COMPROMISE IN WAGE DISPUTE IS PREDICTED

Recommendations In Rail Wrangle Due By Oct. 27th

WALTER P. STACY BODY CHAIRMAN

Statement by N. C. Chief Justice Compares Dispute With Prices Paid for Eggs

Washington, Oct. 18. (AP) — Persons close to President Roosevelt's fact-finding board predicted today it would recommend a compromise adjustment of the proposed 15 per cent rail wage cut.

The board, appointed by the President in an effort to avert a threatened strike in the railroad industry, began work on a report which must be completed by October 27.

Board Chairman Walter P. Stacy, Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, closed three weeks of hearing yesterday with a statement in which he compared the wage dispute with the price producers receive for eggs.

It is well, he said, for the producer to obtain the highest possible prices for his eggs, but if his chickens become sick he is forced to devote some of his efforts to helping the chickens regain their health.

Some hearers inferred that Judge Stacy was comparing the price of eggs to the price of rail labor and the sick chickens to railroads in financial straits.

Representatives of the rail brotherhood declared another statement by the chairman indicated the board would consider the workers' contentions that rail wages should not be based entirely on "ability to pay," but on humanitarian and economic factors as well.

Declare Skeleton Not that of M'Coin

Hagerstown, Md., Police State Definitely Skull Does Not Compare With Dental X-Ray

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—(AP)—Police said today the skeleton found near Martinsburg, West Va., was "positively not" that of Rufus S. McCoin, former North Carolina state senator, who disappeared in 1932.

"We examined the skull and compared it with a dental X-ray of McCoin's which was taken three months before he disappeared," said Capt. Carl McCleary. "We found the X-ray did not agree with the teeth arrangements of the skull. It is positively not the man we want."

Dr. M. H. Cohen, Hagerstown, dentist, accompanied the police to the cemetery, where the skeleton was disinterred.

Their luck included 77 gray trout 28 sea mullets, one five pound flounder, and a mixed variety of spots, hog fish, sand perch, croakers, sail fish. One member of the fishing party declared, "We would like for our friends to know that this story does not originate in Kingston."

SHARK FISHING POPULAR OFF WEST COAST

San Francisco, AP.—The despised shark has come into his own as a commercial fish as the result of discovery that shark liver oil is valuable for its vitamin A, particularly to poultry.

Thirty-five boats have been licensed to fish for sharks with lines in San Francisco bay, and some sardine fishermen on the coast have turned to the shark business.

Negotiations Expected To be Renewed Immediately

Prague, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak press today forecast immediate resumption, possibly today of Slovak-Hungarian negotiations for settlement of Hungary's territorial claims.

The government has imposed martial law in districts near the Hungarian frontier, speeded work today on another program, freeing communications tied up through loss to Germany of railroad, telephone and telegraph lines connecting some sections of the republic.

In Budapest thousands of University students demonstrated, demanding arms to Europe Hungary's territorial demands on Czechoslovakia.

The demonstrators asked "everything back" from the republic created out of the pre-war Austro-Hungarian Empire.

It was understood that Hungary would insist on return of Bratislava, at the junction of the Czechoslovak-Hungarian and German-Austrian borders, and the cession of about 5,000 square miles which of predominantly Hungarian population.

Japanese Column Driving Toward Strategic Forts

Capture of Barricades Would Deal Sharp Blow to Defense of Canton; Chinese Resistance Declared to be Weak

Hongkong, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A strong Japanese column drove southeast today across flat terrain toward the Bocca Tigris forts, the capture of which would deal a sharp blow to the defense of Canton, whose water approaches they guard.

If the invaders can eliminate those fortifications they will enable warships to fight a way into the South China metropolis.

A vicious land attack on the stronghold appeared imminent as the columns pushed on after capturing Cheungmuktai, midway between Hongkong and Canton on the vital Canton-Kowloon railway.

With an estimated 3,000 miles of Kwangtung province captured in less than a week, the Japanese intensified efforts to reach Tsengsing, 50 miles northeast of Canton on the Wichchow-Canton railway.

In Canton detachments of Chinese troops arrived from neighboring Kwang province to aid in the defense of the city.

Military observers were convinced the Chinese resistance was not strong, but admitted the possibility that an effective defense still might be organized.

In Washington, it was said, that Japan's advance into South China is threatening extensive American trade and investments.

Federal officials are prepared to assert American rights to equal opportunity for trade, residents and missionary activity.

American exports sent to the British port of Hongkong, almost all for forwarding to South China, have more than tripled in the last year and a half.

ASK FOR TIME TO MAP PLANS

Board Seeks Extension to Nov. 21 for Revisions

The Greenville Board of Aldermen, in session at 11:30 today, went on record as requesting an extension of time from October 17 to November 21, relative to revisions in plans for federal building projects here.

Today's resolution was adopted for the purpose of redrafting plans and specifications for the projects, and providing sufficient time in which to advertise and award contracts.

An application had previously been filed with the Public Works Administration asking for a time extension to November 7. A recent decision to change the building arrangement made necessary another extension of time in order to draw up new plans to submit to the P. W. A.

Frank W. Benton, architect in charge, at present is confining his activities to drawing up new plans for each of the projects. Due to the change in plans, the contracts will not be let together as had been previously planned, but will be let individually.

Present indications are that the revised plans for the fire station and practice tower will be completed by October 26. This will likely be the first project for which a contract will be let. Plans for the street department division and those for the municipal building are expected to be completed about the same time. A contract for the street department unit is expected to be the second that will be let.

A water color conception of the municipal building has been painted by Architect Benton and the drawing is on display in the office of Mayor M. K. Blount at the city hall. Mayor Blount said that all citizens are welcome to view the drawing at any time.

German Reserves Now on Way Home

Berlin, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The foreign office spokesman said today Germany's army reserve, marshaled by the hundreds of thousands six weeks before the Czechoslovak crisis brought Europe to the verge of war, now were being dismissed daily.

This Germany moved gradually to reduce the more than 1,000,000 men she was estimated to have had under arms in the tense days before the four-power Munich agreement September 30 to dismember Czechoslovakia.

The spokesman declared that no exact figures on the number of reserves would be made public by the war ministry and that the term "demobilization" would not be used since Germany never officially mobilized.

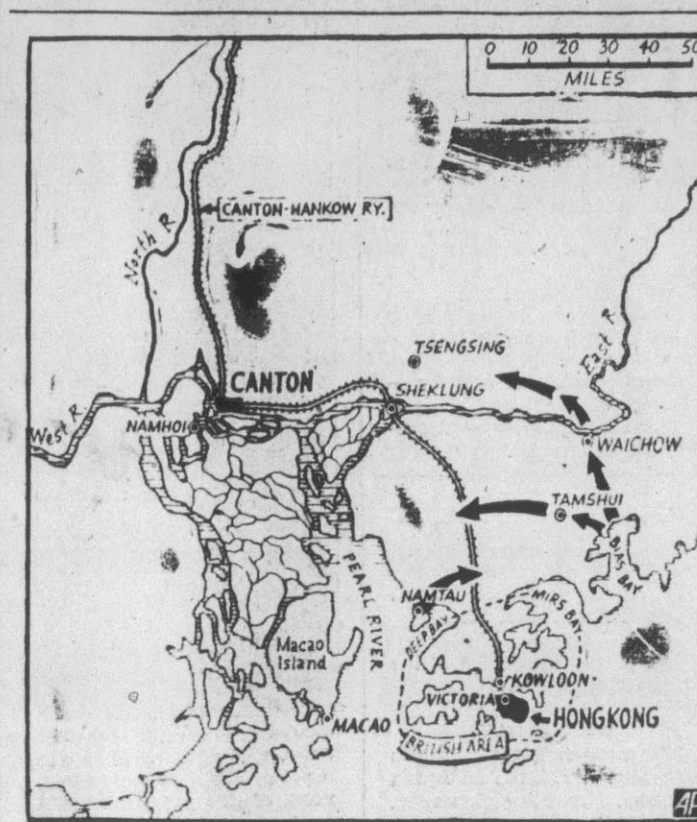

Increase Sought In Highway Funds

Raleigh, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Highway and Public Works Commission asked the Advisory Budget Commission to recommend that the 1939 legislature appropriate $2,000,000 yearly in a new fund for the 1939-41 biennium to standardize obsolete highways.

The highway request for 1939-40 was $30,254,814 and for 1940-41 it was $30,675,728, both representing substantial increases over appropriations for the current biennium.

Directly for state highway maintenance $4,000,000 was requested for the first year and $4,200,000 for the second, compared with $3,500,000 yearly.

JAPS ADVANCE IN SOUTH CHINA

The lower arrows on this map show the approximate place at which the invading Japanese cut the Canton-Kowloon railway, vital link between Canton and Hongkong. The three top arrows indicate the course of the Japanese drive from Bias bay through Waichow and up the railway toward Canton. Throughout the war the Chinese have used the railway to carry food, munitions and medical supplies for the defense of Hankow. Severe fighting was reported 40 miles east of Canton, with the Chinese making desperate resistance.

Star Spy Case Witness Takes Stand In Hearing

Relates that Germany Interested in U. S. Rearmament

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—The government's star spy case witness, Guenther Gustav Rummrich, army deserter who turned secret agent, told Judge John Knox and a federal court jury today that Nazi Germany's interest shifted from American military secrets late in 1937 to industrial information.

He was so informed by two of the agents with whom he had contacts, Rummrich testified.

One of those, he said, he knew only as "Wiegand" and the other was "Schmidt."

"Schmidt," later asked him if he knew the new orders, he said.

"He said this change of orders was due to an agreement between someone in Washington and someone in Berlin," explained Rummrich, who pleaded guilty at the start of his trial, leaving three co-defendants, Erich Glaser, Otto Voss and Jehanna Hoffmann, to face trial alone.

"He did not say who these parties were, but said it was a shame the order had been put in effect," Rummrich said.

"Schmidt asked me if I knew anyone employed in either the Bethlehem steel plant or the DuPont plant. I said 'no' but I would do my best to get in contact with someone."

"He said some of the letters in his possession were for someone in Brooklyn and that this party in Brooklyn was getting $2,000 for certain plans he or she had provided."

Rummrich said he was skeptical since he had been receiving only $40 or $50 himself.

DOUBLE GUARD IN JERUSALEM AFTER ATTACK

British Troops Seek To Protect Modern Areas

OLD SECTIONS OF CITY BOMBARDED

Punitive Offensive By Full Strength of British Troops to be Conducted

Jerusalem, Oct. 18.—(AP)—British troops doubled guard strengths today, lest Arab rebels attack the modern districts of Jerusalem after a night of terrorist bombings in the old sections of the city.

Columns of British armored cars and truck loads of police patrolled streets outside the old city's walls. The new city, grown up since 1858, lies chiefly to the northwest of the ancient citadel.

The situation in the old city became so critical shortly before midnight yesterday that authorities had to rush military and police reinforcements to protect the Jewish and Armenian quarters which were understood to be the only part of the old city under complete government control.

Other troops guarded every approach to the city.

Outlying garrisoned towns preliminary to a punitive offensive by the full strength of 20,000 British troops and police to crush the estimated 10,000 Arab forces. They protest Jewish immigration sponsored by Britain under her League of Nations mandate to govern Palestine.

Some observers say news of the whole Near East at stake in the punitive campaign against the Arabs.

EXPECT CROWD AT EXPOSITION

School Children To Have Big Day on Wednesday

Farmville residents had full sway at the Pitt county fair today as the second day of the exposition attracted good crowds.

The attendance was small last night and last minute arrangements were made for everything to be in readiness for a big day and night.

Tomorrow will be school day and all children will be admitted into the grounds free of charge until 6 o'clock. The rides will put on special matinee prices in order to let the young folks get as much as possible.

The farm and home exhibits this year exceed those at any previous fair here both in quantity and quality. Displays came in so fast toward the deadline that officials had to make special arrangements to take care of them.

The shows, rides, etc., were in full swing today and a large crowd is looked for tonight.

Following observance of "Farmville Day" today and "School Day" tomorrow, "Farmers' Day" will be observed Thursday, when W. Kerr Scott, State Commissioner of Agriculture, will be the guest of honor and address the crowd.

Greenville will have its special day on Friday, to be followed by thrill day on Saturday.

These meetings are being held in strategic points over the entire country and it is a distinct advantage to local Buick Owners for this school to be held here. Mr. W. M. Reed, Parts and Service Manager for the entire South, and his assistants, J. B. Crouch, Don W. Smith, and J. C. Thompson, will lecture the service men thereby giving direct knowledge and factory training to them.

PHOTO MEMO

Are You Rearing A Fascist?

By Lydia Gray Shaw

ALL Johnny wants to do is to watch the baby, but mother pushes him away and says "Don't." She's always telling him "Don't!" She's the type of parent who rears fascists, says the Yale University Institute of Human Relations.

The more authoritarianism in the home, the greater the danger of bringing up children who don't know how to act without that iron hand control. They're an easy prey to dictatorship if they are brought up on it. More self-government in the home, admonishes the Institute, would avert this danger. Some rules are necessary. These should be positive, not negative in form. If they are occasionally broken—well, even the best child slips.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coom

Hollywood — One smart girl grows up.

On the evening of December 4th there'll be a birthday party at Andre de Seguro's house. The guest of honor, who is Seguro's star voice pupil, will be celebrating 16 years of life, the last three spent in the glaring light that falls on a real movie celebrity.

Deanna Durbin will wear her hair "up" for the occasion—but she will not be escorted by a "boy friend." So all the mamas of growing girls can breathe easily again.

What Shirley Temple is to the nine-year-olds, Deanna is to the adolescent girls. What Deanna does on the screen—and in her private life too—is extremely important. If Deanna starts "dating" or acquires a "steady" I'm sure it will be an advent as cataclysmic as the first occasion on which Shirley Temple got wise to spinach. The mothers of America will deplore... AND write in.

This is no idle gossip. Mothers of America already have written in, and they will do so again. To Deanna, to Deanna's mama, to Joseph Pasternak, Deanna's producer, letters rushed in perishing—the thought that Deanna might be allowed a screen boy friend in "That Certain Age."

Right now, on the threshold of the sweetest possible 16, Deanna is a young lady of quiet pose and assurance which makes a natural shyness; she is given to deliberate, serious answers to some of your casual questions—and again, with a laugh that is half smile, half giggle, she'll chatter away for all of two minutes at a stretch. She did this about putting her hair "up" for the first time, and she repeated on the matter of the "boy friend."

"Oh, I can't," she said. "There are so many people who object—and then there are SOME newspaper critics," she added with just the ghost of a pout, "who always look for a chance to write up things like that. I went with Jackie Cooper to the 'Tom Sawyer' preview—my mother and father and his mother and father went with us—and the next day someone wrote that Jackie and I were seen together at some cheap night club and how awful it was!"

"But were you?" the prosecution demanded sternly.

"Oh, NO-O-O-O!" Deanna's blue eyes widened. "I've never been in a night club—except to sing when the radio used to send me. And oh, yes—I saw some in New York but that was because Mr. Pasternak told me to. So I'd know" what they were like, because in the picture I had to go in one."

"No, really, I can't do anything—but I MANAGE," she brightened. "Manage?"

"I mean I have a good time—at home, with friends or just by myself, I have a good time."

Deanna's ultimate ambition is to sing in opera. She hasn't had time to study for it, however.

Her next picture is "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." One striking evidence that Deanna is growing up is her fingernails. She doesn't bite them anymore.

"Oh, I made a deal," she explained, "with Mr. Koster, Mr. Henry Koster, my director. I said I'd stop biting my nails if he stopped smoking cigarettes."

PLANS EXPAND AUTO SCHOOLS

Auto Driving Courses To Be Enlarged Immediately

Raleigh, Oct. 18—The adult driving education program, operated in cooperation by the WPA and the Highway Safety Division of the State Department of Revenue, will be expanded to approximately a dozen schools just as rapidly as possible, Lieutenant T. A. Early, in charge of the schools, said today after a conference with Safety Director Ronald Hocutt.

At least two schools will be opened within the next two weeks, Lieutenant Early said, with Wilmington and Fayetteville favored as their sites.

Other cities in which driving schools are likely to be set up as soon as possible include Rocky Mount, Greenville, Salisbury, Asheville, Kinston, Greensboro and High Point.

Three schools are in active operation at present—Raleigh has its fifth class, Winston-Salem and Durham their third. One class has been graduated at Charlotte, and there is a possibility another may be organized there.

Both Director Hocutt and Lieut. Early are quite enthusiastic over success of the schools, each of which runs for 3 weeks, with two hours of instruction daily for those taking the courses. Twenty hours are devoted to class room instruction and 16 to actual operation of motor vehicles under normal traffic conditions.

So far there have been 268 graduates of the schools, each of whom, Lieut. Early declares is now entirely competent to drive under almost any traffic circumstances.

Hocutt, who has just returned from the annual conference of the National Safety Council at Chicago, said that the adult drivers education program is being stressed throughout the nation. Pennsylvania was the first to undertake such a program with North Carolina next to adopt the plan.

Brighter Prospects Seen For New Czechoslovakia

By MILO M. THOMPSON

Washington—A shrunken Czechoslovakia could live. Shorn of its natural defenses, deprived of many of its resources, reduced in size, strangely shaped, it is not necessarily foredoomed to strangulation and absorption by its neighbors.

That's the consensus of the international diagnosticians of Washington. They think the baby of Munich may, in fact, have a better chance of survival than had its predecessor, the baby of the treaty of Versailles.

They make four points:

1. It will be a more consistent nation.
2. It will have well-balanced and sufficient industries.
3. Its political integrity will be generally guaranteed.
4. Small nations are often the more prosperous nations.

There are two schools of thought about the theory of nationality. One group, to which Reichsfuehrer Hitler seems to belong, insists that a common language, a reasonably pure race and a similarity of traditions are fundamental prerequisites of consistent nationality.

Another group believes similar social standards and needs, agreement concerning what is right and what is wrong and equal love of independence and liberty can bind dissimilar peoples into an enduring nation. This group cites the United States and Canada.

More Logical Grouping

In the new Czechoslovakia, both groups see distinct improvement; the one because the predominant Czech and Slovak citizenry will have common language, similar racial background and similar traditional background; the other because it seems obviously true that Czechoslovaks and Sudeten Germans could never get together on social standards and needs or on their conception of liberty.

Both groups, therefore, conceive the new national grouping to be more logical.

Industrially, there is no blinking the fact that the new Czechoslovakia will have been given a major operation.

At first glance it appears that the peripheral upland districts in which most of the industries are located, because their power and materials derive from the hills, have been wrested away, leaving only the flat agricultural lands of inner Bohemia and Moravia.

Dictatorial powers voted Premier Edouard Daladier (above) gives him until Nov. 15 to rule by decree in an attempt to "rebuild France's economy and finances."

An Industrial Tangle

What is more, it is almost certain that industrial confusion must follow drawing the red line of new boundaries between hop fields and breweries, coal supplies and factories, clay beds and potteries.

But the question is: how great is the loss nor what immediate economic collapse may develop; it is whether a nation can survive on what remains.

The prospective boundaries of the new Czechoslovakia will not take away all the brown coal of the nation, nor all its iron ore, nor all its forests. Czechoslovakia will not have the great mills and factories of the upland, but it will have around Pilsen and Prague and elsewhere less important mills and factories which can be the nucleus of a new industrial growth.

There are chemical, wood and paper manufacturing plants, shoe factories, some textile mills, alcohol and sugar refineries and malting industries left to it, in most cases, the raw materials on which they depend. The land will still be rich in cereals, beef, sugar beets, potatoes and dairy products.

When one considers the reduced number of persons to be supported and the fact that Czechoslovakia has lost not only its Sudeten Germans but also nine-tenths of its employment problem, the situation no longer appears impossible.

A New Switzerland?

Two circumstances will contribute toward its economic survival. Whereas the Sudeten Germans, now part of the Reich, inherit the economic handicaps resulting from Germany's industrial isolation in the world, the new nation will have generally the benefits of most-favored-nation treatment for its products.

And whereas the old Czechoslovakia was at the mercy of Germany, Austria, Poland and Italy for its outlets to the markets of the world, the new nation has the promise of international guaranteed outlets. This right of egress if properly established and safeguarded, may turn out to be more valuable than the lost wealth.

The small size, queer shape and military weakness of the new Czechoslovakia are not necessarily obstacles to survival. For the new nation has opportunity to become a Switzerland of eastern Europe, its integrity safeguarded not by a group of nations, but by all of its neighbors in concert.

So there are diagnosticians here who say the weak and puling infant of central Europe has decidedly better than a fifty-fifty chance of prosperous survival if the nations have learned truly these lessons of the World War:

1. In overpowering or coercing a nation you have not erased its people.
2. In building for peace you must guarantee those people their right to live and trade.
3. Fair bargains replacing dictation should be reached between nations when one of them needs access to certain things and freedom of movement in certain areas, as in Czechoslovakia's case.

A new device has been invented for airplanes which warns pilots whenever they are approaching mountains. It is an altimeter which registers height above land.

Looking Ahead To 1940

Lehman didn't like the picture and his friends here say he bucked strenuously before giving up. For him it was mostly give and take. If successful, he rescued and preserved the power of the state organization—for what? To win, of course, but equally to make certain that Roosevelt forces would control the New York delegation to the next national convention. And Lehman may or may not have been wholeheartedly for that.

Of course Lehman will not necessarily be retired altogether from public life by the change of plans. In event of a Democratic victory in 1940 he would be almost certain of some important diplomatic post, such as ambassador to England, upon his retirement from the governorship.

One jovial Irishman was reputed to have jested to Lehman in connection with the decision to give up immediate senatorial aspirations: "Well, governor, remember the sacrifice Washington had to make at Valley Forge."

THE COMMUNITY CHEST

We have been asked whether or not the Community Chest drive would be put on again this fall, and when it would begin. We have always favored the Community Chest plan of raising the needed finances for carrying on work of the various organizations in this city and the success of the plan here last year certainly justifies its being carried out again this fall. Just when the drive will begin has not yet been announced but we are confident that the great majority of our people favor the Community Chest idea to a multiplicity of drives of various kinds and if plans are not already in the making for a Community Chest drive here this fall, the movement should get under way at once. Not only here, but throughout the state and nation, experience has proven that the Community Chest plan after all is the best way to raise funds for civic and charitable work.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

Pessimists who have doubted that the automobile accident rate can be reduced, have been happily proven wrong this year, for the rate has gone down sharply since 1937.

Apparently the public ear has finally opened to the teachings of the safety experts. States and communities have carried on more and better prevention campaigns than in the past. The insurance industry has assumed leadership in combatting the highway slaughter and has issued invaluable books to be used in schools, by individuals and by civic authorities. In some areas there has been noticeable improvement in traffic law enforcement, and the arrest and punishment of offenders. Lastly, a start has been made in various states to make accidents impossible by constructing modern highways, without intersections, and with separated lanes that prevent head-on collisions.

We have learned that safe driving is the product of safe thinking. Realistically few drivers are congenitally reckless—and the only cure for this minority is revocation of licenses. Most drivers who cause accidents are simply thoughtless and ignorant. They do not realize the chances they take until a calamity occurs, or the messages of the workers in the accident prevention field reach them and awaken them to their errors.

Now the country must fight all the harder to keep the accident rate down—good start has been made. And the interest and cooperation of everyone is needed if this good record is to be continued.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Oct. 18.—The News Office, Department of Conservation and Development, has issued a bulletin listing 34 "Coming Events in North Carolina."

Wilmington, apparently waking up from some century or more of Rip Van Winkling, is listed as the site for no less than eleven of them.

The City-by-the-Sea gets, among other outstanding events, a Regional Conference of the N. C. Commission on Interracial Cooperation tomorrow, one terminus of the Southport to Wilmington Motor Boat Marathon Race on October 23 to 30, a session of the regional division, N. C. Building and Loan League, October 25; and a joint debate between Senator Robert M. LaFollette and Congressman Hamilton Fish on November 28 at a Community Forum Lecture.

Charlotte and Raleigh follow Wilmington in number of events listed as "coming." Each has four.

Not one, but two releases from the National Convention of the Future Farmers of American and National contests for students of vocational agriculture, now current in Kansas City, Missouri, inform us that "Future Farmers of America from the State of North Carolina are being represented on the floor of the eleventh national convention here this week by Harold Francis, Waynesville and Clifton Davenport, Dover. The delegation officially represents the 9,540 members in this state."

The F. P. A. press agent apparently was taking no chances on one getting lost in the mails.

Revocation of 103 licenses last week brought to 18,951 the number of motor vehicle drivers prohibited by law from operating in North Carolina.

Driving drunk accounted for all revocations except: Hit and run, 6; driver after license revoked, 3; larceny of automobile, 1, and two offences of reckless driving, 1.

North Carolina showed only one death from tetanus in September, quite a decline from recent months of this year when such deaths were prevalent enough to bring special warning from the State Board of Health.

Suicides totaled 28, up six over September, 1937. Homicides dropped sharply from last September's 43, with only 26 reported last month.

Total births lost a bare 17 from the corresponding month last year, 6,919 to 6,936.

After several weeks of emotional excitement North Carolina grid fans can cool off a bit this week as all Big Five games look like setups. State ought to take Purman in a canter. Wake isn't a match for Duke and if Davidson pushes Carolina there ought to be a Congressional investigation of the affair.

STATE SEEKING 'UNLOAD' ROAD

Turns To Private Groups in Effort to Sell A. & N. C.

Raleigh, Oct. 18.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey has turned to private groups in his efforts to unload operation of the state-owned Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad and its ledgers splashed with red ink.

He hasn't divulged identity of the groups, beyond saying they are composed of "eastern interests" nor has he given any inkling of their propositions. It's a foregone conclusion in the minds of most observers that the Governor would be tickled pink to accept any-leave proposal backed by a group of sufficient financial strength to be held responsible for carrying out terms of the agreement.

Negotiations with these private interests also revives possibility that the Legislature will be asked at its 1935 session to give the Governor and state power to sell the Old Milet. Some months ago some private group—quite possibly one of those now in the picture—seemed sincerely interested in buying the road but backed off when it was learned from an Attorney General's ruling that the State cannot sell without specific legislative authority.

Meanwhile possibility that the Southern Railway may take over operation of the Milet hasn't altogether disappeared. In fact talks with Southern officials have been suspended only in order that the Governor may do a bit of "shopping round" to find out the best terms on which the state can get rid of its white elephant.

John B. Hyde, vice president; R. H. DeBatts, Jr., General Traffic Manager; and F. S. Collins, chairman of the committee which inspected the A and N. C., conferred with the Governor Monday. They pointed out that the road, operated by the Southern, would lose some $15,000 annually in revenue for carrying mails, while at the same time there would be an actual increase in operating expenses over the present set-up, despite all economies which might be effected. With the Old Milet already a losing venture, these facts made the picture even darker and clearly diminished any possibility of agreement with the Southern.

ETIQUETTE

ADVICE TO FIRST-DATERS

By Joan Durham
(AP Feature Service Writer)
How should a boy behave on his first date?

The answer is: Be as polite, charming and entertaining as possible.

You may make a few mistakes, of course. But don't worry too much about them and don't draw attention to them.

The chances are your girl is just as much in doubt as you are. For that reason she'll feel a lot more comfortable if her young man seems to know all the answers.

Her Parents
She—and her parents, too—will judge you by all sorts of little things. The way you open the door to let her go out first; the way you rise when her mother enters the room; the way you address her father as "Sir."

Have the evening planned before you ask her for the date. Ask her if she's busy Friday night. If she isn't, ask her if she'd like to go to a movie, or the class dance, or the club entertainment.

If your parents agree to lend you the family car, don't drive up in front of her house and honk the horn. She'll find out you have the car soon enough. Help her to the car in the car before you get in. If you go to the movies and there's a line at the ticket booth, suggest that she wait in the lobby for you. Then as you enter the lobby take off your hat and throw your coat over your arm.

The Coat Problem
When you are seated, offer to help her take off her coat. Hold the left side of her coat collar with your left hand, and the right side with your right hand. When she has removed both arms, be sure to arrange the coat across the back of her seat so it can't slip down and get wrinkled. Then sit with your own coat and hat across your knees—or put them in a vacant adjacent seat.

After the movie, if you like, you may offer to take her to get something to eat or drink. But don't keep her out until all hours. When you get her home don't stay too long.

And—final hint—whether you had a good time or not, tell her you did. You don't have to ask her for any more dates, but you do want to leave her feeling happy about the evening. For remember, she may be worried about her first date as you are.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters

Kathleen Gregory: red-haired member of the Gregory clan, goes West incognito to get a right-of-way for The Golden Girl mine from MacDonald.

Donald MacDonald: young owner of The Stubboboy mine, hates the Gregorys as much as they hate him.

Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday: Kathleen realizes that if the mine closes the Gregory miners will be jobless. She must get the right-of-way if she has to marry MacDonald to do it.

Chapter 17

'Come Home'

"I SHOULD be getting you back," MacDonald said.

"But . . . aren't you going on to Carsted?" said Kathleen.

"We're not even in the direction of Carsted. I kidnapped you. Thought you needed a change."

Kathleen's lips curled into a smile they hadn't achieved since childhood: sheer sweetness that brought MacDonald up, then checked him abruptly.

He had done this for her, she thought. He had cared enough to notice she was over-tired, worried, exhausted by the nervous strain.

"Bridget and I framed you last night," he explained.

Kathleen's lips tightened at the corner. The valley was too hot, the stream was noisy, and that man was a boor.

"She slipped over, said you weren't resting because you were afraid you might be needed during the day as well as the night. You worked right into my hands."

Kathleen looked at him without any emotion visible. "It's been delightful," she managed, lightly. "Quite like Bridget."

"She's the grandest girl I've ever met," declared MacDonald, peering at her with a hand to help Kathleen up a boulder, only to find she had sprung up unassisted.

"She certainly is," agreed Kathleen.

"One thing we agree upon. Ready?"

Kathleen was ready for several things, she mentioned only one. "If you don't mind, I'll take the rear seat again. I'm still tired, and I won't be home in time for my usual rest."

The return trip was made swiftly and in silence. Kathleen rolled and bounced on the rear seat and silently addressed herself to the leniency of the lower world. Sleep, in this seat with MacDonald driving the car like a cow pony on an upgrade?

For the sake of appearances she moved to the front seat before they entered Neutrality. MacDonald was instantly solicitous. Had she been able to rest at all?

"Haven't I told you a word about what I thought of your stepping in and taking care of the Gregory people?" he said. "Guess I've been thinking of other things. But it was mighty fine of you."

"Anyone would have done the same," demurred Kathleen.

"And I suppose anyone would have confronted Kit Smyth the way you did last night, wouldn't they?"

Kathleen laughed. "I don't know why that man arouses my ire. I suppose it's because he's so competent, so sure of himself even when he's wrong. I'd have gone to the Gregorys," she added. "I'd have told them a few things about aim. I don't know why they keep such a man."

"He's one of the finest mining engineers in the country," defended MacDonald. "He couldn't be replaced. Perhaps he's like the Gregorys, he has gold instead of warm blood running through his veins."

Kathleen's lips closed tightly. Something warmer than gold had been coursing through her veins that day. It angered her to think of it.

Kathleen made a round of the patients before going to her room. There had been times when she had looked upon them as so many odd lengths of flesh to be bathed and stuffed into fresh jackets, a dozen times a night; to be held on one arm, while with the other she held a glass tube between parched lips.

'An Investigation'

THERE were two by whose bedside she had hovered, listening to their heavy breathing, hoping for a break in their rasping struggle for life. Both had passed the crisis the previous night and now as she stopped beside them she felt that some part of her own self had gone into them, uniting her with them for all time.

The feeling must have been mutual. The nurse on duty called her aside. "They seem to think they belong to you," the young woman said. "They'll do anything I want them to do if I say it is for you."

Grandmother Barkus, who had brought a great bowl of broth to the house, waited on the veranda for a moment with Kathleen. Her black eyes were shining with tears. One old hand, mottled brown like a leaf, lay on Kathleen's arm. "Aye Lassie, we're your people now. There's hope in our hearts. We're fey, we Scotch, and the older we grow the clearer the vision. Old Angus has stirred in his grave and it's you he's using to repair the wrong his son has done us. Bless you, child."

She gave Kathleen a queer, knowing smile and went briskly down the steps, the long flaps of her queer cap bobbing behind her. "My people," she whispered and went back into the house, up the stairs to the room once occupied by Old Angus.

From this upper room she could look down on the Gregory cots. And from this vantage point they looked picturesque, but now her vision had an x-ray quality and she could see the squalor below the patched roofs.

"Somehow I have to take care of them," she thought. "Somehow . . . oh I wish I were a man, not just a silly, vapid flapper."

"Miss Cleo," Laura MacBride who was sharing her bed, now that she was on the road to recovery, called to her. "There's a letter with just all kinds of stamps on it. Miss Cleo, kin I have the stamps when you get over there?"

Kathleen picked up the letter with no misgivings but after she'd read her orders, she felt the world give way about her, much as it had in the canyon a few hours before.

Again she read the letter from her father.

Come home. We've found an out your letter telling us what MacDonald had said about priority gave out legal staff an idea and he started an investigation.

Some fellow named Balmly Camp bell has proof that one or the other Angus or Old Mac, lied a half hour before the other. We have reasons to believe it was my father. We intend to sweat it out of the old codger—and if we make the grade we're going to close the MacDonald mine as close as they would have closed out.

Kathleen stood irresolute. There was more to the letter, she skimmed through this but always came back to the line—"your letter."

Confused

She would be responsible for anything that would happen to Neutrality. The MacDonald mine closed would mean the fate of the MacDonald miners would be that which she had feared for her own.

And once The Golden Girl had gained what it wanted, would the owners be any less ruthless in their administration?

Yet could she be untrue to her clan?

Suddenly she wanted to see Old Balmly. She glanced at her watch. He'd be coming in from his shift in half an hour. She'd be there to meet him.

Kathleen hurried down the hill unable to explain her haste, feeling rather confused. She must think of an excuse to give Balmly for this call. The old man had such a disconcerting way of looking through one's evasions.

The shepherd dog met her and wagged her to the little terrace. She patted him absent-mindedly and perched on the edge of a chair. She could not understand her revolt against her clan. Hadn't she come West intending to force the right-of-way, regardless of method? Hadn't she that very morning wanted only the means of saving The Golden Girl for the Gregory miners?

"But not that way," she protested. And Angus Gregory had said "return immediately." To return meant soft, warm beds and scented baths; food prepared and served; rest without the demanding voice of patients. Dan, to drive her swiftly to stores where she could spend money recklessly.

Kathleen stirred restlessly and looked about her. The sun was nearly level with the horizon; it threw the landscape into sharp, contrasting colors, then pooled them in a golden haze. She felt she had been drawn into this pool had become saturated with the fascination of this golden world.

"I'm free, white, and twenty-two," she thought, rebelliously. "I don't have to leave."

She relaxed and Old Balmly coming in from his shift found her there, eyes closed. She opened them when she heard his footsteps crunching across the last leaves of the apple tree.

"I was tired," she apologized. "It is so peaceful here."

"Any time ye wish to stop a bit do. My doors are never locked. There's fuel at hand and tea in the caddy."

He accepted her presence without an excuse. Before she realized what she was doing, she had fed the Barmas, closed them in for the night, brought a hat full of tiny eggs to the kitchen; had spread the table, ladled porridge into bowls and was seated across from her host, the kerosene lamp pushed to one side.

She told of her quarrel with Kit Smyth and her hatred for the man.

Balmly interrupted. "Each man to his calling, lass. A finer superintendent we'd ne'er find. In his hands the muckers are safe as mon can be underground." But his eyes twinkled for he had heard of the quarrel.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Attempts to rally the stock market today lacked the necessary vigor and leading issues stepped down fractions to two points with a few wider drops in evidence among inactives. Dealings were moderately lively at the start, but the first hour's turnover was only half of that yesterday. The proceedings slowed later and losses were reduced in most cases. Further selling made its appearance and near the fourth hour pivotal stocks were around the lows. Bonds gave ground reluctantly, with selected loans receiving support. Commodities were irregularly lower and foreign securities markets were mixed.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened one higher to one lower with trading largely in the form of exchanging between the near and distant months.

December reacted from 8.27 to 8.20 and shortly after the first half hour sold at 8.23, when the list was two to four points net lower.

By midday December was quoted at 8.20 and the list was three to six points lower.

IT WOULDN'T HAVE PAID TO BE MODEST

Tyler, Tex. (AP)—A. M. Sutton, Tyler oil man, was watching the southbound traffic as he crossed a street. A northbound car swerved closed to him and brushed his hip.

Sutton, turning to loop at the disappearing automobile, saw his wallet dangling from the door hinge.

Although his trousers were tattered, he ran after the car and recovered the wallet.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — Here's a survey of women in the New York news—it's all about blondes, brunettes, red-heads, covering everything from the arts to dish-washing.

Among the architectural victims of the recent hurricane was the home of Katherine Hepburn's father, at Saybrook, Conn. It was tossed a mile by the tempestuous winds and completely demolished.

Mary Treholm, a hat-check girl in a Manhattan nightclub, has sold a manuscript to a publisher based on "what a hat-check girl sees." It's supposed to be mildly sensational.

Almost 40 per cent of Broadway press agents are women.

Among them you will find such names as Helen Deutch, Elise Chisholm, Phyllis Perlman, Constance Hope, Jean Dairymple, Dorothy Ross, Dorothy Kay and Hazel Flynn.

Lynn Fontaine is not listed among those who believe that absence makes the heart grow fonder. This Australian-born actress attributes the success of her marriage to Alfred Lunt to the fact that they have never been separated.

Mrs. Irving Berlin, the former Ellyn Mackay, is a fiction writer.

Katherine Brush decorates the walls of her studio with photographs of pugilistic casualties. She's an ardent fight fan.

George Jean Nathan thinks Paulina Mossman, Hawaiian dancer at the Lexington, is the most graceful dancer in New York.

A lot of other people have the same idea.

On a recent survey of married women, five out of eighteen listed their careers as "marriage," because they dislike the term "housewife."

Dawn Powell's new nove is "The Happy Island," a study of life in New York. She's the mid-west lass who wrote the play "Jigsaw."

Maxine Elliott long has lived in a great, weirdly constructed chateau of African architecture on the Riviera, but she is not gotten on Broadway.

There are four portraits of her in the theatre bearing her name — Helen Neil, widow of Edward J. Neil, war correspon-

The manager of a models' agency informs me that his charges receive double pay when asked to pose in lingerie, although this inducement frequently isn't sufficient to gain their consent. He has in mind a recent incident in which a lass was asked to pose in a certain type of slip for a large mail-order catalog.

"Oh, I couldn't do that," cried the young woman, "my folks would be horrified."

"But they'd never see it," insisted the manager. "This catalog does not appear in New York. It's circulated in the sticks."

"That's just it," meened the lass.
