EXPERIMENTAL OCEAN FLIGHT IS COMPLETED

British Plane Arrives At Montreal At 10:20 A. M.

SHIP THEN HEADS FOR NEW YORK

With Weather Perfect Craft Abandons Its Scheduled Stop At Newfoundland

Montreal, July 21.—(Canadian Press)—The first trans-atlantic flight of a pick-a-back plane ended here at 10:29 a. m., EST, today when the British seaplane Mercury alighted on the St. Lawrence river near Montreal.

The Mercury glided to a smooth landing in an air harbor 20 hours, 20 minutes after leaving Foynes, Ireland, 2,715 miles away, where she had been launched by her mother ship, the Maia.

Some 2,000 miles of her route had traversed the north Atlantic and she came on to Montreal without making her expected stop at Botwood, New Foundland.

Completing the first of eight scheduled experimental flights to Canada this year, the silver seaplane cut her engines and coasted into an area of the harbor marked off by boys.

A flag-decked yacht steamed out into the river to greet Capt. Donald Bennett and Wireless Operator Albert Coster, the Mercury's crew of two.

The Mercury was to unload part of her 1,000-pound cargo here and then take off for New York about noon, EST, after replenishing her fuel tanks.

The Atlantic crossing was accomplished at 3:29 a. m. EST, when the ship, 13 hours 29 minutes out of Foynes, passed over Cape Bauld, at the northern tip of Newfoundland, and headed inland without making the expected stop at Botwood.

Over Cape Caste the Mercury was flung at 147 miles an hour. Weather was reported perfect.

The Mercury was launched from the back of the Maia at Foynes at 2 p. m., EST yesterday.

Improvement Seen In Tobacco Crops Past Three Weeks

Assistant Extension Specialist At State College Notes Marked Improvements in East

Raleigh, July 21.—"Flue-cured tobacco in Eastern North Carolina has shown marked improvement within the past two or three weeks," Lloyd T. Weeks, assistant extension specialist at State College said today.

"Prospects are much brighter in most sections, but I am afraid it will be impossible for the State as a whole to produce a normal crop."

Weeks, who spends most of his time visiting various counties of the State to examine tobacco fields and tobacco-growing demonstrations conducted by farmers, estimated that production this year will be at least 20 per cent under last year.

He added that some of the demonstrations where farmers have applied the right fertilizer, observed recommended cultural practices, and have used a high grade of seed are making much better leaf than the

New Leaf Use

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Representatives of American Cigarette Manufacturers were given a pre-view today of cigarettes wrapped in transparent cellulose made of tobacco waste instead of paper.

The invention was displayed to them by L. Tamas, Hungarian author and playwright, who came here Monday from Europe with his lawyer to attempt the sale of American rights, Tamas, who does not smoke, said he invented the wrapping after two years of experimentation.

"The use of the new transparent wrapping," he predicted "will make white papered cigarettes as obsolete as silent movies are today."

BRITAIN'S KING AND QUEEN VISIT FRANCE

King George and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain are shown arriving in France for the first visit of English royalty on French soil in 25 years. In this radiophoto, the King can be seen on the left, followed by the Queen and the French foreign minister, Georges Bonnet. French troops form an honor guard.

PITT SCHOOLS GET PWA SUMS

Projects To Be Carried on at Chicod and Farmville

D. H. Conley, superintendent of the Pitt county school system, was advised today by Representative Warren that grants had been approved by the PWA for projects at Farmville and at Chicod.

A gymnasium, including an activity building will be constructed at the Farmville school. In addition a new heating plant will be installed to replace the old one, which has been condemned. The two projects will cost $83,000.

Farmville citizens voted overwhelmingly in favor of issuing bonds to put up 55 per cent of the total cost of the projects at an election July 5. The remaining 45 per cent will be financed from the PWA grant.

The Chicod project will include six new classrooms and an auditorium. The entire projects will cost approximately $35,000, of which the PWA grant will provide 45 per cent of the total. The local funds will be derived from a loan already made with the state. The loan will be repaid with additional taxes already authorized by the district voters.

Three years ago the county school system carried on a $237,000 building program with the aid of PWA funds, 45 per cent of the total cost being paid by the federal agency.

High Point Woman Accidentally Slain

High Point, July 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary A. Ramsey, hostess mill employee, died suddenly at home early today of a bullet wound in the head, which Acting Coroner M. Murray, said apparently was inflicted accidentally.

L. E. Williams, assistant superintendent of the local bureau of investigation, said he was told by the woman's husband, E. W. Ramsey, that the latter was cleaning a gun which was discharged accidentally, the bullet piercing the back of her head.

Mrs. Ramsey came to High Point two years ago with her husband from Rocky Mount, Va.

The Black Prince, created Duke of Cornwall in 1237, was the first English duke.

7,000 N. C. Farmers Get Electricity During Year

Raleigh, July 21.—Nearly 7,000 Tar Heel farmers became rural electricity customers during the year ended July 1, as more than 1,300 miles of rural lines were added the grand total, building or authorized in the State, according to a report of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority submitted to the Governor's office today after a scheduled meeting of the Authority.

The figures showed that the entire North Carolina rural system now has 8,211.2 miles added since July 1, 1935, date of the board's establishment, which will serve, when completed a grand total of 45,425 customers.

Actually built during the last year were 2,634.08 miles to bring the completed total to 7,004.3 as compared with 4,570.22 on July 1, 1937. Under construction there were, on July 1, 285.4 miles against 442.84 in similar status a year previous. Authorized, but no construction yet started, were 921.5 miles against 1,828.53 on July 1, 1937.

A year ago there were 38,587 customers served or to be served in the State, 6,838 less than as of July 1, this year.

The report was submitted to the REA board by Dudley Bagley, director. Figures were compiled by the board engineer, J. M. Grainger.

In a foreword or letter of transmittal, Mr. Bagley said that the Authority's activities have been consistently developed along three lines:

(1) Promotion of line construction by any or all of three agencies—Cooperatives backed by the Federal REA, private utilities and municipalities.

(2) Informational and consultative services offered by the office established in Raleigh.

(3) Educational, in cooperation with the Extension Service of State College.

The report showed that in the year ended on July 1 employees of

PWA Spending

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—The Public Works Administration approved 35 additional non-federal projects today in 18 States and advanced its 1938 spending program to $940,666,621. The projects received grants totalling $2,166,032.

Approved projects and grants included Pitt County, N. C., schools, $53,181.

NEW PROMISES BY NAZI ENVOY

Assures Britain of Desire for Settling Questions

London, July 21.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today the British had received from Chancellor Hitler's confidential envoy renewed assurance of their desire to achieve peaceful settlement of outstanding questions.

The Prime Minister said these assurances had been given to Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, by Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, the German Fuehrer's representative.

Chamberlain gave this reply to a question as to what was discussed at Monday night's confidential discussion between Lord Halifax and Hitler's envoy.

"In the course of his recent visit to London, Capt. Wiedemann had an informal conversation with the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs."

"Captain Wiedemann did not come prepared to discuss any particular aspect of political affairs, but the conversation enabled him, owing to his contact with authoritative circles in Germany, to renew the assurances already given by the German government of their desire to achieve a peaceful settlement of outstanding questions."

The German visitor saw the foreign secretary at his home the evening just before Lord Halifax left for Paris, accompanying King George and Queen Elizabeth on their state visit.

This lent added importance to the talk, which is understood to have figured vitally in Lord Halifax's conversation with Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet in Paris.

Missing Girl Found in Raleigh Hospital

Raleigh, July 21.—(AP)—Detective Captain Bruce Poole said this afternoon he had found Hortense Jackson, 18, of Dunn, reported missing last night, at Rex hospital here.

Poole said the girl had entered the hospital under the name of "Mary Snipe" and said "she told me she was just resting up."

The detective said the girl told him she planned to go home this afternoon.

The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Sina Pope Godwin, now in states prison.

Young Local Man Is Held on Two Charges

W. H. Byrd, young Greenville man is facing charges of breaking and entering and also of the larceny of a truck.

Byrd was first arrested on a charge of having stolen a truck from J. J. Perkins, with whom he worked, and he later was charged with having entered the Perkins store by removing a large plate glass window. The truck was stolen on July 17 and the defendant was entered on July 7. The defendant was attempting to arrange bond today.

Local N.C. Patrolmen Turn to Carpentering

State Highway Patrolmen H. B. Smith and C. R. Williams have turned carpenters and for the past several days have been going to Williamston each day to work on the garage being built there.

The two patrolmen apparently prefer their regular job of patrolling the highways to getting out in the hot sun with a hammer and saw. The patrolmen were pressed into service because of the fact no funds were available for hiring outside men to construct the repair garage.

HOOKS RESIGNS FROM POSITION

To Leave Ayden Post Office After Five Years' Service

Postmaster W. E. Hooks today announced that he had tendered his resignation as Postmaster at Ayden effective August 1st and that it had been accepted by the Post-Office Department.

The news of the resignation of Ayden's Postmaster came as a complete surprise. Mr. Hooks has held the office since July 1, 1933. Mr. Hooks stated today that he resigned because it was necessary for him to seek employment outside an office on account of his health. He said that the ten to twelve hours time required by the Post Office Department was seriously impairing his health and that it was necessary for him to get out in the open.

Mr. Hooks has been prominently identified with the business and political life of Pitt County for many years. He was the former editor and publisher of the Greenville News Leader and was for many years, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Pitt County, a post he declined to accept any more last May.

Sheriff Proctor New Association Officer

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor was named chairman of the Pitt County Peace Officers' Protective Association at a meeting at Respass' place last night called to fill the vacancy.

Other officers of the association are J. Vance Perkins, treasurer, and Lester Jones, secretary.

The earliest known system of written laws was the code of Hammurabi, king of Babylon, promulgated about 2,350 B. C.

Carrier Franchise Is Granted Bus Concern

Charlotte, July 21.—(AP)—Sam C. Bleas, director of the Interstate Commerce Commission's motor carrier bureau, said today the I. C. C. had granted a franchise to the Norfolk Southern Bus Corporation to operate between Washington, N. C., and Albemarle Sound as a carrier of mail, express, baggage and passengers.

Noted Author Dies.

Providence, R. I., July 21.—(AP)—Owen Wister, 78, author of "The Virginian," died of a cerebral hemorrhage, today at his summer home in North Kingstown.

The Municipal Art Commission of New York City has passed upon improvements costing over $400,000,000 since 1933.

FLIER REVEALS PLANS TO SAIL ON JULY 30TH

Corrigan Books Passage on U. S. Liner Manhattan

STILL BOTHERED BY MOVIE OFFERS

Declares, However, It's 'Nix' on Night Club Work, Saying He's No 'Crooner'

Dublin, Ireland, July 21.—(AP)—The "Pride of the Corrigans," as the Irish called the young American flying hero, booked passage home today on the American liner Manhattan, sailing next week.

That done, Douglass Corrigan went shopping as any tourist. For his uncle he bought a shilleagh (tricia cudgel) and for the rest of the family, post cards.

He planned a two-day visit to London before sailing from Kobb July 30.

"I'm still battling with the task of answering hundreds of cablegrams people keep sending me," the aviator said.

"I'm still holding off on offers of contracts from Hollywood until I get home, but it's nix on night club appearances. I'm no crooner."

Asked about the possibility of a flight across the United States for the Golden Gate Exposition, he said, "My uncle must have fixed that up. It depends on United States authorities whether they release my plane. I'm very doubtful if they will."

Corrigan is worried about what the home folks may do with him.

Salvation Army Here Ready To Aid Needy

"There are many transients going from house to house begging for food and saying that the Salvation Army will not help them," declared Captain Sadye Brewer of the Army today, "but investigation will show that these same people have never applied to the Army for aid. And there are transients who receive help from the Army and then proceed to beg."

"If anyone comes to your door with this story, please call 761 and see if he has been to the Army. The Salvation Army is here to serve the people of the community, but it can not do so efficiently if the local inhabitants do not cooperate. Such action will go a long way in ridding the community of those who are undeserving of aid," said Captain Brewer.

Young Pitt Demos Invited To Meet

Sam Underwood, president of the Young Democratic Club of Pitt county, received a telegram today inviting all members of the Pitt county club to the annual convention of the Carteret County Young Democratic Club.

The convention will be held Friday, July 22nd, in the Edgewater hotel with a picnic luncheon at twelve noon at Atlantic Beach.

Among the speakers on the program are Congressman Graham Barden, State Senator John Larkin, and State Representative Libby Ward. It is expected that a large delegation from Pitt county will attend.

WARFARE ON THE STRIKE FRONT

Twenty persons were beaten in free-for-all street fighting that broke out between strikers and workers at the Maytag factory in Newton, Ia. National guardsmen finally restored order and clamped military law on the district. This striking picture shows a worker being held down by a strike sympathizer after he was knocked to the ground.

Testifies Steel Firms Paid For Data On CIO

Employed Company to Make Study Industrial Relations

Washington, July 21.—(AP)—Senate investigators heard today that six steel companies engaged a public relations firm last July to make a study of industrial relations, including the CIO, its methods, its philosophy and the nature of its support by communists.

John W. Hill of the Cleveland firm of Hill and Knowlton, told the Senate Civil Liberties Committee that each of the companies agreed to pay $1,500 a month for the service. He named them as the Republic, Bethlehem, Inland and National Steel corporations and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube and American Rolling Mills companies.

Hill said the companies were concerned about their industrial relations as a result of the "little steel" strike of last summer and sought facts that would be useful in shaping policy.

Secretary Hull told globe girder Howard Hughes that his epic airplane flight last week contributed "healthfully" to the peace of the world.

"We have received messages of felicitations from foreign chiefs of state and the foreign press has been unstinted in its praise," said Hull in an official Washington welcome for the flier.

Roswell Magill, acting secretary of the Treasury, announced the administration was studying the feasibility of lowering personal income tax exemptions.

He declined to say whether he or other officials favored a reduction. (Continued on page six)

Rose Called To Meet In Governor's Office

J. H. Rose, member of a commission appointed by Governor Hoey to study the public school system in North Carolina and make recommendations to the next General Assembly, said the body had been called to meet at the Governor's office Monday, August 1.

Scott Says N. C. Can Be 'California Of The East'

(By Staff Correspondent) Statesville, July 21.—North Carolina can become the California of the East, if proper emphasis is placed on marketing, grading, sorting, standardization and securing adequate processing plants for vegetables and meats, Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott told farmers at the State Department of Agriculture's Piedmont Test Farm field day near here today.

"Tar Heel farmers must put real salesmanship behind their wares," he said. "They must offer products that are 'dressed up.' They can take a lesson from our industrialists and advertise, pack and grade their produce and thereby reap a premium in price."

Scott said he realized that "virtually no help has been given the farmer in the modern method of preparing their products for market," but added that "I shall work toward the end that this state shall be given an adequate marketing program."

"No one denies that our state agricultural program is unbalanced in view of the fact that of all money expended for production, crop control and all agricultural purposes, only half of one per cent is spent for marketing work."

Systematic tours of the Piedmont farm were conducted during the morning program under the direction of Assistant to the Commissioner D. S. Coltrane. Growers were organized in small groups by agricultural authorities and shown the research plots and exhibits featuring horticulture, agronomy, livestock and forage crops. The tours of the farm were begun at 9 a. m., whereas in past years at all the test farms, farmers were shown experiments in the afternoon.

A section workstock pulling test will be featured later in the day under the supervision of the Paul Fletcher of the Department of Agriculture and David Weaver of State College.

FRANCE SHOWS WAR STRENGTH FOR FIRST TIME

Newest Machines Paraded Before King George VI

101-GUN SALUTE GREET'S VISITOR

Review Assumes Particular Significance in Light of Yesterday's Conference

Paris, July 21.—(AP)—France paraded her newest war machines for the first time today to demonstrate to King George, VI, of Britain the strength she can lend to their common cause.

For more than an hour infantry, cavalry and artillery regiments, the flower of the French army, swung by the red-carpeted reviewing stand at Versailles to the music of massed military bands.

King George, in the tunic of a field marshal, and President Le Brun of France reviewed the columns of marching men, totaling 50,000, supported by hundreds of tanks and about 50 airplanes.

The spectacle, a highlight of King George's state visit to France, attested to the strong bonds that unite Europe's great democratic powers.

When King George reached Versailles a 101-gun salute was started. It continued throughout the parade, one salvo each minute.

The King and President Le Brun were taken from the station to the reviewing stand in a bullet-proof automobile, flanked by a mounted guard.

Queen Elizabeth and Madam Le Brun arrived later by special train and were accompanied by mounted guards to the Versailles Chateau to attend a sumptuous luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors.

Vast throngs lining the route of the parade saw implements of war the French army never before had shown publicly.

The review assumed particular significance in the light of yesterday's secret conference of British Foreign Secretary Halifax, French Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet.

Local Liquor Laws Bring Trouble and Court Litigation

Judge Felix Alley Holds Law Providing for Liquor in Two Haywood Townships Void

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, July 21.—Granting of a permanent injunction restraining the proposed ABC vote in Haywood county centers attention on the almost endless trouble and litigation set in motion by "local" legislation on subjects (such as liquor) in which the authority of the legislature to pass "local" laws is dubious.

Of course there are many subjects on which the authority to enact "local" legislation is undisputed, though there has been a heavy push to put a ban on all legislation of this type; but it is almost an invariable rule that whenever the act is on the borderline of those local laws prohibited by the Constitution some group hauls the whole subject into court.

In the instant case the trouble is with the so-called Cane act which provided that two townships of Haywood might have liquor stores provided they voted for them, despite the fact that a majority of the inhabitants of the county might be against liquor stores.

Judge Felix Alley in passing on the subject ruled that the General Assembly had no power to make this special provision. He held, with what seems to many observers to be good logic, that the policy of the state as set out in the ABC act (Continued on page two)

Over a wide part of the State, however, rain-damaged tobacco was revived by growers who hastened to cultivate the crop as soon after the rains as the ground was dry enough to work. They "broke out the middles" and threw the loose earth up around the stalks so the roots could get more nitrogen.

The tobacco men are doing some active hustling among the farmers looking to the opening of the market. They report that the farmers have fine crops and are enthusiastic for the Greenville market. The outlook is that Greenville will not fall under 10,000,000 pounds the coming season. We have the best market in the state.

How's Your Health?

Method for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Iago Goldston, M.D.

A Muscle Parasite

Any parasite which infests 17 per cent of the population is cause for concern. And Dr. Maurice C. Hall of the National Institute of Health says this is the percentage of trichina infestation in the United States.

Autopsies of 2,400 human bodies revealed the presence of the cysted form of the trichina worm in the diaphragm muscles of 408. These were the bodies of persons who had not died of trichinosis, but of various causes—random cases which came to autopsy.

The findings were so startling that the study was repeated. The diaphragm of every tenth body autopsied in a number of random-selected hospitals was examined, and again trichinosis was found to be present in about 17 per cent of the cases.

When the study was limited to bodies autopsied in one Jewish hospital in New York City, the percentage of those harboring the trichina worm was found to be less than one. This was to be expected for the Mosaic law forbids eating the meat of pigs.

The number of trichina cases reported immediately after infection, on the basis of clinical symptoms and tissue tests, is comparatively quite small. Therefore many must become infected with the worm who either do not experience any acute symptoms, or else have their condition diagnosed as due to something else.

The question then arises: What number of the ill-defined and hard to diagnose disease conditions may actually be due to infection with the trichina worm.

Fortunately, the subject is being carefully studied in several places, so we should not have to speculate long.

Meanwhile we can protect ourselves against trichinosis by not eating raw or undercooked pork. All forms of pig meat should be thoroughly treated with heat before being eaten or even tasted.

Large portions of pork should be cooked until the meat in the center has lost its pink tint and turned a grayish white.

Beware of undercooked sausages, and of pork in any form, including combinations with other meats. It is best to heat the meat thoroughly and be safe. This will give you the assurance that whatever trichina may be present have been killed.

LOCAL LIQUOR LAWS BRING TROUBLE AND COURT LITIGATION

of 1937 is to deal with the liquor question on a county option basis and accordingly there is no authority to put control of liquor in the hands of smaller units.

The judge expressed the hope that the case will be taken to the Supreme court, and it was intimated by counsel for the proponents of stores in Haywood that it will be.

There were other angles in the case, such as technical defects in the method of preparing and in signatures to the petition; which, if the case is taken up, give the high court a good chance to escape passing on the Constitutional question involved—the kind of loophole almost any appellate court always takes advantage of, so there's no certainty that the board question will be settled even if there is an appeal.

Earlier names of the Congressional Record were the Annals of Congress, Register of Debates and Congressional Globe.

HOTELS OFFER FINE SERVICE

Friendly Welcome Awaits All Guests Throughout State

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles by local officials and civic leaders which the Local Committee is publishing in co-operation with the Governor's Hospitality of Pitt County, emphasizing the need of hospitality to visitors.)

It is probable that nothing adds so much to the pleasure of a trip, especially a vacation journey, as a friendly welcome and attentive service in hotels patronized. Modern hotels have trained their employees to a higher degree of courtesy than formerly, therefore, our hotels have to extend unusual friendly interest in our guests to give them a definite impression of our hospitality. We have this constant opportunity to make friends for Greenville and our section, and hotels have good reason to be interested in increasing the tourist business.

Hotels are often called upon to render services quite out of the ordinary, and with what willingness and faithfulness they respond to such demands depends upon whether their patron list will steadily grow. Not long ago a manager of a New York hotel received a letter from a frequent visitor to the hotel charging him with the responsibility of meeting two small children when they arrived from Europe. The letter directed in detail the care that should be given the children before they were placed on a train, even to what they should eat and what places of interest they should be shown in the city. The manager did the job and needless to say, the hotel made loyal friends through the service rendered.

This motto hangs within the view of the employees of a large hotel in a northern city: "Courtesy is our greatest asset and it costs us nothing." Surely, we in the south, who have inherited a traditional reputation of hospitality, must be ever mindful of the value and importance of a genuine and personal expression of hospitality in our contacts with visitors.

A hotel that has greater clerks who receive guests with indifference and who fail to show interest in making them content with the facilities of the establishment and who fail to interest them in the opportunities the section offers in sight-seeing, sports, and recreation, will soon find out that things aren't going so well. There are times when a clerk may chance an overnight group of guests to visitors for a week or more by suggesting some of the delights of the town. Many visitors come through Greenville and leave the next morning without knowing what wonderful beauties of nature they are missing.

If managers, clerks, bellhops and all employees in our hotels, who come in contact with the guests will learn about our section and tell the visitors what we have here and be able to answer their questions intelligently and interestingly, it will mean substantially in increased patronage. The hotels may be counted upon to offer these visitors the highest degree of impressive hospitality.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

Aboard the Bostonian—This is one of those pleasantly swift, air-conditioned specials that plies between Grand Central terminal in Manhattan and the City of Boston—hence its name.

But we are not going all the way to Boston this time. Unless the man who sold us our ticket is playing a dirty trick on us we will get off at Saybrook, Conn., and drive over to Old Lyme, which is only a couple of handspans down a pretty road. And then we will become the house guest of Harrison and Frances Wood, friends of long standing, who are spending the summer there.

It is a curious ride for one unfamiliar with the New England countryside. After you pass Greenwich, which is said to be one of the wealthiest communities in the eastern section of the United States, you cling pretty consistently to the Connecticut shoreline and the whole way is a picturesque network of dais and coves which are dotted with yachts and sloops and smaller craft of every description.

There are lovely homes with green lawns running to the water's edge, and miles of stone fences built by hand with a patience that would have taxed Job himself. You see long nets drying on racks in the sun and people fishing in small boats or from shore for crabs, eels, and blues.

Pretty soon we are at Stamford, and then South Norwalk, and in a little while Bridgeport and after that New Haven. And after awhile we come to Saybrook, seat of the ancient Pequot Indian wars, Yale university was founded there before they moved it to New Haven. The former Yale site now is occupied by a cemetery. Lady Fenwick first white woman ever to live in Connecticut, lived in Saybrook in a quaint white house with shutters. She died there too and her remains are buried just a few steps away from the waters of North Cove.

Along North Cove is a group of beautiful homes, and one of them belongs to Dr. Hepburn, father of Katherine Hepburn, the actress. She is there now and it is said that Howard Hughes was a guest in Dr. Hepburn's home just before his record-breaking flight around the world.

We left Grand Central at 11 a. m. EST, which is breakfast time if you aren't an early breakfaster. And breakfast on this trip serves a double purpose — it keeps you from noticing the rather awful (to look upon) excavations underway around 125th street station, and permits you to ride into the New England gateway on the vast satisfaction of a full stomach. A well-fed man is usually a happy one, and that is the frame of mind one should be in when you visit this country. For years now I've been listening to New Englanders boast and brag of their manner of living, their stately elms, their weather and fishing.

And I'm going to see for myself. Miss Hall, the stewardess, tells me we are only a couple of miles out of Saybrook, and so in a few minutes I'll be in the car and heading for Old Lyme, with its tree-shaded streets and old, old houses, and inviting gardens, and lobster dinners.

The manufactures of Scotland include textiles, liquors, iron, steel, woolsens, linens and cottons.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Green

Washington — So rapidly is the government expanding its purchases of surplus commodities for relief distribution that the expanded outlays of last year will be nearly doubled during the coming 12 months.

The purchases are specifically intended to peg prices by removing temporary surpluses, principally affecting farmers. Nevertheless, a second purpose is recognized. That is to get the surplus of food to hungry mouths in the shortest possible way.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, an agency of AAA, does most of the buying. Recently the WPA stepped into the field to buy $10,000,000 of surplus men's, women's and children's clothes which the garment trades complained were depressing the market and preventing employment of thousands of needy workers.

This was the largest single purchase but a stream of smaller ones by the Commodities Corporation makes that makes up.

It's Going Up

The buying program, started in 1933 in connection with the destruction of "little pigs," ran to about $1,300,000 a month during 1936 and most of 1937. It speeded up to $2,600,000 a month during late 1937 and early 1938. This past May and June it swelled abruptly to about $9,000,000 a month and is scheduled to average $7,000,000 monthly for another 12 months. The corporation asked even more but Congress rejected its request for $50,000,000 extra.

The corporation does not buy major crops. It buys primarily surplus portions of perishable crops and processed products in local areas where removal of even a small amount affects prices. For instance, recently there was a surplus of dairy products in the Wisconsin area. FSCC took off $200,000 worth to keep the price from sagging. Similarly in a 10 months period ending May 1, the corporation bought 70,550,000 pounds of rice, 45,100,000 pounds of dried prunes, 8,500,000 bushels of apples, 1,720,000 boxes of oranges and grapefruit, 10,170,000 pounds of cabbage, 8,320,000 pounds of butter and like quantities of numerous other commodities. The operations reached into 45 states.

Sometimes the corporation buys directly from individual farmers or processors. More often it buys from central markets, trusting that benefits will trickle back to the farmers.

FSCC says it is difficult to estimate how much such purchases affect prices. There is no way of guessing the drop if the surplus remained.

Both Sides Of It

Consumers protest they are denied lower prices but FSCC retorts that low farm prices help nobody in the long run. Arguments are endless. Merchants say the government artificially holds up prices with one hand while with the other it distributes free goods to the merchants' customers. Further, they argue that buying up the surplus simply encourages further production.

H. R. Tolley, AAA administrator, concedes that without crop control and other guides the buying would be useless. He says the purchases do not ordinarily raise prices, but prevent slumps. WPA claims that by its $10,000,000 clothing investment it benefited 160,000,000 clothing trades workers at the same time it obtained clothes for relief distribution.

Lump figures show purchases totalling about $17,000,000 in fiscal 1937, on up to $45,000,000 in 1938, mostly in the three months ending last June 30. The estimate for 1939 is $79,000,000, and more if the next Congress wills it.

The system is a short cut on the standard business pattern, but like many another federal spending program it is popular with state officials. Since most of the food purchased is turned over to state relief agencies, they favored a 1939 program of $175,000,000.

Thomas Edison developed the basic dictating machine in 1887, but its use was not widespread in business offices until 20 or 30 years later.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, July 21.—The French ambassador, no less, will be principal speaker at the annual session of the State Library and Historical Association on December 2. Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary, has so announced.

The Monsieur's name is Count Rene (there's an acute accent on that last "e" but this typewriter speaks only English) Doyne de Saint-Quentin, and he had a long and varied career in various capacities.

During its long history the Association has heard, among other notable such folks as Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Viscount James Bryce, and Ambassador William E. Dodd.

Way back in 1913 another French ambassador (Julius J. Jusserand) spoke to the group.

Three members of the 1939 House, though they will be freshmen themselves, will have legislative tradition, at least, behind them, as their fathers were legislators in years gone by.

U. B. Blalock, who will come up from Anson to Raleigh next January, follows his father by 37 years, the ancestor having been a member of the 1901 House.

C. E. Hamilton, Jr., will come from Gaston. Long time ago the Senior represented Forsyth.

George T. Davis of Hyde will be the immediate successor of his father, "Sheriff" George E. Davis, who won the title of the "Great Opposer" in the 1939 Assembly.

There may be others in this category, but your correspondent is un-informed if there are.

Dan Tompkins who will represent Jackson county in the next House has the distinction, perhaps unique, of having been a judge for just one day.

It happened thus: One day in August, 1931, he was named to preside over the county recorder's court to succeed Joseph J. Hooker, deceased. The next day the county commissioners abolished the court.

Tompkins, who is a newspaper man, represented Jackson in 1933 and was reading clerk in the 1937 House.

In 1929 only seven of North Carolina's hundred counties showed more than ten per cent of their farms served with electricity. Now only 21 report in that class.

In 1929 only one county (New Hanover) was more than 20 per cent electrified as to its farms. Now there are 29 in that category.

Here's a table of comparison, showing the number of counties falling into various groups on a percentage of their farms served with electricity:

1929	1928
Less than 1 pct. electrified	17 4
1-5 pct. electrified	66 17
5-10 pct. electrified	10 19
10-20 pct. electrified	6 31
20-30 pct. electrified	0 17
30-40 pct. electrified	1 6
Over 40 pct. electrified	0 6

The figures are taken from the State REA's report made to the Governor's office today after the annual session of the REA board here.

The Authority travelled a total of 21,713 miles on duty in the field throughout the state, about two-thirds of the total travel of the same sort during the first two years of the Authority's existence, during which travel came to 21,713.

But while "working" travel increased so markedly, travel by board members in attending meetings (travel for which the state pays but which produces no visible results), dropped to 5,634 for the past year, as compared with 14,712 in the two preceding.

The entire tone of the report was optimistic and the figures themselves showed that progress of rural electrification has been rapid and marked in North Carolina.

For instance, it was pointed out that while the percentage of rural line increase in the entire United States amounted to 19 per cent during the calendar year 1937, North Carolina's increase was more than twice as rapid (39 per cent).

The state was among the twelve in the Union which has more than 32,000 farms served by electricity; and it stood fifth in number of farms added during 1937, despite the fact that North Carolina's farm tenancy rate is 49 per cent and the state stands 36th in income per farm.

It was also noted in the report that in 1929 there were two counties in the state in which there was not even an inch of electric line (Graham and Hyde). There were also eight county seats not served with electricity. Now there are no counties and no county seats without any electric service of any kind.

Drawbridge Still Works.

Paris.—(AP)—The castle of Lourdes, in southern France, is one of the oldest in Europe. Its great drawbridge works as well for visiting tourists today as it did for knights in armor six hundred years ago.

Among the population on relief chronic illness occurs 87 per cent more often than in the upper income group.

Maude Adam, American actress, adopted the maiden name of her mother for the stage. Her family name was Kiskadden.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. RYE

The Story So Far

Someone is out to bust the Rafter T ranch. To help lovely Lee Trone, "Blur" Ankrom takes a job there under the name of Streeter. A man and woman posing as friends of the Trones are revealed as impostors, and the man is mysteriously killed. The girl, Betty, stays on. Then rustlers wipe the range clean and Ankrom traces the lead to Mose Hackett, the range boss. In a showdown, he beats Hackett to the draw. Hackett, the sheriff, seems to have guessed Ankrom's identity, but is biding his time.

Chapter 18

The Golden Girl

ONE afternoon when Ankrom rounded a bend in the dry wash he was following he came abruptly face to face with another rider—the golden girl, Betty.

If he was surprised by this unexpected meeting, she appeared equally so. But Ankrom, having witnessed previous samples of her excellent acting, would have been willing to bet his last cent that she had somehow deliberately engineered this encounter.

Her curls were tousled by the wind, for she persisted in wearing her hat looped by its chin-strap on the back of her neck. Yet he had to admit that she made a most enticing picture.

"How does it happen that you're still staying on at the ranch?" Ankrom inquired.

"I'm suffered on Rafterford's orders. He forbade my leaving until after the solving of the mystery surrounding the death of Kelton Dreaun."

"Then you admit the colonel's real name was not Struthers?"

"Sure—why not? They could find out easily by a little investigation. I don't think I want them to look into things too closely."

"Why not?"

She regarded him thoughtfully. "No... I don't believe I will answer that... now. Perhaps when all this is past I may."

But he did not grab at the bait she dangled with that last sentence. He said, "What were you doing in that cabaret in Peso Pinto?"

Her eyes clouded. "I worked there. You don't like me, do you? Is it because you saw me first in there?"

"I don't appear to like you," Ankrom evaded. "It is because of the manner of your introduction to this ranch."

A strange light had come into her eyes, he thought. They looked somehow darker, deeper. When she spoke her words were low and vibrant, as though great feeling lay behind them.

"If there was deceptio, in the way I came to the Trones it was only in my association with Dreaun. It happens I lent myself to his plan when he approached me because it seemed to offer the only possible escape from my environment. Do you think I would not have stooped to anything that offered me my chance?"

In that moment a n k r o m thought her almost beautiful. His glance must have reflected the thought, for her face went white and she turned her horse abruptly.

"I'm going back to the ranch," she rode possibly half a mile in silence. The pace was fast at first but gradually slowed. Then Ankrom put a question. "Do you know what Dreaun was up to?"

"In coming out here?"

"Yes. I'm trying to get at his purpose. I don't think he'd have come unless he saw money in the scheme. It appears to me that he was not acting on his own—that he was following the orders of some man in the background."

"Why do you think that?"

"That's hard to explain. Queer things are going on in this country. Some man has been sharpening up his knife for Old Man Trone. That night you called to me in Peso Pinto, a bunch of thugs had lured Miss Lee to an empty house. I busted in as they were threatening her with a red-hot branding iron. Sort of spectacular, isn't it?"

"But of course they weren't going to use it," she smiled. "Yes—quite melodramatic in this humdrum day and age."

"Those Boys Are Experts"

"ANOTHER thing about this business," Ankrom went on. "Trone has been losing cattle. Rustlers have been workin' his range in a wholesale war. An' I'm here to state those boys are experts. They're ridin' Trone beef out of this country in trucks—an' they're gettin' away with it. Try to head work back of that. Dreaun is crafty in his way but he never had the brains for that. Dreaun, I shouldn't wonder, was just a two-bit pawn in a big-shot game."

"You're thinking," she said, "that Dreaun wouldn't have been interested in cattle. Well, perhaps the man you think was behind Dreaun isn't interested in cattle, either."

Ankrom looked at her sharply.

"Mebbe not," he finally said. "Anyhow, he's getting at Trone from all angles. The stolen cattle were all prime beef. First time I ever heard of rustlers bein' so finicky—or lucky. Well, they've stripped his range of saleable stuff. That means that unless he's got money in the bank—"

"He has," she cut in swiftly. "The bank at Peso Pinto. Dreaun told me he had. Does that help?"

"Can't say. It might help Trone, if he's got enough. Probably depends on things I know no more about than you—"

"Would you care to know more about me?" she cut in.

Ankrom felt heat come into his cheeks. "We're discussin' Trone, right now."

Her horse lunged ahead beneath sudden drive of spurs. Remorse for his rudeness came to Ankrom as he urged the buckskin after. He did not wish to hurt her needlessly. Already, he guessed, she'd suffered enough. But love must have no place in his life; and if it could, that love would have belonged to Lee. Why did this girl persist in injecting the personal equation into their conversation?

Urging his horse alongside the running blue he was about to make his peace talk when her voice came at him evenly: "Please go on."

Relieved, Ankrom said, "Well, here's another angle. Trone's name is taboo among his neighbors. There could only be one reason for that since it ain't at all likely that the whole country has a mad on at him. These people are onto the fact that someone's got his knife out for Trone, an' they want to keep out of it."

"Sounds fairly reasonable."

"It is reasonable. These neighbors of Trone's are mostly men with families to think of. They can't afford to get involved in a range war—another man's bread might come too high. The way things are shapin' up right now, I would hate to bet that even the Rafter T will go to war."

"Then there is a silver lining to this cloud?"

"If there is, I haven't seen it," Ankrom grunted. "What I mean is that it looks like Trone's opposition isn't aiming to leave him any weapons to fight with—an' darn few men. Look: counting myself, Trone has exactly four men on his payroll. You can't stage much of a war with four men. No matter how much coin Trone's got tucked away—this man that's out to smash the Rafter T has fixed it so that Trone can't hire any men!"

Gun Man

"I HATE a quitter!"

"I never let a man down yet. Remember, though, that I'm just one puncher—not an army."

"You might hand somebody that line an' get away with it," she grinned, "but little Goldie's been around."

"What are you getting at now?" "Lee Trone."

"What about her?"

"Listen," she came back at him. "I may not know more than a hoot or two about ranches, but brother, when it comes to women, you don't know a thing!"

"I won't argue that," said Ankrom; "I never claimed to know much about them."

The golden girl leaped forward, facing Ankrom earnestly. "What you need, friend Abe, is someone to wise you up on a little female psychology."

"Some women," she went on swiftly, "would go through fire for the man they love. And right now I'm not talking of your blue-ribbon thoroughbreds like Lee Trone, who decorate drawing rooms and swanky teas. I'm speaking of the real working. Women who've never had much to make life worth living—ordinary women. Girls like me! They wouldn't care what their husbands were, what their men did—if they loved them."

"Do you think the Lee Trones of this world would ever marry a gun man? That's what she called you—a gun man!" Her voice grew hard, scornful. "She told me she saw you kill Hackett. She said you egged him on, turned you back so he would reach for his gun, and when he did you turned and shot him. She said if it wasn't that they needed you here so badly now, she would have made her father run you off the ranch just as you ran those others off!"

There was bitterness in her blazing eyes. "That's the kind of a person your fine Lady Lee is! She hired you for your gun because she was afraid that this some one you've been talking about would get her old man. And while you risk your life providing protection for that drunken has-been, she despises and loathes you for the very prowess that caused her to hire you!"

"Let's go," Ankrom said, and logged the buckskin into motion. But where it carried him he did not see. He had not known what it felt like to be really cold, till now. His heart was a ball of ice.

America's Relief Problem

Most Of The Cash Is Supplied By Uncle Sam

Congress has just voted another billion odd dollars for unemployment relief. Since it costs most, relief is America's most pressing problem of government. This article, the second of three, tells what the costs are and what kind of a run the taxpayers and the unemployed are getting for the money.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—To a destitute family, a relief check may be manna from heaven—or it may represent a life without hope.

To a politician, the relief check may be a perplexing problem in government—or it may provide visions of votes.

Those things are debatable. But there is no question that to the treasuries of the United States and its subdivisions, the relief check is a pain in the neck.

For the relief check is more than the public budgets can chew. It is red ink on the public books—red ink that's going to stay on the books for a long time to come.

Cost $4,000 A Minute
In seven years, relief of the unemployed has cost at least thirteen and one-half billion dollars. First cities, counties, and states started spending. Then in 1932 Uncle Sam jumped in. Since then the Federal government has far outdistanced the states and cities—forking over ten billions, while the states have chipped in three and a half billions.

Thirteen and a half billions is a lot of money.

In the kind of money anybody can count, relief is costing nearly $4,000 a minute. And the rate of spending is going up.

That $4,000 a minute includes some forms of so-called permanent relief—such as CCC, farm security payments, old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

'On Relief' With Variations
It does NOT count federal pump priming. Throw that in, and the cost of relief since 1931 approaches the astronomical sum of 20 billions of dollars.

Relief, as such, costs big money because each one of the millions requiring relief cannot be dismissed with a handout of a dollar or two a month. At the minimum, he's got to have enough, or what passes for enough to eat.

Relief people do not receive equal treatment. They receive checks, cash, or groceries and rent in varying amounts, depending on the type of relief they get, the county and state they live in, and the standard of living on which a given kind of relief is based.

First, let's look at federal relief pay—the aristocratic pay in relief society. It is wages received for work especially designed so a destitute citizen can feel he has a job, and say he is "working for the government." Just now there are about 2,600,000 of these people in the United States, or about half the registered relief cases. These are the ones the WPA has chosen as "employables," that is, persons who can do a regular day's work at their trades or professions.

It's Uncle Sam Who Pays
These federal relief workers receive an average of $53 a month. It costs the taxpayers $82 a month to give each one of these workers a job. Here's where the money goes:

Wages of WPA workers	$53.00
Material and equipment	22.30
Special labor hired locally	3.70
Administrative cost	2.20
Supervision of work	.80
Total	$82.00

The administrative cost is the money it costs to see that everybody gets his check, that projects are approved, etc., including generally the cost of managing the business. The special labor item is the labor cost of a WPA project assumed by the city or state sponsoring the project.

To show for this, the taxpayer has, according to WPA director Harry Hopkins, "a vast increment of wealth and well-being." He lists page after page of road work, school buildings, swimming pools, and lighter work, such as sewing, tourist guide books, plays by unemployed actors, and the like.

While the federal government has carried out aggressively its vast works program, the cities, counties, and states throughout the country have NOT spread their dollars so freely. Local governments are the ones that count and sort out the unemployed, and offer the lists to the federal government.

Uncle Sam takes the so-called "employables" and leaves the rest to local "direct relief" or general relief. About 2,000,000 families are receiving this second class relief.

Contributing only three and a half billion dollars, for relief in seven years, the local governments have for the most part, declared to put their money into direct relief, because it will go farther there and the method is easier. What direct relief really amounts to is a dole.

Roughly, states and cities have spread the dole among the destitute, who, for one reason or another, can't get (1) federal WPA jobs, or (2) social security benefits. The average dole case, that is, a family or single person registered as a "relief case," gets an average of $25 a month.

(Tomorrow: Proposed roads to freedom from relief troubles.)

The U. S. imports matches, tobacco, bristles, manganese ore, asbestos and anthracite coal from Russia, as well as caviar and furs.

WPA workers often have protested wage rates and pruning of relief rolls. This is a WPA strike scene in Oakland, Calif.

They Are Hungry
Their family cut off from city relief when funds ran low, these girls depend on neighbors for food. This time it's spaghetti.

Here's what public relief costs. The chart, based on one prepared by Social Security Board, excludes transient care and administrative expense. It shows monthly totals. Cost for March, 1938, for instance, was about $241,000,000.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Fresh selling of amusements and utilities stocks took the steam out of a normally rally in rails today and market leaders reduced or cancelled extreme gains running to two or more points at the close.

Further study of the government's action yesterday in filing anti-trust suits against the principal film companies, and the move of the S. E. C. to impose the "death sentence" clause of the federal utilities act on holding companies, apparently chilled Wall street speculative ardor.

Director Explains Child Labor Laws

Rocky Mount, July 21.—George N. Adams, manager of the Rocky Mount office of the Social Security Board, said today that reports reaching the board that children barred from work by child labor laws are being "illegally" hired because they happen to have social security account number cards, brought by John J. Carson, director of the board's Bureau of Old-Age Insurance, the warning that possession of such a card is not evidence of the holder's employability.
Mr. Adams said that in a few isolated cases, employers, according to these reports, have explained they took it for granted the applicant for work had reached the legal working age because he had exhibited an account card. Since the registering of applicants for old-age insurance began late in 1936, account numbers having been assigned to approximately 150,000 persons below the age of 16.
"The responsibility of an employer to comply with Federal and State laws regarding the hiring of minors is not affected by the fact that the applicant for work may display an account card," he continued. "Possession of an account number card is not evidence of anything except that the holder has established the right to have set up for him a wage account under the Federal Old-Age Insurance system. The wage account is for use in connection with the eventual determination of the amount of old-age insurance to which the wage-earner will be entitled when he reaches the age of 65 or dies. These same account numbers are used in connection with the administration of State unemployment compensation laws."

Beyond these two uses, Mr. Adams pointed out, the card has no significance. "It should not," he said, "be accepted by merchants as identification when exhibited by persons who want to open accounts or have checks cashed, nor should it be regarded by employers as evidence that a young person may be hired in accordance with child labor requirements."

RAILWAY CAGEY IN PICKING MEN FOR ROOSEVELT TRAIN

Pueblo, Colo.—(AP)—When President Roosevelt visited Colorado recently the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad made sure that every member of the train crew was a Democrat.
Frank L. Engle, secretary of the Pueblo County Democratic Central Committee, a locomotive engineer, piloted the presidential special thru the winding Royal Gorge west of Pueblo.
The engineer on the train that preceded the special train through the gorge—to see that the line was clear—was Thomas E. Martin, a brother of John E. Martin, Colorado Congressman.
