Britain 'Reminds' Japan Not To Damage Interest As Nipponese Open Drive

PUSH STARTED TAKE HANKOW

Japanese Loose Full Strength in Giant Offensive

CAMPAIGN AIMED SEIZE CAPITAL

Foreign Office Statement Declares Japan Will 'Respect' Foreign Interests

London, Oct. 12—(AP)—With Japanese forces landed in south China for a drive on Canton, the British government today let it be known that Japan had been "reminded" that any damage to British interests in south China may involve "risks for Anglo-Japanese relations."

A source close to the government said Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, ambassador to Japan, had delivered a "reminder" to the Tokyo foreign office on the subject within the last few days.

Shanghai, Oct. 12—(AP)—Japanese forces loosed their full might today in a final giant pincer offensive designed to capture Hankow and smash General Chiang Kai-Shek's legions.

A new Japanese expeditionary force, estimated at 30,000 to 50,000 mechanically well equipped men, supported by naval and air units, landed at Bias bay a few miles north of Hongkong.

Their plan was to sever communication lines.

School Cafeteria Will Be Operated

The cafeteria for children of the Training School, which will be run again this year on the campus by the Home Economics Department of the College, will open its doors next Monday in a new setting, the west wing of Ragsdale Hall, instead of being in the building where it was last year.

It will be run by the senior home economics students under the direction of Miss Ruby Scholz to give these students training in the preparation of low-cost, nourishing meals for children eating in school cafeterias.

Miss Scholz, a new member of her department this year, comes to her work from graduate study in the University of Tennessee, one of the best universities of the entire South in the field of home economics.

Father Local Woman Is Claimed By Death

Arthur Whiteley, 78, prominent Erwin man who died yesterday, is the father of Mrs. Claude Tunstall of Greenville. Both Mr. and Mrs. Tunstall were with Mr. Whiteley when he died.

Funeral services were held this afternoon.

Mr. Whiteley, born of English parents, spent most of his life in North Carolina, where he was first engaged in newspaper editorial work and later in bank work.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two step daughters, daughters besides Mrs. Tunstall.

Girl Is Killed

Little Hazel Colville, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Colville who live on the Greenville-Farmville highway, was killed about noon today when she was struck by an automobile driven by Tom Cox of Greenville.

An inquest was being held late this afternoon.

Cox was going toward Farmville when the little girl was said to have run across the road from his left. The left front fender of the car struck the little girl. Cox brought her to the local hospital, but she lived only a short while.

The little girl was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Frank Taylor, and was a packhouse by the side of the road when she started across the road.

She is survived by her parents, one sister and three brothers.

HOW TOMMIES PREPARED

Action speaks louder than words, thought worried Britons, who kept on building barricades, digging bomb shelters, buying gas masks even while diplomats were discussing terms at Munich. This is Snow Hill police station in London. Hitler threatened war; he got fertile fields and mineral-bearing Czech lands, and "reclaimed" 3 1/2 million Germans on its soil.

Officers Astonished At Success Of Warning Net

CZECHS ORDER REFUGEES OUT

Government Declines To Allow Germans To Remain

Prague, Oct. 12—(AP)—Premier Jan Sirovy today rejected a British plan to allow Sudeten German refugees to remain two months in Czechoslovakia pending organization of international aid for them.

The British suggestion was made personally by Major General Sir Neil Malcolm, League of Nations high commissioner for refugees from Germany.

The Premier replied that Czechoslovakia had reason to fear new agitation if great numbers of Germans were taken into the republic. Although most fugitives were anti-Nazi, he said, they already were demanding German schools.

Sirovy added that many other difficulties, chiefly economic, stood in the way of the British plan. Sir Neil, however, expressed a fear that many fugitives would be persecuted if they returned to Sudetenland, which now is under German control.

Sir Harry Twyford, lord mayor of London, and head of the British refugee mission to Czechoslovakia, left for London today, expressing the hope that relief measures could be worked out.

Declare Silencers On Bombers May Become Necessary

Fort Bragg, Oct. 12—(AP)—Air corps officers, astonished at the efficiency of a civilian anti-aircraft warning net being tested in maneuvers here, said today engine silencers on bombing planes might become a necessity.

These officers, who have been trying in vain to "sneak" formations and even single airplanes by the keen ears North Carolina rooftop observers, expressed surprise at the civilian ability to pick up the planes' courses at all altitudes, up to the maximum ceilings of the newest bombers.

Use of the warning net is regarded, however, as of greater value to pursuit aviation than to anti-aircraft batteries.

Members of the air corps board expressed elation at the success of high flying bombardments and low flying attack maneuvers in eluding both searchlights and gun batteries, despite their detection by the civilian net.

Last night, it was pointed out, an attack flight and two bomber formations got through the anti-aircraft ring scot-free without being detected.

EXPECTS MOVE U.S. FAMILIES ON BIG SCALE

Housing Authority to Begin Clearance of Slums

FUNDS ALLOTTED LOCAL AGENCIES

Long List of Appointments Keep President Busy Throughout Columbus Day

Washington, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Nathan Straus, administrator of the U. S. Housing Authority, expects 5,000 families a month to "emigrate" from American slums beginning early next year.

Making that forecast today, he reported $7,545,892 had been advanced by the U. S. H. A. to 28 local housing authorities for more than 5,000 dwelling units now under construction.

The anticipated rate of slum clearance, Straus said, will require $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 every month. Advances to date barely have nicked either the $600,000,000 which U. S. H. A. has for slum clearance and low-cost housing loans or its $200,000,000 for local subsidies.

Japs Urge Powers Not Move Troops

Tokyo, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Japanese government today urged the United States and other powers "to refrain as far as possible from moving troops, warships and anti-aircraft in south China" in view of the landing of a Japanese expedition, presumably for a drive on Canton.

Notes were sent to the Tokyo embassies of the principal powers asking for cooperation in prevention of incidents in connection with the south China campaign.

The note designated the area between Swatow, 200 miles northeast of Hongkong, and Pakhoi, about 350 miles southwest of that British colony as the area in which neutral powers were to refrain from moving their troops.

Japan asked that 10 days notice be given the Japanese command if "sheer necessity should compel" such movements.

Furniture Store Man Wonders About Call

R. W. Davenport, who works at the Home Furniture store, is wondering whether someone played a joke on him or whether he was about to be made the victim of a robbery.

After he had gone to bed last night someone called him on the telephone and told him that the back door of the store was open. The called said it was "Prage at the police station."

Mr. Davenport walked to the store, found all doors locked and returned home. He then called the police station and no one there had called him.

Dozen Tanks Explode At Refining Company

Governor May Be Forced Settle Deane-Burgin Row

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Oct. 12—Governor Clyde R. Hoey will intervene in the super-heated Eighth District Congressional row as soon as the Deane-Burgin battle reaches the point where it is entirely obvious that no court decision can be had in time to put the legal winner on the General Election ballot.

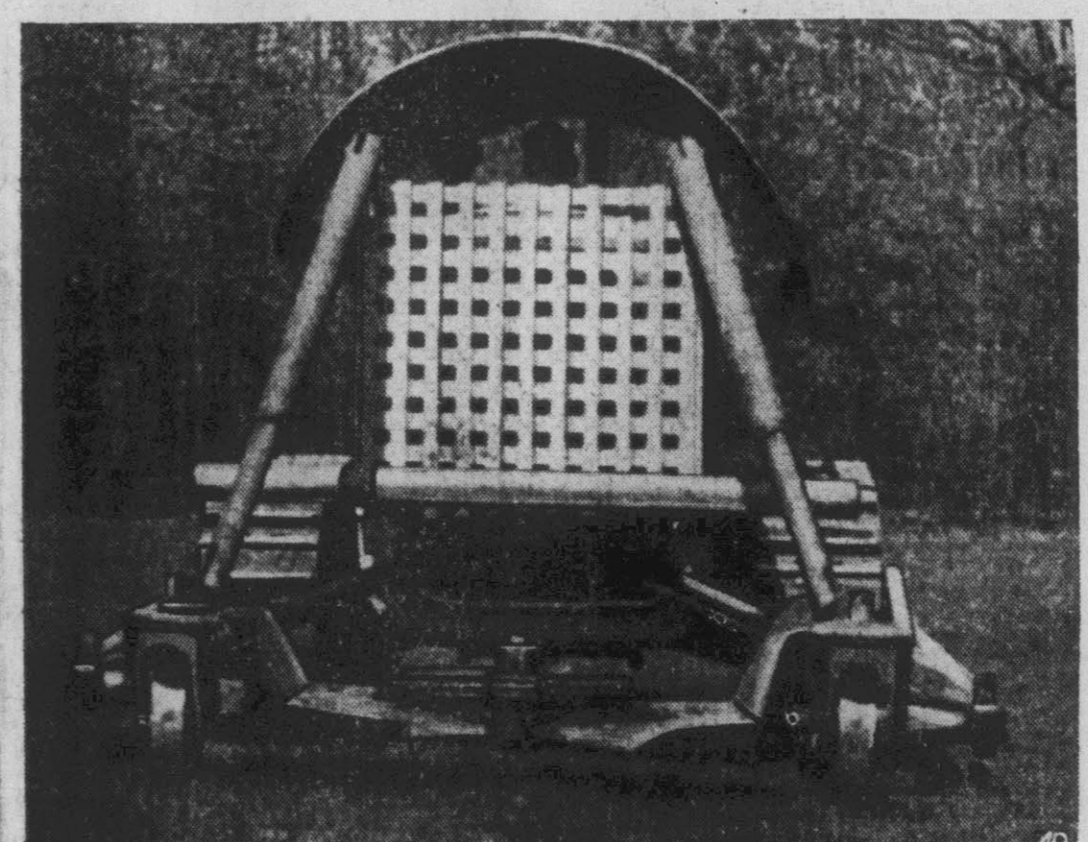

The Governor hasn't said this, but from what he hasn't said it is clear that he has no intention of sitting idly by and letting the bewildered Democrats of the Eighth go to the polls in November with no one for whom they can cast a Congressional ballot.

On the other hand, he hasn't the slightest intention of taking any action or public stand as long as there is the remotest possibility the court decision can be reached in time to get the victor on the ballot.

So far as can be predicted at this writing there seems only the faintest of outside chances that the court wrangling can possibly end

"WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE!"

The famous words from "The Village Smithy" would fall on deaf ears if addressed to above mechanical tree cutter developed by Kirk Knight, a farmer in Bartlett, Texas. It's giant steel nippers, working scissors-like, will cut two trees a minute—or 1,500 in a 10-hour day—says Inventor Knight. The snippers cut trees six inches from the ground. FIRST DISTRICT RALLY OCT. 25

Conference to Be Attended by Democratic Leaders

Washington, N. C., Oct. 12—Representative Lindsay Warren announced today that the First District Democratic Conference will be held this year at Williamston on Tuesday, October 25 at 10:30 a. m.

The conference in 1936 was held at Ahoakir and was rated as the best meeting held in the state that year. An invitation is extended to all Democratic candidates in the First District, county organizations and party workers. Plans will be made for bringing out a large vote in the November election.

BOY IS KILLED IN FARMVILLE

Run Over By Auto Driven By Uncle This Morning

Melvin Stepps, aged 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stepps of Farmville, was killed instantly this morning about 7:30 o'clock by being run over by an automobile driven by his uncle Ben Stepps.

A coroner's inquest conducted by Deputy Coroner Ed S. Williams, investigated the fatal accident and found that young Melvin was walking along the highway approaching Farmville on the Snow Hill highway. He was accompanied by several other children. Dr. Joyner passed the children in his car, coming towards Farmville, at which time Melvin's uncle was coming along the highway in the opposite direction. Just as Dr. Joyner's car passed, the young man darted across the highway to pick some flowers for his teacher, directly in front of the automobile driven by Ben Stepps. It was impossible for Stepps to stop his car before striking Melvin, breaking both legs above the knees and fracturing his skull.

The coroner's jury exonerated the uncle for the accident.

LINES FORMED ALONG BORDER

Armed Troops of Two Countries Only 250 Feet Apart

LITTLE PROGRESS BY NEGOTIATORS

Czechs, Angered By Loss to Germany, Prefer War to Further Concessions

Budapest, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops established fighting positions 250 feet apart today, awaiting the outcome of deadlocked diplomatic negotiations on Hungarian demands for Czechoslovak territory.

The lines were established following yesterday's occupation of two Czech frontier towns by the Hungarians.

The occupation was a "symbolic" recovery of thousands of square miles from Czechoslovakia.

Czech troops at Ipolyvas withdrew three-fourths of a mile to the north of the town and started at once to dig trenches in potato fields and surrounding forests.

Hungarian infantry followed suit, establishing positions at close range. Hungarian heavy artillery was in firing position.

There was concern here that the Czech soldiers, angered by territorial losses to Germany, would prefer to fight against any new concessions.

Hungarian-Czech negotiators who are meeting at the frontier town Kamaron, adjourned today after it became apparent they could reach no agreement yesterday.

Society Celebrates Birthday.

The forty-second anniversary of the organization of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Auxiliary of the Methodist Missionary Society was celebrated with a birthday party—cake and all—Monday afternoon in the Sunday school auditorium of the church. Life memberships were presented by Mrs. Wiley Brown in a few well-chosen words to two of the charter members of that first Auxiliary—Mrs. James Brown and Miss Bettie Warren. A large number of members, daughters of members, and friends attended.

After a brief opening business session a curtain was pulled aside revealing a beautiful, large birthday cake ornamented with figure decorations made of icing which served as a back-drop during the rest of the program. The first thing on the program was greetings by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, president of Jarvis Memorial Auxiliary, to daughters of members who had been invited for the special program and to guests.

Next a playlet called "We Are Sixty," was presented, since the occasion was the 60th anniversary of Methodist Missionary Societies as well as the 42nd of the local branch. The actresses were Mrs. T. A. Person, Mrs. Judson Blount, Mrs. H. E. Austin, Mrs. William Taft, Mrs. S. B. Curtin, Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald and Mrs. Jasper Jones.

Miss Louise Kilgo, one of the daughters present, sang "My Task," in a beautiful, young voice.

Then Mrs. R. L. Harris gave a few excerpts from a history of the local auxiliary which she was recently written. One of the most amusing incidents related was the time "Lucy," the horse of Mrs. Wiley Brown, was a paid member of the Missionary Society because she was so well known to the members as horse of many duties for the ladies in their church work.

Following the history, Mrs. Herbert Waldrop rendered a solo, "We Give Thee But Thine Own," in her usual beautiful way. Then came the highlight of the occasion—the presentation of the two life memberships.

A birthday offering was taken to help establish a fund to provide a rural deaconess for the N. C. Conference. Reverend T. M. Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial, dismissed the group with prayer.—Reported.

Greenville Community Chest.

The board of directors of the Greenville Community Chest will meet in Sheppard Memorial Library on Thursday, October 13, at 8 p. m. Reports from participating organizations on work done during the current year will be received and plans discussed for the coming year. The participating organizations for 1938 were: Boy Scouts; Salvation Army and the Thrift Shop. Any other organizations wishing to participate in the work done through the Community Chest are requested to present their applications at Thursday's meeting.

The Greenville Community Chest is not a welfare organization. The only funds it distributes are those raised for participating organizations, which funds are turned over to such organizations for their respective activities. The idea of the Chest is to reduce the number of drives for public contributions by centering them in one drive; to provide some measure of control over the public solicitation of funds; and to coordinate the social interests of the community.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

When buying bone roasts, be sure the butcher sends you the bones even if they have been removed. The bones can be used for making soups and stock for stews.

Here is a recipe for a popular peppermint ice cream. Soak for half an hour, one-third of a pound of peppermint stick candy and one cup of cream. Fold in one cup of whipped cream and freeze four hours in the mechanical refrigerator. Or cover securely in mold and bury four hours in five parts of chopped ice and one part coarse salt.

Egg custard is often served as a topping for soups. Mix two eggs yolks, two tablespoons of milk and a few grains of salt and paprika. Pour a one-fourth inch layer into a shallow pan. Bake in a pan of hot water in a slow oven until the custard sets. Cool and cut out tiny shapes with vegetable cutter. Serve two to a cup or bowl of soup.

If your carpet sweeper squeaks, apply oil on a feather or from a small oil can. Use the oil on the bearings and around the wheels. Then run the sweeper over a paper to catch any surplus oil so it won't drip on your rugs.

Things You Should Know About Your Fair—By R. GRAY

DID YOU KNOW: That the Pitt County Fair is only 4 days off.

DID YOU KNOW: That many of the little boys selling advance tickets to the Fair are buying school clothes with the commissions paid them for same?

DID YOU KNOW: That 3 churches, 1 high school and 1 Legion Auxiliary will have local food booths with many other locals, and owing to lack of space it has been necessary to refuse many others?

DID YOU KNOW: That one of the largest traveling entertainment enterprises will be moving on the new Fair Grounds early Sunday morning?

DID YOU KNOW: That now time is drawing so near we should devote our thoughts to baking a ham, cake, pie, or frying a chicken to impress the many friends and visitors to the new Exhibit Hall and make them wonder how soon their palates will be tickled with such dainties?

DID YOU KNOW: That there has been less trouble

A hat that can go places all day long and step out again in the evening is made of sober stitched brown felt and trimmed with raspberry-rose and smoke-blue ostrich tips as a flip of frivolity. Howard Hodge designed it to fit the high hair and the career woman's need for a multi-service chapeau.

ECTC ELEVENS WILL CONTEST

First String to be Divided for Practice Game Thursday

Attention sports fans! Here's an athletic event that will prove appetizing to your gridiron hunger and quench your football thirst. At any rate, it will be a swell preliminary for any major engagement in gridiron that you have planned to witness over the week-end.

Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, two spectacular gridiron aggregations, the Whites and the Golds, will invade the football field at East Carolina Teachers College. Their objective will be to furnish local grid fans with one of the hardest-fought contests to be played here this season.

Of course, several states will be represented, but the teams will be far removed from being foreign aggregations. Members of both squads will be fellows who have been first and second string mainstays of the Pirates for the present season.

Here's how selections for the teams stack up, which makes both of them rather evenly matched. Coach Alexander is organizing one of the teams from the first-string Pirate line and the second-string backfield. The second team will be composed of the second-string line and first-string backfield.

The contest is being sponsored for the benefit of the Varsity Club at East Carolina Teachers College. Members of this club are planning to purchase sweaters and are confronted with financial difficulties. So, they are establishing an admission price of ten cents.

Thursday's game will not only mean something to the Varsity Club, but also to a number of gridiron aspirants at the College. Due to the advantage of so-called experienced regulars, a number of players have not had the opportunity of displaying their punch. Instead of warming the bench, they will have the opportunity of playing in a full-length contest.

Coach Alexander is also anxious to see some of the newcomers in action. He is desirous of knowing what several of the players are capable of doing in a football game under regular playing conditions. He will have this chance Thursday.

Timely Tips For Young Gridders

Washington, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Captain Turk Edwards of the world champion Washington Redskins—a giant tackle who has stood the grind of professional football six years—offers the boys of America some hints on how to avoid injuries:

1. Be in good physical condition, which means eating muscle-building food.
2. Do lots of running to harden the muscles.
3. Do not take part in a game when you are not in good condition.
4. Learn your team's plays.

"I have seen some serious injuries, caused by a player running the wrong way," Edwards explained today.

After accomplishing these four fundamentals, Turk said, a boy should look to his equipment, especially headgear, shoulder-pads, and shoes.

"It is better," he said, "to have a good strong headgear if you can afford it, but it is more important that it fit."

Shoulder pads should fit closely enough around the neck to protect the collarbone, and should be large enough to cover the tips of the shoulders.

"Injuries to the collarbone and the shoulder tips are the most common ones in football, and many of them are caused by equipment too large or too small."

Shoes must fit like those of a dancer—a player with sore feet is no good to a team.

Of great importance, Turk said, is being alert.

Colored News

In many respects October is the most beautiful month of the year, yet during this month many changes take place. The warm sunshine is over, and winter chill comes. Melancholy days come. The farmer gathers his harvest, livestock gather about the barn to be fed. We look back with our mind's eye to see if we have done well. Perhaps the farmer thinks his job is almost complete, but not even for the month of October, and on and on as the months come. In this month when the row crop is removed from the land, seed the ground so that green roots are in the soil all winter. This will keep the soil from going to waste. Sometimes it is a good plan to fertilize cover crops, as recommended for small grain. This is very effective in soil building. A cover crop must cover the ground.

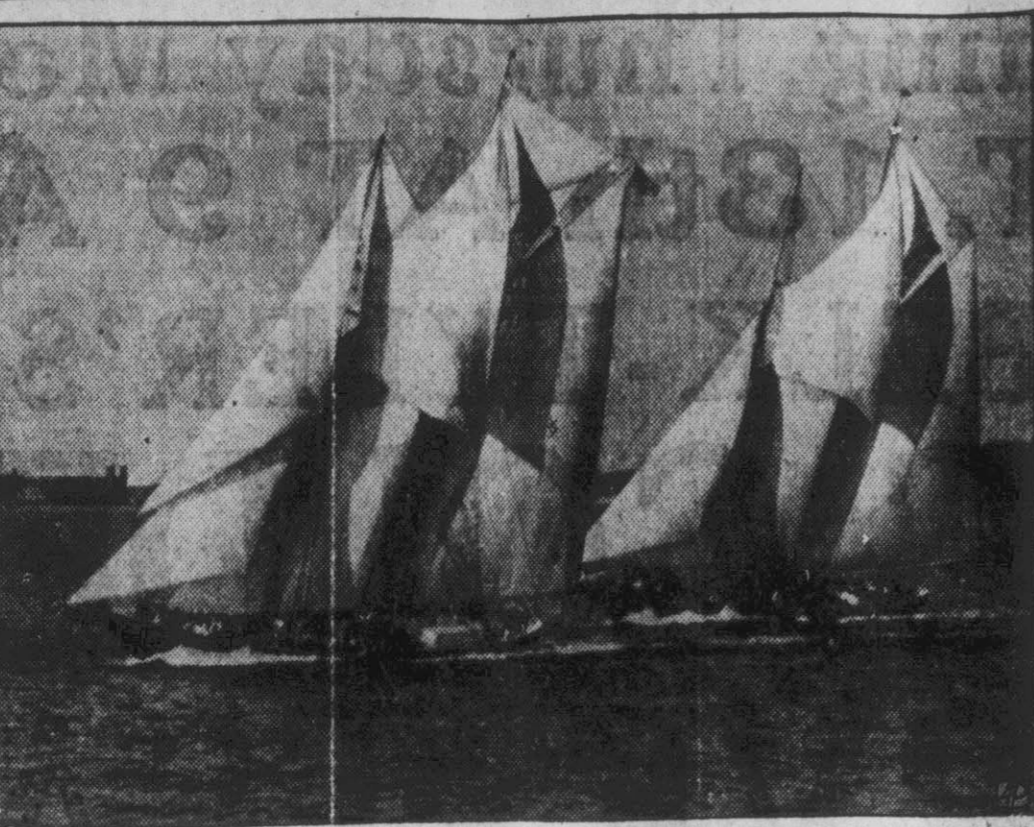

Several new 4-H clubs have been organized this term. The 4-H club work is growing in the state. This is very encouraging to Pitt county to see that it is keeping step with other counties. These clubs are very helpful.

All 4-H club members who attended the short course at A. and T. College August 29-Sept. 3, are asked to come to the agent's office to fill out some blanks to be returned to R. E. Jones, 4-H club specialist.

DENNIS DuPREE, Negro County Agent.

All colored teachers desiring to take the extension course will please report at the Fleming street high school building Friday of this week, at 4 p. m. Dean Williams of Elizabeth City, will be here to enroll those who desire to take the course.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—It develops that a body can't even go after a little local color without being hauled in by protective societies and having hot broth forced down one's throat.

There was a girl about 22 years old living in an abandoned shack which was made out of piano boxes up on some off-shoot of the Bronx. It was obvious that anyone living there must be in trying circumstances. And when it became known that a young girl was attempting to wrest an existence under such conditions a wave of pity lapped against the front steps of one of the benevolent organizations of the city and forthwith a committee of well-meaning and kind ladies called on her.

"But I don't want any help," protested the girl. "My dear," soothed the motherly spokeswoman, "of course you do. There, there now. Dear, don't cry. We intend to see that you have everything you need."

"But I have everything I want.

"I—I am all right here."

"You poor, brave, dear, thing," cooed the ladies in chorus. "Just come along with us, now, that's a dear!"

"Listen," cried the now exasperated lass, "I'm writing a book. I have a perfectly good home in Westchester. My father is a doctor. He was in here this afternoon. Furthermore, I have a bank account of my own with $3,000 in it. I like it here, and you are distracting me. I appreciate your motives in coming here, but you will be doing me a greater favor if you will kindly go away and let me alone."

They went. . . . But what a HUFF they went in.

Meanwhile, two of our Katharines have come cluck, cluck, clucking back to the avenue. . . . They would be Miss Cornell and Miss Locke. . . . Miss Locke is to play Ophelia opposite Maurice Evans in Hamlet. . . . And Miss Cornell is to star in a new play with a Biblical setting. . . . It's title is "Herod and Mariamme."

"This play requires a great deal of understanding of those times," Miss Cornell believes, hence all this preparatory stud. . . . And there's to be no lost time between rehearsals, because her husband is her director. . . . Guthrie McClintic, to whom Miss Cornell has been wedded 17 years, directs all her plays. . . . (Q) "Is he temperamental, Miss Cornell?" . . . (A) "Of course he's temperamental."

(Q) "Are you glad to be back?" . . . (A) "Martha's Vineyard was wonderful, but I am glad to be back. I have so much work to do this year."

(Q) "Well what about Guthrie? Is he a considerate director?" . . . (A) "My husband is a very wonderful director. . . . He brings out the very best in me. . . . I wouldn't want anyone in the theatre to direct me but my husband."

Which seems to take care of that.

Meanwhile Miss Locke is frantically attempting to find a suitable apartment. . . . She wants one not too far away from the theatre, and one not too close to the midtown distractions. . . . She's the dark-headed little girl who gave such an amazing performance last season in "Having Wonderful Time." Now she's to have the dangerously difficult

DUKE'S MARCH IS THREATENED

Ga. Tech, Devil's Foe Saturday, Outplayed Notre Dame

Durham, Oct. 12.—Reports coming from Atlanta and from the Duke coaches who scouted the Georgia Tech-Notre Dame game indicate that the Blue Devils' march, which has reached three victories without the Wademen being scored on, may be halted by that Golden Tornado in Duke stadium Saturday afternoon.

Although they lost Georgia Tech outplayed the Irish and showed the finest working eleven they have had at the institution since the Rose Bowl team of 1928. As one Atlanta writer put it "If Notre Dame is the No. 1 team of the nation, then Tech must at least be No. 2."

The Duke-Tech game may be decided by these two great lines. The Tornado forwards completely outplayed two Notre Dame forward walls while the strength of the Duke forwards can be seen in the fact that the Blue Devils held a good Colgate team to a net yardage of zero.

It may be that Tech, thought only to be a fairly good team when practice started this fall, is too good for the Blue Devils. Certainly, the boys of Wallace Wade cannot be said to have the man-power of Notre Dame, a team that is generally considered a top-ranking national championship contender and which only a week ago swept aside a Kansas team which was said to be powerful, 52-0.

It sizes up as one of the greatest of Duke's 1938 tests. The Blue

Devils made lot of mistakes against Colgate last week but were able to win. Tech's mistakes against Notre Dame cost them a victory for in every instance they outplayed the Irish.

Tech used little of the razzle-dazzle against Notre Dame that they threw against Duke in that unforgettable game in Atlanta last fall. They used straight plays, scoring march in six plays, making a

WAKE TO PLAY NCS SATURDAY

Contest Between Old Rivals to be Waged at Night

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—Wake Forest is better this year than last and is getting better every game. Coaches Bob Warren, Herman Hickman and Nig Waller reported to Head Coach Williams (Doc) Newton after having observed their coming week-end foes in every game played to date.

Hickman lauded the line play of Tackle Pate and Guard Trunzo. "They truly are great linemen and we will have to be on our toes if we expect to do anything against them," the rotund State line mentor declared.

Coach Warren brought in glowing reports of Wake's speedy backs, who came from behind and beat the University of South Carolina 20-19 in Columbia last Saturday.

Coach Waller, who saw the Deacs run roughshod over Randolph-Macon and then play the Southern conference champion University of North Carolina for a standstill, only to lose by one touchdown, pointed out that Wake played much better, considering everything, against Carolina than against the weak Virginia team.

The Deacons will oppose State here in Riddick Stadium Saturday night in the grand finale of a week end of outstanding football attractions. Saturday afternoon, some 20 miles away, Duke will play host to Georgia Tech and many fans are counting on coming here to see the Wake county classic that night.

Although the underdog, State's spirits are high. The team returned from its great game against the University of Alabama to be met by an enthusiastic turnout of students and the college band that staged a midnight pep meeting in honor of the embattled Wolfpack.

Coach Newton said that, barring accidents, only one player will be out of the Wake game. He is Fred Gardner, regular left end who added a knee injury to his already lame shoulder.

Hitler and Il Duce Bring Headaches To World's Map Makers

Chicago (AP)—Map makers complain of the "Hitler headache."

They revised their maps and globes when Italy conquered Ethiopia. They revised them again when Hitler annexed Austria. Now comes the Sudetenland changes in Czechoslovakia and the map makers are jittery as to "what's next."

Map makers of two Chicago companies and a children's encyclopedia say all these changes are heightening interest in geography and will help business in about two years or so. Meanwhile the cartographers are not sure where to draw their lines and customers hesitate to place new orders.

Officials of one company said the European changes mean revising plates for more than 1,000 of their maps and atlases.

SWITCHES UNCOVERED

Wichita, Kas. (AP)—Razing the old Lincoln school building, workmen discovered a bundle of thirty-five switches hidden under a stairway that had been walled in when an addition was constructed 32 years ago. Miss Hazel Watkins, the principal, said they were relics of the day when "lickin' and larnin'" went together.

TO FILM GRID GAMES

Norman, Okla. (AP)—The University of Oklahoma football team will find itself in the movies this fall. University officials have made arrangements to have movies taken of each game; and the pictures will be shown in 34 Oklahoma cities and towns. They will have sound accompaniment.

The Wake Forest - N. C. State game is the State Fair Week game. It will be played in Raleigh Saturday night and the kickoff will be at 8 o'clock.

THE vast Buick factory is a grand place to visit, these days.

Down the roaring aisles, throughout the sprawling bays there's a sense of great things happening.

They're building something ultra, here at Buick, and they know it.

It looks like five years from now, they'll say of this dazzling 1939 Buick, and they're not talking of appearance only.

They're talking of "catwalk-cooling" that floods air under forced draft to ease the temperature of your engine.

They're talking of BuicOil springing and the soft shock-smothering spirals that give you the true "full float" ride.

They're talking of that Dynafash great eight engine, instant with life and wringing good from every drop of fuel.

They're talking of weight-balance and gravity-center that hold you to your line—of wheels that camber to let you take the curves more safely—of new visibility—up to 413 square inches more glass in SPECIAL and CENTURY models.

They're talking a thousand and one details of Buick that you'll never know nor need to know but that to their schooled eyes spell a better built automobile. And they're thinking of now as they talk.

For they know that no car sells spectacularly when it's merely up-to-date. They know that for big years a car has to be ahead—that a car which looks like the future means better times for today.

You can see this car they're talking of at the nearest Buick showroom.

When you do see it, think of what the men who built it are saying, not boastfully, but with quiet sureness.

They know. And they're saying "Looks fine for '39!"

WE NEED MORE DIRECT TAXATION

If all taxes were direct taxes in this country, it's a safe forecast that we'd have real tax reform and efficient government in a hurry.

For if that were the case, every one of us, on the average, would have to turn over 20 to 25 per cent of his salary and other income to the tax collector every pay day. And that is based on the present system of government finance, where but part of the cost of government is paid as we go, and the balance is charged against the future in the form of interest-bearing bonds, treasury notes and other commitments.

Whoever first thought of indirect taxation — that is, hidden taxes, levied against all the necessities and luxuries of life at the point of manufacture, production and distribution — was the best friend wasteful government ever had.

There's a movement on foot to broaden the tax base, and collect more government revenue through direct taxation. It deserves support because this seems to be the only way that every citizen can be awakened to his tremendous personal interest in the taxing problem.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Oct. 21.—Speaking strictly of the "grandstand" attractions and not of the Midway shows, your correspondent can recommend the State Fair's entertainment as well above par for any course. Several hundred newspapermen, state officials and employees of the Fair saw the big preview Monday night, and comment heard after the performance was unanimously favorable.

Poor Bob Thompson. Governor's secretary, is still struggling manfully with the task of getting out a Democratic handbook for the fall campaign. Through a direct appeal to the Mrs., he has finally secured a picture of Lon Fulger, Fifth District Congressional candidate; but he still doesn't know what to do about the Eighth.

It's quite a question which has the prettiest flowers in his office—Governor Clyde R. Hoey or Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott. Both these officials are frequent recipients of big, beautiful bouquets.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters
Kathleen Gregory: peppery red-haired member of the Gregory clan, goes West incognito to secure a right-of-way for The Golden Girl mine.
Donald MacDonald: owner of the rival Stubborn Boy mine, hates the Gregorlys.
Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday Donald tells Kathleen that until he saw her washing windows he thought she was the spoiled Golden Girl.

Chapter 12
'Can This Be Love?'
"YOU'LL admit the MacDonalds have done a better job than the Gregorlys when you see our holdings," said Donald. "You've had a chance to look over the Gregory shack."
 "I thought them most picturesque," interposed Kathleen, innocently.
 "Picturesque!" exploded MacDonald. "They're plenty picturesque in a rain storm with miners' wives using every kettle they possess under the leaks; or in a snow storm when the roof caves in on some poor devil down with pneumonia from living in a damp house. Those places haven't been repaired since they were built, sixty years ago."

Kathleen had one dimple other men had found ravishing. It was very much in evidence as she smiled up at MacDonald. "I noticed how you look at your cottages looked," she murmured sweetly. "You mean—" For a moment it looked as though the man who had so recently replaced cats like those of the Gregorlys, with modern structures, would burst. Then he laughed.

"Will you tell me why you pull something like that just as I begin to like you?"
 Kathleen's brows were brown scimitars of ennuï as she answered. "It's just possible that I don't give a continental damn whether you do or don't, like me."
 And then she gasped. MacDonald's arms had shot out to grip her shoulders. Furiously she fought until the turban slid down over one eye.

"Get this," he stormed and shook her in rhythm to his words. "You're going to like me before you leave here. You're going to like me and like liking me! Understand?"
 Released, Kathleen grabbed for the turban with one hand, the other swinging in an arc that ended flat against MacDonald's face. "Like this!" she exclaimed.

"Can this be love?" caroled Bridget from the doorway.
 MacDonald, hand to his cheek, turned then hurried to help Bridget with the tray she carried. "Miss Donahue," he begged, "have you ever known anyone as consistently caressed as this friend of yours?"
 Bridget giggled. "No, but I'm getting acquainted with him, rapidly," she confessed.

Kathleen remained silent. She feared if she opened her lips for more than the rim of the coffee cup, she would say what she thought, and that would be fatal to her plan of vengeance.
 All consideration for the clan had left her. The only reason she would bargain for right-of-way was to bring this man to time. This desire burned so deeply it warmed her cheeks, her lips and eyes and eventually melted the wrath which had congealed her power of speech.

Bridget, watching her, was amazed. Never had Kathleen been as delightful, scintillating, gay and altogether adorable. She felt a little sorry for MacDonald who accepted this play of charm as the triumph due him. This handsome, fine young Scot was riding for a fall.

A Letter
 "I'll have to hand you the laurels," she told Kathleen when Young Donald had left. "But I didn't enjoy it. It was like watching an innocent lamb led to the slaughter."
 Kathleen started pounding on the huge oak table. "Some day," she fumed, "I'm going to pound on him just like this."

It took the girls the entire week to settle. Kit-Smyth sent Joey up every day and under the Ute boy's carefully enunciated directions and the surprising strength in his slender arms, the big house took on a semblance of comfort.
 The living room which contrarily opened onto the cabin kitchen because, explained Joey, "Old Angus desire to perceive with the ear what goes on in the MacDonald house," was made the focal point.

But it was to their respective bedrooms the girls gravitated for actual living.
 Bridget indulged in a bolt of scarlet cheesecloth and a few yards of scarlet oilcloth. Out of this she evolved drapes, mantle and stand covers, and spread; added cushions of blue and yellow and green; stacked books in gay bindings, then called Kathleen in to view the result.
 "It's a happy looking room," exclaimed the Gregory girl. "Even

A PIECE OF PAPER flutters from the hand of England's lean Premier Neville Chamberlain, who was given a conquering hero's welcome by Britons on his return from the Munich conference. Arriving at Heston airport, the premier waved aloft the agreement he and Adolf Hitler signed, pledging that their two nations had no desire ever to war against each other.

the typewriter, pulled up before the window there, looks ready for action."
 Bridget smiled. "I've talked about writing so much, I'm going to have to carry on the pretense. Expect to find me at the table before the window every morning, tapping the keys."
 Kathleen departed immediately for the Gregory general store, intending to buy drapes, cushions and other accessories, suitable for a Gregory boudoir. The limited stock defeated her and she returned staggering under bundles filled with materials she would never have deigned to notice a month ago.

Nor would she let Bridget do more than advise, and help her solve the deep mystery of the ancient sewing machine.
 Hour after hour she labored, converting the figured yellow calico into casement curtains; the kapok into cushions covered with slips of rust, green and dusky rose. Saturday morning she called Bridget in to view the result.
 "There," she pointed to the heavy library table which had been carried before the windows with their astonishing view of painted cliffs, "you may expect to find me sitting every morning, twiddling my thumbs. I can't even write letters. My only talent is temper."

She did write one letter that day. It was to her father in answer to one relayed through Bridget's uncle, and it was brief.
 Yes, we are settled. Yes, I have met MacDonald. Yes, he is insufferable. Yes, I am making some headway. No, I am not proud of our holdings. I am glad no one knows I am a Gregory.
 Yes, I am feeling fine.
 And Dad, when you see Aunt Bee will you tell her that Rome wasn't built in a week and the Caesar family didn't have any damned MacDonalds to contend with.

Kathleen
 They attended the Gregory church the following morning. Old Balmly sat several rows ahead of the girls, the sun, filtering rays through the high narrow windows rested upon his white hair.
Tell Me!
 SHE was unaware of the sun resting on her hair also. Forewarned that the mine women didn't wear hats to church, she had gone as one of them and did not notice their admiring glances.
 Accustomed to deference, she saw nothing unusual in the attitude of the congregation as the members gathered around her at the conclusion of the service. She only knew she felt a simultaneous liking for the people, a somber people with a hint of sadness behind their quiet eyes.

They walked homeward with Old Balmly, nodding to MacDonald who was walking home with his housekeeper, a portly woman.
 Kathleen conceded to Bridget that he did look nice in tailored blues. She attributed her feeling of intense excitement at the sight of him to a desire to quarrel.
 "I'm sorry you won't have tea with us," he told them as they reached home, each traversing their respective sides of the road.
 "However, I'd forego the pleasure just to have you spend the time with Balmly. I couldn't prescribe anything better for your disposition, Miss Riley."

"Terribly unfortunate he's a Gregory so you can't leave your own disposition. Mr. MacDonald," she retorted.
 At five minutes of four the two girls walked up the path to Balmly's cot, the old shepherd dog ambled beside them.
 Balmly led them through to a stone terrace at the rear. Protected from the north and east by the walls of the cottage, and shaded by a gnarled old apple tree, now a cloud of russet leaves, it provided a cozy retreat.
 Here a rustic table had been spread with a white cloth and set for three. Tiny blue-banded crocks filled with butter and wild blackberry jam, flanked the thick yellow cups and saucers.

The talk was general until Kathleen asked impulsively, "Who is the lovely lady in the large photograph at the Gregory house? His wife? Tell us about her."
 "Tell you... you mean you don't?" Balmly seemed startled out of his usual poise. "Of course," he murmured, "I forget I am an old man and few here knew her. She was the second Mrs. MacGregor."
 "MacGregor?" echoed Kathleen and Bridget in unison.
 Balmly smiled. "Aye, until Angus would have none of the MacDonalds, even a name that began as theirs, the Gregorlys were MacGregors."

"But I thought the two men lived alone at the time of the feud," offered Bridget.
 "Aye, they did. And Angus had changed his name before he married, but it's always MacGregor to me."
 Kathleen had been leaning forward, brown eyes round with wonder. "Do you know how the feud started?" she asked.
 "Aye," he responded briefly. "Tell me, please," she begged.

not serve the cause of peace merely by creating the pressure of public opinion. It gave wings to the negotiators. Airliners had not been so perfected in 1914 that a prime minister could step into one and be whisked into the presence of a chancellor safely and in a matter of hours. Long distance telephone communication had not been so perfected that a Mussolini could call a Hitler in a matter of moments; talk with him as easily as if he were in the same room and agree upon a pause and a procedure.

The Big Four
 Perfected cable transmission expedited data from ambassadors and ministers to their home governments and facilitated quick communication between the leaders of interested governments.
 The loud speaker, the vacuum tube, the gas engine and wirephoto were as much the big four of Munich as Chamberlain, Hitler, Mussolini and Daladier.

Washington Daybook

Washington — Pressure from New Deal and conservative sources alike is bearing down already to force Congress to act this coming session on one of the toughest dishes on its bill of fare—legislation eliminating tax exemption from salaries and securities of state and federal governments.
 By a long series of decisions beginning with Chief Justice John Marshall, the supreme court has held that the federal government can tax its own employees and securities but can't tax those of the states. In turn, the states cannot tax those of the federal government. The result has been a huge no-man's land in which billions in capital has hidden from the tax gatherer.

Supporters of such exemptions argue that with the power to tax state securities and salaries, the federal government could hamstring the states by discriminatory taxes and so destroy the dual state-federal system of government. Answering argument is that members of Congress, who enact tax legislation, never would permit destruction of their own state governments.

Previous Attempts Failed
 Repeated efforts to break down this barrier by simple legislation have failed. In 1913 the constitution was amended to permit the federal government to tax income "from whatever source derived."
 To many lawyers, including President Roosevelt, that language is broad enough to permit federal taxes on any sort of income, including state salaries and interest on state bonds. But when the inevitable test case arose three years later the court took a different view.

The court went back to the congressional debates on the amendment and decided that congress intended only to nullify an old constitutional requirement that federal taxes should be levied upon the states according to population. That old provision had barred income taxes because they are always largest in the big business states, such as New York.
 The court held that the amendment was not designed to reach payroll, do not pay federal taxes. Various sources indicate approximately 60 billion of public securities, paying interest of two billion or more yearly, are exempt in part from federal or state levies. The bulk is in the hands of private corporations or individuals.

 A still fight is ahead. Legislation ending such exemptions not only subjects a congressman's salary to state taxes but brings upon his neck the myriads of federal employees who don't want to pay state taxes, and state employees who don't want to pay federal. Big and little investors in tax exempt securities will be there too.
 Imagine a menace like that coming up in an election year.

An Unplucked Tax Melon
 Because of the decision a vast field of income now is taxed not at all or only by one government division.
 Senator Byrd of Virginia, conservative though he is, began the drive in 1937 to break down the tax doors and the President put his weight behind it last session.
 Byrd declares an amendment is necessary but the President seems to think the present court might reverse the old decision. In that case a simple act of Congress would accomplish the trick.
 As it stands now, 37 billion dollars of federal securities, paying approximately a billion a year in interest, is exempt from state taxes. (Most of this debt is not taxed by the federal government either, but a simple act of congress can change that.)
 In addition, it is shown by figures from official sources quoted by Senator Byrd, 600,000 federal employees drawing $1,500,000,000 in salary are exempt from state taxes while 4,000,000 state and local officials, with their six billion dollars

FEAR LOSS OF SHERIFF'S ACT

Lack of Information on Four-Year Term Amendment

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—Success of the Constitutional amendment extending sheriffs' and coroners' terms to four years is being greatly imperiled by the difficulty of getting complete and accurate information to the public, State Senator John D. Larkins, heading the campaign, said today.
 "We are doing our very best to get full information about this matter to the voters," he said, "but we haven't the money to hire workers in every county and precinct, and it is proving a tremendous job to get correct information into every section of the state."
 He cited two instances within the last week in which two daily newspapers have carried editorials in which facts concerning the campaign were completely misstated.
 One of the papers, anxious to help the movement for four year terms, expressed the hope that "the next legislature" would submit the question to the voters. Of course Senator Larkins pointed out, this was an entirely honest mistake. But he emphasized, the 1937 Legislature approved the amendment by vote of more than 60 per cent of the membership in each House and it is now up to the people for a vote at next month's General Election.

The other paper, he said, intimated that the State Administration had taken no stand on the question and, also, that elections under the four-year plan would be held in gubernatorial and presidential years.
 Both these statements, he pointed out, are incorrect. Governor Hoey has spoken unqualifiedly in favor of the amendment and the Attorney General has ruled that future sheriff's elections will be held in "off years" (1942-46 etc.) in the event the amendment is favorably voted upon by the people.

PLANTS GET AROUND
 Boone, Ia. (AP)—Boone residents are wondering where next they should look for plants. They found some growing through a brick wall and crawling across the ceiling. Then they found a weed patch in a cornice crack on top of the city hall.

John VonGlahn, N. C. State's business manager of athletics, can date his football competition with Wake Forest back to 1908, when this Saturday's foes first met.

What It Means: Diplomacy in the Open

By MILO THOMPSON
 (Chief of the Washington Bureau, Associated Press)

Washington — A feeling is growing in Washington circles that it was not primarily four men at Munich, or a British prime minister rushing by air to the doorstep of Hitler or agents by neutrals for peace under the leadership of President Roosevelt, that averted war.

It was just as much, or more, the development which made all these things possible: modern communications and journalism, and back of that the inventive genius which made this efficiency possible.

The increased availability of improved communication facilities is the chief difference between 1914, when war was not averted, and 1938 when, under similar circumstances, it was. Never before this time were diplomatic gestures so instantly known, arguments so speedily disseminated and covenants so openly arrived at.

Bismarck Worked in Secret
 The difference is even more striking when one compares the events of 1938 with the times when Germany's Iron Chancellor Bismarck, by diplomatic methods de-ing spied by a single searchlight crew of fired upon.

The mystery of the fate of the first night smokescreen in military history was cleared up today with a report from the attack commander at Langley field, indicating a screen was laid by the attack squadron over Fort Bragg to the south of the defense zone at an altitude of about 500 feet.

The attackers were unable to place the screen effectively, the report said, because trial smoke pots and flares to gauge wind were with held due to danger of grass and brush fires.

It mattered little, however, because the bombers were too high to be spotted by the searchlights.

Tonight the outer ring of searchlights around Fort Bragg will be moved farther out into the country to test their effectiveness in eliminating attacking planes for defense formations acting as interceptors.

One of the major air defense measures, the "blackout," is scheduled tomorrow night in what officers here have termed its greatest test in the United States.

The AAA estimated the October supply of stemming grades of cigar leaf tobacco, used primarily in the manufacture of chewing tobacco would be slightly smaller than for the same 1937 month.

William Wolins, tobacco section chief, said reports of an excessive supply because of conditions in Connecticut were without foundation.

The AAA estimated the October stemming supply at 84,457,000 pounds compared with 97,322,000 in October, 1937.

AAA officials said they are seeking means of disposing of about 15,000,000 pounds of the 1934 dark fired tobacco crop without interfering with marketing of this year's crop.

A recommendation that the AAA subsidize the division of surplus tobacco into by-product use was made by Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia growers at conferences here this week. About 18,000,000 pounds of the 1934 crop, AAA officials said, Orderly disposal of the 1934 surplus, the growers told the AAA, would allow the market to absorb other holdings of co-operative associations.

The growers also proposed the AAA continue and possible broaden existing price stabilization program for fire cured tobacco.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—In this land of silk and money you get accustomed to thinking most big movie people are millionaires. At least, you think, half-million.

They have a firm grip on their first. So we all laughed, a little more than a year ago, when Tay Garnett sat down at the piano and twiddled off a tune about a serious round-the-world movie expedition in his yawl Athene.

"Going to work, eh?" we all laughed. "Yeh, work," said Tay. "Heh, heh," chuckled. "Work. That's a good one. But will you please say that with a twinkle in your eye, like the song?"

Tay obligingly twinkled. He usually does, anyway, being the son of one William Muldrough and slightly Irish. So we land-bound oafs stood on the docks and watched the slick Athene cleave a clean path toward the open sea.

Well, Tay came back, and it seems that he did work. He's keeping it up over at Walter Wanger's place now, whipping up a piece of celluloid called "Trade Winds."

He has Fredric March, Joan Bennett, Ralph Bellamy, Ann Sothern and Robert Elliott acting out and filling in a story that Tay photographed on his trip.

It was just a "pleasure cruise," but— "I gambled practically everything I owned to make it. Went in took and came back broke with a bill for back income tax waiting for me," Tay grinned today. "That boat had a complete film laboratory on board—and you don't fix one of those up with peanuts. The trip, all told, set me back about $170,000—but I think it's going to be worth it."

He brought back about 60,000 feet of film, exposed in various parts of the world—and every foot of it," he said, "is going to be useful in this picture or in the next one I make. That's to be 'World Cruise' and I've got the story for that one, too."

Garnett set out with a fairly complete shooting script of "Trade Winds"—he's the author—to go by. He shot backgrounds that he would need for his story of a San Francisco girl accused of murder and pursued through the Orient by a heel of a detective. He wrote that kind of story—mostly a "chase"—for a definite reason.

Like all directors, Tay Garnett wants to be his own producer. It's tough for a director to get backing for his independent production efforts. The money-lenders lend to those who HAVE produced, not to those who'd like to. So Tay's passport—his hopes—will be "Trade Winds" done for Wanger.

"There's been a great deal of process photography used in pictures," Tay explains, "but I don't believe its full possibilities have been realized. I'm hoping that 'Trade Winds'—utilizing some of those backgrounds we got on the trip—will demonstrate something new in the field. If it does, then I think I'll be set to make 'World Cruise' on my own."

Process photography—which really "brings the world" to serve as a Hollywood stage—is a subject most movie producers avoid discussing. Garnett's idea is to use "process" so convincingly that the fans, even if they know how it's done, will only applaud the more. "So you all thought the trip was just for fun, huh?" he laughed. "Well, I ran out of marbles in Eretria and I had to stop there long enough to pick up some more—to get the boat back home! Oh, I've retrieved now—but that pleasure cruise was the biggest gamble I've ever made."

en states, The allocations for the period from October 1 to December 31 included: North Carolina, blind, $34,748; Virginia, aged, $177,964; blind, $13,785; children, $26,937.

Denounces Lindy

Vasily Motokoff (above), civil aviation chief of Soviet Russia, joined 10 soviet air heroes in calling Col. Charles A. Lindbergh a "stupid liar, a lachry, and a flatterer of German fascists" and accused him of spreading "lies" about Russia's air strength after his visit to Moscow last August.

mission, Governor Hoye and the Southern Bell company. Even after a reduction on "long haul" intra-state long distance messages last August 19, the report said, the rates for that class of service in North Carolina "were still considerably higher than the rates charged by the same company in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana."

"This difference in rates in North Carolina," Falk commented, "means that the people of this state are paying from 10 to 22 per cent more for their intra-state long distance telephone calls than the other states served by the Southern Bell company."

Falk said he had been unable to find any justification for the "excessive" rate.

Fulfillment of the scheme would mean cutting off vitally needed defense munitions. Far in the interior the Japanese intensified their smashing drive against Hankow from the north and west, and were reported to have cut off the northern railway communication on with Hankow with a point by capturing a point 100 miles north of the capital.

Tokyo, Oct. 12—(AP)—A Japanese foreign office statement today said the Japanese would "respect vested foreign interests" in a new south China offensive, believed to be aimed at Canton.

The United States, British, French German and Italian embassies were notified informally of the latest Japanese moves, although the war office here maintained silence about the area where an attack is to be launched.

The Sty, Cumberland, is among England's wettest spots. More than 247 inches of rain fell there in one year.

PARDONS DENIED

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 12—(AP)—Freedom pleas of three "Scottsboro" case Negro convicts received an unanimous rebuff late yesterday by the Alabama board of pardons.
