Tighter Control Of CIA, Other Agencies Discussed

By ELMER W. LAMMI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met Saturday with high administration officials for three and a half hours to discuss plans for tighter control of the CIA and other cloak-and-dagger agencies accused of involvement in illegal activities.

Senior officials, including Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and Treasury Secretary William Simon, began the hush-hush meeting with Ford in the Cabinet Room at 2 p.m. EST, and it lasted until 5:30.

White House officials would not discuss the meeting and a spokesman said only that the group included some "foreign affairs advisers" and other aides not on the original attendance list.

Earlier, Ford had appointments with two U.S. diplomats and worked on the State of the Union message he will deliver to Congress Jan. 19, two days before he submits his $394.3 billion budget for the next fiscal year.

At the intelligence meeting, Rockefeller — who headed a presidential commission that investigated the CIA — was expected to push for some of the recommendations made by his commission last spring after it found the CIA exceeded its authority.

The commission found, for example, that the CIA illegally spied on American citizens. A subsequent Senate Intelligence Committee investigation turned up evidence that the CIA also plotted to assassinate at least two foreign government leaders, Fidel Castro and Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba.

The Rockefeller Commission also recommended the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board keep a closer eye on the CIA to make certain it does not exceed its authority.

Ford, who already has ordered the CIA to stop certain illegal activities, was expected to ask Congress to amend the National Security Act of 1947 to make it clear the CIA's authority is limited to foreign intelligence.

He also will probably urge Congress to establish a Joint Committee on Intelligence to oversee the CIA and other intelligence agencies.

While many of the potential reforms can be carried out by executive order, some will probably require action by Congress.

At Saturday's meeting, Ford outlined intelligence reforms drawn up by White House aides who have worked on the plan almost daily for four months under the direction of presidential counselor John O. Marsh.

Officials who met with Ford and Rockefeller to examine the new plan included Marsh. CIA Director William Colby, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, Attorney General Edward Levi and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Ford's budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 has been sent to the printers and is expected to be delivered to Congress on Jan. 21, a White House spokesman said.

The President told state and regional campaign officials Friday that his State of the Union message, to be delivered to Congress two days before the budget is submitted, will include tax proposals to help middle income Americans — those earning between $10,000 and $30,000.

The President said he also would seek to return control of schools to local governments and to give greater freedom to the private sector of the nation's economy.

Shortly before the intelligence reform meeting Ford met with two ambassadors — William J. Porter and T. Vincent Learson.

Porter, U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia, was called to Washington to report on the Middle East situation. Learson, the President's special representative to the Law of the Sea Conference, discussed the prospects for progress at a new conference session scheduled to take place in March.

Ford and State Department officials are concerned about the potential effect on the talks of pending legislation that calls for unilateral extension of U.S. fishing jurisdiction 200 miles offshore.

Three Youths Charged In Murder Of Storekeeper

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

FALKLAND—Three teenage boys—one 15 and two 16—were arrested about 6 p.m. Friday in connection with the murder of a 71-year-old store keeper near here about noon.

Joe Robert Edwards—the victim of the armed robbery and shooting—was found dead in his rural trailer home-store three miles West of Falkland on N.C. 222 about 12:30 when a 12-year-old girl who lived nearby went to the store.

Mike Garris, 16, was taken into custody by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and Pitt County Sheriff's deputies at his home in the edge of Wayne County, near Stantonsburg. He was charged with murder and armed robbery.

Dalton Price, 16, and the 15-year-old, were taken into custody at the Stantonsburg home of one of the youths. They both were charged with being accessories after the fact of murder, and with conspiracy to armed robbery.

The discovery of the robbery-murder touched off a massive search which included Highway Patrolmen from several counties, SBI agents, Pitt Sheriff's officers, State ABC officers, officers from the Department of Corrections and local police, as well as a State Highway Patrol helicopter and a private airplane flown by members of the Pitt Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Edwards, who lived alone in the store-home, was shot three times by the robbers. The sheriff noted that a .25 caliber automatic and some money was recovered by investigators after the three youths were taken into custody.

Investigators, armed with a description of a car seen in the area before the murder-robbery was discovered, combed backroads and highways in the area with cars and aircraft looking for the suspect vehicle. Other officers, in the meantime, were busy checking other leads.

Their combined efforts led to the arrest of the three teenagers less than six hours after the killing.

Explosion Wrecks Nebraskan Hotel

By JAMES R. QUINN

FREMONT, Neb. (UPI) — An explosion and fire shattered the six-story Pathfinder Hotel Saturday, killing occupants and battering surrounding buildings.

Four persons were pronounced dead at a morgue set up at the Dodge County Communitz Hospital and the hotel wreckage was searched for more bodies.

A hospital spokesman said he was "sure" more bodies were in the ravaged hotel. He said there might be anywhere from four to ten more victims and it might take many hours of searching basement wreckage to find them.

Earlier, the hospital said it had treated 81 persons. At midafternoon, the figure was clarified, and a spokesman said it had admitted 13, of whom one was critical and one was serious. The hospital said 29 persons had been treated and discharged, but this did not include persons cut by glass and other debris who walked in for quick treatment and left.

Gov. J.J. Exon reached Fremont by helicopter about a half hour after the 9:30 a.m. blast—probably caused by gas—and declared Fremont an emergency area. He, too, feared the death toll might mount as search of the wreckage went on.

"If the fatality toll is held to 10 or under," Exon said, "it will be a miracle."

Many of the hotel guests were elderly and some of those treated at Dodge County Community Hospital used walkers or were carried from the burning building in wheel chairs.

Dr. Duane Krause, chief of staff at the hospital, said the response of all persons, including volunteers, was "fantastic." He said the staff "performed above and beyond" expectations.

The blast was felt 10 to 12 miles away, with damages varying from major to minor within a three block area near the hotel.

"It was one heluva blast," said Orville Thompson, whose sport shop diagonally across the street was one of the many business establishments wrecked by the explosion. "It blew me right out of my chair ... it had to be a gas explosion."

Every window, in buildings facing the hotel on the west, was blown out. Glass littered streets within a radius of two blocks or more. Debris spotted the tops of parked cars blocks away.

A force of 160 National Guurdsmen was called up to patrol the streets and keep sightseers away. They brought floodlights to aid in rescue work expected to go on well into the night in this town of 23,000 some 35 miles northwest of Omaha.

Exon indicated rescue workers expected to find additional bodies in the basement of the shattered building, where the first floor had collapsed. The inside was gutted by explosion and fire.

The governor said there seemed to be no doubt the explosion was caused by gas. Jim Rhodus, hotel manager who was off the premises at the time, said employes told him they had smelled gas for an hour before the blast.

Over 100,000 Treated

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—An effort to establish a group home for retarded adults in a residential neighborhood was rejected by the Kinston City Council after residents in the area objected.

Officials of Our Home Inc. said a meeting will be held next week to look for another location where area residents wouldn't object to the home.

Nine retarded adults are to live in the home with as many as seven staff members. The objections were raised at a public hearing Monday. Citizens said they were afraid the home would lower area property values. Already operating in the neighborhood are several nurseries and another home for retarded adults.

Kinston Rejects Group Home

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — More than 100,000 persons received treatment at community mental health centers in North Carolina during fiscal year 1975, according to the Department of Human Resources.

The department issued a statement Saturday saying the figures "show significant increases in the number served as well as the different kinds of mental health services provided."

The community mental health program has clinics or satellite clinics operating in all 100 counties in North Carolina.

The program offers services to the mentally retarded, mentally ill and alcoholics.

Organizing N.C. Campaign

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)— Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter began organizing a North Carolina campaign Saturday with the first of four weekend meetings for potential supporters.

Carter aide Frank Moore told a group of 85 Democrats in Raleigh that the former Georgia governor's nucleus for the March 23 North Carolina primary would be formed from the weekend meetings. Others were scheduled for Greensboro, Charlotte and Asheville.

Tighter Agencies Control

RALEIGH (AP)—Private employment agencies will be under tighter control with reorganization in the Department of Labor, Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye Jr. said Friday.

In the reorganization, Nye dissolved the section of his department that dealt with employment agencies and put licensing and inspection under the Inspections and Services Division. In addition, Nye appointed three additional persons to the advisory council, all of them business or industry employment officers in the state.

To Get Hearing

RALEIGH (AP)—The firing of a Department of Revenue employe who claimed his discharge was for political reasons will be reviewed by Wake Superior Court.

In a decision handed down Friday, the state Court of Appeals ruled that Joseph Grissom has a right to a court hearing. The late Superior Court Judge Coy E. Brewer had ruled that Grissom wasn't entitled to a court hearing because he hadn't exhausted possible administrative remedies.

Trying To Free Freighter

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Tugboat operators were hoping this morning to free a 290-foot freighter which ran aground on a sandbar near Morehead City Wednesday.

By late Friday night the tug operators reported they hadn't yet been able to free the trapped freighter Themos from a shoal along Gallant's Channel between Beaufort and Morehead City.

A spokesman for the Cartaret Towing Co. said Friday night that the tugs had been trying to free the freighterloaded with timber bound for an unknown location since it went aground three days ago.

Angola Subject Of OAU Meeting

By JOHN PLATTER

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — The Organization of African Unity began an emergency meeting on Angola Saturday with members deeply divided on how to halt the civil war in the former Portuguese colony.

Ugandan leader Idi Amin, the OAU president, formally opened the two-day conference in the afternoon, welcoming heads of state and foreign ministers of the 46 member nations.

OAU sources said the African states are split 22-22 on how to end the bloody civil war in which a Soviet-backed nationalist group has the upper hand over two pro-Western factions.

The arrival Saturday of President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire, the most militant backer of the pro-Western groups, put new life into the faltering cause of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

Zaire Foreign Minister Mandingo Bula accused Prime Minister Fidel Castro of sending an estimated 7,500 soldiers to Angola to get rid of Cuba's blacks.

"They will die from mosquito bites," he said. "Castro is trying to solve his race problem. More than 80 per cent of the Cubans in Angola are black."

The sources said the outcome of the conference will depend on Uganda and Ethiopia, the only OAU nations that have yet to make up their minds.

The sources said one group of OAU members wants to recognize the Soviet-backed faction in Angola and the other wants a government of national union with all factions included.

The Soviet-backed group, the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, wants recognition as the legitimate ruler of the country, abandoned by Portugal Nov. 11 after nearly four centuries of colonial rule.

May Be $4 Billion

Ready To Reveal Huge Slush Fund

By ANDREW NIBLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government investigators, poking into the shadowed existence of "off budget" agencies, are ready to shed light on what may be a $4 billion slush fund embarrassing to top Treasury Department personnel, past and present.

Back in 1934, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau asked Congress to set up an Exchange Stabilization Fund to ensure the dollar would remain stable in foreign gold markets. Congress did so.

In the 41 years since, allegations have been raised that the fund hus been used for a variety of other purposes. These allegations could never be investivated because no independent auditors had authority to examine the fund's books.

Until now, that is. Authority for auditing such activities was contained in the new congressional budget act.

Although Treasury officials deny any misuse, the General Accounting Office, congressional staff investivators and others have accused the department of using the fund as an expense account pool for high-level personnel.

Another recent allegation suggested the fund has been used for such functions as aiding South American governments or supplying cash for Treasury projects cut in congressional appropriations bills.

Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., who heads the House Budget Committee's Task Force on Tax Expenditures and Off-Budget Agencies, has set hearings on the fund Feb. 18.

Larger Fine

Effective Jan. 15, a $1 fine will be assessed for violations of city parking regulations by parking overtime.

The new flat rate of $1 was adopted recently by the Greenville Parking Authority which has the regulatory power to set parking fees, rates and penalties.

Under the new fine system, overtime parking violators will be expected to pay the $1 fine within 72 hours of the ticket issuance or face an appearance in court.

Previously, the minimum fine for overtime parking violations was 50 cents if paid within 12 hours. After 12 hours and within 72 hours, the fine was $1 and after that period, the offender faced a court appearance.

Violators will still be able to pay the fine by placing $1 in the ticket envelope and depositing it in any of the Fine-O-Meter collection boxes installed on the parking meter standards.

The increase in parking fines, it was explained, involves an attempt by the Parking Authority to recover some of the increase costs of operation as affected by inflation.

Anderson said investigators Saturday began combing the area around the house searching for clues in the deaths.

The sharp decline of the number of Canada geese arriving for winter quarters at Mattamuskeet in the past few years resulted in a decision by the Fish and Wildlife Service to suspend the normal hunting season this year, in an attempt to verify whether or not the birds were being discouraged from using the refuge because of overhunting.

Roberts will speak on the results of the no-hunting policy as observed thus far, as well as other topics connected with the management of the Mattamuskeet refuge.

Local Sierra Club members will stage an outing to the refuge on Saturday, January 17th, where Roberts and his assistants will guide them on a tour of the area.

The public is cordially invited to attend the Monday night meeting.

Says First To Be At Wilmington

Predicts Five Major Quakes

DAVIDSON, N.C. (UPI) — A woman who claims to be a psyhic Saturday predicted five major earthquakes in the southeastern United States at a meeting of the Southeastern Regional Parapsychological Association.

But geologists continued to voice skepticism as they and most southeastern North Carolina residents did earlier this week when one of Clarissa Bernhardt's predictions, of a major earthquake in the Wilmington area, was made public.

Mrs. Bernhardt said the earthquake she predicts for the Wilmington area would be the first and the largest of all, registering an eight on the Richter scale.

She said the tremor would occurr at Wilmington "definitely within the next 365 days, probably during the week of Jan. 14-20 and most likely on Saturday, Jan. 17, 1976."

Dr. David Stewart of the University of North Carolina, who took Mrs. Bernhardt on an airplane tour of the southeast after deciding she had accurately predicted three earlier earthquukes, told the group he could not accurately judge the validity of her predictions.

The woman, who writes a column for the National Enquirer, also made the following predictions of earthquakes in the southeast:

—At the Jocasse Reservoir just above the Oconee Nuclear Plant in South Carolina, with a magnigute of 4.0, occuring before June, 1976.

—In the Brunswick-Savannah, Ga., area, with a magnitude of 7.0, occuring within two years, "probably in the month of May" in either 1976 or 1977.

—In the Charleston-Summerville, S.C., area, with a magnitude of 6.0, occuring within five years, probably on a July 17 or July 18.

—In the Charleston-Summerville, S.C., area, with a magnitude of 6.8, occuring in April of 1987.

Stewart said he last month flew in a private plane with Mrs. Bernhardt around the southeastern United States and the psyhic would advise of her feelings toward the area they were flying over and the pilot would mark the location on a map.

Mrs. Bernhardt also made predictions that oil worth drilling could be found west of Savannah. Ga., and predicted other minor earth tremors that would cause no damage.

Her predictions were applauded by the group of about 80 persons gathered at the convention, many of whom attended a later news conference.

Mrs. Bernhardt, according to the Enquirer, correctly predicted an earthquake that hit Hawaii last Nov. 29; one that occurred in the Azores May 26, 1975 and one that occurred in California on Thanksgiving Day, 1974.

Stewart saw an account of the successful 1974 prediction and noted the dates of the later predicted earthquakes, then contacted her after they occured, he said, and asked about "any psyhic feelings about North Carolina."

He then took her on a trip by car through southeast North Carolina and flew her in the plane over the southeast.

"All I can do as a scientist is to note the past record and to accurately present the statement of Mrs. Bernhardt as best I can," said Stewart.

Other geologists were more skeptical.

"I think it is socially irresponsible to make such predictions without being concerend about the adverse consequences of such a position being public," said Dr. David E. Dunn, also a professor of geology at the University of North Carolina.

Stewart, Dunn and another geology professor, Duncan Herron of Duke University, last year asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a new seismic examination of the area, saying they had found some evidence that indicated the area could occur in the area.

Dunn said the geologists found that the earth in the area was rising, a condition that in other parts of the world, particularly Japan, had occured prior to earthquakes.

"But you have to qualify this by saying the general geological situation is radically different in Japan as opposed to the east coast of the United States, so no one can say that this is a legitimate comparism," he said.

Dunn said there was also unusually high pressure in deep water wells in southeastern North Carolina and "the coincidence of these two facts was enough to make me think we should take a closer look at that area."

Herron agreed there was "no scientific evidence" to make such a prediction and said he planned to be at his beach cottage on Jan. 17.

Nixon Celebrated Birthday

The cake was brought by his younger daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower, who arrived from China in time for Nixon's birthday Friday.

There was no reported comment from Nixon as he spent his second straight birthday at the oceanside estate to which he came after resigning the presidency in August 1974 amidst the Watergate scandal.

Couple Files Suit

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A couple whose door was kicked in two months ago by narcotics officers raiding the wrong apartment has filed suit in federal court here.

John and Rebecca Reynolds filed the suit Friday against the city, Police Chief John Conroy and the officers who took part in the raid.

Conroy admitted at the time that his men had "goofed."

The suit said the Reynolds had suffered mental distress, embarassment, humiliation and personal injury because of the raid. Reynolds hand was injured when the officers busted down the front door.

Should Give Up Hostility

MIAMI (UPI) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in an interview directed at south Florida's large Latin population said Cuban Premier Fidel Castro should be required to "give up some of his hostility and revolutionary zeal" before the United States considers easing its trade restrictions against Cuba.

Rejects Japanese Demand

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union Saturday turned down Japan's request for the return of four northern islands as a precondition to concluding a peace treaty, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said.

The ministry said Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa made the demand at the Soviet-Japanese ministerial meeting which opened here Saturday to discuss the long-pending peace treaty.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko rejected the request for return of the islands — Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashiri and Etorofu — which the Russians seized at the end of the World War II.

Honors Chou-En-Lai

HONG KONG (UPI) — A long line of cars brought a steady flow of high-ranking Chinese leaders to Peking Hospital Saturday to see the body of Premier Chou En-lai.

It was the first of two days set aside for viewing the body of the revolutionary who helped turn the nation of 800 million into a world power.

Light Plane Crashes

STATESVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Two men escaped serious injury Saturday when their light plane clipped some trees and crashed about 10 miles west of here in a cow pasture.

Authorities said the two men walked away from the crash unharmed but the single engine Cessna was totally destroyed. The pilot, Joe Rink of Davidson, said his engine quit.

Claims FBI Created Group

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The FBI created and funded an ultra right-wing group called the Secret Army Organization to prey on dissidents in the early 1970's, the San Diego Union reports.

In a copyrighted story, the first of a series to begin Sunday, the Union described the SAO as a "centrally designed and externally financed infrastructure designed for terror and sabotage."

These acts, it said, were "sanctioned by the nation's most powerful and highly respected law enforcement agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Claims US Carrier Off Angolan Coast

LONDON (UPI) — An American task force led by the aircraft carrier Independence is operating in waters off Angola, possibly providing tactical support for air strikes in the Angolan war, the Observer newspaper said in its today's edition.

It said the task force's activities "appear to show that, while the Americans have been accusing the Soviet Union of escalating the war, Washington, in fact, took the first step."

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman denied the report, saying the Independence is operating in the Mediterranean and the two U.S. frigates named in the report, the USS Bowen and the USS Ainsworth, were also nowhere near Angola.

The spokesman said the Bowen was at Charleston, S.C., and the Ainsworth is at sea near Naples, Italy. "It damn sure is not off the waters of Angola," he said of the Enterprise.

The newspaper said its dispatch was based on a "secret report" prepared for a "reputable international organization" that is unwilling to be named.

The newspaper said the report also estimates that between 4,000 and 6,000 South African troops are operating in Angola, a far higher figure than acknowledged so far by Pretoria.

The newspaper said that despite repeated claims by the Defense Department in Washington that the Independence was operating in the eastern Mediterranean since last fall, in fact it spent nearly a week in the English naval base of Portsmouth in late November.

When it sailed Nov. 27, British naval officials were told it was leaving for the United States, the newspaper said. It said it had "reliable reports" it was accompanied by the frigates USS Bowen and USS Ainsworth.

"The task force was believed to have been placed under contingency orders between November 15 and 23 'for a mission in the Angolan conflict'," according to the secret report.

"The mission is believed to be to provide tactical air support for strikes over Angola. The Independence carries 90 F4 Phantom jets and was armed after November 15 with several hundred tons of napalm, Sidewinder missiles and anti-personnel fragmentation bombs in pods," the Observer said.

Employees Discount To Be Investigated

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — State Utilities Commissioner Tenney Deane says the commission will investigate Southern Bell Telephone Company's policy of giving its employes discounts for phone service.

A spokesman for the Southern Bell Friday said the firm gave more than 9,000 employes discounts totaling $1.4 million in 1974. The spokesman said the firm gives the discounts just as concessions are given to employes by other firms.

Deane, however, said the policy will be looked into to see if it violates state law.

The question about the employe discounts was raised when the commission recently exempted blind and handicapped persons from paying for directory assistance dialing and some commission members feared the exemption might violate state law.

King Triplett, a public relations manager for Southern Bell, said the exemptions are specifically allowed under the Communications Act of 1934.

Triplett also said the cost of allowing the discounts are passed on to customers "just as all our other expenses are; it is a cost of doing business."

Employes with six months to 30 years of service receive a 60 per cent discount on local telephone service.

Right Idea, Wrong Family

MEMPHIS (AP) — When the Resurrection Roman Catholic Church decided to bring its recently adopted Vietnamese family to Mass, a retired Marine Corps officer volunteered to pick them up.

"When he got to the apartment, some of the children were sleeping so the Marine went into the bedroom and said, 'Chop! Chop! It's time to get up and go,'" said the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Paul J. Morris.

The family got dressed and rode with the Marine to church. They went through the entire service, including communion, without a word.

"When I saw them, I thought hey were a visiting family," Msgr. Morris said. "But when one of the parishioners said after mass, 'That's not our family, they look too Oriental,' I knew something was wrong."

"Not only were they the wrong family, but they were Koreans and Buddhists to boot."

The family was quickly returned to its apartment and the volunteer then went to the right address.

In defense of the former Marine, Msgr. Morris said the "wrong" family also had six members and he had gone to the right apartment number but the wrong building.

Battling Over Wreckage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian and Moslem gunmen battled over the wreckage of Beirut's seaside hotels Saturday, bringing the U.S. Embassy under round-the-clock sniper fire.

Christian leaders complained of the "disintegration of authority" in the country and appealed for army intervention to "preserve the remainder of Lebanon."

Police sources reported 100 persons killed and 200 wounded in two days of the fiercest fighting of Lebanon's civil war, raising the toll to about 8,350 dead and 17,800 wounded since last April.

Moslem and Christian gunmen who fought last month's "battle of the hotels" in uptown Beirut moved back into the fire-gutted resort district Saturday afternoon, blazing away with machineguns and automatic rifles.

Veteran Stripper Returns

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stripper Judy Roe is back in action, four years after she decided, at age 45, to hang up her G-string and retire.

She tried working in a law library but found she missed the stage.

"The pay is no better but the work is a lot more fun," she said in an interview Friday. "I missed the applause. No one ever cheered when I checked out a book."

Miss Roe, who appears nightly at the Chez Paree in the city's Tenderloin district, will be back in a library soon — for a guest appearance. She's slated to lecture at the San Francisco Public Library on the history of burlesque as part of a "Work in America" bicentennial series.

Greenville Blue Law Vague And Confusing

By RUDY HOWELL

Amidst the inherent confusion of busy shoppers, the following words are a familiar sound at the check-out lines of Greenville stores which open on Sunday.

"I'm sorry. We can't sell that on Sunday. We're not in the business of turning down money-it's the city council."

The no-sale stems from an awkward blue-law which often results in both customer and manager frustration, said Nichols store manager Ty Potter.

Signed into law March 10, 1966, by former mayor S. Eugene West, the blue-law restricts certain business activities to promote "the observation of Sunday as a day of rest."

The law's provisions range from the improper distribution of confectionary items to the purchase of items such as wearing apparel and accessories, hardware, jewelry, and musical instruments.

"We just think it's silly the way the law is written," said Philip Casey, assistant manager of Nichols. "I can sell you a six-pack of beer, but I can't sell you a pair of shoes."

According to Casey, the law is too vague and either needs revision or better enforcement.

"For example," said Casey, "the manager is confronted with the decision of interpreting the various categories in which certain items fall. Paper diapers, for example, may either be labeled a paper product or wearing apparel, depending on the manager's own interpretation."

Similarly, Thurman Worthington, manager of Eckerds' Drug Store, cited an incident in which a lady needed a vaporizor one Sunday, but was unable to buy one since the item fell under the category of appliances.

According to Worthington, who recently received a citation for selling paint to three undercover policemen, the law's enforcement is severely hampered by the limited size of the Greenville Police Department.

"Shoppers will go to where the blue-law has been repealed as in New Bern," said Worthington. The loss of tax revenue to the city of Greenville may be one of the chief reasons for repealing the law.

The majority of the downtown merchants, however, feel that the blue-law is a comfort since they don't want to operate for the full week.

"It's not a moral issue at all," said Greenville Banks, manager of Belk-Tyler Department Store.

According to Banks, merchants would be in favor of the blue-law unless compelled by competition to remain open.

"We just don't want to operate the full week," said Banks smiling. "It doesn't have to be on Sunday-Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday would be fine."

In March, a city council meeting will be directed at either revision or revocation of the law, said Mayor Cox.

According to Mayor Cox, there has not been much public interest in the blue-law at city council meetings.

"That's what worries me," said Mayor Cox. "We really don't get the imput from the merchants that we should." Although he personally favors the blue-law, Mayor Cox feels that it will be voted out.

An Injustice On The Tax Front

There's a new year's surprise for all you people over 65, who don't own your own homes and have limited incomes.

Last year, if your income was under $5,000 annually, you likely didn't have to pay any property tax to the county or to a municipality. That was because the State Legislature had passed a law giving you this special exemption.

Now for the surprise. This year, because the North Carolina Legislature changed the law, you will pay those property taxes.

To make matters worse for you, assume your neighbor down the road has a total income of $7,500 annually and owns his home free and clear. He is comparatively wealthy, according to your standards, but he will have a property tax exemption of up to $5,000 in value. This could mean a savings of up to an estimated $37 in Pitt County taxes alone and perhaps twice that if he lives in a municipality.

How did this come about? Well, our inquiries tell us that a Joint Legislative Committee on the Tax Structure, with James Long as chairman, worked on several areas of the tax laws prior to last year's legislative session. One of the things that came out of the study was a bill to eliminate all personal property tax. When the section dealing with those over 65 was drawn there was no necessity to include the personal property exemption; thus only real property was exempted, the disabled were included and the qualifying income was raised from $5,000 to $7,500 with tighter income accounting stipulations.

The personal property exemption made it through the House of Representatives, but not through the Senate and in a conference personal property was restored to the tax base in the bill which finally passed. But in the section dealing with the old and the disabled the wording was not changed, so that only real property was exempted from taxes for those two groups.

So those old folks who applied and got a personal property exemption last year and paid no county or city taxes this year will pay up to an estimated $37 in the county or considerably more in the city.

This shouldn't be. These older people on meager incomes who got a break last year on their taxes should get it again this year. It will be difficult to get the Legislature to act at the limited session this year, but it can be moved to act if enough people raise their voices about this injustice. Let's not take something away from these older citizens which we only gave them last year.

Starling, a career man with the SBI, replaces Charles Dunn who resigned to join the Edward M. O'Herron, Jr. gubernatorial campaign.

Dunn was brought in as SBI director and is generally credited with doing a good job. Starling, by contrast, has spent 28 years with the SBI and the choice for director is generally conceded to be a good one.

For our part, we are happy to see a career man appointed to the top position in the SBI.

School Review Welcomed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It is good, from time to time, to take stock of how things are going.

And even though the subject under study in this particular case bears the strong identifying marks of his hand as one of the principal founders, Dr. Allan S. Hurlburt is delighted that the state's community college and technical institute system warrants such a second look.

After all, says the Duke University educator, the statewide system has been the scene of frantastic growth—now touching some half-million students—and must respond to rapid change and developing need in society.

"The Jesuits once had the finest educational system in the world. But they stood still while the world changed dramatically around them. The schools then lost their relevance," Hurlburt reminds, displaying at once his keen sense of history and its place in modern lives, and his commitment to response to changing needs.

Heads Study

Hurlburt, longtime head of the school of education at Duke University, is chairman of a study panel named by Dr. Dallas Herring, chairman of the State Board of Education.

The commission is to develop a blueprint for the next 20 years of growth in the community colleges and technical institutes, where studies predict enrollment to more than double.

Hurlburt was the author of a 1952 report projecting a statewide system of comprehensive community colleges, and is regarded as one of the principal architects of the present system.

But, Hurlburt says, all things change, and the need now is to further refine the system to meet needs of its special clientele: adult education, basic and improved job skills, and junior college work for those who make go on to a four-year school.

Herring said of the new commission that he thinks it "reflects the grassroots, community-oriented concept inherent in the system itself." Membership, he pointed out, comes from industry, agriculture, the press, higher education, public schools, community college and technical institute faculties and student bodies, and boards of trustees. Racial minorities make up 36 per cent of the commission membership.

Washington Exhibit

State Rep. Howard B. Chapin is putting together one of the state's more outstanding Bicentennial exhibits—a collection of artifacts and letters from each of the current governors in the nation.

The Washington school teacher took it upon himself to write each of the 50 governors asking some item for the exhibit. Many have anwered, sending maps, books, pictures and other material.

Even the accompanying letters, Chapin feels, will one day have historical significance. He plans to have them laminated in plastic and kept permanently in his hometown. One day, a collection of letters and signatures from every governor in office on the nation's 200th birthday will be valuable, he feels.

Washington on the Pamlico, or Original Washington as some perfer to call it, was the first town in the country named for the first President and prides itself on its historical heritage.

It is one of few North Carolina communities in which a full schedule of Bicentennial events will be held throughout this year.

Sunday Morning Notes

The old smoke stack on the ECU campus belched black smoke on the coldest day of the winter last week.

I thought the old plant had been phased out with the completion of the new heating plant on 14th Street, but Vice Chancellor Cliff Moore explained that it had not.

The building for the new plant is finished, but all of the interior work is not completed. One of the new boilers went down on the cold day and that meant that the old plant had to be fired up.

Warmer weather later in the week would mean that the volume of smoke from the coal fired boilers could be reduced.

The new plant is supposed to be completed around the first of next month and then the old landmark heating plant will be torn down.

Including the smoke stack?

"Including the smoke stack," Moore says, "unless we can make a bell tower out of it."

"There are 365 days in 1976," he says.

That's right. Just because there happens to be one more doesn't change that.

Oh well.

A Good Winter In Russia

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

MOSCOW (UPI) — For Russians and foreigners alike, winter is the favorite season in the Soviet Union and this year it is a particularly good one.

The snow came early and thick, lying deep in the forests outside the capital, where whole familes of Russians go cross-country skiing on weekends. Frozen ponds are besieged by eager skaters.

December had more than its usual share of good blue, sunny days and only one brief slushy thaw.

New River, Old Battle

(N.Y. Times)

Next to the Nile, the New River in Virginia and North Carolina is considered by geologists to be the oldest in the world. The rocks through which it has cut its way indicate an age approximating 100 million years. But the paradoxes concerning the river do not end with the name. They only begin there. The New happens also to be one of the most beautiful streams in North America and one remarkably rich in archeological finds; yet the possibility is all too great that in a matter of weeks its beauty and history will be traded for two ugly reservoirs and a pumped hydroelectric storage project.

Besides the environmental enormity involved, the proposal—by a subsidiary of the American Electric Power Company—could cause severe economic and social problems. It would drown thousands of acres of land including hundreds of houses, churches and other buildings, displacing close to 3,000 people. No wonder both houses of North Carolina's General Assembly have voted unanimously to put the New under the protection of the national scenic river system.

State action alone is not enough, however, to insure the river's protection. The Federal Power Commission can overrule a decision to make it part of the state's own scenic river system. Indeed, the F.P.C. has already issued a license to the power company. The action of the General Assembly makes it possible now for Secretary of the Interior Kleppe to save the New River by incorporating it in the Federal system, but under state administration.

For this purpose no Congressional action is required. The decision is wholly up to Secretary, Kleppe, who has until Feb. 20 to make up his mind. It is the first issue on which he can demonstrate that "unbiased and penetrating look" he promised the Senate he would take at all environmental matters. If it is penetrating enough, the prehistoric river will not be sacrificed for a few years of costly surplus energy for which alternative sources have been shown to exist.

40 Years Ago Today

January 11, 1936

Prolonged consideration by the court of pardons of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea for clemency was accompanied this afternoon by indications that his trip to the electric chair might be postponed.

After nearly four hours of deliberations, however, there was no word from behind the court's closed doors as to what it would do, or even what it was discussing.

Opinion that the execution might be deferred spread around the capital after Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who is president of the pardons court, announced he would ask the Attorney to seek the detention for questioning "Jafsie" —Dr. John F. Condon—who sailed suddenly on a South American cruise yesterday.

Condon's sudden trip may be connected with the fact that a magazine has begun publication of "Jafsie Tells All"—a series of articles by Dr. Condon purporting to offer new details of the case, including his belief that Hauptmann has a confederate.

INSIDE REPORT

A Study In Incompetence

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—That the White House and Maine's two young Republican Congressmen ended 1975 in mutual rancor and distrust in simply one more sad example of incompetency enveloping President Ford's White House, partially explaining his present political condition.

When a White House aide linked the Congressmen's prospective votes on the tax veto override with the President's prospective decision on possible reappointment of a prominent Maine Republican, it was redolent of the days of James G. Blaine, the Maine Republican "stalwart" of the 1880s. But even if that brass-knuckle tactic had worked on the two Congressmen, it would not have been necessary to win the vote. Adding the final dash of bitters, a stiff-backed White House still refuses to admit its mistake.

The incident is a classic study of what ails the Ford White House. What was called "hardball" in Nixon days is still fitfully played in Mr. Ford's Oval Office, more closely reflecting the personality of Richard M. Nixon than Jerry Ford but lacking the ruthless Nixonian competency.

The Maine incident goes back to Dec. 17 when a reporter noticed Max Friedersdorf, chief White House lobbyist, on Capitol Hill. Are you up here, Friedersdorf was asked, to lobby against an override of the tax cut veto? No, said Friedersdorf, he was lobbying for budget director James T. Lynn's pay increase.

The newsman passed that information on to sometimes short-fused Rep. Barber Conable of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee. Conable, an architect of Republican tax strategy, was aggravated. That news fortified other reports that the White House was not lobbying against an override, causing Democratic leaders to surmise this would be what they were calling a "friendly" veto. Conable contacted Friedersdorf and urged him to get moving.

As a surviving Nixon holdover, Friedersdorf sometimes betrays his origins. Ex-newspaperman Friedersdorf, for instance, takes pride in avoiding contact with reporters and generally declines to return their calls. He is also a lover of confrontation over conciliation in dealing with Congress. So, Conable's prod brought out Friedersdorf's brass knuckles.

He instructed White House personnel chief Douglas Bennett to squeeze Maine's two Republican House members, Reps. William Cohen and David Emery, both uncommitted on the tax question. Why should the personnel chief, ailing at home with the flu, be pressed into lobbying service? Because the two Downeasters

Strength For Today

SEEKING FOR GOD

Jean Paul Richter, the German man of letters who wrote during the early nineteenth century, penned these hopeless words: "There is no God. I have traversed the worlds; I have risen to the suns; I have gazed into the gulf beyond and cried, 'Father, where art thou?' But no answer came save the sound of the eternal storm which rages uncontrolled. We are orphans, you and I. Every soul in this vast corpse-trench of the universe is utterly alone."

Our first comment on this statement would be that Richter had in fact not travelled as far as he thought he did. Many other people have taken much shorter journeys and have found God. Among these, for example, was Harriet Beecher Stowe, who many years after Richter's death, wrote:

"Still, still with Thee, when purple morning breaketh,
Fairer than morning, lovelier than the daylight,
Dawns the sweet consciousness that I am with thee."

Handouts Damaging Incentive

By STEPHEN DOWNER

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Nobel Prize-winning wheat scientist Norman Borlaug says give-away programs in the United States and other countries after World War II are to blame in part for the world food shortage.

"They adversely affected the will of developing nations to invest in food programs. Many were imbued with the idea of industrializing, such as India and Pakistan," he said in an interview.

The Iowa-Born Borlaug wants the United States to "take aggressive leadership" to finance a world food reserve, which reached its lowest level in 25 years last year.

Without a buildup of food reserves, he said billions will starve. But even with it, the picture is grim.

"If we can rebuild these reserves, we might go along more or less as we have done for 20 years for another 15 or 20 years," he said. "But, by the year 2,000, things will get a lot worse. Before billions starve, something else will happen that will shock the world into action."

Borlaug, director of the Wheat Research and Production Program at the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center near Mexico City, said the United States must "take aggressive leadership" now to finance a world food reserve which he said reached its lowest level in 25 years last year.

Borlaug won the 1970 Nobel Peace Prize for helping to revolutionize world food production, in what was termed "The Green Revolution."

Outlining his views, Borlaug said:

"There have to be better communications between nations about who is holding how many reserves. Nations that represent roughly a third of the world population don't want to give out this information. You have to have a change in attitudes."

He said the 1974 World Food Conference in Rome "was a complete disaster" and he accused oil-rich nations of burning away billions of cubic feet of oil-well gas that could be used to satisfy world fertilizer needs.

He said Saudi Arabia alone wastes 1.6 billion cubic feet of gas every day.

"If the world's oil countries that are now wasting this substance could be brought together, the world fertilizer problem would be resolved," he said. "If the soil is worn out, you get to the point where everything is at starvation level. The yields are low because the soil is hungry... You have to find what to do to renovate the soil."

Borlaug said "the food thing has been a prime factor in the inflationary spiral."

He said he is not a member of any political party. "But I think when we were playing Watergate, we let the whole damned inflation thing get out of hand and it is wrecking the world."

Reagan And Ford In Tie

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—The 1976 presidential election year opens with President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan running neck-and-neck in the latest nationwide showdown test among Republican voters.

Ford and Reagan each win the support of 45 per cent in the survey, with 10 per cent undecided.

It is important to bear in mind that these survey findings are based on two-way "showdown" tests which ask Republicans in the survey to choose between just two men. The Gallup Poll reported Dec. 12 the nomination choices of Republicans asked to choose from a list of 10 men. In that test, based on the previous (early December) survey, Reagan led Ford, 40 to 32 per cent with the rest of the vote divided among the remaining eight men on the list, or undecided.

The President's standing in two-way tests against Reagan has declined since June when he held nearly a 2-to-1 margin over his California rival. The latest measurement, which shows the two men even, reflects the President's recent decline in popularity—due in large measure to voter concern over the economy—and Reagan's announcement of his candidacy on Nov. 20.

Reagan recently opened his campaign in New Hampshire where he will meet Ford head-on in the nation's first primary Feb. 25.

Reagan Leads Among Independent Voters

Although Ford and Reagan have equal support among Republicans, Reagan holds a lead over the President among voters who classify themselves as independents.

Reagan is the choice of 47 per cent of independents to 36 per cent for Ford, with 17 per cent undecided. These findings represent a considerable loss for the President since June, when the standings were virtually reversed, 51 per cent for Ford and 36 per cent for Reagan.

With Republican party affiliation near an all-time low, the GOP, in order to win in a presidential election, must obviously nominate a candidate who has wide appeal among independents and dissident Democrats. Independents are important to GOP presidential fortunes because they have voted heavily in favor of the Republican candidate in every presidential election in the last quarter-century, with the exception of 1964.

This question wqs asked of Republicans and independents to determine Reagan's strength in a direct showdown against Ford:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Republican convention in 1976 narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

(Choices of Republicans)

	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
LATEST	45%	45%	10%
Oct. 17-20	51	40	9
June 27-30	61	33	6

Here is the trend among independent voters:

Trends In Showdown Tests: Ford vs Reagan
(Choices of independents)

	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
LATEST	36%	47%	17%
Oct. 17-20	51	40	9
June 27-30	51	36	13

The latest findings are based on in-person interviews with 348 respondents who classify themselves Republicans and 529 who consider themselves independents out of a total sample of 1,537 adults, 18 and older. Interviewing was conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Dec. 12-15.

One More Curse On Purveyors Of Flapdoodle

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Unicorn Hunters held their annual meeting the other day in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., where they put the curse upon meaningful, input, dialogue, scenario, and detente. Such a target list could be much extended, but these will do for starters.

Based at Lake Superior State College, the Unicorn Hunters have embarked upon a task that only some mythical being might achieve. They are out to purge the language of its flapdoodle words. Hercules had an easier task when he hosed down the Augean stables.

Man and boy, I have been waging my own modest war upon flapdoodle for 35 years. Such masters of artillery as Ed Newman have weighed in with their heavy guns. Sydney Harris of the Chicago Daily News, Ed Yoder of the Washington Star, Meg Greenfield of the Washington Post—all these fight bravely in the continuing defense of the mother tongue. Countless other captains of syntax struggle with equal devotion. None of us is getting anywhere.

The Unicorn Hunters claim a victory in the matter of "at this point in time," which they cursed a year ago. If so, it is a small triumph in a vast war. The masters of flapdoodle, entrenched in their misty swamps, never tire and never quit. From a base camp here in Washington, they go aborad in locust hordes, feeding upon the verdant fields of language.

The State Department announced a couple of weeks ago that it was hiring a consumer affairs coordinator. The department operates from a part of the city known as Foggy Bottom. The name is well chosen.

According to the official announcement, the department's purpose in creating this important position is twofold. It is "to confirm and reinforce the Department's sensitivity to consumer rights and interests as they impact upon the Department and to take those steps necessary and feasible to promote and channel these rights and interests with respect to the maintenance and expansion of an international dialogue and awareness."

Toward these goals, the consumer affairs coordinator "will review existing mechanisms of consumer input, thruput, and output, and seek ways of improving these linkages via the consumer communication channel."

The Washington Post, gazing with stunned admiration upon this announcement, concluded that the whole thing is an onput: The job itself, paying $37,800, might also be termed an up-put. As for the author, a downput is too merciful.

What is the true purpose of this flapdoodle? It is to conceal the self-evident fact that the State Department is handling a posh job to Mrs. Joan Braden, wife of columnist Tom Braden, dear friends of the Hon. Henry. Mrs. B. is a women of great charm and competence, the mother of a whole platoon of attractive children, and doubtless she is a solid choice for this gauzy position. If it weren't for the fatuous job description, her appointment might have gone unnoticed.

Fatuity is the order of the day in Washington. For some months, in a futile effort to shame the bureaucrats into writing understandable prose, the Washington Star has been publishing a daily example of gobbledegook. An entirely typical specimen came recently from the Commandant of the Marine Corps:

"It has been decisioned," said the Commandant, "that some form of unit rotation may be a desirable objective . . . Recent CMC decisions have alleviated the major inhibitors allowing a fresh approach and revaluation of alternative methods of unit replacement . . ."

And so on. This will be at least the second year the Unicorn Hunters have put the curse on meaningful. They might as well give up on this one. More promising targets can be found in scenario and dialogue, especially in the kind of dialogue in which ten persons engage. In good time, perhaps the Hunters will get around to linkages in channels and to other mechanisms of thruput. We can only hope that the implementation of these consonantal objectives will soon be decisioned.

Congress Inches Nearer Big Crunch When It'll Soak The Middle Class

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

It was just about a decade ago that then President Lyndon Johnson realized that his Great Society programs, plus escalating war in Vietnam, threatened to push the nation into "dangerous inflation."

At that time, he made efforts, but something short of all out, to get spending under control. He backed tax increases, but was unwilling to accept restraints on his social "reforms." He found Congress uncooperative and finally settled for a compromise, in 1968, which left the nation with an economic time bomb, set to explode within a few years.

The Johnson experience of 10-years ago helps with understanding of what President Ford will be up against when he renews his request that Congress put some sort of cap on deficit financing, which has done so much to underwrite the wage-price distortions of recent years. And it raises doubt as to whether Ford can persuade the legislators to take any effective action now, even though recovery hinges on restraint of inflation.

Johnson's efforts to persuade the House and Senate to limited budget control are detailed in a chapter titled "Bite the Bullet" in The Vantage Point, the book he wrote after leaving the White House in 1969. The explanation given for struggles between the Executive and the Legislative branches on national interest issues make for chills, especially at a time when Congress seems bent on taking over on foreign and domestic affairs. Johnson put it this way:

"One major source of conflict between the Legislative and Executive branches is the difference in constituency. The President is concerned with the economic well-being of the entire nation. Congress, by contrast, is the product of 50 state and 435 local constituencies, each representing only one piece of the national jigsaw puzzle. Many Congressmen and Senators understood my concern for the economy as a whole, but each legislator had one everriding need — to make a record with the people who sent him to office."

What Johnson said here, but in nice words, is that Congress becomes irresponsible when the demands of the nation conflict with their own special interests. He restated much the same point with this observation:

"In contrast with the President's limited tenancy in the White House (two terms), a careful Congressman can make a home for life on Capitol Hill. While the President must live with crises and deadlines, a Congressman can cultivate the art of delay and refrain from commitment — especially if the commitment is to increase everybody's taxes (Johnson had proposed a surtax of 10 per cent on all income tax bills).

While Johnson used taxes as his illustration of this Congressional weakness, he could have used any issue which involves cutting down on the flow of goodies to constituents. And there is no way spending can be brought under control without at least limiting commitments made by Great Society programs and other opened commitments Congress has voted.

Ford, apparently, is prepared to stand on his proposal to limit next fiscal year's spending to less than $395-billion. This would allow for a spending increase of some $20-billion more than this year's level. But it would mean that a lot of programs in the welfare class would sacrifice future growth.

And this is where the rub comes in Congress. For public consumption, the legislators like to make a stand on principle. Under the constitution, the House and Senate control taxes and approve all spending. And to back down on such matters in the face of White House "dictation" is to admit mistakes.

Actually, principle plays little part in it. Positions of individual members are dictated by the "special interests" which influence individual members of Congress, especially the self-interest of holding that seat. This is the first priority, once a seat is won.

All members, of course, denounce inflation and deny their individual responsibility for it. It's not unusual for a campaigning member to condemn the "irresponsibility" of Congress and then defend his own all-out spending habit simply as "my interest in taking care of my people." This trick probably is as old as Congress itself. Someone else is always the spend thrift.

Still, there is an uneasiness in Congress on the spending issue. Few claim to see the day when spending at scheduled rates permit an end to deficits without a tremendous increase in the tax load. They also know that any future tax increase has got to be more than a "soak the rich" measure. It will have to "soak the middle class."

Congress has ducked this for years. But if the bill being built up by so-called income transfers — redistribution of wealth — is ever to be covered, this is the issue which will have to be faced.

Whether Ford can persuade the Democratic Congress to pull back is doubtful. But there is no doubt about the stakes being high — whether a system that has been the envy of the world for 200 years can stay that way.

OUR TAXPAYER'S HEART FAILS TO BLEED!

Loughran Col...

The coldest day so far was a bleak Sunday when the temperature dropped to 11 degrees below zero fahrenheit.

This was by no means a record, but car drivers started putting vodka in their radiators — anti-freeze is hard to come by in Moscow and vodka is still fairly cheap.

After the snow came the annual winter arts festival, officially described as "a diverse and interesting program," but mostly a disappointing mish-mash of routine opera and ballet productions with some concerts and folklore performances.

Prominence is being given this year to Dmitry Shostakovich, who died last August, and the festival highlight is the premiere of the great composer's ballet, "The Dreamers."

Opera-lovers are getting the usual Bolshoi theater offerings, which range from the dreary "The Dawns are Quiet Here" to the marvellously imaginative "War and Peace."

Gratefully hidden from view is "Prince Igor," which in its present production has been brought out more than 1,500 times and shows it.

Music-lovers are hoping the theater will offer at least one new production to mark its bicentennial in 1976 and meanwhile are crowding to a guaranteed show-stopper, Alexander P. Ognivtsev in the role of Boris Godunov.

Ognivtsev is one of the Soviet Union's greatest actor-singers and his death scene from "Boris" is a hair-raising performance — not least when he crashes to the ground like a felled oak from his full height of six-feet-plus.

Russians who cannot get hold of the scarce Bolshoi tickets, can always listen to the opera on record. There are at least four recordings of "Boris Godunov" to choose from.

Classical records constitute one of the few bargains available here.

The state recording company, Melodiya, has contracted with many Western concerns to market discs under the Soviet label.

had been nagging Bennett's office for the reappointment of former Gov. John Reed of Maine as chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

On Dec. 18, Emery returned Bennett's call, reaching him at home 45 minutes before the overrride vote. Replying to Bennett's question by saying he would vote to override, Emery was told that was too bad for the Reed appointment. Cohen, returning the call nine minutes before the vote, said he was undecided, whereupon the Reed appointment was dangled.

Had the White House accurately head-counted the House, it would have known there were more than enough votes to sustain the veto (thanks to efforts of the House Republican leadership). Moreover, "hardball" tactics were employed without authority from presidential counselor Mack Marsh or chief of staff Richard Cheney.

No two tougher adversaries in a game of "hardball" could be found than Bill Cohen and Dave Emery. Cohen, 35, is a moderate who was the first Republican in Congress with the courage to realize that President Nixon must go. Emery, 27, is a first-term conservative with ragid ideas about public rectitude. Neither, then, is in the tradition of Blaine, the plumed knight of Maine, and neither kept Bennett's conversation a secret.

When newspapers reported Bennett's blooper Dec. 19, he sheepishly told a fellow presidential aide he was acting under orders. But his briefing to the White House press office denied linking Reed and the tax veto. Thus, the daily press briefing of Dec. 19 in effect called Cohen and Emery liars, stupidly prolonging the controversy.

An incensed Emery that day fired off an intemperate letter to the President, demanding to know whether he had prior knowledge of Bennett's call and whether he would fire Bennett. That, in turn, provoked outrage at the White House over Emery's lese majeste. Word spilled out that Emery had initiated the call to Bennett (untrue) and that Cohen had then gone to his assistance (palpably untrue— the two young Congressmen are not close).

The last dreary chapter was written Dec. 31 when an answer to Emery's letter arrived—not a conciliatory stroking of the Congressman by Mr. Ford but a terse response from none other than Max Friedersdorf: no, the President had no previous knowledge of Bennett's calls; yes, the President retained "full confidence" in Bennett; no, Bennett did not link the two matters as Emery claimed.

President Ford, consequently, cannot count on either of the two major Republicans in a state where Ronald Reagan poses a serious threat (particularly since the lack of White House enthusiasm may have contributed to Cohen's decision last week not to challenge Democratic Sen. Edmund Muskie

To the editor:

Having watched The Today Show, with Barbara Walters and Jim Hartz, Barbara's subject was the American face. This in turn gave me the idea of the American Image, especially of foreign countries and their views and images of the typical American.

If they judge us by our politicians in Washington, D.C., may God help us! And I for one think they do. Henry Kissinger on the Today program was asked certain questions about foreign affairs, as usual, he avoided the direct answer by simply saying he hoped the meetings would be friendly. Who cares whether or not they're friendly, as he so diplomatically puts it, if the meetings are friendly or not, results are what we need now.

If he were over there getting beaten or shot at, as the Presidents are, he would quickly do something without the so-called friendly meetings. So would the Deputy of Northern Ireland. Or even Britain — they own it. Why not let it be their concern.

The Great American Image is more concerned about the enormous salaries of their tv entertainer than the salaries of the public school teachers. This is a disgrace. The American people should be greatly ashamed.

Parents Require Some Adjusting To Babies

There are certain things about babies that even a mother couldn't love. Like spitting up on Daddy's new wool suit. Or using Mommy's lap as a bathroom five minutes before she's due at a Christmas party. But the worst thing about a baby, in my opinion, is its inability to distinguish night from day.

It was bad enough when our baby just got me up for feedings. After about two weeks of it, I started pinching Phillip before I got out of bed just to make sure he was suffering, too. But then the baby initiated a 3 a.m. social hour, complete with milk cocktails and charming conversations which usually began with "Ah, goo."

"It's positively uncivilized," I sleepily complained to Phillip one morning while I was fixing his breakfast.

"What can you expect," he grumbled, "when she has a mother who pinches her poor innocent husband in the middle of the night just for spite?"

"If you don't quit grousing, I'm gonna stuff this down your mouth," I said, threatening him with a Brillo pad. "You think a pinch is comparable to conversing for two hours with a child who's vocabulary consists of two vowel sounds? I'm exhausted."

"Well, why don't you see what Dr. Spock has to see about these nocturnal visitations?"

GAIL MICHAELS

I wasn't sure that the baby's bible would deal with excessive sociability in infants, but Dr. Spock deals with everything. There our problem, was, item 302 in the book.

Dr. Spock says we're spoiling her. He says we should let her cry," I said.

So the next night we let her cry. For five minutes it was okay, but after ten minutes of pathetic sobbing, I turned to Phillip and whispered, "Maybe I should go check on her. Maybe she's got her leg caught in the crib rails."

"That's impossible. She has bumper pads," he shivered. "Besides, Dr. Spock says that we shouldn't check on her because it will just make her angrier."

So we endured five more minutes of crying.

"Maybe I should just tiptoe to the door and look in. I won't let her see me. She might have thrown up," I said anxiously, envisioning my little one drowning in a soggy cribsheet.

"No, Dr. Spock says she'll be all right," Phillip answered in a trembling voice.

Five minutes later Meg was still howling, and so were we. Even the cat was crying.

"Can't I go to her?" I sobbed. "She's so little. She'll think we've deserted her, and she'll have permanent emotional scars."

"We-llll," he quivered.

Just then the crying stopped.

"Oh, no!" I shrieked. "She's probably hemorrhaged from all that crying." I turned to Phillip, but he was already running to the nursery.

I met him in the hallway. "Well?" I asked, expecting the worst.

Analyst Hints Rosier Future For Marriage

By ANNE BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marriage may have a rosier future than present divorce statistics indicate.

Although recent Census Bureau reports show young people are postponing marriage and that the divorce rate continues to rise, government analysts speculate that Americans are being more careful about selecting mates than they once were.

The result, they say, is that marriages of the future may be more stable than they are now.

"It is a possibility that the longer one waits to marry, the more selective one is in choosing a partner," said Arthur J. Norton, a Census Bureau analyst. "This should make marriage more viable with more of a chance of success."

The institution of marriage is in a state of transition, Norton said in an interview.

Stressing that much of his speculation has yet to be confirmed in statistics, he said that although the short term-effect on marriages may be one of confusion and discontent, often resulting in divorce, marriages of the future may be more harmonious — "Anything in transition creates instability."

Norton said divorce figures indicate people who marry at early ages are more often divorced than persons who marry later in life. And results of the 1970 census show that among persons who first married between 1901 and 1970, the proportion of men who were divorced after their first marriage was more than twice as high among those who married before the age of 20 as for those married in their late 20s.

A Census Bureau report this week showed that the number of persons between 25 and 34 years of age who have never married increased by about 50 per cent since 1970, from 2.9 million to 4.2 million. And the number of persons in that age group heading their own household approximately doubled, from 915,000 to 1.8 million.

At the same time, recent scientific studies indicate that young people have a high regard for the idea of being married. Studies done for the Institute of Social Research at the University of Michigan showed that "marriage and family life are the most satisfying parts of most people's lives and being married is one of the most important determinants of being satisfied with life."

What seems to be happening is that young people are giving more thought to marriage. The women's movement has encouraged many women to enter or continue a career, and the current economic instability has made it necessary for many young women to enter the labor market. The result is that marriage roles are changing. Men are no longer the only breadwinners, and women are no longer the only homemakers.

Also, it is more acceptable to be single and to live together before marriage.

Another factor is that the spiraling divorce rate has made many think twice about the pain and heartache of a bad marriage. In 1975, 10 per cent of all people between the ages of 25 and 54 who had married were either divorced or separated, census figures show.

U.S. Firms Prepare For Resuming Cuban Trade

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In a basement cafeteria at the United Nations, the Cuban mission's third secretary recently hosted a low-keyed business luncheon with officers of the Continental Can Co.

The secretary, Hugo Yedra, related Cuba's interest in buying rebuilt and new equipment for a cannery expropriated from the New York firm after Fidel Castro took power in 1959. The businessmen, seeking to offset the $8.9 million loss, expressed interest.

Such a sale is prohibited now under the U.S. trade embargo against Cuba, imposed in 1962. But the Cubans are looking ahead, and so are some American businessmen, even though U.S.-Cuban relations are more strained than usual today because of Cuba's support of a leftist faction in Angola.

Cuba's five-year economic plan, beginning this month, calls for exports of canned fish and fruit juice, but the old Continental plant in Cuba, where the canning is done, is short of parts and is operating at less than half capacity.

The luncheon ended inconclusively, after Yedra told the Americans that Cuba was taking bids on cannery equipment from other capitalist countries so it won't have to wait for Washington to lift the trade ban.

The meeting was typical of others arranged for American businessmen in recent months — at the United Nations, at Cuba's commercial offices in Montreal and Mexico City, at the Czech embassy in Washington which handles Cuban affairs in the United States, and in Havana — by foreign trade ministry officials shopping for American technology, food and industrial goods.

As in the meeting at the United Nations with Continental Can, the Cubans point out that firms in Japan, Western Europe, Canada and Argentina are already selling to them and that the five-year plan can proceed without U.S. help. The purpose of all the shopping, the Americans say they are told, is to help Cuba avoid long-term commitments now to buy goods that will be cheaper or better made once they're available from the United States.

The business discussions — most of them initially arranged by private American consultants with contacts in Havana — started after Secretary of State Henry Kissinger announced last March 1 that the administration was willing to negotiate its differences with Castro so the embargo could end.

These consultants lined up client American firms as the climate for diplomatic negotiations improved. On July 29 the United States went along with a vote in the Organization of American States to lift an OAS trade ban imposed against Cuba in 1964, although the U.S. embargo continues. On Aug. 21, overseas subsidiaries of American firms were authorized to sell to Cuba subject to U.S. government licensing.

Now the business contacts have gained a momentum of their own. They are reported to be continuing despite President Ford's statement on Dec. 20 that the presence of Cuban troops fighting against American-backed factions in Angola's civil war "destroys any opportunity for improvement of relations."

Although Castro has made it clear that Cuba will continue its military intervention in the African country, two American consultants say their invitations to visit Havana this month are still on.

Officials of these companies say they are frustrated by the embargo, which was imposed by President John Kennedy on Feb. 3, 1962, when U.S. security seemed threatened by a Soviet military buildup on the Caribbean island, 90 miles south of Florida.

American businessmen supported the embargo's original purpose, to strangle the island's fledgling socialist economy, but some changed their minds after the embargo failed to work and prevented them from benefiting in 1974, when record world sugar prices gave Cuba enough extra foreign currency to expand its total trade to $5.2 billion and its commerce with non-Socialist countries from $667 million in 1973 to $1.5 billion in '74.

Congressional critics of the ban on direct trade complain that subsidiary sales don't create American jobs. Rep. John Breaux, a Democrat from a rice growing district in Louisiana, complained loudly last month when subsidiaries of Continental Grain were licensed to sell 100,000 tons of South American and Italian rice to Cuba, despite a rice surplus in the United States.

Breaux and other congressmen gained support in the latter part of 1975 for a bill urging Ford to lift the trade ban. But the drive faltered because Cuba's support of a U.N. resolution condemning Zionism alienated the bill's author, Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y.

Aside from the issues of Angola and the Zionism resolution, there are businessmen who oppose any trade with Cuba until it settles $1.8 billion in U.S. property claims.

This group has been organized for lobbying purposes by Lone Star Industries, which lost a $25-million cement plant in Cuba. It includes the National Association of Manufacturers; Bangor Punta Corp., which lost $53.4 million in sugar properites, and the biggest claimant, Boise-Cascade, whose expropriated electric utility was valued at $267.6 million.

Sixty U.S. companies lost $1 million or more in Cuba after Castro took over. The number of firms seeking trade with Cuba is roughly equal, but lawyer Jerry Tripp, representing Ampex Corp., reports difficulty getting them organized to fight against the embargo. "Trading with the Communists is an issue they don't like to force," he said.

In South Florida, where most Cuban exiles settled, the issue is particularly sensitive. Dow Chemical Co., whose agricultural chemicals are sought by Cuba, has decided it will do business with Castro only on an affirmative vote of Cubans employed in its Latin American unit in Coral Gables. So far, sensiment is negative.

An end of the embargo won't mean a return to the pre-Castro commercial relationship of 1958, when two-way trade totaled more ttan $1 billion and U.S. companies bought 71 per cent of Cuba's exports (principally sugar, nickel, tobacco, rum and fish), accounted for 64 per cent of its imports and controlled 30 per cent of the island's vital sugar industry.

Today Cuba permits no foreign investment in its centrally-planned economy and requires foreign businessmen to deal through 26 state trade monopolies. The Soviet share of Cuba trade, which is conducted by barter, declined from 51.6 per cent in 1973 to 38.7 per cent in 1974 as Cuba used its sugar exchange earnings to pay cash for Western goods.

When and if the trade embargo ends, ordinary Cubans won't be able to buy many of the American goods they hear advertised on Miami radio and television because Cuba's five-year plan stresses capital investment over consumer spending. Although Coke was a popular drink in pre-embargo days, the Foreign Trade Ministry has contacted neither Coca-Cola nor Pepsico.

Tourism is a growing source of income that could eventually help Cuba pay for such goods. Although the Castro government considers tourists the cause of many pre-revolutionary ills, it recently has built new hotels and taken bids on co struction of others.

Civilization Reducing Southern Bald Eagles

By LOUISE A. REID
Associated Press Writer

When the bald eagle was designated the national symbol in 1782, it lived year around in the Southeastern area of the United States, biologists say.

But in this bicentennial year, the number of southern bald eagles is estimated at 30 per cent of their Colonial population.

Civilization has reduced their nesting area about 60 per cent, says Don Pfitzer, spokesman for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"The distance around the nest site is one of the most critical factors in determining where the bird will stay," he says.

Pesticides and indiscriminate hunting have also reduced their number.

Up to 15 years ago, some bald eagles were permanent residents of areas such as Reelfoot Lake in northwest Tennessee. Now, from April 1 until September, only empty nests remain; the eagles wing to the Great Lakes states and Alaska to raise their young.

"Every year it looks like there'll probably be one pair that will stay. But in the end, when the bulk of the birds pull out, these also go with them," said Wendell Crews, Reelfoot wildlife manager.

No bald eagles have nested in Mississippi since before World War II. In Louisiana, only six active nests are reported, between Houma and New Orleans. In 1960, bald eagles nested throughout the state.

No active nests are reported in Georgia and South Carolina and in Alabama, only two to four bald eagles were sighted last year.

"I don't think we will ever have bald eagles here again," said Jim Keeler, of the Alabama Conservation Department.

The bald eagle lives only in North America and is divided into two species, northern and southern.

The northern eagle resides above the 40th parallel, mainly in Alaska. It isn't an endangered species because limited use of pesticides and the area's low population have allowed numbers to remain high.

But the southern species is endangered. Biologists estimate just 2,400 live in the United States, all in the South. An estimated 800 to 1,000 are permanent Florida residents.

The number of southern eagles began dropping after World War II when DDT and other "hard" pesticides were introduced, according to biologists. The pesticides didn't kill the birds but lowered their calcium levels, causing them to lay thin-shelled eggs that were crushed when the 20-pound birds tried to hatch them.

Although the pesticides were outlawed about six years ago, biologists say the number of southern bald eagles began to stabilize only recently.

"The eagle is making a comeback in certain sections but not to the point yet, and won't be for some time, that we'll consider moving them from the endangered species list," said Bill Parker, a Tennessee wildlife agent.

Despite federal laws providing up to a $5,000 fine and a year imprisonment for killing bald eagles, the birds are still being slain. Some are killed by people mistaking them for hawks, another bird protected by federal law, and some are shot deliberately.

Some people just don't like the birds, a dislike dating from the not so ancient days when eagles were feared as child snatchers and sheep stealers.

Ben Franklin helped give the bald eagles their bad name.

"I wish that the bald eagle had not been chosen as the representative of our country; he is a bird of bad moral character; he does not get his living honestly" and he is "often very lousy. For in truth, the turkey is in comparison a much more respectable native and withal a true native of America," he wrote.

Biologists say eagles are mainly scavengers — when an eagle plummets screaming from the sky at speeds of up to 100 miles an hour, it's most likely going after a dead fish.

Organization Gets Grant; Will Expand

The Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association Inc. has received a federal grant for 1976.

The organization will be expanding into Virginia and Maryland. The major purpose of the organization is to economically upgrade low-income migrants and seasonal farm workers, local director, Dennison Garrett Jr. said.

"Tractors, and bulk garns, and tobacco harvest have replaced countless farmworkers in this area," he said. Our organization tries to make it possible for these people and their families to attend technical institutes, work experience programs, and receive on-the-job training, along with other supportive services."

The Pitt County MSFA Office is located at 308 S. Lee Street in Ayden. It opened in April, 1975. The annual Target Area Council meeting will be held at the Ayden Community Building Wednesday, Jan 21 at 8 p.m. New Target Area Council and District Area Council members for Pitt County will be elected. The public is invited.

Those interesting in helping this non-profit organization and those who need the services of the organization are urged to attend.

Classes Announced For The Community Theater

Now that Christmas and New Year holidays have passed, the Greenville Community Theater is getting back into full swing in preparation for a forthcoming spring production.

Stuart Aronson, director of the state-city sponsored project which had Harvey as its first production in December, talked about plans being formulated to hopefully get local citizens interested and involved in the community theater.

"We have just started a series of classes to be held at 8 p.m. each Wednesday night," Aronson said. "For now they will be held at the Methodist Student Center on East Fifth Street.

"These classes," Aronson noted, "will last for approximately one month or longer and will include things like the basics of stage movement, developing character, and improvisation.

"In other words," he continued, "it will be a means of encouraging inexperienced persons who want to be part of a community theater to have some training to give them confidence.

"It's not only those who want to be on stage that we're interested in, " he added. "We're asking anyone interested in any phase of theater, whether it's on stage or behind the scenes to get in touch and give us their name and address."

Interested persons are to call the Recreation Department, which is the sponsoring agency for the community theater. At the time, persons 18 and over are being considered. "We'll make exceptions for younger people of course," Aronson said, "but at this beginning stage we're trying to work with adults."

Aronson said that a decision will be made "probably in February" about the next production. "Tentatively, we're thinking of late April or early May as the production date for our second presentation."

There is no charge for the weekly classes, and all interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Two Oratorios By Wilmington Group

The Wilmington Oratorio Society, under the direction of Billie Houston, will present two J. S. Bach cantatas — "Sleepers, Wake!" (no. 140) and "For Us a Child is Born" (no. 142) at 5 p.m. today at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Sixth and Market Streets.

Soloists will be Bob Aiken, Beth Bell, Sheila Brooks, Robert Melton, Richard Steen and Jennings Trawick. They will be accompanied by instrumentalists on the violin, recorder, saxophone, French horn and organ.

"Sleepers, Wake!" is based on the parable of the wise and foolish virgins. Interwoven with the dramatic action, the cries of watchmen, the rousing of the slumbering virgins, the bridegrooms arrival, the marriage feast are two mystical dialogues between Jesus and the soul. In the judgment of Albert Schweitzer, "Not until Berloiz shall we meet with any dramatic-ictorial music comparable to this."

The Wilmington Oratorio Society invites the public to attend its performance of these two notable works. There is no admission charge.

Roots Of N.C. Independence Featured In Historical Film

Edenton locations are featured in a half-hour historical documentary film to be broadcast on the UNC-TV Network on Monday at 9:30 p.m.

Edenton segments of the film depict the Edenton Tea Party and Hayes Plantation and the home of Revolutionary Patriot Samuel Johnson.

The film, entitled Troublous Times, focuses on the years 1774-76 as the "roots of independence" in North Carolina. The story follows the main military and political events in this State up to the Declaration of Independence.

Other locations were filmed at Moore's Creek Battlefield Park, Historic Halifax, Tryon Palace in New Bern, Hillsborough and Raleigh. Hundreds of portraits, original documents and other graphic illustrations also were photographed for the film.

The film is written and narrated by Richard W. Hatch. It was produced with assistance from the North Carolina Bicentennial Commission. In addition to the statewide television broadcast, the Bicentennial Commission plans to distribute the film for public service use.

Hatch said it also tells of Tories, Cherokee Indians, Moravians, Quakers and slaves in North Carolina during the Revolution.

The film will also air Sunday, January 18 at 7:30 p.m. Locally it can be seen on Channel 25.

Audition For Boys

Auditions for additional members for the Greenville Boys Choir are being held on Monday. Brett Watson, director of the choir, announces that auditions will take place beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Room 265 of the Fletcher Music Guilding.

Boys between the ages of 8 and 12 are being considered. Previously, the age group was 9 to 12.

Free Dance, Poetry Program At NCMA

An original modern dance program and an "entertainment" of poetry and music will be presented free to the public at the N. C. Museum of Art at 3 p.m. today.

Members of the Durham Chamber Music Guild will perform "Facade — An Entertainment" under the direction of Donald Martin.

Written in 1921, "Facade" is a combination of music and poetry. Twenty-one rhythmic, abstract "patterns in sound" by British poet Edith Sitwell are read to a background of music by composer William Walton.

The other half of Sunday's program will be a performance of Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" by the Easy Moving Company, a resident Raleigh dance troupe, accompanied by the Durham Chamber Music Guild.

The choreography for "L'Histoire du Soldat" was designed specifically for performance in the North Carolina art museum, and the show's total effect depends on the dancers' surroundings as they move around the audience.

This performance is based on Stravinsky's original ballet score and reflects the composer's first interest in American jazz.

The four members of the Easy Moving Company choreograph, design and write narratives for their programs. The company is directed by dance teacher and performer Betsy Rowland.

Band Booster Meeting Set

The Greenville City Band Boosters Club will meet on Tuesday at 8:00 p.m. in the band room of Rose High School. All interested members of the Greenville community are invited to attend.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

If suspense-filled adventure, romantic adventure, or a funny and joyous reading experience is what you want in a book, you'll find them all in the new fiction at the library. In Millionaries Herbert Kastle builds a story that is as ingenious in plot as it is exotic in its setting. Returning to Bay Island after twenty years, Walter Danforth "Bucky" Prince stands looking at a sign which reads "Bay Island—Private." To Walter it says "Millionaries Only" — and he is determined to be one. Why shouldn't he regain the family fortune that his grandfather earned and lost? Using his special knowledge of Bay Island, Walter plans a jewel robbery, the stake being $6,000,000. The masked ball attended by the richest residents on the island is where it's going to take place. The result is a story you won't want to miss.

Writing against a background of action and excitement, Jessica Stirling has captured in Swarthmore the manners and mores of a Victorian town and a Victorian household. At the same time she has written a beautiful story of an Upstairs, Downstairs romance. The setting of her story is the Scotland of 1875, a period when poor, single girls were not supposed to fall in love with rich, married men. Beautiful, headstrong, passionate, and smart, Mirrin Stalker of Blacklaw had little respect for the town's Victorian conventions. Having gained the attention of Houston Lamont, the handsome owner of Swathmore, on an occasion when he rescued her from the unwanted attentions of an amorous man, Mirrin is eventually hired by him (over his wife's objections) to work as overseer of the household staff. Her father, Alex, toils for Lamont in the town's chief industry. Lamont's treatment of her father and the workers is good reason for Mirrin to hate him, but working in his household she has come to understand him. She soon finds herself desperately in love with him, torn between her loyalty to her father and her class and her forbidden love for Lamont.

Josephine Carson has created in her eagerly awaited third novel, Where You Goin, Girlie, a heroine who is continually fascinating. Nineteen-year-old Katie moves energetically into womanhood at a time when the town of Deliria is just beginning to rise from the lethargy of the Depression. America is mobilizing for war, preparing to meet the destiny of defloration at Pearl Harbor. A town full of eager young men, a happily unworldly mother, a family scandal involving her Aunt Enid, and Renfro's return home after a decade of hobo life are just some of the situations Katie has to deal with. Where You Goin, Girlie? is a major work that is part of the American saga, and like Ms. Carson's previous works, it is "full of fun and tenderness, sharp perception and skill."

Children's Films

Three children's films are to be shown during the coming week at the city libraries. The Caterpillar and the Wild Animals, an animated film, tells the story of a disenchanted caterpillar who eventually is made happy by a curious frog. The other films are Mischief and The Snowy Day. Show times are: Carver Library, 4 p.m. Tuesday; Sheppard Library, 7:30 p.m. Thursday; and East Branch, 4 p.m. Friday.

Art Notes

Howell's "The Mullet Haul"

"The Mullet Haul" is the title of an exhibition of a series of oil paintings by Claude Howell on view during January at St. John's Gallery, 114 Orange Street, Wilmington.

The 12 paintings comprising "The Mullet Haul" series were painted by Howell during the summer of 1975, and are executed in fresh, clear colors.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. til 5 p.m. daily Tuesday through Saturday, with the gallery closed on Sunday and Monday.

His intaglio print, "Candy, Philosophy, and New Ideas," was among works chosen for the annual show, which is sponsored by the Greenville County Art Association.

New Dryden Gallery Show

Watercolors and lithographs by Paul Jenkins, and graphics by Jim Dine are the featured works of art to be on view at Dryden Gallery, Providence Square Center in Charlotte

The show opens today, with a reception for the public to be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

New Show At Kate Lewis Gallery

The traveling exhibition of the Associated Artists of North Carolina, currently on view in the Kate Lewis Gallery in the downstairs hallway of Whichard Building is a definite disappointment.

A little more than two dozen pieces representing the work of 15 North Carolina based artists make up this show. All except five are from either Raleigh or Asheville. As a group, the show is marked by a consistent drabness—with the exception of work by Jill Flink and Randy Macatee.

The idea behind the exhibition is excellent—contributions of art work by members of the Associated Artists organization with proceeds from sales to be used to promote the visual arts in North Carolina. And it must be pointed out that the prices are reasonable, ranging from $25 to $300 per item.

Without really knowing, I feel these works very likely do not represent the best or even some of the better achievements of artists represented. Could it be these examples were the only pieces available at the time for the artist to contribute?

Whatever the answer to these questions may be, it is hoped that those in charge of selecting shows for the Kate Lewis Gallery will go back to the high criteria applied to earlier shows there. Fine shows at Kate Lewis have been the fare in the past, and it would beunfortunate to see a policy of laxness lead to a repetition of shows as lacking in interest as this first one for 1976.

The Writer's Bible

Writer's Market '76. Edited by Jane Koester and Rose Adkins. Cincinnati, Ohio. Writer's Digest Press. 1975. 971 pps, $12.50.

If you're a writer, any kind of writer, or a photographer who's really good with a camera, and if you're one of the majority who has put off til another day, another year the effort to wrap up your creative efforts and send it out to the marketplace — then Writer's Market '76 is the catalyst you need to spur you into action, and very possibly, success.

Writer's Market '76 is not just another helpful how-to book. It's true there's a wealth of hints on how to do certain basic things, but it's predominant value is its "where-to" slant.

This comprehensive market guide — the sub-title: "5,137 Paying Markets for Novels, Stories, Fillers, Plays, Articles, Gags, Verses and Photos" succinctly indicates the extensiveness of coverage — is an accurate, timely guide that directs a writer to "where" to send material to an editor most likely to be interested in and accept a writer's work.

Because the market for the written word is never static, the carefully updated annual Writer's Market is a must for the professional or novice writer in keeping abreast of possible markets.

Consider, for example, the book's "Alternative Publications" listings. Not too many years ago there was practically no market for material directed to anti-establishment or minority ideas in writing. The 1976 edition has over 15 pages of listings for publications which purchases material dealing with subjects relating to emerging alternative life-styles — women's lib, the gay movement, the occult, radical politics, etc.

Chances are this will not be your forte, that your efforts are in more conventional fields. Do you have a book manuscript in progress? If so, you'll find indispensable guidance in the section "Book Publishers" which begins on page 655 and runs through page 739.

And the editors are not content merely with listing the names and addresses of book publishers. There's valuable, straightforward information on manuscript preparation, mailing, contacting publishers, making outlines, facts on contracts and royalty rights that are essential. In addition, information is furnished on the current requirements of each publisher, what they want most and what they do not want; whether outlines or complete manuscripts are desired; whether unsolicited manuscripts are acceptable or if only manuscripts sent by an agent will be considered. All this is the kind of information designed to save writers valuable time, effort and money.

Perhaps the biggest majority of local writers and would be writers are aiming at the general consumer market — magazines and other publications publishing a varied spectrum of subjects. For this group, there's literally thousands of markets for any conceivable subject, listed under the heading "Consumer Publications." This section covers well over 400 pages and reflects an astonishing array of subject matter — art and business, child care and comic books, confession stories and education, military services and mystery stories, photography and poetry, science fiction and sport are but a few of the major categories covered in detail.

No effort has been spared to make Writer's Market '76 an easy-to-use reference, from the utilization of major market divisions to alphabetizing entries within each sub-division.

There's also excellent bonus material supplementing the major extensive listings — a list of author's agents; government information sources; play publishers and producers; writer's clubs, organizations and conferences; writer's contests and awards; sources for photographers; a chapter on foreign markets, etc.

Everything considered, there's nothing comparable to a copy of Writer's Market '76 to inspire, guide and put the novice writer or photographer on the right road to success. It's equally valuable for the already launched writer as a means of keeping abreast of constant changes in the American literary marketplace.

While it's possible to check out a copy from the library, or borrow a friend's copy, nothing can take the place of having your own copy at hand. For anyone seriously interested in making 1976 a year of action, owning a copy of Writer's Market '76 should receive top priority — early in the year.

The program presently has 40 visiting artists employed by 40 community colleges and technical institutes.

The program is open to people with a master's degree or equivalent training. The minimum salary is $10,000 for nine months.

The Arts Council will do the preliminary screening of applicants, with final selection to be made by the participating community colleges and technical institutes.

The deadline for applying for the program is March 1. Further information can be obtained by writing the Visiting Artists Program, Arts Council, Department of Cultural Resources, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The first meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for January and for 1976 will be held Tuesday beginning at 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Steele, 104 Avon Lane.

The purpose of the club is to encourage article and fiction writing in the local area. There is no formal organization and no fees involved. All persons interested in any form of creative writing other than poetry are invited to attend.

Trash Becomes Shrines

By NAOAKI USUI

HACHIOJI, Japan (AP) — "For many years I had wondered why people threw so many useful things into trash cans, and whether I could do something with them," said Kiichi Murata, owner of a neighborhood fish shop.

The answer was yes and the result 23 impressively detailed models of ancient Japanese temples and shrines turned out in the past 3½ years.

Murata has been offered the equivalent of 7,000 U.S. dollars for some of his works, but has declined to sell.

One model is on permanent display at a centuries-old Shinto shrine, and others are exhibited repeatedly at art shows sponsored by department stores. The remainder fill his home museum, a 20-by-20-foot straw matted room behind the fish cases in his shop in this Tokyo suburb.

The 41-year-old Murata said his materials come from things thrown out of homes, stores and construction sites, plus some paint and a lot of toil.

One prized, recent example of his work is a model of a "Shimozato Kasahoko" wagon, a movable shrine that is a top attraction at the annual Chichibu festival near Tokyo. The original is paraded every December to offer thanks for a good harvest as part of one of Japan's three biggest festivals.

Murata's kasahoko includes every minor detail in its three-by-five-foot form. The linking of the delicately curved roof is made from used jumping ropes, a mural of a crane from an old calendar, and the sides from pieces of discarded straw tatami mats.

"I also used three wooden fish boxes, scraps of veneer found at a nearby construction site, remnants from my wife's old kimonos," Murata said in an interview. "It cost about seven dollars in all, mainly for the paint."

Other leading examples of his work include a six-foot-wide model of the Tsurugaoka Shinto Shrine in Kamakura, models of shoulder-carried portable shrines of the 17th-19th centuries, and one of the Yaoin Temple near his home.

"I had always been interested in temples and shrines," he said, "and 3½ years ago it struck me that I could make them out of junk. So I gave it a try, without drawings or blueprints, and made it."

Murata starts off his day at 4:30 a.m. with a trip to the Tokyo central fish market, returns to his shop with his purchases, deals with customers all day and closes his business about 7 p.m.

"I start working on the shrines at 9 o'clock after my after-dinner chat with my wife and two children," he said. "I work for two hours and then go to bed."

His workshop is a six-by-six-foot space at the end of a corridor in his home and is equipped with basic tools and an electric saw. He said it takes six to seven months to finish one model.

Murata's wife said she had never known of his talent for building models during the first 15 years of their marriage.

Professional builders also have expressed surprise at Murata's ability.

"He has no blueprints and starts off by building the roof," said Masao Watanabe. "It's entirely crazy from my professional viewpoint, yet his system works."

SELECTED FOR TRAINING

Ivey Coward Pest Control Co. of Greenville was recently selected to train state pest control inspectors in termite control procedures, according to Tommy Gunn, vice president and manager of the firm.

Gunn said that the firm was asked by the Pest Control Division of the state Department of Agriculture to train the inspectors in all phases of termite control procedures, including the initial inspection, writing specifications for chemical treatment, sales procedures and on-the-job control methods.

According to Gunn, the inspectors previously had the job of inspecting pesticide labeling, checking of pest control vehicles while on the job, taking samples of pesticide mixtures and other duties involving only household pest control. The training will allow them to extend their responsibilities to include checking a pest control firm's termite jobs to insure that they are meeting minimum state standards.

Worst Fears Over For Orange Crop

By The Associated Press

Florida citrus growers relaxed a bit today after their near-record crop survived a chilly night largely intact, an industry spokesman said.

Meanwhile, a cold wave, nearly national in scope, also has left a limited supply of natural gas in many parts of the country and has been blamed for at least a half dozen deaths in Ohio.

Schools in parts of five states — Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas — were without heating fuel Friday and closed their doors. The Arkansas-Louisiana Gas. Co., which serves large sections of the five-state area, asked schools and industries to shut down during the cold spell to conserve its dwindling supply of natural gas.

In Florida, Earl Wells, a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, said: "We got a break during the night. Temperatures bottomed out about midnight in the mid 20s then began to climb back up."

He said some growers used smudge pots and blowers to protect crops and a northeasterly wind helped cut down the frost.

"We got a real break with the winds," Wells said. "This is the fourth threat we've had this year, and we appear to have skimmed by once again."

However, he said there might be mild crop damage in colder locations, such as portions of Lake, Marion and Polk Counties in central Florida.

Wells said temperatures would have had to remain at about 26 degrees for four or five hours for the crops to have been substantially damaged.

Forecasters had predicted that temperatures would drop well below the crucial temperature level for much of the central Florida area. Temperatures as low as 21 degrees were expected for portions of the citrus-growing region.

At stake was an estimated 136 million boxes of oranges still on the trees, citrus industry officials had said. They said that is all but a fraction of the near-record crop of 172 million boxes anticpated for this season.

The worst freeze in Florida's history was in 1962, when half the orange crop was destroyed by cold temperatures.

In Southern California, meanwhile, the mercury began to climb after four nights of temperature in the low 20s. The cold weather took a heavy toll of that area's citrus crop, but so far growers have not estimated their losses.

Bad weather was blamed for several deaths, and in Adams, N.Y., a state of emergency was declared after the village was buried under 44 inches of snow.

At least six weather-related deaths were reported in Ohio, where officials said combinations of temperature and wind speed caused wind-chill factors as low as 45 below zero in some areas.

In Columbus, the cold kept trash collectors off the job for a second day. Their union contract stipulates they don't have to work when the temperaure drops below 3 degrees.

A warming trend moved into the Midwest and Plains to end a three-day spell of subzero cold there.

Researches Storage In Earth's Basins

NEW HILL, N.C. (AP)—A 5,000-foot well now being dug in central North Carolina will tell geologists whether liquid wastes can be stored in basins within the earth's rock formation.

It will be mid-February before the drills hit the basins, George Bain, a U.S. Geological Survey hydrologist, said. The drilling operation in the community 20 miles from Raleigh began last month and is aimed at learning more about the large basins—called Triassic basins.

The basins stretch from Nova Scotia to Florida and were formed about 140 million years ago, Bain said.

Depending on what is learned, the basins could be used to store billions of gallons of water, industrial wastes or natural gas. Bain said the basins may be a partial solution to the country's pollution problem.

Cost of the project is $150,000. The hole will be filled after the basin is reached and adequate samples are collected, Bain said. In addition, Bain said the exploration will provide information on the existence of minerals, water table depth and rock formations in the area.

The basins will not be "a quick and automatic solution to our pollution disposal problems. Misuse of space might harm more valuable resources," Bain said.

Self-Respect

NEW YORK (UPI) — A recent American Management Associations survey showed that three out of four presidents and managers chose the aspect of "feeling that my work is worth doing" as contributing most to their self-respect.

Analysts Say Seeds Planted For Next Recession

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Since World War II the U.S. economy has shuddered through six recessions — and today is shaking off the latest, and by far the longest and most severe, of these costly slumps.

Recession has gripped the economy 25 per cent of the time since the 1948 decline that followed the end of the war. Put another way, for every four good, or at least stable, years, there's been a bad year.

And even as the nation works its way out of the latest recession, there are predictions another recession, perhaps even worse than the most recent one, will be at hand within three years.

It may be inevitable — too late to stop. Booms follow busts and busts follow booms. It's an unending cycle.

"It's as sure as night follows day," said Michael K. Evans, director of Chase Econometrics. "You would think that having been through this, people in government would see this pattern and do something to stop it."

It is, Evans added, "a stupid way to run an economy."

Evans is not alone. Few economists see it any other way. The seeds are planted, they say, for the third recession in this decade, the seventh since 1948.

"Trying to anticipate trends over the next year is not difficult because it is based largely on economic fundamentals," said Irwin Kellner of Manufacturers Hanover Trust. "It's just a question of guessing the numbers to the precise decimal point."

Kellner feels the "policies are already in place" to produce an economic boom in 1976, followed by rising prices in 1977 and a recession again in 1978.

"Hopefully," Kellner said, "it should be more like a typical post war recession in that it would last only six to eight months. But there is no guarantee it won't be worse than the one we are just getting out of. If it is worse, we could likely be finishing up the decade in recession.

Albert T. Sommers, chief economist of the Conference Board, an independent business research group, is optimistic that economic conditions will be "generally satisfactory" over the next 18 months. But he's not as confident about 1977 and 1978.

"In 1977, unemployment will be down but inflation will be up and interest rates will be rising," said Sommers. If the Federal Reserve reacts, as it did in 1974, and tightly restricts money supply and credit in an all-out confrontation with inflation, the economy could slide into a recession "as bad as this one," he added.

"I hold the view that our policy equipment confronts this issue very inadequately. Our equipment is almost obsolete," Sommer said.

Arthur M. Okun, economic adviser during Democratic administrations, agrees the nation will encounter a "danger zone around the start of 1977, maybe a little sooner, maybe a little later."

Morris Cohen, chief economist for Schroeder Naess & Thomas, an international investment firm, wonders "how we managed to survive at all."

But, said Cohen, "we obviously did — and, in my view, our economy and society are better for it.

"Government officials have been chastened both in New York City and Washington, D.C., and this is a bi-partisan point. Businessmen and bankers are also more careful than usual, and consumers are cautious. I submit that this is the beginning of wisdom."

Eliot Janeway doesn't think the recession is going to end but, in fact, get worse unless Washington takes steps to break the oil cartel of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"This is a world political crisis," said Janeway. "If America puts on the muscle to resolve this world political crisis, we'll be on our way. But if we persist in playing the numbers game as if this were a domestic problem, we're going to have an economic depression.

"There's no way you can have a robust economy," Janeway said, when the price of oil, set by OPEC, is held at an inflated level of $11 per barrel.

If 1979 ends in recession, Americans will have spent the better part of the 1970s either struggling with inflation or recession. Prosperity will have been the exception rather than the rule.

Even the most optimistic forecasters believe the nation's unemployment level will continue through 1980 at a rate two to four percentage points above the four and a half per cent once considered normal.

AFL-CIO President George Meany warned Americans will not tolerate being doomed to such high unemployment for so long.

"In fact," said Meany, "we are convinced this country and its free institutions are endangered by this situation, which is pushing millions of people out of the economy's mainstream."

Otto Eckstein, director of Data Resources, Lexington, Mass., believes the high unemployment while a business recovery is under way in 1976 — an election year — could bring dramatic changes in the nation's economic structure. The question, Eckstein said, is "how vicious will Congress be in the redistribution of wealth."

Eckstein thinks the nation's economy is particularly vulnerable because of domestic and international political instability, worldwide food and fuel shortages and total absence of an international economic policy.

"We have relatively integrated world economy but have no coordinated economic policy at all," he said.

The feeling the nation's economy is a $1.4 trillion rudderless ship is not restricted to economists. As University of Michigan consumer surveys show, the man in the street has even less faith in the ability of either business or government to provide a semblance of prosperity.

"They see that the policies in which we put our trust obviously collapsed," said Harvard's Wassily Leontief, a Nobel laureate in economics. "The whole idea of a bond salesman (Secretary of Treasury William E. Simon) and a Wall Street analyst (Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers) running an economy is laughable. It's incredible."

Leontief and Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, and two senators, Republican Jacob Javits of New York and Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, are leading a drive for a government system of national planning.

The mere idea of government planning sends shudders through the nation's board rooms, and the legislation proposed by Javits and Humphrey has not attracted much support.

Still there is a growing sophistication about the economy in Washington and elsewhere. Congress has established a new mechanism for determining what will be the impact of government programs on the economy, providing the elected officials with more guidance than ever before.

Government spending accounts for more than one-third of the $1.4 trillion GNP; and, while many argue that this share should be reduced substantially, it is doubtful government's role could be sharply reduced without massive economic disruption.

The best hope is that government manage its role well — and carefully.

The major difference between the Republican administration and the Democratic congress is over how much stimulation the economy can absorb without bringing about a new round of inflation and yet another recession.

Congress' Joint Economic Committee said in a recent study if President Ford's economic policy — based on an additional tax reduction of $10 billion coupled with a federal spending cut of $28 billion — is followed the recovery will run out of steam by 1977, leaving an unemployment rate of 7.5 per cent.

The study said a combination of spending increases or tax cuts totaling $12 billion was needed to avoid aborting the recovery.

The trick for policymakers is to find the balance. The jury is out on their ability to do so.

Delay Action

The City Council agreed Thursday night to delay action on the proposed amendment to the city's Blue Law until the March meeting of the board.

The move was made in order to give the new city manager, Jim Caldwell, time to review the Sunday Observance Ordinance matter and become more familiar with the situation involving the ordinance proposals.

Some discussion of the ordinance took place at he November meeting of the Council but the matter was delayed pending a workshop and subsequent scheduling of a public hearing on a amended version.

The Council had indicated in November that the public hearing would probably be scheduled in January or February but the March session was chosen in view of the new city manager's situation.

Crosby, Garner Lead Bucs To Victory

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Louis Crosby came into his own Saturday afternoon, playing his best game of the year in guiding the East Carolina Pirates to a 72-68 victory over Furman University.

Crosby hit 22 points along the way as the Bucs moved their Southern Conference record to 4-1 in the regionally televised basketball game.

"It was his best performance of the season by far," Coach Dave Patton said of his talented freshman. "This is the way he can play. We just haven't wanted to push him too quickly."

Patton was obviously elated following the victory, which saw the Bucs battle back from several deficits of as much as seven points. It marked the first time that a Buc team of his had beaten Furman, until Saturday the only team in the league Patton didn't have a victory over.

While Crosby was the hero most of the afternoon, it took some clutch free throw shooting at the end to insure the victory.

Furman had fought back from two five-point deficits to knot it at 66-66 with 1:45 to go. Earl Garner popped in a basket from underneath 12 seconds later, and was fouled. He completed the three-pointer for a 69-66 lead. Furman again cut the lead back to 69-68, but a free throw by Garner with 34 left upped the lead to two, and two more by Reggie Lee with two seconds to go wrapped it up.

The Bucs trailed much of the afternoon, never getting the lead until midway through the second half. It was tied on ten occasions, and the Pirates had several chances to push ahead, but each time failed in their efforts.

The Bucs shot only 42.1 per cent, missing on a number of shots from underneath. Furman did little better, however, making just 44.1 per cent. The Pirates had fewer turnovers, 14 to Furman's 18. The Bucs held only a one rebound edge in that department, 44-43.

Tyron Edwards, who drew a starting role, led the team with nine, while Larry Hunt and Al Edwards both had seven. Jim Strickland paced Furman with 12.

The Bucs went with a zone defense the entire afternoon, a change of pace for them. Usually East Carolina goes with man-to-man.

"I thought we did a very good job on defense," Patton said. "We stayed with it, and it did the job for us."

Patton was also pleased with the play he got from the Bucs, especially after their big loss to Old Dominion. "We were down, but when they come back like this, what can you say? Now we just have to avoid another letdown." Patton started both of the highly-touted freshmen, Crosby and Edwards, along with Reggie Lee, Wade Henkel and Larry Hunt. "I thought they did well," he said. "They made some mistakes, but you have to expect that with two freshmen and a sophomore. We got some good play out of our bench, too."

After two teams swapped baskets for the first few minutes, Furman pulled away on six straight points by Steve Whittington. He hit from the corner, then drove in for another basket. He was fouled on the last shot, and awarded two free throws (flagrant foul), hitting both for a 10-4 lead.

But the Bucs, behind two baskets each by Crosby and Henkel closed the gap and tied it at 12-12. Furman moved out by four again, 18-14, but the Bucs knotted it at 20-20, 24-24 and 26-26 before Furman pulled away for the rest of the half. After moving out by six on a basket and two free throws by Don Harris and a jumper by Ray Miller, the Paladins got a free throw and a basket to run it out to 35-28, their biggest lead.

The Pirates, however, hit at the horn to cut the lead back to 37-32 at intermission.

Early in the second half, Furman again pulled out by seven, 41-34, but the Bucs with baskets from Earl Garner and Crosby, and a three-point play by Lee tied it up on Garner's fast break at 43-43.

But the Pirates were unable to take the lead, as Miller converted a three-pointer. Buzzy Braman hit on a running hook from the lane to cut the lead to 52-51, then Garner hit on a pair of free throws to give the Pirates their first lead, 53-52.

Furman regained it at 54-53, as Strickland put back a missed shot. Crosby followed with two jumpers, however, pushing the Bucs back on top, 57-54, and then never lost the lead again, despite one more tie.

Hunt hit from underneath to up the lead to 53-58, but Furman didn't give up and struggled back to finally tie it up on a jumper by Ronnie Smith with 1:45 left, 66-66. Then came Garner's three-pointer, plus his single free throw and Lee's two that sewed it up for the Pirates.

The win boosted the Bucs back to even again, 6-6, for the year. Furman fell off to 3-7 overall and 0-2 in the league.

The Bucs continue their four-game road trip Monday, traveling to Richmond to meet the University of Richmond Spiders.

In addition to Crosby's 22 points, Garner tossed in 21, while Lee hit 11. Furman was led by Miller with 25, while Strickland had 13, Whittington had 12 and Smith tossed in 10.

Deacons Dump Terps, 96-93

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — With four starters pumping in more than 20 points each, seventh-ranked Wake Forest beat off a late rally and stunned second-ranked and previously-unbeaten Maryland 96-93 Saturday night.

The Deacons, 12-1 for the season, took the lead early and never relinquished it, though the Terps, who suffered their first loss in a dozen games, cut it to one point twice — once with 5:25 left in the first half and at 88-87 with 1:30 to play.

But in the last two minutes, the Deacons hit 10 of 10 free throws to insure the victory. Rod Griffin sank two of two with 11 seconds to play to ice the win.

Guards Jerry Schellenberg and Skip Brown hit for 22 points each while Daryl Peterson and Griffin had 21 points each for the Deacons. Peterson led the Deacons in rebounding with 10 while Griffin had eight and four steals.

John Lucas led all scorers with 34 points for Maryland. Steve Sheppard contributed 17, Brad Davis had 15 and Larry Gibson had 13.

The teams were tied at 6-6 when two Schellenberg layups gave the Deacons a 10-6 advantage and they never trailed again. Though Maryland pulled to within one later in the first half, the Deacons gained control again and held a 46-40 halftime advantage.

In the second half, Wake Forest built its lead to as many as 11 points, at 74-63 with 10 minutes to play and again at 82-71 with six minutes to go. Maryland then began its late rally, only to stumble under the deadly Deacon free throw accuracy late in the contest.

For the game, Maryland shot 59.1 per cent from the floor and Wake Forest 54.9 per cent.

North Carolina Nips Virginia By 85-82

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Coach Dean Smith of sixth-ranked North Carolina, his Tar Heels having escaped with an 85-82 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory Saturday over Virginia's Cavaliers, said, "I think they're a contender in the ACC right now."

"At least I hope they are, because if they aren't, we aren't, either," said Smith after the outside shooting of Phil Ford and John Kuester late in the first half cracked Virginia's zone defense for the Tar Heels, 2-0 in the ACC and 10-1 over-all.

But Virginia Coach Terry Holland said, "We got out of the zone because they were getting too many second shots after taking the outside shot. We didn't get out of it because of their outside shooting."

The Tar Heels, ahead eight points at the half on the strength of an eight-point run in the last 2½ minutes, built a 12-point margin with less than five minutes left in the regionally televised game, only to see the Cavaliers rally behind Wally Walker, who had 34 points.

"Walker had a sensational game," said Smith, but Walker always has played well against the Tar Heels, hitting 12 of 13 from the floor in an 84-78 victory his freshman year.

"Wally is scoring well because there are good players around him," said Holland. "No one can afford to double up on him."

The turning point to Holland was the eight-point North Carolina run just before the half. He said, "We had some chances to cut it early in the second half and couldn't."

North Carolina staved off the late Virginia comeback on deadly free throw accuracy down the stretch by Ford and Walter Davis and spoiled a second straight upset bid by the Cavaliers, who beat seventh-ranked Wake Forest Wednesday night.

Ford finished with 27 points, including nine of 13 at the foul line, and Davis had 18 points, including 10 straight free throws.

All of North Carolina's other starters were in double figures with Kuester scoring 14, Mitch Kupchak 12 and Tom LaGarde 10. Marc Iavaroni had 21 for Virginia, which fell to 1-2 in the ACC and 7-3 over-all.

There were four ties and eight lead changes before the Tar Heels took command for good with their eight-point streak, in which Kupchak had two field goals. Virginia went the last three minutes of the first half with just two points.

The Tar Heels went to their four-corner offense with 5½ minutes left and a 10-point lead and built the margin to 12, but the Cavaliers battled back.

Billy Langloh's field goal and two free throws by Walker on a four-point play with 2:31 left and another basket by Walker with 2:10 remaining cut the Tar Heels' lead to 80-76.

But Virginia couldn't get closer than 83-80 and the final margin because of the Tar Heels' free throw accuracy, which included 21 of 25 in the second half and 27 of 36 for the game.

East Captures Hula Bowl, 16-0

By BOB BARR
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — The East, mounting the day's only sustained drive with the running of Purdue's Mike Pruitt and Kentucky's Sonny Collins, forged a 16-0 victory over the West Saturday in the 30th Hula Bowl football game.

Don Bitterlich of Temple added three field goals including a pair of Hula Bowl-record kicks from 46 yards out.

Both teams started shakily, fumbling and losing the ball to each other within the first 90 seconds.

But the East, using the power running of the 210-pound Pruitt and the slashing outside speed of the 190-pound Collins, put together a 17-play 80-yard touchdown drive in the second quarter capped by Pruitt's four-yard touchdown burst.

Collins, the speedster whose final year at Kentucky was marred by controversy over allegations of drug usage on the team and a murder investigation, had two 14-yard gains in the drive, including a loop around left end which put the ball on the west four-yard line.

Pruitt banged in for the touchdown on the next play, running right between Oklahoma's touted Selmon brothers, Leroy and Dewey who were anchoring the center of the West's defensive line.

Leroy Selmon was voted the game's outstanding defensive player and Ohio State quarterback Cornelius Greene of the East was named the outstanding offensive player.

Bitterlich had all three of his field goals in the second half, one from 26 and the two long ones.

He broke the Hula Bowl field goal record of 40 yards set by Mark Williams of Rice in 1973.

While Collins and Pruitt combined for 98 rushing yards in the game, the East defense shutout Oklahoma's Joe Washington in the first half and allowed him only 38 yards for the game.

The East rolled up 286 yards on offense and limited the West, with All-American John Sciarra of UCLA sharing quarterback chores with Steve Davis of Oklahoma for the West, to only 123 yards total offense.

State In Slim Win

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Eleventh ranked North Carolina State, led by Kenny Carr's 24 points, overcame a seven-point second half deficit to defeat Rollins College 79-75 in college basketball Saturday night.

The Wolfpack trailed much of the game, largely because of the hot shooting of Rollins senior 6-foot-6 forward Bruce Howland who was the game's leading point-maker with 33 points.

Trailing 54-37 with 13:34 left in the game, N.C. State outscored the Tars 25-12 to take an eight-point lead, 74-66, with 2:41 remaining. The Wolfpack coasted to the victory but Rollins was undaunted and managed to narrow the spread to four points, though efforts to close the gap futher failed because of good ball control by N.C. State.

The Wolfpack jumped to a seven-point lead in the game's opening minutes but Rollins pulled within three then Howland hit eight consecutive points and a bucket by Gary Parsons put the Tars ahead 30-23 with 8:30 to go in the half. N.C. State closed the gap to three and Rollins took a 42-39 lead to the locker room at halftime.

North Wins In American Bowl

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Quarterbacks Mike Kruczek of Boston College and Charles Baggett of Michigan State teamed up Saturday and led the North to a 21-14 football victory over the mistake-prone South in the eighth annual American Bowl.

The win gave the Yanks a 6-2 lead in the series over the Rebels, who had six turnovers—five of them interceptions.

The South opened the scoring with 40 seconds left in the first quarter when Tulsa's Jeb Blount connected on a 14-yard pass with running back Wille Collins of Bethune-Cookman to cap a 62-yard, eight-play drive. The conversion attempt failed.

The North bounced back in the second quarter to take a 14-6 halftime lead, scoring twice following a fumble recovery and a pass interception.

The first tally came after Washington linebacker Paul Strohmeier snatched up a fumble by Collins. The North marched 51 yards to score on a four-yard pass play from Kruczek to Sherman Smith, a Miami of Ohio, wide receiver who was deep in the end zone. Illinois' Ronnie Perrin's kick put the Yanks ahead 7-6.

With 58 seconds left in the half, the North scored again on a one-yard keeper by Baggett. That touchdown followed an interception of a Blount pass by Syracuse defensive back Keith Moody.

The North had another threat earlier in the quarter, moving to the South's eight-yard line. But Bagget fumbled and Florida A&M's Frankie Poole recovered.

Capitalizing on another interception, this one by Jim Stock of Notre Dame, the North widened the gap to 21-6 in the third quarter when Michigan State's Tyrone Wilson dashed eight yards into the end zone.

With 12:40 to go in the final quarter, Blount moved the South back into the game, tossing two 26-yard passes—one to Texas A&I tight end Dave Hill and one to Auburn runner Jaff Gilligan. Then, Steve Campassi of Kentucky took it over on a two-yard plunge and the South opted for two points, with Blount passing to Hill to make the score 21-14.

Defenses were not permitted to blitz and were limited to three-deep coverage on passes.

Sports writers elected Blount, who completed 14 of 20 passes for 150 yards, and Wilson, who had 118 yards on 23 carries, as the game's most valuable players.

Weiskopf Holds Tucson's Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, object of a raging controversy at this tournament a year ago, emerged from a tightly bunched field with a five-under-par 67 and assumed the third-round lead Saturday in $200,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf, who was accused—and later exonerated—of unprofessional play when he missed the cut here in 1975, put together a three-round total of 205, 11 under par on the 7,200 yards of cactus-studded desert real estate that make up the Tucson National Golf Club course.

Just one stroke off his pace were Johnny Miller and Tom Watson. Miller, the runaway winner of this tournament for the past two seasons, had a third-round 67 and Watson, winner of the British Open and two other 1975 titles, shot a 68 that included a watery bogey on the final hole that kept him from a tie for the top.

Veteran Rod Funseth followed with a 66-207, two shots behind the leader. Dave Hill, with a 71, and Dave Stockton, with a 69 that included a double bogey on the 18th hole, were tied at 208.

The bulky group at 209 was made up of Lee Trevino, Don January, Gibby Gilbert, Howard Twitty and tour sophomore Bruce Lietzke, leaving 11 men locked within four stokes of each other going to Sunday's final round of play for a $40,000 first prize.

The husky Lietzke had a remarkable round that included nine birdies, a double bogey and a triple bogey, the triple bogey coming on the treacherous 18th, which is bounded by water on both sides of the 460 yard fairway. The same water led to Johnny Miller's triple bogey seven in the first round of competitive play on the pro tour this year.

But Miller birdied it Saturday, rolling in a 30 foot putt.

"I'm getting even with it," he said. "I've birdied it two days in a row now and I'm only one stroke behind on that hole and in the tournament. I'm closing up."

Six players led or shared the lead in the bright, warm winter sunshine before Weiskopf pulled away.

He reached the first two par fives in two and two-putted for birdies, holed another from about 10 feet and took the lead alone with a 15-foot birdie putt on the seventh.

Weiskopf scored his third birdie four of the day on the 11th, bogeyed the 12th from a bunker, then dropped in a 10-footer on the next hole.

The on-rushing Watson tied Weiskopf with iron shots that left him birdie putts of 2½ and 1½ feet on the 15th and 16th holes, then surrendered his share of the top spot when his tee shot bounced into the water on the 18th.

"I was fortunate to get out of it with a bogey," Watson said. "It put me in a good frame of mind going to the last day. I'm looking forward to it."

Miller didn't make a bogey, didn't really come close. In addition to his long birdie putt on the final hole, he hit three in the 12-15 foot range and dropped another from about 45 feet.

Richmond Rips Appalachian

By JERRY MITCHELL

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Freshman Mike Morton scored 22 points as Richmond used a second half blitz to down Applachian State 87-62 Saturday night in a Southern Conference basketball game.

Richmond, now 5-5 on the season and 3-1 in conference play, scored 15 unanswered points late in the first half to go from a five-point deficit to a 25-15 lead.

The Spiders, leading 35-25 at intermission, scored three quick buckets as the second half got underway and moved out to lead by as many as 29 points at 64-35 with 13:12 to play.

Calvin Bowser, Mel Hubbard, and Daryll Robinson each scored 11 points to lead Appalachian State, now 3-7 on the season and 1-3 in conference play.

Both teams had a relatively poor shooting percentage in the first half, with Richmond hitting on 39 per cent from the floor and the Mountaineers connecting on 34.5 per cent. Richmond shot 52.6 per cent in the second half to Appalachian State 37.1 per cent.

Morton, who had nine points in the first half, added 13 in the final half with seven of them from the free throw stripe. Joining him in double figures were Jeff Butler with 17 and Craig Sullivan with 15.

Both teams started very slow with only 25 points scored in the first 13 minutes of play as Appalachian State moved out to a 15-10 advantage. At that point Richmond went ahead on its scoring spurt.

Appalachian State outscored Richmond 11-1 midway through the final period as Richmond put in its reserves but got no closer than 19 points 71-52.

Oregon State Storms Past Bruins, 75-58

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State, deliberate on offense and devastating on defense, breezed to a 75-58 upset over third-ranked UCLA Saturday to take over first place in the Pacific-8 Conference.

Six-foot-8 center Lonnie Shelton, who went to court to get his college eligibility restored after signing a hardship contract with the American Basketball Association, scored 20 points to lead the Beavers who are now 9-4 on the season and 2-0 in the league.

Shelton got into foul trouble with three inside seven minutes of the first half when he came out of the game, but Beaver substitutes met the challenge and led at halftime 33-20. The Beavers reeled off 12 straight points early in the second half after UCLA started to challenge and were never in danger.

In the second half Oregon State was virtually flawless on defense, committing but one foul in the final 20 minutes.

It was the 401st college victory for Coach Ralph Miller who called the win "undoubtedly the best in my coaching career. We really needed this one, and it was a decisive victory for us."

It was only the eighth conference loss for UCLA in the past 10 years.

Shelton scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half and was a factor on the defensive backboards. In the final seconds Shelton could not resist the opportunity to dunk the ball and did, costing the Beavers a technical foul and giving the Bruins their final point at the free-throw line.

Richard Washington, UCLA's most valuable player in winning the NCAA championship last year, led UCLA with 21 points, high for the game.

But the Beaver defense shut off the other Bruin big men—Ralph Drollinger and Marques Johnson—for most of the contest. Andre McCarter had 15 points.

Tar Heels Dump Pirate Tankers

East Carolina University's swimming team took it on the chip from the University of North Carolina Saturday afternoon, drowning in the wake of the Tar Heels, 81-23.

The Bucs, hampered by the loss of nine swimmers under suspension by Coach Ray Scharf, could win only three events during the afternoon. The nine were suspended followed the team's trip to Florida during the holidays and also missed the meet with Maine earlier in the week.

Scharf had words of praise for the performances of Barry McCarthy, Steve Ruedlinger, Billy Thorne and David Kirkman, singling them out for "not giving up."

Ruedlinger won the 200-yard butterfly, while Thorne won the 50-yard freestyle. Kirkman was a close second in the 200-yard breaststroke. McCarthy turned in his best time in the 1,000-yard freestyle, finishing third in 10:20.76.

The Pirates also won the 400-yard freestyle relay to close out the meet.

The Bucs are now 2-1 in dual meets, while North Carolina climbed to 3-0. The Bucs travel to Richmond on Monday for a 2 p.m. meet with the Spiders.

Kinston Outguns Rampants By 81-63

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

KINSTON — Good movement with and without the ball gave Kinston's Vikings the edge they needed to pull away from Rose High School in the second half Friday night. The Vikes rolled to an 81-63 win as a result of it all.

Rose had a better night from the field than did the Vikes, hitting 45 per cent, as compared to 44.1 per cent, but got three less field goals. The big difference came at the foul line, where the Vikings cashed in on 21 of 34 changes. In comparison Rose made just nine of 18.

Just six fewer fouls were called on the Rampants, but they all came at the wrong time. Many times they were in the act of shooting and gave the Vikes two chances at the charity stripe.

The rebounding was almost even, 47 for Rose and 46 for Kinston. The Vikes, however, were down in this catergory until the final period when they badly outrebounded the Rampants.

Rose had fewer turnovers than usual, 22, but Kinston had just 14.

The main problem, however, was movement. Kinston moved the ball well, and worked for the good shots. Rose did a lot of standing around without the ball, and had to force a number of its shots.

Kinston grabbed the initial lead on a drive by Greg Dawson. Curtis Keys tied it up on a jumper, but two free throws by Clint Kornegay pushed the Vikes out again. Rose again tied it at 4-4, but the Vikes pulled away again, this time, working up a six-point spread. Dawson hit a free throw, then got a jumper, and Larry Powell followed with a basket out of the corner. After a Rose free throw, Lim Dawson tapped in a miss fro a 11-5 lead with 4:34 left in the period.

Rose started to hustle, however, and shot back to knot it up at 13-13. Keys hit two jumpers around a Kinston basket, and William Barnes tossed back a rebound. Randy Pellisero hit two free throws to tie it up, and Rose missed on a couple of chances to take the lead. Kornegay finally broke the tie with two free throws with seven seconds left, 15-13.

Rose hit another spurt, this time taking the lead. Derek Brewington tossed in two in a row, and Mike Brewington followed with a turnaround jumper. Derek hit again with 6:23 left to give Rose a 21-15 lead.

After a Kinston free throw, Mike Brewington canned another to up the margin to 23-16, the largest Rose lead.

But the Vikings fought back and tied it up, then took the lead. The chance came when Powell hit two free throws with 4:04 left for a 26-25 lead. Rose regained it on two charity shots by Keys, but a jumper by Greg Dawson put Kinston ahead to stay, 28-27 with 3:47 left.

For the rest of the half, the Vikings outhit Rose, 11-5, forging their biggest lead of the first half, 39-32, that coming on a shot from underneath by Avery Dawson with just four seconds left.

Kinston expanded the seven points to 15 in the first two minutes of the second half, hitting four straight baskets before Rose could manage to find the range again. Kornegay hit two and Greg Dawson and Powell added one each for a 47-32 edge.

Rose battled back to within six late in the period, 54-48, but could come no closer, and trailed 59-48 as the Vikes hit the final five points of the period.

Midway through the final period, Kinston had edged back out by 15 again, and added two by Powell to run it out to 19, 71-52 with 4:30 to go. Rose cut four off that, but got no further as they had their worst period shooting, and got only four chances at the line. Just before the end, Kinston boosted its lead to its maximum, 20, at 81-61.

Greg Dawson led Kinston with 23, while Lim Dawson had 16, Powell had 14 and Avery Dawson had 12. Mike Brewington paced Rose with 17, while Keys hit 15 and Derek Brewington had 14.

In the junior varsity game, Kinston, with the help of two crucial technical fouls, held off a Rose rally, 58-46.

Kinston took a 10-8 lead in the first period and built that to 27-14 at the half.

But the Rampants stormed back, outhitting the Vikes, 18-12, in the third frame, that trimmed the lead to 39-31. Rose closed the gap to knot it at 39-39 and forced Kinston into a turnover.

But a technical foul on Coach Joel Hancock put Kinston back out 40-39, and gave them the ball. Seconds later another technical, on one of the Rampant players, increased the lead, and Rose had the wind knocked out of their sails.

Hancock was shocked with the technicals. "I haven't the slightest idea why the official called one on me," he said. Hancock had stood up when the out-of-bounds call was made to see who was getting the ball. He said nothing and the official turned to him and slapped on the "T". The other came after a Rose player was charged with a foul for blocking. He fell to the floor on the foul and slapped the floor in anger. "I think both of the calls were indicative of the type game called against us," Hancock said.

Larry Speight and Mike Joyner each had 10 to lead Rose, while Bill Jones had 16 and Marshall Jones had 14 for Kinston.

Rose, now 2-6, travels to Rocky Mount next Friday.

Colts' Marchibroda NFL Coach Of Year

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Marchibroda, the low-keyed, first-year leader of the Baltimore Colts who directed one of the most remarkable turnarounds in sports history, was named National Football League Coach of the Year overwhelmingly Saturday by The Associated Press.

Marchibroda, who took a team that shared the NFL's worst record in 1974 at 2-12 and molded it into the champion of the American Conference East with a 10-4 mark this year, received 51 of the 78 cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Bum Phillips, the first-year coach of the resurgent Houston Oilers was runner-up with 12 votes, followed by Miami's Don Shula with six. The remaining votes went to Dallas' Tom Landry with four, St. Louis' Don Coryell with three and Minnesota's Bud Grant with two.

The 44-year-old Marchibroda was hired by Colts' General Manager Joe Thomas last Jan. 15 after 14 years as an assistant coach, the last nine with George Allen with both the Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins.

"I try to be myself and not anyone else I've coached for," says Marchibroda, who says he "learned the X's and O's" from some of the veteran players and coaches when he was offensive backfield coach at Washington under Bill McPeak.

"I learned organization, how to put in long hours, from Allen," he says, stressing that his own players "are also willing to work extra hours. The total thing is good team preparation."

In his playing days, he quarterbacked St. Bonaventure College during 1950-51, then, when the Bonnies dropped football, transferred to the University of Detroit in 1952 and was one of the nation's leading passers.

In 1953 he was the Pittsburgh Steelers' first-round draft choice. His rookie year was interrupted by military service and, in all, he played four NFL seasons at quarterback, completing his career with the Chicago (now St. Louis) Cardinals. He went into private business for four years before joining the NFL's coaching ranks.

"I believe in the basics," he says. "You win with blocking and tackling, with dedication and playing them one at a time. I'm a low-key coach who believes in sound, basic football."

That was provided by many of the players brought in by Thomas, reaping the rewards of a daring move several years ago, when he dismantled the one-time Super Bowl champions, unloading aging veterans like Johnny Unitas and John Mackey.

With their departure, the new breed took over. The offense is spearheaded by quarterback Bert Jones, running back Lydell Mitchell (the team's leading receiver and first 1,000-yard rusher ever), and a high-spirited defensive line which calls itself the "Looney Tunes" and drove opposition quarterbacks a bit batty with a league-leading 59 sacks.

This was a season written off by most experts as a rebuilding year at best. They figured a break-even season of 7-7 was the best that could be expected from a team which had suffered through three losing campaigns. In fact, Marchibroda admitted as much.

"I thought we had maybe a .500 team, but I never envisioned anything like this happening," he acknowledged after the Colts locked up the division title.

Five weeks into the season, it appeared even .500 was too much to ask. The Colts won only one of five games and were tied with New England, last in the division.

Then they proceeded to run off nine straight victories. One of the crucial ones was a 42-35 triumph over Buffalo, in which the Colts wiped out a 21-point lead by the Bills. And two others were even more critical, a pair of come-from-behind victories over the Miami Dolphins that wound up deciding the title chase.

Not until the Colts were defeated 28-10 by Pittsburgh in the first round of the playoffs did the bubble burst.

Of the pressure-cooker life he and his men led through the long comeback season, Marchibroda said: "If you have character, I don't think the pressure bothers you that much."

And after the playoff loss to the Steelers, he noted with justifiable pride: "We accomplished what we set out to do, so we're going home winners."

Norton In Easy Win

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Ken Norton, dominating the fight from the outset, scored a technical knockout at 1:40 of the fifth round over a senseless Pedro Lovell Saturday at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

Although there were no knockdowns, Norton clearly dominated the action after a listless first round.

Midway in the fourth round, Norton, the No. 1 challenger for Muhammad Ali's heavyweight title, really went to work. He hit Lovell with a stiff left hook, the best punch of the fight to that point.

The South American was knocked into the ropes and Norton then proceeded to pummel him with bruising lefts and rights that sent Lovell reeling from one end of the ring to the other.

West Chester Tops Bucettes

East Carolina University's women's basketball team opened its season Friday night, bowing to West Chester State, 79-74.

The Bucettes, without game experience this year, had their problems handling the ball, and despite having good shooting, just weren't able to pull it out.

The two teams battled on nearly even terms throughout the game with both holding a number of leads, but neither able to really put the game on ice until the final seconds of the contest.

The Bucettes hit 45.5 per cent from the floor and made good on 64.9 per cent of their free throw attempts.

But following a 46-44 deficit at halftime, the Bucettes couldn't push away when they were able to get the lead. Finally, after a 66-66 deadlock, West Chester inched back ahead for good, building up its five-point winning margin.

Debbie Freeman had a fine opening, hitting 13 of 15 shots from the foul line and pulling down 10 rebounds on her way to a game-high 33 points. Rosie Thompson, a freshman, added 16, while Susan Manning had 10.

West Chester was led by Jenny Johovick with 14, Mary Eichhorn with 13 and Jolene Chellis with 10.

The Lady Pirates return to action Saturday, playing N.C. State in Chapel Hill. On Sunday, they meet North Carolina also in Chapel Hill.

West Chester—Atack 2, Cerino 8, Chellis 10, Dumbar 4, Eichhorn 13, Harden 2, Holland 6, Hullah 6, Johovich 14, Tumilty 5, Watts 2, Zwaan 7,

East Carolina—M. Chamblee 2, Dail 1, Freeman 33, Garrison 1, Kerbaugh 8, Manning 10, Ross 3, Thompson 16, Horne.

Conley Snaps North Pitt String, 51-50

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Rick Mobley drew a foul with 30 seconds left to play and his second free shot of a one-and-one gave D.H. Conley a 51-50 victory over North Pitt Friday night.

The Panthers controlled the ball on their end of the court until four seconds were left, but lost the ball as a pass went away giving it back to the Vikings.

The Panthers started out as if to avenge the loss by their girls to D.H. Conley, 33-28, the first victory by a Conley girls team over North Pitt ever. The Panthers had a tough battle the whole way.

The Pant-HERS fell behind in the opening minutes and trailed by four, 10-6 at the end of the first period. A three-bucket rally by the Valkyries at the start of the second period gave Conley an 18-6 lead but the Big Orange cut it to seven, 18-11, and 20-13 at the end of the half.

North Pitt cut the Conley lead to five in the third period and outhit Conley, 5-1, in the first half of the closing period to pull within one, 27-26.

Annie Wooten put the margin back at three, 39-36, hitting from underneath, and two minutes later, hit another field goal making it 31-26. North Pitt scored with two seconds left but it did little good.

Brenda Sneed led the Pant-HERS with 10 while Alice Costin had 12 and Wooten, 10 for Conley.

The Panthers had a slight edge coming into the game being undefeated and having played Tuesday night. The Vikings were off, and before the game, Conley's Shelly Marsh said the extra night off might play a role in the outcome. It almost did.

The Vikings shot only 30.8 percent from the floor in the first half. The Panthers were not much better, however, hitting just 33.3 percent.

The Vikings began to be more selective and got more shots to fall in the second half raising their average to 40.8 percent for the game. North Pitt finished with a 37.5 percent average.

The Vikings hit 20 of 49 shots, North Pitt 24 of 64. The real difference in the game came at the free throw line. North Pitt hit two of seven free shots, Conley 11 of 22.

North Pitt streaked out to a 6-0 lead on baskets by Jesse Harris, Donnie Perkins and Jackie Best. Conley could not find the range from the floor until Johnny Streeter canned a three-point play with 4:13 left in the period. The Vikes dropped in two more buckets to take a 7-6 edge but North Pitt regained the lead on buckets by Harris, Wallace Council and Kenneth Roberson, 12-9. Two free shots by Mobley cut the lead to 12-11 at the end of the period.

The score was tied twice in the second period at 12-12 and 18-18 but neither team could take an advantage.

North Pitt opened the third frame with three straight points, 27-23 but Conley roared back in front on buckets by Streeter, Mobley and Joey Baggett, 29-27. The lead changed hands three times before the end of the period with North Pitt in front, 37-35 going into the final period.

North Pitt rallied to pull away to 43-37 opening the fourth quarter but again Conley fought back and tied it, 43-43, on a lay-up by Byron Tyson with 3:59 left. That started a battle for the lead that saw the score tied four more times.

On the inbounds play, Mobley drew the foul from Perkins and made his free throws for the winning point. Both coaches tried to insure the last shot but the thrown-away pass in the final ten seconds slammed the lid on the Panthers hopes.

North Pitt had an edge in rebounding in the first half, 21-16, but Conley caught up in the second half hitting the defensive boards better for a total of 33 rebounds. The Panthers grabbed 35.

Perkins led the Panthers with 14 points and 11 rebounds, Pilgreen had 10 points and eight rebounds. Council had 10 rebounds. Mobley had 11 rebounds and 15 points for the Vikings. Streeter led the team with 18 points and had 10 rebounds.

The Conley J.V. had started off the evening with a 38-28 victory.

Ayden-Grifton Slips Past Rams In Overtime

SNOW HILL—Frankie Dail and Mike Teachy each hit baskets in the third overtime to give the Ayden-Grifton Chargers a 57-55 victory over Green Central Friday night, their seventh in a row.

The win was the second of the night by A-G which also took the J.V. game, 44-43, A-G lost the girls' game, 48-46.

The Charger varsity took a 10-9 lead in the first period but lost it in the second as Greene Central moved out to a 25-19 advantage.

The Chargers knocked two points off the lead in the third period and a basket by Dail in the last ten seconds of regulation time tied the game at 43-43.

Dail hit a basket in the first overtime to tie the game again, 49-49. The Chargers fell behind in the second extra frame and had to get a basket by Paul Ricciarelli to get another shot at the win.

Dail and Teachy canned their field goals and the A-G defense finally stopped Greene Central to eke out the win.

Willie Forbes had 12 and Ricciarelli 10 for the Chargers while Dail's 18 led the Charger scoring. Marvin Rouse had 18, Nelson Edwards 14 and Melvin Briggs 11 for the Rams.

The Chargers outrebounded the Rams, 32-23, with Ricciarelli getting six and both Ogden Braxton and Dail getting five each. Darden had six for GC.

The Chargers also led in field goal percentage, 48-37, which was the difference as the Rams made 13 free throws to just one by the Chargers.

The Chargerettes took a two-point lead in the opening period of their game but lost it in the second frame as the Ewes out hit them, 21-17.

A-G could not gain in the second half as they matched points with Greene Central.

Cindy Potter and Audrey McCarter led the Chargerettes with ten each. Marolyn Yelverton had 15 and Vickie Shingleton had 11 for the Ewes.

Jaguars Take Two From Birds

SPRING HOPE — Farmville Central overcame a halftime deficit to edge past Southern Nash Friday night, 32-23, in a low-scoring affair. The Farmville Central girls also won their game, 60-57, but it took an overtime to do it.

In the girls' game, Southern Nash pushed ahead, 15-11 after one period. Farmville Central turned things around in the second period, and tied it up, 26-26, at the half.

The Lady Jaguars pulled ahead in the third period, outhitting the Lady Firebirds, 16-10, for a 42-36 lead. But Southern turned it around, rallying 13-7, to knot it again, 49-49 at the end of regulation time. A basket by Southern with two seconds left allowed the deadlock.

But Farmville's Julia Moye led the Jags through the extra period, hitting seven of the 11 points as FC outhit Southern, 11-8, to get the win.

Miss Moye finished with 18 points, while Jennifer Counterman and Wanda Phillips each contributed 14. Shirley Hall had 18, Debra Edwards had 17 and Linda Pope, 13, to pace Southern.

In the boys' game, things went much slower as both teams played very deliberately. Farmville Central opened an 8-4 lead after one period, but Southern came back to outhit them, 13-6, in the second frame, taking a 17-14 halftime lead.

The Jaguars held Southern to just two points in the third period, while scoring seven of their own to take a 21-19 lead. The Jags finished off the Firebirds, 11-4, to cap the victory.

Conley Matmen Ease By Jags

FARMVILLE—The match between D. H. Conley and Farmville Central's wrestling team was billed as a big one, and it turned out to be just that way Friday night.

It went right down to the final match before Conley's unbeaten grapplers pulled out a 37-29 victory over the spunky Jaguars.

The Vikings picked up wins in seven of the 13 matches, winning four on pins and one on a forfeit. Another came on a major decision. Farmville's six wins included one pin and two forfeits, along with a major decision.

Two Jaguar grapplers remained unbeaten in the match, as Anthony Gorham upped his mark to 5-0, and Timmy Hall brought his to 9-0. Two others, however, were handed their first losses. Robert Williams dropped to 7-1, while John Dupree fell to 4-1.

Seven Area Wrestlers Post Unbeaten Marks

Seven area wrestlers own unbeaten records, and six of them have perfect marks some five weeks into the season.

Rose High School and Farmville Central each claim two of the unbeatens, while North Pitt, Williamston and Conley boast one each.

Rankings for this period are based on a minimum of five matches, and do not include Friday night events. Records for wrestlers who have worked in more than one class are combined and weights assigned to that wrestled in most.

The unbeatens from Rose include James Cherry, who has a 7-0 mark and is the leader in the 107-pound class. Also from Rose is Johnny Harris, who has put together a 7-0 mark at 138.

North Pitt's Aubrey Wynne has an 11-0 mark at 155, while Williamston's Sam Short is also unbeaten at 6-0.

D. H. Conley's James Johnson has only a tie in 11 matches to spoil his record at 195 pounds.

Farmville Central heads the most classes with four leaders. In addition to the two listed, Charles Barfield heads the 100-pound class at 7-1, while Aaron Gorham has the best at 167 with 7-1.

Conley has three. In addition to Johnson, there is Floyd Crandall at 121, 10-1-1, and Lo Carmon at heavyweight, 10-1.

Thorp, Kirby Glad To Be Together Again

For three years Paul Thorp and James Kirby were both instrumental in Robinson High School's drive to the top of the Virginia State High School wrestling championships. Now, after a one-year absence, both wrestlers are again teammates at East Carolina University. And both have been most impressive in the early part of the season.

Thorp graduated from Robinson High in 1974 with a long list of impressive credentials. He was a two-time District and Regional champion, placed fourth in the state championships during his sophomore year, third his junior year, and second his senior year. Thorp has a 20-1 overall record during his senior year, including 18 pins.

Last year, Kirby showed why he was recognized as one of the top wrestlers in the state of Virginia, when he captured the District and Regional titles at 126 and went on to win the state championship, posting a 21-0 overall record.

"John Epperly, our head coach was just a tremendous guy," said Thorp. "He really helped James and me with our wrestling and turned our wrestling program completely around in just one year."

After a horrendous 1-9 season during their first year as teammates, Thorp and Kirby went on to lead the team to a 9-1 record the next season, followed by a perfect 11-0 mark. Robinson finished second in the Virginia State championships for the past two years.

Thorp was Pirate head coach John Welborn's top recruit last season, winning the N.C. Collegiate Tournament and the Southern Conference championship in the 150 weight class. He posted a 16-8 overall record and received the award as the team's outstanding freshman.

"I was really pretty surprised that I did so well during my first year," said Thorp. "I was awfully inconsistent most of the year, but I guess that comes with the adjustment you have to make from high school to college wrestling."

Thorp has shown much more consistency this year with a fine 16-5-1 overall record, including a tournament title in the Neptune Open, a second place finish in the N.C. Invitational Tournament and a third in the tough Wilkes Open.

"In high school I was a very aggressive wrestler," explained Thorp. "I always went for the pin, which was the way I had always wrestled. But last year I had to change my style to some extent. All last year I found out that in most of my matches all my opponents wanted was the win. They would just stall and mess around for two periods and then come back and beat me to death in the third period.

"I know right now I'm a lot less aggressive than I was in high school, but I've been winning and I've been a lot more consistent this year so I can't complain."

Kirby, who wrestles in the 126 weight class, has been the Pirates' top freshman performer so far this season. He has posted a 9-6 overall record with a second place finish in the Monarch Open, losing to teammate Paul Ketcham in the finals, and took third in the N.C. Invitational Tournament.

"I don't think I have had to go through as much of a transition with my wrestling style as Paul did," said Kirby. "I never really went for the pin in high school like Paul. I've always been a finesse wrestler and just relied on my quickness to beat my opponents.

"I've gotten off to a fairly good start this year, although I know I've been pretty shaky in most of my matches. But Paul's exactly right about the adjustment freshmen have to make. There is a tremendous amount of difference between high school and college wrestling."

Nevertheless, it won't be too long before Pirate wrestling fans will be watching Paul Thorp and James Kirby wrestling along side of each other in the NCAA finals. Just like old days back at Robinson High.

Bears Bow To Mattamuskeet

SWAN QUARTER—Bear Grass' girls survived a single-handed performance by Annie Murray to pull out a 33-29 win, the Lady Bear's fourth in the conference, but the boys' team lost, 61-51, to Mattamuskeet, Friday night.

The girls are now 4-1 and 5-5 overall. They had to battle Murray's 26 points to get the win. Only two other girls scored for Mattamuskeet and between them they got just three points.

Murray ignited the Lady Lakers in a first half surge giving them a 29-14 lead at halftime. The Lady Bears, however, battled back in the third period to cut the lead to one, 26-25, and won the game with an 8-3 fourth period.

Mattamuskeet's boys also took a lead in the first quarter 16-8 and added four points to it by halftime, 33-21. The Lakers continued to pull away in the third period, 19-14, but Bear Grass closed within ten in the final period.

Alan Crawford and David Price had 12 each for the Bears, Buster Shelton had 19 and Frank Cunningham 10 for the Lakers.

Giant Owners Await Approval Of Sale

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have agreed in principal to sell to Canadian purchasers who would move the baseball team to Toronto for the coming season, if National League owners approve and the courts do not block the transfer.

Directors of the National Exhibition Co., which owns the Giants, voted late Friday to sell the club for $13,250,000 to a Toronto group including Labatt's Breweries, Ltd.

Owners of the other 11 National League clubs will be asked in a meeting at Phoenix, Ariz. Wednesday to approve the sale and transfer of the franchise. Nine votes are needed.

In announcing the sale agreement, Charles Ruppert, executive vice president of the club, read a statement that $5,125,000 of the purchase price "will be retained in a fund to meet certain possible obligations with respect to the transaction."

Breaking the $125,000-a-year lease with the city of San Francisco for use of Candlestick Park through 1994 and costs involved in fighting any lawsuits to block the move would be financed from the $5,125,000.

Opponents of the move are thinking bigger than that.

In less time than the 3½ hours the directors took for their meeting, the mayor of the city and the president of the Giants Booster Club each reacted with promises of court action to keep the Giants here. The team came here from New York in 1958.

Newly-elected George Moscone, serving his first full day as mayor, talked of a suit in excess of $10 million and vowed: "We will not, under any set of circumstances, settle for loss of the San Francisco Giants."

County Supervisor Quentin Kopp said, "They'd better set aside $23.5 million (the amount the city still owes on the ball park). I'm ready to fight."

Allen Murray, an insurance man who heads the Booster Club, said: "There won't be any $5 million suit; it will be an $80 million suit."

Central put on a rally in the second period, however, and cut the lead to 27-21 at the half. An 11-5 advantage in the third frame by Nash tied it up at 32-all at the end of the quarter. Aycock, however, outhit their host, 17-12, in the final frame to take the win.

Calvin Paige led Aycock with 16, while Ronnie Chapman added 14. Rossie Arrington led Nash with 21, while Hoshea Edmund had 14.

Aycock goes to Rocky Mount on Tuesday.

San Francisco Drops Fourth

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The San Francisco Dons were supposed to be one of the teams to beat this season in college basketball. And that's exactly what has happened—most everbody's beating them.

The 20th-ranked Dons, who recruited some of the best high school talent in the country, did not figure to lose to teams like Pepperdine.

But Friday night's 75-65 loss to their West Coast Athletic Association opponent was their fourth this season.

"This definitely was my biggest win in 20 years of coaching," said Pepperdine Coach Gary Colson after the stunning triumph in Los Angeles. "It's the biggest day in Pepperdine sports. It might have been the day we turned the corner."

"We have to remember, though, that we're playing Santa Clara Saturday night, and they're 1-0 in conference play, too. We will really have to watch to make sure we don't let down."

Washington was the only other Top Twenty team in action Friday night and the eighth-ranked Huskies whipped California 76-56.

Center Marcos Leite scored 22 points and forward Ollie Matson Jr. had 19 points and 11 rebounds to lead Pepperdine's upset over San Francisco.

Pamlico Craftsmen Have The Know-How

Rigging Out A Fishing Trawler

Boat building is still a flourishing art in coastal Pamlico County where generations of fishermen have crafted their own study vessels.

In recent years, fishermen from other areas have begun to seek out these Pamlico boat builders, either to build a boat from the ground up or to rig out a hull constructed at some other place then brought into one of the Pamlico fishing villages for rigging.

An example of the latter type of construction is that undertaken and recently completed by Earl Sadler. A fisherman-businessman who is proprietor of the Lowland Seafood Company in the village of Lowland, Sadler last Sunday morning witnessed the departure of the trawler "Lady Barbara" on its maiden voyage to its owner in Virginia.

"This is a fine trawler, designed to give the owners year-round use in fishing," Sadler commented. "It has lots of good features. We're been at work on getting it rigged up since September."

Sadler pointed out that skilled workers outfitting "Lady Barbara" — carpenters, plumbers, electronic technicians, electricians, painters, machinists and riggers — "are all local people, and they've done a darn good job. They take pride in their work."

The hull for "Lady Barbara" was constructed by V and R Boat Builders at Holden Beach south of Wilmington, then towed to its rigging site at the Lowland Seafood Company dock.

"The 'Lady Barbara" is 87 feet long and 25 feet wide at its widest point," Sadler explained. "It's powered by a 550 horsepower V16-GM engine.

"This boat," Sadler continued, "is fully equipped with modern conveniences, including a well furnished kitchen, toilet, hot showers, air conditioning, central heat and color TV." It has bunks for a full crew of 13.

According to Sadler, "Lady Barbara" is rigged for three different types of fishing. "The double rig arrangement will be used for scallop fishing in the summer and trawl fishing in the fall," Sadler said. "In the winter when the boat is used for deep-sea fishing, the stern rig will be used.

"It carries Yankee nets, 100 Dog fish nets, double nets and 35 foot box nets in connection with the different riggings," Sadler added.

Other statistics on the "Lady Barbara" include a 1,500 box or 150,000 pounds cold storage capacity, modern electronic and radio communications equipment, two radars and a lifeboat.

" 'Lady Barbara,' " Sadler said, "was built for Richard Gaskill, Jr. of Cape Charles, Virginia. Richard is a native of this area who's decided to go into the fishing business. This boat is capable of extended fishing trips for about 20 days without refueling, as it holds 7,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

"Normally, for deep sea fishing, there'll be a crew of five or six men. For other types of fishing, there'll usually be 11 or 12 crew members aboard. Sadler mentioned "there's facilities on board for processing scallops. This is a fairly new development around here.

"Another interesting fact," Sadler remarked, "is that this boat will very likely gross about $400,000 annually in catches. That means that a crew member who puts in full time work will stand to make somewhere around $20,000 for a year's hard. So you see, it's good paying work, though it's hard work with long hours."

The estimated total cost of "Lady Barbara" including hull construction and the rigging done at Lowland "will come to about $200,000," Sadler said.

With the Lady Barbara completed, Sadler said he has plans to begin work on another boat. "We've got one on the drawing board, and should be beginning to work on that within a few days."

100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS NEW CAR WARRANTY

Corolla 2-Door Sedan — 1976's Lowest Priced Car

THE LIGHTS ARE BURNING BRIGHT ONCE AGAIN SO YOU CAN SEE OUR

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

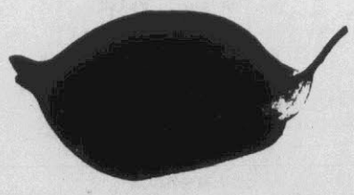
THE NEW SNAPPERIZER.
A revolutionary new way to bag your leaves.

The leaf


The leaf Snapperized

Another first from Snapper. The new Snapperizer. This optional accessory converts a Snapper 21" mower into a new machine. With this easy-to-install attachment, it becomes a leaf vacuum cleaner that cleans the leaves off your lawn in half the time because you empty the catcher half as much.

The Snapperizer pulverizes the leaves so the catcher holds at least twice as many leaves because they've been shredded into tiny pieces.

These tiny pieces then make a beautiful ground cover for flower and shrubbery beds. And when you use the new Snapper Zip Kit the pulverized leaves empty quickly and neatly into standard trash bags.

So the Snapperizer actually makes the mower three machines in one. A lawn mower, a leaf shredder, and an outdoor vacuum. And it's exclusively from Snapper.

You buy a Snapper for quality. And get more than you were expecting.

ONLY WITH A SNAPPER
All Snapper mowers meet A.N.S.I. safety specifications

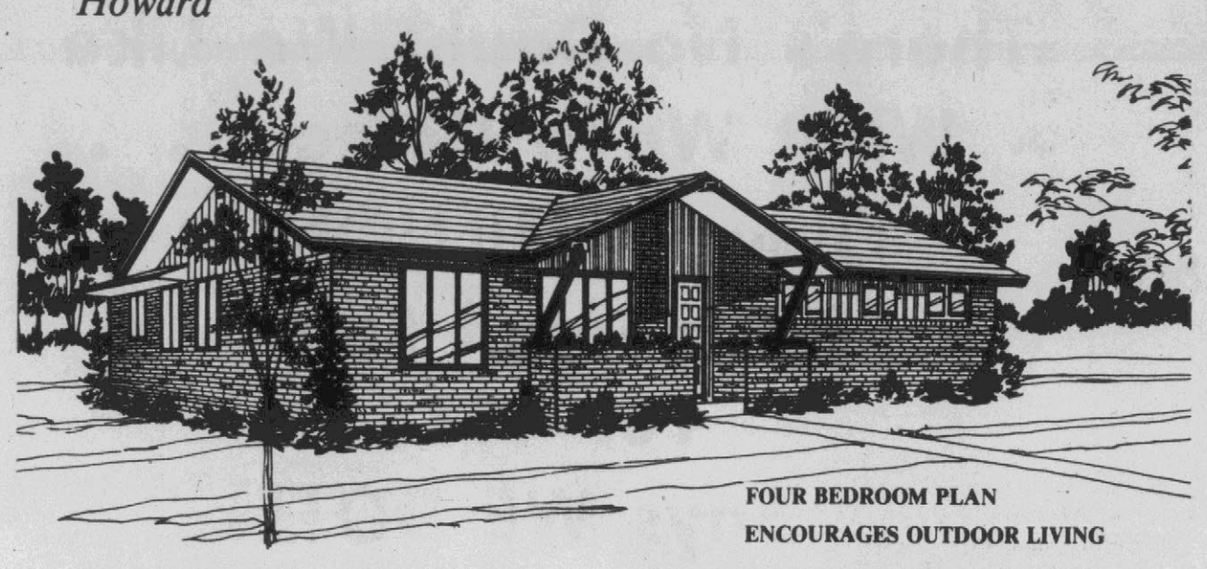
TERRACE FOCAL POINT OF SPACIOUS DESIGN

Howard



FOUR BEDROOM PLAN
ENCOURAGES OUTDOOR LIVING

By Jerry Bishop

Indoor/outdoor living is the aim of the Howard, an attractive four bedroom contemporary that clusters living areas around its 20-ft. terrace.

Trimmed in rustic brick to blend with natural surroundings, the home offers freedom of movement with four bedrooms, two full baths, and separate formal and informal living areas.

Fronted by a roofed porch, entry is into a hallway that leads straight ahead, to the family room. Relaxation is the theme of this roomy retreat and sliding glass doors, plus an additional expanse of windows, bathe the room in natural light. With the kitchen, the family room shares the 20-ft. terrace, bordered on two sides for privacy and an enjoyable site for sunbathing or patio parties. An efficient kitchen allots room for a dining area and laundry niche and connects to the terrace.

Formal entertaining is invited in the substantial living room and adjoining dining room. Extending over 21 feet in length, the living room is partly divided from the entry hallway to maintain an area free of cross-traffic. Plenty of light fills the living room and the cozy dining room and promises an airy atmosphere.

Radiating from the central hallway, four bedrooms fill the right wing of the design. A front-facing master bedroom is favored with double closets and private bath, while another bath is well-placed to serve sleeping and living areas.

The basement offers another 1660 square feet of potential living and storage space and proposes an ideal location for workshop or recreation room.

Easy outdoor living plus an efficient, unhindered floor plan make the Howard a livable one level design for a growing family.

AP Newsfeatures

"An unfortunate event resulting from carelessness, unawareness, ignorance or unavoidable causes."

That's the dictionary definition of an accident. Statistics show that the large majority of accidents occur from the first three causes rather than the last. That's especially so in the case of accidents suffered by those doing-it-yourselves.

Don't assume it's always the beginner who fails to observe the rules of safety. When he knows them, he usually heeds them, although it must be admitted he sometimes doesn't take the time and trouble to find out what they are. Accidents occur to experienced handymen and women because familiarity breeds contempt, which in turn breeds carelessness. Witness how often persons using power tools follow the directions carefully at first, then deliberately ignore them later because they find it easier and faster to do so.

1 — When a power machine has a blade guard, use it.

2 — When engaged in anything where particles are likely to fly, such as grinding, use safety goggles.

3 — If you spill paint, grease or anything, wipe it up immediately to prevent slipping on it while completing the rest of the job.

4 — Stop working when you feel the least bit fatigued, since the records show a high incidence of accidents when persons are tired.

6 — You are also more susceptible to an accident when you are bored, so try to vary your work schedule.

7 — When a label says "use only in a well-ventilated area," do so. Two workmen recently were killed when they ignored this precaution with a chemical product they had used for years without trouble.

9 — Before using a hammer, check to be sure the head is secured.

11 — Don't smoke while you are using a sprayer.

12 — Don't paint a wooden ladder, since it hides defects that may take place later.

13 — Don't replace a fuse with one of larger amperage.

14 — Rags used for grease, oil, paint or any similar material should be disposed of immediately, preferably in a covered metal container.

15 — A screwdriver tip will slip most easily when it is smaller than the slot in the head of a screw.

Readying House For Sale

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International

You're putting your house on the market. What can you do, quickly and inexpensively, to get it in shape to sell easily?

"Make it look us if a family could move right in without doing a thing to it," advises a professional who counsels hundreds of families each year as they sell their homes when they are transferred from one city to another by an employer.

Betty Ann Rake, of Employee Transfer Corp., Chicago, says one of the keys to easy sale of a house is to make it inviting — clean, orderly, comfortable.

Unless a home needs major repairs, she said, you can do wonders to help the sale just by getting rid of dirt and clutter.

"The first two things I'd do are wash all of the windows inside and out, and then straighten out all the closets." Then, she advises:

Make the most of the outside of your home. It's the first thing prospects see. Be sure front, back and side yards are neat, clean, mowed and trimmed. Garden equipment, bicycles, toys should be put away. In winter, be sure driveway is cleared, paths shoveled.

Check all entrance doorways. They, and the screen and storm doors, should be in good condition. Locks and knobs should be in working order. Wash off fingerprints, or give doors a fresh coat of paint. Make sure outdoor lights and those in entranceways are working. Get rid of hall clutter — toys, papers and boxes. Get rid of family boots and umbrellas, but provide for those of visitors if the weather is bad.

Be sure bathrooms and kitchen sparkle. These two areas are likely to come in for particularly close scrutiny.

In the kitchen, remove clutter from countertops, be sure appliances are clean, free of fingerprints. Nothing can turn off a prospect faster than a dirty, greasy stove or neglected refrigerator. Clutter in refrigerator or storage cabinets will make those spaces look inadequate.

Make sure bathrooms are in shape for company, with fresh towels on the racks, fixtures clean, no laundry hanging. In both rooms, fix any leaky faucets. In these rooms, too, often it is worthwhile to paint.

Paint, Ms. Rake notes, "is the cheapest thing you can apply to a house to make it look better." Where painting is in order, she advises, use light, neutral colors. "No one is offended by white, but a lot of people may reject a house with unusual colors." In rooms with wallpaper, giving the woodwork a coat of paint can do much to freshen the room. At the least, make sure woodwork in all rooms is wiped clean of finger marks.

Attend to minor repairs. Fix any cracked or broken window glass. Replace missing tiles. If you don't want to replace a torn window shade, remove it. Make sure all doors open and close freely.

Go through the house room by room with an impartial eye. Discard whatever you won't want to move. If there still is clutter or crowding, pack the excess. Be sure rooms look as large as possible so prospects can envision their own furnishings.

Clean basement and garage.

Keeping a home in shape for inspection takes a little extra attention to housekeeping. Beds have to be made promptly, picking-up done conscientiously; you don't want dishes in the sink, folded laundry on the dining room table. Welcoming lights should be on in the evening; perhaps a fire in the fireplace, soft music on the hi-fi — anything that will make your home seem attractive.

On rereading, all this advice for sprucing up the house to make it salable, is pretty good advice even if you aren't planning to sell. It could make home more liable for you own family.

Finds Varied Pleasures In Craftsman's Art

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

"Silversmithing is an important part of my life—it it allows me to design and create to fulfill my own personal needs. The fact that other people enjoy my creations makes it even more rewarding," said Mrs. Betsy Markowski of Greenville.

"I feel that each person has a talent of some kind and finding and using that talent can make us happy and productive people.

"A great part of my life is dedicated to my family and the maintenance of a happy home. We are very close and I receive tremendous support and encouragement from my husband, Mel, and son, Mike, in my work. Their love and affection are dearer to me than anything I know," she added.

In prepration to teach art in high school, Mrs. Markowski had classes in metals, fabrics, ceramics and other related art areas. She felt that she had more natural inclination towards metals and jewelry making.

She taught school for seven years and then returned to college and obtained a master's in constructive design with emphasis on metals. She then taught another year before moving to Greenville and she now directs her time by working in her studio.

"Much of my working time is spent on commissioned pieces for individual buyers and for various professional crafts fairs and exhibits in which I participate.

Natural Sources

"Often my ideas come from natural sources and shapes such as shells, feathers, stones, insects, plants and flowers. Sometimes the inspiration for the actual metal designs comes from a shell which I then incorporate into a finished piece. To save for later reference, I sketch and take notes of things that interest me and can be used for future ideas," Mrs. Markowski said.

The two processes used by Mrs. Markowski in silversmithing are fabrication and casting. Fabrication includes sawing, filing, soldering, cleaning and polishing. Casting is a process of designing in wax which is later transformed into a metal design.

"My pleasure and joy are in the making of something that is appealing to someone. The one-of-a-kind pieces are more of a challenge and more exciting to make than production items," she stated.

Although her main interest is in jewelry making and designing, she creates objects that are usable in the home such as pewter boxes, three dimentional designs and also an evening bag of pewter and knitted wire.

Much of her jewelry making consists of designing necklaces and pins. However, the dictates of the design are sometimes established by whether its a commission piece or if its done for a craftsman fair or exhibit. One of her most recent production creations is a Bicentennial pin and necklace.

Jewelry making is an art, almost as old as the history of man. The earliest objects known to have been intended as personal ornaments were made of stone, bone or shell and date back to the Stone age. Beads and pendants were intended for adornment or as charms to protect the wearer from mysterious powers.

American silversmithing started soon after the founding of Boston in 1630. It centered there and to a lesser degree in New York through thr rest of the 17th century.

"In this century, women have become more involved in metalsmithing and today, it's not at all unusual to find women working in any aspect of crafts," Mrs. Markowski continued.

Dyeing Process

In explaining the dyeing process, Mrs. Markowski said, "At first glance, the range of hues made with natural dyestuffs may be disappointingly narrow. There are many shades and tints of yellow, some browns, greens oranges and reds and a few purples and blues.

"For the beginner, much of the collecting of dyestuffs is by trial and error and it is wise for one to collect widely and make small batches as samples to provide a key for future use. However, it is practically impossible to duplicate a color obtained from vegetable dyeing so it is wise to dye yarns which need to be the same color at one time."

"Variation is the rule rather than the exception due to the many different influences upon the plant. For example, the growing and climatic conditions, the quality of the soil and the region in which the plants grow. Other factors include the time of the season the dyestuffs are gathered and the type of wool used in the dyeing process.

"These drawbacks are overshadowed by the pleasure of creativity and excitement experienced by the vegetable dyer. A part of the attraction of dyeing with natural substances is the opportunity to explore the woods and fields, and sometimes the backyard, to gather potential dyestuffs. There is little question that the colors produced by the vegetable dyeing procedure are more warm and appealing than those found in the commercially dyed yarns," she added.

The dyed yarn is then woven by Mrs. Markowski into various types of wall hangings and three dimensional designs.

Other artistic interests are silk screening and macrame. Her other ventures include furniture refinishing, reading and house plants.

SPINNING YARN . . . from raw wool, Mrs. Markowski will then vegetable dye the yarn and weave it into a tapestry.

A PEWTER BOX . . . created by Mrs. Markowski features matched striped agates on top.

Tack Hammer, Sewing Needles Are Her Tools

By JOAN HILL

CHAPEL HILL—Dr. Patricia Gensel fills in the gaps in the history of plants with a tack hammer in one hand and a sewing needle in the other.

She is a paleobotanist—one who studies early land plants—at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

She uses the hammer and needle to chip away pieces of sediment from fossil plants that have been compressed in rocks for as long as 381 million years. She exposes the remains in a process called degagemente.

She sometimes uses hydrofluoric acid to convert the rock to "mud" and thus liberate the plant material from the rock. The chemical does not harm the plant remains however, and she can clear away any carbon deposits and look at the plant and its spores. With this procedure, Gensel can study up to 75 per cent of the ancient plant.

"If we can find out what plants were like back them (in the Devonian period), how many different kinds there were and how they are related," Gensel says, "we'll have a better idea how they evolved. The study of these early plants is fundamental to understanding today's living plants."

Since plants help form oil and coal deposits, finding an area rich in certain kind of plant fossils sometimes indicates it might be a good place to drill for oil. Gensel has studied geology and chemistry as well as botany and has learned in what rocks the fossil plants are apt to be found.

She feels rather like an explorer, she says, working with the earliest known land plants. Although plants (the seaweeds) flourished in the seas for countless millions of years, the first inhabitants of the land didn't appear until about 381 million years ago. There are many theories for this, one is that without the protection of the deflecting ozone layer there was too much ultraviolet radiation from the sun. Another is that soil, as it is known today, did not exist then. It had to be prepared by the very plants that would use it.

According to a comprehensive study of ancient plants written by Henry N. Andrews Jr., the pioneers were small and primitive. They established themselves in low-lying brackish pools out of the reach of the surf, forming the tidal marsh. They lived and died and their remains decayed, probably through the action of bacteria and fungi that came with them from the sea, and the first semblance of soil came into being.

The plants marched forward, over the bodies of their ancestors, and by the middle of the Devonian period, about 325 million years ago, a great surge of vegetation swept the earth. At first the plants grew about one inch high, later to one foot, and by the end of the Devonian period, to 40-foot trees. Many of the races of plants that are still in existence burst forth during the 60-million-year span of the Devonian period.

The plant tissues have been preserved under water or deep in the earth where little oxygen is available. Under such conditions the organisms that cause decay, such as bacteria and fungi, are able to work only very slowly or not at all.

The fossils are found in sedimentary rocks—porous sandstone and shale—and are preserved in three ways: petrifacation, where the plant's cell walls are impregnated with minerals; impression, most of the plant material is gone and just an outline remains; and compression, which reveals the actual flattened remains of the plant. Gensel works mostly with the latter.

"The first Devonian plants were collected in 1859 in the Gaspe area of New Brunswick—one of the best places in the world to find these plants," Gensel says. "It is interesting to think that time was contemporary with the beginnings of Darwin's ideas of evolution." Other areas rich in fossil plants of that age are New York state, northern Maine and West Virginia. Paleobotanists are hoping to find some new specimens soon in Virginia and the Rocky Mountain area as well, she says.

Gensel has found one fossil plant in the Gaspe area that's 380 million years old. She has named it "Renalia" and will publish her report on it in the "Review of Paleobotany and Palynology" next spring.

"It takes little muscle to collect the specimens," she says. "We use picks and sledge hammers to split the rock. It's a great help with the heavier stuff to have my husband go with me on field trips." Bill Gensel, a landscape architect, shares her interest in botany. "Once in northern Maine we carried out our collection in back packs," she says. When the couple moved to Chapel Hill from Connecticut this summer, it took three trips to move all her specimens—several thousand pounds of rocks.

A native of New York, Gensel joined the UNC botany department this fall as assistant professor. She earned her B.A. from Hope College in Michigan and her M.S. and Ph.D. from the University of Connecticut at Storrs where she was awarded a National Science Foundation (NSF) graduate fellowship. She traveled and did research under a four-year NSF grant in Washington, D. C., Virginia, London, Brussels and Mexico, and just completed a one-year, NSF-funded research project on Mississippian plants in Virginia.

Her teaching and research specialities are in paleobotany and palynology. She has authored or co-authored eight articles, two of which will be published next year.

Moore-Pridgen Vows Said In Ceremony On Saturday

ROCKY MOUNT — Mary Jean Pridgen and Stephen Alexander Moore were united in holy matrimony Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in Union Baptist Church here. The Rev. John A. Moore, father of the bridegroom, officiated during the double ring ceremony.

The Rev. Max Patterson of Stantonsburg was organist and provided the wedding music. Max Hamilton of Louisville, Ky., was the soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Russell Pridgen of Rt. 1, Rocky Mount. The bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Moore of Greenville.

MRS. STEPHEN ALEXANDER MOORE

The maid of honor was Miss Gloria Revis of Fairfax, Va. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Irvin Murrell, sister of the bridegroom, of Fort Worth, Tex., Mrs. Jim Edwards of Louisville, Ky., and Miss Angela Skinner, cousin of the bride, of Rocky Mount.

The best man was Philip Moore, brother of the bridegroom, of Chapel Hill. Ushers were Jim Edwards of Louisville, Ky., the Rev. Tom Kirk of Louisville, Ky., and Sidney Shearin of Greenville.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. J. A. Skinner, cousin of the bride, of Rocky Mount. Miss Becky Hales of Rocky Mount presided at the guest register.

The bride is a graduate of Gardner-Webb College. At present, she is a student at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. She is majoring in early childhood education for a master of religious education degree, and is employed at the Long Run Baptist Association Day Care Center.

The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University. He is also a student at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, majoring in theology for a master of divinity degree. He is on the staff of Walnut Street Baptist Church as director of Bus Outreach Ministries.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will make their home in Louisville, Ky.

Immediately after the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Wiley Joyner, director of the reception, of Rocky Mount.

Serving at the brides' table were Mrs. Buddy Boone of Elm City and Mrs. Randolph Pridgen of Rocky Mount. Other assistants were Mrs. Cecil Owens, Mrs. Billy Burgess, and Mrs. V. Pridgen, all of Rocky Mount.

Music for the reception was provided by Mrs. Max Patterson, pianist, of Stantonsburg.

Good-byes were said by the parents of the bride and bridegroom.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at the rehearsal dinner in the church fellowship hall Friday night, for the wedding party, immediate families and out-of-town guests.

Restaurants For Dieters Established

By JAMES J. DOYLE

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — Restaurants that specialize in low calorie food are every dieter's dream. Two establishments in the Torrance area make it reality.

Carol and Gene Schrier say a guest could have a cheese cake breakfast, Bavarian stuffed cabbage for lunch, barbecued knockwurst for dinner, and chocolate sundaes after both lunch and dinner for a total of fewer than 800 calories. Adding lasagna for a late night snack would still total under 1,000 calories.

The Schriers prepare these low-calorie foods for the Camelot-Diet Scene in Torrance and the Slender Spoon in Long Beach.

Mrs. Schrier is the chef. Her husband says she has developed an uncanny talent for mixing ingredients that taste good because she herself is always on a diet.

Schrier, who is five-feet-8 and 150 pounds, was 180. Mrs. Schrier is 5-foot-2 and has taken off some weight, but she still has a problem that comes from tasting all the food she prepares for restaurant guests.

The Schriers' pastries are made with ground bread instead of flour, and nonfat dry milk instead of milk and cream. Flash frozen fruit is used instead of prepared fruit mixes for pies. Artificial sweeteners substitute for sugar, and diet margarine for butter.

Meat dishes are made with veal, which is much lower in fat than beef, and all vegetables are fresh. But the secret, Schrier said, is knowing how to mix the spices.

"There are 20 different kinds of chili powder," he said. "It's a matter of picking the right one. If you can taste the chili, then it really doesn't go with the other things."

He said the pastries are light but good tasting because of the right balance of flavoring extracts.

"Pastries are mostly nonfat milk. Chiffon pie is powdered milk, artificial sugar, different extracts, and that's it.

"In dealing with extracts you have to be more of a chemist than anything else. They are very critical balances."

Chiffon pie at the two restaurants contains only 40 calories per serving.

The Schriers' menus follow one national weight-control plan and are approved by another. They are planning a line of their fruit pies for supermarket sale.

A steak house they owned earlier had both a diet menu and a normal menu. When they moved, they decided to cater to the constant dieter.

"Finally we have a place where people can eat all these things without feeling guilty," Schrier said, "That's the most important thing to a dieter, to eat without feeling guilty."

"There are many diet foods available in supermarkets, but they taste so bad, he said. "People decide they would rather tolerate being heavy than have to eat that stuff the rest of their lives."

"The idea is to make the food taste good," he said.

Here is the Schrier's recipe for a popular dinner entree, veal ball stew.

Combine 1 cup of tomato juice with one and a half cups of water, one and one half teaspoons of beef bouillon granules, 1 medium zucchini, half a green pepper, 1 cup of chopped carrots, one-fourth cup of chopped onions, one-fourth teaspoon of allspice and one-half teaspoon each of salt and ground pepper. Place over low heat until vegetables are tender but crisp.

While vegetables cook, mix three-fourths teaspoon of cinnamon, and artificial sweetener equal to 4 teaspoons of sugar with 1 pound of lean ground veal. Shape into balls about one and a half inches in diameter. Bake 10 minutes in a preheated 400 degree oven. For serving, pour vegetables mixture over meatballs.

Schrier said the calorie content might not be exact, because he scaled down the restaurant recipe to serve four persons. At the Slender Spoon, a 12-ounce serving, which includes four ounces of meat, plus vegetables and sauce, would total about 200 calories.

Bridge Partner's Foot Game Lacked Finesse, So Pass

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were invited to play bridge at the home of a couple we recently met. During the game, I happened to look in a mirror across the room, and I saw the other man put his foot right next to my wife's foot! The way it looked to me, my wife didn't make any move to take her foot away.

This happened several times during the bridge game. On the way home, I asked my wife about it, and she said she felt this man's foot a few times, but she was sure he didn't mean anything by it.

Should I tell this man the next time I see him that he should be more careful where he puts his feet? Or do you think I am making something out of nothing?

We are all in our 60's.

BRIDGE PLAYER

DEAR PLAYER: Only a dummy would accuse a recent acquaintance of playing tricks with his wife on such flimsy evidence. If the old boy was trying a finesse, it didn't work. Pass.

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter is planning to be married in six months. She's had only five dates with her fiance. He lives in a distant state—too remote for them to get together again before the wedding.

They write to each other daily and talk long-distance once a week. Father says (and means it) that he will never accept the young man even if they do marry. (He figures that his daughter won't get married without his approval, but he is wrong.)

I am not in favor of our daughter marrying a man she knows so slightly, but if they marry I will accept him warmly.

My husband is angry with me. He thinks that because he disapproves of this marriage, I should do likewise.

How do you size up the situation?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is making a serious mistake in saying "never." He can't prevent a daughter of legal age from marrying, so he's foolish to take such a stubborn, negative attitude.

I hope he reconsiders.

DEAR ABBY: I have a key employee who does an excellent job for the company, but he presents a problem that I cannot for the life of me solve.

He has extremely bad breath and body odor, too, which leads me to believe that he doesn't bathe often enough. I know it is very offensive to those who work with him. In all other regards, he is a wonderful person and a very hard worker.

Any suggestions as to how to handle this problem will be greatly appreciated.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: A key employee who does an excellent job for the company is worth saving.

Bad breath and body odor are not uncommon problems. (Witness the amount of advertising for products to remedy them.)

Take this "wonderful" man aside and tell him frankly but plainly. It would be a kindness.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

ECU Professor Has Article In Magazine

The article "Can You Save Your Marriage? Yes!" was written in cooperation with Dr. Jack Wright, associate professor at Loyola University.

It discusses the effectiveness of "behavior contracts" between married couples as a means toward greater marital harmony even for couples who have decided to preserve an unhappy marriage for the sake of their children.

Four actual case histories accompany the article, which also included hypotetical instances in which behavior contracts were agreed upon by dissatisfied spouses in a variety of situations, and recommendations for readers who wish to improve their own marriages.

A practicing marriage counselor in addition to his teaching duties, Dr. Knox is the author of "Dr. Knox's Marital Exercise Book" and "Marriage Counseling: A behavioral Approach."

He addressed a gathering and conducted a workshop for marriage counselors at the recent annual meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Behavior Therapy in San Francisco.

Dr. Knox is the author of several articles in both professional journals and popular magazines.

Miss Sandra Daniels Is Bride Of Dennis Parker

The marriage of Miss Sandra Jean Daniels and Dennis Wayne Parker was solemnized at the Hollywood Presbyterian Church at 3:00 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. William S. Forbes officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Melvin Daniels and the late Mr. Daniels of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Parker of Hampton, Va.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ollen McGowan, organist. Mrs. Alva Lee Evans, soloist, sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Johnnie Edwards directed the wedding.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James F. Daniels of Hampton, Va. The bride wore a white floor length gown with a fitted lace empire bodice, featuring a high neckline and A-line skirt. The three tiered illusion veil was attached to a lace cap etched with seeded pearls. The bride carried a cascade of baby white roses and carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Grover S. McGlohon of Greenville, who wore a floor length gown of emerald green velvet, featuring an empire bodice and scoop neckline.

The bridesmaids, Miss Robin Burnette of New Bern, and Miss Diane Parker, of Andrews AFB, Md., sister of the bridegroom, wore similar gowns with an emerald green velvet bodice and mint green crepe skirts. All attendants wore headpieces of matching green velvet and carried long-stemmed mums.

The flower girl, Mary Suzanna Daniels, niece of the bride, wore a floor length dress of emerald green velvet and mint green crepe and carried a basket of rose petals.

Mrs. Douglas S. Tripp presided at the guest register.

Robert S. Jenkins, U.S. Air Force, Germany, served as best man. Ushers were Thomas M. Daniels of Greenville, brother of the bride, and David Parker of Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., brother of the bridegroom.

MRS. DENNIS WAYNE PARKER

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony. The reception was given by Mrs. Hazel Moss, Mrs. Charles Hines and Mrs. Thomas Utley, all of Greenville.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall Friday night.

COLOR TEST

NEW YORK (UPI) — A silver tastevin, or tasting cup, has been used in the dimly lit wine cellars of Burgundy, France, since the 18th century. The design of the shallow cup permits a taster to judge the intensity of a wine's color as it is refracted on the facets of the cup.

Food Allergy Can Cause Chronic Illness And Disability

By CLAUDE A. FRAZIER, M.D.
Written for United Press International

She was middle-aged, married and allergic. She had eaten a few sunflower seeds given her by the lady under the next drier. "Good," she said. A few minutes later, her throat swelling, she started up out of her chair crying, "Get a doctor, I'm going to die." She collapsed and died before anyone could help.

Her death was a severe allergic reaction that produced marked edema in the throat and chest area and cardiorespiratory failure. She could not breathe.

The victim had suffered from multiple allergies all her life, but sunflower seeds had not been on her list of foods to avoid.

Her case is rare. But food allergy can cause chronic illness, discomfort, unhappiness and marked disability.

We're not sure why some people are allergic and others are not. We suspect a genetic tendency runs in families. Statistics support this theory.

There are other factors. If you feast upon a certain food in great amounts and frequently, you may find you are allergic to it. For example, fresh strawberry shortcake, strawberries and cream, strawberry pie.

Allergy to cow's milk turns up often in infants.

Headaches in the older child or adult may replace the loss of appetite of infancy. A child may also develop allergy to inhalants such as dust, pollen or animal danders.

Infection appears to lower tolerance.

Milk, eggs, wheat, chocolate, nuts, fish and shellfish, berries, peas, citrus fruits and corn head the list of potent allergens. Other common foods must be considered possible sources of allergy. One child's allergy improved but did not stop after food allergens were withdrawn. Then, the toothpaste the family used was found to contain small amounts of the allergens!

Sudden weather changes appear to trigger some existing allergy.

I lean to the concept that emotional disturbances trigger an existing allergic condition.

Symptoms can range from swift and sometime fatal anaphylactic shock to headaches and a stuffy nose or even mild indigestion. Reactions can take place in almost any tissue. In the mouth area for example, itching, burning and swelling of lips, tongue, gums and pharynx can occur, along with canker sores, bad breath and bad taste.

Food allergy most often begins as eczema or hives or angioedema, or giant hives. Angioedema can even bring about death by obstructing the airways, as in the case of the woman allergic to sunflower seeds.

Headache is a common manifestation of allergy of the nervous system. Allergy to food may alter personality and affect behavior. We believe it is caused by an allergic reaction, much of which is unrecognized. The victim may be penalized for unruly or strange behavior when he really cannot help himself.

Such allergy may be a response to the manmade chemicals in our food, water and air. Psychiatrists are experimenting with diets to aid disturbed, depressed and aggressive patients.

Controversy surrounds the role in hyperkinesis of food additives and foods that contain salicylates. Hyperkinesis is a behavior disorder in children. It has been treated widely with amphetamines, stimulant drugs that in true hyperkinesis have the opposite effect, whereas tranquilizers are more apt to agitate.

To ferret out what causes symptoms, we place the patient on an elimination diet to clear his system of lingering allergens. We reintroduce foods, one at a time. If symptoms reappear, we run several more trials. If one food still appears to be the culprit, we recommend the patient avoid it. He may be able to eat it a few months or a year later, but he will probably always have to eat that particular food in moderation and infrequently.

In addition, pesticide residues, antibiotic traces, and insect and rodent debris may be at fault. For some, they may start an allergy disease.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soft luggage such as cotton canvas carryalls can be cleaned by shampooing with dense suds on the outer surfaces. Work quickly with overlapping strokes, and rinse as you go. Leather luggage can be washed the same way, says the Soap and Detergent Association, but it should be wiped completely dry. The application of paste wax or neutral polish is optional.

Women Outnumber Men In Real Estate Business

BOSTON (AP) — What do a socialite, an empty-nester, a former office worker, a young married woman and a career girl all have in common?

"They could all be women in the real estate business."

So comments Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., an organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

No one really knows for certain how many women are currently involved in selling real estate in the United States today.

"But, a good guesstimate is 500,000-plus," Goss notes. Some reports put the number of distaff real estate salespersons at 700,000-plus.

"Women rarely find any discrimination — and have free entry into the field either as salespersons or as brokers."

As long as women meet the licensing requirements for their particular state, they can compete on the same footing as men.

Goss notes a status symbol associated with women in the real estate industry.

"They seem to consider it a highly sophisticated and prestigious professional field — and regard it as a meaningful job," he says.

Men still play an important role in residential real estate selling, but women outnumber them by quite a margin.

"Women now make about 70 per cent of the residential sales in new and resale units," Goss estimates.

He observes that many women have a distinct advantage over men in real estate counseling.

"Women spend more time in the home — and consequently get to know more key areas of it than males. Thus, they are in a better position to sell it."

Goss says that if a man and woman — both without previous experience — enter the real estate field, the woman will generally have more success at the outset because of her acknowledged greater familiarity with the home.

"A home may be a man's castle — but it's a woman's workshop," he adds.

Headlines Were Small Or Medium

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There were women who made headlines, though not great big headlines, in 1975.

Christel Bochatay, 9, became the youngest person to climb to the top of Mont Blanc, Europe's highest peak.

Marian Hart, 83, flew solo from Washington, D.C., to Dublin. She was said to be the oldest woman ever to fly the Atlantic alone.

Sandy Allen of Shelbyville, Ind., believed to be the tallest woman in the world at 7 feet 5, played one of Casanova's lovers in a Federico Fellini movie in Rome.

Gloria Hurd, 29 inches tall, billed on the carnival circuit as the world's shortest woman, had a son 18.5 inches tall.

Diana Nyad, 25-year-old marathon swimmer, swam around Manhattan Island on her second attempt in 11 days. The 28 miles took her 7 hours and 57 minutes, beating the old record by 59 minutes.

Butterfly McQueen, 64, who played Scarlett O'Hara's maid Prissy in the 1939 film, "Gone with the Wind," was graduated from the City College of New York.

Fanne Foxe, striptease dancer whose name is Annabelle Battistella, associated with Rep. Wilbur Mills in several public incidents, moved to Westport, Conn., with her three teen-age children, where she worked on her autobiography.

Viktorya Fyodorova came to the United States from Russia to meet her father, retired Adm. Jackson R. Tate, who only recenly discovered that she had been born of his World War II romance with Russian actress Zova Fyodorova. Her father adopted her and she married a jet pilot, Frederick R. Pouy, of Stamford, Conn.

Lettie Gay Carson, who wages a one-woman war for improving train service in the Northeastern United States, won an order for restoration of passenger service on the Harlem Division of the Penn Central north to Millerton, N.Y. She wants it to go as far as Pittsfield, Mass.

Jockey Mary Bacon made her Ku Klux Klan membership known when she went to a Klan rally in Walker, La., in April.

The widow and children of a researcher who committed suicide in 1953 after he was made an unknowing participant in a CIA experiment with the effects of LSD is suing over the "wrongful death" of Frank R. Olson. She is Alice Olson of Frederick, Md., who only this year learned the circumstances of her late husband's death.

The "miniskirted judge" of Los Angeles Municipal Court, Noel Cannon, cited for 24 allegations of willful misconduct, is the third judge in California history to be removed by the State Commission of Judicial Qualification. She was criticized for wearing exotic costumes in court and bringing her pet poodle to sit on her lap while she rendered judgments.

Leftist guerrillas from Zaire released Barbara Smuts of Ann Arbor, Mich., unharmed after six days of captivity in the wilderness of Tanzania. She relayed ransom demands and Stanford University paid an estimated $40,000 after which Carrie Hunter of Atherton, Calif., Emilie Bergmann of The Netherlands and Kenneth Smith, Garden Grove, Calif., were released. All had been studying in Africa with anthropologist Jane Goodall.

French archeologist Francoise Claustre, 38, was captured by rebels in Chad in May 1974. They demanded ransom from France, then set Sept. 23, 1975, as the date of her execution. Her husband, Pierre, tried to rescue her and also was captured. While the Chad government condemned the French government for dealing with rebel leader Hissen Habre, France paid him $2.2 million in cash and supplies. He asked for some weapons to complete the deal.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

At a luncheon last week, a woman was telling about driving in the car with her teen-ager.

"Debbie turned into a dead-end street," she explained, "and I said to her, 'Turn.' She kept going, so I raised my voice and said, 'TURN.' She sat there frozen to the wheel and when I saw a guard rail looming in front of us, I leaned over and shouted in her ear, 'TURN!!'"

She slammed on her brakes and cried, "There you go again. You're always shouting at me."

We all nodded our heads sympathetically. There wasn't one of us who didn't have varicose veins of the neck from "talking" with our teen-agers.

The reasons were varied. One woman said she shouted at her teen-age daughter because she had to compete with radios and stereos. "Everytime I said something to her she just stared back with a fixed, glazed smile, clicking her fingers. I got so mad I threatened to plug her into a faucet. Then one day I figured, if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

"What did you do?" we asked.

"Everytime she asked me a question, I'd reply with a loud phonograph record. When she opened my drawer to borrow my last pair of panty hose, I'd turn up the volume on The Beatles playing 'Let It Be.' Once, when I made her spend a Saturday helping me clean, I played 23 choruses of the Carpenters singing, 'We've Only Just Begun.'"

Another mother said she shouted because her son hums when she chews him out. "If we had a drum and a guitar, we could record," she said bitterly.

I confessed to being a shouter because I can never find my kids to face them directly in a quiet, civilized manner.

One day I shouted under the bathroom door for 45 minutes delivering a lecture on why a wet towel should not be left on the bed. (I hate to sound immodest, but it was one of my finer efforts. It included a dissertation on a mother's place in the social system, how the IRS exemption for children is comedy at its best, how gross it is to cut your toenails in the living room and the sin of leaving five empty ice cream cartons in the freezer.)

My husband finally tapped me on the shoulder and informed me my son had left the house 20 minutes before.

We all agreed the term "rapping" had lost a lot in the modern-day interpretation. Finally, a small, quiet woman said, "I think raising kids is like working in a boiler factory. You shout from habit. Besides," she said, "I know I love 'em when I shout. They know I love 'em when I shout. But how will everyone else know unless I shout?"

Fewer Scoffing Today About 'Domino Theory'

By ROBERT KAYLOR

NAN, Thailand (UPI) — Increasing reports of North Vietnamese soldiers crossing the border from neighboring Laos to advise local Thai insurgents are giving credence to the falling domino theory of Communist expansion.

The theory — which says that countries of Southeast Asia will topple to the Communists one after another — has been scoffed at by much of the world since the Indochina War.

Even in this border province of north Thailand that is partly in insurgent hands, residents speak lightly of the threat.

"The insurgents?" asks one prosperous buinessman. "They are mostly hill tribesmen and they are stuck in the hills. They will never be able to come down to the lowlands where the Thais live. Everyone has enough to eat and is happy."

But others, noting that insurgent strength throughout Thailand is growing and that the Communist-led guerrillas now mass as many as 200 troops at a time to attack outposts, are not so sure.

"Three years from now, we could be up against the wall and fighting for our lives," said one senior government official.

"I believe the Thais are in for a rough time," said one Western source who watches the situation closely. "Unless the security forces step up their aggressiveness and are willing to tangle with the insurgents, they will take more territory."

Counter-insurgency sources say the flurry of reports about a North Vietnamese presence in Nan are impossible to confirm.

Reports from villagers in the border area have been coming in for three months, however. Many officials believe that North Vietnamese observers are making forays with the insurgents to see how they operate and to give advice.

If so, it is a new development in an area where there formerly was no North Vietnamese cross-border involvement.

In any case, both North Vietnam and China have helped the Thai insurgents with weapons and training for the past 10 years, and there are indications they have stepped up support.

"There is no reason why North Vietnam and China would not continue supporting the CT's (Communist terrorists) now that Indochina is finished," said a Western source. "All factors are in favor of this trend progressing further."

Experts estimate that in all there are about 8,500 fulltime, Communist-led guerrillas in Thailand, with about 1,000 of them here in Nan province.

In southern Thailand, the insurgents have shown the biggest burst of activity since the fall of Indochina, setting up village councils and shadow administrations in some areas.

In the south as well as the north and northeast, the movement is run by the clandestine Communist party of Thailand.

In Nan earlier this year, the insurgents killed 17 Thai soldiers and wounded another 24 in one attack on an outpost, laid siege to another post and have shot down government helicopters.

Work on a road running into the border region has completely halted with the contractor demanding better security from attacks and government forces reluctant to provide it. So far the road has cost roughly five lives for each 3,000 feet of work.

The United States used Thailand as a base for its bombers during the Indochina War, but the government in Bangkok has now ordered them out because there is no prospect of direct American military help.

Nevertheless, government leaders want U.S. military aid programs to continue.

"If the United States no longer gives us weapons and equipment, then we will face a real problem", says Choom Boonrauang, governor of neighboring Chiang Rai province, another insurgent area.

A young corporal, who heads a "hunter-killer" counter-guerrilla force in the border area and was taught his job by U.S. Army Green Berets, voiced similar concern about the prospects of Thailand going it alone.

"I wish the Americans would come back", he said. "The situation was much better when they were here."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get into practical and financial aspects of problems in a.m. Put on your thinking cap and make decisions of importance to you now. Make helpful plans for future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best time to collect money due you, make payments, and confer with associates. Plan for greater success.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) See how to improve your appearance early, then you are in a mood to attract more success. Plan evening's social in a.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make plans early for whatever is important to you, then speedily follow through with them. Get into social activities.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle personal affairs early, then business matters later. Persevere and success follows soon. Avoid a disruptive person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get important work done, then you can meet with congenials for fun. Accept invitations and dress in right fashion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new plan early before taking it to a bigwig. A new associate you make can be of great assistance later on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put more romance into your love life and make it more idealistic. Get duties done; free time for more interesting things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Reach a better meeting of minds with partners so work can be done more intelligently. A civic matter requires fast action.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do studying that will add sparkle to your ideas, make them work to your greater advantage. Listen to what an outsider suggests.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those rather slow but steady and sure plodders, so do not try to rush your progeny through school and expect surface brilliance. Upon reaching maturity, your progeny will get ahead faster than others due to thoroughness in learning, even though the life may then be channeled into a course different from what you expect. The man or woman of religion is very much in this chart.

Accessibility Survey Slated

With the approval of Greenville's Downtown Merchants' Association, Wednesday, January 14, the Northeast Easter Seal Society and ECU's Department of Rehabilitation Counseling will be holding an accessibility survey for the physically handicapped.

The survey will take place in Greenville's Central Business District with the assistance of local handicapped residents.

Among the areas to be evaluated will be entrance doorways and the width of aisles within businesses. An international symbol of accessibility will be placed on those store entrances which have met standards appearing in the North Carolina State Building Code.

The awarding of the accessibility symbol will take place after a committee on architectural barriers evaluates each survey.

Those businesses not meeting the standards will be informed of the standards not met and will be encouraged to make the necessary changes. Upon notification of the correct, the business will again be surveyed and the symbol of accessibility awarded, if the standards have been met.

For further information contact: The Easter Seal Society 315 W. Second St. or call 758-3230.

Just As It Might Have Been: Story Of Eleanor And Franklin Roosevelt

A sweeping balustrade and a small colonnaded portico adorn the porch of the magnificent Hyde Park manor, the New York residence of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The voice of Eleanor, his wife, echoes through the rooms as tourists are guided through its interior by a taped message from the former First Lady.

But outside under an oak tree a different Eleanor is heard — and seen. Young and vibrant, she is laughing at the feeble efforts of her suitor, Franklin, to play a ukulele and sing a love ditty. Just as it might have been 70 years ago, actors Jane Alexander and Edward Herrmann are reenacting the courtship of the young Roosevelts as part of the "ABC Theatre" dramatization, "Eleanor and Franklin," to air in two parts Sunday, Jan. 11, and Monday, Jan. 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV. Based on Joseph P. Lash's Pulitzer Prize-winning best-seller of the same title, the special offers an insightful portrait of the Roosevelts' love and life together.

"You know, I would go to sleep listening to the recordings of Roosevelt," Ed Herrmann offers with a smile, as he reflects on research he did in preparation for the role. The research included a three-day visit with Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., and poring over hundreds of feet of film and listening to recordings. "I heard some wonderful off-the-cuff remarks he made in some phone conversations," continues Herrmann. "There are some marvelous anecdotal material like one conversation he had with Wendell Willkie, for example. FDR goes into a long story about New York Mayor Jimmy Walker supposedly paying his wife $10,000 to maintain some semblance of their marriage for the sake of his career. This amused Roosevelt greatly."

When Jane Alexander saw Eleanor Roosevelt in home movies, as opposed to newsreels, she saw a woman who jumped up, ran around, laughed, even wore a bathing suit from time to time. "Also, says Ms. Alexander, "I met and talked with people who knew her. It's amazing how many people she knew; I'd mention the part at a gathering and her acquaintances would materialize before my very eyes. I even met Averill Harriman, quite accidentally, and he gave me some information."

The Hyde Park home and grounds were not shut off from tourists despite the heavy shooting schedule. Occasionally the spectators remarked on the actors' resemblance to the young Roosevelts, an observation they felt secure in making, having just visited the nearby library which houses a wealth of photographic material.

A few yards from the production activity is the rose garden where Franklin and Eleanor are buried side by side. Strangely, the more than 60-man crew hardly disturbed the serenity of Hyde Park. Intermingled with the serenity there's a feeling of something very, very special about the drama that has just been filmed.

And something very special awaits and audience of "Eleanor and Franklin."

"ELEANOR AND FRANKLIN" — the touching love story of a President and his first lady — is an "ABC Theatre" dramatization about the love and life together of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor, which will be presented on ABC-TV in two parts, Sunday, January 11 and Monday, January 12 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Abstract 'N' New Symbol For NBC

A contemporary abstract symbol, which relates to the letter N, is the new primary symbol for NBC. Other well - known aural and visual identifications — from the "bing - bong - bing" chimes to the more recent Peacock and intertwined letters N, B and C — have served as NBC's primary symbols at various times during the Company's nearly 50 years of service to the nation.

Readily identifiable "signatures" were initially used by NBC in 1927, less than a year after it pioneered the nation's first scheduled network broadcasting, Nov. 15, 1926. In 1927, the distinctive chimes and the letters "NBC" came into general use.

NBC's chimes also have a place in U.S. Patent office history. They were the first purely audible "service mark" ever registered. (Service marks distinguished and identify the course of products.) The chimes sound the notes G, E and C and have been used on both radio and television.

The letters "NBC" have been used as a formal sign - off identification since 1945. They were first used in a telecast July 7, 1930, on NBC's New York experimental TV station, W2XBS, which eventually became the flagship NBC-TV station WNBC-TV.

Another mark which was used widely shows an NBC microphone against a background of lightning bolts enclosed in a square. This was first used in 1943.

5th Of Lincoln Specials

"Crossing Fox River," fifth of the six "Sandburg's Lincoln" specials starring Hal Holbrook, is a timely historical drama to launch this Bicentennial and Presidential election year. Airing Monday, Jan. 12, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC-TV, it depicts Abraham Lincoln's struggle to form a strong cabinet admist political in-fighting prior to his inauguration.

Loring Mandel's teleplay dramatizing portions of Carl Sandburg's epic six-volume biography presents behind - the - scenes insights to Lincoln as a politician. President - elect Lincoln seeks to placate his favor - seeking backers without compromises that would hinder his leadership in the troubled years ahead.

"Viewers will be able to judge for themselves whether the political arena has changed much since 1861, especially in view of recent events," says multi - Emmy winner George Schaefer, who produced and directed the prestigious specials.

Holbrook is supported by a strong cast. They include Broadway star Sada Thompson as Mary Todd Lincoln; Beaulah Bondi as Lincoln's beloved stepmother, Sarah Bush Lincoln; John Randolph as Secretary of War Simon Cameron and Whit Bizzell as Secretary of State William H. Seward, among other well - known character actors.

Schaefer points out that "the central thesis is that during the campaign and immediately following his election, Lincoln had to adjust his vision and his responsibilities.

"He had to say goodbye both to his home and friends and to his political bias, and instead assume, in a strange and hostile environment, the responsibilities of a statesman - President of all the people, even those in rebellion."

In the teleplay, Lincoln pays a final visit to his beloved stepmother, played by Miss Bondi, before leaving for Washington.

"I jumped at the chance to play Sarah Bush Lincoln," exclaims Miss Bondi who made her Broadway debut in 1919 and, in one of her earliest Hollywood film roles, played Helen Hayes' mother in "Arrowsmith" in 1931.

"I researched Sarah in Sandburg's work and others," she continues, "and learned that she recognized that Abraham, even as a boy, was someone special. She encouraged him to study and really motivated his future greatness.

"I was happy to work with George Schaefer again. I was in his Hallmark version of 'On Borrowed Time.' And for years, I've wanted to play a role with Hal Holbrook."

"We have tried to humanize Lincoln," says Holbrook, "so that audiences can relate to him as another human being rather than as a symbol."

Classic For The Young

Richard Thomas, who stars as John-Boy on "The Waltons," is the host-narrator for the D'Oyly Carte production of the classic Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "H.M.S. Pinafore" to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series, Sunday, Jan. 11, 4 to 5:30 p.m.

For "Pinafore," the famed British D'Oyly Carter Opera Company called a halt to its usual non-stop touring schedule to stay in one place (London, England) for one week to tape what has proven to be one of the most popular G&S works with American audiences. Remarkably, the 1878 operetta has seen few changes since Arthur Sullivan composed his melodic score and W.S. Gilbert wrote his story and libretto about the cockeyed goings-on aboard the H.M.S. Pinafore.

Sir Arthur Seymour Sullivan and Sir William Schwenck Gilbert, respectively the composer and the librettist of comic operas, were virtually indispensable to each other as musical creators. But as friends, the best they could come up with was one long discord.

The fame of the two rests primarily on their collaboration. Each could, and did, perform on his own. Yet, few of their individual efforts have survived, while alsmot everything they wrote as a team is as popular as ever.

Sullivan was a highly trained musician of the Mendelssohn school. He seemed destined to turn out only rather starchy oratorios, passable operas and strict conata-form symphonies. His wroks include a symphony, church music and perhaps his best known hym, "Onward Christian Soldiers." Although he produced some successful music, it was his work with Gilbert—the operettas—that brought financial rewards.

Sullivan had expensive tastes and habits. These required money, and grinding out operettas was an easy way to make it. Yet, when he died in 1900, he was convinced he had betrayed his art.

Not so with Gilbert, the product of upper-middle-class parentage. He took to writing humorous sketches while at school and continued to do so at his work as a civil servant.

Gilbert developed into a prolific writer, with 71 works for the stage to his credit, besides poetry and verse. Between 1871 and 1880 alone, he produced 33 plays. Included in that cascade of talent were four operettas written to music by Sullivan.

In all, the two wrote 13 operettas together, and never had music witnessed such a symbiotic parnership. Unfortunately, the two men didn't particularly care for one another. Theirs was never a "let's sit down at the piano and write a song together" relationship. The pair made sure they saw as little of each other as possible, and their collaboration ended with the poorly received "The Grand Duke."

A New Face For Sunday Anchorman

CBS News Correspondent Morton Dean is the new anchorman of the CBS Sunday Night News (11 to 11:15 p.m.).

Previously announced was the assignment of CBS News White House Correspondent Bob Schieffer to anchor the new Sunday edition of the CBS Evening News (6:30 to 7 p.m.), which premieres Jan. 25. Dan Rather continues as anchor of the Saturday CBS Evening News (6:30 to 7 p.m.).

Morton Dean, who joined CBS News as a Correspondent in 1967, has traveled extensively from his New York base to cover a variety of major stories in this country and overseas.

His assignments have included political campaigns, space missions and various aspects of the energy crisis, as well as the American involvement in Vietnam. He has frequently served as a substitute anchorman on the CBS Morning News and the CBS Weekend News and many CBS News Radio broadcasts.

Dean's space assignments have included Apollo-Soyuz, the flights of Apollo 15 and 16 and the three Skylab missions. He has covered every political campaign for CBS News since 1968.

In this past year he also co-anchored an edition of CBS News "Magazine" series of daytime specials, contributed to the two-and-a-half hour CBS News Special Vietnam: "A War That Is Finished . . .", and in October of 1974 he was reporter-writer for CBS Reports: "The Case of the Plastic Peril," an examination of the health hazards of vinyl chloride.

Dean's foreign assignments have taken him to Australia, where he covered Pope Paul's historic visit in December 1970, as well as Southeast Asia,

Gleason Again Host Of Annual Awards Event

Jackie Gleason will host the sixth annual American Guild of Variety Artists "Entertainer of the Year Awards," a 90-minute special saluting the year's top performers in the field of live entertainment, Sunday, Jan. 11, 10 to 11:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

The awards special, hosted last year by Gleason and in the previous years by the late Ed Sullivan, was taped at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas in mid-December.

In a special balloting, the 8,000 members of the American Guild of Variety Artists selected the performer of the year in 11 categories of live entertainment, as well as the "Entertainer of the Year."

During the presentation ceremonies, each winner received a "Georgie" statue in the likeness of the late legendary vaudevillian, George M. Cohan. A "Golden Award" will also be presented to a performer who has devoted a lifetime to the entertainment of the American public.

Jack Albertson, George Burns, Red Buttons, Jack Haley Sr., Gabe Kaplan, Anne Meara, Telly Salavas, Jerry Stiller and Jimmie Walker appear as presenters on the special.

Cohan wrote 21 musical plays, which may seem old-fashioned by today's standards, but they have a joyous vitality that transcends their age. Audiences still hum his tunes and mouth his slangy phrases as if they had been newly coined.

When his writing style seemed to become obsolete, Cohan's acting remained wonderfully fresh and vital. He once advised the young Spencer Tracy, "Spencer, you have to act less."

Cohan, who produced 80 Broadway shows from 1901 through 1940, was America's sovereign entertainer in the early years of this century. Today, the 'Georgie' truly symbolizes his history of stage greatness, and it will shine gloriously for the winners of the Entertainer of the Year Awards.

NEW PANELING
If you think wall paneling is just old-fashioned knotty pine, think again. Wall paneling has become as modern as a new kitchen sink — and it's washable, colorful and practical. If you're thinking of redoing your kitchen, laundry room, or family room, look into paneling for long wear and function. And there is a special boom to the do-it-yourselfer, since paneling can be glued to walls with its own special adhesive. As a matter of fact new paneling makes itself at home in each room including your living room and bedroom.
Accent the new paneling with beautiful wall to wall carpeting. It's a wise investment in comfort, beauty and convenience. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Winners In Tournament

Eight of the biggest winners on "High Rollers" will return to the show to play in a Tournament of Champions with a 1976 Rolls Royce valued at $39,400 as a grand prize, it was recently announced by Lin Bolen, Vice President, Daytime Programs, NBC-TV.

The eight contestants, all of whom won over $30,000 in cash and merchandise their first time on the show, will be invited to play "High Rollers" the week of Jan. 19-23 (Monday-Friday, 12 noon to 12:30 p.m.)

Alex Trebek and Ruta Lee will draw the eight names out of a bucket to determine each contestant's place in tournament play. Four will advance to the semi-finals and two will play in the finals. The winner of the final match will receive the Rolls Royce.

Contestants will follow the normal "High Rollers" rules during the tournament. They will play for prizes during the games, and the winner of each match will try for $10,000 cash by eliminating all of the numbers from the big board. During the final match, in which the contestants play for the Rolls Royce, the prize behind each number will be $1,000 cash.

"These should be the most exciting matches we've had on 'High Rollers'," said executive producer Bob Noah. "The contestants have proven themselves to be champions, and they all know the intricies of the game."

It is conceivable that one of the eight could win prizes and cash worth over $70,000, bringing his grand total winnings on "High Rollers" to over $100,000.

Medicine And Diplomacy

Soviet film star Victoria Fedorova makes her U.S. television debut in the role of a Russian doctor who treats the injured son of a USSR special envoy, on "Medical Center," Monday, Jan. 12, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV. Theodore Bikel and Leigh McClosky also guest star in the episode written by Jeff Kanter and directed by Vincent Sherman.

When she arrives at Medical Center, Dr. Irina Kovaleva (Miss Fedorova) immediately nettles Dr. Gannon by disrupting his decision to operate. She maintains the operation must wait until the patient's important father arrives to give his consent. As the waiting is prolonged, Gannon begins to appreciate the lovely doctor's abilities, profesionally as well as personally, but suspects that Kovaleva is afraid of the consequences should the operation fail to save the youth's life.

An Hour Of Fun By Schreiber, Friend

JUST FOR FUN — Avery Schreiber and Tricky Chicken (Jerry Sroka) ride the roller coaster as they take young viewers on a tour of six amusement parks in the NBC-TV "Special Treat" program titled "Just For Fun," on Tuesday, January 13 (4-5 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

"Just For Fun," a program taking young viewers on a merry tour of six of the nation's leading amusement parks—with Avery Schreiber and Tricky Chicken as guides—will be the fourth "Special Treat" colorcast on NBC-TV, Tuesday, Jan. 13, 4 to 5 p.m.

In the hour of fun and music, comedian Schreiber and Tricky Chicken (manipulated by Jerry Sroka, who also provides the voice for the character) take many rides, see the sights and listen to music performed by Blood, Sweat and Tears, Johnny Rivers, Ann Sweat and Grand Old Grass.

The six amusement parks visited are: Kings Island, Kings Mills, Ohio; Great Adventure, Jackson, N.J.,; Sea World, San Diego, Calif.; Six Flags Over Mid-America, St. Louis, Mo.; Worlds of Fun, Kansas City, Mo.; and Opryland, Nashville, Tenn.

While at Kings Island, Avery throws balls and wins Tricky. The Clown Band performs "Look Me Over," and there's a ride on the Roller Coaster.

An exciting river ride simulating Lewis and Clark getting past an Indian ambush to Fort O'Sage is in store at Six Flags Over Mid-America. Also, there's a train ride and music by Blood, Sweat and Tears. The well-known music group will perform "Mean Old World."

At Worlds of Fun, entertainment will be provided by La Famille Marionettes, the Crazy Band playing "Darktown Strutters Ball," and Johnny Rivers singing "Can I Change My Mind."

DEAN MARTIN appears as the host of "Dean's Place" on Tuesday, January 13 (9-10 p.m.) on NBC-TV. Guests on the program will be Peter Graves, Jack Cassidy, Foster Brooks, Vincent Gardenia, Guy Marks and The Golddiggers.

Alan Alda Given Showcase Format

An unusual blend of story, format and-characterization provides the talent of Alan Alda with a rare showcase on "M-A-S-H," Tuesday, Jan. 13, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

For the first time in four seasons of the irreverent comedy series about the Korean war, Alda, as the wise-cracking, cynical surgeon Hawkeye, delivers every line of English dialogue in a virtual one - man show. And the result is an Alda tour de force.

This came about when Hawkeye wrecks his jeep, returning from a forward air station. Suffering a concussion, he is rescued by a Korean farm family, which does not speak English. To stay conscious, he launches a non-stop stream - of - consciousness monologue, one that draws on all his theatrical skills.

First, he's an adolescent Hawkeye, experiencing the first pangs of juvenile puppy love. Then, he's a collegiate Hawkeye, impersonating Jimmy Cagney in a campus musical. Too, he gives a W. C. Fieldsian demonstration of juggling.

"This show was difficult to do but very enjoyable," says Alda, noting that co-producer Jarry Gelbart's direction of the episode, which he co-authored, made it easier. "The big problem," said Alda, "was maintaining interest, and the script cleared that hurdle."

Tom Sawyer

Mark Twain's beloved American classic story of life along the Mississippi River, "Tom Sawyer," with Johnny Whitaker in the title role, will be shown for the first time on television as a special family film presentation on Sunday, Jan. 11, 7 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV. Also starring in the musical adaptation of the story is Celeste Holm as Aunt Polly and Warren Oates as the villainous Muff Potter.

The Oscar-winning composing team from "Mary Poppins" of Robert B. Sherman and Richard M. Sherman wrote the screenplay, music and lyrics for the film.

'Twilight Of Honor'

Richard Chamberlain stars in "Twilight of Honor," a taut and absorbing drama to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Jan. 14, 11:30 p.m. Nick Adams, Joey Heatherton, Claude Rains, James Gregory, Pat Buttram and Joan Blackman also star in the film.

In the story, David Mitchell (Chamberlain), a small - town attorney, is appointed to defend a man accused of wantonly murdering one of the community's leading citizens. Arrested and charged with the murder is a young hitchhiker, Ben Brown (Adams), who has been turned in by his wife (Miss Heatherton). Mitchell initially believes Brown is guilty, but then he discovers glaring omissions in a written confession the authorities obtained from his client. When special prosecutor Bixby (Gregory) refuses to call several important witnesses to the stand, Mitchell is convinced his client is being "railroaded."

EXPECTING

Cher Bono Allman, who resumes TV with ex-husband Sonny Bono next month, is expecting the stork in the spring.

FRONT ROW TOUCH— Elvis Presley sings and talks about his life, career and early days as a performer in "Elvis On Tour," a musical documentary to be colorcast as a special movie presentation Thursday, January 15 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Elvis Documentary, A Thursday Special

"My daddy had seen a lot of people who played guitars and stuff and didn't work, so he said, 'You should make up your mind either about being an electrician or playing a guitar. I never saw a guitar player that was worth a damn.'"

Those words were spoken by Elvis Presley, and open the film documentary — "Elvis On Tour" — to be colorcast as a movie special Thursday, Jan. 15, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV. In the picture, the legendary entertainer reveals a part of himself and his past. Produced and directed by Pierre Adidge and Robert Abel, the unusual movie is a close-up of an American phenomenon set to the sights and sounds of Presley's record - breaking concert tours.

"Elvis was guarded at first. He's a very private and, in some ways, shy person," according to Adidge and Abel. "But after we filmed him on tour and were allowed to shoot and record in places he had never allowed cameras in the past, we finally asked if he would mind talking about himself. He thought awhile and finally agreed.

"We don't like to pose people in situations and we don't like to ask questions. So we collected a number of photographs from his past and simply recorded his reactions. Ultimately, he forgot about the recorder and we had two good sessions which not only make the film complete but set the record straight on several matters."

Presley's voice is used over film of a recent concert tour, recorded on 16 track equipment and with never before seen pictures from his family album and footage from his early career. He discusses his reaction to the impact of his first public appearance and, earlier, the first time he remembers singing. He reminisces about being entered in talent shows when he was 8 years old and then when he was in the 11th grade.

"I came on stage (and) heard people kind of rumbling and whispering and so forth 'cause nobody knew I even sang," Elvis says in "Elvis on Tour." "It was amazing how popular I became in school after that."

He concludes a discussion of the days prior to stardom with, "I made that first record really as a personal thing for my mother. And that same company called me a year later and said, 'We got a song you might be able to do.' It was 12 o'clock and they said, 'Can you be here by 3 o'clock?' I was there by the time they hung up the phone!"

Children Of Divorce Studied In A Special

NBC News will explore the impact of divorce on the children of separated couples in a one-hour special, "Children of Divorce," to be presented Wednesday, Jan. 14, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Barbara Walters, co-host of "Today," will be the on - camera reporter. Mike Gavin will be the producer.

"The divorce rate will probably continue to climb," Ms. Walters said. "With the population more and more approaching marriage as a disposable institution, the effects on the children cannot be overestimated. We hope the program will contribute to an understanding of the problem from the child's point of view."

The NBC News production team will range across the country seeking out adults and children who are going through the divorce process, as well as judges, lawyers, psychologists and researchers. The program will explore a wide variety of services available to families going through the disruption. Major segments will be filmed in Minneapolis, Denver, New York, Los Angeles and Marin County, Calif, a suburban area near San Francisco.

Marin County is the site of a five-year study of the effects of divorce on children. The TV program will profile a family in Marin County that has achieved a "good divorce" that, in the opinion of researchers, has left the children undamaged. The program also will draw from the Marin County research some conclusions about marital stress on children and how to deal with some of the child's fears and fantasies during the divorce process.

Children themselves will make statements about this serious disruption in their lives; they will be interviewed and followed through every phase of the divorce process.

Walters noted that methods are being developed, some experimentally, to give to the offspring of divorced couples more control in overcoming their problems as children and also in their future lives as adults. The program will look at some of the support systems that are emerging.

"The child of divorce has been used by everyone involved in the divorce procedure — parents, lawyers, the courts — but little objective knowledge has been evident, Walters said. "What is true, in many cases, is that the children are used to inflict punishment on an ex-mate or are the chattel going to the winners in a custody fight — the spoils of victory."

No Substitute For Reality

"You can't duplicate reality," said the man who knows whereof he speaks. Peter Graves has spent the last 15 years going in and out of scenes both real and unreal in four television series, intersperced with a variety of motion pictures.

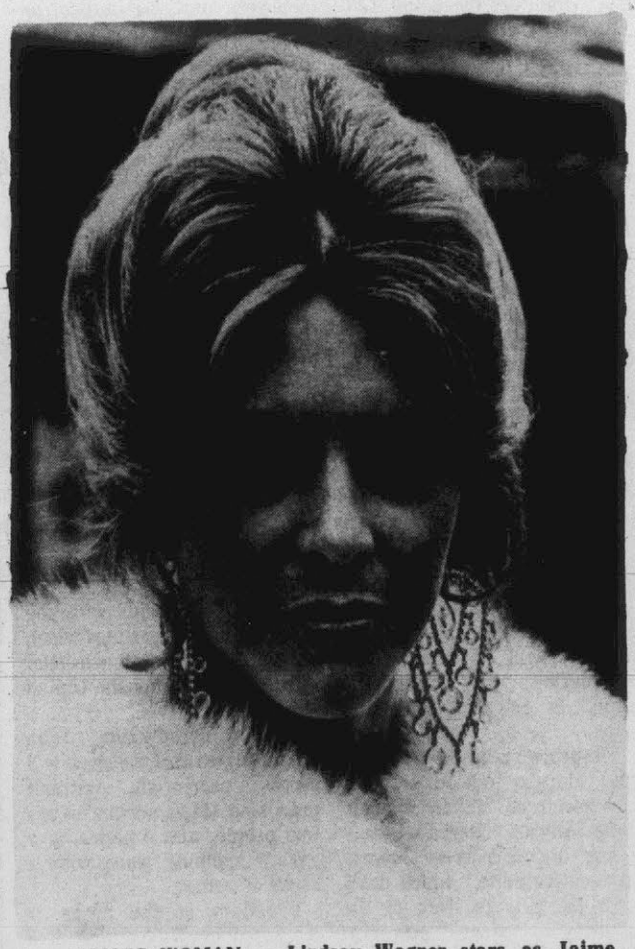
Peter found a beautiful realism in New Orleans while starring there as a federal agent in "Dead Man on the Run," the "Wednesday Movie of the Week," Jan. 14, 11:30 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Most visitors to New Orleans fall in love with the place and so did Peter: "The city should have co-star billing; our director Bruce Bilson and Bill Finnegan, are dedicated to location work and have cultivated it into a workable science," Peter said. "Location work, however, is not without its pitfalls. A writer might create something that looks dramatic and feasible on paper, but which turns into a mountain of trouble. For instance, we had a scene where a killer drives a huge semi-truck behind an agent's car on a raised drawbridge and pushed the car off on a perfectly-timed barge on the river below, where the whole thing explodes. There was only one problem: the bridge was the only way the people could get from their community into New Orleans. It takes a great deal of coordination and time to set up such an intricate shot, and there can be no retakes. If it doesn't work, the car just stays in the drink. The people sitting in the first few rows of cars were intrigued with what was happening, but beyond that we had a long line of irate motorists."

Como Returns

Perry Como will return to NBC in 1976 to star in three one-hour TV specials. The first offering will be Feb. 22, originating in Hawaii.

The second is planned for spring and the third will be presented in December.



BIONIC WOMAN — Lindsay Wagner stars as Jaime Sommers, Steve Austin's former fiancee, who following an operation that stored her shattered body with bionic parts, returns to her hometown to lead a dual life as a schoolteacher and a secret operative for the government in "Welcome Home Jaime," Part II, premiere episode of the new ABC-TV series "The Bionic Woman" airing Wednesday, January 14 (8-9 p.m.)

Thirty Stars In TV Reprise

More than thirty top stars, including the late Jack Benny and Dan Blocker, head the roster of show business personalities joining John Wayne for a reprise of "Swing Out Sweet Land," airing Thursday, Jan. 15, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on NBC-TV.

A milestone in the annals of TV, first presented in 1970, "Swing Out Sweet Land" marked Wayne's debut as a narrator - host on television in a lighthearted look (with music and comedy) at the human side of America from 1607 to the 20th Century. Easily sweeping all competition in the ratings — and setting records for a 90-minute TV special in the process — the lavish 2.5 million dollar spectacle very nearly cost as much to produce as the nation's entire national budget for 1776.

Making extensive use of such locations as the State Historical Park in Bodie, California, Knott's Berry Farm, Ports - Of - Call Village and The Whaler's Wharf in San Pedro, California plus Hollywood's largest sound stage at the Samuel Goldwyn Studios, Wayne's initial TV special today remains as one of the most expansive variety projects created for the video medium.

The program puts history in a fascinating new light by mingling patriotism with humor, and reality with imagination. Twenty - one skits and songs run the gamut in tone from serious to hilarious, and span three centuries. The vignettes are interwoven periodically with the introduction of new states which spring up on a three-dimensional 80-by-50-foot map of the United States.

In his introduction, John Wayne states that the show will stress patriotism without preaching. He says countries are like people, and America is a yarn - spinning place with a sense of humor.

Freedom of the press is discussed by Wayne with Red Skelton (as a printer in early America) and with Tommy Smothers (as Skelton's apprentice); Johnny Cash sings "Ribbons of Steel," as a salute to those who connected America by rail.

Starting New Pilot Drama

The project is based on MGM's 1954 classic motion picture, which starred William Holden, June Allyson, Barbara Stanwyck, and Frederick March. "Executive Suite," which deals with the private lives of the country's most powerful business elite, is slated to go before the cameras in late January.

Janet Leigh Recalls Golden Era Movies

"Janet in Wonderland" — that's how Janet Leigh remembers her days as part of the old Hollywood, when the stars belonged to the big studios and the young players learned by wandering around the lot watching the greats.

Miss Leigh was describing her days at MGM during the late '40's and '50's, while filming "The Deadly Dream," which airs on the CBS Late Movie, Thursday, Jan. 15, at 11:30 p.m.

"Everyday when I went to work it was like opening a magic door," Miss Leigh recalled. "It wasn't just the glamor, though. We got the best training in the world, first in class and then by careful grooming in one movie after another."

Janet explained the rewards of working with and observing some of Hollywood's all-time greats. "It was a priceless experience, and it gave me a foundation I wish young actors could get today. Sometimes I'd just go from sound stage to sound stage to watch actors like Clark Gable, Greer Garson, Spencer Tracy and Katherine Hepburn. It was really something."

Asked about the incredible way in which she was 'discovered," Miss Leigh remembered, "Norma Shearer, one of MGM's all - time top stars, saw a picture of me at a Northern California ski lodge where my father worked.

New Semester Begins

"Reading and the Individual" and "Presidential Power and American Democracy" are the two courses to be offered during the spring term of the award-winning "Sunrise Semester" on CBS-TV.

The courses offer full college credit at New York University, and at other institutions in the case of the Presidency course. They are taught by members of the faculty of Washington Square and University College of Arts and Science of New York University.

"Reading and the Individual" will be transmitted on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, beginning Jan. 26; "Presidential Power and American Democracy" on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, beginning Jan. 27. Both curses will be broadcast by individual stations at a time of the station's own choosing.

"Reading and the Individual" will be conducted by Dr. George Manolakes, professor of Education in the Department of Early Childhood and Elementary Education in the School of Education, Health, Nursing and Arts Professions of New York University. Professor Manolakes is senior author of instructional materials for children of the elementary school, including "Reading Round Table," "Try: Expeciences for Young Childrfn" and "Self."

The curse postulates that the failure of mass education programs for the teaching of reading, as well as the growing awareness of the very real differences that exist among children assigned to the same grade level, have brought into sharper focus the need for instructional procedures that reflect the uniqueness of each individual within the classroom.

The course will introduce many techniques for the disagnosis of the reading skills and abilities of each child. Procedures for the analysis of specific oral reading, silent reading, and comprehension skills will be presented. Methods for determining the reading poential of individual children ill be included. On the basis of various diagnostic procedures, strategies for teaching individuals will be developed.

"Presidential Power and American Democracy" is a course that will focus on the problem of keeping a strong Presidency within the boundaries of acceptable democratic behavior, and functioning with sufficient regard for democratic values and processes. The ability of the cnurts, Congress, the bureaucracy, political parties and interest groups to constrain the President with democratic limits will be assessed.

This course will be taught by Professor Louis Koenig.

Researched The Drunken Role

Not so says actor Lars Hensen, who has spent a lot of time researching the behavior of drunks. He has come to the conclusion that at least 101 different types exist.

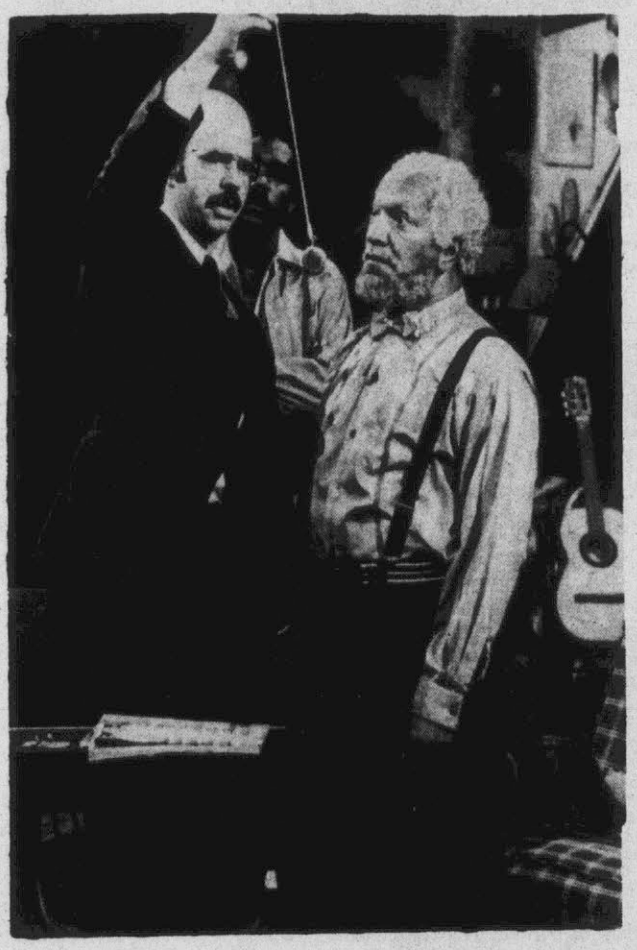
"Another thing people don't realize is that drunks and winos are different. A drunk will never associate with a wino."

Hensen has portrayed winos and drunks in segments of "Police Women," "Police Story," "Doctors Hospital," "Days of Our Lives" and "Joe Forrester."

"When a script calls for a drunk, I go in and I ask the producer what kind he would like to have," says Hensen.



SPELLBOUND — Redd Foxx as Fred Sanford reacts to the method of hypnosis used by Graham Jarvis, who guest - stars as a hypnotist employed by Fred's son Lamont (Demond Wilson) to cure him of his addiction to TV in "The TV Addict" on "Sanford and Son" Friday, January 16 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

'Good Heavens' Is New Comedy Series

"Good Heavens," a new comedy series starring Carl Reiner, will be telecast on ABC-TV starting in early March, it was recently announced by Fred Silverman, President of ABC Entertainment.

"The addition of 'Good Heavens' to our program schedule will further diversify the entertainment we will offer our viewers in 1976," Mr. Silverman stated in making the announcement. "The series concept offers a comedy form unlike any other on the air, a comedy anthology with a major guest star each week. Together with 'Family,' the series extends the traditional TV season of first-run entertainment."

Carl Reiner stars as Mr. Angel, a heavenly visitor who rewards good deeds by granting one wish or at least nudging the lucky recipient in the right direction as long as it's something money can't buy. He is not of the genie in a bottle school of benefactor; the wisher has to do his or her part, but dreams do come true with a little help from heaven.

Series star Carl Reiner also serves as executive producer for Columbia Pictures TV and he directed many of the episodes. Austin and Irma Kalish serve as both producers and executive story consultants.

Wayne Rogers In New Series

"City of Angels," starring Wayne Rogers as a free-wheeling private investigator operating in the Los Angeles area during the dynamic 1930s, will be added to NBC-TV's prime-time schedule, Tuesday, Feb. 3, Marvin Antonowsky, Vice President, Programs, announced recently.

"We are delighted to have a star of such proven popularity to spearhead this new series for NBC," Antonowsky said of Rogers, who starred for three years as combat surgeon Trapper John on "M-A-S-H."

"The fabled '30s continue to be an exciting period as a setting for drama, as illustrated by the successful motion picture, 'Chinatown,'" Antonowsky added. "The familiar face of Wayne Rogers in a slightly new framework, plus the appeal, vigor and energy of the period and the talented production team assembled, will make 'City of Angels' a hit."

Bernstein At Harvard

For the first time on national television, the Public Broadcasting Service will present Leonard Bernstein at Harvard giving a series of six lectures entitled "The Unanswered Question." The series begins Sunday, Jan. 11, at 2 p.m. on PBS.

Battle Cry-- Freedom To Run

"Freedom To Run" is the Duke University basketball cry in 1975-76, as the Blue Devils attempt to retain the glorious past tradition that made the Durham school a perennial power throughout the nation during the 1960s. (Duke meets arch-rival North Carolina in an ACC contest on Saturday, Jan. 17, at 2 p.m.

Duke coach Bill Foster, reigning president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, is warming up to our nation's bicentennial celebration by fielding an exciting young ball club that may very well surprise the skeptics and challenge the ACC Title this season.

Actually, Foster's free - wheeling offense is not a novel idea nor one that was founded in 1776; it's just what Foster teams do best. Last season in his first year at Duke, Foster installed his running game and the Blue Devils ran to their second highest scoring average in school history. They broke the 100-point barrier four times and upped their per-game average by close to ten points a game.

Foster's running attack not only produced points but also victories. The Devils got off to their fastest start since 1969 with a 6-1 record, which earned them a Top Twenty national ranking in "Basketball News." Only injuries kept the Blue Devils from finishing with a better record.

The Blue Devils did end up at the .500 mark (13-13), a six game improvement over the previous season and their 47th straight season with ten or more wins. Two victories over NIT champion Princeton and a January upset of ACC champion North Carolina were the highlights of the season along with a new school field goal percentage of 51.7.

The Blue Devils are led by co-captain Willie Hodge, a 6'9" pivotman from San Antonio, Texas, who made big strides in 1974-75 and is bringing smiles to Duke fans with his play this season. His increased aggressiveness last season was noticeable and should he continue to improve in that area, he could be the dynamic big man the Blue Devils will need in the tough ACC wars.

Foster leads lively practices and has had stiff competition for the remaining frontcourt berths. The battle will be waged among 6'9" freshman Cameron Hall, 6'7" junior Mark Crow, 6'7" freshman Harold Morrison, 6'5" senior George Moses, and 6'5" freshman Jim Spanarkel.

It's a new era in Duke basketball, and coach Bill Foster promises to field a young and fast - moving team in 1975-76.

Garagiola Hosts Tuscon Open

Joe Garagiola, a fellow who has touched many bases, some of them twice, in his television career-baseball announcer, game show host, "Today" panelist-will touch another when he hosts coverage of the NBC Tucson Open golf tournament. And he will do it lightly.

In preparing for his assignment as host of the NBC Tucson Open on Sunday, Jan. 11 4:30 to 6 p.m.) Garagiola quips: "I am preparing by not preparing.

"I certainly cannot sell myself as an expert on golf, so I am going to be the kind of host the hackers in the audience will relate to."

It is Garagiola's opinior that when it comes to golf, the hackers of the world greatly outnumber the professionals and the low handicap at the local country club.

"I would like to come on to the players in the audience who do not worry about their game. For instance, in any big golf tournament on TV, the viewers look in on the pro-am competition for the celebrity doing something he's not know for doing, and doing it badly."

The NBC Tucson Open will tee off a series of six major golf tournaments on NBC-TV between Jan. 10 and May 23, the most in the network's history. In addition to the Tucson Open, NBC-TV will cover the Bob Hope Desert Classic (Feb. 7-8); the Citrus Open (March 6-7); the Greensboro Open (April 3-4); the New Orleans Open (April 24-25); and the Danny Thomas Memphis Open (May 22-23).

SUPERFIGHT III—The World Heavyweight Championship between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier will be seen on the Sunday version of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" at 4:30 p.m. on January 11, on ABC-TV.

Ring Classic On TV

Superfight III — the World Heavyweight Championship between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, and one of the greatest heavyweight battles of all times — will be featured on home television when the Sunday afternoon version of "ABC Wide World of Sports" returns for its third season, Jan. 11, 4:30 to 6 p.m.

In their two previous fights, Ali and Frazier had split, the first matchup going to Frazier and the second to Ali. Then, last October in Manila, Ali laid his heavyweight crown on the line in what was to become one of the most bruising contests in his professional career.

Viewers will be able to see all the action in that classic contest, with blow-by-blow commentary by ABC Sports' boxing expert, Howard Cosell.

Viewers who read about Superfight III know that it was as close a fight as could be imagined, with both boxers battered and near collapse by the closing rounds. Finally, at the end of round 14, Frazier's manager, Eddie Futch called it off when his fighter was unable to continue.

Sunday "Wide World of Sports" began in 1974 as a program to air during the winter months (Saturday "Wide World," now in its 15th season, airs year-round) and immediately became one of the most popular series in the history of sports television.

The Saturday and Sunday "Wide World" telecasts in 1974 and 1975 dominated all first-quarter weekend sports programming and in 1975 the Sunday programs totalled an average of more than 31 million viewers throughout the winter months. The "Wide World" telecasts were the number one and two rated sports series during that period.

Some of the outstanding events seen last season on the Sunday version of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" included the World Heavyweight Championship fight between Muhammad Ali and George Foreman, the Harlem Globetrotters, the "World Series of Auto Racing" featuring the "International Race of Champions," the World Figure Skating Championships, the World Cup Skiing Championships, and the Moscow International Gymnastics Championships.

Another outstanding lineup of championship sports events is being scheduled for Sunday "Wide World," during the first quarter of 1976, in addition to the tremendously popular Saturday afternoon telecasts.

Auerbach Host On CBS-TV Sports

A.J. "Red" Auerbach, former coach and now president and general manager of the Boston Celtics, has joined CBS-TV Sports and will host half-time features during broadcasts of National Basketball Association games on the network beginning Sunday, Jan. 11, Robert Wussler, Vice President, recently announced.

The 28 diversified half-time features, to be broadcast during the regular season and playoffs, will focus on basketball techniques and skills, with one or more NBA players joining Auerbach for the demonstrations. Included in the format will be the art of shooting, rebounding, dribbling, free throws and defense.

Auerbach will also introduce viewers to other aspects of the sport, such as scouting, game strategy, set plays and team motivation.

Among the players to be featured are Rick Barry, John Havlicek, Walt Frazier, Bob McAdoo, Billy Cunningham, George McGinnis and Rudy Tomjanovich.

Gymnast Performs In 'Emergency' Episode

Blonde Karen Schuber, the talented 16-year-old gymnast who performs the scary maneuvers on the balance beam in NBC-TV's "Emergency!" episode, "The Girl on the Balance Beam" Saturday, Jan. 17, 8 to 9 p.m., may turn out to be America's answer to Olga Korbutt.

Of course, many teen-age female gymnasts in the United States dream of that and, like Karen Schuber, they rehearse at least five hours a day, six days a week. Karen's role on the program, in which she doubled the gymnastic sequences for young actress Patty Cohoon, was a slight interruption in her preparations but a justifiable one. As an amateur gymnast with Olympic dreams, Karen could not accept any money for her performance. Consequently the check was mailed to the Gymnastics Olympica, the club in Van Nuys, Calif., where she trains under the tutelage of gymnast Fritz Reiter.

Karen and Patty, dressed in identical leotards and wearing their blonde hair in identical hairstyles, with braids over the ears, filmed the gymnastic sequences of the episode at the La Canada, Calif. High School gymnasium.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Schuber of Beverly Hills, Karen has been a gymnast for several years and has attained a national rating of Class I (the next and final step is to be qualified as "Elite," a rank which few gymnasts reach). She had competed on the state, regional and national level, and has appeared in several television commercials (again with the money going to her club, rather than to Karen herself).

A student at Beverly Hills High School, her interest in gymnastics was first sparked by a course at the local "Y." She showed talent and went on to advanced instruction.

In the script, Karen is supposed to portray a 14-year-old, but both Karen and guest star Patty Cohoon are 16.

Quiz: How Well Can You "Track" The Criminal Mind?

California's Gov. Jerry Brown with his father, Pat Brown

"I think my son could be President. It's possible he could do what Kennedy did. He's a greater intellectual, and he's not that wealthy, but he has that mass appeal. Not individual appeal—he's more of an introvert—but mass appeal."—Pat Brown

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EILEEN FULTON, star of "As the World Turns"*

Did you ever do love scenes with someone you personally didn't like?—H.C., Miami Beach, Fla.

● Yes. There was once an actor (who shall remain nameless) whom I loathed. I couldn't stand his smell, his jokes or getting near him—let alone kissing him. The first thing I did was give him a bottle of my husband's favorite cologne, so one problem was eliminated. About the others—well, I tried to make up nice things about him. First I'd think of something sweet my husband did, then transfer it to the actor. Once a scene began, I'd be O.K. That's because I assumed the role of the character I was portraying. But it was tough going until the cameras started to roll.

FOR BOB HOPE

● There are a lot of comedians I enjoy, really too many to make a complete list. I like Shecky Green, as well as many, many others who appear in Las Vegas. Some of the people who make me laugh hardest are behind-the-scenes people. For instance, I have a comedy writer named Charlie Lee who really breaks me up.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R-Ariz.)*

Why are you such an outspoken defender of our military forces? Can't the world's most extravagant military establishment defend itself?—R. Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● The U.S. does not have the most extravagant military system. I would bestow that honor on the Soviets. But to answer the main question, as long as there's a threat to our freedom or that of our allies, America must remain militarily strong. That threat has been, is and will continue to be the Soviet Union until we are mutually able to reduce it.

FOR SUNNY GRIFFIN, model*

Do you feel that fashion is more down-to-earth today?—P.P., Scranton, Pa.

● Yes, for a very good reason—clothing has become a major investment. So, you'll be seeing more and more understated but chic clothing as long as the recession continues. I'd like to offer one hint about make-up for all the earth-colored clothes that are now the rage: complement them with deeper but not darker shades of make-up. Otherwise, you'll look invisible!

FOR JIMMY COCO, actor*

● Terrific to work with. He keeps guests at ease and out of embarrassing situations. He's the sort you want to know better away from the studio. And what a sense of humor! He passed a hotel room and heard the announcement on TV, ". . . And he-e-e-re's Johnny!" He knocked on the door, and the fellow who opened it cast one eye on the TV Johnny and his other eye on Johnny in the flesh. Johnny just asked him: "Can you tell me what time it is?"

FOR SANDY DUNCAN

Is this your first or second marriage, and do you have any children?—D.C., Vancouver, Wash.

● Tom (Calcattera) is my second husband. He's a doctor and was one of a team who examined me when I had my eye surgery. We've been married since January 1973. Scott, my 10-year-old stepson, is as tall as I am (5'4"). He's all I could want in a child. In fact, I'm not sure I want any of my own. He's fulfilled my maternal instincts.

FOR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN, "Dear Abby" columnist*

Have you ever been asked a question that was impossible to answer?—Allen Spence, Blountville, Tenn.

● Stumped? No. But when a problem concerns something that one cannot change, such as a physical deformity that absolutely defies correction, the only answer to give is: "Learn to live with it, dear."

FOR EARL BUTZ, Secretary of Agriculture*

Are the Russian people being told where all this wheat they're getting came from?—Hal Borden, Crystal Beach, Fla.

● No, I'm afraid not. The Soviet Union does not, as a matter of policy, report on grain imports in the public press. But some Russians will learn about these imports via foreign radio broadcasts, such as Voice of America.

FOR GRAHAM KERR, "The Galloping Gourmet"*

Tell me, what happens to the food you prepare—who eats it, who pays for it and who cleans up?—Lenora Renshaw, Arroyo Grande, Calif.

● Our crew eats it, every single scrap. I pay for half the cost, and our production company takes care of the rest. Carol and Ann, who, incidentally, gave 10 percent of their wages to Freedom from Hunger relief, make everything nice and shipshape in the studio.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I saw an amateur production of "The King and I," and it reminded me of Yul Brynner. What's he doing these days? —B.E., Albany, N.Y.

● Brynner, now 55, is appearing in "Home Sweet Homer," his first Broadway show since he did "The King and I" 24 years ago. His last movie was "Westworld." You don't hear too much about him because he lives in Normandy, France, with his wife Jacqueline and adopted Vietnamese daughters, Mia, 19 months and Melody, 7 months (Yul has two children, Rock and Victoria, by previous marriages). He has made many documentary films for the U.N. World Refugees Organization. Oriental-born, he speaks 11 languages, and is shocked when he hears himself on tape. "I sound like a lousy foreigner," he complained. "It upsets me because I think of myself as an American actor." Brynner rejected his "King and I" role when it was first offered to him. He was 31 at the time, and felt he could not play a 55-year-old man.

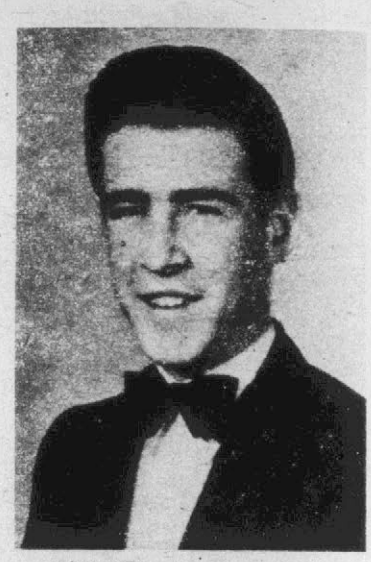
The Governor's Son as Governor:

An Inside-the-Family Look At California's Controversial Leader

"The Brown children all vividly remember fiery discussions at the dinner table, and in particular, Jerry's debates with his father. . . . His father thought he was helping him to find his identity, Jerry thought he was being squelched."



Jerry Brown as teenager—in his first tux.

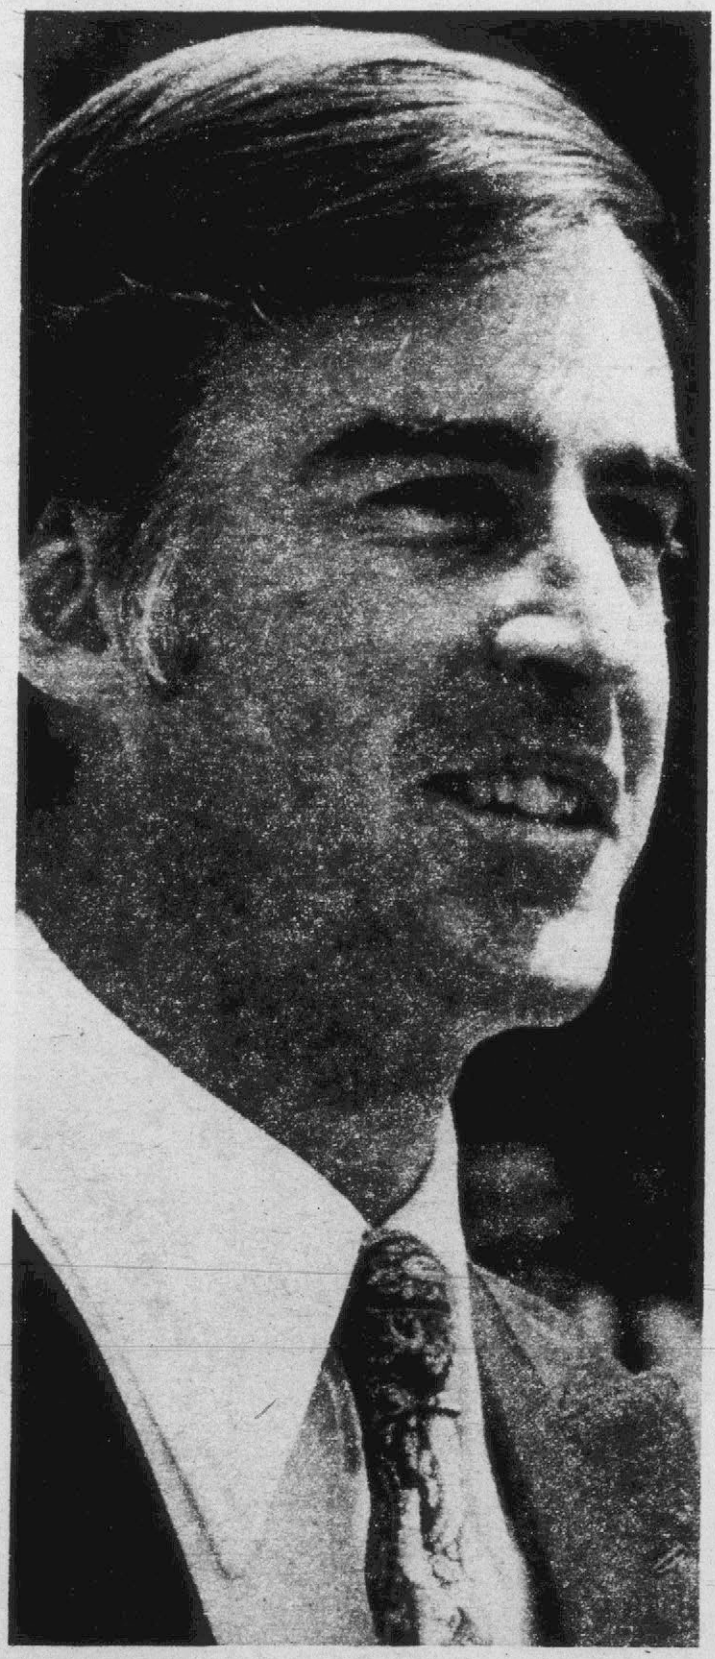
By Peer J. Oppenheimer

California's 34th Governor, Edmund Gerald Brown, Jr., has always wanted to do things on his own. But from the time he was born, he was cast in a role that had to be played out in the shadow of his effusive father, ex-Gov. Edmund Gerald (Pat) Brown, Sr. That overwhelming fact seems to have made Jerry Brown the kind of man he is today.

His father did the casting. "Pat had wanted his son to be named after him," said Bernice, wife of an ex-Governor named Brown, and mother of the present Governor of the same name. I never liked the idea of calling him Ed, so I used his middle name." Last January, 37-year-old Jerry Brown took over the governorship his father filled for eight years. Since then, the big political question has been: Just who and what is this rather puzzling, slender, intense-looking, heavy-browed, easily annoyed man who holds one of the nation's key political offices?

Is he, as first suggested, the intellectual leader who can rekindle the national spirit shot down by Kennedy's assassin? Or is he just a fellow pointing to tracks long imprinted in the sand? And how hard is he trying to prove to the world and himself that he's his own man, not just Pat Brown's son?

Jerry Brown seems to be doing everything he can to be as unlike his father as possible. He was quoted as saying he felt he almost lost the election because people associated him with his father. After he took office, he remarked, "I don't think my father thought I'd make it," and he refused to live in the new governor's mansion which he sarcastically calls "that $1.3 million Taj Mahal." Kidding, he says, "Maybe we can turn it into a halfway house for lobbyists."



Governor Brown now: Paying the rent.

His father, who loved the pomp of the office, chuckled. "I'd sorta hoped they'd let a retired Governor use it. Bernice and I could do all of his entertaining for him. But I'd never suggest that. Jerry wouldn't like it."

The new Governor seldom entertains. If he has to, he usually takes guests out to dinner or meets them at the office to talk. "I think he's missing out on a lot that way," his father said in his roomy law office in Beverly Hills. "One of the nicest things about being governor was getting to entertain interesting people like Sadat, Indira Gandhi and Khrushchev. I loved it!"

When I asked Jerry Brown why he turned down the mansion, he said, "First of all, it saves about a million dollars on security (a fact which worries his mother a lot) and in upkeep and maintenance fees. And even if I were married and had a family, I wouldn't want to live 25 miles away in a wealthy suburban area that bespeaks the affluence of a past era. To me, this symbolizes the disconnection between my job and what it stands for. If the old governor's mansion was still available, and if I had a family, that might have been O.K. But it's ridiculous to consider a place that's so big and expensive that there can't be five people in all of Sacramento who could maintain it! You can see where I stay from my office window," he said, pointing. "It's in walking distance, and I only sleep there anyway, so it's perfectly adequate."

He pays the rent himself, and one reporter wrote that he slept on a mattress on the floor, implying a monastic existence. "I wish they hadn't said it like that," said Jerry's mother. "Besides, Jerry has a nice home in Los Angeles. [It features a large room with fireplace, lots of books and plenty of windows overlooking Hollywood.] It's rather isolated, with lots of trees around it, the way Jerry likes it."

(I had asked Jerry if he was raised frugally. "Let's say I didn't have much of an allowance," he said. "I was given the option of making an effort and doing chores—or not getting an allowance." He grinned. "I usually opted for no allowance and no chores.")

His mother remembers: "When he was in high school, he'd come home around 3:30 and fix himself a steak and salad. That was his idea of a snack. And believe it or not, he could still sit down and eat dinner! He never gained weight then—maybe it was all that swimming and weight lifting he did. But now, he watches it. He'll say, 'No potatoes for me.'"

Jerry Brown has also refused Ronald Reagan's private jet, preferring to fly commercially ("You sit next to interesting people . . ." but airline officials shudder at the security risk). He has brushed aside the limousine used by his predecessors. "I drive whatever car is available in the motor pool. This year it happens to be '74 Plymouths," he told me. The only additions to the two vehicles he uses are state police radios and telephones.

The Governor didn't get where he is by accident. When Jerry was born, Pat Brown was already a prominent lawyer in San Francisco. By the time Jerry was five, his father had become a district attorney, and in 1951 he was elected attorney general of California. In '58, he ran for governor, won and remained chief executive for two terms. During all this time, Brown Sr. used his son as a ploy in his own campaigns ("When we were young, our father paraded us before the public. I didn't like it, and I'm sure Jerry didn't either," says Jerry's sister, Kathleen Rice, of the L.A. Board of Education.)

The Brown children all vividly remember fiery discussions at the dinner table, and in particular, Jerry's debates with his father. Pat calls them "rousing conversations," but Jerry—at 12 and 13—tended to feel they were tests of his mettle. His father thought he was helping him to find his identity. Jerry thought he was being squelched.

At 17, Jerry went off to Santa Clara University, a Catholic school. It was a step toward the independence he wanted so much. But this, too, was heavily influenced by his father.

Jerry's enrollment in Catholic St. Ignatius High School and Santa Clara was foreseeable. But not foreseeable was his leaving college to cloister himself as a Jesuit seminarian at Sacred Heart in Los Gatos, where—from age 18 to 22—he lived in extreme self-discipline amid books and scholars for three and a half years. "Studying for the priesthood gave me the opportunity to read, to think, to reflect," he says now. "I went into it because I thought the spiritual life was the most serious, worthwhile way to spend time. I felt I would be dealing with important things, and would get to the heart of things."

His mother says: "There's no question that Jerry's years under the Jesuits influenced him, and as a result, he became a scholar—which he might not have become otherwise."

For two hours every month, during visiting times, Pat Brown tried to persuade his son to return to the outside world and study law. At last he won—almost. Young Brown left to attend California's Berkeley campus. But he studied Latin and Greek, not law.

"I left," he said, "because after a few years I felt I had to move somewhere else. I was unwilling to accept the conformity that was expected of me. There were some promises I had to make that I simply couldn't fulfill. I wanted more freedom than I could have as a priest."

His pious training still shows. "I think he has a great inner strength," says his mother, whom he resembles. "When he was in training, he probably started thinking about the real values in life, and now he measures everything by that."

During his college days, he enjoyed the run of the governor's mansion and the State Capitol. No one was safe from his questioning. He also watched his father in action. Always outgoing, even bombastic, his father enjoyed the power of his office and went at his job with great enthusiasm. "Perhaps my best quality is that I like people. I never can believe that I can't make people like me," Pat Brown said.

"I think the job's breakneck pace is incompatible with marriage. For two people to be together constantly takes a lot of consideration and attention. I don't have the time right now."
—Jerry Brown

It would have been hard to escape such a whirlwind. Before long, Jerry was willing to get a law degree, like his father. By then it was almost a foregone conclusion that the second Edmund G. Brown would get into politics. Said Barbara, "I think he did it to please our father." "It has always been part of my life," Jerry told me. "But consciously, I went into politics during the Vietnam War when I worked on Eugene McCarthy's campaign in an effort to end the war."

In 1969 Jerry won a place on the L.A. Community College Board of Trustees. In 1970 he became California's Secretary of State. "His four years in that job were good experience," his father said. "He learned a lot."

In 1974 Jerry took on the governorship, winning out in a hard-fought battle against Republican Houston Flournoy. Ironically, Pat Brown himself had considered running for the office again. "I stepped aside because Jerry was running," Pat admitted. "I didn't want to be in there trying to get votes against him. And I now realize that as we go along, we get barnacles—we get stuck with ideas and end up defending them. Jerry is fresh, has a new approach."

Since he took office, Jerry has not been free of criticism. One of the complaints is that he seems to have a hard time reaching decisions. Gray Davis, Jerry's executive assistant, defends his boss: "The easiest thing in the world would be for the Governor to present a problem to five advisors, then make a decision based on the best opinion. Jerry doesn't work that way. He will throw an idea at the legislature and let them come back with suggestions." Jerry himself admits that he does not believe in "hasty decisions." "I consider all the pros and cons," he says.

So far, Jerry has spent most of his energies on the Farm-Labor Program, the closing of tax loopholes, housing for poor income groups, and most of all, education. He has also given a lot of thought to what he sees as the country's changing needs and values. "It's time to realize there is a limit to economic growth, that we must live within our income and our resources. The present is not just an extension of the past where we had full employment, unlimited growth, unlimited everything. We have to learn to live with what we have if we want to survive. That includes holding the lid on spending."

He continues: "There has been an enormous appetite in this country for public service. I think people have to realize that public service isn't cheap. We have problems today that may take up to ten years to solve. For other problems, there may be no solution. But we must try."

The logical next step for an ambitious man—and Governor Brown is ambitious—is the Presidency.

"I'm not a candidate and I plan to stick to the job I'm doing now," he said. "I've only been in office nine months and I find this place hard enough to run." He grinned. "It's questionable whether California is even governable!"

"I think my son could be President," Pat Brown said firmly. "I think I could have been, under other circumstances. It's possible he could do what Kennedy did. He's a greater intellectual, and he's not that wealthy, but he has that mass appeal. Not individual appeal—he's more of an introvert—but mass appeal."

Unfortunately, Jerry does have one problem Kennedy did not: he tends to alienate people. "He's alienated some governors," says Pat Brown, "because he hasn't gone to their conferences." And says Jerry's mother: "Jerry wasn't particularly sensitive as a child. But he was thoughtful, and he still is. For instance, he will not give Christmas presents every year just because everyone else is doing so. When he does give something, it is given with a lot of thought. He won't give something unless it's meaningful!"

The day FAMILY WEEKLY talked with Governor Brown—the first interview he'd given to a weekly magazine, we were told—he was in shirtsleeves, and his lunch was a sandwich sent up from the cafeteria. And he was putting in an 18-hour-day, as usual. Was it true that he works nonstop, seven days a week, and has taken off an average of only one and a half days a month? "I work long hours, but I try to take off on Sunday," he said. "Then I'll go to the beach. Or out on a date." But Gray Davis says Jerry relaxes by working. His No. 1 enjoyment is solving problems.

"He's always kept his private life private," says his father, "but I can tell you he's brought home a lot of girls to meet us. Some of them I really liked—like Natalie Wood. He went with her for about a year after she divorced Bob Wagner. And lately there was Candice Bergen . . ."

"When we were young, our father paraded us before the public. I didn't like it, and I'm sure Jerry didn't either."—Jerry Brown's sister, Kathleen.

Was Jerry seeing a lot of singer Linda Ronstadt? "I've dated Linda," he said, then grinned. "I've also dated other girls . . ."

Any wedding plans for Jerry? "No," he says. "I think the job's breakneck pace is incompatible with marriage. For two people to be together constantly takes a lot of consideration and attention. I don't have the time right now."

Does the Governor have a sense of humor? "Yes, he does," his father said. "But it's intellectual and very subtle. Still, he can laugh uproariously." As for a temper, "He gets annoyed—irritated may be a better word—but he doesn't let go. Usually he just snaps back, or gets sarcastic."

Is there a rift between father and son? "We've always had a close relationship," his father insists. And Tom Quinn, who ran Jerry's campaign, said, "Jerry's warmth toward his father is deep and sincere. Pat didn't play an active role in Jerry's campaign because Jerry didn't want to use his father to win. I'm not sure Pat ever understood just how much his son wanted to do it himself."

Smart Cooking To Beat the Clock

This Seafood Casserole Practically Makes Itself!

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes an easy seafood casserole using fresh frozen North Atlantic cod fillets. "This is one of those easy casserole recipes you'll want to try on your family," says Marilyn. "Allow cod fillets to thaw in refrigerator during the day. When you come home, start the oven and assemble the three-layer casserole and bake. You'll be on your way to a tasty fish dinner in no time at all."

Rudy Muller

Cod 'n' Tater Bake* Braised Celery Wedges*
Hearts of Lettuce Salad Dressing Browned Butter Crescents*
Quick Cranberry-Orange Sherbet*
*Recipe Given Coffee Tea Milk

COD 'N' TATER BAKE

1 pkg. (1 lb.) frozen cod fillets, thawed
1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of shrimp soup, undiluted
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons chopped green onion
1 tablespoon white horseradish
Few drops Tabasco
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 pkg. (1 lb.) frozen potato rounds

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.

2. Arrange fillets in serving-size portions in 2-qt. shallow baking dish.

3. To make sauce, combine soup, sour cream, green onion, horseradish, Tabasco and paprika in small bowl.

5. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Makes 4 servings

What's Smart: Fish, almost a perfect food because its protein is complete protein, makes a nutritious, economical entrée. Lean, white-fleshed North Atlantic Ocean fish contain 18- to 20-percent protein and are 85- to 95-percent digestible. A four-ounce serving of "lean" fish contains fewer than 100 calories. The price of frozen cod fillets, in plentiful supply now, will generally range from $1.25 to $1.30 per pound.

1. When purchasing frozen fish, select undamaged packages which feel solid.

2. Store fish in your freezer in its original vapor-moisture proof wrapping. Keep fish frozen until you plan to use it.

3. Because a home freezer may not keep foods at the ideal temperature – zero – storage should be limited. (Put purchasing date on packages.)

4. The refrigerator is the proper thawing spot for frozen fish (allow 24 hours for a one-pound package). Do not thaw fish at room temperature.

5. If the thawing process must be speeded up, immerse the fish in cold water, or hold it under cold running water. Fish must be wrapped in a waterproof package.

6. Use fish immediately after thawing. Never keep thawed fish longer than 24 hours.

For a helpful free pamphlet on fish, send for: "The Secrets of Serving Delicious Fish." Send a self-addressed, stamped large business envelope to: North Atlantic Seafood Association, Dept. SW, 111 East Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Pardon the intrusion.
We wanted you to notice that the Miracle pound spreads

Miracle Brand Margarine is whipped. Which means more pats per pound. 36 more, to be exact. And that's enough to spread two extra loaves of bread at 18 slices per loaf.

In these times, that's a small miracle in itself. KRAFT

BRAISED CELERY WEDGES

2 stalks celery
1 chicken bouillon cube, crushed
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons vegetable oil or olive oil
1 teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash ground black pepper
1 tablespoon diced pimiento or chopped parsley

1. Cut celery stalks crosswise about 6 inches from the base. (Save leaves for use in soup, stuffings, garnishes, etc.) Cut each stalk lengthwise into 4 wedges.

TRY THIS NEW PIPE FOR 30 DAYS!

..For cigar smokers and cigarette smokers alike a "Carey Pipe" can save hundreds of dollars a year.

..If you are a pipe smoker, a "Carey Pipe" can end forever your constant search for the most enjoyable smoke of your life.

So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941

If you don't agree that it's the best smoke you've ever had, it won't cost you a dime. This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking.

E. A. Carey

Give it 30 days—

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

AARP stands for the American Association of Retired Persons. A non-profit, non-partisan, non-governmental organization that exists to help its over 8 million members take full advantage of being 55 or older.

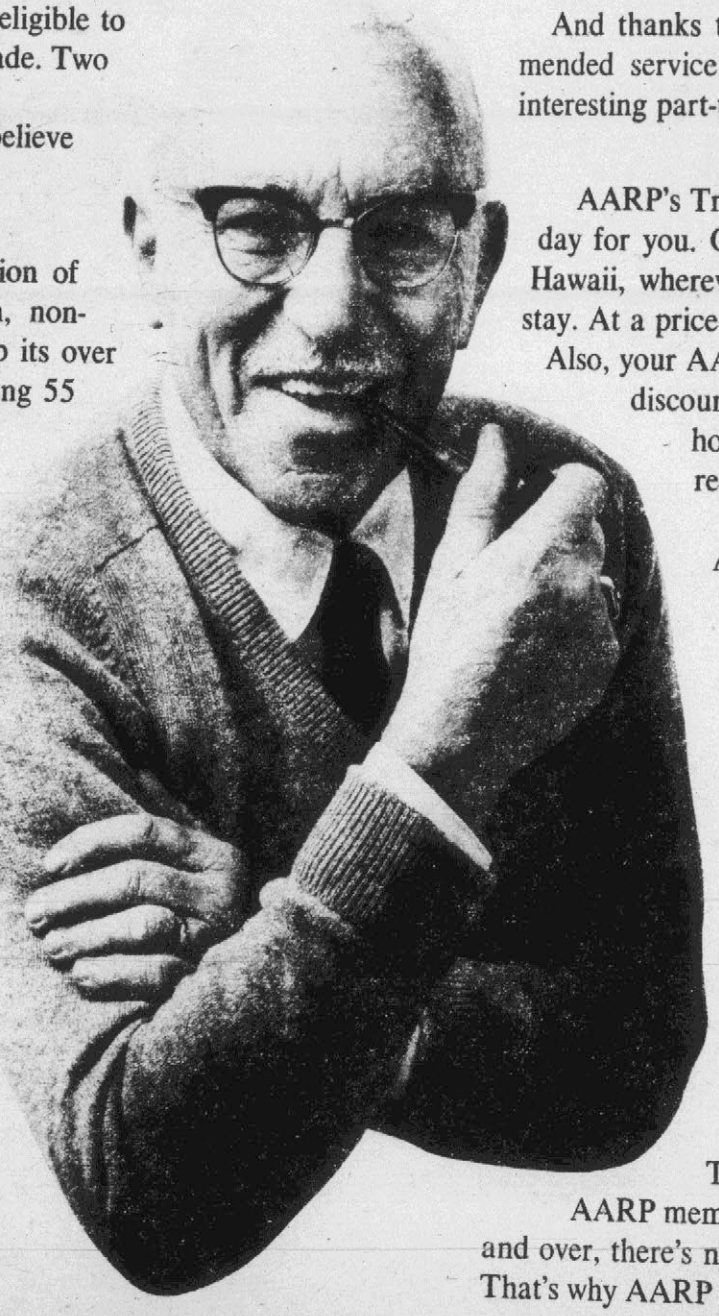
Anybody can belong to AARP. You don't even have to be retired. What you do have to be, is past your 55th birthday.

Then one AARP membership of $2 per year entitles both you and your spouse to all AARP's benefits and privileges.

The Services:

AARP has more than 2250 local chapters around the country. You can use them to meet new friends, to get involved in community activities or to take advantage of a wide range of educational materials on subjects of special importance to older people.

As an AARP member, you'll automatically receive two publications that deal with special interests of people over 55. "Modern Maturity," and the monthly AARP News Bulletin.



Mr. Peter McNulty

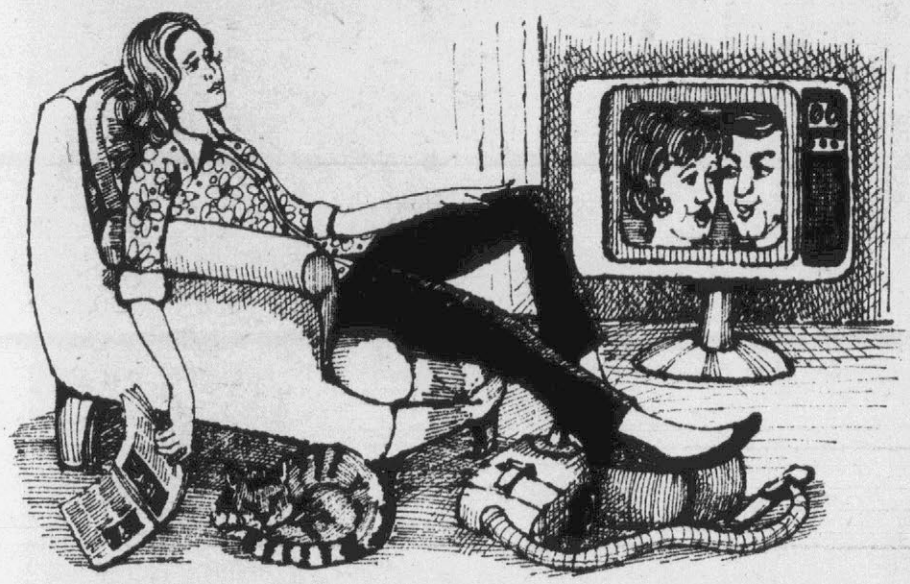
"The Trauma of Eventlessness"

A Psychiatrist's New Look at Housewife Boredom



By Dusty Sklar

"When a person has nothing to look forward to but an uninterrupted continuation of life, she may suffer the same feelings of helplessness as if she were overwhelmed by some external force."

I sometimes get so lonely," a young woman once told me, "that I go out and sit through a PTA meeting just to be with people." If you've ever sat through any organizational business meeting, you know how lonely that is.

It's odd to think of eventlessness as causing anxiety, but Psychiatrist Robert Seidenberg has described the feelings of panic, dread and impending disaster which a young suburban housewife may experience even when the conditions of her life are quite stable and secure. It's apparently the anticipation of more and more "eventlessness," the absence of stimuli, challenge, choices, decision-making, which can threaten one's well-being as much as a physical danger. The "something" that a housewife may dread is that "nothing" is going to happen—and for a long, long time. The future will be only a continuation of the past, and it will be bland, banal and confined.

Dr. Seidenberg describes a patient, a married woman with young children living an apparently well-adjusted life. The young woman's complaint is: "I'm afraid something is going to happen, but I don't know what it is." Dr. Seidenberg soon discovers that the woman's life lacks any sense of challenge or adventure. Ironically, she feels herself unaccountably threatened by some nameless danger. During the course of her psychoanalysis, it becomes clear that she has been caught in a secure trap. Her life is devoid of deprivation, predatory human beings or ferocious animals. Absence of challenge, decision-making, problem-solving would be her destiny.

This very absence of stimuli can have the same effects as an actual physical danger. When a person has nothing to look forward to but an uninterrupted continuation of life, she may suffer the same feelings of helplessness as if she were overwhelmed by some external force. Because she can't name the enemy, she is doomed to accept a passive role with a creeping sense of inferiority.

But why this increased dissatisfaction at a time when the feminist movement has made it possible for more and more women to fulfill themselves outside the home? Why now, of all times, should there be a greater incidence of suicide among the female population than among the male population?

Today, even though the average woman is still a "private person," she is excited and stimulated by the desire for a public life, which is still burdened by social and psychological penalties. It is also burdened by what Matina Horner, former Harvard psychologist and now president of Radcliffe, calls the "fear of success." The will not to succeed increases with a woman's ability. A major reason for this fear may be that success outside the home is still considered unfeminine.

What can a woman who faces the trauma of eventlessness do to extricate

Made to your exact measurements
We have taken home sewing patterns one important and exciting step further. Surefit patterns are drawn by computer to your exact measurements...inch by inch...so you are always guaranteed a perfect fit. All you do is send us your measurements along with your pattern selections and our computer does the rest. Your Surefit pants pattern will be an exact replica of your own figure.

Needs no adjusting
Goodbye to droopy seats, baggy hips and crotch fits that don't. With these Surefit custom-made pants patterns you will get a perfect fit automatically, every time you sew without ever adjusting the pattern.

Reusable see-thru plastic
Surefit pants patterns are drawn for you on durable, see-thru plastic that you can use over and over again. And, because they are transparent, you can match stripes, plaids and prints before you cut.

Guaranteed perfect fit
Order your pants pattern now. When it arrives, pick your fabric, then just cut it out...sew it up...and wear it. It's as easy as that. And you'll be amazed at the fit. In fact, if you're not amazed, tell us. We'll refund your money. No questions asked. Discover for yourself how easy it is to have custom-made pants...when you start with a custom-made pattern.

Here's how to take your measurements
Follow this simple step-by-step chart. You'll need someone to help you with the measuring. Record your measurements (to the nearest ⅛") on the coupon. Before starting, remove outer clothing. Wear the under garments you usually wear. Stand straight and tall. Tie a string snugly around your waist. Tie another string around the fullest part of your body below the waist.

Now you're ready to begin

3 HIP LEVEL Measure distance from waist string to hip string along side of body.

4 WAIST to KNEE Measure along side of body from waist string to point directly in line with middle of knee cap.

5 WAIST to ANKLE Measure from waist string along side of body to ankle bone. (This determines ankle position only: Your correct fashion length will be added to this measurement.)

herself? How can she prevent the possible loss of self?

1. Recognize the dangers. Dr. Seidenberg feels that the anxiety itself is "salutary and self-preservative." His own particular patient withdrew from the role of shopper and hair-dryer captive to become a door-to-door canvasser for a research corporation in a dangerous inner-city neighborhood. "Plagued by anxiety in supermarkets and beauty salons," says Dr. Seidenberg, "she suffered no fear in this 'outside' work, only exhilaration, giving evidence once again that the overriding danger to her existence lay in the 'safety' of the housewife's role."

Sociologist Robert Coles says that what a child needs more than anything else is his parents' "support, concern and help." And yet: "These days, I feel a cultural pressure not to be absorbed in my child," says Ann Roiphe, author of "Up the Sandbox." Young women such as this one are not well served by a society which insists that all of life's prizes are won by those who are successful outside the home. "The new tolerance," says Mrs. Roiphe, "should ultimately respect the lady who wants to make pies, as well as the one who majors in higher mathematics."

And, also on the positive side, Margaret Mead points out that the home still "has areas of freedom that are almost wholly lacking in much American employment."

2. Encourage yourself and others to take the job of child-rearing seriously. It has never been more difficult, nor more denigrated. Love is, unfortunately, not enough in bringing up children well. The job requires all your intelligence and conscious effort, a putting-in-order of your own emotional state.

3. Finally, don't ignore your private dreams. If you can, decide what it is you really want to do in life—and if you can't just go out and do those things now, perhaps there is some way you can work toward them—day by day by day.

Jobmanship

Business Clichés That Could Spell Trouble

Some of the slogans you may hear at work sound more sensible than they really are. Writing in a leading management publication, Fred Fisher, Vice President of National Training and Development Service, points out that comments like "Have you checked the company policy on that? or "Does it square with the organization chart?" can often kill good ideas. You can add to profits or cut costs if you'll stop reacting to new ideas with the above remarks. When you hear your bosses insisting that "If there is one thing we believe in, it's competition," look around and see if they're talking about competition with other companies or internal competition in which every department is busy competing. In cases where your boss has the attitude, "We've got to minimize our risks," realize you're not going to learn very much on this job. A risk-minimizing atmosphere means your boss might expect you to forget aggressiveness and stick to company tradition. The boss's next step may be: "One mistake and you're out." This, Fisher says, can be one of the most dangerous of business clichés. Mistakes are a cost of doing business in an aggressive outfit and should be brought out in the open and worked on. But under the "one mistake and you're out" attitude, people naturally will do anything to hide and disguise their errors. So the business loses and no one learns.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Can You "Track" the Criminal Mind?

True or False?
Children who participate in athletics are less likely to become delinquent. (See number 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who believe society is to blame for a criminal's behavior have a different view of life from people who believe the criminal himself is solely responsible.

2. Children who participate in athletics are less likely to become delinquent.

3. When a person departs from the straight and narrow, his personality-type determines the kind of crime he will most likely commit.

4. There are certain signs in children which are predictive of violent or antisocial tendencies.

5. Nobody knows just why vandals want to destroy things.

6. You can reduce your vulnerability to crime without a revolver under your pillow.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at Yale and at the University of Chicago have found that people tend to be divided into two psychological types: the Externals, who tend to attribute responsibility for their own and other people's acts to external forces outside their control, such as environment, luck or social conditions in general; and the Internals, who tend to assume responsibility for their own acts, believing that whether the individual deserves praise or blame depends largely on his own efforts and personal motivation. Investigations have shown that this is true even in attributing blame for auto accidents.

2. True—according to studies of high school students. It's suggested that this is because athletics "provide greater exposure to *non*delinquent influences, stronger social controls, and that athletics result in less pressure toward rebellion, less boredom and less need to assert masculinity through deviant behavior." Another investigator concludes from his findings that if it were not for interest in interscholastic sports, there would be a marked increase in dropouts and various forms of delinquency.

3. True. Criminals have been found to have particular psychological attitudes that have a great influence on their choice of criminal behavior. This explains why there are specific types who specialize in pocket-picking or robbery with violence or fraud. Such criminals usually find themselves incapable of committing a different kind of crime. Thus the law-abiding citizen may take what consolation he can from the fact that the pickpocket isn't likely to try to sell him some phony oil stocks.

4. True. Studies show that a triad of behavioral symptoms—setting fires, chronic bed-wetting and mistreatment of animals—is indicative of an antisocial personality in the making. If a child shows these signs, the alert parent will recognize them and realize that the child needs special guidance and understanding.

5. False. Psychological studies show that they do it because, to them, it is exhilarating and exciting and provides a means of hitting out at society, which they feel has stacked the cards against them. As one authority who has completed an investigation of the causes for vandalism observes, "Our research indicates that the physical act of smashing, banging and breaking is very pleasurable in itself. For people who feel powerless, such acts of destruction are chosen because they have an effect upon some part of the environment and are more easily accomplished than constructive acts."

6. True. Crime studies at the University of Michigan show that the basic step is learning to avoid being a victim. In many crimes, it is the victim's subtle cooperation with the offender which makes the crime possible. Bureau of Social Science Research specialist Lynn A. Curtis cites a typical example of victim participation in armed and unarmed robbery where the victim offers "temptation-opportunities": "A man flashes a roll of money at a bar or restaurant and then makes his way homeward on a dark street at night." It's further noted that the victims in an increasingly large number of thefts and burglaries cooperate with the criminal almost to the extent that an accomplice would—by leaving the keys in their cars, or leaving their houses unlocked.

THE RICE DIET

IT'S A HEALING DIET AS WELL AS A REDUCING DIET

The famous Rice Diet wasn't even designed for taking off fat. It was created as a healing diet. And heal it does.

IT CONTAINS NO CHOLESTEROL

Medical Research has acclaimed a no-fat diet as being of paramount aid in the treatment of certain heart and kidney conditions. Scientists also advocate this program as the basis of a general reducing diet.

The health value of this diet is founded upon the fact that it contains no cholesterol – which many doctors believe dangerous to the heart, kidneys, and blood circulation.

THE DIET REVERSES MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY HEART DISORDERS

Twenty-five years ago our medical establishment was extremely skeptical of the startling discovery that the Rice Diet reverses much of the damage done by blood vessel, eye, heart, and kidney disorders. Without any medication other than a prolonged diet largely composed of unsalted rice, some enlarged hearts grew smaller, blood pressures and blood sugar dropped.

CLAIMS FOR THE RICE DIET VERIFIED BY TEAMS OF DOCTORS

Teams of doctors from leading institutions around the world investigated the diet. They thought that they would scoff at the claims, but they applauded instead. "The question now," concluded a report in one eminent medical journal, "is not 'Does the diet work?' The question is 'How does it work?'"

FAMOUS PEOPLE HAVE ENDORSED THE RESULTS OF RICE DIETING

"I truly would have died if I hadn't gone" on a program of rice dieting, says the wife of a former state governor. "I was seriously ill and weighed 230 pounds." She dropped 80 pounds in 19 weeks, and her blood sugar plummeted as well. (Since the diet is largely carbohydrate, this is one of the mysteries of it.)

A famous singer and movie actor, on the other hand, got hooked on the taste of the diet and lost 80 pounds, too. He still follows the diet every day. Before the Rice Diet, he had been on a high-protein diet for ten years or so: "I used to have to put down a pound of steak before a recording," he says. "Now, I can eat a little rice and sing like a bird."

The complete program brings you essential information and dozens of delicious menus and easy recipes for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

THE OTHER BARDOT
Life at the center

When your older sister is Brigitte Bardot, it's no easy task keeping up. Although Mijanou Bardot can't claim a universal audience, her oversized cushions and 40-foot-long python pillows have become the rage with international celebrities, from film director Roman Polanski to artist Salvador Dali. Said Dali of her creations: "Mijanou's works are far from inexpensive, but when you sit in one of those enormous cushions, it's like sitting in the center of the world, which coming from a surrealist is an unparalleled recommendation. I also have a dozen of her wonderful snakes adorning my coffin which is kept ready for me at all times." Country fresh-looking, with freckles and red hair, Mijanou bears little physical resemblance to her celebrated sister. But a woman who can capture the imagination of a Polanski or a Dali can be nothing short of fascinating.

Hal Linden, star of TV's "Barney Miller," on the connection between cops and TV: "I've always had a tremendous respect for cops, perhaps because I grew up in a rough neighborhood in New York and I wasn't a tough kid. I'm glad to say that I think they're more aware and broad-minded than they were 20 years ago. I recently went out with an anti-crime unit to see what their work was really like. What I learned from that experience was the overriding element of fear that cops have to live with every day if they want to survive." Can crime be curtailed? Linden says: "I think we must stop feeding our kids a diet of "soft white-bread" TV. All those mediocre situation comedies do is promote false ideas. I'm not saying that realism is the answer, but truth certainly is. I honestly believe that antisocial behavior is directly related to the pap Americans grow up on."

Hal Linden

DR. SARAH SHORT
Black lights and music

Are "cleaning your plate" and drinking milk really so important for kids? Flamboyant nutritionist Sarah Short says no. Dr. Short, of Syracuse University, says: "The myth that the fat baby is a happy one is false. Generally, all that happens is that they grow up to be fat, unhappy adults. Just as we think of the healthy adult as slim and trim, we should think of our young the same way. As far as feeding cow's milk to babies is concerned, it is difficult for the young baby to digest the tough protein curd which is found in cow's milk. Breast feeding is the optimum solution, although most infant formulas are just as good. I'd also like to correct the myth that cow's milk is the perfect food to give our children since it is practically devoid of the large amounts of iron and Vitamin C which are essential for both children and adults." Dr. Short, who feels that nutrition has been a badly neglected subject ("it's not even taught in most medical schools"), decided on a new approach. "I paint formulas on my legs in fluorescent colors and run as many as 11 slide projectors simultaneously along with black lights and music. This is part of a teaching experience to attract the students' attention. As a result, their grades have improved dramatically and my classes are overcrowded." Dr. Short, mother of three, acts as a consultant to Mead Johnson and Co. Her latest book is "Innovative Teaching of Nutrition."

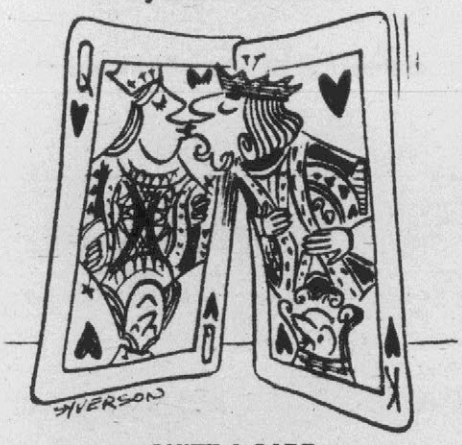
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



QUITE A CARD

When we first wed, my wife and I
Enjoyed a bridge club. Don't ask why.
She still plays bridge, I never do.
Bridge as a waste of time, I view.
I once held hands that all admired
And bid as high as I desired.
But cardboard hands are not for me,
My wife I think would now agree.
I tell her (you might try this, sirs)
The best hands I have held were hers.

If your mind should go blank, don't forget to turn off the sound.
—Dorothea Kent

The bride of a struggling young writer was the hit of the evening at a party.

"She's charming!" the hostess said enthusiastically to the husband. "And her dress is a poem!"

"Not a poem," answered the young writer gloomily. "Sixteen poems, five short stories, nine essays and three advertising brochures."
—Thomas LaMance

—Conrad Fiorello

A mountaineer, seeing his first motorcycle on the road, raised his rifle and shot away. "Did you get that varmint?" his wife asked.

"Hit it, but didn't kill it," he said. "I can still hear it growling—but I shore made it turn that poor man loose!"
—Lucille S. Harper

Last week we had a party for Ruth, who was retiring after five years as a cook in our nursery school. I explained to the children that she would be leaving us. The whole idea amazed one little boy, who asked, "Is Ruth going out of business?"

Prince® Valiant

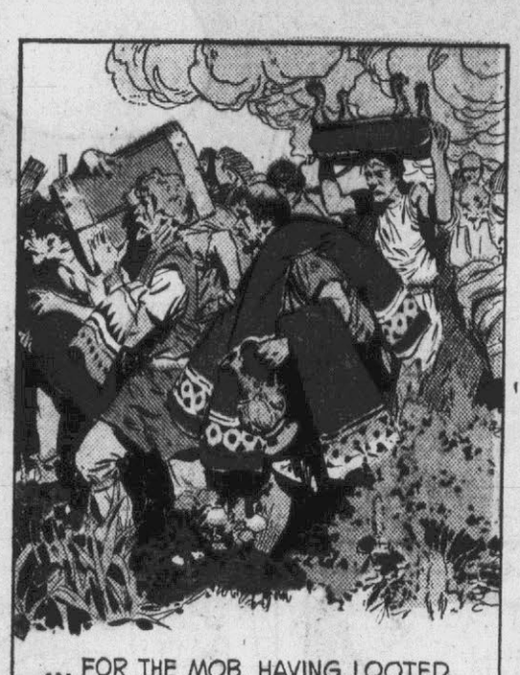
by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT STANDS ON THE WALL, HIS FAMILY SAFELY BELOW, BUT THE TREE DOWN WHICH THEY HAD ESCAPED IS NOW OUT OF HIS REACH.

THEN SOMETHING HAPPENS THAT CALLS FOR DESPERATE MEASURES. HE TAKES OFF HIS CUMBERSOME ARMOR AND TOSSES IT OVER THE WALL...



... FOR THE MOB, HAVING LOOTED THE DUKE'S MANSION, IS LOOKING FOR A WAY TO ESCAPE FROM THE GARDEN. FOR THE MAIN GATE IS BLOCKED BY THE FLAMES OF THE BURNING CITY.

VAL IS, SO USED TO THE WEIGHT OF HIS ARMOR THAT HE MISJUDGES THE DISTANCE OF HIS LEAP AND LANDS NEAR THE TOP OF THE EVERGREEN...
