

Russian Naval Buildup Near Angola Seen

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Based on recent movements by Russian warships, U.S. intelligence sources say the Soviet Union may be preparing a further buildup of its naval strength off the West African coast within cruising distance of Angola.

reported presence of four Russian naval tankers, which U.S. experts say could enable the Soviet navy to sustain a larger force than is now located within a few days' cruising distance from Angola.

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence has been tracking a 19,000-ton Sverdlov class cruiser, which has moved through the western Mediterranean toward Gibraltar in recent days, and a 5,200-ton Kashin class guided-missile destroyer which has been spotted southeast of Portugal.

The destination of these warships still is uncertain, but intelligence reports reaching the Pentagon suggest they may be sent to reinforce other Russian naval vessels already off West Africa.

The White House has expressed dismay at the growth of Soviet naval power in the area at a time when the United States is pushing for an end to outside intervention in Angola's civil war.

Within the past two weeks, Russia has sent a 7,500-ton Kresta II class guided-missile cruiser and a 3,900-ton Kotlin class guided-missile destroyer into West African waters. Previously, the Soviet Navy had positioned an amphibious ship off Angola.

None of these ships now is close to the Angolan coast, but their presence in the West African area is regarded by U.S. officials as a display of Soviet military muscle designed by Moscow to influence the outcome of the Angolan civil war in favor of the pro-Communist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

Despite persistent rumors to the contrary, the Pentagon insists that U.S. naval forces are thousands of miles away from Angola.

District 2 School Board Members Hear Candidate

By SUSAN QUINN

"It is high time county commissioners and school board members work together in a spirit of cooperation and trust to improve North Carolina's educational system," Waverly Akins told 170 area school board members, educators, and officials at the Annual District No. 2 meeting of the North Carolina School Boards Association at North Pitt Wednesday.

Akins, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, told the school board members that all parts of government including the school systems, should be evaluated from the federal to the local governments and "we should decide what we expect from the government."

Akins favored local government as a "body of implementation" and the federal government as a "body of direction."

Immediate past president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, Akins, was partly responsible for the annual conference between commissioners and the school boards.

Recreation Board Okays Some Tennis Night Play

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Revocation of a decision made earlier to cut off night lights at all tennis courts during January and February and the passage of a new ruling that will permit limited night playing of tennis was taken Wednesday night at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission.

Recreation Department Boyd Lee informed the board that numerous requests had been received asking that the earlier decision be lifted or modified as a number of dedicated tennis players said they wanted to continue night playing of tennis even during the winter nights.

"We have worked out a plan which I feel will be a solution, one that will let those who want play year-round and still keep down the costs for utilities," Lee said in introducing his recommendation.

Further Loans To NYC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is extending another $140 million in loans to New York City today although a new study says the city is behind in its budget-cutting efforts and may have trouble repaying federal loans without seeking new revenues.

A report prepared by the Arthur Andersen & Co. accounting firm also found that New York may not be able to return to the public bond market in 1978, a key goal of the federal aid program, unless the city immediately improves its accounting procedures.

"Budgeted expenditures were to be reduced by $110 million in fiscal 1976, but only about $12 million of projected savings has been achieved to date," Andersen said in its report dated Dec. 29.

In New York, a spokesman for Mayor Abraham Beame said the city already is improving its accounting methods and said Andersen's audit is based on month-old figures.

TRANSPORTATION NEEDED
My daughter needs to attend a special school program in Greenville. We need a responsible adult to provide transportation for her from Farmville to Greenville each morning about 8:30 and back home each afternoon about 2 o'clock. A mileage payment of 15 cents per mile is being offered by the state because there is no public education program in this school district suited to my child's needs. Mrs. J. S.

Mrs. S. does not have a telephone at home, but anyone who can help may call 756-4432.

I sent off for an adapter cord for a personal calculator months ago. I have my canceled check for $10.95, but no cord. A. P.

We finally received a letter from the headquarters in Fort Wayne, Ind., saying that Bowmar had stopped producing calculators and had sold this portion of the corporation to IFR Associated Industries. Because the company was in the process of reorganizing, the Courts would not allow that your or any order be filled, they said. IFR would be paid to fulfill your order later.

Bitter Fighting By Beirut Rival Forces Continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Right-wing Christian forces launched a drive today on two Palestinian refugee camps controlling highways to the Christian Mt. Lebanon area as the Lebanese government reported the heaviest 24-hour toll in the nine-month-old civil war.

The Christians' apparent objective was to sever communications between the two adjacent hillside camps on the northeast side of Beirut. Army sources said if the Christians succeed in separating the camps, they could try to overrun them one at a time and disarm them.

Heavy fighting rocked Beirut and towns and villages in northern, eastern and southern Lebanon. A police spokesman said 49 persons were killed and 89 wounded during the night, raising the toll for 24 hours to 218 dead and 399 wounded.

Total casualties for the nine-month-old war rose to more than 8,900 dead and more than 26,600 wounded by official count.

Moslem Premier Rashid Karami proposed an unconditional cease-fire within 48 hours. Both sides rejected the proposal.

Christian President Suleiman Franjeh was reported making final arrangements for a week-end meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad in an attempt to complete a political plan that might end the war.

Four Different Ballots For N.C. Primaries March 23

Several key items relating to the March 23 presidential primaries and special elections have been pointed out to election board executive secretaries and board members in the state by Alex Brock, State Board of Elections executive secretary-director.

Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, said the memo pointed out that there will be four different ballots used on March 23, including a white ballot for the Democrat presidential voting, a green Republican presidential ballot, a pink constitutional amendments ballot, and blue statewide bond ballot.

Absentee ballots will be authorized and permitted in all of the issues, Brock reminded the officials, with Feb. 23 set as the first day for issuance of the ballots.

According to Brock, all voters who are property registered will be eligible to vote in the special elections on the constitutional amendments and state bond referendum. He emphasized, however, that only voters registered as affiliated with the Democrat or Republican parties shall be authorized to participate in the presidential preference primary.

In addition to the March 23 date, Brock reminded officials of several other important dates, including: closing of registration books at 5 p.m. on Feb. 23 for March 23 elections; March 17 as last day for voters to apply for absentee ballots; and March 22 as deadline for absentee ballots to be returned for counting no later than 6 p.m. Also, the county board canvas will be held on March 25 and the state board canvas is set for April 9.

Recreation Bd....

payment of the standard Recreation Department service fee for private use of recreation facilities.

From 5 to 6 p.m. on that date, a tribute is being planned honoring Greenville Dr. Andrew Best. Mebane explained that the event involved "quite a few more ramifications" other than a tribute to Dr. Best; that issues concerning doctors and health issues facing all North Carolina would be part of the program.

Commission members approved waiving the fee after it was established that the event will be open to the public without admission charges.

Another previously announced agenda item dealing with a request for waiver of service fee, one from the Hookerton District Youth Fellowship of Christian Church, was not heard. Lee said that a call was received informing him that planners did not have sufficient information in readiness to present their request at the January meeting.

In view of the increasing requests for waiver of service fees for use of Recreation Department facilities in connection with non-profit events, commission members at the regular February meeting will re-examine the current policy under which exceptions are made to charging a standard fee. (It was suggested that Hookerton Youth Fellowship request be considered regardless of what new policy might be established since the request is already on file — but that no new requests for exception be considered until after a new policy ruling is established.)

For some years, as a public service, the Recreation Commission has considered requests for use of various recreation facilities for non-profit private gatherings and events when such activities did not conflict with scheduled recreation programs.

For approved events, an hourly fee of $25 was established to cover basic costs — an off-duty Recreation Department employee on hand to supervise use of the building; to provide for costs of clean-up; and to help pay for utility costs.

The $25 hourly fee was established as the minimum amount needed to cover basic expenses incurred in non-recreation use of facilities. The fee has never been intended as a profit-making program for the Recreation Department. Lee said the fee simply provided "a break-even point" based on actual cost-figures.

Arrest 4 Men For Break-In

Greenville police early today arrested four local men on charges of breaking and entering a coin operated machine at a Laundrette on Dickinson Avenue near the Tenth Street intersection.

Chief Glenn Cannon said patrolling policemen at 12:15 a.m. discovered the alleged break-in and arrested Willie Ray Brown and William Earl Brown, both 21 and both of 1406 Myrtle Ave., Ricky Earl Tell, 18 of 206 Moore St. and Thaddeus Ray Clemons, 19, of 414 Moore St., at the scene.

Cannon said keys allegedly taken from a local drink bottling company were used to gain access to the drink machine.

Bond for the four was set at $200 each, pending a hearing of the cases in District Court.

Youth Faces Execution

RALEIGH (AP)—A 17-year-old Raleigh youth faces a death sentence after a jury convicted him Wednesday of first degree murder in the slaying of a restaurant manager during a robbery last May 17.

Audwin Brent Jackson showed no emotion as the verdict was returned. Members of his family sobbed.

Judge Henry A. McKinnon Jr. asked Jackson if he had anything to say before the death sentence was imposed. The youth turned toward the courtroom spectators and said, "I'm innocent."

He was charged with killing Kirk Dugger Jones, 24, night manager of McDonald's restaurant on Western Boulevard in Raleigh.

March 5 was set as the execution date by Judge McKinnon, but it will be delayed by a mandatory appeal to the State Supreme Court.

The jury deliberated about four hours before returning the verdict. Harry Bulliet Fort, 20, of Raleigh, was the main witness against Jackson. He told the court he went with Jackson to the restaurant early the morning of May 17 to commit a robbery. Fort said he waited outside and heard two or three shots. He said the two fled. Fort was sentenced to 10 years in prison under a plea bargained agreement which allowed him to plead guilty to a lesser crime.

loss would be "way up in the millions of dollars" as he surveyed the burned out wreckage of his furniture plant, which was destroyed in a fire Wednesday.

Fire broke out in the finishing room of the Otis L. Broyhill Furniture Co. plant shortly after 11 a.m. and raged for nearly eight hours, destroying raw materials, finished products and equipment, before being brought under control.

The plant's 450 workers evacuated the plant and escaped injury, but foreman Robert Causby said very little of the facility was saved.

Broyhill said a statement of the loss and plans for the future of the Marion operation would be made at the Broyhill offices in Lenoir today or Friday.

Arrest Man On 2 Fraud Charges

Jimmy Lee Williams, 24, of Smith's Trailer Ct. has been arrested by Greenville police on two fraud charges following investigation of incidents that occurred at two local banks earlier this month.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Williams allegedly obtained about $1,500 from North Carolina National Bank and $300 from the Bank of North Carolina fraudulently between January 6 and January 16.

Bond for Williams was set at $2,500 on each of the two counts, pending hearing of the case in court.

Beliefs Prevent Joining Union

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Clarita Michaud, an employee of a paper company for five years, says her religious beliefs as a Seventh-day Adventist prevent her from joining a union.

Maine Superior Court Judge Lewis I. Naiman issued a preliminary order on Wednesday blocking Oxford Paper Co. from firing Mrs. Michaud until it makes a reasonable effort to find her a union-exempt job.

The United Paperworkers International Union, AFL-CIO, which sought to have Mrs. Michaud dismissed under a closed-shop clause, agreed to allow her to remain on the job without paying the $6-a-month dues until the court case is settled.

He said he did not know what insurance coverage the three-acre plant had.

Causby said the blaze started in the finishing room when a steam pipe not ordinarily used was turned on and became so hot it ignited laquer mist in the room.

"I've lived here 32 years, and I don't remember a fire this bad," he said. "We're lucky, with the wind we've had, that we didn't lose any homes around here."

The foreman said flames spread quickly from the finishing room to other buildings, including a building where $3 to $4 million worth of furniture was stored.

Causby said a 300,000-gallon storage tank of water on the plant premises was used to fight the flames at the outset. He said the tank was full but ran dry before the flames could be extinguished.

A Marion Fire Department spokesman said city water was turned off in the late afternoon when the reservoir level dropped dangerously low.

Water was trucked from a textile mill pond and several of the nine fire departments which helped battle the flames also brought pumper trucks with water.

As the fire raged out of control in the afternoon, firemen hosed down houses in the immediate area as a precaution against the flames spreading.

Firemen also poured a steady stream on several large tanks of laquer, for fear the heat would cause the tanks to explode.

Young Clothing Designer Making Tuna Popular With Success Of Her Own Company Pastas In Sicily

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion designer Alice Blaine, unmarried, started her own business a year and a half ago, when DESIGNER Alice Blaine drapes a silk blouse, with deep cowl neck that unfolds to become a hood, on her house model. Miss Blaine teams the top with tri-color silk sash and silk drawstring pants which she also designed.

she was only 30, in a recession, to design and hand make expensive, luxurious women's clothes. If that sounds foolhardy, she says, everybody else certainly told her it was at the time. Factors, who are the money-lenders of the fashion industry, gave her three weeks. The accountant she hired told her he probably wouldn't have to file forms with the government because she probably wouldn't last in business 20 weeks.

She got discouraged, but at the same time more determined. And when 1975's accounting is done — by an accountant with more faith in her, or at least more tact — she says, "I expect to have sold $1 million for the year."

So far she has produced blouses, skirts, pants and suits. A typical cutting is 200 to 300 of each. She is working on a dress which will be ready in a few months. Most of the fabric is silk, with some fine worsted and gabardine, some cashmere.

Psychologically, she says, she thought American women were ready for such luxury clothes, and only European designers were producing them. Her customers are "A. Those people who are rich, who don't ask price. They always have money to buy something."

"B. People who do ask price and want value for their money. They ask, 'Will this last?' 'Will I get tired of it?' 'Will I feel great when I wear it?' 'Is it beautiful?'"

"That's the philosophy behind investment buying. In a recession, people are no longer frivolous in their buying. They don't buy five T-shirts in different colors because they're $10.

"Silk is strong and durable. They used to make parachutes out of it. The Chinese made sheets out of it and the thread would wear out before the sheets and they'd sew them up again."

"There are a lot of pitfalls to cutting and sewing silk; silk shirts have to be cut one at a time and it's expensive, but I like to use fabrics that feel wonderful when you put them on. Part of clothes being important and exciting is how they make you feel when you wear them. Clothes are a psychological extension of our personalities."

"If you love something it should last through continuous wearing. The more you wear a silk shirt, the more it shapes your body and the softer it gets. After you lose respect for the price, you just wear it to death — tucked in, belted, tied at the waist, with a sweater over."

Miss Blaine's clothes are mostly hand sewn. What machine sewing is done she contracts out, usually to a family of craftsmen with a few sewing machines in the basement of their home.

Skirts are long, mid-calf, straight or with 38 pleats sewed down about eight inches — a style that's not often made, she says, because each pleat has to be basted before it's sewed down, or skin tight down to the knee, with a flounce effect there, for contrast. "That one comes in under your behind. It's quite a new shape; I'm always experimenting with new shapes. Quite a few department stores and boutiques around the country have done well with it.

"The hips, the behind and the stomach are becoming erogenous zones for clothes. Most of the detail in the past has been across the chest."

Showing tiny French seams, so that a garment really could be worn inside out, Miss Blaine says, "Nobody makes clothes so carefully."

However, she says, the woman who wants to buy something because the other members of her bridge club will recognize the name of the designer isn't a customer of hers.

She's not anxious for fame, saying, "I'm not on a star trip," and says she gets satisfaction knowing that she has made a garment which is beautiful and will last, continuing to look good.

Before she started the business, she had been designing for several sportswear manufacturers. There, a typical problem was looking at two bolts of material and trying to decide which the boss would like better, a rather unreal feeling. Now she says, the problems are real — which fabric is better, will cut better, look better finished.

But at first, the problems were not so enjoyable. The textile business runs on credit, she explains. She orders a bolt of material, say for $10. A factor pays the fabric maker $9.98 and 60 days later, she pays the factor.

The factors would phone, ask if she was Miss or Mrs., who was running the company, who was advising the company, use jargon she didn't understand, then ask in a nasty tone, did she know what she was doing? "It was infuriating. Would they have asked a Mr. Blaine if he was married? The problem was that there was no man involved in the business and it was unthinkable to them that a woman can run a business. Now we've got a track record, but at first I had to buy a lot of fabric by cash."

"Also, there's a lot of schlepping in this business. A 100-yard bolt of gabardine weighs 112 pounds. Three of us women would pick it up. We didn't have the luxury of hiring a man to schlepp."

For centuries the meat of the tuna has been eaten by people around the world, because it tastes good, is readily available and makes a filling meal. And in these days of soaring food costs, the relatively reasonable price of tuna is an added inducement.

There is also the fact that tuna is low in calories and saturated fats and high in protein, which gives it added luster for the diet-conscious consumer.

Albacore, the only white-meat tuna, ranges from Southern California to Mexican waters, sometimes going as far north as Puget Sound. The yellowfin, a light-meat tuna which dominates the pack, may be found from the Gulf of California south to the waters of northern Chile.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A new baby-sitter once came to the house where I introduced her to the kids. She looked from one to the other, then carefully scrutinized their father and me and said, "What happened? None of you match."

I said, "I phoned 'em in." I could have. We have one of the most dissimilar, mismatched, variety-packed families you ever laid eyes on. No one has the same hair coloring, the same color of eyes or the same temperament.

One tans, one burns, one sulks, one talks you to death, one is freckled, one is bronze, one tall and lean, one chubby and close to the ground.

I don't think we ever really had a sense of humor about children until we were thrown a brown-eyed, freckled nose, redhead. Now, they're a real conversation piece.

One day at the bus stop a strange woman (not to be confused with a woman who is a stranger) approached me and said, "Is this your son?"

I nodded. "Does his father have red hair?"

I said, "No."

"Did you have him late in life?"

I bristled, "Why do you ask?"

"Well," she smiled, "my husband and I were blessed with a redhead very late in life. I had a friend who said one word every time she looked at him... 'Rust!'"

I broke up every time I thought about it. From then on my crazy quilt family became a joy. I became a woman of mystery. When carry-out boys said, "Does his father have red hair?" I'd reply huskily, "I can't remember."

I could change the color of my own hair four times a year and still look related to someone in the family.

But the greatest advantage to a family of opposites happened one Sunday in Church. My son was sitting in the pew ahead of me where I duly noted there was a chunk of hair missing where before had been bubble gum. He had grabbed his school jacket with the zipper hanging loose down the front. And when he took it off, he revealed to the entire congregation words to live by: "SAVE WATER: BATHE WITH SOMEONE YOU LOVE."

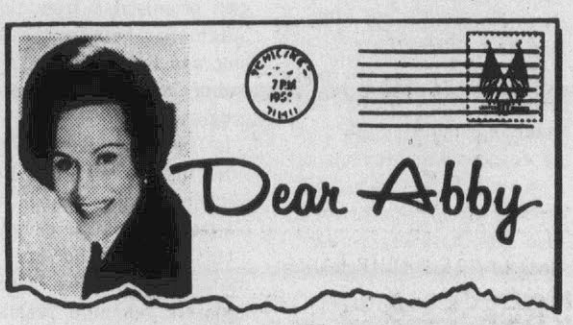

A woman next to me whispered, "Can you imagine a mother sending a boy to church like that?"

I shook my head in disgust and whispered back, "She probably phoned him in."

Brushing a loaf of yeast bread with slightly beaten egg white before it goes in the oven helps produce a crisp crust. Because you need only a small amount of the egg white, you can pour the rest of it into a small jar and put it in the freezer for use another time.

Dear Abby

Wife Sick Of Bad Hospital Jokes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had a lot of back surgery, which required several long stays in the hospital. While there, a couple were friendly with sent him get-well cards regularly, which we both appreciated, but all their cards had the same theme: "The male patient was fooling around with his nurses."

After my husband came home, this couple visited him, and their conversation was full of teasing about the nurses giving him massages, backrubs and baths. I was even asked point blank if I wasn't afraid my husband would run off with a pretty young nurse.

Whenever we are with this couple now, they get back on the pretty young nurse subject until I am sick of hearing it. Perhaps because I am neither young nor pretty and have such a meager quotient of self-esteem, I'm depressed for days about these remarks, especially when they are made in the presence of others, which is often the case.

My husband never stands up for me, which may indicate that he enjoys the talk.

What can I do to put an end to this? I've tried to avoid being with this couple, but I can't do that forever.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Bring your feelings out in the open and tell them exactly what you've told me. After that they wouldn't dare "kid" you in that vein again.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has me upset. My husband and I must attend classes one evening a week, and we have one child who is deaf.

A young woman who lives in our apartment building has two small children, and she is willing to babysit for us, but she refuses to take any money.

Her husband is unemployed, and I know they could use the money, but I gave her a check once, and she tore it up. Things would be okay if I could sit with her kids in return, but they can't afford to go any place.

I threatened to find another sitter, but she looked so hurt. Should I accept it as a blessing in disguise?

Any suggestions will be appreciated.

BEWILDERED

DEAR BE: Put a ribbon on a basket and fill it with fresh fruit, canned foods and other goodies, and present it to your generous, hard-to-repay neighbor.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, some time ago, you said that some airlines offered a course designed to help persons overcome their fear of flying.

I have a daughter-in-law who is terrified of flying, so I immediately telephoned American Airlines, TWA and United, and none of these airlines could help me.

Where do I go from here?

NEEDS HELP IN L.A.

DEAR NEEDS: My researchers advise me that such programs did at one time exist, but they seem to have disappeared into thin air. However, if someone out there knows of a course available in the Los Angeles area, please let me know.

In the meantime, phobias are best treated by psychologists and psychiatrists.

Dark Thought On A Drear Day

We want to get it straight, so we're going to take it slowly and recapitulate.

Candidate Ronald Reagan proposed cutting the federal budget by $90 billion.

Candidate Ronald Reagan said it could be done by simply shutting federal programs and services of roughly $90 billion in costs to the states (who, after all, were sharing that $90 billion plum).

That's what the man said, wasn't it?

To be plain ornery about candidates and their messages, we just don't see the point.

True, we think North Carolinians might see better money management of the programs in Raleigh than in Washington. Raleigh is closer, and Tar Heels are bound to have a better picture of needs and the filling thereof than offices in Washington.

But there's got to be more to it than that.

Maybe, in reading his script for the big budget-cutting plan the former Governor missed a page. Surely something more is involved.

All we can see in his proposal at the moment is just a shifting of some of the tax load from federal tax forms to state tax forms.

And because this is a particularly poor afternoon for contemplating taxes and politics, it is easy to imagine that once Washington shunted a very large part of its tax-and-spend burden to individual states it would strike out on a new tangent to rebuild its budget (and levels of revenue) back to former standards.

There seems no way out.

Campaigning Can Be Exhausting Work

Campaigning for any political office is taxing work and it is particularly exhausting when the office is the highest in the land—the presidency.

Tension and fatigue played a part in the hospitalization of former N.C. governor Terry Sanford. Fortunately physicians feel that there was no heart or coronary trouble involved and Sanford should be as good as new in a few days.

We are happy to read that Terry Sanford has no serious health problem, and we hope that none of the candidates will drive themselves to the point of exhaustion.

THIS AFTERNOON

No Caretaker SBI Role

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—It might be only natural to assume that a man rounding out 28 years with a state agency, that close to retirement, who suddenly finds himself in charge would play a cautious, caretaker role.

Not true of him, says Haywood R. Starling, the state's new top cop replacing Charles Dunn as chief of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Starling admits that he lost a few nights of sleep pondering the gut question: why put himself in such a vulnerable, politically explosive slot when he could play it safe, build three more years, and retire.

"And candidly, the money doesn't mean that much to me, since at my years of experience and salary, I will gain very little," Starling says.

An Honor

But what does mean something to him is the Bureau, which he confesses has meant a great deal to him in his 28 years on board, first as a junior identification officer, and subsequently as special agent in field and narcotics work, supervising agent in drugs and field investigation, assistant director, and finally—director.

It probably sounds a little old-fashioned, Starling concedes, but he cherishes things like legal and moral rightness, and "I did what I thought would be best for the Bureau and for the people of North Carolina—not necessarily what was best for myself."

A quiet, bespectacled man of 53 with only slightly thinning hair and both manner and appearance which would hardly attract attention in any surroundings, Starling says he hopes to have a number of good years in which to run the agency.

It is time, he feels, for a professional who knows the agency from the bottom up to take over. He is high in praise of the former director, Charles Dunn, a newspaperman and political operative who ran the Bureau for some six years.

Dunn, a smooth-talker and knowledgeable politician, was right for the agency at the time, Starling feels. Now, having established firmly the role and direction and gained widespread public support, it is time for a man from the ranks to run things, he feels.

Starling places his trust in experienced Bureau personnel ("If an SBI man had not been picked, I was at least pushing for experienced people to have a lot of input in the operation") as he plans to continue the role of the agency in assisting local police.

Major Shift

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten, in an interview during the selection process, said the man he picked would put emphasis on major crime, downplaying penny-ante gambling, busting marijuana smokers, and raiding local lodges.

Edmisten again referred to his ideas in introducing Starling as the new director: "helping local agencies solve long-pending cases . . . investigative squads with statewide mobility . . . caseloads on field agents can be lightened . . . campaign against hard drug manufacture and sale and increase the risk for those who continue to deal in death."

Starling agrees with Edmisten. Not that he condones the lesser crimes, but that he believes available manpower should be concentrated on major crimes—murder, robbery, rape, dope peddling.

Starling is Edmisten's man, "but I am more than just a caretaker. I will be setting policies directing the Bureau in all of its activities, following the Attorney General's philosophy," Starling said.

"We will use all the resources of the SBI in a most productive manner toward the end of prevention and deterrence of major crimes."

Time For Fiscal Surgery

Comparisons, they say, are odious, and Ronald Reagan finds himself these days in the midst of a comparison that is odious almost beyond the bearing. He is being compared to George McGovern. It is the most unkindest cut of all.

Four years ago this month, at the very outset of his serious campaign, McGovern unveiled a plan of welfare reform. The general idea was to give every man, woman and child in the country, regardless of income, an annual grant of $1,000. He proposed these "demograts," as they came to be called, in place of basic welfare payments. He proposed to pay for the grants through a soak-the-rich plan of tax increases. McGovern trotted out these modest proposals, and the roof fell in. He never got off the defensive thereafter.

Reagan, for his part, made a speech last September before the Chicago Executive Club, in which he proposed "nothing less than a systematic transfer of authority and resources to the states—a program of creative federalism for America's third century." Specifically, Reagan recommended that some $90 billion in federal programs be phased out. If this were done, he said, the federal budget could be balanced and federal taxes could be cut by $23 billion a year.

Reagan's foes, who seem to be legion, have clutched this proposal lovingly to their breasts. They are fetched by it. They profess never to have seen so beautiful a blunder. They cannot get enough of it. The speak of it incessantly. And Reagan, to his credit, has whetted their passion by spelling out, chapter and verse, precisely where he would make the $90 billion cuts.

McGovern's baby and Reagan's baby have this much in common: Both may be seen as the products of men with ideas. The difference is this: McGovern's idea was basically screwy. Reagan's idea is basically sound.

Federal spending, let us face it, is out of hand. With the best will in the world, neither Congress nor the White House can bring these monstrous outlays under control. The figures are literally beyond comprehension: The mind of man is incapable of comprehending the expenditure of more than a billion dollars a day. Recurring deficits—staggering deficits—have become an inflationary way of life. The fiscal cancer cries out for surgical relief.

And the governmental crisis is not merely a fiscal crisis. In the broadest sense, we face a political and philosophical crisis also. The old constitutional system, relying upon federalism and the separation of powers, is gasping for survival. Today the federal hand is everywhere; the constraints, the regimentation, the endless rules and regulations of executive agencies spread across the whole of society. We are smothering in benevolence.

Reagan's approach is truly conservative. In the language of George Mason, he proposes that we "recur to fundamentals." Let us systematically seek to restore those precepts of state and local responsibility that were among the foundation stones of our Republic. Let us undertake to confine the national government to those functions that are plainly national in scope; as for the rest, let us keep government close to the people governed.

Toward these wholesome ends, Reagan proposes, for example, gradually to abolish some $13.7 billion in federal aid to education. His critics are aghast. They are incredulous. Their scorn is boundless. But this is, of course, what ought to be done. He would not touch

Censor Gains Power

By FREDERICK C. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

The free flow of news suffered its most serious setback last year in India, where the government imposed rigid censorship on the domestic press and foreign correspondents for the first time since independence in 1947.

Elsewhere in the world, press freedoms suffered from Communist takeovers in Southeast Asia and from the demise of the Portuguese empire in Africa.

The fall of South Vietnam and Cambodia to Communist forces last spring, followed by the formal takeover of Laos by the Communist-led Pathet Lao, put the media in those countries under strict government control and left the rest of the world with little uncensored information about Indochina.

In Africa, the newly independent nations of Mozambique and Angola stifled the flow of news, and the rest of the continent was reported under ever tighter restrictions than a year ago.

The death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain gave rise to hopes for easing Western Europe's only formal press censorship.

The Helsinki Declaration signed by 35 nations last August promised a freer flow of information between the Soviet bloc and the West, but by the end of the year there was little progress.

In India, censorship guidelines introduced when Prime Minister Indira Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency June 26 were harsher than those that countries normally impose in wartime, prohibiting any effective reporting of anti-government news in general and anything that censors feel could denigrate the prime minister personally.

The Indian press reluctantly accepted censorship rather than risk closure of publications. Foreign dispatches were exempt from pre-censorship from July, although correspondents were still expected to censor their own dispatches according to the government guidelines.

Nevertheless, foreign news (Continued on page 8)

INSIDE REPORT

CIA: Ominous New Turn

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The anti-CIA orgy in Congress is about to take a potentially ominous new turn in the direction of super-oversight authority which could give Congress virtually equal powers with the administration in the whole field of intelligence.

This new turn is just the latest example of the headlong rush by Congress to grasp new authority over traditional executive prerogatives, fueled by Congress's own failure for decades to make rigorous use of the oversight powers it has always had over U. S. intelligence.

In preparation for six days of hearings before the Senate government operations committee starting Jan. 21, committee staffers, working closely with the staff of the Senate's Select Intelligence Committee, have completed draft legislation that is deeply troubling presidential experts in the intelligence field.

Little wonder. The draft legislation (considered so sensitive that the committee staff denies its existence) would set up a new Senate standing committee of nine members with unprecedented powers.

The heart of these powers is the right to complete information concerning "all intelligence and counterintelligence policies, programs and activities" in any way connected with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the National Security Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), and the intelligence and counterintelligence activities centered in the State, Treasury and Justice Departments.

That would place the nine-member Senate panel, called the Committee on National Intelligence and Surveillance, in oversight control not only of the CIA, but also of the individual military service intelligence units and — more important — the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

Experts who have studied the language of the draft legislation believe it may be broad enough to give the proposed new committee advance access not only to convert intelligence operations in foreign countries but to actual, day-to-day results of these and other, more routine operations in the intelligence-gathering area.

Considering the insatiable and unseemly appetite of Congressmen and Senators for the political glory that has been flowing so predictably from calculated leaks of secret intelligence information, this grant of authority over the government's world of intelligence might dry up all but the most prosaic intelligence work.

Indeed, even under the administration's present, highly-limited legal obligation to inform six key congressional committees before launching any new convert intelligence operation abroad, there has been no possibility of keeping the secrets secret. Both the medium-sized CIA paramilitary aid to anti-Soviet factions in Angola and the minuscule CIA financial aid to pro-Western political parties in Italy were leaked by Congressmen hostile to the policy and seeking personal gain in exposing it.

The draft legislation to be considered during the hearings later this month, moreover, would give the new committee "full access to the records and materials of the (Senate) select committee" on intelligence, which is due to expire later this year.

Considering the recent rash of politically-inspired intelligence leaks now confounding Ford administration policymakers, such a repository of secrets would be mouth-watering. Indeed, the draft legislation deals with that fact.

If "one or more members" of the new committee suspected that another member was guilty of leaking secrets, the committee would sit in judgment and consider "appropriate action against the (offending) member." But in today's sieve-like Capitol Hill security screen, such language poses little threat.

Even if it did, the tenure of membership on the proposed new committee would mitigate it. The panel is designed for continuously rotating membership, with three of its nine members to

To the editor:

Today marks the 47th birthday of the late Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Perhaps no other man offered so much hope and created so effective a technique for implementation for the masses as did this humble and noble servant. It is highly unfortunate that the colossal dream of Dr. King appears doomed for the memories of yesterday.

The major threat to the United States, I fervently believe, does not rest with the bitter conflict between the Arabs and the Israelis in the Middle East; the threat to this country does not rest with the civil strife in Angola; the threat to America does not rest with the foreign adversaries of this nation. The essence of the discord in the United States must be resolved within the fundamental framework of our human interrelationships, one to the other.

Through his temperate doctrine of non-violence, Dr. King had instituted the procedure by which human beings could express their opinions and be respected for that belief, whether one agreed or rejected it. Americans were approaching the zenith at which a man was treated as a man. Perhaps Americans rallied behind Dr. King since we were cognizant that the man was a victim, a target of the very policy he did not advocate. (The revelation of the ex-FBI Director's strong abhorrence for Dr. King only highlights this belief.) Whatever it was about Dr. King, he stands alone for the faith and hope he transmitted and inspired into all our lives. Surely, the man is missed.

By his faith in God and in people, by his direction, with his example, and through his bold leadership, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. had all of us bound for genuine respect and admiration for our fellowman. Our human interrelationships in America and abroad were prospering at the time of his death. The pity is that, ostensibly, the brilliance of his vision and mission today grows dimmer because we all permit it to happen.

40 Years Ago Today

January 15, 1936

The remains of 17 persons—victims of America's most disastrous airplane catastrophe—were recovered today from Arkansas' marsh country where they crashed last night.

The liner crashed on the Memphis-Little Rock leg of the regular New York-Los Angeles flight.

Coroner J.C. Crawford held that the 14 passengers and crew of three died by "accidental airplane crash." The dead include 12 men, four women and a child.

A Department of Commerce official predicted the cause of the disaster would probably never be known.

A Chicago lawyer claims he has knowledge of three men said to possess $22,000 of the ransom paid in the Lindbergh kidnaping. Bruno Hauptmann is scheduled to be executed in two days following his conviction in the case.

No concrete evidence of conspiracy has yet been turned up in the case.

A SPIRITUAL OFFENSIVE

A group of ministers were talking together at a district meeting. One of the ministers remarked that the church was too much on the defensive as regards the evils of our day. "Yes indeed," replied another minister with a grin, "I've resolved that when I get back to my church I'm going to be more offensive than I have ever been before."

Pick out the periods in history when the church has been popular and you will observe periods when it has contributed less than its usual quota of usefulness to the world. Note the times when men have hated the church and have gone after its adherents with fire and sword, and you will see health and vigor in all its enterprises.

A healthy church is always waging war against evil. When the church makes peace and sits back complacently with folded hands declaring that the world is a pretty good place after all, it's time to start a revolution in the church.

Unable Decide Cyclamate Risk

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

The best brains in science cannot answer the question of whether the artificial sweetener cyclamate is totally free of cancer risk, says a blue-ribbon panel that spent six months studying the problem for the government.

The committee concluded Tuesday that it could say only with 95 per cent probability that cyclamate, 30 to 50 times sweeter than sugar, does not cause cancer. The panel said there remains a nagging doubt over whether it may be a weak carcinogen.

The small degree of uncertainty seems certain to touch off a debate over what degree of safety should be required by government regulators. The scientific panel said that not even a proposed five-year experiment costing $8 million-$10 million and using 52,000 rats and hamsters could establish, with absolute certainty, that the government was wrong in 1969 when it banned the chemical from foods and drugs.

"Science today is just not good enough to answer this question to everyone's satisfaction," said the chairman, Dr. Arnold L. Brown of Mayo Medical School.

The panel's final report, to be submitted within a few weeks to the National Cancer Institute director for relay to the Food and Drug Administration, cautiously concludes that "present evidence does not establish the carcinogenicity of cyclamate or its metabolites in experimental animals."

The six scientists from universities expressed concern, however, that because some cyclamate-fed animals developed cancerous bladder tumors, this might indicate the sweetener is a weak carcinogen.

Noting the relatively limited sensitivity of current scientific methods, the committee concluded, "Although no chemical can be proven unequivocally to lack carcinogenicity with these techniques, ones with a significant carcinogenic hazard for humans could escape detection."

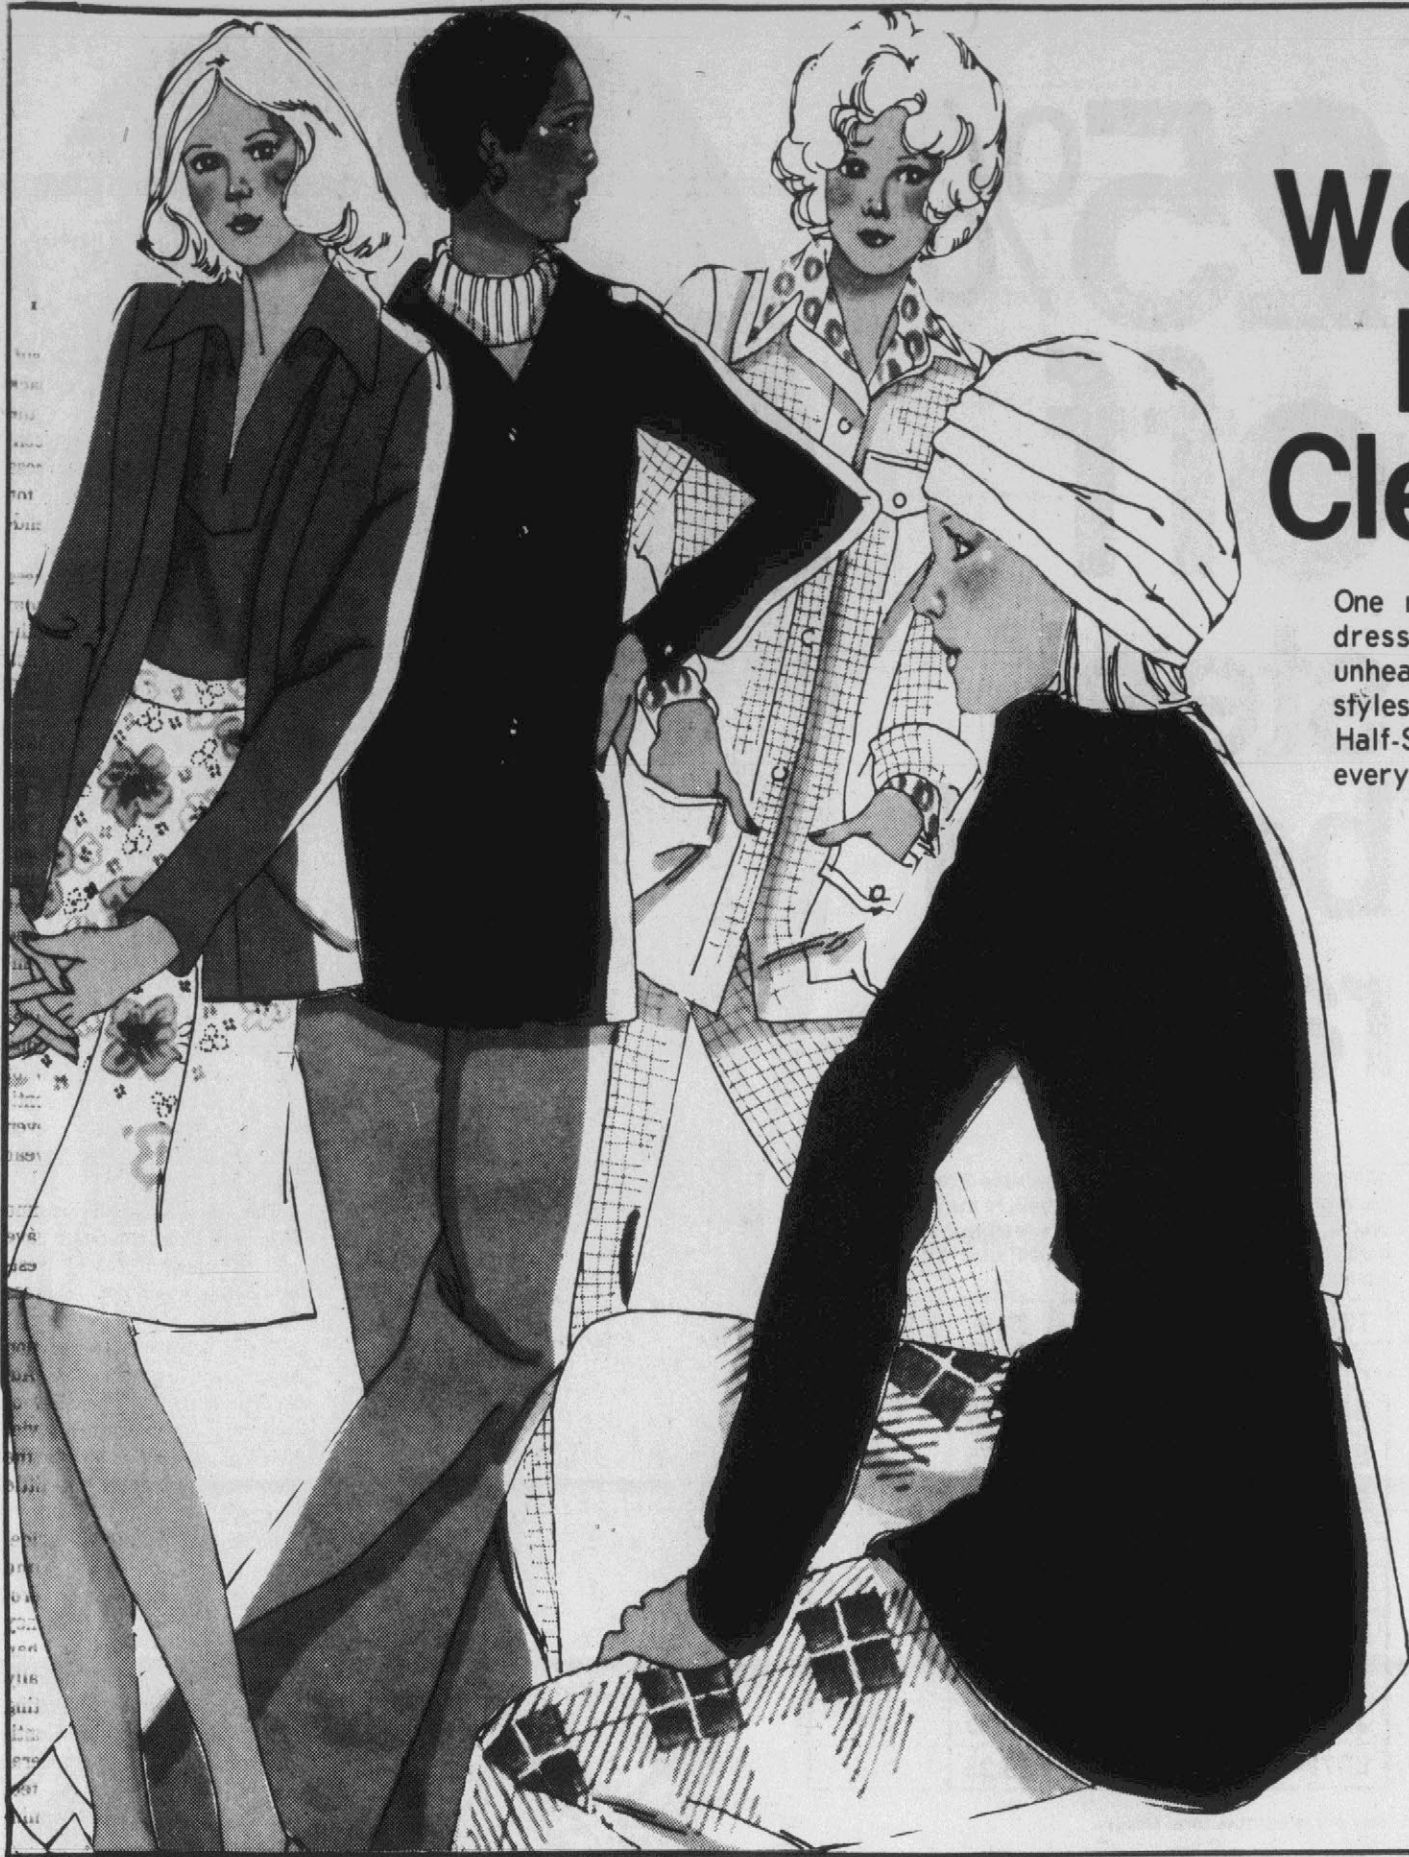

The careful wording of the report raised the question of how it would be received at the FDA. Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt of the FDA has said he would "really not be too happy about putting it (cyclamate) back on the market" if there was even the slightest chance it could cause cancer in any human.

"I'm looking for a clean bill of health, not a wishy-washy iffy answer on cyclamates," he said last month.

But Abbott Laboratories, which asked the FDA two years ago for permission to resume marketing cyclamate, argued that science's inability to show 100 per cent certainty should not be the basis for keeping it off the market.

The Calorie Control Council, representing diet soft-drink manufacturers who want to resume using cyclamate, also heralded the committee's conclusions as a victory for industry.

GROWING FAST—Tige, a four-month-old Bengal tiger, is already an armful for Hugh Oakes, manager of the Vancouver Game Farm in Aldergrove, 30 miles east of Vancouver. One of a litter of four, Tige weighs more than 70 pounds now and probably will weigh 500 pounds fully grown. Two other tigers in the litter have gone to a zoo in Germany. A fourth is in a Toronto zoo. Tige's mother, Mona, has had 18 kittens in the past three years. (CP Wirephoto)

Increasingly Dark Future In States' Fiscal Health

JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of the financial health of the states indicates that most states "face an increasingly bleak fiscal future" with spending increases outpacing increases in income.

"With few exceptions, state surpluses of previous years are gone," a statement with the survey reported. "Governors and legislatures, many of whom have already taken dramatic belt-tightening measures, are faced with further tax increases or spending cuts or both to keep their budgets in balance."

The 37-state survey found that estimated revenue for fiscal 1976 will increase 8 per cent. Expenditures are expected to reach $71 billion and revenue will total only $67.7 billion.

"This appears to indicate that the effects of the recession more than offset the revenue growth attributable to inflation," the report said.

"When you don't have the money, you have to raise taxes or cut spending, just when the recession demands that you do the reverse," said James Martin, deputy director of the National Governors Conference, which sponsored the survey.

In the statement, the organization said the study also indicated:

—The fiscal picture in energy-producing and agricultural states is more favorable than in heavily industrial states, where unemployment has been high.

—Welfare and Medicaid payments, driven up by recession, brought about major spending increases in fiscal 1975.

—The rate of increase in state government expenditures has been leveled by budget-balancing efforts of governors and legislatures in the current fiscal year.

—States are spending dollars earmarked for capital expenditures on current operations.

"To the extent that states had surpluses in any real sense, they have virtually disappeared," the statement said.

The report was prepared by the National Association of State Budget Officers and the National Association for State Information Systems.

Copies have been sent to President Ford, top administration officials, congressional leaders and governors, many of whom now are preparing state budgets. The administration is finishing the federal budget, to be delivered to Congress next Wednesday.

The report gives total figures for all 37 states in the survey, but it does not list individual state expenditures or revenues.

The states missing from the survey are Alabama, Alaska, Colorado, Maine, Mississippi, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming. A member of the governors conference staff said 12 of those states were unable to make data available in time for inclusion and that Alabama refused to take part.

Collectors Club Planning Trip

Plans for a trip to Raleigh and Hillsborough were made at the meeting of the Greenville Collectors held Tuesday night at the home of Mickey and Martha Elmore.

The group will visit flea markets out-of-town on Saturday, Feb. 7. All interested members and non-members can contact the Elmores for further information.

Several members discussed European flea markets. Show and tell night was also held and members showed books about antique collecting.

be replaced every two years in the new Congress. The effect of this unique scheme would be to aggrandize the power of the panel's permanent staff, a comparatively new trend throughout the whole structure of congressional power politics that deeply troubles both older members and the executive branch.

The Government Operations Committee is under Senate order to recommend a permanent intelligence oversight committee by March 1. The staff draft, which has been sent to a small list of intelligence experts for study and criticism over the signature of Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, the committee chairman, is far from locked in as an unchangeable proposal.

That it will be changed is certain. But its existence in present form, however well-intended, illustrates the rapid congressional advance on the executive's freedom to conduct foreign policy. That is perhaps the most dangerous single result of the tragic array of past CIA — and FBI — abuses, a result dearly welcomed in the heart of the Kremlin.

Social Security or Medicare, but he would abolish $32 billion in other health and welfare programs. Why not? The programs are riddled with incompetence and waste. He would knock out nearly a billion in federal grants for local law enforcement. Splendid! Health, education, welfare and law enforcement ought not to be federal responsibilities. These services ought rather to benefit from the variety and prudence of administration state-by-state.

Reagan errs, in my view, in proposing also to purge certain federal program in transportation and postal services. These are extensions of powers plainly delegated to the United States government under the Constitution. Other recommendations are subject to similar challenge, and the proposal as a whole is politically unrealistic. A Democratic Congress never on this earth would go along. But the concept makes sense.

If Reagan is nuts, so were the Founding Fathers.

media continued to try to report the news from India despite the consequences. The government retaliated by expelling six foreign correspondents from The Associated Press, Washington Post, Los Angeles Times, Newsweek and The Times and Daily Telegraph of London.

The government also periodically severed foreign correspondents' communication lines and their telephones to punish them for self-censorship violations.

The government on Dec. 8 tightened its controls further, promulgating executive decrees that removed immunities on Parliament coverage and barred publication of and closure of publications.

'Sock Hop' Set As Fund-Raiser

The second annual "Fifties Sock Hop," a charity event to raise funds for the Greenville Special Olympics, has been set for Saturday, February 7 from 8 p.m. until midnight.

Miss Alice Keene, director of the Recreation Department's various programs designed for handicapped persons of all ages, and coordinator of the Special Olympics, said that Radio Station WOOW would once again this year provide music and a master of ceremonies for the nostalgic back-to-the-1950s program of music and dancing.

"Last year we charged a 25 cents admission for each person and made about $450," Miss Keene stated. "This year we plan to charge 50 cents a person and hope to get even more participation so that we can raise a lot more money."

After outlining the plans for the February hop, Miss Keene showed slides of local, state and national Special Olympics Olympics events.

In the first year, 1974 in which Greenville handicapped persons had this program available, a total of 74 took part. By the spring of 1975, more than 200 turned out for the Special Olympics Day held in the Ficklen Stadium area.

"Last year, we hosted three countries for the Special Olympics," she said, "This year we hope to have six or seven neighboring counties joining in."

Miss Keene also asked Recreation Commission members to consider volunteering as judges for the dance contests to be staged during the February Fifties Sock Hop.

Union Claims 600 Asheville Employees

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A union says it has signed up more than 600 Asheville city employees. City councilmen met today with legal counsel to discuss the matter.

State law forbids municipalities from negotiating with unions, but does not restrict union membership. Employees in several North Carolina cities have organized, but do not bargain collectively with their employers.

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to hear a case involving the state law. The city of Charlotte has cited the law in refusing to deduct union dues for its firemen.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, says it has received signed cards from a majority of employees in Asheville's police, sanitation, water, street, motor, and signal departments.

Policemen in Asheville police staged a week-long slowdown last year to protest a wage offer by the city.

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT JANUARY ELECTRIC BILLS

Practically every year January electric bills run higher than December bills. These are the questions most frequently asked:

Q. Why is my January bill higher than my December bill?

A. Nearly all customers use more energy in the period covered by the January bill than in the December bill period. Also, the total cost of electric energy is higher for the January bills than December bills.

Q. What made the usage increase?

A. Three basic factors as follows:

Billing Period — The December bill covered usage in November to mid-December. The January bills cover usage in December to mid-January. The December billing period was short (about 28 days average) and the January period long (about 32 days average) because of the holidays.

Colder Weather — The January billing period was much colder than the December period. Temperatures dropped to 17 degrees on December 19th. This colder weather effects all customers usage, but especially those with electric heat.

Family Activities — During the holiday season family activities generally increase. More people are in and out of homes, more cooking, washing, TV viewing and similar activities. Christmas decorations also add to the usage during this period.

Q. Did the electric rates go up again in January?

A. No, The basic rate is the same in January as in December. However, Vepco's Approved Fuel Charge in December (approved by the North Carolina Utilities Commission) was a minus $0.00063 per KWH and in January it is plus $0.00341 per KWH. This is an increase in the Approved Fuel Charge of $4.04 per 1000 KWH of usage.

Q. Was the cost of the downtown Christmas lights added to January bills?

A. No!

Q. Will some electric heat customers' January bill be double their December bill?

A. Yes. The mean temperature during the January billing period was considerably lower than December and some electric heat customers' bills could easily double.

Q. Will February and March bills be as high as January?

A. Possibly. It will depend on mean temperatures and individual control of usage. The unit cost per KWH of energy should be slightly lower in February, based on Vepco's estimated projections.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market churned ahead against profit taking pressures today in trading that set a record-breaking pace at the New York Stock Exchange.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 5.27 at 934.90, and gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading volume on the NYSE surged to 10.95 billion shares in the first hour, breaking the record of 10.20 billion for the opening hour set last Feb. 13, when the full day's activity reached an all-time high of 35.16 billion.

The hurtling pace left the exchange ticker tape running as much as 25 minutes late.

Once again there was no apparent development in the economic news to account for the near-frenzy in the market.

Brokers said the session seemed to be repeating the pattern of Tuesday, when buy orders and selling to cash in on profits from the steep rise in prices of late met head-on in the market.

With this morning's exceptionally heavy activity, the market appeared to be headed for its fourth straight 30 million-share day—a string unprecedented at the exchange.

It also seemed likely to challenge the weekly volume record of 145.68 billion shares set in the last week of January, 1975.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .29 at 51.73.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .30 at 91.52.

Draw Plans For Cancer Crusade

Plans for the April Cancer Crusade were made at a meeting of the American Cancer Society's Pitt County Chapter Wednesday afternoon.

Introduced to the group were Charles Vincent, a Greenville attorney, who is the 1976 Crusade chairman and Mrs. Roy Berbert, a Pitt County Health Department nurse, who is a new member of the Chapter's Board of Directors. Mrs. Berbert presents cancer education program to county civic groups as part of her job. Also welcomed was Duane Hall of Farmville, a local insurance salesman.

Personal commitments for specific tasks were made. These include everything from conducting cancer education programs for industrial employees to sewing prostheses for mastectomy patients, President Henry Groome said.

Additional board members were nominated and voted upon. These people will be contacted and asked to serve two-year terms. The Greenville Breakfast Lions Club was recognized for its gift to the Cancer Society of a "Betsi" anatomical model to be used for the teaching of breast self-examination.

Pitt Technical Institute Business Department students were thanked for their help in preparing materials used at the meeting.

The group will meet again Feb. 9 to begin work on this year's Crusade. Interested persons are asked to contact the Chapter office, 756-0805, for the time and place of this meeting.

"77 Years of Continuous Service To Eastern North Carolina"

Appalachian Nips East Carolina, 50-48

BOONE — Whatever magic the mountains of North Carolina have over the Pirates of East Carolina worked again last night, as the Bucs bowed to the Mountaineers of Appalachian State University, 50-48.

It may have been the worst effort of the year for the plodding Pirates, who saw their record fall to 6-8 overall and 4-3 in Southern Conference play.

Appalachian State, which didn't play any better, moved up to 4-7 overall and 2-3 in the conference.

It seemed for a while as if the two teams were out to out-sorry the other. There were turnovers galore, accompanied by poor shooting, bad rebounding, and just about everything else that goes with a lousy basketball game.

At halftime, the score was only 25-22, and it got no better as neither team found the range again in the second half.

The Pirates, however, may have been the ultimate chumps. From a 44-40 lead with just over three minutes to go, the Bucs watched ASU push back ahead, 47-44. Not that the Bucs didn't have the opportunity to put it away. They went down the court at least five times with the chance to widen their lead, but each time either missed on their shots, or simply threw the ball away.

That was all the Mountaineers needed to get back into the game and claim the win. Even so, the Pirates had a chance to tie it up in the final seconds, but missed on two shots in the final two seconds.

"I've never seen a team that doesn't think, can't pass, and doesn't know a good shot from a bad one," lamented Coach Dave Patton afterwards. "One of these days we're going to learn to play up to our capabilities and get our heads in the game."

"Things just aren't going our way right now," he said.

While East Carolina shot only 42.9 per cent for the game, Appalachian did even worse, connecting on just 34 per cent of their shots. The Pirates actually held a 12-point margin in field goals.

The big difference came at the line. Appalachian connected on 14 of 22 shots from the charity stripe. East Carolina failed to convert on the only three opportunities it had.

Nineteen fouls were called against the Pirates and 12 against Appalachian.

Rebounding was almost even, with ASU getting 33 and the Pirates 32. Mel Hubbard led the Mounties with 13, while Larry Hunt had 10 and Earl Garner had nine for the Bucs.

Both teams were charged with 15 turnovers, but steals were not kept, and would have affected the totals.

After a minute and a half, Appalachian got the initial lead on two free throws by Calvin Bowser. East Carolina tied it up at 2-2, and again at 4-4 before two baskets by Hubbard opened up an 8-4 lead.

Reggie Lee hit a pair to tie it again, but Mark Campbell put ASU back on top.

Lee followed up a miss with a basket, and Lou Crosby hit a jumper to put the Pirates on top for the first time. Billy Dineen followed with basket for a 14-10 lead by East Carolina.

Appalachian reeled off seven straight points to regain the lead. Hubbard started it off with a basket and Campbell got a free throw. Darryl Robinson hit two at the line and Bowser hit a jumper for a 17-14 lead.

Appalachian then held the lead the rest of the half, moving out by five, 25-20 on two late free throws by Tim Leahy. East Carolina got a basket from Hunt to cut it to 25-22 at intermission.

Baskets by Leahy and Robinson upped the lead to 29-22 early in the second half, but the Pirates put on a come back and outhit the Mountaineers 12-2 over the next few minutes to take a 36-33 lead. Dineen put the Pirates on top again 34-33 on a jumper and Al Edwards hit off a rebound for the three-point edge.

Bob Pace hit two straight to return the lead to the Mountaineers by 37-36, but baskets by Crosby and Hunt put the Pirates back out, 40-37. A free throw by Tim Turner and a jumper by Pace tied it again, 40-40.

Earl Garner and Crosby both hit to run the Bucs back out by 44-40 with less than three minutes to go. But Bowser and Turner both hit following Pirates turnovers to tie it at 44-44. After the Bucs missed on a couple of other chances, Hubbard hit a layup to put ASU back up, 46-44.

Turner added a free throw with 41 seconds left, and Garner cut the lead to one, 47-46. Campbell added two more at the line with 24 seconds left, only to see Lee cut it back to 49-48. Pace then hit one from the stripe with eight seconds left, and the Bucs missed on two shots that could have tied it as the time ran out.

Crosby and Hunt led the Pirates scoring with 10 points each. Bowser and Hubbard each had 10 for Appalachian.

The Pirates face league-leading William & Mary on Saturday in Williamsburg, Va.

Taylor Joins Greenville Staff

Leigh Taylor, a native of Virginia Beach, Va., has joined the staff of the Greenville Golf and Country Club as assistant professional.

Head pro Gordon Fulp announced Taylor's appointment yesterday.

Taylor recently completed his college education at Atlantic Christian College, where he was a member of the golf team. Both in 1974 and 1975, Taylor was named to the All-Carolinas Conference golf team.

He also served as senior class vice-president, vice-president of the Physical Education Club, and wrote for the school newspaper.

Born in 1952, Taylor caught the golf bug at 15, and he switched from baseball to golf as his major sport. He notes that the short game is his best because of lots of backyard practice with the nine-iron.

Chris Evert Is Again Honored

By KAROL STONGER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert, who last year fit the mold of the "boring rich" by setting money-winning records with her two-fisted backhand and baseline stance, started off 1976 with a victory, a resolution to make her tennis game more exciting and yet another trophy — as The Associated Press 1975 Female Athlete of the Year.

Miss Evert, who won the AP honor in 1974, repeated after winning a record $362,227 in prize money and capturing 14 tournaments, including the U.S. Open, the French and Italian opens and the U.S. Clay Court championship.

The 21-year-old tennis star ran away with the AP title announced today, collecting 246 votes in a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Sandra Palmer, the leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, was runner-up with 64 votes. Anne Marie Moser-Proell, who won a record fifth consecutive World Cup in international skiing before retiring, was third with 15 votes.

NCAA May Restrict Aid

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Possible further restrictions on financial aid lay ahead today for members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

But if the tone set Wednesday by delegates to the NCAA's 70th convention was to prevail, the issue — like others based on economy — may have been headed for a back seat.

"I thought as the result of the issues that we enacted at the special session in August there was a growing concern," the NCAA's executive director, Walter Byers, reflected after cost-saving measures were ignored during Wednesday's special convention.

"It's a matter of having to believe in the institutions' judgment," Byers said of his own position.

"What they thought was reflected on the convention floor."

During the special session, marked by only one serious floor fight, some 700 convention delegates enacted a smattering of a dozen proposals to trim burgeoning budgets.

Travel uniforms were eliminated as of Aug. 1, but special housing for teams before games at home was not. Delegates also opted in favor of prohibiting the scouting of foes in Division I football but refused to impose further limits on pre-season practices.

As proposed, restrictions on games played by teams in sports other than football and basketball also failed. And yet the delegates, when asked to authorize an extra football game, turned the proposal down.

"A lot of people who were impoverished last summer got wealthy in a heck of a hurry," observed one conference commissioner, alluding to an apparent change in member moods.

While financial aid was at the head of today's regular convention agenda, a more heated issue still promised to be a proposed realignment of Division I football powers.

"I think that it's vitally important, not just to the Southern Conference but to a great many other people," said SEC Commissioner Boyd McWhorter.

"I just think that without it our football program will suffer," McWhorter added in reference to a Division IA proposed for 81 major college members.

Opposed was Long Beach State President Stephen A. Horn, who Wednesday led an unsuccessful floor fight for further distribution of football television revenues.

Horn, during a prolonged debate, called for a division of the NCAA's $16 million football television package to include 25 per cent for Division II schools and 25 per cent for those in Division III.

"Teams that have been in the program would refuse to participate," the NCAA's television committee chairman, Seaver Peters of Dartmouth, argued, however. "It would also bring an end to the association as an effective means of administration."

Following additional argument against it from large and small schools alike, the proposal was overwhelmingly defeated.

Horn, who is among an increasing number of college presidents attending the convention, also predicted strong opposition to realignment as backed heavily by major conferences.

Home Court Good To Carolina; No Help At All To N.C. State

By The Associated Press

"The difference in this game is that it was here at Carolina," said Coach Dean Smith, after his North Carolina basketball team whipped Forest 99-74 Wednesday night.

But the home court advantage can be only a small part of the story in a 25-point victory. It didn't help North Carolina State, which lost by 18 points that same night to Maryland, 87-69.

Phil Ford scored 30 points to help seventh-ranked North Carolina avenge a 95-83 loss to fifth-ranked Wake Forest in the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro.

Smith said he was extremely pleased with his team's rebounding and defense Wednesday. It led to the worst Wake Forest defeat by a North Carolina team in the last 10 years.

"By Wake missing on offense in the first half, it gave us a chance to rebound," Smith said. "It was a great win. We did an excellent job of going for the basketball, and got more rebounds because Wake Forest was not shooting as well."

North Carolina dominated the boards 30-10 in the first half. It broke the game open early in the second half, when the Deacons got only three goals in nine minutes. The Tar Heels led by nine points at halftime and built the margin to 22 points at 69-47.

Mo Howard came off the bench for the first time this season and hit six straight shots on his way to a 25-point performance for the second-ranked Maryland Terps. Coach Lefty Driesell delayed his usual three-guard offense and started sophomore Lawrence Boston in place of Howard.

But the first 10 minutes of the game were ragged, with neither team shooting well, so Driesell put Howard in. Mo turned things around. He, John Lucas and Brad Davis worked their backcourt pick and wave to get free for medium jump shots and layups.

Kenny Carr with 29 points was the only consistent off-sive threat for the 13th-ranked N.C. State Wolfpack. But he was forced to play without respite, tired in the second half, and fouled out with more than five minutes to play.

Clemson beat Duke 102-96 in overtime, continuing the Blue Devils' record of not having won an Atlantic Coast Conference game on the road since 1972.

Duke tried hard enough, overcoming a 13-point deficit in the final seven minutes of regulation to catch up at 89-all. But the Tigers outscored the Blue Devils 13-7 in overtime.

The leading scorers were Tree Rollins with 22 points and Greg Coles with 20 for Clemson, and Tate Armstrong with 28 and Jim Spanarkel with 21 for Duke.

The other ACC team, Virginia, was beaten 91-69 by Virginia Tech at Richmond.

Bullets Nip Cavs By 92-88

By The Associated Press

The Washington Bullets and Cleveland Cavaliers are starting the National Basketball Association playoffs early ... unofficially, of course.

"It's just like a playoff when these two teams get together," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch after losing a tough 92-88 decision to the Bullets Wednesday night. "That's three games in a row that have gone down to the wire."

The victory avenged a 106-102 loss to the Cavs Sunday night. The Bullets lost that one despite having possession and a two-point lead with 11 seconds left in the game.

"Sure, I thought about last Sunday," said Dave Bing, Wednesday night's high scorer for the Bullets with 20 points. "It was only a couple of days ago and you don't forget something like that."

"But tonight was our turn. We didn't quit."

In the other NBA games, the Kansas City Kings whipped the Boston Celtics 106-101; the New York Knicks tripped the Houston Rockets 107-103 in overtime; the Philadelphia 76ers outscored the New Orleans Jazz 100-95 and the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Atlanta Hawks 112-110. In the American Basketball Association, the Indiana Pacers whipped the Virginia Squires 115-99 and the Kentucky Colonels trimmed the San Antonio Spurs 121-115.

Kings 106, Celtics 101

Scott Wedman, who finished with 25 points, hit a turnaround jump shot from 15 feet with 29 seconds remaining to give Kansas City its victory over Boston.

Knicks 107, Rockets 103

Bill Bradley popped in a field goal with 35 seconds left in overtime to lead New York over Houston. Spencer Haywood scored 26 points and pulled down 12 rebounds for the Knicks.

Aycock Takes Second Victory

E. B. Aycock Junior High School's wrestling team romped to its second victory in three starts yesterday, rolling over Kinston, 37-18.

Aycock also won eight exhibition matches during the meet, taking six of them by pins. In the regular match, Aycock won eight of the 11 classes, taking three by pins. All three of the Kinston wins came on pins.

Aycock travels to Wilson next Wednesday.

Summary:

100: Richards (A) pinned Walker, 3:50.

Heavyweight: Sutton (K) pinned Eaton, 3:50.

76ers 100, Jazz 95

Doug Collins scored 24 points and George McGinnis and Steve Mix scored 20 apiece as Philadelphia beat New Orleans. Harvey Catchings' dunk shot in the fourth quarter gave Philadelphia a lead it never lost. The defeat was the first in 1976 for the Jazz, who had a five-game winning streak.

SuperSonics 112, Hawks 110

Fred Brown hit a jump shot with 46 seconds left and Seattle withstood two last-minute flurries of unsuccessful Atlanta shots to beat the Hawks. The Hawks rallied from 13 points down with five minutes left to take the lead 110-108, but baskets by Slick Watts and Brown, who had 33 points, put the Sonics back on top.

Pacers 115, Squires 99

Guard Billy Keller hit 22 points, including five three-pointers, to lead Indiana over Virginia. Lenny Elmore added 19 and Travis Grant 14 in the balanced Pacer attack.

Colonels 121, Spurs 115

Kentucky blitzed cold-shooting San Antonio 24-4 in the first eight minutes of the third quarter and went on to beat the Spurs with comparative ease. The Colonels' rally was paced by the rebounding of Maurice Lucas, who keyed a number of fast breaks which resulted in most of the Colonels' points.

King's Birthday Marked From Atlanta To Hawaii

By The Associated Press
The 47th anniversary of Martin Luther King's birth, the eighth since the assassination of the Nobel Peace Prize-winning civil rights activist, is being celebrated today in memorial services from Atlanta to Hawaii.

In Washington, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson told Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi on Wednesday that the government should appoint a special prosecutor to investigate King's death and the FBI's campaign of harassment against King.

Jackson told reporters he is urging appointment of a special prosecutor because he believes the Justice Department lacks credibility and should not conduct such an investigation itself.

He said many people continue to suspect that the FBI was involved in the murder of King — for which James Earl Ray was convicted and sentenced — on the balcony of a Memphis, Tenn., motel in May 1968.

Jackson declined to characterize Levi's response to the proposal. Justice Department also spokesmen declined comment.

Jackson planned to join a prayer vigil in front of the White House at noon and then take part in a march to the new FBI building to demand that the name of former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who instigated some of the harassment of King, be removed from it.

In Atlanta, an ecumenical service was planned at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King's father served as pastor for years. King's mother was slain by an assassin while playing the organ in the church.

King's widow, Coretta, was to present two awards in King's name. The human relations award was for Dr. Robert Lee Green, dean of the college of urban development, Michigan State University. And the Martin Luther King Jr. nonviolent peace prize was for Dr. Randolph T. Blackwell of Greensboro, N.C., who heads a group concerned with creating jobs for poor people in rural Southern communities.

Gov. George Busbee of Georgia, among those who attended a conference on unemployment Mrs. King set up to coincide with the anniversary, said he had proclaimed today "Rev. Martin Luther King Day" in Georgia.

Several local groups planned downtown marches in Memphis, where city school pupils took the day off for the observance of "Great Americans Day." The Rev. Ezekiel Bell, one of the leaders of the sanitation workers strike that brought King to Memphis in 1968, was scheduled to speak at a rally.

President Ford, in a statement Wednesday, pledged renewed dedication to "struggle for equality and well being for all citizens." Ford added that the King's birthday reminds the nation "of his eloquent commitment to the cause of civil rights and of his forceful leadership in that cause."

In Chicago, city offices were ordered closed, and a prayer vigil was planned in front of the Dirksen Federal Building.

In Alabama, where King's leadership of marches opposing segregation made him famous, a parade honoring King was planned through downtown Montgomery. The parade was sanctioned by the state Bicentennial Commission.

For much of the distance, the parade will follow the route taken by Jefferson Davis in 1861 when he rode up Dexter Avenue to take oath on the state Capitol steps as president of the Confederacy. A commemorative service will follow the parade. Schools have agreed to excuse from classes any pupil who wants to march in the parade or watch it.

The NAACP said it expected 10,000 persons from across South Carolina to assemble in the state capital of Columbia to support designation of King's birthday as a holiday in South Carolina. Columbia Mayor John T. Campbell has proclaimed the day "Martin Luther King Day."

In Hawaii, a memorial service was planned at the Army's Schofield Barracks Base Chapel. Schofield is home of the 25th Infantry, commanded by a black, Gen. Harry Brooks. A memorial service also was planned at Hill Air Force Base in northern Utah.

In Massachusetts, it was a state holiday, with all state offices closed. A brief memorial service was held Wednesday in the State House. In Oregon, a commemoration program was planned for the Martin Luther King School in Portland.

Peron Cabinet Is Reshuffled

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron asked for the resignations of her eight ministers in order to reshuffle her cabinet, the government said today.

The 44-year-old president has been under steady pressure to govern more dynamically in the face of crushing economic problems and political violence. Many critics have demanded she step down.

A new cabinet could give the government of Mrs. Peron — in power since the death of her husband in July 1974 — more time to confront national problems and provide a new approach to solutions.

Reports of a cabinet reshuffle had been circulating for several days.

There was no immediate official word, but in government circles, the major change expected was the replacement of Interior Minister Angel Robledo, perhaps by Economy Minister Antonio Cafiero whose post would be filled by Roberto Ares, president of the state-run bank.

Robledo, a moderate who has been a buffer between political forces within the government, was named interior minister in September by Acting President Italo Luder who filled in for Mrs. Peron during a month's leave for health reasons.

He has been attacked by some political and labor leaders who counsel a more orthodox Peronist line.

SINGING PROGRAM
There will be a singing program at the United Church of God Sunday at 2:30 p.m. featuring the Manning Family Singers of New Bern. There will also be local singers as well. The public is invited.

Day Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed today as "Martin Luther King Jr. Day" in Greenville.

In his proclamation, Cox asserted, "Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. served for many years as a leader in the movement for civil rights for his people."

The mayor pointed out that King was the "spokesman and symbol for non-violence as the means of achieving social justice" and he said that the late civil rights leader "promoted an atmosphere of human dignity and trust in a traumatic period in the history of this country."

Cox proclaimed, "All the citizens of this country are indebted to him for his unique contribution to his country as an agent not only of change but reconciliation."

Jan. 15, Cox added, is the date of King's birth.

Old Yacht Serves Oceanography

By FRED T. FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — A small and cluttered "workhorse of the sea" puttered through her millionth mile of oceanographic research off Australia last week.

There was little more than the shipboard routine and a few cablegrams to recall her days of glory and high drama.

Once she was a glamorous yacht. She set an unofficial transatlantic record under sail in 1934 — Long Island's Montauk Point to England's Bishop Rock in 10 days, 10 hours.

But that was when she was a spritely, three-masted schooner. Owned by shipping magnate George Vetlesen, she was outfitted with the best that money could buy.

Much of her beauty has faded. Her luxury fittings departed with World War II service as a training ship and barracks. Her last sails were discarded a decade ago.

Dr. John Ewing, among the first scientists to sail on her when Columbia University acquired Vema 22 years ago, recalls "many good sails" under canvas in the 1950s.

She was still sloop-rigged. She relied only partially on her original auxiliary engine, then 30 years old. It was masterfully kept running most of the time by a mechanical genius, Chief Engineer John Coffil.

Still aboard, Coffil is now in his 60s. He is a Nova Scotian like her captain of the past 18 years, Henry Kohler.

Her years as a science workhorse have included some high drama.

Ewing remembers one gale off southern Georgia "when the wind blew higher than the gauges could record and we estimated it at 125 to 130 miles an hour. A lifeboat was washed away but she rode it out."

One of her crew, First Mate Charles Wilkie, also of Nova Scotia, was lost in another storm.

"We were on a trip from New York to Bermuda when some barrels broke loose on deck," Ewing said. "Four of us tried to do something about it and were all washed overboard."

Ewing and two others, clinging to debris, were picked up by the Vema when she managed to come about in the storm. But it took several hours. Wilkie was gone.

On another voyage, a geophysicist, Dr. John Hennion of Piermont, N.Y., was killed off Chile when an explosive charge he was rigging went off accidentally.

There were lighter moments, such as her last attempt to travel under sail.

"It was in the mid-60s. We were in the Gulf of Guinea, the armpit of Africa, south of the Ivory Coast," Ewing remembers.

"Her gearbox digested itself. We were 300 to 400 miles out of port and without power. My brother, Maurice, blandly suggested to the captain that we sail in. We rigged the stay sails, the only ones left. But there was no way. We finally had to call a tug."

Maurice Ewing was then director of Columbia's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory of which John Ewing is now associate director. He had convinced the Columbia trustees to buy Vema several years after she was resurrected to charter and cargo service. Before that, she had languished on Staten Island mudflats in New York Harbor since World War II.

Now she is 53 years old, having made her maiden voyage from Copenhagen in 1923.

Mariners marvel that Vema still has almost all her original Swedish steel hull plates.

Scientists marvel more at the achievements credited to Vema and her crew in 22 years of trundling about the world's oceans, boring some bottom sediment here, taking a seismic reading there.

Nearly half the available data about the ocean floor has been gathered by Vema's voyages since her 1953 rescue from "tramp" service.

She has pioneered development of methods for gathering this information. She has mapped the mid-ocean ridges which girdle the globe. She has provided information confirming the theory the earth's crust is composed of 60-mile-thick global plates which move in relation to one another.

Last week, Vema went about her current chore — attempting to confirm a theory a large section of the Southeast Indian Ocean Ridge — an underwater mountain range — is collapsing. She was 1,500 miles off the coast of southern Australia when she passed her millionth scientific mile.

Columbia President William J. McGill got off a cablegram "to the Vema, her scientists and crew," hailing her "major discoveries" and noting "her survival of 'numerous perils.'"

"Your efforts have earned... a prominent place in the history of science," he said.

But she is the smallest of oceanographic vessels. Her 202 feet have become so crowded with scientific rigging there was little space left for her staff and crew of 30.

Ewing said many scientists now are reluctant to sail in the cramped quarters and there is no space for additional equipment. He believes this may eventually doom her continued use.

"But many of us here think there is no better ship to sail on," he said. "It's a happy life, if you go to work — a pleasant life for those in our business."

Physics Dept. Plans Seminars

Two seminar programs have been scheduled by the East Carolina University Department of Physics this week.

Dr. Tien Sun Chang of the N. C. State University School of Engineering will conduct a program, "Differential Renormalization Group Analysis of Critical Phenomena in Magnetic Phase Transitions" today at 4 p.m. in room 213 of the ECU physics building.

Dr. Thomas Sayetta, associate professor of physics at ECU, will conduct a seminar on laser safety, and show an instructive film on the use of lasers Jan. 16 at 4 p.m. in room 301 of the physics building.

Both programs are open to the public, particularly representatives from local industries who may have special interests in the seminar topics.

Interested In Rubber Crop

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)

— The Venezuelan government plans to see if natural rubber can be produced economically in the southern Amazon area.

To this end, it has sent two technicians to Brazil, where rubber is produced in the Amazon, to check on the latest technology.

Wearing Aloha Shirts Friday

By BRUCE DUNFORD
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Four days a week most businessmen trudging between Honolulu's skyscrapers could pass for their counterparts in other cities.

But on Friday dull gray side-walks become a parade of color.

It's Aloha Friday. Though bankers, lawyers, admen and politicians may still wear wing-tips and carry attache cases, they are likely to be wearing a brilliantly printed Hawaiian aloha shirt.

The Hawaiian garment industry began promoting "Aloha Shirt Friday" 10 years ago as a day to put aside neckties in favor of the casual wear made here. Government proclamations and resolutions lent support.

The idea has benefited the garment industry and has played a part in the increasingly casual and colorful look of this major commercial and financial center. For some, every day is aloha shirt day.

"I don't think there's a business where one doesn't observe Aloha Shirt Friday," says Ray Sasaki Jr., president of the Hawaiian Fashion Guild.

As the Dean Witter stock brokerage firm, local manager Paul T. C. Loo says: "You would think we would be stuffy."

But some of us wear aloha shirts every day of the week." At the Dillingham Corp., one of the state's largest, a spokesman says: "Some of the executives who were given to wearing suits — God forbid the idea — now wear aloha shirts except when they might have to meet somebody from out of town."

Even the Army experimented for a time with allowing soldiers at desk jobs to wear aloha shirts on some Fridays.

Banks, local airlines, private schools and the state's largest bread manufacturers have capitalized on the popularity of the look by issuing aloha shirt uniforms.

Nobody has been able to calculate the benefit to Hawaii's 107 garment manufacturers, who make little besides aloha shirts and corresponding women's wear. "But it sure didn't hurt our business," says Sasaki.

The industry's wholesale revenues have tripled in the past 20 years to $50 million annually. But some of that is attributable to increasing numbers of tourists.

Chairman Of Camporee

Pratt Williamson has been named general chairman of the 1976 Scout-O-Rama and Camporee to be held Feb. 27 and 28.

Also named to the committee charged with the production and operation of the show are James Meeks of Black Jack and George Joyner of Greenville. Meeks and Joyner are vice chairmen. Other members of the committee are Ed Stallings, Larry Taggart, Chuck Dunn, Ray Parker, William O. Jackson, Hugh Benson, and Sam Winchester.

To be held at the Pitt County Fairgrounds, the event will be an opportunity for all units to camp and display at the same time. Tickets will go on sale in February and will be handled by members of all 79 Boy Scout units in the Pitt and Sunrise districts.

These plans and appointments were made at a meeting of the Pitt District Committee. District Chairman J. T. Manning Jr. announced Pitt District officers for 1976. They are John Phillips, Cub Scouting chairman; Dr. Milam Johnson, Boy Scouting; Terry Burt, Explorer; Frank Saunders, manpower; and Mrs. Janice Buck and Curtis Hendrix, finance.

Career In Navy Was Thwarted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Washington might have fought the American Revolution not as the commander-in-chief of the Continental Army but as an officer aboard an American or even a British man-of-war, according to historians at The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Since boyhood Washington had dreamed of joining the navy, and in those days in Colonial America that meant the British Navy. At one point the young Washington had his bags packed to go to sea, but his mother dissuaded him on grounds of family responsibility.

Will Investigate Morton's Political Assignment

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission will investigate the appointment of Rogers C.B. Morton as a White House adviser paid by the taxpayers but assigned by President Ford to at least some political duties.

Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris filed a complaint letter with the commission on Wednesday night, calling for a "full investigation and full disclosure concerning the mixed White House and political duties of ... Morton."

An FEC spokesman said the complaint by Harris would not be brought up during today's commission meeting, although commissioners might be advised of it during a closed executive session.

But the spokesman said the receipt of a notarized complaint letter would automatically launch a staff investigation.

Harris' letter asking for the investigation followed comments by commission chairman Thomas Curtis, who said Wednesday that he is concerned about the propriety of the appointment. Officials say they are concerned that money spent for Morton's political activity would not be counted against Ford's campaign spending limit.

A commission spokesman said Curtis was not saying the Ford campaign is in violation of campaign law but "they're in dangerous waters. They're treading on thin ice."

Ford on Tuesday named Morton, who has served as his commerce secretary, to be a White House counselor on economic and domestic policy with "incidental duties of liaison with the President Ford Committee and the Republican National Committee." Morton would receive a White House salary of $44,600.

It had long been expected that Ford would name Morton to a high campaign post in which his salary would be paid by the Ford election committee. But when the announcement was made, White House spokesman Ron Nessen downplayed Morton's political role.

Sargent Shriver, also a Democratic candidate, voiced concern about the Morton appointment Wednesday, but stopped short of filing an official complaint. A Shriver spokesman said the appointment was an "affront to the American taxpayer" and "shows the same flagrant insensitivity to the public interest that has become all too characteristic of the Ford administration."

Elsewhere, there were these political developments Wednesday:

—Republican candidate Ronald Reagan campaigned in Jacksonville, Fla., where he again brushed off criticism of his plan to decentralize government.

The former California governor blamed federal bureaucrats for criticism of his plan to transfer many social and welfare programs from the federal to state and local governments.

—Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, a Democratic presidential candidate, filed papers with the FEC showing campaign expenditures in 1975 of $335,363. Sanford checked into the Duke University Medical Center for rest. He had been hospitalized in Massachusetts after complaining of chest pains Sunday.

—Democratic candidate Sen. Birch Bayh said in a speech to the Washington Press Club that proposals by Ford and Reagan to cut federal spending have been misleading. Bayh said such plans smack of political gimmickry and fiscal irresponsibility.

Bayh said that instead of cutting the federal budget, more money should be pumped into the economy in an effort to end the recession.

—The citizen lobby Common Cause asked all presidential candidates to list their budget priorities for 1977. Common Cause chairman John Gardner said, "Nothing can switch the candidates from rhetoric to reality more quickly than down-to-earth talk about the budget."

—Democratic party officials ordered Wisconsin Democrats to come up with a plan for selecting convention delegates that is not dependent on the state's traditional open primary election. Under the existing system, voters do not have to identify themselves with either party and can vote in either the Republican or Democratic primary.

—Officials of Alabama Gov. George Wallace's presidential campaign presented nine cartons of records to the election commission. The records, containing the names of 130,000 contributors, are to be used to verify a claim for some $2 million in federal matching funds.

—Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, a Democratic candidate, announced he will conduct fund-raising parties in 20 states on Sunday, using a telephone hookup.

—Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., announced he would not seek re-election. Patman, 82, who came to Congress in 1929, has served longer than any other person now in Congress.

—Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, announced he will not seek re-election. Fong, 68, was the first Oriental-American to serve in the Senate and has represented Hawaii since the islands won statehood in 1959.

—The Federal Reserve System is divided into 12 districts, each with a Federal Reserve Bank.

More Commercialism In Getting And Distributing Blood Favored

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's inflation monitoring council is urging more commercialism in the collection and distribution of human blood, thus challenging the current federal policy of seeking an all-volunteer blood system.

"The council offers an opinion that our public policies toward blood would be improved substantially if it were recognized that blood is a product that is not very different from other consumer goods," the Council on Wage and Price Stability said Wednesday.

The council argued that competition would encourage a better quality of blood available for transfusions and at a more reasonable price.

The proposals were contained in comments filed with the Food and Drug Administration in response to proposed FDA regulations which would require labels distinguishing between blood donated by volunteers and blood provided for cash.

The FDA regulations would also require labels warning that blood from paid individuals is associated with a higher risk of hepatitis than blood from volunteers.

The FDA proposals were viewed by the council as aiding the policy enunciated by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1974 that endorsed "efforts to bring into being an all-voluntary blood donation system and to eliminate commercialism in the acquisition of whole blood and blood components for transfusion purposes."

The Council on Wage and Price Stability is headed by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and composed of the President's top economic and consumer aides, along with the secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor. The council and its staff are responsible for keeping track of inflationary pressures in the economy and for assessing the inflationary impact of proposed government actions.

The council and government health officials agree that an estimated 10 per cent to 15 per cent of the U.S. blood supply comes from paid individuals, who receive from $5 to $20 per pint.

They also agree there are no reliable tests to detect hepatitis in blood, so collection agencies must rely on assurances from donors that they have never had the disease.

There is also agreement that blood transfusions are linked to nearly 100,000 cases of hepatitis a year, including about 850 deaths. Blood collected for cash is generally related to an infection rate three times to 10 times that for donated blood.

The council said it agrees that patients and doctors are entitled to know through labeling of the risks involved. But it urged the FDA to change the proposed regulations to permit commercial collectors to provide information on the infection rate from their own particular supplies rather than for all commercial blood.

The council proposed fostering competition between suppliers of blood, while requiring test procedures to maintain quality. Donors could be solicited "in any lawful manner" and paid to make it worth their while to give blood at times when the need is most urgent.

His Sermons Interrupted

CARRBORO, N.C. (AP)—Citizen's band radios constantly interrupt the Sunday sermons of the Rev. Rudolph Hardee.

Somehow, broadcasts from local CB operators, truckers and passing cars are seeping into the sound system the Calvary Missionary Baptist Church set up for Hardee's sermons.

"It does tend to get on your nerves," he said in an interview. "Sort of like dogs in your yard, you know?"

The interruptions have happened often enough to ruin more than one fiery lecture from the pulpit.

"I'll be right in the middle of a message, taking the text and flying, and some 'Charlie' or 'Thunderbolt' will come on with all these 'Ten Fours' and stuff," the minister said.

The uninvited broadcasts have surfaced off and on for several years, Hardee said, but recently have made preaching impossible because of a growing CB mania.

There are hidden advantages. For one thing, Hardee recognizes some CB voices as those of absent members of his congregation.

There is also agreement that blood transfusions are linked to nearly 100,000 cases of hepatitis a year, including about 850 deaths. Blood collected for cash is generally related to an infection rate three times to 10 times that for donated blood.

Burned Big Pot Seizure

GEORGETOWN, S.C. (AP)—About 40,000 pounds of marijuana have been burned by federal agents and local police in a blast furnace of the Georgetown Steel Corp. The marijuana was confiscated Sunday in Bayboro, N.C.

An 18-wheel semi-truck loaded with the marijuana from Bayboro arrived in Georgetown about 5 p.m. Wednesday and agents unloaded the grass into the furnace.

The marijuana reportedly took just seconds to be burned in the 7,500 degree heat of the furnace.

Nine persons were arrested Sunday and officials said they expected to arrest two or three additional persons in connection with smuggling the drug into North Carolina. The marijuana was aboard the Lillian B, a 105-foot fishing trawler, and had come to North Carolina to unload.

Authorities said because of the high quality of the marijuana, it would bring a high price and could have had a street value of as much as $25 million.

Frozen Body Is Found In Car

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP) — A man found dead in a car on a mountain road near Blowing rock has been identified as Hal Irving Hutchinson, 59, of Rt. 2, Denver, in Lincoln County, N.C.

Ranger David Byers of the Blue Ridge Parkway received a report that a car had been parked on the roadside since Tuesday. Byers found the frozen body in the car Wednesday night.

The Watauga County medical examiner, Dr. Evan Ashby, said the cause of death is believed to be a heart attack, and no foul play is suspected.

However, the body will be sent to the state medical examiner's office in Chapel Hill for an autopsy.

'Mary Hartman' Beats Opposition In Ratings

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," Norman Lear's satirical new soap opera, may make a few viewers and critics cry. But you won't find WNEW here and KTTV in Los Angeles sobbing over its ratings.

Each began the daily series last week, putting it in the 11 to 11:30 p.m. time slot. Compared to the previous week, it tripled WNEW's meager average ratings at that time and almost did the same at KTTV, according to A.C. Nielsen audience samples. The show appears in 90 cities, according to a Lear spokesman, but no national estimates of its popularity will be ready for several weeks because it's syndicated and its starting time varies from area to area.

But the Nielsen head-count is literally overnight in Fun City and Los Angeles, thanks to meters on the TV sets in selected homes, and the meters bring very good news to WNEW and KTTV.

In the New York area, which Nielsen estimates contains more than 6.3 million TV-equipped homes, WNEW was barely getting by in the 11-11:30 p.m. ratings with reruns of Groucho Marx' old game show.

According to data for the week prior to the start of "Hartman" in that time period, Groucho averaged a four rating, meaning 253,500 homes.

By comparison, the time period's highest-rated show — a local news program on the CBS-owned station, WCBS — had an average rating that week of 16. Which means it was seen in more than one million homes.

But WNEW's ratings soared the night it premiered "Hartman" as a one-hour special, with two 30-minute episodes run back to back. The show, aired on Tuesday, Jan. 6, drew a 14 rating — nearly 880,000 homes. Episode Two that night even beat the first half-hour of the top-rated network show, NBC's "Tonight," which only was seen in 570,375 New York area homes from 11:30 p.m. to midnight, Nielsen figures say.

When the week's ratings smoke cleared, the previous week's champ from 11 to 11:30 p.m. — WCBS' local news show — had slipped to a ratings average of 13, or 823,876 homes. This average was tied by the Hartman show.

Competing local news programs on New York's two other network-owned stations also slipped in the ratings, WNBC dropping from an average 15 rating to an 11 and WABC from a 10 to a nine rating.

A similar pattern occurred in Los Angeles, which Nielsen estimates has more than 3.6 million TV-equipped homes.

Mary Hartman's initial success here and in LA may be a fluke. WNEW and KTTV each heavily promoted the show and viewers obviously were sampling it. Whether they'll stay with it is another question.

But it sure makes you think, particularly when you consider that all three networks turned down "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

'Visitor' Charge

RALEIGH (AP)—The manager of the Milner Carolina Hotel in Raleigh has imposed a $3.12 "visitor" charge to cut down on the prostitutes and other undesirables he said were roaming the halls.

"Nine weeks ago, this place was a whorehouse," Louis Araldi said in an interview. "I'm trying to get rid of them."

He said the special charge was placed on visits to rooms of guests he labeled undesirable. Visitors to other rooms are not required to pay the extra charge.

He said that before he imposed the charge, as many as 30 or 40 prostitutes, homosexuals and other unregistered guests were roaming the hotel on a typical night. That number has been cut to three or less, Araldi said.

"There's no way to stop them 100 per cent, but, by golly, you can control them," he added.

The hotel is adjacent to the municipal building which houses the police department.

Hearing Rest Of 'Confession'

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP)—The remainder of a tape-recorded "confession" by accused multiple slayer Eddie Lee Thomas was to be played today for a Fredericksburg Circuit Court jury.

Thomas was questioned for four hours by state police investigators who recorded the interview two days after the slayings.

The tape was played Wednesday on the third day of Thomas' trial on charges of slaying Mrs. Sallie Davis Aliff and her four young children at the Aliffs' rural Henry County home Dec. 26, 1974.

"I can't remember," Thomas said on the tape. "If I did it, I don't remember doing it."

But later he said: "I did it, I done said I done it. But I can't, you know, I can't think how I done it. I just go ahead and said I did it because y'all found the evidence y'all done found. 'Cause you got the evidence, I did it. I did it."

The tape was entered as evidence over the objections of defense attorneys.

A forensic scientist testified Wednesday that bloodstains found on the clothing worn by Thomas the day of the slayings matched the blood type of one of his alleged victims.

The witness, Mary Jane Burton, said Mrs. Aliff had Type A blood while Thomas' blood was Type O. When arrested the day of the slayings, she said, Type A blood was on Thomas' shoes and overalls.

In addition, Mrs. Burton told the jury that hair "consistent" with that of Mrs. Aliff was found on Thomas' socks and hair "consistent" with Thomas' was found on Mrs. Aliff's nightgown.

Dr. David W. Oxley, state medical examiner for western Virginia, told the jury that Mrs.

Aliff died of a stab wound in the heart — one of three in her chest.

Each of the four children ranging in age from 2 to 10, suffered fatal skull fractures and died "within a matter of minutes," Oxley said.

As Oxley displayed color slides showing the wounds on the bodies of the Aliff children, Thomas averted his eyes and stared at the floor. He seldom has looked at witnesses testifying against him.

Thomas pleaded innocent to all the charges against him when the trial opened Monday.

The trial was moved here because of widespread publicity about the slayings in the Henry County area.

Attorneys for Thomas have not denied he committed the crimes but claimed in opening statements that Thomas is feeble-minded and not responsible for his acts.

Childrens' Production Opens At ECU Friday

A children's musical comedy, "It's Magic, Cinderella," opens as an East Carolina Workshop production in McGinnis Auditorium on Friday at 4:00 p.m.

This new musical adaptation is by Mick Godwin, a student in the ECU Drama Department. The show has already been produced by the Lost Colony Children's Theatre in Manteo and in the Dungeon Theatre at Huntingdon College in Alabama and most recently at Raleigh's Children's Theatre in Pullen Park.

Dr. Nelson Named To Chair Session

Dr. Philip G. Nelson, a Greenville psychiatrist who is vice chairman of the North Carolina Alcoholism Research Authority, will chair the afternoon session of a forum on alcoholism to be held at the Downtown East Motor Inn in Charlotte Jan. 28-30.

"Alcoholism, the Search for the Sources" is the theme of this conference. Alcoholism research authorities from outside North Carolina will be visiting "to present an overview of the search that is going on in their scientific discipline."

Alcoholism Awareness Week is being sponsored to focus on the biomedical and psychosocial research which can eventually lead to prevention. The General Assembly created the Alcoholism Research Authority in 1973. One year later a state appropriation was made to start the Alcoholism Research Fund.

Research grants have been made to competent scientists throughout the state to encourage them to focus on alcohol and alcoholism. The goal is to increase knowledge of the drug alcohol, using this state's excellent university and research facilities.

Dr. Sam Pennington of ECU is one of the scientists whose research work on alcoholism is being financed by the Authority, Dr. Nelson said.

Barred Windows Create A Deadly Prison Of Fire

By RICHARD BENKE
Associated Press Writer

An increasing number of urban Americans are placing bars on windows and multiple bolt locks on doors to keep burglars out. Some have found out too late that the devices can create a deadly prison of flames.

Firemen across the nation tell harrowing tales of families, including scores of children, trapped in smoke-choked rooms by metal window grates and key-operated deadbolt "safety" locks.

"The real problem is that people don't realize what happens to them in smoke and fire," said C.G. Nunnally, the fire chief in Birmingham, Mich. "Fire investigators in the past just attributed deaths to smoke and left it at that, rather than wonder why the victims failed to get out."

In many cases the victims got to windows but were imprisoned by their own bars. Others have been found slumped against doors locked from the inside with a key. In the rush to get out they forgot or couldn't find the key.

Fire marshals in urban areas contacted by The Associated Press in an informal survey shared the same general reaction: "We can't tell you not to bar your windows, but there are better ways to protect your home."

Several cities, such as San Francisco and New York, have codes restricting the type of grates that can be put on windows, but door locks aren't as strictly regulated.

In New York City, fire department spokesmen reported from 10 to 20 deaths a year—up to 10 per cent of all fire fatalities in the city—are caused by illegal security grates.

Eight deaths in Detroit this year and at least seven other fatalities elsewhere in Michigan since 1973 have been blamed on deadbolt key locks, said Detroit Fire Marshal Donald L. Robinson.

The most gruesome case in Michigan occurred in Avon, a suburb northwest of Detroit, in December 1974. Firemen found the bodies of a man and his three children—ages 12, 14 and 16—six feet from a door locked with a deadbolt that was key-operated inside and out.

Such locks are designed to prevent a burglar from opening a small hole in the door, reaching in and unlocking it.

"If you have too many locks on the door, especially double-keyed locks, you may not be able to find the keyhole in an emergency fire situation," said Sgt. Lee Tracy of the Beverly Hills, Calif., police.

In Beverly Hills and Los Angeles three deaths in as many months and four in a year have been attributed to window bars. The Los Angeles City Council recently took action to curb the toll by ordering that window bars be removable from the inside without the use of any special tool or key.

Beverly Hills is famed for its wealthy residents, but in most cases neighborhoods with window bars have been low-income, high-crime areas where people fear not only burglars but rapists and other attackers more than they fear fire, the officials agreed.

Los Angeles Fire Inspector Gilbert Lindley said he can't blame people for being afraid.

"Take a case like the Westside Rapist," he said of the 33 unsolved attacks and 10 murders that still haunt elderly women in west-central Los Angeles. "They think, 'Put up bars,' but that really isn't the answer."

"I'm an elderly woman, and they (bars) make me feel secure," said one San Bernardino, Calif., resident. "I can sleep with my doors open in the summertime and feel perfectly safe."

"For one thing, you can get smoke detectors," said Lindley. He said there are sophisticated computer-telephone systems which automatically notify police or fire agencies in the event of intruders or fires.

You pay according to the sophistication of a wide range of devices that can be installed, such as electric eyes, listening devices, heat sensors and a variety of alarms, silent and noisy. Most of them currently are more expensive than simple window bars, perhaps one reason why low-income areas opt for the grates.

Of course the more complicated devices often result in an increase in false alarms and "accidental trips," said Lt. Jack Yeske of the police department in San Marino, Calif., an exclusive suburb of Los Angeles.

"There are more sophisticated methods, and they (wealthier homeowners) can afford them," Lindley said.

In Atlanta, Ga., and elsewhere, there are concerted efforts to educate the public about fire safety measures.

"We've had a campaign under way here to preplan fire escape routes and to utilize a window in the escape route," said Atlanta Fire Marshal J.B. Gossett. Barred windows are therefore discouraged, he said.

But if one must put bars on a window, select "security gates that actually swing open," said Beverly Hills Fire Inspector

James Anderson. "We're looking at them," he said. "Companies bring them to us. The ideal would be a gate, hinged like a door, that opens out—strap hinge with the pin protected, that is covered so burglars can't get to it." He said a knob-operated latch also would be preferable, "like turning a doorknob. One turn and it opens."

Beverly Hills was the scene of the most recent death attributable to burglar-proofing. Muriel Steinmetz, 70, was found in her bathroom next to a barred window. She had suffered third-degree burns and was overcome by smoke.
