Nominated Over Two Supporters of Administration

THANKS VOTERS FOR CONFIDENCE

Issues Statement Declaring He Will Sustain President When He Is Right

Reno, Nev., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Returns from four-fifths of the votes cast in the Democratic primary election today showed a decisive victory for Senator Pat McCarran, who has opposed some of President Roosevelt's measures over two "100 per cent New Deal" opponents.

McCarran received 14,243 votes from 240 of the state's 262 precincts, compared with 5,521 for Albert Hilliard, Reno attorney, and 719 for Dr. John Worden of Carson City.

E. P. Carville, former United States attorney here, clinched the Democratic gubernatorial nomination with 9,852 to 7,295 for H. A. Harmon of Los Vegas, chairman of the state public service commission. Former Representative Chas. Richards was third.

The Republican gubernatorial nomination went to John Fulton, director of the University of Nevada School of Mines. He polled 3,726 votes to 2,894 for Samuel Durkee, former state highway engineer.

Senator McCarran will be opposed in November by former Senator T. L. Odde, who won the Republican nomination without opposition.

McCarran, in a statement thanking Nevadans for a splendid response to a call that demanded independence of thought.

"I will sustain and support the executive of the nation," he said, "as I have sustained him in the past when he was right. I will oppose him when he is wrong. I will be true to my oath to uphold and defend the constitution."

Already At Work On Street Project

City Engineer H. L. Rivers reported today that work already had started on the $80,000 street improvement project and that the contractors hope to complete the paving by the first of the year.

The contract was awarded to Ames and Webb Construction Co., of Raleigh last week and the firm began work immediately. Storm drainage pipe is being laid on Twelfth and Evans streets.

Bonds for financing the paving project were authorized by a vote of the people last summer, but their sale was held up in the hope of securing PWA funds to augment local funds and carry on a much larger project. A PWA grant was authorized to pay for 45 per cent of the total cost and instead of a $50,000 project, the city will get the advantage of a much larger project at no additional cost.

CZECHS AGAIN SEEK APPEASE NAZI-SUDETENS

Text of New Concessions Handed Party Leader

OFFER VIRTUAL SELF-GOV'TMENT

First Three of Four 'Suggestions' Directly or Indirectly Rejected by Minority

Praha, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The text of the new concessions by which the Czechoslovak government hopes to end its danger-laden dispute with the autonomy-demanding Sudeten-Germans was formally handed to a leader of the Sudeten party today by Premier Hodza.

The ceremony took place in an uncertain and pessimistic atmosphere.

In the absence of the Sudeten Fuehrer, Konran Henlein, who left last night to attend Nazi Germany's annual party rally at Nurnberg, Hodza made the presentation to Ernest Kundt, Henlein's lieutenant.

This marked the fourth set of "suggestions" made by the Praha government in recent weeks in the hope of composing the quarrel which—because Adolf Hitler has proclaimed himself protector of the Sudetens—is troubling all Europe.

France And Germany Wage Anti-Espionage Campaigns

HITLER HEARD BY CONSCRIPTS

Speech Climaxing the Main Event of Party Congress Interpreted as Admission Germany Perfecting Fortifications Along French Border

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler told Germany's conscript-labor army today that its spades, "being wielded in the east, north and south, but especially in the west"—on France's borders—were playing a vital part in defense of the Reich.

"You are fighting for the defense of the Reich and its independence," he told 40,000 labor conscripts as he stood in a pouring rain.

His speech was the climax of the annual labor rally, main event of the third day of the annual Nazi party congress.

Most of his audience interpreted his reference to the work of labor battalions, "especially in the west" as a public admission that they have been perfecting Germany's fortifications facing France.

Many considered it an indirect reply to France's calling of reserves into her Maginot line.

"Your spade creates new soil besides securing the old," Hitler declared. "Your spade x x x is being wielded for securing and maintaining the Reich."

Before speaking Hitler stood for 30 minutes to review the march past of the 40,000 youthful labor conscripts.

Funeral services will be held from the late home Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, by Rev. Phillips, Christian minister of Kinston, assisted by Rev. Lewis, Methodist minister of Vanceboro. Interment will be made in Riverside churchyard near the home.

Rigorous Border Control Adopted Along Frontier

Travelers Crossing From Saarbrucken To Stiring-Wendel Being Searched; French Officers Pose As Highway Workmen

Stiring-Wendel (at the French-German Border) Sept. 7.—(AP)—Both France and Germany clamped a rigorous "anti-espionage" campaign on top of their military activities on opposite sides of the frontier, where two armies awaited today the outcome of the Czechoslovak crisis.

In Germany the campaign resulted in a rigorous border control. Travelers crossing from Saarbrucken to Stiring-Wendel told stories of being searched by German frontier guards and some said they were forced to strip for the search.

In France a counter espionage campaign was marked by the sudden appearance of large numbers of road workers who could be seen throughout the zone of the Maginot line, France's border defenses, visibly digging up and filling in country roads which apparently had no need of re-surfacing.

Many counter espionage agents were posted near entrances to the Maginot underground fortifications. Their job was to check and watch each passerby in a car, on a bicycle or afoot.

Dodge Heir's Body Recovered In Bay

Little Current, Ontario, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press)—A fisherman recovered today the body of Daniel Dodge, heir to the Dodge automobile fortune, who drowned in Georgian bay three weeks ago after having been seriously injured by a dynamite explosion.

Wes Ryder found the body at almost the same spot where Dodge jumped or fell from a motor boat August 15.

The explosion occurred at Dodge's summer cottage 20 miles from here and Dodge disappeared into the water as he was being taken to a hospital.

His bride of two weeks and one of Dodge's camp employees also were injured in the explosion, but both have recovered.

The body was found as Capt. Simon Lake, noted submarine inventor, was at the scene ready to search with his new type submarine in the treacherous waters.

FRANCE CALLS MORE TROOPS

Undetermined Number of Reservists Ordered to Same Concentration Points They Finished Regular Service Only Few Weeks Ago

Paris, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A new military order issued by the war ministry sent trained infantry reserve troops into the Maginot line at the frontier opposite Germany for a 21-day period.

The order notified reservists, their exact number not determined, to report immediately for duty at the same concentration points where they finished their regular two-year military service only three weeks ago.

The instructions were received shortly after the government announced its "requisition" of No. 1 Port of Marseille placing the most important Mediterranean inlet for French-African troops and supplies under military control.

The order was said to concern only infantry fortress troops of the second class, the lowest military class. (The Maginot defenses generally are said to be at normal garrison with 100,000 men, but officers in the Zille say that 350,000 would be a conservative estimate of the garrison's present strength. This figure did not take into account of the new order.)

A.&N.C. Directors Meeting Thursday

Governor Hoey Prepares To Make Several Recommendations; Believe Crowell Be Retained

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Governor Hoey said today he would make several recommendations to the board of directors of the state-controlled Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad when they meet at Goldsboro tomorrow.

"I have not quite completed my recommendations and some data I want is not yet in hand, but I will make some suggestions tomorrow," said Governor Hoey. "I will not reveal them until they are presented to the board."

R. O. Self, chief clerk of the Utilities Commission, will be the state's proxy and Attorney General Harry McMillan will be the Governor's personal representative.

The state owns controlling stock on the corporation operating the railroad from Goldsboro to Morehead City and H. P. Crowell, a former Maine railroad man, is president and general manager. There has been much discussion that Crowell might be removed, but recent dispatches from New Bern, headquarters of the railroad, said it was probable he would be retained.

Violates Fire Law and Pays Penalty

John Henry Phillips, Pitt County Negro, was given a hearing today before Magistrate John Ivey Smith and taxed with the costs after being convicted on a charge of burning woods land.

C. A. Bowling, county fire warden, issued a warning that all persons burning new grounds are urged to be exceedingly careful; to notify persons on adjoining lands; provide a ten-foot right-of-way, and to secure a permit before burning new grounds. Persons not complying with these provisions, as provided by law, Bowling warned, will be subject to indictment.

Simplified Transfusions
The clotting of the blood is caused by the formation of a substance known as thrombin. The blood is effectively kept from clotting by a substance known as heparin.

Heparin, a natural inhibitor of blood coagulation, was discovered in the liver gland 20 years ago. Since then heparin has been studied chemically and clinically.

Heparin has two important applications in medicine. First it simplifies the technique of blood transfusion and second it is used to prevent and treat thrombosis of the formation within blood vessels, particularly following surgical operation.

In simplifying the technique of blood transfusion, heparin promises to prove of great benefit.

The transfusion of blood from the well to the sick is proving an ever more useful practice in medicine. Originally used only as an emergency measure, it is today utilized in many instances in which a weak or blood-poor patient requires an effective "pick up."

Normal blood when extracted from an individual tends to coagulate within five or six minutes after its removal from circulation. Coagulated blood cannot of course be transfused. To keep blood fluid "in transit" from the donor to the recipient, speed, intricate apparatus and certain chemical anticoagulants are necessary. This renders blood transfusion somewhat complicated and restricts its application. Now by injecting certain quantities of heparin into the donor the coagulation of his blood may be retarded and the transfusion may be done more surely.

The heparin injected into the donor has no untoward effects on him and his blood regains its normal coagulation power within a few hours after receiving the heparin. The coagulation time of the recipient's blood is not at all affected by the addition to it of the heparinized blood. The technique of simplified blood transfusion is therefore apparently without hazard for the donor or to the recipient and makes possible the wider utilization of the frequently life-saving practice.

The Characters
Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Arelie Lumsden, myself, his friend.
Ead Geiss, head of a murder conspiracy.
Ottillie Wills, American heiress.

Chapter 27

Posing For Geiss

VENING found us on the Carlton terrace, shaking hands with Mr. Virgoe Wills.

He was alone, a fact on which he commented as soon as he had settled us with our drinks.

Hugo stiffened in his chair. "Picture?" he echoed sharply, and the old man nodded.

"This Mr. Geiss was all set on making a picture of Ottillie; nothing would suit him but that she should sit for him."

"Do you mean," asked Hugo slowly, "that Miss Wills has gone alone to Geiss's villa?"

The old man raised his eyebrows. "Is there any reason," he asked quietly, "why my niece should not go alone to this individual's studio?"

"Every reason in the world," Hugo answered bluntly. "And I know Geiss."

Virgoe Wills frowned, pursing his lips. "She's certainly late," he admitted, "but she's not alone. Cassandra Chubb is with her, and Cassandra, gentlemen, is a woman in a million. She was nurse to my nieces as little girls."

"That's all right, then," I said, considerably relieved, but Hugo still frowned.

"I don't want to disturb you unduly, sir," he said, "but have I your permission to go round to the villa and bring your niece back?"

A second time the old man raised his eyebrows; then slowly he nodded.

"I don't entirely grasp the cause of your concern for my niece, but I believe in the disinterestedness of your motives. Go by all means."

Hugo got to his feet, and together we made our way toward the rug on the Diagon.

Dusk was falling, and the little street close-folled in its edging of trees, was dim and shadowed. As we halted before the iron gate of number 57, I was conscious of a goose-flesh sensation up my spine coupled with a shiver that ran over me like a cold wave.

There was something sinister in the very quiet of the scene, so still, so silent and yet so near the very heart and hub of the town; and when the peep-hole shutter slid aside at our ring and I saw the pale face of the manservant surveyin, us through it, it seemed to me that he was the very incarnation of evil.

He started perceptibly as he recognized us. "Monsieur does not receive," he said hurriedly, before ever we had time to put a question, and the shutter was closed.

We stood there in the deserted road staring at each other. What to do I couldn't imagine.

Quiet As A Graveyard

AND then, just as hope died, came a most welcome interruption. On the other side of the gate there broke out what sounded singularly like a dog-fight; I heard a chatter of angry voices, something that echoed like a heavy sloop, and next moment the door itself flew open and there showed in the aperture a small stout, irate woman.

"Are you from Mr. Wills?" she demanded, and when we nodded: "Praise be!" she commented piously, adding sharply: "Well, step in! Don't stand mooning!"

We followed meekly at her heels, past the manservant standing aside, pale and malevolent, and up the glass-roofed passage to the house. The hall lay before us a dim, gracious place of pearl-gray paneling and silver marble floor, but it was almost menacingly empty, and as we entered, Hugo swung round on the woman.

promise you. But first we've got to find out," I turned to Hugo. "Try again," I advised, and he beat a thunderous tattoo on the panels. "Geiss!" he shouted. "Open the door, damn you!" but nothing stirred.

He swung round on me, his face livid with fury. "Come on!" he said. "We've got to smash this door."

But I had been doing a bit of thinking, and I had remembered Jean-Francois's description of the lay-out of the house. I turned to where the manservant stood, watching us maliciously.

"Come here, my friend," I said, and as he reluctantly approached, I drew a couple of hundred-franc notes from my wallet. "See here," said I, twirling them suggestively, "I want a little information. Isn't there a second exit from the studio?"

He took a long look at the money and nodded silently.

"And that door," I continued, "opens into the private chamber of Monsieur Geiss—the room which you are not permitted to enter?"

He started at that, and his pallid face grew paler. "Monsieur is well informed," he said slowly, and his open hand came forward tentatively, but I drew back a step.

"I haven't had two hundred francs worth of information yet," I warned him. "Tell me, is there a second key to the studio door?"

Guile

HE SHOOK his head. "Alas, no!" he said. "Monsieur Geiss and the young lady are without doubt in the private room, but the door from the studio is very strong, and that other door—he jerked his head towards the end of the hall—is even stronger. Also, Monsieur Geiss opens to no one when he is in that room."

"No?" I commented dryly. "Well, it's all to try for," I handed him the notes. "Go, my friend," I said. "Retire yourself into the utmost recesses of your kitchen and don't come out till you're called for."

I watched him steal, cat-footed, across the hall and vanish through another door, then I turned to Cassandra Chubb, waiting at my elbow. "Stay here and keep an eye on the lines of communication," I told her, and she gave me a swift appraising nod.

There was a gently curving staircase at the hall's end, and beside it two malachite pillars flanked a narrow passage. Side by side Hugo and I made our way down it, but as we halted before the door at the far end, I groaned.

"Phew!" I said distantly. "That unpleasant mental spoke the truth. It would take a wagon-load of dynamite to shift this obstruction."

It was painfully true. The door that faced us was a massive affair of bleached oak, handleless and broken only by a minute key-hole and a queer-looking, bronze knocker. I lifted it and hammered lustily, but for a minute there was no reply; then, thin and thread-like through the solid wood, I heard Geiss's voice.

"Who knocks?" it said.

"It's Hugo Stern and Lumsden," I called back cheerfully. "Come to fetch Miss Ottillie Wills. Her uncle is waiting for her."

There followed a moment's pause, and then, faint and faraway I heard a soft cackle of laughter. "Hugo Stern and Lumsden must go away," came the voice again. "I open to no one till I am ready."

I looked at Hugo with raised eyebrows. "Smash the blasted thing in!" he said between his teeth, but I gave another look at the door and shook my head.

"Samson couldn't do it," I told him. "No, old lad, we've got to try guile."

Under Mark Sandrich's smooth direction, practically all possibilities inherent in the pseudo-scientific apparatus of the movie doctor's trade are realized. And it keeps on to the climax which puts it up to Fred: he having hypnotized Ginger into deathless affection for Bellamy and hatred for himself, to snap her out of it.

Irving Berlin wrote the tunes, and for dancing specialties there are Fred's golf number, a real slicker; Fred and Ginger's slow-motion "dream dance," about as beautiful as you can imagine; a "hypnotic dance" in which Fred almost works his spell on Ginger; and the usual big show-off piece, this time called "the Yam" and sick, too.

"Drums"—This is Alexander Korda's English production, full of spectacular mountain scenery in technicolor, and photographically superb.

The story is one of those Rule Britannia things. Desert outpost with a handful of his majesty's troops surrounded by cut-throat native intrigue, valor and the aura of Kipling.

LEAF GRADING TO BE TAUGHT

Sorting And Grading Schools Planned for the Old Belt
Raleigh, Sept. 6.—W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, today announced that sorting and grading schools will be conducted in seven counties of the Old Belt, beginning September 12, with the purpose of increasing the farmer's income from tobacco.

For one thing, it has a story and a bright one. Astaire plays a psychoanalyst, and Ginger is the radio singer who's engaged to Fred's best friend (Ralph Bellamy) but can't make up her mind about marrying him.

Under Mark Sandrich's smooth direction, practically all possibilities inherent in the pseudo-scientific apparatus of the movie doctor's trade are realized. And it keeps on to the climax which puts it up to Fred: he having hypnotized Ginger into deathless affection for Bellamy and hatred for himself, to snap her out of it.

Sabu (remembered as the "Elephant Boy") is a native prince whose uncle has murdered his father and ousted him from the throne. Roger Livesey is the British officer. Valerie Hobson his pretty and so-brave wife and Raymond Massey—who makes you think he's the only actor in the cast—is the villainous native uncle, turban and jewels and all. Young Desmond Tester, a red-headed freckleface, is Sabu's pal, ingratiating in adolescent comedy.

"The Road to Reno"—Comparatively inexpensive but expertly, even cleverly directed by Sylvain Simon, this one (about the opera star who goes to Reno and falls in love again) with the rancher she's divorcing) brings Hope Hampton back to the screen.

Billed second to Randolph Scott, the one-time silent screen star sings opera and a couple of nice ballads while deciding between Scott and her other suitor, Alan Marshall. She has the rather vacant beauty of an old-fashioned china doll, and a bloneness about as subtle as a sunburst, but the requirements of her role are not taxing. The fixed toothpaste smile serving nicely on most occasions, and the camera is kind.

DECLARE GRAY IS QUALIFIED

Forsyth Man Said To Have Notions, Money and Ability

Raleigh, Sept. 6.—Nomination of Gordon Gray for a seat in the State Senate plus his present candidacy for president of the North Carolina Young Democrats indicate clearly that the comparatively young Winston-Salem publisher has political notions in a big way.

Possession of political notions is, in itself, nothing to get very excited about as many a man has them in large quantities, but when to these notions are added money and ability then there's a figure to be reckoned without the political field.

The general impression in Raleigh is that young Gray is endowed with the trinity mentioned. Certainly he has the notions—his illustrious ancestors attended to that. Undoubtedly he shows it quite clearly. The consensus seems to be that he likewise has the ability. The fact that he was a Phi Beta Kappa at college raises a presumption that his mentality is above the average, and the apparent success with which he has been directing his newspaper ventures is reasonably good circumstantial evidence along the same lines.

So far as his current ambitions go he is better than a 1 to 100 favorite to represent Forsyth in the 1939 Senate—the Republicans haven't won up there in a long, long time and don't seem likely to break the precedent this year.

For the Y. D. C. presidency Gray is at least an even chance in the

It is assumed that Gray's next objective is probably the Lieutenant Governorship in 1940, when North Carolina's No. 2 man comes from the west. At all events, Gray is a political figure worth keeping an eye on.

TOBACCO "SELLING" FARCE

To The Editor:
Again the colossal farce of "selling" tobacco is in progress. Again those for and against "crop control" are heard in every town and hamlet. Both advocates and opponents of control are aroused by the low prices, and last Saturday meetings were addressed by AAA and Farm Bureau officials in a so-called effort to find the "cause" and "possible remedy" for the low prices. It is not reported that either was discovered. The "cause" is the same as ever, and as every grower and AAA and Farm Bureau official knows—greed on the part of the tobacco monopoly; unwillingness to pay a living price for a product which it controls entirely.

So far the "crop control" program has succeeded only in enlarging greatly the number of liars and deceivers among both the farmers who grow the weed and those officials who are in charge of the allotment of acreage and poundage. Favoritism, discrimination and unjust decisions have caused a number of suicides, and hardships and poverty for numerous others.

Crop control was and is a beautiful theory, but at present administration is entirely useless for the purpose for which it was created—to obtain for the farmer a fair price for his product. Government grading was promised as a sure cure for low and unequal prices. I followed the buyers on a certain floor last week and in a distance of 50 baskets which the government grader had marked I discovered variations in the price on the same grade of tobacco from 28 cents on one basket to 15 cents on several. Of what possible benefit is government grading outside of providing more "white-collar" jobs at taxpayers' expense?

Crop control at present only controls the farmer—most of them to continued hardship, poverty and a bare existence. If the government is really desirous of controlling tobacco so that the growers will get a living wage let the government grade all the tobacco on every warehouse floor; then have a committee of several experts from the growers, the companies and the government set a fair price for each grade. Let the government build warehouses and then sell the tobacco companies that the tobacco is for sale at the price set. Let the government make loans on tobacco as it does on cotton. And if the tobacco companies refuse to buy at the price set, let the government confiscate the tobacco factories and run them for the benefit of the government. The government has already told the tobacco companies through the Wage and Hour law what they must pay their laborers, and how many hours they can work them, and through the health boards under what conditions they can work.

So if Mr. Roosevelt's pipe dream is to be of any benefit to the farmer let the government take him (the farmer) from the clutches of the most rapacious monopoly known in America and guarantee him a fair price for his tobacco. Then control production. The farmers will attend to hours and other conditions.

WHEN OLD SOLDIERS MET—WAR WAS RESUMED

Dutch Flat, Calif.—(AP)—Here's one that won't go down in the list of happy reunions of veterans. Game warden Earl Hiscox, looking into Henry A. Schroeder's hunting credentials, got to talking about the World War. He discovered that they had been in machine gun companies pitted against each other—he with the A.E.P., and Schroeder with the Germans.

He also found that Schroeder had falsely represented himself as a citizen in getting a hunting license and had apparently been smuggled into this country in 1926.

Now Schroeder is serving a 50-day term in jail on his release from the State Penitentiary.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grosser
By DR. L. S. ROWE
(Director General of the Pan American Union)

Washington—Peace in the Western Hemisphere is the business of every government in North and South America.
That principle was confirmed a few weeks ago when Bolivia and Paraguay decided to submit their Chaco war to arbitration, after a century of intermittent fighting.

Thus the conference method of settling international disputes triumphed again on this side of the Atlantic. Even now the family of American governments is preparing for another in the long line of Pan American conferences, this one to be held in Lima, Peru, early in December.

A glance at the record helps explain this comparative quiet on the American front despite the war clatter elsewhere in the world. It reads almost like "A Century of Progress."

A little more than a century ago, in 1828, Simon Bolivar, the Great Liberator, called a conference of nations which assembled in Panama. Although U. S. delegates arrived after the meeting adjourned, several Latin American representatives got together in time for a little friendly discussion.

By 1889 the First Pan American Conference met in Washington, D. C. It went so far as to establish a commercial bureau to foster trade relations between the American republics.

Covers Many Fields
Since that meeting half a century ago seven Pan American conferences have dealt with an increasing variety of subjects like commerce and finance, communications and transportation; intellectual and cultural relations; public health and social welfare; arbitration, conciliation, and codification of international law—to name a few.

Most important was the Buenos Aires gathering in December, 1936, to consider ways of strengthening the peace machinery. Out of it grew the principle of joint responsibility of ALL American governments for the maintenance of peace in the Western Hemisphere.

With these international conclaves of American governments has grown the Pan American Union, as a permanent headquarters for inter-American affairs.

From its start as a commercial bureau it has broadened its activities to keep up with international developments until it now handles the agendas of the general Pan American conferences and of some of the special gatherings.

For Peace Association.
Already the governing board of the Union has drafted the program for the coming Peru conference, after consultation with the governments which will attend.

The program will cover economic questions, the political and civil rights of women, organization of peace, international law, intellectual cooperation and moral disarmament.

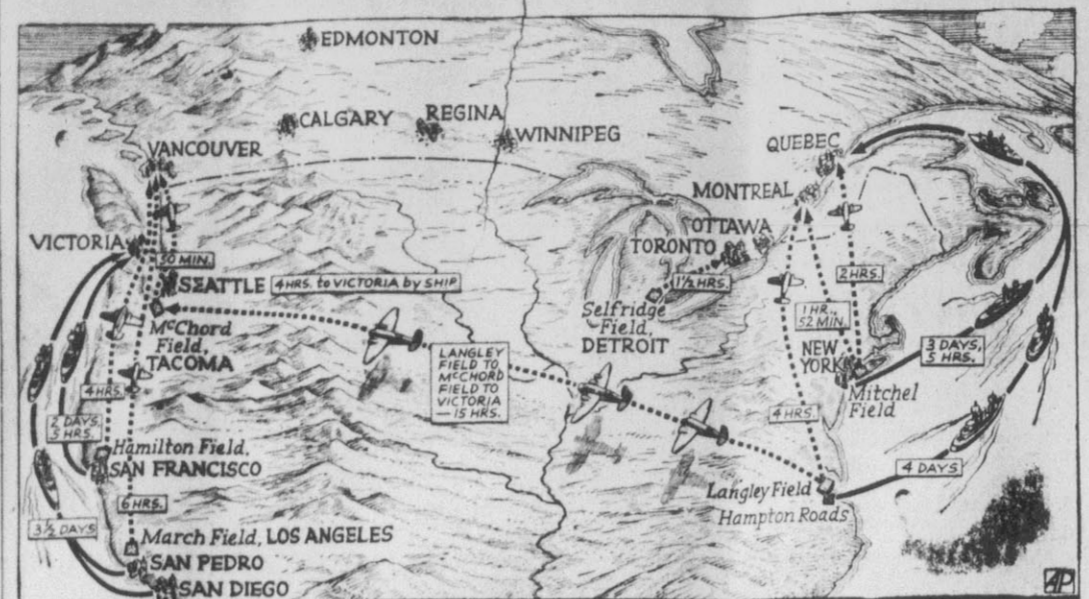

Also likely to attract attention is the proposal of the governments of Colombia and the Dominican Republic for the creation of an association of American nations with increased power to preserve the peace of the Western Hemisphere.

One of the criticisms leveled at the conferences and at the Pan American Union itself is the lack of enforcement weapons like the sanctions which can be invoked by the League of Nations.

The Union of course is largely an administrative body without political functions or opinions. The conferences, on the other hand, have shown that they can settle disputes without the threat of force.

Dominion Defense Moves at Double Quick To Catch Arms Parade After 20-Year Lag

The map shows how quickly America could aid Canada in case of need. Military authorities say we could put 300 first class fighting planes in the air near any Canadian coastal city within 15 to 18 hours of the time it were threatened by enemy planes or ships. But the fact is of course that the first line of defense would be the open sea where American navy and air fleet would seek any enemy.

To Be No Cracking-Down Of Act Under Fletcher

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 7.—There will be little, if any, "cracking down" in enforcement of the Federal Wage-Hour law under the direction of Major A. L. Fletcher who is to quit his state post as Commissioner of Labor next week to assume charge of the compliance division of the national Wage-Hour administration.

"I'll be just a small town guy trying to apply on a national scale the same principles I've used in North Carolina for the past six years," the modest Major told your correspondent today.

"I've never believed in cracking down and getting hardboiled in the enforcement of this state's laws; I've found that a spirit of co-operation, conciliation and education produces far better results—so that's the spirit with which I'll tackle what I know will be the hardest job I've ever had in my life."

The Major believes that the crackup of N.R.A.'s enforcing division led directly to the crackup of the entire plan symbolized by the Blue Eagle. He is determined that no such fate shall befall the Wage-Hour administration.

"But for the breakdown of enforcement and the horrible mess made of that phase of the program, all the best parts of N.R.A. would still be in effect," he said.

The Commissioner thinks the Wage-Hour measure will stand up successfully under tests of its Constitutionality, but foresees continuing worry and trouble over the question of what industries and business are interstate in character so as to come under terms of the act.

"Senator Josiah William Bailey predicts that the whole thing will be declared unconstitutional within a few months," he said.

"He's a mighty good lawyer, but this is one time I hope the erudite gentleman is wrong—I think he is, anyhow," he continued.

"And he'd better be, or I'll find myself without a job in a few months," he added with a chuckle.

During his long term as labor commissioner Major Fletcher has steadfastly pursued a policy of exhausting every other remedy before hailing any employer into court for violations of the state's labor laws. He has on every occasion patiently explained the situation to those who were acting contrary to the statutes and has urged compliance and co-operation.

"Forrest Shuford has been working with me for six years," he said, "and I am certain that he will continue along the same lines as those on which we have been working. I have always had his hearty co-operation and assistance."

As administrator of the new wage-hour law which takes effect October 24, Elmer F. Andrews is one of the most important men in America today to employers and to labor. Here he has written a Labor Day statement explaining tersely the philosophy behind the new law and the practical results for which its sponsors hope.

By ELMER F. ANDREWS
(Written For the AP Feature Service)
Washington, Sept. 7.—America still has all the resources necessary to regain prosperity and obtain a measure of economic security for all its people. More generally than ever before, it is agreed that we must husband our resources, our land, our minerals, our equipment, our people. Some sort of economic balance that will bring about healthy, not feverish, prosperity must be achieved.

Legislative 'Keystone'
In my view, the fair labor standards act, more general known as the wage and hour law, is the keystone in the arch of all this legislation. Perhaps because I have been an administrator of state labor laws, it has seemed to me that this law—and I said this many months ago when it was still being discussed as a bill—is of the greatest importance because it will assist industry in paying wage earners at least enough wages to live on.

If such wages can be paid, purchasing power will be increased and maintained; employment in the production of goods for which there will be a greater and more stable market will be increased and stab-

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—Stirnweiss' stomach and McAfee's warts are the liveliest topics of conversation in Raleigh at the current writing.

Told that Duke's McAfee would be out of the Blue Devil lineup all the coming football season, Bob Thompson, the governor's secretary and as loyal an alumnus as ever came off the U.N.C. campus at Chapel Hill said:

"Oh, that's too bad, thank goodness."

It may also be noted that the Chapel Hill folks did NOT send Stirnweiss to Duke Hospital, though they did send him to Durham when he was stricken with appendicitis.

Who can blame them when it was a question of to operate or not to operate and the decision might mean the difference between Stirnweiss in the Tar Heel lineup all year or in a hospital most of it.

There ought to be lots of entries in the County Progress exhibits at the State Fair here in October.

Certainly the class has been membership by offer of $1,750 in premiums, divided $750 to first, $500 to second, $300 to third and $200 to fourth.

Has Wage-Hour Job

A. L. Fletcher (above), North Carolina Commissioner of Labor, has been appointed assistant administrator of the wage-hour law in charge of compliance. Administrator Elmer F. Andrews announced Fletcher is a World War veteran and a former newspaperman.

apply to enforcement of the Wage-Hour measure. He is to put in complete command of the national compliance division, he understands, and he expects complete liberty of action in his sphere.

"I shall try my best to be fair to all sections of the country," he said, "but there's one thing certain, I shall see that North Carolina industry and labor gets a fair shake and that there is no discrimination against this state and the South in enforcement of the law."

As for the state Labor Department, Major Fletcher is confident there will be no change in policies and progress.

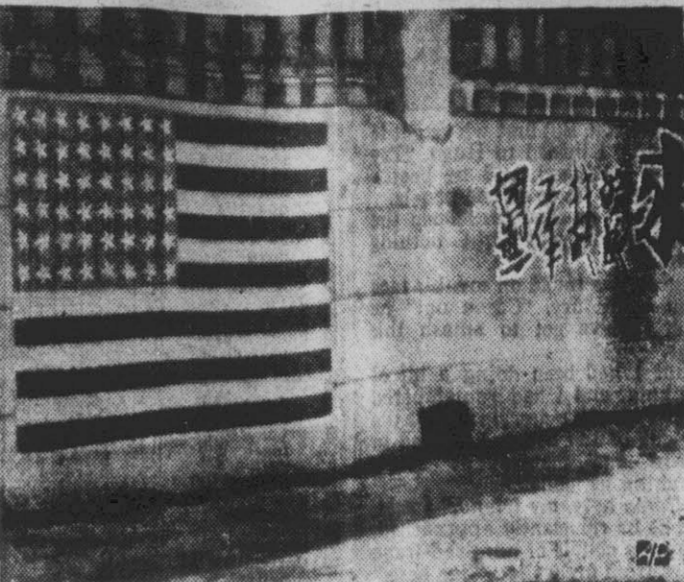

"Forrest Shuford has been working with me for six years," he said, "and I am certain that he will continue along the same lines as those on which we have been working. I have always had his hearty co-operation and assistance."

As administrator of the new wage-hour law which takes effect October 24, Elmer F. Andrews is one of the most important men in America today to employers and to labor. Here he has written a Labor Day statement explaining tersely the philosophy behind the new law and the practical results for which its sponsors hope.

Washington, Sept. 7.—America still has all the resources necessary to regain prosperity and obtain a measure of economic security for all its people. More generally than ever before, it is agreed that we must husband our resources, our land, our minerals, our equipment, our people. Some sort of economic balance that will bring about healthy, not feverish, prosperity must be achieved.

Legislative 'Keystone'
In my view, the fair labor standards act, more general known as the wage and hour law, is the keystone in the arch of all this legislation. Perhaps because I have been an administrator of state labor laws, it has seemed to me that this law—and I said this many months ago when it was still being discussed as a bill—is of the greatest importance because it will assist industry in paying wage earners at least enough wages to live on.

If such wages can be paid, purchasing power will be increased and maintained; employment in the production of goods for which there will be a greater and more stable market will be increased and stab-

Malone Hurls 5 to 1 Victory; Errors and Walks Aid Serps

COASTAL PLAIN LEAGUE (Semifinal Series)

Snow Hill	2	1 .067

Tarboro, Sept. 7—Tarboro yesterday took advantage of Lefty Zschau's third-inning wildness and scored its first victory in Coastal Plain League semi-final play by turning back Snow Hill, 5-1, here.

Eddie Malone pitched the victory. After yielding a run in the first inning, he was master of the Billies. Following the Billies' score, Malone started on a streak of perfect pitching which set down 22 batters in order.

The Serpents mixed four walks, two errors and a single to score five runs in the third. Walks to Maynard and Myers, sandwiched around Mewborn's error of Myers' ground-out, filled the bases. Campbell's single scored two runs. Passes to Briscose and Dick served to force in another tally. Rabb threw wild to first after fielding Bullock's roller, and two more runs came home.

Snow Hill's first inning run resulted from a walk to Mewborn and singles by Stirewalt and Maisano. Each club made five hits. Zschau walked nine; Malone, two. Malone fanned six; Zschau, three.

Maynard of Tarboro batted 1.000 with two singles.

Man About Manhattan

New York—When a newspaperman starts out, invariably he keeps a scrap book of his writings as if they were precious things needing to be carefully preserved.

Gradually his ardor for pasting up his own product cools, and eventually he stops the practice entirely.

I've often wondered what musicians, artists, writers, sculptors and other workers in esthetic fields do about keeping some sort of a bibliography of their works.

Shortly before his death Julian Hawthorne, author of four score of books, confessed to a friend that he had forgotten about many of the works he had written, and in fact possessed very few of them.

I seem, however, to recall their cadavers," he remarked when the titles of some of his early fictions were recalled.

But even younger men soon lose the inclination to keep records. Take Arthur Schwartz, for instance. Though only thirty-six, he is the composer of a couple of hundred songs, many of them hit tunes and of a lengthening list of successful musical plays.

At first, as any young and proud composer might be expected to do, he bound collections of his songs in opulent leather folders, and kept them handy on his piano. But he finally gave that up just as the newspaperman gives up pasting clippings.

If you visit him in his windswept penthouse apartment on Park avenue and mention his songs he probably will drag out two or three of these bound volumes. But there isn't anything recent there by the writer of "Dancing in The Dark," "Alone Together," "Louisiana Hayride," and a score of other remembered scores.

"I've probably got copies around

Circus Orphan Adds Cub Lion To Galaxy Of Pets

MARY HILTON, CIRCUS ORPHAN, AND TOOTS

Among the boys and girls with the great Robbins Brothers Circus there are a score. They are children of performers and officials of the big show, excepting Mary Hilton, five years old, the little circus orphan.

Tragedy has followed in the wake of little Mary's life. Her father, an aerial gymnast, was killed in a fall from a perch pole at the Chicago Stadium three years ago. Several months later her mother, who, too, was a circus performer, died after a short illness. With no immediate relatives, Mary was adopted by performers of the Robbins Brothers Circus.

Although deprived of parental care, Mary is the little sweetheart of all of the 300 performers with the show. She has an endless number of Shetland ponies and a wagon-load of dogs as playmates. Added to this list of pets this year is a lion cub, Toots.

The little trouper wishes to be an acrobat when she grows up. Her training has already started. Just now Mary is studying her Three R's under the tutelage of Fred Yost, a clown, and the most schooled performer with the circus.

The Robbins Brothers Circus is coming to Greenville on Tuesday, September 20, at Fair Grounds for two performances at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors to the menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m. An immense street

Winner of the 1938 Bendix air race was red-haired Jacqueline Cochran, 27, who piloted her plane across the country at 246 miles an hour to nose 10 men out of $12,500 in prize money. First to reach Cleveland from Burbank, Calif., she continued over Bendix, N. J., and landed at Floyd Bennett field, New York, her time from Burbank to Bendix was 10 hours, seven minutes, 10 seconds. She is the wife of financier Floyd B. Odlum. Here she is shown (center) as she left her plane at Floyd Bennett field.

No-Hitter!

Atlanta, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Woodrow Rich, rookie righthander of Little Rock, pitched a no-hit, no-run game last night against the Atlanta Crackers, leader of the Southern Association. His team scored four runs.

The performance, in which Rich overcame the "Cracker complex" that has dogged him all season, was in the first tilt of a doubleheader.

In the Southern all-star game here July 7, the Crackers made seven runs in one inning off Rich.

Rich tonight fanned seven batters and allowed only two bases on balls.

parade will be seen on the downtown streets at 11 a. m. There will be hundreds of horses, rumbling wagons of red and gold, toonig callopes, trumpeting bands, 20 elephants and two caravans of camels from Asia and Siberia.

As an added feature attraction Clyde Beatty, greatest wild animal trainer of all time, will present the world's largest wild animal act, battling 40 ferocious jungle bred lions and tigers.

BOOKCONTAINS POTEAAT TALKS

Raleigh Men Combine Wake Forest Addresses in Book

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 5.—Edwards and Broughton of Raleigh have issued an attractive booklet containing the Wake Forest address of the late William Louis Poteat, who was head of the Baptist institution from 1905 to 1927.

"Youth and Culture" is the name of the volume which contains all the commencement written addresses which he made to his graduating classes. They are the best of the Poteat brain at its very best, though he uttered some of his most famous lectures after he left the presidency of the institution.

Though Dr. Poteat was president of what he always called a "small denominational college," his tenure at Wake Forest made him a national figure, not alone for the controversial character of his teachings, but also for the structural beauty and power of his written and spoken words. His last appearance at a Baptist State convention in 1936 was regarded by many of his associates as the occasion of his greatest address. He was president of the Baptist State convention in 1937 but illness prevented his presiding and making his address.

Death the past spring at the age of 82 left these addresses as a part of the college heritage. Friends of the educator expect the booklet, in nowise designed for public sale, to have that sale. They doubt that any institution in the country had a president capable of such eloquence as his book reveals.

QUESTION: What is meant by the football expression "gap"?

Answer: When an offensive end, for example, moves out from his tackle, a gap is formed. Hence the expression "gap." When any offensive linemen are separated by a few feet, a gap is formed. Any gap other than between end and tackle, however, is usually thought of as a "line divide" or split line.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The stock market was aroused from its lethargy today by a sudden glow of hope for a peaceful settlement of the German minority issue in Czechoslovakia and pivotal shares turned upward abruptly.
Gains of fractions to more than a point quickly were rung up throughout the list as reports on financial tickers of the dickering between the Czechs and Sudeten Germans led to a surge of optimism for solution of the problem.
Transactions jumped about 900,000 shares.

EX-CROWN PRINCE ON DEATH BED

Nine hours after he was injured in an automobile accident, the Count of Covadonga, former crown prince of Spain, bled to death in a Miami hospital as a consequence of hemorrhage, the hereditary disease afflicting male members of his family. The Count is shown in the hospital shortly before death. With him is his secretary, Jack Fleming. Covadonga's companion, Miss Mildred Gaydon, cigarette girl in a Miami night club, was driving the car at the time of the accident. She escaped with slight injuries.

Young Demos Likely Take Indirect Slap At Purge

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—North Carolina's Young Democrats, in convention assembled at Durham this week, will probably take an indirect slap, at least, at President Franklin D. Roosevelt's so-called "Party purge."
Which is not to say that the Y. D.'s will grow so bold and rebellious as to adopt resolutions, directly condemning FDR for his efforts to oust Millard Tydings, Walter G. Orge and others from the national legislative councils; but in most of the speeches there are almost certain to be backhand cracks at the presidential plans and policy.
This is made almost certain by the identity of the speakers who will make the "key" address.

For instance, there's Bob Thompson, the Governor's secretary who will sound the keynote at the Durham sessions. Governor Clyde R. Hrey hasn't said so publicly, but there's absolutely no doubt in anyone's mind that he is opposed to the "purge" and it's dollars to doughnuts that Bob will voice some such sentiments somewhere in his talk. Not that Bob is going to have any such instructions from the Governor, nor that he hasn't any opinions of his own, but on this particular subject his views and those of Clyde R. are exactly the same, and it's hardly likely he'll pass up a chance to air them.
And then there's Josiah W. Bailey who beyond any shadow of a doubt would be one of the most determinedly sought "purgees" if he were up for re-election this year. The senior Senator from North Carolina is down for an address and it's certain that Josiah W. is likely to have something to say on the subject.

Student Group An Aid to Newcomers

Seventh graders who will become students of Greenville high school for the first time during the 1938-39 session will find a warm reception and spirit of co-operation awaiting them when they go to the high school tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the school.
The student government council, assisted by faculty members, will be in charge of the program. This morning members of the student council were lettering cards bearing names of teachers and homeroom numbers, which will be placed on the doors of the teacher's rooms. This will enable the newcomers to find their rooms more easily.
Committeemen have been selected from the student council to supervise work with the new students. This work includes directing new
