Soviet Comics Turn Gorbby Into Figure Of Fun, In Public

By Carey Goldberg
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — The actor stuck out his chin, pursed his lips and flipped his wrist in a questioning gesture — and the laughter that exploded from the disbelieving audience proved everyone knew who he was supposed to be.

Only one person, a young woman in third row center at Moscow's Satire Theater, bent her head and appeared more traumatized than amused by the parody of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

She was his daughter, Irina.

Clearly upset, she left Friday night's performance of emigre writer Vladimir Voinovich's courtroom comedy, "The Tribunal," before the curtain call.

But if she could not laugh at her father, the rest of the audience could, in a way they could never publicly laugh at a Soviet leader before.

In one of the ironies of Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or greater openness, he has become the butt of jokes by a growing group of fearless comics, who once could not have dreamed of mocking the country's leader — at least not in public and not while he was alive.

"The Tribunal" is not especially biting. The new "court chairman," played by Vyacheslav Bezrukov, speaks with a southern Russian accent that turns g's into h's, darts his eyes constantly, and proposes a commission as the best solution to festering injustice.

The light mockery would roll off the back of a Western leader accustomed to unflattering caricatures and tasteless scatological jokes. But it is still scandalous in Moscow.

Even the outspoken host of one of Soviet television's most daring programs, "Vzglyad," or Glance, said in a recent broadcast that when he heard a mild joke about Gorbachev on the nightly news, "my heart jumped."

"It's hard to get used to relating to state leaders without standing at attention," Alexander Lyubimov said.

The broadcast featured Moscow comic Mikhail Grushevsky, who performed a telephone imitation of Gorbachev that captured not only his throaty timbre and homey style but his habit of speaking in fits and starts and veering off from phrases before finishing them.

Insurers Survive Hugo's Wrath

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — While Hugo caused an estimated $450 million in damages to homes, cars and businesses in North Carolina, it probably won't claim any Tar Heel state insurance companies among its victims.

Ray Martinez, a deputy commissioner in the N.C. Department of Insurance, is currently studying the impact of the Sept. 22 hurricane on the state's property and casualty insurers.

"We have found so far that the impact was not as devastating as we first thought," he said in a telephone interview from Raleigh on Tuesday. "It does not appear to have any material financial impact on any of our domestic insurers."

In South Carolina, where Hugo came ashore packing winds of 100 mph and higher, the hurricane has forced two small insurance companies into insolvency.

On Monday, the Grange Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of West Columbia was declared insolvent after about 41 percent of its policyholders filed claims.

State insurance officials said the 3,000 claims exhausted the firm's $625,000 surplus and its reinsurance, which transfers liability for claims to a second insurance company.

On Nov. 1, Hibernian Mutual of Charleston was declared insolvent after 65 percent of its 3,750 policyholders filed claims. Its policies were transferred to American Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Charleston.

"Those companies in South Carolina were small companies. The larger, more financially stable companies had adequate reinsurance," said Lamar Gunter, who watches the industry for the Insurance News Service in Charlotte.

Gunter said the latest industry estimates put North Carolina's property losses at $450 million. Reinsurance — which boils down to insurance coverage for the insurers themselves — will pick up the bulk of the claims filed with North Carolina firms.

"Most property and casualty insurers will purchase reinsurance," said Martinez. "It protects them in the event of a catastrophe for all losses in excess of a specific figure."

Falling Crane Kills 5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Criminal negligence charges were filed twice previously against the general contractor on the construction site where a crane plunged 16 floors, killing five people, authorities said.

One of those instances involving Swinerton & Walberg Co. stemmed from another fatal crane collapse, said Los Angeles Deputy City Attorney Michael Guarino.

A subcontractor in Tuesday morning's accident also has been cited at least five times for safety violations since 1987, including one for a fatal accident, authorities said.

Barbara Bush Lends A Hand Seeks Help For Pitt Resident Who Wants To Learn To Read

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

It's not every day that a Greenville office receives a call from the White House.

And when one did come in this week from first lady Barbara Bush, it sent staff workers at Literacy Volunteers of America's Pitt County chapter into high gear.

LVA office manager Toni Golding said she "almost fainted" when Mrs. Bush came on the line Monday, asked her if she was having a good day and proceeded to tell her of a letter she had received.

Mrs. Bush, an LVA volunteer and spokesperson, told Ms. Golding that a Pitt County person had written to her asking how to get help in learning to read. Mrs. Bush stressed that the identity of the person was to be kept strictly confidential, but asked the local LVA to assist the hopeful reader.

Ms. Golding said the person referred by Mrs. Bush was interviewed by an LVA representative Tuesday and now has a volunteer tutor supplied free of charge by LVA. After a few weeks, Ms. Golding is to report back to Mrs. Bush about the person's progress.

Anyone else wishing to learn to read or to become a reading tutor is invited to contact the LVA office, 752-0439, Ms. Golding said.

Mrs. Bush has been known in the past to reach out personally in matters that concern her, and frequently appears in classrooms or other public centers to promote reading as a means of improving the American lifestyle.

An example occurred Tuesday when Mrs. Bush, in Rochester, Minn., for a health checkup at the Mayor Clinic, took time out to visit a Rochester library and read a story to a group of children before returning to Washington.

Librarian Pauline Utzinger said Mrs. Bush was "quite vivacious" in reading to underprivileged and day care children who were at the Rochester Public Library.

She read them a storybook about the nation's capital.

Defendants and spectators crowd a Pitt County courtroom this morning waiting for the trials to begin

Revelers Go To Court

By Charles Hoskinson
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

The 134 people arrested by Greenville police Halloween night had their day in court today.

The defendants, their lawyers and a few curious on-lookers crowded the courtroom and spilled out into the hall this morning as they waited for District Court Judge W. Russell Duke Jr. to hear their case.

"Ladies and gentlemen, as you can imagine, today is going to be a long day," Duke told them.

The trials were scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., but were delayed by the large number of other cases to be heard. None of the Halloween cases had been heard by press time.

Greenville police arrested 134 people, many of them East Carolina University students, at the Tar River Estates apartment complex Oct. 31 after a Halloween party turned into a riot. Each was charged with failure to disperse.

Some of those arrested said police overreacted. "We were totally violated," said 24-year-old Adele M. Goodman, a former ECU student who was arrested.

Ms. Goodman told The Daily Reflector Nov. 1 that police came to the apartment complex in full riot gear. "It was like they were looking for a fight," she said.

Some of the cases will be continued until Jan. 8 to allow prosecutors to review videotapes of what happened Halloween night. The district attorney's office had issued subpoenas to three area television stations to get copies of news footage from that night. Representatives from each station brought videotapes to court today.

The arrests at the apartment complex followed action by the City Council to ban the Halloween celebration formerly held downtown. Council members acted following violent outbursts at the street celebration in past years.

Bomb Scare At Airport

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Bomb squad officers blew up a suitcase destined for a Colombian jetliner today after X-rays showed what appeared to be sticks of dynamite, wiring and a clock, authorities said.

Police could not immediately say whether the bag contained a bomb.

The item was discovered about 1:30 a.m. in luggage that was to have been loaded onto an Avianca Airlines jet bound for Colombia, where drug traffickers have waged a campaign of bombings and assassinations, authorities said.

There were no reports of threats against the flight.

Salvadoran Guerrillas Resume Attacks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Fighting broke out in the affluent western sectors of San Salvador again today, and leftist guerrillas burned a mansion just blocks away from the U.S. ambassador's official residence.

It was not immediately clear if the fighting signaled the resumption of a major guerrilla offensive on the capital that began Nov. 11 and appeared to have ended when the rebels withdrew Nov. 22.

The rebels said on their clandestine radio today they had attacked the headquarters of the Joint Chiefs of Staff with mortars. But officers on the scene said none had fallen in the compound, which also houses the Defense Ministry. Reporters saw at least six dead soldiers in one neighborhood and one dead guerrilla in the zone.

Residents of a home, in the capital's western sector, said they heard several loud explosions near the fortified complex between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m.

Fighting was heavy at times before dawn along the tree-lined streets of San Benito, a wealthy residential district where U.S. Ambassador William Walker has his official residence.

Eight Missing At Sea

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTERLY, R.I. — Searchers found seat cushions, a shoe and other debris believed to be from a missing twin-engine plane off Rhode Island today but saw no sign of wreckage or the eight people aboard, authorities said.

The debris found about two miles off Block Island included "an airline-type headset," said Coast Guard Seaman Roger Anderson.

Also found was a box of freight believed to have been aboard the New England Airlines plane reported missing Tuesday night, airline controller Dean Martin said.

The flight from Block Island State Airport to Westerly, 17 miles away, left at 6:20 p.m. and should have taken no more than 15 minutes, authorities said.

The water in the area of Block Island Sound where two Coast Guard cutters and a dozen smaller boats were searching ranged between 85 and 105 feet, Anderson said.

In The Area

Complaint Filed

The Grievance Committee of the State Bar has filed a complaint alleging that a former Greenville lawyer improperly borrowed money from a client and neglected other matters before closing his practice.

Gary A. Goers, who formerly practiced in Greenville, was accused of neglecting to draft deeds of trust, perform title searches and obtain title insurance for a client and failing to notify clients that he was leaving private practice.

The complaint also alleges that Goers borrowed $15,000 from a client without paying it back, failed to collect a debt owed to a client and failed to respond to the State Bar's inquiries.

According to the complaint, the State Bar suspended Goers' license in 1988 for not paying his dues after he closed his practice and moved to Louisville, Ky.

BOBBIE LOU JOYNER

Scholarship Award

Bobbie Lou Joyner of Farmville has also been awarded a $4,000 high honors scholarship to attend Atlantic Christian College in autumn 1990.

A senior at Farmville Central High School, Ms. Joyner says she will study nursing. She is also the recent recipient of the Good Citizen Award of the Major Benjamin May chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her parents are Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner and his wife, Gail Bailey Joyner of Farmville.

Service Planned

A Candlelight Advent Service will be held at Hooker Memorial Christian Church, 1111 Greenville Blvd., Sunday at 7:30 p.m. There will be a reception for the choir immediately afterwards in Fellowship Hall.

Open House

The Bethel Mental Health Center, located on Railroad Street in Bethel, will hold an open house Sunday from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. The center is a satellite clinic of the Pitt County Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities and Substance Abuse Center.

Thefts Are Reported

Investigators said 10 thefts, ranging from speakers and small appliances to bicycles and cash, were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer W.T. McCarter said $25 in change and two speakers valued at $1,500 were taken from American Lenders at 3014 S. Memorial Drive in a break-in reported at 8:55 a.m. McCarter also said a bicycle was taken from 203 Patrick St. in an incident reported at 11:59 a.m. and a license plate was taken from a car parked at Gorham's Auto at 3110 S. Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 3:12 p.m.

Officer S.A. Person said two television sets and a video cassette recorder were taken from Industrial Park Child Care Center on North Memorial Drive in a break-in reported at 4:19 a.m., while Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said $315 worth of property — a microwave oven, a television set and $5 in change — was taken from Dr. Joseph Murad's office at 1730 W. Fifth St. in a break-in reported at 7:13 a.m.

Officer W.R. Stephenson said a microwave oven, a radio and other items were taken from Ina's House of Flowers at 1935 N. Memorial Drive in a break-in reported at 8:48 a.m. and a license was taken from a car parked at Hastings Ford on East 10th Street in an incident reported at 1:39 p.m., while Officer T.L. Forrest said $269 in cash was taken from Rent America at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 5:01 p.m. Forrest also said a lawn mower valued at $200 was taken from 212 Martinsboro Drive in an incident reported at 5:23 p.m. and a bicycle was taken from 602G Hooker Road in an incident reported at 5:58 p.m.

Church Services

Special services will be held tonight through Friday at 8 p.m. daily at Wells Chapel Church of God in Christ. The pastor's 15th anniversary will be observed.

Ceremony Planned

The grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony for the newly expanded and renovated George Washington Carver Branch Library will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The library is located at 618 W. 14th Ave. in Greenville.

Church Service

The Rev. Melvin Murphy will conduct a pre-quarterly meeting service Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul Church of Christ in Ayden. The choir from Pleasant Plain Holiness Church will provide the music.

Recruitment Night

The Pitt District Boy Scouts will have a recruitment night Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Greenville Middle School on Arlington Boulevard for all boys in first through sixth grades who live in Pitt County.

Parents must attend the session with their son. The recruitment night will be the final chance for boys to join in 1989 if they were unable to attend their local school recruitment night, a spokesman said.

Club Activity

The Chicod Booster Club will hold a fund-raiser Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Chicod School cafeteria.

Meeting Slated

Loving Union Tent No. 464 United Order of Tents will hold its last meeting of the year at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The report on the calendar should be made at this meeting.

Cable TV Customers Will See Higher Fee

By Frances Horton Arrington
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Beginning Jan. 1, Greenville Cable TV customers will pay $1.25 more for basic cable services than they have paid in the past.

Bill Paramore, general manager of Greenville Cable, announced the price increase in a press release Tuesday. Paramore said the monthly cable rate would go from $16.05 to $17.30.

"The adjustment is largely due to an increase in the cost of programming and our suppliers have increased their costs considerably," Paramore said in an interview Tuesday.

"As cable networks improve in quality, costs will go up and costs for receiving them will go up."

Also on Jan. 1, WGN Chicago Superstation will join Greenville Cable's channel lineup, Paramore said. He said the channel will feature movies, news, Cubs baseball games and shows for family entertainment.

With next year's programming changes, cable customers will have more access to events such as the Olympics, NBA basketball and major league baseball through ESPN, Paramore said.

Greenville Cable TV currently offers 26 channels and operates for 24 hours daily throughout the week, he said.

U.S. Seeking Outlet For Farm Products In Poland

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter says he'll be looking for ways to make Poland a paying customer for American goods as he leads an economic assistance mission there this week. "A lot of the focus on Poland has been on aid and assistance," Yeutter said Tuesday. "But that kind of help is transitory."

The U.S. delegation arriving in Poland today will look for ways to keep the country from becoming overly dependent on others, said Yeutter, adding that Poland should be helped to "stand on its own two feet." If all goes well, Poland and other East bloc countries that are opening to the West will be better customers, Yeutter said. Congress has approved a $533 million aid package for Poland and Hungary, $125 million of which is food aid. Yeutter's remarks came at Outlook '90, an annual conference sponsored by the Agriculture Department to examine farm policies and factors that affect them. He left Tuesday night for four days in Poland with a delegation of 20 private-sector representatives. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Michael Boskin, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers. Boskin, who also spoke at the conference, was asked if the changes in the East bloc will affect the U.S. economy. "The United States has a $5 trillion economy with a very small amount of trade with Eastern Europe," Boskin said. "We believe we will be able to help with restructuring their economies."

He said the outlook for the U.S. economy was strong, predicting that interest rates would decrease, thereby helping the agricultural sector. Questions also were raised about progress of international trade talks, known as GATT. Yeutter said the United States had submitted its final proposal and received positive reaction, except from the European Community. However, he said that didn't bother him because he expected the United States would reject the European proposals as well. He said a negotiated agreement would be reached eventually. Yeutter and U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills emphasized that the United States is not trying to remove all subsidies internationally.

Clean Water

Solve Problems When They Appear

There's a lesson for every city in Washington's water woes: If you ignore problems, they won't go away. They'll haunt you.

Three years ago, Washington, N.C., discovered its water was contaminated with dangerous levels of trihalomethane and carbon tetrachloride — cancer-causing chemicals. It was unsafe to drink. Ironically, the city had been polluting its own water supply through the process it used to make the water safe to drink.

Yet the city didn't notify its residents or take steps to eliminate the pollution until two months ago.

Now, within a short period of time, Washington has found a short-term way to remove the contaminants. The city began treating its water with an ammonia-based chemical instead of treating it with chlorine, which caused the problem. The switch is a simple, temporary solution and doesn't cost much. It will keep Washington's water clean and potable until the city can devise and fund a permanent solution.

But why didn't Washington make this adjustment three years ago, when it discovered the contamination? Why did it anger residents and risk public health by ignoring its water woes? Ethically and economically, such an oversight doesn't make sense.

Two expensive, permanent solutions to Washington's water troubles are open.

One involves completely revamping its treatment system. The other involves drilling additional wells and building a water treatment facility near these wells. Both could cost $5 million.

That's a high price for a city of approximately 10,000 people to pay. But having no drinking water or contaminated water is a much steeper price. Allowing the problem to escalate by ignoring it only raises the risk and the cost.

Washington has solved its immediate water problem and is on its way to a permanent solution. But it could be three years farther along in the process. That would be better for residents and for the city.

Washington has learned to be wise about problem-solving and not to procrastinate. It is a lesson that should be appreciated and absorbed by every community.

Who'll Pay?

Knuckling Under To A Few

Congress ended the catastrophic health care plan for the elderly after a deluge of complaints from affluent senior citizens about their bearing a heavy proportion of the cost.

The move came at the end of the just concluded session of Congress and it leaves older citizens scrambling for private insurance to cover the gap. It was a knee jerk reaction by Congress. The Bush administration didn't help any. It simply looked the other way as health care for the elderly was bandied about.

If the president or members of Congress had but given the issue serious consideration they would have recognized that the problems of health care for the elderly are not going to disappear. Politically, the problem is still there and will continue to be until it is resolved.

The catastrophic health care plan was designed to forestall a wipeout of individual financial resources by a debilitating illness. There were flaws in the financing, but adjustments, not a death knell, were needed.

Neither Congress nor the president has even yet faced up to the other growing issue with senior citizens. That issue is long term health care which would avoid financial disaster for those who eventually seek care in nursing homes.

In the decade ahead, senior citizens will be joined by their middle aged children in looking to government for a better plan of long term health care for the elderly.

Expensive? That certainly cannot be denied. Can a government already operating in the red find the revenues for catastrophic health care and long term health care? Someone will have to pay the bills.

The political clout will be there to force the president and Congress to pay attention. There has not been such a huge political force building since the veterans returned from World War II. It all means that Congress — and the president — must address the need of the populace, not buckle under the pressure of a handful

Pro-Choice Is Not

To the editor:
In their attempt to seize the moral high ground in the abortion debate, pro-abortionists insist on the pro-choice label. They claim they are protecting the principle of individual liberty — "we must be able to make free choices in our lives with minimal government intrusion" — rather than advocating abortion per se as a form of birth control.

But pro-abortion groups are hypocritical and inconsistent when applying the principle of choice to other policy areas.

For example, the National Education Association's official position on abortion is pro-choice. Yet this is the same organization which adamantly opposes the idea of giving low-income parents a choice as to where they send their children to school — perhaps by supplying them with education vouchers.

Those who claim that we should have the freedom to choose to take away the constitutionally protected right to life of an innocent unborn child are not pro-choice, neither where abortion is concerned, nor in a host of other areas.

To be philosophically consistent, those who call themselves pro-choice should agree that:

- An American should have the right to own a gun.
- An individual should have the right to join a union, but should never be required to join a union to work.
- A worker and an employer should be permitted to freely enter into a contract for work at any level of pay, without the shackles of a government minimum wage.
- An employer should be permitted to hire any worker regardless of their race or sex. Quotas, affirmative action and comparable worth are not pro-choice.
- Taxpayers should not be forced to fund an activity that they might find morally offensive, such as abortion.

Improve & Educate, Don't Hate

To the editor:
I recently read a letter to the editor about Japanese products. The letter stated that we should shut off Japan. It also stated some history, such as the The American Revolution and World War II. I would like to state some more history for the author of that letter.

Hitler blamed German problems on the Jewish; the KKK blamed theirs on the blacks. Today you blame the Japanese. It's a lot easier than facing the facts, isn't it? It's not Japan's fault we're in debt or work quality is low. These are our problems, and only we can solve them. No one buys American because Japan makes it cheaper, faster, and smarter. Why can't America do this too?

There will always be people who try to blame the other guy. We, however, do not have to listen to their fascist preaching. Should we act like spoiled little children and say "I'm taking my ball and going home.?" How can we quit when the game isn't even over yet? Like they always say on T.V. "Quitters never win, and winners never quit." America needs to improve and educate, not teach racist hate and bigotry.

The Other Half Of Democracy's Story

WASHINGTON — Over the Thanksgiving weekend, like many other families, we had four generations gathered at the house — ranging in age from two months to 87 years. It seemed the right time to be reading "Democracy's Next Generation," the recently released survey by pollster Peter D. Hart for the liberal advocacy group, People for the American Way.

David Broder

Hart's survey focused on slightly more than a thousand young Americans, between the ages of 15 and 24, with supplemental information from interviews with 405 social-studies teachers. The findings are disquieting, particularly at a moment when young people in Czechoslovakia are putting themselves on the line to make their country the latest Soviet-bloc nation to declare for democracy.

The key conclusion from these interviews is that, "Young people have learned only half of America's story. Consistent with the priority they place on personal happiness, young people reveal notions of America's unique character that emphasize freedom and license almost to the complete exclusion of service or participation. Although they clearly appreciate the democratic freedoms that, in their view, make theirs the 'best country in the world to live in,' they fail to perceive a need to reciprocate by exercising the duties and responsibilities of good citizenship."

The evidence for this sweeping statement comes in several forms. Asked about goals that are important to them, three times as many selected "being successful in job or career" as chose "being involved in helping the community be a better place" — 72 percent to 24 percent. Three out of five are not involved in any form of community service. Only one-third said they could foresee a time when they might join the military or work as a volunteer in a political campaign.

The concept of "good citizenship" these young people have gained is individualistic — not civic. Asked how they would describe a "good citizen" in their own words, the dominant answer (43 percent) was that it meant someone who is generous and caring. Only one-third mentioned being law-abiding and only 12 percent suggested voting or other forms of political involvement.

Those who teach this generation say they are alarmed at the other indications they see in the classroom that the emphasis on self-fulfillment, which is obviously a natural quality of that stage of life, is increasingly crowding out a sense of involvement with the community and nation.

As Hart comments, "The results from this study make clear the necessity for concerted efforts — enlisting the active engagement of parents, educators and administrators — to teach young people not only about their rights and opportunities but about their obligations as citizens as well."

That need, it seems to me, becomes increasingly important as we move into a post-Cold War world. It is not simply that fewer young people will have the experience of military service in coming years. It is also that the temptation will increase to believe that once the main challenge facing this society — the contest with communism — has been won, we can become even more focused on our individual goals.

At the beginning of this year, Washington seemed to recognize the obligation to find ways to arouse and channel the civic-mindedness of the younger generation. President Bush promised a personal effort to encourage volunteer community service. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell (D-Maine) said he would give high priority to national-service legislation. Not much has come of those pledges.

Hart's study emphasizes what we intuitively know to be the case: that parents and teachers, families and schools, are far more important in shaping the values that underlie active democratic citizenship than distant politicians. The flourishing examples of volunteer youth activity are almost all locally organized and funded.

But I cannot avoid the feeling that such politicians as Sens. Charles S. Robb (D-Va.) and Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) are on the right track when they talk, as both have been doing in recent years, about national-service programs that would expose the younger generation to the challenges of active citizenship.

Hart's survey found strong resistance among the young people to proposals that would require a year of civilian or military service of all of them. They also reject the Nunn-Robb proposal that would condition student loans and other higher education benefits on the performance of such service. But there is overwhelming support — 9 to 1 — for programs that would offer extra credit in high school or extra financial aid beyond high school to those who volunteer for community or military service.

One way or another, we have to find a way to teach this generation the other half of democracy's story: the experience of civic involvement and citizenship obligation.

Germany In The Spotlight

Analysis

Hans Benirschke

BERLIN — The world is talking about German reunification once again, breathing new life into the many ways and means of achieving it that have been discussed since the end of World War II.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl Tuesday presented to the country's Bundestag (parliament) his ten-point-plan for German unity with the creation of a federal system and "confederative structures."

The plan comes at a time when governments in East and West as well as West Germany's political parties are examining their stance on re-uniting the two Germans in the light of recent developments in East Germany.

President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev will hardly be able to avoid the topic when they meet off Malta for a summit this weekend.

Many politicians have avoided the word reunification and have invented a number of other terms to describe it. The question is whether reunification is simply a word.

After World War II, the victorious Allies at Yalta and Potsdam, defined the East German-Poland border, Oder-Neisse Line; created the zones of occupation; and reserved the right to make other decisions about defeated Germany.

But discussion took a different turn and despite several foreign-minister conferences, the British, Americans, French and Soviets were not able to agree on a joint policy on Germany.

As the viewpoints began to diverge, Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin unleashed a thunderbolt. On March 10, 1952, he sent a message offering reunification and troop withdrawal.

The offer also envisaged Germany becoming a neutral state and a peace treaty, but it produced no concrete results. Messages flew back and forth for seven years and numerous conferences were convened. The most important took place in Geneva in 1955 and 1959.

Discussion in those years centered on the following:

- Troop reductions and the creation of demilitarized zones on the River Elbe and River Werra.

- Proposals for neutral status.

- A link between reunification and European security.

- Confederation ideas, a mixed German committee, transition periods and free elections under United Nations auspices.

The subject of reunification was used as a political weapon by one side against the other.

The main concern in discussion among the Allies was how would Germany's neighbors sleep soundly if Germany was to be reunited and removed from the direct control and integration of an alliance system.

The Germans were initially only granted the status of observers at all the discussions among the Allies. That lasted until 1959, when they were allowed to sit around two of what were described as "their own little tables" in the conference chamber.

Thirty years later a complete transformation in the political landscape of Europe has taken place. In an interview a few days ago, West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher rejected "a German role at its own little table."

The principle of self-determination is being pronounced from all sides but some remain more equal than others.

So far no one has invoked the Treaty of Potsdam when it comes to the role of the Allies, except perhaps in respect of the Oder-Neisse Line.

However, in the "German Treaty" of 1952-54, article two reads as follows: "With regard to the international situation, which has so far prevented the reunification of Germany and the drawing up of a peace treaty, the three powers retain the rights and responsibilities exercised by them or given to them in respect of Berlin and Germany as a whole, including the reunification of Germany and the modalities of a peace treaty."

Virtually all the constitutional bodies of West Germany have made German reunification a political goal. The circumstances under which this goal can be achieved have been increasingly "Europeanized" since the 1960s: that is, German unity can occur only as a component in a peaceful European order.

In East Germany, the ruling Communist Party supported reunification well into the 1960s, albeit under conditions imposed by Moscow.

In July 1952 the second party conference announced that "the toppling of the Bonn vassal regime is the prerequisite for the restoration of German unity."

On Dec. 31, 1956, former East German leader Walter Ulbricht suggested a form of confederation, providing that the "socialist achievements of East Germany" remained inviolable.

The Communist Party's offer to the West German working classes in 1960 of a kind of people's front in 1960 failed to provoke any reaction at all in the West.

And Ulbricht was only being consistent when he said at the seventh party conference in April 1967 that reunification could take place "only under socialism." In October 1974, all mention of a German nation was erased from the East German constitution.

Conditions for a united Germany were last on the official agenda of an East-West conference on Aug. 5, 1959 before the file entitled "reunification" was closed for three decades.

The revolutionary changes in East Germany and the country's citizens have made the subject topical again even if East German party leader Egon Krenz and Soviet party leader Gorbachev say the that reunification "is not on the agenda."

West German political parties do not simply refer to reunification in their political programs but clothe it in a variety of terms: "Bringing the Germans together," "national unity in a European context," "confederation," "a responsible body for peace and security," "a contractual group for East-West relations," "Unity through self-determination."

Many of the descriptions seem nebulous — only the direction is clear. The route is as shrouded in darkness as it was in 1959.

Former East German leader Erich Honecker said at the eighth Communist Party conference: "As far as the national question is concerned, history has already decided it."

What has happened is the exact opposite of what Honecker stated. History has prompted the whole issue to be examined again in a new light.

State Appeals Order Requiring Release Of Data On SBI Inquiry

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — The state is appealing an order that it should compile an index of the information gathered by a panel that investigated alleged wrongdoing within the North Carolina State University basketball program.

Wake County Superior Court Judge Pou Bailey ruled earlier this month that the state should compile the detailed index of the information gathered by the Poole Commission to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors. That would help litigants suing to gain access to the data, said Hugh Stevens, general counsel for the North Carolina Press Association.

But Andy Vanore of the attorney general's office appealed the ruling, saying the index should not include State Bureau of Investigation reports done for the commission.

"We didn't mind the index," he said. "But when the court issued its order with respect to what we contend are SBI files and evidence, if we are correct, they are not entitled to see any of those files and evidence. ... They are specifically by law excluded from the public records law."

Stevens said the index is needed to determine what information was compiled.

"In public information proceedings, you're always arguing about a pig in a poke," Stevens said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "You're not only asking to see documents, but in many cases you don't know exactly what it is you're asking to see."

The Poole Commission, chaired by Sam Poole, found evidence of academic abuses in the Wolfpack program. While the commission's findings led to a report by UNC system President C.D. Spangler, Poole declined to release copies of the findings.

About the time the press association and others filed suit to see the files, Poole released the draft report he had written, Stevens said.

"That's the only thing that we have had access to," he said.

Litigants now are focusing on undisclosed "copious, detailed minutes" of the Poole Commission, as well as the SBI reports and documents, Stevens said.

"I think there's serious question as to what the SBI was doing in the case in the first place," he said. While the question of the index and SBI records is on appeal, depositions were scheduled to be taken today in the case, Stevens said.

"We're hoping the depositions will be very useful to us fleshing out some of the information we already have," he said.

But Vanore said he expected no startling revelations.

"Under the court's ruling, the plaintiffs would be entitled to examine any individuals who have filed affidavits in the case and we felt that was fair," he said.

Tar Heels Signing Card For Soviets

RALEIGH (AP) — A three-story Christmas card that is being taken on a tour of all 50 states before being sent to the Soviet Union was signed by shoppers in Raleigh where it made its only stop in the Tar Heel state.

"With the opening of the gate over there, a people-to-people gift is a wonderful thing," said Elinor Workman, a teacher from Wilson who was taking a break from shopping to sign the card.

The card from the people of the U.S. to residents of the Soviet Union was displayed Tuesday at Crabtree Valley Mall.

Despite decades of strained relations between the two superpowers, Jim Lawlor, the founder of America's Greeting Card to Russia, hopes to end the '80s on a goodwill note, Raleigh was the 36th stop for the card.

"It's a people-to-people thing," said Lawlor, a businessman who has closed his Fairfield, Iowa, company, United Safety Inc., to undertake this project.

The program is financed without public funds, said Lawlor, who sells T-shirts for $15 to help with costs. La Quinta and Holiday Inn hotels provide free accommodations for him and his assistant. Lawlor said he expected to spend $150,000 on the project.

His goal is to collect 1 million signatures by Jan 1, when he and a group of 40 Americans will journey to Moscow's House of Friendship to present the card to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. Currently, the greeting card has 300,000 names on it.

About 500 people gathered around the exhibit throughout the day, said Paula Spivey, marketing manager for Crabtree Valley Mall.

"We're living in an incredible year and this is just one example," marveled Basil Byrne of Raleigh after signing the greeting card. "We've got to do something with what's going on over there."

This is the second year that Lawlor has undertaken the America's Greeting Card to Russia campaign, but the first time that he has traveled to every state with it.

This year's card includes the signatures of several celebrities from the music industry, including Yoko Ono, the members of Fleetwood Mac, Barbra Streisand, Aretha Franklin, and The Pointer Sisters.

Martin Protests Parole

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Martin, joined by Lt. Gov. Jim Gardner, criticized the decision of the state Parole Commission to parole a man convicted 13 years ago of killing a Durham police officer during drug raid.

Martin said there may be nothing he could do about the release of John Excell McCombs except express his "deep embarrassment."

McCombs, 33, was sentenced to 65 years for second-degree murder and three drug offenses.

Martin, in a statement released Tuesday afternoon, said there wasn't much he could do.

"The constitution and laws of this state require that I do not intervene in parole commission matters as a safeguard against political influence," Martin said. "For that reason there may be nothing that I, as governor, can do to rectify the mistakes that I feel was made by the commission in the case of John Excell McCombs except to express my deep embarrassment that a commission appointed by me would reach such a decision so contrary to what I feel is in the best interest of the state of North Carolina."

Martin said he would recommend to the 1990 General Assembly that the criminal statutes be amended to provide full-term sentences (without parole or probation) for convicted drug dealers, a drug-related murder or the murder of a law enforcement officer.

Oil Leak

GREENSBORO (AP) — A potentially massive underground pool of gasoline and diesel fuel could threaten Greensboro's water supply, but the magnitude of the leak is unknown, officials say.

The leak was discovered two years ago by telephone workers who smelled the petroleum mixture while working in manholes, but to date, neither the petroleum companies at a nearby tank farm nor state officials have determined the source of the leaks.

It is unclear, therefore, whether petroleum is still leaking into the ground water, how large the pool is, how far it has spread or how fast it is spreading.

Legislators Asked To Back Hazardous Waste Pact

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In anticipation of a special session of the N.C. General Assembly, Gov. Jim Martin dispatched representatives to begin the process of convincing legislators of the need to join a regional pact for handling hazardous wastes.

Hearings were held Tuesday in Greensboro, Asheville and Statesville where legislators heard from the Martin administration officials on the merits of the five-state pact.

"I'm convinced this was the best agreement we could negotiate," said Ward Purrington, Martin's legislative liaison, in the Asheville meeting. "I don't see any downside to this agreement. We'd have to build most of this anyway."

Several legislators expressed reservations about the lack of specific language to govern entry into or expulsion from the agreement by member states. Others voiced concern that the timetable for consideration, approval and implementation of the plan might be too demanding.

Purrington acknowledged that the questions the legislators asked were important, but secondary to the central question at hand.

"The question is whether we should enter into an agreement with the drawbacks and uncertainties you've mentioned or should we not be a member and build the kind of (hazardous waste treatment) capacity we need?" he said.

Linda Little, executive director of the Governor's Waste Management Board, said North Carolina's choices are severely limited. Like every other state, she noted, this state simply does not have the capacity to handle its own hazardous waste.

"We are nowhere close to being able to handle our own waste," she said.

The choice remains to either enter such a pact with other states or construct a hazardous waste treatment facility to handle all North Carolina waste by 1992. The Legislature, which meets Dec. 7 to consider the issue, must approve the agreement.

She said North Carolina produces more residual waste than South Carolina is now willing to handle. South Carolina has recently imposed new landfill capacity limitations of 35,000 tons for each state using its facilities.

"We are assured access through this agreement," she said. If North Carolina participates, residual industrial waste from this state can be shipped to landfill space in Alabama.

Because landfill space must be found quickly to offset South Carolina's new restrictions, the agreement would be timely, Purrington said.

"Our major concern is immediate access to these facilities," he said.

Rep. Frank "Trip" Sizemore, Guilford delegation chairman, said the various deadlines seemed almost impossible to meet. He asked if North Carolina faced elimination from the agreement if the Legislature fails to act quickly enough.

Ms. Little admitted meeting the schedule would be tough. "It's a really tight schedule," she said. "It's quite tight."

She said the schedule for siting a residual landfill and building one would be the most difficult schedule to meet. North Carolina's proposal for building its own hazardous waste treatment facility as part of the compact calls for a site to be chosen by May 1990.

A permit for a rotary kiln incinerator, a thermal treatment unit, and a solvent distillation and recovery unit must be submitted by December 1990.

The permit must be issued and construction begun by July 1991 and the facility must be operational by December 1991.

State waste management officials plan to complete the first stage of a process of elimination of potential site areas across the state by Jan. 3, when maps showing eliminated areas will be made public.

Darrell Hinnant, executive director of the N.C. Hazardous Waste Management Commission, said he hopes to begin public hearings on potential sites by the end of February.

"It is possible to have it done by May 1," he said. "It is more difficult to find a site because of the stringent standards we have for locating a (residuals management) facility."

Meetings were scheduled for today in Charlotte, Fayetteville and Rocky Mount. A final briefing is set for Thursday in Research Triangle Park.

Mixed Waste Disposal Is Still Problem

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As North Carolina prepares to build two disposal facilities for low-level radioactive waste and hazardous wastes, officials are wondering what will become of another category of industrial garbage — mixed wastes.

Mixed waste is a federally designated category of radioactive waste that includes hazardous materials. The waste is a byproduct from research, medicine and industry.

And, even though the state plans to have two regional landfills open by Jan. 1, 1993, for hazardous waste and low-level nuclear waste, neither disposal site would accept mixed waste under current proposals.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency estimates that up to 10 percent of low-level nuclear waste could fall into that category, which would amount to 6,572 cubic feet in North Carolina — equal to a column of 55-gallon barrels a half-mile high.

"It's a serious problem that we recognize, and it's very much a part of discussions about the possible need to have Congress address the issue," said Richard D. LaShier, an environmental-protection specialist for the EPA.

LaShier, in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C., with the Winston-Salem Journal, said the problem is that landfills are designed for low-level radioactive waste or hazardous waste — but not both.

Hazardous wastes are either toxic, reactive, corrosive or ignitable, while low-level nuclear waste is a broad category of radioactive materials ranging from medical research material to power-plant resins — but does not include nuclear fuel.

"We have an estimate that 3 to 10 percent of low-level waste could contain hazardous constituents, but there are no hard figures on that," LaShier said.

The N.C. Hazardous Waste Section, which became the authorized agency to regulate mixed waste as of Nov. 21, is trying to find out just how much there is out there.

Linda Mann, an environmental engineer for the N.C. Hazardous Waste Section, said that 192 generators of low-level nuclear waste were directed by mail last week to identify the type and volume of waste that they create, and to prepare for new licensing requirements if they produce mixed waste.

"We've had about 14 people to call, but there doesn't appear to be as much out there as we thought," she said from her Raleigh office.

State officials say that the list of potential generators includes 116 medical facilities, 35 laboratories, 27 educational institutions and five industries.

Stephen T. Reid, a spokesman for the N.C. Solid Waste Management Division, said that in the past mixed waste has often wound up buried or stored on site.

"Basically, little has been done with it, and that could be a problem for us," Reid said. "We're getting into a whole new area here."

Mrs. N.C. Has Another Round With Cancer

By Paul Nowell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — Bernee NaVal, recently crowned as Mrs. North Carolina, is fighting a battle against cancer — a battle that she has described to many audiences as part of her work for the American Cancer Society.

"She's a fighter," said Hannah Hahn of the American Cancer Society in Raleigh. "She's done anything we've asked her to do, 24 hours a day. And she knows what she's talking about."

Mrs. NaVal's grandmother died of lung cancer and her father died from colon cancer. Her own condition was diagnosed several months before the Mrs. North Carolina pageant on May 13 and she underwent a round of surgery to remove cancerous growths from her abdomen and leg.

Last week, she learned she had another tumor on her left lung. She had surgery Tuesday and was listed in serious but stable condition at Charlotte's Mercy Hospital.

"Pageants come and go — this is a life and death thing," the blonde Charlotte resident said about her yearlong battle with the disease.

"It's scary, but I feel fine," the Arkansas native said in an interview Monday. As she spoke, she clutched the arm of her husband, Joey.

Doctors found the tumor during Mrs. NaVal's annual checkup: a recurrence of the melanoma cancer she had. Doctors will not know whether or not the tumor is cancerous until it is removed.

"The first thing I did was get angry," Mrs. NaVal said. "I thought, 'I've already gone through this once. I don't want to go through it again."

One thing she's not is a quitter. Mrs. NaVal has made more than 90 public appearances since she won her crown. Many of those have been on behalf of the American Cancer Society.

"It's amazing how people will listen to you when you've got a crown on your head," she said, jokingly.

Even on the dawn of major surgery, the 31-year-old flight attendant was in good humor. But her thoughts turned serious when she discussed her bout with skin cancer.

"Cancer is not selective in who it picks," she said. "But you just can't give up."

Sixty-four stitches after her first surgery, she decided to get back in shape for the competition. Mrs.

NaVal had finished as the fourth runnerup in the 1988 Mrs. North Carolina pageant.

"I was so ready," she said. "I think something like cancer changes your priorities. I didn't want to win it for me, but for the others."

Mrs. NaVal decided to talk about her cancer during the interview segment of the competition.

"I said it was a very traumatic experience, but I don't want anyone to get the violins out," she recalled. "I said there must be a reason for this to happen so I could tell my story."

Since her victory that night in May, she has been telling her story to hundreds of other cancer patients and their families.

She especially enjoys working with children.

"Children don't want to hear lies," Mrs. NaVal said, her eyes welling up with tears. "They want you to be honest with them."

Mrs. NaVal said one of her most moving experiences came last month when she visited a 16-year-old girl in a Winston-Salem hospital who had been severely injured in an automobile accident.

"Mostly I cried and held her hand," she said. "Then I told her I'd come back to see her when she recovered."

At that moment, the girl clutched her hand and whispered: "You promise?"

"I promise! I promise!" Mrs. NaVal recalled answering.

Joey NaVal said he is constantly amazed by his wife's courage.

"Right after we found out about the tumor I walked around in a daze for about a week," he said. "Bernee continued to make her appearances. When she came home she picked my spirits up."

Mrs. NaVal says her strength comes from her family, her Methodist faith and her husband.

"The scariest thing in the world is when you hear the word cancer," she said. "It's harder on your family."

She dismisses suggestions that she is brave. "I feel like I'm scared to death," she said.

But Mrs. NaVal firmly believes that her own cancer has provided her with a mission in life. Part of that is to encourage people to see their doctors.

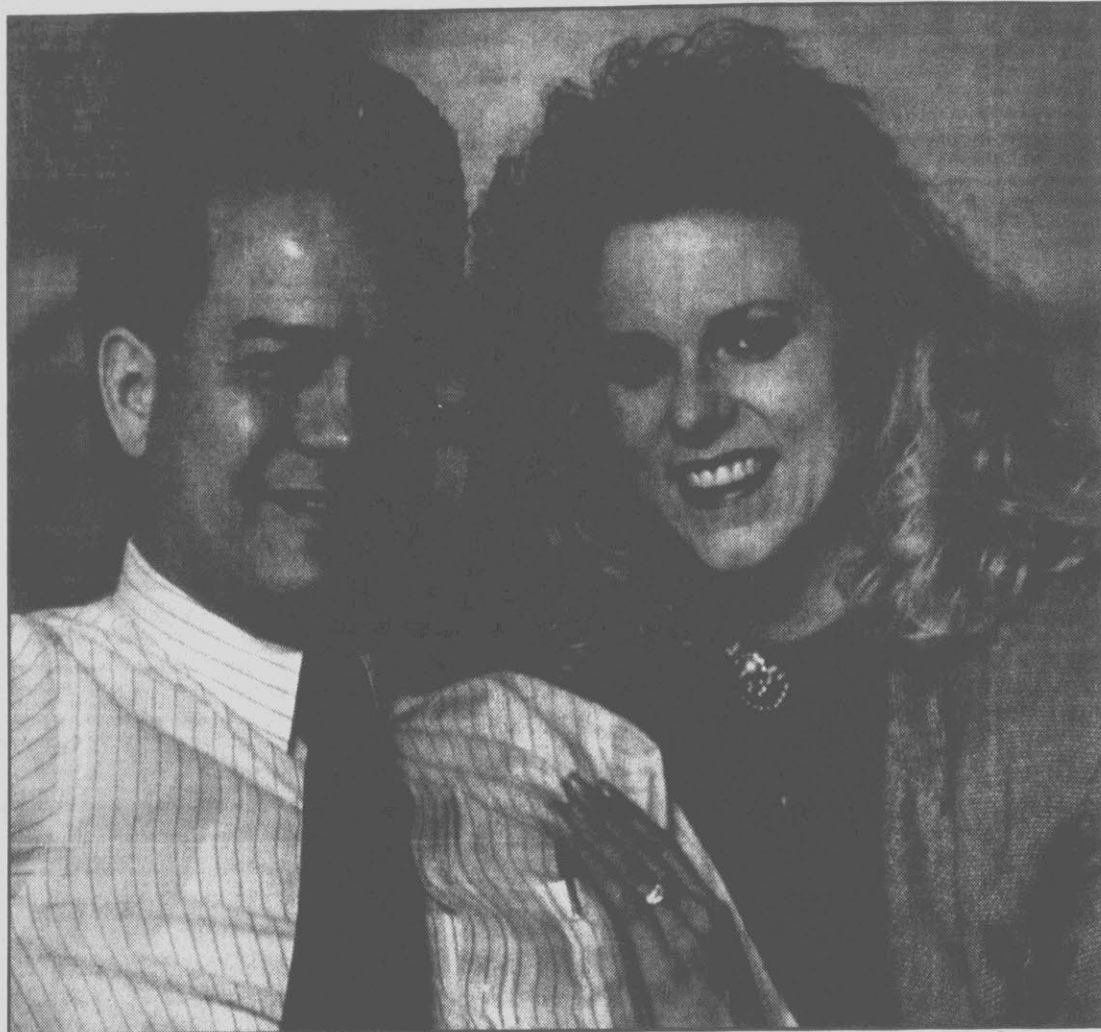

"I keep pushing for people to be responsible for themselves," she said.

At her appearances, she also discusses the need for the families of cancer patients to talk about the disease.

"I've learned it's OK to ask for help," she said. "I've always been good at giving help to others. It's hard sometimes to say you need help too."

Mrs. NaVal said she's looking forward to putting her second operation behind her and begin preparations for the Mrs. America pageant in February.

"I'm going to be ready," she said, her face breaking into a determined smile. "I've already talked to the doctor about where to put the stitches."

Legislators See Few Calls For Action On Baby Deaths

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina's rate of infant deaths has risen two years in a row, but political leaders say there has been little demand that something be done about it.

"To be just blunt with you, I don't get anybody calling me and asking me about the infant mortality rate," said Rep. Dave Diamont, D-Surry, chairman of the N.C. House Appropriations Committee. "I get calls every week from somebody complaining about their unpaid road."

In North Carolina last year, 1,227 infants under age 1 died, or 12.6 percent of every 1,000 babies born.

It was the second consecutive year the infant death rate rose. It was the highest rate in North Carolina since 1983, and worse than in South Carolina (12.2 percent) or Mississippi (12.3 percent), states that for years trailed North Carolina in most health and economic indexes.

But the dismal indicator of health conditions didn't spur aggressive legislative action.

"I don't know of any statewide leader who's really felt strongly enough about it to say, 'We're on the bottom on a lot of other things, but I'll just be dang-blasted if we're going to be on the bottom in infant mortality, letting young babies die,'" said Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake.

Blue is former chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on human resources.

The national 1988 infant mortality rate was 9.9 per 1,000 live births. North Carolina health experts fear the state, fifth-worst in 1987, will be at the bottom when the 1988 rankings come out next year.

Results in other states show fewer babies die when money is spent to give pregnant women early, regular and thorough health care.

During their terms, Mississippi Gov. William Winter (1980-84) and S.C. Gov. Dick Riley (1979-87) put infant mortality at the top of their agendas.

Those governors cajoled their legislatures into appropriating money. In 1984, South Carolina committed $8 million for a three-year plan. Mississippi increased the staffs at public health clinics so that no pregnant woman has to wait more than two weeks for an appointment. (In about 25 of the 100 N.C. counties, waiting time averages from three to eight weeks.)

They also went after private grant money: Mississippi got $1.2 million in 1987. South Carolina has $2.4 million this year, North Carolina $40,000.

As head of a Southern Governors Association task force on infant mortality, Riley persuaded Congress to make major changes in Medicaid, in effect setting up a kind of national maternity-care in surance for the working poor.

Now, the federal government will pay 75 percent of the cost of medical care for women whose family income is up to $18,600 a year for a family of three — 185 percent of the poverty level — if the state pays the rest.

Bush Faces Cuts In Armed Forces Before Summit

By Barry Schweid
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The U.S. budget squeeze may force President Bush to confront a proposed armed forces cutback even as he reassures the allies he will not cut a military deal behind their backs in his first summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, sources say.

On Bush's desk before his takeoff Thursday evening for Malta could be a recommendation from Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to trim the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps by 275,000, or 12.9 percent from current levels, defense sources told. The Associated Press on Tuesday night.

The Army would be reduced by 135,000, the Air Force by 100,000 and the Navy and Marine Corps by 40,000 under a proposal from the U.S. armed services chiefs, said the sources, who declined to be identified.

Cheney will find the recommendation on his own desk when he flies home from Europe early Thursday. The cuts would be carried out by 1994, and would involve the elimination of three army combat divisions, five and a fraction Air Force fighter wings and about 60 naval vessels, the sources said.

The fleet includes 562 vessels, and the idea would be to reduce to about 508 by 1994.

If Cheney accepts the recommenation, he would take it to the president before his departure for this weekend's saltwater summit with Gorbachev. Richard Darman, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, is pushing for even deeper cutbacks in the U.S. military, the sources said.

It was not clear whether the president would make a decision before his takeoff.

Bush promised the allies Tuesday that "I'm not going to surprise them" with any agreement to cut nuclear weapons or reduce U.S. troops overseas.

Bush said he and Gorbachev may discuss possible military cutbacks "in a general way" when they meet off the coast of Malta on Saturday and Sunday.

But he added, "In writing, I have made clear to Mr. Gorbachev — in my handwriting, so he knows it comes from me, not the bureaucracy — that this is not a summit for arms control agreement."

Similarly, Cheney pledged to the NATO allies at a meeting in Brussels that they would be consulted before any U.S. troops were withdrawn from Western Europe.

"The United States will continue to have its forces in Europe as long as our NATO allies want them (and) need them there," said a senior U.S. defense official who spoke to reporters in the Belgian capital on condition of anonymity.

No Unilateral Cuts

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Despite the reforms sweeping the East bloc, NATO defense ministers agreed today to refrain from unilateral reductions in conventional arms until a formal agreement with the Warsaw Pact can be reached.

The ministers, ending two days of talks, said in a statement that they welcomed the changes in the East but issued a word of caution.

"There has unquestionably been a change in the nature of the threat which confronts us, but not yet a significant change in the military capability of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact," NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner said.

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said the United States will not bring home any troops from Europe without first consulting NATO allies.

"We will not act unilaterally," he said, referring to a Pentagon study of troop cuts in the early 1990s that would exceed those now being negotiated at East-West conventional arms talks in Vienna.

In their statement, the ministers noted the start of unilateral reductions in conventional, or non-nuclear, arms by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

Gorbachev Expected To Seek U.S. Pledge Not To Exploit E. Europe

By John-Thor Dahlburg
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Mikhail Gorbachev wants assurances from President Bush this weekend that the United States will not exploit the Eastern European reform movement, say government officials who add the Soviet leader hopes for improved trade ties from the superpower summit.

Gorbachev also will be seeking progress on an array of arms control issues as he and Bush hold their first summit Saturday and Sunday on U.S. and Soviet warships in the waters off Malta.

"To put it in a nutshell, we need a normal external environment for our domestic work," says Gorbachev, whose economic restructuring program of perestroika has yet to produce measurable improvements in the daily life of Soviet citizens.

The 58-year-old Soviet leader will be attending his sixth summit with an American president, and in circumstances that scarcely seemed imaginable a few weeks ago — much less when he first sat down with President Reagan in Geneva.

Gorbachev has encouraged and endorsed the political changes that have brought reformers to power in every Eastern bloc nation except Romania. But in the days leading up to the summit, he has spoken openly of fears that the West may try to exploit the situation.

"The most dangerous thing at such moments is that someone may become tempted to use them for their own selfish interests," he said recently.

Bush seemed to reply in a speech on Nov. 22 in which he said, "We will seek President Gorbachev's assurance that this process of reform in Eastern Europe will continue. And we will give him our word that America welcomes reform not as an adversary seeking advantage, but as a people offering support."

There seems little doubt that Gorbachev will underscore his commitment to reform.

"Moscow observers say in jest that Gorbachev will possibly carry to Bush on board the cruiser Belknap a fragment of the ruined Iron Curtain," the official Novosti Press Agency quipped.

Gorbachev says the Kremlin will no longer impose its views on its allies and may seek a pledge that Washington will not, for example, try the sort of end-run the Soviets staged by aiding Fidel Castro's Cuba. To bar potential unrest, the Soviets may even endorse massive U.S. assistance; Poland, for example, is seeking $1 billion in Western cash.

Bush's Thanksgiving eve invitation to Gorbachev to end decades of East-West confrontation was seized on by the Soviets as proof the superpowers are on the threshold of a "new stage of broad and open cooperation," in the words of Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov.

The Soviets are writing a law allowing virtually unrestricted emigration of Jews and others that Bush wants before recommending that the Soviets be granted "most-favored nation status," to ease access of their goods to U.S. markets.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze flushed with anger when asked whether the summit was called so the Kremlin could seek U.S. aid for its shortage-plagued economy. "It offends our national pride," he said.

But pride or not, the Soviets want U.S. know-how, computers and management techniques.

Shevardnadze says the Soviets want "mutually beneficial economic and trade cooperation." However, even if Bush agrees to loosen controls on high-tech exports and upgrade the Soviets' trading status, it's uncertain how much their state-run enterprises could benefit.

As of now, they can offer U.S. customers only "petroleum and vodka and caviar and not much else," says Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher.

Arms control — the centerpiece of past summits — is now overshadowed by the momentous changes in Eastern Europe. For Soviets, however, weapons cuts would be tangible proof that Gorbachev's "new thinking" is paying off.

The Soviet ideal, says Viktor A. Kremenyuk, would be a timetable fixing goals for the Geneva talks on strategic weapons cuts and the Vienna negotiations on conventional arms in Europe. Kremenyuk is the deputy chief of a Kremlin think tank studying the United States.

Gorby Meeting With Italians, Pope

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROME — Mikhail Gorbachev became the first Soviet Communist Party chief to make an official visit to Italy today, arriving for a three-day tour that is to include a historic audience with the pope.

On Tuesday, the Vatican said the pope planned to ask for establishment of permanent ties between the Holy See and the Kremlin.

Premier Giulio Andreotti welcomed the Soviet president shortly after his Il'yushin-62 touched down at Leonardo da Vinci airport on a sunny morning. The two leaders inspected an honor guard and a 21-gun salute rang out.

Gorbachev, in a blue overcoat and gray fedora, shook hands with a line of Italian officials before his motorcade departed for the Soviet ambassador's residence, Villa Abamelek, where he and his wife, Raisa, are staying.

The visit comes just before the U.S.-Soviet summit off Malta. Italian officials say they hope to get in "the last European word" before Gorbachev heads into his talks with President Bush.

Gorbachev's first-day schedule included meetings with President Francesco Cossiga and Andreotti, a wreath-laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in central Rome and a whirlwind tour of Rome's famous sights, including the Colosseum.

The talks here were expected to focus on Eastern Europe. Czechoslovakia's leaders have now joined East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria in bowing to public pressure and rejecting hard-line communism.

Gorbachev meets Friday with the Polish-born John Paul II in the first such encounter between a pope, leader of the world's 850 million Roman Catholics, and a Soviet Communist Party chief.

Barbara's Ailment Is 'Fairly Stable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bush's nettlesome Graves disease, which causes teary eyes and double vision, isn't getting any better, but doctors say it isn't getting any worse.

"It's fairly stable," Mrs. Bush's spokeswoman Anna Perez told reporters after the first lady returned Tuesday evening from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

"The eyes have not gotten worse. She's not out of the woods yet. She's not cured. She's still got the disease," Ms. Perez said.

The doctors examined Mrs. Bush for two hours, performing tests and putting two doses of drops in her eyes. They decided to vary the doses of prednisone she is taking for the condition, Ms. Perez said.

Otherwise, there was to be no treatment change.

"Believe me when I tell you, nothing is worse, everything is better, I'm going home with very good news for George Bush," the first lady told the Rochester Post-Bulletin.

The long-range prognosis is unclear, Ms. Perez said, adding that Mrs. Bush was in "fine spirits" but acknowledged annoyance with the disease.

"These are some of the best times of her life and sometimes it is a pain to have to see everything twice," Ms. Perez said.

Mrs. Bush's condition, which initially caused a noticeable weight loss, was diagnosed earlier this year. She has regained some weight through water retention due to the prednisone.

GAO Says Little Done To Control Government's Legacy Of Waste

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Seven years after Congress sought to improve government management, major problems still are ignored or corrected slowly, leaving a "seemingly never-ending" multibillion-dollar legacy of waste, a watchdog agency said today.

"Management deficiencies, program abuses and illegal activities cost the taxpayers billions of dollars and undermine their confidence in government," the General Accounting Office said.

"This situation is unacceptable under any circumstance but becomes even more serious in light of overwhelming budget deficits," said GAO, the investigative arm of Congress.

The GAO's chief, Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher, said in testimony prepared for a hearing today that the Office of Management and Budget had taken recent steps to demand improved agency management, but said the OMB alone could not do enough.

GAO said it found that myriad examples of mismanagement, fraud, waste and abuse had been uncovered in annual assessments of government agencies required under the 1982 Financial Integrity Act.

But many of the problems persist years after being identified, the report said, blaming a lack of agency leadership, shortsighted decision-making and a failure of Congress and the White House to aggressively oversee government management.

"There is a seemingly never-ending and costly trail of mismanagement, abuse and illegal acts involving federal programs," the GAO said in the report to the Senate Government Affairs Committee. "Most of the problems are known, and in many instances have been known for years, but they remain uncorrected."

Bowsher said GAO had decided to launch a government-wide review to identify areas most ripe for abuse.

He called on Congress to expand its oversight and to demand evidence of improved financial management as part of the budget-writing process.

The GAO study found that 50 percent of the managers charged with conducting the internal management reviews required by the 1982 law had not been trained to properly do so.

Pentagon Seeking Faster Computer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Cambridge, Mass., company will get $12 million from the Pentagon to help it build a computer that would be 1,000 times faster than today's most advanced computers.

Thinking Machines Corp. said the new computer would be capable of conducting 1 trillion mathematical operations per second, the company said in a statement released in Washington on Tuesday.

The grant will come from the Pentagon's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, which has been awarding grants aimed at keeping the United States the world leader in high-speed computing.

Danny Hills, co-founder and chief scientist of Thinking Machines, told The Washington Post in today's editions that the company hopes to have a model with one-tenth the capacity of the final model ready in 1992. He declined to predict when the final product would be available commercially.

High speed computers simulate events in the physical world numerically. They are widely used by the government in such fields as nuclear weapons design and weather forecasting and are used by private companies for such things as semiconductor circuit design and superconductivity research.

Surgeon Dr. Christoph Broelsch joins child's dad, John Smith

Child 'Looks Better' After New Surgery

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — A 21-month-old girl who received the nation's first living-donor liver transplant was recovering after a complication, and her father hoped to have her home for Christmas.

Alyssa Smith underwent a second operation early Tuesday to stop internal bleeding detected 12 hours after she received a piece of her mother's liver.

"She's looking much better," said her father, John L. Smith. "Even with the surgery and everything, she looked great," he said, his voice trembling. "Her eyes were kind of open and she saw me and ... her face kind of lit up a bit."

The girl was in critical but stable condition after the second operation, said Dr. Christoph Broelsch, who headed the surgical team.

Doctors removed the left lobe of 29-year-old Teresa Smith's liver for the transplant. Mrs. Smith was in fair condition Tuesday. She was moved out of intensive care and was expected to be released in about a week, doctors said.

John Smith said the sudden return to the operating room caused some tense moments for him and his wife.

"It really scared me when they came up and told me the doctor of the hospital wanted to talk to me," he said.

In the Smiths' hometown of Schertz, Texas, a suburb of San Antonio, the girl's grandfather, D.C. Morgan, also felt apprehension as he awaited updates from his wife, Ada, who had traveled to Chicago.

"As you're waiting, thoughts can go through your mind," he said. "Some thoughts are good, some are bad."

The surface of Alyssa's new liver — about the size of a man's fist — had begun to bleed, a complication that occurs in about 30 percent of all liver transplants, and she was returned to the operating room about 4:40 a.m. Tuesday, said Dr. Peter Whittington, the hospital's director of pediatric transplant services.

Doctors corrected the problem in a few minutes, but kept her in surgery for nearly five hours for observation, Broelsch said.

Alyssa may undergo another exploratory operation within a few days to examine the new liver, doctors said. But John Smith was looking further ahead.

"The only plans we really have (are) ... to have a Christmas at home with our kids, get back to our jobs and get on with our lives," the father said. "With this liver, she can live the rest of her life."

"Her whole future is ahead of her now."

After the second operation, Alyssa was awake, active and moving around, although she remained on sedation and a ventilator, Broelsch said.

"The transplant is definitely functioning and for now things are back on a smooth course," he said at a news conference at the University of Chicago Medical Center.

Alyssa suffered from an often-fatal liver disorder called biliary atresia, the leading cause for liver transplants involving children. She had been waiting more than a year for a cadaver transplant when her parents asked to participate in the hospital's living-donor program.

Poisoned Cattle

KELLY, N.C. (AP) — About 100 beef cattle died recently from accidental poisoning at a farm in Bladen County, authorities said Tuesday.

The animals would have been worth about $40,000 on the market, a veterinarian said.

The mixed-breed livestock began showing signs of the poisoning about Nov. 16 and began dying, authorities said.

Treasury Official In Line For Federal Reserve Post

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush plans to nominate Assistant Treasury Secretary David W. Mullins Jr. to fill a vacancy on the Federal Reserve Board, an administration source said today.

Mullins, 43, one of the chief architects of the administration's bailout bill for the savings and loan industry, has served in his current position since October 1988. Before that he taught at the Harvard Business School.

He was also the No. 2 staff member on the task force named by then-President Reagan to study the October 1987 stock market crash.

At the Fed, Mullins would succeed

H. Robert Heller, who resigned from the seven-member board in June to become executive vice president of Visa International, the credit card company. The term of the vacancy runs to Jan. 31, 1996. Because of Mullins' long association with Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, who headed the stock market crash task force, the appointment is seen as giving the administration a greater voice in monetary policy. He would be Bush's first appointment to the board. Reagan named the other six members.

In recent months, the Fed has been somewhat at odds with administration, which has favored lower interest rates and more aggressive efforts to improve the U.S.

trade by selling dollars in world currency markets.

Mullins has little professional background in broad economic and monetary policymaking, but he is highly regarded as an expert on U.S. financial markets and the banking system.

He received his undergraduate degree from Yale University and graduate degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He grew up in Fayetteville, Ark., where his father was president of the University of Arkansas.

Bush's plan to nominate Mullins was first reported today by The Wall Street Journal and syndicated columnist Rowland Evans and Robert Novak and confirmed by the administration source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Fed, as the nation's central bank, attempts to fight inflation and sustain economic growth by manipulating interest rates. It also regulates the banks that are members of its system and governs the activities of bank holding companies.

Drivers Used School Bus To Deal Drugs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Sixteen public school bus drivers have been indicted on charges of dealing drugs while taking students to and from class.

"They were doing things other than delivering kids on their routes," State Police Director Jeremy Margolis said Tuesday. "They were delivering dope."

The drivers were among 29 people indicted as a result of a 15-month investigation known as Operation S.K.I.D., or School Kids in Danger, in which State Police posed as workers of bus companies under contract to the Chicago Board of Education.

Police made 55 narcotics buys from bus company employees, most of them drivers, authorities said.

Undercover officers found drivers hopping out of their buses to buy or sell drugs while passengers waited on board, State Police Lt. George Murray said.

Police said that because of safety concerns, they did not arrange any drug deals while students were present.

Seven drivers indicted were found to have criminal backgrounds involving such offenses as aggravated battery, assault and involvement in narcotics.

"It certainly is regrettable," said School Board spokesman Bob Saigh. "Considering that we're running 2,900 buses every day... the integrity of the service is intact."

Cook County State's Attorney Cecil Partee and Margolis called for legislation that would require fingerprinting of all applicants for use in checking them for criminal records.

A state law effective Jan. 1 will require school boards to check drivers by name for criminal backgrounds.

District Court

Judges Russell Duke, W. Lee Lumpkin and David Leech disposed of the following cases during the Nov. 13-17 term of District Court in Pitt County:

Five Die In San Francisco Accident

The crane fell from a 21-story building under construction in the busy financial district, smashing into office buildings and flattening cars before ending as a mass of twisted steel.

"The wreckage looks absolutely incredible — steel beams look like pickup sticks," said City Supervisor Angela Alioto.

Twenty-one people were injured, five seriously.

Four of those killed were jacking the crane from the 16th to the 20th floor of the high-rise being built by Swinerton & Walberg for the Federal Home Loan Bank of San Francisco. The other victim was a woman bus driver taking disabled children to school.

The crash reminded some of the Oct. 17 temblor that killed 67 people in the Bay area.

"It felt like an earthquake," said Merrill Lynch Vice President Joe McLaughlin, whose offices are in one of the two buildings struck by the crane. "I looked out and saw two bodies. One construction worker's boots were sticking up through a mass of jagged metal."

Alioto said streets in a four-square-block area would be closed for at least a week for cleanup, repairs and for safety reasons.

Federal, state and city inspectors are investigating the accident. Possible causes include operator error and mechanical failure of the crane, said Police Chief Frank Jordan.

Swinerton officials also are investigating.

"No one in our firm has even seen or heard of an incident where a crane collapsed while being raised from one position to another," said Ned Gates, chairman of the San Francisco-based company.

Charges were filed against the company after a crane collapsed in Los Angeles in 1981, killing two people, said Guarino. The case was dropped because prosecutors wanted to prove only culpable negligence, but state labor code requires proof of wanton and willful disregard for human safety, Guarino said.

In 1986, Swinerton was a co-defendant with another construction company after a Los Angeles accident killed three ironworkers when the steel superstructure of a 21-story building was overloaded, Guarino said.

That case resulted in Swinerton agreeing to sponsor a safety seminar for downtown Los Angeles contractors and to make a donation to a labor safety board, he said Tuesday night.

Spokesmen for the company were not immediately available to respond, said Fulani Adeleke, a computer operator who answered the phone early today.

The crane subcontractor in San Francisco, Erection Co. of Kirkland, Wash., has been fined for safety violations at least eight times, including four since 1987, according to Washington state Department of Labor and Industries records.

In August 1988, it was cited for a "serious, willful violation" of state safety laws after a worker fell 123 feet to his death, said John Akins, department spokesman. Erection is appealing a $24,500 fine, he said.

"The company has one of the poorest safety records in the industry here," Akins said.

In November 1988, the company was fined $41,000 for numerous worker-safety violations at an office tower under construction, said department spokesman Dick Kunkle.

Telephone calls to company offices were not returned.

The San Francisco project began in January and has received no safety citations, Swinerton officials said.

The crane, which had a capacity of 17 tons, fell 200 feet during the morning rush hour at Kearny and California streets, one of the city's busiest intersections.

Paul Brenner watched helplessly from his office in the Bank of America Building.

"I saw the crane buckle on the scaffolding that holds the crane," he said. "It's like watching one of those bad movies, those horror, you know, those disaster movies, but it's really happened."

Among the cars hit was a taxi carrying a married couple, who were among those injured. Although the cab was crushed, driver Gerry Smith kicked out a window and walked away unhurt.

"I guess it just wasn't my time," said Smith, 55.

One of the passengers was among the five people in serious condition at San Francisco General Hospital. The others injured, including the passenger's husband, were released after treatment, hospitals reported.

Jokesters Hit Gorbachev

"Telephone is not the best way to communicate," Grushevsky's Gorbachev said. "Although, you know, sometimes it's also a way to solve some kind of knotty problem and some, so to speak, to move ahead..."

Grushevsky said his audiences seem to laugh partly because they are so unaccustomed to hearing the voices of political leaders coming from the stage.

"And some laughter comes from relief, that it's OK, that the concert is going on and no one will come afterward and take me away," he told Lyubimov. "Now people have started to get used to it, and thank God for that."

The Satire Theater's 80-year-old artistic director, Valentin Pluchek, said authorities have closed him down often in the past when shows were too politically salty, but he didn't expect that kind of trouble any longer.

"That's all over," Pluchek said after Friday's performance of "The Tribunal."

Told that Gorbachev's daughter was in the audience, Pluchek's wife, Zinaida, warned, "Now Papa will come and forbid it."

But Pluchek dismissed her worries. "He shouldn't be offended," he said. "We respect him. In a democratic society, an artist should have the right to make a friendly caricature of the leader."

Several days later, the theater director, Alexander Levinsky, said he had not received any reprimands from above.

Not all imitations are quite so innocuous. Another Moscow comic, Mikhail Zadornov, does a routine that appears to highlight the Soviet leader's occasional lapses in grammar and speech.

"Comrades, comrades, comrades," he said in a recent performance. "Despite this responsible speech I will speak without a little paper. Yes, I'll give you all a lesson on literate speaking. I will, I will, yes."

The speech that follows contains a variety of exaggerated grammatical errors and malapropisms typical of uneducated Russians and includes a pledge that "We won't let just anyone who wants to dirty up our mother tongue, we have our head behind our shoulders."

For all the public parodies, many jokes about Gorbachev still have not made their way onto the airwaves or into print.

When he first came to power in 1985 and introduced an anti-alcohol campaign, wits turned his title of "General Secretary" into "Mineral Secretary" — a reference to the mineral water resorted to by drinkers deprived of wine and vodka.

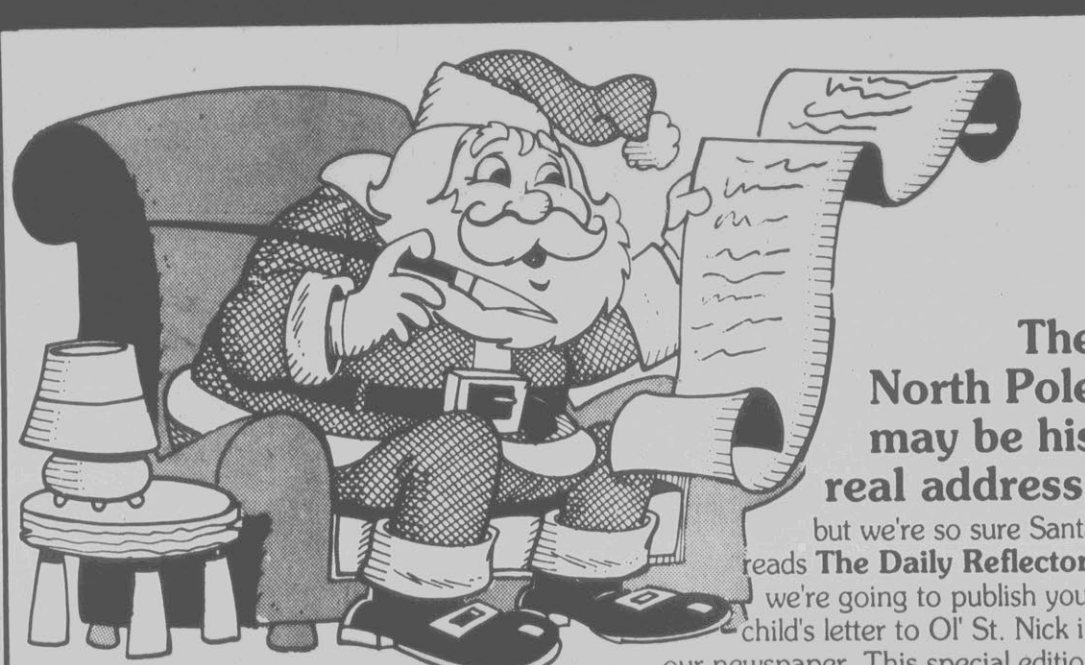

Many jokes have focused on his close relationship with his wife, Raisa, portraying her as ever-present and domineering.

An anecdote now making the rounds in Moscow has a well-known psychic brown into prison because he made Gorbachev's hair grow out and cover his birthmark, and "now he can only be recognized because his wife is with him."

Far more devastating anecdotes abounded about former leaders but circulated only by word-of-mouth or in emigre publications.

"The Tribunal" broke new ground in its public mockery of past leaders as well, such as Leonid I. Brezhnev and other members of the pre-Gorbachev gerontocracy. It depicts Brezhnev as a doddering, senile old man who unzips his pants near a marble statue because he can't distinguish it from a urinal.

Stock, Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was broadly lower in moderate trading today as investors took profits after recent gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.50 points to 2,700.51 at 10 a.m. EST, a half-hour after the opening bell.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by more than 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 642 issues down, 294 up and 518 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 24.02 billion shares.

Analysts said investors sold stocks early and took profits. The Dow Jones industrials has gained nearly 70 points in the last five trading sessions.

The market had little immediate reaction to a revised figure on third-quarter Gross National Product and to a report showing corporate profits declined 7.2 percent in the July-September period.

The Commerce Department reported today that the economy grew at an annual rate of 2.7 percent in the third quarter, slightly higher than the 2.5 percent forecast last month. Analysts said the data was not likely to prompt any action by the Federal Reserve to lower interest rates to stimulate the economy. The bond market also showed little reaction to the numbers.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down 0.49 to 190.85.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 0.42 to 374.68.

Among most actively traded stocks on the NYSE, Texas Utilities was down 1/8 to 34 3/4, Chevron was off 1/4 to 67 1/2 and Exxon was down 1/4 to 47 1/2. American Express was down 1/4 to 35 1/2, McDonalds had declined 1/4 to 32 1/2 and British Gas was unchanged at 33 1/2.

Philip Morris was up 3/8 to 41 3/4 and Dun & Bradstreet had gained 3/8 to 41 1/2.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.04 points to 2,702.01.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by about 4 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 848 issues up, 647 down and 502 unchanged.

Big Board volume came to 153.77 million shares, up from 149.39 million in Monday's session.

Economy's Growth Slows

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy grew at a moderate annual rate of 2.7 percent from July through September, the government reported today, but analysts say growth is slowing in the current quarter.

The increase reported by the Commerce Department in the broadest measure of economic health was up from an advance estimate of 2.5 percent issued last month.

The revision was about in line with economists' expectations, but it could still cause the Federal Reserve Board to move more cautiously in its campaign to lower interest rates as a stimulant to growth.

Most of the revision was attributed to a better-than-anticipated trade performance. The September trade deficit, which hit a five-year low, was unavailable when the advance estimate was made.

Exports climbed at an annual rate of 1.6 percent in the third quarter, compared with an earlier estimate of no change, while imports grew only 9.5 percent, compared with a 15.1 percent jump in last month's report.

Consumer spending was also better than first thought, rising a brisk annual rate of 6.2 percent — the strongest since the first quarter of 1988 — compared with a preliminary estimate of 5.8 percent.

Inflation, as measured by a price index tied to the GNP, improved dramatically in the third quarter, climbing at an annual rate of 2.9 percent after a 5.0 percent jump in the April-June quarter. Those figures were unchanged from the advance estimate.

The GNP grew at an annual rate of 2.5 percent in the second quarter and for the first nine months of the year is averaging a 3.0 percent annual rate, just above the Bush administration's forecast for the whole year.

K&W Cafeteria To Open At Carolina East Dec. 6

By Frances Horton Arrington
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Officials of K&W Cafeteria were in Greenville Tuesday putting the finishing touches on a cafeteria they plan to open at Carolina East Mall on Dec. 6.

The new cafeteria will be at the mall location formerly occupied by S&S Cafeteria, according to R.C. Cox, district manager for K&W.

Cox said K&W bought S&S's mall lease when S&S decided to shut down its Greenville cafeteria. "We had talked about building a new store, but then we got the chance to go into an establishment that's already built," Cox said at K&W Tuesday. "Of course, that saved us some expense."

Cox said K&W had been looking for a Greenville site for about two years. He said the chain already has cafeterias in Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro and Wilmington and is hoping to expand into Jacksonville.

Brian Harvey, assistant manager at the Greenville K&W, said it will be a full-service cafeteria with diners being served their food as they pass through a line.

He said a variety of entrees are included in the cafeteria's daily menu with all foods being prepared at K&W.

Andy Doss will be manager of the new cafeteria which will employ about 50 full-time workers and about 30 part-timers, Harvey said.

Business hours at K&W will be Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Harvey said a ribbon-cutting ceremony that will feature Greenville city officials has been planned for 10 a.m. opening day. He said the cafeteria will begin serving customers after the ceremony at 11 a.m.

K&W operates 18 cafeterias throughout North Carolina, according to Don Cooley, vice president of operations for K&W.

"We're coming east hoping to make K&W a household word in this area," Cooley said. "It's a growing area and we'd like to be a part of it."

Laughery Stepping Down At Hardee's

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. — Jack A. Laughery will step down as chief executive officer of Hardee's Food Systems, the Rocky Mount-based company announced Tuesday.

Laughery will remain as chairman of Hardee's and will continue his service on the board of Hardee's parent company, Imasco Ltd. of Montreal, Canada, Hardee's said. Bill Prather, who joined the Hardee's organization four years ago as president and chief operating officer, will assume the duties of chief executive officer on Jan. 1, the company said in a news release.

Bob Autry, president and chief operating officer since 1988 of Fast Food Merchandisers Inc., the distribution and manufacturing company that services Hardee's Restaurants, will assume the title of chief executive officer of that organization at the same time.

Study Cites Lack Of Programs Aimed At Older Workers

By Nancy Benac
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. businesses like their older employees' strong work ethics but give them low grades on adapting to new technology and offer few programs to help them master it, a private study said today.

Many older workers, meanwhile, see themselves as an untapped resource and feel frustrated about the scarcity of programs to help them contribute more on the job, according to the study by the Daniel Yankelovich Group research company.

"When discussing their work situation ... older employees seem fearful," the study said. "They believe they are vulnerable, even disposable."

Technological training "is critical if older employees are to thrive in today's workplace," the report said, adding that more needs to be done to match qualified older workers with jobs that use their skills.

The report, commissioned by the American Association of Retired Persons, was based on telephone interviews with executives at 400 businesses and on "focus group" discussions among employees age 50 and older.

The study found that businesses give older workers high ratings on characteristics such as attendance, punctuality, reliability, commitment to quality and loyalty. For example, 89 percent of employers rated their older workers as excellent or very good in commitment to quality.

Older employees got their lowest marks on feeling comfortable with new technologies, such as computers, with just 22 percent of the businesses rating their older workers as excellent or very good in that category.

Executives at the largest companies were prone to give older workers less credit for their work habits and to be more critical of their ability to adapt to technology, the report said.

The study said 79 percent of executives reported "their companies were finding ways to leverage the experience of older workers," but other data from this survey do not support this success in tapping older workers' skills.

Skills training programs for older workers had been adopted by just three in 10 companies surveyed, the same proportion as in a 1985 study, and one-fourth of businesses had a formal commitment to fully use older workers, down from one-third in 1985, it found.

"One of the most disturbing findings of this study is the reported decline in senior management's formal commitment to utilizing older workers," the report said.

Unless more is done to help older workers adapt, "non-technologically oriented older workers could find themselves shut out of rewarding well-paying positions," the report said.

AARP Executive Director Horace Deets said the report indicates that businesses have improved their attitudes toward older workers but those changes have not been "translated into changed behaviors and business practices."

Deets said the report's message to older workers was: "You have to take the initiative to seek training and maintain needed skills. An older worker can't wait for an employer to make the first move."

The report said that in addition to questions about older workers' adaptability to new technology, businesses also show growing concern about the cost to employ older employees, particularly to provide them with health insurance. It also found increasing use of early retirement programs to reduce costs.

The perceptions of older workers closely mirror those of their managers, the study said, with the workers viewing themselves as hard-working but believing they are seen as expensive, both in salary and benefit costs. The older workers also acknowledged that younger employees "are more comfortable in the 'new workplace,'" it said.

Discounters Drop Pricing Challenge

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GREENSBORO — A group of 13 North Carolina furniture discounters is voluntarily dismissing its lawsuit against Thomasville Furniture Industries Inc., a lawyer for the discounters says.

The announcement Tuesday comes a week after the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., denied the discounters a preliminary injunction against Thomasville.

The lawsuit contended the restrictions amounted to an unreasonable restraint of trade.

Comaneci Defects

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Nadia Comaneci, the Romanian gymnast whose unprecedented perfect scores in the 1976 Olympics made sports history, has fled to Hungary and asked for asylum, the state-run MTI news agency reported today.

The report said Comaneci, who retired from gymnastics in 1984, applied for political asylum after fleeing across the Romanian-Hungarian border before dawn on Tuesday.

She reportedly told Hungarian border guards that her escape had been organized "in advance under the guidance of a Romanian man," the news agency said without elaboration.

The report quoted her as saying she had left behind a "neatly furnished flat, a car and financial security for the sake of freedom."

Comaneci was quoted as saying she had been denied permission to work abroad as a coach or even travel, in spite of numerous offers and invitations. She has been planning a career as a coach and referee.

An employee of the local radio station in the southern Hungary town of Szeged, about 15 miles from the Romanian border, said Comaneci checked into the Royal Hotel there, spent the night and left this morning. The radio station employee spoke on condition of anonymity.

An estimated 25,000 Romanians, most of them ethnic Hungarians complaining of discrimination, have fled to Hungary in the past two years seeking refuge from chronic hardships under the regime of President Nicolae Ceausescu.

Comaneci, 27, an ethnic Romanian, astounded the world as a petite, solemn 14-year-old, turning in a series of perfect 10 scores and winning three gold medals during the Montreal games.

Her former coach, ethnic Hungarian Bela Karolyi, defected with his wife in March 1981 while on a tour of 15 American cities with the Romanian gymnastics team. He became a U.S. citizen last spring and coaches American gymnasts.

Comaneci is listed by the Guinness Book of World Records as the first gymnast to receive a perfect score in a major international tourney. During her career, she collected 21 gold medals, including 12 in Olympic and world championship competition.

Pirates Travel, Face Spartans

East Carolina's Pirates take to the road for the first time this season tonight as they travel to Greensboro to meet the UNCG Spartans.

Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Greensboro Coliseum.

The game will mark the first time that UNCG has hosted a Division I school, although it has played 29 games in the past against teams from that level. The Spartans have won only four of those games. They are currently in the middle of a three-year transition period of moving from Division III to Division I themselves, currently in the Division II ranks.

East Carolina brings in an 0-2 record, having lost to Appalachian State, 69-59, on Saturday, and to Division III N.C. Wesleyan, 70-69, on Monday.

UNCG is 1-2, having lost 78-70 to Davis & Elkins on Monday.

Earlier they lost in the first round of the Thanksgiving Classic at Winston-Salem, falling to Paine College of Georgia, 77-73, before beating the host team, Winston-Salem State, 67-65 in the consolation game.

Former Rose High School star Keyford Langley scored a career high 10 points in that game, including the winning basket with 17 seconds left.

At halftime of the game, two fully endowed athletic scholarships will be presented to UNCG, in the memory of the late Smith Barrier, who served for many years as the sports editor of the Greensboro Daily News.

East Carolina's starting lineup may be in for a shake-up following the loss to Wesleyan. Coach Mike Steele said he would have to take a hard look at the team following that defeat as he tries to determine the best combinations for the Bucs.

East Carolina-UNC-Greensboro

□Date and Time: Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.
□Site: Greensboro Coliseum.
□Records: ECU 0-2; UNC-G 1-2.
□Probable starters: ECU — F Darrell Overton (12.5 ppg, 6.0 rpg), F Tim Brown (12.5 ppg, 6.0 rpg), C Ike Copeland (8.5 ppg, 6.0 rpg), G Reed Lose (9.5 ppg, 4.0 rpg), G Paul Childress (1.0 ppg); UNC-G — G Keyford Langley (6.0 ppg), G Greg Stauffer (17.0 ppg), F Chris Collins (14.0 ppg), F Tony Smith (7.0 ppg), C Steve Hunter (19.0 ppg, 7.0 rpg).
□Game notes: East Carolina is looking for its first win after losses to Appalachian State and Division III N.C. Wesleyan, both at home. ECU is the first Division I team to ever play at UNCG, which has a 4-25 all-time record against Division I teams.
ECU is the first of three straight games against Division I teams for the Spartans, who play five Division I's this year, the second of three Division II years as they move toward Division I ranking on their own in two years.
It is the second meeting between the two schools. The first, last year in Minges Coliseum, was won by ECU 68-49.
The Spartans have a couple of local ties with ECU and Greenville. Langley is a graduate of Rose High School while Coach Bob McEvoy was a former assistant coach at ECU.

Football Delays Basketball Openings

Farmville Central, Conley Delayed As Jags Continue In Playoffs

By Tom Morris
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

High school basketball has begun in Eastern North Carolina, but two of the top teams in the region face a waiting game to open their seasons.

Farmville and Conley were set to play Nov. 24, but the game has been postponed due to the success of the Farmville football team. The Jaguar gridders are still in the race for the state 2-A championship and face Clayton Friday at 8 p.m. on the road.

In the meantime, Farmville coach Mike Terrell and Conley coach Cobby Deans are both anxious to get the season started.

Conley, which advanced to the 3-A Eastern Regionals last year, returns four starters and is expected to be one of the stronger teams in the East this year.

Farmville won the state 2-A title last year and the Jaguars return three starters, including 6-5 All-State selection Jarvis Lang.

The Jaguars have games scheduled Dec. 5 at home against Williamston and Dec. 8 at Southern Wayne. Both contests are subject to change.

Conley will see action first. The Vikings take on Ayden-Grifton Dec. 8 at 8 p.m. in Hollywood.

"We were ready to play this week," Deans said.

No doubt.

The Vikings are fresh off a strong showing at the Jamboree Scrimmage at Mt. Olive Community College and Southern Wayne High School Nov. 18 where Conley won all five games it played, including one against powerful Southern Wayne.

"We made a lot of mistakes, but we got a lot of things done," Deans said. "It was a great day of basketball. The Southern Wayne staff did an outstanding job. We played until we got tired and then we played some more."

The field included 4-A schools Kinston, South View and powerful Athens Drive, which trailed Conley 26-6 at halftime of a 40-minute scrimmage.

Conley returns front-court starters Terry Williams, Martin Patrick and Paul Merritt, along with guard Bershawn Thompson. The fifth spot could be manned by either Jason Wing or Junior Farrow.

The Vikings won the Coastal Conference title last season but fell to Southern Alamance at the regionals. It was a tough loss then and remains so today for Deans.

"We kind of defeated ourselves," he said. "That would have been an easy road to Chapel Hill (for the state championship). We just didn't play that night. An average game would have gotten us to Chapel Hill.

"We're just looking at it as we learned something."

Last year's success will have teams pointing at Conley. Being a favorite is not a role that sits well with Deans.

"Most people that say you're favored are not coaches," he said. "I seldom listen to anybody but a coach. You have a lot of intangibles. We will have a good ball club, if we have players who know their roles."

"(Assistant coach) Kelly (Keys) has sort of got me riled up. He's doing a good job of keeping the kids enthused. We'll be ready to play."

Terrell finds himself in a similar situation to Deans. He has four players still playing football in starting point guard Morris Foreman

Chargers, Rampants Post Opening Wins

Ayden-Grifton Tops South Lenoir In OT

By Mike Grizzard
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

LITTLEFIELD — With a number of inexperienced players in the starting lineup, Ayden-Grifton's varsity basketball teams are prone to some early-season miscues. But mistakes don't seem quite as bad when you win.

The Chargers tipped off their 1989-90 season at home Tuesday night with a sweep of former Eastern Plains Conference member South Lenoir. The Charger boys struggled to a 48-46 overtime win while the girls used a devastating 32-9 run over the final 10 minutes to prevail 60-46.

South Lenoir's junior varsity, led by John Moore's 24 points, salvaged a 48-42 overtime win.

"It's real good to get off with a win with a young group," Charger boys' coach Bob Murphrey said. "It kind of relieves the pressure a little bit. If you try hard and lose with a young bunch you can really destroy your confidence. This should give us a little confidence."

Neither team could forge more than a five-point lead in the nightcap until freshman Orlando Peterson's free throw with 3:20 left gave Ayden-Grifton a 43-37 lead.

But the Chargers could manage only a James Williams free throw the remainder of regulation while missing each of its five attempts from the field. South Lenoir forced the three-minute overtime with a bucket by Greg Jenkins and five free throws down the stretch.

A steal by Carl Artis with 34 seconds left gave Ayden-Grifton an opportunity to win in regulation, but Kincy Wallace got tangled in a crowd and had his shot altered as time expired.

A free throw by point guard Tony Edwards, who finished with 11 points, with 1:19 left in the extra period gave Ayden-Grifton the lead for keeps. Williams scored off a feed from Corey Stokes with 35 seconds left. Edwards followed with a free throw with 16 seconds showing.

The Devils got their only points in overtime on a bucket by Jackie Rogers with five seconds to go.

"Late in the game we missed a few easy shots that could have put it away," Murphrey said. "I felt like we were in control with three minutes to go in the ball game, but with a young group you don't want to go to a stall. It's kind of hard to know how to play at the end with a small lead."

Ayden-Grifton led 30-28 at the end of a first half that saw six lead changes. The Chargers took a 36-35 lead into the fourth period.

With neither team possessing a perimeter threat to speak of, the offenses sputtered against primarily zone defenses. The Chargers shot 39.2 percent from the field (20 of 51), but only 26.9 percent the second half.

South Lenoir was less proficient, hitting 16 of 49 shots for 32.7 percent. The Chargers converted seven of 17 free throws while the Devils hit 14 of 25.

"We had a lot of mistakes, a lot of freshman and sophomore mistakes," Murphrey said. "That's to be expected."

"We've got an idea of what we want to do but we're not setting the world on fire."

Rampants Gun Down Bertie By 66-54

By Woody Peele
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Rose High School's Rampants, who did not return a starter from last year's squad, got the new year off to a good beginning Tuesday night, ripping Bertie, 66-54, in a non-conference basketball game.

The Rampants, who shot just over 50 percent from the floor, led by as much as 18 points early in the final quarter before Coach Jim Brewington called off the dogs and went to his bench.

Bertie was somewhat handicapped by the absence of three players, one of them the projected starter at point guard, still with the football team. Bertie's football team plays Friday in the state 3-A semifinals.

"I'm not really surprised," Bertie coach Darwin Harper said. "We really haven't had time to get ready, plus we're missing some guards and that hurt our play."

"But Rose shot the ball well, shot their free throws well and played well overall. We scrimmaged Hunt and I thought that Rose would be better than they were, but not that much better."

Rose dominated play from the start, taking the opening lead and never relinquishing it. Rose controlled the boards and, for most of the game, had fewer ball-handling problems. The Rampants finished with a 10-rebound margin over the Falcons, 39-29.

Rose shot 52.5 percent as compared to 43.8 for Bertie. The Rampants made only 19 of 36 at the stripe, however, while Bertie made good on 11 of 16.

"I thought that we'd shoot better at the line than that," Brewington said. "I thought that free throw shooting would be one of our strong points."

Brewington said he was surprised to shoot as well from the floor this early in the season. "I thought the potential was there, but not this soon. We just haven't played enough together as a team to see what we've really got."

Rose got the first two baskets of the night, jumpers by Eric Edwards and Walter Gatlin for a 4-0 lead, and Rose was never caught. Bertie closed to within two on a couple of occasions in the period, but a 3-pointer by Columbus Grice — one of five the Rampants sunk — opened the lead to five and Edwards hit at the buzzer for a 15-10 lead.

A 3-pointer by Shawn Moore, followed by two free throws by him and one by Dwight Sheppard, opened the lead to 21-10. Not long afterwards, Toure Claiborne scored off a rebound to give Rose its biggest lead of the half, 27-14.

The Rampants then carried a 33-22 lead into the half.

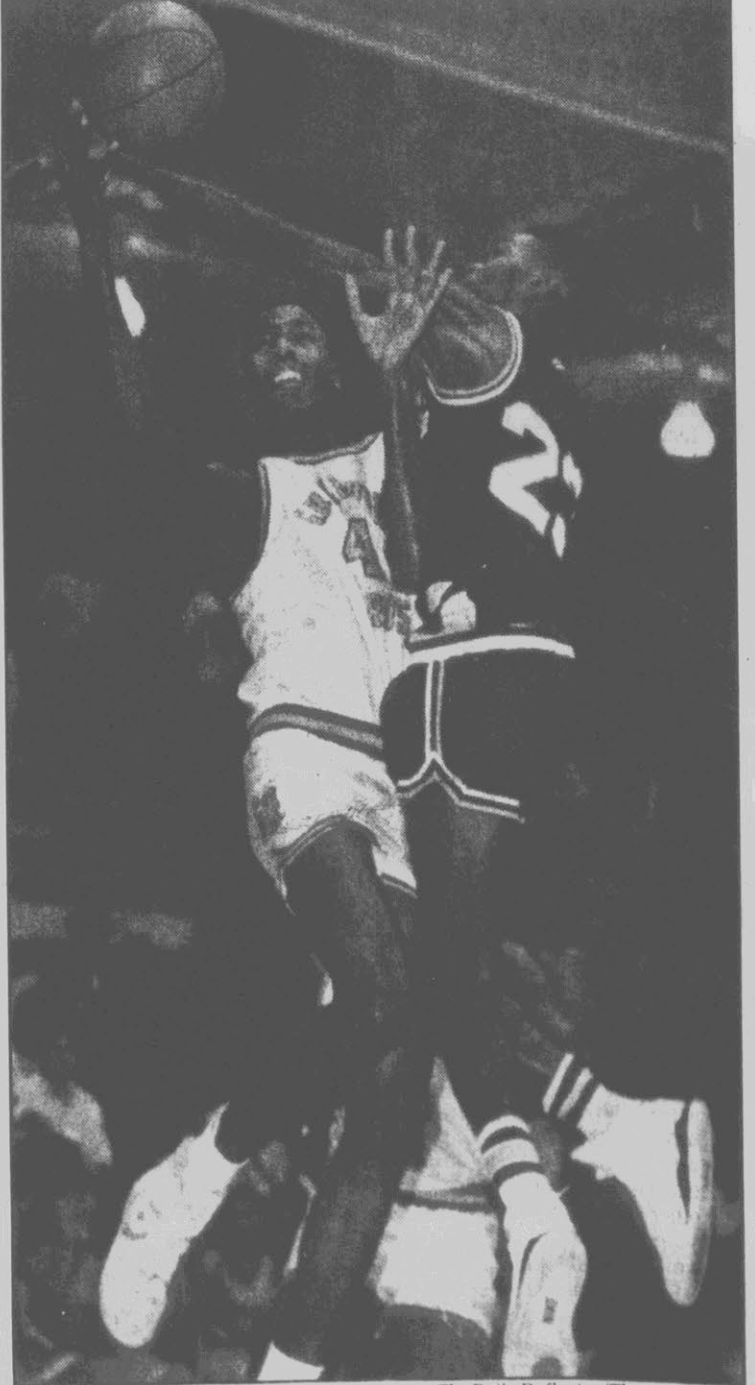

Bertie got as close as eight in the third period, but a closing string of

Methodist Jayvees Edge Pitt, 72-71

WINTERVILLE — A scoreless drought of four minutes to start the second half put Pitt Community College in a deep hole and the Methodist Jayvees held off a late rally for a 72-71 college basketball win at A.G. Cox Middle School Tuesday night.

Methodist led by as many as 11 points in each half. Pitt rallied to lead 33-32 at intermission, but never led in the second half. A 3-pointer with five seconds left brought PCC within the final margin.

Dave Tarantino, who knocked in three 3-pointers, Sean Cunningham and Amand Thomas scored 10 points each to lead Methodist.

Clayton Cherry poured in 20 points to pace Pitt, which was playing without starting guard Terry Warren due to disciplinary reasons. Sean Crawford added 18 points and Jeff Eakes scored 11.

Pitt hosts the Edgar Boyd Tournament this Friday and Saturday. Richard Bland faces Wayne Community College Friday at 7 while PCC takes on Rhinehart at 9.

Trickle Named NASCAR's Top Rookie

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Forty-seven-year-old Dick Trickle this week officially became the oldest Rookie of the Year in the history of NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing.

The driver from Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., who has won more than 600 feature races, most of them on the nation's short tracks, led most of the way and finished his first full-season in NASCAR's premier series with 295 points in the rookie competition sponsored by Champion Spark Plug Co. and Sears Roebuck and Co.

Trickle, driving for the Miller-Stavola Brothers team, was the highest finishing rookie in 11 of the 27 races he ran as a registered rookie. He had three third-place finishes, was fourth once and fifth twice.

"This is an honor we really worked hard to win," said Trickle, who will drive full-time next season for Cale Yarborough and Phillips 66. "When I joined with the Stavola team this year, we felt we had a shot at it if I stayed around the whole year."

Trickle joined the team in February as a substitute for injured Mike Alexander, who was a replacement for injured Bobby Allison. Alexander, who is expected to drive next year for a new team formed by Allison, was unable to come back to the Winston Cup circuit this season, allowing Trickle to become a full-time competitor.

"I felt like we were really well prepared every time we went to the race track," Trickle said. "The car really worked well all season long. These guys did a heckuva job in making us competitive week in and week out."

Trickle will receive a $20,000 check from Champion and Sears Friday night at NASCAR's annual awards banquet in New York City. He also will get $1,000 per race next season as part of the rookie award.

Woman Coach Gets Win In Opening Game

WILMINGTON (AP) — Wilmington Hoggard coach Sheila Boles knows they won't all be this easy, but she says it was nice to get her first season as men's basketball coach off to such a good start.

"I thought we had a pretty good chance of winning tonight, but I really didn't think it would be as big a margin," said Boles, who celebrated her first game as North Carolina's only woman coach of a men's varsity basketball team with an 81-45 victory over Fayetteville Terry Sanford.

"We got outstanding play from our guards. We moved the ball well and rebounded well. For the first game of the year, I was very pleased," she said.

The Vikings were sparked by guards Jimmy Godbey and Eric Blackburn and a defense that held visiting Terry Sanford scoreless for a six-minute stretch.

Godbey, the Vikings' 6-foot-1 senior point guard, finished with 21 points while Blackburn, also a 6-1 senior, scored 11 points, all in the first half when Hoggard built a 38-20 lead. Junior forward Darrell Stuckes added 10.

Bryan Allen, the 6-5 inside leader for the Vikings, was held to five points, but grabbed nine rebounds and came up with six steals. Allen got plenty of inside support from center Patrick Boykin and reserves Mike McDowell and Derek White.

"We were able to match up with Terry Sanford with our height," Boles said, "but it won't be that way most of the time this season. We just don't have a lot of height and we have to rely a lot on our guard play and our quickness."

Johnson, Cowboys Still Talking 'Bounty'

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Jimmy Johnson hopes his Dallas Cowboys can forget about Philadelphia long enough to play the Los Angeles Rams on Sunday.

They were still talking about the Buddy Ryan "bounty" incident at Valley Ranch on Tuesday.

Johnson, the Cowboys' coach, predicted the Eagles would probably get only a reprimand on the matter from the NFL office.

"I would anticipate a memorandum to the various teams in the league," Johnson said. "It's history. I know what happened."

Johnson charged that the Eagles coach put out a $200 bounty on kicker Luis Zendejas and $500 on quarterback Troy Aikman, with the payoff coming if they were knocked out of the Thanksgiving Day game the Cowboys lost 27-0.

Both Zendejas and Aikman were involved in altercations with Philadelphia players during the game and Johnson filed an official complaint on Friday.

Johnson flew into a rage after the game and questioned Ryan's integrity.

Ryan counter-charged that there was nothing to the incident and added, "I'm sure that his football team is not going to swallow all that high school Charlie stuff."

The Eagles and Cowboys play again in two weeks at Philadelphia but Johnson said he doesn't want his team to retaliate.

"I would discourage anything that would be a waste of time or that was disruptive," Johnson said.

Dallas owner Jerry Jones said by telephone on Tuesday that he was calling NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

"It's a good opportunity for the new commissioner to make a statement, an example," Jones said. "I agree with Jimmy that there's a 50-50 chance anything will come of it. It's something that is difficult to pin down."

Johnson said he wanted to switch the focus away from Philadelphia and to Sunday's meeting with the Rams in Texas Stadium.

"We need to get ready to play one of the best teams in the NFL," Johnson said. "We had some extra days off and I believe it helped us mentally. When you're losing the grind gets to you."

The Cowboys (1-11) will face the Rams and Willie Anderson, who caught 15 passes for an NFL-record 336 yards in a 20-17 overtime victory in New Orleans, without cornerback Issiac Holt.

Johnson said Holt will miss the game because of a leg injury. Also, fullback Broderick Sargent will be out with a pulled hamstring.

Miami Has Only Itself, FSU To Blame

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Miami will have only itself and Florida State to blame if a Sugar Bowl victory isn't enough to win the national championship, Coach Dennis Erickson says.

"We put ourselves in a position, when we lost to Florida State, that we have no control over whether we're going to be No. 1," Erickson said Tuesday. "All we can concern ourselves with now is winning the Sugar Bowl. Then it's in the hands of other people."

Asked whether he thinks Miami would deserve the national championship if it wins the Sugar Bowl and top-ranked Colorado loses to Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, Erickson said, "Yeah, I really do."

The Hurricanes (10-1) are ranked fourth, behind Colorado (11-0), Alabama (10-0) and Michigan (10-1).

Miami's last national title came in 1957. It is its third national title of the 1980s by beating Notre Dame 27-10 Sunday. The result dropped the Fighting Irish from first to fifth in the poll, and Miami moved up three places from seventh.

If Alabama beats Auburn on Saturday, the Crimson Tide will be Miami's opponent in the Sugar Bowl. If Alabama loses, Tennessee or Auburn might get the bid.

Erickson said he doesn't care who Miami plays. "If you have an undefeated team in there, it helps the game itself," Erickson said. "But I really don't have a preference."

Notre Dame Holds Computer Lead

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Notre Dame, despite losing to Miami this past weekend, continues to lead The Daily Reflector Collegiate Computer Rankings.

In fact, the Fighting Irish increased their lead in the rankings, which rate teams on their success against the strength of their schedule.

Colorado, which was ranked second last week and this, did not play over the weekend, having already finished up its schedule. In addition, few of the Buffs opponents, or the teams they had beaten played over the weekend also.

As a result, Colorado picked up only 72 points. Notre Dame, however, picked up 358 points as a number of the teams involved in its three-level schedule played and won.

Whether Colorado will be able to pick up enough points to catch the Irish — should it defeat them in the Orange Bowl on January 1, remains to be seen.

Notre Dame, now 11-1, finished the play in the regular season with 3,766 points while Colorado, 11-0, now has 3,186. There are still a few games remaining on the collegiate schedule to be played over the next two weekends.

Tennessee, fifth a week ago, moved up to third place. The Vols, 9-1, still have a game remaining, and has 2,970 points. Alabama, fourth last week, holds to that position with 2,942 points and is 10-0 with its final game with Auburn still ahead.

Clemson, third last week, slips to fifth place this week. The Tigers, 9-2, have 2,828 points.

Miami, with its win over Notre Dame, makes a big leap in the standings, moving from 17th to 6th place with 2,758 points. The Hurricanes are 11-1.

The rest of the top 10 consists of Virginia, Michigan, Florida State and Southern California, in that order.

Following are the top 25 teams, along with East Carolina, its opponents, and the other members of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

1. Notre Dame (11-1)	3,766

Henderson Inks Big Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball took another step back to the free-spending ways of the late '70s and early '80s when Rickey Henderson and the Oakland Athletics broke the three-year contract barrier that had been in place since 1985.

Henderson, the MVP of the American League playoffs, agreed to stay with the World Series champions for $12 million over four years. No club had given a contract of that length since Oct. 11, 1985, when Ken Oberkfell and the Atlanta Braves reached a $3 million, four-year agreement.

Lady Pirates Sock Aggies

GREENSBORO — East Carolina's Lady Pirates, led by recovering Sarah Gray, rolled to a 76-50 basketball victory over North Carolina A&T Tuesday night.

The Lady Pirates had little trouble in posting the victory, streaking out to a 33-14 halftime lead.

Gray, coming off arthroscopic surgery a few weeks ago, played 20 minutes in the game, scoring a team-high 16 points on seven of nine field goals.

Two other Lady Pirates also scored in double figures as Keeneya Wilson added 14 points and Tonya Hargrove got 14.

North Carolina A&T was led by Helena Creamer with 20 and Tammy Hammond with 20. Creamer also led the Lady Aggie rebounding with seven.

Overall, however, the Lady Pirates dominated the boards with a 35-24 advantage, led by Kim Dupree's six.

"It was a difficult game to play," ECU coach Pat Pierson said, "because of the fouls. We could not develop a flow." ECU was whistled for 23 fouls while the Aggies had 27.

ECU lost Hargrove on fouls and Sandra Grace finished the game with four. A&T had one player foul out and finished the contest with eight points, including a pair of 3-pointers by Moore and Grice, opened the lead to 53-37 at the end of the quarter.

Grice then hit a jumper to open the final period to up the lead to 18 at 55-37 before Rose finally went to its bench to finish off the game.

Edwards dumped in 19 points to lead Rose while Moore added 18 and Grice, 10.

"We couldn't keep Edwards on the floor last year because he was so weak," Brewington said. "But not this year. He's about 6-6, 220. I thought Shawn had a good game for us, too."

"For an opening game, considering that we don't have any starters back, we're about 65 percent of where I'd like us to be," Brewington added.

Bertie was led by Lester Lyons with 15 points while Corey Freeman had 13.

Rose, 1-0, travels to Eastern Wayne on Friday for its first road test of the year.

Most basketball coaches fall back on the old adage, "I'd rather be lucky than good," and Georgia Tech's Bobby Cremins took that notion to heart as the Yellow Jackets beat Richmond.

Dennis Scott scored 30 points and Kenny Anderson scored 24 points to lead the No. 21 Yellow Jackets, but they let a 13-point lead slip through their grasp in the second half en route to a 87-74 victory. That's where the luck came in.

"We got a couple of breaks," Cremins said. "Then Dennis got a couple of big three-pointers, but it was anybody's ball game. I didn't want it to come down to that."

Cremins said he "threw some people in there" with the hopes of breaking a 57-57 tie. It worked, but not without some anxiety on the coach's part.

"I thought with the inexperience that we would get ourselves in trouble," Cremins said. "Richmond just runs a tremendous offense. That was a very hard earned victory."

Anderson, Georgia Tech's highly touted freshman, also had nine assists and five steals. Yet, Georgia Tech (2-0) blew leads of nine and 14 points before finally putting the Spiders away.

Richmond coach Dick Tarrant said Anderson put his team in trouble.

"He creates tempo by himself," Tarrant said. "It's awful hard to control tempo against a team like this, that pushes it so well with such a fine point guard."

The Spiders have lost both their games this season to Atlantic Coast Conference opponents. North Carolina State beat Richmond in the opening game of the preseason National Invitation Tournament.

The ACC went 3-0 in its non-conference action on Tuesday. Clemson beat The Citadel 71-54, and Virginia stopped Samford 87-61.

At Charleston, S.C., Dale Davis scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as the Tigers pulled away in the second half. Coach Cliff Ellis said the Tigers and the Bulldogs weren't at full offensive speed.

"I think both teams played below par on offense tonight," Ellis said.

along with reserves Anthony Foreman, Hollis Harper and Lamont Parker.

Chief among the returnees are Lang, who recently committed to UNC-Charlotte, and forward William Carr, who was a mainstay on the team last year.

Guard Ervin Forbes and forward Chris Hunter saw considerable time last year as reserves and could move into starting spots. Johnny Tyson, a 6-8 junior, could open the season as the starting center.

Terrell has been philosophical about the season-opening delay, using it to try some different lineups and position changes.

"You have to work with what you have," he said. "I think this is going to help. William Carr has never played guard. Ervin Forbes has never played point guard."

"Once we get in the season, that's going to give us more experience at those positions. Morris Foreman is a heck of a basketball player and when he returns he'll be our point guard. This makes it possible to use Ervin or Morris at point guard. It's going to help us in the long run."

Terrell has also played Hunter at both forward spots while also using the 6-6 Lang and the 6-8 Tyson in the lineup at the same time.

"I feel like we have to," Terrell said. "Johnny is going to have to play if he's going to help us."

The Jaguars scrimmaged 3-A West Craven Tuesday and had little problem with the Eagles. Still, Terrell is trying his best not to get caught up in what the Jaguars accomplished last year.

"We cannot read last year's newspapers," he said. "We talk about that a lot. This is a different basketball team."

Spurrier To Wait Duke's Bowl Game Comes First

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DURHAM — Duke football coach Steve Spurrier said after a meeting with University of Florida officials that he will not make a decision on his coaching future until after Duke and Florida have played their respective postseason bowl games.

Spurrier met for nearly two hours Saturday at his home in Durham with Florida's selection committee: Athletic Director Bill Arnsparger, interim Florida President Dr. Robert Bryan and Dr. Nick Cassisi, a resident of Gainesville, Fla.

"I'm definitely planning on coaching the bowl game, just like I said last week," Spurrier said Monday night after returning from a news conference in Birmingham. "That wouldn't be good for anybody (to decide before the bowl game). That wouldn't be good for either side."

"It was just a general get to know each other thing. They're in a bowl game and we're in a bowl game. I want to coach the bowl game no matter what happens. So there's no need for any serious talks at this time."

Spurrier said a second meeting would be held in the next two weeks.

Duke meets Texas Tech in the All American Bowl in Birmingham, Ala., on Dec. 28. Florida faces Washington in the Freedom Bowl in Anaheim, Calif., on Dec. 30.

Spurrier would neither confirm nor deny that Florida made him an offer during the Saturday meeting.

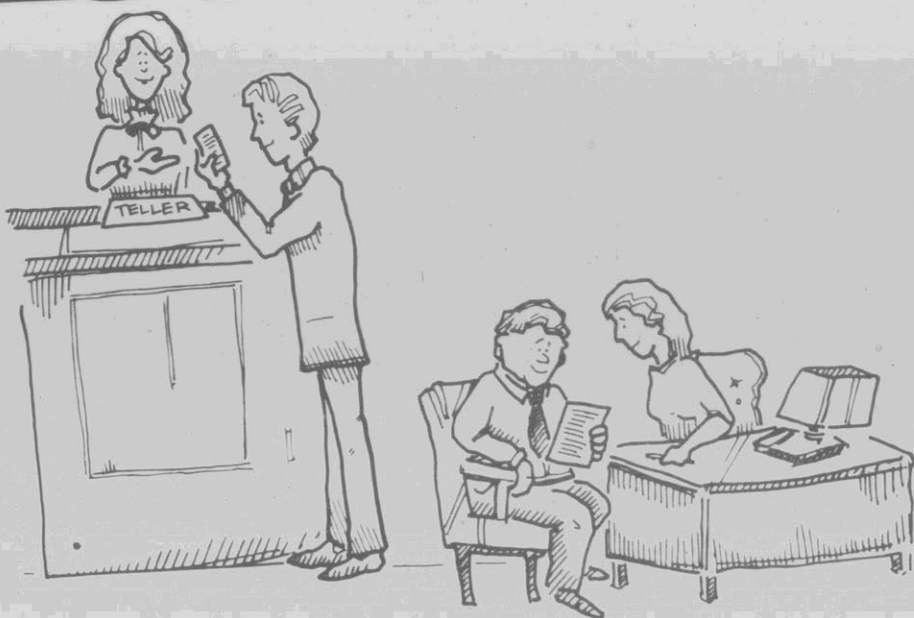

"You ask them all that," Spurrier said. "We just got to know each other a little bit and planned on getting together again in a couple of weeks and talk some more and see what happens. That was about it."

Florida officials have said Spurrier is their top choice to replace Galen Hall, who resigned at midseason following admissions of wrongdoing within the school's football program.

Florida is reportedly set to offer Spurrier a contract of $300,000 annually through a base salary, television show and endorsements. The Durham Morning Herald reported Tuesday, Spurrier is attractive to Florida not only because he has led Duke to a 20-12-1 record in three seasons, but also because he was the school's only Heisman Trophy winner, an honor he received following the 1966 season.

Duke discussed a renegotiation of Spurrier's contract last week.

Second-Half Drought Spoils Opener For Rampettes

Visiting Bertie held Rose scoreless throughout the third period and nearly half of the fourth in romping to a 58-35 girls' basketball victory Tuesday night.

Rose got off to a good start, but was unable to handle the Bertie press after the first period. After the first eight minutes, however, the Rampettes held an 11-8 lead.

But Rose folded shortly afterwards as Bertie came back to reel off 23 points in the second quarter while holding the Rampettes to 11. That pushed Bertie into a 31-22 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Bertie outscored Rose, 20-0, and zoomed out to a 51-22 margin. The Lady Falcons continued to increase their lead until just before the midpoint of the period when Rose finally connected and managed to cut the margin back slightly before the end. Georgia Cofield led Bertie with 20 points while Bond added 15. Rose was led by Jenny Stoneham with 11 and Elke Moore with 10.

The game was the opener for the season for both teams. Rose travels to Eastern Wayne on Friday.

BEAR GRASS — Senior center Janet Rodgers had 23 points as Bear Grass held off Plymouth, 43-42, in a non-conference high school basketball game Tuesday.

The Lady Bears led 31-28 after three quarters and held off a Plymouth rally in the final minute to gain the win and move to 5-0 on the year.

Joanne Ransom's 15 points led Plymouth.

Washington owned a 10-8 lead after one period, then stretched that to 26-19 by the end of the half.

Washington and Williamston then matched points the rest of the way, each scoring 10 in each of the last two periods.

Crystal Lupton led Washington with 18 points. Kim Hawkins had 13 and Schandra Moore had 11 for Williamston.

TERRA CEIA — Terra Ceia had little trouble in rolling up a 59-26 basketball victory over Greenville Christian Academy in girls' action Tuesday night.

Terra Ceia held Greenville scoreless in the first period of the game while scoring 17 of its own. Both teams pushed in 13 points in the second period, but that still left Terra Ceia with a 30-13 halftime lead.

Terra Ceia put the game away in the third period with a 12-1 advantage, running its lead out to 42-14.

GCA Comeback Bid Comes Up Shy, 70-67

TERRA CEIA — Greenville Christian made a valiant comeback but fell just short as homesteading Terra Ceia gained a 70-67 basketball victory Tuesday night.

Greenville inched out to a 12-7 lead in the first period, but got into foul trouble in the second quarter. The Knights held on, however, and went to the half in a 19-19 deadlock.

"Things seemed to fall apart for us in the third period," GCA coach Dale Thatcher said.

In that period, GCA fell behind 45-32. But in the final period, the Knights put Terra Ceia on the foul line time after time and the strategy worked as the host team missed on a number of shots, allowing GCA to rally.

GCA pulled within one, but was unable to tie it up or take the lead in the closing minutes.

Mark VanEssendelft led Terra Ceia with 36 points while Tom Van Staaldinen added 10 points. Bobby McLawhorn led GCA with 16 points while Ray Davidson and Marion Bagley each had 12. Billy Potter added 10.

GCA falls to 1-4 and will travel to Wilmington on Friday.

BEAR GRASS — Plymouth High School romped to a 79-46 victory over Bear Grass Tuesday night, handing the Bears their third straight defeat.

The Vikings jumped to an early lead, building a 21-12 advantage. Bear Grass was never able to get into the game after that.

Plymouth outscored the Bears, 25-7, in the second quarter, running its lead to 46-19 at the end of the half.

After that, it was only a question of margin.

Daniel Ransome led Plymouth's scoring with 17 points while Shawn Walker added 15. Scotty Blount added 10 more.

Stacy Hickman paced the Bears, now 1-4, with 17 points while Donnie Peaks had 10.

Claiborne Resigns

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Jerry Claiborne, whose Kentucky football teams have recently had more success in the classroom than on the field, has closed the final chapter on his coaching career.

"I want to be remembered as a guy who tried to do the best he could with what he had," the 61-year-old coach said Tuesday during a news conference to announce his resignation. "We tried to run a program that was within the rules."

Claiborne began his coaching career at Augusta Military Academy in Defiance, Va., in 1950, the fall after he graduated from Kentucky. Before coming back to Kentucky as coach, he was head coach at Virginia Tech and Maryland.

The recruiting side of football was the main reason he decided to leave coaching.

"The biggest thing was that I felt I had to go out and recruit and my heart wasn't into recruiting," he said.

He also said his wife, Faye, had wanted him to retire for several years.

"She was for this and I feel she's real relieved," he said.

He said he made the decision after a bumpy airplane flight to Youngstown, Ohio, Monday night, where he spoke at a banquet.

"The reason was as I looked forward to what I had to do as far as recruiting goes, being away from my family and doing the things I had to do to have a successful football program, I just did not feel up to it," the Hopkinsville native read from a prepared statement.

Claiborne had a 41-46-3 record in eight years at Kentucky.

"I've been crying most of the day," he said. "When you've been doing something for 40 years and all of the sudden it's time to get out of it, it comes pretty tough."

Claiborne said he had a "very emotional" meeting with his players when he told them of his resignation.

Kentucky athletic director C.M. Newton said Claiborne made the decision "on his own terms and at his own time." Claiborne was given a five-year contract just last season.

Newton said the remaining four years of Claiborne's contract would be honored and that he would be offered another position at the university and continue receiving his regular coaching pay.

Claiborne was fourth among active major-college coaches in victories with 179, trailing only Michigan's Bo Schembechler (234), Penn State's Joe Paterno (219) and Florida State's Bobby Bowden (194). His record of 179-122-8 ranked in the Top 20 for career winning percentage.

Kentucky led the Southeastern Conference in academic all-conference selections under Claiborne with 68, and the Wildcats won the prestigious College Football Association Academic Achievement Award last year for graduating 90 percent of their seniors.

"The criteria for a successful athletic program is that it be fair to the student-athlete, that it be in compliance with rules and regulations of the conference and NCAA, and be competitive," UK president David Roselle said. "Jerry Claiborne has lived up to that criteria and we are all in his debt, especially the young men who played on his teams."

Claiborne began his head coaching career at Virginia Tech in 1961. He was 61-39-2 in 10 years and took the Hokies to the Liberty Bowl in 1966 and 1968.

Following a year as an assistant at Colorado under Eddie Crowder in 1971, Claiborne took the top job at Maryland. In 10 seasons with the Terrapins, he was 77-37-3 record with seven bowl appearances.

Claiborne was named Kentucky's 31st head football coach on Dec. 16, 1981, and suffered through a 0-10-1 season the next fall. But the Wildcats rebounded to 6-5-1 in 1983 and 9-3 in 1984 and went to the Hall of Fame Bowl each year.

However, Kentucky had fallen on hard times since then, never winning more than five games a year until going 6-5 this season.

points. Freshman Lamont Graham had 15 points for South Lenoir.

The Lady Chargers could not crack South Lenoir's smooth-running offense for nearly three quarters, but a switch in defense made all the difference.

Trailing 37-28 with three minutes left in the third period, the Lady Chargers ditched its zone defense and switched to a man-to-man. The Lady Blue Devils would not score again from the field and managed only nine more points.

Ayden-Grifton reeled off 17 unanswered points to take a 45-37 lead with 5:41 remaining. Kelly Davenport ended South Lenoir's drought with a free throw 19 seconds later, but the Lady Chargers answered with five consecutive points for a comfortable 50-38 cushion.

"The whole key to the game is we got some offensive rebounds and we got a lot of turnovers in the fourth quarter," Lady Charger coach Joe Lawrence said. "Also, we got a lot of fast-break points."

Freshman Nikki Wilson, performing like a seasoned veteran, tossed in a team-high 17 points and raked in 14 rebounds. Junior Sheresse Wallace netted 16 points while Debbie Williams, Ayden-Grifton's only senior, added 14 points and 12 rebounds.

The Lady Chargers owned a 38-19 advantage on the boards.

Nikki Whaley, who knocked in 12 of 16 free throws, tallied a game-high 22 points. South Lenoir was 20 of 33 from the line after hitting its first seven attempts.

Ayden-Grifton continues non-conference play next Tuesday at home against 3-A North Lenoir.

Gandhi Gives Up Post

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi resigned today after five years in power, clearing the way for opposition leaders to try to form a government.

The opposition National Front's newly elected Parliament members planned to meet Thursday to pick the man they hope will replace Gandhi as prime minister.

The meeting had been scheduled for today but was postponed amid reported disagreements over who should be nominated.

Gandhi and his Congress Party have been gambling that the National Front would be hamstrung by internal squabbling, paving the way for Congress to return to power.

Former defense and finance minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh is the best-known leader of the National Front, the five-party alliance that deprived Gandhi of a decisive majority in the new Parliament in the Nov. 22-26 elections.

But the mild-mannered Singh, 58, has said he does not want to be prime minister and is content being the president of the Janata Dal, or People's Party, the major component of the National Front.

Another prominent Janata Dal member, Chandra Shekhar, said Tuesday he was ready to take the prime minister's job but some of his National Front colleagues were not enthusiastic about his candidacy.

"There will be trouble in the party if V.P. Singh is not elected prime minister. Efforts to persuade him to contest are continuing," said Jaipal Reddy, one of the Janata Dal's general secretaries.

"As of now, there is only one candidate," Reddy said. "Despite persuasion V.P. Singh is not a candidate and despite dissuasion Chandra Shekhar remains one."

Chandra Shekhar, 62, was a chief architect of the 1977 Janata Party election triumph that ousted Gandhi's mother and predecessor, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, from power for 29 months until her comeback in 1980. Most Janata Party members switched to the Janata Dal, which was formed in 1988.

The 1977 election was the only time in India's 42 years of independence that the Congress Party failed to win a majority in a parliamentary election.

This year, Congress got more seats than any other party but fell far short of the majority needed for a government.

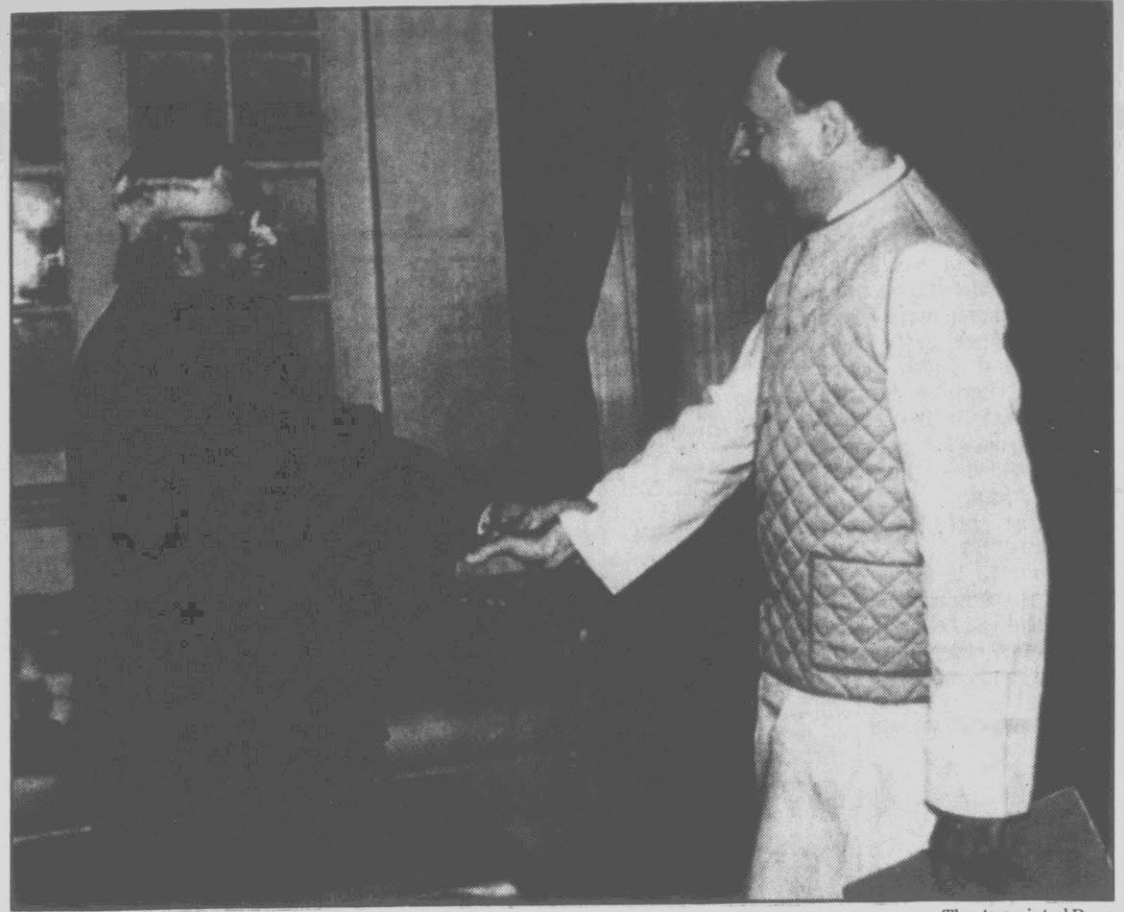

The National Front got the second-highest number yet was able to muster the tacit support of other opposition parties, prompting it to boast it would be capable of forming a government.

With 500 of the 525 parliamentary seats decided, the Congress Party had 190 and its small-party allies 17 for a total of 207.

The National Front had 130, and its allies had 132 for a total of 262.

It takes 263 seats for a majority in the Parliament, which is to convene with 525 elected seats. Another 18 seats are to be filled in elections that have been postponed indefinitely.

The rest of the seats contested this month went to small parties and independents, most of whom have not declared their support for either the Congress Party or the National Front.

Syrian Troops Prepare For Attack On Aoun

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Tank-led Syrian forces took up combat positions facing troops of Gen. Michel Aoun in and around Beirut today in apparent preparation for an attack to drive him from the presidential palace.

Aoun has refused to cede the palace to the country's newly elected president, who fired Aoun on Tuesday as Christian army commander.

The general ordered his 20,000 soldiers on maximum alert and fortified his defenses around the 310-square-mile Christian enclave.

Aoun does not recognize President Elias Hrawi, a Maronite Catholic like himself, and pledges to keep up his efforts to drive Syrian troops from Lebanon. Syria, the main powerbroker in Lebanon, supports Hrawi.

Moslem and Christian military sources said the Syrians deployed T-55 tanks in Beirut and T-62 tanks in the mountainous fronts.

Dozens of Soviet-designed T-55 tanks rolled into the slums of south

Beirut Tuesday night, taking up combat positions opposite Aoun's forces, said one military source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Residents of south Beirut, speaking on condition of anonymity, said fighters of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, withdrew from the various positions they had manned along the front line in that sector.

"Hundreds of Syrian soldiers moved in. The front in south Beirut is now fully controlled by the Syrians," said one resident.

The Syrians, according to military sources, also deployed mortars and recoilless cannons in south Beirut in addition to howitzers and multi-barreled rocket launchers in the mountains overlooking the city.

"It's a significant buildup, the kind of measures that precede a major battle," one military source said. The sources said the Syrian tanks were in combat formation. It seems they are only waiting for the orders.

He said Aoun's forces have planted thousands of anti-armor and anti-personnel mines in the valleys separating the Christian enclave from the Syrian positions.

Mines have been planted on all the bridges and narrow mountain roads linking the Christian enclave with the rest of Lebanon, the source added.

Aoun's forces also have deployed scores of anti-aircraft batteries around strategic locations to confront a possible landing of airborne forces.

Syria on Tuesday poured at least 15,000 troops into Lebanon backed by artillery, tanks and rocket launchers.

Hrawi on Tuesday fired Aoun and replaced him with Adm. Emile Lahoud, also a Maronite, who called on soldiers following Aoun to join the new command.

Aoun called Lahoud a deserter and vowed to fight to the death. The rebellious 54-year-old general refused to relinquish the presidential palace.

Aoun's mainly Christian forces battled the Syrians for six months before the artillery duels ended

Sept. 22 with an Arab League-brokered cease-fire.

He rejects a peace accord approved by Parliament last month that provided for greater Moslem participation in the government because it did not set a timetable for withdrawal of the 40,000 Syrian troops in the country.

The Syrian forces entered Lebanon under a 1976 Arab League peacekeeping mandate, then sided with the Moslems in the war.

Before the peace plan was adopted, Aoun and Moslem Prime Minister Salim Hoss had led competing Christian and Moslem governments for 14 months.

French envoy Francois Scheer today delivered letters from President Francois Mitterand to Hrawi and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Details of the messages were not officially disclosed, but the French Foreign Ministry said Paris "will not be on the side of those who would assume the responsibility of again taking up violence."

France, the Christians' traditional protector and colonial power in Lebanon until independence in 1973, stepped in to avert a new round of bloodletting in a 14-year-old civil war that has claimed more than 150,000 lives.

Scheer did not meet Aoun during his visit to Lebanon on Tuesday, reflecting France's declared stand of recognizing Hrawi's government.

A general strike called by Aoun's supporters continued in the Christian enclave for a second straight day as Christian youths kept up a flow of volunteers to field a human shield around Aoun's presidential palace.

Aoun, addressing his supporters late Tuesday, said any attempt by the Syrian forces to attack the palace will mean "liquidating the people and not just eliminating a general."

The protesters, estimated at about 15,000, erected tents and started several fires that glowed in the pine woods around the palace.

CORRECTION

In the Sears automotive advertisement you may have received in the mail, two automotive speakers are incorrectly identified. The description and prices given for the truck speakers and the Kraco speakers are switched. The FX95 speakers should be identified as the 100 watt, 2-way, truck speakers and priced at $99.99 per pair. The Kraco 6 x 9 inch, 3-way, speakers description and $19.99 price per pair should be where the truck speakers description is shown. We regret any inconvenience this error may have caused our customers.

E. Germans Reject Unity But Welcome Cooperation

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST BERLIN — Communist Party leader Egon Krenz strongly rejected Chancellor Helmut Kohl's call for an eventually united Germany but welcomed the West German leader's proposal for closer cooperation.

In a rare moment of agreement with the embattled Communist leadership, some prominent East German dissidents also said they opposed reunification.

After Kohl made his proposal on Tuesday, Krenz said a united Germany could conjure fears of a Nazi-era Germany. "and I know no one in the world who would like such a Germany."

Many Europeans worry that with its economic and political might, a reunited Germany of 80 million people would dominate the continent. Germany was divided into two states after the Nazi defeat in World War II.

The prospect of reunification seemed distant less than a month ago, but sweeping changes in East Germany have revived the idea.

With East Germans disillusioned with Communist rule fleeing in droves and taking to the streets by the hundreds of thousands, the party leadership ousted hard-liner Erich Honecker last month and launched a radical program of reforms with the promise of free elections.

The opening of the country's borders on Nov. 9 gave East Germans unrestricted freedom to travel to West Germany for the first time since the Berlin Wall was built in 1961.

Millions of East Germans have since visited West Germany. At demonstrations in recent weeks, some have called for reunification, an idea consistently rejected by the country's leaders.

Krenz emphasized the need for two "sovereign, independent German states."

"A unity of Germany isn't on the agenda," he told West Germany's ARD television network.

However, he did not rule out the concept of a confederation, or partnership, between the two Germanys, that Kohl promoted. Krenz said talk of such an arrangement "requires more time."

East German government spokesman Wolfgang Meyer said Kohl's proposal for eventual reunification went "beyond realities and could easily lead to irritation ... by not observing the sovereignty and independence of the two German states."

In a statement carried by the official news agency ADN, Meyer said relations between the two German states must be based on "mutual respect of sovereignty and territorial integrity."

Free Elections Likely

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — The country's beleaguered rulers pledged to bring non-Communists into the government this week, and a member of the ruling Politburo said today that free elections could be held within a year.

The Communist Party leadership agreed Tuesday to relinquish the party's claim to total power, the biggest in a dizzying series of concessions to an increasingly powerful opposition movement.

It also agreed to release some political prisoners and to lift censorship restrictions that have kept works by writers such as dissident playwright Vaclav Havel from being published.

Activists said they also won permission to publish a daily newspaper.

Opposition leaders continued to push for free elections, free speech and the freedom to form independent labor unions.

Today, Politburo member Vasil Mohorita was asked at a news conference if Czechoslovaks would be allowed the right to vote.

He responded that "first, it is necessary to change the laws." Asked if that was likely within a year, he said, "Most probably it will take place within a year. We don't want the monopoly of one party to continue."

Jazz Pianist Connick Takes The Fast Track

By Richard Harrington
LAT-WP NEWS SERVICE

It's only a few blocks from Georgetown's Blues Alley to the Kennedy Center Concert Hall. Harry Connick Jr. has made the trip from a one-night solo gig at the former to a concert this week with a 30-piece orchestra at the latter in less than two years, the musical equivalent of going from zero to 60 in 10 seconds flat.

It didn't hurt that the jazz pianist and singer, all of 22, was featured in the opening and closing titles of the hit movie "When Harry Met Sally ..." or that his video for the movie's theme song, "It Had to Be You," went into heavy rotation on VH-1. Both factors have helped propel his soundtrack album for "When Harry Met Sally ..." to the top of the jazz charts and into the pop Top 40, a status jazz albums rarely attain.

It also didn't hurt that the debonair Connick has such strikingly good looks and sharp fashion sensibility that many feel this Harry would have made a much better romantic foil for Sally than Billy Crystal. With his slyly innocent eyes and slicked-down, swept-back pompadour, the fresh-faced Connick not only croons like a young Frank Sinatra, he looks like him and evokes the supple swagger and charismatic demeanor of Sinatra's bobby-soxer heyday. He's even beginning to provoke the same fan reaction, notably among young women.

Connick's also partial to classic fashion — loose-fitting suits, slouch-shouldered jackets, pleated trousers, skinny ties. If he's stepped out of a dream, it's an old dream, one with a soundtrack much like "When Harry Met Sally's" — standards from the golden age of American popular song by masters named Gershwin, Arlen, Porter, Carmichael and Ellington.

"It's not like I'm going back to be retro," Connick said a few days ago from Los Angeles, where he was preparing to participate in an all-star tribute to "Grammy Living Legends."

"People seem to be forming this incredible coincidence between the hair-care products I use, the clothes I wear and the music I play," he grumbles. "And they're three completely different things." For instance, at this very moment, Connick says, he's wearing "bluejeans, a T-shirt and leather Converse high-tops. I don't have anything in my hair, and it's flapping in my face."

Obviously, this is not the image that has earned Connick spreads in GQ, Elle, Seventeen and Cosmopolitan, or gotten him on a round-the-clock television roll that includes "Today," "CBS This Morning," "Tonight" and "Late Night," as well as selected midday and afternoon programs, or eased him into a featured role in "Memphis Belle," a World War II film that is producer David Putnam's first project since leaving Columbia.

If some folks are having a hard time keeping track of Connick's upward mobility, he himself suggests that "the faster things move, the faster people are exposed to the music that I love, jazz music."

And jazz music, Connick insists, has always been the bottom line.

"Of course I want to make a living, I want to make money and all that stuff — I'm not going to lie or be a martyr about it all. But I want to die knowing that people are checking out this American music. It's not all about 'I Want Your Sex.'"

It's certainly not a case of Connick being a neo-romantic arriviste, or the latest great white hype. He grew up in the fertile musical environment of New Orleans, where his father has been district attorney since 1973 (he has made news this year with his effort to enforce a 134-year-old state law that bans abortion under any circumstances).

Connick's mother, who died in 1981, was a judge in small-claims court. Both encouraged toddler Harry, a pianistic prodigy whose first public performance came at age 5, a "Star-Spangled Banner" that enlivened his father's swearing-in. A year later, Connick Jr. started to sit in with Dixieland bands on Bourbon Street — under the watchful eye of Connick Sr., whose employees were arresting prostitutes on the strip. "He would periodically pop into the clubs to check on me because we just happened to be on the same street, for different reasons. I'm sure the fact that he was down there was one of the reasons he let me work there to begin with."

By age 9, Connick had his union card and his first album, recorded with musicians five and six decades older than himself. Two years later, with another album under his belt, he was asked by Buddy Rich to go on the road, but Connick's parents insisted he finish elementary school.

His teen-age years — this is not very long ago, remember — were a balance of jazz and classical studies: classical studies at Tanglewood and with Betty Blencoe, whose son, Keith, would end up producing Connick's CBS debut; theory studies at the New Orleans Center for Creative Arts with pianist Ellis Marsalis, father of Wynton, Branford and Delfeayo (Wynton would get Connick signed with CBS and Delfeayo would produce Connick's second album). Between classical and jazz competitions, and personal boogie-woogie tutoring with New Orleans legend James Booker, Connick even found time to play with a funk band, Dr. Delf and the Killer Groove.

At 18 he moved to New York, playing any style of music in any place that would hire him. At one point he was playing covers in a nightclub on weekends while serving as a church organist and choir director, which made the Saturday night-Sunday morning shift long but interesting.

By this time, Connick was delving deeply into the great stylists he first started exploring at 16 back in New Orleans. "As a kid, I was listening to whatever everyone else was listening to; then I really started concentrating on Thelonious Monk and Erroll Garner, and it was only two or three years ago that I started listening to the great singers — I mean listening to them to learn from them, as opposed to just enjoying their music."

On the piano side, it was an eclectic group that ranged from Orleans masters like Professor Longhair and James Booker to innovators like James P. Johnson, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Art Tatum, Fats Waller, Earl Hines and Duke Ellington; they remain the building blocks of his piano style. "I want to be the best, so I'm going to listen to the best," Connick explains. "If I want to be a boxer, I'm going to look at Tyson and Ali, not at the guys they beat up."

The dual influences are crucial, Connick says, because "I do more than one thing. I can go and play, as I have in the past, hours of just instrumental music. I can go and do a show of just vocal music. They're completely different things. Although I obviously have a long way to go before I master either of them, I do enjoy doing both of them. When I sing 'But Not for Me,' I wouldn't call it jazz. It used to be called popular music — I just call it all swing music, and I call the piano stuff jazz, and I love to do 'em both."

It's refreshing that Connick sees himself as still very much the student and in no way a peer, understands that acclaim is not necessarily a reflection of accomplishment, and insists he hasn't been around long enough to fully absorb these masters' contributions, much less develop his own style.

"I wouldn't have made it 40 years ago, I wouldn't have even had a gig," he says. "And now I'm like the Wunderkind? Come on, give me a break. That's really a sad state of affairs." As for a Connick style, he suggests patience. "How much contribution did Pops (Louis Armstrong) make before he was 30? Or Duke, or Monk? You don't hear a lot of them on record before that age. I'm only 22."

Connick's Columbia debut, a strictly instrumental jazz album, garnered strong reviews. Critics were impressed that such a young player (he was 19) could be so rooted in classic piano styles, particularly those that featured a strong, rhythmic left hand. The vocals first appeared on Connick's follow-up, "20" (his age at the time), and they dominate the "When Harry Met Sally ..." soundtrack.

Artist Arch Manning says pastel portraits are his favorites, next to silhouettes

The Art Of A Family Man Arch Manning Is At Home With His Work

By Carol Tyer
THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Arch Manning loves art. He loves literature. Most of all, he loves his family.

Once, he wedged art projects among teaching and family responsibilities and felt conflict between the demands of his work as an educator and being home with his family. Though he liked his work, he chafed at leaving his family and at having art work wait while he was out of town setting up migrant education programs for the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

Today, he no longer longs to be home. He is there almost all the time. And he's equally happy whether in the kitchen or in his studio that doubles as a guest room. He now can spend much of any day painting, drawing, doing calligraphy or cutting silhouettes. In 1983, he made the decision to take early retirement.

He put behind 32 years in public education — 20 years as a classroom teacher and 12 as a consultant on the education of migrant farmworkers' children — in order to be home with his own children and pursue his art.

He's now home almost all the time. He does go out to teach, however. He conducts Pitt Community College adult education courses in portraiture, and calligraphy two days a week at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Community Building. And he teaches Sunday School at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Preparing home-cooked meals for his wife and sons is absolutely as important to him as pursuing his artistic and religious interests. And he cherishes the quality time he has with each of them.

"I married late," Manning said, "at age 39. So I guess I appreciate my family more than many people do."

His eyes sparkle as he speaks of his wife of 21 years. "It took a gorgeous Cuban to sweep a confirmed bachelor to the altar," he said.

The Daily Reflector/Thomas Forrest

Manning enjoys making family meals

Raquel Tano Manning came to Greenville in 1963, soon after exiling herself from Cuba. She left her native land, her husband said, when it became clear to her that Fidel Castro was a Communist and a dictator. Though she adores her homeland, she has never returned.

"We vacation in Central and South America — often in Costa Rica," he said. "It's beautiful, similar to Cuba, my wife says. And Raquel's been to Spain."

"We both love the Latin culture and our boys have learned to love it, too. But right now it looks unlikely any of us will ever spend time in Cuba."

Mrs. Manning, according to her husband, is "the best Spanish teacher at East Carolina University." She's been a faculty member 26 years.

The Mannings' sons are Eric, 19, and Edwin, 17. Eric attends East Carolina University. Edwin is a senior at Rose High School.

Arch and Raquel Manning have always encouraged their sons to speak Spanish as well as English, and to honor their mother's Latin-American culture. The encouragement worked, apparently, because when they were young teen-agers, the boys told their parents they wanted to be renamed Manning-Tano. Their parents hired a lawyer and had it done.

Mrs. Manning's parents, both now deceased, lived for several years in Greenville and Papa Tano, then in his early 90's spent the last two years of his life in the Manning home. Mama Tano, who cared for her grandsons when they were small, spoke only Spanish to them.

As much they want their sons to take pride in their Latin-American ties, the Mannings also want them to appreciate their Martin County roots.

Manning grew up in the Farm Life community near Williamston. He and his twin sister Beatrice were the youngest of the six then-surviving children of Eddie and Lena Manning.

"I've pruned my share of tobacco," he said, "and I admire my brother John who farms the family land near Farm Life. But I always knew I wanted to do something else if I could."

"My father sent Bea and me both to East Carolina. He wanted me to major in business, but I was a bust at that. After my first business law course, my business professor Dr. Elmer Browning told me he thought I ought to choose another major."

"I then went into what I'd loved all along — English and art. And I did a lot of theater work, in college and in my years of teaching. My art's handy in set-making and costume design."

Manning loves silhouette-making. He paints some of his figures, but he especially likes those he creates with scissors. "I've loved using scissors for as long as I can remember," he said.

"I remember my mother hanging her big sewing scissors on a nail almost at our 10-foot ceilings. She did that trying to keep them out of my little hands."

But I'd always find a way to get them. My brothers and sisters say now you could always tell where I was by the trail of cut paper I left behind.

"I think silhouettes are getting more popular again now," he said. "And if I have my way, they will. I'm pushing them just as hard as I can, because I love doing them — both portraits and good strong outlines that tell a story."

He likes drawing better than painting. "I have combined the two," he said, "doing pastels. I call it dry painting. I've always been fascinated with faces — so pastel portraits are my favorites next to silhouettes."

Manning said, almost as much as he liked teaching drama in high school, he enjoyed bringing out the poet in as many of his students as he could. And now that he's retired, he continues to write poetry himself, often entering, and sometimes winning, regional competitions.

Apple Blossoms Beautify Pillow

Apple blossom season can be any time of the year with this enchanting counted cross-stitch pillow. Beautifully shaped apple blossoms and leaves are entered on a 14-inch square, surrounded by a simple embroidered border that strongly resembles a fine crocheted doily. The entire pattern is worked from a graph on a 14-count Aida cloth. To give it a professional finish, use cording around the edges when you put the pillow together.

If you don't have any spare time in the next few weeks, think about ordering the leaflet or kit now so you'll be ready to start when the post-holiday doldrums set in.

To obtain directions for making the Apple Blossom Pillow, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-112689 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-address envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. N-112689 by sending a check or money order for $15.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and all materials required to make this kit. The pillow is worked in soft apple blossom shades of pink, green and white on pale green Aida cloth.

Available now — new book! "A Collection of Afghans" for $8.95.

I've had many letters from readers asking about the afghan stitch, a form of crochet, which is also called Tunisian crochet.

The afghan stitch creates a very firm and durable fabric that is an ideal background for decorating with cross-stitch designs. The special hook used to work this crochet stitch looks just like a straight knitting needle with a hook instead of a point on the end.

To begin this fascinating stitch, make a chain of any desired length with worsted-weight yarn and a size H hook. The special, longer afghan hook is necessary when you have a chain of more than 15 to 20 stitches, but you can use a regular crochet hook for a small practice swatch. Be sure to wrap a rubber band around the end of the hook so our stitches don't slip off.

In the basic afghan stitch, you will always see the rows listed in two parts — the first and second half. Notice that directions are given for only two rows, with Row 2 repeated over and over throughout the project.

Let's start with a chain of 16 stitches. For the first half of Row 1, insert the hook into the top loop only of the second chain from the hook, draw up a loop and leave it on the hook. Repeat these steps in each remaining chain, for a total of 16 loops.

Row 1 — second half: (A) Catch the yarn with the hook and draw it through one loop. (B) Catch yarn and draw it through two loops on hook. Repeat Step B across to the end of row. At the end, you will have one loop on the hook. This loop is the beginning of the next row.

Row 2 — first half: Insert hook under the first vertical bar. Catch the yarn and draw it through, leaving the loop on the hook. Continue drawing loops in this manner across row. It is important that you insert the hook through both vertical loops on the last stitch of the row. You will see that there are two vertical loops if you look at the piece from the side edge.

Universal Press

Pattern is cross-stitched onto 14-count Aida cloth

Row 2 — second half: Work the same as for the second half of Row 1. Repeat both halves of Row 2 for the desired length.

The number of loops on the hook at the end of the first half of a row will always be the same as the number of chains you make. As you work, check to be sure that you are maintaining the same number of loops. Also, you will always be working from the right side, as you work first from right to left and then from left to right.

After you have repeated Row 2 a few times, you will notice that each stitch has a vertical — or upright — bar. In following a cross-stitch chart to embroider a design, each symbol on the chart will represent a cross-stitch to be worked over one of these bars in the color denoted by that symbol.

The cross stitches are worked in the holes on each side of each bar. Do not pull stitches too tight. Work all first stitches of cross slanting to the right and all second stitches of cross slanting to the left for uniformity.

Gifts Require Special Thought

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Dear Readers: Well, it seems as though we just finished polishing off the Thanksgiving leftovers, and it's time to start shopping for Hanukkah and Christmas gifts again.

Because it's been such a tragic year for those who lost their homes in Hurricane Hugo or the San Francisco quake, you may want to spend less on gifts in favor of sending money to the American Red Cross. And now we have another concern — the poor and homeless.

However, if you plan on sending holiday gifts, let me tell you what not to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa who doesn't get around much anymore.

Forget the cologne, after-shave and dusting powder. Chances are, they have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.

Grandpa doesn't need another paisley necktie, and Grandma doesn't want any more bracelets, brooches or earrings. With the price of groceries going through the roof, older people who live alone on fixed incomes would appreciate a basket of practical goodies. How about small tins of tuna, chicken and ham? Also, crackers, instant coffee, tea, soup mixes and cookies.

People who live in confined quarters do not need more "things," so don't send music boxes or bric-a-brac. And don't send articles of clothing unless you're sure the size is right. Leisure (or "warm-up") suits are comfy and easy to launder. Older folks love them.

Some truly useful gifts: an assortment of postcards, some lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. And enclose some felt-tip pens.

Another suggestion: a variety of greeting cards for all occasions. They might want to send someone a nice birthday, anniversary or graduation card. Don't forget get-well cards, condolence cards and "congratulations on the new baby" cards.

Should you be tempted to recycle a lovely, but useless, gift still in its original box, make sure the card to you is not still in the box.

Never give a pet to anyone unless you are absolutely certain that person wants a pet and is able to care for it properly. And if you want to make a hit with someone who has a pet, send a little holiday gift (a tin of dog or cat food) along with a gift for its master.

Don't give wine or liquor to people unless you are sure they imbibe. A thoughtful idea: a gift subscription for a magazine or newspaper you know they will enjoy. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make beautiful gifts for people who aren't counting their calories, but have a little compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation. Also bear in mind that some older folks have difficulty chewing nuts and caramels.

Another good idea for those living alone on a fixed income: a gift certificate for some kind of service such as window washing, carpet cleaning, taxi rides, barber shop, beauty parlor or dinner or lunch at their favorite place. And (don't laugh) a gift certificate entitling them to a trip to the podiatrist. Because medication is no small item these days, a gift certificate from the neighborhood pharmacy would be very much appreciated. Trust me.

Holidays can be depressing for people who are alone — loneliness is the ultimate poverty. So if you know someone who could use an outing, give him or her the best gift of all: an invitation to have a meal with you and your family.

If you "ain't" givin', you're not livin'.
Love to you and yours, Abby

Pacesetters' Fund-Raiser Begins

ECU NEWS BUREAU

A major fund-raising campaign on behalf of East Carolina University's Performing Arts Series got under way Tuesday.

The campaign was initiated at a late afternoon reception at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Richard Eakin. It is the first formal activity undertaken by the Performing Arts Pacesetters, a new community-based support group.

Mrs. Eakin is a member of the Pacesetters' board of directors. The board is chaired by Ilene Entin Cox. Other members are Pat Carlson, Peg Hardee, Susan Lewis, Sherryl Mercer, Dr. Theodore Muchiteni, Dr. Dennis O'Neal and Jon Shaw.

ECU liaison for the group is Stuart Sector, marketing director in the ECU Department of University Unions.

While contributions of all sizes will be solicited by Pacesetters volunteers, three major categories of gifts will be recognized by engraving of the donors' names on an "inaugural plaque" to be placed permanently in the main foyer of ECU's Wright Auditorium.

Either donor individuals' or businesses' names may be engraved on the plaque, or donors may specify the name of someone they wish to honor with a memorial gift.

These categories are Gold Circle (contributions of $1,000 or more, name engraved on a gold plate), Silver Circle (contributions of $500-$999, name engraved on a silver plate) and Bronze Circle (contributions of $250 to $499, name engraved on bronze).

All contributors will receive a 10 percent discount at Pacesetters concession tables, first priority (and early seating choice) on Performing Arts Series season tickets and other specified benefits, Sector said. Gifts to the Pacesetters campaign are tax deductible.

The Pacesetters organization was formed in midsummer as an auxiliary of the ECU Performing Arts Series. Its functions will include fund-raising, ticket subscription drives and sponsoring of social activities for Series patrons.

All season subscribers to ECU's Performing Arts Series are automatically granted membership in the Pacesetters.

The Pacesetters hosted a reception prior to a performance by the Beaux Arts Trio earlier this fall. In February, the group will arrange a "progressive dinner" to follow the February performance of "Dream Girls" and a gala reception at the Itzhak Perlman concert in April.

Among the purposes of its fund-raising are purchase of several necessities for Wright Auditorium, ECU's premier concert hall, helping with the expenses of arranging Performing Arts Series events and establishment of an endowment fund.

Seventy percent of all contributions will be deposited in the endowment fund, with the remaining 30 percent earmarked for immediate needs.

"The Performing Art Series has presented quality performances for many, many years," said Mrs. Cox, Pacesetters board chairman.

"With the costs continually on the rise, the ability of the Department of University Unions to maintain and enhance the offerings has been stretched. It will be the main focus of the Pacesetters to alleviate the strain in this area."

The Performing Arts Pacesetters auxiliary operates in conjunction with the ECU Foundation, Inc. The Foundation receives and manages private gifts to the university.

Manning Is Keeping His Hand In Teaching

Calligraphy, an art form he has taught himself since college, combines well with his poetry. He often commits short verse to the page in his pretty script.

For calligraphy and drawing, especially, morning is his favorite time of day. "I pursue my more exacting tasks just as soon after rising as I can," he said. "My hand's steadier then. And, having talked to a lot of other artists, I find this is true of just about everybody."

The only morning he's likely to leave his studio is Tuesday. That's when he teaches portraiture.

"Old teachers never die," he said. "I love helping other people develop their art skills almost as much as doing an art work myself.

This few hours a week of teaching helps me keep my hand in teaching. I hope I can always do it."

A showing of Manning's art work in several media is under way and will remain through Dec. 8 in the upstairs gallery of the University Frame Shop, 516 S. Cotanche Street. A reception for Manning will be held in the gallery from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Friday.

Analyst Becomes Actor In 'Crimes And Misdemeanors'

By Hillel Italie
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Here's a diagnosis of Woody Allen's "Crimes and Misdemeanors," courtesy of Martin S. Bergmann, a therapist for more than 40 years and clinical professor of psychology at New York University:

"You have a very successful physician (Martin Landau), who is starting an affair where he doesn't know what he's getting himself into. He doesn't show you at any time what the mistress (Anjelica Huston) really meant. We really don't understand what she once meant to him, nor do we understand what the marriage means to him.

"Then you have the character of Clifford that Woody Allen represents, who is kind of idealistic but very unsuccessful. He falls in love with this woman (Mia Farrow) and eventually she, too, disappoints him.

"You have to ask yourself not whether it makes sense in an isolated event, but whether it makes sense in the framework. I must say it does make sense. There is a kind of Chaplinesque idea there — that life is very mysterious and you are a very small man."

Very perceptive for a man who knows more about analytic couches than casting couches, but what business does a psychiatrist have rating films? In this case, plenty.

Actors have played therapists, notably Ingrid Bergman and Gregory Peck in Alfred Hitchcock's 1945 thriller "Spellbound," and Montgomery Clift starred as John Huston's "Freud." Now an analyst has turned actor.

In a major breakthrough for the psychiatric field, Bergmann makes his film debut in "Crimes and Misdemeanors," portraying the kindly Dr. Levy, a philosopher of love and the subject of a documentary Clifford is producing.

Although an admirer of Allen's work, Bergmann wasn't looking to be in the movies. His "discovery" came through an unexpected connection. A student, who knew Allen's casting director, recommended Bergmann for the part.

"He (Allen) took me to a room and asked me questions," Bergmann recalled. "He wanted me to talk. He wanted me to talk about love, death and religion. I spoke about all of these topics for an hour and a half. He used a few excerpts in the movie."

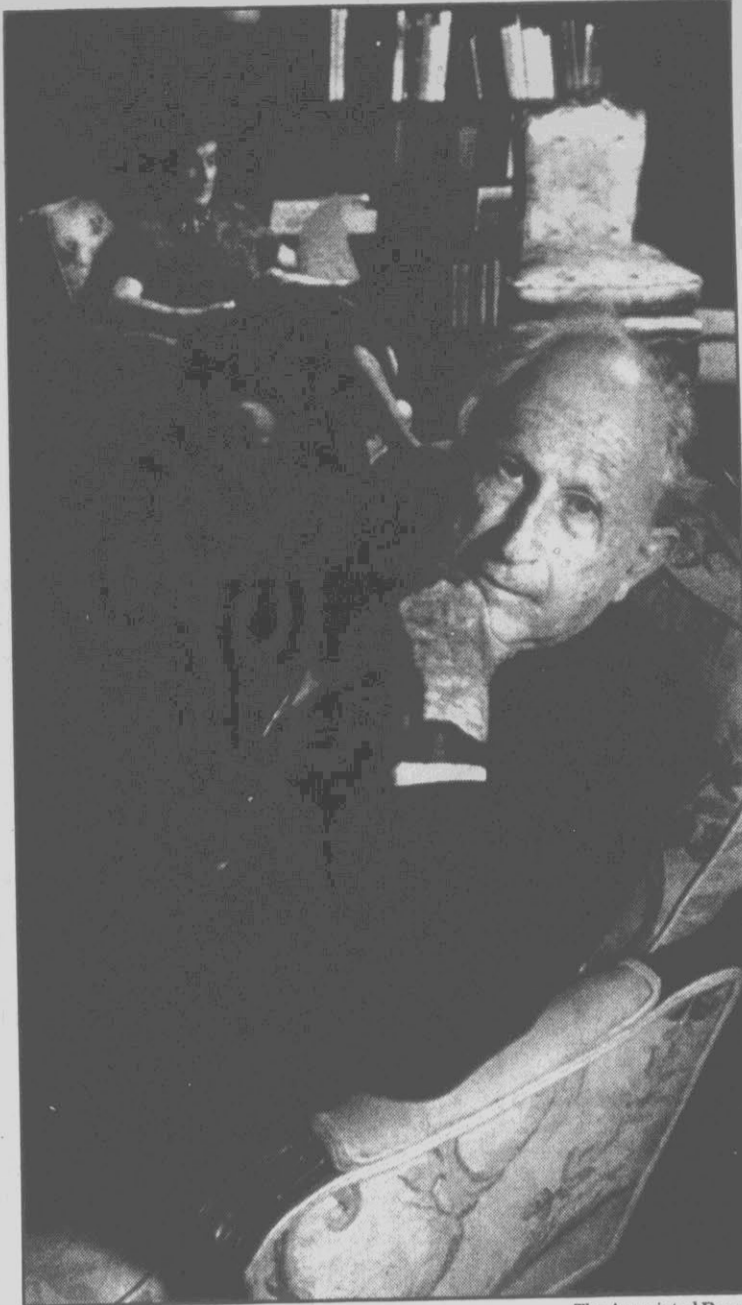

He only worked on the set for half a day and actually filmed a few scenes that were cut from the final release. One segment, in which Bergmann and Allen were to have a philosophical conversation while walking through Central Park, was cut because of cold weather. Another was scuttled because of a misconnection between the film world and academia.

"I was supposed to teach a class on the Holocaust," Bergmann said, "but there I was, trying to ask questions and all the students were dummy actors, who were not supposed to answer questions. I am accustomed to an exchange and none of my questions were picked up."

Psychiatry is his profession, but Bergmann really has read enough to qualify as a doctor of love as well. He's even written a book, "The Anatomy of Love" ($14.50, Columbia University Press), an academic's attempt to examine how the great thinkers of the ages have tried to make sense out of an emotion that seems without logic.

"Literature on love originated in Egypt 3,500 years ago, and the metaphors which the Egyptians used are still our metaphors now: love as a sickness, with the beloved as a physician. That love is a trap, they had already developed. Metaphors persist unchanged.

"Plato believed that we were once one person, that some of us were men and women, some of us were only women, and some of us were only men. We were cut in half and each half yearns for the other."

The Associated Press

Martin S. Bergmann poses in his New York apartment

Bergmann was born in 1913 in Czechoslovakia, lived in Israel in the 1920s and '30s and began practicing psychiatry when he emigrated to the United States after World War II.

He's a fan of movies, but warns against taking them too seriously. There are no Clark Gables in real life, no Cary Grants — not even any Dr. Levys.

"We begin life kind of living in fantasy; we acquire reality only slowly and relinquish our world of fantasy only slowly. Long before movies were ever invented, the adjustment to reality was a very slow process because we have to accept limitations, and limitations are always painful.

"So we reserve a domain called fantasy in which we are still king and where our wishes can be met. Then come the movies, and it's on the screen. So it's no longer in the head, it has a quasi-reality. For many people it is full reality."

How To Gripe And Get Some Action

CHANGING TIMES

You're steamed because the dry cleaner ruined your favorite suit and won't pay for it. The cleaner blames the manufacturer. The perfect gift you found in a mail-order catalog never arrived, but your canceled check did. And the bank-card charge you never made and won't pay has landed you on half a dozen deadbeat lists. What to do?

More often than not a calm, factual phone call or letter solves the problem. But when it doesn't, you have alternatives.

The Mail-Order Game: Have you paid for mail-order merchandise that has never arrived? Here you've got real firepower on your side: the Fair Credit Billing Act. To be in a position to invoke this law, charge all mail-order purchases to your credit card, advises Changing Times magazine. If your purchase doesn't arrive within 30 days or the time period specified and you've been billed, your card issuer will either refund the charge or investigate.

You must contact the issuer within two billing cycles. If there is an investigation, it is up to the retailer to prove it actually sent what you ordered. If it cannot prove delivery, the issuer cancels the charge. Meanwhile, you needn't pay the disputed charge or any interest on it. If the issuer decides the bill is correct, you have the right to dispute the decision. The issuer can take you to court to get its money.

Even if you didn't pay by credit card or you waited too long to complain, you can contact the Direct Marketing Association's Mail Order Action Line (6 E. 43rd St., New York, NY 10017). The DMA mediates complaints and says it resolves most of them within 30 days.

Stubborn Billing Errors: The Fair Credit Billing Act applies to department-store credit as well as bank cards, but there is less leverage when the credit issuer and retailer are one and the same. Eran Newman, of West New York, N.J., was billed repeatedly for a $94.40 charge made on a Saks Fifth Avenue credit card he had reported stolen, and his letters did not convince Saks the signature wasn't his. He was turned down for two other credit cards after Saks reported his account delinquent to three credit bureaus.

Two years later Newman joined Bankcard Holders of America (460 Spring Park Place, Suite 1000, Herndon, VA 22070; $18 a year), a non-profit consumer group that mediates disputes between its members and their creditors. A letter from BHA prompted Saks to restore Newman's account to good standing.

Another consumer protection, the Fair Credit Reporting Act, could have minimized the damage to Newman's credit report. Under the FCRA, you can write to the credit bureaus involved (the retailer must supply their names) and demand to review your credit reports. There is no charge if you have been denied credit within the past 30 days. The credit bureau must investigate any errors you allege and, if it finds in your favor, must send a corrected report to anyone who has received the original version in the previous six months.

Taken to the Cleaners: When a dry cleaner won't reimburse you for a stretched sweater or a spotted suit, a consumer agency or Better Business Bureau can send the garment to a lab for analysis to determine who is at fault. The International Fabricare Institute in Silver Spring, Md., analyzes garments cleaned by its 11,000 member dry cleaners.

There should be little difficulty getting an IFI-member dry cleaner to pay if an analysis shows that the cleaner didn't follow the directions on the label. But a garment that is poorly dyed, not preshrunk, or mislabeled (it says "dry clean" when it really should be washed) should go back to the manufacturer. Include a copy of the report and ask for a refund.

If you're feuding with a small shop that is not an IFI member and won't submit to mediation, you may have to air your laundry in small claims court. Expect a small claims case to cost you time off from work and a filing fee of up to $30. If the garment wasn't worth enough to go through all that, try complaining loudly to the owner, ideally when the store is full of customers.

Once Necessity For Clothes, Feed Sacks Return For Fun

COUNTRY AMERICA

Sacks of feed filled a uniform need during the penny-pinching days of the Great Depression. There was no shame in wearing a bag and brightly colored feed sack clothing peppered school playgrounds.

When silks and sprigged-cotton calico were scarce during the rationing of World War II, Country America magazine reports, inventive American housewives turned feed sacks into everything from tea towels to trousseaus.

"Now," says one of the original feed sack seamstresses, Gladys Nichols of Fontanelle, Iowa, "people use them for fun." And for fancy, too.

Until the 1950s, sugar, cotton, beans, flour and feed were sold in bags made from cotton fabric. American ingenuity — like that which invented the light bulb and the cotton gin — converted these bags into the necessities of life.

They were sewn into clothing and other household items. Sack fabric was used and used again as folks struggled to make ends meet.

Margaret Parsons of Forest Park, Minn., gave a sugar coating to one of the original "Sugar Babies." She made rompers for a baby sister from 10-pound sugar sacks by cutting holes in two corners of the sack, binding its raw edges and adding a bib and straps.

Frugal women struggled to remove the company logos from the sacks. They soaked, bleached and boiled the bags and hung them in the sun. Even then, traces of ink were often still visible. But in the days of making do with what one had, nothing was thrown away.

When bag companies began to manufacture sacks in brightly colored, printed cotton, rural America bloomed as it never had before in paisleys, plaids, florals and border prints.

"Getting cotton sacks was the only pretty thing we had to look forward to during World War II," says one farm wife. One sack had vibrant purple plums printed on the front.

Farmers' wives and kids contributed their two cents in choosing several hundred pounds of chicken feed from an assortment of bags. After all, they'd be wearing them sooner or later.

Jive Bunny Is Hopping Onto The American Charts

By Mary Campbell
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — We've already had Rudolph, the Chipmunks and the Raisins.

Now hopping and bopping to our shores from the north of England comes a creature with — it's a compliment in the music business — ears.

He's Jive Bunny.

His first record is "Swing the Mood," which sounds a lot like Glenn Miller's "In the Mood." The beat is what's happening now, in clubs whose dancers have parents too young to remember that Glenn Miller and swing were once the world's dance music.

"Swing the Mood" has hit No. 1 in nine countries — Britain, West Germany, Finland, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Australia and New Zealand. It's the fastest selling record in four years in Britain.

As Jive Bunny comes to the United States, his creator, John Pickles, comes with him, visiting Atco Records, doing the talking for his rabbit frontman and handing out plastic carrot ballpoints to nose-twitching journalists.

He says the reason "Swing the Mood" is such a big success is that the older generation likes the Glenn Miller sound, people his age like the nostalgic rock that's mixed into it, teens like the dance beat and kids like the bunny.

Pickles always wanted to be in show business and now, at 47, he is. His father, a Yorkshire miner, became ill and couldn't work, so young Pickles left school and got a job in an electrical shop before he was 15. He bought it at 25 and still has it — "retail and repair, domestic."

He also has been a frequent master of ceremonies and after-dinner speaker. "I've always been involved in a lot of things. I'm a nutter that way."

Pickles, who drew up his own Jive Bunny contracts, sounds the opposite of a nut case or "a simple boy from Yorkshire," which he terms himself. He's proud that the artist who drew Jive Bunny and the company that made 20 heads, for appearances by the finger-snapping, dancing rabbit, are Yorkshiremen. He's determined not to move from Rotherham to London.

And if his novelty lapin goes down the burrow as fast as he shot up, Pickles can cope. "What's important to me is being happy and content. Money doesn't make me tick. It's nice to have financial stability but it's not the be-all and end-all. I like to have a good time."

Pickles' son and two daughters from his first marriage — Matthew John was born to Pickles and his second wife Oct. 18 while "Swing the Mood" was No. 1 in England — used to like bedtime stories he made up. So he has written some Jive Bunny stories in rhyme. Publishers, TV and stuffed toy makers have shown an interested whisker.

The tale of Jive Bunny began when Pickles bought and revamped, in 1983, a going-out-of-business recording studio where he used to record songs he composed. He named it Music Factory. "I was reminded by my bank manager it was an expensive hobby. I decided to make it a money-making hobby."

In 1986, after much negotiating for a license with the agency representing United Kingdom record companies, he started Mastermixer, a service to disc jockeys in dance clubs, the second such business in England. It built to 1,500 DJs across Europe. This year, Pickles decided to put dance mixes — they're spliced from existing recordings — on the general market.

He looked through mixes on hand to see what might sell. Pickles came across one by Les Hemstock, an Englishman living in Norway, one of eight mixers working for him. Pickles flew him to England and paired him in the studio with his 20-year-old son, Andy, to polish it for a six-minute, 12-inch dance record.

"It took them five days to create 'Swing the Mood' and took me four months to clear all the tracks. Nobody understood what I was talking about when I'd say, 'I want to license 20 seconds of your record,'" Pickles said in an interview.

Even "In the Mood," used as underpinning for "Swing the Mood," gave Pickles trouble. It was recorded in Glenn Miller style by the John Anderson Band, which he couldn't find. Eventually, he discovered it in Northern Ireland, operated by two men who had day jobs and owned their own, obscure record label.

Pickles' mixers use machine-made drum loops. Vintage music had human drummers. "You've got to keep varying the tempo (of the old music)," Pickles said. "It can take six hours to get a 20-second link so it matches our back beat."

He's horrified at the suggestion of using another human drummer. "That wouldn't work! We've taken the good old tracks and given them a today's feel."

Pickles cogitated, decided the record needed a frontman. Andy snapped his fingers and proclaimed, "Jive Bunny."

The younger Pickles had labored in his father's electrical workshop where one man called everybody "Bunny." They called him "Jack Bunny."

Pickles phoned an artist friend: "I want a rabbit. He is hip. He is today. He is cool." Jive Bunny was born.

"We all know how much money can be lost in the record pressing business," Pickles said. "I pressed up 2,000 records, gave 1,000 to disc jockeys, sold 1,000 in Europe to agents I've got out there and went on holiday for two weeks, in May. When I got back everybody in Europe was crazy for 'Swing the Mood.' I released it in July hoping it'd get into the Top 75."

Its second week it was 31. Two weeks later it was No. 1, where it stayed five weeks.

Followups were needed. The second single by Jive Bunny and the Mastermixers is "That's What I Like" using "The Twist." Chubby Checker has done some voiceovers for the company. The John Anderson Band was commissioned to record "Hawaii Five-O" music. "Jive Bunny, the Album," to be released here in December, has eight mixes made from 70 recordings. Pickles will take "Hopping Mad" off the album, add some Christmas music, and release it in England as "Let's Party."

Bookmakers are betting it'll be a Christmas favorite, Pickles says, and the record isn't created yet. Jive Bunny, whose Father Christmas suit is on the drawing board, isn't worried.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Confusion with friends over finances now needs to be carefully straightened out. A bigwig coming into your home will improve conditions there.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get into your mutual obligations with members of your household. Take your attachment out to mix with more people.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): An interesting person will come to visit you in your home. Avoid an argument with friends over a business matter.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Being of service to a friend will bring you an excellent reward. Money will now come to you from duties already performed.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Getting away from your home for awhile will bring some welcome change. Don't expect a family member to arrive on schedule at your home.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Don't allow yourself now to be too tied down to your residence. A surprise visit will bring your attachment much pleasure today.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): There will be an atmosphere of excitement at your home today. Communication to younger friends will be helpful to you now.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Stick to activities with friends in the outside world. Using too much energy at home will wear you out now.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): New opportunities of a financial nature will be bobbing up all about you. Don't argue with your family over a trip to see a close companion.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can have much trouble if you try to force a business matter. Accept more graciously newcomers from a distance as friends.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Be more diplomatic in your decisions with business persons now. Invite and entertain very active friends in your home today.

 In most column hands, declarer plays in a game or slam. However, even lowly partscores can produce fascinating struggles, as this hand from a rubber bridge game testifies.

While we do not quibble greatly with North's pass, we would have bid our six-card spade suit. But then we would have had nothing to write about.

West got the defense off to a splendid start by leading the jack of spades, covered by the queen and taken by the king. East shifted to the queen of hearts, which declarer ducked, and continued with the jack. Declarer won and, with no fast entry to dummy, chose to lead a trump to the queen and East's king.

If East now reverted to ace of spades and another, declarer would simply discard his losing heart while West ruffed. So that defender continued hearts. West won and returned a spade to his partner's ace. The time was ripe for a third round of spades, which guaranteed a second trump trick for the defending side, regardless of whether declarer ruffed high or low.

At the table declarer chose to ruff with the eight. West overruffed and carefully exited with his remaining trump. The defenders still had to come to a club trick for a one-trick set.

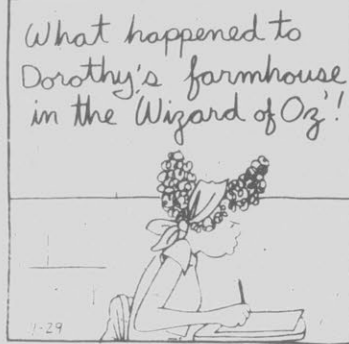

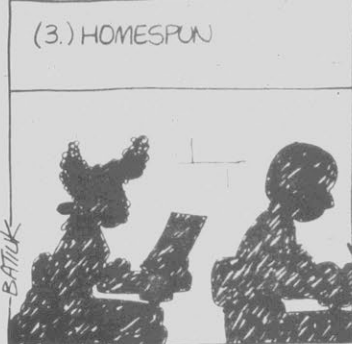

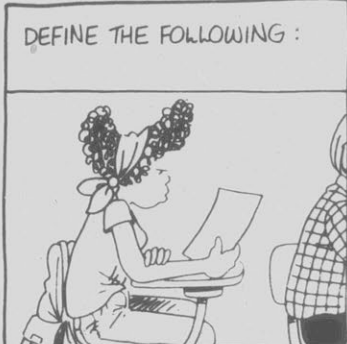

Note how prettily East-West timed their defense. The second trump trick takes its label from sporting events—a promotion. It is difficult to think of a better moniker.

Thanksgiving

By Adam Donawerth

The Pilgrims were not happy because they did not like the king's rules. So they went on the Mayflower to America and made their own rules. They met Indians and made friends. They showed the Pilgrims how to hunt. They had a big feast to show thanks. That's how we got Thanksgiving.

How The Crow Got His Brains!

By Matthew Ferguson

When the birds of the world were given their talents by God, he told them to line up so he could bless them and send them to earth.

The birds lined up and God began to bless them. Each bird received something special to make them different from all of the other birds. Some had beautiful feathers. Some strong and powerful voices. Some beautiful voices. Some were good hunters. Some had to rely on their wing power to escape from their predators. The line of birds was very long and somewhere near the front was the big black crow. Now the crow was always talking to the other birds and he never could keep his place in line. He started out at the front of the line. But, by the time he finally got to God, the crow wound up at the very end of the line. The crow thought all of the other birds had taken all of the really good blessings.

The crow told God "I am big, black, ugly, loud, clumsy and dumb. No one is going to like me now." The crow felt so bad that God told him, "Don't feel so sorry for yourself. I am going to give you a wonderful talent. You will be the bird that all of the other birds will remember because of your brains."

To this day, the crow has always been the smartest bird known to man. He isn't afraid of humans and he really seems to enjoy trying to outsmart man at any time. Scarecrows in corn fields don't scare the crows at all. In fact, they like to steal parts of the scarecrows because they are bright and some parts are shiny and they like bright and shiny things.

Entertainment

No longer do horses race at the track near West End Circle in Greenville. No longer do cornet bands or traveling shows perform at Skinner's Opera House or Perkins' Opera House. Entertainment has changed for the citizens of Pitt County.

Today the county has a variety of recreational offerings for its citizens. Sports, the arts and civic activities are available throughout the county.

East Carolina University offers various sports for spectators. Football, basketball, baseball, track and swimming bring nationally ranked teams into Pitt County. A complete offering of sports is made by ECU. Additionally, local high school teams provide a chance for participation as well as for spectators' cheers.

Local recreation and parks departments in many of the towns of Pitt County provide sports from Little League to activities for senior citizens. Greenville's recreation department has a complete aquatics center and a teen club.

If a citizen is interested in the theater, several little theater groups use local talent. ECU has an artist series and theater series during the school year. In the summer, the ECU Summer Theater brings professional talent to perform. A number of dance studios are available for study in the county.

For those who are interested, the citizens of Pitt County have movie theaters, the Boy's Club, athletic clubs, scouting organizations and 4-H available to them. In addition, each fall the county fair is held. Local parades and festivals are held in many of the county's towns.

Hunting, fishing, and boating are available throughout Pitt County. River Park North provides outdoor activities and a scientific study area for the public.

Libraries and museums in many Pitt County communities offer a variety of activities. Special reading groups or artistic showings are available to citizens.

During the summer, Greenville has a Sunday In The Park music series. Also, Greenville has a day long Fourth of July celebration.

Pitt County citizens have within the county such activities as bowling, golf, roller skating, horseback riding, civic clubs, garden clubs and book clubs. Some of the activities cost a fee; however, many are free or at a low cost. All a citizen of Pitt County has to do is inquire. A group which interests them may already be operating waiting for them to become a part.

Food A Part Of Traditions Of Hanukkah

By Gloria Schwartz
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, means "dedication" in Hebrew. During the eight days of the celebration, Jews rededicate themselves to their traditions and keep alive the remembrance of the struggle for religious freedom.

Hanukkah (also spelled Chanukah) commemorates the remarkable victory of a small band of Jews over the powerful Syrians in 175 B.C.

The Jews had been forbidden to follow their religion by a new Syrian king, Antiochus IV.

An honorable man and a priest, Mattathias, was approached by the king's soldiers and asked to fulfill Antiochus' orders. Mattathias refused. Other men were sought to give homage to the king's idols. One was finally found, but Mattathias struck him down.

One of Mattathias' sons, Judas Maccabeus (called the Maccabee), became the commander in chief of the Hebrew army and led the people into battle.

That they defeated the Syrians is a miracle in itself because the Maccabees were outnumbered. Another miracle happened, too.

After the battle, Judas, his brothers and all loyal Jews went to rededicate the temple in Jerusalem. When the people gathered to celebrate the rededication, however, only one small jar of holy oil could be found to light the eternal light. The small jar should have burned for one only day, but a wondrous thing happened — it burned for eight days. In remembrance of this great occasion, Hanukkah is observed for eight days.

Many non-Jews think Hanukkah is equivalent to Christmas or that they are somehow related. The only similarity is that they are celebrated around the same time every year.

Hanukkah is celebrated by lighting an eight-armed candelabrum called a menorah. The menorah contains places for eight candles, and a ninth candle, the Shamash, raised above the others. The Shamash is used to light the other eight candles, each representing a night of Hanukkah.

The candles are lit from right to left and must be allowed to burn to the end. Prayers are spoken, songs are sung, gifts are given to the children and games are played. A favorite game, spin-the-dreidel (a four-sided top), is played.

Food has always been an integral part of Jewish holiday celebrations.

In ancient times, a goose was the centerpiece of the first evening meal during Hanukkah. Its rich fat content symbolized the extra oil that kept the temple lamp burning. Today anything fried in oil symbolizes that important event.

The most traditional Hanukkah food in America is the potato latke, a potato pancake. In Israel, sufganuyot (jelly doughnuts) are eaten.

"We hang banners around the house, play dreidel and eat lots of latkes," Nancy said.

"Hand grating probably gives the latkes the best texture," she said, "but it's not worth the bruised knuckles or the time."

"Now I don't even peel the potatoes. It's easier," she said.

She serves latkes with applesauce.

They are also wonderful with sour cream for lunch.

Marcelle Parienti is originally from Sousse, Tunisia.

"Hanukkah is not celebrated the same way over there," she said. "We had dinner, lit the candles — but it wasn't such a big deal as (in this country)."

The following recipes are but a sampling of the foods served during this holiday full of symbolism.

EDIBLE DREIDEL

- 1 marshmallow
- 1 toothpick
- 1 Hershey's kiss

Thread the toothpick through the marshmallow. Add the kiss to the end.

From "The Children's Jewish Holiday Kitchen" by Joan Nathan.

As Nancy Chesley mentioned, potatoes for the latkes can be grated in the food processor.

If you do not have a processor, use large potatoes to grate. As the potatoes are grated, put them in cold water. This reduces the exposure of the potato surface to air, which causes darkening.

Excess moisture should be extracted from the potatoes before frying. To do this, simply wring the shredded potatoes in a clean towel over the sink. Do this, of course, before adding the onion, egg and matzo meal. Removing excess moisture also prevents the batter from sticking to the pan while cooking.

The batter will darken if it stands too long. Though the taste of the latkes will not be affected, they may be somewhat less attractive. It is best to prepare the batter just before cooking.

It's better to make successive batches instead of doubling the recipe and letting the batter sit.

If you want to do the frying ahead and serve later, you may. You can fry them in the morning, keep them covered in the refrigerator and then reheat them in a very hot oven in one layer just before serving.

You can also freeze latkes. Flash freeze them in one layer. Reheat them in a hot oven until warmed through.

LATKES CHESLEY

- 3 cups potatoes, grated
- ½ tsp. baking powder
- 2 eggs (large)
- 1 grated onion
- 2 tbsps. matzo meal (available in most grocery stores)
- Oil for frying

Squeeze excess moisture out of potatoes, add rest of ingredients except oil. In large, heavy frying pan heat some oil. When hot, drop potato mixture by scant ¼ cup into 4 mounds, 3 inches apart.

With pancake turner, flatten each mound to make a 4-inch pancake. Cook until golden brown on one side. This should take about 4 minutes. Turn and brown on other side. Remove to paper towel-lined cookie sheet to drain: keep warm in low oven until all latkes are cooked.

Temperature of oil is important. If oil is not hot enough when you add potato mixture, oil will be absorbed by potatoes and they will be greasy. If oil is too hot, outside will brown too quickly and inside will be underdone. Watch closely and adjust heat accordingly.

Serve with applesauce. Yields 24.

BRISKET ROSE SCHWARTZ

- 1 (4-lb.) beef brisket
- 1 stalk celery
- 1 carrot
- 1 very large onion, or 2 smaller ones
- 1 garlic clove
- 3 sprigs parsley
- 2 tbsps. salad oil, plus 1 tsp. oil
- Salt and fresh pepper to taste
- 2 allspice berries (do not leave out)
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tbsps. tomato paste or ½ fresh tomato
- Optional: 4 oz. stale beer or 4 oz. beef broth or 4 oz. red wine

Using steel blade of food processor, chop celery, carrot, onion, garlic and parsley together into fine dice. If doing this by hand, chop finely. Set aside.

Cut excess fat off meat, wash and dry well.

In large heavy electric frying pan or large, heavy Dutch oven, heat 2 tablespoons oil. When very hot, add meat and sear over moderately high heat until well browned on both sides. This step should take at least 10 minutes. Do not omit searing. It is crucial in making an excellent brisket.

When meat is browned, remove to plate. Add additional oil, lower heat and add vegetables. Cook vegetables lightly, pour off excess fat. Place meat over vegetables. Add spices and some salt and pepper. Add optional liquid. As you can see, very little liquid is required. The meat itself will give off liquid. Add tomato paste, cover and cook.

You can either cook it in oven (around 300 F), in electric frying pan or on top of stove. Turn meat occasionally. Cooking time will vary a bit, but it should take at least 1½ to 2 hours.

Everything will get very brown. That's fine; if meat is sticking to pan, add a very small amount of stock, wine or water. The temperature should be watched. It should not be high enough to burn the meat, but it shouldn't be too low, either.

The meat is done when fork can pierce meat easily at its thickest part. At this point refrigerate the whole thing.

When meat is cold, remove from pan; remove any excess fat. Using very sharp knife, slice on the diagonal into thin slices. Reheat liquid, adding a bit of stock if there isn't sufficient liquid; then add meat and heat it through until hot. If you can find bay leaf, remove before serving. Yields 8 or more servings.

Family recipes aren't written down but instead are handed down from mother to daughter, so Marcelle didn't have exact amounts for the following recipe. I approximated quantities.

Fried Foods Are Important To Celebration

By Lorna J. Sass
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Hanukkah, known as the Festival of Lights, is one of the happiest of Jewish holidays.

When it begins at sundown Dec. 22, Jews all over the world will light candles or oil lamps to commemorate a miracle that occurred in the ancient Temple of Jerusalem some 2,000 years ago. At that time, one day's worth of oil burned for eight full days just after the Jews — headed by Judas Maccabeus — defeated their Syrian enemies and regained entry into their holy temple.

To commemorate the holiday, Jews traditionally cook with oil, creating delectable fried foods of all kinds. The type of fried food depends upon geographic location and family tradition.

Jews of Mediterranean ancestry favor deep-fried doughnuts of various sizes, shapes and fillings.

According to Fannie Engle, author with Gertrude Blair of "The Jewish Festival Cookbook" (Warner, 1966), cheese pancakes were favored by many Jews before potato latkes took center stage.

Legend has it that Judas Maccabeus entertained a Syrian general by providing him vast quantities of cheese. The cheese made the general thirsty, causing him to drink an excessive quantity of wine and thereby making his capture possible.

In some Northern European countries where Jews settled, it became difficult to obtain cottage cheese for pancake making during wintertime. As a result, Jewish cooks sought a worthy substitute for Hanukkah celebrations and found it in the potato.

Here is a variety of pancake recipes ideal for celebrating Hanukkah. To quote a well-known advertisement, "You don't have to be Jewish to enjoy them."

Here is a classic recipe for potato latkes adapted from the lavishly illustrated new cookbook, "The Jewish American Kitchen" by Raymond Sokolov with recipes by Susan Friedland (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, $40.)

POTATO LATKES

- 6 large Idaho potatoes, about 8 oz. each, peeled
- 3 medium onions, peeled
- 4 eggs, lightly beaten to combine whites and yolks
- ¼ to ½ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. salt, or to taste
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Peanut oil for frying

Grate potatoes using the largest holes on 4-sided grater. Or, if using a processor, dice first and then process with steel blade in spurts, to prevent producing a gluey puree. With each potato, grate or process half an onion.

Transfer grated potatoes and onions to a sieve placed over a large bowl. Press out excess moisture with wooden spoon and transfer vegetables to another bowl. Pour off all liquid from first bowl, leaving behind potato starch that settles at bottom. Add starch to grated potatoes and onions.

ture. Then beat in just enough flour to make a light batter. Add salt and pepper.

Heat ¼ inch of oil in large heavy skillet. For each pancake, drop about 2 tablespoons of batter into oil and flatten with the back of a wooden spoon. (The flatter you make the pancakes, the crisper they will be. Some people prefer thicker pancakes with a soft interior.)

Fry about 2 minutes on one side, then turn and fry for 30 seconds or so on other side. Don't crowd pan with too many pancakes or they will become soggy.

Remove finished pancakes with spatula, draining them over skillet, and place on paper towels. Keep drained pancakes warm in 200 F oven while you fry the rest, replenishing oil in skillet as needed.

Serve as soon as possible, with sour cream and/or applesauce. Yields about 40 (3- to 4-inch) pancakes.

An imaginative cheese pancake suitable for commemorating the ingenuity of Judas Maccabeus.

JUDY ZEIDLER'S ZUCCHINI AND CHEESE LATKES

- 6 medium zucchini, grated
- 3 eggs
- 5 green onions (scallions), thinly sliced
- ½ cup chopped parsley leaves (no stems)
- 2 tbsps. chopped fresh mint leaves (or ¾ tsp. dried)
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella, Gruyere or Swiss cheese
- 1 tsp. vegetable oil, plus oil for frying
- 1 to 1½ cups all-purpose flour (or substitute half whole-wheat pastry flour)
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

In large bowl, combine zucchini, eggs, green onions, parsley, mint, cheese and 1 tablespoon oil. Add just enough flour to give the batter body, but not enough to make it thick. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

In large skillet, heat ¼ inch oil. With tablespoon, spoon zucchini mixture into hot oil and flatten with back of wet spoon. Cook on both sides until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Reserve cooked pancakes in 200 F oven until all pancakes are done. Yields 3 to 4 dozen.

Adapted from "The Gourmet Jewish Cook" by Judy Zeidler; Morrow; $22.95.

MOLLIE KATZEN'S SWEET POTATO PANCAKES

- 1 packed cup grated (peeled) sweet potato
- 1 packed cup grated (peeled) white potato
- Salt for sprinkling
- 1 cup grated carrot
- 4 beaten eggs
- ½ cup whole-wheat pastry flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Juice of ½ lemon

Survey To Help Assess Teen-Age Health Problems

Dear Readers: Since I have been in Greenville, I regularly get questions about how to cope the eating habits of teen-agers. Parents ask how to deal with young girls who are too concerned about their weight or about teens who don't pay enough attention to their weight and become obese. Parents ask about the advisability of the newest diet regimen that a coach has encouraged a son or daughter to follow.

There are many health concerns beyond diet that parents and health professionals have about teen-agers. Last year I teamed up with Dr. Tom Irons, a local pediatrician and now associate dean of the medical school, and many other Pitt County concerned citizens to address teen-age health issues. As I mentioned, the health issues include nutrition but go beyond nutrition. So today I ask your indulgence to talk about an issue a little broader than nutrition.

The East Carolina University School of Medicine will soon begin a telephone survey of adults in Pitt County. The telephone survey is designed to learn public opinion concerning the health problems faced by Pitt County teen-agers. Interviewers will ask a scientific, randomly selected sample of Pitt County residents about their ideas about the kinds of programs that could effectively deal with teen-age health problems in Pitt County.

The goal of this survey and of many other programs of the School of Medicine is to assess teen-age health problems accurately and reduce them. One important step in this process is to ask community residents how they feel.

"This survey is one important way that we are seeking community input" Irons said. "This is the first step in developing effective programs that fit in with the values of the community."

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

The survey is being conducted by the Regional Development Institute. People will receive a letter before the survey interviewer contacts them.

"We want to make every effort to let people know that this is a legitimate scientific research project and not just another sales pitch," said

Mack Simpson of RDI. "I hate junk phone calls don't want anyone to mistake this important scientific survey for one."

People who have their telephone numbers listed in the telephone book will be contacted first by letter and then by telephone. People who do not have telephones or who have unlisted phone numbers will also be contacted by letter. These people can call the Regional Development

Survey Center and complete a telephone interview, or a trained survey interviewer will come to their home for a personal interview.

This is a broad-based effort. Not only is the School of Medicine working with the Regional Development Institute but many other ECU faculty interested in teen health are involved.

"Survey research has come a long way in the last 30 years," said Kenneth Wilson (ECU Sociology Department) who is working with the Regional Development Institute on the survey. "Today, scientific researchers know the importance of treating the people who answer their questions with respect and confidentiality."

This survey is designed to determine how Pitt County residents feel about some very important public issues. We are very grateful to every one who gives 15 minutes of their time to let the scientists in the School of Medicine and public officials of Pitt County, know how they feel.

"Of course, we will protect everyone's right to privacy by keeping their identities confidential," said Dick Brackett of the Regional Development Institute. "It is very important to us that people feel completely free to give us their frank and honest opinion. We know that people will be trusting us and it is important to me that we live up to this obligation."

I hope you'll be willing to give your thoughtful responses to the interviewers if they call. We thank you.

Sundaes Are Real Events

By Melanie Barnard and Brooke Dojny
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

A bowl of ice cream makes a wonderful treat, especially if eaten on the sly late at night, but a sundae — now that constitutes a real event! Whether served as dessert to finish a meal or held off for a mid-evening splurge, a sundae always feels like a reward.

Sundaes are the ultimate "fun food." Isn't it every child's fantasy to spend a night locked in an ice cream parlor, with license to make ice cream and topping concoctions beyond his wildest imaginings? And doesn't dreaming up fabulous flavor combinations still bring out the eager, hungry child in all of us?

These sundae suggestions are for the adult that hungry child has become. We love the gooey sweetness of those sundaes of memory, but now that we're all grown up we are also free to enjoy the spirited edge that rum or brandy add to a sauce.

Macadamia Rum Fudge Sundaes call for coffee ice cream as a base. The Hot Rum Fudge Sauce is every chocolate addict's dream — an intensely chocolatey confection that turns slightly chewy when it hits the cold ice cream. Toasted macadamias add crunch and a hauntingly rich, nutty flavor as a topping.

Caramelized Apple Sundaes use spicy sweet apples sauteed in butter and sugar to form a rich caramel sauce. Brandy (an apple-flavored one makes it even more special) adds a spirited kick. Spooned over vanilla ice cream, the warm apples start the ice cream melting slightly and contrast beautifully with the chopped toasted walnuts sprinkled on top.

Instead of coffee ice cream, try banana or pineapple ice cream in the Macadamia Rum Fudge Sundaes for a tropical taste.

The Caramelized Apples would be wonderful spooned over butter pecan ice cream. And then skip the toasted walnuts.

The sauces may, of course, be made without the rum or brandy. Increase the vanilla by about 1/2 teaspoon to compensate.

MACADAMIA RUM FUDGE SUNDAES

Hot Rum Fudge Sauce:
2 tbsps. granulated sugar
2 tbsps. packed light brown sugar
2 tbsps. light corn syrup
1/4 cup unsweetened cocoa powder

CARAMELIZED APPLE SUNDAES

3 firm, sweet apples, such as Golden Delicious (about 18 oz.)
6 tbsps. butter

1/3 cup heavy cream
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. dark rum
1/2 tsp. vanilla
Sundaes:
1/3 cup macadamia nuts
1 qt. coffee ice cream

Preparation and cooking time: 15 minutes.

To make sauce, combine sugars, corn syrup, cocoa powder and cream in small, heavy saucepan. Bring to boil, stirring to dissolve sugars. Reduce heat to very low and simmer, stirring often, for 4 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in butter, rum and vanilla. Sauce will keep for several days in refrigerator. Reheat over hot water or in microwave before using.

To toast nuts, preheat oven to 375 F. Spread macadamias in single layer on baking sheet and toast for 5 to 8 minutes, until golden. Or toast in microwave uncovered, for about 4 minutes, stirring twice. Cool nuts and chop fairly fine.

To make sundaes, spoon scoops of ice cream into sundae dishes. Top with warm sauce and sprinkle with toasted nuts. Yields 4 to 6 servings.

1/3 cup packed light brown sugar
1 tsp. grated lemon zest
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
2 tbsps. brandy (Applejack or Calvados, if available)
Sundaes:
1/3 cup walnuts
1 qt. vanilla ice cream

Preparation and cooking time: 20 minutes.

To make caramelized apples, core and peel apples and slice about 1/8-inch thick.

Melt butter in large skillet. Add apples and saute over medium heat, stirring often, for about 4 minutes, until apples begin to soften. Sprinkle on sugar and add lemon zest, juice and cinnamon. Cook, stirring, over medium-high heat for 2 to 3 minutes until syrup forms. Add brandy and continue to cook for about 30 seconds. Set aside until ready to use. (Apples can be made several hours ahead.) Reheat gently, if necessary.

To toast nuts, preheat oven to 375 F. Spread walnuts in single layer on baking sheet and toast for 5 to 7 minutes, until golden and fragrant. Or toast in microwave, uncovered, for about 4 minutes, stirring twice. Cool and chop fairly fine.

To make sundaes, spoon scoops of ice cream into sundae dishes. Top with warm caramelized apples and sprinkle with toasted walnuts. Yields 4 servings.

and chopped chives

Place grated sweet and white potatoes in colander over a bowl. Salt lightly and let stand 15 minutes. Rinse and squeeze out well to get rid of all extra water (which can be reserved for soup stock.)

In large bowl, combine all ingredients and mix well. Heat 1/4 inch of oil in large skillet and fry 2 to 3 pancakes at a time until brown and crispy on both sides, using a heaping tablespoon of mixture for each pancake.

Cookbooks Great Gifts For Any Kind Of Cook

By Carol Deegan
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — "The Christmas Kitchen" by Lorraine Bodger can help make holiday cooking and entertaining less frantic.

In addition to recipes and menus for holiday meals, Bodger offers practical strategies, complete with checklists to help cut the confusion that comes with holiday entertaining. She also includes cooking hints, party tips and decorating ideas.

Full-color photographs and more than 100 line drawings accompany such recipes as Mustard and Maple Glazed Ham, gingerbread houses and fruitcakes. Included in the Easy Christmas Candies section are recipes that kids can make.

"The Christmas Kitchen" (Doubleday) is a good choice for holiday gift-giving. The following are some other suggestions.

If someone you know is interested in entertaining: "More Taste Than Time" by Abby Mandel (Simon & Schuster, $19.95), "Do-Ahead Entertaining" by Malabar Hornblower (The Globe Pequot Press, Chester, Conn., $19.95), and "Food for Friends" by Barbara Kafka (Harper & Row, $10.95).

Microwave cookbooks are popular, including: "Microwave Gourmet Healthstyle Cookbook" by Barbara Kafka (William Morrow, $22.95), "Microwave Entertaining" by Marcia Cone and Thelma Snyder (Simon and Schuster, $24.95) and "365 Quick & Easy Microwave Recipes" by Thelma Pressman (Harper & Row, $14.95).

"Sumptuous Sauces in the Microwave" by Patricia Tenneson (Contemporary Books, Chicago, $7.95), "The Random House Microwave Cookbook" by Margaret Fraser (Random House, $19.95), "Healthy Microwave Cooking" by Judith Benn Hurley (Roda Press, Emmaus, Pa., $21.95), "More Joy of Microwaving" by The Microwave Cooking Institute (Prentice Hall Press, $24.95).

Know someone concerned about cholesterol? There are many books from which to choose including "Count Out Cholesterol" by Art Ulene (Alfred A. Knopf, $18.95), the "Count Out Cholesterol Cookbook," also by Art Ulene (Alfred A. Knopf, $17.95), "Harriet Roth's Cholesterol-Control Cookbook" by Harriet Roth (New American Library, New York, $18.95) and "The American Heart Association Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol Cookbook," edited by Scott Grundy (Times Books, New York, $18.95).

Harriet Roth is also the author of "Deliciously Low: The Gourmet Guide to Low-Sodium, Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol, Low-Sugar Cooking" (New American Library, New York, $8.95). "The Healthy Gourmet" was written by Patricia Hausman and Judith Benn Hurley (New American Library, New York, $18.95).

Oat bran cookbooks include: "The Oat and Wheat Bran Health Plan" by Din Jewell and C. Thomas Jewell (Bantam, $4.95), "The Oat Bran Baking Book" by Nancy Baggett and Ruth Glick (Contemporary Books, Chicago, $8.95), and "The Oat Bran Cookbook" by Linda Romanelli Leahy (Ballantine, $3.95).

For grains or vegetarian cookbooks, you can choose from "The Complete Whole Grain Cookbook" by Carol Gelles (Donald I. Fine, New York, $19.95), "No Red Meat" by Brenda Shriver and Ann Tinsley (Fisher Books, Tucson, Ariz., $12.95), "The Not-Strictly Vegetarian Cookbook" by Lois Dribin and Susan Ivankovich (Fisher Books, Tucson, Ariz., $11.95), "Kathy Cooks Vegetarian, Low Cholesterol" by Kathy Hoshijo (Fireside Books, New York, $14.95).

"A Passion for Mushrooms" by Antonio Carluccio (Harper & Row, $19.95), "The Classic Vegetable Cookbook" by Ruth Spear (Harper & Row, $12.95), "Broccoli & Company" by Audra and Jack Hendrickson (Storey Communications, Pownal, Vermont, $7.95), "International Produce Cookbook & Guide" by Marlene Brown, (HP Books, Los Angeles, $12.95).

For an international flavor, try "Betty Crocker's New International Cookbook" (Prentice Hall Press, $18.95); "The Cuisines of Mexico" by Diana Kennedy (Harper and Row, $14.95), "Fragrant Taste Harbor" by Ken Hom (Simon and Schuster, $24.95), "Ken Hom's East Meets West Cuisine" (Simon and Schuster, $12.95), "Fresh From France" by Faye Levy (Dutton, New York, $22.95).

"Recipes and Recollections of Italian Holidays" by Helen Barolini (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, $9.95), "Pomp and Substance: 25 Centuries of Sicilian Food" by Mary Taylor Simeti (Alfred A. Knopf, $25), "Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean" by Arto der Haroutunian (McGraw Hill, $17.95), "Patisserie of France" by Hilary Walden (McGraw Hill, $17.95), "La Cucina Veneziana: The Food and Cooking of Venice" by Gino Santin and Anthony Blake (Prentice Hall Press, $22.95).

Regional cookbooks include "Betty Crocker's Southwest Cooking" (Prentice Hall Press, $17.95), "Pacific Northwest Palate" by Susan Bradley (Addison-Wesley, Reading, Mass., $19.95), "The Pica-yune's Creole Cook Book" (Random House, $24.95), "The Best of Amish Cooking" by Phyllis Pellman Good (Good Books, Intercourse, Pa., $19.95), "The Central Market Cookbook" by Phyllis Good and Louise Stoltzfus (Good Books, Intercourse, Pa., $19.95).

For books on health-nutrition: "Kitchen Science" by Howard Hillman (Houghton Mifflin, Boston, $8.95), "The Complete Book of Food" by Carol Ann Rinzler (Pharos Books, New York, $14.95), "Reader's Digest Great Recipes for Good Health" (Reader's Digest, Pleasantville, N.Y., $24.95), "Nutrition Almanac" by Lavon J. Dunne (McGraw-Hill, $15.95), "Light and Spicy: Over 350 Low-Calorie, Full-Flavor Recipes" by Barbara Gibbons (Harper and Row, $22.95), "Gourmet Gazelle Cookbook: Delicious Eating for a Lifetime of Good Health" by Ellen Brown (Bantam Books, $19.95).

Specialty-Miscellaneous cookbooks: "Jewish Cookery" by Leah H. Leonard (Crown, New York, $11.95), "The Complete American-Jewish Cookbook" by Anne London and Bertha Kahn Bishop (Harper & Row, $12.95), "The Jewish-American Kitchen" by Raymond Sokolov (Stewart, Tabori and Chang, New York, $30), "The Hot and Spicy Cookbook" by Moira Hodgson (Prentice Hall Press, New York, $12.95), "Ciro & Sal's" by Giro Cozzi (Viking, $10.95), "Prairie Kitchen Sampler" by E. Mae Fritz (Prairie Winds Press, Phoenix, $16.95), "Perla Meyers' Peasant Kitchen" by Perla Meyers (Simon & Schuster, $10.95).

"Wild About Fudge" by Marilyn Myerly (Barron's, Hauppauge, N.Y., $7.95), "Wild About Rice" by Marie Bianco (Barron's, Hauppauge, N.Y., $7.95), "Gingerbread: 99 Delicious Recipes from Sweet to Savory" by Linda Merinoff (Simon & Schuster, $8.95), "Finger Foods" by Mable Hoffman (HP Books, Los Angeles, $12.95), "The Chicago Tribune Cookbook" (Chicago Review Press, $24.95).

"The Afternoon Teabook" by Michael Smith (Collier Books, New York, $8.95), "Teatime Celebrations" by Patricia Gentry (101 Productions, San Ramon, Calif., $15.95), "Ten Late Breakfasts" by Alexandra Carlier (Interlink Books, Brooklyn, N.Y., $19.95), "Ten Dinner Parties for Two" by Frances Bissell (Interlink Books, Brooklyn, N.Y., $19.95).

Pancake Recipes Are Ideal For Hanukkah

1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
Dash of freshly grated nutmeg
Light vegetable oil for frying
Garnishes: Yogurt or sour cream

Hanukkah Celebration Has Delicious Traditions

MAKROUD PARIENTI

2 tbsps. butter or margarine
24 pitless dates
Vegetable oil
1 1/2 cups farina (available in cereal section of grocery store)
1 cup hot water
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 cups hot water
1 lemon, cut up
1 orange, cut up

Melt butter in large frying pan. When hot, add dates. Do not cook them at a high temperature or they will get hard. Remove them after a few minutes. Heat 1 tablespoon oil.

Put farina in bowl. Add hot water and 1 tablespoon hot vegetable oil. Using wooden spoon, mix well. This is a very sticky dough.

You should have extra farina available for your hands and for use on the table. Remove mixture from bowl to table. Knead, adding more farina as necessary to make a workable dough. I probably added at least an extra 1/2 to 3/4 cup farina.

Pinch off piece of dough and flatten with fingers. Use farina on your hands to work dough. Place one date on top of dough, fold in half and pinch ends together. Keep covered on farina-covered plate.

Heat oil in heavy skillet. When hot, add dough in batches and fry on one side until brown, then turn and lightly brown other side. Remove them and let drain on paper towels.

In another pan put sugar, 3 cups water, cut up lemon, cut up orange and bring to boil. Cook, letting it reduce until it is syrupy. When syrup is browned and thickened, remove lemon and orange. Put some syrup on each plate, add some makroud and serve immediately. Yields 24.

The following cookie is popular in New York. Almost every culture has some kind of butter nut cookie. This is originally Austro-Hungarian.

NUTHORNS

1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour, measured using dip method
1/2 lb. (2 sticks) unsalted butter or unsalted margarine
3 oz. ground pecans

Preheat oven to 350 F. Combine sugar, flour and butter in food processor, using steel blade. Add nuts, mixing in food processor

Cake Is A Good Make-Ahead Christmas Breakfast

By Rena Coyle
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

With all the anticipation of Christmas morning, breakfast is not at all uppermost in any child's mind. But as soon as the last present has been opened, the first words spoken are, "Where's breakfast?"

Wouldn't it be great to have breakfast all ready, prepared days in advance and frozen so as not to add to any of your last-minute flurry?

After Thanksgiving has come and gone, Christmas is a main topic of conversation for all of us, especially youngsters. To take some of this untamed energy and put it to good use might sound like a tall task, but there really is a simple solution — let them bake.

This may seem like a crazy time to bring your children into the kitchen, en, when you already have enough pressure. But really, putting an hour aside one afternoon when you're all going to be together at home anyway, it is the perfect time to let them bake. Besides, by baking something that can be frozen, you will have a ready-made solution to that Christmas morning breakfast.

Kitchen Kids

Here is a recipe that your children can put together with some direction from an adult. How much input you need to have depends on their ages.

Sugar Plum Tea Cake takes only 30 minutes to prepare before baking.

The recipe is full of steps that require mixing, measuring and, at best, wiping a bowl clean. I can't think of any age child who couldn't help with those steps.

The fruits and nuts that are added can be changed to reflect your family's tastes. Maybe glaze fruits aren't your kids' favorites, but sour cherries and pecans are. Don't hesitate to replace any ingredient with your preference.

Once the cake has been baked, it must be fully cooled before wrapping in plastic wrap and freezing. Then, on Christmas morning, place the cake out of the freezer and pull in a 325 F oven and let it thaw and warm while you unwrap all of this year's bounty.

SUGAR PLUM TEA CAKE

Baking time: 50 minutes.
Place oven rack in center of oven. Turn on oven to 350 F.
Using paper towel, spread 2 teaspoons butter evenly over bottom and sides of cake pan.
Mix flour, baking powder, cinnamon and nutmeg in small mixing bowl; mix with fingers or fork.
Put 3/4 cup butter and 1 cup sugar in mixer bowl. Using electric mixer, beat on high speed until pale yellow and creamy. Stop every once in awhile to scrape sides of bowl clean with rubber scraper.
Break eggs into butter mixture and beat until completely blended. Add flour mixture and mix on low speed until smooth.
Add raisins, nuts, coconut and

3/4 cup (1 1/2 sticks) butter, plus 2 tps. for the pan
1 1/2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup shredded coconut
1 cup glaze fruits with cherries
Utensils: Paper towels, 8-inch cake pan, measuring cups and spoons, small mixing bowl, fork, mixer bowl, electric mixer, rubber scraper, oven mitts, cooling rack.
Preparation time: 30 minutes.

glaze fruit. Mix on lowest speed until evenly distributed through batter. Using rubber scraper, scrape batter into prepared pan and spread evenly.
Put on oven mitts and put pan in oven. Bake until cake has pulled away from sides of pan, about 40 to 50 minutes.
Wearing mitts, carefully remove pan from oven and place on cooling rack. Cool 10 minutes. Then put on oven mitts and turn pan upside down onto rack, letting cake fall out. Take off oven mitts and carefully turn cake right side up.
Let cake cool completely before serving. If freezing, cool completely before wrapping in plastic wrap. Yields 1 (8-inch) cake.

Squash Is Fun And Delicious

By Kit Snedaker
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

The first time I saw spaghetti squash I watched a friend cook it and, when it was done, open the squash and fork out strands of flesh identical in color and shape to pasta. In fact they were even al dente, and careless as I became with this new-to-me vegetable, I was never able to cook it less than perfectly al dente.

I thought it was the funniest, most interesting and best-tasting thing I'd had in years, and touted it to one and all, even though it was primarily available only in California at that time. It took several years after that for spaghetti squash to appear all over the country, but now it's in every supermarket in town. Never mind, I still smile when I see it and regard it as vegetable whimsy and toothsome, to boot.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH ITALIAN GREEN

1 lb. fresh spinach, washed and chopped, or 1 (10-oz.) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
2 cups cooked spaghetti squash, strands removed
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 oz. grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 tsp. plus 1 tsp. low-sodium margarine, melted

Preheat oven to 350 F. Combine all ingredients and toss until blended. Place mixture in 1-quart oven-proof serving dish and bake, covered, for 25 minutes or until hot.

Yields 6 servings. Each serving has about 100 calories, 11 milligrams cholesterol and 375 milligrams sodium. Fat can be reduced by omitting the Parmesan cheese.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH WITH PARSLEY AND GARLIC

1 (1 1/2-lb.) spaghetti squash, cooked, strands removed
1 (1/2-lb.) low-sodium margarine
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup coarsely chopped fresh parsley, or grated zucchini
1/4 cup plain fat yogurt

Melt margarine in small skillet and add 2 tps. Cook until tender, but not brown. Place strands of cooked squash in baking dish and toss with garlic mixture, parsley and yogurt. Serve warm or make a day ahead and reheat, covered, in 350 F oven for about 25 minutes.

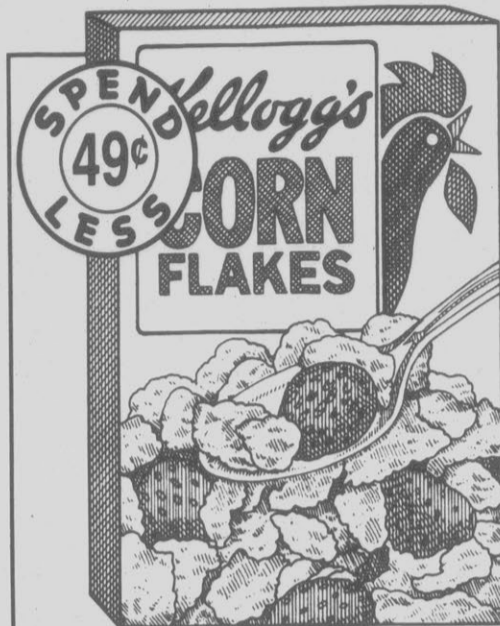

Yields 6 to 8 servings. Each serving has about 55 calories, no cholesterol and 40 milligrams sodium.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH PRIMAVERA

1 (1 1/2-lb.) spaghetti squash, cooked, strands removed
1 (1/2-cup) oil
1 (1-cup) chopped fine yellow onions, sliced
1/2 cup white wine
1 (2 1/2-cup) low-sodium tomato sauce
1 (1-cup) can low-sodium tomato paste
2 (1-cup) minced
1 (1-cup) dried basil, rosemary and thyme
3 carrots, peeled and sliced
2 cups broccoli florets
1 zucchini, sliced
1/2 cup (1-cup) Parmesan cheese
2 (1-cup) fresh parsley

Heat oil in a saucepan and add onion. Cook until transparent. Add mushrooms and wine and cook, covered, 5 minutes. Mix in tomato sauce, tomatoes, garlic, carrots, basil, rosemary and thyme and simmer for 3 minutes.
Preheat oven and simmer 3 or 4 minutes. Mix in broccoli and zucchini. Simmer a couple of minutes. Then add zucchini and cook for 2 more minutes or until tender. Place cooked strands of squash on serving dish and pour over vegetable mixture. Sprinkle on cheese and parsley and bake for 20 minutes.

Yields 6 to 8 servings. Each serving has about 345 calories, 3 mg cholesterol and 225 milligrams sodium.

Use Microwave For Holidays

By Desiree Vivea
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

November through New Year's: it can seem like one big party, and we're all invited.

We do more cooking, baking and partying now than at any other time of year — and most of us put on a pound or two in the process. But I always figure I'll wait until after I've popped the New Year's champagne to worry about taking off the holiday pounds. For now, it's eat, drink and be merry!

Your microwave can help you do just that. Following are some ideas for using your microwave during the holidays:

Dry orange or lemon peel to use in potpourri. Peel off zest using a small sharp knife, removing only colored portion of peel. Spread in even layer on paper towel. Place in microwave, along with 1 cup of water (to absorb microwave energy). Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting four to five minutes, or until peel begins to dry, tossing once or twice. Let dry at room temperature.

S'Mores are an easy holiday treat kids can make for themselves. Here's how to make one: just place a graham cracker on a paper towel or napkin. Top with a piece of chocolate bar (or a few chocolate chips) and add a marshmallow. Microwave at HIGH setting 15 to 30 seconds, or until marshmallow puffs. Let stand a few moments to cool before eating.

Here's a civilized idea: After serving sticky cocktail appetizers, offer guests hot finger towels for cleanup. Moisten small white towels with water and sprinkle with lemon juice. Roll up and arrange in a small microwave-safe casserole. Microwave at HIGH setting up to one minute, or until hot. Remove with tongs, shaking out to cool slightly, if necessary, before offering to guests.

To soften brown sugar for holiday baking, place about 1 cup hard brown sugar in a small microwave-safe casserole. Sprinkle with several drops water, cover, and microwave 30 seconds to one minute.

Soften hard-frozen ice cream by microwaving on LOW (30 percent power) setting 30 to 45 seconds per pint, or until soft enough to scoop.

A meat or candy thermometer may be required in some holiday recipes, but be sure to use only a microwave-safe thermometer approved by your oven manufacturer.

Heat beverages and appetizers for on-the-spot entertaining. Make an assortment of appetizers ahead of time and freeze, then just micro-reheat whenever company calls.

(Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.)

Micro-Tip Of The Week

When giving a gift of food prepared in the microwave (or to be micro-reheated), include a copy of the recipe or reheating instructions. Pack food in a microwave-safe container as an extra touch.

GEORGANNE'S CHILI CHEESE BALL

1 (8-oz.) block cream cheese
8 oz. shredded mild cheddar cheese
1 cube (1/2 cup) margarine
1 (4-oz.) can chopped black olives, drained very dry
1 (7-oz.) can chopped mild green chilies (do not drain)
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
Dash freshly ground black pepper
About 1 1/2 cups chopped walnuts
Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 1 1/2 to 2 minutes.
Oven setting: LOW (30 percent power).

In large microwave-safe mixing bowl combine cream cheese and cheddar cheese. Microwave 1 minute, to soften. Add margarine and microwave 30 seconds to 1 minute longer, or just until softened (be careful not to melt). Stir to blend with cheeses. Add all remaining ingredients except nuts and blend thoroughly.

Form mixture into a ball and cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate several hours or overnight, until firm. Unwrap ball and roll in chopped nuts, to coat evenly. Let stand to bring cheese ball to room temperature, then serve with crackers or French bread rounds. Or wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate up to 1 week. Yields 1 cheese ball.

HOT SPICED CIDER

4 cups apple cider
4 (2-inch) cinnamon sticks
4 whole cardamom pods
4 whole cloves
Preparation time: 5 minutes.
Cooking time: 5 to 7 minutes.
Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).
Combine all ingredients in 4-cup glass measure. Microwave 5 to 7 minutes, or until cider is piping hot (do not boil). Serve in mugs, garnishing each with a cinnamon stick. Yields 4 servings.

PARTY SNAX

1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tbsps. Worcestershire or soy sauce
2 cups bite-size shredded wheat squares
2 cups bite-size corn squares
2 cups bite-size rice squares
1 1/2 cups mixed salted nuts
1 cup thin miniature pretzel sticks

Preparation time: 5 to 10 minutes.

Microwave Magic

Cooking time: 5 to 7 minutes.
Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

In small bowl, combine butter and Worcestershire or soy sauce. Microwave about 1 minute, to melt butter. Stir to blend well.

Combine all remaining ingredients in 3-quart microwave-safe casserole. Drizzle butter over top, tossing to coat dry ingredients evenly. Microwave 4 to 6 minutes, tossing every minute, until cereal is hot. Spread evenly on cookie sheets to cool thoroughly, then store in airtight container. Yields about 8 cups.

Meal Is Just What The Coach Ordered

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

When college student Adam Womack isn't eating at the football training table, he cooks for himself. His training rules call for dishes that are high in complex carbohydrates but low in fat. This side dish — made with evaporated skim milk and just 1 tablespoon of oil — delivers just what the coach ordered.

ADAM'S FETTUCCHINE
8 oz. fettuccine or linguine
1 tbs. cooking oil
3/4 cup evaporated skim milk
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese (1 1/2 oz.)
1/4 cup sliced green onion
2 tbsps. snipped fresh basil or 1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
1/4 tsp. finely shredded lemon peel
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/8 tsp. pepper

Freshly grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain; immediately return to pan. Add oil; toss to coat. Add milk, 1-3rd cup cheese, onion, basil, lemon peel, garlic powder and pepper. Cook over medium-high until bubbly, stirring constantly. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Top with additional cheese, if desired. Makes 6 servings.
