CHARGES FILED AGAINST FIRM BY COMMISSION

Fidelity Investment Is Accused of Fraudulent Practices

ATTEMPTS MADE HALT BUSINESS

Other Capital Developments Include Report on Monopoly Body's Hearing

Washington, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Securities Commission announced today it had filed a bill of complaint charging Fidelity Investment Association, a company which it said had sold $600,000,000 in securities to the public, with fraudulent practices.

The complaint, which was filed in Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan, asked that the company be enjoined from selling securities in violation of federal and state laws.

The company has 38 district offices in leading cities throughout the country. The main office is in Wheeling, West Virginia.

The commission's bill of complaint said about 60,000 persons throughout the United States have sent and are continuing to send in their monthly payments regularly to the company through the mails.

Other developments: A country-wide compilation showed that Democrats polled 49 per cent of the vote for members of the House of Representatives in the November 8 elections. Republicans received 47.8 per cent and minor party candidates 3.2 per cent.

The Democratic figure fell from 60.2 per cent of the party's presidential vote in 1936 and 53.4 per cent of the vote for representatives in 1934.

William E. Levis, president of the Owens-Illinois Glass Company, told the Federal Monopoly Committee there was overproduction in the glass container industry and that he believed in using patents in such a manner as to keep the industry "balanced."

The statement followed disclosure that he had advised the Hartford Empire Company, a concern which licenses patent machines to manufacturers, against issuing a particular license in 1933.

Anthony Eden chatted with Chief Justice Hughes and Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The REA allotted $3,447,000 for 30 projects in 14 states.

The allotments included: Kerr, N. C., Four-County Electric Membership Corporation, $76,000, 64 miles, 258 members in Sampson, Duplin, Pender and Bladen counties.

Threatened Break at Camp Thwarted

Key to Solitary Confinement Cell, Knife, Hammer, Pliers and Saw Found by Officials

Capt. F. W. Jacobs, superintendent of the State prison camp located in Pitt county, thwarted a threatened escape of several inmates from the solitary confinement cell this morning when a search of the compartment produced a key made from part of an iron bed, a sharp-pointed knife and some tools.

The discovery was made just before Kirkwood von Wichon, native of Germany serving 7 to 10 years from Chowan county, was to be placed in the solitary confinement cell for violation of camp rules.

Captain Jacobs said the man appeared willing to be confined in the cell, but was anxious to return to his usual cell before being locked in the punishment compartment.

His suspicion aroused the superintendent ordered a search of his cell and also of the solitary confinement cell. The key, practically completed, was made from a piece of a bed. An almost perfectly shaped knife with the blade formed from a piece of shovel and the handle from a celluloid comb, also was found. They had been made with a file, pair of pliers and hammer, home-made saw smuggled in.

TWO OFFICIALS ARE ARRESTED

Drug Company Executives Held in 18 Million Shortage

Fairfield, Conn., Dec. 14.—(AP)—F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., and George S. Dietrich, assistant treasurer, were arrested by government agents here today after being served with warrants charging them with violation of the securities act of 1934.

The warrants, issued yesterday by U. S. Commissioner G. Cotler, in New York, were served on the two drug officers at Coster's country mansion, where he is ill, by United States Marshal Bernard Fitch, who came here with assistants from his New Haven office.

The action took place as four separate investigations delved deeper into the mystery of the McKesson & Robbins apparent loss of $18,000,000 in its $87,000,000 listed assets.

Both Coster and Dietrich waived hearing and were placed under $5,000 bond each for their appearance in the Southern New York Federal District court when called.

The attorneys representing Coster and Dietrich said their clients would post bond later today.

Only One of Four Allotted to Louisiana

Washington, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace announced today the selection of Peoria, Ill., New Orleans, La., a point in the Philadelphia area and one in the San Francisco Bay area for locations of the four $1,000,000 regional agricultural research laboratories.

The Peoria laboratory will serve the northern region; the one at New Orleans the Southern region; the one in the Philadelphia area the Eastern region and the one in the San Francisco Bay area the Western region.

Officials explained the designation of the Philadelphia area for the Eastern region and the San Francisco Bay area for the Western region, meant that the laboratories for those areas would be located within the general vicinity of the two cities.

FRANCE NOT TO YIELD AN INCH

Bonnet Says Germany And Italy Been So Advised

Paris, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Bonnet announced today France had informed both Italy and Germany directly that she would never yield an inch of territory in response to Fascist demands.

Bonnet's disclosure was made at a meeting of the Chamber of Deputies committee on Foreign affairs, where he was questioned on Italian demands for Tunisia and other Mediterranean lands.

Deputies quoted Bonnet as saying he had told German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop of the French determination when the Nazi leader visited Paris last week to sign the French-German friendship accord.

He was told, as was Foreign Minister Count Ciano by the French Ambassador in Rome that even if it meant war France would not give up any of her Empire.

Bonnet quoted von Ribbentrop as replying that Germany was "not interested" in Mediterranean problems, although she remained loyal to the Rome-Berlin axis.

Ciano's response was said to have been that the Italian government denied responsibility for the "spontaneous" demonstrations in the Chamber of Deputies, newspapers, and on the streets demanding French territory and that Premier Mussolini alone could not make any such claims formally.

Several Are Injured In Subway Explosion

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Three or more passengers of a Brooklyn-Manhattan subway train were cut by glass today when an explosion in the new Sixth Avenue subway excavation tore a hole in the side of the B-M-T tube and scattered debris against a train.

The new subway line parallels the Thirty-Fifth street station of the B-M-T at that point, although it is deeper in the ground.

The officers of the B-M-T in Brooklyn said their early reports of the accident were sketchy and they did not know if four persons were hurt.

BELIEF GROWS GERMANY WILL ANNEX MEMEL

Diplomatic Quarters Berlin Feel Action Matter Weeks

NAZI MAJORITY CONTROLS DIET

Election Regarded as Invitation to Hitler to Step in, Acquire Territory

Berlin, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Berlin diplomatic quarters expressed the belief today that annexation of Memel territory by Adolf Hitler's Greater Germany is but a matter of weeks.

Events were believed moving at such a fast pace that Hitler might be able to call the Reichstag together January 30, the sixth anniversary of his rise to power, to welcome 150,000 Memel Germans into the fatherland.

Diplomatic quarters felt that Tuntians had ripened within the 1,096 square miles of territory which Lithuania took from Germany after the World war for a decisive step late in January, when the newly chosen Memel Diet (Parliament) meets.

It was believed that the almost unanimously German Diet elected Sunday on the issue of the people's avowal to Germanism would precipitate the issue by voting that Memel belongs to Germany.

In that fashion Hitler would be invited to step in, this quarters reasoned, on the basis that it was the will of the people of Memel.

BLUES SINGER WEDS PIANIST

Ruth Etting Marries Man Ex-Husband Allegedly Shot

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 14.—(AP)—In a swift-moving accompaniment to the trial in Los Angeles of her former husband, Martin Snyder, for attempted murder, Miss Ruth Etting was married here today to Myrl Alderman, the former pianist whom Snyder is accused of shooting.

The ceremony took place in the chambers of Judge William Orr a few minutes after 9 o'clock (PST). Immediately after the ceremony the party left for the airport to return to Los Angeles in the chartered plane.

The Rev. C. H. Sloan, who had been called to the court house half an hour before, performed the ceremony.

The move added a new tangle in the now sensational case. Miss Etting was quoted by police after the shooting of Alderman last October 15 as saying they were married. This she denied later when the Los Angeles grand jury indicted Snyder.

Los Angeles, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The familiar story of the love of two women for a man—known to dramatists as "the eternal triangle"—opened a new chapter today at the trial of Martin Snyder on charges that she shot Myrl Alderman, accompanist for his blues-singing former wife, Ruth Etting.

Alderman, prodded under cross-examination by defense counsel, admitted his love for the blonde singer and added that he hoped to marry her when the divorce of his second wife, Alma, becomes final.

ANGER MOUNTS OVER BOYCOTT

Chamberlain's Statement Made as Ire Increases Over "Vacant Chair" Rebuff by Germany at Premier's Address Before Foreign Press Association

London, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain served notice in the House of Commons today that any Italian aggression toward French Tunisia would be a "matter of grave concern" to the British government.

He made the statement in reply to a question whether "undertakings in respect of the status quo in the Mediterranean as embodied in the British-Italian agreement applied to Tunisia."

While he spoke, anger grew in Parliamentary circles over unusual Nazi rebuff last night when German diplomats and newsmen boycotted a dinner at which Chamberlain simultaneously Dr. Halmer Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, arrived in London for economic talks.

Chamberlain declared before Commons that "certainly" the status quo agreement applied to Tunisia. Meanwhile the Nazi "vacant chair" rebuff to Chamberlain for criticism of the German press headed for House of Commons debate, amid speculation whether a positive barrier was developing to full peace understanding between the two countries.

The Labor party drafted a question to the house for explanation today of the absence of the German Ambassador and Nazi press representatives from the Foreign Press Association dinner.

This likely will be followed by review of British-German relations during full dress foreign affairs debate on Monday before the Christmas recess.

The Germans declined invitations to the important dinner after reading advance copies of Chamberlain's speech.

It criticized a German press reference to former Premier Baldwin as a "guttersnipe" and cautiously warned aggression that "attempts at domination are never long successful."

Here Is The Christmas List Of Opportunities

Food, Clothing, Fuel Etc., Needed By Many Families

Here they are folks. Take your choice and for a small amount of money bring Christmas cheer, happiness and even the barest necessities of life to some family which otherwise probably will go hungry, cold and without any holiday cheer this yuletide.

Of the 130 opportunities listed with the Service League, 55 already have been taken. Forty appear in today's issue of the Reflector, with others to be printed as the first list is taken.

Those cases already taken were instances where individuals or organizations have reported persons or families in need and at the same time agreed to provide for them.

The Service League is anxious that this procedure be followed in order to eliminate duplications and omissions. If a person or organization knows of a needy case and plans to provide for it, it is important that it be reported to the League.

Sponsors are stressing the importance of giving staples—such as substantial food, clothing, fuel, etc., rather than something which would be of less service to those actually in need.

There is only a short time left and persons are urged to pick out an opportunity and call the Service League as soon as possible. The organization is serving as a clearing house and through this method it is hoped that not a single needy family will be forgotten this Christmas.

Arrangements have been made with grocery stores, coal and wood yards whereby special prices will be allowed for purchases for the needy.

The partial list of opportunities follows: Call the Thrift Shop or Mrs. Will Whedbee for the name and address of the number chosen.

Sans Souci Meets.

On Tuesday afternoon the Sans Souci Book Club was entertained with a lovely Christmas program by Mrs. J. L. Kilgo at her home on Ninth street.

There were nineteen members present. Her guests were Mrs. Rivers, Mrs. Hillman and Mrs. Dowdy, from New Bern.

After the business session, which consisted of roll call, minutes, passing books, collecting dues and a donation of $5 to be used at Christmas for some needy cause, a chorus of young people from the high school under the direction of Miss Shindler, sang two carols, namely "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Silent Night." They were placed in the back living room. Miss Louise Kilgo, daughter of the hostess, sang "Cantique De Noel," accompanied by Miss Shindler. The highlight of the afternoon was a Christmas story, "The Keeper of the Stable," by Henry Booth, read by Mrs. Hillman in her most gracious manner. At the time our Saviour was born, Hosea, who years before had lost his devoted wife, Ruita, was the keeper of the inn at Bethlehem, where on a cold, dreary day Joseph and Mary came to pay their taxes as required by the Roman government. Seeing there was no room in the inn, and having seen the angelic face of Mary and her distress, he made his own bed comfortable for her. He opened his trunk and gave to her the clothes that his wife had made for their baby, which had never been used.

After the baby came, Hosea slept on the outside of the door, keeping watch; while there, Joshua and two shepherds came to find the Christ-child and the angelic host from Heaven sang: "Glory to God in the Highest"—all of which he could not understand.

A vision from his wife, Ruth, telling him of the greatness of his kindness and explaining to him the meaning of it all made him feel that she was near and knew that the Messiah they had been looking for had come to bring Peace on Earth.

A salad course with fruit cake was served by Mrs. J. H. Blount, Miss Louise Kilgo and Mrs. Kilgo.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. B. Kiltrell January 10th. —Reported.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Ingo Galdston, M.D.

Food and Vitamin C

The absence of vitamin C from the diet results, in time, in the development of the disastrous condition known as scurvy. The symptoms of this disease are manifold.

The principal defect is witnessed in the fragility of the capillaries, in the smallest of blood vessels, and the consequent tendency of the sufferer to bleeding within the tissues. Disease of the gums and of the mucous membranes is an associated and treated symptom.

Adults eating a restricted diet in which there is a lack of fruit and green vegetables are likely to suffer from vitamin C starvation. Infants and young children fed mainly on milk are also prone to suffer from what is termed sub-clinical scurvy.

It is then highly desirable that care should be taken to include in the diet the foods that are rich in vitamin C. One needs not be much concerned about the quantity of vitamin C consumed daily provided the diet eaten includes one or more of the foods listed below.

The richest sources of vitamin C are oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tomatoes, green peppers and raw cabbage. Tangerines and fresh strawberries are also excellent sources of vitamin C.

Among the common vegetables spinach, brussels sprouts, kale, broccoli, beets and beet leaves, dandelion and turnip greens, parsley, provided they are not cooked excessively and are eaten soon after being prepared, are good sources.

Less rich in vitamin C, but still good sources are the following foods: apples, bananas, pineapple, potatoes, green beans and green peas. Lettuce, escarole, onions, cauliflower, parsnips also contain some vitamin C but in amounts quantitatively less than the foods listed above.

Negatively, it should be observed that cooked meat muscle contains practically no vitamin C nor do butter, eggs and cheese. Milk contains only a little of vitamin C, and that is usually destroyed during pasteurization or boiling.

To the adult the greatest danger of vitamin C starvation as well as that of other vitamins and mineral wants, lies in self-imposed dietary restrictions for weight reduction or in the self-treatment of disease. If you must "diet" be certain that you do not suffer vitamin starvation.

To raise or not to raise the hat—that's the question many men ask in cold weather.

Must a gentleman remove his hat when he's talking to a lady no matter how cold the day or how long the conversation? Yes, he must; and remove it completely, not just touch it. He may put it back on in zero weather, but in warmer weather he must hold it in his hand until the conversation is over.

He also must take off his hat. When greeting another man who is accompanied by a lady.

When accompanied by a lady or who greets a passing lady or gentleman.

When entering a semi-public place such as an art gallery or a club.

When standing at attention during the playing of the national anthem—or when the flag goes by.

A gentleman removes his hat when he's in an elevator in a hotel, apartment, club or other residence. In a business building he may leave it on, although many men insist on removing their hats in buildings in which their own offices are located—since they are likely to meet friends for whom they will have to remove them anyway.

Which hat is proper for what occasion?

Tails call for a collapsible opera or silk hat, says Raymond G. Twyford, chairman of the national fashion committee of the Merchant Tailors Association of America.

The dinner jacket is accompanied by an opera hat or a black or blue Homburg; never a derby. (The dinner jacket, by the way, is properly called just that—not a "Tux.") The term Tuxedo sprang up because

C. W. ROBERTS ON 'HOT SPOT'

Motor Club Manager Embarrassed Over Diversion

Raleigh, Dec. 13—Occupant of perhaps the "hottest" spot in the diversion battle sure to break in the General Assembly is Coleman W. Roberts, of Charlotte, head of the Carolina Motor Club.

Reason for this comes about from Mr. Roberts' close liaison with Governor Clyde R. Hoey, on the one hand, and his official connection with so many hundreds, even thousands, of car owners and operators upon whom the burden of diversion falls.

The Governor is an open, avowed and fighting opponent of any Constitutional amendment prohibiting diversion. Mr. Roberts is very closely allied with the Governor in the State's advertising program and its Hospitality Committee activities. He would be hard put to it to go back on the occupant of the gubernatorial chair and take an open stand in favor of the amendment.

On the other hand, there is hardly a doubt that the vast majority of motor car owners, the folks who make up the Carolina Motor Club, are in favor of prohibiting diversion even to the extent of enacting a Constitutional amendment to that effect.

fashionable men at Tuxedo wore dinner jackets).

Derbies are for day wear only.

Cutaways call for top hats—not collapsible opera hats. The latter should be worn only during formal evening affairs. Cutaways, of course are designed for such formal daytime occasions as weddings held before six o'clock.

HIGHS WIN IN OPENING TILT

Greenville Is Pushed Hard to Beat Winterville 18-15

In a thrill-packed battle over the entire route the GHS Phantom basketball five successfully opened their 1938-39 cage campaign with an 18-15 victory over the Wildcats of Winterville High in the high school gym last night.

In the preliminary game the Winterville lassies eked out a 17-16 decision over the Lady Phantoms of GHS.

John Lautares with 7 points and Tracy Jordan with 4 points paced the scoring of the Phantom quint. George Sakas and Larry James, forwards, each garnered 3 points, playing a hang-up defensive game. Stocks and McGowan also displayed a fine brand of defensive work.

For Winterville, Hobgood and Bowling were best. Hobgood, a very fast-stepping forward, accounted for five of his team's 15 points, and offered a fine, all-around game.

The game was closely contested all the way and offered many thrills to the fair-sized crowd of spectators who turned out for the initial Greenies' contest. Winterville got the lead during the early minutes of play, but the G-men quickly overtook the visitors and was in the lead the rest of the game. However, until the final whistle the Phantoms were hard pressed by the Wildcats, who threatened the Greenville basket frequently.

The score at the half was 12-7 in favor of Greenville.

The principal weakness of the Phantoms in their first game was their passing. At times bad passes probably cost them sure points. The defensive play of the Greenies was unusually good for the first game.

The lineup and individual scoring is as follows:

Winterville: forwards—Hobgood 5, C. Forrest 2 and James; center—Bowling 4; guards—H. Forrest 4, and Peade.

Greenville: forwards—Sakas 3 and Jordan 4; center—James 3; guards—Lautares 7, McGowan 1 and Stocks. Officials: Ridenhour (ECTC) and Shelton (ECTC).

GOBBLED PILE OF FOOD: COLLECTED BILL OF $40

Chicago (AP)—Louis Stein, 50, ordered a hamburger at a Lawrence street restaurant and ate it. He kept on ordering hamburgers and a crowd gathered to watch him.

He was cheered as he gulped hamburger number 22 and started downing two quarts of ice cream.

He wiped his mouth 25 minutes after the first hamburger, then turned to Sam Roth and collected $40. Sam had bet Louis he couldn't do it within two hours.

GEORGIA TO SEE GREEN THIS WINTER

Athens, Ga. (AP)—Regardless of what the fashion experts decree, Agronomist E. D. Alexander says bright green is going to be the color on Georgia farms this winter.

"The secret of obtaining the right shades of green," he explained, "is to plant plenty of winter legumes, such as Austrian winter peas, hairy vetch and clover."

In addition to providing a good color effect, Alexander went on, these crops will protect the land from winter erosion, build up fertility and provide valuable stock feed.

The area and population of India are roughly equal to those of the whole of Europe, including Russia.

Modern scientific research indicates that long life is principally hereditary, though factors of environment and habits also are important.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
New York—Say, Uncle Tuck, how about telling us a story? All right, Children, but you'll have to be good and sit quietly and not talk. We'll be good, Uncle Tuck. Well, let me see. Once upon a time there were three brothers and their names were Howell, Edward and James. Howell was the eldest and he became a lawyer. Edward, the second brother, became a chemist. And James, the baby, became an orchestra leader. Now maybe you know all about James, but not by that name. Because that's the name his mother calls him by when she doesn't call him Baby. But that's not the name everybody calls him by. Everybody else calls him Kay, and when you remember that his last name is Kyser, why who in the world could it be but Kay Kyser, the man who introduced singing titles to radio? Gee, Uncle Tuck, who told you all those interesting things? Ah, that's a secret, but if you won't tell, I'll tell you in on it Kay's

New Safety Message To Reach State's Motorists

YOUR CHILD Will she be Next?

HIGHWAY SAFETY CAMPAIGN CONDUCTED BY
DIVISION OF HIGHWAY SAFETY
State of North Carolina

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Dec. 14—The North Carolina Highway Safety Division will co-operate in erection at strategic points along the highway of a striking and dramatic safety poster, according to announcement of Director Ronald Hocutt.

This new move on the safety front is expected to have a pronounced effect in calling attention of motorists to highway safety. Mr. Hocutt said. The Safety Division is co-operating with the Outdoor Advertising Association of North Carolina and the Esso Safety Foundation, he added, for the third time in erecting a series of posters.

The new poster, which will probably be seen on all highways next week, is the picture of a young school girl, holding her books in her arms, with the hand of death seen behind her, and is captioned "Your Child Will She Be Next? The first pictured a motorist holding an injured child in his arms, with the captain "What Have I Done?" and was the subject of much favorable comment on the part of highway safety authorities.

The second poster showed a patrolman on a motorcycle, with his finger pointed at an imaginary traffic law violator, and contained the striking caption "Only Fools Drive Recklessly" mother told me herself. Yes, sir, she's visiting here from her home in Rocky Mount, N. C., and while James was out rehearsing a broadcast this afternoon I went up to see her. We talked for nearly an hour, and would you believe it, she has a broken arm. Yes, sir, she broke it just before coming to New York, but it's getting better now and she no longer carries it in a sling.

All three of the posters are contributions of Hayden Hayden, nationally recognized poster artist.

Well, we were talking about Kay and his orchestra and she told me that one night Howell—that's Kay's eldest brother, remember?—came to visit her, and they were listening to Kay on the radio, and when Kay's program was finished she reached right over and turned off the radio.

When she did this Howell asked, "What's the matter, Mother?" And Mrs. Kyser told him: "But James' program is over."

Then Howell laughed and said: "Mother, I know this will be hard for you to believe, and it may come as something of a shock, but there are other orchestras on the air and believe it or not, some of them are pretty good."

Well, sir, she laughed and laughed when she told me that, because, as she put it, "For me radio begins and ends with James."

LITTLE FISH TO GET A BIG RIDE IN 'CHUTES

Billings, Mont. (AP)—As an experiment a few baby trout soon are to take a parachute ride from an airplane into a lake to determine whether they can survive.

If successful, the parachute jumps will become a routine method of getting the small fish from hatcheries into the lakes that are difficult to reach by horse trail.

The small fish will be dropped in parchment vessels that will hold the fish and a small quantity of water. When the vessels strike the water they are expected to capsize and the fish will be liberated in the lake.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

Chapter 35

"How Did He Do It?"

"It was Elizabeth, Barney wanted to marry—" Annie said.

"Then what happened?" I asked.

"Anne Carewe happened, that's what. She's a bitter jealous one and she wants what belongs to others. She'd had Barney for a while, and Elizabeth took him away from her, not by anything she did but just by being herself. So then Anne must have him back, and when all else fails she comes to Elizabeth herself and tells her there's reasons why Barney should marry her. I think myself she was stretching the truth. And whether it was the truth or not made little difference in Elizabeth's eyes. She told him he'd have Anne to marry, and that was the end of that."

"But—but she couldn't make him!"

Annie smiled a wintry smile.

"You don't know the ways of the service very well, yet, do you?" she asked gently. "There's a thing called 'conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman'; and there was an officer went on trial for his life."

"But it wouldn't have come to that here. All Elizabeth had to do was drop a hint to her father—and she would have done it too. It was either marry Anne or hand in his resignation. And they're not trained for much outside, these lads."

There was something I had to ask her, whether it was my business or not, whether it drew down her wrath or tore her stout old heart.

It did neither.

"Anne my daughter?" she repeated coolly. "Do you think if she was I'd tell you? Do you think if she was I'd not still see her faults?" She paused, went deep into memory. "My man was blackhearted with jealousy; but he was a good man for all that."

Her old eyes rested on me, remembered me.

"Anne my daughter? She'd be proud to own me, wouldn't she? Me—the colonel's cook. Yes, I can see that if my girl had lived and Evvie Carewe's had not, that in those first black years I might have given her where she'd have a chance in life. I might... No, Elizabeth's all the daughter I've got. I've had the molding of her, me and her father. We couldn't keep her from this kind of thing, but we made her strong. She'll get over this. She'll never forget it, but she'll get well of it..."

Someone rapped lightly and stepped into the hall.

"Anybody home?" came Mrs. Flower's piercing stage whisper.

"Oh, here you are, Annie—and Kay!"

She looked around inquiringly.

"Elizabeth was all in—we made her go to bed," I said, and Annie's eyes met mine in gratitude. "She—she saw him, you know—afterward."

Mrs. Flower clucked sympathetically.

"What a dreadful shock! If you weren't expecting it, I mean."

I stared at her. "You don't mean to say you were?"

"Well—not suicide of course. Not exactly. And I don't understand how he did it, even yet. What I mean to say—I was telling Flower it must have been Barney. That was really why we went to the hospital—to tell Adam, only I didn't get a proper chance, and I think maybe he'd seen it already. That it had to be Barney, I mean. On account of the prize..."

"We Were Dense"

NEVERTHELESS, there were a few empty plates when we escaped from the table into the living room, and there was no small talk when we had found places to sit—only questioning eyes fixed on Adam.

He had changed to my uniform and was his old, immaculate self, but he was pale, and there were ghosts in his eyes.

"You'll be glad to learn that the chances of Anne's recovery are better every hour," he said gravely from his stand in front of the cold fire.

"How did he do it, Adam?" someone asked softly.

Adam glanced toward his colonel.

"You may as well tell them now," said the older man.

Adam said, as if continuing a previous conversation, "We were all dense. We might have seen it hours ago but for the fact that Barney was dancing with Anne and there were no powder marks around the wound. That was his alibi, and we did not question it. He, of us all, could not shoot the girl with whom he was dancing."

"The stabbing—yes, his alibi there was weak. He had just started back after sugar for the Shaws' coffee when the lights went out—so he said. Yet Shaw drank his coffee and remarked afterward that he wondered what was wrong with it. You didn't drink that coffee in the dark, did you, Shaw?"

"That's a fact," admitted Shaw, his face long with chagrin. "It was hot too—thought it would never cool."

"Then about the light in the dressing room. He could see that wrap on the rack when he passed the door. He had to go out the stage entrance, come into the dressing room and pass the open door to reach the stairs. To give himself a margin of safety he wanted the light out, and he had to turn it out from the ballroom side. There was not much risk to that—he didn't know Lou was in the wash room—and the Shaws were some distance away in the lounge. But in case either of them saw him pause by that door he invented the fiction of having heard something. The woman moaning was a good touch, because that came later, and it strengthened his alibi."

"The weapon was in his car. He had taken it when he stopped by here to find Elizabeth. The outside door of the dressing room was unlocked, wasn't it, Kay?"

"Yes, I locked it afterward, when we were searching for the knife."

"He went in that way, snatched the wrap from the hanger, reached the balcony and saw Kay. He had to do some quick thinking then—there was no way to get past her without being seen. So he stepped into a vacant room, threw a rolled-up blanket on the floor, groaned and waited for her to come. You've all heard the straight of that. Then, when he had done what he came to do, he short-circuited the lights

Breakfast

"THE—the what?"

"The prize. You know, for the balloon dance, Lieutenant Shaw certainly said there was to be a prize. But we searched that place, don't you remember? Did you see a prize? Of course not. There wasn't any!"

Annie started for the kitchen.

"I'll be fixing some breakfast," she said stolidly. "You'll be staying, Mrs. Flower." There was old-fashioned courtesy in the words and in the voice.

"Oh dear—there's Gilly; still, I suppose he'd had his. And I told Flower I'd wait for him here. Yes, thank you, Annie, I'll stay."

"What are they all doing?" I asked when the swinging door had closed on Annie.

"Arranging things," vaguely.

"There were some reporters. How these things do get around!"

She gave a sudden little squeal.

"My dear! I forgot to tell you! Imagine my forgetting that of all things when Adam sent me specially to tell you—and that he's all right, coming around nicely and nothing dislocated' or anything. I stood up and glared at her.

"Adam—hurt?"

"Oh no, no, no, no, no! Dear me, how clumsy I am. Not Adam. And not hurt. Charlie, I mean. We found him, you know, Flower and I, behind the shed at the target range. Barney had struck him. Anyway, he was knocked out. And nothing to be ashamed of, either, with Barney so much bigger and all, and Charlie not expecting it, besides. Because while he was supposed to watch Barney, of course he thought that meant guarding Barney from the murderer and not the murderer from Barney—that is, of course Barney was the murderer; but what I mean to say, Charlie didn't dream that, and I think Charlie was lucky it was only just a good clean blow."

For once in a lifetime she ran completely down. And in the moment of silence Lou Orpington appeared in the doorway. She had forgotten her toothbrush, and Mary Shaw was with her, and if it was all right they'd just come in and wait until the men got through with whatever they were doing, and oh no (vaguely), they'd had a bite of breakfast—they hadn't come for that—well, just a cup of coffee, if one were urged.

In the end they all came to breakfast—a casual, but adequate meal for those who wanted it; presided over by Colonel Wright with as much charm and dignity as if the guests had just returned from a drug hunt instead of that vastly more grim morning pursuit of a man.

SANTA AND THE LOST PRINCESS

THE STORY SO FAR: The mean Queen and her army are on their way to Santa's Toyland, where the little lost princess, Hulda, has taken refuge.

Chapter Nine

A TRICK

Santa was out in the snow walking up and down between two of his reindeer named Dunder and Blitzen, when the wind fairies arrived to warn him of the mean Queen's plans.

The fairies saw his red suit from far off so they swooped straight up to him and down around his head and blew his cap high in the air, and caught it again, and plopped it down on his long white hair. He chuckled and shouted, "Hey! What are you little ones up to?"

Then the fairies, all looking like tiny ladies in very soft, gray dresses, settled down on the ground around him. The leader stood in front and said, "Oh, Santa, we're bearers of bad news. We've just come from the mean Queen's kingdom, and she is marching her whole army toward the Toyshop. She's the owner of that witch you imprisoned."

"Good gracious," said Santa, his eyes fairly popping. "What in the world shall we do? We have no way of meeting an army, and we must make toys or all the children will be so disappointed on Christmas. Good gracious!"

Even Dunder and Blitzen could understand the situation was serious. Dunder nudged Santa with his soft nose and Blitzen just hung his head. Santa thanked the wind fairies for their long journey and excused himself to go into the Toyshop for a conference. You see, he couldn't take the wind fairies along because they would have blown everything off the shelves.

Very Dejected

But the conference did no good. None of the dolls or fairies felt they could protect the Toyshop from a company of great, big men with spears. So they all looked very dejected; all except Mrs. Santa who was knitting some white woolly socks for Santa. The more everyone talked the more angry she became. Her little plump cheeks grew quite red and her big blue eyes snapped and her needles clicked so hard and fast they almost snapped. Finally she put her knitting down and said: "Those big men should be ashamed coming here. They deserve to have a trick played on them."

"What sort of trick?" said Santa hopefully. He always found that Mrs. Santa had very good ideas.

"Like food," she said. "You can be sure the mean Queen is going to walk them miles before she gives them any thought. And they're big men that will get very hungry—"

"Well, for goodness sake," said Santa, "what can we do about it?"

"Why, we'll bake them pies like they've never seen, and then they won't harm us no matter what the Queen wants them to do," said Mrs. Santa.

The Most Wonderful Pies

Just then there was a "pop" from the Christmas tree and there on one of the branches shone a tiny, bright little star from the crown of a tiny, little lady who was quite out of breath. It was the Queen of Fairies. She heard the news from the wind fairies and rushed to Santa's aid. Now she said:

"I'll help you Mrs. Santa. Only we won't leave the pies here for the men to eat. I and my fairies will take them and put them down in front of the men as they march, and then we'll see what will happen."

"Fine, but what will happen?" said Santa. The Fairy Queen tinkled a little laugh like a tiny silver bell and said, "Wait and see."

So Mrs. Santa rushed to the kitchen. In a twinkling she and her fairies were making the most wonderful pies: blueberry and apple and peach and mince-meat. Pretty soon every ledge and table was covered with them, and then they were all popped into the oven.

In an hour the pies were all baked out on the table and ledges, steaming and brown and crisp and smelling so good.

"Now," said the Fairy Queen, "I'll take them." So she flew to the window and waved her scepter. The windows flew open and suddenly all the pies disappeared. The kitchen was empty and the Fairy Queen was gone.

"Well," Santa said, "wonder what now. All we can do is to wait."

Tomorrow: The Queen loses her army.

Discovery of a sharp change in the properties of the earth at that depth is reported in Nature by K. E. Bullen of Auckland, N. Z. The evidence is an increase in electrical conductivity, obtained by prospecting with electric current sent deep into the earth.

Backing up the electrical evidence says Mr. Bullen, is the fact that earthquake foci, the subterranean points where the quakes seem to originate, do not go deeper than about 400 miles.

There is also the evidence, he said, of quake waves. They increase speed about 400 miles down, and the higher rate is apparently due to entry at that point into the denser material.

The findings of electricity and seismographs would be explained, Mr. Bullen says, if the earth at 400 miles down is made of olivine. This is a greenish stone, also called chrysolite. Some of the flakes are semi-precious. They are sometimes called green garnet.

The 400-mile form, suggests Mr. Bullen, would have to be made of cubic crystals to account for its density. Normally chrysolite crystals are arthorhombic, an irregular form in three planes.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

New York — Perhaps the earth has a "basement" of green, semi-precious stone at a depth of about 400 miles.

Talks to Students On Safety Leagues

F. E. Fox, safety engineer for the Carolina Motor club, addressed high school and junior high school students this morning in connection with the School Boy patrol he recently organized here.

Two new safety programs also were inaugurated today by Mr. Fox, the Junior Gold Star Drivers and the Bicycle Safety League, both of which have as their aim the encouragement of safety measures.

An additional order for School Boy Patrol uniforms was placed today, finishing out the outfit of 30 originally ordered and adding five more.

Mr. Fox commended the work of Corporal L. L. Jackson of the State Highway Patrol, who has been helping organize the School Boy Patrol.

The Eastern North Carolina convention of Patrols will be held in March and April, just prior to the National convention in Washington, and local youths are expected to be well represented at the district, some of them possibly going to Washington.

With the patrol already working smoothly in the white schools, Mr. Fox declared that work of organizing a similar patrol for colored schools would be started as soon as the schools resume after the Christmas holidays.

Service Division Aids Veterans World War

support of such case, nor does it include the number of appeals prepared.

The Division, too, is supervising guardianship of incompetent veterans and of minors of disabled or deceased veterans. Figures in the report show 617 incompetent veterans, 61 incompetent widows and minors, 851 minors for a total of 1,529 under guardianship, with total investments of $2,296,260.14 and cash in bank (June 30, 1933) of $296,336.55 making a total estate of $2,592,596.69 under supervision by the Division.

The Division still has not reached the peak of its load, Mr. Lang warns in the report: "Those who have made a study of the problem of caring for disabled veterans, including officials of the Veterans' Administration, state that the peak load of number of World War veterans breaking down and requiring financial relief or care will not be reached before 1940," he wrote.

The report indicates that beginning with the first of 1939 the Division will be called on to assume increased responsibilities. After that date all death claims will be handled in the Regional office of the Veterans' Administration, thereby increasing the work of the state Division, Mr. Lang reports.

"There are now between 35 and 40 World War veterans dying each month in North Carolina and the claims of the dependents are prepared and prosecuted by the Division" the report said.

"When the Veterans Administration hospital is opened at Fayetteville, which will be in the latter part of 1939, the duties of the Division will be increased immensely. North Carolina has the largest number of World War veterans in any state of the South, except Texas, and the smallest appropriation for Veterans' Service Division" it continues.

SEA SCOUTS OUTWARD BOUND

Open water cruising under skipper's competent leadership (inset) is part of the fun every Sea Scout anticipates. Any member of the Boy Scouts of America, 15 years or older, may enjoy Sea Scouting, one of the Senior Scout programs. The local Sea Scout ship, William Pitt, was commissioned at appropriate ceremonies here this afternoon at the wharf, which was made available for use of the Scouts by Carlos Harris.

STATE EXHIBIT PLANS PUSHED

Display for World's Fair Discussed With Artist

Raleigh, Dec. 14—Plans for North Carolina's exhibit at the 1939 Fair in New York were greatly advanced by the four-day visit here of Xani Schawinski (yet, that's the name) of the Jenter Exhibit Company which is in charge of constructing the Tar Heel exhibit.

Mr. Schawinski is an artist designer of wide experience. He will have practically a free hand in preparing the North Carolina exhibit.

During his stay in Raleigh, the artist visited the various state agencies, spending more than a little time in the museum and the historical library in order to get a thorough background knowledge of the situation. He has asked to "borrow" numerous items from the museum and the library to place in the exhibit.

The State News office furnished him with some hundred pictures of North Carolina industries, recreational activities and show places. This will be used for making the panorama which will be a feature of the Tar Heel display in New York.

Mr. Schawinski said that one wall of the exhibit will be covered with panels of North Carolina marble and granite, another with alternating strips of hard wood grown in this state and another with North Carolina aluminum. The floors and walls of the exhibit will, as previously announced be built from cotton.

The artist is no stranger in North Carolina. He once served two years as head of the art department at Black Mountain College. A native of Switzerland and a traveler over practically all parts of the globe, he says that North Carolina's Blue Ridge and Smokies are unique of all the earth's mountains in their cover of smoky haze.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Demand for anti-aircraft and other shares in line to benefit from the U. S. proposed defense spending helped impart a little speed today to a stock market upturn.

Some of the aviations went up to new peaks for the year and numerous gains ranging to more than a point were rung up on the quotations board before the fourth hour.

Corporate bonds mostly made additional recovery progress.
