between President Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev this weekend will be a summit not only for diplomats but also for electronic spies.

Both will bring their best eavesdroppers, newest electronic equipment, most sophisticated encoding machines and most accomplished countermeasure experts to the Mediterranean shipboard rendezvous, according to knowledgeable officials and observers.

"If anybody wants to study antennas, that's the place to go," said

James Bamford, author of a book on U.S. electronic spying.

Experts in and out of the government paint this picture of spying opportunities as the two long-time adversaries grow closer together:

—It is possible, but unlikely, that the Soviets could eavesdrop on private strategy sessions between Bush and his aides without U.S. knowledge. It would be tougher for U.S. agents to listen in on Gorbachev. Either side would be risking big embarrassment if caught.

—The meeting aboard U.S. and Soviet missile cruisers in Malta's Marsaxlokk Bay is more secure from such eavesdropping than any site the U.S. side could have picked except Washington.

—Each president's communications with experts at home will be intercepted by the other side although it appears both are so well encrypted that the other side cannot read them.

—The signals will be preserved, perhaps for years, by both sides in the hope that a defector or a technological breakthrough may one day unlock the clear text.

The toughest trick would be to monitor either Bush or Gorbachev in strategy sessions before and after their face-to-face meetings.

"You would have to get a device on board," said Harold Lipsett, a San Francisco detective renowned for eavesdropping expertise.

"Maybe you can bug the room," Lipsett said, noting that devices are small enough to be concealed easily on anyone. "But getting the signal out would be extremely difficult, because there's heavy metal surrounding all the rooms on a ship. I would hate the assignment."

Soviet spies may have had more opportunities than U.S. agents to plant a bug since this meeting was proposed last July.

U.S. media reported on Oct. 31 that Bush would stay aboard the U.S.S. Belknap, but both governments probably knew the ship's identity before then.

The Belknap was in the DCAN shipyard in Toulon, France, from August until Nov. 8, being overhauled and getting better communications equipment. The shipyard employs 5,000 civilians, who belong to either a Socialist-led or Communist-led union.

Child Gets Part Of Mother's Liver

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Mother and child were doing well today after 13½ hours of surgery in which doctors implanted part of the woman's liver in her young daughter in the nation's first living-donor liver transplant.

As doctors were finishing the historic operation late Monday, the transplanted organ already began producing bile, the fluid that helps in digestion, said Dr. Christoph Broelsch, who led the surgical team at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

The woman's spleen was accidentally damaged and had to be removed, but doctors predicted she would fully recover.

The operation could provide a solution to a severe shortage of organs for children, transplant specialists said.

Teresa Smith and her 21-month-old daughter, Alyssa, of Texas, were in critical condition in intensive care, normal after transplants.

Doctors planned to monitor Alyssa closely, said Broelsch.

"She's in as good a shape as any child we see" immediately after a transplant, he told reporters.

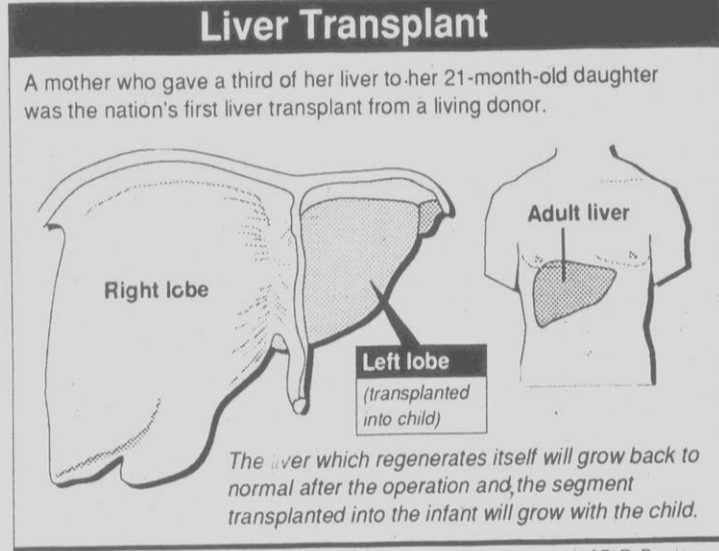

In three to five days doctors will know if the surgical wounds are healing properly, and in a week they should see whether the body is rejecting the liver lobe.

"We're quite confident that this organ will work," Broelsch said.

Previously, the only regularly performed living-donor transplants have involved kidneys and pancreas segments.

Liver transplants from living donors have been performed three times — in Brazil, Australia and Japan. All three operations were carried out in emergency situations, and one child died.

Monday's operation was the first of 20 live-donor liver transplants authorized by the Chicago hospital to determine if the procedure is viable. The operations will be done on patients who have other choices besides the living-donor transplant, said Dr. Peter Whittington, director of pediatric transplant services.

"We don't think this will be the treatment of choice for every patient," said Broelsch, noting the hospital had been transplanting portions of livers from cadavers into children since 1984 with better than 80 percent success.

In the United States, half the estimated 700 babies who need liver transplants each year die for lack of a donor.

"If this procedure works as well as we hope it will, it will be a significant breakthrough," said Dr. Walter Andrews, director of the pediatric transplant program at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

Within hours of Monday's operation, the Children's Liver Foundation in Sherman Oaks, Calif., was swamped with calls from parents about the procedure.

Alyssa suffers from an often-fatal liver disorder called biliary atresia — the leading cause for liver transplants involving children. She'd been waiting more than a year for a liver transplant.

Mrs. Smith went into surgery at 7:35 a.m. and doctors removed the left lobe of her liver — about one-third of the organ. About 3½ hours into the mother's operation, doctors prepared Alyssa for the transplant.

The most tense moments came when Mrs. Smith's spleen was accidentally damaged, Broelsch said.

"We didn't expect that at all, but we had it under control in two or three minutes," Broelsch said. "In no way at any point was the mother's life in danger."

People can live without the spleen, an organ that modifies the structure of blood, but this may make them more susceptible to infection, hospital spokesman Ed Ernst said.

Mrs. Smith was out of surgery at 4 p.m.

Alyssa went through a critical period of about a half-hour without a liver before the segment was sutured into place shortly before 6 p.m., doctors said.

After doctors determined the liver was functioning, they connected blood vessels and bile ducts and completed the operation shortly after 9 p.m., Ernst said.

John L. Smith said he hoped his daughter and his wife, a 29-year-old school teacher, could be home in Schertz, Texas, for Christmas.

"I'm doing fine now that I know my wife is OK and my daughter, last I heard, is doing great," said Smith, an assistant shipping supervisor who was at the hospital with the couple's 3-year-old son, Richard.

No Sharp Turns

Chair Needs Skill, Experience

A school system that takes sharp turns can lose traction and skid. It's up to its leadership not to let that happen.

Pitt County's school board will elect a new chair Dec. 4. While that action may seem routine, it isn't. The chair has immense influence on how a school system is run. The person who holds that seat guides, urges and directs that board toward its goals. How well a board meets its goals depends on how effectively that chair uses his or her powers of persuasion.

A great deal rests on the kind of decision Pitt's school board makes. Since Pitt County and Greenville schools merged in the mid-1980s, the school system has been on a smooth, solid road to progress. The school board and its leadership have set the course for that steady ride. That board needs continuity, not sharp turns. Now, more than ever, it needs a knowledgeable, experienced person with a balanced perspective at the wheel.

In 1986 Pitt County and Greenville schools merged. A city school system was losing its students and its tax base. Its racial balance was lopsided. A county school system faced overcrowding and needed elbow room. A county commission tired of funding two school systems wanted more efficiency. Merger was the logical answer.

'The person the school board selects as its chair will inherit the progress of the 1980s but lead the school system into the 1990s.'

Now, three years after that merger occurred, the problems that prompted it are being addressed. Slow changes in school district lines are bettering racial balance. A school bond referendum for badly-needed classrooms awaits voters' approval Dec. 12.

Continuity can maintain this momentum. It is critical that the person who chairs the school board understand the progress of the last decade and the problems which prompted it.

It is also important that this person have a balanced perspective and understand that there are no more "city" schools and "county" schools. What benefits one school benefits all schools.

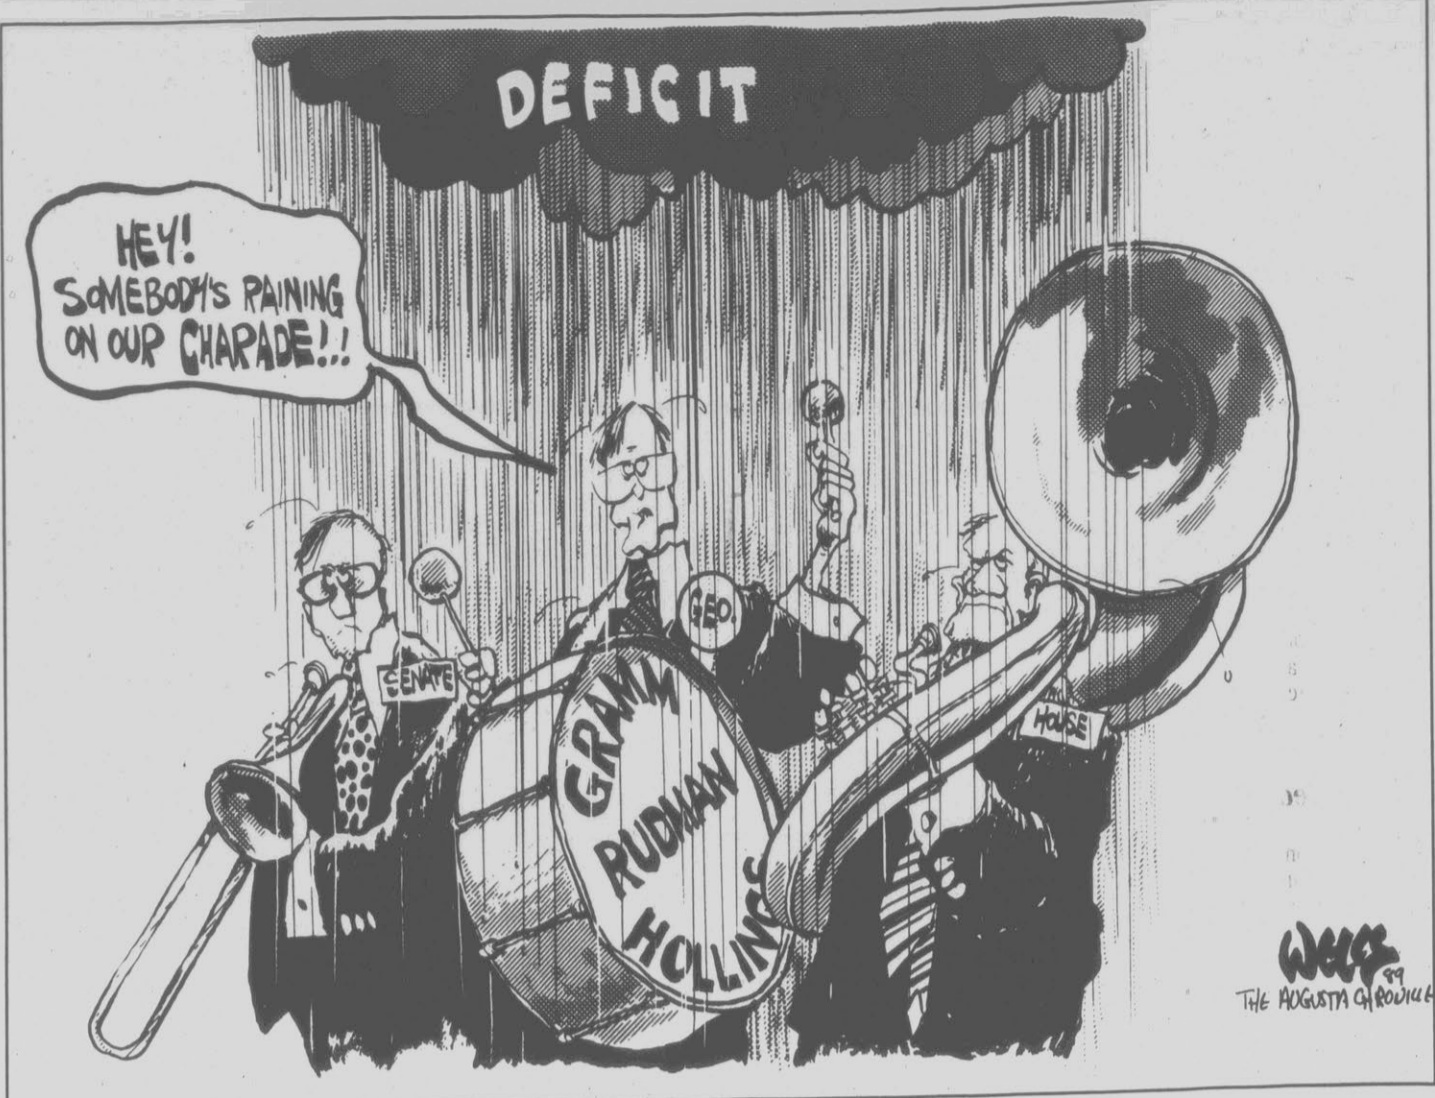

The new chair will also lead a fractious board whose members don't trust each other. That person needs the experience to resolve those differences.

In September a sharply divided school board voted 7-5 not to renew the contract of Superintendent Eddie West when it expires in June 1990. West, who has been in Pitt County eight years, led the two school systems to merger. The decision to replace him was significant.

The new chair will now lead the board in the search for a new superintendent. That task is important to the future of the school system.

The upheaval of the 1980s was valuable but painful to the county's public schools. Change, no matter how well-planned or well-intentioned, can disrupt learning.

The person the school board selects as its chair will inherit the progress of the 1980s but lead the school system into the 1990s. While that it a new decade, it is not a time for sudden shifts in direction. It is the board's job to recognize the need for continuity and choose a chair that can lead with skill and insight.

Public Forum

Question Their Motives

To the editor:
I am in total agreement with a recent letter sent to the People's Forum about the use of credit cards to cash personal checks. I am opposed to this practice that is becoming more widespread among merchants. I think the legality of such usage is questionable. National credit cards are not intended to be used as a form of identification for check cashing.

I consider such procedures as an invasion of my privacy and a potentially dangerous practice. Unscrupulous individuals can use these numbers to charge merchandise or borrow cash from your account. This has happened in the past.

Such practices should be stopped. If a business requests more than a driver's license for identification, I would begin to question their motives.

Don't Degrade Mayor

To the editor:
Reference: Mr. Robert Thompson's letter to the forum criticizing Mayor Carter and the council members who voted to dismiss Greg Knowles. I sincerely hope he is more factual and analytical in academics than in his day-to-day political involvement!

First of all, it was his political mentor, Nancy Jenkins, who supported the idea of the Mayor's vote in case of a tie. It was Mayor Carter's use of this concept that resulted in the dismissal of Mr. Knowles.

Mr. Thompson complained about Mayor Carter's handling of the proposal to regulate trees on private property. He indicted that the Mayor was arrogant by stating that individuals who advocated government regulation of tree planting and removal on private property were using Gestapo tactics. I suggest that Mr. Thompson may be supportive of Gestapo tactics by his support of requirements to dictate what one could plant or remove from private property.

It is obvious that Mr. Thompson is not familiar with the many factors which are involved in good decision making. I therefore suggest that he devote his mind and energies to being a political science professor at East Carolina University instead of trying to insult and/or degrade our Mayor.

MADD Says: Be Responsible

To the editor:
The holiday season is upon us and with it comes the increasing risk of being involved in an alcohol-related traffic crash. In 1988, between Thanksgiving & New Year's 2,432 (47.4 percent) of a total 5,129 traffic fatalities were alcohol-related. During Christmas alone, 510 people died in traffic crashes, with 299 (58.6 percent) being alcohol-related.

We at Mothers Against Drunk Driving would like to end these senseless and preventable tragedies. One word can end all alcohol-related deaths, "responsibility." A few simple suggestions can keep the season joyful for those who are celebrating the spirit of the season.

- Be a responsible host. Have plenty of food and non-alcoholic beverages available and don't push alcoholic drinks.

- Practice designated drivers. One person in the group refrains from drinking. He/she is responsible for getting the others home safely.

- Don't let a drunk guest drive home. Have your guest stay over or arrange some kind of transportation.

- Brink out hot chocolate and coffee in the middle of the party and offer desserts.

- Close your bar well before the end of the party.

MADD of Pitt County would like to invite you to participate in our 1889 Red Ribbon Campaign. We ask that you tie a red ribbon to the left door handle, side mirror or the antenna of your car as your commitment not to drink and drive. This simple red ribbon, beginning with more than one million in 1986 and increasing to more than 25 million in 1988, has become a meaningful tradition that's here to stay.

Red Ribbons are available by calling 355-3388 or Writing MADD; P.O. Box 2601; Greenville, N.C. 27836.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving wishes you a safe and happy holiday season!

Swimming Back To The Mainstream

WASHINGTON — The waggy Charles McDowell Jr. of the Richmond Times-Dispatch explains why America suffers the paralysis of a divided government.

"We elect Democrats to Congress to give us stuff. We elect Republicans to the White House so we won't have to pay for it."

McDowell is joking.

Sen. Charles S. Robb isn't. The problem with his party, the Virginia Democrat observed the other day, is that "the growth of the welfare state has reached the limits of public tolerance for higher taxes and bureaucratic expansion. That leaves Republicans in the White House and Democrats in a quandary, because we have difficulty conceiving of our mission in terms other than federal activism."

Democrats, Robb told the Democratic Leadership Council in an unusually tough speech, are the new "fundamentalists," clinging to "policies forged in the economic crisis of the 1930s and the social and cultural schisms of the 1960s," instead of recognizing that the world has changed.

The Democrats' dilemma — a majority party that, in presidential terms, is stuck in the role of loyal opposition — has been explained in a variety of ways: The party, no longer committed to any central set of beliefs, has lost its soul; it is a victim of an over-democratized nominating process that keeps nominating losers; it is in thrall to the special interests — women, minorities, labor.

Robb wouldn't argue with any of these analyses. Indeed he flatly rejected the Democratic tendency to view all public questions through the prism of race, gender, ethnicity and similar distinctions — what Shelby Steele of San Jose State has called "the politics of difference."

But the party's major failing, he said, is its insistence that "all existing programs and policies are sacrosanct," even in the face of clear evidence that a majority of the electorate no longer agrees.

"Either we will continue on the course of the last 20 years," he said, "or we will rebuild a presidential majority around unifying themes and principles that make sense to most Americans."

And what are some of these mainstream themes and principles? Unequivocal support for democratic capitalism and a competitive free-enterprise system; fiscal responsibility; welfare policies "grounded in the principle of mutual obligation"; defense of American interests and values abroad and protection against crime and lawlessness at home.

What of the notion that Democrats, unlike laissez-faire Republicans, have a mission to affirm a positive role for government?

"In my view," said Robb, "that definition confuses means and ends. I submit that the historic and enduring mission of the Democratic Party — the common theme that runs through the thought of Jefferson, Jackson, Roosevelt, Kennedy, Johnson and Carter — is not merely to vindicate government activism but to ensure that all Americans have nothing more or less than the freedom and the opportunity to rise as far as their talents and initiative will allow."

The Robb message will be tough for some elements of the Democratic Party to swallow. Black Americans (to take the party's most loyal element) have come to expect that the party platform will include some special concession to them — whether commitment to affirmative action or proposals for special programs designed to blunt the effects of racism.

But just as changes in the international scene threaten to undercut the importance of anticommunism as a major Republican tenet, changes in the way most Americans feel about racism as an impediment to black progress have undercut the appeal of race-specific programs and policies.

The question is whether blacks can be induced to respond to generalized proposals for expanding opportunity without reference to their special condition.

Robb thinks it is not only possible but necessary. Special group interests, he said, not only give activists and interest groups too much control over the party's nominating process but also have "moved the party's center of gravity sharply to the left, driving out moderates and moderate conservatives in droves."

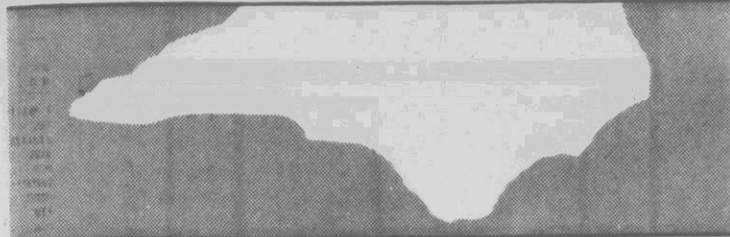

If the party can abandon its "liberal fundamentalism" and move toward the center of mainstream politics, the former Virginia governor said, it has an excellent chance of putting a Democrat in the White House.

What he didn't say is that if he can lead that move, there's an excellent chance that Democrat will be President Robb.

Crash Landing

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A twin-engine Apache airplane carrying a flight instructor and student from the Coastal Aviation Flight School crash-landed near the Craven County Regional Airport, where it had taken off moments before.

Neither the instructor, John Graver, nor the student, Mark Smith, were injured in the crash at about 4:40 p.m. Saturday, according to Township 7 Fire Chief Joseph Piner.

He said the airplane, registered to New Bern Air, took off from the Craven airport and headed northeast. The airplane rapidly lost power, according to Piner, and was forced to land in a field across from Old Airport Road.

Petition Denied

RALEIGH (AP) — The N.C. Utilities Commission on Monday denied Greyhound Lines Inc.'s petition to discontinue service to certain points between Greensboro and Fayetteville and between Fayetteville and Wilmington.

Under the Greyhound proposal, Liberty, Siler City, Goldston, White Oak, Elizabethtown, Whiteville, Lake Waccamaw, Bolton, Delco and Leland would lose bus service altogether. Sanford, Spring Lake, Elizabethtown and Whiteville would no longer receive service as agency points.

Greyhound, which has been the subject of a leveraged buyout, cited financial losses serving these routes as a primary reason for discontinuance. But at hearings held in Fayetteville and Whiteville, 23 witnesses opposed the proposed discontinuance and cited the hardships it would cause, especially to the elderly and handicapped.

The commission said discontinuance would have a "devastating impact on the communities affected and pose extreme hardship" on people in those areas.

Greyhound may appeal the decision to the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington.

Trial Venue

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Lawyers for James Clifton Gibbs, charged with pushing his wife and a friend off a cliff at the Blue Ridge Parkway, say they haven't decided whether to ask that his trial be moved from McDowell County because of publicity.

Gibbs, 38, of Fayetteville is accused of pushing his wife, Helen Burnette Gibbs, 30, and her friend, Susan White Haire, 32, of Ladson, S.C., off the Chestoa View Overlook on the Blue Ridge Parkway in October 1988.

Marion lawyers Charles Burgin and Frank Goldsmith were appointed to represent Gibbs. Burgin said Monday that he and his co-counsel have discussed a change of venue among themselves and with Gibbs, but that the question will require more discussion.

Suit Filed To Stop Oregon Inlet Jetty

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Five environmental groups have sued to stop the construction of a jetty at Oregon Inlet, claiming the project is illegal.

The project, which is designed to protect the bridge over the inlet, is illegal, the suit says, because a construction permit granted by the state Coastal Resources Commission is being appealed in Dare County Superior Court. State law bars construction during the appeal, the suit says.

"The statute on its face clearly says they can't build the project while we are in court about the legality of their actions," said Robert Dreher, an attorney for the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund. "They've got a pile of rock down there they are putting in illegally."

But Robin Smith, an assistant attorney general, said state law did not require that construction be halted. She said the law applied only when the commission was considering an appeal, not the courts.

"Our position is that the statute has always provided that if the commission chairman denies a request for a contested case hearing, ... that there is no automatic stay once he has made that decision," said Ms. Smith. "You have to get a court order once you go up on judicial review."

In dispute are two sections of state law regarding the permit process for construction along the North Carolina coastline. One section says that after the commission has denied a request for an appeal contesting its actions, "development authorized by the permit may be undertaken unless prohibited by an order of the Superior Court."

But the environmental groups point to another section of the same body of law which says that if an appeal has been made to Superior Court, "no action shall be taken which would be unlawful in the absence of a permit issued under this part."

Ms. Smith said that section of law referred to any period after the court ordered a halt in construction.

But Dreher said the state was deliberately disregarding the law.

"They're simply saying, 'We don't think it applies,' and are pressing ahead with the project," he said.

The suit, filed in Wake County Superior Court, asks that the court bar the state Department of Transportation from proceeding with construction of the jetty until the suit in Dare County is resolved. Action on that suit is not expected until January.

DOT Committee To Meet To Consider Final Recommendations On Billboards

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A set of rules governing billboards along highways to be built under North Carolina's $9.3 billion construction project will be ironed out by a state panel this week.

The state Transportation Board's Drivers and Owners Committee is scheduled to meet Thursday to decide on final recommendations to the board that could have a major impact on how many commercial signs are erected along the roughly 1,700 miles of new four-lane highways the state will build during the next 13 years.

"We can't please the Sierra Club and the billboard industry at the same time," said committee chairman Phillip Godwin of Gatesville. "Personally, I just would like to see our highways clear of billboard jungles, but in looking at it objectively, I can't let that blind me."

So far, the committee has balked at proposals to ban billboards along new primary roads in rural areas or to reduce the number of areas in which new signs may be placed, but has tightened the rules in more minor ways.

At issue is not just where billboards will be allowed, but how tall they can be, whether sign owners may cut down trees to make them visible and how the Department of Transportation will enforce the rules.

The committee was formed earlier this year after reports that DOT's billboard rules — which apply only to the state's primary highways, not city streets or secondary roads — were poorly enforced.

Trees on state right of way blocking views of signs were routinely cut down by private individuals without compensation to the state, signs built illegally on DOT right of way were not removed, and many billboards were not listed for property taxes, according to a series of articles in The News and Observer of Raleigh.

The Drivers and Owners Committee was formed to review the recommendations of a task force of veteran DOT employees assigned in January to reevaluate DOT's billboard program.

Advocates of tighter rules say the committee has diluted the task force proposals so much that it threatens to weaken the state's rules on billboards almost as much as it strengthens them.

Molly Diggins, billboard reform coordinator for the Sierra Club, said last month that the committee's actions to date appeared to hinge on only one factor.

"The litmus test seems to be whether or not (proposed) regulations will in any manner, shape, or form be undesirable to the outdoor advertisers," she told the Asheville Citizen.

A spokesman for the billboard industry praised the committee for its evenhandedness, and committee members say they have simply tried to follow a middle path between the demands of billboard opponents and sign companies.

"On balance, we're satisfied," said Betty Waller of the N.C. Association of Outdoor Advertisers. "There are some things we would prefer they had not done."

The rules would not require the removal of any existing billboards. Some rules do not go into effect unless approved by the state General Assembly.

Discussion of the proposed revisions revolves primarily around aesthetics, economics, property rights, public opinion and politics.

Injured Motorcyclist Sues Domino's Pizza

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROCK HILL, S.C. — A man injured in an accident with a Domino's Pizza delivery car is suing the national pizza company and the Rock Hill deliverer for $123.5 million in damages.

Domino's Pizza Inc. has 30 days to respond to the suit, which was filed Monday in the Court of Common Pleas in York County.

The suit contends that pizza deliverer Hugh Blanton, "without warning or justification, pulled in front" of motorcycle driver Curtis

Bradley Jr. in the Nov. 4 collision on a Rock Hill street.

Bradley, 32, was hospitalized until Nov. 21 at Charlotte Memorial Hospital for burns on his back and for two broken legs. Blanton, 40, was charged in the accident with failure to yield right of way.

Bradley's attorney, Douglas Schmidt, says Domino's drivers must become safer drivers. Schmidt says he's not certain whether Bradley, a construction worker, will walk again.

"The deliverers are worried about not getting the pizzas there on time and aren't being careful on the roads. We need big punitive damages to slow these drivers down," Schmidt said.

Michael Sassano, co-owner of Rock Hill's two Domino's restaurants and eight others in the area, said he hadn't received the suit and declined further comment.

Of the $123.5 million, $100 million is for punitive damages, which are meant to punish the company, Schmidt said.

"You look at the assets of the company when you determine the punitive damages," said Schmidt.

Forbes magazine says in its Dec. 11 issue that Domino's, which is based in Ann Arbor, Mich., is the 79th-largest private company in the nation, with sales of $1.7 billion.

The remaining $23.5 million includes physical pain, suffering, mental anguish, emotional distress, impairment of health and body efficiency, loss of income, medical bills and disfigurement to Bradley, the suit states.

"The jury's still out" on whether Bradley, a construction worker, will walk again, Schmidt said.

"His legs will never be the same," Schmidt said.

N.C. Museums, Art Groups Plan AIDS Awareness Events

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Several North Carolina museums and arts groups, including the local arts council in Farmville, plan to take part in a nationwide AIDS awareness day Friday with actions ranging from the dimming of lights to the donning of black T-shirts.

Staffers at Hickory's Museum of Art plan to wear black T-shirts as their part of the observance of "A Day Without Art," a subtle approach dictated by the fact that the museum is holding its annual tie-and-jacket reception for 300 members that night.

"If it hadn't been for the reception, we probably would have been doing something different," curator Todd Smith said Monday. "Hopefully they'll notice something is going on and they'll ask questions. We're not going to storm in and make a protest."

In August, the N.C. Arts Council wrote to about 250 nonprofit guilds, galleries, museums and community arts councils about "A Day Without Art." It's a metaphor for the possibility of more people in the arts community dying of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The groups had until Sept. 15 to join a list of hundreds taking part.

Only five N.C. museums and arts councils in North Carolina are listed on the stark black poster advertising about 400 organizations' participation.

In Farmville, the local arts council has sent information about the national event to its 400 members. The arts council also will post Visual AIDS posters in Farmville Middle School and Farmville Central High School.

Besides Hickory and Farmville, those on the poster are Duke University's Museum of Art, the Albemarle-Stanly County Historic Preservation Commission and the N.C. Arts Council.

Some in the North Carolina arts community say they're concerned about the project, which they say could be seen as stereotyping artists as homosexuals or drug users.

Others say arts groups must get involved in AIDS education because the fatal disease strikes all sectors. In North Carolina, AIDS has killed 593 people, and there are more than 1,000 reported cases, according to state statistics.

"Most of us who work for cultural institutions know people who have died of it or know people who know people who have died of it," Linda Addison, director of the Albemarle-Stanly County Historic Preservation Commission, told The Charlotte Observer in an interview published today.

Few Attend Hearing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW BERN, N.C. — Only 20 people attended the second of three public hearings on the designation of "high-quality waters," and speakers said officials did not do enough to publicize the meeting.

"If the proper notice had been given," said New Bern resident Zachary Taylor on Monday, gesturing to the nearly empty New Bern High School auditorium, "this place would be overflowing."

Taylor said that he heard about the hearing, held by the North Carolina Environmental Management Commission, on Sunday. He complained that there had not been enough information about the meeting for the division to solicit informed citizen comment.

More than 1,100 miles of North Carolina's streams and 16,000 acres of coastal waters would be protected as "high-quality waters" under new regulations proposed by the state. High-quality waters provide habitat for trout or harbor endangered species.

Kohl Calls For Confederation By Two Germanys

By Terrence Petty
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BONN, West Germany — Chancellor Helmut Kohl today announced a plan to draw the two Germanys into an informal confederation that eventually would lead to reunification. West Germany's major opposition party also called for unity.

Kohl's 30-minute address to Parliament was the most thorough delineation of his vision of eliminating the partition imposed at the end of World War II.

In East Germany, hundreds of thousands of people took to the streets in five cities Monday night, pressuring the ruling Communists to keep their reform promises in what for many has become a weekly ritual.

One of the biggest cheers among the 200,000 demonstrators in Leipzig came when one speaker called for a referendum on German unity. East Germany's Communist leaders oppose a reunification.

In a 10-point plan, Kohl proposed steps be taken to "develop confederative structures between the two states in Germany in order to create a federation, a federal order."

He stressed, however, that such measures could only be undertaken if there are truly free elections in East Germany that include non-socialist parties. East Germany's new Communist leaders have said free elections could be held as early as next fall.

Kohl also said steps toward German reunification must be linked to improved East-West relations and a new European order based on cooperation, economic integration and greater freedom of movement.

"The future structure of Germany must fit into the whole architecture of Europe as a whole," he said.

The West Germany leader suggested joint consultative committees with East Germany be created at some point, including a joint parliamentary panel.

"New forms of institutional cooperation could be created and further developed in stages. Such a coming together is in the interest of the continuation of German history," Kohl said.

Kohl said West Germany is prepared to offer "concrete assistance" to East Germany.

Earlier, Hans-Jochen Vogel, the leader of the opposition Social Democrats, proposed a confederation between the two German states as an interim step toward unity. Vogel also insisted German unity come as part of the process of overall European integration.

Vogel used the word "unity" rather than formal "reunification" in his speech to Parliament.

In the past, the Social Democrats have cautioned against hastening toward German unity or reunification, while some in the leftist party have flatly opposed it.

The ZDF television network said Kohl gave no dates for the completion of his plan in an earlier talk with governing party lawmakers.

Under the pressure of a public demanding an end to 40 years of authoritarian one-party rule, East Germany has undergone dizzying changes since hard-line Communist Erich Honecker was ousted Oct. 18 and replaced by Egon Krenz.

Kohl has previously said he envisions an eventually reunited Germany "under the roof" of a united Europe, and not one that is at odds with its neighbors and other countries.

The East Berlin leadership rejects reunification, although Communist leaders there have expressed interest recently in a vaguely defined confederation between the two states.

The newspaper Bild said Kohl's plan includes setting up joint German-German committees to "coordinate cooperation" in economic matters, crime-prevention, ecology and other domestic areas, while "leaving membership to NATO and the Warsaw Pact untouched."

Government spokesman Hans Klein said Kohl may travel to East Germany on Dec. 19 for talks with East Germany's leaders on proposals for increased cooperation between the two states.

Leaders of both Germanys are under pressure to keep the reunification option open.

At the Leipzig rally, placards said "Germany United — Fatherland," and at one point some of the crowd chanted the slogan. Another banner read, "The Goal — One Germany."

One of the biggest cheers on a frigid evening came when a worker, Helmut Neubert, called for a referendum on German reunification. "The fundamental question of reunification cannot be only a matter for politicians. The people must decide whether they want it," he said.

West Germany's ultra-rightist Republican party issued an election platform Monday calling for a reunited Germany that would include territory lost in World War II.

Such calls deeply disturb Poland, where most of that territory is located, and Kohl has sought to reassure the Poles that a reunited Germany would have no designs on those lands.

In addition to the Leipzig protest, tens of thousands of protesters took to the streets Monday night in Dresden and Halle, while 10,000 people protested in the city of Schwerin, the official East German news agency ADN said.

Several hundred protested in the city of Neubrandenburg.

Religion Playing New Role In East

By Geraldine Baum
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Four hundred seventy-two years ago, Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses to the door of All Saints Church in Wittenberg, launching the religious Reformation that remade the political face of Europe.

On a recent Tuesday, about 15,000 people — a third of the people in the same East German town — marched from the very same church to Town Hall and hammered seven of their own demands to the door: demands for free elections, free speech and a market-oriented economy.

In the "godless" states of the East, religion is unofficially alive again despite seven decades of militant atheism. Leaders across Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union have decided to let the people nip freely at what Lenin once called a "clumsy sort of spiritual whiskey in which the slaves of capital drown their human being." And after years of sometimes savage suppression, the Gospel has proven to have remarkable staying power.

Indeed, the question in many countries has become whether religious institutions will become pillars of the new societies. In many of the emerging movements, religious and nationalistic fervor have already been intertwined. Meanwhile, Christians, Moslems and Jews in the West worry whether liberalization will last or will once again come under fire from the state.

Western and Soviet experts estimate that at least 40 percent of the Soviet Union's 287 million citizens are believers, and the percentage is vastly higher in Wittenberg and Warsaw and other cities of Eastern Europe. Most people, particularly in the Soviet Union, do not regularly attend Sunday services or follow the Friday call to prayer at mosques because of entrenched fears of government reprisal — and because they are out of the habit. But there is evidence that as more of the old houses of prayer are reopened, more people will fill the pews.

Eastern Europe, for example, where religion has enjoyed considerably more independence than in the Soviet Union over the years, has been the heart of change. Ministers and lay persons have nurtured the movements, calling for truth in government and opening church halls for political meetings.

In the Soviet Union, the dominant Russian Orthodox Church has been more passive, reluctantly supporting the human-rights movement. Yet for all the talk of Lenin and Marx, of evil "whiskey" and "opium of the people," among the first signs of the established order's decay has been the strength and growth of religion.

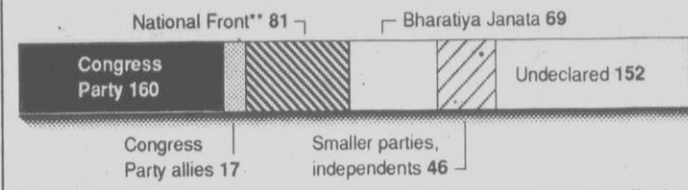

And Mikhail S. Gorbachev has been the biggest promoter of this spiritual revival. For the past two years, he has instituted dozens of new freedoms to demonstrate a new accommodation between communism and Christianity. The dramatic turning point came in spring 1988, when he stood next to the patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church and confirmed that "believers are Soviet people, workers, patriots, and they have the full right to express their conviction with dignity."

From that day on, the Kremlin began returning churches to the people — almost 1,000 in two years compared with a dozen over the past decade. They are old decrepit churches, with peeling domes and failing belfries, but they are being aired and refurbished with vigor and a sense of urgency. Under Gorbachev, the Soviet Union also lifted many of the immigration restrictions, allowing thousands of Jews to leave.

Everyone seems to be hoping the most significant confirmation of the new truce in the war on religion will take place this Friday, when Gorbachev and Pope John Paul II are scheduled to meet at the Vatican. It will be the first time since the revolution that the Communist leader will meet with St. Peter's 300th successor. This week, Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Communist Youth publication usually hostile to religion, ran a long article praising the Pope as a "remarkable personality."

Alliance Claims Power In India

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW DELHI, India — A centrist opposition alliance today won pledges of support from the right and left and said it was ready to oust Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and form India's first minority government since independence.

The centrist National Front said its new Parliament members would meet Wednesday and select its candidate for India's next prime minister.

The world's most populous democracy was plunged into political uncertainty when election results, although still incomplete, gave Gandhi's Congress Party the most seats but not enough for a clear mandate to remain in power.

The Congress Party won more seats than the National Front in the still-incomplete returns, but neither group has enough for a majority.

"The mandate in this election is unmistakably a mandate for a change of government," the National Front said in a statement read by its spokesman, Dinesh Goswami, as the leaders of the five-party alliance met.

"The people of India want a non-Congress government to replace the corrupt and inefficient Congress government. It is therefore the sacred duty of the National Front to respect this mandate and to express its readiness to form a government," the statement added.

The National Front's strategy was to opt for a minority government with the tacit support of an ideologically diverse array of parties ranging from communists to Hindu nationalists.

Whether such an arrangement of silent partners will work remains a question. And that's what Gandhi seems to be gambling on. Newspapers and analysts said today that Gandhi may already have opted to lead the Congress Party into opposition and wait while the National Front tries — and possibly fails — to form the next government.

Strike Shores Up Czech Demands

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Opposition leaders met with the Communist premier today to demand fundamental change, fortified by a nationwide protest against authoritarian rule that saw millions of people pack city centers.

Monday's two-hour nationwide general strike — a festive affair of speeches, song and flag-waving — was the largest public display of opposition to the ruling Communists since they took power in 1948.

The opposition coalition Civic Forum said that after 11 straight days of mass rallies for democracy the time had come to take the fight for a democratic Czechoslovakia off the streets and to the negotiating table.

The opposition is bent on pressure embattled authorities into relinquishing power and allowing free elections.

But it also held out the threat of further strikes if the popular will is not heeded. Any doubt that workers backed the pro-democracy movement was erased during Monday's strike as shop floors across the country were idled.

Premier Ladislav Adamec met today with an opposition delegation led by Vaclav Havel, Czechoslovakia's most prominent dissident.

A first round of talks between the two sides was held Sunday.

Aoun Supporters Form Shield To Protect Him

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAABDA, Lebanon — The government today fired Christian leader Michel Aoun as army commander, but thousands of his supporters formed a human shield around the presidential palace to defend him from a feared Syrian attack.

Gen. Aoun, who commands 20,000 mainly Christian troops, pledged Monday to "die fighting" rather than surrender to President Elias Hrawi's government or the 40,000 troops that Syria has in Lebanon. Aoun rejected Parliament's election of Hrawi last week and refused his earlier order to step down.

Defense Minister Albert Mansour told reporters in Syrian-occupied eastern Lebanon that Adm. Emile Lahoud, former navy commander, was now armed forces chief. Mansour warned that officers and men who stayed loyal to Aoun would be dismissed.

It was not immediately known how many of Aoun's troops will remain loyal to him as Lebanon was poised on the brink of another round of fighting.

The government move came three days after Hrawi, elected president by parliament Friday, dismissed Aoun as head of an interim military government.

Near the presidential palace in the Beirut suburb of Baalbek, youths started hundreds of small fires that could be observed glowing in the pine woods from several parts of Lebanon.

"They are telling whoever wants to attack the general that civilians have to be killed first," said a police spokesman, who cannot be named in line with regulations.

Aoun had predicted Syria, which backs Hrawi, might try to kill him in an air raid. Fears of renewed fighting also sparked panic buying in Beirut as residents rushed to stock underground shelters.

Witnesses said church bells tolled all night in the Christian enclave north of Beirut as youths headed to Baabda to declare support for Aoun. Hundreds more joined the crowd throughout the day.

"Many of us slept in cars in the palace's yard," said Michel Hayek, a university student.

"We were singing the national anthem all night. The general is the symbol of our independence. If the Syrians want to kill him, they'll have to kill us first," Hayek said.

Aoun has termed Hrawi's election unconstitutional and aides said he was determined to remain entrenched in the bunker of the presidential palace. He had no immediate comment today to the government action.

President Amin Gemayel named Aoun as head of an interim military government in September 1988 when Gemayel's six-year term ended with Parliament unable to elect a successor. Moslems and Syrians rejected Aoun's government.

On Nov. 5, Parliament elected Rene Mouawad as president of a national unity government, but he was assassinated 17 days later. Hrawi was elected Friday to replace him.

Hrawi, a Maronite like Aoun, also said he was determined to rule from Baabda, traditional seat of Lebanon's presidents, "even if it is one room."

In Damascus, the al-Baath newspaper, mouthpiece of the ruling Baath Party, called Aoun an obstacle to Lebanese unity "that must be terminated."

Aoun told a news conference at the palace bunker Monday that Hrawi "has no forces of his own to fight me with. He will have to rely on Syria's occupation forces."

Aoun noted that the Syrians "have the means to attack me from the air. They might use that means. I might be killed in such an air attack."

Police said thousands of people have fled Beirut to safer areas in south Lebanon, the eastern Bekaa valley and the northeastern mountains in case hostilities erupt again.

However, police and Moslem army officers reported no troop movements.

By police count, 930 people were killed and 2,744 wounded in six months of clashes pitting Aoun's mainly Christian troops against Syrian and allied forces before an Arab mediation committee succeeded in enforcing a cease-fire Sept. 22.

Parliament last month forged a new power-sharing formula between Christians and Moslems that Hrawi has pledged to implement.

But Aoun rejected the accord because it did not specify when Syria's 40,000 troops, in Lebanon under an Arab League peacekeeping mandate, would withdraw.

Colombian Pilots Blame Terrorists For Jetliner Crash That Killed 107

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — A pilots association spokesman blamed terrorists for the explosion and crash of a Colombian jetliner that killed all 107 aboard, and a caller to a radio station claimed drug traffickers bombed the jet.

Investigators early today kept working at the hilly site just south of Bogota where the Avianca Airlines Boeing 727-100 crashed Monday shortly after takeoff. Pieces of the jet were found up to six miles from the main point of impact, police said.

The Civil Air Authority said the pilot of the plane, which was bound for Cali about 190 miles to the southwest, reported no trouble to the tower before the plane fell.

"We definitely believe this was an explosion that pilots did not have time to report," said Col. Jorge Gonzalez, the chief of Colombia's Civil Aviation Authority.

Witnesses said the plane's midsection exploded, and the aircraft fell burning to the ground in three main pieces.

"Given the circumstances of the crash, I would say that it was a terrorist attack," a spokesman for Colombia's Pilots Association said in an interview. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Hours after the crash, a caller to the Caracol radio network said the Extraditables, a terrorist group linked to the Medellin cocaine cartel, had blown up the plane in order to kill six police informants aboard.

Firms Must Pay User Fee To U.S.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in a dispute stemming from the 1981 settlement of the Iran hostage crisis, ruled today that American companies recovering money from Iran must pay a portion to the U.S. government.

By a 9-0 vote, the justices upheld a 1985 law requiring companies that win claims against Iran before a special international tribunal to pay 1.5 percent of the first $5 million recovered and 1 percent of the excess to the U.S. government.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the court, said the money paid to the federal treasury is a reasonable "user fee" intended to reimburse the government for its costs. Also, he said, United States participation in the international tribunal assures the companies they will collect money owed them by Iran.

White rejected arguments by Sperry Corp. that forcing companies to pay the fees is an unconstitutional confiscation of their property and that any costs to the government should be borne by the nation as a whole.

"As we see it, Sperry has not identified any of its property that was taken without just compensation," he said.

The Bush administration said tens of millions of dollars were at stake, including some $12.7 million already deducted by the U.S. government from claims paid to companies.

Shuttle

"With the sun glinting off the underside of the vehicle, it was really a pretty landing," NASA spokeswoman Nancy Lovato said.

The astronauts, who reportedly released a spy satellite, arrived at their home base here today before dawn, a fitting finale to their hush-hush flight. Despite showers, about 30 people greeted the astronauts at Ellington Field.

Gregory, the first black to command a shuttle flight, called the mission a success.

"We did what we were supposed to do. And we did it right and we even got a day yesterday to relax and take thousands of pictures, literally," he said.

"We had a near perfect vehicle," added mission specialist Story Musgrave.

The other crew members were pilot John Blaha and mission specialists Manley Carter Jr. and Kathryn Thornton.

Discovery originally was scheduled to land Sunday, but had to wait a day because of high winds that sent "dust devils" whipping across Edwards.

Mission Control rescheduled the return for Monday afternoon, but winds forced another delay. The winds were not as strong as the 30 mph gusts reported Sunday, but were high enough to make conditions unacceptable for the planned 2:52 p.m. PST landing.

Since conditions looked better for landing late in the afternoon, controllers directed the astronauts to stay aloft another 89 minutes for one more spin around the globe. As predicted, the winds subsided and NASA gave the go-ahead to begin the fiery dash through the atmosphere.

Life At The Shelter

all day is because of our staff limitations."

The shelter now has one employee who stays all night at the facility.

Charlton said he didn't know when the shelter would be opened all day, but he said he doesn't think it will happen in the next month. He said two full-time employees would be needed to keep the shelter opened all day.

Inside the shelter, there are sinks and showers that the temporary residents are allowed to use. Each night a meal is served, donated by local businesses, churches and civic organizations.

Every Monday, training doctors come from the Indigent Care

Committee of the Pitt County Medical Society and give physical examinations in the housing quarters in the back of the facility. The quarters double as the female homeless housing area.

Charlton said during the winter months he gets a lot of calls from people who are concerned about the homeless.

"My concern is to help that person live independently and be his own person again," said Charlton. "The main thrust of this program is to help who we can to get back into the mainstream of socialization."

People who have emotional, mental or physical problems, unmarketable skills and the unemployed use the shelter's facilities, Charlton said.

School Will Provide Transitional Homes

ciency apartments for temporary housing, Dr. Grove said.

"There's just no question that it will fill very quickly," she said.

Unlike the emergency shelter, the transitional housing in the Fullilove school will allow men and women to live in the apartments for up to two years. The Community Life Center will also find job training, counseling and education for the residents accepted into the apartments.

Dr. Grove said some of the people now taking temporary shelter in the school's gym would be likely candidates for the transitional housing. Former inmates making the transition back to society and also medical patients would be accepted for living in the shelter, Dr. Grove said.

In all, there will be 12 space available for rent in the school. Rent will be based on the tenant's ability to pay, she said.

The response to the project has been overwhelmingly positive, she said.

But not all of Greenville feels as positive about the project as Dr. Grove. The project has found some opposition from a member of the City Council.

Council member Rufus Huggins said the shelter operating out of the gym needs more supervision, and "additional transient housing could possibly compound the problems in the neighborhood.

"We're actually very thrilled to have this," Dr. Grove said. "We feel it's a distinction for the community."

The federal department of Housing and Urban Development provided the bulk of the funding for the renovations, $155,000. The Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the state added another $30,000 and $22,000, respectively.

Support from Greenville most impressed Dr. Grove, she said. Money and volunteer time to renovate and run the housing project total nearly $25,000, Dr. Grove said.

The Perkins Trust has also committed to helping the group meet its mortgage on the building, according to Dr. Grove.

"It's been our experience that the Greenville community has been very receptive," Dr. Grove said.

But the group found some opposition when it went before the city earlier this month.

School Chiefs Study Proposals

model (for merit pay)," he said Monday.

But Kinlaw cautioned the administrators to make sure that merit pay is tied to better student performance. The merit-pay option is a major part of Senate Bill 2, but it is only a means to achieve the bill's goal, Kinlaw said. "The end to that legislation very clearly is to improve student performance."

For the state's largest teacher organization, Senate Bill 2 is a major improvement over the proposal to adopt the career ladder statewide, NCAE President Julia Kron said.

The ability for local school systems to choose a plan that works for them is the bill's most important feature, Ms. Kron said. "If all we get out of this is one process or one plan, we're in trouble again," she said. "We should try different models."

One of the NCAE's goals is to ensure that everyone in the affected schools is involved in the decision-making process. Ms. Kron said. The association is educating its members on the bill's provisions, she said, and creating a cadre of trainers to help local school personnel participate in the process of designing a merit-pay option.

Two of the available merit-pay options are the career ladder and a lead-teacher program. Both have been tried by the state in selected local school systems.

When used correctly, the career ladder can be successful, said John Dunn, superintendent of Edenton-Chowan schools. "I think that career development recognizes that there are varying skill levels of personnel," he said.

Dunn's school system was one of 16 in the state that used the career ladder for the past four years. The success of this pilot program led to the state Board of Education's recommendation that it be adopted statewide.

The career ladder is not a way to weed out poor teachers, Dunn said. Instead, it serves as the foundation for other incentive and accountability programs that focus on helping the teacher develop.

"Staff development is the biggest part of this whole process," Dunn said.

The lead-teacher idea is really a philosophy of management, G. Thomas Houlihan, Granville County school superintendent, said. "This particular concept is much larger and much more complex than simply a program," he said. "It is redesigning the way we operate schools in Granville County."

Granville County was one of three school systems in the state to participate in the lead-teacher pilot program.

The county's experience with the program shows that teachers are much more willing to be held accountable for student performance if they have a say in the management process, Houlihan said.

"If you hold to the notion that people who feel better about themselves and want to take part in making decisions will do a better job ... that is what we believe," he said.

Pitt's Options 'Wide Open'

The Pitt County school system is studying options for a local merit-pay plan, Superintendent Edwin L. West Jr. said.

A committee composed of representatives from each school and Jamie L. Keeter, associate superintendent for personnel, is studying the merit-pay options in Senate Bill 2 and will make recommendations to the Board of Education in February, West said.

The committee's recommendations must be approved by a majority of the teachers and administrators in the school system before going to the board, West said. School administrators plan to schedule a vote by Jan. 15, he said.

West would not speculate on the type of plan that will be presented. "At this point I think it's wide open," he said.

Select Therapist With Care

By Mary Boone Heckrotte

Some problems are too much to handle on your own. You may need help to deal with your marriage, work, children, alcohol and drugs, eating, sex, chronic pain, sleeplessness, memory loss or other fears. Deciding that you want to talk over a mental-health problem with a professional therapist often conquers half the battle. Selecting the therapist who is right for you is the first step toward conquering the other half.

You could begin your selection process by looking in the Yellow Pages, but don't look for listings of therapists or counselors. Try psychologists, psychiatrists, mental health services or alcohol and drug treatment services. You'll find that Greenville is fortunate in having a wealth of mental-health professionals.

But the list is confusing. Like physicians or lawyers, therapists have specialties. Some treat specific problems or client groups. Others specialize by using particular techniques. You may not know whether you want individual, group or family counseling. Perhaps you're unclear about the difference between assessment and evaluation, between counseling, psychotherapy and treatment. And do you know whether you should choose an M.D., Ph.D., M.A., A.T.R., R.N., M.S.W. or a C.S.A.C.?

There are many approaches to treatment — behavioral, biological, analytical, educational — to name only a few. As the person seeking help, you'll want a therapist whose approach is appropriate for your problem and comfortable for you. You won't find information about style, technique or even the therapist's exact specialty in the Yellow Pages.

If you wanted your car's oil changed, you could select a mechanic from the phone book. If your car needed a new engine, however, you'd want more information about the mechanic or garage. You would probably ask friends, co-workers or someone with a car like yours for recommendations.

The same tactic works well when selecting a therapist. Like any other group of professionals, therapists have reputations. People you know can give you recommendations for therapists they know. Ask people you trust — doctors, friends, family members or someone with a problem like yours.

You can save time and money by briefly interviewing prospective therapists by phone. While policies vary, many therapists will give you

Your Mental Health

10 or 15 minutes on the phone for free. Explain that you're shopping for service and briefly describe the problem you're experiencing.

Then ask: Have you ever worked with people who have this problem? What kind of training do you have in this work? How do you work with people who have this problem? If you haven't worked with this problem, how would you educate yourself on the subject?

This process should narrow your selection. From there, it's helpful to make an appointment for an initial session with each therapist remaining on your list. One woman saw a different therapist each week for four weeks, then chose the one she wanted to work with.

During your appointment, ask about any particular issues which concern you. You may want to know the therapist's attitude toward people who have similar problems. You might ask whether or not other family members should participate in treatment with you. You could ask the therapist to discuss treatment approaches. Be sure to ask about fees and what portion your medical insurance covers. If the fee isn't within your means, ask if there is a sliding scale or a payment plan.

You'll find that therapists have unique personalities and styles. You'll want to select one you like. There's no particular magic to this process. It's very like finding friends: some people you like and some you don't. You'll know the difference.

Once you have completed your interviews, think about the therapists' responses to your questions and the way you felt while talking with each. Which one did you like the best. Which one can you afford? Which one did you feel respected by? Which one knew the most about your type of problem?

This "shopping" approach to selecting a therapist is a lot of work. You'll be working side-by-side with your therapist, however, and paying for the service. Shopping can help you make sure this is a person you want to hire. Your choice will have a major impact on the outcome of your therapy.

Second-Time Gifts Confuse Reader

Dear Abby: I am a 52-year-old working woman and thought I knew what was going on in the world, but I guess I must have missed something.

I had always assumed that bridal showers were given for brides who were just starting out. This year, I was expected to attend several bridal showers and give a wedding gift to a niece who had married three years ago — and was divorced last year. I had already attended three bridal showers and had given her an expensive wedding gift for her first marriage. She wore a white gown again (a different one) and had a big fancy church wedding that topped her first one.

A friend invited me to a baby shower for her daughter who is pregnant with her second child. This mother-to-be has a 2-year-old daughter. The sonogram showed that she was carrying another girl. In my day, we saved our baby's clothes for the next child, so why a shower to get more little girl's clothes? Also, I thought showers were given by friends — not relatives. And certainly not by a mother for her own daughter.

Dear Abby

A girl at work is finally marrying the man she's been living with for eight years, and I am invited to a shower for her. Abby, after eight years together, what can they need to get started?

Wait, there's more: My nephew was married four years ago and was divorced 14 months ago. Last week, his ex-wife had a baby boy out of wedlock by someone unknown to us. This baby has our family's last name, but he's not related to anyone in our family.

Either the mother doesn't know who the baby's father is, or the father wants nothing to do with them. She sent me a birth announcement with a list of items the baby could use. How could I refuse?

Is all this commonplace, Abby, or is it just the people I know? — Confused In San Diego

Dear Confused: I regret to say it's not very unusual. When a bride permits shower after shower to be given for her with the same guests invited, one must assume she doesn't mind soaking her friends and family.

As for the baby whose birth announcement you acknowledged with a gift, you showed genuine generosity and sensitivity, for which I commend you.

Dear Abby: Our daughter works very hard as a part-time waitress. She's putting herself through college, and we are very proud of her. We were very upset to learn that she bought her boyfriend a matched set of golf clubs for his birthday. She used most of her savings on this expensive gift and now she's practically broke.

How can we get through to this stupid girl? — Her Parents In Nebraska

Dear Parents: It's her money and her choice, and if she goes broke, it will be her problem. I know you mean well, but back off, folks.

Dear Abby: The story about the 33-year-old woman driver applying mascara, missing a turn, hitting a curb and turning over, killing herself, breaking her son's arm and leaving four young children without their mother, reminded me of two incidents I witnessed on a trip to San Francisco.

Driving down Highway 101 near Sausalito, a woman in the car ahead of me was combing her hair, applying lipstick and eye shadow while driving 60 miles an hour!

The next day, on Rodeo Avenue in Sausalito, I came upon a woman in a car parked in the traffic lane of the street. I stopped behind her and saw her take off her bra without removing her blouse, put the car in gear and move down the street! — California Observer

Charity Bridge Game Played Saturday

A charity club championship duplicate bridge game was played Saturday afternoon at the Senior Center.

Susan Pittman and Everett Pittman were first place winners. Other winners included Willie Cummings and Charles Duffy, second; Pat Kubicek and A.J. Kubicek, third; Christ Jones and Dave Proctor, fourth; Mildred Harker and Dorothy Ritchy, fifth, and Lib Ross and Gloria Pentress, sixth.

Phyllis McAllister and Jeff McAllister placed first in the game held Wednesday afternoon. Al Harris and Dave Proctor were second place winners with Dorothy Barnhill and Maggie Gentile winning third. Dotty Hadden and Sally Kirkwood placed fourth.

Morning winners included Susan Pittman and Nancy McConney, first; tied for second were Mary Sorensen and Bertha Jones with Everett Pittman and Sam Jones. Edith Page and Gretchen Skinner placed fourth.

Her Possible Clock Idea Brings Forth A Smile

I am always looking for new things to extend my marriage. Take the dual-control electric blanket, for example. It came along just in time. I was on the verge of donating my frozen body to science.

There was a time when I thought peace and harmony in our union was threatened. Then my husband got an exercise bicycle with portable wheels on it. Now I just wheel it out of sight every chance I get and his heart rate accelerates just trying to find it.

You cannot imagine my giddiness when I noted last week that there is a new alarm clock on the market called "Shake Awake." It's touted as being for the "morning-impaired."

Morning-impaired people are not physically impaired in any way. They are just endowed with convenient hearing. They can lie in bed and hear a water faucet drip outside the house. They can't hear the dog tunneling under the door when he wants out. They can hear the score of a ball game when they're fast asleep in front of the TV set. They can't hear a baby crying at 2 a.m. in the next room. They can hear the tires on their car screech when it is being parked in a garage a block away. They cannot hear an alarm clock when it is 2 feet from their face.

Shake Awake is a dream come true. You stick the clock under the pillow of the awaker, and when it's time for the alarm to go off, it pulsates and vibrates as though it's shaking you out of a coma.

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

I don't want to get my hopes built up, but I think this time I'm on to something. We've had alarm clocks in the past that did everything from play music to begin with a hum and build to a crescendo that threatened to crack the walls. I once got an alarm clock that nagged my husband to death. As soon as he turned it off, it would wait five minutes and then go off again. He became quite hostile and one morning drowned it in the washbowl.

One year, I bought him a clock that looked like a yellow tennis ball. When the alarm went off, the only way you could stop it was by slamming it against a wall. He eventually threw it into the driveway and ran his car over it.

Shake Awake is my last chance. Other than having an alarm clock that grabs a person around the throat and shouts, "Wake up or you're a dead man!" I don't know what to do.

Why am I smiling?

Deficit Bill To Cut Time Allowed To Deposit Taxes

By Jim Luther THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The biggest single revenue-raiser in the new deficit reduction agreement will sharply limit employers' ability to use taxes withheld from workers' checks before turning the money over to the Treasury. The legislation on President Bush's desk would reduce to one day — from as many as seven days — the grace period allowed before large employers have to deposit withheld taxes. Under present law, a month is divided into eight deposit periods of three or four days each. In general, an employer has three banking days to make a deposit if at the end of any of those periods the company has undeposited taxes of $3,000 or more. Under the bill, an employer would have to make a deposit the next banking day — regardless of where that fell in the eight deposit periods — after collected taxes totaled more than $100,000. The bill applies to income taxes and Social Security taxes withheld from workers' checks, as well as to an employer's matching share of Social Security taxes. A company with 200 workers averaging $20,000 a year would not be affected by the new rule. However, one with 250 employees at the same average would be hit, assuming the workers had income taxes withheld at a 15 percent rate. The combined employer-employee Social Security tax rate next year will be 15.3 percent. Congressional economists estimate the change, which takes effect Aug. 1, would save the government $2.45 billion in the last two months of the budget year ending Sept. 30. That's more than twice the size of the next-largest revenue increase in the bill. Two far smaller parts of the bill also rely on accelerating tax collectors. One affects the airline industry, which collects the 8 percent tax on passenger tickets; the other requires gasoline wholesalers to make quicker payments of the 9.1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax. "The idea is that somebody is collecting a tax for the government and the issue is how quickly they should deposit it into the federal coffers," said Sam Starr, a partner in the Washington office of Coopers & Lybrand accountants.

Federal Reserve Signals 'No' To Reduced Interests

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve sent financial markets a strong signal Monday that it may not have lowered interest rates again, as most analysts last week assumed it had. Both short- and long-term interest rates jumped at midday after the central bank sold government securities to private dealers, a step that has the effect of removing cash from the banking system and firming interest rates. Short-term rates rose by about a tenth of a percentage point on the news. Last Wednesday, the Fed had entered the markets in a way that led to widespread agreement among analysts that it wanted interest rates to drop and that major banks would very likely act this week to lower their prime lending rate. Monday's Fed actions, however, created uncertainty over the interest rate picture and a number of analysts thought the confusion probably would delay the cut in the prime. "This morning they got out the baseball bats and hammered home the point that it had been a mistake of some sort or other," said F. Ward McCarthy of Stone and McCarthy, a consulting firm in Princeton, N.J., one of the analysts who apparently misinterpreted the Fed's moves last week. "The Fed has generated a lot of confusion and, frankly, confusion about what may be going on at the Fed," McCarthy said. "It has left us asking more questions... We were clearly premature" in assuming that the Fed had lowered rates again to combat the slowdown of economic growth.

Charles Lieberman, managing director of Manufacturers Hanover Securities Corp., said he was surprised last week when the Fed added cash in a significant fashion. But he was also taken aback by the quick way in which investors and analysts concluded the central bank had lowered its target for the federal funds rate — the interest rate financial institutions charge one another for overnight loans — from 8.5 percent to 8.25 percent. The Fed only rarely announces the type of policy change as was thought to have been made last week but actively tries not to mislead investors about its intentions as it intervenes day by day in the money market. "I could not understand how the market was reacting so definitively," Lieberman said. "It was not an open and shut case that the Fed had eased." By the opening of business Monday, however, he had decided the market probably was right. Then the Fed sent its signal. The central bank began to sell securities from its portfolio with the federal funds rate at 8.3125 percent, higher than the assumed new target of 8.25 percent. Not only did the Fed begin to suck cash out of the system, but it launched its operation shortly after 10:30 a.m., about an hour earlier than its usual time for market intervention. A shift in timing such as that often has been used by the Fed to call the market's attention to whatever action is under way. The prime rate, or reference rate as some banks call it, is a number to which are tied the cost of most business borrowing and a growing number of consumer loans, such as home equity loans. Changes in Fed policy generally make themselves felt economically as interest rates rise or fall. To the extent that the prime fails to follow changes in interest rates set by the market rather than by institutions, the effects of Fed policy actions on economic growth are muted.

State's Income Rising Unevenly

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — North Carolina's per capita income is on the rise and it's going up faster than in most other states. But it is rising unevenly, with certain urban areas showing sharp gains while many rural areas lag far behind, according to a report compiled by Roy Carroll, vice president for planning with the University of North Carolina system in Chapel Hill. Data compiled by Carroll put the state's per capita income in 1988 at $14,304. That's 86.7 percent of the national average, but Carroll's report notes, it is a significant improvement over what it used to be. The 1988 figure ranked North Carolina 35th among the 50 states. In 1980, the state ranked 40th with a per capita income that was 80.8 percent of the national average.

Sara Lee To Reduce Jobs In Lumberton

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LUMBERTON, N.C. — Sara Lee Knit Products plans to eliminate 175 jobs at its Lumberton plant when it shuts down the second-shift manual sewing operation Jan. 15 because of high turnover, company officials said Monday. Nancy Young, director of corporate affairs for Sara Lee in Winston-Salem, said she believes the consolidation of first and second shifts will have a "minimal impact" on most of the 175 workers. Ms. Young said a hiring freeze was put into effect last week at the company's two other Robeson County plants, in Maxton and Red Springs. Many of the 175 workers will be offered jobs at those plants when they become available, she said.

Ms. Young said she was unable to give an estimate of how many workers may lose their jobs. Company seniority will determine who is to be transferred to the other Robeson plants or laid off, Ms. Young said. Employees also could ask to be transferred to other plants in North Carolina or Georgia if they qualify, she said. The Lumberton plant, which makes T-shirts, employs about 550 workers. Sara Lee has 780 workers at its Maxton Plant and about 400 workers in Red Springs. Dewey Locklear, personnel manager at the Lumberton plant, said about 25 of the second-shift workers have left the company, been reassigned or placed in new jobs since the announcement was made last week.

A Shocking Defeat Division III Wesleyan Tops ECU, 70-69

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

In what may go down as one of East Carolina's most embarrassing basketball losses, North Carolina Wesleyan vaulted out of Minges Coliseum with a 70-69 victory Monday night.

Wesleyan, a Division III school — one which does not award athletic scholarships — broke a 66-66 tie on a lay-up by Marvin Macklin then added two free throws by John Goodwin in the final 18 seconds to take a 70-66 lead. A 3-point basket by Jeffrey Whitaker with one second left closed it to the final score.

"We tried to tell them that it doesn't make any difference what division you're in if you've got experience," a discouraged ECU coach Mike Steele said. "We played poorly and they played well. I've got to give them a lot of credit for outplaying us. No one came out to start the game who competed very well."

East Carolina trailed much of the first half, by as much as six points on two occasions, but fought back to take a four-point lead with under four minutes to go.

But the Pirates could not hold it and trailed by two at intermission.

In the second half, Steele went to a different lineup, using senior Reed Lose, the only starter back in the game, along with Stanley Love, who did not start as he usually does; Gus Hill, Whitaker and Robin House. For House, it was his first action of the year.

That group put ECU back into the lead with a 3-pointer by Hill, 44-41, and built up a 5-point lead when House nailed a jumper with 16:55 left.

The Pirates held to that margin until Whitaker left the game after having contact lens problems. As more subs came in, the Pirates seem to lose the edge they had and Wesleyan came back. Steele said he made the move to try and get some experience on the court — although Whitaker is a freshman. As for House, Steele said, "Robin is a tough kid who listens and competes."

Except for one brief period about eight minutes into the second half, ECU led most of the way. But the Pirates were unable to stop Macklin's work underneath, and he finally tied it at 57-57 with 6:20 left.

East Carolina regained the lead on another 3-pointer by Whitaker, then Hill hit a 16-footer for a 62-57 lead with 4:58 remaining.

But Travis Saunders made two free throws and Macklin hit a jumper to pull back to within one.

Lose made the first of two free throws with 3:37 to go, but after his second bounced out, Saunders hit a jumper to tie it at 63-63. Lose then missed the front end of another one-and-one, but the Pirates got the rebound and Lose hit a jumper for a 64-63 lead.

Goodwin came back with a 3-pointer to put Wesleyan ahead, 66-65, but Tim Brown made the second of a two-shot foul to tie it once more at 66.

After both teams missed opportunities, Wesleyan took a time out with 22 seconds remaining. On the in-bounds play, Macklin pulled away from the defense and was spotted on the pass for an easy lay-up, giving the Battling Bishops a 68-66 lead.

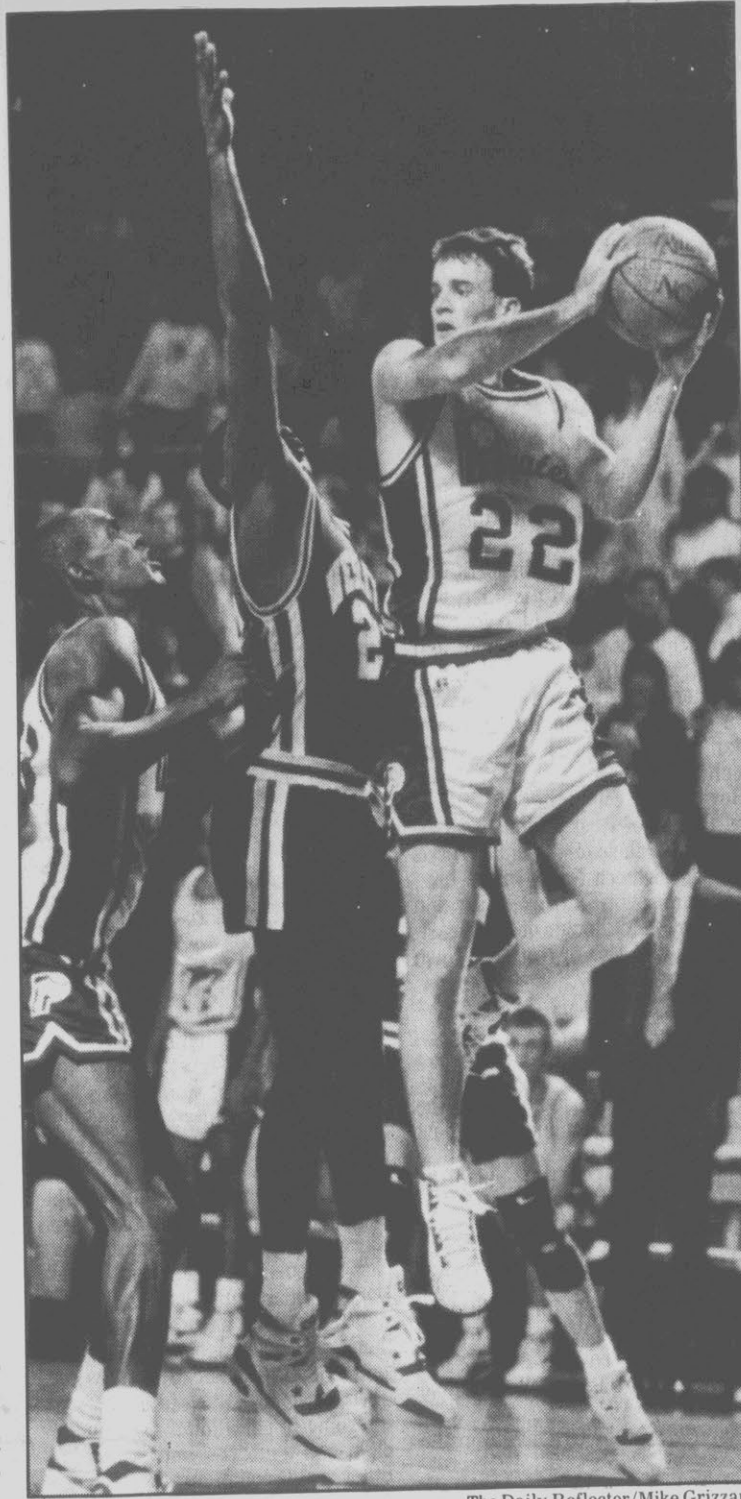

Lose tried a 3-pointer from the top of the key, but was off-target and Hill was called for an intentional foul against Goodwin on the rebound. Goodwin missed both shots, however, but Wesleyan still retained possession due to the intentional foul.

Goodwin was fouled again with four seconds to go. He made both shots to pad the lead to four, making Whitaker's final 3-point goal meaningless.

"This is really a tremendous win for our players and our program," Wesleyan coach Bill Chambers said. "It means a lot to a Division III to knock off a Division I team. It's a special accomplishment."

Chambers said the basket that proved the difference, Macklin's break-away, was a broken play.

Falcons' Campbell Retires

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SUWANEE, Ga. — Atlanta Falcons head coach Marion Campbell announced his retirement today, saying he wanted to give the last-place team a chance "to get on with the future."

"I have chosen this avenue to clear the picture for the ownership to get on with the future of their franchise," Campbell said in a statement released from the NFL club's headquarters.

"At the present time, I am just announcing my retirement and I have no plans as to my future concerns."

The Falcons are 3-9, last in the NFC West.

Campbell's retirement is effective immediately, according to Falcons officials, who said they would appoint an interim head coach later today.

"He's gone," said team spokesman Charlie Taylor. "He left the building."

Campbell was hired to coach the team for a second time in 1987, after the firing of head coach Dan Hennig. Campbell compiled an 11-32 record in the past 2½ seasons.

Campbell also was head coach of the Falcons from 1974-1976 and coached the Philadelphia Eagles from 1983-85. His career record as an NFL head coach is 34-80-1.

Rumors of Campbell's departure began swirling in recent weeks as the Falcons lost five of their last six games.

Campbell, in his statement, said he made his decision to quit Monday and "told my staff and the players this morning."

"I feel that I am leaving a better football team than when I took over," he said.

Perry, Palmer, Morgan On Ballot

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Gaylord Perry, a 300-game winner who fell 32 votes short of election to the Baseball Hall of Fame this year, will have added competition in 1990 from three-time Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer and two-time Most Valuable Player Joe Morgan.

Palmer, who won the American League Cy Young for Baltimore, and Morgan, who won his National League MVP awards for the Cincinnati Reds, head 21 first-time candidates on the ballot distributed Monday to veteran members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Perry, who won 314 games while pitching for San Francisco, Cleveland, Texas, San Diego, Atlanta, Kansas City, the New York Yankees and Seattle, is one of 23 holdover candidates on the ballot. Also on the ballot is pitcher Jim Bunning, who won 224 games while pitching for Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles. Bunning was 53 votes short of election in the most recent balloting.

Morgan batted .271 with 268 home runs and 689 stolen bases in 22 seasons, winning consecutive MVP awards in 1975 and 1976 as the Reds won consecutive World Series titles. He holds the NL record for most games played at second base (2,427) as well as a number of fielding records.

Morgan also played for Houston,

San Francisco, Philadelphia and Oakland.

Palmer pitched 19 seasons for Baltimore, posting a record of 268-152. He was a 20-game winner eight times and won the Cy Young in 1973, 1975 and 1976.

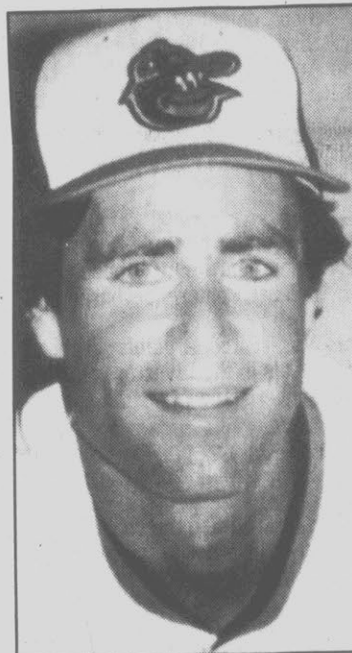

Other players eligible for the first time are Jim Bibby, Mike Caldwell, Bucky Dent, Roy Howell, Greg Luzinski, Tug McGraw, Rick Monday, Jose Morales, Amos Otis, Lou Piniella, Jerry Remy, Mickey Rivers, Tony Scott, Ken Singleton, John Stearns, Champ Summers, Dick Tidrow, Mike Torrez and Bob Watson.

The other returning candidates are Dick Allen, Bobby Bonds, Ken Boyer, Orlando Cepeda, Elroy Face, Curt Flood, Ferguson Jenkins, Jim Kaat, Harvey Kuenn, Mickey Lolich, Sparky Lyle, Bill Mazerowski, Minnie Minoso, Thurman Munson, Tony Oliva, Vada Pinson, Ron Santo, Paul Splittorff, Luis Tiant, Joe Torre and Maury Wills.

To be elected to the Hall of Fame, a candidate must receive 75 percent of the votes cast by 10-year members of the BBWAA. Players become eligible five years after retirement and can remain on the ballot a maximum of 15 years before being passed along to the Veterans Committee.

There are 204 members in the Hall of Fame, 76 of whom have been elected by the BBWAA, 119 elected by the Veterans Committee and nine by the committee that considered former Negro League stars.

Wolfpack Rolls Past App. State

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — With Rodney Monroe and Chris Corchiani in the backcourt, North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano knows the perimeter is in good shape. It's what's up front that has him worried.

"The last 10 days, we've concentrated almost exclusively on the inside game during practice. We improved in that area, but we've still got a long way to go," Valvano said after the 25th-ranked Wolfpack won 97-67 over Appalachian State on Monday night.

Monroe scored 21 points, one of seven players in double figures, to lead the Wolfpack. Senior center Brian D'Amico scored a career-high 12 points and grabbed a career-high 12 rebounds.

Brian Howard chipped in with 17 points, Tom Gugliotta had 12, Mickey Hinnant scored 11 and Chris Corchiani and freshman Kevin Thompson added 10 each.

"I felt Brian D'Amico played well and the freshmen did a nice job. We did have some nice passes in the post," Valvano said. "I was pleased with the way we played. We played hard the whole way. We didn't start out playing well but we came back."

Monroe said the inside play helped open up the perimeter.

"That's what we've been working on, to develop an inside game," Monroe said. "We are putting great emphasis on that because that's something we need. Tonight, we had a good balance."

The Wolfpack (2-1) outscored Appalachian State 24-8 from the free throw line as the Mountaineers were called for 27 fouls, compared to just 15 for N.C. State. That was apparently enough to keep Coach Tom Apke from making post-game comments.

San Francisco Rules Battle With Giants, 34-24

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — The tale of this game could be read in the welts on the ribs of Joe Montana and Phil Simms, the swelling in Lawrence Taylor's right leg, the fatigue on everyone's face.

It could be heard in the anger in the voices of the San Francisco 49ers and the New York Giants on the field and in their weary, sometimes bitter words afterward.

For 3½ hours Monday night, the teams with the best records in the NFC played a brutal game of football. In perhaps a preview of the conference championship matchup, the 49ers came away a 34-24 winner.

"I think we'll see them again somewhere down the line," said Giants defensive end Leonard Marshall, still upset by the play that knocked Taylor out of the game in the second quarter with knee and ankle sprains.

"Lawrence Taylor was cut down on a cheap shot," Marshall said. "He was cut (down) from behind."

San Francisco tackle Steve Wallace, who was involved in the play, said that after Taylor went down "there was bad blood. They were saying we shouldn't have cut him... but it wasn't intentional."

There was bad blood before the game from previous meetings and accusations, and tempers flared early once it got going. Players speared each other with helmets, grabbed face masks and swung at each other after plays were over.

"The two best teams in football were playing tonight," San Francisco linebacker Bill Romanowski said. "It was definitely a dogfight right to the end. It was something

Taylor Sprains Knee, Ankle

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO — Lawrence Taylor suffered a sprained right knee and ankle Monday and was removed from the field on a stretcher in the second quarter of the New York Giants' game against the San Francisco 49ers.

The Giants said the injury was not serious.

The eight-time Pro Bowl linebacker, who has missed only one game due to injury in his nine-year career, was hurt as the 49ers ran a sweep to the opposite side of the field in Giants' territory. He lay on the field for almost five minutes as trainers worked on him.

Two plays after the delay, San Francisco took a 24-7 lead on Joe Montana's 17-yard touchdown pass to John Taylor.

Taylor, 30, played six consecutive seasons without missing time until a hamstring injury sidelined him for one game in 1987, the year after he was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player. He also had to sit out the first four games last season because of a league suspension for substance abuse.

and reliving a second-half collapse against the Giants on a Monday night three years ago.

Mike Cofer, given a reprieve by a penalty, kicked a 45-yard field goal with 4:12 remaining to put the 49ers ahead for good. Cofer had missed badly from 50 yards, but got a second chance because New York's Reyna Thompson had lined up the neutral zone. It was the same offense that hurt the 49ers in their loss to Green Bay last week.

"We made a good comeback, but we made a couple of mistakes at the end of the game and that lost it for us right there," Giants coach Bill Parcells said. "When they missed that field goal, I thought sure we would win it."

Joe Montana completed 18 of his first 19 passes, including three for first-half touchdowns, to give San Francisco a 24-7 lead. Then, after being knocked out of the game briefly with sore ribs, he returned to conduct a familiar game-winning drive in the final minutes.

"I like to think we're going to win them all, but then there's a game like this where you work and you work and you're still hanging by your fingernails at the end," said Jerry Rice, who caught his 15th touchdown pass. "Nobody likes to play like that, but when it's close we know we can come through every time."

Even Giants cornerback Mark Collins, who had wondered if this might be a repeat of that 1986 Giants' victory over the 49ers, got a bad feeling at the end with Montana returning and the game on the line.

"I'm afraid there's no comparison. Phil Simms is a damn good quarterback, but every time it's crunch time, Joe Montana comes through," Collins said glumly.

The Giants, boasting the stingiest defense in the conference — 16 points per game — permitted Montana to improve his league-leading 70 percent completion rate, hitting 27 of 33 passes for 292 yards.

But Simms brought the Giants back, engineering two second-half touchdown drives and New York eventually tied the score at 24 midway through the final period.

After Cofer's field goal, however, Simms was intercepted for the third time, this one by Eric Wright, setting up Tom Rathman's 1-yard insurance touchdown with 1:08 remaining.

Simms completed 25 of 48 passes for 326 yards.

The 49ers boosted their hopes of gaining the homefield advantage throughout the playoffs and retained a two-game lead over the Los Angeles Rams in the West. Those two play at Los Angeles on Dec. 11.

The mistake-prone 49ers nearly fumbled away the game in the second half in a manner similar to their collapse against the Giants nearly three years ago. In a Monday night game in Candlestick Park on Dec. 1, 1986, New York overcame a 17-0 halftime deficit with three third-period touchdowns for a 21-17 victory, and this second half seemed like a rerun.

Rookie David Meggett took a swinging pass from Simms, raced through the secondary and slipped a tackle by Chet Brooks at the 15 as he completed a 53-yard scoring play to cut the lead to 24-17.

When Carl Banks slapped the ball out of Montana's hands and defensive end John Washington recovered at the New York 13, the Giants had a chance to tie it.

But Burt, a recent 49ers pickup to shore up the nose tackle position in Michael Carter's absence, forced a fumble by Meggett to kill one threat, and Brooks' interception of a Simms pass at the 49ers' 1-yard line with 11:40 left in the game wiped out another.

The Giants finally drew even with 7:06 left after Banks hammered Mike Wilson and Mark Collins recovered at the San Francisco 30. Dismissing a field goal on fourth-and-goal from the 7, Simms lofted the tying pass to Odessa Turner in the left corner of the end zone.

It was a gamble that paid off for the Giants, but their luck ran out when Cofer got his second chance for a field goal and Simms threw the ball straight to Wright.

Greenville Netters Among Winners

GOLDSBORO — Several Greenville players were among winners in the 8th annual Gold-City Acers Polar Bear Tennis Tournament, held this past weekend in Goldsboro.

Marvin Hardy of Greenville defeated Chris Mammon of Raleigh in the men's open singles. It was Hardy's first win over Mammon in five tries.

Anderson, a 6-2 freshman from Queens, N.Y., was named the rookie of the week. Anderson scored 28 points in 23 minutes in a 108-83 victory over Georgia State. He also had five assists, three steals and three rebounds.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — UCLA heads the field for the 1990 Great Alaska Shootout.

It will be the first Shootout appearance for the Bruins, a team sought by tournament sponsors for years.

Other participants announced Monday include Virginia, South Carolina, Cal-Irvine, and Texas Tech. None has been in the 12 previous Shootouts.

Alaska-Anchorage, a Division II school, again will be the host team. The last two teams for the field of eight will be named later.

Banks Among Four To Resign From TAC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Willie Banks, the world record-holder in the triple jump, and three others resigned positions in The Athletics Congress on Monday.

Banks, who currently is living in Japan, stepped down as one of TAC's three vice presidents. Harvey Gance, a 1976 Olympic gold medalist in the 400-meter relay, was elected by TAC's Board of Directors as interim vice president.

Banks had one year remaining of a two-year term.

Other resignations included Julie McKinney of San Pedro, Calif., as chairman of TAC's Women's Long Distance Running Committee, and Jerry Donley of Colorado Springs, Colo., as chairman of the Masters Track and Field Committee.

NFL Says Cashion Crew Muffed Call

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL said Monday that referee Red Cashion and his crew erred by failing to give Cincinnati another play after a field goal had been negated by a penalty at the end of the first half of the Bengals' 24-7 loss to Buffalo on Sunday.

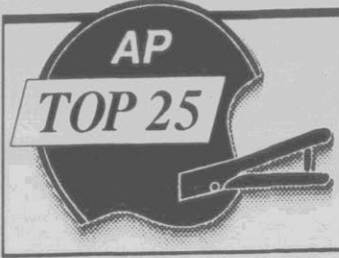

The situation arose with the Bills leading 10-0 and no time left on the clock following a face mask penalty on Buffalo's Bruce Smith. NFL rules specify that a half can't end on a defensive penalty and the Bengals' Jim Breech kicked a 26-yard field goal to cut the margin to 10-3.

But there was a penalty on the play and the Bengals, thinking it was off-side against the Bills, ran off the field, assuming the field goal would count.

Cashion, however, ruled that two Cincinnati linemen had moved, that the call was illegal procedure. He nullified the field goal and ruled the half over.

But after a review of the play by Art McNally, the supervisor of officials, the league said the ball should have been marked back five yards and the Bengals given another play because the penalty against Smith was still operative.

Bengals coach Sam Wyche, however, continued to protest the call rather than the effect.

Bufs Are Finally No. 1

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colorado is No. 1 in college football for the first time in school history. While members of the team said it will be fun to have some "bragging rights," they won't consider their work done until Jan. 1.

That's when the Buffaloes, previously No. 2 behind top-ranked Notre Dame, meet the Fighting Irish in the Orange Bowl for what could be the national championship.

Colorado moved up in The Associated Press poll on Monday after Miami beat Notre Dame 27-10 Saturday. The Fighting Irish, who had been No. 1 since the first week of the season, fell to No. 5, while Miami rose three places to No. 4.

Alabama, the only other major undefeated team, moved up two places to No. 2 while once-beaten Michigan remained third after beating Ohio State 23-18. Alabama, which had the week off, finishes its regular season Saturday at Auburn.

The top five teams all figure to have a shot at the national championship. Colorado can win it by beating Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, but if the Buffaloes lose it would open the door for the other four teams.

"It is going to be our ultimate challenge," Colorado coach Bill McCartney said. "Anyone who knows anything about Notre Dame and its great traditions knows that they will bounce back from the Miami loss. You can count on that."

Colorado players expressed reserved pleasure on Monday.

"It's really not a big deal, because we've still got one more to play," defensive co-captain Michael Jones said. "If we lose, it all goes out the window."

"It's a great feeling," guard Darin Mullenburg said, "but we know we have to prove it and finish it off with one last game."

"I feel the same as I did when we were No. 9," linebacker Alfred Williams said. "It feels good, but there's no golden light shining on me. The way everything has fallen, I think we should be in the top two. It's funny how the rankings go, but it'll be fun to have some bragging rights."

University president Gordon Gee was a little more enthused.

"We now have a football team our chemistry department can be proud of," he said, referring to the Nobel Prize for chemistry recently awarded to CU chemist Thomas Cech.

"To remain (No. 1)," McCartney said, "we know that we have to defeat Notre Dame. If we do that, we can lay claim to be the national champions. It is going to be our ultimate challenge."

Colorado, which completed an 11-0 regular season on Nov. 18, received 53 first-place votes and 1,468 of a possible 1,500 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Miami got three first-place votes, with two going to Alabama and one to Michigan.

Alabama received 1,351 points, while Michigan got 1,332 and Miami 1,319. Notre Dame, whose 23-game winning streak was snapped by Miami, received 1,231 points.

Florida State and Nebraska, who will meet in the Fiesta Bowl, are No. 6 and No. 7. Although both teams were idle, each dropped one spot because of Miami's move.

Orangemen Top Cage Poll

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lots of folks figured Syracuse would be No. 1 sometime this basketball season, and it has happened already. Kansas, meanwhile, went from nowhere to somewhere in hurry.

Syracuse, ranked No. 3 in the preseason, moved up two spots after Kansas, then unranked, knocked off No. 2 Louisiana State and No. 1 UNLV in consecutive games.

"I really don't pay any attention to them," Kansas coach Roy Williams said Monday when the rankings were announced. "Needless to say, it's going to get a lot of attention tonight and tomorrow until Thursday. But I really could care less. I know we've got to do it on the court."

The Jayhawks got it done on the court in winning the preseason NIT, knocking off No. 25 St. John's in the title game after beating Alabama-Birmingham, LSU and UNLV to gain the finals.

"The reason I don't pay a lot of attention to the polls — let me change that — the reason I don't pay any attention to the polls is because in basketball you do get a chance to play at the end of the year" in the NCAA Tournament, Williams said. "I'm glad you say the players get the credit first," he told a caller to his weekly radio show. "That's really not any genius sitting over there on the bench. The players have to do it. They believe in what we're trying to do. We have intelligent kids who are doing a good job of carrying it out."

Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim was no less ambivalent to his club's placing.

"We don't pay much attention to that," he said. "We've been ranked No. 1 in the last 12 years. It's not going to make much difference."

"By the time the end of the season rolls around, I hope we'll be classified as a good basketball team."

There seems little doubt of that. The Orangemen opened what is expected to be a stellar season with a 95-79 victory over Rutgers Monday night.

Syracuse received 23 first-place votes and 1,453 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters in edging Arizona by 11 points. The Wildcats opened the season by beating defending national champion Michigan in the Tipoff Classic.

Georgetown was No. 3, followed by Kansas and Maui Classic winner Missouri. Arizona received 10 first-place votes and had 31 more points than Georgetown (24) which moved from fifth to third and received nine No. 1 votes.

Kansas (4-0) was on top of 16 ballots and had 1,266 points to edge fellow Big Eight member Missouri, which had 1,248 points.

UNLV (3-1) was one vote back in sixth, followed by Duke (1-0), Illinois, LSU (1-1) and Michigan (0-1).

Arkansas (2-0), ninth in preseason, had two first-place votes to lead the Second Ten. North Carolina, which lost to Missouri in the title game in Maui, fell from seventh to 12th. It was just the second time in the last 74 polls — starting in the 1984-85 season — that the Tar Heels were not ranked in the Top 10. They have been in the rankings every week since Jan. 4, 1983.

Louisville (2-1), third at Maui, was 13th, followed by Indiana, UCLA, Temple, Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, Notre Dame and St. John's. Georgia Tech was 21st and Memphis State, Oklahoma State, Florida and North Carolina State rounded out the Top 25.

Kansas was the only newcomer to the poll. Minnesota, ranked 20th before losing to Cincinnati in its opener, dropped out of the rankings.

Packers Find Themselves In Odd Position

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Green Bay Packers will be in a strange position next Sunday night.

They'll be rooting for the Chicago Bears.

Unless the Bears beat Minnesota, the season's most surprising NFL team could still find itself out of the playoffs. Without getting into all the intricacies of the tie-breaking system, if the Vikings win that game and tie the Packers for the NFC Central title, they win the division.

For while 1989 looks on the surface like another year of parity — three-fourths of the way through, three-fourths of the teams are nominally in contention for the playoffs — there only two real muddles are in the Midwest. One is in the NFC Central, where the Vikings and Packers, at 7-5, are a game ahead of the Bears, who have fallen to .500 for the first time since the final game of the 1983 season. Moreover, Green Bay has momentum — the Bears and Vikings have each lost their last two and Minnesota, which lost 10-9 to the Eagles and 20-19 to the Packers, probably should have won both.

Nevertheless, despite Mike Ditka's plaintive "it's over" following Sunday's 38-14 trouncing in Washington Sunday, the Bears could win by finishing like they started — with a four-game winning streak. Among other things, they have the luxury of playing both the other contenders — starting with the Vikings at the Metrodome Sunday night.

Green Bay, meanwhile, has the easiest closing schedule, although three of their four games are on the road and like a lot of young, emerging teams, they seem to let down in the seemingly easy ones — their 23-20 loss to Detroit three weeks ago is an example.

They benefit from a last-place schedule and finish at Tampa Bay; Kansas City at home; at Chicago and at Dallas.

The other tight race is in the AFC Central, where a game-and-a-half separates first-place Cleveland (7-4-1) from Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, tied for last at 6-6.

Like the Bears, the Bengals still have a shot at defending their AFC title because they're 3-1 in the division and still have the Oilers and Browns left.

"There's no reason for us to get down," says wide receiver Tim McGee. "Four wins and we win the division. That's what it comes down to."

Beyond that, however, things are relative simple — with four games left in the season, perhaps six of the 10 playoff teams are already identifiable.

The Broncos, for example, clinched the AFC West by beating Seattle 41-14 Sunday and need just two more wins to clinch the home field for the playoffs. Buffalo (8-4) is effectively two games ahead in the AFC East because it's beaten (7-5) Miami twice.

Moreover, barring a complete collapse, the 49ers, Giants, and probably the Rams and Eagles should make it in the NFC along with the winner of the Central. Even if the Giants and 49ers, who met Monday night, should lose their divisions to the Eagles and the Rams, they're almost certainly assured of making it as wild cards.

"We're absolutely an atrocious football team right now," Ditka said after the Bears' debacle in Washington.

All of which may prove that in those halcyon years from 1984 to 1988 when the Bears were 67-20 (63-16 in regular season) that their most valuable player was Dan Hampton.

With Hampton in the lineup, the Bears won their first four games this season, allowing just 61 points, or 15.3 a game. Since he went out with a knee injury, they're 2-6 and have allowed 196 points, or 24.5 a game.

THAT'LL SHOW YOU
Jerry Burns and his offensive coordinator with the Vikings, Bob Schnelker, have been criticized incessantly for failing to use Herschel Walker enough. So trailing Green Bay 20-16 with about six minutes left Sunday, they gave Walker the ball three straight times from the Packers' 67.

He gained 5, leaving them with a fourth and one.

So the Vikings kicked a field goal that cut the deficit to 20-19, which turned out to be the final score.

Why not go for it, particularly when failure would still leave the Packers on the 1 against one of the NFL's best defenses?

"It was debatable," Burns said. "If we got closer than we did — one foot or two feet away — I would have gone for it. But they jammed Herschel and I didn't want to come out of there with nothing."

He came out of there with nothing anyway.

Owens Sparks Syracuse; Michigan Bounces Back

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The more you ignore Syracuse's Billy Owens, the more he'll make sure you never forget him. In last year's NCAA Tournament, while opponents concentrated on Derrick Coleman, Stephen Thompson and point guard Sherman Douglas, Owens burned Bucknell, Missouri and Illinois for nearly 25 points a game.

On Monday night, with Coleman and LeRon Ellis getting most of the inside attention from Rutgers, Owens scored 18 of his career-high 33 points in the final 8 1/2 minutes as the top-ranked 1 Orangemen broke open a close game and took a 95-79 victory in the season opener for each team.

"They were worried a lot about Derrick down low and there was room for me to drive in low," Owens, a 6-foot-9 sophomore, said. "They were in a zone and they bumped off Derrick real good. I had it in my mind to take over the game. I think the ballclub needed somebody to take over, take some shots."

It was the eighth straight home-opening victory at the Carrier Dome for Syracuse, which held a 43-41 halftime lead and was up by just 73-71 with 6:11 to play when Owens took over.

Thompson, who inherited the point guard spot from the graduated Douglas, had 29 points, tying his career best as Syracuse closed the game with an 18-8 spurt.

Michigan.....73 Boston U.....65

Loy Vaught scored 23 points as he and defending national champion Michigan came back from a disappointing season opener to win at Boston University.

Vaught had just four points in 26 minutes and fouled out in an 82-75 loss to Arizona on Saturday's Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic. It dropped the Wolverines from fourth to 10th in the national rankings.

But against Boston University (1-1), Vaught teamed with Rumeal Robinson in the second half when Michigan (1-1) held off a late threat after it had stretched a 36-31 halftime lead to 68-57 with 1:15 left.

Robinson, who played under current Boston University coach Mike Jarvis at Cambridge (Mass.) Ridge & Latin High School, had 13 of his 15 points in the second half.

Michigan St.....73 Kansas St.....68

Steve Smith scored 17 points and had 11 assists as Michigan State beat Kansas State 73-68 to win the Great Alaska Shootout. Michigan State took charge in a stretch from late in the first half, pulling away from a 29-29 tie 3 1/2 minutes before intermission to lead 39-29 at the break. The Spartans pulled ahead by 16 in the late going before Kansas State rallied to within 65-60.

Michigan State's Kirk Thomas hit six free throws down the stretch to keep the Wildcats at bay.

College Basketball

Hawaii.....75 Texas A&M.....71

A tournament-record 19 free throws by Chris Gaines paced Hawaii to a 75-71 victory over Texas A&M in the third-place game of the great Alaska Shootout.

The Rainbows overcame an eight-point deficit in the first half and then withstood an Aggie rally that trimmed the lead to 61-60 with 8:06 left.

Gaines converted 19 of 22 free throws as he was fouled repeatedly by Aggie defenders trying to deny him a shot. Hawaii made 34 of 48 free throws to 14 of 27 for Texas A&M.

The Rainbows got 12 points off the bench from Andrew McGuire, who helped neutralize the Aggies' David Harris after a big first half. Harris finished with 18 to lead the Aggies.

UNC-Charlotte.....87 N. Carolina A&T.....55

CHARLOTTE — Center Cedric Ball scored 19 points and pulled down 14 rebounds Monday night to lead North Carolina-Charlotte to a season-opening 87-55 victory over North Carolina A&T.

The 49ers man-to-man defense forced 23 turnovers and limited the Aggies to 27 percent field goal shooting in the second half.

UNC-Charlotte took a 35-18 lead with 4:32 left in the first half, fueled by a 15-4 run capped by an offensive rebound by Benny Moss. The Aggies responded with a 10-1 run, and Dana Elliott's two free throws closed the gap to 36-28 with 1:42 left in the half.

The 49ers scored the last six points of the half to take a 42-28 lead, and gradually pulled away in the second half.

Henry Williams finished with 18 points, including four 3-pointers for UNC-Charlotte. Moss added 17 points for the 49ers.

Elliott and Glenn Taggart scored 14 each and A&T, winless in its first two games.

Campbell.....85 Pfeiffer.....75

BUIES CREEK — Reserve Heath Vandevender scored a career-high 24 points and Mark Moenic added 21 to lead Campbell to an 85-75 victory over Pfeiffer on Monday night.

Vandevender scored 18 points in the second half, including nine in a three-minute stretch.

Brad Childress added 11 points, five assists and two steals for Campbell, (1-1).

Forward Rodney Wilson led Pfeiffer with 24 points and six rebounds, and Marcus Elam came off the bench to score 16 points for the winless Falcons (0-2).

William & Mary.....80 Davidson.....79

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Freshman Thomas Roberts hit a 15-foot jump shot with eight seconds left Monday to give William & Mary an 80-79 victory over Davidson.

The Indians (2-0) trailed by 10 with 13:27 left, but rallied to take their first lead of the game, 78-77; on Curtis Pride's layup with 1:04 remaining.

Davidson (0-2) regained the lead on a 15-foot jumper by Edward Gaines with 44 seconds left. After Roberts scored the game-winner, the Wildcats were unable to get off another shot.

Davidson lost two starters — center Detlef Musch and forward Jay Schmitt — to fouls at the 9:03 and 8:09 marks, respectively.

Roberts led the Indians with 23 points, followed by Scott Smith with 22, and Jimmy Apple with 12. Gaines and Paul Demmond scored 22 points apiece for the Wildcats, Sterling Freeman added 13.

The Bulldogs, 1-0, took an early 16-2 lead with 16:32 in the first half. Georgia led 45-27 at halftime.

Alec Kessler pulled down nine rebounds for Georgia. Luther Tutt had 14 points and five rebounds for the Buccaneers.

Vanderbilt.....65 Southern Methodist.....60

DALLAS — Sophomore center Todd Miholland scored 15 points to lead Vanderbilt to a 65-60 defeat of Southern Methodist in college basketball Monday.

The game opened the season for Vanderbilt while SMU fell to 1-1, losing its home opener for the first time in 13 years.

Miholland made four of four free throws in the last 19 seconds after SMU had cut Vanderbilt's lead to 61-58.

Senior forward John Colborne led the Mustangs with 17 points. Guards Rod Hampton and Troy Valentinio each scored a career-high 12 points.

Terps Overwhelm Augusta, 105-74

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Jerrad Mustaf and Walt Williams combined for 50 points and Maryland overcame a slow start to defeat Augusta 105-74 Monday.

Mustaf finished with 26 points and career-high 15 rebounds while Williams added a career-high 24 points as the Terrapins improved to 2-0 on the season. The Jaguars are now 1-1.

Maryland, which was forced to battle back from a 14-point deficit Saturday against Delaware State, fell behind early again and trailed for much of the first half.

Mustaf's short jumper with 3:02 left broke a 36-36 tie and ignited a 14-3 run that staked Maryland to an eight-point halftime advantage.

Mustaf and Williams provided 10 of the Terps' first 12 second half points as Maryland opened a 59-41 margin with 16:57 remaining.

The Terps continued to pad the lead, building a 95-61 edge in the closing moments.

Jesse Martin added a career-high 14 points for Maryland while Keenan Mann led Augusta of Georgia with 17 points.

Nets Held To Record-Low 68 Points By Jazz Defense

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY — Some coaches are just never satisfied.

Utah beat New Jersey 105-68 Monday night, a team-record low for the Nets, but when it was over Jazz coach Jerry Sloan was fuming about his team's 29 turnovers.

"We had 19 (turnovers) in the first half and 29 for the game and that is frustrating," Sloan said. "If we have anywhere near that kind of turnovers on the road, we're going to have some trouble."

But John Stockton, who returned to uniform after an injury with 10 points and 10 assists, said, "Turnovers are a concern, but it's something we'll heal as time goes on."

"If we can get the ball inside and play tough defensively, everything else will take care of itself," he said.

Karl Malone had 22 points and 17 rebounds for the Jazz, while Joe Barry Carroll scored 15 points for the Nets, whose 68 points erased the team's record low of 73 against Indiana in 1977. It also was a team defensive record for the Jazz, who previously allowed 73 points in a game against Sacramento last season.

"I didn't give up golf and fishing to spend nights like this," said Nets coach Bill Fitch, who took the Nets' job after spending a year out of coaching. "When you play the game like that, you know, as a coach, you've got a lot of problems. But it's still my team, and somehow, somehow we're going to turn it around."

The Nets wound up a winless five-game road trip, losing by an average 23 points per game while scoring an average of 89 points and hitting 38.5 percent from the field.

"After a game like this, we start trying to find some answers. But there are no answers," New Jersey's Sam Bowie said. "It seems like things are snowballing right now and we can't seem to get anything to go right."

The Nets, who have lost eight straight games, trailed only 54-47 with 7:49 left in the third period. But Utah then went on a 20-6 run and outscored New Jersey 31-13 in the fourth quarter to complete a 55-28 second half.

Stockton missed the previous two games with an ankle injury.

"John has been ready to play for three or four days," Sloan said of Stockton, who played 29 minutes after sitting out home losses to Orlando and the Los Angeles Lakers. "But we wanted to be very cautious and not put him out there until he was really ready."

Delaney Rudd, sent in for Stockton, "stepped right in there and made some good decisions when we put him in," Sloan said.

Pacers 101, Bucks 97

Vern Fleming and Detlef Schrempf each scored 21 points, including 13 and 10, respectively, in the decisive fourth quarter. Schrempf's three-point play with 22 seconds left gave Indiana a 99-97 lead and Chuck Person added two free throws 19 seconds later.

Rik Smits scored 25 points for the Pacers, while Ricky Pierce led the Bucks with 22 and Jay Humphries had 17.

"You hang around, hang around, hang around and try to steal one," Indiana coach Dick Versace said. "I like my team's ability to take a bad game and turn it into a good one."

Milwaukee coach Del Harris said the Bucks aren't comfortable playing with a lead.

"We can't shoot it fast enough," Harris said sarcastically. "You can't be blazing away."

Knicks 119, Hornets 108

Johnny Newman is still the New York Knicks' starting small forward and is still trying to prove to everyone he can play the position.

"I think I've played well overall," Newman said after his 23-point performance helped the Knicks beat the Charlotte Hornets 119-108 Monday night. "Even when I wasn't in a scoring flow, I thought I helped in other areas. I'm determined to have a good year and show people I'm a good player."

Newman seemed destined for the bench when the Knicks traded for Kiki Vandeweghe last spring, but the former Portland star's back problems have prevented him from replacing Newman.

Newman scored 12 points as the Knicks outscored Charlotte 38-23 in the third quarter. They went on to improve their record to 6-0 at Madison Square Garden and remained the only team in the NBA's Eastern Conference with an unbeaten record at home.

The 23 points was a season high for Newman, who averaged 16 points last season but had only a 12.3 average after eight games this year. He is up to 17.1 in his last four outings.

New York, leading only 61-57 at halftime, started the second half with a 9-2 run for a 70-59 advantage. Later in the third period, Newman scored eight points during a 17-4 surge that made it 89-69 with 4:02 left in the quarter.

"At halftime, I told them to start putting it together and we're looking at a disappointment," Coach Stu Jackson said. "But they had already made the decision on their own to play better. That really impressed me."

New York led by 24 points in the fourth quarter before Rex Chapman scored 18 of his career-high 38 points in the period, helping the Hornets close the gap in the final minutes.

Chapman, who played 41 minutes as reserve guard Dell Curry missed his second game with a groin injury, made 17 of 32 shots.

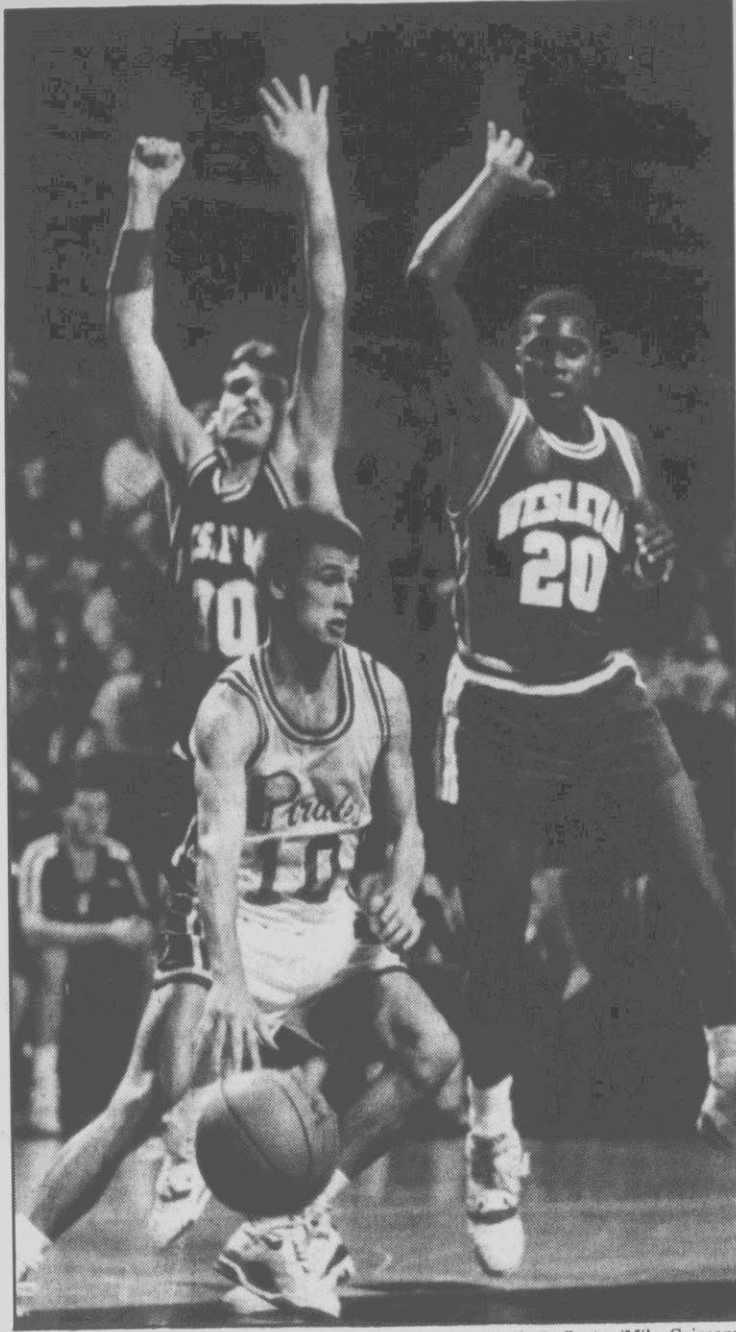

"He took a couple of bad shots, but I love it that he took the ball at people," Charlotte coach Dick Harter said. "There was one sequence when he took the ball to the basket three times in one possession despite getting his shot rejected. There were times last year when he didn't do that three times in a game."

Patrick Ewing had 23 points and 11 rebounds and Charles Oakley had 16 points and 15 rebounds for the Knicks, who had a 53-29 advantage on the boards. Rookie J.R. Reid had 15 points but only five rebounds for Charlotte, 13 less than he had in Saturday night's victory over Minnesota.

"It's really tough going against two of the best big men in the NBA," Reid said. "Oakley and Ewing are very physical and very tough to contain."

"They've got two big guys to play tough for them inside," Chapman said of Ewing and Oakley. "That's what they get paid for."

The Knicks took a 27-19 lead with eight consecutive points late in the first quarter, and led by eight on four other occasions until jumpers by 5-foot-3 Tyrone Bogues and 6-1 Jerry Sichting started an 8-0 Charlotte run that tied the score 51-51.

"They looked like they were trying to trap (the ball) and they just left him alone."

Chambers said his team's game plan was to work the ball outside unless they got a quick inside shot, and burn the clock. "We didn't want to play them a 40-minute game. We figured by burning the clock off, we'd get them down to a 20- or 30-minute game."

"This really hasn't sunk in well, yet, but it's got to be one of our biggest victories. We beat VMI something like 10 years ago, but this is the first time we've beaten a Division I in the four years I've been here," Chambers added.

"We just couldn't stop them," Steele said. "The longer they hung in there, the more confidence they got."

"Now, we've got to make some decisions about who is going to play."

The Bishops improved their record to 3-0 on the year while the Pirates fall to 0-2.

ECU will travel to Greensboro on Wednesday to face UNC-Greensboro in the Coliseum. "Our (scouts) said that Greensboro is better than Wesleyan, but I can't worry about them as much as I have to worry about our own problems," Steele said.

Macklin led Wesleyan with a game-high 20 points while Goodwin added 16 and Saunders had 15.

Brown led ECU with 15 while Ike Copeland and Hill each had 10.

If there was a difference in the statistics that told, it was the field-goal shooting. Wesleyan hit on 61.7 percent of its shots, while ECU made only 48.2 percent of its shots — but took nine more.

"We just got it inside more," Chambers said. "That was the key."

Henderson Expected To Be The Next $3 Million Player

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Outfielder Rickey Henderson, who starred for Oakland in postseason play, may become baseball's second $3 million-a-year player today.

The New York Times reported that the Athletics will re-sign Henderson, who became a free agent after the World Series. Minnesota outfielder Kirby Puckett recently signed for $3 million a year.

The duration of a Henderson contract wasn't reported.

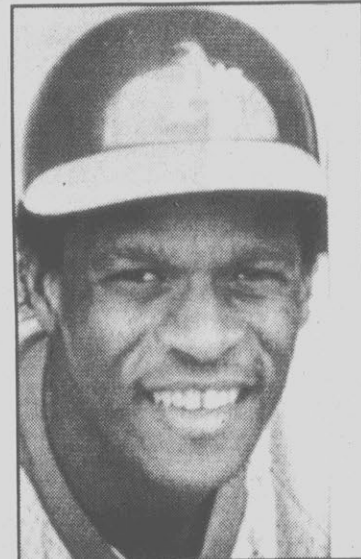

Henderson, who will be 31 on Christmas Day, starred in the American League playoffs and the World Series. The A's reacquired him from the New York Yankees on June 21 for pitchers Greg Cadaret and Eric Plunk and outfielder Luis Polonia.

He was named the outstanding player in the playoffs against Toronto, batting .400 with two home runs, five RBIs and eight stolen bases in eight attempts. In the A's four-game World Series sweep of the San Francisco Giants, Henderson batted .474 with a home run and three steals in four attempts.

Henderson batted .247 with 25 stolen bases in 65 games with the Yankees. After being traded back to Oakland, he batted .294 and stole 52 bases in 94 games.

Henderson began his major-league career with Oakland and was traded to the Yankees in 1984 for five players. Of the five, only outfielder Stan Javier is still with the A's.

Richie Bry, Henderson's agent, told the Times that the outfielder wanted to give the A's every oppor-

Terms of the deal, which calls for two years plus an option, were not disclosed.

Wilson, 33, joined the Blue Jays from the New York Mets as the player-to-be-named-later in a trade which sent pitcher Jeff Musselman to the Mets on Aug. 1.

The switch-hitter batted .298 in 54 games for the Blue Jays, helping them to the American League East Division title.

The signing of Wilson puts the Blue Jays one player over their 40-man winter roster. A move will be announced later today, the Blue Jays said in a news release.

Red Sox Sign Pena

BOSTON — Tony Pena signed a $6.4 million, three-year contract with the Red Sox as Boston ended its long reluctance to sign high-paid free agents in an attempt to end its catching problems.

Pena, a five-time All-Star who spent the last three seasons with St. Louis, will receive a $600,000 signing bonus and salaries of $1.5 million in 1990, $2.1 million in 1991 and $2.2 million in 1992. He earned $1.1 million last season, hitting .259 with four homers and 37 RBIs.

'Doing Hair' Come Naturally, Entertainer Dolly Parton Says

By Lou Cedrone
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

Dolly Parton, who hasn't done a film since "Rhinestone" in 1984, is back on the screen again as one of the "Steel Magnolias," and she's fairly tickled about it.

In "Magnolias," she plays Truvy Jones, owner of a hair salon where selected patrons meet to have their hair done and play out their lives.

"I felt real comfortable doing the film," said Ms. Parton, her hair as big as ever (her nails, too. They looked as though they were almost 2 inches long).

"I've always done hair," she said. "I cut my husband's hair. He'll never go back to the barber shop. I used to do my sisters' hair. I have five sisters, which is why I relate so well to these women."

"These women" include Shirley Maclaine, Daryl Hannah, Olympia Dukakis, Sally Field and Julia Roberts, all of whom appear in the film. "I thought of them as my sisters, aunts or cousins," Ms. Parton said, adding she likes the way women are portrayed in the film. "I get offended when they portray Southern women as stupid." When she first met Sally Field, Ms. Parton told her, "I like you a lot, so don't disappoint me, honey." She laughs that big Ms. Parton laugh after she recounts the story.

What makes Ms. Parton — who sparkles, gleams, glistens and charms — tick? Why is she so well liked?

"I don't know," she said. "I'm just out there, I guess. That may be why (people) like me. I'm honest. I have a big mouth. I'm a real Southern girl. I'm a steel magnolia, too, but people don't feel threatened by me. It hurts when people don't like me."

She didn't see the stage version of "Steel Magnolias." With typical Parton directness, she explained, "I'm not real big on theater. It's hard for me to sit still that long."

She added that the character she plays in the film is "basically me. I was just playing myself. I don't feel like I acted. I understood her completely."

What does Ms. Parton do when she isn't making movies?

"Well, I've got a whole new act," she said. "My record career is back on track. I love to sing, write and perform. I'd like to do a movie a year. That would be great, but I won't do anything anymore unless I'm real passionate about it."

Former Child Stars Featured On PBC

By Jerry Buck
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Margaret O'Brien thought it was just part of everyday life to make movies, work with major stars, meet the British prime minister and sit in Parliament.

"These people were a part of my life when I was a child," she recalled. "They all seemed like part of the family."

Ms. O'Brien, who made her film debut in 1942 in "Journey For Margaret," is featured with many other child stars in "When We Were Young ... Growing Up On the Silver Screen." The 90-minute special from WTTW in Chicago will be telecast on PBS on Monday.

The show has scenes from many old movies and interviews with such child stars as Ms. O'Brien, Jackie Cooper, Mickey Rooney, Spanky McFarland, Jane Withers, Dick Moore, Roddy McDowall, Dean Stockwell, Darryl Hickman, Tommy Rettig, Angela Cartwright, Hayley Mills and Diana Serra Carey, who was Baby Peggy.

Former bit player Darryl Hickman became a star at the age of 8 when he did "The Star Maker" in 1939 with Bing Crosby. Crosby played a vaudeville impresario who worked with children.

"Bing took me under his wing and got his brother, Everett, who was one of the big Hollywood agents, to become my agent," Hickman said in an interview. "I went right into more movies and kept working most of my childhood. I got a lot of feedback from moviegoers who grew up with me, identified with me and, I think, envied me because I was in pictures."

"When We Were Young" shows how the movies and child stars of the 1930s and 1940s reflected the social conditions of the times. Shirley Temple became such a national booster during the Depression that President Franklin D. Roosevelt commented that an American could pay 15 cents "to go to a movie, look at the smiling face of a baby and forget his troubles."

The children expressed optimism and a hope for the future, as well as serving as alter egos for young moviegoers.

Jackie Coogan became the first child star when he played opposite Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" in 1920. He became better known later as Uncle Fester on "The Addams Family." Diana Serra was Baby Peggy in shorts during the silent film era. Spanky McFarland, Alfalfa, Stymie, Buckwheat, Darla and dozens of other characters made up the "Our Gang" shorts.

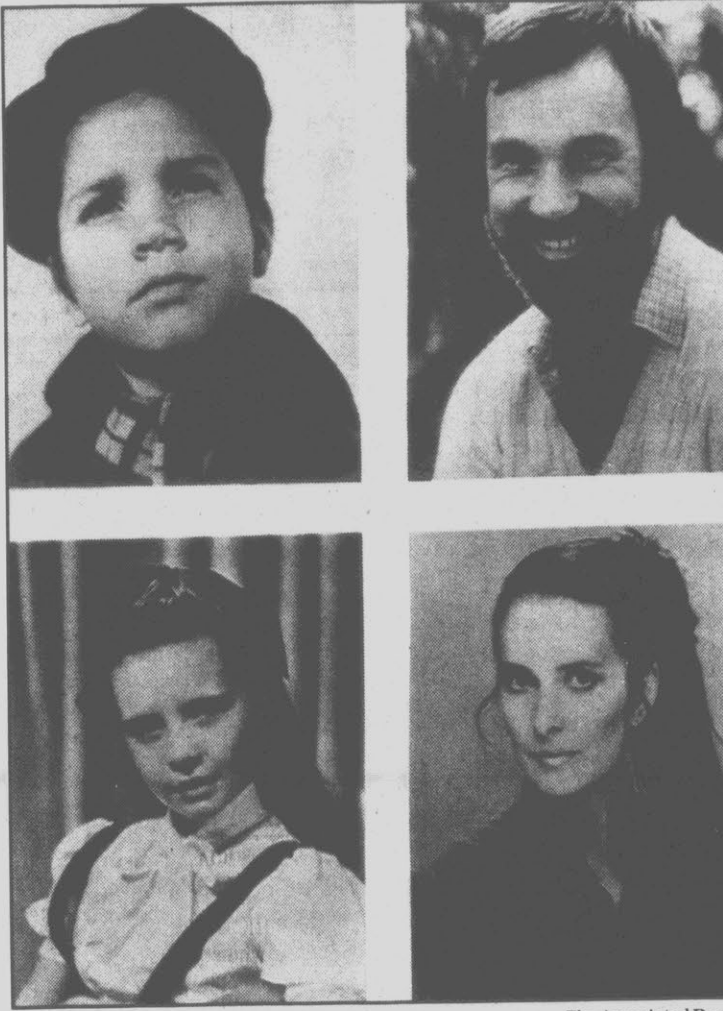

The last child star developed under the old studio system was Hayley Mills. She was in "The Parent Trap" in 1961. Later, as an adult, she starred in a sequel for Disney.

"I was one who really liked making movies," Ms. O'Brien said. "I had a normal life outside of the studio, although I took it very seriously as a job. I wanted to do my best."

Jane Withers became a star when the studio needed a brat to star opposite Shirley Temple in "Bright Eyes" in 1934.

"I was the meanest, creepiest kid you ever saw," said Ms. Withers. "You wanted to choke her. I was 5 at the time and went on to do another hundred pictures. They were mostly B films. The biggest movie I was ever in was "Giant."

Ms. Withers is probably best known to later generations as Josephine the Plumber, who appeared for 17 years in commercials for Comet cleanser.

Then And Now

Former child movie stars Darryl Hickman, as he was in the 1940s at top left and as he is now at top right, and Margaret O'Brien, as a '40s child star and as she is today, are two of the actors featured in a PBS special scheduled next Monday.

She has an enormous collection of movie memorabilia that she hopes to put into a museum.

Ms. O'Brien continues to act occasionally, although she devotes most of her time now to promoting a new Margaret O'Brien Doll and to lecturing.

Hickman, whose brother Dwayne starred in "The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis," now earns his living as an acting teacher. His last film was "Sharky's Machine" in 1981.

Many former child stars are still working in films. Elizabeth Taylor, Mickey Rooney, Roddy McDowall and Hayley Mills are still acting. Jackie Cooper works mostly as a director now. Dean Stockwell stars in the NBC series "Quantum Leap" and was nominated for an Oscar for "Married To the Mob."

McCartney Hints At Beatles Reunion

LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — For the first time in years, a working reunion of the three ex-Beatles is a distinct possibility, Paul McCartney said here Monday.

"We might get to play together after all this time," the former Beatle who winds up a five-night engagement at the Forum in Inglewood on Wednesday, his first U.S. concert tour since 1976.

Clearing the way for the reunion, he told a press conference at the arena, was the recent settlement of a group of long-standing lawsuits between the Beatles and their record company, Capitol-EMI, and between George Harrison, Ringo Starr, John Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono and McCartney.

The project most likely to bring McCartney, Harrison and Starr back together is "The Long and Winding Road," a film history of the Beatles that has been stalemated by their differences.

"What might be a good way to start it (the reunion) is this film," McCartney said. "Hopefully, we can put the record straight ... a possibility is that George and I could write (songs) together. We've never done that."

McCartney said the film would include rare home movies and other seldom-seen footage that tells the history of the Beatles.

Harrison and Starr could not be reached for comment Monday on the possibility of a reunion.

For fans hoping that this might mean that vaults containing unreleased Beatles material might be opened, McCartney offered little encouragement, but he suggested one song might be released.

"John singing, 'Leave My Kitten Alone' is the top thing of the unreleased stuff," McCartney said of the song that some Beatles fans have acquired via bootlegged copies. The rest of the material is "inferior," he said.

The Beatles broke up in 1969 amidst the first wave of numerous lawsuits, some of which involved actions taken against each other. Suits among themselves generally involved the other members against McCartney.

Sly Stone Held On Drug Charge

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Former rock star Sly Stone was ordered held without bail on felony drug possession charges after being extradited from Connecticut.

Stone, 45, whose real name is Sylvester Stewart, had been living under an assumed name on the East Coast after missing court dates in 1987 in California. He was ordered held Monday on drug charges.

He surrendered in Bridgeport, Conn., last month and waived extradition on an unlawful flight charge.

Stone is scheduled to appear in court Wednesday to face felony drug charges in another case. His attorney, Harland Braun, said he would ask a judge to consolidate the cases.

CBS Beefing Up Off-Hours Shows

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — CBS, trying to raise the low ratings of its late-night and morning shows, is putting a veteran sports producer with "The Pat Sajak Show" and two new reporters on "CBS This Morning."

Sajak's talk show will be getting Michael Weisman, an NBC Sports producer for 15 years, as co-executive producer. Sajak is the other executive producer. Weisman has won 10 Emmy awards for his sports telecasts.

The reporters joining "CBS This Morning" are Steve Kmetko, of KCBS-TV in Los Angeles, and Wayne Freedman, formerly of KRON-TV in San Francisco. Kmetko will report on the entertainment industry but continue at KCBS. Freedman, who will be a features reporter for the CBS show, will be based here.

CBS announced the staff changes

Monday. A spokesman also said that director Peter Bogdanovich, who had reviewed videocassettes of classic films and interviewed film figures for CBS' morning show, is leaving the program.

The show, co-anchored by Harry Smith and Kathleen Sullivan, is a distant third in ratings against NBC's top-rated "Today" show and ABC's "Good Morning America."

Sajak's show also has struggled in the ratings since its Jan. 9 debut. It began as a 90-minute program, but on Oct. 30 was cut back to an hour each night.

Some hands require declarer to take the percentage line and hope the cards are favorably distributed. Others have a sure-trick solution, which permits declarer to claim the contract early. This hand could have been claimed at trick one.

North's three-heart response and later five-heart bid were transfer bids requesting partner to bid spades. South's initial rebid announced a maximum in support of spades and his five-club response to Blackwood showed either three aces or none. North had no hesitation about bidding the excellent slam. Can you claim your contract?

This hand was played by Venezuelan internationalist and current New York resident David Berah in an invitational event in London. He won the king of diamonds, cashed the king of spades and ace of diamonds, on which he discarded a heart, then drew the last trump ending in dummy. Now he led the queen of clubs, and the contract was cold whether it won or lost.

If the finesse won, declarer would concede a trick to the king of hearts, then stuf one of the table's clubs on the ace of hearts. If the finesse lost, West would be enplayed. A heart return would solve declarer's problem in that suit; a club would run to the A 9 in the closed hand, and declarer would have an extra club set up to take care of one of dummy's hearts. And a diamond would allow declarer to ruff in hand while discarding a heart from the board.

So the best way to play the hand is obvious. Claim the contract at trick one before you have the chance to make a mistake!

Because this is a syndicated publication prepared in advance by Cotter & Company for distribution by over 6,000 independently owned and operated retail store members, some merchandise illustrated may not be immediately available on demand. However, any item that's unavailable can be ordered in full carton by the member store from a regional warehouse. Many items in this circular come unassembled. This store is not responsible for assembling merchandise unless stated. This circular must be prepared months in advance of the actual distribution period. At times, an advertised item may not be available because of sales above anticipated demand or because of circumstances beyond our control; while we try to avoid such situations, we have no control over our manufacturers' delivery problems. This store reserves the right to limit quantities, correct pricing errors and require central credit office approval of time payment sales. Prevailing taxes will be added to prices. This catalog is distributed by True Value members who own their own stores and set their own retail prices.
