JAPS PREPARE FORCE CHINESE TO COOPERATE

Determined to hold Country Under Military Rule

FALL OF HANKOW IS ANTICIPATED

Trouble Looms From New Foreign Incidents; Fire Threatens Destroy Canton

Tokyo, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Japan's determination to hold China indefinitely under military occupation and compel her to "cooperate" with Japan in all vital matters after the war is ended was disclosed tonight in a statement by government forces.

The statement was apparently issued in anticipation of the early fall of Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Dispatches from the war zone tonight said Japanese forces had thrown their cordon around the city to as close as 12 miles at one point.

The pronouncement was interpreted as an invitation of the Japanese government's belief that the capture of Hankow would end the purely military phase of the conquest and permit resumption of further offensive operations in China.

Japan will compel China to "cooperate" politically, economically and culturally after the fighting is over, the declaration said.

In Shanghai Japanese aerial bombing of a British warship and a customs dispute over an American passenger liner added to new incidents to the long list of international complications in the China war.

Bombs from six Japanese planes fell about and damaged the superstructure of the gunboat Sandpiper, anchored at Changsha, about 200 miles southwest of Hankow. There were no casualties.

The customs dispute arose over Japanese refusal to clear the Dollar liner, President Coolidge early this morning for San Francisco with a cargo of silver valued at more than $4,000,000 which the Japanese sponsored government apparently considered was its property.

The Dollar line agreed to unload the silver and permission was granted to sail at 8 a. m. Tuesday.

Meanwhile a gigantic conflagration threatened to destroy Canton as fires roared into residential districts after burning out the business sections.

Japanese dynamite squads blasted fire breaks around the burning areas in efforts to halt the spreading flames while foreign volunteers aided in trying to save foreign buildings.

In Hankow Chinese began firing Japanese property for retaliatory explosives as the Japanese offensive reached to within 20 miles of the city.

To Japanese protests the Chinese replied they would give 24 hours notice if they decided to destroy the mined buildings, some of which are in a proposed safety zone.

WOULD EXTEND CROP PROGRAM

Consider Extending Insurance Plan To Cotton Growers

Washington, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The administration intends to recommend that Congress broaden its farm program, officials disclosed today, by making crop insurance available to the nation's 2,500,000 cotton growers.

Wheat growers under a law passed last winter are protected against losses from drought, flood, storm, hail, insects and other natural hazards.

Agricultural Department experts are working at top speed to prepare premium rates and other data on cotton. They said it would be possible to offer growers insurance on the 1940 crop if Congress agrees.

Officials said there was a possibility the administration also might recommend insurance for corn growers. Whether it does, they said, will depend upon the progress the experts make in preparation of premium rates.

The cotton insurance program would provide a means, officials estimated for removal of probably 1,000,000 bales of surplus, government-owned cotton from market channels to be held by the Federal crop insurance corporation as a reserve.

Meanwhile with operation of the existing farm program upset by other crop surpluses and low prices, administration leaders are launching an intensive campaign to line farmers up against Congressional proposals to substitute price-fixing and unrestricted protection.

PEACE IS SEEN IN JERUSALEM

Arab Insurgents Ordered Not to Engage British

Jerusalem, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Reports reached Jerusalem today that Abdul Rahim, commander-in-chief of the Arab insurgent forces, has issued orders from his headquarters in the hills that henceforth his followers must refrain from engaging British troops, except in self-defense.

In some informed quarters the belief was expressed that this might be prelude to a truce similar to that negotiated in October 1936 which, however, lasted only three months and was followed by a fresh wave of terror.

The protection of lives and property of American citizens in Palestine was the subject of a conference in Jerusalem between Wallace Murray, United States Consular Inspector from Washington, and Consul General George Wadsworth.

This was considered in line with recent declarations from Washington concerning protection of American interests in Palestine.

ON STAND FOR SIXTH DAY IN SPY RING CASE

Rumrich Continues Testimony Against Accused Trio

LAWYER CLAIMS WITNESS "LIED"

New York Post Says Evidence in Hand that Germany Cooperated with Japan

New York, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Counsel for Erich Glaser, on trial in federal court as a spy, renewed a demand today for copies of all statements made by Guenther Gustav Rumrich, army deserter and confessed spy who became a government witness.

Rumrich, who pleaded guilty at the start of the trial and promised to testify against Glaser, Otto Voss and Johanna Holmann, returned to the witness stand for the sixth day.

S. Attorney Lamar Hardy told Benjamin Matthews, Glaser's lawyer, he had no control over the statements Rumrich made for the State Department, but offered a copy of the final statement made to the Federal Bureau of Investigation if Matthews would offer it in evidence. Matthews declined to accept it.

Cross-examining Rumrich, Matthews stressed that the witness had not charged Glaser anything for food and lodging and that they had frequently discussed things over many glasses of beer.

Matthews accused Rumrich of lying when the witness said Glaser had appeared glad of a chance to turn spy for Nazi Germany because the United States had ended Germany's chances of winning the World war.

The New York Post says U. S. Attorney Hardy has in his possession evidence that the activities of the espionage ring were directed by Berlin in co-operation with the Japanese government.

But Hardy, the paper said had "deliberately refrained from making any mention of a second power" because of diplomatic consideration. Plans to expose the alleged part of Japan in the spy plot were quashed by orders of the state department in Washington, the paper said.

NEGRO WOMAN SLAYS SPOUSE

Chicod Township Negro Held in Jail Without Bond

Janie Simmons, Negro of Chicod township, is being held in the Pitt County jail without privilege of bond, following a coroner's inquest conducted this morning by County Coroner A. A. Ellwanger, charged with the murder of her husband, Gus Simmons.

According to evidence produced at the hearing, the two Negroes had gone to visit a friend in the neighborhood. Prior to the visit they had been quarreling, with the result that Janie told friends when she returned home she was going to kill him. Her husband was reported by witnesses to have been drinking rather heavily yesterday and continued to "rag" his wife during most of the day.

When the Negro got home she took the shotgun off the wall and put a shell in it. As her husband approached the house, after feeding the mules, she pulled the trigger of the gun, the entire load taking effect. The Negro fell out of the doorway on the ground between the kitchen and the house. The woman then went back into the house, reloaded the gun and shot him again as he lay on the ground.

Approximately 1,000 Greenville Negro women, heretofore employed in the tobacco stemming industry, found themselves out of jobs today as the tobacco factories found it impossible to meet standards of the wage-hour act, which went into effect at 12:01 o'clock this morning, under this year's price scale of $8 to $10 per hundred pounds of stems produced.

The women have been receiving pay in accordance with the number of pounds of stems they had at the close of the day. The wage-hour act states that a worker must be paid at least 25 cents an hour. In order to reach a basic rate of pay the average was taken and any person unable to meet this standard was necessarily relieved of her duties.

Efforts last week to have the tobacco stemming industry exempted under the seasonal occupation and agricultural provisions of the act met with no success, but spokesmen declare that the efforts will be continued and new petitions filed with the Wage-Hour Administration.

Rooms Needed For Visiting Teachers

Willard T. Kyzer, secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, said today the response to an appeal for rooms to accommodate teachers coming here for the district meeting November 11-12 was far from adequate.

"We feel that the people of this city are anxious for the meeting to be held here, but we must secure places for the teachers to spend the night," declared Mr. Kyzer, adding that the hotel and rooming house facilities were inadequate to take care of the number of teachers coming here.

Persons having rooms they are willing to rent to visiting teachers for a nominal sum are requested to telephone the Chamber of Commerce office, number 1080.

It is estimated that at least 1,500 teachers will be here and a large number will come from such far distances it will be necessary for them to spend the night.

To Open Bids Nov. 2 On Hosiery Factory

Scaled bids will be received at the offices of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce until 10 o'clock November 2 for construction of a building to house the full fashion hosiery mills to be located in Greenville.

The building will be erected by the Greenville Industries, Inc., a recently created organization, for lease to the new manufacturing concern.

"Thanks"

Although it may not be unusual for a law enforcement agency to be thanked for some service rendered, it is more than the usual thanks when it is said with flowers.

A basket of beautiful flowers graced the local police headquarters today, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Sugg expressing their "thanks and appreciation" for the officers' work in apprehending a Negro alleged to have entered their homes last week and the return of some of the clothing taken by the theft.

ORDERED HELD FOR ROBBERIES

Negro Charged With Entering and Robbing Homes

Ernest Dobby, Negro, was bound over to Superior court following a preliminary hearing in Municipal Recorder's court this morning in four cases charging him with breaking, entering and larceny. Bond in each case was set at $200.

The Negro is alleged to have entered the homes of B. B. Sugg, J. R. Moye, J. W. Clark and Dick Nicholls, and stolen clothing from each. He was arrested by local police Saturday afternoon near the College woods after having robbed the home of Mr. Nicholls, corner Reade and Ninth streets. He carried away a suitcase of ladies' apparel from this home, but an alarm by neighbors made possible his capture.

Dobby is said to have admitted also the robbery of the Sugg home last week.

Otha Taylor, white, also was ordered held for trial in Superior court on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny. He is accused of entering the local Western Union office and to have taken about $12 in cash and stamps.

CZECHS GIVEN NEW DEMANDS

Hungary Asks That Area Be Left Open for Occupation

Budapest, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Hungarian government today demanded that areas in Czechoslovakia with preponderantly Hungarian population be opened to occupation by Hungarian troops without further delay.

A communication said that Hungary's demand would be submitted to arbitration by a German and Italian jury if Czechoslovakia refused to meet them.

The government, in a reply to Czechoslovakia's fifth unacceptable offer, also asked a plebiscite not later than November 20 in Czechoslovakian areas of disputed nationality.

The communications noted with satisfaction that agreement had been reached with Prague for cessation of large war-torn areas claimed by Hungary. It asked, however, that Ruthenians, Slovaks and other Czechoslovak minorities be given the right of self-determination.

FEDERAL WAGE AND HOUR LAW NOW IN EFFECT

Designed to Aid Estimated 11,000,000 Working Men

EXEMPTIONS OF ACT EXPLAINED

Minimum Wage of 25 Cents Per Hour and 44-Hour Maximum Week Provided

Washington, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Far-reaching federal-labor standards went into effect today, putting a floor under the wages and a ceiling over the hours of an estimated 11,000,000 American workmen.

This regulation of virtually all persons in interstate commerce represented the broadest industrial legislation since the NRA.

Administrator Elmer Andrews took time from clearing up a multitude of details to tell a nationwide radio audience that the new program was not designed to "bound business," but should become a pillar of a sound economic system.

The major provisions of the new statute are as follows: 1—A minimum wage of 25 cents an hour is established. This will be raised to 30 cents October 24, 1939, and to 40 cents after October 24, 1945.

2—The maximum work week is fixed at 44 hours to be reduced to 42 hours after October 24, 1939 and to 40 hours after October 24, 1940. Employment above those levels must be compensated for in cash at time and a half rate.

3—Employment is prohibited for children under 16 in a mining or manufacturing occupation and for children under 18 in an industry declared to be hazardous. Limited employment is permitted for children 14 or 15 in other industries.

The act exempts either in whole or in part seasonal industries, certain agricultural occupations, professional men, executives, administrators, learners, handicapped persons and employees of companies regulated by the Inter-State Commerce Commission the immediate effect of the law was to clip a few hours from the work week of about 1,500,000 men and women and to fatten the pay envelopes of 750,000. As the progressively higher levels are adopted additional thousands will benefit.

Laborers Dropped In Oxford Plants

Oxford, Oct. 24.—(AP)—An estimated 450 workers were laid off in tobacco factories here today as the industries prepared to meet the requirements of the federal wage-hour act.

The workers dropped, a spokesman said, were older men and women who were unable to speed up their work to justify the minimum wage stipulated.

Andrew Jamieson, president of the W. A. Adams Company, said the industry had petitioned for exemption under the farm commodities section of the law and that a hearing had been requested for Thursday in Washington.

PLEA IS MADE SAVE FORESTS

County Warden Says Supply of Timber Diminishing

C. A. Bolling, Pitt County fire warden, today issued an appeal for the preservation of our forests. He declared that we use 14,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood a year and added that an additional 3,000,000,000 cubic feet were destroyed by fires, disease and insects. Paper, pencils, houses, hoops, desks, doors, oap, shoes, airplanes, automobiles, baseball hats and boats depend wholly or in part upon the forests. Without the trees, said Mr. Bolling, we could not have these things. They are all a part of our lives and existence, our happiness and our comfort. "But if we must have these things of everyday life, we must have the forests to supply them. When the Indians roamed this country there were some 822,000,000 acres of forest land. Much of this has been cut for farm and pasture.

for cities and suburbs, as our population has increased. It is estimated now that we have 99,000,000 acres of untouched forests, old growth and saw timber, and 313,000,000 acres with growth of more or less commercial value. There are about 83,000,000 acres of land having little or no forest growth which are practically ideal. These acres must be put to work so that we may have an ample timber crop every year.

"We would be greatly alarmed if we were told that there was no wheat crop this year and that there would be no bread after a certain date. No one could picture such a situation. While bread is the staff of life, it is said the products of the forest are equally the staff of industry. We need timber every year just as we need wheat.

"We find that our forests are going faster than they are being replenished. This is due to cutting for our needs and destruction by fire, insects, pests and disease.

Colored News

The community fair at Ayden was quite a success. A fine exhibit was on display, sweet potatoes, tobacco, corn, white potatoes and canned fruit were an evidence that Ayden community is well prepared for the winter. The state agent, Mr. C. R. Hudson of Raleigh, was present and gave a very encouraging talk. He also visited some of the corn demonstrations with the agent and was very pleased with their prospective yield.

Plenty of dry feed was made this year. Farmers, please get a cow. We need a family cow. It is a fact that one of the most pressing needs on our farm today is a cow. A family with a cow can supply heat, giving milk and butter, cows to produce beef for the family and market. Do you have a quart of milk for each child and a pint for the grown-ups each day in the year? This is what is required for good health. It means fewer doctor's bills. In the meantime don't forget the garden. Have a dish of vegetables each day.

Be careful not to allow the vines to freeze on your sweet potatoes so that the stem close to the potatoes becomes discolored or blackens. When this happens the sap from the frozen stem gets in the potatoes and they will not keep well. In case one is overtaken by such a freeze, cut the vines off close to the ground and this will prevent a good deal of damage. Potatoes should be handled carefully to avoid bruising. D. D. DUPREE, Negro County Agent.

As a result Greenville will not only develop a chorus of fine quality, but at the same time will be developing its local talent. In order to help those who would like to sing and have not had much experience, there will be a special class every Monday night from 7:30 to 8:00. This will offer an opportunity to have one's voice tested, and be given definite suggestions and help for its improvement.

Great voice teachers and music educators say that anyone can sing. It is true that many people do not have the great pleasure of singing, but for various reasons. Some people just don't care enough to try, others have physical or mental defects which can be corrected. Others have not had an opportunity to learn. The first group, in the present state, are hopeless but the second and third groups now have an opportunity to learn to sing.

WAGE-HOUR LAW BACKFIRES

With several hundred Negro women out of employment here today as a result of the Federal wage and hour law that went into effect this morning, and with other hundreds likely to join these newly unemployed because they cannot meet the requirements the tobacco stemmies find themselves forced to make, we are wondering whether the law in the end won't be a catastrophe for the Negro labor rather than a blessing.

While some of the larger tobacco manufacturing concerns are already doing a lot of stemming by machinery, many concerns continued to stem by hand, furnishing employment to thousands of Negro women. Under the plan in effect heretofore the companies have paid the employees on the basis of the number of pounds stemmed out each week and each worker was left to earn just as much as he or she would or could. Now that the wage and hour law has gone into effect shortening the hours of these workers and fixing minimum wages per hour,
the companies find it necessary to require that each employee produce a minimum amount of stems per hour to hold his or her job. Under this plan there are great numbers who cannot meet these standards with the result that today all such employees find themselves without jobs, and many more who are holding on endeavoring to meet the required standards, might find it impossible to do so and be forced to join the ranks of the unemployed. If the companies find that they cannot find sufficient hand stemmers who can meet the required standards then the next step will be universal use of the stemming machines and other thousands of present employees will join the rolls of permanently unemployed.

It seems to us that this is another case of Federal meddling that has backfired with disastrous results for the laborers and will add numbers to the already too large relief rolls.

To The Editor:

I see in the papers where S. H.
Hobbs of Clinton, has already instituted a suit to test the validity of the farm act.

Please permit me to say that I believe that the farm act is unconstitutional for the following reasons:

That by reason of having planted tobacco for a number of years prior to the Triple A that a land owner is entitled to plant 70 per cent of said amount. Under the farm act, that said act does deprive a tenant tobacco grower of his part to himself which should be as the crop was divided during those years that said acreage was based on. That said tenant should have a right to move his part wherever he should rent, lease or buy. That said acreage or poundage would have a cash value to it. Should a tenant have his to himself, it does have a cash value to the landowner, while the tenant has none to value. I would say that 75 per cent of all tobacco grown is cultivated by tenants.

Under the present farm act the landowner gets special privileges which the tenant is deprived of, which makes it unconstitutional.

Under the present condition the landowner can and does in some cases, take some tenant's acreage from one and give it to another, without compensation.

The government also does likewise with the poundage, which is the same as taking cash to the amount of what said acreage and poundage is worth year by year.

In taking from one tenant and giving it to another, gives said receiver tenant special privileges over the loser tenant, which makes it unconstitutional. Some land owners who had tobacco cultivated by tenants prior to the Triple A have taken it all away from the tenant and is cultivating it under the farm act by hired labor. Is it possible for all of this to be in accordance with the constitution of the U. S. A. If so, I say burn up the constitution.

A land owner has a right under the present condition to take a tenant's acreage from him and plant so much tobacco. Somewhere else that it cuts the tenant out of all parity money, which seems to be true in my case, for I never have received any parity money. Only in 1937, which was about $32.00.

So you can see that some tenants under the above condition gain what others are compelled to lose by reason of said act being a law, which also makes it unconstitutional.

Now I am not opposed to farm control, but I am opposed to special privilege control. I am almost persuaded to believe it next to impossible to get a constitutional bill thru Congress, for when there is a bill written that does not grant the land owner special privileges over the tenant, that most all of them would be against it. When we tenants go to the land owner for information he never knows anything, and it is the same way with the county agent, the secretary of agriculture never sends the real important part of information to the tenant, by reason of it not being a farm act, but it is a land owner act.

Now there may not be any of the above written in the farm act, but said act does provide for a committee to be appointed who does have the power to devise and plan for such to be done.

Respectfully,
H. H. MANNING.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters

Kathleen Gregory goes West incognito to secure a right-of-way for the Gregory mine shaft from MacDonald.

Donald MacDonald has refused the right-of-way, hates the Gregory.

Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday: Donald discovers Kathleen's identity and is furious. Beatrice goes through the papers in Balm's cottage and accidentally sets them on fire. Kathleen injures her hands putting out the blaze.

Chapter 22 Golden Cards

ENROUTE to the hospital, Kathleen's father questioned the pain and the cause of the injury. Kathleen remained silent, and Beatrice's face was flushed.

"Are you both dumb?" he cried. "Here I go to the mine for Balm and find he's left shift for the first time in his life. I come after him and find you two at the house, one of you injured. Can't you tell me what happened?"

Kathleen's relief in knowing her father had not inspired Beatrice's trip, in fact had no knowledge of it, was so great that she sought to break the news to him.

"Bad news. Dad, there was an accident. A fire. I tried to put it out, that's how I was burned. The letters were burned."

Angus sank back into the seat, the car slithering to one side. "What caused the fire?" he asked. "I did," snapped Beatrice. "I don't give a hoot about the papers, it's Kathy's hands."

Kathleen glanced at the tears coursing down her aunt's cheeks. "Don't cry, Aunt Bee. I've nursed so many people in this town it's going to be fun to be nursed. Only now, it's more important than ever that I remain Cleo Riley."

"You mean you think you can still—"

Kathleen stifled the thought immediately. "No darling, I can't vamp the gentleman. I can't steal his heart because he hasn't any, but I have another plan. Just give me time—"

"There isn't much more time, daughter. We're nearly through. The last of May sees us closing."

"Then until that time, Dad? And will you give me free rein?"

Angus Gregory sighed deeply. "There's nothing else I can do."

"And Dad," she pressed her vantage point, "you see now how important it is to have the Gregory mine doctor made available to the people don't you? You'll be setting a precedent by taking Cleo Riley here."

"Yes," he agreed. "I'll fix that up . . . not too much pain?"

Kathleen grinned at him, a very watery grin. "I can take it with a gain like that in view."

Mayme brought the news to the MacDonald's table. She served it with the fruit cocktail.

"She's in the hospital and the doctor says she has to stay."

Mrs. MacDonald glanced at her son as though to remind him that Cleo Riley was responding to his demand to remove herself from his home. "What happened, Ma?" she asked.

"Put out a fire with her hands. In Balm's house."

"But what was she doing in Balm's house?"

"Your housekeeper told Jane Arthur, when she came to bring Miss Cleo some watermelon tonight, that she had seen that Gregory woman sneaking down to Balm's by the back way and she guessed Miss Cleo saw her, too. Cause Miss Cleo flew out of the house like fury at high tide, and took right after her."

"Strange," murmured Mrs. MacDonald.

"Hardly, in view of what we know is wanted," countered her son, bitterly.

"Poor Spit-Fire"

WHEN Mayme returned with the next course she had fresh news. "Mrs. Campbell heard Mrs. MacBride yelling to Grandma Barkus that when Miss Cleo fainted while she was dressing her hands, this Gregory woman threw a fit. She said it was all her fault."

"That settles it," announced Mrs. MacDonald. "We're going down to see that child—"

"Go down . . . on that mine property . . . are you out of your mind, mother?"

"And what's more," continued his mother, ignoring his question, "you are going with me. We'll make sure the Gregorys are at home, then—"

Kathleen floated in a nirvana, induced by a hypodermic. It was an extremely nice word. Nothing much mattered. Sometimes the nurses floated too, and the furniture.

And sometimes the world wasn't so nice. A nurse would appear and grip her wrists, another nurse would appear with a spray and there would be a few moments of exasperating pain.

"I'm sure the doctor won't mind, we won't stay but a moment."

That voice came during a period of sheer happiness. A woman's voice; the woman who lived in the other half of the Gregory house, Mrs. MacDonald.

"But we're just going to—well, all right," said the nurse.

Kathleen giggled. Donald MacDonald was standing on his head and his eyes were as round as blue saucers.

Then came the grip of her wrists. Tears streamed from Kathleen's eyes; she gritted her teeth. The nurses floated out taking Mrs. MacDonald with them. Donald floated over to the bedside.

"Poor little spit-fire," he said "a tough break."

"She didn't mean to," Kathleen hastened to tell him. She must make these MacDonalds know about the Gregorys. "She didn't understand . . . integrity of spirit and all . . . I didn't . . ." her voice faded.

The following afternoon the nurses walked and the furniture remained stationary. They were reducing the injection content.

The pain was a steady pulsing reality, the wet puffs upon which her palms rested, felt like nettles.

"Ruth," Kathleen whispered to the nurse, "did the MacDonalds visit me, or was that part of my crazy dreams?"

The nurse laughed. "They visited you and I thought Kit-Smyth was going to have apoplexy."

Kathleen closed her eyes. What had she said to Donald? Why couldn't she remember? Well, she'd soon learn from his attitude.

And what had he said to her? Something, she couldn't remember the words but they were tender.

Balm ended all conjecture over the fire with a lucid explanation. "I'd invited both Miss Riley and Miss Gregory to visit my cot at any time, the door was always unlocked. Miss Riley seeing the other lady going down, followed hoping to interest her in the Gregory cots. Miss Gregory dropped a cigarette on some old papers, new ones noticed anything until the flames were high, then Miss Riley beat them out with her hands. A brave lass."

"The Human Element"

KATHLEEN returned to the Gregory house a heroine, and guest of Miss Beatrice Gregory. The Gregorys were leaving the following day but that evening father and daughter had a satisfying talk.

"It's a big responsibility to head a corporation like ours, my dear," he told her. "You can't run a mine with the cost of taking out ore smelting and transportation more than the value received. Sometimes you become so involved in trying to find that line of balance in the market, you forget the human element involved. And when you see the end before you, and know that all of these people, not just the miners, are depending upon your wisdom for their livelihood, you . . . well you're baffled. A mild word for your feelings. I'll admit I didn't know conditions here were as bad as they are. It's useless to correct them, now. We'll just have to wait."

Kathleen nodded and felt the responsibility her father had carried had been transferred to her shoulders. She understood him better now. Just as she was flippant when most deeply hurt, he was gruff, Beatrice like the porcine Bridget had accused her of resembling, threw her quills at random in her moments of despair.

It wasn't until she threw the next day, Kathleen had told their goodby reluctantly and the moment the car was out of sight, saw little Laura MacBride rushing towards the big house, stumbling falling into the snowdrifts, scrambling up and rushing on.

"Miss Cleo, Miss Cleo," she called, as she reached the veranda. "Looky, looky it happened just like in the fairy tale. She riz right up out of the mine."

The child waved an envelope before Kathleen's nose.

"There was a Christmas card inside, a golden card with a slit and from this protruded a check. Unfolded it read: 'To Thomas MacBride, one hundred dollars.' The signature was Kathleen Gregory's and after the name, the stamp. The Golden Girl."

"And every man with a family got one and every man who doesn't got a family, he got fifty dollars," cried the little girl, jumping up and down.

Bridget came in and nodded and when Laura had rushed homeward with the precious card, she explained. "Beatrice wired New York for the cards and checks. Your mother's secretary supplied your signature. Beatrice had the money needed to cover the checks placed in your account."

And down at The MacDonald Hotel, Mayme relayed the information to Donald MacDonald. "Sure is a joke on the folks that thought Miss Cleo was the Golden Girl," she exulted. "Lucy MacIntosh was on the porch and she looked in the window and she said Miss Cleo was more surprised than the Gregory folks who got the checks; besides Miss Cleo could not have signed them if she wanted to; her with her poor blessed hands."

Consecration Service.

The annual consecration service for church leaders will be held in the Eighth Street Christian Church on Wednesday night at 7:30. This is a service in which is used the Pageant of the Lesser Lights and very beautifully symbolizes the leadership of the church cooperating with the church and its Master in the service of the Kingdom of God. The lighting of the leaders' candles and placing them in radiating lines from the lighted Cross presents a most effective picture of life taking its power from the Cross and going out into the world to serve God. All leaders in the church and its various departments are expected to be present to take their places in the procession of the Lesser Lights. The entire membership is expected to attend and witness the consecration of those who will lead the congregation in its work of witnessing for the coming year. The public is welcomed to this, as to all other services of the church.

Mrs. Iseley, the regent, served at one end of the table and Mrs. T. A. Person served coffee. Those assisting Mrs. Moseley in serving were Misses Verdo and Elizabeth Wilson, Elizabeth Winslow and Mary Harding.

College Vesper Services.

"We need not more ideals but courage and stamina to stand by those we have," said Miss Zoe Anna Davis at college vesper last night.

Miss Davis drew parallels between the lives of college students and the life of Daniel who, she said, confronted by a new and difficult situation, brought to it a philosophy to take care of his needs, and combined the best he brought with the best he found. "Each of us finds himself in the midst of new situations and we bring to them our home training, standards and beliefs. We are afraid of change and dread the unusual. It is the Daniels of today who secure their future by dwelling wholeheartedly in the present."

Miss Davis concluded by urging the students to follow the example of Daniel in being true to their friends, creating new opportunities, and remaining steadfast in their loyalty to God.

Joint Hostesses.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons Mrs. Harvey Clayton and Mrs. Frank Bendall were joint hostesses at bridge.

On Thursday afternoon the home of Mrs. Clayton was beautifully decorated throughout with marigold and Japanese sunflowers, carrying out the Halloween motif.

At the conclusion of the games, Mrs. James Ficklen was awarded high score prize, Mrs. J. B. Dunn, second high, and Mrs. E. D. Robertson, the consolation.

Mrs. Larry Moore, bride of the late summer, was remembered with a pair of lovely vases and Mrs. Prieau, a guest of Mrs. James Jenkins, was presented with dainty sachet.

On Friday afternoon the hostesses entertained in the home of Mrs. Bendall. Similar decorations were used throughout the rooms.

High score prize was won by Mrs. A. M. Williams, second high by Mrs. John Mitchell, and the consolation was presented to Mrs. R. C. Stokes.

On both afternoons Mrs. Clayton and Mrs. Bendall served a delicious salad plate with cake and coffee.

Carr-Badham.

Edenton, Oct. 24.—A wedding of interest to society was solemnized in a ceremony of loveliness and simplicity when Miss Sarah Paston Badham of Edenton, and Charles Albert Carr of Danville, Va., were married Saturday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Edenton in the presence of relatives and friends.

The Rev. Charles A. Ashby of Edenton, performed the ceremony and Mrs. Oscar Elliott rendered the wedding music.

The church was decorated in Southern smilax, white chrysanthemums and candles. Clusters of chrysanthemums tied with tulle marked the pews for the two immediate families.

Prior to the wedding Mrs. Elliott played a medley of classics. The wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin" was played for the processional and Mendelssohn's march for the recessional. During the service "Liebestraum" by Liszt was rendered.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Richard Paxton Badham. The bridegroom had as his best man his cousin, James Ficklen of Greenville, N. C.

Mrs. Thomas Chatterton Cox of Danville, S. C., sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Etta Burt Warren of Trenton, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Robert Baldwin of Norfolk, Va., sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. George London of Southern Pines, Mrs. John Anderson, Jr., of Raleigh, and Miss Eleanor Nunn of New Bern, were the bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of parma violet velvet with matching Marie Antoinette hats trimmed in ostrich tips. The matron and maid of honor carried cerise gerberas with heather, bouvardia and maiden hair fern arranged in hand bouquets with showers. The bridesmaids carried hand bouquets of the same flowers.

Little Miss Emily Wood Cox of Danville, S. C., niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a Kate Greenway model of pink velvet with crownless poke bonnet to match and carried a nosegay of Sweetheart roses.

Serving as ushers were John Boatwright of Danville, Va., Phil Carpenter of Philadelphia, Penn., James Doughty of Greenville, Tenn., June Bateman of Wilson, George London of Southern Pines, James and Charles Skinner of Greenville, and Thomas C. Cox, Jr., vestibule usher.

The bride wore an Allix model of ivory satin cut on princess lines. The bodice was gathered to a square neckline. The sleeves with slight fullness at the shoulders were tight-fitting to the wrists and the skirt ended in a long train. Her veil of imported Brussels lace over tulle which extended the length of her satin train, was worn with a halo of lace attached to a lace cap. She carried a beautifully arranged bouquet of white orchids, spray orchids, lilies of the valley and maiden-hair fern. Her antique necklace and pin of Colonial seed pearls and topaz have been worn by many other brides in the family.

Mrs. Badham, mother of the bride, wore Burgundy crepe with shoulder bouquet of valley lilies and orchids.

Mrs. Charles Carr of Norfolk, Va., mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in black velvet and her flowers were a shoulder corsage of valley lilies and orchids.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Badham entertained at a small reception at their home on Colonial Square for the wedding party, family, and out-of-town guests.

Later Mr. Carr and his bride left for a wedding trip to White Sulphur and Hot Springs, Va., and on their return will make their home in Danville, Va. Mrs. Carr traveled in a parma violet suit and topcoat with pink jersey blouse and wore an orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Paxton Badham of Edenton. She is a graduate of St. Mary's School, Raleigh, and attended the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. She is from one of the oldest Coastal families, a charming and popular member of the state's young society set and was extensively entertained before her marriage.

The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mrs. Charles Stuart Carr and the late Mr. Carr of Norfolk. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. After graduating from the University he was connected with the Ficklen Tobacco Company of Greenville, N. C., for several years and is now associated with the Dibrell Brothers Tobacco Company of Danville, Va.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Charles Stuart Carr, Robert Baldwin, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Waddill, Fielding Jeter, Dr. and Mrs. Southgate Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Warren, Miss Helen Warren, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. JAPS PREPARE TO FORCE CHINESE TO COOPERATE
Shanghai, Oct. 24—(AP)—Japanese army and navy units were racing early today for the honor of being the first to enter Hankow, China's provisional capital.
Japanese spokesmen here professed to expect news of the fall of the city momentarily.
Japanese dispatches said thousands of Chinese soldiers were retreating on all Yangtze river fronts and that the whole defense system of the Wuhan area, embracing Hankow, was crumbling.
Nowhere was defensive Chinese resistance being offered, the Japanese declared.

LOWER GRADES OF FERTILIZER

Action Designed Benefit North Carolina Farmers

Raleigh, Oct. 24—Reduction of the number of grades of fertilizer sold in North Carolina from 202 to some more reasonable figure is regarded by Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture D. S. Coltrane and many other farm experts as one of the most far-reaching and important movements designed to benefit Tar Heel farmers.
At a recent meeting of manufacturers, farmers and research leaders called to discuss possibility of a drastic reduction in number of grades, Mr. Coltrane pointed out that 90 per cent of all fertilizers now sold in the state is classed under 13 grades, with the other 189 accounting for only about one-tenth of all sales.
The multiplicity of grades makes inspection more difficult and does much to confuse and confound the average farmer in making his fertilizer purchases, the Assistant Commissioner believes. He has pointed out that the question is a very important one as North Carolina farmers use millions of tons of fertilizer each year, about one-seventh of all the fertilizer used in the country.
Mr. Coltrane also stressed the fact that in moving for a reduction in number of fertilizer grades, the State Department of Agriculture is not trying to ram anything down the unwilling throats of manufacturers or farmers. The problem is one which calls for the co-operation of all interested groups in remedying a situation which is generally admitted on all sides to be a difficult one.

Dr. C. B. Williams of the North Carolina Experiment Station has pointed out that "we don't recommend more than 20 analyses; and Mr. Coltrane has repeatedly stressed the fact that farmers buy much too high a percentage of fertilizer not recommended by experts.

ELECTION LAW NOT IMPROVED

Deane - Burgin Row Leaves Statutes Uninterpreted

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Oct. 24—Failure to get a final determination in the courts of the Deane-Burgin Eighth Congressional row leaves North Carolina's election laws still muddled by lack of authoritative interpretation; and this failure will provide advocates of outright repeal of the absentee ballot law with much ammunition for their legislative campaign next year.
