Perhaps 25 Tons Of Marijuana Seized In Bayboro; 9 Arrested

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP)—A fishing trawler with perhaps 25 tons of high grade Colombian marijuana aboard has been moved from Bayboro to Wilmington where the contraband will be unloaded and weighed, officials said this morning.

Nine persons were arrested by state and federal agents and a fish processing plant owned by one of the suspects was placed in custody by federal officials. Authorities were searching for three or four more persons in the case.

State officials said part of the marijuana was unloaded after the raid early Sunday, but it was reloaded onto the 105-foot trawler and taken to Wilmington where there are better dock facilities.

State officials said the case could be prosecuted in state or federal court, but it will probably go to federal court because the federal laws involved are more serious.

The marijuana was found aboard the Lillian B., which was docked at the processing plant, during a 1 a.m. raid. A 25-foot cabin cruiser, two vans, a mobile home and two cars also were confiscated.

"We can't get an accurate count because it's packed from the bilge to the top of the hold and from the bow to the stern," said State Bureau of Investigation Director Haywood Starling.

"Our best estimate is that 25 tons are involved," said a state Justice Department spokesman Sunday night, adding that the total weight could go higher.

Officials said the two vans were filled with marijuana, and some 500-700 pounds was found in a 60-foot mobile home.

Both Starling, who said the quantity of marijuana "boggles the mind," and state Atty. General Rufus Edmisten called the contraband the largest seizure of the illegal weed in North Carolina history.

A spokesman for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in Washington, D.C., said it was "one of the biggest (hauls) on the East Coast."

Pamlico County Sheriff Leland V. Brinson identified the owner of the trawler and the processing plant as Ernest Mayo, 52, of Bayboro. Also arrested was his son, Gary Steven Mayo, 25.

U.S. Magistrate George McCotter said the nine initially were charged with conspiracy to violate federal customs laws and possession of a controlled substance for distribution.

The others were identified as George Poppas, 25, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; John David Steele Jr., 25 of Hollywood, Fla.; and his father, John David Steele, 51, of Miami; Graydon Lupton, 35, of an undetermined address in Florida; Daniel Edward Engle, 26, also of Hollywood; Danny Isenhardt, 26, of Bayboro; and Michael Rowe, 30, also of Bayboro.

McCotter said other charges are likely to follow, and state authorities have not ruled out the possibility of indicting some of the men on charges of violating state drug laws.

He said bonds ranged from $15,000 to $75,000. McCotter also said he had ordered the men to appear for a probable cause hearing Thursday at his offices in New Bern, about 15 miles east of Bayboro.

Sheriff Brinson said an informant supplied his officers with details of the smuggling operation, but he declined to say how long the trawler and the plant had been under investigation before the Sunday morning raid.

Edmisten said the marijuana might have a street value of up to $25 million.

Starling, who personally led a force of SBI 15 agents along with 15 other federal agents, highway patrolmen and members of the Pamlico County Sheriff's Department, said the raid is further evidence that drug smugglers are using North Carolina as one of their prime receiving points.

The SBI director said that officers had been warned that the unloading operation would be supervised by armed guards, so they quietly surprised the men during the unloading.

Officials were unable to say what the eventual destination of the cargo was, but speculated that such a large shipment probably was headed for other states.

Starling said authorities are not confronted with the problem of what to do with the more than 1,000 bales of marijuana, which weigh about 55 pounds each. He said agents will go through every bale in case other drugs, such as cocaine, are contained inside, and the haul probably will be burned, according to state Justice Department spokesman Jack Satterfield. "But we're going to have to check with the Environmental Protection Agency before we can burn that much."

African Leaders Evenly Divided On Angola Issue

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The African summit meeting on Angola ends today, but the leaders were evenly divided over whether to support the Soviet-backed Popular

Movement (MPLA) in the civil war or to call for a coalition government of the three warring factions. The African leaders agreed that South Africa and other foreign powers should cease their intervention in the fighting. But supporters of the MPLA said Soviet aid to the Marxist faction, which began more than 10 years ago when it was fighting Portuguese rule, could not be compared with the recent help given by South Africa and the United States to the National Front (FNLA) and the National Union (UNITA).

Gen. Murtala Muhammed of Nigeria charged that South Africa and the United States sought to restore white supremacy in Angola because of its oil and mineral wealth.

As debate was adjourned after midnight Sunday, the assistant secretary-general of the Organization of African Unity, Peter Onu, told reporters the OAU members were divided 22 to 22 on two resolutions, with Ethiopia and Uganda not yet taking sides.

One resolution called for the OAU to recognize the MPLA as the legitimate government of Angola. The other called for the OAU to continue the policy of neutrality it adopted last year and urged the three Angolan factions to form a coalition government.

Diplomats said both resolutions called for an end to foreign intervention and condemned South Africa's white-minority regime for sending troops into Angola to help the FNLA and UNITA.

Observers said there appeared to be no prospect of ending the division over Africa's most divisive political crisis in recent years. But they cautioned against predictions that the Angolan dispute might rip the organization apart. Consensus has emerged before at OAU meetings that appeared near collapse, they said, and most African leaders are determined to preserve the OAU.

Holden Roberto, the leader of the FNLA, complained to newsmen that the Soviets supplied the MPLA more and better arms than the United States sent his forces via Zaire and Zambia. Jonas Savimbi of UNITA said the U.S. Senate vote to cut off aid was an abdication of American responsibility.

"What will happen in Angola will affect all free countries," said Savimbi. "Americans should not look to Angola with the frustration of Vietnam."

Both Roberto and Savimbi were excluded from the OAU debate. Agostinho Neto of the MPLA did not come to Addis Ababa.

Nigeria's hostility to U.S. involvement in Angola was demonstrated again Sunday by some 2,000 students, university personnel and others in Lagos, the Nigerian capital. They marched four miles to the U.S. Embassy, plastered slogans on the windows and threw sticks and stones at the building. No body was reported hurt.

Similar attacks were made last week on the U.S. consulate in Kaduna, northern Nigeria, and the U.S. Information Service in Ibadan, in western Nigeria.

Heavy Fines Facing Teacher Union In Pittsburgh Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Public school teachers, refusing to obey a court order to end their seven-week old strike, face a $25,000 initial fine and $10,000 a day if they continue their walk-out.

Allegheny County Judge Donald Ziegler, who found the teachers in contempt last Thursday of his Jan. 3 order that they return to the classroom, scheduled a hearing for today to levy the initial $25,000 contempt fine.

The school board ordered the strikers to report to work today.

However, the 4,400 union members rejected what the board called its final offer on Saturday, and Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers President Albert Fondy repeated that the strike will continue until a contract is ratified.

The teachers' union has said it has no money to pay the fines. But the strike has received the support of the Allegheny County Labor Council and the United Steelworkers, which have offered manpower for picket lines and money for the fines.

The board said its latest proposal on Saturday would cost the city $2.2 million this year and another $5.9 million next year. No further details of the proposal were released.

Teachers are presently paid between $8,700 and $16,700 annually. At last report, they were asking for increases ranging from $2,700 to $6,000 by the end of 1977.

Busload Of Kids Wrecks

BEECHER, Ill. (AP) — A school van carrying special education pupils slid down an embankment from an icy road and overturned north of Beecher today. Early reports on the number of injured children ranged from 12 to 20.

A spokesman at St. James Hospital in Chicago Heights said the emergency room was treating about 20 children. "It looks bad. Some of the injuries are really serious," the spokesman said.

The Christensen Bus Service said the vehicle was a 12-passenger van, but a spokesman said he did not know how many persons were aboard.

The bus, driven by Richard Baker of Frankfort, slid on ice on a rural road north of Beecher, rolled down an embankment and overturned, a Will County sheriff's deputy said.

Beecher is located about 30 miles south of Chicago.

It was not known what school the special education students attend.

Spanish Police Attack

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Riot police routed workers with tear gas and clubs in the center of the capital and stormed back onto Madrid University campus today to break up demonstrations as Spain's worst labor strife in years idled thousands for the third straight day.

No injuries or arrests were immediately reported.

Police swooped down on the workers as they demonstrated for higher pay.

They also poured onto the Madrid University campus in buses, jeeps and on horseback after 500 law and philosophy students began marching across the campus, blocking traffic and shouting "Down With Dictatorship!"

The protesters urged student-worker unity for a general strike and called on King Juan Carlos "to listen bemf, (o)the people are in struggle."

Police earlier closed a suburban subway line after a bomb ripped rails before daily service began. Subway officials said six other bombs were found.

Police said nobody was hurt by the explosion. But a subway spokesman said damage was extensive. He said he did not know when service would be restored.

The 3,800 subway workers struck for five days last week for higher pay. The workers, who make an average of $3,120 a year, demanded $625 more a year; the government agreed to $500.

Violations By CB Operators Cited By FCC

Agents of the Federal Communications Commission conducted a citizen's bank radio enforcement strike in the Greenville area this past weekend, the FCC announced. Using specially equipped mobile direction-finding vehicle, FCC personnel were able to pinpoint more than 50 CB operators who were in violation of FCC regulations, the Commission reported.

The violations ranged from procedural ones, such as failure to identify by assigned call letters, to technical violations such as off-frequency and over-power operation and use of over-height antennas.

The FCC said that licensed operators who were in violation are subject to fines of up to $500, while unlicensed operation carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and one-year imprisonment. Fines for licensed operators will be issued within seven to 10 days directly from the Norfolk district office, according to the FCC, while unlicensed cases will be referred to the FCC's Washington, D.C. office for possible prosecution by the Justice Department.

The Commission reported that in an effort to avoid detection by the FCC agents, many CB operators resort to the use of nicknames or "handles" instead of using their assigned call letters. Some of the "handles" used in the Greenville area are "preacher man," "hudcap," "nut cracker," and "cue stick."

On Sunday the FCC agents visited several of the area's violators to inspect their radio equipment.

GYM USE
I am a Rose High student. Our PE class is no longer allowed to use the Elm Street gym because 10 ladies are exercising there. They could do this upstairs. There are about 30 of us that need the gym floor. Also we can never use the Elm Street tennis courts any more. I think use should be based on the number involved. We school kids are Greenville citizens, too, and our parents pay taxes. M.R.

Boyd Lee, City Recreation Department Director, said the City of Greenville and the Greenville City Schools have a reciprocal agreement that the school may use city facilities at any time they are not being used by the city and vice versa, but that each must have its own activities take precedence. "It's unfortunate," Lee said, "because we know Rose doesn't have the facilities it needs, but we have to think of the general public first. It's going to get worse, as we plan more and more Recreation Department-sponsored activities. Tennis is a special problem, because Rose doesn't have any courts at all, and yet we feel that with the short supply of courts throughout Greenville, we must keep ours for the general public as much as possible."

JACKETS SAID WARM
I have seen some of our police officers shivering in the cold. Apparently all they are issued are those skimpy little jackets. This city seems to spend enormous amounts on various projects, so how about providing some funds to protect our officers from cold? R.G.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon says he would like to invite you to come in and try on one of those police jackets. "They may look skimpy," he said, "but they're very warm, with zip-in linings, and the men like them. We used to provide overcoats, but the men just wouldn't wear them because they said they were too bulky. This is what they say they prefer," he said.

Could Smell Gas Before Nebraska Hotel Blew Up

By JOHN M. WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — The manager of the Pathfinder Hotel says he "smelled gas all over the place" and tried to call the gas company several times in the hour preceding the weekend explosion that blew the hotel off its foundations and left as many as 20 persons dead.

Manager Jim Rhodus said that after getting a recorded message, he called the local emergency number to get help. Some time after three crew members of the gas company arrived Saturday, a blast ripped through the basement of the six-story building, collapsing the first floor into the basement.

Twelve bodies had been recovered by late Sunday, but the death toll was expected to reach about 20 when all the missing were found. Aided by two cranes and several payloaders, firemen dug through mounds of concrete, brick and wood today, searching for more bodies. Officials say the cause of the blast has not been determined, but an investigation is being conducted by the state fire marshal's office. A final determination is not expected for several weeks.

One of the missing is Bill Van Meter, 56, one of the three Nebraska Natural Gas Co. employees who were in the hotel's basement investigating the report of a gas leak when the explosion occurred. The bodies of the other two gas company employees, Carl Richard Strong, 44, and James Walline, 47, were found Saturday night in the basement section near what was the hotel's heating plant.

Police Chief Fred Whitt said there was no hope of finding anyone alive in the rubble. Dodge County Coroner F.A. Gossett III said between six and nine bodies may still be buried in the debris but an accurate count was impossible because of the transient nature of the hotel guests.

Among the seven women and five men confirmed dead by Sunday were Kit Yeefu Chan, 25, of Lincoln, a part-time worker in the hotel pharmacy and her husband, Chi Cheung Chan. Chan, a graduate student at the University of Nebraska, drove his wife to work and apparently walked into the drug store with her.

A total of 11 bodies were recovered Saturday, four from the upper floors, seven from the caved-in basement area near where officials believe the blast was ignited.

The 12th victim, Louis Hruska, a barber who operated a shop in the hotel, was found in the basement late Sunday afternoon.

More than 40 persons were treated for injuries at the Memorial Hospital of Dodge County. Most were later released, but hospital officials said there were a number of very serious injuries.

The hotel was a local landmark and was the largest hotel in this agriculturally oriented community of about 23,000 persons about 30 miles from Omaha. In recent years, many of its rooms had been remodeled into apartments.

Sunday Saw 2 Collisions

An estimated $1,350 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers made no charges following investigation of a 5:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Line Avenue and Farmville Boulevard which involved cars driven by Adrian E. Brown Sr. of 1732 Beaumont Rd. and Julius Lee Wright of Route 4, Greenville.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $400 to the Brown car and $450 to the Wright auto.

William Nezar Ippock of Route 2, Vanceboro was charged with careless and reckless driving and having unsafe tires following investigation of a 4:05 a.m. mishap.

Police reported the Ippock car went out of control and ran into a roadside ditch on Charles Street, 100 feet South of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing an estimated $500 damage to his car.

Treasurer For Hyde Campaign

RALEIGH (AP)—Former state Revenue Commissioner Andrew Jones was named Monday to be campaign treasurer for state Rep. Herbert Hyde's bid for Democratic lieutenant governor nomination.

Jones is a native of Macon County and has also served as an assistant state attorney general and budget officer in the Revenue Department. He has a law degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Fire Damage To Dwelling

Greenville firemen were called to 505B East Second St. last night when a fire erupted in the dwelling.

Fire officers reported the blaze started near a heater and caused heavy damage to one room and medium damage to the kitchen and another room. The fire was reported at 7:40 p.m.

Sanford Is Hospitalized After Chest Pains During Campaign

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford spent a comfortable overnight stay for observation, he said. He was hospitalized at 7:42 p.m.

When asked if Sanford's heart was involved, Ethridge said "I don't think so."

Asked if there were any indication Sanford would pull out of the presidential race, Ethridge said, "I don't think so. No."

He laughed and said, "It's an indication he didn't get any lunch and probably had too many cups of coffee today."

Ethridge said all of today's campaign appearances in New Hampshire were canceled and his staff was "holding" the remainder of the New Hampshire schedule through Thursday.

In Durham, N.C., Sanford's wife said she had been told her husband "is doing all right." She said she understood Sanford had been given an electrocardiogram "and that was normal; so I'm hoping it's nothing serious."

Sanford was at the home of Dick Hogarty, a political science professor, when he suffered the pain. Hogarty said that Sanford entered the house, shook hands with about 30 persons and then asked his host to accompany him to the lavatory.

Hogarty said Sanford asked him to call a doctor and said he felt chest pain under his right shoulder and his fingers were numb at the tips.

He said Sanford walked unassisted to his car before the short drive to the hospital.

Sanford, a native of Laurinburg, was named president of Duke Dec. 13, 1969. He served as governor from 1961 to 1965, and has been active in state and national politics for several years.

He made an unsuccessful bid for the presidency in 1972 and lost in his home state presidential primary to Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who is expected to mount another stiff challenge against Sanford in the March presidential primary.

Sanford, a graduate of the University of North Carolina, has a reputation of being an "education governor," and during his administration he successfully guided an unpopular bill to levy a state sales tax on food through the legislature to finance his education plans.

Klansman Banished As Alleged Informer

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — A founder of the Confederate Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was banished forever from the North Carolina Knights of the KKK on the basis of reports that he was a paid informer for the FBI.

George Dorsett insisted he cannot be banished because he was made a life member of the North Carolina group four years ago. The Greensboro housepainter denied any FBI connections but said Sunday he accepted his banishment.

"I don't have any hard feelings," he said. "They're still good boys. We'll still work together."

In December, the Senate intelligence committee reported that Dorsett had informed the FBI on Klan activities in 1967. That same year Dorsett formed a new organization, the Confederate Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

The Grand Dragon of the North Carolina Klan, Virgil Griffin, said Dorsett's banishment was based on newspaper reports of Dorsett's alleged connection with the FBI.

"He didn't have any evidence to prove he wasn't guilty," Griffin said.

Ed Dawson, who prosecuted Dorsett's case before a Klan tribunal, said the North Carolina Klan never saw the official government documents telling of Dorsett's involvement with the FBI. The case was "based on newspaper accounts and other things," he said.

Dawson said some "other things" were:

—Failure of Dorsett to serve time in jail after he was subpoenaed along with other Klan leaders in the 1960s. The leaders included Robert Jones and Robert Shelton, who received jail terms.

—The arrest of 10 Klan leaders in Greensboro in 1960. Dorsett was there but was not arrested, said Dawson.

Dorsett's banishment was by a 9 to 1 vote.

Eye Selective Service System In Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the military draft inactive for almost three years, the Selective Service System may emerge as a target of federal budget trimmers looking for places to cut costs.

The draft ended in 1973. Since last March 29, 18-year-olds have not been required to register on their birthday and the machinery was being developed for a mass registration on one or two days a year for all men who turn 18 that year. However, this plan probably will be called off this year because of the budget crunch, according to informed sources.

In past years, the date of the annual lottery which decides the order that men would be called up if necessary, has been announced by early January. But there are no signs of it happening this year.

Furthermore, President Ford has issued no proclamation setting a date for the once-a-year registration system for all men who turned 18 in that year. Nor is there any indication Ford will set such a plan in motion by designating the date.

If the lottery and registration are not held this year, it would be the first year since the two-year lapse of the draft law in 1947-1948 that 18-year-olds were not processed in any fashion.

Asked about this situation, Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone noted that future plans are up to Ford, and he declined to speculate on what the President's decision might be.

The service had a $37.5 million budget this year while planning for a standby draft and administering the jobs programs that were part of Ford's clemency program. The Selective Service maintains 626 offices and a staff of 2,000.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee that has jurisdiction over the Selective Service said the agency should be abolished.

Calling the Selective Service System the biggest boondoggle in government, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said in a statement today that keeping the agency in business after the draft has been abolished cannot be justified.

"The new budget should contain no more money for Selective Service than it will cost to kill the agency this year," said Proxmire, who has been campaigning for three years to abolish the agency.

Portrait Painter Uses Surprise Fantasy Sets

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ouida George's paintings, with the added fantasy that sets them apart from other art, are likely to be a happy surprise to the people who have sat for them. They are often delivered on some special day — birthday, Christmas, an anniversary, because they were commissioned as gifts.

For example, a painting of a woman sitting in a four-legged fantasy bathtub may show her with a long-stemmed rose in her mouth. Or perhaps her Labrador retriever sitting at the tub will have a rose in his mouth. Or it might be that the rose has spiraled from under the tub and, with two birds perched on top, curls its way over the tub.

The bathtub paintings are particularly popular with young matrons who like to hang them in their powder rooms, Ouida said. The women aren't sketched in the tubs and that is where the surprise sets in — they are never quite sure what kind of tub Ouida's imaginative brush stroke will produce.

Shy, gentle and soft-spoken Ouida began her art career 25 years ago with the pen and ink fantasy drawings that are always a big hit when shown in galleries in Dallas, Santa Fe, Wilmington, Washington, Nantucket or wherever. Her first show in 1959 was at Palm Beach, where she now shows at James Barker's Gallery.

Her fantasy dry brush and pen and ink drawings take unusual twists. At one show one drawing included a jolly octopus in a jockey cap driving a fantasy car along a road lined with flower-like sparklers as a mermaid wearing a big beribboned hat tags along on spare tires.

It is this early fantasy technique that has worked its way into Ouida's paintings. Her little girl paintings have special grandma appeal and many commissions ask that a favorite grandchild be pictured in one of the delightful fantasy hats that Ouida dreams up. The child is likely to be seated on a wicker settee or a fantasy chair, and almost always there will be a ribbon on her dress or hat or unfurling over the settee or trailing on a floor in the painting, which is "basically a post-impressionist brush stroke," Ouida insists.

"The ribbon is kind of my trademark. For little boys there is usually a rope. I also like animals in paintings — sometimes my own English spaniels are in a scene or there might be a fantasy poodle or wire haired terrier. I like wicker, too." The Victorian settee she uses is one she and her husband, artist Harold Allen George, long have had in their Edwardian house in Florida.

Her portraits are never stiff and formal. They all have interesting backgrounds. Youngsters may be painted on boats or sitting in a field of daisies or on the Victorian settee; they never just stare out from a blank background.

Although children may choose their own poses and clothes, if Ouida doesn't like background or color she changes it. She doesn't like dark colors on children and she likes boys to look casual, not combed and brushed.

When she goes to a house to paint, she usually arrives the day before because "the longer you spend with the child, the more you see," although her first impressions "have the best impact," she contends. She'll paint five children in one painting or she might have two children, a cat and a couple of dogs.

Her earliest paintings were fantasy children that were considered captivating. One of 10 she did on the beach in Brighton, England, is a whimsical clam digger in jeans wearing a huge hat in the shape of butterfly wings. It could have been sold many times, but she wants to keep it.

Ouida usually makes a pastel sketch of the subjects before she goes on to the painting, and she works at night, perhaps painting until 2 o'clock in the morning.

"An artist is not just someone who draws or paints well. Just being good is not being an artist. You must devote time to art and do something special, one reason I don't believe artists should have a family. Emotion would go to children rather than to the art. I don't really think women artists should marry, though I luckily married an artist which doesn't stymie my artistry," she explained.

Well Meaning Food Pushers Need Reminding

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see in your column an item about hostesses who are always pushing food on their guests. Thanks for saying "an ideal hostess never comments on how little a guest is eating."

I have always been a very small eater. When my hostess would call attention to how little I was eating (or worse yet, loudly announce how "hard" she had worked preparing the meal and how "hurt" she was that I didn't "like" it), I'd proceed to stuff myself.

Then I would go home and be physically sick!

Finally, I decided that rather than subject myself to such needless torture, I would simply decline invitations from people who tried to make me feel guilty for not eating more than my stomach could comfortably hold.

EATS LIKE A BIRD

DEAR EATS: I'll print your letter for all those well-meaning food-pushers who need reminding.

DEAR ABBY: This is to thank you for your Thanksgiving Day column. It gave me the strength to make it through another day.

I am in the Army, stationed in South Korea, and I find it hard to be thankful for anything while I am unwillingly separated from my dear wife and two children.

I am under constant pressure from my buddies to go out with the local "girls," and I'm criticized because I won't. I am in a race with myself to see if I end up in a hospital from too much alcohol or from a nervous breakdown.

I volunteered to work today to keep my mind off the fact that it's a holiday. After reading DEAR ABBY today, you make me realize that as homesick and blue as I am, lots of people have it worse. Thank you.

THANKSGIVING IN KOREA

DEAR THANKSGIVING: Hang in there. Your letter made my day. If you'll permit me a little unsolicited advice: Stay away from the bottle. One drink is too many and a hundred isn't enough. Write home every day, keep busy, stay out of trouble, and, yes, pray. And before you know it, you'll be home with your family. God love you.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the people downstairs whose sleep was frequently disrupted by the noisy mattress acrobatics of the couple upstairs calls to mind my husband's famous faux pas:

We moved into an apartment and had the same problem with the Smiths, whose bedroom was directly over ours. The first time my husband ran into Mr. Smith, he told him with a knowing wink that their noisy nocturnal lovemaking had been interfering with our sleep.

My husband received an icy "thank you."

We later learned that Mr. Smith worked nights.

Polish Soup Is One-Dish Meal

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
My sole visit to Poland was in early 1945 when a frightened German guard force trying to herd several hundred American war prisoners out of the path of oncoming Soviet armies had the poor judgment to march us straight into a Russian tank trap.

Taking advantage of the ensuing shootout to liberate ourselves, we decided to put as much distance as possible between ourselves and both the Germans and Russians. So we slipped across the border into Poland or what was left of it after six years of war.

Naturally the Polish cuisine was not at its best in 1945, but the hospitable Poles put us up in their homes and treated us to some surprisingly fine meals considering the food shortage plaguing most of Europe at that time.

My own host, an elderly professor who spoke fluent English, not only did the cooking in his home but gave me an interesting rundown on the history of Polish cookery.

It is a cuisine borrowed from many nations and blended into something with a character of its own. Like most European monarchies, Poland's royal and noble houses often made foreign marriage alliances and acquired the culinary secrets of other lands when an imported bride or groom arrived complete with chef.

Polish merchants returning from the Orient not only brought a dazzling array of spices but such delicacies as smoked fish, eggplant and Chinese tea.

One of the mainstays of the Polish kitchen, even in wartime, has been cabbage and my host treated us to cabbage soup enriched with marrow bone and some dried mushrooms he had hidden in the cellar. When I had finished a steaming bowl I could believe that for many Poles cabbage soup is a one-dish meal.

Here is a recipe for cabbage soup with some refinements my host did not have on hand in 1945.

- Associated Press Food Writer
- 1 ham bone (about 1 pound) cracked
 - 3 dried mushrooms simmered till tender
 - 1/2 pound fresh or frozen diced celery, carrots and potatoes
 - 3 cups cabbage, coarsely chopped
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 1 tablespoon caraway seeds
 - 1/2 medium onion, minced
 - 4 tablespoons all purpose flour
 - 3 tablespoons bacon fat
 - 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 4 ounces white wine, dry
 - Salt and pepper to taste

Combine ham bone, mushrooms together with liquid in which they were cooked, vegetables and cabbage, chopped onion and caraway seeds. Add 8 cups water, Worcestershire sauce and wine and simmer 1 hour. Brown minced onion and flour in bacon fat adding a little soup liquid, stirring constantly. Thicken soup with mixture. Remove soup and adjust seasoning. Good with chilled white wine. Serves 4-6.

WOTM Training Session Held Here On Sunday

Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, were hostesses for the Winter Executive Committee training session held Sunday afternoon at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Ten WOTM chapters, including one from South Carolina, were represented by 46 Women of the Moose chapter officers. The meeting here was one of four being held throughout North Carolina.

Miss Ada Jones, past Deputy Grand Regent for North and South Carolina and a member of the Greenville Chapter, presided at the session which featured the latest information on chapter procedures and new procedures and techniques from WOTM Headquarters at Mooseheart, Ind.

Chapters sending officers to the session here were: Elizabeth City; Havelock; Newport; Washington; Wilson;

Jacksonville; New Bern; Jones County; and Caycee, S.C.

Greenville officers participating were: Wilma Turner, senior regent; Mark Knapp, junior regent; Evelyn Cottam, chaplain; Mary Warren, treasurer, and Peggy Jameson, junior graduate regent.

Following the training conference, refreshments were served by members of the Greenville Chapter.

New Pastor Introduced To Club Members

Mrs. Roy Thompson, president of the Saint Peter's Woman's Club, introduced Father J. Paul Byron, new pastor of Saint Peter's Church, to the members at the start of the meeting Wednesday evening in the school building.

Reports were given by the various committees on their progress regarding the annual card party to be held Friday, Feb. 27, at 8 p.m. in the school. Tickets will be distributed at the next meeting, Feb. 4, and will be a donation $1.25 per person.

Plans are being formulated for the Saint Patrick's Day party in March.

Mrs. James Murphy will be responsible for the ordering of religious articles.

Mrs. Thompson welcomed Mrs. Jane Worsley, Mrs. Jo Carney and Mary Corse to the meeting. She also reminded the members of Father Byron's installation as pastor Friday. A reception will follow the installation.

Refreshments were served by co-hostesses, Mrs. Don Schlienz, Mrs. Arthur Dellane and Mrs. Roy Beck.

Miss Carraway Speaks To Book Club Tuesday

"Faith in America" was the subject of Miss Gertrude Carraway's address to the End of the Century Club members and their guests Tuesday.

The club's luncheon meeting was held at the home of Mrs. C. A. White with Mrs. James Little as co-hostess.

Of all Americans, North Carolinians have especially good reasons for understanding the events and personages of the pre-Revolutionary and past Revolutionary eras said Miss Carraway, for so many Tar Heels had prominent roles in helping gain national sovereignty.

It is high time that wide spread recognition be given to our state's important events and personages of two centuries ago she continued. Especially during these Bicentennial years, the faith of our fathers is greatly needed.

Her closing statement was, "Do what you can with what you have and where you are today."

Miss Carraway was introduced by Mrs. John Spilman.

Patient Circle To Meet Wednesday

On Wednesday, The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. E. E. Rawl, at her home in Rawlwood Arms Apt., at 3 p.m.

The program will be given by Mrs. C. A. Bowen, who will speak on "Founder's Day."

Rate Boost Is Self-Defeating

It is obvious that the Postal Service's problems are going to mount due to the ever increasing postal rates.

Carolina Power and Light Co. last week said it would study a system of delivering its own electric bills after first class rates took another three cent jump.

A company spokesman said the monthly mailing bill would jump from $68,170 to $88,621.

At 13 cents now and with the possibility of first class mail costing over 20 cents in the foreseeable future, it appears likely that many businesses will find it possible to deliver bills and other correspondence—at least in the city—cheaper than it can be done by the Postal Service.

The utilities, for instance, already send meter readers out throughout any given city. It may be possible that the previous month's bill can be delivered in this way.

Higher postal rates will mean lower volume of mail which, in turn, runs up the cost of delivering each letter; so in that sense the increasing of rates is self defeating from the standpoint of reducing the postal deficit.

The answer, of course, is more efficient operation of the mail service.

Action In Favor Of The Handicapped

The N.C. Utilities Commission agreed last week that the blind and physically handicapped should be excepted from a charge for directory assistance.

A charge of 20 cents for directory assistance calls over five per month was recently approved. Then it was noted that the charge would apply to blind people who cannot make use of the published directory.

We think that was too harsh and we feel the Utilities Commission's action in favor of the handicapped is a humane move.

THIS AFTERNOON

Revenue Hassle Drifts On

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH—Almost all experts are now agreed that the state government will come up short of money when this fiscal year runs out June 30.

The iffy thing is, how much?

Twice, legislators have met with their own financial advisors, with representatives of the governor's budget office, and with some outside consultants on contract from a major bank.

Both times, the end result is basically the same. A multiple-choice answer to a knotty question: the shortfall will be (A) minor, and offset easily by unspent money returned from various state agencies; (B) not so minor, but still offset by reversions; (C) major, and the books will be hard to balance, with nothing left for pay raises.

Many legislative leaders are now choosing (C). The governor is still picking (A). Depending on the financial expert, the shortfall will run anywhere from $35 million to $100 million.

Can Cover
 Anything under a figure of around $70 million can be handled.

Gov. James E. Holshouser has repeatedly insisted that agency reversions will provide enough money to cover that much shortfall.

Late last year when Democratic legislative leaders suggested to the Republican governor that he should forthwith take steps to save money, including slapping a freeze on hiring new state employees, the governor politely accepted the comments and went on his way.

Later, Gov. Holshouser quietly told his department heads to cut down on spending, but pointedly did not suggest a freeze on hiring.

Holshouser and his advisors are still banking on a shortfall of around $40 million, and are counting on the Christmas business boom to produce a bonus sales tax collection. December revenue figures available any day now will tell that tale.

Meanwhile, Democratic assemblymen—led by Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., who is running for governor, and House Speaker James C.

Green, who is running for lieutenant governor—continue to agitate for more attention to the developing financial crunch.

Privately, legislators not running for higher office agree that there is nothing that the assembly can or should do at this time.

First, the legislature deliberately set a May convening date this year to allow time for state income tax and other revenue indicators to firm up and permit intelligent decisions.

Secondly, the Constitution puts budget decisions—once the legislature has set the figures—in the hands of the governor.

Taking that responsibility away from Holshouser would require a special session of the assembly, and Democrats are reluctant to take that drastic step for two obvious reasons: right now, they wouldn't know what to do anyway; and two, if things got worse, the legislature would be to blame instead of the governor.

Meanwhile, underlying the whole running debate is a simple fact of political life: the assembly all but promised teachers and other state employees a raise. That will cost some $70 million.

The Democrats would like the Republican governor to cut spending to provide that surplus for raises. Holshouser does not wish to cut into present programs, and figures the legislature can worry about finding the money since it made the promise. And he is not willing to suggest raising taxes because he has promised not to do so, and because it would hurt his political party to do so.

Where does that leave things?

Legislative staff people are already at work trying to pinpoint dollars in various capital programs or agency projects not running at full steam.

The intent seems to be to pull a million or two here, another million there from the 1976 budget—along with projected reversions next fiscal year—to provide a raise for the 135,000 voting state employees.

INSIDE REPORT

Jimmy Carter's Gray Side

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — Former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, newly emerged from obscurity as a major presidential candidate, exposed a troubling gray side to his attractive political personality while breakfasting with Washington political reports Dec. 2.

How could he cite Atlanta school busing as a model for the nation, Carter was asked, when his voluntary nature makes it unacceptable to uncompromising blacks elsewhere? Not quite answering the question, Carter replied he had "worked hard" on the Atlanta plan and was proud of it.

But nobody in Atlanta, either with the school board or the NAACP, remembers Gov. Carter working on the plan — "hard" or otherwise. He did sit in on one NAACP-school board negotiating session as an observer, objecting to any busing in Atlanta. "For him to claim that he did anything to help a settlement is an outright lie," one black leader told us.

Actually, "fibbing" better describes falsely claiming credit — common among candidates, who usually have more than a little Baron Munchausen in them. But Carter is the anti-Washington, anti-government, anti-lawyer candidate telling audiences, "I'll never lie to you," and setting post-Watergate standards of honesty. Against that pledge, old enemies in Georgia use the words "lie" and "liar" with disturbing frequency to describe him.

Without analyzing Carter's often conflicting public statements since 1970, we checked for factual accuracy his statements in two recent appearances — on CBS's "Face the Nation" Nov. 30 and at the Dec. 2 Washington breakfast with reporters. Besides the Atlanta busing matter, these were the findings:

Item: On Dec. 2, Carter argued federal revenue-sharing should go only to local governments, not to states, and claimed he took that position as governor. There is neither record nor recollection of such an unselfish position, sure to have attracted attention. Carter's statement to Congress in 1971 asserted, "I support the concept of sharing additional federal revenues with state and local governments"; cutting off the states was not mentioned.

Item: Carter declared Nov. 30: "I've been a member of Common Cause for a long time, and participated in the evolution of the ideas that led to (the federal election law) — a statement raising some Georgia eyebrows.

In fact, his wife, Rosalynn, joined the liberal organization late during Carter's governorship. Carter never joined (explaining to us the membership is in Mrs. Carter's name because "she writes the checks"). There is no record of Carter participating in election reform.

Item: On Nov. 30, explaining his 1972 nomination speech for Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Carter declared, "I've known Scoop since I was working under Adm.

(Hyman) Rickover on the atomic submarine program and he was a junior member of Congress involved with atomic energy, so I don't have any apology to make about a long-standing friendship with Scoop."

Jackson told us he is sure he did not meet Carter until he ran for governor in 1970. Furthermore, nuclear officials doubt a navy lieutenant in operations would have had much contact with a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee or, for that matter, with Rickover.

Item: When we told Carter Dec. 2 what Jackson said, he recalled reminiscing about the "old days with Scoop" with the late Sen. Richard B. Russell over breakfast in 1970. "Carter has greatly exaggerated his relations with Sen. Russell," a former Russell intimate told us, adding Carter had leaked Russell's deathbed wish that he be elected governor. "I know that to be a lie," the Russell man added.

Item: Asked on Dec. 2 whom he consults on policy, Carter listed, among others, Wilbur Cohen, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and George Ball, former Under Secretary of State. In fact,

Strength For Today

RUSKIN'S CREED

John Ruskin, the noted English man of letters, endeavored during his lifetime to found a society called the Guild of St. George. The purpose of the organization was to establish communities free from many of the bad influences which blighted the life of large cities.

He drew up a threefold pledge which prospective members should make before becoming members of the communities: 1. To do their work well, whether it be for life or death. 2. To help other people at theirs when possible, and to avenge no injury. 3. To obey good laws before seeking to alter bad ones.

As a social movement Ruskin's enterprise was never very successful. He was a social reformer living several decades before this kind of reform won general acceptance. Perhaps his most important contribution was to make it perfectly clear that mankind, in order to be happy, must learn to live together in communities sharing privileges and responsibilities.

A New Model Tax Code

WASHINGTON—Deep in the bowels of the Internal Revenue Service building is a large steel door with a sign outside of it which says "Restricted Area—Authorized Personnel Only."

Two armed guards are stationed in front of it and everyone who goes in and out is checked twice. This special bureau called FITF is in charge of devising Federal Income Tax Forms that no one can understand. A staff of cryptographers and code experts work day and night to devise new methods of foxing the taxpayer so he will be unable to fill out his 1040 Form.

Last May an IRS agent in the Minneapolis office started to go over the 1974 return of a soybean farmer in Duluth when he sat up with a start. The form had been filled out by the farmer himself and there were no mistakes.

He immediately picked up his phone and called the director of FITF.

Other Editors Say Gag Order Cases

(Wilson Times)

North Carolina is fortunate in that the gag order issued in a rape and burglary case in Columbus County was declared unconstitutional by Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood. It took only a brief hearing for Judge Hobgood to rule that the order issued by Judge Wilton Hunt in Columbus County District Court was too broad to be enforced.

The objective of the order was to keep newsmen from reporting the trial of Linwood Purdie. "It is obvious to me from reading this order that it is unconstitutional," Hobgood said.

"It appears to the court and the court finds and concludes that the said order of the District Court dated Oct. 28, 1975 is on its face repugnant to and in violation of the freedom of the press provisions of the First Amendment . . . and therefore, the said order is invalid," Hobgood ruled.

North Carolina is more fortunate than Nebraska where lessons can be drawn from the Nebraska gag order controversy. Among the lessons are:

- Local courts cannot be relied upon to act quickly on First Amendment appeals.
- Gag orders beget gag orders in a legal system where example and precedent quite properly play a major role in judicial decisions.
- Guidelines or codes adopted in cooperation with the courts can become traps to stifle reporting.

One important point is public reaction to the gag controversy. In Nebraska there was a strong reaction in favor of the gag order among citizens. The first step in limiting the liberty of a free citizenry is restraint upon the press. The second, history teaches, is encroachment upon the independence of the courts. And the best defender of an independent court system is a free press, just as the best defender of the free press should be the courts.

The Supreme Court will rule in the Nebraska gag order case but a decision will not be forthcoming until spring. The court's decision will be of major significance to the press as judges across the country increasingly have turned to gag orders to restrain the press from reporting details of criminal cases.

Several newspapers and press organizations, including ANPA, expect to join in the case on behalf of the Nebraska press parties who have been fighting the gag order imposed originally by the local court in a mass murder case last October. The order even prohibited publication of information from an open hearing.

"Sir," the agent said, "I think someone has broken our 1040 code. I have a soybean farmer in Duluth who filled out his tax return without the aid of an accountant or a tax lawyer."

"Are you sure it just wasn't an accident?" the director said.

"Certain, sir. He was even able to fill out Part III 16 B which refers to Section D Lines 12 (a) and 14 (c) by combining the amounts shown on line 5 and 13."

"Oh my God," the director said. "Did he get Part V Question 40 by reducing his gain on line 18 to the extent of the loss, if any, on line 39, as referred to in Instruction K?"

"Perfectly, sir. It's as if he had our code book in front of him while he was filling out the form."

"I'll notify the commissioner and secretary of the treasury at once." The director hung up and picked up his red hot-line phone.

An hour later a group of grim-faced people were sitting in the office of the

Wall Street's Happier Week

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — What a week it was for Wall Street.

Every day a winner. The Dow Jones Industrial average leaped 52.42 points, its second biggest one-week advance in history.

Lots of activity. The total volume of 141.9 million shares made last week the second busiest in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, topped only by the week ended Jan. 31, 1975.

Plenty of good news. The Prime Rate fell to 7 per cent. Retail sales were strong in December. Wholesale prices actually declined in that month, the Labor Department reported.

Take further note of that information on wholesale prices. No, it wasn't just that the rate of increase slowed; prices actually fell in December, by four-tenths of 1 per cent.

Never before has the stock market had quite such a week.

And now the question that only time, investors and the market itself can answer: A knowledge of mass psychology as well as economics is essential to even understanding what happened last week. Ingredients of both were involved: continued economic recovery and an upturn in confidence.

This combination of events often becomes self-generating, creating a magical situation that develops into a full-fledged rally. But everyone has also seen the magic evaporate.

As last week came to a close there was evidence that speculators already were taking their profits, not expecting but to an extent that any wise investor will be watching closely.

Couple 'Run' A Train

By WARREN TALBOT
 WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — Oscar and Shirley Greene have kept busy since they took over the Warwick Railway Co. in 1960.

"We don't run the railroad. It runs us. But it's a way of life and we love it," Oscar said.

"How busy am I? Well, I've got more irons in the fire than the village blacksmith, more loose ends than a string mop, and I'm spread thinner than a jelly sandwich in an orphanage," he said.

The Warwick Railway Co. is one of the smallest in the nation. There are about 400 shortline railroads in the country. "To a varying degree we are all alike, but this is the third smallest to be exact," Oscar said.

The railroad turned 100 years old last October. "Even though we've only owned it from 1960 we are proud we were able to keep it going for 100 years," Mrs. Greene said.

Her husband, 57, a large ruddy faced man, wearing a polka dot railroad hat and smoking thin cigars describes himself as a "old swamp Yankee." His descendants helped to settle Rhode Island, and according to his wife "he's a man who likes excitement and stuff."

Shirley, 49, shares in the excitement of running the railroad and it's not an unusual sight to see her at the controls of a 65-ton diesel locomotive pulling box cars and flat beds to their destinations.

The railroad consists of two working locomotives, an engine house, nine-tenths of a mile of straight track, an office and one employe. It serves three industrial customers.

"My husband started working here in 1948 after he left the trolley cars. In 1960 I told my husband we were going to buy this railroad. He's still talking to me so I guess it's all right that we did. I think my husband was born with railroad in his blood," Shirley said.

He was a trolley car motorman in Providence until 1948. "I drove the last car into the station," he said. "He even had to help pull the lines up afterwards and it broke his heart to do it," Mrs. Greene said.

The railway's one employe is Pete Ross, 42, nicknamed the "Rhode Island Boomer" because he has worked for just about every railroad in the state.

"When I first came here it was Shirley who gave me my first ride in the locomotive. He was surprised to see a 5-foot tall woman at the controls. "But she can run that diesel as good as any man," Ross said.

Shirley learned to operate a locomotive out of necessity.

"When there's only two of you in the beginning you learn to do a lot of things fast. My husband didn't have anybody else to help him, and besides he needed someone he didn't have to pay a fantastic salary to," she said.

"I'm the lowest paid railroad president in the country," Oscar said. "But I'm independent and I like it that way. When I get fed up some days I just leave here and go to the park and feed the ducks for an hour. That's just about the only thing an independent Yankee businessman has got going for him these days," he said.

The Warwick Railway Co. may be miniature to "some of the big boys in the business," Ross said. "We're just as wide and high as any other railroad."

stock market.

It will be important therefore over the next few weeks to watch for additional strength in retail sales, industrial production and some of the other indicators of activity. If that strength is there, the market has base.

A further decline in the prime interest rate also might be interpreted as strengthening the base, and some analysts on Wall Street fully expect that decline in the next few weeks.

One caveat that you'll hear often in economic and investing circles is never to try for the last dollar. If an advance seems to be developing, take your time and make sure it continues; and if you feel a decline might be approaching, don't hold out until the final minute. With conditions so volatile today, that caveat applies as strongly today as ever before.

N.C. A Major Smuggling Point

By MICHAEL J. HALL
Associated Press Writer

The seizure of 25 tons of marijuana and arrest of nine men in a pre-dawn raid near Bayboro, North Carolina, Sunday is an indication that the Tar Heel state has become a major importing point for pot smugglers, according to authorities here.

"The SBI (State Bureau of Investigation) has received increasing amounts of information and evidence that North Carolina has become one of the primary states for importing large quantities of illegal drugs," said SBI director Haywood Starling after Sunday's raid.

The raid at an isolated dock along the Pamlico River early in the morning netted a 105-foot fishing trawler filled to the top of the hold with bales of what was described as high-grade Columbian marijuana.

But it also showed the sophistication that smugglers now employ in trying to get the contraband into the state and the country.

The trawler, the Lillian B, was crammed "with enough radio equipment to monitor every customs radio band from the Gulf coast up," said a state Justice Department spokesman.

And those involved in the smuggling attempt had posted surveillance teams around dock area where the unloading was to take place, the justice spokesman said.

To make doubly certain they weren't seen, the smugglers were beginning to unload the Lillian B with only two flashlights, Justice spokesman Jack Satterfield said.

But the SBI and federal drug and customs officers had been on the trail of the smuggling ring for at least four months, and had their own teams posted overlooking the dock and warehouse where the unloading was taking place.

And law enforcement officers planned their raid carefully and quietly, taking even the smugglers' lookouts by surprise, Satterfield said.

The SBI and federal agents had been on the tail of the smuggling ring for several months, and in early December they believe they missed the landing of another large quantity of pot.

As large as Sunday's seizure was, SBI director Starling believes that a lot more marijuana is being imported through North Carolina and he is pressing for more men and money to combat the growth in the traffic, not only in pot but also in more dangerous drugs.

North Carolina law enforcement officials give several reasons why the state has become popular with drug smugglers.

For one thing, they say, there is a long coastline, filled with inlets, sounds, and rivers that make it relatively easy for even boats the size of the Lillian B. to tie up and unload without anybody asking questions.

Most of the 301 miles of coastline and the many inlets are located in relatively unpopulated areas of the state, a Justice Department source said, and law enforcement agencies in those areas have not had the sophistication to cope with the new breed of electronic smugglers.

"Also the presence of so many military bases in the state has to be considered a factor," said Satterfield. Bases in North Carolina range from the Army's mammoth installation at Ft. Bragg to several Marine and Air Force bases, many near the eastern coastal areas.

The bases provide a ready market for any drugs shipped in, and at Ft. Bragg the drug situation has gotten so bad that base commander Lt. Gen. Henry Emerson has declared an all-out war on drug trafficking on the post.

Until very recently, much of the marijuana coming into the East Coast was flown in by airplane from Jamaica and Columbia, but law enforcement sources believe that route has now been curtailed.

They cite better radar surveillance on planes crossing the U.S. border along the eastern seaboard, and say that Customs officials are now using jets to pursue suspected air-borne smugglers.

Plus, the state sources said, there is the fact that the state's mid-Atlantic location is an ideal one for distribution of the contraband both to the north and to the south.

All of those factors have combined to make North Carolina an ideal port of entry for marijuana and hard drugs, though the state officials hope Sunday's raid may give would-be smugglers second thoughts.

dawn raid indicated North Carolina has become a major importing state for pot smugglers, according to authorities. (AP Wirephoto)

Junta Peacefully Takes Over Ecuador Govm't

By HENRY S. ACKERMAN
Associated Press Writer

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — A three-man junta that took control of Ecuador's military government in a bloodless weekend reshuffle says the military will remain in power until the end of 1977.

The commanders of the army, navy and air force eased Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara out of the presidency early Sunday, a few hours after his daughter's wedding at the government palace.

Political and diplomatic sources said the three junta members — Gen. Guillermo Duran Arceles of the army, Vice Adm. Alfredo Poveda Borbon and Gen. Luis Leoro Franco of the air force — are conservatives interested mainly in increasing Ecuador's oil production and stimulating the economy.

"They decided to change horses and settle the economic problems," said one diplomat.

"The black gold (oil revenue) just hasn't filtered down to the people yet," said another.

All three junta members are in their 40s, and all had advanced military training in the United States.

The only opposition reported came in the form of critical statements by several former cabinet officers, one of whom was arrested last week; by civilian politicians who wanted immediate elections; and by a retired colonel, Jorge Ceballos, who announced he was leading a "resistance command" at the border town of Tolcan, 125 miles north of the capital.

Military sources said they doubted any troops were supporting Ceballos. Various military commanders and garrisons issued statements pledging loyalty to the junta.

The junta ordered a curfew but canceled it Sunday night with the explanation that there had been no disorders. However, it closed down Radio Quito after it broadcast a statement by Gen. Raul Puma Velasco, the jailed former minister of public works, calling Gen. Duran "inept" and pledging a struggle "for the welfare and the security of the Ecuadorian people."

The police also locked the editors of El Comercio, a newspaper that owns the radio station, in the newspaper plant.

A small crowd watched as Rodriguez Lara, 52, and his son left the presidential palace in a small station wagon for the ex-president's ranch in the mountains. Rodriguez, who led a military coup in 1972, said in a statement he was stepping down "without there having been the slightest military pressure."

Cohen spent a day with Gov. Carter in Atlanta in 1974 and has not seen him since; Ball breakfasted with Carter in New York one morning last autumn, their only contact.

To list Cohen and Ball as advisers may be par for the old political course but is scarcely the whole truth for a post-Watergate candidate conspicuously offering himself as the man of truth. These instances flowing from two public appearances suggest Carter has fallen short not only of his lofty, self-advised requirements of candor but even of old-fashioned Washington standards. Nor has Carter been candid talking about devotion to civil rights and opposition to Gov. George Wallace, while in fact as governor he praised Wallace's fight against busing.

Nevertheless, Jimmy Carter is the only Democratic candidate to capture anybody's imagination and may dominate the first delegate showdown in Iowa. But he should know today's demands for candor go beyond pious preaching to rigorous practicing and that he, with all other candidates, will be held strictly accountable.

secretary of the treasury who was pacing up and down. "How did it happen?" he shouted at the commissioner of internal revenue. "You promised me that no one would be able to make head or tail of the 1974 return."

The commissioner looked angrily at the director of FITF. "What happened, Mulligan?"

"I don't know," said Mulligan. "Maybe the soybean farmer is some kind of mathematical nut. We tried the 1974 form out on 10,000 people, including 1,000 IRS agents, and not one of them understood it. It seemed foolproof."

The secretary of the treasury walked over to his window. "Do you know what this means? If a soybean farmer in Duluth has the key to our 1040 returns that means other people will soon have it. We'll have millions of people filling out their own income tax forms. It could destroy every tax law and accounting office in the country."

The commissioner said, "It looks like we have no choice. We're going to have to change the 1040 Form and make it so complicated that even H & R Block won't understand it. Can you do it, Mulligan?"

"Yes sir," Mulligan replied, "But I'll need more people."

"Take anyone you want," the secretary of the treasury said. "This has highest priority. The very fabric of the American tax system is at stake. I want daily reports on your progress. I want that form to look like the greatest bunch of gobbledygook anyone has ever read."

The commissioner said, "We'll do it, sir. By the time the new returns are sent out there won't be five people in the country who will know how to fill it out."

"Not five people!" the secretary said. "I don't want anybody to understand it, including myself."

Mulligan replied, "Don't worry, Mr. Secretary. When my people get finished with it the American taxpayer won't even be able to find the right line for his name and address."

The rest is history. As everyone who received his 1040 Tax Form for 1975 knows, FITF came up with a return that defies imagination. The secretary was so pleased he presented Mulligan with the "U.S. Medal of Bureaucratic Balderdash with an Oak Leaf Cluster," the highest award the tax agency can bestow on an IRS employee in peacetime.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—The trend on the North Carolina FOB dock broiler market was active today, with firm prices, supplies short, demand good, weights lighter.

The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 39.75 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today is 1,137,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a slight gain today, resisting profit taking pressures once again.

Trading was fairly active. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up 58.72 over the first six sessions of the new year, added another 1.57 to 912.70 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was being supported by a continued flow of favorable economic news.

A quarter-point cut in the bank prime lending rate to 7 per cent spread further in the industry today, and there were forecasts that the minimum charge on corporate loans would soon go to 6 1/2 per cent or even lower.

The Commerce Department's annual study of business prospects, meanwhile, predicted an expanding economy throughout 1976.

Prices had shown some early hesitation in profit taking that seemed to have been encouraged by news reports over the weekend concerning New York's two largest banks—First National City and Chase Manhattan.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that the two banks were on the Comptroller of the Currency's list of "problem" banks which bear close scrutiny because of loans which might go unrepaid.

Government and bank officials asserted that both banks were in very sound financial condition and in no danger.

Citicorp, the Big Board volume leader, dropped 1 1/4 to 29 1/4, and Chase shares lost 1 1/2 to 27 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index dipped .02 to 50.27 in the first hour. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .14 to 88.96.

Despite Names, Six Win Rights Of Citizenship

PARIS (AP) — After a 20-year struggle that went to the World Court, France has finally decided to give full citizens' rights to six children whose Celtic first names made them legally nonexistent.

The government ombudsman notified Jean-Jacques Le Goarnic of the government's decision to "normalize the civil status" of his children — Adraboran, Maiwenn, Gwendal, Diwezha, Sklerjenn and Brann, aged 12 to 19.

Transferred For Remark

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A district court judge who reportedly called the Wilmington police "a bunch of idiots" has been transferred from criminal court to civil court where he is not liable to encounter many policemen.

Chief District Court Judge Gilbert Burnett said Saturday that Judge John M. Walker would preside over trial of civil cases only for an indefinite period. Walker, 63, said he was satisfied with the move.

A local newspaper quoted Walker as calling the police "a bunch of idiots" as he dismissed the charge against a motorist who had been accused of a traffic violation in a minor accident.

Wilmington police were angered at the judge's remark and a group of them said they would ask the state Judicial Standards Commission to investigate and see if Walker had violated the standards.

In a meeting Saturday, the Wilmington chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police voted to endorse a letter to the commission requesting the investigation.

"All we're asking for is an impartial investigation into Judge Walker's actions. We just want to be able to go into court and be treated with the respect due officers and human beings, not humiliated and treated as though we were the criminals," said Buddy Pope, president of the police organization.

Jamaican Slums Said A Dangerous Powderkeg

By EDITH M. LEDERER Associated Press Writer KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The slums in the western part of Kingston have the potential of becoming a mini-Belfast or a mini-Beirut, Jamaicans and foreign residents of the Jamaican capital say.

"The area's an armed camp, and any outsiders or anyone who crosses the line runs the risk of getting shot," one foreign resident said.

Last week, while hundreds of international financial leaders and foreign journalists were here for a meeting of the International Monetary Fund, gang warfare exploded in the Jones Town-Trench Town area.

At least four civilians and four policemen were killed. Twenty-two homes were burned. Hundreds fled from the area every day.

Prime Minister Michael Manley blamed "organized political gangs" seeking power. He obviously was referring to the opposition Jamaica Labor party.

But informed Jamaicans and foreign observers agreed the violence might just as easily have been done by the left wing of Manley's People's National party.

"Both are guilty of intimidation and acts of political violence," said one diplomat.

"The tragic civil war in Lebanon did not start very differently," a Sunday columnist wrote in the Gleaner, one of the island's leading newspapers.

Similarities to the urban violence in Lebanon and Northern Ireland are striking: armed gunmen or a rock-throwing crowd keeping firemen from putting out blazes set by gasoline bombs, political assassinations, sniper attacks and an organized campaign of intimidation.

Manley charged in a broadcast that gunmen singled out supporters of his party, surrounded their homes late at night and gave them a certain number of days to leave the area.

"This is being done for the purpose of destroying the local political organization. It becomes more significant when you realize this is being done on the eve of a new voter registration drive," he said.

Observers said the same tactic has been used against supporters of the Jamaica Labor party.

Jones Town-Trench Town is one of the poorest, most densely populated sections of Kingston. Since the 1940s, the combination of poverty and political rivalry has led to sporadic outbursts of violence in the area, but it wasn't until about 10 years ago that the gangs switched from stones, bottles and occasional knives to the use of guns.

The tendency to violence is heightened by a 20 per cent unemployment rate, which shows little sign of improving, and the young are the chief sufferers. The economic picture improved temporarily in 1974, but by the end of 1975 the trade deficit was increasing, production was declining and there was a serious deficit in the balance of payments. The U.S. recession caused a drop in two key areas, tourism and bauxite production, and great improvement is not expected in 1976.

Laurel And Hardy Record Big Seller

By ED BLANCHE Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Up in the top 10 best-selling records in Britain is a scratchy, long-forgotten disc recorded nearly 40 years ago by the late comedy team of Laurel and Hardy.

Their "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" was No. 3 last week and No. 2 the week before. It has sold nearly half a million copies since a television revival of "Way Out West," the 1937 movie in which Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy sang it. Its success has startled United Artists, the record company that issued it in November.

"It shot right into the top 100 at No. 48," said United Artists executive Alan Warner, who dug the song out of the archives. "Three weeks later it was in the top five."

Warner, a specialist in reviving neglected songs from Hollywood musicals, included "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" in an album he compiled of songs and gag routines from vintage comedy classics.

He issued the Laurel and Hardy track as a single, hoping it would be played on radio networks to promote the album. It surprised him and record industry pundits by snowballing into the oddest hit of the decade.

"They laughed at us when we issued the record," Warner recalled. "But the deejays loved it."

"They played it day and night," said music writer Dave Meehan. "Everybody was humming it. It became an 'in' thing."

"We tapped the great affection people have for Laurel and Hardy," said Warner. "It has great charm. Even the kids like it."

Industry experts expressed a belief the record was a smash hit because of the public's nostalgia for a happier, less complicated era.

"It's whimsical and evocative, of a time when there were no Vietnam, no economic slumps, no terrorism, no hectic hassles," Meehan commented. "It was a revolt against the electronic eroticism of rock 'n' roll."

"Lonesome Pine" cost little to produce or promote — no costly studio sessions and musicians to pay. United Artists spent only a few thousand dollars publicizing it, mainly Laurel and Hardy displays in record stores and distributing Laurel and Hardy t-shirts.

Hardy, the fat one, died in 1957. Laurel, the rubber-faced skinny one, died in 1965. He came from Lancashire, in England's industrial North, and went to the United States 60 years ago in a troupe with another English comic genius, Charlie Chaplin.

They split up in America. Chaplin made it alone. Laurel teamed up with a little-known "heavy" from Georgia, Oliver Hardy.

School Reopens After Fighting

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Hickory High School, which was closed about noon Friday following racial fighting, opened today without incident.

Three students were injured in a cafeteria melee which began when a white student tossed a roll which landed on a table shared by black students.

School Supt. J. H. Wishon said the decision to reopen today was made after consultation with parents over the weekend.

Three Games Tonight To Change Conference Race

By The Associated Press
There will be a shakeup in the higher echelons of the Southern Conference basketball race tonight with three of the top four teams in action, two against each other.

By far the most intriguing clash has Richmond's pre-season favorite Spiders at home against East Carolina's Pirates, picked as the team to give Richmond its most serious challenge.

Virginia Military's surprising league-leading Keydets, 3-0, have a date at The Citadel against the Bulldogs, who so far have been bringing up the conference rear at 0-4. A VMI defeat would boost William and Mary's idle Indians, 2-0, into first place.

Both Richmond and East Carolina made moves toward the top Saturday.

The Spiders boosted their league record to 3-1 and their over-all mark to 5-5 with an 87-62 rout of Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 1-3 and 3-7, in the first half of a doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C.

East Carolina, 4-1 and 6-6, held its grip on third place with a 72-68 regionally televised afternoon victory over Furman's three-time defending champion Paladins, now 0-2 and 3-7.

Winning against outside opposition were VMI, 9-3, which trounced Salem 108-84 despite 53 points by the losers' Archie Talley, and William and Mary, 6-4, which drubbed Washington College 105-60.

The second half of the Charlotte twin bill saw Davidson's Wildcats fall to 3-9 over-all in an 84-80 overtime defeat to West Virginia. The Citadel also dropped to 3-9 in an 81-68 setback by Clemson.

East Carolina trailed Furman, playing without injured Craig Lynch, 37-32 at half-time. But the Pirates went ahead and iced the game when the Paladins—who failed for the second time to get Coach Joe Williams his 100th victory—missed a shot with 1:09 left while down 69-68.

Freshman Louis Crosby hit 11 of 16 shots from the floor and scored 22 points and senior Earl Garner added 21 for East Carolina, which has won three of its last four starts. Ray Miller had 25 for Furman.

Richmond had beaten Appalachian by only one point at home earlier, and the Mountaineers took a 15-10 lead with 8:05 left in the first half with both teams playing zone defenses.

"We started in a zone, and that made us stand around. We got out of that, picked up the tempo and made things happen," said Richmond Coach Carl Stone.

What happened was a 15-point Richmond run in which Jeff Butler scored six of his 17 points and Craig Sullivan six of his 15 during a four-minute stretch.

The Spiders, led once again by freshman Mike Morton with 23 points, never were in trouble again in winning their third straight game. Darryl Robinson, Calvin Bowser and Mel Hubbard had 11 points each for Appalachian.

VMI shot a blistering 69 percent from the floor in the second half to expand a 55-43 lead and offset the scoring of Talley, who hit 22 of 40 shots from the floor in setting a fieldhouse record.

Dave Montgomery hit 11 of 14 for the Keydets and scored 26 points and Ron Carter added 24 as VMI, playing without injured John Krovic, put four players in double figures.

William and Mary again was without injured Ron Satterthwaite, but the Indians poured in 65 points in the second half after leading just 40-30 at intermission. Rod Musselman had a career-high 23 points and John Lowenhaupt 19 for the Indians.

Pat Hickert pulled

Davidson into a tie in regulation with a field goal with 10 seconds left, but West Virginia went ahead 81-80 in the extra period and won on a three-point play by Stan Boskovich, who had 23 points. Tony Robertson was high with 29. John Gerdy led Davidson with 18.

Clemson took an early 10-0 lead and never was in trouble against The Citadel with Wayne "Tree" Rollins scoring 17 points and Dave Brown 16. The Bulldogs were led by Mike Ange with 18 and Rod McKeever with 16.

ECU Wrestlers Meet Strong Team In Exhibition Tonight

The East Carolina wrestling team returns to action tonight when the Pirates face a strong Athletes in Action team in an exhibition match. The match will begin at 8:00 in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirate grapplers took their second straight victory of the season last Tuesday night with an easy 41-3 victory over West Chester State College. Paul Thorp, Phil Mueller, and D. T. Joyner all registered pins to pace the Pirates who are now 2-2 for the year.

"I was very pleased to see us wrestle so well after coming off the Christmas holidays," said head coach John Welborn. "The Athletes in Action are just a tremendous team and I know we're going to have to be at our best to even hope of knocking them off."

AIA, the defending National AAU champions, have a 4-1 overall record, with their only loss to nationally ranked Kentucky. Dick Pollock Carl Dambman, Eddie Rew and head coach John Peterson are all undefeated. Keeley and Dambman took individual titles in the East Stroudsburg Open earlier this season while Pollock placed first in the Southern Opwn in the 150 weight class.

"We've got a tough match coming up with William and Mary Saturday night," noted Welborn. "I think this match will be an excellent warmup for us, because we've got the toughest part of our schedule coming up."

Ron Whitcomb, Mike Radford and Phil Mueller continue to pace the Pirates. Whitcomb, the senior from East Rochester, N.Y., boasts a 19-1 overall record and has not lost a dual match this year. Radford is 17-2 for the year and has only lost one dual match, which was a narrow 4-3 decision against NCAA champion Mike Lieberman of Lehigh. Mueller is 14-2 and also remains unbeaten in dual meets with a 4-0 record.

Following the match against

Athletes in Action, the Pirates will face William and Mary Saturday night in Minges in what should be the top dual match of the season in the Southern Conference.

Jamesville Cagers Look For A Winning Habit

JAMESVILLE — Before the Christmas holidays, the Jamesville Bullets lost three games in a row but came back to take two consecutive conference games. But the momentum they picked up went out with the picked turkey bones of Christmas and New Year's.

Coach William Johnson said he thought the Bullets would be able to continue where they had left off but that was not to be. They came roaring back and promptly lost two loop games, one to Chocowinity (53-45) and one to Aurora (75-70).

But despite their current troubles, Coach Johnson thinks he has a good team. "We have five back," he said. "That's a pretty good start, a good beginning."

Johnson was, however, expecting a better start by his team. "Overall we are two-five. I anticipated 4-1 or a 5-0 (before Christmas). We played larger schools and I was impressed with some things."

One thing that pleased him was the team's ball handling. "We worked the ball well," he said. "We waited for a shot and didn't throw it up. That's the biggest improvement (over last year)."

The Bullets use a 1-3-1 offense with a lot of movement trying to get it to their big men Jerry Ange and Rufus Simmons. They seem to have been effective in it as Simmons is the team's second leading scorer with a 12 points a game average and Ange hitting 11 ppg.

"I don't think there are any better ballhandlers than them in the conference (along with guard Eric Davis team leader at 15.8 ppg). They work together well."

Williams said he is not just getting a lot of points from the three, he's also getting a lot of leadership from them. "They play good team ball. That's helping a lot this year. Any one of them is capable of being the high scorer."

Simmons at center is the Bullet's tallest man at 6-4. He is a good jumper and Williams says he has a good short shot and is a strong rebounder. "He's improved a lot from last year," the coach said. "He came around at the end of the year and he has picked up where he left off."

The Bullets are also getting help under the boards from Duke Stone, 6-1. Williams said that it takes other teams a long time to adjust to Stone because he is left handed and turns to the left.

Williams also said that rebounding has not been a big problem with everybody getting an equal share. "They follow their shots well and they try to crack the boards with four people and have one back for a safety."

He also feels he has as quick or a quicker team than anyone in the conference.

When he has to go to his bench, Williams uses mainly Larry Pierce, Cornell Duggins and Renald Armond.

Williams felt that the Bullets' first losses were not the result of aggressive play, but of over-aggressive play. He hopes the Bullets can control themselves because last year they were in foul trouble frequently.

The Bullets have been shooting well from the floor, 55-65 percent and 65-70 percent from the free throw line. Williams said it was high because Jamesville has gotten a lot of uncontested shots.

Williams picked Aurora and Mattamuskeet, his last two opponents, and Pantego as the teams to beat this year. He also expects trouble from Chocowinity.

Williams feels he has a team capable of being in the top three but to do that the Bullets will have to work hard... and start winning.

NCAA Expecting Four-Team Playoff Opposition

Money Plan By NASCAR

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — For years, auto racing promoters have had to come up with extra money under the table to make sure the likes of A.J. Foyt, David Pearson or Cale Yarborough would show up for the races they staged.

Perhaps "under the table" is a bit misleading, since most everybody knew about the considerable sums of "deal" or "show" money promoters had to fork over, in addition to guaranteed purses of $100,000 and more, to lure the sports' biggest names.

Now the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, the sanctioning body for major stock car racing in the United States, has come up with a contingency money plan that should nearly eliminate those payments of extra money—and at the same time beef up the upper levels of competition.

"To the top eight teams, which have proven their competitiveness the previous season and willingness to compete on the full 1976 circuit, we are offering a Winners' Circle Award that comes to a total of $560,000, to be divided among the eight equally over the length of the upcoming season," said a NASCAR spokesman, in announcing the program today.

"It breaks down to $3,000 per race at major tracks and $2,000 per race at the smaller tracks."

He added, "What it does is guarantee that anytime NASCAR stages a Grand National event, at least the top eight teams will be there and have enough money to race competitively."

The money in the program, the spokesman emphasized, goes to the team, to be divided among the driver and other team members.

Deal or show money won't be outlawed if a promoter still wants to work out something with the drivers not under the program, it was explained.

So far, only seven teams have qualified for 1976 money—the teams of drivers Richard Petty, Yarborough, Bobby Allison, Dave Marcis, Darrell Waltrip, Buddy Baker and Benny Parsons.

The extra spot, which could be the equivalent of landing a major sponsorship, goes to the first team not in the program whose driver wins a 1976 event

Turnaround By Colts' Coach Earns Honors

By GORDON BEARD

AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ted Marchibroda knew which way he wanted to go when he became a National Football League head coach, and he took the Baltimore Colts right along with him.

The Colts, on hard times since winning the 1971 Super Bowl and coming off a 2-12 season in 1974, perhaps had only one way to go. But it was questionable whether they were ready to make a move despite the team slogan of, "We will arrive in '75."

In his rookie season as a head coach, however, Marchibroda directed a remarkable turnaround. The Colts won their last nine regular-season games, upended the Miami Dolphins, and became champions of the American Football Conference East with a 10-4 record.

For his efforts, Marchibroda was the runaway winner of the 1975 NFL Coach of the Year honors in balloting conducted by The Associated Press.

"Anything you receive now is gravy," Marchibroda said. "The important thing is we won."

Just as the surprising Colts won frequently with an explosive offense, Marchibroda won big in the balloting. Of the 78 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, he received 51.

Bum Phillips, first-year coach of the Houston Oilers, was runner-up with 12 votes, followed by Miami's Don Shula with six. Tom Landry of Dallas got four, Don Coryell of St. Louis three and Minnesota's Bud Grant two.

The 44-year-old coach, who spent nine years as an offensive aide to George Allen at Los Angeles and Washington, said he knew the Colts were in for a good season by the end of training camp.

"We had accomplished too much not to have a good year," he said. "Even after losing four of our first five games, we were disappointed but not discouraged because we had played well."

The Colts beat the New York Jets to launch their winning streak, and two weeks later they overcame a 21-point deficit and whipped the Buffalo Bills.

"That turned everything around for us," Marchibroda said, "but three other games had laid the groundwork. The former quarterback, a No. 1 draft pick of the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1953, said he just tries to be himself and not copy anyone else. And, he set out to give young Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones the same philosophy.

"I told Bert to play his own game within our program, and that's what he wanted to hear," Marchibroda said. "I told him I didn't want him to be another Roman Gabriel, Sonny Jurgensen or Billy Kilmer, but to just be Bert Jones."

Jones, a third-year pro, and the rest of the Colts soon began believing in Marchibroda — the team's fifth head coach in four seasons — praising him chiefly for his meticulous weekly preparations.

"There is nothing brilliant about coaching," Marchibroda said, "just lots of hours devoted to details and study."

Senior Bowl Offensive Surprise NFL Coaches

By STAN ATKINS

Associated Press Writer

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A pair of National Football League coaches were a little surprised at the offensive efficiency generated in Sunday's Senior Bowl football battle in which Craig Penrose pitched the North to a 42-35 victory over the South.

"We were looking for a wide open game and it was," said Jack Pardee of the Chicago Bears, who coached the South all-stars. "I was impressed with the execution of both teams, considering we only had a week of preparation." "For a game of this type, our offense made very few mistakes," said North Coach Chuck Fairbanks of the New England Patriots. "That third quarter spurt and better defense in the second half is what won it for us."

Penrose, a star at San Diego State, brought the North attack to life with a trio of third-period touchdown marches as the Yanks surged to a 42-28 lead after trailing 21-7 at one point. Penrose, named the game's most valuable player, hit on 12 of 15 passes for 303 yards and three touchdowns, two to his San Diego teammate, Duke Ferguson, covering seven and 18 yards. The second put the North ahead to stay.

The Yanks then got what proved to be the winning score when Penrose and Wyoming's Larry Gaines combined on a 73-yard scoring play, with Gaines taking the pass in traffic at his 40, popping clear and out-running everybody to the end zone.

Gaines earlier had scored the tying touchdown on a three-yard plunge after Penrose set it up with passes of 31 and 29 yards.

The other North scoring came on passes of 27 and nine yards from Toledo's Gene Swick to Joe Smalzer of Illinois.

Richard Todd of Alabama triggered the Rebel offense by passing for 332 yards and two touchdowns, an 82-yarder to Texas A&M's Bubba Bean in the opening quarter and a 15-yarder to Sammie White of Grambling with only five seconds left in the game.

The other three South scores came on one-yard plunges by Florida's Jimmy DuBose, named his team's outstanding offensive player to win a $2,500 cash award, which went to three other players, too—James Hunter of Grambling as the South's top defensive player, Billy Brooks of Oklahoma as the North's top offensive player and Mario Clark of Oregon as the North's top defensive performer. Penrose won a car for being named the MVP.

Petty also will become the first $400,000 winner in the 27-year history of NASCAR after he collects his point fund earnings at the annual awards banquet at Daytona Beach, Fla., in February and his $50,000 bonus from his sponsor.

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Stock Car champion Richard Petty will be honored as the 1975 Driver of the Year at tonight by the National Motorsports Press Association.

The Dodge driver won the award, by a landslide margin, for the second straight time. The 38-year-old North Carolinian put together last year a season which even he will have trouble rivaling in the future.

He won 13 of the 30 Grand National races, including six super speedway events, banked a record $342,980, topping his 1971 marks of $309,225 which was earned in 16 more races, captured an unprecedented sixth National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing point championship and became the first stock car driver to earn $2 million during his career.

"There's no doubt about it—it was my best season ever," said Petty, who will receive the trophy tonight at the annual NMPA banquet.

"I can't say enough about the job Dale (Inman, his crew chief), Maurice (his brother and car builder) and the crew did. They deserve most of the credit for what we accomplished," he said.

Petty also will become the first $400,000 winner in the 27-year history of NASCAR after he collects his point fund earnings at the annual awards banquet at Daytona Beach, Fla., in February and his $50,000 bonus from his sponsor.

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Sunday they have recalled centers Don Ashby and Scott Garland from their Oklahoma City farm team of the Central Hockey League.

Ashby, their No. 1 pick in last spring's amateur draft, started the year with the Leafs. Garland played his first NHL game Sunday night against the Montreal Canadiens.

The pair replaced Lanny McDonald and Stan Weir, who both have been sidelined by injuries.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Money, the Ohio dart champion, displayed delicate touch and remarkable accuracy Sunday in winning the United States Open Darts Championship.

Money, a 31-year-old Englishman who now resides in Medina, Ohio, went out with a 68 to beat runner-up Ray Fischer of Philadelphia and claim the $2,000 first prize.

Fischer's second-place finish was worth $1,000 in the competition at a hotel here, which began with 600 dart throwers.

ATLANTA (AP) — South Carolina quarterback Jeff Grantz, a second-team All-American, has been named Southwest back of the year by the Atlanta Touchdown Club and will be honored here Jan. 31.

Kim King, club president, said Grantz was "one of the best quarterbacks I have seen and we're happy to honor him as our back of the year."

Grantz, a senior who led Southeast independent teams in total offense, guided the Gamecocks to a 7-1 record and the Tangerine Bowl.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Formidable opposition to a proposed four-team playoff to determine a national football champion has been predicted by the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The proposal, one of two to be considered by delegates to the NCAA's 70th convention, was drafted last fall by a Division I football championship committee.

Of the two, NCAA President John A. Fuzak predicted Sunday, a two-team playoff has a better chance of gaining acceptance than a playoff involving four teams and three games.

"I suspect that from what I've heard from many major conferences the opposition to the playoffs is strong," Fuzak said at a pre-convention news conference.

"It's an attractive way of deciding who's best when you consider the economic impact," Fuzak noted, "but there is also an academic impact."

"Some 35 per cent of our institutions are on the quarter system," he said. "The tendency of a student body to take off on these things is pretty great."

The playoff plan, as devised by a committee headed by Temple's Ernest Casals, would be established to follow current bowl games and would produce a financial windfall.

"If you sold 75,000 tickets at $15, that's $1.5 million," Tom Hansen, an assistant NCAA executive director, calculated. "If you had three games, you're talking about $4 million. And I'm told that television for the Super Bowl is right at $3.5 million. I don't think this is any greater than the Super Bowl."

Outlined by Fuzak following a breakfast meeting of the NCAA Council was his outlook on key issues before the convention, which begins with a special session Wednesday.

"Particularly in Division I it will be difficult to get it established at the convention," he said of a proposal for basing athletic aid on a need basis. "I think what may develop is further study," he added.

Fuzak also said he will "rule out of order" a proposal by Dr. Stephen A. Horn, president of Long Beach State, to divide income derived from football bowl games, explaining that the NCAA does not sponsor but merely sanctions such contests.

He said convention delegates are "committed to consider" a proposed elimination of rules limiting the size of athletic squads and predicted a vote for establishment of a proposed "super" conference for large schools will be "rather close."

Also meeting this week is the American Football Coaches Association, which is expected to pass along its recommendation on the post-bowl playoff.

"The only thing I'm sure of is that two criteria must be met," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal, the AFCA's president. "First, it involves not interfering with the present bowl structure and, second, it must not interfere with student final exams."

Tiniest Bit Embarrassing For Miller

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It was different, and tougher, and maybe a little bit more satisfying. And it was just the tiniest bit embarrassing. But the result was the same — Johnny Miller won the Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"I almost felt guilty about it," Miller said Sunday after he scored his third consecutive victory in this event. "You know, I think the gallery might like to see somebody else win."

That point was brought home to him when the All-American boy — a non-drinker, non-smoker, family man, and church worker — got some heckling for the first time in his career.

"It didn't bother me," Miller said. "You know, this is supposed to be a gentleman's game. But now we get all kinds in the gallery. Maybe it's even a good thing."

Good thing or not, it had absolutely no effect as the placid Miller calmly and quietly put together a charging, four-under-par 68 that lifted him three strokes clear of the field with a 274 total, 14 under par on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

The victory — in sharp contrast to his front-running, record-setting triumphs of 1974 and 1975 — enabled him to become the first man to win the same event three times in a row since Jack Nicklaus took his third Disney Open title in 1973. The record is four in a row, set by Walter Hagen in the PGA National Championship in the 1920s.

"That was one of my goals for the year," Miller said. "I wanted to win one of them three times in a row."

He has a chance for a second triple this week. The tour now moves on to Phoenix.

More Of The Same TV Fare

EDITOR'S NOTE — "I would fall to my knees" if we could compete with a television series about a frontier schoolteacher, says Robert D. Wood, president of CBS-TV. "I would love it, because obviously there wouldn't be any violence in that." But he is skeptical that the competition for audiences can be won with non-violent shows.

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — More cops, more comedies, more variety shows — in short, more of the same. That's how television's second season shapes up.

Despite a disastrous fall which saw not only the cancellation of 16 of the 26 new weekly series, but also, for the first time, a decrease in the number of U.S. homes tuned in to television, the three commercial networks have opted to go on playing by the same rules.

For example, ABC and CBS are adding one new cop show each to their lineups ("Superstar" and "The Blue Knight," respectively) and NBC is adding two ("Jigsaw John" and "City of Angels"). Never mind that these law-and-order dramas comprise a full one-third of the total prime time programming each week.

"We're not trying to increase the amount of violence in television," explains ABC executive Michael D. Eisner in defense of his network's new police series. "It's just a tremendously appealing format."

"Laverne and Shirley" (ABC) is a spinoff of "Happy Days." "The Bionic Woman" (ABC) is a spinoff of "The Six Million Dollar Man." "Grady," already on the air to replace an early NBC casualty, is a spinoff of "Sanford and Son."

"Popi," a CBS comedy about a Puerto Rican father raising his two sons, is replacing "Joe and Sons," a comedy about an Italian father raising his two sons.

Even Cher, in an effort to boost the sagging ratings of her Sunday night variety show on CBS, is going back to a tried-and-true recipe: She's bringing back ex-husband Sonny Bono for a revival of "The Sonny and Cher Show."

Both CBS and NBC have turned to producer Norman Lear ("All in the Family," "Maude," "Good Times," "The Jeffersons") for two more half-hour comedies.

The CBS selection, "One Day at a Time," about a divorcee raising two teen-age daughters, has premiered already. NBC's "The Dumplings," starring Brooks Coco and Geraldine James as a married couple who run a luncheonette in New York City, is scheduled to start Jan. 28.

There is one significant departure from traditional programming practices. ABC will be offering what may be, as the network claims, "the most ambitious dramatic special in television history" — a 12-hour dramatization of Irwin Shaw's novel "Rich Man, Poor Man."

The film, about the changes in America from the end of World War II through the mid-1960s, features Peter Strauss, Nick Nolte and Susan Blakely in the key roles and will have a supporting cast that includes Ray Milland, Van Johnson, Dorothy McGuire, Edward Asner, Steve Allen, Robert Reed and Dorothy Malone.

ABC plans to open the series with a two-hour installment on Sunday, Feb. 1. "Rich Man, Poor Man" will then move to a regular slot on Monday nights and will follow with another two-hour episode, six one-hour shows and a final two-hour conclusion.

Another offbeat though far from profound series in the new crop of shows is ABC's "Almost Anything Goes." It succeeded in a trial run last summer and now is the Saturday night replacement for Howard Cosell's variety show.

On "Almost Anything Goes," teams of contestants representing their hometowns compete in outrageous, slapstick contests designed to make the audience laugh. The competition will carry through regional and national finals.

If the other new programs bear a strong resemblance to what is already on the air, CBS-TV president Robert D. Wood suggests it's due in large measure to what the American audience has demonstrated it likes.

Wood says that doesn't mean they don't try to come up with alternatives to the standard police-doctor-lawyer fare — one of CBS's new series is "Sarah," featuring Brenda Vaccaro as a frontier school teacher — but experience has shown him the life-and-death type of drama has a better chance of attracting a large audience.

"I would fall to my knees if we could be very competitive with 'Sarah,'" says the network president. "I would love it, because obviously there won't be any violence in that." But he's skeptical that the competition for audiences can be won with non-violent shows.

Second Half Is A Better Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Compared to Sunday's opening installment of "Eleanor and Franklin" on ABC, tonight's concluding episode is as different as night and day, if we may coin a phrase.

It's excellent and well worth two hours of your time. Sunday's effort, dramatizing the formative years of Eleanor Roosevelt and ending with the start of her 40-year marriage to Franklin D. Roosevelt, was so dull you almost could hear it snore.

Not so tonight's episode, covering the couple's life together from 1913, when FDR was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, to his first election as President during the depression. Only one scene is poor.

It's at the end, after Roosevelt's death in Warm Springs, Ga., in 1945. Two reporters aboard the train bearing his body back to Washington pay their respects to Mrs. Roosevelt in language suggesting they graduated summa cum laudam from the University of Fawning.

Otherwise, I've no beefs about the show, although others will gripe that it almost entirely avoids the political side of the Roosevelts in favor of the drama of their personal life.

Well, that's okay. I'm tired of political stories, anyway. The shot begins in April 1945, with a sensitive, moving scene of Mrs. Roosevelt arriving at the train station in Warm Springs to accompany the flag-draped casket of her husband back to Washington.

As in the first show, their story is told in flashbacks to the earlier years, punctuated here by brief, recurring scenes of the widow alone with her memories in the funeral train, going home.

The program centers on two personal crises: FDR's summer romance in 1914 with Lucy Mercer, his wife's pretty social secretary, and his 1921 bout with the polio that crippled him for life.

After Eleanor discovers the affair, a council of heart is held with Roosevelt, his over-protective mother and her. Eleanor offers him a divorce, his mother reminds all it would end his political career and an uneasy truce is arranged on the condition he never see Miss Mercer again.

When he's stricken with polio, Eleanor turns to the task of keeping his political ambitions alive, despite his mother's desire that he retire, move his family to Hyde Park and live with her.

With the sardonic, yet gentle prodding of FDR's longtime political strategist, Louis Howe, Eleanor takes on the additional task of keeping the Roosevelt name before the public while he's recuperating.

Jane Alexander's performance as Eleanor is, as it was in the first show, brilliant. Both she and Ed Flanders, who turns in a fine job tonight as Howe, each deserve an Emmy, while honorable mention at award time should go to Edward Hermann, cast as FDR.

As in the first show, the photography by Paul Lohmann is excellent, ditto the music score by John Barry. James Costigan, who wrote Sunday's bad script, more than redeems himself tonight.

Committee Is Announced

The Pitt County PTA Council bi-racial advisory committee, has been chosen for the 1975-76 school year. Members include: Rev. Alfred Cates, chairman; Richard Johnson, Blainie Moye, Jack Edwards, Nora Gatlin, Lynn Hunsucker, Mildred Ward, Sidney Suggs, Cathy Ward, Claude Ward, Lolita Williams, Ernest Hooks, Hunter Edwards, Jenny Buck, Carol Gooding, and Mamie Little.

Some tasks the committee plan to accomplish during the next school year include: to function as a catalyst for bi-racial cooperation in their respective school communities; to serve as resource persons in the district-wide communities network to be established; to recruit additional resource persons from the community for active participation in the operational activities of this project; and to meet with local, state and national groups for the purpose of gaining new knowledge and new insight regarding group dynamics, human relations and innovative educational models.

Three physicians from the New York City suburb of East Meadow said several cases of serious illness and one death had occurred among persons given liquid silicone injections to enhance breasts. Two of the cases were transsexual men. Tests showed the silicone had migrated through the body.

CHICAGO (UPI) — New evidence of the danger of liquid silicone injections for enlarging breasts was reported recently by the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

The first step in determining eligibility requires a head of household to apply at the local welfare office, taking along papers verifying home address, number of persons in household, amount of money received per month, and amount spent for doctor bills and rents.

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The aviation shape or a variation of it is the most popular wire frame eyeglass pattern for men, says the Optical Manufacturers Association.

Plastic frames in shapes known as big eyes are popular with women. Other favorites include sculptured designs, modified geometric, round and butterfly shapes.

The association suggests wide frames with low bridges for de-emphasizing long noses, and tinted lenses to camouflage deep circles under the eyes.

NEW YORK (AP) — Space satellites are orbiting the earth in search of mineral deposits, reports Engineering and Mining Journal.

This "far-out approach to exploration" to supplement ground studies, is now in its early stages and in time could provide a significant breakthrough in finding metallic ore deposits, says the publication.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q854 ♠J752 ♠6 ♠A965

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Dble. Pass ?

* Preemptive

What action do you take?

A.—Bid four diamonds. In view of partner's takeout double and your initial pass over East's preemptive two diamond bid, you could hardly have a better hand. The way to advise your partner of your unexpected strength is to cue-bid the enemy suit. This hand may produce a slam.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9862 ♠J10743 ♠K107 ♠6

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1 ♠ Dble. 3 ♠ Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Opposite a partner who is forcing you to bid at the three-level vulnerable, you have quite a good hand and a bid of three hearts really doesn't do it justice. The choice is between four hearts and a cue-bid of four clubs, asking partner to pick a suit, and we prefer the former. At a heart contract you may be able to dispose of a spade loser of partner's diamonds.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South with 70 on score you hold:
♠7 ♠K965 ♠A92 ♠AK76

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. The opponents may be stealing from you, but there is no way for you to safely enter the auction. A penalty double would be ideal, but that action would be for takeout and partner will almost surely bid some number of spades. Be satisfied with a large loss.

An Equivalent To Nero's Story

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a question as to whether or not Emperor Nero actually fiddled while Rome burned. But the American Revolution apparently did have a factual equivalent to that story.

According to a special Bicentennial section in the 1976 edition of the Rand McNally Road Atlas, British Generals Clinton and Cornwallis lost the Revolutionary battles of Harlem Heights and Long Island in September 1776, while an American woman wine and dined them.

The atlas reports that Mary Lindley Murray, the patriot wife of a Tory merchant, entertained the officers with dinner and drink while Washington's army escaped British traps at both combat sites.

Penitentiary Training Staff

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer
PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP) — Correctional officers at the Mississippi State Penitentiary are using their heads rather than their hands in an innovative training program to professionalize the prison staff.

The program, handiwork of veteran correctional specialist Lonnie Herring, has drawn national attention.

"A few years ago people in other states would ask us 'what have you done now at your state penitentiary,'" said Herring. "Now they are asking us how we are doing it—that's a welcome change."

Mississippi's penitentiary, a century-old farming community spread over 20,000 acres in the fertile Delta, has been the center of controversy in recent years.

A landmark federal court ruling in 1972 declared conditions at the prison unconstitutional and wholesale changes were ordered. The court cited old inmate housing, armed convicts used as guards and the conduct of some correctional officers.

The state, in cooperation with federal agencies, launched a building program designed to provide modern, centralized housing facilities for inmates and the controversial convict guards were replaced with civilian correctional officers.

As part of the effort to upgrade the prison, Supt. Jack K. Reed said he hired Herring from the Arkansas correctional system two years ago.

Herring explained that the prison's training program was designed to provide new officers with not only the basic correctional skills, but with "human decency skills."

"We try to help the officer relate to himself, then to the offender in a humane manner," Herring said. "We want him to understand the offender but we want him to still hold the line in being fair, firm and impartial."

"Our program is unique because it helps the correctional officer cope with everyday pressures in relating to and controlling the offender."

The program incorporated techniques suggested by various correctional agencies plus Herring's own ideas.

Herring and Reed said the Navy had checked into their prison program and asked Herring to train Navy correctional officers. And they said federal correctional agencies were seeking information on how to apply the program to other prisons.

Herring, asked to serve as a consultant to the National Institute of Corrections, said he found such requests gratifying because "we used to go to these people for help and now it's our turn to help them."

He said correctional officials in other states had indicated they would like to send their officers to Parchman for training.

Herring said that before the program was initiated, the prison's officers were often accused of operating "by the old bull of the woods principle—the swift kick in the pants."

"But that has changed and we're just not having incidents involving our correctional officers and offenders," he said. "For a while it was kind of hard for the inmates to realize what was going on but now I think they are looking up to our officers instead of down on them."

"When I first came here, officer morale was at rock bottom. But thanks to a concerned prison administration our some 340 officers now have a positive attitude. They know what their function is and what the penitentiary philosophy is."

CLASS

Low-Key Chairman In House Armed Services Body

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—When Rep. F. Edward Hebert announced his intention to seek an 18th term in Congress, the Louisiana Democrat didn't shy away from linking the nation's military posture to his leadership of the House Armed Services Committee.

"I cannot afford to dilute our military strength by removing from the chair of the House Armed Services Committee an individual who has stood solidly and firmly behind the uniforms that held the flag high," Hebert asserted.

The one-time New Orleans newspaperman added that "the fight against the puny patriot and the weak-kneed citizen cannot falter."

Ten months later, on Jan. 16, 1975, in a Democratic caucus battle spearheaded by liberals and clinched by the votes of a large group of freshman members, Hebert was deposed as chairman of the House panel which has authority over about one-third of the Pentagon's total budget.

It may be debatable whether there's been any faltering in the fight against puny patriots and weak-kneed citizens.

However, many members of the Armed Services Committee say that in the year since Hebert was replaced as chairman by Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., the change primarily has involved personal style and tone rather than any significant shift on defense policy.

"Changing the chairman changes the style of the committee, changes the tone, changes the procedures a lot," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a persistent Pentagon critic who played a leading role in Hebert's ouster.

But he noted that "ultimately what the committee decides to do is determined more by the members than anything else — and the membership is still very hawkish conservative."

Aspin said that by contrast with Hebert's hard-line, outspoken approach, "Price is a very low-key kind of fellow, just naturally. So he isn't going to foist his opinion off on people. But I don't see any evidence that the committee is drifting. I think he's been a very good chairman."

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., among the panel's more conservative members, commented that "there hasn't been any change in substance" because Price, while more liberal than Hebert on most domestic issues, is "just as firmly committed to a strong national defense."

Ichord added that "there has been a change in style in that I think Mel Price is more generous with some of the new members who are questioning our defense posture, our defense spending — he's more generous with the allotment of time (to speak at hearings) than Hebert would have been."

One of those new members on the committee, elected in the 1974 post-Watergate Democratic sweep, is Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y.

Downey said the new congressional budget process has had a major impact on the way Congress deals with defense issues.

"I think that the budget process ... is far more important than the fact that Eddie's no longer the chairman of the committee," he said.

Downey noted that the committee had spent several days last month hearing testimony by witnesses critical of the Pentagon, suggesting ways of substantially cutting defense expenditures. They stressed a need to crack down on cost overruns by defense contractors.

"If we really started to reward the frugal and punish the profligate, it's conceivable we could have real growth in terms of weapons without having to spend more over-all," Downey said.

Liberals on the committee, however, have been split over what kind of strategy to adopt for attempting to hold the line on the defense budget.

Aspin favors an amendment that would impose a flat ceiling on defense expenditures, allowing the Defense Department to trim specific programs to come within the limit.

Another approach calls for drawing up a detailed alternative defense budget, then offering it as a substitute for the budget requested by the Pentagon and approved — generally with few sizable cuts — by the committee's conservative majority.

The alternative budget was tried last year by a group including Reps. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.; Lucien Nedzi, D-Mo.; Bob Carr, D-Mich.; Ronald Dellums, D-Calif.; Jim Lloyd, D-Calif., and Downey.

But they abandoned the proposal after Aspin refused to agree to it. Rep. Schroeder said Aspin had gained "high visibility" because of his frequent press disclosures of Pentagon boondoggles and "the rest of us just don't have any pull, we really don't."

Aspin's ceiling amendment to a $32 billion weapons authorization bill, however, was defeated when it came before the House last spring, amid an upsurge of concern over bolstering U.S. commitments in the wake of the Indochina defeat and the Mayaguez incident.

Still, Aspin contends that "they're crazy if they think you can offer an alternative defense budget on the floor and get any credibility for it at all. It's just the most absurd idea in the world. You get nit-picked to death" on specific items of the plan.

"The thing that Congress can do is to say: 'This is how much money we ought to spend on defense.' Let's not get bogged down in the details of it because most congressmen can't handle that question," he said.

The irreverent, budget-cutting stance taken by the committee's young liberals is clearly galling to older, more pro-Pentagon members such as Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala.

"I've been here for 10 years now, going over defense budgets and hearing testimony and talking with witnesses and so forth," said Dickinson. "Then these people come on board and they haven't been here six months and they want to cut billions out of defense."

"They don't have any real feel for what's needed or not needed, they can't have in that short a time. And to arbitrarily take a meat-ax approach, to go in and to start cutting things — I would certainly label that irresponsible," Dickinson said.

The Armed Services Committee's responsibilities and influence have expanded considerably since the panel was formed under the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946. Previously, all military matters had been handled by the Appropriations Committee.

While at first Armed Services had jurisdiction only over military organization, policy and manpower through the draft, in 1959 the committee took over responsibility for setting ceilings on funds appropriated for ships, aircraft and missiles.

By now, the committee's scope has grown to cover procurement of all weapons and weapons systems, research, development, testing and evaluation of weapons and communications projects, as well as military construction programs.

This expansion of responsibilities has required a larger staff, with more specialists capable of dissecting the Byzantine technicalities of Pentagon weaponry requests.

Some members interviewed said that although the staff had been beefed up by Price as chairman, it still didn't compare well with the staff of the Appropriations Committee.

Ichord said the staff situation was "a real problem. I think we still have to rely on the military too much for research material."

However, Price said Armed Services was able to draw on resources of the General Accounting Office, the congressional Office of Technology Assessment and other agencies.

"We're not scraping for personnel when and if we need them," he said.

Rep. Jack Brinkley, D-Ga., noted that "the Hebert influence is still there, through the staff.... But that's as it should be, because Price and Hebert enjoyed the same posture themselves toward a strong military, toward adequate funding for the military."

Brinkley noted that even after losing the chairmanship, Hebert "hasn't gone off into a corner and pouted — he's been there.... He's been a contributing member."

Hebert himself said he believes Price "has done a magnificent job" in heading the committee. But he hasn't mellowed his views about the traditional role of committee chairmen in Congress, calling the new House system relying on the caucus "ridiculous and stupid."

"You now have a flim-flam game going," Hebert told a reporter. "Every chairman now has got to be politicking, every chairman is a candidate running for office.... That's got to cut down on the effectiveness of any chairman."

Hebert, who before going to Congress had worked as city editor of the New Orleans States, declared:

"There's only one way you can be a good chairman or a good city editor — you've got to be a bastard and a son-of-a-bitch. And if you're not either one of them, you're not going to be good at either job. You've got to have the guts to put your foot down."

Snowstorm In New England

By The Associated Press
A major snowstorm hit most of New England overnight, dumping eight inches of snow in some areas and creating hazardous driving conditions.

The National Weather Service said eight inches had fallen at Logan International Airport in Boston, and up to 10 inches was expected.

Traffic crews and snowplows were called out Sunday evening and early today.

Most of the rest of the eastern seaboard also became dangerous for travel today.

Travelers' advisories and heavy snow warnings were widespread in the pre-dawn hours. Up to six inches of snow was expected in northern sections, and drifting was considered likely, thanks to gusting winds. Roads were covered with ice in eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D.C.

Ice and dense fog plagued eastern Tennessee, and fog alone accounted for advisories in portions of the Virginias, Alabama, Mississippi and northern Louisiana.

Travelers' advisories were also issued for the Northwest. There was heavy snow in the mountains of Oregon and eastern Idaho.
