TWO ARRESTED FOR ROBBERIES IN GREENVILLE

Ex-Convicts Also Accused of Several Other Thefts

MOTOR CAR USED ALSO LOCATED

One Escapee Taken in Fayetteville and Other Later Arrested in Wilmington

A number of robberies, including the ones at Blount-Harvey's and Bilbro Wholesale Company Tuesday night, were cleared up last night and this morning with the arrest of two escaped Negro convicts.

Charlie Moye, 19, sentenced to a road term in Pitt county last fall for breaking and entering, who escaped from the Roxboro prison camp several weeks ago; and Frank Geddy, 23, sentenced in Fayetteville about three years ago for breaking and entering, and who escaped from Roxboro prison camp in company with Moye, and the two Negroes being held.

Moye was arrested in Fayetteville last night after having been involved in some trouble there and local officers went there and found that he was one of the two participants in the robberies here Tuesday night. Moye involved Geddy and officers went there and arrested him.

Part of the stolen goods was found at the place where the Negro was staying. About half of the clothing apparel taken from Blount-Harvey's store and not quite half that taken from the wholesale firm was recovered. Moye had most of the stolen goods in Fayetteville. Geddy, among other stolen property, had a radio stolen from Bilbro's.

In addition to the robberies here, the two were definitely linked with robberies at Griffon and Pacticals, when one gun said to have been stolen from each place was found. Juinery's store in Griffon and Daventport's store in Pacticals were recently robbed.

Mrs. Lyde Smith Claimed By Death

Mrs. Lyde Smith, 67, died at the home of her son, Ray Smith, of Ayden, R. F. D., at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of a daughter, Mrs. J. R. Cox, of Winterville.

The services will be conducted by Rev. W. H. Brunson, Christian minister of Ayden, assisted by Rev. M. A. Woodard, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, and Rev. P. A. Morris, Baptist minister of Winterville.

Active pallbearers will be Simon Burney, Reid Smith, Roland Smith, William McLawhorn, J. B. Cox and Carlisle Hart.

Mrs. Smith is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Cox of Winterville, Mrs. Anna McLawhorn of Greenville, Route one, and Mrs. W. J. Hart, of Ayden; three sons, Ray, Jack G. of Lanesville, Va., and Marvin Smith, Ayden, Route one; two stepsons, J. F. Smith of Ayden, Route three, and W. H. Smith of Greenville, Route five. Thirteen grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Smith had been a member of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist church for the past 35 years.

Civilians Slain

Shanghai, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Japanese war planes were said today to have killed 58 Chinese civilians in air raids on three widely separated cities.

Eight were reported killed and 60 houses demolished at Taoteh on the Hwang river between Shensi and Shansi provinces and 20 dead at Hoku, nearby.

Three were killed in north Kiangsi province.

CITES FIGURES ON DEPRESSION

Witness Estimates 10,569,000 Persons Now Unemployed

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Leon Henderson estimated today there were 10,569,000 unemployed persons in the country in October.

Henderson, former WPA economist, gave the estimate in the course of summing up for the monopoly committee two days of testimony on the effects of the 1929 depression in terms both of losses in wealth produced and maladjustments in the economic machine.

He said there were no regular current figures officially maintained on unemployment, but he had made his own unofficial estimates from March, 1933, when estimated unemployment stood at 14,317,000.

The low point from that time to the present was in July, 1937, when the figure was 7,412,000, he asserted.

Many Youngsters At "Toy" Matinee

Despite the inclement weather, a large number of children, each carrying a toy or some food, attended the Toy Matinee held at the Pitt Theatre this morning for the purpose of securing toys and food to be distributed to the more unfortunate at Christmas.

A large amount of food and hundreds of toys were brought to the theatre by the youngsters, who thus paid their admission to the show.

The receipts were turned over to the Salvation Army, which organization will have charge of distribution at Christmas. Local firemen will repair broken toys.

The Boy Scouts did their daily good turn by acting as ushers and otherwise helping at the show.

Slain Girl Found In Pittsburgh Lot

Pittsburgh, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Brutally slain and stabbed, an unidentified girl about 23 was found slain early today in a vacant lot here.

Police reported her torn clothing indicated the victim may have been killed after an unsuccessful attempt was made to attack her. Coroner's aides reported numerous marks on her neck and shoulders appeared to be teeth marks. She had been stabbed more than 50 times.

Investigators said a laundry tag pinned inside the girl's coat might lead to her identification.

GREATEST SPY CASE IN YEARS IS CONCLUDED

Four Principals Sentenced to Terms Up To Six Years

COMMENT MADE ON SHORT TERMS

Jurist Refers to German Death Penalty in Such Cases in Passing Sentence

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The nation's greatest spy case since the World war was marked closed today, its four principal actors facing prison terms up to six years for their bungling essays at espionage.

With their conviction yesterday on charges of selling United States military information to Nazi Germany, Federal Judge John Knox commented that the principal results of their efforts was to stir up public resentment against "the government of a great peoples."

He noted that in the short prison terms "the agents of a totalitarian state are receiving the mercy of democracy" alluding to the German espionage death penalty with the remark that "we have no sawdust sprinkled on our prison yards."

The defendants and their sentences: Johanna Hofmann, 27, former hair dresser on the liner Europa, convicted as acting as messenger for German spies in the United States, four years.

Otto Voss, 38, former mechanic at the Long Island Seversky Airplane plant, convicted of giving airplane information to Germany, six years.

Erich Glaser, 28, former U. S. army private, convicted of minor spy activities, two years.

Guenther Baumrich, 27, Chicago-born of Austrian parents, United States army deserter, who pleaded guilty at the start of the trial and was the main government witness, two years.

Among the 14 originally indicted were high German military officials and Dr. Ignatz Griebel of New York and Werner Gudenberg, airplane designer, both of whom fled to Germany.

Harrington Freed On Parole Order

Matthew Harrington, sentenced to 25 to 30 years in the state penitentiary in Pitt Superior court in April, 1934, for the murder of John Gurganus, yesterday was granted a parole.

Harrington was convicted of killing Gurganus, his step-father, in an automobile and then to have thrown the body over an embankment on the river bridge approach.

The parole order statement by Governor Hoyer said that Harrington has "learned a good lesson and has benefited by time already served" and will have a "means of livelihood" upon his release.

The murder and subsequent trial caused widespread interest in this section.

Mother of Local Man Is Claimed By Death

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ruffin of Greenville were called to Danville, Va., this morning by the death of the former's mother, Mrs. B. T. Ruffin of that city.

Mr. Ruffin had just returned from a visit to his mother last night and shortly after his arrival here received a message that she was dead.

Plans for funeral services were not known here today.

Chain Stores in Life-Death Struggle Babson Urges Readers to Voice Opinions

By ROGER BABSON New York City, Dec. 2.—A bill which could send the nation-wide chain store systems to the electric chair comes up before the new Congress in January. It would impose such a terrific tax on the big retail combines that they would have only two alternatives: (1) To break up or (2) To go into bankruptcy. It is a momentous national issue.

The pocket-book of every American "bread-winner" is involved. In fairness to all concerned, we should study the pros and cons of the question very carefully and give our Congressmen and Senators our opinions.

What are the chains' chief advantages to the householder? Most important is the fact that they have reduced the prices of goods ten per cent on the average. Their leadership in cleanliness, modernization, and other good merchandising practices has been a real boon

Unsatisfactory Answer to Demands for Explanation of Fascist Campaign For French Colonies Would End Hope of Completing War Renunciation Pact

Paris, Dec. 3.—(AP)—French officials left no doubt today that an unsatisfactory Italian answer to France's demand for "explanations" of a Fascist campaign for French controlled territory would end all hope for completing the French-German war renunciation pact.

France asked Italy to make her position known by Monday night. The time limit gave her request some of the aspects of an ultimatum since it was made known Italy's answer might determine France's attitude toward other European problems.

Sources close to the foreign minister said the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, told the French Ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, during their conversations in Rome yesterday that the Italian government assumes no responsibility for the demonstration in the Italian Chamber of Deputies Wednesday.

These sources said this reply was generally considered unsatisfactory since the Italian government did nothing to prevent the demonstration and the cause of recent arrests in the government controlled Fascist press.

The situation already involving all of Europe's "big four" arose as a general shipping strike in Le Havre delayed the sailing of the liner Normandie, despite a government order requisitioning all of the 50 vessels in the crowded port.

Teachers To Meet on Monday, Dec. 12

The program for the meeting of the Pitt county unit of the North Carolina Education Association, to be held in Ayden Monday night, December 12, was announced today, listing discussions on subjects relative to various school work.

W. M. Jenkins, principal of the Ayden school, will be in charge of the program.

The monthly meeting of the Pitt County Principals club also is scheduled for the same night at the Pitt unit of the NCEA and probably will be held in Ayden also.

The various schools have been asked to have members of their faculty divided in the groups which they wish to "work."

The various topics to be discussed at the meetings are: weaving, open saw work, spatter painting, toy orchestra, potato printing, puppets, photography, ma making, mimeograph work, theatrical make-up, tuxidery, tie and dye, leather craft, chapel programs and junior senior banquets.

County Court Session Will Be Held Tuesday

County Court Clerk E. F. Tucker said today that the docket for Tuesday's session would be comparatively light unless an unusually large number of cases are added during the week-end.

County court will not be interrupted by sessions of Superior court this morning, the next terms of the "big" court being scheduled for January. A civil session is scheduled for January 16, to be followed by a criminal term the week of January 22. Judge Clawson Williams of Sanford will preside over both sessions.

COUNTY BOARD MEETS MONDAY

Four New County Commissioners To Assume Duties

Four new county commissioners will take office at the regular meeting of that board Monday morning, and one hold-over will begin another two-year term.

David House of Bethel is the only member of the old board to be re-elected. The new members to take office Monday are W. O. Jolly of Ayden, D. S. Porter of Simpson, J. Noah Williams of Greenville and G. H. Pittman of Falkland.

Sheriff J. Knot Proctor, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of S. A. Whitehurst, will begin a regular four-year term, the Attorney General having held yesterday that the constitutional amendment voted at the November elections applied to officers beginning terms this year. Other county officers also will begin their new terms Monday.

These include Clerk of Court J. F. Harrington, Coroner A. A. Ellwanger, County Court Judge Dink James, and Solicitor Charles Wnebece.

The county commissioners met yesterday and attended to several business matters requiring attention at the end of the year.

Volunteer Workers In Seal Sale Will Meet

All volunteer workers in the 1938 Tuberculosis Seal Sale campaign have been called to a meeting to be held at the Health department offices Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Lee Folger, Jr., campaign official, declared it was necessary for as many workers as possible to attend.

Prohibited from Public Buildings, Theatres, Etc.

Berlin, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Berlin's chief of police today banned Jews henceforth from appearing in the capital's principal streets, public buildings, national memorials, theatres and other public places.

The decree provided that Jews who are German subjects or are without nationality may neither walk nor ride within these areas—with the sole exception of Jews living in regions marked out by the new regulations, effective December 6th.

Jews residing in the areas must obtain police permits to enter or leave the districts.

Forbidden areas are all theatres, movie houses, museums, the sports palast, Olympic stadium, all other institutions on the Reichs sports field and all other sports arenas of the capital and public and private bathing establishments.

The official German news agency DNB further announced additional measures would be decreed concerning the behavior of Jews in public.

In all likelihood, the agency said, many main streets would be declared banned areas later.

Certain sections in the center and north part of Berlin, where many Jews already live, would be declared as not falling under the ban, the agency said.

PLAN DELIVER '38 PAYMENTS

Payments to Farmers To Be Made Earlier Than Last Year

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Agriculture department officials said today that benefit payments under the 1938 crop program would be distributed this winter and Spring, several months earlier than similar payments have gone out in past seasons.

The earlier payments were decided upon, they said, with the objective of increasing farm purchasing power at a time when market receipts are low.

About $500,000,000 in benefit payments are to be distributed. Officials said grower applications for payments would be received during December and January and the first checks would go into the mails in February.

The bulk of payments made under the 1937 program went out during the past summer and fall.

When the 1938 checks reach farmers Congress may be debating proposals to substitute some other type of farm legislation for the present law.

Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Robert Bready, 29, who said he fought in the Spanish war for a "thrill," was charged with first degree murder today in the slaying of his father, Dr. Russell W. Bready, prominent Methodist minister in Ohio and Michigan.

COREY SPEAKS TO CIVIC CLUB

Several Officers Of Other Clubs Present at Meeting

Greenville Kiwanians were told something of their own organization last night by an outsider, Arthur B. Corey, principal speaker of the evening.

The state senator especially commended the club for its work among underprivileged children. He said that most of us knew nothing of conditions among the more unfortunate youngsters.

The speaker declared the Kiwanis and other similar civic clubs were building for the future, adding that their various projects were far reaching and the results would be realized in years to come.

He declared that we need more of the fellowship found in civic organizations, but added, most of all, some foreign countries need some of this fellowship.

He stressed the importance of tolerance, as individuals and as countries, and expressed the belief that if tolerance was observed by countries there would not be the wars and threats of wars now prevalent.

"But," declared the speaker, "we have not learned the fundamentals of tolerance at home. We can not get along together as neighbors and until we learn to be tolerant it behooves none of us to criticize other people and countries."

Mrs. Lee Folger, publicity chairman of the Tuberculosis Seal Sale campaign in Pitt county, explained how the money raised each year was divided. She advised that 75 per cent of the funds were retained for local purposes, and added that 15 per cent of the money sent to state headquarters was returned here to fight tuberculosis.

Three college students, Misses Lucille Lewis and Ida Parrish Davis and Harvey Deal, made announcements regarding the appearance here next Wednesday of Dale Carnegie, noted lecturer and author of the popular non-fiction book "How To Make Friends And Influence People."

Sales through November 25 were listed as 126,012,305 pounds at an average of $23.52 per hundred.

This week's offerings consisted principally of common to fair quality. A fair volume of lugs was offered and cutters were limited in volume.

Geography Class Visits Greenville.

The geography class of Chiscol high school, under the direction of Mr. L. J. Morris, visited Greenville on Thursday, Nov. 17, to gather materials for the various projects which they have undertaken. These projects consist of the following topics: climatic charts, development of transportation, seed collection, soil collection, rock collection, study and collection of legumes, development of farming tools, community collection of farm products, history and development of tobacco, collection of vegetable oils, collection of mineral oils, history and uses of corn, uses of rice, uses of rye, sugar and its uses, coffee collection and uses, history of cocoa and uses, cattle charts, dairy collections, hay and its uses, history and specimens of fish, collection of wood products, value of conservation, paper and its sources, uses of rubber, progress in manufacturing, history of power including water power, gas, wind, steam, collection and uses of coal, petroleum collection and a collection of minerals.

Several firms were visited by the students. Some of the boys visited Garris-Evans Lumber yard and the North Side Lumber Company for samples of wood. The boys also visited Bell Coal Yard for samples of coal and information. Among other firms visited were Hodges' Watson's Feed Store, Redd's Grocery Store, Nichols' Grocery Store, Blount-Harvey's, Pender's, Pitt Drug Company, Eldra's, A. and P. Store, J. C. Penney's and N. T. Hood. The information and material obtained were helpful.

After these collections the group met in Sheppard Memorial Library for further information on these projects. Mrs. W. C. Vincent assisted the group in finding valuable information needed for the completion of this work.

These projects will be on exhibit Education Day.

The members of the class are: S. T. Porter, Doris Buck, Melvin Porter, Kathleen Corey, Alton Cox, Doris Edwards, James Burley Smith, J. B. End of the Century Club Meets.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. C. A. White was a very gracious hostess to the members of the End of the Century Club at her home on Ninth street.

Eighteen members responded to roll call and the club was very pleased to have as guests Miss Mary Harding, Mrs. F. C. Harding and Mrs. C. G. Dwight.

The president, Mrs. James S. Ficklen, presided over a short business meeting.

The guest speaker, Mr. F. C. Harding, was introduced by Mrs. C. A. White. His subject was "Current Events." Mr. Harding's discussion of the very important international event, the Franco-German-Italian-British pact, was most interesting and instructive. Also his comparison of the people of the four nations of this accord was very helpful and timely.

Mr. Harding left with us these points that we must all work toward one idea that the human race can live without murdering and that all hope of peace in this work of upheaval is cradled in and on this Western Hemisphere.

Following Mr. Harding's splendid talk, Mrs. White, assisted by Mrs. Ed Batchelor and Miss Sue Barrett, served delicious refreshments.

Present Pageant In Greensboro.

Ten E. C. T. C. girls, members of the Home Economics Club, among them Miss Helen Settles of Greenville, are in Greensboro today to present their miniature pageant "The Heritage of North Carolina's People" as part of the program of the meeting of the Home Economics Club Association of the state. E. C.

T. C. was the only college of the state invited to furnish part of the program for the convention held in Greensboro yesterday.

The pageant they are to give, one division of a longer one written by Miss Mamie E. Jenkins and Miss Emma Hooper, of the college English department, was chosen to carry out the theme of the convention—Know your North Carolina.

Chosen by try-outs from the hundred and twenty members of the club, all upperclassmen, the ten girls represent in the production the various nationalities that made contribution to early North Carolina—the English yeoman and the cavalier, the French Huguenot, the Scotch-Irish, the Scotch Highlander, the Irish, the Quaker, the German.

For each part a historically accurate costume was used.

Parts were taken by Misses Helen Settles, Greenville; Iberia Roach, Rutherfordton; Alice Rich, Wake Forest; Eunice Griggs, Wadesboro; Eunice Cullipher, Merry Hill; Dorothy Lassiter, Woodland; Eva McMillan, Godwin; Mary B. Strickland, Middlesex; Agnes Wood, Essex; and Genevieve Eakes, Clinton.

Miss Katherine Holtzclaw, head of the E. C. T. C. Home Economics department, Miss Rosaline Ivey, also of the department, and Miss Jesse Schnopp, Home Economics teacher of the high school, took the group to Greensboro in their automobiles, leaving here early Friday morning.

Midwest Takes Five Berths On AP's All-America Of 1938

But South Dominates Squad Of 33 Named to Three Teams; Barker Writes Of Selections

By HERBERT W. BARKER (Associated Press Sports Editor) New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Middle West, returning to football power after a one-year lapse, dominates the 14th annual All-America team, selected today by The Associated Press on the basis of a nationwide survey of expert opinion.

From that geographical sector, no fewer than five players are named to the first team, along with two from the East, two from the Southwest, and one each from the South and Far West.

This, however, fails to reveal the entire picture. If the Midwest captures the bulk of first-team honors, it remains for the Old South, including the Southwest area, to earn a heavy plurality on the All-Star squad of 33, including first, second and third teams.

Here the county shows 14 for the South-Southwest as against eight for the Midwest, seven for the East, three for the Far West and one from the Rocky Mountain district.

In a season as spectacular and unpredictable as any in football history, the All-America debate was complicated by the widespread use of two or more unit-teams by colleges fortunate enough to have virtually unlimited football manpower. There is no question of this system's strategic effectiveness but it served to make All-America selections just that much more difficult.

There was a striking trend all along the line, as a matter of fact, to place the main emphasis on the team as a whole rather than on the individual. Notable examples of this were Notre Dame, back once more as a national contender; Duke's Southern conference champions; Oklahoma's Big Six titleholders; Tennessee, Pittsburgh and Texas Christian, to name only a few.

Partly because of this, perhaps, the All-America spotlight centered for the most part, on the stars of teams in the lower ranking brackets.

Thus Iowa State, Michigan State, Mississippi and Santa Clara, all beaten at least once, won first team berths for the first time since The Associated Press began its All-America selections in 1925. So, too, did Oklahoma, reckoned as a Midwestern entry because of its membership in the Big Six confederate.

Rose Bowl-Bound

No stranger in California is Wallace Wade (above), head football coach at Duke University, Durham, who will lead his Blue Devils to Pasadena for the Rose Bowl game January 2. Wade went to Pasadena in 1916 as a guard on the Brown University team and later took three Alabamas teams to the Rose Bowl classic.

ECTC SET FOR VIRGINIA FIVE

To Engage Newport News Business College Quintet

East Carolina Teachers College basketball team will match its playing ability with that of the Newport News Business College cagers in the local college gymnasium tonight at 8 o'clock.

A preliminary game starts at 7 o'clock and a dance variety program will be offered by Miss Ramona Staples' dance pupils during intermission.

Despite their practice handicap, the locals are expected to make a good showing against their opponents, in that three regulars from last year's squad will be in the battle to help the Greenville entry.

The left-overs, Bill Shelton, Lester Ridenhour, and Earl Smith, are expected to do the shining for the Teachers in tonight's game.

Shelton was high scorer in North Carolina collegiate basketball competition last year and stands a good chance of duplicating his distinction this year.

Another practice was held yesterday afternoon. Coach Gordon Gilbert, who is guiding this year's team, has been drilling his proteges in basketball fundamentals during the past week and is quite satisfied with the results.

that some big corporations are less efficient than most people believe when we consider the nation's manhood. Maybe too large a proportion of their supposed efficiency is due to cutting down the legitimate profits of the people from whom they buy. Business cannot take the place of righteousness. Equal opportunities must be assured for all. We must not let the time come when it is impossible for a new small business to get underway and succeed. This would not be a healthy condition.

Limit, Don't Kill, the Chains. Perhaps too much power is being concentrated in the hands of a few mammoth merchandising outfits. This is not in line with our American principles of free enterprise, competition, and initiative. Therefore, what should be done? Perhaps instead of killing the chains outright, as some want, or letting them run along unimpeded as others do, there is a half-way ground. Maybe we should keep the chains within state lines, just as the banks are already limited.

These are all ideas put forward to stimulate thinking on this vital issue. I know that readers are discussing the pros and cons. It would be helpful if you wrote me your thoughts. While I cannot answer your letters personally, I can give a summary of the most important points which have been brought out. Moreover, I will also offer a five dollar prize for each of the 20 best 300-word letters that are written to me. Remember, this next Congress may decide whether we will or will not continue to have chain stores. It is vital that the right decision be made.

Three Age Groups Where Tuberculosis Takes Heavy Toll

Babies under one year are safer today from tuberculosis than was the case in 1928. Ten years ago, 1,300 infants less than one year old died of tuberculosis in this country, while in recent years the annual toll has been 670. The disease is not inherited, but young children are liable to be innocent victims if they are exposed to persons who have active tuberculosis. Christmas Seals are enabling parents to learn more about tuberculosis, thereby protecting their children.

Young girls are particularly susceptible to tuberculosis. Intensive efforts, financed by Christmas Seals, are directed toward turning back the threat of this disease from young people. Many schools and colleges throughout the country recommend tuberculin testing and X-raying to discover whether or not their students have tuberculosis. Out of 200 persons who die every day from tuberculosis in the United States, 25 are between the ages of 15 and 25.

While more women than men are victims of tuberculosis up to 30 years of age, the toll among men, 40 to 65 years of age is approximately twice that among women of the same age. Medical authorities emphasize the importance of parents being free from tuberculosis in order to reduce the danger of infecting their children. The anti-tuberculosis movement receives its main support from Christmas Seals.

Washington — So far as Nazi diplomats are concerned, the Pan-American conference at Lima will be a closed book.

The same is true of other non-American nations, also, but it is likely to be noticed this session mainly because so much of what will be done is likely to be associated in the public mind with Germany.

The matter of closed sessions previously has not been of particular importance. Almost every important nation in the world has had unofficial representatives nosing around. The general sessions and even the committee sessions have been open to them, as well as to the public. (That, of course, has not applied to strictly off-the-record get-togethers of diplomats with special axes to grind.)

This year the policy of closing important meetings to all but American republics is to be followed. There is no official resolution on the subject, but informed sources here say it will be that way.

So far as keeping the proceedings of the meetings secret, it probably won't be much of a success. It is a poor diplomat who can't find a leak among representatives of 21 American republics, especially since some are a bit coolish toward the U. S. at times.

Shy at Yardsticks
The U. S. government has 'yardsticks' for determining the cost of producing power and building battleships, but when military agencies began mobilizing airplane builders for the big air program, the factories wanted to be sure they would not be induced to make huge expansions and then be faced with competition from a flock of federal airplane mills.

What they remembered was that two years ago a Senate committee headed by Senator Vreeland of North Dakota (who is a pacifist except with respect to Loyalist Spain), conducted an investigation into possibility of government manufacture of all munitions and planes. The committee brought in non-military engineers who testified that with an expenditure of $40,000,000 to $45,000,000 the government could build its own factories to manufacture munitions and airplanes, as well as to become independent of private showrooms for battleship building — at least in peacetime.

Government Has One Plant
Neither the army nor the navy attached a dime's worth of weight to the senatorial findings, but the plane manufacturers wanted assurance that in case they remembered that already the government has one airplane plant of its own. It manufactures nothing but naval training planes, but in a pinch it could be expanded into something bigger and more competitive.

Government Will Not Fly
The Governor will not fly either to or from the Rose Bowl—that's a good tip. He has been heard previously to assert that so long as there is no "emergency" trains and autos are fast enough for him.

FANCY foot work in New York ice show requires hand work, too, explains Bess Ehrhardt, as she limbers up.

CLINICAL analysis of labor relations is being made by a New York legislative committee headed by Assemblyman Irving Ives (above), Republican from Chenango, N. Y.

'IT IS NOT,' replied Gerard Swope (above), General Electric head, to N. Y. legislators asking if he thinks the government impartial in handling labor problems.

THE CONFEDERATE IRONCLAD RAM "TENNESSEE" FOUGHT THE ENTIRE FEDERAL FLEET AT FT. MORGAN, FOR ALMOST AN HOUR, SHE WITHSTOOD THE COMBINED ASSAULT OF FARRAGUT'S ENTIRE SQUADRON. IT WAS NOT UNTIL SHE WAS COMPLETELY DISABLED THAT SHE FINALLY SURRENDERED.

THE WINGS OF THE OWL ARE LINED WITH DOWN ENABLING IT TO DESCEND WITHOUT WARNING ON ITS PREY.

One of the most heroic and daring naval exploits during the War Between the States occurred in Mobile Bay August, 1864 when the "TENNESSEE" Confederate ironclad ram, attacked Farragut's entire squadron single handed. Admiral Buchanan, C. S. N. ran the "Tennessee" through the entire line of Federal vessels braving their broadsides and fighting at point blank range with most of them including three powerful monitors. During the course of the engagement the Tennessee was ramméd by three U. S. vessels and for almost an hour was the target of the combined Federal fleet. Surrounded by her enemies, with her steering gear gone, smokestack shot away, engines useless and unable to fire a gun, she finally surrendered.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters

Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.
Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: We visit Charlie who has been guarded by Captain Flower.

Chapter 26

Smoldering Fire

CHARLIE'S face was a study in the less gracious expressions. "What are you talking about?" he growled.

"I'm working up, in my own inimitable fashion, to the fact that there has been another murder and that, thanks to Captain Flower, you're clear of it," Adam said.

They had evidently not heard of it. I sat in one of the concrete chairs and smoked a cigarette while he told them.

The situation at last clear to his still fuddled brain, Charlie, much deflated, was making his graceless apologies to Captain Flower when Barney stood up.

"Sorry," he muttered. "Guess I'd better turn in." And without a good night he turned and stumbled down the hall.

Little Captain Flower sprang to follow him. "I'll see to him," he told Adam. "Can you manage? I'd better help."

"I can manage," the little man threw over his shoulder.

Mrs. Flower turned from her inspection of the mantel. "Flower!"

Her piercing stage whisper traveled the length of the interminable corridor and a score of fainter whispers sighed back from the bare, bleak walls.

"Don't forget to remind him about the prize!"

"Well, really, this is turning into quite a night," Mrs. Flower continued brightly. "I do hope Gilly doesn't have one of his nightmares, because while he's very good with Nurse, there's no one quite like Mother when little boys are frightened in the night."

Her mouth drooped childishly, but only for a moment, then she turned to me with anticipation in her eyes.

"You've never seen Gilly, have you?"

I don't believe she waited for an answer. Although, deplorably, I had never seen Gilly, still I could be made acquainted with him, as it were, by proxy. Certain concrete properties of Gilly could be made known to me—his height, his weight, his age, the color of his eyes and hair, his taste in cereals, in vegetables, in jokes.

Captain Flower returned with an air of duty well done and consulted in a low voice with Adam near the door. They took their departure at last, after prolonged discussion as to the proprieties. Adam assured them that he was on the point of taking me home, that there was no need for them to wait.

"Now, Charlie," said Adam when the creaking stairs were once more silent, "what do you know about this?"

As I had feared, Charlie was more than vague. Though he was plainly making an effort to remember, all that emerged was a memory of going back to quarters after dinner and having a couple of stiff ones. I was glad that he made no attempt to explain or to justify his actions.

'A Total Blank'

LATER—but how much later he had no way of knowing, nor where he had been in the meantime—there was the picture of Anne limp on the chaise longue in the dressing room and his certain knowledge that she was dead.

Adam did not enlighten him. "You remember Kay getting you into the library?"

"Vaguely," he admitted, not looking up from a painstaking scrutiny of the worn floor boards. "And my bringing you back to quarters?"

Charlie shook his head. "I tell you the evening's almost a total blank." He looked up defiantly. "I may have shot her, for all I know, Anne, I mean."

Momentary emotion blurred his features like breath on a mirrored reflection. Then he went on steadily.

"The other one—I guess that's out, if Flower's telling the truth. You understand that I don't know how long he was here..."

Adam nodded. "It would be one way of establishing an alibi for himself."

"But in that case Charlie would still be clear," I said sharply.

Charlie looked at me for almost the first time since I had entered his rooms. He seemed surprised and grateful.

"That's true," he said hopefully. Adam said, "How about that note?" in a detached voice.

"Yes, Charlie, what did you do with my old typewriter?"

"I had been looking for it and it was not in sight."

"The typewriter? I loaned it to somebody."

"Monday: The murderer strikes again."

"Who?"

He looked from one to the other of us, seemed to sense our gravity. "To Anne. She went to business school in Omaha last year and she wanted to keep in practice."

"When was this?" Adam asked sharply. "I mean, how long did she have it?"

"I don't remember—two or three weeks. What are you getting at?"

Adam told him about the note, and we sat there glarin' at one another in utter hopelessness.

"In Omaha last winter, too," I pointed out. "She couldn't—surely she wasn't Leslie Curtis?"

Adam's shrug expressed complete bafflement. "Who else would be likely to use it?" he asked Charlie. "Do you know where she kept it?"

"I saw it in her father's den tonight—where we put our cans. I don't know—maybe her old man used it, or her mother. Or she would have loaned it to anybody who asked her. She was—generous."

The telephone was ringing in the downstairs hall. "Orderly gone to bed?" Adam asked. "I'll get it."

We listened to his quiet silence on the stairs, then sat in silence waiting, growing more and more constrained. Adam did not return and it came to me that he was purposely absenting himself.

My mood grew bleak and the silence unbearable. Charlie got up and began to prow around the room, kicking magazines out of his way. Presently he stopped behind my chair, not touching me.

Men Are Like That

THERE'S not much I can say, is there?" he asked finally.

"No," I said. "There isn't." I felt completely calm and unmoved.

"There isn't a girl in a thousand could understand," he began. Cynically I admired his approach.

"And I'm not the thousand and first," I added politely.

"Aw, Red, don't be so hard." His hand touched my cheek experimentally.

"Please!"

Involuntarily I sprang to my feet and faced him across the empty chair. I hadn't actually decided what to do—there had been no time to think about it; but I found I was taking off my ring.

I felt rather silly holding it out to him, being melodramatic. And he looked so angrily stricken by the gesture...

He made no move to take it, and my hand dropped to my side. He turned and walked away from me toward the bedroom door.

"Come here," he said roughly over his shoulder. "I want to show you something." He stopped, barring my way for a moment. "It's in a mess—you can see I wasn't expecting you. So maybe you'll believe I really keep it there."

He stepped aside and let me look.

The tall mahogany chest of drawers was in indescribable disorder. All kinds of male apparel overflowed the half-open drawers and cascaded to the floor. The summit resembled a section of stratified rock, layer upon layer of miscellany. And above it, in solitary dignity, was my picture.

He must have detected traces of softening, for he broke into eager speech.

"It wasn't important, Red. Men are like that. She was—attractive."

He swallowed painfully, looked as if he were going to cry. "I was fond of her, too, in a way. But she never had your place."

I stood there, the ring clasped loosely in my hand, half believing him, reflecting that some men are like that all their lives, and wondering if I could face it.

He misinterpreted my silence. "If you're just mad because I gave her the typewriter—"

"Gave it? I thought you said you loaned it to her."

"Well—same thing. I wouldn't have asked for it back. The poor kid needed one and you said yourself it was a wreck..."

Maybe some of you remember how you felt about your first car—the car you named Betsy so you could exhort it by name up the steeper hills; the car that got to be a member of the family, with a stout heart under its battered tin, with feelings that could be hurt when a newer model passed it. The car that was driven for so many years that turning it in was like trading Aunt Jane or Grandpa for a younger, handsomer relative.

Those of you who remember that feeling will understand about the typewriter and why I had not let the salesman take it and give me the allowance. I reminded myself, now, that I had sold it to Charlie—he had even insisted on paying me five dollars on account. The machine was his property to dispose of as he chose. It was ridiculous of me to mind.

But I did mind—for the moment I minded frightfully. The smoldering fire of resentment and humiliation which I had kept under outward control all evening broke suddenly into flame at this further evidence of his peridy.

Questions, Answers On Farm Program

Q. Do the marketing quotas represent a quantity of tobacco in line with demand?

A. The provision in the Act under which the National marketing quota for any year is determined is based upon analysis of demand factors and is intended to result in quotas in line with market demand.

Q. Why were farmers able to sell the large 1937 crop of 855 million pounds at favorable prices when the estimated level of world consumption was only about 715 million pounds?

A. Because domestic manufacturers bought enough tobacco to replace what was actually consumed, plus enough tobacco in view of the increase in domestic consumption, to maintain their usual ratio of stocks to consumption, while export buyers bought in excess of the level of foreign consumption in order to replenish abnormally low stocks in foreign countries which resulted from unusually small purchases in the early 1930's. Also, there appears to have been some increase in the consumption of United States flue-cured tobacco in some foreign countries.

Q. What was the amount of the 1938 marketing quota for flue-cured tobacco?

A. The 1938 National marketing quota for flue-cured tobacco was 748,679,000 pounds.

Q. How does the quantity of flue-cured tobacco marketed from the 1938 crop compare with this quota?

A. It appears that the quantity of flue-cured tobacco marketed from the 1938 crop will be around 4 per cent of the National marketing quota.

Q. Have the marketing quotas in 1938 had any effect on the total quantity of tobacco marketed?

A. It is estimated that because of the marketing quotas the total quantity of tobacco marketed from the 1938 crop will be materially less than the quantity which would have been marketed without quotas.

Q. What effect will the 1938 quotas have on the supply-demand situation for flue-cured tobacco?

A. The quotas, by keeping marketings more nearly in line with demand, created a better market situation for the 1938 crop and make it possible for growers to go forward into 1939 with a better supply-demand situation and with a larger quota for 1939 than could have been established if marketings from the 1938 crop had not been regulated.

Q. Is the prospective quota for 1939 in line with trade demands?

A. The quota has been determined in accordance with the standards in the Act to be 754 million pounds, which is in line with the quantity of tobacco which the buyer-representatives indicated would be desired by the trade for 1939.

been brought in to add their voice to the shrieks of disapproval.

On the other hand the Administration isn't leaving any stones unturned, as witness the visit of Secretary Wallace. The North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, particularly strong through the eastern counties, is leading in efforts to insure control's continuation.

As of today prospects are that control for flue-cured tobacco will again be overwhelmingly approved. As for cotton, the control outlook isn't quite so rosy, but it is still indicated that it will get the needed two-thirds affirmative support.

FETE PLANNED AT KILL DEVIL

Aviation's 35th Anniversary Will Be Celebrated

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 2—Thirty-fifth anniversary of the birth of aviation will be celebrated at Kill Devil Hill on December 17, according to officials of the State News Bureau, Department of Conservation and Development who are actively assisting in publicizing the event.

Two hundred airplanes will soar over the gleaming pylons atop Kill Devil, while below them representatives of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will lay wreaths upon the base of the Wright monument as part of the service atop the lonely dune.

Later, at Fort Raleigh, on Roanoke Island, there will be a luncheon which will gather together again old-timers of the Banks who will again talk about the incredible Wrights of that fantastic day when their flying machine coasted down old Kill Devil and wobbled miraculously into the air.

At the service at the monument at 10:30, the Navy will be represented by Assistant Secretary Chas. Edison, the Army by H. H. Arnold, the Coast Guard by Admiral Wessie, and the Marine Corps by some as yet undesignated officer.

Later a planer bearing specially cancelled mail will take off from Kill Devil. Heretofore mail from this place has gone through the Kitty Hawk postoffice, but this year there is a postoffice at Kill Devil, and the new cancellation mark is expected to interest stamp fans.

The celebration is sponsored by the Kill Devil Hill Memorial Association, headed by A. W. Drinkwater of Manteo, who today is a telegrapher, just as he was 35 years ago when he tapped out the sensational news of another December 17—a message so unbelievable that one newspaper promptly rejected the story and wired a dismissal to its correspondent for unreliable reporting.

GAS RECEIPTS CONTINUE GAIN

Tax Collections From Motor Fuel Rising Steadily

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 2—Good and sufficient reason for the lively battle over diversion of highway revenues is to be found in every monthly report of tax collections issued by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell. The report for last month is no exception.

As has become so habitual as to excite only passing comment, revenues from the six-cent a gallon gasoline tax climbed again, reaching $2,106,874.15 as compared with $2,078,361.58 in November, 1937.

For the five months of the current fiscal year gas tax receipts are up practically $400,000 over the corresponding period of 1937, with a total of $10,580,955.67 poured into the state's coffers since July 1, 1938 as compared with $10,162,632.30 in the same months of 1937.

This means that gasoline tax collections have increased 3.9 per cent at the same time that general revenue collections were dropping 9.44 per cent, according to the November collection report. Highway revenues, other than gas tax collections, have dropped slightly, also but not enough to worry about, the grand total reaching only $18,005.59, or less than 2 per cent of the approximately $1,000,000 total.

With this continued climb in the gasoline collections coupled with the unalarming but still noticeable decline in other revenues, it is clear why those charged with preparing the state's general spending and taxing program are unwilling to see themselves cut off from the possibility of reaching over into the highway funds and taking out money enough to meet appropriations they would otherwise be unable to make because of inability to find regular general fund sources which would produce the needed money.

Also it is quite obvious why those who pay these gasoline taxes are unwilling to see them spent for any other purpose except those for which they were primarily intended, construction and maintenance of roads.

Crop Control Referendum Campaign Reaches Pitch

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 2—With the address of Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace here Thursday the crop control campaign reaches crescendo heights which will likely be maintained from now until the voting on December 10.

Then the farmers will decide for themselves whether or not crop control program will be retained for cotton and flue-cured tobacco.

Unusual interest is being manifested in the results because of their political as well as their economic importance. Canny observers say that if the control programs are approved the New Deal will recover in large measure from the blow inflicted by the apparent defection of Midwestern farmers in the November voting. If control should be repudiated the Republicans and those Democrats who have joined them in denouncing control as "tyranny" will have just that much the more to brag about and just that much the more ammunition with which to snipe at President Roosevelt and his policies.

Ministers Cooperate In Annual Seal Sale

Pastors of Pitt County will urge their congregations to co-operate in the fight against tuberculosis tomorrow, which has been designated as Christmas Seal Sunday by the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

"Here is a cause in which all churches can unite," said Rev. C. H. Patrick. "Tuberculosis is everybody's problem. The theme of this year's Christmas Seal, 'Protect Your Home From Tuberculosis' makes the campaign one of special significance to the churches. Tuberculosis is one of the misfortunes which disrupt family life. When a father or mother is stricken, separation from the family is necessary.

"Christmas Seals are doing effective work in preventing tuberculosis and thus are keeping together families which might otherwise be separated. One of the fundamentals of Christianity is preservation of the home. The Christmas Seal campaign offers everyone a simple and practical way of doing a Christian act."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 3—(AP)—While buyers nibbled at a handful of special stocks in today's market displayed a notable lack of appetite so far as the majority of leaders was concerned.

The leaders:

Continuance of extremely light liquidation was the principal encouraging factor for board rooms. Transfers for the two hours approximated 250,000 shares, one of the smallest turn overs for a single session since last August. For minor gains and losses were about even at the close.

Wall Street apparently took a somewhat more cheerful view of the foreign field, although the low between Italy and France over French owned colonies was still a perplexing factor for the financial sector.

U. S. government pointed higher in the bond department and corporation loan were fairly steady. Commodities were mixed.

COREY SPEAKS TO CIVIC CLUB

(Continued from page one) People. They were introduced by R. C. Deal of the college faculty. Mrs. J. H. Waldrop favored the club with a vocal solo, being accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Tyson, club pianist.

Several officials of other clubs were present for the meeting, after having attended a school for Kiwanis officers conducted yesterday afternoon by Lieutenant Governor-Elect, who also introduced the special guests last night. They were B. J. Holloman and Maurice Margolis of the Jacksonville club and Wilbur R. Doshier, past lieutenant governor. Dr. Horace Thompson and Lieutenant Governor Harry Solomon of Wilmington. Robert C. Whitley of the New Bern club was here for the meeting yesterday afternoon, but had to leave before the session last night.

Other guests at the meeting were David W. Mosier, F. E. Morris and Bruce Sugg, Jr., of Greenville and E. C. Hunt of Henderson.

MORGAN TALKS TO COMMITTEE

(Continued from Page One) to congress and the public was so long delayed. Earlier the TVA chairman had charged that TVA directors were committed to a policy which endangered flood control for national defense.

Morgan read long extracts of testimony of Lillenthal before the congressional committee in respect to allocation of TVA costs upon power, navigation and flood control.

The former chairman said Lillenthal favored a theory of charging only "by-products" expense of dams to power, while Morgan insisted on consideration of power, navigation and flood control.

FEELS APPEAL OF LITTLE USE

Duke Contempt Case Seen as Round Of 'Shadow Boxing'

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Dec. 3—High powered lawyers for the Duke Power Company and adroit attorneys for the City of High Point argued earnestly and at length this week over whether the council of the Guilford city was in contempt of court or not. But when all is said and done the whole proceeding was nothing more than a round of shadow boxing and will have little effect on the long drawn out power battle of Duke against the City of High Point.

There were intimations from counsel on both sides, and from the Supreme court bench that no matter what decision is handed down in the instant case, the whole thing will be back in different form later on.

The consensus of informed observers is that the whole contempt proceeding is just another move by the power company to hinder and delay construction by High Point of a municipal power plant; just hreantanother move in the unending battle of private utility against public operation of power projects.

Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy intimated quite clearly that it is extremely doubtful whether the power company has any standing in court as appellant from Judge E. C. Bivens order that the city is not in contempt of a Supreme court injunction against the project in the form it was last before the high court. He gave the Duke lawyers the right, however, to submit briefs in an effort to remove the doubt. He also intimated that he saw little in the whole affair, wondering why High point had to go into court to secure the Bivens order, if its proceedings have been entirely legal and it has violated no injunction.

But after all is said and done, no matter what the ruling on the immediate question may be, the whole thing will come back on appeal to determine the real merits of the controversy.

HALT SAILING OF NORMANDIE

Giant Liner to be Laid Up as Result of Strike

Paris, Dec. 3—(AP)—The French government tonight ordered the giant French liner Normandie laid up as a result of the seamen's union defiance of government efforts to break a shipping strike.

A number of the Normandie's passengers who had expected to sail aboard her from Le Havre for New York this afternoon were transferred by train to Cherbourg, where they will be placed aboard the Aquitania, sailing tonight.

The government's decision to take the liner out of service followed a second meeting of strikers at Le Havre, at which they decided to continue their strike, despite the government's semi-requisition order.

Shipping circles in Paris declared they feared the strike might spread to "all companies in all ports, affecting all sailors."

TWO ARRESTED FOR ROBBERIES IN GREENVILLE

(Continued from Page One) The two allegedly used an automobile stolen from Hugh McGowan's garage here Saturday night. Officers said the two had recently stolen two other cars here recently, one from Stuart Paige and another from N. O. VanNortwick. Both of these cars had been recovered, but the thefts were definitely attributed to the two Negroes arrested last night.

Officers said Moye and Geddy went to Fayetteville immediately after the robberies Tuesday night. Moye remaining in Fayetteville and Geddy going on to Wilmington.

The first information received on the robberies came from Goldsboro, where, in reply to inquiries by local officers, police officials there advised that two men stopped there early Wednesday morning and bought gas. They were reported to have appeared nervous and in a hurry.

Local officers then got in touch with Fayetteville officers, suspecting the escaped convicts and realizing that one of them lived in Fayetteville.

Chief of Police George Clark and Sheriff J. Knott Proctor worked jointly on the robberies. They were accompanied to Fayetteville and Wilmington by E. G. McMullan, city police officer, and J. M. Ward, special ABC officer.

The chief of police and sheriff had high praises for the cooperating police forces, Goldsboro, Fayetteville and Wilmington, declaring that their services had been invaluable in tracking and arresting the two Negroes, who were said to be "bad" men, especially Geddy.

J. H. Blount, president of the Blount-Harvey Company, called in reporters following the clearing up of the robberies and declared he wished to express his appreciation "for the fine piece of work the officers did in getting the robbers." He added that it was as fine a piece of police investigation as he had ever seen, and said they deserved the commendation of the city and county as a whole.

INDUSTRIAL SELF-REGULATION, patterned after the English and Swedish systems, is feasible in New York state, the Rev. John Boland (above), chairman of New York's state labor relations board, told the legislative committee at Albany. The committee has been studying labor relations, profit-sharing and general industrial problems.
