Complete Break-Down Of Chamberlain And Hitler Negotiations Now Feared

DIRECT TALKS REACH AN END

Hitler Replies to Letter from Prime Minister Which Brought Suspension of Conversations on European Crisis; Texts of Both Notes Withheld

Godesburg, Germany, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reply to Prime Minister Chamberlain's letter, which this morning suspended their conversations on the European crisis, reached the British statesman at his Petersburg hotel at 3:35 p. m. (9:35 a. m., EST) today.

There was no immediate indication of the tenor of the reply, nor of when the talks would be resumed.

Meanwhile the negotiations in which Chamberlain is trying to assure Europe's peace at an unprecedented price continued in a state of tense suspense.

Half an hour before he was to meet Hitler at the Fuehrer's hotel headquarters here this morning the British Minister sent his letter across the Rhine, calling off the meeting. Then, he stayed in his hotel suite awaiting the reply.

There was no official information on what Chamberlain's letter said, but informed persons believed it outlined essential conditions for continuation of the talks.

One of Chamberlain's conditions was reported unofficially to be that Hitler help arrange a truce between the Sudeten Germans and Czechs who reported drawn up against each other in line as if for battle on the Sudetenland border.

Persons in close touch with both assessed fear today's developments might bring on a break-down in negotiations, dealing in part at least with re-drawing the frontiers of Czechoslovakia in an effort to prevent European war.

Jail Two Negroes in Cigarette Theft

Two "foreign" Negroes, William Wright of Georgia and William Jennette of Plymouth, are being held in jail here after having been arrested last night on a charge of stealing a case of cigarettes.

The Negroes allegedly stole the cigarettes while a truck belonging to White's Stores, Inc., was making a delivery. After the theft, the cigarettes were concealed in a dense patch of woods and were removed as rapidly as the Negroes could sell them by the carton and by the pack.

When arrested, one of the Negroes was attired in new clothing. Officers were of the belief that the clothing had been secured with money derived from the sale of the cigarettes.

Furniture Store Nearly Completed

The new building to house the Quinn-Miller & Stroud furniture store on Ocotanche street, is nearing completion and L. A. Stroud, manager, said the formal opening probably would be held some time next week.

The new store will be one of the most attractive in this section of the state. Furniture will be displayed on the main floor and on a mezzanine.

The firm will feature its "Raleigh court," to be a home within itself, where a kitchen, dining room, living room and bedroom will be completely furnished to show the latest furniture for each.

The store will be modern throughout, with the best in lighting effects. At the rear of the building will be located a stock receiving room and offices.

World use of motor vehicles hit a new high in January, 1938, with 43,078,630 vehicles registered—an increase of 6.2 per cent over the preceding year.

IN PATH OF NEW ENGLAND STORM

Only a wall supporting the pipe organ remained standing after St. Hedwig's, a Polish church in East Cambridge, Mass., was struck by a hurricane that swept over the New England states. Nearly 500 persons are known to have lost their lives. Damage was estimated in the millions. (Other Storm Pictures on Page 6)

Tobacco Prices Compare Favorably With Last Year

The weekly sales report issued by the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade shows that offerings this year are running practically the same as last year, but an average price for the season one cent higher on the 100 pounds than at the same date in 1937.

During the week ended yesterday 5,966,426 pounds of tobacco were sold for $1,349,305.19, or an official average of $22.62 per hundred pounds. These figures compare with sales of 5,897,739 pounds sold the same week last season for $1,314,017.26, an average of $23.47.

To date this year 20,914,166 pounds of tobacco have been sold, bringing farmers $4,473,001.13, or an average of $21.39. To the comparable date last season 20,983,514 pounds had been sold for $4,485,000. (Continued on page seven)

Troops Along Belgian, Italian, German Frontiers Ordered to Assume Positions

Godesburg, Germany, Sept. 23.—(AP)—After a day of suspension in the fateful Godesburg talk on the peace of Europe, came announcement that Prime Minister Chamberlain would see Chancellor Hitler later tonight and return to London by plane early tomorrow morning.

The disclosure was made shortly after Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, told the League of Nations that Russia might voluntarily go to the aid of Czechoslovakia, but no one can insist on this help as a duty.

The Russian sources said P. Comnen, Rumanian delegate to the League, had renewed his country's pledge to allow Russian troops and supplies to pass through Rumania on their way to Czechoslovakia, provided France and Britain fought on the side of Moscow.

Rumania has flatly refused such passage if Russia fought alone for Prague.

Paris, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Deputies tonight quoted Premier Daladier as declaring that "in Germany enters Czechoslovakia France will face her engagements."

Deputy L. Malvy, one of the leaders of the Premier's own party, was one of those who quoted those words to newspapermen after a delegation of radical socialist ministers (Continued on Page Eight)

Floods Threaten To Add Suffering To Storm Areas As Death Toll Increases

LONG ISLAND HOMES HARD-HIT BY HURRICANE

LIST OF DEAD GROWS HOURLY

Rivers Rising in Several States Struck by Most Devastating Storm in History of Northeast; Workers Seek to Check Contamination and Dis-ease

(By The Associated Press) The danger of flood drew closer today in many sections in the hurricane-hit northeast, as the long list of the storm dead approached 500 and continued to increase.

In Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and New Jersey, rivers were rising. At many points rain fell.

Sections of Connecticut appeared most gravely menaced. At Hartford a thousand booted men working with desperate urgency piled sandbags upon the Connecticut river's dikes along a half-mile stretch of river fronts. Already 1,400 were homeless in that city and ten per cent of its total area was under water.

For the storm area generally disastrous inundations appeared unlikely, but fresh suffering and more damage certain.

Meanwhile as the search for the bodies of victims of the hurricane, the most damaging and life-destroying in the populous northeast in history, went forward, every report from hard-hit Rhode Island was more tragic than the last.

Its dead, numbering some quarter of a thousand, the little state suffered damage put by Governor Quinn at $100,000,000. In this, the most ravaged of all the seven states of the hurricane's path, Westerly appeared the most ravaged of all its cities.

The Red Cross reported more than 70 known dead there, where for the first time it developed that the wind had reached 120-miles-an-hour, smashing out the lives of whole families.

The Rhode Island estimate of $100,000,000 damage was the only official figure to come from any state, but fragmentary information at hand indicated that a total figure of half a billion could scarcely be too high.

Like Governor Cross of Connecticut, who simply said it was the worst disaster that ever had struck his state, most officials declined to make dollars and cents estimates.

In the whole area thousands of rescue and relief workers toiled with all speed to clear communications for food supplies to keep down contamination and possible disease, and to preserve order. Government agencies were doing their part.

MALARIA WORK BEING PLANNED

Survey to Begin In Pitt Schools Thursday, Sept. 29

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, today said that this county is one of the badly malaria-infested counties of North Carolina, and that within the past few years a great amount of drainage work has been done.

Special emphasis was placed on the Swift Creek drainage project, now nearing completion. Work on this project is being done at an estimated cost of from $200,000 to $300,000, with the government providing a large portion of this amount.

In connection with further malaria control in Pitt County, the health officer has sent to the principals of the county schools, the following letter under the date of September 22:

The State and County Health Departments desire to make a Malaria Survey in the County schools, both white and colored. This matter has Supt. D. H. Conley's full approval.

The blood will be examined at the State Laboratory of Hygiene, Raleigh. The examination will, of course, be free to the child. The parent, through the school, will be advised of the result of the examination. The survey will cover the first grade, through the sixth.

Probably the auditorium will be the best place for us to work. We would like to have 2 or 3 tables and 8 or 10 chairs and, perhaps, 6 or 8 pupils to assist as clerks. (Please make tentative selections now.)

Please announce the survey through your school in order that your parents may be informed and if no one objects we shall assume they approve.

Our plan is to begin work on Thursday, September 29th. We shall take up the schools in the following order and, as nearly as possible, on the dates indicated:

September 29, Chicago; September 30, Grimesland; October 3, Pactivolus; October 4, Stokes; October 5, None; October 6, Bethel; October 7, Belvoir; October 10, Falkland; October 11, Fountain; October 12, None; October 13, None; October 14, Farmville; October 17, Bell Arthur; October 18, Grifton; October 19, (Continued on page four)

State Health Worker On Visit To County

Dr. R. E. Fox, director of county health work in the State Board of Health, visited Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County health officer today.

Dr. Ennett and Dr. Fox discussed general health matters pertaining to Pitt county. Included in the discussion was the matter of venereal disease work and a malarial survey in the county.

MAKING PLANS ON BUILDINGS

To Be at Least Week or 10 Days Before Contract Let

It was estimated today that it would be at least a week or ten days before the city will call for bids on construction of the new city hall and fire station.

At present the projects are being held up while the architect prepares to submit final plans and specifications and while attorneys are looking up titles to the property and otherwise preparing the deed.

The buildings will be erected on property on Fifth, Greene and Washington streets, sold to the city for $30,000 by J. B. James for himself and others.

City Clerk J. O. Duval said that the PWA, which agency is providing 45 per cent of the cost of the (Continued on page four)

Salvation Army Sets Day of Prayer Sunday

In accordance with an order sent out by Commissioner E. Pugmire of the territorial headquarters of the Salvation Army, Atlanta, Ga., Sunday will be observed by the local post as a day of intercession of prayer for world peace.

The churches of the city have been invited by the Salvation Army to co-operate and also observe a day of prayer. The Army hall on Dickinson avenue will keep its doors open all day Sunday for anyone who wishes to join in this effort. An official said that "any Christian or friend who is interested in this movement is asked to join us in praying for world peace."

DELANO NAMED COMPTROLLER

O'Connor, Who Resigned Job, Refuses Reappointment

Washington, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The White House announced today that President Roosevelt has appointed Preston Delano of Massachusetts as Comptroller of the Currency, succeeding J. F. T. O'Connor, who resigned to run for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in California.

Stephen Early, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, said the job had been held open for O'Connor, who was unsuccessful in the gubernatorial race.

O'Connor, Early told reporters, advised the President he did not desire reappointment and that he would return to California to practice law.

Farm Bureau Seeks Rigid Enforcement of State Act

The North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation is launching a drive among its members in an effort to obtain their co-operation in securing more rigid enforcement of the State scrap tobacco act.

E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the State Farm Bureau, said that the executive committee will meet with Kevenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell in Raleigh, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time they will discuss some of their proposed plans about the scrap act. "One of the major purposes of the session," declared Arnold, "will be to co-ordinate the efforts and activities of enforcement officers of the State scrap tobacco law." (Continued on Page Eight)

Kings Daughters Formed Here In Earliest Stages

By R. O. MOYE

The North Carolina branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, which holds its 48th annual state convention in Southern Pines on October 5 and 6, was organized in Wilmington in 1886 by Mrs. Emma G. Williams, North Carolina being the 25th state to enter the International Order. Later in the same year Mrs. Margaret Botome and her nine women organized the New York Circle, which was really the beginning of the order. Following closely on the organization of the Wilmington Circle, was the organization of the Relief Circle in Salisbury and the Patient Circle in Greenville.

The constitution of the order, which was drawn up at the time of its organization, states: "Its aims and purposes are to stimulate Christian life and to stimulate spiritual activities, and that all who accept these aims and purposes and who hold themselves responsible to The King, our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, are eligible for membership, and that these two articles are forever exempt from amendments. The order accepts and teaches the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man, and recognizes no dividing line, whether of race, creed or social conditions among the children of God."

The motto of the order is as follows: "Look up and not down, Look forward and not back, Look in and not out, Lend a hand."

The aim of the order is "not to be ministered unto, but to minister." A member of the order is recognized by a badge, which is a silver Maltese cross worn with or without a purple ribbon. It bears on one side the initials "I. H. N." which stands for "In His Name," the watch word of the order, and the seal and date, 1886, on the other side.

In 1887 men were admitted into the membership and in 1888 the order was incorporated as "The King's Daughters." In 1891 it was re-incorporated as "The International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons."

The first circle composed of representatives from the different churches, was known as the West End Circle, which was organized in Greensboro. This circle also built the first hospital which the city of Greensboro ever had, and which is still in use today.

The first branch convention ever held by the North Carolina King's Daughters and Sons, was held in the Y.M.C.A. building in Greensboro about 1891, with Miss Mary E. Carter, the first state president, presiding.

For those who may be interested the following have served as state presidents since the organization was founded in North Carolina: Miss Mary E. Carter, 1890-94; Mrs. Hamden Smith, 1894-95; Mrs. J. B. Cherry, 1895-96; Mrs. R. N. Sweet, 1898-99; Mrs. Fred Hill, 1899-1900; Mrs. Henry Perry, 1900-01; Mrs. W. H. S. Burgwyn, 1901-24; Mrs. J. P. Cook, 1924-27; Mrs. Hortense P. Moye, 1927-30; Mrs. A. A. Walker, 1930-33; Mrs. Lucy P. Russell, 1933-35; Mrs. Hortense P. Moye, 1935- and who is still state president of the order. No records are available from 1896 to 1898.

Following the organization of the order in North Carolina, the King's Daughters' work began with the task of trying to get a training school for delinquent boys in the state. This work was adopted as a state project at the convention held in Raleigh in 1908, and in 1903 Governor Charles B. Aycock recommended the establishing of such a school. This was shown in a letter from the Governor dated January 1, 1903, to the branch president, Mrs. W. H. S. Burgwyn.

In 1907 a charter and $1,000 was granted to the women of the state, naming Mrs. Mary Ann Jackson, wife of General Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. Maggie C. Burgwyn, Miss Easdale Shaw, and Mrs. I. W. Faison as the four incorporators. In addition to these four incorporators twelve other trustees were named by the Governor. They incorporated under the name "The Stonewall Greenville has sold tobacco this season from ten counties. As a bright tobacco market, Greenville is attracting probably more attention than any of the other eastern markets. As a matter of course, over-stocking the market tends to depress the price, but on the whole during the rush of the first ten days, from the reports coming from other markets, Greenville has held her own as well as any of them.

WHICH FOOT is yours?

Seven persons out of every ten have defective or abnormal feet. Practically all of this foot trouble has its origin in the arches of the feet. Weak and broken down arches are very prevalent and cause untold misery and suffering. Corns, Callouses, Bunions, Crooked and Over-lapping Toes, Painful Heels and Rheumatic-like pains in the feet and legs are usually the result of defective arches.

Get Pedo-graphs, like above, made of your feet on Dr. Scholl's Pedo-graph. Then be fitted with Dr. Scholl's Foot-Easers and learn for yourself how quickly those tired, aching feet are relieved—how you can walk or stand all day without fatigue. Dr. Scholl's method is the only method that restores fallen arches gradually until normal strength and shape is restored. We carry Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Remedies and Appliances and can properly fit you. Come in today for a Free Foot Test.

Daughters agreed to build the first cottage at the school as a trial. This was done at a cost of approximately $24,000 and housed thirty boys. This was completed in 1909. This cottage was furnished through the efforts of Mrs. James P. Cook, wife of the chairman of the board and later president of the North Carolina branch. The first boy to enter the school was from Burlington and the first North Carolinian killed in France during the World war was Daniel Poplin, an alumnus of the school.

A beautiful bridge was built spanning the highway so that the boys might attend in safety the services held in the Margaret Burgwyn chapel, which had been built by the King's Daughters after the completion of their cottage.

In 1921 the North Carolina branch made a plea for unfortunate girls of the state. This resulted in the decision to build a chapel for girls at Samarrand, which was dedicated on October 6, 1928.

At the present the King's Daughters have undertaken the tremendous task of building a "bigger and better" chapel for the boys at Stonewall Jackson Training School, due to the fact that the school has outgrown the present chapel and all devotionals are being held in the school auditorium.

NO EASY TASK FIND NEW MAN

U. N. C. Slated Face Problem in Replacing C. T. Woollen

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Sept. 22—When the University of North Carolina authorities get around to naming a man to replace Comptroller Charles T. Woollen, who died Wednesday morning, they are going to find themselves faced with one of the most difficult tasks imaginable. Indeed, they are more than a few Carolina alumni and well-wishers who frankly express the opinion that it would be easier to find a substitute for any other Carolina official—not even barring President Frank Graham—than for "Charlie."

The U. N. C. trustees will meet Friday, according to the best available information at the time these lines are written—though that date cannot be stated as absolutely definite.

Mr. Woollen was the "hub" around which all activities at the University turned, according to one experienced observer of University affairs. He was the co-ordinator of the various phases of University activity. His job was to see that business affairs, academic activities, and all other agencies functioned smoothly and without friction, tie one against the other.

That job he performed to the very fullest extent, all who are familiar with his work are agreed.

In addition he had extra-curricular tasks to perform—such, for example, as acting as a sort of balance wheel for the President.

One high State official, who would not permit his name to be used as a name, said:

"You know, for all his fine qualities, Frank Graham is often a bit flighty. Charlie Woollen quite often kept the Graham head out of the clouds and the Graham feet on the ground."

Another official described the late Comptroller as the "greatest locator of money ever associated with the University of any other North Carolina institution."

Mr. Woollen could, this official continued, find more people willing to contribute to University activities than could possibly be expected.

The Comptroller is generally credited with far more than a meagre share of credit for erection of the new gymnasium over at Chapel Hill—a structure which was named for him.

That was a fitting tribute and one which it is fortunate was bestowed upon him before his death. Attorney General Harry McMillan had your correspondent.

DELANO NAMED COMPTROLLER

Headquarters here directed field workers to new efforts to combat floods which followed the northeast hurricane.

Evacuation of residents at Hartford, Conn., has been doubled in speed, officials said, and 7,000 persons now have been moved from the city.

Thousands of employers must decide in the next month whether the new wage-hour law applies to their business.

Officials of the wage-hour administration explained that in innumerable borderline cases the proprietors must determine for themselves whether their workers are participating in or producing goods for interstate commerce.

If they are, they must be given the benefit of federal labor standards—a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour and a maximum work week of 44 hours.

Before the law becomes effective October 24, Administrator Elmer Andrews expects to issue opinions to guide these employers.

The President stayed home again with a head cold and skipped his usual Friday press conference.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTmarsh

The Characters
Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Archie Lumsden, mystic, Hugo's friend.
Ottile Willis, beautiful American heiress.

Yesterday Baron Stigl per-suades Virgoe Willis to visit the festival. Despite our precautions an attempt is made on his life.

Chapter 41
Searching For Ottile

SUDDENLY there was a snarling growl, and from the blue of faces that hemmed us in, a huge, black shape hurtled through the air, straight at the killer's throat. There came a scream of terror, the report of a gun knuckled skyward, and a horrid choking gurgle. I looked and saw two shapes, the man and the great, black dog, twisting and writhing on the ground.

A woman shrieked, a man shouted loudly, and the babel of noise rose to a frenzied roar. The hands that held me loosened their grip, and I flung myself down beside the struggling mass on the cobblestones.

"Lulu!" I yelled. "It's all right, old chap, I've got him. Let go!" and as I spoke, I caught at the dog's collar, striving to drag him off, but I might as well have tried to lose a tiger from his kill. The powerful jaws were locked tight in his victim's throat.

Finally, Lulu staggered to his feet and stared around him with glazed, bloodshot eyes.

I stood up, also, turning with an uncontrollable shudder from the writhing, twitching body on the cobblestones. "A doctor!" I shouted wildly. "Someone get a doctor!" A small, stout man in sober black pushed through the crowd and dropped on his knees. He laid a tentative finger on the torn throat, raising one drooping eyelid, and slowly shook his head.

"It is useless, Monsieur Lumsden!" he said gravely, and as he spoke, I recognized him as Hugo's friend, Dr. Riguet. "This poor wretch will be dead before we get him into an ambulance. One cannot, unfortunately, apply a tourniquet to the neck!"

I drew a long breath, half horror, half relief that the thing we had dreaded so long had come and gone, and as I looked round me, I heard a familiar voice at my elbow.

"That animal," said Dunning slowly, "has a fine sense of justice. He's revengeful, his master when no one else could."

They were all there, clustered close around me—Virgoe Willis, immovable as a rock, his strong old face set and expressionless; Hugo, lips set, pale under his tan, and a little farther off a small, snubbing figure in rusty black—Penelope—with the end of a broken dog-leash still clutched in her hand.

Through the press came striding two stalwart, khaki-uniformed policemen. The dog looked up at me with anxious, red-rimmed eyes.

"It's all right, old man," I told him, answering his unspoken question. "You shan't suffer for this if I can help it."

The policemen were intelligent-looking lads, but this contingency seemed completely outside their accustomed routine, and I was thankful to see, following close on their heels, a large, pompous figure that I knew.

"Monsieur le Commissaire!" I saluted him with much relief, and he halted beside me.

"What is this?" he demanded with a manful attempt at his official manner.

"The man tried to assassinate Mr. Virgoe Willis, but the dog got him just in time."

"It is he!" he muttered. The chasseur from the chateau, and the dog—

"—is the dog of Mr. Venner," I finished for him, "who saw his master killed and has taken revenge on the murderer. But see here, Monsieur le Commissaire, I added on a lower note, "get us out of here as quickly as you can, there's a good fellow! This is no place for Mr. Willis after what has happened."

"The Yacht!"

HE NODDED, pursing his lips. "This puts a different complexion on many things. If it is true that this miscreant killed Monsieur Venner, that is at least one murder solved!"

"And who knows," I suggested gently, "if a little further investigation may not disclose a connection with the first killings—may not, in short, lead you to the person at the back of all three crimes?"

He glanced at me shrewdly. He was no fool. "What, precisely, do you mean by that, Monsieur Lumsden?" he asked softly.

"I mean," said I, "that I should delay until tonight the further investigation of this crime, apart, of course, from the necessary formalities. I am convinced," I added, "that you will find Monsieur Fleuriot and Monsieur le Juge in full agreement with this course, and it is possible that my friends and I may be able to give you valuable help by that time."

Suddenly, I remembered something. "Dunnet!" I said sharply. "Where's Stigl?"

He shook his head. "We lost him," he answered mournfully. "But the yacht! I cried wildly. "The Rendezvous! He'll be on board by now, and she's got steam up all ready to sail. Monsieur Thiers, you've got to stop him!"

"The Baron!" he echoed, aghast, clapping a fat hand to his forehead. "You do not accuse him, surely, of complicity in this crime?"

"I do," I said bluntly, and saw Virgoe Willis start and instantly control himself.

"But on what grounds?" said the plump man dazedly. "I cannot act unless I have something to go on."

"Grounds he hanged!" I cried. "We'll give you all the grounds you wish by tonight, but in the meantime stop that yacht from sailing!"

He shook his head dismally. "It will be difficult," he said mournfully. "I happen to know that she received her clearance papers last night, but still, I will try."

Virgoe Willis had all this time been watchfully silent, but now he moved impatiently, holding up a hand with the compelling gesture of a man used to ensuring silence when he wanted it.

"One moment!" he said in his harsh old voice. "There have been a lot of extraordinary statements flying around, but the one fact that's troubling me is that my niece is mixed up in this riddle, and I'd be mighty glad if someone would go look for her and bring her here."

"Listen here, Mr. Willis," said Dunning coolly. "The one concern we all have at this moment is your safety, and the only place in Cannes I'm sure of is the Chalet d'Amour. Mr. Stern and Mr. Lumsden will stay behind and bring Ottile along just as soon as they can locate her, and meantime I'll come with you and tell you all you want to know on the way."

Hugo and I packed Virgoe Willis and Dunning into a taxi with the big, black dog at their feet.

"See you at the Carlton in an hour," Dunning breathed in my ear as I shut the door on him.

No Sign Of Ottile

"WELL," I said to Hugo as they drove off, "we haven't much money, but we do see life!"

He gave an impatient jerk of the head. "The yacht, man! he said sharply. "What are you standing there gaping for? We've got to see if the yacht has gone!"

He was completely right, and I followed him at a quick trot down through a maze of side-streets and out across the sun-scorched, deserted square to the quay.

"She's still there," he said.

There was no smoke coming from her single funnel, and as we came up to her at a more sober pace, I saw a singularly ill-favored sailor leaning against the roped gangway.

"I wish to speak to Baron Stahl," said Hugo abruptly, and the fellow shrugged.

"Then you are unfortunate, monsieur," he retorted. "Monsieur le Baron is not here."

I leaned beside him against the gangway rail and took out my cigarette-case. "See here, friend," I said, offering him one. "We want to see the Baron urgently, and we understood the yacht was sailing this morning."

He accepted a cigarette and tucked it behind his ear with a slightly softened expression. "She was sailing," he admitted, "but now she is not."

I looked at him and slowly and astentiously drew out my pocketbook, extracting a fifty franc note.

"It is essential that we should get in touch with Monsieur le Baron," I said meaningly, "or failing him, with Monsieur Geiss."

His expression softened still more, as his finger closed on the note.

"The yacht is not sailing," he said, "because she cannot. There is trouble in the engine-room. When Monsieur Geiss came early this morning, I told him as much. Monsieur le Baron knew already, yesterday evening, and I have not seen him since."

"But the young lady who accompanied Monsieur Geiss? What of her?" I asked.

He gaped at me, so genuinely startled that I knew it was the truth he spoke. "There was no young lady," he said. "Monsieur Geiss came alone, save for a half-witted creature who carried his suitcases."

I thanked him, adding a second fifty franc to the first, and slowly and heavily we took our way back to the town.

Suddenly an idea struck me. "The garage!" I said. "We could hear if he took his car out, and which way he went."

Luck was with us, for the man in charge had personally run out Geiss's car for him that morning and helped to fill it up. It must have been, he thought somewhere between six and seven, and the cartoonist had had another man with him, a shambling, down-at-the-heel fellow, carrying two bags. But there was no lady; of that he was certain.

We thanked him, rewarded him suitably, and turned our steps back towards the Carlton. Hugo grimly despairing, I for my part with a faint hope that Dunning might have news for us, but that hope died a swift and painful death at sight of the big man's face.

There are a large number of football fans in this community. At this time two good football teams are being developed in Greenville—the high school team and the college team—and the local fans this fall will have the opportunity to see some good football right here at home. Your attendance at the local games will not only afford you pleasure but will give added support to the team. Plan now to give both these local teams all the support possible this fall.

The building program at the new Pitt County Fair grounds is progressing nicely and everything will be in readiness long before time for the opening of the Fair October 17. The public is invited to ride out and inspect the new Fair grounds. The members of the Farmville and Pitt County Posts of the American Legion are doing everything possible to give Pitt County a good Fair and their efforts deserve the support of our Pitt County people.

This immediate section was indeed fortunate to escape the ill effects of the tropical hurricane that missed our coast but wrought havoc along the north Atlantic seaboard. The New England states not only suffered the brunt of the storm but are now at the mercy of floods as a result of overflowing rivers and lakes. Already the Red Cross has gone to the scene and if the situation grows any worse it will be necessary for the organization to issue a call for funds to aid in bringing relief to the stricken section. If and when such a call comes it is to be hoped that the people of our section will remember just how fortunate we were to have been missed by the storm and show our appreciation by responding to the call to aid the stricken area.

Fund to Aid Young Ministry Students

Descendants of Mrs. Mary Nelson Smith, who died in Pitt County in 1907, have built up a memorial fund in her honor which now amounts to $5,000.

Sixteen years ago, descendants of Mrs. Smith and her husband, the late William Henry Smith, held a reunion. The memorial fund was started at the reunion and has grown year by year. When it reached the $5,000 mark recently, it was decided to use the fund to aid young men to study for the ministry.

St. Luke's Episcopal Church at Winterville was built as a result of the desire of Mrs. Smith that a church be established at Winterville. Mrs. Smith and her daughters sold books to secure money for the roof. At that particular time, Mrs. Smith was past 75 years of age.

Seven of Mrs. Smith's twelve children, 21 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren became teachers in North Carolina and other states.

She was born in 1825 and began teaching at the age of 45. She later became one of the best-known women in East Carolina.

Plymouth First to Present New Models for 1939

Here's the first of the new 1939 automobiles, presenting an impressive array of added features for greater comfort and luxury in the lowest price field. The latest models now on display at Plymouth showrooms here confirm the forecasts that stronger "eye appeal" would highlight new auto designs for 1939. Inside and out, this newest Plymouth is completely restyled. Headlamps and tail lights are streamlined into the fenders, and a new Vee-type windshield adds more than six inches to body length above the belt. Built on a longer wheelbase—now 114 inches—brand new features include softer-riding coil springs of Amola steel; new high-torque engine performance; remote control gear shift up on the steering post, and a new "safety-signal" speedometer that flashes traffic lights right under a driver's eyes. The new Plymouth rides better, handles easier—and prices are still lower this year, the factory just announced.

STAND OF HOEY WAS EXPECTED

Statement on Highway Fund Diversion No Surprise

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 23—Governor Clyde

R. Hoey's outspoken opposition to any Constitutional amendment prohibiting diversion of highway revenues to other purposes proved a surprise in nothing except the time and manner in which he made it public. The anti-diversion forces have known all along that they were faced with opposition from Governor Hoey, but they were frankly surprised at his High Point address of Thursday in which he vigorously recorded this opposition. State Senator S. Gilmer Sparger, secretary of the North Carolina Petroleum Industries Committee, declined to comment on the Governor's address, with the frank assertion that he does not intend to get into any argument with the Governor in the press. He indicated, however, that the gubernatorial opposition has been anticipated. The Governor's speech will not affect his plans for continuing the anti-diversion campaign. In the High Point address Governor Hoey expressed his own opposition to diversion except in the extreme emergencies, but made it quite clear that he is unshakably opposed to any Constitutional bar to the practice. He termed such a measure "dangerous" adding that he would feel recreant in his duty if he sat idly by without opposing it. "No enlightened state can afford to tie its own hands and throttle its Legislature, so that its resources cannot be made available to meet any financial crisis," he concluded.

Hurricane Takes Nearly 500 Lives

Pictures Tell Tragic Story Of New England Disaster

Left: as though wondering what to do next, this girl sat beside a few meager personal belongings dug from the ruins of her home at Oakland Beach, Rhode Island, after the hurricane cut its path of devastation. A great throng of people was left homeless by the storm to say nothing of nearly 500 known dead and many more injured.

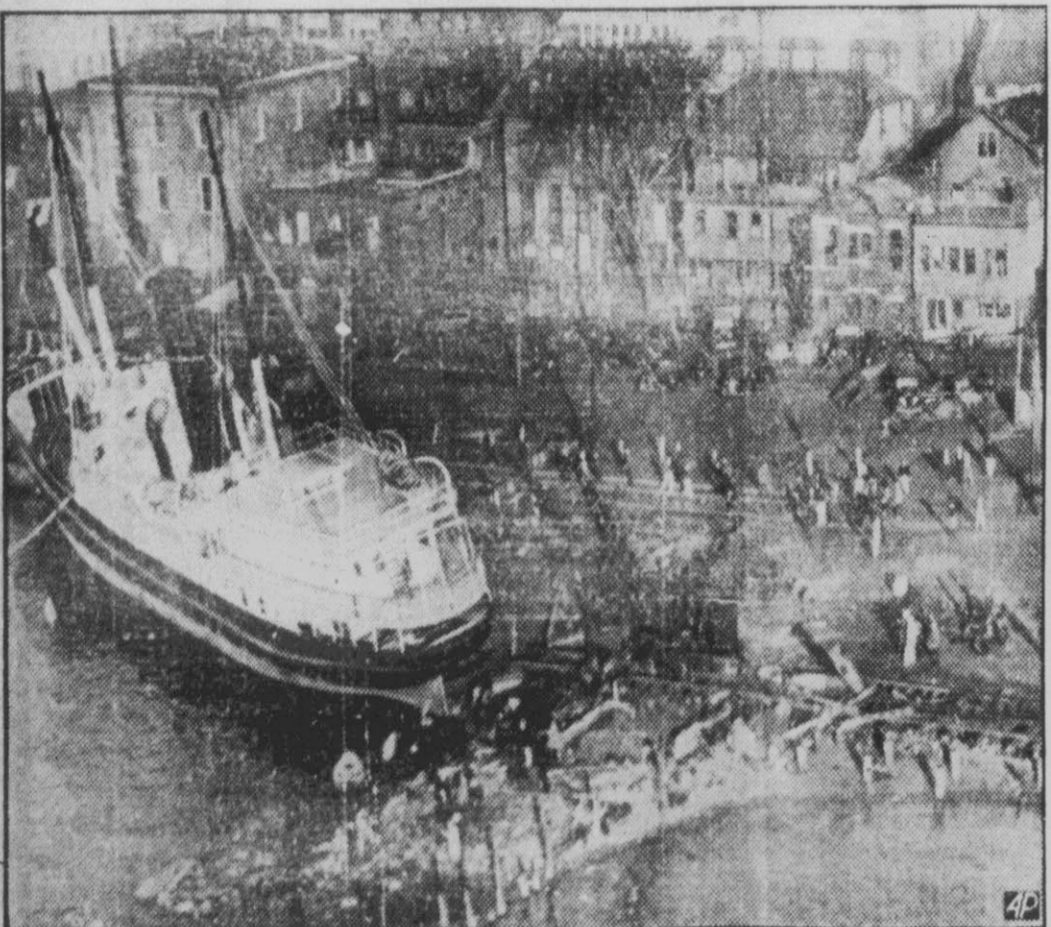

Right: nearly 500 persons were known dead and many thousands were missing when a fierce tropical hurricane unleashed its full destructive power along the New England seacoast. Property damage ran into millions. Here is a scene showing flood waters, hurricane driven, which backed up in Seekonk river near Providence, R. I., causing heavy property damage along the stream's banks. This view from the Washington bridge, was made looking toward a railroad bridge which was covered by the flood.

This scene of wreckage was left at Carson's Beach near Boston, Mass., by the hurricane which hurled scores of boats ashore, demolishing many. Nearly 200 people are known to have perished, many more were injured and damage running into the millions was estimated.

A death-dealing hurricane which was expected to hit the Florida coast earlier in the week spent its full fury in New England towns, adding to death and destruction already wrought by flood waters. The hurricane centered in Providence, R. I., causing unestimated damage. Thousands were marooned as the fierce wind, reaching a velocity of 76 miles an hour, tore roofs from downtown buildings and broke lines of communion. Here is a view of the main street of Peterboro, N. H., one of the towns hit hardest by the floods.

This big ship was among the numerous vessels hurled ashore at New London, Conn., by the hurricane which brought death to more than 500 people on Long Island and in the New England states. New London suffered severely. Citizens can be seen amid the wreckage viewing the ship.

New London, Conn., historic old whaling port, was among the cities swept by the terrific hurricane which raged through New England, leaving nearly 500 dead, an uncounted number injured and property damage estimated at millions of dollars. This vivid picture shows fire burning in New London after the hurricane had left sections of the city in ruins.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 23—(AP)—Selling on a moderate scale was renewed in security markets today, depressing many stocks one to three points as Wall Street revised its hopes for preservation of European peace.

While larger than in the preceding session, transactions approximated only 660,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 23—(AP)—Cotton futures opened unchanged to 1/4 lower. Higher Liverpool cables were offset by nervousness over developments in Europe.

December revived from 7.92 to 7.96, leaving prices unchanged to three higher shortly after the first half hour.

December eased to 7.90, but met sufficient trade support to rally to 7.92 by midday, when the list was one-four points net lower.

Futures closed 1/4 in late dealings lower. Final prices were seven to eight lower.

Spot nominal, middling 8.25.

RUSSIA MAY VOLUNTARILY GO TO AID CZECHS

Malvy also said that Daladier declared he would call parliament immediately back into session if the situation should become worse.

France is pledged to go to Czechoslovakia's aid should the latter be the victim of "unprovoked aggression."

Parliamentary circles said meanwhile that Daladier had agreed to submit the blanket resignation of his government as soon as the international crisis "takes a definite turn one way or the other."

The decision, made necessary by a split in the cabinet over the policies of the Premier and Foreign Minister Bonnet, followed reports that revolting cabinet members forced from Daladier a promise that France would make no more concessions to Germany.

The cabinet was said by some members of the Chamber of Deputies to be split nine to nine over Daladier's refusal to fulfill French ## obligations to aid Czechoslovakia.

Strasbourg, France, Sept. 23—(AP)—Troops along France's Belgian-Italian and German frontiers were ordered today to assume "positions of alert," it was reported in sources close to the general staff.

Such an order issued by the government means that troops take up positions ready for an emergency.

These reports came as differences became manifested in talks in Godesburg, Germany, between Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

At Thionville, near the German frontier, it was reported sections of army engineers had been sent right to the frontier, as well as detachments of mobile guards destined to be shock troops in event of conflict.

The orders were expected to be applied to troops in the interior if the situation should become alarming.

France's military preparations, which included the calling of an estimated 1,200,000 reservists to the colors, and cancelled leaves in the air force and navy, as well as the army, were halted September 19, after Premier Daladier conferred with Chamberlain in London.

The new surprise order sent military police hurrying through garrison towns rounding up officers and soldiers who had been sent back to barracks.

Inclusion in the order of troops on the Belgian, Italian and Spanish frontiers, as well as on the German border, was seen as a move to assure protection of every inch of France's border, no matter what may happen.

SUPPORTS LOW SCRAP WEED

"All scrap finding its way into the channels of trade will tend to make allotments for the year of 1939 less than they would be if the scrap was kept off the market, Arnold said.

J. E. Winslow, State Farm Bureau president, explained phases of the AAA at a Farm Bureau meeting held in the court house last night. He expressed the opinion that the Supreme Court would uphold the AAA program.
