REBEL FORCES REPORT GAINS IN NEW DRIVES

Four Breaks in Government's Catalan Front

FRANCO SEEKING TO END THE WAR

Suicide of British Spy Suspect Interpreted Two Ways by Border Inhabitants

Zaragoza, Spain Dec. 23.—(AP)—The insurgent high command announced today that the Government's front in Catalonia, northeastern Spain, had been broken in four places by the first onslaughts of a new insurgent offensive.

For a month reports from both sides in the Spanish Civil war have described insurgent preparations for a major offensive by which it was said General Franco hoped to end the war, now in its 30th month.

But the drive has been delayed, partly because of the officially confirmed leakage of Franco's military plans to the Barcelona government and a resultant widespread spy hunt in insurgent Spain, and partly because of bad weather.

Dispatches reaching Bourg-Madame, France on the Spanish frontier today said Franco's Moroccans had launched six separate attacks in falling snow and near zero weather against Government lines along the Segre river, near Tremp, but that all had been thrown back.

Hendaye, France, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Dispatches reporting the suicide of a British Consulate employee following his arrest in an alleged widespread insurgent spy plot was interpreted in two ways today on the border.

Reports from within insurgent Spain said the suicide was an admission of guilt in the espionage networks and indicated the dead man—identified in a Burgos dispatch only as "Permin"—a consulate porter—had tried to smuggle military information out in the British consular automobile.

Government sources, however, scoffed at the suicide report and declared the arrested man had been executed. The suicide report, they said, was issued officially to support the insurgent side of the alleged espionage plot.

Two Negroes Held In Local Robbery

Two Negroes are being held in city jail here in connection with the theft of one, and perhaps a dozen or more, suits of men's clothes from the College View Cleaners here.

One of the Negroes, Patrick Henry Thomas, has been working at the cleaning establishment for some time, and Roy L. Tripp, proprietor, declared that during that time he had missed possibly 15 or 20 suits. The other Negro being held is Charles Thomas, brother of Patrick Henry. Charles is an enrollee of a CCC camp near New Bern. He is alleged to have purchased one or more suits from the cleaning and pressing firm employee. The local Negro was arrested here and his brother at his home near Bethel last night.

COSTER'S SUICIDE NOTE BLAMES WALL ST. BLACKMAIL

It was a case of who would hurt the company in Remond's first to stop the regular first Wall Street lawyers, on the board man. As God is my judge I am the victim of Wall Street plunder and blackmail in a struggle for honest existence. Oh merciful God bring the truth to light.

Here's the closing sentence in F. Donald Coster's suicide note in which the late arch swindler and president of McKesson & Robbins Drug company blamed "Wall Street plunder and blackmail" for his predicament.

BREAK TALKED WITH GERMANY

Diplomatic Circles Speculate on Complete Rupture

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Diplomatic circles here openly speculated today on possibilities of a complete rupture of German-American relations, but State Department officials termed such discussions premature.

No effort was made in government quarters, however, to minimize the critical stage reached with the United States' barred rejection of a German protest against Secretary Ickes' recent attack on Nazi policies.

Word went out from the State Department that the United States would take no further steps unless forced to by Germany.

Hopes were expressed privately the Hitler government would heed the blunt statement of Acting Secretary of States Welles that Ickes' views were those of the majority of Americans.

Coinciding with Welles' plain speaking to Dr. Hans Thomsen, the German Charge d'Affaires, was a personal condemnation of Germany, Japan and all forms of dictatorial government by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Officers 'Crack Down' On State Quail Bootleggers

Reflecting Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 23.—Officers of the game and inland fisheries division of the Department of Conservation and Development are "cracking down" vigorously on bootleggers of quail and other game birds; and dealers in this illicit traffic have already felt the mailed fist of the law in several instances, according to Commissioner John D. Chalk. Within the past week four persons have been convicted of selling or possessing for sale quail. These convictions were secured through evidence developed by "under cover" agents of the division. The four were arrested in Durham December 17 by a special agent of the division. Two were women. Three were offering the quail for sale in a booth of the Farmers' Exchange while the fourth was ar-

Manteo, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Captain William Barnett and a crew from the Oak Island coast guard station landed a sick seaman from the American steamer Scottsburg early today and sent him to a Southport hospital. BLAMES LOVER FOR SHOOTING

Sixty-Year-Old Man Held in Death Of 17-Year-Old Girl

Whiteville, N. C., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A 17-year-old girl was dead today, her father critically wounded and a 60-year-old man under arrest as a result of a shooting scrape last night that Sheriff H. D. Stanley said was attributed to "jealousy, as far as we can learn now."

The sheriff said the dead girl was Geneva Grainger and her father was William Grainger, 38, operator of a filling station near a rural community 10 miles south of here.

Miss Grainger was shot twice in the body, the sheriff said, and a few minutes later. Her father also was shot in the body, the bullet lodging near the spine, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Stanley said John B. Stanley, 60-year-old filling station operator, was under guard at a hospital where he was under treatment for wounds on the head.

The officer quoted Robert Grainger, described as a bystander, as saying he disarmed John Stanley and struck him on the head with the pistol after the shooting.

Grainger, now quoted as saying Geneva was sitting by the side of the young man in the filling station today when Stanley entered.

Sheriff Stanley said John Stanley, a widower for several years, had "been going to see" the Grainger girl.

Coroner Joseph Sikes ordered an inquest Tuesday night.

Robbers In County Raid Turkey Pens

Some people are evidently determined to have a turkey dinner Christmas, regardless of what means they have to resort to to get the choice meat.

The sheriff's office today reported a wave of turkey stealing was under way in the county. A Negro near Ballard's crossroads reported he had three stolen from him this week, another who lives on the Falkland highway said that some one had stolen two from him, and a white man of Gardensville reported five had taken from his pen. In addition, deputies reported, a number of other persons had reported one or more had been stolen.

A quantity of meat also was stolen this week from the smokehouse of Jasper Ross, who lives a quarter of a mile from Mayo's crossroads, on the Belvoir highway. It was reported that seven hams and shoulders were taken.

Store In Raleigh Victim Of Robbery

Raleigh, Dec. 23.—(A)—Sergeant G. E. Lassiter of the Raleigh police department said this afternoon that two men held up W. D. Reeves, assistant manager of the F. W. Woolworth five-and-ten-cent store, here today and escaped from the crowded store with an estimated $125.

Reeves told officers he was going down the steps from the mezzanine office to the first floor of the store, headed for the bank when two men stopped him. He said they pushed a pistol into his ribs and demanded the money which he carried.

Fleeing from the store, officers said the men jumped into an old coupe parked at the corner of Martin and Salisbury streets, in the center of downtown Raleigh and fled.

Of 27 mills in the South for making pulp and paper from pine wood, 11 were built within the last three years.

HUNGARY ACTS TO PROTECT SELF AGAINST JEWS

Europe Is Confronted With New Problem By Latest Move

JEWS IN NATION ARE RESTRICTED

Up to Present Hungary Been Regarded as Comparative Secure Haven for Race

Budapest, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Hungary confronted Europe with a fresh Jewish problem today when the government placed before Parliament sweeping measures to restrict Jews' participation in the economic and political life of the nation.

The anti-Semitic program was introduced in an eight-minute session devoted to reading of a government statement on the Jewish problems. Hungary was obliged to protect herself "against possible infiltration of Jews" from neighboring countries with a population of 200,000,000 in which sharp anti-Jewish measures are being taken, the government of Premier Imredi explained.

In the lower house some government members shouted "this is only the beginning."

Up to now a haven of comparative security for Jews, Hungary seemed definitely headed for restrictive legislation barring thousands of Jews from certain businesses, professions and state employment.

Foreign consulates were expecting a storm of applications or visas from many of Hungary's estimated 60,000 "full Jews" and 200,000 described as "fractional" Jews, in a total population of about 9,000,000.

Vienna, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Several hundred Jews arrested during the anti-Jewish drive which began November 10 were returning today from two concentration camps to spend Christmas in their homes.

They began arriving yesterday and some of them said they had been released after signing pledges to leave Germany within 3 months.

Simultaneously several Jewish families reported they had received notices their men folk had died in concentration camps.

Hopkins Appointed By President To Fill Post Vacated By Sec. Roper

WPA Administrator To be Sworn in at White House Tomorrow; Rumblings Of Opposition are Heard Even Before Appointment Officially Announced

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today named Harry Hopkins to succeed Daniel Roper as Secretary of Commerce.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, announced the appointment and said Hopkins would be sworn in, in President Roosevelt's White House study, tomorrow.

At the same time the President designated Colonel F. C. Harrington to succeed Hopkins as Works Progress Administrator.

Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, will become National Youth administrator, Williams now is executive director of NYA, a part of WPA.

Only a few friends of Hopkins will be present at the ceremony at which he takes his new office tomorrow. He still must be confirmed by the senate, however.

There were rumblings of opposition to his confirmation even before his appointment was announced.

Early said he did not believe senate confirmation would be required for Harrington and he drew distinction between his "designation" and a formal appointment.

Harrington is an army officer and will head WPA on detail from the army. He will draw his regular army pay and receive no remuneration from WPA, the White House said.

While Hopkins' appointment takes care of one of the two cabinet vacancies, the White House did not disclose when the appointment to the successor to Attorney General Cummings might be expected.

Roper's resignation, as Commerce Secretary, is effective today. Cummings resigned effective some time in January.

Explosion Causes Widespread Fear

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Workers in the heart of the financial district were alarmed today by an explosion which rattled the windows of a 50-story skyscraper, the Irving Trust building, at No. 1 Wall street. But nobody was hurt.

Wall Streeters still remember the explosion of September 16, 1920, when a peddler's cart loaded with dynamite blew up in front of the offices of J. P. Morgan and Company, killing 30 persons and injuring 100, and there was considerable confusion today until it was learned an electric transformer on the 21st story setback had blown up.

Lights in the huge building flickered, became dim. Office workers rushed into the corridors and a crowd quickly gathered outside the building. The explosion was followed by clouds of smoke through the man-made canyons and a heavy stream of oil cascaded down the new street side of the building.

The damage was negligible.

Fayetteville Woman Found Burned Death

Fayetteville, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Nancy W. Hair, 62, was found burned to death near her home in the Hope Mills section early today. County officers said her dress apparently had become ignited at an open fireplace and that she collapsed as she made an attempt to get to a nearby creek.

A farmer in Avery county, Western North Carolina, reported a net profit of $370 from 1.1 acre of cabbage.

Big Harvests For 1938 Bring Tumble In Prices

By A. A. PATTON (Associated Press Statistician)

New York — Prices of farm commodities crashed to the lowest levels in four years during 1938, as dwindling demand and large harvests boosted surpluses to record-breaking proportions in some instances.

Unlike industrial staples, which rallied sharply in the business recovery set in during the summer, agricultural commodities registered only the feeblest of comebacks in the final half of the year.

Farm prices, measured by the department of agriculture index, averaged approximately 94 per cent of the 1909-1914 level during the year, 22 per cent under the average for 1937.

The break in quotations resulted in an 11 per cent farm income reduction, according to latest official estimates, from $8,600,000,000 to $7,625,000,000.

Benefit Payments Helped The dip in cash receipts of the farmer during 1938 was cushioned by a $130,000,000 jump in government benefit payments, which are expected to reach $500,000,000.

The farmer fared somewhat better than his city cousin during the recession, however, government data indicates. Industrial workers, including largely urban dwellers, received roughly 15 per cent less this year than last estimates based on department of commerce income data show, while farm income dropped 11 per cent.

BIG MAJORITY GIVEN PREMIER IN TEST VOTE

Daladier Wins Most Overwhelming Vote Since Decrees

DEPUTIES FEAR FOR OWN POSTS

Premier Turns Immediately to Meet Italy's Denunciation of Tunisian Agreement

Paris, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Premier Daladier won a smashing victory today when the Chamber of Deputies, which almost overthrew him yesterday, approved his 1939 ordinary budget by an overwhelming majority.

In an early morning vote the Deputies passed the 66-odd billion franc (about $1,700,000,000) budget, including the government's financial decree law, by a count of 366 to 229.

This was Daladier's third test of strength since yesterday morning. First he escaped overthrow by a margin of seven votes. On the second vote his majority rose to the comparative security of 57 votes and in the final test he won a majority of 137 by his determined stand.

Apparently by the simple method of letting the Deputies frighten themselves by almost throwing his government out, the Premier stood out stronger today than at any time since issued the decree laws which had raised so much protest among the opposition.

Many of the right wing and center deputies who had been wavering came into line after the government's narrow escape, admitting they were afraid to run the risk of overthrowing the government by refraining from voting or by voting against the Premier.

After his victory in the Chamber, Daladier turned immediately to meet Italy's denunciation yesterday of the 1935 Laval-Mussolini agreement regarding Tunisia. France told Premier Mussolini, in effect, that "France offers nothing and she will defend what she has."

French observers interpreted the denunciation as an indication that Mussolini finally was ready to follow up the "unofficial" anti-French demonstrations with an official notice that Italy was not pleased with the Mediterranean situation.

Predicts Success In Sale Of Seals

Dr. N. Thomas Bennett, chairman of the Christmas Seal Sale, today declared that he is getting reports each day from various chairmen throughout the county and expressed the opinion that the Seal Sale will prove a success.

He pointed out that citizens of Pitt county are becoming more and more interested in tuberculosis control. He said that this fact was evidenced by their general support of this year's sale.

Seals are still on sale at the post-office and in various Greenville business establishments.

Those serving at the postoffice today were Mrs. Selma Carson Moore, and Misses Margaret Jones, Viola Walters, Hazel Fornes and Mildred Cahoon.

Burial followed in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Harris was born in Virginia, where he spent most of his life. He moved to Greenville about ten years ago. He is survived by his wife, two sons, two daughters and a brother.

The Greenville branch of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. was host to about 100 employees and guests at a delightful Christmas party given at the hut of the Third street school Tuesday night.

Dancing and games highlighted the entertainment phase of the party, which was made more impressive as a result of the Yuletide decorations in the hut. The Christmas spirit was brought to life by pine, holly and a beautiful Christmas tree.

Tempting sandwiches, pickles, cold drinks and other appetizing delicacies were served to the many employees and guests in attendance.

Goofy '38 Puts Sweet Reason Back on Throne

(By The AP Feature Service)
One comforting thought on the events of 1938—they did follow the rules of logic. Not only the big, world-shaking ones, but the bush league occurrences showed a reasonableness comforting to reporters gone gaga with the dizzy sequences of recent years. First instance:

1. EVEN THE DANCERS junked the crazy old big apple and went on to more reasonable things. Here a couple of U. of Penn boys interpret that triumph of logical rhythm—the jam session.

2. THIS IS HOW a St. Louis employer used his logical facilities when faced with labor picketing. The picket doesn't seem very embarrassed but the "just married" gag was tried elsewhere too.

3. WHEN SALLY RAND loses a bet, she pays off. So it was only logical for her to stand on her head after being convicted of scratching and biting candid camera fans. Sally had bet she would be acquitted.

4. A LOGICAL FARMER, Otto Gray of Oklahoma, figured having a cow that would eat half as much as ordinary cows and still produce as much milk would be having something. This is what he had last summer—a 33-incher.

with apologies for the dastardly humiliation they were about to inflict. They felt awful about it, asking their Mr. Treacher to take a one-day's role in a Jane Withers picture. When they finally let him in on the secret, their Mr. Treacher was not at all dismayed. "Why," he said cheerfully, "you're paying me, ain't you?"

And he'd have done the part if it had been but five minutes' work. He takes his weekly pay check and—alas!—he cherishes no dreams of that.

It was not always thus. When our Mr. T. was a chorus boy, in ye merrie Englande, he had a dream. Ah, he thought, if he could but be like that bloomin' chap who starred in the revues, that debonair Beau Brummel for whose smiles the London debs fought!

"But it was not so written," the dreamer philosophised sadly. "The face, the figger were not so de-singed. I am resigned."

SAYS 'RABIES' LAW HOPELESS

State Veterinarian Wants Statute Abolished

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Dec. 23—Reversing the procedure of most state officials who are constantly wanting new laws and new powers, Dr. William Moore, head of the veterinary division, State Department of Agriculture, wants an existing law wiped off the slate and a new one passed delegating authority to county boards.

He thinks the present "State Rabies Law" is about as useful to the state as overshoes to a duck, and would like to see control of rabies and dog incubation designated as strictly the responsibility of the county health units.

He quotes statistics to show that since enactment of the law in 1935 its unobservance has progressively grown greater and greater with each succeeding year.

"The present rabies law has been studied and commented on by a great many persons qualified to do so, but I do not know one who might be classed as an authority who has endorsed this law or believes that it will accomplish the purpose for which it was intended. I think the present law has been given a fair trial and found ineffectual and that a new law should be enacted giving the county Health Officers full authority to carry out such control measures as they may deem necessary," said Dr. Moore.

"The new law should be short and explicit so as not to be misunderstood and the County Board of Health should be given authority to make regulations to carry out the details," he added.

He cited the fact that in during five years, 1932-36 six counties did not report a single case of rabies. There were five others with only one positive case each during that period, and eleven others with five or less.

mates. In addition 7,555 birds were crippled but not retrieved by hunters, he estimated.

Tulane University scholarships and student loans during the 1937-'38 school year totaled nearly $750,000.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons
Hollywood—in a town that bristles with conflicting ambitions, where that more or less "divine discontent" is a staple crop, I've found a man who is satisfied—a man who "been" want to change his life, who doesn't want to go on to bigger places. And that, friends, is News.

His name is Arthur Treacher. You know him as a movie butler, mainly. (And he doesn't even care to change that, although butting is generally regarded as one of the cradler forms of screen-typing.) You know him as a comedian, too, for Treacher's butlers are teddibly British, Treacher being the same, although I do believe his throat is clearing a bit lately in the California climate.

Not long ago the bosses called the elongated Arthur in for an assignment, and they were flushed tract, a stage show, a triumphant personal appearance tour.

Our Arthur, wise and happy, looks on from the safety of his content. He has had enough of the stage, where he learned his tricks. He "guesses" on the air, about once a year, and that is all he will risk. A smile breaks over his extraordinary, perpetually started and austere countenance. In pictures, now.....

"Everything is lovely. If it is not just right, they take it again. If Mr. Zanuck thinks a re-take will bring out just the staidings he wants, I am recalled and there, in the peaceful sanctuary of the sound stage, it is done again—and again if necessary." (Mr. Treacher, topped by a beautiful finger wave, was "doing it again" for retakes on Miss Shirley Temple's "Little Princess.")

LAW CREATORS HAVE PROBLEM

'Divide' Instead Of 'Get' is Legislative Task

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Dec. 21—Such battles as develop in the 1939 General Assembly are much more likely to be staged in the appropriations committee than in the finance group. Which is to say that the prime problem of the law makers will be one of division rather than of production.

The Budget recommendations have gone to the printer. Nobody outside the sacred circle knows what they are, but anyone with even casual acquaintance with characteristics of the budgeters knows that no wild spending orgy is to be urged. It can be safely assumed that the budgeters have carefully considered what revenues North Carolina can expect during the next two years, and have used these anticipated revenues as the yard stick for measuring appropriations.

The legislators do not appear to be of the sort likely to run wild and roughshod over the budget recommendations, which will bear the gubernatorial stamp of approval.

It follows, then that there isn't going to be much bickering about methods of producing revenues—the fun will start when it comes to dividing the estimated receipts among the thousand and one agencies and activities crying loudly for more money.

Perhaps the biggest single item of controversy this time will be the school appropriations. The Governor has declared for a 12th grade. So has the commission he appointed to study the state's educational setup. The commission likewise recommended salary increments for the more experienced teachers, bigger and better vocational education, a retirement program for the teachers and several other things which will require money.

But every other state agency wants more money, too, and so there's where the real rub will develop come next January.

NEGRO ELEVEN PLAYS MONDAY

Local All-Stars to Engage Team From New Bern

The Greenville Negro all-stars and a colored football team from New Bern will meet at Third Street stadium here on Monday, December 26, at 2 o'clock.

Both teams are made up of semi-pro players, including several ex-college and high school stars. Outstanding players for the locals are Sam Brown, former half-back for the Greenville colored high school team and George Whitfield, tackle, and former college star at Elizabeth City.

The New Bern team is composed of such players as Halfback White, former NCC star.

Both white and colored football fans are urged to attend the game. The locals have played two games this season, losing to Kinston, 12-0 and to New Bern 14-6 last Sunday. The Greenville team will be out to avenge the one touchdown setback at the hands of the Craven county eleven.

The proceeds of the game will go toward purchasing basketball equipment for the local team.

Cadillac Has Best Sales In History

Detroit, Dec. 23—The largest November retail sales in the 37-year history of Cadillac-LaSalle was reported this week by General Sales Manager D. E. Ahrens.

Mr. Ahrens announced customs deliveries of 4,285 of the 1939 models, topping a year ago by 40 per cent and the best previous November by 30 per cent.

The former November peak was set in 1936 when Cadillac-LaSalle was entering its record year.

"While we anticipated a strong increase over last year's volume, the November result far exceeds our most optimistic forecasts," Ahrens declared. "It indicates the business recovery apparent in the early Fall has picked up impetus and bears out our contention that Cadillac-LaSalle will register a banner year with its 1939 cars."

A steadily rising sales trend through November was revealed by the executive. In the first 10 days, customer deliveries totaled 1,270 units, in the second 10 days 1,411 units, and in the last 10, deliveries of 1,604 cars.

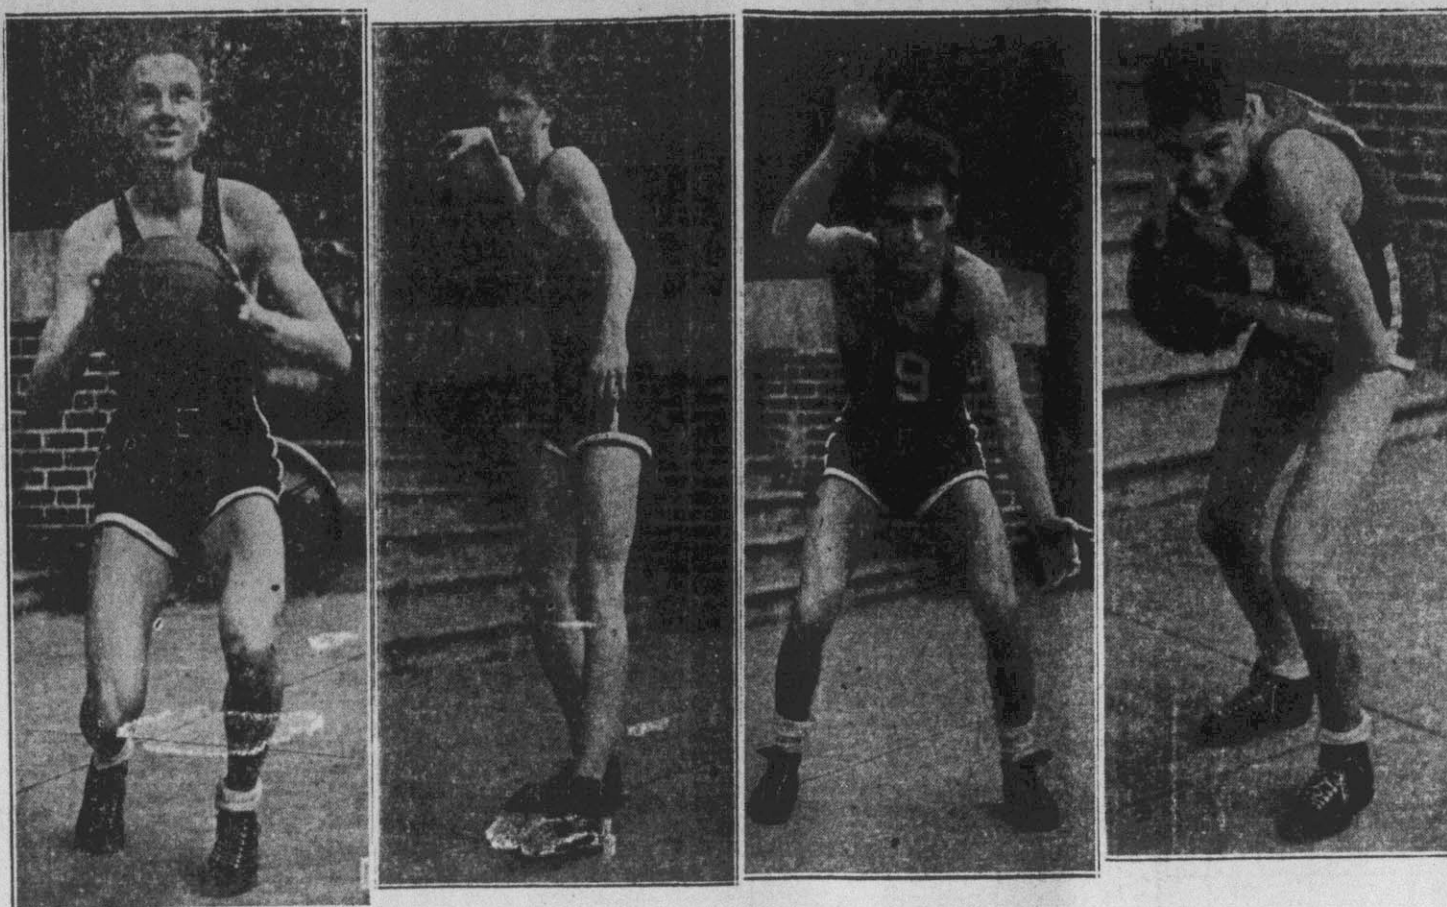

"Further, advance orders now on hand for the new cars assure us of an unusually active December," he said.

THESE FELLOWS, ALL CHAMPIONS, PLAY IN TONIGHT'S CAGE CONTEST

Reading left to right, you'll see Carl Pierce, Dubose Simpson, Tom (Parson) Parrish and George Lautares. These are the players who will supply much of the punch for the alumni hopefuls who will collide with Greenville high school's 1937 regulars in a cage contest starting tonight at 7:45 o'clock. If you saw these players in action during their high school days, which are more recent than ancient, you'll easily recognize them. Tonight's game is sponsored by the Monogram Club of the high school and is being staged in an effort to eliminate some of the idle sports activity that prevails during the pre-Christmas holidays. The game will be played in the H. S. gym.

BRIGHT LIGHTS hold no charm for Film Actress Diana Napier. She wore an eyeshade to a prize fight in London.

Regulars Battle Alumni Tonight At 7:45 o'Clock

There's a good basketball game of practice. The regulars trounced the Winterville Bobcats some time ago, 17-15, to give the man actual playing advantage.

Unlike most cage contests, tonight's battle features friends playing as foes. The friendly rivals compose the alumni champions of 1937 and the regulars of the local high of 1938.

Tonight's game will be a swift one. The alumni team has a foundation of experience and two weeks were employing the roosts. The men lied by dropping their bags of chickens, but abandoning an old car.

Dubose Simpson, a point-maker of the 1937 championship Greensies, will feature in this berth tonight. Another player who will spark the alumni attack is Charles Gaskins, who is best remembered for his exceptional performance at Chapel Hill against the High Pointers. Then, too, Tom Parrish will be in the lineup for the alumni tonight. Parrish, an all-State guard in '37, still adheres to his skillful playing tactics and will attempt to keep the '38 regulars in check tonight.

But Parrish isn't the only guard noted for cage tomfochery. Howard Hodges, who matriculated at Georgia Military Academy this year will hold the spotlight in the other guard berth in tonight's doings. George Lautares, Duke University varsity member, and Joe Hatem, a swift cager of East Carolina Teachers College, will likely feature the alumni attack. These fellows, both skilled in basketball, will play at forward positions.

Besides the players already mentioned, there's still more material deserving mention. This lot includes Earl Hellen, Tom Skinner and Richard Gaylord. These boys were mainstays with the alumni champs and are expected to shine tonight after the game gets under way.

Tonight's game is sponsored by the high school's monogram club members.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grouer

Washington — King George and Queen Elizabeth will move into the White House next summer to find almost a complete absence of anything British except a recollection that his majesty's soldiers once burned the place down.

Other than the smoke marks, long since painted over, there is a white marble mantel in the Green room, brought from England in 1792, and the state dining room is paneled with English walnut. Other foreign touches mostly are Belgian and French.

Probably it is no ill omen, but the last reigning monarch who visited the place, King Praxidipok of Siam, no longer is on the throne. He came in 1931 as a guest of President Hoover. Hoover lost his job too.

There aren't any historic ghosts in the White House; no records of bloody plots such as distinguish British castles. But the White House is a distinguished place, none the less, although a bit crowded even for a democratic king.

There are seven bedroom suites on the upstairs floor, which traditionally is the family quarters. Present plans are for the king to occupy an east end suite containing the nine-foot Lincoln four-poster bed, which probably creaks. The place overlooks the treasury, also a matter of some interest to the British.

Might Crowd Things Up
Goodness knows what would happen if the Roosevelt clan decided to come home for a family visit right at the moment. Doubtless Mrs. Roosevelt would make everybody comfortable, even if it meant a bit of doubling up. She has a friendly touch, and if King George VI feels a bit strange in a place where people speak English with a funny American accent, he probably will be made right at home soon enough.

It is a fact that stories about the fled. Abigail Adams, first of the line of first ladies, almost froze, with what the wet walls and incomplete fixtures. She hung the wash in the gorgeous Imperial East Room, now all gilt and white, with shimmering chandeliers.

In the East Room hangs the Washington paintings saved from British soldiers by Dolly Madison. A group of busts of early Presidents came from the French. In 1860 President Buchanan received the first Japanese embassy to the United States in the famed room, as well as the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII. Theodore Roosevelt used it for practicing Jiu Jitsu with a Japanese expert.

Jeffersonian informally once offended the British minister. His wife was left unattended to find her way alone into a state dinner. Probably the FDR's will break that Jeffersonian tradition. The wild and woolly Jackson receptions still are a sort of annoyance for Democrats to remember, especially the one when a 1,400 pound New York cheese was wheeled up in a hungry frolic, much of it being smeared on the walls.

Democrats like better to recall that Jackson locked himself up in the attic room in the White House to nurse a coachman whose small-pox had stamped the servants.

Dolly Generous
Lavish Dolly Madison had one servant behind each dinner guest's chair, but the Roosevelt's have only one servant to each four.

Things could really be force for their imperial majesties. As late as 1841 President William Henry Harrison used to go to market with a basket on his arm. Not until 1877 were bathrooms installed. President Hayes also installed one telephone. Gas lights replaced candles in 1848, and 40 years later came electricity.

One thing is certain to convince the king and queen they are in a foreign land. There isn't a suit of antique armor in the whole place.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 23—Just a few random and casual notes on State Senators who will be re-elected from the 1937 General Assembly.

W. I. Halstead, stout round-faced fellow from Camden county, who wants to be President Pro Tem this time—but he won't Chief activities in the 1937 Assembly were (1) A proposal to issue $25,000,000 in bonds for secondary roads and (2) a "sneak" bill aimed at restoring the driver's license taken away from a Virginia lawyer.

W. B. Rodman, Jr., from Washington down in Beaufort county, stern of countenance but keen of mind. He took the Finance leadership away from his seniors last time and will likely be the nominal as well as actual head of that committee next month. A fit successor to that other genius from Washington—Angus Dhu McLean.

W. G. Clark, Tarboro, the dean of all the Senators. None too fond of the details and drudgery of law making, but the base picker of winners in North Carolina. Note the roll calls and you'll find "Cousin Willie" always on the prevailing side.

Dr. T. W. M. Lott, Halifax. Usually so nearly exhausted after beating Julian Allsbrook in the primary that he hasn't quite recovered by meeting time the next January. Strong for public health measures and no un-thinking follower of the Administration. Has a mind of his own and uses it.

J. C. Egles, Wilson. Hasn't a great deal to say on the floor, but usually is found to be sound in his views and votes.

John D. Larkins, Jr., from Trenton in Jones county. Loudest voting Senator in the chamber. When he roars "Aye" or "No" there's no doubt about his feeling and stand. A comer in the political field, young and ambitious. His successful management of the Sheriff's four-year amendment didn't do him a bit of harm—nor will his direction of the Jackson Day Dinner for the Democrats, at which there'll be no repetition of the distasteful Tydings incident.

Edgar H. Bain of Goldsboro. Soldier type, active in American Legion circles, hard-boiled in appearance, but not so tough in legislative action.

Willie Lee Lumpkin, of Franklin, making his Senate debut after many terms of determined "anti-line" in the House. He was Dr. Ralph McDonald's fidus Achates in 1935. But after the Doctor's departure he had no great success as a leader, though goodness knows he tried hard and sincerely enough.

L. Y. Ballentine, Wake, best noted for having blocked Raleigh's claims to a part of ABC liquor revenue in the county. He must have made his peace with the city folks, as he was unopposed in the primary last June.

Thomas J. Gold, High Point. In 1937 he pushed through the legislation allowing his city to continue plans for its hydroelectric plant. Prominent in almost every Senate debate and usually had something to say that did more than take up time.

H. P. Taylor, Anson. Headed the calendar committee in the last days of 1937 and made no enemies there by — a fact which conclusively proves his tact and ability. He is sure to be one of the 1939 stand-outs.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
Allan Collins, a young man Noel secretly likes.
Mrs. Marchand, Allan's mother, not related to Noel.

Yesterday the oddly assorted guests arrive.

Chapter Eight Christmas Eve

THE worst was over—or so Noel thought. Never would she forget the trying moments when the five strangers bidden to the Christmas party were becoming acquainted with their unknown host and hostess.

The informal Eve supper had been finished and the oddly assorted group were in the living-room, drinking coffee or commencing the tree trimming preparations. Archibald Whitaker with pathetic eagerness was talking over the old days at school with Allan. He was gaunt and wrinkled with that stooped look of having spent most of his life at a desk. Tommy Sheldon, the jobless architect, remained aloof, answering when he was addressed, otherwise staring into the fire with a look that might be embarrassment or surliness.

"I lived at the Weymouth Club once," Noel remarked to Elsie Grant, the dress designer, whom Noel suspected found very few costumes to design. Noel liked her best of all the guests.

Noel glanced over at Janice Smith, Detective McCarthy's nomination for the party. She could see why somebody like McCarthy would have felt sorry for this fragile young thing with the wispy blonde curls, the large blue eyes and pale, helpless-looking face. Noel felt a little sorry for her, too—wearing all the wrong things—trying so hard to be gay and entertaining. Her eyes were fixed on Allan in open admiration. Noel could understand that.

Mrs. Barton, big and buxom, came into the room like a strong winter wind. There was a little too much vitality about her to fit into the subdued picture. She'd kept the conversation going at the dinner table and while most of her comments had to do with her own past, the others still in a ease had been grateful.

Now she walked to the mantle over the fireplace and with a ceremonial gesture placed a square silver box there.

"I want Will to be at the party, too," she explained. Mrs. Marchand cast a puzzled glance at Noel and Mrs. Barton continued, "These are my dear husband's ashes and he goes every place with me."
Noel caught her breath in startled astonishment and didn't dare look at the others. After one quick glance at the box, Mrs. Marchand kept her eyes averted and Allan, breaking the strained silence, said with composure:

"I think it's time to get at the tree." And he picked the tall fir from its leaning place against the wide open door. To Noel he spoke:

"The base is out in the barn; I meant to get it earlier."

Noel, anxious for a brief respite, replied, "I'll go with you, Allan."

Allan got a lantern from the kitchen and they went out the back way toward the huge old red barn at the foot of the hill.

"It's pretty terrible, isn't it?" Allan asked as his arm through Noel's guided her down the path. Noel thought so, too, but she wouldn't admit it.

"They'll get together better, I think, while we trim the tree. After all, it does take a little while for them to get over their strangeness."
While Allan searched for the tree base in the eerie empty barn, Noel's attention was attracted by a small corn crib in one of the corners. The light of Allan's lantern fell softly on it.

The Manger

"JUST like the manger in Bethlehem," she whispered to the dark place and while waiting for Allan she took some dry straw from the floor and filled the crib, laying on top the spray of holly she was wearing on her shoulder. The barn was cold and she thought of another manger centuries ago, far away, that had warmed a newborn baby. And because of that time old winter night, it became Christmas with all its lovely meaning for Noel.

"Let's leave the lantern in the doorway," she asked Allan as they were going. "I have a feeling there ought to be a light here. My mother always had a candle burning in our window through Christmas Eve."

Back in the house the atmosphere was still strained. Mrs. Marchand was doing her best, but it wasn't too successful. Mrs. Barton still talked in her strong, cheery voice that was just a little too cheerful. Tommy Sheldon sat in the fireside chair with not a word to say to anyone. Little Janice fluttered about trying to be helpful as they got the tree fixed and started hanging bright glistening ornaments on it.

Only Archie, the Mouse, as his students had called him, for many years, seemed mellow with the spirit of the occasion. He picked up each ball and handed it to Allan as though it were a symbol and when he spoke his voice held the note of remembering earlier years.

"It's SO beautiful!" Noel cried out as with the others she stood back from the gleaming, colorful tree.

"I think it's gorgeous," Janice exclaimed in her thin high voice, looking to Allan for approval. A tear trickled down Elsie Grant's cheek and she furtively wiped it away.

"We used to have trees just like that when I lived back home," she whispered to Noel apologetically. The moment was over and constraint filled the room again. Noel knew Mrs. Marchand was disappointed.

"We ought to sing a Christmas carol now—we always did after we trimmed the tree," the hostess suggested. Allan gave his mother a sympathetic glance and Noel, understanding the unspoken appeal for support, started the beautiful solemn words of "Silent Night." Pathetically wistful voices joined in an unharmonious chorus.

As the carol died into the corners of the room, and wailing of the dogs in the kennel was heard, Annie brought in a tray of egg-nogs and quietly whispered to Allan: "I can't quiet those dogs. Mr. Allan; somebody must be around the house."

Noel saw Allan leave the room and followed him out to the front steps, while he barking continued. "The lantern is gone from the barn door," Noel exclaimed.

"It's still burning inside. Someone is there," Allan started down the steps, turning back to add, "You'd better go inside, Noel." But she followed him silently.

They peered through an opening in the wooden side wall. A woman huddled in a dark wrap rested against the corn crib.

"There's something in the crib," Noel's voice was close to Allan's ear as they tiptoed into the barn.

The Music Of Bells
STARTLED, the woman turned to face their she seemed young in the gloomy light; but her eyes filled with fear and with an instinctive gesture she threw her arm over the crib. Noel smiled reassuringly and walked toward her.

From the depths of an old blank et a tiny blonde head half lost in the straw met Noel's eyes.

"Don't hurt him," the strange woman begged and Noel whispered back, "Shh! we mustn't wake him."

The woman got up and walked with Allan to the other side of the barn. Between low sobs she told him she'd been on her way with the child to her parents further upstate and that she'd had to get off the bus because she had no more fare. She'd started walking along the road lost her way off the main line and had seen the light.

"I thought we could rest here until morning," she sobbed. "Little Jimmy was so tired."
"We'll find you a bed," Allan told her kindly.

Noel stared intently at the sleeping child, tears in her eyes. She moved away from the crib and said in a voice filled with pity and awe: "We were meant to light that lantern."

When the stranger who said she was Mary Johnson started to pick up the child, Noel stayed her with a quiet gesture. "Allan, go get your mother. I want her to see this baby here, before we go in."

The other guests followed Mrs. Marchand and Allan back to the barn, Noel stood grouped at the door, gazing in on the strange scene.

Over the hill from the small village church came the music of bells, breaking the night's quietude, ushering in the first moment of another Christmas. It filled the barn and reached the spirits of those who stood there. Tears fell on Mrs. Marchand's cheeks.

They look at the child and its mother into the house. A awakened, little Jimmy cried he was hungry and while Annie hurriedly heated some milk and got food ready, Mrs. Johnson told them her husband had died in New York and she was taking her child back to the farm she had left to be married.

"I want more," Jimmy begged as they filled his cup again with warm milk, his glance, a little frightened, taking in the strange kitchen. His mother ate hungrily. And finally the two wayfarers were put in a room on the third floor and the others returned to the living-room.

It was the same room—but different. The people in it were different, too. Christmas had come to them in the spirit of little Jimmy and they mingled now, at ease. Their awkward restraint had gone with the scene in the barn.

Quietly Mrs. Marchand and Allan brought boxes and packages which they placed under the tree. Noel added hers too, and one by one the others went to their rooms, bringing back their own little gifts for Mrs. Marchand.

"We'll open them in the morning, before breakfast," she suggested. But she was waiting for something. Her glance traveled to the face of her son and she said sadly, "We have no presents for Jimmy."

Only Archie, the Mouse, as his students had called him, for many years, seemed mellow with the spirit of the occasion. He picked up each ball and handed it to Allan as though it were a symbol and when he spoke his voice held the note of remembering earlier years.

APRIL, 1938: Reorganization Bill Goes Down; Sudetens Demand Independence

By VOLTA TORREY
(AP Feature Service Writer)
Chapter IV of a Series
Late one gray, rainy April day the Democratic House of Representatives delivered what Speaker Bankhead had warned would be a "lethal blow" to the Roosevelt administration. It voted, 304 to 166, against reorganizing the U. S. government.

During the dramatic debate beforehand, "Paul Revere" had galloped to Washington, and Rules Committee Chairman O'Connor who fought the bill and later was "purged" from office, declared: "It is the biggest issue I have ever seen."

That same month the President, in his 12th fireside chat, sprang his $5,000,000,000 spending and lending assault on the recession.

The shape of things to come in the summer and autumn was becoming clear to perspicacious politicians. There was much said, meantime, of whether the vice-president had or hadn't advised Mr. Roosevelt to "give the cattle (meaning business) a chance to fatten."

With Malice Toward None
April's cables from Europe were portentous, too: Britain and Italy faced and made up. Edouard Daladier succeeded Leon Blum as pukka saint with virtually dictatorial authority in France. Konrad Henlein demanded independence for the Czechs for Sudeten Germans. And in Poland and Hungary, as well as Germany, there was yammering about Czech frontiers.

Through April's mud and blood, Spanish insurgents sloughed their way to the Mediterranean, severing Catalonia from the rest of the loyalist land, and Caudillo Franco figured the war was nearly won. In China, Japan took a licking at Tientsin.

"Liberty in Europe is being murdered," a laborite lamented in London. "The prime minister is the undertaker, waiting to bury the corpse." But Commons refused, 359 to 152, to censure Mr. Chamberlain. Reichsfuehrer Hitler, meanwhile, let Germans, including ex-Austrians vote for him—and was 99 per cent successful.

SANTA AND THE LOST PRINCESS

THE STORY SO FAR: The mean Queen and Princess Hulda are imprisoned again, this time by the Ice Queen. But Hulda sets them free by sewing a tapestry with her magic needles.

Chapter 17 HOME

Hulda wondered and wondered what story it was that the mean Queen had promised to tell her. But the Queen said nothing all that night as they galloped over the hills. At dawn they started down into a beautiful valley and there near a blue river stood Hulda's home, the castle her father had built. But still she didn't remember that she was the little Princess of this kingdom.

The Queen wondered why she didn't but she smiled to herself and gently stroked Hulda's yellow curls. At that Hulda wondered more because she had expected the mean Queen to be horrid.

Finally they rode right into the courtyard, dismounted and walked into the throne room where they found the banquet table spread with a steaming breakfast of lily broiled squabs, piping rolls on copper trays and coffee steaming in copper urns.

The Queen sat down at the head of the table and her tired soldiers sat along the sides. Hulda was so small that she sat on a table near the Queen's right hand.

"Now for the story," said the Queen. And she told Hulda that this was her home. That she had run off to Toyland—and just then "Pop" there stood the Fairy Queen with a bright star shining in her curls and no bigger than a salt cellar.

"Oh, it's so nice to see you," said Hulda clapping her hands.

"Your Right Place"
"Yes," said the fairy, "and now it's time that you return to your right place as princess of this kingdom. First eat this cookie and then this blueberry," she said to Hulda, and held them out. Hulda ate first the cookie and as she did she began to grow and grow. Pretty soon she was just as big as any little girl of six. Just as she had been before she went to Toyland. She hopped down off the table and stood on the floor while the Queen's eyes popped with surprise.

Then she ate the blueberry. You remember, it was just such a blueberry that had made her forget the mean Queen was her wicked stepmother. Now, as she ate, a look of fright came over her face. She started at the Queen, and then covered

GILL IS IRKED ABOUT REPORT

Alamance Co. Suspect Not Parolee From this State

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Dec. 22.—Commissioner of Paroles Edwin Gill is just a little bit irked at press dispatches which described Willie Hanford, arrested in connection with the killing of Alamance county's sheriff, as a parolee from the North Carolina prison system.

Mr. Gill searched, and searched, and searched the records of his department, going back for several years before he himself took office, and came up with the unequivocal denial that Hanford had at any time been the beneficiary of a North Carolina parole.

"On the contrary, Hanford was sent to prison twice and on both occasions this office refused to parole him. So instead of being a parole breaker, as the reports would have it, he is just the kind of a man to which this office has always and consistently refused to turn loose upon the public," said the commissioner.

"It is publication of just such loose statements as the one calling Hanford a parolee that bring all parole systems into undesired disrepute," he added.

He absolved news men from responsibility for the error, pointing out that they had a perfect right to rely upon the "identification by police," which was the authority cited for the statement that Hanford is a parolee.

The Hanford record shows that he was committed to Central prison as Prisoner 22852 on August 12, 1929, to serve a 12 months sentence for larceny. He was discharged March 20, 1930, at the expiration of his sentence.

On February 29, 1938, he was again committed from Alamance to serve 3 to 5 years for housebreaking and larceny. He was discharged on October 5, 1935, at expiration of sentence, which was extended six months because of an escape. He was a grade A prisoner prior to the break, but was placed in C grade after his recapture.

Six Persons Tied In B. & L. Contest

Six individuals from different parts of the State submitted the same slogan, "Save to Build—Build to Save", which was selected as the winning slogan by the judges of the slogan contest of the building, savings and loans associations, conducted by the North Carolina Building and Loan League, J. B. Williams of North Wilkesboro, chairman of the Keesler Memorial committee in charge of the contest, announced today.

He stated that in accordance with the rules of the contest, the winners of the $100 first prize will be determined by having all of these six contestants write a fifty-word statement on their slogan.

The six who will compete for the $100 prize are: W. D. Long, 520 Biltmore Avenue, Asheville; Mrs. John A. Ferree, 217 East Main, Plymouth; James B. Fretz, 208 West Lee street, Wilson; John C. Watson, 14 West Hargett, Raleigh; Geo. von Aspern, R. F. D. 3, Box 176, Greensboro; and Dr. T. Malcolm Bizzell, 209 West Ashe street, Goldsboro.

King Sings, First Lady Glides; And Both Inspire New Jig Steps

(By The AP Feature Service)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt likes old-fashioned gliding steps—King George sang to a group of boys about the "village blacksmith" and used gestures.

As a result, the Eleanor Glide and the Chestnut Tree are the newest offerings before dancers in America and England. Mayris Chaney, First Lady's dancing friend, got the glide idea from Mrs. Roosevelt's favored steps—presented it at a cabinet dinner. Carl Heimann, launcher of the Lambeth Walk, saw King George's singing act—was inspired by the gestures.

So Mrs. Roosevelt and the king will have something to talk about in common during the royal visit next spring. Take a look:

AMERICA'S LAMBETH WALK is what Miss Chaney, dancing it with partner Edward Fox, hopes Eleanor Glide will be.

THE CHESTNUT TREE—Constance and Freddie Carpenter demonstrate first gesture—"under."

CHEST—The English dancers do another gesture in the lance the king started.

NUT—shouted "chestnuts" and a stomp replaces "ol" of the Lambeth Walk.

EAST AND WEST ARE DIFFERING

Applies General Elections; Not to Primaries

Raleigh, Dec. 23.—East and West vote about in the same proportion to their populations in Democratic primaries in North Carolina, but when it comes to General Election time, there's an entirely different story to tell, a study of 1938 election returns shows.

For example, the 50 western counties (using a classification recently published in an editorial of the Hickory Record) have a combined population of 1,746,214 according to the 1930 census, which was 55.05 per cent of the state's total; leaving 1,425,662 or 44.94 per cent to the 50 eastern counties. Wheat stocks heavy. Wheat stocks also climbed to record levels, as a result of the third largest crop in history. The government, through the Federal Surplus Commodities Corp., therefore initiated an export subsidy in an effort to regain some part of our former world market.

'38 FARM INCOME DOWN 11 PERCENT

Wheat and other grains were hardest hit among the major contributors to cash farm income. A recent survey by the department of agriculture indicated receipts from this source would be 23 per cent under 1937 this year.

Cotton and cottonseed accounted for the second sharpest reduction in agricultural income, an estimated 18 per cent.

Total cash receipts from all crops were placed at $3,870,000,000 a year ago, down 20 per cent. Crops supplied two-fifths of all the money made on farms.

Livestock Changed Little

Livestock and livestock products, accounting for more than half of all receipts, were comparatively stable. Meat animals—hogs, lamb and cattle—and dairy products between them showed a decline of only six per cent compared with last year. These two categories were by far the largest individual farm income producers.

These arrested in Durham were R. H. Breeze, his daughter, Miss Nell Breeze, 16; and Mrs. Ray Fearington and William Alfred Terry, from near Hillsboro. They were tried in the county court Monday, December 19 before Judge A. H. Borland and all four were found guilty.

Because Miss Breeze is only 16 and was operating the booth under her father's orders and since he found that Mrs. Fearington had been influenced by Miss Breeze to sell the quail, Judge Borland continued prayer for judgment in their cases after he had found them guilty.

Both Breeze and Terry were found guilty, taxed with the costs and given a suspended sentence of two years each, conditioned on their refraining from violations of the game laws during that period.

Judge Borland said that he understood a good many quail were being sold illegally in Durham county and added that the next violations brought into his court for violations of this kind would be punished to the limit.

Special investigators for the game division arrested a seller and son in Asheville for selling quail in a store and secured the conviction of the son, D. Beaman McKenzie.

"While it is difficult to trace down these violations, we have a number of excellent undercover men in the field now and we are going to run down all the cases of quail and other game bootlegging that we hear of," said Chalk. "The courts are giving us fine cooperation, so that we can warn game law violators and game hogs that we are going to prosecute them to the limit when we catch them—and we are going to catch them eventually."
