KING ASSERTS ANGLO-FRENCH TIES STRONGER

British Monarch Informs the World of Friendship

FINAL SPEECH ON VISIT OF STATE

Address Regarded as Clarifying Note To Present Perturbed Atmosphere Europe

Villers - Bretonneaux, France, July 22.—(AP)—King George of England again informed the world today that Britain and France are bound by unbreakable ties.

In a speech dedicating a memorial to Australia's World War dead, the concluding event of his four-day visit of state to France, the King said:

"The events we recall today have bound us with ties that the passing years can never weaken."

This assurance was given in addition to his statement in his Paris stay:

"It would now be impossible to recall a period in which our relations were more intimate."

Before the King spoke, his war Minister, Leslie Hore-Belisha, conferred on co-ordination on Anglo-French military plans with General M. Gaminet, chief of France's general defense.

The king was loudly applauded in the perturbed atmosphere of Europe.

It came after Sir Earle Page, deputy for the Prime Minister of Australia, declared in introductory remarks that Britain and France "still stand shoulder to shoulder for maintenance of the ideals for which so many of our people laid down their lives."

From the same platform President Le Brun of France said the ceremony emphasized "the close entente" of our two great Democracies.

The King's speech was devoted mostly to Australia's World War sacrifices. Referring to the memorial, he said:

"Its very surroundings are emblematic of that comradeship which is the watchword of our British Empire; for it looks down on a hallowed field beneath whose soil, concentrated to God and the glorious memory, lie the men who came from every corner of the earth to fight for ideals common to that whole Empire."

Impartial Source Hails Advertising Campaign of State

July 15 Issue of "Sales Management" Contains Article About Efforts Being Put Forth

Raleigh, July 2.—From an entirely impartial source, the North Carolina and its advertising program have just received a fine pat on the back.

The patting is done in the July 15 issue of "Sales Management," one of the more sprightly business publications with a nation-wide circulation among business executives, corporation heads and industrialists generally.

The article was written by a staff member of the publication's editorial department who was sent into the state to gather his information at first hand, in order to write intelligently of the state and its program.

The article, as published, received the lead position on page 21 of the magazine, under the heading "North Carolina," in State Campaign, Advertisements Glamour for Tourists, Industrial Assets for Business." One of the North Carolina's industrial advertisements in reproduced in the center column.

"Other states are endeavoring to gain the attention of vacationists, manufacturers and farmers," the article states. "Some few of them have even larger budgets. Few however, are going about the job with as much caution and discrimination as the Tar Heel state."

"North Carolina emphatically does not want sweatshops, shoe-strapping industrialists, tin-can tourists. Its advertising makes no appeal to the idly curious, coupon clippers; and its follow up system weeds out shysters looking for cheap, docile labor."

"In the absence of free building, tax exemptions and other molasses set out to catch flies, North Carolina's advantages to manufacturers may be stated somewhat as follows:

"In the past two decades the

PLANS OPPOSE ACL'S PETITION

Three Hundred Expected To Attend Hearing Aug. 2

Raleigh, July 22.—(AP)—Newell G. Bartlett, secretary of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, notified Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne today that he expected at least 300 persons to attend the hearing August 2 on the petition of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to discontinue a number of trains.

Bartlett said a number of affected communities would "vigorously" oppose the petition to stop trains between Weldon, Scotland Neck, Greenville and Kinston, and between Parmele and Washington.

Dr. Carl L. Adams of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College has been named by that institution's representative at the second annual superintendents' conference to be held at Appalachian State Teachers College, Boone, July 26, 27 and 28.

Dr. Adams left today for Blowing Rock to join his family for a vacation and will go from there to Boone for the convention.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county school system, has made known his intentions of attending the conference, but J. H. Rose, head of the city schools, has declared he will be unable to go because of other business.

Corrigan Never Has Time To Wear His Sunday Suit

By HUBBARD KEAVY

Los Angeles, July 22.—(AP)—Aviation's newest and strangest hero—Douglas Groce Corrigan, unemployed airplane welder—always dresses the part.

He wore clothes on his unexpected flight to Ireland that he always wears, rain or shine, work or wedding. He owns a good suit, but he just never finds an occasion to wear it. Even his important enough for Douglas to put on his blue serge.

"I really believe he wore his checkered pants and his leather jacket to Harry's wedding," says the Rev. S. Fraser Langford, Douglas' uncle. "But, my goodness, we're so used to seeing him in that outfit, we don't pay any attention to him."

Douglas doesn't have any hobbies except flying. He's an omnivorous reader—of books about aviation. He's a great talker, too—about flying.

Douglas is a great kiddier. Always laughing. Why, nothing bothers him. Gracious, he even laughed about the

Of 739,068,000 Total State Gets 485,668,000 Pounds

Washington, July 22.—(AP)—The AAA announced today the allotment of a national flue-cured tobacco marketing quota of 739,068,000 pounds for 1938 among the six bright leaf producing states.

The quota was divided as follows: Virginia, 65,458,000; North Carolina, 485,668,000; South Carolina, 84,302,000; Georgia, 71,053,000; Florida, 11,007,000 and Alabama 420,000.

A total of 21,250,000 pounds of the marketing quota was reserved for farms in all states on which no flue-cured tobacco has been grown in the last five years.

The original national flue-cured tobacco quota under the new farm act was set at 705,000,000 pounds, but subsequent amendments raised it to 733,000,000.

The 739,068,000 pounds figure was reached by the AAA by invoking a clause in the new law which prohibited the quota for any state from being less than 75 per cent of 1935 production.

Meantime the government stands to refund $6,008,353 collected under the repealed cotton and tobacco levies of 1934.

Internal revenue officials are preparing regulations to govern the system to make repayments, ordered by the recent Congress. The Bankhead cotton control act and the Kerr-Smith tobacco act, which repealed the taxes were imposed, were repealed in 1936 after the Supreme court invalidated the AAA.

The 1935 Congress also ordered refunds of taxes collected under the short-lived potato act of 1935.

Bureau officials said application letters of internal revenue "any are ready for distribution to collectors of internal revenue "any day now."

Collections in the cotton and tobacco states during fiscal years 1935 and 1936 included: North Carolina, $827,858.15.

NOT TO FORCE JAPAN - RUSSIA BORDER ISSUE

High Japanese Official Spokesman Gives Indication

PRESS, HOWEVER, REPEATS CHARGE

Soviet Russia, Meanwhile, Makes Clear She'll Move Troops As She Sees Fit

Tokyo, July 22.—(AP)—Statements of Japanese official spokesmen tonight indicated Japan had no intention of forcing the issue with Soviet Russia over Soviet troops' occupation of a disputed district near where the borders of Soviet-Siberia, Japanese-Korea and Manchoukuo come together.

Nevertheless the Tokyo press continued to report conception of Soviet military and naval forces near the danger zone.

The foreign office spokesman denied Japan ever had threatened to use force to object the Russian troops from the Changkufeng district occupation of which July 11 provoked the blustery crisis.

The spokesman asserted that the Japanese ambassador at Moscow had merely proposed to Foreign Commissioner Litvinoff when they met Wednesday that the troops be withdrawn as a preliminary to "a general compromise." He denied that the Japanese ambassador had either said or implied that force might be used.

Litvinoff rejected the Japanese proposal, the spokesman said, on the grounds that the territory in question is indisputably Russian. Japan contends it belongs to Manchoukuo, her protectorate, and that the occupation was "an invasion."

Moscow, July 21.—(AP)—Soviet Russia made clear in plain words today she will move troops as she sees fit along her far eastern frontiers, but that if there is to be war over the matter Japan will have to start it. This, to foreign circles here appeared unlikely.

The Russian government's sharp rejection of Japanese demands for withdrawal of troops in territory claimed by both nations, from the Soviet standpoint simply called Tokyo's bluff.

Rocky Mount, July 22.—(AP)—R. C. Brake, 65, a member of the Board of Aldermen for many years and chairman of the board's finance committee, lay critically injured in a hospital here today following a collision late yesterday with an automobile driven by E. A. Williams, local machinist.

At the hospital physicians said Brake sustained a skull fracture, complicated by a hemorrhage. They said the right side of his body was paralyzed and while he appeared conscious, he was unable to speak.

Surplus Products Used to Aid Many

Raleigh, July 22.—In the four North Carolina Surplus Community districts, 158,325 persons received aid during the month of June. A. E. Lanston, division head announced in figures made public today.

The number represents a statewide total of 35,002 families served through eight commodity warehouses. Second district warehouses in Raleigh and Winston-Salem assisted the greatest number of cases with 10,484 representing 44,963 persons, while fourth division storerooms at Asheville and North Wilkesboro helped the greatest number of people with 51,184 being combined in 2,838 cases of assistance.

State totals for various types of assistance showed the following cases and number of individuals listed respectively: 11,833 general relief, 51,026; 7,567 WPA, 39,814; 3,880 old age, 9,355; 1,620 dependent children, 8,454; 215 blind, 683; 563 farm security, 3,837.

PICK-A-BACK PLANE LANDS AT NEW YORK

Thirteen hours 29 minutes after leaving Foynes, Ireland, Britain's speedy pick-a-back plane Mercury here shown hooked above the mother plane Maia during a test launching over Cape Bauld, New Brunswick Settlement, in Canada, on her way to New York. She carried a cargo of newspapers, newsreels and news pictures of the experimental flight, forerunner of a projected regular transatlantic service. Once in the air, the Mercury and the Maia parted company perfectly. The Mercury landed at Montreal first for refueling and then speeded on to New York, where she landed safely in Long Island Sound.

SENTENCED IN ASSAULT CASE

Judge Expresses Little Sympathy For Victim, However

While expressing little sympathy for the prosecuting witness, Judge W. A. Darden found Theron Nelson and Jimmie Morris guilty of conspiracy and assault in municipal court this morning and gave Morris a 60-day sentence, suspended for two years upon good behavior and payment of a $10 fine and one-half the costs of court and ordered Nelson to pay half the costs.

The two were accused of conspiring to assault and assaulting H. G. Stokes. Morris, in company with Nelson, is alleged to have gone to the home of Stokes Wednesday night, called him out and "beat him up," after Morris' wife had complained to her husband that Stokes had passed by her house and "flirted" with her, on one occasion calling "hello, honey."

Judge Darden remarked from the bench that he might be inclined to dismiss the charge had Morris given Stokes a beating on the streets, but by going to his home and calling him out and then beating him up made the offense more serious.

The judgment provided that the $10 fine be turned over to Stokes for doctor's treatment for a fractured rib.

W. H. Byrd, young white man, was bound over to Superior court under bond of $200 on a charge of breaking and entering Perkins' Department Store, and ordered held for trial in the higher court under bond of $100 on a charge of larceny of a truck.

Walter Haddock tendered a plea of guilty to drunkenness and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs.

Rolin Baldrice pleaded guilty to being drunk, riotous and disorderly with assault, and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of a $20 fine and court costs. The sentence was suspended for a period of one year upon good behavior. The $20 fine was ordered turned over to Zeb Durham, prosecuting witness. Baldrice also was convicted on another count of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs.

J. C. Galloway, Jr., tendered a plea of guilty to speeding and was fined $10 and costs. It was brought out that he already had settled with a Reidsville man involved in the wreck at the intersection of Evans and Eighth streets, a result of which the charge was brought.

Ellington Bradt, Negro, was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon and given a 90-day sentence, suspended for one year upon good behavior and payment of costs.

Henry Fleming, Negro, was acquitted of assault on a female.

THEY DIDN'T FIGURE ON THE LIGHTNING

Oklahoma City.—(AP)—For seven years agricultural officials carefully selected Oklahoma seeds that resisted drought, pests and disease.

Finally they had strains which they believed would grow exceptionally well in dry weather and would escape diseases. They stored between $10,000 and $20,000 worth in an Oklahoma warehouse near Woodward.

Torrential rains swept the region, lightning struck the warehouse. The carefully chosen seeds were destroyed. Now some of the experiments will have to be started all over again.

Building Permits Appear on Decline

After having set a record last month when the cost of construction, new buildings and repairs, totaled more than $100,000, only eight building permits have been issued so far this month.

The eight permits call for construction costing $8,825, all for repairs, except in one case which is for the erection of a new $1,500 dwelling. One of the repair permits was issued to G. R. Kinney for work on a store building on Evans, between Fourth and Fifth streets.

GERMAN CRAFT SPANS OCEAN

Lands at Port Washington, N. Y., After Trip from Azores

Port Washington, N. Y., July 22.—Germany's 19-ton catapult flying boat, Nordmeer alighted on the waters at this trans-atlantic airport at 8:42 a. m. EST today after a non-stop flight of 2,397 miles across the Atlantic from the Azores in 17 hours, 42 minutes.

It had been tossed into the air at a speed of about 110 miles an hour at 3 p. m. yesterday by its mother ship at Horta, the Azores. The Nordmeer averaged 133 miles an hour on the flight.

Nordmeer's trans-atlantic flight began just eight minutes before Great Britain's seaplane Mercury arrived here after another trans-atlantic flight.

The huge German plane, powered with four oil burnings Daimler engines, passed over the Mercury as she came into her landing.

LATEST VERSION OF 'THE WORM TURNS'

De Kalb, Ill.—(AP)—For a long time Clarence Bale's shepherd dog picked on the pet rabbit. But instead of scampering away the other day the rabbit turned on the dog, leaped upon his back, sunk his teeth into his shoulder and would not let go. Bale had to shoot the rabbit to pry it loose.

The charges were denied by counsel for Solicitor C. C. Cannady, who apparently was renominated.

The Swain charges were not discussed in detail, but the board listed the following findings of fact: C. R. Browning, Jr., Swain Board of Elections chairman and county welfare department statistician, sought to influence the vote of WPA workers.

Rotten Conditions Seen In Swain Election Board

Raleigh, July 22.—Evidence on which the State Board of Elections will make a "clean sweep" of the Swain County election board and practically all subordinate election officials was made public today by state board which held a lengthy hearing in the western county some time ago.

The transcript indicated thoroughly rotten conditions which will undoubtedly lead to a complete change in the Swain county board, either by dismissal or "resignation." Present chairman is Charles R. Browning while other members are E. E. Teague and N. C. Clamett.

Stuffing of ballot boxes, refusal to permit judges to look into the boxes before polling started, mis-calling of ballots during counting, voting of CCC enrollees like "sheep led to the slaughter," coercion and intimidation of WPA workers to make them vote for the "right" candidates, disappearance of poll books in all precincts where there was any controversy, changing of registration books to show practically all voters as of Democratic affiliation and theft of official ballots before the primary was held are items of "fraud and irregularity" either testified to under oath at the Swain hearing or actually found by the State Election board officials.

Investigation of the situation in Swain was set in motion upon complaint of Dr. R. M. Waldroup, who was defeated as a candidate for the House in the June primary. Before the state board held its session in Swain Dr. Waldroup died, and so there is practically no chance that any change in election results will be made by the state board as the result of the things it has uncovered.

Suggestions of evidence which might be available were furnished the state board by Dr. Waldroup before his death, but actual work of digging up the witnesses and arranging for them to testify was done by Raymond C. Maxwell, state

HOLD UTILITY IN VIOLATION FEDERAL ACTS

Bill of Complaint Filed Against Asso. Gas & Electric

PETITION ASKS FOR INJUNCTION

Action Arises as Result of System's Efforts to Extend Investment Certificates

New York, July 22.—(AP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission in a bill of complaint filed in the U. S. District Court here today, charged the Associated Gas and Electric system with violation of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and the Securities Act of 1933.

The SEC action arose as a result of the system's efforts to extend the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation's five and one-half per cent convertible investment certificates which mature November 15.

Attorneys for SEC sought a preliminary injunction against the utility company.

This is the first action of its kind since the 1935 Holding Company legislation was held constitutional by the Supreme court in the Electric Bond and Share case.

The SEC complaint was divided into three parts:

1.—It charged the utility system with violation of the 1935 Holding Company act, in that it did not ask the approval of the commission before it sought extension of the investment certificates. The company seeks to extend the certificates from one to five years.

2.—The SEC further charged that the plan for extension of the certificates is, in effect, a plan for reorganization and must be filed with and approved by the commission. This the complaint said, was not done by the Associated Gas and Electric Company.

3.—The third section of the complaint deals with the Securities Act of 1935, charging the company with selling securities without registering them with the commission, as required by the act.

Big Percentage Of 1937 Bills Passed Found To Be Local

State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson To Address Municipal League - Meet on Home Rule

Raleigh—Seventy-one per cent of all bills enacted into law by the 1937 North Carolina General Assembly were purely local in nature, very few counties, or municipalities, according to an analysis made by the North Carolina League of Municipalities. In 1937 the local or special bills passed constituted sixty-six per cent of all laws enacted.

Thus, in 1935 only twenty-nine per cent of all laws passed were of statewide importance, while in 1937 the statewide legislation consisted of only thirty-four percent of the total. These figures do not take into account the many public laws passed which contained local exceptions or exemptions for certain counties or cities.

Swamped in such a mass of local, special legislation which is not considered the state-wide concern of a state law-making body, the General Assembly of 1937 passed a resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint a commission to study means of limiting or eliminating this nuisance by a constitutional amendment, and report to the General Assembly of 1939. The commission appointed is expected to study the problem not only from the Summer School Students Enroll. Summer school students enrolled yesterday at East Carolina Teachers College for the second part of the summer session—between 400 and 450 of them, with more to come during the next few days.

This usually large second-term enrollment follows a record enrollment for the first term of nearly 750.

Examinations for the first term were held Wednesday, July 20, registration for the second term came on Thursday, and classes began this morning with the first period.

The summer commencement will close all the work of the summer on Friday, August 26. At that time over sixty candidates for graduation expected to be granted their degrees, two-thirds of them having completed their work during the term just closed. President Leon R. Meadows will make the commencement address.

The Valley's farmers attempted to raise sugar beets ten years ago, but lost the crop through disease. Through experimentation, a beet was obtained that is resistant to the disease which wiped out the earlier crop.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By DAN DE LUCE

(Stand-in for Robbin Coons)

Hollywood—Charles Boyer, memorable as Napoleon on the screen last year, meets another kind of Waterloo this week as a French jewel thief in "Algiers."

As the gendarmes would say—cherchez la femme! And that's easy to do. The woman in the case is Hedy Lamarr, sultry-eyed importation from Vienna.

Miss Lamarr, then known as Hedy Kessler, won a Hollywood contract by swimming nude in a foreign film which was called, logically enough, "Ecstasy." Her name changed, her wardrobe multiplied to gorgeous proportions, she makes an exciting American debut.

Banalized by travel folders, North Africa's weird mystery creeps by camera-magic into "Algiers." It is the story of Pepe le Moko (Boyer), fabulous and fantastic criminal, who flees Paris with a fortune in gems, holes up in the native quarter—the casbah—of Algiers, and moks the fuming French detectives who try to smoke him out.

Miss Lamarr is his society light o' love, Sigrid Gurie, the Brooklyn Norwegian, plays his native sweetheart under dark makeup. Even clever Pepe has no answer to the eternal triangle.

For the sinister mood of the thieves' African capital, credit Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart and Johnny Downs with finely shadowed characterizations. Definitely "Algiers" is "different."

A Young Man Scores. It is a re-make of a French movie and on this week's list is another twice-told tale. The Hollywood success of yesteryear, "Gallant Lady," comes back as "Always Goodbye," with Barbara Stanwyck in the mother-role created by Ann Harding.

Tailored by Director Sidney Lanfield almost along comedy lines, the new version introduces a curly-haired moppet, John Russell, who'll make women fans want to hug him.

Dimpled John is Miss Stanwyck's screen son, born out of wedlock. She gives him up so he may have the security of a home and a name, but they meet again on a note of fun and heartbreak.

John's foster father, Ian Hunter, is about to be snared by a fortune-hunter, Lynn Bari. Miss Stanwyck has the problem of how to reclaim her child.

Zany Cesar Romero, flaunting his white-toothed smile, supplies most of the zest as a fast-talking con to whom all women are colossal beautiful. Herbert Marshall plays Miss Stanwyck's loyal suitor.

Raye's Big Laugh. "Tropic Holiday" is no vacation for Martha Raye—she has to fight a bull. As a lady matador, she saves this Mexican musical by Paramount from mediocrity.

Her big mouth buttoned up, Martha is a hi-de-ho shouter no longer. When she horns in on the bullring to free Bob Burns from a Latin jail, she has her funniest scene in many months.

Aside from Martha, Bob and the bull, "Tropic Holiday" also has sweet music by Mexican composer Augustin Lara. His songs supply Dorothy Lamour with her best moments. But without a sarong, it's a less interesting Lamour, though Ray Milland doesn't seem to mind.

"Fast Company" with Melvyn Douglas and Florence Rice, speeds along through a series of comical cut-ups patterned after the Powell-Loy "Thin Man" model. As an innervation, Claire Dodd is the "ther woman."

ANGRY WOMEN FAIL TO STOP ZOOMING PLANES. Tulsa, Okla.—(AP)—Assertions that airplanes flew so low over their restaurant that tablecloths were brown from the tables were contained in a recent claim two women made for $4,300 damages.

The petition contended the planes, landing and taking off from the municipal port, damaged trees, radio aerials and shrubs because of their low flying. The city was asked to stop the planes from "trespassing" on property the two women own. The claim was denied.

IMPARTIAL SOURCE HAILS ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

state has built schools and highway systems far in advance of other Southern states. It maintains both.

"While state taxes reflect these expenditures, counties and municipalities have been able to reduce their taxes.

"The huge amounts necessary for initial construction of these facilities have been largely charged off now and North Carolina's debt is steadily on the decline, not only the state debt, but the debts of subdivisions also. In five years the public debt, in toto, has been reduced an average of $10,000,000 a year.

"Industrialization in the South and the growth of population will inevitably bring pressure on other states for better roads and schools. These other states (North Carolina's competitors) will therefore face larger expenditures and larger debts while Tar Heels are definitely improving their position every year.

The article then quotes Bill Sharpe, manager of the news office of the state advertising division, as follows:

"To the vagabond industrialist this is of no significance. But we believe that wiser commercial ventures will be compelled to take the long view; and when they do, our position becomes very attractive indeed. We are pointing out that the political history of North Carolina is one of honest and progressive administration. No rascality has marred the record, no looting of tax money. Further, there is nowhere in the state any sign of political and social discontent such as we see in some other states. These factors should be of interest to manufacturers who build for permanency."

The article then takes up the land investors and touring angles of the state advertising program. It points out that more than 1,400 direct inquiries have been received from prospective new home seekers. The tourist and vacation advertising has resulted in more than 15,000 injuries.

standpoint of relieving the legislature from the pressure of unnecessary and unimportant work, but, from the standpoint of granting to local units of government constitutional home rule.

This important topic will be discussed at the annual convention of the League of Municipalities to be held in Asheville, August 4-6. Speaking on the subject "The Problem of Local Legislation and Home Rule," Charles M. Johnson, State Treasurer and Director of Local Government, will give his views, which will be followed by general discussion. Mr. Johnson, who was appointed by Governor Hoey as Chairman of the commission to study this problem, is known to be in favor of allowing local matters of policy to be determined by the duly elected local governing boards of governmental units. His address at the League convention is scheduled to be made at 10:45 a. m. on August 5th.

Sixty-Eight School Children Given Treatment

Chapel Hill, July 22—More than 68,000 underprivileged school children of North Carolina were given dental treatment last year in clinics conducted throughout the State by the Oral Hygiene Division of the State Board of Health. Dr. William I. Ferrell, of Troy, said in an address before this week's regular meeting of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club.

More than two-thirds of the counties of the State have already availed themselves of this service for which the State and counties share cost on an equal basis. Dr. Ferrell is one of 22 dentists attending the Institute of Public Health Dentistry which has been in progress at the University for the last six weeks.

Indications are that more than 70,000 children will be given dental treatment under this program during the coming school year. Dr. Ferrell said.

"When we consider that our children are our greatest asset, that the child of today is the citizen of tomorrow, we get a clear picture of the value of this service," he said. "Ninety-three per cent of the disease causing germs enter our bodies through the mouth. Therefore, health programs. A survey has shown that at least 85 per cent of the million children in our schools need dental care, and that a dentist's office is unknown to 55 per cent of these children."

Since only the indigent children are given treatment free, those who are able to pay are referred to the family dentist, the local dentist and school authorities co-operate wholeheartedly in this program, Dr. Ferrell said.

Coins were also manufactured at cost for Honduras, Nicaragua, Columbia and China.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. HYE

The Story So Far

Someone is out to bust the Rafter T ranch. To help lovely Lee Trone, "Blue" Ankrom takes a job there under the name of Streeter. The range is wiped clean by rustlers, and a man and woman posing as friends of the Trones are revealed as impostors. The man is mysteriously shot, but the girl, Betty, stays on.

Chapter 19 Hurt And Anger

FOR a man to be sure that a thing is so, is one matter; for a man to be sure that a thing is so and then be forced to listen to some woman's corroboration of that unpleasant fact is quite another. In the days that followed Betty Struther's revelation that Lee considered him a gun man, Ankrom rode the range with bitter thoughts and somber countenance. His glance took on a colder inscrutability, his lips an unhappier twist. As foreman of the Rafter T he got the ranch work done, but his manner of getting it done warped the playful dispositions of his men and left them saturnine as he was himself.

As Alkali one day put it to Windy Jones, "Ridin' for this Streeter wolf is sure gonna sap every drop o' the milk of human kindness from my system, Windy. ef I keep it up much longer, 'F it wasn't for Miz Lee, by cripes, I'd that Ankrom came riding in to the home ranch to find Lee Trone leaning against a post of the veranda. Then she called him softly. To his surprise he found his horse moving toward her. Chagrined he suddenly swung the buckskin's head around and rode him in the opposite direction, dismounting stiffly by the pole corral. Later he was eating a cold snack the cook had grudgingly got together when a shadow darkened the shack door and, looking up, Ankrom found Lee Trone's green eyes upon him oddly. In silence he continued eating, let her stand there. He'd be damned if he'd speak first!

"Your education in manners, Abe, seems to have been neglected," she said coldly. "Resentfully he doffed his battered hat. The sunlight streaming in the open doorway struck across his rumpled sandy hair and burnished it like copper. He stood stiffly by the table and his glance held no sign of friendship.

"What do you want—?" "I wanted to see you, Abe, but I didn't know you'd be eating. I called to you when you rode in but I guess you didn't hear me." "Well?" he said. "If you have somethin' on your mind, go ahead an' air it."

"To The Last Gasp!" "THERE'S an unpleasant change come over you in the last few days. If you don't like it here you're free to leave when the no tell that dang slave driver a thing or two an' pull my picket pin an' drift."

"I expect you'd pull yore picket pin, all right," Jones grinned. "But if you went to handin' Streeter any gas I don't reckon you'd do a heap o' driftin'."

"Ankrom realized his growing unpopularity with the men, he must not have cared, for he gave it no attention nor modified his treatment. As much as possible he kept away from them, taking many long rides into the surrounding country. Visits to the home ranch were made no more frequently than absolute necessity demanded, and then were brief.

Two emotions swayed him—hurt and anger. He was hurt by the knowledge that to Lee Trone he was in much the same category as a bonnet—a thing of use to be discarded when its use was ended. His anger had been roused by a number of things, but chiefly by the discovery that Lee's reported opinion of her "ired hano could so effectively throw him out of stride.

To be sure, he had repeatedly reflected her opinion of him was deserved. It was practically his own estimate of himself that first night of his arrival when they'd sat in the touring car together in the darkness of the stable. At that time, however, she had rejected that estimate, had protested vehemently against it, and he—blind fool—had believed her protestation sincere. He had taken pride in thinking that the only barrier to a friendlier relationship between them was the barrier raised by himself. That Struthers' dame was right; what he knew about women was best left unmentioned.

Ankrom's Code HE COULD quit the ranch, of course; he could throw this job in old Trone's face and go his way. That is, he could do so, had he not passed his word to see this unknown business through to the end. In Ankrom's code the moral acceptance of a commission was binding as the strongest contract; his given word was a thing by which he had always abided, and he must abide by it now.

It was early afternoon one day about a fortnight after his illuminating conversation with Betty, tion strikes you," she told him coolly. "If you're in a hurry you can come up to the house and get your time right now."

"Surprise showed in Ankrom's glance. Then his features resumed their former inscrutability.

"When I make a bargain I keep it. If you feel like releasing me from my word, go ahead. But I'm telling you right now that I ain't goin' to be rid of that easy. I'm not gettin' out of this till the ol' man sends me walkin' down the road. Like I told your tough sheriff, I'm a gent that sticks to the last gasp!"

"You seem to have a pretty good opinion of yourself," she said with curling lip then asked, "have you found out yet who's in charge of the rustling activities on this range?"

"No I haven't yet—but I will."

"It must be nice to have such confidence as ours."

"Confidence, ma'am, is part of a gun man's stock in trade."

He saw that he had scored. The smile slipped off her lips.

"I could name a number of less desirable things which seem to be a part of you," she retorted. "Yes, ma'am, I expect you could," he said and began twirling his hat. It surprised him to find that Lee Trone's charm was as effective as ever. Just being near her did things to him; accelerated his pulse, made his stormy heart miss beats, and caused his blood to flow more swiftly.

He resented her power to sway him. He felt ashamed to realize that he could still feel interest in a girl whose expressed opinion of him was steeped in cold contempt. What kind of a man was he? Did Lee Trone affect all men so?

His glance took in her overalls and woolen shirt, yet did not see them. He was conscious only that these rough clothes could not conceal the grace of her slender body, could not detract from the spirited poise of her head.

He said, "If the talk-fest is over, I'll get on with my eatin'."

The green eyes raked him furiously. The next moment she was gone.

resistance to infection. But it is true that when the diet is lacking in protective elements and is quantitatively inadequate, the individual becomes more susceptible to infection.

Those who consume a restricted diet are frequently subject to vague ill health.

Lack of appetite, digestive disorders and vague pains and discomforts not due to organic disease are found frequently among women who eat too sparingly in order to be stylishly thin.

Food faddists who are fidgety about the foods they eat are frequently faddists because they are fidgety and fidgety because they are faddists. This vicious circle could be broken by the courage to eat enough food of the right kind.

How's Your Health?

Added for the New York Academy of Medicine By Iago Goldston, M.D.

Good Food And Plenty Of It

So much emphasis has been placed of late on the qualitative value of food that we are likely to overlook the quantitative aspect.

It is of course vital that one's diet should contain an adequate amount of vitamins and mineral salts, but we must not overlook its contents in terms of calories and of proteins, fats and carbohydrates. In other words, an abundant diet is as essential as a diet of first class quality.

Experience in treating a number of diseases has taught us the importance of seeing that the patient eats enough food.

Not long ago a typhoid patient used to receive little more than broth and milk. Today, though no specific treatment for typhoid is yet available, the patient fares much better because he is fed more generously.

Sufferers from Bright's disease, too, used to be seriously restricted in their protein intake. But today it is known that this type of patient does much better when he is fed an adequate amount of protein food.

The same modification in treatment has been applied to patients suffering from high blood pressure of unknown cause and from hardening of the kidney.

The value of the more abundant diet, however, is seen not only in their prevention. Thus it is found that resistance to infection as well as growth and development is favored by an abundant diet.

It is of course not true that addition of vitamins to an already adequate diet will increase one's

Washington—Old line Kentucky politicians would be glad for a return of the old days when outside interference in primaries was limited.

The Barkley-Chandler contest isn't following that pattern. Time was when Kentucky primaries were little short of revolutions, but gradually there grew up a system in which each candidate worked for himself.

Our information is that such was especially true regarding U. S. senators until Governor Chandler bowed over the idea in 1936 by turning his state organization against Senator Logan, without success.

Chandler has made Kentucky political history ever since in 1935 at the age of 37 he whipped an opposing state organization under Governor Ruby Laffoon and won the Democratic nomination for governor.

He paved the way for this feat by calling a special session of the legislature when Governor Laffoon left the state, leaving Chandler, then lieutenant governor, in charge.

The legislature, following Chandler's lead, instituted a general primary, which partly nullified the force of Laffoon's state organization.

Chandler's victory over Laffoon's candidate, Thomas S. Rhea, was an amazing upset and split the party so widely that both Senators Barkley and Logan had to rush to Kentucky to campaign in the general elections for Chandler.

At that time Chandler's nomination and election were hailed as New Deal victories, since Laffoon had broken with Roosevelt.

That title of "Happy" was not given Chandler for nothing. He is a back-slapping, mammy-singing campaigner with a friendly way that charms even some of his political opponents. But he is no political peacemaker. His history is studied with battling headlines.

It's Different Now

Friends of Senator Logan say that in 1936 Chandler promised "hands off" in the primary. Instead he not only put up his own candidate, former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, but brought upon himself charges from a third candidate, Rep. John Young Brown, that he had failed him of promised support.

Barkley associates now say that Chandler once agreed not to enter the lists against Kentucky's senior Senator, only to decide later to seek the job himself.

The whole picture has changed in three years. In 1935, Chandler's election was declared to have "saved Kentucky for Roosevelt in 1936." This year President Roosevelt moves in to Kentucky in an effort to defeat Chandler and save Barkley. In 1935, Republicans protested WPA workers were directed to help Chandler. Now Chandler charges WPA is being used against him.

To a degree the situation has put Chandler in a false light. He is spotlighted as the candidate of Roosevelt's enemies. Yet he continues to profess his loyalty to the President.

So much of the betting money is on Barkley that some observers thought Chandler could have guaranteed himself a political future by withdrawing, with the explanation that he had been put in the false position of opposing Roosevelt. But Chandler is not waiting for futures.

Dr. Walter H. W. Marselle, German psychologist and mathematician, claims to have invented five suit bridge.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, July 22—A Mecklenburg grand jury has just told the county officials what it wants done about certain things over there.

All of which makes good reading but doesn't mean a thing, as the jury hasn't the slightest control over what the commissioners do or don't do except where existing laws are being violated.

Incidentally that made about the third grand jury recently to get in the public prints through its more or less political activity.

In Guilford a judge expressed the opinion the jury which first probed High Point's election rumpus was without authority to do so.

In Forsyth another judge clearly said that the grand jury over there hasn't an iota of authority to recommend anything to the county.

Recent news will probably be heard from in a few days in as reason for dismal prophecies about North Carolina crops.

Just now, however, a flue cured tobacco in eastern counties has shown remarkable improvement in the past two or three weeks, according to Lloyd T. Weeks, assistant extension tobacco specialist at State College.

CORRIGAN

Corrigan's outstanding characteristic is his determination. Folks told him that the 1929 Curtiss-Robin, which he bought in New York seven years ago for $310, wasn't fit to fly.

He said "Shucks, I'll fix that." And he took 13 days to ferry the antique from New York to California. He tinkered with the plane, after taking it apart and putting it back together again. Then he decided its 90-horsepower engine wasn't powerful enough. So he bought two used Wright engines, took the best parts of each and made one good engine. Total cost of repairs and overhauling, $590. All together, the plane set him back $900.

Corrigan was and probably is determined to be a transport pilot. He's told friends he'd rather fly a big plane than do anything.

Mr. Langford, a Baptist minister who used to be a newspaperman, "traded" rides in his little yawl for rides in his nephew's airplane. Douglas learned practical navigation from his uncle and theoretical navigation from books. The trade deal ended when Doug put an extra gas tank in the cabin, which took up the passenger's place.

"Silent Doug" is five feet six inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has blue eyes and wavy brown hair. He is of Irish and German descent—mostly Irish. His forbears came from the north of Ireland. He sold papers to pay his way through high school. His parents died when he was young. His father was killed by a freight engine in New York; his mother died of grief a few months later.

He got a job making deliveries after school. It was dull, so he quit when he heard that a company building metal monoplanes, might take on some hands. Sure enough, he got a job in the Ryan plant. He helped bolt the gas tanks onto many planes, including the one destined for Lindbergh. From the day Lindbergh flew to Paris, Doug was a goner.

He dressed like Lindbergh, acted like him. To escape attention, he even flew non-stop to New York when the crowds were giving huzzas to his five big-name flyers who had just flown around the world. And he stood for clean living. His uncle says Doug always has been that way. Doesn't smoke or drink or swear. Occasionally, he attends his uncle's church and he always takes part in the family's home devotions.

He never has spent a cent foolishly. And he even started himself so he would have extra money to put into his airplane. For lunch, he frequently drank only half of his pint of milk and ate only half of his sandwich so he'd have some left for supper.

All the time he was aiming for one thing: to fly, and fly well, so he could land a job as a co-pilot on a big transport.

When word of the flight to Ireland got around the airports where Silent Doug and his "clippers" are known, the reactions were varied. One pilot said Doug ought to have his head examined. Others said "incredible" and "astounding."

But one said, "He'll get that job now. I don't think he was any more foolhardy than Lindbergh was. That flight took courage and that's what aviation needs."

Silent Doug, who used to get $35 a week and who has been out of work for two months, may very possibly come back and step into the job he's always wanted in one of the giant air liners—so new and trim and modern—that he's always admired.

You have to give a fellow credit for trying, especially when he does it the hard way.

What It Means: 3 AMERICA'S RELIEF PROBLEM

Hodge-Podge Plan Suits No One; So What?

Everyone agrees that relief is a No. 1 American problem; but not the experts agree on a No. 1 answer. Here Morgan Beatty, in the last of three articles discusses work relief vs. dole, and surveys proposed ways out.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—Unemployment relief in the United States is a patched-up job—patched up from expedients designed to meet the 1929 depression.

As a result, the relief received by a destitute family depends on the source of the money—federal, state, county, or city.

You have one group of 2,600,000 parative luxury of $53 a month each, which is itself below the minimum living standard set up by WPA co-operating with the United States department of labor. And you have another group of 2,000,000 getting an average dole of about $25 each a month.

That's generally recognized as a cock-eyed state of affairs, but the question of what other method or system should be adopted is still unsolved.

Cheap—At a Price

If you are asking which is cheaper, most authorities reply the dole costs less, because with it you do not have to pay for materials that go into WPA work relief. Thus the dole apparently would save the taxpayer at least $26.80 per month per relief case. He would not have, however, thousands of local improvements that work relief has accounted for.

But if you are asking which is better, you've opened up a dark labyrinth out of which no debater has come with a whole skin.

Obviously Director Harry Hopkins and his WPA staff are sold on work relief and they can cite statistics and facts by the yard. On the other hand, many a critic barks that work relief costs too much, that it is making bums out of citizens or that it's all rotten politics anyway. The critics cite the "coercion" of relief votes by political supervisors. They tell you how Harry Hopkins himself endorsed a candidate for the senate in Iowa recently. They say "reliefers" are forced to wear buttons and get out the vote.

Arguments at either extreme seem a little too pat.

They Are Not Bums So let's turn to a sharp critic of WPA, who also is a recognized authority on relief, and get his opinion on two points, work relief vs. the dole, and the character of relief clients.

The man is Charles P. Taft, the lawyer, who is chairman of the public welfare committee of Cincinnati, and a national figure in private relief enterprises. Taft is a Republican.

Here is what Mr. Taft had to say early this year:

"There are many business men who have not come within squares of either public or private welfare agencies, who say.... 'All reliefers are bums.' That is not true. It never has been. At the time of the depression there was a 10 per cent turnover in relief clients, which means 100 per cent in a year. We have not got a soggy mass at the bottom. It has constantly changed. Somebody goes off and somebody else comes on. Reliefers are not bums...."

"Those who are not on relief are so utterly confused and shaken by the new spectre of depression that they are permitting treatment of fellow human beings that can only be described as cruel. They are confused about work and relief. They are told that WPA is now employing all employables who need help. This is not true today. And it never was true...."

No Easy Way Out The most prominently mentioned plan is the Republican suggestion that the federal government match

What About Politics?

"Don't mistake me. WPA is a good work program, but it costs twice as much as it needs to...."

And what if the federal government and the states pooled their money into one system, supervised by the federal government but handled by local authorities?

"In November of last year," was his reply, "my guess is that if the money would have been spent for direct relief in the homes (the dole). My experience in my own community, however, since that time, convinces me that there is a tremendous pressure for work relief...."

So apparently leaders in both major parties agree that work relief is the kind of relief the public wants. As for politics in relief, it is impossible to settle that issue. People have been dismissed from WPA for political activity, so there must be some dirty work at the cross roads. But nobody has yet uncovered a national scandal. And there are different ways of interpreting any disclosures made.

As for alternatives to the present patch-work of emergency relief, they are difficult to put into practice because most of them require a highly centralized administration, presumably from Washington, which would invite critics to shout that the country had a relief dictator.

No Easy Way Out The most prominently mentioned plan is the Republican suggestion that the federal government match dollars with the states. That is, perhaps 75 per cent could be paid by the federal government, and 25 per cent by the states and localities. For every local dollar put up in a state, three federal dollars would be sent to match it. In addition, a special fund for poor states would be set up, and the federal government would supervise the standards of relief administration to be used just as it does in the case of social security.

Other plans call for a single, vast dole system, with or without a public works program to furnish employment not for relief workers, but for idle workers generally.

While you are thinking over the relief problem, and what ought to be done about it, here are a few facts Harry Hopkins, the federal relief administrator, suggested to the Senate the other day:

"The unemployment relief situation will never correct itself automatically. We have a constant increase in the working population. Since 1935, we have had an increase of over a million. There is a net increase every year of 500,000 workers. There are coming in (to the labor market) 700,000 each year, and you lose by death and other reasons, 700,000, leaving a net increase of half a million workers every year in America."

Maybe Corrigan's Hop Was Crazy But Remember that Man Lindbergh?

Charles A. Lindbergh and "The Spirit of St. Louis," May 19, 1927.

Douglas G. Corrigan and his 9-year-old "flying crate" July 17, 1938

(By The AP Feature Service) Another "flying fool" has written his name in aviation's books.

The first was Charles A. Lindbergh. His emulator is Douglas G. Corrigan.

On May 12, 1927, Lindbergh arrived at Roosevelt Field, L. I., unannounced. The field was buzzing with activities of Commander Richard E. Byrd and his crew and Clarence Chamberlain and Charles Levine, preparing for their ocean hops.

Hardly anyone noticed the slim, gangling youth of 25 tinkering with his machine which he had flown from San Diego, Calif., to Roosevelt Field in two hops, one a record. Because of cramped pilot's quarters, Lindbergh had to use a periscope on take-offs and landings. On May 19, he took off for Paris, arrived 33 hours later.

On July 9, 1938, Corrigan arrived unannounced at Roosevelt Field, having flown his $900 9-year-old plane non-stop from Long Beach, Calif., in 10 minutes under 28 hours.

With extra gas tanks blocking his view, Corrigan had to bank his ship whenever he wanted to get bearings. Long Island airports were humming with the news of another big hop—it was the eve of the Howard Hughes round-the-world flight. On the morning of July 17, Corrigan took off once more, heading out over the Atlantic. The next day he was in Ireland. The 31-year-old flier made it in 28 hours, 13 minutes.

Greenies Lose, 3-1, As Malone Pitches Two-Hit Game

EDDIE PUZZLE TO LOCAL CLUB

Greenville Held Hitless in Eight of Nine Innings By Serps' Hurler; Spence Did Well for Greenies, Allowing But 6 Hits and Three Runs

The Greenies were held to a mealy two hits in Tarboro yesterday afternoon and were defeated by the Serpents, 3-1. It was a real pitchers' duel between Spence and Malone. Tarboro was able to get only six hits off Spence. Daniels and Christopher were the only Greenies able to reach the Tarboro hurler for a safe hit, both of these coming in the second inning, Christopher's blow sending in Daniels who had tripped. Greenville made two errors to Tarboro's score. Tarboro scored two in its half of the second frame to take the lead from the Greenies and added another in the sixth. The win ran Tarboro's current winning streak to four. The two teams were scheduled to meet at Third Street park this afternoon, weather permitting. Tomorrow the Greenies will go to New Bern for a double-header, the first game being scheduled to begin at 2:15. The Bears will be here for the Sunday game.

Branch Rickey Offers 'Tonic' For Nationals

San Francisco, July 22.—(AP)—Branch Rickey, guiding spirit of the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday prescribed for the National league a tonic which includes "more unity and coherence and a concerted dislike for the rival American league." To the question "What's wrong with the National League?" the vice president of the Cardinals replied: "Plenty." He sized it up this way: "For 50 years the National League clubs have concentrated attention on beating each other. The American League and the world's series have been regarded only as incidents. One club has thought only in terms of their own league and winning the pennant. The result was inevitable. After the pennant race, the let-down set in. Instead of bristling with fighting spirit and adopting an attitude of 'now to clean up on those American league upstarts' our winning team much of the time figuratively has yawned while remembering it had a world's series engagement coming up." Rickey pointed out that the American League came into being as "an opposition league." It's attitude, he said, "always has been one of tremendous partisanship against the National League."

Big First Inning Is Enough To Beat Aces

Ayden, July 22.—Ernest Painter, Ayden southpaw flinger didn't get into yesterday's game with Williamston soon enough. Manager Frank Rodgers of the Aces called on Brax Rhodes, former Wake Forest athlete, to start on the mound. The Martins hopped Rhodes for five hits and three runs while he was retiring one batter. Pantre then came on the scene, and for the rest of the afternoon the Martins were well-behaved fellows. Painter yielded only three hits, and nary a Martin managed to get past second base. These first inning runs were more than Larry Wade. Williamston's hurler, needed. He held the Aces to eight hits and came off with a 3-1 victory. Ayden's tally came in the second inning—on a walk, Jirak's single, and Purcell's fly to deep right. Hans Stanley, with two singles for four turns, topped the Martins. Milton Jirak, with three for four, was the home club's batting ace. Score by innings: R. H. E. Williamston . . . 3 0 0 0 0—3 8 0 Ayden . . . 1 0 0 0 0—1 8 0 Wade and Wilcox; Rhodes, Painter and Purcell.

Top Hitter Morris Is Just Another Rookie

When Phil Morris was with the New Bern Bears in pre-season training, "prospects stories" on the club listed him as a former Southern Association player who had played semi-pro ball in Georgia in recent seasons. Morris was listed as "a former Southern Association ball player" in an item, published yesterday, telling of his transfer from Greenville to Ayden. It seems that Morris, the Coastal Plain league's top hitter, is not a "former" player of any professional league—his first pro contract, according to records in the National Association office, was with New Bern for this season. He went from the Bears to the Greenies, and thence to Ayden. Since his pro experience is confined to Coastal Plain play, Morris is classed as a "rookie" in that league. Had he played in the Southern—as many as ten games—he'd be an "unlimited class player" in the Coastal.

During the siege of Paris in 1871 there were 64 balloons sent up with 91 passengers, 354 pigeons and 3,000,000 letters.

Aces Lose Ball Game, But Cop Field Meet

Ayden, July 22.—Ayden couldn't win yesterday's ball game with the Williamston Martins, but the Aces won a field meet first place in four of five events. Bill Herring was the locals' individual star—he copped firsts in funning event. In the throw to second base—Joe Baba of the Aces took first by pegging the ball into the barrel on one of three tries. Bill Shipway of the Martins hit the rim on his best try. The feature of the meet was the walking-running event. Bill Herring started walking from second, while Steve Lakotas, running full speed and starting from home plate, tried to catch Bill before he could walk home. Bill beat Steve to the plate by four steps. The results: Pungo-hitting—Herring, Ayden; Breezy Beard, Williamston; 100-yard dash—Bill Rhinehard, Williamston; Hans Stanley, Williamston. Throw to second—Baba, Ayden; Shipway, Williamston. Throw for distance—George Biershenk, Ayden; Joe Wilcox, Williamston; Walking-runnings—Herring, Ayden; Lakotas, Williamston.

Water and Light continued its climb in the Greenville softball league yesterday afternoon, scoring a victory over the Auto Dealers to the tune of 8 to 3. Both teams played good ball, the losers got nine hits to 10 for the winners. The utilities men, however, hit at more opportune moments and made their blows count for more runs. The Professional men failed to show up for a scheduled game with Blount-Harvey and the department store added another victory to its list via the forfeiture route.

Bullpen Berry Chalks Up Another Victory

New Bern, July 22.—Leonard (Bullpen) Berry won himself another ball game yesterday. And even his quiet modesty couldn't dim his performance. Berry struck out eight and issued no walks while pitching five-hit ball in a 4-1 victory over Snow Hill.

A homer in the third inning by Harry Soufas gave the Billies their score. The Bears made three in the 3rd on Anderson's double. Roth's fly, Knowles' single, and Burge's two-run homer.

New Berns other run, made in the sixth, came on a walk, an infield out and Mack's single. Score by innings: R. H. E. Snow Hill . . . 001 000 0—1 5 0 New Bern . . . 003 001 0—4 8 1

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Feeble rallies punctuated a rather drab stock market today and, despite an assortment of soft spots, leading issues managed to close moderately ahead.

The list suffered a mild sinking spell in the morning when the SEC picked out the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation as a fresh utility target.

Volume was comparatively small in either direction, transfers approximating 1,250,000 shares.

FIND CHARGES WELL FOUNDED
The Avery county dispute involved the sheriff's race and the Republican second primary. Charges of irregularities were brought by D. W. Burleson, who apparently was defeated for the nomination by Sheriff W. H. Hughes.

MORGAN CHARGES TVA EMPLOYEES GAGGED

Asserting that TVA officials had instructed employees of the Authority "not to talk" to him and that he could question them only through Francis Biddle, committee counsel, Dr. Arthur E. Here Morgan (right) is cross-examined before the congressional committee by Biddle—only it looks like both rae talking at the same time.

board secretary, who made a personal probe of conditions in the county before the board met in Swain.

Mr. Maxwell reported that examination of the registration books showed that practically all voters are now shown to be affiliated with the Democratic party, the "R" affix-hundreds of names having been changed to "D" in the books. All witnesses before the board agreed that practically no effort was made on primary day to check on any voter's affiliation, the ballots of both parties were laid out on a table at the polls and each voter picked up whichever he wanted to.

Most of them chose the Democratic ballot as is shown by the fact that in the June polling something more than 3,000 votes were cast in the Democratic primary—about a third and more than normal.

Mr. Browning, the county election board chairman, testified that he used the office of W. E. Elmore, county commission chairman and candidate to succeed himself, as the election board's headquarters for several weeks before the primary. Official ballots (some 6,000 of them) printed 15 days before the primary were kept in the Elmore office in an unlocked cabinet.

A second printing of ballots was made the afternoon before the primary after Browning had suspected from the "bulk" of ballots on hand that a large part of the 6,000 had been stolen.

Browning also testified he did not know what has become of the poll books as the four precincts were fraud and irregularities were charged (Bryson City 1 and 2, Ela and Crisp). He said he had received three requests from the State Board for the total registration in Swain but had answered none of them. It would take about an hour to make up the total, he said.

At Bryson City precinct No. 1 the "Doorkeeper" (Mr. Maxwell said this is a new type election official of whom he never heard before) testified that he took the poll book to the Sheriff's office after the voting, but it can't now be located. This doorkeeper said the last numbered voter on the book was 662 or 663. Tabulation showed 719.

There was also testimony that at No. 1 Glenn Sitton, registrar, refused to open the ballot box as voting began early in the morning until he had cleared the room of everyone. He said he had no key, and the box was finally broken open when nobody but Sitton was in the room.

There was further testimony from the "Doorkeeper" that later Sitton was seen stuffing ballots into the box though there were no voters in line. This while both judges were out of the room. The doorkeeper also said Sitton laughingly commented to him on the box opening: "That's the first time you ever saw a box broken open while the key was right in your pocket."

Witnesses swore that votes were misallotted at Bryson No. 2 by the registrar, a Mr. Welch.

At Ela precinct, Republican Judge

J. M. Dougan swore, the Democratic officials wouldn't let him look in the Democratic boxes when voting began.

"This is your box" he said they told him as they pointed to the Republican ballot box. "You watch that box. You be certain to let this one alone (pointing to the Democratic boxes)" he swore they told him.

"And I didn't raise any argument," he added.
It was at Ela that Dougan said more than 100 CCC enrollees were voted in herds.
"They drove them like sheep to the slaughter," he said, adding that when one or two of the youngsters wanted to mark their own ballots markers took the tickets away from them saying "We'll do that."
At Crisp precinct ballot boxes were opened just as balloting started and about 200 ballots said to have been old ones left over from the last election" were removed.

There was little definite testimony regarding coercion of WPA workers, but reliable reports indicate that a number of affidavits regarding this phase have been sent to Harry Hopkins, WPA head in Washington.
