EXPRESS HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT OF CZECH CRISIS

At Least 25 Persons Killed in Charleston, S. C., Tornado

PROBABLY 300 MORE HURT IN HISTORIC CITY

Storm Only of One Minute Duration in Any One Place

SINGLE OUTSIDE WIRE IS LEFT UP

Tornado Dips Down Into various Sections of City Leaving Big Heaps of Wreckage

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 29.—(AP)—A tornado hit sudden and vicious fury at 8 a. m., today, killed at least 25 persons and injured probably 340 more in a welter of wreckage that was spotted throughout the city.

The sudden storm of not more than a minute's duration in any one place was paced by a torrential downpour as it swept down with devastating destruction on various parts of the city. Of the 22 reported killed, 15 were Negroes. The dead were not immediately identified, except four white persons, all of No. 25 Market street. They were killed when their house collapsed in a twinkling of an eye. Hospitals reported treating at least 200 persons.

Charleston was isolated by the blow except for one wheezy telephone line. Reports of many buildings were roofed blown off, but no definite information was immediately available as to damage.

Today's interest payments were made up of: Six per cent road bonds, $12,568.70; four and one-half per cent road bonds, $6,539.46; four and three-quarters per cent road bonds, $1,950; and five per cent road bonds, $1,790, making a total interest payment of $22,848.16. In addition, a $3,000 payment was made on the principal of a five per cent funding bond, bringing the grand total to $25,804.16.

INDIA IS CALLED CHOLERA 'RESERVOIR'

Simla, (AP)—India continues to live up to its reputation of being an important world "reservoir" of cholera infection, says the Commissioner of Public Health.

The reason given for comparative failure to effect control of the disease is that large areas of the country do not yet possess any local public health staffs.

There are nearly 250,000 public school buildings in the United States.

Tornado Report

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Norman Davis, head of the Red Cross, said today that 25 bodies had been recovered and 34 persons had been injured when a tornado struck Charleston S. C.

Davis, a caller at the White House, said the report was received via naval radio. Thirty city blocks, he said, had been damaged by the tornado and 100 houses blown down. President Roosevelt already had ordered the army, navy and WPA to render all possible aid to the stricken city.

The President acted in response to a telephone request from Lieut. Governor J. E. Harley of South Carolina. Harley advised the Chief executive that there was "considerable property damage and loss of life" in Charleston.

Daladier Invested With Power to Place France On Full-Time War Basis

Suing Dr. Dafoe

Ivan I. Spear (above), promoter of Los Angeles, is the plaintiff in a $1,000,000 lawsuit against Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the Dionne quintuplets' physician, and others, which is being tried in federal court in Chicago. Spear charges there was a conspiracy to break a contract for picture and publishing rights to the Dionnes.

FUNDS NEEDED BY RED CROSS

Agency aiding 15,000 Families in Storm-Stricken Area

Chairman Norman H. Davis today informed the Pitt County Chamber that the Red Cross has given emergency relief to 63,000 people in the New England and Long Island hurricane and flood area, where more than 600 people lost their lives or are missing. The Red Cross is giving emergency aid and rehabilitation to approximately 15,000 families in this devastated section, Mr. Davis said.

An appeal was issued for a minimum Red Cross relief fund of $500,000 to care for the homeless families of the stricken region, and contributions were being received in a quick and generous response, particularly from the New England states.

So far in Pitt county the appeal for funds to aid in rehabilitation in the storm-stricken areas has netted little results. Persons wishing to contribute to the cause may do so at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, News Leader or Daily Reflector.

J. Nat Harrison, chairman of the local chapter revealed today the first contribution had been received from a man who declared "it could have happened here just as well as in the Northeast and I am far more thankful that I was spared than this donation of five dollars might indicate."

Thousands of Red Cross volunteers have been working among the flood victims, with the assistance of 150 Red Cross disaster relief workers, who were rushed into the storm area.

Mr. Davis said that rehabilitation (Continued on page seven)

Revise Plans For Farmville Project

A meeting of the Farmville school board was held there this morning for the purpose of revising plans and specifications for a PWA project which will provide additional classrooms, heating and plumbing.

Bids were received Tuesday on the project, but all proposals called for expenditure in excess of the money available and all bids were rejected.

A. J. Maxwell, Jr., Goldsboro architect in charge of the project, met with the school officials. The cost of the entire work will have to be brought within the $80,000 available.

Provided "Big Stick" to Wield at Munich Conference

GRANTED POWER BY GOVERNMENT

Simple Phone Call From Munich Would Place Nation Under Instant Mobilization

Paris, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Premier Daladier has given a "big stick" to wield at the Munich conference today when he was empowered by a new decree to effect instant military and civil mobilization of the entire nation.

The decree, published in the official journal, made it possible for the premier to put the whole French nation on an instant war footing by a simple telephone call from Munich.

While Prime Minister Daladier met with Chancellor Hitler, Premier Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini in Munich, the decree appeared in the official journal. It authorized the government to proceed at its discretion with integral mobilization of man power, industry and finance throughout the nation.

The decree said only "execution of measures contained in the law of July 11, 1928, is authorized," but that law provides for complete mobilization in time of war or danger of war.

The law also includes general mobilization of armed forces and Daladier now is in a position to order it when, and if, he considers it necessary without further legal steps.

Under the law, women, as well as men, may be conscripted for defense work. All industry could be nationalized immediately under the national defense ministry.

It affects all French men and women over eighteen years. Four thousand persons, mostly foreigners, were questioned in a police round-up throughout Paris in a drive against undesirable aliens.

Welfare Board In Regular Meeting

The Pitt County Welfare Board held a regular meeting last night at which time applications were considered for old age assistance and aid to dependent children, phases of the Social Security act.

J. R. Carroll is chairman of the board. Others on the board, besides Welfare Officer K. T. Futrell, are B. B. Sugg and Mrs. J. M. Hubbard.

Twelve old-age assistance cases were approved, three were rejected, four revised. Mr. Futrell explained Pitt county had a quota of 500 in the old age assistance division.

Four aid to dependent children cases were approved, 26 were revised and four reinstated. The county has a quota of 397 in this division.

No applications for aid to the blind were considered. In this division the county has a quota of 25. It was explained that in each division the county maintains its full quota practically at all times.

The average grant for old age assistance is $9.01 monthly; and to dependent children $4.66; and aid to the blind $13.

Mr. Futrell explained that a majority of the cases coming under the welfare department were visited at least once every 60 days and a complete case history was kept on each individual receiving help.

LONDON PREPARES FOR WAR IN SPITE PEACE PARLEY

Although cheered by Chancellor Hitler's agreement to meet Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier at Munich for another peace conference with Premier Mussolini in the role of mediator, Great Britain continued hurried preparations to defend London in event war comes. This radiophoto shows a huge anti-aircraft gun being roled into position at a strategic point in the heart of London to ward off enemy bombers if the worst comes to pass.

Nine Defendants Submit to Charge

Durham, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Beaufort's nine defendants in the "million dollar tax evasion liquor conspiracy" figuratively threw up their hands shortly after the government rested this afternoon in Federal court here and submitted pleas of "guilty."

Judge Johnson J. Hayes was expected to pass sentence immediately.

The Beaufort nine are: Robert R. Mills, William H. Mills, Guy Mills, Jasper Mills, Clinton Mills, Guy Lewis, Lewis Clayton, Edgbert Warren and Mack Shackelford. Aubrey Goss Felton Poe and Leroy Medlin of Durham previously had pleaded guilty.

Many Persons Asked By Roosevelt to Use Their Offices

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has appealed, informed persons said today, to many persons to use their good offices for peace in Central Europe.

Dispatches concerning his efforts have come in from points as distant as Tokyo, Rome, Moscow, and Oslo, Norway.

White House and State Department officials declined, however, to say how many governments had been approached or to disclose the contents of the President's messages.

It was indicated the first of them went out several days ago. The message to Rome asked Premier Mussolini to do what he could to avert war.

The presidents of many Latin-American countries not only telegraphed Hitler and President Benes of Czechoslovakia, but also Mr. Roosevelt congratulating him on his (Roosevelt's) initiative.

Belgian Ambassador Count Stratens-Ponthoz conferred this morning with Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles. Later the ambassador told newsmen Belgium would keep out of a European war.

The President and Secretary of State Hull were represented by informed officials as feeling reasonably confident that some orderly settlement of the Sudeten problem would come out of the four-power conference in Munich.

Other developments at the Capitol: The PWA authorized grants totaling $13,850,253 and loans of $3,564,607 for 120 non-federal PWA projects to cost about $30,700,000.

The allotments, grants unless specified, included: Chapel Hill, N. C., university building $315,809; Chapel Hill, N. C., university building, $163,116; (Continued on page four)

TENSION EASES OVER ENGLAND

Precautions Against Air Attacks Being Pushed, However

London, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The tense European situation was relaxed at least momentarily today while the heads of four governments met at Munich to try to avert war.

Markets, both here and on the continent, took strong upswings on the prospects that Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia would be satisfied peacefully.

During the deliberations of the envoys of the United States, Soviet Russia and Italy saw Vis-Count Halifax, British Foreign Secretary.

All, including United States Ambassador Joseph Kennedy were believed to have sought information on the possible agenda of the Munich meeting and on conditions generally.

Prime Minister Chamberlain worked for peace in Munich, but much of the rest of Britain continued defense preparations.

Home secretary Sir Samuel Hoare insisted the people push precautions to make the country safe from air attacks.

Distribution of gas masks, the digging of trenches and the protection of buildings, statues, and art treasures proceeded just as before.

Chancellor Hitler invited Chamberlain Daladier of France and Mussolini of Italy to seek with him a new formula for solving Germany's dispute.

Even the looks on Londoners' faces showed their relief and hope that the four-power conference would avert war.

But there was a mass voluntary evacuation of people from large cities through the night. Railroads prepared to take care of more than ever on Saturday, when Hitler's ultimatum to Czechoslovakia expires, unless the four statesmen find a solution.

PREACHERS' LATEST CONVERT IS A BEER GARDEN

Centuria, Ill. (AP)—The Rev. H. Gream, 33-year-old Baptist clergyman of suburban Wamac, is proud of his latest conversion.

He converted an old beer garden building into a church for his congregation, formed a year ago. The building into a church for his continue of the Civil War, was razed. Its lumber was used to build the new structure.

Plan For Occupation Of Area by German Troops Is Believed Acceptable

Czechs' Stand

Prague, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The foreign Minister decided today to send an observer to the Munich four-power conferences by airplane.

His identity was not disclosed. The decision followed an announcement that Czechoslovakia would accept "in principle" a new British plan for execution of the Anglo-French scheme to cede the Sudetenland to Germany, but would make "some reservations."

A communique announced that Prague "adopted a positive attitude in principle toward British proposals regarding the execution by decrees of delimitation and of transfer of the territory."

The acceptance was made known to Great Britain before the four-statesmen party opened today in Munich.

London, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Czech legation disclosed today that Czechoslovakia had suggested that the whole Sudeten German issue be submitted to President Roosevelt if other efforts to solve it failed.

PRAYER URGED BY POPE PIUS

Plea for Peace Broadcast Over Vast Radio Hook-up

Castel, Ganolfo, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Pope Pius, XI, asked the world today to have "recourse to the unarmed, but invincible power of prayer" to avert "the imminent danger of war."

The Pope broadcast this message over a vast radio hook-up. It was in the form of a pastoral letter addressed to the bishop and clergy and faithful and read to them by the Holy Father.

The Pope spoke under the shadow of the meeting at Munich, where the heads of western Europe's four most powerful governments met to find a peaceful solution of Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia.

The Pope said: "While millions of men are still living in dread because of the imminent danger of war and because of the threat of unexampled slaughter and ruin, we gather into our paternal hearts the preservation of our children and we invite the bishops, clergy, the religious and the faithful to unite themselves with us in the most undaunted and insistent prayer for the preservation in justice and in charity of the peace."

Jurors Hear Case On Policy Amount

Jurors this afternoon were hearing arguments in the case of Mrs. Reva Warren vs. The Pilot Life Insurance Company.

Mrs. Warren is seeking to recover double-indemnity for the death of her son, Alexander Warren, who was murdered on the outskirts of Greenville. The company allegedly paid a straight amount. The double-indemnity is sought on the grounds that the insured was killed accidentally and that the extra amount should be paid.

A non-suit was awarded in the case of Mrs. Eva Fleming vs. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, et al, in which the plaintiff had sought to prevent the sale of certain property under mortgage.

Highway Commission Defers Road Claims

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Highway and Public Works Commission voted today to put new prison camps in Vance, Franklin, Stokes, Surry, Greene and Montgomery counties at a cost of about $40,000 each under its PWA-aided building program.

Action on some $50,000,000 in road claims by counties was deferred until the next meeting.

It costs about $75 a year on the average to keep a pupil in school in the United States.

Would Enter Sudetenland as Demonstration Only

PLAN PROVIDES FOR PLEBISCITES

Vote Would Be Conducted in Predominantly Polish and Hungarian Areas

Munich, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Europe's four men of the hour met today in a conference that will mean life or death for millions, and after only two hours of discussion high quarters expressed hope for an early agreement.

The German Chancellor and the Premiers of Britain, France and Italy parted at 2:45 p. m. (8:45 a. m. EST) but resumed their discussions on which hangs the question of war or peace for Europe at 4:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m. EST).

During the suspension British officials told of a new plan for German occupation of the Sudetenland that had been submitted and indicated belief it would be accepted.

Munich, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A German government spokesman said tonight that the government heads of Germany, Britain, Italy and France had practically reached an agreement in their conference on the future of Czechoslovakia and means of assuring peace.

Earlier advices said, hope for an early settlement assuring peace for the moment were expressed by Britain and German officials alike as the Munich four-power conference entered its second session of the day at 10:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m. EST).

ful agreement were shown when a government spokesman suggested that correspondents come to the scene of the conference only an hour after resumption of the talks were scheduled.

As the German delegation saw it, the following was likely to be the final outcome of the negotiations of Czechoslovakia as a demonstration of their session on October 1.

1—The German army, with the approval of the other big powers, would enter only the Sudeten areas of Czechoslovakia as a demonstration of their session on October 1.

2—In the so-called doubtful areas in which population is divided about equally between Sudeten Germans and Czechs, contingents of the British, French and Italian armies would safeguard a plebiscite, from which there would be no appeal.

3—Plebiscites also would be conducted in Czechoslovakia in which the population is preponderantly Polish and Hungarian.

The occupation of the Sudetenland would be gradual.

4—The result of all plebiscites would be binding on the Czech government.

5—Germany would become a co-guarantor with the other powers concerned with the independence of what then would be left of Czechoslovakia.

6—Hitler will not insist on the resignation of President Benes of Czechoslovakia.

Legion Auxiliary Meets.

The American Legion Auxiliary held the first meeting of the year on Monday afternoon, Sept. 26, at the home of Mrs. Studie Corey, with Mrs. Arthur Corey, Mrs. J. Hicks Corey and Mrs. G. A. Taylor assisting hostesses.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. W. R. Jones, with the salute to the flag and reading of the preamble in unison, followed by the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, led by Mrs. C. F. Bland.

The minutes of the May meeting were read and a report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. J. Hicks Corey.

The officers for the new year were then installed and Mrs. Arthur Corey, the new president, was placed in charge.

Committees were named to assist in carrying on the work for the year and plans were made for operating the Auxiliary booth at the county fair.

Mrs. Arthur Corey, president, proposed a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Jones for her efficient and loyal service as president of the American Legion Auxiliary during the past two years.

The meeting was adjourned to meet again on the fourth Monday in October.

A delightful social hour followed, during which the hostess and her assistants served refreshing orange drinks with toasted pecans and waters.—Reported.

Celebrates Birthday.

On Thursday afternoon, from three to five o'clock, little Miss "Suggie" Sugg, dressed in a lovely blue lace dress, entertained about forty-five of her little friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sugg. The occasion was to celebrate her fifth birthday.

Many games were played and contests enjoyed, but the most exciting part of the afternoon was listening to "Old Man Happy" announce the party over the radio from Raleigh.

Candies, ice cream and cake were served and the guests received many attractive favors. Later in the afternoon, Billy Gulley came to take pictures of the entire group.

WELCOME TO GREENVILLE

Greenville is again glad of the opportunity to say "Welcome" to the student body of East Carolina Teachers College, and the faculty members and others of the college staff who after vacations have returned to assume their duties here.

While the college is a state institution, it is at the same time an important part of Greenville to which Greenville citizens are glad to point with pride. In addition to its contribution to the educational system of our state in the way of furnishing trained teachers, the college has contributed much to Greenville's social and business life.

In saying "Welcome" to the student body of the college at this beginning of another fall term, it is our sincere wish that their stay in Greenville will prove a pleasant memory for them long after they have completed their college training and entered their chosen fields of work elsewhere.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Sept. 29.—Neither the Burgin-Deane election row, brought into the public eye again by the State Board of Elections meeting; nor even the European situation has been able to make Saturday's football feud, involving Carolina and State, take a back seat here as a topic of general conversation, discussion, analysis and prognostication.

For the first time in a decade the Wolves seem really on the prowl—at least their supporters think they are—and are being conceded better than a remote chance to do a bit of victorious howling after the game.

If, perchance, the Wolves should bite the tar out of the Tar Heels, your correspondent predicts that there'll really be a hot time in the old town come Saturday night.

As yet, however, the city fathers haven't put up signs pointing the way to the nearest cyclone cellars where innocent bystanders can take refuge from celebrating collegians.

Wilson's Will Lucas appeared before Judge Buck Harris again this week—but this time not as chairman of a defendant State Board of Elections in an election contest. He was one of the attorneys in the suit to void the tobacco control act in North Carolina.

Incidentally, Chairman Lucas insists that all the Deane-Burgin fussing and fighting is not "an election contest" so far as his board is concerned. The group, he insists, is interested only in the "orderly carrying out and enforcement of the North Carolina election laws."

The whole thing has been "the most trying experience of my life," Mr. Lucas will assure you.

Protesting sportsmen apparently have won a victory in their protest to the Game Commission with regard to opening and closing dates for hunting numerous types of game.

John D. Chalk, the game and inland fish commissioner, has definitely agreed to the changes, which will make this year's hunting dates something like this:

Possum and coon, October 1 to February 15 (opening date had been set for October 15); Turkey and quail, December 1 to February 15 (previously it has been set to open December 15); Ruffed grouse, December 1 to January 15; Rabbits, Thanksgiving day to February 15.

These new dates must be confirmed by a meeting of the full Conservation and Development Board on October 11, but this is considered merely a formality.

First actual threat—perhaps warning is a better word—of possible violence in connection with North Carolina elections came from Republican member of the Watauga Board of Elections, J. E. Holsouser, who told the State Board Wednesday that unless something is done to secure a fair deal for his party in that section "It's going to come to guns."

He wanted Boone precinct divided in two; claimed this had been done by himself and a Democratic board member, but the whole thing undone when a new Democratic chairman was appointed. The state board said it was sorry but could do nothing about it.

He also wanted a letter saying that a Republican judge has a right to inspect ballot boxes—a right which he says has been consistently denied in Watauga. The board said it would write a letter about that.

"Well, I'll get the letter, but I still doubt if we'll get close to the ballot boxes," he said rather dimly, pointing out that a similar letter was written two years ago, but with-

Senator Smith (D-SC) called for an increase in the rate of government loans on cotton and a subsidy on export and domestic sales of cotton from this year's crop.

The chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee said this in brief was the program he would ask senators, including Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, from cotton-producing states to endorse at a special conference he called to meet Friday.

GREENVILLE "The City Of Sunshine"

GARDEN CLUB PROMOTES SPRING FLOWER PROGRAM

Each year, early in the fall, Greenville becomes a bright and smiling city. And well it should, with the wealth and happiness portrayed in the bright leaf loads as they are being hauled into the "City of Sunshine." Since this season brings us a golden harvest, would we not live a fuller satisfaction to have another such happiness at some time during the year.

And so the Garden Club of Greenville is promoting an expressive slogan for one of the six most rapidly growing cities in America—Greenville, the City of Sunshine.

In order that this slogan may be continuously expressed the club is urging a small spring flower program for the homeowners of Greenville. And that is—may we count on each one of you to help make Greenville a bright and smiling community in the spring—a bright leaf spring.

Yellow expresses sunshine, wealth and happiness. The early spring flowers most adaptable to this expression are forsythia (golden bell) and daffodils. This is the time of year we must make preparations for early garden beauty. And most of all for early spring flowerettes.

If each gardener will plant only two forsythia bushes, to the front of the gate, with as many daffodil bulbs as possible through the gardens and lawns, then the club is assuring you that next spring each and every citizen of Greenville will have cheery good morning for each and every one as they start the day. For early spring blossoms, the forsythia and bulbs should be planted not later than the middle of October.

Garden club members are willing to help you with your selection and purchase of bulbs and shrubs and to recommend the planting and care of these two bright flowers.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR Thursday, Sept. 29, 1898

Brief Reflections
Services at the Baptist Church to-night.

The past week has been fine for making hay.

Nights never get prettier than the last few nights have been.

The town authorities certainly ought to be looking after the South Greenville foot bridge. Its condition is getting dangerous.

L. I. Moore returned Wednesday evening.

Miss Sallie Lipscomb requests us to announce that there will be a full rehearsal at the new Opera House tonight at 7:30 o'clock, and all members are requested to be promptly on hand. We understand that the cast has been admirably filled and that the public may expect something good on the 12th of October.

Quinn-Miller, Stroud Preparing Open Store

Officials of Quinn-Miller and Stroud furniture store, located on Cotanche street, just back of the city hall, are busy placing stock in the new, up-to-date building.

Formal opening of the store will be announced later. Meanwhile visitors will be welcomed.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTmarsh

Chapter 46
The Clouded Moon
I FELT wildly in my pockets for the matches that were not there, and as I did so, heard Hugo swear sharply. Next moment a darker shadow hurried past me and through the window.

I sprang after it, heard a choking gasp from somewhere below me in the darkness, and recognized the voice as Fleuriot's.

"What's happened?" I called, and Hugo answered from behind. "He landed me one with the knife and got away."

"Badly hurt?" I asked anxiously, and he answered impatiently: "No, no. Only the wrist. Get after him, man, for pity's sake!" But as he spoke, a sudden flare of light from a pocket-torch cut across the room, and I saw Dunning's anxious face peering in and behind him Fleuriot, doubled up with pain and hugging his waistline.

I turned to Dunning. "Which way did he go?" I demanded.

"Out there some way," he answered dolefully, "and that madman slipped his leash and made after him. But I wouldn't worry. Archie," he added rather anxiously, "there'll be time enough to look for them when we're straightened up here."

"You can do the straightening," I retorted and with one bound I was through the window and running across the yard.

As I turned out of the gateway, the hot wind lashed my face, and I halted a moment, holding my breath. Now the fire was half-way down the valley, driven by the frantic wind. Death and destruction were leaping down upon us, and I could not believe that any living thing could have been crazed enough to venture through it.

I turned to find Dunning at my elbow. "Any sign of them?"

"None," said I. "They must have gone the other way." I broke off suddenly and clutched his arm. "I was wrong. Look there!" And I pointed upward to where, a little to the right, on the fringe of the very torrent roaring down the valley, a dark shape pranced its way upward towards the tree-fringed skyline.

The big man gasped. "That's one of them all right," he commented bitterly. "And what's more, he's got the rope I tied him up with. See it trailing behind him? But what's he heading for and where's Geiss?"

"I don't know," I answered hopelessly, "but see here, man. If we want to get out of here unscathed, we'll have to get a move on."

We packed them into the car. Hugo silent and irritable, nursing his bound wrist, Ottilie pale and suddenly withdrawn into herself, and Fleuriot still rather green about the gills. I took the wheel this time, with Dunning beside me, and turned the car up the track on the way we had come. But now that we had our backs to the fire, the night was dark, and it was uncommonly difficult to keep to the road. Half-way up the slope I halted, feeling rather than seeing that the going was rougher than it should be, and Dunning clattered out and fished his torch on the ground ahead.

"No road here," he announced, and no road any place that I can see."

End Of A Cartoonist
I GOT out wearily. "There's nothing for it," I told the silent occupants of the tonneau. "We can't take the car here across country. Dunning and I will have to foot it till we hit the trail."

We set off, scrambling upward over uneven tussocks of grass, reading, as far as we could, to the right, where the path must lie; but there was never a sign of it, and presently we were up among the pine trees.

Dunning suddenly gripped me by the arm. "Look there!" he whispered, his voice shaking.

We were standing on the edge of a little clearing on the very crest of the slope. The smoke had thinned away; the moon was shining fitfully through the cloud-wrack, and by its light I saw in the center of the open space, a small stunted oak. But it was not the tree that held my gaze, but the figure that dangled, grotesquely, from its lowest branch, and the second figure, gaunt and gawling, that pranced and capered before it.

I took to my heels across the clearing, with Dunning close behind me, and the dancing creature made no effort to escape, but sidled nearer instead.

"You see?" said Noah More, and giggled foolishly. "I have done what you came out to do—I have hanged him."

I ripped out my clasp-knife and hacked through the rope that held the ghastly figure, but as it dropped limply into my arms, I knew that we were too late and the man was dead—dead, I thought, from shock and heart-failure, dead almost before he had hung from the tree.

I looked to Dunning, letting the body slip to the ground, and saw to my horror that Ottilie stood just behind me, her eyes dark and frightened, and behind her, Hugo and Fleuriot.

"There, lies the greatest cartoonist of his age," Fleuriot announced quietly. "But I could wish that he had not landed with such force on my abdomen!"

Hugo gave a short laugh. "You've all played your parts most nobly," said he, "except me. I appear to have filled the role of the clown in the circus who takes the knocks and looks foolish, but it seems to me it's time we got a move on." He gripped Ottilie with his free hand.

She looked up at him pitiously. "But Hugo—" she began, and then suddenly her expression hardened. "Oh, well," she said, "if it's foolish to have saved my life, I've nothing more to say. Come on, then, let's go!"

But I lingered, for there was more to be decided than that Geiss's body could not be left alone on the hillside, neither could we find room in the car for the whole party. Someone had to stay behind, and I had a feeling that that someone would have to be me.

But Fleuriot had sensed my thought. "No, no!" he said sharply. "It is I that must stay. It is my duty. I will remain here very pleasantly with the corpse and the lunatic, and you will send a car back for me from Le Trayas. See the wind has shifted—and the fire will spread no more."

I looked up and saw that it was true. Even as I turned back to him the first drop of rain struck cool against my cheek.

To Have And To Hold
"ALL the same," I said dubiously, "I don't like leaving you here alone—" but he cut in sharply: "Once more, I insist! It is my day's work, and, furthermore, I feel there is a little something that should be adjusted between two members of our party."

I glanced over my shoulder. Ottilie was already sitting stiffly in the back of the car, with an expression that said she didn't mind who sat next to her so long as it wasn't Hugo, while he, on the other hand, was standing stiffly aloof, nursing his wounded wrist and staring gloomily out over the valley.

"All right," I said resignedly. "I'll go, but I think you've chosen the easier job."

The trip back was a simple matter, once we had located the track for the fire was dying and it was comparatively easy to see the road. We came to Le Trayas in the gray light of dawn to find that the street was empty, save for one car which held my attention as we drew up at the barrier.

In the tonneau Ada, disheveled and wild-eyed, clung to the arm of an impassive but gray-faced Virgoe Wills. It was Ada who first caught sight of us, and with some-thing between a sob and a scream she scrambled from the car and came running towards us; but quick as she was, Dunning was quicker. He was out of the Hispano in a flash, meeting her half-way and gathering her into his arms.

We were all on the road now and as I turned to speak to our friend the lieutenant, trying to make him understand that I wanted car at once to take me back to Fleuriot, I felt Ottilie pluck at my sleeve.

"Archie," she whispered, "do you think that Hugo realizes he's going to marry me?"

I hesitated. "I believe something of the sort has occurred to him," I answered cautiously.

"Then," said she, "for mercy's sake, make him do something about it quick!"

I crossed to Hugo and touched his arm. "Old man," I said, "the Prayer Book says 'to have and to hold,' but in this case it's the latter verb that matters. She's waiting for you to kiss her, and I can't get back to Fleuriot till I've seen you do it."

Almost as the words left my mouth, he had swung round to her his arms wide, and in another second they had closed about her.

I drove back through the scorched and smoking countryside with an inquisitive soldier beside me and a taciturn gendarme in the rear, and as I drove I felt singularly lost and lonely, for it seemed that, in all this welter of marrying and giving in marriage, there was no place left for me. But when I saw Fleuriot squatted philosophically under the blasted oak, I knew then that there was still a world of men left for me untangled by the snares of petticoat-strings.

"Fleuriot," I said, as he rose to greet me, "are you married?"

He grinned back at me. "Young man, I am too wise!"

"Then," said I, "you and I have a lot in common, for we are two free men in a prisoned world!"

But he shook his head, smiling cynically but very kindly. "My young friend," said he, "say that to me in a year's time and I will believe you."

Contest is Planned By Western Union

For the first time since 1845, when America's first telegraph company was organized, the public will have the opportunity to design headings for telegram blanks. To encourage youthful artists and stimulate an interest in the coming World's Fairs to be held in New York and San Francisco in 1939, The Western Union Telegraph Company is offering $350 in cash prizes for headings suitable for the two special World's Fairs souvenir telegrams.

Two contests will be held simultaneously one for the New York heading and one for San Francisco with the following prizes in each contest: first $100; second $50; and third $25.

Both contests are open to any art student or amateur artist, and no entry fees of any kind are required. Entry blanks setting forth the contest rules are available to any one except employees of the telegraph company without charge or obligation at any Western Union office. The contests are now open and close December 30th.

Except for several mechanical requirements there are no restrictions upon contestants other than the limits of the designer's imagination, and the winning headings, if they are suitable for use, will join the long list of special headings inaugurated in 1912 when the telegraph company first began the practice of using individual decorated headings for special occasions. With the recent interest shown in the hobby of collecting old telegrams, it is possible that the telegrams printed from the winning drawings will some day find themselves in many telegram collections.

Belmont Abbey To Play At ECTC Saturday at 2:00

Visitors Outweigh Pirates, But Locals Are Scrappers

Belmont Abbey will collide with the E. C. T. C. Pirates at the college stadium here Saturday afternoon in the initial game of the 1938 grid season. The kickoff is promptly at 2 o'clock.

Scale-tipping among the Pirates is a few pounds below that of the Abbeymen. However, there are scrappers on both teams, possessed with a double-dose of determination, who are capable of staging a receptive gridiron contest.

Coach Humphrey Wheeler has 10 letter men returning with the Abbey squad, which may tend to give the visitors the edge over the Pirates. Coach J. D. Alexander has several inexperienced men in the lineup and is weak on reserves and key positions.

Despite the good points, the Abbeymen also have some weaknesses.

Except for the ten letter men, other members of the team are untried and green. Hudacek and Couturier, the two backs who did most to defeat the Pirates last season, have been lost through graduation.

Frank Modra, Abbey fullback, tipping the scales at 150 pounds, is apparently the best threat of the visitors. Modra, injured for the greater part of last season, did not play against the Teachers. He will probably be in the lineup Saturday and keep the "eagle eyes" of Pirate players peeled at all times.

"Lex" Ridenhour was voted to pilot his mates in Saturday's contest in the role of captain. A permanent captain has not been chosen as yet, but due to his popularity and enviable "athletic" record Lex holds a top place rung for the possibility of becoming the Pirates' permanent captain for the present grid season.

Taking a glance at some of the probable starters for the Pirates Saturday, one finds mainstays of last season on the roster, Bill Shel-

Doc Smith To Stay

New Bern, Sept. 28.—New Bern this past season had its best year "financially" since the Bears began playing here, according to James B. Simpson, club president. The Bears won the Coastal Plain League pennant in the season just closed. Although no large sum of money was cleared, nearly a thousand dollars in uniforms and $1,400 in improvements on the local ball park is accounted for. Doc Smith of Angier, who piloted the Bears this and last season, again will manage them next year, Simpson announced.

ton will likely start at half-back. Those who followed the Pirates last season will recall that Shelton staged one of the prettiest exhibitions of ball totu' seen last year, when he took the ball on the kickoff and dashed 95 yards for a touchdown.

Bill Merner will likely start at center. Rock Venters will be pulling splinters on a bench stationed on the sidelines and will relieve Merner if such action happens to be necessary. Rock has been going through practice paces to start at center but Merner, who has an edge in the realm of experience, will likely be the starter.

Another tough customer for the Abbeymen will be Bill Dudash. Bill comes to the Pirate squad from Massena, New York, and will be found at quarterback in the lineup. He is no newcomer for the Pirates. He played last season and proved to be a valuable asset to the Pirates.

Texas Lindsay will be found at right end. Texas knows the game and has aided considerably in the past in helping his mates rack up points.

Coach Alexander announces that the following lineup will probably be started against Belmont Abbey: Glass, LE; Wagner, LT; Williams, LG; Merner, C; Rogers, RG; Demond or Carson, RT; Lindsay, RE; Dudash, QB; Brown or Northcutt, HB; Ridenhour (Captain) FB; Shelton, HB.

Coach Humpy Wheeler of Belmont Abbey announces that the following will be his starting lineup: Bradley, LE; Viscio, LT; Pezonowski, LG; Marshall, C; Roan, RG; Birker, RT; Reddell, RE; Modra, FB; Popowski, HB; Sikish, QB; Matthews, HB.

New Track Record

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Billy Direct, 4-year-old pacer owned by McConville & Downey of Ogdensburg, N. Y., lowered the world's mile record for harness racers to 1:55 today. The official time was announced by Jesse Shuff, racing secretary of the Lexington trots. Shuff said the time was the fastest ever recorded by harness racers of either gait. It displaced the record set by Dan Patch in a race here in 1905.

GAME SET FOR 3:15 O'CLOCK

High School Gridders Prepared for Curtain-Raiser

Only light drills were held by the G. H. S. Phantoms yesterday, and were scheduled for today, weather permitting, in final preparation for the curtain-raiser of the 1938 high school gridiron season. The team will clash with the Plymouth Rocks of Plymouth High School tomorrow at Third street stadium, the game to be called at 3:15 instead of 3:30, which was originally announced a few days ago.

The Rocks have already opened their football season with a decisive 20-0 victory over Columbia High School.

With this win under their belts, the Rocks will be out to scalp the Phantoms and make it two in a row. The Phantom team is light but fast and deceptive, and is prepared to put on a vigorous battle.

With much interest built up in the contest, Friday's game promises to be a close one and full of thrills to afford the spectators plenty of excitement and enthusiasm.

Incidentally, C. O. Armstrong, head mentor of the Plymouth team, is a graduate of E. G. T. C., and is well known in this city.

In order to familiarize the football fans more with the players on this year's G. H. S. Green Phantom squad, the names, numbers, weights and positions of the team that will face Plymouth High tomorrow is as follows:

Chapter One
The Golden Girl

THERE was an amber twilight in the elevator but it could not dim the glory of Kathleen Gregory's hair. Mirrors picked up the red-gold flame, tossed it back, and Kathleen, catching the reflection, scowled rebelliously.

The doors slid open. Her russet clad figure stepped out, and after her floated the operator's whisper, "The Golden Girl, you've read about her..."

"Just a walking advertisement," thought Kathleen, grimly, and yanked at the door of the suite before her without glancing at the gold leaf letters satirically greeting her with the despised title. Below, in subdued black, was the addition, Mining Corporation, and below this, Angus Gregory, President.

Kathleen stormed through the outer offices. "It takes four layers of offices to make Dad a president," she cried in exasperation. "Well," she snapped, as the girl at the desk in this inner sanctum continued stacking notebooks. "Jump up! Open the door! Say good afternoon, Miss Gregory."

The girl at the desk did not look up. "It's a vile afternoon and I wouldn't open that door for the President of the Irish Free State, let alone a Gregory."

Kathleen stopped short and stared at her father's private secretary. "Mutiny," she pronounced. "What's up?"

"Practically everything," came the cryptic retort. "My time, included."

"Discharged?"

"To the elite; to the Irish, canned, given the gate, fired."

The red-gold hair swung in a flaming arc as Kathleen's head tipped back to laugh. "Not again," she disparaged. "Surely you don't take Dad seriously?"

"No," conceded the secretary, "but this time he's going to take me seriously. I'm tired of being a wet nurse to you Gregorys. I've spent eight of my twenty-six years as a sounding board for your family tempers. It's too much of a strain on my nationality to take it without a comeback. Today, I—came back!"

"And I missed it," wailed the youngest of the Gregorys. "What happened?"

For the first time Bridget Riley looked up, a hint of laughter in her eyes. "Your estimable Aunt Beatrice asked my opinion. I gave it, with variations. She didn't care for it. But then, neither do I care for your Aunt Beatrice."

Kathleen perched on the edge of the desk studying the other girl earnestly. She liked Bridget.

Kathleen couldn't imagine anyone taking her place. She was even good to look at—with her wide blue eyes, milk white skin and soft bands of jet black hair.

It occurred to her suddenly that she knew nothing of Bridget's life outside of the office. She didn't know how the loss of such a well paid position would affect her.

"Don't get me mixed up in making Aunt Bee apologize."

"Please!" Bridget held up a warning hand. "I might be overcome by shock and stay on. I don't want to have been saving my pennies. I'm going West."

"West?" echoed Kathleen blankly. "Where?"

The Gregory Clan

OUT of a top drawer, Bridget took a worn magazine folded to a colored page. "Here."

Kathleen looked at the lithograph: gold and purple hills against a cobalt sky; a pale yellow road winding through red cliffs, and across the bottom the words: Tires as rugged as this country.

"But this is an advertisement," she protested.

"Granted. However, the artist must have seen such a place or he concrete and temporary stands will be reserved and there will be no tickets for children at reduced prices.

Mr. Sheppard said Carolina's advance sale of tickets for all games has been the heaviest in the history of football at the University.

There has also been a heavy advance sale for Carolina's homecoming game with Tulane at Chapel Hill Saturday week, October 8th, but plenty of good seats are available.

would be given to families who were without means to reinstate themselves. This will require rebuilding and repairing hundreds of houses, refurbishing clothing and some aid to small businesses, he said. One of the acute problems is the heavy losses suffered by the fishing fleets out of the New England and Long Island ports. The Red Cross yesterday had mobilized temporary fishing boats and equipment, such as nets, lobster pots and traps, for the fishermen so that they could continue to work, pending permanent relief measures.

The Red Cross also had assigned many welfare workers to investigate problems of families who may have lost breadwinners through death, so that women and children would have care to tide them over until state or federal relief was granted.

"The Red Cross is the only agency that will take care of the human problems of these distressed families," Mr. Davis said. "I am told that the majority of these 15,000 couldn't have reproduced it. I'm going to find it. Incidentally, does it occur to you that the whole Gregory clan is waiting for you?"

Kathleen stirred resentfully. "They only want my signature. They think women with red hair have no brains for business. Of course," she added whimsically, "there was a gal named Cleopatra—"

Shoulders squared for battle, Kathleen went into her father's office.

The Gregorys were all there. Her father sat at the head of the long table, beelling his brows at her. At his left sat Aunt Beatrice, rigid with disapproval. Then down the sides they ranged—uncles and cousins, her mother, an ineffectual period, at the foot, her favorite Uncle Douglas, equally ineffectual, beside her.

"You might at least be prompt," came the brittle greeting from her Aunt Beatrice.

"I might," agreed Kathleen, "if it were worth while."

Lifelong Enemies

ANGUS GREGORY motioned his daughter to the chair at his right. "We've met to discuss an important matter in which you are vitally concerned—The Golden Girl."

"Maid or mine?" she queried.

"The mine," her father continued, ignoring her interruption, "is in a serious predicament. We have exhausted every legal possibility of assuring its continuance. It is now up to you."

"Last resort," suggested Kathleen, pertly. But she was interested. For the first time in her twenty-two years she was being considered as something other than a social adjunct to the Gregory clan.

"Darling," her mother leaned forward, "you know father wouldn't ask for a sacrifice unless it were necessary."

"Sacrifice?" echoed Kathleen. "Dad, would you mind beginning at the beginning?"

Angus Gregory cleared his throat. "We had to begin in 1870 and we haven't time. You of course remember the feud which exists between our family and the MacDonalDs?"

"I was weaned on it," sighed Kathleen. "Because my grandfather and a MacDonald left Scotland together to search for gold in the West, and because they both struck gold the same day, they ceased being lifelong friends and became lifelong enemies. They started mines within a few miles of each other and along with these mines, their progeny have inherited a feud which makes one family live in New York and the other in Los Angeles. By the way, Dad, what started the feud?"

"I... why I... well, does it matter?"

Kathleen gave a husky little laugh. "What's the fun of a feud if you don't know the cause?"

"In view of existing circumstances, showing cause is immaterial," observed Beatrice, icily.

"Auntie, you've been spending too much time in the courts," chided Kathleen. She looked squarely at her father. "Well, out with it. How do I remove the blot from the Gregory tartan and who put it there?"

Angus Gregory pulled a long blue print from his desk and spread it before Kathleen. "See these two lines?" he asked. "They represent the respective shafts of The Golden Girl and The Stubborn Boy, the latter being the name of the Mac Donald mine."

"What's the idea of their crossing each other?" inquired Kathleen.

"They don't as yet," sighed Gregory. "The dotted lines represent the future shafts. However, for some reason the veins of ore run in this—this impossible fashion. We are down to this level." He marked a point close to the cross center of the unevenly spaced X.

"If you'll notice our shaft is several degrees above the other. This means we will have to be the aggressors. Unless they will sell or concede us right-of-way around their shaft, we will be forced to close down."

Kathleen studied the blueprint a moment. "But won't they be over on our territory before long? Can't you trade courtesies with them?"

"Courtesies!" snorted Gregory. "Bah, they never heard of the word. And they won't be over the line for years. Notice how easily their line goes down, how gradually? When they do begin their trespass it will be up to the courts to set a precedent as to whether we, they, or the man who made the gold, owns the terrain at that depth."

Kathleen was sincerely interested now. Heretofore The Golden Girl had meant nothing more than the name of a mine on the door of her father's suite.

"Can't you go to court or whatever it is you do?" she asked.

"We've been in court for the last four years. The Stubborn Boy refuses to negotiate. Unaware of this implication, Gregory continued. "Our engineers foresaw this difficulty years ago and we prepared to meet it. However, we have no legal means of forcing our enemies into court. As a last resort we appealed to the MacDonalDs personally. It was futile. We have reached an impasse."

Angus Gregory paused and Beatrice, who had restrained herself with an effort, leaned forward to release her charge.

"And this is where you come in, my dear. You are going West to force that right-of-way. Now what do you think of that?"

"That one of the two of us is crazy," Kathleen retorted. "How could I do what Dad and the courts combined couldn't do?"

Angus Gregory fidgeted. He cleared his throat, then in a despairing voice explained. "The last of the MacDonalDs, quite a young man, is resident superintendent of the Stubborn Boy."

Kathleen paused a moment. "And what does that make me?"

"You see, darling," Mrs. Gregory had come around the table to bend over her daughter. "We know how men feel about you. You have such a... such an ameliorating effect upon... upon you know... she concluded vaguely.

Kathleen sprang to her feet. "What a fine clan you've turned out to be," she began, her voice low and tense. "You expect me, a Gregory, to vump a damned MacDonald into giving you what you can't win decently. You expect me to sacrifice my self-respect while you remain here all wrapped up in your insufferable pride. You know what Cleopatra got out of a deal like this. Thank you, I'm not having any!" She swung towards the door.

"Kathleen, Kathleen—" Douglas was hurrying after her. "Won't you read this letter?"

6,000 SEEKING TENANT LOANS

North Carolina Farmers Apply to Federal Agency

Raleigh, Sept. 29—More than 6,000 tenant farmers in North Carolina have applied to the Farm Security Administration for loans to buy farms under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, said Vance E. Swift, State Director here today. Of those applying, 4,000 were white and 2,000 were Negro applicants. Some 350 or 400 of these tenant purchase loans will be made during the present fiscal year in 50 counties in this state. Under the program designed for gradual expansion, 103 tenant purchase loans were made in 17 North Carolina counties last year.

These loans do not include the 92 scattered farms previously bought for tenant farmers under a special appropriation in Johnston, Harnett, Sampson and Wayne counties known as the North Carolina Farm Tenant Security Project.

In addition, some 10,000 North Carolina farm families are now farming under regular Rural Rehabilitation loans of the Farm Security Administration which do not include money to buy farms.
