

French-German Border Now On War-Like Basis

TROOPS MAN MAGINOT ZONE

Call of 300,000 Reservists to Colors to "Watch For Trouble Over There" Chief Topic of Conversation in Towns Along Border Line

Magninot, in the Magninot Zone, Northeastern France, Sept. 6. — (AP) — Tens of thousands of troops and thousands of tons of military equipment arrived in north-eastern France and vanished into the Maginot line today.

France's border population talked of little else besides the calling to the colors of an estimated 300,000 reservists to "watch for trouble from over there."

"Over there" to Frenchmen in the Maginot zone means the German side of the frontier, where the new Siegfried line was manned with a strong force of Germany's crack troops.

In the main streets of Metz, Verdun, Nancy and other Maginot zone centers there were fewer troops visible than usual. The answer was that all leaves were cancelled and that the troops remained in the underground fortifications and garrisons of the Maginot zone.

Troop trains brought thousands to these centers, but most of them dropped off at tiny hamlets which are only dots on tourist maps, but of vital importance on military maps.

"He," that means Adolf Hitler in the frontier zone, "would think a long time if he knew what waits under these fields," said an officer near the border.

The highways and byways of the area showed travelers who knew what to look for that France's north-eastern frontier was on a war footing.

Whenever civilian motorists stopped on the road in certain regions officers suddenly appeared from the middle of apparently pastures and tersely ordered the travelers on.

"We only warn you once," the sentries say.

Traffic Accident Is Fatal To Negro

Noah Spell, Negro, died in Pitt General hospital this morning of a broken neck sustained two weeks ago when he was an occupant in an automobile involved in a collision at the intersection of the Stokes-Robersonville roads.

Spell was riding in a car driven by Eddie Gilbert, along with three other Negroes. All were injured in the crash. The Negro became paralyzed from his neck down as a result of the wreck and little hope had been held for his recovery.

Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams who investigated the accident, which occurred around 11 o'clock on the night of August 23, said the automobile in which Spell was riding was struck by another motor vehicle driven by J. W. Green of Washington, Route 2.

New Deal Also Figures in Maine Election With Vote Due Monday Next

Reno, Nev., Sept. 6.—(AP) Senator Pat McCarran, who has opposed several administration measures, sought re-nomination against the challenge of two avowed New Deal contenders today in Nevada's primary election.

The three-sided race and a similar one for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was expected to draw out a large percentage of the state's 500,000 registered voters.

Seeking the senatorial nomination against McCarran, who opposed the Supreme court and government re-organization bills, were Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney, and Dr. John Worden of Carson City, State Board of Health secretary.

Former Senator T. L. Odie was unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination. H. A. Harmon, chairman of the Public Service Commission, former United States District Attorney, E. P. Carville and former Congressman Charles L. Richards sought the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Hines Case Judge

Presiding jurist at New York trial of James J. Hines is Ferdinand Pecora (above), N. Y. Supreme Court Justice. Before a "blue ribbon" jury, Tammanyite Hines is being tried on charges of conspiring to protect huge policy racket.

WOMEN HEARD IN HINES CASE

Defense Attempts To Discredit Testimony of Witness

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—James J. Hines' counsel brought out today in his conspiracy trial that Mrs. Rose Wendroff, a star state witness, had talked only two weeks ago with her racket-lawyer brother, J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, who has turned state's evidence against the Tammany district leader.

By this disclosure, made by Mrs. Wendroff under the cross examination of Hines' chief lawyer, Lloyd Stryker, the defense sought to suggest that Davis might have biased his sister to substantiate his early testimony against the accused politician.

Davis in his old lush days acted as "mouthpiece" for the Dutch Schultz policy racket, to which Hines is accused of having afforded political "protection," and the disbarred lawyer's story against Hines has been one of the most important yet brought out by the prosecution.

Mrs. Wendroff acknowledged that she had seen "Dixie" at her mother's home and also previously while he was in prison. She had "talked" with him, but she volunteered, "not confidentially."

In her testimony for the state she had identified a $500 check made out to "cash," which she said she had taken to Hines at her brother's direction—and this check, the prosecution claimed, was part of the "pay-off."

Stryker had begun his cross examination of Mrs. Wendroff with questions apparently designed to suggest to the jury that her testimony must be considered in the light of her affection for her brother.

But the witness refused the suggestion that she was Dixie's intimate confidant. She had merely acted, she testified, as his stenographer.

TWO SUSPECTS BEING SOUGHT

Mrs. Meeks Aids Investigators in Hunt for Abductors

Marysville, Calif.—Sept. 6.—(AP)—Descriptions furnished by Mrs. W. R. Meeks, well-to-do rancher's wife, sped the hunt today for the kidnapers who threatened her life during a 56-hour period, but who were afraid to collect the $15,000 ransom they demanded.

A few hours after Mrs. Meeks, 55, had described two of the three abductors, District Attorney Lloyd Hewitt sent investigators out of town to question two men he said were suspects in the case.

The prosecutor declined to identify the men, refusing to say whether they were under arrest or where they would be questioned.

"We are now working on several good leads," said Capt. Personius of the State Highway Patrol. "The search will get into full swing today."

Mrs. Meeks, held on a lonely hillside splashed with poison oak, was seized in her home last Thursday night by two men who bound her and her husband and drove her away in the rancher's automobile. Meeks said they demanded $15,000 ransom on departing, but after holding the woman until Saturday night they abandoned her and she made her way home early Sunday.

Approves President's Efforts to Liberalize Congress

FARM SITUATION ALSO DISCUSSED

Meanwhile in Washington NLRB Would Force Ford to Reinstate 129 Employees

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP) — Governor Elmer Benson of Minnesota said today he had told President Roosevelt he heartily approved of the chief executive's efforts to elect "liberals" to Congress.

The former Laborite Governor who talked with Mr. Roosevelt at the summer White House told reporters:

"I told the President I was very much pleased with his fight for liberalism. I hope more people will tell him the same thing. The whole Northwest is in agreement with him."

Benson, long friendly to the administration, said he had discussed the Minnesota political situation with the President and had mentioned the political setup in Wisconsin.

In the latter state Senator Ryan Duffy, a New Deal supporter, faced Progressive party opposition, Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), has said he would support the Progressive party nominee against Duffy, Democrat.

Benson left a memorandum with the President on the farm situation, which recommended a 10-point program for boosting income to the farmers.

The President returned here this morning after having underscored the name of Senator Tydings on the administration's political "black list."

At Washington, meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board received a recommendation from one of its examiners to require the Ford Motor Company to reinstate 129 employees at its Richmond, Calif., plant.

The recommendation was part of a report by Trial Examiner Thomas Kennedy, who said also that the United Automobile Workers, a CIO affiliate, had been selected by 1,120 of the 1,277 production workers as their bargaining agent. He recommended that the company start negotiations with that union.

NO INTENTION SIGNING PACT

Anxious European Diplomats Disappointed as Fuehrer Devotes Address Almost Exclusively to Inner Conditions of Germany

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 6.—(AP) — Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler ignored Czechoslovakia in his proclamation today to the tenth annual Nazi Congress, disappointing anxious European statesmen who had hoped for an inkling of Germany's intentions in central Europe.

Almost his whole 5,000-word proclamation dealt with inner conditions of Germany, particularly economically, which the Fuehrer assured his followers was so healthy that the nation "will be without worries for food for years to come."

Through the voice of District Leader Adolf Wagner, who read the Fuehrer's proclamation in Congress hall, Hitler repudiated any intention of forming a pact with foreign powers.

"I have never had, nor have this intention," the chancellor declared. "The statement was checked."

Instead, he declared, he was offering the people a "greater German many," referring to the absorption, last March, of Austria and the union of six and a half million Germans who today spiritually united here stronger than ever in a great indissoluble community.

Among the diplomatic assembled was Hugh Wilson, United States Ambassador to Berlin. Never before had an American Ambassador accepted an invitation to Nurnberg.

Praha, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Czech government anxiously awaited reaction today from two quarters to its sweeping concessions to the German population of the republic.

The first question was "would this last and ultimate offer," formulated at a cabinet session last night satisfy the Sudeten-German party which x x x has been insisting on a degree of autonomy amounting to independence.

The second: "how would the Czechs x x x receive the news of a government retreat under German pressure."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In the quietness of the dying day of June 15th, 1938, the soul of Mrs. Sophia J. Komp slipped away to answer the call of her Master to "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Memorial Baptist Church, Greenville, N. C., has lost in the going of Mrs. Komp one of its most loyal members. She united with the church in early girlhood and has served in many ways through the years, even though she was of modest and retiring disposition. Particularly was she interested in the work of the Woman's Missionary Society and the Sunbeams. She was assistant leader of the latter organization at the time of her death. Over a period of years she was responsible for planning and packing the box of clothing that was sent semi-annually to the Missionary Society's adopted "Daughter" at Kennedy Home. Her earnestness and loyalty was an inspiration to friends and co-workers.

In life we loved her and we know not how to honor her memory as she deserved, but we do resolve:

First, That we express our deep sense of loss in her going.

Second, The members of the Woman's Missionary Society bow in humble submission to our Father's will and pray his blessings may abide in her loved ones.

Third, We desire that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes, one be sent to the family, one published in the local paper and one in the Biblical Recorder.

Christian Science Church.

"Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, September 4.

The golden text was from Psalms 84:12, "Blessed are they that dwell in thy house; they will still be praising thee. . . . O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in thee.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Praise ye the Lord. Blessed is the man that feareth the Lord, that delighteth greatly in his commandments. Wealth and riches shall be in his house; and his righteousness endureth forever. Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness; he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous." (Ps. 112: 1, 3, 4).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, "Mortal man can never rise from the temporal debris of error, belief in sin, sickness, and death, until he learns that God is the only life. The belief that life and sensation are in the body should be overcome by the understanding of what constitutes man as the image of God. Then Spirit will have overcome the flesh. A wicked mortal is not the idea of God. He is little else than the expression of error. To suppose that sin, lust, hatred, envy, hypocrisy, revenge, have life abiding in them, is a terrible mistake. Life and Life's idea, Truth and Truth's idea, never make men sick, sinful or mortal."

Chewing gum, like blubber, becomes commonly property in some native districts and everyone takes a turn at it. Dr. Kleinschmidt explained.

He attributed rapid spread of tuberculosis among the natives to this and similar customs.

TO ANNOUNCE SALE WITH ALL CARS GUARANTEED

Every unit of the used car and truck stock of John Flanagan Buggy Company, local Ford dealers, will be offered for sale with a bona fide guarantee during a September "Clear the Decks" sale announced today by John Flanagan Buggy Co., Ford dealers.

"Not only will all units be sold with a guarantee, but they will be offered at reduced prices which we are establishing in order to move as much of our used car inventory as possible before fall," said Mr. Flanagan.

"Many of the cars and trucks on sale are less than three years old, and we have renewed them to factory specifications to sell under the nationally-recognized R. & G. symbol, with a written, money-back guarantee.

"Units over three years old will be sold under a thirty-day 50-50 warranty. Under this agreement we promise the purchaser that we will stand 50 per cent of the cost of all materials and labor for any mechanical repairs, except those applying to Glass and tires, which may be required within 30 days of the purchase of the car, and which are not made necessary by accident or neglect.

"In addition, we guarantee that in case the buyer is not entirely satisfied with the car covered by the guarantee, he may return it to us within 48 hours after delivery, whereupon we will apply the purchase price of the car to any other car in our stock of equal or greater value. We give the buyer a signed certificate covering these guarantees."

HOT RACE WILL TRAIL SHUFORD

Fletcher Successor Is Slated to Face Opposition in 1940

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 5.—Nomination of Forrest H. Shuford, new commissioner of labor to succeed Major A. L. Fletcher, is expected to be a simple ministerial act of the state Democratic executive committee which will confirm Governor Hoey's appointment.

But the 1940 contest when Mr. Shuford will be up with all other state officials who are elected by the people, will be different. It is fully expected that Clarence Mitchell of Raleigh, who gave Major Fletcher a good race in 1932, will come out again, and even more likely is the candidacy of T. A. Wilson, member of the Compensation Commission. He was strongly endorsed for the place by his co-commissioner J. Wewey Dorsett, and had the backing of many prominent members of the State Federation of Labor. Mr. Wilson has been head of the state federation which got its first official recognition in the appointment of Commissioner Wilson.

Roy Lawrence, former federation head, ran against Major Fletcher in 1932, and it is considered highly probable here in Raleigh that by 1940 party affairs may be in somewhat of a stir. The news out of Washington indicates that there may be a protracted presidential warfare in the Democracy and that there will be no great deference to party traditions.

In naming Mr. Shuford Governor Hoey did more than select the man who was acceptable to Commissioner Fletcher. Mr. Shuford for 20 years has been a close friend of Governor Hoey and the executive probably would have picked him had the major said nothing about his successor. But the selection throws this office open for one of the sharpest campaigns ever conducted about it, and there have been all kinds in the brief life of the department.

SAYS SATURDAY NIGHT IS STILL BATH NIGHT

Louisville (AP)—As many people still take baths on Saturday nights as formerly, according to George C. Keller, supervisor of the Louisville Water company's reservoir.

"Try as I do," says Hill, "I still can't keep the water level up on Saturday night, and I know it's just people taking baths."

"It usually starts getting lower about 8 o'clock, and by 10 or 11 o'clock the gauge shows two or three feet less water. And when you stop to think that each foot of water means almost a million and a half gallons of water, that means plenty of people are taking baths."

Hey Kids! Robbins Bros. Circus Is Coming Soon

NO CIRCUS WITHOUT CLOWNS AND GIRLS

Hurrah! It will soon be circus time. Men may come and empires may crumble, but circuses go on forever. Doors to the menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m.

number of 300 together with 250 wild animals and 20 elephants are promised. Indians, cowboys, cowgirls, Cosacks from the bleak Mongolian wastes and rough riders from the tremendous wild West show headed by Hoot Gibson, famous star of the moving pictures. It will be a revival of the old West with its picturesque frontier days.

The famous Hobson family of 10 English Riders, whose act is conceded to be the most daring and thrilling in the world; the Flying Thrillers and the Behn troupe aerialists; John Smith and his 24 liberty horses, and Velarde Sisters, juvenile acrobats on the tight wire are among highlights of the big show program. Circus day's festivities will be inaugurated by an immense street parade to be seen on the downtown streets at 11 a. m. There will be nearly 50 magnificent and elaborately carved and gilded allegorical floats, tableaux, cages and dens. Hundreds of mounted riders; 20 elephants and a caravan of camels. Five trumpeting bands and two calliope will furnish music. As an added feature attraction, Clyde Beatty, greatest wild animal trainer of all time, will present the world's largest wild animal act, battling 40 ferocious jungle bred lions and tigers.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

By MILO M. THOMPSON (Chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press)

Washington—When a word of such diverse political implications as "purge" happens to get strongly understood in American political speech, you can expect the practical politicians to worry it as a pack of terriers worries a rat.

It happened before. It happened to "mandate" when it was the proud boast of Democratic politicians that the reelection of President Roosevelt constituted the people's mandate to continue with New Deal policies.

It happened to "choose" when President Coolidge passed out unsmilingly to newspapermen, on narrow slips of paper, that characteristically terse line: "I do not choose to run in 1928."

Some of the practical politicians of the Democratic party are admitting just now a sort of hopeless embarrassment over the way the word "purge" has ballooned into prominence in the current off-year election. There are some who grumble because it seems somehow unfair, a weasel word, a propagandist word.

But "pure" is as intrinsically pat as its underscoring was inevitable. To purge, says the dictionary, is to purify or cleanse by separating and carrying off whatever is impure, foreign or superfluous. And few will deny that such a definition comprehends exactly what is in the minds of Democratic party leaders from the President down.

Linked To Dictatorships

It was not of course, purely the patness of "purge" which made it inevitable that the present phenomenon would be so tagged. Part of the certainty lay in the clinging aliterativeness of the phrase "party purge" and part of it lay in its great usefulness to headline and caption writers. "Purge" has only five letters. It fits so well into limited space. The urge for shortness and explosive brevity which led head writers to make "probe" a crude journalistic equivalent of "investigation" was certain to push "purge" into the headlines.

Probably no one would be complaining were it not for the fact that in the history of recent years, the word has taken on additional implications. For political purposes, its primary meaning became confused with a secondary medical meaning when Mussolini, in his original Italian assist purge, had resort to cauterization. The nature of the method, and a certain amount of humor in it, caught world wide attention and associated the word with dictatorship.

Then came the no less famous "blood purge" in Nazi Germany which was followed by a similar liquidation in Russia. That was enough to identify a purge with dictatorship and for this generation at least, to brand it as their instrument, their weapon and their method.

The fundamental correctness of the word in the present instance seems a misfortune of the first magnitude to some Democrats because of the peculiar circumstances of the present efforts at party purification. It just happens that persons marked far party discard are persons who opposed the court bill and the reorganization bill, two measures concerning which the cry of dictatorship was raised to such an extent that the President himself saw fit to disclaim either desire or qualifications for dictatorship.

The Republican party chairman, lost no time in tying the Old World and New World dictators together. John Hamilton accused the President of "adopting the Russian technique of the purge" in an effort to "divert our attention from the failures of the New Deal."

When Wilson Spoke

What the troubled Democrats here seem to be studying hard to do is to convince the public that what is happening is not Russian, not German, not Italian, but actually nothing more than what President Woodrow Wilson had in mind when he said at Indianapolis on January 8, 1915:

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 6.—Two weeks ago your correspondent left on vacation. This is his first day's work since returning from a tour of Western North Carolina's mountains—on which it was indicated on all sides that North Carolina's advertising program has really captured the attention of out of the state vacationers.

On every road there were to be seen about as many cars bearing outside license plates as there were home owned vehicles. In course of the fortnight at least one was spied from every state in the Union. There were several from Canada, and even one from the Republic of Panama.

Others may have observed differently, but it seemed to this scribe that an outstandingly large percentage of the visitors came from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Louisiana and Illinois. Somewhat surprisingly there were comparatively few New York cars seen.

Getting back to Raleigh, your correspondent learned that W. O. Burdick of Davidson county is again the nominee apparent for should it be presumptive for Congress from the Eighth.

There's still time for that to change several times before the November balloting. There are looks like one of those baseball games which give spectators heart failure from changing of the lead.

Despite approach of the Y.D.C. convention, the Supreme Court hearing on the Deane-Burgin row and a fall campaign and general election, Raleigh's interest on Labor Day seemed centered more upon the coming football season, and you can get more arguments about the Duke-Carolina game than on the presidential purge.

Some time ago comment was made in this column upon action of two judges in ordering that stripes be worn by defendants convicted in their courts. It was stated that this was quite likely an assumption of authority the Superior court judges no dot possess.

Comes now a letter from Justice M. V. Barnhill of the Supreme Court, in which attention is called to Section 1790 of the Consolidated Statutes which reads:

"It is the duty of the several judicial officers of the State, in assigning any person to work the public roads of any county, to designate in each judgment that such as may be convicted of a felony shall wear felon's stripes and such as are convicted of a misdemeanor shall not wear felon's stripes."

Judge Barnhill says "I am writing because I am sure that you would like to know the real state of the law on this question."

The section, as quoted by the learned judge, apparently applies only to cases in which a defendant is "assigned to work the public roads of any county," and was enacted in days when there were "county" roads to work.

In both cases commented upon by this correspondent the defendants were sentenced to long terms in the state's prison.

So without presuming to enter into a legal argument with Judge Barnhill, admittedly one of the state's most able interpreters of the statutes, it is still submitted that there is more than a reasonable doubt of the authority of a Superior court judge, in sentencing a defendant to state's prison, to make any order about what he shall or shall not wear while confined therein.

POISONED NERVES

By C. W. BYNUM Bissette's Drug Store

Diseases of the nervous system are more and more yielding to the searchlight of careful scientific investigation.

Years ago physicians surmised that nervous trouble might be due to infections—now they know it is so.

Even a carbuncle on one's neck may, through the rapid dissemination of toxins, so affect the nerves of the upper portion of the spine as to cause nervous degeneration.

So numerous the possible reasons for distraught nerves—and often serious subsequent effects—that a physician's advice should be obtained at the first sign of the affliction.

His diagnosis will determine the proper treatment. If the cause is infection he will no doubt prescribe medical treatment, in which case you should engage the services of a careful pharmacist to fill the prescription.

THE CLOUDS COME DOWN

By MAX SALTMARSH

The Characters

Wags Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera. Archie Lumsden, myself, his friend. René Geiss, master mind behind a murder plot. Otilie Will, American heiress.

Yesterday: Incensed at the attempt on my life, Venner summons Stahl. A seesaw.

Chapter 26

Determined Young Woman

"It's the principle of the thing," Venner was saying shrilly. "I did my part—I put up the original capital, and Geiss and the lot of you agreed that I wasn't to be troubled further. What do I care if a few foreigners die suddenly? I've never met them. I don't know them. But here, without consulting me, you arrange to murder a harmless lad under my very nose! It's a wonder to me it wasn't the death of me, and as it is I'm feeling very far from well—"

"For that I am so sorry!" said Stahl, the hint of a sneer in his voice. "But to call the young man 'harmless'—no, that is stupidity. Why do you think he came here, to your hotel, if not to spy on you? No, no, Monsieur Venner, he is not harmless! And for the rest of the argument, you supplied our capital, it is true, but I think you have been well repaid. A hundred percent on the first outlay, and how much more since?"

"That's all right," answered the old man testily. "I'm not complaining, but this lad's no spy. He's a nice lad, and I like him. His death isn't going to bring us in any profit, and I'm not standing for it. You hear what I say, Stahl, and you go back and tell the same thing to Geiss."

"And tell this to Monsieur Geiss, and that to Monsieur Geiss!" retorted the Baron, and this time the sneer in his voice was very marked. "And why, pray, can you not send for Monsieur Geiss himself to give him your orders? It is because you are afraid of him—because you do not care to face him. But now I will tell you something, Monsieur Martines Venner. This is our last coup—we are all agreed on that—and nothing must stand in the way of its success, neither your bad heart nor your liking for this Englishman, I have warned you, and now I go."

"Go, and be damned to you!" came the voice of Mr. Venner, and now it was trembling with passion. "But I tell you this—yes, and I would tell Geiss too if he were standing in front of me. I won't have it, and if you refuse to drop the thing, I'll take measures. There was a sudden crash, as if a chair sharply overturned. It was obvious that the interview was breaking up, in more senses than one, and if I wanted to get clear away, I should have to shift rapidly. I clambered down from the table, made a hurried reconnaissance along the empty corridor, and sprinted down to the safety of my own room, just as an opening door and the whir of the mounting lift told me that the Baron was taking his departure."

"I watched him strut to his car, a fast, ludicrous, yellow balloon, and drive away; then slowly and thoughtfully I made my way out of the house and up the lane to where Hugo was waiting for me. "My young friend," said he, when I had told my story, "we'll have no more of this. After lunch I'll drive you back to the hotel, you'll pack up your traps, pay your bill, and come home with me."

"You forget," I put in mildly, "that my host has definitely decided against having me killed off, and what more can a guest ask? Besides in the last twelve hours I've learned the devil of a lot—where Venner hangs out, his relations with the rest of the gang, and who knows what another day will produce? I tell you what, I'll sleep another night there and rejoin you tomorrow."

Feeling Of Revulsion

WE drove on to the Carlton in a more peaceful frame of mind, but the sight that met our eyes as we strolled leisurely up the ramp did nothing to add to our gaiety. There was Otilie Will, slim, gay and graceful, sitting at a small corner table. And the man who sat opposite her, his expressionless, pebble-like eyes fixed intently on her face, was René Geiss himself. I have never experienced a stronger feeling of revulsion than at the sight of the two together; but the effect on Hugo was even more remarkable. He swore aloud, "while I saw the dusky color rising to his temples. Then, without a word, he began to push his way through the tables. In two strides he was beside them. "Miss Will," he said stiffly, "may I have a word with you—in private?" She looked up quickly. "Why, Mr. Stern?" she said. "Surely this is an early appearance? I thought famous authors never awake till tea-time?"

chair, but before the explosion came, I spoke hastily.

"I think that's a top-hole notion," I said heartily. "But as a matter of fact, Miss Will, Mr. Stern has an urgent message for you, and I know Mr. Geiss will forgive us."

Otilie Will stood up, slowly and with a hint of uncertainty. "Is it as important as all that?" I gripped her by the arm. "Woman," I whispered, "do you want to provoke a free fight in the most public place in Cannes?" and I led her firmly through the entrance to the bar.

She dropped into a chair and stared up coolly at the two of us. "Well," she demanded, ominously quiet, "and now may I hear your message and go back to my table?" "That is not your table," said Hugo, still more quietly. "And this is my message, Miss Will, you will not sit to René Geiss for your portrait—neither will you hold any more conversations with him in future."

"And why not?" "Because," he retorted, "René Geiss, as you have already been told, is not safe or fit company for any girl, and Heaven knows we have no wish to occupy our minds at the moment without trotting at the heels of rash and imprudent young women. Merciful heavens!" he added, in an uncontrollable burst of irritation. "How many times do you have to be told a thing before it enters your head? You were told that if you didn't keep out of this business, it might seriously endanger us all, and the first thing you do is to scrape acquaintance with your sister's murderer!"

She winced at that, and I saw the tears started to her eyes; but the voice in which she answered him was very far from fearful. "You're sure you're quite finished?" she asked. "Because I'd certainly like to make a remark or two. You say I scraped acquaintance with Mr. Geiss. That's not true. Baron Stahl introduced us, not half an hour back, and it's not my fault if he wants to do a picture of me. You know very well I'm doing it for a purpose. You say that if I don't keep out of this business, it may seriously endanger you all—but it seems to me that if I don't take a hand, it's my uncle's life that will be seriously endangered. You say this must be found out and that discovered, but what have you actually accomplished? Nothing! You're as far as ever from knowing when, where, and how they'll try to kill my uncle, and every day, every minute brings the danger a little nearer. It's five little days till the 30th. After that it'll be too late—he'll be dead, like poor Melanie. I tell you, Mr. Hugo Stern, you may be a wonderful author, and your sister and your friends may think you're the brightest thing that ever happened, but your best isn't good enough for me!"

"No Quarrel Of Ours" SHE broke off with an angry gasp that was almost a sob. Then suddenly she swung round on Hugo, black eyes blazing. "I know," she cried. "You're all set to tell me some more, and I'll take all you can give me—but first let me finish. You believe this man Geiss has my sister killed? You believe he's the head of the conspiracy to murder my uncle? Well, then, isn't he the one man who will surely know what plans have been made?"

Hugo had got a grip on himself by now, though a quiver of the nostril told of fury held in check. "Miss Will," he said, "I have always believed that no woman was capable of reasoned argument, and now I know it; but before we leave you, there are one or two observations that I should like to make. First, this is a quarrel of ours. The sudden death of an unknown American, as far as my friend and I are concerned, would certainly be no reason for us to endanger our own lives and liberty. Yet in spite of that we are doing what we can to help you protect your uncle. Only this morning a murderous attempt was made on my friend's life, while bathing. Only this morning, as I waited for him in the main road beside my car, Baron Stahl deliberately attempted to run me down."

"Hell!" I said. "You never told me that!" But before I could continue, the girl broke in. "I'm so ashamed!" she said, very low. "I feel the lowest thing on earth, and yet—" She broke off suddenly. "Oh, there's Uncle!" As I looked up, startled, I saw the tall, gray-clad figure of Virgoc Will himself standing in the entrance to the bar. "Otilie!" he called, in a stentorian bellow. "Come out here this minute. I want you!" "I'll have to go," she said. The next instant we were standing before the old man. He was a fine-looking old fellow, still muscular, in spite of his age. His gnarled face was both wise and kind, and his eyes, surveying us shrewdly through round-lensed spectacles, were the eyes of a man who knew the world. He listened to his niece's introduction with a noncommittal air, but as he looked us up and down, his expression softened. "Gentlemen," he said, "I am glad to make your acquaintance. I wish that I could ask you to join me in a drink, but our luncheon awaits us. Perhaps, if you are passing this way you would do me the honor tonight at six thirty?"

Tomorrow: Otilie takes matters into her own hands.

Snow Hill, Sept. 6.—Cecil Longest—cast in the relief role—yesterday pitched his second straight victory against Tarboro as Snow Hill turned back the Serpents, 7-6, in Coastal Plain League semifinals. Longest yesterday handuffed Tarboro with eight hits as the locals pounded a 12-3 win in the opener of a best-four-of-seven series.

The Serpents drove Al Gettel to the showers in the sixth, and his successor, Lou Ciceralo, retired the side and was replaced by Longest at the beginning of the seventh. Longest yielded three hits and fanned two.

After the score had been tied three times, Snow Hill scored two runs in the eighth to clinch the victory. Harry Soufas opened the scoring by hitting his second homer of the day—his two-run homer in the sixth had tied the score. Rabb walked, advanced to second on Longest's single, and came in on Horse Mewborn's single.

Soup Campbell of Tarboro batted 1.0.0. with a homer, a triple, and a single. There were three other homers: Tatum of the Billies hit one in the third; Maynard of the Serpents hit one in the third; and Bullock of Tarboro hit one in the fourth.

FIVE 'BEEFS' IN RASSLE ROYAL

Wrestlers Stage Puzzling Exhibiting Last Night

When five big wrestlers got busy in the ring in the city-county armory there was something doing. Even the fans could not ascertain what type of holds the wrestlers were executing, but they seemed to enjoy everything that happened.

After eliminations in the "rassle royal," the first event on tap was semi-final wrestling. This bout lasted exactly sixty minutes, the exact period allotted for the fete, and was called a draw. Lon Chaney and Eddie Williams did the rassing, Cheney the scales at five pounds more than Williams, but their wasn't five pounds difference in their technique.

A hand smother gave Al Perry the first fall in the finals over Chin Lee, the Chinese. This required 25 minutes. Administering a body slam Perry took the second fall. There was a bit of resentment by Lee. But the referee's decision is supposed to be official in sportsdom, so Perry was apparently the winner.

Last night's battles were strictly confined to wrestling. However, A. B. Bracey and John Lautares, promoters, anticipate a good boxing card for next Monday night's program. They plan to use some of the available local talent. These local fighters may be local, but they are gifted with the ability to deliver "foreign" punches.

Plants at Durham, N. C., are said to produce one-fourth of the cigars manufactured in the United States.

Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 5.—San Diego, Calif., today won the American Legion Junior Base-ball championship series by defeating Spartanburg, 4 to 1. The first game of the series ended in a 14-inning 8-8 tie. The San Diegans won the second, fourth and fifth games. Spartanburg won only the third contest.

Kehn held the Spartans to four hits today, while his mates made seven off Cudd. A crowd of 8,000 saw the game. Both teams will be awarded trips to the World Series.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 6—(AP)—Almost everybody in Wall street said that after labor day the stock market probably would stage a new recovery push. It didn't though. Instead it went to sleep and rolled over on the losing side for fractions to a point or more.

While timid buying in the final hour of today's session reduced or cancelled recessions here and there, many recent leaders ended well behind minus signs while modest gains were conspicuous by their scarcity.

Transfers approximated 450,000 shares.

Brevard Is Excited Over Cigarette Paper Factory

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 6—Poles up in Brevard aren't paying quite as much attention to their summer visitors and tourists this year as they are accustomed to pay—they're quite excited over progress being made toward completion of the $2,000,000 cigarette paper factory now going up there.

At least that's how it appeared to your correspondent who is just from a swing through the mountains of the western part of the state. Even casual conversation revealed there is as much interest in the Ecusta Paper Corporation's undertaking as there is in making visitors conscious of the beauties of the section—beauties which, incidentally are glorious and manifold.

But industry has invaded the section with a vengeance. On a two hundred acre tract of land, crossed by the Davidson river and nestled in a hollow of the Toxaway mountains, a major operation is being performed.

Pile drivers have been brought in, and there is in process a deal of earth gouging, steel stringing, brick laying and concrete mixing. When it's all finished there will be a plant ready to turn out millions upon millions of fragile cigarette papers, measuring about one and a quarter by two and three-quarter inches.

The plant now under construction, as a matter of fact, will represent in many respects the beginning of a new industry in the entire United States. Almost all high type cigarette paper has in the past been manufactured in France; but when the Ecusta is in operation it is expected to furnish paper to the manufacturers of North Carolina, who already produce about 66 per cent of all cigarette made in the United States.

Laboratory Sought For Tar Heel City

Kinston—Information was received this week by the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce Headquarters here from Dr. J. T. Jardine, Director of Research and Chief Office of Experiment Station of the Department of Agriculture in Washington, which is handling the location of the Regional Research Laboratories to the effect that two cities in the territory served by the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce are being seriously considered for the location of one of these laboratories. These two cities are Durham and Raleigh.

Dr. Jardine stated that thousands of applications have come from all over the United States to the Department asking for one of these Laboratories. The Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce last year filed with the Department a factual statement dealing with North Carolina as a whole.

Judge Guy Elliott, chairman of the Executive Committee and Secretary N. G. Bartlett made a special trip to Washington to see that Eastern Carolina is given careful consideration. The outcome will be watched with a great deal of interest by all of this section.

PLANS MAPPED FOR BIG MEET

ternion session by W. S. Campbell, state president. An open forum discussion, led by William I. Horner, national legislative representative and editor, will trail the state president's address.

Election of district officers will highlight the afternoon session, which comes immediately after an open discussion on the district organization. After announcements, the meeting will adjourn until 7:30 p. m., for a barbecue supper in the city-county armory. Owens called attention to the fact that all guests are urged to register before 7 o'clock at the desk in the Proctor Hotel provided for attendants of the meeting.

The meeting in the armory hall will be called to order at 7:30 o'clock by Chairman Owens, after which introduction of the toastmaster, Professor R. C. Deant will be made. Mayor M. K. Blount of Greenville, will deliver the address of welcome and response to the welcome address will be made by State President W. S. Campbell. A response will also be made by a representative in behalf of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

Highlighting the night session will be an address by Hon. Lindsay C. Warren, who will be introduced by Col. E. Flanagan of Greenville. Another address will be delivered by William I. Horner, who will be introduced by O. L. Whitesell.

The program for the day will be completed by announcements and introduction of state officers.

ROTARY HEARS PROJECT TALK

A fire department Central station. A fire department signal call system.

The total cost of these projects including contingencies and the cost of land for new sites amounts to $249,500.00. In each instance the maximum amount has been estimated so that in no event will it fall over the estimated cost of either of the projects. It is believed that in all of the projects the cost will run less than estimated. You may ask the question; Why it is necessary to have these improvements? We must realize that the biggest business we have in Greenville is that of your City and if we are to keep pace with its growth and to have efficiency in Government then we must go forward and keep pace with the progress of the town. Then, at this time, when the Government is willing to give us 45 per cent of the cost and when the interest rate on bonds is the lowest it has been in the history of the Town and the cost of labor and materials are reasonable, should we not at least give the matter serious consideration in making improvements that are going to be ab-

SAYS AUSTRALIANS DOOMED FOR NOT CHOOSING BABY

Melbourne—(AP)—When faced with the choice between an automobile, a radio set or a baby, Australians do not choose a baby, said W. M. Hughes, commonwealth minister for external affairs, in a recent address.

He added that unless the birth rate increased Australia would be doomed as a nation.
