BORDER MARKS PREPARE OPEN 1938 AUCTIONS

Farmers Find Cheer in Reports From Georgia Centers

NO OPPOSITION TO QUOTA PLAN

Mounting Piles Golden Weed Flowing Into Sixteen Markets in Border Belt

Florence, S. C., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Mounting piles of tobacco flowed today into warehouses of 16 South Carolina and North Carolina border market towns as optimistic growers prepared expectantly for tomorrow's opening of the 1938 auction season.

The farmers found cheer in the reports of prices paid in the Georgia-Florida markets, which opened July 28, and where an average of around 25 cents a pound has been established. Last year's opening in the nine South Carolina markets and the seven North Carolina border markets approached 30 cents.

So far there have been no reports of organized opposition in this territory to the Federal quotas, against which some Florida and Georgia growers have taken legal action.

The Eastern Carolina markets will open on August 25.

May Consider New Highway Program

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The special session of the legislature next week may be asked to authorize a highway betterment program in addition to PWA-financed permanent improvements at state institutions.

Governor Hoy said he had asked the Advisory Budget Commission to hear all requests for buildings for institutions, and then hear Chairman Frank Dunlap of the Highway and Public Works Commission on plans to eliminate dangerous curves and widen narrow highways.

The money for the highways, as well as for the buildings, would have to come from a bond issue which could not exceed $6,366,227, Governor Hoy said, but that amount would represent only 55 per cent of the possible building program if the PWA would match all the funds.

He said he emphasized to the budget makers that they should recommend to the special legislative session only such buildings as it was found were necessary.

ACL PETITION BEING ARGUED

Officials of Railroad Claim Branches are Losing Money

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad continued today to present testimony that operation of passenger trains on three Eastern North Carolina branch lines was a losing proposition.

The railroad has petitioned the Utilities Commission to be allowed to stop service between Kinston and Weldon, Washington and Parmele, and Tarboro and Plymouth.

C. M. Cobb, superintendent of the Norfolk division, underwent a grueling examination regarding sanitary facilities afforded on the involved trains. L. F. Ormond, assistant comptroller, was recalled for more financial testimony.

L. White, in charge of mail operations for the railroad, testified he believed proposed star mail routes would give better service than the present trains. He was examined as to income from mail contracts.

NEW CAROLINA IS COMPLETED

Floyd McGowan To Operate City's Largest Warehouse

With the New Carolina Warehouse on Dickinson avenue completed here, the Greenville tobacco market this year will operate with an even dozen warehouses to handle an anticipated heavy flow of the golden weed.

Containing 75,000 square feet of floor space, the new tobacco firm is the largest warehouse in Greenville and one of the largest in Eastern North Carolina. Adequate lighting facilities prevail throughout, and comfortable lounging quarters have been provided for friends and customers.

Floyd McGowan, a native of Pitt County who has actively engaged in the warehouse industry in Greenville for the past 15 years, is proprietor and manager of the organization.

Orlie Hill, an experienced auctioneer, will serve in this capacity with the New Carolina Warehouse this season. Assistant sales managers will be Linnie Edwards and Lyman L. Lassiter, both experienced in this type of work.

Plenty of parking space is available, and the size of the warehouse permits farmers to unload their tobacco without congestion difficulties.

FOES, FRIENDS OF ROOSEVELT DIVIDE HONORS

Sen. Clark of Missouri, Court Bill Enemy, Victorious

SENATOR MCGILL WINS IN KANSAS

Administration Supporters Nominated in West Va., Defeated in Virginia

(By The Associated Press)

Roosevelt backers and anti-administration candidates divided the Democratic honors today in four primary elections.

Senator Clark of Missouri, foe of the court bill and other White House measures, won a landslide re-nomination. So did Senator McGill of Kansas, loyal follower of the President.

Their victories were not unexpected, however, for both had the active backing of their state party organizations. President Roosevelt had taken no part in either race.

The same division extended to nominations for house seats in two other states. Three West Virginia representatives who have supported the President defeated their opponents, but in Virginia two avowed New Dealers lost out.

Rep. Smith of Virginia, whose district includes the "home town" of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, won a three-to-one victory over William Dodd, Jr., son of the former Ambassador to Germany. The vote, with 10 precincts missing, was Smith 19,601; Dodd, 6,530.

Smith, a rules committee member who fought the Wage-Hour bill, claimed the right to vote as he thought best on administration measures while the 32-year-old Dodd had said "a vote for me is a vote for Roosevelt."

The only other Virginia house race was much closer. Rep. Hamilton calling himself pro-Roosevelt despite his vote against the government reorganization bill, lost by about 1,500 votes to former Representative Darden, whom he had unseated in 1936. Hamilton said Darden was backed by Sen. Harry Byrd's (Continued on page three)

Says Officer Slew Maine Physician

South Paris, Maine, Aug. 3.—(AP) Paul Dwyer, 18-year-old convicted slayer of a country doctor, today named former Deputy Sheriff F. M. Carroll as the man who committed the murder for which Dwyer is now serving a life sentence.

Dwyer was called to the stand to accuse Carroll, father of five children, of the brutal murder of Dr. Littlefield for which Dwyer was sentenced to life imprisonment eight months ago.

Special Prosecutor R. M. Ingalls, who painted Carroll, a World war veteran, as a "vicious" killer who had threatened to shoot the boy if he told the truth, had planned to place Dwyer on the stand yesterday, but as his name was called, the youth faltered—stricken with indignation brought on from heat and nervousness.

Ingalls described to an all-male jury yesterday the state's version of the Littlefield murder. He carefully eschewed, however, mentioning how Lydia Littlefield, the physician's elderly spouse, whom Dwyer had confessed garroting, met her death.

Farm Bureau Meet Here August 17th

E. P. Arnold of Raleigh, executive secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, was in the city today working with Pitt County farm bureau officials relative to mapping plans for the annual meeting of the State unit to be held here August 17 in the Robert H. Wright memorial auditorium at East Carolina Teachers College.

It is estimated that from 5,000 to 8,000 persons representing farm bureaus of sixty North Carolina counties will attend the session, which will be earmarked by the presence of National and State dignitaries, and election of officers for the State Farm Bureau for the ensuing year.

Edward A. O'Neil, president of the American Farm Bureau, is slated to speak on problems confronting farm bureaus of the nation today. P. R. Wilcox, director of the marketing agreement division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, whose work is confined to the peanut division program and purchasing program for truck growers, will likely relate factors of vital importance in his particular field.

One of the major addresses will be delivered by J. B. Hutson, assistant administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment program. Administrator Hutson is expected to know more about the tobacco situation, and has more to do with present problems confronting tobacco growers than any other person in the Administration.

John W. Goodman, assistant extension director at State College, will relate factors about extension work being done at the educational institution with which he is affiliated.

Immediately following the morning session at the College, a barbecue luncheon for the Pitt County Farm Bureau, composed of approximately 150 members, will be held. (Continued on page six)

TO WAGE DRIVE ON SANITATION

Sewer Connections to Be Prime Objective of Campaign

According to the local Health Department the sanitary conditions in the City of Greenville, in spite of the constant efforts of the City Sanitary Inspector, "are very unsatisfactory."

The Pitt County Health Officer, Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, and the City Sanitary Inspector, Mr. J. T. Welch, after conference with City Officials have decided to put on a sanitary drive. This drive has two objectives: first, to get sewer connection for all property available to sewer lines; second to get a sanitary privy for all other property.

Dr. Ennett called attention to the fact that under the State Privy Law all city property not having sewer connections is required to have a sanitary privy and, he added, the State Health Department looks to the local Health Department as its agent, to enforce this Law. He stated however that neither the State Health Department nor the Local Health Department consider the privy a satisfactory substitute for sewer connections.

Mr. Welch explained that from a business standpoint, as well as from a health standpoint, the property owner should not connect with the sewer rather than build a privy for the reason that the suspended City Ordinance requiring sewer connection will go into effect early next year—that is April 1, 1939—but he added the State Privy Law will be immediately enforced unless arrangements are made for sewer connections.

Dr. Ennett emphasized the importance of sewer connection by saying that "Every privy is not only a potential focus of disease but also a stumbling block to the growth of any city."

Both Dr. Ennett and Mr. Welch express the hope that the citizens as a whole will co-operate in this drive for improved sanitation in the City of Greenville.

Health officials declared Mr. Welch's office is in the Pitt County Health Department and he is ready to serve the citizens of Greenville in every possible way. The phone is 130.

PITT LAWYERS HOLD SESSION

Judge Frizzelle Addresses Meeting at Farmville

The Pitt County Bar Association held its regular monthly meeting at the municipal center in Farmville last night with lawyers of that city hosts.

The principal address of the evening was made by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill, resident judge. The speaker pictured an optimistic future for the legal profession, but warned that lawyers must band together to halt inroads being made by other groups. He also suggested that he would like to see a bar association library in each county seat, pointing out that instead of each attorney striving to maintain a $5,000 library, they can co-operate and have a bar library that would be more satisfactory and more economical for each individual member.

Brief remarks also were made by F. M. Woolen, M. K. Blount, Ell Bloom, D. M. Clark, S. O. Worthington, President Arthur B. Corey, J. B. James, Julius Brown and Fifth District Bar president Walter Sheppard of Snow Hill.

John Hill Paylor served as toastmaster.

Large Scale Fighting On Border Still in Progress

Authoritative Circles Point Out That Russia Believes Japan Near Financial Exhaustion and Time Has Come to Wage War to Forestall Attack in the Future

Tokyo, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Japanese government directed its second protest in 24 hours to Soviet Russia today in an effort by diplomacy to end bitter fighting along the Russian-Siberian-Japanese-Manchoukuo frontier.

The fighting was still in progress early today between large forces of well equipped troops with airplanes and tanks and it was felt in authoritative circles that the exchange of gunfire marked the first round of the Far East's second unofficial war.

A later communique said the battle ended at 10 a. m., and that the Russian troops had retreated some 1,500 yards from Japanese positions.

A "general lull" prevailed along the border following the battle, the communique said.

A foreign office spokesman said Japan hopes to locate the trouble and settle it by the diplomatic steps, but the presence of large forces in the frontier area indicated the battle, which began Sunday, might be merely a prelude to major operations.

Those who held that a second undeclared war in the Orient had begun argued that Russia believed Japan was near financial exhaustion and a "now or never moment" had arrived to fight a preventive war to forestall attack by Japan in the future.

Moscow, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Soviet Russia threw on Japan's shoulders today responsibility for further conflict along the Siberian border.

Even as she warned of possible "serious consequences" if Japanese "provocation" continued, there were indications of her wish to reach a peaceful settlement.

A communique issued by Tass (Official Russian news agency) declared "since the very beginning of the conflict the Soviet government has declared that it intends only to defend territory indisputably belonging to the Soviet union."

NEW VACCINE CHECKS SPREADING OF FEVER FROM WOOD TICKS

Cheyenne, Wyo. — (AP)—A new vaccine to prevent Rocky Mountain spotted fever from developing in persons bitten by wood ticks "undoubtedly is a major factor" in a reduction this year in the number of cases of fever in Wyoming, Dr. G. M. Anderson, state health officer, reports.

So far this year only 20 Wyoming cases have been noticed, compared with 83 in 1935; 47 in 1936 and 61 in 1937. The worst of the tick fever season usually is over by July, although last year cases were reported as late as August.

The vaccine was developed by the United States Public Health Service's laboratory at Hamilton, Mont., and is used widely in the west where the fever is prevalent.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Until a year or so ago I was as curious as anyone as to who would play Scarlett O'Hara, but now it hardly seems important anymore. They have died around too long. Scarlett is still Scarlett and Tara is a symbol, but a fever burns you only so long. Then you cool out. I think that's happened to a lot of people, and if I were a stock-holder in the company that is to film GWTW I think I would be darn good and sore about it. Because somebody missed the boat. And there isn't any excuse for missing a boat like that.

When you think back and consider how you felt about the book yourself the first time you read it, when you think of the excitement and the mass hysteria and the unbelievable possibilities for such a picture if it were timed just right, it makes you a little sad and a little sick. Because here was a chance to land the boxoffice high of all time. And they muffed it. And plums like that don't grow on trees—not even in Hollywood. They just happen, and if you don't pick 'em the birds get 'em. Then where are you? You're standing on a high hill with a bag in your hand looking for something that isn't there anymore.

They say now that a lot of people aren't satisfied with the selection of Norma Shearer. I am not of this number. I am satisfied that Miss Shearer will do all right and I hope she goes ahead with it. It is true that my personal choice would have been Margaret Sullavan but she won't get it and Shearer will probably be just as good anyway.

Unless, that is, those people out there get panicky and listen to a lot of bleats from people who want somebody else playing Scarlett. And that might easily happen. To be perfectly honest I wouldn't be surprised to see Shirley Temple wind up in the role. And if this happens I would recommend that Laurel and Hardy be given the parts of the Tarhan twins. You may as well go whole hog, you know. And for Ashley Wilkes I would recommend Charles Bickford.

That leaves Melanie and who would be better than Mae West? There needn't be any slaves. To make it unique the producers could change the locale to the Sahara and have the Arabs picking cotton in the old cotton field down by the Nile. Wouldn't it be the nuts to have a sheik come riding up with a squadron of his men and bawl: "Yo all git outen that house to I just natch'll blow yuh down." Then John Boles could leap out of a Eagnolia tree and sing the Desert Song.

I'm not kidding. I really mean every word of this. Since they've fiddled around this long I see no reason why they shouldn't have some fun out of it. Because the real time for GWTW is past. Christmas is the time to eat fruitcake—not August. Of course they'll probably make an interesting picture, but for me it will be just a picture, and I really don't care whether I see it or not. I'm certainly going to read the reviews before I do see it. I'd hate to go looking for Margaret Mitchell's book and not find it there. That would be too much like seeing them throw eggs at Whistler's "Mother."

Forgot The 'Tails' Side. Wabash, Ind.—(AP)—Police are seeking a lazy counterfeiter who made bogus nickels with an Indian head on one side and nothing on the other.

Just Kept On Jumping. Greeley, Iowa—(AP)—All day long Junior Schilling, 12, had fun jumping with neighbor children into a large bin of oats.

He was mighty tired when he went to bed at night and didn't wake up until after he jumped from a second story window to the ground 20 feet below.

His mother, roused by the noise, met him as he reentered the house. He was unhurt.

Many Lame Ducks To Sit In Special Legislature

Reflecter Bureau Raleigh, Aug. 3—The session of the General Assembly next week will be the first lame duck meeting of the legislature of North Carolina in many, many years—so many in fact that on short notice your correspondent has been unable to find anyone who knows when the last one was held.

Next week, however, the eligible list of Senators will contain two who ran for renomination and were defeated in the primary voting. In addition there will be one Senator who tried to get into the next House but failed.

On the House side there will be no less than 23 members who met defeat in primary or convention for renomination, and two who

The Senators who failed of renomination are: H. McDaniel of Cabarrus and E. Bennett of Swain. Senator L. A. Martin of Davidson tried for the House and lost.

In yesterday's Republican primaries greatest interest was shown in the Kansas Senatorial race because of campaign charges that one of the four candidates, the Rev. Gerald Winrod, was pro-Nazi, Winrod who denied the accusation, ran third.

The nomination went to former Governor Reed.

HAMILTON HAILS VICTORY OF ANTI-ADMINISTRATIONIST

Washington, Aug. 3—(AP)—John Hamilton said today the New Deal "suffered a crushing and humiliating defeat" in yesterday's Virginia Democratic primary.

Referring to the victory of Rep-

Howard Smith over William Dodd, Jr., the Republican National chairman said the issue presented was "New Deal vs. Anti-New Deal." He added:

"Yet he (Dodd) was ignominiously beaten by a vote of better than three to one, not even carrying a single county in the district.

"This crushing defeat of the White House candidate, coming on the heels of the defeat of Maury Maverick in Texas, again indicates the grass roots swing away from Roosevelt and the New Deal that is taking place throughout the country."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE GIVES HIM WORLD'S RECORD

Winnipeg (AP)—Don McLeod of Winnipeg claimed the world's record for continuous flight by a model airplane after his little craft was found 35 miles from here. A year ago the 22-year-old fan watched it disappear while flying strongly at a height of 4,000 feet.

The model weighed seven pounds and was driven by a one-fifth horsepower gasoline engine.

MOSTLY, THEY WANTED TO TRY MATRIMONY

Montevallo, Ala. (AP)—Tests given 275 feminine high school graduates of Alabama College showed career preferences in the following order: marriage, teaching and office work.

Other career choices ranged from beauty parlor work to foreign missionary activity.

FORGET HE WAS CAMPING

Estes Park, Colo. (AP)—A psychology instructor from Pittsburgh camped for several days in the Estes Park, then moved to Wyoming. When he arrived there he discovered he had forgotten his entire camping equipment, leaving it set up in Estes Park.

DRAGS WHOPPER ASHORE

Melbourne, Australia (AP)—J. Pearson hadn't intended to go fishing, but he believes he has made a record catch anyway. Seeing a big marlin stranded in shallow water, he fastened a rope around its tail and dragged it ashore. It weighed 1,226 pounds.

HIS BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED

Mondragone, Italy (AP)—An inscription on the recently uncovered tomb of Lucius Germanus reveals that in 43 A. D. he bequeathed 2,000 sesterces (about $85) to furnish local poor people with free wine every March 7 so that they might celebrate his birthday.

WATER NO LONGER RIPPLES AT MINNEHAHA FALLS

Minneapolis, Minn.—(AP)—Minneha Falls have been bone-dry for years and performs only when a valve is turned—at a cost of $25.

Thousands of tourists have been disappointed to see the great chasm, made famous by Longfellow's "Hiawatha" dry and still. They have to content themselves with studying the bronze statue of the Indian warrior carrying the maiden Minneha across the stream where Longfellow said the "laughing waters" flow.

TRUCK DRIVERS LEARN TO HELP TRAFFIC VICTIMS

Tallahassee, Fla. (AP)—Florida truck drivers are attending Red Cross classes to learn how to give first aid to motorists and pedestrians injured in accidents.

The Florida Trucking association is sponsoring the program, and by January 500 drivers will be equipped to render accident assistance pending the arrival of a physician or removal to a hospital.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Life history of a beetle:

1926—Japanese beetle makes U.
S. debut at Riverton, N. J. (In that year, President Wilson kept us out of war).

1926—Japanese beetle spreads into nearby edges of Delaware, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland.
(That year Admiral Byrd flew over the North Pole).

1936—Japanese beetle makes page one. (It was the year, also, of the Roosevelt landslide).

1938—FLASH: Japanese beetle invades Times Square, overruns southeast Washington.

Thus quietly, amid the big news of the world, did the bug sneak upon us.

These beetle-facts, and more, can be had by talking to Dr. Bennett A.
Porter, who is the Japanese beetle expert in the Department of Agriculture. Dr. Porter has other things to do, but can't get them done. The beetles take so much time.

The beetle, only the size of a split pea, is a serious menace. It is ruthless. It destroys the gardens and crops of innocent non-combatant gardeners with the same smiling unconcern with which it eats the crops of professional farmers.

Red Faces East

In all fairness to the Japanese people it should be stated that they are ashamed of their beetle. In a quest way some of their more public-minded scientists have suggested that it would improve Japanese-American relations greatly if the beetle were called something else.

All the Department can do is to study how to combat it, and answer frantic appeals from housewives on how to save their geraniums and that fine American beauty rose Aunt Mamie sent. Dr. Porter, while worried, does not lose his head. He explains that such scourges hit a peak and then, under proper control methods, taper off to a normal level.

Around Riverton, it is tapering off. But panic-stricken truck gardeners in the rich Maryland, Virginia,
New York, Delaware and Pennsylv-vania countryside this year find the pest at its most damaging peak.

Telephone calls, telegrams and letters pour into the Department.
A woman writes that she has found a control. "Put the beetles in a pan," she says, "then sprinkle salt brine on them. It kills them."

Orchardists, seeing their fruit trees denuded and the fruit itself eaten to the stem, cannot gather up 10,000,000 bugs in a pan and pickle them.

"Nothing can be done—I'm ruined," wails a truck farmer near Elkton, Maryland. State and federal authorities cooperate with him in a spray program.

Want A Pamphlet?

A farmer can't put poison spray on certain garden crops, such as cabbage, lettuce, beans. But a white spray, such as lime, discourages the beetles, although it is harmless.
That helps.

Year by year the beetle is widening the circle of its attack. What will it do when it reaches the midwest corn belt? It destroys corn by eating the silk preventing pollination. Spraying probably is too costly for field corn. Maybe that prob-

HORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 3—Those who want jobs for the special session next week and those who are breathlessly expected fireworks and thrills from the gathering of the lawmakers here are doomed to sad disappointment and complete disillusionment, according to all signs and portents.

If the session isn't one of the most perfunctory, cut and dried affair on record there is going to be more than miff surprise in informed circles.

There will be very, very few plums for attaches—Secretary of State Thad Eure says he isn't even going to set an enrollment staff, because there'll be so few bills passed he can take care of them with his regular office force with no trouble at all.

As for excitement, there'll be just about none at all.
Workmen are busy repairing wiring in the Capitol and there may be some little trouble about lights in the House and Senate Chambers, but they'll be able to get all they need for the kind of sessions that are going to be held.

Here's a likely preview of the session:

Monday noon: House and Senate convene separately, vote for joint session to hear Governor and hold it. It will take maybe an hour or so.
Then House will get prepared bills, resolve itself into committee of the whole, listen to a brief explanation of the measures, rise as a committee, and go off to dinner. Senate members will meanwhile go home unless they're girls or other attractions in Raleigh.

Tuesday night about 11 o'clock:
House will convene, pass bills on second reading roll call; wait until midnight, pass them on third reading, then go out to roadhouses to celebrate.

Some time late Thursday: Senate, which has been holding only session enough to meet requirement that it meet each day, will get bills from House—which will constitute first reading.

Friday night about 11 o'clock:
Senate will go through same procedure House adopted on night of Tuesday-Wednesday; and the session will be over.

Mind you your correspondent does not guarantee this schedule, but it's quite a possible one.

Cale K. Burgess, head man of the United Dry Forces, told your correspondent he wouldn't like to speak for his side of the prohibition issue on the question of whether any effort will be made to inject a wet-dry fight into next week's session.

Your correspondent went away,
however, with the very definite impression that liquor can be counted definitely "out" as a possible disturber of legislative peace next week.

that Commissioner of Revenue A.

meetings Mr. Maxwell will attend next week and the variety of topics on which he will air his views for the approval of his audience, both within earshot and newspaper reading distance.

August 5: League of Municipalities, Asheville, where he is down on the program for a discussion of Homestead Exemptions. It's a good bet he doesn't commit himself too deeply on this—as there's plenty of dynamite therein.

August 8: No need for circumspection here. He will speak freely on his safety program at the Auto Dealers meeting in Greensboro.

August 9: Sheriff meeting in Winston-Salem. He'll plug for four-year terms for Sheriffs.

AUTO DEALERS PLAN TO MEET

Highway Safety Discussion To Mark Annual Confab

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Aug. 3.—Automobile dealers of North Carolina, at their annual convention in Greensboro next week, will be told that there is great virtue in the slogan "More Safety, More Sales" and will make safety on the highways one of the main topics of discussion.
The safety-sales theme will be given the dealers by David Becroft, a uniform motor vehicle code consultant, who will talk on the general subject "Periodic Inspection of Motor Vehicles," a euphonious method of advocating compulsory inspection of such vehicles.
Mr. Becroft will be introduced by Major Arthur Fulk of the State Highway Patrol. His address will be made at the Tuesday-morning session of the dealers at Sedgfield Manor.

On Monday, Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell will give his views on safety, laying particular emphasis on his recently presented thesis that improvement in the construction of North Carolina highways is essential in any safety program. Commissioner Maxwell had advocated hard-surfacing the shoulders of roads not so treated, elimination of curves with none or wrong "banking," wider bridges and better markings of speed and danger zones.
Mrs. Bessie B. Phoenix, executive secretary of the dealers association, has announced that among legislative proposals to be discussed will be enactment of a law permitting the Motor Vehicle Division to transfer license plates from junked motor vehicles to those safe for operation. This Mrs. Phoenix believes, will contribute a great deal toward safety because it would encourage owners to junk unsafe vehicles.

The inhabitants of Argentina are mostly of European blood. Only two per cent of them show traces of non-Caucasian stock.

The Story So Far

A plot is on foot to smash the Rafter T, and "Blur" Ankrom takes a job there to help lovely Lee Trone. She saves his life by shooting an impostor, Kelton Dreen, but he learns this only after Dreen's accomplice, Betty, causes trouble between them. Rafterford, the sheriff, and Claydell, a neighboring rancher, both tell Ankrom that the other is after the Trones' land. Then Ankrom learns from Betty, whom Rafterford has jailed, that she and Dreen were Rafterford's tools.

Chapter 28

Tricked

"DID you ever hear Rafterford speak of a man named Hackett—Mose Hackett?" Ankrom asked. Betty nodded eagerly. "He had charge of the rustlers who were plundering Trone's ranch. You mean Rafter T's foreman, don't you? The man you shot?"

Ankrom's cheeks drew taut. That recollection which had sent him hurrying to town had been a lucky one. Trone's remark that Rafterford had taken the girl to town for questioning had been the thing to drop that peg in place. For with the rancher's words Ankrom had recalled the sheriff's reaction to the statement he had made this noon. To his pointing out that a man who would go to so much for myself; I'm just telling you how it was. He said he loved me. He'd been telling me what an important man he was out here; a man with a future; a man who might even one day be governor! I imagined myself in love with him. Of course I wasn't—I see that now. I was in love with the pictures he painted. I was a fool, but one night I ran off with him. He brought me here. It didn't last long; it took about a week for the glamor to wear away. When I saw the husk of him showing through I was sick. He wanted me out of the country. But I was determined to stay. To keep from starving I found employment in that cabaret from which I waded to you that night we first saw each other when those thugs were trying to gun you down."

The Pranks Of Fate

HE DID, and it made him feel lower in his own estimation than the lowest snake. Yet he had done nothing to place himself in this position. If she had built her hopes on a false premise, could that be charged to him? He had done nothing to love her; he'd done nothing to imply it. It was, he told himself, the fact of his being here that had brought her hopes to their present peak; she must feel he would not have come unless he cared!

"I'm arrestin' you for the murder of Kelton Dreen."

trouble to smash the Rafter T would scarcely be likely to be satisfied with so small a reward as the price of a railroad's right-of-way and the chance to build a boom town, when by damming Trone's valley he could control a veritable kingdom, Rafterford said: "You're right. I hadn't thought of that."

Yet even with the recollection Ankrom had been afraid to trust his judgment. He had felt he might be swayed by his own antagonism of the man. But he'd been right. Claydell's guess had hit the nail. "What were you and Dreen impersonating the Strutherses for?" he asked.

"As a means of getting on the ranch."

"But why?"

"I can't tell you that. It was one of the reasons why I wanted Dreen's papers so badly: I thought Rafterford might have given him written instructions. I wanted a hold on him. But he hadn't. Those papers were only I. O. U.'s."

Ankrom felt a leaping exultation. Claydell's guess was right: Rafterford was the man!

'I Was A Fool'

ANKROM dropped the hand that lay in his. The girl's eyes jumped to his face in alarm.

"What is it?" her voice came huskily as he stepped backward from the cell. He caught himself; his part was not played out. There was one more thing he wished to know. "Wait," he said, and stepping close up to the bars asked: "How did you get tangled up in this? Why did Dreen pick you out to play the role of Struthers' daughter?"

"Dreen didn't," she said, and grimaced. "It was Rafterford."

"Rafterford?"

She nodded reluctantly. "I had known him for almost two years. It was because of him I ran away from home and let Dad die of a broken heart. I've never forgiven myself. But I was young and inexperienced. He was so big and strong and handsome. Her lips quivered bitterly.

"I'm not trying to find excuses

He realized that his face must in some measure have given him away, for abruptly she pressed close against the bars. "Don't take it so hard, Abe," her voice came softly as her hand touched his cheek. "I never loved him. I didn't really—not as I love you."

Cold sweat bathed Ankrom's forehead. He was on the point of rushing blindly from the jail when—

"So when Rafterford asked if I would help a man impersonate my father, I told him yes. I believed the time had come when I had it in my power to pay Rafterford back. I had never seen Dreen until Rafterford took me to the hotel and introduced him as the man who was to play my father—"

She broke off as Ankrom thrust close against the bars. "Father? That's the second time you've used that word. Who are you?"

"Betty Struthers."

"I mean really?"

"Betty Struthers was the name my mother gave me."

Ankrom's stare did not take in the shadow on the floor. He was marveling at the pranks of fate. He was still marveling when a grim voice behind him snarled:

"All right, Streeter! Git up them hands! I'm arrestin' you for the murder of Kelton Dreen!"

A laugh left the girl's lips, and it was not pleasant.

He read mockery in her eyes and an icy numbness swept through his veins.

"Here, Blur Ankrom, is where you reap the price of a woman scorned!"

Tricked! A bitter laugh spilled from his lips. Like a sleek, plump fly he'd stalked into her web and now was caught there!

With her words still ringing in his ears he saw the neat simplicity of the trap in which he had been snared. Rafterford had feared he was getting too close to the truth of things. The girl, angered by Ankrom's indifference to her, had been ripe for Rafterford's use. They'd pulled it slick!

Chapter 29

Message From Lee

IPS twisting in a crooked smile, Ankrom whirled to find a gun jammed against his stomach and Rafterford's gloating face within short inches of his own.

"Go ahead," the sheriff jeered. "Grab onto your iron an' I'll get it over quick! I can't see as it'll matter much to you one way or the other. If a blue whistler don't know you down, within the hour you'll be stretchin' him!"

Ankrom prepared to give Rafterford's confidence a jolt. "You had you can't cu. it, Rafterford," he said. "But you're a little late gettin' started. Claydell an' his men are on their way to town right now—must be nearly here by this time."

"So you've swung over to him, have you?" Rafterford scowled. "Well, let 'em come. I've got sixteen deputies in the street outside with orders to shoot the minute Claydell shows."

"Got your Mex killer outside, too?"

Rafterford grunted an oath, but no reply.

"Look," said Ankrom softly. "What proof you got that I'm the one who shot Dreen?"

"Miss Struthers seen you; she'll swear to it."

"What if she won't?"

"Don't matter. I've got her statement down on paper an' signed."

"You hear that?" Ankrom said for the girl's benefit. "You're in the same boat I am. He'll bump you off soon's he settles with me. You've played your part; your use is over."

The girl said nothing. Rafterford snarled. "Shut your trap or I'll shut it for you!"

Ankrom grinned. "What you waitin' for? Go ahead an' shoot."

"I'll shoot when I get ready," Rafterford growled. "This thing ain't over yet."

Ankrom regarded the sheriff's peevish countenance with speculative eyes. What was the meaning of those words? Ankrom was neatly trapped, what else had the sheriff planned?

He tried putting himself in Rafterford's place; tried imagining himself with Rafterford's personal ambitions, lack of moral scruples and ruthless drive for power.

It might be felt, move as this time would, the felt, be the removal of Rafter T's foreman. He wanted to smash Trone's power. To usurp Trone's possessions. Already he had gone a long way in undermining the old man's nerve: Trone had taken to whisky to bolster his failing courage.

What, he wondered, would hurt Trone most? The answer came with a blinding flash. The most effective way of smashing Trone would be through Lee—the would prove the crowning blow to the old man's series of misfortunes!

He recalled that an attempt to get at Trone through Lee had once been made already. Only Ankrom's own interference that night in Peso Pinto had caused the sheriff's plans to miscarry. He remembered that glowing iron with its Straddle Bug brand; he recalled the burly figure slouching past him on the street before that house and he knew that Rafterford was waiting for Lee now!

No Vain Boast

ANKROM stared at Rafterford's heavy features with new understanding and realized that nothing save death would ever stop him from carrying out his plans.

"Darn you, Rafterford! You can't cut this thing!"

"Can't cut what?"

"What you've got in mind for Lee."

"So you've guessed it; her we're waitin' for, eh? Well, you're right about that; it is. She ought to be here now. I had things set for eleven o'clock."

"You loosed fool," Ankrom spat the words contemptuously. "The hand of every honest man in this country will be raised against you if you harm that girl!"

"You're wrong about that," Rafterford assured him with a lazy grin. "Not a one will dare say boo! I've got this range eatin' out of my trousers pocket, mister. Folks around here'll do what I tell 'em an' like it."

He looked at Ankrom amusedly. "Besides," he added, "I'm not figurin' to harm Lee Trone. I've got better sense than that. I'm gonna get the same results by marryin' her."

Ankrom laughed, and the sound brought a scowl to Rafterford's face.

"What's so funny?"

"The picture of you as Lee's adoring bridegroom. Why, she wouldn't wipe her feet on you!"

"That's all right," Rafterford's teeth showed in a smirk. "she wouldn't wipe her feet on you, neither. But she'll marry me to save your life or I'll have you shot before her face—and in the end I'll get her anyway!"

Ankrom had an uneasy feeling that this was no vain boast. It would be like Lee to sacrifice herself for him. On the other hand, if she refused, he believed that Rafterford would be fully capable of carrying out his threat.

Another thought struck Ankrom. Once Rafterford married the girl, there was nothing to stop him from putting Ankrom out of the way; there was always the Ley del Fuego! Escaping prisoners were shot at sight.

A devil's temper was stirring in Ankrom; a savage desire to get his hands on Rafterford and bruise and batter, a desire born of desperation.

But somehow he kept his head; held the turbulent fury under control. "Very slick, Rafterford; pretty slick," he drawled. "But you're forgetting one factor—a weighty one that's goin' to break your string."

"What am I forgettin'?" Rafterford growled.

"You're leavin' Claydell out of your calculations."

"You're the one that's forgettin'!" Rafterford retorted. "That posse out on the street's got orders to shoot Claydell on sight."

"How're you figurin' to get away with that?" asked Ankrom, playing for time.

A deep chuckle of joy left the sheriff's mouth. "Claydell," he said, "is the gent that's out to smash the Rafter T. An' I got the proof at last—I've found out what he's after!"

Plots And Counterplots

ANKROM'S mind spun round in a dizzy whirl; these plots and counterplots were enough to unsettle a man. Was it possible that both Rafterford and the boss of Swinging J were out to break the Rafter T? That both were working toward a common goal but driven on by different motives?

He knew that Dreen and this girl in the cell behind him had been accomplices of Rafterford. That much he'd pretty well been proved. Of Hackett and Hefie and Bander he was not so certain. True, the girl had said that Hackett was a tool of the sheriff's in charge of rustling operations put in motion to drain the Rafter T's resources. And Claydell had implied that Hefie was a tool of Rafterford's. But he had seen that Betty had a habit of weaving fiction with her facts, and if Claydell was in this too he would naturally swing all blame toward Rafterford.

It might well be that Claydell and the sheriff were pitted against each other—both determined to gain possession of the Rafter. If this were so, and it now seemed possible that it was, Bander and Hefie and Hackett might have been leagued with the boss of Swinging J. And Bander was still very much alive, and no mean factor in a fight, even if he had backed down this morning!

With a raucous squeal of brakes a car was stopped before the sheriff's office. Booted feet came pounding toward them. Ankrom looked at Rafterford; the sheriff was watching him with head cocked to one side in a listening attitude, his eyes opaque and hard.

A man came round the angle of the steel-barred aisle. It was one of the Rafter punchers. Windy. But for a moment he stood in panting silence. He looked from the sheriff's leveled gun to Ankrom wondering. Ankrom noted that the puncher was unarmed.

A malicious pleasure surged through Ankrom's veins as Windy said to Rafterford: "Miz Lee said to tell you as how the 'ol man got hurt this evenin' an' that she won't be able to meet you in town to-night as requested."

Ankrom laughed at the sheriff's scowl. "Tough luck, Rafterford," he chuckled. "Fats me some in mind of that 'ol saw about the best laid plans of mice an' men."

The sheriff swore. "What the hell happened to him?" he demanded. "How'd he get himself hurt?"

Windy shifted his feet. His answer seemed apologetic. "He got thrown from his bronc."

"Thrown?"

Windy gulped. "He was drunk, you see."

Through much experience in diagnosing the various symptoms of trouble, Ankrom realized that Windy was keeping something back. This thing must be more serious than was indicated by the puncher's words. Evidently there was something—

Rafterford's rough voice cut through his thoughts:

"Drunk! Well, it wouldn't be the first time he's been in that condition! How bad hurt is he?"

"He's dead!" the puncher blurted. "He broke his neck."

Johnny Lautares was first in the 100-meter breast stroke. Lib Sugg and Frances Willard came in first and second, respectively, in the 50-meter breast stroke for girls. George Lautares was first in this event for the boys.

Lib Wells came in first and Joe Flanagan second in the 50-meter back stroke competition for girls. Both are Greenville swimmers. Another honor went to Johnnie Lautares when he was voted second in the diving contest. Lib Wells, Lib Sugg and Jane Harrison clinched honors for Greenville in the 150-meter relay. Billy Tolson, Johnny Lautares and Joe Williams took the honors for the boys in this division.

Winston Gets Win For the Goldbugs

Williamston, Aug. 3.—Goldboro backed up Big Henry Winston's 4-hit pitching by hopping Larry Wade for a 6-1 victory over Williamston Tuesday.

The Bugs collected 18 hits. The "big blows" were Hahn's homer and Watson's triple.

Winston fanned six. All of the Martins' hits came in the first three innings—after that, Big Henry mowed 'em down. Williamston's fun was tallied on a double by Ace Villepique, who also contributed a single.

Morris, Overton and Watson were the top batters for the Bugs. Each made three hits.

Billepique offered the fielding feature—he backed up at a corner of the school house in centerfield, to take a drive off the bat of Hahn. Score by innings: R H E Goldboro . . . 210 300 000—6 13 0 Williamston . . . 001 000 000—1 4 2 Winston and Overton; Wade and Wilcox.

Elliott Downs The Snow Hill Billies

Snow Hill, August 3.—Ace Elliott pitched six-hit ball as Tarboro defeated Snow Hill, 6-1, here Tuesday.

The Serpents staged a 5-run spree in the third inning to clinch the game—none of the runs were of the earned variety.

Henry opened the inning with a single. Dick went to second on a sacrifice as Stirewalt, covering first, erred and the ball rolled into right field. Henry came home on Bistroff's passed ball. Elliott walked but was forced at second by Lehman. However, Dick scored on the play. Campbell's triple brought in Lehman and Ware, who had been hit by pitcher Stirewalt. Stirewalt erred Maynard's grounder and Maynard came home.

The only earned run of the game came when Monk Joyner homered for the Billies over the left-field fence in the fourth.

The fielding honors went to Tarboro's Frankie Ware and Snow Hill's Walter Rabb.

Lehman, with two for four, topped the victors. Joyner, with a homer and a single in three tries, led the Billies.

Score by innings: R H E Tarboro . . . 005 010 000—6 8 1 Snow Hill . . . 000 100 000—1 6 2 Elliott and Dick; Ciceralo, Druce and Bistroff.

Bears and Greenies Playing Twin-Bill

The Greenies are hosts to the New Bern Bears at Third Street park this afternoon in a double-header.

At 2 o'clock it appeared that it might be possible to play both game, although there were some scattered clouds.

The locals had strong hopes of checking the mad dash of the Bears today with a double victory, although the ace pitchers of each club have had an extra day of rest and pitchers' battles are likely. Manager Wilson was expected to use Fred Caligiuri and perhaps Don King against the Bears.

Friday the locals will meet the Williamston Martins here, and on Sunday, the Snow Hill Billies will furnish the Greenies opposition at Third street park.

Games at New Bern, Ayden, Rained Out

Rain yesterday halted the New Bern-Greenville game at New Bern in the first inning, and likewise caused postponement of what was to have been a Ladies' Day double-header between Ayden and Kinston at Ayden.

Inclement weather has caused more game postponements this season than in many years in the Coastal Plain league, and in order to play all the scheduled games before the season closes the last of this month, there must be several double-headers, not to mention play on the regular off-day for the league—Monday.

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A little buying in gold mining shares imparted a flicker of life to a sleepy stock market today. Traders turned to the yellow metal group when the market drifted into a stalemate after prices rose and fell in gentle swings in the forenoon. Dealings entered one of the quietest periods since the rousing June upswing started.

Cities To Ask Authority To Issue Revenue Bonds

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Aug. 3.—The North Carolina League of Municipalities will ask next week's special session of the General Assembly to enact laws permitting local governmental units to issue revenue bonds in order to participate in PWA grants for many and varied purposes, Pat Healy, Jr., said today.

He is hopeful the proposed legislation can be put in such form that it will escape the bitter opposition of power interests which killed similar measures in the 1937 session.

The legislation will not be outside the purpose for which Governor Healy called the special session, Healy said, but will be merely an inclusion of local units with the state in authority to secure PWA grants for necessary purposes.

"The governor has pointed out it would be folly not to take advantage of PWA funds for indispensable building needs of state institutions," said the Muni official. "It would be just as much folly not to permit the local units to do likewise by giving them authority to issue revenue bonds for essential and desirable projects such as construction of waterworks and sewerage systems, swimming pools, public markets, abattoirs, recreation parks and similar enterprises."

He pointed out that such legislation was enacted in 1935, with a time limit which has since expired. Similar bills were fought for in the 1937 session but failed of passage under a tremendous barrage backed by all the power interests of the state, which feared many municipalities would go in the construction and operation of power plants, Mr. Healy said there is a clear distinction between revenue bonds and general obligation bonds of municipalities. The revenue bonds for which authority will be sought would not create any general debt against the issuing units, as they are to be retired by revenue derived from the project for which they are issued. The Supreme Court of North Carolina has held that these bonds are not "debts" of the units.

Many municipalities in North Carolina are very anxious to take advantage of PWA funds for construction of waterworks and sewer systems, Healy said, and will do so if they are able.

There are no municipalities which want to issue bonds for the purpose of building or operating power plants, in Healy's opinion—a fact which should go far toward lessening power company hostility.

In addition, he pointed out, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes has pledged there will be no grants made for this purpose except in cases where private utilities have refused to sell out to municipalities for a reasonable figure.

In the 1937 legislature the opposition, quite naturally, did not feature the power phase of the matter. It argued that the proposal to permit revenue bonds did not make the units subject to the Constitutional limitation on the debt which may be incurred; that it did not require an election to authorize issue of the bonds; that the bills did not require a quorum of local officials to be present when authority for revenue bonds was given; that bonds issues would not require approval of the Local Government Commission.

Proponents, headed by the Muni-League, answered that inasmuch as revenue bonds do not create any "debt," as construed by the courts, the issue quite properly were not subject to the limitation nor did they need an election. The "no quorum" issue was scoffed at on the grounds that no business of any kind could be transacted by local units unless a quorum was, in fact, present. Friends of the bill were willing to accept an amendment requiring approval of the Local Government Commission, and such a provision will probably be inserted in the bills to be presented next week. It was argued that authority for revenue bonds did not increase the powers of local units except in that one particular.

MAYOR GETS SALARY CUT WHEN RESIDENTS LEAVE

Ottawa, Kas.—(AP)—It is going to cost the mayor and the other two city commissioners here approximately $130 for each of the 610 fewer persons the town census shows live here now.

The drop in population was from 9,793 persons to 9,183. A state law provides that cities of less than 9,500 population shall pay the mayor $1,000 a year and the commissioners $900. Previously, with the population above 9,500, each drew $1,200.

All Land Jobs. Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The University of Tennessee School of Pharmacy reports that every one of its June graduates received immediate employment and that there were not enough of the pharmacy graduates to fill all of the available jobs. Larger classes are planned for next year.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that on May 1 milk production in this country was at the highest peak for this season in 14 years.
